As indicated in Paragraph A of the foregoing form, the motion is required to be made before an answer is filed. However, if the defendant has filed an answer before serving the notice of motion for substitution, the court may, in its discretion, grant defendant permission to withdraw it [Israel v. Superior Court (1919) 43 Cal. App. 711, 713-714, 185 P. 682] , thus enabling defendant to comply with the terms of the statute.

Alternatively, if an answer has been filed, or if the court denies permission to withdraw it, defendant may seek leave to file a cross complaint in interpleader [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386(a), 428.50; see also § 123.22].

The fact that defendant files an answer after he or she has served the notice of motion for an order of substitution and discharge does not affect the jurisdiction of the court to rule on the motion and grant it [Cassidy v. Norton (1914) 25 Cal. App. 433, 434-435, 143 P. 1057] .

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion and forms of a notice of motion for an order substituting an adverse claimant in place of defendant and for an award of costs and attorney fees incurred in the action, a form of supporting declaration, and a form of order granting the motion, see Ch. 314, Interpleader in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Purpose of Statutory Procedure

Youtz v. Farmers' etc. Nat. Bank (1916) 31 Cal. App. 370, 160 P. 855 , was an action by a married woman against a bank to recover money on deposit in her name. A creditor of plaintiff's husband had previously commenced an action against the husband on two promissory notes, and had served a writ of attachment on the bank claiming that the funds on deposit actually belonged to the husband. The bank, before answering the wife's complaint, moved to have the plaintiff in the attachment action substituted as defendant, and the bank discharged from liability on depositing the amount held, plus interest, into court. In affirming the order granting the motion, the court of appeal stated that the proceeding taken by the bank was in strict accord with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 386 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)], that the design of that statute is to enable a party who has been sued on a contract, as to which the party admits full liability as to the amount, to show that a third party not named in the action claims some right to the proceeds of the contract, either by way of complete ownership or the possession of a lien against it, and that, so showing, to deposit the money due in court and have the third party made defendant in his or her stead, thus placing in positions of adversaries the real parties at interest (31 Cal. App. 370, 371-372) .

It should be noted that the court in Youtz did not discuss the propriety of the appeal, and this fact was noted by the Supreme Court in Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Finance Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 380, 383, , which held that such orders are not appealable [see § 123.27].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Substitution and Discharge Authorized

Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Finance Co. (1931) 212 Cal. 433, 298 P. 974 , was an action against a finance company to recover the balance of a loan fund held by it. Several persons having made demand for the fund, the finance company moved, before answer, for an order discharging it from liability on payment into court of the money subject to dispute, and substituting in its place all adverse claimants. The motion was granted. From a subsequent judgment in favor of one of the substituted defendants, plaintiff appealed. The substituted defendant moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground that plaintiff had failed to serve a copy of the transcript or of his opening brief on the original defendant. The Supreme Court rejected this argument on the ground that from the time of the deposit of the money in court and the discharge of the original defendant from the case, the proceeding was one solely between the plaintiff and the substituted defendant (212 Cal. 433, 435) . Holding that the order substituting defendants was proper and that the original defendant was not an adverse party on whom service needed to be made, the Court denied the motion to dismiss (212 Cal. 433, 437) .

Hellman Commercial T. & S. Bk. v. Alden (1929) 206 Cal. 592, 275 P. 794 , involved a complex fact situation. A man was legally declared an incompetent person; Bank X then issued a $10,000 cashier's check payable to him; he endorsed the check to another party without receiving value for it; the endorsee presented the check to Bank Y; Bank Y credited the endorsee's account and permitted the endorsee to withdraw $5,000; Bank Y sued Bank X, the incompetent person, and the endorsee to recover $5,000. Bank X then moved, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)], for an order substituting the guardian of the incompetent's estate in its place and discharging it from further liability. The motion was granted on condition that Bank X deposit in court $10,000 plus interest, which it did, and the order of substitution and discharge was made. The incompetent died and an amended and supplemental complaint was filed in which the defendants named were the administratrix of the decedent's estate and the endorsee of the check. The trial court rendered judgment in favor of plaintiff against the endorsee for $5,000, plus interest and costs, and awarded the money deposited by Bank X to the administratrix of the decedent's estate (206 Cal. 592, 597) . The Supreme Court, in affirming the judgment, pointed out that the trial court granted Bank X's motion for an order substituting the incompetent's guardian as defendant and made the necessary order, and that from that point on the proceeding was between the contesting claimants to the fund deposited in court (206 Cal. 592, 600) .

Cross v. Eureka Lake etc. Canal Co. (1887) 73 Cal. 302, 14 P. 885 , involved an action by the administrator of the estate of a decedent against a corporation to recover dividends alleged to have been declared on stock claimed to be owned by the estate. The corporation deposited the sum in court and moved to have the adverse claimants to the dividends (the alleged owner of the stock, who claimed merely to have pledged it to decedent as security for an antecedent loan which had since been paid, and the alleged owner's assignee) substituted as parties defendant. The motion was granted, and the action then proceeded between plaintiff and the adverse claimants.

DeCoe v. Johnson (1921) 54 Cal. App. 592, 202 P. 362 , was an action to recover the purchase price of rice allegedly grown by plaintiff and another person as partners. The other person died, and the crop was harvested by plaintiff, who sold it to defendant. Defendant moved for an order to substitute as defendant the administratrix of the deceased partner's estate. In its supporting affidavit, defendant stated that the administratrix had made a claim on it to one half the proceeds of the sale, that it was at all times willing and able to make payment of the total amount due, that it had offered to make payment to plaintiff and the administratrix in any manner mutually satisfactory to them or to pay half the amount to each of them, but that they had been unable to arrive at a satisfactory agreement under which defendant could make payment to them and so release itself from its obligation to both parties. The affidavit further stated that plaintiff insisted she was entitled to certain expenses incurred in the growing and handling of the rice, and that the administratrix admitted that this was so, but that plaintiff refused to make an accounting to the administratrix until plaintiff had first received payment of the purchase price. Defendant also disclaimed any interest in the amount to be paid by it or in the controversy between plaintiff and the administratrix, stated that there had been no collusion between defendant and the administratix, defendant and the plaintiff, or defendant and anyone else, and offered to deposit the full amount due in court (54 Cal. App. 592, 595-597) . After a hearing on the motion, the court ordered that on payment into court by defendant of the amount due, the administratrix would be substituted as defendant in defendant's place. The money was subsequently deposited, and defendant was dismissed from the case. The administratrix filed an answer to the complaint. Plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was subsequently granted. The order granting the motion was, however, thereafter set aside by the court on motion of the administratrix, and plaintiff appealed. In affirming the order, the court of appeal, in approving the procedure followed, pointed out that the original defendant was entitled to demand that the matter be determined either amicably or by suit between plaintiff and the administratrix before it should be required to pay the debt, which it admitted existed against it (54 Cal. App. 592, 602) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesSubstitutionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesSubstitutionsMotions for Substitution

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.21

§ 123.21 Supporting Motion by Plaintiff in Interpleader for Order Discharging Plaintiff From Liability [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)] and, If Appropriate, for Order to Deposit Money or Deliver Property in Question

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER DIS-
vs.	)	CHARGING PLAINTIFF FROM LIABILITY
_____ [names],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)]
Defendants.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR AN ORDER [THAT PLAINTIFF _____ (DEPOSIT WITH THE COURT CLERK THE MONEY IN QUESTION or DELIVER THE PROPERTY IN QUESTION AS THE COURT SHALL DIRECT) AND FOR AN ORDER] DISCHARGING PLAINTIFF FROM LIABILITY SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE, AS SHOWN BY THE PAPERS SUBMITTED IN SUPPORT OF THE MOTION, CONFLICTING CLAIMS TO THE _____ [MONEY or PROPERTY] _____ [HAVE BEEN or MAY BE] MADE BY DEFENDANTS HEREIN. [THE _____ (FULL AMOUNT IN QUESTION [WITH INTEREST] HAS BEEN DEPOSITED WITH THE CLERK OF THIS COURT or PROPERTY HAS BEEN DELIVERED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE PRIOR ORDER OF THIS COURT)].

A. Action in Interpleader Authorized. A person on whom conflicting claims are or may be made for or relating to personal property, or the performance of an obligation, or any portion thereof, may bring an action against the conflicting claimants to compel them to interplead and litigate their several claims (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a); see also Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Santa Monica Finance Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 211, 216-217, 6 Cal. Rptr. 213).

B. Discharge of Interpleading Party From Liability. The action of interpleader may be maintained, and the interpleading party discharged from liability to all or any of the conflicting claimants (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a); see also Weingetz v. Cheverton (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 67, 79-80, 226 P.2d 742).

C. Use of Motion Procedure. Although Section 386(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure does not expressly indicate whether or not an interpleading party may serve and file a notice of motion for an order discharging him or her from liability to the defendants, the customary practice appears to be to allow such a motion (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1003; Lincoln Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 18, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723 ; Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bk. v. American Tr. Co (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 289, 299-300, 338 P.2d 617).

[Optional] D. Deposit in Court. Any amount which a plaintiff or cross complainant in interpleader admits to be payable may be deposited by him or her with the clerk of the court at the time the complaint or cross complaint in interpleader is filed without first obtaining an order of the court therefor, and any interest on amounts so deposited and any right to damages for detention of property so delivered, or its value, ceases to accrue after the date of such deposit or delivery (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 386.1).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities is for use by a plaintiff in interpleader in support of a motion for an order dis charging him or her from liability to defendants and, if the amount in question was not deposited with the court clerk when the complaint was filed or the case involves disputed personal property and no prior court order has been made directing delivery of it, for an order that plaintiff deposit the money or deliver the property.

The grounds of the motion are: (1) plaintiff claims no interest in the amount which plaintiff owes or the personal property held by plaintiff; (2) conflicting claims to the amount or property have been or may be made by defendants to the action; (3) plaintiff has deposited or will, on order of the court, deposit with the court clerk the full amount in question with accrued interest, if any, or plaintiff has delivered or will, on order of the court, deliver the personal property in accordance with the court's order; and (4) the order of discharge is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a).

Paragraph D should be included if the disputed amount is due on a contractual obligation and plaintiff deposited the full amount with accrued interest, if any, with court clerk at the time the complaint was filed.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations setting forth any extrinsic evidence necessary to establish the grounds of the motion.

For additional points and authorities that may be added to the foregoing form if there is no privity between the conflicting claimants, or if an award of costs and attorney fees is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6, see §§ 123.23 and 123.25, respectively.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 123.28 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion by the plaintiff in interpleader for an order discharging him or her from liability that is supported by the foregoing memorandum.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion of the nature of interpleader and the procedure for filing of a complaint or cross complaint in interpleader, a form of interlocutory order discharging plaintiff in interpleader, directing defendants to interplead, and awarding plaintiff costs and attorney fees incurred in the action, a form of stipulation for an order to the same effect, a form of notice of motion for an order discharging the interpleading plaintiff and awarding costs and attorney fees incurred, and a form of order granting the motion, see Ch. 314, Interpleader in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action in Interpleader Authorized

Fidelity & Deposit Co. v. Santa Monica Finance Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 211, 6 Cal. Rptr. 213 , involved the propriety of a preliminary injunction issued to restrain one of the defendants in an action in interpleader from further prosecuting its prior action against the present plaintiff surety and its principal pending determination of the action in interpleader. In modifying the preliminary injunction to allow the prior action to proceed as against the principal, the court of appeal, quoting from 30 Am. Jur., Interpleader, § 7, said that it is not necessary in order to justify the filing of a bill of interpleader that suit shall actually have been commenced against the plaintiff, that it is sufficient that claims shall have been made against him, and that he is in danger of being molested by the assertion of conflicting rights (182 Cal. App. 2d 211, 216-217) .

[b] Discharge of Interpleading Party From Liability

Weingetz v. Cheverton (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 67, 226 P.2d 742 , was decided not on a motion for discharge from liability, but was an appeal from a judgment rendered against one defendant and in favor of another defendant in plaintiff's action in interpleader. With reference to the discharge of plaintiff, however, the court said it was true that plaintiff in an action of interpleader brings the action when he holds property to which various persons are asserting conflicting claims and in which he has no interest other than that of stakeholder, that if plaintiff makes a proper showing and delivers the property to such person as the court may direct, the court may discharge the plaintiff from liability to all or any of the conflicting claimants and the action may proceed for the determination of the rights of the various claimants to the property which is then in the custody of the court, and that this procedure had been followed in the trial court (102 Cal. App. 2d 67, 79-80) .

[c] Use of Motion Procedure

Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 provides in pertinent part that an application for an order is a motion.

The factual and procedural background of Lincoln Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723 , is discussed in § 123.27[3][a]. In dismissing the appeal from the judgment of interpleader discharging the plaintiff from liability and leaving the defendants to settle their dispute as to the proceeds of matured policies on the ground the judgment was interlocutory and nonappealable, the court of appeal pointed out that the proceeds of the policies had been paid into court, that plaintiff filed a motion for judgment of interpleader asking that it be discharged from any further liability, ordering that its policies be cancelled, and requiring the named defendants to determine the dispute between themselves, that the trial court granted the motion, that a judgment of interpleader was entered, and that the appeal was from this judgment (41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 18 n.2).

Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bk. v. American Tr. Co. (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 289, 338 P.2d 617 , was an interpleader action filed by a bank against the executor and the widow of a deceased depositor. The depositor had had both a savings account, from which the wife was authorized to withdraw funds, and a commercial account, on which the wife was authorized to write checks. The balance in these two accounts ($43,005.78) at the time of decedent's death had, at the widow's request, been transferred to her personal account. The executor subsequently demanded from plaintiff payment of the full amounts on deposit at the time decedent died. The bank then withheld the balance in the widow's personal account ($38,082.96), the widow having withdrawn the sum of $4,922.82. Plaintiff prayed that defendants be required to interplead and that, on deposit by plaintiff of the sum of $39,304.99 (amount withheld from widow's account plus interest), plaintiff be discharged from all liability to defendants. The executor filed an answer and a cross complaint against plaintiff and the widow for the sum of $43,005.78 plus interest. Plaintiff filed an answer to the cross complaint and a cross complaint against the widow praying that, in the event plaintiff should be required to pay the executor the amount demanded by the executor, the widow be required to repay plaintiff such sum. Plaintiff filed a notice of motion for an order authorizing plaintiff to deposit the $39,304.99 into court, for an injunction restraining defendants from taking any proceedings or action in relation thereto, and for an interlocutory decree discharging it from all liability to defendants. The trial court denied the motion, apparently on the ground that plaintiff's offer to deposit was conditioned on a complete discharge from liability, whereas the amount it offered to deposit was not the whole amount in dispute. The trial court rendered judgment for the executor against plaintiff for $43,005.78 plus interest and in favor of plaintiff against he widow for the sum of $4,922.82. Plaintiff and the widow appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. It held that plaintiff's motion had been properly denied because it failed to deposit in court when the complaint was filed the sum it admitted to be due and because its offer to deposit the money, the amount of which was less than that in dispute, was conditioned on its being granted a full discharge from all liability and on the trial court's granting an injunction prohibiting defendants from taking any action or proceeding against plaintiff concerning defendants' claims, and that this the trial court could not do (170 Cal. App. 2d 289, 300) .

[d] Deposit in Court

Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c) provides for the deposit of the amount in dispute with the court clerk at the time the complaint or cross complaint is filed, as set forth in Paragraph C of the foregoing form. Code Civ. Proc. § 386.1 provides that when a deposit has been made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386, the court shall, on the application of any party to the action, order the deposit to be invested in an insured interest-bearing account and that interest on such amount shall be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action in Interpleader Authorized

Fidelity Sav. etc. Assn. v. Rodgers (1919) 180 Cal. 683, 182 P. 426 , was an action in interpleader to require the two defendants to interplead and litigate between themselves their adverse and conflicting claims to a sum of money in plaintiff's possession which plaintiff offered to pay into court for the party found to be entitled to it. The trial court subsequently rendered judgment for one of the defendants, and the other defendant appealed. The Supreme Court reversed on the ground that the trial court erred in concluding that the successful defendant was entitled to the money. The Court rejected, however, appellant's argument that the complaint in interpleader was insufficient because it did not state facts showing that the claims of the successful defendant were well founded. The Court pointed out that the action in interpleader is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)] and that the code requires nothing more of the plaintiff than, in its complaint in interpleader, to show that the parties to be called in make claims on it for the same thing, that the respective claims are adverse to each other, and that it cannot safely determine for itself which claim is right and lawful (180 Cal. 683, 684-685) .

It should be noted that the Court's foregoing statement was later repudiated by the Supreme Court in Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 510, 150 P.2d 463 , to the extent that it requires a complaint in interpleader to allege that plaintiff cannot safely determine for itself which claim is right and lawful.

[b] Deposit in Court

Leroy v. Bella Vista Investment Co. (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 369, 35 Cal. Rptr. 128 , involved an appeal from the judgment in each of three cases which were consolidated for trial. The second case was an action in interpleader to determine plaintiff's liability under a promissory note as between the payee of the note and a creditor of the payee who had garnished a portion of the proceeds of the note in a third-party action. On filing the complaint in interpleader, plaintiff deposited the amount in dispute with the clerk of the court. With respect to this action, the court of appeal, citing Code Civ. Proc. § 386 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c)], said that on the filing of the action it was proper for plaintiff to deposit with the clerk of the court the amount in dispute without first obtaining an order of the court therefor, that the deposit stopped the accrual of interest on the amount deposited, and that while the note contained a promise to pay all costs of collection and reasonable attorney's fees incurred by the holder of the note on account of such collection, whether or not suit was filed thereon, the nature of the suit in interpleader precluded the assessment of such special damages as against plaintiff with respect to the amount deposited with the court clerk (222 Cal. App. 2d 369, 376-377) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureParties InterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

126 of 172 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.22

§ 123.22 Supporting Motion by Cross Complainant in Interpleader for Order Discharging Cross Complainant From Liability [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)] and, If Appropriate, for Order to Deposit Money or Deliver Property Sued For

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER DISCHARGING CROSS COMPLAINANT FROM LIABILITY
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
_____ [name],	)
Cross Complainant,	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)]
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [names],	)	Time: _____
Cross Defendants.	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

CROSS COMPLAINANT'S MOTION FOR AN ORDER [TO _____ (DEPOSIT WITH THE COURT CLERK THE MONEY SUED FOR or DELIVER THE PROPERTY SUED FOR AS THE COURT SHALL DIRECT) AND FOR AN ORDER] DISCHARGING CROSS COMPLAINANT FROM LIABILITY SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE, AS SHOWN BY THE PAPERS SUBMITTED IN SUPPORT OF THE MOTION, CROSS

COMPLAINANT HAS NO INTEREST IN THE _____ [MONEY or PROPERTY] SUED FOR, AND CONFLICTING CLAIMS TO IT HAVE BEEN MADE BY PLAINTIFF AND CROSS DEFENDANT _____ [name]. [THE FULL AMOUNT SUED FOR HAS BEEN DEPOSITED WITH THE CLERK OF THIS COURT].

A. Cross Action in Interpleader Authorized. A defendant against whom an action is pending on a contract or for specific personal property and against whom a demand on the contract or for such property has been made by a person not a party to the action may file a verified cross complaint in interpleader, admitting that he or she has no interest in the amount or property claimed by plaintiff, or in a portion of such amount or such property, and alleging that all or such portion of the amount or property is demanded by parties to such action or cross action (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)).

B. Discharge of Interpleading Party From Liability. [See § 123.21, Paragraph B.]

C. Use of Motion Procedure. [See § 123.21, Paragraph C.]

[Optional] D. Motion for Order to Deliver Property. The cross complainant in interpleader may apply to the court on notice to the parties for an order to deliver the property or portion of it or its value to such person as the court shall direct (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)).

[Optional] E. Deposit in Court. [See § 123.21, Paragraph D.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities is for use by defendant, who has been sued in an action on a contract or for specific personal property and who filed a cross complaint against plaintiff and a third party who had made a claim against defendant on the contract or for the property, in support of a motion for an order discharging defendant/cross complainant from liability to cross defendants and, if the amount sued for was not deposited with the court clerk when the cross complaint was filed, for an order that such amount be so deposited or, if the case involves disputed personal property, for an order that cross complainant deliver the property to such person as the court shall in its order direct.

It should be noted that unlike a motion by defendant to substitute a nonparty in defendant's place and for an order discharging defendant from liability [see § 123.20], a cross complaint may be filed with or after the time the answer is filed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386(a), 428.50].

The grounds of the motion are: (1) defendant/cross complainant claims no interest in the amount or property sued for; (2) the new party cross defendant has, without any collusion with defendant/cross complainant made a demand against defendant on the contract or for the property; (3) defendant/cross complainant has deposited or will, on order of the court, deposit with the court clerk the full amount sued for, or defendant/cross complainant will, on order of the court, deliver the personal property to such person as the court shall in its order direct; and (4) the order of discharge is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a).

Paragraph D should be included if the action by plaintiff against defendant/cross complainant is one to recover specific personal property as opposed to a sum of money. Paragraph E should be included if the disputed amount is due on a contractual obligation and cross complainant deposited the full amount with accrued interest, if any, with the court clerk at the time the cross complaint was filed.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations setting forth any extrinsic evidence necessary to establish the grounds of the motion.

For additional points and authorities that may be added to this form if there is no privity between the conflicting claimants, or if an award of costs and attorney fees is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6, see §§ 123.23 and 123.25, respectively.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 123.28 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion by the cross complainant in interpleader for an order discharging him or her from liability supported by the foregoing memorandum.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsCross-ClaimsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPartiesInterpleadersGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.23

§ 123.23 Supporting Motion for Order for Discharge From Liability to Conflicting Claimants--Conflicting Claims Are Not Identical or Are Independent [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with the points and authorities set forth in §§ 123.20-123.22 if the claims of the conflicting claimants are adverse and independent.]

THE REMEDY PROVIDED BY SECTION 386(a) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE IS AVAILABLE ALTHOUGH THE CLAIMS OF THE CONFLICTING CLAIMANTS ARE ADVERSE TO AND INDEPENDENT OF ONE ANOTHER.

Effect of Nonidentical or Independent Claims. The order of substitution of parties may be made and the action of interpleader may be maintained, and the applicant or interpleading party be discharged from liability to all or any of the conflicting claimants, although their titles or claims have not a common origin, or are not identical but are adverse to and independent of one another (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a); see also Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 502-503, 150 P.2d 463).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This point and authority may be combined with the points and authorities set out in §§ 123.20-123.22 when not all adverse claimants claim the entire amount in dispute or when there is no privity between the conflicting claimants.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect of Nonidentical or Independent Claims

Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 150 P.2d 463 , was an interpleader action by the lessees of real property to require the lessors and certain other persons to interplead their rights to the landowner's oil royalties which had accrued and which were to accrue under the terms of the lease. The adverse claimants claimed that the lessors held the property in trust for them and that they were the owners and entitled to the royalties. From a judgment entered following the sustaining of the general and special demurrers of the lessors to the complaint without leave to amend on the ground that a tenant may not, under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1962(4) [repealed; now see Evid. Code § 624], dispute the title of his or her landlord at the date of the lease, plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court pointed out that the common law bill of interpleader had four essential elements: (1) the same thing, debt, or duty had to be claimed by both or all the parties against whom the relief was demanded; (2) all of the adverse titles or claims had to be dependent, or be derived from a common source; (3) the one seeking the relief must not have had or claimed any interest in the subject matter; and (4) the one seeking the relief must have incurred no independent liability to either of the claimants (24 Cal. 2d 497, 502-503) . The Court explained that Code Civ. Proc. § 386 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)] was amended in 1881 to add the provision that interpleader lies although the titles or claims of the conflicting claimants have not a common origin, or are not identical, but are adverse to and independent of one another. The Court held that this amendment, omitting the phrase, "or are not identical," directly abrogated the common law requirement that all the adverse titles or claims had to be dependent or derived from a common source, and that it was therefore clear that privity between the conflicting claimants need not be shown to invoke the remedy of interpleader (24 Cal. 2d 497, 503) . The Court further held that the amendment, by use of the phrase, "or are not identical," also abrogated the common law requirement that the same thing, debt, or duty be claimed by both claimants and that the action could be maintained although one claimant claimed the entire fund and another claimant claimed only a portion of that fund (24 Cal. 2d 497, 503-504) . The Court, however, cautioned that the amendment does not allow the remedy when each of the claimants asserts the right to a different debt, claim, or duty (24 Cal. 2d 497, 504) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesSubstitutionsGeneral Overview

128 of 172 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.24

§ 123.24 Supporting Defendant Stakeholder's Motion for Order Discharging Stakeholder From Liability and Dismissing Stakeholder From Action on Stakeholder's Deposit With Court Clerk of Amount in Dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER DISCHARGING DEFENDANT _____ [name] FROM LIABILITY AND DISMISSING HIM/HER/IT FROM CASE [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5]
_____ [name] ,	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)
_____ [names],	)
Defendants.	)
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

DEFENDANT _____'S [name] MOTION FOR AN ORDER DISCHARGING HIM/HER/IT FROM LIABILITY TO THE PARTIES HEREIN AND DISMISSING HIM/HER/IT FROM THE CASE ON HIS/HER/ITS DEPOSITING THE AMOUNT IN DISPUTE WITH THE CLERK OF THIS COURT SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE, AS SHOWN BY THE PAPERS SUBMITTED IN SUPPORT OF THE MOTION, DEFENDANT _____ [name] IS A MERE STAKEHOLDER AND CLAIMS NO INTEREST IN

THE AMOUNT IN DISPUTE OR IN ANY PORTION OF IT AND CONFLICTING CLAIMS TO THE AMOUNT HAVE BEEN MADE ON THIS DEFENDANT BY OTHER PARTIES TO THE ACTION.

Dismissal of Stakeholder. If the only relief sought against one of the defendants is the payment of a stated amount of money alleged to be wrongfully withheld, such defendant may, on affidavit (or declaration under Section 2015.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure) that he or she is a mere stakeholder with no interest in the amount or any portion of it and that conflicting demands have been made on him or her for the amount by parties to the action, on notice to such parties, apply to the court for an order discharging him or her from liability and dismissing him or her from the action on his or her depositing with the clerk of the court the amount in dispute, and the court may, in its discretion, make such order (Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be used in an action against two or more defendants by the defendant against whom the only relief sought is payment of a stated amount of money alleged to be wrongfully withheld in support of a motion for an order discharging the moving defendant from liability to the parties and dismissing him or her from the action on his or her depositing the amount in dispute with the court clerk.

The grounds of the motion are: (1) defendant has no interest in the disputed amount or any portion of it; (2) conflicting demands have been made on him or her for the amount by parties to the action; and (3) the order of discharge and dismissal is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386.5, 2009] or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] stating that defendant is a mere stakeholder with no interest in the amount sued for or any portion of it, setting forth evidentiary facts showing that conflicting demands have been made on defendant for the amount by parties to the action, and setting forth defendant's offer to deposit the amount with the court clerk.

For additional points and authorities that may be added to the foregoing form if an award of costs and attorney fees is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6, see § 123.25.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion by one of the defendants, in the action to recover money allegedly wrongfully withheld, to be discharged from liability and dismissed from the action on his or her depositing the amount in dispute with the court clerk, a form of supporting declaration, and an order discharging defendant from liability and dismissing him or her from the action, see Ch. 314, Interpleader in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in Court

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.25

§ 123.25 Supporting Motion of Defendant or Interpleading Party for Order Awarding Costs and Attorney Fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with the points and authorities set forth in §§ 123.20-123.22 and 123.24 when the moving defendant or interpleading party seeks an award of costs and attorney fees pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6].

THE COURT MAY AWARD COSTS AND REASONABLE ATTORNEY FEES TO THE _____ [DEFENDANT or INTERPLEADING PARTY] WHO HAS FOLLOWED THE PROCEDURE SET FORTH IN SECTION _____ [386 or 386.5] OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

A. Right to Request Award of Costs and Attorney Fees. A party who follows the procedure set forth in Section 386 or 386.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure may insert in his or her motion, petition, complaint, or cross complaint a request for allowance of his or her costs and reasonable attorney fees incurred in the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a); see also Business Title Corp. v. United States (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 710, 717, 147 Cal. Rptr. 622, 581 P.2d 627).

[Optional] B. Award of Costs and Attorney Fees From Funds Deposited With Court. In ordering the discharge of the party, the court may, in its discretion, award such party his or her costs and reasonable attorney fees from the amount in dispute which has been deposited with the court (Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a)).

[Optional] C. Award May Be Made From Future Deposits An award of attorney fees pursuant to Section 386.6 of the Code of Civil Procedure may, when the initial amount deposited is insufficient, be made from future periodic payments to be deposited with the court by the defendant or interpleading party as they become due (see Signal Oil & Gas Co. v. Taliaferro (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 271, 275-276, 24 Cal. Rptr. 593).

[Optional] D. Denial of Attorney Fees Because Discharged Party Is Attorney as Not Permitted. A party may not be denied the attorney fees authorized by Section 386.6(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure for the reason that he or she is an attorney, appeared in pro se, and performed his or her own legal services (Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be used in combination with the points and authorities set out in §§ 123.20-123.22 and 123.24 when the defendant or interpleading party seeks, on his or her discharge from liability, an award of costs and attorney fees. If the points and authorities are used in combination with §§ 123.20-123.22 and 123.24, the captions of those forms should include the further description, AND FOR AN AWARD OF COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES. Also, [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386(a)] in the captions to §§ 123.20-123.22 should be changed to [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386(a), 386.6], and [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5] in the caption to § 123.24 should be changed to [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386.5, 386.6].

The grounds of the motion are: (1) the moving party has incurred costs and attorney fees in availing himself or herself of the remedy provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) or 386.5; (2) the moving party has followed the procedure set forth in the applicable section; and (3) the award is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

Paragraph B should be included if the amount in dispute has been, or will be, deposited with the court clerk.

Paragraph C should be included if the amount in dispute consists of periodic payments, such as rent, and the initial amount deposited, or to be deposited, is insufficient to cover the costs and reasonable attorney fees sought.

Paragraph D should be included if the stakeholder or interpleading party is an attorney who has appeared in pro se and has performed his or her own legal services.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in §§ 123.30-123.32 and 123.34 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for an order awarding costs and attorney fees supported by the foregoing memorandum.

See also §§ 123.20[2], 123.21[2], and 123.24[2] for Related Pleading and Practice Forms.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Right to Request Award of Costs and Attorney Fees

Business Title Corp. v. United States (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 710, 147 Cal. Rptr. 622, 581 P.2d 627 , was an action in interpleader by the escrow holder acting pursuant to appointment under Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074 to resolve conflicting claims to funds deposited in an escrow account set up for the transfer of a liquor license. Plaintiff requested that it be discharged from liability and dismissed from the action on depositing the interpleaded funds with the court and that it be awarded costs of suit and attorney fees incurred in the action pursuant to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 (21 Cal. 3d 710, 716) . Subsequently, judgment was entered discharging and dismissing the interpleading party, awarding it out of the interpleaded fund the sum of $1,471 for attorney fees and costs incurred in the action, and awarding the residue of the cash proceeds to one of the interpleaded defendants (21 Cal. 3d 710, 717) . The other defendant (the United States) appealed, claiming that its lien should have been given priority and that the trial court erred in awarding the interpleaded fund to the other defendant. The Supreme Court, after an analysis of the facts and law, rejected the argument and affirmed the judgment (21 Cal. 3d 710, 722) .

[b] Award of Costs and Attorney Fees From Funds Deposited With Court

In addition to the statement made in Paragraph B of the foregoing form, Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a) provides that at the time of final judgment in the action the court may make such further provision for assumption of such costs and attorney fees by one or more of the adverse claimants as may appear proper.

[c] Award May Be Made From Future Deposits

Signal Oil & Gas Co. v. Taliaferro (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 271, 24 Cal. Rptr. 593 , was an action by a lessee of commercial property to compel adverse and conflicting claimants to rent payments to interplead and litigate their claims among themselves. On filing the complaint, plaintiff deposited with the court clerk the sum of $494.22, being the rent then due. The trial court rendered a judgment in plaintiff's favor that defendants interplead their rights to the rental payments and that plaintiff be discharged from any liability on account of nonpayment of rent so long as and to the extent that rent payments were deposited with the court clerk or with a named bank pursuant to the stipulation of the parties. The judgment restrained defendants from commencing any action against plaintiff for rent or because of nonpayment of rent so long as plaintiff complied with the foregoing conditions and ordered that plaintiff was entitled to recover as reasonable attorney fees the sum of $500 which was to be deducted from the sum deposited. On appeal, by one of the defendants, appellant contended that the trial court erred in allowing plaintiff in interpleader $500 attorney fees when the amount deposited in court was only $494.22. The court of appeal held that the claim had no merit. The court noted that the statutory basis for the award [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6] was unchallenged and that in making the award the trial court provided that it "shall be deducted from the sum deposited as provided hereinabove" (207 Cal. App. 2d 271, 275-276) . The court said that the judgment clearly contemplated the continuous deposits of rent as it became due, that despite the unfortunate use of the singular in respect to the deduction, "from the sum deposited," the judgment operated prospectively as well as in the present, and that the court was awarding attorney fees with respect to the one month's rent already deposited and the rentals to be deposited in the future. Consequently, the fees allowed did not exceed the fund from which they were to be paid (207 Cal. App. 2d 271, 276) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Award of Costs and Attorney Fees From Funds Deposited With Court

Fritschi v. Teed (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 718, 29 Cal. Rptr. 114 , involved three cases consolidated on appeal, two of which were interpleader actions by insurance companies to determine the rights of adverse claimants to life insurance proceeds. In the two interpleader actions, the trial court ordered payment of attorney fees and costs to the insurance companies out of the insurance proceeds, and in the subsequent judgment ordered that the sums be included in the costs payable by the losing defendant. The court of appeal held that under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a)], the trial court properly exercised its discretion (213 Cal. App. 2d 718, 728) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.26

§ 123.26 Supporting Application of Plaintiff or Cross Complainant in Interpleader for Preliminary Injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)] Enjoining Other Parties to Action From Prosecuting or Instituting Actions Affecting Rights and Obligations of Parties to Action or Cross Action in Interpleader [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(f)]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____
[EITHER, if application by plaintiff in interpleader:]

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF APPLICA-
Plaintiff,	)	TION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION
vs.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386(f), 527(a)]
_____ [names],	)	Date: _____
Defendants.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

[OR, if application by cross complainant in interpleader:]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF APPLICA-

_____ [name],	)	TION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION
Defendant.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386(f), 527(a)]
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Cross Complainant,	)	Time: _____
vs.	)	Location: _____
_____ [names],	)	[Judge: _____]
Cross Defendants.	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]
	)
	)

_____ [PLAINTIFF'S or CROSS COMPLAINANT'S] APPLICATION FOR A PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION RESTRAINING ALL PARTIES TO THIS _____ [ACTION or CROSS ACTION] FROM INSTITUTING OR FURTHER PROSECUTING ANY OTHER PROCEEDING IN ANY COURT IN CALIFORNIA AFFECTING THE RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS AS BETWEEN THE PARTIES TO THE INTERPLEADER UNTIL FURTHER ORDER OF THE COURT SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE, AS SHOWN BY THE PAPERS SUBMITTED IN SUPPORT OF THIS APPLICATION, AN ACTUAL DANGER OF MULTIPLICITY OF ACTIONS EXISTS, THE PENDING INTERPLEADER _____ [ACTION or CROSS ACTION] IS ADEQUATE TO PROTECT THE RIGHTS OF ALL THE PARTIES TO THE _____ [FUNDS or PROPERTY] IN QUESTION, AND NONE OF THE PARTIES WILL BE DAMAGED BY THE GRANTING OF THE APPLICATION AND THE ISSUANCE OF THE INJUNCTION.

A. Pendente Lite Injunctive Relief Authorized. After a complaint or cross complaint in interpleader has been filed, the court in which it was filed may enter its order restraining all parties to the action from instituting or further prosecuting any other proceeding in any court in California affecting the rights and obligations as between the parties to the interpleader until further order of the court (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(f)).

B. When Relief May Be Granted. A preliminary injunction may be granted at any time before judgment on a verified complaint or on affidavits (declarations) showing satisfactorily that sufficient grounds exist for it (Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)).

C. Ground for Relief. An injunction may be granted pendente lite when it is necessary to prevent a multiplicity of judicial proceedings (Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(6)).

D. Denial of Application for Preliminary Injunction as Abuse of Discretion. It is an abuse of discretion for the trial court to deny a request for a preliminary injunction under Section 386(f) of the Code of Civil Procedure when the applicant has made a prima facie showing of the need for injunctive relief and has shown that (1) an actual and not merely a hypothetical danger of multiplicity of suits exists if the injunctive relief is not granted, (2) the interpleader action is adequate to preserve the rights of the parties to the funds or property in question, and (3) no damage would result to the parties if the preliminary injunction is issued (Department of Education v. Superior Court (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 977, 979, 159 Cal. Rptr. 265).

[Optional] E. Court May Restrain Collection of Judgment. Jurisdiction to restrain further prosecution of proceedings that affect the rights and obligations of the interpleader includes jurisdiction to restrain collection of a claim that has already been reduced to judgment (Surety Co. of the Pacific v. Piver (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 29, 32, 197 Cal. Rptr. 531).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted by plaintiff or cross complainant in an action or cross action in interpleader to support an application for a preliminary injunction to restrain defendants or cross defendants from instituting or further prosecuting any other proceeding in any court in California affecting the rights and obligations as between the parties to the interpleader until further order of the court. The application for the preliminary injunction may be either by noticed motion, in which case the memorandum must be served and filed with the notice of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)], or by application for an order to show cause why the preliminary injunction should not be granted and for a temporary restraining order, in which case the memorandum must be served along with the applicant's other papers within five days from the date the temporary restraining order is issued, or two days prior to the hearing, whichever is earlier [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2)].

The grounds of the application are: (1) pendente lite injunctive relief is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386(f); and (2) a denial of the application would constitute an abuse of judicial discretion because (a) an actual danger of multiplicity of actions exists, (b) the pending action or cross action in interpleader is adequate to preserve the rights of the parties to the funds or property in question, and (c) none of the parties will be damaged by the issuance of a preliminary injunction.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. If the application is by noticed motion, counsel should serve and file with the notice of motion and memorandum affidavits [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009] or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] setting forth the evidentiary facts necessary to establish the grounds of the motion. If the order to show cause procedure is used, statute requires that the applicant serve on the adverse parties any affidavits (declarations) relied on as establishing the grounds for issuance of a preliminary injunction within the time period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 527(d)(2), as set forth above.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of order to show cause and temporary restraining order and form of preliminary injunction enjoining other parties to the action from prosecuting or instituting actions affecting the rights and obligations of the parties in interpleader, see Ch. 314, Interpleader in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For a general discussion and forms of applications for temporary restraining orders and a notice of motion for preliminary injunction and related papers, see Ch. 303, Injunctions in that set.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Denial of Application for Preliminary Injunction as Abuse of Discretion

Department of Education v. Superior Court (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 977, 159 Cal. Rptr. 265 , was an action in interpleader in which plaintiff deposited the interpleaded funds with the court and sought injunctive relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386(f). Plaintiff asserted that one of the defendants had already filed an action against it and that another defendant was threatening to do so. The trial court issued an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be granted. None of the defendants filed opposition to the issuance of a preliminary injunction, although a third defendant appeared and opposed it orally. The trial court denied the motion for a preliminary injunction without giving any reasons for its action, and plaintiff petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to grant the request for a preliminary injunction.

In ordering issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order denying the preliminary injunction and to enter an order granting it, the court of appeal said that although the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(f) is discretionary, the discretion which a trial court enjoys is not unlimited (97 Cal. App. 3d 977, 979) . The court pointed out that plaintiff had made more than a prima facie showing of the need for injunctive relief and had shown an actual, not merely a hypothetical, danger of a multiplicity of suits and that the unnecessary filing of multiple suits would inconvenience not only plaintiff but the judicial system as well. The court further noted that defendants had not come forward with any explanation whatever of why the pending interpleader action was inadequate to preserve their rights to the funds in question or how they would be damaged if the preliminary injunction issued. The court held that, under these circumstances, it was an abuse of discretion for the trial court to deny the request for a preliminary injunction (97 Cal. App. 3d 977, 979) .

[b] Court May Restrain Collection of Judgment

In Surety Co. of the Pacific v. Piver (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 29, 197 Cal. Rptr. 531 , cross defendant obtained a summary judgment against a surety company, based on a statutory contractor's license bond issued by the surety company. A second claimant subsequently brought the present action against the surety company, based on the same bond. The first claimant was aware of the second claimant's claim, as well as of the existence of a third claim, before moving for summary judgment. In the present action, the surety company filed a cross complaint in interpleader. In connection with its cross complaint, the surety company moved for and obtained from the trial court an order an order restraining all parties to the action from instituting or further prosecuting any other proceedings that affected the rights and obligations of the parties to the interpleader. The first claimant appealed the order.

The court of appeal upheld the trial court. The court stated that the trial court clearly had jurisdiction to make the order, and the fact that the fist claimant's claim had been reduced to judgment did not preclude the restraint. The court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 386(f), pursuant to which the order was made, is not limited by its terms to unliquidiated or unadjudicated claims, and that such a statutory limitation should not be implied. The court noted that a restraint against enforcing a judgment may be essential to the protection of the interpleader jurisdiction, and that there may be situations in which the various claimants to particular property or a fund should be permitted to proceed to judgment, being restrained in the interpleader action only as to enforcement of the judgment (149 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 29, 31). Thus the court concluded that jurisdiction to restrain further prosecution of proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 386 includes jurisdiction to restrain collection of the judgment (149 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 29, 32).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedureParties InterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary Injunctions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

§ 123.27 Supporting Respondent's Motion for Order Dismissing Appeal--Judgment or Order Discharging Defendant or Interpleading Party From Liability on Deposit of Fund or Delivery of Property as Interlocutory and Nonappealable

[1] FORM

IN THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]
[EITHER, if appeal is from order discharging interpleading plaintiff (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)):]

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS APPEAL
Plaintiff and Respondent,	)
vs.	)
_____ [names],	)	Date: _____
Defendants and Appellants.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

[OR, if appeal is from order discharging interpleading cross complainant (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)):]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____

vs. _____ [name], Defendant. _____ [name], Cross Complainant and Respondent, vs. _____ [names], Cross Defendants and Appellants.	)))))))))	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS APPEAL Date: _____ Time: _____ Location: _____ [Judge: _____] Date Action Filed: _____ [Trial Date: _____]

[OR, if appeal is from order substituting parties defendant (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)):]

_____ [name], Plaintiff and Appellant, vs. _____ [name], Defendant and Respondent.	)))))))))	NO. _____ MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS APPEAL Date: _____ Time: _____ Location: _____ [Judge: _____] Date Action Filed: _____ [Trial Date: _____]

[OR, if appeal is from order discharging stakeholder (Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5):]

_____ [name], Plaintiff and Appellant, vs. _____ [name], Defendant and Respondent, and _____ [name(s)], Defendants.	)))))))))	NO._____ MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS APPEAL Date: _____ Time: _____ Location: _____ [Judge: _____] Date Action Filed: _____ [Trial Date: _____]

RESPONDENT'S MOTION FOR AN ORDER DISMISSING THIS APPEAL SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE _____ [JUDGMENT or ORDER] APPEALED FROM IS INTERLOCUTORY AND NOT APPEALABLE.

[EITHER]

Nonappealability of Judgment of Interpleader. A judgment discharging the interpleading party from the case on his or her depositing with the court the fund in controversy, or delivering the property in controversy as the court directs, and leaving the real parties in interest to litigate their respective claims to the deposited fund or property is interlocutory and nonappealable, although it is subject to review on appeal after ultimate resolution of the adverse claims (Lincoln Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 20, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723).

[OR]

Nonappealability of Order Discharging Defendant. An order substituting parties defendant and discharging the original defendant from liability pursuant to the first sentence of Section 386(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure is not appealable (Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Finance Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 380, 381, 270 P. 685).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion by respondent for an order dismissing the appeal from a judgment or order discharging the interpleading party or stakeholder from liability. The first alternative point should be used if the judgment appealed from discharged an interpleading cross complainant or an interpleading plaintiff; the second alternative point should be used if the order appealed from substituted a nonparty for the defendant and discharged the original defendant from liability pursuant to the first sentence of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a).

No reported case has been found involving an appeal from an order dismissing a stakeholder under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.5. If an appeal from such an order should be taken, it might be argued, by analogy to the points set forth in the foregoing form, that the order is nonappealable.

The ground of the motion is that the order or judgment appealed from is interlocutory and nonappealable and that the appeal should therefore be dismissed.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 123.33 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion to dismiss an appeal supported by the foregoing memorandum.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For alternative forms of captions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For a discussion and a general form of motion to dismiss an appeal to the appellate division of the superior court in a limited civil case, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , in that publication. For a discussion and a form of motion to dismiss an appeal pending in a court of appeal, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal , in that publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonappealability of Judgment of Interpleader

Lincoln Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723 , was an action in interpleader and for declaratory relief by an insurance company against a husband and wife in which it was alleged that there was a conflict between defendants as to entitlement to the proceeds of matured policies purchased by the wife. Shortly before her commitment to a state mental institution as a criminally insane person, the wife purportedly executed a declaration of trust, naming her husband as trustee and remainderman and herself as sole beneficiary; included in the trust res were the policies involved. When the first policy matured, the husband applied to plaintiff for payment as owner of the policy. Plaintiff had, however, received letters from the wife objecting to any payment of the policy proceeds to her husband. The husband appeared and denied that there was any conflict between himself and his wife over the funds. The wife's guardian ad litem answered, representing to the court that the wife denied executing the declaration of trust. Plaintiff moved for a judgment of interpleader, which was granted, and the husband appealed. The court of appeal dismissed the appeal. It held that the judgment of interpleader, discharging plaintiff and leaving defendants to settle the disposition of the insurance proceeds, was interlocutory and nonappealable, subject to review on appeal only after ultimate resolution of the defendants' claims (41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 20) .

The court said that the determination of the propriety of interpleader turns on whether the stakeholder is truly a disinterested party whose discharge still leaves parties in litigation with substantial rights to be resolved with respect to the property in question. The court explained that in California the interpleader procedure is viewed as two suits in one, that the first step is a trial or hearing by the court on the issue of plaintiff's right to interplead, and that if the proof is sufficient, or the right is admitted by failure to object or by stipulation, the court makes an interlocutory order which directs the plaintiff stakeholder to deposit the amount or deliver the property and requires the defendant claimants to interplead and litigate their claims among themselves. Citing, among other cases, Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Finance Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 380, 381, 270 P. 685 (discussed in § 123.27[3][b]), the court said that such interlocutory orders, concerning the substitution of parties in a suit, have been regarded as nonappealable until such time as a final judgment has been entered disposing of the claims of the remaining litigants (41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 19) .

It should be noted that in Lincoln, the court of appeal pointed out that plaintiff had been awarded attorney fees by the trial court from the funds on deposit pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6. In response to plaintiff's request for a further award incurred in defending the appeal, the court said that the trial court could more effectively determine the amount, if any, to be awarded, and directed the trial court to do so. The court of appeal did not, however, consider the effect, in any, that the award of attorney's fees had on the appealability of the judgment discharging plaintiff from liability. The Lincoln case was distinguished on this ground by the court of appeal in Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d

824, 827-828, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205 (discussed in § 123.33[3][a]).

[b] Nonappealability of Order Discharging Defendant

Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Finance Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 380, 270 P. 685 , involved a motion to dismiss plaintiff's appeal from an order of the trial court which granted the original defendant's motion, made before filing an answer, for an order discharging it from liability and dismissing it from the action on payment into court of the sum in dispute and substituting as parties defendant in its place all the adverse claimants to the sum. Both the original defendant and the substituted defendants moved for dismissal of the appeal. In granting the motions and dismissing the appeal, the Supreme Court said that it found meritorious the moving parties' argument that the order substituting parties defendant was not appealable (Camp v. Oakland Mortgage & Finance Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 380, 381, 270 P. 685). The Court noted that the orders were not appealable under the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 963(2) or (3) [now Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2)-(12)] or as final judgment under former Code Civ. Proc. § 963(1) [now Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1)] and, after reviewing out-of-state and earlier California cases, concluded that the order was not appealable but could be reviewed on appeal from the final judgment (205 Cal. 380, 381-383) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Nonappealability of Order Discharging Defendant

See also Neilsen v. Saylors (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 139, 140, 303 P.2d 781 , in which the court of appeal stated that an order of substitution of defendants made under Code Civ. Proc. § 386 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)] on deposit in court has been held not a final judgment and is therefore not appealable.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureParties Interpleaders General OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionInterlocutory OrdersCivil ProcedureAppealsDismissals of AppealsInvoluntary Dismissals

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.28

§ 123.28 Opposing Motion of Plaintiff or Cross Complainant in Interpleader for Order Discharging Moving Party From Liability [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)]--Future Periodic Deposits Into Court Required

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____
[EITHER, if motion by plaintiff in interpleader:]

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR ORDER
vs.	)	DISCHARGING PLAINTIFF FROM LIABILITY
_____ [names],	)	Date: _____
Defendants.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

[OR, if motion by cross complainant in interpleader:]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR ORDER

Defendant.	)	DISCHARGING CROSS COMPLAINANT FROM
_____ [name],	)	LIABILITY
Cross Complainant,	)	Date: _____
vs.	)	Time: _____
_____ [names],	)	Location: _____
Cross Defendants.	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION FOR AN ORDER DISCHARGING _____ [PLAINTIFF or CROSS COMPLAINANT] _____ [name] FROM LIABILITY TO THE _____ [DEFENDANTS or CROSS DEFENDANTS] SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE, AS SHOWN BY THE _____ [COMPLAINT or CROSS COMPLAINT] ON FILE HEREIN AND BY THE PAPERS SUBMITTED IN OPPOSITION TO THE MOTION, THE CONFLICTING CLAIMS CONSIST NOT ONLY OF MONEY ALREADY DUE UNDER THE CONTRACT IN QUESTION BUT OF MONEY TO BECOME DUE PERIODICALLY IN THE FUTURE BEFORE THE _____ [ACTION or CROSS ACTION] IN INTERPLEADER CAN BE CONCLUDED, AND DEPOSIT WITH THE CLERK OF THIS COURT OF FUTURE PAYMENTS AS THEY BECOME DUE IS CONTEMPLATED BY _____ [PLAINTIFF or CROSS COMPLAINANT].

Future Periodic Deposits Into Court Required. An interpleading party may not be discharged from all liability when it is contemplated that deposit into court of future payments under the contract as they become due will be made (see Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127-128, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by a defendant or cross defendant in interpleader in opposition to a motion by plaintiff or cross complainant for an order discharging him or her from liability to the conflicting claimants when the moving party claims that its liability to the parties is discharged on its deposit in court of the disputed amount of money.

The grounds of opposition are: (1) the interpleading party's obligation arises under a contract requiring periodic payments of a specified sum of money; (2) the adverse claimants claim not only the money now due under the contract but future payments as they become due as well; (3) future sums will periodically become due and payable before the interpleader action is concluded; and (4) the interpleading party contemplates the deposit with the court clerk of these future periodic payments as they become due and hence cannot be discharged from liability because it has deposited, or will deposit, with the court clerk the amount currently due under the contract.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations setting forth any facts necessary to oppose the motion.

In an appropriate case, this memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order discharging the moving party from liability supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 123.21 and 123.22.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Future Periodic Deposits Into Court Required

Great-West Life Assur. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 76 Cal. Rptr. 284 , was a proceeding in mandate to compel the superior court to exercise its jurisdiction to hear and determine an interpleader action which had originally been filed in the municipal court and, after the amount deposited by plaintiff with the court clerk over a period of time exceeded the latter court's jurisdictional maximum (then $5,000), transferred by the latter court to the superior court. The complaint, filed some four years before, alleged that only the sum of $327.97 was owing under the contracts and that additional sums may become due in the future. No supplemental complaint had been filed to show that the amount deposited exceeded the municipal court's jurisdictional maximum. When the case was still pending in the municipal court and before the time the total amount deposited with the court clerk exceeded that court's jurisdiction, plaintiff moved for a judgment discharging it from liability for the amounts deposited, dismissing it from the action, and awarding it costs and attorney fees out of the fund on deposit. The court made an order (1) stating that the case was a proper one for interpleader, (2) discharging plaintiff from further liability as to certain named defendants to the amount of the deposit, (3) ordering that as further sums accrued on the contracts plaintiff deposit them with the court clerk, and (4) providing that plaintiff would receive out of the money on deposit its costs and reasonable attorney fees which would be set by the court at the trial of the matter (271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 125) .

In ordering issuance of a writ of mandate to the superior court directing it to make an order that a supplemental complaint alleging the amount of money then involved in the interpleader action be filed and to exercise its jurisdiction to hear and determine the action, the court of appeal noted the rules that an action in interpleader is a two-fold contest, that whether a plaintiff shall be permitted to maintain the action is first determined in the trial court, that if the right is sustained an interlocutory decree is entered requiring the defendants to litigate their claims inter sese, and that following the entry of the interlocutory decree plaintiff ceases to be a party to the litigation (271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126-127) . The court explained that the municipal court order differed from the typical interlocutory judgment in interpleader in that it purported to discharge plaintiff from the claims of three of the defendants but failed to mention the fourth, that the order specifically directed plaintiff to deposit additional moneys with the court clerk as they became due, leaving open the propriety of interpleading further amounts, that the declaration that this was a proper case for interpleader could only have referred to the interpleader of the amount then on deposit, and that the requirement that plaintiff make further deposits was an acknowledgment that plaintiff was remaining an active party litigant (271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127-128) .

The court of appeal further noted that the order deferred determination of the amount of attorney fees to be awarded until the trial of the matter and that Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 [now Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a)] provides that when the interpleading party is discharged and dismissed from the action the court may award him or her costs and attorney fees from the fund on deposit. The court concluded that despite the so-called order of interpleader, the first phase of the two-fold contest remained partially undetermined and, of necessity, plaintiff remained an active participant in the case (271 Cal. App. 2d 124, 128) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresRemediesDeposits in Court

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.29

§ 123.29 Opposing Motion of Plaintiff or Cross Complainant in Interpleader for Order Discharging Moving Party From Liability [Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a), (b)]; Claims Do Not Relate to Same Thing, Debt, or Duty

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 123.28.]

THE MOTION FOR AN ORDER DISCHARGING _____ [PLAINTIFF or CROSS COMPLAINANT] _____ [name] FROM LIABILITY TO THE _____ [DEFENDANTS or CROSS DEFENDANTS] SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE, AS SHOWN BY THE _____ [COMPLAINT or CROSS COMPLAINT] ON FILE HEREIN AND BY THE PAPERS SUBMITTED IN OPPOSITION TO THE MOTION, THE CONFLICTING CLAIMS DO NOT RELATE TO THE SAME THING, DEBT, OR DUTY.

Required That Claimant Seek the Same Thing, Debt, or Duty. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 386, it is still required that the claimants seek the same thing, debt, or duty. If the claims do not relate to the same thing, debt, or duty, then interpleader is improper (see Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 504, 150 P.2d 463 ; City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1123, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by a defendant or cross defendant in interpleader in opposition to a motion by plaintiff or cross complainant for an order discharging him or her from liability to the conflicting claimants when the moving party claims that its liability to the parties is discharged on its deposit in court of the disputed amount of money. The grounds of opposition are that the conflicting claims do not relate to the same thing, debt, or duty, and therefore interpleader is improper.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations setting forth any facts necessary to oppose the motion.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order discharging the moving party from liability supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 123.21 and 123.22.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Required That Claimant Seek the Same Thing, Debt, or Duty

The factual and procedural history of Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 150 P.2d 463 is discussed in § 123.23[3][a]. Although the court in part held that the 1881 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 386 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a)), by use of the phrase, "or are not identical," abrogated the common law requirement that the same thing, debt, or duty be claimed by both claimants and that an action for interpleader could now be maintained when one claimant claimed the entire fund and another claimant claimed only a portion of the fund (24 Cal. 2d 497, 503-504) , the court nevertheless noted that the amendment does not allow the remedy where each of the claimants asserts the right to a different debt, claim or duty. If the conflicting claims are mutually exclusive, interpleader cannot be maintained (24 Cal. 2d 497, 504) .

In City of Morgan Hill v. Brown (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 361 , because of conflicting demands regarding disbursement of attorney fees, plaintiff filed a complaint in interpleader naming as defendants a law firm, the members of the firm, and a former shareholder in the firm. Plaintiff had retained the firm to represent it in two cases. The former shareholder subsequently joined the firm, entering into a shareholder agreement with it that specified compensation and repurchase of share rights. The former shareholder was responsible for the plaintiff's cases. Under the fee agreement with the firm, which had been amended after the former shareholder had joined the firm, plaintiff owed attorney fees in the amount of $563,866.82. Disputes arose between the former shareholder and the firm over allocation of the attorney's fees and other issues. As a result, the firm brought out the shareholder's interest and terminated its professional relationship the shareholder. The former shareholder retained plaintiff as a client.

Plaintiff filed a complaint in interpleader, and the defendants answered and filed cross-complaints against each other. The former shareholder's third amended cross-complaint included claims for breach of contract, wrongful discharge of employment, defamation, and other causes of action. The firms cross-complaint asserted claims arising out of the former shareholder's tenure with the firm. Eventually, the former shareholder and plaintiff filed together a motion for interlocutory order of discharge, attorney fees, and related relief. Neither the firm nor the former shareholder objected to discharging the plaintiff and allowing the fees to be deposited into court, and the court granted the motion. In the interim, the firm had moved for summary judgment/adjudication in the interpleader action, arguing that the firm was entitled to the fees pursuant to the contingent fee agreement between the firm and plaintiff and that any compensation due the former shareholder was governed by agreements between the firm and the former shareholder. The trial court granted the summary judgment motion, and after a motion for reconsideration was denied, an order was issued releasing the fees to the firm and judgment in the firm's favor was entered. The former shareholder appealed (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1118-1121) .

The court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that although settlement had rendered the matter technically moot, the court was retaining jurisdiction to resolve the legal issues presented because they were important and of continuing interest (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1121 n.5). The court then discussed rules pertaining to interpleader. Initially, the court noted that when a person may be subject to conflicting claims for money or property, the person may bring an interpleader action to compel the claimants to litigate their claims among themselves, citing Code Civ. Proc. § 386(b) (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1122) . Once the person admits liability and deposits the money with the court, he or she is discharged from liability and freed from the obligation of participating in the litigation between the litigants (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1122) . Under current law, privity between the claimants is no longer required. Further, interpleader may be permitted even though one claimant seeks part of the fund and the other claimant seeks the entire fund amount. Partial interpleader, where the obligor admits some liability but makes a partial claim or asserts a partial interest, is also allowed (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1122-1123) . Although Code Civ. Proc. § 386 has broadened the scope of the interpleader remedy, it is still, however, required that the claimants seek the same thing, debt, or duty. If the claims do not relate to the same thing, debt, or duty, then interpleader is improper (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1123) . In this case, the claimants asserted the right to different things, debts or duties owed from different obligors. The debt claimed by the law firm were fees, the obligor being the plaintiff. The debt claimed by the former shareholder was compensation under the firms internal agreements, the obligor being the firm. Given that the former shareholder conceded that the plaintiff party did not owe fees to her, the former shareholder was unable to demonstrate that the claimants asserted the right to the same thing, debt, or duty owed by the plaintiff (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1123-1124) . Interpleader speaks of conflicting claims against the same obligor over the same fund; not on the possible eventual right to a judgment that might be satisfied out of that fund (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1126) . Although interpleader was improper (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1123-1126) , the judge's decision to discharge the plaintiff and to allow the money to be deposited into court was justified and was not erroneous when neither of the claimants claimant objected (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1127) .

Because the undisputed facts demonstrated that the firm had a right to the property, the summary judgment was proper. The fact that the parties have other claims against each other is not a persuasive reason for denying summary judgment as to ownership of the fund given the undisputed facts show that only one of the parties is entitled to that ownership. Interpleader confers rights only concerning discharge of the stakeholder and leaves the conflicting claims to the fund for proper later distribution. If it turns out, as here, that a claimant has no viable claim to the fund, then distribution of the fund to the remaining claimant is entirely appropriate (71 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1128) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterpleadersGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.30

§ 123.30 Opposing Motion of Defendant or Interpleading Party for Order Awarding Costs and Attorney Fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6]--Moving Party Failed to Follow Procedure Specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 386 or 386.5

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[EITHER, if motion for award by defendant seeking substitution and discharge:]

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR AWARD
vs.	)	OF COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES
_____ [name],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

[OR, if motion for award by plaintiff in interpleader seeking discharge:]

	)
	)	NO._____

_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR AWARD
vs.	)	OF COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES
_____ [names],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6]
Defendants.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

[OR, if motion for award by cross complainant in interpleader seeking discharge:]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO._____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR AWARD
Defendant.	)	OF COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES
_____ [name],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6]
Cross Complainant,	)	Date: _____
vs.	)	Time: _____
_____ [names],	)	Location: _____
Cross Defendants.	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

[OR, if motion for award by defendant stakeholder seeking discharge:]

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO DEFENDANT
vs.	)	_____'S [name] MOTION FOR
_____ [names],	)	AWARD OF COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES
Defendants.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____

[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION OF _____ [DEFENDANT or PLAINTIFF or CROSS COMPLAINANT] FOR AN ORDER AWARDING COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE, AS SHOWN BY THE RECORDS AND FILE HEREIN [AND THE PAPERS SUBMITTED IN OPPOSITION TO THE MOTION], THE MOVING PARTY FAILED TO FOLLOW THE PROCEDURE SET FORTH IN SECTION _____ [386 or 386.5] OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

A. Failure to Follow Specified Procedure as Defeating Award. An award of costs and attorney fees pursuant to Section 386.6 of the Code of Civil Procedure is authorized only when the party seeking the award has followed the procedure set forth in Section 386 or 386.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure; conversely stated, a party who has not followed that procedure is not entitled to the award (see Phillips v. Barton (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495-496, 24 Cal. Rptr. 527).

[Optional] B. Failure to Deposit Funds With Court as Defeating Award. An award of costs and legal fees under Section 386.6(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure may be made only from disputed funds that have been deposited in court. Therefore, a failure to deposit the interpleaded funds in court forecloses an award of costs or fees under Section 386(a) (Wells Fargo Bank v. Zinnel (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 393, 400-403, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 750).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by a claimant to the amount or personal property in dispute in opposition to a motion by the defendant seeking substitution, the defendant stakeholder, or the plaintiff or cross complainant in interpleader, when the moving party seeks an award of costs and attorney fees as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6. It may also be used to resist a request for such an award made in a complaint or cross complaint.

The ground of opposition is that, as shown by the records and file in the case and any papers submitted in opposition to the motion, the moving party failed to follow the procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 386 or 386.5 and is, therefore, not entitled to the award.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations setting forth any facts necessary to oppose the motion which do not appear from the court's records and file in the case.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order awarding costs and attorney fees supported by the memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 123.25.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Follow Specified Procedure as Defeating Award

Phillips v. Barton (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 488, 24 Cal. Rptr. 527 , was an action by buyers against the seller and real estate broker to recover earnest money following failure to consummate an agreement to purchase a restaurant. The agreement was conditioned on approval by the buyers of the underlying lease, and the buyers disapproved the lease. The $5,000 deposited by plaintiffs with the seller had been delivered by the seller to the broker as a stakeholder. The broker cross complained against plaintiffs and the seller to recover his commission on the sale. The trial court rendered judgment on the complaint for plaintiffs against the seller, and against the broker as stakeholder, and rendered judgment on the cross complaint for the broker against the buyers and the seller for $200 as the reasonable value of services rendered and $350 for the defense of the action. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment on the complaint and reversed the judgment on the cross complaint. In his answer to the complaint, the broker had averred that he had no interest in the $5,000 and was a mere stakeholder, but the broker took none of the steps prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 386 or 386.5; he neither paid the money into court nor sought a discharge from liability as required by the cited sections. The court said that the only right to recover attorney fees in an interpleader is statutory and conditioned by Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 on the party's following the procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 386 or 386.5 and that, not having done that, the broker had no statutory basis for recovery of an attorney fee (207 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495-496) .

[b] Failure to Deposit Funds With Court as Defeating Award

In Wells Fargo Bank v. Zinnel (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 393, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 750 , the plaintiff was a bank that interpled two defendants in order to determine the rights of the parties to the funds in an account. During the litigation, the bank retained the funds in the account and did not deposit them with the court. The trial court granted the bank's motion to release the funds to one of the defendants, discharge the bank's liability, and dismiss the complaint. The court also awarded the bank nearly $43,000 in legal fees from the interpled funds.

The court of appeal reversed the fee award. The court began its analysis with the text of the relevant statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a), which provides that in discharging a party in an interpleader action, the court has discretion award the discharged party costs and reasonable attorney's fees "from the amount in dispute which has been deposited with the court." Citing Phillips v. Barton (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495-496, 24 Cal. Rptr. 527 (discussed immediately above), the court of appeal held that the bank's failure to deposit the interpled funds with the court barred it from recovering fees under Section 386.6 (125 Cal. App. 4th 393, 400) .

The court of appeal explained that the statutory prerequisite of a deposit with the court is not pointless. A true stakeholder who promptly surrenders the possession of a disputed fund should not bear the costs and legal fees of responding to competing claims. On the other hand, a stakeholder who enjoys the beneficial use of funds that belong to others should not reap the same advantages, absent a judicial determination that interpleader was proper through an order dismissing the stakeholder and directing the deposit of the held funds into court (from which the court in its discretion can award costs and fees if appropriate) (125 Cal. App. 4th 393, 401) .

The bank argued that prerequisite of a deposit with the court in Section 386.6 should not apply in this case because the trial court had denied the bank's motion for an order to deposit the interpled funds. The court of appeal, however, pointed out that the bank did not need a court order to deposit the funds with the court. The interpleader statute expressly provides that any amount a plaintiff admits to be payable may be deposited with the clerk of the court at the time of filing the complaint in interpleader without a court order (Code Civ. Proc. § 386(c)). The court of appeal rejected an argument that the bank's failure in this case to deposit the interpled funds at the time it filed the complaint precluded it from doing so later without a court order. The court of appeal explained that the interpleader statute allows for the voluntary deposit of funds along with the complaint, reflecting the Legislature's assumption that this is when a voluntary deposit would ordinarily occur. But the statute does not otherwise suggest the power to deposit funds is limited to a contemporaneous deposit or expressly provide that thereafter the deposit must be pursuant to a court order. Accordingly, the trial court's refusal to order the deposit if the funds did not excuse the bank's failure to make the necessary deposit (125 Cal. App. 4th 393, 402-403) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.31

§ 123.31 Opposing Interpleading Party's Motion for Order Awarding Costs and Attorney Fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6]--Interpleading Party Waived Right to Attorney Fees From Amount Deposited in Court and Sought Recovery From Amount Which Was Not Deposited

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 123.30.]

THE MOTION OF _____ [PLAINTIFF or CROSS COMPLAINANT] FOR AN ORDER AWARDING COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE, AS SHOWN BY THE RECORDS AND FILE HEREIN [AND THE PAPERS SUBMITTED IN OPPOSITION TO THE MOTION], THE MOVING PARTY DEPOSITED INTO COURT ONLY THE AMOUNT WHICH HE/SHE/IT DID NOT DISPUTE WAS OWING, AS TO WHICH HE/SHE/IT WAIVED RECOVERY OF ATTORNEY FEES, AND SEEKS TO RECOVER SUCH FEES FROM THE AMOUNT HE/SHE/IT DID DISPUTE WAS OWING AND WHICH HE/SHE/IT DID NOT DEPOSIT INTO COURT.

Deposit Was of Undisputed Amount Only as to Which Interpleading Party Waived Right to Attorney Fees. An interpleading party who deposits into court only the undisputed portion of the money claimed, and who waives any claim for attorney fees from the amount deposited, is not entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 to an award of attorney fees from the amount in dispute which was not paid into court (Big Bear Properties, Inc. v. Gherman (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 908, 916, 157 Cal. Rptr. 443).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by a claimant to the amount in dispute in opposition to a motion by the plaintiff or cross complainant in interpleader for an order awarding costs and attorney fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6. The point and authority set out in this form may also be used to resist a request for such an award made in a complaint or cross complaint.

The grounds of opposition are: (1) the interpleading party deposited into court only the amount that the party did not dispute was owing and did not deposit into court the amount he or she disputed was owing; (2) the interpleading party expressly waived recovery of attorney fees from the amount deposited; (3) that party seeks recovery of attorney fees from the disputed amount which was not deposited; and (4) an award of attorney fees is therefore not authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations setting forth any facts necessary to oppose the motion which do not appear from the court's records and file in the case.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order awarding costs and attorney fees supported by the memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 123.25.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Deposit Was of Undisputed Amount Only as to Which Interpleading Party Waived Right to Attorney Fees

Big Bear Properties, Inc. v. Gherman (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 908, 157 Cal. Rptr. 443 , was an action in interpleader and for declaratory relief by judgment debtors against the judgment creditors and others claiming an interest in the proceeds of the judgment. Judgment in the prior action awarded plaintiffs (defendants in the present action) $1,256,845 with prejudgment interest [Civ. Code § 3288] in the sum of $395,906.18 plus costs of $5,863.38. In the interpleader action, plaintiffs deposited into court $2,021,238.13, which they alleged was the entire amount due on the judgment with simple interest. In their declaratory relief action, plaintiffs alleged that an actual controversy between plaintiffs and defendants regarding the amount payable under the judgment existed, that plaintiffs contended that the judgment bore simple interest and equalled $2,021,028.13 as of the date of complaint in interpleader and for declaratory relief was filed, and that defendants contended that the total amount of the judgment payable on that date included interest on the prejudgment interest and equalled $2,132,489.29. Plaintiffs sought an order directing defendants to interplead and litigate their respective claims against the judgment, an order restraining defendants from instituting proceedings to collect the judgment, a declaration by the court that the total amount payable on the judgment was $2,021,028.13, that by tender of such sum to the court plaintiffs were fully discharged and released from liability on the judgment, and an order awarding them their reasonable attorney fees out of the sum deposited by them with the court. A stipulation and order for release of funds and injunctive relief was executed by the parties, signed by the court, and filed. The stipulation and order provided in part for distribution of the amount deposited, release of plaintiffs from defendants' claims to the extent of the sum deposited, and a waiver of any claim for an award of attorney fees from the undisputed portion of the judgment paid into court by plaintiffs. In accordance with the stipulation and order, the funds were disbursed and a preliminary injunction was issued.

Certain of the defendants, including the judgment creditors, filed an answer to the complaint in which they claimed that the amount owing on the judgment was $2,132,489.29 and that after paying the undisputed portion into court, plaintiffs owed $111,461.16 plus interest on that sum at the legal rate from the date the complaint was filed until paid. Both parties moved for summary judgment, or in the alternative for judgment on the pleadings. Defendants' motion was granted and the injunction was dissolved. The trial court also denied plaintiffs' request for attorney fees. Judgment was entered for the additional sum owing plus interest.

The court of appeal affirmed. With respect to the denial of attorney fees, the court pointed out that Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 authorizes such an award from the amount in dispute which has been deposited with the court, that plaintiffs deposited into court only the undisputed portion of the judgment, as to which they expressly waived their claim for attorney fees, and that the reservation of their right to claim attorney fees from the disputed portion of the judgment which was not paid into court, did not make plaintiffs eligible for an award of such fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 (95 Cal. App. 3d 908, 916) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresRemediesDeposits in Court

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.32

§ 123.32 Opposing Interpleading Party's Motion for Order Awarding Costs and Attorney Fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6]--Award Under Interpleader Statutes as Limited to Expenses Incurred in Pursuit of Stakeholder's Remedy

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 123.30.]

THE MOTION OF _____ [PLAINTIFF or CROSS COMPLAINANT] FOR AN ORDER AWARDING COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES SHOULD BE DENIED TO THE EXTENT THAT IT SEEKS RECOVERY OF COSTS AND FEES INCURRED IN THE ACTION IN ACTIVITIES UNRELATED TO THE INTERPLEADER REMEDY, BECAUSE SUCH AN AWARD UNDER THE INTERPLEADER STATUTES MUST BE LIMITED TO THOSE COSTS AND FEES INCURRED IN PURSUIT OF THE STAKEHOLDER'S REMEDY.

Limitation on Award. An award of costs and fees under the interpleader statutes must be limited to those incurred only in pursuit of the stakeholder's remedy, whether by complaint or cross complaint, and may not include expenses incurred in unrelated activities (Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830-831, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by a claimant to the amount or property in dispute in opposition to a motion by the plaintiff or cross complainant in interpleader, when the moving party seeks an award of costs and attorney fees as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6. The foregoing point and authority may also be used to resist a request for such an award made in a complaint or cross complaint.

The ground of opposition is that the interpleading party seeks an award of costs and attorney fees incurred in the action apart from his or her pursuit of the remedy of interpleader and that, to this extent, an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 is not authorized.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations setting forth the facts necessary to oppose the motion.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order awarding costs and attorney fees supported by the points and authorities set out in § 123.25.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation on Award

Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205 , was an action by the administrator of five labor-management trust funds for operating engineers against a contractor for employee fringe benefit payments which the contractor, as employer, allegedly failed to pay into the trust funds as required by a collective bargaining agreement, and against the contractor's surety to enforce the latter's liability on a $2,500 contractor's license bond issued by it in favor of the State of California, as obligee, and naming the contractor as principal. The surety answered and cross complained for declaratory relief and indemnity and subsequently filed an amended cross complaint adding a cause of action in interpleader against plaintiff, the contractor, and other persons claiming an interest in the proceeds of the bond in a total amount far in excess of the $2,500 penal sum of the bond. The surety, disclaiming any interest in the bond proceeds, then noticed a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) for an order discharging it from liability and dismissing it from plaintiff's action on its depositing the $2,500 in court. In its motion, the surety also requested an award of costs and reasonable attorney fees out of the $2,500. After the motion had been argued and briefed, the court discharged the surety and allowed it its costs in the sum of $61.30 and attorney fees in the sum of $1,000 which were to be awarded and deducted from the money ($2,500) to be deposited with the clerk of the court. Cross defendants appealed, contesting the award.

The court of appeal reversed on the ground that the trial court had improperly calculated the amount of the award. The appellate court explained that the fees awarded under the interpleader statutes must be limited to those incurred only in pursuit of the stakeholder's remedy, whether by complaint or cross complaint, and that the surety's amended cross complaint alleged four causes of action, only one of which was in interpleader (the others sought declaratory relief and indemnification). The court held that to the extent that fees were awarded for legal work in connection with the other three causes of action, the award was improper (58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830) . The court summarized the facts as follows: The original complaint against the surety was filed on April 10, 1973; the surety filed an answer on June 20, 1973, and on the same day filed a cross complaint seeking declaratory relief and indemnity; on November 15, 1973, it amended the cross complaint to include an action in interpleader; prior to November 15 attorney fees were incurred as shown by a computer printout of costs and fees incurred by the surety to its attorneys dating back to the time when it first undertook to defend the action; the printout was attached to the surety's points and authorities accompanying its motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6 (58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830) . The court concluded that it was apparent that the trial court allowed fees for the entire legal representation of the surety in the action and reiterated its holding that to the extent that fees were allowed for legal work on the original defense and cross complaint, the trial court committed error (58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830) . The court said that fees incurred for such activities as negotiations, investigation, dispute over validity of claims (or their amount), cross complaints for affirmative relief, and the like, are not properly allowable under Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6, and that the trial court, in its discretion, may allow only such fees as relate solely to the pursuit of the stakeholder remedy, including fees incurred to overcome resistance to the remedy (58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830-831) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.33

§ 123.33 Opposing Respondent's Motion for Order Dismissing Appeal--Judgment or Order Discharging Defendant or Interpleading Party From Liability and Awarding Attorney Fees and Costs out of Fund Deposited in Court as Appealable

[1] FORM

IN THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
Plaintiff and Respondent,	)	TO DISMISS APPEAL
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [names],	)	Time: _____
Defendants and Appellants.	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

[See § 123.27 for alternative captions.]

RESPONDENT'S MOTION FOR AN ORDER DISMISSING THIS APPEAL SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE _____ [JUDGMENT or ORDER] APPEALED FROM, IN ADDITION TO DISCHARGING RESPONDENT FROM LIABILITY, AWARDED RESPONDENT COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES FROM THE SUM DEPOSITED WITH THE COURT AND IS THEREFORE APPEALABLE.

Appealability of Judgment or Order in Interpleader Awarding Attorney Fees. A judgment or order discharging an interpleading party or stakeholder from liability on depositing the sum claimed with the court is appealable if it awards the discharged party costs and attorney fees out of the sum so deposited (Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by appellant in opposition to a motion by respondent to dismiss the appeal from a judgment or order discharging the interpleading party or stakeholder from liability when respondent contends that the judgment or order is interlocutory and nonappealabe.

The ground of opposition is that the judgment or order, in addition to discharging the interpleading party or stakeholder from liability, awards the interpleading party or stakeholder costs and attorney fees from the sum deposited with the court and for this reason is appealable, and that the motion should therefore be denied.

In an appropriate case, this memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to dismiss an appeal supported by the memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 123.27.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated.

[b] Case Title in Caption

The case title in the caption of the form [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(4)] is for use when the action in the trial court was by an interpleading plaintiff pursuant to the third alternative set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a). For the manner of setting forth the case title when the appeal is from an order or judgment discharging a party from liability pursuant to the other provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 386(a) or 386.6, see the caption to § 123.27, in which case the phrase IN SUPPORT OF should, of course, be changed to IN OPPOSITION TO.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appealability of Judgment or Order in Interpleader Awarding Attorney Fees

The factual background of Sweeney v. McClaran (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 130 Cal. Rptr. 205 , is discussed in § 123.32[3][a]. The surety, relying on Lincoln Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Mitchell (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 16, 115 Cal. Rptr. 723 (discussed in § 123.27[3][a]), contended that the order was not appealable. The court of appeal rejected the contention. It noted that this issue had been decided adversely to the surety when the court denied the surety's earlier motion to dismiss the appeal. The court distinguished Lincoln on the ground that although the interpleading insurer in Lincoln was awarded attorney fees from the fund it had deposited with the trial court, the appellate court in that case did not discuss whether the award had any effect on the appealability of the judgment of interpleader, and that, in holding that the judgment was interlocutory, the Lincoln court limited its analysis to the effect of a substitution of parties only (58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 827-828) . Having thus disposed of Lincoln, the court held that the provision for costs and attorney fees rendered the order before it appealable (58 Cal. App. 3d 824, 828) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsDismissals of AppealsInvoluntary Dismissals

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 123 INTERPLEADER
PART II. FORMS

12-123 California Points & Authorities § 123.34

§ 123.34 Opposing Interpleading Party's Motion for Order Awarding Costs and Attorney Fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6] From Interest Accrued on Interpleaded Funds--No Original Funds Allocated to Interpleading Party

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MOTION OF _____ [PLAINTIFF or CROSS COMPLAINANT] FOR AN ORDER AWARDING COSTS AND ATTORNEY FEES FROM INTEREST ACCRUED ON THE INTERPLEADED FUNDS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE INTEREST ACCRUED ON INTERPLEADER ACCOUNTS MUST BE ALLOCATED TO THE PARTIES IN THE SAME PROPORTION AS THE ORIGINAL FUNDS ARE ALLOCATED, AND NONE OF THE ORIGINAL FUNDS HAVE BEEN ALLOCATED TO THE _____ [PLAINTIFF or CROSS COMPLAINANT].

Interest Accrued on Interpleaded Funds Must Be Allocated in Same Proportion as Original Funds. Once the court has allocated the interpleaded funds, any interest earned by those funds while on deposit must be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated (Code Civ. Proc. § 386.1). If none of the original funds has been allocated to the interpleading party, then none of the interest may be allocated to that party (Canal Ins. Co. v. Tackett (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 239, 243-246, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted to oppose an interpleading party's postjudgment motion for costs and attorney fees to be paid out of interest earned by the interpleaded funds. In an appropriate case, this form of points and authorities may be used in response to the points and authorities set forth in § 123.25.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should establish that the court's judgment allocates none of the original funds to the interpleading party.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For related legal background, research guides, and forms pertaining to awards of attorney fees and costs in interpleader actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 314, Interpleader (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Interest Accrued on Interpleaded Funds Must Be Allocated in Same Proportion as Original Funds.

In Canal Ins. Co. v. Tackett (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 239, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626 , the plaintiff was an insurance carrier whose insured owned a truck that was involved in an accident that gave rise to claims by multiple persons. The plaintiff filed a complaint in interpleader and deposited its $1 million policy limit with the superior court. The court subsequently ordered the clerk to place the funds in an interest-bearing account (see Code Civ. Proc. § 386.1). Eventually, the parties agreed to a settlement, and the court entered judgment on the agreed settlement. Under the terms of the settlement and judgment, the plaintiff was discharged from liability and the interpleaded funds were allocated among 14 claimants. No part of the original funds was allocated to the plaintiff. Some months after entry of judgment, the plaintiff filed a motion for attorney's fees and costs, to be paid from the interest accrued from the time of the last settlement conference. Although the plaintiff had, as part of the settlement, waived fees and costs incurred up to the time of the last settlement conference, it asserted that it had incurred further fees and costs after the settlement conference because of a delay by one of the defendants in signing the settlement agreement. The trial court granted the plaintiff's motion, awarding fees and costs in the amount of unallocated interest then remaining in the interest-bearing account.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that attorney fees cannot be awarded from the interest on interpleader accounts. Under the interpleader scheme, when an interpleading party deposits funds with the court, on the request of any party to the action, the trial court must order that the deposit be invested in an interest-bearing account. Interest on the deposited amount must be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated (Code Civ. Proc. § 386.1). Another statute in the interpleader scheme provides that an interpleading party may insert in its motion, petition, complaint or cross-complaint a request for allowance of its costs and reasonable attorney fees incurred in the action. In ordering the discharge of the interpleading party, the court has discretion to award the interpleading party's costs and reasonable attorney fees from the amount in dispute that has been deposited with the court (Code Civ. Proc. § 386.6(a)). Reading these provisions together, the court of appeal noted that, the interpleader scheme contemplates that a party seeking attorney fees will make its request before it is discharged from liability; the fees can then be awarded from the amount deposited with the court. However, once a discharge has been ordered and the interpleaded funds allocated, interest earned by the interpleaded funds belongs to those who ultimately receive the funds, and not anyone else. At that point, the trial court has no power to award any part of that interest to the interpleading party unless some portion of the original funds has been allocated to the interpleading party (117 Cal. App. 4th 239, 243-244) .

In this case, the interpleading party received nothing from the original funds and had waived its claim for pre-settlement attorney fees and costs. Under the circumstances, the court of appeal concluded that the interpleading party had no claim to any of the interest in the account after entry of the judgment discharging the interpleading party (117 Cal. App. 4th 239, 244-245) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePartiesInterpleadersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities 124.syn

§ 124.syn Synopsis to Chapter 124: INTERVENTION

§ 124.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 124.02 Governing Statutes

§ 124.03 Effect of 1977 Amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387

[1] In General

[2] Applicability of Federal Rule

[a] Mandatory Intervention

[b] Permissive Intervention

[3] Applicability of Pre-1977 Cases

[a] Mandatory Intervention

[b] Permissive Intervention

§ 124.04 Relation to Compulsory Joinder

§ 124.05 Procedures for Intervening

§ 124.06 Statute of Limitations

§ 124.07 Procedures for Objecting to Intervention

§ 124.08 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

§ 124.09 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 124.10 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 124.11-124.29 [Reserved]

§ 124.30 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority

[b] Intervention Under Permissive Intervention Is Discretionary

[c] Purpose of Allowing Intervention

§ 124.31 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Mandatory Intervention Based on Right Conferred by Statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority

[b] Intervention Under Lab. Code § 3853

[c] Intervention Under Corp. Code § 1800(c)

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervention Under Lab. Code § 3853

[b] Intervention Under Corp. Code § 1800(c)

§ 124.32 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Mandatory Intervention Based on Interest Relating to Property or Transaction That Is Subject of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority

[b] Person May Intervene If Action Impairs of Impedes The Ability to Protect an Interest

§ 124.33 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive or Mandatory Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), (b)]--Intervener's Application Was Timely

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Within Reasonable Time

[b] Timeliness of Intervention as of Right

[c] Intervention After Judgment

[d] Intervention After Default Judgment

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervention After Default Judgment

§ 124.34 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Scope of the Action Is Not Enlarged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Scope of the Action

[b] Intervener Seeking Affirmative Relief in Action for Rescission of Contract

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Scope of the Action

§ 124.35 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

[b] Consequential Interest Becoming Direct Interest

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

§ 124.36 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Adjoining Property Owner May Intervene in Action to Enjoin Common Trespass

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Actions to Enjoin Trespass to Property

[4] Additional Authorities

§ 124.37 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Assignee of Party's Interest in Subject Matter of Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Assignee of Party in Action

[b] Assignee of Rights Under Contract

[c] Assignee of Special Use Permit

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Assignee of Party in Action

§ 124.38 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention

[Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Judgment Creditor May Intervene in Action Involving Property Subject to Judgment Lien

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Judgment Creditor's Lien on Judgment Debtor's Cause of Action or Recovery

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Creditor May Intervene in Action Involving Property Subject to Judgment Lien

§ 124.39 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Third-Party Claimant to Property May Intervene in Action to Determine Ownership of Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Third-Party Claimant to Property May Intervene in Action to Determine Ownership of Property

§ 124.40 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Beneficiary of Trust Deed May Intervene in Action by Trustor Against Trustee to Declare Trust Deed Void

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Beneficiary of Trust Deed May Intervene in Action to Set Aside Trust Deed

§ 124.41 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Limited Partner May Intervene When General Partner Refuses to Defend Unmeritorious or Collusive Action Against Partnership

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limited Partner May Intervene When General Partner Refuses to Defend Action Against Partnership

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Limited Partner

§ 124.42 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Shareholder May Intervene When Officers or Directors of Corporation Refuse to Maintain or Defend Action Involving Corporation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Shareholder May Intervene When Officers or Directors of Corporation Refuse to Maintain or Defend Action Involving Corporation

§ 124.43 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Parents of Students in School District Affected by School Reassignment Plan May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Plan

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Parents of Students Enrolled in School District Affected by School Reassignment Plan May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Plan

§ 124.44 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Voters Who Participated in Efforts to Approve Ballot Measure May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Measure

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Voters Who Participated in Efforts to Approve Ballot Measure May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Measure

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Voters Who Participated in Efforts to Approve Ballot Measure May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Measure

§ 124.45 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive or Mandatory Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), (b)]--Application to Intervene Not Timely

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Application Not Made Within Reasonable Time

[b] Intervention Must Not Retard or Delay Trial of Action

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Timely Application Required

[b] Application Not Made Within Reasonable Time

[c] Intervention Must Not Retard or Delay Trial of Action

§ 124.46 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive or Mandatory Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), (b)]--Intervener's Interests Adequately Represented by Existing Parties

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervener's Interests Adequately Represented by Existing Parties

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervener's Interest Adequately Represented by Existing Parties

§ 124.47 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervention Enlarges Scope of Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Must Not Enlarge Scope of Action

[b] Intervention Must Not Raise New Issues

[c] Intervention Must Not Enlarge Scope of Remedy Sought by Plaintiff

§ 124.48 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervention Would Prejudice Original Parties

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Would Unduly Prejudice Rights of Original Parties

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervention Would Unduly Prejudice Rights of Original Parties

§ 124.49 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Only Consequential Rather Than Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervener Has Only Consequential Rather Than Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

[b] Intervener Does Not Have Interest in Matter in Litigation in Suit as Originally Brought

[c] Precedential Effect of Judgment on Persons Similarly Situated

[d] Unsecured Creditor

[e] Court-Awarded Attorney's Fees

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervener Has Only Consequential Rather Than Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

[b] Precedential Effect of Judgment on Persons Similarly Situated

[c] Unsecured Creditor

[d] Court-Awarded Attorney's Fees

§ 124.50 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Mandatory Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)]--Intervener Lacks Requisite Interest in Property or Transaction That Is Subject of Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Interest in Property or Transaction That Is Subject of Action Required

[b] General Interest in Subject of Litigation as Insufficient

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Interest in Property or Transaction That is Subject of Action Required

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.01

§ 124.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda of points and authorities relating to intervention by a nonparty into a pending action under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387. The chapter contains points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention [see §§ 124.30 -124.44] and points and authorities in opposition to intervention [see §§ 124.45 -124.50].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.02

§ 124.02 Governing Statutes

Permissive intervention is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a). Mandatory intervention is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.03

§ 124.03 Effect of 1977 Amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387

[1] In General

In 1977, the Legislature amended Code Civ. Proc. § 387, governing intervention, by adding a new subdivision (b), thereby creating intervention as a matter of right in certain circumstances. Subdivision (b) contains language almost identical to that of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(a), which governs mandatory intervention in federal court actions. At the same time, the Legislature retained the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387, which are now contained in subdivision (a) of that section. The 1977 amendments present two separate, but related, questions of interpretation that have apparently not yet been resolved by the California appellate courts. The first question relates to the applicability in California of cases decided under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24 and under the statutes of states that have also adopted the federal rule. The second question relates to the applicability of pre-1977 case law under Code Civ. Proc. § 387, as amended.

[2] Applicability of Federal Rule

[a] Mandatory Intervention

The wording of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) is almost identical to that of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(a), governing mandatory intervention in federal court actions. Under general rules of statutory interpretation, when the Legislature enacts a statute that is framed in language identical to a previously construed federal provision, it is presumed that the Legislature intended that the language used in the state statute be given a like interpretation [see Kaplan's Fruit & Produce Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 60, 73, 160 Cal. Rptr. 745, 603 P.2d 1341] . Nevertheless, counsel should probably exercise caution in relying on federal cases interpreting Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(a) to establish a right to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). Under former Code Civ. Proc. § 387, which provided for permissive, rather than mandatory, intervention, the courts held that the intervener must have a direct, and not merely a consequential, interest in the matter in litigation and that the interest must be of such a direct and immediate character that the intervener will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment [see Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 663, 91 P.2d 599 ; Socialist Workers etc. Committee v. Brown (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 879, 891, 125 Cal. Rptr. 915 ; but see Timberidge Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 881, 150 Cal. Rptr. 606 (although quoting Jersey Maid Milk, the court noted that it is not necessary that intervener's interests will inevitably be affected by judgment as long as there is substantial probability that they will be affected)]. Although there are very few reported appellate decisions construing Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), the few cases that have been reported appear to follow the somewhat conservative approach followed by the courts under the old statute. Thus, for example, one court of appeal has stated that only a direct pecuniary interest can form the basis for mandatory intervention [Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685] .

By contrast, Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(a), has generally been given a more liberal interpretation by the federal courts, both in terms of the type of interest and the degree of impairment of that interest necessary to intervene as a matter of right [see, e.g., Nuesse v. Camp (D.C. Cir. 1967) 385 F.2d 694, 699-702 ; Atlantis Development Corporation v. United States (5th Cir. 1967) 379 F.2d 818, 823-827]. In fact, a number of federal appellate court decisions have stated that the effect of stare decisis may, in some cases, supply the practical impairment of interests that warrants mandatory intervention under the federal rule [see Foster v. Gueory (DC Cir. 1981) 655 F.2d 1319, 1325 ; Nuesse v. Camp (D.C. Cir. 1967) 385 F.2d 694, 702 ; Atlantis Development Corporation v. United States (5th Cir. 1967) 379 F.2d 818, 829]. Thus, adoption of the federal rule would appear to require repudiation of the stricter standards for intervention that have traditionally been applied by the California courts.

[b] Permissive Intervention

The 1977 amendments retained the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 in subdivision (a) of the amended statute, thus retaining a permissive intervention couched in language almost identical to that of the former statute [see California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266]. The California courts have held that under the former statute a proposed intervener must have a direct interest in the matter in litigation of such an immediate character that the intervener would gain or lose by the direct legal operation of the judgment [see discussion in § 124.03[2][a]]. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(b), governing permissive intervention in federal court actions, is worded quite differently from Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) and requires only that the proposed intervener's claim or defense have a question of law or fact that is common to the main action [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(b)]. In light of the substantial difference in the language of the two provisions, federal cases interpreting Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(b), are probably of limited usefulness to counsel attempting to establish the propriety of permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a).

[3] Applicability of Pre-1977 Cases

[a] Mandatory Intervention

The extent to which cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 before its 1977 amendment can be relied on to establish a right to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) is unclear. Under the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387, intervention was not mandatory; even if the proposed intervener could establish the requisite interest in the matter in litigation, the trial court had discretion to deny intervention if the reasons therefor were outweighed by the rights of the original parties to conduct their lawsuit on their own terms [see Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Gerlach (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 299, 302, 303, 128 Cal. Rptr. 396]. Nevertheless, some cases permitting intervention under the former statute have referred to the third party as having "a right to intervene," and these cases may be of some use to counsel in attempting to establish the propriety of mandatory intervention under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) [see, e.g., Berghauser v. Golden State Orchards (1929) 208 Cal. 550, 553-554, 282 P. 950 ; Cohn v. County Board of Supervisors (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 180, 184, 286 P.2d 836].

Whether or not the California appellate courts follow the standard for mandatory intervention applied by the federal courts under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(a), also has a bearing on the applicability of pre-1977 cases to mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). If the California courts do follow the federal rule, then cases decided prior to 1977 would appear to be useful insofar as they permit intervention, since the standard for mandatory intervention under the federal rule appears to be more liberal than that applied by the California courts under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 before the 1977 amendment. On the other hand, pre-1977 cases denying intervention would not necessarily be useful precedent if the federal rule is followed.

Because of the uncertainty concerning the interpretation of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), counsel should exercise caution in relying on cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment. In most cases, it will probably be necessary to carefully analyze the facts of the particular case and compare them with the criteria for mandatory intervention set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) to determine whether the holding in that case is applicable.

[b] Permissive Intervention

Since the Legislature has retained permissive intervention in Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) in language that is nearly identical to that contained in the statute prior to its amendment [see California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266], it seems clear that permissive intervention is still permitted in the same situations in which it was formerly permitted. Whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner as it formerly was appears to be an open question. Ordinarily, when the Legislature amends a statute without altering portions of the provision that have previously been judicially construed, the Legislature is presumed to have been aware of and to have acquiesced in the previous judicial construction. Thus, reenacted portions of the statute should ordinarily be given the same construction that they received before the amendment [see Marina Point, Ltd. v. Wolfson (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 721, 734-735, 180 Cal. Rptr. 496, 640 P.2d 115 , cert. denied, 459 U.S. 858]. However, the application of this rule of statutory construction is somewhat complicated by the addition of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), creating mandatory intervention. If the courts, in determining whether a third party has a right to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), follow the liberal standard applied by the federal courts under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 24(a), or even the more conservative approach taken by the California courts under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to its amendment, the effect would be to make permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) superfluous since a party could then intervene as a matter of right in those circumstances in which he or she could formerly intervene only at the court's discretion. Since the courts generally attempt to construe statutes so as to avoid making any of the provisions surplusage [see, e.g., J.R. Norton Co. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 1, 36-37, 160 Cal. Rptr. 710, 603 P.2d 1306], one might expect the courts to apply a more liberal standard than in the past when determining whether intervention should be permitted under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a). Although the few cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) since the 1977 amendment have not directly considered this issue, they do appear to continue to apply the standard as previously applied by California courts, including the requirement of a direct interest [see Kuperstein v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 598, 600, 251 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; People ex rel. Rominger v. County of Trinty (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 655, 660-661, 195 Cal. Rptr. 186].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionConditional Right to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionRight to Intervene

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.04

§ 124.04 Relation to Compulsory Joinder

California permits a nonparty to become a party to a pending action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 or 389, or both [see Muller v. Robinson (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 511, 514, 345 P.2d 25 ; Crofton v. Young (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 452, 456, 119 P.2d 1003]. Whether counsel wishes to proceed under either provision may depend on the desire of the nonparty to enter the case under existing pleadings as required under joinder or to file his or her own complaint in intervention. If the decision is to intervene, the court could well decide that if the party is one who would be required to join in the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(2)(i), he or she must be permitted to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) unless his or her interests are already being adequately represented. Both statutes employ similar language giving the nonparty meeting its requirements an unconditional right to intervene or join in a pending action. However, intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) requires timely application, and it is possible that the nonparty could be joined in the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 389 even though he or she would not be permitted to intervene on the ground that intervention was not timely.

For discussion and forms relating to compulsory joinder of parties, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesJoinderCompulsory Joinder

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.05

§ 124.05 Procedures for Intervening

A nonparty may apply to the court for leave to file a complaint in intervention by noticed motion [see Bowles v. Superior Court (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 574, 588-589, 283 P.2d 704], or by ex parte application [see Allen v. California Water & Tel. Co. (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 104, 107, 187 P.2d 393 ; see also Adoption of Lenn E. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 210, 217, 227 Cal. Rptr. 63], or by applying for issuance of an order to show cause why leave to intervene should not be granted [see Thorman v. Dome Producing etc. Co. (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 201, 203, 122 P.2d 927]. A formal motion for intervention is not required; the application for leave to intervene may be made informally and authorized by an ex parte order [Adoption of Lenn E. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 210, 217, 227 Cal. Rptr. 63]. The complaint in intervention must be filed on leave to intervene, and it must state facts sufficient, if true, to constitute cause for intervention [see Hausmann v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615, 29 Cal. Rptr. 75]. If a complaint in intervention is not filed, a trial court is justified in denying a motion to intervene [see Sutter Health Uninsured Pricing Cases (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 495, 513, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615] .

Whether intervention is permissive or mandatory, a petition to seek leave is required; without permission from the court, a party lacks any standing to the action. Though a party may assert it holds an unconditional right to intervention, that right is not absolute. A court must initially determine if the petition is timely; this exercise of discretion is solely a judicial function, which may not be delegated to a clerk [see Lohnes v. Astron Computer Products (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1150, 1153, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionMotions to IntervenеCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionPermissive InterventionsCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionRight to Intervene

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.06

§ 124.06 Statute of Limitations

A complaint in intervention, like any other complaint, is subject to an affirmative defense based on an applicable statute of limitations and, if it asserts a new cause of action, the application for leave to intervene must be filed within the pertinent limitations period [Basin Construction Corp. v. Department of Water & Power (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825, 245 Cal. Rptr. 178].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.07

§ 124.07 Procedures for Objecting to Intervention

An existing party may object to a proposed intervener's motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention or an order to show cause why intervention should not be granted by submitting an affidavit or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5] and a memorandum in opposition to the proposed intervention [see §§ 124.45 -124.50].

When ex parte leave has been granted to file a complaint in intervention, however, an existing party may respond to the complaint in intervention by answer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30(b)], demurrer [see Timberidge Enterprises Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 880, 150 Cal. Rptr. 606 ; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30(a)], or motion to strike the complaint in intervention [see Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 662, 91 P.2d 599 ; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 435-437]. An existing party may also file a cross complaint against an intervener who has asserted a claim against him or her [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 428.10-428.80], but not if the intervener has intervened as a defendant to resist plaintiff's claims [see Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 372, 260 P. 869].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.08

§ 124.08 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

Generally, a memorandum must not exceed 15 pages in length, or in the case of a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, 20 pages in length. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. The page limit does not include exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, or the proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)] Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. For further discussion of the page limitations under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113, and of other basic format requirements of memoranda, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of Law

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.09

§ 124.09 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to intervention and joinder of party, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties .

For discussion and forms relating to motions to vacate a default judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.10

§ 124.10 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

For points and authorities pertaining to permissive and compulsory joinder of parties, see Ch. 168, Parties .

For points and authorities in support of a motion to intervene and set aside a default judgment, see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

For points and authorities supporting a judgment creditor's motion to intervene in the judgment debtor's cause of action, see Ch. 131, Judgments .

For points and authorities in support of a motion to dismiss a complaint in intervention for failure to prosecute, see Ch. 220, Subrogation .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

12-124 California Points & Authorities §§ 124.11-124.29

[Reserved]

§§ 124.11[Reserved]

151 of 172 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.30

§ 124.30 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Defendant;	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES SUPPORTING MOTION FOR ORDER
Intervener.	)	GRANTING LEAVE TO FILE COMPLAINT IN IN-
	)	TERVENTION
	)

_____

IT IS APPROPRIATE FOR THE COURT TO EXERCISE ITS DISCRETION UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 387(a) TO GRANT _____ [name of intervener] LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT HAS AN INTEREST _____ [IN THE MATTER IN LITIGATION or IN THE SUCCESS OF PLAINTIFF/DEFENDANT IN THIS ACTION or AGAINST BOTH PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT IN THIS ACTION].

A. Statutory Authority. On timely application, any person who has an interest in the matter in litigation or in the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both, may intervene in the action or proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)).

[Optional] B. Intervention Under Permissive Intervention Is Discretionary. Permissive intervention under Code of

Civil Procedure Section 387(a) is discretionary with the trial court (see People v. Superior Court (Good) (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 732, 736-737, 131 Cal. Rptr. 800, 552 P.2d 760 ; US Ecology, Inc. v. State of California (2001),).

[Optional] C. Purpose of Allowing Intervention. The purpose of allowing intervention is to protect others potentially affected by a judgment, thus obviating delay and multiplicity of suits (People v. Superior Court (Good) (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 732, 736, 131 Cal. Rptr. 800, 552 P.2d 760 ; Montgomery v. Bio-Med Specialties, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1296, 228 Cal. Rptr. 709).

[Add further points and authorities, as appropriate, relating to specific reasons why the motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention should be granted (see, e.g., §§ 124.33 -124.44).]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention in a pending action under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention). The form sets forth the general point that a person who has an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either party, or against both parties, may intervene.

The appropriate optional paragraphs may be used whenever counsel wishes to urge the trial court to exercise its discretion in granting intervention. For example, Paragraph B may be used to point out to the trial court that intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) is discretionary and that the trial court should exercise its discretion to grant intervention. Optional Paragraph C may be used as a place to tie in the facts of the case and show that they correspond with the purpose of intervention to protect against delay and a multiplicity of suits.

Counsel should add points and authorities to the form that pertain to specific reasons why intervention is proper [see, e.g., §§ 124.33 -124.44]. Counsel may also wish to consider combining the points and authorities set out in this form with the points and authorities set out in § 124.32, pertaining to mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), since the facts of a particular case may in some instances support intervention under both Code Civ. Proc. §§ 387(a) and 387(b).

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the particular interest of the person seeking intervention and show how this interest justifies intervention.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion for leave to intervene and for a form of complaint in intervention, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties .

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities pertaining to compulsory joinder of parties, see Ch. 168, Parties .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in §§ 124.45 -124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority

Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) provides that on timely application, any person who has an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both, may intervene in the action or proceeding. An intervention takes place when a third person is permitted to become a party to an action or proceeding between other persons, either by joining the plaintiff in claiming what is sought by the complaint, or by uniting with the defendant in resisting the claims of the plaintiff, or by demanding anything adversely to both plaintiff and defendant. An intervention is made by complaint, setting forth the grounds on which the intervention rests, filed by leave of court and served on the parties to the action or proceeding who have not appeared in the same manner as upon the commencement of an original action, and on the attorneys of the parties who have appeared, or on the party if he or she has appeared without an attorney, in the manner provided for service of summons or in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020. A party served with a complaint in intervention may, within 30 days after service, move, demur, or otherwise plead to the complaint in the same manner as to an original complaint.

Code Civ. Proc. § 387 was amended in 1977, and divided into subdivisions (a) and (b). The provisions of current Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of the former statute, except that the words "upon timely application" at the beginning of the subdivision have been substituted for the words "at any time before trial." The purpose of this change was to liberalize the former timeliness requirement that was often not strictly adhered to by the courts and that was criticized as being unrealistic [see Sanders v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 661, 668, 126 Cal. Rptr. 415 (discussed in § 124.33[3][a]].

For a discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[b] Intervention Under Permissive Intervention Is Discretionary

People v. Superior Court (Good) (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 732, 131 Cal. Rptr. 800, 552 P.2d 760 , involved a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court in an underlying action to strike interveners' complaint in intervention. In the underlying civil action, the People sought injunctive relief, civil penalties, and restitution to investors, against persons and corporations who had been indicted on criminal charges arising from an alleged investment fraud involving the sale of oil drilling contracts. Subsequently, Good and a purported class of defrauded investors filed a separate action against the same defendants. Plaintiffs in the separate action also filed a complaint in intervention in the People's action, by leave of court, in which they sought restitution, and claimed that the negotiated settlement between the People and defendants would render defendants incapable of responding in damages or of making restitution to other investors because of the large amount of money to be paid to the county under the terms of the settlement. Subsequently, the trial court entered a stipulated judgment based on the earlier agreement reached between the original parties; however, the judgment also provided that interveners were free to pursue any remedy it sought in its complaint in intervention. The trial court also ordered that any funds received by the district attorney were to be deposited in the trial court and distributed following notice and hearing. The People petitioned the Supreme Court for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to strike the complaint in intervention. The Court granted an alternative writ pending decision in the matter.

The Supreme Court denied the People's petition for a writ of mandate. The Court, in acknowledging the discretionary nature of Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [amended; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)], found no abuse in the trial court's granting leave to interveners to file their complaint in intervention. The Court stated that the purpose of the intervention statute was to protect the interests of others who may be affected by any judgment to be rendered in an action obviating delay and multiplicity of actions. Counterbalancing this purpose, the Court noted, was the interest of the original parties in pursuing their litigation unburdened by others. The court pointed out that the interest necessary to intervene must be direct rather than consequential and must be determinable in the action. The court found that both complaints sought restitution to the investors based on the same underlying facts, and involved the same proof of facts. The Court also rejected the People's contention that as general creditors, interveners were only indirectly involved in the People's action, stating that interveners stood to gain directly from the judgment if the People were to obtain all the relief sought. In addition, the Court rejected the People's contention that intervention would unduly extend the proceedings and therefore should not have been permitted. Although a trial court possesses discretion to deny intervention even when interveners have shown a direct interest, the trial court in this action exercised its discretion in favor of intervention and the Court concluded that the trial court did not abuse its discretion. The interveners suffered a risk that their contributions to defendants' venture would be used primarily to pay statutory penalties, thus depriving interveners of the fruit of their investments (17 Cal. 3d 732, 736-737) .

Counsel should note that this case was decided before the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387. That amendment, in addition to creating a right to intervene under certain circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)], retained permissive intervention couched in language almost identical to that contained in the pre-1977 version of the statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a); California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266 (discussed in § 124.46[3][a])]. Thus, the statement contained in the above case and in a number of other pre-1977 cases that intervention is subject to the court's discretion appears still to apply to permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a).

For further discussion of the effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the validity of cases decided under that section prior to its amendment, see §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

US Ecology, Inc. v. State of California (2001), , noted that a third party may intervene in an action if (1) the party has a direct and immediate interest in the action; (2) the intervention will not enlarge the issues in the litigation; and (3) the reasons for the intervention outweigh any opposition by the parties presently in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a); Truck Ins. Exchange v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 342, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255], and that a trial court has broad discretion in determining whether to permit intervention [see People v. Superior Court (Good) (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 732, 737, 131 Cal. Rptr. 800, 552 P.2d 760 ; Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1468, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907].

[c] Purpose of Allowing Intervention

The facts and procedural background of People v. Superior Court (Good) (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 732, 131 Cal. Rptr. 800, 552 P.2d 760 , are discussed in § 124.30[3][b]. In holding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in allowing intervention, the court stated the purpose of intervention as set out in Paragraph C of the form (17 Cal. 3d 732, 736) .

Montgomery v. Bio-Med Specialties, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 228 Cal. Rptr. 709 , was an action against a corporation and two of its officers on a promissory note in which two of the principal shareholders intervened to insure a good-faith defense of the corporation. The interveners prevailed in the action and were awarded attorney's fees under the terms of the note and Civ. Code § 1717. Plaintiffs appealed, contending that interveners were not entitled to attorney's fees because they were not signatories to the promissory note, and interveners cross appealed, contending the award was insufficient. In affirming the judgment, the appellate court, quoting Catello v. I.T.T. General Controls (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1013-1014, 200 Cal. Rptr. 4 , said that the purpose of allowing intervention is to protect others potentially affected by a judgment, thus obviating delay and multiplicity of suits, and that the intervener becomes a party to the action with all of the same procedural rights and remedies as the original parties (183 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1296) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

152 of 172 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.31

§ 124.31 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Mandatory Intervention Based on Right Conferred by Statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 124.30.]

ANY PERSON ON WHOM THE LAW CONFERS AN UNCONDITIONAL RIGHT TO INTERVENE IN A PENDING ACTION MUST BE PERMITTED TO INTERVENE.

A. Statutory Authority. Any person on whom the law confers an unconditional right to intervene shall be permitted to intervene (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)).

[Optional] B. Intervention Under Lab. Code § 3853. Section 3853 of the Labor Code, authorizing an employer or employee to join as party plaintiff in, or to consolidate his or her independently brought action with, an action by the other for injuries sustained by the employee arising out of a work-related incident caused by a third-party tortfeasor confers on the employer or employee an unconditional right to intervene in the other's action pursuant to Section 387(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure (Jordan v. Superior Court (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 202, 207, 172 Cal. Rptr. 30).

[Optional] C. Intervention Under Corp. Code § 1800(c). Section 1800(c) of the Corporations Code gives to any shareholder or creditor an unqualified right to intervene in proceedings for the involuntary winding up or dissolution of the corporation (see Hagan v. Superior Court (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 498, 503, 2 Cal. Rptr. 288, 348 P.2d 896 (decided under former Corp. Code § 4653).

[Add further points and authorities, as appropriate, pertaining to specific statutory provision relied on as conferring right to intervene.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (governing mandatory intervention). The form sets forth the general point that a person who has an unconditional statutory right to intervene must be permitted to intervene.

The appropriate optional paragraphs may be used when intervention is sought under Lab. Code § 3853 [Paragraph B] or under Corp. Code § 1800(c) [Paragraph C].

Counsel should add points and authorities to the form, pertaining to specific reasons why intervention is proper. Thus, counsel should cite the statutory provision relied on as conferring a right to intervene, as well as any decisional or other authority supporting the contention that the cited provision confers such a right. For a list of statutory provisions specifically authorizing intervention, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties (Matthew Bender). If timeliness of the motion is at issue, counsel should combine these points and authorities with those set out in § 124.33.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the status of the proposed intervener. Counsel should also cite the appropriate statute authorizing intervention and show facts tending to prove that the nonparty comes within the purview of that statute.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion for leave to intervene and for a form of complaint in intervention, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to compulsory joinder of parties, see Ch. 168, Parties .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority

Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) provides that if any provision of law confers an unconditional right on a person to intervene, the court shall, on timely application, permit that person to intervene.

[b] Intervention Under Lab. Code § 3853

Jordan v. Superior Court (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 202, 172 Cal. Rptr. 30 , arose out of an action in which petitioner employee sought a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to set aside its order sustaining a demurrer to petitioner's complaint in intervention. In the underlying action in the trial court, worker's compensation carrier brought an action against a third-party tortfeasor, Gelson's, for reimbursement of money paid to petitioner by it for injuries sustained while delivering goods for his employer to Gelson's. The compensation carrier brought its action two days before the one-year anniversary of the accident. Three weeks later, one year and 18 days after the accident, petitioner filed a complaint in intervention against Gelson's, seeking general and special damages for his injuries. Gelson's successfully demurred to the complaint on the grounds that the action was barred by the statute of limitations and that petitioner failed to meet the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) in that he did not have an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both.

The court of appeal granted the writ, holding, among other things, that under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), any person who has conferred on him or her an unconditional right to intervene shall be permitted to intervene, upon timely application. The court held that Lab. Code § 3853 gives such an unconditional right. Therefore, said the court, the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) were inapplicable (116 Cal. App. 3d 202, 207) .

[c] Intervention Under Corp. Code § 1800(c)

Hagan v. Superior Court (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 498, 2 Cal. Rptr. 288, 348 P.2d 896 , involved a proceeding in prohibition to restrain defendant superior court from entering judgment in proceedings for involuntary dissolution of a corporation and other relief arising out of the trial court's order in the underlying action requiring interveners to post security for costs. In the action in the trial court, four of the five directors of a corporation filed a complaint for involuntary dissolution and winding up of the corporation. The corporation did not respond, and default was entered. Petitioners subsequently learned of the proceedings and were permitted to file complaints in intervention. Petitioners claimed that they were shareholders in the corporation, that defendants in intervention, the plaintiffs, refused to recognize them as such, and that various directors of the corporation had made unauthorized expenditures of corporate funds or wrongful diversion of corporation assets. Plaintiffs filed a motion with the trial court to require petitioners to post security for costs. The trial court granted this motion, and petitioners sought a writ of prohibition.

The Supreme Court granted the writ in prohibition, holding that former Corp. Code § 4653 [now see Corp. Code § 1800(c)] gave to any shareholder or creditor an unqualified right to intervene in proceedings for the involuntary winding up or dissolution of a corporation. Consequently, the court could not require that petitioners, as interveners, post security (53 Cal. 2d 498, 503) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervention Under Lab. Code § 3853

In Home Insurance Co. v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit District (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 522, 241 Cal. Rptr. 858 , plaintiff in intervention, while driving a vehicle owned by his employer, was injured when hit by a bus owned and operated by defendant public transit district. Both plaintiff in intervention and his employer's insurer filed timely claims against defendant. The insurer thereafter timely filed a complaint for damages against defendant. Pursuant to Lab. Code § 3853, plaintiff in intervention intervened in the insurer's action. Defendant moved for summary judgment against plaintiff in intervention on the ground his action was barred by the statute of limitations. The trial court granted the motion and entered judgment. The court of appeal reversed. The court explained that when an employer or its insurer files a timely action against a tortfeasor to recover workers' compensation paid to an injured employee, the employee may intervene to recover damages for personal injury even if the complaint in intervention is not filed within the statute of limitations (196 Cal. App. 3d 522, 523-524) . It held that defendant's status as a public entity did not change the effect of Lab. Code § 3853, and distinguished cases that had rejected intervention by employees, noting that in those cases the employees had failed to timely file a claim (196 Cal. App. 3d 522, 525-527) .

[b] Intervention Under Corp. Code § 1800(c)

Rosner v. Benedict Heights, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 1, 32 Cal. Rptr. 764 , involved an action in proceedings for involuntary dissolution of a corporation. A certain shareholder intervened to assert his rights as shareholder so that he would not be prejudiced by the judgment, since he was not a shareholder of record. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's rejection of plaintiff's contention that intervention was improper because the intervener was not a shareholder of record, holding that as an owner of shares, intervener had an interest in the subject matter of the pending complaint for dissolution of the corporation (219 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5) . This case was the underlying action involved in Hagan v. Superior Court (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 498, 503, 2 Cal. Rptr. 288, 348 P.2d 896 (discussed in § 124.31[4][b]).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionStatutory Right to Intervene

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.32

§ 124.32 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Mandatory Intervention Based on Interest Relating to Property or Transaction That Is Subject of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 124.30.]

ANY PERSON SEEKING INTERVENTION IN A PENDING ACTION WHO CLAIMS AN INTEREST RELATING TO THE PROPERTY OR TRANSACTION THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THE ACTION AND WHO IS SO SITUATED THAT THE DISPOSITION OF THE ACTION MAY AS A PRACTICAL MATTER IMPAIR OR IMPEDE THAT PERSON'S ABILITY TO PROTECT THAT INTEREST SHALL BE PERMITTED TO INTERVENE UNLESS THAT PERSON'S INTEREST IS ADEQUATELY REPRESENTED BY EXISTING PARTIES.

A. Statutory Authority. Any person seeking intervention who claims an interest relating to the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and who is so situated that the disposition of the action may as a practical matter impair or impede that person's ability to protect that interest shall be permitted to intervene unless that person's interest is adequately represented by existing parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)).

B. Person May Intervene If Action Impairs of Impedes The Ability to Protect an Interest. A person may intervene in an action when that person has an interest relating to the property or transaction that is the subject of the suit and is so situated that the disposition of the suit could, as a practical matter, impair or impede its ability to protect its subrogation rights within the meaning of Code of Civil Procedure Section 387(b) (Hodge v. Kirkpatrick (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 540, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 303).

[Add further points and authorities, as appropriate, relating to specific reasons why the motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention should be granted (see §§ 124.33 -124.44)].

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (governing mandatory intervention). The form sets forth the general point that a person who claims an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of a pending action, and who is so situated that the disposition of the action may as a practical matter impair or impede that person's ability to protect that interest, must be permitted to intervene in the action unless that person's interest is adequately represented by existing parties.

Counsel should add points and authorities to this form that pertain to specific reasons why intervention is proper. See §§ 124.35- 39 for examples of interests that have been held sufficient to justify intervention. Although nearly all of the cases cited in those forms were decided prior to the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387, and therefore arguably apply only to permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), many of these cases may nevertheless support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) [see discussion in §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a]]. Counsel may also wish to consider combining the points and authorities set out in this form with the points and authorities set out in § 124.30, pertaining to permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), since the facts of a particular case may in some instances support intervention under both Code Civ. Proc. §§ 387(a) and 387(b). If timeliness of the motion is at issue, counsel should combine these points and authorities with those set out in § 124.33.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss facts showing the nature of the intervener's interest and how that interest would be jeopardized if he or she is not permitted to intervene in the action since his or her ability to protect that interest would be impaired or impeded by the disposition of the action.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in §§ 124.45, 124.46, 124.50 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion for leave to intervene and for a form of complaint in intervention, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties (Matthew Bender).

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to compulsory joinder of a new party, see Ch. 168, Parties .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority

Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) provides that if a person seeking intervention claims an interest relating to the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may as a practical matter impair or impede that person's ability to protect that interest, the court shall, on timely application, permit that person to intervene unless that person's interests is adequately represented by existing parties.

Subsection (b) was added to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 in 1977 and closely follows the language of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 23(a) (governing intervention as a matter of right in federal court actions). Courts interpreting the federal provision have generally applied a more liberal standard in determining the interest necessary to intervene as a matter of right than that applied by the California courts under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment [see discussion in § 124.03[2][a]]. The California courts have not yet decided whether the federal standard applies under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). One possible interpretation is that claimed interests that were sufficient to support permissive intervention under former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)] will be deemed interests sufficient to intervene as a matter of right under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) [see Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685 (discussed in § 124.50[3][b])]. Under such an interpretation, cases decided prior to 1977 may be useful in arguing that a particular claimed interest entitles the proposed intervener to intervene as a matter of right.

For further discussion of the effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the use of pre-1977 case law, see §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

[b] Person May Intervene If Action Impairs of Impedes The Ability to Protect an Interest

In Hodge v. Kirkpatrick (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 540, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 303 , an insurer obtained partial subrogation rights against tortfeasors by paying a portion of the insureds' claims for property damage to their house. The court held that the insurer had a right to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). The insurer, as a partially subrogated insurer, had an interest relating to the property or transaction that was the subject of the construction defect suit and was so situated that the disposition of the construction defect suit could, as a practical matter, impair or impede its ability to protect its subrogation rights within the meaning of § 387(b) (130 Cal. App. 4th 540, 550) . Neither a suit against the tortfeasors nor a suit for reimbursement against the insureds was a viable means for the insurer to protect those rights. Intervention served the legislative purpose of preventing multiple litigation. The insurer's interests were not adequately represented by the existing parties to the construction defect lawsuit. The court's decision did not preclude a trial court from finding that an insurer did not have a right to intervene based on a finding it paid a nominal amount on a claim solely as a pretext to intervene in an insured's lawsuit (130 Cal. App. 4th 540, 557) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionRight to Intervene

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.33

§ 124.33 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive or Mandatory Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), (b)]--Intervener's Application Was Timely

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file complaint in intervention under either permissive intervention (see § 124.30) or mandatory intervention (see §§ 124.31, 124.32)].

_____'S [name] APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO INTERVENE IS TIMELY BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT HAS APPLIED FOR LEAVE TO INTERVENE WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME AFTER KNOWLEDGE OF THE SUIT.

[EITHER if permissive intervention]

A. Statutory Authority. On timely application, any person who has an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both, may intervene in the action or proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)).

B. Intervention Within Reasonable Time. A nonparty should assert his or her right to intervene within a reasonable time and not be guilty of an unreasonable delay after knowledge of the suit (Sanders v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 661, 668, 669, 126 Cal. Rptr. 415).

[OR if mandatory intervention]

A. Statutory Authority. The court shall, on timely application, permit a person to intervene who has an unconditional right to intervene by a provision of law, or who claims an interest relating to the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and who is so situated that the disposition of the action may, as a practical matter, impair or impede his or her ability to protect that interest (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)).

[Optional] B. Timeliness of Application to Intervene as of Right. Code of Civil Procedure Section 387(b) and _____ [specify other statute, e.g., Labor Code Section 3853], both dealing with intervention as of right, are to be construed with reference to one another. Code of Civil Procedure Section 387(b) incorporates the language of statutes conferring an unconditional right to intervene, such as _____ [specify other statute, e.g., Labor Code Section 3853]. Thus, "timely application" means the time, if any, stated in the statute granting the unconditional right to intervene. If the statute granting the unconditional right does not contain a time limit or if it repeats the "timely application" language of Section 387(b) or if it provides for intervention pursuant to or under Section 387, the discretionary standard of Section 387 applies (Mar v. Sakti Internat. Corp. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1780, 1784, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] C. Intervention After Judgment. Intervention is possible, if otherwise appropriate, even after judgment (Mallick v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 434, 437, 152 Cal. Rptr. 503).

[Optional] D. Intervention After Default Judgment. A nonparty who has a direct interest may move to intervene and to set aside a default judgment within six months after its entry, or after six months if the judgment is void on its face (see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), (d); see also Johnson v. Hayes Cal. Builders, Inc. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 572, 575-578, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394 ; Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846-847, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention, when the timeliness of the motion is at issue. The points and authorities set out in this form should be combined with general points and authorities set out in §§ 124.30 -124.32.

The first alternative Paragraphs A and B should be used if counsel is seeking permissive intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a). The second alternative Paragraph A should be used in seeking mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). If the unconditional right to intervene is granted by statute, Optional Paragraph B should be used to set forth the appropriate statute and to establish the standard for timely application.

The optional paragraphs may be used as appropriate. For example, if intervention is sought after a judgment or default judgment, Optional Paragraphs C and D may be used respectively.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts supporting the contention that the nonparty's motion to intervene is timely.

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.47 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Within Reasonable Time

Sanders v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 661, 126 Cal. Rptr. 415 , arose out of an action by plaintiffs, owners of real property, against defendant utility company to enforce provisions of the Coastal Zone Conservation Act. Plaintiffs alleged that defendant's construction of an overhead electrical utility line obstructed their line of sight to the Pacific Ocean, that defendant failed to obtain a permit from the coastal commission before construction began in violation of the act, and that defendant failed to make an environmental impact report as required by the act. After hearing, a preliminary injunction was issued. At the subsequent trial, some four months later, plaintiffs moved to amend their complaint to ask for civil penalties under the Coastal Act. Although evidence was received on this issue, the court reserved decision. Approximately three weeks later, the Attorney General notified the court that its office did not receive notice of the hearing as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 398.6 in cases involving alleged adverse environmental effects that could affect the public generally. The trial court set aside its briefing schedule and submission order on the issue of damages and granted an ex parte order to the Attorney General to intervene. The state in its complaint in intervention contended that any civil penalties to be assessed should be awarded to the interveners, the coastal commission on whose behalf the attorney general had intervened. The trial court denied plaintiffs' motion to dismiss the complaint in intervention. The trial court's action was apparently based on the ground of untimeliness of the application to intervene. The court entered judgment against defendant, assessing civil penalties of $880 to be divided equally between interveners and plaintiffs. Both the state and plaintiffs appealed the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed the order denying plaintiffs' motion to dismiss the complaint in intervention and reversed the order awarding civil penalties equally between interveners and plaintiffs. On the issue of timeliness of interveners' application, the court held that even though the motion was made after trial, the application was nonetheless timely. At the time, Code Civ. Proc. § 387 required that intervention be made before trial; however, the court stated that a trial is not over until after judgment and the court rejected previous appellate decisions with dicta to the effect that the complaint in intervention must be filed before the commencement of the trial, that is, before the case is called for trial on the calendar. Nothing is gained by this strict interpretation, argued the court, since if the party is one necessary for a complete determination of the controversy, the court would be required to order the party joined under Code Civ. Proc. § 389. Instead, the court looked to other considerations in determining whether intervention was timely. It is a general rule, stated the court, that a right to intervene should be asserted within a reasonable time and that the intervener must not be guilty of an unreasonable delay after knowledge of the suit has come to him or her. Moreover, since the main purpose of intervention is to obviate delay and avoid multiplicity of actions, intervention should be granted unless it would retard the principal suit, require a reopening of the case for further evidence, delay the trial of the action, or change the position of the original parties. Therefore, concluded the court, intervention was timely in this case since there was ample evidence to show that interveners acted immediately on being informed of plaintiffs' demand for civil penalties, no delay in the trial would be caused by the proposed intervention since judgment was still under submission, and the proposed intervention did not result in any inconvenience or prejudice to he original parties (53 Cal. App. 3d 661, 667-669) .

Counsel should note that in 1977, Code Civ. Proc. § 387 was amended to eliminate the requirement that application for leave to intervene be made before trial. Under the amended version of the statute, the application for leave to intervene under both Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (permissive intervention) and Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (mandatory intervention) must be "timely." Although no appellate court decision has considered the issue of what constitutes "timely" intervention since the statute was amended, the standard set forth in the Sanders case would appear to be applicable, at least when permissive intervention is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a). However, in California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266 (discussed in § 124.50[3][a]), the court of appeal suggested that some of the factors mentioned in the Sanders case may not be relevant to a determination of whether or not an application to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (mandatory intervention) is timely. In California Physicians' Service, the court of appeal had to determine whether or not the proposed interveners, who had admitted that their intervention would expand the issues in the case, met the requisites for mandatory intervention. Since the court determined that the interveners did not have the requisite interest in the action, the court did not directly consider the issue of timeliness of the application. The court stated in dictum, however, that the fact that intervention would add to the complexity of the action, create delay, or adversely affect the original parties was of no moment when intervention is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96) . On the other hand, another court of appeal, in denying mandatory intervention, cited great delay and the necessity of starting new proceedings in the trial court as factors justifying the denial of mandatory intervention [see Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115-116, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685 (distinguishing Bustop v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 66, 70-73, 137 Cal. Rptr. 793)] Thus, it is uncertain whether or not delay in the proceedings is a proper consideration when determining the timeliness of a motion for leave to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b).

[b] Timeliness of Intervention as of Right

In Mar v. Sakti Internat. Corp. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1780, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388 , plaintiff was injured by masonry falling from an earthquake-damaged building during the course and scope of his employment with Wells Fargo Bank. Wells Fargo's workers' compensation carrier paid plaintiff statutory workers' compensation benefits, and Wells Fargo made up the difference between that amount and plaintiff's full salary during convalescence. Plaintiff filed a complaint for damages against the building's owner and manager and others. In the same month, the carrier filed a complaint in intervention to recover the amount of benefits it had paid to plaintiff. Upon learning that plaintiff's action was to be settled on the eve of trial, Wells Fargo sought to intervene to recover sums it had paid to plaintiff. The trial court denied the motion to intervene (9 Cal. App. 4th 1780, 1783) .

The court of appeal reversed the order denying the Wells Fargo's request to intervene, holding that the request was timely. The court stated that the relevant statute granting the right to intervene in a particular situation must be consulted to determine whether it addresses the timeliness issue. If it does not, it should be deemed to refer the issue back to the discretionary standard of Code Civ. Proc. § 387. If the statute provides a standard of timeliness, both the right and the statute are to be treated as incorporated in Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (9 Cal. App. 4th 1780, 1784) . In this case Lab. Code § 3853 grants the employer an unconditional right to intervene in this type of action "at any time before trial on the facts." After the settlement, there still remained for trial the carrier's complaint to recover the amount of benefits paid to plaintiff. Thus, the trial court had no discretion to disregard the express command of Lab. Code § 3853 and to refuse Wells Fargo leave to intervene (9 Cal. App. 4th 1780, 1785) .

[c] Intervention After Judgment

Mallick v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 434, 152 Cal. Rptr. 503 , arose out of a petition by a class representative for a writ of mandate to compel the superior court to hear petitioner's motion to intervene in a certain action pending before it. Petitioner was the class representative in an action against the Golden Gate Bridge Highway and Transportation District. In an identical suit, Marin County was the class representative. Both class representatives obtained identical judgments, and the district appealed. Petitioner reached a settlement with the district, but conditioned his approval on the county's acceptance of the same settlement. The county refused, insisting that certain other requirements be added. Petitioner then moved the trial court to intervene in county's action, to vacate the county's judgment, and to remove the county as the class representative. The county opposed the motion on the ground that its appeal divested the court of jurisdiction. The trial court agreed and denied the motions on that ground. Petitioner then applied for a writ of mandate. An alternative writ was granted pending determination of the petition.

The court of appeal granted petitioner's application and issued a peremptory writ compelling the superior court to hear and decide petitioner's motions to intervene and substitute class representation. In granting the writ, the court held that under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 as amended in 1977 [see Stats. 1977, ch. 450], intervention is possible, if otherwise appropriate, even after judgment (89 Cal. App. 3d 434, 437) . Under the facts of the case, the court found that intervention after judgment may be appropriate since intervener, as a class member, may have had a protectable interest. Therefore, concluded the court, it was incumbent on the trial court to determine that issue (89 Cal. App. 3d 434, 437-438) .

[d] Intervention After Default Judgment

Johnson v. Hayes Cal. Builders, Inc. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 572, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394 , involved an action to recover monies loaned to defendant. Defendant subsequently defaulted, and judgment was entered against it. Seven months later, intervener moved for an order permitting it to intervene on the ground of the invalidity of the default judgment. Intervener alleged that it was a surety on defendant's release of attachment bond. The trial court entered an order permitting intervention and setting aside the default and judgment. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court, while reversing the judgment of the trial court in setting aside the default judgment, nonetheless held that intervener was a proper party to intervene and that its intervention was timely under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), since it asserted the invalidity of the default judgment on its face. However, since intervener could not show that there was anything in the record to rebut the presumption of validity, the Court reversed the judgment (60 Cal. 2d 572, 575-578) .

For a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of motions to intervene and to set aside a default and default judgment on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], or that the default judgment is void on its face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)], see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706 , arose out of an action by plaintiff clothing distributor against defendant manufacturer for breach of contract and to recover certain property shipped in bulk to defendant for use in the manufacture of men's pants. Plaintiff through claim and delivery proceedings recovered the material that had been provided to defendant. Intervener insurance company provided the surety bond as then required under the claim and delivery statute. Defendant filed a cross complaint for breach of contract and fraud and asked for money for work performed and other damages. At trial, plaintiff failed to appear and the trial court entered judgment against plaintiff on its complaint and for defendant on the cross complaint. Thereafter, intervener surety moved the trial court for leave to intervene and to vacate the judgment. The trial court denied the motion, and intervener appealed from the judgment and from the order denying the motion.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order denying leave to intervene and refusing to vacate the judgment. The court stated that although former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)] did not permit intervention after judgment, Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) permitted intervention after judgment when, because of mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or excusable neglect, a default judgment was rendered. In addition, noted the court, an aggrieved person may also intervene after judgment for the purpose of vacating a default judgment that is void (74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846-847) . Consequently, the court held that under the facts of this case it was an abuse of discretion by the trial court to deny intervener surety's motion to intervene and vacate the judgment (74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 850) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervention After Default Judgment

The facts and procedures of Linder v. Vogue Investments, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 48 Cal. Rptr. 633 , are discussed in § 124.41[3][a]. In that case, which involved a motion by a limited partner to intervene and to set aside a default judgment entered against the limited partnership on the ground of the general partner's failure to defend, the court of appeal noted that prior decisions held that a default was the equivalent of a trial within the meaning of Code

Civ. Proc. § 387. Once the default judgment was entered, the court further observed, a nonparty could move to set aside the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) and (d) (239 Cal. App. 2d 338).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive InterventionsCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionRight to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionTimelinessCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault Judgments

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.34

§ 124.34 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Scope of the Action Is Not Enlarged

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30).]

_____'S [Name of intervener] INTERVENTION IN THIS ACTION IS PROPER BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT OTHERWISE MEETS THE REQUIREMENTS FOR INTERVENTION AND SUCH INTERVENTION WILL NOT ENLARGE THE SCOPE OR FUNCTION OF THE ACTION.

A. Scope of the Action. Intervention by a party who otherwise meets the statutory requirements for intervention in a pending action is proper when his or her intervention will not enlarge the scope or function of the action (see Belt Casualty Co. v. Furman (1933) 218 Cal. 359, 361-363, 23 P.2d 293).

[Optional] B. Intervener Seeking Affirmative Relief in Action for Rescission of Contract. The scope or function of an action is not necessarily enlarged when, in seeking to oppose or sustain respective contentions of the parties in an action to rescind a contract, the intervener also seeks some form of affirmative relief that could have been obtained in a separate action (see Belt Casualty Co. v. Furman (1933) 218 Cal. 359, 361-363, 23 P.2d 293 ; see also Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Gerlach (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 299, 305, 128 Cal. Rptr. 396).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) on the grounds that the proposed intervener has met the statutory requirements for joinder and that his or her complaint in intervention seeks relief that does not enlarge the scope or function of the action. Optional Paragraph B may be used when the complaint in intervention also seeks affirmative relief in an action for rescission of a contract in which the intervener has an interest

[Paragraph B].

Points and authorities set out in this form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts showing that the proposed intervener has met the statutory requirements for intervention and that his or her complaint in intervention seeks relief that does not enlarge the function or scope of the action.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.50 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Scope of the Action

Belt Casualty Co. v. Furman (1933) 218 Cal. 359, 23 P.2d 293 , arose out of an action by plaintiff insurer to rescind a policy of automobile insurance issued to defendant. Plaintiff alleged that defendant failed to cooperate with and assist plaintiff in resisting claims brought by persons who were allegedly injured as a result of an automobile accident involving defendant's automobile. By leave of the trial court, these persons filed complaints in intervention based on judgments previously recovered by them against defendant. Interveners sought to avoid the attempted rescission by plaintiff and to recover the amount of their judgments from plaintiff, with interest. The trial court entered judgment against plaintiff on its complaint for rescission. The trial court also entered judgment in favor of interveners for the amounts of the judgments recovered by them in their actions against defendant.

On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. On the issue of intervention, the Court observed that plaintiff did not contend that the interveners did not have a sufficient interest in the action or in the success of the defendant therein to give them the right to intervene (218 Cal. 359, 361) . The Court then rejected plaintiff's contention that intervention was improper because it enlarged the scope of the action (218 Cal. 359, 361-363) .

Counsel should note that Belt Casualty was decided prior to the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387. Since Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) is couched in language virtually identical to that of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387, the rule that intervention should not enlarge the scope of the action is still apparently applicable to permissive intervention. One court of appeal has suggested in dictum, however, that the fact that intervention would add to the complexity of an action is of no consequence when mandatory intervention is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) [California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266].

[b] Intervener Seeking Affirmative Relief in Action for Rescission of Contract

The factual and procedural background of Belt Casualty Co. v. Furman (1933) 218 Cal. 359, 23 P.2d 293 , is discussed in § 124.34[3][a]. In that case, plaintiff contended on appeal that interveners should not have been permitted to join in an action in equity to rescind an insurance policy because interveners' complaints set up distinct causes of action that sounded in contract and that sought affirmative relief that could be recovered in actions at law; thus, plaintiff contended, the scope of the equitable action was enlarged contrary to the meaning and intent of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)] The Supreme Court rejected plaintiff's contention and held that intervention was proper. The Court noted that if plaintiff's contention was correct, the result would be the denial of the benefit of Code Civ. Proc. § 387 to those directly interested in the subject matter of the action, but who, although they might be permitted to intervene in the action by virtue of their direct interest, would nevertheless be compelled to file separate suits to recover the affirmative relief to which they immediately would become entitled in the event that the contentions with which they are aligned in the main action are finally sustained (218 Cal. 359, 361-362) . The Court noted that in this case the granting of affirmative relief to the interveners was but incidental to the main purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 387, which was to obviate delay and multiplicity of actions by creating an opportunity to those directly interested in the subject matter to join in an action already instituted. The Court further observed that an intervener may be accorded affirmative relief that he or she could properly seek by way of cross complaint had he or she been named one of the original parties of the action. The Court stated that it had not been referred to any theory of law or equity that would deny to the interveners the particular relief sought, nor had plaintiff shown that the issues of the complaints in intervention would not be conveniently tried in the action before it. The Court observed that the right to affirmative relief was not interfered with merely because a separate action might have been maintained (218 Cal. 359, 362) .

For discussion of the effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the rule set forth in the Belt Casualty case and of the applicability of the rule to mandatory intervention, see the discussion in § 124.34[3][a].

In Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Gerlach (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 299, 128 Cal. Rptr. 396 , intervener sold vending machines to defendant, who stored them in a building that was covered by a fire insurance policy written by plaintiff. Thereafter, before the machines had been paid for, a fire broke out that destroyed some of the machines and damaged others. Defendant filed a claim for the loss with plaintiff. Plaintiff, alleging that defendant had himself started the fire, brought an action for a judicial declaration that it was not liable for any portion of the loss. Intervener brought a separate action against defendant and recovered a judgment for the unpaid purchase price of the machines. Defendant, however, was judgment proof and there was no reasonable possibility that the judgment would be satisfied, unless defendant was entitled to recover under its policy with plaintiff. Intervener therefore sought to intervene in the action between plaintiff and defendant, seeking a declaration that plaintiff was liable on the policy. The trial court denied leave to intervene, and intervener appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. In holding that the trial court's refusal to permit intervention was an abuse of discretion, the court of appeal noted, inter alia, that the issues of the action would not be enlarged by the proposed intervention (56 Cal. App. 3d 299, 305) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Scope of the Action

In People ex rel. Rominger v. County of Trinity (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 655, 195 Cal. Rptr. 186 , the court of appeal held that the Sierra Club had a direct interest in the suit in which it intervened and that the trial court's order prohibiting intervention should be reversed. The suit was brought for declaratory and injunctive relief by the state of California against Trinity County alleging that the county's ordinances controlling the use of certain pesticides were preempted by state law. The court held that allowing intervention would not impermissibly broaden the scope of the litigation. The court stated that the Sierra Club's assertions regarding the adverse effects of pesticides were made for the purpose of establishing its interest in the litigation, not for the purpose of introducing new issues into the litigation. The complaint in intervention raised no new legal or factual issues to be decided by the trial court, and left the validity of the county pesticide ordinances in the face of state pesticide regulations as the only issue (147 Cal. App. 3d 655, 664-665) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.35

§ 124.35 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30).]

_____ [Name of intervener] SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO INTERVENE IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT HAS AN INTEREST IN THE MATTER IN LITIGATION THAT IS DIRECT AND OF SUCH AN IMMEDIATE CHARACTER THAT HE/SHE/IT WILL EITHER GAIN OR LOSE BY THE DIRECT LEGAL OPERATION AND EFFECT OF THE JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION.

A. Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation. In order to intervene pursuant to Section 387(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure, the proposed intervener must have an interest in the matter in litigation that is direct and not consequential; the intervener's interest must be of such a direct and immediate character that the intervener will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment (Timberidge Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 881, 150 Cal. Rptr. 606).

[Optional] B. Consequential Interest Becoming Direct Interest. What would otherwise be a consequential interest not justifying intervention may become a direct interest permitting intervention when, because of bad faith of a party to the litigation, the assertion of all parties to the litigation of claims adverse to the party seeking to intervene, collusion, impossibility of asserting a position that should be presented in the litigation, or similar circumstances, strict definition of direct interest is likely to result in injustice (Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Gerlach (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 299, 304, 128 Cal. Rptr. 396).

[Add further points and authorities, as appropriate, relating to specific types of interest that satisfy the direct interest requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (see §§ 124.36 -124.44)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) on the ground that the proposed intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation and will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment. By including optional Paragraph B, the points and authorities may be used when an otherwise inconsequential interest becomes a direct interest because of the bad faith of a party to the litigation, collusion, impossibility of asserting a position that should be presented in the litigation, or other similar circumstances.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30, and with points and authorities relating to a specific type of interest that satisfies the direct interest requirement for intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) [see, e.g., §§ 124.36 -124.44].

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of the direct interest requirement to mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see the discussion in 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the nature of the proposed intervener's interest in the matter in litigation and how this interest is sufficiently direct and immediate to justify intervention.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

Timberidge Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Santa Rosa (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 150 Cal. Rptr. 606 , involved an action by plaintiff land developers to have a school impact fee declared unconstitutional and for recovery of fees already paid under a resolution of defendant city. The resolution was adopted to alleviate temporary overcrowding in the city's schools caused by new subdivisions. On applying for a building permit for the subdivision lots, the applicant was required to pay the school impact fee. The local school district could apparently apply to the city for the impact fee funds to meet expenses caused by the increased school enrollment resulting from added population. The school district and the local agency formation commission were permitted to file complaints in intervention seeking, among other things, dismissal of the action. Plaintiffs demurred to the complaint in intervention, alleging among other things that interveners had no standing in the action since they did not have a direct interest in the matter in litigation. The trial court sustained, without leave to amend, plaintiffs' demurrers and granted its motion to strike the complaint in intervention. Interveners appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the order striking the school district's complaint in intervention, but affirmed the order regarding the local agency formation commission. In finding that the school district was a proper intervener, the court of appeal rejected plaintiffs' argument that since defendant city could reject intervener's application for needed impounded funds, intervener's interest was not direct and that the district would not necessarily gain or lose, depending on the action's outcome. To the contrary, the court held that the district was directly affected and was the ultimate pecuniary beneficiary of the impact fee policy. Defendant city, on the other hand, was only the collector and temporary custodian of the funds. The school district, however, urgently needed the fees in order to avoid a state penalty to the district and to insure that children in the district were provided adequate facilities for their educational needs (86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 881) . The intervening school district, said the court, had a statutory duty to provide a proper education for its schools' students and as a public agency, it had a direct interest in meeting its official responsibilities (86 Cal. App. 3d 873, 882) .

Counsel should note that the foregoing case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section. For a discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment on the applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[b] Consequential Interest Becoming Direct Interest

Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Gerlach (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 299, 128 Cal. Rptr. 396 , involved an action for a declaration of nonliability on a fire policy issued to insured defendant. Plaintiff contended that defendant had himself started the fire that broke out in a building which, with its contents, was covered by fire insurance on a policy written by plaintiff. Although served with summons and complaint, defendant did not appear and default was taken. In another action, intervener had obtained judgment against the same defendant and the corporation under which he did business for the unpaid purchase price of vending machines sold to defendant. These machines were stored in the building that had caught fire, and the machines were either destroyed or damaged by the fire. Intervener then petitioned the trial court in the declaratory relief action for leave to intervene since the defendant and the corporation were judgment proof and intervener could not satisfy its judgment unless it was determined that defendant was entitled to recover on plaintiff's policy. By its petition, intervener sought to force plaintiff to prove that defendant was responsible for the fire, and on failure of such proof be able to satisfy its judgment against the policy's benefits. The trial court, however, concluded that intervener had only a consequential interest rather than a direct interest and denied the motion to intervene. Intervener appealed.

In reversing the order denying permission to intervene, the court of appeal rejected plaintiff's claim that intervener had only a consequential interest. The court cited various reasons to support its finding that as a judgment creditor, intervener had a direct interest (56 Cal. App. 3d 299, 304-305) . Among the reasons given by the court was defendant's refusal to defend against plaintiff's action, which must reasonably be deemed bad faith in relation to the intervener. Therefore, the court stated, what would otherwise be a consequential interest not justifying intervention may become a direct interest permitting intervention when bad faith of a party to the litigation, the assertion of all parties to the litigation of claims adverse to the party seeking to intervene, collusion, impossibility of asserting a position that should be presented in the litigation, or similar circumstances, render strict definition of direct interest unjust [citing Continental Vinyl Products Corp. v. Mead Corp. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 543, 551-552, 103 Cal. Rptr. 806 , discussed in § 124.49[3][a]].

For a discussion of other points of law involved in this case, see § 124.34[3][b].

Counsel should note that although the Fireman's Fund case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendments, the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to those of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. Moreover, the facts of Fireman's Fund would probably also support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). Since the proceeds of the insurance policy represented the intervener's only possible means of satisfying its judgment against defendant, the intervener had an interest in the subject of the action by plaintiff insurer to rescind that policy, and any disposition of that action in the absence of the intervener might as a practical matter impair its ability to protect its interest. Furthermore, as emphasized by the court, the intervener's interests were not being adequately represented by the existing parties, since defendant had failed to appear and defend the action to rescind the policy.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

In People v. Superior Court (Good) (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 732, 131 Cal. Rptr. 800, 552 P.2d 760 , the Supreme Court denied a writ of mandate sought by the People to compel the trial court to strike a complaint in intervention. In the underlying action, the People had brought a civil action against defendants, alleging false advertising and unfair competition arising out of an oil exploration venture in which defendants were involved. The People's complaint prayed for injunctive relief, civil penalties, restitution for each investor injured by defendants' misconduct, and costs. Thereafter, real party in interest was granted ex parte leave to file his complaint in intervention on behalf of himself and a class of defrauded investors. The Supreme Court held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in permitting such intervention (17 Cal. 3d 732, 737) . The Court stated that an intervener's interest in the action must be direct rather than consequential, but determined that the test was met in this case. The Court noted that both complaints sought restitution to the investors based on the same underlying facts (17 Cal. 3d 732, 736) . Furthermore, the investors had a direct interest in the outcome of the litigation since there was a risk that their contributions to the venture organized by defendants would be used primarily to pay statutory penalties, with the result that the People's action, ostensibly brought to protect consumers, would deprive these very persons of the fruit of their venture (17 Cal. 3d 732, 737) .

In Gray v. Begley (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 729 , plaintiff was injured when a vehicle in which he was a passenger was hit by defendant. Plaintiff sued defendant and defendant's employer to recover compensation for the injuries plaintiff suffered in the accident. Appellant insurer (CNA) provided defendant driver (Begley) a defense subject to a reservation of rights, and the insured subsequently reached a private settlement with a third party claimant without the participation of the insurer. The trial court granted the insurer's motion to intervene in the proceeding. On appeal, respondents asserted the insurer did not have a sufficiently direct and immediate interest in this action to justify its intervention. Respondents' argument was based on the fact that CNA defended Begley under a reservation of rights; that is, CNA reserved the right to contest coverage for Begley. Respondents therefore argued that CNA's interest in the action was not direct and immediate, but is instead contingent on a subsequent determination that CNA's policy afforded coverage for Begley. In rejecting that argument, the court of appeal explained that the key factor in determining whether an insurer is bound by a settlement reached without the insurer's participation is whether the insurer provided the insured with a defense, not whether the insurer denied coverage. It therefore follows that an insurer providing a defense, even though subject to a reservation of rights, may intervene in the action when the insured attempts to settle the case to the potential detriment of the insurer. In contrast to the insurer that refuses to defend, an insurer providing a defense under a reservation of rights has not lost its right to control the litigation, and therefore retains a direct interest in the case.

In Redevelopment Agency v. Commission on State Mandates (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 100 , a city redevelopment agency sought to overturn a decision of the Commission on State Mandates that the agency was not entitled to reimbursement from state funds for certain housing costs. At the administrative level, The State Department of Finance (DOF) appeared and opposed the agency's request. After an unfavorable decision from the Commission, the agency filed a petition for writ of administrative mandamus naming the Commission as respondent, but naming no real parties in interest. The DOF sought but was denied leave to intervene in the mandamus action. On appeal from this decision, the court of appeal concluded that the trial court erred in denying leave to intervene. After first finding that the DOF was an indispensable party that should have been named as a real party in interest (43 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 1197) , the court went on to hold that the application for intervention also met the standards of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) and (b). The court found that the DOF had an interest against the success of the city agency, that its ability to protect its interests could be impaired by disposition of the matter in its absence, and that, given the nature of the Commission, it could not be said to adequately represent all of the DOF's interests even though it agreed with DOF on the merits. Thus, the court concluded that the trial had abused its discretion in denying discretionary intervention under Section 387(a) (43 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 1197-1198) .

In People ex rel. Rominger v. County of Trinity (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 655, 195 Cal. Rptr. 186 (discussed in § 124.34[4][1]), the court of appeal held that the Sierra Club had a direct interest in the suit in which it intervened by the state against Trinity County alleging that the county's ordinances controlling the use of certain pesticides were preempted by state law. The court of appeal held that when a law exists specifically to protect the public from a hazard to its health and welfare that would allegedly occur without that law, members of the public have a substantial interest in the protection and benefit provided by that law. The court stated that if a party brings an action to invalidate that law, the action has an immediate and direct effect on the public's interest in protecting its health and welfare. The court concluded, on that basis, that the Sierra Club, as representative of its members who reside in and use the resources of the county, had a direct and immediate, rather than consequential and remote, interest in the litigation (147 Cal. App. 3d 655, 662-663) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.36

§ 124.36 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Adjoining Property Owner May Intervene in Action to Enjoin Common Trespass

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

_____ [Name of intervener] SHOULD BE GRANTED LEAVE TO INTERVENE IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE AS AN ADJACENT LANDOWNER HE/SHE IS A PARTY IN INTEREST TO THIS SUIT BROUGHT BY PLAINTIFF SEEKING TO ENJOIN A COMMON TRESPASSER FROM FURTHER TRESPASS AND INJURY TO HIS/HER/ITS PROPERTY IN THAT _____ [name of intervener], HAS BEEN INJURED BY THE SAME TRESPASS AND IN THE SAME MANNER AS PLAINTIFF.

Actions to Enjoin Trespass to Property. Neighboring property owners whose property is subject to a trespass in common with plaintiff are proper parties to file complaints in intervention in an action to enjoin future trespass and to recover damages for injury to property (see A.E. Bell Corp. v. Bell View Oil Synd. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 587, 593-594, 76 P.2d 167).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention), when intervener claims that he or she has a direct interest in the matter in litigation in that he or she owns property adjoining plaintiff's property and therefore may properly intervene in an action to enjoin a trespass common to both properties. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of facts showing that he or she owns property that is adjacent to plaintiff's property and that both properties are subject to a common trespass by defendant.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Actions to Enjoin Trespass to Property

A.E. Bell Corp. v. Bell View Oil Synd. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 587, 76 P.2d 167 , involved an action by plaintiff landowner to enjoin a subsurface trespass and to recover the value of oil removed from his property by two "slant drilled" oil wells on defendants' property. Adjoining landowners under whose property the oil wells trespassed filed complaints in intervention, as did the lessee of plaintiff's land. The trial court sustained demurrers to plaintiff's complaint and to the complaints in intervention without leave to amend and entered a judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed the order of dismissal and remanded the case to the superior court with directions to overrule the demurrers interposed by defendants and to grant leave to plaintiff and interveners to file additional pleadings, if desired. On the issue of intervention, the court held that the adjoining property owner and the lessee of plaintiff's property had clearly and convincingly established a basis to intervene (24 Cal. App. 2d 587, 593) . Under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [repealed; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)], the intervening parties were proper parties to appear in the action and join either plaintiff or defendants as they should elect (24 Cal. App. 2d 587, 594) .

Counsel should note that adjoining landowners are proper interveners in an action involving injuries to several pieces of property only when the injury involves the same trespass or transaction committed at the same time and in the same manner. This situation should be distinguished from actions involving injuries to several pieces of land from similar trespasses or transactions in which intervention has been held improper [see, e.g., Coleman v. Twin Coast Newspaper, Inc. (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 650, 654, 346 P.2d 488 (three separate and distinct plaintiffs involved in action for trespass to three separate and distinct premises); Foreman v. Boyle (1891) 88 Cal. 290, 293, 26 P 94 (two separate owners of property with different water rights in action for damages for wrongful diversion of upland water)].

Counsel should also note that although the A.E. Bell case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. It is doubtful, however, whether the facts of this case would support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). Although the adjacent landowners may be said to have an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action, any adverse decision in that proceeding would not bind them and hence would not preclude them from pursuing their own independent action against defendants, and there appears to be no other practical impairment of interveners' ability to protect its own interests. Moreover, the facts of that case do not suggest that plaintiff would not adequately represent interveners' interests.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[4] Additional Authorities

In Malibu v. California Coastal Comm'n (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 897, 906, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501 , a landowner's residence was situated on four contiguous beachfront lots, one of which was immediately to the west of the neighbors' house. The owner signed an offer to dedicate (OTD) easements that would have given the public vertical and lateral access to the shoreline. However, he subsequently claimed the OTDs were invalid. The neighbors asserted that they had satisfied the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) for mandatory intervention and alternatively that they should be granted permissive intervention under § 387(a). The instant court, mindful that § 387 was to be liberally construed to permit intervention, held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying intervention. The neighbors and the executive had identical interests in preventing members of the public from accessing areas adjacent to their properties. The neighbors could only speculate that the public would trespass and litter on the portion of the beach that the neighbors owned, thereby affecting their quiet enjoyment of their property. The owner had been an able advocate of his and the neighbors' position in attempting to prevent public use of the easements.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionPermissive InterventionsReal Property LawAdjoining LandownersGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.37

§ 124.37 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Assignee of Party's Interest in Subject Matter of Action

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [name of intervener], LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION BECAUSE AS A[N] [PARTIAL] ASSIGNEE OF _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT], HE/SHE/IT HAS AN INTEREST IN THE SUBJECT MATTER IN LITIGATION SUFFICIENT TO ALLOW HIM/HER/IT TO INTERVENE IN THE ACTION BEFORE THE COURT TO PROTECT THAT INTEREST.

A. Assignee of Party in Action. An assignee of a party's interest in the subject matter of the litigation may intervene in an action between the assignor and another party to protect that interest (see Dabney v. Philleo (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 60, 68, 237 P.2d 648).

[Optional] B. Assignee of Rights Under Contract. An assignee of rights under a contract may intervene in an action between the assignor and another party affecting those contract rights (see Marc Bellaire, Inc. v. Fleischman (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595, 8 Cal. Rptr. 650).

[Optional] C. Assignee of Special Use Permit. An assignee of a special use permit under a zoning ordinance is a real party in interest and may intervene in an action for declaratory relief seeking to overturn an administrative decision to grant the permit to the assignor (Cohn v. County Board of Supervisors (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 180, 184, 286 P.2d 836).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention), on the ground that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation in that he or she is an assignee or partial assignee of a party's interest in the subject matter in litigation, and thus may properly intervene in the action. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment as authority for mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of interest assigned by an existing party to the action and show how the pending action will affect the interest assigned to the proposed intervener.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Assignee of Party in Action

Dabney v. Philleo (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 60, 237 P.2d 648 , involved a combined set of actions by plaintiffs Clifford Dabney and his wife. The main action was against the executor of the estate of Louise Dabney for declaratory and other relief, including claims adverse to the estate on ground of fraud perpetrated against Clifford by his uncle, Joseph Dabney, the predeceased husband of Louise. The other three actions were against persons to whom Clifford assigned fractional shares of all of his interest in all property that he would be entitled to from the estate of Louise. In these three actions, plaintiffs sought, among other things, a declaration that the interests assigned be limited to those of Clifford as heir of Louise and that the interests assigned not include any claims made by Clifford adverse to the estate as a result of the alleged fraud perpetrated against Clifford by his uncle, Joseph. At the time that these assignments were made, plaintiffs had not discovered the alleged fraud that purportedly deprived them of one-half ownership of certain lands procured by Clifford for Joseph for the development of oil production. The trial court permitted assignees, who claimed their assignment included their proportional interest to any claims adverse to the estate, to intervene in the main action, and plaintiffs cross complained against them. The trial court sustained, without leave to amend, demurrers to the various complaints, ordered dismissal of three of the actions, and rendered judgment against plaintiffs in the remaining action. Plaintiffs appealed, contesting, among other things, the trial court's granting assignees leave to intervene in the main action.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the trial court and remanded the case to the lower court with instructions that plaintiffs be permitted to amend their complaints to overcome the objections raised by the demurrers. In doing so, the Court also upheld the trial court's decision allowing the assignees to intervene in the main action, holding that the assignees had a direct, not a consequential, interest in the matter in litigation since the controversy in the main action pertained to the ownership of certain property, that is, one-half ownership of certain lands procured by Clifford for his Uncle. Since the assignees asserted an interest in the property, they were properly allowed to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 (38 Cal. 2d 60, 68) .

Counsel should note that although the Dabney case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. Furthermore, the facts of the Dabney case would probably also support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). Plaintiffs' assignment of their interest in the estate clearly gave the interveners an interest in the subject matter of the action, and a disposition of the action in plaintiffs' favor would probably impair interveners' ability to protect that interest since it would result in a diminution of the estate. Moreover, under these facts, neither defendant nor plaintiff would be expected to adequately represent interveners' interest in the estate.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[b] Assignee of Rights Under Contract

In Marc Bellaire, Inc. v. Fleischman (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 591, 8 Cal. Rptr. 650 , plaintiff corporation brought an action for declaration of its rights under an employment contract with defendant. A state labor agency obtained an ex parte order permitting the agency to file a cross complaint in intervention. The agency, a judgment creditor of defendant, had obtained an assignment from defendant of wages owed to defendant under the employment contract with plaintiff. The agency sought intervention to recover the amount of the wages due to defendant. Plaintiff's demurrers to the agency's pleadings were overruled, and the trial court subsequently entered judgment in favor of the agency. Plaintiff appealed, attacking, among other things, the agency's right to intervene.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court rejected plaintiff's contention that intervention was improper, holding that as an assignee of defendant's claim for wages, the state agency had an interest in the contract of employment and in the success of defendant as against the attempt by plaintiff to obtain a declaration that the agreement had effectively been modified. Citing Dabney v. Philleo (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 60, 68, 237 P.2d 648 (§ 124.37[3][a]), the court concluded that the nature of the agency's interest required intervention (185 Cal. App. 2d 591, 595) .

Counsel should note that although the Fleischman case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. Furthermore, the facts of Fleischman would probably support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), since the assignment clearly gave the intervening agency an interest in the contract rights that were the subject of the litigation and that would be adversely affected by a disposition in the plaintiff's favor. Moreover, the agency's interests would probably not be adequately represented by defendant, since defendant assigned to the agency his rights to all wages due under the employment contract and thus had no further interest in the contract.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[c] Assignee of Special Use Permit

Cohn v. County Board of Supervisors (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 180, 286 P.2d 836 , involved an action against a county board of supervisors by a resident of the county for declaratory relief and writ of review to determine the validity of the board's decision to reverse the decision of the regional planning commission denying a special use permit to an industrial developer for the operation of an asphalt plant on certain premises. An alternative writ was issued and the matter was heard and considered in certiorari. After the complaint was filed, the holders of the permit assigned their rights to the permit to the property owner, who subsequently intervened in the action. The trial court entered judgment in favor of defendant and intervener. Plaintiff appealed, contending among other things, that the court erred in permitting the assignee to intervene because she had no justiciable rights in the controversy.

In affirming the judgment of the trial court, the court of appeal held that the assignee was the real party in interest and had a right to intervene. Furthermore, the court said, special use permits under zoning ordinances run with the land and are not personal. The original holders of the permit had the right to assign their interest in the premises, that is, the permit, and as owner of the premises and assignee of the special use permit, intervener was properly allowed to assert her rights and to have those rights determined in the present action (135 Cal. App. 2d 180, 184) .

Counsel should note that although the Cohn case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. Furthermore, the facts of Cohn would probably support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), since the assignment clearly gave the intervening party an interest in the permit rights that were the subject of the litigation and that would be adversely affected by a disposition in the plaintiff's favor. Moreover, the assignee's interests would probably not be adequately represented by defendant, since defendant was merely the issuing agency and thus probably did not have as direct an interest as the assignee in establishing the validity of the permit.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Assignee of Party in Action

In Loughborough v. McNevin (1887) 74 Cal. 250 , plaintiff brought an action against defendant McNevin and others for recovery of money loaned to defendant after he had refused tender by defendant Drexler, assignee of McNevin, of the amount owed plus interest and refused to return the stock held by plaintiff as security for the loan. An assignee of defendant Drexler intervened, claiming assignment to him by Drexler of the stock held by plaintiff as security, and also of all claims for damages by Drexler for conversion of the stock in question. Judgment was rendered in favor of the intervening assignee, and plaintiff appealed the judgment and denial of his motion for new trial. In affirming the orders of the trial court, the Superme Court held that assignee's complaint in intervention was regular and within the statute permitting intervention and that it had set out the right to redeem the property in question (74 Cal. 250, 257) .

Palpar, Inc. v. Thayer (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 578, 186 P.2d 748 , involved an action by plaintiff transferee of a tractor against defendants for a partition by sale, accounting, and general relief relating to the ownership of the tractor formerly held by plaintiff's transferor and defendant Thayer. Included as a defendant was a bank that claimed an interest in the property derived from a note and chattel mortgage alleged to have been given by Thayer as security for a loan. Intervener filed a complaint in intervention claiming that defendant Thayer had given intervener a bill of sale of the property and that intervener had paid the note in full and received defendant bank's assignment of the note and chattel mortgage. The court of appeal, although reversing the judgment in favor of defendants, rejected plaintiff's contention that intervention should not have been permitted. The court held that intervener had not only a right, but also a duty to intervene, citing the rule that a claim or lien upon the property that was the subject of the litigation gives a right to intervene (82 Cal. App. 2d 578, 584) .

In Crofton v. Young (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 452, 119 P.2d 1003 , plaintiff sued to quiet title to certain property conveyed to him by his father, a judgment debtor of defendant bank. The bank assigned its previous judgment to intervener who obtained an ex parte order making him a party defendant. Subsequently, the trustee in bankruptcy of plaintiff's father's estate moved to be substituted as party defendant in place of intervener who had filed a claim in the bankruptcy proceeding against the estate. Plaintiff's motions to strike the order joining the intervener and his answer and cross complaint were granted by the trial court. On appeal by the trustee in bankruptcy, the court of appeal reversed the orders of the trial court, holding that the assignee was the real party in interest and that the court had the power to make him a defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 or under Code Civ. Proc. § 389, relating to compulsory joinder of a party (48 Cal. App. 2d 452, 456) .

Counsel should note that although all of the above cases were decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in these cases is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.38

§ 124.38 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Judgment Creditor May Intervene in Action Involving Property Subject to Judgment Lien

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [name of intervener] LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT HAS OBTAINED A JUDGMENT LIEN ON THE PROPERTY OF _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT] THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THE ACTION AND THEREFORE _____ [name of intervener] HAS A SUFFICIENT INTEREST IN THE ACTION BEFORE THE COURT TO PERMIT HIM/HER/IT TO INTERVENE.

Judgment Creditor May Intervene in Action Involving Property Subject to Judgment Lien. A judgment creditor who has a lien on property that is the subject of the action before the court has an interest sufficient to permit him or her to intervene in that action (see Horn v. Volcano Water Co. (1859) 13 Cal. 62, 69-70) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) on the ground that the intervener had a direct interest in the matter in litigation in that he or she holds a judgment lien on the property that is the subject of the action in which intervention is sought. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment as authority for mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see the discussion in §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Judgment Creditor's Lien on Judgment Debtor's Cause of Action or Recovery

Counsel should note that a judgment creditor who has a money judgment against a judgment debtor who is a party to a pending action or special proceeding may obtain a lien on any cause of action of the judgment debtor for money or property that is the subject of the action or proceeding and on the rights of the judgment debtor to money or property under any judgment subsequently entered in the action or proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 708.410(a)] The court in which the action or special proceeding is pending may permit a judgment creditor who has obtained a lien under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.410-708.480 to intervene in the action or proceeding pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.430(a)] For discussion and forms pertaining to a judgment creditor's right to a lien on the judgment debtor's cause of action, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender). For points and authorities supporting and opposing a judgment creditor's application for leave to intervene in the judgment debtor's cause of action, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 131, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Creditor May Intervene in Action Involving Property Subject to Judgment Lien

In Horn v. Volcano Water Co. (1859) 13 Cal. 62 , plaintiff brought an action against defendant water company on a note and mortgage executed by the trustees of the company. Included as additional defendants were holders of another note and mortgage executed by the water company. Certain creditors of the company intervened, alleging fraud in the execution of the note and mortgage to plaintiff. One of the creditors was a simple creditor, others were judgment creditors who obtained liens by their judgments on the mortgaged premises. The trial court found in favor of defendants, including interveners. Plaintiffs did not raise any objection to the complaints in intervention at trial.

On appeal by plaintiffs, the Supreme Court reversed the decision. On the subject of intervention, the Court held that the intervener who was a simple creditor was not entitled to intervene since his interest was not secured by any lien on the mortgaged premises. The interest necessary to entitle a person to intervene in an action between other parties, the Court said, must be in the matter in litigation and of such a direct and immediate character that the intervener will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment (13 Cal. 62, 69) . To authorize intervention in an action in which property is the matter in litigation, the Court held that the interest must be that created by a claim to the demand, or some part of it, in suit, or a claim to or lien on the property, or some part of it. The Court found that the judgment creditors were proper interveners, having liens by their several judgments on the mortgaged premises, and were therefore necessary parties to a complete adjustment of all interests in the property. Consequently, the Court stated, the trial court would have been justified in granting them their petition, or ordering them brought in as parties to the action (13 Cal. 62, 70) .

Counsel should note that although the Horn case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. It is unclear whether or not possession of a judgment lien on the property that is the subject of an action would in itself be sufficient to support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). However, when there are no other assets available to satisfy the judgment, and when the judgment debtor is not prosecuting or defending the action in good faith, it would appear that the judgment creditor could make a viable argument that he or she has an interest in the matter in litigation and is so situated that the disposition of the action would impair his or her ability to protect that interest and that existing parties are not adequately representing that interest, thereby giving the judgment creditor a right to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b).

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionPermissive InterventionsCivil ProcedureRemediesJudgment LiensGeneral Overview

160 of 172 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.39

§ 124.39 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Third-Party Claimant to Property May Intervene in Action to Determine Ownership of Property

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [name of intervener] LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT IS THE OWNER OF THE PROPERTY THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION AND SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO INTERVENE IN ORDER TO PROTECT HIS/HER/ITS INTEREST AGAINST THE CLAIM OF OWNERSHIP BY _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT].

Third-Party Claimant to Property May Intervene in Action to Determine Ownership of Property. A third party asserting ownership of property may intervene in action to determine the ownership of that property (see Goes v. Perry (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 373, 375-377, 115 P.2d 441).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention), on the ground that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation because he or she is a third-party claimant to property, the ownership of which is the subject of the action in which intervention is sought. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in

§ 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment as authority for mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see the discussion in §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion showing that intervener asserts an ownership interest in the property adverse to that asserted by plaintiff and defendant.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Third-Party Claimant to Property May Intervene in Action to Determine Ownership of Property

Goes v. Perry (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 373, 115 P.2d 441 , arose out of an action by plaintiff in claim and delivery to recover possession of the property from defendant, who allegedly unlawfully withheld possession of the property from plaintiff. A third party intervened in the action, claiming that money used to purchase the property at a trustee's sale was wrongfully appropriated from a trust fund belonging to her, her coowners, and plaintiff. Intervener sought to impose a trust on the personal property in favor of herself and her associates. Plaintiff based his claim to the possession of the property on his right of ownership arising out of the purchase under a deed of trust of the property at a trustee's sale. Defendant's claim to the possession of the property was apparently based on an agreement with another party that the title and possession of the property were to be transferred to defendant for services rendered. Intervener based her claim to the property on the ground that the purchase price of the property was paid out of funds belonging to intervener and her coowners, and that the property was purchased in the name of plaintiff, who had paid no part of the purchase price. The trial court appointed a receiver of the property on behalf of intervener. Defendant appealed, contending that the court erred in permitting intervention. Defendant claimed that the action was solely to determine the right to possession of personal property, and intervener had not shown, nor claimed, that she was entitled to possession of the property in question, and therefore she did not have sufficient interest in the property entitling her to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387.

The Supreme Court, in affirming the trial court's order, rejected defendant's contention. The Court held that while the action was ostensibly for the possession of the property, it was in reality an action to determine ownership of the property, since each party based his right to possession on a claim of ownership. Intervener's purpose in entering the action was to impose a trust on the property in the name of plaintiff. Should defendant be determined the owner of the property in question, intervener's claim would be denied. Consequently, concluded the Court, intervener had the necessary interest in the subject matter in litigation that would entitle her to intervene in the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 (18 Cal. 2d 373, 376-377) .

Counsel should note that although the Goes case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. Moreover, it also appears that the facts of the Goes case would support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), since intervener clearly claimed an interest in the personal property that was the subject of the action and a disposition of the action awarding possession to plaintiff or defendant would probably impair intervener's ability to protect that interest. Furthermore, intervener's interests were not adequately represented by the existing parties, since both plaintiff and defendant claimed ownership of the property and thus claimed an interest in the property adverse to that asserted by intervener.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendments, see § 124.03.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.40

§ 124.40 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Beneficiary of Trust Deed May Intervene in Action by Trustor Against Trustee to Declare Trust Deed Void

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [name of intervener] LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT IS THE BENEFICIARY OF THE TRUST DEED THAT PLAINTIFF TRUSTOR SEEKS TO HAVE SET ASIDE.

Beneficiary of Trust Deed May Intervene in Action to Set Aside Trust Deed. In an action brought by trustors against the trustee of a trust deed to have the trust deed declared void, the beneficiaries are indispensable parties and may properly intervene in the action and in a subsequent action to enjoin a sale of property under the trust deed (see Straube v. Security First Nat. Bank (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 352, 353, 360, 363, 23 Cal. Rptr. 213).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) on the ground that intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation in that he or she is a beneficiary of a trust deed and therefore may properly intervene in an action by the trustor to have the trust deed declared void or to enjoin a sale by the trustee of the property encumbered by the trust deed. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment as authority for mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see the discussion in §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.48 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Beneficiary of Trust Deed May Intervene in Action to Set Aside Trust Deed

Straube v. Security First Nat. Bank (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 352, 23 Cal. Rptr. 213 , arose out of an action by plaintiffs claiming ownership of certain real property as trustors under a deed of trust to enjoin defendant trustee bank from carrying out its announced intention to proceed with a sale of the property in question on the ground that a previous action brought by them to quiet title against the bank had resulted in a judgment in their favor, forbidding further claims by defendant bank against the property. A third party filed a complaint in intervention, claiming individually and as executrix of the estate of the previous owner of the property in question that she and the estate were beneficiaries of the deed of trust under which plaintiffs claimed ownership, that promissory notes on the deed of trust were due, that interveners were indispensable parties in the former action in which plaintiffs obtained a decree quieting title in them, that the failure to join the beneficiaries was an attempt to deprive them of their property, and that the previous judgment was void and did not bind the beneficiaries. Plaintiffs moved to strike the complaint in intervention, but the trial court denied the motion. The trial court made findings of fact that closely followed the allegations contained in the complaint in intervention and entered judgment in favor of defendant and intervener. Plaintiffs appealed, contending among other things that the trial court erred in finding that the previous judgment was void, that the trial court improperly allowed intervention in that defendant bank was the only necessary party defendant in the former action, that beneficiaries of the trust deed were not indispensable parties, and that the trust deed and notes that it secured were given without consideration and therefore void.

The court of appeal upheld the judgment of the trial court in denying the injunction and in declaring the previous judgment void, but the court reversed the judgment insofar as it denied plaintiffs the right to a jury trial on the factual issues. Addressing itself to the issue of beneficiaries' right to be parties to an action involving their interests in the property in question, the court held that in an action brought by trustors against the trustee of a deed of trust to declare the trust deed void for want of consideration, the beneficiaries of the trust deed are indispensable parties, and a judgment taken against the trustee alone is void and of no effect. The court discussed at length the basis for its holding and in summary, concluded that when parties to a trust are placed in a position of losing their basic rights in the trust through the bringing of a suit by one of the other parties to the trust agreement, the beneficiaries must be joined as indispensable parties. Under the facts of the case, the rights of the beneficiaries were vitally affected by the first action instituted by plaintiffs and the beneficiaries were therefore indispensable parties to that action. Consequently, observed the court, the trial court was correct in denying the motion to strike the complaint in intervention since the beneficiaries were indispensable parties to the former action and their rights were still being vitally affected by the continuance in full force and effect of the previous judgment (205 Cal. App. 2d 352, 360-363) .

Counsel should note that although the Straube case was decided prior to the 1977 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 387, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. Furthermore, the facts of Straube might also support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), particularly in view of the court's holding that the beneficiaries were indispensable parties to the action to have the trust deed set aside. For a discussion of the relationship between mandatory intervention and compulsory joinder of parties, see § 124.04. For discussion and forms relating to compulsory joinder of parties, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 395, Parties (Matthew Bender). For points and authorities pertaining to compulsory joinder of parties, see Ch. 168, Parties in this set.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

162 of 172 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.41

§ 124.41 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Limited Partner May Intervene When General Partner Refuses to Defend Unmeritorious or Collusive Action Against Partnership

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [name of intervener] LEAVE TO INTERVENE IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT IS A LIMITED PARTNER IN DEFENDANT _____ [name of partnership] AND DEFENDANT(S) _____ [name(s) of general partner(s)], THE GENERAL PARTNER(S), _____ [HAS or HAVE] FAILED AND REFUSED TO EXERCISE GOOD FAITH IN DEFENDING THIS ACTION AGAINST THE PARTNERSHIP.

Limited Partner May Intervene When General Partner Refuses to Defend Action Against Partnership. A limited partner may properly intervene in an action against the partnership on the refusal or failure of the general partner to defend an unmeritorious or collusive action against the partnership (see Linder v. Vogue Investments, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 340-342, 48 Cal. Rptr. 633).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (permissive intervention), on the ground that the intervener, as a limited partner, has a direct interest in the matter in litigation and may properly intervene in an action against partnership when the general partner fails to exercise good faith in defending the action. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment as authority for mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see the discussion in §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the status of the intervener as a limited partner and the facts supporting his or her contention that the general partner has failed to defend an action in good faith against the partnership, thereby impairing intervener's interest in the partnership.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limited Partner May Intervene When General Partner Refuses to Defend Action Against Partnership

In Linder v. Vogue Investments, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 48 Cal. Rptr. 633 , plaintiff filed an action against defendant Crescent Homes, a limited partnership, for recovery of a debt. The complaint alleged that one Katz was the general partner of defendant partnership and Vogue Investments, Inc. was the limited partner. Summons was served on the general partner, and on his failure to appear and defend the action, a default judgment was entered. Vogue promptly filed a motion to intervene and to vacate the default. In the complaint in intervention, intervener alleged facts that amounted to a charge of fraud and tacit collusion between plaintiff and the general partner. Plaintiff resisted the motion to intervene, claiming that a limited partner was not a proper party in an action against a limited partnership and that intervener did not have a direct interest in the litigation since the partnership did not own any asset against which plaintiff could levy execution. The trial court denied intervener's motion to intervene and also its motion to reconsider. The trial court's reasoning in denying the latter motion was entered in a minute order that stated that limited partners are not bound by the obligations of the partnership and have no power to litigate or defend the partnership obligations, citing certain portions of the Limited Partnership Act, now repealed. Vogue, as intervener, appealed the denial of both motions.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order denying intervener's motion to reconsider the motion to intervene and directed the trial court to set aside the default of defendant Crescent Homes and entertain the motion to intervene. In its decision, the court rejected plaintiff's contentions that intervention was prohibited by the Limited Partnership Act. The court found persuasive the many decisions permitting shareholders of a corporation, under conditions similar to the facts in the present case, to intervene on behalf of the corporation. The court held that, as in shareholder cases [see § 124.44], a limited partner need not stand idly by and watch a substantial investment disappear because the general partner refuses to defend an unmeritorious or collusive action against the partnership (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 340-341) .

Counsel should note that the court of appeal also based its decision on the right of the limited partner to intervene in this case on facts indicating that the limited partner may have withdrawn its contribution to the partnership at a time when it was insolvent. If true, the withdrawal was in violation of the Limited Partnership Act and would have subjected the limited partner to a liability to return the contribution at the instigation of a creditor of the partnership. Consequently, intervener had a vital interest in vacating the default judgment and establishing a defense that the alleged debt of the partnership to plaintiff never existed (239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 342) .

For a discussion of other points of law involved in this case, see § 124.33[4][a].

Counsel should also note that although the Linder case was decided prior to the 1977 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 387, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. Moreover, the facts of Linder might also support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) because the limited partner's interest in the partnership would certainly be impaired as a practical matter by the disposition of the action in favor of plaintiff. Although the effect on the limited partner's interest would be somewhat indirect, the failure of the general partner to defend the action in good faith demonstrates a lack of representation of intervener's interests by the existing parties and would probably support an argument that the limited partner has a right to intervene in the proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Limited Partner

Kobernick v. Shaw (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 914, 139 Cal. Rptr. 188 , involved an action by plaintiffs to foreclose an equitable lien on real property, naming a limited partnership, a trust company, and various Does as defendants. A limited partner answered for himself as a Doe and filed a cross complaint on behalf of himself and other limited partners, charging plaintiffs and the general partner with conspiracy to defraud the limited partners. The court of appeal reversed the order of the trial court sustaining plaintiffs' demurrer. The court, by analogy to Code Civ. Proc. § 387, held that a limited partner may file a cross complaint in proceedings when the general partner fails to defend the action, since a limited partner has a direct interest in the proceedings and is not required to sit idly by and allow his or her interest to disappear (70 Cal. App. 3d 914, 918-920) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawLimited PartnershipsManagement Duties & LiabilitiesCivil ProcedureParties InterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedureParties InterventionPermissive Interventions

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.42

§ 124.42 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Shareholder May Intervene When Officers or Directors of Corporation Refuse to Maintain or Defend Action Involving Corporation

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [name of intervener] LEAVE TO INTERVENE IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT IS A SHAREHOLDER OF _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT] CORPORATION AND THE CORPORATION, THROUGH ITS OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS, HAS FAILED TO EXERCISE GOOD FAITH IN _____ [MAINTAINING or DEFENDING] THIS ACTION.

Shareholder May Intervene When Officers or Directors of Corporation Refuse to Maintain or Defend Action Involving Corporation. A shareholder of a corporation involved in an action may properly intervene on behalf of the corporation when it appears that the corporation, or its officers and directors, will not exercise good faith in maintaining or defending the action (Eggers v. National Radio Co. (1929) 208 Cal. 308, 313, 281 P 58 ; see Thorman v. Dome Producing, etc. Co. (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 201, 203, 122 P.2d 927).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) on the grounds that he or she is a shareholder in the corporation involved in the action and that the corporation, through its officers and directors, has failed to exercise good faith in maintaining or defending the action. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment as authority for mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see the discussion in §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the status of intervener as a shareholder of the corporation in whose behalf he or she seeks to intervene and the facts supporting his or her contention that the corporation, or its officers and directors, have failed to exercise good faith in maintaining or defending an action in which it is involved.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Shareholder May Intervene When Officers or Directors of Corporation Refuse to Maintain or Defend Action Involving Corporation

Eggers v. National Radio Co. (1929) 208 Cal. 308, 281 P 58 , was an action by plaintiff shareholders against defendant corporation seeking to declare various stock certificate transactions undertaken by defendant void, to secure appointment of a receiver to take possession of all books and records of the corporation, and to declare that certain real property be the property of the holders of the void certificates, the corporation having only the title in trust for the shareholders. Judgment was entered for plaintiffs; however, on defendant's motion, a new trial was granted. Subsequently, the personnel of the board of directors of defendant changed, and on substitution of new attorneys defendant stipulated with plaintiffs that the order granting a new trial be vacated. The trial court then set aside its previous order. Interveners, some 292 persons claiming to hold a majority of the stock of defendant, moved for an order setting aside the order vacating the order for a new trial, reinstating the cause of action for a new trial, and allowing them to intervene. Interveners alleged collusion between plaintiffs and the board of directors of defendant to destroy the defendant corporation and to sell and distribute its assets among certain shareholders without the consent or agreement of the shareholders of defendant. The trial court set aside the order vacating the new trial order but denied the motion to intervene and to reinstate the cause of action for a new trial and entered judgment for plaintiffs. Interveners appealed, defendant having waived the right to do so.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment and orders of the trial court from which interveners appealed. In doing so, the Court held that the shareholders were entitled to intervene in the action because of the failure of the defendant corporation to defend against the action of plaintiffs, which was designed to destroy the corporation and distribute its assets. Although shareholders of a corporation normally cannot interfere with legal proceedings instituted by or on behalf of the corporation by its board of directors, they may be permitted to do so when the governing directors or trustees refuse to act or are guilty of fraud in the maintenance or defense of an action (208 Cal. 308, 313) . Under the facts of the case, the Court concluded that plaintiffs had conspired with the majority of the board of directors of defendant corporation to secure a judgment favorable to plaintiffs. Consequently, the shareholders were entitled to intervene in order to preserve the corporate property and to prevent its loss to the corporation or the impairment of its value, since whatever would be inimical or injurious to the corporation would be inimical or injurious to the shareholder (208 Cal. 308, 314) .

Thorman v. Dome Producing, etc. Co. (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 201, 122 P.2d 927 , involved an action by plaintiff against defendant corporation for recovery of a promissory note payable to plaintiff and executed by plaintiff as president of the corporation, and the secretary of the corporation, who together controlled defendant corporation. A subsequent shareholder, director, and president of the defendant corporation sought to intervene in the action. The shareholder alleged that the note was given without consideration, pursuant to a scheme in violation of the Corporate Securities Act, and was never submitted to the board of directors nor ratified by it. The shareholder further alleged that she purchased her stock without knowledge of the note and without knowledge of the facts that led to its execution. She also alleged that the corporation had valid defenses to the action, that she demanded that the corporation defend the action, and that it refused to do so. Although the trial court overruled plaintiff's demurrers to the application for leave to intervene, it denied the application, apparently on grounds that the complaint in intervention was insufficient. Intervener appealed from the order.

The court of appeal reversed the order, holding that intervener had established facts sufficient to permit her to intervene for the purpose of defending the action. Since the trial court had found the essentials of a case for the intervention in overruling plaintiff's demurrers, it must treat intervener's pleading as sufficient as a complaint in intervention (50 Cal. App. 2d 201, 203) .

Counsel should note that although both of the above cases were decided prior to the 1977 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 387, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in these cases are probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. Furthermore, the facts of these cases might also support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) since the entry of a judgment against the corporation would as a practical matter impair the shareholder's interest in the corporation, and the bad faith refusal of the officers and directors of the corporation to maintain or defend the action would provide the basis for an argument that the shareholder's interests are not being adequately represented by existing parties, thereby giving the shareholder a right to intervene in the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawCorporationsShareholdersShareholder Duties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.43

§ 124.43 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Parents of Students in School District Affected by School Reassignment Plan May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Plan

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [name of interveners] LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION BECAUSE, AS PARENTS OF STUDENTS ENROLLED IN THE SCHOOL DISTRICT, THEY WOULD BE DIRECTLY AFFECTED BY THE PROPOSED SCHOOL REASSIGNMENT PLAN, THE VALIDITY OF WHICH IS THE SUBJECT OF THE ACTION BEFORE THE COURT.

Parents of Students Enrolled in School District Affected by School Reassignment Plan May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Plan. Parents of students enrolled in a school district who would be directly affected by a school reassignment plan within the district have a sufficient interest in the matter in litigation to intervene under Section 387 of the Code of Civil Procedure in an action to determine validity of the plan (see Bustop v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 66, 70-73, 137 Cal. Rptr. 793).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) on the ground that interveners, as parents of students enrolled in a school district that would be affected by a school reassignment plan, have a direct interest in the matter in litigation and thus may intervene in an action to determine the validity of the plan. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment as authority for mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see the discussion in §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include discussion showing that the proposed interveners are parents of students who would be affected by the school district's reassignment plan.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Parents of Students Enrolled in School District Affected by School Reassignment Plan May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Plan

In Bustop v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 66, 137 Cal. Rptr. 793 , intervener petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate directing the trial court to grant its petition for leave to intervene pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 in an action on remand from the Supreme Court, directing the defendant school district in that action to prepare and implement a reasonably feasible desegregation plan and to submit it to the superior court for approval. The plan submitted included some mandatory reassignment of students to schools other than their so-called "neighborhood schools." Petitioner was a nonprofit corporation with a membership of 65,000 parents who resided in the school district. Its prime objective was the prevention of mandatory reassignment of students to schools other than those which they attended or chose to attend. Petitioner alleged that the Supreme Court, which had declared in its opinion that the district was segregated, did not require mandatory reassignment as a means to desegregate the district. Both plaintiffs and defendant in the underlying action objected to petitioner's intervention, although conceding that it represented a point of view that was entitled to be and should be heard. Plaintiffs argued that petitioners had no direct interest in the outcome of the action as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 387 since no student had a right to remain assigned to any particular school and that any reassignment as a result of the litigation would only be an indirect consequence of an order designed to protect the interests of the minority students. Defendant contended that petitioner's point of view had already been considered in the political process of formulating the plan and that the only issue before the court was whether the plan would satisfy the court. The trial court denied the petition to intervene on grounds that the court was limited to considering whether or not the plan presented to the court met the constitutional standards in response to the order of the Supreme Court, that defendant school district represented all the residents in the district, and that to permit intervention by this petitioner would open the way for a multitude of others to intervene. Petitioner then sought a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to grant leave to intervene.

The court of appeal reversed the order of the trial court. In doing so, the court found that petitioner satisfied the requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 387 that a person must have an interest in the litigation in order to intervene. The court held that reassignment of students to schools distant from their residences would have a direct social, educational, and economic impact on the students reassigned and their parents. The court stated that all students and parents, whatever their race, have an interest in a sound educational system and in the operation of that system in accordance of the law. That interest is no less significant when it is entangled with the constitutional claims of a racially defined class [citing Johnson v. San Francisco Unified School District (9th Cir. 1974) 500 F.2d 349, 353] . The court of appeal also rejected the trial court's reasoning that the school board represented all residents of the district. The court noted that the district had authored the very plan that petitioner claimed impaired their interest and had argued contrary to petitioner's position. Moreover, petitioner's interests were not represented by plaintiffs either, since plaintiffs represented only the interests of specific minority students (69 Cal. App. 3d 66, 70-71) .

Counsel should note that although the Bustop case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. It is unclear whether or not the facts of Bustop would support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). Although the facts of that case indicate that the intervener did have an interest in the litigation that was not adequately represented by the existing parties, there is some question as to whether or not that interest was of the type that is sufficient to permit intervention as a matter of right. In Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685 , the court of appeal suggested in dictum that general political or societal interests could only be the basis of permissive intervention within the trial court's broad discretion and that only a direct pecuniary interest forms the basis for mandatory intervention (107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115) . The court in Coalition for Fair Rent conceded that Bustop cast some shadow on the premise that more than general political interest is necessary for mandatory intervention; however, the court nevertheless distinguished Bustop on the ground, inter alia, that the interests of the parents in Bustop was more direct than that asserted by the proposed interveners in Coalition for Fair Rent (107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115-116) . In light of the current confused state of the case law, counsel should probably exercise caution in relying on cases such as Bustop to establish the grounds for intervention as a matter of right.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive InterventionsEducation LawAdministration & OperationSchool DistrictsAlteration

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.44

§ 124.44 Supporting Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation--Voters Who Participated in Efforts to Approve Ballot Measure May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Measure

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention under permissive intervention (see § 124.30) and with a form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of the contention that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation (see § 124.35).]

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [name of intervener] LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION BECAUSE, AS A VOTER WHO PARTICIPATED IN EFFORTS TO HAVE APPROVED THE BALLOT MEASURE THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THE ACTION BEFORE THE COURT, HE/SHE HAS AN INTEREST IN THE MATTER IN LITIGATION SUFFICIENT TO ALLOW HIM/HER TO INTERVENE.

Voters Who Participated in Efforts to Approve Ballot Measure May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Measure. Voters who participated in efforts to have a ballot measure approved by voters have sufficient interest in the matter in litigation and may properly intervene in an action to determine the validity of the measure (see Simac Design, Inc. v. Alciati (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 146, 152-153, 157, 154 Cal. Rptr. 676).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention), on the ground that the intervener has a direct interest in the matter in litigation and thus may properly intervene in an action to determine the validity of a ballot measure because he or she is a voter who participated in efforts to approve the measure. This form should be combined with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.30 and with the points and authorities set out in § 124.35.

Counsel may also wish to combine this form with the general form of memorandum of points and authorities set out in § 124.32, supporting mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on the ground that the intervener has an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may impair or impede that interest as a practical matter. For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment as authority for mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see the discussion in §§ 124.03[2][a] -124.03[3][a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the status of the intervening party as a person who actively participated in obtaining voter approval of a ballot measure and who seeks to intervene in an action to determine the validity of that measure.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for leave to file a cross complaint in intervention.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 124.49 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Voters Who Participated in Efforts to Approve Ballot Measure May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Measure

Simac Design, Inc. v. Alciati (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 146, 154 Cal. Rptr. 676 , involved two mandamus proceedings brought by separate owners of land to compel issuance of building permits and to take action on submitted applications for approval of subdivision maps. The city in which the property involved was located refused to take action in both matters. It cited two reasons for its refusal to take action. First, the city claimed that it was enjoined from taking any action regarding subdivision development pending a hearing in superior court concerning the city's failure to approve an open-space plan as required by statute. Second, the city claimed that it could not take action on the subdivision plans because of the passage of a growth control initiative measure. Plaintiff in the first action filed a petition for a writ of mandate to compel issuance of 11 building permits to plaintiff. After a hearing, the trial court granted the writ. Subsequently, interveners, an association of voters in the city who had drafted and organized voter support for the growth control measure, moved to set aside the judgment. The trial court denied the motion, and interveners appealed from the order denying its motion to set aside the judgment and from the judgment. The city did not appeal. In the second action, separate plaintiffs also filed a writ of mandate to compel the city to act on certain submitted subdivision map applications without regard to the growth control measure passed by the voters. At the hearing on the matter, an attorney representing several associations active in the controlled growth movement happened to be in court awaiting a hearing in connection with the first case. When he realized that the court was conducting a hearing on the second matter, he orally moved, in the presence of both parties, to allow the associations to intervene as defendants and real parties in interest. The trial court granted the oral motion to intervene, but nonetheless granted the writ sought by plaintiffs. Interveners also appealed from this order. As in the first case, the city did not appeal.

In the first action, the court of appeal reversed the judgment of the trial court. The court also held that interveners' motion to vacate the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 663 was proper. The court quoted former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)], stating that before trial, any person who has an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both, may intervene in the action or proceeding. However, the court said that a person who is not a party to the action as originally commenced or tried may intervene even after judgment by moving to vacate the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 663 (92 Cal. App. 3d 146, 152-153) . In the second action, the court, in modifying the judgment granting the writ, found no error in the trial court's having granted interveners' oral application to intervene in the action. The court held that the attorney's oral presentation of the facts concerning interveners' status as associations of voters in behalf of controlled growth and as a group of residents formed to preserve open space adequately informed the trial court and the other parties of the basis for the motion to intervene (92 Cal. App. 3d 146, 157) .

Counsel should note that in discussing the two actions in this case, the court of appeal never directly stated that interveners had the interest necessary to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387. In the first action, the court found that interveners were aggrieved parties within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 902, whose rights or interests were injuriously affected by the granting of the writ by the trial court and were therefore proper parties to appeal the order denying the motion to vacate the judgment. The court stated that an appellant's interest under Code Civ. Proc. § 902 must be immediate, pecuniary, and substantial, and not nominal or a remote consequence of the judgment (92 Cal. App. 3d 146, 153) . In the second action, the court, in responding to the argument that the trial court erred when it allowed intervention, discussed intervention only in the procedural context of intervention having been permitted pursuant to an oral application. However, implicit in the appellate court's determination that the trial court did not err when it allowed intervention on the basis of an oral motion is a determination that the interveners had adequately set forth the grounds on which intervention rested and that those grounds included the claim that interveners had a sufficient interest to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387.

Counsel should note that although the Simac case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendment of that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. It is unclear, however, whether or not the facts of Simac would support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). Although the interveners in that case could argue that they had an interest in the subject of the litigation that was not adequately represented by the existing parties, there is some question as to whether or not the type of interest claimed is sufficient to permit intervention as a matter of right. In Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685 , the court of appeal suggested in dictum that general political or societal interests could only be the basis of permissive intervention within the trial court's broad discretion and that only a direct pecuniary interest forms the basis for mandatory intervention (107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115) . It is not clear that the interveners in Simac had such a direct pecuniary interest in upholding the validity of the ballot measure. In light of the current confused state of the case law, counsel should probably exercise caution in relying on cases such as Simac to establish the grounds for intervention as a matter of right.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Voters Who Participated in Efforts to Approve Ballot Measure May Intervene in Action to Determine Validity of Measure

Baroldi v. Denni (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 472, 17 Cal. Rptr. 647 , arose out of an action by plaintiffs to enjoin defendant city clerk from filing with the defendant city council certain recall petitions allegedly obtained by fraud and misrepresentation. Permission was granted to allow a city councilman, voter, and signatory to the recall petition to intervene. On appeal by plaintiffs, the court of appeal rejected their claim that intervention was improper. The court concluded that intervener was an elector interested in the success of the very petition whose operation plaintiffs sought to annul. The purpose of intervention is to protect the interest of those who may be affected by the judgment; consequently, the trial court's action was not only proper, but imperative (197 Cal. App. 2d 472, 478) .

Counsel should note that although the above case was decided prior to the 1977 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 387, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. It is unclear, however, whether or not the facts of this case would support mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) [see § 124.44[3][a]].

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive InterventionsGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsElectionsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsElections

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.45

§ 124.45 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive or Mandatory Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), (b)]--Application to Intervene Not Timely

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____ _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR ORDER
Intervener.	)	GRANTING LEAVE TO FILE COMPLAINT IN IN-
	)	TERVENTION
	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 387]

_____

_____ [Name of intervener] SHOULD NOT BE GRANTED LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT HAS NOT MADE TIMELY APPLICATION TO THE COURT FOR AN ORDER GRANTING LEAVE TO INTERVENE IN THE ACTION BEFORE THE COURT.

A. Timely Application Required. Intervention may be permitted under either permissive or mandatory intervention only on timely application (see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a),(b)).

B. Application Not Made Within Reasonable Time. A right to intervene should be asserted within a reasonable time, and intervener must not be guilty of an unreasonable delay after knowledge of the suit (Allen v. California Water & Tel. Co. (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 104, 108, 187 P.2d 393).

[Optional] C. Intervention Must Not Retard or Delay Trial of Action. Intervention will not be allowed when it would retard the principal suit, require a reopening of the case for further evidence, delay the trial of the action, or change the position of the original parties (Willett v. Jordan (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 461, 465).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) or (b), on the ground that the application to intervene was not timely.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) or (b) supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 124.30 -124.33.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should indicate when application to the court was made, and argue that, under the circumstances, the application was untimely.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a demurrer to the complaint in intervention or a motion to strike the complaint in intervention.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Application Not Made Within Reasonable Time

Allen v. California Water & Tel. Co. (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 104, 187 P.2d 393 , arose out of an action by certain property owners for a declaration of rights concerning the extent of their paramount right to water for their respective parcels of land. A municipality, the principal customer of defendant water company, obtained an ex parte order granting leave to intervene in the action after the case had been decided in the trial court, appealed to the Supreme Court, and returned to the trial court for supplemental hearings reserved to the trial court relating to the amount of water defendant could export and various parties' rights to their respective shares of the water in question. The trial court restricted intervener's rights to raise any new issues, limiting it to those issues between the original parties left open by the Supreme Court. Plaintiff moved to strike the complaint in intervention, alleging that intervener had prior knowledge of the suit and its progress. Additionally, the action had received considerable local publicity. The trial court set aside its ex parte order granting leave to intervene and struck the complaint in intervention. Intervener then appealed from the orders denying intervention.

The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's orders on several grounds, including failure to file a timely complaint in intervention (31 Cal. 2d 104, 107) . Intervener had not made application to intervene before trial, as required by statute [relying on former Code Civ. Proc. § 387, amended by Stats. 1977, ch 450]. But aside from the statutory requirement, the Court held, a right to intervene must be asserted within a reasonable time and the intervener must not be guilty of an unreasonable delay after knowledge of the suit. The Court concluded that the intervener municipality had knowledge of the pendency of the suit, the issues involved, and the progress of the action. Moreover, the suit had received much local publicity. Nonetheless, intervener had waited until after the case had been tried, judgment entered, and the case appealed, before intervening upon remand to the trial court (31 Cal. 2d 104, 108) .

Counsel should note that the Allen case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendments to that section. Prior to 1977, Code Civ. Proc. § 387 required that an application for leave to intervene be made before trial. In 1977, the statute was amended to delete this requirement. Instead, both Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), governing permissive intervention, and Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), governing mandatory intervention, require that application for leave to intervene be "timely." There appear to be no reported appellate decisions since 1977 that construe the "timely application" requirement. However, because the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are otherwise virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387, the rule stated in the Allen case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. It is unclear if the standard set forth in Allen would apply to a determination of whether or not an application for leave to intervene as a matter of right under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) is timely.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

[b] Intervention Must Not Retard or Delay Trial of Action

Willett v. Jordan (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 461 , involved a proceeding in mandamus against the Secretary of State of California by petitioner, president of the state board of chiropractic examiners, to compel respondent to qualify an initiative measure relating to the practice of chiropractic for a place on the ballot at the next general election. Defendant had refused to place the measure on the ballot after an initial count, as indicated by the certificates of the various county clerks, showed that the petitions were several thousand signatures short of the required number. However, several days later, an amended figure was reported by one of the counties that then placed the total figures over the required number of signatures. Respondent refused to recognize the amended certificates without an order of court directing him to do so, on the ground that the amended certificates were not presented to his office within the time required by the state constitution. Petitioner then brought this suit. A licensed chiropractor filed a petition to intervene, alleging that the error in the count of petition signatures was not inadvertent and that 25 percent of the signatures covered by the amendment to the certificates were not of qualified electors of the county.

The Supreme Court, in granting the peremptory writ, dismissed the petition in intervention. The Court stated that the proposed intervener, by alleging that the total signatures were not legally sufficient to qualify the measure for the ballot on grounds separate from respondent's contentions would force the Court to order a reexamination of the records of the county in which the error in certification of the signatures occurred. This, the Court held, made the application for intervention impermissible, since it is the general rule that an intervention will not be allowed to take place when it would retard the principal suit, require a reopening of the case for further evidence, delay the trial of the action, or change the position of the original parties (1 Cal. 2d 461, 465) .

Counsel should note that the Willet case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendments to that section. Prior to 1977, Code Civ. Proc. § 387 required that an application for leave to intervene be made before trial. In 1977, the statute was amended to delete this requirement. In stead, both Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), governing permissive intervention, and Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), governing mandatory intervention, require that application for leave to intervene be "timely." There appear to be no reported appellate decisions since 1977 that construe the "timely application" requirement. However, because the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are otherwise virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387, the rule stated in the Willet case--that intervention may be denied if it will cause delay in the trial of the action--is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the amended statute. However, in California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266 , the court of appeal suggested that some of the factors mentioned in the Willet case may not be relevant to a determination of whether or not an application to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (mandatory intervention) is timely. In California Physicians' Service, the court of appeal had to determine whether or not the proposed interveners, who had admitted that their intervention would expand the issues in the case, met the requisites for mandatory intervention. Since the court determined that the interveners did not have the requisite interest in the action, the court did not directly consider the issue of timeliness of the application. The court stated in dictum, however, that the fact that intervention would add to the complexity of the action, create delay, or adversely affect the original parties would be of no moment when mandatory intervention is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96) . On the other hand, another court of appeal, in denying mandatory intervention, cited great delay and the necessity of starting new proceedings in the trial court as factors justifying the denial of mandatory intervention [see Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115-116 (distinguishing Bustop v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 66, 137 Cal. Rptr. 793)] Thus, it is uncertain whether or not delay in the proceedings is a proper consideration when determining the timeliness of a motion for leave to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b).

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendments, see § 124.03.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Timely Application Required

In Andersen v. Barton Memorial Hospital, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 678 , the court of appeal held that a decedent's heir could not intervene in a wrongful death action alleging medical negligence that had been timely filed by the remaining heirs. The intervenor sought to file her complaint in intervention after the period of limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5. The complaint tendered new claims and issues and, therefore, asserted a new cause of action (166 Cal. App. 3d 678, 685) . A complaint in intervention is subject to an affirmative defense based on the applicable statute of limitations and, if it asserts a new cause of action, the application for leave to amend must be filed within the pertinent limitations period (166 Cal. App. 3d 678, 682) .

[b] Application Not Made Within Reasonable Time

In Northern Cal. Psychiatric Society v. City of Berkeley (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 90, 223 Cal. Rptr. 609 , psychiatric associations and an individual psychiatrist and taxpayer brought an action against a city for declaratory and injunctive relief concerning a city ordinance banning the use of electroshock treatment on any person within the city. The court of appeal upheld the trial court's refusal to allow intervention by a coalition opposed to electroshock because the coalition had been involved in the lawsuit from the outset (having filed an amicus brief before the summary judgment motion was filed), yet did not attempt to intervene until after plaintiff's motion for summary judgment had been fully argued (178 Cal. App. 3d 90, 109) .

[c] Intervention Must Not Retard or Delay Trial of Action

In Hibernia etc. Society v. Churchill (1900) 128 Cal. 633, 61 P. 278 , defendant administrator sought to vacate a default judgment against her that was obtained by plaintiff on a note and mortgage executed by decedent. Intervener, an heir, obtained an ex parte order to file a complaint in intervention, which sought to dismiss the complaint. On motion of plaintiff, the complaint in intervention was dismissed. The Supreme Court upheld the dismissal, holding, among other things, that default was a trial and a final determination of the matters in issue. Consequently, to allow intervener to reopen the case was a violation of the general rule that intervention will not be allowed when it would retard the principal suit, require a reopening of the case for further evidence, delay the trial of the action, or change the position of the original parties (128 Cal. 633, 636) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive InterventionsCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionRight to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionTimeliness

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.46

§ 124.46 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive or Mandatory Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), (b)]--Intervener's Interests Adequately Represented by Existing Parties

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 124.45.]

_____ [Name of intervener] SHOULD NOT BE GRANTED LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION BECAUSE HIS/HER/ITS INTERESTS ARE ALREADY ADEQUATELY REPRESENTED IN THE ACTION BY _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT].

Intervener's Interests Adequately Represented by Existing Parties. Denial of intervention is proper when the proposed intervener's interests in the action are already being adequately represented by existing parties (see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b); Malibu v. California Coastal Comm'n (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 897, 906, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501 ; Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; Hausmann v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616-617, 29 Cal. Rptr. 75).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order for leave to file a complaint in intervention on the ground that the proposed intervener's interests are already being adequately represented by an existing party.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the interests of the proposed intervener and demonstrate that those interests are already being adequately represented by one of the original parties to the action.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) or (b) supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 124.30 -124.32.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a demurrer to the complaint in intervention or a motion to strike the complaint in intervention.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervener's Interests Adequately Represented by Existing Parties

In Malibu v. California Coastal Comm'n (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 897, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501 , a landowner's residence was situated on four contiguous beachfront lots, one of which was immediately to the west of the neighbors' house. The owner signed an offer to dedicate (OTD) easements that would have given the public vertical and lateral access to the shoreline. However, he subsequently claimed the OTDs were invalid. The neighbors asserted that they had satisfied the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) for mandatory intervention and alternatively that they should be granted permissive intervention under § 387(a).

The instant court, mindful that Code Civ. Proc. § 387 was to be liberally construed to permit intervention, held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying intervention. The neighbors and the executive had identical interests in preventing members of the public from accessing areas adjacent to their properties. The neighbors could only speculate that the public would trespass and litter on the portion of the beach that the neighbors owned, thereby affecting their quiet enjoyment of their property. The owner had been an able advocate of his and the neighbors' position in attempting to prevent public use of the easements (128 Cal. App. 4th 897, 906) .

The facts and procedural background of Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685 , are discussed in § 124.50[3][b].

In Coalition for Fair Rent, interveners, an association of apartment owners, and several individual apartment owners sought to intervene on behalf of the defendant city clerk in an action brought by plaintiffs to compel defendant to accept and count a supplemental petition of signatures necessary to qualify a rent control measure for the next general election. Interveners alleged, among other things, that defendant did not adequately represent its interests in the matter.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of intervention and, addressing itself to the issue of inadequacy of representation, found no difference between the positions of defendant and interveners. Moreover, the court said, interveners' insinuations that because of budgetary and time constraints the quality of defendants' legal representation was inferior to that commanded by interveners, even if true, were not relevant under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). The question of law was identity of interest, and the question of bias for or against a specific ballot measure in issue would not affect the general question of administration of the initiative procedure (107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115) .

The facts and procedural background of Hausmann v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 29 Cal. Rptr. 75 , are discussed in § 124.48[3][a]. In Hausmann, the court stated that intervention would be properly denied in an action when the intervener's interests are already being adequately represented in that action. Since intervener, an insurer, did not claim any collusion between the original parties that would deprive insurer of its share of any judgment recovered, nor did it suggest that its interests would not be competently represented by the insured, the court suggested that on retrial the trial court take this into consideration in determining whether or not intervention should be permitted, if requested (213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616, 617) .

Counsel should note that although the Hausmann case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendments to that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the statement in this case that intervention may be denied if the intervener's interest is adequately represented by the original parties is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. With regard to mandatory intervention, Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) expressly provides that there is no right to intervene if the proposed intervener's interest is adequately represented by existing parties.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendments, see § 124.03.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervener's Interest Adequately Represented by Existing Parties

Green v. Community Redevelopment Agency (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 491, 158 Cal. Rptr. 126 , arose out of an action by plaintiffs against a city redevelopment agency seeking invalidation of a district redevelopment plan. A special summons required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 861.1 and 863 was published, advising "all persons interested" to appear and answer within a certain date. Several months after the last day specified for a third party to join in the action, an intervener filed a notice of motion to intervene as a matter of right. The trial court denied the motion as untimely. The court of appeal affirmed, stating in dictum that even if intervener had sufficient interest under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), and even if Code Civ. Proc. §§ 860-870 did not provide for an exclusive remedy for intervention in matters involving the validity of an action by a public agency, he had not brought himself sufficiently within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). Intervener, said the court, sought the same relief as plaintiffs, and many of his claims and legal arguments were also the same. Therefore, concluded the court, intervener's interests were adequately represented by existing parties (96 Cal. App. 3d 491, 501) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionPermissive InterventionsCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionRight to Intervene

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.47

§ 124.47 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervention Enlarges Scope of Action

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 124.45.]

_____ [Name of intervener] SHOULD NOT BE GRANTED LEAVE TO FILE HIS/HER/ITS COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION, BECAUSE IT ENLARGES THE SCOPE OF THE ACTION BY _____ [RAISING NEW ISSUES and/or ENLARGING THE SCOPE OF THE REMEDY SOUGHT BY PLAINTIFF].

A. Intervention Must Not Enlarge Scope of Action. Intervention should not be permitted when the complaint in intervention enlarges the scope of the action (see Lindsay-Strathmore Irr. Dist. v. Wutchumna Water Co. (1931) 111 Cal. App 707, 712, 296 P 942).

[Optional] B. Intervention Must Not Raise New Issues. A person seeking to file a complaint in intervention must ordinarily show an interest under the existing pleadings or issues and will not be allowed to intervene on a claim that enlarges the issues and changes the nature of the main proceeding (Muller v. Robinson (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 511, 515, 345 P.2d 25).

[Optional] C. Intervention Must Not Enlarge Scope of Remedy Sought by Plaintiff. An intervener may not broaden the scope of the procedure or remedy sought by the original plaintiff (City of San Diego v. Otay Municipal Water Dist. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 672, 680, 681, 19 Cal. Rptr. 595).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) when the opposing party contends that intervention will enlarge the scope of the action. Optional Paragraph B may be included when the opposing party contends that intervention will enlarge the scope of the action by raising new legal or factual issues. Optional Paragraph C may be included when the opposing party contends that intervention will enlarge the scope of the remedy sought by plaintiff.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the intervener's complaint in intervention and show that it seeks to enlarge the scope of the action by raising new issues or to broaden the scope of the procedure or remedy available to plaintiff.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 124.30, 124.34.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a demurrer to the complaint in intervention or a motion to strike the complaint in intervention.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Must Not Enlarge Scope of Action

In Lindsay-Strathmore Irr. Dist. v. Wutchumna Water Co. (1931) 111 Cal. App 707, 296 P 942 , petitioner sought a writ of mandate in superior court to compel the delivery of water proportionate to its share of stock in the respondent water company. Petitioner alleged that it had constructed a side ditch for the purpose of receiving its share of the water flowing from the Wutchumna Ditch and its tributary waterways, but that the water company refused to deliver the water. Certain third-party water users sought, by leave of court, to file a complaint in intervention, claiming that they were owners of land that were riparian to one of the tributary waterways running parallel with the ditch and whose land was situated below the point where the constructed side ditch and the ditch flowed into the main canal. Interveners further claimed that they required the full flow of water of the particular waterway that their lands were riparian to, including additional water provided through seepage from the main canal. Petitioner, interveners alleged, intended to obtain its claimed water out of the Wutchumna Ditch at a point above petitioner's land. If it were permitted to do so, interveners claimed, they would be deprived of their long-standing rights to the full flow of water of the tributary waterway for irrigation purposes. Interveners requested the court to enjoin petitioner from taking any water from the ditch above their lands. The trial court denied the motion to intervene, and interveners appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of the trial court, holding that the general rule that interveners are not to be permitted to enlarge the scope of the action was applicable. Interveners, the court found, had no direct interest in the action by petitioner who sought to enforce its rights as a shareholder in the water company. Nor did they attempt to attach petitioner's right to receive the benefits it sought. Therefore, concluded the court, the proposed complaint in intervention, if allowed to be filed, would have enlarged the scope of the action by adding the general issue of title to the water to the domestic issue of the right of the shareholder in a corporation (111 Cal. App 707, 712) .

Counsel should note that although the Lindsay-Strathmore case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendments to that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the rule stated in this case that intervention must not enlarge the scope of the action is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, in one recent case, the court suggested that although the rule that intervention must not enlarge the scope of the action is still applicable to permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), that rule may not apply to mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). In California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266 , the court of appeal noted that prior to the 1977 amendments, case law applying Code Civ. Proc. § 387 had developed the principle that intervention was largely in the discretion of the trial court, to be exercised according to the facts of the particular case. The court further noted that reported decisions that deal with the exercise of that discretion further refined the principle to provide that the issues must not be enlarged by the intervention (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 95) . The court observed that the effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 was to retain a permissive intervention couched in language almost identical to that of the former statute and to create a right to intervene under certain circumstances. The court stated that since the intervener in that case admitted that its intervention in the case would expand the issues in litigation and impinge on the right of the original parties to litigate the matter in their own fashion, the intervener would be hard put to argue that the trial court was guilty of an abuse of discretion in denying permissive intervention. Thus, the court stated, the issue was whether or not intervener met the qualifications for mandatory intervention. Since the court concluded that intervener lacked the requisite interest in the litigation, the court held that mandatory intervention was not proper (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96-98) . The court stated in dictum, however, that if intervener otherwise met the qualifications for mandatory intervention, the fact that the intervention would add to the complexity of the action, create delay, or adversely affect the original parties would be of no moment (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96) . Thus, it is unclear whether or not the fact that intervention would enlarge the scope of the action is relevant to a determination of whether or not mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) is proper.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendments, see § 124.03.

[b] Intervention Must Not Raise New Issues

Muller v. Robinson (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 511, 345 P.2d 25 , arose out of an action by plaintiff to quiet title in certain property against several defendants. Intervener, plaintiff's former husband, sought to be joined as a party defendant in the action, to consolidate his action against plaintiff in another action with the present action, and to intervene, claiming that he was the owner of a 1/6 undivided equitable interest in the real property that was the subject of the action, and that such interest was stolen from him by plaintiff and formed the basis of an illegal default judgment against him. Intervener requested in his complaint in intervention a cancellation of the deed procured by plaintiff and annulment of the judgment granting her the deed. The trial court denied all of intervener's motions, and intervener appealed from the denial.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of leave to intervene, as well as the other motions. As to intervention, the court held that a person seeking intervention must ordinarily show an interest under the existing pleadings and issues, and will not be allowed to come in on a claim that enlarges the issues and changes the nature of the main proceeding. The court found that under previous proceedings involving plaintiff and intervener, plaintiff's decree quieting title in the property in question remained in full force and effect. Consequently, the court concluded, the trial court was amply justified in denying intervention, since intervener did not have an interest in the matter in litigation of a direct and immediate character. To have permitted intervention under the circumstances would have greatly enlarged the issues (174 Cal. App. 2d 511, 515, 516) .

Counsel should note that although the Muller case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendments to that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. For a discussion of whether or not the rule that intervention must not enlarge the issues in the action is applicable when mandatory intervention is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see § 124.47[3][a].

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendments, see § 124.03.

[c] Intervention Must Not Enlarge Scope of Remedy Sought by Plaintiff

City of San Diego v. Otay Municipal Water Dist. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 672, 19 Cal. Rptr. 595 , involved an action by plaintiff city for declaratory relief to enjoin defendant water district from operating within the city. Three property owners sought to intervene to declare invalid earlier proceedings taken by defendant in creating an improvement district that included their property. Plaintiff claimed that under the state constitution, a municipality had the right to establish and own water systems, and that under plaintiff's charter, the water district could not operate any water system for the use of the city's residents without plaintiff's consent. The improvement district established by defendants included land subsequently annexed by plaintiff. This land also included the property of interveners. Interveners claimed that the proceedings taken to form the improvement district did not conform to the requirements of the applicable law and that the provisions establishing the district denied them due process of law. The trial court granted the injunction, but made no rulings on the complaint in intervention. The court denied interveners' motion for a new trial. Both defendant and interveners appealed.

The court of appeal, in modifying the judgment concerning the extent of the injunction granted, affirmed the judgment of the trial court denying intervener's motion for a new trial. Addressing itself to the issue of intervention, the court held that proceedings by plaintiff were restrictive in nature, seeking to enjoin defendants from taking certain action, and based on provisions of its charter, and that therefore interveners were not entitled to intervene. The court said that to have allowed intervention would have broadened the scope of the remedy sought by plaintiff, and under the general rule, such intervention is not permitted. The court stated that the action commenced by plaintiff city was limited to a consideration of the effect of the city's charter provision on the authority of the water district to operate a water system within the city and to furnish water to inhabitants of the city. The remedy sought by plaintiff was to enjoin defendant water improvement district from operating within the city and from furnishing water to the city's inhabitants. Interveners' remedy was, in effect, an annulment of the improvement district. Interveners, by their complaint in intervention, attacked the district's validity on grounds that it had failed to comply with the law under which it purportedly was incorporated, and that the law itself was unconstitutional (200 Cal. App. 2d 672, 680-681) .

Counsel should note that although the Otay case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendments to that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the holding in this case that intervention must not broaden the scope of the remedy sought by plaintiff is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. For a discussion of whether or not the rule applied in this case is applicable when mandatory intervention is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see § 124.47[3][a].

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendments, see § 124.03.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedureParties InterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedureParties InterventionPermissive Interventions

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.48

§ 124.48 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervention Would Prejudice Original Parties

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 124.45.]

_____ [Name of intervener] SHOULD NOT BE GRANTED LEAVE TO FILE HIS/HER/ITS COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION, BECAUSE INTERVENTION WOULD UNDULY PREJUDICE THE RIGHTS OF THE ORIGINAL PARTIES.

Intervention Would Unduly Prejudice Rights of Original Parties. Intervention may be denied if the objectives of the statute, namely, the protection of the interests of those who may be affected by the judgment, are outweighed by the rights of the original parties to conduct their lawsuit on their own terms. Thus, intervention may be denied when it will unduly delay or prejudice the rights of the original parties (see Hausmann v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615-616, 29 Cal. Rptr. 75).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) when the opposing party contends that intervention would unduly prejudice the rights of existing parties.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should include discussion of the relevant facts showing how intervention would unduly prejudice the rights of the original parties.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) supported by the points and authorities set out in § 124.30.

[i] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a demurrer to the complaint in intervention or a motion to strike the complaint in intervention.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Would Unduly Prejudice Rights of Original Parties

In Hausmann v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 29 Cal. Rptr. 75 , plaintiff filed an action against certain defendants for personal injuries to himself and his family as well as for damages to his automobile. The trial court granted ex parte leave to plaintiff's insurance company to intervene. Intervener justified its proposed intervention on the ground that it was a partial subrogee of plaintiff, since as insurer of plaintiff it had already expended certain sums for repair of the damaged automobile. Plaintiff demurred to the complaint in intervention on the ground that no cause of action was stated, presumably because it did not show that intervener was a partial subrogee at the time plaintiff filed the action. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. Intervener appealed from the judgment of dismissal that followed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment of the trial court on the ground that intervener should have been given the opportunity to amend its complaint in intervention to satisfy the requirement that intervener's interest had to have been in the matter in litigation at the time the suit was filed. Addressing itself to the issue of prejudice to the original parties by the intervention, the court of appeal stated that it was well settled that intervention may be denied if the objectives of the statute governing intervention, namely, the protection of the interests of those who may be affected by the judgment, are outweighed by the rights of the original parties to conduct their lawsuit on their own terms (213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615) . The court observed that intervention would be properly denied when it would unduly delay or prejudice the rights of the original parties (213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616) .

Counsel should note that although the Hausmann case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to the 1977 amendments to that section, the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) are virtually identical to those of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 and thus the rule stated in this case that intervention may be denied if it will prejudice the rights of the original parties to the action is probably still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, in one recent case, the court suggested that although the rule that intervention must not prejudice the rights of the original parties is still applicable to permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), that rule may not apply to mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). In California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266 , the court of appeal noted that prior to the 1977 amendments, case law applying Code Civ. Proc. § 387 had developed the principle that intervention was largely in the discretion of the trial court, to be exercised according to the facts of the particular case. The court further noted that reported decisions that deal with the exercise of that discretion further refined the principle to provide that the reasons for intervention must outweigh the rights of the original parties to litigate in their own way (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 95) . The court observed that the effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 was to retain a permissive intervention couched in language almost identical to that of the former statute and to create a right to intervene under certain circumstances. The court stated that since the intervener in that case admitted that its intervention in the case would expand the issues in litigation and impinge on the right of the original parties to litigate the matter in their own fashion, the intervener would be hard put to argue that the trial court was guilty of an abuse of discretion in denying permissive intervention. Thus, the court stated, the issue was whether or not intervener met the qualifications for mandatory intervention. Since the court concluded that intervener lacked the requisite interest in the litigation, the court held that mandatory intervention was not proper (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96-98) . The court stated in dictum, however, that if intervener otherwise met the qualifications for mandatory intervention, the fact that the intervention would add to the complexity of the action, create delay, or adversely affect the original parties would be of no moment (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96) . Thus, it is unclear if the fact that intervention would prejudice the rights of the original parties is relevant to a determination of whether or not mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) is proper.

For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that section prior to the 1977 amendments, see § 124.03.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervention Would Unduly Prejudice Rights of Original Parties

In Kuperstein v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 598, 251 Cal. Rptr. 385 , petitioner sought a writ of mandate to review a trial court order permitting his insurer to intervene in a products liability action brought against petitioner. The insurer disputed whether its business policy covered the claim against petitioner and, in moving to intervene, sought a declaration of rights and duties under the policy. Holding that the trial court abused its discretion in permitting intervention, the court of appeal set out the three factors to be considered in deciding whether permissive intervention is proper: (1) the intervenor must have a direct interest in the lawsuit, (2) the intervenor must not enlarge the issues raised by the original parties, and (3) the intervenor must not tread on the rights of the original parties to conduct their own lawsuit (204 Cal. App. 3d 598, 600) . The court found that none of the factors were satisfied. In its discussion of the rights of the original parties, the court observed that there were questions of fact and law common to the main complaint and the complaint in intervention. However, the court found that the insurer's interest was in having no connection between the product and the place of business covered by the policy, while the interest of the insured, who wanted the insurance to cover any judgment against him, was just the opposite. Whenever an insurer disputes coverage after a claim is made, the court concluded, the insurer and insured do not share an interest in having factual issues resolved the same way. Therefore, the court concluded, intervention is improper because it necessarily injects the possibility the defendants will not be able to conduct the lawsuit on their own terms (204 Cal. App. 3d 598, 600-601) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

170 of 172 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.49

§ 124.49 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Permissive Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)]--Intervener Has Only Consequential Rather Than Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 124.45.]

_____ [Name of intervener] SHOULD NOT BE GRANTED LEAVE TO FILE A COMPLAINT IN INTERVENTION, BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT HAS ONLY A CONSEQUENTIAL INTEREST IN THE MATTER IN LITIGATION AND WILL NEITHER GAIN NOR LOSE BY THE DIRECT LEGAL OPERATION AND EFFECT OF THE JUDGMENT TO BE RENDERED IN THE ACTION BEFORE THE COURT.

A. Proposed Intervener Must Have Interest in Matter in Litigation. A person may not intervene under Section 387(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure unless he or she has an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both (see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)).

B. Intervener Has Only Consequential Rather Than Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation. A third person having an interest in the outcome of the litigation in a pending action but who would not be directly affected by the legal operation and effect of any judgment in that case does not have a direct interest but a mere consequential interest in the matter in litigation and therefore may not intervene (see Royal Indem. Co. v. United Enterprises, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 194, 212, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 481 ; California Assn. of Professional Scientists v. Schwarzenegger (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 371, 381 ; City and County of San Francisco v. California (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1038-1039, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 722 ; Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 664-665, 91 P.2d 599 ; Mary R v. B & R Corp. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 308, 314-315, 196 Cal. Rptr. 871 ; Socialist Workers etc. Committee v. Brown (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 879, 891, 125 Cal. Rptr. 915).

[Optional] C. Intervener Does Not Have Interest in Matter in Litigation in Suit as Originally Brought. The interest that a third party must have in order to intervene in a pending action between other parties must be in the matter in litigation in the suit as originally brought (see Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 664-665, 91 P.2d 599 ; People v. Brophy (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 15, 34, 120 P.2d 946).

[Optional] D. Precedential Effect of Judgment on Persons Similarly Situated. The effect of a judgment concerning judicial interpretation of legislation may serve as a precedent in a subsequent action against persons similarly situated and may give them an interest in the action; however, that interest is not direct but merely consequential (Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 664, 91 P.2d 599).

[Optional] E. Unsecured Creditor. A third person seeking to intervene in a pending action under Section 387 of the Code of Civil Procedure must have an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, that is of a direct and immediate character greater than that possessed by a simple creditor of a party (see Olson v. Hopkins (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 638, 641-642, 75 Cal. Rptr. 33).

[Optional] F. Court-Awarded Attorney's Fees. An attorney may not intervene in an action in which the attorney was awarded attorney's fees for services rendered in order to settle a fee dispute, even when in the trial court's discretion the fees are made payable to the attorney, since these fees are granted to the client and not to the attorney, and the awarding of the fees do not give an attorney an interest in the matter in litigation, or in success of either of the parties, or an interest against both that would permit him or her to intervene (see Meadow v. Superior Court (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 610, 615-616, 30 Cal. Rptr. 824, 381 P.2d 648).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (governing permissive intervention) on the ground that the proposed intervener has only a consequential interest in the matter in litigation. Optional Paragraph C may be included when the proposed intervener does not have a direct interest in the action as originally brought. Optional Paragraph D may be included when the interest asserted by the proposed intervener is merely in avoiding an unfavorable legal precedent, optional Paragraph E may be included if the proposed intervener is merely a simple, unsecured creditor of one of the parties, and optional Paragraph F may be included when an attorney seeks to intervene in his or her client's action to settle a fee dispute.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of the relevant facts concerning the proposed intervener's interest in the action and show that he or she would neither gain nor lose by the direct effect and legal operation of any judgment to be rendered in the action before the court.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 124.30, 124.35 -124.44.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a demurrer to the complaint in intervention or a motion to strike the complaint in intervention.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervener Has Only Consequential Rather Than Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

Royal Indem. Co. v. United Enterprises, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 194, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 481 was an insurance coverage action in which plaintiff insurer sued its insured for declaratory relief that it should not be obligated to provide coverage under a policy from the 1960's, purchased by defendant for its business that was operated on land it formerly owned. Defendant had operated a trap and skeet shooting range on the property, and the property became contaminated. The current owner of the property, Flat Rock Land Co., filed a motion to intervene in the action, alleging it had a direct and immediate interest in the litigation within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) because coverage issues determined in that action would affect its rights to pursue the insurer as a judgment creditor of defendant. Flat Rock had also sued the former owner of the property and other parties in federal and state courts to recover the costs of the environmental clean-up. The trial court denied Flat Rock's motion to intervene, and Flat Rock appealed, arguing it had a legitimate interest in making coverage arguments that might affect its chances to recover damages from defendant United.

The court of appeals affirmed, holding that Flat Rock had not shown it met the criteria for intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a). The court reviewed the criteria for permissive intervention: (1) the proper procedures have been followed; (2) the nonparty has a direct and immediate interest in the action; (3) the intervention will not enlarge the issues in the litigation; and (4) the reasons for the intervention outweigh any opposition by the parties presently in the action. The court noted that a third party who is not in privity of contract with an insurer would ordinarily lack standing to sue the insurer to resolve coverage questions. The primary exception to this rule is where the third party is a judgment creditor under Ins. Code § 11580. Because Flat Rock was not an insured under the policy, it lacked an adequately direct interest to obtain intervention in the coverage action. It was not a judgment creditor, nor was it an assignee of the defendant insured's rights (162 Cal. App. 4th 194, 212) .

In California Assn. of Professional Scientists v. Schwarzenegger (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 371 , the court considered whether the California Public Employment Relations Board had a sufficiently direct interest as to warrant intervention into a proceeding brought by the California Association of Professional Scientists (CAPS) challenging the creation of an alternate retirement program that applies to certain new state employees during their first two years of employment; CAPS challenged the law as it applies to new employees in the bargaining unit that CAPS represents, contending the law impermissibly impairs the pension rights of those employees as secured by the collective bargaining agreement between CAPS and the state. While the case was under submission to the trial court, the Public Employment Relations Board (the Board) sought to intervene, claiming it had exclusive jurisdiction over the matter. The trial court denied the Board's application, and the Board challenges that ruling on appeal.

The appellate court noted that the interest the Board sought to assert was its interest in protecting its own exclusive initial jurisdiction over alleged violations of the Dills Act, which accords collective bargaining rights to state civil service employees; indeed, the only forum to pursue a cause of action for violation of the statutory rights conferred in the Dills Act is before the Board. Here, the Board contended that CAPS's complaint alleges conduct by the state that arguably violated two provisions of the Dills Act. However, the court found that the Board's claim that it had a direct and immediate interest in this case because it has the exclusive initial jurisdiction to act on alleged violations of the Dills Act misapprehends the gravamen of CAPS's complaint, which was not that the state committed an unfair labor practice in violation of the Dills Act by unilaterally changing employee retirement provisions without notice to CAPS (137 Cal. App. 4th 371, 381) . Rather, the gravamen of CAPS's complaint is that the new law, as applied to employees in CAPS's bargaining unit, impermissibly conflicts with the terms of the agreement and therefore violates the state and federal constitutional prohibitions against impairing the obligations of contracts. Because that issue is not within the scope of the Board's exclusive jurisdiction, it has no direct or immediate interest in this action, and thus was properly denied the opportunity to intervene CAPS (137 Cal. App. 4th 371, 382) .

In City and County of San Francisco v. California (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 722 , two consolidated cases challenged the applicability and constitutionality of laws defining marriage in California as between a man and a woman [Fam. Code §§ 300, 301, 308.5]. The Proposition 22 Legal Defense and Education Fund was created to defend the Family Code's definition of marriage, and moved to intervene in those cases. The Fund contended the founder of the fund and the campaign organizers it represents gained a direct interest in litigation challenging section 308.5 and "as a result of investing their personal reputation and considerable time and efforts" toward passage of Proposition 22, since a judgment ruling the statute invalid "would effectively nullify their efforts and harm their reputation." The Fund also asserted that, independent of the interests of its members, it has a sufficient interest to permit intervention because a ruling declaring section 308.5 unconstitutional, or limiting its application, might damage the Fund's reputation and decrease the organization's ability to attract support and contributions. The trial court denied permissive intervention and the Fund appealed.

In affirming the trial court's decision to deny the Fund's intervention, the court noted that the Fund itself played no role in sponsoring Proposition 22 because the Fund was created after passage of that initiative (128 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1038) . Assuming that the Fund could intervene as a representative of members who worked for the initiative, the Fund had not met the requirements of Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) by alleging a tangible harm absent intervention, as opposed to a political or philosophical interest. The Fund did not claim that a ruling about the constitutionality of denying marriage licenses to same-sex couples would impair or invalidate the existing marriages of its members, or affect the rights of its members to marry persons of their choice in the future. Nor had the fund identified any diminution in legal rights, property rights, or freedoms that an unfavorable judgment might impose on its 15,000 financial contributors or on the Californians who voted for Proposition 22 (128 Cal. App. 4th 1030, 1039) .

Each of the following cases was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to its 1977 amendments. Because the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), cases that permitted intervention under the former statute appear to be still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, it is not clear whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner that it was prior to the 1977 amendments. Thus, counsel should probably exercise some caution in relying on the cases cited in this form. For a discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that statute prior to the 1977 amendment, see § 124.03.

Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 91 P.2d 599 , arose out of an action to restrain defendant Director of Agriculture from enforcing against plaintiffs certain provisions of the Agricultural Code and the marketing plans for stabilization of the milk industry as formulated by defendant pursuant to the Agricultural Code. Plaintiffs were producers, distributors, and consumers of milk within the area affected by the marketing plan. Appellants, also distributors of milk within the affected area, petitioned the trial court for leave to intervene. Their petition was granted, and they filed a complaint in intervention that both plaintiffs and defendant moved the trial court to strike. The trial court granted those motions, and appellants appealed from that order, contending that, like plaintiffs, they had an interest in the matter in litigation, since they were opposed to the particular chapter of the Agricultural Code that was in issue, as well as to the marketing plan formulated pursuant to that chapter. They also contended that they had an interest in the success of plaintiffs and these interests entitled them to intervene pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the trial court. The Court based its decision on a series of cases that held that the necessary interest of a third person seeking to intervene must be direct and not consequential, and of such a direct and immediate character that the intervener will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment (13 Cal. 2d 661, 663) . That interest, stated the Court, must be in the matter in litigation, which in the present case was an action to determine whether defendant should be enjoined from enforcing against plaintiffs, certain provisions of the Agricultural Code. The Court concluded that any judgment rendered would therefore have no direct effect whatever on any person, other than the parties to the action. If the judgment is in favor of plaintiff, defendant would be enjoined in regard to plaintiffs only, but against no other person, including interveners. If judgment is in favor of defendant, then he would be free to enforce the provision in regard to plaintiffs. Appellants would not be affected one way or the other; consequently, they would not gain or lose by the direct operation and legal effect of the judgment, even though they had an interest in the outcome of the litigation. Because their interest was a mere consequential interest in the matter in litigation, they were not entitled to intervene under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 (13 Cal. 2d 661, 664-665) .

Jersey Maid was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to its 1977 amendments. However, Mary R v. B & R Corp. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 308, 314-315, 196 Cal. Rptr. 871 (discussed infra), which was decided after the 1977 amendments, cites Jersey Maid in making its holding. It therefore appears that Jersey Maid is still good law, but counsel should still exercise caution in using pre-1977 cases that hold specific types of interest to be merely consequential.

Mary R v. B & R Corp. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 308, 196 Cal. Rptr. 871 , arose out of an action against a physician for repeatedly molesting a patient who was 14 years old at the time of the events. The action was dismissed by stipulation, and the trial court had issued an order sealing the court records and directing the parties and their agents or representatives never to discuss the case with anyone. After dismissal of the action, the Division of Medical Quality (hereinafter, Division) received a complaint concerning the conduct of the physician which had been the basis of the action. Plaintiff in the underlying action stated that she would furnish information to the Division if not prohibited by the court. When the trial court refused the Division's request to rescind the sealing and gag order without consent of the physician, the Division moved to intervene in the already dismissed suit, alleging that the court's sealing and gag order prevented it from fulfilling its statutory responsibility to investigate and prosecute violations of the Medical Practices Act. The trial court denied intervention and refused to modify its orders. The Division appealed the denial.

The court of appeal upheld the portion of the trial court's ruling denying intervention. The court stated that a government entity has no more right to intervene in the litigation of others than has any other private party (149 Cal. App. 3d 308, 314) . The court cited a series of cases, including Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 663, 91 P.2d 599 (discussed above), for the following characterization of the nature of the interest required for intervention. The court stated that a party must have either an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of one of the parties to the action, or an interest against both of them. This interest must be direct and not consequential, and it must be an interest which is properly determined in the action in which the intervention is sought. The interest must be in the matter in litigation and of such a direct and immediate character that the intervenor will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation of the judgment (149 Cal. App. 3d 308, 314-315) . Regarding the case before it, the court noted that the Division's interest arose solely from the overbroad effect of the ancillary gag and sealing order of the trial court in the original action. The court held that this interest was merely consequential. Thus, although Code Civ. Proc. § 387 should be liberally construed in favor of intervention, the trial court had properly denied the Division's request to intervene (149 Cal. App. 3d 308, 315) . The court of appeal then struck the trial court's gag and sealing order and remanded the case for further proceedings on that order (149 Cal. App. 3d 308, 317) .

Socialist Workers etc. Committee v. Brown (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 879, 125 Cal. Rptr. 915 , involved two actions by plaintiff and others against the California Secretary of State and the local city attorney to enjoin enforcement against plaintiff campaign committee of certain provisions of the Campaign Disclosure Act and the Political Reform Act requiring disclosure of names, addresses, and other information regarding persons and businesses making contributions exceeding a certain amount to a political campaign. Common Cause and its California chairperson obtained an ex parte order allowing them to intervene in the action. Proposed interveners contended that Common Cause, as an organization working for improvement of political and governmental institutions and processes, had a direct interest in laws relating to the reporting and public disclosure of those who make political contributions for the purpose of influencing elections. On entering the case, interveners filed an answer to the complaint. Plaintiffs moved to vacate the order granting intervention and to strike the answer in intervention, on the ground that interveners lacked the requisite direct interest in the outcome of the litigation. The trial court granted plaintiffs' motion, and interveners appealed from the orders of the trial court.

The court of appeal affirmed the orders of the trial court, holding that interveners failed to show that they possessed the requisite direct interest in the subject matter of plaintiffs' action to enjoin enforcement of the Campaign Disclosure Act against plaintiffs. The court stated that the interest required under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 must be direct and not consequential and must be of such a direct and immediate character that the intervener will either gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment that may be rendered. At pages 891-892, the court concluded that in this case any judgment rendered in the action would have no direct effect whatever on any person other than the parties to the action; therefore, intervener's interest was not a direct but a mere consequential interest in the matter in litigation [citing Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 664, 91 P.2d 599 (discussed above)].

[b] Intervener Does Not Have Interest in Matter in Litigation in Suit as Originally Brought

Both of the following cases were decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to its 1977 amendments. Because the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), cases that permitted intervention under the former statute appear to be still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, it is not completely clear whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner that it was prior to the 1977 amendments. Thus, counsel should probably exercise some caution in relying on the cases cited in this form. For a discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that statute prior to 1977, see § 124.03.

The facts and procedural background of Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 91 P.2d 599 , are found in § 124.49[3][a].

In Jersey Maid, appellants, who were distributors of milk within an area affected by the State Department of Agriculture's enforcement of certain provisions of the Agricultural Code, attempted to intervene in an action brought by other milk distributors in the same affected area to prohibit the Director of Agriculture from enforcing those provisions in regard to them. The Supreme Court, in affirming the trial court's order striking the complaints in intervention, held, among other things, that the interest that entitles a party to intervene in an action between other parties must be in the matter in litigation in the suit as originally brought. In the present action, the Court said, the matter in litigation in the suit as originally brought was whether or not defendant should be enjoined from enforcing the terms of the particular chapter of the Agricultural Code against plaintiffs. Interveners, observed the court, did not claim to be stockholders, or owners of any interest in the property of any of the plaintiffs, and did not have any interest in defendant. Consequently, the Court concluded, appellants had no direct interest in the matter in litigation in the action and therefore had no right to intervene under former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)] (13 Cal. 2d 661, 664-665) .

People v. Brophy (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 15, 120 P.2d 946 , arose out of an indictment against defendant by the People for perjury. The basis of the indictment was two affidavits by defendant filed by him in an injunction suit against the telephone company to restrain it from removing telephones and discontinuing service for alleged aiding and abetting of illegal bookmaking on horse races. The telephone company had, in apparent response to a letter from the attorney general of the state, begun to discontinue service to defendant, plaintiff in the injunction action. After defendant filed his injunction action, the City of Los Angeles and the state attorney general filed, by leave of court, complaints in intervention in the injunction action, alleging that they had an interest in the matter in litigation in that they had a duty to enforce the laws and that the granting of the injunction to plaintiff would aid and assist him in violating the laws against gambling. Defendant, as plaintiff in the injunction action, had filed two affidavits in which he denied any participation in bookmaking activities through the use of the telephone equipment supplied by respondent telephone company. The trial court in the injunction action denied defendant's motion to vacate the orders granting leave to intervene and dissolved the temporary restraining order it had previously issued against the telephone company. Subsequently, the People brought the present criminal action against defendant. On conviction, defendant appealed, claiming that the alleged perjured statements were not material to the injunction suit.

The court of appeal, in agreeing with defendant, reversed the conviction and ordered the trial court to dismiss the indictment (49 Cal. App. 2d 15, 37) . There can be no question, the court stated, that defendant's motion in the injunction action to vacate the orders permitting the city and state to intervene should have been granted (49 Cal. App. 2d 15, 36) . Neither complaint in intervention stated facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action for intervention, the court held. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)] authorized intervention when a person had an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, or had an interest against both. When an intervener was admitted into the action, the court said, the complaint in intervention that he or she presented and filed must state facts sufficient, if true, to establish the right or interest that the intervener claims, or else he or she would no longer have standing in court as a litigant if proper objection was made. The interest that entitles a party to intervene, the court stated, must be an interest in the matter in litigation in the suit as originally brought and of such a present, direct, and immediate character that the intervener would either gain or lose by the direct effect of the judgment. The court observed that it was difficult to comprehend or understand what interest the city or state had in the injunction proceeding that was of such a direct or immediate character that either intervener would gain or lose by the immediate operation and effect of a judgment either for or against the telephone company. A judgment restraining the telephone company from discontinuing telephone service, the court noted, would in no way affect the enforcement of the criminal laws regarding bookmaking by either city or state officials. The sole issue in that action, stated the court, was the right of a subscriber for telephone service to compel a public utility to furnish service when the applicant for its services met the necessary requirements. Consequently, the court concluded that interveners' interest in the action was insufficient to permit intervention, their interest being indirect, inconsequential, and entirely remote (49 Cal. App. 2d 15, 34-35) .

[c] Precedential Effect of Judgment on Persons Similarly Situated

The factual and procedural background of Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 91 P.2d 599 , is discussed in § 124.49[3][a]. In Jersey Maid Milk, the Supreme Court, in affirming the judgment denying intervention, held that any judgment rendered in the action interpreting the chapter of the Agricultural Code that was the subject matter of the action would have no direct effect whatever on any person other than the parties to the action. If judgment should be in favor of plaintiffs, then defendant would be restrained in enforcing the provisions of that chapter only against plaintiffs, and if judgment was for defendant, he would be free of any restraints to enforce the act against plaintiffs. The judgment, concluded the Court, would in no way be binding on appellants and they would be as free to conduct their business after the rendition of the judgment as before. They therefore would not gain or lose by the direct operation of the judgment. Concededly, the legal judgment that the act in question is a valid legislative enactment might serve as a precedent in any subsequent action instituted against appellants for violation of the act, and to that extent appellants had an interest in the matter in litigation. The Court concluded, however, that that interest would be a mere consequential interest, not a direct interest, since the judgment in this case would have no binding effect on them (13 Cal. 2d 661, 664) .

Counsel should note that the above case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to its 1977 amendments. Because the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), cases that permitted intervention under the former statute appear to be still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, it is not completely clear whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner that it was prior to the 1977 amendments. In particular, counsel should note that federal courts applying FRCP, Rule 24(a), which governs mandatory intervention in federal court actions and which was the model for Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), have held that the effect of stare decisis may in some instances provide a sufficient interest to permit intervention under that provision [see, e.g., Foster v. Gueory (D.C. Cir. 1981) 655 F.2d 1319, 1325 ; Nuesse v. Camp (D.C. Cir. 1967) 385 F.2d 694, 702 ; Atlantis Development Corporation v. United States (5th Cir. 1967) 379 F.2d 818, 829] . Thus, counsel should probably exercise some caution in relying on the statement in the Jersey Maid Milk case that the possible adverse precedential effect of a judgment does not provide an interest sufficient to permit intervention in a pending action. For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that statute prior to 1977, see § 124.03.

[d] Unsecured Creditor

In Olson v. Hopkins (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 638, 75 Cal. Rptr. 33 , plaintiff filed an action against his sister, seeking partition of certain real property. Defendant cross complained alleging that the property was in fact a partnership and that plaintiff had breached an oral agreement of the partnership and had, without authority, diverted and withdrawn partnership funds. Defendant further alleged that she wished to pay plaintiff the value of his interest less damages alleged in the cross complaint. Shortly before pretrial conference, appellants moved the trial court for leave to file a complaint in intervention contending that they were creditors of plaintiff currently engaged in another action for an accounting and that the trial court in that action had enjoined plaintiff from transferring or encumbering his interest in the real property that was the subject of the present action before the court. The motion was opposed on the ground, among others, that appellants, as simple creditors, lacked the requisite interest to intervene. The trial court denied their motion to intervene and also their motion to vacate the judgment it entered on behalf of defendant, decreeing that title to the property was in defendant and that plaintiff's interest was valueless. Appellants appealed on both issues.

The court of appeal affirmed the order of the trial court, holding that it had properly denied appellant's motion to intervene (269 Cal. App. 2d 638, 644) . On pages 641 and 642, the court found that appellant's right to intervene was governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 387, which has been judicially construed to require a third person seeking to intervene in a pending action to have an interest in the matter in litigation or in the success of either of the parties that was of a direct and immediate character greater than that possessed by a simple creditor of a party. Appellants were, however, only simple creditors whose interest did not become direct by operation of a temporary restraining order on plaintiff not to transfer or encumber his interest in the property. That injunction did not restrain plaintiff in conducting his suit or create any lien on the property, nor did it prevent the trial court from taking any action regarding the property. As simple creditors, appellants may have had an interest in the outcome of the litigation, since their ability to recover on plaintiff's debt would have been enhanced had plaintiff succeeded in his suit. Such interest, concluded the court, did not give them the right to intervene in the action [citing Horn v. Volcano Water Co. (1859) 13 Cal. 62, 69-70 (discussed in § 124.38[3][a]); Isaacs v. Jones (1898) 121 Cal. 257, 261-263] .

Counsel should note that the above case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 before its 1977 amendments. Because the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), cases that permitted intervention under the former statute appear to be still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, it is not completely clear whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner that it was before the 1977 amendments. Thus, counsel should probably exercise some caution in relying on the rule stated in the above case. For a discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that statute before 1977, see § 124.03.

[e] Court-Awarded Attorney's Fees

Meadow v. Superior Court (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 610, 30 Cal. Rptr. 824, 381 P.2d 648 , arose out of an action by petitioners to compel respondent superior court to grant petitioner wife's motion for substitution of attorneys in the underlying divorce action and to dismiss that suit. Following petitioner wife's motion for substitution of attorneys and dismissal of the divorce action, the trial court granted ex parte leave to intervener, the wife's attorney, to file a complaint in intervention. Intervener sought recovery of attorney's fees and costs ordered to be paid to it in an earlier hearing and filed another motion for additional fees and costs. The trial court subsequently denied petitioners' requests to dismiss the divorce action and continued the motion for substitution until after the hearing on the additional fees. The trial court also denied petitioners' motion to strike the complaint in intervention. Petitioners then filed for a writ of prohibition and mandate in the court of appeal. That court denied the petition, and petitioners then sought a hearing on the matter in the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court granted an alternative writ of prohibition restraining the trial court from further proceedings pending determination of the issues.

The Supreme Court granted the writ of mandamus, holding that the trial court erred in permitting intervener to file a complaint in intervention in a divorce action in an attempt to secure payment for fees and costs (59 Cal. 2d 610, 614) . The Court held that a wife's attorney in a divorce action has no such interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either of the parties, or an interest against both, as would entitle him or her to intervene in that action or proceeding. Furthermore, the Court stated, the attorney's right to these fees was no more direct by virtue of former Civ. Code § 137.5 [now see Fam. Code § 272(a)], which provided that attorney's fees may, in the discretion of the court, be made payable in whole or part to the attorney. Those fees, said the court, while payable to the attorney, are granted to the wife, not to her counsel, and the attorney's rights thereto are derived from his or her clients (59 Cal. 2d 610, 615-616) .

Counsel should note that the above case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 before its 1977 amendments. Because the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), cases that permitted intervention under the former statute appear to be still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, it is not completely clear whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner that it was before the 1977 amendments. Thus, counsel should probably exercise some caution in relying on the rule stated in the above case. For a discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that statute before 1977, see § 124.03.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intervener Has Only Consequential Rather Than Direct Interest in Matter in Litigation

In Hinton v. Beck (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 612 , an insurer denied coverage and refused to defend a personal injury action against its insured. The trial court granted the insurer permissive intervention in the action under Code Civ. Proc., § 387(a), but later granted the injured plaintiff's motion to strike the insurer's complaint in intervention. The appellate court affirmed the judgment, holding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting plaintiff's motion to strike because the insurer denied coverage and refused to defend the action on behalf of its insured. An insurer that denies coverage and refuses to defend its insured does not have a direct interest in the litigation to warrant intervention. The rationale behind this rule is that by its denial, the insurer has lost its right to control the litigation. In the current case, the injured plaintiff settled with the insured by agreeing to forego execution of her default judgment against him in exchange for an assignment of his rights against the insurer. The insurer could not then inject itself into the litigation because it lost its right to control the litigation when it refused to defend or indemnify the insured. Although the injured plaintiff, as a judgment creditor, could proceed directly against the insurer under Ins. Code § 11580, the insurer did not have the requisite direct and immediate interest in the litigation, given that it denied coverage and refused to provide a defense. The appellate court explained that not every interest in the outcome of litigation gives to its possessor the right to intervene in a lawsuit. The interest must be direct and not consequential, and it must be an interest which is proper to be determined in the action in which the intervention is sought. A person has a direct interest justifying intervention in litigation where the judgment in the action of itself adds to or detracts from his legal rights without reference to rights and duties not involved in the litigation. A consequential interest, one that is insufficient for intervention, occurs when the action in which intervention is sought does not directly affect it although the results of the action may indirectly benefit or harm its owner.

Each of the following cases was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 before its 1977 amendments. Because the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), cases that permitted intervention under the former statute appear to be still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, it is not completely clear whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner that it was prior to the 1977 amendments. Thus, counsel should probably exercise some caution in relying on the following cases to oppose permissive intervention. For a discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that statute before 1977, see § 124.03.

The factual and procedural background of Allen v. California Water & Tel. Co. (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 104, 187 P.2d 393 , is discussed in § 124.45[3][a]. In that case, the Supreme Court, in affirming the order denying intervention, also held that proposed intervener's interest in the supplemental proceedings under reserved jurisdiction did not give it a right to intervene, since it had no direct interest or claim to any of the waters involved in the litigation and therefore did not have the required direct interest that would cause it either to gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment (31 Cal. 2d 104, 109) .

Bechtel v. Axelrod (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 390, 125 P.2d 836 , involved an action to obtain a deficiency judgment arising out of defendant's having executed a promissory note to plaintiff as an accommodation-maker. Defendant's wife sought to intervene by seeking a declaration that their community property could not be subjected to payment of the obligation, since it had been incurred by her husband solely as an accommodation-maker and without her knowledge and consent. In affirming the trial court's denial of intervention, the Supreme Court held that intervener did not possess an interest in the action against her husband, because she would neither gain nor lose by the direct legal operation and effect of a money judgment rendered against him. No community property had been seized and defendant could discharge the indebtedness from his separate funds. Consequently, concluded the Court, intervener's interest was remote and contingent and not of the direct and immediate character required by law to support her intervention (20 Cal. 2d 390, 392-393) .

In La Mesa etc. Irr. Dist. v. Halley (1925) 195 Cal. 739, 235 P 999 , petitioner filed for a writ of mandate to compel respondents, president and secretary of petitioner water district, to sign and attest certain bonds in order to acquire an additional water supply and distributing system. Certain taxpayers and landowners within the district requested leave to file a complaint in intervention, alleging, among other things, that the bonds were invalid because they would purportedly cause indebtedness beyond the district's ability to assume, and that the suit was collusive. The Supreme Court, in denying the request to intervene, held that interveners' interests in the action were remote and contingent and not of the direct and immediate character required by law. The ruling of the Court in favor of petitioners would require respondents to do only what the law required them to do, and interveners would neither gain nor lose by the direct operational effect of the judgment, since the judgment would not affect their property interest, nor would the signing of the bonds create any lien on their property. Furthermore, there were other intervening events that would have to occur before their lands could be taxed to pay for the principal and interest on the bonds, or before any lien could be made on their property (195 Cal. 739, 741-742) .

Continental Vinyl Products Corp v. Mead Corp (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 543, 103 Cal. Rptr. 806 , involved actions by plaintiff for a declaration of rights under an insurance policy. Control of the actions had been taken over by a trustee in bankruptcy. The proposed intervenor moved to intervene, alleging that as owner of 90 percent of the stock of plaintiff corporation his interest in the corporation was significantly injured by the reduction of the value of the corporation's stock resulting from conduct of defendants, that the trustee represented the interests of the creditors rather than his own, and that he was the only one whose rights would be effected by the prosecution of the litigation in such a manner as to recover an amount in excess of that necessary to make plaintiff's creditors whole. The intervenor did not assert improper conduct by the trustee, or that the intervenor's interest was different from that of other shareholders in any way other than amount. The court of appeal held that as a shareholder, the intervenor had a consequential interest but not a direct interest in the outcome of the litigation involving the corporation. The court stated that an interest is consequential when the underlying action does not directly harm or benefit the proposed intervenor. In coming to its conclusion, the court extensively reviewed the applicable law regarding the interest required to intervene in a pending action (27 Cal. App. 3d 543, 550-551) .

People v. City of Long Beach (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 271, 6 Cal. Rptr. 658 , involved an attempted intervention by an owner of property adjacent to the tidal and submerged lands that were the subject of an action to determine the legal effect of a quitclaim deed from defendant city to the state, and to determine rights to oil and gas in the property. The court of appeal held that the proposed intervener did not have a direct interest in the matters involved in the suit. Intervener's interest was not so direct and immediate as to cause him either to gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the ultimate judgment. Any interest that appellant had in the adjacent lands were at best indirect (183 Cal. App. 2d 271, 275) .

In Faus v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 352, 285 P.2d 1017 , intervener county appealed from judgments denying its motions for leave to file complaints in intervention in two actions in which plaintiffs sought to quiet title in themselves to separate, abandoned right-of-way strips instead of in either the railway company or the city in which the strips lay. The county contended that it had an interest in the actions because its Board of Supervisors had passed a resolution stating that the acquisition of such rights-of-way was of a general county interest. It also contended that it had an interest in the success of defendant city, because if it prevailed, county funds would not have to be expended for purchase of the strips. The court of appeal rejected county's assertions in affirming the trial court's judgment, holding that a general interest is not the same as a direct interest and that the mere possibility that additional funds might ultimately have to be expended in the event of a judgment adverse to defendant city is a consequential interest of that judgment, not one flowing directly from it (134 Cal. App. 2d 352, 359-360) .

Bernheimer v. Bernheimer (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 242, 196 P.2d 813 , involved a divorce action brought by the husband against his wife, who raised the affirmative defenses of a previous Missouri divorce and a subsequent remarriage by plaintiff. A charitable beneficiary of a testamentary trust, whose interest was contingent on the death of plaintiff without lawful issue, petitioned to intervene to protect its vested interest in the trust on the ground that if plaintiff prevailed, his son from the remarriage would then become lawful issue and succeed to the trust. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of intervention, holding that appellant's interest in the testamentary trust was too remote and contingent on many factors other than the legitimacy of plaintiff's son in the state of Missouri; the interest asserted was not that of a present, direct, and immediate character that would cause the appellant either to gain or lose by the direct effect of the judgment (87 Cal. App. 2d 242, 246-247) .

Alhambra v. Jacob Bean Realty Co. (1934) 138 Cal. App. 251 , involved condemnation proceedings by plaintiff city to acquire a parcel of defendant's land for purposes of a municipal reservoir. Appellant intervened, alleging that as an adjoining property owner she would sustain damages to her interest in her property by reason of market value depreciation. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's sustaining of plaintiff's demurrer to the complaint in intervention, holding that the complaint showed no interest by appellant in the land in question, or in the success of either party, or adverse to either. Her claim of potential damage, had the reservoir been built, showed only a consequential interest in the probable use of the property had plaintiff been successful, and no possibility of gain or loss from the direct legal effect of any judgment that might have been rendered (138 Cal. App 251, 252-253) .

[b] Precedential Effect of Judgment on Persons Similarly Situated

In Kenney v. Wolff (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 163, 198 P.2d 582 , certain employees of a municipal railway, who had been employees of a private railway company until it was acquired by the city, sought to determine their rights regarding seniority as employees of the city. Certain conductors and motormen, who had also been employees of the private system, attempted to intervene in the action on the ground that any interpretation of the seniority rules would affect them as well. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court order denying intervention, holding that interveners had different job classifications than plaintiffs and therefore had no interest in the adjudication of seniority rights except concerning the effect of any interpretation of those rights on them in some future litigation. This was not a sufficient interest in the subject matter in litigation to entitle them to intervene (88 Cal. App. 2d 163, 164) .

Counsel should note that the above case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to its 1977 amendments. Because the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), cases that permitted intervention under the former statute appear to be still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, it is not completely clear whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner that it was prior to the 1977 amendments. In particular, counsel should note that federal courts applying FRCP, Rule 24(a), which governs mandatory intervention in federal court actions and which was the model for Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), have held that the effect of stare decisis may in some instances provide a sufficient interest to permit intervention under that provision [see, e.g., Foster v. Gueory (D.C. Cir. 1981) 655 F.2d 1319, 1325 ; Nuesse v. Camp (D.C. Cir. 1967) 385 F.2d 694, 702 ; Atlantis Development Corporation v. United States (5th Cir. 1967) 379 F.2d 818, 829] . Thus, counsel should probably exercise some caution in relying on the statement in the above case that the possible adverse precedential effect of a judgment does not provide an interest sufficient to permit intervention in a pending action. For a further discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that statute prior to 1977, see § 124.03.

[c] Unsecured Creditor

The factual and procedural background of Horn v. Volcano Water Co. (1859) 13 Cal. 62 , is discussed in § 124.38[3][a]. In that case, the Supreme Court, while holding that a judgment creditor having a lien on property that was the subject of the action had a sufficient interest in the matter in litigation to justify intervention, stated that a simple creditor of a party owning property does not possess any right to intervene, because he or she does not have sufficient interest in an action involving that property to cause the creditor either to gain or lose by the direct legal operation and effect of the judgment (13 Cal. 62, 69-70) .

Counsel should note that the above case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to its 1977 amendments. Because the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 387 are virtually identical to the current provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), cases that permitted intervention under the former statute appear to be still applicable to permissive intervention under the statute, as amended. However, it is not completely clear whether or not permissive intervention is still restricted in the same manner that it was prior to the 1977 amendments. Thus, counsel should probably exercise some caution in relying on the rule stated in the above case. For a discussion of the possible effect of the 1977 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 387 on the applicability of cases decided under that statute prior to 1977, see § 124.03.

[d] Court-Awarded Attorney's Fees

In Lindelli v. Town of San Anselmo (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1499, 1500-1501, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 707, the court held where that a law firm's interest in a fee award in a case involving a local election dispute arose from Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5, the firm was entitled to fees awarded unless an agreement specified otherwise. As a successful party under § 1021.5, the firm's interest in a fee award would be directly and adversely affected if a final judgment issued prior to a motion for fees. The firm would forever lose the right to collect fees from the opposing party under § 1021.5. Thus, the firm had a sufficiently direct and immediate interest to permit intervention and a motion for an award of fees under § 1021.5.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProceduresPartiesInterventionPermissive Interventions

171 of 172 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
CHAPTER 124 INTERVENTION
PART II. FORMS

12-124 California Points & Authorities § 124.50

§ 124.50 Opposing Motion for Order Granting Leave to File Complaint in Intervention--Mandatory Intervention [Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)]--Intervener Lacks Requisite Interest in Property or Transaction That Is Subject of Action

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 124.45.]

_____ [Name of intervener] MAY NOT INTERVENE IN THIS ACTION AS A MATTER OF RIGHT UNDER SECTION 387(b) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT DOES NOT HAVE AN INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY OR TRANSACTION THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THE ACTION AND IS NOT SO SITUATED THAT THE DISPOSITION OF THE ACTION MAY AS A PRACTICAL MATTER IMPAIR OR IMPEDE HIS/HER/ITS ABILITY TO PROTECT HIS/HER/ITS INTERESTS.

A. Interest in Property or Transaction That Is Subject of Action Required. A person may not intervene as a matter of right under Section 387(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure unless that person claims an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action may as a practical matter impair or impede that person's ability to protect that interest (see Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b); see also California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96-98, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266).

[Optional] B. General Interest in Subject of Litigation as Insufficient. Mandatory intervention under Section 387(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure is improper when the proposed intervener has only a general interest, no greater than that of any member of the general public, in the subject of the action (see Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 114-115, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for an order granting leave to file a complaint in intervention in a pending action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (governing mandatory intervention). The form sets forth the general point that intervention should be denied when the proposed intervener fails to show that he or she has the requisite interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should indicate that the proposed intervener failed to state facts in either the application or complaint in intervention sufficient to show that he or she has the requisite interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action or that he is or she is so situated that disposition of action may impair or impede his or her ability to protect that interest as a practical matter.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for leave to file a complaint in intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) supported by the points and authorities set out in § 124.32.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Interest in Property or Transaction That Is Subject of Action Required

California Physicians' Service v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 162 Cal. Rptr. 266 , arose out of an action by petitioner, a health insurer, to intervene in a personal injury suit pending in the superior court. In that action, one of petitioner's subscribers sought damages against various defendants arising out of injuries sustained as a result of a surgical operation. Plaintiff in that action had a contract of insurance with petitioner that included a provision for a lien on any recovery by plaintiff from a third party for tort-cause injuries to reimburse petitioner for any such injuries. The parties also had an agreement that plaintiff would make a good-faith effort to recover costs of medical benefits in the suit. Plaintiff repudiated that agreement at the time of the settlement conference and moved for court approval of a settlement with several of the defendants and a declaration that "all medical liens" are null and void. Petitioner promptly filed a motion for leave to intervene. At the hearing on the motion, the trial judge approved the settlement with one of the defendants, found by the trial court to be a health care provider, and ruled that petitioner was not entitled to any of the proceeds. The motion to intervene was then denied. Petitioner then petitioned the court of appeal to vacate the order denying its claim to any of the proceeds of the settlement with the defendant health care provider and denying permission to intervene. An alternative writ of mandate was issued pending the hearing on the matter.

The court of appeal discharged the alternative writ and denied the peremptory writ (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 99) . The court observed that there was a dearth of case law interpreting the mandatory intervention provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). The court acknowledged that petitioner had an interest in the outcome of the litigation and in the success of one of the parties. However, the court stated, the critical phrase of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) is that the proposed intervener must have an interest in the property or transaction that is the subject of the action. The court first stated that plaintiff's cause of action in tort did not qualify as 'property' that was the subject of the action (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96) . The court then held that although petitioner's claim was based on a contract or 'transaction' with plaintiff, that contract or transaction was not the subject of the action in which petitioner sought to intervene; the transaction being litigated was the alleged tortious conduct of defendants and the injury to plaintiff. The court concluded that petitioner did not and could not have any interest in plaintiff's tort cause of action (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96-97) .

Petitioner also claimed that the operation of Civ. Code § 3333.1 gave it a direct interest in the litigation that justified mandatory intervention. The court noted that Civ. Code § 3333.1 was enacted to eliminate the so-called double recovery of special damages in medical malpractice actions by allowing the defendant health care provider to introduce, on the issue of damages, evidence of any amount payable to plaintiff by an insurer or other medical benefit provider (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 94, fn. 2, 97) . Under Civ. Code § 3333.1, any source of such collateral benefits is not permitted to recover the amount of the benefits from plaintiff nor be subrogated to plaintiff's rights against defendant. The court acknowledged that the impact of the statute raised a number of unanswered questions, both substantive and procedural, such as whether petitioner's separate agreement with plaintiff placed it outside the ambit of Civ. Code § 3333.1, whether the statute operates in settlement proceedings or only when the action goes to trial, and whether the statute itself is constitutional (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 97-98) . The court noted, however, that the effect of Civ. Code § 3333.1 on medical and hospital benefit providers seeking reimbursement depended on certain factual determinations and that the binding effect of those determinations on insurance carriers who would not normally be parties to the question was another yet unanswered question. The court concluded that since petitioner was not a party to the underlying action, it was not bound by the trial court order that purported to foreclose its claim to the proceeds of the settlement with defendants. Petitioner therefore had at all times available the remedy of a separate action against plaintiff to enforce the provisions of its agreement with plaintiff. The court concluded that the mere possibility that Civ. Code § 3333.1 might be invoked in any litigation did not give a medical benefit provider, such as petitioner, an interest i the matter being litigated within the ambit of the mandatory intervention provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 98) .

Counsel should note that the court did not consider whether or not permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) would have been proper in this case, because petitioner had admitted that its intervention in the matter would expand the issues in litigation and impinge on the right of the original parties to litigate the matter in their own fashion. The court then stated in dictum, however, that if petitioner otherwise met the qualifications for mandatory intervention, the fact that such intervention would add to the complexity of the action, create delay, or adversely affect the original parties was of no moment (102 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96) .

[b] General Interest in Subject of Litigation as Insufficient

Coalition for Fair Rent v. Abdelnour (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 165 Cal. Rptr. 685 , involved an action by plaintiff association for a writ of mandate compelling defendants, a city and its city clerk, to accept and count the submitted supplemental petition and signatures to determine whether a certain initiative measure establishing local rent control boards qualified for the next general election. An apartment owners' association moved to intervene. The trial court denied the motion, but permitted it to appear as amicus curiae to file briefs and be heard in argument. The trial court then granted the writ of mandate compelling the city to accept and count the supplemental petition signatures. The city appealed from the judgment, and the apartment owners' association appealed independently from the order denying intervention. Plaintiffs then filed another writ of mandate in the court of appeal. All three matters were consolidated.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order denying the motion to intervene. The court noted that although the apartment owners' association had an interest in defeating the proposed initiative measure, its interest in the general question of interpretation of the charter amendment statutes was no greater than that of any member of the general public (107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 114-115) . The court observed that in past cases, such a general interest could only be the basis of permissive intervention within the trial court's broad discretion, not intervention as a matter of right. The court stated that only a direct pecuniary interest formed the basis for mandatory intervention. The court also rejected the association's apparent contention that the city did not adequately represent its interests in the action (107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115) .

The court acknowledged that the case of Bustop v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 66, 70-73, 137 Cal. Rptr.

793 (discussed in § 124.43[3][a]), had cast some shadow on the premise that more than a general political interest is necessary for mandatory intervention. The court in Coalition for Fair Rent nevertheless distinguished Bustop on the ground that the parents in Bustop had a more direct interest in the question of whether their children would be subject to mandatory school busing than the association in Coalition for Fair Rent had in the question of whether a rent control initiative should go on the ballot. The court reasoned that in Bustop, success of the school district or the parties representing minority interests would have directly resulted in the busing of the children. By contrast, in Coalition for Fair Rent, putting the measure on the ballot would not result in rent control without a significant intervening event, namely, voter approval of the measure (107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 115) . The court also distinguished the two cases procedurally, observing that in Bustop the decision to permit intervention occurred before or at an early stage of the trial, whereas in Coalition for Fair Rent a decision that the association should have been allowed to intervene would have created great delay and necessitated a wholly new proceeding in the trial court. The court concluded that it should not make such a decision absent a showing of significant prejudice (107 Cal. App. 3d 97, 116) .

For a discussion of the possible applicability of cases decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 387 prior to 1977 to a determination of whether mandatory intervention is proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), see § 124.03[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Interest in Property or Transaction That is Subject of Action Required

In Siena Court Homeowners Assn. v. Green Valley Corp. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 915 , a condominium owners association sought to intervene in a construction defect action between a homeowners association and a developer, on the ground that it had an interest in certain property involved in the dispute, consisting of common facilities that were jointly used and maintained by the two associations. The trial court denied the motion for leave to intervene. The Court of Appeal affirmed the order denying the motion for leave to intervene, holding that the condominium owners association was not entitled to mandatory intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) because it did not show that the disposition of the action in its absence would impair its ability to protect that interest. Its interest in the repair of the joint common facilities arose from a joint use and maintenance agreement between the associations, which obligated the condominium owners association to fund 48% of the repair and maintenance costs for the joint common facilities, while the obligation of the other association was 52%. The respective obligations were therefore independent of the issues in the construction defect action. Moreover, a judgment in the construction defect action would have no effect on the ability of the condominium owners association to protect its interest. The status of the condominium owners association as a joint obligor on the agreement did not entitle it to joinder as an indispensable party because the underlying action was not brought to enforce that joint liability (164 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1423-1430) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionMotions to InterveneCivil ProcedurePartiesInterventionRight to Intervene

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 12 Chapters 120-129 INSURANCE---to---INTERVENTION
Chapters 125through 129 RESERVED

12-125 California Points & Authorities Chapters 125through 129

RESERVED

Chapters 125RESERVED

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES

13-130 California Points & Authorities 130.syn

§ 130.syn Synopsis to Chapter 130: JUDGES

§ 130.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 130.02 Governing Statutes

§ 130.03 Review of Determination Regarding Disqualification

§ 130.04 Attacking Actions Taken by Disqualified Judge

§ 130.05 Vacating Judgment by Disqualified Judge

§ 130.06 Points and Authorities

[1] In Support of Disqualification Challenge

[2] In Support of Petition for Writ of Mandate in Superior Court

[3] In Support of Petition for Writ of Mandate in Appellate Court

[4] In Opposition to Petition for Writ of Mandate

§ 130.07 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[2] Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 130.08-130.19 [Reserved]

§ 130.20 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made at Least Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandate Authorized

[b] Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case

[c] Motion Filed at Least Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing

[d] Motion Filed Five Days Before Postponed Date

[e] Case Not Subject to Master Calendar Rule

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case

[b] Case Not Subject to Master Calendar Rule

§ 130.21 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Before Commencement of Trial Where Judge Not Known at Least 10 Days Before Trial of Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

§ 130.22 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(3)]--Motion Made Before Commencement of Hearing When Judge Not Known at Least 10 Days Before Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made as Expeditiously as Possible After Agreed Matter Becomes Litigated

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Before Commencement of Hearing

§ 130.23 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made to Master Calendar Judge Not Later Than Time Cause Assigned for Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 130.24 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Timely Motion Made After Appearance or Notice of All-Purpose Assignment to Judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After All-Purpose Assignment

[b] Fifteen Days in Direct Calendar Court Subject to Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

[c] Motion Timely Made After General Appearance

[d] Late-Appearing Defendant's Motion Timely Made When Done So Within 10 Days After That Defendant's Appearance.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Difference Between Direct Calendar and Master Calendar Courts

[b] Timeliness in Direct Calendar Assignment

§ 130.25 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Initially Filed Motion Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 Was Dismissed [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Previous Motion to Disqualify Was Dismissed

§ 130.26 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Judge Changed After First Appearance

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Timely Motion When Judge Changed After Parties Appeared

§ 130.27 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Before Expiration of 30 Days of Party's First Appearance in One-Judge Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

§ 130.28 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Prior to Trial and Before Determination of Contested Fact Issue Relating to Merits [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Demurrer Timely

[b] Motion Made After Judgment on Pleadings Timely

[c] Motion Made After Motion To Quash Service Of Summons

[d] Motion Made After Summary Adjudication Motion or Summary Judgment Motion

[e] Motion Made After Court Ruling on Pretrial Motion Pursuant to Civ. Code § 3295(c)

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Ex Parte Rulings But Before Hearing Set for Determining Issues of Law and Fact

[b] Motion Made Prior to Trial and Before Determination of Contested Fact Issue Relating to Merits

[c] Motion Made After Judgment on Pleadings Timely

§ 130.29 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. §

170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Within 60 Days of Notice of Assignment of New Trial to Judge Who Conducted Prior Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion on Retrial Made Within 60 Days of Notice of Assignment

[b] Appellant's Motion on Remand Proper After Reversal of Final Judgment Even if Appellant Made Prior Motion

[c] Motion Proper Even if Reversed Judgment Was Based on Jury Verdict

[d] What Constitutes New Trial

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] What Constitutes New Trial

[b] Bias of Trial Judge After Reversal

§ 130.30 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made in Proceeding Separate and Independent From Prior Action in Which Judge Presided

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Subsequent Proceeding Involves Distinct Legal Issues

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Subsequent Proceeding Involves Distinct Legal Issues

§ 130.31 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge

From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made in Supplemental Proceeding to Disqualify Judge Who Did Not Preside at Original Proceeding

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion to Disqualify Subsequent Judge

§ 130.32 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Within 20 Days After Service of Order Assigning Judge to Coordination Proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Peremptory Challenges in Coordination Proceedings

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extension of Time

[b] Motion Timely Despite Judge's Prior Rulings on Contested Issue

§ 130.33 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made by Codefendant Who Is No Longer Party to Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Benefit of Timely Peremptory Challenge Inures to Codefendants

§ 130.34 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Challenge by Cross Defendant--Severance of Cross Action and Recusal in Only That Action Is Improper

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Severance of Cross Action and Recusal in Only That Action Is Improper

§ 130.35 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Inquiry Into Party's Good Faith in Making Peremptory Challenge Is Improper

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inquiry Into Good Faith as Ground for Issuing Writ

§ 130.36 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Parties Entitled to Additional Challenges Due to Adverse Interests

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception to the One Peremptory Challenge Per Side Rule Due to Adverse Interests

§ 130.37 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Less Than Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing When Name of Assigned Judge Is Known at Least 10 Days Before Trial or Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Known Judge Was Assigned

[b] Matter Set for Hearing in Department With Regularly Assigned Judge

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Matter Set for Hearing in Department With Regularly Assigned Judge

§ 130.38 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Commencement of Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 130.39 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Commencement of Hearing Other Than Trial of Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Commencement of Hearing Is Too Late

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Commencement of Hearing Is Too Late

§ 130.40 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Assignment of Cause for Trial by Master Calendar Judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Assignment of Cause for Trial by Master Calendar Judge

§ 130.41 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Contested Matter Submitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(1), (a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Contested Matter Submitted

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Contested Matter Submitted

[b] Judge Cannot Waive Timeliness Requirements

§ 130.42 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made at Supplemental Proceeding Which Is Continuation of Original Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made at Subsequent Proceeding

[b] Proceeding Involving Substantially, Same Issues

[c] Hearing on Motion to Tax Costs

[d] Hearing on Allowance of Attorney's Fees

[e] Hearing on Motion for New Trial

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Made at Subsequent Proceeding

[b] Proceeding Involving Substantially Same Issues

§ 130.43 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--After Prior Disqualification by Motion of Same Side [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Properly Denied After Prior Disqualification by Motion of Same Side

[b] Motion Properly Denied When Party Seeking Additional Challenge Per Side Fails to Prove Adverse Interests Between Parties

§ 130.44 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made by Party in Coordination Proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.516, 3.544]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Add-On Cases in Coordination Proceedings

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party in Add-On Case

§ 130.45 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Inquiry Into Party's Good Faith in Making Peremptory Challenge as Proper in Case of Unconstitutional Discrimination

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inquiry Into Moving Party's Good Faith as Proper in Case of Unconstitutional Discrimination

[b] Burden of Proof

§§ 130.46-130.59 [Reserved]

§ 130.60 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Timely Statement of Disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case

[b] Timely Statement of Disqualification

[c] Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Timely Statement of Disqualification

§ 130.61 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Financial Interest in Subject Matter of or Party to Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disqualifying Financial Interest

§ 130.62 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Personal Knowledge of Disputed Evidentiary Facts Concerning Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

§ 130.63 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Relationship to Party or Certain Other Persons [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(4), (5)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

§ 130.64 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Permanent or Temporary Physical Impairment [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(7)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

§ 130.65 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Former Legal Representation by Judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

§ 130.66 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Unable to Be Impartial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[i] New Trial

[ii] Financial Interest Not Covered by Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(3)

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unable to Be Impartial

[b] Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion on Issues to Be Tried

[c] Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion of Party's Lack of Veracity Under Oath

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Unable to Be Impartial

[b] Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion on Issues to Be Tried

[c] Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion of Party's Lack of Veracity Under Oath

§ 130.67 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Prospective Employment as a Dispute Resolution Neutral [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prospective Employment or Discussion of Employment as Dispute Resolution Neutral

§ 130.68 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Properly Stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]--Statement Alleges No Facts or Insufficient Facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statement Setting Forth No Facts or Insufficient Facts as Properly Stricken

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statement Setting Forth No Facts or Insufficient Facts as Properly Stricken

§ 130.69 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Properly Stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]--Statement Not Timely [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Untimely Statement as Properly Stricken

[b] Failure to Present Statement at Earliest Practicable Opportunity Constitutes Waiver

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Present Statement at Earliest Practicable Opportunity Constitutes Waiver

§ 130.70 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--Motion to Disqualify Made After Commencement of Trial--Judge Has Discretion to Proceed With Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ruling on Motions in Limine Constitutes Commencement of Trial

§ 130.71 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Properly Stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]--Statement Alleges Judge Stockholder of Nonparty Corporation Without Otherwise Alleging Judge's Financial Interest in Litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judge as Stockholder of Nonparty Corporation Having No Direct Interest

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judge as Stockholder of Nonparty Corporation Having No Direct Interest

§ 130.72 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Properly Stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]--Statement Alleges Facts Insufficient to Establish Inability to Be Impartial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[i] Oppose Proceedings to Set Aside Orders Made by Judge

[ii] Financial Interests Not Covered by Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(3)

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Adverse State of Mind Based on Observation of Witnesses and Evidence

[b] Adverse State of Mind Based on Observation of Witnesses and Evidence in Trial at Which Motion for New Trial Directed

[c] Opinion Expressed in Discharge of Litigation

[d] Error on Question of Law

[e] Objective Standard of Impartiality

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Adverse State of Mind Based on Observation of Witnesses and Evidence

[b] Opinion Expressed in Discharge of Litigation

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.01

§ 130.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda for use in supporting [see §§ 130.20 -130.36] and opposing [see §§ 130.37 -130.45] a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a trial judge from proceeding with a case when the judge is alleged to be peremptorily disqualified.

Sections 130.60 et seq. also contain memoranda for use in supporting [see §§ 130.60 -130.67] and opposing [see §§ 130.68 -130.72] a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a trial judge from proceeding with a case when the judge is alleged to be disqualified for cause. In the past, a petition for either mandate or prohibition could be used to challenge a judge, but current law requires use of mandate in these matters [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d); see People v. Hull, (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 266, 269 ; 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d, 526 ; 820 P.2d 1036] .

This chapter deals primarily with disqualification of judges in civil cases, although peremptory disqualification by the terms of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 applies to criminal actions as well [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(1)], and disqualification for cause by the terms of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5 applies to "any proceeding," that is, an action, case, cause, motion, or special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170, 170.5(f)], which would include a criminal action [see Pappa v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 350, 354, 5 Cal. Rptr. 703, 353 P.2d 311 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170)].

The statutory law underlying sections 130.60 et seq., pertaining to disqualification for cause, was significantly revised in 1984. Sections 130.60 et seq. include cases decided under the prior law to the extent that they appear to be consistent with, or persuasive with respect to, the current law. However, they are no longer controlling authority and should be used with caution. Where a case is cited that was decided under the prior law, it is so indicated in the discussion of authorities.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.02

§ 130.02 Governing Statutes

Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 governs the peremptory disqualification of a judge; disqualification of a judge for cause is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5. Statutes governing a petition for a writ of mandate include Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097, 1107, 1108. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5 also govern the disqualification of a privately compensated temporary judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(e)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.03

§ 130.03 Review of Determination Regarding Disqualification

The determination of the question of the disqualification of a judge by peremptory challenge or for cause is a nonappealable order. It may be reviewed only by a writ of mandate brought within 10 days after service of written notice of entry of the decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d); see People v. Hull, (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 266, 276, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 526, 820 P.2d 1036] . Only the parties to the proceeding may seek review [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d)]. The disqualified judge cannot seek writ review of a disqualification order [Curle v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1057, 1067, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751] . For a discussion of the procedure involved in bringing a writ of or mandate and for forms of memoranda for use in mandate proceedings, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.04

§ 130.04 Attacking Actions Taken by Disqualified Judge

If grounds for disqualification for cause are first learned of or arise after the judge has made one or more rulings but, before he or she has completed judicial action in a proceeding, the replacement judge may set aside the prior rulings only for good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.05

§ 130.05 Vacating Judgment by Disqualified Judge

If grounds for disqualification for cause are first learned of after judgment has been rendered but before it becomes final, it would appear that a motion to vacate the judgment could be made on this basis, by analogy to decisions under prior law [Tatum v. Southern Pac. Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 40, 43, 58 Cal. Rptr. 238 (motion for new trial)]. For discussion of and forms of memoranda for use in bringing motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial , Part II.

Also by analogy to decisions under prior law, if grounds for disqualification are first learned of after judgment has become final, it would appear that a motion or separate action to vacate the judgment could be made on this basis [see Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 567-570, 6 P.2d 944 (separate action in equity)]. For discussion of and forms of memoranda for use in bringing motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.06

§ 130.06 Points and Authorities

[1] In Support of Disqualification Challenge

Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1) requires a "written verified statement" setting forth facts constituting the ground of disqualification, whereas Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 refers to an oral or written "motion" without notice supported by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury or an oral statement under oath to establish prejudice. Although Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113, requires the service and filing of a memorandum with a "notice of motion," these rules, by their own terms, do not apply to nonnoticed oral motions made in open court or to written motions. Nevertheless, prudent counsel should serve and file such a memorandum if there is an issue as to the timeliness or other procedural aspect of the motion. The pertinent points and authorities set forth in the forms may, with appropriate modifications, be adapted for such use.

[2] In Support of Petition for Writ of Mandate in Superior Court

Neither the Code of Civil Procedure nor the California Rules of Court expressly authorizes or requires that points and authorities be filed in support of a petition for a writ of mandate in the superior court. Nevertheless, language in the governing statutory provisions suggests such a requirement. Code Civ. Proc. § 1090 refers to the petition for a writ of mandate as a "motion." Moreover, Code Civ. Proc. § 1088 refers to a petition for a writ of mandate as an "application," and Code Civ. Proc. § 1003, which incorporates the provisions relating to civil actions into special proceedings, defines an application for an order as a "motion." As noted above under § 130.06[1], noticed motions must be supported by points and authorities [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)].

The advisability of filing points and authorities to support a petition is buttressed not only by the statutory language but also by practical considerations. For example, respondent has a right to file a memorandum in opposition to the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]; petitioner has no right to respond to such a memorandum. In any case, it is the practice of counsel in many counties throughout California to file points and authorities in support of petitions sought in superior courts. Also, local court rules may require it.

Whenever a writ petition seeks review of a trial court ruling, it must also be accompanied by a record adequate to permit the review, including copies of the order or judgment and copies of all documents and exhibits. The petition must also be accompanied by a transcript, or if a transcript is unavailable, counsel's declaration explaining why it is not available and summarizing the proceedings, including arguments by counsel and the basis of the trial court's decision, if stated, or counsel's declaration stating the date a transcript was ordered and that is expected to be filed on a certain date (a date prior to any action requested of the reviewing court other than a stay supported by other parts of the record). If a stay is requested, the petition must explain the reasons for the urgency and set forth all relevant time constraints. Failure to meet these requirements may result in a summary denial of the petition, stay request, or both [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(4); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c) (format for supporting documents and exhibits)].

[3] In Support of Petition for Writ of Mandate in Appellate Court

Points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate are expressly required when the petition is filed in an appellate court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(a)(5)].

[4] In Opposition to Petition for Writ of Mandate

Whether the petition is filed in a superior or appellate court, respondent, real party in interest, or both, within ten days after being served with the petition, may file with the court and serve on petitioner a memorandum in opposition to the granting of the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.486(a), 8.487; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1089.5] and, where the petition is filed in a reviewing court, a statement of any fact not included in the petition which in his, her, or their opinion is material. In an appellate court, no statement in opposition to the petition is required unless requested by the court, and the court, in its discretion, may deny the petition or issue an alternative writ without first requesting the filing of opposition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.07

§ 130.07 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion, procedural guide, and forms for use in proceedings to disqualify a judge by peremptory challenge or for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For a discussion, procedural guide, and forms for use in mandate proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[2] Related Points and Authorities Chapters

Related memoranda that may be useful in particular cases where the disqualification of a judge is at issue may be found in the following chapters:

- Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.
- Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus.
- Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition.
- Ch. 155, Motions After Trial.

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a complete memorandum, or a trial or appellate brief, and for an illustration of a completed memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-130 California Points & Authorities §§ 130.08-130.19

[Reserved]

§§ 130.08[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.20

§ 130.20 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made at Least Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

IN THE COURT OF APPEAL
OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF PETITION
THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF	)	FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
CALIFORNIA FOR THE [CITY AND] COUNTY	)	Date: _____
OF _____,	)	Time: _____
and	)	Location: _____
_____ [name],	)	[Judge: _____]
THE JUDGE OF SAID COURT,	)	Date Action Filed: _____
Respondents, _____ [name(s)]	)	[Trial Date: _____]
Real _____ [Party or Parties]	)
in Interest.	)
_____

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE OVER FIVE DAYS PRIOR TO THE _____ [TRIAL or HEARING] DATE.

A. Mandate Authorized. A writ of mandate may issue from any court to any inferior tribunal to compel the performance of an act that the law specially enjoins as a duty resulting from an office (Code Civ. Proc. § 1085). The writ must be issued in all cases where there is not a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, in the ordinary course of law (Code Civ. Proc. § 1086). The determination of the question of the peremptory challenge of a judge is not an appealable order and may be reviewed only by a writ of mandate from the appropriate court of appeal sought within 10 days of notice to the parties of the decision (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d); People v. Hull (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 266, 276, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 526, 820 P.2d 1036).

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. A timely motion to disqualify under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 deprives the judge of jurisdiction in all further contests in the action (Brown v. Swickard (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 820, 831, 209 Cal. Rptr. 844).

C. Motion Filed at Least Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing. A motion and affidavit to disqualify a trial judge under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 are timely filed if presented at least five days before the last scheduled date for trial if the judge who is assigned to try the cause is known to the party or the party's attorney at least 10 days before that date (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2); see Eagle Maintenance & Supply Co. v. Superior Court (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 692, 694, 695, 16 Cal. Rptr. 745).

[Optional] D. Motion Filed Five Days Before Postponed Date. When a hearing date is set, and the hearing is postponed, a motion to disqualify pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 filed five days prior to the postponed date is timely (Zdonek v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 849, 854, 113 Cal. Rptr. 669 (overruled on another ground by same court in Woodman v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 407, 410, 419, 241 Cal. Rptr. 818)).

[Optional] E. Case Not Subject to Master Calendar Rule. Not every case that has been assigned by a master calendar department has been assigned from a "master calendar" as that term is used in Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6. For the master calendar rule to apply, there must be a true master calendar assignment of a ready case to a ready courtroom (People v. Superior Court (Lavi) (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1175-1177).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has not granted a peremptory motion to disqualify that was timely made under the ten-day/five-day rule. This rule requires the motion to be made at least five days before the date set for trial or hearing if the identity of the judge is known at least 10 days prior to the date set for trial or hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)].

Different time requirements apply in the following situations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], and are addressed in other forms of memoranda:

(1) The judge's identity is learned less than 10 days before the trial date [see § 130.21].

(2) The judge's identity is learned less than 10 days before the hearing date [see § 130.22].

(3) The motion is directed to trial of the cause where there is a master calendar [see § 130.23].

(4) The cause is assigned to a judge for all purposes [see § 130.24].

(5) The cause is pending in a court with only one judge [see § 130.27].

(6) On remand from appeal for new trial, the cause is assigned to the judge who heard the prior proceeding [see § 130.29].

(7) The action is part of a coordination proceeding [see § 130.32].

Optional Paragraph E should be used when the opposing party claims the challenge was untimely because it was not made immediately when the assignment was made in a master calendar department, but it was not a "master calendar assignment" for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. 170.6.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should show that the challenge in this case was timely.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used to support a petition for a writ of mandate to compel a judge to vacate an order denying petitioner's motion to disqualify that judge and to direct him or her to assign the case to a different judgefor trial [see Lowry v. Superior Court (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 22, 24, 8 Cal. Rptr. 720] . The memorandum may also be used to support a motion to vacate a default or default judgment entered by a judge who should have disqualified himself or herself after proper motion [see Estate of Cuneo (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 381, 383, 29 Cal. Rptr. 497] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion for peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[d] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.37, 130.41 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandate Authorized

In People v. Hull (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 266, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 526, 820 P.2d 1036 , after several pretrial conferences and a continuance, the case was set for trial before a named judge. The assignment was made on a Friday when neither defendant nor her counsel were present. The following Monday defendant filed a peremptory challenge to disqualify the judge. The motion was denied as untimely, and the case proceeded to trial before the judge. Defendant was found guilty and appealed from the judgment of conviction, raising only the issue that denial of the peremptory challenge motion was error. The court of appeal affirmed and defendant petitioned the Supreme Court for review.

The Supreme Court granted review and also affirmed, holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) applied to make the determination on the peremptory challenge nonappealable and subject to review only by writ of mandate sought within 10 days after the parties are notified of the decision (1 Cal. 4th 266, 268, 276) . The Court reviewed Woodman v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 407, 241 Cal. Rptr. 818 , which had held that Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) does not apply to review of peremptory challenges under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, but only to review of challenges for cause under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 et seq., and Guedalia v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1156, 260 Cal. Rptr. 99 , which held that § 170.3(d) was the exclusive means to review any motion to disqualify a judge, including peremptory challenges. The Court followed the Guedalia view, and held that denial of the § 170.6 peremptory challenge could not be reviewed on appeal, but only by writ of mandate under Section 170.3(d) (1 Cal. 4th 266, 270-276) .

[b] Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case

In Brown v. Swickard (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 820, 831, 209 Cal. Rptr. 844 , a change of venue was granted moving the superior court proceedings from Merced County to Lassen County. The plaintiffs filed a peremptory challenge to disqualify the judge on March 23, 1983. On March 28, 1983, the motion was denied as untimely at the hearing on two defendants' motion for summary judgment. The judge also granted the motion for summary judgment, and a judgment dismissing the action as to those defendants was filed on March 29. A motion for summary judgment as to three other defendants, which had been filed on March 2, 1983, was heard by the judge on April 4, 1983. The judge granted the motion and judgment dismissing the action as to those defendants was filed on April 12. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal declined to apply retroactively the Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] provision regarding one-judge courts to the case, and held that the ten-day/five-day rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] applied (163 Cal. App. 3d 820, 826-830) . The court further held that the plaintiff's peremptory challenge was timely under the ten-day/five-day rule (163 Cal. App. 3d 820, 830) . The court then noted that a timely motion to disqualify under § 170.6 deprives the judge of jurisdiction in all further contests in the action. Thus, the plaintiffs' motion not only deprived the judge of jurisdiction to rule on the summary judgment motion heard on March 28, but also of jurisdiction to rule on the remaining defendants' motion for summary judgment. Therefore all the summary judgments were void for want of jurisdiction, and the matter was remanded to be heard by a different judge (163 Cal. App. 3d 820, 826-830) .

With respect to the actions of the disqualified judge being "void," it has been suggested that "voidable" is a more accurate term because the disqualification may be waived by the parties [see Guedalia v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1156, 1161 n.3, 260 Cal. Rptr. 99] .

[c] Motion Filed at Least Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing

Eagle Maintenance & Supply Co. v. Superior Court (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 692, 16 Cal. Rptr. 745 , involved a proceeding in which an appellate court issued a peremptory writ of prohibition to prevent a superior court judge from trying a cause of action pending before him. In the superior court, the cause went to trial as a default with judgment entered inplaintiff's favor. Subsequently, defendant moved the court to set aside the default judgment, the motion was granted, and the matter was set for retrial on a certain date. Because of continuances, over 97 days elapsed between that date and the date on which the cause was finally scheduled to be tried. Plaintiff filed a motion to disqualify the trial judge five days before the final scheduled trial date. Defendant contended that since plaintiff knew almost a month prior to the original retrial date that the judge who first tried the case would retry it on that date, plaintiff's motion was not timely filed. In issuing the writ of prohibition as sought by plaintiff, the appellate court disagreed, stating that Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 should be liberally construed, considering that a party might believe a judge to be impartial when a trial date was originally set, but if the trial were set over for several months, changed circumstances might necessitate the later filing of a motion. Also, because of the transfer of judges from one department to another, if a case were continued for a substantial period of time, it would place an undue hardship on a litigant to compel him or her to know before the first scheduled trial setting which judge would finally be assigned to try his or her case. So construing Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, the court held a peremptory motion and affidavit to be timely if presented at least five days before the last scheduled date for trial where a judge who is assigned to or scheduled to try the cause is known to the party or his attorney at least 10 days before such date. In dictum, the court noted that no facts are required to be set forth supporting the charge of prejudice, so that an affidavit is sufficient if there is only a belief as to the existence of prejudice even though it may not in fact exist (196 Cal. App. 2d 692, 694-695) .

[d] Motion Filed Five Days Before Postponed Date

In Zdonek v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 849, 113 Cal. Rptr. 669 , the judge presiding in the civil master calendar department had consolidated two cases and assigned the consolidated action to another judge for all further proceedings. The assigned judge heard and overruled a demurrer to the complaints, and a motion to test the propriety of the case as a class action was set and then continued. Over five days prior to the date to which the hearing on the latter motion was continued, one of the defendants filed a motion for disqualification. The motion conformed with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, and, if timely, would have been immediately effective to deprive the assigned judge of further jurisdiction in the case. The judge presiding in the master calendar department denied the motion on the ground it was not timely filed.

Defendant then petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of prohibition. The court issued the writ, holding the motion to have been timely filed. The court held that the assignment was not from a master calendar as contemplated by Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] and that therefore, the ten-day/five-day provision of that section applied (38 Cal. App. 3d 849, 852) [note that § 170.6(a)(2) was subsequently amended to provide a different rule for cases assigned to a judge for all purposes; see § 130.24]. Under the ten-day/five-day rule, if a judge who is scheduled to hear a matter is known at least 10 days before the date set for trial or hearing, the motion to disqualify must be made at least five days before that date. Counsel for real party in interest contended that although the motion to disqualify had been filed more than five days prior to the date to which the court had continued the hearing of the class action motion, the motion to disqualify was untimely because it was not filed five days prior to the date originally set for the hearing on that motion. The appellate court rejected this contention and held that if a hearing date is set, and the hearing is postponed, a motion filed five days prior to the postponed date is timely and, in this regard, petitioner's motion to disqualify was timely filed (38 Cal. App. 3d 849, 854) .

The Zdonek case was overruled on another ground by the same court in Woodman v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 407, 410, 419, 241 Cal. Rptr. 818 (discussed in § 130.24[3][a]).

[e] Case Not Subject to Master Calendar Rule

In People v. Superior Court (Lavi) (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1164 , the case was transferred to the criminal master calendar department of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, Central District, after various pretrial motions had been heard. When the parties appeared in the master calendar department to have a trial date assigned, the judge transferred the case for trial setting to a "long cause" department in which Judge Trammell presided. The People did not immediately challenge Judge Trammell, but did so the same afternoon after the conclusion of the hearing. The challenge was rejected as untimely under the master calendar rule. The People petitioned for a writ of mandate, which was ultimately denied by the court of appeal, and the People petitioned the Supreme Court for review.

The Supreme Court reversed, noting that under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], a challenge is timely if made before trial commences, unless an exception to that rule, such as the all purpose assignment rule or ten-day/five-day rule, applies (4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1172) . The Court stated that the label of a department as a "master calendar" department was persuasive, but not dispositive of whether the master calendar rule applies (4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1175) . Looking to the purpose of the rule, the court held that it applies only when a ready case is assigned to a ready courtroom (4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1177) . In a footnote, the Court clarified the meaning of "ready" courtroom, pointing out that the courtroom need not be idle, but only available or reasonably expected to become available shortly so that trial may commence. Thus, the mastercalendar rule could apply to an assignment in the morning for a trial expected to commence that afternoon, or to an afternoon assignment for trial to begin in the morning (4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1177 n.8). This clearly had not been the case here, because it was contemplated that the trial date would be set in the other department and for a date in the future. The Court then found that the challenge was timely under the all purpose assignment rule (4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1178-1182) . Finally, the court held that even if it were not an all purpose assignment, the challenge was timely under the ten-day/five-day rule (4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1182-1185) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case

In McCartney v. Commission on Judicial Qualifications (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 512, 116 Cal. Rptr. 260, 526 P.2d 268 , the Supreme Court issued a writ of review in response to the petition of a municipal court judge that the Court modify or reject the recommendation of the Commission on Judicial Qualifications that he be removed from office. The Court concluded that censure, rather than removal, was the appropriate discipline. Accordingly, the judge was censured for injudicious conduct including the judge's angry criticism of public defenders for filing affidavits of prejudice against him (12 Cal. 3d 512, 530-531) . The Court noted that in enacting Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, the Legislature guaranteed to litigants an extraordinary right to disqualify a judge. The right is "automatic" in the sense that a good faith belief in prejudice is alone sufficient, proof of facts showing actual prejudice not being required. Accordingly, the rule has developed that, once an affidavit of prejudice has been filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, the court has no jurisdiction to hold further proceedings in the matter except to inquire into the timeliness of the affidavit or its technical sufficiency under the statute. When the affidavit is timely and properly made, immediate disqualification is mandatory. Hence, the judge was bound to accept proper affidavits without further inquiry. A fortiori, his vehement criticism of public defenders for exercising such statutory power was clearly improper (12 Cal. 3d 512, 531-532) . In the light of mitigating factors, however, the Court held that censure was adequate discipline (12 Cal. 3d 512, 539-540) .

Andrews v. Joint Clerks etc. Committee (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 285, 48 Cal. Rptr. 646 , involved a labor dispute that had been submitted to arbitration by order of a trial court in 1962. In 1964, plaintiffs filed a second action to have certain matters removed from the arbitrator. Defendants demurred to the 1964 complaint. More than five days prior to hearing on the demurrer, one of the plaintiffs filed an affidavit of prejudice and a motion for disqualification of the judge who was to hear the demurrer and who had heard the 1962 case. The judge struck the affidavit of prejudice and sustained the demurrer without leave to amend the complaint. On plaintiff's appeal, the court of appeal stated that a judge against whom a peremptory challenge has been directed is automatically disqualified and without jurisdiction to proceed with a trial or hearing when the Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 motion has been timely made and supported by a sufficient affidavit (239 Cal. App. 2d 285, 293-294) . However, the court affirmed the judgment of dismissal by concluding that the proceeding in which disqualification was sought was actually a part and continuation of other proceedings pending therein in which the same trial judge had previously heard a matter involving a contested issue of law or fact and that the motion for his disqualification was therefore not timely made, the affidavit of disqualification was properly stricken, and the judge retained jurisdiction to proceed with the case (239 Cal. App. 2d 285, 298-302) .

[b] Case Not Subject to Master Calendar Rule

In Villarruel v. Superior Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 559, 110 Cal. Rptr. 861 , defendant was arraigned before the presiding superior court judge who ordered the case set for trial before another judge in another department. When he appeared before the assigned judge, defendant moved to continue the trial, and then filed a declaration under penalty of perjury to disqualify the assigned judge. The assigned judge struck the declaration as not timely, applying the master calendar rule. The appellate court held that the master calendar rule did not apply and that the motion was timely filed under the ten-day/five-day rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], considering the policy reasons underlying the master calendar provision (35 Cal. App. 3d 559, 562-563) . The court noted that not every case assigned by a master calendar department has been assigned from a "master calendar," and, in the present case, where the presiding judge of a multi-judge court set defendant's trial date in another department over a month in advance, the case was not on, or assigned from, a master calendar as that term is used in former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 223, or Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. When a case is assigned for future trial, the reasons for the special "master calendar" provision do not exist and defendant's motion to disqualify the assigned judge, when filed more than five days prior to the trial date, was timely in accordance with the ten-day/five-day provision. The court issued a peremptory writ of prohibition to prohibit any further proceedings before the assigned judge (35 Cal. App. 3d 559, 563-564) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.21

§ 130.21 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Before Commencement of Trial Where Judge Not Known at Least 10 Days Before Trial of Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE BEFORE COMMENCEMENT OF THE TRIAL BECAUSE THE JUDGE WAS NOT KNOWN UNTIL _____ [period of less than 10 days prior to trial, e.g., FOUR DAYS BEFORE THE TRIAL DATE].

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Motion Made Before Commencement of Trial. Where the judge or court commissioner or referee assigned or scheduled to try a cause is not known at least 10 days before the date set for trial, a motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 to disqualify made before the drawing of the name of the first juror, or before plaintiff's counsel makes an opening statement in a nonjury case, or before the swearing of the first witness or giving of any evidence in a nonjury case without opening statement by plaintiff's counsel, or before trial of the cause has otherwise commenced is timely (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)).

[Optional] D. Case Not Subject to Master Calendar Rule. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph E.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has not granted a timely peremptory motion to disqualify made before commencement of a trial in a case in which the judge is not known to petitioner at least 10 days before the trial [see § 130.20], the case is not assigned on a master calendar system [see § 130.23], and is not assigned to one judge for all purposes [see § 130.24; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. Other specific time limits are listed in § 130.20[2][a]. If none of these exceptions apply, but the challenge is made prior to a hearing other than a trial, see the memorandum set out in § 130.22.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should show that none of the exceptions noted above apply.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.38, 130.41 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.22

§ 130.22 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(3)]--Motion Made Before Commencement of Hearing When Judge Not Known at Least 10 Days Before Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THECASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE BEFORE COMMENCEMENT OF THE HEARING BECAUSE THE JUDGE WAS NOT KNOWN UNTIL _____ [period of less than 10 days prior to trial, e.g., FOUR DAYS BEFORE THE HEARING DATE].

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Motion Before Commencement of Hearing. When the judge or court commissioner or referee assigned or scheduled to hear a matter other than the trial of a cause is not known at least 10 days before the date set for hearing, a motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 to disqualify made not later than commencement of the hearing is timely (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)).

[Optional] D. Motion Made as Expeditiously as Possible After Agreed Matter Becomes Litigated. A motion for disqualification of a judge is timely under both the spirit and the letter of Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 if a party moves as expeditiously as it is possible for him or her to do after a theretofore agreed on matter becomes litigated (Mayr v. Superior Court (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 60, 64, 39 Cal. Rptr. 240).

[Optional] E. Case Not Subject to Master Calendar Rule. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph E.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has not granted a timely peremptory motion to disqualify made before commencement of a hearing in a case in which the judge is not known to petitioner at least 10 days before the hearing [see § 130.20], the case is not assigned on a master calendar system [see § 130.23], and is not assigned to one judge for all purposes [see § 130.24; see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. Other specific time limits are listed in § 130.20[2][a]. If none of these exceptions apply, but the challenge is made prior to a trial as opposed to a hearing, see the memorandum set out in § 130.21.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should show that none of the exceptions noted above apply.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used to support a petition for a writ of mandate directing a respondent court to vacate a void order entered by a judge when petitioner's motion to disqualify was made at the commencement of a hearing on an order to show cause in a case in which petitioner did not know prior to that date that the judge intended to hear the matter [see Spector v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 839, 840, 13 Cal. Rptr. 189, 361 P.2d 909] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[d] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.40 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made as Expeditiously as Possible After Agreed Matter Becomes Litigated

Mayr v. Superior Court (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 60, 39 Cal. Rptr. 240 , involved a proceeding in prohibition before the court of appeal to prevent the respondent judge from hearing a dissolution action. Petitioner alleged that he and his wife had agreed prior to suit that the children would be placed in the husband's custody. Thereafter he filed a document with the court acknowledging receipt of a copy of the complaint and summons, but no answer was filed and his default was taken. At the ex parte hearing in which the wife appeared but the husband did not, evidence was taken that reopened the issue of child custody. The court ordered an investigation bya probation officer to assist in determining the question. The officer filed his report, and notice was sent to petitioner's attorney advising him of the amount of time he had in which to file for further hearing or opposition, and thereupon, the matter was to be submitted. At that point, petitioner's counsel filed a motion to disqualify the assigned judge accompanied by a supporting affidavit. The court ordered it stricken as untimely, and petitioner applied for prohibition before the court of appeal (228 Cal. App. 2d 60, 62-63) .

The appellate court granted the peremptory writ of prohibition. It concluded that the motion was timely, was properly made, and should have been granted and stated that if a party moves as expeditiously as possible after a theretofore agreed upon matter in a lawsuit becomes litigated, the motion is timely under both the spirit and letter of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (228 Cal. App. 2d 60, 64) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Before Commencement of Hearing

In Retes v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 799, 176 Cal. Rptr. 160 , a matter was assigned to a law and motion department and the judge sitting in that department. On arrival at the hearing, petitioner moved to disqualify the judge and the motion was denied as untimely under the ten-day/five-day rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The court of appeal vacated the denial order, noting the rule of Bouchard v. Insona (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 768, 164 Cal. Rptr. 505 , that the ten-day/five-day provision does not apply to matters assigned to a law and motion department. The court stated that, despite the naming of the law and motion judge in addition to the department, the facts were within the rule of Bouchard. Law and motion judges routinely reassign matters, and thus the initial designation failed to provide enough certainty regarding which judge would actually hear a matter so as to trigger operation of the ten-day/five-day rule (122 Cal. App. 3d 799, 806) .

The Second District Court of Appeal has declined to follow Bouchard or Retes in Thomas Realty Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 91, 93-96, 244 Cal. Rptr. 733 (discussed in § 130.37[3][a]). However, although the Supreme Court opinion in People v. Superior Court (Lavi), also discussed in § 130.37[3][a], seems inconsistent with Bouchard, the Lavi opinion does not expressly disapprove Bouchard, and distinguishes Retes, from which it may be inferred that Retes has more vitality than Thomas Realty would accord it.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.23

§ 130.23 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made to Master Calendar Judge Not Later Than Time Cause Assigned for Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE MASTER CALENDAR JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE WHEN THE CASE WAS ASSIGNED FOR TRIAL BY THE MASTER CALENDAR JUDGE.

A. When Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Motion Made to Master Calendar Judge. If directed to the trial of a cause where there is a master calendar, a Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 motion to disqualify a judge assigned to try the cause shall be made to the judge supervising the master calendar not later than the time the cause is assigned for trial (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent an assigned judge from proceeding with a case assigned on the master calendar system when the master calendar judge failed to grant a timely peremptory motion todisqualify made not later than the time the cause is assigned for trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)].

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.39, 130.41 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 317, Judges (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.24

§ 130.24 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Timely Motion Made After Appearance or Notice of All-Purpose Assignment to Judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE WITHIN _____ [10 DAYS AFTER NOTICE OF THE ALL-PURPOSE ASSIGNMENT or _____ (10 or 15) DAYS AFTER PETITIONER'S APPEARANCE IN THE ACTION].

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Motion Made After All-Purpose Assignment. A disqualification motion made under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 and directed to the trial of a cause that has been assigned to a judge for "all purposes" is timely when made to the assigned judge, or to the presiding judge, within 10 days after notice of the all-purpose assignment or, if the moving party has not yet appeared in the action, within 10 days after the appearance (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)). When notice of the all-purpose assignment is served by mail, the 10 day period in which to make the motion is extended under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) (California Business Council v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1102, 1106, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 7).

[Optional] D. Fifteen Days in Direct Calendar Court Subject to Trial Court Delay Reduction Act. In actions subject to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code §§ 68600 et seq.) brought in direct calendar courts, notwithstanding Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.6, peremptory challenges under that section must be exercised within 15 days of the party's first appearance (Gov. Code § 68616(i)).

[OR]

[Optional] D. Fifteen Days in Direct Calendar Court Subject to Trial Court Delay Reduction Act. In actions subject to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code §§ 68600 et seq.) brought in direct calendar courts, notwithstanding Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.6, peremptory challenges under that section must be exercised within 15 days of the party's first appearance (Gov. Code § 68616(i)). If a direct calendar assignment is made more than 15 days after a complaint is filed, _____ [the plaintiff's first appearance or the first appearance of a defendant who has already responded to the complaint] coincides with the direct calendar assignment so as to allow 15 days from that time within which to exercise the challenge (Fight for the Rams v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 953, 957-958, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 851).

[OR]

[Optional] D. Fifteen Days in Direct Calendar Court Subject to Trial Court Delay Reduction Act. In actions subject to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code §§ 68600 et seq) brought in direct calendar courts, notwithstanding Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.6, peremptory challenges under that section must be exercised within 15 days of the party's first appearance (Gov. Code § 68616(i)). If an individual calendar judge assigned to the case is changed, a party that has already appeared in the action must file its challenge within 15 days of receiving notice of the change (Cybermedia, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 913, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] E. Motion Timely Made After General Appearance. In determining whether a peremptory motion to disqualify has been timely made after a party's "appearance," the period is calculated from the party's first general appearance, not from an earlier special appearance (see La Seigneurie U.S. Holdings, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1504-1506, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 175).

[Optional] F. Late-Appearing Defendant's Motion Timely Made When Done So Within 10 Days After That Defendant's Appearance. In a multi-defendant case, a trial court must grant a late named defendant's peremptory challenge to a judge assigned for all purposes notwithstanding that the time within which the other defendants could have challenged the judge has long since expired, [and notwithstanding that the case has been assigned to one judge as complex litigation], when the late appearing defendant exercises his/her/its right to disqualify a judge within 10 days after his/her/its appearance (School Dist. of Okaloosa County v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1129, 1131, 1134-1135, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 (defendant named as Doe defendant and shortly thereafter served)).

[Optional] G. Case Not Subject to Master Calendar Rule. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph E.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge who has been assigned to a case for "all purposes" from proceeding to trial of a case when the assigned judge, or the presiding judge, has denied a peremptory motion to disqualify made within 10 days after notice of the all-purpose assignment or, if the moving party has not yet appeared in the action, within 10 days after the appearance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)].

Optional Paragraph D should be used if the action is subject to the Trial Delay Reduction Act and the all-purpose assignment is made in a direct calendar court, in which case the party has 15 days after making an appearance in which to bring the challenge [see Gov. Code § 68616(i)]. The appropriate choice that fits the facts should be selected.

Optional Paragraph E should be used if the time period for making the challenge is based on the party first appearing in the action after the assignment was made, and the party had made a special appearance before generally appearing.

Optional Paragraph F should be used by a named defendant who was originally named as a Doe defendant (see Code Civ. Proc. § 474) who is thereafter served. The optional language contained within the paragraph can be used when in addition to a case being assigned to one judge for all purposes the action is designated as complex litigation.

Optional Paragraph G should be used when the opposing party claims the challenge was untimely under the "master calendar" rule, but it was not a master calendar assignment within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 317, Judges (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.41 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After All-Purpose Assignment

Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2) was amended in 1989 to provide that when a disqualification motion is directed to the trial of a cause that has been assigned to a judge for "all purposes," a party must make the motion to the assigned judge, or to the presiding judge, within 10 days after notice of the all-purpose assignment or, if the party has not yet appeared in the action, within 10 days after the appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. The amendment abrogates the holding in Woodman v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 407, 416-419, 241 Cal. Rptr. 818 , that the "master calendar rule" applies when a case is assigned by a master calendar court to a named judge for all purposes and that a motion to disqualify theassigned judge therefore must be made not later than the time the cause is assigned for trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2) (master calendar rule)].

In California Business Council v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 7 , an action was assigned to a judge who was challenged pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. A new order was issued by the presiding judge assigning another judge on the case for all purposes, and on the same day the court clerk deposited copies of both the minute order memorializing the assignment and the formal order signed by the presiding judge in the mail addressed to the persons to be served at an address in California. A peremptory challenge to the judge was filed 14 days after the copy of the order was mailed. The superior court ruled the challenge untimely on the ground that the 10-day period within which to file a challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] was not extended by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 and had expired. A writ proceeding followed.

The court of appeal found the disqualification motion to have been timely filed, and issued a peremptory writ directing the superior court to set aside its order and issue a new order granting the motion to disqualify the judge (52 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1102-1103) . The court held that the time within which to file a peremptory challenge to the "all-purpose" assignment of a trial court judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] is extended under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) when notice of the assignment is served by mail (52 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1102) . Since the written order assigning the judge for all purposes was served by mail to an address in California, the notice came within the purview of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) extending the period within which to challenge the judge by five days. Accordingly, the 10-day period provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] within which to file a peremptory challenge to the assignment was extended to 15 days. Because the challenge was made on the fourteenth day, it was timely (52 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1106) .

[b] Fifteen Days in Direct Calendar Court Subject to Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

In Cybermedia, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 , the action that was filed was originally assigned on June 18, 1998, to one judge for all purposes who was designated the individual calendar judge for department 31. On October 19, 1998, that judge was replaced in department 31 by another judge. Sometime in October, the public information officer of the superior court mailed to the law firm representing the defendants a general notice, including the change in judges, but with no indication of case names or full case numbers. On October 20, 1998, defendants filed demurrers and motions to strike. On Friday, November 13, 1998, the attorney assigned to defendants' case appeared for the hearing on the demurrers and motions to strike and for the first time learned of the new judge now presiding in department 31. The judge allowed counsel to argue the demurrers and motions deferring ruling until such time as the judge received additional briefing on certain specified issues. The following Monday, on November 16, 1998, defendants filed a motion for a peremptory challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 to disqualify the judge. On November 17, 1998, the motion was denied as untimely. Defendants sought review by extraordinary writ (72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 912-913) .

The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate directing the superior court to set aside its order denying defendants' Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 motion and directing the superior court to issue a new and different order granting the motion (72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 914-915) . The court noted that Gov. Code § 68616(i) provides that notwithstanding Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.6, in direct calendar courts, challenges under that section must be exercised within 15 days of the party's first appearance. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.5(a), provides that a challenge to an (individual calendar judge) under Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.6 must be made with 15 days of the party's first appearance. Neither Gov. Code § 68616(i) nor Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.5(a) specifies a time limitation when there is a change in an individual calendar judge assigned to the case after the party's first appearance. However, in a case in which a cause has been assigned to a judge for all purposes, Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] provides that a party who has already appeared in the action must file the challenge within 10 days after notice of the all purpose assignment. Harmonizing Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] with Gov. Code § 68616(i), the court determined that where, as in this case, a party has already appeared in the action, it must file its challenge within 15 days of receiving notice of a change in the individual calendar judge assigned to the case (72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 913) . The notice mailed by the superior court's public information office was insufficient notice to defendants to trigger the 15 day period. It was not addressed to the attorney assigned to the case and did not reference the case name or full case number. Moreover, the assigned attorney did not learn of the general notice until after the challenge was filed. Because the assigned attorney was not given notice of the new assigned judge and because the peremptory challenge was filed three days after defendants received actual notice of the assignment, the motion was timely (72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 914) .

Furthermore, the court noted that once properly and timely challenged, the judge loses jurisdiction to proceed and all his or her subsequent orders and judgments are void. However, with respect to the hearing on the demurrers and motions to strike, defendants' challenge was untimelybecause it should have been filed before commencement of the hearing. Accordingly, the trial court had jurisdiction to rule on the demurrers and motions to strike before it. Thus, the superior court was ordered on remand to rule on the demurrers and motions to strike before granting defendants Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 motion (72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 914) .

In Fight for the Rams v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 953, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 851 , at a hearing several months after the complaint was filed, the originally assigned judge recused himself, transferring the matter to another department. A subsequent minute order and phone call to counsel confirmed a new all-purpose assignment to another judge. A hearing on certain motions was held five days later, and after rulings in favor of defendant, plaintiff filed a peremptory challenge. The challenge was made within 10 days of the superior court's notice of the assignment. However, defendant claimed that because the action was subject to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act, Gov. Code § 68616 precluded a peremptory challenge more than 15 days after the action was filed. The trial court agreed, and rejected the peremptory challenge as untimely.

The court of appeal noted that the defendant's interpretation would have the effect of eliminating any plaintiff from making a Section 170.6 peremptory challenge in a case under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act when the judge is assigned more than 15 days after the action is commenced. Disagreeing with the results of such an interpretation, the court held that when a direct calendar assignment is made more than 15 days after a complaint is filed, the "first appearance" by a plaintiff or defendant who has already responded to the complaint in a direct calendar court coincides with the direct calendar assignment (41 Cal. App. 4th 953, 958) . The court issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to grant plaintiff's motion for a peremptory challenge.

[c] Motion Timely Made After General Appearance

La Seigneurie U.S. Holdings, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 175 , involved an action tried under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (TCDRA), Gov. Code § 68600 et seq. The plaintiff successfully moved to disqualify the first judge assigned to the case for "all purposes." Shortly thereafter, defendant corporation made a special appearance by filing a motion to quash service of process. The following day, a new judge was assigned to the case for "all purposes." On learning of the motion to quash, plaintiff represented that he was in the process of utilizing an alternative method of service. By the time the trial court granted the motion to quash, the plaintiff had perfected service otherwise. Defendant then filed its answer along with a declaration challenging the new judge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The trial court denied the motion as untimely based on the defendant's earlier special appearance to quash service of process and adhered to this ruling in a subsequent motion for reconsideration (29 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1502) .

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its prior order and to grant defendant's peremptory challenge (29 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1506) . It noted that, under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], a party moving for disqualification of a judge assigned to the cause for "all purposes" must file its motion within 10 days after notice of the all purpose assignment, or if the party has not yet appeared in the action, then within 10 days after the appearance. It further observed that Gov. Code § 68616(i), provides that notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, in direct calendar courts, challenges shall be exercised within 15 days of the party's first appearance. The court then found that the term "appearance" has been consistently interpreted to mean "general appearance" in the context of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The court also noted that a party filing a motion to quash may move to disqualify the assigned judge from ruling on it, but is not required to do so, and that the time within which the party must move to disqualify the judge will not commence until after the party's first general appearance (

29 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1503-1506) .

[d] Late-Appearing Defendant's Motion Timely Made When Done So Within 10 Days After That Defendant's Appearance.

School Dist. of Okaloosa County v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 , involved multiple plaintiffs and multiple defendants. The case was assigned to one judge for all purposes. None of the parties moved to disqualify the judge. The judge later designated the action as complex litigation. When the judge became the Assistant Presiding Judge of the Los Angeles Superior Court, the case was reassigned to another judge for all purposes, and none of the parties moved to disqualify the new judge. While the case was pending before the original judge several of the defendants moved to quash service of summons on the grounds that their contacts with California were insufficient to permit the exercise of in personam jurisdiction. The motions were denied. After the case was transferred to the new judge another defendant moved to quash on the same grounds, and the new judge denied the motion. Meanwhile, before the new judge denied the motion, the defendant currently before the court was named as a Doe defendant and was served in Florida. Defendant thereafter filed its disqualification motion and also filed a motion to quash service of summons. The new judge struck the disqualification motion as untimely finding that the statutory time for the defense side to issue such a challenge had long expired and that the court had prior to the instant filing issued numerous merit rulings. The judge continued the hearing on defendant's motion to quash. The defendant then filed a petition for writof mandate, asking the court of appeal to compel the judge to grant the disqualification motion (58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1129-1130) .

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order denying defendant's disqualification motion and to enter a new order granting the motion and transferring the case to the presiding judge for reassignment to another judge (58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1137) . The court held that a trial court must grant a late named defendant's peremptory challenge to a judge assigned for all purposes notwithstanding that the time within which the other defendants could have challenged the judge has long since expired, and notwithstanding that the case has been assigned to one judge as complex litigation, when the late appearing defendant exercises its right to disqualify a judge within 10 days after its appearance (58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1129, 1134) . Under such circumstances, the rules governing coordination cases do not apply to cases designated as complex litigation (58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1135-1136) . However, if another defendant on the same side has exercised its right to disqualify a judge, a late appearing defendant has no right to challenge the then-current judge because that side has used its one challenge (58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1134-1135) . In addition, the court found that the motions to quash, on which the judge had already ruled, did not involve the resolution of contested fact issues relating to the merits of the case, which would have barred the Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] motion (58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1133) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Difference Between Direct Calendar and Master Calendar Courts

In Zilog, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173 , the plaintiff in an insurance bad faith action filed a Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge of the judge assigned as case management judge for all purposes except trial. The judge denied the challenge as untimely under Gov. Code § 68616(i), which provides that, in a direct calendar court, a Section 170.6 challenge must be exercised within 15 days of the party's appearance in the action. The court of appeal issued the writ of mandate, stating that the court in question (Santa Clara County) had attributes of both a direct calendar and a master calendar court, but because the judge was assigned for all purposes except trial, the time limits governing master calendar courts [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] applied, and therefore the challenge was timely (86 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 1320-1321) .

[b] Timeliness in Direct Calendar Assignment

In Motion Picture & Television Fund Hospital v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 488, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872 , the plaintiff filed a peremptory challenge of a judge 31 days after the court served notice of the assignment of the judge, 30 days after plaintiff had given notice of the assignment to defendant, and 2 days after the initial status conference with the judge. The judge accepted the challenge as timely, and defendant filed a petition for writ of mandate. In argument to the appellate court, plaintiff submitted an unverified statement that the practice of the Los Angeles Superior Court was to reject a peremptory challenge of a judge if it is submitted after notice of assignment is mailed, but before the judge actually begins to hear cases in the new assignment. The court of appeal held that if such a practice existed in the court it was invalid. The court further held that the challenge was untimely per Gov. Code § 68616(i), which requires a party in a direct calendar to exercise a peremptory challenge within 15 days of the party's first appearance in the action. When a direct calendar assignment is made more than 15 days after the first appearance, the 15 days runs from the date when the party receives notice of the assignment (88 Cal. App. 4th 488, 492-494) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.25

§ 130.25 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Initially Filed Motion Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 Was Dismissed [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE BECAUSE THE INITIAL MOTION TO DISQUALIFY WAS DISMISSED.

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Motion Made After Previous Motion to Disqualify Was Dismissed. The Code of Civil Procedure section 170.6(a)(3) restriction to a single peremptory challenge in any one action or special proceeding does not preclude a party from filing a later peremptory challenge when the initial motion did not result in reassignment ofthe case. When an initial motion to disqualify under Code of Civil Procedure section 170.6 has been dismissed and the original judge is later replaced for other reasons, the initial motion was not "duly filed" and does not preclude a second motion to disqualify (see Truck Ins. Exchange v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 142, 147-148, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 721 (initial motion dismissed as untimely)).

[Optional] D. Motion Filed at Least Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph C.]

[Optional] E. Motion Filed Five Days Before Postponed Date. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph D.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has not granted a peremptory motion to disqualify that was timely made, but after an initial motion to disqualify was dismissed and the original judge has been removed from the case for reasons other than the peremptory challenge.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should show why the initial motion to disqualify was dismissed, and that the original judge was replaced for some reason other than the peremptory challenge.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 317, Judges (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Previous Motion to Disqualify Was Dismissed

In Truck Ins. Exchange v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 142, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 721 , the plaintiff filed a peremptory challenge, which the judge dismissed as untimely. The judge, who continued to hear motions in the case after the peremptory challenge was dismissed, retired before the trial began, and another judge was assigned to the case. The plaintiff filed a peremptory challenge of the new judge, who found the challenge to be timely filed and in proper form. The challenge was accepted and the case was transferred for reassignment.

The defendant filed a petition for writ of mandamus and/or prohibition, seeking to have the peremptory challenge set aside on the ground that the plaintiff had already made one peremptory challenge. The appellate court denied the petition, holding that the initial peremptory challenge was not "duly filed" because it was dismissed as untimely, and that because the initial challenge did not result in a change of judges, the plaintiff's one peremptory challenge had not been exhausted. "[A]bsent the change of judge, no peremptory challenge was exhausted and the litigants retain the right to exercise one peremptory challenge per proceeding." The fact that the judge was removed from the case was because of his retirement, not because of the peremptory challenge (67 Cal. App. 4th 142, 148) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.26

§ 130.26 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Judge Changed After First Appearance

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE BECAUSE THE MOTION WAS FILED AFTER FIRST APPEARANCE BUT WITHIN 15 DAYS OF RECEIVING NOTICE OF CHANGE IN JUDGE.

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Timely Motion When Judge Changed After Parties Appeared. Where the judge assigned to the case is changed after the parties have already appeared in the action, the party may challenge the new judge under Code of Civil Procedure section 170.6 as long as the challenge is filed within 15 days of receiving notice of the change in judges (see Cybermedia, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 913, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has not granted a peremptory motion to disqualify that was made after the judge assigned to the case is changed after the parties have already appeared in the action.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should show when and how he or she received notice of the change in judges, and that the motion was made within 15 days of receiving notice of the change in judges.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 317, Judges (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Timely Motion When Judge Changed After Parties Appeared

In Cybermedia, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 , the parties appeared before a judge assigned to the case for all purposes. Thereafter, the court changed the department assignments of several judges, which resulted in the change of judges assigned to the case. A general notice was sent to all law firms, containing the change of departmental assignments of several judges, including the judge assigned to the Cybermedia case. The notice was not directed to the attorney handling the case, and neither the case name nor number was referenced on the notice. The attorney handling the case, who was with a large law firm and never saw the notice, first learned of the change of judges when he appeared for argument on demurrers and motions to strike. Three days after the argument, but before the judge ruled on the demurrers and motions to strike, defendants filed a peremptory challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The judge denied the motion as "not timely."

The defendants filed a petition for writ of mandamus, seeking to have the denial of the peremptory challenge set aside. The appellate court granted the petition and issued the peremptory writ. Harmonizing Gov. Code § 68616 and Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], the court determined that the when a party has appeared in an action, it must file its peremptory challenge within 15 days of receiving notice of a change in the individual calendar judge assigned to the case (72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 913) . The court held that the defendants' motion was timely, because the general notice mailed by the court's public information office was not sufficient notice to the defendants to trigger the 15-day time period (72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 914) . However, because the challenge was not timely as to the demurrers and motions to strike, the judge had jurisdiction to rule on them and the appellate court, in remanding the case, directed the judge to rule on those motions before granting the section 170.6 motion (72 Cal. App. 4th 910, 914) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.27

§ 130.27 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Before Expiration of 30 Days of Party's First Appearance in One-Judge Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE BECAUSE THE ACTION IS PENDING IN A COURT THAT IS AUTHORIZED NOT MORE THAN ONE JUDGE, AND THE MOTION WAS MADE BEFORE THE EXPIRATION OF 30 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF THE MOVING PARTY'S FIRST APPEARANCE IN THE ACTION.

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Motion Made Before Expiration of 30-Day Period. If the court in which the action is pending is authorized to have no more than one judge and the motion claims that the duly elected or appointed judge of that court is prejudiced, the motion to disqualify is timely if it is made before the expiration of 30 days from the date of the first appearance in the action of the party who is making the motion or whose attorney is making the motion (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case if a timely peremptory motion to disqualify has not been granted. In a one-judge court, the motion to disqualify must be made before the expiration of 30 days from the date of the first appearance of the party making the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2); see People v. Superior Court (Smith) (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 427, 429-430, 235 Cal. Rptr. 482 (30-day period is from party's first appearance, not from party's or attorney's first appearance in the alternative)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should discuss facts showing that the motion was timely made and duly supported by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury, or an oral statement under oath, that the judge is prejudiced against the party or his or her attorney so that a fair trial is not possible [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2), (a)(3)].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 317, Judges (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.41 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.28

§ 130.28 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Prior to Trial and Before Determination of Contested Fact Issue Relating to Merits [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate prevent a judge from hearing a case (see §§ 130.20-130.27, 130.29-130.31)]

THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS OTHERWISE TIMELY UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 170.6(2), SHOULD BE GRANTED EVEN THOUGH THE CHALLENGED JUDGE HAD EARLIER PRESIDED AT OR ACTED IN CONNECTION WITH A PRETRIAL MATTER, BECAUSE THAT MATTER DID NOT INVOLVE A DETERMINATION OF CONTESTED FACT ISSUES RELATING TO THE MERITS.

A. Motion Made Prior to Trial and Before Determination of Contested Fact Issue Relating to Merits. The fact that a judge has presided at or acted in connection with a hearing, proceeding, or motion prior to trial not involving a determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits does not preclude the making of a motion to disqualify that judge under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)).

[Optional] B. Motion Made After Demurrer Timely. Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 permits a party to preserve his/her right to disqualify a judge for trials and other fact determinations, even though the judge has earlier heard demurrers and motions without challenge (Zdonek v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 849, 852, 113 Cal. Rptr. 669 (overruled on another ground by same court in Woodman v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 407, 410, 419, 241 Cal. Rptr. 818).

[Optional] C. Motion Made After Judgment on Pleadings Timely. A motion for judgment on the pleadings does not involve any contested fact issues relating to the merits and a motion to disqualify pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 filed thereafter may be timely (Hospital Council of N. Cal. v. Superior Court (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 331, 337-338, 106 Cal. Rptr. 247).

[Optional] D. Motion Made After Motion To Quash Service Of Summons. The determination of a motion to quash service of a summons does not involve a determination of contested fact issues related to the merits of the case. Thus, the mere fact that a judge has decided such a motion does not preclude that judge from disqualification pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 (School Dist. of Okaloosa County v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1131-1134, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612).

[Optional] E. Motion Made After Summary Adjudication Motion or Summary Judgment Motion. The resolution of a summary adjudication or summary judgment motion does not involve the determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits, but rather only legal issues. Thus, the judge remains subject to a later peremptory challenge pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 (Zilog Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 1321, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173) (summary adjudication motion); (Bambula v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 653, 656-657, 220 Cal. Rptr. 223) (summary judgment motion).

[Optional] F. Motion Made After Court Ruling on Pretrial Motion Pursuant to *Civ. Code § 3295(c) . A ruling under Civ. Code § 3295(c) that a plaintiff has demonstrated a substantial probability that he or she will prevail on a claim for punitive damages is not a "determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits" for purposes of asserting a peremptory challenge to a judge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2) (Guardado v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 91, 93, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use in support of a party's contention that a motion for peremptory challenge of a judge was timely made even though the judge had presided over or acted in pretrial proceedings in the case. The ground is that those proceedings did not involve determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)].

This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with general points and authorities relating to review of the denial of a timely motion for peremptory disqualification of a judge [see §§ 130.20 -130.27, 130.29 -130.31].

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.41 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Demurrer Timely

The factual background of Zdonek v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 849, 113 Cal. Rptr. 669 , is discussed in § 130.20[3][d]. In issuing the writ of prohibition, the appellate court determined that the motion was timely since the challenged judge had not yet conducted any hearings that involved a determination of any contested fact issue relating to the merits. The court noted that the purpose of the 1965 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] was to preserve a party's right to disqualify a judge for trials and other fact determinations, notwithstanding that the judge had earlier heard demurrers and motions without challenge. Therefore, although the judge had conducted a hearing on a demurrer, he had not yet conducted any hearing that involved a determination of any contested fact issue relating to the merits. The court further stated that the fact that the consolidated civil action was assigned to the judge for all proceedings did not prevent an application of the amendment allowing a disqualification motion to be made after a hearing on a demurrer (38 Cal. App. 3d 849, 852-853) .

The Zdonek case was overruled by the same court in Woodman v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 407, 410, 419, 241 Cal. Rptr. 818 (discussed in § 130.24[3][a]), to the extent it held that the master calendar rule did not apply when a case was assigned to a judge for all purposes.

Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2), as amended in 1989, now provides a specific time for disqualifying a judge assigned to a case for all purposes. Once that time limit has run, the express language of § 170.6(2) would preclude later challenge even if the judge had not, in that time, ruled on any contested fact issues relating to the merits of the case. This appears to abrogate Zdonek with respect to judges appointed for all purposes.

[b] Motion Made After Judgment on Pleadings Timely

Hospital Council of N. Cal. v. Superior Court (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 331, 106 Cal. Rptr. 247 , involved an action filed in superior court by taxpayers to recover tax revenues alleged to be due from individuals whose possessory interests in privately owned real property were not assessed. Some time after the action had been assigned a date for trial and hearing, an oral motion permitting intervenors to come into the case was granted, and they participated in the proceedings thereafter. Approximately two months after they entered the case, and on June 5, a date to which all pending matters were continued, the intervenors filed a petition in intervention along with a motion to disqualify the judge hearing the action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. When the judge denied the motion for disqualification, the intervenors petitioned the appellate court for an alternative writ of prohibition to stay the proceedings. The writ was issued and the intervenors further sought a peremptory writ of prohibition and a writ of mandate to compel reassignment of the proceedings to a different judge.

The court first considered the contention of the real parties in interest that the intervenors' motion to disqualify was untimely because it was made after the judge had reviewed and determined a motion for judgment on the pleadings. The court observed, however, that in so determining, the judge did not determine any contested fact issues relating to the merits. Although he had determined various elements of fact in order to ascertain the legal sufficiency of the pleadings, he had not determined the action on its merits. The court stated that a motion for judgment on the pleadings is inthe nature of a general demurrer and the issues raised by it are legal and not factual. Since the judge did not determine any contested fact issues relating to the merits, intervenors' motion to disqualify him was timely in that regard (30 Cal. App. 3d 331, 337-338) . But the motion was not timely filed with respect to the ten-day/five-day provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], so the court denied the peremptory writs of mandamus and prohibition and discharged the alternative writ of prohibition (30 Cal. App. 3d 331, 340) .

[c] Motion Made After Motion To Quash Service Of Summons

The factual and procedural background of School Dist. of Okaloosa County v. Superior Court (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 , is discussed in § 130.24[3][d].

In issuing a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order denying defendant's disqualification motion, the court of appeal held that a motion to quash service of summons, on the grounds that defendant's contacts with California were insufficient to permit the exercise of in personam jurisdiction, does not involve a determination of facts related to the merits of the case. However important an issue may be to the outcome of a case, it is not a bar to a disqualification motion unless it requires resolution of contested fact issues relating to the merits of the case (58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1133) . While a motion to quash service of summons on the ground that the court lacks in personam jurisdiction may and probably will involve a determination of contested facts concerning the extent of the defendant's contacts with California, the motion does not require a determination of contested facts related to the merits of the case (58 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1133-1134) .

[d] Motion Made After Summary Adjudication Motion or Summary Judgment Motion

In Zilog Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th. 1309, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173 , involving an insurance coverage dispute, the insurer refused to defend and indemnify its policyholder in a toxic tort action filed against the policyholder in the federal district court in Idaho. After the Idaho action was settled, the policyholder filed a declaratory relief and insurance bad faith action against the insurer in California. During the course of this litigation, several judges handled the matter. Judge Clark heard and denied the insurer's motion for summary adjudication of its duty to defend. Subsequently, Judge Elfving was assigned as case management judge (86 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 1312-1313) .

Judge Elfving presided over the next round of summary adjudication motions, which included the insurer's second motion for summary adjudication of its duty to defend. The policyholder responded to the second motion by filing an ex parte application for an order summarily denying or striking the insurer's motion on the grounds that the motion improperly sought reconsideration of Judge Clark's order denying the prior summary adjudication motion. Judge Elfving heard the ex parte application and determined that it should be filed and heard as a regularly noticed motion. The policyholder then filed a motion captioned "Motion for Order Denying Pacific's Motion for Summary Adjudication or, in the Alternative, Transferring the Motion to the Honorable Donald L. Clark for Hearing." Before this motion could be heard, the policyholder filed a peremptory challenge to Judge Elfving (86 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 1313) .

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the respondent court to vacate its order denying the policyholder's peremptory challenge pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6, and to enter a new and different order accepting the peremptory challenge of Judge Elfving and vacate as void its order denying the policyholder's motion for order denying the insurer's motion for summary adjudication or, alternatively, transferring the motion to Judge Clark (86 Cal. App. 4th. 1309, 1323) . After finding the motion to be timely (86 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 1320-1321) , the court held that where a judge has previously ruled on a motion for summary adjudication, that judge has determined only legal issues and remains subject to a later peremptory challenge under the plain language of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] (Judge Elfving had earlier ruled on another summary adjudication motion) (86 Cal. App. 4th. 1309, 1322) . The court expressly declined to follow the holding in California Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 267, 234 Cal. Rptr. 413 , discussed in § 130.41[4][a].

In Bambula v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 653, 220 Cal. Rptr. 223 , plaintiffs brought an action against defendants for fraud, negligence, breach of broker's duties, breach of warranty, and conspiracy. The cause was assigned to Judge Ryan, who proceeded to rule on a motion for summary judgment and on a motion for reconsideration of the summary judgment ruling. Thereafter, plaintiffs moved for peremptory disqualification of the judge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The judge denied the motion on the grounds that it was untimely filed, and that he had already heard and determined contested issues of fact. Plaintiffs then sought a writ of mandate to compel the judge to disqualify himself.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the superior court to disqualify the judge and to notify the Chairperson of the Judicial Council of the need to assign another judge to preside over the action. The court explained that in ruling on the summary judgment and reconsideration of summary judgment motions, the judge had not passed on or determined contested issues of fact, but rather had decided whether a triable issue of fact existed. Thus, the judge had not ruled on a contested fact issue prior to filing the peremptory challenge, and was not precluded from the disqualification. The court further held that the 1982 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) regarding timeliness of a peremptory challenge motion was not retroactive, and the motion had not been untimely filed under the law as then effective. Because defendants and the respondent court had been given notice and opportunity but had not filed opposition to the writ petition, the court of appeal issued the peremptory writ in the first instance (174 Cal. App. 3d 653, 657-658) .

[e] Motion Made After Court Ruling on Pretrial Motion Pursuant to Civ. Code § 3295(c)

In Guardado v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 91, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149 , the claimant sought and obtained an order authorizing her to conduct pretrial punitive damages discovery under Civ. Code § 3295(c). The judge granted her motion, findingthat there was a substantial probability she would prevail on her claim for punitive damages. A peremptory challenge was filed after that ruling. The judge concluded that the peremptory challenge was properly filed because there had been no determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits. On appeal, the court found no error, holding that a substantial probability determination under § 3295(c) was not a determination relating to the merits of the case as contemplated by Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The peremptory challenge was therefore not precluded.

The court of appeal declined to follow the holding in Pacific etc. Conference of United Methodist Church v. Superior Court (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 72, 80, 147 Cal. Rptr. 44 , on the basis that the Pacific holding is not supported by any authority or analysis. Further, the court found that Pacific is directly contradicted by Continental Baking Co. v. Katz (1968) 68 Cal.2d 512, 528, 67 Cal. Rptr. 761, 439 P.2d 889 , in which the California Supreme Court held that the granting or denial of a preliminary injunction does not amount to an adjudication of the ultimate rights in controversy; it merely determines that the court, balancing the respective equities of the parties, concludes that, pending a trial on the merits, the defendant should or that he should not be restrained from exercising the right claimed by him (163 Cal. App. 4th 91, 99) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Ex Parte Rulings But Before Hearing Set for Determining Issues of Law and Fact

In Grant v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 518, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 825 , plaintiff filed a peremptory challenge of a judge after the judge had ruled on two ex parte matters, but before any other hearing was set before that judge. The trial court judge rejected the Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge as untimely, on the ground that it was filed after the judge's ruling on the two ex parte matters. The court of appeal held that the prior rulings did not bar a subsequent peremptory challenge, but held that the challenge was untimely on other grounds (i.e. it was premature). The court reasoned that the 10 day/5 day rule of a Section 170.6 challenge is measured from a trial or hearing, "hearing" being defined as a proceeding where the judge is called on to rule on a disputed issue of law or fact. Therefore, the court held, a Section 170.6 challenge may not be filed until a specific hearing has been set before the challenged judge (90 Cal. App. 4th 518, 526) . The court noted that its opinion disagreed with other courts of appeal [see Pedus Services, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 140, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771 ; Moreira v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 42, 265 Cal. Rptr. 437] .

[b] Motion Made Prior to Trial and Before Determination of Contested Fact Issue Relating to Merits

In Swift v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 878, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 504 , a civil action involving a landlord-tenant dispute, plaintiff tenants sought the return of a security deposit under the terms of a residential lease, and defendant landlords alleged that plaintiffs damaged their property. Plaintiffs filed a peremptory challenge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc., § 170.6, seeking to disqualify a superior court judge. The judge struck the peremptory challenge on the ground that he had previously made a determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits. In issuing a peremptory writ of mandate directing the superior court to vacate its order striking plaintiffs' peremptory challenge to the judge and to enter a new order accepting the challenge, the Court of Appeal concluded that the judge erred in striking the peremptory challenge because the judge's only factual determinations were made in connection with discovery motions and did not relate to the merits of the case. Plaintiffs' motions for a protective order were distinct from the earlier discovery matters and not reliant upon earlier rulings that determined the merits of the parties' contentions. The mere fact that a judge considering discovery motions and sanctions may draw upon his or her knowledge regarding the parties' past conduct in the case is insufficient to broaden the category of cases in which a peremptory challenge is considered untimely (172 Cal. App. 4th 878, 885) .

In Woods v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 885, 235 Cal. Rptr. 687 , defendant, while awaiting trial in two criminal cases, filed identical affidavits of prejudice against the judge who was scheduled to try both cases. The judge honored the peremptory challenge in the second case but denied the challenge in the first case, ruling that because the challenge was made subsequent to the evidentiary hearing on defendant's motion to suppress, it was untimely. In rejecting the peremptory challenge, the judge relied on In re Abdul Y. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 847, 860-861, 182 Cal. Rptr. 146 , which holds that a peremptory challenge is untimely if made after the challenged judge has heard a motion to suppress evidence because a suppression motion involves the determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits. The reviewing court granted defendant's petition for a writ of mandate, directing that the challenge in the first case be granted. The court held that, notwithstanding the rule of Abdul Y., the challenge should have been allowed because granting one challenge while rejecting the other created an appearance of impropriety (190 Cal. App. 3d 885, 886-887) .

In People v. Whitfield (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 299, 228 Cal. Rptr. 82 , a trial judge denied a criminal defendant's pro se disqualification motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The motion was ruled untimely by the judge because there had been a prior hearing on the defendant's motion to have his lawyer disqualified as incompetent because of his failure to make various motions suggested by defendant. On appeal from a judgment of conviction, the court of appeal reversed the judgment, because the judge's failure to disqualify himself in the face of defendant's Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge rendered all of his subsequent actions null and void (183 Cal. App. 3d 299, 306) . The court observed that on the motion to disqualify defense counsel, there were no factual disputes and the only issue before the trial court was one of law. The court held that even if it could be assumed that the trial court did decide a factual issue, a hearing on the sole question of whether defendant was receiving competent representation had nothing to do with the merits of defendant's case, and therefore would not render defendant's Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 disqualification motion untimely (183 Cal. App. 3d 299, 304-305) .

[c] Motion Made After Judgment on Pleadings Timely

In Kohn v. Superior Court (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 428, 48 Cal. Rptr. 832 , a trial judge had denied petitioners' motion to set aside a criminal indictment for lack of probable cause made pursuant to Penal Code § 995 before petitioners moved to disqualify the judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. These motions were denied as untimely, and the petitioners' petitioned for a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial judge from proceeding further in the action. In issuing the writ of prohibition, the court held that a hearing on a motion to set aside an indictment for lack of probable cause does not involve a determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits. In dictum, the court compared the hearing on a motion to set asidean indictment for lack of probable cause with a proceeding for summary judgment in which the obligation of the magistrate is not to pass upon or determine the factual issue itself, but merely to decide if a triable issue of fact does exist. In both proceedings, the lower court applies the external standard of the applicable law to test whether there are facts stated or adduced sufficient to comprise an actionable cause. But the appellate court noted that before a party is precluded from bringing a motion to disqualify a judge, the judge must do more than make a determination that relates to contested fact issues. He or she must have actually resolved or determined conflicting factual contentions relating to the merits prior to trial before the right to disqualify is lost. Therefore, the court of appeal concluded that a motion to disqualify a trial judge made after his or her determination of probable cause under Penal Code § 995 (and by inference a motion made after a hearing on a motion for summary judgment) is made before a determination of a factual issue relating to the merits of the case ad is timely (239 Cal. App. 2d 428, 430-431) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil

ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.29

§ 130.29 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Within 60 Days of Notice of Assignment of New Trial to Judge Who Conducted Prior Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE WITHIN 60 DAYS AFTER PETITIONER RECEIVED NOTICE THAT THE NEW TRIAL ON THE MATTER, WHICH WAS REVERSED ON APPEAL, WAS ASSIGNED TO THE SAME TRIAL JUDGE WHO CONDUCTED THE PRIOR PROCEEDING.

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Motion on Retrial Made Within 60 Days of Notice of Assignment. A motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 may be made following reversal on appeal of a trial court's decision, or following reversal on appeal of a trial court's final judgment, if the trial judge in the prior proceeding is assigned to conduct a new trial on the matter. The motion must be made within 60 days after the party or the party's attorney has been notified of the assignment (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)). [Government Code Section 68616 has no application when a judgment has been reversed on appeal and returned to the trial court for retrial. The 60-day provision of Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 controls (Stubblefield Construction Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 762, 769)].

[Optional] D. Appellant's Motion on Remand Proper After Reversal of Final Judgment Even if Appellant Made Prior Motion. The party who filed the appeal that resulted in the reversal of a final judgment of a trial court may make a motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 regardless of whether that party or side has previously done so ( Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2); see Stubblefield Construction Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 762, 765-766).

[Optional] E. Motion Proper Even if Reversed Judgment Was Based on Jury Verdict. A party has a right to make the motion regardless of whether the reversed judgment originated from a judge's decision or a jury verdict (Pandazos v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 324, 326, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669).

F. What Constitutes New Trial. The term "new trial" for purposes of Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6(a)(2) encompasses a posttrial reversal and remand for trial of a contested issue in which trial court discretion or fact determination is involved (Paterno v. Superior Court (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 548, 558, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 282 ; Hendershot v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 860, 865, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645 ; C.C. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1019, 1022, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a new trial after reversal on appeal. The ground for the motion is that the judge did not grant a timely peremptory motion to disqualify that was made within 60 days after petitioner received notice of the assignment of the new trial to the judge who conducted the prior proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)].

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice Ch. 317, Judges (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion on Retrial Made Within 60 Days of Notice of Assignment

In Stubblefield Construction Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 762 , the trial court granted summary judgment for real parties in interest and related defendants (hereafter defendant) and judgment was entered. Plaintiffs appealed. The court of appeal reversed in part and remanded for further proceedings. The court of appeal's opinion was filed on June 28, 1999, and the remittitur was received by the trial court on August 31 of that year. On September 17, the clerk notified the parties that the case had been assigned for all purposes to the judge who had made the ruling that led to the appeal and partial reversal. On October 29, plaintiffs filed a peremptory challenge to the judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The defendant filed an objection based on untimeliness. The court sustained the objection and refused to disqualify itself. Plaintiffs sought review by a writ petition.

The court of appeal stayed further proceedings pending its resolution of the matter and ultimately issued a peremptory writ of mandate as prayed for (81 Cal. App. 4th 762, 764, 770) . In reaching its conclusion, the court rejected defendant's argument that the case was governed by the shorter limitation period in Gov. Code § 68616(i) rather than the longer limitation period in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. The court held that Gov. Code § 68616 has no application when a judgment has been reversed on appeal and returned to the trial court for retrial. The 60-day provision of Code of Civil Procedure § 170.6 controls and plaintiffs motion was timely (81 Cal. App. 4th 762, 764, 769) .

[b] Appellant's Motion on Remand Proper After Reversal of Final Judgment Even if Appellant Made Prior Motion

The facts and procedural background of Stubblefield Construction Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 762 are set out under § 130.29[3][a]. In issuing a peremptory writ of mandate as prayed for, the court rejected defendant's argument that plaintiffs, having previously filed a challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, were not entitled to file another. The court noted that although as a rule a party is limited to a single peremptory challenge in a case, the statute clearly permits an additional challenge following reversal of a judgment if the same judge is assigned to hear the case on remand (81 Cal. App. 4th 762, 764-765) . However, the defendant argued that because the proceedings were terminated by summary judgment, rather than by judgment after trial, the remand would not result in a new trial but in a first trial. Hence, the argument ran, the exception to the "one challenge" rule did not apply. The court concluded that this contention was meritless. It is true, as argued by the defendant, that the exception does not apply to all proceedings after remand by the court of appeal. Stegs Investments v. Superior Court (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 572, 576 , expressed the view that the disqualification right would not apply if the remand was for a "ministerial" purpose, such as calculating interest. The Stegs Investment court explained, however, that a party may disqualify the former judge reassigned to the case if the case involves an actual retrial of one or more issues. In the instant case the court concluded that the proceedings contemplated by the court's remand would be a "new trial" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 and that plaintiffs had the right to disqualify the reassigned judge (81 Cal. App. 4th 762, 765-766) .

[c] Motion Proper Even if Reversed Judgment Was Based on Jury Verdict

In Pandazos v. Superior Court (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 324, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669 , following reversal of a judgment entered after a jury trial in a medical malpractice action, petitioner filed a peremptory challenge to the original trial judge. The judge honored the peremptory challenge and transferred the case to the supervising judge of the respondent court for reassignment, but the respondent court, adopting the real parties' argument that a party could exercise its right to file a peremptory challenge following reversal on appeal only if the first trial was a court trial, rejectedthe peremptory challenge because the appeal was from a jury verdict and reassigned the case to the original judge. A petition for a writ of mandate followed (60 Cal. App. 4th 324, 326) .

The court of appeal granted the petition directing the respondent court to (1) vacate its order rejecting the petitioner's peremptory challenge to the original judge as untimely, and (2) enter a new and different order honoring the peremptory challenge (60 Cal. App. 4th 324, 327) . The court construed the term "trial court's decision" in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] to include both a jury trial as well as a court trial noting that in the court's view the 1985 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] clearly and unequivocally affords a party the right to file a peremptory challenge to the original trial judge after the reversal of a judgment or order on appeal, regardless of whether the judgment originated from a judge's decision or a jury verdict (60 Cal. App. 4th 324, 326-327) .

[d] What Constitutes New Trial

In Paterno v. Superior Court (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 548, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 282 , the court remanded with directions to conduct such further proceedings as were necessary to determine the damages of nonsample plaintiffs. Petitioners argued that they were entitled to peremptorily challenge the judge on remand because any remand for resolution of any contested factual or legal issue was a "new trial" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2). The court disagreed and held that a new peremptory challenge following a reversal on appeal would only be permitted where the trial court was required to reexamine issues litigated in the prior proceeding. In the case at bar, the remand required no reopening or reconsideration of issues. All liability issues were settled by the appellate decision, and the only task to complete was to determine damages. The trial court's function was not to go back and revisit any factual or legal terrain that had thus far been traversed, but to go forward with a trial on the issue of damages (123 Cal. App. 4th 548, 560) . The court disagreed, however, with the trial judge's additional reasoning that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2) had to yield to the rules for coordination proceedings, specifically former Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 1515 see now 3.516 (123 Cal. App. 4th 548, 555) .

Hendershot v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 860, 864-865, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645 , involved a breach of contract action against a partnership, a corporation, and an individual. After a trial, judgment was entered against the corporation and the individual and both parties appealed. While the appeal was pending, the individual defendant paid the entire amount of the judgment against him. The court of appeal reversed the judgment as to the individual and affirmed with respect to the corporation. The individual defendant then applied for an order of restitution pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 908, alleging that he had paid the judgment against him during the pendency of the appeal and was entitled to an order that the plaintiff make restitution. The court of appeal declined to make that determination, noted that there were questions of fact to be resolved by the trial court, including whether amounts paid by the individual defendant were on his own or the corporation's behalf, and remanded the case to the trial court for resolution of the factual issues (20 Cal. App. 4th 860, 862) .

The individual defendant then filed a motion for a restitution order in the trial court. When he learned that the case would be reassigned to the same commissioner presiding over the trial, he filed a peremptory challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The trial court rejected the challenge as untimely. The individual defendant sought writ relief and a stay of proceedings, pointing out that a claim of error in denial of a peremptory challenge can only be reviewed by writ, citing People v. Hull (1991) 1 Cal. 4th 266, 276, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 526 .

The court of appeal defined the issue as being whether the remand order on the motion for restitution called for a "new trial" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], in which case the challenge would be timely because the the challenge was made within 60 days from learning of the assignment (20 Cal. App. 4th 860, 863) . The court noted the 1985 amendment to Section 170.6 was intended to permit a party to challenge a judge who had been assigned to conduct the "new trial" of the case in which his or her decision was reversed on appeal and that the term "new trial" was intended to cover situations where the case was to be re-tried and not merely remanded with instructions to perform some specific task, for example, to recalculate interest. It stated that if the court's function is merely a ministerial act, then a challenge is not appropriate, but if the court must conduct an actual retrial, the court may be disqualified on a timely challenge under Section 170.6. The court found that the remand order required resolution of the factual issue as to whether the individual defendant paid the judgment for himself alone or on behalf of the corporate defendant (20 Cal. App. 4th 860, 864) . Noting that the statute does not define "new trial," the court construed it broadly to encompass a posttrial reversal and remand for trial of a contested issue in which trial court discretion or fact determination is involved. The court directed the respondent court to vacate its order and to enter a new order accepting the peremptory challenge (20 Cal. App. 4th 860, 864-865) .

In C.C. v. Superior Court (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1019, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225 , a parent was denied reunification services by the appellate court in a juvenile dependency matter and the matter was remanded to the juvenile court to enter an order denying reunification services and to set a permanent plan selection hearing. The parent filed a motion to disqualify the juvenile court judge on remand pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2). The court appeal found that the remand was not "a 'reexamination' of a factual or legal issue that was in controversy in the prior proceeding" as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2). The court's remand to the juvenile court was clearly for the performance of ministerial acts, i.e., entering an order denying reunification services and setting a permanent plan selection hearing pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26. The real parties in interest claimed, "the juvenile court in the present case will undoubtedly revisit the core determinations upon which this Court based its reversal," meaning it will have to consider the strength of the bond between the children and the mother at the permanent plan selection hearing. This claim was true, but the consideration of the parent-child bond at the permanent plan selection hearing is not for purposes of reunification; rather, it is to determine whether to avoid the termination of parental rights and select a different permanent plan. This consideration will take place in a different legal context from the disposition hearing and will involve facts as they then exist. On remand, however, the juvenile court was merely directed to enter an order denying reunification services and to set a permanent plan selection hearing. The implementation of these directions will not constitute a reexamination of an issue of fact or a retrial of the dispositional issues (166 Cal. App. 4th 1019, 1022) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] What Constitutes New Trial

See Stubblefield Construction Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 762 , discussed in § 130.29[3][b].

[b] Bias of Trial Judge After Reversal

In People v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 391, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 , the trial court judge twice dismissed the complaint in a criminal action and was twice reversed on appeal. After the second reversal, the People filed a Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)] challenge against the judge, which provides that a challenge is timely after a reversal if the trial judge in the prior proceeding is assigned to conduct a new trial on the matter. The trial judge rejected the challenge on the ground that, since the previous action had been dismissed, the current action was not a "new trial" within the meaning of Section 170.6(2). The People filed a petition for writ of mandate and the court of appeal granted the writ. The court reasoned that in order to give effect to the purpose of Section 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]--to avoid the possible bias of a trial judge who has been reversed--the phrase "new trial" would have to encompass the circumstances in this case (91 Cal. App. 4th 391, 396-397) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.30

§ 130.30 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made in Proceeding Separate and Independent From Prior Action in Which Judge Presided

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD ISSUE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THIS CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE FAILED TO GRANT A TIMELY DISQUALIFICATION MOTION THAT WAS MADE IN A SEPARATE AND INDEPENDENT PROCEEDING, AS DISTINGUISHED FROM A CONTINUATION OF A PRIOR ACTION OR PROCEEDING IN WHICH HE/SHE PRESIDED.

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

[EITHER]

C. Motion Made at Least Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph C.]

[OR]

C. Motion Made Before Commencement of Trial. [See § 130.21]1], Paragraph C.]

[OR]

C. Motion Made to Master Calendar Judge. [See § 130.23]1], Paragraph C.]

[OR]

C. Motion Made After All-Purpose Assignment. [See § 130.24]1], Paragraph C.]

[OR]

C. Motion Made Before Expiration of 30-Day Period. [See § 130.27]1], Paragraph C.]

[CONTINUE]

D. Subsequent Proceeding Involves Distinct Legal Issues. A proceeding is not a continuation of a prior action if it raises distinct legal issues, seeks different relief, includes new parties or results in a realignment of the original parties, and is broader in scope than the original action (Bravo v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1494, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 910 ; City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 592-593, 256 Cal. Rptr. 274).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has denied a peremptory motion to disqualify as untimely because the proceeding in which it was filed is a continuation of an earlier proceeding in which the judge was not challenged. The argument is that the motion is timely because the proceeding in which it was made is separate and independent from the earlier proceeding over which the judge presided.

The foregoing form may also be adapted for use as a supplemental memorandum to be filed in response to the opposing points and authorities contained in § 130.42.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel should demonstrate in what ways the legal issues raised by the two proceedings are distinct, even though their subject matter may be the same.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.41 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Subsequent Proceeding Involves Distinct Legal Issues

In Bravo v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 910 , an employee filed a complaint alleging sexual orientation discrimination and describing specific incidents. A demurrer was sustained. Thereafter, the employee filed another complaint alleging that additional harassment and retaliation occurred after the incidents described in the first action. On the ground that the cases were related, the employers obtained a transfer to the judge who heard the first case. Two days later, the employee filed an affidavit of prejudice and made a peremptory challenge to that judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The trial court found the challenge untimely and ordered it stricken.

The appellate court concluded that the challenge was timely because the second case was not a continuation of the previous action. Although two cases may involve the same parties (e.g., same employee and the same employer), if the second action arises out of later events distinct from those in the previous action, the second action does not constitute a continuation of the previous action and a party's peremptory challenge may be timely (149 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1494) .

In City of Hanford v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 256 Cal. Rptr. 274 , several environmental groups brought an action against a power company to enjoin construction of a coal-fueled power plant and against the city that approved plans for the plant. After trial, judgment was entered in the city's favor, and the power company and the environmental groups appealed. While the appeal was pending, the city council reconsidered its approval of the project and enacted a temporary moratorium on emissions from coal-burning industries within city limits. The power company then applied to the trial court for leave to file a cross-complaint against the city challenging the legality of the moratorium. It also filed a separate "mirror" action to enjoin the city from enforcing the moratorium, as well as for declaratory relief and damages. When the trial judge permitted filing of the cross-complaint and temporarily enjoined the city from enforcing the moratorium, the city filed Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 motions to disqualify the trial judge from hearing the cross complaint and the new action. The judge ruled that the cross complaint and new action were a continuation of the proceedings initiated by the environmental groups' lawsuit and denied the disqualification motions as untimely. The city challenged the orders by petition for writ of prohibition or mandate.

The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate ordering the trial court to vacate its orders and to accept the disqualification challenge in the power company's new action. After holding that the disqualification motion filed in response to the cross complaint was moot because the cross complaint was improperly filed, the court of appeal held that the disqualification motion in the "mirror" action was timely because the lawsuit was not merely a continuation of the earlier proceeding (208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 588-589, 593-594) . The court recognized that, under McClenny v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 677, 36 Cal. Rptr. 459, 388 P.2d 691 (discussed in § 130.42[3][b]), a subsequent proceeding is a continuation of an earlier action rather than a separate and independent action if it involves substantially the same issues and matters necessarily relevant and material to the issues involved in the original action (208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 589) . However, in the environmental group's original action, the principal issues involved were the adequacy of an environmental impact report and compliance with the city's zoning ordinance, whereas the power company's suit challenged the city's enactment of the moratorium, alleging that it violated state environmental law and the Constitution (208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 592) . Although the purpose of the moratorium and of the original lawsuits were the same (to bar construction of the power project) and there clearly was a subject matter connection between the two cases, the legal issues raised by the two actions were quite distinct (208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 592-593) . In addition, the court reasoned, the new action sought different relief, included new parties, and resulted in a realignment of the original parties. Moreover, the scope of the new action included more universal issues because the moratorium barred issuance of permits for all coal-burning facilities, not just that of the power company. In summary, the court held, the paramount questions presented by the two cases were different and the relationship of the issues in the two cases were not as direct as when the second proceeding involves the validity of an order made by the court in the first action or the validity of enforcement proceedings based on the original order. Therefore, the court concluded, the power company's suit was a new action attacking a separate phenomenon and thus not merely a continuation of the earlier proceeding (208 Cal. App. 3d 580, 593) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Subsequent Proceeding Involves Distinct Legal Issues

In NutraGenetics, LLC v. Superior Court (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 243, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 657 , petitioner, a company in which real party in interest investor had purchased an interest, filed a writ petition challenging the trial court's order accepting the investor's motion to disqualify the trial judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, in the investor's suit alleging breach of contract and other causes of action. In a fraud action against the company's principals, the investor alleged that he had invested in and worked for the company in reliance on misrepresentations and undisclosed facts. The principals' petition to compel arbitration was granted. Thereafter, based on a finding that the two actions were related, the suit against the company was transferred to the judge who was assigned to the suit against its principals. When the investor filed his § 170.6 peremptory challenge, the company asserted that it was untimely because the judge had made a ruling on the arbitration issue. The court held that the suit against the company was not a continuation of the first suit against its principals but was a separate and independent action for purposes of § 170.6. A proceeding was a continuation under § 170.6 if it involved substantially the same issues as the original action and presented matters that were necessarily relevant and material to the issues in the original action. Although the cases were related, they involved different defendants and different causes of action, and the second suit was not brought to enforce or modify orders in the first suit. Thus, the § 170.6 motion was timely.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.31

§ 130.31 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made in Supplemental Proceeding to Disqualify Judge Who Did Not Preside at Original Proceeding

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD ISSUE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THIS CASE BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE MOTION TO DISQUALIFY. THE MOTION WAS TIMELY MADE BECAUSE HE/SHE DID NOT PRESIDE AT ANY EARLIER PROCEEDINGS IN THE CASE AND THE MOTION IS OTHERWISE TIMELY UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 170.6(a)(2).

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

[EITHER]

C. Motion Made at Least Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph C.]

[OR]

C. Motion Made Before Commencement of Trial. [See § 130.21]1], Paragraph C.]

[OR]

C. Motion Made to Master Calendar Judge. [See § 130.23]1], Paragraph C.]

[CONTINUE]

D. Motion to Disqualify Subsequent Judge. When a litigant has not previously exercised a peremptory disqualification under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6, he or she may peremptorily disqualify a judge assigned to hear a supplemental proceeding, provided that that judge has not previously heard any phase of the matter and the litigant does so before commencement of the hearing of the supplemental proceeding within the time limitations specified in Section 170.6 (Thompson v. Superior Court (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707, 23 Cal. Rptr. 841).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge is a subsequent judge who has not presided at earlier proceedings and who has not granted a timely peremptory motion to disqualify.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to reassign a case after a peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in §§ 130.41 -130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion to Disqualify Subsequent Judge

Thompson v. Superior Court (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 702, 23 Cal. Rptr. 841 , involved a proceeding in prohibition before a court of appeal to restrain Judge Pfaff from enforcing his order modifying the child custody provision in an interlocutory divorce decree that had been signed by another judge. The defendant in the divorce action sought modification of the custody award. In the proceedings for modification, Judge Pfaff signed orders to show cause, temporary restraining orders, and various continuances, including one stipulated continuance. When the matter came onfor hearing, however, it was not transferred and was to be heard before Judge Pfaff. Prior to the hearing, defendant moved to disqualify Judge Pfaff pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The judge denied the motion to disqualify on the ground that it was not timely made, based on the rule set forth in Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9, 347 P.2d 9 (discussed in § 130.42[3][a]), that a custody modification hearing is a continuation of the original proceeding and that a motion to disqualify filed prior to a continued proceeding is not timely made. The judge presided at the hearing, vacated all prior orders, and modified the custody award.

In issuing a writ to restrain the judge from modifying the child custody order, the court of appeal recognized that the modification proceedings were, under Jacobs, a continuation of the original divorce trial. However, the modifications proceedings in question were not before the judge who tried the case nor before the judge pro tempore who had heard a prior application for modification of child custody (206 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706) . The court recognized that the Legislature intended that a litigant who has not previously exercised his or her privilege under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 may do so in a proceeding supplemental to the original action with regard to a judge other than any judge who has previously heard any phase of the matter, provided that the litigant does so within the statutory time limitations before commencement of the hearing in the supplemental proceeding (206 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707) . The court observed that, although the challenged judge participated in many preliminary proceedings that took place prior to the divorce trial, every order made by the challenged judge, other than certain continuances, was made pursuant to ex parte application or on stipulation of the parties and none was the result of hearing on a contested issue of law or fact (206 Cal. App. 2d 702, 707-708, 709) . Therefore, the court held, the motion to disqualify that the petitioner made in the modification proceeding was timely because the motion was made the first time the petitioner appeared before the judge in a hearing that involved a contested issue (206 Cal. App. 2d 702, 710) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.32

§ 130.32 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Within 20 Days After Service of Order Assigning Judge to Coordination Proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE COORDINATED ACTIONS BECAUSE THE JUDGE FAILED TO GRANT THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY, WHICH WAS TIMELY MADE WITHIN 20 DAYS AFTER SERVICE OF THE ORDER OF ASSIGNMENT.

A. Mandate Authorized. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disqualified Judge Without Jurisdiction to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.20]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Time for Making Motion in Coordination Proceeding. A motion for peremptory disqualification of a judge assigned to a coordination proceeding is timely if it is submitted in writing to the assigned judge within 20 days after service of the order of assignment (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516).

[Optional] D. Extension of Time. Code of Civil Procedure Section 1013 applies to extend the time provided for in California Rules of Court, Rule 3.516, for challenging a trial judge assigned to coordinated actions (Citicorp North America, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 565, 261 Cal. Rptr. 668). Because the order of assignment of the judge was served by _____ [specify means, e.g., mail to an address in California], the 20-day period to file a peremptory challenge was extended by _____ [specify number of days time is extended by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 for the type of service used, e.g., five] days.

[Optional] E. Motion Timely Despite Judge's Prior Rulings on Contested Issue. California Rules of Court, Rule

3.516, provides 20 days from service of the order assigning the judge to the coordination proceeding in which to file a challenge. The rule provides no exception for coordinated actions that include cases in which contested issues had been previously decided (Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in a coordination proceeding in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge assigned to hear and determine the coordination actions from proceeding after he or she has denied a timely peremptory challenge made within 20 days after service of the order of assignment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516].

Optional Paragraph D is for use if the order of assignment was not served personally, but by mail, facsimile transmission, or other alternative method of service, and the peremptory challenge, denied as untimely, actually was timely because the time for making it was extended by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013.

Optional Paragraph E is for use if the motion was improperly denied on the ground the assigned judge has made rulings on contested issues in one of the cases included in the coordination proceeding.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Peremptory Challenges in Coordination Proceedings

When civil actions sharing a common question of fact or law and pending in different courts have been ordered coordinated under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 404.1, 404.3, the Chairperson of the Judicial Council assigns a judge to hear and determine the actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.3]. Any motion or affidavit of prejudice regarding an assigned judge must be submitted in writing to the assigned judge within 20 days after service of the order assigning that judge to the coordination proceeding. For purposes of making a Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge, all plaintiffs or similar parties in the included or coordinated actions constitute a side and all defendants or similar parties constitute a side [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion and forms relating to coordinated actions, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has denied a timely peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda relating to coordination of actions generally, see Ch. 45, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in § 130.44 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extension of Time

In Citicorp North America, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 261 Cal. Rptr. 668 , plaintiffs in a coordination proceeding successfully moved to disqualify the assigned trial judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. On April 13, 1989, the Judicial Council Chairperson served the parties by mail with an order assigning a replacement judge. On May 5, 1989, 22 days after the order was served, defendants served their motion for peremptory disqualification. The assigned judge denied their motion as untimely under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1515, see now 3.516 which requires that the motion be made within 20 days after service of the order of assignment. Defendants petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal granted the writ, holding that the motion was timely because Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 gives a party to a coordination proceeding an additional five days, beyond the 20 days provided for in former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1515, see now 3.516 to assert a challenge to the assigned trial judge when the order of assignment has been served by mail (213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 565) . The court reasoned that Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 by its terms applies whenever a prescribed time period is triggered by the service of a notice, document, or request, and that Rule 1515 specifically links the commencement of the 20-day period to "service" of the assignment notice (213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 568) . In addition, the Legislature has not chosen to add the time period set out under former Rule 1515 to the list of exceptions expressly included in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013. The Judicial Council had not modified former Rule 1515 in response to decisional law interpreting Code Civ. Proc. 1013. The Judicial Council implicitly incorporated Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 into the coordination rules by adopting former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.504(a), which makes the provisions of law for civil actions generally applicable to coordination proceedings, unless otherwise provided in the coordination rules. These considerations, the court held, outweigh the settled, general policy requiring prompt challenges to all-purpose judges in civil actions (213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 569-570) . Finally, the court emphasized the importance of ensuring that the parties to a coordination proceeding have the full 20 days afforded them by former Rule 1515. Coordination proceedings are unique in that large numbers of parties and counsel are involved. Because any one party can exercise the sole peremptory challenge available to that side, consultations among all similarly situated parties are very important and can be quite time consuming (213 Cal. App. 3d 563, 568, 571) .

[b] Motion Timely Despite Judge's Prior Rulings on Contested Issue

In Farmers Ins. Exchange v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 449 , three consolidated actions against the defendants pending in Contra Costa County were coordinated with one pending action pending against the same defendants in Los Angeles County. Prior to coordination, the judge in Contra Costa County ruled against the defendant on contested motions, including one for summary adjudication and a motion for class certification. That judge wasassigned as the coordination trial judge, and defendants filed a Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge against him that was timely within the meaning of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1515. The judge denied the challenge, and the defendants petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal concluded that Rule 1515 provides no basis for denying a peremptory disqualification motion if it is timely and sufficiently supported. The plaintiffs, as real parties in interest, argued that the challenge was untimely because of the judge's prior rulings on contested motions. The court held, however, that Rule 1515 provided no basis for implying an exception to the time limit it provides, so that the fact that the coordination trial judge had previously ruled against the company on contested matters in some of the coordinated actions did not cut off the right to challenge the judge (10 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1511) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.33

§ 130.33 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Timely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Not Granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made by Codefendant Who Is No Longer Party to Action

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate prevent a judge from hearing a case (see §§ 130.20 -130.27, 130.29 -130.31)]

THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY INURES TO PETITIONER'S BENEFIT EVEN THOUGH IT WAS FILED BY A CODEFENDANT WHO IS NO LONGER PARTY TO THE ACTION.

Benefit of Timely Peremptory Challenge Inures to Codefendants. A timely and sufficient peremptory challenge filed pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 takes effect instantaneously and irrevocably, and inures to codefendants of the party making the challenge despite later events, such as the dismissal of the party who made the challenge (Louisiana-Pacific Corp. v. Philo Lumber Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1218-1221, 210 Cal. Rptr. 368).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when a timely and sufficient challenge was made by a codefendant of the party bringing the petition, even if the codefendant making the challenge is no longer a party.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with general points and authorities relating to review of the denial of a timely motion for peremptory disqualification of a judge [see §§ 130.20 -130.27, 130.29 -130.31].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should, for example, describe the capacity of the moving party in relation to petitioner, and give facts explaining why the moving party is no longer a party to the action.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Benefit of Timely Peremptory Challenge Inures to Codefendants

In Louisiana-Pacific Corp. v. Philo Lumber Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 210 Cal. Rptr. 368 , a timely and sufficient peremptory challenge to the trial judge was filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 by one of three defendants. Before trial, plaintiff dismissed the entire action against the defendant who filed the challenge. The case came on for trial as to the remaining defendants before the challenged judge, who, over objections, proceeded with trial. Judgment was rendered for plaintiff, and defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment, holding that a properly filed peremptory challenge takes effect instantaneously and irrevocably, rendering any subsequent orders by the challenged judge null and void; and later events, such as the dismissal of the party who asserted the challenge, do not cause a rescission of the challenge. The challenge, therefore, inures to the benefit of all defendants (163 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1218-1220) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.34

§ 130.34 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Challenge by Cross Defendant--Severance of Cross Action and Recusal in Only That Action Is Improper

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate prevent a judge from hearing a case (see §§ 130.20 -130.27)]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD ISSUE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THIS CASE BECAUSE AFTER A CROSS DEFENDANT MADE A TIMELY AND SUFFICIENT MOTION FOR PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATION, JUDGE _____ [name] SEVERED THE CROSS ACTION AND RECUSED HIMSELF/HERSELF IN ONLY THE SEVERED CROSS ACTION.

Severance of Cross Action and Recusal in Only That Action Is Improper. When a motion for peremptory disqualification is duly made, with a sufficient supporting affidavit, by a cross defendant, severance of the cross action, with recusal of the challenged judge in only the severed action, is improper. There is no statutory authority for severance of the cross action; rather, Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 requires that the entire case must be assigned to another judge (Sunkyong Trading (H.K.) Ltd. v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 282, 287-290, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case after a timely and sufficiently supported motion asserting a peremptory challenge by a cross defendant, when the challenged judge severed the cross action and recused himself or herself in only the severed cross action.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with general points and authorities relating to review of the denial of a timely motion for peremptory disqualification of a judge [see §§ 130.20 -130.27, 130.29 -130.31].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to assign a case after a peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Severance of Cross Action and Recusal in Only That Action Is Improper

In Sunkyong Trading (H.K.) Ltd. v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 282, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504 , a cross complaint against several existing parties and one new party for indemnity was filed about 15 months after commencement of the action. The cross defendant who was a new party promptly moved, with a sufficient supporting affidavit, for peremptory disqualification of the judge. The judge, noting that he was familiar with the main action (and implying that therefore he should proceed with that action), responded to the motion by severing the cross action and recusing himself in only the severed cross action.

In a proceeding for an extraordinary writ on the petition of cross plaintiffs and some of the cross defendants, the court of appeal concluded that there was no statutory authority for the challenged judge's acts in response to the disqualification motion (9 Cal. App. 4th 282, 290) . The fact that severance in this case tended to promote judicial economy was irrelevant (9 Cal. App. 4th 282, 289) . While a cross action can be considered as a separate action for some purposes, there is no basis for doing so in applying Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (9 Cal. App. 4th 282, 288-289) . A writ of mandate was issued directing that the severance order be vacated and the entire case be assigned to a different judge (9 Cal. App. 4th 282, 292) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.35

§ 130.35 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Inquiry Into Party's Good Faith in Making Peremptory Challenge Is Improper

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate prevent a judge from hearing a case (see §§ 130.20 -130.27, 130.29 -130.31)]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD ISSUE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THIS CASE BECAUSE _____ [specify moving party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] MADE A TIMELY DISQUALIFICATION MOTION WITH A SUFFICIENT SUPPORTING _____ [AFFIDAVIT or DECLARATION or STATEMENT UNDER OATH] AND THE TRIAL COURT IMPROPERLY INQUIRED INTO THE MOVING PARTY'S GOOD FAITH TO DISALLOW THE CHALLENGE.

A. Sufficiency of Supporting Affidavit. A peremptory challenge of a judge is sufficiently supported by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury or statement under oath of a party or a party's attorney stating in substance that he or she cannot, or believes that he or she cannot, have a fair and impartial trial or hearing before the challenged judge (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(1)-(a)(3), (a)(5)).

B. Inquiry Into Good Faith as Ground for Issuing Writ. When a motion for peremptory disqualification has been duly made with sufficient support, the trial court may not inquire into the moving party's good faith in making the challenge unless the adversary party makes a prima facie showing of invidious discrimination. If the court makes an inquiry when the adversary has failed to make such a showing and sets aside the challenge, the court of appeal may issue an extraordinary writ directing the trial court to vacate the order setting aside the challenge and enter an order disqualifying the challenged judge (People v. Superior Court (Williams) (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 699, 714, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use in a memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case after denial of a timely and sufficiently supported motion asserting a peremptory challenge, when the motion was denied after an inquiry into the moving party's good faith in making the challenge.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with general points and authorities relating to review of the denial of a timely motion for peremptory disqualification of a judge [see §§ 130.20 -130.27, 130.29 -130.31].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include highlight parts of the record showing that the adversary failed to make out a prima facie case of invidious discrimination.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to assign a case after a peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in § 130.45 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inquiry Into Good Faith as Ground for Issuing Writ

The facts and procedural background of People v. Superior Court (Williams) (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873 , are set out in § 130.45[3][a].

In the proceeding for a writ of mandate, the court of appeal concluded that the peremptory challenge had been timely and in proper form, and that the adversary of the challenge failed to make a prima facie case of invidious discrimination, so that it had not been proper for the court to inquire into the reasons for exercise of the peremptory challenge (8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 713) . The court issued a writ directing the trial court to enter an order disqualifying the challenged judge (8 Cal. App. 4th, 688, 714) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.36

§ 130.36 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Parties Entitled to Additional Challenges Due to Adverse Interests

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate prevent a judge from hearing a case (see §§ 130.20 -130.27, 130.29 -130.31)].

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD ISSUE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THIS CASE BECAUSE _____ [specify moving party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] MADE A TIMELY DISQUALIFICATION MOTION AND WAS ENTITLED TO AN ADDITIONAL MOTION PER SIDE OF THE CASE BECAUSE THE _____ [specify moving party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] AND OTHER PARTIES ON THE SAME SIDE HAD SUFFICIENTLY ADVERSE INTERESTS.

Exception to the One Peremptory Challenge Per Side Rule Due to Adverse Interests. Parties on the same side may be treated as separate parties for purposes of peremptory challenge motions under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 if they have adverse interests and the party seeking the additional challenge meets the burden of establishing the adverse interests (The Home Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 34 Cal. 4th 1025, 1033, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885, 103 P.3d 283).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum is for use in a memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case after denial of a timely and sufficiently supported motion asserting a peremptory challenge, when the motion was denied on the basis of the one challenge per side per case rule.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum, but is designed to be combined with general points and authorities relating to review of the denial of a timely motion for peremptory disqualification of a judge [see §§ 130.20

-130.27, 130.29 -130.31].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include highlight parts of the record showing that the party bring in the writ had substantially adverse interests from the other parties on the same side.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion of peremptory disqualification and for a form of a petition for a writ of mandate for use after a judge has refused to assign a case after a peremptory challenge, see Ch. 317, Judges , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities set out in § 130.43 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a petition supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception to the One Peremptory Challenge Per Side Rule Due to Adverse Interests

In The Home Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 34 Cal. 4th 1025, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885, 103 P.3d 283 , federal and state authorities had brought environmental damage actions against Montrose Chemical Corporation. In turn, Montrose filed a declaratory relief lawsuit against its primary insurance carriers. During the course of the litigation, one of the carriers exercised a peremptory challenge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, and the case was assigned to a new trial judge. Subsequent, the declaratory relief action reached a settlement, and the primary insurers were dismissed. Montrose then amended its declaratory relief complaint to nameits excess insurance carrier, Home Insurance Company, as a defendant. Home attempted to exercise a peremptory challenge to the trial judge, and, after objection by Montrose, the trial judge ruled that Home was not entitled to a peremptory challenge on the basis that the primary insurer and Home were on the same "side" for purposes of peremptory challenges. Home filed a petition for writ of mandate, and the Court of Appeal reversed, holding that "more often than not" primary and excess carriers have "substantially adverse interests" such that they are on separate sides for purposes of a peremptory challenge.

The Supreme Court reversed, holding that primary and excess carriers do not necessarily have "substantially adverse interests" and therefore a reversal of the trial court's factual determination was not warranted. The Court reviewed the evidentiary standard it had set out in Pappa v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 350 : That the party seeking to exercise a second peremptory challenge has the burden of demonstrating that its interests are "substantially adverse" to the co-defendant's (34 Cal. 4th 1025, 1035) . The Court rejected the appellate court's reasoning that primary and excess carriers are "more often than not" substantially adverse to each other because they generally attempt to foist liability upon one another, noting that in many cases the same insurer may have issued a primary and excess policy to an insured. The Court also noted that the two types of carriers' positions may often be consistent with one another; i.e., that there is no coverage or that the excess policy does not apply until primary coverage is exhausted. The Court therefore declined to reverse the trial court's determination that the primary and excess insurers were not "substantially adverse" for purposes of peremptory challenges under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (34 Cal. 4th 1025, 1036) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.37

§ 130.37 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made Less Than Five Days Before Date Set for Trial or Hearing When Name of Assigned Judge Is Known at Least 10 Days Before Trial or Hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

IN THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]

_____ [name], Petitioner,	)
vs.	)
THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA FOR THE [CITY AND] COUNTY OF_____,	)	NO. _____
and	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
_____ [name], THE JUDGE OF SAID COURT,	)
Respondents, _____ [name(s)] Real _____ [Party or Parties] in Interest.	)

_____

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE _____ [identify party that made

motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF] MADE THE MOTION TO DISQUALIFY LESS THAN FIVE DAYS BEFORE THE DATE SET FOR _____ [TRIAL or HEARING] EVEN THOUGH _____ [identify party that made motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF] KNEW THE NAME OF THE JUDGE ASSIGNED OR SCHEDULED TO _____ [TRY THE CAUSE or HEAR THE MATTER] AT LEAST 10 DAYS BEFORE THE _____ [TRIAL or HEARING] DATE.

A. Time for Motion to Disqualify. When the judge, other than a judge appointed for all purposes, assigned to or who is scheduledto try the cause or hear the matter is known at least ten days before the date set for trial or hearing, a Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 motion to disqualify that judge must be made at least five days before that date (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)).

[Optional] B. Known Judge Was Assigned. Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 does not require absolute certainty that a known judge will ultimately preside over the trial. In applying the ten-day/five-day rule, a known judge exists when there is reasonable assurance that the judge will in fact hear the case (People v. Superior Court (Lavi) (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1183-1184).

[Optional] C. Matter Set for Hearing in Department With Regularly Assigned Judge. A judge may be a known judge when a case is assigned to a department in which the judge regularly sits, even if the party does not actually know that a specific judge presides over that department because this information is available on further investigation or inquiry (People v. Superior Court (Lavi) (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1183-1184). When a matter is scheduled for hearing in an identified department and the name of the judge assigned to that department is known at least ten days before the hearing, a Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 motion to disqualify the judge is untimely if it is made less than five days before the hearing date, unless on the hearing date a judge other than the previously assigned judge is presiding (Thomas Realty Co. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 91, 95).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge denied a peremptory motion to disqualify. The ground of the opposition is that the motion was properly denied because it was made less than five days before the date set for trial or hearing and the moving party knew the judge assigned or scheduled to try the cause or to hear the matter at least ten days before that date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. For memoranda relating to other time limits when the ten-day/five-day rule does not apply, see §§ 130.38 -130.44.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion to disqualify supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.20.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Known Judge Was Assigned

The facts and procedural background of People v. Superior Court (Lavi) (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1164 , are discussed in § 130.20[3][e].

After determining that the challenge had been timely under the all purpose assignment rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, the Court went on to state that even if that rule did not apply, the challenge had been timely under the ten-day/five-day rule. In discussing the ten-day/five-day rule, the Court addressed confusion in the lower courts over the degree of certainty with which a judge must be known for § 170.6 to apply. The Court stated that absolute certainty was not required, as it is always possible that a given judge will not hear the case for many reasons, including transfer, illness, death, or recusal. The rule the Court identified is that in applying the ten-day/five-day rule to the judge known to the parties to have been assigned to the case, there be reasonable assurance that the judge will in fact hear the case. In the case before it, the Court noted that the case was assigned to the department in which the challenged judge regularly sat, and nothing in the record indicated that it was unlikely he would ultimately hear the case. Moreover, the Court noted that even if the challenger had not known that the judge presided over that department, further investigation or inquiry would have disclosed that fact. Thus, it was reasonably certain that the judge would hear the case, and the judge's identity was known for purposes of the ten-day/five-day rule. The Court concluded that if this rule applied to the case, the challenge would have been timely (4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1183-1184) .

[b] Matter Set for Hearing in Department With Regularly Assigned Judge

People v. Superior Court (Lavi) (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1164 , is discussed under § 130.37[3][a].

In Thomas Realty Co. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 91 , a petition to confirm an arbitration award was filed on November 17, 1987, in a two-judge branch court. The notice of motion showed that the motion would be heard on December 18, 1987, in a particular department, and court directories, published weekly, showed that Judge Murphy sat in that department. On December 16, the party opposing the motion presented Judge Murphy with an ex parte request for a continuance of the hearing and the request was denied. The next day, the party filed a Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge to Judge Murphy. The challenge was denied as untimely and the party appealed.

The Second District Court of Appeal upheld the denial of the motion to disqualify because it was not filed at least five days before the hearing (199 Cal. App. 3d 91, 97) . The court expressly disagreed with, and declined to follow, opinions of the First District in Bouchard v. Insona (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 768, 164 Cal. Rptr. 505 , which had held that assignment of a case to a department was insufficient to identify the judge, and Retes v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 799, 176 Cal. Rptr. 160 (discussed in § 130.22[4][a]), which had held that assignment to a department was insufficient to identify the judge when there was a policy and practice of frequent reassignment (199 Cal. App. 3d 91, 93-96) . The court held that the ten-day/five-day rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 applies whenever a matter is scheduled for hearing in an identified department and the name of the judge assigned to that department is known at least ten days before the hearing. However, the court stated, if on the hearing date a judge other than the previously assigned judge is presiding, a party may challenge that judge not later than the commencement of the hearing (199 Cal. App. 3d 91, 95) .

Although Thomas Realty rejected both Bouchard and Retes, and the Supreme Court opinion in People v. Superior Court (Lavi) seems inconsistent with Bouchard, the Lavi opinion does not expressly disapprove Bouchard, and distinguishes Retes, from which it may be inferred that Retes has more vitality than Thomas Realty would accord it.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Matter Set for Hearing in Department With Regularly Assigned Judge

In Lawrence v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 611, 253 Cal. Rptr. 748 , plaintiffs' contract action was assigned for all purposes to a particular judge under the court's local trial delay reduction rules. After the action had been inactive for almost three years, defendants noticed a motion for summary judgment. The notice showed a hearing date of July 8, 1988, in Department 20. At that time, the sitting judge in Department 20 was the same judge who had been assigned the case under the court's delay reduction rules. On July 5, 1988, plaintiffs made an unsuccessful ex parte application to continue the summary judgment motion. Plaintiffs claimed that it was at the hearing on the continuance that they received actual notice that their case had been assigned to the judge for all purposes. On July 7, 1988, plaintiffs filed a peremptory challenge, which was denied as untimely. The Court of Appeal affirmed, following Thomas Realty Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 91 (discussed under § 130.37[3][b]), to hold that plaintiff's challenge was untimely under the ten-day/five-day rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 because plaintiff's summary judgment motion was scheduled for hearing in Department 20 and a known judge was assigned to that department. The court held that the knowledge of assignment required under Thomas Realty does not mean actual knowledge of the party or the party's attorney but only that, on further investigation or inquiry, the identity of the judge assigned to a particular department is ascertainable. The court observed that the fact the judge was also assigned to the case for all purposes under the court's delay reduction rules was immaterial in determining the timeliness of the challenge under Thomas Realty (617). The court also concluded that the challenge was untimely under former Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 1104 (now see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.5(a)) (206 Cal. App. 3d 611, 617-618) .

In Kaiser Foundation Hospitals v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 721, 235 Cal. Rptr. 630 , a party moved to disqualify the judge at the commencement of a hearing on a petition to vacate an arbitration award. The judge was the regularly assigned judge in the department shown in the noticed motion and the moving party did not claim ignorance of the assignment. The opposing party objected, pointing out that under a local rule the challenging party was able to discover the adverse tentative ruling prior to the hearing. The judge denied the challenge as untimely, heard the petition, and vacated the arbitration award. In denying the moving party's extraordinary writ, the court of appeal found in part that the Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge was untimely (190 Cal. App. 3d 721, 726) . The court distinguished Bouchard v. Insona (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 768, 164 Cal. Rptr. 505 (discussed in § 130.37[3][b], in relation to Thomas Realty), holding that the ten-day/five-day rule may be followed in jurisdictions having a tentative ruling procedure when motions are set in a department that has a regularly assigned judge (190 Cal. App. 3d 721, 724-725) . Therefore, the court stated, a party who has received a tentative ruling on a motion cannot disqualify the judge at the time of the hearing unless the regularly assigned judge does not in fact rule on the motion or the regular assignment has been changed without sufficient notification to the parties (190 Cal. App. 3d 721, 725) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.38

§ 130.38 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Commencement of Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE _____ [identify party that made motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF] DID NOT MAKE THE MOTION TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER UNTIL AFTER TRIAL HAD COMMENCED.

Motion Made After Commencement of Trial. A judge who has been assigned or scheduled to try a cause may, in no case, entertain a motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 to disqualify if the motion was made after the drawing of the name of the first juror, or after plaintiff's counsel makes an opening statement in a nonjury case, or after the swearing of the first witness or giving of any evidence in a nonjury case without opening statement by plaintiff's counsel, or after trial of the cause has otherwise commenced (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case. The ground of opposition is that the judge properly denied a peremptory motion to disqualify that was untimely because it was made after trial commenced [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. For memoranda relating to other time limits for making the motion, see §§ 130.37, 130.39 -130.44.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion for disqualification supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.21.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.39

§ 130.39 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Commencement of Hearing Other Than Trial of Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE _____ [identify party that made motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF] DID NOT MAKE THE MOTION TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER UNTIL AFTER THE HEARING COMMENCED.

Motion Made After Commencement of Hearing Is Too Late. A motion to disqualify pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 that is directed to a hearing other than the trial of a cause must be made not later than the commencement of the hearing or it is too late and must be denied (Michaels v. Superior Court (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 824, 826, 7 Cal. Rptr. 858).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge fromproceeding with a case. The ground of opposition is that the judge properly denied an untimely peremptory motion to disqualify because it was directed to a hearing other than the trial of a cause and was made after the hearing had commenced [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. For memoranda relating to other time limits for making the motion, see §§ 130.37, 130.38, 130.40 -130.44.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion for disqualification supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.22.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Commencement of Hearing Is Too Late

The factual background of Michaels v. Superior Court (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 7 Cal. Rptr. 858 , is discussed in § 130.40[3][a]. In denying the petition for a writ of prohibition, the appellate court noted that immediately after petitioner had made the motion on his claimed special appearance, he had attacked the sufficiency of the order to show cause why he should not be held in contempt on the ground that the court lacked jurisdiction over him. The court held that the questions attempted to be raised on the claimed special appearance and the claimed general appearance were so intermingled as to constitute but one hearing of the cause and that the affidavit of prejudice, filed after the motion on the claimed special appearance was denied, was not filed at the commencement of the hearing and thus came too late (184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 826) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Commencement of Hearing Is Too Late

California Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 267, 234 Cal. Rptr. 413 , involved a class action against a savings and loan association in which plaintiffs contested, among other things, the association's method of computing the interest rate adjustment on variable interest rate loans. The defendant filed a motion for summary adjudication of issues [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(f)], including the issue of interpretation of the promissory note defendant utilized for variable interest rate loans. The trial judge resolved this issue in defendant's favor. Plaintiffs subsequently moved to have the action certified as a class action. When the class certification motion was heard, the judge vacated portions of his prior ruling on defendant's motion for summary adjudication of issues, and set the matter for further argument. On October 27, 1986, the trial judge indicated that he would grant the motion for class certification if plaintiffs would file an amended complaint clarifying issues of concern to the court, among which were those raised by defendant in opposition to plaintiff's motion for class certification. Plaintiffs filed the amended complaint on November 14, 1986, and noticed the matter for further hearing on December 2, 1986. The hearing was continued to December 23. On November 26, defendant filed its peremptory challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, which the judge denied at the December 23 hearing as untimely. In denying a writ of mandate, the court of appeal pointed out that class certification is all one proceeding, that the proceeding was commenced with the filing of plaintiff's motion, and that it had continued for some nine months, due in no small part to the objections and concerns raised by the defendant, and held that the peremptory challenge was, therefore, untimely insofar as it attempted to disqualify the judge from ruling on any matters relating to certification of the class (189 Cal. App. 3d 267, 270) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil

ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.40

§ 130.40 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Assignment of Cause for Trial by Master Calendar Judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE _____ [identify party that made motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF] DID NOT MAKE THE MOTION TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER IMMEDIATELY UPON ASSIGNMENT OF THE CAUSE FOR TRIAL BY THE MASTER CALENDAR JUDGE.

Motion Made After Assignment of Cause for Trial by Master Calendar Judge. Where there is a master calendar, a party must make a peremptory motion to disqualify a judge pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 to the judge supervising the master calendar not later than the time he/she assigns the cause for trial (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2); Michaels v. Superior Court (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 824, 7 Cal. Rptr. 858).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case. The ground of opposition is that the judge properly denied an untimely peremptory motion to disqualify made after assignment of the cause for trial by a master calendar judge [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. For memoranda relating to other time limits for making the motion, see §§ 130.37 -130.39, 130.41 -130.44.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion for disqualification supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.23.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Assignment of Cause for Trial by Master Calendar Judge

In Michaels v. Superior Court (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 7 Cal. Rptr. 858 , petitioner sought a writ of prohibition to restrain a superior court from proceeding further with its consideration of a contempt charge against petitioner stemming from his refusal to answer questions at a hearing before the county grand jury. Petitioner's counsel appeared before a judge who was supervising the master calendar and the supervising judge assigned the matter to another judge of that court. Petitioner's counsel made no motion to disqualify the assigned judge while appearing before the supervising judge. Once before the assigned judge, petitioner's counsel made a motion relating to petitioner's claimed special appearance which was denied. Immediately thereafter, counsel filed an affidavit of prejudice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The judge struck the affidavit from the files, stating that it had not been filed in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 and was, therefore, untimely.

After hearing the petition for the writ of prohibition, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's striking of the affidavit. It found that petitioner had not made and filed the motion of prejudice to the judge supervising the master calendar as is required under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], but had awaited the outcome of the assigned judge's ruling on the motion on petitioner's claimed special appearance before so filing (184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 826) . Because the motion was not timely, the court denied the petition for a writ of prohibition (184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 829) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.41

§ 130.41 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made After Contested Matter Submitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(1), (a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE A CONTESTED MATTER IN RELATION TO THE LITIGATION WAS SUBMITTED TO HIM/HER BEFORE _____ [identify party that made motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF] MADE THE MOTION.

Motion Made After Contested Matter Submitted. A motion to disqualify a judge pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 is untimely when it is filed after any contested matter in relation to the litigation has been submitted to the judge sought to be disqualified (Doty v. Doty (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 672, 677, 125 Cal. Rptr. 153).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case. The ground of opposition is that the judge properly denied an untimely peremptory motion to disqualify made after a contested matter in relation to the litigation had been submitted to the judge sought to be disqualified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]. For memoranda relating to other time limits for making the motion, see §§ 130.37 -130.40, 130.42 -130.44.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.28.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Contested Matter Submitted

Doty v. Doty (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 672, 125 Cal. Rptr. 153 , involved an action for partition of real property in which the trial court entered an interlocutory order in partition. Ten days after entry of the order, which appointed a referee to sell the property at public sale, defendant filed a request for findings of fact and conclusions of law, but a hearing on objections to proposed findings and conclusions resulted in a minute order in which the court found it had no jurisdiction, in that the matter was by that time on appeal.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to vacate the judgment and to make and enter findings of fact and conclusions of law and judgment. The court held that defendant's request for findings was timely and that the finding contained in the interlocutory judgment did not encompass all issues of fact and did not cover defendant's request for special findings (52 Cal. App. 3d 672, 678) . Preliminarily, the court had rejected defendant's contention that the trial judge should have granted a motion for disqualification, holding that the request was not timely. In this case, the trial judge had directed three referees to report to the court whether or not the property in question could be divided in kind in keeping with the several percentage interests of the parties to the action. After the referees had reported that the property could not be so divided and the court had entered the minute order directing sale of the property, defendant filed a motion to disqualify the judge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (52 Cal. App. 3d 672, 674-676) . The court held that the motion was properly denied as not timely because it was filed after a contested matter in relation to the litigation had been submitted to the judge sought to be disqualified (52 Cal. App. 3d 672, 677) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Made After Contested Matter Submitted

The factual background of California Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 267, 234 Cal. Rptr. 413 , is discussed in § 130.39[4][a]. In denying the writ of mandate, the court of appeal held that the peremptory challenge did not deprive the trial judge of jurisdiction over issues other than class certification (189 Cal. App. 3d 267, 270-271) . The court distinguished Bambula v. Superior Court (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 653, 220 Cal. Rptr. 223 (discussed in § 130.28[3][d]), and pointed out that a Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge may not be filed after the challenged judge has made a determination that bears on the merits of the case (189 Cal. App. 3d 267, 270, 271) . The court said that on its motion for summary adjudication of issues, defendant presented to the trial judge a number of issues involving complex questions of law, not the least of which was the issue involving the contractual interpretation of defendant's promissory note, which was one of the issues that would "make or break" the case for defendant (189 Cal. App. 3d 267, 271) . The court further stated that just as plaintiffs would have been precluded from filing a peremptory challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 after the trial judge's initial adverse rulings, defendant was precluded from filing a similar challenge after the trial judge's reconsideration of the issue resulted in a ruling adverse to defendant (189 Cal. App. 3d 267, 271) .

However, the court in, Zilog Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th. 1309, 1321, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173 , discussed in § 130.28[3][d], expressly declined to follow California Fed. Sav. The court held that where a judge has previously ruled on a motion for summary adjudication, that judge has determined only legal issues and remains subject to a later peremptory challenge under the plain language of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)], which provides that only a prior ruling involving a determination of contested fact issues relating to the merits will preclude a later peremptory challenge (86 Cal. App. 4th. 1309, 1322) .

[b] Judge Cannot Waive Timeliness Requirements

In Briggs v. Superior Court (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 312, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 , the People in a criminal action filed a peremptory challenge of a judge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The challenge was untimely because the judge had already ruled on defendant's motion to exclude evidence. The trial judge purported to waive the timeliness requirementsof Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, and disqualified himself. Defendant filed petition for writ of mandate with the court of appeal. The court of appeal granted the writ, holding that there was no authority for a trial judge to waive the requirements of Section 170.6, and that there were no apparent grounds for the judge to have disqualified himself (87 Cal. App. 4th 312, 318) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.42

§ 130.42 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made at Supplemental Proceeding Which Is Continuation of Original Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE _____ [identify party that made motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF] MADE THE MOTION TO DISQUALIFY IN A PROCEEDING WHICH IS A CONTINUATION OF EARLIER PROCEEDINGS IN WHICH THE JUDGE PRESIDED.

A. Motion Made at Subsequent Proceeding. A motion to disqualify a judge pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 cannot be entertained as to subsequent hearings that are a part or a continuation of the original proceedings (Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 190, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9, 347 P.2d 9).

[Optional] B. Proceeding Involving Substantially Same Issues. A proceeding is a continuation of the original action out of which it arises if it involves substantially the same issues as the original action (McClenny v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 677, 684, 36 Cal. Rptr. 459, 388 P.2d 691).

[Optional] C. Hearing on Motion to Tax Costs. There can be little doubt that a motion to tax costs is a special proceeding incidental to the original proceedings that dispose of the action (Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 699-700, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288 (construing former Code of Civil Procedure Sections 1033 and 1255a; now see Code of Civil Procedure Section 1268.610(c), providing that costs in eminent domain proceedings that are dismissed or result in no taking are taxed by the procedure that applies in civil actions)).

[Optional] D. Hearing on Allowance of Attorney's Fees. A hearing on the allowance of attorney's fees is so much a part of the whole controversy over child custody that such a hearing is a continuation of the original proceedings ( Haldane v. Haldane (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 587, 596, 26 Cal. Rptr. 670).

[Optional] E. Hearing on Motion for New Trial. A hearing on a motion for a new trial is a part of or continuation of the original proceeding (Agnew v. Cronin (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 535, 540-541, 17 Cal. Rptr. 273).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case. The ground of opposition is that the judge properly denied an untimely peremptory motion to disqualify made at a supplemental proceeding that is a continuation of the original proceeding.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to disqualify supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 130.28, 130.30.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made at Subsequent Proceeding

In Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9, 347 P.2d 9 , petitioner filed a motion to modify prior custody orders and a supplemental guardianship petition. Petitioner then filed a motion to disqualify the judge before whom the hearing was set. This judge had previously decided all matters in the proceedings. When the judge deniedthe motion and set matters for hearing before himself, petitioner requested a writ of prohibition to prevent the judge from trying the issues presented in the proceeding involving custody and guardianship. The Supreme Court denied the petition, holding that although Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 does not expressly so provide, it follows that, since a motion to disqualify must be made before the trial has commenced, a motion cannot be entertained as to subsequent hearings that are a part or a continuation of the original proceeding. Further, the Court held that in situations involving guardianship and custody orders, subsequent proceedings to obtain changes in custody are continuations of the original proceeding to determine custody. In elaborating, the Court noted that, because the issues presented by the motion to modify and the supplemental petition were basically the same as those which the judge had considered in the prior proceedings, and because the parties were the same, the motion to modify and the supplemental petition were but continuations of the prior proceeding. The Court reasoned that if disqualification were permitted pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 in such matters, the judge who tried the case, who was in the best position to pass on the questions involved, could be disqualified by a mere general allegation of prejudice. Such a procedure would allow litigants to gamble on obtaining a favorable decision from one judge, and then, if confronted with an adverse judgment, to disqualify him or her without presenting facts showing prejudice, in the hope of securing a different ruling from another judge in supplementary proceedings involving substantially the same issues (53 Cal. 2d 187, 190-191) .

[b] Proceeding Involving Substantially, Same Issues

In McClenny v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 677, 36 Cal. Rptr. 459, 388 P.2d 691 , the judge had presided at all of the numerous contested hearings in a dissolution action. Subsequent to the judge's entry of an interlocutory decree and custody award, plaintiff obtained orders to show cause re contempt for defendant's alleged violation of the custody order and a receivership order for the parties' property. Prior to the contempt hearing, defendant moved to disqualify the judge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, but the judge denied the motion on the ground that the contempt proceeding was a continuation of the original dissolution action within the meaning of Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 190-191, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9, 347 P.2d 9 , discussed under § 130.42[3][a]. Defendant petitioned for a writ of prohibition.

In the petition proceedings, the Supreme Court stated that the holding in Jacobs had been frequently applied, restated, and amplified and that the gravamen of that decision established that a proceeding is a continuation of the original action out of which it arises if it involves substantially the same issues as the original action. In the present case, although the issues to be presented in the contempt proceeding were not identical in every particular to the issues previously submitted, the questions involving the interpretation of the orders allegedly contemned, and the issue of whether defendant violated the judge's orders were matters necessarily relevant and material to the issues involved in the original action. Thus, the Court upheld the judge's denial of the motion to disqualify as untimely filed. The Court also noted that this particular judge was in the best position to pass on the questions involved because he had already presided at all the separate hearings involving contested issues in the case (60 Cal. 2d 677, 684-685) .

[c] Hearing on Motion to Tax Costs

In Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288 , plaintiff moved to disqualify the judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 prior to proceedings on a motion to tax costs under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1255a [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1268.510, 1268.610] after the plaintiff abandoned an eminent domain proceeding. The judge granted the motion to disqualify, but subsequently struck the order of disqualification. The judge then denied a motion for disqualification for cause, based on prejudice or bias, and ultimately heard and ruled on the motion to tax costs. Plaintiff appealed.

Defendant argued that the judge was not disqualified to hear the action because the motion to tax costs was a supplemental or continued hearing on matters involved in the original eminent domain proceeding and that a motion to disqualify the same judge who heard the original proceeding was not proper or timely because it was made after the trial had commenced. Plaintiff countered that a motion to tax costs under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1255a was an entirely new proceeding involving the enforcement of a legal right, a cause of action that arose upon the entry of the judgment of abandonment. The court of appeal rejected plaintiff's argument and held that a motion to tax costs is a special proceeding incidental to the original proceedings that dispose of the action. The court noted that former § 1255a provided for attorney's fees and costs in an abandoned proceeding to be claimed by the procedure used in civil actions. The court stated that there can be little doubt that a motion to tax costs is a special proceeding incidental to the original proceedings that dispose of the action, and that Code Civ. Proc. § 1033 so contemplated. Section 1033 at that time provided that motions to tax were to be passed upon by the court in which the judgment was rendered, or by the judge thereof at chambers [former § 1033 was repealed in 1986; former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 870, see now 3.1700 which governs the procedure for recovering costs, does not contain comparable language]. The court also noted that it is a matter of common knowledge among lawyers and of judicial notice by the courts that motions to tax costs are usually heard by the judge who presided over the trial in which the judgment of which the costs are an incident was rendered. Moreover, in a proceeding to tax costs, a party moving for a dismissal of the eminent domain proceeding charges itself in the judgment of dismissal with the obligation of the costs and disbursements therein provided. The dismissal carries with it, by virtue of te eminent domain statute, the imposition of an awardin favor of the opponent for those costs and disbursements including attorney's fees. These costs and disbursements arise out of and are necessarily relevant and material to the issues involved in the eminent domain action, and the judge who tries the case is in the best position to pass upon the propriety of these costs and disbursements, particularly the question of the reasonableness of attorney's fees. Therefore, under the rule stated in the Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 190-191, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9,

347 P.2d 9 , discussed under § 130.42[3][a], a proper motion to disqualify a judge must be made before trial of an eminent domain action commences, and cannot be entertained when it is made for the first time immediately prior to a hearing on a motion to tax costs and attorney's fees, which is part of or a continuation of the original proceeding (217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 698-699) . However, the court went on to reverse the judgment and to direct that the motion to tax costs and attorney's fees be retried before a different judge on the ground that the judge had been properly disqualified for cause by plaintiff's subsequent motion pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)] (217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 713) .

[d] Hearing on Allowance of Attorney's Fees

Haldane v. Haldane (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 587, 26 Cal. Rptr. 670 , involved a series of appeals taken by defendant after an interlocutory judgment was entered in a dissolution case. Defendant discharged his attorney, substituted himself in propria persona, and filed motions to set aside the decree and to disqualify the plaintiff's attorney, and several other motions having to do with modification of the child custody provision in the decree. Prior to filing these motions, defendant filed a motion to disqualify the judge, but it was not clear whether it was filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 or former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 [now Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5]. The judge denied the motion to disqualify as untimely filed, and after the hearing on the other motions, he denied them as well and granted attorney's fees to plaintiff's attorneys. Defendant appealed.

The appellate court affirmed the judge's denials of the motions and rejected defendant's argument that the judge was disqualified to conduct certain of the hearings. The hearings were but continuations of the proceedings that had been before the judge previously because the motions heard were mainly a restatement of what defendant had sought previously and had been denied. Although plaintiff's application for attorney's fees and expenses had presented a new issue of a kind not heard before the judge previously, the court held that the allowance of attorney's fees is so much a part of the whole controversy over child custody that it is a continuation of the original proceedings. Therefore, the motion to disqualify was untimely filed, as the trial court had determined. Furthermore, since the affidavit filed by defendant was neither timely under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, nor factually sufficient under former § 170, the judge was entitled to disregard it (210 Cal. App. 2d 587, 596-597) .

[e] Hearing on Motion for New Trial

Agnew v. Cronin (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 535, 17 Cal. Rptr. 273 , involved an appeal by plaintiff from an order granting a new trial to defendant. Defendant had moved for a new trial after entry of a verdict in plaintiff's favor in an action for damages based on fraud and conspiracy. In seeking a reversal, plaintiff argued that the order granting defendant's motion for a new trial was void because prior to the hearing on the motion, plaintiff had filed a motion to disqualify the judge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The court of appeal rejected plaintiff's argument and affirmed the trial court's holding that plaintiff's motion to disqualify was not timely when filed before a hearing on a motion for a new trial. First, the court noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 provides that a judge must not entertain such a motion if it is made after the drawing of the name of the first juror and that in this case, the matter had already been tried and a verdict returned before the motion to disqualify was filed. Further, the court cited Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 190-191, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9, 347 P.2d 9 , discussed under § 130.42[3][a], as having decided this point adversely to plaintiff's position. The court held that the trial judge was not disqualified to hear the motion for a new trial and that his order granting a new trial was not void (197 Cal. App. 2d 535, 540-541) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion Made at Subsequent Proceeding

In Meridith v. Meridith (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 504, 70 Cal. Rptr. 631 , the plaintiff, through a new attorney, moved to set aside an interlocutory judgment of dissolution. Before proceeding with the motion to set the decree aside, the new attorney attempted to disqualify the trial judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The trial judge denied the motion pointing out that he had heard the prior case and had decided it on its merits and that, at this stage, the filing of an attempted disqualification was not permissible. In affirming the order denying the motion to set aside the interlocutory judgment, the court of appeal reaffirmed the holding in Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 191, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9, 347 P.2d 9 , discussed under § 130.42[3][a], and stated that in a continued hearing on matters involved in the original proceeding, an application under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 for disqualification of the same judge who heard the original proceeding is not proper or timely (264 Cal. App. 2d 504, 508-509) .

The factual background of Michaels v. Superior Court (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 7 Cal. Rptr. 858 , is discussed in § 130.40[3][a]. At the hearing on the petition for the writ of prohibition, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of the motion to disqualify as having been filed too late, first, because the motion had not been made to the judge supervising the master calendar, and, second, because instead of filing the disqualifying affidavit at the time of the first hearing on theclaimed special appearance, petitioner waited until an unfavorable decision against him had been entered and then endeavored to disqualify the judge contrary to the holding of Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 190-191, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9, 347 P.2d 9 , discussed under § 130.42[3][a] (184 Cal. App. 2d 820, 824-827) . Thus, the court denied the petition for a writ of prohibition (184 Cal. App. 2d. 820, 829)

Dennis v. Overholtzer (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 110, 3 Cal. Rptr. 458 , involved an appeal attacking the validity of two orders made by the trial court on motions of respondents after entry of judgment. The orders were designed to maintain the status quo of property, a tenancy, and payment of rents to the county clerk until final determination of an appeal from the judgment. Appellants contended that both orders were void because the trial judge before whom the motions were made was disqualified under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. They argued that they had disqualified him by so moving on the date set for the hearing. But the court of appeal rejected appellants' argument and affirmed the validity of the orders holding that, since the orders were merely continuations of orders theretofore made, the rule laid down in the case of Jacobs v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 187, 190-191, 1 Cal. Rptr. 9, 347 P.2d 9 , discussed under § 130.42[3][a], was applicable (179 Cal. App. 2d 110, 111-112) .

[b] Proceeding Involving Substantially Same Issues

In Conservatorship of Durham (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 548, 252 Cal. Rptr. 414 , a probate judge heard a conservatorship proceeding and appointed a conservator of the person over the conservatee's opposition. The conservatee then obtained an ex parte domestic violence restraining order in family court barring the conservator from her house, apparently without disclosing the existence of the conservatorship. While a petition for the conservator's removal was pending, the conservator sought an order against the conservator of the estate and the conservatee's attorney for payment of attorneys' fees and sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The conservatee's motion to disqualify the judge who had appointed the conservator from hearing the fees and sanctions motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 was denied as untimely. Although reversing the order awarding sanctions, the court upheld denial of the Section 170.6 motion to disqualify. The court analogized a motion for sanctions to one for contempt, citing McClenny v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 677, 36 Cal. Rptr. 459, 388 P.2d 691 (discussed under § 130.42[3][b]). Both were viewed as exercises of the court's supervisory and enforcement functions and as a continuation of the original issue (205 Cal. App. 3d 548, 553-554) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.43

§ 130.43 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--After Prior Disqualification by Motion of Same Side [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE A PRIOR JUDGE HAD BEEN PEREMPTORILY DISQUALIFIED IN THIS _____ [ACTION or SPECIAL PROCEEDING] ON THE _____ [specify party or attorney on same side as party making motion that is subject of the petition, e.g., DEFENDANT'S] MOTION.

A. One Motion to Each Side. Only one peremptory motion to disqualify a judge may be made for each side in any one action or special proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)). The sole exception to this rule allows the party who filed an appeal that resulted in reversal of a final judgment of a trial court to make a motion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 regardless of whether that party or side has previously done so (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2), (a)(3)). That exception is not relevant to this case.

B. Motion Properly Denied After Prior Disqualification by Motion of Same Side. A motion to disqualify a judge must be denied where a prior judge has been peremptorily disqualified by the motion of a party or an attorney on the same side in any one action or special proceeding (Pappa v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 350, 353-354, 5 Cal. Rptr. 703, 353 P.2d 311).

C. Motion Properly Denied When Party Seeking Additional Challenge Per Side Fails to Prove Adverse Interests Between Parties. A motion to disqualify a judge must be denied when a prior judge has been peremptorily disqualified by the motion of a party or an attorney on the same side in any one action, and a same side party seeking an additional challenge fails to demonstrate sufficiently adverse interest between the parties (The Home Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 34 Cal. 4th 1025, 1033, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885, 103 P.3d 283).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case. The ground of opposition is that the judge properly denied a peremptory motion to disqualify because a prior judge had been peremptorily disqualified by the motion of a party or an attorney on the same side in the same action or special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)].

Paragraph A includes language pointing out the exception to the restriction to one motion per party or side [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(2) (authorizing motion by party whose appeal resulted in reversal of final judgment whether or not that party made previous motion)] and noting that it is not relevant to the case.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion to disqualify supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 130.20 -130.34.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Properly Denied After Prior Disqualification by Motion of Same Side

In Pappa v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 350, 5 Cal. Rptr. 703, 353 P.2d 311 , defendant Pappa and her codefendant Finch were charged with murder and conspiracy. The action was originally set for trial before Judge W who was disqualified by a challenge by the People pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. Judge N, who was then assigned to hear the case, was disqualified on a challenge by codefendant Finch under the same section, and the action was assigned to and finally tried before Judge E. The jury was unable to agree, and a mistrial was declared. The action was set for retrial before Judge D. Defendant Pappa, who had not previously attempted to exercise any rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, moved to disqualify Judge D pursuant to that section. When the motion was denied, defendant petitioned the Supreme Court for an alternative writ of prohibition to prevent Judge D from hearing the case and the writ was granted.

At the hearing on the petition for the peremptory writ, the Court first considered the question of whether the codefendants constituted a "side" as the term is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(3) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]. If so, defendant Pappa would not be entitled to have Judge D disqualified because her codefendant had previously exercised the one challenge available to a side in any one action. The Court reaffirmed its holding in Johnson v. Superior Court (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 693, 700, 329 P.2d 5 , that although there are ordinarily only two "sides" to a case, there may be more if codefendants have substantially adverse interests. The Court noted that the reasoning in Johnson, a civil case, would be equally applicable to a criminal prosecution. However, the burden was on defendant Pappa to establish that her interests were substantially adverse to those of her codefendant, and she had not met that burden. The Court held that the codefendants were limited to one motion for disqualification which had previously been exercised by Finch before Judge N (54 Cal. 2d 350, 353-354) . Because Pappa's motion to disqualify had been properly denied by Judge D, the Court discharged the alternative writ and denied the peremptory writ (54 Cal. 2d 350, 356) .

[b] Motion Properly Denied When Party Seeking Additional Challenge Per Side Fails to Prove Adverse Interests Between Parties

In The Home Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (2005) 34 Cal. 4th 1025, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885, 103 P.3d 283 , federal and state authorities had brought environmental damage actions against Montrose Chemical Corporation. In turn, Montrose filed a declaratory relief lawsuit against its primary insurance carriers. During the course of the litigation, one of the carriers exercised a peremptory challenge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, and the case was assigned to a new trial judge. Subsequent, the declaratory relief action reached a settlement, and the primary insurers were dismissed. Montrose then amended its declaratory relief complaint to name its excess insurance carrier, Home Insurance Company, as a defendant. Home attempted to exercise a peremptory challenge to the trial judge, and, after objection by Montrose, the trial judge ruled that Home was not entitled to a peremptory challenge on the basis that the primary insurer and Home were on the same "side" for purposes of peremptory challenges. Home filed a petition for writ of mandate, and the Court of Appeal reversed, holding that "more often than not" primary and excess carriers have "substantially adverse interests" such that they are on separate sides.

The Supreme Court reversed, holding that primary and excess carriers do not necessarily have "substantially adverse interests" and therefore a reversal of the trial court's factual determination was not warranted. The Court reviewed the evidentiary standard it had set out in Pappa v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 350 : That the party seeking to exercise a second peremptory challenge has the burden of demonstrating that its interests are "substantially adverse" to the co-defendant's (34 Cal. 4th 1025, 1035) . The Court rejected the appellate court's reasoning that primary and excess carriers are "more often than not" substantially adverse to each other because they generally attempt to foist liability upon one another, noting that in many cases the same insurer may have issued a primary and excess policy to an insured. The Court also noted that the two types of carriers' positions may often be consistent with one another; i.e., that there is no coverageor that the excess policy does not apply until primary coverage is exhausted. The Court therefore declined to reverse the trial court's determination that the primary and excess insurers were not "substantially adverse" for purposes of peremptory challenges under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (34 Cal. 4th 1025, 1036) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.44

§ 130.44 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Untimely Peremptory Motion to Disqualify Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]--Motion Made by Party in Coordination Proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.516, 3.544]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE PEREMPTORY MOTION TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER WAS FILED MORE THAN 20 DAYS AFTER SERVICE OF THE ORDER OF ASSIGNMENT. [A PARTY TO AN ACTION THAT WAS ADDED ON TO A COORDINATION PROCEEDING MORE THAN 20 DAYS AFTER SERVICE OF THE ORDER OF ASSIGNMENT IS NOT AUTHORIZED TO EXERCISE A PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE].

A. Twenty-Day Limitation. A party making a peremptory challenge by motion or affidavit of prejudice regarding an assigned judge must submit it in writing to the assigned judge within 20 days after service of the order assigning the judge to the coordination proceeding (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516).

[Optional] B. Party in Add-On Case. A party to an action that has been added on to a coordination proceeding has no right to assert a peremptory challenge to the coordination judge when the party was not in the proceeding within 20 days of the service of the order assigning the coordination judge (Industrial Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 261, 264, 262 Cal. Rptr. 544).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in a coordination proceeding in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent the coordination judge from proceeding with the case. The ground of opposition is that the judge properly denied a peremptory challenge as untimely when it was made more than 20 days after service of the order assigning the coordination judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.516].

Optional Paragraph B is for use when the challenge was made by a party to an action that was added on to the coordination proceeding more than 20 days after service of the order assigning the coordination judge, in which case the party has no procedure for making a Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge [see Industrial Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 261, 264, 262 Cal. Rptr. 544] .

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose a petition supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.32.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Add-On Cases in Coordination Proceedings

When a pending civil action shares a common question of fact or law with actions in a coordination proceeding, the assigned coordination judge may add the pending action to the coordination proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 404.4]. The procedure for a request to coordinate an add-on case is set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.544.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion and forms relating to coordinate actions, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda relating to coordination of actions generally, see Ch. 45, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party in Add-On Case

In Industrial Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 262 Cal. Rptr. 544 , a judge was assigned to sit as trial judge in a coordination action involving multiple actions brought by investors who had lost money they had invested with a corporation. Two years later, several plaintiffs, who had already brought their complaints to judgment, filed separate actions against the insurance companies of the judgment debtors, alleging that plaintiffs were nowjudgment creditors of their insureds seeking a declaration that they were entitled to proceed against the insurance companies directly. Plaintiffs then filed a petition with the coordination trial judge to add these actions on to the coordination proceeding. The new defendant insurance companies filed peremptory challenges to the assigned judge. The judge denied the challenges as untimely and the defendants petitioned for extraordinary relief.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that parties to an add-on petition in a coordination action have no right to challenge the coordination judge (214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 261) . The court reasoned that former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1544, see now 3.544 which sets out the procedure to add on cases to an ongoing coordination proceeding after a coordination judge has been assigned, contains no provision for peremptory challenge by a party to an add-on case. The Judicial Council, the court held, has the authority to exclude parties from the right to exercise such a challenge (214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 263) . Federal and state constitutional provisions do not prohibit the exclusion of one category of parties from the right to exercise a peremptory challenge as long as the exclusion is reasonable (214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 263-264) . The Judicial Council reasonably could have concluded that add-on parties could abuse the peremptory challenge because the rulings of a judge who has participated in the coordination action for years could be well known. In addition, the limitation serves the Legislature's goals in providing for coordination proceedings because a fundamental aspect of coordination is the trial of multiple actions by a single judge (214 Cal. App. 3d 259, 264) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.45

§ 130.45 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Inquiry Into Party's Good Faith in Making Peremptory Challenge as Proper in Case of Unconstitutional Discrimination

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE TRIAL COURT PROPERLY INQUIRED INTO THE MOVING PARTY'S GOOD FAITH AND DULY DETERMINED THAT THE MOVING PARTY SOUGHT TO DISQUALIFY THE JUDGE BASED ON UNCONSTITUTIONALLY DISCRIMINATORY GROUP BIAS.

A. Inquiry Into Moving Party's Good Faith as Proper in Case of Unconstitutional Discrimination. A peremptory challenge may not be used to disqualify a judge on an unconstitutionally discriminatory basis, such as race. Therefore, Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 may not be implemented in such a way as to preclude inquiry into whether the statute has been used for that purpose. The trial court may conduct an inquiry into the moving party's good faith if the inquiry is limited to determining whether the moving party intended to disqualify the judge on an unconstitutionally discriminatory basis (People v. Superior Court (Williams) (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 706-713, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873).

B. Burden of Proof. A party charging that an adversary has invoked a Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.6 challenge solely on the ground of group bias bears an initial burden of establishing a prima facie case of invidious discrimination. If a prima facie case is established, the adversary then assumes the burden of demonstrating that the peremptory challenge was not predicated on group bias alone. If the adversary offers a race-neutral basis for the peremptory challenge, the trial court determines whether or not the charging party has established purposeful discrimination (People v. Superior Court (Williams) (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 708, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case. The ground of opposition is that a peremptory challenge was properly denied after an inquiry into the moving party's good faith in making the challenge, and the trial court determined that the moving party's purpose was unconstitutional discrimination [see People v. Superior Court (Williams) (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 706-713, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873] .

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel should state facts showing that the challenge was exercised to remove a judge who is a member of a cognizable racial group, and that other facts and circumstances raise an inference that the challenge was exercised on account of the judge's race [see People v. Superior Court (Williams) (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 708-709, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873] .

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be used tooppose a petition supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.35.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inquiry Into Moving Party's Good Faith as Proper in Case of Unconstitutional Discrimination

In People v. Superior Court (Williams) (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873 , the case was assigned for trial, and later the same day the prosecutor filed a motion for peremptory disqualification of the judge, with a supporting affidavit substantially in the form prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(5). The presiding judge was required by statute, "thereupon and without any further act or proof," to assign the case to another judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(3)]. However, the defendant having asserted that the prosecutor disqualified the judge because of group racial bias, the presiding judge proceeded to inquire into the prosecutor's good faith in making the peremptory challenge. At the direction of the presiding judge, the prosecutor disclosed the reasons for the challenge. Concluding that the stated reasons were not sufficient to overcome a prima facie showing of invidious discrimination, the presiding judge disallowed the challenge.

In a proceeding for a writ of mandate on the prosecutor's behalf, the court of appeal concluded that the inquiry was proper because of the possibility that the challenge was made on an unconstitutionally discriminatory basis (8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 706-707) . The court acknowledged the rule of Solberg v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 182, 137 Cal. Rptr. 460, 561 P.2d 1148 , that there are abuses, such as "judge shopping" that are to be viewed as a relatively inconsequential price to be paid for the efficient and discreet procedure in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The court noted that neither Solberg nor any other decision had addressed the vulnerability of a § 170.6 challenge generally to federal constitutional challenge, or specifically to an equal protection claim (8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 704-706) . The court held that § 170.6 could not be implemented in such a way as to preclude inquiry into whether the statute has been employed to disqualify a judge because of race (8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 707) . Nonetheless, the court of appeal found that the defendant had failed to make a prima facie case of discrimination and issued a writ directing the trial court to set aside the order disqualifying the challenged judge (8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 712-714) .

[b] Burden of Proof

The facts and procedural background of People v. Superior Court (Williams) (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 873 , are discussed under § 130.45[3][a].

After holding that an inquiry may be made to determine whether a Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.6 challenge has been employed to disqualify a judge in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment, the court outlined the procedure that should be followed. The court held that the burden was on the party questioning the peremptory challenge to make a prima facie case of invidious discrimination by showing that the challenged judge is a member of a cognizable racial group and by showing facts and other relevant circumstances that raise an inference that the challenge was exercised on account of the judge's race. The burden then shifts to the party exercising the challenge to show that the challenge was not based on group bias alone. If that party offers a race-neutral basis for the peremptory challenge, the trial court determines whether or not the party questioning the challenge has established purposeful discrimination (8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 708-709) . The party questioning the exercise of the challenge in this case failed to meet his burden, and therefore, the court issued a writ directing the trial court to set aside the order disqualifying the challenged judge (8 Cal. App. 4th 688, 712-714) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
A. PEREMPTORY DISQUALIFICATIONS

13-130 California Points & Authorities §§ 130.46-130.59

[Reserved]

§§ 130.46[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.60

§ 130.60 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Timely Statement of Disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]

[1] FORM

IN THE COURT OF APPEAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, _____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]

_____ [name], Petitioner,	)
vs.	)
THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA FOR THE [CITY AND] COUNTY OF_____,	)
and	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
THE JUDGE OF SAID COURT,	)
Respondents,	)
_____ [name(s)]	)
Real _____ [Party or Parties] in Interest.	)
	)

_____

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name]

FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE TIMELY STATEMENT OF DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE WAS DENIED.

A. Writ of Mandate. A writ of mandate may issue from any court to any inferior tribunal to compel the performance of an act that the law specifically enjoins as a duty from an office, trust, or station (Code Civ. Proc. § 1085). The writ must be issued in all cases when there is no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of the law on the verified petition of the party beneficially interested (Code Civ. Proc. § 1086).

B. Review by Mandate Expressly Authorized. A determination on the question of the disqualification of a judge under Code of Civil Procedure Sections 170 through 170.5 is not an appealable order and may be reviewed only by writ of mandate from the appropriate court of appeal within ten days of written notice to the parties of entry of the decision and only by the parties to the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d)).

C. Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case. Except as provided under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.4, a disqualified judge has no power to act in any proceeding after his or her disqualification or after the filing of a statement of disqualification until the question of his or her disqualification has been determined (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(d)).

D. Timely Statement of Disqualification. A statement of disqualification presented by a party at the earliest practicable opportunity after the party's appearance and discovery of the facts constituting the ground of the judge's disqualification under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1 is timely, even though those facts are discovered after the commencement of the hearing of an issue of fact before the judge (see Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 446-447, 289 P.2d 209).

[Optional] E. Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings. At the request of a party or on its own motion an appellate court will consider whether in the interests of justice it should direct that further proceedings be heard before a trial judge other than the judge whose judgment or order was reviewed by the appellate court (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(c)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when petitioner has filed a timely written statementof disqualification for cause and another judge has determined that the challenged judge is not disqualified or the challenged judge has ordered the statement stricken from the record.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

The foregoing points and authorities may also be modified to support a motion to set aside a final judgment alleged to be voidable because the judge was disqualified to act [see Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 423-424, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659] . For forms to use in preparing a motion to vacate a judgment, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion to disqualify a judge for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For a discussion of and forms for use in a proceeding to vacate a judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial and Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For a discussion of and forms of memoranda for use in a proceeding to vacate a judgment, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial and Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 130.69 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case

Except as provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4, a disqualified judge has no power to act in any proceeding after his or her disqualification or after the filing of a statement of disqualification until the question of his or her disqualification has been determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(d)]. To the extent that a disqualified judge retains the power to perform specified acts, Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(d) appears to overrule earlier decisions that held that every order entered by a disqualified judge was void [see, e.g., Briggs v. Superior Court (1932) 215 Cal. 336, 341, 10 P.2d 1003] . However, those acts by a disqualified judge not enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4 may be considered void as being beyond the judge's authority to act.

A disqualified judge retains the following powers [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(a)]:

(1) To take any action or issue any order necessary to maintain the jurisdiction of the court pending the assignment of a judge not disqualified;

(2) To request any other judge agreed on by the parties to sit and act in his or her place;

(3) To hear and determine purely default matters;

(4) To issue an order for possession prior to judgment in eminent domain proceedings;

(5) To set proceedings for trial or hearing; and,

(6) To conduct settlement conferences.

Also, while a challenged judge who refuses to recuse himself or herself generally cannot decide the question of his or her own disqualification or the sufficiency of the challenging party's statement of disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(5)], he or she may nonetheless order the statement of disqualification stricken in the following situations [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b), (c)(3)]:

(1) Is untimely filed;

(2) On its face discloses no legal grounds for disqualification; or

(3) Is a repetition of a prior statement of disqualification filed by the same party that does not allege facts suggesting new grounds for disqualification.

Finally, if a statement of disqualification is filed after the trial or hearing has commenced, as determined under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1) or (2), the judge may order the trial or hearing to continue, and his or her orders or rulings made after the filing of the statement will be vacated only if it is subsequently determined that the judge is disqualified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(4) (rulings made by disqualified judge before ground of disqualification was first learned of or arose are not to be set aside by replacement judge absent good cause)].

[b] Timely Statement of Disqualification

Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 289 P.2d 209 , involved an action brought to recover damages for fraudulent conversion of the assets of a business. The case was tried in superior court without a jury, and after the conclusion of the testimony, the trial judge made statements to the effect that he believed defendant had knowingly sworn falsely during the course of the trial. Judgment was entered against defendant. Plaintiff applied to the same superior court to increase the award of damages andat the hearing defendant sought to reopen the case to introduce certain books of account. The judge stated that it was unnecessary to go into the books since they would not show anything to alter his conclusion, and he reiterated his lack of confidence in defendant's integrity. The award was then increased and findings and judgment were filed. On appeal, the appellate court held that the issue of liability was correctly determined but that the action must be remanded for retrial of the issue of damages. After remand by the appellate court for retrial, plaintiff filed a notice of motion to be made in the department where the original trial judge was presiding for setting the action for further proceedings in that department. At that point, defendant filed a written statement of disqualification of the original trial judge by reason of bias and prejudice. The judge struck the statement from the record as untimely and as insufficient, and defendant petitioned for a writ of prohibition.

The Supreme Court granted a writ of prohibition to prevent the original trial judge from hearing the retrial of the case stating that, insofar as the retrial was concerned, it was clear that the statement of disqualification met the purposes of the statute and was timely because it was presented promptly after petitioner learned that the case was again to be set for trial before the same judge (45 Cal. 2d 440, 446-447) .

[c] Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings

An appellate court shall consider, on request of a party or sua sponte, whether the interests of justice require that it direct any further proceedings to be heard by a trial judge other than the judge whose judgment or order was reviewed [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(c)]. One example in which it seems clear that an appellate court should issue such a direction is when the trial court judge has demonstrated a lack of impartiality in making the determination that is the subject of appellate review. For discussion of cases decided under prior law in which a trial judge was disqualified from retrying a case after reversal on appeal for lack of impartiality during the initial proceeding, see § 130.66[3][b], [c].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Timely Statement of Disqualification

Hollingsworth v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 22, 236 Cal. Rptr. 193 , was an action seeking injunctive and declaratory relief. When petitioning for a temporary restraining order, petitioners prepared, but did not file, a motion to have the presiding juvenile court judge disqualify herself should she assign the case to herself, realizing that the motion would be superfluous if she assigned the case to another judge. Petitioner requested the clerk to tell the presiding judge that counsel wanted to know, before any rulings were made, whether or not she would hear the matter. The case was trailed to the next day, and petitioner did not file the motion, believing the matter only pending in the presiding judge's department. The next day the judge summoned the counsel into her chambers to discuss the application. At that time petitioner asked the judge to recuse herself. When she declined, petitioner served her with the motion. The judge rejected the motion as untimely. Petitioner sought a writ reversing the order. The court of appeals issued a writ of mandate directing the trial judge to vacate her order denying the motion and striking the disqualification. The court reiterated the "earliest practicable opportunity" language of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1). It examined the record and found sufficient reason for petitioner's belief that the matter was still pending, and that the first indication that the judge would hear the matter on the merits was in her chambers. It noted that the request for recusal was made before the judge announced her tentative decision in chambers, and concluded that it was timely made (191 Cal. App. 3d 22, 27-28) .

Schorr v. Superior Court (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 568, 164 Cal. Rptr. 478 , arose out of a proceeding to modify child custody and support. In conference with the commissioner, who had been acting as temporary judge pursuant to the parties' stipulation, the husband claimed to have learned of the commissioner's prejudice. He moved for disqualification under both former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)] and Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, but the commissioner denied the motion as being without basis and as untimely, in that the proceeding had already begun. On the husband's petition, the court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate requiring the trial court to allow the husband to file his verified statement under former § 170(5), and to provide for its hearing by another judge should the statement turn out to be legally sufficient in form and content. The court held that the husband's challenge was timely made, since it was made at the conclusion of the conference at which the husband could have learned the disqualifying facts and therefore was made at the earliest practicable opportunity after discovery of those facts (105 Cal. App. 3d 568, 571) .

The facts and procedural background of Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288 , are set out in § 130.42[3][e]. In Oak Grove, after the judge set aside the order to disqualify himself stating that he had been mistaken concerning his peremptory disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, plaintiff immediately filed a written statement to disqualify the judge for bias and prejudice under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]. The statement was based on the judge's remarks made at the time he had granted the peremptory challenge. The trial judge struck the statement to disqualify and after the hearing, made a judgment in defendants' favor. The appellate court held that the written motion todisqualify was timely, even though the facts constituting the ground of disqualification became known to plaintiff on May 1 when the judge made the remarks in question. Because the judge also entered an order disqualifying himself on May 1 and did not set that order aside until May 10, plaintiff had no reason to have moved for disqualification in the interim. When the § 170.6 disqualification was set aside, plaintiff immediately made his motion under former § 170(5). Under the circumstances, the court found that plaintiff had acted at the earliest practicable opportunity. The court reversed the judgment for defendant and directed a retrial of the motion on costs and fees before a different judge (217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 702-704) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.61

§ 130.61 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Financial Interest in Subject Matter of or Party to Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.60[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE STATEMENT TO DISQUALIFY THE JUDGE BASED ON HIS/HER HAVING A FINANCIAL INTEREST IN THIS PROCEEDING OR IN A PARTY TO THIS PROCEEDING WAS IMPROPERLY DENIED.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 130.60[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Review by Mandate Expressly Authorized. [See § 130.60[1], Paragraph B.]

C. Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.60[1], Paragraph C.]

D. Timely Statement of Disqualification. [See § 130.60[1], Paragraph D.]

[EITHER]

E. Disqualifying Financial Interest. A judge is disqualified if the judge, or the judge's spouse or minor child living in the household, has a financial interest in the subject matter in a proceeding or in a party to the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3)(B)(i)).

[AND/OR]

E. Disqualifying Financial Interest as Fiduciary. A judge is disqualified if the judge or the judge's spouse is a fiduciary, including any executor, trustee, guardian, or administrator, who has a financial interest in the subject matter in a proceeding or in a party to the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(3)(B)(ii), 170.5(g)).

[CONTINUE]

F. Financial Interest Defined. "Financial interest," for the purpose of Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(3), means ownership of more than a one percent legal or equitable interest in a party, or a legal or equitable interest in a party of a fair market value in excess of $1,500, or a relationship as director, advisor, or other active participant in the affairs of a party, except as follows:

(1) Ownership in a mutual or common investment fund that holds securities is not a "financial interest" in those securities unless the judge participates in the management of the fund;

(2) An office in an educational, religious, charitable, fraternal, or civic organization is not a "financial interest" in securities held by the organization;

(3) The proprietary interest of a policyholder in a mutual insurance company, or a depositor in a mutual savings association, or a similar proprietary interest, is a "financial interest" in the organization if the outcome of the proceeding could substantially affect the value of the interest (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(b)).

[Optional] G. Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph E.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when petitioner has filed a written statement todisqualify the judge on the ground that he or she is financially interested within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(3) and 170.5(b) and (g) and another judge has determined that the challenged judge is not disqualified or the challenged judge has ordered the statement stricken from the record.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion to disqualify a judge for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 130.68, 130.71 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disqualifying Financial Interest

Because the Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(b) definition of "financial interest" covers only certain types of ownership of or relationship to a party, the exact extent to which a judge may be disqualified under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3) for a "financial interest" in the subject matter of the proceeding is not fully clear. It is clear, however, that disqualification for interest under § 170.1(a)(3) is more limited than it was under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(a)(1), which was construed to cover any certain, definable, pecuniary or proprietary interest or relation that would be directly affected by the judgment in the proceeding [see Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. v. Superior Court (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 330, 187 P. 1056 (action to enjoin removal of subterranean water under real property owned by plaintiff and coincidentally under other real property owned by judge)]. Those pecuniary or proprietary interests that were disqualifying under former § 170(a)(1) but that are apparently not now covered under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(3) and 170.5(b) arguably continue to be disqualifying under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6), which provides for disqualification if for any reason a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial [see discussion in § 130.66[2][b][ii]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.62

§ 130.62 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Personal Knowledge of Disputed Evidentiary Facts Concerning Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(1)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.60[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE STATEMENT TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER BASED ON HIS/HER HAVING PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE OF DISPUTED EVIDENTIARY FACTS CONCERNING THE PROCEEDING WAS IMPROPERLY DENIED.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Review by Mandate Expressly Authorized. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph C.]

D. Timely Statement of Disqualification. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph D.]

E. Personal Knowledge of Disputed Evidentiary Facts Concerning Proceeding. A judge is disqualified if he or she has personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(1)(A)). A judge will be deemed to have such personal knowledge if the judge, or his or her spouse, or a person within the third degree of relationship to either of them, as calculated according to the civil law system, or the spouse of such a person, is to the judge's knowledge likely to be a material witness in the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(1)(B), 170.5(d)).

[Optional] F. Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph E.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when petitioner has filed a written statement to disqualify the judge on the ground that he or she has personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(1) and 170.5(d) and another judge has determined that the challenged judge is not disqualified or the challenged judge has ordered the statement stricken from the record.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion to disqualify a judge for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 130.68 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.63

§ 130.63 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Relationship to Party or Certain Other Persons [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(4), (5)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.60[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE STATEMENT TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER BASED ON HIS/HER _____ [BEING or BEING RELATED TO] _____ [A PARTY or AN OFFICER, DIRECTOR, OR TRUSTEE OF A PARTY or A LAWYER IN THE PROCEEDING or A PERSON ASSOCIATED IN PRIVATE PRACTICE WITH A LAWYER IN THE PROCEEDING] WAS IMPROPERLY DENIED.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 130.60[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Review by Mandate Expressly Authorized. [See § 130.60[1], Paragraph B.]

C. Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.60[1], Paragraph C.]

D. Timely Statement of Disqualification. [See § 130.60[1], Paragraph D.]

[EITHER]

E. Relationship to Party or Officer, Director, or Trustee of Party. A judge is disqualified if the judge, or the spouse of the judge, or a person within the third degree of relationship to either of them, or the spouse of such a person is a party to the proceeding or an officer, director, or trustee of a party (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(4)). [The third degree of relationship shall be calculated according to the civil law system (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(d))].

[OR]

E. Relationship to Attorney in Proceeding. A judge is disqualified if a lawyer or the spouse of a lawyer in the proceeding is the spouse, former spouse, child, sibling, or parent of the judge or the judge's spouse or if such a person is associated in the private practice of law with a lawyer in the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(5)). The term "private practice of law" includes a fee for service, retainer, or salaried representation of private clients or public agencies (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(e)).

[Optional] F. Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings. [ See § 130.60[1], Paragraph E.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when petitioner has filed a written statement to disqualify the judge on the ground that he or she is related to a party or a lawyer in the proceeding within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(4) and (5) and 170.5(d) and (e), and another judge has determined that the challenged judge is not disqualified or the challenged judge has ordered the statement stricken from the record.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion to disqualify a judge for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 130.68 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.64

§ 130.64 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Permanent or Temporary Physical Impairment [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(7)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.60[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE STATEMENT TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER BASED ON HIS/HER BEING UNABLE TO PROPERLY PERCEIVE THE EVIDENCE OR BEING UNABLE TO PROPERLY CONDUCT THE PROCEEDING BY REASON OF PERMANENT OR TEMPORARY PHYSICAL IMPAIRMENT WAS IMPROPERLY DENIED.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Review by Mandate Expressly Authorized. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph C.]

D. Timely Statement of Disqualification. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph D.]

E. Permanent or Temporary Physical Impairment. A judge is disqualified if he or she, by reason of permanent or temporary physical impairment, is unable to properly perceive the evidence or is unable to properly conduct the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(7)).

[Optional] F. Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph E.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when petitioner has filed a written statement to disqualify the judge on the ground that he or she is unable to properly perceive the evidence or conduct the proceeding by reason of permanent or temporary physical impairment within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(7) and another judge has determined that the challenged judge is not disqualified or the challenged judge has ordered the statement stricken from the record.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion to disqualify a judge for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 130.68 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.65

§ 130.65 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Former Legal Representation by Judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.60[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE STATEMENT TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER BASED ON HIS/HER HAVING FORMERLY _____ [BEEN A LAWYER IN THIS PROCEEDING or BEEN A LAWYER FOR A PARTY TO THIS PROCEEDING IN ANOTHER PROCEEDING INVOLVING THE SAME ISSUES or GIVEN ADVICE TO A PARTY TO THIS PROCEEDING ON A MATTER INVOLVED IN THIS PROCEEDING] WAS IMPROPERLY DENIED.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Review by Mandate Expressly Authorized. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph C.]

D. Timely Statement of Disqualification. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph D.]

E. Former Legal Representation by Judge. A judge is disqualified if the judge served as a lawyer in the proceeding, or in any other proceeding involving the same issues the judge served as a lawyer for any party in the present proceeding or gave advice to any party in the present proceeding on any matter involved in the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(A)).

[Optional] F. Activities Deemed to Be Service as Lawyer. A judge will be deemed to have served as a lawyer in the proceeding if within the past two years (a) a party to the proceeding or an officer, director, or trustee of a party was either a client of the judge when the judge was in the private practice of law or a client of a lawyer with whom the judge was associated in the private practice of law; or (b) a lawyer in the proceeding was associated in the private practice of law with the judge (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(B)). The term "private practice of law" includes a fee for service, retainer, or salaried representation of private clients or public agencies (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(e)).

[Optional] G. Previous Service as Lawyer for Public Agency Officer. A judge who served as a lawyer for or officer of a public agency that is a party to the proceeding will be deemed to have served as a lawyer in the proceeding if he or she personally advised or in any way represented the public agency concerning the factual or legal issues in the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(C)).

[Optional] H. Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph E.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when petitioner has filed a written statement to disqualify the judge on the ground that he or she served as former counsel to a party within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(2) and 170.5(c) and (e), and another judge has determined that the challenged judge is not disqualified or the challenged judge has ordered the statement stricken from the record.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion to disqualify a judge for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 130.68 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.66

§ 130.66 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Unable to Be Impartial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.60[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE STATEMENT TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER ON THE GROUND THAT A PERSON AWARE OF THE FACTS MIGHT REASONABLY ENTERTAIN A DOUBT THAT THE JUDGE WOULD BE ABLE TO BE IMPARTIAL WAS IMPROPERLY DENIED.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Review by Mandate Expressly Authorized. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph C.]

D. Timely Statement of Disqualification. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph D.]

E. Unable to Be Impartial. A judge is disqualified if, for any reason, a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial in the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(A)(iii)). This is fundamentally an objective standard. The issue is not limited to actual bias. Rather, if a reasonable man would entertain doubts concerning the judge's impartiality, disqualification is mandated (Housing Authority of the County of Monterey v. Jones (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1041-1042 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 676 ; United Farm Workers of America v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 97, 104, 216 Cal. Rptr. 4).

[Optional] F. Bias or Prejudice Towards Lawyer in Proceeding. Bias or prejudice towards a lawyer in the proceeding may be grounds for disqualification (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(B)).

[Optional] G. Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion on Issues to Be Tried. When a judge has expressed his/her opinion on the issue or issues to be tried in the trial before commencement of a trial, he/she is disqualified from acting as judge in that trial (see Calhoun v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 257, 260-262, 331 P.2d 648).

[Optional] H. Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion of Party's Lack of Veracity Under Oath. When a judge has, before commencement of trial, expressed his/her opinion on a party's lack of veracity under oath, he/she is disqualified from acting as judge in that trial (see Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 443-444, 289 P.2d 209).

[Optional] I. Judge Whose Determination Is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph E.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when petitioner has filed a written statement to disqualify the judge on the ground that, for any reason, a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6) and another judge has determined that the challenged judge is not disqualified or the challenged judge has ordered the statement stricken from the record.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

[i] New Trial

With appropriate modifications the foregoing points and authorities may be used to support a motion for new trial because of irregularities in the proceeding preventing a fair trial [see Estate of Friedman (1918) 178 Cal. 27, 39, 172 P. 140 ; Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150, 91 Cal. Rptr. 193 (both decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170)].

Although the question of bias or prejudice on the part of a trial judge cannot be raised on a motion for a new trial [Estate of Friedman (1918) 178 Cal. 27, 39, 172 P. 140 ; Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150, 91 Cal. Rptr. 193] , evidence of the trial judge's conduct during the trial may be shown as evidence of irregularities preventing a fair trial, including an overt act of the judge that prevents the complaining party from having a fair and impartial trial [Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150, 91 Cal. Rptr. 193] . Nevertheless, the determination of whether or not to grant the motion is made with reference to the course of conduct alleged to constitute an irregularity violative of a right to a fair and impartial trial. It is immaterial whether or not the irregularity resulted from bias or prejudice [Estate of Friedman (1918) 178 Cal. 27, 39, 172 P. 140] .

[ii] Financial Interest Not Covered by Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(3)

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may also be used in arguing that an interest that was previously disqualifying under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 but that is not now covered as a disqualifying "financial interest" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(3) and 170.5(b) continues to be disqualifying under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6), because the nature of the interest gives rise to a reasonable doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial [for further discussion, see § 130.61[3][a]]. In arguing this proposition, counsel should take care in citing prior case law, which typically held that interests falling under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 were disqualifying per se, without regard to their effect on the judge's rulings [see, e.g., Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. v. Superior Court (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 330, 187 P. 1056 (action to enjoin removal of subterranean water under real property owned by plaintiff and coincidentally under other real property owned by judge)]. These cases should be cited only to exemplify interests that, even if not "financial" under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(3) and 170.5(b), are nonetheless disqualifying because they might affect the judge's ruling and therefore give rise to a reasonable doubt that the judge would not be able to be impartial under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion to disqualify a judge for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For a discussion of and forms for use in bringing a motion for a new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For a discussion of and memoranda to accompany a motion for a new trial, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 130.68, 130.72 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unable to Be Impartial

In addition to the reasonable doubt standard set out in the form, Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6) also provides that a judge must be disqualified if the judge believes his or her recusal would further the interests of justice or the judge believes there is a substantial doubt about his or her capacity to be impartial.

In Housing Authority of the County of Monterey v. Jones (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1041-1042, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 676 , the defendant was a commercial tenant in a facility owned by plaintiff. After informal efforts to end the tenancy failed, plaintiff filed an unlawful detainer action. The matter was classified as a superior court limited jurisdiction case. The parties filed various pretrial motions, including plaintiff's motion for a protective order and defendant's motion for a continuance to conduct discovery, which were heard and decided by Judge Kingsley (130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1033) . The case continued to trial before a different judge, who ruled in plaintiff's favor. Defendant appealed to the Monterey County Superior Court Appellate Division. Judge Kingsley was one of the judges on the appellate division, and defendant argued that she should not hear the appeal due to her prior involvement in the pretrial motions. The appellate division rejected that argument, holding that a judge is only disqualified of hearing an appeal of a proceeding she "tried or heard" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(b). The appellate division then affirmed the unlawful detainer judgment (130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1035) .

The court of appeals addressed the sole issue of whether Judge Kingsley should have been disqualified from the appellate panel because of her priorparticipation in the pretrial motions (130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1037) . The appellate division had been correct that Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(b) did not mandate disqualification because the appellate panel did not review the same "proceeding" that was previously decided by Judge Kingsley. However, disqualification was required under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(C) because a person aware of the facts, i.e., Judge Kingsley's rulings on the pretrial motions, "might reasonably entertain a doubt that [she] would be able to be impartial." This holding was mandated by the degree to which the pretrial rulings were referenced in the arguments on appeal (130 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1041-1042) .

United Farm Workers of America v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 97, 216 Cal. Rptr. 4 , is the first case to interpret and apply Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(C). In this case, defendant farm workers union petitioned to disqualify the trial judge for bias on the basis of his mentioning to union's counsel that he recalled that several years ago his wife had served for several days as a volunteer replacement worker for the grower who was the plaintiff in the action. In denying the writ, the court observed that Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(C), providing for disqualification if a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial, establishes a fundamentally objective standard that is not limited to the existence of an actual bias. The proper frame of reference for determining whether a basis for disqualification exists under this standard has been described as neither the judge's personal view of his or her own impartiality, nor the litigants' necessarily partisan views, but rather how the "average person on the street" would view the judge's participation in a given case (170 Cal. App. 3d 97, 104) .

[b] Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion on Issues to Be Tried

In Calhoun v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 257, 331 P.2d 648 , decided under prior law, the Supreme Court issued a writ of prohibition to restrain a judge from retrying petitioner's case that had been reversed on appeal. The judge had filed an affidavit opposing petitioner's release on bail pending determination of the appeal. In the affidavit, the judge stated that in his opinion the evidence produced in the trial overwhelmingly sustained the charges as contained in the grand jury indictment, that the defendant was guilty as charged, and that any appeal taken would be merely for the purpose of further delaying justice in the proceedings. Petitioner filed a written statement to disqualify the judge for bias and prejudice pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)] alleging these facts. The trial judge struck the statement from the record as being sham and frivolous. In issuing the writ of prohibition, the Court stated that the judge's voluntary expression of his opinion that petitioner was guilty showed that he was biased and prejudiced as to the issue or issues of fact to be tried (51 Cal. 2d 257, 260-262) .

[c] Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion of Party's Lack of Veracity Under Oath

The factual background of Keating v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 440, 289 P.2d 209 , is discussed in § 130.60[3][b]. In granting a writ of prohibition to prevent the trial judge from retrying the issue of damages and holding that the judge was biased and prejudiced against petitioner, the Supreme Court noted that a judge is not disqualified from proceeding to try and decide a case or pass on a motion for a new trial because he or she states during the course of the trial that in his or her opinion a party has deliberately given false testimony, provided the opinion of the judge is based on a consideration of the evidence produced. It is the judge's duty when acting as the trier of the facts to pass on the credibility of witnesses, and if he or she believes that a party has testified falsely, and chooses to say so rather than remain silent, he or she is not disqualified from proceeding to render judgment. But the Court held that the rule is different when a judge is about to retry a case after having stated during the course of the prior trial that he or she believes a party has knowingly sworn falsely. Because this was the situation in the case at hand, it was necessary that a complete new trial on the issue of damages be held (45 Cal. 2d 440, 443-444) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Unable to Be Impartial

In Ng v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1010, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49 , derogatory and apparently unfounded statements concerning counsel, coupled with evidence presented in support of earlier petitions for extraordinary writs (each of which sought orders from the court of appeal to disqualify the trial judge, after a judge appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(5) had denied such a motion), and the court's unusual and inappropriate desire to keep the case, led the court of appeal to conclude that the interests of justice required further proceedings to be heard before a trial judge other than the presently assigned judge (52 Cal. App. 4th 1010, 1024) . In reaching its conclusion, the court noted that it need not determine whether there is actual bias. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6) provides the standard by which to determine the trial judge is to be disqualified, i.e., a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial (52 Cal. App. 4th 1010, 1024) .

In Sincavage v. Superior Court (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 224, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 , a criminal action, the information alleged prior convictions. A review of the transcript of the prior proceeding indicated that the judge for the current proceeding had been the calendar deputy district attorney at the time of the prior proceeding, although a different deputy districtattorney had actually taken the plea. After verifying that her name appeared only as calendar deputy, the court stated that she would not recuse herself. However, she further stated that if she had taken the previous plea she would recuse herself. The defense subsequently moved to disqualify the judge for cause pursuant to Code Civ. Proc § 170.1, supporting the motion with a declaration that the judge had in fact conducted the preliminary examination in the prior proceeding. In response to the motion, the judge stated that she had no recollection of the petitioner or the underlying proceeding. The judge appointed to determine the challenge denied the motion to disqualify. The court of appeal disagreed with this result, concluding that the judge was disqualified under Code Civ. Proc § 170.1(a)(6)(C). The court reasoned that two facts lead to the conclusion that a person knowing these facts would have doubt that the judge would be impartial in ruling on matters involving the priors. First, the judge had been active in the prosecution of the priors. Second, the judge herself had stated that if she heard that she had acted as prosecutor in a case charged as a prior she would recuse herself (42 Cal. App. 4th 224, 230) . The court thus issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the court to reassign further proceedings in the matter to another judge.

McKay v. Superior Court (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 770, 220 P.2d 945 , decided under prior law, involved a proceeding in prohibition before the court of appeal to restrain a superior court judge from hearing a murder trial. Defendants had been indicted and charged with the murder of a sheriff and deputy sheriff. They moved to disqualify the judge on the ground of bias or prejudice. The judge declined to consent that the action be tried before another judge and filed his answer to the allegations contained in the statement, whereupon the Judicial Council assigned another judge to hear and determine the question of disqualification. The other judge heard the matter and decided that the judge was not disqualified to proceed with the action. Thereafter, defendants applied for a writ of prohibition before the court of appeal. Briefly, the statement of disqualification alleged that the judge was a close friend of the victims, that he had worked closely with them, that they were residents of the same community, and that the judge's father had also been a sheriff who was killed while taking a prisoner into custody. The court of appeal granted the writ of prohibition, noting that it need only appear probable from the statement of disqualification that by reason of bias or prejudice of a judge a fair and impartial trial cannot be had. Further, the court noted that the judge had admitted the facts as disclosed by the transcript, and although he denied bias or prejudice in his affidavit in opposition to disqualification, the denial did not create a conflict in the evidence so that the question of disqualification was a matter of law. Respondent judge further argued that although the facts set forth in petitioners' statement of disqualification might be sufficient to disqualify a judge to conduct a trial when sitting without a jury, the same facts would not disqualify a judge from conducting a jury trial. He reasoned that in a jury trial all the judge does is rule on the evidence and the jury has to decide all question of fact. But the court of appeal rejected the judge's argument noting that former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5) makes no such distinction and that it necessarily follows that the fundamental right of every litigant to a fair and impartial trial applies equally to a court trial as to a trial before a jury. The court therefore held that the judge was disqualified as a matter of law and issued a writ of prohibition (98 Cal. App. 2d 770, 776-777) .

[b] Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion on Issues to Be Tried

Oak Grove School Dist. v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 32 Cal. Rptr. 288 , decided under prior law, involved an appeal by plaintiff from a judgment awarding costs and attorney's fees to defendant after plaintiff abandoned an action in eminent domain. On May 1, prior to the hearing on the motion to tax costs, plaintiff had filed a declaration of prejudice seeking to disqualify the judge by peremptory challenge pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. When the motion was made, the judge disqualified himself saying: "I don't know that I quite understand the difference between prejudice and bias. If there is any I suppose I must in all frankness tell you that I am a little biased in this case, very much so, because I don't like the way it was handled ... . In my opinion bad management took place that has in all honesty created perhaps a little bias in my mind here, and I think it is quite proper that you have this matter heard before another judge." But subsequently the judge vacated the order disqualifying himself pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 stating that he had been mistaken in believing that he was disqualified pursuant to that section. He ordered that the court would retain jurisdiction to hear the motion to tax costs. Plaintiff immediately filed a statement of disqualification pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)) alleging the judge's May 1 statements in open court as evidence of his bias and prejudice. The judge struck the statement on the ground that it did not set forth facts on which plaintiff based his charge of prejudice, and plaintiff applied to the court of appeal for a writ of prohibition, which was denied. The judge heard the motion to tax costs and entered judgment for defendants.

Plaintiff appealed from the judgment and on appeal the court considered the question of whether the judge had been disqualified by a timely presented and legally sufficient statement of disqualification. The court stated that although the statement of disqualification appeared to be conclusionary, the statement required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)) is in the nature of a complaint and as such need only allege ultimate facts. The allegation in question consisted of a statement of the ultimate fact that on a certain day the judge stated hewas biased and prejudiced in the case. It further stated that the plaintiff did not believe he could have a fair and impartial trial in the pending motion because of the judge's bias and prejudice. That averment, when coupled with the allegation in the statement of fact, was sufficient to make the bias and prejudice appear probable as to the issues to be tried and to require that another judge decide the issue of disqualification (217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 704-706) . The court reversed the judgment and directed a retrial on the motion to tax costs before a different judge (217 Cal. App. 2d 678, 712) .

[c] Judge Disqualified for Pretrial Opinion of Party's Lack of Veracity Under Oath

Briggs v. Superior Court (1932) 215 Cal. 336, 10 P.2d 1003 , decided under prior law, involved a petition for writ of prohibition before the Supreme Court to prevent a superior court judge from hearing and trying a contempt proceeding against petitioners. Prior to the hearing on the contempt charge, petitioners filed a written statement of disqualification to disqualify Judge C for bias and prejudice pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]. When the constructive contempt matter first came before Judge C, the judge took the witness stand and had himself sworn. He then made a statement that in effect charged that petitioners had knowingly made false statements in the statement of disqualification filed prior to the hearing. The petitioners then filed a supplemental statement that set forth the statements Judge C had made when he had himself sworn. The matter of Judge C's disqualification was transferred to Judge W for decision. Judge W ruled that Judge C was not disqualified. In issuing the writ of prohibition, the Supreme Court held that the words used by Judge C and his conduct at the time and under the circumstances showed bias and prejudice against the petitioners, noting that as the trier of the facts, the judge would be called upon to pass on the credibility of the petitioners as the principal witnesses in their own behalf. The Court stated that it was not probable that a judge who had stated under oath that in his opinion the petitioners had deliberately falsified under oath could pass upon their credibility with the impartial judicial mind which should exist in the trier of the facts (215 Cal. 336, 344-346) .

Chastain v. Superior Court (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 97, 57 P.2d 982 , decided under prior law, involved a proceeding in prohibition before the court of appeal to prevent a respondent judge from retrying a personal injury case on the ground that he was disqualified pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]. Respondent demurred to the petition, charging that it failed to state facts sufficient to warrant the issuance of a writ. In granting the writ and overruling the demurrer, the court framed the question to be decided as whether a judge is disqualified from trying for a third time a case for damages for negligence in the operation of an automobile when upon granting new trials therein, he had declared that one of the defendants and some of his witnesses had committed perjury in testifying at the former trials. The judge had further declared that he would not permit any judgment that was based on perjury to stand in his court, that he would continue to hold the same opinion regarding the witnesses' commission of perjury, and that he had twice granted a new trial on the sole ground that he believed the parties were guilty of perjury (14 Cal. App. 2d 97, 101) . A disqualification hearing was held before another judge who determined that there was insufficient evidence to merit the judge's disqualification for bias or prejudice (14 Cal. App. 2d 97, 100) . But the appellate court issued a writ of prohibition and held that when the trial judge entertains a fixed opinion that a party to an action has deliberately perjured himself or herself and is unworthy of belief, and frankly admits that he or she possesses that frame of mind, the law entitles the litigant to the privilege of a trial before some other judge (14 Cal. App. 2d 97, 104) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.67

§ 130.67 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Improperly Denied [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]--Prospective Employment as a Dispute Resolution Neutral [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.60[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE THE STATEMENT TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER BASED ON HIS/HER _____ [CURRENT ARRANGEMENT CONCERNING EMPLOYMENT AS A DISPUTE RESOLUTION NEUTRAL or PARTICIPATION IN DISCUSSIONS IN THE LAST TWO YEARS CONCERNING EMPLOYMENT AS A DISPUTE RESOLUTION NEUTRAL and THE FACT THAT THE ARRANGEMENT or DISCUSSION WAS WITH A PARTY TO THE CASE or THE CASE INCLUDES ISSUES RELATING TO THE ENFORCEMENT OF AN AGREEMENT TO SUBMIT A DISPUTE TO ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION or THE APPOINTMENT OR USE OF A DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROFESSIONAL or THE JUDGE HAS DIRECTED THE PARTIES TO PARTICIPATE INA DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROCESS IN WHICH THE PROFESSIONAL WILL BE AN INDIVIDUAL or ENTITY WITH WHOM THE JUDGE HAS AN EMPLOYMENT ARRANGEMENT or HAS PREVIOUSLY BEEN EMPLOYED or SERVED or IS DISCUSSING or HAS DISCUSSED EMPLOYMENT or THE JUDGE WILL SELECT A DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROFESSIONAL IN THE MATTER and AMONG THOSE AVAILABLE FOR SELECTION IS AN INDIVIDUAL or ENTITY WITH WHOM THE JUDGE HAS AN ARRANGEMENT or WITH WHOM THE JUDGE HAS PREVIOUSLY SERVED or WITH WHOM THE JUDGE IS DISCUSSING EMPLOYMENT] WAS IMPROPERLY DENIED.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Review by Mandate Expressly Authorized. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Disqualified Judge Without Power to Proceed With Case. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph C.]

D. Timely Statement of Disqualification. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph D.]

E. Prospective Employment or Discussions of Employment as Dispute Resolution Neutral. A judge is disqualified for cause if the judge either has a current arrangement concerning employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral or has had discussions concerning such employment or service in the last two years, and any of the following is true: the arrangement or discussions were with a party to the proceeding, or the matter before the judge includes issues relating to the enforcement of an agreement to submit a dispute to alternative dispute resolution or the appointment or use of a dispute resolution professional or the judge directs the parties to participate in an alternative dispute resolution process in which the dispute resolution neutral will be an individual or entity with whom the judge has the arrangement, has previously been employed or served, or is discussing or has discussed the employment or service, or the judge will select a dispute resolution neutral or entity to conduct an alternative dispute resolution process in the matter before the judge, and among those available for selection is an individual or entity with whom the judge has the arrangement, with whom the judge has previously been employed or served, or with whom the judge is discussing or has discussed the employment or service (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)(A)). Grounds for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)(A) apply when they both arise and are learned of, not when the judge understands their legal significance (Rossco Holdings, Inc. v. Bank of America (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1363, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141).

[Optional] F. Judge Whose Determination is Reviewed Should Not Hear Further Proceedings. [See § 130.60]1], Paragraph E.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when petitioner has filed a written statement to disqualify the judge on the ground that he or she has either a current arrangement concerning prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral with a party to the proceeding or the ground that he or she has engaged in discussions with a party to the proceeding in the last two years concerning employment or service as a dispute resolution neutral or on the ground that he or she has such a current arrangement or has had such discussions and there is an issue in the case relating to the enforcement of an agreement to submit a dispute to alternative dispute resolution or the appointment or use of a dispute resolution professional or on the ground that the judge has directed the parties to participate in an alternative dispute resolution process in which the dispute resolution neutral will be an individual or entity with whom the judge has an arrangement concerning prospective employment, with whom the judge has previously been employed or with whom the judge is discussing or has discussed employment or on the ground that the judge will select a dispute resolution neutral or entity to conduct an alternative dispute resolution process in the matter before the judge, and among those available for selection is an individual or entity with whom the judge has the arrangement, has previously been employed or with whom the judge is discussing or has discussed employment.

"Participating in discussions" or "has participated in discussions" means that the judge solicited or otherwise indicated an interest in accepting or negotiating possible employment or service as an alternative dispute resolution neutral or responded to an unsolicited statement regarding, or an offer of, such employment or service by expressing an interest in that employment or service, making any inquiry regarding the employment or service, or encouraging the person making the statement or offer to provide additional information about that possible employment or service. If a judge's response to an unsolicited statement regarding, a question about, or offer of, prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral is limited to responding negatively, declining the offer, or declining to discuss such employment or service, that response does not constitute participating in discussions.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in filing a motion to disqualify a judge for cause, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 317, Judges (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 130.68 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prospective Employment or Discussion of Employment as Dispute Resolution Neutral

In Rossco Holdings, Inc. v. Bank of America (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 141 , the bank filed a motion to compel arbitration, the trial court granted it, and the case proceeded to arbitration. Thereafter, the parties filed cross-petitions to vacate and confirm the award. The trial judge disqualified himself under Code Civ. Proc., § 170.1(a)(8) because he had engaged in conversations with dispute resolution providers regarding possible employment. Those conversations occurred prior to the judge's ruling on the motion to compel arbitration. After the matter was transferred to a new judge, the trial court granted the trust's motion to vacate the order compelling arbitration, based on the disqualified judge's lack of authority to issue that order. The trial court also vacated the arbitration award.

The appellate court held that the disqualified judge was properly disqualified under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 and that the order compelling arbitration was void. The good cause exception of Code Civ. Proc., § 170.3(b)(4), did not apply because the disqualified judge knew of the disqualifying facts when he issued the order, even if he was unaware of their legal effect. The order vacating the arbitration award was premature, however, because the award was not necessarily improper (149 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1363) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.68

§ 130.68 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Properly Stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]--Statement Alleges No Facts or Insufficient Facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]

[1] FORM

IN THE COURT OF APPEAL OF
THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]

_____ [name], Petitioner,	)
vs.	)
THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF	)
CALIFORNIA FOR THE [CITY AND] COUNTY	)
OF _____,	)	NO. _____
and	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO PETITION
_____ [name],	)	FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
THE JUDGE OF SAID COURT,	)
Respondents,	)
_____ [name(s)]	)
Real _____ [Party or Parties] in In-	) terest.

_____

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name

] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE PROPERLY STRUCK THE STATEMENT OF DISQUALIFICATION ON THE GROUND THAT ON ITS FACE IT DISCLOSES NO LEGAL GROUNDS FOR THE JUDGE'S ALLEGED DISQUALIFICATION.

A. Statement Required to Set Forth Facts Constituting Ground for Disqualification. A written statement alleging a judge's disqualification for cause and objecting to the hearing or trial before that judge must set forth the facts constituting the grounds for disqualification of the judge (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1)).

B. Statement Setting Forth No Facts or Insufficient Facts as Properly Stricken. A challenged judge can strike a statement ofdisqualification from the record when the statement on its face discloses no legal grounds for the judge's alleged disqualification for cause pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1 (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b); see Bompensiero v. Superior Court (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 178, 183, 281 P.2d 250).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has stricken from the record a statement of disqualification for cause that on its face discloses no legal grounds for the judge's alleged disqualification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)].

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 130.60 -130.66.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statement Setting Forth No Facts or Insufficient Facts as Properly Stricken

Bompensiero v. Superior Court (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 178, 281 P.2d 250 , decided under prior law, involved a proceeding in prohibition before the Supreme Court in which petitioner challenged the jurisdiction of a superior court to try him on an indictment naming him as a public official who accepted bribes. Petitioner contended that the trial judge erred in striking from the record a statement disputing the qualification of the judge to rule on preliminary motions. The court of appeal noted that the ground of asserted disqualification was bias and prejudice against the petitioner and was allegedly demonstrated by two statements made by the judge while presiding over a separate trial of some of the other persons named in the indictment. In that proceeding, petitioner was called as a witness for the prosecution and refused to answer on the ground that his testimony might tend to incriminate him. Several other witnesses were called and claimed the same privilege. During arguments on a motion for a new trial, the trial judge remarked that he had believed the witnesses for the prosecution and expressed the opinion that persons who refused to testify on the grounds they might be incriminated should have their licenses revoked by the Board of Equalization. Petitioner asserted that he held a liquor license and thus was in the category referred to by the judge.

The court of appeal rejected petitioner's argument and denied the writ of prohibition, noting that the judge's remarks, made in a criminal prosecution in which petitioner was only indirectly involved and without indication that he was being singled out, showed so little basis for claiming personal bias or prejudice against petitioner as to justify the conclusion that the charge of disqualification was sham and frivolous. Thus, the trial judge was not in error in striking the statement and affidavit (44 Cal. 2d 178, 183) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statement Setting Forth No Facts or Insufficient Facts as Properly Stricken

In re Marriage of Lemen (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 769, 170 Cal. Rptr. 642 , decided under prior law, involved a dispute over deposition questions in a child support modification proceeding. The mother filed a motion to compel answers asked at the deposition of the father's accountant. She also moved to restrain concealment of evidence and requested sanctions against the father, the accountant, and the accountant's attorney. During the hearing on the motions, the accountant and his attorney filed declarations of bias against the judge, pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)]. The judge ordered that the declarations be stricken as untimely filed, because substantive issues in the matter had already been heard and determined. On the appeal by the accountant and his attorney, the court of appeal did not discuss the timeliness of the statements, but instead held that a judge may strike or ignore disqualification statements when they are legally insufficient to establish grounds for disqualification. Relying on In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72 , discussed below, the court expressed the rule that the statement must allege relevant facts showing bias or prejudice. Legal conclusions, nonspecific transcript references, irrelevant facts, and judicial opinions are insufficient (113 Cal. App. 3d 769, 789) . Analyzing the statements submitted by the accountant and his attorney, the court held that, as they contained merely references to the judge's legal rulings, and the declarants' objections to those rulings, they were properly stricken (113 Cal. App. 3d 769, 790-791) .

In In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72 , decided under prior law, petitioner sought a writ of habeas corpus before the court of appeal after being sentenced to five days in jail and a $500 fine for disobeying a subpoena to attend a deposition proceeding. Petitioner alleged, among other things, that the judge erred in striking his motion and papers to disqualify the judge. The court of appeal denied the petition for habeas corpus, holding in part that the judge was justified in striking the disqualification papers because such papers may be stricken from the files by the trial judge involved when all the papers contain are: conclusions; references to copious transcripts without citation to specific excerpts; allegations of facts not pertinent or appropriate to the issues to be determined in the hearing; material not legally indicative of bias or prejudice, such as judicial opinions expressed in the discharge of litigation and legal rulings; judicial reactions based on actual observance in participation in legal proceedings; and references to circumstances so inconsequential as to be no indication whatsoever of hostility and nonprobative of any bias and prejudice. The court concluded that the moving papers were inadequate and that the trial judge had the right to strike them. It was not necessary for another judge to pass on the trial court's qualification to sit on the contempt trial (11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 843-850) .

The facts and procedural background of Agnew v. Contractors Safety Ass'n (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 154, 30 Cal. Rptr. 690 , are discussed in § 130.42[3][e]. In Agnew, decided under prior law, plaintiff's declaration of bias and prejudice stated, in part, that plaintiff believed the judge to be biased and prejudiced against him and incapable of hearing the motion for a new trial impartially and fairly, that during the trial the judge had concealed from plaintiff that he was biased and prejudiced against plaintiff and that he held a fixed opinion as to plaintiff's credibility for truthfulness, that the judge had violated plaintiff's constitutional rights during the trial by refusing to allow plaintiff to enter certain evidence, and that the judge was biased and prejudiced against persons who appeared in propria persona. In affirming the order striking the declaration from the records, the court of appeal noted that a statement of disqualification that contains nothing but conclusions and sets forth no facts constituting a ground of disqualification may be ignored or stricken from the files by the judge (216 Cal. App. 2d 154, 159) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.69

§ 130.69 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Properly Stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]--Statement Not Timely [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.68[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE PROPERLY STRUCK THE STATEMENT OF DISQUALIFICATION ON THE GROUND THAT _____ [specify party that is seeking disqualification, e.g., PLAINTIFF] DID NOT PRESENT THE STATEMENT AT THE EARLIEST PRACTICABLE OPPORTUNITY AFTER DISCOVERY OF THE FACTS CONSTITUTING THE GROUND OF THE JUDGE'S ALLEGED DISQUALIFICATION.

A. Untimely Statement as Properly Stricken. Under Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.3(c)(1), a written statement of disqualification must be presented by a party at the earliest practicable opportunity after discovery of the facts constituting the ground for disqualification. A challenged judge may properly order an untimely statement of disqualification stricken (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b); see Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 115, 62 Cal. Rptr. 274).

B. Failure to Present Statement at Earliest Practicable Opportunity Constitutes Waiver. A written statement to disqualify a judge for cause must be asserted at the earliest practicable opportunity after a party learns of the ground therefor or it is deemed waived (Tri Counties Bank v. Superior Court (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1337-1338, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835 ; see Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150, 91 Cal. Rptr. 193).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has stricken from the record a statement of disqualification for cause that is not presented by a party at the earliest practicable opportunity after discovery of the facts constituting the ground of the judge's alleged disqualification [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(c)(1), 170.4(b)].

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.60.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Untimely Statement as Properly Stricken

Shakin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 62 Cal. Rptr. 274 , decided under prior law, involved an appeal from a superior court judgment that denied petitioner doctor a writ of mandate to compel the Board of Medical Examiners to vacate and annul their order revoking the doctor's medical license. The appellate court affirmed the judgment.

Eleven days prior to the oral argument on the appeal, counsel for the doctor filed a notice of motion to disqualify the appellate judges on the ground of their bias and prejudice. Counsel filed a declaration alleging actions of the court occurring before and during the appeal, and subsequently, on the day calendared for oral argument, he filed a supplemental declaration. Both declarations were ordered stricken. The appellate court held that the declarations were not timely filed because they were not presented at the earliest practicable opportunity. The court noted that the membership of the court at the time of oral argument was identical to the membership of the court at the time the proceedings were first brought. Counsel should have instituted the proper disqualification proceedings several months before and should not have waited until just before the matter was calendared to be heard on oral argument (254 Cal. App. 2d 102, 115) .

[b] Failure to Present Statement at Earliest Practicable Opportunity Constitutes Waiver

In Tri Counties Bank v. Superior Court (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835 , real parties in interest filed a class action cross-complaint against the bank. On August 21, 2007, the trial judge issued a tentative ruling granting real parties' motion for class certification. On April 1, 2008, the bank filed its statement of objection, seeking to disqualify the trial judge on the ground the judge had conducted an independent investigation of a factual issue material to the class certification motion, thereby creating the appearance of partiality. The appellate court concluded that the trial court properly struck the untimely disqualification claim because the bank delayed over seven months before asserting the alleged ground for disqualification. The bank knew all the facts on which it relied on August 21, 2007, when the trial court issued its tentative ruling granting the motion for class certification. However, it was not until after the bank lost that motion and appellate review thereof failed, a delay of over seven months, that it finally presented its disqualification motion. The instant court rejected the bank's contention that it was not practicable to pursue disqualification at an earlier time. The purpose of the requirement that alleged grounds for disqualification be asserted at the earliest practicable opportunity is that "[i]t would seem ... intolerable to permit a party to play fast and loose with the administration of justice by deliberately standing by without making an objection of which he is aware and thereby permitting the proceedings to go to a conclusion which he may acquiesce in, if favorable, and which he may avoid, if not." In other words, "[a] party should not be allowed to gamble on a favorable decision and then raise such an objection in the event he is disappointed in the result." Consequently, if a party is aware of grounds for disqualification of a judge but waits until after a pending motion is decided to present the statement of objection, the statement may be stricken as untimely (167 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1337-1338) .

Develop-Amatic Engineering v. Republic Mortgage Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 91 Cal. Rptr. 193 , decided under prior law, involved a case in which a corporation sought to have a deed absolute in form declared to be a mortgage in fact and to quiet title to the real property involved. When judgment for defendant was entered, the corporation appealed and filed a motion for a new trial and at that point, for the first time, raised the bias and prejudice of the judge pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]. The corporation alleged that after the parties had made closing arguments, the court had stated, in verbalizing its decision, that it found the property value estimates adduced during trial difficult to believe and that it felt it would take "a lot of money" to make such property marketable. The court further stated that although it accepted a value of $900,000, it felt that was more than the property could or would be sold for. The corporation asserted that these statements indicated that the court had ignored the evidence adduced on the dispositive issue of the disparity between the fair market value of $900,000 and the $450,000 consideration for the conveyance and that, therefore, the court had not considered evidence strongly indicative that a mortgage rather than a sale was intended.

In affirming the judgment and denying the motion for new trial, the court of appeal held that the disqualification of a judge as provided by former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5] must be asserted at the "earliest practicable opportunity" after learning of the grounds therefor, otherwise it is deemed waived. Here, the corporation could have urged such disqualification at the time the court made the comments. In failing to do so, the corporation waived any claimed grounds of disqualification since it could not gamble on a favorable judgment and then move for disqualification upon receiving an adverse judgment (12 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Present Statement at Earliest Practicable Opportunity Constitutes Waiver

In Lagies v. Copley (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 958 , decided under prior law, plaintiff brought an action against defendants for slander and for conspiracy to inflict emotional distress. Defendants demurred to the complaint. At the outset of the hearing on the demurrer, the trial judge informed the parties' attorneys that he was acquainted with plaintiff because plaintiff, a journalist, had interviewed the judge several years previously in connection with an article on traffic tickets. The judge asked if this bothered anyone. Defendants' counsel said that he was not bothered by this; plaintiff's counsel remained silent. The hearing then proceeded, and the trial judge sustained the demurrer. After receiving notice of the adverse ruling on the demurrer, plaintiff's counsel sought rehearing and a recusal by the judge. On appeal, plaintiff contended,among other things, that the judge should have disqualified himself before hearing the demurrer. The court of appeal rejected this contention, holding that plaintiff's motion was both untimely and without merit. The court noted that disqualification of a judge for bias under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)] must be asserted at the earliest practicable opportunity after learning of the grounds therefor; otherwise, it is deemed waived. The court observed that in this case, plaintiff could have urged disqualification at the time the court made its comments, but had failed to do so. Accordingly, the court held, he had waived any claimed grounds of disqualification, since he could not gamble on a favorable ruling and then move for disqualification on receiving an adverse order (110 Cal. App. 3d 958, 966) . The court also found that plaintiff's contention lacked substance, because nothing in the record showed that the judge had a personal bias or prejudice concerning any party or a personal knowledge involving disputed evidentay facts involved in the proceedings (110 Cal. App. 3d 958, 966) . The court, however, reversed the judgment because it found that one of the counts of plaintiff's complaint stated a cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress (110 Cal. App. 3d 958, 969-974) .

Lagies was disapproved on other grounds in Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 738 n.23, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 .

Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 , decided under prior law, involved an action against insurers for money had and received, and for breach of contract. The superior court dismissed the action after sustaining demurrers to a second amended complaint without leave to amend after denying a motion to disqualify the judge pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(4) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)], which requires disqualification when a judge has been employed as an attorney for a party within two years prior to commencement of the action or proceeding. Plaintiff appealed from the judgment of dismissal and the denial of the motion to disqualify. In reviewing the order, the Supreme Court noted that the judge had heard and ruled on demurrers to the first amended complaint when, prior to the hearing of the demurrers to the second amended complaint, plaintiff moved to disqualify the judge, which motion was denied. The Court did not decide the question regarding disqualification, but held that even if the judge were disqualified, plaintiff had waived the disqualification by failing to urge it at the earliest practicable opportunity after his counsel's discovery of the facts constituting the ground of the disqualification. Where the same judge had heard and ruled upon demurrers to plaintiff's first amended complaint two months before, it should have moved to disqualify him at that time (68 Cal. 2d 822, 837-838) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.70

§ 130.70 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--Motion to Disqualify Made After Commencement of Trial--Judge Has Discretion to Proceed With Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.37[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH TRIAL OF THE CASE BECAUSE _____ [identify party that made motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF] DID NOT MAKE THE MOTION TO DISQUALIFY HIM/HER UNTIL AFTER TRIAL HAD COMMENCED, SO THAT JUDGE _____ [name] HAD DISCRETION TO PROCEED UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 170.4(c)(1).

A. Motion Made After Commencement of Trial. If a statement of disqualification is filed after a trial or hearing has commenced by the start of voir dire, by the swearing of the first witness or by the submission of a motion for decision, the judge whose impartiality has been questioned may order the trial or hearing to continue, notwithstanding the statement of disqualification (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1)).

[Optional] B. Ruling on Motions in Limine Constitutes Commencement of Trial. Trial may commence under Code of Civil Procedure section 170.4(c)(1) before voir dire starts, and does commence when the parties have submitted motions in limine (see Eckert v. Superior Court (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 262, 266, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate that seeks to prevent a judge fromproceeding with a case. The ground of opposition is that the judge properly ordered trial to proceed pending determination of the motion to disqualify by another judge, because the motion was made after trial commenced [see Code of Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1)].

Optional Paragraph B may be used when counsel contends that the trial was commenced by the submission of motions in limine prior to the start of voir dire.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated, particularly identifying the dates of the event that began trial and the date of the motion to disqualify.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ruling on Motions in Limine Constitutes Commencement of Trial

In Eckert v. Superior Court (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 262, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467 , after the judge had ruled on numerous motions in limine, but before the start of voir dire, plaintiff moved to disqualify the trial judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(C) on the ground that the judge's conduct and rulings demonstrated the clear appearance of bias and prejudice against plaintiff and plaintiff's counsel. Plaintiff also requested a stay of proceedings, pending a ruling on the disqualification motion by a second judge. The trial judge refused to stay the proceedings and proceeded with trial. Plaintiff petitioned for writ of mandate or prohibition.

The appellate court stayed the trial, denied plaintiff's subsequent petition challenging the second judge's decision denying the disqualification motion, and then lifted the stay. Although these events rendered moot the issue of whether the judge had properly proceeded to trial, the appellate court addressed the issue as an important one that was likely to recur (69 Cal. App. 4th 262, 265) .

The appellate court denied plaintiff's petition, holding that the trial court was within its discretion to proceed with the action, and that the judge properly proceeded with trial, since trial had "commenced" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1). In analyzing when trial commences for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(c)(1), the court read "by the start of voir dire, by the swearing of the first witness or by the submission of a motion for decision," as being in the alternative. The court concluded that the event commencing trial in this case was the submission of motions in limine for the trial court's decision. The court found it abundantly clear that trial process had begun when the trial judge had ruled on numerous motions in limine, announced tentative decisions on others, discussed jury instructions, and determined compliance with pretrial orders (69 Cal. App. 4th 262, 266) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.71

§ 130.71 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Properly Stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]--Statement Alleges Judge Stockholder of Nonparty Corporation Without Otherwise Alleging Judge's Financial Interest in Litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.68[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE PROPERLY STRUCK THE STATEMENT OF DISQUALIFICATION ON THE GROUND THAT THE STATEMENT MERELY ALLEGES THAT HE/SHE IS A STOCKHOLDER OF A NONPARTY CORPORATION, AND ALLEGES NO DIRECT AND IMMEDIATE INTEREST IN THE OUTCOME OF THE LITIGATION.

A. Statement Required to Set Forth Facts Constituting Ground for Disqualification. [See § 130.68]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Statement Setting Forth No Facts or Insufficient Facts as Properly Stricken. [See § 130.68]1], Paragraph B.]

C. Financial Interest Defined. "Financial interest," for the purpose of Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(3), means ownership of more than a one percent legal or equitable interest in a party, or a legal or equitable interest in a party of a fair market value in excess of $1,500, or a relationship as director, advisor, or other active participant in the affairs of a party, except as follows:

(1) Ownership in a mutual or common investment fund that holds securities is not a "financial interest" in those securities unless the judge participates in the management of the fund;

(2) An office in an educational, religious, charitable, fraternal, or civic organization is not a "financial interest" in securities held by the organization;

(3) The proprietary interest of a policyholder in a mutual insurance company, or a depositor in a mutual savings association, or a similar proprietary interest, is a "financial interest" in the organization only if the outcome of the proceeding could substantially affect the value of the interest (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(b)).

D. Judge as Stockholder of Nonparty Corporation Having No Direct Interest. A judge is not disqualified pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(3) when he/she is a stockholder in a corporation that is not and could not be made a party to the action when the judge does not otherwise have a direct and immediate interest in the outcome of the litigation (see Central Pac. Ry. Co. v. Superior Court (1931) 211 Cal. 706, 719-720, 296 P. 883).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has stricken from the record a statement of disqualification for cause that alleges that a judge is a stockholder of a nonparty corporation and has no direct and immediate interest in the outcome of the litigation.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.61.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to support a petition for a writ of mandate to compel a judge to hear a pending action when the judge's interest in the litigation is insufficient to merit disqualification [see Nevada County v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 663, 664, 111 Cal. Rptr. 568, 517 P.2d 832 (trial court had refused to exercise jurisdiction in an action in which validity of the Governmental Conflict of Interest Act (former Gov. Code § 3600 et seq.) was challenged)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judge as Stockholder of Nonparty Corporation Having No Direct Interest

Central Pac. Ry. Co. v. Superior Court (1931) 211 Cal. 706, 296 P. 883 , decided under prior law, involved a proceeding before the Supreme Court in which a writ of mandate was issued to compel a judge to proceed with the trial of an action. Defendant had filed a statement of disqualification during the trial of an eminent domain action, and defendant's attorney filed a verified statement alleging the judge's disqualification by reason of his ownership during the pendency of the action of stock of the Transamerica Corporation, which was a holding company owning substantially all the stock in Bank of Italy, the codefendant in the eminent domain action. The Court held that the judge was not disqualified and stated that, had the Transamerica Corporation been made a party to the original action, the situation would doubtless have been directly covered by the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(3), 170.5(b)]. But the fact was that whatever the relationship thus alleged to exist between Transamerica Corporation and Bank of Italy might be, the former corporation was not a party to the action, and thus did not come within the purview of the statute. Neither did the Court believe that the situation as thus presented could in any event constitute a disqualification under the well settled rule that the alleged disqualifying interest must appear to be an immediate and direct interest in the outcome of the litigation (211 Cal. 706, 719-720) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judge as Stockholder of Nonparty Corporation Having No Direct Interest

Goodspeed v. Great Western P. Co. (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 435, 65 P.2d 1342 , decided under prior law, involved an appeal from a superior court order denying a motion for a change of venue in consolidated cases. The complaints in each case charged fraud committed by the same false representation. Appellants argued that the judge owned stock in two banks that were in the class of those injured by the alleged false representations made by defendant and, as such, had an interest in the outcome of the actions and should be disqualified under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3)]. In holding that the facts did not establish a disqualifying interest, the court noted that although many cases were consolidated, none was a true class action. Further, neither the judge nor the banks in which he held stock could intervene or directly profit from the judgment in any of the consolidated cases. The court concluded that an interest in the case at bar is not established merely by the fact thatsomeone has a similar and separate cause of action arising in part from the same facts as the case at bar. The court stated that interest means a definite, material, and financial stake in the direct outcome of a particular case. It does not mean an interest in a similar suit against the same or other defendants nor does it mean an interest in a point of law as such, or in an issue of fact as such, or in any general or special phase of the case (19 Cal. App. 2d 435, 444-445) . The court affirmed the orders denying the motion for a change of venue (19 Cal. App. 2d 435, 452) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 130 JUDGES
PART II. FORMS
B. DISQUALIFICATION FOR CAUSE

13-130 California Points & Authorities § 130.72

§ 130.72 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.3(d), 1085, 1086]--To Prevent Judge From Proceeding With Case--Statement of Disqualification for Cause Properly Stricken [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(b)]--Statement Alleges Facts Insufficient to Establish Inability to be Impartial [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 130.68[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO PREVENT JUDGE _____ [name] FROM PROCEEDING WITH THE CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE PROPERLY STRUCK THE STATEMENT OF DISQUALIFICATION ON THE GROUND THAT THE FACTS IT ALLEGES ARE INSUFFICIENT TO ESTABLISH HIS/HER INABILITY TO BE IMPARTIAL.

A. Statement Required to Set Forth Facts Constituting Ground for Disqualification. [See § 130.68]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Statement Setting Forth No Facts or Insufficient Facts as Properly Stricken. [See § 130.68]1], Paragraph B.]

[Optional] C. Statutory Exclusions. A judge will not be considered unable to be impartial or otherwise disqualified for the following grounds:

(1) The judge is or is not a member of a racial, ethnic, religious, sexual, or similar group, and the proceeding involves the rights of such a group;

(2) The judge has in any capacity expressed a view on a legal or factual issue presented in the proceeding, except as provided in Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(2), (b), or (c);

(3) The judge has as a lawyer or public officer participated in the drafting of laws or in the effort to pass or defeat laws, the meaning, effect, or application of which is in issue in the proceeding unless the judge believes that his or her prior involvement was so well known as to raise a reasonable doubt in the public mind about his or her capacity to be impartial (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2).

[Optional] D. Adverse State of Mind Based on Observation of Witnesses and Evidence. When a judge's state of mind is adverse to one of the parties but the adversity is based on actual observance of the witnesses and the evidence given during the trial, it does not amount to that inability to be impartial that disqualifies a judge (see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6); Kreling v. Superior Court (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 305, 312, 153 P.2d 734).

[Optional] E. Adverse State of Mind Based on Observation of Witnesses and Evidence in Trial at Which Motion for New Trial Directed. A judge is not disqualified for inability to be impartial from hearing a motion for a new trial when his/her state of mind appears to be adverse to a litigant but the adversity is based on actual observance of the witnesses and the evidence given during trial (see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6); Dietrich v. Litton Industries, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 704, 718-719, 90 Cal. Rptr. 856).

[Optional] F. Opinion Expressed in Discharge of Litigation. An opinion expressed by a judge in the discharge of his/her official duty is not evidence of a disqualifying inability to be impartial (see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6); In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 843, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72).

[Optional] G. Error on Question of Law. A judge's errors on questions of law, no matter how gross, do not constitute an inability to be impartial or a disqualification to proceed with the trial of the case in which the errors are made (see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6); Mackie v. Dyer (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 395, 400, 316 P.2d 366).

[Optional] H. Objective Standard of Impartiality. Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(6)(C), which provides that a judge must be disqualified if a reasonable person would entertain doubts concerning the judge's impartiality, establishes an objective standard. This standard indicates that the decision on disqualification should be based, not on the judge's personal view of his own impartiality, nor on the litigant's necessarily partisan views, but on consideration of how the judge's participation looks to the average person on the street. In addition, the facts and circumstances bearing on the judge's possible partiality must be considered as of the time the motion is brought (Stanford University v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 403, 407-408, 219 Cal. Rptr. 40).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent a judge from proceeding with a case when the judge has stricken from the record a statement of disqualification that alleges facts insufficient to establish a disqualifying inability to be impartial within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6) [see United Farm Workers of America v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 97, 104, 216 Cal. Rptr. 4 (discussed in § 130.66[3][a])].

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 130.66.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

[i] Oppose Proceedings to Set Aside Orders Made by Judge

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used to oppose a motion to vacate and set aside an order allegedly void when the order was entered by a judge allegedly disqualified for inability to be impartial [see Ensher, Alexander & Barsoom v. Ensher (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322, 37 Cal. Rptr. 327] , or to support a demurrer to an action in equity to vacate and set aside such a judgment [see Haldane v. Haldane (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 393, 394, 42 Cal. Rptr. 828] . It should be noted that opposition to a motion to vacate and set aside an order as allegedly void because of disqualification may now be based on a ground other than that exemplified by this memorandum. A disqualified judge retains the power to issue certain orders under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4 [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.4(d)]. Additionally, if the grounds for disqualification were first learned of or arose after the disqualified judge made one or more rulings in the proceeding but before the final disposition, the replacement judge may vacate such rulings only for good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(4)].

[ii] Financial Interests Not Covered by Code of Civil Procedure Section 170.1(a)(3)

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may also be used to oppose an argument that an interest that was disqualifying under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 but that is not now covered as a disqualifying "financial interest" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1(a)(3) and 170.5(b) is nonetheless disqualifying under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6), because the nature of the interest gives rise to a reasonable doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial [see § 130.66[2][b][ii], and § 130.61[3][a]]. The basis for opposition would be that the statement of disqualification does not sufficiently establish an interest that would have been disqualifying under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 and therefore does not establish the type of interest that would give rise to reasonable doubts about the judge's ability to be impartial [see, e.g., Cuyamaca Water Co. v. Superior Court (1924) 193 Cal. 584, 591-592, 226 P. 604 (judges living in city of San Diego, which brought action to quiet title to its use of waters of San Diego River, held to have no direct or immediate disqualifying interest as residents of city); Central & W. Basin Water etc. Dist. v. Wong (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 191, 195, 127 Cal. Rptr. 448 (judge residing in water district, against which action was brought to increase rates of certain users, not disqualified by indirect interest as water district user)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in an action to vacate and set aside a void order, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial and Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For forms for use in actions involving demurrers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in filing demurrers, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Adverse State of Mind Based on Observation of Witnesses and Evidence

Kreling v. Superior Court (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 305, 153 P.2d 734 , decided under prior law, was a proceeding before the Supreme Court for a writ ofprohibition to restrain a superior court judge from hearing further proceedings in a controversy that arose out of a lease of a gasoline station. The controversy involved four cases that had all been set for trial at the same time before the same court. By agreement of all parties, the cases were to be tried in a certain order suggested by petitioner. All evidence introduced in one case was to be considered in the other cases. Respondent had filed an affirmative defense in each of the four cases that was sustained by Judge M in the first case and was, therefore, decisive of each of the four cases. At that point, petitioner filed a motion to disqualify Judge M from hearing the remaining three cases charging that the language used in his decision in the first case demonstrated his bias and prejudice against petitioner. Judge M filed a counter affidavit in opposition to the motion and the question of disqualification was tried before another judge who denied the motion. Thereupon, the remaining three cases were transferred to Judge M for hearing. Petitioner instituted a proceeding in the court of appeal for a writ of prohibition against Judge M and the court issued a peremptory writ. Thereafter, on respondents' petition, the proceeding was transferred to the Supreme Court.

The Court stated that it is the trial judge's duty to consider and pass on the evidence produced before him or her, and when the evidence is in conflict, to resolve that conflict in favor of the party whose evidence outweighs that of the opposing party. Thus, the Court held that when the state of mind of a judge is adverse to one of the parties, but is based on actual observance of the witnesses and the evidence given during trial, it does not amount to that bias or prejudice against a litigant that would disqualify the judge pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]. The writ of prohibition was denied (25 Cal. 2d 305, 312) .

[b] Adverse State of Mind Based on Observation of Witnesses and Evidence in Trial at Which Motion for New Trial Directed

Dietrich v. Litton Industries, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 704, 90 Cal. Rptr. 856 , decided under prior law, involved a libel action after the trial of which five other cases involving the same parties and others arising out of the same general background were to be tried before the same judge and jury. In the original libel action, the jury returned a verdict for plaintiff whereupon the judge granted a mistrial as to the other five cases, stating his opinion that the preponderance of the evidence favored defendants and that it would be useless to go through another phase of the suit knowing he would have to grant a new trial on motion. Counsel for plaintiff moved to disqualify the judge on the ground of bias and prejudice pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)] based on this and other statements of the judge and his rulings before and during trial. At a hearing, however, it was determined that the judge was not disqualified, and subsequently judgment was entered for defendants notwithstanding the verdict and a new trial was ordered in the event that the judgment should be reversed on appeal.

When plaintiff appealed, the court reversed the judgment notwithstanding the verdict and affirmed the order granting new trial. The court rejected plaintiff's contention that the judge was disqualified as a matter of law and held that the judge's expression of an opinion as to the weight of the evidence after the verdict came in and before the motion for a new trial had been made and argued did not establish bias or prejudice. The court noted that in this case circumstances made it necessary for the trial judge to state what he had in mind before the motion for a new trial was heard. Feeling as he did about the verdict, and his duty to set it aside on motion, he could not go ahead with the trials of the consolidated cases before this same jury, nor could he, in fairness, conceal his thoughts and keep the jurors impaneled but idle until it was time to rule on the motion for new trial (12 Cal. App. 3d 704, 718-719) .

[c] Opinion Expressed in Discharge of Litigation

The factual background of In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72 , decided under prior law, is discussed in § 130.68[4][a]. In that case, in reviewing the contempt proceedings on a petition for habeas corpus, the appellate court held that the judge was justified in striking the disqualification papers from the record because they were inadequate. The disqualification papers alleged that at one point in the proceeding when the trial court endeavored to set a time for a hearing, but petitioner's attorney indicated that another issue would have to be resolved first, the trial court stated that such an approach demonstrated evasiveness and procrastination that the contemner had engaged in previously. The trial court also continued the pending matters and issued another warrant to retain jurisdiction stating that it was faced with every kind of technicality and the trial court stated that if it could not execute three bench warrants at a university (where the contemnor, an expert witness, taught), what hope was there to reach a felon by a bench warrant. The appellate court stated that these examples were judicial opinions expressed by the judge in the discharge of the litigation and the legal rulings and that such evidence is not legally indicative of bias or prejudice (11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 843) .

[d] Error on Question of Law

Mackie v. Dyer (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 395, 316 P.2d 366 , decided under prior law, involved an action for false imprisonment brought against a superior court judge. The appellate court affirmed a judgment dismissing the action entered after a demurrer to the complaint. Plaintiff had beengranted probation in a prior action heard by the judge. When proceedings to revoke probation were commenced, plaintiff filed a statement to disqualify the judge for bias or prejudice pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]. The judge ignored the statement, heard the revocation proceeding, and revoked plaintiff's probation. Plaintiff contended that the judge lacked jurisdiction to hear the revocation matter after the statement of disqualification was filed and was, therefore, personally responsible in damages for false imprisonment of plaintiff on revocation of his probation. In rejecting plaintiff's argument and sustaining the judgment dismissing the action, the appellate court noted that the only facts set forth as evidence of the judge's bias or prejudice were his rulings in the criminal action on a motion for continuance, on a motion for change of venue, and on objections to the manner of drawing and summoning a jury panel. The court said that a judge's errors on questions of law, no matter how gross, do not constitute bias or prejudice or a disqualification to proceed with the trial of the case in which the errors are made. Erroneous rulings against a litigant, even when numerous and continuous, form no ground for a charge of bias or prejudice, especially when they are subject to review (154 Cal. App. 2d 395, 400) .

[e] Objective Standard of Impartiality

In Stanford University v. Superior Court (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 403, 219 Cal. Rptr. 40 , plaintiff brought three actions against a university and other defendants that challenged certain development projects on the university's campus. In 1984, Judge Thompson ordered the dismissal of two of the actions after he had sustained general demurrers without leave to amend. Plaintiff then filed a declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1) to disqualify Judge Thompson and moved to vacate his pretrial orders. Plaintiff alleged that Judge Thompson had been president of the university's Law Society from 1964 to 1972, and therefore a third person might reasonably question his ability to be impartial in any action involving the university. Judge Thompson filed an answer under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(3), in which he acknowledged serving as president of a local chapter of the university's Law Society from 1969 to 1971, and in which he also acknowledged serving as a member of the Board of Visitors of the university's Law School from 1969 to 1972. He denied, however, any deeper or subsequent involvement in the university's affairs other than his attendance at alumni gatherings. A second judge, assigned pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(5), (6), determined that Judge Thompson was disqualified under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(C). A third judge denied plaintiff's motion to vacate Judge Thompson's prior orders. Defendant university petitioned for a writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) to review Judge Thompson's disqualification, and plaintiff sought review of the order denying her motion to vacate Judge Thompson's orders.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate, directing the trial court to vacate its order of disqualification and to enter a new order declaring that Judge Thompson was not disqualified (173 Cal. App. 3d 403, 409) . The court, quoting United Farm Workers of America v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 97, 216 Cal. Rptr. 4 , discussed in § 130.66[3][a], stated that the standard established by Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(C), which provides that a judge must be disqualified if a reasonable person would entertain doubts concerning the judge's impartiality, is an objective one. Under this standard, the decision on disqualification should be based, not on the judge's personal view of his own impartiality, nor on the litigant's necessarily partisan views, but on consideration of how the judge's participation looks to the average person on the street. In addition, the facts and circumstances bearing on the judge's possible partiality must be considered as of the time the motion is brought (173 Cal. App. 3d 403, 407-408) . The court noted that 13 years had elapsed since Judge Thompson's last prominent involvement in two Law School alumni activities before plaintiff brought her motion to disqualify. The court concluded that, as a matter of law, an average person on the street would find that these activities were so remote and so unrelated to the university's land management as to raise no doubts about Judge Thompson's ability to be impartial in the matter (173 Cal. App. 3d 403, 408) . Since Judge Thompson was not disqualified, plaintiff's contention that his orders should have been vacated was moot (173 Cal. App. 3d 403, 409) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Adverse State of Mind Based on Observation of Witnesses and Evidence

The court of appeal in Jack Farenbaugh & Son v. Belmont Construction, Inc. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 240 Cal. Rptr. 78 , affirmed an amended judgment against the defendant corporate contractor and its president and major shareholder. After entry of the original judgment, plaintiff discovered, on examination of the corporate defendant's president and majority shareholder, that defendant corporation had no assets and no bank account. Plaintiff then successfully moved to amend the judgment to include that individual as a judgment debtor. One of appellant's contentions on appeal was that the judge who had also been the trial judge was disqualified to hear the motion to amend the judgment, on which the plaintiff had to prove that the individual to be added as a judgment debtor controlled the initial litigation (194 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1029) . At the hearing on the motion to amend the judgment, the judge noted that plaintiff's attorney's declaration coincided with its own recollection of the trial that the individual defendant testified, counseled with the corporation's attorney, and figured very prominently in the original trial (194 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1030-1031) . The court of appeal said that the trial court's personalobservations and their use in determining the motion were proper. Expressions of opinions by a judge disclosing a state of mind adverse to one party do not amount to prejudice and are not grounds for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6) if based on actual observation of the witnesses and the evidence given during the trial (194 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1031-1032) [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2(b)].

In Haldane v. Haldane (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 393, 42 Cal. Rptr. 828 , decided under prior law, the court of appeal affirmed a superior court judgment dismissing an action in equity to set aside an interlocutory divorce decree on the grounds that the judge was so biased and prejudiced against the then defendant as to deny him a fair trial. The allegations of bias and prejudice included the fact that, at the time the divorce suit came before the judge, he had shuttled the parties back and forth between his chambers and the court room and that unknown to then defendant Haldane, the judge developed a violent prejudice and bias against him which disqualified the judge from deciding the case at all. Further, the complaint alleged that the judge had prejudged the case, and had erroneously granted an interlocutory decree on the weak testimony of an ill and distraught woman. The court sustained the superior court's demurrer to the complaint to set the decree aside holding that the prejudice which the trial judge was alleged to have formed against defendant was one which arose out of the proceeding of the action itself and was, therefore, not sufficient to disqualify the judge from hearing the case then before him (232 Cal. App. 2d 393, 395-396) .

[b] Opinion Expressed in Discharge of Litigation

In re Marriage of Lemen (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 769, 170 Cal. Rptr. 642 , is discussed in § 130.68[4][a].

Ensher, Alexander & Barsoom v. Ensher (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 318, 37 Cal. Rptr. 327 , decided under prior law, involved an appeal from denial of a motion to vacate and set aside a judgment declaring defendant to be the constructive trustee of certain real property. The appellate court reversed and remitted the case to the trial court. Both parties petitioned for a hearing before the Supreme Court and, while the petition was pending, the governor announced the appointment to state office of the judge who had heard the case in the trial court. Counsel for defendant wrote the judge requesting him to delay his resignation so that he could handle further proceedings in compliance with the remittitur if the Supreme Court failed to grant a hearing. The judge agreed to delay his resignation and, on the same day the Supreme Court denied the petition for rehearing and remitted the case to the trial court, plaintiff filed a statement of disqualification against the judge because of bias and prejudice. The statement alleged the appointment to state office and the judge's signed affidavit in which he stated that he was willing to accept the personal sacrifice involved in deferring his resignation but that he was concerned that further delays might interfere with his new role as a state officer. The judge ordered the statement of disqualification stricken from the record, entered proposed findings and judgment for defendant, and resigned his office as judge. Plaintiff filed notice of motion for an order to vacate and set aside the judgment alleging that all proceedings were void because the judge was disqualified and was, therefore, without jurisdiction to act. A hearing on the motion to vacate was held before a judge who denied it and a second appeal followed. The appellate court rejected plaintiff's contention that the judge was biased and prejudiced pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 170(5) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)] noting that plaintiff's statement of disqualification failed to allege any facts from which an inference of bias or prejudice by the judge toward plaintiff could be drawn. At most, the statement showed that the judge would be unable to continue with the case if further matters would be lengthy. Nor was there merit to plaintiff's contention that because the judge felt he had to accept his new position as soon as possible, he was disposed toward denying plaintiff's motion without a fair consideration of the merits so that further proceedings would not delay his resignation as judge. The court upheld the denial of the motion to vacate (225 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322-323) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS

13-131 California Points & Authorities 131.syn

§ 131.syn Synopsis to Chapter 131: JUDGMENTS

§ 131.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 131.02 Governing Statutes

§ 131.03 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

§ 131.04 Related Pleadings and Practice Forms

§ 131.05 Related Points and Authorities

§§ 131.06-131.19 [Reserved]

§ 131.20 Supporting Motion for Entry of Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc or for Correction of Record of Judgment to Show Entry Nunc Pro Tunc

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Enter Nunc Pro Tunc

[b] Ground for Antedating Entry Nunc Pro Tunc

[c] Entry Nunc Pro Tunc of Order Made but Not Entered

[d] Antedating as Justice Requires

[e] Antedating Entry to Date Prior to Party's Death

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Enter Nunc Pro Tunc

[b] Ground for Antedating Entry Nunc Pro Tunc

[c] Antedating as Justice Requires

§ 131.21 Supporting Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Stipulated Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Stipulated Settlement

[b] Power to Enforce Settlement Between Parties Who Are Not Adversaries Under Pleadings

[c] Motion for Entry of Judgment Proper to Confirm Oral Settlement Agreement

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Stipulated Settlement

§ 131.22 Supporting Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Acceptance of Statutory Settlement Offer [Code Civ. Proc. § 998]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Counteroffer Does Not Preclude Acceptance of Statutory Settlement Offer

[b] Service by Mail Extends Time to Accept Statutory Settlement Offer

§ 131.23 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc or for Correction of Record of Judgment to Show Entry Nunc Pro Tunc

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Declaring as Done What Was Not Done

[b] Nunc Pro Tunc Correction Unconscionable

[c] Antedating Before Jury Instructed and Verdict Reached

[d] Antedating When Verdict in One Phase Reached

[e] Nunc Pro Tunc May Not Alter Judgment

§ 131.24 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]--Stipulated Settlement Was Oral But Not Entered Before Court, or Was Written But Not Signed by Parties

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Stipulation Must Be Orally Entered Before Court or Written and Signed

[b] Oral Agreement Made at Deposition Insufficient

[c] Oral Agreement Before Non-Adjudicative Mediator Insufficient

[d] Agreement by Attorney Insufficient

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Stipulation Must Be Orally Entered Before Court of Written and Signed

[b] Agreement by Attorney Insufficient

§ 131.25 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]--No Litigation Pending When Settlement Executed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Litigation Must Be Pending When Agreement Executed

§ 131.26 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]--Action Was Dismissed and Parties Did Not Properly Request Continuing Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Parties Must Properly Request Continuing Jurisdiction Before Action Is Dismissed

§ 131.27 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]--Provision of Settlement Agreement Is Invalid

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Cannot Enforce Settlement Agreement or Provision of Agreement That Is Invalid

§§ 131.28-131.39 [Reserved]

§ 131.40 Supporting Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Court's Power to Correct Clerical Error--Inherent or Statutory [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power to Correct Prior to Entry

[b] Power to Modify in Ruling on Motion for New Trial

[c] Inherent Power to Correct

[d] Duty to Correct Error

[e] Correction at Any Time

[f] Correction Following Appeal

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Correct

§ 131.41 Supporting Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Court's Power to Correct Clerical Error--Power to Determine Character of Error as Clerical

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power to Determine Character of Error

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Power to Determine Character of Error

§ 131.42 Supporting Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Court's Power to Correct Clerical Error--Determining if Error Was Clerical

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Distinction Between Clerical and Judicial Error

[b] Competent Evidence of Clerical Error

[c] Judgment Failing to Express Judicial Intent

[d] Inadvertent Omissions

[e] Error as Result of Inadvertence

[f] Misdescription

[g] Clarification

[h] Judge's Signature to Findings Does Not Establish Error as Judicial

[i] Weight Given to Judge's Declaration of Intent

[j] Judgment Failing to Conform to Decision

[k] Trial Court's Finding Based on Conflicting Evidence

[l] Judge's Knowledge and Recollection of Facts

[m] Inadvertent Judgment in Excess of Amount Limited by Law

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Competent Evidence of Clerical Error

[b] Judgment Failing to Express Judicial Intent

[c] Judgment Failing to Conform to Decision

§ 131.43 Supporting Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Court's Power to Correct Clerical Error--Power to Antedate Record of Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Grounds for Antedating Nunc Pro Tunc

[b] Order Proper Regardless of Lapse of Time

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Grounds for Antedating Nunc Pro Tunc

[b] Order Proper Regardless of Lapse of Time

§ 131.44 Opposing Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Presumption of Judgment's Correctness and Regularity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Presumption That Judgment Was One Intended

[b] Burden of Proving Clerical Error

§ 131.45 Opposing Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Not Subject to Correction--Judicial Error

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Correcting Judicial Error

[b] Judicial Error Under Guise of Clerical Error

[c] Judicial Error Defined

[d] Misconstruction of Facts

[e] Misconstruction or Misapplication of Law

[f] Court Misled by Counsel

[g] Enlargement of Original Decision

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judicial Error Under Guise of Clerical Error

§ 131.46 Opposing Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Not Subject to Correction Absent Showing of Clerical Error

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Correction Only as Statute Prescribes

[b] Original Judgment Was One Intended

[c] Correction Only to Conform to Truth

[d] Truth Ascertained From Court's Intention

[e] Mere Recital of Clerical Error Not Conclusive

[f] Insufficient Showing of Clerical Error

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Correction Only as Statute Prescribes

§§ 131.47-131.59 [Reserved]

§ 131.60 Supporting Application for Leave to Intervene in Judgment Debtor's Cause of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.430(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Should Be Allowed Unless It Will Disrupt Lawsuit or Change Positions of Original Parties

§ 131.61 Opposing Application for Leave to Intervene in Judgment Debtor's Cause of Action [Code Civ. Proc. §

708.430(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Not Required

§§ 131.62-131.79 [Reserved]

Scope

§ 131.80 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 131.81 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Sister State Judgment Not Final and Unconditional

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Final Judgment Requirement

[b] Law Controlling Validity and Finality

§ 131.82 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Jurisdiction of Sister State Court--Lack of Jurisdiction to Render Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sister State Court Having No Jurisdiction

[b] Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction

[c] Attacking Judgment Exceeding Statutory Limits on Relief

[d] Judgment Not Entitled to Enforcement as Matter of Comity

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sister State Court Having No Jurisdiction

[b] Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction

[c] Attacking Judgment Exceeding Statutory Limits on Relief

§ 131.83 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Jurisdiction of Sister State Court Subject to Attack for Extrinsic Fraud

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Fraud Re Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Grounds for Motion

§ 131.84 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Judgment Not Enforceable in State Where Rendered to Extent Plaintiff Seeks

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect of Sister State Judgment

[b] Liability Not Adjudicated

[4] Additional Authorities

§ 131.85 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Judgment Paid

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Payment of Judgment

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Payment of Judgment

§ 131.86 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Misconduct of Plaintiff

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Misconduct of Plaintiff

§ 131.87 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Bar of Statute of Limitations

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation Governed by California Law

[b] Period of Limitation on Action

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Limitation Governed by California Law

§ 131.88 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Bar of Statute of Limitations--Expiration of Sister State Limitation Period

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Expiration of Sister State Limitation Period

§ 131.89 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Stay of Enforcement Pending in Sister State

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 131.90 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Sister State Judgment Was Penal

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Penal Judgment

[b] Definition of Penal Judgment

[c] Definition of "Penalty"

[d] Short Statute of Limitations as Indication of Penalty

[e] Recovery of Triple Interest Paid Above Legal Rate as Penalty

[f] Double or Treble Damages as Penalty

[g] Liability of Directors for Failure to Act as Penalty

[h] Minimum Fine Plus Damages Based on Culpability as Penalty

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Penal Judgment

[b] Definition of Penal Judgment

§ 131.91 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Sister State Judgment Conflicts With Earlier California Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Earlier Conflicting California Judgment

§ 131.92 Supporting Motion for Stay of Enforcement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50] of Judgment Entered Under

Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Specific Statutory Grounds

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 131.93 Supporting Motion for Stay of Enforcement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50] of Judgment Entered Under Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Interests of Justice Require Stay [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 131.94 Supporting Motion to Vacate or Stay [Fam. Code § 4853(a)] Foreign Support Order Registered Under Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act [Fam. Code § 4800 et seq.]--Statutory Grounds

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Limitations of Registered Foreign Support Order

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

§ 131.95 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Action on Judgment-- General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Finality of Judgment

[b] Actual Controversy

[c] Failure to Comply With Judgment

§ 131.96 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Full Faith and Credit--Judgment Valid on Face--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Valid and Regular on Its Face

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Full Faith and Credit Regardless of Public Policy

§ 131.97 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Full Faith and Credit--Judgment Sufficiently Final for Enforcement in California--Judgment Prospectively Modifiable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Prospectively Modifiable

§ 131.98 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Full Faith and Credit--Judgment Sufficiently Final for Enforcement in California--Judgment Unstayed but Under Appeal

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Unstayed but Under Appeal

§ 131.99 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Nonmodifiable Sister State Money Judgment for Arrearages in Support Payments Enforceable in California Under Sister State Money Judgments Act

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonmodifiable Money Judgment for Arrearages in Support Payments Enforceable in California Under Sister State Money Judgments Act

§ 131.100 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Question of Jurisdiction Litigated in Sister State

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Jurisdictional Issue Litigated in Sister State Court

[b] Decision as to Jurisdiction Res Judicata

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Jurisdictional Issue Litigated in Sister State Court

[b] Decision as to Jurisdiction Res Judicata

§ 131.101 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Sister State Court Had Fundamental Jurisdiction--Estoppel of Collateral Attack on Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[i] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Estoppel of Collateral Attack on Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction

§ 131.102 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Question of Fraud Litigated in Sister State

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Question of Fraud Litigated in Sister State

§ 131.103 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Statute of Limitations No Bar

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Not Barred as of Date of Application

[b] Decree for Future Payments as Continuing Judgment

[c] Limitation Applicable to Final Judgment Only

§ 131.104 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Untimely Motion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 131.105 Opposing Demurer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Action on Judgment--Finality, Regularity, and Jurisdiction Sufficiently Pleaded--Judgment Enforceable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action on Judgment Permissible if Within Statutory Period

§ 131.106 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Action on Judgment--Sufficient Pleading of Nonperformance

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pleading Nonperformance

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Pleading Nonperformance

§§ 131.107-131.119 [Reserved]

§ 131.120 Supporting Motion for Order Compelling Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment Satisfied in Fact or Entering Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made in Court in Which Judgment Was Rendered

[b] Judgment Satisfied by Payment

[c] Satisfaction of Judgment by Partial Payment in Accord and Satisfaction

[d] Covenant Not to Execute as Grounds for Compelling Satisfaction of Judgment

[e] Satisfaction of Foreign Money-Judgment Established in California

§ 131.121 Supporting Motion for Order Compelling Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment Satisfied in Fact or Entering Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d)]--Judgment Satisfied Through Setoff of Cross Demands

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Satisfaction of Judgment Through Setoff of Cross Demand

[b] Setoff of Claim Not Reduced to Judgment

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Debtor's Right to Satisfy Judgment by Offsetting Judgment

[b] Right of Equitable Offset Exists Independent of Statute

[c] Setoff as Matter of Right Unless Other Equitable Considerations Preclude It

[d] Insolvency of Judgment Creditor as Justifying Equitable Offset

[e] Judgment Debtor's Right to Choose Which Claims to Offset

[f] Right of Equitable Offset Not Defeated by Assignment of Judgment

[g] Compelling Setoff Against Assignee of Judgment Creditor

[h] Setoff of Individual Claim Against Joint and Several Claim

[i] Priority of Equitable Offset Against Statutory Lien

§ 131.122 Supporting Motion for Order Awarding Damages, Forfeiture of Penalty, and Attorney's Fees for Unjust Refusal to Execute Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment Satisfied in Fact--Refusal to Respond to Written Demand [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(e), 724.080]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 131.123 Supporting Motion for Order Awarding Damages and Attorney's Fees for Intentionally Conditioning Delivery of Acknowledgment of Satisfaction on Performance of Act or Payment of Amount by Judgment Debtor in Excess of Amount Required by Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.070, 724.080]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 131.124 Supporting Motion for Order Vacating Entry of Satisfaction of Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion to Vacate Satisfaction to Be Made in Original Action

[b] Grounds for Vacating Satisfaction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion to Vacate Satisfaction to Be Made in Original Action

[b] Grounds for Vacating Satisfaction

§ 131.125 Opposing Motion for Order Compelling Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment or Entering Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(d), 724.110(b), 724.230]--Inapplicable if Judgment Not Satisfied in Fact

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Must Be Satisfied in Fact

§ 131.126 Opposing Motion for Order Compelling Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment or Entering Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(d), 724.110(b), 724.230]--Judgment Debtor Not Permitted to Satisfy Judgment by Offsetting Claims Not Beneficially Owned by Him or Her

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Debtor May Not Offset Claims Not Beneficially Owned by Him or Her

[b] Assignee for Collection May Not Set Off Assigned Claim in Satisfying Judgment Against Him or Her

§§ 131.127-131.139 [Reserved]

§ 131.140 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Recalling and Quashing Writ of Execution

[b] Vacation of Levy

[c] Incidental Relief

§ 131.141 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Satisfied by Payment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Execution Recalled and Quashed on Proof of Payment

§ 131.142 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Satisfied by Agreement

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Execution Recalled and Quashed on Proof of Agreement Satisfying Judgment

§ 131.143 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Debtor Entitled to Credit

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Creditor Entitled to Credit

[b] Credit When Arrearages Are Followed by Overpayment

[c] Credit When Arrearages Are Preceded by Overpayment

[d] Court Discretion to Credit Judgment Debtor for Child Support Overpayments That Precede Arrearages

§ 131.144 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Not Enforceable by Execution

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Not Subject to Execution

[b] Writ of Execution May Not Issue on Decree of Lien on Specific Property

§ 131.145 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Vacated

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Vacated

§ 131.146 Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Stay Necessary to Accomplish Ends of Justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 918]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Grounds for Stay

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Authority of Trial Court to Issue Stay

[b] Stay Necessary to Accomplish Ends of Justice

[c] Period of Stay

§ 131.147 Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Counter Action Pending Against Judgment Creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 918.5]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Authority of Trial Court to Stay Enforcement When Action Pending on Disputed Claim

[b] Factors for Consideration

§ 131.148 Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Judgment Debtor Is in Military Service [50 U.S.C. Appen. § 524; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Servicemembers Civil Relief Act

[i] In General

[ii] Duration of Stay

[c] State Law Protections

[i] Duration of Stay

§ 131.149 Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Enforcement of Foreign Money Judgment Pending Appeal [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Refusal of Stay Is Abuse of Discretion When Adequate Security Provided

§ 131.150 Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Recognition of Foreign Money Judgment--Judgment Is Not Final and Conclusive [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Foreign Judgment Must Be Final, Conclusive, and Enforceable in Foreign Country to Support Claim for Recognition of Judgment in California

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Foreign Judgment Must Be Final, Conclusive, and Enforceable in Foreign Country to Support Claim for Recognition of Judgment in California

§ 131.151 Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Enforcement of Foreign Money Judgment--No Personal Jurisdiction [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.3]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Must Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Judgment Debtor to Enforce Foreign Judgment Under Foreign Money-Judgments Act

§ 131.151A Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Recognition of Foreign Money Judgment--Action Filed After Statute of Limitations Has Run [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.3]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action to Enforce a Foreign-Money Judgment in California Must Be Filed Within the Time Provided by Statute

§ 131.151B Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Enforcement of Foreign-Country Judgment Pending Appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1720]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Court's Discretion to Stay Proceedings Pending Appeal

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Refusal of Stay Is Abuse of Discretion When Adequate Security Is Provided

§ 131.151C Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Recognition of Foreign-Country Judgment--Judgment Is Not Final and Conclusive [Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Recognition of Foreign-Country Judgment

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Foreign-Country Judgment Must Be Final, Conclusive, and Enforceable in Foreign Country to Support Claim for Recognition of Judgment in California

§ 131.151D Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Enforcement of Foreign-Country Judgment--No Personal Jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1716(b)(2), 1719]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Personal Jurisdiction

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Must Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Judgment Debtor to Enforce Foreign Judgment Under Foreign Money-Judgments Act

§ 131.151E Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Recognition of Foreign-Country Judgment--Action Filed After Statute of Limitations Has Run [Code Civ. Proc. § 1721]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action to Recognize a Foreign-Money Judgment in California Must Be Filed Within the Time Provided by

Statute

§ 131.152 Opposing Motion to Stay Enforcement--Fully Executed Writ May Not Be Stayed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Without Power to Stay Enforcement on Fully Executed Writ

§ 131.153 Supporting Motion by Judgment Creditor for Determination of Judgment Debtor's Claim of Exemption--Property Claimed Is Not Exempt or Equity Is in Excess of Exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.550]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

§ 131.154 Opposing Motion by Judgment Creditor for Determination of Judgment Debtor's Claim of Exemption--Exemption Statutes Liberally Construed for Judgment Debtor's Welfare

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exemption Statutes Liberally Construed

[b] Exceptions Narrowly Construed

§ 131.155 Supporting Contention That Execution Sale Should Be Set Aside--Statutory Action--Improper Sale to Judgment Creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 701.680(c)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Statutory Action to Set Aside Execution Sale

§ 131.156 Supporting Contention That Execution Sale Should Be Set Aside--Equitable Action--Grossly Inadequate Price When Purchaser Is Guilty of Unfairness or Has Taken Undue Advantage

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Equitable Action to Set Aside Execution Sale

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Execution Sale Invalidated When Gross Inadequacy of Price and Slight Evidence of Unfairness or Irregularity Are Shown

[b] Unfairness Need Not Amount to Legal Fraud

[c] Inadequacy of Price Is Evidence of Unfairness

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Unfairness Need Not Amount to Legal Fraud

§ 131.157 Opposing Contention That Execution Sale Should Be Set Aside--Equitable Action--Mere Inadequacy of Price Insufficient

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Inadequacy of Price Alone Insufficient Basis to Set Aside Sale

§ 131.158 Opposing Contention That Execution Sale Should Be Set Aside--Equitable Action--Defendant Is Good-Faith Purchaser

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Good-Faith Purchaser Without Duty Toward Judgment Debtor

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Good-Faith Purchaser Without Duty Toward Judgment Debtor

§ 131.159 Opposing Petition for Determination of Third Party's Claim of Interest--Petition for Hearing Not Filed Within Statutory Period [Code Civ. Proc. § 720.310(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Lacks Jurisdiction When Petition Not Filed Within Statutory Period

§ 131.160 Opposing Petition for Determination of Third Party's Claim of Interest--Third Party's Interest or Lien Is Superior to Judgment Creditor's Lien [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 720.110, 720.220]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Decision on Substantial Evidence Will Not Be Disturbed

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Decision on Substantial Evidence Will Not Be Disturbed

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.01

§ 131.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda for use in supporting [see § 131.20] and opposing [see § 131.23] a motion for entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc or for correction of the record of a judgment to show entry nunc pro tunc.

It also contains memoranda for use in supporting [see § 131.21] and opposing [see § 131.24] a motion for entry of judgment pursuant to terms of a stipulated settlement, and a memorandum supporting a motion for entry of judgment after acceptance of a statutory settlement offer [see § 131.22]. There is also an opposition to entry of judgment based on settlement when the party does not properly request the court's continuing jurisdiction [see § 131.26].

This chapter contains memoranda for use in supporting [see §§ 131.40-131.43] and opposing [see §§ 131.44-131.46] a motion to correct a clerical error in a judgment, either under statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 473] or under a court's inherent power to do so.

This chapter contains memoranda supporting [see § 131.60] and opposing [see § 131.61] an application for leave to intervene in a cause of action asserted by a judgment debtor.

This chapter contains memoranda for use in supporting [see §§ 131.80-131.91] and opposing [see §§ 131.96-131.104] a motion to vacate a judgment entered under the Sister State Money Judgments Act (or, with appropriate modifications, supporting [see §§ 131.81-131.91] or opposing [see §§ 131.96-131.103] a motion for summary judgment in an action on a judgment). This chapter also contains memoranda for use in supporting a motion for stay of enforcement of judgment entered under the Sister State Money Judgments Act [see §§ 131.92, 131.93]; for use in supporting a motion for vacation or stay of a foreign support order registered under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act [see § 131.94]; and for use in supporting [see § 131.95] or opposing [see §§ 131.105, 131.106] a demurrer to a complaint in an action on a judgment.

This chapter contains memoranda related to the entering of satisfaction of judgment on the register of actions. It contains memoranda supporting [see §§ 131.120, 131.121] and opposing [see §§ 131.125, 131.126] a motion to compel a judgment creditor or his or her assignee of record to give an acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment or to enter satisfaction of judgment without acknowledgment. It also includes memoranda supporting a motion for damages and attorney's fees for intentionally conditioning the delivery of an acknowledgment of satisfaction on performance of an act or payment of an amount by the judgment debtor in excess of that to which the judgment creditor is entitled under the judgment [see § 131.123], as well as a memorandum supporting a motion for damages and attorney's fees for the unjust refusal or failure to deliver an acknowledgment of satisfaction [see § 131.122] and a memorandum supporting a motion to vacate an entry of satisfaction of judgment [see § 131.124].

This chapter contains memoranda related to proceedings to execute and enforce judgments. It includes memoranda supporting a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution and vacate levy [see §§ 131.140-131.145], memoranda supporting [see §§ 131.146-131.148] and opposing [see § 131.152] a motion to stay enforcement, memoranda supporting [see § 131.153] and opposing [see § 131.154] a motion by a judgment creditor to determine a judgment debtor's claim of exemption, memoranda supporting [see §§ 131.155, 131.156] and opposing [see §§ 131.157, 131.158] the contention that an execution sale should be set aside, and memoranda opposing a petition for determination of third party's claim of interest [see §§ 131.159, 131.160].

With respect to foreign-country judgments, the chapter includes memoranda supporting a motion to stay enforcement under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], governing actions commenced before January 1, 2008, the effective date of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [see § 131.149], and supporting motions to dismiss under the predecessor statute [see §§ 131.150 -131.151A]. It also includes memoranda supporting a motion to stay enforcement under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.; see § 131.151B] and supporting motions to dismiss under the current statute [see §§ 131.151C -131.151E].

For memoranda supporting and opposing an application for leave to intervene in a judgment debtor's cause of action, see § 131.60 et seq. For memoranda supporting a motion for stay of enforcement of a judgment entered under the Sister State Money Judgments Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.), see § 131.80 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.02

§ 131.02 Governing Statutes

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 577-583.1 contain the general statutory provisions relating to judgments. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 664-674 set forth statutory provisions relating to the giving and entering of judgments. Satisfaction of judgments is generally governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.010-724.260. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.410-708.480 govern liens on a judgment debtor's cause of action. Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq. govern actions on sister state judgements. Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq. govern actions on foreign money judgments in actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008 (actions commenced before January 1, 2008 involving foreign money judgments are governed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq. (repealed 1/1/08)). Fam. Code § 4900 et seq. governs actions under Uniform Interstate Family Support Act.

Code Civ. Proc. § 664 governs the entry of judgment after trial. Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5 governs notice of entry of judgment in a contested action or special proceeding, except a proceeding for dissolution of marriage, for nullity of marriage, or for legal separation. Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 governs the entry of a judgment based on a stipulated settlement.

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 997-998 set forth statutory procedures for the entry of judgments after an offer to compromise. Code Civ. Proc. § 1139 governs the entry of a judgment in an agreed case. Code Civ. Proc. § 1134 covers entry of judgments obtained by confession of judgments. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.25 and 1710.65 set forth provisions relating to the entry of a judgment pursuant to an application under the Sister State Money Judgments Act. Code Civ. Proc. § 585 governs the entry of default judgments. Code Civ. Proc. § 676 et seq. states procedures for entry of a judgment in a foreign currency under the Uniform Foreign-Money Claims Act.

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) sets forth the general statutory authority governing motions to correct clerical mistake in a judgment or order to conform the same to the judgment or order directed by the court. Code Civ. Proc. § 663 governs the correction of judicial errors, a matter not within the scope of this chapter.

The statutory authority for the creation by a judgment creditor of a lien on a cause of action brought by a judgment debtor against a third party and for the intervention of the judgment creditor in the judgment debtor's cause of action is found in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.410-708.480.

Actions on judgments must be commenced within the 10-year period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5. The pleadings with respect to such actions are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 456 and 1908.5. Code Civ. Proc. § 989 governs an action on domestic judgments seeking to assert a statutory right against a joint debtor. Ins. Code § 11580 governs an action on a domestic judgment to assert a statutory right against an insurance company. Evid. Code §§ 1301, 1530-1532 covers the use of judgments as evidence.

The enforcement of judgments after death of the judgment creditor or judgment debtor is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 686.010, 686.020, and Prob. Code §§ 9300-9304, 9391, 10361, 10361.5, 10361.6.

The requisites for compelling the acknowledgment of satisfaction of a judgment are contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.010-724.050. Provisions for the failure to file an acknowledgment of satisfaction are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(e). Acknowledgment of partial satisfaction of judgment is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.110-724.120, and acknowledgment of satisfaction of payments under an installment judgment are contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.210-724.260. Damages for a judgment creditor's conditioning delivery of an acknowledgment on performance of any act or payment in excess of the judgment is set forth by Code Civ. Proc. § 724.070.

The execution and enforcement of judgments are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq. Various provisions governing the stay of enforcement are set out in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 918, 918.5, 1720 and 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 524.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.03

§ 131.03 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

Generally, a memorandum must not exceed 15 pages in length, or, in the case of a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, 20 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. For further discussion of the page limitations under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113, and of other basic format requirements for memoranda, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs § 1.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.04

§ 131.04 Related Pleadings and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to the process of obtaining and entering judgments, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms for use in particular cases involving the obtaining and entry of judgments, see the following chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender):

- Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions .
- Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration .
- Ch. 177, Damages .
- Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .
- Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .
- Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage and Related Proceedings: Procedure .
- Ch. 326A, Jury and Verdicts .
- Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .
- Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .
- Ch. 526, Small Claims .
- Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

- Ch. 533, Stipulations .
- Ch. 534, Submitted Controversy (Agreed Case) .

A discussion of the law governing the amendment, correction, and modification of judgments and forms for use in connection with proceedings to correct a clerical error in a judgment are contained California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments , Part II (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms for use in particular cases involving the amendment, correction, and modification of judgments, see in that publication the following chapters:

- Ch. 160, Corporations ; and
- Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

For discussion and forms relating to the creation of a judgment creditor's lien on and right of intervention in a judgment debtor's cause of action against a third party, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms for use in enforcing judgments generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to actions on domestic, sister state, and foreign judgments, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments , Part VI (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms for use in particular cases involving actions on judgments, see the following chapters in that publication:

- Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions .
- Ch. 203, Defaults and Default Judgments .
- Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .
- Ch. 212, Dismissal .
- Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage and Related Proceedings: Procedure .
- Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement: General Enforcement Principles and Remedies .
- Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .
- Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction .
- Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .
- Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

For discussion and forms related to satisfaction of judgment in particular cases, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 6, Accord and Satisfaction , Ch. 220, Dissolution of Marriage and Related Proceedings , and Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender).

For additional discussion and forms relating to enforcement proceedings, exemption claims, or stay of enforcement proceedings in particular cases, see the following chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender):

- Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings .
- Ch. 62, Attachment .
- Ch. 94, Bankruptcy .
- Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement: General Enforcement Principles and Remedies .
- Ch. 276, Garnishment .
- Ch. 294, Homesteads .
- Ch. 318, Judgments .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.05

§ 131.05 Related Points and Authorities

Related memoranda of points and authorities that may be useful in particular cases involving the entry of a judgment may be found in this publication in the following chapters:

- Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .
- Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .
- Ch. 90, Dismissal .
- Ch. 121, Interest .
- Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .
- Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .
- Ch. 215, Statement of Decision .

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a memorandum of points or authorities or a trial or appellate brief, and for a sample of a complete memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a memorandum of points or authorities or a trial or appellate brief, and for a sample of a complete memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs at the beginning of Volume 1.

Related memoranda of points and authorities which may be useful in particular cases involving actions on judgments may be found in the following chapters in this publication:

- Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

- Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .
- Ch. 90, Dismissal .
- Ch. 132, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum .
- Ch. 133, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter Jurisdiction .
- Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .
- Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .
- Ch. 158, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions .

For related memoranda of points and authorities which may be useful in particular cases involving satisfaction of judgment, see Ch. 6, Accord and Satisfaction .

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities relating to prejudgment attachment proceedings and homestead exemptions, see respectively Ch. 23, Attachment and Ch. 112, Homesteads .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131 California Points & Authorities §§ 131.06-131.19

[Reserved]

§§ 131.06[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.20

§ 131.20 Supporting Motion for Entry of Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc or for Correction of Record of Judgment to Show Entry Nunc Pro Tunc

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR Defendant.	)	[ENTRY OF JUDGMENT or CORRECTION OF )	RECORD OF JUDGMENT]
	)	NUNC PRO TUNC

_____

THE COURT HAS INHERENT POWER TO ORDER THE ENTRY OF JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION NUNC PRO TUNC EITHER TO CORRECT A DEFICIENCY IN THE RECORDING OF ITS PREVIOUS DECISION OR, WHEN AN ORDER HAS ACTUALLY BEEN MADE BUT ITS ENTRY HAS BEEN OMITTED, TO MAKE IT TAKE EFFECT NUNC PRO TUNC AS OF THE DATE WHEN IT WAS ACTUALLY MADE.

A. Inherent Power to Enter Nunc Pro Tunc. The power to enter judgments nunc pro tunc is inherent in the courts [and the court has the same authority to order findings of fact and conclusions of law to be filed nunc pro tunc] (Norton v. Pomona (1935) 5 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 53 P.2d 952).

[EITHER]

B. Ground for Antedating Entry Nunc Pro Tunc. A judgment may be antedated nunc pro tunc for the correction of a deficiency in the recording of a previous decision to express the court's true intention as of the earlier date (Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 919, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522).

[OR]

B. Entry Nunc Pro Tunc of Order Made but Not Entered. Where an order has actually been made and its entry omitted, it may be entered subsequently, and if justice requires it may be made to take effect nunc pro tunc as of the date when it was actually made (Hess v. Gross (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 529, 532, 133 P.2d 1).

C. Antedating as Justice Requires. An order for the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc is allowed as justice may require in view of the circumstances of the particular case (Norton v. Pomona (1935) 5 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 53 P.2d 952).

[Optional] D. Antedating Entry to Date Prior to Party's Death. The fact that Section 669 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides for the entry of a judgment after a party's death on a verdict or decision before death does not do away with the rule authorizing the court to direct that its decision, so far as is necessary to protect the rights of the parties, shall be entered nunc pro tunc as of a day anterior to the party's death (Norton v. Pomona (1935) 5 Cal. 2d 54, 63, 53 P.2d 952).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc either where there has been a deficiency in the recording of a previous decision (see first alternative Paragraph B) or where an order was actually made but its entry was omitted entirely (see second alternative Paragraph B) under the court's inherent power to enter judgments nunc pro tunc as justice requires.

In essence, an order for the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc is but one type of an order which may be made to correct a clerical error in a judgment. For memoranda of points and authorities relating to the correction of clerical errors other than errors relating to the date of entry, including correction nunc pro tunc, see §§ 131.40-131.43.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Enter Nunc Pro Tunc

In Norton v. Pomona (1935) 5 Cal. 2d 54, 53 P.2d 952 , the Supreme Court affirmed the entry of a trial court's judgment nunc pro tunc based on findings filed nunc pro tunc. On June 2, the court made a minute order for judgment for the plaintiff in a personal injury action. Findings were not waived but were not filed at that time. On June 23, the plaintiff died. His executrix later moved the court for an order to file findings and judgment nunc pro tunc as of June 2 and the court so ordered, whereupon judgment was entered on November 6 nunc pro tunc as of June 2. On the issue of the trial court's entry of judgment, the Court stated that the power to enter judgments nunc pro tunc is inherent in the courts. Where the party is not at fault, the determinative consideration is whether or not the action at the party's death was ready for rendition of final judgment. When the state of the record or the minutes show that a suitor was entitled to a particular judgment but that the judgment was not entered when it might have been, such judgment may subsequently be entered to relate back to the time when it should have been entered, providing that the applying party did not occasion the delay. Such an order should be granted or refused as justice may require in view of the circumstances. The Court added that the trial court has the same authority to order findings to be filed nunc pro tunc, since the decision the parties invoke the court to make is the final determination of the rights of the parties and includes every step requisite to final judgment on their rights. These rights, the Court stated, are not to be prejudiced by the court's delay in respect to any of these acts or proceedings, and the court is authorized to direct the making or filing of its findings of fact and conclusions of law, as well as the entry of a judgment thereon, nunc pro tunc as of such date as will preserve them. Moreover, the fact that Code Civ. Proc. § 669 provides for the rendition of judgment after a party's death does not do away with the rule authorizing the court to direct that its decision, so far as is necessary to protect the rights of the parties, shall be entered nunc pro tunc as of a day anterior to the party's death.

[b] Ground for Antedating Entry Nunc Pro Tunc

In Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522 , the court of appeal affirmed a trial court's order denying a motion for entry of judgment nunc pro tunc to correct a clerical error, holding that, although in a proper case a clerical error in a judgment may be corrected nunc pro tunc, such action would have been unconscionable in the case at issue. Within the time allowed, following the conclusion of a trial and the entry of judgment, the trial court granted the defendants a new trial. A month later, the plaintiff moved for entry of judgment nunc pro tunc which would have void the order granting the new trial because by then the trial court would have lost its jurisdiction to rule on the motion. The plaintiff contended that the trial court abused its discretion in denying his motion for correction of judgment nunc pro tunc. The court of appeal stated the general rule that courts have inherent power to enter judgments nunc pro tunc to relate back to the time when they should have been entered but will do so only to avoid injustice. Such a judgment is to be granted or refused as justice may require in view of the circumstances of a particular case. The only grounds for antedating a judgment, the court continued, are the preservation of the legitimate fruits of the litigation which would otherwise be lost to the prevailing party, the correction of a deficiency in the recording of a previous decision to express the court's true intention as of the earlier date and thus conform to the truth, or the correction of a clerical error.

[c] Entry Nunc Pro Tunc of Order Made but Not Entered

In Hess v. Gross (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 529, 133 P.2d 1 , the court of appeal reversed judgment as to a defendant in an action against sureties on an undertaking staying execution of a prior judgment, holding that the trial court's order in the prior action entering an order nunc pro tunc fixing the amount of the stay bond was entered properly. In the prior action, the plaintiff in this case recovered judgment, from which the defendant there appealed. An undertaking, which was the subject of this action, was then filed. However, in this action it developed that the files of the former action did not contain any order fixing the bond's amount. Thereupon, the judge of the former action filed a nunc pro tunc order fixing the amount of the bond at the amount of the undertaking involved in this case. The main question on appeal was whether or not the judge had the power to make the corrective order. The court of appeal stated that whenever justice requires, if no express statute prohibits it, the courts of this state have always countenanced the entry of nunc pro tunc orders to preserve substantial rights, and such orders are made nunc pro tunc not only to supply deficiencies in the record of previous orders or judgments but also when no previous judgment or order on the matter has been made, though always to preserve and never to impair the rights of litigants. The court added that all courts have the inherent power to correct their records so that the records shall conform to the facts and speak the truth, and that right is not suspended because the record itself does not show that the entry was incorrect where an order has actually been made and its entry omitted, it may be entered subsequently, and if justice requires, may be made to take effect nunc pro tunc as of the date when it was actually made.

[d] Antedating as Justice Requires

Norton v. Pomona (1935) 5 Cal. 2d 54, 53 P.2d 952 , is discussed in § 131.20[3][a].

[e] Antedating Entry to Date Prior to Party's Death

Norton v. Pomona (1935) 5 Cal. 2d 54, 53 P.2d 952 , is discussed in § 131.20[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Enter Nunc Pro Tunc

In Martin v. Martin (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 752, 87 Cal. Rptr. 526, 470 P.2d 662 , the Supreme Court reversed a trial court's order canceling that part of a divorce court's order for monthly payments from the defendant to the plaintiff. The Court held that a federal bankruptcy court's order discharging the defendant in bankruptcy, which had been corrected nunc pro tunc to exclude the marital payment from discharge, was proper and operated as a final determination on the merits of the question as to whether or not the marital debt survived bankruptcy for the purposes of res judicata in the state courts. After the divorce court issued its interlocutory judgment ordering the payments, the defendant filed for bankruptcy and was discharged. He also challenged the divorce court's order in the state court, moving to cancel the payment order. The plaintiff objected to the defendant's motion in the state court and moved in the bankruptcy court for correction of its general discharge nunc pro tunc to exclude the marital debt from the discharge. The bankruptcy court's order was so amended and on the issue of whether or not the marital debt survived bankruptcy and, thus, whether or not the cancellation was proper, the Supreme Court ruled that all courts have the inherent power to enter orders nunc pro tunc to show that something was done at one time which ought to have been shown then. The Court observed that such an order is an entry now for something previously done so that the record may actually speak the truth. It further observed that the function of a nunc pro tunc order is merely to correct the record of the judgment and not to alter the judgment itself--not to make an order now for then, but to enter now for then an order previously made. The question presented on a motion for a nunc pro tunc order is: what order did the trial judge in fact make at the time?

[b] Ground for Antedating Entry Nunc Pro Tunc

Hess v. Gross (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 529, 133 P.2d 1 , is discussed in § 131.20[3][c].

[c] Antedating as Justice Requires

Hess v. Gross (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 529, 133 P.2d 1 , is discussed in § 131.20[3][c].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.21

§ 131.21 Supporting Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Stipulated Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ENTRY OF JUDGMENT PURSUANT TO TERMS OF STIPULATED SETTLEMENT
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]
	)	Date: _____
		Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

THE COURT, ON MOTION, MAY ENTER A JUDGMENT PURSUANT TO THE TERMS OF A SETTLEMENT IF PARTIES TO PENDING LITIGATION HAVE STIPULATED, IN WRITING OUTSIDE THE PRESENCE OF THE COURT OR ORALLY BEFORE THE COURT, FOR SETTLEMENT OF ALL OR PART OF THE CASE.

A. Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Stipulated Settlement. If parties to pending litigation stipulate, in writing outside the presence of the court or orally before the court, for settlement of the case or a part of the case, the court, on motion, may enter judgment pursuant to the terms of the settlement (Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6; Corkland v. Boscoe (1984) 156

Cal. App. 3d 989, 994-995, 203 Cal. Rptr. 356).

[Optional] B. Power to Enforce Settlement Between Parties Who Are Not Adversaries Under Pleadings. If parties to pending litigation stipulate, in writing or orally before the court, for settlement of the case or a part of the case, the court, on motion, may enter judgment pursuant to the terms of the settlement notwithstanding the fact that the parties to the settlement were not adversaries in the pending action (Casa de Valley View Owner's Assn. v. Stevenson (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 1190-1191, 213 Cal. Rptr. 790).

[Optional] C. Motion for Entry of Judgment Proper to Confirm Oral Settlement Agreement. The use of a "speaking motion" to confirm an oral settlement agreement has legislative endorsement, even when some of the terms of the settlement are subject to reasonable dispute. It is no longer necessary to file a motion for summary judgment (Richardson v. Richardson (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96, 225 Cal. Rptr. 370 ; Corkland v. Boscoe (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 989, 994, 203 Cal. Rptr. 356 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6).

[Optional] D. Court Retains Jurisdiction to Enforce Settlement. If requested by the parties, the court may retain jurisdiction over the parties to enforce the settlement until performance in full of its terms [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6].
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for entry of judgment based on a stipulated settlement. The stipulation must have been in writing or made orally before the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

A form for notice of motion to enter judgment pursuant to a stipulated settlement is found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 131.24 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Stipulated Settlement

In Corkland v. Boscoe (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 989, 203 Cal. Rptr. 356 , after the parties to litigation had reached a settlement, one of the parties brought a motion to compel enforcement of the agreement. The trial court granted the motion. The court of appeal, in affirming the order of the trial court, held in conformity with the newly enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 that if parties to pending litigation stipulate, in writing or orally before the court, for settlement of the case or a part of the case, the court, on motion, may enter judgment pursuant to the terms of the settlement. The court further held that even when there are contentions of disputed fact regarding the settlement, a motion for entry of judgment is proper and the trial court must then determine whether the parties entered into a valid and binding settlement of all or a part of the case (156 Cal. App. 3d 989, 994-995) .

[b] Power to Enforce Settlement Between Parties Who Are Not Adversaries Under Pleadings

In Casa de Valley View Owner's Assn. v. Stevenson (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 213 Cal. Rptr. 790 , petitioner was allowed to intervene in an action brought by respondent against another party. Although petitioner and respondent had several unresolved legal disputes, at the time of the intervention there were no formal allegations between them in that action and they were denominated co-plaintiffs. In the ensuing settlement negotiations, the parties purportedly settled their differences in writing. Subsequently, however, petitioner sought to avoid the settlement agreement and respondent made a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 to enforce the settlement. The trial court entered judgment pursuant to the terms of the stipulated settlement. On appeal, petitioner argued that the judgment was improper because, contrary to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, there was no "pending litigation" between the parties. The court of appeal rejected this argument, holding that the judgment was proper even though the parties to the disputed settlement were not adversaries under the pleadings. The court based its holding largely on Code Civ. Proc. § 578, under which a court is granted the power to determine the rights of all parties to a lawsuit when the interests of justice require it (167 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 1190-1191) .

[c] Motion for Entry of Judgment Proper to Confirm Oral Settlement Agreement

In Richardson v. Richardson (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 91, 225 Cal. Rptr. 370 , plaintiff brought an action against her former husband to compel transfer to her of a portion of the husband's partnership interest that had been awarded to her in their prior dissolution action. She also filed a petition to remove him as trustee of a trust established for her benefit. The liquidated value of husband's partnership interest was deposited in court by the partnership. The two cases were consolidated, and at a mandatory settlement conference held in a judge's chamber without a court reporter, plaintiff's counsel understood that the husband (who was an attorney representing himself) offered to release to wife the money deposited in court in return for the wife's dismissing the consolidated cases. Wife accepted this offer within the 48-hour acceptance period. Thereafter, husband refused to sign a written settlement agreement and maintained that no such agreement had been reached before the settlement judge. Wife then filed a motion to confirm the settlement agreement, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. The same judge who presided at the settlement conference heard the motion, stated that his recollection of the settlement conference was the same as wife's, but deferred his ruling, encouraging the parties to reach a mutually acceptable written settlement agreement. Husband failed to appear for a subsequent hearing, and the judge granted wife's motion to confirm the oral settlement. Husband appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that there was substantial evidence that the parties had reached agreement as to all material terms required for a binding contract, even though it was intended that the agreement be memorialized later by a writing. It also rejected the husband's argument that a motion for summary judgment is required when the material facts of the purported agreement are in dispute, noting that while judicial authorities had questioned the propriety of the use of "speaking motions" to enforce a disputed agreement in the past, the Legislature had endorsed it by enacting Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 (180 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96) .

The facts and procedural background of Corkland v. Boscoe (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 989, 203 Cal. Rptr. 356 , are discussed in § 131.21[3][a]. The appellate court affirmed an order enforcing a judicially supervised settlement agreement and noted that under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, what formerly was a nonstatutory "speaking motion" had now been authorized by statute and was applicable not only to judicially supervised settlement conferences, but also to stipulations of settlement in writing or orally before the court in pending litigation (156 Cal. App. 3d 989, 994) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Stipulated Settlement

In 1538 Cahuenga Partners, LLC v. Turmeko Properties, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 139, 143, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552 , the parties' attorneys stipulated orally before the court to "absolutely, fully, and forever release, relieve, waive, relinquish, and discharge one another individually and collectively ... from any and all ... liens of every kind and nature whatsoever, whether known or unknown, suspected or unsuspected ... " The attorney representing defendant TRE stated in open court that he understood the terms of the agreement and accepted them on behalf of TRE's principal who was not present in the courtroom. In addition, the trial judge stated that he had talked to TRE's principal in chambers, and the principal had stated that he understood the terms and agreed to them. Three months later, TRE obtained a judgment in a related action against one of the parties to the settlement agreement. TRE's principal argued that because he was not present in the courtroom to consent to the settlement on the record, the settlement could not be enforced against TRE.

The court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not require that the party to be bound consent to the settlement "on the record," only that the party consent to it "orally before the court" (176 Cal. App. 4th 139, 143) . The court held that the principal's oral statement to the court in chambers that he understood and agreed to the terms of the settlement satisfied the requirement that the party stipulate to the settlement "orally before the court" (176 Cal. App. 4th 139, 143) .

Datatronic Systems Corp. v. Speron, Inc. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1168, 222 Cal. Rptr. 658 , involved an action based on a contract entered into between the parties. After the deposition of defendant's vice-president, plaintiff offered to settle the action. Defendant accepted the offer, and an oral settlement agreement was recorded by the court reporter present for the deposition. However, the parties never agreed to the settlement in writing. Defendant subsequently filed for judgment pursuant to terms of settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. The trial court granted judgment, finding that the parties had entered into a settlement within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 at the deposition. Plaintiff appealed contending, among other things, that the settlement was not "before the court" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, and the court of appeal reversed. The court held that oral stipulations for settlement of a case are "before the court" only when they are made on the record at a judicially supervised proceeding (176 Cal. App. 3d 1168, 1173-1174) . The court held that the deposition was not a judicially supervised proceeding within the meaning of the statute (176 Cal. App. 3d 1168, 1174) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.22

§ 131.22 Supporting Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Acceptance of Statutory Settlement Offer [Code Civ. Proc. § 998]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR
_____ [name],	)	ENTRY OF JUDGMENT PURSUANT TO ACa(n) _____ [name of state or	)	CEPTANCE OF STATUTORY SETTLEMENT OF-foreign country] Corporation,	)	FER
Defendant.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 998]
	)	Date: _____
		Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

THE COURT, ON MOTION, MAY ENTER A JUDGMENT PURSUANT TO A PARTY's ACCEPTANCE OF A STATUTORY SETTLEMENT OFFER.

A. Entry of Judgment After Acceptance. If a statutory settlement offer made pursuant to Section 998 of the Code of Civil Procedure is accepted, the offer with proof of acceptance shall be filed and the clerk or the judge shall enter judgment accordingly (Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)).

[Optional] B. Counteroffer Does Not Preclude Acceptance of Statutory Settlement Offer. A settlement offer made pursuant to Section 998 of the Code of Civil Procedure is not revoked by a counteroffer and may be accepted until expressly withdrawn by the offeror or deemed withdrawn under the terms of that section (Poster v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 266, 270, 272, 276 Cal. Rptr. 321, 801 P.2d 1072).

[Optional] C. Service by Mail Extends Time to Accept Statutory Settlement Offer. When a statutory settlement offer made pursuant to Section 998 of the Code of Civil Procedure is served by mail, the provisions of Section 1013 of the Code of Civil Procedure apply and extend the 30-day period for acceptance of the offer by 5 days (Poster v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 266, 275, 276 Cal. Rptr. 321, 801 P.2d 1072).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for entry of judgment based on acceptance of a statutory settlement offer made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Optional Paragraph B is for use when the plaintiff contends that the statutory offer was revoked by a counteroffer before acceptance. Optional Paragraph C is for use when the offer was served by mail and was accepted on the 31st to the 35th day after service.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to statutory settlement offers made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees and Ch. 520, Settlement and Release (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For additional memoranda of points and authorities relating to other aspects of statutory settlement offers made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, see Ch. 60, Costs and Ch. 121, Interest .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Counteroffer Does Not Preclude Acceptance of Statutory Settlement Offer

Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b) provides in part that not less than 10 days before commencement of trial, any party may serve an offer in writing on any other party to the action to allow judgment to be taken in accordance with the terms and conditions stated at that time. If the offer is accepted, the offer with proof of acceptance shall be filed and the clerk or the judge shall enter judgment accordingly. If the offer is not accepted before trial or within 30 days after it is made, whichever occurs first, it shall be deemed withdrawn.

Plaintiff in Poster v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 266, 276 Cal. Rptr. 321, 801 P.2d 1072 , sustained serious injury after being attacked by other passengers on one of defendant's buses, thrown from the bus, and run over by it. On December 11, 1987, acting pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 and Civ. Code § 3291, plaintiff served defendants with an offer to compromise. The offer was served by mail with proof of service and provided that if it was accepted and notice of acceptance was given within 30 days or before the commencement of trial, the offer could be filed with proof of acceptance and the clerk of the court would be authorized to enter judgment in accordance with the offer. Defendants received the offer on December 14, 1987, and engaged in further settlement negotiations with plaintiff, making two separate counteroffers on December 16 and on January 8, 1988. Plaintiff refused the first and made no response to the second. On January 12, defendants advised plaintiff's attorney that they would accept the initial offer to compromise in the full amount and sent a letter of acceptance. Plaintiff acknowledged acceptance and agreed that the matter would be removed from the calendar. Notice of acceptance, in the form of a pleading instructing the clerk to enter judgment pursuant to the terms of the offer, was mailed to plaintiff on January 14, 1988. Thereafter, plaintiff's attorney received new information from an expert who advised that the extent and seriousness of plaintiff's injuries might be greater than first thought. Plaintiff's attorney subsequently informed defendants that plaintiff refused to honor the settlement agreement, claiming that the settlement negotiations that occurred after service of the offer to compromise operated as a counteroffer and thus terminated the original offer, revoking defendants' power of acceptance. Defendant noticed a motion to enforce the agreement, which was supported by a declaration from defendants' attorney hat plaintiff had never revoked the offer and continually led defendants to believe that the offer to compromise remained open.

The trial court found that the offer was properly accepted as required by statute and by the offer itself, and ordered judgment in plaintiff's favor in the amount of the offer. Plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal reversed, holding that although Section 998 offers are not automatically revoked by a counteroffer, acceptance in this case was not timely, because Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a), which generally extends the time to respond by five days when service is by mail, does not apply to Section 998 offers.

The Supreme Court agreed that the counteroffers did not serve to revoke plaintiff's Section 998 offer, but reversed with respect to application of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a), and remanded with directions to affirm the trial court's order enforcing the settlement (52 Cal. 3d 266, 275) . The Court began by setting forth the pertinent part of Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b) and noting that it clearly reflects California's policy of encouraging settlements. Still, the statutory language is silent on a number of issues relevant to the application of the statute, including what constitutes an acceptance, whether the statutory offer may be revoked by the offeror before the expiration of the statutorily designated period, and the effect of counteroffers on the viability of outstanding statutory settlement offers. The Court pointed out that general contract principles have been applied to Section 998 offers to establish (1) that a 998 offer can be revoked by the offeror before the expiration of the statutory period [T. M. Cobb Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 273, 278-280, 204 Cal. Rptr. 143, 682 P.2d 338] and (2) that a counteroffer that deviates from the terms of an offer generally operates to revoke the offer [Glende Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 389, 396-398, 205 Cal. Rptr. 682] . However, the Court reasoned that negotiation during the 30-day period is a normal occurrence and ought not to affect the right of the offeree ultimately to accept the statutory offer in a timely fashion. To adopt the Glende position would affect every personal injury case in which negotiations followed a statutory offer--negotiations that routinely involve counteroffers. Such a rule would have a negative effect on encouraging settlement (52 Cal. 3d 266, 271) . The Court concluded that the legislative purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is better served by the rule that a Section 998 offer is not revoked by a counteroffer and may be accepted by the offeree during the statutory period unless the offer has been revoked by the offeror, and accordingly disapproved the Glende decision to the extent that it is contrary (52 Cal. 3d 266, 272) .

[b] Service by Mail Extends Time to Accept Statutory Settlement Offer

Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) provides in part that in the case of service by mail, the service is complete at the time of the deposit, but any prescribed period of notice and any right or duty to do any act or make any response within any prescribed period or on a date certain after the service of the document served by mail is extended five days if the place of address is within California.

The facts and procedural background of Poster v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 266, 276 Cal. Rptr. 321, 801 P.2d 1072 , are discussed in § 131.122[3][a]. The Court noted that the offer was mailed on December 11, 1987, and in computing the time permitted by the statute, and not counting December 11 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 12], the offer was open for 20 days in December and was not accepted by defendants until January 12, 1988, the 32nd day (52 Cal. 3d 266, 272-273) . The Court reviewed the various types of notices and responses to which Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 has been held to apply, noting that Section 1013 has become a part of the mental calculations of most litigating attorneys (52 Cal. 3d 266, 273-274) . By its terms, Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 clearly applies to the time period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 998 for accepting statutory offers of compromise. Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 applies to the service by mail of a "notice or other paper," which would certainly include a Section 998 settlement offer. By specifically extending for five days "any prescribed period ... to do any act or make any response" to any paper served by mail, Section 1013 clearly applies to the statutory period for accepting a statutory settlement offer. In light of the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, the Court concluded that there was no sound reason not to apply the statute to this context.

In determining that Section 1013 did not apply to statutory offers of settlement, the court of appeal had reasoned that its specific exclusion of notices of appeal had been held to encompass other "jurisdictional" deadlines. The Supreme Court found no basis for concluding that the 30-day limit of Section 998 was jurisdictional, and noted that "jurisdictional" is frequently misused in the sense of "mandatory" (52 Cal. 3d 266, 274) . There is nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 998 to support the conclusion that the 30-day limit was intended to be "jurisdictional" in the fundamental sense. The court of appeal also relied on the general proposition that when there are two conflicting statutes, one a general procedural statute and the other a statute dealing with more specific rights and procedures, the specific statute is regarded as an exception to the general statute. Code Civ. Proc. § 998, however, is not part of a specific statutory scheme that conflicts with Code Civ. Proc. § 1013. To the contrary, both are contained within miscellaneous provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure and apply generally to all civil cases. The Supreme Court saw no conflict between them that would support excepting Section 998 from the general operation of Section 1013 (52 Cal. 3d 266, 275) .

Accordingly, the Court concluded that when a statutory settlement offer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is served by mail, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 apply and extend the 30-day period for acceptance of the offer by 5 days (52 Cal. 3d 266, 275) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.23

§ 131.23 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc or for Correction of Record of Judgment to Show Entry Nunc Pro Tunc

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR _____ [ENTRY OF JUDGMENT or CORRECTION OF RECORD OF JUDGMENT TO SHOW ENTRY] NUNC PRO TUNC
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

IT WOULD BE IMPROPER TO ORDER A NUNC PRO TUNC ENTRY BECAUSE THE RESULTING JUDGMENT WOULD _____ [BE UNJUST AND/OR UNCONSCIONABLE or STATE THAT SOMETHING NOT DONE WAS DONE].

A. Declaring as Done What Was Not Done. A nunc pro tunc order cannot be made for the purpose of declaring that something was done which was not done (Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 766, 771, 70 Cal. Rptr. 826).

B. Nunc Pro Tunc Correction Unconscionable. The trial court may properly refuse to correct a clerical error in a judgment nunc pro tunc when it would be unconscionable to do so (Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 920, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522).

[Optional] C. Antedating Before Jury Instructed and Verdict Reached. When a plaintiff has died during a jury trial but before the jury is instructed and a verdict reached, the trial court has no authority to enter judgment nunc pro tunc as of a time before the plaintiff's death (Williamson v. Plant Insulation Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1414-1418, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751).

[Optional] D. Antedating When Verdict in One Phase Reached. Code of Civil Procedure § 669 does not give a trial court the authority to enter judgment nunc pro tunc merely because a verdict in one phase of a bifurcated trial has been reached. Rather, a verdict must have been reached on all facts necessary for judgment (Williamson v. Plant Insulation Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1414-1415, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751).

E. Ground for Antedating Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc. [See § 131.20[1], Paragraph B.]

F. Antedating as Justice Requires. [See § 131.20[1], Paragraph C.]

G. Nunc Pro Tunc May Not Alter Judgment. A court may correct a clerical, as distinguished from a judicial error which appears on the face of a decree by a nunc pro tunc order. However, it cannot change an order that has become final even though made in error, if in fact the order made was that intended to be made [In re Marriage of Padgett (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 830, 851-855, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 475] .
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a motion for the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc when there was no actual order or judgment and thus nothing on which an order for such action may act, when, if there was an actual order or judgment, it would be unconscionable or not in the interest of justice to do so, or when the original judgment or order is not deficient.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 131.21.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Declaring as Done What Was Not Done

In Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 766, 70 Cal. Rptr. 826 , the court of appeal granted a writ of mandamus to require the trial court to vacate and set aside an order granting plaintiffs' motion for a nunc pro tunc order amending the filing date of a complaint to a date within the time allowed for filing. The plaintiffs argued that since the purpose of a nunc pro tunc order is to preserve the legitimate fruits of the litigation to the prevailing party, the trial court's order, having accomplished that purpose, should be sustained. However, the court of appeal stated that the plaintiffs had misconceived the purpose of a nunc pro tunc order. Such an order, said the court, cannot be made for the purpose of declaring that something was done which was not done. Its only office, the court explained, is to cause the record to show something which was actually done, but which, by misprision or neglect, was not entered in the record at the time. No court can order the clerk to make a record of something which was not done on the date involved.

[b] Nunc Pro Tunc Correction Unconscionable

Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522 , is discussed in § 131.20[3][b].

[c] Antedating Before Jury Instructed and Verdict Reached

In Williamson v. Plant Insulation Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751 , the plaintiff filed suit for economic and noneconomic damages alleged to have resulted from lung cancer he allegedly developed from asbestos exposure. The matter proceeded to a jury trial, which was bifurcated into two phases. At the first phase, the jury reached a special verdict that the claim was timely and that exposure to asbestos was a legal cause of the plaintiff's loss, and set the amounts of damages. Trial on the second phase, the issues of liability and comparative fault, then began. Both parties rested, except for the introduction of an anticipated stipulation and a ruling on and admission of exhibits. The court was recessed for a few days; during the interim, the plaintiff died. The matter then continued, without telling the jury of the plaintiff's death, and the jury was instructed and deliberated. After the second phase verdict was reached, the trial court entered judgment nunc pro tunc as of the day before the plaintiff's death.

The court of appeal reversed the award with regard to noneconomic losses, holding that the plaintiff's claim for these had abated with his death, and that the trial court had no authority to enter judgment nunc pro tunc before his death so that the claim could survive. The plaintiff had died during trial; although live testimony had been completed at the time of his death, evidentiary exhibits had not yet been admitted or excluded, jury instructions had not yet been given, and jury argument had not yet been made, let alone final verdict reached. Thus, the trial had not reached the stage at which judgment could be entered, and the trial court could not order entry of judgment nunc pro tunc as of that time. Nor did Code Civ. Proc. § 669 give the trial court authority to enter judgment nunc pro tunc. Although that statute allows a judge to enter judgment nunc pro tunc "after a verdict upon any issue of fact," it does not allow a judge to do so after a verdict is rendered in the first phase of a bifurcated trial but before the remaining verdict is rendered determining all facts necessary for judgment (23 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1414-1418) .

[d] Antedating When Verdict in One Phase Reached

Williamson v. Plant Insulation Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751 , is discussed in § 131.23[3][c].

[e] Nunc Pro Tunc May Not Alter Judgment

In In re Marriage of Padgett (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 830, 851-855, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 475 , Robert and Beverly Padgett were married in 1972 and divorced in 1988. While married to Beverly, Robert was a participant in a pension plan. The judgment of dissolution did not adjudicate Beverly's interest in Robert's pension plan, but the court expressly retained jurisdiction to do so. Robert married Donna in 1995. Robert continued to work and added to his benefits in the plan. Robert died in 2005, before he had retired and before receiving any plan benefits. The plan provided a survivor's benefit of half of the monthly pension benefit Robert would have received if he had retired immediately before his death. After Robert's death, Beverly made a claim for the survivor benefits. After litigation between Beverly and Donna, the trial court ruled that Beverly was entitled to survivor benefits under the plan and ordered Beverly's attorney to prepare a nunc pro tunc order as of the date of the marriage dissolution. Donna appealed.

The court of appeal held that a nunc pro tunc order is one entered as of a time prior to the actual entry, so that it is treated as effective at the earlier date. This is an exercise of the court's inherent power in order to do justice to a litigant whose rights are threatened by a delay that is not the litigant's fault. However, the court held, there are limits on a court's power to enter orders nunc pro tunc (172 Cal. App. 4th 830, 851) . The court held that by a nunc pro tunc order a court may correct a clerical, rather than a judicial, error which appears on the face of a decree. However, a court may not change an order which has become final even though made in error, if the order made was that intended to be made (172 Cal. App. 4th 830, 851-852) . The court noted that decisions allowing nunc pro tunc amendments after the death or retirement of a plan participant did so in circumstances where the original order at a minimum created in the former spouse some interest in the pension plan (172 Cal. App. 4th 830, 854). Here, the court held, the court in the original dissolution action did not create any interest for Beverly in the pension plan, and a nunc pro tunc amendment was improper.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsNunc Pro Tunc Relief

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.24

§ 131.24 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]--Stipulated Settlement Was Oral But Not Entered Before Court, or Was Written But Not Signed by Parties

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR ENTRY OF JUDGMENT PURSUANT TO TERMS OF STIPULATED SETTLEMENT
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendants.	)
	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]
	)	Date: _____
		Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

THE PURPORTED STIPULATION IS AN INSUFFICIENT BASIS FOR JUDGMENT ON MOTION BECAUSE IT _____ [if insufficient oral stipulation, WAS NOT ENTERED BEFORE A COURT (AND/OR) if insufficient written stipulation, WAS NOT SIGNED BY THE PARTIES].

A. Stipulation Must Be Orally Entered Before Court or Written and Signed. An agreement sought to be enforced pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure § 664.6 must be judicially supervised or in writing and signed by the parties (City of Fresno v. Maroot (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760-762, 234 Cal. Rptr. 353).

[Optional] B. Oral Agreement Made at Deposition Insufficient. An out-of-court settlement agreement recorded by a court reporter at a deposition is insufficient to constitute an oral agreement that may be enforced under Code of Civil Procedure § 664.6, because the oral agreement must be entered before the court (City of Fresno v. Maroot (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760-762, 234 Cal. Rptr. 353).

[Optional] C. Oral Agreement Before Non-Adjudicative Mediator Insufficient. The requirement that an oral settlement agreement under Code of Civil Procedure § 664.6 be before the court is not satisfied when the agreement is before a mediator who is not authorized by statute to act in a quasi-judicial capacity (Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 714, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722).

[Optional] D. Agreement by Attorney Insufficient. To be enforceable, a settlement agreement must have been personally agreed to or signed by the litigant; an agreement entered only by the litigant's attorney is insufficient (Cortez v. Kenneally (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 523, 528, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be used in opposition to a motion for the entry of judgment based on a prior stipulation if the purported stipulation was either oral, but not entered before the court, or written, but not signed by the parties. Optional Paragraph B is for use if an oral agreement was recorded by a court reporter at a deposition, but was not also entered before the court [see City of Fresno v. Maroot (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760-762, 234 Cal. Rptr. 353] . Optional Paragraph C is for use if an oral agreement was made before a mediator not authorized by statute to act in a quasi-judicial capacity. Optional Paragraph D is for use when the settlement agreement was entered into only by the litigant's attorney, not by the litigant personally.

Counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts describing whether the agreement was oral or written or both, and showing that either the oral agreement was not entered before the court, or the written agreement was not signed by the parties, or both.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 131.21.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Stipulation Must Be Orally Entered Before Court or Written and Signed

In City of Fresno v. Maroot (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 234 Cal. Rptr. 353 , the parties to an action in eminent domain met at a deposition and underwent settlement negotiations instead of taking the scheduled depositions. Counsel for plaintiffs and defendant recited the agreement to the court reporter, who recorded their statements. An issue regarding whether the price fixtures were included in the proposed damages amount remained undetermined. The oral agreement was not entered before the court. Subsequently, plaintiff reduced the purported agreement to writing, including a provision regarding the disputed fixtures, and defendants refused to sign it. The trial court granted plaintiff's motion for judgment pursuant to the terms of the purported settlement agreement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, based on declarations and the deposition transcript, and defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that unless the agreement is judicially supervised or in writing and signed by the parties, the intent of the parties when they verbalized the settlement is vulnerable to conflicting interpretations and the summary procedures authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 are not available (189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 762) . The court noted with approval the holding of Datatronic Systems Corp. v. Speron, Inc. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1168, 1174, 222 Cal. Rptr. 658 (discussed in § 131.21[4][a]), stating that an oral stipulation to a settlement agreement recorded by a court reporter following the taking of a deposition is insufficient to satisfy the requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 that the agreement be made "before the court" (189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761) .

[b] Oral Agreement Made at Deposition Insufficient

City of Fresno v. Maroot (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 234 Cal. Rptr. 353 , is discussed in § 131.24[3][a].

[c] Oral Agreement Before Non-Adjudicative Mediator Insufficient

In Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722 , the underlying suit was based on a disputed easement held by defendant. The trial court referred the matter to arbitration, purportedly pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, but without written consent of the parties. An oral stipulation was apparently reached and memorialized in a handwritten document which was not signed but was intended to be a draft for the attorneys to finalize later. Defendant subsequently informed her attorney that she could not sign the agreement due to unresolved concerns. Plaintiffs moved to enforce the agreement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, and the trial court granted the motion.

Defendant contended on appeal that the agreement was not enforceable because it was an oral agreement which was not made before the court. The court of appeal noted that oral stipulations before a subordinate court officer met the "before the court" requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 if the officer was empowered to act with an adjudicatory function, and did act in that capacity (42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 712) . However, since the parties had not signed consents to the arbitration, the court found the status of the mediator unclear, and concluded that he was analogous to a mediator in a voluntary settlement conference. The mediator was thus not empowered with adjudicative authority, and the oral settlement agreement could not be enforced because the "before the court" requirement was not satisfied (42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 715) . The court thus reversed the judgment based on the agreement.

[d] Agreement by Attorney Insufficient

In Cortez v. Kenneally (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 523, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671 , a medical malpractice action, the physician's wife was added as a defendant. A settlement agreement was subsequently negotiated and stated on the record before the court. The physician and his attorney were present, and the attorney represented that he was also representing the physician's wife. Plaintiff subsequently brought a motion to enforce the settlement agreement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. The wife opposed this motion with a declaration stating that she had no role in settlement discussions, was not present at the hearing, and did not authorize either her husband or his attorney to offer anything on her behalf. The trial court ordered enforcement of the judgment, stating that the record was clear that the husband and his attorney were acting on behalf of the wife.

The court of appeal noted that the Supreme Court held in Levy v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 578, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878, 896 P.2d 171 , that the word parties in Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 means the litigants themselves, and that to be enforceable a settlement agreement must have been personally agreed to or signed by the litigant (44 Cal. App. 4th 523, 528) . An agreement entered only by the litigant's attorney is insufficient because the settlement of a lawsuit is not incidental to the management of the lawsuit. Settlement is such a serious step that it requires the client's knowledge and express consent (44 Cal. App. 4th 523, 529) . Since she had not been present to personally agree to the settlement and had not signed the agreement, the court reversed the judgment against the wife.

But see Robertson v. Chen (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 , the facts and procedural background of which are discussed in § 131.24[4][a], where the court stated that it did not read the involvement by a party requirement of Levy v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 578, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878, 896 P.2d 171 , as precluding enforcement of an insurance-funded settlement reached by an authorized insurance defense counsel or adjuster when the carrier has the contractual right to settle (44 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1295) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Stipulation Must Be Orally Entered Before Court of Written and Signed

In Robertson v. Chen (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 , the mandatory settlement conference statement filed by the defense described a defense settlement offer which had been previously rejected by plaintiffs, and stated that the offer would remain open until trial. Plaintiffs later decided to accept the offer, and defendants claimed the offer had been revoked. Plaintiffs moved for enforcement of the offer as a settlement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, and the trial court granted the motion. The court of appeal disagreed, noting that for a written settlement agreement to be enforceable it must be signed by the parties themselves (44 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1292) . In this situation, there was no writing signed by the parties, there was only a mandatory settlement conference statement signed by counsel for one side. The judgment entered on the statement was thus reversed.

[b] Agreement by Attorney Insufficient

In Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722 , the facts and procedural background of which is discussed in § 131.124[3][c], the court rejected a contention that an oral settlement agreement was enforceable because it had been ratified by the attorney of a non-signing party. The court referred to Levy v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 578, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878, 896 P.2d 171 , for the rule that direct party-litigant participation is required to enforce settlement agreements (42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 715) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.25

§ 131.25 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]--No Litigation Pending When Settlement Executed

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.24[1].]

TO UTILIZE THE SUMMARY PROCEDURES OF CODE CIV. PROC. § 664.6 IN EXISTING LITIGATION TO ENFORCE A SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT, LITIGATION MUST HAVE BEEN PENDING WHEN THE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT WAS EXECUTED.

Litigation Must Be Pending When Settlement Agreement Executed. For the summary procedure to enforce a settlement or release agreement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 in existing litigation, a settlement or release agreement must have been executed when the litigation was already pending. An agreement executed before litigation is instituted is not enforceable under the summary procedure provided by section 664.6 [Kirby v. Southern California Edison Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 843-846, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223] .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be used in opposition to a motion for entry of judgment in existing litigation based on a settlement or release agreement, if the settlement agreement or release was executed before the litigation was instituted [Kirby v. Southern California Edison Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223] .

Counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should specify facts showing when the purported settlement agreement or release was executed and when the instant litigation was instituted.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities in § 131.21.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Litigation Must Be Pending When Agreement Executed

In Kirby v. Southern California Edison Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223 , the mother of a man electrocuted by a downed high-voltage wire during a windstorm filed a wrongful death complaint against a utility company. The company moved pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 for an order enforcing an alleged settlement agreement with the plaintiff. In opposition to the motion, the plaintiff offered evidence that the utility's representatives came to her house the day after the incident and then returned the next day to present her with a check to assist in the burial of her son, in return for her execution of a release. The plaintiff returned the check to the utility after consulting with an attorney and filed the complaint over 5 months after she executed the release. The trial court granted the utility's motion and dismissed the action.

The court of appeal reversed, finding that the summary procedures of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 were inapplicable in these circumstances. The court found that section 664.6 provides a summary procedure by which a trial court may specifically enforce an agreement settling pending litigation without requiring the filing of a second lawsuit (78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 843) . However, at the time the disputed release was executed, there was no litigation pending. The court found that the statutory language referring to settlements by "parties to pending litigation" is clear and ambiguous; "parties" means "litigants," and there are no litigants until there is a case on file to litigate (78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 844-845) . The court found further that the legislative history of section 664.6 reinforced the conclusion that the Legislature intended the section to provide a means of enforcing settlement agreements entered into after litigation had been filed (78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 845) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.26

§ 131.26 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]--Action Was Dismissed and Parties Did Not Properly Request Continuing Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.24[1].]

TO UTILIZE THE SUMMARY PROCEDURES OF CODE CIV. PROC. § 664.6 IN EXISTING LITIGATION TO ENFORCE A SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT ONCE THE ACTION IS DISMISSED, THE PARTIES MUST HAVE PROPERLY REQUESTED CONTINUING JURISDICTION.

Parties Did Not Properly Request Continuing Jurisdiction Before the Action Was Dismissed. If requested by the parties to a stipulated settlement, the court may retain jurisdiction over the parties to enforce the settlement until performance in full of the terms of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]. In order for the court to assert continuing jurisdiction, however, the request must satisfy the same formalities imposed generally on Section 664.6 motions and the settlement agreements the motions seek to enforce. Thus, the request for continuing jurisdiction must be made prior to dismissal, it must be made orally before the court or in a signed writing, and it must be made by the parties themselves, not their attorneys, spouses or other agents. If after the action has been dismissed a party brings a Section 664.6 motion but cannot present to the court a request for continuing jurisdiction that meets all these requirements, enforcement of the agreement must be left to a separate lawsuit (Wackeen v. Malis (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 433, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 502).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be used in opposition to a motion for entry of judgment in existing litigation based on a settlement or release agreement, if the action was dismissed and the parties failed to request properly that the court retain jurisdiction before the dismissal [Wackeen v. Malis (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 118

Cal. Rptr. 2d 502] .

Counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should specify facts showing when the action was dismissed and facts showing the failure to request continuing jurisdiction properly.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities in § 131.21.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Parties Must Properly Request Continuing Jurisdiction Before Action Is Dismissed

In Wackeen v. Malis (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 502 , parties entered into a settlement agreement, and the court approved under Code of Civ. Proc. § 877.6 good faith settlement motion. Both before and after the settlement agreement was signed, requests for dismissal of various defendants and cross-defendants were filed, which had the effect of dismissing all defendants and cross-defendants and thus the action itself (97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 434) . One of the original defendants filed two Section 664.6 motions to enforce clauses of the settlement agreement, alleging that the plaintiff had failed to live up to several of obligations under the agreement. The trial court granted the motions in part (97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 434-437) .

The Court of Appeal reversed on the ground that the trial court did not have subject matter jurisdiction over the Section 664.6 motions. The court held that a voluntary dismissal of the entire action divests the court of subject matter jurisdiction, which occurred in this case (97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 437-439) . The court then construed the second sentence of Section 664.6, which was added in 1993, to mean that even though a settlement may call for a case to be dismissed or the plaintiff dismisses the action of its own accord, the court may retain jurisdiction to enforce the terms of the settlement until its terms have been performed by the parties if the parties have requested the specific retention of jurisdiction (97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 439) . The court then held that the request for retention of jurisdiction must conform to the same three requirements necessary for Section 664.6 enforcement of the settlement itself, i.e., that the request be made during the pendency of the case, that it be made by the parties themselves, and that it either be in a writing signed by the parties or orally before the court (97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 439-440) . The court then found that there was no clear express request for retention of jurisdiction necessary to permit the court to retain jurisdiction to enforce under Section 664.6 the provisions of the settlement agreement in this case (97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 441) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.27

§ 131.27 Opposing Motion for Entry of Judgment Pursuant to Terms of Settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]--Provision of Settlement Agreement Is Invalid

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.24[1].]

THE COURT CANNOT ENFORCE A SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT THAT INCLUDES AN INVALID PROVISION.

Court Cannot Enforce a Settlement Agreement With an Invalid Provision. A settlement agreement is a contract subject to all the normal legal and statutory contractual requirements. The courts will not enforce a contract to perform a prohibited act. Code of Civil Procedure Section 664.6 does not allow a court to endorse or enforce a provision in a settlement agreement or stipulation which is illegal, contrary to public policy, unjust or invalid. The settlement judge's approval of the agreement does not shield it from invalidation (Timney v. Lin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1126-1129, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be used in opposition to a motion for entry of judgment in existing litigation based on a settlement or release agreement, when the settlement agreement in whole or in part is invalid if the action was dismissed and the parties failed to request properly that the court retain jurisdiction before the dismissal (Timney v. Lin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1126-1129, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387).

Counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should specify facts showing which provision of the settlement agreement is invalid and why.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities in § 131.21.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Cannot Enforce Settlement Agreement or Provision of Agreement That Is Invalid

In Timney v. Lin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387 , in the original litigation, buyers sought specific performance of an agreement to buy the home they had been renting from the sellers. The originally contemplated sale could not go through, because a 25 percent interest in the property was held by a person who lived in Taiwan and was unwilling to sell her interest. The buyers and sellers entered into a written settlement agreement providing which provided for the sellers to sell their 75 percent interest to the buyers. The agreement also provided that if the buyers were unable to complete the sale, all funds placed in escrow would be returned to the buyers on the buyers' deposit of a quitclaim deed in escrow within five days of the closing date of September 11, 2001, but if the buyers failed to timely place the quitclaim deed in escrow, their deposit of $20,000, together with their initial deposit of $11,250, would be forfeited to the sellers. This paragraph was not labeled as a liquidated damages provision, although its effect was to provide for a forfeiture of funds deposited into escrow. The buyers did not complete the sale because they were unable to secure financing. The buyers undertook timely steps to cancel the escrow, including cancellation instructions for the title company acting as escrow agent, which was to prepare and deliver a quitclaim deed to the sellers' attorney. Purportedly as a result of the disruption caused by the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, the quitclaim deed was not prepared by the escrow agent when the cancellation instructions were forwarded to the sellers, but was provided about three weeks late. The sellers brought a motion to enforce the settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, including the provision for forfeiture of the deposited funds in escrow for failure to deposit the quitclaim deed in escrow within five days of the closing date. The trial court granted the motion to enforce the settlement, and entered judgment accordingly. (106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1124-1125) .

The Court of Appeal reversed. The court first held that if the forfeiture provision were included in a real property sales contract, it would be void as an illegal forfeiture (106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1126) . The court then held that the existence of the provision in a settlement agreement did not require the court to apply a different rule of law. Case law uniformly treats a settlement agreement as a contract subject to all the normal legal and statutory contractual requirements, and the forfeiture of the deposit as a result of the delay in delivering a quitclaim deed, which caused the sellers no cognizable damages, constituted an illegal forfeiture provision and was invalid, even though the provision did not actually mention the term "liquidated damages," because its legal effect was to allow a forfeiture for lateness without regard to any damage caused. Further, the settlement judge's approval did not shield it from invalidation. (106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1127-1129) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
A. Entry of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities §§ 131.28-131.39

[Reserved]

§§ 131.28[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
B. Amendment, Correction, And Modification Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.40

§ 131.40 Supporting Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Court's Power to Correct Clerical Error--Inherent or Statutory [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO CORRECT CLERICAL ERROR IN JUDGMENT UNDER _____ [COURT's INHERENT POWER or STATUTE] [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____

_____

THE TRIAL COURT HAS BOTH THE POWER AND THE DUTY TO CORRECT A CLERICAL ERROR IN ITS JUDGMENT AND SUCH CORRECTION MAY BE MADE AT ANY TIME, WHETHER PRIOR TO OR AFTER THE ENTRY OF THE JUDGMENT.

[EITHER]

A. Power to Correct Prior to Entry. The court retains power to amend or change the conclusions of law to point to a different judgment and to enter a judgment different from the first one announced. This power continues until the entry of the judgment, [and a judge other than the one who tried the case may make the change] (Kelly v. Sparling Water Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 628, 633, 343 P.2d 257).

[OR]

A. Power to Correct After Entry. The court may, on motion of the injured party, correct clerical mistakes in its judgment as entered to conform to the judgment or order directed (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)).

[OR]

A. Power to Modify in Ruling on Motion for New Trial. In a case tried without a jury, when there is a motion for a new trial, the proper procedure under Section 662 of the Code of Civil Procedure when the trial court desires to modify the statement of decision and judgment is for the trial court to deny the motion and grant the alternative relief of modification of the statement of decision and judgment (Medak v. Cox (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 70, 74, 90 Cal. Rptr. 452).

B. Inherent Power to Correct. A court has inherent power to vacate and correct its judgments which, because of clerical error, are improvidently or inadvertently made, as well as the power under Section 473 of the Code of Civil Procedure to correct clerical errors (Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 214, 120 P.2d 9 ; Pettigrew v. Grand Rent-A-Car (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 209, 201 Cal. Rptr. 125).

C. Duty to Correct Error. Courts not only have power to correct clerical errors in their judgments but are under the definite and manifest legal duty to do so (In re Roberts (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 95, 98, 19 Cal. Rptr. 147 ; Meyer v. Porath (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 808, 811, 248 P.2d 984).

[Optional] D. Correction at Any Time. The courts have power to correct clerical errors in their judgments at any time[, notwithstanding the passage of many years] (Estate of Goldberg (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 709, 717, 76 P.2d 508).

E. Correction Following Appeal. The courts have power to correct clerical errors in their judgments either before or after an appeal has been finally determined if the correction does not affect substantial rights of the parties (LaMar v. Superior Court (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 129, 196 P.2d 98).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a party to an action in support of his or her motion for correction of the judgment rendered therein when the party contends that the judgment contains a clerical error and the issue is the court's power to make the requested correction. When it is found desirable to add authority concerning the court's power to determine the character of the error as clerical, reference should be made to § 131.41; for points and authorities for use in guiding the court in determining whether the error was clerical, see § 131.42. When the moving party desires to have the record of judgment corrected to speak nunc pro tunc, counsel may incorporate points and authorities set forth in § 131.43. Opposing forms may be found in §§ 131.44 -131.46.

Counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a notice of motion for an order to correct clerical error in a judgment and to amend the judgment nunc pro tunc, and an order to that effect, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice , Ch. 318, Judgments , (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing a motion to vacate a judgment for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing a motion to vacate a judgment and enter a different judgment under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663 and 663a, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial, § 155.320 et seq.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power to Correct Prior to Entry

In Kelly v. Sparling Water Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 628, 343 P.2d 257 , the Supreme Court ruled that it was proper for a trial court to amend its judgment prior to the entry thereof, but that in this case the amendment was inconsistent with the trial court's findings of fact, requiring reversal and remand for a new trial. The trial court rendered judgment for the plaintiffs in an action for damages and for an injunction to restrain the defendants from diverting water from the plaintiffs' spring, pursuant to its conclusions of law. The defendants moved for a new trial. Because of the hospitalization of the trial judge, another judge heard the motion. That judge denied the motion but modified the conclusions of law and the judgment without changing the findings of fact. As to the modified judgment, the Court noted that it has been repeatedly held that the court retains power to amend or change the conclusions of law to point to a different judgment and enter a judgment different from the first one announced, and that this power continues until the entry of the judgment. It added that such change may be made by a judge other than the one who tried the cause. However, since the modification was contrary to the original judge's findings of fact, the second judge erred, and that error required a reversal.

[b] Power to Modify in Ruling on Motion for New Trial

In Medak v. Cox (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 70, 90 Cal. Rptr. 452 , the court of appeal dismissed an appeal from a judgment, holding that the judgment had properly been vacated and modified following a motion for a new trial. The case involved an action by an unlicensed architect to foreclose a mechanic's lien for services rendered to the defendants. The defendants filed a cross complaint for money paid under an alleged illegal contract with the plaintiff. The original judgment was entered for the plaintiff and against the defendants on their cross complaint. Following a motion for a new trial, the judgment was modified and a new judgment was entered. Although the trial court made no explicit statement to that effect, it was clear, said the court of appeal, that it was proceeding under the authority granted it by Code Civ. Proc. § 662, which provides for modification of judgment in ruling on a motion for new trial in a cause tried without a jury. The proper procedure is for the trial court to deny the motion and grant the alternative relief stated under the cited section, i.e., a modification of findings and judgment. Accordingly, held the court, the new judgment superseded the original judgment and the appeal from the superseded judgment was therefore a nullity and was dismissed.

This case construes Code Civ. Proc. § 662 prior to its amendment in 1981, when references to findings were changed to statement of decision in order to conform with the amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 632, providing for a statement of decision rather than findings of fact and conclusions of law.

[c] Inherent Power to Correct

In Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 120 P.2d 9 , the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's order setting aside its findings and conclusions and judgment. The action involved a suit to quiet title to real property based on the claim that two trust deeds thereon and a conveyance thereof to the defendants were obtained by fraud and undue influence. After trial a minute order was entered to the effect that the court had ordered judgment for the defendants. A year expired during which time no findings and conclusions were submitted to the court. Findings, conclusions, and a judgment favorable to the plaintiffs were finally prepared by the plaintiff's attorney, signed, and filed. The defendants moved for an order vacating the findings and judgment on the grounds that as a result of clerical error they did not conform to and were not the court's true judgment. The trial court granted the motion and directed the defendants to prepare findings and conclusions and a judgment in accordance with its decision. The Court observed that the defendants' motion invoked a court's inherent power to vacate and correct its judgments, which because of clerical error are improvidently or inadvertently made, as well as the power under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to correct clerical errors and to vacate judgments as the result of accident, surprise, and excusable neglect of the parties or their counsel. The Court held that independently of statute, a trial court has power to correct mistakes and to annul orders and judgments inadvertently or improvidently made and concluded that the error was not a judicial error. The judge's declaration and finding in its order vacating the judgment that the findings and judgment did not conform to the true judgment rendered, in that the court intended to pronounce judgment in favor of the defendants, could not be wholly disregarded nor lightly brushed aside.

In Pettigrew v. Grand Rent-A-Car (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 201 Cal. Rptr. 125 , the underlying action involved an action for damages incurred in an automobile accident. Under Veh. Code § 17151, the amount of the award should have been limited to $15,000. Instead, a judgment of $150,000 was entered because of the inadvertence or mistake of the judge and defendant's attorney in failing to note the limitation. The court granted defendant's motion to modify the judgment to $15,000 under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)), which empowers a court to correct mistakes based on inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the court had the power to correct a clerical mistake in the judgment, based on Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)) and based on its inherent power to correct clerical mistakes. The court cited In re Candelario (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 702, 705, 91 Cal. Rptr. 497, 477 P.2d 729 , which held that a court's inherent power to correct clerical errors exists independently of statute and that the correction may be done on the court's own motion or on application of the parties (154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 209) . The court held that an error in judgment, made through inadvertence, is a clerical error subject to correction, and distinguished such an error from a judicial error, which is not subject to correction. The court stated that the inadvertent making and entry of a money judgment in excess of the amount limited by law is a clerical error and not a deliberate result of judicial reasoning and determination, because it cannot be presumed that the trial judge deliberately intended to render and enter a judgment that was contrary to law (154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 210-211) .

[d] Duty to Correct Error

In In re Roberts (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 95, 19 Cal. Rptr. 147 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.42[3][b], the court of appeal stated that when the occasion arises, courts not only have the power to amend orders and judgments containing clerical errors but are under the definite and manifest legal duty to do so.

In Meyer v. Porath (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 808, 248 P.2d 984 , the court of appeal affirmed a trial court's order amending nunc pro tunc its findings of fact, conclusions of law, and judgment. The easement which the trial court intended to declare and describe was a viable roadway. After trial and before the findings and judgment were entered, the prevailing party furnished the court with a description. That description, through the mistake of the surveyor, did not describe the roadway but purported to describe a different roadway. The court of appeal held that orders may be made correcting judgments nunc pro tunc as of their original date without notice and on the court's own motion so as to make them conform to the judicial decision actually made, and this may be done regardless of the lapse of time involved. It further ruled that when the occasion arises, the courts not only have the power to amend such orders and judgments but are under the definite and manifest legal duty to do so, and that this power exists independently of statute.

[e] Correction at Any Time

In Estate of Goldberg (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 709, 76 P.2d 508 , the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's order nunc pro tunc correcting a decree of final distribution of an estate 35 years after entry. In the case at issue, the will provided for distribution of land to one child (Emma) to hold in trust for the testator's son (Fritz) but if Fritz should die without wife or child that the property would vest in "my children Gustave-Fritz-Amelia" and "Emma." The decree provided for the vesting of title to the property on the death of Fritz without wife or child to Gustave, Amelia, and Emma, omitting Fritz. Thirty-five years later, on the death of Fritz without wife or child, the surviving child of the testator (who was the executor and successor-trustee) sought a decree authorizing him to convey the property to himself free of the trust. Following a hearing, the court amended the original decree nunc pro tunc to make it conform to the exact provision of the will. Notwithstanding the general authority of the court to make a correction of the clerical error under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)), it was contended on appeal that the statute required an application for such relief to be presented within no more than one year after entry. However, the Court noted that especially with reference to clerical errors, notwithstanding the absence of statutory authority to make timely corrections, the courts have recognized the existence of an inherent right or power to correct clerical errors. As to clerical errors, the Court held that when the error is apparent from the record's face, no time limit exists concerning the right to make the correction.

[f] Correction Following Appeal

In LaMar v. Superior Court (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 196 P.2d 98 , the court of appeal granted a writ of mandamus to compel the trial court to amend an interlocutory judgment of divorce to provide language under which the petitioner could enforce that portion of the judgment which was in his favor. The interlocutory judgment was entered in 1945 and affirmed by the Supreme Court in 1947. In 1948, the petitioner moved for a nunc pro tunc order amending the judgment, which provided that he was awarded a sum of cash as his share of the community property, to declare specifically that the judgment was against the other party. After a hearing, the trial court denied the motion without explanation. The court of appeal ruled that the trial court has inherent power to correct a judgment to make it actually express the decision declared by the court and such power may be exercised after appeal and affirmance of the judgment as well as before an appeal has been finally determined. Thus, the court concluded that the trial court had power, notwithstanding the affirmance of the judgment on appeal, to make all corrections in the judgment necessary to carry it into effect. The court noted that not only did the trial court have power to amend the judgment as requested, but it was its definite and manifest legal duty to do so. In denying the petitioner's motion to amend, the trial court had deprived him of the power to enforce the decision made in his favor.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inherent Power to Correct

In Commonwealth Land Title Co. v. Kornbluth (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 220 Cal. Rptr. 774 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order granting respondent title company's application for a writ of execution and allowing it to sell certain dwellings owned by appellant third-party claimants. In reversing the order, the court of appeal held that the omission of the date of entry of judgment on one of five abstracts of title, which were all recorded on the same date the judgment was entered, was not void because the omission was an inadvertent clerical error. The court directed the trial court to correct the abstract of judgment to show the date on which judgment was entered, holding that the trial court has inherent power to correct clerical errors in its records, whether made by the clerk, counsel, or the court itself, so that the records will conform to and speak the truth (175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 531) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
B. Amendment, Correction, And Modification Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.41

§ 131.41 Supporting Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Court's Power to Correct Clerical Error--Power to Determine Character of Error as Clerical

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.40[1].]

IN CORRECTING A CLERICAL ERROR IN A JUDGMENT, IT IS PRIMARILY FOR THE TRIAL COURT TO DETERMINE IF A DECISION MISSTATED THE COURT's REAL INTENTION AND IF THE JUDGMENT AS SIGNED WAS AN INADVERTENCE; [THE TRIAL COURT's CONCLUSION AS TO THAT QUESTION WILL NOT BE LIGHTLY SET ASIDE].

A. Power to Correct Clerical Error. [See § 131.40[1], Paragraphs A-D.]

B. Power to Determine Character of Error. It is primarily for the trial judge to determine if a decision or order misstated his/her real intention or was an inadvertence, [and the judge's conclusion as to that question will not be lightly set aside] (Minardi v. Collopy (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 348, 352-353, 316 P.2d 952).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a party to an action in support of his or her motion for correction of the judgment rendered therein when that party contends that the court has the power to both correct a clerical error and determine the character of the error claimed. This form may be combined with the points and authorities for use in guiding the court in determining if the error was clerical in nature set forth in § 131.42.

Where appropriate, counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Forms

For comments as to related memoranda of points and authorities and forms of pleading and practice, see the Comments to § 131.40.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power to Determine Character of Error

In Minardi v. Collopy (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 348, 316 P.2d 952 , the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's order amending a written order to conform to a minute order dismissing the petition of certain third-party claimants in an attachment proceeding. The question on appeal was if the court, in making its order, had acted inadvertently rather than in the exercise of judicial discretion. The minute order, on the plaintiff's motion, dismissed the third-party claimant's petition, but the written order prepared by the plaintiff's attorney added language to the effect that the third-party claimants were not entitled to the property involved in the proceeding at the time it was levied on. Later, on motion of the third-party claimant, the written order was corrected to conform to the minute order and the plaintiff appealed. The Supreme Court ruled that the plaintiff's appeal was not well founded for the reason that there was nothing to indicate that the trial court intended its written order to be different from the minute order or that the minute order did not reflect the true intention of the court. The Court held that it is primarily for the trial judge to determine if a decision misstated his real intention and if the judgment as signed was an inadvertence, and his conclusion as to that question will not be lightly set aside.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Power to Determine Character of Error

In Nathanson v. Murphy (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 462, 305 P.2d 710 , the court of appeal affirmed a trial court's order granting a motion to modify its decision and judgment nunc pro tunc. At a hearing on a motion for a new trial in a fraud case after judgment for the plaintiff awarding interest from the date of the fraud, the judge expressed an intent to change the judgment to allow interest only from the date of the judgment but failed to make the change. Since the original order did not correctly state what the judge had expressed as his intent, there was a clerical error and the court of appeal held that the trial court had power to correct it, nunc pro tunc. The court of appeal discussed the decision of the Supreme Court in Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 120 P.2d 9 [see § 131.40[3][c]], as illustrative of how broad the powers of the trial judge are in correcting clerical errors. In that case, the Supreme Court had held that the trial court's finding, on conflicting evidence and the trial judge's statement that his signed findings did not conform to his true but unexpressed intent, was conclusive.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect &

MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesMistakeCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
B. Amendment, Correction, And Modification Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.42

§ 131.42 Supporting Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Court's Power to Correct Clerical Error--Determining if Error Was Clerical

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.40[1].]

A CLERICAL ERROR IS ANY MISTAKE OR OMISSION IN THE RECORD THAT IS NOT REASONABLY ATTRIBUTABLE TO DELIBERATE JUDICIAL REASONING AND DETERMINATION AND IS SHOWN BY ANY COMPETENT EVIDENCE.

A. Power to Correct Clerical Error. [See § 131.40, Paragraphs A, B.]

B. Power to Determine Character of Error. [See § 131.41, Paragraph B.]

C. Distinction Between Clerical and Judicial Error. A clerical error is not necessarily one made by the clerk; it may include an error made by the court. The distinction between a clerical and a judicial error does not depend so much on the person making it as on whether or not it was the deliberate result of judicial reasoning and determination (Estate of Doane (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 68, 71, 41 Cal. Rptr. 165, 396 P.2d 581 ; Pettigrew v. Grand Rent-A-Car (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 210, 201 Cal. Rptr. 125 ; Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 919, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522).

D. Competent Evidence of Clerical Error. The clerical nature of an error in the recording of an order is properly shown by any competent evidence, [including the trial judge's statement based on his/her own recollection, the affidavit of a shorthand reporter, or the rough notes entered by the judge on the original docket] (In re Roberts (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 95, 97-98, 19 Cal. Rptr. 147).

[Optional] E. Judgment Failing to Express Judicial Intent. Where the judgment as signed does not express the court's actual judicial intent but is contrary thereto, the signing of such a purported judgment is a clerical error rather than a judicial one (Zisk v. Roseville (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 41, 47, 127 Cal. Rptr. 896).

[Optional] F. Inadvertent Omissions. A trial court may properly correct and amend a judgement to include matters inadvertently omitted from the judgment (Estate of Soboslay (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 177, 179, 47 P.2d 714 ; Denton v. Denton (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 708, 716, 96 Cal. Rptr. 136).

[Optional] G. Error as Result of Inadvertence. If an error is the result of an inadvertence but for which a different judgment would have been rendered, the error is clerical and the judgment may be corrected to correspond with what it would have been but for the inadvertence (McLellan v. McLellan (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 343, 100 Cal. Rptr. 258).

[Optional] H. Misdescription. When an order or judgment incorrectly records the completed judicial action of a court, the court can correct the clerical error by making an amendment to its judgment or order truly reflecting its action (Chula v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 199, 206, 18 Cal. Rptr. 507, 368 P.2d 107).

[Optional] I. Clarification. A trial court may properly correct and amend a judgment to clarify it by removing a superfluous word when the removal does not alter the meaning or effect of the original (Estate of Careaga (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 471, 474, 39 Cal. Rptr. 215, 393 P.2d 415).

[Optional] J. Judge's Signature to Findings Does Not Establish Error as Judicial. The fact that the judge signed the findings in question does not necessarily establish that an error in the judgment is a judicial error (Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 215, 120 P.2d 9).

[Optional] K. Weight Given to Judge's Declaration of Intent. In determining whether an error is clerical or judicial, great weight should be placed on the judge's declaration of his or her intent in signing the order (Estate of Doane (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 68, 71, 41 Cal. Rptr. 165, 396 P.2d 581 ; Bowden v. Green (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 65, 71, 180 Cal. Rptr. 90).

[Optional] L. Judgment Failing to Conform to Decision. A judgment which fails to conform to the decision as a result of the clerk's having entered an order contrary to the court's direction is a judgment entered as a result of a clerical error (Talman v. Talman (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 799, 809-810, 53 Cal. Rptr. 514).

[Optional] M. Trial Court's Finding Based on Conflicting Evidence. The trial court's finding on conflicting evidence that a clerical error exists and the nature thereof is conclusive on appeal (Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 215, 120 P.2d 9).

[Optional] N. Judge's Knowledge and Recollection of Facts. In vacating or correcting a clerical error, the trial judge may consider the facts within his or her personal knowledge and give effect to his or her recollection (Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 215, 120 P.2d 9).

[Optional] O. Inadvertent Judgment in Excess of Amount Limited by Law. The inadvertent making and entry of a money judgment in excess of the amount limited by law is a clerical error and may be corrected by the court (Pettigrew v. Grand Rent-A-Car (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 210-211, 201 Cal. Rptr. 125).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a party to an action in support of his or her motion for correction of a clerical error contained in the judgment rendered therein. This form contains points and authorities supporting the moving party's contention that the claimed error was clerical in nature.

Counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Forms

For comments as to related memoranda of points and authorities and forms of pleading and practice, see the Comments to § 131.40.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Distinction Between Clerical and Judicial Error

Estate of Doane (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 68, 41 Cal. Rptr. 165, 396 P.2d 581 , is discussed in § 131.42[3][i].

In Pettigrew v. Grand Rent-A-Car (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 201 Cal. Rptr. 125 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.40[3][c], the court of appeal stated that a clerical error by a judge, as distinguished from a judicial error, is one that cannot reasonably be attributed to exercise of judicial consideration or discretion. The term "clerical error" covers all errors, mistakes, or omissions that are not the result of the exercise of the judicial function. In deciding that the trial court had not abused its discretion in modifying a money judgment that was in excess of the amount limited by law, the court of appeal stated that the entry of the excessive amount was not the deliberate result of judicial reasoning and determination and could not reasonably be attributed to the exercise of judicial consideration or discretion (154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 210-211) .

In Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.20[3][b], the court of appeal stated that a clerical error is not necessarily one made by the clerk--it may include an error made by the judge or the court. The entry of a judgment generally is deemed a clerical act. The distinction between a clerical error and a judicial error, however, does not depend so much on the person making it as on whether or not it was the deliberate result of judicial reasoning and determination. In the case at issue, the error, consisting of an order for a stay of judgment (instead of a stay of execution), was clerical and was one which in its origin was shared by the court and opposing counsel. Although the clerk, by a minute entry, put down exactly what the parties had said (stay of judgment) and not what they had intended to say (stay of execution), it could not be said that such an error was the result of deliberate judicial reasoning and determination.

[b] Competent Evidence of Clerical Error

In In re Roberts (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 95, 19 Cal. Rptr. 147 , the court of appeal denied a writ of habeas corpus, holding that the trial court had the right to correct its records nunc pro tunc to show that the petitioners had been advised of their legal rights. The petitioners contended that they were illegally confined since, at their arraignment, they had not been advised of their legal rights. The record showed that the day after the petitioners filed the application for habeas corpus, the trial court made an order correcting the docket entries nunc pro tunc to show that they had been so advised.

An examination of the trial judge's rough notes, on which the original docket entries were based, clearly disclosed that the clerk had erred in those entries by failing to show that petitioners had been advised of their legal rights and that fact was substantiated by the clerk's testimony at the habeas corpus hearing. It was apparent from the judge's notes that a very brief summary of the proceedings had been set forth therein and even those were not correctly reflected in the original entries made by the clerk. That the corrections were to be considered clerical was also borne out by the original notations made on the complaints, which differed from the docket entries. Moreover, the petitioners, who were represented by counsel in the habeas corpus hearings, had full opportunity to present contrary evidence. On the conflict between the petitioners' statements and that of the judge, the judge who heard the matter found in favor of the trial judge's credibility. The court of appeal held that the error in the entries on the court's docket or minutes may be shown by any competent evidence, including the trial judge's statement based on his own recollection or even the affidavit of a shorthand reporter and, based on the record, including the judge's rough notes, concluded that the petition should be denied.

[c] Judgment Failing to Express Judicial Intent

In Zisk v. Roseville (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 41, 127 Cal. Rptr. 896 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment adverse to a plaintiff property owner in a land use case, ruling that the action of the trial judge in vacating his original judgement of dismissal of the property owner's complaint was a valid exercise of the trial court's power to correct clerical errors. In his order vacating the original judgment, the judge described it as being contrary to the prior decision of the court and as being incomplete. The attorney for the defendant city who had drafted the judgment failed to include in it a statement that the demurrer of the individual defendants had been sustained and that judgement was in their favor as well as the city's. The court of appeal stated that this was clearly contrary to the judge's prior ruling on the demurrers, demonstrating beyond doubt that the error was clerical. Where the judgment as signed does not express the court's actual judicial intent, but is contrary thereto, the signing of such a purported judgment is a clerical error rather than a judicial one, the court held.

[d] Inadvertent Omissions

In Estate of Soboslay (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 177, 47 P.2d 714 , the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's judgment decreeing distribution of an estate after overruling objections to the executors' final account. Because the executors had inadvertently failed to deduct certain paid claims in computing their initial final account which was the basis for the original decree of distribution, a motion was filed to vacate the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. However, instead of hearing the motion, and on its own motion, the trial court made an order setting aside the original decree and filed an amended decree. On appeal it was contended that the amendment was not in compliance with statute and was void. However, the Court held that the amendment was not a judicial act. The trial court merely corrected an error of omission in the account and decree of distribution, by reference to the record in the case. The power of the court to correct such clerical errors on its own motion, said the Court, is well recognized.

In Denton v. Denton (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 708, 96 Cal. Rptr. 136 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's postjudgment order amending its record, decree, and judgment. The original decree included a direction that certain community property be sold and that part of the proceeds be paid to the wife's counsel and accountant. The record indicated that the list of such property had been amended during a settlement conference after the court's minute order and before final judgment. Before the amendment, the list had included property sufficient to pay the fees but, afterwards, the property involved was of insufficient value. In its declaration accompanying the postjudgment order, the court stated that it had intended that the husband should pay the fees and that it had been unaware of the insufficiency. The court of appeal noted that a trial court has power to vacate judgments and orders inadvertently made which are not actually the result of the exercise of judgment. In determining if an error is clerical, great weight should be placed on the judge's declaration concerning his intention in signing the order. In the case at issue, said the court of appeal, the trial court's finding that the error was clerical had support in the record aside from the court's declaration in its postjudgment order. Inadvertently, the trial court omitted a sentence to cover the change in the list of property. Because it was clear that the trial court did not intend that the wife should shoulder the payment of the fees, since it had found that she did not have sufficient funds to do so but that the husband did, the court was bound by the trail court's finding that the error was clerical and, accordingly, concluded that the error was corrected legally.

[e] Error as Result of Inadvertence

In McLellan v. McLellan (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 343, 100 Cal. Rptr. 258 , the court of appeal affirmed the action of the trial court in modifying its judgment to include an award of costs to the plaintiff, concluding that the omission of costs was the result of inadvertence and, hence, a clerical error which the court had power to correct. After the entry of a supplemental judgment, the plaintiff filed a cost bill. The defendant moved to tax costs, asserting that the plaintiff was not entitled to costs under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1032. The plaintiff then filed a motion for an order modifying the judgment to include an award of costs. After a hearing, the court granted the motion, stating in its order that it was the court's intention to award costs to the plaintiff as the prevailing party and that due to inadvertence, costs were not expressly included in the supplemental judgment. The court of appeal ruled that under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, if an error is the result of inadvertence but for which a different judgment would have been rendered, the error is clerical and the judgment may be corrected to correspond with what it would have been but for the inadvertence. It is primarily for the trial court to determine whether the error was an inadvertence, and its conclusion as to this issue will not lightly be set aside, said the court.

[f] Misdescription

In Chula v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 199, 18 Cal. Rptr. 507, 368 P.2d 107 , the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's judgment of contempt against an attorney, holding, among other matters, that the trial court validly amended its judgment to correct its order to delete the word "defendant" describing the person to be taken into custody and to substitute the attorney's name. The Supreme Court observed that when an order or judgment incorrectly records a court's completed judicial action, the court can correct clerical errors by making an amendment to its order truly reflecting the court's action. The original order showed completed judicial action; however, there was clerical error in that it ordered the "defendant" taken into custody, while in fact the trial court ordered the attorney to be taken into custody. Therefore, the Court concluded, it was proper for the trial court to correct its clerical error.

[g] Clarification

In Estate of Careaga (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 471, 474, 39 Cal. Rptr. 215, 393 P.2d 415 , the Supreme Court affirmed the amendment nunc pro tunc of a final decree of distribution. The amendment struck the word "such" from a portion of the original decree which distributed a life estate to each living child of the decedent with remainders to their children or on failure of "such" issue then to others. However, the will was unambiguous and provided that the remainder was to vest in the life tenant's children per stirpes and only in the absence or failure of all issue given life tenant was the remainder of the life estate to be distributed to others. It was clear, the Court ruled, that a court, by means of a nunc pro tunc order, can clarify a decree by removing a superfluous word when its removal does not alter the meaning or legal effect of the original decree. Such a correction is clerical. The Court added that if the removal of the word "such" changed the legal effect of the decree, then the evidence would not support a finding that the word's inclusion was a mere clerical error. However, the Court stated in the case at issue, the two decrees had the same meaning.

[h] Judge's Signature to Findings Does Not Establish Error as Judicial

In Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 120 P.2d 9 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.40[3][c], the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's order setting aside and amending a judgment, concluding that the error which the court corrected was not a judicial error. The trial judge's declaration in the vacating order was that the findings and judgment did not conform to and set forth the true judgment rendered. The Supreme Court noted that a minute entry had been made shortly after the trial in which judgment was ordered for defendants. While that entry was not the decision or judgment and was not binding, it was evidence of the court's intention as to the decision, findings of fact, and conclusions of law that the judge intended ultimately to make. The Court inferred therefrom that the trial judge's intent was the same when he in fact did sign contrary findings and that the signing thereof was a clerical error. Accordingly, the Court ruled that the signing of findings does not necessarily establish that an error in a judgment is a judicial one.

[i] Weight Given to Judge's Declaration of Intent

In Estate of Doane (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 68, 41 Cal. Rptr. 165, 396 P.2d 581 , the Supreme Court reversed that part of the trial court's order settling a trustee's final account and distributing an estate based on the trial court's erroneous conclusion that a variance in the decree of preliminary distribution from the terms of the will, although not intended by the court which had declared its general intention to conform to the terms of the will, was judicial error which it could not correct. The Supreme Court ruled that the error in the order for preliminary distribution was a clerical error. Independent of statute, a trial court has power to correct mistakes and to annul orders and judgments inadvertently or improvidently made and which are not actually the result of the exercise of judgment. In reaching its decision, the court applied the following rules. The distinction between clerical error and a judicial error does not depend so much on the person making it as it does on whether or not it was the deliberate result of judicial reasoning and determination. In determining whether an error is clerical or judicial, great weight should be placed on the judge's declaration concerning his intention in signing the order. Applying these rules, it was apparent that the trial judge's statement that he intended his judgment to conform to the terms of the will compelled a determination that the error was clerical and not judicial.

Bowden v. Green (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 65, 180 Cal. Rptr. 90 , was an action for payment on a promissory note securing the sale of a liquor business. Defendants filed a cross complaint against plaintiffs, seeking damages for alleged fraud by plaintiffs during the negotiations surrounding the sale of the business. The judgment included an order that defendants take nothing by way of their cross complaint. Almost one year after entry of final judgment, defendants filed a motion to correct judgment, claiming that the portion of the judgment that defendants take nothing by way of their cross complaint had been entered into the judgment inadvertently. Defendants supported their motion with a declaration by the original trial judge in the action, who had since resigned from the bench, stating that the disputed portion of the judgment had not come to his attention when he signed it, and that he had not meant to include it in the judgment. Plaintiffs countered with evidence that defendants had stipulated to dismissal of the cross complaint. The trial court dismissed the motion.

The court of appeal reversed. Addressing the question of whether or not entry of the disputed portion of the judgment had been clerical error, the court noted that the issue was one of the judge's intent in entering the judgment and that the best evidence of the judge's intent is the judge's own statement, either express or implied from the order of correction. Thus, when the record permits inference of clerical error, the judge's affidavit or declaration will be extremely persuasive on appeal. In the present case, no evidence was presented that the trial judge ever knew of the agreement between counsel to dismiss the cross complaint. Thus, even though the judgment may have reflected the secret agreement of the attorneys, it did not reflect the intent of the judge in entering the judgment. Inasmuch as the judge's declaration that he had not intended to enter the judgment portion was not rebutted, the court had no basis for concluding that the portion of the judgment had been other than a clerical error (128 Cal. App. 3d 65, 71-72) .

[j] Judgment Failing to Conform to Decision

In Talman v. Talman (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 799, 53 Cal. Rptr. 514 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's orders concerning payments to be made pursuant to an integrated property settlement, even though the orders varied from the clerk's entry, since the entry was contrary to the court's direction. The trial court had pronounced an order on February 21, but on February 24, pronounced an order vacating and setting aside the first paragraph of its first order and setting the issues involved for further hearing. The latter order was entered two days later and was tantamount to a direction by the judge to the clerk not to enter the first paragraph of the earlier order. The clerk's entry of the disputed paragraph on the minutes of the court was made in disregard of the court's direction. Accordingly, the court of appeal held that the entry did not correctly portray the record as the trial court had directed it to speak. Since the clerk entered an order contrary to the court's direction, the court of appeal held that the trial court had the power to amend the order to conform to that which it had ordered to be made.

[k] Trial Court's Finding Based on Conflicting Evidence

In Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 120 P.2d 9 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.40[3][c], and in § 131.42[3][h], the Supreme Court ruled that the trial court's finding, which was based on conflicting evidence, that a clerical error existed and that nature thereof was conclusive.

[l] Judge's Knowledge and Recollection of Facts

In Bastajian v. Brown (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 209, 120 P.2d 9 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.40[3][c], and in § 131.42[3][h]. the Supreme Court ruled that the facts within the personal knowledge of the judge may be considered, and in vacating or correcting clerical error or mistake, the judge may give effect to his own recollection.

[m] Inadvertent Judgment in Excess of Amount Limited by Law

In Pettigrew v. Grand Rent-A-Car (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 201 Cal. Rptr. 125 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.40[3][c], and discussed in § 131.42[3][c], the court of appeal held that the original entry of an award for $150,000, in excess of the legal limit of $15,000, was the result of inadvertence on the part of the court and was not a result of judicial reasoning or discretion. Thus, the court held that it was a clerical error and could be corrected by the court under its statutory and inherent power to correct such errors (154 Cal. App. 3d 204, 211-212) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Competent Evidence of Clerical Error

In In re Marriage of Sheridan (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 742, 189 Cal. Rptr. 622 , the interlocutory judgment filed in a dissolution action ordered the former husband to pay spousal support to the former wife for a period of five years but contained no provision reserving the court's jurisdiction over spousal support. At the end of the five-year period, the former wife moved to modify spousal support provisions, and the former husband opposed the motion on the ground that the court's jurisdiction over spousal support had terminated. The trial court issued an order modifying the judgment of dissolution to include a reservation of jurisdiction over spousal support but declined to award the former wife any monetary support under the circumstances shown. The former wife appealed from the order insofar as it failed to award her spousal support, and the former husband cross appealed, contesting the court's modification of the judgment to include an indefinite reservation of jurisdiction over spousal support. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order, finding that both the trial court's minutes and a partial transcript of the court proceedings giving rise to the interlocutory judgment unequivocally showed that the omission of a provision reserving the court's jurisdiction over spousal support was a clerical error (140 Cal. App. 3d 742, 745) . When a judgment as signed does not express, and is contrary to, the actual judicial intention of the court, the signing of such a purported judgment is a clerical rather than a judicial error (140 Cal. App. 3d 742, 746) .

[b] Judgment Failing to Express Judicial Intent

In Southern Pacific Pipe Lines, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 42, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 345 , the court of appeal modified a judgment for a tax refund to prevent taxpayers from asserting a statute of limitations defense and avoid paying any taxes on the money refunded. The trial court intended to allow the levy of escape assessments on the taxpayers' properties for all tax years in dispute once the refunds were ordered, but failed to adopt a proposed stipulation that tolled the statute of limitations. The court of appeal noted that the judgment should be liberally construed to further the trial court's manifest intent particularly if an ambiguity is the result of oversight or inadvertence. Accordingly, the court of appeal directed the trial court to enter an amended judgment stating that the taxpayers will not assert any statute of limitations defense to allow for escape assessments for all tax years in dispute (14 Cal. App. 4th 42, 57) .

[c] Judgment Failing to Conform to Decision

In Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318 , the court of appeal modified a judgment for specific performance in favor of a purchaser of real property to correct a mathematical error. After noting its power to modify a judgment containing a clerical error, the court of appeal considered appellant's claim that the doctrine of invited error applied. The court said that, because the findings of fact set forth in the statement of decision clearly showed the amount of the purchase price payable and the amount of and reasons for the offsets in favor of the purchaser, the error was merely an error in drafting and therefore of a clerical nature. The court has power to correct such an error whether it is made by the court, the clerk, or counsel (182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 506-508) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesMistakeCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
B. Amendment, Correction, And Modification Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.43

§ 131.43 Supporting Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Court's Power to Correct Clerical Error--Power to Antedate Record of Judgment Nunc Pro Tunc

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.40[1].]

THE TRIAL COURT HAS THE POWER TO ANTEDATE THE RECORDING OF A JUDGMENT NUNC PRO TUNC TO EXPRESS THE COURT's INTENT CONCERNING WHEN THE JUDGMENT SHOULD TAKE EFFECT.

A. Power to Correct Clerical Error. [See § 131.40[1], Paragraphs A, B.]

[Optional] B. Power to Determine Character of Error. [See § 131.41[1].]

C. Grounds for Antedating Nunc Pro Tunc. A judgment may be antedated nunc pro tunc either for: (1) the preservation of the legitimate fruits of the litigation which would otherwise be lost to the prevailing party; (2) the correction of a deficiency in the recording of a previous decision to express the court's true intention as of the earlier date; or (3) the correction of a clerical error (Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 919, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522).

[Optional] D. Order Proper Regardless of Lapse of Time. An order may be made correcting a judgment nunc pro tunc as of its original date to make it conform to the judicial decision actually made regardless of the lapse of time (LaMar v. Superior Court (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 129-130, 196 P.2d 98).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to correct a clerical error in a judgment when counsel desires not only to have the record of judgment corrected but also, as is usually the case, to have it corrected nunc pro tunc. As indicated by the optional Paragraph B, it may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities indicating the power of the court to determine the character of the error and a memorandum of points and authorities for use in determining if the error was clerical, and it should be combined with the general authority for the entry of judgment nunc pro tunc set forth in § 131.20.

The general rationale for the correction of clerical errors is that the record of the judgment should speak the truth while one specific rationale for the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc is the preservation of the legitimate fruits of the litigation which would otherwise be lost to the prevailing party. Essentially, correction to speak the truth functions to preserve the legitimate fruits of the litigation, and it can be argued that any correction of a clerical error should always be made nunc pro tunc. However, entry nunc pro tunc may be refused when not required by the considerations of justice [Norton v. Pomona (1935) 5 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 53 P.2d 952] or if it would be unconscionable to do so [Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 920, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522] .

Where appropriate, counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Forms

For comments as to related memoranda of points and authorities and forms of pleading and practice, see the Comments to § 131.40.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Grounds for Antedating Nunc Pro Tunc

Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522 , is discussed in § 131.20[3][a].

[b] Order Proper Regardless of Lapse of Time

In LaMar v. Superior Court (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 196 P.2d 98 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.40[3][f], the court of appeal stated that an order may be made correcting a judgment nunc pro tunc as of its original date without notice and on the court's own motion to make it conform to the judicial decision actually made, and this is true regardless of the lapse of time.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Grounds for Antedating Nunc Pro Tunc

Commonwealth Land Title Co. v. Kornbluth (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 220 Cal. Rptr. 774 , is discussed in § 131.40[4][a]. In Commonwealth, plaintiffs had assigned their respective rights, titles, and interests in a judgment to a title company, which applied for a writ of execution and for permission to sell certain of the property covered by two of five abstracts. The trial court granted the application and ordered the writ of execution to issue. On appeal by the current owners, the court of appeal reversed the orders, finding the trial court had failed to marshal defendant's assets in the proper manner. The omission of the date of entry of judgment from one of the five abstracts did not void that abstract, because the omission constituted an inadvertent clerical error that could be corrected by the trial court. Furthermore, the court held that when clerical errors in a judgment or order are corrected by a court under its inherent power, the order of correction may, if necessary, be made nunc pro tunc as of the time of the original entry. Additionally, an appellate court may direct a trial court to make an order nunc pro tunc. Accordingly, the court directed the trial court to correct the abstract to show the date on which the judgment was entered (175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 531) .

[b] Order Proper Regardless of Lapse of Time

The facts and procedural background of Commonwealth Land Title Co. v. Kornbluth (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 220 Cal. Rptr. 774 , are discussed in § 131.43[4][a]. In Commonwealth, the court of appeal held that when clerical errors in a judgment or order are corrected by a court under its inherent power, the order of correction may be made nunc pro tunc as of the time of the original entry. Citing LaMar v. Superior Court (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 129, 196 P.2d 98 , the court also held that the correction may be made regardless of lapse of time (175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 531) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesMistakeCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
B. Amendment, Correction, And Modification Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.44

§ 131.44 Opposing Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Presumption of Judgment's Correctness and Regularity

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
vs.	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO CORRECT
_____ [name],	)	ERROR IN JUDGMENT
Defendant.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 473]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

OFFICIAL DUTY IS PRESUMED TO BE REGULARLY PERFORMED, AND, THEREFORE, THE PARTY SEEKING TO CORRECT AN ERROR IN A JUDGMENT HAS THE BURDEN OF PROVING THAT THE ERROR WAS A CLERICAL ONE.

A. Presumption of Regular Performance of Official Duty. Official duty is presumed to be regularly performed (Evid. Code § 664).

B. Rebuttable Presumption. The presumption that official duty is regularly performed is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof (Evid. Code § 660).

C. Effect of Presumption Affecting Burden of Proof. The effect of a presumption affecting the burden of proof is to impose on the party against whom it operates the burden of proof as to the nonexistence of the presumed facts (Evid. Code § 606).

D. Effect of Presumption Affecting Burden of Proof. The effect of a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence is to require the trier of fact to assume the existence of the presumed fact unless and until evidence is introduced which would support a finding of its nonexistence, in which case the trier of fact shall determine the existence or nonexistence of the presumed fact from the evidence and without regard to the presumption (Evid. Code § 604).

E. Presumption That Judgment Was One Intended. An order made by the court is presumed to be that intended in the absence of contrary evidence (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 548, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652).

F. Burden of Proving Clerical Error. The burden of proving that an error in a judgment is a clerical error is on the party seeking the correction (Smith v. Smith (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 658, 662, 321 P.2d 886).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities is a general form which may be submitted in opposition to a motion to correct an alleged clerical error in a judgment. It sets out statutory and case authority for the point of law that the moving party has the burden of showing that the error is a clerical one.

Where appropriate, counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Presumption That Judgment Was One Intended

In Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , the Supreme Court reversed a trial court's order purporting to correct a decree of distribution of a decedent's estate nunc pro tunc, holding that the original decree was the one the court had intended to make and that a trial court cannot change an order, even though made in error, if the order was the one the court intended. The nunc pro tunc order purported to correct the decree by eliminating a provision for deduction of a certain sum for the trustee's distributive share for federal estate tax purposes. The order asserted that the deleted provision was a clerical mistake since it charged the trustee with its share of federal estate taxes with which payment it had previously been credited, and that the decree as entered was not the one the court ought to have pronounced on the facts established. The only matters bearing on the question of the judge's intentions were the petition for, proceedings on, and the judgment of, final distribution, all of which indicated that the trial judge performed an intentional, if erroneous, act. The decree complied strictly with the prayer of the petition. Both were prepared by the trustee and the decree was approved by the attorneys for the other beneficiaries and the probate commissioner. There was nothing of significance to indicate that the court intended to make a different decree, other than the conclusion that the court ought to have done so. The moving party failed to call as a witness the trial judge, who was available and who could have testified about an intention other than that appearing of record, if he had entertained such an intention. The order made, the Court held, is presumed to be that intended, in the absence of contrary evidence, and the fact of error alone cannot rebut that presumption. Accordingly, the Court concluded that the claimed error was judicial in nature and that the judgment as originally made was that intended.

[b] Burden of Proving Clerical Error

In Smith v. Smith (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 658, 321 P.2d 886 , the court of appeal affirmed an order denying plaintiff's motion to change a minute order and judgment based thereon by incorporating a property settlement agreement. On reviewing the trial court's analysis of the record and its conclusion that there was no clerical error, the court of appeal concluded that the reasonable interpretation thereof was that the court believed the clerk had fully and correctly recorded the order. Considering the factual aspects of the case, the court of appeal stated that the moving party (the plaintiff in this case) carries the burden of proving that the clerk's minutes contained a clerical error. The applicable presumptions that official duty has been regularly performed and that the court's minutes are correct, while disputable, are in themselves evidence and will support a finding made in accordance with them, even though there is evidence to the contrary. It is elementary that it is the function of the trial court to pass on the credibility of the witnesses and the affidavits but, said the court, it was clear from the trial court's discussion that it did not give full credence to the plaintiff's affidavits.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesMistakeCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
B. Amendment, Correction, And Modification Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.45

§ 131.45 Opposing Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Not Subject to Correction--Judicial Error

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.44[1].]

THE COURT's POWER TO CORRECT SUMMARILY ERROR IN THE RECORD OF A JUDGMENT PURSUANT TO SECTION 473(d) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE DOES NOT EXTEND TO JUDICIAL ERROR; IT IS LIMITED TO CLERICAL ERROR.

A. Power to Correct Error in Judgment. [See § 131.40[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Correcting Judicial Error. Although a trial court can correct its own inadvertence or clerical error, it can correct judicial error only on a motion for new trial or on a motion under Section 663 of the Code of Civil Procedure to vacate the order or judgment and enter a different one (Greene v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 403, 405-406, 10 Cal. Rptr. 817, 359 P.2d 249).

C. Judicial Error Under Guise of Clerical Error. The trial court has no authority, under the guise of amending a clerical error, to correct a judicial error; it is only when the form of the judgment fails to coincide with the substance thereof, as intended at the time the judgment was rendered, that a corrective order can reach it (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 545, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652).

D. Judicial Error Defined. A judicial error is any mistake or omission which occurs in the rendition of an order or judgment and is the fault of an exercise of judicial discretion (Phillips v. Trusheim (1945) 25 Cal. 2d 913, 916, 156 P.2d 25 ; Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 919, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522).

[Optional] E. Misconstruction of Facts as Judicial Error. The court's failure to correctly apply the facts is judicial error (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 545, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652).

[Optional] F. Misconception or Misapplication of Law as Judicial Error. The court's failure to correctly interpret the law is judicial error (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 545, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652).

[Optional] G. Court Misled by Counsel. If the court came to the conclusion resulting in the judgment as a result of having been misled by counsel, the error is judicial (Lankton v. Superior Court (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 696, 55 P.2d 1170).

[Optional] H. Enlargement of Original Decision. An amendment of a judgment which does not amend the already entered judgment to make it conform to the decision which the court actually rendered, but rather, attempts to amend by modifying and enlarging the original judgment is beyond the court's power; the court may not make the judgment express anything not embraced in the court's decision, even though the proposed amendment contains matter which ought to have been so pronounced (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 544, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 ; Bowman v. Bowman (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 808, 813, 178 P.2d 751).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for the correction of an alleged clerical error in a judgment when the opposing party contends that what is really being sought is the correction of a judicial error which may not be done on motion for correction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(d), 663]. Thus, this form makes the points that the court's power to correct is limited to clerical error and sets forth points and authorities defining and describing judicial error.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Correcting Judicial Error

In Greene v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 403, 10 Cal. Rptr. 817, 359 P.2d 249 , the Supreme Court issued a writ of prohibition to restrain the superior court from giving effect to its order setting aside the order of the superior court of another county which had reduced monthly alimony payments pendente lite. The Court ruled that the motion to vacate, under which the second superior court had set aside the prior court's order on the ground that the order was beyond the court's authority, was an improper remedy. An order granting temporary alimony is directly appealable as a final judgment and may be directly attacked in the trial court under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the Court stated. However, the Court held that although the trial court can correct its own inadvertence or clerical error or set aside a judgment or order obtained through extrinsic fraud, it can correct judicial error only on a motion for a new trial or on a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 663 to vacate the order or judgment and enter a different one.

[b] Judicial Error Under Guise of Clerical Error

In Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.44[3][c], the Supreme Court noted that broad language in cited prior cases would impress on all judicial errors the clerical label if the judgment, as entered, were characterized as "not the sentence which the law ought to have pronounced" without regard for the court's intention in rendering the judgment. Carried to its logical conclusion, the Court stated, this theory would give to a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 the efficacy of a motion for a new trial or an appeal long after the time for such action had expired. Even if not carried to such an extreme, correcting a judgment to what it ought to have been would permit the court in each instance to determine that a particular judicial error, although resulting in an order or judgment the court intended to make, might be presumed to be a clerical misprision in order that the court could do what should have been done on motion for a new trial or on appeal. Neither of these results lie within the purview of either Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)) or any inherent power of the court to correct its own error, the Court stated.

[c] Judicial Error Defined

In Phillips v. Trusheim (1945) 25 Cal. 2d 913, 156 P.2d 25 , the Supreme Court reversed an order vacating a judgment and dismissing an action as to one defendant. The Court noted that if the judgment was entered through the trial court's inadvertence or improvidence, the trial court had the power, independent of statute, to correct the mistake by amending or setting aside the judgment, since this presents no question of judicial review on the merits. However, the Court continued, judicial error which occurs in the rendition of orders or judgments, which is the fault of an exercise of judicial discretion, may not be corrected except by statutory procedure.

In Young v. Gardner-Denver Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 915, 53 Cal. Rptr. 522 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.20[3][b], the court of appeal stated that the distinction between a clerical error and a judicial error does not depend so much on the person making it as on whether or not the error was the deliberate result of judicial reasoning and determination.

[d] Misconstruction of Facts

In Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.44[3][a], the Supreme Court stated that clerical errors do not include those made by the court because of its failure to correctly interpret the law or apply the facts. It is only when the form of the judgment fails to coincide with the substance thereof, as intended at the time of the rendition of the judgment, that it can be reached by a corrective nunc pro tunc order, the Court added.

[e] Misconstruction or Misapplication of Law

Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , is discussed in § 131.45[3][d].

[f] Court Misled by Counsel

In Lankton v. Superior Court (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 55 P.2d 1170 , the Supreme Court issued a writ of prohibition preventing the trial court from modifying its judgment after the time for appeal therefrom and for a motion for a new trial had elapsed, holding that there was no showing that the judgment had been rendered through clerical error and that, accordingly, the trial court was without authority to modify the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)). The trial court had modified its judgment to reduce the amount thereof, having come to the conclusion on the argument of the motion to modify that it was without authority to enter a judgment exceeding the reduced amount. The Supreme Court pointed out that the original judgment was the identical judgment which the trial court intended to render. There was no mistake in its entry, and it expressed in apt and definite terms the conclusion at which the trial court arrived during the trial. The Court further stated that if the trial court misconstrued the evidence before it, misapplied the law applicable to the facts disclosed by the evidence, or even was misled by counsel, such an error was in no sense a clerical error which could thereafter be corrected by the court on its own motion or in any proceeding except on motion for a new trial.

[g] Enlargement of Original Decision

In Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.44[3][a], the Supreme Court ruled that a trial court cannot change an order which has become final even though made in error, if in fact the order made was that intended to be made. The function of nunc pro tunc order is merely to correct the record of the judgment and not to alter the judgment actually rendered. Citing an earlier case, it noted that a nunc pro tunc order was held without legal force because it did not by its terms amend the already entered judgment to make the latter conform to the decision which the court originally rendered but attempted to amend by new modifications and enlargements the judgment which the court had originally rendered. This, it was noted, the court was not empowered to do since it may not make the judgment express anything not embraced in the court's decision, even though the proposed amendment contains matters which ought to have been so pronounced.

In Bowman v. Bowman (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 808, 178 P.2d 751 , the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment and an order restoring to a prior interlocutory judgment the words "for the benefit of plaintiff and said minor child" that had been stricken by an intervening order, pursuant to a motion for correction on the ground that the relief granted was in excess of the prayer, holding that the modification could not be based on the trial court's statutory power to correct clerical errors. The defendant, who had sought the order striking the phrase involved, contended that he was seeking a modification of the judgment to make it correspond to the relief plaintiff requested in her complaint. He conceded, however, that the interlocutory judgment was rendered precisely as the trial judge intended. Since the judgment was so rendered, held the Court, the modification could not be based on the trial court's power, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)) or independent of it, to correct clerical errors made by either the clerk or the court.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judicial Error Under Guise of Clerical Error

In Drinkhouse v. Van Ness (1927) 202 Cal. 359, 260 P. 869 , the Supreme Court declared as null and void an order made by the trial court purporting to amend a prior order granting a new trial to deny a new trial to the defendant and grant it to an intervenor only. The Court noted that if the order entered is not the order made, the records may be corrected to make the entry speak the truth. But, the Court held, the trial court has no authority, under the guise of an amendment, to correct a judicial error or make of record an order that was never made. Yet, said the Court, that was precisely what the trial court had attempted. The later order did not purport to correct the entry of the first order, nor was there anything on its face or in the record from which it could be gathered that such was its purpose.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesMistakeCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
B. Amendment, Correction, And Modification Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.46

§ 131.46 Opposing Motion to Correct Clerical Error in Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]--Judgment Not Subject to Correction Absent Showing of Clerical Error

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.44[1].]

ABSENT A SATISFACTORY SHOWING OF CLERICAL ERROR IN THE RECORD OF THE JUDGMENT, THE COURT MAY NOT UNDERTAKE ANY CORRECTION OF THE RECORD.

A. Burden of Proving Clerical Error [See § 131.44[1], Paragraphs E, F.]

B. Correction Only as Statute Prescribes. The court may not modify or otherwise amend its judgment except as statute prescribes (Bowman v. Bowman (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 808, 814, 178 P.2d 751).

C. Original Judgment Was One Intended. The trial court cannot change a judgment or order which has become final, even though made in error, if, in fact, the order or judgment made was that intended (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 544-545, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652).

D. Correction Only to Conform to Truth. A court's inherent and statutory right to cause its acts and proceedings to be correctly set forth in its records, where such records fail to indicate the order or direction in fact made, is exercisable only for the purpose of ascertaining and reflecting the truth (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 547, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652).

E. Truth Ascertained From Court's Intention. In correcting clerical errors in a judgment to correctly set forth a court's acts and proceedings, the truth must be ascertained from the trial judge's intention in making the original order (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 547, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652).

F. Mere Recital of Clerical Error Not Conclusive. The mere recital that there had been a clerical error is not conclusive of either the fact or the nature of the error (Estate of Burnett (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 259, 262, 79 P.2d 89 ; Nacht v. Nacht (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 254, 262, 334 P.2d 275).

G. Insufficient Showing of Clerical Error. A court has no authority to correct a judgment in the absence of anything significant indicating that the court intended to render a different judgment (Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 547-548, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to correct a claimed clerical error in a judgment when it is contended by the party submitting this form that in the absence of a satisfactory showing of clerical error, the court may not undertake any correction of the record.

Where appropriate, counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Correction Only as Statute Prescribes

In Bowman v. Bowman (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 808, 178 P.2d 751 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.45[3][g], the Supreme Court ruled that the purported change in the judgment, which was the matter in dispute on appeal, was void. In making the change, the Court noted, the trial court had made an attempt to rectify a supposed error of law on a summary motion procedure not allowed by statute. The Court held that trial courts can modify or amend their judgments only as statute prescribes and Code Civ. Proc. § 473 does not authorize the summary modification of judgments to correct errors.

[b] Original Judgment Was One Intended

In Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.44[3][a], the Supreme Court reversed a trial court's order purporting to correct a decree of distribution. In so ruling, the Court observed that a court can always correct a clerical, as distinguished from a judicial, error which appears on the face of a decree by a nunc pro tunc order. It cannot, however, change an order which has become final, even though made in error, if in fact the order made was that intended to be made, the Court ruled. The function of a nunc pro tunc order is not to alter the judgment actually rendered but to enter now for then an order previously made. The question presented to the court on a hearing of a motion for such an order is: what order was in fact made at the time by the trial judge? It is only when the form of the judgment fails to coincide with the substance thereof, as intended at the time of the rendition of the judgment, that it can be reached by a corrective order, the Court added.

[c] Correction Only to Conform to Truth

In Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.44[3][a], in reversing a trial court order purporting to correct a decree of distribution, the Supreme Court stated that it could not be denied that there is both an inherent and a statutory duty for a court to cause its acts and proceedings to be correctly set forth in its records where such records fail to indicate the order or direction in fact made. By its very nature, however, the right is exercisable only for the purpose of ascertaining and reflecting the truth and in most instances, the truth must be ascertained from the trial judge's intention in making his original order. Since the only matters bearing on the question of the judge's intentions in the case at issue all indicated that the trial judge performed an intentional, if erroneous, act, and since there was a presumption that the order was that intended, the Court concluded that the judgment as originally made was that intended to have been made.

[d] Truth Ascertained From Court's Intention

Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , on this issue, is discussed in § 131.46[3][c].

[e] Mere Recital of Clerical Error Not Conclusive

In Estate of Burnett (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 259, 79 P.2d 89 , the Supreme Court reversed a nunc pro tunc order of the superior court which purported to correct a prior order admitting a will and codicil to probate by admitting another, subsequent will to probate. The second will was merely filed without any petition for probate. The Court held that the superior court's recital in the nunc pro tunc order that a clerical error had crept into its first order is not conclusive of either the fact or the nature of the error. The Court added that although such an order which rests on evidence in which there is a substantial conflict will not be disturbed on appeal, where the facts on which the court acted are undisputed and only one conclusion can be drawn from them, the appellate court is not bound by the order made below.

In Nacht v. Nacht (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 254, 334 P.2d 275 , the court of appeal reversed a trial court's order amending a prior order denying a final decree of divorce and granting a request for the entry of a final decree of divorce, holding that by granting the second request the trial judge had attempted to correct a judicial ruling rather than a clerical error despite a declaration in the second order that the first one had been signed inadvertently. There was nothing in the record to support the finding of inadvertence except the declaration itself. Twelve days prior to the first order, the court was unequivocally of the opinion that the final decree should not be entered and directed the entry of a finding that the parties had become reconciled, a finding supported by the evidence. The first order was in precise accord with the trial court's directions. On the following day, the trial court changed its mind. The court of appeal stated that if a prior judgment or order is to be set aside, there must be something more in the record to support the new order than the trial court's mere declaration that the prior order had been entered inadvertently. If the record shows clearly that there was no clerical error, the trial court's recital thereof will not be conclusive, the court of appeal ruled.

[f] Insufficient Showing of Clerical Error

In Estate of Eckstrom (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 540, 7 Cal. Rptr. 124, 354 P.2d 652 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.44[3][a], the Supreme Court ruled that in exercising the trial court's statutory and inherent right to cause its acts and proceedings to be correctly set forth in its records where such records fail to indicate the order in fact made, the right is exercisable only for the purpose of ascertaining and reflecting the truth, which must be ascertained from the trial judge's intention in making his original order. The only matters bearing on this issue indicated that the trial judge had performed an intentional, if erroneous, act. There was nothing of significance to indicate that the court intended to make a different decree, other than the conclusion that the court ought to have done so. The order made, said the Court, is presumed to be that intended in the absence of contrary evidence, and the fact of error alone cannot rebut that presumption.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Correction Only as Statute Prescribes

The facts and background of Greene v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 403, 10 Cal. Rptr. 817, 359 P.2d 249 , are discussed in § 131.45[3][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesMistakeCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
B. Amendment, Correction, And Modification Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities §§ 131.47-131.59

[Reserved]

§§ 131.47[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
C. Judgment Creditor's Lien Asserted On Judgment Debtor's Cause Of Action

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.60

§ 131.60 Supporting Application for Leave to Intervene in Judgment Debtor's Cause of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.430(a)]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO INTERVENE IN JUDGMENT DEBTOR's CAUSE OF ACTION [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.430(a)]
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

PURSUANT TO SECTION 708.430(a) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, ON THE MOTION OF A JUDGMENT CREDITOR OF ANY PARTY IN AN ACTION, THE COURT MAY PERMIT THE MOVING PARTY TO INTERVENE THEREIN.

A. Intervention May Be Granted. The court in which an action or special proceeding is pending may permit a judgment creditor who has obtained a lien under Sections 708.410-708.480 of the Code of Civil Procedure to intervene in the action or proceeding pursuant to Section 387 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 708.430(a)).

B. Intervention Should Be Allowed Unless It Will Disrupt Lawsuit or Change Positions of Original Parties. It is an abuse of discretion for a court to refuse to permit a judgment creditor who has obtained a lien under Code of Civil Procedure Sections 708.410-708.480 to intervene in the judgment debtor's lawsuit to protect his or her financial interest unless the intervention will disrupt the suit or change the position of the original parties (In re Marriage of Kerr (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 130, 134, 229 Cal. Rptr. 610).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a judgment creditor's application for leave to intervene in a cause of action asserted by his or her judgment debtor.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the judgment creditor has obtained a lien and should be permitted to intervene pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice creating a lien on a judgment debtor's cause of action or proceeding and related forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender). For other forms relating to enforcement of money judgments and judgments for sale of property, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to intervention by third parties generally, see Ch. 124, Intervention .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Should Be Allowed Unless It Will Disrupt Lawsuit or Change Positions of Original Parties

In In re Marriage of Kerr (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 130, 229 Cal. Rptr. 610 , an attorney obtained a court ordered judgment lien against the assets of a conservatorship. The lien secured attorney's fees for services rendered to the conservatorship on behalf of the conservator, who was the wife of the conservatee. When the conservator terminated the conservatorship and instituted an action for dissolution of her marriage, the attorney noticed a motion to intervene in the action and for an order to impress a lien on specified community assets. The trial court denied the motion.

The court of appeal reversed. The court found that the attorney's noticed motion, to which was attached a certified copy of the order granting him a lien on the conservatorship assets, constituted substantial compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §

708.410, which governs the procedure by which a judgment creditor may obtain a lien over the proceeds of a pending action. The court then held that the trial court abused its discretion in refusing to allow the attorney to intervene pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 708.430. Noting that this provision is remedial in nature and should be liberally construed to give effect to the remedy that it authorizes, the court held that it is an abuse of a trial court's discretion to refuse to permit a judgment creditor to intervene in the judgment debtor's lawsuit to protect his or her financial interest unless the intervention will disrupt the suit or change the position of the original parties, for example, by requiring a reopening of the case for further evidence or delaying the trial of the case or otherwise retarding the action. Although the court held that the attorney was entitled to intervene to protect his financial interests, the court noted that the attorney could also have protected his interests without intervening by applying for an order to satisfy the debt out the proceeds of the pending suit under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.470 (185 Cal. App. 3d 130, 134) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
C. Judgment Creditor's Lien Asserted On Judgment Debtor's Cause Of Action

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.61

§ 131.61 Opposing Application for Leave to Intervene in Judgment Debtor's Cause of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.430(a)]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO APPLICATION FOR
vs.	)	LEAVE TO INTERVENE IN JUDGMENT DEBT-
_____ [name],	)	OR's CAUSE OF ACTION [Code Civ. Proc. §
Defendant.	)	708.430(a)]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE POWER TO PERMIT A JUDGMENT CREDITOR TO INTERVENE IN A JUDGMENT DEBTOR's CAUSE OF ACTION DURING THE PENDENCY OF THE ACTION IS SOLELY WITHIN THE TRIAL COURT's DISCRETION AND AN APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO INTERVENE NEED NOT BE GRANTED.

A. Intervention May Be Granted. [See § 131.60.]

B. Intervention Not Required. The language of the statute permits, but does not require, intervention (McClearen v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 852, 856, 291 P.2d 449 (discussing former Code Civ. Proc. § 688.1).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a party to a cause of action asserted by a judgment debtor to oppose an application submitted by the judgment creditor for leave to intervene in the cause of action.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should indicate facts which support the denial of the judgment creditor's request to intervene pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387.

[b] Related Forms

For references to related forms, see the Comments to § 131.60, under Related Pleading and Practice Forms and Related Points and Authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intervention Not Required

In McClearen v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 852, 291 P.2d 449 , the Supreme Court reviewed action taken by the superior court in connection with a judgment creditor's lien on the judgment debtor's cause of action under former Code Civ. Proc. § 688.1 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 708.430(a)]. One issue involved the right to intervene in the judgment debtor's action. The Court ruled that the statute permitted, but did not require, intervention (45 Cal. 2d 852, 856) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPartiesInterventionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
C. Judgment Creditor's Lien Asserted On Judgment Debtor's Cause Of Action

13-131 California Points & Authorities §§ 131.62-131.79

[Reserved]

§§ 131.62[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this part to draft a memorandum of points or authorities or a trial or appellate brief, and for a sample of a complete memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.80

§ 131.80 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
vs.	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO VACATE
_____ [name],	)	JUDGMENT ENTERED PURSUANT TO SISTER
Defendant.	)	STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT
	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED WHERE GROUNDS EXIST WHICH WOULD BE A DEFENSE TO AN ACTION IN THIS STATE ON THE SISTER STATE JUDGMENT.

A. Grounds for Motion. A judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act may be vacated on any ground which would be a defense to an action in this state on the sister state judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(a)).

B. Authority for Motion. Not later than 30 days after service of notice of entry of judgment pursuant to Section 1710.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the judgment debtor, on written notice to the judgment creditor, may make a motion to vacate the judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities sets forth the authority and grounds for a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65] and must be submitted in support of such a motion. Points and authorities elaborating the various grounds for such a motion are set forth in succeeding forms [see §§ 131.81-131.91] and may be combined with this form when appropriate.

Counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For an application for entry of judgment on a sister state money judgment and a notice of entry of judgment thereon with appropriate discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender). For a notice of motion to vacate such a judgment, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.81

§ 131.81 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Sister State Judgment Not Final and Unconditional

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED IF THE SISTER STATE JUDGMENT WAS NOT FINAL AND UNCONDITIONAL.

A. Grounds for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Final Judgment Requirement. A judgment which is not final is not entitled to full faith and credit under the Full Faith and Credit Clause, Article IV, Section 1 of the United States Constitution (Barber v. Barber (1944) 323 U.S. 77, 79-80, 65 S. Ct. 137, 89 L. Ed. 82).

C. Law Controlling Validity and Finality. The law of the state where the judgment was rendered determines the validity and finality of a sister state judgment (Smith v. Smith (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 92, 99, 251 P.2d 720).

D. Lack of Finality as Defense. A defense to an action in California on a sister state judgment is the defense that the judgment is not final and unconditional where the term "final" means that no further action by the court rendering the judgment is necessary to resolve the matter litigated (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40, Law Revision Commission Comment).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65] when the moving party contends that the sister state judgment is not sufficiently final under the law of the state of the rendering forum to be entitled to full faith and credit in California.

Counsel should add argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[i] Related Uses

When the plaintiff has brought a common law action on the judgment of a sister state court, as permitted under the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.65], either because relief other than the payment of money is involved or because the plaintiff seeks interest or for any other reason, the foregoing form may be modified for submission as a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for summary judgment submitted by the defendant judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]. Where so used, the memorandum should be accompanied with appropriate supporting affidavits or declarations [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For an application for entry of judgment on a sister state money judgment, a notice of entry of judgment thereon, and a notice of motion to vacate such a judgment and associated discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Final Judgment Requirement

In Barber v. Barber (1944) 323 U.S. 77, 65 S. Ct. 137, 89 L. Ed. 82 , the United States Supreme Court ruled that the judgment of a state court was sufficiently final to be entitled to full faith and credit in another state court. The question for decision was whether the courts of Tennessee, in a suit brought on a North Carolina judgment for arrears of alimony, rightly denied full faith and credit to the judgment, on the ground that it lacked finality in that under North Carolina law it was subject to modification or recall by the court which had entered it. The Court noted the Constitutional command that full faith and credit be given in each state to the judicial proceedings of every other state and the implementing statutory language that judgments shall have such faith and credit given in every court as they have by law or usage in the courts of the state from which they are taken [28 U.S.C. § 687]. The Court also noted a prior decision that a decree for future alimony is entitled to full faith and credit as to past due installments, if the right to them is absolute and vested, even though the decree might be modified prospectively by future orders, but that such a decree is not final and not entitled to full faith and credit if the past due installments are subject retroactively to modification or recall by the court after their accrual. For the purpose of the case at issue, the Court assumed that the North Carolina judgment for accrued alimony was not entitled to full faith and credit if, by the law of North Carolina, it was subject to modification. Thus, the question was whether, by the law of North Carolina, the judgment of the courts of that state for arrears of alimony was so wanting in finality as not to be within the command of the Constitution and the implementing statute.

On analysis of the applicable North Carolina law, the Court concluded that the prima facie validity and finality of the judgment sued on had not been overcome and that North Carolina's statutory authority for the modification or recall of an order providing for future allowances of installments of alimony did not extend to a judgment for overdue installments. Thus, it was held that such a judgment was entitled to full faith and credit.

[b] Law Controlling Validity and Finality

In Smith v. Smith (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 92, 251 P.2d 720 , the court of appeal affirmed judgment for the plaintiff in an action to make a divorce judgment of a sister state a judgment of the California court, holding inter alia that the sister state judgment was valid and final. The plaintiff had sought and obtained a divorce in Kansas. Her Kansas complaint sought a decree of divorce, alimony, attorney's fees, and general relief but, pursuant to the agreement of the parties, the decree provided for property settlement and payment of a lump sum, in installments. The decree did not specifically provide for an award of such property and payment, however, and the plaintiff later sought and obtained a nunc pro tunc order correcting the decree in that particular. She then sought to have the amended Kansas judgment made a judgment of the California courts. The defendant contended that the Kansas judgment was not enforceable because that court was without jurisdiction to adjudicate matters not prayed for in the complaint. However, the court of appeal noted that the defendant had appeared and answered in the Kansas action, that the issue of property settlement was tendered by the parties, that no appeal was taken, and that the judgment had become final.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.82

§ 131.82 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Jurisdiction of Sister State Court--Lack of Jurisdiction to Render Judgment

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED IF THE SISTER STATE COURT WHICH RENDERED THE JUDGMENT INVOLVED HAD NO JURISDICTION TO RENDER THE SAME.

A. Ground for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

[EITHER]

B. Sister State Court Having No Jurisdiction. The judgment of a sister state court which had no jurisdiction to render the judgment is not entitled to full faith and credit and enforcement in another state (Arizona v. Yuen (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 169, 178-179, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 525 ; Airlines Reporting Corp. v. Renda (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 14, 19-22, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66 ; Donel, Inc. v. Badalian (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 327, 332-334, 150 Cal. Rptr. 855 ; San Pietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 208, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219).

[OR]

B. Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction. It may always be shown that the judgment of the other state was in excess of jurisdiction and not entitled to full faith and credit and enforcement in another state (Code Civ. Proc. § 1916; Sanpietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 208, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219).

[Optional] C. Attacking Judgment Exceeding Statutory Limits on Relief. Although the general rule in California accords res judicata effect to a judgment resting on fundamental jurisdiction but exceeding statutory limits on relief, it permits collateral attack when it can be shown that unusual circumstances prevented an earlier and more appropriate attack (Bierl v. McMahon (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 97, 103, 75 Cal. Rptr. 473).

[Optional] D. Judgment Not Entitled to Enforcement as Matter of Comity. A sister state judgment which exceeds the statutory limits on the relief which may be granted in the state where it was rendered and which is subject to collateral attack there may not be enforced in California as a matter of comity where the California courts have no more jurisdiction to fashion such a judgment than did the sister state court (Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65] when the ground for the motion is that the sister state court had no jurisdiction to enter the judgment involved or that it acted in excess of its jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(a)].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.81[2].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sister State Court Having No Jurisdiction

In Arizona v. Yuen (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 169, 178-179, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 525 , the defendant, a California resident, signed articles of incorporation for a friend to form an Arizona corporation. She never owned stock in the corporation or had any involvement in the corporation's activities. About a year later, Arizona initiated an administrative proceeding against her and the corporation. The defendant's friend called the defendant and told her there was a "problem" with the Arizona company and an attorney in Arizona needed to speak with her. The defendant went to an office in San Francisco and had a "conference call" with an attorney in Arizona, which she later learned was a telephonic deposition. The defendant testified that she did not retain the Arizona attorney and did not pay him. She received no documents from the Arizona attorney or authorized him to appear on her behalf. She never received or sent any correspondence to the Arizona attorney. Other than the conference call, she never spoke with the Arizona attorney. Arizona later applied for entry of judgment on a sister state judgment in California against the defendant. The defendant moved to vacate the judgment on the ground of Arizona's lack of jurisdiction against her. The trial court granted the motion.

On appeal, the court of appeal held that pursuant to Code of Civ. Proc. § 1710.40, a sister state judgment entered by the clerk may be vacated on any ground that would be a defense to an action in California on the sister state judgment and that the defendant made the proper showing for relief. The court held that due process requires that notice be reasonably calculated, under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections. The court held that the defendant was denied the fundamental requirement of due process, i.e., the opportunity to be heard at a meaningful time and in a meaningful manner (179 Cal. App. 4th 169, 178) . Because a judgment of a court lacking personal jurisdiction violates due process, the court held, it is null and void everywhere, including the state where it was rendered (179 Cal. App. 4th 169, 179).

In Airlines Reporting Corp. v. Renda (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 14, 19-22, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66 , the plaintiff had filed a previous lawsuits against the defendant in Virginia state and federal courts for fraud regarding proceeds to airline ticket sales. The federal court was previously held not to have had personal jurisdiction against the defendant. However, the plaintiff obtained a default judgment against the defendant in the Virginia state court action without questioning personal jurisdiction. The plaintiff registered the Virginia judgment in California and served notice on the defendant informing him that he had 30 days within which to file a motion to vacate the judgment or the judgment would be final. Shortly thereafter, the plaintiff served the defendant with a demand for production of documents. The defendant filed a notice of appearance and provided a written response to the plaintiff's request for production of documents. Two years later, the defendant moved to vacate entry of the default judgment against him pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(a) and Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The trial court found that (1) the 30-day limitations period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b) was inapplicable; (2) the defendant did not waive personal jurisdiction by making an appearance and responding to postjudgment discovery; and (3) the sister state judgment was void for want of personal jurisdiction.

The court of appeal affirmed. It held that the 30-day limitation in Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b) was inapplicable because the Virginia judgment was void on its face because the Virginia court lacked fundamental jurisdiction over the defendant (177 Cal. App. 4th 14, 19-22) . The court further agreed that the defendant did not waive personal jurisdiction by making an appearance and responding to postjudgment discovery. The court held that the defendant's appearance in California had no impact on whether the Virginia state court had personal jurisdiction over him in a prior case. In addition, the court held that the Virginia judgment, rendered in the absence of fundamental jurisdiction, was a nullity (177 Cal. App. 4th 14, 22) .

In Donel, Inc. v. Badalian (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 327, 150 Cal. Rptr. 855 , the superior court entered a judgment based on a Hawaii money judgment under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.25 and subsequently denied defendant's motion to vacate the judgment on the ground that the Hawaii court had not obtained in personam jurisdiction over him. Defendant appealed to the court of appeal which reversed, holding that a foreign judgment is not afforded full faith and credit if rendered by a court that lacked jurisdiction of the subject matter or the parties. In this case, the Hawaii court attempted to obtain personal jurisdiction through service by publication. Essential to in personam jurisdiction to render a money judgment is notice and an opportunity to be heard in conformance with due process of law. Plaintiff was required by Hawaii statute to exercise due diligence to locate defendant before resorting the service by publication. Examination of the recital in the foreign judgment, facts presented to the Hawaii court, and extrinsic evidence established as a matter of law that plaintiff, by limiting its search to telephone directories, did not exercise such due diligence. Thus, plaintiff failed to strictly comply with the statute under which it purported to obtain jurisdiction over the defendant and the motion to vacate the judgment should have been granted.

In Sanpietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219 , the court of appeal affirmed summary judgment for the plaintiffs in an action on a judgment entered in a sister state, despite the defendants' contention that the sister state court did not have personal jurisdiction over them. The complaint attached and incorporated by reference a copy of an Arizona summary judgment awarding a money judgment to the plaintiffs. The defendants answered and defended that the Arizona court had no personal jurisdiction over them. The court of appeal stated the general rule that a judgment of a sister state having no jurisdiction to render the judgment is not entitled to full faith and credit and that the California courts will not recognize a judgment of a sister state if that state did not have jurisdiction. However, it added, if the court of the sister state which rendered the judgment has expressly litigated the question of jurisdiction, that determination is res judicata and is itself protected by the Full Faith and Credit Clause and the question may not be relitigated in California.

[b] Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction

Sanpietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219 , is discussed in § 131.82[3][a].

[c] Attacking Judgment Exceeding Statutory Limits on Relief

In Bierl v. McMahon (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 97, 75 Cal. Rptr. 473 , the court of appeal reversed judgment for the plaintiff in an action to establish a child support order from a sister state as a judgment in California. The plaintiff had obtained a Nebraska child support decree which ordered support payments not based on present need but for the purpose of establishing a trust fund for possible future needs. Accordingly, the court of appeal held that the Nebraska court exceeded its subject matter jurisdiction. Although the general rule in California accords res judicata effect to a judgment which rests on fundamental jurisdiction but exceeds statutory limits on relief, it permits collateral attack under unusual circumstances which prevent an earlier and more appropriate attack. Whether one will be estopped from attacking a sister state decree depends on the importance of the irregularity not only to the parties but also to the functioning of the courts and in some instances on other considerations of public policy. Since the defendant here had, in the Nebraska court, personally protested the proposed order and was told by the court to remain silent and since his attorney protested the order, the court of appeal ruled that he was not estopped from collaterally attacking the decree in the California courts.

[d] Judgment Not Entitled to Enforcement as Matter of Comity

Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357 , is discussed in § 131.82[4][b].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sister State Court Having No Jurisdiction

In Seabron v. Seabron (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 374, 284 P.2d 117 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.96[3][a], the court of appeal ruled that even though a sister state judgment appears valid and regular on its face and is thus entitled to full faith and credit, it may be ignored if the sister state court lacked jurisdiction, either as to cause or parties, citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1916 (which provides that any judicial record may be impeached by evidence of a want of jurisdiction in the court). The court of appeal added that lack of jurisdiction may be shown by evidence other than the record of judgment and even by evidence opposed to recitals contained in such record (133 Cal. App. 2d 374, 375) .

Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 119 P.2d 333 , is discussed in § 131.83[3][a].

[b] Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction

In Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357 , the court of appeal reversed a judgment quieting title in land belonging to the defendant, the plaintiff's former husband, pursuant to a Utah divorce decree, holding that portion of the decree relating to the land was in excess of the Utah court's jurisdiction and subject to collateral attack in California. The Utah decree attempted to make an inter vivos disposition of certain California land owned by the defendant as well as the proceeds therefrom. No Utah cases lent support to such a disposition nor could Utah statutes be stretched to such an extreme, held the court. In the absence of such authority, the court presumed that Utah law was harmonious with that of California and it determined that, in California, such a disposition of the husband's estate exceeds a divorce court's power. The court noted that, although a California general rule accords res judicata effect to a judgment which rests on fundamental jurisdiction, as here, but exceeds statutory limits on relief, collateral attack is permitted under unusual circumstances which prevented an earlier and more appropriate attack. The court observed that the defendant's submission to Utah's jurisdiction was an imposed condition of resistance, not a matter of free choice, and that there was no evidence that he had voluntarily submitted his premarital California land to the Utah court for any disposition at all, let alone the disposition which ensued. Accordingly, the court concluded that the Utah decree, so far as it pertained to the California land, exceeded the jurisdiction of the Utah court, was vulnerable to collateral attack in Utah, and was not entitled to full faith and credit in California. And, since California courts have no more jurisdiction to fashion such a decree than did the Utah court, the court held that the judgment could not be enforced as a matter of comity (227 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9-10) .

[c] Attacking Judgment Exceeding Statutory Limits on Relief

Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357 , is discussed in § 131.82[4][b].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.83

§ 131.83 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Jurisdiction of Sister State Court Subject to Attack for Extrinsic Fraud

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED IF EXTRINSIC FRAUD EXISTS WITH RESPECT TO THE JURISDICTION OF THE SISTER STATE COURT WHICH RENDERED THE JUDGMENT.

A. Grounds for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Impeachment of Judgment for Fraud. Any judicial record may be impeached by evidence of fraud in the party offering the record (Code Civ. Proc. § 1916).

C. Extrinsic Fraud Re Jurisdiction. In extrinsic fraud existed with respect to the jurisdiction of a sister state to render the judgment at issue, the judgment may be questioned collaterally in California and ignored, notwithstanding the Full Faith and Credit Clause (Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 81, 119 P.2d 333).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65] when the ground for the motion is that extrinsic fraud existed with respect to the sister state court's jurisdiction. A judgment entered under the act may be vacated on any ground which would be a defense to an action in California on a sister state judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(a)] including the defense that the judgment was obtained by extrinsic fraud. For memoranda of points and authorities on the issue of extrinsic fraud see § 131.120 et seq.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.81[2].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extrinsic Fraud Re Jurisdiction

In Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 119 P.2d 333 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.83[3][a], in connection with a contention made by the plaintiff in an equitable action for relief from a judgment that a sister state judgment was rendered without notice to him nor any knowledge thereof, the Supreme Court stated that the plaintiff was legally entitled to contest that judgment on the ground that the sister state court lacked jurisdiction and that the judgment was obtained by fraud. A judgment of a sister state is binding on the courts of California, said the Court, if it is valid, by virtue of the Full Faith and Credit Clause. However, the Court added that the jurisdiction of the court of the sister state in which the judgment is rendered may be questioned collaterally in another state notwithstanding the Full Faith and Credit Clause; and, notwithstanding the jurisdictional recitals in the judgment, if extrinsic fraud exists with respect to the jurisdiction, the judgment may be ignored.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Grounds for Motion

The California Law Revision Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40 states that common defenses which may be asserted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered under the Sister State Money Judgments Act include the defense that the judgment was obtained by extrinsic fraud.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentFraudCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.84

§ 131.84 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Judgment Not Enforceable in State Where Rendered to Extent Plaintiff Seeks

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED IF THE SISTER STATE JUDGMENT IS NOT ENFORCEABLE IN THE STATE WHERE IT WAS RENDERED TO THE EXTENT PLAINTIFF SEEKS.

A. Grounds for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Effect of Sister State Judgment. Under the Full Faith and Credit Clause, Article IV, Section 1, of the United States Constitution, a sister state judgment will not be given any greater effect as an adjudication of the rights and duties of the parties than it had in the state where it was rendered (Weir v. Corbett (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 290, 295, 40 Cal. Rptr. 161).

[Optional] C. Liability Not Adjudicated. An action cannot be brought on a sister state judgment to enforce a liability not adjudicated by that judgment (Gilmer v. Spitalny (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 39, 44-45, 189 P.2d 744).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act when the ground for the motion is that the judgment is not enforceable, to the extent sought by the California plaintiff, in the state where the judgment was rendered. The basis of the point set out in the foregoing memorandum is that, for example, since a sister state judgment will not be given any greater effect as an adjudication of the rights and duties of the parties than it had in the state where it was rendered, a judgment which did not adjudicate the type of liability sought by the California plaintiff will not be enforced in California.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.81[2].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect of Sister State Judgment

In Weir v. Corbett (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 290, 40 Cal. Rptr. 161 , the court of appeal affirmed summary judgment for the plaintiff in an action to recover money due under a sister state judgment, holding that although a sister state judgment will not be accorded any greater effect as an adjudication of the rights and duties of the parties than it had in the state where rendered, the California statute of limitations governed to permit the action on the judgment despite the fact that the plaintiff's remedies had expired in the state where the judgment was rendered under its statute of limitations. In October 1956, the plaintiff obtained a Washington judgment, no part of which had been paid by October 1961 when the plaintiff commenced action on that judgment in California. In October 1962, judgment was entered in California in favor of the plaintiff for the amount of the original judgment plus interest. The defendant contended on appeal from the California Judgment that under Washington law, after the expiration of six years from the date of the entry of the Washington judgment, the plaintiff's claim expired. The court of appeal noted that the Washington statute did not constitute any bar either to the commencement of the California action or the entry of the California court's judgment since the six-year period had not expired until three days after entry. However, the defendant also contended that the California judgment could not have any effect beyond the six-year deadline. The court stated that the method of enforcement of a foreign judgment is governed by the law of the forum and that while Washington procedure gave the plaintiff only until October 1962 to collect, California has made its remedies available for a longer period. California courts, the court observed, have applied the California statute of limitations to an action on a sister state judgment, whether the local time limit is shorter or longer than that of the sister state.

[b] Liability Not Adjudicated

In Gilmer v. Spitalny (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 39, 189 P.2d 744 , the court of appeal reversed judgment adjudicating personal liability on the defendant's part in favor of the plaintiffs in an action on a sister state judgment, holding that the sister state judgment was limited so as to preclude its use for the purpose of establishing a general personal liability on the part of the defendant. The plaintiffs had recovered a judgment in Arizona against the defendants, husband and wife, "as a community debt." The plaintiffs then sued in California, alleging the Arizona judgment as being against the defendants and praying for a judgment against the defendants. The defendants answered and alleged that the judgment was not a personal judgment against the defendant wife and that it was enforceable only as to her interest in the community property of both defendants. Judgment was rendered in the California court against both defendants. The plaintiffs contended on appeal that the Arizona judgment, although unenforceable in Arizona as against the wife personally or as against her separate property, held that both defendants were liable and as much a debt of the wife as of the husband. The court of appeal ruled that it was not correct to say that the Arizona judgment on its face held both defendants equally liable or that it made the debt one owed by the wife as much as the husband. While it was entered against both, it recited on its face a finding that judgment should be entered as a community debt and thus that it was to be enforceable only against the wife's interest in community property and not against her personally. The court observed that the Full Faith and Credit Clause is designed to provide a method of proving the record of a judicial proceeding in one state for the purpose of carrying out the result of that proceeding in other states, that it requires only that the judgment should be given such effect as it had by the law or usage of the state of its origin, and that no more force is t be allowed to a judgment of a sister state than would be accorded to it by the courts of the state which rendered it. Accordingly, the court held that an action to enforce a personal liability cannot be maintained on a sister state judgment unless that judgment adjudicates a personal liability.

[4] Additional Authorities

In Traci & Marx Co. v. Legal Options, Inc. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 155, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 685 , plaintiffs sued defendants in the Court of Common Pleas for Cuyahoga County, Ohio. The prayer for relief requested, among other things, compensatory damages in excess of $25,000 and punitive damages in excess of $25,000. Defendants did not answer. The Ohio court conducted a default hearing, after which it granted plaintiffs judgment in the amount of $25,890 as compensatory damages and $130,000 as punitive damages. Pursuant to the Sister State Money-Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.], a California superior court ordered entry of the Ohio Judgment in the amount of $171,793.50, representing the principal amount of the Ohio Judgment, along with accrued interest. Defendants moved to vacate the Ohio default judgment, seeking to attack the judgment collaterally for, inter alia, unenforceability because the damages awarded exceeded those sought in the complaint. The trial court found that the sums in the Ohio default judgment exceeded those which could have been awarded and granted the motion based on the trial court's conclusion that the Ohio judgment was in excess of the jurisdiction of the Ohio court in which it was rendered (126 Cal. App. 4th 155, 157-158) . The Court of Appeal reversed and held that although Ohio law continues to limit the relief to that claimed in the complaint when the judgment is by default, defendants, whose burden it was to establish that the judgment was not enforceable in Ohio, failed to provide any Ohio authority to support their assertion that Ohio law provides that the "in excess of" language in the prayer for relief constituted a ceiling rather than a floor for recoverable damages. Consequently, the trial court erred in vacating the judgment, since there was no basis to conclude that the Ohio court acted in excess of its jurisdiction, or that the judgment was not enforceable in Ohio (126 Cal. App. 4th 155, 158-160) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.85

§ 131.85 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Judgment Paid

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

AN ACTION CANNOT BE BROUGHT ON A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT WHICH HAS BEEN PAID.

Payment of Judgment. An action cannot be brought on a sister state judgment which has been paid (Rall v. Lovell (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 507, 510, 233 P.2d 681).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act when the ground for the motion is that the judgment has been paid.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.81[2].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Payment of Judgment

In Rall v. Lovell (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 507, 233 P.2d 681 , the court of appeal reversed summary judgment for the plaintiff in an action on a sister state judgment, holding that the pleadings presented a triable issue. The plaintiff had filed a complaint alleging that she was the defendant's former wife and that pursuant to a Montana decree the defendant was obligated to pay certain child support. The defendant filed an answer alleging that he had made certain payments and that a petition was then pending in the Montana court requesting it to construe its judgment and to adjudge his liability as of that time and requesting that no further proceedings be had until the Montana court acted. The court of appeal held that the trial court had abused its discretion in granting summary judgment. Triable issues were presented by the answer as to the amount, if any, due under the judgment and the law of Montana. The law of the state where the judgment was rendered and by which its effect is to be determined must be established as a fact, and the validity and effect of the Montana judgment is governed by the laws of that state, the court ruled. The extent of the defendant's liability is determined by the terms of the Montana decree and it will be enforced only for the amount for which it is enforceable in the state in which it was rendered. Moreover, the court stated that a payment of that judgment discharges the obligation thereof (citing Rest Conflict of Laws §§ 436, 441). The first issue to be determined in regard to a judgment of another state, after jurisdictional inquiries have been satisfactorily answered, is that of its effect in the state whence it was taken. The effect which it has there is precisely the effect which must be accorded to it in every other state. It must not be given any greater effect than it has in the state where it was rendered, said the court.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Payment of Judgment

In Harris v. EMI Television Programs, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 214, 162 Cal. Rptr. 357 , defendant had damaged plaintiff's automobile, while on location in Tennessee. When settlement negotiations appeared to reach a standstill, defendant sent plaintiff a check (marked as "settlement") for a portion of the amount demanded, and plaintiff eventually cashed the check. Thereupon, plaintiff sued in Tennessee, and obtained a default judgment.

Plaintiff then sought an entry of the Tennessee judgment in California, and received an ex parte entry of the judgment for the total amount claimed minus the amount of the settlement check previously received. Defendant made a motion to vacate this judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40, which the trial court denied.

The court of appeal reversed, noting that under Tennessee law, the acceptance of defendant's settlement check constituted an accord and satisfaction (102 Cal. App. 3d 214, 218, 219) . Therefore, since satisfaction of a sister state judgment is a defense to an action on a judgment in California, the trial court erred in refusing to grant defendant's motion to vacate the California judgment (102 Cal. App. 3d 214, 219) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.86

§ 131.86 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Misconduct of Plaintiff

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED IF PLAINTIFF OBTAINED THE JUDGMENT AS A DIRECT RESULT OF HIS/HER MISCONDUCT.

A. Grounds for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Misconduct of Plaintiff. Recovery under a sister state money judgment may be denied where it appears that such judgment was obtained as a direct result of the misconduct of the plaintiff therein (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40, Law Revision Commission Comment; see Kubon v. Kubon (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 229, 231-232, 331 P.2d 636).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

CAUTION:

Kubon v. Kubon (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 229, 231-232, 331 P.2d 636 , cited in the foregoing form, has been noted as setting forth what is termed the "contemptuous litigant" doctrine [see Note, "CONFLICT OF LAWS: Suit by a Contemptuous Litigant in a Foreign Money Judgment," 11 Hastings LJ 68; Note, "Conflict of Laws: Full Faith and Credit: Denial of Privileges to Contemptuous Litigant Seeking Enforcement of Sister State Judgment," 7 UCLA L Rev 124; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40, Law Revision Commission Comment]. However, the decision does not actually discuss the doctrine, nor does it appear to be cited as authority for such a rule by any other court since the decision was rendered. Therefore, the plaintiff's misconduct which would be necessary to deny a motion to vacate a judgment may be limited to situations similar to the facts in Kubon in which the judgment holder has acted in contempt of a California court judgment bearing directly on his or her own case. On the other hand, the term could conceivably apply to any judgment holder who, in the words used in the case cited, does not come into the California court with "clean hands" [see Kubon v. Kubon (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 229, 231, 331 P.2d 636] .

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65] where it appears that the sister state judgment was obtained as a direct result of the misconduct of the judgment holder [but see Caution, above].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.81[2].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Misconduct of Plaintiff

In Kubon v. Kubon (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 229, 331 P.2d 636 , the Supreme Court affirmed judgment for the defendant in an action to recover on a Nevada money judgment based on orders pursuant to a divorce judgment requiring the defendant to pay child support. During a period when the defendant, a California resident, had legal custody of the children involved, pursuant to a Nevada custody order he filed a petition in a California court seeking to be appointed guardian of the children. The California court issued a temporary restraining order restraining the plaintiff from removing the children from the defendant's home or custody. Shortly after issuance of that order, the plaintiff kidnapped the children, took them to Nevada, and concealed them in an abandoned mine. The Nevada custody order was then modified to take away the defendant's right to custody. The defendant thereafter failed to make support payments, whereupon the plaintiff obtained the Nevada money judgment. The defendant set up the affirmative defense that it would be against public policy to enforce the judgment in California because the plaintiff had not come into court with clean hands and was in contempt of the California court whose aid she was seeking. After trial, the judge in the California court found that the allegations of the defense were true and denied plaintiff recovery on the Nevada judgment. The Supreme Court ruled that since the findings of fact showed that the restraining order had been served on the plaintiff, the court had not erred in denying the plaintiff's motion to strike the defendant's affirmative defense and holding for the defendant.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.87

§ 131.87 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Bar of Statute of Limitations

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED IF THE CAUSE OF ACTION ON THE JUDGMENT IS BARRED BY THE PASSAGE OF MORE THAN 10 YEARS FROM THE TIME THE CAUSE OF ACTION AROSE.

A. Grounds for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Limitation Governed by California Law. The barring of a claim by the statute of limitations is a procedural matter governed by the law of the forum, regardless of where the cause of action arose (Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 114, 109 P.2d 701).

C. Limitation of Action on Sister State Judgment. An action brought on a judgment of a sister state is subject to the limitations prescribed by the law of the state where the action is brought (Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 114-115, 109 P.2d 701).

D. Period of Limitation on Action. The period prescribed for the commencement of an action on a judgment or decree of any court of the United States or of any state within the United States is 10 years (Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5(3)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65] where it appears that an action on such a judgment would be barred under the California statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5(3)] because 10 years has passed since the time the cause of action arose.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.81[2].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation Governed by California Law

In Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 109 P.2d 701 , the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's judgment ordering that defendant make payments pursuant to a sister state divorce decree in favor of the plaintiff, holding that the claim was not barred by the California statute of limitations. The plaintiff had secured a divorce decree in Missouri in 1918 which ordered the defendant to pay weekly support. In 1938, the plaintiff sued on the decree in a California court and recovered a judgment ordering payment of those installments which had accrued within the California limitation period prior to the beginning of the action. The Court ruled that it is a principle of conflict of laws recognized in California that the barring of a claim by the statute of limitations is a procedural matter governed by the law of the forum, regardless of where the cause of action arose. It is a corollary, said the Court, that an action brought on a judgment of a sister state is subject to the limitations prescribed by the law of the state where the action is brought. The Court observed that former Code Civ. Proc. § 336 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5(3)] provided that an action on a judgment or decree of any state must be brought within five years and that a decree for future payments is a continuing judgment.

[b] Period of Limitation on Action

Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 109 P.2d 701 , is discussed in § 131.87[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Limitation Governed by California Law

Weir v. Corbett (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 290, 40 Cal. Rptr. 161 , is discussed in § 131.84[3][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to VacateGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.88

§ 131.88 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Bar of Statute of Limitations--Expiration of Sister State Limitation Period

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

WHERE THE SISTER STATE PERIOD OF LIMITATION OPERATES TO EXTINGUISH THE OBLIGATION ESTABLISHED BY A JUDGMENT RENDERED IN A COURT OF THAT STATE AND THAT PERIOD HAS EXPIRED, THE SISTER STATE JUDGMENT CANNOT SUPPORT ANY ACTION THEREON IN CALIFORNIA.

A. Action Barred in California. When a cause of action has arisen in another state and by the laws thereof an action thereon cannot be maintained by reason of the lapse of time, an action thereon shall not be maintained in this state except in favor of one who has been a citizen of this state and who has held the cause of action since it accrued (Code Civ. Proc. § 361).

B. Expiration of Sister State Limitation Period. Where the sister state period of limitation operates to extinguish the obligation established by a judgment rendered in a court of that state and that period has expired, that judgment cannot support any action in California (Parhm v. Parhm (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 311, 314, 82 Cal. Rptr. 570).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act where it appears that a sister state statute of limitations has operated to extinguish the obligation established by the judgment so that the sister state judgment could not support any action in California.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Expiration of Sister State Limitation Period

In Parhm v. Parhm (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 311, 82 Cal. Rptr. 570 , the court of appeal affirmed a trial court's judgment refusing to order the payment of certain child support payments on the ground that any action to collect those installments pursuant to a Washington judgment was barred by Washington law and, therefore, any action thereon was barred in California. The court of appeal noted that the applicable Washington statute entirely extinguished not only the local remedy under the judgment but also the obligation itself. That extinguishment by lapse of time was the legal equivalent of satisfaction of the judgment by payment. If the judgment sued on is dormant in the state where rendered, in the sense that it is absolutely dead and incapable of being enforced or revised, it cannot support any action in another state, the court held. The court distinguished Weir v. Corbett (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 290, 40 Cal. Rptr. 161 [see § 131.84], since in that case a California judgment had been entered in an action on a Washington judgment prior to the date on which an action in Washington would have been barred.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to VacateGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.89

§ 131.89 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Stay of Enforcement Pending in Sister State

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED IF A STAY OF ENFORCEMENT OF THE SISTER STATE JUDGMENT IS CURRENTLY IN EFFECT IN THE SISTER STATE.

A. Grounds for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Stay of Enforcement Pending in Sister State. No judgment based on a sister state judgment may be entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act where a stay of enforcement of the sister state judgment is currently in effect in the sister state (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.55(a)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act in violation of the statutory rule that no judgment based on a sister state money judgment may be entered under the act where a stay of enforcement of the sister state judgment is currently in effect in the sister state [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.55(a)]. The theory of this form is that a judgment entered under the act may be vacated on any ground which would be a defense to an action in California on the sister state judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40] and that the existence of a stay in the rendering forum is such a defense.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see the Comments on § 131.81.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.90

§ 131.90 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Sister State Judgment Was Penal

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A JUDGMENT ENTERED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MAY BE VACATED IF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED BY THE SISTER STATE COURT WAS A PENAL JUDGMENT.

A. Grounds for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Penal Judgment. Penal judgments of sister states are not enforceable in California (Farmers & Merchants Trust Co. v. Madeira (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 503, 508, 68 Cal. Rptr. 184).

C. Definition of Penal Judgment. The question of whether or not a judgment is penal depends on whether its purpose is to punish an offense against the public justice of the state or to afford a private remedy to a person injured by a wrongful act (Farmers & Merchants Trust Co. v. Madeira (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 503, 508, 68 Cal. Rptr. 184).

[Optional] D. Definition of "Penalty." A "penalty" includes any law compelling a defendant to pay a plaintiff more than is necessary to compensate him/her for a legal damage done him/her by the former (Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 837, 142 P.2d 297).

[Optional] E. Short Statute of Limitations as Indication of Penalty. Ordinarily, a short statute of limitations indicates that the amount of recovery authorized is a penalty (Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 837, 142 P.2d 297).

[Optional] F. Recovery of Triple Interest Paid Above Legal Rate as Penalty. A statute of another state providing for the recovery of triple the amount of interest paid by the plaintiff above the rate of interest permitted in that state in penal is nature (Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 837, 142 P.2d 297).

[Optional] G. Double or Treble Damages as Penalty. A statute allowing double or treble damages is penal in nature (Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 837, 142 P.2d 297).

[Optional] H. Liability of Directors for Failure to Act as Penalty. A statute making the directors of a corporation liable for all debts of the corporation on the failure to file a required report is penal in character (Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 837, 142 P.2d 297).

[Optional] I. Minimum Fine Plus Damages Based on Culpability as Penalty. A statute which provides for a minimum fine and which increases the damages, not in proportion to the loss suffered by the plaintiff, but by the degree of the culpability of the defendant is penal in nature (Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 837, 142 P.2d 297).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act where the sister judgment was penal in nature.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.81[2].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Penal Judgment

In Farmers & Merchants Trust Co. v. Madeira (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 503, 68 Cal. Rptr. 184 , the court of appeal reversed judgment for the defendant in an action to enforce a Pennsylvania child support order. The crucial question on appeal was whether the Pennsylvania order was in reality a civil judgment awarding child support or a penal judgment to punish the defendant for desertion and nonsupport. The court of appeal noted that if it were the latter, it would not be enforceable in California under either the Full Faith and Credit Clause or as a matter of comity since it is the prevailing rule that no action can be maintained in one state to recover money extracted as punishment for a civil wrong committed under the laws of another state (citing Rest, Conflict of Laws, § 611). The court further noted that the question of whether or not a statute of one state, which in some aspects may be called penal, is a penal law so that it cannot be enforced in the courts of another state, depends on whether its purpose is to punish an offense against the public justice of the state or to afford a private remedy to a person injured by the wrongful act. Although the action which resulted in the support order was brought in the name of the state under the Pennsylvania Penal Code, the court of appeal concluded that the order was primarily civil in nature, irrespective of the label. Moreover, the applicable penal code provision did not purport to punish for an offense against public justice or extract payment for a civil wrong--rather, its purpose was to protect wives and children by providing a speedy remedy to insure their support.

[b] Definition of Penal Judgment

Farmers & Merchants Trust Co. v. Madeira (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 503, 68 Cal. Rptr. 184 , is discussed in § 131.90[3][a].

[c] Definition of "Penalty"

In Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 142 P.2d 297 , the Supreme Court granted a writ of mandamus to compel a small claims court to hear and determine a consumer action authorized under federal law, holding that a state court otherwise competent to exercise jurisdiction over the subject matter must assume jurisdiction of an action created by federal law, regardless of whether or not that law is considered penal. The Court stated the general rule that no action may be maintained to recover a penalty, the right to which is given by the law of another state, and noted that the test generally underlying most of the cases on the subject is that a "penalty" includes any law compelling a defendant to pay a plaintiff more than is necessary to compensate him for legal damage done him by the defendant. Ordinarily, said the Court, a short statute of limitations indicates that the amount of recovery authorized is a penalty. The Court also noted the following as examples of penal statutes: a New Hampshire statute providing for the recovery of three times the amount of interest paid above the legal rate in that state (held to be penal when action for such sum was brought in Vermont); a claim arising under a Pennsylvania statute awarding treble damages for rate discrimination, in an action in New York; a statute allowing double damages for injuries to livestock; a New York statute making directors liable for all debts of their corporation on the failure to file a required report; and a Massachusetts statute providing for a "fine" of a minimum amount and for increased damages, not in proportion to the loss suffered by the plaintiff, but according to the culpability of the defendant. The Court also noted that state courts generally have refused to assume jurisdiction to enforce acts of Congress which they have considered as "penal." However, said the Court, considering the intent of the framers of the Constitution including the provisions of the Supremacy Clause, as well as the acts of early Congress, it seems clear that a state court which is otherwise competent to exercise jurisdiction over the subject matter, the parties, and the amount in controversy must assume jurisdiction of an action created by federal law enacted pursuant to a legitimate federal function, regardless of whether or not that action is considered as penal.

[d] Short Statute of Limitations as Indication of Penalty

Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 142 P.2d 297 , is discussed in § 131.90[3][c].

[e] Recovery of Triple Interest Paid Above Legal Rate as Penalty

Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 142 P.2d 297 , is discussed in § 131.90[3][c].

[f] Double or Treble Damages as Penalty

Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 142 P.2d 297 , is discussed in § 131.90[3][c].

[g] Liability of Directors for Failure to Act as Penalty

Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 142 P.2d 297 , is discussed in § 131.90[3][c].

[h] Minimum Fine Plus Damages Based on Culpability as Penalty

Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 142 P.2d 297 , is discussed in § 131.90[3][c].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Penal Judgment

In Huntington v. Attrill (1892) 146 U.S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. Ed. 1123 , the United States Supreme Court reversed a Maryland court's decision denying full faith and credit to a New York judgment, holding that the statue on which the New York judgment was based was not penal in nature, that, therefore, the New York judgment was not a penal judgment, and that, accordingly, it was entitled to full faith and credit in Maryland. The suit in the Maryland court sought to charge stock belonging to the defendant with the payment of a judgment recovery by the plaintiff against the defendant in New York under a statute making the defendant, as an officer of a corporation, liable for the debts of that corporation. The Court stated that whether or not a statute of one state is penal so that it cannot be enforced in the courts of another state depends on the question whether its purpose is to punish an offense against the public justice of the state or to afford a private remedy to one injured by a wrongful act. The test, said the Court, is not by what name the statute is called by the legislature or the courts in which it was passed, but whether it appears to the court called on to enforce it to be a punishment of an offense against the public or a grant of a civil right to a private person. The statute, said the Court, was in no sense a criminal law; it gave a civil remedy at the private suit of a creditor and such remedy was measured by the amount of his debt and was, as to him, clearly remedial. To maintain such a suit, the Court observed, is not to administer a punishment imposed on an offender against the state but simply to enforce a private right. Thus, the Court concluded that the faith and credit and force and effect which the judgment based on the statute had in New York was conclusive evidence of a direct civil liability and was a debt of record, on which an action would lie as in any other civil judgment. And, the Maryland court, in deciding the case against the plaintiff, on the ground that the judgment was not one that it was bound to enforce, denied to the judgment the full faith, credit and effect to which it was entitled under the Constitution and the laws of the United States.

[b] Definition of Penal Judgment

Huntington v. Attrill (1892) 146 U.S. 657, 13 S. Ct. 224, 36 L. Ed. 1123 , is discussed in § 131.90[4][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.91

§ 131.91 Supporting Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Sister State Judgment Conflicts With Earlier California Judgment

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.80[1].]

A PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO ENFORCE A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT IN A CALIFORNIA COURT IF THAT JUDGMENT CONFLICTS WITH AN EARLIER CALIFORNIA JUDGMENT.

A. Grounds for Motion. [See § 131.80[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Earlier Conflicting California Judgment. When courts of different jurisdictions have reached different results on the same issue and the first of the conflicting decisions was rendered by a court of the state in which the current action is pending, that decision takes precedence over the court of a sister state (Stuart v. Lilves (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1215, 1221, 258 Cal. Rptr. 780).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act when it appears that the sister state judgment conflicts with an earlier California judgment.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[i] Related Uses

For comments on the modification of the foregoing form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.81[2].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a reference to related forms to be found in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, see § 131.81[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Earlier Conflicting California Judgment

In Stuart v. Lilves (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1215, 258 Cal. Rptr. 780 , the plaintiff filed an application in a California court for entry of a Colorado judgment pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act, and the defendant moved to vacate the Colorado judgment, arguing that the Colorado court failed to give full faith and credit to an earlier California judgment. The trial court concluded that it was bound by the full faith and credit clause to honor the judgment of the Colorado court and denied the motion.

The court of appeal reversed and held that since the full faith and credit clause does not require the California courts to ignore a California judgment, the order denying the defendant's motion to vacate the Colorado judgment was erroneous. The court stated that although it is the general rule that when courts of different jurisdictions have reached different results on the same issue the later judgment controls, it is also the rule that when one of the conflicting decisions was entered by a court of the state in which the current action is pending, that decision takes precedence over the court of a sister state. Quoting Hammell v. Britton (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 72, 84, 119 P.2d 333 , the court stated that if full faith and credit is to be given, it should have been given to the California judgment by the Colorado court when it entertained the plaintiff's action (210 Cal. App. 3d 1215, 1220-1221) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.92

§ 131.92 Supporting Motion for Stay of Enforcement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50] of Judgment Entered Under Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Specific Statutory Grounds

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR STAY OF ENFORCEMENT OF SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENT
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

ON MOTION, THE COURT MAY GRANT A STAY OF ENFORCEMENT OF A JUDGMENT ENTERED PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT WHERE _____ [AN APPEAL FROM THE SISTER STATE JUDGMENT IS PENDING OR MAY BE TAKEN WHERE RENDERED or A STAY OF ENFORCEMENT OF THE SISTER STATE JUDGMENT HAS BEEN GRANTED IN THE SISTER STATE or THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR HAS MADE A MOTION TO VACATE].

A. Authority for Stay. The court may grant a stay of enforcement of a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act, under Section 1710.50 of the Code of Civil Procedure on its own motion, on ex parte motion, or on noticed motion (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(b)).

[EITHER]

B. Appeal in Sister State as Ground. The court shall grant a stay of enforcement where an appeal from the sister state judgment is pending or may be taken in the state which originally rendered the judgment and enforcement will be stayed until the proceedings on appeal have been concluded or time for appeal has expired (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(1).

[OR]

B. Stay of Enforcement in Sister State as Ground. The court shall grant a stay of enforcement where a stay of enforcement of the sister state judgment has been granted in the sister state and enforcement will be stayed until the sister state stay of enforcement expires or is vacated (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(2)).

[OR]

B. Pending Motion to Vacate. The court shall grant a stay of enforcement where the judgment debtor has made motion to vacate pursuant to Section 1710.40 of the Code of Civil Procedure and enforcement will be stayed until the motion to vacate is determined (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(3)).

[Optional] C. Stay of Enforcement Pending in Sister State. [See § 131.89[1], Paragraph B.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a judgment debtor's motion for stay of enforcement of a judgment entered under the Sister State Money Judgments Act where one of the specific statutory grounds therefor (as set out in Paragraph B) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(1)-(3)] exists. For a memorandum of points and authorities applicable to the general statutory ground for stay of enforcement, that the interests of justice require a stay [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(4)], see § 131.93.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a notice of motion to stay enforcement of a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act, with related discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays of ProceedingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

91 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.93

§ 131.93 Supporting Motion for Stay of Enforcement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50] of Judgment Entered Under Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Interests of Justice Require Stay [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(4)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.92[1].]

ON MOTION, THE COURT MAY GRANT A STAY OF ENFORCEMENT OF A JUDGMENT ENTERED PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT WHERE THE INTERESTS OF JUSTICE REQUIRE SUCH ACTION.

A. Authority for Stay. [See § 131.92[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Interests of Justice. The court shall grant a stay of enforcement where the interests of justice require a stay of enforcement (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(4)).

[Optional] C. Judgment Improperly Entered. No judgment based on a sister state judgment may be entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act when _____ [an action based on the sister state judgment is currently pending in any court in this state (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.55(b)) or a judgment based on the sister state judgment has previously been entered in any proceeding in this state] (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.55(c)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a judgment debtor's motion for stay of enforcement of a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act where the judgment debtor contends that the judgment was unlawfully entered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.55(b), (c)] and, accordingly, that the interests of justice require a stay of enforcement.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a notice of motion to stay enforcement of a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act, with related discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays of ProceedingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.94

§ 131.94 Supporting Motion to Vacate or Stay [Fam. Code § 4853(a)] Foreign Support Order Registered Under Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act [Fam. Code § 4800 et seq.]--Statutory Grounds

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Defendant.	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO )	_____ [VACATE or STAY] FOR-)	EIGN SUPPORT ORDER REGISTERED UNDER UNIFORM RECIPROCAL ENFORCEMENT OF SUPPORT ACT

_____

A FOREIGN SUPPORT ORDER THAT HAS BEEN REGISTERED IN CALIFORNIA MUST, WITH LIMITED EXCEPTIONS, BE TREATED IN THE SAME MANNER AS A SUPPORT ORDER ISSUED BY A CALIFORNIA COURT, AND SUCH AN ORDER IS THEREFORE SUBJECT TO THE SAME PROCEDURES, DEFENSES, AND PROCEEDINGS FOR _____ [VACATING or STAYING] AS A SUPPORT ORDER OF THIS STATE.

A. Treatment of Registered Order. On registration, with certain limited exceptions specified by statute, a registered foreign support order must be treated in the same manner as a support order issued by a court of this state (Fam. Code § 4853(a)).

B. Procedures Applicable to Registered Order. A registered foreign support order has the same effect and is subject to the same procedures, defenses, and proceedings for reopening, vacating, or staying as a support order of this state (Fam Code § 4853(a)).

[Optional] C. Stay of Enforcement. At the hearing on the motion to vacate registration of the support order, if the obligor shows and the court finds _____ [that an appeal from the court is pending or that a stay of execution has been granted or grounds on which enforcement of a support order of this state may be stayed], the court must stay enforcement of the order until _____ [the appeal is concluded or the time for appeal has expired or the order is vacated], on proof of security for payment of the support ordered (Fam. Code § 4853(c)).

[Optional] D. Petition to Vacate Registration. The obligor has 20 days after the mailing or other service of notice of the registration of a foreign support order in which to file a noticed motion requesting the court to vacate the registration or to give other relief (Fam. Code § 4853(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be used in support of a motion to vacate or stay a foreign support order that has been registered in California under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act. Generally, a foreign support order which has been registered in California has the same effect and is subject to the same procedures, defenses, and proceedings for reopening, vacating, or staying as a support order of this state [Fam. Code § 4853(a)]. Specified limitations to this general rule are discussed in § 131.94[2][b].

[b] Limitations of Registered Foreign Support Order

Although a registered foreign support order is generally treated in the same manner as a California support order, there are limitations [see Fam. Code § 4853(a)]. Joinder or coordination of actions or cross complaints are not permitted, and the claims or defenses are to be limited strictly to the identity of the obligor, the validity of the underlying foreign support order, or the accuracy of the obligee's statement of the amount of support remaining unpaid unless the amount has been previously established by a judgment or order. If the obligor does not file the motion within 20 days after the mailing or other service of notice of the registration of a foreign order of support or assignment of wages, the registered foreign support order or foreign order for the assignment of wages and all other documents filed pursuant to Fam. Code § 4852(a), are confirmed [Fam. Code § 4853(a)].

In addition, registration of an out-of-state order for the sole purpose of interstate wage withholding does not confer jurisdiction on the court for any purpose other than income withholding [Fam. Code § 4853(d)].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms and discussion of procedures applicable under the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement: General Enforcement Principles and Remedies . For discussion and forms pertaining to child and spousal support generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Support , and Ch. 225, Dissolution of Marriage: Spousal Support .

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally applicable to a motion to vacate a judgment, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsStays of ProceedingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.95

§ 131.95 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Action on Judgment-- General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER TO COM-
vs.	)	PLAINT IN ACTION ON JUDGMENT
_____ [name],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

A COMPLAINT ON A JUDGMENT WHICH FAILS TO INDICATE THE _____ [FINALITY OF THAT JUDGMENT or EXISTENCE OF AN ACTUAL CONTROVERSY or FAILURE OF THE DEFENDANT TO COMPLY THEREWITH] FAILS TO STATE FACTS SUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE A CAUSE OF ACTION.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object, by demurrer as provided in Section 430.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to the complaint on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)). When any ground for objection to a complaint appears on the face thereof [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice], the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)).

[EITHER]

B. Finality of Judgment. An action on a judgment may not be commenced until the judgment has become final, either on expiration of the period within which an appeal may be taken or, if an appeal is taken, on the issuance of the remittitur on affirmance (Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 525-526, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981).

[OR]

B. Actual Controversy. To invoke the jurisdiction of a court, it is essential that there exists a genuine and existing controversy calling for the present adjudication of presents rights (Young v. Young (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 85, 86, 223 P.2d 25).

[OR]

B. Failure to Comply With Judgment. An action to enforce a sister state judgment is not permitted in the absence of an allegation that the defendant has not complied with the terms of such judgment (Young v. Young (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 85, 86, 223 P.2d 25).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by the defendant in an action on a judgment when the complaint does not allege or indicate that the judgment has become final [see Code Civ. Proc. § 456], or that there is an amount due and owing and unpaid from the defendant to the plaintiff under the judgment or other facts indicating the existence of an actual controversy, or that the defendant has not complied with the terms of the judgment sued on.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of complaint on domestic and sister state money judgments, with related comment, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 131, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Finality of Judgment

In Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981 , the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment of the superior court for the plaintiff in an action on a prior judgment, holding that the action was not barred under the statute of limitations since the original judgment did not become final until its affirmance on appeal, the statute did not commence to run until that time, the action could not have been commenced until the original judgment had become final, and that it was timely filed. During the pendency of the plaintiff's action on a creditor's claim against a corporation, the corporate defendant was dissolved without provision for payment of the debt. The plaintiff won a judgment but it was not affirmed until about five years after the dissolution. Within three weeks after the judgment was affirmed, he sued the former directors of the corporation and obtained judgment against them. On appeal, the defendants contended that the action was barred by the applicable three-year statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 359]. However, the Supreme Court held that an action on a judgment, as distinguished from execution on a judgment, may not be commenced until the judgment has become final, either on expiration of the period within which an appeal may be taken or, if an appeal is taken, on the issuance of the remittitur when the judgment has been affirmed. Thus, said the Court, while the defendant's liability was created in 1964, the plaintiff could take no action against them until his judgment was affirmed on appeal in 1969, the intervening time was excluded from the limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 359, and the present action, commenced within three weeks after affirmance, was not barred.

[b] Actual Controversy

In Young v. Young (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 85, 223 P.2d 25 , the court of appeal affirmed a judgment for the defendant on the sustaining of his general demurrer to the complaint. The plaintiff alleged that a Washington divorce decree had been entered in her favor and that the decree incorporated a property settlement agreement. Her complaint sought a decree that the Washington decree be established in California, that the decree ratify and incorporate the property settlement agreement, award costs, and grant further relief deemed just and proper. The issue was whether the complaint stated a cause of action in the absence of any allegation that the defendant had failed or refused to comply with the terms of the property settlement agreement or the Washington decree. The court noted the rule that to invoke the jurisdiction of a court of justice, it is essential that there be involved a genuine and existing controversy, calling for present adjudication and involving present rights. Since the allegations of the complaint failed to allege any facts from which it could be concluded that there was any controversy between the parties or that the judgment plaintiff sought would be of any practical or productive result to her, the court concluded that the trial court had property sustained the demurrer without leave to amend.

[c] Failure to Comply With Judgment

Young v. Young (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 85, 223 P.2d 25 , is discussed in § 131.95[3][b].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.96

§ 131.96 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Full Faith and Credit--Judgment Valid on Face--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
vs.	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO VACATE
_____ [name],	)	JUDGMENT ENTERED PURSUANT TO SISTER
Defendant.	)	STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT
	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____
		Judge: _____

_____

THE JUDGMENT OF A COURT OF A SISTER STATE WHICH IS VALID AND REGULAR ON ITS FACE MUST BE GIVEN THE SAME EFFECT IN THIS STATE AS IN THE STATE WHERE IT WAS MADE UNDER THE FULL FAITH AND CREDIT CLAUSE, ARTICLE IV, SECTION 1, OF THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION.

A. Full Faith and Credit. Full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the judicial proceedings of every other state (US Const, Art IV, § 1).

B. Law or Usage in State Where Rendered. Judgments shall have such faith and credit given them in every court as they have by law or usage in the courts of the state from which they are taken (28 U.S.C. § 687).

C. Effect of Judicial Record. The effect of a judicial record of a sister state is the same in California as in the state where it was made (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1913(a)).

D. Judgment Valid and Regular on Its Face. The judgment of a court of a sister state which is valid and regular on its face is to be given full faith and credit in California (Seabron v. Seabron (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 374, 375, 284 P.2d 117).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted by the judgment creditor in opposition to a motion to vacate entry of judgment pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act, when the judgment creditor contends that the sister state judgment is valid and regular on its face, is therefore entitled to full faith and credit in California courts, and must be given the same effect here as it would be given in the state where it was rendered. Of course, it should be borne in mind that there are exceptions to the general rule stated in this form. Thus, for example, an apparently valid and regular sister state judgment will not be accorded full faith and credit if the sister state court did not have jurisdiction of the cause or the parties [Seabron v. Seabron (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 374, 284 P.2d 117] , if the sister state judgment is not final [see § 131.81], or if other defenses exist [see §§ 131.82-131.91].

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[i] Related Uses

When the plaintiff has brought a common law action on the judgment of a sister state court as permitted under the Sister State Money Judgments Acts [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65], because either relief other than the payment of money is involved or the plaintiff seeks interest or for any other reason, the foregoing form may be modified for submission as a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]. Where so used, the memorandum should be accompanied with appropriate supporting affidavits or declarations [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Valid and Regular on Its Face

In Seabron v. Seabron (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 374, 284 P.2d 117 , the court of appeal reversed an order dismissing an order to show cause why a defendant should not pay the plaintiff, his former wife, alimony and support. The order to show cause was filed concurrently with the filing of the plaintiff's complaint for separate maintenance. On the hearing of the order, it was stated by counsel that the plaintiff had left her husband in Alabama, that the defendant had obtained a divorce from her there, and he had never been a California resident. Counsel further stated the plaintiff had induced the defendant to come to California by representing that he could have partial custody of their child but that when the defendant arrived in California to arrange for this, he was served with process in this case. The plaintiff contended on appeal that she had a right to attack the validity of the Alabama decree, which did not award plaintiff alimony, or support on the ground that the Alabama court had no jurisdiction to grant it. The court of appeal stated that it is a familiar principle that a judgment of a court of sister state, if valid and regular on its face, must be accorded full faith and credit in this state, but further stated that if such court was without jurisdiction of either cause or parties, the judgment may be ignored, and that lack of jurisdiction may be shown by evidence other than the record of the judgment. Accordingly, said the court, it followed that the order dismissing the order to show cause must be reversed.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Full Faith and Credit Regardless of Public Policy

In Worthley v. Worthley (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 465, 283 P.2d 19 , the Supreme Court ruled that since the plaintiff did not question the validity of the divorce granted by the Nevada court, that decree, being regular on its face, must be accorded full faith and credit in this state (44 Cal. 2d 465, 467-468) .

In Silbrico Corp. v. Raanan (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 202, 216 Cal. Rptr. 201 , plaintiff moved to have a California judgment entered based on a judgment plaintiff had obtained in a Wisconsin state court. Defendant opposed the motion on the grounds that California's rules pertaining to confession judgments had not been followed, and that the Wisconsin judgment was an unenforceable penalty under California law. The trial court rejected defendant's arguments and entered a California judgment based on the new Wisconsin judgment, and defendant appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court properly gave full faith and credit to the Wisconsin judgment by entering the California judgment. The court relied on World Wide Imports, Inc. v. Bartel (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1010-1011, 193 Cal. Rptr. 830 (discussed above), and held that the sole inquiry on a full faith and credit issue is whether the forum court had fundamental jurisdiction in the case. If jurisdiction was proper, then a California court must give full faith and credit to a sister state judgment, even though the strong public policy of the state of California would have precluded recovery in a California court on the original claim (170 Cal. App. 3d 202, 207-208) .

In World Wide Imports, Inc. v. Bartel (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 193 Cal. Rptr. 830 , plaintiff obtained a California judgment entered based on a judgment obtained in a Washington state court. Defendants moved to vacate the California judgment on the grounds that the Washington judgment was unenforceable because it had been rendered in violation of the right to a jury trial. The superior court denied the motion to vacate, and defendants appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the Washington judgment was entitled to full faith and credit in a California court because the Washington court had jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter, and reasonable notice and opportunity to defend had been given to defendants. As the sister state court had jurisdiction, the California court was required to give full faith and credit to a sister state judgment, even if a strong public policy of the state of California would have precluded recovery in a California court on the original claim. Thus, the issue of whether California's public policy regarding the right to a jury trial would have precluded recovery in a California court was irrelevant, and the Washington judgment was entitled to full faith and credit by the superior court (145 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1010-1012) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsFull Faith & CreditGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil

ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

95 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.97

§ 131.97 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Full Faith and Credit--Judgment Sufficiently Final for Enforcement in California--Judgment Prospectively Modifiable

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.96[1].]

A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT, ALTHOUGH PROSPECTIVELY MODIFIABLE, IS SUFFICIENTLY FINAL TO BE ACCORDED FULL FAITH AND CREDIT IN CALIFORNIA COURTS.

A. Judgment Valid and Regular on Its Face. [See § 131.96[1], Paragraph D.]

B. Judgment Prospectively Modifiable. A judgment or decree for [installment payments or future alimony] is entitled to full faith and credit as to past due installments if the right to them is absolute and vested, even though the judgment or decree may be modified prospectively by future orders (Barber v. Barber (1944) 323 U.S. 77, 79-80, 65 S. Ct. 137, 89 L. Ed. 82).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a judgment creditor in opposing the judgment debtor's motion to vacate judgment entered pursuant to the Sister States Money Judgments Act when the judgment creditor contends that the sister state judgment is sufficiently final in nature to be entitled to full faith and credit, even though it is prospectively modifiable.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.96[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Prospectively Modifiable

Barber v. Barber (1944) 323 U.S. 77, 65 S. Ct. 137, 89 L. Ed. 82 , is discussed in § 131.81[3][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsFull Faith & CreditGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.98

§ 131.98 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Full Faith and Credit--Judgment Sufficiently Final for Enforcement in California--Judgment Unstayed but Under Appeal

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.96[1].]

A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT, WHICH IS UNSTAYED BUT UNDER APPEAL IS SUFFICIENTLY FINAL TO BE ACCORDED FULL FAITH AND CREDIT IN CALIFORNIA COURTS.

A. Judgment Valid and Regular on its Face. [See § 131.96[1], Paragraph D.]

B. Judgment Unstayed but Under Appeal. A sister state judgment which is unstayed but under appeal in that state is final for full faith and credit purposes (Little v. Stevens (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 112, 113-114, 99 Cal. Rptr. 885).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a judgment creditor in opposing the judgment debtor's motion to vacate judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act when the judgment creditor contends that the sister state judgment is sufficiently final in nature to be entitled to full faith and credit, even though the judgment is unstayed but under appeal in the state where it was rendered. It should be noted that if the judgment is under appeal, the judgment debtor may move for a stay of enforcement of a judgment entered under the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50; see § 131.92].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.96[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Unstayed but Under Appeal

In Little v. Stevens (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 112, 99 Cal. Rptr. 885 , the court of appeal affirmed summary judgment for the plaintiff in an action to enforce an Oklahoma money judgment that was unstayed but under appeal in that state. The sole issue, said the court, was whether such a judgment is the type of judgment to which full faith and credit had to be given. The court noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 1913 provides that the effect of a judicial record of a sister state is the same in California as in the state where it was made. Under Oklahoma statutes no proceeding to reverse a judgment would have the effect of staying execution thereof unless the appropriate stay bond were filed. The court noted that no such bond had been filed and that, consequently, the Oklahoma judgment was subject to enforcement in Oklahoma. Accordingly, the court concluded, an action to enforce that judgment in California was proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 1913. The court further noted that its holding accorded with the great weight of apparently numerically limited authority on the point and with Rest, Conflict of Laws, 2d, § 107, 112 and Rest, Judgments, § 41.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.99

§ 131.99 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Nonmodifiable Sister State Money Judgment for Arrearages in Support Payments Enforceable in California Under Sister State Money Judgments Act

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.96[1].]

A NONMODIFIABLE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENT REPRESENTING ARREARAGES IN SUPPORT PAYMENTS MAY BE ENFORCED IN CALIFORNIA PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT.

A. Judgment Valid and Regular on Its Face. [See § 131.96[1], Paragraph D.]

B. Nonmodifiable Money Judgment for Arrearages in Support Payments Enforceable in California Under Sister State Money Judgment Act. Although a support order, as defined in Family Code Section 155, may not be enforced by means of the procedures set forth in the Sister State Money Judgments Act (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10(c)), a nonmodifiable money judgment representing aggregate arrearages in support payments due under a divorce decree is enforceable in California under the Sister State Money Judgments Act (see Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579-581, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26 ; contra Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 513-514, 196 Cal. Rptr. 834).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a judgment creditor in opposition to a judgment debtor's motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act. The ground of opposition is that the judgment is a nonmodifiable money judgment for aggregate arrearages in support payments which is enforceable in California under the act. Counsel should note that two courts of appeal have reached different results on this point, and the decisions do not seem distinguishable on their facts [compare Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 513-514, 196 Cal. Rptr. 834 with Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579-581, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26] . Thus, until the matter is clarified by the Legislature or the Supreme Court, counsel should emphasize the policy considerations supporting his or her position in arguing that the court should adopt that position.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[i] Related Uses

For comments on modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.96[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonmodifiable Money Judgment for Arrearages in Support Payments Enforceable in California Under Sister State Money Judgments Act

In Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26 , an Ohio resident successfully moved in an Ohio court for an order reducing her ex-husband's aggregate arrearages in support payments due under an Ohio divorce decree to a money judgment. The ex-husband, who had previously relocated in California, then filed an action in California to modify the alimony provision of the Ohio divorce decree. The ex-wife appeared specially, moving to quash service of summons due to lack of personal jurisdiction. Her motion was granted, and the ex-husband did not appeal. The ex-wife later registered her judgment in California, pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]. In response, the ex-husband made another motion to modify the support order, and also filed a petition to stay execution of the money judgment. The ex-wife again made a motion to quash, and also moved to strike the motion for modification. The trial court granted her motion to quash, but also granted her ex-husband's application for a protective order, on the ground that the judgment was a support order as defined in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) (now see Fam. Code § 155) and was therefore unenforceable in California by means of the procedures set forth in the Sister State Money Judgments Act [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10(c)]. The ex-wife's motion for reconsideration was denied. She then sought a writ of mandate in the court of appeal to compel the trial court to vacate the protective order.

The court of appeal issued the writ. It held that because the money judgment was nonmodifiable, it was an enforceable sister state judgment under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65 (120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 580-581) . In determining that the judgment was not an unenforceable support order, as defined in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) (now see Fam. Code § 155), the court noted that to give meaning to former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) (now see Fam. Code § 155), it must be interpreted as including only orders that are subject to modification (120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 580) . To interpret the section as including nonmodifiable support orders would defeat both the ex-wife's efforts to obtain an enforceable judgment and the full faith and credit clause of the California Constitution (120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 580-581) .

However, Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26 , was criticized for its analysis of Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) in Neuman v. Barbera (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 437, 441-443, 210 Cal. Rptr. 556 . In Neuman, the court held that out-of-state judgments for child support arrearages must be registered under RURESA to be enforceable. It reversed the denial of a motion to vacate a Pennsylvania support judgment registered under the Sister State Money Judgments Act (SSMJA). The court reasoned that SSMJA specifically excepts enforcement of support orders as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10(c)]. The court noted that in enacting RURESA the Legislature intended that all foreign support orders be enforced under RURESA, despite language indicating that its remedies are cumulative. The court cited Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 196 Cal. Rptr. 834 , which also criticized Liebow. Therefore, the continuing validity of Liebow may be in question.

In Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 196 Cal. Rptr. 834 , plaintiff had reduced arrearages due from defendant under a 1959 divorce order to a money judgment in 1976. Plaintiff then had the judgment entered as a money judgment in California under Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10. The trial court denied defendant's motion to vacate the judgment, but did reduce the amount of the judgment. Defendant appealed, arguing that the trial court should have considered his affirmative defenses to the judgment.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the judgment for support arrearages was a support order under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) (now see Fam. Code § 155) and was therefore not enforceable as a sister-state money judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 (149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 513-514) . The court was not persuaded by the analysis of Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579-581, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26 (discussed above), and held instead that all final judgments imposing a duty of support are within the definition of support order in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k) (now see Fam. Code § 155), and are therefore enforceable only through the procedures of former Fam. Code § 4800 et seq. [now see Fam. Code § 4900 et seq. (Uniform Interstate Family Support Act)]. The court did not address the Full Faith and Credit Clause argument relied on by the court in Liebow.

This conflict between the holdings in Morris and Liebow appears to be based on a difference of opinion over whether or not a judgment for a liquidated sum overdue under the terms of a support order or judgment of divorce or dissolution imposes a duty of support. The court in Morris held that it does [Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 514, 196 Cal. Rptr. 834] , while the court in Liebow treated such a judgment as not different in kind from any other money judgment [see Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 579-581, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26] . A duty of support as defined in RURESA includes the duty to pay arrearages of support past due and unpaid [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(b); now see Fam.Code § 4802(b)]. However, this duty arises under the original support order, and does not require a separate judgment to be enforceable under the RURESA procedures [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1653(k); now see Fam. Code § 155].

If a separate judgment is obtained for a liquidated sum, and the judgment becomes final, under the procedure endorsed in Morris the judgment may be attacked using California law, such as the California statute of limitations [Morris v. Cohen (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 507, 515-516, 196 Cal. Rptr. 834 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1699(a)]. This procedure would appear to violate the Full Faith and Credit Clause of the federal constitution [U.S. Const., art. IV, § 1; see Liebow v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 573, 580-581, 175 Cal. Rptr. 26] . Until the Supreme Court or the Legislature clarifies the effect of a sister-state judgment on a support arrearage and the enforcement thereof, counsel should attempt to persuade the court that the policy behind his or her position is the stronger of the two positions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.100

§ 131.100 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Question of Jurisdiction Litigated in Sister State

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.96[1].]

A DEFENDANT IN AN ACTION ON A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT MAY NOT CLAIM LACK OF FUNDAMENTAL JURISDICTION ON THE PART OF THE SISTER STATE COURT IF THE JURISDICTIONAL ISSUE WAS FULLY AND FAIRLY LITIGATED THERE.

A. Jurisdictional Issue Litigated in Sister State Court. A defendant may not claim lack of fundamental jurisdiction on the part of the sister state court if the jurisdictional issue has been fully and fairly litigated there (Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 8, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357).

B. Decisions as to Jurisdiction Res Judicata. If the court of the sister state which rendered the judgment involved has expressly litigated the question of jurisdiction, that determination is res judicata and is itself protected by the Full Faith and Credit Clause (Sanpietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 208, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by the judgment creditor, who has obtained entry of judgment pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act, in opposition to the judgment debtor's motion to vacate such entry of judgment on the ground that the sister state lacked fundamental jurisdiction or acted in excess of its jurisdiction. For a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to vacate on these grounds, see § 131.82.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.96[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Jurisdictional Issue Litigated in Sister State Court

In Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.82[4][b], the court of appeal stated that under the full faith and credit decisions of the United States Supreme Court, a defendant may not claim lack of fundamental jurisdiction on the part of the sister state court if the jurisdictional issue has been fully and fairly litigated there.

[b] Decision as to Jurisdiction Res Judicata

Sanpietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219 , is discussed in § 131.82[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Jurisdictional Issue Litigated in Sister State Court

Sanpietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219 , is discussed in § 131.82[3][a].

[b] Decision as to Jurisdiction Res Judicata

Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357 , is discussed in § 131.82[4][b].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.101

§ 131.101 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Sister State Court Had Fundamental Jurisdiction--Estoppel of Collateral Attack on Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.96[1].]

A DEFENDANT IN AN ACTION ON A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT WHICH RESTS ON FUNDAMENTAL JURISDICTION IS ESTOPPED FROM COLLATERAL ATTACK ON SUCH A JUDGMENT ON THE GROUND THAT IT EXCEEDS STATUTORY LIMITS ON THE RELIEF GRANTED.

Estoppel of Collateral Attack on Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction. The general rule in California accords res judicata effect to a judgment which rests on fundamental jurisdiction but exceeds statutory limits on relief, and generally one is estopped from collateral attack on such a judgment (Bierl v. McMahon (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 97, 103, 75 Cal. Rptr. 473 ; Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 8, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by the judgment creditor, who has obtained entry of judgment pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act, in opposition to the judgment debtor's motion to vacate such entry of judgment on the ground that the sister state court acted in excess of its jurisdiction. For a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to vacate on this ground, see § 131.82.

[i] Related Uses

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.96[2].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Estoppel of Collateral Attack on Judgment in Excess of Jurisdiction

Bierl v. McMahon (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 97, 75 Cal. Rptr. 473 , is discussed in § 131.82[3][c].

In Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.82[4][b], the court of appeal noted the rule of jurisdictional finality when the issue has been fully and fairly litigated in the sister state court and added that the rule should apply with even more vigor when the subject of attack is not the original court's lack of fundamental jurisdiction but a grant of relief exceeding its defined judicial power, citing the general California rule according res judicata effect to a judgment which rests on fundamental jurisdiction but exceeds statutory limits on relief and permits collateral attack only under unusual circumstances which prevent an earlier and more appropriate attack.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.102

§ 131.102 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Question of Fraud Litigated in Sister State

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.96[1].]

A DEFENDANT IN AN ACTION ON A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT MAY NOT CLAIM THAT FRAUD AFFECTED THE SISTER STATE JUDGMENT IF THE ISSUE OF FRAUD WAS EXPRESSLY LITIGATED IN THAT COURT.

Question of Fraud Litigated in Sister State. If the court of the state which rendered the judgment has expressly litigated the issue of fraud affecting the judgment, that determination becomes res judicata and the judgment is protected by the Full Faith and Credit Clause (Sanpietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 208, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a judgment creditor in opposition to a motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act when the judgment debtor contends that the judgment involved was obtained by fraud but the judgment creditor can show that the matter of fraud was litigated in the sister state. For a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to vacate a judgment entered under the act on the ground that the jurisdiction of the sister state court is subject to attack for extrinsic fraud, see § 131.83.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.96[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Question of Fraud Litigated in Sister State

Sanpietro v. Collins (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 203, 58 Cal. Rptr. 219 , is discussed in § 131.82[3][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.103

§ 131.103 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Statute of Limitations No Bar

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.96[1].]

A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT WHICH IS NOT BARRED BY THE APPLICABLE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS AS OF THE DATE OF THE APPLICATION FOR ENTRY THEREOF PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT IS ENTITLED TO ENFORCEMENT IN CALIFORNIA.

A. Limitation Governed by California Law. [See § 131.87[1], Paragraph B].

B. Action Not Barred as of Date of Application. The requirement of Section 1710.15 of the Code of Civil Procedure that the application for entry of judgment under the Sister State Money Judgments Act must state that an action in California on the sister state judgment is not barred by the applicable statute of limitations necessarily speaks as of the date of the application (Epps v. Russell (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 133 Cal. Rptr. 30).

[Optional] C. Decree for Future Payments as Continuing Judgment. A decree for future payments is a continuing judgment (Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 115, 109 P.2d 701).

[Optional] D. Limitation Applies to Final Judgment Only. The statute of limitations does not run on an action on a prior judgment until that judgment becomes final (Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 525-526, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by the judgment creditor in opposition to a motion to vacate entry of judgment pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act when the judgment debtor contends that the statute of limitations bars the action [see § 131.87, 131.88] and the judgment creditor contends that the statute of limitations is not a bar to the action. The judgment creditor's contention would be that as of the date of the application for entry of the judgment the California action is not barred (1) by the applicable statute of limitations, (2) since a decree for future payments is a continuing judgment, or (3) since the judgment did not become final until a point in time within the limitation period.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For comments on the modification of this form for use in connection with a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c], see § 131.96[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Not Barred as of Date of Application

In Epps v. Russell (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 201, 133 Cal. Rptr. 30 , the court of appeal reversed an order vacating a judgment entered in favor of the plaintiff pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act, holding that the general rules concerning the filing of civil actions applied and that the California statute of limitations had not expired as of the time the plaintiff's application for entry of the sister state judgment was filed. On May 4, 1965, the plaintiff obtained a Texas judgment against the defendant. On April 29, 1975, he filed an application for entry of a judgment based on that judgment. On May 9, 1975, judgment was entered pursuant to the application. Defendant then moved to vacate on the ground that the 10-year statute of limitations applied to, and barred, the plaintiff's proceeding. The motion was granted, and on appeal from the order entered on the motion, the court of appeal held that the filing of the application is the equivalent of the filing of a complaint in an action on a judgment and that, under long settled principles, such a filing stops the running of a statute of limitations. The court noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.15 provides that the application for entry of judgment must include a statement that an action in this state on the sister state judgment is not barred by the applicable statute of limitations. That requirement, the court held, necessarily speaks as of the date of the application, not as to some indefinite future date. The court added that in the absence of any express statute of limitations in the Sister State Money Judgments Act, it could see no reason why the general rules concerning the filing of civil actions did not apply.

[b] Decree for Future Payments as Continuing Judgment

Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 109 P.2d 701 , is discussed in § 131.87[3][a].

[c] Limitation Applicable to Final Judgment Only

Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981 , is discussed in § 131.95[3][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to VacateGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.104

§ 131.104 Opposing Motion to Vacate Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)] Entered Pursuant to Sister State Money Judgments Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1710.10-1710.65]--Untimely Motion

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.96[1].]

A MOTION TO VACATE A JUDGMENT ENTERED PURSUANT TO THE SISTER STATE MONEY JUDGMENTS ACT MUST BE MADE NOT LATER THAN 30 DAYS AFTER SERVICE OF NOTICE OF ENTRY OF JUDGMENT AND PROPER PROOF THEREOF.

Time for Motion to Vacate. The judgment debtor must make his/her motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act not later than 30 days after service of notice of entry of judgment pursuant to Section 1710.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure and proper proof thereof (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40(b)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by the judgment creditor on opposition to the judgment debtor's motion to vacate the entry of a sister state money judgment pursuant to the Sister State Money Judgments Act when the motion was filed more than 30 days after proper service of notice on him or her of the entry of the judgment.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Vacate

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.105

§ 131.105 Opposing Demurer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Action on Judgment--Finality, Regularity, and Jurisdiction Sufficiently Pleaded--Judgment Enforceable

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Defendant.	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO DEMURRER TO COM-)	PLAINT IN ACTION ON JUDGMENT
	)

_____

IN AN ACTION ON A _____ [DOMESTIC or SISTER STATE] JUDGMENT, IN PLEADING THE JUDGMENT IT IS NOT NECESSARY TO STATE THE FACTS CONCERNING JURISDICTION BUT ONLY THAT THE JUDGMENT WAS DULY GIVEN AND HAS BECOME FINAL [AND WHEN SO PLEADED, A SISTER STATE JUDGMENT IS ENTITLED TO ENFORCEMENT IN THIS STATE].

A. Pleading of Judgments. In pleading a judgment or other judicial determination, it is not necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but such judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made and to have become final (Code Civ. Proc. § 456).

[Optional] B. Action on Judgment Permissible if Within Statutory Period. An action on a judgment against either a private defendant or a local public entity may be brought within 10 years after the judgment became final, excluding any period tolled while the judgment debtor was out of state (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 337.5, 351, 683.050; Barkley v. City of Blue Lake (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1745, 1750-1751, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 315 ; Green v. Zissis (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1219, 1222, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406 ; Pratali v. Gates (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 632, 636-637, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 733).

[Optional] C. Law Controlling Validity and Finality. [See § 131.81[1], Paragraph C.]

[Optional] D. Judgment Prospectively Modifiable. [See § 131.97[1], Paragraph B.]

[Optional] E. Judgment Unstayed but Under Appeal. [See § 131.98[1], Paragraph B.]

[Optional] F. Judgment Valid and Regular on Its Face. [See § 131.96[1], Paragraph D.]

[Optional] G. Modifiable Judgment Enforceable as Matter of Comity. [See § 131.99[1], Paragraph D.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a plaintiff suing on a domestic or sister state judgment in opposition to a demurrer the grounds of which are that the complaint does not sufficiently allege or indicate the finality of the judgment sued on or the regularity thereof or that the that the pleadings (incorporating the judgment sued on) indicate that the judgment sued on is prospectively modifiable or is subject to appeal under the law of the rendering jurisdiction. Thus, this form is designed to show that in pleading a domestic or sister state judgment it is only necessary to allege that it was duly given and that it has become final and as to sister state judgments that: the law controlling the validity and finality of the judgment is that of the rendering jurisdiction; if the judgment is prospectively modifiable or is under appeal but unstayed it is entitled to enforcement in California; and such a judgment is entitled to enforcement in California either under the Full Faith and Credit Clause or, even though it is modifiable, as a matter of comity.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action on Judgment Permissible if Within Statutory Period

In Barkley v. City of Blue Lake (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1745, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 315 , a judgment creditor attempted to enforce execution of a judgment against a city by a mandamus action. However, the judgment creditor failed to timely prosecute that action, and it was dismissed for not being brought to trial before the 10-year period under Gov. Code § 970.1 elapsed. Thus, the judgment creditor filed a new action, on the judgment. The city demurred, and the trial court sustained the demurrer.

The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal of the execution action but reversed the sustaining of the demurrer on the action on the judgment, holding that the judgment creditor could bring an action on the judgment against a local public entity. An action on the judgment is a separate, independent action on the judgment. The right to bring an action on the judgment has been established for a private defendant, if brought within 10 years after the judgment became final, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 683.020. The enforcement of money judgments against a local public entity is not governed by the same statutes (Gov. Code § 970 et seq.) as those actions against a private defendant (Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.). Nevertheless, the Law Revision Commission comments to Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq. indicate that the Legislature intended to preserve the right to bring an action on a money judgment even against a local public entity. Thus, the judgment creditor in this case could bring an action on the judgment against the city. Since it was filed within 10 years after the judgment became final, the trial court erred in dismissing it as untimely (18 Cal. App. 4th 1745, 1748-1751) .

In Pratali v. Gates (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 632, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 733 , a judgment creditor obtained a judgment against a private defendant. Afterward, the judgment creditor attempted to demand payment from the judgment debtor, who had moved out of state, and filed an application to renew the judgment, which was denied as untimely. The judgment creditor then filed a separate action on the judgment. The trial court entered judgment for the judgment creditor.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the judgment creditor had properly brought a separate, independent action on the judgment, that was distinguishable from the application to renew the prior judgment. The separate action on the judgment was authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 683.050, and was timely commenced under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5. Although more than 10 years had elapsed between the time the original judgment became final and the time the judgment creditor filed the action on the judgment, the 10-year limitations period was tolled during the time that the judgment debtor was out of state, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 351 (4 Cal. App. 4th 632, 636-638) .

In Green v. Zissis (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1219, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406 , the judgment creditor obtained a judgment against a private defendant, who then left the state. Later, the judgment creditor obtained a renewal of the judgment; however, that was vacated because it had not been timely filed. The judgment creditor then filed an independent action on the judgment. The trial court found that the judgment had become unenforceable because the judgment creditor had failed to timely renew it, and found for the judgment debtor.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the judgment creditor was entitled to judgment on the action on the judgment, because the action was an independent action properly brought. An action on the judgment may be commenced after the period for obtaining an execution of the judgment has expired and there is no other means of enforcing the judgment except by action. The judgment creditor properly brought the action on the judgment, within the Code Civ. § 337.5 10-year limitations period. Since the judgment debtor had left the state, that limitations period was tolled pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 351, and the action was timely. Thus, the judgment creditor was entitled to judgment (5 Cal. App. 4th 1219, 1222-1223) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.106

§ 131.106 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] in Action on Judgment--Sufficient Pleading of Nonperformance

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.105[1].]

IN AN ACTION ON A JUDGMENT, A COMPLAINT IS SUFFICIENT IF IT ALLEGES THAT THE OBLIGATION IMPOSED BY THE JUDGMENT HAS NOT BEEN PERFORMED.

Pleading Nonperformance. In an action on a judgment, a complaint is sufficient if it alleges that the obligation imposed by the judgment has not been performed (Bronzan v. Drobaz (1892) 93 Cal. 647, 650, 29 P. 254).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint in an action on a judgment when the ground of the demurrer is that the complaint fails to allege sufficient facts to show that the obligation imposed by the judgment has not been performed.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pleading Nonperformance

In Bronzan v. Drobaz (1892) 93 Cal. 647, 29 P. 254 , the Supreme Court affirmed a trial court's judgment for the plaintiff in an action on a prior judgment following the overruling of a general demurrer. The complaint stated that the judgment sued on was duly given and made and that no part of it had been paid. The defendant contended that the complaint did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. However, the Court held that the complaint was sufficient (93 Cal. 647, 650) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Pleading Nonperformance

In Young v. Young (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 85, 223 P.2d 25 , the facts and background of which are discussed in § 131.95[3][b], the court of appeal held that the trial court had properly sustained a general demurrer because the complaint failed to allege any facts from which it could be concluded that there was any controversy or that the defendant had failed or refused to comply with the terms of the prior decree (100 Cal. App. 2d 85, 86) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
D. Actions On Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities §§ 131.107-131.119

[Reserved]

§§ 131.107[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
E. Satisfaction Of Judgment

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.120

§ 131.120 Supporting Motion for Order Compelling Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment Satisfied in Fact or Entering Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d)]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER COMPELLING ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION OF JUDGMENT SATISFIED IN FACT OR ENTERING SATISFACTION WITHOUT ACKNOWLEDGMENT [Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d)]
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

_____

THE COURT IN WHICH A JUDGMENT IS RENDERED MAY, ON MOTION, COMPEL A JUDGMENT CREDITOR OR HIS/HER ASSIGNEE TO GIVE AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION OF A JUDGMENT SATISFIED IN FACT, OR ORDER THE ENTRY OF SATISFACTION TO BE MADE WITHOUT ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

A. Motion Made in Court in Which Judgment Was Rendered. When a judgment is satisfied in fact, the judgment debtor may compel satisfaction of the judgment by motion in the original action in which the judgment was rendered (LaFleur v. M.A. Burns Lbr. Co. (1922) 188 Cal. 321, 328, 205 P. 102 ; Chambreau v. Coughlan (1968) 263 Cal. App.

2d 712, 717, 69 Cal. Rptr. 783).

B. Statutory Authority of Court to Compel Acknowledgment of Satisfaction or Order Entry of Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment. When a money judgment is satisfied, except as pursuant to a writ of execution, the judgment debtor, the owner of property subject to a judgment lien created under the judgment, or a person having a security interest in or a lien on personal property subject to the lien may apply to the court on noticed motion for an order requiring the judgment creditor or his or her assignee of record to comply with a demand for acknowledgment of satisfaction. The court may either order the judgment creditor to comply with the demand or order the court clerk to enter satisfaction of the judgment (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.240, 724.050(a), (d)).

[Optional] C. Judgment Satisfied by Payment. Payment by the judgment debtor satisfies and extinguishes the judgment (Salveter v. Salveter (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 335, 337, 53 P.2d 381).

[Optional] D. Satisfaction of Judgment by Partial Payment in Accord and Satisfaction. A judgment may be discharged and satisfied by partial payment in accord and satisfaction (Schwartz v. California Claim Service (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 47, 52-53, 125 P.2d 883).

[Optional] E. Covenant Not to Execute as Grounds for Compelling Satisfaction of Judgment. When there is a single judgment debtor, a covenant not to execute against him or her has the effect of an outright release, and the judgment may be considered satisfied in fact for purposes of a motion under Section 724.050(d) of the Code of Civil Procedure (former Code Civ. Proc. § 675(a)) to compel satisfaction of judgment (Yanchor v. Kagan (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 544, 552, 99 Cal. Rptr. 367).

[Optional] F. Satisfaction of Foreign Money-Judgment Established in California. When a foreign judgment for money, subsequently established in California under the _____ [for actions commenced after January 1, 2008: Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.) or, for actions commenced prior to January 1, 2008: Uniform Foreign Money Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.)], is satisfied in the foreign jurisdiction in the currency of that country, defendant is entitled to entry of a satisfaction of the California judgment, notwithstanding the fact that the value of the foreign currency, because of fluctuation in value, is less than that of the American dollars into which the foreign judgment had been converted in the California judgment (Pecaflor Construction Co. v. Landes (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 342, 345-350, 243 Cal. Rptr. 605).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted by a judgment debtor, the owner of real or personal property subject to a judgment lien, or a person having a security interest in or a lien on personalty subject to the judgment lien in support of a motion to compel the judgment creditor or his or her assignee of record [see Code Civ. Proc. § 680.240], to give a written acknowledgment of satisfaction of a judgment, or to order the entry of satisfaction without acknowledgment. Optional Paragraph D should be inserted when the judgment is satisfied by partial payment in accord and satisfaction. For a form of memorandum of points and authorities for use when the judgment is satisfied by offsetting cross demands for money, see § 131.121.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel should show that the judgment was satisfied in full by payment of a cashier's check, and that the judgment creditor was served with a demand for acknowledgment but to date has not complied with the demand. In addition, counsel should attach declarations to the notice of motion and memorandum which show that the judgment has been satisfied in fact.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a notice of motion to compel satisfaction of judgment, a declaration in support of such a motion, and an order granting the motion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion Made in Court in Which Judgment Was Rendered

In LaFleur v. M.A. Burns Lbr. Co. (1922) 188 Cal. 321, 205 P. 102 , plaintiff brought an action against defendant to recover damages for personal injuries plaintiff sustained while employed by defendant. The trial court rendered a judgment for plaintiff which was affirmed on appeal. When the appeal was taken, an insurance company became surety for defendant and gave an appeal bond. Plaintiff assigned his interest in the judgment to his attorney for consideration, and defendant's insurance company subsequently paid the attorney the amount of the judgment. Defendant then successfully moved the court to order entry of satisfaction of the judgment. The insurance company appealed the order on the ground that by right of subrogation it stood in the shoes of the plaintiff and his assignee and thus had the right to keep the judgment unsatisfied of record. Defendant contended, inter alia, that the proceeding to compel satisfaction of the judgment was a special proceeding separate from the main action; the purported assignment of the judgment from plaintiff's assignee to the insurance company was made before the special proceeding commenced; and the insurance company was therefore not permitted to maintain an appeal in the plaintiff's name. The Supreme Court held that the motion to compel entry of satisfaction was merely a part of the original action and not a special proceeding, and that the insurance company, as an assignee of plaintiff, was entitled to maintain an appeal of the order in the plaintiff's name.

In Chambreau v. Coughlan (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 712, 69 Cal. Rptr. 783 , appellant and respondents entered into a stipulated judgment for $8,025, execution on which was to be stayed as long as respondents made an initial payment of $500 and monthly installments of $200 thereafter until a total of $5,656.19 was paid, at which time appellant was to give respondents a full satisfaction of judgment. Respondents thereafter paid appellant this sum in 27 monthly installments. One of the installments, however, was not paid on time because of a bank error which resulted in the payment check being returned by the bank. After respondents made their last installment payment, they successfully filed a motion to compel satisfaction of the judgment. Appellant appealed the order on the grounds, in part, that the late payment constituted a default which made the entire amount of the judgment due, and that any motion to seek relief from the default was barred by respondents' failure to file it within six months after the default as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)). The court of appeal stated that when the judgment was satisfied in fact, the respondents had a right to compel satisfaction of judgment by motion in the original action. Because this latter motion could not be filed until the last installment had been paid, respondents were not required to seek relief from their default since the motion to compel satisfaction, filed within two months after the last installment was paid, was timely.

[b] Judgment Satisfied by Payment

In Salveter v. Salveter (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 335, 53 P.2d 381 , plaintiff sought to set aside a writ of execution which had been issued on the basis of an affidavit which falsely stated that plaintiff had failed to pay defendant a sum which he had been ordered to pay by a previous court order. The trial court entered judgment against plaintiff after sustaining defendant's demurrer to the complaint on the grounds that the order issuing the writ of execution constituted a final judgment on the merits against the plaintiff and that it was therefore "res judicata" that plaintiff owed defendant this sum. In reversing the trial court, the court of appeal rejected this contention and stated that a writ of execution must be based on a valid and subsisting judgment which has not been satisfied, and that payment of the judgment satisfies and extinguishes the judgment. Since the demurrer admitted that the defendant had in fact been paid in full, there was no valid and unsatisfied judgment on which the writ of execution could be based.

[c] Satisfaction of Judgment by Partial Payment in Accord and Satisfaction

Schwartz v. California Claim Service (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 47, 125 P.2d 883 , was an action for damages and equitable relief in which plaintiff alleged that (1) he had offered defendant a part payment in full satisfaction of a judgment previously rendered against plaintiff, which defendant had accepted in writing; (2) plaintiff had made this part payment to defendant; and (3) defendant had thereafter caused a writ of execution to be issued and levied against plaintiff's bank account. Plaintiff sought damages and equitable relief. The trial court rendered a judgment on the pleadings for defendant. The court of appeal reversed, considering and rejecting defendant's argument, on the basis of the former common-law rule that an agreement to satisfy a judgment for less than its total amount is without consideration. The court held that a judgment constitutes an obligation within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1524 that can be extinguished by part performance if expressly accepted by the creditor in writing.

[d] Covenant Not to Execute as Grounds for Compelling Satisfaction of Judgment

In Yanchor v. Kagan (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 544, 99 Cal. Rptr. 367 , plaintiff induced defendant into testifying on plaintiff's behalf and into not putting on a defense by both orally assuring him that he would seek a judgment only against the codefendant and not against defendant and executing a document promising not to execute on any judgment obtained against defendant. Thereafter, plaintiff obtained judgment against defendant and attempted to enforce it. Defendant successfully moved the trial court for an order entering satisfaction of the judgment, and plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding first that the agreement not to execute was binding on plaintiff. The court did note that former Code Civ. Proc. § 675(a) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d)], which authorizes the court to compel a judgment creditor to give acknowledgment of satisfaction or order the entry of satisfaction to be made without acknowledgment, applies only if it clearly appears that the judgment has been satisfied in fact, but it held that a binding covenant not to execute is the equivalent of an outright release which satisfies the judgment, and that the defendant was therefore entitled to an order entering satisfaction of the judgment.

[e] Satisfaction of Foreign Money-Judgment Established in California

In Pecaflor Construction Co. v. Landes (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 342, 243 Cal. Rptr. 605 , plaintiffs had obtained a judgment for damages for breach of contract against defendant in Canada in Canadian dollars. Subsequently, they had the Canadian judgment established in California under the Uniform Foreign Money Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.) [now see Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.), applicable to actions commenced after January 1, 2008] which judgment was rendered in American dollars at the exchange rate in effect at the time the Canadian judgment was entered. In the time between entry of the Canadian judgment and entry of the California judgment, the Canadian dollar had fallen in value as against the American dollar. Defendant paid the Canadian judgment in Canada in Canadian dollars and received orders of satisfaction of judgment. He then moved the California court for an order to compel acknowledgment of full satisfaction of the California judgment based on satisfaction of the Canadian judgment. Plaintiffs opposed the motion on the ground that the fall in value of the Canadian dollar in relation to the American dollar resulted in a deficiency of some $18,000. The motion was granted, and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the superior court correctly deemed the California enforcing judgment satisfied in full by satisfaction of the underlying Canadian judgment in Canadian dollars, and that the trial court's order compelling acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment was not in error (198 Cal. App. 3d 342, 350-351) . The court further held that a California court, when enforcing a foreign judgment rendered in foreign currency, must ordinarily convert the foreign currency to American dollars using the exchange rate that was in effect at the time of the foreign judgment (198 Cal. App. 3d 342, 345, 350) , although this rule does not prevent the parties from showing that they had an agreement that one side alone would bear the risk of postjudgment currency fluctuations (198 Cal. App. 3d 342, 350) . The court explained that just as the domestic forum, sitting as a trial court, must ignore currency fluctuations predating the time when the defendant had an obligation arising under domestic law, a domestic court, in an enforcement action, should ignore currency fluctuations that predate the enforcing judgment, and that no obligation arises in California until the foreign judgment is established here (198 Cal. App. 3d 342, 347) . Allowing the court to consider prejudgment fluctuations would encourage the foreign judgment-creditor to enforce the judgment in California whenever the American dollar had risen against the foreign currency and would promote forum shopping (198 Cal. App. 3d 342, 347-348) . The court said that it would also make the judgment debtor an insurer, effectively allowing the plaintiff to speculate without risk of loss, that if the American dollar rose, the creditor would be put in the hindsight position of having invested the judgment in dollars, that if the dollar fell, the creditor would try to enforce the judgment in the foreign forum, and that California policy does not call for such a result. The court explained that California generally does not protect domestic plaintiffs against such factors as inflation or the cost of borrowing money, especially in contract actions, and that to the extent recognition has been given to these factors, the issue has arisen in the context of tort causes in which the purposes and calculation of damages differ from those in contract actions (198 Ca. App. 3d 342, 348) . The court observed that our courts have no reason to put a foreign plaintiff in a better position than a California plaintiff, and that, similarly, they have no reason to place a foreign judgment-creditor in a better position than he would have enjoyed in the foreign forum. The court said it had been directed to no authority indicating that Canadian courts make allowances for postjudgment declines in the Canadian dollar as against foreign currency and added that the Canadian court apparently considered the judgment satisfied by defendant's payment without regard for the relative strength of the American dollar (198 Cal. App. 3d 342, 348) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & Satisfaction

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
E. Satisfaction Of Judgment

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.121

§ 131.121 Supporting Motion for Order Compelling Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment Satisfied in Fact or Entering Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d)]--Judgment Satisfied Through Setoff of Cross Demands

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.120[1].]

THE COURT IN WHICH A JUDGMENT IS RENDERED MAY, ON MOTION, COMPEL A JUDGMENT CREDITOR OR HIS/HER ASSIGNEE TO GIVE AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION OF A JUDGMENT SATISFIED IN FACT, OR ORDER THE ENTRY OF SATISFACTION TO BE MADE WITHOUT AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT. IN SATISFYING THE JUDGMENT, THE DEBTOR MAY OFFSET ANY JUDGMENT BENEFICIALLY OWNED BY HIM/HER AGAINST THE CREDITOR.

A. Motion to Be Made in Original Action in Court in Which Judgment Was Rendered. [See § 131.120[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Statutory Authority of Court to Compel Acknowledgment of Satisfaction or Order Entry of Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment. [See § 131.120[1], Paragraph B.]

C. Judgment Debtor's Right to Satisfy Judgment by Offsetting Judgment. A judgment debtor who by assignment or otherwise becomes the beneficial owner of judgment against his or her judgment creditor may go into the court in which the judgment against him or her was rendered and have his or her judgment offset against the first judgment (Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 ; Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 649, 128 P.2d 9).

D. Right of Equitable Offset Exists Independent of Statute. The right of a judgment debtor to satisfy, in whole or in part, a judgment held against him or her out of a judgment which he or she owns against the judgment creditor exists independent of statute and is based upon the inherent power of the court to do justice to the parties before it (Salaman v. Bolt (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 907, 918, 141 Cal. Rptr. 841).

E. Setoff as Matter of Right Unless Other Equitable Considerations Preclude It. Setoff of cross demands is a matter of right, unless the judgment creditor establishes the existence of facts supporting some equitable principle which precludes it (Salaman v. Bolt (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 907, 919, 141 Cal. Rptr. 841 ; Margott v. Gem Properties, Inc. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 849, 854, 855, 111 Cal. Rptr. 1).

[Optional] F. Insolvency of Judgment Creditor as Justifying Equitable Offset. The insolvency of the judgment creditor is an equitable ground justifying an offset of mutual cross demands (Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 556-557, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649).

[Optional] G. Judgment Debtor's Right to Choose Which Claims to Offset. The judgment debtor, not the judgment creditor, has the right to choose which of several claims possessed by the judgment debtor against the judgment creditor should be offset (Margott v. Gem Properties, Inc. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 849, 855, 111 Cal. Rptr. 1).

[Optional] H. Cross Demand Barred by Statute of Limitations if Separately Asserted May Be Used as Setoff If Pleaded as Defense. A judgment debtor may set off against a judgment a claim for money which he or she owns against the judgment creditor if he or she pleads such claim as a defense to the action, notwithstanding that an independent action on that claim would be barred by the statute of limitations at the time of the filing of the answer, provided that the judgment debtor's claim and the claim which is the subject of the judgment coexisted at any point in time when neither claim was barred by the statute of limitations (see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70).

[Optional] J. Right of Equitable Offset Not Defeated by Assignment of Judgment. A judgment debtor's right to offset judgments or claims he or she owns against the judgment creditor is not defeated by a subsequent assignment of the judgment by the judgment creditor as to claims or judgments owned by the judgment debtor at the time of, or before, notice of the assignment (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 368, 431.70; Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 649, 128 P.2d 9).

[Optional] K. Compelling Setoff Against Assignee of Judgment Creditor. Setoff of a cross demand existing against the judgment creditor may be compelled against an assignee of the judgment although the assignee takes without notice of the cross demand and for value (Machado v. Borges (1915) 170 Cal. 501, 502-503, 150 P. 351).

[Optional] L. Setoff of Individual Against Joint and Several Claim. An individual claim may be set off against a joint and several claim (Whittier v. Visscher (1922) 189 Cal. 450, 456, 209 P. 23).

[Optional] M. Priority of Equitable Offset Against Statutory Lien. The existence of a prior lien on a judgment does not give the lien priority over a judgment debtor's right to offset a judgment subsequently obtained against the judgment creditor. As between a statutory lien and the right of equitable offset, the offset is given an equitable preference absent the existence of some facts establishing an equitable principle precluding it (Salaman v. Bolt (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 907, 918, 919, 141 Cal. Rptr. 841).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a judgment debtor in support of a motion to compel the judgment creditor or his or her assignee or attorney to give a written acknowledgment of satisfaction of a judgment satisfied in fact, or to order the entry of satisfaction to be made without an acknowledgment. This form should be used where the judgment debtor alleges that the judgment against him or her has been satisfied by an offsetting judgment which the judgment debtor owns against the judgment creditor. When the judgment has been satisfied by some means other than by offsetting cross demands, counsel should use § 131.120.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Satisfaction of Judgment Through Setoff of Cross Demand

The courts have held that a judgment debtor who by assignment or otherwise becomes the beneficial owner of a claim against his or her judgment creditor may have a court in equity offset the amount of that claim against the judgment [Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649] . The offsetting claim need not have been reduced to judgment [Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 ; Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 649, 128 P.2d 9] , nor must the claim be liquidated [Hauger v. Gates (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 752, 755, 269 P.2d 609] . The setoff may be presented by a motion in the court in which the judgment was rendered [see Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 649, 128 P.2d 9] or by an independent equitable action [Norman v. Berney (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 424, 434, 45 Cal. Rptr. 467] .

[b] Setoff of Claim Not Reduced to Judgment

It is unlikely that a judgment debtor can set off a claim against the judgment by a motion in the court in which the judgment was rendered when the claim itself has never been reduced to judgment, and the foregoing form is limited to supporting a motion to compel satisfaction only where the claim has been reduced to judgment. There are at least two reasons for this. One is that the statutory basis for the setoff rule was changed when former Code Civ. Proc. § 440 was repealed and replaced by Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 440 provided that when cross demands exist between persons under such circumstances that if one had brought an action against the other, a counterclaim could have been set up, the two demands are deemed compensated so far as they equal each other. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 now provides in pertinent part that where cross demands for money existed between persons at any time when neither demand was barred by the statute of limitations, and an action is thereafter commenced by one such person, the other person may assert in his or her answer the defense of payment in that the two demands are compensated so far as they equal each other, notwithstanding that an independent action asserting his or her claim would at the time of filing his or her answer be barred by the statute of limitations.

The comment of the California Law Revision Commission to this section states that although Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 continues the substantive effect of former Code Civ. Proc. § 440, it is expressly limited to cross demands for money, and specifies the procedure for pleading the defense provided by that section. Thus, in any case, if the claim was not reduced to judgment and was never included in the defendant's answer, it is unlikely that at the time the judgment is sought to be enforced, the defendant could offset his or her claim at least when it was barred by the statute of limitations at the time plaintiff commenced his or her action.

In addition to any argument based on the legislative changes in the law governing setoffs, there appear to be no cases in which a motion to compel the entry of satisfaction of judgment was the means by which the judgment debtor adjudicated his or her claim against the judgment creditor and had it set off against the judgment. Instead, the judgment debtor's remedy is to enjoin the enforcement of the judgment by demonstrating that enforcement would otherwise be unjust [see Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555-556, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 (specifying factors based on probability and amount of recovery and insolvency of judgment creditor for exercise of trial court's discretion to stay enforcement of execution)]. While the courts have made clear that at the time the judgment debtor by assignment, or otherwise, has become the beneficial owner of the claim, the claim need not be reduced to judgment or even have been liquidated [Coonan v. Loewenthal (1905) 147 Cal. 218, 222-225, 81 P. 527] , no court in the absence of some specific provision has permitted the judgment debtor to offset a claim which has not been reduced to judgment.

For example, in Jones v. Mortimer (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 627, 630-632, 170 P.2d 893 , the former Building and Loan Association Commissioner, now Savings and Loan Commissioner, set off the amount due on certain tax assessments plaintiff owed as a shareholder in a corporation against an unrelated judgment that plaintiff had recovered for services rendered to the corporation. Plaintiff, in a separate action to enforce the judgment for services rendered, argued that the commissioner had no power to set off the tax assessment and that to permit a setoff would deprive him of his right to attack the validity of the assessment. In response, the Supreme Court held that under the former Building and Loan Association Act, now Savings and Loan Association Act, collection by action was not the only means for the commissioner to enforce the assessment. Instead, he could take the additional step of collecting the assessment, in this case by setoff. The Court also stated that the lack of opportunity to contest the validity of the assessment was not an issue, since it presumed that by answer to plaintiff's complaint, the commissioner had set up the assessment and the claim of offset. (Neither the complaint nor the answer were before the Court.)

Not at issue in the case was whether the commissioner as a judgment debtor could have set off the assessment on motion, since the action was a separate action to enforce plaintiff's judgment. It is arguable, however, that the commissioner could have moved to set off the assessment, but it would be presumably because the commissioner had the power to enforce collection of the assessment by a means other than a civil action.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Debtor's Right to Satisfy Judgment by Offsetting Judgment

In Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 , plaintiff recovered a judgment against defendant in a trade libel action for $30,000 general damages and $5,000 punitive damages. On appeal, the judgment was reversed for insufficient evidence on the issue of damages, and the cause was remanded for a new trial on this issue. Defendant, who was insolvent at the time, was awarded a judgment of $1,800 for costs of appeal. Plaintiff's motion to quash the writ of execution issued on this judgment was denied, and he applied to the Supreme Court for a writ of prohibition restraining the lower court from issuing a writ of execution on the judgment. In issuing the writ, the Court stated the general rule that a judgment debtor who, by assignment or otherwise, becomes owner of a claim against his judgment creditor in equity may have his claim set off against the judgment, and the fact that the claim has not itself been reduced to judgment is no obstacle to its use as a setoff. The Court noted that the insolvency of the party against whom the relief is sought affords sufficient ground for invoking this equitable principle. The Court then stated that the judgment debtor should not be required to pay the judgment prior to determining the validity of his own claim where the creditor is insolvent, since to do so would in all likelihood deprive the judgment debtor of both his right of setoff and recovery of his own judgment. Noting the trial court's power to stay execution of a judgment on the ground that there is an action pending on a disputed claim by the judgment debtor against the judgment creditor, the Court set out guidelines for the trial in determining whether execution should be enjoined.

In Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 128 P.2d 9 , Adams obtained a judgment against Harrison for $11,000 which was affirmed on appeal. Adams, who was insolvent, assigned his interest in the judgment to his wife for consideration. Thereafter, a third party assigned to Harrison, solely for purposes of collection, a promissory note for $3,800 owed by Adams to the third party. Harrison subsequently commenced this action to set off the amount due on the note against the judgment, depositing the amount due under the judgment with the county clerk. The trial court rendered judgment for Harrison against Adams for the amount of the note, but refused to offset this amount against the judgment against Harrison and ordered the county clerk to pay the full amount deposited to Adams's wife. Harrison appealed the latter part of the judgment, and the Supreme Court affirmed.

The Court first stated the general rule that a judgment debtor who has, by assignment or otherwise, become the owner of a judgment or claim against his judgment creditor may go into the court in which the judgment against him was rendered and have his judgment offset against the first judgment. The Court also noted that such a setoff may be compelled even against an assignee of the judgment who took without notice and for value, and that the debtor may set off against the judgment claims acquired after assignment of the judgment, but prior to notice to the debtor of the assignment.

The Court stated, however, that the judgment debtor as assignee must be the beneficial owner of a claim or judgment in order to use it as a setoff against a judgment against him. An assignee for collection, held the Court, is merely an agent for the assignor and not the beneficial owner of the claim. The Court therefore ruled that Harrison was not entitled to offset the amount due on the note assigned to him against the judgment against him, and that Adams's wife, who was a bona fide assignee of the judgment for value, was entitled to the entire amount deposited with the county clerk.

[b] Right of Equitable Offset Exists Independent of Statute

In Salaman v. Bolt (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 907, 141 Cal. Rptr. 841 , plaintiffs commenced an unlawful detainer action against defendant, which resulted in a judgment for defendant on equitable grounds. The trial court awarded defendant attorney's fees and costs. Defendant thereafter confessed judgment to his attorney Field for an amount covering attorney's fees for services rendered in defending the unlawful detainer action. Field then moved to impress a lien on defendant's cause of action against plaintiffs for attorney's fees. The trial court denied this motion, but the order was reversed on appeal. Thereafter, in an unrelated action, plaintiffs recovered a judgment by default against defendant, and moved to offset their judgment against defendant's judgment for attorney's fees. Field opposed this motion arguing that his lien had priority over the offset claimed by plaintiffs. The trial court endorsed Field's lien on defendant's judgment and denied the offset. Plaintiffs appealed, and the court of appeal reversed.

The court first ruled that Field had a valid lien against defendant's judgment against the plaintiffs. The court stated, however, that a judgment debtor's right to satisfy a judgment held against him out of a judgment or claim which he acquires against the judgment creditor exists independent of statute and rests on the inherent power of the court to do justice to the parties before it, and that this offset is a matter of right in the absence of facts establishing an equitable principle which precludes it. Since Field's lien was only on defendant's right to recover from plaintiffs, and since this right was subject to plaintiffs' right to offset judgments or claims owned by them against defendant, the court ruled that it was error for the lower court to give priority to Field's lien and to deny the plaintiffs' right of offset.

[c] Setoff as Matter of Right Unless Other Equitable Considerations Preclude It

In Margott v. Gem Properties, Inc. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 849, 111 Cal. Rptr. 1 , plaintiff recovered a judgment against defendants setting aside a sale under a deed of trust for fraud and awarding incidental, compensatory, and punitive damages. On appeal, defendants contended, inter alia, that the trial court erred both in refusing to offset against this judgment amounts owed by plaintiff on an unrelated judgment against plaintiff acquired by defendants by assignment, and in offsetting against the judgment the unpaid balance owed to defendants by plaintiff on the note secured by the deed of trust. The court of appeal agreed, stating that offset is a matter of right unless the judgment creditor establishes the existence of facts supporting some equitable principle which precludes it. The court held that since equitable offset is a right of the judgment debtor, the judgment debtor, and not the judgment creditor, has the right to choose which of several claims he or she possesses against the judgment creditor to offset against the judgment. The court ruled that defendants therefore had the right to elect to offset their unsecured judgment against the judgment against them and to preserve their secured claim against the judgment creditor, and that the trial court could not disturb this election absent some equitable ground precluding the election. Since the trial court had ruled on the matter without hearing argument on defendants' motion to offset their own judgment against plaintiff's judgment, the court remanded the case for a retrial on the question of the defendants' right to offset.

Salaman v. Bolt (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 907, 141 Cal. Rptr. 841 , is discussed in § 131.121[3][b].

[d] Insolvency of Judgment Creditor as Justifying Equitable Offset

Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 , is discussed in § 131.121[3][a].

[e] Judgment Debtor's Right to Choose Which Claims to Offset

Margott v. Gem Properties, Inc. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 849, 111 Cal. Rptr. 1 , is discussed in § 131.121[3][c].

[f] Right of Equitable Offset Not Defeated by Assignment of Judgment

Code Civ. Proc. § 368 provides that "[in] the case of the assignment of a thing in action, the action by the assignee is without prejudice to any set off, or other defense existing at the time of, or before, notice of the assignment..." Code Civ. Proc. § 431.70 provides that a defendant has the right to plead the defense of payment in that the cross demands of plaintiff and defendant are compensated so far as they equal each other, and that the defendant cannot be deprived of this right by assignment or death of the plaintiff. It thus appears that an assignee of the judgment takes subject to any right of offset of the judgment debtor existing at the time of, or before, notice of the assignment is given to the judgment debtor.

In Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 128 P.2d 9 , discussed in § 131.121[3][a] Code Civ. Proc. § 368 was noted, evidently to show that judgment debtor had a right to equitable offset if he had become the beneficial owner of the claim prior to the assignee's notice of assignment. However, this was dictum since the primary thrust of the Court's opinion was that the judgment debtor had acquired his judgment for purposes of collection only. Therefore, he was not the beneficial owner of the claim but instead was a trustee for the assignor who had retained the equitable interest in the thing assigned. To attempt to use the assigned judgment as an offset violated the elementary rule of trusts that forbids the trustee from using trust property for his private or individual purposes.

[g] Compelling Setoff Against Assignee of Judgment Creditor

In Machado v. Borges (1915) 170 Cal. 501, 150 P. 351 , defendant for consideration executed and delivered to plaintiff his promissory notes, and thereafter failed to make any payments on the notes. Defendant obtained a judgment against plaintiff in an unrelated action and assigned the judgment to a third party who took it for value and without notice of the claim of plaintiff against defendant. Plaintiff then brought an equitable action to offset the amount due on the promissory notes against the judgment recovered by defendant against plaintiff. The trial court rendered a judgment for plaintiff. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court held that setoff of a cross demand existing at the time of assignment of a judgment may be compelled against the assignee even where the assignee acquired the judgment for value and without notice of the existence of the cross demand.

[h] Setoff of Individual Claim Against Joint and Several Claim

In Whittier v. Visscher (1922) 189 Cal. 450, 209 P. 23 , plaintiff brought an action to recover on a promissory note executed by the defendants Mr. and Mrs. Visscher to defendant Dixon who subsequently indorsed the note to plaintiff. The note had been given in consideration for the transfer of certain shares of a corporation to the Visschers by defendant Dixon, who was a principal shareholder of the corporation. At the time of the transfer, the corporation and Dixon were liable to Mrs. Visscher on another promissory note. The Visschers counterclaimed for the money due to Mrs. Visscher under this other note. In reversing the trial court and ruling that the Visschers had stated a valid counterclaim, the Supreme Court held, inter alia, that because payment by either of two joint and several obligors would extinguish the plaintiff's right of action, either defendant may set off a valid claim against the obligee under the note with the same result. The Court therefore rejected as untenable plaintiff's objection to the Visschers' counterclaim on the grounds that it ran as a setoff in favor of only one of the defendants.

[i] Priority of Equitable Offset Against Statutory Lien

Salaman v. Bolt (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 907, 141 Cal. Rptr. 841 , is discussed in § 131.121[3][b].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & Satisfaction

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
E. Satisfaction Of Judgment

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.122

§ 131.122 Supporting Motion for Order Awarding Damages, Forfeiture of Penalty, and Attorney's Fees for Unjust Refusal to Execute Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment Satisfied in Fact--Refusal to Respond to Written Demand [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(e), 724.080]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER AWARDING DAMAGES, FORFEITURE OF PENALTY, AND ATTORNEY'S FEES FOR UNJUST REFUSAL TO EXECUTE ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(e), 724.080]
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

_____

ON MOTION IN AN ACTION IN WHICH A JUDGMENT WAS RENDERED, THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR MAY RECOVER ALL DAMAGES HE/SHE SUSTAINED, INCLUDING THE RECOVERY OF ATTORNEY's FEES AND THE FORFEITURE OF THE SUM OF $100, BY REASON OF THE REFUSAL OF THE JUDGMENT CREDITOR OR ASSIGNEE WITHOUT JUST CAUSE TO GIVE AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION OF JUDGMENT WITHIN 15 DAYS AFTER RECEIPT OF A WRITTEN DEMAND THEREFOR MADE AFTER THE JUDGMENT HAS IN FACT BEEN PAID IN FULL.

A. Statutory Liability of Judgment Creditor. Any judgment creditor or assignee who fails without just cause to comply with the demand for acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment within 15 days after receipt of the demand, is liable to the person making the demand for all damages resulting from the failure to comply plus the sum of $100 (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(e), 724.240(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 680.240 (judgment creditor defined)).

B. Award of Attorney's Fees. In any action maintained pursuant to Sections 724.010-724.100 or 724.210-724.260 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the court must award reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.080, 724.260).

C. Damages Recoverable by Motion in Original Action. A judgment debtor may recover damages as provided in Section 724.050(e) or 724.240(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure by moving for an award of such damages in the original action in which the judgment was rendered (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(d), (e), 724.230, 724.240(a)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted by a judgment debtor, an owner of property subject to a judgment lien created under the judgment, or, if personal property is involved, a person having a security interest in or a lien on personal property subject to the lien in support of a motion for an order awarding damages, forfeiture of penalty, and attorney's fees on the ground that the judgment creditor or his or her assignee of record [see Code Civ. Proc. § 680.240] refused without just cause either (1) to execute, acknowledge, or deliver an acknowledgment of satisfaction or (2) to file the acknowledgment with the court within 15 days after receipt of a written demand therefor made after the judgment had in fact been paid in full. When appropriate, the foregoing form may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order compelling acknowledgment of satisfaction or ordering entry of satisfaction to be made without acknowledgment [see § 131.120, § 131.121].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel should summarize the facts that show that a demand for acknowledgment was served on the judgment creditor who failed to comply with the demand. Counsel should also attach declarations to the notice of motion and memorandum of points and authorities showing that the judgment has in fact been satisfied, the subsequent written demand of the judgment debtor or property owner, and the judgment creditor's refusal without just cause to give an acknowledgment of satisfaction within 15 days after receiving the demand.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment, and for a form of written demand for an acknowledgment of satisfaction, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & SatisfactionCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
E. Satisfaction Of Judgment

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.123

§ 131.123 Supporting Motion for Order Awarding Damages and Attorney's Fees for Intentionally Conditioning Delivery of Acknowledgment of Satisfaction on Performance of Act or Payment of Amount by Judgment Debtor in Excess of Amount Required by Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.070, 724.080]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER AWARDING DAMAGES AND ATTORNEY'S FEES FOR INTENTIONALLY CONDITIONING DELIVERY OF ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION ON PERFORMANCE OF ACT OR PAYMENT OF AMOUNT IN EXCESS OF AMOUNT REQUIRED BY JUDGMENT [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.070, 724.080]
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

A JUDGMENT CREDITOR OR ASSIGNEE WHO INTENTIONALLY CONDITIONS THE DELIVERY OF AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION OF JUDGMENT ON THE PERFORMANCE OF AN ACT OR THE PAYMENT OF AN AMOUNT BY THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR IN EXCESS OF THE AMOUNT TO WHICH THE JUDGMENT CREDITOR OR ASSIGNEE IS ENTITLED PURSUANT TO THE JUDGMENT IS LIABLE TO THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR FOR ALL DAMAGES SUSTAINED BY REASON OF SUCH ACTION, PLUS

REASONABLE ATTORNEY'S FEES, AND IN NO CASE SHALL THE AMOUNT OF DAMAGES RECOVERED BE LESS THAN $250.

A. Liability of Judgment Creditor. A judgment creditor or assignee who intentionally conditions delivery of an acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment on the performance of an act or the payment of an amount by the judgment debtor, in excess of that to which the judgment creditor or assignee is entitled, pursuant to the judgment, is liable to the judgment debtor for all damages sustained by reason of such action, and in no case shall the amount of damages recovered be less than $250 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.240, 724.070(a)).

B. Award of Attorney's Fees. [See § 131.122[1], Paragraph B.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

CAUTION:

A noticed motion procedure to establish a judgment creditor's liability for intentionally conditioning satisfaction of the judgment on payment in excess of that to which the judgment creditor is entitled has neither been established nor apparently used in any of the reported cases decided under the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 675(d), the predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 724.070(a). Unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(e) (providing for liability when judgment creditor fails without just cause to comply with demand for acknowledgment of satisfaction), Code Civ. Proc. § 724.070(a) does not expressly provide that the liability imposed by that section may be determined by motion in the action in which the judgment was rendered. However, in George S. Nolte Consulting Civil Eng'rs, Inc. v. Magliocco (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 190, 193-195, 155 Cal. Rptr. 348 , the trial court granted a judgment debtor's motion, made in the original action in which the judgment was rendered, for an order under former Code Civ. Proc. § 675(c), (g) entering satisfaction of the judgment, and awarding damages and attorney's fees for refusal to give acknowledgment of satisfaction without just cause. The court of appeal affirmed the order without discussing the propriety of the use of the motion to establish liability, even though former Code Civ. Proc. § 675(c), like former Code Civ. Proc. § 675(d), did not specify the procedure for establishing a judgment creditor's liability. It may be permissible then to use a similar motion procedure to establish liability under Code Civ. Proc. § 724.070(a), which is derived from former Code Civ. Proc. § 675(d).

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order awarding damages and attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.070(a), 724.080. The ground for the motion is the intentional conditioning of the delivery of an acknowledgment of satisfaction by the judgment creditor or assignee on performance of an act or payment of an amount by the judgment debtor in excess of that to which the judgment creditor or assignee of record [see Code Civ. Proc. § 680.240] is entitled pursuant to the judgment. Note that provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 724.070(a) do not apply if the judgment creditor or assignee has agreed to deliver an acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment to the judgment debtor prior to full satisfaction of judgment in consideration for the judgment debtor having agreed either to furnish security or to execute a promissory note, or both, the principal amount of which does not exceed the amount to which the judgment creditor or assignee is entitled pursuant to the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 724.070(a)]. This form may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion for an order compelling acknowledgment of satisfaction or entering satisfaction without acknowledgment in appropriate cases.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should set forth facts showing that the delivery of the acknowledgment of satisfaction was conditioned on the performance of an act or the payment of a sum in excess of the amount required to satisfy the judgment in full.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & SatisfactionCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
E. Satisfaction Of Judgment

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.124

§ 131.124 Supporting Motion for Order Vacating Entry of Satisfaction of Judgment

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Defendant.	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER VA-)	CATING ENTRY OF SATISFACTION OF JUDG-)	MENT

_____

A PARTY OF RECORD MAY, BY MOTION IN THE ORIGINAL ACTION IN WHICH THE JUDGMENT WAS RENDERED, HAVE AN ENTRY OF SATISFACTION OF JUDGMENT VACATED ON GROUNDS OF MISTAKE, FRAUD, OR UNDUE INFLUENCE.

A. Motion to Vacate Satisfaction to Be Made in Original Action. A party of record may have a satisfaction of judgment entered by mistake or in fraud of his or her rights set aside by motion in the original action in which the judgment was rendered (Wherry v. Rambo (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 569, 571, 218 P.2d 142).

B. Grounds for Vacating Satisfaction. Fraud, undue influence, and mistake are the generally recognized grounds for vacating a satisfaction of judgment (Remillard Brick Co. v. Dandini (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 617, 622, 220 P.2d 927).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for an order vacating an entry of satisfaction of judgment on grounds of mistake, fraud, or undue influence. The motion may be made by the judgment creditor in the original action in which the judgment was rendered. For points and authorities for use in establishing mistake, fraud, or undue influence in analogous situations, see Ch. 50, Contracts and Ch. 105, Fraud and Deceit .

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to vacate a satisfaction of judgment, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion to Vacate Satisfaction to Be Made in Original Action

In Wherry v. Rambo (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 569, 218 P.2d 142 , plaintiff's former attorney filed an acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment with the court stating that the judgment had been paid, acknowledging full satisfaction, and authorizing the clerk of the court to enter satisfaction of record in the action, whereupon the clerk made an entry of satisfaction of the judgment. Thereafter, plaintiff, appearing in propria persona, filed a notice of motion to vacate the entry, alleging that the attorney was no longer representing plaintiff in the matter, that plaintiff had not received any money or consideration for the satisfaction and had not consented to any settlement of the judgment, and that he believed that the satisfaction had been entered to defraud him of his rights under the judgment. The trial court denied the motion. The court of appeal, in affirming, noted that a party to the record may have a satisfaction of judgment entered in fraud of his rights set aside on motion in the action in which the judgment is rendered. The court held, however, that where the plaintiff had not filed a revocation of the attorney's authority to accept money on behalf of his client prior to the filing of the acknowledgment of satisfaction, and where there was no showing that plaintiff's former attorney had accepted or received less than the full amount of the judgment, the trial court properly denied the plaintiff's motion.

[b] Grounds for Vacating Satisfaction

In Remillard Brick Co. v. Dandini (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 617, 220 P.2d 927 , plaintiff Remillard Brick Co., a shareholder of Remillard-Dandini Co., had filed a derivative suit on behalf of Remillard-Dandini against its president and manager, A.O. Dandini, alleging fraud and misappropriation of funds. Judgment was entered in favor of Remillard-Dandini Co. against defendant Dandini. Thereafter, plaintiff instituted an action to enforce collection of the judgment. Before that action went to trial, the board of directors of Remillard-Dandini passed a resolution offsetting credits on the books of the company in Dandini's favor against the judgment, and this was later filed and entered as a satisfaction of the judgment. Plaintiff moved to vacate satisfaction of the judgment, and the motion was denied. The court of appeal noted that a satisfaction of judgment which has been filed and entered may be set aside by appropriate proceedings and for proper cause, and that the generally recognized grounds for vacating a satisfaction of judgment are fraud, undue influence, and mistake. The court held, however, that Dandini's right to offset these amounts had already been established in the fraud action, and that there was no evidence of fraud or any other grounds for vacating the entry of satisfaction. The court therefore affirmed the order denying the motion.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Motion to Vacate Satisfaction to Be Made in Original Action

In Kinnison v. Guaranty Liquidating Corp. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 256, 115 P.2d 450 , defendant had obtained a judgment against a third party. In satisfying the judgment in part, defendant levied a writ of execution on certain funds held by a bank in the name of the third party judgment debtor. Plaintiff then brought this action to recover this amount from defendant, alleging that it had a prior right to these funds. The trial court entered a judgment for plaintiff and attempted to restore defendant to its position prior to the levy of execution by canceling the partial satisfaction of judgment entered on receipt of the funds recovered from the bank and reinstating the judgment in its former amount. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment for plaintiff but reversed the portion of the judgment reinstating defendant's judgment against the third party. The court stated the general rule that a satisfaction of judgment which has been erroneously entered may be vacated either on motion in the original action in which the judgment was rendered, or by means of an independent action in equity between the parties. The court held, however, that such an order could not properly be made in this case because the third party judgment debtor was not a party to this action.

[b] Grounds for Vacating Satisfaction

In Haggin v. Clark (1882) 61 Cal. 1 , one of two judgment creditors authorized entry of satisfaction of judgment without the consent of the other judgment creditor and without having received the full amount of the judgment. The Supreme Court held that the trial court had properly granted the second judgment creditor's motion to vacate the satisfaction of judgment except to the extent that the judgment had been paid.

In Argue v. Wilson (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 645, 40 P.2d 297 , respondents recovered a judgment on a cross complaint against appellant. Appellant's insurance carrier issued a draft to respondents for the amount of the judgment, payable on presentation to insurance company's office. On issuance of the draft, respondents gave a satisfaction of the judgment. Two days later, however, a receiver took over the insurance carrier's assets and the draft was dishonored. Respondents then successfully moved the trial court for an order vacating the entry of satisfaction. The court of appeal noted that respondents had accepted the draft on the assumption that it would be redeemable in cash when presented to the insurance company and that there was no showing that respondents had intended or agreed to substitute the insurance company as judgment debtor in lieu of appellant. The court then held that the motion to vacate satisfaction was properly granted.

In Clark v. Johnston (1920) 49 Cal. App 315, 193 P. 864 , Rauer had assigned several claims to his bookkeeper, Clark, the nominal plaintiff, solely for purposes of collection. Actions were brought in Clark's name, and judgments were rendered for plaintiff totaling over $3,500. Clark subsequently executed a written acknowledgment of satisfaction, which was filed with the clerk, and satisfaction of judgment was entered by the clerk. In return for the satisfaction, one of the judgment debtors, Davis, gave Clark $50 in cash and a $1,950 promissory note which was, in the words of the court of appeal, "of problematical value." Rauer then moved the court for an order vacating this satisfaction, alleging that he was the real party in interest, and that Clark had no authority to settle or compromise the actions or to satisfy the judgments therein, and that Davis had notice of this, and that the satisfaction entered was "without right and without consideration." The trial court granted the motion, and the court of appeal affirmed. In denying Davis's petition to have the cause heard in the Supreme Court, the Supreme Court issued an opinion stating that as it understood the opinion of the court of appeal, the order setting aside the satisfaction was upheld and justified because the evidence showed that the satisfaction was given pursuant to an arrangement between the nominal plaintiff and the judgment debtor which was in actual fraud of the real party in interest in the judgment.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & Satisfaction

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
E. Satisfaction Of Judgment

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.125

§ 131.125 Opposing Motion for Order Compelling Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment or Entering Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(d), 724.110(b), 724.230]--Inapplicable if Judgment Not Satisfied in Fact

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
_____ [name],	)	FOR ORDER COMPELLING ACKNOWLEDG-Defendant.	)	MENT OF SATISFACTION OF JUDGMENT OR )	ENTERING SATISFACTION WITHOUT AC-
	)	KNOWLEDGMENT
		[Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d)]

_____

THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 724.050(d) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, AUTHORIZING THE COURT TO COMPEL ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION OR ENTER SATISFACTION WITHOUT ACKNOWLEDGMENT, ARE INAPPLICABLE WHEN IT APPEARS THAT THE JUDGMENT HAS NOT BEEN SATISFIED IN FACT.

Judgment Must Be Satisfied in Fact. Unless it clearly appears that the judgment was satisfied in fact, the provisions of Sections 724.050(d), 724.110(b), and 724.230 of the Code of Civil Procedure, authorizing the court to compel acknowledgment of satisfaction or order the entry of satisfaction to be made without acknowledgment, are not applicable (Lucky United Properties Investment, Inc. v. Lee (2010) 185 Cal. App. 4th 125, 147-151, 110 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159 ; Yanchor v. Kagan (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 544, 550, 99 Cal. Rptr. 367 (discussing former Code Civ. Proc. § 675(a)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted by a judgment creditor in opposition to a motion for an order compelling the judgment creditor to give an acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment or to enter satisfaction without acknowledgment. The ground for opposition is that the judgment has not been satisfied in fact as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d). This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the form set out in § 131.120 in appropriate cases.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should set forth facts showing that although the judgment debtor has demanded execution of an acknowledgment of satisfaction, the judgment entered in the action remains unsatisfied in a specified amount.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Must Be Satisfied in Fact

Lucky United Properties Investment, Inc. v. Lee (2010) 185 Cal. App. 4th 125, 147-151, 110 Cal. Rptr. 3d 159 , involved a malicious prosecution suit. The defendant responded to the suit by filing a special motion to strike under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, and the court granted the motion. The plaintiff appealed, but ultimately abandoned the appeal. The court of appeal held that the defendant could recover costs and attorney's fees incurred on appeal. Previous costs and fees awards arising from other stages of the case were outstanding. The trial court granted the defendant's motion for costs and attorney's fees in the amount of $33,830. The next day, the plaintiff sent a check to the defendant for $33,830, with a note stating that accepting the check constituted full and complete satisfaction of the award. The defendant contested that the check constituted full and complete satisfaction of the award insofar as the money should first be applied to the interest on the previous outstanding fees awards. The defendant deposited the check.

The plaintiff filed a motion for full satisfaction of the judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d), identifying the $33,830 costs and fees order as the judgment. The trial court granted the plaintiff's motion for an order compelling the defendant to acknowledge satisfaction of the costs and fees order on the ground there was an accord and satisfaction of the order under Com. Code § 3311.

On appeal, the court held that an accord and satisfaction had not occurred. To establish an accord and satisfaction, under Com. Code § 3311(a), a debtor must prove that: (1) the debtor in good faith tendered an instrument to the claimant as full satisfaction of the claim, (2) the amount of the claim was unliquidated or subject to a bona fide dispute, and (3) the claimant obtained payment of the instrument. Under Com. Code § 3311(b), if the debtor proves that he or she accompanied the tender with a conspicuous statement that the amount was tendered as full satisfaction of the claim, and if the claimant does not prove that he or she tendered repayment of the amount within 90 days, the debt is discharged. The court held that no substantial evidence supported the conclusion that the plaintiff tendered the $33,830 in order to resolve a bona fide dispute over the amount owing under the order. The court held that there was no direct evidence that the parties disputed the amount owed under the order when the plaintiff tendered the check, or even that they discussed the issue until after the plaintiff tendered the money [185 Cal. App. 4th 125, 149-151] . Accordingly, the court reversed the Code Civ. Proc. § 724.050(d) order.

Yanchor v. Kagan (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 544, 99 Cal. Rptr. 367 , is discussed in § 131.120[3][d].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & Satisfaction

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
E. Satisfaction Of Judgment

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.126

§ 131.126 Opposing Motion for Order Compelling Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment or Entering Satisfaction Without Acknowledgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 724.050(d), 724.110(b), 724.230]--Judgment Debtor Not Permitted to Satisfy Judgment by Offsetting Claims Not Beneficially Owned by Him or Her

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.125[1].]

THE COURT MAY NOT COMPEL ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF SATISFACTION OF JUDGMENT OR ORDER ENTRY OF SATISFACTION WITHOUT ACKNOWLEDGMENT PURSUANT TO SECTION 724.050(d) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE UNLESS IT CLEARLY APPEARS THAT THE JUDGMENT HAS BEEN SATISFIED IN FACT. IN SATISFYING THE JUDGMENT, THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR MAY NOT OFFSET AGAINST THE JUDGMENT CLAIMS AGAINST THE JUDGMENT CREDITOR WHICH ARE NOT BENEFICIALLY OWNED BY THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR.

A. Judgment Must Be Satisfied in Fact. [See § 131.125.]

B. Judgment Debtor May Not Offset Claims Not Beneficially Owned by Him or Her. In satisfying the judgment against him or her, a judgment debtor may set off only those claims against the judgment creditor which are beneficially owned by the judgment debtor (Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 649-650, 128 P.2d 9).

[Optional] C. Assignee for Collection May Not Set Off Assigned Claim in Satisfying Judgment Against Him or Her. A judgment debtor to whom a claim for collection was assigned is not the beneficial owner of the claim and may not satisfy a judgment against him or her by offsetting the claim (Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 650, 128 P.2d 9).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted by a judgment creditor in opposition to a motion by the judgment debtor for an order compelling the judgment creditor to give an acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment or ordering the entry of satisfaction to be made without an acknowledgment, where the judgment debtor alleges that the judgment has been satisfied in fact through offsetting cross demands held by him or her against the judgment creditor. The ground for opposition is that the judgment debtor may not satisfy the judgment by offsetting claims or judgments which he or she does not beneficially own. This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the memorandum set out in § 131.121 in appropriate cases.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Debtor May Not Offset Claims Not Beneficially Owned by Him or Her

Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 128 P.2d 9 , is discussed in § 131.121[3][e].

[b] Assignee for Collection May Not Set Off Assigned Claim in Satisfying Judgment Against Him or Her

Harrison v. Adams (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 646, 128 P.2d 9 , is discussed in § 131.121[3][e].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentDischarge, Release & Satisfaction

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
E. Satisfaction Of Judgment

13-131 California Points & Authorities §§ 131.127-131.139

[Reserved]

§§ 131.127[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.140

§ 131.140 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name]	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO RECALL AND Defendant.	)	QUASH EXECUTION AND VACATE LEVY
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO RECALL AND QUASH THE WRIT OF EXECUTION ISSUED TO ENFORCE THE _____ [ORDER or JUDGMENT] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE _____ [THE ISSUANCE OF THE WRIT WAS IMPROPERLY AND/OR INADVERTENTLY MADE or AUTHORITY FOR ISSUANCE OF THE WRIT HAS BEEN REVOKED].

A. Recalling and Quashing Writ of Execution. A writ of execution may be recalled and quashed when the issuance was improperly or inadvertently made, or the authority for the issuance has been revoked (Creditors Adjustment Co. v. Newman (1921) 185 Cal. 509, 511, 197 P. 334 ; Meyer v. Meyer (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 48, 49, 251 P.2d 335).

[Optional] B. Vacation of Levy. As the result of quashing a writ of execution all rights and proceedings based thereon fall with it (Moreno v. Mihelis (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 449, 451, 24 Cal. Rptr. 582 ; Wellborn v. Wellborn (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 525, 131 P.2d 48).

[Optional] C. Incidental Relief. The court, on ordering that a writ of execution be quashed, may at the same time order any appropriate relief incidental thereto (McMann v. Superior Court (1887) 74 Cal. 106, 108, 15 P. 448).

[Add additional points and authorities supporting the specific ground on which the motion is based (see §§ 131.141-131.145)].

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution and vacate the levy on that writ when the writ was improperly or inadvertently issued. The form is a general one that sets out the authority of the court to quash and recall a writ of execution. Additional points and authorities should be added as appropriate in support of specific grounds for granting the motion [see, e.g., §§ 131.141-131.145].

Optional Paragraph B may be used when a levy has been placed on property. Optional Paragraph C may be used when other relief is sought incidental to quashing of the writ of execution [see, e.g., McMann v. Superior Court (1887) 74 Cal. 106, 108, 15 P. 448 (motion seeking to quash the writ also requested an order directing the levying officer to return money seized under the writ)].

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, if the moving party contends that a prior order quashing a writ of execution is res judicata against the issuance of the writ on which the current motion is based, counsel should refer to facts indicating that the creditor's rights to enforce the judgment was clearly before the court on its merits in the earlier proceeding and that those rights were concluded [see Creditors Adjustment Co. v. Newman (1921) 185 Cal. 509, 197 P. 334 , discussed in § 131.140[3][a]].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to recall and quash a writ of execution and vacate the levy, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Recalling and Quashing Writ of Execution

In Creditors Adjustment Co. v. Newman (1921) 185 Cal. 509, 197 P. 334 , the plaintiff, as assignee of a claim against defendant, obtained a judgment by default. Five years later (the period for enforcement of judgments under former Code Civ. Proc. § 681 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 683.020, providing for a ten-year period for enforcement]), the judgment remained unsatisfied and the plaintiff brought an action on the original judgment and defendant again defaulted. A renewal of judgment was obtained for the original amount with accrued interest and costs. Nothing was collected on this judgment and after the lapse of over five years from the date of entry of the last judgment, plaintiff obtained an ex parte order for the issuance of an execution pursuant to the provisions of former Code of Civ. Proc. § 685 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 683.110-683.220]. Execution was issued and levied on property of the defendant. Shortly thereafter the defendant, on notice and affidavits, obtained an order setting aside the former order, execution, and levy. No appeal was taken by plaintiff from this order. Plaintiff then made a second application for issuance of another execution, which order was granted, execution issued and levied on property of defendant. Defendant again applied for an order vacating the order for execution, recalling the second writ and denying further relief under the judgment. The application was granted, and the plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court agreed with defendant's contention that the order vacating the first writ of execution became final and res judicata in denial of plaintiff's right to enforce its judgment. The Court stated that the right of the court to recall the execution cannot be doubted if the issuance was improperly or inadvertently made or if authority for the execution is revoked. With regard to the order vacating the first writ, the Court stated that the question of plaintiff's right to an execution was clearly before the trial court on its merits, the court had jurisdiction to act, and the judgment having become final, without appeal or other direct attack, is conclusive, whether the matter was rightly or wrongly decided, as to all matters presented or which should have been presented on the hearing. Hence, the Supreme Court held that the first ruling was conclusive of the issues presented and necessarily involved therein, and the superior court had correctly vacated the second order for a writ of execution (185 Cal. 509, 514) .

In Meyer v. Meyer (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 48, 251 P.2d 335 , the defendant's former wife obtained an execution against defendant directing the sheriff to collect $2,400 in child support arrearages, which the former wife charged defendant had failed to pay under an interlocutory decree of divorce and order for the support of the former couple's two minor children. Defendant moved to recall the execution, to vacate the order for its issuance and to quash the writ on the grounds that the amounts allegedly due on the judgment had been paid and satisfied. The superior court granted the defendant's motion and the former wife appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court reviewed the affidavits submitted, and noted that the evidence was in conflict. The court stated that when the trial court's decision on such a motion is based on conflicting evidence, the appellate court will not interfere. The affidavits of the defendant declared that he made payments totalling $3,025 to the children, while affidavits of the plaintiff declared that any sums paid by the defendant were outright gifts to the children and not contributions toward their support. The court held that the trial court's action based on the former husband's proof of payment was proper. Citing Creditors Adjustment Co. v. Newman (1921) 185 Cal. 509, 197 P. 334 , discussed above, the court stated that a writ of execution may be recalled and quashed when the issuance was improperly or inadvertently made (115 Cal. App. 2d 48, 49) .

[b] Vacation of Levy

In Moreno v. Mihelis (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 449, 24 Cal. Rptr. 582 , the defendant moved for an order to quash the writ of execution issued in the case. The motion was supported by an affidavit establishing that he had paid the judgment rendered in the action in full as to principal, interest, and court costs; that the sheriff had levied on monies due, owing, and unpaid from a third party; and that the third party would pay the amount to the defendant if the sheriff would release the levy, but the sheriff refused to make any release. The motion was opposed by the plaintiff with the special request that the court makes its order only on condition that the defendant execute a withdrawal of his appeal from the judgment in the cased. The trial court granted the order, but conditioned the order on defendant's withdrawal of the appeal. The defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, stating that the order should have been granted by the trial court without condition. The sole legitimate function of the execution was to secure the payment of the judgment, and when the judgment was fully satisfied, there was no reason to continue any additional levy in effect. As a result of quashing a writ of execution, all rights and proceedings based thereon fall with it. The court stated that the trial court was in error if it thought that the mere fact of the payment of a judgment in full by the appellant would necessitate the dismissal of an appeal as moot. If a defendant is compelled to make payment of a judgment under threat of execution or other coercion he or she does not lose his or her right to appeal (207 Cal. App. 2d 449, 451-452) .

Wellborn v. Wellborn (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 131 P.2d 48 , involved an action by a wife to annul a marriage on the ground the defendant husband had another wife living. The plaintiff sought to quiet plaintiff's title to certain real and personal property that she claimed as her separate property. Defendant cross complained, claiming that the property had been paid for with his earnings, and asked that his ownership of the property be decreed. The trial court granted the annulment and rendered judgment concerning the property. Defendant moved for and was granted an order for the issuance of a writ of execution. The execution issued. The sheriff levied on the property and sold it to defendant and later delivered a deed to the property. Plaintiff moved to quash the execution and vacate the levy and sale. The motion was denied without prejudice. Plaintiff again moved to quash the execution and vacate the levy and sale. The second motion was also denied and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court stated that the most important question on the appeal was whether the judgment was one on which execution will issue; or put another way, whether execution will issue on a judgment granting a lien on real property, but when no personal judgment is given, no order for payment of money made, and no provision made in the judgment for enforcement of the lien. The court concluded that if no personal liability is imposed by the judgment declaring the lien, and the judgment makes no express provision for enforcement of the lien, execution will not issue and the judgment creditor can only enforce the lien by an independent action to foreclose. Therefore, since the court had no power to order execution, its action could be attacked any time without regard to limitation. The order for issuance of the writ of execution being void, all the proceedings by the sheriff were likewise void, and plaintiff was entitled to disregard them and to attack them at any time. The court held that as there was no provision for a personal judgment or for enforcement of the lien, execution did not lie, and the motion to quash writ of execution and to vacate the execution levy and sale should have been granted (55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 524-525) .

[c] Incidental Relief

In McMann v. Superior Court (1887) 74 Cal. 106, 15 P. 448 , the sheriff applied for a writ of review, seeking to have the Supreme Court vacate an order which required the sheriff to refund certain moneys collected on an execution. The judgment debtor claimed the judgment was void for the reason that the judgment on which it was issued ceased to be operative because it had been entered more than the statutory period for execution of judgments.

The Supreme Court denied the writ. The court stated that since the statute commenced to run from the entry made in the docket, there was no authority for issuing the execution, and the trial court therefore did not err in recalling it. The court also held that the power of the court to order the sheriff to refund the money can not be doubted. The sheriff was acting as an officer of the court and under color of its process. Thus acting, he demanded and received moneys illegally. The money was paid to him in his official capacity as an officer of the court as a consequence of the improperly issued process. The court must have the power to control the conduct of its officers when acting under color of its authority of its authority or of its process (74 Cal. 106, 108) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.141

§ 131.141 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Satisfied by Payment

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to recall and quash writ of execution and vacate levy (see § 131.140).]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO RECALL AND QUASH THE WRIT OF EXECUTION ISSUED TO ENFORCE THE _____ [ORDER or JUDGMENT] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE ALL AMOUNTS ALLEGEDLY DUE ON THE JUDGMENT HAVE BEEN PAID AND SATISFIED.

Writ of Execution Recalled and Quashed on Proof of Payment. A court may grant a motion for recall of execution and for annulment of the order for its issuance solely on proof that the judgment debtor has paid and satisfied the amounts due on the judgment (Meyer v. Meyer (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 48, 49, 251 P.2d 335).

[If appropriate, add additional points and authorities supporting other specifics ground for granting the motion (see §§ 131.142-131.145)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution and vacate levy when the judgment debtor has paid the amount due under the judgment. The foregoing form should be combined with general points and authorities supporting a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution [see § 131.140], and may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting other specific grounds for granting the motion [see §§ 131.142-131.145].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include discussion showing how the facts provided in the supporting declarations demonstrate that the terms of the judgment have been satisfied [see, e.g., Meyer v. Meyer (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 48, 49, 251 P.2d 335] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Execution Recalled and Quashed on Proof of Payment

The facts and procedural background of Meyer v. Meyer (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 48, 251 P.2d 335 , are discussed in § 131.140[3][a]. In Meyer, the court of appeal held that the trial court's order granting defendant's motion for recall of execution and for annulment of the order for its issuance was proper on proof of payment by the judgment debtor (115 Cal. App. 2d 48, 49) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionWrits of Execution

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.142

§ 131.142 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Satisfied by Agreement

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to recall and quash writ of execution and vacate levy (see § 131.140).]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO RECALL AND QUASH THE WRIT OF EXECUTION ISSUED TO ENFORCE THE _____ [ORDER or JUDGMENT] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE JUDGMENT HAS BEEN FULLY SATISFIED BY AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE PARTIES.

Writ of Execution Recalled and Quashed on Proof of Agreement Satisfying Judgment. A court of equity may quash the execution and cancel a judgment on persuasive proof of an agreement that satisfied the judgment (Colby v. Colby (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 602, 605, 274 P.2d 417).

[If appropriate, add additional points and authorities supporting other specifics ground for granting the motion (see §§ 131.141, 131.143- 175)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution and vacate levy when the judgment creditor and the judgment debtor have entered into an agreement that satisfies the judgment. The foregoing form should be combined with general points and authorities supporting a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution [see § 131.140], and may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting other specific grounds for granting the motion [see §§ 131.141, 131.143- 175].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include discussion showing that the parties have entered into an agreement to substitute a different performance from that required under the judgment and that the judgment debtor has fully performed the terms of the agreement.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Execution Recalled and Quashed on Proof of Agreement Satisfying Judgment

In Colby v. Colby (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 602, 274 P.2d 417 , the former husband moved for an order quashing a writ of execution issued after an interlocutory decree of divorce awarding the former wife spousal and child support. The motion was based on the former husband's contention that the parties entered into an agreement, at the former wife's request, that the husband pay a lump sum in exchange for the wife's release of the former husband from any further obligation to make the support payments. The trial court granted the motion and the former wife appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. After reviewing the evidence submitted on the motion, the court concluded that the former husband presented adequate proof that he had settled the judgment by paying the former wife the sum she demanded for a complete discharge of his obligation. The court stated that even though monthly payments ordered by the interlocutory judgment may have accrued within the period for execution of a judgment, a court of equity may quash the execution and cancel the judgment on persuasive proof of an agreement that satisfied the judgment. The court also noted that, although nonpayment of installments accruing within the period for execution of a judgment may entitle the judgment creditor to the issuance of an execution to enforce his or her judgment, this fact does not alter the court's equitable jurisdiction to grant relief against a judgment which has actually been totally satisfied (127 Cal. App. 2d 602, 605) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionWrits of Execution

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.143

§ 131.143 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Debtor Entitled to Credit

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to recall and quash writ of execution and vacate levy (see § 131.140).]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO RECALL AND QUASH THE WRIT OF EXECUTION ISSUED TO ENFORCE THE _____ [ORDER or JUDGMENT] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE _____ [specify moving party, e.g., THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR] IS ENTITLED TO CREDIT FOR AMOUNTS THAT HE/SHE PAID.

A. Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Creditor Entitled to Credit. In order to ascertain the proper amount unpaid under the judgment, it is necessary to resolve whether credit for arrearages may be made (In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 978-979, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108).

[EITHER]

B. Credit When Arrearages Are Followed by Overpayment. When arrearages are followed by overpayments, the excess amounts are applied against the arrearages (see In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 979, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108).

[OR]

B. Credit When Arrearages Are Preceded by Overpayment. A credit for earlier overpayments on later arrearages is recognized in this state (see In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 979, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108).

[Optional] C. Court Discretion to Credit Judgment Debtor for Child Support Overpayments That Precede Arrearages. Whether the paying spouse is entitled to credit on arrearages for earlier overpayments of child support made to the receiving spouse when there is no evidence of fraud, agreement by the parties, or communication of the purpose of the overpayments to the receiving spouse is a matter for the sound discretion of the trial court to be determined from the facts and circumstances of each case (In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 976, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108).

[If appropriate, add additional points and authorities supporting other specific grounds for granting the motion (see §§ 131.141, 131.142, 131.144, 131.145)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution and vacate levy when the judgment debtor has made overpayments that were not taken into account in the writ of execution. The foregoing form should be combined with general points and authorities supporting a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution [see § 131.140], and may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting other specific grounds for granting the motion [see §§ 131.141, 131.142, 131.144, 131.145].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should state facts showing that the judgment debtor made overpayments against the amounts due under the judgment. If the judgment was for the payment of child support, and the overpayments were in advance of arrearages, the judgment debtor should, in addition, refer to facts which serve as equitable factors sufficient to support the court's action in giving credit for overpayments [see In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 976, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108 , discussed in § 131.143[3][a]].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Creditor Entitled to Credit

In In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108 , the wife obtained a writ of execution to enforce payment of unpaid child support on a judgment terminating marriage and ordering support of minor children. The husband moved to quash the writ. The trial court found that the husband was entitled to credit for the amount he claimed he had overpaid and reduced the recoverable arrearages.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court determined that the question pertained to the equitable power of the court to quash a writ of execution in whole or in part. The wife contended that the overpayments should be viewed as gifts. The court determined, however, that the husband had the better part of the argument, and cited the husband's contention that in order to ascertain the proper amount unpaid under the judgment, it is necessary to resolve whether credit for arrearages may be made. In cases involving overpayments before arrearages, when there is a showing of fraud, an agreement between the parties or communication of the purpose of the overpayment to the receiving spouse that the money is an advance on future payments, there is no reason to deny the credit to the paying spouse. However, sometimes, as in this case, there is no fraud, agreement or communication of purpose, and in such cases whether the paying spouse should receive credit for overpayments is a matter for the sound discretion of the trial court to be determined from the facts and circumstances peculiar to each case. The concept of applying a credit for earlier payments to later arrearages is found daily in the trial courts (84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 979) .

[b] Credit When Arrearages Are Followed by Overpayment

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108 , are discussed in § 131.140[3][a]. The court in this case noted that it has long been recognized in this state that when arrearages are followed by overpayments, the excess amounts are applied against arrearages. They are not treated as gifts (84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 979) .

[c] Credit When Arrearages Are Preceded by Overpayment

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108 , are discussed in § 131.143[3][a]. The court in this case noted that the concept of applying a credit for earlier payments to later arrearages is found daily in the trial courts (84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 979) .

[d] Court Discretion to Credit Judgment Debtor for Child Support Overpayments That Precede Arrearages

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108 , are discussed in § 131.143[3][a]. In Peet, the court held that whether the paying spouse is entitled to credit on arrearages for earlier overpayments of child support made to the receiving spouse when there is no evidence of fraud, agreement by the parties, or communication of the purpose of the overpayments to the receiving spouse is a matter for the sound discretion of the trial court to be determined from the facts and circumstances of each case [In re Marriage of Peet (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 974, 976, 149 Cal. Rptr. 108] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionWrits of Execution

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.144

§ 131.144 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Not Enforceable by Execution

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to recall and quash writ of execution and vacate levy (see § 131.140).]

JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO RECALL AND QUASH THE WRIT OF EXECUTION ISSUED TO ENFORCE THE _____ [ORDER or JUDGMENT] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE _____ [JUDGMENT or ORDER] IS NOT SUBJECT TO EXECUTION.

A. Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Not Subject to Execution. A writ of execution may be recalled and quashed if the judgment is not one on which execution may issue (Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1924) 195 Cal. 37, 47, 231 P. 730 ; Wellborn v. Wellborn (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 525, 131 P.2d 48).

[Optional] B. Writ of Execution May Not Issue on Decree of Lien on Specific Property. When a judgment decrees a lien on specific property, without ordering its sale, the lien may not be enforced by a writ of execution (Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1924) 195 Cal. 37, 46, 231 P. 730 ; Wellborn v. Wellborn (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 525, 131 P.2d 48).

[If appropriate, add additional points and authorities supporting other specific grounds for granting the motion (see §§ 131.141-131.143, 131.144, 141.145)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution and vacate levy when the particular judgment is not subject to enforcement by writ of execution. The foregoing form should be combined with general points and authorities supporting a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution [see § 131.140], and may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting other specific grounds for granting the motion [see §§ 131.141-131.143, 175].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to the judgment and demonstrate that, whatever other relief it may provide, it is not one on which an execution may lie.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Not Subject to Execution

In Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1924) 195 Cal. 37, 231 P. 730 , the plaintiff entered into a contract to purchase certain real property with the seller. After taking possession of the property under the contract and making certain monthly payments on the purchase price, the plaintiff discovered that the seller made certain false and fraudulent representations to her as to the original cost of the house on the premises, and as a consequence, brought an action for rescission of the contract and for recovery of the moneys she paid. Defendant was a mortgage holder on the property. The cause went to trial and resulted in a judgment in favor of the plaintiff and against the seller, but in favor of the defendant for his costs. The judgment, however, did not declare any lien on the property. Plaintiff thereafter moved the court for a judgment on the findings for a certain amount and for declaration of a lien against the property for the amount. The motion was denied and the plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court upheld the judgment in the plaintiff's favor, and reversed and remanded the cause with direction to the trial court to enter judgment in favor of the plaintiff and against the seller and declaring a lien on the properties in question, subject to the defendant's lien. The trial court entered judgment and the plaintiff applied for and was issued a writ of execution directing the sheriff to make levy of the execution for the sums of money due on the judgment and to satisfy the sums out of the specific real property involved in the action. The defendant moved the court to recall and quash the writ of execution and the motion was denied. The defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court stated that the primary question presented by the record related to the right of the plaintiff in the action to have an execution issued for the enforcement of the judgment which she held against the specific property described therein. The plaintiff had not asked for and she did not receive by the reformed judgment of the trial court any decree directing the foreclosure of the lien or directing or authorizing the issuance of any writ of execution or order of sale having that effect. The Court was unable to find any provision in the Code of Civil Procedure regulating the issuance of writs of execution having for its effect the foreclosure of a lien on specific real property to the absence of any provision in the decree establishing the lien which ordains its foreclosure. The Court also stated that no authorities were cited to the Court which support the view that an execution can issue for the sale of specific property encumbered by a vendee's lien without a direction in the judgment establishing such lien which decrees its foreclosure and sale (195 Cal. 37, 43) .

The Court stated that a decree or order for the sale of certain specific property made by a court of equity differs materially from a common law judgment. The Court reviewed the practice under the chancery system and in California prior to adoption of the Code of Civil Procedure and concluded that, absent any provision in the court's decree directing a sale of the premises on which the decree has imposed a lien, an ordinary writ of execution issuable to enforce a common law judgment cannot be used as a substitute for an absent order of sale (195 Cal. 37, 46) . For this reason, the Court held that the trial court was in error refusing to recall and quash the writ of execution improperly issued (195 Cal. 37, 49) .

The facts and procedural background of Wellborn v. Wellborn (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 131 P.2d 48 , are discussed in § 131.140[3][b]. The court of appeal in Wellborn stated that the most important question in that appeal was whether the judgment was one on which execution will issue. The court, citing Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1924) 195 Cal. 37, 231 P. 730 , concluded that if no personal liability is imposed by the judgment declaring lien on real property, and the judgment makes no express provision for enforcement of the lien, execution will not issue and the judgment creditor can only enforce the lien by an independent action to foreclose (55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 524) .

[b] Writ of Execution May Not Issue on Decree of Lien on Specific Property

The facts and procedural background of Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1924) 195 Cal. 37, 231 P. 730 , are discussed in § 131.144[3][a]. The court in Montgomery held that, in the absence of any provision in the decree of the court directing a sale of the premises on which the decree has imposed a lien, an ordinary writ of execution issuable to enforce a common law judgment cannot be used as a substitute for an absent order of sale (195 Cal. 37, 46) .

The facts and procedural background of Wellborn v. Wellborn (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 131 P.2d 48 , are discussed in § 131.140[3][b], and in § 131.144[3][a]. The court in Wellborn cited the facts in Montgomery v. Meyerstein (1924) 195 Cal. 37, 231 P. 730 , and noted that in the Montgomery decision there had been a personal judgment. In the present case, a much stronger situation justified the recall and quashing of a writ of execution, in that there was no personal judgment (55 Cal. App. 2d 516, 521) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionWrits of Execution

119 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.145

§ 131.145 Supporting Motion to Recall and Quash Writ of Execution and Vacate Levy--Judgment Vacated

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion to recall and quash writ of execution and vacate levy (see § 131.140).]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO RECALL AND QUASH THE WRIT OF EXECUTION ISSUED TO ENFORCE THE _____ [ORDER or JUDGMENT] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE JUDGMENT FROM WHICH THE WRIT HAS ISSUED HAS BEEN VACATED.

Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Vacated. After a judgment has been vacated, a trial court may recall and quash a writ of execution issued thereon (Stegge v. Wilkerson (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 10 Cal. Rptr. 867).

[If appropriate, add additional points and authorities supporting other specifics ground for granting the motion (see §§ 131.141-131.144)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution and vacate levy when the judgment from which the writ was issued has been vacated. The foregoing form should be combined with general points and authorities supporting a motion to recall and quash a writ of execution [see § 131.140], and may be combined, when appropriate, with additional points and authorities supporting other specific grounds for granting the motion [see §§ 131.141-131.144].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to the order vacating the particular judgment from which the writ of execution was issued.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Recalling and Quashing of Writ of Execution When Judgment Vacated

In Stegge v. Wilkerson (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10 Cal. Rptr. 867 , defendant was a partner of a partnership against whom the plaintiff brought an action for dissolution and an accounting. Defendant did not answer or demur and a default judgment was entered against him. A levy of execution was made and defendant sought and received an order staying enforcement of the judgment. Defendant thereafter filed motions to set aside the default and to quash and withdraw the writ of execution. The trial court granted the motions and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court held that the trial court did not err in recalling and quashing the writ of execution. It quoted from Levy v. Drew (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 456, 459, 50 P.2d 435 , in which the Supreme Court stated that it is well settled in California that when a judgment is reversed on appeal the appellant is entitled to restitution of all things taken from him or her under the judgment. After reversal the respondent stands in the position of a trustee of appellant of the property obtained under the judgment and the same rule should apply when a judgment has been vacated by a trial court. A judgment, when vacated, cannot be effective for any purpose (189 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionWrits of Execution

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.146

§ 131.146 Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Stay Necessary to Accomplish Ends of Justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 918]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO STAY EN-Defendant.	)	FORCEMENT
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO STAY ENFORCEMENT SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE A STAY IS NECESSARY TO ACCOMPLISH THE ENDS OF JUSTICE.

A. Authority of Trial Court to Issue Stay. The trial court may stay the enforcement of any judgment or order (Code Civ. Proc. § 918(a)).

B. Stay Necessary to Accomplish Ends of Justice. The trial court has the power to stay enforcement on its judgment whenever it is necessary to accomplish the ends of justice, and the exercise of its discretion will not be controlled by mandate except in case of palpable abuse (see Milstein v. Superior Court (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 123, 124, 164 P.2d 26).

C. Period of Stay. When the enforcement of the judgment or order would be stayed on appeal only by the giving of an undertaking, a trial court may, without consent of the adverse party, stay the enforcement thereof under Section 918 of the Code of Civil Procedure for period which extends for not more than 10 days beyond the last date on which a notice of appeal could be filed (Code Civ. Proc. § 918(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion in the trial court to stay temporarily enforcement of a judgment or order.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to facts that support the conclusion that the court should grant the stay of enforcement because the stay is necessary to accomplish the ends of justice.

[b] Grounds for Stay

Code Civ. Proc. § 918 does not enumerate grounds on which the trial court may grant a stay. It has been recognized, however, that the power of the court to stay enforcement derives from its general authority to control its own proceedings [see Vickich v. Superior Court (1930) 105 Cal. App. 587, 589, 288 P. 127] . Put another way, the court has power to stay temporarily executions on its judgments whenever it is necessary to accomplish the ends of justice [see Milstein v. Superior Court (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 123, 124, 164 P.2d 26 (noting interests of justice as consideration pertinent to determination of stay, but holding court was without authority to stay enforcement longer than period allowed by statute; discussed in § 131.146[3][b]); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(4) (grant of stay of enforcement under sister state money judgments statutes when interest of justice requires)]. For example, it may be argued that in certain cases it would promote the interests of justice to grant a defendant a stay of enforcement to allow him or her time to review the proceedings to determine whether there are grounds for a new trial or for other post-judgment motion, or for an appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(a)(3) (grant of stay of enforcement of sister state money judgment when judgment debtor has made motion to vacate)].

If a writ of execution has been issued at the time the application for stay is made, it would appear that the grounds that support a motion to recall and quash execution may also support a motion to stay enforcement. This is because the trial court's authority in either proceeding derives from its inherent control over its processes. If the issuance of the writ was somehow inappropriate, continued enforcement under such circumstances would also be unfair [see Adams v. Bell (1933) 219 Cal. 503, 505, 27 P.2d 757 ; § 131.140 -131.145]. The court may not, however, order a stay on levies already made under the writ of execution, since such property while in the hands of the levying officer is property of the judgment creditor and not of the judgment debtor [Del Riccio v. Superior Court (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 29, 31, 251

P.2d 678 ; see also § 131.152]. For relief in this latter situation, a judgment debtor would require an order recalling and quashing a writ of execution [see § 131.140 -131.145].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 131.152 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion supported by the foregoing memorandum.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion and order staying enforcement of judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 918, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Authority of Trial Court to Issue Stay

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 918(a), the trial court may stay the enforcement of any judgment or order. The trial court is authorized to stay the enforcement of a judgment or order whether or not an appeal will be taken from the judgment or order and whether or not a notice of appeal has been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 918(c)]. In this respect, Code Civ. Proc. § 918 supersedes former Code Civ. Proc. § 681a, which included similar provisions but also included limitations that were inconsistent with the later enacted provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 918.

[b] Stay Necessary to Accomplish Ends of Justice

In Milstein v. Superior Court (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 123, 124, 164 P.2d 26 , a judgment creditor sought a writ of mandate to compel the superior court to vacate an order staying enforcement. The judgment creditor had procured the writ of execution under the then existing renewal of judgments statute by notice of motion [former Code Civ. Proc. § 685; now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 683.110-683.220]. The motion was granted and the execution was issued. Thereafter, the judgment debtor served on the judgment creditor's attorney notice of motion to set aside the order granting enforcement of the judgment and an order staying enforcement. The judgment creditor moved to dissolve the order staying enforcement, and on denial of this motion petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal ordered that a peremptory writ of mandate be issued. The court stated that the ex parte order staying the execution constituted an unauthorized attempt to nullify the court's order granting enforcement, which was a valid order, made after notice and hearing. Since no appeal was taken from that order and no stay bond had been filed, the court was powerless to stay the enforcement of the execution issued pursuant thereto for a period longer than that prescribed under the statute governing the stay of enforcement by the trial court [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 681a; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 918] (72 Cal. App. 2d 123, 125) .

For purposes of evaluating the grounds on which a motion to stay enforcement may be brought, however, it should be noted that the judgment debtor argued that the trial court had power to stay temporarily executions on its judgments whenever necessary to accomplish the ends of justice, and that the exercise of its discretion will not be controlled by mandate except in case of palpable abuse. The court of appeal acknowledged the pertinence of these points, but stated that the proper time for the contentions would have been before the trial court granted the order permitting enforcement of the judgment (72 Cal. App. 2d 123, 124-125) .

[c] Period of Stay

If the enforcement of the judgment or order would be stayed on appeal only by the giving of an undertaking (which is the case with the perfecting of an appeal of a judgment or order for money under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1(a)), a trial court does not have power, without the consent of the adverse party, to stay the enforcement thereof under Code Civ. Proc. § 918 for a period which extends for more than 10 days beyond the last date on which a notice of appeal could be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 918(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

121 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.147

§ 131.147 Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Counter Action Pending Against Judgment Creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 918.5]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.146[1].]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO STAY ENFORCEMENT SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS ANOTHER ACTION PENDING ON A DISPUTED CLAIM AGAINST THE JUDGMENT CREDITOR, AND _____ [set forth applicable grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 918.5, e.g., THERE IS A STRONG LIKELIHOOD THAT THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR WILL PREVAIL AND RECEIVE JUDGMENT FOR AN AMOUNT AT LEAST EQUAL TO THAT WHICH JUDGMENT CREDITOR SEEKS TO ENFORCE AND THAT THE JUDGMENT CREDITOR WILL NOT HAVE THE FINANCIAL ABILITY TO SATISFY THE JUDGMENT].

A. Authority of Trial Court to Stay Enforcement When Action Pending on Disputed Claim. The trial court may, in its discretion, stay the enforcement of a judgment or order if the judgment debtor has another action pending on a disputed claim against the judgment debtor (Code Civ. Proc. § 918.5(a); Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 ; Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 739, 742-743, 158 Cal. Rptr. 856).

B. Factors for Consideration. In exercising its discretion under Section 918.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the court must consider all of the following: (1) the likelihood of the judgment debtor prevailing in the other action; (2) the amount of the judgment of the judgment creditor as compared to the amount of the probable recovery of the judgment debtor in the action on the disputed claim; and (3) the financial ability of the judgment creditor to satisfy the judgment if a judgment is rendered against the judgment creditor in the action on the disputed claim (Code Civ. Proc. § 918.5; Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 ; Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 739, 741, 158 Cal. Rptr. 856).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion in the trial court to stay enforcement on the ground that the judgment debtor has another action pending on a disputed claim against the judgment debtor, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 918.5.

According to the Law Revision Commission Comments, Code Civ. Proc. § 918.5 codifies a judicially developed rule [see, e.g., Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555-556, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649] , the rationale for which is based on equitable principles that not to stay enforcement of the judgment unfairly deprives the judgment debtor not only of the right to offset but also, with an impecunious creditor, of any right to recover at all.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to facts that weigh in favor of the court granting the stay based on the principles stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 918.5.

For a form of memoranda of points and authorities supporting a motion for order compelling acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment when the judgment has been satisfied through setoff of cross demands, see § 131.120 et seq.

See also § 131.146[2].

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 131.152 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion supported by the foregoing memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Authority of Trial Court to Stay Enforcement When Action Pending on Disputed Claim

In Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 , the plaintiff recovered a judgment against the defendant in a trade libel action. Subsequently on appeal, the judgment was reversed on the ground of insufficiency of evidence in support of the damages as awarded, and the cause was remanded for retrial on that sole issue. After the remittitur was filed, however, the defendant obtained a judgment for costs on appeal. The plaintiff twice made motions to forestall enforcement of the cost judgment until final determination on retrial, and offered to post a stay bond in an amount to be set by the court. The trial court denied both motions, and stated that it had no discretion in the circumstances. The plaintiff petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of prohibition to restrain the superior court from issuing its writ of execution on the judgment for costs, to compel the superior court to quash any writ of execution that had been previously issued, to reset the trade libel action for trial at the earliest convenient date, and to vacate certain orders.

The Supreme Court granted the peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to set the trade libel action for retrial, and to consider the plaintiff's right to have collection of cost judgment enjoined pending determination of litigation. The Court compared the situation when a claim against which a setoff is sought is a judgment to the situation in which cross demands exist between persons under circumstances such that, if one had brought an action against the other, a counterclaim could have been set up and the two demands could be deemed compensated so far as they equal each other. According to the Court, the two situations are akin. Further, the Court concluded that there appears to be no reason to treat a judgment for costs on appeal differently from other judgments and that the insolvency of the party against whom the relief is sought affords sufficient ground for invoking the equitable principle (63 Cal. 2d 551, 555) . Thus, the trial court had discretion to grant a stay of enforcement of the costs judgment (63 Cal. 2d 551, 556) .

In Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 739, 158 Cal. Rptr. 856 , the judgment debtor moved the trial court to stay enforcement on the ground that another action was pending between the parties and the judgment was concerned with the inequity it may suffer if it were unable to offset the judgment against any judgment it might obtain in the other action. The trial court denied the motion and the judgment debtor appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, and instructed the trial court to grant the motion to stay enforcement. The court cited the rule in Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 , that a court has the power to stay enforcement of a judgment when the judgment debtor has another action pending on a disputed claim against the judgment creditor. The rationale for the rule is based on equitable principles for to hold otherwise unfairly deprives the judgment debtor of not only his or her right of set-off, but with an impecunious creditor, the right to receive any recovery whatsoever (97 Cal. App. 3d 739, 741) .

[b] Factors for Consideration

The facts and procedural background of Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 , are discussed in § 131.147[3][a]. In Erlich, the Supreme Court stated that in determining whether to enjoin collection of the judgment pending decision of a validly disputed claim, the court should consider the likelihood that the judgment debtor will recover on his or her claim, the probability and comparative amount of recovery, and the ability of the judgment creditor to respond should a judgment be rendered against him or her in the action on the disputed claim. The fact that the judgment creditor may have an immediate need for the funds due to him or her on the judgment is not a basis for denial of relief when the foregoing considerations otherwise compel relief. In the case before it, the Court determined that the judgment debtor failed to establish the amount that he would likely recover and, accordingly, the Court could not say that as a matter of law the judgment debtor was entitled to have collection of the judgment enjoined. The Court held, however, that the judgment debtor was entitled to a writ of mandate compelling the trial court to determine the matter (63 Cal. 2d 551, 556) .

The facts and procedural background of Airfloor Co. of California, Inc. v. Regents of University of California (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 739, 158 Cal. Rptr. 856 , are discussed in § 131.147[3][a]. In Airfloor, the court cited the factors set forth in Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 (discussed in § 131.147[3][a]). The court stated that on a hearing on a motion to stay enforcement, a court cannot decide the other pending action on its merits. The best that can be done is a reasonable effort to evaluate the respective arguments of the parties in light of the evidence presented at the hearing. On the limited uncontroverted evidence presented to the court, the court of appeal concluded that the judgment debtor's action had substantial merit. It noted that denial of the motion to stay enforcement would result in an outright loss to the judgment debtor of $100,000, but granting of the motion would have no present economic impact on the judgment creditor (97 Cal. App. 3d 739, 743) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.148

§ 131.148 Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Judgment Debtor Is in Military Service [50 U.S.C. Appen. § 524; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.146[1].]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO STAY ENFORCEMENT SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE HE/SHE IS IN MILITARY SERVICE AND HIS/HER ABILITY TO COMPLY WITH THE JUDGMENT/ORDER IS MATERIALLY AFFECTED BY REASON OF THE MILITARY SERVICE.

Stay of Enforcement. In any action or proceeding commenced in any court against a person in military service, before or during the period of such service, or within 90 days thereafter, the court may on its own motion, or on application by the servicemember, the court must stay the execution of any judgment or order, unless in the opinion of the court, the ability of the defendant to comply with the judgment or order entered or sought is not materially affected by reason of the person's military service (50 U.S.C. Appen. § 524; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)(2)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to stay enforcement of a judgment or order in an action or proceeding commenced against a person in the military service with respect to the obligations, transactions, and proceedings that are within the scope of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. Appen. § 501 et seq.). Alternatively, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to stay execution of a judgment or order entered against a military service member before or during a protected period of military service as provided by state law [Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)(2)].

The form may be modified for use in applying for an order vacating or staying an attachment or garnishment of property, money, or debts in the hands of another, whether before or after judgment [see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 524(a)(2); Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)(1)].

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to facts that support the conclusion that the court should grant the stay of enforcement because the defendant's ability to comply with the judgment or order entered or sought is materially affected by reason of his or her military service.

[b] Servicemembers Civil Relief Act

[i] In General

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. Appen. § 501 et seq.) generally provides for the suspension of enforcement of civil liabilities, in certain cases, of persons in the military service of the United States. Congress has stated that the relief is to provide for, strengthen, and expedite the national defense through protection extended by this Act to servicemembers of the United States to enable them to devote their entire energy to the defense needs of the nation, and to provide for the temporary suspension of judicial and administrative proceedings and transactions that may adversely affect the civil rights of servicemembers during their military service [50 U.S.C. Appen. § 502].

The term "servicemember" means a member of the uniformed services, as "uniformed services" is defined in 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(1)] 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) defines "uniformed services" as including the armed forces, the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service. The term "court" means a court or an administrative agency of the United States or of any state, including a political subdivision of a state, whether or not a court or administrative agency of record [50 U.S.C. Appen. § 511(5)]. The term "judgment" means any judgment, decree, order, or ruling, whether final or temporary [50 U.S.C. Appen. § 511(9)].

Protection under the act extends to certain transactions involving property [see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 531 et seq.], insurance [see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 541 et seq.], and taxes and public lands [see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 561 et seq.].

[ii] Duration of Stay

Any stay of any action, proceeding, attachment, or execution, ordered by any court under the provisions of the act may be ordered for the period of military service and 90 days thereafter or any part of that period. The court may set the terms and amounts for the installment payments as the court considers reasonable [50 U.S.C. Appen. § 525(a)]. When the person in military service is a codefendant with others, the plaintiff may nevertheless by leave of court proceed against the others [50 U.S.C. Appen. § 525(b)]. These provisions do not apply to a stay or proceedings when the servicemember has notice [see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 522] or to an application by a servicemember for anticipatory relief [50 U.S.C. § 525(c); for anticipatory relief, see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 591].

[c] State Law Protections

Effective June 21, 2002, Stats. 2002, ch. 60 provides for the suspension of enforcement of civil liabilities in certain cases of persons in military service in order to provide for, strengthen, and expedite the national or state defense under the emergent conditions threatening the peace and security of the United States and California, and to enable the United States and California to fulfill the requirements of the national or state defense more successfully by enabling persons in military service to devote their entire energy to the defense needs of the nation and the state [Stats. 2002, ch. 60 § 1].

A "service member" is defined for these purposes as either of the following [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)]:

- Officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor pursuant to Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 143 or 146 or into active federal service by the President pursuant to Title 10 or 32 of the United States Code.

- Reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active duty.

"Military service" means full-time active state or federal service as defined in Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)(1) or full-time active of a reservist as defined in Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)(2), for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period. Days of service for a service member called to active service or duty since September 11, 2001, to engage in homeland defense against terrorism are credited toward the seven-day period [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(b)].

A certificate signed by an appropriately authorized officer of the military department, branch, or unit in which a service member is serving is prima facie evidence as to any of the following facts as stated in the certificate [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.8(a)]:

- That a person named has not been, or is, or has been in the military service.

- The time when and the place where the person entered military service.

- The person's residence at that time, and the rank, branch, and unit of the service the person entered.

- The dates within which the person was in the military service.

- The monthly pay received by the person at the date of issuing the certificate.

- The time when and the place where the person died in or was discharged from the service.

The authorized officer must furnish the certificate on application. Any certificate purporting to be signed by an officer purporting on the face of the certificate to have been authorized to sign it, is prima facie evidence of its contents and of the authority of the signer to issue it [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.8(b)].

[i] Duration of Stay

Duration of the stay under stay law is identical to that under the federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, i.e., a stay of execution may be ordered for the period of military service and three months thereafter, or any part of that period, and subject to those terms as may be just, including terms with respect to payment in installments of those amounts at those times the court may fix. When the person in military service is a codefendant with others, the plaintiff may nevertheless, by leave of court, proceed against the others [Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.149

§ 131.149 Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Enforcement of Foreign Money Judgment Pending Appeal [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.6]

[1] FORM

CAUTION: This form is based on the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.]. Although that Act was repealed in 2007 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], it continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724; see § 131.149[2][a]].

[Caption. See § 131.146[1].]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR's MOTION TO STAY ENFORCEMENT OF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED IN _____ [specify source of foreign judgment] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE _____ [AN APPEAL IS PENDING or THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR IS ENTITLED AND INTENDS TO APPEAL] FROM THE JUDGMENT.

A. Stay When Defendant Has or Intends to Appeal Foreign Money Judgment. If the defendant satisfies the court either that an appeal is pending or that he or she is entitled and intends to appeal from the foreign judgment, the court may stay the proceedings until the appeal has been determined or until the expiration of a period of time sufficient to enable the defendant to prosecute the appeal (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.6, applicable to actions commenced prior to January 1, 2008 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1724)).

[Optional] B. Refusal of Stay Is Abuse of Discretion When Adequate Security Provided. When the judgment debtor will provide adequate security for the payment of the judgment, and no prejudice to the creditors appears, it is an abuse of discretion for the superior court to refuse a stay request under Section 1713.6 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Stevens v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4, 104 Cal. Rptr. 369).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign money judgment to stay proceedings under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.).

CAUTION: This form is based on the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.). Although that Act was repealed in 2007 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], it continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724].

The successor statute, the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724(a)].

For a form for a supporting motion to stay enforcement of a foreign-country judgment pending appeal under Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 1720, applicable to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, see § 131.151B.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. If the judgment debtor contends, for example, that an appeal is pending, counsel should refer to facts evidencing that the appeal has been filed and is pending before the reviewing court of the foreign state.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act and its predecessor statute, Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Refusal of Stay Is Abuse of Discretion When Adequate Security Provided

In Stevens v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 1, 104 Cal. Rptr. 369 , the defendant moved in superior court for stay of enforcement of a money judgment pending a decision by the Supreme Court of Oklahoma. The motion was brought under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.6 [now see Code. Civ. Proc. § 1720 (applicable to actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008)] prior to the adoption of the Sister State Money-Judgments Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50 (stays of enforcement proceedings on sister state judgments); see also § 131.92]. The trial court denied the motion and the defendant petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued the writ of mandate, commanding the superior court to set aside its order denying the defendant's motion to stay execution. The court stated that Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.6 must be construed as authorizing a postjudgment stay of execution. The court stated that the policy of California, as reflected in Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 (stay of enforcement of money judgment pending appeal), is to permit a judgment debtor to stay enforcement of the judgment pending appellate review if he or she provides an undertaking to secure payment in the event of affirmance. This policy, by analogy, should govern postjudgment stays requested under Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.6. Thus, the court held that when the judgment debtor will provide adequate security for the payment of the judgment, and no prejudice to the creditors appears, it is an abuse of discretion for the superior court to refuse a stay (28 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionForeign Judgments

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.150

§ 131.150 Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Recognition of Foreign Money Judgment--Judgment Is Not Final and Conclusive [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2]

[1] FORM

CAUTION: This form is based on the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.]. Although that Act was repealed in 2007 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], it continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724; see § 131.150[2][a]].

[Caption. See § 131.146[1].]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S MOTION TO DISMISS THE ACTION FOR RECOGNITION OF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED IN _____ [specify source of foreign judgment] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE JUDGMENT IS NOT FINAL AND CONCLUSIVE.

Foreign Judgment Must Be Final and Conclusive and Enforceable in Foreign Country to Support Claim for Recognition of Judgment in California. Under California law, recognition is afforded to any foreign judgment that is final and conclusive and enforceable where rendered even though an appeal therefrom is pending or it is subject to appeal (former Code of Civil Procedure Section 1713.2, applicable to actions commenced prior to January 1, 2008 (Code of Civil Procedure § 1724)). A judgment that is not final and conclusive where rendered is not entitled to recognition in California (Manco Contracting Company v. Bezdikian (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 192, 198-204, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233, 195 P.3d 604).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign money judgment to dismiss proceedings under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.) because the judgment the judgment creditor seeks to have recognized and enforced is not final and/or conclusive in the country in which it was rendered.

> CAUTION: This form is based on the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.). Although that Act was repealed in 2007 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], it continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724].
>
> The successor statute, the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724(a)].
>
> For a form for a supporting motion by a judgment debtor to dismiss an action for recognition of a foreign-country judgment on the ground that the judgment is not final and conclusive under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a), applicable to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, see § 131.151C. For additional forms of memoranda supporting motions to dismiss under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], see §§ 131.151D, 131.151E.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. If the judgment debtor contends that the foreign judgment is not final and/or conclusive in the country in which it was rendered, counsel should refer to facts and law evidencing that fact.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act and its predecessor statute, former Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Foreign Judgment Must Be Final, Conclusive, and Enforceable in Foreign Country to Support Claim for Recognition of Judgment in California

In California, recognition is afforded to any foreign judgment that is final and conclusive and enforceable where rendered even though an appeal therefrom is pending or it is subject to appeal [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2, applicable to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)(2), applicable applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008 which provides that a judgment must be "final, conclusive, and enforceable" under the law of the foreign country where rendered].

In Manco Contracting Company v. Bezdikian (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 192, 198-204, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233, 195 P.3d 604 , the plaintiff obtained a multimillion-dollar judgment in 1997 against the defendant in the Grand Civil Court of Doha, in the nation of Qatar. The defendant appealed from the judgment, then moved to California. In 2000, a Qatari appellate court issued a new judgment reducing the award and granting the plaintiff reasonable court expenses and attorney's fees. In 2004, the plaintiff filed a complaint in Los Angeles County Superior Court seeking to enforce its Qatari judgment. The defendant sought summary judgment, arguing that the cause of action accrued in 1997 and was therefore barred by a four-year statute of limitations. Arguing that its cause of action did not accrue until 2000, when the Qatari appellate court issued its amended judgment, the plaintiff submitted an expert declaration stating that, under Qatari law, a judgment is not final before conclusion of an appeal unless the parties previously agreed to treat the judgment as final, the judgment is nonappealable, or the time for appeal has expired. The trial court interpreted former Code Civ. Proc § 1713.2 to provide that California recognizes a foreign judgment that has been appealed, or is subject to appeal, regardless of whether the foreign country recognizes it as final. Accordingly, the court held that the plaintiff's cause of action for recognition accrued in 1997, when the Qatari trial court entered judgment against the defendant. The court of appeal reversed, holding that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2 a foreign judgment was not subject to recognition unless and until it was final, conclusive, and enforceable under the law where the judgment was rendered (45 Cal. 4th 192, 198) .

The California Supreme Court agreed with the court of appeal. It held that California courts must recognize a foreign judgment, regardless of whether it has been appealed or is subject to appeal, as long as the judgment is final, conclusive, and enforceable in the country where it was rendered. The Court held that the language in the second clause of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2 requiring recognition "even though an appeal therefrom is pending or [the judgment] is subject to appeal" was not an exception to the requirements of finality, conclusiveness, and enforceability in the nation of origin, but was meant to amplify the directive that finality, conclusiveness, and enforceability are to be assessed based on the law of the foreign jurisdiction where judgment was rendered (45 Cal. 4th 192, 201) . The Court further noted that the newly enacted UFCMJRA, applicable to actions commenced after January 1, 2008, eliminated the second clause of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2 (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)) (45 Cal. 4th 192, 204) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Foreign Judgment Must Be Final, Conclusive, and Enforceable in Foreign Country to Support Claim for Recognition of Judgment in California

In Societe Civile Succession Richard Guino v. Redstar Corp. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 697, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224 , plaintiffs brought an action in California to enforce a French judgment against defendants. The trial court enforced a portion of the French judgment, but denied enforcement of a portion of the judgment to be paid "as a reserve" as being a provisional remedy not enforceable under California's former Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.) (153 Cal. App. 4th 697, 699) . The Court of Appeal held that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)(2), applicable to actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1724)], the court in the French judgment awarded a sum of money that was a final judgment, and that judgment was immediately enforceable (153 Cal. App. 4th 697, 702-706) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionForeign Judgments

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.151

§ 131.151 Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Enforcement of Foreign Money Judgment--No Personal Jurisdiction [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.3]

[1] FORM

CAUTION: This form is based on the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.]. Although that Act was repealed in 2007 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], it continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724; see § 131.151[2][a]].

[Caption. See § 131.146[1].]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S MOTION TO DISMISS THE ACTION FOR ENFORCEMENT OF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED IN _____ [specify source of foreign judgment] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE COURT DOES NOT HAVE PERSONAL JURISDICTION OVER THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR.

Court Must Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Judgment Debtor to Enforce Foreign Money Judgment Under Foreign Money-Judgments Act. Foreign money judgments are enforced in California by bringing an action in California to obtain a domestic judgment (see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.3, applicable to actions commenced prior to January 1, 2008 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1724)). The party seeking enforcement must comply with the procedures applicable to civil actions, including service of a summons to establish personal jurisdiction. A judgment obtained without proper service of the summons and complaint is void for lack of personal jurisdiction (Renoir v. Redstar Corp. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1149-1154, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign money judgment to dismiss proceedings to enforce a foreign judgment under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.) because the trial court does not have personal jurisdiction over the judgment debtor.

> CAUTION: This form is based on the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.). Although that Act was repealed in 2007 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], it continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724].
>
> The successor statute, the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724(a)].
>
> For a form for a supporting motion by a judgment debtor to dismiss an action for recognition of a foreign-country judgment for lack of personal jurisdiction under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 1719, applicable to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, see § 131.151D. For additional forms of memoranda supporting motions to dismiss under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.), see §§ 131.151C, 131.151E.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should refer to facts and law evidencing the fact that the trial court lacks jurisdiction over the judgment debtor.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq., applicable to actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised (Code Civ. Proc. § 1724)], generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Must Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Judgment Debtor to Enforce Foreign Judgment Under Foreign Money-Judgments Act

Under the former Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act, enforcement of a foreign judgment is different than recognition [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.3 (applicable to actions commenced prior to January 1, 2008); now see Code. Civ. Proc. §§ 1716-1718 (applicable to actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008); for a form for dismissal of an action for recognition, see § 131.150].

In Renoir v. Redstar Corp. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603 , plaintiffs obtained a French judgment for both monetary and nonmonetary relief. Plaintiffs then filed a petition to enter a California judgment on the French judgment and a notice of motion and motion in support of the petition, and filed accompanying declarations. Plaintiffs filed a proof of service specifying documents that were served on defendants in foreign countries. None of those documents included a summons. Plaintiffs then filed and served via mail a "Reply Memorandum of Points and Authorities" stating that as no opposition had been filed by the defendants, the petition should be deemed admitted. Defendants did not appear at the hearing. The trial court signed and entered a California judgment in favor of plaintiffs, awarding plaintiffs the same monetary and nonmonetary relief provided for in the French judgment. More than three years later, defendants appeared specially to file a motion to set aside the California judgment, contending that the judgment was void on the ground that the court did not have personal jurisdiction over them because of the failure of plaintiffs to serve a summons, other defects in service, and defendants' lack of minimum contacts with California. The trial court denied the motion to set aside the California judgment, finding that defendants participated in the French action and the foreign judgment was rendered in accordance with American principals of jurisdictional due process (see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.5). The court also found that defendants had notice of the California action (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1148-1149) .

The Court of Appeal reversed. The Court held that a foreign judgment may not be enforced pursuant to the provisions of the Sister-State and Foreign Money-Judgments Act (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1151 ; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.). Foreign money judgments are enforced by bringing an action in California to obtain a domestic judgment (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1151) . To enforce a foreign judgment recognized under the Foreign Money-Judgments Act, the party seeking enforcement must comply with the procedures applicable to civil actions, including service of a summons to establish personal jurisdiction (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1152) . The enforcement proceeding under the Act was not a special proceeding in which process was something other than a summons, and plaintiffs' label of "Petition" on their pleading was of no significance. Further, defendants' knowledge of the action did not satisfy the requirement of adequate service of a summons and complaint. By not serving a summons, plaintiffs failed to take the required steps to obtain personal jurisdiction over defendants to enforce the French judgment in California. Defendants' brief references to issues related to whether the trial court correctly enforced the French judgment did not constitute a general appearance by defendants (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1152-1153) . The Court also parenthetically noted that nonmonetary portions of the foreign judgment were not covered by the former Foreign Money-Judgments Act. The Act provides for enforcement of any judgment of a foreign state granting or denying recovery of a sum of money (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1152 ; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.1(2)).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionForeign Judgments

126 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.151A

§ 131.151A Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Recognition of Foreign Money Judgment--Action Filed After Statute of Limitations Has Run [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.3]

[1] FORM

CAUTION: This form is based on the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.]. Although that Act was repealed in 2007 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], it continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724; see § 131.151A[2][a]].

[Caption. See § 131.146[1].]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S MOTION TO DISMISS THE ACTION FOR RECOGNITION [AND ENFORCEMENT] OF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED IN _____ [specify source of foreign judgment] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE ACTION WAS FILED AFTER THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAD RUN.

Action to Enforce a Foreign Money Judgment in California Must Be Filed Within the Time Provided by Statute. An action seeking recognition and enforcement of a foreign money judgment under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq., applicable to actions commenced prior to January 1, 2008 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1724) is subject to the 10-year statute of limitations applicable to actions on sister state judgments provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5(3) (Manco Contracting Company v. Bezdikian (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 192, 204-210, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233, 195 P.3d 604).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign money judgment to dismiss proceedings to enforce a judgment under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] because the statute of limitations has run. The Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.) continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised (Code Civ. Proc. § 1724).

For a form for a supporting motion by a judgment debtor to dismiss an action for recognition of foreign-country judgment filed after the statute of limitations has run under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 1719, applicable to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, see § 131.151E. For additional forms of memoranda supporting motions to dismiss under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], see §§ 131.151C, 131.151D.

> CAUTION: This form is based on the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.). Although that Act was repealed in 2007 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], it continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724].
>
> The successor statute, the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724(a)]. Note that an action under the post-2007 Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act to recognize a foreign-country judgment must be commenced within the earlier of the time during which the foreign-country judgment is effective in the foreign country or 10 years from the date that the foreign-country judgment became effective in the foreign country [Code Civ. Proc. § 1721].

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should refer to facts and law evidencing the fact that the statute of limitations has run.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act and its predecessor statute, former Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action to Enforce a Foreign-Money Judgment in California Must Be Filed Within the Time Provided by Statute

The facts of Manco Contracting Company v. Bezdikian (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 192, 204-210, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233, 195 P.3d 604 are discussed in detail in § 131.150[3][a]. In that case, the defendant argued that the four-year statute of limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 343 furnished the limitations period for actions to recognize foreign judgments. The California Supreme Court disagreed. It held that based on the directive of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.3 that foreign judgments be enforced in the same manner as sister state judgments, the 10-year statute of limitations applicable to actions on sister state judgments set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5 also applied to actions on foreign judgments (45 Cal. 4th 192, 207-208) .

127 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.151B

§ 131.151B Supporting Motion to Stay Enforcement--Enforcement of Foreign-Country Judgment Pending Appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1720]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.146[1] .]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S MOTION TO STAY ENFORCEMENT OF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED IN _____ [specify source of foreign judgment] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE _____ [AN APPEAL IS PENDING or THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR IS ENTITLED AND INTENDS TO APPEAL] FROM THE JUDGMENT.

A. Stay When Defendant Has or Intends to Appeal Foreign-Country Judgment. If the defendant satisfies the court either that an appeal is pending or that defendant is entitled and intends to appeal from the foreign judgment, the court may stay the proceedings until the appeal is concluded, or the time for appeal expires, or the defendant has had sufficient time to prosecute the appeal and has failed to do so (Code Civ. Proc. § 1720)).

[Optional] B. Refusal of Stay Is Abuse of Discretion When Adequate Security Provided. When the judgment debtor will provide adequate security for the payment of the judgment and there is not apparent prejudice to the creditors, it is an abuse of discretion for the superior court to refuse a stay request under former Code of Civil Procedure Section 1713.6 (now Code of Civil Procedure Section 1720, amended without substantive change, effective January 1, 2008) (Stevens v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4, 104 Cal. Rptr. 369 , decided under prior law).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign-country judgment to stay proceedings under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1720; § 131.151B[2][c]].

The Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, and replaces the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.), which continues to govern actions commenced before the new Act's January 1, 2008, effective date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724]. For a form for a supporting motion to stay enforcement of a foreign judgment pending appeal under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], see § 131.149.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. If the judgment debtor contends, for example, that an appeal is pending, counsel should refer to facts evidencing that the appeal has been filed and is pending before the reviewing court of the foreign state.

[c] Court's Discretion to Stay Proceedings Pending Appeal

If a party establishes that an appeal from a foreign-country judgment is pending or will be taken in the foreign country, the court may stay any proceedings with regard to the foreign-country judgment until the appeal is concluded, the time for appeal expires, or the appellant has had sufficient time to prosecute the appeal and has failed to do so [Code Civ. Proc. § 1720].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act and its predecessor statute, the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Refusal of Stay Is Abuse of Discretion When Adequate Security Is Provided

Although the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] was repealed and replaced, effective January 1, 2008 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], by the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], the new Act retained many provisions of the previous act without substantive change. Accordingly, cases decided under the prior act generally remain instructive and may be cited as valid precedent unless counsel's research indicates otherwise.

Stevens v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 1, 104 Cal. Rptr. 369 , holding that it is an abuse of discretion for the superior court to refuse a stay when the judgment debtor will provide adequate security for the payment of the judgment, and there is no prejudice to the creditors, is discussed in § 131.149[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.151C

§ 131.151C Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Recognition of Foreign-Country Judgment--Judgment Is Not Final and Conclusive [Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.146[1] .]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S MOTION TO DISMISS THE ACTION FOR RECOGNITION OF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED IN _____ [specify source of foreign judgment] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE JUDGMENT IS NOT FINAL AND CONCLUSIVE.

A. Foreign-Country Judgment Must Be Final, Conclusive, and Enforceable in Foreign Country to Support Claim for Recognition of Judgment in California. Under California law, recognition is afforded to any foreign-country judgment that is final and conclusive and enforceable where rendered (Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)). A judgment that is not final and conclusive where rendered is not entitled to recognition in California (Korea Water Resources Co. v. Lee (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 389, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 853 , decided under prior law).

B. Burden of Proof Is on Claimant. A party seeking recognition of a foreign-country judgment has the burden of establishing that the foreign-country judgment is entitled to recognition under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] (Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(c)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign-country judgment to dismiss proceedings under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] on the ground that the judgment the creditor seeks to have recognized and enforced is not final and/or conclusive in the country in which it was rendered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a); § 131.151C[2][c]].

The Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008 and replaces the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], which continues to govern actions commenced before the new Act's January 1, 2008, effective date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724]. For a form for a supporting motion by a judgment debtor to dismiss an action for recognition of a foreign money judgment on the ground that the judgment is not final and conclusive under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], see § 131.150.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. If the judgment debtor contends that the foreign-country judgment is not final and/or conclusive in the country in which it was rendered, counsel should refer to facts and law evidencing that fact.

[c] Recognition of Foreign-Country Judgment

To support a claim for recognition of a foreign-country judgment in California, that judgment must grant or deny recovery of a sum of money and be final, conclusive, and enforceable under the law of the foreign country where rendered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(b) (foreign-country judgments to which Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act do not apply, even if judgment grants or denies recovery of sum of money)].

Additionally, a court may not recognize a foreign court judgment if any of the following applies [Code Civ. Procedure § 1716(b)]:

- The judgment was rendered under a judicial system that does not provide impartial tribunals or procedures compatible with the requirements of due process of law.
- The foreign court did not have personal jurisdiction over the defendant.
- The foreign court did not have jurisdiction over the subject matter.

A party seeking recognition of a foreign-country judgment has the burden of establishing that the foreign-country judgment is entitled to recognition under the Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1716(d) (when burden shifts to party resisting recognition)]. If recognition of a foreign-country judgment is sought as an original matter, the issue of recognition must be raised by filing an action seeking recognition of the foreign-country judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1718(a)]. If recognition of a foreign-country judgment is sought in a pending action, the issue of recognition may be raised by counterclaim, cross-claim, or affirmative defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 1718(b)].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act and its predecessor statute, the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Foreign-Country Judgment Must Be Final, Conclusive, and Enforceable in Foreign Country to Support Claim for Recognition of Judgment in California

Although the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] was repealed and replaced, effective January 1, 2008 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], by the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.), the new Act retained many provisions of the previous act without substantive change. Accordingly, cases decided under the prior act generally remain instructive and may be cited as valid precedent, unless counsel's research indicates otherwise.

The facts and procedural background of Korea Water Resources Co. v. Lee (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 389, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 853 , are discussed in § 131.150[3][a]. In that case, the court of appeal held that because the Korean district court judgment was not "conclusive" in Korea within the meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)(2)), the judgment was not entitled to recognition in California (115 Cal. App. 4th 389, 398-403) . The court agreed with the California superior court's conclusion that once the Korea Supreme Court rejected the tort theory that formed the legal basis for the judgment and remanded the matter for a new trial, the judgment was not sufficiently conclusive to warrant California recognition (115 Cal. App. 4th 389, 400-403) . The court found that the posture of the case presented much more than a mere potential for change on appeal; rather, the continued viability of the judgment was already compromised as a result of the Korean appellate process because the Korea Supreme Court rejected the tort theory of recovery utilized by the high court and remanded the case to the high court for retrial. In addition to the loss of certainty as to whether there was a legal foundation for the judgment, the factual foundation was also subject to change given the structure of the Korea system which provides for trial de novo at the appellate level (115 Cal. App. 4th 389, 402) . Further, the court was not persuaded that the Korea judgment was conclusive merely because it remained to some extent provisionally enforceable because the Korea high court significantly reduced the amount of the provisional execution order, indicating the amount of the judgment was in flux and not based on a calculated damages award (115 Cal. App. 4th 389, 402) . The court concluded that the superior court could have exercised its authority under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.6 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1720) and continued the stay of the California action pending resolution of the appellate process in Korea only if the circumstances of the case satisfied former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.2's (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)'s] threshold requirement that the foreign judgment be final and conclusive and enforceable in Korea (115 Cal. App. 4th 389, 403) . However, the Korea Supreme Court's decision, which rejected the theory of liability underlying the judgment, defeated such a finding (115 Cal. App. 4th 389, 403) .

For discussion of additional cases decided under prior law, refer to § 131.150[4].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.151D

§ 131.151D Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Enforcement of Foreign-Country Judgment--No Personal Jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1716(b)(2), 1719]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.146[1] .]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S MOTION TO DISMISS THE ACTION FOR ENFORCEMENT OF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED IN _____ [specify source of foreign judgment] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE COURT MAY NOT RECOGNIZE, OR SUBSEQUENTLY ENFORCE, A FOREIGN-COUNTRY JUDGMENT IF THE FOREIGN COURT DID NOT HAVE PERSONAL JURISDICTION OVER THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR.

A. Foreign-Country Judgment Is Unrecognizable and Therefore Unenforceable Under Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.) if Foreign Court Lacked Personal Jurisdiction Over Judgment Debtor. Foreign-country judgments are enforceable in California only if the trial court, in a proceeding brought under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1718, finds the foreign-country judgment is entitled to recognition under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1719). A California court may not recognize a foreign-country judgment if the foreign court did not have personal jurisdiction over the judgment debtor (Code Civ. Proc. § 1716(b)(2)).

[Optional:] B. Court Must Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Judgment Debtor to Enforce Foreign Judgment Under Force in Money-Judgments Act. A judgment obtained without proper service of the summons and complaint is void for lack of personal jurisdiction (Renoir v. Redstar Corp. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1149-1154, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603 , decided under prior law).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign-country judgment to dismiss proceedings to enforce a foreign judgment under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], on grounds that the California court may not recognize a foreign-court judgment if the foreign court did not have personal jurisdiction over the judgment debtor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1716(b)(2)]. If the California court finds that the foreign-country judgment is not entitled to recognition, that judgment is not enforceable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1719(b)].

If the judgment debtor seeks dismissal on the basis of lack of subject matter jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1716(b)(3)], or on any of the discretionary bases listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1716(c), this form may be adapted accordingly.

The enforcement of a foreign judgment is not the same as recognition of the judgment [see Code. Civ. Proc. §§ 1716-1718 (recognition); Code Civ. Proc. § 1719 (enforcement)]. A judgment must be recognized before it can be enforced [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1719]. For a form resisting recognition of a foreign-country judgment, on the grounds that the judgment is not final and conclusive, see § 131.151C.

The Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, and replaces the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.), which continues to govern actions commenced before the new Act's January 1, 2008, effective date [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724]. For a form for a supporting motion by a judgment debtor to dismiss an action for recognition of a foreign money judgment based on lack of personal jurisdiction under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], see § 131.151.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should refer to facts and law evidencing the fact that the foreign court lacked personal jurisdiction over the judgment debtor. For further discussion of the bases for resisting personal jurisdiction, see Ch. 132, Jurisdiction : Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum.

[c] Personal Jurisdiction

Under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], a California court may not recognize a foreign-country judgment if the foreign court did not have personal jurisdiction over the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1716(b)(2)].

Personal jurisdiction is governed generally by the due process clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution, Cal. Const. art. I, § 7, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.10-418.11, and by case law. In addition, Code Civ. Proc. § 1717 specifically provides that a foreign-country judgment may not be refused recognition for lack of personal jurisdiction if any of the following applies:

- The defendant was served with process personally in the foreign country [Code Civ. Proc. § 1717(a)(1)].

- The defendant voluntarily appeared in the proceeding, other than for the purpose of protecting property seized or threatened with seizure in the proceeding or of contesting the jurisdiction of the court over the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1717(a)(2)].

- The defendant, before the commencement of the proceeding, had agreed to submit to the jurisdiction of the foreign court with respect to the subject matter involved [Code Civ. Proc. § 1717(a)(3)].

- The defendant was domiciled in the foreign country when the proceeding was instituted or was a corporation or other form of business organization that had its principal place of business in, or was organized under the laws of, the foreign country [Code Civ. Proc. § 1717(a)(4)].

- The defendant had a business office in the foreign country and the proceeding in the foreign court involved a cause of action or claim for relief arising out of business done by the defendant through that office in the foreign country [Code Civ. Proc. § 1717(a)(5)].

- The defendant operated a motor vehicle or airplane in the foreign country and the proceeding involved a cause of action or claim for relief arising out of that operation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1717(a)(6)].

This list of bases for personal jurisdiction is not exclusive. California courts may recognize bases of personal jurisdiction other than those listed in the statute as sufficient to support a foreign-country judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1717(b)].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act and its predecessor statute, the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender). For discussion of personal jurisdiction generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction : Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Must Have Personal Jurisdiction Over Judgment Debtor to Enforce Foreign Judgment Under Foreign Money-Judgments Act

Although the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] was repealed and replaced, effective January 1, 2008 [Stats. 2007 Ch. 212 § 1], by the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.], the new Act retained many provisions of the previous act without substantive change. Accordingly, cases decided under the prior act generally remain instructive and may be cited as valid precedent, unless counsel's research indicates otherwise.

The facts and procedural background of Renoir v. Redstar Corp. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603 , are discussed in § 131.151[3][a]. In that case, the court held that a foreign judgment may not be enforced pursuant to the provisions of the Sister-State and Foreign Money-Judgments Act (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1151 ; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.10 et seq.). Foreign money judgments are enforced by bringing an action in California to obtain a domestic judgment (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1151) . To enforce a foreign judgment recognized under the former Foreign Money-Judgments Act, the party seeking enforcement must comply with the procedures applicable to civil actions, including service of a summons to establish personal jurisdiction (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1152). The enforcement proceeding under the Act was not a special proceeding in which process was something other than a summons, and plaintiffs' label of "Petition" on their pleading was of no significance. Further, defendants' knowledge of the action did not satisfy the requirement of adequate service of a summons and complaint. By not serving a summons, plaintiffs failed to take the required steps to obtain personal jurisdiction over defendants to enforce the French judgment in California. Defendants' brief references to issues related to whether the trial court correctly enforced the French judgment did not constitute a general appearance by defendants (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1152-1153) . The court noted, parenthetically, that nonmonetary portions of the foreign judgment were not covered by the former Foreign Money-Judgments Act. The Act provided for enforcement of any judgment of a foreign state granting or denying recovery of a sum of money (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1152 ; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713.1(2) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 1715(a)(1))).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.151E

§ 131.151E Supporting Motion by Judgment Debtor to Dismiss Action for Recognition of Foreign-Country Judgment--Action Filed After Statute of Limitations Has Run [Code Civ. Proc. § 1721]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.146[1] .]

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S MOTION TO DISMISS THE ACTION FOR RECOGNITION OF THE JUDGMENT RENDERED IN _____ [specify source of foreign judgment] SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE ACTION WAS FILED AFTER THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS HAD RUN.

Action to Recognize a Foreign-Country Judgment in California Must Be Filed Within the Time Provided by Statute. An action seeking recognition of a foreign-country judgment under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.) must be commenced within the earlier of the time during which the foreign-country judgment is effective in the foreign country or 10 years from the date that the foreign-country became effective in the foreign country (Code Civ. Proc. § 1721).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign-country judgment to dismiss proceedings to recognize the foreign judgment under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] because the statute of limitations has run. The Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act applies to all actions commenced on or after January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724(a)]. The Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] continues to apply to all actions commenced before January 1, 2008, in which the issue of recognition of a foreign-country judgment is raised [Code Civ. Proc. § 1724(b)].

For a form supporting a motion by a judgment debtor under a foreign money judgment to dismiss proceedings to recognize and enforce the foreign judgment under the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act [former Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] because the statute of limitations has run, see § 131.151A.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should refer to facts and law evidencing the fact that the statute of limitations has run.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act and its predecessor statute, Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender). For discussion of limitations of actions generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, limitations of Actions (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion of the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act and its predecessor statute, the Uniform Foreign Money-Judgments Recognition Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 318, Judgments (Matthew Bender). For discussion of personal jurisdiction generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action to Recognize a Foreign-Money Judgment in California Must Be Filed Within the Time Provided by Statute

An action seeking recognition of a foreign-country judgment under the Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 1713 et seq.] must be commenced within the earlier of the time during which the foreign-country judgment is effective in the foreign country or 10 years from the date that the foreign-country became effective in the foreign country [Code Civ. Proc. § 1721]. A foreign-country judgment that is not recognized is not enforceable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1719].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.152

§ 131.152 Opposing Motion to Stay Enforcement--Fully Executed Writ May Not Be Stayed

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
_____ [name],	)	TO STAY ENFORCEMENT
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____

_____

THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S MOTION TO STAY ENFORCEMENT SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE WRIT HAS BEEN FULLY EXECUTED.

Court Without Power to Stay Enforcement on Fully Executed Writ. When a writ of execution has been regularly issued and executed, money collected, while in the hands of the levying officer, is property of the judgment creditors and not the judgment debtor. When the execution is no longer outstanding, the court is without power to take control of the judgment debtor's money by ordering the levying officer not to pay it over as the officer is legally bound to do (Del Riccio v. Superior Court (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 29, 31, 251 P.2d 678).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a motion to stay enforcement, when the judgment debtor is seeking a stay of enforcement on property already levied on by the levying officer. The form may be used to oppose the memoranda provided in §§ 131.146 and 131.147.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should refer to facts that demonstrate that the writ of execution was regularly issued and fully executed.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Without Power to Stay Enforcement on Fully Executed Writ

Del Riccio v. Superior Court (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 29, 251 P.2d 678 , involved a proceeding in mandamus to require the superior court to annul orders relating to a stay of enforcement. The petitioners were judgment creditors who recovered a judgment against the judgment debtor, and a writ of execution was issued on a bank in which the defendant had a deposit. The bank made its return and paid the sum to the sheriff. While the sheriff still had the money in his possession, on application of the judgment debtor, the court ordered the sheriff not to pay any moneys to the judgment creditors in the action. No motion was made to recall the execution or quash the levy, nor was a claim made regarding any irregularity in the proceeding. The judgment debtors petitioned the court for a writ of mandate relating to the trial court's stay of enforcement.

The court of appeal granted the writ of mandate commanding the trial court to vacate its orders insofar as they purported to command the sheriff not to pay over to the judgment creditors the money on hand, less sheriff's fees and costs. The issue before the court was whether in the absence of statutory authority, a command to the sheriff not to pay over money levied on was within the inherent powers of the court. Under former Code Civ. Proc. § 691 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.810-701.830], it is the duty of the officer who collects money on execution to pay over to the judgment creditor or the judgment creditor's attorney so much thereof as will satisfy the judgment. When a sale is required, the officer has the same duty to pay the amount of the judgment from the proceeds from the sale.

The court stated that when the writ has been regularly issued and executed, money collected while in the hands of the officer, is property of the judgment creditors and not the debtor. Nothing can be done with it other than to turn it over to the creditor. The possession of the officer solely for the use and benefit of the creditor is possession by the latter. As between the parties, the money should be deemed to have been delivered to the creditor immediately on its receipt by the officer and the creditor's right to receive it is not affected by any delay that may occur. Correspondingly, when the debtor's money is taken on a valid execution, it ceases to be the debtor's and he or she immediately becomes entitled to partial or full satisfaction of the judgment. The rights of the parties cannot be interfered with except through procedure authorized by statute. The court concluded that although there can be no doubt as to the power of the court to control further proceedings while the execution is outstanding, the court was without power to take control of the money of the judgment creditors by ordering the sheriff not to pay it over as the officer was legally bound to do (115 Cal. App. 2d 29, 31) .

Note that the rule in Del Riccio v. Superior Court (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 29, 31, 251 P.2d 678 , discussed above, would not apply in proceedings for enforcement of a sister state money judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50, in view of the specific provision in the statute allowing the court to order the levying officer to retain possession of the property capable of physical possession and to maintain the levy on other property, if property of the judgment debtor has been levied on under a writ of execution, [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.50(c)(3)]. In addition, it appears that the rule would probably not be available in proceedings that are within the scope of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. Appen. § 501 et seq.; see also § 131.148], since under that act a court may vacate or stay any attachment or garnishment of property, money, or debts in the hands of another [see 50 U.S.C. Appen. § 524(a)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.153

§ 131.153 Supporting Motion by Judgment Creditor for Determination of Judgment Debtor's Claim of Exemption--Property Claimed Is Not Exempt or Equity Is in Excess of Exemption [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.550]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR DETERMIN-
Defendant.	)	ATION OF CLAIM OF EXEMPTION
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

THE JUDGMENT CREDITOR's MOTION FOR DETERMINATION OF CLAIM OF EXEMPTION SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE _____ [THE PROPERTY ALLEGED IS NOT EXEMPT UNDER SECTIONS 703.010 THROUGH 704.995 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE or THE EQUITY IN THE PROPERTY CLAIM TO BE EXEMPT IS IN EXCESS OF THE AMOUNT PROVIDED IN THE APPLICABLE EXEMPTION].

A. Property Is Not Exempt or Equity Is in Excess of Exemption. The allegation that _____ [the property is not exempt under the provision of Sections 703.010 through 704.995 of the Code of Civil Procedure or the equity in the property claimed to be exempt is in excess of the amount provided in the applicable exemption] in the judgment creditor's notice of opposition controverts the claim of exemption. If the court is satisfied that sufficient facts are shown by the claim and the notice of opposition, the court may make its determination thereon (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 703.560, 703.580(c)).

B. Burden of Proof on Claimant. At a hearing under Section 703.580 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the exemption claimant has the burden of proof (Code Civ. Proc. § 703.580(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a judgment creditor's motion for an order determining the judgment debtor's claim of exemption, under Code Civ. Proc. § 703.550. In addition to the notice of motion, a notice of opposition to the claim of exemption must be filed, using the mandatory Judicial Council form. The notice of opposition must be executed under oath and include both the pertinent allegation provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 703.560(a), and a statement of the facts necessary to support the allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.560(b)].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, if the motion is based on the allegation that the equity in the property claimed to be exempt is in excess of the amount provided in the applicable exemption, counsel should cite the applicable exemption and refer to facts disclosing the true value of the subject property.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 131.154 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion supported by the foregoing memorandum.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of exemptions and exemption procedure generally, and a form of notice of motion and order relating to a motion for order determining claim of exemption pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 703.550, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities opposing a defendant's claim of exemption submitted in opposition to an application for a right to attach order, see Ch. 112, Homesteads .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptions

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.154

§ 131.154 Opposing Motion by Judgment Creditor for Determination of Judgment Debtor's Claim of Exemption--Exemption Statutes Liberally Construed for Judgment Debtor's Welfare

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR DETERM-
Defendant.	)	INATION OF CLAIM OF EXEMPTION
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

THE JUDGMENT CREDITOR's MOTION FOR ORDER DETERMINING CLAIM OF EXEMPTION SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE _____ [specify applicable exemption statute, e.g., SECTION 690.18(a) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE], WHEN LIBERALLY CONSTRUED IN FAVOR THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR _____ [PROVIDES FOR THE EXEMPTION AS CLAIMED or DOES NOT WITHHOLD THE EXEMPTION CLAIMED].

A. Exemption Statutes Liberally Construed. The principal objective of the exemption statutes is to provide for the support and welfare of the debtor and his or her family and to enable the judgment debtor to follow his or her vocation. Such statutes are liberally construed to carry out these purposes and, as far as practicable, for the debtor's benefit ( Holmes v. Marshall (1905) 145 Cal. 777, 779, 79 P. 534 ; Roosevelt v. Roosevelt (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 397, 402, 172 Cal. Rptr. 641).

[Optional] B. Exceptions Narrowly Construed. Conversely to the rule of liberal construction of the grant of an exemption, provisions which limit or take away the exemption are strictly construed, whether in provisos and exceptions or amending statutes (Roosevelt v. Roosevelt (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 397, 402-403, 172 Cal. Rptr. 641).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a judgment creditor's motion for an order determining the judgment debtor's claim of exemption, under Code Civ. Proc. § 703.550. The ground for opposition set forth is that when the statute granting the applicable exemption is read liberally, or the statute providing an exception to an exemption is strictly construed, the property of the judgment debtor is exempt from execution on the judgment.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 131.153.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to exemptions generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities supporting a defendant's claim of exemption submitted in opposition to an application for a right to attach order, see Ch. 112, Homesteads .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exemption Statutes Liberally Construed

Holmes v. Marshall (1905) 145 Cal. 777, 79 P. 534 , involved an action on a promissory note. After the action was commenced, a writ of attachment was issued and a sum of money on deposit at a bank was levied on. The judgment debtor moved to set aside the levy of the writ and dissolve it as to the money. The trial court granted the motion and the judgment creditor appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the order. The court stated that the principal question was whether or not the money was subject to the debts of the judgment debtor, or was exempt from execution. The money in question was deposited from the proceeds of three life insurance policies, two of which were payable to the judgment debtor, and one which was payable to the estate of judgment debtor's husband. After the estate was probated, all the proceeds of the policies were deposited into the account. The main contention of the judgment creditor was that the exemption under former Code Civ. Proc. § 690 applying to benefits growing out of life insurance [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.100], extended only against the debtors of the person whose life was insured and who paid the premiums and that the death did not continue after death in favor of the beneficiary. In resolving the question, the Court stated that the statutes exempting property from execution are enacted on the ground of public policy for the benevolent purpose of saving debtors and their families from want by reason of misfortune or improvidence and that the general rule is to construe such statutes liberally, so as to carry out the intention of the Legislature, and the humane purpose, designed by the lawmakers. The Court applied the foregoing principal to construe the words "exempt from execution" to mean exempt from any execution, since the Legislature did not mention any particular class of executions and the Court was not at liberty to judicially insert such a class (145 Cal. 777, 778-779) .

Note that under the current statute providing exemptions relating to life insurance, benefits from matured life insurance policies (including endowment and annuity policies) are exempt to the extent reasonably necessary for the support of the judgment debtor and the spouse and dependents of the judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.100].

In Roosevelt v. Roosevelt (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 397, 172 Cal. Rptr. 641 , the plaintiff brought an action for breach of contract and accounting on the parties' separation agreement, based on the defendant's cessation of monthly support payments. The plaintiff obtained a money judgment, with the damages represented as accumulated arrearages of the support payments. Plaintiff thereafter obtained a writ of execution on the judgment and levied on the United States Civil Service Commission which administers and pays the defendant a monthly pension based on his employment with the United States government. The defendant asserted that his pension was exempt from execution under former Code Civ. Proc. § 609.18(a), governing public retirement benefits [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.110]. In response, the plaintiff noticed a motion for determination of defendant's claim of exemption. The trial court found that the plaintiff's judgment on the agreement was for court-ordered spousal support payments, as the term was used under former Code Civ. Proc. § 609.18(a) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.110(c)], and denied the defendant's claim of exemption. The defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded the cause with directions to enter an order upholding the defendant's claim to exemption. The court stated that the principal objective of the exemption statutes is to provide for the support and welfare of the debtor and his or her family and to enable the debtor to follow his or her vocation. Such statutes are liberally construed to carry out these purposes and, as far as practicable, for the debtor's benefit (117 Cal. App. 3d 397, 402) .

[b] Exceptions Narrowly Construed

The facts and procedural background of Roosevelt v. Roosevelt (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 397, 172 Cal. Rptr. 641 , are discussed in § 131.154[3][a]. In Roosevelt, the court considered whether the federal government retirement benefit payments of the judgment debtor were exempt. The court stated that the corollary proposition to that requiring liberal construction of exemption statutes for the benefit of the debtor is that exceptions to the exemption statute must be strictly construed. The court cited the statement in Los Angeles Finance Co. v. Flores (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 850, 854, 243 P.2d 139 , that conversely to the rule of liberal construction of the grant of an exemption, provisions which limit or take away the exemption are strictly construed, whether in provisos and exceptions or in amending statutes. Since the judgment in the action did not provide for or enforce, in the language of the exemption statute, "court-ordered ... spousal support payments," but was rendered in an action on a property settlement agreement, the court held that the judgment debtor was entitled to exemption (117 Cal. App. 3d 397, 407) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionExemptions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.155

§ 131.155 Supporting Contention That Execution Sale Should Be Set Aside--Statutory Action--Improper Sale to Judgment Creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 701.680(c)(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE EXECUTION SALE TO THE JUDGMENT CREDITOR SHOULD BE SET ASIDE BECAUSE THE SALE WAS IMPROPER.

Improper Sale to Judgment Creditor May Be Set Aside. If the sale was improper because of irregularities in the proceedings, because the property sold was not subject to execution, or for any other reason, the judgment debtor, or the judgment debtor's successor in interest, may commence an action to set aside the sale if the purchaser at the sale is the judgment creditor (Code Civ. Proc. § 701.680(c)(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in support of a judgment debtor's contention that the execution sale of his or her property to the judgment creditor should be set aside because the sale was improper, either because of irregularities in the proceedings, because the property sold was not subject to execution, or for any other reason.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the execution sale was made on property that was exempt from execution, it should be established that the purchaser was the judgment creditor and that the property was exempt under the execution of judgment statutes [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 704.010-704.210 (property exempt from execution)].

[b] Statutory Action to Set Aside Execution Sale

Prior to the Legislature's adoption of the Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.) in 1982, a judgment debtor or his or her successor in interest had the right to redeem his or her property within 12 months after an execution sale by paying the purchaser the purchase price plus interest, taxes, and other costs [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 701]. If there was some irregularity or unfairness in the execution sale proceedings, the judgment debtor was permitted to seek relief to set aside the execution sale either by bringing a motion under statute [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 708], or an independent action in equity [see Sullivan v. Wellborn (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 214, 217, 195 P.2d 787 ; Smith v. Kessler (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 26, 31, 117 Cal. Rptr. 470 ; see § 131.156].

Under the new statutes, the judgment debtor's right of redemption after an execution sale has been abolished, although the judgment debtor retains a grace period of 120 days between the notice of levy and the notice of sale, during which he or she may save his or her property or sell it for a higher price [see Code Civ. Proc. § 701.545]. In addition, the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's successor in interest may commence an action within 90 days after the date of the execution sale to set aside the sale if the purchaser at the sale is the judgment creditor. The action may be commenced if the sale was improper because of irregularities in proceedings, because the property sold was not subject to execution, or for any other reason [Code Civ. Proc. § 701.680(c)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionWrits of Execution

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.156

§ 131.156 Supporting Contention That Execution Sale Should Be Set Aside--Equitable Action--Grossly Inadequate Price When Purchaser Is Guilty of Unfairness or Has Taken Undue Advantage

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE EXECUTION SALE SHOULD BE SET ASIDE BECAUSE THE PRICE OBTAINED WAS GREATLY DISPROPORTIONATE TO THE ACTUAL VALUE AND THE PURCHASER _____ [IS GUILTY OF UNFAIRNESS or HAS TAKEN UNDUE ADVANTAGE].

A. Execution Sale Invalidated When Gross Inadequacy of Price and Slight Evidence of Unfairness or Irregularity Are Shown. If the price obtained is greatly disproportionate to the actual value, very slight evidence of unfairness or irregularity will suffice to authorize the granting of relief (Odell v. Cox (1907) 151 Cal. 70, 74, 90 P. 194 ; Darden v. Reese (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 904, 908, 200 P.2d 81).

[Optional] B. Unfairness Need Not Amount to Legal Fraud. Acts of oppression and unfairness which will justify vacating an execution sale need not amount to legal fraud. "Unfairness," as it relates to conduct in connection with execution sales, embraces all types of dishonesty, deception, and oppression that operate to the prejudice of the judgment debtor or others interested in the sale (Darden v. Reese (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 904, 909-910, 200 P.2d 81).

[Optional] C. Inadequacy of Price Is Evidence of Unfairness. It is universally recognized that inadequacy of price is a circumstance of greater or less weight, to be considered in connection with other circumstances impeaching the fairness of the transaction as a cause of vacating it. Inadequacy of price may be so gross as in itself to furnish satisfactory evidence of fraud or misconduct on the part of the officer or purchaser, and justify the vacating of the sale (Odell v. Cox (1907) 151 Cal. 70, 74, 90 P. 194).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in support of a judgment debtor's contention that the execution sale of his or her property should be set aside because the price received at the sale was grossly inadequate and the purchaser is guilty of unfairness or has taken undue advantage. An action in equity to set aside an execution judgment may be made as an alternative to the statutory action provided for under Code Civ. Proc. 701.680(c)(1) [see § 131.155].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts which establish that the price that the property was sold at the execution sale was grossly inadequate to the actual value of the property, and to facts indicating unfairness or undue advantage [see, e.g., Odell v. Cox (1907) 151 Cal. 70, 74-75, 90 P. 194 , discussed in § 131.156[3][a]].

[b] Equitable Action to Set Aside Execution Sale

According to the Law Revision Commission, which recommended changes to the former statutory governing enforcement of judgments later that were adopted by the Legislature in 1982, the elimination of the statutory right of redemption from execution sales would not affect the equitable right of a judgment debtor to redeem from a sale at a grossly inadequate price when the purchaser is guilty of unfairness or has taken undue advantage [see 16 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports, pp. 1119-1120; Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 8, Enforcement of Judgment § 158; but see Schwartz & Ahart, Cal. Prac. Guide: Enforcing Judgments & Debts (TRG 1990), Paragraph 6:723 (suggesting that Code Civ. Proc. § 701.680(c) may be preemptive, providing the exclusive grounds for relief from execution sale)].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in §§ 131.157 and 131.158 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention that an execution sale should be set aside.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Execution Sale Invalidated When Gross Inadequacy of Price and Slight Evidence of Unfairness or Irregularity Are Shown

In Odell v. Cox (1907) 151 Cal. 70, 90 P. 194 , the plaintiff was an owner of corporate stock that had been levied on and sold at an execution sale under a writ of execution obtained on a judgment against him. He brought an action against the judgment creditor in the earlier suit seeking to vacate the sale. The trial court granted judgment in favor of the plaintiff. The defendant moved for new trial and the motion was denied. The defendant then appealed the order denying the motion, and the judgment. The defendant's argued that there could be no question of fraud in the case, in view of a finding against an allegation in the complaint of intentional concealment by defendant of the proceedings for the sale of execution for purpose of obtaining the property for a mere nominal sum.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court concluded that findings of fact, taken in connection with admitted allegations of the complaint, showed unfairness and undue advantage constituting constructive fraud. The court acknowledged the rule that mere inadequacy of price is not a sufficient ground for refusing to confirm or vacating an execution sale. But it is universally recognized that inadequacy of price is a circumstance of greater or less weight, to be considered in connection with other circumstances impeaching the fairness of the transaction as a cause of vacating it, and that where the inadequacy is palpable and great, very slight additional evidence of unfairness or irregularity is sufficient to authorize the granting of the relief sought. In fact, the Court observed, according to very respectable authority, inadequacy of price may be so gross as in itself to furnish satisfactory evidence of fraud or misconduct on the part of the officer or purchaser, and justify the vacating of the sale (151 Cal. 70, 74) . In the case before it, the Court noted that the price for which the stock was sold was grossly inadequate. The amount bid was $26.50, when the property had a cash value of $2,000 on the market (151 Cal. 70, 73) . There was an absolute lack of knowledge on the part of the owner of the property of any levy or proposed sale. The manner of the levy, while authorized by law, was such that the owner of the property could learn of the levy in time only from such information as might be given by the officers of the respective corporations, or the notices of sale, or casually by some one who did know the fact. No one saw fit to enlighten the owner. In addition, the judgment creditor took advantage of the absence of the owner of the property by attempting to take the property at what he knew to be for mere nominal consideration (151 Cal. 70, 75) .

The Court also cited Schroeder v. Young (1895) 161 U.S. 334, 16 S. Ct. 512, 40 L. Ed. 721 , for the following circumstances that may constitute irregularity of proceedings: when several lots have been sold in such manner that their full value could not be realized; when bidders have been kept away; when any undue advantage has been taken to the prejudice of the owner of the property; when the owner has been lulled into a false security; or when the sale has been conducted collusively or in any other manner for the benefit of the purchaser (151 Cal. 70, 75) .

Darden v. Reese (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 904, 200 P.2d 81 , involved an action to set aside an execution sale of corporate stock. The court found that the market value of the stock was approximately $35,000 and that the defendant purchaser bid $1,150 knowing that the sum was grossly inadequate, the defendant purchaser was not a bona fide purchaser of the stock, and the defendant judgment creditor was guilty of fraudulent conduct and great unfairness toward the plaintiff. The trial court's judgment vacated the sale and the defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The defendants conceded that inadequacy of price alone does not invalidate an execution sale. When, however, the price obtained is greatly disproportionate to the actual value, very slight evidence of unfairness or irregularity will suffice to authorize the granting of relief. The court considered whether under the facts established at the trial, the case was one for relief under the above rule. The court cited the fact that the defendant judgment creditor intentionally withheld information of the levy of execution from the plaintiff and gave instructions and directions to the defendant purchaser with respect to bidding at the sale in support of the finding of fraudulent conduct and great unfairness (88 Cal. App. 2d 904, 908) .

[b] Unfairness Need Not Amount to Legal Fraud

The facts and procedural background of Darden v. Reese (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 904, 200 P.2d 81 , are discussed in § 131.156[3][a]. In Darden, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment setting aside and execution sale of corporate stock that had been levied on. The court of appeal stated that acts of oppression and unfairness which will justify vacating an execution sale need not amount to legal fraud. "Unfairness," as it relates to conduct in connection with execution sales, embraces all types of dishonesty, deception, and oppression that operate to the prejudice of the judgment debtor or others interested in the sale. The court continued to state that there can be no fixed standards by which the fairness of conduct or the extent of the claimed deception can be measured. Each case must be judged according to its particular facts. Hence, unfairness sufficient to invalidate the sale was found in the conduct of the secretary of the corporation who held the judgment sought to be collected as trustee for the corporation, who was under a duty to act in the highest good faith toward the corporation in all matters affecting its interests, and who for his own benefit and advantage, withheld from the plaintiff information that his stock had been subjected to the levy of an execution, and also withheld such information from the other officers of the corporation (88 Cal. App. 2d 904, 909-910) .

[c] Inadequacy of Price Is Evidence of Unfairness

The facts and procedural background of Odell v. Cox (1907) 151 Cal. 70, 90 P. 194 , are discussed in § 131.156[3][a]. In Odell, in affirming the trial court judgment vacating the execution sale, the Supreme Court stated that it is universally recognized that inadequacy of price is a circumstance of greater or less weight, to be considered in connection with other circumstances impeaching the fairness of the transaction as a cause of vacating the execution sale, and that when the inadequacy is palpable and great, very slight additional evidence of unfairness or irregularity is sufficient to authorize the granting of the relief sought. The Court further observed that inadequacy of price may be so gross as in itself to furnish satisfactory evidence of fraud or misconduct on the part of the officer or purchaser, and justify the vacating of the sale (151 Cal. 70, 74) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Unfairness Need Not Amount to Legal Fraud

Smith v. Kessler (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 26, 117 Cal. Rptr. 470 , involved an action to recover a parcel of real property which the defendant had acquired through an execution sale. It was stipulated at trial that the property was worth between $20,000 and $24,000, and the defendant had acquired the property on his bid of $999.55. The trial court granted judgment in favor of the plaintiff and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal modified the judgment, and as modified, affirmed. The court cited Odell v. Cox (1907) 151 Cal. 70, 73, 90 P. 194 (discussed in § 131.156[3][a]) and stated that when, in addition to gross inadequacy of price, the purchaser has been guilty of any unfairness or has taken any undue advantage resulting in such gross inadequacy and consequent injury to the owner of the property, he or she will be deemed guilty of fraud warranting the interposition of a court of equity in favor of the owner who is himself or herself without fault. The court concluded that the evidence fully supported the decision to grant equitable relief because defendant acquired valuable property for a fraction of its value, bid on the property under a name that would not readily be connected to him and quietly waited for the expiration of the statutory period of redemption allowing the plaintiff to collect the rents, pay the taxes, and build up her equity on a trust deed during that period. The plaintiff was in total ignorance of what was happening, which the defendant must have surely realized. The court stated that the defendant was not chargeable for his intent, but for what he did, that is, to take unfair advantage of an absent and unwary owner (43 Cal. App. 3d 26, 32) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.157

§ 131.157 Opposing Contention That Execution Sale Should Be Set Aside--Equitable Action--Mere Inadequacy of Price Insufficient

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE EXECUTION SALE SHOULD NOT BE SET ASIDE BECAUSE THE MERE INADEQUACY OF PRICE IS INSUFFICIENT GROUND FOR SETTING ASIDE AN EXECUTION SALE.

Mere Inadequacy of Price Alone Insufficient Basis to Set Aside Sale. It is well settled in this state that mere inadequacy of price, however gross, is not itself a sufficient ground for setting aside a sale legally made. There must, in addition, be proof of some element of fraud, unfairness, or oppression before a court will be justified in depriving the purchaser of his or her legal advantage (Rauer v. Hertweck (1917) 175 Cal. 278, 280-281, 165 P. 946).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a judgment debtor's contention that the execution sale of his or her property should be set aside, through an action in equity, if the sole contention on the part of the judgment debtor is that the price received at the judgment sale is inadequate. In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention support by the points and authorities set out in § 131.156.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. It should be established that, notwithstanding the judgment debtor's allegation that the price obtained at the sale was inadequate, there is an absence of any other evidence indicating unfairness in the sale [see, e.g., Rauer v. Hertweck (1917) 175 Cal. 278, 281, 165 P. 946] .

See also § 131.156[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Inadequacy of Price Alone Insufficient Basis to Set Aside Sale

Rauer v. Hertweck (1917) 175 Cal. 278, 165 P. 946 involved an action to set aside an execution sale of real estate. The trial court granted the defendant purchaser's motion for a nonsuit, and entered judgment in their favor. The plaintiff judgment debtor appealed the judgment.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court stated that on a motion for a nonsuit, the evidence, and every inference that may fairly be drawn from it, must be viewed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff's claim. There was testimony that the land was worth $2,000 to $3,000, and the sum bid at the execution sale was only $46. The Court cited the rule, however, that it is well settled in this state that mere inadequacy of price, however gross, is not itself a sufficient ground for setting aside a sale legally made. There must, in addition, be proof of some element of fraud, unfairness, or oppression before a court will be justified in depriving the purchaser of his or her legal advantage. The only proof given by the plaintiff on the question of unfairness was that he had no knowledge of the judgment or of the proceedings on execution. Facts furnished, however, provided evidence that the plaintiff's attorney had actual knowledge of the entry of the judgment, which is, in the law, the knowledge of the client. There were also letters from the defendant's attorneys to the plaintiff's attorney requesting payment up to two months prior to the execution. Further, the notice of sale was published and posted in strict conformity with the requirements of statute. The Court concluded from the foregoing that it was unable to find any showing of fraud, unfairness, or oppression (175 Cal. 278, 281-282) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.158

§ 131.158 Opposing Contention That Execution Sale Should Be Set Aside--Equitable Action--Defendant Is Good-Faith Purchaser

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE EXECUTION SALE SHOULD NOT BE SET ASIDE BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT IS A STRANGER TO THE PROCEEDINGS WHO HAS PURCHASED IN GOOD FAITH.

Good-Faith Purchaser Without Duty Toward Judgment Debtor. A purchaser at an execution sale who is a stranger to the proceedings and buys in good faith is charged with no duty toward the judgment debtor (Bock v. Losekamp (1919) 179 Cal. 674, 677, 179 P. 516).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a judgment debtor's contention that the execution sale of his or her property should be set aside, through an action in equity, if the purchaser is a stranger to the proceedings who purchased the property in good faith. In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention support by the points and authorities set out in § 131.156.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That is, counsel should refer to facts indicating that the purchaser submitted his or her bid in good faith and was otherwise a stranger to the enforcement proceedings.

See also § 131.156[2].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Good-Faith Purchaser Without Duty Toward Judgment Debtor

Bock v. Losekamp (1919) 179 Cal. 674, 179 P. 516 , involved an action to set aside an execution sale and deed of the plaintiff judgment debtor's real estate. The basis for the action was a judgment was entered against the judgment debtor for costs in superior court, on which an execution issued. The sheriff levied on the judgment debtor's property and after due notice offered it to sale. The defendant in the action was not a party to the earlier suit against the plaintiff and was the only bidder at the sale. The trial court found that the property was sold for $35.60, which was the amount of the judgment and costs, was encumbered for $220, and was worth $2,000 and concluded that the sale price was grossly inadequate. The trial court also found that the judgment creditor knew where the plaintiff resided and did not notify him of the sale, and both the judgment creditor and the sheriff knew that the plaintiff did not see the published notice of the sale. However, it was not claimed or found that there was any irregularity in the proceedings connected with the sale, or that the defendant had any knowledge of the circumstances which caused the plaintiff's ignorance concerning the judgment, execution, and sale. The trial court's judgment was in favor of the plaintiff and the defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment. The plaintiff relied on the decision in Odell v. Cox (1907) 151 Cal. 70, 74, 90 P. 194 (discussed in § 131.156[3][a]), in which the Court held that a judgment debtor is entitled to have an execution sale set aside if the price obtained is greatly disproportionate to the actual value, and there is very slight evidence of unfairness or irregularity. The Court distinguished Odell, however, on the ground that the present case involved an innocent purchaser. The Court stated that a purchaser at an execution sale who is a stranger to the proceedings and buys in good faith is charged with no duty toward the judgment debtor. The purchaser must at his or her peril examine the judgment and execution in order to determine whether the levying officer is duty authorized to make the sale, but the purchaser need not inquire further into the proceedings of the levying officer and judgment creditor to ascertain if they have been in all respects fair toward the judgment debtor. The purchaser may rely on the levying officer's authority to sell and the purchaser's own good faith as to that matter (179 Cal. 674, 677) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Good-Faith Purchaser Without Duty Toward Judgment Debtor

The facts and procedural background of Rauer v. Hertweck (1917) 175 Cal. 278, 165 P. 946 , are discussed in § 131.157[3][a]. In Rauer, the Court concluded that it was unable to find anything showing fraud, unfairness and oppression and held that the trial court properly granted the defendant's motion for a nonsuit (175 Cal. 278, 282) . It is noted in Bock v. Losekamp (1919) 179 Cal. 674, 676, 179 P. 516 , discussed in § 131.158[3][a] that Rauer involved an execution sale of property for a grossly inadequate price, on a judgment and execution for which the debtor had no actual personal knowledge, and of which no actual knowledge was given to the debtor, and the purchaser was a stranger to the judgment.

In Sargent v. Shumaker (1924) 193 Cal. 122, 223 P. 464 , the defendant appealed from a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in an action to quiet title and to set aside a trustee's sale under a power of sale in a trust deed. The Court cited the general rule that when the inadequacy of price is palpable and great, slight irregularities in conjunction therewith will authorize a court to set aside the sale. The Court was of the opinion, however, that in order to have this effect, the irregularities must have conduced to the inadequacy of the price, or in some other way have contributed to the injury of the plaintiff. The court stated that if the inadequacy can be connected with or shown to result from any mistake, accident, surprise, misconduct, fraud, or irregularity, the sale will generally be vacated, unless the complainant was himself in fault, or the rights of innocent third parties have become dependent on the sale (193 Cal. 122, 132) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil

ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.159

§ 131.159 Opposing Petition for Determination of Third Party's Claim of Interest--Petition for Hearing Not Filed Within Statutory Period [Code Civ. Proc. § 720.310(a)]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR HEAR-
Defendant.	)	ING TO DETERMINE VALIDITY OF THIRD )	PARTY CLAIM
	)	Date: _____
		Time: _____
		Location: _____

_____

THE COURT SHOULD DISMISS THE PETITION BECAUSE THE COURT LACKS JURISDICTION TO HEAR THE PROCEEDING ON THE GROUND THAT NO PETITION WAS FILED WITHIN THE STATUTORY PERIOD.

A. Petition Must Be Filed Within Statutory Period. Not later than 15 days _____ [after the third-party claim is filed with the levying officer pursuant to Section _____ (720.120 or 720.220) of the Code of Civil Procedure or after filing an undertaking pursuant to Section 720.610 of the Code of Civil Procedure], either the creditor or the third person may petition the court for a hearing to determine the validity of the third-party claim and the proper disposition of the property that is the subject of the claim (Code Civ. Proc. § 720.310(a)).

B. Court Lacks Jurisdiction When Petition Not Filed Within Statutory Period. When the statutory period has run from the filing on the third-party claim and no petition for hearing has been filed, the trial court in which the suit was brought loses jurisdiction to hear the summary proceeding (Commercial Credit Plan, Inc. v. Gomez (1968) 276 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 831, 834, 80 Cal. Rptr. 534).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for hearing to determine a third-party claim and disposition of property under Code Civ. Proc. § 720.310.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. That, counsel should refer to facts indicating that no petition for hearing was filed within the period required under Code Civ. Proc. § 720.310.

Note that the failure to demand a hearing within the period required under Code Civ. Proc. § 720.310(a) does not foreclose an independent action [see Commercial Credit Plan, Inc. v. Gomez (1968) 276 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 831, 834, 80 Cal. Rptr. 534 (discussed in § 131.159[3][a])].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion and forms relating to proceedings on a third-party claim, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Lacks Jurisdiction When Petition Not Filed Within Statutory Period

In Commercial Credit Plan, Inc. v. Gomez (1968) 276 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 831, 80 Cal. Rptr. 534 , the plaintiff, who allegedly held legal title to an automobile as security for a loan, brought an action against defendants, who were sureties on an undertaking given to the sheriff to enable the sheriff to hold and sell the automobile after its seizure under attachment against the debtors, who were the registered owners. The defendants demurred on the ground that the filing of a third-party claim, together with the failure to file a petition for a hearing to determine the claim foreclosed an independent action against the sureties. The trial court rendered judgment of dismissal after the demurrer was sustained without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed from the judgment.

The appellate department of the superior court reversed with directions to overrule the demurrer. The court stated that the law is clear that when 15 days have run from the filing of the third-party claim and no petition for hearing has been filed under former Code Civ. Proc. § 689b(10) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 720.310(a)], the trial court in which the suit was brought loses jurisdiction to hear the summary proceeding. However, no case was cited to the court holding that the parties are foreclosed from bringing an independent action and the election to file a third-party claim does not require a party to proceed by way of the summary proceedings under the statute. The court said that to hold otherwise might well destroy property rights without an adjudication on the merits (276 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 831, 834).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral Overview

139 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131 JUDGMENTS
PART II. FORMS
F. Execution And Enforcement Of Judgments

13-131 California Points & Authorities § 131.160

§ 131.160 Opposing Petition for Determination of Third Party's Claim of Interest--Third Party's Interest or Lien Is Superior to Judgment Creditor's Lien [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 720.110, 720.220]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 131.159[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD DETERMINE THE THIRD-PARTY CLAIM OF _____ [name] IN FAVOR OF THE CLAIMANT BECAUSE THE CLAIMANT's _____ [INTEREST or LIEN] IS SUPERIOR TO THE CREDITOR's LIEN ON THE PROPERTY.

A. Third Party's Interest Is Superior to Creditor's Lien. A third person claiming ownership or the right of possession of property may make a third-party claim if the _____ [interest or security interest or lien] claimed is superior to the creditor's lien on the property, when _____ [set forth circumstances of levy, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 720.110, 720.210, e.g., personal property has been levied on under a writ of execution] (Code Civ. Proc. § 720.110 or 720.210).

B. Trial Court's Judgment. At the conclusion of the hearing, the court is required to give judgment determining the validity of the third-party claim and may order the disposition of the property or its proceeds in accordance with the respective interests of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 720.390].

C. Decision on Substantial Evidence Will Not Be Disturbed. No findings of fact are required in third-party claim proceedings. If there is substantial evidence to support implied trial court findings in favor of a claimant in third-party claim proceedings, these findings are conclusive on an appellate court (Code Civ. Proc. § 720.400; Chico Tractor, Inc. v. Coyle (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 483, 486-487, 30 Cal. Rptr. 196).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a judgment creditor's petition to the trial court to determine the validity of the third-party claim and the proper disposition of the property that is the subject of the claim. Either the judgment creditor or the third person is entitled to petition the court for determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 720.310]. If the third person is petitioning the court the determination, the foregoing form may be modified for use in support of the petition.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts that support the claimant's contention that he or she has an interest or lien that is superior to the creditor's lien on the property.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Decision on Substantial Evidence Will Not Be Disturbed

In Chico Tractor, Inc. v. Coyle (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 483, 30 Cal. Rptr. 196 , after obtaining a default judgment, the judgment creditor levied execution on a forklift. A third-party claim was filed asserting title to the equipment. The trial court, after hearing evidence, found that the claimants were the owners of the forklift and ordered its release to them. The judgment creditor appealed, contending, among other things, that a sale of the forklift by the claimants to the judgment debtor was absolute rather than conditional.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that the parties' intent, a factual question, determined whether the original sale was absolute or conditional. Since findings are not required in third-party claim proceedings, the appellate court must assume that the trial court made all findings essential to support the judgment. If there is substantial evidence to support implied trial court findings in third-party claim proceedings, these findings are conclusive on the appellate court. The trial court adjudged that the third parties were owners of the forklift at the time of the execution levy. Implicit but essential foundations for its decision were findings that the transaction between them and the judgment debtor was a conditional sale and that no later conduct of the sellers caused loss of their reserved rights. The court concluded that the settled statement between the parties revealed no absence of substantial evidence to support the trial court's findings (215 Cal. App. 2d 483, 486-487) .

Note that Chico was decided prior to the adoption of the Execution of Judgments Law in 1982, and was based on proceedings existing under the former statutes. It is arguable, however, that the rule of law set forth in the case remains persuasive authority in proceedings under the new statute.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Decision on Substantial Evidence Will Not Be Disturbed

Bruhnke v. Bowlus-Teller Mfg. Co. (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 317, 69 P.2d 208 , involved a proceeding under former Code Civ. Proc. § 689 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 720.010 et seq.] to determine the rights of the judgment creditor as against a third-party claimant, in three bank accounts. The sole issue of fact in the trial was regarding the ownership of the accounts. The trial court entered judgment in favor of the third-party claimant and the judgment creditor appealed. The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that plaintiff did not contend that there was no substantial evidence to sustain the trial court's finding. No legal questions were presented for the reviewing court's determination, but only questions of fact with which the court must not concern itself (21 Cal. App. 2d 317, 318) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesJudgment LiensGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION

13-131A California Points & Authorities 131A.syn

§ 131A.syn Synopsis to Chapter 131A: JUDICIAL ARBITRATION

§ 131A.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 131A.02 Governing Law

[1] In General

[2] Private Arbitration and Judicial Arbitration Compared

[3] When Judicial Arbitration Is Required or Available

[a] Judicial Arbitration Required

[b] Judicial Arbitration Available

[4] Actions Exempt From Judicial Arbitration

[5] When Exemption Is Determined

[6] Suspension of Time Required to Bring Action to Trial

[7] Qualification and Selection of Arbitrator

[8] Powers of Arbitrators and Conduct of Hearing

[9] The Award

[10] Trial de Novo

[a] Right to Trial de Novo

[b] Costs Imposed If Result at Trial Is Less Favorable Than Award

[11] Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

§ 131A.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 131A.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[2] Related Points and Authorities

§§ 131A.05-131A.09 [Reserved]

§ 131A.10 Case Should Not Have Been Referred to Judicial Arbitration

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Is Not Subject to Judicial Arbitration Because Amount in Controversy Exceeds $50,000

[b] Action Is Not Subject to Judicial Arbitration Because Party Over Seventy Years of Age Is Entitled to Preference in Trial Setting

§ 131A.11 Attorney Did Not Have Authority to Stipulate to Judicial Arbitration

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney Had No Authority to Stipulate to Judicial Arbitration

§ 131A.12 Party May Withdraw Election for Judicial Arbitration

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trial Court May Allow Party to Withdraw Case From Arbitration

§§ 131A.13-131A.99 [Reserved]

§ 131A.100 Supporting Motion to Vacate [Judgment Based on] Judicial Arbitration Award

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Basis for Vacating Award

[b] Arbitrator Failed to Disclose Ground for Disqualification

§ 131A.101 Supporting Motion to Vacate [Judgment Based on] Judicial Arbitration Award on Grounds of Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise or [Excusable] Neglect

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Grounds for Relief

[b] Award Filed Without Proper Notice Constitutes Surprise

[c] Attorney's Neglect Requires Court to Vacate Judgment

§§ 131A.102-131A.119 [Reserved]

§ 131A.120 Arbitrator's Duty to Disclose Personal and Professional Relationships and Facts that Some Might Believe Constitute Bias

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

§§ 131A.121-131A.149 [Reserved]

§ 131A.150 Opposing Motion to Vacate [Judgment Based on] Judicial Arbitration Award on Grounds of Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise or [Excusable] Neglect

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Case Does Not Invoke Mandatory Provision of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b)

[b] Attorney's Press of Business Does Not Constitute Excusable Neglect

[c] Attorney's Failure to Determine When Award Was Filed Does Not Constitute Excusable Neglect

§§ 131A.151-131A.199 [Reserved]

§ 131A.200 Supporting Motion to Vacate Voluntary Dismissal and Enter Judgment on Judicial Arbitration Award

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect of Party's Dismissal of Action After Requesting Trial de Novo

[b] As Prevailing Party Under Arbitration Award, [Plaintiff or Defendant] Is Entitled to Attorney's Fees

§§ 131A.201-131A.299 [Reserved]

§ 131A.300 Attorney's Fees Included as Costs After Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Fees Award Is Mandatory Even if Statute Authorizing Them Is Discretionary

§ 131A.301 Costs and Fees May Be Awarded to Party Who Also Requested Trial de Novo

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Two Parties Request Trial de Novo

[b] When Attempt to Request Partial Trial de Novo Fails

§ 131A.302 Labor Code Section 3856 Entitles Plaintiff to Reasonable Litigation Expense Even After Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Workers' Compensation Statute to Be Given Effect

§§ 131A.303-131A.349 [Reserved]

§ 131A.350 Employee Obtained More Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Employee Obtained More Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.01

§ 131A.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains forms of points and authorities addressing the following aspects of judicial ("court-annexed") arbitration:

- Exemption of actions from judicial arbitration (see § 131A.10 et seq.).
- Grounds for setting aside a judgment based on a judicial arbitration award (see § 131A.100 et seq.).
- Consequences of voluntary dismissal of the action by the party who requested trial de novo after an arbitration award was made (see § 131A.200 et seq.).
- Penalties imposed on a party who obtains a result on trial de novo that is less favorable than the arbitration award (see § 131A.300 et seq.).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADR

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.02

§ 131A.02 Governing Law

[1] In General

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10-1141.31, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.810 et seq., and local rules of court govern judicial (non-binding) arbitration.

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, relating to sanctions for frivolous or delaying tactics in actions commenced prior to January 1, 1995, is by its terms applicable to judicial arbitration. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, relating to sanctions for frivolous or delaying tactics in actions commenced on or after January 1, 1995, does not expressly apply to judicial arbitration. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.6, which will reinstate the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, and will thus apply to judicial arbitration, would have become operative January 1, 2003, but the Legislature extended the repeal date of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 until January 1, 2006 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.6(f), 128.7(j); Stats 2002, ch. 491].

Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 authorizes a trial court to impose sanctions for noncompliance with local rules. The trial court may strike out all or any part of the pleadings of that party, or dismiss the action or proceeding or any part thereof, or enter a judgment by default against that party, or impose other penalties of a lesser nature otherwise provided by law, and may order that party or his or her counsel to pay the moving party the reasonable expenses in making that motion, including reasonable attorney's fees. One such local rule is Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.04A which provides that for willful failure to meaningfully participate in arbitration proceedings, the court, on noticed motion, may impose sanctions including arbitrator's fees, attorney's fees, and costs. Taken together, these have been held to allow imposition of sanctions against an attorney who failed to meaningfully participate in judicial arbitration [see Rietveld v. Rosebud Storage Partners, L.P. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 250, 255257, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 791 (sanction was equal to fees and costs incurred by the other party in arbitration and in making the motion for sanctions, but party was allowed trial de novo)].

[2] Private Arbitration and Judicial Arbitration Compared

Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq., the general arbitration statutes, govern private arbitration conducted pursuant to an agreement between the parties. Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq., the Judicial Arbitration Act, governs "court-annexed" arbitration. The two statutory schemes are mutually exclusive and independent of each other [Code Civ. Proc. §

1141.30; Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 118-119, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

The primary difference is that private arbitration is binding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1285 et seq. (limited grounds for vacating award or opposing its confirmation)], whereas judicial arbitration offers the opportunity for a de novo trial after arbitration has been completed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20], although the parties may waive this right [Blanton v. Womancare, Inc. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 396, 401-402, 212 Cal. Rptr. 151, 696 P.2d 645 ; Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 119-120, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609] . Other differences include the following [Porreco v. Red Top RV Center (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 113, 119-120, 264 Cal. Rptr. 609] :

- Parties to private arbitration bear the cost of arbitration; judicial arbitration is at public expense, except that parties who stipulate to judicial arbitration of an action not otherwise subject to judicial arbitration pay the arbitrator's compensation in equal shares [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.28(b)].

- Private arbitration allows discovery only in personal injury cases unless the parties' agreement provides otherwise; parties to judicial arbitration have full discovery rights [compare Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.822 with Code Civ. Proc. § 1283.1]; and

- Private arbitration generally dispenses with the rules of evidence; judicial arbitration follows those rules with certain modifications [compare Code Civ. Proc. § 1282.2(d) with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.823(b)].

- A private arbitration award will not support a cause of action for malicious prosecution [Sagonowsky v. More (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 122, 125, 134, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118] , but a judicial arbitration award will [see Nicholson v. Fazeli (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1091, 1094, 1100, 1102-1103, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881 (malicious prosecution action stated after judicial arbitration of character of marital property pursuant to Fam. Code § 2554)].

[3] When Judicial Arbitration Is Required or Available

[a] Judicial Arbitration Required

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.11, 1141.27 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a) require judicial arbitration of the following actions, including those in which a public agency or public entity is a party:

- In superior courts with 18 or more judges all nonexempt unlimited civil cases, in which the amount in controversy does not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [see Code Civ. Proc. § 85 (defining "limited civil case")]. In a county in which the superior court has fewer than 18 judges this requirement applies only if local rule so provides.

- All nonexempt limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 85] required by local rule to be submitted to arbitration, except small claims court actions, actions for unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161], or actions brought under Civ. Code § 1781, relating to deceptive practices under the Consumer Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1770 et seq.). If a court provides for judicial arbitration in this manner, cases arbitrated must include actions against a single defendant (as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(d)) arising out of a motor vehicle collision.

[b] Judicial Arbitration Available

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(a) allow judicial arbitration of the following actions:

- Any action in any court on the parties' stipulation, regardless of the amount in controversy. For a form of stipulation, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

- Any action in any court in which all plaintiffs file an election for judicial arbitration agreeing that the award will not exceed $50,000. For a form of election, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

[4] Actions Exempt From Judicial Arbitration

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.13 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b) exempt the following types of actions from judicial arbitration:

- Actions including a prayer for equitable relief that is not frivolous or insubstantial.

- Class actions.

- Small claims actions or appeals therefrom as trials de novo.

- Unlawful detainer proceedings.

- Family law proceedings, except as provided in Fam. Code § 2554 (character, valuation, and division of property).

- Cases not amenable to arbitration because arbitration would not reduce the probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation.

- Categories of cases not considered amenable by local rule as not amenable to arbitration on the grounds set forth, above.

- Cases involving multiple causes of action or a cross complaint if the court determines any cause or the cross complaint exceeds $50,000.

[5] When Exemption Is Determined

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a) require the determination whether an action be submitted to judicial arbitration to be made at a case management conference, or by review of the written submissions of the parties, after all parties have appeared or defaulted. At that conference the court determines the amount in controversy and whether any prayer for equitable relief is frivolous or insubstantial. The determination regarding equitable relief is nonappealable.

[6] Suspension of Time Required to Bring Action to Trial

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b), submission of an action to judicial arbitration does not suspend the running of the time periods specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq. for bringing the matter to trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(a)].

If an action is or remains submitted to judicial arbitration more than four years and six months after it was filed, the time beginning four years and six months after the action was filed and ending on the date on with a request for trial de novo is filed, shall not be included in computing the five-year period under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.17(b)].

For forms of points and authorities applying this tolling period in the context of dismissal of an action for delay in prosecution, see Ch. 90, Dismissal .

[7] Qualification and Selection of Arbitrator

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.813 to 3.816 govern qualification and selection of arbitrators. The parties may stipulate to a particular arbitrator [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815(a)]. For a form of stipulation for judicial arbitration that includes a stipulated designation of an arbitrator and the arbitrator's consent thereto, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

A party may disqualify an arbitrator on the grounds and by the procedures specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 or Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, applicable tojudges [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d)] and as provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816. For forms for use to reject or disqualify an arbitrator, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

[8] Powers of Arbitrators and Conduct of Hearing

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.19 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.817-3.824 govern powers of the arbitrator, discovery, and the conduct of the arbitration hearing.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.818(a), (b) provide for continuance on the parties' stipulation with the arbitrator's consent or for good cause shown on a party's motion. For a form of motion for continuance, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

[9] The Award

Judicial arbitration awards are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.20, 1141.22, 1141.23, 1141.26 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825.

The award may be in excess of $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.26].

The arbitrator must file the award, with proof of service on each party to the arbitration, with the clerk of the court within 10 days after the conclusion of the arbitration hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(b) (extension allowed by court)]. The award has the same force and effect as a judgment in any civil action or proceeding. Thus, the prevailing party is entitled to his or her costs pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule Rules 3.825(a)(1), 3.827(c)]. If the arbitrator fails to award costs, the prevailing party may be able file a memorandum of costs to have the court make the award [see Guevara v. Brand (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 995, 997-998, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780 ; but see Wagy v. Brown (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7-9, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48 (arbitration award that does not award costs constitutes order by arbitrator that each side bear its own costs)]. For memoranda for use when the arbitrator failed to make a cost award, see Ch. 60, Costs, §§ 60.15, 60.104.

If no request for trial de novo is filed within 30 days after the award was filed with the court, the award becomes final and is entered as a judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.20, 1141.23]. The award is not subject to appeal and it may not be attacked or set aside except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473 or 1286.2 or Judicial Council rule [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.827(c), 3.828(a), (d)].

For a form of points and authorities supporting a motion to vacate the award on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a), see § 131A.100. For forms of points and authorities supporting and opposing a motion to vacate the award on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (mistake, inadvertence, excusable neglect), see §§ 131A.101 and 131A.150, respectively.

[10] Trial de Novo

[a] Right to Trial de Novo

Trial de novo is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.20, 1141.21 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826.

A party may file a request for trial de novo within 30 days of the filing of the award, in which event the case must proceed as provided under an applicable case management order. If no pending order provides for the prosecution of the case after arbitration, the court must promptly schedule a case management conference [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(a), (b); see Karamzai v. Digitcom (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 547, 551, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139 (court has no authority to shorten 30-day period for requesting trial de novo)]. Although cases have held that a party's timely request for trial de novo cannot be denied, even as a sanction for that party's failure to participate in the arbitration [Lyons v. Wickhorst (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 911, 919, 231 Cal. Rptr. 738, 727 P.2d 1019 ; Salowitz Organization, Inc. v. Traditional Industries, Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 797, 804-806, 268 Cal. Rptr. 493 (only sanction that may be imposed against party who did not participate in the arbitration proceeding is that provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, which is not applicable to actions commenced on or after January 1, 1995); see [1], above], neither of those cases considered Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2, enacted in 1982 [see Stats 1892, ch. 1406], and discussed at [1], above, which would seem to authorize this sanction.

At the subsequent trial, no mention may be made of the arbitration award or proceedings or any evidence adduced at the arbitration hearing. Any such reference constitutes an irregularity in the proceedings for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 657 (new trial) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.25; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(c)].

Once a timely request for trial de novo has been filed, it cannot be unilaterally withdrawn [Marracino v. Brandstetter (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 543, 546-548, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700] . For a form of points and authorities that may be used in response to an attempt to circumvent this rule by voluntary dismissal of the action by the party who requested trial de novo, see § 131A.200[1].

[b] Costs Imposed If Result at Trial Is Less Favorable Than Award

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.21, 1141.26 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(d) govern imposition of costs against a party who is less successful in the subsequent trial than in the judicial arbitration. If the judgment on trial de novo is not more favorable in terms of the amount of damages or the type of relief granted for theparty electing trial de novo, that party must be ordered to pay a number of fees and expenses unless the court find that such payment would constitute substantial economic hardship [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(d); see § 131A.300[1], Paragraph A].

If two or more parties elect trial de novo, each is subject to being held liable for costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 if he or she is less successful in the trial de novo [Boyd v. Oscar Fisher Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 368, 382, 258 Cal. Rptr. 473] .

[11] Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

All California trial courts are required to implement delay reduction programs [Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68620].

Gov. Code § 68616(g) provides that a case may not be referred to arbitration prior to 210 days after the filing of the complaint, exclusive of the stipulated period provided for in Gov. Code § 68616(d), which permits the parties, within 30 days of service of responsive pleadings, to stipulate to continuance of 30 days or less.

Local rules enacted to implement the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act may, in many situations, affect the procedure for judicial arbitration. For example, Los Angeles and Alameda County local rules provide procedure and time limits relating to mandatory arbitration [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.0 et seq.; Alameda Co. Coordinated Local Ct. Rules, Rule 4.4(2)(F), (S)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADR

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.03

§ 131A.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda of points and authorities must not exceed 15 pages, or 20 pages in a summary judgment proceeding. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, and tables of content are not counted. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d), (e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms included in this chapter are designed to be combined with other points and authorities to form a complete memorandum. For detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, §§ 1.03-1.06. For a skeletal form of memorandum for use in creating a properly formatted outline in which to compile relevant forms from this publication, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.10.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADR

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.04

§ 131A.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions and other papers relating to judicial arbitration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions and other papers relating costs to which a prevailing party in judicial arbitration is entitled, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions and other papers relating to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5 and 128.7, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender).

[2] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda for use when the arbitrator failed to include the prevailing party's costs in the award, see Ch. 60, Costs .

For discussion and forms of memoranda relating to dismissal of an action submitted to judicial arbitration for delay in prosecution, see Ch. 90, Dismissal .

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing motions for sanctions for frivolous or delaying tactics under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, Ch. 207, Sanctions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADR

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-131A California Points & Authorities §§ 131A.05-131A.09

[Reserved]

§§ 131A.05[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART A. Determining Whether Judicial Arbitration Is Required or Authorized

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.10

§ 131A.10 Case Should Not Have Been Referred to Judicial Arbitration

[1] FORM

THIS CASE SHOULD BE EXEMPTED FROM JUDICIAL ARBITRATION [AS BEING NOT AMENABLE THERETO], BECAUSE _____ [specify reason, e.g., ARBITRATION WILL NOT REDUCE THE PROBABLE TIME AND EXPENSE NECESSARY TO RESOLVE THE LITIGATION IN THAT _____ (indicate factual basis of contention)].

[Optional] A. Case Is Not Amenable to Arbitration Because of Time and Expense Involved. A case otherwise subject to judicial arbitration is exempt therefrom if it is found by the court not to be amenable to arbitration on the ground that arbitration would not reduce the probable time and expense necessary to resolve the litigation (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b)(6)).

[Optional] B. Case Is Not Subject to Judicial Arbitration Because Amount in Controversy Exceeds $50,000. A case [involving multiple causes of action or a cross-complaint] is not subject to judicial arbitration if, in the opinion of the court, the amount in controversy for each plaintiff [as to any given cause of action of cross-complaint] exceeds $50,000. In determining the amount in controversy, the judge shall not consider questions of liability or comparative negligence or other defenses. The determination shall be based on the total amount of damages. In determining the amount in controversy, the judge cannot rely on the pleadings. If the damages arguably exceed $50,000, the matter should not be referred to judicial arbitration unless plaintiff fails, on request, to make an offer of proof regarding damages or the judge has some factual basis for his or her opinion that the damages alleged are inflated (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.11(a), (b), 1141.16(a); [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b)(8)]; Sharples v. Chole (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1219-1220, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 208).

[Optional] C. Action Is Not Subject to Judicial Arbitration Because Party Over Seventy Years of Age Is Entitled to Preference in Trial Setting. Code of Civil Procedure Section 36(a), which seeks to ensure that older litigants have their day in court, is mandatory, absolute, and controlling; and in any conflict between them, the judicial arbitration statutes must yield. Thus, an action involving a party who is over the age of 70 years, who files a motion for preference under Code of Civil Procedure Section 36(a), and who is qualified for that preference, may not be ordered submitted to judicial arbitration (Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a); Vinokur v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 500, 503, 243 Cal. Rptr. 683).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate or reconsider an order referring an action to judicial arbitration. Neither Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10-1141.31 nor Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.810 et seq. provide for a motion to determine whether an action should be submitted to judicial arbitration. That determination and any resulting referral are made at the initial case management conference required by Rules 3.722(a), 3.727(6). 3.728(1), (2) or based on review of written submissions by the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(d) (determination to be made at first case management conference after all parties have appeared or defaulted)]. The case management order controls subsequent proceedings until it is modified by subsequent order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.730]. This form of points and authorities is not designed to provide a complete memorandum, but should be combined with a form, such as in Ch. 180, Pretrial Proceedings, § 181.10, which sets forth the general authority for amending an order [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a), 576]. Counsel may wish to modify the form to conform to any applicable local rule and to include any applicable local rule as authority for his or her particular motion.

Counsel should use any of the optional paragraphs (and optional clauses shown within brackets in those paragraphs) that are applicable to the particular case. Optional Paragraph C is appropriate for use only if a petition for preference has already been made or is being made simultaneously with the motion to exempt the matter from judicial arbitration and the declaration in support of the preference establishes the party's entitlement to the preference [see Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a)]. Additional grounds for exempting a matter from judicial arbitration are set forth at § 131A.02[4].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(c) provides that after all plaintiffs have elected judicial arbitration, a cross complainant may make a motion, within 15 days of notice of that election, for determination that the amount in controversy is over $50,000. Optional Paragraph B, including the bracketed references to cross-complaints, may be used to support such a motion. For a form of motion by a cross complainant for determination of the amount in controversy, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, if the moving party seeks to demonstrate that time and expense render the matter not amenable to judicial arbitration, the motion would be accompanied by a declaration stating in what respects the action willtake such an amount of time and expense that arbitration would not be appropriate.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations [see Sharples v. Chole (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1219-1220, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 208 (in determining amount in controversy, court must consider factual showing outside the pleadings)]. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to judicial arbitration, including a form of cross complainant's motion under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(c) for determination of the amount in controversy, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities addressing the right of a party over the age of 70 years to trial preference, which counsel may need to combine with this form, see Ch. 180, Pretrial Proceedings .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Is Not Subject to Judicial Arbitration Because Amount in Controversy Exceeds $50,000

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a) provides that the determination of the amount in controversy shall be based on the total amount of damages and prohibits the judge from considering questions of liability, comparative negligence, and other defenses.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b) indicates that the court is to determine whether the amount in controversy as to any given cause of action or cross complaint will exceed $50,000 and thus be exempt from arbitration.

NOTE:

Sharples v. Chole (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 208 , cited in paragraph B of the form and discussed below, may be somewhat limited since revision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a) by Stats 2003, ch. 449 § 12, to provide that the amount in controversy may be determined at a case management conference or based on "review of the written submissions of the parties, as provided in rules adopted by the Judicial Council." presumably the case management conference statements submitted pursuant to Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.811(b); [see Judicial Council Form CM-110: Case Management Conference Statement].

Sharples v. Chole (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 208 , was a medical malpractice action in which plaintiff alleged damages for physical and emotional harm, medical expenses, loss of work, and general damages in amounts not yet ascertained. Plaintiff's at issue memorandum indicated that the matter was exempt from judicial arbitration because damages were in excess of $50,000. Defendant's response form indicated that the matter was suitable for judicial arbitration. At an unreported arbitration conference, the matter was ordered to judicial arbitration with no limit on the amount of the award. Arbitration resulted in an award for defendant. Trial de novo resulted in a defense verdict; and defendant filed a cost bill. Plaintiff moved to strike costs contending that most of them were due to plaintiff's failure to obtain a judgment more favorable than the arbitration award as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21, and that section 1141.21 was not applicable because the matter was exempt from judicial arbitration. The trial court denied the motion to strike. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed insofar as the judgment awarded costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21, and affirmed in other respects, finding that the trial court either failed to exercise its discretion or abused its discretion in determining that the matter should be assigned to judicial arbitration (29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1220) . The court noted that the words "in the opinion of the court" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11 require the court to exercise discretion in determining the amount in controversy (29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1218) . That discretion is to be exercised at a conference, which implies there is need for interaction between the parties and the court and for consideration of matters outside the pleadings. If the amount in controversy is disputed, the parties should offer representations in the nature of an offer of proof of damages. The trial court can form an opinion based on those representations (29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1219) . Thus, under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.11 and 1141.16, the trial court must have some basis in fact for its opinion that the damages, considered in isolation, are significantly inflated and can be discounted to below $50,000. Here the record suggested no facts on whichthe trial court could have predicated such an opinion. Nor was there reason to believe plaintiff would have failed to make an offer of proof on inquiry by the court (29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1220) . Because the matter should not have been assigned to judicial arbitration, plaintiff should not have been required to pay the additional costs provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 (29 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1221) .

[b] Action Is Not Subject to Judicial Arbitration Because Party Over Seventy Years of Age Is Entitled to Preference in Trial Setting

Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) provides that a party to a civil action who is over the age of 70 years may petition the court for a preference, which the court shall grant if the court finds both (1) that the party has a substantial interest in the action, and (2) that the party's health is such that a preference is necessary to prevent prejudicing the party's interest in the litigation.

Vinokur v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 500, 243 Cal. Rptr. 683 , was a personal injury action. The 75-year-old plaintiff moved for trial setting preference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a). The court acknowledged the conflict between Code Civ. Proc. § 36 and Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11, determined that the arbitration statute prevailed, denied the motion for preference, and ordered the matter submitted to judicial arbitration. Plaintiff sought a writ of mandate compelling respondent court to grant the motion for trial preference.

The court of appeal issued the writ, finding that Code Civ. Proc. § 36 was unquestionably the controlling authority (198 Cal. App. 3d 500, 503) . The court of appeal characterized the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 36 as safeguarding a substantive right of a clearly defined class of litigants and the purpose of the judicial arbitration statutes as easing the burden on the courts by efficient resolution of minor civil disputes (198 Cal. App. 3d 500, 502) . Under these circumstances, the court said, Code Civ. Proc. § 36, which is mandatory and absolute, was unquestionably the controlling authority, and the competing interest of the arbitration statute had to yield in order to ensure that older litigants have their day in court. Efficient as judicial arbitration is, a party who seeks trial de novo after arbitration will have a trial date far beyond the 120 days from the date the case was ordered to arbitration. Moreover, the court could find no reason to accord trial preference to parties over 70 years of age when the amount in controversy exceeds $50,000 while denying that right when less money is at stake. The court concluded, citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(a), that the filing of a motion for preference by a qualified litigant created a situation in which the use of arbitration was not possible, and that plaintiff was entitled to a trial date within 120 days of the date on which the motion for preference should have been granted (198 Cal. App. 3d 500, 503) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADR

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART A. Determining Whether Judicial Arbitration Is Required or Authorized

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.11

§ 131A.11 Attorney Did Not Have Authority to Stipulate to Judicial Arbitration

[1] FORM

THE STIPULATION [AND ORDER] FOR JUDICIAL ARBITRATION OF THIS MATTER SHOULD BE SET ASIDE BECAUSE MOVING PARTY NEVER AUTHORIZED HIS/HER/ITS COUNSEL TO AGREE TO [BINDING] JUDICIAL ARBITRATION [OR TO WAIVE HIS/HER/ITS RIGHT TO TRIAL DE NOVO].

A. Attorney Had No Authority to Stipulate to Judicial Arbitration. An attorney retained to engage in litigation has no apparent authority to bind his or her client to an agreement to arbitrate [or to waive the right to trial de novo]. Thus, in the absence of the client's express authority to agree to [binding] judicial arbitration or the client's ratification of such an agreement, neither of which is involved here, the stipulation for judicial arbitration [and the waiver of the right to trial de novo] [and any resulting award], must be set aside (Blanton v. Womancare, Inc. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 396, 407, 212 Cal. Rptr. 151, 696 P.2d 645 ; Sanker v. Brown (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1144, 1146, 213 Cal. Rptr. 768).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be used in support of a motion to set aside a stipulation (and order) for judicial arbitration when the attorney who entered into the stipulation did not have the moving party's express authority to do so. Both cases cited in the form involved stipulations to binding judicial arbitration (i.e., the parties waived the right to trial de novo), but the language of the opinions is broader and refers to the lack of authority to stipulate to arbitration. For that reason, the language in the form relating to waiving trial de novo and to binding arbitration is optional.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, the motion should be supported by declarations from both the moving party and the attorney who entered into the stipulation indicating that the moving party never agreed to stipulate to judicial arbitration and explaining how the misunderstanding occurred or otherwise explain how the stipulation was made without the party's consent. The declarations should also explain when the party first learned of the stipulation and that steps to set the stipulation aside were taken as soon as possible after the client learned of the stipulation.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factualstatements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions, and a form of stipulation for judicial arbitration that includes signatures of all parties, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to stipulations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 533, Stipulations (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney Had No Authority to Stipulate to Judicial Arbitration

Blanton v. Womancare, Inc. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 396, 212 Cal. Rptr. 151, 696 P.2d 645 , arose from a medical malpractice action. Although plaintiff did not want to arbitrate, she agreed with her attorney that she would arbitrate as long as her right to trial de novo was preserved. Her attorney, however, entered into a stipulation that the matter be submitted to binding arbitration. The court approved that stipulation, and ordered the matter to proceed to judicial arbitration. The order declared that the arbitration and award would be binding. Nearly three months later, when plaintiff learned of the stipulation, she fired her attorney, and hired another attorney who moved to set aside the stipulation. The trial court denied the motion, apparently in the belief that the stipulation involved a procedural matter within the scope of an attorney's unilateral discretion. Arbitration resulted in an award for the defense. Plaintiff's attorney filed a request for trial de novo, but in accordance with the stipulation and order, it was not accepted, and the award was entered as a judgment. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed, and remanded to the trial court with orders to set aside the stipulation and the subsequent award and to order a trial de novo (38 Cal. 3d 396, 399) . Because the attorney acted not only without plaintiff's express authority, but contrary to her express instructions, plaintiff was bound by the agreement only if the attorney had either implied actual authority or apparent authority to enter into the agreement on her behalf (38 Cal. 3d 396, 403) . An attorney's authority, implied in law, includes the authority to enter into stipulations and agreements in all procedural and tactical matters, but stops short of authority to impair the client's substantial rights or the cause of action (38 Cal. 3d 396, 404) . Because defense counsel was unaware of plaintiff's objection to binding arbitration, the question in this case was one of apparent authority (38 Cal. 3d 396, 405) . Even in situations involving apparent authority, when an attorney makes an agreement that compromises his or her client's substantial rights, the opposing party must ascertain whether the attorney has authority to make that agreement (38 Cal. 3d 396, 406) . The agreement to submit to binding arbitration did not constitute a tactical matter in pending litigation, but a diversion of the dispute from the judicial to the arbitral arena and a contract such as might be entered into in the absence of any litigation at all. Just as an attorney cannot enter into a contract on behalf of his or her client without express authority, an attorney does not have apparent authority to bind his or her client to an agreement for arbitration merely by virtue of his or her employment as attorney (38 Cal. 3d 396, 407) . A client who engages an attorney to litigate in a judicial forum has a right to be consulted, and his or her consent obtained, before the dispute is shifted to another forum (38 Cal. 3d 396, 407-408) . The Court also found there was no ratification (38 Cal. 3d 396, 408) .

Sanker v. Brown (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1144, 213 Cal. Rptr. 768 , was an action between joint tenants. Plaintiff sought partition of the property. Defendant cross-complained for a declaration of resulting trust. The parties, through their respective counsel, filed a stipulation for judicial arbitration, in which each party waived the right to trial de novo. The stipulation form only had signature lines for the attorneys, none for the parties. Arbitration resulted in an award for plaintiff directing defendant to sell the property and split the proceeds. Defendant filed a request for trial de novo, which was rejected on the ground of the stipulation. Defendant then moved to set aside the award on the ground that he had never agreed to waive the right to trial de novo and the attorney's stipulation waiving his right to trial de novo was the result of mistake or inadvertence. The motion was denied. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to the trial court to allow defendant to file a request for trial de novo within 30 days from the date the court of appeal'sopinion became final (167 Cal. App. 3d 1144, 1147) . Defendant's former attorney's declaration in support of the motion stated the attorney never intended the arbitration to be final; that the stipulation was prepared by plaintiff's counsel; that he did not notice that the stipulation submitted the matter to binding arbitration; and that this was a mistake on his part that was purely inadvertent. Defendant's declaration in support of the motion also stated that the arbitration was not to be binding. While this case was pending on appeal, the Supreme Court issued its opinion in Blanton v. Womancare, Inc. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 396, 212 Cal. Rptr. 151, 696 P.2d 645 (discussed above). The court of appeal cited Blanton for the proposition that an attorney, merely by virtue of his employment as such has no apparent authority to bind his client to an agreement for arbitration, and found that Blanton required reversal of this case. In both cases the client did not agree to binding arbitration and repudiated the stipulation on learning of it (167 Cal. App. 3d 1144, 1146) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRLegal EthicsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART A. Determining Whether Judicial Arbitration Is Required or Authorized

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.12

§ 131A.12 Party May Withdraw Election for Judicial Arbitration

[1] FORM

PLAINTIFF SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO WITHDRAW HIS/HER/ITS ELECTION FOR JUDICIAL ARBITRATION OF THIS MATTER BECAUSE GOOD CAUSE EXISTS THEREFOR IN THAT _____ [explain reason for withdrawing election, e.g., PLAINTIFF HAS DISCOVERED A NEW CAUSE OF ACTION, WHICH WILL RENDER PREVIOUS ESTIMATES OF PLAINTIFF'S DAMAGES INADEQUATE AND CAUSE DAMAGES TO EXCEED THE $50,000 AGREED TO IN THE ELECTION].

A. Trial Court May Allow Party to Withdraw Case From Arbitration. The trial court has discretion to allow a party who has elected judicial arbitration [pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 1141.12(b)] to withdraw the matter from arbitration on showing a good reason for withdrawal[, for example, if facts indicate a new cause of action] (Invicta Plastics, U.S.A., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 190, 192-194, 174 Cal. Rptr. 476).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be used in support of a motion to withdraw an election for judicial arbitration, and to withdraw the matter from the list of case assigned to arbitration when the plaintiff can show good cause for withdrawing the election [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(c) (earliest time arbitration hearing may be held); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.812(b) (election must be filed no later than time initial case management statement is filed, unless court orders otherwise)]. As a practical matter, it may be necessary to make another motion at the same time, such as a motion for leave to file an amended complaint [see Ch. 16, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, argument should focus on the reason for withdrawing the election and should explain why that reason was not known at the time the election was made.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions, and a form of election for judicial arbitration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trial Court May Allow Party to Withdraw Case From Arbitration

Invicta Plastics, U.S.A., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 190, 174 Cal. Rptr. 476 , was an action by plaintiff/real party against his former employer for wrongful discharge. Plaintiff filed an election for judicial arbitration pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(b)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(b)] and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1600(b) [see now Cal. Rules ofCt., Rule 3.811(a)(5)] agreeing that the award would not exceed the then-applicable $15,000 limit. Later, plaintiff obtained new counsel and moved for leave to file a second amended complaint and to withdraw the case from judicial arbitration. Both motions were granted. Defendant petitioned for writ of mandate to compel the superior court to vacate its orders.

The court of appeal denied the writ. While the court agreed that there was no basis for a party to unilaterally withdraw a case from judicial arbitration, this withdrawal was not unilateral. It was done with the court's permission after exercise of its discretion (120 Cal. App. 3d 190, 192) . The absence of an express statute or rule did not necessarily foreclose the trial court from allowing change when good reason was shown. No specific statute or court rule provides how and when a case may be withdrawn from judicial arbitration. However, Former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1600.5(f) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.811(b)(6)], exempts from judicial arbitration any action the court finds is not amenable to arbitration. This implies an authority and discretion in the trial court to determine an action is exempt. A corollary thereof is authority to remove a cause from the arbitration list or calendar once the finding is made that it would not be amenable to arbitration. This case involved allegations of an honest belief in facts indicating a recently recognized cause of action (120 Cal. App. 3d 190, 193) . Because an amendment of the pleadings to conform to proof would have been allowed even after receipt of all evidence at trial, it was proper to allow amendment in this case and the court found no reason why the amendment should not provide the basis for the request to remove the case from arbitration (120 Cal. App. 3d 190, 193-194) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADR

149 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART A. Determining Whether Judicial Arbitration Is Required or Authorized

13-131A California Points & Authorities §§ 131A.13-131A.99

[Reserved]

§§ 131A.13[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART B. Setting Aside Judgment Based on Judicial Arbitration Award

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.100

§ 131A.100 Supporting Motion to Vacate [Judgment Based on] Judicial Arbitration Award

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO VACATE [JUDGMENT BASED ON] JUDICIAL ARBITRATION AWARD
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD VACATE THE _____ [JUDGMENT or AWARD] BECAUSE _____ [specify ground for vacating award, e.g., THE ARBITRATOR WAS SUBJECT TO A DISQUALIFICATION OF WHICH HE/SHE WAS AWARE BEFORE THE HEARING AND WHICH HE/SHE FAILED TO DISCLOSE)].

A. Statutory Basis for Vacating Award. A party against whom a judicial arbitration award or resulting judgment is entered may move to vacate the award or judgment, as soon as is practicable after learning of the existence of the grounds on which the motion is based, and within six months after entry of the judgment, as provided in Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 or 1286.2 or California Rules of Court, Rule 3.826(d) (Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.22-1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a) (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.21-1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)).

[EITHER]

B. Award Procured by Undue Means. The court shall vacate the _____ [judgment or award] if it determines that the award was procuredby corruption, fraud, or other undue means (Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)).

[AND/OR]

C. Corruption of Arbitrator(s). The court shall vacate the _____ [judgment or award] if it determines that there was corruption in any of the arbitrators (Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(2)); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)).

[AND/OR]

D. Misconduct of Neutral Arbitrator. The court shall vacate the _____ [judgment or award] if it determines that the rights of the moving party were substantially prejudiced by misconduct of a neutral arbitrator (Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(3); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)).

[AND/OR]

E. Arbitrator Failed to Disclose Ground for Disqualification. The court shall vacate the _____ [judgment or award] if it determines that the arbitrator was subject to a disqualification not disclosed before the hearing and of which the arbitrator was then aware (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a); see Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(b) (arbitrator's duty to disclose ground for disqualification)).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judicial arbitration award, or the resulting judgment, on one or more of the grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(1)-(3) or Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.21-1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a), discussed at [3][a], below].

Depending on what it was the arbitrator failed to disclose, it may be appropriate to combine this form with the authority in § 131A.120.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, if the moving party seeks to vacate the award on the ground that the arbitrator was subject to a disqualification, the motion would be accompanied by a declaration stating the basis for the disqualification, that the arbitrator knew of the disqualification at the time of his or her appointment and failed to disclose it, and when and how the moving party first learned of the ground for disqualification.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(b) (motion to vacate judicial arbitration award to be granted only on clear and convincing evidence that grounds alleged are true)]. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions, and a form of motion to vacate a judgment entered pursuant to a judicial arbitration award, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For a form of points and authorities supporting a motion to vacate a judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, see § 131A.101.

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For forms of points and authorities supporting and opposing a motions to vacate contractual arbitration awards on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2, see Ch. 20C, Arbitration: Confirming, Correcting, or Vacating the Award .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Basis for Vacating Award

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.22 provides that Judicial Council rules must specify the grounds on which the arbitrator, or the court, or both, may correct, modify, or vacate an award.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23 refers to setting aside an award [see § 131A.02[9]] and provides that an award "is not subject to appeal and it may not be attacked or set aside except as provided by [Code Civ. Proc. Section 473, 1286.2], or Judicial Council rule."

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828 refers to a judgment, and provides that a motion to vacate the judgment may be made within six months after its entry, but also provides that the motion may be granted only on clear and convincing evidence that the grounds alleged are true and that the motion was made as soon as practicable after the moving party learned of the existence of those grounds. Notice of the motion is to be given to the adverse parties and to the arbitrator.

Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a) limits the grounds for vacating a judgment to those set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or in subdivisions (a)(1), (a)(2), and (a)(3) of Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 and adds the ground that the arbitrator was subject to a disqualification not disclosed before the hearing and of which he or she was then aware, which is similar to the ground in Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2(a)(6)(A), added by Stats. 2001, ch. 362 [see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.827(c) (judgment not to be attacked or set aside except as provided in Rule 3.828)].

[b] Arbitrator Failed to Disclose Ground for Disqualification

Any party can request disqualification of the arbitrator selected for his or her case on the grounds and by the procedures specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 or 170.6 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(d)]. The arbitrator must determine whether any cause exists for disqualification on any of the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 governing the disqualification of judges. If any member of the arbitrator's law firm would be disqualified under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2), the arbitrator is disqualified. Unless the ground for disqualification is disclosed to the parties in writing and is expressly waived by all parties in writing, the arbitrator must promptly notify the administrator of any known ground for disqualification, and another arbitrator must be selected as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.815 [Cal Rules of Ct. Rule 3.816(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2) (judge served as lawyer in the proceeding, or in any other proceeding involving same issues, he or she served as lawyer for any party in present proceeding or gave advice to any party in present proceeding on any matter involved in action or proceeding)].

In addition to any other disclosure required by law, no later than five days prior to the deadline for parties to file a motion for disqualification of the arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, or, if the arbitrator is not aware of his or her appointment or of a matter subject to disclosure at that time, as soon as practicable thereafter, an arbitrator must disclose the following to the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(b)]:

- Any matter subject to disclosure under subdivisions (D)(2)(f) and (D)(2)(g) of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics; and

- Any significant personal or professional relationship the arbitrator has or has had with a party, attorney, or law firm in the instant case, including the number and nature of any other proceedings in the past 24 months in which the arbitrator has been privately compensated by a party, attorney, law firm, or insurance company in the instant case for any services, including service as an attorney, expert witness, or consultant or as a judge, referee, arbitrator, mediator, settlement facilitator, or other alternative dispute resolution neutral.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART B. Setting Aside Judgment Based on Judicial Arbitration Award

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.101

§ 131A.101 Supporting Motion to Vacate [Judgment Based on] Judicial Arbitration Award on Grounds of Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise or [Excusable] Neglect

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR RELIEF FROM [JUDGMENT PURSUANT TO] ARBITRATION AWARD ENTERED THROUGH MISTAKE, INADVERTENCE, SURPRISE, OR [EXCUSABLE] NEGLECT
vs.
_____ [name],
Defendant.	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	Date: _____
	Time: _____
	Dept: _____
	[Judge: _____]
	Date Action Filed: _____
	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT _____ [PLAINTIFF'S or DEFENDANT'S] MOTION FOR RELIEF BECAUSE THE _____ [AWARD or JUDGMENT] WAS TAKEN AGAINST _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT] THROUGH _____ [PLAINTIFF'S or DEFENDANT'S] [ATTORNEY'S] _____ [insert ground(s) for relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §

473, e.g., MISTAKE].

A. Statutory Basis for Vacating Award. [See § 131A.100[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Grounds for Relief. Relief from an award or judgment entered pursuant thereto may be granted if it was taken against the moving party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. [Whenever an application for relief is made no more than six months after entry of judgment, is in proper form, and is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court shall vacate any (1) resulting default entered by the clerk against his or her client, and which will result in entry of default judgment, or (2) resulting default judgment or dismissal entered against his or her client, unless the court finds the default or dismissal was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise or neglect] (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)).

[Optional] C. Award Filed Without Proper Notice Constitutes Surprise. The entry of an arbitration award as a judgment less than 20 days after notice of the award was given to a party constitutes surprise and the award may be vacated under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 (Oats v. Oats (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 416, 421, 196 Cal. Rptr. 20).

[Optional] D. Attorney's Neglect Requires Court to Vacate Judgment. When a _____ [party or plaintiff] loses the opportunity to participate in the arbitration through the neglect of counsel, and the resulting [defense] award becomes final also due to attorney misfeasance, the mandatory provision of subsection Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) is applicable; and even if the attorney's neglect was not excusable, the judgment must be vacated (Yeap v. Leake (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 594, 601, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for_____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to vacate a judicial arbitration award, or the resulting judgment, on one or more of the grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a) [see also discussion of Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 3.828(a) in § 131A.100[3][a]]. The optional bracketed text in Paragraph B is what is referred to in Paragraph D as the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Optional Paragraphs C and D are for use if they coincide with the facts in counsel's particular situation.

Unlike a judgment on an arbitrator's award that is made nonappealable by Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23, an order denying a motion to vacate and set aside the judgment is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2) [Cabrera v. Plager (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609-610, 241 Cal. Rptr. 731 (citing former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(b))].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, to bring the action within the mandatory provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) the declarations in support of the motion and any documents of which the court is asked to take judicial notice should establish that the moving party never had the opportunity to arbitrate his or her case on the merits and that loss of that opportunity was caused solely by counsel's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a) (motion to vacate judicial arbitration award to be granted only on clear and convincing evidence that grounds alleged are true)]. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to judgments entered pursuant to judicial arbitration awards, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For forms of points and authorities supporting and opposing motions for relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

For a form of points and authorities that may be used in an appropriate case to oppose this form, see § 131A.150.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Grounds for Relief

Code Civ. Proc. § 473 provides, in part, that the court may, on any terms as may be just, relieve a party or his or her legal representative from a judgment, order, or other proceeding taken against him or her through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. Notwithstanding any other requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, relief is mandatory if it is based on an attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect and the application is timely, and is supported by the attorney's affidavit, unless the court determines that the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect was not in fact the cause of the default or dismissal [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The mandatory provision was added by 1988 amendments, and amended again in 1992 to add "or dismissal" to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)(2) to give parity to plaintiffs whose attorneys' mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect caused them to lose the opportunity to pursue their case [see Yeap v. Leake (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 600, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 (discussed at [3][c], below

)].

Application for relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) must be made within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months, after the judgment, order, or proceeding was taken, except in certain proceedings to determine the right to ownership or possession of real or personal property [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

The phrase on "any terms as may be just" has been construed to allow the court to require payment of costs or attorney's fees to the adverse party to compensate that party for any losses or expenses suffered by the Code Civ. Proc. § 473 motion [Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1)(C) (authorizing any other relief as is proper)]. In addition, courts granting relief from default or dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 are expressly authorized to impose a penalty of up to $1,000 on an offending attorney or defaulting party, and to direct that an offending attorney pay up to $1,000 to the State Bar Client Security Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1)(A), (B)].

When relief from default is based on a sworn declaration of fault by the defaulting party's attorney, the court is required to order that attorney to pay reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs to opposing counsel or parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. However, when the court grants relief from default based on the affidavit of the defaulting party's attorney attesting to the attorney'smistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the relief is not to be conditioned on the attorney's payment of compensatory legal fees or costs or monetary penalties imposed by the court or on compliance with other sanctions ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(2)].

[b] Award Filed Without Proper Notice Constitutes Surprise

In Oats v. Oats (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 416, 196 Cal. Rptr. 20 , an arbitration award was executed and filed in favor of plaintiff; but no proof of service was attached to the award and the parties did not receive notice of the award until nearly a month later when the clerk mailed notice to the parties. Defendant filed a request for a trial de novo within 20 days of the notice from the clerk but after a judgment had been entered on the award. Defendant's motion to set aside the entry of judgment was denied. Defendant appealed, contending that the arbitration award filed with the court without proof of service or actual notice to the parties was not an effective filing under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1615(b) and 1616(a) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.825(b)(1) and 3.826(a)].

The court of appeal reversed, holding that an arbitration award cannot be effective without notice thereof to the parties affected by the award (148 Cal. App. 3d 416, 421) . The court relied on former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1615(b) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(b)(1)], which requires the arbitrator to file an award with the clerk along with proof of service on each party to the arbitration, to hold that service of the award is a prerequisite to the court's jurisdiction to act further regarding the award (148 Cal. App. 3d 416, 420-421) . The court held that the award was not effective until proper service was made. Thus, the act of the court in entering judgment less than 20 days after the award's effective filing date was held to constitute surprise, and to require that the award be vacated pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (148 Cal. App. 3d 416, 421) .

[c] Attorney's Neglect Requires Court to Vacate Judgment

Yeap v. Leake (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 , arose out of a medical malpractice action. The associate in the office of plaintiff's counsel who attended the status conference gave his notes to his secretary to calendar the arbitration date, April 12, 1995. The secretary was new and did not calendar the arbitration date. When no one appeared for plaintiff, the arbitrator entered an award that plaintiff take $0. That award was dated and filed April 12. Plaintiff's counsel received his copy of the award on April 18, spoke to opposing counsel and the arbitrator, and asked his secretary to calendar the deadline for filing a request for trial de novo. That secretary mistakenly filed the deadline as 30 days from receipt of notice of the award. The award was entered as a judgment on May 15, 1995. Request for trial de novo was filed on May 16, 1995. In a letter dated May 22, the clerk of the court rejected the request for trial de novo as untimely. Both plaintiff's counsel and his secretary denied receiving that letter. Plaintiff made a motion to set aside the award and a motion to vacate the judgment. Both were denied. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, concluding that when a plaintiff loses the opportunity to participate in judicial arbitration through the neglect of counsel, and the resulting defense award becomes final also due to attorney misfeasance, the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) applies and the judgment must be vacated (60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 594) . The court of appeal began by noting that if the case were within the discretionary provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), the trial court's ruling would have to be upheld because there was no clear abuse of discretion. Both motions were denied in the belief that the attorney's neglect in failing to file a timely request for trial de novo, after having caused his client to miss the arbitration, was not excusable (60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 598-599) . Since the words "of dismissal" were added to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)(2) in 1992, ostensibly to give plaintiffs parity with defendants, the court must determine whether a particular dismissal is governed by the mandatory provision. The mandatory provision should be applied when dismissal occurs under circumstances similar to default. Here, plaintiff never had the opportunity to litigate the merits of her claim. The effect of the award was the same as a dismissal for failure to appear on the first day of trial. The judgment in this matter was analogous to a default because it came about as the result of appellant's failure to appear and litigate at the arbitration hearing. Thus, the mandatory provision was applicable (60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 600-601) . To obtain relief under the mandatory provision, counsel need not show that his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect was excusable. The only question is whether the dismissal was in fact caused by attorney neglect (60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 601) . Here, it was undisputed that but for the mistakes of appellant's counsel, the case would have proceeded to arbitration on the merits. On remand, the court was instructed to determine the amount of compensatory legal fees and costs to be paid by plaintiff's counsel (60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 602) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART B. Setting Aside Judgment Based on Judicial Arbitration Award

13-131A California Points & Authorities §§ 131A.102-131A.119

[Reserved]

§§ 131A.102[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART B. Setting Aside Judgment Based on Judicial Arbitration Award

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.120

§ 131A.120 Arbitrator's Duty to Disclose Personal and Professional Relationships and Facts that Some Might Believe Constitute Bias

[1] FORM

THE ARBITRATOR WAS REQUIRED TO MAKE THE DISCLOSURES SPECIFIED BY RULE 3.816

A. The Arbitrator Is Required to Disclose Personal and Professional Relationships and Facts that Some Might Believe Indicate Bias. In addition to any other disclosure required by law, [no later than five days prior to the deadline for parties to file a motion for disqualification of the arbitrator under Code of CivilProcedure section 170.6 or, if the arbitrator is not aware of his or her appointment or of a matter subject to disclosure at that time, as soon as practicable thereafter, an arbitrator must disclose to the parties:

- Any matter subject to disclosure under subdivisions (D)(2)(f) and (D)(2)(g) of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics; and

- Any significant personal or professional relationship the arbitrator has or has had with a party, attorney, or law firm in the instant case, including the number and nature of any other proceedings in the past 24 months in which the arbitrator has been privately compensated by a party, attorney, law firm, or insurance company in the instant case for any services, including service as an attorney, expert witness, or consultant or as a judge, referee, arbitrator, mediator, settlement facilitator, or other alternative dispute resolution neutral. (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(b)).

[Optional] B. Information Others Might Consider Relevant. The arbitrator must disclose in writing or on the record information required by law, or information the arbitrator believes the parties or their lawyers might consider relevant to the question of disqualification, even if he or she believes that there is no actual basis for disqualification (Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon (D)(2)(f)).

[Optional] C. Memberships in Organizations That Discriminate. The arbitrator must disclose in writing or on the record membership in any organization that practices invidious discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, or sexual orientation, except for membership in a religious or an official military organization of the United States and membership in a nonprofit youth organization so long as membership does not violate canon 4A [conduct of extrajudicial activities] (Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon (D)(2)(g)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to vacate a judicial arbitration award when the arbitrator failed to make the disclosures required by Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 3.816(b). The authority in this form may be appropriate for use with the second optional Paragraph H in the form in § 131A.100.

This form does not provide a complete memorandum but is designed to be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities in support of vacating the award [see § 131A.100].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, counsel should show the particular relationship or membership that was not disclosed and how that establishes bias.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations [see Owens v. Intertec Design, Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 72, 74-75, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 840 (motion to compel arbitration improperly denied when plaintiff/respondent filed unverified complaint and presented no evidence, by declaration or otherwise, of grounds claimed for revocation of arbitration agreement); Strauch v. Eyring (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 181, 184-186, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747] .

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionValidity of ADR Methods

154 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART B. Setting Aside Judgment Based on Judicial Arbitration Award

13-131A California Points & Authorities §§ 131A.121-131A.149

[Reserved]

§§ 131A.121[Reserved]

155 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART B. Setting Aside Judgment Based on Judicial Arbitration Award

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.150

§ 131A.150 Opposing Motion to Vacate [Judgment Based on] Judicial Arbitration Award on Grounds of Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise or [Excusable] Neglect

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR RELIEF
vs.	)	FROM [JUDGMENT PURSUANT TO] ARBITRA-
_____ [name],	)	TION AWARD ENTERED THROUGH MISTAKE, Defendant.	)	INADVERTENCE, SURPRISE, OR [EXCUSABLE]
	)	NEGLECT
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Dept: _____
		Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT SHOULD NOT GRANT _____ [PLAINTIFF'S or DEFENDANT'S] MOTION FOR RELIEF BECAUSE THE _____ [PLAINTIFF'S or DEFENDANT'S] [ATTORNEY'S] CONDUCT DOES NOT CONSTITUTE _____ [insert ground(s) on which relief is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473, e.g., EXCUSABLE NEGLECT].

A. Statutory Basis for Vacating Award. [See § 131A.100[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Grounds for Relief. [See § 131A.101[1], Paragraph B].

[Optional] C. Case Does Not Invoke Mandatory Provision of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b). When a _____ [party or defendant not only answers the complaint, but] participates in discovery and in a judicial arbitration hearing, any judgment entered on the award is not a default or default judgment within the meaning of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b); and any motion to vacate that judgment will fall within the discretionary rather than the mandatory provision of Section 473(b) (Ayala v. Southwest Leasing and Rental, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 40, 44, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637).

[Optional] D. Attorney's Press of Business Does Not Constitute Excusable Neglect. The fact that an attorney who failed to file a timely request for trial de novo took over a large number of cases [at one time] is not in and of itself excusable neglect. Under those circumstances, the attorney must take immediate precautions to avoid missing any one of the many procedural time limitations intrinsic to civil litigation. The failure to do so does not amount to excusable neglect (Ayala v. Southwest Leasing and Rental, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 40, 45, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637).

[Optional] E. Attorney's Failure to Determine When Award Was Filed Does Not Constitute Excusable Neglect. The conduct of an attorney who knew that an award should have been filed, but did not receive notice thereof, and who failed to ascertain the fact and date of the filing of the award [and thus also failed to file a timely request for trial de novo] constitutes inexcusable neglect and does not require the resulting judgment to be set aside pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b) (Alvarado v. City of Port Hueneme (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 695, 707, 184 Cal. Rptr. 154).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for

_____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion seeking to have a judicial arbitration award, or resulting judgment, vacated on one or more of the grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.825(d); see also discussion of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(d) [see also discussion of Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 3.828(a) at § 131A.100[3][a]].

Optional Paragraph C is for use to establish that the case falls within the discretionary provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b).

Optional Paragraphs D and E address particular instances of attorney neglect that are not excusable.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 131A.101.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, the declarations opposing the motion and any court documents of which the opposing party asks the court to take judicial notice should establish that the moving party had his or her "day in court" by participation in the preparation of the case and in the arbitration hearing. Argument should also emphasize all deficiencies in the moving party's explanation for the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect urged as the basis for vacating the judgment.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(b) (motion to vacate judicial arbitration award to be granted only on clear and convincing evidence that grounds alleged are true)]. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to judgments entered pursuant to judicial arbitration awards, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For forms of points and authorities supporting and opposing motions for relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Case Does Not Invoke Mandatory Provision of Code of Civil Procedure Section 473(b)

Ayala v. Southwest Leasing and Rental, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 40, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637 , is discussed at [b], below.

[b] Attorney's Press of Business Does Not Constitute Excusable Neglect

Ayala v. Southwest Leasing and Rental, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 40, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637 , was a personal injury action which resulted in a judicial arbitration award in favor of plaintiffs. The award was filed on July 20, 1990; and on August 21, 1990, the award was entered as a judgment. Ten days after that, defendants filed an untimely request for trial de novo. The request was denied. Defendants moved to vacate the judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The motion was supported by the declaration of defendants' attorney stating that on August 2, 1990, his office took over 250 to 300 of defendant Southwest's cases from another law firm and that he was not aware of the August 20 deadline for filing a request for trial de novo until it had passed. The motion was denied. Defendants appealed, contending that they had satisfied the requirements of the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and that they had established excusable neglect.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal first determined that the case fell within the discretionary rather than the mandatory provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 because it did not involve a default judgment. Defendants not only answered the complaint, but participated in discovery and in an arbitration hearing (7 Cal. App. 4th 40, 44) . The declarations in support of the motion did not explain why Southwest's former counsel did not request trial de novo before transferring the file to the second attorney; nor was there any explanation of the circumstances under which the second attorney became aware that the deadline had been missed. The fact that Southwest's attorney took over a large number of cases is not in and of itself excusable neglect. Under those circumstances, it is necessary for an attorney to take immediate precautions to avoid missing any one of the many procedural time limitations intrinsic to civil litigation. The failure to do so does not amount to excusable neglect (7 Cal. App. 4th 40, 45) .

[c] Attorney's Failure to Determine When Award Was Filed Does Not Constitute Excusable Neglect

Alvarado v. City of Port Hueneme (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 695, 184 Cal. Rptr. 154 , resulted in a judicial arbitration award for defendant, after the arbitrator granted nonsuit at the conclusion of plaintiffs' case on January 22, 1981. Theaward was signed the next day and served on the parties. It was filed with the court on January 26. Plaintiffs' attorney knew that a nonsuit had been granted by the arbitrator but did not receive notice of the award. Seven days prior to the expiration of the then-applicable 20-day period within which to request trial de novo, the attorney sent a law clerk to the county clerk's office to check on the filing of the award. The award was not inserted in the case file but was held at the processing desk for the expiration of the 20-day period. The award was also noted on an arbitration index. The law clerk checked only the individual case file, and because it did not contain the award, assumed that the award had not yet been filed. Judgment on the award was entered on February 17. Plaintiffs filed an untimely request a trial de novo on February 26. Plaintiffs then moved for relief from the judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The trial court denied the motion both because Code Civ. Proc. § 473 was not then mentioned in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23 or former Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 1615(d) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)], and the court believed it had no authority to grant relief on that basis and because plaintiffs' attorney's conduct amounted to inexcusable neglect. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, first holding that the trial court did have authority to grant relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (133 Cal. App. 3d 695, 705). The court stated that because it had long been the law that a paper is filed when delivered and received by the clerk, not when placed in the file, it was not an abuse of discretion to hold the attorney's neglect inexcusable when the problem of law was simple and the solution readily ascertainable (133 Cal. App. 3d 695, 707) .

Both Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23 and former Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 1615(d) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.828(a)] were amended in 1982 to specifically mention Code Civ. Proc. § 473 as a ground for vacating a judgment based on a judicial arbitration award [see Stats. 1982, ch. 621].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From

JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral Overview

156 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART B. Setting Aside Judgment Based on Judicial Arbitration Award

13-131A California Points & Authorities §§ 131A.151-131A.199

[Reserved]

§§ 131A.151[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART C. Voluntary Dismissal of Action After Request for Trial de Novo

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.200

§ 131A.200 Supporting Motion to Vacate Voluntary Dismissal and Enter Judgment on Judicial Arbitration Award

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO VACATE VOL-
vs.	)	UNTARY DISMISSAL AND ENTER JUDGMENT
_____ [name],	)	IN ACCORDANCE WITH JUDICIAL ARBITRA-
Defendant.	)	TION AWARD
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Dept: _____
		Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT SHOULD SET ASIDE _____ [PLAINTIFF'S or DEFENDANT'S] REQUEST FOR DISMISSAL AND ORDER JUDGMENT ENTERED IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE JUDICIAL ARBITRATION AWARD, FILED ON _____ [date], WHICH, BUT FOR THE REQUEST FOR TRIAL DE NOVO THAT WAS REPUDIATED BY THE DISMISSAL, WOULD HAVE BECOME THE FINAL JUDGMENT IN THIS MATTER ON _____ [date].

A. Effect of Party's Dismissal of Action After Requesting Trial de Novo. A party's voluntary dismissal of an action following his or her request for trial de novo amounts to a repudiation of the request for trial de novo. That restores the parties to their previous legal positions and reinstates the arbitration award, which may then be entered as the judgment in the matter. [Or, on a proper showing of prejudice by the party that did not file for trial de novo, the court may vacate the dismissal and require the parties to proceed to trial de novo] (Kelley v. Bredelis (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1826, 1834, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536 ; Calderon v. Kane(1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1663, 1667-1668, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480 ; Herbert Hawkins Realtors, Inc. v. Milheiser (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 340, 189 Cal. Rptr. 450).

[Optional] B. As Prevailing Party Under Arbitration Award, _____ [Plaintiff *or Defendant] Is Entitled to Attorney's Fees. Pursuant to the contract between the parties, _____ [plaintiff or defendant] is entitled to his/her/its reasonable attorney's fees. Once the dismissal is vacated, Civil Code Section 1717(b)(2) will no longer be applicable and _____ [plaintiff or defendant] will be entitled to attorney's fees as prevailing party under the arbitration award (Kelley v. Bredelis (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1832, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion by a party in whose favor a judicial arbitration award was filed, to vacate a voluntary dismissal filed by the adverse party after the adverse party requested trial de novo, and to have the arbitration award entered as a judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.20(a), 1141.23; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.827(a)].

If the party in whose favor the award was rendered believes he or she can obtain an even more favorable result on trial de novo, presumably he or she is free to respond by requesting trial de novo instead of entry of judgment [see Calderon v. Kane (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1663, 1668, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480 (discussed at [3][a], below)]. Paragraph A includes optional bracketed text that may included to support such a request.

Optional Paragraph B is for use if the moving party is entitled to attorney's fees under a contract between the parties to establish that this situation does not involve a voluntary dismissal within the meaning Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2) so as to preclude enforcement of the attorney's fee award. If the arbitration award did not fix the amount of attorney's fees, or if the moving party requests additional attorney's fees to have the dismissal set aside, counsel should notice a motion to fix the amount of fees to be heard at the same time as the motion supported by this memorandum [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, the declarations supporting the motion and the court documents of which the moving party asks the court to take judicial notice should include the judicial arbitration award and the request for dismissal and should establish the dates on which those documents were filed.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to judicial arbitration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to cost and attorney's fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For forms of points and authorities relating to attorney's fees, see Ch. 25, Attorney's Fees .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect of Party's Dismissal of Action After Requesting Trial de Novo

Kelley v. Bredelis (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536 , was anaction for breach of contract and specific performance of a lease with an alleged option to purchase. The agreement provided that the prevailing party in any litigation would be entitled to reasonable attorney's fees. Judicial arbitration resulted in a defense award based on a finding that the agreement had been modified to allow the lessor, on return of 10 percent of the rents paid, to elect not to sell. The award included attorney's fees and costs. Plaintiffs filed a request for trial de novo, but before the trial date, filed a request for dismissal of the action with prejudice. Defendant filed a costs memorandum, a motion for attorney's fees, and a motion for an order vacating the request for trial de novo and entering judgment on the arbitration award. The motions were all granted, with attorney's fees set at $21,500. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. Following Herbert Hawkins Realtors, Inc. v. Milheiser (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 189 Cal. Rptr. 450 , the court of appeal held that plaintiffs did not have an absolute right to dismiss their action after arbitration and that plaintiffs' voluntary dismissal of their action following their request for trial de novo amounted to a repudiation of their previous election for trial de novo and reinstated the arbitration award, on which judgment was then correctly entered. That result reconciles the competing interests of the dismissal statutes and the judicial arbitration statutes and avoids "mischief and absurdity" (45 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1825-1826) . It made no difference that the dismissal was with prejudice, as opposed to without prejudice. Arbitration was viewed as a trial on the merits. The only way to stop the award from becoming a final judgment was to settle the case or have a trial de novo. A party who does neither has had his or her day in court (45 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1827) . After addressing the dissent and the issue of attorney's fees, discussed at [b], below, the court of appeal reiterated that the trial court was clearly correct in vacating the dismissal, reinstating the award, and entering judgment against the plaintiffs pursuant to that award (45 Cal. App.

4th 1819, 1834) .

Calderon v. Kane (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1663, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 480 , was a defamation action that resulted in a judicial arbitration award in defendants' favor based on a finding that the communication was privileged. Plaintiffs requested trial de novo, but before the matter came to trial filed a request for voluntary dismissal without prejudice. Defendants filed a motion to vacate the dismissal and to enter judgment on the arbitration award with attorney's fees and costs. The trial court granted the motions and ordered judgment to be entered in accordance with the award. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, approving Herbert Hawkins Realtors, Inc. v. Milheiser (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 340, 189 Cal. Rptr. 450 , and agreeing that when a losing party withdraws a previous request for trial de novo, not only is the request for trial de novo repudiated, but the repudiating party is restored to the legal position that that party was in prior to electing trial de novo, thus triggering the finalization of the award (36 Cal. App. 4th 1663, 1667) .

The court also considered Marracino v. Brandstetter (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 543, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700 , which held that absent a local rule providing otherwise, a party cannot withdraw a request for trial de novo after the 30-day period for filing the request has run, but found Marracino unpersuasive because it could force the parties to a trial de novo that neither of them wanted (36 Cal. App. 4th 1663, 1667-1668) . Instead, the court said, when a party dismisses a request for trial de novo after the 30-day period has run, the court retains jurisdiction to vacate the dismissal in order to reinstate the arbitration award, or, on a proper showing of prejudice by the nonfiling party, to vacate the dismissal and require the parties to proceed to a trial de novo. Because the withdrawal of a request for trial de novo undoubtedly affects the rights of the adverse party, the preferable procedure is to seek withdrawal by noticed motion. That would give the adverse party the opportunity to indicate whether he or she wanted a trial de novo. Under that procedure, the parties to the arbitration, not the court, would make the ultimate decision whether the matter is brought to trial (36 Cal. App. 4th 1663, 1668) .

Herbert Hawkins Realtors, Inc. v. Milheiser (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 189 Cal. Rptr. 450 , was an action by realtors for breach of contract. Defendants asserted several defenses and claimed attorney's fees. Plaintiffs failed to appear at the arbitration hearing, and an award was entered against them. Defendants were awarded their costs and attorney's fees. Plaintiffs filed a timely request for trial de novo, but before the matter was tried, filed a request for dismissal without prejudice. Defendants requested judgment to be entered based on the award and that they have their costs. The request was denied on the ground the dismissal was without prejudice. Defendants then moved for an order of dismissal with prejudice and for costs, claiming plaintiffs had violated a local rule prohibiting withdrawal of a request for trial de novo except with written approval of all parties. The trial court denied the motion. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to the trial court to vacate the dismissal without prejudice, to treat the dismissal as a repudiation of the request for trial de novo, and to enter the award as a judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23 (140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 341) . The court of appeal said that permitting plaintiffs to dismiss the action without prejudice would defeat the express legislative purpose of the judicial arbitration statutes. Such a construction of the interrelationship between the dismissal statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(1)] and the judicial arbitration statutes would produce absurd consequences and promote mischief (140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 339) . No party has the right to avoid a judicial arbitration award at their whim. The party requesting trial de novo may either proceed with trial de novo or allow the award to be entered as a judgment. When parties withdraw requests for trial de novo or voluntarily dismiss their complaints,they repudiate their previous election for trial de novo. This restores the repudiating party to their legal position before electing trial de novo and triggers finalization of the award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.23. Code Civ. Proc. § 581(1) was not applicable because a specific provision relating to a particular subject will govern in respect to that subject as against a general provision. This position is consistent with the rule that one cannot voluntarily dismiss an action after a demurrer has been sustained with leave to amend (140 Cal. App. 3d 334, 340) .

[b] As Prevailing Party Under Arbitration Award, _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant] Is Entitled to Attorney's Fees

The facts and procedural background of Kelley v. Bredelis (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536 , are discussed at [a], above. Plaintiffs also contested the award of attorney's fees to defendant, relying on Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2), which provides that when an action has been voluntarily dismissed, there is no prevailing party for purposes of that section. The court of appeal held that there was no dismissal here. The dismissal that was filed was set aside by the court. The effect of that dismissal was to notify the court that plaintiffs were repudiating their request for trial de novo. That restored the parties to their previous legal positions as they existed before the filing of the request for trial de novo, and triggered the finalization of the award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20. Once the dismissal and the request for trial de novo were vacated, Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2) was no longer applicable because there was no voluntary dismissal. There was a valid judgment on the arbitration award, which included the award of attorney's fees; and the trial court properly set the amount of those fees to the party who clearly prevailed in the arbitration (45 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1832) . In addition, the court said, attorney's fees could properly have been awarded to defendant as costs under *Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4)*and (b) and Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)(A) (45 Cal. App. 4th 1819, 1833) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDismissalsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADR

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART C. Voluntary Dismissal of Action After Request for Trial de Novo

13-131A California Points & Authorities §§ 131A.201-131A.299

[Reserved]

§§ 131A.201[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART D. Penalties for Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.300

§ 131A.300 Attorney's Fees Included as Costs After Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

[1] FORM

_____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT] IS ENTITLED TO HIS/HER/ITS REASONABLE ATTORNEY'S FEES INCURRED FROM THE TIME _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT] REQUESTED THE TRIAL DE NOVO, AT WHICH HE/SHE/IT OBTAINED A VERDICT LESS FAVORABLE THAN WHAT HE/SHE/IT WAS GRANTED BY THE ARBITRATION AWARD.

A. Penalty Provision. If the judgment upon the trial de novo is not more favorable in either the amount of damages awarded or the type of relief granted for the party electing the trial de novo than the arbitration award, the court shall order that party to pay the following nonrefundable costs and fees, unless the court finds in writing and upon motion that the imposition of those costs and fees would create such a substantial economic hardship as not to be in the interest of justice (Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)):

> (A) To the court, the compensation actually paid to the arbitrator, less any amount paid pursuant to paragraph (D).
>
> (B) To the other party or parties, all costs specified in Section 1033.5 [of the Code of Civil Procedure], and the party electing trial de novo shall not recover his or her costs.
>
> (C) To the other party or parties, the reasonable costs of the services of expert witnesses, who are not regular employees of any party, actually incurred or reasonably necessary in the preparation of the trial of the case.
>
> (D) To the other party or parties, the compensation paid by the other party or parties to the arbitrator pursuant to subdivision (b) of Section 1141.28 [of the Code of Civil Procedure].

Those costs and fees, other than the compensation of the arbitrator, shall include only those incurred from the time of the election of the trial de novo (Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(2)).

B. Attorney Fees as Costs. Attorney fees are allowable as costs under Section 1032 [of the Code of Civil Procedure] when authorized by (A) contract, (B) statute, or (C) law (Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)).

[Optional] C. Attorney's Fees Award Is Mandatory Even if StatuteAuthorizing Them Is Discretionary. Section 1141.21 of the Code of Civil Procedure is mandatory, not permissive. Thus, an award of attorney's fees that is discretionary under some other statute is made mandatory by Section 1141.21 when incorporated therein to be applied against a party who failed to obtain a more favorable result at trial de novo than under the judicial arbitration award (Bhullar v. Tayyab (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 582, 587-588, 591, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 17).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to fix the amount of attorney's fees includable as costs after a trial de novo in which the party against whom such costs are sought to be imposed failed to obtain a result more favorable than he or she received under the judicial arbitration award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(d)].

Paragraph A sets forth Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a).

Paragraph B sets forth the portion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5 making attorney fees includable as costs. Counsel should incorporate as additional authority any other statute or law authorizing attorney fees in the particular situation.

Optional Paragraph C is for use to argue that even though the statute made applicable by Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)(B) is by its terms discretionary, as against a party who obtained a less favorable result on trial de novo, it becomes mandatory. The other statute involved in the authority cited in Optional Paragraph C was Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.1 (repealed by its own terms on January 1, 2001), but the principle should remain valid when applied to any other statute.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, the argument should establish the particular basis for attorney's fees, whether a contract between the parties, case law, or a particular statute, and show how the particular case is within the terms of that contract, case, or statute.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to judicial arbitration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to cost and attorney's fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For forms of points and authorities relating to attorney's fees, see Ch. 25, Attorney's Fees .

For forms of points and authorities relating to costs, see Ch. 60, Costs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Fees Award Is Mandatory Even if Statute Authorizing Them Is Discretionary

Bhullar v. Tayyab (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 582, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 17 , was an action by the seller of liquor store against the buyer for breach of contract. The buyer cross-complained for damages for fraud and misrepresentation. Buyer made an offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 to settle the matter for $25,000. Seller did not accept the offer. Judicial arbitration resulted in an award that neither party take anything and that each bear its own costs and attorney's fees. Seller requested trial de novo, which resulted in a judgment for buyer of approximately $39,000 plus costs of suit. Buyer moved to fix the amount of attorney's fees includable as costs. The court denied the motion on the ground that seller's rejection of the Section 998 offer was reasonable. Buyer appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded for determination of the amount of attorney's fees (46 Cal. App. 4th 582, 591) . Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.1(b) (repealed by its terms on January 1, 2001), if a party to an action in Riverside County or San Bernardino County refused a Code Civ. Proc. § 998 settlementoffer, and failed to obtain a more favorable judgment at trial, the court has discretion to award attorney's fees. Costs specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10) include attorney's fees when authorized by (A) contract, (B) statute, or (C) law. Seller contended that the discretion authorized by any statute incorporated by Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)(B) was retained under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21. The court of appeal disagreed (46 Cal. App. 4th 582, 587) . First, the court noted that the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 was mandatory, not permissive, with the only exception being when the court finds in writing and on motion that imposing the costs would create such a substantial hardship as not to be in the interest of justice (46 Cal. App. 4th 582, 588) . Second, the legislative purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 is to discourage trials de novo (46 Cal. App. 4th 582, 589) , and to encourage acceptance of arbitration awards. If the imposition of attorney's fees after a less favorable result on trial de novo remained as discretionary as after refusal to accept a settlement offer, the significant disincentives to refusing an arbitration award would be written out of the statute. Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 to grant the trial court discretion whether or not to award attorney's fees would impair the purpose of that statute, while interpreting that statute as mandatory furthers the legislative intent to encourage acceptance of arbitration awards (46 Cal. App. 4th 582, 590) . Attorney's fees that were discretionary after failure to accept the settlement offer were made mandatory by Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 after failure to accept the arbitration award (46 Cal. App. 4th 582, 591) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewDe Novo

Review

160 of 163 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART D. Penalties for Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.301

§ 131A.301 Costs and Fees May Be Awarded to Party Who Also Requested Trial de Novo

[1] FORM

EVEN THOUGH _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT] REQUESTED TRIAL DE NOVO, HE/SHE/IT IS ENTITLED TO HIS/HER/ITS COSTS [AND REASONABLE ATTORNEY'S FEES] INCURRED FROM THE TIME _____ [other (less-successful) party: PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT] REQUESTED TRIAL DE NOVO.

A. Penalty Provision. [See § 131A.300[1], Paragraph A].

B. When Two Parties Request Trial de Novo. When two or more parties elect trial de novo, each is subject to liability for costs [under Section 1141.21 of the Code of Civil Procedure] if less successful at trial de novo (Muega v. Menocal (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 868, 877, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 697 ; Boyd v. Oscar Fisher Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 368, 382, 258 Cal. Rptr. 473).

[Optional] C. When Attempt to Request Partial Trial de Novo Fails. One who obtains a less favorable result on trial de novo than under a judicial arbitration award is liable for costs [under Section 1141.21 of the Code of Civil Procedure] to a party he or she attempted to exclude from the trial de novo when the attempt to request a partial trial de novo failed because the issues, claims, causes of action, or cross-claim emanated from a single integrated set of facts (Muega v. Menocal (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 868, 876-877, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 697).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities is for use by a party who requested trial de novo and seeks to recover costs, and if appropriate, attorney's fees against another party who also requested trial de novo when the other party failed to obtain a result more favorable than he or she received under the judicial arbitration award [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(d)]. The authority may be used to anticipate or respond to the claim by the party against whom such costs are sought to be imposed that he or she is somehow exempt from liability for costs because both parties requested trial de novo. For example, this form may be used in support of a motion to fix the amount of attorney's fees, and/or in opposition to a motion tax costs.

Optional Paragraph C is for use if the party resisting the imposition of costs and fees attempted to request only a partial trial de novo as to issues, causes or action, complaints, or cross complaints that did not involve the party seeking to recover costs.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, the argument should explain how the party against whom costs are sought to be imposed was less successful on trial de novo.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to judicial arbitration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to cost and attorney's fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For forms of points and authorities relating to attorney's fees, see Ch. 25, Attorney's Fees .

For forms of points and authorities relating to costs, see Ch. 60, Costs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Two Parties Request Trial de Novo

Muega v. Menocal (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 868, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 697 , arose out of an automobile accident involving two cars. The driver and the passengers in the forward car sued the driver of the following vehicle, who cross complained against the driver of the forward car for indemnity. After discovery, the passengers filed a supplemental complaint against the driver of the forward car. Judicial arbitration resulted in awards of $9,000 for the driver of the forward car, and $9,000 and $18,000 for the two passengers, all against the driver of the following car. The arbitrator specifically found for the driver of the forward car on the cross complaint and awarded her costs. The two passengers requested trial de novo only on the supplemental complaint against the driver of the forward car. The driver of the following car requested trial de novo on all issues. Before the trial, the drivers settled their claims against each other. Trial de novo proceeded on all issues, but nonsuit was entered in favor of the driver of the forward car when the passengers failed to amend their opening statement. The verdicts for the passengers were less than the arbitration award. The forward driver filed a motion for sanctions [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5] against the passengers on the ground that their claims against her were frivolous and totally without merit. That motion resulted in sanctions equal to the amount of attorney's fees expended by the forward driver after the two drivers settled their claims against each other and in preparation for the trial. Both drivers filed costs memoranda. The passengers moved to tax costs. Costs were awarded to both drivers and the passengers appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court first considered and rejected the passengers' claim that they could not be charged with the forward driver's costs because the arbitrator never expressly ruled on their supplemental complaint against that driver, saying that there was no reason why the arbitrator's failure to expressly rule on the supplemental complaint affected that driver's right to costs (50 Cal. App. 4th 868, 875) .

As to the costs awarded to the following driver, the passengers contended that they could not be charged with those costs because they had not requested trial de novo with respect to the following driver. The court acknowledged that appellants attempted to request a partial trial de novo with respect only to the forward driver, but found that the attempt failed because their claims against both drivers emanated from a single integrated set of facts. The court cited Trump v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 411, 415, 173 Cal. Rptr. 403 , and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1616(c) [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826(c)] for the proposition that a valid and timely request for trial de novo vacates the arbitration award in its entirety and puts the case at large as though no arbitration proceedings had occurred (50 Cal. App. 4th 868, 876) . Thus, the passengers were fairly treated as "the party electing trial de novo" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21. Nor did it matter that the following driver also requested trial de novo. The court cited Boyd v. Oscar Fisher Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 368, 382, 258 Cal. Rptr. 473 , for the proposition that when two or more parties elect trial de novo, each is subject to the discouraging prospect of liability for costs if less successful at trial de novo (50 Cal. App. 4th 868, 877) .

Plaintiff/equipment dealer in Boyd v. Oscar Fisher Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 368, 258 Cal. Rptr. 473 , sued the manufacturer for wrongful termination of an exclusive franchise. Manufacturer cross-complained for unpaid invoices, which contained an attorney's fee provision. The parties stipulated to judicial arbitration and waived the [then] $25,000 limitation on the award. The arbitrator awarded plaintiff approximately $57,000 plus costs and defendant approximately $32,000 plus interest thereon and attorney's fees. Both parties requested trial de novo, though defendant/manufacturer's request purported to be limited to the complaint only. The jury entered a net verdict of approximately $22,000 for manufacturer, which then moved for attorney's fees, cost, and prejudgment interest. All those motions were granted and defendant was awarded $38,730 in attorney's fees, prejudgment interest amounting to approximately $8,700, and costs of approximately $17,900. Plaintiff appealed from the order making those awards.

Except for reducing the amount of one expert's services, the court of appeal affirmed (210 Cal. App. 3d 368, 383) . Dealer contended that his election of trial de novo did not trigger the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 because manufacturer had already elected trial de novo. The court agreed that manufacturer's election called for trial de novo of all competing cross-claims, not merely "on the complaint only" as it purported to do, but it did not follow that the dealer'ssubsequent election had no effect. Nothing in the judicial arbitration statutes precludes more than one party per arbitration from electing trial de novo. If two or more parties do so, each is subject to the discouraging prospect of liability for costs if unsuccessful (210 Cal. App. 3d 368, 382) .

[b] When Attempt to Request Partial Trial de Novo Fails

Muega v. Menocal (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 868, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 697 , is discussed under [a], above.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewDe Novo Review

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART D. Penalties for Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.302

§ 131A.302 Labor Code Section 3856 Entitles Plaintiff to Reasonable Litigation Expense Even After Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

[1] FORM

EVEN THOUGH PLAINTIFF OBTAINED A LESS FAVORABLE RESULT ON TRIAL DE NOVO, HE/SHE IS ENTITLED TO HAVE THE JUDGMENT APPLIED FIRST TO HIS/HER REASONABLE ATTORNEY'S FEES AND LITIGATION EXPENSES IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 3856 OF THE LABOR CODE.

A. Workers' Compensation Statute to Be Given Effect. An employee who obtains a less favorable result against a third party on trial de novo following judicial arbitration, and therefore cannot recover his or her costs under Section 1141.21(a)(1)(B) of the Code of Civil Procedure, may still have the judgment allocated in accordance with Section 3856 of the Labor Code, including use of the judgment to pay his or her reasonable litigation expenses and reasonable attorney's fees (Phelps v. Stostad (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 23, 34, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360, 939 P.2d 760 (disapproving dictum to the contrary in Crampton v. Takegoshi (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 319, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted by an injured employee who has collected workers' compensation benefits and also recovered damages against a third party for the same injury to have the judgment allocated to pay his or her reasonable litigation expenses, including attorney's fees, even though he or she obtained a less favorable result on trial de novo. The legal argument is that Lab. Code § 3856 is to be given effect notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21. For example, this form may be used by the employee to support of a motion by the employee to fix the amount of reasonable attorney's fees or to support a motion to tax costs.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, the argument

should establish that the case is one which is governed by Lab. Code § 3856, i.e., that the injured employee prosecuted his or her own claims and those of the employer against the third party. Argument also should establish that at the time of the election for trial de novo, the employee had a reasonable expectation of obtaining a more favorable result than the arbitration award.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to judicial arbitration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to cost and attorney's fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to workers' compensation, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For forms of points and authorities relating to attorney's fees, see Ch. 25, Attorney's Fees .

For forms of points and authorities relating to costs, see Ch. 60, Costs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Workers' Compensation Statute to Be Given Effect

Lab. Code § 3856 governs allocation between the employer and the injured employee of a judgment obtained against a negligent third party. Any such judgment is to be used first to pay reasonable litigation expenses incurred in preparation or prosecution of that action, together with a reasonable attorney's fee. Next, the judgment is to be used to reimburse the employer for the amount of compensation paid to the employee. Any remaining portion of the judgment goes to the injured employee. Under Lab. Code § 3856(b), if the employee alone prosecutes the action, the reasonable attorney's fees to which the judgment is applied are calculated based on services rendered by the employee's attorney in effecting recovery both for the benefit of the employee and the employer.

Phelps v. Stostad (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 23, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360, 939 P.2d 760 , was a personal injury action by a plaintiff who had been injured when a vehicle driven by defendant crashed into the building where plaintiff worked. The employer intervened to recover workers' compensation benefits paid to plaintiff. Judicial arbitration resulted in an award of $45,000 for plaintiff/employee and an award for the employer of its entire workers' compensation expenditure. Plaintiff elected trial de novo. Before the trial, employer settled with defendant, accepting $20,000 in return for its assignment to defendant of its right to reimbursement of workers' compensation paid to plaintiff, which amounted to $28,000. At trial, plaintiff was awarded only $14,600: $5,000 for medical expenses; $2,100 for lost earnings; and $7,600 for general damages. Defendant filed a memorandum of costs in the amount of $6,933.02 and a motion to determine set-off against judgment, although defendant agreed that the right to reimbursement applied only to the $7,100 of economic damages. Plaintiff claimed that under Lab. Code § 3856(b), his reasonable litigation costs and attorney's fees (which he alleged amounted to more than $18,000) should be paid from the judgment before it was applied to reimbursement of the workers' compensation benefits. The trial court, following dicta in Crampton v. Takegoshi (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 319, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 , applied the entire $7,100 of general damages to reimbursement and awarded defendant her costs, leaving plaintiff a balance of $566.98. Plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal affirmed.

The Supreme Court accepted review and reversed, holding that even when a party who has elected trial de novo following judicial arbitration is precluded by former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)] from recovering his or her costs, the proceeds of the judgment obtained by that party are subject to allocation pursuant to Lab. Code § 3856, including use of the judgment for payment of reasonable litigation expenses and attorney's fees, and disapproving dictum to the contrary in Crampton (16 Cal. 4th 23, 34) . The Court noted that former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)] and Lab. Code § 3856 address totally unrelated subjects (16 Cal. 4th 23, 28) ; and there is no conflict between them (16 Cal. 4th 23, 32) . The purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 is to encourage parties to accept reasonable arbitration awards and to discourage trials de novo. Lab. Code § 3856 is part of the workers' compensation system (16 Cal. 4th 23, 29) . The rule giving priority to the claim for litigation expenses and attorney's fees was created for cases like the present one in which the amount of the judgment is insufficient to pay reasonable litigation expenses and attorney's fees and also to fully reimburse the employer. Interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)] to preclude payment of litigation expenses and attorney's fees from the judgment would nullify that priority and produce an unexpected windfall for the employer (16 Cal. 4th 23, 30-31) .

By allowing an injured employee to apply any judgment obtained from a third party tortfeasor first to pay his or her reasonable litigation expenses and attorney's fees, Lab. Code § 3856 does not allow the employee to "recover his or her costs" in contravention of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)] (16 Cal. 4th 23, 32) . The employee would "recover his or her costs" within the meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)] if the court were to order the third party tortfeasor to pay that party's costs in addition to paying the amount of damages awarded by the judgment (16 Cal. 4th 23, 32-33) . A party does not "recover" costs for purposes of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)] simply because a portion of the judgment that party has been awarded is used to pay litigation expenses or attorney's fees. It would be unreasonable to interpret the phrase "shall not recover his or her costs" in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)]to preclude a party from using part of a judgment to pay costs incurred during the litigation. Application of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)]is consistent with the apparent purpose and design of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) and does not deprive the third party tortfeasor of the benefits contemplated by former Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(ii) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21(a)(1)(B)]. The third party is relieved of its obligation as the "losing party" to pay the costs of the party who elected trial de novo. Moreover, in determining what litigation expenses and attorney's fees are reasonable within the meaning of Lab. Code § 3856, the court may consider (and the trial court here should do so on remand) whether it was reasonable to request a trial de novo. If, at the time the employee elected the trial de novo, there was no reasonable prospect of a recovery significantly greater than the arbitration award, the court could exclude expenses incurred for the trial de novo from thosepayable under Lab. Code § 3856 (16 Cal. 4th 23, 33, 33 n.7, 34) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewDe Novo Review

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART D. Penalties for Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

13-131A California Points & Authorities §§ 131A.303-131A.349

[Reserved]

§§ 131A.303[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 131A JUDICIAL ARBITRATION
PART II. FORMS
PART D. Penalties for Less Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

13-131A California Points & Authorities § 131A.350

§ 131A.350 Employee Obtained More Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

[1] FORM

PLAINTIFF OBTAINED A MORE FAVORABLE RESULT ON TRIAL DE NOVO, BECAUSE THE TOTAL AMOUNT OF THE JUDGMENT WAS LARGER THAN THE TOTAL AMOUNT OF THE ARBITRATION AWARD. THUS, PLAINTIFF IS NOT LIABLE FOR COSTS AND FEES UNDER SECTION 1141.21 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

A. Employee Obtained More Favorable Result on Trial de Novo. In determining whether Section 1141.21 of the Code of Civil Procedure, is applicable to a trial de novo, in which all [or some] of the amount of the judgment will reimburse an injured employee's employer for workers' compensation benefits paid to the employee on account of the injuries inflicted by the third party, what is to be measured is the total award obtained in the judicial arbitration proceeding as against the total judgment in the third party proceeding, not the amount that the employee actually will receive after deduction of the employer's lien in those proceedings (Crampton v. Takegoshi (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 320-321, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted by an injured employee to establish that under the appropriate method of comparison between a judgment on trial de novo, part of which will be applied to reimburse the employer for workers' compensation benefits it paid to the employee, and the arbitration award, the employee did obtain a more favorable result, and thus Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 does not apply. This situation is most likely to arise when the employee only prosecutes an action against the third party. For example, this form may be used by the employee to support motion to tax costs in response to the third party's filing of a memorandum of costs.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, the argument should establish that the case is one involving a judgment, a portion of which will be applied to reimburse the employer for benefits paid to the employee [see, e.g., Lab. Code § 3856 (discussed at § 131A.302[3] [a]), and should show that the total verdict on trial de novo exceeds the amount of the arbitration award.

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], or otherwise by affidavits or declarations. Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to judicial arbitration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to cost and attorney's fees, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees (Matthew Bender).

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions relating to workers' compensation, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms in this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For forms of points and authorities relating to attorney's fees, see Ch. 25, Attorney's Fees.

For forms of points and authorities relating to costs, see Ch. 60, Costs.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Employee Obtained More Favorable Result on Trial de Novo

Plaintiff in Crampton v. Takegoshi (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 21 Cal. Rptr.2d 284 , was injured when a truck he was driving in the course of his employment was struck by defendant. Plaintiff's employer paid him $72,000 in workers' compensation benefits. Employer filed a complaint in intervention in the suit by plaintiff against defendant. The parties stipulated to judicial arbitration. The arbitrator found that not all of plaintiff's injuries were attributable to the accident and that plaintiff could have returned to work sooner than he did. The arbitrator awarded the employer $16,819.72 in reimbursement and the employee $27,678, for a total award of $44,497.72. Employee requested trial de novo. Employer settled with defendant for $25,000, assigned its lien to defendant, and dismissed its complaint in intervention. At the trial de novo, the jury was instructed that plaintiff would not recover anything unless the verdict was more than $75,000. The verdict was only $58,862. Plaintiff filed a memorandum of costs seeking $28,749.03 in costs and attorney's fees under Lab. Code § 3856(b). Defendant filed a memorandum of costs seeking approximately $6,000 under Code Civ.

Proc. § 1141.21(a). Each party moved to tax the other's costs. The trial court granted defendant's costs and denied plaintiff's costs and attorney's fees, finding that plaintiff's recovery on trial de novo was zero and that Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 precluded an award under Lab. Code § 3856. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, finding that the comparison should have been between the total award ($44,497.72) and the total verdict ($58,862). Thus, plaintiff did obtain a more favorable result on trial de novo; and Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 was not applicable (17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 320-321) . The court of appeal said Lab. Code § 3856 incorporates the equitable principle of apportionment between an active litigant and a passive beneficiary. If a party who expends attorney's fees winning a lawsuit which creates a fund from which others derive benefits, those passive beneficiaries may be required to share litigation costs (17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 317) . Here, plaintiff did not obtain any net recovery, but a benefit was conferred on the passive beneficiary (17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 318) . Employer's assignment of its rights to defendant did not change that result (17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 319) . The allocation of the arbitration award between employer and employee did not change the fact that the arbitrator found plaintiff had suffered damages of approximately $44,500. What was to be measured for the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 was the total award obtained in the judicial arbitration proceeding as against the total judgment in the third party proceeding, not the amount that plaintiff actually received after deduction of the employer's lien in those proceedings (17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 320) . That compared the amount of damages awarded between the litigants in their capacity as parties, not their setoff rights obtained from other lienholders. Because the verdict rendered at trial as between plaintiff and defendant was larger than the arbitrator's award, Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 did not apply. Plaintiff was entitled to his costs and to reasonable attorney's fees as fixed by the court under Lab. Code § 3856 (17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 321) .

Note that the statement of dicta in Crampton that when a litigant obtains a less favorable judgment in terms of damages than was awarded in the judicial arbitration proceedings, Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 precludes an award of litigation expenses and attorney's fees otherwise due under Lab. Code § 3856(b) (17 Cal. App. 4th 308, 319) has been disapproved in Phelps v. Stostad (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 23, 34, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360, 939 P.2d 760 , discussed at § 131A.302[3][a].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureAppealsStandards of ReviewDe Novo Review

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM

13-132 California Points & Authorities 132.syn

§ 132.syn Synopsis to Chapter 132: JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM

§ 132.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 132.02 Governing Law

§ 132.03 Terminology Used in This Part

§ 132.04 Jurisdiction to Render Judgment in Personam, in Rem, or Quasi in Rem

[1] In General

[2] Requirement of Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard

§ 132.05 Procedure for Acquiring Jurisdiction Over Person or Thing

[1] Actions in Personam

[2] Actions in Rem

[3] Quasi in Rem Actions

§ 132.06 Procedure for Challenging Personal Jurisdiction

[1] Motion to Quash Service of Summons

[2] Opposition to Motion to Quash

[3] Review

§ 132.07 Invalidity of Judgment Rendered Without In Personam Jurisdiction

§ 132.08 Lack of Jurisdiction

§ 132.09 Excess of Jurisdiction

§ 132.10 Jurisdiction to Determine Jurisdiction

§ 132.11 Doctrine of Inconvenient Forum

§ 132.12 Effect of Party Being a California Resident

§ 132.13 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 132.14 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§ 132.15 Page Limits on Memoranda

§§ 132.16-133.19 [Reserved]

§ 132.20 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground of Immunity--Defendant Has Diplomatic Immunity [22 U.S.C. § 254d]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Diplomatic Immunity to Suit

§ 132.21 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground of Immunity--Defendant Is California Legislator Immune to Civil Process [Cal. Const., art. IV, § 14]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Members of United States Congress

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity of California Legislator

§ 132.22 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground of Immunity--Defendant Is Present in California in Response to Subpoena or Order to Attend and Testify in Criminal Case

[Penal Code §§ 1334.4, 1334.5] or on or after Waiver of Extradition [Penal Code § 1555]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

§ 132.23 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground of Immunity--Defendant Is Indian Tribal Casino

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity of Indian Tribal Casino

§§ 132.24-132.29 [Reserved]

§ 132.30 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Immunity--Parties and Witnesses in Civil Actions Are Not Immune to Service of Summons While in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Abrogation of Nonresident Witness Immunity

[b] Abrogation of Nonresident Party Immunity

§ 132.31 [Reserved]

§ 132.32 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Immunity--Tribal Immunity Has Been Waived

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tribal Immunity From Suit Is Waived When a Party Undertakes to Avail Himself or Herself of the Services of a State Court.

§§ 132.33-132.39 [Reserved]

§ 132.40 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Extension of Time to Plead

[d] Substituted and Constructive Service Distinguished

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[f] Related Points and Authorities

[g] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Compliance with Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required

[b] Strict Compliance Necessary for Substituted or Constructive Service

[c] Requirement That Substituted Service Be Reasonably Calculated to Give Actual Notice

[d] Defendant Sued in Representative Capacity, Served by Publication, and Papers Mailed Are Directed to Defendant in Individual Capacity

[e] Service of Summons by Party Is Void

[f] General Appearance After Default Judgment Does Not Validate Defective Service

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Compliance with Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required

[b] Strict Compliance Necessary for Substituted or Constructive Service

§ 132.41 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--Service on Corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service on Corporation's Purported General Manager

[b] Substituted Service on Foreign Corporation

§ 132.42 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--Service on Minor [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.60]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Summons on Minor

§ 132.43 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--Service on Nonresident Motorist [Veh. Code §§ 17454-17456]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substituted Service on Nonresident Motorist or Deceased Nonresident Motorist's Personal Representative

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Substituted Service on Nonresident Motorist or Deceased Nonresident Motorist's Personal Representative.

§ 132.44 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--Substituted Service on Individual Defendant or Service by Publication Ineffective When Reasonable Diligence Requirement Has Not Been Satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.20(b), 415.50(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reasonable Diligence Required for Substituted Service

[b] Reasonable Diligence Required for Service by Publication

[c] Effect of Failure to Exercise Reasonable Diligence

[d] Ignoring Obvious Avenues to Find Party Constitutes Failure to Exercise Reasonable Diligence

§ 132.45 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirement--Service of Summons Was Incomplete

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Service Outside California

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Postal Service Return Receipt Is Insufficient

[b] Service by Mail on Nonresident

§ 132.46 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Summons Was Substantially Defective

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Required Contents of Summons

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[f] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Substantially Defective Summons

[b] Lack of Statutory Notice in Summons Served on Individual on Behalf of Corporation or Unincorporated Association

[c] Motion to Quash Is Appropriate to Test Whether Complaint for Unlawful Detainer States Cause for Relief Supporting Reduced Time for Response to Summons

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Service of Substantially Defective Summons

§§ 132.47-132.59 [Reserved]

§ 132.60 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Person Served on Behalf of Corporation Had

Ostensible Authority or Was General Manager of Corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10; Corp. Code § 2110]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Process Act to Be Liberally Construed

[b] Factual Determination

[c] Service on Corporate Agent With Ostensible Authority to Accept Service Is Sufficient

[d] Service on General Manager

[e] When Individual May Be Regarded as General Manager of Foreign Corporation

[f] Activities of Agent of Foreign Corporation

[g] Proof of Service

§ 132.61 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Service on Person in Charge of Defendant's Office [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Person to Be Served

[c] When Service Is Deemed Complete

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service Effective Although Defendant Rendered Physical Service Impossible

§ 132.62 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Service at Defendant's Home, Business, or Mailing Address [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Person to Be Served

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Constitutional Validity of Substituted Service

[b] Reasonable Diligence Requirement Satisfied

§ 132.63 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Service on Defendant's Agent [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Specific Authorization Unnecessary

§ 132.64 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Service Pursuant to Direction of Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service in Dissolution Proceeding

§ 132.65 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Summons Substantially Complied With Statutory Requirements [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance With Statutory Provisions

§§ 132.66-132.69 [Reserved]

§ 132.70 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Federal Actions

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement of Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

[b] Due Process of Law Required

[c] Due Process Requires Reasonable Notice and Minimum Contacts to Support Exercise of Personal Jurisdiction

[d] Minimum Contacts Requirement

[e] Minimum Contacts Requirement Applies to Actions in Personam, in Rem, and Quasi in Rem

[f] Minimum Contacts Requirement Applies to Both Individual and Corporate Defendants

[g] Effect of Minimum Contacts Requirement

[h] Minimum Contacts Lacking When Defendant Has No Contacts With State

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirement of Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

[b] Due Process Requires Reasonable Notice and Minimum Contacts to Support Exercise of Personal Jurisdiction

[c] Minimum Contacts Requirement

[d] Minimum Contacts Requirement Applies to Both Individual and Corporate Defendants

[e] Minimum Contacts Lacking When Defendant Has No Contacts With State

§ 132.71 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of General Jurisdiction Is Improper When Nonresident Defendant Has Ceased Doing Business in State

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Jurisdiction Terminates When Nonresident Ceases to Do Business in State

§ 132.72 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Minimal Burden on Defendant in Defending Action Is Irrelevant

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Fact That Burden of Defending Is Minimal Is Irrelevant When Minimum Contacts Requirement Is Not Satisfied

§ 132.73 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Unilateral Activity of Third Person Is Irrelevant

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unilateral Activity of Third Parties

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Unilateral Activity of Third Parties

§ 132.74 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Insufficient Foreseeability That Defendant Would Be Haled Into California Court in Action Based on Alleged Defective Product

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Foreseeability" Element of Due Process Analysis in Action Based on Defective Product

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] "Foreseeability" Element of Due Process Analysis in Action Based on Defective Product

§ 132.75 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Plaintiff Has Burden to Establish That Minimum Contacts Exist

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Showing Proper Basis for Personal Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Burden of Showing Proper Basis for Personal Jurisdiction

§ 132.76 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--General Requirements of Purposeful Availment by Defendant and Relationship Among Defendant, Forum, and Cause of Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] General and Limited Jurisdiction

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Quality and Nature of Defendant's Activity

[b] Assessment of Relationship Among Defendant, Forum, and Litigation

[c] Test for Limited Jurisdiction; Purposeful Availment

[d] Effect of Purposeful Availment Requirement

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Assessment of Relationship Among Defendant, Forum, and Litigation

[b] Test for Limited Jurisdiction; Purposeful Availment

§ 132.77 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Exercise of Jurisdiction Must Be Reasonable and Fair

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Evaluation of Factors

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reasonableness and Fairness Requirement

[b] Relevant Factors

[c] Balancing of Conveniences for Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction

[d] When Defendant Is Foreign National

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Reasonableness and Fairness Requirement

[b] Relevant Factors

[c] Balancing of Conveniences for Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction

[d] When Defendant Is Foreign National

§ 132.78 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Defendant Corporation's Sole Contacts With California Are Insubstantial and Unrelated to Controversy

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Corporation's Contacts Too Insubstantial

§ 132.79 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Designation of Agent for Service of Process [Corp. Code § 2105] Insufficient by Itself

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Designation of Agent for Service of Process Insufficient by Itself

§ 132.80 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Presence of Defendant's Property Unrelated to Action Is Insufficient by Itself

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Assertion of Jurisdiction Based Solely on Presence of Property Unrelated to Action

§ 132.81 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court

Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Defendant Is Merely Out-of-State Customer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Out-of-State Customers

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Out-of-State Customers

§ 132.82 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Individual Defendant Is Merely Officer or Director and Stockholder of Defendant Foreign Corporation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Officer or Director and Stockholder of Foreign Corporation

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Officer or Director and Stockholder of Foreign Corporation

§ 132.83 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Advertising in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Advertising in California

[4] Additional Authorities

§ 132.84 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Foreign Corporation Is Parent of California Subsidiary

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Foreign Corporation Is Parent of California Subsidiary

[4] Additional Authorities

§ 132.85 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Contract With Out-of-State Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contracting With Out-of-State Party

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contracting With Out-of-State Party

§ 132.86 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Mere Placement of Product in Stream of Commerce

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Placing Product Into Stream of Commerce

§ 132.87 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Activities of Independent Nonexclusive Sales Representative

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Activities of Independent Nonexclusive Sales Representatives

§ 132.88 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Defendant's Out-of-State Act Did Not Cause Sufficient Effect in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Did Not Intend to Cause Effect in California and Effect in California Was Not Reasonably Foreseeable

[b] Assertion of Jurisdiction Based on Defendant's Out-of-State Act Would Be Unreasonable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Defendant Did Not Intend to Cause Effect in California and Effect in California Was Not Reasonably Foreseeable

[b] Assertion of Jurisdiction Based on Defendant's Out-of-State Act Would Be Unreasonable

§ 132.89 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Passive Web Site on Internet

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Creating Passive Website, by Itself, Insufficient to Confer Specific Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

§ 132.90 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--Exercise of Limited Jurisdiction Is Improper--Long Distance Follow-up Care by Nonresident Health Care Provider Who Treated California Resident Out of State

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Provision of Follow-up Care by Out-of-State Health Care Provider

§§ 132.91-132.99 [Reserved]

§ 132.100 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Bases for Jurisdiction

[i] Judicial Council Comments to Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10

[ii] Jurisdiction Over Plaintiff

[iii] Jurisdiction Over Party Who Intrudes Voluntarily Into Lawsuit

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Scope of Court's Personal Jurisdiction

[b] Minimum Contacts Requirement

[c] "Contacts" Means "Basis of Jurisdiction"

[d] Bases of Jurisdiction Over Individual Defendant

[e] General and Limited Personal Jurisdiction

[f] When Court May Exercise General Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

[g] When Court May Exercise Limited Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

[h] Defendant's Economic Activity in Forum

[i] Defendant's Purposeful Direction of Act Having Effect in Forum

[j] Defendant's Purposeful Interjection into Forum

[k] Effect of Contractual Choice of Law Provision

[l] Effect of Defendant's Purposeful Availment of Privilege of Conducting Activities in Forum

[m] Contacts Resulting From Defendant's Own Actions

[n] Requisite Minimum Contacts Can Be Electronic

[o] Defendant's Burden of Proof After Plaintiff Has Established Basis for Jurisdiction

[p] Plaintiff's Lack of Contacts Irrelevant

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Scope of Court's Personal Jurisdiction

[b] Minimum Contacts Requirement

[c] When Court May Exercise General Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

[d] When Court May Exercise Limited Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

[e] Defendant's Economic Activity in Forum

[f] Defendant's Purposeful Direction of Act Having Effect in Forum

[g] Defendant's Burden of Proof After Plaintiff Has Established Basis for Jurisdiction

§ 132.101 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant Was Present in California When Served

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Presence as Basis of Jurisdiction

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant's Presence in California Is Basis of Personal Jurisdiction

[b] Type of Action in Which Presence Is Basis for Jurisdiction

§ 132.102 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Individual Defendant Is Citizen or Resident of or Has Domicile in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Individual Defendant

[i] Domicile

[ii] Residence

[iii] Citizenship

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Domicile

[b] Domicile in California When Cause of Action Arose

§ 132.103 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant Domestic Corporation or Other Entity Was Incorporated or Formed in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Domestic Corporations

[c] Partnership or Other Unincorporated Association

§ 132.104 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant Foreign Corporation or Other Entity Was Served Through Agent Designated to Receive Service of Process

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Other Minimum Contacts May Be Required

[c] Designation of Agent and Service of Process

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service on Nonqualified Foreign Corporation

§ 132.105 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant Has Consented to Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Effect of Consent

[c] Sufficiency of Consent

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Consent to Jurisdiction by Competent Individual

[b] Consent to Jurisdiction by Foreign Corporation

[c] Consent by Foreign Corporation Transacting Unauthorized Intrastate Business

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Consent to Jurisdiction by Competent Individual

§ 132.106 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant Has Made General Appearance in Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Effect of General Appearance

[c] Special and General Appearances Distinguished

[d] Continuation of Jurisdiction

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Appearance Is Equivalent to Valid Service

[b] General Appearance Made By Recognizing Court's Authority to Proceed

[c] General Appearance Made By Actions Undertaken by the Defendant While a Motion to Quash or Writ of Mandate Was Pending Which Recognized the Trial Court's Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] General Appearance Is Equivalent to Valid Service

§ 132.107 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Cause of Action Arose From Defendant's Act in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] State's Interest in Torts

[c] Nontort Action

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tort Action Against Nonresident Individual

[b] Nontort Action Against Nonresident Individual

[c] Tort Action Against Foreign Corporation

[d] Tort Action Arose From Contract Executed in California

[e] Tortious Act of Corporate Officer or Director

[f] Tortious Act of Counsel for Foreign Corporation

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tort Action Against Nonresident Individual

[b] Tort Action Arose From Contract Executed in California

[c] Tortious Act of Corporate Officer or Director

§ 132.108 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant's Out-of-State Act Caused Effect in California and Exercise of Jurisdiction Is Otherwise Reasonable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Reasonableness of Jurisdiction

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect Caused in California by Individual

[b] Effect Caused in California by Foreign Corporation

[c] Purpose of Rule

[d] Types of Effects Caused in California by Acts Done Elsewhere

[e] Act Done With Intention of Causing Effect in California

[f] Act Done With Reasonable Foreseeability That It Would Cause Effect in California

[g] Act Done Without Intent to Cause Effect and Without Reasonable Foreseeability That It Would Cause Effect in California

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Effect Caused in California by Individual

[b] Effect Caused in California by Foreign Corporation

[c] Act Done With Intention of Causing Effect in California

[d] Act Done With Reasonable Foreseeability That It Would Cause Effect in California

§ 132.109 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Cause of Action Is Related to Thing Located in California That Is Owned, Used, or Possessed by Defendant

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Immovable Things

[c] Chattels

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Individual's Ownership, Use, or Possession of Thing Located in California

§ 132.110 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant's Business Activity in California--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Doing Business

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Foreign Corporation Conducts Continuous and Substantial Business in California and Exercise of Jurisdiction is Reasonable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Cause of Action Against Foreign Defendants Arose From Business Done in California

§ 132.111 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant's Business Activity in California--Contract Made and To Be Performed in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract Made and to Be Performed in California

[b] Recovery of Attorney Fees for Service Performed in California

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract Made and to Be Performed in California

§ 132.112 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant's Business Activity in California--Life Insurance Contract

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Life Insurance Contract

§ 132.113 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant's Business Activity in California--Defective Product Sold in State

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defective Product Sold in State

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Defective Product Sold in State

§ 132.114 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant's Business Activity in California--Foreign Parent Corporation or Nonresident Stockholder and Director Is Alter Ego of Corporation Subject to Court's Jurisdiction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Corporate Defendant Is Alter Ego of Foreign Parent Corporation

[b] Alter Ego Test Applies to Determine Issue of Control

[c] Corporate Defendant Is Alter Ego of Nonresident Stockholders

§ 132.115 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant's Business Activity in California--Officer, Director, or Stockholder of Foreign Corporation Is Doing Business in Individual Capacity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Is Doing Business in California in Capacity as Individual as Well as in Representative Capacity

§ 132.116 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Sufficient Basis for Jurisdiction Exists--Defendant's Business Activity in California--Out-of-State Law Firm Practiced Law in California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Out-of-state Law Firm Was Doing Business in California

§§ 132.117-132.119 [Reserved]

§ 132.120 Supporting Ex Parte Application for Order for Publication of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defendant Cannot With Reasonable Diligence Be Served in Another Manner

[b] A Cause of Action Exists Against Defendant/Defendant Is Necessary or Proper Party to Action

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Defendant Cannot With Reasonable Diligence Be Served in Another Manner

§§ 132.121-132.129 [Reserved]

§ 132.130 Supporting Motion to Stay or Dismiss Action or Proceeding for Inconvenient Forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(2)]--Factors Weigh in Favor of Stay or Dismissal

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Weight of Factors

[c] Additional Factors in Action Against California Manufacturer by Foreign Plaintiff

[d] Relationship of Personal Jurisdiction and Inconvenient Forum on Jurisdiction

[e] Related Uses

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[g] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Considerations of Court

[b] Factors to Be Considered And Balancing of Factors

[c] Specific Factors Enumerated

[d] Relative Financial Condition of Parties

[e] Neutral Factors

[f] Other Factors

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Factors to Be Considered

[b] Specific Factors Enumerated

§§ 132.131-132.139 [Reserved]

§ 132.140 Opposing Motion to Stay or Dismiss Action or Proceeding for Inconvenient Forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(2)]--No Suitable Alternative Forum or Factors Weigh Against Stay or Dismissal

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Suitable Alternative Forum Is Not Available

[b] When Weighing of Private and Public Interest Factors Is Proper; Burden of Proof

[c] Effect of Plaintiff's Choice of Forum

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Suitable Alternative Forum Is Not Available

[b] Specific Factors Enumerated

[c] Effect of Plaintiff's Choice of Forum

§ 132.141 Opposing Motion to Stay or Dismiss Action or Proceeding for Inconvenient Forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(2)]--Law of Alternative Forum Less Favorable to Plaintiff Than Law of California

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Law of Alternative Forum Provides Remedy Less Favorable to Plaintiff Than That of Forum

§§ 132.142-132.149 [Reserved]

§ 132.150 Supporting or Opposing Motion to Stay or Dismiss Action or Proceeding for Inconvenient Forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(2)]--Application of Factors to Be Considered

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Balanced Analysis of Factors Is Required

[4] Additional Authorities

§ 132.151 Supporting or Opposing Motion to Stay or Dismiss Action or Proceeding for Inconvenient Forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(2)]--Ruling on Motion Is in Court's Discretion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discretion of Court

[b] Discretion Not Arbitrary

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Discretion of Court

§ 132.152 Supporting or Opposing Motion to Stay or Dismiss Action or Proceeding for Inconvenient Forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(2)]--Stay Versus Dismissal

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dismissal Is Exceptional Remedy

[b] Dismissal Required

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Dismissal Is Exceptional Remedy

§ 132.153 Supporting or Opposing Motion to Stay or Dismiss Action or Proceeding for Inconvenient Forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(2)]--Doctrine Is Drastic Remedy to Be Used Cautiously

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authority

[a] Doctrine Is Drastic Remedy

§ 132.154 Supporting or Opposing Motion to Stay or Dismiss Action or Proceeding for Inconvenient Forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30(a), 418.10(a)(2)]--Evidentiary Showing Concerning Alternative Forum

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Evidentiary Showing Concerning Alternative Forum Required

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.01

§ 132.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses jurisdiction over the person of a party to a lawsuit. Forms in Part II include the following:

- Subpart A includes forms of memoranda of points and authorities supporting [§§ 132.20-132.22] and opposing [§ 132.30] a motion to quash service of summons or to dismiss the action on the ground that the defendant is either immune to suit or immune to service of process.

- Subpart B includes forms of memoranda supporting [§§ 132.40-132.43] and opposing [§§ 132.60-132.65] a motion to quash service of summons on the ground that service or the summons was substantially defective.

- Subpart C includes forms of memoranda supporting [§§ 132.70-132.90] and opposing [§§ 132.100-132.116] a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction on the ground that there is not a sufficient basis for the court to exercise personal jurisdiction over a particular defendant, as well as a form of memorandum for use in supporting an ex parte application for an order for publication of summons [§ 132.120].

- Subpart D contains forms of memoranda of points and authorities supporting [§§ 132.130, 132.150-132.154] and opposing [§§ 132.140, 132.150-132.154] a motion for an order staying or dismissing the action on the ground of inconvenient forum.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionJurisdictional SourcesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.02

§ 132.02 Governing Law

Personal jurisdiction is governed generally by the due process clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution, Cal. Const. art. I, § 7, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.10-418.11, and by case law.

The guarantee of "due process of law" is set forth in the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution and of Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a).

Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 sets forth the basis on which California courts may exercise jurisdiction. The Judicial Council Comment to this section, cited extensively in this part and entitled "Bases of Judicial Jurisdiction," is set out in West's Annot. Code Civ. Proc. (1973 ed.), following § 410.10. Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50 provides generally that, unless otherwise provided by statute, a court has jurisdiction over a party from the time summons is served under Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. or that party makes a general appearance, and such jurisdiction continues throughout subsequent proceedings in the action.

Code Civ. Proc. § 410.40 allows an action to be maintained in California against a foreign corporation pursuant to a choice-of-California-law provision in any contract, agreement, or undertaking that relates to a transaction involving $1,000,000, or more and that contains a provision by which the foreign corporation agrees to submit to the jurisdiction of the California courts. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.60 and 410.70 set out additional provisions concerning a court's jurisdiction over trustees and stockholders of a defunct corporation and persons liable on a contract, respectively.

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.10-412.30 govern the content and issuance of summons. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40 govern the persons, including corporations, on whom a summons may be served and the manner of service of summons.

Jurisdiction over and service of process on corporations is also governed by Corp. Code §§ 1502-1505, 1700-1702, 2104-2105, 2107, 2110-2111, 2114, 2117, 2203.

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10 and 1005(a)(4), (b) govern motions to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction. Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.4 also applies to such motions when made in a proceeding for unlawful detainer, forcible entry, or forcible detainer. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(d) and 418.11 specify certain acts by a defendant that do not constitute a general appearance.

Immunity to civil process is governed by diverse federal and state statutes. The more important of these are set out in forms in Subpart A, § 132.20 et seq.

Motions to stay or dismiss an action for inconvenient forum are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30, 418.10, and 1005(a)(13), (b). A special provision governs these motions when made in a special proceeding for unlawful detainer, forcible entry, or forcible detainer (Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.4).

Review of any superior court order granting or denying a motion to change the place of trial is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 400 and by case law. Review of the denial by any California trial court of a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction over the defendant or to stay or dismiss an action for inconvenient forum is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionJurisdictional SourcesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.03

§ 132.03 Terminology Used in This Part

As used in this part, the terms "in personam jurisdiction" and "personal jurisdiction" are synonymous. The words "limited" and "specific," when referring to jurisdiction, are also used synonymously [see, e.g., Sinatra v. National Enquirer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 854 F.2d 1191, 1195 ; Hirsch v. Blue Cross, Blue Shield of Kansas City (9th Cir. 1986) 800 F.2d 1474, 1477] .

The more common spelling "domicile" is used in this part in lieu of the spelling "domicil," except when quoting another source.

The term "domestic corporation" is used to mean a corporation organized and existing under the laws of California. The term "foreign corporation" is used to mean either a corporation organized under the laws of a sister state or foreign country. The terms "out-of-state corporation" and "nonresident corporation" are used occasionally in this part to mean a foreign corporation organized and existing under the laws of a sister state. The term "nonresident defendant" may, depending on context, mean either a natural person whose residence or domicile is other than California or a foreign corporation or other foreign entity.

The terms "forum non conveniens" and "inconvenient forum" are synonymous, as are the terms "forum conveniens" and "convenient forum."

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.04

§ 132.04 Jurisdiction to Render Judgment in Personam, in Rem, or Quasi in Rem

[1] In General

In order to render a valid judgment, a court must not only have proper subject-matter jurisdiction, that is, jurisdiction to grant the type of relief sought (see generally Chapter 133); it must also have jurisdiction of the person or thing bound by the judgment, such that the judgment can be properly executed against that person or thing. Thus, civil actions and proceedings are classified as "in personam," "in rem," or "quasi in rem," depending on the nature of the judgment sought, that is, whether the judgment imposes an obligation on a particular person, a particular thing, or a particular person's rights in a particular thing, respectively [see Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] .

With regard to jurisdiction of persons or things, a California court may exercise its jurisdiction on any basis not inconsistent with the Constitution of California or of the United States [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10]. Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 is thus a "long-arm" statute [see, e.g., Asahi Metal Industry Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 480 U.S. 102, 106, 107 S. Ct. 1026, 94 L. Ed. 2d 92] , providing state courts with the broadest possible exercise of jurisdiction, limited only by constitutional considerations of due process as defined by the U.S. Supreme Court [see Pacific Atlantic Trading Co. v. M/V Main Exp. (9th Cir. 1985) 758 F.2d 1325, 1327 ; Sibley v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 442, 445, 128 Cal. Rptr. 34, 546 P.2d 322] . For further discussion regarding the effect on jurisdiction of procedural due process considerations, see § 132.04[2]. For further discussion of the means of acquiring jurisdiction in personam, in rem, or quasi in rem, see respectively, §§ 132.05[1], 132.05[2], and 132.05[3].

[2] Requirement of Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard

The exercise of jurisdiction over a party or party's property is limited by the due process clauses of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution. Notice and opportunity to be heard are essential ingredients of due process, and this is true whether the action is in personam, in rem, or quasi in rem [see Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 U.S. 235, 245, 78 S. Ct. 1228, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1283 ; In re Raner (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 635, 642-643, 30 Cal. Rptr. 814, 381 P.2d 638 ; see also discussion under § 132.04[1]]. Hence, under the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, a state may not exercise judicial jurisdiction over a person, although the person is subject to its judicial jurisdiction, unless a reasonable method is employed to give the person notice of the action and unless the person is afforded a reasonable opportunity to be heard [see Restatement (Second), Conflict of Laws, § 25]. Notice of a civil action or proceeding is normally given by the service of a summons with a copy of the complaint or other pleading [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40].

The methods of giving notice may vary between actions in personam on the one hand and actions in rem or quasi in rem on the other. For further discussion, see respectively §§ 132.05[1], 132.05[2], and 132.05[3].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionJurisdictional SourcesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.05

§ 132.05 Procedure for Acquiring Jurisdiction Over Person or Thing

[1] Actions in Personam

If the court's jurisdiction is based on its authority over the defendant's person, the action and judgment are denominated in personam and the court can impose a personal obligation on the defendant in favor of the plaintiff [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] . In other words, an action that seeks to impose a personal liability or obligation on the defendant in favor of another is an action in personam, and a judgment in personam is one that imposes a personal liability or obligation on one person in favor of another [Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 U.S. 235, 246 n.12, 78 S. Ct. 1228, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1283] .

Common examples of in personam judgments are those that impose a contract or tort liability on the defendant in favor of the plaintiff by awarding the plaintiff a sum of money. Other examples include an action to enforce a duty of support or some other personal obligation growing out of the parent-child relationship [Hartford v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 447, 454, 304 P.2d 1 ; see also Kulko v. California Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 91, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132 ; Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 798-799, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477.] .

To impose personal liability, the court must have jurisdiction over the person of the defendant [see Pennoyer v. Neff (1878) 95 U.S. 714, 732-733, 24 L. Ed. 565 (leading case); see also Kulko v. California Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 91, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132 ; Hartford v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 447, 454, 304 P.2d 1 ; Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 799, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 1917].

If a California court has a proper basis for exercising personal jurisdiction over a defendant, the court acquires such jurisdiction by the service on that defendant of a summons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a)], or by defendant's general appearance in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a); Neihaus v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 340, 345, 137 Cal. Rptr. 905] .

The method of service of summons necessary to acquire personal jurisdiction is generally personal service on the defendant, substituted service (delivery of summons to third person for defendant), or service by mail. The statutes specifying the type of notice required in a given action, as well as the service statutes, must be consulted and complied with. In the case of substituted service, the form of service must be reasonably calculated to give an interested party actual notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard in order that the traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice implicit in due process are satisfied [Zirbes v. Stratton (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1416, 232 Cal. Rptr. 653] .

Conversely, a defendant may challenge the court's exercise of personal jurisdiction by a motion to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10; see also discussion under § 132.06.

Jurisdiction of the court over the parties and the subject matter of an action continues throughout subsequent proceedings in an action, and Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 continues the law governing the acquisition of judicial jurisdiction by a California court [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)] and the continuation of such jurisdiction throughout all subsequent proceedings which arise out of the original cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(b) ; Goldman v. Simpson (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 255, 263, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 729] (continuing jurisdiction to effectuate the statutory renewal of a money judgment, and the renewal is not subject to attack on the ground that the debtor has insufficient personal contacts with California to establish personal jurisdiction when the renewal is entered; once acquired, jurisdiction is not defeated by subsequent events which might have prevented jurisdiction had they occurred before personal service of the action was made).

There is nothing unreasonable about subjecting a defendant to the jurisdiction of California courts in an independent action to renew a prior judgment; and the passage of time between an original California litigation and a revival action, during which defendant has no additional contacts with California, does not defeat personal jurisdiction as concerns the enforcement because this discourages judgment debtors from evading legal obligations imposed by a judgment of this state's courts by simply packing up their assets and leaving the jurisdiction [The Cadle Co. II v. Fiscus (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1232, 1240, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 238].

[2] Actions in Rem

An action or proceeding in rem is one which seeks to affect the rights of all persons in certain property within the state and jurisdiction of the court [Title etc. Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan (1906) 150 Cal. 289, 306-307, 88 P. 356 ; In re Estate of Davis (1902) 136 Cal. 590, 596, 69 P. 412] . Such proceedings exist only when authorized by statute, and the "res" which is to be affected thereby, is the defendant, and must be brought before the court either by seizure or by publication of notice [Lee v. Silva (1925) 197 Cal. 364, 371, 240 P. 1015 ; Page v. W. W. Chase Co. (1904) 145 Cal. 578, 583, 79 P. 278] . The basis of in rem jurisdiction is the presence of the subject property or the status involved within the territorial jurisdiction of the forum state [see Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 U.S. 235, 246, 78 S. Ct. 1228, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1283] .

Examples of actions in rem are probate proceedings, the res being the estate of the decedent which is to be administered and distributed with regard to the rights of creditors, devisees, and all the world [Abels v. Frey (1932) 126 Cal. App. 48, 53-54, 14 P.2d 594 ; see also Estate of Neilson (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 733, 748, 22 Cal. Rptr. 1, 371 P.2d 745 (proceeding to determine heirship); Estate of Neubauer (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 740, 745, 321 P.2d 741 (probate of will); Estate of Plaut (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 424, 428, 164 P.2d 765 (will contest); Lilienkamp v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 293, 298, 93 P.2d 1008 (distribution of estate, partial distribution)]. Jurisdiction is established when the appropriate petition has been filed and the notice required by statute given [Estate of Wise (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 376, 382, 210 P.2d 497 ; Lilienkamp v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 293, 298, 93 P.2d 1008] .

Other examples are actions or proceedings that determine the status of parties in family law proceedings [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Hanley (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1119, 245 Cal. Rptr. 441 (marriage status); Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 798, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477 (custody of children present in California)]. The res that is the subject of adjudication in these cases is an intangible, and jurisdiction is exercised not by taking custody of a tangible article, but by serving process (in person or by publication) on the other spouse [Mungia v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 280, 284, 37 Cal. Rptr. 285] . However, if the object of the action or proceeding is to fasten a relationship on the defendant, rather than to sever a relationship, the action is in personam rather than in rem, and personal jurisdiction over the defendant is required [see Hartford v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 447, 453-457, 304 P.2d 1 (action to declare defendant plaintiff's father)].

In actions in rem, personal jurisdiction over the person whose rights are affected is ordinarily not required, but the court must have jurisdiction over the res, that is, the thing which is the subject of the action [see People v. $6,500 U.S. Currency (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1542, 1546, 264 Cal. Rptr. 294; In re Marriage of Hanley (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1119, 245 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; and Code Civ. Proc. § 1917].

Because in rem jurisdiction is based on the court's power over property within its territory, the effect of a judgment in rem is limited to the property that supports jurisdiction and does not impose a personal liability on the property owner, since he or she is not before the court [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] . A judgment in rem, thus, is one that affects the interests of all persons in designated property [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199 n.17, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 ; Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 U.S. 235, 246 n.12, 78 S. Ct. 1228, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1283 ; Title etc. Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan (1906) 150 Cal. 289, 306-308, 88 P. 356] .

With respect to in rem actions, in which service is frequently made by publication or posting, the following discussion is pertinent: "The statute ... involved [in Title etc. Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan (1906) 150 Cal. 289, 317-318, 88 P. 356] authorized an in rem proceeding to establish and quiet title to property whenever public records were destroyed, and it provided, among other things, for personal service upon adverse claimants when the plaintiff knew or had been informed of them. The court said that the evident purpose was to secure, so far as possible, actual notice of the proceeding to all known claimants, and that where a statute is careful to provide for actual notice to the known claimants, it should not be construed as intended to permit a plaintiff to willfully or negligently close his eyes to the means of knowledge and thus secure a decree by publication and posting alone as against persons whose identity he might have learned by the use of due effort. On the basis of this reasoning the court held that the statute, properly construed, imposed upon the plaintiff the duty of inquiry as to the names and residences of all persons who might claim an adverse interest in the property and that it required the plaintiff to designate and serve all persons whom, with reasonable diligence, he could ascertain to be claimants" [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 556-557, 305 P.2d 20 ; see also Cavin Memorial Corp. v. Requa (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 345, 357, 85 Cal. Rptr. 107 (judgment in quiet title action is void on its face when service was by publication and the affidavit for the order for publication is devoid of any facts showing that due diligence was exercised to make personal service on the defendants)].

[3] Quasi in Rem Actions

Quasi in rem jurisdiction is, like jurisdiction in rem (discussed under § 132.05[2]), based on the court's power over property within its territory, and the judgment likewise is limited in its effect to the property that supports jurisdiction and does not impose a personal liability on the property owner, since he or she is not before the court [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683] . A judgment quasi in rem affects the interests of particular persons in designated property [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199 n.17, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 ; Title etc. Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan (1906) 150 Cal. 289, 308, 88 P. 356] . As in the case of an in rem action, the court must have jurisdiction over the res, that is the thing (property) which is the subject of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1917].

There are two types of quasi in rem actions or proceedings. In the first type the plaintiff is seeking to secure a preexisting claim in the subject property and to extinguish or establish the nonexistence of similar interests of particular persons [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199 n.17, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 ; Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 U.S. 235, 246 n.12, 78 S. Ct. 1228, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1283] . Examples are actions to foreclose a street assessment lien [Lee v. Silva (1925) 197 Cal. 364, 369, 240 P. 1015] and actions to quiet title to land [see Park v. Powers (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 590, 598, 42 P.2d 75] .

In the second type of quasi in rem action, the plaintiff seeks to apply what he or she concedes to be the property of the defendant to the satisfaction of a claim the plaintiff has against the defendant [Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199 n.17, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 ; Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 U.S. 235, 246 n.12, 78 S. Ct. 1228, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1283] .

Before the second type of quasi in rem jurisdiction may be obtained, it is essential that some property of the defendant be actually subjected to the court's control before judgment by a procedure such as attachment, garnishment (a form of attachment), or receivership [Fount Wip, Inc. v. Golstein (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 184, 189, 108 Cal. Rptr. 732 . For examples of this type of jurisdiction, see Goodwine v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 481, 484, 47 Cal. Rptr. 201, 407 P.2d 1 (attachment); Nichols v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 589, 599, 36 P.2d 380 (receivership)]. In addition, the defendant's interest in the property must be a present interest [Fount Wip, Inc. v. Golstein (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 184, 189, 108 Cal. Rptr. 732] , and the property must be of a kind subject to one of the provisional remedies mentioned above.

For example, contingent obligations may be so ephemeral as not to be subject to attachment, and their purported attachment cannot confer quasi in rem jurisdiction. Thus, an insurer's obligation under a motor vehicle policy to indemnify and defend its insured is so contingent and uncertain that it is not subject to garnishment and attachment and cannot be the basis of quasi in rem jurisdiction in an action arising out of an automobile accident involving the insured vehicle [see Javorek v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 629, 632-647, 131 Cal. Rptr. 768, 552 P.2d 728 ; see also Neihaus v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 340, 344-345, 137 Cal. Rptr. 905] .

If the court would not have jurisdiction of the defendant properly served with summons on the underlying cause of action because of the defendant's insufficient minimum contacts with the state to satisfy the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution[see, e.g., International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 316, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95] , the court cannot obtain quasi in rem jurisdiction by attaching or garnishing defendant's property in the forum state or putting a receiver in charge of it. That is, for a court to obtain quasi in rem jurisdiction over a defendant's property in the state, the defendant must have or have had certain minimum contacts with the state such that maintenance of the underlying action in the state would not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice [see Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 (holding unconstitutional Delaware's sequestration statute (Delaware Code, Title 10, § 366 (1975)) authorizing court to compel the appearance of a nonresident defendant by the seizure of defendant's property within the state and sold under court order to pay plaintiff's demand)].

Because process can be served on a defendant or respondent anywhere in the world under California's long-arm statute [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.10, 413.10, 415.10-415.50], it would appear that the use of this second type of quasi in rem jurisdiction, in view of Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 , would be limited to cases where a nonresident defendant, having the required minimum contacts with California, has property in California subject to attachment, garnishment, or receivership in the action, but his or her present whereabouts are unknown or he or she is a California domiciliary or resident who has concealed him or herself to avoid the service of process.

If the plaintiff can, in such case, subject the defendant's real or personal California property to the court's control by the provisional remedy of attachment, garnishment, or receivership, the action can proceed to judgment and the claim can be satisfied to the extent possible out of the property seized [see Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 ; Goodwine v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 481, 483, 47 Cal. Rptr. 201, 407 P.2d 1] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem

ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.06

§ 132.06 Procedure for Challenging Personal Jurisdiction

[1] Motion to Quash Service of Summons

On or before the last day of the time to plead or within such further time as the court for good cause allows, a defendant may serve and file a notice of motion to quash service of summons on the ground the court lacks jurisdiction over him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)]. Note that a defendant may move alternatively or simultaneously for a stay or dismissal on the ground of inconvenient forum [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a); for further discussion and forms of memoranda relating to inconvenient forum, see § 132.11, and Part II, D, § 132.30 et seq.]. If appropriate, the defendant may also alternatively or simultaneously move to dismiss for delay in prosecution [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3); for discussion and forms relating to motions to dismiss for delay in prosecution, see Ch. 90, Dismissal].

Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e) provides that a defendant or cross-defendant may make a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 and simultaneously answer, demur, or move to strike the complaint or cross-complaint. Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 1014, no act by a party who makes a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10, including filing an answer, demurrer, or motion to strike constitutes an appearance, unless the court denies the motion made under this section. If the court denies the motion made under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10, the defendant or cross-defendant is not deemed to have generally appeared until entry of the order denying the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(1)]. If the motion made under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 is denied and the defendant or cross-defendant petitions for a writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c), the defendant or cross-defendant is not deemed to have generally appeared until the proceedings on the writ petition have finally concluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(2)]. Failure to make a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 at the time of filing a demurrer or motion to strike constitutes a waiver of the issues of lack of personal jurisdiction, inadequacy of process, inadequacy of service of process, inconvenient forum, and delay in prosecution [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(3)].

A notice of motion to quash service of summons should be supported by affidavits, or declarations under penalty of perjury, setting forth the facts necessary to support the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. 1005(b), 2009; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1300, 3.1306], and a memorandum setting out the applicable law [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113].

A defendant may move to quash service of summons on several grounds. First, the defendant may object on the ground that, by operation of a state or federal statute or constitutional provision, he or she is immune to civil process [see forms in § 132.20 et seq.]. Second, the defendant may object because of substantial noncompliance with the applicable service statutes [see forms in § 132.40 et seq.]. Finally, a defendant may object on the ground that is not a sufficient basis for the court to exercise personal jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 [see forms in § 132.70 et seq.].

For a form of notice of motion to quash service of summons, as well as a discussion of the contents of the motion, the procedure to be followed, and the effect of the motion on the defendant's time to plead, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

[2] Opposition to Motion to Quash

On a motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction, the burden of proof is on the plaintiff to establish the facts of jurisdiction by a preponderance of the evidence [see § 132.84]. The plaintiff must show both that there is a proper basis for the court's exercise of personal jurisdiction and that the court properly acquired that jurisdiction by strict compliance with the statutory service requirements [Ziller Electronics Lab GMBH v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1222, 1229, 254 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; see also § 132.06[1]].

The plaintiff normally seeks to carry this burden by the service and filing of counteraffidavits or counterdeclarations, setting forth the probative facts of jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 2009, 2015.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1300, 3.1306]. A verified complaint may be treated as a counteraffidavit or counterdeclaration [Arnesen v. Raymond Lee Organization, Inc. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 991, 995, 107 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; see Crea v. Busby (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 509, 514, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 513] , provided it alleges the essential probative facts establishing jurisdiction [see Thomas J. Palmer, Inc. v. Turkiye Is Bankasi A.S. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 135, 148-149, 164 Cal. Rptr. 181] .

A memorandum should be submitted with the counterdeclarations setting forth the law applicable to the facts of the case supporting the denial of the motion.

[3] Review

If the motion to quash service of summons is denied, the defendant may petition an appropriate reviewing court for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to enter its order quashing service [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)]. A defendant who chooses to litigate the merits of a lawsuit after its motion to quash has been denied has no right to raise the jurisdictional question on appeal; by contesting the merits, the defendant makes a general appearance and submits itself to the jurisdiction of the court, and thereby waives any right it may have had to insist that jurisdiction of its person was not obtained [State Farm General Ins. Co. v. JT's Frames, Inc. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 429, 437, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 573] . For further discussion of writ review and the procedure to be followed, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

If the motion to quash service of summons is granted, the plaintiff may appeal from the order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(3), 904.2(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsChallenges

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.07

§ 132.07 Invalidity of Judgment Rendered Without In Personam Jurisdiction

A court that lacks jurisdiction over the person of the defendant has no power to enter a personal judgment against the defendant [First National Bank v. Eastman (1904) 144 Cal. 487, 490, 77 P. 1043 ; see also, e.g., Rothschild v. Erda (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 750, 753, 66 Cal. Rptr. 209 ; Sharove v. Middleman (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 199, 202, 303 P.2d 900 ; King v. Superior Court (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 91, 92, 221 P.2d 120] . Under the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, any judgment purporting to bind the person of a defendant over whom the court has not acquired in personam jurisdiction is void within the state as well as without [Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 U.S. 235, 250, 78 S. Ct. 1228, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1283] .

Moreover, the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution limits the power of a state to render a valid personal judgment against a nonresident defendant, and a judgment rendered in violation of due process is void in the rendering state and is not entitled to full faith and credit elsewhere [World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 291, 100 S. Ct. 559 ; see also Comfort v. Comfort (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 736, 741, 112 P.2d 259 ; Glaston v. Glaston (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 787, 791, 160 P.2d 45] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentVoid Judgments

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.08

§ 132.08 Lack of Jurisdiction

Lack of jurisdiction in its strict sense means an entire absence of power to hear or determine a case, an absence of authority over either the subject matter, the parties, or both [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 287-288, 109 P.2d 942 ; Schwenke v. J & P Scott, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 71, 76, 252 Cal. Rptr. 91] . It may also refer to lack of in rem jurisdiction, or jurisdiction over a specific thing that is the subject of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1917].

The judgment of a court lacking jurisdiction over the parties, or a specific thing that is the subject of the judgment is void [see Kulko v. California Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 91, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132, 141 ; Hanson v. Denckla (1958) 357 U.S. 235, 250, 78 S. Ct. 1228, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1283 ; County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741 , cert. denied, 460 U.S. 1051, 103 S. Ct. 1497, 75 L. Ed. 2d 929 (1983) (disapproved on another point in County of Los Angeles v. Soto (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 483, 492 n.4, 198 Cal. Rptr. 779, 674 P.2d 750)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionJurisdictional SourcesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.09

§ 132.09 Excess of Jurisdiction

In some instances a court may have proper jurisdiction over the parties, and a specific thing when it is the subject of the action, but it may nonetheless be limited in the exercise of that jurisdiction. It may, for example, have jurisdiction or power to act only in a particular manner, to grant only certain kinds of relief, or to act only on the occurrence of certain procedural prerequisites [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 288, 109 P.2d 942 ; see also Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 565, 567, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692 ; Schwenke v. J & P Scott, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 71, 76, 252 Cal. Rptr. 91] . Strictly speaking, a court having fundamental jurisdiction, but acting beyond the limits of its authority, is acting in excess of its jurisdiction; although the phrase "lack of jurisdiction" is sometimes used to refer to such acts, they should be distinguished from acts undertaken with a lack of fundamental jurisdiction [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 290, 109 P.2d 942 ; Jones v. World Life Research Institute (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 836, 846, 131 Cal. Rptr. 674 ; see also discussion in § 132.08].

Judicial acts in excess of jurisdiction may be challenged by petition for writ of prohibition or review [see Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 565, 567, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692 (writ of prohibition granted); Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 454-455, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 (writ of certiorari); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a), (b) (petition for writ of administrative mandate to review certain quasi-judicial acts of administrative agencies)]. These acts generally include any acts that exceed the power of a court as defined by constitutional provision, express statutory declaration, or rules developed by the courts and followed under the doctrine of stare decisis [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 287-288, 109 P.2d 942] . Moreover, the judgment of a court that exceeds its jurisdiction by granting relief that it has no power to grant is void [County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741 , cert. denied, 460 U.S. 1051 (1983) (disapproved on another point in County of Los Angeles v. Soto (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 483, 492 n.4, 198 Cal. Rptr. 779, 674 P.2d 750); but see People v. Malveaux (1997) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1425, 1434, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371 (judgment void rather than voidable only if trial court lacked subject matter jurisdiction; since juvenile court's judgment was in excess of jurisdiction, judgment was only voidable and not void; consequently, court lost jurisdiction over own judgment after notice of appeal filed; trial court loses jurisdiction to vacate its own judgment once party files notice of appeal, thus shifting jurisdiction over cause to court of appeal, except that trial court is allowed to vacate void but not voidable judgment; trial court may also enter orders that only determine ancillary or collateral matters); see also Shisler v. Sanfer Sports Cars, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 771 (while it is true that once a motion to quash is granted, the court may not review the merits of the underlying action, at least as far as they pertain to the defendant that prevailed on the motion to quash for lack of personal jurisdiction, it does not necessarily follow that the lack of power to rule on the merits of the lawsuit deprives the trial court of jurisdiction to rule upon a collateral motion for attorney fees; a defendant does not forfeit a collateral right to attorney fees by choosing to assert the right to challenge the court's in personam jurisdiction)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionJurisdictional SourcesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.10

§ 132.10 Jurisdiction to Determine Jurisdiction

Although a court may not act in a matter over which it has no jurisdiction, it has the initial power, or jurisdiction, to determine whether or not it has jurisdiction to act [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 302-303, 109 P.2d 942 ; Ziller Electronics Lab GMBH v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1222, 1228, 254 Cal. Rptr. 410] . Thus, a court has inherent power to inquire into its jurisdiction of a matter on its own motion, regardless of whether the issue is raised by the litigants [Walker v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 257, 267, 279 Cal. Rptr. 576, 807 P.2d 418 ; Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 302, 109 P.2d 942 ; In re Corienna G. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 73, 77, 261 Cal. Rptr. 462] . The power of inquiry rests partially on the theory that until the court determines that it has jurisdiction and does some act in consequence, there can be no injury to the party who denies its jurisdiction. The exercise of jurisdiction to determine jurisdiction is a preliminary step, not a final one, and no interference in the tribunal's inquiry is permitted. However, once a court decides that it has jurisdiction, then any subsequent act is always subject to inquiry by a higher court [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 302-303, 109 P.2d 942] . That is, once the determination is made, the question is no longer one of jurisdiction to determine jurisdiction, but, rather, one of jurisdiction to act, and if the court acts, its action is subject to review by a higher court [Harden v. Superior Court (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 630, 634, 284 P.2d 9 ; Housing Authority v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 550, 557, 219 P.2d 457] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionJurisdictional SourcesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.11

§ 132.11 Doctrine of Inconvenient Forum

Forum non conveniens, or inconvenient forum as it is referred to by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(2)], is "an equitable doctrine invoking the discretionary power of a court to decline to exercise the jurisdiction it has over a transitory cause of action when it believes that the action may be more appropriately and justly tried elsewhere" [Stangvik v. Shiley Inc. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 744, 751, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556, 819 P.2d 14 ; see also Price v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d, 577, 580 , 268 P.2d 457] .

The principle is distinct from questions of jurisdiction and venue in that it permits a court to stay or dismiss an action even when jurisdiction and venue are technically proper [see Outboard Marine Corp. v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 434, 437, 130 Cal. Rptr. 642 ; Great Northern Ry. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 105, 108-109, 90 Cal. Rptr. 461 , cert. denied sub nom. Curtin v. Superior Court of California, 401 U.S. 1013, 91 S. Ct. 1254, 28 L. Ed. 2d 550 (1971)] .

In Sinochem Int'l Co. Ltd v. Malaysia Int'l Shipping Corp. (2007) ___ U.S. ___, 127 S. Ct. 1184, 167 L. Ed. 2d 15 , the U.S. Supreme Court considered whether a district court can dismiss a case under the forum non conveniens doctrine before it determines definitively that it has both subject matter and personal jurisdiction. The Court held that a district court has discretion to respond at once to a defendant's forum non conveniens plea, and need not take up first any other threshold objection. In particular, a court need not resolve whether it has authority to adjudicate the cause (subject matter jurisdiction) or personal jurisdiction over the defendant if it determines that, in any event, a foreign tribunal is the more suitable arbiter of the merits of the case.

For discussion and forms relating to proceedings to stay or dismiss an action on the ground of inconvenient forum, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem

ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueForum Non Conveniens

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.12

§ 132.12 Effect of Party Being a California Resident

Under case law prior to 1986, the trial court had no discretion to dismiss an action for inconvenient forum when the plaintiff was a resident of California, except in extraordinary cases [see, e.g., Archibald v. Cinerama Hotels (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 853, 858-859, 126 Cal. Rptr. 811, 544 P.2d 947 (court noted, however, that rule was inapplicable when the California resident was but a nominal plaintiff suing on behalf of a foreign beneficiary or creditor); Thomson v. Continental Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 738, 742, 59 Cal. Rptr. 101, 427 P.2d 765 ; Corrigan v. Bjork Shiley Corp. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 166, 176, 227 Cal. Rptr. 247 , appeal dismissed, 479 U.S. 1049 (1987) (disapproved on other grounds in Stangvik v. Shiley Inc. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 744, 761, 764, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556, 819 P.2d 14)].

In 1986, the Legislature amended Code Civ. Proc. § 410.30 to provide that the domicile or residence in this state of any party to the action shall not preclude the court from staying or dismissing the action. The purpose of the amendment was to overcome the holding of Archibald and other cases that a trial court was powerless to dismiss an action on the ground of forum non conveniens if the plaintiff was a California resident [see Stangvik v. Shiley Inc. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 744, 756, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556, 819 P.2d 14] . Specifically, under the amended statute, the courts were required to assign less weight to the factor of the plaintiff's California residence, and instead consider the justice, fairness, and convenience of California as a forum, without giving any special emphasis to the fact that a party to the action was a California resident [Delfosse v. C.A.C.I., Inc.-Federal (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 683, 688 n.4, 267 Cal. Rptr. 224 ; Credit Lyonnais Bank Nederland, N.V. v. Manatt, Phelps, Rothenberg & Tunney (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1424, 1432, 1434, 249 Cal. Rptr. 559 ; see also Northrop Corp. v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1553, 1560-1562, 270 Cal. Rptr. 233] . The 1986 version of Code Civ. Proc. § 410.30 (see Stats. 1986, ch. 968) was, however, by its own terms, repealed effective January 1, 1992, at which time the pre-1986 version of the statute became reoperative. The reoperative version does not contain the provision that the domicile or residence in this state of any party to the action shall not preclude the court from staying or dismissing the action. It would therefore appear that the rule of Archibald, prohibiting the dismissal of an action if the plaintiff is a California resident, is reinstated. In contrast to dismissal of an action, however, it has been held that in applying the doctrine of forum non conveniens, a California court has the power to stay an action even though the sole plaintiff is a California resident [Hansen v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 753, 761, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229 ; see Berg v. MTC Electronics Technologies Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 349, 362, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523] . A stay of an action filed by a California resident, however, is rare [Berg v. MTC Electronics Technologies Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 349, 362, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523

(case, however, one in which stay justified)].

In addition, the presumption that the forum was convenient to a defendant who was a resident of California was not affected by the 1986 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 410.30 and remained in effect. This presumption, however, is not conclusive, and a resident defendant may overcome the presumption by evidence that the alternate jurisdiction is a more convenient place for trial of the action, even if the defendant is a corporation which has its principal place of business in California and the tort was allegedly committed in this state [Stangvik v. Shiley Inc. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 744, 756, 760-761, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556, 819 P.2d 14 (rejecting contrary analysis in Corrigan v. Bjork Shiley Corp. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 166, 181-182, 227 Cal. Rptr. 247 ; Hemmelgarn v. Boeing Co. (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 576, 580, 165 Cal. Rptr. 190 ; and Brown v. Clorox Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 306, 313-314, 128 Cal. Rptr. 385); see also Northrop Corp. v. American Motorists Ins. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1553, 1562, 270 Cal. Rptr. 233] .

A refusal by California courts to exercise jurisdiction cannot be justified by the mere fact that a claim arising from California contacts is prosecuted by a nonresident. While the foreign status of an assignee might in some cases reduce the state's interest in adjudicating a dispute, that is at most a subsidiary consideration which cannot by itself justify a denial of access to California's courts [Epic Communications, Inc. v. Richwave Technolgy, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 314, 317-318, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 572].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueForum Non Conveniens

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.13

§ 132.13 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to proceedings to challenge a court's personal jurisdiction by motions to quash service of summons, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to proceedings to stay or dismiss an action on the ground of inconvenient forum, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.14

§ 132.14 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

For additional memoranda of points and authorities relating to personal jurisdiction or related issues, see the following chapters in this publication:

- Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders;
- Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition;
- Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law, Part I; and
- Ch. 205, Review (Certiorari), Writ of.

For additional memoranda on issues related to inconvenient forum, see the following chapters in this publication:

- Ch. 10, Abatement and Survival of Actions, § 10.30 et seq.
- Ch. 238, Venue.

For further discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter in drafting a complete memorandum or trial or appellate brief, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.15

§ 132.15 Page Limits on Memoranda

Generally, a supporting or opposing memorandum must not exceed 15 pages, or, in the case of a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, 20 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. The page limit does not include exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, or the proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. For further discussion of the page limitations under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113, and of other basic format requirements of memoranda, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsIn Personam ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & Form

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART I. INTRODUCTION

13-132 California Points & Authorities §§ 132.16-133.19

[Reserved]

§§ 132.16[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.20

§ 132.20 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground of Immunity--Defendant Has Diplomatic Immunity [22 U.S.C. § 254d]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS AND TO DISMISS _____ [ACTION or PROCEEDING]
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1); 22 U.S.C. § 254d]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS AND DISMISS THIS _____ (ACTION or PROCEEDING) SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS IMMUNE TO SUIT UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF _____ [either THE VIENNA CONVENTION ON DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS or SECTION _____ (254b or 254c) OF TITLE 22 OF THE UNITED STATES CODE or specify other law extending diplomatic immunity].

A. Diplomatic Immunity to Suit. Any action or proceeding brought against an individual who is entitled to immunity with respect to such action or proceeding under the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations, or under Section 254b or 254c of Title 22 of the United States Code, or under any other laws extending diplomatic privileges and immunities, shall be dismissed. Such immunity may be established on motion or suggestion by or on behalf of the individual, or as otherwise permitted by law or applicable rules of procedure (22 U.S.C. § 254d).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The memorandum of points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion to quash service of summons and to dismiss the action or proceeding. The ground of the motion is that the court lacks jurisdiction over the defendant because he or she has diplomatic immunity [see 22 U.S.C. § 254d; see also Restatement (Second), Foreign Relations Law of the United States, §§ 73, 74, 81].

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from proceeding with the action or proceeding and a writ of mandate to compel it to quash service of summons and to dismiss the action after it has denied a motion to do so.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Diplomatic Immunity to Suit

22 U.S.C. § 254b, referred to in 22 U.S.C. § 254d, provides that with respect to a nonparty to the Vienna Convention, the mission, the members of the mission, their families, and diplomatic couriers shall enjoy the privileges and immunities specified in the Vienna Convention.

22 U.S.C. § 254c, also referred to in 22 U.S.C. § 254d, provides that the President may, on the basis of reciprocity and under such terms and conditions as he may determine, specify privileges and immunities for the mission, the members of the mission, their families, and the diplomatic couriers which result in more favorable treatment or less favorable treatment than is provided under the Vienna Convention. By Executive Order, the President delegated the functions respecting privileges and immunities for diplomatic missions and personnel to the Secretary of State [Executive Order No. 12101 (Nov. 17, 1978), 43 Fed. Reg. 54195 , as amended by Executive Order No. 12608 (Sept. 9, 1987) 52 Fed. Reg. 34617].

As used in the Diplomatic Relations Act (Pub. L. No. 95-393, Sept. 30, 1978, 92 Stat. 808, as amended, which includes 22 U.S.C. §§ 254a-254e):

(1) The term "members of a mission" means (a) the head of a mission and those members of a mission who are members of the diplomatic staff or who, pursuant to law, are granted equivalent privileges and immunities, (b) members of the administrative and technical staff of a mission, and (c) members of the service staff of a mission, as such terms are defined in Article 1 of the Vienna Convention [22 U.S.C. § 254a(1)].

(2) The term "family" means (a) the members of the family of a member of a mission described in 22 U.S.C. § 254a(1), Paragraph (A), who form part of his or her household if they are not nationals of the United States, and (b) the members of the family of a member of a mission as described in 22 U.S.C. § 254a(1), Paragraph (B), who form part of his or her household if they are not nationals or permanent residents of the United States, within the meaning of Article 37 of the Vienna Convention [22 U.S.C. § 254a(2)].

(3) The term "mission" includes missions within the meaning of the Vienna Convention and any missions representing foreign governments, individually or collectively, which are extended the same privileges and immunities, pursuant to law, as are enjoyed by missions under the Vienna Convention [22 U.S.C. § 254a(3)].

(4) The term "Vienna Convention" means the Vienna Convention on diplomatic Relations of April 18, 1961 (T.I.A.S. numbered 7502; 23 U.S.T. 3227) entered into force with respect to the United States on December 13, 1972 [22 U.S.C. § 254a(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsSovereign ImmunityGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.21

§ 132.21 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground of Immunity--Defendant Is California Legislator Immune to Civil Process [Cal. Const., art. IV, § 14]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS
vs.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1); Cal. Const., art., IV, § 14]
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS A MEMBER OF THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE AND IS PRESENTLY NOT SUBJECT TO SERVICE OF PROCESS PURSUANT TO SECTION 14 OF ARTICLE IV OF THE CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION.

A. Immunity of California Legislator. A member of the California Legislature is not subject to civil process during a session of the Legislature or for five days before and after a session (Cal. Const., art., IV, § 14; see Harmer v. Superior Court (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 345, 348, 79 Cal. Rptr. 855).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The memorandum of points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion to quash service of summons. The ground of the motion is that the court lacks jurisdiction over the defendant because defendant is a California legislator, the summons was served during a legislative session or within five days before or after a legislative session, and the defendant was immune to, or exempt from, civil process during that period.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from proceeding with the action or proceeding and a writ of mandate to compel it to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so [see Harmer v. Superior Court (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 345, 347-348, 79 Cal. Rptr. 855] .

[c] Members of United States Congress

Unlike California legislators, members of the United States Congress are not immune to civil process during Congressional sessions or at any other time [see Long v. Ansell (1934) 293 U.S. 76, 81-83, 55 S. Ct. 21, 79 L. Ed. 208 ; cf. U.S. Const., art. I, § 6, cl. 1 (immunity to arrest for specified crimes)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity of California Legislator

Harmer v. Superior Court (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 345, 79 Cal. Rptr. 855 , was a proceeding in prohibition by three California state senators and a California state assemblyman, all members of the State Advisory Commission on Indian Affairs, to restrain the superior court from proceeding against them in a civil class action, on behalf of American Indians residing in California, involving an asserted violation of the laws requiring open meetings of state agencies and seeking an injunction against alleged secret meetings. Three of the legislators were served with a summons and complaint, and the fourth with a subpoena. The Legislature was in session at the time of service (and at the time the appellate decision was rendered). Their motions in the trial court to quash service of summons and discovery proceedings based on their constitutional immunity were denied.

In ordering the writ issued, the court of appeal said that Cal. Const., art. IV, § 14, creates an exemption from civil process without qualification as to the kind or subject matter of the lawsuit, and that similar exemptions have been construed to cover civil actions of all kinds, including those involving the legislator's personal affairs. The court said that, while conveying incidental personal advantage, the immunity is designed to benefit the public by protecting legislators against compelled distraction and interference during a legislative session, and that the California immunity applies to civil process generally, not just to civil actions involving legislative functions, and cannot be squeezed by interpretation to a restricted class of lawsuits (275 Cal. App. 345, 348) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsSovereign ImmunityGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.22

§ 132.22 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground of Immunity--Defendant Is Present in California in Response to Subpoena or Order to Attend and Testify in Criminal Case [Penal Code §§ 1334.4, 1334.5] or on or after Waiver of Extradition [Penal Code § 1555]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SER-
vs.	)	VICE OF SUMMONS
_____ [name],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1); Penal Code §
Defendant.	)	_____ [1334.4 or 1334.5 or 1555]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE AT THE TIME THE SUMMONS WAS SERVED DEFENDANT WAS IMMUNE TO SERVICE OF PROCESS.

[EITHER]

A. Nonresident Witness in California Pursuant to Subpoena to Testify in Criminal Case. A person coming into California in obedience to a subpoena directing him or her to attend and testify in this state pursuant to the Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from Without the State in Criminal Cases (Penal Code §§ 1334-1334.6) is not subject to arrest or service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his or her entrance into California under the subpoena (Penal Code § 1334.4).

[OR]

A. Nonresident Witness Passing Through California in Response to Subpoena to Testify in Criminal Case in Another State. A person passing through California while going to another state in obedience to a subpoena or order to attend and testify in that state pursuant to the Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from Without the State in Criminal Cases (Penal Code §§ 1334-1334.6), or while returning from that state, is not subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his or her entrance into California under the subpoena or order (Penal Code § 1334.5).

[OR]

A. Person in California on or after Waiver of Extradition. A person brought into California on, or after waiver of, extradition based on a criminal charge is not subject to service of process in civil actions arising out of the same facts as the criminal proceedings for which he or she is returned, until he or she has been convicted in the criminal proceeding, or, if acquitted, until he or she has had reasonable opportunity to return to the state from which he or she was extradited (Penal Code § 1555).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion to quash service of summons. The ground of the motion is that defendant is immune to civil process, and that the court therefore lacks jurisdiction over him or her, because defendant was served while in or passing through California pursuant to a subpoena or order to testify in a criminal case pursuant to the Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from Without the State in Criminal Cases (Penal Code §§ 1334-1334.6) [Penal Code §§ 1334.4, 1334.5], or on or after waiver of extradition and either has not yet been convicted in the criminal proceeding or was acquitted and was served before having a reasonable opportunity to return to the originating state [Penal Code § 1555]. In this latter situation, the immunity terminates on conviction of the criminal offense [Penal Code § 1555; see People v. Wilson (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 290, 292-293, 28 Cal. Rptr. 675] .

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from proceeding with the action or proceeding and a writ of mandate to compel it to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsSovereign ImmunityGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.23

§ 132.23 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground of Immunity--Defendant Is Indian Tribal Casino

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SER-
vs.	)	VICE OF SUMMONS
_____ [name],	)	[Code Civ. Proc § 418.10(a)(1)]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS AN INDIAN TRIBAL CASINO IMMUNE FROM SUIT.

A. Immunity of Indian Tribal Casino. An aboriginal American tribe is a sovereign nation and is subject to suit only where Congress has authorized the suit or the tribe has waived its immunity (Warburton/Buttner v. Superior Court (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1182, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 ; Great Western Casinos, Inc. v. Morongo Band of Mission Indians (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1419-1420, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828 ; Smith v. Hoplandband of Pomo

Indians (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-10,115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455). Tribal immunity applies to commercial as well as governmental activities (Redding Rancheria v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 384, 388, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 773). A tribal entity is treated as the tribe for immunity purposes (Redding Rancheria v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 384, 388, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 773 ; Trudgeon v. Fantasy Springs Casino (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 632, 637-645, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1), on the ground that the court lacks jurisdiction over the defendant because the defendant is an Indian tribal casino.

Counsel should insert argument in the showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity of Indian Tribal Casino

In Warburton/Buttner v. Superior Court (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706 , the court held that sovereign immunity is not a discretionary doctrine that may be applied as a remedy depending on the equities of a given situation; rather, it presents a pure jurisdictional question (103 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1182) . In determining whether sovereign immunity extends to a tort case against a separate business entity organized by an Indian tribe, as opposed to immunity from a tort claim against the tribe itself, the court applies a three-part test setting forth the relevant criteria to address the immunity issue, including these considerations: (1) whether the business entity is organized for a purpose that is governmental in nature, rather than commercial; (2) whether the tribe and the business entity are closely linked in governing structure and other characteristics; and (3) whether federal policies intended to promote Indian tribal autonomy are furthered by the extension of immunity to the business entity (103 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1182-1183 , citing Trudgeon v. Fantasy Springs Casino (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 632, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65).

In Great Western Casinos, Inc. v. Morongo Band of Mission Indians (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828 , the defendant Indian tribe terminated a casino management contract without cause. The management company sued the tribe. The tribe moved to quash service of summons and the trial court granted the motion. In affirming, the court of appeal held that the tribe had sovereign immunity from the contract suit and did not waive that immunity (74 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1419-1420) .

In Smith v. Hoplandband of Pomo Indians (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 455 , the defendant Indian tribe argued that it had not waived its sovereign immunity by entering into a contract containing an arbitration clause, and agreeing to the application of California law, because a Tribal ordinance provided that its sovereign immunity could only be waived by an ordinance or resolution of the Tribal Council explicitly waiving immunity. In rejecting this contention, the court relied on C & L Enterprises v. Potawatomi Indian Tribe (2001) 532 U.S. 411, 121 S. Ct. 1589, 149 L. Ed. 2d 623 , in which the U.S. Supreme Court resolved the split of authority that had emerged in the state and federal courts on the question whether, by agreeing to an arbitration clause, and to enforcement of an arbitral award, in any court having jurisdiction thereof, a tribe has waived its sovereign immunity from suit. The Court concluded that agreement to such contract language constitutes an explicit waiver of tribal sovereign immunity. Finding that the contract in Smith was indistinguishable from the contract in C & L Enterprises, the California court concluded that the only reasonable interpretation of its terms is that it clearly and explicitly waives tribal sovereign immunity (95 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-10) .

In Redding Rancheria v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 384, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 773 , a bartender sued an Indian tribal casino for injuries she received while working at an off-reservation hotel hosting a party for the casino. The casino moved to quash service of summons and the trial court denied the motion. In ordering the trial court to grant the motion, the court of appeal held that the casino, as a tribal entity, was immune from suit (88 Cal. App. 4th 384, 388-389) .

In Trudgeon v. Fantasy Springs Casino (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 632, 637-645, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 , a man injured in a fight at an Indian casino sued the casino corporation for negligence. The trial court granted the casino corporation's motion to dismiss on the ground that it was immune from state tort laws. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the casino corporation should be granted immunity from state court rulings because the corporation was formed for the benefit of the tribal members, was closely related to the tribe, and federal policies furthered immunity (71 Cal. App. 4th 632, 637-645) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsSovereign ImmunityGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities §§ 132.24-132.29

[Reserved]

§§ 132.24[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.30

§ 132.30 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Immunity--Parties and Witnesses in Civil Actions Are Not Immune to Service of Summons While in California

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO QUASH
vs.	)	SERVICE OF SUMMONS
_____ [name], Defendant.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE RULE UNDER WHICH NONRESIDENT _____ [PARTIES TO or WITNESSES IN] CIVIL ACTIONS WERE DEEMED TO BE IMMUNE TO SERVICE WHILE IN CALIFORNIA TO TESTIFY HAS BEEN ABOLISHED.

[EITHER]

A. Abrogation of Nonresident Witness Immunity. The court-made rule, under which nonresident witnesses were deemed to be immune to civil process while in California to testify, has been abrogated and is no longer the law of California Severn v. Adidas Sportschuhfabriken (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 754, 762, 109 Cal. Rptr. 328).

[OR]

A. Abrogation of Nonresident Party Immunity. The court-made rule, under which nonresident parties were deemed to be immune to civil process while in California in connection with the conduct of an action, has been abrogated and is no longer the law of California Silverman v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 145, 149, 249 Cal. Rptr. 724).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a defendant's motion to quash service of summons. The ground of opposition is that the court-made rule that nonresident witnesses or parties, while in California in attendance in connection with the conduct of a civil lawsuit, are immune to service of process in any other civil action has been abolished.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may also be used in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition and writ of mandate seeking to restrain the trial court from proceeding with the action or proceeding and to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Abrogation of Nonresident Witness Immunity

Severn v. Adidas Sportschuhfabriken (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 754, 109 Cal. Rptr. 328 , was an action against three European corporations and an individual who was a resident of France and one of the persons described by Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10 as authorized to receive service of summons on behalf of the defendant corporations. One of the defendant corporations had commenced an action in the United States District Court in Florida. While attending that state for the sole purpose of giving his deposition in the federal court litigation, the individual defendant was personally served with summons in the California action on behalf of himself and the defendant corporations. It was conceded that defendants had sufficient minimum contacts with California so that maintenance of the suit did not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice [see §§ 132.70, 132.100]. The defendants moved to quash service of summons based on the so-called immunity rule. Under this rule, witnesses in attendance on a court outside the territorial jurisdiction of their residence were immune from service of civil process while attending court and for a reasonable time before and after in going to, and returning from, court. The motion was granted, and plaintiff appealed.

In reversing the order quashing service of summons, the court of appeal traced the history of the immunity rule (33 Cal. App. 3d 754, 756-762) . The court pointed out that in 1969 California's jurisdiction and service of process statutes were updated and liberalized and that the Legislature enacted Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.10, 413.10, and 415.10 which, when jurisdiction over the subject matter exists, collectively authorize personal service of summons on a defendant in this state, outside this state but within the United States, and outside the United States, and that service outside California may be made in the manner permitted by California law (33 Cal. App. 3d 754, 762) . The court held that, by virtue of these statutes, the reason for the immunity rule no longer exists in California, for nonresident witnesses and others may no longer remain in the state or country of their residence secure from the reach of this state's process, and that, because the individual defendant and the corporations could have been served at their places of residence or business in Europe, the rule had no legitimate application to them (33 Cal. App. 3d 754, 762) . The court further held that even if the immunity rule followed by the federal courts or the State of Florida should differ from that adopted by California, the public policy and law of California would determine the validity of the service of process on the individual defendant, and that because the individual defendant and the corporations were subject to service of California's process in Europe, neither the federal courts nor Florida would have any legitimate interest in applying the immunity rule (33 Cal. App. 3d 754, 763) .

[b] Abrogation of Nonresident Party Immunity

Silverman v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 145, 249 Cal. Rptr. 724 , was a mandate proceeding arising out of an action by a creditor of a corporation against a nonresident shareholder. The complaint was entitled "Complaint for Money Due on Judgment and Alter Ego" and sought to recover from the nonresident the principal sum awarded in a prior action against the corporation. The defendant was served with summons while he was in California pursuant to a court directive that he be physically present at a mandatory settlement conference in a different action. The defendant's motion to quash service of summons was denied, and he sought a writ of mandate or prohibition to compel the trial court to grant the motion.

In denying the writ the court of appeal said that it was once the general rule that parties and witnesses coming from outside the state to participate in the hearing of litigation in a court of the state are ordinarily exempt from the service of process in another action for a reasonable time in coming, attending court, and leaving the jurisdiction (203 Cal. App. 3d 145, 149) . Citing Severn v. Adidas Sportschuhfabriken (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 754, 109 Cal. Rptr. 328 (discussed under § 132.30[3][a], above), the court explained that with respect to nonresident witnesses, the immunity rule is no longer the law of California. The court found the reasoning of the Severn court persuasive and held that inasmuch as the immunity from service rule no longer applies to nonresident witnesses, the immunity rule is likewise no longer the law in California with respect to nonresident parties (203 Cal. App. 3d 145, 149) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsSovereign ImmunityGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.31

[Reserved]

§ 132.31[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.32

§ 132.32 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Immunity--Tribal Immunity Has Been Waived

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SER-
vs.	)	VICE OF SUMMONS
_____ [name],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE TRIBAL IMMUNITY HAS BEEN WAIVED.

A. Tribal Immunity From Suit Is Waived When a Party Undertakes to Avail Himself or Herself of the Services of a State Court. When a person with tribal immunity undertakes to avail himself or herself of the services of a state family law court, tribal immunity is waived (In Re Marriage of Maria and Randy Jacobsen (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1192, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 162).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a defendant's motion to quash service of summons. The ground of opposition is that a party that purposely avails itself of the services of a state court waives its tribal immunity from suit.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may also be used in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition and writ of mandate seeking to restrain the trial court from proceeding with the action or proceeding and to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tribal Immunity From Suit Is Waived When a Party Undertakes to Avail Himself or Herself of the Services of a State Court.

In In Re Marriage of Maria and Randy Jacobsen (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 162 , the wife, Maria, an enrolled member of the Santa Ynez Band of Mission Indians (the Tribe), filed a petition to dissolve her eleven-year marriage to her husband, Randy, in State court. Federal law directs state courts to give full force and effect to American Indian tribal law and custom in civil matters. Chumash tribal custom and tradition provides that funds distributed by the tribe to its members should not be used to pay spousal support to nonmembers. Randy filed a motion seeking, among other things, an award of temporary spousal support pursuant to Fam. Code § 3600. Maria responded, in part, that it is the custom and tradition of the Tribe that per capita distributions not be provided to non-tribal members for spousal support. The court ordered the temporary spousal support, and Maria appealed.

The reviewing court upheld the temporary support order. The family law court had jurisdiction to order Maria to pay temporary spousal support to Randy because Maria initiated the dissolution proceedings, appeared, and participated therein. "[W]hen a Native American ... undertakes to avail himself or herself of the services of a state court in a domestic relations matter, ... the state court has jurisdiction to act and to grant whatever relief is contemplated by the action initiated by the Native American" (121 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1192) . The court further reasoned the tribal custom and tradition set forth was inconsistent with California law and public policy regarding temporary spousal support. Also of importance is that the family law court did not order the Tribe to satisfy Maria's obligation of temporary spousal support. Facially, the support orders also are independent of and unrelated to any particular source of funds that may be used to satisfy them. Once Maria deposited her Tribal distribution in a bank account or a securities account, for example, "the money involved lost its identity as immune Indian property" (121 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1193) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureFederal & State InterrelationshipsSovereign ImmunityGeneral OverviewGovernmentsNative AmericansGeneral OverviewGovernmentsNative AmericansAuthority & Jurisdiction

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
A. Immunity to Suit

13-132 California Points & Authorities §§ 132.33-132.39

[Reserved]

§§ 132.33[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.40

§ 132.40 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SER-
vs.	)	VICE OF SUMMONS
_____ [name],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE SERVICE OF PROCESS ON DEFENDANT FAILED TO COMPLY WITH STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS.

A. Motion to Quash Service of Summons. On or before the last day of his or her time to plead, or within such further time as the court may for good cause allow, a defendant may serve and file a notice of motion to quash service of summons on the ground the court lacks jurisdiction over him or her (Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)).

B. Compliance With Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required. Service of summons in conformance with the mode prescribed by statute is deemed jurisdictional, and, absent such service, no jurisdiction is acquired by the court in the particular action (Renoir v. Redstar Corp. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1150, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603 ; Schering Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 737, 741, 125 Cal. Rptr. 337 ; Sternbeck v. Buck (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 832, 307 P.2d 970).

[Optional] C. Strict Compliance Necessary for Substituted or Constructive Service. A court has no authority to render judgment on the basis of substituted or constructive service of the summons when statutory requirements have not been strictly complied with (Summers v. McClanahan (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 403, 412, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 338 (improper service on personal manager); Zirbes v. Stratton (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1416, 232 Cal. Rptr. 653 (substituted service); Eagle Electric Mfg. Co. v. Keener (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 55 Cal. Rptr. 444 (same); Bank of America v. Carr (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737, 292 P.2d 587 (constructive service)).

[Optional] D. Requirement That Substituted Service Be Reasonably Calculated to Give Actual Notice. To be constitutionally sound the form of substituted service must be reasonably calculated to give an interested party actual notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard, in order that the traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice implicit in due process are satisfied (Zirbes v. Stratton (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1416, 232 Cal. Rptr. 653).

[Optional] E. Defendant Sued in Representative Capacity, Served by Publication, and Papers Mailed Are Directed to Defendant in Individual Capacity. When a complaint and summons designate a party in a representative capacity, the court acquires no jurisdiction over the person of that defendant when service is by publication and the papers mailed to that defendant pursuant to statute are directed to the person in his or her individual capacity (Bank of America v. Carr (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 736-737, 292 P.2d 587).

[Optional] F. Service of Summons by Party Is Void. Personal service of process by a party to an action or proceeding is void, and the court does not thereby acquire personal jurisdiction over the defendant (see Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10; Caldwell v. Coppola (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 863, 865, 268 Cal. Rptr. 453).

[Optional] G. General Appearance After Default Judgment Does Not Validate Defective Service. The general appearance after entry of a default judgment by a defendant who was defectively served with summons does not make the defective service retroactively valid (In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 545, 547-552, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction over him or her for the reason that the service of the summons was defective. The memorandum sets forth general points of law regarding the necessity of compliance with statutory service requirements.

Optional Paragraph C sets out a rule of "strict compliance" with respect to substituted or constructive service (see also discussion under § 132.40[2][d]). For relaxation of this "strict compliance" requirement, see Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 778, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180 , discussed in § 132.60[3][a].

Optional Paragraph D sets out the general requirement that substituted service must be reasonably designed to provide actual notice.

Optional Paragraph E should be used when a person is being sued in a representative capacity but has been served as an individual rather than in his or her representative capacity. Optional Paragraph F should be used when a party to the action has attempted to effect service himself or herself. Optional Paragraph G should be included if the default of the defectively served defendant was entered and the defendant thereafter made a general appearance in the case. For points and authorities relating to a general appearance as a basis of in personam jurisdiction, see § 132.106.

For additional points and authorities involving particular types of service or service on particular types of defendants, see §§ 132.141 -132.45. For a memorandum of points and authorities based on defects in the summons, as opposed to the service of the summons, see § 132.46.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show specifically how the service of the summons failed to comply with the statutory requirements or was otherwise improper.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to support a motion by a third party cross defendant to quash a defective service of summons on a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)], or a motion by a nonresident served outside California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40] to quash a defective service of summons when the defendant has sufficient minimum contacts with California to support the assumption by a California court of general jurisdiction over him or her. With appropriate modifications, they may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)].

[c] Extension of Time to Plead

The service and filing of the notice of motion extends the defendant's time to plead until 15 days after service on him or her of a written notice of entry of an order denying his or her motion, except that for good cause shown the court may extend the defendant's time to plead for an additional period not exceeding 20 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(b)].

[d] Substituted and Constructive Service Distinguished

Strictly speaking, the term "substituted service" means service on the defendant by delivery of the summons to some other person for the defendant, in which case the presumption is that the person will deliver the summons to the defendant. Like personal service or mail service, it is a form of actual service. "Constructive service," on the other hand, consists of service by publication or posting, in which case there is no presumption that the defendant will actually receive notice of the lawsuit.

The courts, however, sometimes use the two terms interchangeably, or they use the term "constructive service" to include any kind of service other than personal service, for example, service by mail.

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons, and related papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

[f] Related Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to quash service of summons for failure to comply with the fictitious name statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 474), see Ch. 104, Fictitiously Named Defendants (DOES) in this publication.

[g] Opposing Memoranda

For memoranda of points and authorities that may in an appropriate case be submitted in opposition to the foregoing memorandum, see § 132.60 et seq.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Compliance with Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required

In Renior v. Redstar Corporation (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603 , plaintiffs sought to enforce a French judgment in California. The trial court entered judgment in favor of plaintiffs under the Foreign Money-Judgments Act (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1713-1713.8). Defendants appeared specially and moved under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) to set aside the California judgment as void. Specifically, defendants argued that the trial court lacked personal jurisdiction over them because plaintiffs failed to issue and to serve a summons.

The appellate court held that the Foreign Money-Judgments Act does not exempt compliance with the procedures applicable to civil actions, including service of a summons (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1150) . The Act as enacted by the Legislature provided that "the foreign judgment is enforceable in the same manner as the judgment of a sister state which is entitled to full faith and credit." There is nothing in the Foreign Money-Judgments Act that suggests the service of a proper summons is not required. Thus, the Foreign Money-Judgments Act does not exempt compliance with the procedures applicable to civil actions, including service of a summons (123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1152) .

Schering Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 737, 125 Cal. Rptr. 337 , was a mandate proceeding arising out of an action against a foreign corporation doing business in California. Because the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 (discussed under § 132.46[3][b]), defendant moved to quash service of summons and to dismiss the action for failure to serve summons within three years as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [repealed; now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.250]. The trial court denied the motion, and defendant petitioned for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to vacate its order of denial and to grant the motions.

In granting the writ, the court of appeal, with respect to the motion to quash, said that although a proper basis for personal jurisdiction exists and notice is given in a manner which satisfies the constitutional requirements of due process, service of summons is not effective and the court does not acquire jurisdiction of the party unless the statutory requirements for service of summons are met (52 Cal. App. 3d 737, 741) .

In Sternbeck v. Buck (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 307 P.2d 970 , the court of appeal reversed a judgment for defendant in an action in equity to vacate a default judgment entered in another action in which the plaintiff (as defendant) had not been personally served with summons. The court said that service of summons in conformance with the mode prescribed by statute is deemed jurisdictional and that, absent such service, no jurisdiction is acquired by the court in the particular action (148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 832) . The court held that the service of the summons did not conform to the requirements of the then existing statutes governing the service of summons (148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 832-835) .

[b] Strict Compliance Necessary for Substituted or Constructive Service

In Summers v. McClanahan (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 403, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 338 , the summons and complaint were served by leaving copies with an agent of actress Rue McClanahan, who was the individual's personal manager, at the agent's office. The agent, who was not authorized by the individual to accept service of process on her behalf, forwarded the documents to counsel. Because the documents found their way to the named defendant by admitted receipt of counsel, the trial court concluded that service was effective under Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90, which provides summons may be served on a person not otherwise specified in Article 4 regarding service of summons. The appellate court reversed the decision.

The reviewing court considered the question whether service can be upheld on the theory a close connection between the defendant, actress Rue McClanahan, and a third party, her manager Barbara Lawrence, made it highly probable that McClanahan would receive actual notice of the service of process on Lawrence on McClanahan's behalf (140 Cal. App. 4th 403, 415) . In addition to finding no evidence of a close relationship between McClanahan and Lawrence, the court noted that an actual notice rule would create a standardless free-for-all in which defendants would bring motions to quash service claiming they never received actual notice and, in many cases, plaintiffs would be unable to prove otherwise (140 Cal. App. 4th 403, 415) . In addition, such a rule would put a premium on defendants developing creative ways of evading service thereby thwarting the fundamental principle disputes should be resolved in courts, on the merits. Thus, the court found that the trial court did not acquire personal jurisdiction over McClanahan through substituted service on Lawrence (140 Cal. App. 4th 403, 416) .

In Zirbes v. Stratton (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 232 Cal. Rptr. 653 , a husband and wife who were separated, and between whom a marital dissolution proceeding commenced by the wife had been filed, the divorce granted subsequently becoming final, were sued for breach of a restaurant equipment lease by the lessor. The attorney representing the husband in the marital dissolution proceeding filed an answer to the lessor's complaint on behalf of both the husband and the wife. On appeal from the judgment in favor of the lessor, the court regarded the husband as the sole defendant and affirmed the judgment against him. Approximately five years after the action was filed, the husband filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition. About four months later, the wife learned that the lessor had named her as a judgment debtor and intended to levy on her assets. She filed a motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 and the court's equitable power for relief from the judgment on the ground that her former husband's lawyer had represented her without her knowledge and consent. The trial court set aside the judgment as to her, and the lessor appealed. In affirming the order, the court of appeal said that in order to obtain in personam jurisdiction through any form of constructive service there must be strict compliance with the requisite statutory procedures (81 Cal. App. 367, 371) .

Eagle Electric Mfg. Co. v. Keener (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 246, 55 Cal. Rptr. 444 , was an action by a corporation to set aside a default and default judgment entered against it in a personal injury action in which the corporation was served under former Corp. Code § 6501 [now see Corp. Code § 2111] by substituted service on the Secretary of State pursuant to a court order which was void because it was based on a declaration which, on its face, was insufficient to give the court jurisdiction. The invalidity of the service appeared from the face of the record, that is, from the judgment roll. Plaintiff's motion for summary judgment was granted, and defendants appealed.

In affirming the summary judgment, the court of appeal, after pointing out that a judgment, which is void on the face of the judgment roll, can be attacked at any time and that the court has the right and power any time to vacate a void entry of default and a void default judgment, said that when jurisdiction is obtained by a prescribed form of constructive notice, the statutory conditions on which service depends must be strictly construed and there must be strict compliance with the mode prescribed in the statute; that conformance with the statute is deemed jurisdictional and the absence of conformance deprives the court in the particular action of the power to render a judgment (247 Cal. App. 2d 246, 250-251) .

Bank of America v. Carr (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 292 P.2d 587 , was an interpleader action filed by the bank to determine the ownership of two bank accounts in which a former wife, her two minor sons, and her former husband as trustee for the minors were named as defendants. The former wife and the younger son were personally served with a copy of the summons and complaint. The former husband, individually and not as trustee, was served by publication and copies of the required papers were mailed to him at an out-of-state address. Subsequently, publication of the summons on the second minor was made, and copies of the required papers were mailed to him at the same address as the former husband. The former wife filed an answer and a cross complaint, which was not served and was subsequently dismissed with prejudice. The court made an order for interpleader which recited the appearance of the bank and the former wife, and the failure to appear of the two minors and former husband as trustee. Two days later, a judgment and order of distribution of funds was filed which awarded the accounts to the former wife. Five days later, the former husband, individually and not as trustee, filed notice of special appearance and motion to quash service of summons, which was denied. The former husband and the two sons appealed, arguing, among other grounds, that there had been no sufficient service of summons on the complaint to give the court jurisdiction to render judgment against the former husband as he was served individually only, or against the younger son because he was under the age of 14 and no copy of the summons had been delivered to a parent or guardian, as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 411(3) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 416.60 (applying to all minors)]. In reversing the judgment and various orders, the court of appeal said that when jurisdiction is sought to be obtained by a prescribed form of constructive service, the statutory conditions on which the service depends must be strictly observed, and that, unless the statute has been complied with, there is no power to render a judgment (138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737) .

[c] Requirement That Substituted Service Be Reasonably Calculated to Give Actual Notice

The facts and procedural background of Zirbes v. Stratton (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 232 Cal. Rptr. 653 , are discussed under § 132.40[3][b]. The lessor contended among other things that the wife had been properly served with process because substituted service pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) had been made to her mother's address in Los Angeles and to the restaurant. The wife claimed she had not been personally served and did not receive the summons or complaint because she neither resided at her mother's residence nor received mail there, and that she was living with her two children at her legal address in Pacific Palisades, where she had filed her petition for dissolution of marriage more than six months before the lessor's action was filed.

In affirming the order setting aside the judgment as to the former wife, the court of appeal pointed out that substituted service by abode service is a secondary method of service on natural persons, and that Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) allows a process server to leave the summons and complaint at the "dwelling house" or "usual place of abode" of the person being served. The court said that, to be constitutionally sound the form of substituted service must be reasonably calculated to give an interested party actual notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard in order that the traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice implicit in due process are satisfied, and concluded that service of process at a parent's residence was not reasonably calculated to give the former wife notice (187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1416) . The court similarly found no merit in the contention that service of process was effective by leaving the summons and complaint with the estranged husband at his restaurant, where the former wife had not worked for several years before the lessor sued, and concluded that her community interest in the restaurant was not a strong enough connection to render the service effective (187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1417) .

[d] Defendant Sued in Representative Capacity, Served by Publication, and Papers Mailed Are Directed to Defendant in Individual Capacity

The facts and procedural background of Bank of America v. Carr (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 292 P.2d 587 , are discussed under § 132.40[3][b]. In reversing the order denying the former husband's motion to quash, the court of appeal said that the general rule is that if the complaint and summons designate the defendant in a representative capacity, he or she should be so served (138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 736-737) . The court explained that, when service is by publication, former Code Civ. Proc. § 413 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(b)] required that copies of the summons and complaint be "deposited in the post office, directed to the person to be served," and said that unless it appears that it was so directed, the record will fail to show a compliance with the order for publication and the proof of service will be incomplete (138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737) . The court of appeal pointed out that the person to be served was the former husband in his capacity as trustee and the copies were not directed to him has such, and it concluded that, although the objection was very formal, the appellate court was constrained to hold that there had been no compliance with the statutory requirements of constructive service and that the court did not obtain jurisdiction over the person of the former husband as defendant (138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737) .

[e] Service of Summons by Party Is Void

Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10 provides that a summons may be served by any person who is at least 18 years of age and not a party to the action.

Caldwell v. Coppola (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 268 Cal. Rptr. 453 , involved a domestic violence injunctive order, issued on ex parte application, restraining defendant from harassing the complainant, with whom the defendant had been living, and her sister, with whom she lived after separating from the defendant. The ex parte application for the order to show cause, supporting declaration, and temporary restraining order were personally served on the defendant by the sister.

Inasmuch as the sister was a party protected by the order, the court of appeal held the order was void for lack of personal jurisdiction due to improper service, and reversed. The court held that proper service is a requirement for a court's exercise of personal jurisdiction and that an order entered without personal jurisdiction over the defendant is void (219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 863) . After setting forth the history of Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10 (219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 864) , the court explained that the long-standing prohibition on personal service by the opposing party arises from the adversarial interest present in legal actions and the concern for discouraging fraudulent service (219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 864) . The court said: (1) the common law rule was that an interested party could not serve a summons, the policy behind the rule being that an interested party should not be put in a position whereby he or she might gain an advantage over his or her antagonist; (2) although attorneys are competent to serve process, the prohibition on service by the opposing party is strictly enforced; (3) when a party has served notice on the opposing party, the court lacks personal jurisdiction over the defendant; and (4) personal service by a party renders any judgment or order arising from the proceeding void, despite the defendant's actual notice (219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 865) .

[f] General Appearance After Default Judgment Does Not Validate Defective Service

In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411 , arose out of a proceeding for dissolution of marriage filed by the wife. Contrary to Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10, the wife herself handed the summons and petition to the husband. The husband's default was entered and the court granted the wife an interlocutory decree and later a final decree of dissolution, which included an order that the husband make child support payments to the wife. Five months after the entry of judgment, the wife filed a motion to increase child support payments and obtained an order directing the husband to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failure to obey the child support orders previously made. The husband filed a motion to quash service of summons and to set aside the default and interlocutory and final judgments. His attorney appeared in court on the date set for the wife's motions and requested a continuance in order to prepare defenses to both motions. The court granted the continuance, after which the husband's attorney took the wife's deposition and served notice of taking the deposition of the custodian of the wife's employment records. The trial court granted the husband's motion to quash service and to set aside the judgments, from which order the wife appealed, contending that by entering the general appearance the husband retroactively made valid the defective service of summons.

The court of appeal rejected this argument and affirmed the trial court order. The court said that California's Jurisdiction and Service of Process Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 et seq.] preempted the subjects of jurisdiction and service of process and clearly rejected the rule handed down in Security Loan & Trust Co. v. Boston & South Riverside Fruit Co.

(1899) 126 Cal. 418, 58 P. 941 , and repeated in subsequent cases, that a defendant's general appearance after entry of a default judgment against him or her based on a void service of summons retroactively makes that void service valid (135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 547-552) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Compliance with Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required

In Taylor-Rush v. Multitech Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 103, 265 Cal. Rptr. 672 , one of the nonresident defendants lived in Apartment 15A at a specified address; the summons and complaint were mailed to him at Apartment 4-D at that address. The return receipt was signed by two persons, neither of whom was the nonresident defendant, and there was no evidence as to who they were. In his declaration in support of his motion to quash, the nonresident defendant declared that he had never been served with the summons and complaint or the amended complaint. The plaintiff argued that he had obviously received both the complaint and its amendment since he referred in his declaration to matters alleged in the first amended complaint.

The court of appeal, in affirming an order quashing service of summons, said that a defendant is under no duty to respond to a defectively served summons, that the notice requirement is not satisfied by actual knowledge of the action without service conforming to the statutory requirements, which are to be strictly construed, and held that due to the defective service on him, no jurisdiction was acquired over him (217 Cal. App. 3d 103, 111) .

In Chaplin v. Superior Court (1927) 81 Cal. App. 367, 253 P. 954 , the court of appeal issued a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from taking further proceedings under orders awarding alimony, child support, and counsel fees in a pending divorce action. Plaintiff urged that defendant had waived service of summons by making a general appearance in the action, but the appellate court rejected the contention that the defendant had made a general appearance. It stated that, inasmuch as none of the statutory requirements for obtaining jurisdiction of the defendant has been complied with in either form or substance, the ordinary rule appeared to be that an order made by the court of the nature of those in question would be unauthorized and void (81 Cal. App. 367, 371) .

[b] Strict Compliance Necessary for Substituted or Constructive Service

In Tandy Corp. v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 911, 173 Cal. Rptr. 81 , the court of appeal ordered issuance of a writ of mandate to the superior court directing it to vacate its order denying the motions of the petitioner (the defendant corporation in the underlying wrongful death action) to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction and to dismiss the action for failure to serve the summons within the period prescribed in former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a(a) [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.250], and to grant the motions. The real parties in interest had attempted to serve the defendant pursuant to (1) Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 (mail and acknowledgment of receipt); and (2) Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 (first-class mail outside California). The court held that service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 was not completed because no executed acknowledgment of receipt was returned [see § 132.42], and that service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 [see § 132.60] was not completed because no person outside California was involved (117 Cal. App. 3d 911, 913) . The court said that, in order to obtain in personam jurisdiction by a form of constructive service, there must be strict compliance with the requisite statutory procedures, and pointed out that the real parties in interest (plaintiffs in the underlying action) had not complied with any applicable manner of service prescribed by any California statute (117 Cal. App. 3d 911, 913) .

Note that the court further said that "service [was not] sufficient under [Code Civ. Proc. Section 415.20]" (substituted service on person to be served on behalf of entity by leaving summons and complaint with person apparently in charge of office of person to be served and thereafter sending copies to same address by mail) (117 Cal. App. 3d 911, 913) . However, it is not clear from the opinion whether the court is saying that service under that section was attempted but not completed or that neither of the attempted services under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.30 and 415.40 was sufficient to constitute service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.41

§ 132.41 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--Service on Corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.40.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE SERVICE OF PROCESS ON DEFENDANT CORPORATION FAILED TO COMPLY WITH STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS.

A. Motion to Quash. [See § 132.40, Paragraph A.]

B. Compliance With Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required. [See § 132.40, Paragraph B].

[EITHER]

C. Service on Corporation's Purported General Manager. The term "general manager," as used in Section 416.10(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure, and Section 2110 of the Corporations Code, indicates one who has general direction and control of the business of the corporation; one who has the management of only a particular branch of the business and who is not permitted to do everything that the corporation could do in transaction of its business is not a "general manager" of the corporation (General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 81, 86, 93 Cal. Rptr. 148 ; Bakersfield Hacienda, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 798, 804, 18 Cal. Rptr. 812).

[OR]

C. Substituted Service on Foreign Corporation. Substituted service on a foreign corporation may be made only in the manner and form authorized by statute, and a failure to conform with the statute deprives the court of power to render a judgment (Eagle Electric Mfg. Co. v. Keener (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 55 Cal. Rptr. 444).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The memorandum of points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a corporate defendant's motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction over it for the reason that the service of the summons was defective.

For general points and authorities regarding defective service, see § 132.40. For additional points and authorities regarding particular types of service or service on other particular types of defendants, see §§ 132.42 -132.45. For a memorandum of points and authorities based on defects in the summons, as opposed to the service of the summons, see § 132.46.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

See also § 132.40[2] for comments on a general form.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to support a motion by a third-party cross defendant to quash service of summons on a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)]. With appropriate modifications, they may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons, and related papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[d] Opposing Memoranda

For memoranda of points and authorities that may in an appropriate case be submitted in opposition to the foregoing memorandum, see § 132.60.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service on Corporation's Purported General Manager

In General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 81, 93 Cal. Rptr. 148 , petitioner sought a writ of mandate to quash service of summons purportedly made on it by service on a customer relations manager of one of its divisions. The employee served was not a designated or authorized agent to accept service, and service was made on him on behalf of a dealership, which was an entity completely separate and independent of petitioner. In opposing issuance of the writ, plaintiffs apparently contended that the employee was a general manager within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(b) and former Corp. Code § 6500 [now see Corp. Code § 2110] and, in addition, that it had been orally represented to them that the employee was authorized to receive service on behalf of petitioner.

In granting a peremptory writ directing the trial court to vacate its order denying the motion to quash and to quash service of summons, the court of appeal held that service on petitioner had not been made in the prescribed statutory manner, and that, therefore, the trial court did not acquire jurisdiction over the petitioner. The court noted that the various sections providing for service on responsible corporate officers is to protect the foreign corporation against default, and that petitioner had, in fact, properly designated an agent, whose identity was easily ascertainable, for service of process. The court also noted that the plaintiffs offered no evidence of the employee's character and rank within the corporation or of his duties and responsibilities in order to demonstrate that his employment came within the meaning of the term "general manager." After stating the definition of "general manager" as one who has general direction and control of the business of the corporation, and noting that this definition excludes one who has the management of only a particular branch of the business and who is not permitted to do everything that the corporation could do in transaction of its business, the court held that the plaintiffs had not sustained their burden of proof that the employee was authorized to receive service of process on behalf of the petitioner (15 Cal. App. 3d 81, 86) .

Bakersfield Hacienda, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 798, 18 Cal. Rptr. 812 , was a proceeding to show cause based on a petition filed by a domestic corporation for a writ of prohibition which alleged that jurisdiction was never obtained over the petitioner in an action against it for breach of contract and foreclosure of a trust deed. Based on affidavits submitted by the plaintiffs in the action, the trial court had made an order for substituted service, and after completion of such service, entered a default judgment for plaintiff. Petitioner's motion to set aside the default and default judgment was denied. In granting a peremptory writ, the court of appeal pointed out that the trial court had not complied with the provisions of former Corp. Code § 3302 [now see Corp. Code § 1702] for substituted service on domestic corporations in that the affidavits submitted by the plaintiff for an order for such service contained nothing which showed an attempt to serve any of the persons enumerated in former Code Civ. Proc. § 411(1) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(b)]. Specifically, service had been made on a woman as general manager of a motel owned by petitioner. In holding that no showing had been made that service was attempted on a person authorized to receive service, the court pointed out that the woman was not the general manager of the corporation, by virtue of being the general manager of the motel, and stated the rule that a "general manager" within the meaning of the statute is one who has general direction and control of the business of the corporation, and that this definition excludes one who has the management of only a particular branch of the business and who is not permitted to do everything that the corporation could do in transaction of its business (199 Cal. App. 2d 798, 804) .

[b] Substituted Service on Foreign Corporation

The facts and procedural background of Eagle Electric Mfg. Co. v. Keener (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 246, 55 Cal. Rptr. 444 , are discussed in § 132.40[3][b]. In affirming the summary judgment for plaintiff vacating a default and default judgment, the court of appeal said that it is elementary that substituted service on a foreign corporation may be made only in the manner authorized by statute (247 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.42

§ 132.42 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--Service on Minor [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.60]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.40.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE SERVICE OF PROCESS ON DEFENDANT MINOR FAILED TO COMPLY WITH STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS.

A. Motion to Quash. [See § 132.40, Paragraph A].

B. Compliance With Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required. [See § 132.40, Paragraph B].

C. Service of Summons on Minor. A court does not acquire jurisdiction of a minor if a copy of the summons and complaint are not delivered to the minor's parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, or, if no such person can be found with reasonable diligence, to a person having the care or control of the minor or with whom the minor resides or by whom he or she is employed and to the minor if he or she is at least 12 years of age (see Code Civ. Proc. § 416.60; see also Bank of America v. Carr (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737-738, 292 P.2d 587).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The memorandum of points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a minor defendant's motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction over it for the reason that the service of the summons was defective.

For general points and authorities regarding defective service, see § 132.40. For additional points and authorities regarding particular types of service or service on other particular types of defendants, see §§ 132.41, 132.43 -132.45. For a memorandum of points and authorities based on defects in the summons, as opposed to the service of the summons, see § 132.46.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

See also § 132.40[2] for comments on a general form.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion by a third-party cross defendant to quash service of summons on a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)]. With appropriate modifications, they may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons, and related papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Summons on Minor

Code Civ. Proc. § 416.60 provides that a summons may be served on a minor by delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the minor's parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, or, if no such person can be found with reasonable diligence, to any person having the care or control of the minor or with whom the minor resides or by whom the minor is employed, and to the minor if he or she is at least 12 years of age. Note that a minor is any person under 18 years of age [Fam. Code § 6500].

The facts and procedural background of Bank of America v. Carr (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 292 P.2d 587 , are discussed in § 132.40[3][b]. In reversing the order denying the younger son's motion to quash, the court of appeal pointed out that it was undisputed that at the time of service on him he was a minor under the age of 14 years, residing in the state, and that former Code Civ. Proc. § 411(3) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 416.60] required delivery of a copy of the summons to the minor personally (now only if the minor is at least 12 years of age) and also to his father, mother, or guardian, if one is within the state (now parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, or if no such person can be found with reasonable diligence, to any person having the care or control of the minor or with whom the minor resides or by whom the minor is employed), and that this personal service is jurisdictional. The court said that no service on the mother, who was within the state, appears, and there was no contention that she was served as such; that she was served as a defendant is not sufficient (138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737) . The court said that a statute requiring process against an infant to be served on his or her father, mother, or guardian is not complied with by service on a parent in his or her capacity as a defendant only; where the parent is also a party defendant, he or she must be specially served for the infant in order to bring the latter before the court (138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737) . The court concluded that because there was no service as required by the statute, the court did not obtain jurisdiction over the minor's person (138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737-738) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.43

§ 132.43 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--Service on Nonresident Motorist [Veh. Code §§ 17454-17456]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.40.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE SERVICE OF PROCESS ON DEFENDANT NONRESIDENT MOTORIST FAILED TO COMPLY WITH STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS.

A. Motion to Quash. [See § 132.40, Paragraph A].

B. Compliance with Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required. [See § 132.40, Paragraph B].

C. Substituted Service on Nonresident Motorist or Deceased Nonresident Motorist's Personal Representative. A court does not acquire jurisdiction of a nonresident motorist, or a deceased nonresident motorist's personal representative, by service of summons that fails to comply strictly with the statutory requirements of Sections 17454-17456 of the Vehicle Code, prescribing the method of service (Ben-Yehoshua v. Superior Court (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 719, 722, 29 Cal. Rptr. 775 (nonresident motorist); Kaplan v. Superior Court (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 492, 494, 12 Cal. Rptr. 781 (deceased nonresident motorist's personal representative)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a nonresident motorist defendant's motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction over it for the reason that the service of the summons was defective.

For general points and authorities regarding defective service, see § 132.40. For additional points and authorities regarding particular types of service or service on other particular types of defendants, see §§ 132.41, 132.42, 132.44, 132.45. For a memorandum of points and authorities based on defects in the summons, as opposed to the service of the summons, see § 132.46.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

See also § 132.40[2] for comments on a general form.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to support a motion by a third-party cross defendant to quash service of summons on a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)]. With appropriate modifications, they may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons, and related papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substituted Service on Nonresident Motorist or Deceased Nonresident Motorist's Personal Representative

Ben-Yehoshua v. Superior Court (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 719, 29 Cal. Rptr. 775 , was a mandate proceeding by a nonresident motorist to compel the superior court to vacate an order denying his motion to quash service of summons in an underlying personal injury action and to require the court to grant the motion. In the personal injury action, a return of service filed by the sheriff's office certified that a copy of the summons and complaint had been served on the defendant by their delivery to the secretary of the Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles pursuant to Veh. Code § 17454. The petitioner was never personally served with a copy of the summons and complaint. In granting the writ, the court of appeal said that while the certificate asserted compliance with Veh. Code § 17454, it did not appear that there was compliance with Veh. Code §§ 17455 and 17456, that sufficient compliance with these sections might be had by means of personal service on a nonresident defendant and proof of service of the nature set forth in Veh. Code § 17456, even though the defendant is not within the territorial limits of the United States at the time of such service, but that, in the absence of such compliance, the superior court was without power to render a valid judgment in personam against the nonresident motorist (214 Cal. App. 2d 719, 722) .

Kaplan v. Superior Court (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 492, 12 Cal. Rptr. 781 , was a mandate proceeding by the foreign executrix of a deceased nonresident motorist to compel the superior court to vacate an order denying her motion to quash the service of summons on her as a foreign executrix in the underlying personal injury action and to enter an order granting the motion. The summons and complaint had been personally served on her while she was in California.

Under Veh. Code § 17452, service on the deceased nonresident motorist's personal representative must be made in the same manner and on the same notice as is provided for the nonresident motorist, that is, in compliance with Veh. Code §§ 17454-17456.

In granting the writ, the court of appeal said that, under Veh. Code §§ 17450-17456, a foreign executor is subject to the process of this state in an action brought to recover damages for the negligent operation by his or her decedent of an automobile on the highways of this state, but that, in order to obtain jurisdiction over a foreign executor, it is necessary that the statutory conditions on which service depends be strictly observed, and that these statutes had not been complied with (191 Cal. App. 2d 492, 494-495) . In answer to the real party in interest's contention that the statutes were satisfied by personal service within California, the court said that the petitioner, as an individual and as executrix, is, in the theory of the law, two persons; her powers and authority as executrix exist only in the State of New York; when she left that state she did not do so in her capacity as executrix, but only as an individual, and personal service on her in this state would not accomplish service on her as executrix; such service could only be accomplished in the manner provided by the statute (191 Cal. App. 2d 492, 495) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Substituted Service on Nonresident Motorist or Deceased Nonresident Motorist's Personal Representative.

In Weisfeld v. Superior Court (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 148, 242 P.2d 29 , the court of appeal issued a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from taking further proceedings in a personal injury action against a nonresident motorist on the ground that plaintiff failed to comply with the statutory requirements as to service. The court stated that former Veh. Code § 404 [now see Veh. Code § 17450 et seq.] prescribed the form of constructive (that is, substituted) service; that when jurisdiction is sought to be obtained by a prescribed form of constructive service, the statutory conditions on which the service depends must be strictly observed, and that unless the statute has been complied with, there is no authority to render a judgment (110 Cal. App. 2d 148, 151) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to Dismiss

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.44

§ 132.44 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirements--Substituted Service on Individual Defendant or Service by Publication Ineffective When Reasonable Diligence Requirement Has Not Been Satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.20(b), 415.50(a)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.40.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE SUBSTITUTED SERVICE ON AN INDIVIDUAL DEFENDANT [OR SERVICE BY PUBLICATION] IS NOT AUTHORIZED, AND IS, THEREFORE INEFFECTIVE TO SECURE JURISDICTION, WHEN THERE IS NO SHOWING THAT REASONABLE DILIGENCE WAS EXERCISED IN ATTEMPTING TO MAKE PERSONAL SERVICE.

A. Motion to Quash. [See § 132.40, Paragraph A].

B. Compliance With Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required. [See § 132.40, Paragraph B].

[EITHER, if substituted service]

C. Reasonable Diligence Required for Substituted Service. Substituted service on an individual defendant is authorized only when the defendant cannot with reasonable diligence by personally served (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.20(b), 415.50(e); Burchett v. City of Newport Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1477-1478, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 ; Evartt v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 799, 152 Cal. Rptr. 836).

[OR, if service by publication]

C. Reasonable Diligence Required for Service by Publication. Service by publication is authorized only when the party to be served cannot with reasonable diligence be served in another manner (see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a); Kott v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1135, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215).

D. Effect of Failure to Exercise Reasonable Diligence. Failure to exercise reasonable diligence to effect personal service renders substitute abode service ineffective and void (Evartt v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 802, 152 Cal. Rptr. 836).

[Optional] E. Ignoring Obvious Avenues to Find Party Constitutes Failure to Exercise Reasonable Diligence. A plaintiff who ignores obvious avenues for obtaining the information fails to exercise reasonable diligence as a matter of law (Kott v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1139, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of personal jurisdiction. The ground of the motion is that the substituted service was ineffective and void because there was no showing that plaintiff had exercised reasonable diligence in attempting to serve the defendant personally before effecting substituted service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b).

Optional Paragraph E may be used when there were obvious means to determine the location of the person to be served, but the plaintiff failed to pursue them.

For general points and authorities regarding defective service, see § 132.40. For additional points and authorities regarding particular types of service or service on other particular types of defendants, see §§ 132.41 -132.43, 132.45. For a memorandum of points and authorities based on defects in the summons, as opposed to the service of the summons, see § 132.46.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

See also § 132.40[2] for comments on a general form.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion by a third-party cross defendant to quash service of summons on a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)]. With appropriate modifications, they may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons, and related papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (Matthew Bender).

[d] Opposing Memoranda

For memoranda of points and authorities that may in an appropriate case be submitted in opposition to this memorandum, see §§ 132.60, 132.62.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reasonable Diligence Required for Substituted Service

Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) , in pertinent part, provides that if a copy of the summons and complaint cannot with reasonable diligence be personally delivered to the person to be served, then service may be made by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint at such person's dwelling house, usual place of abode, usual place of business, or usual mailing address (other than a United States Postal Service post office box) in the presence of a competent member of the household or a person apparently in charge of the office, place of business, or usual mailing address, at least 18 years of age, who must be informed of the contents, and by thereafter mailing a copy of the summons and complaint by first-class mail postage prepaid to the person to be served at the same address, and that service is deemed complete on the 10th day after mailing.

Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(e) provides that as a condition of establishing that the party to be served cannot with reasonable diligence be served in another manner specified in this article, the court may not require that a search be conducted of public databases where access by a registered process server to residential addresses is prohibited by law or by published policy of the agency providing the database, including, but not limited to, voter registration rolls and records of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

In Burchett v. City of Newport Beach (1995) 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 , which involved a land use dispute, plaintiffs brought action against the city and several individual city officials. Plaintiff did not serve the defendants within the time required by local rule, but the court granted extensions and ordered plaintiffs to serve defendants by a certain date. Within that deadline, most of the individual defendants were served by leaving the summons with an assistant to the city clerk and mailing a copy to the named defendants. Defense counsel notified plaintiffs' counsel orally and in writing that service was improper, but no further attempt to serve the defendants personally was made prior to the deadline. These defendants specially appeared, moving to quash service. The court granted the motion to quash and dismissed the case. As to the defendants who had been properly served, the court sustained a demurrer without leave to amend, and dismissed as to them as well. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The issue as to the specially appearing defendants was whether the plaintiffs had exercised reasonable diligence in attempting to personally serve them prior to resorting to service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b). The court found that the plaintiffs had exercised no diligence whatsoever. Plaintiffs had not attempted service within the time required by the fast track rules, had not attended an August evaluation conference, and although they attended a September conference, they still had not perfected service. Granted an extension, plaintiffs made no attempt at personal service but left the papers with a deputy clerk and sent copies through the mail. Informed by opposing counsel that the service was ineffective, plaintiffs declined to act even though there was time left before the deadline (33 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1477) . In affirming the judgment of dismissal, the court also rejected the plaintiff's contention that it was the marshal's office that failed to properly serve the defendants. The court found that although plaintiffs's instructions to the marshal had indicated that personal service was desired, the instructions did not require it (33 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1478) .

Evartt v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 152 Cal. Rptr. 836 , was a proceeding in mandate arising out of an action for personal injuries resulting from an alleged assault and battery in which no effort to serve the summons and complaint was made until three days before the expiration of the three-year period for mandatory dismissal under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.250]. The alleged assault and battery occurred at 1733 Grimes Avenue; defendant lived at 1809 Grimes Avenue, where he had resided for the prior 14 years. The complaint was filed on August 25, 1975. The marshal's Certificate for Substituted Service on Individual and Declaration Re Diligence showed the following: (1) on August 23, 1978, at 3 p.m., a process server went to defendant's residence at 1809 Grimes Avenue but was unable to make service because the defendant, according to his housesitter, was on vacation; (2) on August 24, 1978, at 9:35 a.m., the process server again went to 1809 Grimes Avenue, but the defendant was not present so summons and complaint was not served (the housesitter told the process server that defendant's son lived in a trailer on the side of the property); (3) on August 24, 1978, at 7:15 p.m., the process service again went to 1809 Grimes Avenue, but service was not effectuated because no one was home; (4) on August 25, 1978 at 10:45 a.m., the process server attempted to effectuate substituted service by personally serving defendant's son at 17331/2 Grimes Avenue and mailing a copy to defendant at that address; and (5) on August 25, 1978, at 7:56 p.m., plaintiff's attorney went to 1809 Grimes Avenue and left a copy of the summons and complaint with the housesitter, "a competent member of the household," and mailed a copy to the defendant at that address. With brief exceptions defendant had been available for service at his residence during the entire period of time he had lived there. On August 20, 1978, he went to Texas and Oklahoma for family reunions and returned September 7, 1978, and discovered the complaint which had been mailed by the plaintiff's attorney. Defendant's motion to quash service of summons was denied, and defendant petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate.

In granting the writ directing the trial court to grant the motions to quash service of process and to dismiss the action, the court explained that before substituted service by abode service on an individual is authorized in California under the Jurisdiction and Service of Process Act (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.10-418.11), Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) requires that reasonable diligence be exercised to effect personal service, and that it thus makes abode service a secondary method of service on natural persons. The court pointed out that this requirement is not contained in the Act as adopted by practically all of the other states nor in the federal rules of civil procedure after which the Act is modeled, and said that the fact the requirement was placed in the statute by the California Legislature shows a conscious, deliberate election by that body that personal service be effected whenever it can be accomplished through the exercise of reasonable diligence, and that the Legislature thus showed a knowing preference for personal service as the means which would more certainly assure actual notice to the defendant (89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 799) .

[b] Reasonable Diligence Required for Service by Publication

In Kott v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215 , an action for breach of contract and fraud, plaintiff attempted substituted service on defendant at what plaintiff believed to be defendant's place of employment. At a hearing quashing that service, at which defendant's attorney produced evidence that defendant was not an employee at the location identified by plaintiff, defendant's attorney stated that defendant was a citizen of Canada. Plaintiff subsequently filed an application for an order for publication of summons, stating in the application that the residence and business addresses of defendant were unknown. The trial court granted this request, and defendant's attorney again filed a motion to quash, arguing that plaintiff had failed to exercise reasonable diligence to locate defendant. The trial court denied the motion to quash.

The court of appeal granted a writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate the order denying the motion to quash and to enter a new order granting the motion. The court reviewed the requirements for service by publication, stating that summons may be served by publication under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a) if the party to be served cannot with reasonable diligence be served in another manner. The same requirement that the defendant's address be unknown despite the exercise of reasonable diligence must be met to excuse compliance with the Hague Convention when service is on a foreign national abroad (45 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1135-1136) . The court found diligence lacking as a matter of law in this case, as discussed under § 132.44[3][[d].

[c] Effect of Failure to Exercise Reasonable Diligence

The facts and procedural background of Evartt v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 152 Cal. Rptr. 836 , are discussed under § 132.44[3][a]. In granting the writ, the court distinguished Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 778, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180 (discussed in § 132.60[3][a]) and said the burden is on the plaintiff to show reasonable diligence to effect personal service, that each case must turn on its own facts, and that no single formula or mode of search can be said to constitute due diligence in every case (89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 801) . The court said the plaintiff clearly failed to carry her burden, having not presented one scintilla of information or explanation for her failure to attempt personal service for 2 years and 363 days, during all of which time except for very short periods defendant was available for service at his residence close by (89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 801-802) . The court concluded that the substituted abode service was ineffective and void because the plaintiff had failed to comply with the mandatory prerequisite to such service by exercising reasonable diligence to effect personal service (89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 802) .

Note that the decision in Evartt was decided by the Court of Appeal of the Fifth Appellate District. The case was criticized and distinguished by the Court of Appeal of the Fourth Appellate District, Division Three, in Espindola v. Nunez (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1389, 1392-1393, 245 Cal. Rptr. 596 (discussed in § 132.60[3][a], and in § 132.62[3][b]).

[d] Ignoring Obvious Avenues to Find Party Constitutes Failure to Exercise Reasonable Diligence

The facts and procedural background of Kott v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215 , are discussed under § 132.44[3][b]. The court noted that although plaintiff made various investigative efforts trying to locate defendant in California, it made no effort to locate an address for him in Canada despite defendant's counsel disclosure in court that the defendant was a resident and citizen of Canada. Furthermore, plaintiff did not ask defendant's attorney for defendant's address (the court noting that had this request been made and denied the case might be in an entirely different position), and did not seek the address from co-defendants who had already been served and with respect to whom plaintiff could have used interrogatories to request the address. The court concluded that plaintiff failed to demonstrate that it exercised reasonable diligence in attempting to learn defendant's address, stating that a plaintiff who ignores obvious avenues for obtaining the information fails to exercise reasonable diligence as a matter of law (45 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1138-1139) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.45

§ 132.45 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Did Not Conform With Statutory Requirement--Service of Summons Was Incomplete

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.40.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE SERVICE BY MAIL WAS NOT COMPLETED.

A. Motion to Quash. [See § 132.40, Paragraph A].

B. Compliance With Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required. [See § 132.40, Paragraph B].

[EITHER]

C. Service by Mail and Acknowledgment of Receipt. Although a summons may be served by mail as provided in Section 415.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure, service is not complete under that statute until a written acknowledgment of receipt is executed and returned to the sender (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(c)).

D. Requirement That Acknowledgment of Receipt Be Included in Proof of Service. When service is made by mail pursuant to Section 415.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure, proof of service shall include the acknowledgment of receipt of summons in the form provided by that section or other written acknowledgment satisfactory to the court (Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10(a)).

[Optional] E. Postal Service Return Receipt Is Insufficient. The postal service return receipt does not suffice as a substitute for an executed acknowledgment of receipt of summons (Tandy Corp. v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 911, 913, 173 Cal. Rptr. 81).

[OR]

C. Service Outside California by First-Class Mail. A summons may be served on a person outside California by sending a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the person to be served by first-class mail, postage prepaid, requiring a return receipt (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40).

D. Proof of Service. Proof that a summons was served on a person by mail pursuant to Section 415.40 of the Code of Civil Procedure (service outside California) shall include evidence satisfactory to the court establishing actual delivery to the person to be served by a signed return receipt or other evidence (Code Civ. Proc. § 417.20(a)).

E. Service by Mail on Nonresident. When service by mail pursuant to Section 415.40 of the Code of Civil Procedure is attempted on a nonresident, service is not complete when the return receipt is returned unsigned and marked "Unclaimed," and, in the absence of any other evidence of delivery, must be quashed on motion of the unserved defendant (Stamps v. Superior Court (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 108, 110, 92 Cal. Rptr. 151).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction over him or her for the reason that the attempted service of the summons by mail and acknowledgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30) or outside California by first-class mail (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40) was incomplete because no executed acknowledgment of receipt, in the case of service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30, or signed return receipt, in the case of service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40, was returned, and there was no other evidence that the summons and complaint had been received by or delivered to the defendant.

For general points and authorities regarding defective service, see § 132.40. For additional points and authorities regarding particular types of service or service on other particular types of defendants, see §§ 132.41 -132.44. For a memorandum of points and authorities based on defects in the summons, as opposed to the service of the summons, see § 132.46.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

See also § 132.40[2] for comments on a general form.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to support a motion by a third-party cross defendant to quash service of summons on a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)]. With appropriate modifications, they may also be used in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)].

[c] Service Outside California

As stated in the second alternative Paragraph B of the foregoing form, a summons may be served on a person outside California by sending a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the person to be served by first-class mail, postage prepaid, requiring a return receipt [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40]. Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 further provides that service outside California in compliance with that statute is deemed complete on the 10th day after mailing, and, in addition, authorizes service in any other manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10-415.50.

As stated in second alternative Paragraph C of the foregoing form, proof that a summons was served on a person by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 shall include evidence satisfactory to the court establishing actual delivery to the person to be served by a signed return receipt or other evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.20(a)]. While a return receipt signed by the defendant would obviously be sufficient, a return receipt signed by someone authorized by the nonresident to sign for his or her mail is also sufficient, provided the plaintiff provide separate evidence establishing the authority of the person who signed the return receipt on defendant's behalf. In addition, other evidence of actual receipt may also validate the otherwise defective service, such as, when a defendant's attorney acknowledges the defendant's receipt of the summons [Taylor-Rush v. Multitech Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 103, 110-111, 265 Cal. Rptr. 672 (adding, however, that no such evidence had been presented in the case before it)].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons, and related papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Postal Service Return Receipt Is Insufficient

Tandy Corp. v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 911, 173 Cal. Rptr. 81 , was a mandate proceeding by which the petitioner (the defendant corporation in an underlying wrongful death action), sought to compel the superior court to grant its motions to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction over it and to dismiss the action for failure to serve and return summons within three years as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a(a) [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.250]. The real parties in interest (the plaintiffs in the underlying action) had attempted service in several ways, among them, by mail and acknowledgment of receipt pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30.

In granting the writ, the court of appeal pointed out that real parties had attempted service under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 by mailing copies of the summons and the first amended complaint, and the appropriate notice and acknowledgment of receipt of summons (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(a)), to the petitioner's agent for service in California by certified mail, return receipt requested, but that the acknowledgment was not executed and returned by the agent, and, hence, service was not completed (117 Cal. App. 3d 911, 913) . The court said that the postal service return receipt did not suffice as a substitute for an executed acknowledgment of receipt of summons (117 Cal. App. 3d 911, 913) .

[b] Service by Mail on Nonresident

Stamps v. Superior Court (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 108, 92 Cal. Rptr. 151 , was a proceeding in mandate arising out of a proceeding to establish an Arkansas divorce decree in which service of process on the ex-husband, an Arizona resident, was attempted by airmail, as then provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 (the statute was amended in 1982 to change "airmail" to "first-class mail, postage prepaid"). The return receipt was returned bearing the notice "unclaimed." The trial court deemed that the service was adequate to comply with law and denied the ex-husband's motion to quash. The ex-husband petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to vacate its order denying, and to enter an order granting, the motion to quash. In granting the writ, the appellate court explained that Code Civ.

Proc. § 415.40 (as it then read) provides in part that "summons" [sic, service] may be made on a person outside California "by sending a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the person to be served by any form of airmail," and that, under Code Civ. Proc. § 417.20(a), the proof of service "shall include evidence satisfactory to the court establishing actual delivery to the person to be served, by a signed receipt or other evidence" (14 Cal. App. 3d 108, 110) . The court pointed out that there was no signed receipt or other evidence of delivery, and, citing several cases, held that in order to obtain in personam jurisdiction through any form of constructive service there must be strict compliance with the requisite statutory procedures (14 Cal. App. 3d 108, 110) . The court said that this had not been accomplished (14 Cal. App. 3d 108, 110) , and concluded that the service, therefore, had to be quashed (14 Cal. App. 3d 108, 111) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.46

§ 132.46 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Summons Was Substantially Defective

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.40.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE THE SUMMONS SERVED DID NOT COMPLY WITH THE REQUIREMENTS OF SECTION 412.20 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE AND WAS THEREFORE SUBSTANTIALLY DEFECTIVE, IN THAT _____ [specify defect, e.g., IT SPECIFIED A RESPONSE TIME OF _____ DAYS, WHICH IS LESS THAN THAT PROVIDED BY LAW].

A. Motion to Quash. [see § 132.40, Paragraph A].

B. Compliance With Statutory Provisions Governing Service of Process Is Required. [see § 132.40, Paragraph B.]

C. Service of Substantially Defective Summons. The service of a substantially defective summons does not confer jurisdiction over the party served (Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 451, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139).

[Optional] D. Lack of Statutory Notice in Summons Served on Individual on Behalf of Corporation or Unincorporated Association. When, in an action against _____ [either a corporation or an unincorporated association (including a partnership)], the summons is served on a person who is not a party to the action and the summons fails to contain the notice required by Section 412.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure that the person served is served on behalf of the _____ [corporation or unincorporated association or partnership], the service of the summons is ineffective, gives the court no jurisdiction over the defendant, and must be quashed (Tresway Aero, Inc. v. Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 431, 435, 96 Cal. Rptr. 571, 487 P.2d 1211 ; Schering Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 737, 741, 125 Cal. Rptr. 337 ; National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 326, 328-329, 55 Cal. Rptr. 574).

[Optional] E. Motion to Quash Is Appropriate to Test Whether Complaint for Unlawful Detainer States Cause for Relief Supporting Reduced Time for Response to Summons. A motion to quash service of summons is a proper method for determining whether the court has acquired personal jurisdiction over the defendant through service of the five-day unlawful detainer summons (Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1035, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction over him or her for the reason that the summons served was substantially defective in failing to comply with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20 or 412.30.

For additional points and authorities regarding defective service, as distinguished from a defective summons, see §§ 132.40 -132.45.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

See also*§ 132.40[2]* for comments on a general form.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to support a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons after it has denied a motion to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)].

[c] Required Contents of Summons

The required contents of the summons in a civil action are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.20, 412.30, and 474.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons, and related papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to quash service of summons for failure to comply with the fictitious name statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 474), see Ch. 104, Fictitiously Named Defendants (DOES) in this publication.

[f] Opposing Memoranda

For a memorandum of points and authorities that may in an appropriate case be submitted in opposition to the foregoing memorandum, see § 132.65.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Substantially Defective Summons

Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139 , was a proceeding in certiorari to review the judgment of the appellate department of the superior court affirming a municipal court judgment in unlawful detainer. One of the three issues involved was the validity of a five-day unlawful detainer summons issued on a complaint which alleged a cause of action not in unlawful detainer.

After holding that the complaint did not state a cause for relief in unlawful detainer or a cause of action within the subject matter jurisdiction of the municipal court (51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 450) , the court of appeal said that service of a substantially defective summons does not confer jurisdiction over a party, and that the summons was fatally defective; that a summons must, under Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20, contain a direction that the defendant file a responsive pleading within 30 days unless some specific statute modifies the time for response (51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 451) . The court said that plaintiff purported to utilize Code Civ. Proc. § 1167, applicable to proceedings in unlawful detainer, to secure a summons calling for a response within five days, but that the Code Civ. Proc. § 1167 summons was inappropriate because the complaint, if it stated a cause of action at all, stated it on a theory other than unlawful detainer (51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 451-452) . Hence, the court held that, since the summons was substantially defective in illegally purporting to shorten defendants' time to plead, the court did not acquire jurisdiction over the parties served with it, and reversed the municipal court judgment (51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 452) .

[b] Lack of Statutory Notice in Summons Served on Individual on Behalf of Corporation or Unincorporated Association

Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 provides that in an action against a corporation or unincorporated association (including a partnership), the copy of the summons that is served shall contain a notice stating in substance: "To the person served: You are hereby served in the within action (or special proceeding) on behalf of (here state the name of the corporation or the unincorporated association) as a person upon whom a copy of the summons and of the complaint may be delivered to effect service on said party under the provisions of (here state appropriate provisions of Chapter 4 (commencing with Section 413.10) of the Code of Civil Procedure." If service is also made on such person as an individual, the notice shall also indicate that service is being made on such person as an individual as well as on behalf of the corporation or the unincorporated association. Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 further provides that if such notice does not appear on the copy of the summons served, no default may be taken against such corporation or unincorporated association or against such person individually, as the case may be.

Tresway Aero, Inc. v. Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 431, 96 Cal. Rptr. 571, 487 P.2d 1211 , was a mandate proceeding arising out of a wrongful death action in which the summons served on an individual on behalf of the corporate defendant did not contain the notice required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 410 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30], providing in relevant part that when the service is against a corporation there shall appear on the copy of the summons that is served a notice stating in substance: "To the person served: You are hereby served in the within action (or proceeding) on behalf of (here state the name of the corporation ...) as a person upon whom the summons and a copy of the complaint must be served to effect service against said party. ..." The defendant corporation's motion to quash the service and to dismiss the action for failure to serve summons within three years of the filing of the complaint as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.250] was denied, and defendant petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The Supreme Court granted the writ as to the motion to quash and denied it as to the motion to dismiss on the ground defendant was estopped to rely on the statute. The Court pointed out that former Code Civ. Proc. § 411 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10] provided that, in a suit against a domestic corporation, summons could be served on a person designated for service of process or authorized to receive service of process, and that the person to whom the summons had been delivered was such a person. The Court said, however, that the copy of the summons delivered did not contain the notice required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 410 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30]. Citing National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 326, 329, 55 Cal. Rptr. 574 (discussed below), the Court held that the provisions of the statute are mandatory, and that service of a summons which does not comply with those provisions is ineffective (5 Cal. 3d 431, 435) .

The facts and procedural background of Schering Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 737, 125 Cal. Rptr. 337 , are discussed in § 132.40[3][a]. In granting the writ of mandate, the court of appeal quoted the applicable provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30, and said that the requirements of the section are mandatory so that service on a corporation of a purported summons that fails to comply substantially with the section is ineffective, and that failure of the summons to state that the person to whom the summons and complaint are delivered is served on behalf of the corporation is not cured by the oral statement of the process server to the person of the fact omitted from the summons (52 Cal. App. 3d 737, 741) .

National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 326, 55 Cal. Rptr. 574 , was a mandate proceeding to compel the superior court to quash service of summons in the underlying action and to dismiss the action for failure to serve summons within three years after the action was filed as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210, 583.250]. Service had been made by delivering a copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint to one of National Union's vice presidents who was told at the time of service that he was being served in such capacity, and the return of service was so worded. The real party in interest did not claim that the service was effective on the vice president as an individual, and said that the vice president was not and was never intended to be a party to the action.

In granting the petition, the court of appeal pointed out that the copy of the summons served did not contain the notice required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 410 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30], nor did the proof of service recite that such notice had appeared on the copy served (247 Cal. App. 2d 326, 328) . The court held that the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 410 were mandatory and, hence, the purported service of summons was ineffective; it did not give the court jurisdiction over the defendant and had to be quashed; and because the purported service and return of service were made on the last permissible day of the three-year period, dismissal of the action was required for failure to serve the summons within three years after the action was commenced (247 Cal. App. 2d 326, 329) .

[c] Motion to Quash Is Appropriate to Test Whether Complaint for Unlawful Detainer States Cause for Relief Supporting Reduced Time for Response to Summons

Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685 , was an appeal from a superior court judgment denying a petition for writ of mandate sought to compel the municipal court to grant the defendant's motion to quash service of summons in an unlawful detainer proceeding pending in the municipal court on the ground that the complaint failed to state a cause for relief for unlawful detainer and, therefore, could not support the issuance of a summons with a five-day response time. The trial court had denied the motion on the ground that defendant's remedy was a demurrer to the complaint and not a motion to quash.

In reversing the judgment and remanding the cause to the superior court with directions to issue a peremptory writ of mandate directing the municipal court to quash service of summons, the court of appeal said that a motion to quash service is the proper method for determining whether the court has acquired personal jurisdiction over a defendant through service of the five-day unlawful detainer summons (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1167) (146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1035) . The court said that if the complaint fails to state a cause of action for unlawful detainer, then use of the five-day summons is improper and the defendant is entitled to an order quashing service as a matter of law. If the municipal court erroneously refuses to quash service, the defendant is entitled to a writ of mandate from the superior court (146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1035) . The court explained that a motion to quash service is the only method by which the defendant can test whether the complaint states a cause of action for unlawful detainer and, thereby, supports a five-day summons, that a general demurrer only tests whether the complaint states a cause of action for something even if it is on a theory other than unlawful detainer, and, further, that if defendant appeared in the action by filing a demurrer, it mooted the very point it was seeking to raise (146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1036) .

Note that the court's rationale with respect to this last statement, in effect, was that because a demurrer constitutes a general appearance under Code Civ. Proc. § 1014, its mere filing would have constituted a waiver of the defect in the summons and subjected the defendant to the personal jurisdiction of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a)]. For points and authorities relating to a general appearance as a basis of in personam jurisdiction, see § 132.106.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Service of Substantially Defective Summons

County of Riverside v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 443, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747 , involved an action brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 863 to invalidate a redevelopment plan, sometimes called a reverse validation action. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 863, the form and manner of service of the summons in such an action is prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 861.1. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 861.1, the summons must contain a notice to all persons interested in the matter to appear and answer the complaint not later than the date specified in the summons, which date must be 10 or more days after completion of publication of the summons, and except as otherwise specified in that section the summons must be in the form prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20. Plaintiffs did not employ a modified summons as provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 861.1, but instead caused to be published a copy of the usual summons informing the readers that they had 30 days to respond "after this summons is served on you," and personally served the county with a general civil service form informing the county that it had 30 days within which to respond. The county moved to quash service of the summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10, one ground being that the published summons was fatally defective in that it did not specify a date for answering and appearing. The trial court found that it was not significant that the publication did not specify a date, and held that the service was valid. The county, by a petition for a writ of mandate, sought review of the trial court's order refusing to quash service of process on it and dismissal of the action.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the respondent court to vacate its order denying petitioners' motion to quash service and dismiss the action, and to enter a new order granting the motion (54 Cal. App. 4th 443, 451-452) . Code Civ. Proc. § 861.1 provides that the summons in a (reverse) validation action must require response by the date "specified" in the summons. The word "specified" means the giving of a concrete date (54 Cal. App. 4th 443, 449) . It is often stated that the rules governing service of process are to be liberally construed and that substantial compliance with the statutory mandates is sufficient to confer jurisdiction. However, the traditional rule is that the requirements of service of summons by publication must be strictly complied with, although the cases are not consistent in their description of the appropriate standard in this context. The court, however, need not attempt to make a definitive resolution in this case. In the unique circumstances presented, plaintiffs failed to comply even substantially with the statute (54 Cal. App. 4th 443, 450) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities §§ 132.47-132.59

[Reserved]

§§ 132.47[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.60

§ 132.60 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Person Served on Behalf of Corporation Had Ostensible Authority or Was General Manager of Corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10; Corp. Code § 2110]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

DEFENDANT CORPORATION'S MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT WERE DELIVERED TO _____[name], WHO _____ [WAS (AND IS) A GENERAL MANAGER OF DEFENDANT CORPORATION (IN THIS STATE) or HAD OSTENSIBLE AUTHORITY, REASONABLY RELIED ON BY PLAINTIFF, TO RECEIVE SERVICE OF SUMMONS ON BEHALF OF DEFENDANT CORPORATION].

[EITHER, if defendant is domestic corporation]

A. Service of Process on Domestic Corporation. Summons may be served on a corporation by delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the president, chief executive officer, or other head of the corporation, a vice president, a secretary or assistant secretary, a treasurer or assistant treasurer, a controller or chief executive officer, a general manager, or a person authorized by the corporation to receive service of process (Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(b)).

[OR, if defendant is foreign corporation]

A. Service of Process on Foreign Corporation. Summons may be served on a foreign corporation by delivering, by hand, a copy of the summons and of the complaint to any officer of the corporation or its general manager in California (Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(d); Corp. Code § 2110(a)).

[CONTINUE]

B. When Personal Jurisdiction Attaches. Except as otherwise provided by statute, the court in which an action is pending has jurisdiction over a party from the time summons is served on the party as provided in Sections 413.10-417.40 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a)).

C. Service of Process Act to Be Liberally Construed. The provisions of the Jurisdiction and Service of Process Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 et seq.) are to be liberally construed to effectuate service and uphold the jurisdiction of the court if actual notice has been received by the defendant (Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 778, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180 ; Espindola v. Nunez (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1389, 1391, 245 Cal. Rptr. 596).

D. Factual Determination. Whether a person served with summons may properly be regarded as within the concept of the statute designating the persons to whom service of process on a corporation may be delivered depends on the particular facts of the case (Cosper v. Smith & Wesson Arms Co. (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 77, 83, 346 P.2d 409).

[EITHER, if person served has ostensible authority]

E. Service on Corporate Agent With Ostensible Authority to Accept Service Is Sufficient. Defendant corporation's erroneous designation in its _____ [specify, e.g., application for a stock permit] of _____ [name] as its _____ [specify officer, e.g., Secretary-Treasurer] clothed him/her with ostensible authority to accept service of process; because service on a corporate agent with ostensible authority to accept service suffices for the court to acquire jurisdiction over the corporation, the defendant corporation has been properly served (Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 777, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180).

[OR, if person served is general manager]

E. Service on General Manager. Service on a corporation is valid when process is delivered to a person as "general manager"of the corporation when the person is of sufficient character and rank as to make it reasonably certain that the defendant will be apprised of the service made (Cosper v. Smith & Wesson Arms Co. (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 77, 83, 346 P.2d 409).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] F. When Individual May Be Regarded as General Manager of Foreign Corporation. An arrangement between a particular person and a foreign corporation is a sufficient basis on which to treat that person as the corporation's general manager in California, when the person performs services for the corporation and provides it with the opportunity for regular contact with its customers and a channel for a continuous flow of business into the state in such a manner that the corporation is enjoying substantially the same business advantages it would have enjoyed were it to conduct its business through its own officers or paid agents in the state (Cosper v. Smith & Wesson Arms Co. (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 77, 83-84, 346 P.2d 409).

[Optional] G. Activities of Agent of Foreign Corporation. The performance of important services for a foreign corporation by its agent, consisting of the establishment and maintenance of a satisfactory importing, distributing, and sales organization, is a sufficient basis on which to treat that agent as the corporation's general manager regardless of how closely these activities may be supervised by the corporation (Carl. F. W. Borgward, G.M.B.H. v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 72, 78, 330 P.2d 789).

[Optional] H. Surrender of Right to Transact Intrastate Business. The fact that a foreign corporation ceases to transact business without filing a certificate of surrender as provided for in Section 2112 of the Corporations Code does not revoke the appointment of any agent for the service of process (Corp. Code § 2112).

[Optional] I. Proof of Service. An affidavit of service of process that names the person served as the managing agent for the defendant corporation is prima facie proof that the person named as managing agent is such agent (Eclipse Fuel etc. Co. v. Superior Court (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 736, 743-744, 307 P.2d 739).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a motion to quash service of summons made on the ground that the service of the summons was defective. The ground of opposition is that, applying the rule of liberal construction, service was made in compliance with either Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(b), in the case of a domestic corporation, or Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(d) and Corp. Code § 2110, in the case of a foreign corporation, because the person served either had ostensible authority to receive process on behalf of the corporation, or was a general manager of the corporation.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 132.41.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose a motion by a third-party cross defendant to quash service of summons on him or her on a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)]; or in opposition to a petition for writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons after the trial court has denied defendant's motion to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)]; or in opposition to any proceeding attacking a judgment on the ground that it was rendered by a court that lacked personal jurisdiction over the defendant.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Process Act to Be Liberally Construed

Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180 , was a proceeding in certiorari and mandate to compel the superior court to grant motions to quash service of summons and vacate a default judgment and levy of execution against defendants, a corporation and a partnership in which the corporation was general partner, in an action against them on two promissory notes. The day after the complaint was filed, plaintiff attached real property owned by the corporation and subsequently attempted to serve process. Discovering that the corporation maintained no general office for the transaction of business and had not filed the list of officers and agents authorized to accept service required by former Corp. Code § 3301 [now see Corp. Code § 1502], plaintiff's counsel arranged to examine the corporation's file with the Commissioner of Corporations and there observed a 1968 application for a permit to issue stock filed by defendant corporation, which listed among its corporate officers, an Albert A. Binney, Sr. as its secretary-treasurer and director. Unknown to plaintiff's counsel, the application was erroneous and Albert A. Binney, Sr., was not, and had never been, its secretary-treasurer (this office was held by Albert A. Binney, Jr.). Plaintiff's counsel knew that the person listed in the permit application as the corporate president had died, and therefore directed his process server to serve the man who had been listed as vice president. When the process server could not locate this man, counsel asked him to serve Albert Binney, Sr. at the address listed in the stock permit application, and service was made and a return of service filed. On receiving the summons and complaint, Binney, Sr. said nothing to the process server, but notified Binney, Jr. of the suit. Binney, Jr. notified the other corporate directors and all agreed that since defendants owed plaintiff the sum claimed and since they lacked the funds to finance a defense they would not contest the action. Plaintiff subsequently had the defendants' default entered and obtained a default judgment. Although notified of these events, defendants took no action. Meanwhile, the defendant corporation had sold the property attached by plaintiff, the only remaining corporate asset, to one Robbins. Because Robbins required title insurance against plaintiff's lien, a Boyd Jefferies, who was a limited partner of the defendant partnership and a former director of defendant corporation, gave the title company a personal indemnity for the amount of plaintiff's attachment. When plaintiff obtained judgment and levied on the property, the title company demanded that Jefferies make good the indemnity. Jefferies' attorneys, however, discovered the error in the service of summons. Although this error might have served to vacate the judgment and levy of execution, defendants still faced the encumbrance of the prejudgment attachment, but that was also subject to attack under Randone v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 536, 96 Cal. Rptr. 709, 488 P.2d 13 . The vacating of the judgment and liens, then, would have cleared the title; Jefferies would have been freed of the indemnity; and plaintiff would have had only a cause of action against a judgment-proof corporation. It was under these circumstances that Jefferies moved, in defendants' names, to quash service of summons and to vacate the default judgment and levy of execution. The motion was denied, and the writ proceedings were initiated to compel the trial court to grant the motion and vacate the default.

In denying the writs, the Supreme Court pointed out that recognizing the serious need to update California's jurisdiction and service of process statutes, the California Judicial Council and State Bar, following a joint study, recommended a comprehensive revision of the California statutes, and that the suggested changes, including Corp. Code § 416.10, governing service on corporations, were enacted in 1969. The Court said that although some decisions under pre-1969 statutes required strict and exact compliance with the statutory requirements, the provisions of the new law, according to its authors, are to be liberally construed. Quoting Li, Attorney's Guide to California Jurisdiction and Process (CEB 1970), pp. 57-58, the Court said that, as reported in the November 25, 1968 Report of the Judicial Council's Special Committee on Jurisdiction, pp. 14-15, the provisions of the act should be liberally construed to effectuate service and uphold the jurisdiction of the court if actual notice has been received by the defendant, and in the last analysis the question of service should be resolved by considering each situation from a practical standpoint. The liberal construction rule, it is anticipated, will eliminate unnecessary, time-consuming, and costly disputes over legal technicalities, without prejudicing the right of defendants to proper notice of court proceedings (9 Cal. 3d 773, 778) .

Espindola v. Nunez (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1389, 245 Cal. Rptr. 596 , was an action for damages based on negligence, breach of contract, fraud, and conspiracy. The complaint was filed on January 26, 1983, and an amended complaint on January 10, 1986, at which time plaintiff's lawyer hired an investigator to locate the defendants, as his own attempts to find them since late 1985 had been unsuccessful. On January 17, the process server went to an address provided by the investigator, but the defendants had moved eight months earlier. The process server then made three unsuccessful attempts to serve them at their current address. On the fourth attempt, the server found the defendant wife at home and served her with a summons and complaint individually, and left another set for her husband. The husband moved to quash service on the grounds plaintiffs had failed to show reasonable diligence in their efforts to serve him personally before resorting to substituted service. The motion was granted, and plaintiffs appealed.

In reversing the order, the court of appeal pointed out that Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) was enacted in 1969 as part of the legislative package to update California law on jurisdiction and service of process, that before the 1969 legislation, substituted service on an individual defendant was not authorized in California, and that, consequently, very little case law defined "reasonable diligence." The court found guidance, however, in Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180 (discussed above), and quoted the statements from the decision in Pasadena, that the provisions of the 1969 act should be liberally construed to effectuate service and uphold the jurisdiction of the court if actual notice has been received by the defendant, and in the last analysis the question of service should be resolved by considering each situation from a practical standpoint (199 Cal. App. 3d 1389, 1391) .

[b] Factual Determination

In Cosper v. Smith & Wesson Arms Co. (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 77, 346 P.2d 409 , the plaintiff appealed from the trial court's order quashing service of summons on a defendant foreign corporation on the grounds it was not doing business in California and service on its sales manager and manufacturer's representative did not constitute service on the corporation by hand delivery of process to its "general manager," as that term was used in former Corp. Code § 6500 [now see Corp. Code § 2110]. In reversing the order, the California Supreme Court said that in any given case, whether the person served may properly be regarded as within the statute's designation of the persons to be served depends on the particular facts involved (53 Cal. 2d 77, 83) .

[c] Service on Corporate Agent With Ostensible Authority to Accept Service Is Sufficient

The facts and procedural background of Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180 , are discussed under § 132.60[3][a]. In denying the writs, the Supreme Court said that, by representing that Binney, Sr. was its secretary-treasurer, defendant corporation conferred on him ostensible authority to accept service on the corporation's behalf, and, consequently, service on Binney, Sr. sufficed to establish personal jurisdiction over defendant corporation (9 Cal. 3d 773, 775) . The Court explained that defendant corporation's designation in its application for a stock permit of Binney, Sr. as its secretary-treasurer, clothed him with ostensible authority to accept service of process and, because service on a corporate agent with ostensible authority to accept service suffices to acquire jurisdiction over the corporation, the defendant corporation had been properly served and could present no viable reason for setting aside the default judgment entered against it (9 Cal. 3d 773, 777) . Bearing in mind the caveat of the authors of Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10 that it be liberally construed, the Court pointed out that the section designates a secretary or treasurer, or a combined secretary-treasurer, as a proper person to receive service of process and held that the statement in the application for a stock permit that Binney, Sr. was its secretary-treasurer was a public assertion of that fact and estopped defendants from denying his authority to accept service (9 Cal. 3d 773, 778-779) . The Court held that service on an agent possessing only ostensible authority sufficed to impose personal jurisdiction over the principal (9 Cal. 3d 773, 781-783) .

[d] Service on General Manager

In Cosper v. Smith & Wesson Arms Co. (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 77, 346 P.2d 409 , the plaintiff appealed from the trial court's order quashing service of summons on a defendant foreign corporation on the grounds it was not doing business in California and service on its sales manager and manufacturer's representative did not constitute service on the corporation by hand delivery of process to its "general manager," as that term was used in former Corp. Code § 6500 [now see Corp. Code § 2110]. The Supreme Court reversed on the grounds that (1) the corporation was doing business in California, and that (2) the manufacturer's representative was its general manager in California. With respect to the second ground, the Court said that every object of the service is obtained when the agent served is of sufficient character and rank to make it reasonably certain that the defendant will be apprised of the service made (53 Cal. 2d 77, 83) .

[e] When Individual May Be Regarded as General Manager of Foreign Corporation

The procedural background of Cosper v. Smith & Wesson Arms Co. (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 77, 346 P.2d 409 , is discussed under § 132.60[3][d]. In reversing the order quashing service of process, the Supreme Court pointed out that the manufacturer's representative (1) actively engaged in promoting defendant's sales and earned commissions through such sales; (2) had ample regular contact with the defendant and was of sufficient character and rank to make it reasonably certain that the defendant would be apprised of the service of process; (3) performed services for the defendant and provided it with the opportunity for regular contact with its customers and a channel for a continuous flow of business into the state through his selling and advertising activities; and (4) gave defendant substantially the business advantages it would have enjoyed had it conducted its business through its own offices or paid agents in the state (53 Cal. 2d 77, 83-84) . The Court concluded that such arrangement was sufficient to constitute the manufacturer's representative the foreign corporate defendant's general manager in this state for purposes of service of process on the defendant (53 Cal. 2d 77, 84) .

[f] Activities of Agent of Foreign Corporation

In Carl F. W. Borgward, G.M.B.H. v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 72, 330 P.2d 789 , the petitioner, a German corporation, sought a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to quash service of summons on it in an action against it and its exclusive importer for damages for breach of contract and conspiracy, following the trial court's denial of the motion. Process had been served on petitioner's agent, who was alleged to be the petitioner's general manager in this state under former Corp. Code § 6500 [now see Corp. code § 2110], and who negotiated and arranged for the distribution of petitioner's products in California by independent contractors.

In denying a peremptory writ of mandate, the Supreme Court said that important services performed by the agent for petitioner in California, namely, the establishment and maintenance of a satisfactory importing, distributing, and sales organization, were petitioner's activities through its agent and sufficient to constitute the agent petitioner's general manager, regardless of how closely these activities may have been supervised from Germany (51 Cal. 2d 72, 78) .

[g] Proof of Service

In Eclipse Fuel etc. Co. v. Superior Court (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 736, 307 P.2d 739 , five suits brought by different individuals for personal injuries each joined the petitioner as a defendant. Petitioner's motion to quash service of summons was denied, and petitioner sought a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from proceeding with the cases.

In denying the peremptory writ, the court of appeal held that petitioner had been validly served with process. The court noted that the affidavit of service of summons and complaint in one action showed service on petitioner by service on its exclusive manufacturer's agent, a corporation, through delivery to the corporation's agent, and, in the other four cases, that the affidavits showed service on the corporation by delivery to the same person as manager and manufacturer's agent. Although the court found additional elements of proof showing service was proper, it said that such affidavits of service of process were prima facie proof that the person named therein as managing agent for a defendant corporation was such agent (148 Cal. App. 2d 736, 743-744) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.61

§ 132.61 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Service on Person in Charge of Defendant's Office [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.60.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE SUMMONS AND COMPLAINT WERE PROPERLY SERVED ON THE DEFENDANT IN THE MANNER PRESCRIBED BY SECTION 415.20(a) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

A. When Personal Jurisdiction Attaches. [See § 132.60, Paragraph B].

B. Service of Process Act to Be Liberally Construed. [See § 132.60, Paragraph C].

[EITHER]

C. Service of Summons Effected When Summons and Complaint Left With Person in Charge of Office of Person to Be Served Followed By Subsequent Mailing. In lieu of personal delivery of a copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint to the person to be served as specified in Code of Civil Procedure Section _____ [416.10, relating to service on an existing corporation or 416.20, relating to service on a dissolved corporation or 416.30, relating to service on a joint stock company or 416.40, relating to service on an unincorporated association, including a partnership or 416.50, relating to service on a public entity], a summons may be served by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint during usual office hours in his or her office or, if no physical address is known, at his/her usual mailing address, other than a U.S Postal Service post office box, with the person who is apparently in charge thereof, and by thereafter mailing a copy of the summons and complaint by first-class mail, postage prepaid to the person to be served at the place where a copy of the summons and complaint were left. When service is effected by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint at a mailing address, it shall be left with a person at least 18 years of age, who shall be informed of the contents thereof (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a)).

[OR]

C. Service of Summons Effected When Defendant Is A Business Organization, Form Unknown, and Summons and Complaint Left With Person in Charge of Office Followed By Subsequent Mailing. In lieu of personal delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to be served as specified in Code of Civil Procedure Sections 416.20-416.50, when the business organization is in a form unknown, and the business is not a corporation with a registered agent for service of process listed with the Secretary of State, summons may be served by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint during usual business hours with the person who is apparently in charge of the office of the business organization, and by thereafter mailing a copy of the summons and complaint by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the person to be served at the place where the summons and complaint was left (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.95).

[Optional] D. Service Effective Although Defendant Rendered Physical Service Impossible. A defendant will not be permitted to defeat service by rendering physical service impossible (Khourie, Crew & Jaeger v. Sabek, Inc. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1013, 269 Cal. Rptr. 687).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The memorandum in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a motion to quash service of summons made on the ground that the service of the summons was defective. The ground of opposition is that service was made in compliance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a).

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the memorandum set out in § 132.40.

See also § 132.60[2][b] for related uses.

[b] Person to Be Served

Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a) refers to "the person to be served as specified in Section 416.10, 416.20, 416.30, 416.40, or 416.50" of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The persons thus referred to are as follows:

- When the defendant is a corporation:
    - An agent for service of process designated as provided in Corp. Code § 202, 1502, 2105, or 2107 [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(a)];

- The president, chief executive officer, or other head of the corporation, or a vice president, secretary or assistant secretary, treasurer or assistant treasurer, a controller or chief financial officer, general manager, or person authorized by the corporation to receive service of process [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(b)];

- If the corporation is a bank, to a cashier or assistant cashier or to a person specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(a) or (b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(c)]; or

- As provided in Corp. Code § 1701 or 1702 (both relating to service on domestic corporation), or Corp. Code § 2110 or 2111 (both relating to service on foreign corporation) [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(d)].

- When the defendant is a corporation that has forfeited its charter or right to do business, or has dissolved:

  - A trustee of the corporation and its stockholders or members [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.20(a)]; or

  - As provided in Corp. Code § 2011 (dissolved corporation) or 2114 (foreign corporation which has withdrawn from business in California) [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.20(b)].

- When the defendant is a joint stock company or association: as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10 or 416.20 [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.30].

- When the defendant is a general or limited partnership: the person designated as agent for service of process as provided in Corp. Code § 24003 or a general partner or the general manager of the partnership [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.40(a)].

- When the defendant is any other form of unincorporated association:

  - The person designated as agent for service of process as provided in Corp. Code § 24003, or the president or other head of the association, or a vice president, secretary or assistant secretary, treasurer or assistant treasurer, general manager, or person authorized by the association to receive service of process [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.40(b)]; or

  - As provided in Corp. Code § 15700 (relating to service on secretary of state [repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 1223, § 11, operative July 1, 1984; now see Corp. Code § 15800]) or in Corp. Code § 24007 (relating to service, on court order, to member of association) [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.40(c)].

- When the defendant is a public entity: the clerk, secretary, president, presiding officer, or other head of the entity's governing body [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.50(a)]. (The term "public entity," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 416.50 is defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 416.50(b).)

For points and authorities supporting the contention that service on an entity's designated agent is a proper basis for the exercise of in personam jurisdiction, see § 132.104.

If the defendant is a business organization, form unknown, and the defendant is not a corporation with a registered agent for service of process listed with the Secretary of State, summons may be served by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint during usual business hours with the person who is apparently in charge of the office of the business organization, followed by mailed service of the summons and complaint to the person to be served at the place where the summons and complaint was left [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.95].

[c] When Service Is Deemed Complete

Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a) provides that service in the manner prescribed in the section is deemed complete on the tenth day after the mailing. Code Civ. Proc. § 415.95(b) provides that when service is made on a business organization, form unknown, service in the manner prescribed in the section is deemed complete on the tenth day after mailing.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service Effective Although Defendant Rendered Physical Service Impossible

In Khourie, Crew & Jaeger v. Sabek, Inc. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 269 Cal. Rptr. 687 , a process server went to the defendant corporation's place of business during usual business hours in order to serve its agent with a summons and complaint. The door was locked. A woman responded when the process server rang the bell. She refused to tell her name and refused to unlock the door. The process server explained his purpose and she stated that she was not accepting the papers. The process server then told her that he was leaving the summons and complaints outside the locked door and she watched as he did so. The process server also mailed a copy of the summons and complaint to defendant at its place of business. Subsequently, plaintiff's attorney wrote defendant pointing out that the summons and complaint had been served and gave notice that it would take defendant's default if a responsive pleading were not filed by a specified date, which was later extended on request of the defendant. No pleading was filed and defendant's default was entered. Defendant's motion to set aside the default was denied, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court said that the evident purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20 is to permit service to be completed on a good-faith attempt at physical service on a responsible person, plus actual notification of the action by mailing the summons and complaint to the appropriate party (220 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1013) . The court said it is established that a defendant will not be permitted to defeat service by rendering physical service impossible (220 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1013) , that the process server provided actual notice of the documents to the person apparently in charge of the defendant's office, and, prevented by that person from leaving them inside the office, left them on the other side of the office door. No more was required to effect service other than to mail to the defendant a copy of the summons and complaint, which the server did (220 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1012, 1014) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.62

§ 132.62 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Service at Defendant's Home, Business, or Mailing Address [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.60.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE A COPY OF THE SUMMONS AND OF THE COMPLAINT WERE PROPERLY SERVED ON THE DEFENDANT IN THE MANNER PRESCRIBED BY SECTION 415.20(b) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

A. When Personal Jurisdiction Attaches. [see § 132.60, Paragraph B].

B. Service of Process Act to Be Liberally Construed. [see § 132.60, Paragraph C].

C. Summons Left at Defendant's Home or Place of Business or Mailing Address. When a copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint cannot with reasonable diligence be personally delivered to the person to be served as specified in Code of Civil Procedure Section _____ [416.60, relating to service on a minor defendant or 416.70, relating to service on an adult defendant for whom a guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary has been appointed or 416.80, relating to service on a candidate for public office and the action relates to the candidacy or the election laws or 416.90, relating to service on a defendant who is person not otherwise specified in Code of Civil Procedure Sections 416.10-416.80], the summons may be served by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint at the person's dwelling house, usual place of abode, usual place of business, or usual mailing address other than a United States Postal Service post office box, in the presence of a competent member of the household or a person apparently in charge of his or her office, place of business, or usual mailing address other than a United States Postal Service post office box, at least 18 years of age, who shall be informed of the contents thereof, and by thereafter mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint (by first-class mail, postage prepaid) to the person to be served at the place where a copy of the summons and complaint were left (Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b)).

D. Constitutional Validity of Substituted Service. Substituted service under the provisions of Section 415.20(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure satisfies the constitutional requirements of service reasonably calculated to give an interested party actual notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard (Korea Exchange Bank v. Yang (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1471, 1474, 246 Cal. Rptr. 619).

[Optional] E. Reasonable Diligence Requirement Satisfied. When the actions of the process server in making substituted service were calculated to, and did, result in actual notice to the defendant, the requirement of reasonable diligence under Section 415.20(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure has been met (Espindola v. Nunez (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1389, 1393, 245 Cal. Rptr. 596).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a motion to quash service of summons made on the ground that the substituted service on the defendant was ineffective and void. The ground of opposition is that service was made in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b). Optional Paragraph E should be included when the defendant claims that plaintiff did not exercise reasonable diligence in attempting to make personal service.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, this memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 132.44.

See also § 132.60[2][b] for related uses.

[b] Person to Be Served

Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) refers to "[t]he person to be served as specified in Section 416.60, 416.70, 416.80, or 416.90" of the Code of Civil Procedure.

The persons thus referred to are as follows:

- When the defendant is a minor, the minor's parent, guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, or, if no such person can be found with reasonable diligence, any person having the care or control of the minor or with whom the minor resides or by whom the minor is employed, and the minor if he or she is at least 12 years of age [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.60].

- When the defendant is an adult ward or conservatee, the defendant's guardian, conservator, or similar fiduciary, and to the defendant (but, for good cause shown, the court in which the action is pending may dispense with delivery to the defendant) [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.70].

- When the defendant is a candidate for public office, the action arises out of such candidacy or the election laws, personal service cannot be effected with due diligence, and a court order is obtained, the Secretary of State or the county clerk appointed as the candidate's attorney for service of process, or any person employed in such person's office in the capacity of assistant or deputy [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.80; see Elec. Code § 12].

- When the defendant is a person not otherwise specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 416.10-416.80, the defendant or a person authorized by the defendant to receive service of process [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90; see §§ 132.63].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Constitutional Validity of Substituted Service

Korea Exchange Bank v. Yang (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1471, 246 Cal. Rptr. 619 , was an action for damages and judicial foreclosure against a husband and wife. The wife had guaranteed her husband's business debt to the plaintiff, a portion of which was also secured by a deed of trust encumbering their residence. They failed to repay the money lent, and plaintiff filed suit. The husband was personally served with a copy of the summons and complaint. The wife was served by substituted service pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b). Plaintiff obtained a default judgment against the husband and the wife, and the judgment assessed money damages against both the wife and husband with regard to the unsecured portion of their debt, and directed that the residence be sold in satisfaction of the secured debt. The property was sold for less than the full amount owed, and the plaintiff moved for a deficiency judgment. The court granted the motion as to the husband and denied it as to the wife because she had been served by substituted service. Plaintiff appealed.

In reversing the denial of plaintiff's motion as to the wife, the court of appeal, citing Restatement (Second), Judgments, § 2, Comment a, said that substituted service pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) by leaving a copy of the summons and of the complaint at the person's usual place of abode in the presence of a competent member of the household at least 18 years of age, who shall be informed of the contents thereof, and by thereafter mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, satisfies the constitutional requirements of service reasonably calculated to give an interested party actual notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard (200 Cal. App. 3d 1471, 1474) .

[b] Reasonable Diligence Requirement Satisfied

The facts and procedural background of Espindola v. Nunez (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1389, 245 Cal. Rptr. 596 , are discussed in § 132.60[3][a]. In reversing the order quashing service of summons, the court said that it was influenced by the Supreme Court's admonition in Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 778, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180 (discussed in § 132.60[3][a]), to construe the process statutes liberally to effectuate service and uphold the jurisdiction of the court if actual notice has been received by the defendant (199 Cal. App. 3d 1389, 1393) . The court held that since the actions of the process server were calculated to, and did, result in actual notice to the defendant, the requirement of reasonable diligence under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) had been met (199 Cal. App. 3d 1389, 1393) .

Note that the court criticized and distinguished Evartt v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 795, 152 Cal. Rptr. 836 , which is discussed in §§ 132.44[3][a] and 132.44[3][c].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to

DismissCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.63

§ 132.63 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Service on Defendant's Agent [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.60.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE A COPY OF THE SUMMONS AND OF THE COMPLAINT WERE DELIVERED TO A PERSON AUTHORIZED TO RECEIVE SERVICE OF PROCESS BY THE DEFENDANT.

A. When Personal Jurisdiction Attaches. [see § 132.60, Paragraph B].

B. Service of Process Act to Be Liberally Construed. [see § 132.60, Paragraph B].

C. Delivery to Person Authorized to Receive Service. A summons may be served on a person not otherwise specified in Sections 416.10 through 416.80 of the Code of Civil Procedure by delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to such person or to a person authorized by him or her to receive service of process (Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90).

[Optional] D. Specific Authorization Unnecessary. The person to whom a copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint are delivered pursuant to Section 416.90 of the Code of Civil Procedure need not have been specifically authorized to receive service of process if the relationship between that person and the person whose authority he or she has is close and enduring enough to make it highly probable that the person on whose behalf service was thus made will receive actual notice of the lawsuit (Warner Bros. Records, Inc. v. Golden West Music Sales (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1017-1018, 112 Cal. Rptr. 71).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a motion to quash service of summons made on the ground that the substituted service on the defendant was ineffective and void. The ground of opposition is that the defendant is not a person or entity otherwise specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 416.10-416.80, and hence service under Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90 by delivery of a copy of the summons and of the complaint to a person authorized by the defendant to receive service on his or her behalf was authorized and is valid.

Service of summons pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90 on a person or entity covered in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 416.10-416.80 would be improper and properly quashed [see Warner Bros. Records, Inc. v. Golden West Music Sales (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1016-1018, 112 Cal. Rptr. 71 (discussed under § 132.63[3][a]). The persons referred to in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 416.10-416.50 are listed in § 132.61[2][b]. The persons specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 416.60-416.80 are listed in § 132.62[2][b]].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 132.40.

See also § 132.60[2][b] for related uses.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Specific Authorization Unnecessary

Warner Bros. Records, Inc. v. Golden West Music Sales (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 112 Cal. Rptr. 71 , was a class action by recording companies for damages, an accounting, and injunctive relief, arising out of the alleged "pirating" of musical and other performances recorded by the plaintiffs. Named as defendants were three individuals, individually and as copartners in a law partnership, 20 other persons, both in their individual capacities and "doing business as" various named entities, seven separate business entities, and 500 "Does." Service of process on the named defendants, other than the law partners, was made by handing copies of the summons and the complaint to one of the law partners as agent for each of the defendants pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90. Several defendants moved to quash service on the ground the law partner was not authorized to receive service in their behalf. The trial court granted the motions, stating that, under Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90, to be an agent for the service of process, the law partner's authorization had to be real and actual and could not be inferred or implied.

The court of appeal affirmed the orders with respect to the business entities on the ground they were not subject to service under Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90 because they were business entities "otherwise specified" in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 416.10-416.80 (36 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1016) . With respect to the individual defendants, however, the court of appeal, after quoting the Judicial Council's official approved comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90, said that the Judicial Council further observed that a specific appointment is not required, but the principal-agent relationship must be close and enduring enough to make it highly probable that the defendant will receive actual notice (36 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1017) . The court said that this statement by the authors of Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90 is in accord with their expressed intention that the recently enacted statutes governing service of process should be liberally construed to effectuate service and uphold the jurisdiction of the court if actual notice has been received by the defendant, and in the last analysis the question of service should be resolved by considering each situation from a practical standpoint (citing Pasadena Medi-Center Associates v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 773, 778, 108 Cal. Rptr. 828, 511 P.2d 1180 , discussed in § 132.60[3][a]) (36 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1017) . The court said that an attorney, as well as any other person, could be actually or ostensibly authorized to receive service of process on behalf of the principal, and that characterizing the attorney as an independent contractor and not as an employee or agent was, in effect, irrelevant to the determination of the validity of substituted service under Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90; that the essential factor as whether te law partner's relationship with the individual defendants may have been sufficiently close and enduring to make it reasonably certain that they would be apprised of the service (36 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1018) . Th court said that the trial court's stated reason for granting the motions was in error and reversed the orders as to the individual defendants with directions to the trial court to determine the nature of the relationship between the defendants and the attorney to determine whether the attorney was their ostensible agent to receive service of process or not (36 Cal. App. 3d 1012, 1018-1019) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.64

§ 132.64 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Service Conformed With Statutory Requirements--Service Pursuant to Direction of Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.60.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE SERVICE WAS MADE IN THE MANNER DIRECTED BY THE ORDER OF THIS COURT.

A. When Personal Jurisdiction Attaches. [see § 132.60, Paragraph B].

B. Service of Process Act to Be Liberally Construed. [see § 132.60, Paragraph C].

C. Service in Manner Directed by Court. When no provision is made by law for the service of summons, the court in which the action is pending may direct that summons be served in a manner which is reasonably calculated to give actual notice to the party to be served (Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30).

[Optional] D. Service in Dissolution Proceeding. When the respondent spouse in a dissolution proceeding cannot be found and the petitioning spouse is indigent and cannot afford the cost of service by publication, the court may order that summons be served on the respondent spouse by mail at his or her last known address and posted notice (Cohen v. Board of Supervisors (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 236, 239, 97 Cal. Rptr. 550).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a motion to quash service of summons made on the ground that the substituted service on the defendant was ineffective and void. The ground of opposition is that the service was made in the manner ordered by the court and the order was proper.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 132.40.

See also § 132.60[2][b] for related uses.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service in Dissolution Proceeding

Cohen v. Board of Supervisors (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 236, 97 Cal. Rptr. 550 , was a combined proceeding in mandate and an action for declaratory relief to compel the respondent board of supervisors to pay for the publication of summons in dissolution of marriage and declaration of nullity proceedings where the petitioners were indigent and unable to pay the cost of service by publication and their spouses could not be found. The trial court sustained a demurrer to both causes of action and denied the writ of mandate.

The court of appeal affirmed. Nevertheless, the court pointed out that in Boddie v. Connecticut (1971) 401 U.S. 371, 382, 91 S. Ct. 780, 28 L. Ed. 2d 113 , the United States Supreme Court held that due process of law prohibits a state from denying, solely because of inability to pay court fees and costs for service of process, access to its courts to indigents who, in good faith, seek judicial dissolution of their marriages, and that the Supreme Court had said in that case that "reliable alternatives exist to service of process by a state-paid sheriff if the State is unwilling to assume the cost of official service. This is perforce true of service by publication which is the method of notice least calculated to bring to a potential defendant's attention the pendency of judicial proceedings. ... We think in this case service at defendant's last known address by mail and posted notice is equally effective as publication in a newspaper" (20 Cal. App. 3d 236, 238) . The court of appeal explained that Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 provides for service by publication if upon affidavit it appears to the satisfaction of the court in which the action is pending that the party to be served cannot with reasonable diligence be served in other specified manner, and that a cause of action exists against the party or he is a necessary or proper party to the action. But this is not the only pertinent statute. Section 413.30 of the ... [Code of Civil Procedure] directs that where no provision is made in "this chapter or other law" for service of summons, the court in which the action is pending may direct that summons be served in a manner which is reasonably calculated to give actual notice to the party to be served. Obviously, such a "manner" is at hand, for the Supreme Court has described it in Boddie ... as service at a defendant's last known address and posting. The other prerequisite mentioned in section 413.30 [of the Code of Civil Procedure] is also present, in that there really is no other provision made by law for service, because although publication is theoretically possible, practically there is no way of efficient publication save by the doubtful expedient of ordering public officials to make expenditures which no statute authorizes them to make. This would be a measure justifiable, if at all, only if it were the sole available means of carrying into execution the service of summons which plaintiffs, as indigent litigants, rightfully demand as an incident of due process (20 Cal. App. 3d 236, 239) .

The court added that since neither the superior court nor any of its officers had been made a party defendant it could not direct positive action by the court, but it affirmed the judgment on the ground plaintiffs had an adequate remedy by the alternative method of service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30, a remedy which they had not yet sought in the superior court (20 Cal. App. 3d 236, 239) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.65

§ 132.65 Opposing Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10] on Ground of Defective Service or Summons--Summons Substantially Complied With Statutory Requirements [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 132.60.]

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE SUMMONS IS IN SUBSTANTIAL COMPLIANCE WITH STATUTORY NOTICE REQUIREMENTS.

A. When Personal Jurisdiction Attaches. [see § 132.60, Paragraph B].

B. Service of Process Act to Be Liberally Construed. [see § 132.60, Paragraph C].

C. Substantial Compliance With Statutory Provisions. In order to support jurisdiction, a summons need only substantially comply with the provisions of Section 412.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure governing service of summons on a corporate defendant (Cory v. Crocker National Bank (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 665, 670-671, 177 Cal. Rptr. 150).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The memorandum of points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a motion to quash service of summons made on the ground that the summons is defective. The ground of opposition is that the summons substantially complies with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 (contents of summons for corporation or unincorporated association).

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 132.46.

See also § 132.60[2][b] for related uses.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance With Statutory Provisions

In Cory v. Crocker National Bank (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 665, 177 Cal. Rptr. 150 , an action against a corporate defendant for accounting, escheat, and report and delivery of unclaimed property, defendant filed a motion to quash service on the ground that the summons, which was served on the defendant's operations manager, failed to show the name of the defendant and to indicate that the person receiving service did so on behalf of the corporation. The trial court granted the motion, but the court of appeal reversed. The court discussed the rule that provisions of the law governing service of summons on corporations are to be liberally construed to effectuate service and uphold jurisdiction so long as actual notice has been received by a defendant. The court noted that no other defendants were named in the action and that the officer accepting service had stamped the summons to indicate that he was accepting on behalf of the corporation. In light of these facts, the summons could be found to have substantially complied with the statute and to have given actual notice of the action to defendant. Such substantial compliance was sufficient to uphold jurisdiction (123 Cal. App. 3d 665, 670-671) .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
B. Defective Service of Summons

13-132 California Points & Authorities §§ 132.66-132.69

[Reserved]

§§ 132.66[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 13 Chapters 130-139 JUDGES---to---JURISDICTION
CHAPTER 132 JURISDICTION: PERSONAL JURISDICTION AND INCONVENIENT FORUM
PART II. FORMS
C. Bases of Jurisdiction

13-132 California Points & Authorities § 132.70

§ 132.70 Supporting Motion to Quash Service of Summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)] on Ground That Court Lacks Personal Jurisdiction--Nonresident Defendant Lacks Minimal Contacts With California--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO QUASH SER-
vs.	)	VICE OF SUMMONS
_____ [name],	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)]
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION TO QUASH SERVICE OF SUMMONS FOR LACK OF JURISDICTION SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS A _____ [NONRESIDENT OF CALIFORNIA or FOREIGN _____ (CORPORATION or ASSOCIATION or PARTNERSHIP)], WAS SERVED WITH SUMMONS OUTSIDE CALIFORNIA, AND LACKS SUFFICIENT CONTACTS, TIES, OR RELATIONS WITH CALIFORNIA THAT ARE REQUIRED BY DUE PROCESS OF LAW TO SUPPORT THIS COURT'S EXERCISE OF PERSONAL JURISDICTION OVER _____ [IT or HIM or HER].

A. Motion to Quash Service of Summons. On or before the last day of his or her time to plead, or within such further time as the court may for good cause allow, a defendant may serve and file a notice of motion to quash service of summons on the ground the court lacks jurisdiction over him or her (Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)).

B. Requirement of Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant. A state court must have personal jurisdiction over a defendant in order to impose on him or her a personal liability or obligation in favor of the plaintiff (Kulko v. California Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 91, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132 ; Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 799, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477 ; see also World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 291, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490).

C. Due Process of Law Required. This state may not deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law (United States Constitution, Amendment XIV; California Constitution, Article I, § 7). A court of this state may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant only on a basis that is consistent with this requirement (see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10).

D. Due Process Requires Reasonable Notice and Minimum Contacts to Support Exercise of Personal Jurisdiction. The existence of personal jurisdiction depends on the presence of reasonable notice to the defendant that an action has been brought, and a sufficient connection between the defendant and the forum state as to make it fair to require defense of the action in the forum (Kulko v. California Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 91, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132). The concept of a sufficient connection with the forum state is synonymous with the principle of minimal contacts (see Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 800, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477).

E. Minimum Contacts Requirement. Due process requires that, in order to subject a defendant who is not present within the territory of the forum to a judgment in personam, the defendant have certain minimum contacts with the forum such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice (International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 316, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95).

[Optional] F. Minimum Contacts Requirement Applies to Actions in Personam, in Rem, and Quasi in Rem. The minimum contacts requirement applies whether the action or proceeding is in personam, in rem, or quasi in rem (Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 199 n.17, 207, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683).

[Optional] G. Minimum Contacts Requirement Applies to Both Individual and Corporate Defendants. The minimum contacts requirement applies to individuals as well as to corporations and associations (see Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 800, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477 ; Arnesen v. Raymond Lee Organization, Inc. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 991, 996, 107 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; see also World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 294, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490 ; International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 319, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95).

H. Effect of Minimum Contacts Requirement. The concept of minimum contacts performs two related, but distinguishable, functions: (1) it protects the defendant against the burdens of litigating in a distant or inconvenient forum; and (2) it acts to ensure that the states, through their courts, do not reach out beyond the limits imposed on them by their status as coequal sovereigns in the federal system (World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 291-292, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490).

[Optional] I. Minimum Contacts Lacking When Defendant Has No Contacts With State. A state may not make binding a judgment against an individual or corporate defendant with which the state has no contacts, ties, or relations (World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 294, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490 ; Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 216, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 ; International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 319, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95).

[In an appropriate case, add additional points and authorities set out in §§ 132.72 -132.88, supporting the argument that the exercise of jurisdiction would be improper under the particular facts of the case.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in support of a motion to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1), on the ground that the court has no proper basis for exercising personal jurisdiction over the defendant, because the defendant is a nonresident individual or legal entity who lacks the minimal contacts with California that are necessary under constitutional due process limitations to support the court's exercise of such jurisdiction. The memorandum sets forth general points of law regarding the requirement, imposed by constitutional due process considerations, that a defendant have certain minimum contacts with the forum state before the court may exercise personal jurisdiction over the defendant.

Optional Paragraph F may be used when appropriate to show that the minimum contacts requirement applies in actions in rem or quasi in rem as well as in actions in personam [see also discussion in §§ 132.04, 132.05[1]].

Optional Paragraph G may be used when appropriate to show that the minimum contacts requirement applies to individual defendants as well as to defendants that are corporations or associations.

Optional Paragraph I should be used when the defendant has no contacts whatever with California.

For additional points and authorities supporting a motion to quash for lack of an adequate basis of jurisdiction in particular situations, see §§ 132.72 -132.88.

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used in support of a motion by a third-party cross defendant to quash service of the summons on a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)] for lack of in personam jurisdiction, or in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to grant a motion to quash after it has declined to do so (Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c)). They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[c] Federal Actions

Under the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, the same rules apply to federal actions. For example, in federal suits arising under a federal court's admiralty jurisdiction, the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment determines whether the court has personal jurisdiction over the defendant. In addition, the state's long-arm statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10, 415.10) must be applied to determine the defendant's amenability to suit in the forum [Pacific Atlantic Trading Co. v. M/V Main Exp. (9th Cir. 1985) 758 F.2d 1325, 1327] .

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons, and related papers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

For memoranda of points and authorities that may, in an appropriate case, be submitted in opposition to the foregoing memorandum, see § 132.100 et seq.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement of Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

In Kulko v. California Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132 , a man and woman, both domiciliaries of New York, were married in 1959 during the man's three-day stopover in California en route from a military base in Texas to a tour of duty in Korea. The wife immediately returned to New York after the marriage, as did the husband after his tour of duty. The parties continued to reside in New York, where they had two children, until March 1972, when they separated, and the wife moved to San Francisco, California. After the separation, the parties entered into a separation agreement, executed in New York, under which the children were to remain with their father during the school year, but would spend specified vacation periods with the mother, to whom the father agreed to pay child support for the periods they were in her custody. Immediately thereafter, the wife obtained a divorce in Haiti, and the separation agreement was incorporated in the divorce decree. A year later, the parties' daughter told her father that she wanted to remain with her mother in California following her next vacation. The father bought her a one-way plane ticket, and she moved. Two years later the parties' son took up residence with his mother in California after the mother, without the father's knowledge, sent the son a plane ticket at his request. The mother then commenced a proceeding in California against the father seeking to establish the Haitian divorce decree as a California judgment, and to modify the judgment so as to award her full custody of the children, and to increase the father's child support obligations. The father moved to quash service of the summons on the ground he was not a California resident and lacked sufficient contacts with California to warrant the state's assertion of personal jurisdiction over him. The trial court denied the motion, and the court of appeal affirmed. The California Supreme Court upheld the trial court, holding that the exercise of personal jurisdiction over the nonresident father was reasonable because he had purposefully availed himself of the benefits and protections of California's laws [see § 132.76] by sending his daughter to California to live with her mother.

In holding that the motion to quash was erroneously denied and reversing the judgment of the California Supreme Court, the Supreme Court of the United States said that the *due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution*operates as a limitation on the jurisdiction of state courts to enter judgments affecting rights or interests of nonresident defendants, and that it has long been the rule that a valid judgment imposing a personal obligation or duty in favor of the plaintiff may be entered only by a court having jurisdiction over the person of the defendant (436 U.S. 84, 91) .

Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477 , was a mandate proceeding arising out of a proceeding to establish as a California judgment a Massachusetts divorce judgment. The divorce judgment required the father to pay child support and provided (1) for joint custody of the parties' three children, and (2) that the children were not be taken from Massachusetts without permission of the court or the written consent of the other parent. The mother subsequently moved to California where she remarried. The father signed a written agreement, prepared by him, allowing the children to visit their mother in California during the summer of 1971, providing for the sharing of the costs of the children's round-trip air fare from Boston to San Francisco, providing for the children's support by the mother while in her custody, and specifically providing that the children were to return to Massachusetts no later than the end of August 1971. He mailed the agreement to the mother in California where she signed it. On August 17, 1971, the mother commenced the proceeding to establish the Massachusetts divorce judgment as a California judgment and to have the judgment modified to award the custody of the children to the mother, to require the father to pay for their support, and for attorney's fees incurred in the prosecution of the proceeding. At the time the proceeding was filed, the mother secured issuance of an order directing the husband to appear and show cause on August 31, 1971, why the court should not grant the relief sought. A copy of the complaint, summons, and order to show cause were served on the husband by certified airmail special delivery in New Bedford, Massachusetts. The husband then filed a motion to quash service of the order to show cause on the ground the California court did not have jurisdiction over him. The motion was denied. The husband appeared specially on the order to show cause to object to the jurisdiction of the court. The court nevertheless received evidence from the wife and made an order awarding custody to the wife pending trial of the proceeding, ordering the husband to pay $75 per month child support for each child, and reserving other matters in the order to show cause for trial. The husband petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate directing the trial court to quash service of the order to show cause.

In granting the writ insofar as the order to show cause purported to give the trial court personal jurisdiction over the husband for purposes of child support, and annulling the child support order because there was no basis for in personam jurisdiction over the father, the court of appeal said in order to exercise jurisdiction over the subject matter [of an action in personam], the court must secure personal jurisdiction over the defendant, and, citing Restatement (Second), Conflicts of Law, p. 103, said that a state must have personal jurisdiction over a defendant in order to impose on him or her through its courts a personal liability or obligation in favor of the plaintiff (23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 799) .

The facts and procedural background of World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490 , are discussed under § 132.70[3][g]. In reversing the judgment of the Oklahoma Supreme Court ruling that two New York corporations were subject to the state's in personam jurisdiction in the underlying products liability action, the United States Supreme Court said that due process requires that the defendant be given adequate notice of the suit and be subject to the personal jurisdiction of the court (444 U.S. 286, 291) .

[b] Due Process of Law Required

Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10, California's long-arm statute, provides that "[a] court of this state may exercise jurisdiction on any basis not inconsistent with the Constitution of this state or of the United States." For the purpose of exercising personal jurisdiction, the constitutional provision chiefly applicable is the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment: a state may not deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law [U.S. Const., amend. XIV; see also Cal. Const., art. I, § 7].

[c] Due Process Requires Reasonable Notice and Minimum Contacts to Support Exercise of Personal Jurisdiction

The facts and procedural background of Kulko v. California Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132 , are discussed under § 132.70[3][a]. In holding that the denial of the motion to quash was error and reversing the judgment of the California Supreme Court, the Supreme Court of the United States said that the existence of personal jurisdiction depends on the presence of reasonable notice to the defendant that an action has been brought, and a sufficient connection between the defendant and the forum state as to make it fair to require defense of the action in the forum (436 U.S. 84, 91) .

The facts and procedural background of Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477 , are discussed under § 132.32[3][a]. In granting the petition for writ of mandate insofar as the order to show cause purported to give the trial court personal jurisdiction over the husband for purposes of child support, and annulling the child support order because there was no basis for in personam jurisdiction over the father, the court of appeal said that the concept of relationship with the forum state is synonymous and a reflection of the principle of minimal contacts, and that the terms "relationship to the state" and "minimal contracts" [sic] are synonymous (23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 800) .

[d] Minimum Contacts Requirement

In International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95 , a Delaware corporation appeared specially before the State of Washington's unemployment agency and moved to set aside an order and notice of assessment of delinquent contributions which that office found the corporation was required to pay on the basis of the activities of the corporation's salesmen, who resided in, and were actively engaged in promoting the sales of the corporation's products in, Washington. The motion was made on the ground, among others, that the corporation's activities in Washington were insufficient to manifest its "presence" there and that, in the absence of such presence, state courts were without jurisdiction; consequently, it was a denial of due process for Washington to subject the corporation to suit. The motion was denied by an appeal tribunal, and the commissioner of the unemployment agency was found to be entitled to collect the delinquent contributions.

The Washington state courts affirmed, and, in a landmark decision, the United States Supreme Court also affirmed. Although the Court found that the corporation was amenable to suit in Washington, since it had sufficient contacts or ties with Washington to permit the state to enforce the assessed obligations, the Court held that due process requires that, in order to subject a defendant to a judgment in personam, where the defendant is not present within the territory of the forum, the defendant must have certain minimum contacts with the state such that maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice (326 U.S. 310, 316) .

[e] Minimum Contacts Requirement Applies to Actions in Personam, in Rem, and Quasi in Rem

Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 , was a shareholder's derivative suit filed in a Delaware court by a nonresident of Delaware naming as defendants a corporation (incorporated in Delaware but having its principal place of business in Arizona), its subsidiary, and 28 present or former corporate officers or directors, all of whom were nonresidents of Delaware, alleging that the individual defendants had violated their duties to the corporation by causing it and its subsidiary to engage in actions (which occurred in Oregon) that resulted in corporate liability for substantial damages in a private antitrust suit and a large fine in a criminal contempt action. The plaintiff simultaneously filed a motion for sequestration of the Delaware property of the individual defendants (stock, options, warrants, and various corporate rights), and a sequestration order was issued pursuant to which the shares and options belonging to 21 defendants were seized and "stop transfer" orders were placed on the corporate books. The individual defendants made a special appearance to quash service of process and to vacate the sequestration order. Other than the presence of the shares of stock in Delaware, the individual defendants had no contacts with that state, and thus the jurisdiction of the court was quasi in rem, the shares of stock being held by the Delaware court in order to satisfy plaintiff's claim against the defendants. The trial court denied the motion to vacate and the Delaware Supreme Court affirmed.

On appeal to the United States Supreme Court, defendants argued in part that the Delaware sequestration statute as applied against them violated the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment because it permitted Delaware to exercise jurisdiction despite the absence of sufficient contacts among the defendants, the litigation, and Delaware [see § 132.76].

The Supreme Court agreed and reversed the judgment of the Delaware Supreme Court. In overruling prior cases which were decided on the rationales of Pennoyer v. Neff (1878) 95 U.S. 714, 24 L. Ed. 565 , and Harris v. Balk (1905) 198 U.S. 215, 25 S. Ct. 625, 49 L. Ed 1023 , the Court stated that all assertions of state court jurisdiction (that is, in personam, in rem, or quasi in rem) must be evaluated according to the standards set forth in International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95 (discussed under § 132.70[3][d]), and its progeny (433

U.S. 186, 212) . Thus, the Court held that Delaware could not proceed with the action based on a theory that it had jurisdiction to determine plaintiff's claim in defendants' property, that is, based on jurisdiction quasi in rem. The Court reasoned that the phrase "judicial jurisdiction over a thing" is a customary, elliptical way of referring to jurisdiction over the interests of persons in a thing (433 U.S. 186, 207) . This recognition led to the conclusion that in order to justify an exercise of jurisdiction in rem or quasi in rem, the basis for jurisdiction must be sufficient to justify exercising jurisdiction over the interests of persons in a thing (433 U.S. 186, 199 n.17, 207) . The standard for determining whether an exercise of jurisdiction over the interests of persons is consistent with the due process clause is the minimum contacts standard elucidated in International Shoe (433 U.S. 186, 207) . The Court thus held that the presence of defendant's property within the state would not support the state court's exercise of jurisdiction when such property was completely unrelated to the plaintiff's cause of action and when there were otherwise insufficient ties among the defendant, the state, and the litigation to support the state's exercise of jurisdiction (433 U.S. 186, 209, 213) .

[f] Minimum Contacts Requirement Applies to Both Individual and Corporate Defendants

The facts and procedural background of Titus v. Superior Court (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 792, 100 Cal. Rptr. 477 , are discussed under [a], above. In granting the petition for writ of mandate insofar as the order to show cause purported to give the trial court personal jurisdiction over the husband for purposes of child support, and annulling the child support order because there was no basis for in personam jurisdiction over the father, the court of appeal said that it is well established that in order for a relationship between a nonresident defendant and the forum state to exist which gives a state judicial jurisdiction over an individual, that individual must have had minimal contacts with the state (23 Cal. App. 3d 792 800) .

In Arnesen v. Raymond Lee Organization, Inc. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 991, 107 Cal. Rptr. 744 , the court of appeal, in affirming an order quashing service of summons on nonresident individual defendants on the ground they lacked sufficient contacts with California to justify the exercise of in personam jurisdiction over them, said that jurisdiction based on minimum contacts is exercisable over both individuals and corporations (31 Cal. App. 3d 991, 996) .

The facts and procedural background of World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490 , are discussed under § 132.70[3][g]. In reversing the judgment of the Oklahoma Supreme Court ruling that two New York corporations were subject to in the state's in personam jurisdiction in the underlying products liability action, the Supreme Court said that the due process clause does not contemplate that a state may make binding a judgment in personam against an individual or corporate defendant with which the state has no contacts, ties, or relations (444 U.S. 286, 294) .

The facts and procedural background of International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95 , are discussed under § 132.70[3][d]. In the course of announcing the minimum contacts requirement, the Court said that the due process clause does not contemplate that a state may make binding a judgment in personam against an individual or corporate defendant with which the state has no contacts, ties, or relations (326 U.S. 310, 319) .

[g] Effect of Minimum Contacts Requirement

In World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490 , a husband and wife, both New York residents, had purchased a foreign car from a New York retailer. A year later while the family was driving to its new home in Arizona the car was struck from behind by another car while they were passing through Oklahoma. The foreign car caught fire, and the wife and the couple's two children were severely burned. The family brought a products liability suit in Oklahoma, claiming their injuries resulted from the defective design and placement of the car's gas tank and fuel system. They joined as defendants the car manufacturer (a foreign corporation), its importer, the importer's regional distributor (a New York corporation), and the latter's retail dealer (also a New York corporation). The New York corporations entered special appearances, claiming the exercise of jurisdiction over them would offend the limitations imposed on the state's jurisdiction by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Although there had been no showing in the trial court that the defendants had any contact with Oklahoma other than the presence in Oklahoma of the car that was sold to the plaintiffs, the Oklahoma court rejected the contention. The Supreme Court of Oklahoma denied a writ of prohibition, holding that personal jurisdiction over the defendants was authorized by the state's "long-arm" statute. The New York corporations petitioned the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari.

The Court granted the petition and reversed the judgment of the Supreme Court of Oklahoma. The Court said that a state court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant only so long as there exist minimum contacts between the defendant and the forum state, and that the concept of minimum contacts performs two related, but distinguishable, functions: (1) it protects the defendant against the burdens of litigating in a distant or inconvenient forum; and (2) it acts to ensure that the states, through their courts, do not reach out beyond the limits imposed on them by their status as coequal sovereigns in a federal system (444 U.S. 286, 291-292) .

[h] Minimum Contacts Lacking When Defendant Has No Contacts With State

The facts and procedural background of World-Wide Volkswagen Corp. v. Woodson (1980) 444 U.S. 286, 100 S. Ct. 559, 62 L. Ed. 2d 490 , are discussed under § 132.70[3][g]. In reversing the judgment of the Oklahoma Supreme Court on the ground the defendants had no contacts, ties, or relations with the State of Oklahoma (444 U.S. 286, 299) , the United States Supreme Court said that the due process clause does not contemplate that a state may make binding a judgment in personam against an individual or corporate defendant with which the state has no contacts, ties, or relations (444 U.S. 286, 294) . The Court found in the record before it a total absence of those affiliating circumstances that are a prerequisite to any exercise of state court jurisdiction. The Court pointed out that petitioners carried on no activity whatsoever in Oklahoma; they closed no sales and performed no services there; they availed themselves of none of the privileges and benefits of Oklahoma law; they solicited no business there either through salespersons or through advertising reasonably calculated to reach the state, and that the record did not show that the petitioners regularly sold cars at wholesale or retail to Oklahoma customers or residents or that they indirectly, through others, served or sought to serve the Oklahoma market. The Court said that, in short, the plaintiffs sought to base jurisdiction on one, isolated occurrence and whatever inferences can be drawn from it: the fortuitous circumstance that a single Audi automobile, sold in New York to New York residents, happened to suffer an accident while passing through Oklahoma (444 U.S. 286, 295) .

The facts and procedural background of Shaffer v. Heitner (1977) 433 U.S. 186, 97 S. Ct. 2569, 53 L. Ed. 2d 683 , are discussed under § 132.70[3][e]. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court, quoting International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95 , said that the due process clause does not contemplate that a state may make binding a judgment against an individual or corporate defendant with which the state has no contacts, ties, or relations (433 U.S. 186).

The facts and procedural background of International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95 , are discussed under § 132.70[3][d]. In affirming state court jurisdiction, the Court stated further that the due process clause does not contemplate that a state may make binding a judgment in personam against an individual or corporate defendant with which the state has no contacts, ties, or relations (326 U.S. 310, 319) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirement of Personal Jurisdiction Over Defendant

In Kaiser Aetna v. Deal (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 896, 150 Cal. Rptr. 615 , the court of appeal, in affirming an order quashing the service of summons on nonresident defendants in an action arising out of allegedly fraudulent land transactions, the court of appeal said that the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment operates as a limitation on the jurisdiction of state courts to enter judgments affecting rights or interests of nonresident defendants, and that it has long been the rule that a valid judgment imposing a personal obligation or duty in favor of the plaintiff may be entered only by a court having jurisdiction over the person of the defendant (86 Cal. App. 3d 896, 899) .

[b] Due Process Requires Reasonable Notice and Minimum Contacts to Support Exercise of Personal Jurisdiction

In Kaiser Aetna v. Deal (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 896, 150 Cal. Rptr. 615 , the court of appeal, in affirming an order quashing the service of summons on nonresident defendants in an action arising out of allegedly fraudulent land transactions, the court of appeal said that the existence of personal jurisdiction depends on the existence of reasonable notice to the defendant that an action has been brought, and a sufficient connection between the defendant and the forum state as to make it fair to require defense of an action in the forum (86 Cal. App. 3d 896, 899) .

[c] Minimum Contacts Requirement

The facts and procedural background of Asahi Metal Industry Co. v. Superior Court (1987) 480 U.S. 102, 107 S. Ct. 1026, 94 L. Ed. 2d 92 , are discussed in § 132.77[3][d]. In reversing the California Supreme Court, which had upheld the jurisdiction of the California superior court over a Japanese company in a cross action for indemnity filed in a products liability case, the United States Supreme Court said that the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment limits the power of a state court to exert personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant, and that the constitutional touchstone of the determination whether an exercise of personal jurisdiction comports with due process remains whether the defendant purposefully established minimum contacts in the forum state (480 U.S. 102, 108-109) . The Court held that under the facts of the case the exertion of personal jurisdiction over the Japanese company by the California Superior Court exceeded the limits of due process, and that the strictures of the due process clause forbid a state court from exercising personal jurisdiction over the Japanese company under circumstances that would offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice (480 U.S. 102, 113) .

The facts and procedural background of Helicopteros Nacionales de Colombia v. Hall (1984) 466 U.S. 408, 104 S. Ct. 1868, 80 L. Ed. 2d 404 , are discussed in § 132.76[3][b]. In holding that the defendant's contacts with Texas were insufficient to satisfy the requirements of due process and reversing the judgment of the Supreme Court of Texas (466 U.S. 408, 418-419) , the Supreme Court of the United States said that the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment operates to limit the power of a state to assert in personam jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant and that due process requirements are satisfied when in personam jurisdiction is asserted over a nonresident corporate defendant that has certain minimum contacts with the forum such that maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice (466 U.S. 408, 413-414) .

The facts and procedural background of Kulko v. California Superior Court (1978) 436 U.S. 84, 98 S. Ct. 1690, 56 L. Ed. 2d 132 , are discussed under § 132.70[3][a]. In holding that the denial of the motion to quash was error and reversing the judgment of the California Supreme Court, the Supreme Court of the United States said that the constitutional standard for determining whether a state may enter a binding judgment against a nonresident defendant is that set forth in International Shoe Co. v. Washington (1945) 326 U.S. 310, 66 S. Ct. 154, 90 L. Ed. 95 ; that a defendant have certain minimum contacts with the forum state such that maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice (436 U.S. 84, 92) .

In Pavlovich v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 262, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 , the California Supreme Court considered for the first time the scope of personal jurisdiction based solely on Internet use, and concluded that a California court improperly exercised personal jurisdiction over a defendant based on a posting on an Internet website. This case involved a defendant whose sole contact with California was the posting of source code on his Internet website, accessible to any person with Internet access; the source code allowed users to decrypt data contained on DVDs and enable the placement of the decrypted data onto computer hard drives or other storage media. The defendant owned no property, had no telephone listing, and conducted no business in California. The website merely posted information and had no interactive features. Because of the defendant's apparent lack of minimum contacts with California, the court reduced the matter to the consideration of one question: whether the defendant's knowledge that his tortious conduct may harm certain industries centered in California (the motion picture, computer, and consumer electronics industries) is sufficient to establish express aiming at California. Although the record lacked any indication that the defendant knew that California residents would be detrimentally affected by his actions, plaintiffs suggested that jurisdiction exists solely because the defendant's tortious conduct had a foreseeable effect in California. The court rejected this argument, finding that mere foreseeability is not enough for jurisdiction: "Because finding jurisdiction in this case would effectively subject all intentional tortfeasors whose conduct may harm industries in California to jurisdiction in California, we decline to do so" (29 Cal. 4th 262, 278) . The court further held that Nam Tai Electronics, Inc. v. Titzer (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769 , discussed below, is disapproved to the extent it is contrary to the holding in Pavlovich (29 Cal. 4th 262, 278) .

In Carretti v. Italpast (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126 , a pasta machine distributor with an office in California argued that the manufacturer, which sold products to him in Italy, had the requisite minimum contacts to support jurisdiction in California. In rejecting this argument, the court noted that the manufacturer did not promote the sale of its goods in California at all; it simply sold goods to a buyer who showed up on its doorstep in Italy, willing to pay the price. The minimal resales of the product in California by the distributor, standing alone, do not amount to the substantial continuous and systematic contacts with the forum state necessary for the exercise of general jurisdiction over a foreign corporation doing business in its home country (101 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1253-1254) .

In Nam Tai Electronics, Inc. v. Titzer (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 769 , the court considered whether specific jurisdiction should be extended over a non-resident defendant who posted allegedly defamatory messages on Yahoo!, a California-based Internet message board. In order to avail himself of the opportunity to post on a Yahoo! message board, the defendant was required to register a nickname or alias known as a Yahoo! ID, and agree to Yahoo!'s terms of service; among other things, those terms include a promise not to post any content that is unlawful, defamatory, libelous, or otherwise objectionable, and that the relationship between the person registering and Yahoo! shall be governed by the laws of the State of California, and that both agree to submit to the personal and exclusive jurisdiction of the California courts. The plaintiff in this matter was not Yahoo!, however, it was the party about whom the allegedly defamatory messages were about.

Plaintiff initially contended that defendant made himself subject to jurisdiction in California by posting several messages on Yahoo!'s California-maintained web site. In rejecting this argument, the court stated that the issue is not whether the company that makes the web sites available is incorporated or based in California. Instead, the determinative question is whether the web sites themselves are of particular significance to California or Californians such that the user has reason to know the posting of a message will have a significant impact in this state (93 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1312) .

Plaintiff further argued that the defendant's voluntary agreement to Yahoo!'s terms of service subject him to jurisdiction in this state. In rejecting this argument, the court pointed out that the language on which plaintiff seeks to rely appears on its face to govern litigation between registered users and Yahoo!--not registered users and third parties. Thus, that agreement, by itself, cannot justify subjecting defendant to California jurisdiction for purposes of the instant lawsuit (93 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1313) .

The facts and procedural background of Jewish Defense Organization, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611 , are discussed in § 132.89[3][a]. In issuing a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order and to enter a new and different order granting the motion to quash service of summons, the court of appeal noted that a state's assertion of personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant who has not been served with process within the state comports with the requirements of the due process of the federal constitution if the defendant has such minimum contacts with the state that the assertion of jurisdiction does not violate traditional notions of fair play and substantial justices (72 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1054) .

In Crea v. Busby (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 509, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 513 , defendant was an Oregon resident and an attorney licensed to practice law both in Oregon and California, although defendant had not practiced in California since 1981. Originally plaintiff was a Massachusetts resident and one of three shareholders of an Oregon corporation located in Oregon. In 1990, the president of the Oregon corporation retained defendant to investigate possible claims that the corporation might have for breach of a licensing agreement. After investigating and concluding that the corporation had a meritorious claim, defendant drafted a proposed complaint. However, defendant was informed that plaintiff did not want to participate in the litigation because of financial concerns. Consequently, the complaint was filed only in the name of the corporate president in federal district court in Oregon. The case was eventually settled. Plaintiff, now residing in California, instituted the instant action alleging that defendant conspired to exclude plaintiff from the Oregon litigation and thus breached defendant's fiduciary duties. The trial court granted defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction. In affirming and holding that California does not have personal jurisdiction over an individual whose only contact with the state is maintaining a California law license, the court of appeal stated the rule that a defendant must establish minimum contacts with the state such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice (48 Cal. App. 4th 509, 514) .

