This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the substantial evidence test, rather than the independent judgment test applies [see § 195.58].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of administrative mandate or in support of an answer to such a petition. Furthermore, this memorandum may be incorporated into an appellate brief when a trial court has misapplied the independent judgment test.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. That is, counsel should state facts showing that the interests to be impacted by the decision or order are purely economic, such as a restriction of a property owner's return on his or her property, an increase in the cost of doing business, or a reduction of profits [see E.W.A.P., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 310, 327, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 , discussed in § 195.60[3][a]].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Decision Impacts on Economic Interests Not Fundamental Vested Rights

In Antelope Valley Press v. Poizner (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 839, 849-852, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 887 , the California's State Compensation Insurance Fund (State Fund) classified newspaper deliverers as employees, rather than independent contractors, for purposes of the publisher's workers' compensation policy. The publisher appealed the classification to the Department of Insurance's administrative hearing bureau. The administrative law judge (ALJ) who heard the case concluded that the carriers were employees for purposes of workers' compensation insurance. The publisher filed a petition for writ of administrative mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. Applying the substantial evidence test, the trial court determined that the ALJ's findings were supported by substantial evidence and should be affirmed. The publisher appealed the trial court's judgment denying its petition for writ of administrative mandamus.

The court of appeal held that when an administrative decision does not substantially affect a fundamental vested right of the person challenging that decision, the trial court must apply the substantial evidence test. The court held that a vested right can be found to be fundamental, and thus require a trial court's independent judgment review, on the basis of one or both of the following factors: (1) the character and quality of its economic aspect; (2) the character and quality of its human aspect. The court held that the ultimate question is whether the affected right is deemed to be of sufficient significance to preclude its extinction or abridgement by a body lacking judicial power. As a general rule, the court held, when a case involves purely economic interests, courts are far less likely to find a right to be fundamental and vested (162 Cal. App. 4th 839, 850) . The court concluded that no fundamental vested right was involved or substantially affected in this case. A dispute over the employee status of a newspaper publisher's carriers and whether the publisher should be liable for workers' compensation insurance premiums is clearly an economic issue stemming from social policies regarding labor relations. Therefore, the court held, it would apply the substantial evidence test to the administrative findings (162 Cal. App. 4th 839, 851-852) .

In Tennison v. California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1181-1182, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88 , the plaintiff was convicted of murder in 1990, with his conviction overturned about 12 years later and the court ultimately holding that he was factually innocent of the crime. He filed a claim with the California Victim Compensation Board and Government Claims Board for compensation for the time he was wrongly incarcerated, relying on the finding of factual innocence. The Board rejected his claim based on its holding that the finding of factual innocence did not have collateral estoppel effect before the Board. It held that the plaintiff had the burden of establishing by a preponderance of the evidence that he did not commit the crime for which he was convicted, and did nothing to contribute to his arrest and convictions. The Board held the plaintiff did not meet this burden. The plaintiff filed a petition for writ of mandate in the trial court. The trial court denied the petition, holding that the Board did not abuse its discretion in holding that the plaintiff did not carry his burden.

On appeal, the plaintiff argued that the Board's decision affected his fundamental rights because he sought the restoration of the living he lost as a result of his wrongful imprisonment and that, accordingly, the trial court should have applied the independent judgment standard of review. The court of appeal held that the plaintiff's application for monetary compensation was neither fundamental nor vested (152 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1182) . The court held that although it could be said the right to claim compensation was vested, the right to obtain compensation did not vest until a claimant persuades the Board on the merits of the application. Accordingly, the court concluded that the trial court properly applied the substantial evidence standard of review to the Board's decision (152 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1182) .

In JKH Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Industrial Relations (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1059-1061, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 563 , the Department of Industrial Relations investigated the plaintiff courier service to determine whether the courier service's drivers were employees or independent contractors for purposes of maintaining workers' compensation insurance. After an administrative hearing, the Department determined that the drivers were employees and upheld a stop labor order. The courier company filed a petition in the trial court for a writ of administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. At the hearing, the courier argued that it was entitled to the independent judgment standard of review because, it argued, the Department's decision upholding the stop work order impaired its fundamental vested right to continue doing business in the manner in which it had. Nonetheless, the trial court reviewed the Department's decision under the substantial evidence standard, denying the courier's petition and granting the Department's request for an injunction upholding the stop work order. The courier appealed.

The court of appeal first held that whether a right is fundamental and vested for purposes of ascertaining the appropriate standard of judicial review in an adjudicative administrative mandamus action is to be determined on a case-by-case basis (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1059) . The court held that a right is deemed fundamental on either or both of two bases: (1) the character and quality of its economic aspect, or (2) the character and quality of its human aspect (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1059) . In other words, a court looks at the nature of the right involved rather than the amount of harm or economic injury sustained (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1059) . In addition, the court held that the concepts of "fundamental" and "vestedness" are interrelated such that courts will examine the extent to which a right is vested, i.e., legitimately acquired or already possessed by the individual, in determining whether it is fundamental (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1060) .

As a general rule, the court held, courts are less likely to find a right to be fundamental when a case affects purely economic interests (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1060) . The court held that administrative decisions which result in restricting a property owner's return on property, increasing the cost of doing business, or reducing profits are considered impacts on economic interests, rather than on fundamental vested rights (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1060) .

The court held that the present case regulated labor relations and the enforcement of legislated social policies (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1061) . The purpose of the decision was to require the courier to comply with the law as a condition of doing business, not to put it out of business (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1061) . The court noted that requiring compliance with the Labor Code by providing workers' compensation insurance for the drivers would not shut down the courier's business. Even if it would, the court held, the continued operation of a business in violation of the applicable law is not a fundamental vested right or one that was legitimately acquired (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1061) . Requiring the courier to purchase workers' compensation insurance would require it to incur an expense, and this expense would increase the courier's cost of doing business and potentially decrease profits. But, the court held, this result would affect a purely economic interest and would not involve or affect a right that is fundamental and vested (142 Cal. App. 4th 1046, 1062) .

In E.W.A.P., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 310, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 , an adult bookstore petitioned for writ of mandate regarding a city's application of a municipal ordinance designed to abate nuisances contending that the trial court erred in not applying the independent judgment test to judicial review of the administrative decision.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The courts stated that whether an administrative decision substantially affects a fundamental vested right must be decided on a case-by-case basis. Although no exact formula exists by which to make this determination, courts are less sensitive to the preservation of purely economic interests. Administrative decisions which result in restricting a property owner's return on his or her property, increasing the cost of doing business, or reducing profits are considered impacts on economic interests, rather than on fundamental vested rights. In the present case, the bookstore claimed that the time restriction will result in a 46-percent reduction in its hours of operation from its original 24-hour time period of operation. Accordingly, the court found that the impact of the hours restrictions, if any, on bookstore's business was purely economic, and concluded that the trial court properly applied the substantial evidence test (56 Cal. App. 4th 310, 327) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.61

§ 195.61 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Employer's Right to Establish Procedures

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Employer's Right to Establish Procedures

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on application of substantial evidence rule. See § 195.58.]

THE SUBSTANTIAL EVIDENCE TEST DEFINES THE PROPER SCOPE OF REVIEW OF THE FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ADJUDICATORY _____ [ORDER or DECISION] OF THE _____ [identify agency] BECAUSE AN EMPLOYER'S RIGHT TO ESTABLISH EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES AND PROCEDURES AND TO IMPOSE CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT IS NOT A FUNDAMENTAL VESTED RIGHT.

Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Employer's Right to Establish Procedures. The right of an employer to establish employment practices and procedures and to impose conditions of employment is not a fundamental vested right; an administrative decision affecting an employer's right to establish employment practices and procedures and to impose conditions of employment is subject to review under the substantial evidence test (Northern Inyo Hosp. v. Fair Emp. Practice Com. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 14, 23, 112 Cal. Rptr. 872).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency when the order or decision does not substantially affect a vested fundamental right of the petitioner. The basis of this form is that an employer's right to establish employment practices and procedures and to impose conditions of employment is not a fundamental vested right.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the substantial evidence test, rather than the independent judgment test applies [see § 195.58].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of administrative mandate or in support of an answer to such a petition. Furthermore, this memorandum may be incorporated into an appellate brief when a trial court has misapplied the independent judgment test.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Employer's Right to Establish Procedures

In Northern Inyo Hosp. v. Fair Emp. Practice Com. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 14, 112 Cal. Rptr. 872 , petitioner hospital district sought a writ of mandate to review and vacate a decision by the Fair Employment Practice Commission (FEPC). The FEPC had issued a decision finding that the hospital district had unlawfully discriminated against one of its former employees. The hospital district's petition alleged that the FEPC abused its discretion in that its findings "were not supported by the weight of the evidence or substantial evidence in the light of the whole record." At the commencement of the hearing on the petition, the hospital district was granted leave to amend by adding an allegation that the FEPC decision "affected fundamental vested rights of Petitioner, to establish employment practices and procedures and to impose conditions to employment at Petitioner's hospital facility." The trial court ordered the FEPC to vacate its decision, finding that petitioner hospital district did not engage in unlawful discrimination. In so doing, the court determined that the FEPC decision affected fundamental vested rights of the petitioner to establish practices and procedures and to impose conditions of employment at its hospital facility and that the court was therefore authorized to exercise its independent judgment on the weight of the evidence. The FEPC appealed, contending that the substantial evidence rather than the independent judgment rule should have been applied in reviewing its decision.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to enter judgment denying the petition for writ of mandate (38 Cal. App. 3d 14, 26). It rejected the FEPC's argument that the substantial evidence test applied due to FEPC's status as an agency deriving its adjudicatory powers from the California Constitution; the court found that the FEPC was an agency of legislative origin and that its adjudicatory power was not traceable to a specific provision of the Constitution (38 Cal. App. 3d 14, 21-22) . However, the court agreed with the FEPC that fundamental vested rights of the hospital were not affected by the FEPC's decision, and that the substantial evidence test should have been applied by the trial court. The appellate court noted that while the right to pursue a lawful business or occupation is a fundamental right, there is no vested right to conduct a business free of reasonable governmental rules and regulations. The court noted that the hospital's claim that it had a vested right to establish its employment practices and procedures is based on the discredited concept of freedom of contract. The hospital district's vested right argument is rendered even more tenuous by the fact that it is a public agency. As such, it is subject to state laws in promulgating regulations governing the employment and removal of personnel (38 Cal. App. 3d 14, 22-23). Reviewing the evidence under the substantial evidence test, the court concluded that there was substantial evidence in light of the whole record to support the FEPC's finding. It noted that its reversal with directions to deny the petition would not involve a usurpation of the fact-finding power of the trial court (38 Cal. App. 3d 14, 26) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Employer's Right to Establish Procedures

In Los Angeles County Dept. of Parks & Recreation v. Civil Service Com. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 273, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150 , the real party in interest unsuccessfully applied for a program within the Department of Parks and Recreation, and challenged the decision as unlawfully discriminatory. The Civil Service Commission found in his favor, but the plaintiff Department successfully obtained a writ of mandate from the superior court setting aside the decision, finding that there was no substantial evidence to support the commission's finding of discrimination. The court of appeal affirmed, agreeing that there was no substantial evidence of discrimination. In so holding, the court found that the substantial evidence test, and not the independent judgment test, applies on superior court mandamus review, because the decision by the commission was in favor of the employee, and the employer was the party that sought to have the trial court exercise its independent judgment. An employer's right to discipline or manage its employees is subject to civil service and antidiscrimination regulation, and is not a fundamental vested right entitling the employer to have a trial court exercise its independent judgment on the evidence (8 Cal. App. 4th 273, 279).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.62

§ 195.62 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Substantial Evidence Test Applies to License Proceedings

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Substantial Evidence Test Applies to License Proceedings

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on application of substantial evidence rule. See § 195.58.]

THE SUBSTANTIAL EVIDENCE TEST DEFINES THE PROPER SCOPE OF REVIEW OF THE FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ADJUDICATORY _____ [ORDER or DECISION] OF THE _____ [identify agency] BECAUSE IT INVOLVES AN AGENCY'S INITIAL DETERMINATION OF WHETHER AN INDIVIDUAL QUALIFIES TO ENTER A PROFESSION OR TRADE.

Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Right to License. In a case involving an agency's initial determination whether an individual qualifies to enter a profession or trade, the substantial evidence test is applicable. A denied license applicant is not entitled to a trial de novo in the reviewing court (Crandell v. Fox (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 763-764, 150 Cal. Rptr. 426).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency when the order or decision does not substantially affect a vested fundamental right of the petitioner. The basis of this form is that the substantial evidence test defines the proper scope of review of an agency's initial determination of whether an individual qualifies to enter a profession or trade.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the substantial evidence test, rather than the independent judgment test applies [see § 195.58].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of administrative mandate or in support of an answer to such a petition. Furthermore, this memorandum may be incorporated into an appellate brief when a trial court has misapplied the independent judgment test.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Right to License

In Crandell v. Fox (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 150 Cal. Rptr. 426 , petitioner sought a writ of mandate to compel the Real Estate Commissioner to reinstate his real estate salesman's license, which had been revoked two years earlier. The trial court found that the substantial evidence rule of review was applicable, and denied the petition. Petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. On appeal, petitioner contended that he was entitled to a trial de novo in his petition for a writ of mandate. The court rejected this contention. It stated that an applicant for reinstatement of a license has no greater rights than a person seeking an original license (86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 763). The court further noted that in a case involving the agency's initial determination whether an individual qualifies to enter a profession or trade, a court will uphold the decision unless it lacks substantial evidentiary support (86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 763-764) . The court concluded that the trial court applied the appropriate standard of review, the substantial evidence test (86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 764). The court, however, found that the order denying reinstatement was defective and reversed the judgment on that ground (86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 764-765, 767) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.63

§ 195.63 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Decision by Hospital Board

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Substantial Evidence Test Applies to Decision by Hospital Board

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on application of substantial evidence rule. See § 195.58.]

THE SUBSTANTIAL EVIDENCE TEST DEFINES THE PROPER SCOPE OF REVIEW OF THE FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ADJUDICATORY _____ [ORDER or DECISION] OF THE _____ [identify agency] BECAUSE IT INVOLVES A DECISION BY _____ [A PRIVATE HOSPITAL BOARD or THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF A HOSPITAL DISTRICT or THE GOVERNING BODY OF MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL].

[EITHER]

Decision by Private Hospital Board. The substantial evidence standard applies to review of decisions by private hospital boards, except when discriminatory practices are alleged (Code Civ. Proc. 1094.5(d); Smith v. Vallejo General Hospital (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455, 216 Cal. Rptr. 189).

[OR]

Decision by Board of Directors of Hospital District. The substantial evidence standard applies to review of decisions by boards of directors of districts organized pursuant to The Local Health Care District Law (Health and Safety Code § 32000), except when discriminatory practices are alleged (Code Civ. Proc § 1094.5(d)).

[OR]

Decision by Governing Body of Municipal Hospital. The substantial evidence standard applies to review of decisions by governing bodies of municipal hospitals, except when discriminatory practices are alleged (Code Civ. Proc § 1094.5(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency when the order or decision does not substantially affect a vested fundamental right of the petitioner. The basis of this form is that the substantial evidence test applies to decision by hospital board.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the substantial evidence test, rather than the independent judgment test applies [see § 195.58].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of administrative mandate or in support of an answer to such a petition. Furthermore, this memorandum may be incorporated into an appellate brief when a trial court has misapplied the independent judgment test.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.58[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Decision by Private Hospital Board

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(d) provides that in cases arising from private hospital boards, boards of directors of districts organized pursuant to the Local Health Care District Law (Health & Safety Code § 32000 et seq.), or governing bodies of municipal hospitals formed pursuant to Gov. Code § 37600 et seq. or § 37650 et seq., abuse of discretion is established if the court determines that the findings are not supported by substantial evidence in the light of the whole record. The subsection also provides that in all cases in which a petition alleges discriminatory actions prohibited by Health & Safety Code § 1316 and the plaintiff makes a preliminary showing of substantial evidence in support of the allegation, the court must exercise its independent judgment on the evidence, and abuse of discretion is established if the court determines that the findings are not supported by the weight of the evidence.

In Smith v. Vallejo General Hospital (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 450, 216 Cal. Rptr. 189 , petitioner sought a writ of mandate to set aside a decision by defendant hospital denying him a certain clinical privilege. The trial court reviewed the hospital's decision under the substantial evidence test and denied mandamus relief. Petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. On appeal, petitioner argued that the independent judgment standard must apply because (1) the substantial evidence test under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(d) could not be constitutionally applied to his fundamental vested right to practice medicine, and (2) defendant hospital did not fall with the definition of "private hospital" under the statute. The court rejected petitioner's arguments. It noted that the substantial evidence test is the appropriate standard of review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(d), governing petitioner's application for medical privileges. The court also found that defendant hospital, a nonprofit organization, was a "private hospital board" for purposes of the statute. Addressing petitioner's argument that Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(d) is unconstitutional because "it treats physicians asserting a fundamental right differently than it does anyone else asserting a fundamental vested right," the court noted that (1) petitioner's license to practice medicine was unaffected by the decision; (2) any right to practice at defendant hospital could not have been considered vested because petitioner was not then exercising that right at the time of his application; and (3) the legislature has authority to provide for substantial evidence review of administrative decisions (170 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455-456).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.64

§ 195.64 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Petition Barred by Statute of Limitations, General Form

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Petition Barred by Statute of Limitations, General Form

[Caption. see § 195.50.]

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO PETITION FOR A WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE PETITION SHOWS ON ITS FACE THAT IT IS BARRED BY THE RELEVANT STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

A. Demurrer in Mandate Proceedings. [See § 195.50[1], Paragraph A].

B. Statute of Limitations as Bar. A proceeding for a writ of mandate to review a decision or order by an administrative agency is barred if it is not commenced within the applicable limitation period (Sinetos v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1175, 207 Cal. Rptr. 207) .

[As appropriate, this form should be combined with a memorandum asserting that the petition is barred by a specific statute of limitation. See §§ 195.65 -195.67.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision when the petition shows on its face that it is barred by the relevant statute of limitation.

This form should be combined with a caption [see § 195.50]. As appropriate, this form should be combined with a memorandum asserting that the action is barred by a specific statute of limitation [see §§ 195.65 -195.67].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used in opposition to the petition or in support of a motion for summary judgment or judgment on the pleadings in favor of respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, he or she should add argument indicating what the relevant statute of limitation is for his or her case and when it began to run. See Comments under § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Determining Appropriate Statute of Limitation

The statutes of limitation in the memoranda set forth in § 195.65 et seq. do not present an exhaustive list of possible limitation periods for review of administrative actions and orders. Numerous other statutes establish limitation periods for proceedings to review specific types of administrative actions [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code §§ 21167(d) (determination that preparation of environmental impact report not required), 30801 (decision of California Coastal Commission); Unemp. Ins. Code § 410 (decision of Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board); Veh. Code § 14401(a) (order refusing, canceling, suspending, or revoking driver's license); Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962 (decision affecting application for or receipt of public social services)].

Furthermore, the provisions governing the time for commencing civil actions (Code Civ. Proc. § 312 et seq.) are generally applicable in administrative mandate proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109]. Thus, when none of the statutes of limitation specifically governing review of administrative decisions applies, counsel should review Code Civ. Proc. § 312 et seq. to determine whether one of the general civil limitations periods would apply to the facts of the case. For example, when an administrative action or decision is on a claim of entitlement to compensation under a statute imposing monetary liability on an administrative entity, the proceeding may be governed by Code Civ. Proc. 338(a), which provides a three-year limitation period for actions on a liability created by statute [see Raymond v. Christian (1937) 24 Cal. App. 2d 92, 113-116, 74 P.2d 536] .

If no statute provides an appropriate period of limitation, the action to review is governed by the four-year period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 343 (see § 195.65).

[d] Opposing Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 195.104 -195.106 may be submitted in opposition to this memorandum.

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedural guide, and forms related to demurrers, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms related to statutes of limitation, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions , in that publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute of Limitation as Bar

In Sinetos v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 207 Cal. Rptr. 207 , plaintiff filed a petition for writ of mandamus in superior court seeking judicial review, pursuant to Veh. Code § 14401, of defendant agency's decision to restrict his driver's license. The trial court issued a peremptory writ ordering plaintiff's license to be reinstated, and denied defendant's motion to dismiss the proceeding on the ground that it was barred by the statute of limitation stated in Veh. Code § 14401. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that judicial review of the agency's decision was foreclosed by plaintiff's failure to file his petition for administrative mandamus within the period provided by Veh. Code § 14401 (160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1174). The court noted that the period within which a mandamus petition must be filed is a period of limitation and the rules of law regarding limitation of actions are therefore applicable to mandamus proceedings. The Legislature's failure to enact a specific provision for extension of the 90-day period within which to file a mandamus petition under Veh. Code § 14401 manifests a legislative intent not to permit relief from its provisions (160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1176). Thus, absent such a provision in Veh. Code § 14401, and absent any showing by plaintiff that the agency either acted unconscionably toward plaintiff or set out to take unfair advantage of him in advising him of his rights to judicial review, the agency was not estopped from raising the defense of the statute of limitation, and plaintiff was barred from seeking review of the agency's decision (160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1176-1177).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.65

§ 195.65 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Four-Year Statute of Limitation Applies

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Four-Year Statute of Limitation Applies

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on statute of limitation. See § 196.64.]

THE ACTION IS BARRED BY THE FOUR YEAR STATUTE OF LIMITATION BECAUSE NO OTHER STATUTE SETS FORTH THE PERIOD OF LIMITATION FOR THE ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING.

Four-Year Limitation Period Applies If No Other Period Specifically Applies. If no statute sets forth the period of limitation for a particular administrative proceeding, the period of limitation for judicial review of an administrative decision is four years from the date the decision became final (Code Civ. Proc. § 343; Allen v. Humboldt County Board of Supervisors (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 877, 884-885, 34 Cal. Rptr. 232).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision when the petition shows on its face that it is barred by the four-year statute of limitation.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the petition is barred by a relevant statute of limitation [see § 196.64].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used in opposition to the petition or in support of a motion for summary judgment or judgment on the pleadings in favor of respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, he or she should add argument indicating that the four-year statute of limitation applies to his or her case, and when it began to run. See Comments under § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Opposing Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 195.104 may be submitted in opposition to this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Limitation Period Applies If No Other Period Specifically Applies

In Allen v. Humboldt County Board of Supervisors (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 877, 34 Cal. Rptr. 232 , petitioner filed a petition for a writ of mandate to set aside a zoning variance granted by defendant agency. This petition was filed more than four months after the agency denied petitioner's administrative appeal. The trial court found that, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 and Gov. Code § 11523, the petition had to be filed within 30 days after the last day on which reconsideration by the agency could be ordered and that the action was therefore barred. Petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It stated that the 30-day period of limitation in Gov. Code § 11523 was not applicable because it applied only to designated state agencies (220 Cal. App. 2d 877, 883). The court noted that the applicable statute of limitation is determined by the nature of the right asserted (220 Cal. App. 2d 877, 884). It concluded that, since the right involved in the instant case did not bring any specific statute of limitation into operation, the "catch-all" four-year statute of limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 343 applied (220 Cal. App. 2d 877, 885).

Note that after Gov. Code § 11501 was amended in 1995, operative July 1, 1995. This statute determines the applicability of Gov. Code § 11523 and other provisions of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., the formal hearing provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act [see Patterson Flying Service v. Department of Pesticide Regulation (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 411, 418-421, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 290]. For discussion of the agencies to which Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. now applies, including Gov. Code § 11523, see § 195.66[3][a] and California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.66

§ 195.66 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Thirty-Day Statute of Limitation Applies to Review of Specified Agency's Decision

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Thirty-Day Statute of Limitation Applies to Review of Specified Agency's Decision

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on statute of limitation. See § 195.64.]

THE ACTION IS BARRED BY THE THIRTY-DAY LIMITATION PERIOD BECAUSE THE AGENCY IS _____ [ONE SPECIFIED IN THE ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE ACT or A DELEGATE OF AN AGENCY SPECIFIED IN THE ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE ACT], AND THE PETITION WAS NOT FILED _____ [ON OR BEFORE _____ (date), WHICH IS 30 DAYS AFTER THE LAST DAY ON WHICH RECONSIDERATION COULD BE ORDERED or NOT LATER THAN _____ (date), WHICH IS THE 30TH DAY FOLLOWING THE DATE ON WHICH THE RECORD WAS DELIVERED TO THE PETITIONER OR HIS OR HER ATTORNEY OF RECORD].

[EITHER]

Thirty-Day Limitation Period for Review of Decision by Specified Agency. A petition for a writ of mandate to review a decision by an agency as defined in Government Code Sections 11500 and 11501 must ordinarily be filed within 30 days after the last day on which reconsideration can be ordered. [If the petitioner has filed a request for the record of the administrative proceedings within 10 days after the last day on which reconsideration can be ordered, the time is extended to not later than the 30th day following the date on which the record is delivered to the petitioner or his or her attorney of record] (Gov. Code § 11523; see Gov. Code §§ 11500(a), 11501).

[OR]

Thirty-Day Limitation Period for Review of Decision by Delegate of Specified Agency. A petition for a writ of mandate to review a decision by an agency that acts as a delegate of an agency as defined in Government Code Sections 11500 and 11501 must ordinarily be filed within 30 days after the last day on which reconsideration can be ordered (see Garner v. City of Riverside (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 510, 516, 216 Cal. Rptr. 486).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision when the petition shows on its face that it is barred by the 30-day limitation period governing review of an agency that is specified in the Administrative Procedures Act, or a delegate of the specified agency.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the petition is barred by a relevant statute of limitation [see § 195.64].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used in opposition to the petition or in support of a motion for summary judgment or judgment on the pleadings in favor of respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, he or she should add argument indicating that the 30-day statute of limitation applies to his or her case. See Comments under § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Opposing Memoranda

When appropriate, the memoranda set forth in § 195.104 may be used to oppose the contentions set forth in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Thirty-Day Limitation Period for Review of Decision by Specified Agency

Gov. Code § 11523 establishes the procedure for judicial review of decisions subject to the formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) of the Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.). It provides that a petition for a writ of mandamus to review the decision of an administrative agency must be filed within either (1) 30 days after the last day on which the agency can order reconsideration or (2) 30 days after the delivery of the record to petitioner if, within 10 days after the last day on which reconsideration can be ordered, the petitioner requests the agency to prepare all or any part of the administrative record.

Gov. Code §§ 11500* and *11501 define the term "agency" for purposes of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. (including Gov. Code § 11523, discussed above). "Agency" includes the state boards, commissions, and officer to which Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. are made applicable by law [see Patterson Flying Service v. Department of Pesticide Regulation (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 411, 418-421, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 290].

When a statute uses the word "agency" alone, the power to act may be delegated by the agency. In addition, when a statute uses the words "agency itself," the power to act must not be delegated unless the statutes relating to the particular agency authorize the delegation of the agency's power to hear and decide.

Gov. Code § 11501(a), operative July 1, 1997, provides that the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) apply to any agency as determined by the statutes relating to that agency, and to any agency newly formed after July 1, 1997, unless such agency is expressly excluded.

Former Gov. Code. Code § 11501 previously designated over 60 specific agencies that were subject to the APA formal hearing provisions.

For further discussion regarding agencies subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions, including an extensive (but not exhaustive) list of particular agencies, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication (Matthew Bender).

[b] Thirty-Day Limitation Period for Review of Decision by Delegate of Specified Agency

Garner v. City of Riverside (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 510, 216 Cal. Rptr. 486 , involved judicial review of a denial of petitioner's application for disability benefits. Defendant city had elected to have certain of its employees, including petitioner, become members of the Public Employee's Retirement System (PERS). After the city terminated petitioner's employment, petitioner applied to PERS for disability retirement. PERS corresponded with the city manager concerning petitioner's application. It did so pursuant to Gov. Code § 21024, which allows PERS to order a "governing body" of a contracting agency to determine whether a member in its employ is incapacitated. The city manager informed PERS by mail that plaintiff suffered no mental or physical difficulties at the time he was terminated. PERS later denied the requested benefits. Petitioner petitioned for a writ of administrative mandate approximately 10 months after the denial. The trial court, pursuant to the city's motion, dismissed the petition on the ground that it was not timely filed. Petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. It found that the 30-day period of limitation in Gov. Code § 11523 applied, and that the petition was therefore barred. Plaintiff contended on appeal that Gov. Code § 11523 did not apply because the city, which had made the initial determination that petitioner was not disabled, was not subject to the provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.). The court disagreed. Reviewing the statutes governing PERS determinations, former Gov. Code. Code §§ 21024 and 21025, the court found that the only determination to be made by the governing body of the contracting agency is whether the PERS member is incapacitated for performance of his or her duties. The formal decision to grant or deny the application for disability retirement is made by PERS, an agency subject to APA provisions. The court stated that even if the city were deemed to have rendered the decision, the result would be the same. In making its determination, the city acted as a delegate of the PERS board; therefore, its determination was subject to the APA provisions that were applicable to PERS (170 Cal. App. 3d 510, 515-516).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.67

§ 195.67 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Ninety-Day Statute of Limitation Applies to Review of Local Agency's Decision

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Ninety-Day Statute of Limitation Applies to Review of Local Agency's Decision

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on statute of limitation. See § 195.64.]

THE ACTION IS BARRED BY THE 90-DAY LIMITATION PERIOD BECAUSE THE AGENCY IS A LOCAL AGENCY AND THE PETITION WAS NOT FILED _____ [NO LATER THAN THE 90TH DAY AFTER _____ (date), THE DATE ON WHICH THE DECISION BECAME FINAL or NOT LATER THAN _____ (date), THE 30TH DAY FOLLOWING THE DATE ON WHICH THE RECORD WAS _____ (PERSONALLY DELIVERED or MAILED) TO THE PETITIONER OR HIS/HER ATTORNEY OF RECORD].

A. Ninety-Day Limitation Period for Review of Local Agency Decision. A petition for a writ of mandate to review a local agency's decision must ordinarily be filed no later than the 90th day after the date on which the decision becomes final (Holden v. Los Angeles City Ethics Comm'n (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 858). If the petitioner has filed a request for the record of the administrative proceedings within 10 days after the decision has become final, the time is extended to not later than the 30th day following the date on which the record is personally delivered or mailed to the petitioner or his or her attorney of record (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b), (d), (g)).

[Optional] B. Service by Mail Does Not Extend Ninety-Day Period. Code of Civil Procedure Section 1013(a) does not apply to extend the 90-day time period, following deposit in the mail of the written decision or the written findings supporting the decision of the local agency, within which a petition for a writ of mandate to review the decision may be filed (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b); Tielsch v. City of Anaheim (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 576, 578-580, 206 Cal. Rptr. 740).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision when the petition shows on its face that it is barred by the 90-day limitation period governing review of a local agency.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the petition is barred by a relevant statute of limitation [see § 195.64].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used in opposition to the petition or in support of a motion for summary judgment or judgment on the pleadings in favor of respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, he or she should add argument indicating that the 90-day statute of limitation applies to his or her case. See Comments under § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Opposing Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 195.105 may be use to oppose the contention set forth in this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ninety-Day Limitation Period for Review of Local Agency Decision

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) provides that an administrative mandate petition to review a local agency decision must be filed no later than the 90th day after the date on which the decision becomes final. If there is no provision for reconsideration of the decision, or for a written decision or written findings supporting the decision, in any applicable provision of any statute, charter, or rule, then the decision is final for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 on the date it is announced. If the decision is not announced at the close of the hearing, then the date, time, and place of the announcement of the decision is required to be announced at the hearing. If there is a provision for reconsideration, the decision is final for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 on expiration of the period during which the reconsideration can be sought. However, if reconsideration is sought, the decision is final on the date that reconsideration is rejected. If there is a provision for a written decision or written findings, then the decision is final for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 on the date it is mailed by first-class mail, postage prepaid, including a copy of the affidavit or certificate of mailing, to the party seeking the writ. Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) does not apply to extend the time, following deposit in the mail of the decision or findings, within which a petition can be filed.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(d) provides that if a petitioner files a request for a complete record of the proceedings within 10 days after the date the decision becomes final, the time within which a petition for a writ of administrative mandate may be filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is extended to not later than the 30th day following the date on which the record is either personally delivered or mailed to the petitioner or his or her attorney of record.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(g) provides that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 prevail over any conflicting provision in any otherwise applicable law relating to the subject matter, unless the conflicting provisions are a state or federal law that provides a shorter period of limitation, in which case the shorter period of limitations applies.

In Holden v. Los Angeles City Ethics Comm'n (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 858 , the ethics commission conducted an audit of Holden's successful campaign for city council. An administrative hearing before the commission took place over three days, ending on April 30, 2002. The president of the commission directed counsel for the executive director to draft findings and submit them to the city attorney for review, and then submit them to Holden for comment. She stated that the findings would be presented to the commission for adoption at its next meeting, on May 21, 2002. Holden attended the May 21, 2002 commission meeting and asked that the matter be continued because he wanted to get an opinion from the city attorney regarding a possible charging deficiency in the accusation. Although the president of the commission told Holden that the commission would not reconsider its determination that violations occurred, the commission continued the matter until its next meeting, on June 18, 2002, because it determined that the proposed findings and order needed to be revised to more accurately reflect their decision. An attorney attended the June 18, 2002 Commission meeting on behalf of Holden and argued that the commission's decision was improper because there was a charging deficiency in the accusation. The president of the commission told him that the commission's decision as to the violations was final and that the commission would not reconsider it. The commission then voted to adopt the findings and order, after amending it to provide, among other things, a deadline for payment of the penalty. The final findings and order were served on Holden June 28, 2002. Holden filed a petition for writ of mandate on September 27, 2002, exactly 90 days after the findings and order were served. The trial court denied the petition. It found that the administrative decision became final under Code of Civil Procedure § 1094.6 when it was announced on April 30, 2002, the last day of the administrative hearing. Therefore, the court found that the petition was time-barred.

On appeal, the court of appeal held that the decision was final on the date it was announced. Code of Civil Procedure § 1094.6 does not define "announced" or explain how a decision is "announced." The court applied a "plain and common sense meaning" to that term and held that a decision is announced when it is made known to the public (137 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1280) . The court held that the commission's decision was not announced on April 30 because it was not complete on that date (137 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1280) . Rather, the court held, the commission voted to order Holden to pay a penalty and finalized its order at the June 18 public meeting. Thus, the commission made its completed decision known to the public, i.e., "announced" its decision, at the June 18 meeting. Accordingly, Holden's petition was time-barred (137 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1281) .

[b] Service by Mail Does Not Extend Ninety-Day Period

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) provides that Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) (extending time for performance of right or duty within prescribed period after service of document by mail) does not apply to extend the time, following deposit in the mail of the written decision or written findings supporting the decision of the local agency, within which a petition for judicial review of the decision must be filed. This provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) thus codifies the holding of Tielsch v. City of Anaheim (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 576, 578-580, 206 Cal. Rptr. 740 , discussed, below.

Before the 1991 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b), expressly precluding the applicability of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) to extend the time within which a petition for review of a local agency decision must be filed, petitioner in Tielsch v. City of Anaheim (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 576, 206 Cal. Rptr. 740 , filed a petition for a writ of administrative mandate 93 days after the date of defendant agency's decision denying him eligibility for retirement. Petitioner claimed that because he was notified of the agency's decision by mail, Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) gave him 95 days within which to file the petition. The trial court denied the petition, and petitioner appealed.

Holding Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) to be inapplicable, the court of appeal first explained that it was not bound by dicta in California Accounts, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 483, 123 Cal. Rptr. 304 , and that this was a case of first impression (160 Cal. App. 3d 576, 578 n.4). Reviewing other situations in which Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) does not extend time, such as the time within which to seek trial de novo after arbitration, the time within which to file suit against a public entity after denial of a claim, and the time within which a court may grant a motion for a new trial, the court distinguished the period referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) from statutes of limitations (160 Cal. App.

3d 576, 578-579). As an additional argument, the court distinguished statutes providing that acts must be done within a certain number of days after "issuance" of a decision as opposed to those that require the action to be taken within a certain period after "service" of a decision. Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 requires the petition to be filed not later than the 90th day following the date on which the decision becomes final and is not tied to service (160 Cal. App. 3d 576, 579-580). Lastly, the court distinguished petitions for mandate filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c) (to quash service of summons), which key the time to service of notice of entry of the order denying the motion to quash (160 Cal. App. 3d 576, 580).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.68

§ 195.68 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Petitioner Failed to Exhaust Administrative Remedies, General Form

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Petitioner Failed to Exhaust Administrative Remedies, General Form

[Caption. see § 195.50.]

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE COURT LACKS JURISDICTION TO ISSUE A PEREMPTORY WRIT OF MANDATE IN THAT PETITIONER FAILED TO EXHAUST HIS/HER ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES.

A. Demurrer in Mandate Proceeding. [See § 195.50[1], Paragraph A].

B. Court Lacks Jurisdiction When Petitioner Fails to Exhaust Administrative Remedies. The exhaustion of administrative remedies is a condition precedent to obtaining judicial relief, and when a plaintiff or petitioner has failed to exhaust his or her administrative remedies, the court is without jurisdiction to adjudicate the action or proceeding (Campbell v. Regents of the University of California (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 311, 322, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320 ; Merchandising Concept Group, Inc. v. California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1280-1281, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892 ; In re Conservatorship of Whitley (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 1462-1464, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808 ; Eight Unnamed Physicians v. Medical Executive Committee of the Medical Staff of Washington Township Hospital (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 503, 510-515, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100 ; Kaiser Foundation Hospitals v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 85, 105, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 ; Kane v. Redevelopment Agency (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 908, 224 Cal. Rptr. 922 ; Morton v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 981, 88 Cal. Rptr. 533).

[Optional] C. Affected Public Exception Does Not Apply When Petitioner Participated. When a plaintiff or petitioner had notice of administrative proceedings and actively participated at every stage of the hearing process, but failed to exhaust his or her administrative remedies, that failure cannot be excused under the "member of the affected public" exception to the exhaustion of remedies doctrine (Sea & Sage Audubon Society, Inc. v. Planning Com. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 412, 418, 194 Cal. Rptr. 357, 668 P.2d 664).

[Optional] D. Affected Public Exception Does Not Apply Without Factual Support. A factually unsupported allegation that a person who is challenging the administrative [environmental] review process of a public agency, [and who has never been a party to that challenged process], is acting merely as a concerned member of the public, without more, does not qualify that person as a "member of the affected public" under that exception to the exhaustion of remedies doctrine (Kane v. Redevelopment Agency (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 908, 224 Cal. Rptr. 922).

[Optional] E. Later Claim Barred by Exhaustion of Remedies Doctrine. When a petitioner for judicial administrative review adds a later claim that is neither like, nor reasonably related, to his or her original claim considered in the original administrative proceeding, and is not a claim that is likely to be have become apparent during the administrative investigation of the original claim, that later claim is barred by the exhaustion of remedies doctrine (Okoli v. Lockheed Technical Operations Co. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1607, 1617, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57).

[Optional] F. Failure to Request Reconsideration Regarding Matters Not Previously Considered by Agency. When the Legislature has provided that a petitioner before an administrative tribunal "may" seek reconsideration or rehearing of an adverse decision of that tribunal, a petitioner must seek reconsideration in order to exhaust his or her administrative remedies prior to seeking recourse in the courts, when appropriate to raise matters not previously brought to the agency's attention. Such a petition remains necessary, for example, to introduce evidence or legal arguments before the administrative body that were not brought to its attention as part of the original decision making process (Sierra Club. v. San Joaquin Local Agency Formation Com. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 489, 493-494, 510, 87 Cal. Rptr. 702, 981 P.2d 543).

G. Exhaustion Required Even If Constitutional Rights Are at Issue. Even if the statute sought to be applied and enforced by the administrative agency is challenged upon constitutional grounds, completion of the administrative remedy is a prerequisite to equitable relief (Service Employees International Union, Local 1000 v. Department of Personnel Administration (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 866, 871, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457).

[Optional] H. Exhaustion Required Even If Questions Concerning Agency's Jurisdiction Arise. Even if questions concerning the agency's jurisdiction are presented, the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies requires judicial abstention until there has been a final decision in the administrative forum (McAllister v. County of Monterey (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 253, 284-288, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency, when the petitioner has failed to exhaust his or her administrative remedies. This form should be combined with a caption [see § 195.50].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used in opposition to the petition or in support of a motion for summary judgment or judgment on the pleadings in favor of respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, counsel should specify all allegations in the petition seeking relief which an administrative remedy is provided by statute, for which there are no corresponding allegations showing that the petitioner sought and exhausted his or her administrative remedy. See also Comments under § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Opposing Authorities

When appropriate, the memorandum and in §§ 195.85-195.103 may be used to oppose the contention set forth in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Lacks Jurisdiction When Petitioner Fails to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

In Campbell v. Regents of the University of California (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 311, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 106 P.3d 976 , appellant Janet Campbell worked for the Regents as a senior architect. Her job duties included reviewing architectural plans and specifications for campus construction projects costing less than $250,000, to ensure that the projects complied with competitive bidding laws. Campbell claimed that her supervisor directed her to help prepare bid documents that limited competition by using restrictive specifications. Campbell protested to the Regents on several occasions that using these documents to limit the bidding violated state competitive bidding laws. She later reported the violations to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

After the FBI questioned UC officials about the alleged violations, the Regents changed Campbell's job duties, assigning her to what she perceived to be menial projects. Campbell went on disability leave. Soon after she returned to work, she was discharged. The Regents blamed her discharge on downsizing. However, Campbell claimed that less senior and less qualified coworkers were retained.

Campbell filed an internal complaint against UCSF and her supervisors under the grievance procedures set forth in UCSF's Personnel Policies for Staff Members (PPSM). She alleged that she was discharged in retaliation for being a whistle-blower. In response, the Regents informed Campbell that the PPSM's complaint resolution process excluded allegations of retaliation for whistleblowing. The letter stated that such complaints should be filed under UCSF's Policy and Procedures for Reporting Improper Governmental Activities and Protection Against Retaliation for Reporting Improper Activities (Policy and Procedures). The letter also stated, "Alleged violations of state and federal laws will be excluded from the [PPSM's] complaint resolution process."

Campbell did not refile her complaint under the Policy and Procedures. Instead, she filed a complaint against the Regents in superior court, seeking damages for retaliatory termination. She alleged that she had either exhausted all administrative remedies or was not required to exhaust them. The Regents demurred to the complaint on the ground that Campbell's refusal to file a grievance under the Policy and Procedures was a failure to exhaust administrative remedies. The trial court sustained the demurrer, granting Campbell leave to amend her complaint to allege either that she had fulfilled the exhaustion requirement, or that an exception to the requirement excused her from its application.

Campbell's first amended complaint alleged that she had filed an internal grievance complaint under the PPSM; that Government Code § 12653 and Labor Code § 1102.5 did not require her to exhaust UCSF's administrative remedies; and that the letter informed her that the PPSM excluded her whistleblowing allegations. The Regents again demurred to the amended complaint on the ground that Campbell failed to exhaust her administrative remedies.

The trial court sustained the Regents' demurrer to the first amended complaint. It gave Campbell leave to amend in order to plead that the futility doctrine excused her failure to exhaust, and that the Regents did not notify her of the relevant grievance procedures.

Campbell filed a second amended complaint, alleging that estoppel excused her from complying with exhaustion requirements because the Regents had failed to inform her of "the necessity to file a grievance under the whistle-blowing policy." The Regents demurred to that complaint on the grounds that Campbell failed to allege that exhaustion would have been futile, and that she was properly advised of the applicable grievance procedures. The trial court sustained the Regents' demurrer to the second amended complaint without leave to amend and entered judgment in the Regents' favor.

Campbell appealed. The Court of Appeal affirmed the trial court's dismissal for failure to exhaust administrative remedies. The California Supreme Court granted Campbell's petition for review.

The Court held that the Regents did have jurisdiction against Campbell. It held that the action involved a policy the Regents established to handle complaints of retaliatory dismissal for whistleblowing in an orderly manner. Such a policy is equivalent to a statute and required Campbell to resort initially to internal grievance practices and procedures, Campbell had an administrative remedy that she failed to exhaust (35 Cal. 4th 311, 322).

The Court further held that Government Code § 12653 and Labor Code § 1102.5 did not create an exception from the requirement that she exhaust UCSF's administrative remedies (35 Cal. 4th 311, 325-331).

Campbell also argued that requiring public employees who disclose false claims against a public entity to exhaust their administrative remedies when seeking redress for retaliation places a content-based restriction on their freedom of speech. Campbell contended that by treating public employee whistleblowing differently from private employee whistleblowing, the lower court made an impermissible content-based discrimination against a type of speech. However, the Court held that requiring public employees to exhaust their administrative remedies as a prerequisite to pursuing their claims of retaliatory discharge in superior court does not restrict their freedom to disclose false claims (35 Cal. 4th 311, 332).

Campbell also argued that the exhaustion requirement discriminates on the basis of viewpoint because it precludes lawsuits against public entities. The Court held that this claim misstated the effect of the exhaustion requirement, because judicial review of the administrative determination is available via administrative mandamus (35 Cal. 4th 311, 332).

In Merchandising Concept Group, Inc. v. California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1280-1281, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892 , the plaintiff employed what it considered independent contractors. The defendant determined that the hires were not independent contractors, but were employees for whom the plaintiff must pay employment taxes. The defendant issued an assessment and a penalty against the plaintiff. The plaintiff filed a petition for reassessment with an administrative law judge. The administrative law judge affirmed the assessment but reversed the penalty, based on the plaintiff's reliance on advice of counsel. The Appeals Board affirmed the administrative judge's opinion and stated that this was a "final decision." The plaintiff paid the tax and filed a petition for writ of mandate in the superior court. The defendant demurred on various grounds, including the plaintiff's failure to exhaust its administrative remedies. The trial court granted the demurrer without leave to amend.

On appeal, the court held that the California Constitution granted to the Legislature the power to prescribe the manner of proceeding in an action to recover taxes paid. The applicable Unemployment Insurance Code sections set forth a series of administrative steps a taxpayer must take in order to recover taxes. The plaintiff took only the first step and argued that the others were unnecessary. The court disagreed and affirmed the demurrer (181 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1280-1281) .

In In re Conservatorship of Whitley (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 1462-1464, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 808 , the plaintiff was a conservator for her developmentally disabled adult brother. She appealed from a superior court order granting the North Bay Regional Center's (NBRC) request to move her brother to a different facility. The plaintiff appealed on the ground that the Lanterman Developmental Disabilities Services Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 4500 et seq.) required a legal representative's objection to a proposed community placement to be resolved by an administrative fair hearing procedure followed by superior court review if the conservator, or another party, remains dissatisfied with the result. The plaintiff argued that her attempt to invoke the hearing was improperly thwarted by NBRC's insistence on a judicial hearing in superior court as contemplated in the settlement of an unrelated federal case.

The court of appeal examined the statute and held that the statute's comprehensive approach to resolving disagreements concerning placements, including a voluntary informal meeting, voluntary mediation, and an administrative fair hearing with judicial review, clearly manifested the legislature's intent that the Lanterman Act's fair hearing procedures be the exclusive remedy for actions by legal representatives objecting to a community placement decision (155 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 1462-1463) . The court concluded that if a statute provides an administrative remedy, relief must be sought from the administrative body and such remedy must be exhausted before judicial review is available (155 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 1463) . Until the administrative remedy is exhausted, the trial court has no jurisdiction (155 Cal. App. 4th 1447, 1463) .

In Eight Unnamed Physicians v. Medical Executive Committee of the Medical Staff of Washington Township Hospital (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 503, 510-515, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100 , the physicians were members of a medical group that had provided all necessary anesthesia services at the defendant hospital for many years. The physicians gave the hospital two days' notice that they would be moving their practices to another hospital. The hospital sought to discipline the physicians for withdrawing services in a way that could have jeopardized patient safety and undermined public confidence in the hospital. The hospital's medical executive committee recommended that the hospital board of directors terminate the physicians' clinical privileges and medical staff membership. The physicians each requested a judicial review committee hearing to dispute the recommendation. The hospital had detailed bylaws setting forth the procedure for challenging discipline recommendations. The physicians sought to consolidate their hearings, but, although one hearing officer granted the request, the hospital did not consolidate the hearings.

The physicians filed a petition for writ of mandate seeking consolidation of the hearings and a stay of the hearings until the petition was decided. The hospital demurred to the petition on the ground that the physicians had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies. The court overruled the demurrer and stayed the proceedings pending determination of the petition. The trial court held that it was illogical to make the physicians wait until the hearing process is complete to seek review of the various consolidation determinations. The hospital appealed.

The court of appeal held that it is the general and well established jurisdictional rule that a plaintiff who seeks judicial relief against an organization of which the plaintiff is a member must first invoke and exhaust the applicable remedies provided by that organization (150 Cal. App. 4th 503, 510-511) . The court held that under this doctrine, a party must go through the entire proceeding to a final decision on the merits of the entire controversy before resorting to the courts for relief (150 Cal. App. 4th 503, 511) . The court held that the exhaustion requirement did not apply if an administrative remedy was not available (150 Cal. App. 4th 503, 511) . However, it held that an administrative remedy was available insofar as the physicians were not contesting the validity of the bylaws, but rather the hospital's alleged failure to follow them by not acceding to one hearing officer's consolidation ruling (150 Cal. App. 4th 503, 512-513) . The court held that its review of a hospital's disciplinary procedures was confined to safeguarding basic due process rights, which do not include consolidation of hearings, or procedures employed in deciding a consolidation issue (150 Cal. App. 4th 503, 513) .

The court further held that no exception to the exhaustion requirement applied. The court dismissed the physicians' argument that they would suffer irreparable harm if their claims were not consolidated. The court also dismissed their argument that the cost of pursuing individual claims would be prohibitive (150 Cal. App. 4th 503, 514-515) .

In Kaiser Foundation Hospitals v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 85, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 , a doctor sued a hospital where she had privileges after her employment was terminated and her privileges revoked. Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 809.2, the doctor was required to submit her complaint to a peer review board before filing suit. Under the hospital's bylaws and procedures, the peer review hearing was supposed to begin within 60 days after the doctor requested the hearing. Due to disputes between the parties' lawyers about the composition of the review panel, the hearing did not begin within the 60-day period. The doctor then filed a complaint against the hospital in superior court, seeking, among other things, a declaration that she was not required to exhaust administrative remedies because the hearing would deny her a fair hearing before a neutral and unbiased decision-maker and a hearing was not made available to her within the time required by statute and due process. The doctor filed a motion for summary adjudication on the declaratory relief cause of action, arguing that she was not required to exhaust her administrative remedies because she did not get a hearing within 60 days, the hospital's hearing process violated due process requirements of impartiality, and she would be irreparably harmed if she were required to pursue the hearing process. The hospital filed a cross-motion for summary adjudication on the declaratory relief cause of action, seeking a declaration that the doctor was required to exhaust the peer review hearing process before resorting to the courts.

The superior court denied the hospital's motion and granted the doctor's motion. The court held that because a hearing was not timely held, and the doctor did not consent to the delay, the doctor was not required to exhaust her administrative remedy before pursuing her superior court actions. According to the trial court, because "no viable administrative remedy contemplated by Business and Professions Code section 809, et seq., was ever made available to [the doctor] on a timely basis," "there was no administrative remedy that she could be required to exhaust before resorting to the court." The hospital filed a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition or other appropriate relief in appellate court, seeking to restrain the trial court from exercising jurisdiction vested in the peer review panel.

The court of appeal granted the hospital's petition for writ of mandate and reversed the trial court. The court held that the hospital's failure to begin the hearing on time, without more, did not render the administrative remedy of the peer review process inadequate or unavailable and did not constitute a deprivation of fair procedure that the doctor was entitled to escape peer review altogether (128 Cal. App. 4th 85, 104). In addition, the court of appeal held that the doctor failed to explain how requiring her to proceed with a peer review hearing that was not commenced within the 60-day period, instead of allowing her to proceed with an immediate action in superior court, would cause her irreparable harm. The court held that the harm to which the doctor referred, the alleged devastation of her career caused by the summary suspension of her surgical privileges and the termination of her employment, had already occurred, if it had occurred at all. The court held that the doctor failed to explain how this harm was irreparable if the administrative process were allowed to go forward, but would not be if she were allowed to go forward with her actions in superior court (128 Cal. App. 4th 85, 105).

In Kane v. Redevelopment Agency (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 224 Cal. Rptr. 922 , a suburban community in Los Angeles County was designated by the city council as a redevelopment project area. The city council adopted a plan that necessitated the preparation of an environmental impact report by the redevelopment agency. Plaintiff, who was not a resident or owner of property in the redevelopment area, did not participate in the administrative process but instead filed a petition for writ of mandate and for an injunction challenging the city's environmental review pursuant to the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) (Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.). The trial court ordered the issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate, but denied plaintiff's request for attorney's fees. The redevelopment agency appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment, and remanded the cause to the trial court with directions to recall the peremptory writ of mandate, vacate its judgment on the writ, and dismiss the proceeding for lack of jurisdiction on the grounds that plaintiff had failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. The court rejected plaintiff's argument that he was excepted from the exhaustion requirement under the "member of the affected public" exception (discussed in [b], below), and held that since the exhaustion requirement applied and plaintiff had failed to exhaust his remedies, the trial court had been without jurisdiction to adjudicate the merits of the mandate petition (179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 908).

In Morton v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 88 Cal. Rptr. 533 , real parties in interest were city employees with a labor grievance who applied for a writ of mandate and declaratory relief. Petitioners then sought a writ of prohibition in the court of appeal to prevent further proceedings in the lawsuit, on the grounds that real parties in interest did not exhaust their administrative remedies before filing their suit and therefore the court was without jurisdiction to grant the requested relief.

The court of appeal granted the writ of prohibition, holding that the rule is settled that the exhaustion of an administrative remedy, when one is available, is a condition precedent to obtaining judicial relief, and that a court violating the rule acts in excess of its jurisdiction (9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 981). The court found that real parties in interest had a grievance procedure available, and because they had not pursued this remedy, the trial court was without jurisdiction to adjudicate the matter (9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 981-984).

[b] Affected Public Exception Does Not Apply When Petitioner Participated

In Sea & Sage Audubon Society, Inc. v. Planning Com. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 412, 194 Cal. Rptr. 357, 668 P.2d 664 , defendant planning commission held a public hearing on a planned community development project. Plaintiffs appeared at the hearing and opposed the project. The commission proceeded to approve tentative maps of the project, and voted to certify the environmental impact report as complete. At the conclusion of the hearing, the chairman advised those present that they had 15 days to appeal the commission's decision to the city council. Plaintiffs mailed a brief letter to the city council, stating that they were thereby appealing the commission's decision. The letter was received by the city clerk's office one day after the filing deadline. No filing fee accompanied the letter. The city rejected the appeal. Plaintiffs then filed an administrative mandamus action. Defendants moved for summary judgment on the ground that plaintiffs had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies. The motion was granted, and plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment, holding that plaintiffs had not been excused from the exhaustion of remedies requirement. The Court recognized that an exception to the exhaustion doctrine had been carved out in Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 114, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282 (discussed in § 195.85[3]), that a public interest litigant should not be barred from judicial relief under the doctrine when it had not participated in, or received any notice of, the relevant administrative proceedings. The Court declined, however, to pass on the validity of the Corte Madera holding, because that holding did not sustain plaintiffs' claim in the instant case. In contrast, plaintiffs did have notice of the administrative proceedings and actively participated at every stage of the hearing process. Indeed, plaintiffs had been explicitly reminded of the available administrative appeal. Under these circumstances, plaintiffs' failure to exhaust their remedies was not excusable under the "member of the affected public" exception of Corte Madera (34 Cal. 3d 412, 417-418).

[c] Affected Public Exception Does Not Apply Without Factual Support

The facts and procedural background of Kane v. Redevelopment Agency (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 224 Cal. Rptr. 922 , are discussed in [a], above. In reversing the judgment granting the peremptory writ of mandate, the court of appeal held that the trial court had been without jurisdiction to adjudicate the merits of the mandate petition because plaintiff had failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. The court of appeal recognized the "member of the affected public" exception to the exhaustion of remedies doctrine that had been carved out in Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 114, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282 (discussed in § 195.85[3]) (179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 905). However, the court held that exception did not apply to plaintiff, because he had failed to allege facts showing how he was affected and that he could not reasonably have been a party to the administrative review process (179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 902). The court concluded that a factually unsupported allegation that a person who is challenging the environmental review process is acting merely as a concerned member of the public, without more, does not qualify that person as a "member of the affected public" under that exception to the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. Because the exception did not apply, the trial court had been without jurisdiction to grant a peremptory writ of mandate (179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 908).

[d] Later Claim Barred by Exhaustion of Remedies Doctrine

In Okoli v. Lockheed Technical Operations Co. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1607, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57 , the plaintiff brought an action against his employer alleging harassment and discrimination. He first filed the charge with the California Department of Fair Employment and Housing ("DFEH"). In his lawsuit, however, the plaintiff raised additional allegations of retaliation. After trial, the jury rendered a defense verdict on the discrimination and harassment causes of action, but found in the plaintiff's favor on the retaliation claim. The employer appealed, arguing that the retaliation claim was barred by the exhaustion of remedies doctrine.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court cited the fact that the unlawful retaliation claim occurred after the filing of the DFEH charge and would not reasonably have been uncovered in an investigation of the charges that were made. The record indicated that the agency never had any opportunity, with respect to the additional theory, to pursue the vital policy interest embodied in the legislative act. Since the added claims were neither like nor reasonably related to the DFEH claim, and were not likely to have been uncovered by the agency's investigation of the DFEH claim, the court concluded that the retaliation claim was barred by the exhaustion of remedies doctrine (36 Cal. App. 4th 1607, 1617).

[e] Failure to Request Reconsideration Regarding Matters Not Previously Considered by Agency

In Sierra Club v. San Joaquin Local Agency Formation Com. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 489, 87 Cal. Rptr. 702, 981 P.2d 543 , various developers commenced proceedings before a local agency formation commission to obtain approval of a city's annexation of farm land for use in a development project. Petitioners objected in that proceeding, and the agency overruled their objections and approved the proposed annexation. One of the petitioners sent a letter to the agency requesting reconsideration of the approval, but withdrew his request the next day. The petitioners filed a mandamus petition in the superior court, naming the agency as the respondent, and various developers and others as real parties in interest. The agency moved to dismiss the petition, arguing that under statute an aggrieved person may request reconsideration of an adverse local agency formation commission and that such a request is a mandatory prerequisite to filing in the courts. The trial court granted the motion to dismiss. The Court of Appeal affirmed the trial court's order, and the Supreme Court granted review.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal, and remanded the cause for further proceedings in accordance with the Court's decision. The Court revisited its decision in Alexander v. State Personnel Bd. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 198, 199, 137 P.2d 433 , in which the Court held that when the Legislature has provided that a petitioner before an administrative tribunal "may" seek reconsideration or rehearing of an adverse decision of that tribunal, the petitioner always must seek reconsideration in order to exhaust his or her administrative remedies prior to seeking recourse in the courts. The Court concluded that the Alexander rule should be abandoned because it might easily be overlooked by a reasonably alert litigant and it was unlikely that the rule has had any substantial effect in reducing the burden on the courts (21 Cal. 4th 489, 499, 501). In addition, the Court found no sufficient basis to extrapolate legislative approval of the Alexander rule (21 Cal. 4th 489, 499, 508). Therefore, the Court overruled Alexander, and held that subject to limitations imposed by statute, the right to petition for judicial review of a final decision of an administrative agency is not necessarily affected by the party's failure to file a request for reconsideration or rehearing before that agency (21 Cal. 4th 489, 499, 508).

The Court emphasized that its conclusion did not mean the failure to request reconsideration or rehearing may never serve as a bar to judicial review. A petition for reconsideration remains necessary, for example, to introduce evidence or legal arguments before the administrative body that were not brought to its attention as part of the original decision making process. Moreover, the Court's reasoning was not addressed to new evidence, changed circumstances, fresh legal arguments, filings by newcomers to the proceedings and the like. Likewise, a rehearing petition is necessary to call to the agency's attention errors or omissions of fact or law in the administrative decision itself that were not previously addressed in the briefing, in order to give the agency the opportunity to correct its own mistakes before those errors or omissions are presented to a court. According to the Court, the general exhaustion rule remains valid: administrative agencies must be given the opportunity to reach a reasoned and final conclusion on each and every issue upon which they have jurisdiction to act before those issues are raised in a judicial forum. The Court stated that its decision is limited to the narrow situation in which one would be required, after a final decision by an agency, to raise for a second time the same evidence and legal arguments one has previously raised solely to exhaust administrative remedies under Alexander (21 Cal. 4th 489, 511).

Although the agency determination in Sierra Club, above, was reviewed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandamus), rather than Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandamus), it appears that the holding in Sierra Club is not limited in application to decisions reviewed by ordinary mandamus, and would apply to decisions reviewed by administrative mandamus [see, e.g., Alexander v. State Personnel Bd. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 198, 199, 137 P.2d 433 (overruled in Sierra Club, above, decided prior to enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, concerned quasi-judicial proceeding)]. For further discussion comparing ordinary mandamus and administrative mandamus, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 470, Overview of Administrative Procedure Law (Matthew Bender).

[f] Exhaustion Required Even If Constitutional Rights Are at Issue

In Service Employees International Union, Local 1000 v. Department of Personnel Administration (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 866, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457 , a labor union filed a complaint challenging the state's refusal to permit work site distribution of material supporting a ballot proposition. The state argued the materials were of a partisan political nature within the meaning of prohibitory language in a collective bargaining agreement. The state demurred to the union's complaint on the ground that the union had not attempted to arbitrate the dispute as required by the collective bargaining agreement. The trial court granted the demurrer, and the union appealed.

On appeal, the union argued the state's interpretation of the disputed contract language deprived it of its federal and state constitutional right to communicate freely with its members and such a general policy operated as a prior restraint on free speech, thereby inflicting irreparable harm. The court of appeal first held that the failure to arbitrate before filing a civil action is analogous to the failure to exhaust administrative remedies (142 Cal. App. 4th 866, 870) . The union argued that arbitration is too slow and cumbersome when constitutional rights are at issue; therefore, the union argued, the exhaustion requirement must be excused to avoid the irreparable injury involved in suspending its right to free speech (142 Cal. App. 4th 866, 871) .

The court of appeal held that even when the statute sought to be applied and enforced by the administrative agency is challenged on constitutional grounds, completion of the administrative remedy is required (142 Cal. App. 4th 866, 871) . Among other reasons, the court based this holding on the jurisprudential principle of avoiding constitutional questions when other grounds are available (142 Cal. App. 4th 866, 872) . The court rejected the union's argument that merely pleading the First Amendment excuses its obligation to exhaust the remedy set forth in its agreement. The court held that more than the mere mention of the First Amendment is necessary to demonstrate the irreparable harm that justifies skipping arbitration and rushing to the courts (142 Cal. App. 4th 866, 873) .

[g] Exhaustion Required Even If Questions Concerning Agency's Jurisdiction Arise

In McAllister v. County of Monterey (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 253, 284-288, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 , the defendant county approved a coastal development permit for construction of a single family dwelling. The plaintiff owned nearby land. The plaintiff filed an administrative appeal of the planning commission's decision, seeking review from the County's board of supervisors. In his appeal, the plaintiff asserted that the proposed project violated a coastal development permit, that it conflicted with numerous policies in the local coastal program, that the planning commission's approval was based on misleading information, and that the project violated CEQA. The board of supervisors unanimously denied the plaintiff's appeal. In the mandamus action, the county and developer filed a demurrer, and the trial court stayed the proceedings. After the Coastal Commission granted the permit, the county and developer filed a second demurrer, which the trial court sustained. The plaintiff then brought an administrative mandamus action before the California Coastal Commission challenging the County's approval. At the same time, he petitioned for writ of mandate in the trial court.

The defendants filed a demurrer to the petition on, among other grounds, the ground that the plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies before filing suit. The trial court granted the demurrer without leave to amend and ordered the case dismissed in its entirety. The plaintiff appealed, arguing that he was not required to exhaust administrative remedies because the agency had no jurisdiction and its orders were null and void.

The court of appeal upheld the trial court's ruling, holding that even where an ordinance is challenged on the ground that it is void as applied to a particular property, the challenger must first exhaust all available administrative remedies before asserting a claim in court (147 Cal. App. 4th 253, 285) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Court Without Jurisdiction When Petitioner Fails to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

In Personnel Comm'n v. Barstow Unified Sch. Dist. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 871, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797 , an employees association intervened in a proceeding in which a personnel commission of a school district sought a writ of mandate compelling the district to vacate a decision to lay off the district's transportation workers and contract with a private company. The superior court granted the writ, but the court of appeal reversed on procedural grounds, including a determination that the employees association failed to exhaust administrative remedies available to it. The court noted that prior to the filing of the matter at issue, the association had filed an unfair practice charge against the district with the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB). The PERB subsequently issued a complaint alleging that the district's decision to contract for transportation was made in violation of the district's statutory duty to bargain. The PERB charge had a different statutory basis that the petition for mandate, but both proceedings were based on the same underlying conduct. The court held that although the petition included a request for declaratory relief which could not be granted by the PERB, that additional claim could not be used to avoid the inconvenience of deferred judicial review by bypassing an administrative remedy (43 Cal. App. 4th 871, 890). The court reversed the judgment of the superior court, and remanded with directions to stay the proceeding with respect to the claims of the association until administrative remedies were exhausted.

In Patrick Media Group, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 592, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 824 , the court of appeal reversed an inverse condemnation judgment entered against the Coastal Commission, ruling that the action was barred by the application of res judicata in that administrative remedies regarding the issuance, denial, or conditions of a permit. Claims that have already been litigated, as well as though in which a judicial remedy is being sought, are barred when they involve issues for which an administrative remedy was available but was not exhausted (9 Cal. App. 4th 592, 612-618) .

In City of Fresno v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1484, 234 Cal. Rptr. 136 , the court of appeal reversed a trial court decision denying summary judgment to defendant city in an action for wrongful discharge filed by a city employee. The employee had appealed his order of removal to the civil service board, which upheld the order. Thereafter, the employee filed a mandate proceeding attacking the board's decision, but dismissed the proceeding prior to its final disposition. The court of appeal ruled that plaintiff was required to exhaust all his administrative remedies before filing a tort action against the city, and his voluntary dismissal of the petition for writ of mandate amounted to a failure to do so (188 Cal. App. 3d 1484, 1489) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.69

§ 195.69 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Futility Exception to the Exhaustion of Remedies Requirement Does Not Apply

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Futility Exception to the Exhaustion of Remedies Requirement Does Not Apply

[Caption. See § 195.50.]

THE FUTILITY EXCEPTION DOES NOT EXCUSE PETITIONER'S FAILURE TO EXHAUST HIS/HER ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES BECAUSE THE AGENCY HAS NEVER DECLARED WHAT ITS RULING WOULD BE.

A. Agency Has Not Declared What Its Ruling Will Be. The futility exception does not apply unless the petitioner can positively state that the administrative body has declared what its ruling will be in a particular case (Steinhart v. County of Los Angeles (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1298, 1313-1314, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195, 223 P.3d 57 ; Coachella Valley Mosquito and Vector Control Dist. v. California Public Employment Relations Board (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1072, 1081, 112 P.3d 623, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234 ; In re Darlene T. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 929, 940-941, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119 ; City and County of San Francisco v. International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 39 (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 938, 947-948 ; Economic Empowerment Foundation v. Quackenbush (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323).

[Optional] B. Mere Fact That Similar Claims Were Denied Is Not Determinative. The possibility that an administrative body will honor a claim precludes application of the futility exception even though most other like claims have been dishonored in the past (Economic Empowerment Foundation v. Quackenbush (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323).

[Optional] C. Mere Potential for Unfairness Not Sufficient. Potential for unfairness did not establish futility (Economic Empowerment Foundation v. Quackenbush (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency, when the petitioner has failed to exhaust his or her administrative remedies. The basis of this form is that the petitioner is not excused from exhausting his or her administrative remedies under the futility doctrine, because it cannot be positively stated that the administrative body has declared what its ruling will be in the particular case.

This form may be submitted in a reply brief to oppose the contentions set forth in § 195.94, that the exhaustion of administrative remedies rule does not apply because pursuit of administrative remedies is futile. With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used in opposition to the petition or in support of a motion for summary judgment or judgment on the pleadings in favor of respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, counsel should refer to the absence of any declaration by the administrative body of what its ruling will be in the particular case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Agency Has Not Declared What Its Ruling Will Be

In Steinhart v. County of Los Angeles (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1298, 1313-1314, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195, 223 P.3d 57 , a trustor established a revocable trust, made herself trustee and sole present beneficiary of the trust, and transferred to herself as trustee her residence. The trust became irrevocable upon her death. Under the terms of the trust, the plaintiff (the trustor's sister) received a life estate in the residence so long as she pay taxes and make any necessary repairs. When the trustor died, the defendant county reassessed the residence and substantially increased its valuation for tax purposes. The plaintiff paid the increased tax bills and filed a claim with the defendant seeking a tax refund. She argued that when she received a life estate in the residence, no "change in ownership" occurred within the meaning of Cal. Const. Art. XIII A, § 2(a), to trigger a reassessment. The defendant sent the plaintiff a letter denying her request for a refund. The plaintiff filed a suit against the defendant contesting the reassessment. The defendant filed a demurrer, arguing that the plaintiff failed exhaust her administrative remedies before filing suit and that under Rev. & Tax Code § 60, a change in ownership occurs when there is the transfer of a life estate to a nonspouse third party. The trial court granted the demurrer without leave to amend. The Court of Appeal reversed, holding that the futility exception to the exhaustion requirement applied given the defendant's "unyielding position" a change in ownership occurred.

The California Supreme Court held that, ordinarily, a taxpayer seeking judicial relief from an erroneous assessment must exhaust remedies before the administrative body empowered initially to correct the error. The Court further held that the futility exception to the exhaustion requirement must be narrowly applied, and did not apply here. While the defendant clearly stuck to its position in the prior hearings that a change in ownership had occurred, the Court held that nothing in the record indicated that, at the time an application for assessment reduction would have been timely, the defendant had predetermined its position as to whether a change in ownership had occurred. The Court held that the position the defendant took in the subsequent court action the plaintiff filed was insufficient to invoke the futility exception (47 Cal. 4th 1298, 1313-1314) .

In Coachella Valley Mosquito and Vector Control Dist. v. California Public Employment Relations Board (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1072, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234, 112 P.3d 623 , the California School Employees Association (CSEA) filed a Myers-Milias-Brown Act (Gov. C. §§ 3500-3511 (governs collective bargaining and employer-employee relations for local public entities)) unfair practice charge with the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) against the Coachella

Valley Mosquito and Vector Control District (District). The district filed an answer to the complaint and a motion to dismiss. In the motion, the district argued that the PERB lacked jurisdiction over alleged MMBA violations occurring before a certain date because six months was the limitations period for an MMBA unfair practice charge. The PERB's agent denied the motion to dismiss. The district petitioned for a writ of mandate in the trial court. The CSEA and the PERB opposed the writ petition arguing that the district's action was barred because the district had not exhausted its administrative remedies. The court denied the petition, concluding that the district was not required to exhaust its administrative remedies before challenging the PERB's jurisdiction, that the limitations period for alleging these violations was three years, and that the PERB had jurisdiction over each unfair practice alleged in the complaint.

The district appealed The Court of Appeal affirmed, holding that the district was not required to exhaust its administrative remedies because to do so would have been futile insofar as in other cases the PERB had previously held that the statute of limitations for MMBA violations was three years.

The Supreme Court granted review. It held that, in general, a party must exhaust administrative remedies before resorting to the courts (35 Cal. 4th 1072, 1080, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234, 112 P.3d 623). It held further that the doctrine requiring exhaustion of administrative remedies is subject to exceptions, including that the failure to exhaust administrative remedies is excused if it is clear that exhaustion would be futile. However, the Court held that the Court of Appeal had misapplied this rule. The Court held that for the futility exception to apply, it is not sufficient that a party can show what the agency's ruling would be on a particular issue or defense. Rather, the party must show what the agency's ruling would be on a particular case (35 Cal. 4th 1072, 1081, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234, 112 P.3d 623). The Court held that it was not sufficient that we know what the PERB's final ruling would have been on the district's limitations defense. Rather, the district had to show how the PERB would have ruled on the CSEA's unfair practices charge. For example, the district might have prevailed on some procedural ground other than expiration of the limitations period, or it might have prevailed on the merits. Thus, the district did not show that further administrative proceedings would have been futile because the outcome of those proceedings was known in advance (35 Cal. 4th 1072, 1081, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234, 112 P.3d 623). Rather, the Court held, the district was excused from exhausting administrative remedies because the district was claiming that the PERB lacked authority to resolve the underlying dispute between the parties (35 Cal. 4th 1072, 1081-1082, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234, 112 P.3d 623).

In In re Darlene T. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 929, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119 , three children were detained with their grandmother for temporary custody. Due to various procedural delays, the detention was not formally approved for over six months. The grandmother sought retroactive Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 (ASFA) payments from the Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) for those six months. The juvenile court ordered retroactive payments from the date of detention. The DCFS filed a notice of appeal arguing that the juvenile court acted in excess of its powers when it ordered DCFS to make retroactive ASFA payments to the grandmother. DCFS argued, among other things, that the court violated law which dictated that an applicant must exhaust administrative remedies before a court may consider the issue of ASFA funding.

The court of appeal agreed. It set forth the administrative steps required to be followed by an individual whose claim for benefits is denied or is not acted upon with reasonable promptness (see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq.).

The grandmother argued that the requirement of exhaustion of administrative remedies should not be applied because the requirement would result in more delays in the approval of any relative home for AFDC-FC funding purposes and create an impossible logjam on the road to permanence.

The court disagreed, holding that there had been no prior administrative review rendering an administrative hearing to be needless (163 Cal. App. 4th 929, 940-941) . The court held that there was no indication that the grandmother ever made an effort to challenge the earlier denial of ASFA approval directly with the Department of Social Services (DSS). Nor was there any indication that such a determination would be outside the scope of DSS's authority or would necessarily render a denial. On the contrary, the court held, such a proceeding would provide a comprehensive record, as well as a final administrative determination, for the superior court to review (163 Cal. App. 4th 929, 940-941) .

In City and County of San Francisco v. International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 39 (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 938, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516 , the City of San Francisco filed a writ petition alleging that a local union violated the city charter by refusing to submit outstanding labor disputes to binding arbitration. The trial court concluded that it did not have jurisdiction to compel the union to arbitrate.

The court of appeal affirmed the denial of the City's petition for writ of mandate and petition to compel arbitration. The court held that the California Public Employment Relations Board (PERB) had exclusive jurisdiction. The City then argued that if the PERB had exclusive jurisdiction, the City should be excused from pursuing its administrative remedy prior to filing suit. The City argued that it should be excused from pursuing its remedies with the PERB because such an action would be futile insofar as the PERB denied its request for an injunction in the lower court proceedings and thus failed to issue the relief the City requested. The court held that failure to exhaust an administrative remedy is excused if it is clear that exhaustion would be futile (151 Cal. App. 4th 938, 947) . However, the court held that for the futility exception to apply, it is not sufficient that a party can show what the agency's ruling would be on a particular issue or defense. Rather, the party must show what the agency's ruling would be in the particular case before the court (151 Cal. App. 4th 938, 947-948) . The court held that the City could not invoke the futility exception simply by arguing that the PERB denied its request for an injunction. Rather, the City must show how the PERB inevitably would rule on its claim that the union was required to submit to binding arbitration under the charter's mandatory impasse provisions (151 Cal. App. 4th 938, 947-948) .

In Economic Empowerment Foundation v. Quackenbush (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323 , a foundation intervened in proceedings before the Department of Insurance (Department) on an insurer's applications for rate increases in personal and commercial lines of earthquake insurance. The Commissioner issued an order in the proceedings granting specified rate increases to the insurer. The foundation filed a complaint for declaratory relief and a petition for writ of mandate. The complaint sought a declaration that the foundation was entitled to fees for its work in the insurer's rate proceedings. In the alternative to the relief sought in the complaint, the petition requested an order finding that the Commissioner was disqualified to rule on the foundation's request for fees, and directing that the Commissioner award fees to the foundation. The petition alleged that the Commissioner had engaged in a public campaign of hostility against consumer intervention in Department proceedings generally, and against the foundation specifically. It quoted a press release from the Commissioner stating that the foundation had been getting "fat off the public trough" and certain individuals were "lining their pockets with taxpayer dollars." The petition averred that the Commissioner was biased against the foundation and other interveners, and described other rate proceedings in which the Commissioner had allegedly refused without justification to award compensation to the foundation. The trial court sustained demurrers without leave to amend by the Commissioner and the real party in interest insurer.

The court of appeal affirmed. The foundation argued on appeal that the court should resolve the fee claim, even if the claim is within the Commissioner's exclusive jurisdiction, because the Commissioner's bias made it futile for the foundation to pursue the administrative remedy. The court stated that if a claim is cognizable in the first instance by an agency alone, the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies applies rather than the primary jurisdiction doctrine. The exhaustion doctrine is not a matter of judicial discretion, but is a fundamental rule of procedure under which relief must be sought from the administrative body and this remedy exhausted before the courts will act (57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 683) . The court stated that the futility exception is a very narrow one. It does not apply "unless the petitioner can positively state that [the administrative body] has declared what its ruling will be in a particular case" [quoting from Sea & Sage Audubon Society, Inc. v. Planning Com. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 412, 418, 194 Cal. Rptr. 357, 668 P.2d 664]. The Commissioner established procedures for allowance of fees. The foundation did not request an award from the Commissioner in the proceeding, however, and the Commissioner did not take a position on the merits of such a request (57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690) .

[b] Mere Fact That Similar Claims Were Denied Is Not Determinative

The facts and procedural background of Economic Empowerment Foundation v. Quackenbush (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323 , are discussed in [a], above. The court of appeal stated that the fact that the Commissioner of the Department of Insurance may have treated the foundation and other interveners unfairly in other proceedings did not establish that the Commissioner was bound to do so in the proceedings on which the appeal was before the court. The court cited County of San Diego v. State of California (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 68, 77-78, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 134, 931 P.2d 312 , in which the possibility that a claim would be honored precluded application of the futility exception even though most other like claims had been dishonored in the past (57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690).

[c] Mere Potential for Unfairness Not Sufficient

The facts and procedural background of Economic Empowerment Foundation v. Quackenbush (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323 , are discussed in [a], above. In concluding that the futility exception did not apply to a foundation's claim for fees for intervening in proceedings to determine an insurer's application for rate increases before the Department of Insurance, the court cited Edgren v. Regents of University of California (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 515, 522, 205 Cal. Rptr. 6 in which a potential for unfairness did not establish futility (57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 690).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.70

§ 195.70 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Petitioner Failed to Exhaust Judicial Remedies

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--Petitioner Failed to Exhaust Judicial Remedies

[Caption. See § 195.50.]

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE PETITIONER FAILED TO EXHAUST HIS/HER ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES.

A. Petitioner Did Not Appeal Prior Administrative Ruling in Mandate Action. Unless a party to a quasi-judicial proceeding challenges the agency's adverse findings made in that proceeding, by means of a mandate action in superior court, those findings are binding in later civil actions (Risam v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 412, 419, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 267).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency, when the petitioner has failed to exhaust his or her judicial remedies. The basis of this form is that the petitioner failed to pursue a mandate action in superior court, and therefore the findings of the administrative agency are binding in a later civil action.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, counsel should refer to the petitioner's failure to pursue a mandate action in superior court to appeal an administrative ruling, and therefore the findings of the administrative agency are binding in a later civil action.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Petitioner Did Not Appeal Prior Administrative Ruling

In Risam v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 412, 420, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 267 , a county employee sued the County of Los Angeles after she was demoted. She alleged that the county demoted her in retaliation for opposing discriminatory practices in violation of the California Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.] (FEHA). The employee filed a grievance with the Civil Service Commission. The Commission held that, while the county did not have sufficient evidence to warrant the employee's demotion, the employee failed to present sufficient evidence that the county violated either the FEHA or the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). The employee did not file timely objections to the Commission's findings or file a petition for writ of administrative mandamus. The employee then filed a civil action against the county for demotion in retaliation for opposing discriminatory practices in violation of FEHA. The county filed a motion for summary judgment, contending that the employee's failure to challenge judicially the Commission's finding that the county did not violate FEHA is fatal to the sole FEHA cause of action in her complaint. The employee responded that the administrative hearing officer did not decide whether her demotion was in retaliation for complaining of discriminatory practices. The trial court granted the motion for summary judgment and entered judgment in favor of the county.

The court of appeal affirmed. It concluded that the employee's action was barred by the doctrine of collateral estoppel, as she did not seek judicial review of the adverse administrative finding that she failed to present evidence sufficient to prove any violation of the ADA or FEHA by the county (99 Cal. App. 4th 412, 419). The court held that unless a party to a quasi-judicial proceeding challenges the agency's adverse findings made in that proceeding by means of a mandate action in superior court those findings are binding in later civil actions. This requirement of exhaustion of judicial remedies is to be distinguished from the requirement of exhaustion of administrative remedies. Exhaustion of administrative remedies is a jurisdictional prerequisite to resort to the courts. Exhaustion of judicial remedies, on the other hand, is necessary to avoid giving binding effect to the administrative agency's decision, because that decision has achieved finality due to the aggrieved party's failure to pursue the exclusive judicial remedy for reviewing administrative action (99 Cal. App. 4th 412, 419).

The court explained that the rule of exhaustion of judicial remedies is based on the doctrine of res judicata and issue preclusion (99 Cal. App. 4th 412, 419-420 , quoting from Knickerbocker v. City of Stockton (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 235, 241, 244 Cal. Rptr. 764). Unless the losing party challenges an administrative decision, the decision binds the parties on the issues litigated and if those issues are fatal to a civil suit, the plaintiff cannot state a viable cause of action (99 Cal. App. 4th 412, 420).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.71

§ 195.71 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--No Mandate Review of Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board Decision, General Form

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--No Mandate Review of Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board Decision, General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)
Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board,	)	NO. _____
Respondent,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER
_____ [name],	)	TO PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
Real Party in Interest.	)
	)
	)

_____

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THIS COURT LACKS JURISDICTION OF A PROCEEDING TO REVIEW A DECISION OF THE ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE CONTROL APPEALS BOARD.

A. Demurrer in Mandate Proceedings. [See § 195.50[1], Paragraph A].

B. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 195.50[1], Paragraph B].

C. Review of Appeals Board Decision. A decision of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board may not be reviewed in a judicial proceeding for writ of mandate (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23089, 23090).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[_____ (Respondent or Real Party in Interest)]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ filed in superior court to review a decision by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board.

With appropriate modifications this memorandum may be used to support a motion for an order that the proceeding be transferred to the court having subject matter jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396, 1109].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See also Comments under § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Court Will Transfer to Proper Court

Rather than dismiss the proceeding, the court will order it transferred to the proper reviewing court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396, 1109].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Review of Appeals Board Decision

Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090 provides that any person affected by a final order of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, including the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, may apply to the Supreme Court or to the court of appeal for a writ of review (i.e., certiorari) of such final order. Business and Professions Code Section 23089 provides that final orders of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board may be reviewed by the courts specified in Article 5 (commencing with Section 23090) in the manner therein specified and not otherwise. The only manner of review specified in Article 5 is review on a writ of review (i.e., certiorari) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1067].

Because the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control may seek judicial review of a decision of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090], it will sometimes happen that the person against whom the department has acted will not be the petitioner for review but will be, instead, the real party in interest. (The appeals board will be the respondent.) In such a case, by well established practice, the real party in interest will have the burden of opposing the petition for review [see, e.g., Tieberg v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 943, 88 Cal. Rptr. 175, 471 P.2d 975] .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.72

§ 195.72 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--No Mandate Review of Worker's Compensation Appeals Board Decision

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--No Mandate Review of Worker's Compensation Appeals Board Decision

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)
Workers' Compensation Appeals Board,	)	NO. _____
Respondent,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER
_____ [name],	)	TO PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
Real Party in Interest.	)
	)
	)

_____

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE COURT LACKS JURISDICTION OF A PROCEEDING TO REVIEW A DECISION OF THE WORKERS' COMPENSATION APPEALS BOARD.

A. Demurrer in Mandate Proceedings. [See § 195.50[1], Paragraph A].

B. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 195.50[1], Paragraph B].

C. Review of Appeals Board Decision. A decision of the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board may not be reviewed in a judicial proceeding for writ of mandate (Lab. Code §§ 5950, 5955).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

_____ [Respondent or Real Party in Interest]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ filed in a superior court to review a decision by the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board.

With appropriate modifications this memorandum may be used to support a motion for an order that the proceeding be transferred to a court having subject matter jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396, 1109].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See also Comments under § 195.50[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Review of Workers' Compensation Appeals Board Decision

Because either party in a proceeding before the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board may seek judicial review of a decision of the appeals board [see Lab. Code § 5950], it will sometimes happen that a person, in whose favor the appeals board has decided, will not be the petitioner for review but will be, instead, the real party in interest. (The appeals board will be the respondent.) In such a case, by well-established, practice, the real party in interest will have the burden of opposing the petition for review [see, e.g., Tieberg v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 943, 88 Cal. Rptr. 175, 471 P.2d 975] .

[d] Court Will Transfer to Proper Court

Rather than dismiss the proceeding, the court will order it transferred to the proper reviewing court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396, 1109].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Review of Appeals Board Decision

Labor Code Section 5950 provides that any person affected by an order, decision, or award of the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board may apply to the Supreme Court or to the court of appeal for a writ of review (i.e., certiorari) for the purpose of inquiring into and determining the lawfulness of the order, decision, or award. Labor Code Section 5955 provides that no court of this state, except the Supreme Court and the courts of appeal to the extent herein specified (i.e., in Labor Code Sections 5950 through 5956), has jurisdiction to review any order, rule, decision, or award of the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Review of Appeals Board Decision

In Greitz v. Sivachenko (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 849, 313 P.2d 922 , which was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court for enforcement of an award of the Industrial Accident Commission (predecessor agency to the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board [see Stats. 1965, ch. 1513, § 214]), the appellant tried to have the award reviewed. The court noted that the award was final [see Lab. Code § 5950] and, in any event, could be attacked only by writ of review filed in the Supreme Court or court of appeal [see Lab. Code §§ 5950, 5955].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.73

§ 195.73 Demurrer Should Be Sustained--No Violation of Due Process When Prosecuting Agency Attorney Simultaneously Served As Adviser to Agency on Unrelated Matter

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Sustained--No Violation of Due Process When Prosecuting Agency Attorney Simultaneously Served As Adviser to Agency on Unrelated Matter

[Caption. See § 195.50.]

THE COURT SHOULD SUSTAIN THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THERE IS NO VIOLATION OF DUE PROCESS WHEN THE PROSECUTING AGENCY ATTORNEY SIMULTANEOUSLY SERVED AS AN ADVISER TO THE AGENCY ON AN UNRELATED MATTER.

No Violation of Due Process Occurs When Prosecuting Agency Attorney Simultaneously Served As Adviser to Agency on Unrelated Matter. There is no violation of due process when the prosecuting agency attorney simultaneously served as an adviser to the agency on an unrelated matter [Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. State Water Resources Control Board (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 731, 736-742, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 610, 199 P.3d 1142] .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency, when the petitioner has argues that his or her due process rights were violated when the prosecuting agency attorney simultaneously served as an adviser to the agency on an unrelated matter.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, counsel should refer to the due process protections provided despite the fact that the prosecuting agency attorney simultaneously served as an adviser to the agency on an unrelated matter.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Violation of Due Process Occurs When Prosecuting Agency Attorney Simultaneously Served as Adviser to Agency on Unrelated Matter

In Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. State Water Resources Control Board (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 731, 736-742, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 610, 199 P.3d 1142 , the plaintiff held a license to divert water from springs for irrigation. The defendant water board issued a notice of proposed revocation of that license on the grounds that the plaintiff failed to beneficially use the water for an extended period and had used the water for unauthorized purposes. The plaintiff requested a hearing to contest the revocation. The defendant issued a notice of public hearing, identifying Staff Counsel Samantha Olson as a prosecutor. The plaintiff filed a petition to disqualify the attorneys prosecuting its license revocation because Olson had concurrently advised the defendant in other matters. The defendant presented evidence that in water rights adjudicative proceedings, a Board member serves as the hearing officer, and the agency staff is separated into prosecutorial and advisory functions. Different staff attorneys are assigned to enforcement and hearing teams. Although agency staff employees did not combine adjudicative and prosecutorial functions in the same proceeding, a staff attorney assigned to an enforcement team may also be assigned to advise the Board members, in an unrelated proceeding, as a hearing team member. Agency employees assigned to the enforcement team are screened from inappropriate contact with Board members and other agency staff through strict application of the state Administrative Procedure Act's rules governing ex parte communications. The trial court granted the petition for writ of mandate compelling Olson's disqualification, and the court of appeal affirmed.

On appeal to the California Supreme Court, the defendant board argued that when the agency attorney who prosecuted an administrative license revocation proceeding had concurrently advised the adjudicator in a separate unrelated matter, the risk that the agency adjudicator will be biased in favor of the prosecuting agency attorney is of a magnitude sufficient to overcome the presumption of impartiality. The California Supreme Court disagreed. It held that any tendency for the agency adjudicator to favor an agency attorney acting as prosecutor because of that attorney's concurrent advisory role in an unrelated matter was too slight and speculative to violate due process (45 Cal. 4th 731, 737) . It held further that by itself, the combination of investigative, prosecutorial, and adjudicatory functions within a single agency did not create an unacceptable risk of bias and thus did not violate due process (45 Cal. 4th 731, 737) . Rather, the Administrative Procedure Act prohibits ex parte communications [see Gov. Code § 11430.10] and requires internal separation of functions (45 Cal. 4th 731, 738) . The Administrative Procedure Act requires the separation of prosecutorial and advisory functions on a case-by-case basis only. It does not prohibit an agency employee who acts in a prosecutorial capacity in one case from concurrently acting in an advisory role in an unrelated case (45 Cal. 4th 731, 738) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities §§ 195.74-195.79

[Reserved]

§§ 195.74[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.80

§ 195.80 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Invalidity Allegation Is Sufficient

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Invalidity Allegation Is Sufficient

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OPPOSING DEMURRER TO
Respondent.	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
	)
	)

_____

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE PETITION SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGES THE INVALIDITY OF AN ADMINISTRATIVE ORDER OR DECISION IN THAT IT ALLEGES FACTS SHOWING THAT _____ [THE AGENCY PROCEEDED WITHOUT OR IN EXCESS OF AUTHORITY or THE PETITIONER WAS DENIED A FAIR TRIAL AT THE ADMINISTRATIVE HEARING or THE AGENCY ABUSED ITS DISCRETION].

Decision is Invalid. The invalidity of the administrative order or decision may be alleged by stating facts tending to show either (1) the agency proceeded without or in excess of authority, (2) the petitioner was denied a fair trial at the administrative hearing, or (3) the agency abused its discretion (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate to review a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision when the demurrer is based on a failure to allege the invalidity of the order or decision.

This form may be used to oppose the form set forth in § 195.55.

The party intending to use a part of the administrative record in a case brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 must lodge that part of the record at least five days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1140].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used to oppose a motion for judgment on the pleadings in favor of the respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. In this instance, involving a pleading requirement, counsel should argue that the facts alleged in the petition are sufficient to constitute a cause of action. In his or her argument, counsel would refer to the specific number of the relevant allegation. In a demurrer, counsel may also request judicial notice, if appropriate, to show the sufficiency of the cause of action [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.]. For further discussion, see § 195.10[2][b].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Decision is Invalid

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b) provides that the inquiry in an administrative mandate case extends to the questions of whether the respondent has proceeded without, or in excess of jurisdiction; whether there was a fair trial; and whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Decision is Invalid

In Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032 , an application to the Department of Social Welfare for relocation funds was denied. The applicants then sought and received a "fair hearing" pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 in which their claim was again denied. The applicants then petitioned the superior court for a writ of mandamus, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, claiming that the departmental regulations violated federal and state law. The director demurred to the petition contending that the appropriate method of challenging the validity of a departmental regulation was either by petition for "ordinary" mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 or by an action for declaratory relief. Following the overruling of the demurrer, the director petitioned the Supreme Court for an extraordinary writ to annul the ruling.

In denying the peremptory writ, the Supreme Court held that the scope of a court's inquiry in a mandamus proceeding under either Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 or 1094.5 extends to a determination of whether the administrative agency proceeded without or in excess of its jurisdiction, whether thee was a fair trial, and whether there was a prejudicial abuse of discretion (28 Cal. 3d 668, 675). Furthermore, an abuse of discretion is established when the agency has not proceeded in the manner required by law or has proceeded pursuant to an invalid regulation (28 Cal. 3d 668, 675, 678).

Regulations adopted by an administrative agency are required to be consistent with, not in conflict with, and reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the statute authorizing the regulation. The validity of the agency's regulation can be contested through the mandamus procedure and, when it is so contested, the task of the court reviewing the administrative agency's regulation is to decide whether the agency reasonably interpreted the legislative mandate (28 Cal. 3d 668, 679).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.81

§ 195.81 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Beneficial Interest Allegation Is Sufficient

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Beneficial Interest Allegation Is Sufficient

[Caption. See § 195.80.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE PETITION SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGES THAT THE PETITIONER IS BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED IN THAT IT ALLEGES FACTS SHOWING THAT PETITIONER PARTICIPATED IN THE ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING THAT RESULTED IN THE _____ [ORDER or DECISION].

A. Interest of Participant in Administrative Proceeding. A person who participated in the administrative proceeding that resulted in the order or decision is beneficially interested in issuance of a writ of mandate for correction of legal errors that occurred in the proceeding (Bodinson Mfg. Co. v. California Employment Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 321, 330, 109 P.2d 935).

[Optional] B. Beneficial Interest of License Applicant. When the challenged administrative order or decision involves the denial of an application for a license or a permit, the petitioner can allege a beneficial interest in issuance of the writ by stating that he or she qualified and duly applied for the license or permit (Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 123, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate to review a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision when the demurrer is based on a failure to allege the petitioner's beneficial interest.

This form may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.56.

The party intending to use a part of the administrative record in a case brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 must lodge that part of the record at least five days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1140].

With appropriate modifications this memorandum may be used to oppose a motion for judgment on the pleadings in favor of the respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Interest of Participant in Administrative Proceeding

Bodinson Mfg. Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 321, 109 P.2d 935 , was a mandate proceeding, begun in the court of appeal but heard in the Supreme Court on that Court's granting a petition for hearing by the respondent, for review of an administrative adjudicatory decision. One of the issues was whether the petitioner had such a beneficial interest in issuance of the writ as would give standing to sue under Code Civ. Proc. § 1086. The Court established the rule that when the challenged administrative decision involves the denial of a license or permit, the petitioner can allege a beneficial interest in issuance of the writ by stating that he or she qualified and duly applied for the license or permit. In stating the rule, the Court noted the absence of any authority which holds that a person permitted by statute to participate as an interested party in the administrative hearings and to take appeals at the administrative level is, nevertheless, without a sufficient interest in the result to test the legality of the final decision before a court of law. Elemental principles of justice require that parties to the administrative proceeding be permitted to retain their status as such throughout the final judicial review by a court of law, for the fundamental issues in litigation remain essentially the same (17 Cal. 2d 321, 330, 109 P.2d 935).

[b] Beneficial Interest of License Applicant

Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court dismissing a proceeding for writ of mandate to review an administrative decision denying the petitioner's application for a building permit. The judgment of dismissal followed an order sustaining a general demurrer to the petition. The petition alleged that on a certain date the petitioner applied for the building permit and submitted plans pursuant to a governing ordinance; that the application was subsequently denied; that the petitioner then appealed pursuant to an established administrative remedial procedure; and that after an adverse decision on that appeal, the petitioner attempted informally to ascertain how the defects in his application might be cured but was not successful. The Supreme Court found the petition sufficient. Although the facts might be unartfully stated, or intermingled with a statement of other facts irrelevant to the cause of action, the petitioner stated a cause of action for a writ of mandate to compel the issuance of a building permit and that, therefore, the superior court erred in sustaining the general demurrer (10 Cal. 3d 110, 123, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Interest of Participant in Administrative Proceeding

Temescal Water Co. v. Dept. Public Works (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 90, 280 P.2d 1 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court in favor of the respondent following an order sustaining, without leave to amend, a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate to review an administrative decision to issue a permit. The Supreme Court reversed with directions to allow an amendment of the petition, stating that statutory authority allows the petitioners to participate in the administrative proceeding; and, if on amendment to their petition they showed their participation as interested parties in the proceeding, they could establish, as well, their interest in a judicial proceeding to review the department's determination. Generally, it is held to be an abuse of discretion by a court to sustain without leave to amend a demurrer to an original complaint, unless the complaint shows on its face that it is incapable of amendment. It did not appear that the petition at hand could not be amended to state a cause of action (44 Cal. 2d 90, 107, 280 P.2d 1).

In Department of Health Services v. Kennedy (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 799, 209 Cal. Rptr. 595 , a county civil service commission imposed penalties against employees of the county department of health, and the department subsequently obtained a writ of administrative mandate to order the commission to reconsider the penalties. The employees sought to nullify the effect of the reexamination by contending that the department lacked standing to bring a petition for administrative mandate directed at the commission. The court of appeal affirmed, observing that the department not only had a right to appear at the hearing, but was required to appear, and was a beneficially interested party entitled to standing. The court rejected the employees' contention that the department's status as an arm of county government precludes it from bringing a writ of mandate against the commission, holding rather that the courts recognize the distinction between a county's corporate identity and the various autonomous elements of a county's governmental structure (163 Cal. App. 3d 799, 802, 209 Cal. Rptr. 595).

[b] Beneficial Interest of License Applicant

Hippen v. Ford (1900) 129 Cal. 315, 61 P. 929 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court that a writ of mandate be issued directing an administrative agency to grant an application for a retail liquor license. The Supreme Court reversed for lack of sufficient supporting evidence; but on the question of pleading, the Court stated that it must appear that the petitioner complied with the law, and took all the necessary steps required in order to show that it was the duty of the defendants to issue the license (129 Cal. 315, 316, 61 P. 929).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.82

§ 195.82 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Failure to Support Decision With Findings Is Abuse of Discretion

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Failure to Support Decision With Findings Is Abuse of Discretion

[Caption. see § 195.80.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE PETITION STATES A CAUSE OF ACTION BASED ON ABUSE OF DISCRETION IN THAT IT ALLEGES FACTS SHOWING THAT THE ADMINISTRATIVE ADJUDICATORY _____ [ORDER or DECISION] IS NOT SUPPORTED BY PROPER FINDINGS.

A. Decision Not Supported by Findings. An agency has abused its discretion if it has failed to support its order or decision with findings that bridge the analytic gap between the order or decision and the evidence (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b); Topanga Assn. for a Scenic Community v. Los Angeles County (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 515, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 ; Respers v. University of Cal. Retirement System (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 864, 870-873, 217 Cal. Rptr. 594).

[Optional] B. Presumption of Sufficient Findings Inapplicable. The presumption that an agency's rulings rest on the necessary findings and that those findings are supported by substantial evidence does not apply to agencies that are required to expressly state their findings and set forth the relevant supportive facts (Broadway, Laguna etc. Assn. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 767, 773, 59 Cal. Rptr. 146, 427 P.2d 810 ; J.L. Thomas, Inc. v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 916, 926, 283 Cal. Rptr. 815).

[Optional] C. Findings Must Be Legally Relevant. Findings must be legally relevant in order to support agency action (Broadway, Laguna etc. Assn. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 767, 773-774, 59 Cal. Rptr. 146, 427 P.2d 810 ; City and County of San Francisco v. Board of Permit Appeals (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1099, 1109, 255 Cal. Rptr. 307).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [typed name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision on the basis of failure to state a cause of action based on abuse of discretion, when the petition alleges that the agency failed to support its order or decision with proper findings.

The party intending to use a part of the administrative record in a case brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 must lodge that part of the record at least five days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1140].

With appropriate modifications this memorandum may be used to oppose a motion for summary judgment in favor of the respondent or a motion for judgment on the pleadings in favor of the respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Decision Not Supported by Findings

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b) provides that the inquiry by the court in an administrative mandate proceeding extends to whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion, and that abuse of discretion is established if the order or decision is not supported by the findings.

In Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 , the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission granted to original real party in interest a variance to a county ordinance. The variance allowed original real party (who was replaced, at an undisclosed point in the proceedings, by a group of successor real parties in interest) to establish a 93-space mobile home park on 28 acres of land zoned for one-acre minimum lot sizes for light agricultural use and single-family residences. Petitioner nonprofit association appealed the grant to the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, which denied the appeal. Petitioner then sought relief by way of administrative mandate in superior court. The superior court denied the mandate petition, and the court of appeal upheld the denial. Petitioner then appealed to the California Supreme Court.

The Court reversed the judgment and remanded the case to the superior court with directions to issue a writ of mandate requiring the board of supervisors to vacate its order awarding the variance. In doing so, the Court determined that the findings did not support the evidence (11 Cal. 3d 506, 510). To support its holding, the Court noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 clearly requires that, at a minimum, a court reviewing the decision of an administrative agency must determine both whether substantial evidence supports the agency's findings and whether the findings support the agency's decision (11 Cal. 3d 506, 514-515). Furthermore, the Court concluded that Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5

implicitly requires the agency rendering the challenged decision to set forth findings to bridge the analytic gap between the raw evidence and the ultimate decision or order. If the Legislature had desired otherwise, it could have declared as a possible basis for issuing mandate the absence of substantial evidence to support the agency's action. By focusing, instead, on the relationships between evidence and findings and between findings and ultimate action, the Legislature sought to direct the reviewing court's attention to the analytic route the agency traveled from evidence to action. In so ruling, the Court stated its belief that the Legislature must have contemplated the agency would reveal this route, and that Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 leaves no room for the conclusion that the Legislature would have been content to have a reviewing court speculate as to the agency's basis for decision (11 Cal. 3d 506, 515).

In the instant case, the Court found the findings insufficient to support the decision because the planning commission's findings did not include facts sufficient to satisfy the legislative criteria applicable to the variance awarded. These criteria emphasized disparities between properties, rather than treatment of the subject property's characteristics in the abstract. Because the commission's findings focused almost exclusively on the qualities of the subject property, the Court held them insufficient to support the decision to award the variance (11 Cal. 3d 506, 520-522).

In Respers v. University of Cal. Retirement System (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 864, 217 Cal. Rptr. 594 , plaintiff was a nurse employed by the University of California Davis Medical Center who, after medical termination, applied for disability income from defendant. After plaintiff's application was denied, an administrative hearing was held. The administrative law judge's proposed decision in favor of plaintiff was rejected by defendant, which made no findings in support of its rejection. Plaintiff filed for a writ of mandate directing defendant to set aside its denial of benefits. The trial court denied the writ. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded with directions that a peremptory writ of mandate be issued commanding defendant to vacate its decision and make findings sufficient to support its decision and facilitate judicial review. The court stated that as an administrative agency, defendant is required to make findings sufficient both to enable the parties to determine whether and on what basis they should seek review and, in the event of review, to apprise a reviewing court of the basis of the decision (171 Cal. App. 3d 864, 870). The need for findings is not based on rule or regulation but is implicit in the Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b) definition of "abuse of discretion," which includes instances when an administrative decision is not supported by the findings. In its administrative decision defendant must set forth findings to bridge the analytic gap between the raw evidence and ultimate decision or order. Absent some indication that defendant adopted the findings of another, no assumption will be made that defendant's findings satisfy the requirements that the grounds on which the agency acted be clearly disclosed and adequately sustained (171 Cal. App. 3d 864, 871-872). Defendant's failure to adopt findings is prejudicial and precludes meaningful review (171 Cal. App. 3d 864, 873).

[b] Presumption of Sufficient Findings Inapplicable

In Broadway, Laguna etc. Assn. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 767, 59 Cal. Rptr. 146, 427 P.2d 810 , real party in interest property developer applied for a variance from certain provisions of the San Francisco city planning code. The city zoning administrator denied the application, and real party appealed the denial to respondent city Board of Permit Appeals. The board reversed the zoning administrator and granted the application. Plaintiff, an association of interested property owners, petitioned the superior court for a writ of mandate to compel the board to set aside its order. The superior court entered judgment denying the petition, and plaintiff appealed from the judgment.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment and remanded the case to the superior court with directions to issue a writ of mandate requiring the board to vacate its order granting the variance application and to affirm the zoning administrator's original decision denying the application. The Court based its reversal on the board's failure to make findings in support of its decision that met the requirements of the city planning code (66 Cal. 2d 767, 773-774). In so ruling, the Court distinguished the instant case from that of Siller v. Board of Supervisors (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 479, 25 Cal. Rptr. 73, 375 P.2d 41 . Siller holds that the action of a municipal body in granting a variance must be sustained absent a clear and convincing showing of abuse of discretion because it is presumed, when a variance is granted, that official duty was performed in investigating the matter and that the existence of necessary facts supporting the variance was found [Siller v. Board of Supervisors (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 479, 484, 25 Cal. Rptr. 73, 375 P.2d 41] . In the instant case, the Court held that Siller's presumption, which the Court interpreted as a presumption that an agency's rulings rest on the necessary findings and that those findings are supported by substantial evidence, does not apply to agencies that are required expressly to state their findings and to set forth the relevant facts supporting those findings (66 Cal. 2d 767, 773). The Court found the presumption inapplicable to respondent board because the city planning code requires the board to make findings in variance cases (66 Cal. 2d 767, 772).

In J.L. Thomas, Inc. v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 916, 283 Cal. Rptr. 815 , plaintiff applied to the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission for a conditional use permit to operate a cabaret featuring live adult entertainment. The commission denied the application, and plaintiff appealed the denial to the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors, which denied his appeal. Plaintiff then filed a petition for a writ of mandate in the superior court, challenging the commission's findings as unsupported by the evidence and challenging the relevancy of the findings to the decision. The superior court entered judgment denying the petition, and plaintiff appealed from the judgment.

The court of appeal reversed the superior court's judgment and directed the court to grant the petition for the writ. The court based its reversal, in part, on the grounds that the findings of defendant commission did not support its decision to deny the application and the evidence was insufficient to support the irrelevant findings that were made. In so holding, the court reaffirmed the rule that the presumption that an agency's rulings rest on the necessary findings and that those findings are supported by substantial evidence does not apply to agencies that are required to expressly state their findings and to set forth the relevant facts supporting those findings (232 Cal. App. 3d 916, 926). Because defendant commission was required by the county code to make specified findings relative to the issuance of the conditional use permit applied for by plaintiff, it could not avail itself of the presumption (232 Cal. App. 3d 916, 922).

[c] Findings Must Be Legally Relevant

The facts and procedural background of Broadway, Laguna etc. Assn. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 767, 59 Cal. Rptr. 146, 427 P.2d 810 , are discussed in Presumption of Sufficient Findings Inapplicable, above. In that case, the Supreme Court reversed the superior court's judgment and directed the court to issue a writ of mandate affirming the San Francisco zoning administrator's decision to deny the application of real party in interest for a zoning variance. In doing so, the Supreme Court held that the findings of the San Francisco Board of Permit Appeals, purporting to support its decision to overrule the zoning administrator, lacked legal relevance (66 Cal. 2d 767, 773). The Court based its finding of legal irrelevance on the fact that, even if the board's findings were assumed to be correct, they were insufficient to establish compliance with the five criteria for issuance of variances as set forth in the city planning code (66 Cal. 2d 767, 771 n.3, 773-774).

In City and County of San Francisco v. Board of Permit Appeals (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1099, 255 Cal. Rptr. 307 , real party in interest owned a multi-unit building that did not conform to zoning regulations. After the city zoning administrator ruled that a nonconforming unit in the building would have to be removed, the owner appealed to the city board of permit appeals. The board overruled the zoning administrator but failed to make any findings that would, under applicable law, allow the nonconforming unit to remain. Instead, the board adopted numerous policy-related findings, stating, for example, that legalization of the nonconforming unit would preserve existing housing stock, maintain affordable housing, and discourage demolition of sound structures. Plaintiff City and County of San Francisco, which sought to have the unit removed, applied for a writ of administrative mandate. The superior court denied the writ, and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It held that the board's action allowed the nonconforming dwelling unit contrary to the local planning code. The court noted that the board adopted numerous policy-related findings. However, regardless of the merit in these considerations, they could not, in the court's opinion, overcome the problem that approval of the unit would violate the city's zoning requirements. The court stated that findings must be legally relevant as well as supported by the evidence in order to support agency action (207 Cal. App. 3d 1099, 1109).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Decision Not Supported by Findings

William Dal Porto & Sons, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 237 Cal. Rptr. 206 , involved an appeal by a farm employer of a decision of the Agricultural Labor Relations Board ordering the employer to make restitution to its employees for all economic losses caused by the employer's refusal to bargain in good faith with the employees' union. The court of appeal found that the board erred in making its order without first making findings that the parties would have consummated an agreement but for the bad faith of the employer. It set aside the board's order and remanded the case for further findings (191 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1213).

American Funeral Concepts v. Board of Funeral Directors & Embalmers (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 303, 186 Cal. Rptr. 196 , was an appeal from a denial of a funeral director's petition for relief from defendant agency's revocation of his business license for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 7735 (requiring certain money received to be held in trust). The court of appeal found that the agency's findings set forth solely in the language of the applicable legislation were insufficient. The court stated that findings must reveal the lines of factual and legal conclusions on which the agency relied (136 Cal. App. 3d 303, 309). Accordingly, the court directed that the case be returned to the agency for proper consideration (136 Cal. App. 3d 303, 311).

Los Alamitos Gen. Hosp., Inc. v. Lackner (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 417, 149 Cal. Rptr. 98 , was an appeal from a judgment in a proceeding in administrative mandate commenced by a hospital seeking review of a decision of the state Department of Health [now Health Services (Health & Safety Code § 20)] denying its application for a permit exemption for acquisition of a new piece of equipment under former Health & Safety Code § 437.10 (now see Health & Safety Code § 127170, expansion permit for projects commenced after statute's effective date). The Department had severed the piece of equipment from the remainder of the application for exemptions which involved a project that had been commenced prior to the effective date of the statute. The trial court directed the agency to grant the application for exemption for the piece of equipment.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with direction to return the case to the administrative agency for appropriate findings of fact. The court quoted Topanga Assn. for a Scenic Community v. Los Angeles County (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 515, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 , and noted that implicit in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is a requirement that the agency that renders the challenged decision must set forth findings to bridge the analytic gap between the raw evidence and ultimate decision or order. In the instant case the administrative findings made at the conclusion of the hearing stated that the project was for the acquisition of "an EMI Full Body Scanner" (the piece of equipment), rather than the entire expansion project, and then found that the project as so defined was not commenced within the period required for the "grandfather" exemption.

The findings are susceptible of two equally possible meanings. The hearing officer and agency may have determined that the agency had the unqualified power to split an exemption application into component parts constituting separate projects to that the hearing was limited to consideration of the split "separate" project as determined by the Department of Health. Equally, the hearing officer and agency may have determined as a matter of fact that the EMI scanner was not part of the project contemplated by the hospital in its original design but was an afterthought.

If the agency adopted the first approach, its determination rejecting the certificate of need was erroneous. "Project" as used in the statutory scheme is defined in former Health & Safety Code § 437.10 (now see Health & Safety Code § 127170). Nothing in the statutory scheme empowers the Department of Health to treat separately the component parts of that which is a single project in fact. If the agency adopted the second approach, its determination must be accepted by reason of the substantial evidence test because then the issue will have been determined as one of fact. The agency's failure to specifically find on the issue of the factual inclusion of the full-body scanner in the "project" for which exemption was sought thus fails to bridge the analytical gap between the raw evidence and ultimate administrative decision and thus precludes intelligent judicial review (86 Cal. App. 3d 417, 425-426).

[b] Presumption of Sufficient Findings Inapplicable

The facts and procedural background of City and County of San Francisco v. Board of Permit Appeals (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1099, 255 Cal. Rptr. 307 , are discussed in § 195.82[3][c]. In that case, real party in interest asked the court to imply a finding in a decision of the San Francisco Board of Permit Appeals that would allow real party to retain an existing third dwelling unit on property zoned for single-dwelling use, despite the existence of express, contradictory board findings. The court refused to do so, invoking the rule that the presumption that an agency's rulings rest on the necessary findings and that those finding are supported by substantial evidence does not apply to agencies that are required to expressly state their findings and set forth the relevant supportive facts. The court noted that the San Francisco city planning code required the board to make written findings in support of its decision in the instant case (207 Cal. App. 3d 1099, 1106-1107).

[c] Findings Must Be Legally Relevant

The facts and procedural background of J.L. Thomas, Inc. v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 916, 283 Cal. Rptr. 815 , are discussed in § 195.82[3][a]. In that case, the court examined the legal relevance of findings made by the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission in support of its decision to deny plaintiff's application for a conditional use permit to operate a cabaret featuring live adult entertainment. The court held the commission's findings failed to support its decision because none of the findings specifically addressed the criteria, as set forth in the county code, governing issuance of the permit. The court noted, furthermore, that the findings even failed to address whether plaintiff had provided the commission with sufficient information to establish those criteria (232 Cal. App. 3d 916, 927-928).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.83

§ 195.83 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Failure to Support Findings With Evidence Is Abuse of Discretion

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Failure to Support Findings With Evidence Is Abuse of Discretion

[Caption. See § 195.80.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE PETITION STATES A CAUSE OF ACTION BASED ON ABUSE OF DISCRETION IN THAT IT ALLEGES FACTS SHOWING THAT THE FINDINGS, ON WHICH THE ADMINISTRATIVE ADJUDICATORY _____ [ORDER or DECISION] IS BASED, ARE NOT SUPPORTED BY THE EVIDENCE.

Findings Not Supported by Evidence. An agency has abused its discretion if it has failed to make findings that are supported by the evidence (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision on the basis of failure to state a cause of action based on abuse of discretion, when the petition alleges that the findings on which the agency based its order or decision are not supported by the evidence received in the administrative proceeding.

The party intending to use a part of the administrative record in a case brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 must lodge that part of the record at least five days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1140].

With appropriate modifications this memorandum may be used to oppose a motion for summary judgment in favor of the respondent or a motion for judgment on the pleadings in favor of the respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b]] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Findings Not Supported By Evidence

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 provides that the inquiry by the court in a mandate proceeding extends to whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion and that abuse of discretion is established if the findings are not supported by the evidence.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Findings Not Supported by Evidence

Wingfield v. Fielder (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 209, 105 Cal. Rptr. 619 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court in a mandate proceeding for review of an administrative adjudicatory decision. The court of appeal reversed the judgment of the trial court denying a writ of mandate and remanded to that court with direction to remand the case to the Director of Agriculture for reconsideration of a penalty. In considering the propriety of the administratively imposed penalty, the court noted the general rule that the propriety of a penalty imposed by an administrative agency is a matter of discretion for the agency and its decision will not be disturbed unless there has been a clear abuse of discretion. But in addition, it is well established that in determining whether a given penalty is arbitrary, the standard is set by reason and reasonable people. Such a standard allows for differences of opinion, and a reviewing court may not substitute a decision contrary to that made by the agency, even if the court's decision is equally or more reasonable, if the determination by the agency is one that could have been made by a reasonable person (29 Cal. App. 3d 209, 221, 105 Cal. Rptr. 619). But, although the determination of penalty lies with the administrative agency and not the court, there is an exception when the court finds some of the charges unsupported by the evidence and cannot ascertain whether the same penalty would have been imposed had the agency recognized that fact (29 Cal. App. 3d 209, 223, 105 Cal. Rptr. 619).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.84

§ 195.84 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Failure to Proceed in Manner Required by Law Is Abuse of Discretion

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Failure to Proceed in Manner Required by Law Is Abuse of Discretion

[Caption. See § 195.80.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE PETITION STATES A CAUSE OF ACTION BASED ON ABUSE OF DISCRETION BY ALLEGING FACTS SHOWING A FAILURE TO PROCEED IN THE MANNER REQUIRED BY LAW IN THAT THE AGENCY _____ [FAILED TO FOLLOW THE SPIRIT OF THE LAW EVEN THOUGH THE LAW HAS BEEN LITERALLY OBEYED or FAILED TO RECOGNIZE AND ACT ON THE IMPLICATIONS OF THE LAW'S EXPLICIT REQUIREMENTS or BASED ITS DECISION ON ITS OWN INTERPRETATION OF THE MEANINGS AND RELATIONS OF CONFLICTING LAWS].

A. Failure to Proceed as Required by Law. Abuse of discretion is established if the agency has not proceeded in the manner required by law (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)).

[EITHER]

B. Failure to Follow Spirit of Law. An agency has clearly abused its discretion if it has proceeded against a person in literal compliance with the requirements of the law but in a way which fosters continued violations of regulatory laws instead of inducing compliance with them (Walsh v. Kirby (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 95, 104, 118 Cal. Rptr. 1, 529 P.2d 33).

[OR]

B. Failure to Recognize Implications of Following Explicit Requirements. An agency clearly abuses its discretion if it disregards the practical implications of following the law's explicit requirements and causes a result inconsistent with the intention behind the regulatory scheme of the law (Walsh v. Kirby (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 95, 104, 118 Cal. Rptr. 1, 529 P.2d 33).

[OR]

B. Harmonizing Conflicting Laws. An agency abuses its discretion if, as a means of reaching its decision, it undertakes the judicial function of construing and harmonizing conflicting laws (People ex rel. Fund American Companies v. California Ins. Co. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 423, 432-433, 117 Cal. Rptr. 623).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision on the basis of failure to state a cause of action based on abuse of discretion, when the petition alleges that the agency failed to proceed in the manner required by law in that it (a) acted contrary to the spirit of the law even though the literal requirements of the law were obeyed, (b) failed to recognize and act on the practical implications of following the explicit requirements of the law, so that the result intended by the Legislature in enacting regulatory laws has not been achieved, or (c) usurped the judicial function of construing and harmonizing conflicting laws, as a means of reaching its decision.

The party intending to use a part of the administrative record in a case brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 must lodge that part of the record at least five days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1140].

With appropriate modifications theses points and authorities may be used to oppose a motion for summary judgment in favor of the respondent or a motion for judgment on the pleadings in favor of the respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Proceed as Required by Law

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b) provides that the inquiry by the court in a mandate proceeding extends to whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion and that abuse of discretion is established if the respondent has not proceeded in the manner required by law.

[b] Failure to Follow Spirit of Law

Walsh v. Kirby (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 95, 118 Cal. Rptr. 1, 529 P.2d 33 , was an original proceeding in the Supreme Court for review, on a writ of certiorari, of an adjudicatory decision of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board affirming a decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control imposing a penalty on the holder of an off-sale general liquor license. The court held the department in the instant case had clearly acted in an excessive manner: first, by proceeding against the licensee in a way designed not to induce conformance with fair trade practices and, second, by imposing cumulative penalties which resulted in de facto revocation of the license and were excessive when measured against the licensee's conduct and the purposes sought to be achieved by the penalty provisions (13 Cal. 3d 95, 103-104). As to the first of these abuses, the department's practice under which a licensee's misconduct is knowingly allowed to continue while the department elects to accumulate evidence of multiple violations before filing an accusation naturally tends to foster continuing violations and disruptions in the orderly sale and distribution of alcoholic beverages. A departmental practice, under which notice of a violation given in a timely manner is withheld while the licensee is afforded an opportunity to engage in a series of violations, defeats the very purpose of the fair trade law. This arbitrariness of the department's conduct is even greater, when it can elect, for purely subjective reasons, whether (1) it will file an accusation after the first violation and, thus, provide the warning intended by the Legislature that future violations will result in more severe sanctions, or (2) as in the instant case, deprive the licensee of that warning by not filing the accusation until the licensee is already exposed to such severe sanctions. As to the second departmental abuse, the purposes of the statute were further frustrated by the imposition of heavy cumulative penalties on a retailer when used as weapons to effect a de facto revocation of a license without prior adequate notice of wrongdoing to a licensee. A primary purpose of the legislation is to effect compliance by licensees rather than revocations or suspensions of their licenses, and pertinent legislation (former Bus. & Prof. Code § 24755.1) expressly prohibits a direct revocation or suspension for a violation. The power vested by the statute is perverted when the department utilizes its tools to do indirectly that which is directly and expressly prohibited (13 Cal. 3d 95, 104). The Supreme Court labeled the action as arbitrary and capricious. Since the board failed to proceed in the manner required by law, the decision was annulled and the manner remanded for reconsideration (13 Cal. 3d 95, 106).

[c] Failure to Recognize Implications of Following Explicit Requirements

Walsh v. Kirby (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 95, 118 Cal. Rptr. 1, 529 P.2d 33 , is discussed in § 195.84[3][b].

[d] Harmonizing Conflicting Laws

People ex rel. Fund American Companies v. California Ins. Co. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 423, 117 Cal. Rptr. 623 , was an appeal in a quo warranto action testing whether one of the parties had a legal right to the use of a corporate name. The Secretary of State had refused to file articles of incorporation, on the basis of his administrative construction of an applicable statute. The court of appeal stated that the Secretary of State was exercising his "discretion" as to the legal meaning of two conflicting statutes. The Secretary was exercising judicial power in harmonizing the statutes--powers clearly beyond the area of his ministerial functions (43 Cal. App. 3d 423, 432-433). The Secretary of State is required to reserve names of corporations meeting the requirement of the Corporations Code and has no discretion not to do so. The administrative practice here was a violation of the mandatory provisions of the Code and could not be sustained (43 Cal. App. 3d 423, 432) . The court affirmed the judgment of the lower court upholding the defendant's right to use the corporate name (43 Cal. App. 3d 423, 434).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Proceed as Required by Law

In American Insurance Association v. Garamendi (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 228, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 905 , Insurance Commissioner John Garamendi adopted an emergency regulation regarding the availability of homeowners insurance due to the adoption of underwriting guidelines known as "use it and lose it," under which insurance coverage was lost due to filing a claim or even inquiring about coverage. Three insurance industry trade groups sought a peremptory writ of mandate to set aside and stop enforcement of the emergency regulation which sought to regulate the use of losses and loss exposure in residential property insurance rating and underwriting. The trial court granted the petition based on the fact that the regulation conflicted with the Insurance Code. The Commissioner appealed.

On appeal, the court of appeal noted that the Commissioner has broad discretion to adopt regulations as necessary to promote the public welfare (127 Cal. App. 4th 228, 236). However, the court held that Administrative agencies have only the powers conferred on them, either expressly or impliedly, by the Constitution or by statute. Administrative actions exceeding those powers are void. To be valid, administrative action must be within the scope of authority conferred by the enabling statutes (127 Cal. App. 4th 228, 236). After reviewing the emergency regulation and the Insurance Code, the court of appeal found the Insurance Code does not give the Commissioner authority to regulate underwriting for homeowners insurance and invalidated the regulation (127 Cal. App. 4th 228, 246).

In Ontario Community Foundation, Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 811, 201 Cal. Rptr. 165, 678 P.2d 378 , a hospital obtained a judgment against the State Board of Equalization awarding it a refund of sales tax assessed on the transfer of hospital furnishings and equipment made as part of the sale of the hospital's total assets. The basis for the judgment had been that the transfer was an "occasional sale," and as such was exempt from sales tax. The board had relied on an administrative regulation stating that certain sellers who engaged in other sales that were not tax exempt could not claim an exemption for an occasional sale. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment, holding that the regulatory restriction imposed conditions on the availability of the tax exemption that were omitted from the statute and at variance with it (35 Cal. 3d 811, 817). The Court stated that an abuse of discretion is shown when an agency promulgates a regulation that is inconsistent with the governing statute. The Court stated that administrative regulations that violate statutes by altering, enlarging, or amending them, or impairing their scope are void and must be struck down (35 Cal. 3d 811, 816-817) .

Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032 , is discussed in § 195.80[4]. In that case, the Supreme Court held that an abuse of discretion is established when an agency has not proceeded in the manner required by law, which necessarily implies proceeding under an invalid regulation (28 Cal. 3d 668, 675, 678).

Yamada Bros. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 112, 159 Cal. Rptr. 905 , was an appeal by an agricultural employer from the trial court's order sustaining a demurrer to a writ of mandate that had been sought to review an order of the Agricultural Labor Relations Board. The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order holding that courts may exercise equitable powers to review administrative decisions in extraordinary circumstances (99 Cal. App. 3d 112, 121). The court went on to hold that extraordinary circumstances were shown when the board violated a specific and mandatory provision of the act by failing to make a finding that the employer had refused to bargain in good faith (99 Cal. App. 3d 112, 123).

People ex rel. Fund American Companies v. California Ins. Co. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 423, 117 Cal. Rptr. 623 , was an appeal in a quo warranto action testing whether one of the parties had a legal right to the use of a corporate name. The Secretary of State had refused to file articles of incorporation, on the basis of his administrative construction of an applicable statute, and that construction was found by the trial court to be incorrect. The court of appeal affirmed, stating that an administrative determination will be interfered with by the courts when the determination is based upon an error in law. It is for the courts, not for administrative agencies, to lay down the governing principles of law. Accordingly, questions of law are reviewable. Whether an administrative agency applies the legislative standards validly set up, and whether it acts within the authority conferred or goes beyond it, are proper questions for judicial decision. The matter of statutory construction is not finally entrusted to administrative agencies; it is determined ultimately by the courts (43 Cal. App. 3d 423, 431).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.85

§ 195.85 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Petition, General Form

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Petition, General Form

[Caption. see § 195.80.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE PETITION DOES NOT FAIL TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION BY NOT ALLEGING THE EXHAUSTION OF ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES FOR THE REASON THAT THIS IS AN EXCEPTIONAL CASE IN WHICH EXHAUSTION IS NOT REQUIRED.

Exceptions to Exhaustion Requirement. There are exceptional cases in which the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies will not be applied (Los Angeles County v. Department of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 457, 260 P.2d 41).

[As appropriate, this form should be combined with a memorandum asserting that the exhaustion of administrative remedies doctrine is inapplicable in the particular instance. See §§ 195.86 -195.103].

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the petition alleges facts showing that such exhaustion is not required under the exceptional circumstances of the case.

When appropriate, this form may be used to oppose the form set forth in § 195.68.

As appropriate, this form should be combined with a memorandum asserting that the exhaustion of administrative remedies doctrine is inapplicable in the particular instance [see §§ 195.86-195.103].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exceptions to Exhaustion Requirement

Los Angeles County v. Department of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 260 P.2d 41 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court that a writ of mandate be issued directing an administrative agency to set side certain adjudicatory orders. On appeal it was argued that the petitioner (county) had failed to exhaust administrative remedies by not seeking a rehearing before the respondent agency (then called the State Social Welfare Board). The court affirmed the rule stated in this memorandum, observing, that there are exceptions to the general rule requiring the exhaustion of administrative remedies. If, as contended by the county, the state board lacked jurisdiction over the subject matter of the proceedings, it was not necessary for the county to seek a rehearing before the board (41 Cal. 2d 455, 457).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.86

§ 195.86 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Constitutional Challenge to Statute

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Constitutional Challenge to Statute

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE IT IS IMPROPER TO REQUIRE ALLEGATION OF EXHAUSTION IN A CASE IN WHICH THE PETITION CHALLENGES THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF A CODE SECTION ON ITS FACE.

Exception for Constitutional Challenge to Statute on Its Face. It would be improper to require a petitioner for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision to exhaust his or her administrative remedies when (1) he or she challenges the constitutionality of a code section on its face and does not dispute any facts, thus presenting only an issue of law, (2) the issue presented has statewide significance, and (3) unless the issue is promptly resolved by the court, the petitioner will face possible criminal sanctions in choosing which of two conflicting laws to obey (Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 6-7, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when [Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 6-7, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529] :

- The petitioner challenges the constitutionality of a code section on its face and does not dispute any facts, thus presenting only an issue of law,

- The issue presented has statewide significance, and

- Unless the issue is promptly resolved by the court, the petitioner will face possible criminal sanctions in choosing which of two conflicting laws to obey.

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exceptions for Constitutional Challenge to Statute on Its Face

Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529 , was an original proceeding in the Supreme Court for a writ of mandate directing an administrative agency not to revoke certain licenses, the agency having begun but not having concluded proceedings for revocation. The Court noted that the petitioners challenged the constitutionality of the statute governing the administrative action in question on its face; no material facts were disputed. They raised important legal issues of statewide significance. Two of them were placed in the untenable situation of having to choose whether to obey possibly conflicting federal and state laws and face a penalty under the one they chose to disobey. In light of these extraordinary circumstances, the Court held that it would be improper to require them to exhaust their administrative remedies (5 Cal. 3d 1, 6-7).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exception for Constitutional Challenge to Statute on Its Face

In In re Mabie (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 301, 205 Cal. Rptr. 528 , petitioner sought habeas corpus, contending that he was improperly denied Penal Code § 2933 worktime credits because he was committed to the California Rehabilitation Center (CRC), rather than being sent to a state prison, and that therefore he was deprived of equal protection of the laws under the equal protection clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV, and Cal. Const., art. I, § 7. Holding that petitioner had not been deprived of equal protection of the laws under either the U.S. or the California Constitution, the court of appeal initially noted that the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies has not hardened into inflexible dogma, and contains its own exceptions, such as, in the case at bar, when petitioner seeks relief on a constitutional theory (159 Cal. App. 3d 301, 305). The court found a compelling justification for limiting Penal Code § 2933 worktime credits to state prison inmates in that worktime credit would not foster effective treatment for narcotics addiction, which is the purpose of the CRC program (159 Cal. App. 3d 301, 308).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.87

§ 195.87 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to State and Local Law Conflict

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to State and Local Law Conflict

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE AVAILABLE ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES ARE PROVIDED BY _____ [A LOCAL ORDINANCE or A CHARTER PROVISION] WHICH CONFLICTS WITH STATE LAW.

Exception for Conflicting Local and State Laws. When available administrative remedies are provided not by a statute but by a local ordinance or a charter provision which conflicts with state law, a petitioner for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision is not required to pursue the locally provided administrative remedy before seeking judicial relief (Professional Fire Fighters, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 276, 287, 32 Cal. Rptr. 830, 384 P.2d 158).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when available administrative remedies are provided not by a statute but by a local ordinance or a charter provision which conflicts with state law.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exceptions for Conflicting Local and State Laws

Professional Fire Fighters, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 276, 32 Cal. Rptr. 830, 384 P.2d 158 , was an appeal from the summary judgment of the superior court in favor of the defendant as to a cause of action, among others alleged, for injunctive relief to prevent a city from discriminating against certain public employees because of their membership in a union. The Supreme Court stated that the principal conclusion of law on which the trial court based its summary judgment in favor of defendant on the cause of action for injunction was that plaintiffs failed to exhaust their legal remedies. The administrative remedies referred to by the trial court were not remedies provided by the state Legislature, but were remedies provided in the charter, ordinances, and regulations of defendant city. Thus, the legal remedies which the trial court would have required the plaintiffs to exhaust before granting relief herein were the creatures of local enactment which were valid and binding on plaintiffs only if certain statutes were inapplicable to defendant. In this case, those code sections were applicable to defendant. Thus, the plaintiffs were not required to comply with the local requirements that were in conflict with the state law (60 Cal. 2d 276, 287).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.88

§ 195.88 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable When Alternative Remedies Are Available

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to State and Local Law Conflict

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE IT INVOLVES A STATUTE THAT CREATES BOTH AN ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDY AND AN ALTERNATIVE JUDICIAL REMEDY, AND THE LEGISLATIVE INTENTION OF MAKING THE TWO REMEDIES ALTERNATIVE IS DISCERNIBLE.

Exception for Alternative Remedies. When a statute creates both an administrative remedy and an alternative judicial remedy, and the legislative intention of making the two remedies alternative is discernible, pursuit of the one is not prerequisite to pursuit of the other (Runyon v. Board of Trustees of the California State Univ. (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 760, 773-775, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 557, 229 P.3d 985 ; State Board of Chiropractic Examiners v. Superior Court (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 963, 971-974, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 201 P.3d 457 ; Scripps Memorial Hosp., Inc. v. California Employment Comm'n (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 669, 673-674, 151 P.2d 109 ; Kennedy v. Beaumont Investment, Ltd. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 102, 124-125, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when a statute creates both an administrative remedy and an alternative judicial remedy, and the legislative intention of making the two remedies alternative is discernible. In such a case, pursuit of the one is not prerequisite to pursuit of the other [

Scripps Memorial Hosp., Inc. v. California Employment Comm'n (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 669, 673-674, 151 P.2d 109] .

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception for Alternative Remedies

In Runyon v. Board of Trustees of the California State Univ. (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 760, 773-775, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 557, 229 P.3d 985 , the plaintiff was a professor who filed a claim with the defendant alleging he was removed as head of his department in retaliation for reporting improper conduct by the dean. The defendant's human resource department investigated the matter and concluded that the plaintiff's reports did not qualify as protected under the applicable whistleblower act and that he was removed due to his failure to review his department's curriculum. The plaintiff responded in writing to this report, but the human resources department concluded that he was properly demoted. The plaintiff filed an action for damages against the defendant under Govt. Code § 8547.12. Section 8547(c) allows the injured party to seek a civil action if the university has not satisfactorily addressed the complaint within 18 months. The trial court granted the defendant's summary judgment motion on the ground that the plaintiff was required to successfully challenge the defendant's decision by writ of mandate before bringing an action for damages. The court of appeal affirmed.

The California Supreme Court reversed. It looked at the language of the statute and held that Govt. Code § 8547.12 authorizes a damages action by a whistleblower whenever the employee has exhausted his or her internal remedies by filing an internal complaint with the defendant and the defendant has reached an adverse decision. The Court held that the Legislature acknowledged the existence of the parallel administrative remedy but did not require that the administrative findings be set aside by way of a mandate action. To hold otherwise, held the Court, would be contrary to the legislative intent [48 Cal. 4th 760, 774] . The Court held that even if it does not produce a judicially binding determination, the Legislature's requirement that the employee submit his or her complaint to a nonbinding administrative investigative procedure is not irrational nor unusual and could lead to early and less costly resolution of disputes [48 Cal. 4th 760, 774-775] .

In State Board of Chiropractic Examiners v. Superior Court (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 963, 971-974, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 201 P.3d 457 , the plaintiff, an employee of the defendant State Board of Chiropractic Examiners (SBCE), noted in the board's computer that the SBCE chairperson's license was expired for several months, and inquired about issuing a citation to the chairperson. Her manager repeatedly told her not to issue the citation. As a result, SBCE managers changed the plaintiff's duties, denied her requests for a modified work schedule, cancelled her alternative work schedule, and transferred her to a different unit. The plaintiff filed a complaint with the State Personnel Board pursuant to the California Whistleblower Protection Act [Gov. Code § 8547 et seq.]. The Act imposes liability "in an action for damages"' on "any person who intentionally engages in acts of reprisal, retaliation, threats, coercion, or similar acts against a state employee" for disclosing improper governmental activities or unsafe conditions. However, the Act provides that an action for damages is not available unless the injured party first files a complaint with the State Personnel Board and the board has issued, or failed to issue, findings. After an investigation, the State Personnel Board issued findings that the plaintiff's complaint should be dismissed on the ground that some of the alleged whistleblower activity did not constitute protected disclosures of improper governmental activities under the Act. Under the State Personnel Board's regulation, the plaintiff could file a petition for a hearing before the Board. The plaintiff thereafter filed an action against the defendant in superior court. The defendant moved for summary judgment, arguing that the plaintiff had failed to exhaust her administrative and judicial remedies. The trial court denied the motion, but the court of appeal issued an alternative writ and stayed the proceedings in the trial court. The court of appeal held that the plaintiff was required to complete the administrative process by petitioning the State Personnel Board for a hearing, and if this hearing request was denied, she was required to seek a writ of mandate from the court to have the Board's findings set aside.

The California Supreme Court disagreed. It looked at the plain language of Gov. Code § 8547(c) which requires only that a plaintiff file a complaint with the State Personnel Board and that the Board issue, or fail to issue, findings. The Court held that the statute did not require the plaintiff to petition the State Personnel Board for a hearing or to seek writ review of the Board's findings (45 Cal. 4th 963, 971) . The Court further noted that the State Personnel Board's regulations permitted the complaining party to seek a hearing before the Board to challenge adverse findings, but that the Board's regulations cannot amend the statutory scheme (45 Cal. 4th 963, 972-974) .

Scripps Memorial Hosp., Inc. v. California Employment Comm'n (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 669, 151 P.2d 109 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court in favor of the plaintiff in an action to recover taxes paid under protest. The appellant contended that the trial court erred in denying a motion to dismiss based on the argument that the plaintiff failed to exhaust administrative remedies before filing suit. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. If it could be said that there was an administrative remedy provided by the statute [i.e., the California Unemployment Insurance Act (Stats. 1935, ch. 352) as amended (Stats. 1939, chs. 628, 630)] and by the rules of the California Employment Commission which was available to the plaintiff, it could not be said that the remedy was exclusive or that its exercise was a necessary precedent to the use of the other remedy expressly given by the statute [i.e., the remedy of paying a tax under protest and then suing to recover the amount paid]. None of the cases cited in support of the usual rule requiring exhausting of administrative remedies go to the extent of holding that the rule applies as against another remedy expressly provided in the same statute, which creates the administrative remedy. Assuming that an administrative remedy existed, the most that could be said is that alternative remedies were available to the plaintiff, and the court correctly refused to grant the motions to dismiss (24 Cal. 2d 669, 673-674).

In Kennedy v. Beaumont Investment, Ltd. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 102, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429 , the state filed a complaint for unfair business practices against mobilehome park landlords, alleging that the landlords violated a municipal ordinance by unlawfully forcing mobilehome park tenants to accept long-term leases in order to avoid rent control. The trial court found for the state.

On appeal, the landlords challenged the trial court's authority to adjudicate violations of the Unfair Business Practices Act, based on Civil Code § 1947.7, the Petris Act. The Petris Act provides that a residential landlord who is in substantial compliance with a local rent control ordinance may not be assessed a penalty or any other sanction for noncompliance [see Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)]. According to the defendant landlords, the trial court lacked authority to award civil penalties for rent control violations until the administrative procedure set forth by the Petris Act took place. That procedure required notice of deficiency by the designated local agency, determination of compliance by that agency, and an opportunity to cure [see Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)].

The court of appeal first questioned whether the Petris Act applied to mobilehome park landowners. The court held that, even assuming the Petris Act applied, nothing in the Act either created an administrative procedure or mandated its exhaustion as a precondition to judicial intervention. The court discussed the difference between exhaustion of remedies and primary jurisdiction. The court held that "exhaustion" applies where a claim is cognizable in the first instance by an administrative agency alone; judicial interference is withheld until the administrative process has run its course. "Primary jurisdiction," on the other hand, applies where a claim is originally cognizable in the courts, and comes into play when enforcement of the claim requires the resolution of issues which, under a regulatory scheme, have been placed within the special competence of an administrative body. In such a case the judicial process is suspended pending referral of such issues to the administrative body for its views (111 Cal. App. 4th 102, 124-125). Exhaustion applies where an agency alone has exclusive jurisdiction over a case; primary jurisdiction applies where both a court and an agency have the legal capacity to deal with the matter. In this case, the court held that the governing principle was primary jurisdiction, not exhaustion. In the absence of an available administrative remedy, the exhaustion doctrine does not apply (111 Cal. App. 4th 102, 125).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exception for Alternative Remedies

In McKee v. Bell-Carter Olive Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1230, 231 Cal. Rptr. 304 , an agriculture grower brought suit against a food processing company to seek damages for breach of contract. The trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment and dismissed the complaint, on the ground that plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies under relevant statutes governing the regulation of agriculture processors. The court of appeal reversed, holding that plaintiff is not required to exhaust administrative remedies, because Food & Agric. Code § 55437 states that the remedy therein is in addition to other procedures or remedies, even though it does not expressly state that the remedy is not exclusive (186 Cal. App. 3d 1230, 1240-1246).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.89

§ 195.89 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Predetermined Cases

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Predetermined Cases

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE AGENCY HAS DECLARED WHAT ITS RULING WOULD BE IN A PARTICULAR CASE.

Exception for Predetermined Cases. Available administrative remedies need not be exhausted when the petitioner for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision can show positively that the agency has declared what its ruling would be in a particular case (Gantner & Mattern Co. v. California Employment Comm'n (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 314, 318, 109 P.2d 932 (dictum) ; Farahani v. San Diego Community College District (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1486, 1496-1497, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 900 ; Doster v. County of San Diego (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 257, 260-262, 251 Cal. Rptr. 507).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the agency has declared what its ruling would be in a particular case.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception for Predetermined Cases

Gantner & Mattern Co. v. California Employment Comm'n (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 314, 109 P.2d 932 , was a mandate proceeding, begun in the court of appeal but heard in the Supreme Court on that Court's order for transfer, for review of an administrative adjudicatory decision and to prevent the agency from giving effect to that decision. It was argued in the Supreme Court that the petitioner was precluded from maintaining the proceeding because of failure to exhaust administrative remedies. The petitioner replied that by a long line of decisions the agency in question had made plain its views as to the law applicable to the situation in the case at bar and that to apply to the agency for relief would have been an idle act. The Court conceded that the petitioner's argument might be accurate, but held that the exhaustion of administrative remedial procedure as laid down by the statute is required unless the petitioner can positively state that the agency has declared what its ruling will be in the particular case (17 Cal. 2d 314, 318) .

Farahani v. San Diego Community College District (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1486, 1496-1497, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 900 , involved a plaintiff college professor who was reprimanded by the defendant college district for alleged sexual harassment. Rather than suspending the plaintiff, the defendant required the plaintiff to sign an agreement whereby the plaintiff agreed to a reduction in pay and promised to refrain from conduct that constituted sexual harassment. While the agreement was in effect, the defendant received additional complaints against the plaintiff. The defendant terminated the plaintiff pursuant to the agreement. The termination letter stated, "Since you are being terminated from employment because of a violation of the [agreement], you do not have a right of appeal." The plaintiff requested reinstatement and opportunity to meet. However, the defendant reiterated that, pursuant to the agreement, the plaintiff had no right to appeal the termination. The plaintiff filed a petition for writ of mandate. The defendant argued that the plaintiff failed to exhaust administrative remedies. The trial court granted the petition and ordered the defendant to provide the plaintiff with notice and an opportunity to be heard regarding his termination. The trial court held that the defendant was precluded from arguing that the plaintiff had failed to exhaust his administrative remedies when by its own conduct it advised the plaintiff that he had no rights of appeal.

The court of appeal agreed. The defendant argued that the trial court's ruling stemmed from confusion regarding the word "appeal" in the defendant's termination letter. The defendant argued that it referred only to the plaintiff's statutory hearing and appeal rights which were separate and distinct from the grievance procedures set out in the plaintiff's collective bargaining agreement. The court of appeal rejected this distinction (175 Cal. App. 4th 1486, 1496-1497) . It held that a plaintiff need not exhaust administrative remedies provided by statute if the agency has already rejected the claim, announced its position on the claim or made clear it would not consider the plaintiff's evidence (175 Cal. App. 4th 1486, 1497) . The court held that the defendant's termination letter unequivocally encompassed all avenues of appeal (175 Cal. App. 4th 1486, 1497) .

In Doster v. County of San Diego (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 257, 251 Cal. Rptr. 507 , plaintiff deputy sheriff was served with an order of termination for incompetence. The county civil service commission found him guilty of several of the charges, but ordered him reinstated to his position with full pay and benefits. After he returned to duty, he received a letter from the undersheriff notifying him that numerous restrictions were being placed on him. Plaintiff's counsel requested clarification and a due process hearing. The sheriff responded that the action was taken because the civil service commission had found plaintiff incompetent, which the sheriff interpreted to mean that plaintiff was incapable of performing his duties and required strict supervision. The sheriff rejected plaintiff's request for an administrative hearing because plaintiff had failed to so request within five working days of receipt of the order. Plaintiff unsuccessfully sought mandate in superior court, which was denied because plaintiff had failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. Plaintiff sought review from the judgment denying the petition.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment denying the petition, holding that plaintiff's failure to pursue his administrative remedy was not a jurisdictional bar to seeking judicial relief. The court explained that although the exhaustion rule is a procedural one, exceptions to the rule include cases in which resorting to the administrative process would be futile because it is clear what the administrative decision would be. In this case, because the letter was based on the incompetency finding by the civil service commission, it was questionable whether or not an administrative hearing would be adequate, or any purpose served by it. Because the law does not require a party to participate in futile acts, plaintiff's failure to exhaust his administrative remedy did not bar the judicial suit. Administrative review to challenge a decision made earlier by the final decision maker when the decision maker will not be called on to consider different evidence on the ultimate issue would truly be a waste of time. It would be more efficient for the court to review the narrow question of whether the sheriff properly imposed restrictions on plaintiff based on the administrative record made before the civil service commission, rather than to require needless administrative review to determine whether or not there was a legal basis for the sheriff's action (203 Cal. App. 3d 257, 260-262) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.90

§ 195.90 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Assertion of Wholly Illegal Act

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Assertion of Wholly Illegal Act

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN A PETITIONER TAKES THE POSITION THAT MAKING OF THE _____ [ORDER or DECISION] WAS WHOLLY WITHOUT AUTHORITY[, AS WHEN IT IS CLAIMED TO HAVE BEEN UNCONSTITUTIONAL].

Exception for Assertion of Wholly Illegal Action. When a petitioner for writ of mandate for review of an administrative adjudicatory order or decision takes the position that making of the order or decision was wholly without authority, as when it is claimed to have been unconstitutional, he or she may apply to the courts for relief without pursuing administrative remedies (West Publishing Co. v. McColgan (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 705, 711-712, 166 P.2d 861 ; California-Nevada Annual Conf. of the United Methodist Church v. San Francisco (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1569-1571, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 64).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the petitioner takes the position that making of the order or decision was wholly without authority.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception for Assertion of Wholly Illegal Action

West Pub. Co. v. McColgan (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 705, 166 P.2d 861 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court against the plaintiff in an action to recover taxes forcibly collected by withholding from the plaintiff's funds in the state. The plaintiff sued to recover the amounts collected and asserted that collection was illegal because imposition of the tax on the plaintiff was unconstitutional. On the issue of exhaustion of administrative remedies the court stated that no question was raised either in the claim for refund filed with the Franchise Tax Commissioner or in the pleadings filed in this action concerning the amounts of the assessments; plaintiff merely contended that no tax could be validly imposed. It chose this way of challenging the state's authority to impose the tax, taking the risk that, if such authority existed, its position in court would be that of a delinquent taxpayer that has failed to exhaust its administrative remedies (27 Cal. 2d 705, 711-712) .

In California-Nevada Annual Conf. of the United Methodist Church v. San Francisco (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1569-1571, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 64 , the plaintiff owner of a church sought to demolish a dilapidated church building and sell the property to raise revenue. Gov. Code § 25373(b) provides that the board of supervisors "may, by ordinance, provide special conditions or regulations for the protection, enhancement, perpetuation, or use of places, sites, buildings, structures, works of art and other objects having a special character or special historical or aesthetic interest or value." The defendant city and county passed a resolution seeking to designate the building a historical landmark and halt the demolition. The plaintiff filed a writ of mandate seeking to halt the designation process. The plaintiff argued that, pursuant to Gov. Code § 25373(d), noncommercial buildings owned by religious organizations were exempt from Gov. Code § 25373(b). The court granted the writ, and the defendant appealed, arguing that a church building that is no longer in use is commercial, rather than noncommercial, and therefore is not exempt from Gov. Code § 25373(b). The defendant further argued that because its designation was not final, the plaintiff had not yet exhausted its administrative remedies.

The court of appeal discussed the state of the law regarding Gov. Code § 25373(d) and held that is was clear that the defendant's argument was wrong. Accordingly, the court held that the defendant was acting outside its jurisdiction in attempting to designate the church a historical landmark. The court thus held that if an agency is acting beyond its jurisdiction, judicial intervention may be obtained even if the agency has not yet reached a final decision and the affected party has not yet exhausted its administrative remedies (173 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1569) . The court held that to decide whether to hold that the defendant lacked jurisdiction before the landmark designation proceedings had run their course, it would consider three factors: the injury or burden that exhaustion would impose, the strength of the legal argument that the defendant lacked jurisdiction, and the extent to which administrative expertise may aid in resolving the jurisdictional issue (173 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1569) . With respect to the first issue, the court held that since continuing with the landmarking process would not possibly lead to valid restrictions on the plaintiff's ability to demolish the building, the absence of demonstrable hardship to the plaintiff was offset by the absence of any potential disadvantage to the defendant from an immediate resolution of the controversy (173 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1570) . With respect to the second factor, the court held that the law was clear that the defendant had no jurisdiction to designate the church a landmark (173 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1569) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.91

§ 195.91 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Threatened Irreparable Injury

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Threatened Irreparable Injury

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE PETITIONER ALLEGES THAT HE SHE WILL SUFFER IRREPARABLE INJURY IF REQUIRED TO PURSUE ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES BEFORE SEEKING RELIEF IN THE COURTS.

Exception for Threatened Irreparable Injury. When a petitioner for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision alleges that he or she will suffer irreparable injury if required to pursue administrative remedies before seeking relief in the courts, he will not be required to pursue administrative remedies first (United States v. Superior Court (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 189, 196, 120 P.2d 26 (dictum)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the petitioner alleges that he or she will suffer irreparable injury if required to pursue administrative remedies before seeking relief in the courts.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception for Threatened Irreparable Injury

United States v. Superior Court (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 189, 120 P.2d 26 , was an original proceeding in the Supreme Court to restrain the superior court from continuing an action for injunctive relief against enforcement of a marketing order issued by the United States Secretary of Agriculture. The Supreme Court ordered that a writ of prohibition issue but, on the issue of exhaustion of administrative remedies (such remedies having been available to the plaintiff but unused), the Court recognized that the inadequacy of the administrative remedy, arising from threatened irreparable injury, is a recognized ground for immediate injunctive relief, and, on proof of that fact, the exhaustion requirement has frequently been held inapplicable. However, in the instant case, there was no showing of irreparable injury to warrant interference with an uncompleted administrative proceeding (19 Cal. 2d 189, 196) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.92

§ 195.92 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Unidentifiable Administrative Remedy

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Unidentifiable Administrative Remedy

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN IT IS EVIDENT THAT SOME ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDY IS AVAILABLE, BUT IT CANNOT REASONABLY BE ASCERTAINED WHAT THAT REMEDY IS OR HOW IT IS TO BE PURSUED.

Exception for Unidentifiable Administrative Remedy. If it is evident that some administrative remedy is available, but it cannot reasonably be ascertained what that remedy is or how it is to be pursued, a petitioner for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision will not be required to pursue that administrative remedy before seeking relief in the courts (Unfair Fire Tax Committee v. City of Oakland (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1428-1431, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701 ; Pasadena City Fire Fighters Ass'n v. Board of Directors (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 901, 907-908, 112 Cal. Rptr. 56).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when it is evident that some administrative remedy is available, but it cannot reasonably be ascertained what that remedy is or how it is to be pursued.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception for Unidentifiable Administrative Remedy

In Unfair Fire Tax Committee v. City of Oakland (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701 , a property owners association sued a city to determine the validity of a fire suppression assessment district created by a resolution adopted by the city council. The city demurred to the complaint on the ground that the association failed to exhaust the administrative remedies provided by a city ordinance. The association argued that the ordinance allowed a person aggrieved by a resolution creating a fire suppression district to request reconsideration of the resolution by the same decisionmaking body that adopted the resolution. The trial court sustained the city's demurrer and dismissed the complaint.

On appeal the association argued that the ordinance did not specify a procedure to be followed in the appeal to the city council; therefore, it was an ineffective administrative remedy that did not need to be pursued. The association argued that the ordinance allowed a person aggrieved by a resolution creating a fire suppression district to request reconsideration of the resolution by the same decisionmaking body that adopted the resolution, i.e., by the city council. The court held that despite some vague language, the ordinance failed to provide any procedure for submission, evaluation and resolution of the request for reconsideration; it did not state how the appeal may be taken, whether the appellant would be entitled to a hearing, when the matter would be heard, what evidence may be submitted, or the standard for reconsidering the city council's earlier decision (136 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1429-1430) . The court held that a long line of authority holds that the exhaustion of remedies requirement is not applicable if an effective administrative remedy is wholly lacking (136 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1429). The court concluded that the ordinance allowing an aggrieved person to "appeal" to the city council a resolution to establish a fire suppression district did not provide an adequate administrative remedy because it lacked any procedural mechanism for submission, evaluation and resolution of the appeal. The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies therefore did not require the association to pursue such an appeal or request for reconsideration (136 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1430).

Pasadena City Fire Fighters Ass'n v. Board of Directors (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 901, 112 Cal. Rptr. 56 , was an appeal from the summary judgment of the superior court denying relief in a proceeding for writ of mandate to compel city officials to establish a merit employment system and for injunctive relief restraining city officials from conducting a particular examination to fill the position of fire chief. On appeal, it was argued that the summary judgment was proper because, among other reasons, the petitioner did not exhaust available administrative remedies before filing suit. However, the Court observed that in the instant case, it was not clear what administrative remedy was available to the petitioner. Nothing in the affidavits of the moving parties pointed to the existence of such remedies. Denial of a mandate is predicated on that existence. Therefore, the Court reversed the summary judgment and remanded the case for trial (36 Cal. App. 3d 901, 907-908) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.93

§ 195.93 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Protection of Public Interest

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Protection of Public Interest

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY, EVEN THOUGH THE PETITIONER IS A PRIVATE PERSON WHO HAS FAILED TO EXHAUST AN ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDY AGAINST GOVERNMENTAL ACTION TAKEN IN AN ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING TO WHICH HE OR SHE WAS NOT A PARTY, ON THE GROUND THAT HE OR SHE IS SEEKING RELIEF FROM THE ACTION BY ENFORCEMENT OF RIGHTS THAT HE OR SHE HOLDS AS A MEMBER OF THE PUBLIC.

Exception for Protecting Public Interest. The failure of a private person to exhaust an administrative remedy against governmental action taken in an administrative proceeding to which he or she was not a party does not bar him or her from seeking relief from the action by enforcement of rights that he or she holds as a member of the public (Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 114, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, even though the petitioner is a private person who has failed to exhaust an administrative remedy against governmental action taken in an administrative proceeding to which he or she was not a party, when he or she is seeking relief from the action by enforcement of rights that he or she holds as a member of the public.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception for Protecting Public Interest

Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court in favor of the petitioners in a proceeding for writ of mandate for review of an administrative adjudicatory decision. On appeal, it was contended that the petitioners were barred from seeking judicial relief because of failure to exhaust administrative remedies. The petitioners were not parties to the administrative proceeding (a hearing by a town planning commission on an application for a conditional use permit), and neither the petitioners nor any other person, including the parties in the administrative proceeding, pursued an available administrative remedy. The petitioners sued as members of the public because the administrative action in question affected the entire town where they resided. The court stated that the petitioners were pursuing more than privately held rights, and asserting more than privately held grievances. They were acting as members of the public and in the public interest. Application of the exhaustion doctrine against them, by reason of their default in the administrative proceeding to which they were not parties, would mean in effect the imputation of their default to the public in the absence of any factual basis for such imputation. In general, the doctrine would thus operate to bar the public from redressing a public wrong. This result would not be consistent with principles of waiver or res judicata, and it would totally deserve the public interest. For these reasons, the court held that the failure of a private person to exhaust an administrative remedy, against governmental action taken in an administrative proceeding to which he was not a party, does not bar him from seeking judicial relief from such action by way of enforcing rights that he holds as a member of the affected public (49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 114) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.94

§ 195.94 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Pursuit of Remedies Is Futile

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Pursuit of Remedies Is Futile

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE PURSUIT OF ADMINISTRATIVE REDRESS WOULD BE FUTILE BECAUSE ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES ARE UNAVAILABLE OR INADEQUATE.

Exception When Pursuit of Administrative Remedies Is Futile. Failure to exhaust administrative remedies will not preclude resort to the courts when the pursuit of administrative redress would be futile because administrative remedies are unavailable or inadequate (In re Electric Refund Cases (2010) 184 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1503-1504, 110 Cal. Rptr. 3d 117 ; Ahmadi-Kashani v. Regents of the University of California (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 449, 456-461, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556 ; Farmer v. City of Inglewood (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 130, 137, 185 Cal. Rptr. 9).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the pursuit of administrative redress would be futile because administrative remedies are unavailable or inadequate.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Opposing Memoranda

When appropriate, the memoranda set forth in § 195.69 may be used to oppose the contentions set forth in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception When Pursuit of Administrative Remedies Is Futile

In re Electric Refund Cases (2010) 184 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1503-1504, 110 Cal. Rptr. 3d 117 , involved buyers of electricity that brought a proceeding before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) against an electricity seller for allegedly charging unjust and unreasonable rates. FERC found in the plaintiffs' favor and ordered the defendant to refund overpayments. The defendant filed an action in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, claiming that FERC did not have jurisdiction over it because it was a nonpublic agency. The court agreed. The plaintiffs then filed a breach of contract action against the defendant in state court. The defendant filed a demur on the ground that by failing to argue in the FERC proceedings that the defendant's "nonpublic" status should be changed, the plaintiffs failed to exhaust their administrative remedies. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend.

On appeal, the court first held that the plaintiffs did exhaust their administrative remedies by initiating a successful proceeding before FERC, which was later reversed by the Ninth Circuit [184 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1501-1503] . FERC's jurisdiction was always at issue. The court then held that any attempt to change FERC's jurisdiction would have been futile [184 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1504] . At the time the plaintiffs initiated the FERC proceeding, an entity like the defendant had never been treated as an entity subject to FERC's jurisdiction [184 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1504] . In addition, just two months previously in an unrelated matter, FERC had affirmed that an entity like the defendant was not subject to its jurisdiction [184 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1504] . Thus, the court held, the purposes meant to be served by the exhaustion requirement were met and any attempt by the plaintiffs to expand FERC's jurisdiction would have been futile [184 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1504] .

In Ahmadi-Kashani v. Regents of the University of California (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 449, 456-461, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556 , the plaintiff sued her university employer for sexual harassment. Her union's collective bargaining agreement provided for four steps for pursuing an employment claim. Step 1 was delivering a formal written grievance to the labor relations office at the campus where the employee works. The university then had 15 calendar days to respond. If the university did not timely respond, or the employee was dissatisfied with the response, the employee may proceed to step 2, filing a written appeal within 15 calendar days of when the response was issued or was due. Step 2 was a meeting convened by the "designated University local official"with the employee and her representative, no later than 15 calendar days following receipt of the appeal to Step 2. The purpose of that meeting was to "discuss information and contentions relative to the grievance" and "attempt to resolve" it. Within 15 calendar days after the step 2 meeting, the university was required to issue a written decision regarding the grievance. Step 3 was an appeal filed with the Director of Labor Relations in the Office of the President. The university had 30 days from the receipt of the step 3 appeal to issue its written answer. Step 4 was a binding arbitration, which only the union, not the employee, had the right to initiate.

After the defendant rejected the plaintiff's step 1 grievance, the plaintiff filed a timely step 2 appeal. After eight months passed and the defendant university did not convene a meeting, the plaintiff filed a claim with the Department of Fair Employment and Housing. Days later, the university scheduled a step 2 meeting with the plaintiff. At the meeting, the witnesses were not placed under oath, no documents were exchanged, and the plaintiff was not permitted to question the defendant. The university subsequently issued a decision, signed by an officer other than the one present at the meeting, denying the plaintiff's claim based on the fact that the claim consisted of only the plaintiff's version of the events and no actual investigation of her claim.

The plaintiff did not appeal to step 3 of the grievance process. Instead, she filed a complaint in superior court alleging causes of action for sexual harassment and wrongful termination. The defendant filed a motion for summary judgment, arguing the complaint was barred because of the plaintiff's failure to exhaust her administrative remedy. The defendant argued that once the plaintiff initiated the internal grievance process, she was required either to participate in that process until its conclusion or be bound by any adverse result. The trial court agreed and granted the motion.

On appeal, the court reversed the trial court's ruling. It distinguished cases the defendant relied on requiring a claimant to follow through on administrative procedures before filing suit. The court of appeal held that, here, the plaintiff was afforded no hearing at all before she abandoned the grievance process. The court held that nothing in the step 2 meeting convened by the defendant suggested that it was intended to afford the plaintiff an opportunity to prove her case. To the contrary, the meeting was merely an opportunity for the parties to discuss information and contentions relative to the grievance (159 Cal. App. 4th 449, 458) . The court further held that the defendant's step 2 decision did nothing but demonstrate how wholly inadequate the proceeding was for resolving the plaintiff's claims (159 Cal. App. 4th 449, 458-459) . The court held that because the plaintiff never participated in a quasi-judicial hearing as part of her aborted grievance process, there was no decision rendered that would be entitled to preclusive effect in a subsequent court proceeding. The court held that it could perceive of no reason why the plaintiff should be obligated to continue with a grievance process which was wholly unsatisfactory and in which she was not required to participate in the first place (159 Cal. App. 4th 449, 459) .

Farmer v. City of Inglewood (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 130, 185 Cal. Rptr. 9 , was an appeal from the judgment of the trial court granting a discharged city employee's petition for writ of mandate to compel a civil service hearing. The court of appeal agreed with the trial court's finding that the administrative remedies provided for in the civil service rule, stating that a terminated employee had 10 days to file a written appeal of termination together with a written answer to the grounds designated as reason for termination, were either unavailable or so nebulous as to be wholly inadequate because no reasons for discharge were ever stated in the notice of final disciplinary action. Therefore, the 10-day period within which to request a hearing never commenced to run (134 Cal. App. 3d 130, 137) . The notice of final action only made reference to the charges against the employee that were incorporated in the preliminary notice, and the court of appeal held that this was insufficient because the civil service rule requires findings by the employer (134 Cal. App. 3d 130, 138). The employee did retain an attorney and request a hearing, although not within the time limits specified in the civil service rule, and the court of appeal found substantial evidence to support the trial court's conclusion that the employee had exhausted all available administrative remedies except those excused by the action or omissions of appellant city (134 Cal. App. 3d 130, 139-140). The court of appeal therefore affirmed the judgment.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exception When Pursuit of Administrative Remedies Is Futile

Tiernan v. Trustees of Cal. State University & Colleges (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 211, 188 Cal. Rptr. 115, 655 P.2d 317 , was an appeal from the judgment of the trial court refusing to grant a petition for writ of administrative mandate sought by a temporary university employee who contested her nonreappointment. Plaintiff had filed a written notice of grievance with the university after receiving formal notice of her nonreappointment and then filed a petition for writ of mandate prior to the grievance hearing. Plaintiff argued that defendants had failed to adopt and follow regulations in Educ. Code § 89534 prescribing the form, time, and method for giving temporary academic employees notice of their nonreappointment, and that defendants infringed on her First Amendment rights by conditioning their offer of a good recommendation on her agreement to resign rather than contest her nonreappointment. The trial court rejected plaintiff's claims and also declared that plaintiff's failure to exhaust her administrative remedies would bar granting her relief in any event. The Supreme Court reversed, with directions to the trial court to issue a writ of mandate commanding the trustees to issue the regulations required under Educ. Code § 89534. The Court reiterated the rule that exhaustion of administrative remedies is not required when an administrative remedy is unavailable or inadequate (33 Cal. 3d 211, 217). The Court found that the university grievance procedure provided no avenue for plaintiff to advance her claim that the trustees had a duty to enact regulations governing notice of nonreappointment of temporary employees, and thus plaintiff's action could not be barred by the exhaustion of remedies doctrine (33 Cal. 3d 211, 217-218). However, plaintiff's First Amendment claim was barred from present consideration because plaintiff had not demonstrated that the grievance procedure available to her was inadequate to resolve the claim, and therefore it fell within the rule requiring exhaustion of administrative remedies (33 Cal. 3d 211, 217).

In Automotive Management Group, Inc. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1002, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904 , an automobile dealer submitted to the New Motor Vehicle Board a protest of its termination as a franchised dealer. An administrative law judge rejected the dealer's protest because it was untimely and the dealer petitioned the court for a writ of mandate. The trial court applied the substantial evidence test and denied the dealer's petition. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the administrative law judge's decision regarding the timeliness of the dealer's protest should have been submitted to the New Motor Vehicle Board for review. Although the dealer did not request that the Board hear the matter, the court held that this case fell within the futility exception to the exhaustion of administrative remedies doctrine because the administrative law judge expressly stated that the Board should not consider the protest. The court also held that the Board's failure to review the decision was not harmless error (20 Cal. App. 4th 1002).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.95

§ 195.95 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Constitutionality Inadequate Procedures

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable to Constitutionality Inadequate Procedures

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE AVAILABLE PROCEDURES UNDER THE REMEDIES ARE CONSTITUTIONALLY INADEQUATE IN THAT THEY FAIL TO SATISFY DUE PROCESS REQUIREMENTS.

Exception for Constitutionally Inadequate Procedures. Available administrative remedies need not be exhausted when the available procedures under the remedies are constitutionally inadequate in that they fail to satisfy due process requirements (Bush v. California Conservation Corps (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 194, 203-204, 185 Cal. Rptr. 892).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the available procedures under the remedies are constitutionally inadequate in that they fail to satisfy due process requirements.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception for Constitutionally Inadequate Procedures

Bush v. California Conservation Corps (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 194, 185 Cal. Rptr. 892 , was an appeal from a dismissal entered after defendant's demurrer was sustained with leave to amend and plaintiffs thereafter failed to amend. Plaintiffs pleaded several causes of action based on their termination from employment with defendant. On appeal, defendant contended that adequate administrative remedies existed at the time of plaintiffs' terminations and, thus, the dismissal was proper. The court held that plaintiffs were not required to exhaust the administrative remedies before filing suit because the available procedures under the administrative remedies were constitutionally inadequate in that they failed to satisfy due process requirements (136 Cal. App. 3d 194, 203-204). The procedures did not provide plaintiffs an opportunity to challenge the charges against them, and the reinstatement procedure required plaintiffs to admit guilt as a prerequisite to reinstatement. In addition, the notice of termination of employment was deficient in satisfying minimal due process notice requirements in that it gave plaintiffs only three hours to vacate the employment premises. The court concluded that plaintiffs had stated a cause of action for denial of their constitutional rights under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, and reversed the dismissal order (136 Cal. App. 3d 194, 204).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.96

§ 195.96 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because of Newer Statutory Remedy for Common Law Right

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because of Newer Statutory Remedy for Common Law Right

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN A STATUTORY REMEDY IS PROVIDED FOR THE ENFORCEMENT OF A PREEXISTING COMMON-LAW RIGHT. IN SUCH A CASE, THE NEWER STATUTORY REMEDY WILL BE CONSIDERED ONLY CUMULATIVE AND NEED NOT BE EXHAUSTED BEFORE SEEKING JUDICIAL RELIEF.

Exception When Newer Statutory Remedy Provides for Enforcement of Preexisting Common-Law Right. When a statute creates a right that did not exist at common law and provides a comprehensive system of administrative enforcement, a requirement that administrative remedies be exhausted may be implied; however, when a statutory remedy is provided for the enforcement of a preexisting common-law right, the newer statutory remedy will be considered only cumulative and need not be exhausted before seeking judicial relief (Boston v. Penny Lane Centers, Inc. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 936, 947, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 707 ; Hentzel v. Singer Co. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 290, 303, 188 Cal. Rptr. 159).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when a statutory remedy is provided for the enforcement of a preexisting common-law right. In such a case, the newer statutory remedy will be considered only cumulative and need not be exhausted before seeking judicial relief.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception When Newer Statutory Remedy Provides for Enforcement of Preexisting Common Law Right

In Boston v. Penny Lane Centers, Inc. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 936, 947, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 707 , the plaintiff sued the defendant social services agency for wrongful termination. The plaintiff worked as a therapist for children and families. She was terminated after complaining to her supervisor that her workload had increased substantially and that her workplace had become unsafe. The defendant argued that the plaintiff failed to exhaust her administrative remedies set forth under Health & Safety Code §§ 1596.881 and 1596.882. Health & Safety Code § 1596.881 provides that an employer may not discriminate against an employee who makes a good faith complaint to a regulatory agency or the employer regarding violations of the law by the employer, including violation of laws relating to staff-child ratios. Health & Safety Code § 1596.882 provides that an employee who is discriminated against must pursue a grievance through the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement. The trial court found for the plaintiff.

The court of appeal held that the basis of the plaintiff's claim was not whether she was retaliated against for objecting to the defendant's failure to comply with staffing ratios; it was whether the defendant retaliated against her for objecting to an unsafe working environment, a claim that was more aligned with Cal-OSHA (170 Cal. App. 4th 936, 947) . The court further held that if a statute creates a right that did not exist at common law, and provides a comprehensive system of administrative enforcement, an exhaustion of administrative remedies requirement may be implied. However, if a statutory remedy is provided for enforcing a preexisting common-law right, the statutory remedy is considered cumulative. The court held that though Cal-OSHA created a statutory right of action for workplace safety claims, it did not extinguish the common law tort of wrongful termination in violation of the public policy in favor of workplace safety (170 Cal. App. 4th 936, 947) . Consequently, the court held, the plaintiff could enforce her right to a safe workplace using the common law tort of wrongful discharge, which preexisted and was separate from the cause of action created by Health & Safety Code §§ 1596.881 and 1596.882.

In Griffin Dewatering Corp. v. Northern Ins. Co. of N.Y. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 172, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 568 , a discharged employee attempted to bring a lawsuit against his former employer based on a common law cause of action for tortious wrongful discharge. The trial court sustained the employer's demurrers to plaintiff's causes of action without leave to amend and dismissed the complaint.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that plaintiff's complaint was sufficient to state a cause of action for tortious wrongful discharge. Defendant argued that the action was properly dismissed because plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies in that Lab. Code § 6312 provided for the maintenance by the Labor Commissioner of a lawsuit on behalf of employees who alleged wrongful discharge for the reasons claimed by plaintiff. The court stated that when a statute creates a right that did not exist at common law and provides a comprehensive system of administrative enforcement, a requirement that administrative remedies be exhausted may be implied. Generally, however, when a statutory remedy is provided for the enforcement of a preexisting common law right, the newer statutory remedy will be considered only cumulative (138 Cal. App. 3d 290, 303). The court found that Lab. Code § 6312 did not constitute a comprehensive system of administrative enforcement, provided for no administrative remedy other than maintenance of a lawsuit by an administrative agency, and showed no legislative intent to preclude an employee from suing on his or her own behalf (Total Call Int'l, Inc. v. Peerless Ins. Co. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 161, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 319). Therefore, the statutory remedy provided in Lab. Code § 6312 was not exclusive and did not destroy plaintiff's common law cause of action for wrongful discharge (138 Cal. App. 3d 290, 304).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.97

§ 195.97 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Dispute Requires Statutory Construction

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Dispute Requires Statutory Construction

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN RESOLUTION OF THE UNDERLYING ISSUE IS SUBJECT TO JUDICIAL CONSTRUCTION OF A STATUTE.

Exception for Dispute Requiring Statutory Construction. A writ of mandate is a proper remedy and may be pursued without first exhausting any administrative remedy when resolution of the underlying issue is subject to judicial construction of a statute (California Teachers' Assn. v. Governing Board (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 735, 749, 193 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; see Richman v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1463-1464, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when resolution of the underlying issue is subject to judicial construction of a statute.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception for Dispute Requiring Statutory Construction

In Richman v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 , the Santa Monica Rent Control Board upheld a hearing examiner's decision that base rent on two rental units owned by plaintiff included parking and that, therefore, plaintiff's purported increase of the parking fees on these units was invalid. Plaintiff sought review of the Board's decision by a petition for a writ of administrative mandate and a complaint for declaratory relief and attorney's fees. Relying on the Petris Act (Civ. Code § 1947.7 et seq.), the trial court rendered judgment granting the petition and issuing the writ. The Board appealed from the judgment.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment, vacated plaintiff's peremptory writ, and remanded the case for further proceedings consistent with its opinion. In doing so, the court ruled on the exhaustion of administrative remedies issue raised by the Board. The Board contended that the Petris Act was not raised at any time during the administrative proceedings as a limitation on the Board's authority to determine base amenities (such as parking) and that, therefore, it should not have been raised for the first time in the writ proceedings. The court held, however, that even though there was arguably conflicting testimony about whether parking was included in the rent, there were no disputed facts relating to the applicability of the Petris Act. Therefore, it was proper for the trial court to consider the Act's applicability, even though it was not raised in the administrative proceedings (7 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1464-1465) . The court couched its exhaustion analysis in terms of the exception applicable when the subject matter of the controversy is outside the agency's jurisdiction, reasoning that the construction and applicability of the Petris Act was outside the Board's jurisdiction (7 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1463-1464). Even though the court ultimately found the Act inapplicable, there was no doubt that the dispute between the landlord, his tenants, and ultimately the Board, required statutory construction of the Act.

In California Teachers' Assn. v. Governing Board (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 735, 193 Cal. Rptr. 650 , a disabled school teacher who had not appeared for work during the school year was notified by the school district that his teaching contract for the year was invalid due to his absence, and that his extended sick leave and entitlement to health benefits and differential sick-leave pay had been terminated. He was a member of the teacher's union which had a collective bargaining agreement containing a grievance procedure and a provision covering fringe benefits. Rather than pursuing the grievance procedure, however, plaintiff teacher moved for a writ of mandate and declaratory relief requiring payment of the benefits and salary, and the trial court entered judgment accordingly. On appeal, the court of appeal affirmed. The court held that although normally a party to a collective bargaining agreement containing grievance and arbitration procedures must exhaust administrative remedies before resorting to the courts, an exception exists when the underlying issue, in this case the plaintiff's employment status, is undetermined and subject to judicial construction of a statute (145 Cal. App. 3d 735, 749).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.98

§ 195.98 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Party Could Predict Decision

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Party Could Predict Decision

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN AN AGGRIEVED PARTY CAN POSITIVELY STATE WHAT THE ADMINISTRATIVE AGENCY'S DECISION IN HIS OR HER PARTICULAR CASE WOULD BE.

Exception When Aggrieved Party Can Positively Predict Administrative Agency's Decision. Available administrative remedies need not be exhausted when an aggrieved party can positively state what the administrative agency's decision in his or her particular case would be (Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when an aggrieved party can positively state what the administrative agency's decision in his or her particular case would be.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception When Aggrieved Party Can Positively Predict Administrative Agency's Decision

In Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 plaintiffs sought a permit from defendant city to build an apartment project for persons with low incomes. For the previous eight years, the property on which the project was to be built had been zoned for residential uses. Before the permit could be issued, however, the city council enacted an emergency ordinance imposing a moratorium on building permits and dwelling-unit construction in an area of the city that included the proposed construction site. Eventually, the city council adopted a permanent ordinance rezoning the area so that it could only be used for light manufacturing purposes. In the trial court, plaintiffs contended that but for the moratorium and rezoning ordinances, the city would have issued them a building permit, that unconstitutional racial and economic discrimination motivated enactment of the ordinances, that because of the taint the ordinances were invalid, and that the city should be ordered to issue the requested building permit. The trial court denied relief, finding inter alia that plaintiffs had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies in that they did not apply to the city council for a variance from the rezoning ordinance. Plaintiffs appealed the denial of the writ.

The court of appeal reversed (37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 835). It noted that the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies contains an exception when the aggrieved party can positively state what the administrative agency's decision in his or her particular case would be. The court found that the instant case fell within this exception. The evidence was overwhelming that the city council's rezoning scheme was due to plaintiffs' plans to build their low income housing project. The court noted that it would be inconceivable for the city council to grant a variance for the very project whose prospective existence brought about the enactment of rezoning. The court stated that the case did not involve a situation in which the possibility of relief from a general policy existed because of the unusual circumstances of a particular case; to the contrary, the circumstances of the instant case gave birth to the ordinance's general policy. Concluding that plaintiffs were not required to pursue futile administrative remedies in order to invoke the jurisdiction of the courts, the court directed the superior court to review plaintiffs' claims of racial discrimination (37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834-835).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.99

§ 195.99 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Subject Beyond Agency's Jurisdiction

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Subject Beyond Agency's Jurisdiction

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE SUBJECT MATTER OF A CASE LIES OUTSIDE THE ADMINISTRATIVE AGENCY'S JURISDICTION.

Exception When Subject Matter Beyond Agency's Jurisdiction. When the subject matter of a case lies outside the administrative agency's jurisdiction, the aggrieved party is not required to exhaust available administrative remedies (County of L.A. v. Dept. of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 457, 260 P.2d 41 ; Security National Guaranty, Inc. v. California Coastal Commission (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 402, 415-418, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522 ; City of Lodi v. Randtron (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 337, 360, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 107 ; Richman v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1463-1464, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the subject matter of a case lies outside the administrative agency's jurisdiction.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception When Subject Matter Beyond Agency's Jurisdiction

The facts and procedural background of County of L.A. v. Dept. of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 260 P.2d 41 are discussed in § 195.85[3]. In this case, the court of appeal held that when a party is aggrieved by an administrative agency decision or order that was made in excess of the agency's subject matter jurisdiction, exhaustion of administrative remedies is not a mandatory prerequisite to judicial review (41 Cal. 2d 455, 457).

Security National Guaranty, Inc. v. California Coastal Commission (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 402, 415-418, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522 , involved a city's grant of a coastal development permit (CDP) to an oceanfront landowner. The Sierra Club and two members of the California Coastal Commission appealed the issuance of the CDP to the Commission. The Commission determined that the appeal raised a "substantial issue" as to whether the project conformed to a local coastal program (LCP). After the administrative appeal process, the Commission voted to deny the CDP for the project on the grounds that the proposed development was inconsistent with the LCP. The Commission declared the property an environmentally sensitive habitat area (ESHA). The plaintiff owner sought a writ of administrative mandamus to remand the matter to the Commission. The trial court denied the petition.

On appeal, the plaintiff argued that the trial court erred in denying its petition for writ of administrative mandamus in that the Commission had no statutory authority to declare the site an ESHA during the administrative appeal from the grant of a CDP. The Commission relied on the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies in claiming that the matter was not ripe for review because there had been no final decision on the kind of development that might be permitted on the site. The court of appeal held that the Commission's argument overlooked the fact that the appeal involves two separate administrative decisions--the Commission's purported ESHA designation and the permitting decision. The court held that the two decisions are of an entirely different character. The court held that amending an LCP, by declaring certain property an ESHA, is a legislative act. After examining the California Coastal Act of 1976 (Pub. Resources Code § 30000 et seq.), the court held that nothing in the statutory scheme granted the Commission the authority to make changes to the content of the LCP during an appeal from the grant of a CDP (159 Cal. App. 4th 402, 422) . The Commission's role was limited to determining whether a LCP complied with the provisions of the Act.

In City of Lodi v. Randtron (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 337, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 107 , the trial court issued an injunction requiring Randtron to comply with an administrative order directing it to abate an environmental nuisance on property it formerly owned and operated and to reimburse the City for all abatement and adjudication costs the City incurred to clean up hazardous substances on the property. The order was issued pursuant to a city ordinance, the Comprehensive Municipal Environmental Response and Liability Ordinance (MERLO) (Lodi Mun. Code, ch. 8.24), which authorized the City to investigate and remediate soil and groundwater contamination.

On appeal, Randtron argued that the administrative abatement order was void and unenforceable because MERLO was preempted by the state Carpenter-Presley-Tanner Hazardous Substance Account Act (HSAA) (Health & Saf. Code §§ 25300-25395.40). In response, the City argued that Randtron could not challenge the administrative order because Randtron failed to exhaust its administrative remedies. The court of appeal first held that an administrative abatement action order issued pursuant to MERLO is preempted by HSAA because the City of Lodi is a site listed by the Department of Toxic Substances Control under Health & Saf. Code § 25356(d) for which the state has exclusive jurisdiction over all remedial response actions. The court then held that the exhaustion of administrative remedies doctrine requires that where an administrative remedy is provided by statute, relief must be sought from the administrative body and this remedy exhausted before the courts will act (118 Cal. App. 4th 337, 360). However, the court held that the rule does not apply where the administrative agency lacked subject matter jurisdiction to issue the challenged order (118 Cal. App. 4th 337, 360). Thus, because the City did not have subject matter jurisdiction to issue the order against Randtron, Randtron was not required to exhaust administrative remedies.

The facts and procedural background of Richman v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 are discussed in § 195.97. In this case, the court of appeal held that plaintiff landlord was not precluded from raising the applicability of the Petris Act (Civ. Code § 1947.7 et seq.) for the first time in writ proceedings in the trial court, because the construction and applicability of the statute was outside the jurisdiction of defendant rent board. Thus, plaintiff was excepted from the requirement that he exhaust his administrative remedies in this respect, because the Act could not have been judicially construed or applied during the administrative proceedings (7 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1463-1465) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.100

§ 195.100 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Waived Requirement

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Waived Requirement

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE RESPONDENT HAS WAIVED THE OBJECTION BY FAILING TO PRESENT IT TO THE TRIAL COURT.

Exception When Agency Has Waived Exhaustion Requirement. The argument that the exhaustion of remedies doctrine applies in a particular case is waived on appeal if it is not presented in the trial court (Cummings v. Stanley (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 493, 505-506, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284 ; Mokler v. County of Orange (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 121, 133-138, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 568 ; Green v. City of Oceanside (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 212, 222, 239 Cal. Rptr. 470).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the respondent has waived the objection by failing to present it to the trial court.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception When Agency Has Waived Exhaustion Requirement

Cummings v. Stanley (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 493, 505-506, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284 , involved a challenge to the election of the defendants to the Alameda County Republican Central Committee. The defendants argued that the plaintiff was barred from bringing his claim based on his failure to seek a pre-election remedy to challenge the defendants' eligibility pursuant to the applicable statute. The court of appeal rejected this argument, holding that the defendants waived this defense by failing to raise it in the trial court (177 Cal. App. 4th 493, 505) . The court recognized the split of authority on the issue of whether an exhaustion of remedies defense is waived by failure to assert it at trial, and chose to follow the line of cases holding that it does (177 Cal. App. 4th 493, 505-506) .

In Mokler v. County of Orange (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 121, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 568 , the plaintiff city employee was terminated from her employment. She sued the defendant city for harassment and retaliatory termination. The jury found in the plaintiff's favor. On appeal, the defendant argued that the court did not have jurisdiction over the case because the plaintiff failed to exhaust her administrative remedies. Conceding that it failed to raise the issue in the trial court, the defendant argued that exhaustion was a jurisdictional issue that could be raised at any time. The court of appeal disagreed. Reviewing prior cases, the court held that exhaustion of administrative remedies is a fundamental rule of procedure followed under the doctrine of stare decisis and binding upon all courts (157 Cal. App. 4th 121, 134) . It further held that the exhaustion requirement was not jurisdictional because it was not an "inflexible dogma," but was subject to numerous exceptions (157 Cal. App. 4th 121, 134) . The defendant argued that its failure to raise exhaustion of administrative remedies on the plaintiff's retaliation claim did not waive the issue because the defendant had successfully asserted exhaustion on plaintiff's breach of contract and wrongful termination claims in pretrial motions, and that the plaintiff opposed the pretrial motions in part by arguing that exhaustion would have been futile. The court of appeal noted, however, that the trial court never provided the plaintiff with the opportunity to present evidence on the futility exception in response to the defendant's pretrial motions. The court treated the pretrial motions as motions for judgment on the pleadings and granted them (157 Cal. App. 4th 121, 136-137) .

In Green v. City of Oceanside (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 212, 239 Cal. Rptr. 470 , plaintiff brought an action seeking damages against defendant city for wrongful termination and for violating the covenant of good faith and fair dealing. Defendant's amended complaint stated as an affirmative defense that plaintiff's action was barred for failure to exhaust administrative remedies. However, defendant did not urge this affirmative defense at trial, preferring to address the merits of the case in its motions for nonsuit, judgment notwithstanding the verdict, and new trial. During argument of defendant's motion for nonsuit made after plaintiff's opening statement, the trial court asked certain questions concerning administrative remedies. Defendant said it would brief the issue, but failed to do so. On the record, there was no indication that defendant addressed the exhaustion issue further during trial even though it was mentioned again in connection with an evidentiary ruling leading to a stipulation that plaintiff filed a written claim with defendant that was rejected. The trial court entered judgment in favor of plaintiff. Defendant appealed, claiming inter alia that the trial court lacked jurisdiction because plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment (194 Cal. App. 3d 212, 230). It rejected defendant's contention that the exhaustion doctrine implicates subject matter jurisdiction. Reviewing prior cases, the court concluded that exhaustion is jurisdictional only in the sense that a court's failure to apply the rule in a situation in which the issue has been properly raised can be corrected by the issuance of a writ of prohibition. The court then addressed the defendant's failure to raise the exhaustion issue at trial. The court stated that the exhaustion issue should not fall outside the general rule of civil litigation that arguments and objections not raised and preserved in the trial court are waived on appeal. In the instant case, the court thought that it was unclear whether plaintiff failed to pursue his administrative remedies because he believed it would be futile to do so. Perhaps, opined the court, defendant initially agreed with plaintiff that exhaustion would have been futile, but having lost its case before a jury, reconsidered that judgment call. The court said that it would be grossly unfair to allow a defendant to ignore the potential procedural defense at a time when facts and memories were fresh and put a plaintiff to the time and expense of a full trial, knowing it could assert the failure to exhaust administrative remedies if it received an adverse jury verdict. The court concluded that the exhaustion doctrine is simply a procedural prerequisite the defendant decided to forego. Having elected to put plaintiff to his proof before a jury, the defendant's dissatisfaction with that result is an insufficient reason for reversal (194 Cal. App. 3d 212, 222-223).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.101

§ 195.101 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Copetitioner Satisfied Requirement

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Copetitioner Satisfied Requirement

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN COPLAINTIFFS HAVE REPEATEDLY APPEARED BEFORE ADMINISTRATIVE BODIES AND ASSERTED THE OBJECTIONS THAT FORM THE BASIS OF THE PLAINTIFF'S ACTION.

Exception When Coplaintiff Has Exhausted Administrative Remedies. An individual plaintiff challenging administrative acts is not required personally to exhaust remedies before responsible administrative bodies when coplaintiffs have repeatedly appeared before administrative bodies and asserted the objections that form the basis of the plaintiff's action (Leff v. City of Monterey Park (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 674, 681, 267 Cal. Rptr. 343).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when coplaintiffs have repeatedly appeared before administrative bodies and asserted the objections that form the basis of the plaintiff's action.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exception When Coplaintiff Has Exhausted Administrative Remedies

In Leff v. City of Monterey Park (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 674, 267 Cal. Rptr. 343 , petitioner, along with others, filed a petition seeking ordinary mandamus, administrative mandamus, and declaratory relief against respondents, including the city of Monterey Park. The petition sought to prevent respondents from granting real parties in interest permission to develop a home for the aged in a neighborhood zoned R-2. The real parties in interest filed a demurrer directed solely at petitioner, challenging his standing to sue on the ground that he had failed to exhaust his administrative remedies before commencing the action. The trial court sustained the demurrer against petitioner without leave to amend, and petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It determined that petitioner alleged facts bringing him within an exception to the exhaustion doctrine: petitioner alleged that his copetitioners had repeatedly appeared before the administrative bodies below and had asserted the objections that were the basis of his zoning challenge. The court concluded that these allegations satisfied the intent of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine (218 Cal. App. 3d 674, 681).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.102

§ 195.102 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Has Inadequate Procedure for Redress

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Has Inadequate Procedure for Redress

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85].

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE AGENCY DOES NOT HAVE A PERVASIVE AND SELF-CONTAINED SYSTEM OF ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURE FOR REGULATION OR MONITORING TO ASSESS OR PREVENT THE HARM THAT THE PETITIONER IS SEEKING TO REDRESS AND WHEN THE FACTUAL ISSUES IN THE CASE DO NOT EXHIBIT A PARAMOUNT NEED FOR SPECIALIZED AGENCY FACT-FINDING EXPERTISE THAT WOULD REQUIRE EXHAUSTION BEFORE PERMITTING THE PETITIONER TO PURSUE THE CLAIMS AND REMEDIES IN COURT.

Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Has Inadequate Procedure for Redress. A plaintiff is not required to exhaust administrative remedies when the agency does not have a pervasive and self-contained system of administrative procedure for regulation or monitoring to assess or prevent the harm that plaintiff is seeking to redress and when the factual issues in the case do not exhibit a paramount need for specialized agency fact-finding expertise that would require exhaustion before permitting the plaintiff to pursue the claims and remedies in court (590 F. Supp. 2d 1244, 1251-1254)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the agency does not have a pervasive and self-contained system of administrative procedure for regulation or monitoring to assess or prevent the harm that the petitioner is seeking to redress and when the factual issues in the case do not exhibit a paramount need for specialized agency fact-finding expertise that would require exhaustion before permitting the petitioner to pursue the claims and remedies in court.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Has Inadequate Procedure for Redress

In Rojo v. Kliger (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 65, 276 Cal. Rptr. 130, 801 P.2d 373 , plaintiffs filed suit against their former employer for violations of the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.) and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Plaintiffs alleged that defendant subjected them to sex discrimination and sexual harassment during their terms of employment. Defendant answered, denied the allegations, and asserted various affirmative defenses. Defendant then moved for summary judgment on the grounds that the FEHA constituted plaintiffs' exclusive remedy and that plaintiffs had failed to exhaust their administrative remedies thereunder. The trial court granted defendant's motion and entered summary judgment in his favor.

On plaintiffs' appeal, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment, holding, among other things, that the FEHA does not preempt or preclude other state law claims relating to employment discrimination. It further held that a victim of sex discrimination is not required to pursue the FEHA administrative remedy except with respect to claims thereunder. Accordingly, the court concluded plaintiffs could proceed with their suit and seek recovery under any applicable theory independent of the FEHA. However, the court held they could not state a cause of action under Gov. Code § 12940 (sex discrimination as unlawful employment practice) because they did not exhaust their administrative remedies under the FEHA.

Defendant then appealed to the Supreme Court, which affirmed the judgment of the court of appeal. The Court held that, while an employee must exhaust the FEHA administrative remedy before bringing suit on a cause of action thereunder or seeking the relief provided therein, exhaustion is not required before filing a civil action for damages alleging nonstatutory causes of action (52 Cal. 3d 65, 88). The Court reasoned that the FEHA does not have a pervasive and self-contained system of administrative procedure for general regulation or monitoring of employment relations so as to assess or prevent discrimination or related wrongs in the employment context (52 Cal. 3d 65, 87-88). Furthermore, an employment discrimination case is not one with a paramount need for specialized agency fact-finding expertise such that it would require exhaustion before permitting an aggrieved person to pursue a related nonstatutory claim and remedy in court. Requiring exhaustion with regard to nonstatutory claims under the FEHA would lead to one of two undesirable outcomes. First, an exhaustion requirement would lead to routine issuance of right-to-sue letters, thus nullifying the requirement. Alternatively, an exhaustion requirement would burden the Department of Fair Employment and Housing and the Fair Employment and Housing Commission with the investigation and determination of issues beyond their jurisdiction and special expertise, thereby limiting the resources available for the resolution of cases within the scope of the FEHA, raising complex issues of collateral estoppel or res judicata, and ultimately bearing no beneficial impact on the judicial system. Second, regardless of the burden imposed on the Department and the Commission, the case in any event would still enter the judicial pipeline, thus producing precisely the result that the exhaustion doctrine was, in part, intended to avert (52 Cal. 3d 65, 88).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Has Inadequate Procedure for Redress

In Department of Fish & Game v. Anderson-Cottonwood Irrigation Dist. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222 , the court of appeal reversed a judgment denying a preliminary injunction, finding among other issues that relief for the Department of Fish and Game was not barred by its failure to exhaust administrative remedies against the irrigation district. Fish & Game Code § 6024 provides for mandatory submission of only certain disputes to the Department of Water Resources; those disputes are expressly limited to technical matters presumably within the particular expertise of the Department of Water Resources. In this case, the dispute related to legal but not technical questions, and the irrigation district did not request a decision from the Department of Water Resources. Since there was no factual dispute, the Department of Fish and Game was not required to first seek a decision from the Department of Water Resources (8 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1567).

In Automotive Management Group, Inc. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1002, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 904 , an automobile dealer submitted to the New Motor Vehicle Board a protest of its termination as a franchised dealer. An administrative law judge rejected the dealer's protest because it was untimely and the dealer petitioned the court for a writ of mandate. The trial court applied the substantial evidence test and denied the dealer's petition. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the administrative law judge's decision regarding the timeliness of the dealer's protest should have been submitted to the New Motor Vehicle Board for review. Although the dealer did not request that the Board hear the matter, the court held that this case fell within the futility exception to the exhaustion of administrative remedies doctrine because the administrative law judge expressly stated that the Board should not consider the protest. The court also held that the Board's failure to review the decision was not harmless error (20 Cal. App. 4th 1002, 1015-1016) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.103

§ 195.103 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency is Estopped from Asserting It

[1] FORM Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency is Estopped From Arguing It

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine. See § 195.85.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE EXHAUSTION OF REMEDIES REQUIREMENT DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE AGENCY HAS NEGLIGENTLY OR INTENTIONALLY CAUSED A PARTY TO FAIL TO COMPLY WITH A PROCEDURAL PRECONDITION TO RECOVERY. EQUITABLE ESTOPPEL MAY BE ASSERTED WHEN (1) THE PARTY TO BE ESTOPPED WAS APPRISED OF THE FACTS, (2) THE PARTY TO BE ESTOPPED INTENDED THAT ITS CONDUCT BE ACTED UPON OR ACTED IN SUCH A MANNER THAT THE PARTY ASSERTING THE ESTOPPEL HAD A RIGHT TO BELIEVE IT WAS SO INTENDED, (3) THE PARTY ASSERTING ESTOPPEL WAS IGNORANT OF THE TRUE STATE OF FACTS AND (4) THE PARTY MUST HAVE RELIED ON THE CONDUCT TO ITS INJURY.

Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Is Estopped from Asserting It. A plaintiff is not required to exhaust administrative remedies when the agency negligently or intentionally caused the plaintiff to fail to comply with administrative remedies (Shuer v. County of San Diego (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 476, 486, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 776).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision based on failure to allege exhaustion of administrative remedies, when the agency failed, either negligently or intentionally, to inform the plaintiff about any available administrative procedures for redressing the relevant harm.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate based on the inapplicability of the exhaustion of remedies doctrine [see § 195.85].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.68.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exhaustion of Remedies Inapplicable Because Agency Is Estopped from Asserting It

In Shuer v. County of San Diego (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 476, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 776 , plaintiff Shuer sued defendant County of San Diego for wrongful termination. In November 2000, Shuer, a licensed psychiatrist, began working on a probationary basis for the County Health and Human Services Agency as a supervising psychiatrist in the Juvenile Forensic Services Facility (JFSF). Her duties included supervising psychiatrists and other medical staff and clinically assessing and treating minors in juvenile hall. During her employment, Shuer concluded that JFSF employees were not meeting the community standard of care. Shuer believed JFSF employees engaged in unethical, negligent, and unlawful practices. When the psychiatrists she supervised failed to take any corrective action, Shuer alerted county counsel.

The county terminated Shuer's employment on July 24, 2001. The county cited as the basis for termination Shuer's failure to complete the duties of her position satisfactorily. Shuer alleged the actual reason for her termination was retaliation for her refusal to participate in, and her efforts to correct, unethical, inappropriate, and illegal practices. With her termination letter, Shuer received a copy of the County of San Diego Civil Service Rules, Rule 4.2.5 dealing with probationary employees. Subdivision (c) stated that the county shall dismiss a probationary employee who is found unsatisfactory for, or incompetent to perform, the duties of the position. The subdivision then states: "A probationer dismissed at any time within the probationary period shall have no right to appeal to the Commission [County of San Diego Civil Service Commission (Civil Service Commission)] in regard to his/her separation or performance appraisal. A probationer who alleges facts showing a violation of his/her liberty interest shall be entitled to a hearing in accordance with the rules ... implemented by the Commission and/or Director."

Shuer alleged that after receiving the termination letter, she discussed a civil service hearing with the Executive Officer of the Civil Service Commission, Larry Cook. Cook explained to Shuer that to have a hearing, she would have to prove that the county violated her "liberty interests." Cook explained that Shuer would have to show that she was dismissed because of her misconduct and that the misconduct was criminal. Shuer concluded that since she was not dismissed for criminal misconduct, she was not entitled to a hearing. Shuer alleged that Cook mentioned that a charge of discrimination was a possibility, but since Shuer was not alleging discrimination, it did not appear appropriate to lodge a complaint with the Civil Service Commission. Shuer alleged Cook did not encourage her to file a complaint with the commission nor did he mention that it might be mandatory to do so if she were to file a claim. As a result of her discussion with Cook, appellant did not seek an administrative remedy.

Shuer alleged that she filed a timely claim with the county. In denying her claim, the county noted Shuer had six months in which to commence a court action but did not mention that she was required to exhaust administrative remedies before filing suit.

When Shuer sued for wrongful termination, the county demurred, arguing Shuer had failed to exhaust administrative remedies. Shuer argued that the county's misleading statements concerning, and failure to advise her of, any administrative remedies estopped the county from asserting her failure to exhaust such remedies. The trial court granted the demurrer and dismissed Shuer's case. Shuer appealed.

The court of appeal held that a government entity is estopped from asserting as a defense a failure to exhaust administrative remedies when a government agent negligently or intentionally caused a party to fail to comply with a procedural precondition to recovery (117 Cal. App. 4th 476, 486). Equitable estoppel may be asserted when (1) the party to be estopped was aware of the facts, (2) the party to be estopped intended that its conduct be acted upon or acted in such a manner that the party asserting the estoppel had a right to believe it was so intended, (3) the party asserting estoppel was ignorant of the true state of facts, and (4) the party relied on the conduct to its injury (117 Cal. App. 4th 476, 486). The court held that the county's actions negligently led Shuer to conclude that she had no administrative recourse. That being the case, the court held that the county was estopped from asserting that Shuer failed to exhaust her administrative remedies (117 Cal. App. 4th 476, 487).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.104

§ 195.104 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Statute of Limitations Does Not Bar Petition, General Form

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Statute of Limitations Does Not Bar Petition, General Form

[Caption. see § 195.80.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE PERIOD PROVIDED BY STATUTE FOR THE FILING OF A PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE IS NOT JURISDICTIONAL IN NATURE BUT IS MERELY A PERIOD OF LIMITATION, AND THE RULES OF LAW RELATING TO THE LIMITATION OF ACTIONS APPLY.

Limitation of Mandate Proceeding. The statutory periods within which petitions for writs of mandate may be filed are not jurisdictional in nature, as are the periods within which appeals may be taken, but are merely periods of limitation; and rules of law relating to the limitation of actions apply to mandate proceedings (Ginns v. Savage (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 520, 524, 39 Cal. Rptr. 377, 393 P.2d 689).

[As appropriate, this form may be combined with a memorandum asserting that the petition is not barred by a particular statute of limitations. See § 195.105].

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to the petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision. The form may be used when respondent asserts that the proceeding is barred by expiration of a period of limitation that has been tolled, suspended, or extended. Counsel should include points and authorities relating to such defenses. For memoranda dealing with the limitation of actions, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

As appropriate, this form may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.64 -195.67.

As appropriate, this form may be combined with a memorandum asserting that the petition is not barred by a particular statute of limitations [see § 195.105].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used to oppose a motion for summary judgment or a motion for judgment on the pleadings in favor of the respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[c] Limitation Under Administrative Procedure Act

Gov. Code § 11523 provides that administrative decisions may be judicially reviewed by filing a petition for a writ of mandate in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, subject, however, to the statutes relating to the particular agency. Except as otherwise provided in this section [see [e], below] any such petition shall be filed within 30 days after the last day on which reconsideration can be ordered [Gov. Code § 11523; but see Ragan v. City of Hawthorne (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1361, 1365-1366, 261 Cal. Rptr. 219 (limitation period in Gov. Code § 11523 as only applicable to petitions seeking judicial review after agency has held formal hearing in compliance with Administrative Procedure Act)]. The filing period is a statute of limitation and is upheld regardless of personal hardship. The absence of specific extension provisions in Gov. Code § 11523 precludes relief for delay on grounds of good cause, mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Kupka v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 791, 795-797, 176 Cal. Rptr. 214] .

[d] Last Day for Reconsideration Order

Government Code § 11521(a) provides that the power to order a reconsideration shall expire 30 days after the delivery or mailing of a decision to respondent; or on the date set by the agency itself as the effective date of the decision, if such date occurs prior to the expiration of the 30-day period; or at the termination of a stay of not more than 30 days that the agency may grant for the purpose of filing an application for reconsideration; or, if an application was filed before any of the applicable time periods expired, at the termination of a stay not to exceed 10 days that the agency may grant for the purpose of evaluating the application [see Bonnell v. Medical Board of California (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1255, 1262-1263, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532, 82 P.3d 740 (interpreting statute)].

[e] Extension of Time

Government Code § 11523 provides that, when petitioner, within 10 days after the last day on which reconsideration can be ordered, requests the agency to prepare all or any part of the record, the time within which a petition may be filed shall be extended until 30 days after its delivery to him.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limitation of Mandate Proceeding

Ginns v. Savage (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 520, 39 Cal. Rptr. 377, 393 P.2d 689 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court in a mandate proceeding for review of an administrative adjudicatory decision. The court stated, "The law is settled, and clear, that the statutory periods within which mandamus petitions may be filed are not jurisdictional in nature, as are the periods within which appeals may be taken from lower courts, but are mere statutes of limitation. Rules of law relating to limitations of actions are applicable to mandamus proceedings" [Ginns v. Savage (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 520, 524, 39 Cal. Rptr. 377, 393 P.2d 689 (footnote and citations omitted; italics in original)].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Limitation of Mandate Proceeding

Jahangiri v. Medical Bd. of California (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187 , was an appeal of a denial of a petition for a writ of administrative mandamus. The petitioner requested preparation of the transcript, but did not pay for the transcript until approximately a month after the deadline under Gov. Code § 11523 to order the transcript. The transcript was not ready at the date of the hearing, and after his application for continuance was denied, petitioner dismissed the action without prejudice, and then refiled. The trial court then denied the petition as untimely filed. The question on appeal was whether payment for transcript preparation must occur at the same time the request is submitted in order for the Gov. Code § 11523 extension period to apply. Noting that the statute does not require payment at the time of request, the court concluded that payment for the record is not required at the time the request is submitted in order to extend the statute of limitations (40 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 1663).

Sinetos v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 207 Cal. Rptr. 207 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court in a mandate proceeding for review of a decision of the Department of Motor Vehicles. Reversing the trial court, the court of appeal held that plaintiff was barred from seeking such review when plaintiff instituted his mandate proceedings more than 90 days after the agency's order became effective (160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1174). The court held that Veh. Code § 14401 contained no provision extending the 90-day time period in which to file a mandate petition for review of the agency's decision and that the absence of such a provision manifested a legislative intent that relief from the time limitation therein was therefore unavailable (160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1176).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.105

§ 195.105 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Ninety-Day Period for Review of Local Agency Decision Begins on Notice of Time to Seek Judicial Review

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Ninety-Day Period for Review of Local Agency Decision Begins on Notice of Time to Seek Judicial Review

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the action is not barred by any statute of limitations. See § 195.104.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE 90-DAY PERIOD FOR THE FILING OF A PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE TO REVIEW A LOCAL AGENCY DECISION DOES NOT BEGIN TO RUN UNTIL THE LOCAL AGENCY PROVIDES NOTICE THAT CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 1094.6 GOVERNS THE TIME WITHIN WHICH JUDICIAL REVIEW MUST BE SOUGHT.

A. Notice Requirement. A local agency making a final decision must provide notice to the affected party that the time within which judicial review must be sought is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f)).

[EITHER]

B. Notice Triggers Finality and Commencement of 90-Day Period. The decision of the local agency does not become final for the purpose of the availability of judicial review within the 90-day period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b), and the 90-day period does not commence to run, until the agency, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f), provides the affected party with notice that Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 governs the limitation period for judicial review (Cummings v. City of Vernon (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 919, 920, 922, 263 Cal. Rptr. 97).

[OR]

B. Although Decision Final, 90-Day Period Is Tolled Until Notice Given. The decision of the local agency becomes final for the purpose of the availability of judicial review within the 90-day period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b), but the 90-day period is tolled until the agency, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f), provides the affected party with notice that Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 governs the limitation period for judicial review (Ciraulo v. City of Newport Beach (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 838, 847, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515 ; El Dorado Palm Springs, Ltd. v. Rent Review Com. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 345-346, 281 Cal. Rptr. 327).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to the petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency. The form may be used when the respondent asserts that the proceeding is barred by the 90-day period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6, and the party seeking review has timely filed the petition for a writ of mandate within 90 days of notice given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f).

This form should be combined with points and authorities generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the action is not barred by any statute of limitations [see § 195.104].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.67.

[b] Split of Authority Regarding Finality

There is a split of authority about when the decision of the local agency becomes final. Two appellate districts, the second and the fourth, have each issued an opinion on the question, and in each case the Supreme Court has declined to review the appellate opinion. On the issue of the running of the 90-day limitation period, the opinions are not at loggerheads, because regardless of when a local agency's decision is held to be final, each opinion holds that for all intents and purposes the limitation period for judicial review of the decision does not begin to run until the agency has given the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) [El Dorado Palm Springs, Ltd. v. Rent Review Com. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 345-346, 281 Cal. Rptr. 327 ; Cummings v. City of Vernon (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 919, 920, 922, 263 Cal. Rptr. 97] .

On the other hand, on the issue of finality of the decision, the opinions have the potential for conflict. Under the rationale of Cummings, which is the Second Appellate District opinion, there is no provision for judicial review of a decision either before notice is given or in the event that it is not given. This is because the issue of an agency's failure to give notice did not arise in that case [see Cummings v. City of Vernon (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 919, 921, 263 Cal. Rptr. 97] . On the other hand, under the rationale of El Dorado, which is the Fourth Appellate District opinion, provision is made for judicial review in both instances, in large part because the agency failed to give the notice in that case [see El Dorado Palm Springs, Ltd. v. Rent Review Com. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 340-341, 281 Cal. Rptr. 327] .

Therefore, first Alternative Paragraph B is to be used when counsel is litigating the case in the Second Appellate District. It is the law in that appellate district that the local agency's decision becomes final on the date that notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) is given to the affected party that the time within which judicial review can be sought is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 [Cummings v. City of Vernon (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 919, 920, 922, 263 Cal. Rptr. 97] .

Second Alternative Paragraph B is to be used when counsel is litigating the case in the Fourth Appellate District. It is the law in that appellate district that the local agency's decision becomes final on the date that the decision is issued in its final form [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b)], but that the limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) is tolled until the date the agency gives notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) to the affected party that the time within which judicial review can be sought is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 [El Dorado Palm Springs, Ltd. v. Rent Review Com. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 345-346, 281 Cal. Rptr. 327] . Finally, in Ciraulo v. City of Newport Beach (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 838, 847, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515 , the issue of finality did not arise, just when the 90-day period for filing and serving a petition for writ of mandate begins to run (Ciraulo v. City of Newport Beach (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 838, 847, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515).

Counsel litigating in appellate districts other than the second and the fourth may argue for adoption of the interpretation of finality that best suits their cases.

[c] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.80[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice Triggers Finality and Commencement of 90-Day Period

In Cummings v. City of Vernon (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 919, 263 Cal. Rptr. 97 , plaintiff, who had formerly been employed as a firefighter by defendant city, sought disability benefits from the city. The city denied the disability benefits in a decision dated December 9, 1986. On December 19, the city attorney provided notice to plaintiff that the time for seeking judicial review would be governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6. Plaintiff filed a petition for judicial review on March 13, 1987, a date more than 90 days after the city council's December 9 decision but less than 90 days after the city attorney's December 19 notice. The trial court denied the petition on the ground that it was barred by the statute of limitation, Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b), because the petition was filed more than 90 days after the date of the city council's decision. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal for the Second Appellate District reversed. The court examined the legislative background and purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 and concluded that the decision of the local agency does not become final for the purpose of the availability of judicial review until the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) is given. Therefore, the 90-day limitation period in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) does not commence until the required notice is given. The court found that the plaintiff's petition was timely filed, since it was filed within 90 days after the notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) (214 Cal. App. 3d 919, 922-924).

The court did not address, nor was it presented with, the issue of whether and when judicial review can be had of a decision that does not become final because the agency fails to give the Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) notice. The Supreme Court denied respondent city's petition for review.

[b] Although Decision Final, 90-Day Period Is Tolled Until Notice Given

In Ciraulo v. City of Newport Beach (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 838, 847, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 515 , the plaintiffs sought an order requiring the City of Newport Beach to grant them a variance from its building code, and thereby allow them to retain the portion of their newly built home which had been constructed in violation of that code. The trial court denied the plaintiffs' petition on various grounds. The City argued that the mandate petition was not timely filed and served, and should have been denied on that basis alone. The court of appeals agreed with the City. The court of appeals held that the City did not give the plaintiffs written notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 until six days after it rendered its decision denying their variance application. The plaintiffs filed and served their writ petition within 90 days of that date.

Consequently, the court held that the mandate petition was timely, as the applicable statute of limitations was tolled until the City gave the plaintiffs written notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 (147 Cal. App. 4th 838, 847) .

El Dorado Palm Springs, Ltd. v. Rent Review Com. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 281 Cal. Rptr. 327 , plaintiff applied to the Palm Springs Rent Review Commission for approval of a hardship rent increase. The commission denied the application for the full amount sought but granted him a partial increase. However, the commission did not notify plaintiff, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f), that Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 governed the time within which he could seek judicial review of the decision. Some seven months after issuance of the decision, plaintiff filed a petition for a writ of mandate in the superior court to compel the commission to grant that portion of his application for a rent increase that had previously been denied. The commission demurred to the petition, contending that the 90-day limitation period in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) had expired long before plaintiff sought review of the decision. The trial court overruled the demurrer, concluding that the commission had failed to comply with the notice requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) and that the 90-day limitation period had consequently been tolled before the filing of plaintiff's petition. The trial court subsequently granted the petition, and the commission appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court agreed with the decision in Cummings v. City of Vernon (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 919, 920, 922, 263 Cal. Rptr. 97 (discussed in Local Agency Decision Becomes Final and 90-Day Period for Review Begins on Agency's Provision of Notice, above), that the limitation period in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 does not begin until the Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) notice is given. However, the court did not agree that the notice must be given in order that the local agency's decision be deemed final for the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) (230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 345). Instead, the court construed Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 to impose a 90-day period of limitation that is tolled until the Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) notice is given. Under this construction, a decision is final under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) as soon as the local agency has issued it in final form, and a party is free to seek judicial review before the Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) notice is given (230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 346). In so ruling, the court noted that taken to its logical conclusion, the Cummings position on finality would permit a local agency to prevent a decision from ever becoming final by simply never issuing a Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) notice. The court also noted that under its own ruling, a local agency's failure to give the notice would not give an aggrieved party an open-ended period within which to seek judicial review, because regardless of the tolling of the 90-day limitation period, the doctrine of laches would still apply to the timeliness of a party's effort to secure review (230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 345-346).

The Supreme Court denied appellant real parties' petition for review.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.106

§ 195.106 Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Service on Party's Attorney Does Not Trigger Ninety-Day Period for Review of Local Agency Decision

[1] FORM Demurrer Should Be Overruled--Service on Party's Attorney Does Not Trigger Ninety-Day Period for Review of Local Agency Decision

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the action is not barred by any statute of limitations. See § 195.104.]

THE COURT SHOULD OVERRULE THE DEMURRER TO THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE SERVICE ON A PARTY'S ATTORNEY DOES NOT TRIGGER THE 90-DAY PERIOD FOR THE FILING OF A PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE TO REVIEW A LOCAL AGENCY DECISION.

Service of Notice on Party's Lawyer Cannot Substitute for Service on Party. The 90-day period for review of a local agency decision under Code Civil Proc. § 1094.6 applies only if the required notice is served on the party. Service on the party's lawyer does not trigger the 90-day period (Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 823, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to the petition for a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision of a local agency. The form may be used when the respondent asserts that the proceeding is barred by the 90-day period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6, and the required notice was served on attorney for the party seeking review, but not on the party himself or herself.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally opposing a demurrer to a petition for administrative mandate on the ground that the action is not barred by any statute of limitations [see § 195.104]. This form may be combined with a memorandum contending that the 90-day period does not begin to run until the local agency provides the Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 notice [see § 195.105].

As appropriate, this memorandum may be used to oppose the points and authorities set forth in § 195.67.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. In this case, counsel would refer to the proof of service of the notice of agency decision and point out that notice of the local agency decision was not served on the party himself or herself, but only on the party's attorney. Therefore, proper service was not made and the 90-day limitation period under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 never began to run. See also Comments under § 195.80[2][b].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Service of Notice on Party's Lawyer Cannot Substitute for Service on Party

In Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 , a transportation authority sent an employee a notice of termination letter. The employee was a lieutenant with the county transportation authority police force. After a lengthy hearing, the arbitrator recommended that the employee be reinstated without back pay. The transportation authority rejected the recommendation and fired the employee. The transportation authority mailed a termination letter, with proof of service, to the employee's attorney. The letter contained a required warning that the employee had to file any petition seeking judicial review of his firing within 90 days of the date of mailing of the termination letter. The transportation authority did not send the letter directly to the employee. The employee filed his administrative mandamus petition a few days beyond the 90-day limitations period. The transportation authority demurred to the petition arguing it was barred by the limitation period of Code Civil Proc. § 1094.6 because service on the employee's lawyer satisfied the statute's service requirement. The trial court sustained the demurrer with leave to amend. When the employee could not amend his petition to demonstrate compliance with the statute, the trial court granted the transportation authority's dismissal motion on the same ground and denied the petition. The employee appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded the case for the trial court to reinstate the petition. The transportation authority agreed that Code Civil Proc. § 1094.6 on its face requires service on the party. However, the transportation authority contended that the statute should not be read literally. The transportation authority cited general provisions that in litigation, service on a party's attorney constitutes service on the party and that as agents of their clients, the attorney's knowledge is imputed to the client. The court rejected the argument, stating that if the Legislature intended that notice could be made on a party or his attorney, it could have said so. The court cited Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 (notice in civil actions) as an example in which such an exception was made (71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 823).

84 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
1. Demurrer

19-195 California Points & Authorities §§ 195.107-195.119

[Reserved]

§§ 195.107[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
2. Return by Answer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.120

§ 195.120 Return by Answer--General Form

[1] FORM Return by Answer--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM SUPPORTING ANSWER TO
Respondent.	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
	)
	)

THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF ADMINISTRATIVE MANDATE SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE _____ [set forth grounds].

A. Answer in Mandate Proceeding. A party on whom a writ or notice has been served may make a return by verified answer in a mandate proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 1089).

B. Objection by Answer. The party against whom a petition for a writ of mandate has been filed may raise any ground for objection that does not appear on the face of the petition by objection in an answer (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(b)).

[As appropriate, add specific points and authorities supporting answer to petition for administrative mandate. See § 195.121.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of an answer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision.

As appropriate, add specific points and authorities supporting answer to petition for administrative mandate [see, e.g.,§ 195.121].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Any statement of fact should be supported by adequate reference to evidence admitted or otherwise cognizable by the court. For further discussion, see § 195.10[2][b].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
2. Return by Answer

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.121

§ 195.121 Return by Answer--Petition is Barred by Laches

[1] FORM Return by Answer--Petition is Barred by Laches

[This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting an answer to a petition for administrative mandate. See § 195.120.]

THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF ADMINISTRATIVE MANDATE IS BARRED BY LACHES BECAUSE PETITIONER UNREASONABLY DELAYED IN SEEKING JUDICIAL RELIEF AND _____ [HAS ACQUIESCED IN THE ACT COMPLAINED OF or RESPONDENT HAS SUFFERED SOME PREJUDICE CAUSED BY THE DELAY].

A. Laches as Bar to Administrative Mandamus. A petition for administrative mandate is barred by laches if the petitioner has delayed in prosecuting the mandamus action, and either the petitioner has acquiesced in the act complained of or the respondent has suffered some prejudice caused by the delay (Vernon Fire Fighters Assn. v. City of Vernon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 719, 223 Cal. Rptr. 871).

B. Entire Time Involved in Pursuing Remedy as Considered. A petitioner who seeks review of an administrative decision must pursue his or her remedy speedily, and the entire time involved in that pursuit is considered in determining whether or not laches bars recovery. [Thus, the period of time to be considered as constituting possible laches includes the period of time the action is pending, and is not tolled by the filing of the action] (Vernon Fire Fighters Assn. v. City of Vernon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 720, 223 Cal. Rptr. 871).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of an answer to a petition for writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision when the petitioner has been guilty of laches in prosecuting the action.

This form should be combined with a memorandum generally supporting an answer to a petition for administrative mandate [see § 195.120].

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used to support a motion for judgment on the pleadings in favor of the respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. See Comments under § 195.120[2][b] for further discussion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Laches as Bar to Administrative Mandamus

In Vernon Fire Fighters Assn. v. City of Vernon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 223 Cal. Rptr. 871 , petitioners were fire fighters, and were officers and members of a fire fighters' union. For about two years, the union and respondent city had been engaged in a labor dispute. In 1978, the union held an illegal strike, and union fire fighters were locked out. Respondent hired temporary replacements, and all union fire fighters were terminated by vote of the city council. The union filed a petition for writ of mandate, and the city responded by filing a separate action against the union. Both actions were consolidated for hearing and came on for trial on October 23, 1978, at which time the judge gave a verbal statement of decision in favor of the city. However, although counsel for the city was directed to prepare findings of fact and conclusions of law, the document was never prepared and the cases were dismissed without any judgment having been entered in 1984. Immediately after the judge's verbal statement of decision, the union and the city resumed negotiations. The parties appeared to reach a temporary agreement, and petitioners returned to work; however, further negotiations became fruitless. In the meantime, certain petitioners testified before the grand jury during December 1978 against some of the respondents, who were then indicted. On March 23, 1979, one respondent recommended to the city council that the union's recognition be revoked because of the illegal strike. On April 24, 1979, the city council voted to dismiss petitioners. Their request for reinstatement was denied on July 3, 1979. On August 28, 1979, petitioners filed and served the instant petition for writ of mandate. A first amended petition was filed on April 25, 1980, and a second amended petition was filed on May 11, 1981. Discovery was commenced, but no further discovery was taken after the deposition of a respondent on June 11, 1981. Settlement was reached with one respondent only on April 21, 1982. No further action was taken until July 5, 1984, when petitioners served notice of a hearing of the petition. Respondents filed their answer to the second amended petition on August 10, 1984, and raised the defense of laches. The parties stipulated to a waiver of the five-year statute of limitations of former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360) until the time of the hearing, without prejudice to respondents' claim of laches. When the matter came on for hearing, the judge ruled that the petition was barred by laches, because more than five years had elapsed since petitioners' discharge, and respondents had shown overwhelming and uncontradicted evidence that they had been prejudiced by the unreasonable delay. Respondents appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, holding that the trial court's decision was supported by substantial evidence. The court explained that an administrative mandate action is barred by laches if a petitioner has delayed in prosecuting the mandamus action, and either petitioner has acquiesced in the act complained of or respondent has suffered some prejudice caused by the delay (178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 719). The court noted that the Supreme Court had held in Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 359-362, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 , that prejudice is not presumed but must be proved by competent evidence to the trial court. However, in the instant case, the court held that the trial court's finding of prejudice was supported by substantial evidence presented to the trial court that the city had hired permanent employees to replace petitioners and had no job openings to accommodate them, that petitioners had not waived their claims for back salary and benefits and there would be substantial financial loss to the city if petitioners were reinstated, and that witnesses and evidence were no longer available because of death, retirement, or resignation (178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 719, 723) . The court rejected petitioners' excuse for delay in setting the matter for hearing, which was based on a claim that counsel had been awaiting the outcome of certain irrelevant pending cases, and rejected petitioners' claim of unclean hands (178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 720-723). The court also rejected petitioners' argument that the pendency of the action tolled laches, and instead concluded that the period of time to be considered as constituting possible laches includes the period of time the action is pending, as well as the entire time involved in pursuing a speedy remedy (178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 720). Because respondents had established the defense of laches, the trial court was justified in finding that laches barred the action (178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 727).

[b] Entire Time Involved in Pursuing Remedy as Considered

Vernon Fire Fighters Assn. v. City of Vernon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 223 Cal. Rptr. 871 , is discussed in [a], above.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Laches as Bar to Administrative Mandamus

In San Bernardino Valley Audubon Society v. City of Moreno Valley (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 593, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 the Audubon Society sought a writ of mandate to set aside various approvals by a city for a proposed development project. The Society claimed that the project threatened an endangered species, and thus violated the California Endangered Species Act. The petition originally named the city and the Department of Fish and Game as defendants, and later the society moved to join a local conservation agency and other indispensable parties. The trial court denied the petition on the ground that the issuance of the permit was a legislative act which the trial court would not disturb. The court of appeal affirmed, but on the issue of laches rather than the basis of the trial court's ruling. Citing Vernon Fire Fighters Ass'n v. City of Vernon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 223 Cal. Rptr. 871 , the court stated that laches bars a mandamus action if the petitioner delays in initiating or prosecuting an action, and prejudice to the respondent results (44 Cal. App. 4th 593, 605) . The court noted that there was a delay of well over a year from the execution of the key agency agreement until the Society filed its action, and it was over another year until the conservation agency was joined as a party. The conservation agency presented undisputed evidence of extraordinary prejudice stemming from the delay in initiating a challenge to the agency agreement. Based on this evidence, the court held that anything other than a decision in favor of the conservation agency on the issue of laches would constitute manifest injustice (44 Cal. App. 4th 593, 607). Concluding that the Society's petition was barred by laches, the court affirmed the judgment denying the petition.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
2. Return by Answer

19-195 California Points & Authorities §§ 195.122-195.129

[Reserved]

§§ 195.122[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
3. Other Proceedings Opposing Petition

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.130

§ 195.130 Motion for Summary Judgment Should Be Denied--Questions Not Moot From Compliance With Penalty Provisions of Decision

[1] FORM Motion for Summary Judgment Should Be Denied--Questions Not Moot From Compliance With Penalty Provisions of Decision

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Petitioner,	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
vs.	)	FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Respondent.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]
	)	[Attached Documents: _____]

_____

WHEN A FINAL ADMINISTRATIVE ADJUDICATORY _____ [ORDER or DECISION] IS THE SUBJECT OF JUDICIAL REVIEW AND THE PETITION WAS FILED WHILE A PENALTY IMPOSED BY THE AGENCY WAS IN EFFECT, THE QUESTIONS PRESENTED FOR JUDICIAL DETERMINATION DO NOT BECOME MOOT MERELY BECAUSE THE PENALTY HAS BEEN COMPLIED WITH DURING THE PENDENCY OF THE PROCEEDING.

Compliance With Penalty. When an Administrative decision is under judicial review, the questions presented for the court's determination are not rendered moot merely because the petitioner has meantime complied with a penalty imposed by the agency as part of the decision (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a motion for summary judgment in a mandate proceeding for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision, when the respondent alleges that all questions presented for judicial determination have been rendered moot because of the petitioner's compliance with penalty provisions of the order or decision.

With appropriate modifications, this memorandum may be used to oppose a demurrer to the petition or a motion for judgment on the pleadings in favor of the respondent.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Any statement of fact should be supported by adequate reference to evidence admitted or otherwise cognizable by the court. For further discussion, see § 195.10[2][b].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Compliance With Penalty

Code of Civil Procedure Section 1094.5(g) provides that, when any final administrative order or decision is the subject of proceedings under this section, if the petition has been filed while the penalty imposed is in full force and effect, the determination will not be considered to have become moot in cases when the penalty imposed by the administrative agency has been completed or complied with during the pendency of such proceedings.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
B. Opposition to Petition
3. Other Proceedings Opposing Petition

19-195 California Points & Authorities §§ 195.131-195.139

[Reserved]

§§ 195.131[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
C. Miscellaneous Procedures

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.140

§ 195.140 Order Directing Filing of Record Is Proper--All or Part of Record May Be Filed

[1] FORM Order Directing Filing of Record Is Proper--All or Part of Record May Be Filed

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____ _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF APPLICA-
Respondent.	)	TION FOR ORDER DIRECTING FILING OF AD-)	MINISTRATIVE RECORD
	)

_____

THE COURT MAY ORDER ALL OR PART OF THE RECORD OF THE PROCEEDINGS BEFORE THE _____ [identify agency] TO BE FILED.

Judicial Order to File Record. The record of administrative proceedings resulting in an order or a decision subject to review in a mandate proceeding may be ordered to be filed by the court (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [Petitioner or Respondent]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of an application for a judicial order directing the filing of all or part of the administrative record in a mandate proceeding for review of a final administrative order or decision.

The party intending to use a part of the administrative record in a case brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 must lodge that part of the record at least five days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1140].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, for example, counsel would refer to facts subject to judicial notice, in his or argument that all or part of the administrative record should be filed in the proceeding.

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judicial Order to File Record

Subdivision (a) of Code of Civil Procedure Section 1094.5 provides that all or part of the record of the proceeding before the inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or officer may be filed with the petition, may be filed with respondents' points and authorities, or may be ordered to be filed by the court. Subdivision (a) further provides that when the party seeking the writ has proceeded pursuant to Section 1088.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure (no alternative writ sought and petition not accompanied by proof of service), the administrative record must be filed as expeditiously as possible, and may be filed with the petition, or by the respondent after payment of the costs by the petitioner, when required, or as otherwise directed by the court.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Judicial Order to File Record

Moran v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 301, 196 P.2d 20 , was an appeal from the judgment of the superior court in a mandate proceeding for review of an administrative adjudicatory decision. The petitioner had requested the official reporter to prepare the administrative record, and on appeal the agency argued that this was not compliance with the statutory requirement of requesting "the agency" to prepare the record. However, the court held that the holding of the trial court, to the effect that petitioner's request to the reporter constituted substantial compliance with the statutory provisions, and amounted to a request to the agency, and that the act of the duly appointed reporter in furnishing the transcript was the act of the agency, must be sustained.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
C. Miscellaneous Procedures

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.141

§ 195.141 Motion for Discovery and Augmentation of Record

[1] FORM Motion for Discovery and Augmentation of Record

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION
Respondent.	)	FOR DISCOVERY AND AUGMENTATION OF )	RECORD
	)

_____

THE COURT SHOULD DENY THE MOTION FOR DISCOVERY AND AUGMENTATION OF THE RECORD BECAUSE THE EVIDENCE SOUGHT IS NOT ADMISSIBLE [and/or]_____ [designate moving party, e.g., RESPONDENT] HAS NOT MET THE REQUIREMENTS OF CODE CIV. PROC. § 1094.5(e)

A. Discovery in Mandate Proceedings Must Lead to Admissible Evidence. Although there is no express statutory provision allowing discovery in administrative mandate proceedings, the courts have interpreted Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e) as permitting limited posthearing discovery when the moving party shows that the discovery sought is reasonably calculated to lead to admissible evidence (Pomona Valley Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 93, 102, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743).

B. Discovery Permitted in Mandate Proceedings Only When Strict Requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e) Are Satisfied. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e) the administrative record may not be augmented except by relevant evidence that could not be produced or was improperly excluded at the hearing before the respondent entity. A party moving for discovery and augmentation of the record must establish that one of these exceptions applies (Pomona Valley Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 93, 101, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a motion for discovery and augmentation of the record in a mandate proceeding for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision, when the moving party has failed to demonstrate that the proposed discovery will lead to evidence that can be considered by the reviewing court.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case and explaining why the moving party's proposed evidence should have been discovered and admitted during the administrative proceedings or why the evidence was not improperly excluded below. Factual assertions should be supported by the administrative record or set forth in a declaration supporting the opposition. For information and forms relating to declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For further discussion of procedural issued in administrative mandate proceedings see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions (Matthew Bender).

[d] Opposing Memoranda

For memoranda that may be used to oppose the contentions in this form, see § 195.17, Court May Receive Additional Evidence, above.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discovery Must Lead to Admissible Evidence

In Pomona Valley Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 93, 102, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743 a surgeon, Dr. Bressman, filed a petition for administrative mandate to challenge the decision of a hospital's judicial review committee which suspended him from the hospital's staff. Bressman moved for leave to depose Dr. Knudsen, the former president of the hospital staff, who had initiated the process leading to Bressman's suspension. Bressman sought to depose Knudsen because Knudsen was a competing surgeon practicing the same specialty as Bressman, and had assumed responsibility for those surgeries that would have been Bressman's prior to the suspension.

The trial court granted Bressman's discovery motion, but the Court of Appeal reversed (55 Cal. App. 4th 93, 109). The Court held that the trial court had abused its discretion in granting the motion. Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 gives great deference and respect to administrative orders and finding and sets narrow limits on a party's ability to obtain a new hearing, or to augment the administrative record in a later hearing (55 Cal. App. 4th 93, 101-102). To effectuate those policies and limitations, discovery is permissible in administrative mandate proceedings only when it is reasonably calculated to lead to evidence admissible under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e) (55 Cal. App. 4th 93, 102 ; emphasis in original).

While a deposition of Knudsen could have led to discovery of evidence supporting Bressman's theory that Knudsen initiated the suspension for an improper motive, there was no evidence to show that members of the hospital's judicial review committee were biased against Bressman. Knudsen was not a member of the review committee. The Court held that any evidence of Knudsen's motive was therefore irrelevant and inadmissible on the issue of whether Bressman had received a fair administrative hearing (55 Cal. App. 4th 93, 108-109).

[b] Requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e)

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e) provides "Where the court finds that there is relevant evidence which, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, could not have been produced or which was improperly excluded at the hearing before respondent, it may" remand the case for reconsideration in light of the evidence, or if the independent judgment standard applies, the court may admit and consider the evidence in the administrative mandate proceedings.

Pomona Valley Hospital Medical Center v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 93, 102, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743 is discussed in § 195.141[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
C. Miscellaneous Procedures

19-195 California Points & Authorities §§ 195.142-195.149

[Reserved]

§§ 195.142[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
C. Miscellaneous Procedures

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.150

§ 195.150 Change of Venue Is Justified--Designated Court Is Not Proper

[1] FORM Change of Venue Is Justified--Designated Court Is Not Proper

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR Respondent.	)	CHANGE OF VENUE
	)
	)

_____

THE COURT SHOULD GRANT RESPONDENT'S MOTION FOR CHANGE OF VENUE BECAUSE THE PETITION HAS NOT BEEN FILED IN THE COUNTY IN WHICH THE CAUSE, OR SOME PART THEREOF, AROSE.

A. Motion for Change of Venue in Mandate Proceeding. A motion for a change of venue is proper in a proceeding to obtain a writ of mandate (Code Civ. Proc. § 1109).

B. Motion for Change of Venue. A court may, on motion, change the place of trial when the court designated in the petition is not the proper court (Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a)).

C. Venue in Mandate Proceeding. Venue in a mandate proceeding for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision is governed by Code of Civil Procedure Section 393(1)(b) (Lynch v. Superior Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 929, 930-931, 86 Cal. Rptr. 925).

D. Venue of Action Against Public Officer. The county in which the cause of some part thereof arose is the proper county for trial of a proceeding against a public officer or a person appointed to perform his or her duties, for an act done by him or her in virtue of his or her office, or against a person who, by his command or in his or her aid, does anything touching the duties of such an officer (Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b)).

E. County in Which Cause Arose. The county in which the cause or some part thereof arose, with respect to a mandate proceeding for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision, is the county in which the aggrieved person is directly or most seriously affected by it, such as the county where a licensee has his or her business or where a dismissed public employee was employed (Lynch v. Superior Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 929, 931-933, 86 Cal. Rptr. 925 ; Duval v. Contractors State License Board (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 532, 533-536).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion for a change of venue in a mandate proceeding for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision, when the petition has not been filed in the county in which the petitioner is directly or most seriously affected by the order or decision, such as the county where he or she has his or her business (if regulated by the respondent) or the county where he or she was employed (if he was dismissed from public employment).

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. If counsel is seeking a change of venue on the ground that the petition has not been filed in the county in which the petitioner is directly or most seriously affected by the order or decision, counsel would refer to matters set forth in a declaration supporting the motion. In referring to the declaration, counsel should refer to the specific page and line number in which the relevant facts are stated. Counsel may also refer to facts of which the court must or may take judicial notice to support his or her argument.

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Venue in Mandate Proceeding

Lynch v. Superior Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 929, 86 Cal. Rptr. 925 , was an original proceeding in the court of appeal to compel a change of venue in a superior court mandate proceeding for review of a final administrative adjudicatory decision resulting in the petitioner's dismissal from public employment. The court began its opinion with a statement of the rule set out in Paragraph B.

[b] Venue of Action Against Public Officer

Code of Civil Procedure Section 393(1)(b) provides that, subject to the power of the court to transfer actions and proceedings, the county in which the cause, or some part thereof, arose, is the proper county for the trial of actions against a public officer or person especially appointed to execute his duties, for an act done by him in virtue of his office; or against a person who, by his command or in his aid, does anything touching the duties of such officer.

[c] County in Which Cause Arose

In Lynch v. Superior Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 929, 86 Cal. Rptr. 925 , the superior court proceeding had been begun in Santa Cruz County, and the respondent sought a change of venue to San Francisco where the dismissed employee had been employed. The court of appeal ordered a transfer to San Francisco and stated that, while certain acts which constituted the charges against the petitioner resulting in his dismissal allegedly occurred in counties other than San Francisco, the basis of his cause of action was the dismissal from his job. This took effect at the agency's headquarters in San Francisco, out of which he was employed. Thus, venue was determined by the petitioner's place of employment or center of operation at the time of his dismissal since that is where the state's action interfered with his activities (7 Cal. App. 3d 929, 931-933).

Duval v. Contractors State License Bd. (§ 195 4) 125 Cal. App. 2d 532, 271 P.2d 194 , was an appeal from an order of the superior court for a change of venue in a mandate proceeding for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order revoking a contractor's license. The proceeding had been begun in San Bernardino County, where the contractor had his principal place of business, and it was ordered transferred to Los Angeles County, with which neither the contractor nor the Contractors' State License Board had any relevant connection. The administrative hearing had been held in Riverside County, and the order of revocation had been issued in Sacramento County, where the office of the Registrar of Contractors is located. The court of appeal reversed the order changing venue. In a mandate proceeding to review an administrative order, the effect of which is to deprive a citizen of the right to do business, the proper county for trial is the county in which he carries on the business and in which he will be hurt by enforcement of the order. The court added that such a rule is sound, is in accord with common experience and practice, is of great benefit to the persons most vitally affected, and works no great hardship on the departments and officers of the state (125 Cal. App. 2d 532, 533-536).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] County in Which Cause Arose

In Sutter Union High School Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 795, 190 Cal. Rptr. 182 , a petition for a writ of administrative mandamus was filed by a teacher in Sacramento County, which plaintiff characterized as a nonpartisan county under Code Civ. Proc. § 394(1). The trial court agreed with this assessment in denying the district's motion for change of venue, and the district sought a writ of mandate. The court of appeal granted the writ, holding on page 797 that the proper venue for such an action is the county in which the cause arose [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b)]. The provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 394(1) regarding venue in a nonpartisan county was held to apply only when the action against a local public entity was filed in a proper county in the first instance (140 Cal. App. 3d 795, 797).

Cecil v. Superior Court (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 793, 140 P.2d 125 , was an original proceeding in the court of appeal to restrain a superior court from continuing a mandate proceeding for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order revoking a business license. The superior court proceeding had been begun in Los Angeles County, where the licensee's business was operated, and the respondent had unsuccessfully sought a change of venue to Sacramento County, where the respondent was located. The respondent asserted that denial of the motion for change of venue was improper. The court of appeal did not agree and denied relief, holding that, where a citizen is singled out by a state agency and proceedings are instituted against him or her and result in an order, the effect of which is to deprive him or her absolutely or conditionally of the right to do business, the proper county for redress under Code of Civil Procedure Section 393 is the county in which he or she carries on the business and in which he or she will be hurt by enforcement of the order. A cause of action does not arise in the county in which a state officer happens to affix his or her name to an order which is to become operative in another county.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
C. Miscellaneous Procedures

19-195 California Points & Authorities §§ 195.151-195.159

[Reserved]

§§ 195.151[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19 Chapters 190-195 PRODUCTS LIABILITY---to---PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
CHAPTER 195 PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW
PART II. FORMS
C. Miscellaneous Procedures

19-195 California Points & Authorities § 195.160

§ 195.160 Stay of Operation of Administrative Decision Is Proper--Stay Is Not Against Public Interest

[1] FORM Stay of Operation of Administrative Decision Is Proper--Stay Is Not Against Public Interest

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF APPLICA-
Respondent.	)	TION FOR STAY OF ADMINISTRATIVE DE-)	CISION
	)

_____

THE COURT SHOULD STAY OPERATION OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE ADJUDICATORY _____ [ORDER or DECISION] OF THE _____ [identify agency] PENDING JUDGMENT, BECAUSE THE COURT IN WHICH A PETITION IS FILED MAY DO SO IF THE COURT IS SATISFIED THAT A STAY IS NOT AGAINST THE PUBLIC INTEREST.

Stay of Operation of Administrative Decision. The court in which the petition is filed may stay operation of the administrative order or decision if the court is satisfied that a stay is not against the public interest (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of an application for stay of the operation of an administrative decision while that decision is under review in a mandate proceeding.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. If counsel is referring to matters set forth in a declaration supporting the application, he or she should refer to the specific page and line number in which the relevant facts are stated. Counsel may also refer to facts of which the court must or may take judicial notice to support his or her argument.

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Stay of Operation of Administrative Decision

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g) provides that the court in which proceedings under that section are instituted may stay the operation of the administrative order or decision pending the judgment of the court, or until the filing of a notice of appeal from the judgment or until the expiration of the time for filing such notice whichever occurs first; provided that no such stay will be imposed or continued if the court is satisfied that it is against the public interest.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES

19A-196 California Points & Authorities 196.syn

§ 196.syn Synopsis to Chapter 196: PUBLIC ENTITIES

§ 196.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 196.02 Governing Statutes

§ 196.03 Summary of Procedures in Claims and Actions Against Public Employees and Public Entities

[1] Presentation of Claim

[2] Insufficient Claim

[3] Late Claim

[4] When Cause of Action Accrues

[5] Relief From Failure to Present Claim

[6] Action on Claim

[7] Pleading Presentation and Rejection of Claim; Variance

§ 196.04 General Rule of Nonliability of Public Entities for Torts

§ 196.05 Basis of Liability of Public Employees and Public Entities

[1] Act or Omission

[2] Dangerous Condition of Public Property

[3] Special Relationship

[4] Maintenance of Public Nuisance

§ 196.06 Defense and Indemnification of Public Employees

§ 196.07 Availability of Statutory Immunities and Defenses

§ 196.08 Immunity of Public Entity

[1] When Employee Is Immune

[2] Act or Omission of Independent Contractor for Which Public Entity Is Immune

[3] Injuries by Members of National Guard

[4] Punitive Damages

[5] Adoption or Failure to Adopt or Enforce Law

[6] Acts Relating to Permits, Licenses, Certificates, Approvals, Orders, and Similar Authorizations by Public Entities

[7] Acts Relating to Inspection of Property

[8] Misrepresentations of Employees

[9] Injuries by and to Prisoners

[10] Fire Protection or Firefighting Service Received From Another Public Entity

[11] Injury to Mental Patient

[12] Act Constituting Nuisance

[13] Training Programs for Emergency Medical Services

[14] Peace Officers Conducting Vehicular Pursuit

[15] Peace Officer Employed as Private Security Guard or Patrolman

§ 196.09 Immunity of Public Entity and Employee

[1] Publication of Records Relating to Controlled Substances Violators

[2] Advice to Small Claims Court Litigants

[3] Failure to Restrict or Prohibit Tunnel Traffic of Vehicles Carrying Flammable Liquids

[4] Failure to Provide Police Protection

[5] Failure to Provide Prison, Jail, or Correctional Facilities

[6] Interference With Prisoner's Right to Judicial Determination or Review of Legality of Confinement

[7] Failure to Provide Prisoner With Medical Care

[8] Determinations Relating to Parole or Release of Prisoner and Injuries by Escaping or Escaped Prisoner, Escaping or Escaped Arrestee, or Person Resisting Arrest

[9] Failure to Arrest or Retain Arrested Person in Custody

[10] Failure to Provide Fire Protection Service

[11] Failure to Provide or Maintain Sufficient Personnel, Equipment, or Other Fire Protection Facilities

[12] Condition of Firefighting Equipment or Facilities or Injuries Caused in Fighting Fires

[13] Transportation of Person Injured by Fire

[14] Interference With Right of Medical Facility Inmate to Judicial Determination or Review of Legality of Confinement

[15] Decision Relating to Prevention or Control of Communication of Disease

[16] Failure to Make Adequate Physical or Mental Examination

[17] Diagnosing or Failing to Diagnose Mental Illness or Addiction and Treatment

[18] Determinations With Respect to Confinement of Person for Mental Illness or Addiction

[19] Injury Caused by or to Escaping or Escaped Person Confined for Mental Illness or Addiction

[20] Failure to Admit Person to Public Medical Facility

[21] National Influenza Program of 1976

[22] Acts Relating to Taxes

[23] Activities to Abate Impending Peril

[24] Emergency Medical Instructions

[25] Emergency Medical Services

[26] Emergency Rescue Operations

[27] Abatement of Hazardous Substances

[28] Immunities Under Lanterman-Petris-Short Act

§ 196.10 Immunity of Public Employee

[1] Discretionary Acts

[2] Decisions of Peace Officers or Law Enforcement Officials Not to Render Assistance or Respond to Emergency

[3] Execution or Enforcement of Laws

[4] Acts Under Invalid or Inapplicable Enactment

[5] Acts or Omissions of Others

[6] Local Officials

[7] Adoption or Failure to Adopt or Enforce Enactment

[8] Acts Relating to Permits, Licenses, Certificates, Approvals, Orders, and Similar Authorizations by Public Employees

[9] Failure to Inspect or Negligent Inspection of Property

[10] Institution or Prosecution of Judicial or Administrative Proceeding

[11] Prosecutor Immunity

[12] Entry on Property

[13] Theft of Money From Employee's Custody

[14] Misrepresentations

[15] Emergency Care and Emergency Field Care Treatment at Scene

[16] Operation of Emergency Vehicle

[17] Public Employee Engaged in Rescue of Vessel

[18] Peace Officer for Service of Arrest Warrant

[19] Detention of Patients by Acute Care Hospital

§ 196.11 Dangerous Condition on Property

[1] Availability of Statutory Immunities and Defenses

[a] To Public Entity

[i] Generally

[ii] Dangerous Condition Created by Reasonable Act or Omission of Public Entity

[iii] Public Land Trust

[b] To Public Employee

[i] Generally

[ii] Dangerous Condition Created by Reasonable Act or Omission of Public Employee

[2] Determination That Condition Is Not Dangerous

[3] Potential Damages Limitations in Automobile Accident Cases

§ 196.12 Immunities

[1] Plan or Design

[2] Failure to Provide Traffic or Warning Signals, Signs, Markings, or Devices

[3] Traffic Signals Under Control of Emergency Vehicle

[4] Weather Conditions

[5] Natural Condition of Unimproved Property

[a] Generally

[b] Public Beaches

[c] Land Failure Caused by Natural Condition

[6] Nondedicated Roads

[7] Unpaved Access Roads to and Trails in Recreational and Scenic Areas

[8] Specific Unimproved Lands

[9] Hazardous Recreational Activities

[10] Reservoirs, Canals, Conduits, or Drains

[11] General Recreational Users Immunity

§ 196.13 Terminology Used in This Chapter

[1] "Tort Claims Act"

[2] "Board," "Local Public Entity," and "State"

[3] "Employee"

§ 196.14 Judgment Against Public Entity

[1] Effect of Collateral Source Payments

[2] Satisfaction of Judgment

[a] Award in Excess of $100,000

[b] Periodic Payment of Judgment

§ 196.15 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

[2] Using Forms to Build Draft Memorandum

§ 196.16 Related Pleadings and Practice Forms

§ 196.17 Related Points and Authorities

§§ 196.18-196.29 [Reserved]

§ 196.30 Supporting Contention That Plaintiff's Claim Against Public Entity Is Excepted or Exempt From Claim Filing Provisions [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] of California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6]--Statutory Exceptions [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.1, 905.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Opposing Authorities

[a] Claim Against Local Public Entity by State of California or Other Local Public Entity

§ 196.31 Supporting Contention That Plaintiff's Claim Against Public Entity Is Excepted or Exempt from Claim Filing Provisions [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] of California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6]--Money Recovery Is Incidental to Other Judicial Relief Sought

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Monetary Claim Incidental to Other Judicial Relief Sought

[b] Action for Return of Property Wrongfully Withheld

[c] Mandate Proceeding for Reinstatement to Job and Back Pay

[d] Action for Injunctive Relief and Damages for Violation of Fair Employment and Housing Act

[e] Proceeding to Compel State Officer to Perform Express Statutory Duty to Pay Money

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action for Return of Property Wrongfully Withheld

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Monetary Relief Incidental to Other Judicial Relief Sought

[b] Action for Return of Property Wrongfully Withheld

§ 196.32 Supporting Contention That Plaintiff's Claim Against Public Entity Is Excepted or Exempt From Claim Filing Provisions [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] of California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code § 810 et seq.]--Cross Complaint Is Defensive Response to Case Initiated by Public Entity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defensive Cross Complaint in Response to Case Initiated by Public Entity

§ 196.33 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Person Who Sustained Injury, Damage, or Loss Was a Minor [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Computing One-Year Period

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief Is Mandatory

[b] Denial of Relief Is Abuse of Discretion

[c] Effect of Parent's or Attorney's Lack of Diligence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Effect of Parent's or Attorney's Lack of Diligence

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Minor's Right to Relief

§ 196.34 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Person Who Sustained Injury, Damage, or Loss Was Physically or Mentally Incapacitated [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Physical or Mental Incapacity

[b] Denial of Relief Is Abuse of Discretion

§ 196.35 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Person Who Sustained Injury, Damage, or Loss Has Died [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 196.36 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--General Grounds

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Requirement That Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Neglect Be Excusable

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Grounds for Relief

[b] Resolution of Doubts in Favor of Relief

[c] Reasonable Time

[d] Applicability of Case Authority Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 473

[e] Public Entity Has Burden of Showing Prejudice if Relief Is Granted

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Grounds for Relief

[b] Applicability of Case Authority Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 473

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Grounds for Relief

[i] Diligence

[ii] Reasoned Decision Not to Present Claim

[b] Reasonable Time

§ 196.37 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Mistake of Law by Layperson

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Defined

[b] Mistake of Law Made by Lay Person

[c] Honest Mistake

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Honest Mistake

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law

[b] Deliberate Failure to Comply with Claims Statutes

§ 196.38 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Excusable Neglect Caused by Reliance on Investigative Report

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Excusable Neglect Defined

[b] Excusable Neglect of Claimant in Relying on Public Entity's Request to Forgo Action Pending Investigative Report

[c] Excusable Neglect of Attorney's Investigator

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Investigative Mistakes Generally

§ 196.39 Supporting Contention that Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Attorney's Excusable Neglect in Calendaring

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Calendaring Mistake by Attorney as Sufficient

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Calendaring Mistake by Attorney as Sufficient

§ 196.40 Supporting Contention that Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Excusable Neglect Caused by Emotional Trauma or by Inability to Think Clearly Induced by Medication

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Neglect Based on Emotional Trauma

[b] Neglect Based on Inability to Think Clearly Induced by Medication Prescribed for Injury

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Neglect Based on Emotional Trauma

§ 196.41 Supporting Contention that Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Excusable Neglect Caused by Claimant's Fruitless Efforts to Secure Counsel

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Present Timely Claim Resulted From Claimant's Inability to Obtain Legal Counsel Notwithstanding Diligent Efforts to Do So

§§ 196.42-196.59 [Reserved]

§ 196.60 Supporting Contention That Period for Presenting Claim [Gov. Code § 911.2] Was Tolled--Belated Discovery

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Belated Discovery Rule

[b] Showing Required for Rule to Apply

[c] Test for Determining Applicability of Belated Discovery Rule

[d] Test for Determining Reasonable Diligence

[e] When Cause of Action is Preserved by Belated Discovery Rule

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Test for Determining Applicability of Belated Discovery Rule

§ 196.61 Supporting Contention That Requirement for Presenting Claim [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] Was Substantially Met

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance

[b] Substantial Compliance Requires Disclosure of Sufficient Information to Enable Public Entity to Make Adequate Investigation

[c] Filing With Proper Officials

[d] Filing With State Agency Other Than Board of Control

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance

[b] Substantial Compliance Requires Disclosure of Sufficient Information to Enable Public Entity to Make Adequate Investigation

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance

[b] Filing With State Agency Other Than Board of Control

§§ 196.62-196.79 [Reserved]

§ 196.80 Supporting Contention That Claim for Equitable or Partial Equitable Indemnity Was Timely Presented [Gov. Code §§ 901, 911.2]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Indemnity Action by Subrogee

[c] Indemnity Claim Timely Filed

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Equitable Indemnity Action Authorized

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Accrual of Indemnity Cause of Action

§§ 196.81-196.99 [Reserved]

§ 196.100 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Waived Defense--Failure to Give Notice of Insufficiency of Claim [Gov. Code § 910.8] Constitutes Waiver of Defense That Claim Is Insufficient [Gov. Code § 911]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Document Constitutes a Claim for Purpose of Invoking Waiver

[b] Waiver by Failure to Give Notice of Insufficiency

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Waiver by Failure to Give Notice of Insufficiency

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] When Document Constitutes Claim for Purpose of Invoking Waiver

§ 196.101 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Waived Defense--Failure to Give Timely Notice That Claim Was Late [Gov. Code § 911.3(a)] Constitutes Waiver of Defense That Claim Is Not Timely [Gov. Code § 911.3(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Definition of Claim

[b] When Failure to Give Notice Waives Defense That Claim Was Not Timely

§ 196.102 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Claim Is No Defense When Public Agency Failed to Have Required Statement on File in Roster of Public Agencies [Gov. Code § 946.4]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect on Claims Requirement of Public Agency's Failure to File Statement

[b] Effect on Claims Requirement of Public Agency's Filing Substantially Noncomplete Statement

[c] Plaintiff Not Misled by Erroneous Statement

[d] Effect on Late or Inadequate Claim

[e] Effect on Statute of Limitations

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Public Agency Defined

[b] Effect on Statute of Limitations

§ 196.103 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Estopped From Relying on Claimant's Failure to File Claim as Defense to Claimant's Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Estoppel as Applicable to Public Entities

[b] Elements of Estoppel

[c] Factors to Be Considered

[d] Misrepresentation of Need to File Claim

[e] Misleading Advice

[f] Failure to Speak When Under Duty to Speak

[g] Estoppel Appropriate if Employee of Public Entity Threatens Plaintiff to Gain Silence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Estoppel as Applicable to Public Entities

[b] Misleading Advice

§§ 196.104-196.119 [Reserved]

§ 196.120 Supporting Contention That Prematurely Filed Action Is Timely

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Filed Before Claim Denied Is Timely

[b] Action Filed Before Relief From Claim Filing Requirement Is Granted Is Timely

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Action Filed Before Claim Denied Is Timely

§§ 196.121-196.139 [Reserved]

§ 196.140 Supporting Contention That Action Was Timely Filed--Following Rejection of Claim [Gov. Code § 945.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Accrual of Cause of Action

[c] Notice

[d] Plaintiff Imprisoned in State Prison

[e] Intervention

[f] Amended Claim

[g] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within Six Months After Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Timely

[b] Action Filed Within Two Years of Accrual of Cause of Action Is Timely When Proper Written Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Not Given

[c] "Six Months" Is Six Calendar Months or 182 Days, Whichever Is Longer

[d] Action Filed Within Ninety Days After Notice of Intent to Sue Is Timely

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within Six Months After Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Timely

[b] Action Filed Within Two Years of Accrual of Cause of Action Is Timely When Proper Written Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Not Given

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within Six Months After Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Timely

[b] Action Filed Within Two Years of Accrual of Cause of Action Is Timely When Proper Written Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Not Given

§ 196.141 Supporting Contention That Action Was Timely Filed--No Presentation of Claim Required [Gov. Code § 945.8]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Applicable Statute of Limitations

[c] Actions Not Requiring Claim

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When No Claim Required, Action Filed Within Statute of Limitations Applicable to Nonpublic Entity Defendant Is Timely

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] When No Claim Required, Action Filed Within Statute of Limitations Applicable to Nonpublic Entity Defendant Is Timely

§ 196.142 Supporting Contention That Action Was Timely Filed--Following Order Granting Relief From Claim Presentation Requirement [Gov. Code § 946.6(f)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Commencement of Thirty-Day Period

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within 30 Days After Court-Ordered Relief From Claim Requirement Is Timely

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within 30 Days After Court-Ordered Relief From Claim Requirement Is Timely

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within 30 Days After Court-Ordered Relief From Claim Requirement Is Timely

§ 196.143 Supporting Contention That Action Against Public Employee Was Timely Filed [Gov. Code § 950.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Opposing Authorities

[a] Action Against Public Employee Is Timely When Commenced Within Time Applicable to Public Entity

§§ 196.144-196.159 [Reserved]

§ 196.160 Supporting Contention That Action Is Not Barred by Statute of Limitations--Statute Tolled Pending Resolution of Related Administrative Hearing

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Additional Tolling Provisions

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tolling of Statute of Limitations

[b] Tolled Pending Review of Dismissal

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tolling of Statute of Limitations

§ 196.161 Supporting Contention That Action Is Not Barred By Statute of Limitations--Statute Tolled While Related Federal Action Pending

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tolling Statute of Limitations

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tolling Statute of Limitations

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Tolling Statute of Limitations

§ 196.162 Supporting Contention That Action Is Not Barred by Statute of Limitations--Public Entity Estopped From Relying on Statute by Engaging in Settlement Negotiations Throughout Limitations Period

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Public Agency Is Estopped From Asserting Statute of Limitations When It Continued to Engage in Settlement Negotiations

[b] Estoppel Based on Request to Delay Filing Action

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Public Agency Is Estopped From Asserting Statute of Limitations When It Continued to Engage in Settlement Negotiations

§ 196.163 Supporting Contention That Action Is Not Barred by Statute of Limitations--Amended Complaint Relates Back to Timely Filed Original Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Amendment to Substitute Public Employees for Doe Defendants Relates Back

[b] Amendment to Substitute Public Entity for Doe Defendant When Plaintiff Was Ignorant of True Name

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Amendment to Substitute Public Employees for Doe Defendants Relates Back

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Amendment to Substitute Public Employees for Doe Defendants Relates Back

§§ 196.164-196.179 [Reserved]

§ 196.180 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] When Elected Official Must Be Named as Codefendant to Hold Public Entity Liable

[c] Statutory Immunity From Liability

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity

[b] Liability for Tortious Act of Independent Contractor

§ 196.181 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Department of Motor Vehicles Is Liable for Damages Resulting From Department's Negligent Omission of Lienholder's Name From Ownership Certificate [Gov. Code § 818.5]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 196.182 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity Is Liable for Injury Caused by Public Entity's Failure to Discharge Mandatory Duty That Was Designed to Protect Against Risk of That Kind of Injury [Gov. Code § 815.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Pleading the Enactment

[c] Test for Determining Whether Liability May Be Imposed

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability for Breach of Mandatory Duty

[b] Underlying Enactment Need Not Create Private Right of Action

[c] Coroner's Duty to Attempt to Identify Body and Locate Family Member

[d] Liability Based on Police Officer's Failure to Investigate Child Abuse Allegations

[e] Public Entity's Liability for Failure to Require Posting of Payment Bond

[f] Public Entity's Liability for Failure to Ensure Sufficiency of Contractor's Surety

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Liability for Breach of Mandatory Duty

[b] "Enactment" Defined

[c] "Regulation" Defined

§ 196.183 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity and Public Employee Are Liable for Injury Caused by Public Employee's Failure to Summon Medical Care for Prisoner in Custody and in Need of Immediate Medical Care [Gov. Code § 845.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability for Failure to Summon Medical Care

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Liability for Failure to Summon Medical Care

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Liability for Failure to Summon Medical Care

§ 196.184 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Employee Is Liable for Injury to Victim of Fire or Fire Operation Caused by Employee's

Willful Misconduct in Transporting or Arranging for Transportation of Victim to Physician or Hospital [Gov. Code § 850.8]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 196.185 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity That Operates Medical Facility [Gov. Code § 854] Is Liable for Injury Caused by Entity's Failure to Provide Equipment, Personnel, or Facilities Required by Statute or Regulation [Gov. Code § 855]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 196.186 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity Is Liable for Injury Caused by Entity's Use of Pesticide [Gov. Code § 862(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Construction of Gov. Code § 862

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] State Must Adhere to Statutory Notification Requirements

§ 196.187 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity Is Liable for Death or Injury to Person or Property Proximately Caused by Public Employee's Negligent Operation of Motor Vehicle, Including Emergency Vehicle [Veh. Code § 17001]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunities Not Applicable to Liability Under Vehicle Code

[b] Liability When Motor Vehicle Involved Was Emergency Vehicle

[c] Failure of Emergency Vehicle to Sound Siren

[d] Liability When Prisoner Is Negligently Allowed to Steal Emergency Vehicle in Operation

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Liability When Motor Vehicle Involved Was Emergency Vehicle

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Immunities Not Applicable to Liability Under Vehicle Code

§ 196.188 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity Is Liable for Injury Caused by Public Employee's Failure to Act as Reasonably Prudent Person While Engaged in Rescue Following Collision, Accident, or Other Casualty Involving Vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(a), (c)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 196.189 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity That Warned of Danger Causing Need for Rescue Involving Vessel Is Liable for Injury Caused by Public Employee's Gross Negligence During Rescue [Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(a), (c)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 196.190 Supporting Contention That Public Entity is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code § 815.2(a)]--Public Entity is Liable for Discrimination Prohibited by Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12926(d)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Immunities

[a] Public Entity Employer May be Directly Liable for Discrimination Prohibited by Fair Employment and Housing Act

§§ 196.191-196.209 [Reserved]

§ 196.210 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Statutory Immunities

[c] Exclusions From "Property"

[d] Dangerousness of Condition

[i] Generally

[ii] Condition Creating Minor, Trivial, or Insignificant Risk

[iii] Failure to Provide Traffic Control Signals or Signs

[iv] Evidence of Happening of Accident

[v] Evidence of Postaccident Protective Corrective Action by Public Entity

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Its Property

[b] "Dangerous Condition" Defined

[c] Kind of "Due Care" Required

[d] "Constructive Notice" of Public Entity Defined

[e] "Protect Against" Defined

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Its Property

[b] "Dangerous Condition" Defined

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Its Property

[b] "Property" Defined

[c] "Dangerous Condition" Defined

[d] Kind of "Due Care" Required

§ 196.211 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--Public Entity Is Liable Even Though Negligent Act or Omission of Third Party Combined With Dangerous Condition to Cause Plaintiff's Injury

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Limits on Liability When Concurrent Negligence of Two or More Tortfeasors Caused Plaintiff's Injuries

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Third Party's Negligence Does Not Preclude Public Entity's Liability for Injury Caused by Dangerous Condition

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Third Party's Negligence Does Not Preclude Public Entity's Liability for Injury Caused by Dangerous Condition

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Third Party's Negligence Does Not Preclude Public Entity's Liability for Injury Caused by Dangerous Condition

§ 196.212 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--Public Entity Is Liable Even Though Dangerous Condition Was Negligent Use of Property by Third Party With Knowledge of Public Entity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dangerous Condition Caused by Use of Property

[b] Foreseeable Use of Property by Third Person

§ 196.213 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--Public Entity Is Liable Even Though Dangerous Condition Was Caused by Condition on Adjacent Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Public Entity Liable for Dangerous Condition of Its Property Caused by Condition on Adjacent Property

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Public Entity Liable for Dangerous Condition of Its Property Caused by Condition on Adjacent Property

§ 196.214 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--Public Entity Is Liable for Natural Condition of Its Unimproved Property That Injures Adjacent Property or Persons on Adjacent Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability for Injury to Adjacent Property or Person on Adjacent Property Caused by Natural Condition of Public Entity's Unimproved Property

§§ 196.215-196.229 [Reserved]

§ 196.230 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Public Entity to Warn of Known Criminal Activity on Public Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Factors to Consider in Determining Duty

[b] Duty to Protect Person From Misconduct of Third Person

[c] Special Relationship Between Possessor of Land and Invitee

[d] Applicability of General Tort Law to Government Tort Liability

[e] Liability of Public Entity for Criminal Act of Third Party

[f] Determination of Whether Condition Is Dangerous

§ 196.231 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Public Entity or Employee to Warn of Peril Created by Entity and Not Readily Discoverable by Others

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty of Public Entity to Warn of Foreseeable Peril Created by It

[b] Duty of State When Placing Juvenile Parolee in Foster Home

[c] Special Relationship Not Required

§ 196.232 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Public Entity or Employee to Private Citizen Asked to Perform Public Function Involving Foreseeable Risk of Injury

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Special Relationship Exists

[b] Creation of Special Relationship by Asking Private Citizen to Perform Public Function

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Creation of Special Relationship by Asking Private Citizen to Perform Public Function

§ 196.233 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of California Highway Patrol Officer Investigating Plight of Specific Persons on Roadway to Prevent Foreseeable Injury to Persons and Onlookers

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Special Relationship Requirement

[b] Creation of Special Relationship by Investigation and Ascertainment of Foreseeable Danger

§ 196.234 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Law Enforcement Officer to Exercise Reasonable Care for Safety of Persons Whom Officer Stops on Highway

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty Owed to Motorists Stopped by Law Enforcement Officer

§ 196.235 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Public Common Carrier to Exercise Utmost Diligence in Providing Safe Carriage of Passengers [Civ. Code § 2100]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Applicability of Statutory Duty to Public Carriers

[b] Duty to Protect Passengers From Assaults by Fellow Passengers

[c] Liability of Public Carrier for Breach of Duty

§§ 196.236-196.249 [Reserved]

§ 196.250 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Damages Resulting From Entity's Maintenance of Nuisance [Civ. Code § 3479]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Exceptions to Liability for Nuisance

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] California Tort Claims Act Does Not Bar Actions for Nuisance

[b] Pleading Nuisance and Dangerous Condition Alternatively

[c] When Statutory Sanction Will Justify Nuisance

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] California Tort Claims Act Does Not Bar Actions for Nuisance

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] When Statutory Sanction Will Justify Nuisance

§§ 196.251-196.269 [Reserved]

§ 196.270 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Licensing Immunity [Gov. Code § 818.4] Does Not Apply to Issuance of License That Creates Dangerous Condition of Public Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Licensing Immunity Not Applicable if Dangerous Condition Created

§ 196.271 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Licensing [Gov. Code § 818.4] and Enforcement [Gov. Code § 818.2] Immunities Do Not Apply When Public Entity or Employee Has Breached Mandatory Duty [Gov. Code § 815.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Federal Civil Rights Actions

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Licensing Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

[b] Enforcement Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Licensing Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

[b] Enforcement Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Licensing Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

§ 196.272 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Inspection Immunity [Gov. Code § 818.6] Applies Only to Inspections of Physical Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inspection Immunity Only Applicable to Inspections of Physical Property

[b] Inspection Immunity Not Applicable to Inspections of Foster Parents

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inspection Immunity Only Applicable to Inspections of Physical Property

§ 196.273 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Misrepresentation Immunity [Gov. Code § 818.8] Does Not Apply--No Interference With Plaintiff's Financial or Commercial Interests

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Public Employee Immunity

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable Unless Interference Is With Financial or Commercial Interests

[b] No Immunity for Intentional Concealment of Health and Safety Information

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable Unless Interference Is With Financial or Commercial Interests

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable Unless Interference Is With Financial or Commercial Interests

§ 196.274 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Misrepresentation Immunity [Gov. Code § 818.8] Does Not Apply--Claim Based on Contract

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] California Tort Claims Act Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions

[b] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions

§ 196.275 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Prisoner Immunity [Gov. Code § 844.6] Does Not Apply When Neither Plaintiff Nor Person Causing Injury Was Prisoner

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity Is Only Applicable When Either Injured or One Causing Injury Is Prisoner

[b] Detained Person Is Not Prisoner

[c] Minor Committed to Care of Parent Is Not Prisoner

[d] Person Falsely Imprisoned Is Not Prisoner

[e] Parolee Is Not Prisoner

[f] Child Residing With Incarcerated Mother Under Pregnant and Parenting Women's Alternative Sentencing Program Act is Not Prisoner

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Detained Person Is Not Prisoner

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Immunity Is Only Applicable When Either Injured or One Causing Injury Is Prisoner

§ 196.275A Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Parole Decision Immunity [Gov. Code § 845.8(a)] Does Not Apply When Based on Ministerial Act

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Parole Decision Immunity Inapplicable to Ministerial Acts

§ 196.276 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Fire Fighter's Immunity [Gov. Code § 850.4] Does Not Apply--Negligent Actor Omission Unrelated to Fire Fighting

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity for Firefighters Is Not Applicable in Emergency Rescue Unrelated to Fire

[b] Immunity for Firefighters Is Not Applicable Before Fire Starts

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Immunity for Firefighters Is Not Applicable Before Fire Starts

§ 196.277 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Fire Fighter's Immunity [Gov. Code § 850.4] Does Not Apply--Waiver of Immunity by Public Entity or Employee

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Firefighters' Immunity Is Not Applicable After Waiver by Defendant

§ 196.278 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Discretionary Immunity [Gov. Code § 820.2] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Discretionary Act Immunity

[c] Procedural Considerations

[d] Federal Civil Rights Actions

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discretionary Immunity Only Applies to Basic Policy Decisions

[b] Negligent Implementation of Discretionary Decision Is Not Immune

[c] Contents of Discussion With Press Is Not Discretionary

[d] Decision Not to Warn of Latent Danger From Patient Is Not Discretionary

[e] Effectuation of Legislative Policy Is Not Discretionary

[f] Manner of Conducting Police Investigation Is Not Discretionary

[g] Public Official's Duties in Determining Whether Document Recordable Is Not Discretionary

[h] Determination of Fulfillment of Residency Requirements Is Not Discretionary

[i] Notice of Proposed Disposition of Exhibits Used in Criminal Case Is Not Discretionary

[j] Deputy Public Defender Not Immune When Representing Criminal Defendant

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Discretionary Immunity Only Applies to Basic Policy Decisions

[b] Negligent Implementation of Discretionary Decision Is Not Immune

[c] Contents of Discussion With Press Is Not Discretionary

[d] Manner of Conducting Police Investigation Is Not Discretionary

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Discretionary Immunity Only Applies to Basic Policy Decisions

[b] Negligent Implementation of Discretionary Decision Is Not Immune

[c] Manner of Conducting Police Investigation Is Not Discretionary

§ 196.279 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Law Enforcement Immunity [Gov. Code §§ 818.2, 820.4] Does Not Apply in Federal Civil Rights Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Other Immunities

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Enforcement Immunity in Federal Civil Rights Action

§ 196.280 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Law Enforcement Immunity [Gov. Code § 820.4] and Immunity for Instituting or Prosecuting Judicial Proceeding [Gov. Code § 821.6] Do Not Apply in Action for False Arrest or Imprisonment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Conditional Immunity for False Arrest

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Enforcement Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment

[b] No Prosecution Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment

[c] Employing Public Entity Is Derivatively Liable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Enforcement Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment

[b] No Prosecution Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment

§ 196.281 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Immunity for Instituting or Prosecuting Judicial Proceeding [Gov. Code § 821.6] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prosecution Immunity Only Applicable to Malicious Prosecution Action

[b] No Prosecution Immunity When Public Employee Acts Outside Scope of Employment

[c] Scope of Employment

[d] No Prosecution Immunity in Whistle-Blower Actions

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Prosecution Immunity Only Applicable to Malicious Prosecution Action

§ 196.282 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Immunity for Failure to Make to Physical or Mental Examination or for Inadequate Examination [Gov. Code § 855.6] Does Not Apply--Examination Made for Purpose of Treatment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Governmental Immunity for Failure to Conduct Physical or Mental Examination Does Not Apply to Examination for Treatment

§ 196.283 Supporting Contention that Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Immunity Under Emergency Services Act [Gov. Code § 8655] Does Not Apply to Intentional Misrepresentations Related to Physical Safety

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Emergency Services Act Immunity for Intentional Concealment of Known Dangers Which Cause Personal Injuries

§§ 196.284-196.299 [Reserved]

§ 196.300 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Design Immunity [Gov. Code § 830.6] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Required Elements of Design Immunity

[b] Feature That Caused Accident Is Not Part of Approved Design

[c] Adoption of Unreasonable Design

[d] Injury Is Not Caused by Design

[e] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Changed Circumstances Create Dangerous Condition

[f] "Trap" Exception to Design Immunity Is Applicable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Required Elements of Design Immunity

[b] Feature That Caused Accident Is Not Part of Approved Design

[c] Adoption of Unreasonable Design

[d] "Trap" Exception to Design Immunity Is Applicable

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Required Elements of Design Immunity

[b] Adoption of Unreasonable Design

[c] Injury Is Not Caused by Design

[d] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Changed Circumstances Create Dangerous Condition

[e] "Trap" Exception to Design Immunity Is Applicable

§ 196.301 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Immunity for Weather Conditions [Gov. Code § 831] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Effect Not Apparent and Could Not Be Anticipated in Exercise of Due Care

[b] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Dangerous Condition Due to Combination of Weather and Condition of Highway

[c] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Condition Fixed and Predictable

§ 196.302 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Immunity for Natural Conditions [Gov. Code § 831.2] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Injury to Nonuser Caused by Land Failure

[c] Natural Condition of Public Beaches

[d] Hybrid Natural and Artificial Conditions

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Natural Condition Immunity Not Applicable to Improvements

[b] Natural Condition Immunity Not Applicable to Injuries to Nonusers of Adjacent Land

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Natural Condition Immunity Not Applicable to Improvements

§ 196.303 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--General Recreational Users Immunity [Civ. Code § 846] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Recreation User Immunity Not Applicable to Public Entities

§ 196.304 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Traffic Control Sign Immunity [Gov. Code § 830.4] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Traffic Control Sign Immunity Limited to Danger Resulting From Failure to Provide Sign

§ 196.305 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Maintenance of Nondedicated Roads Immunity [Gov. Code § 831.3] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Road Maintenance Immunity

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity for Maintenance of Nondedicated Road Limited to Work Performed With Reasonable Care

§ 196.306 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Immunity for Participation in a Hazardous Recreational Activity [Gov. Code § 831.7] Does Not Apply--Students Engaged in School-Sponsored or Required Activities

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Hazardous Recreational Activities" Immunity Is Inapplicable to Athletic Activities Under Supervision of School Personnel

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] "Hazardous Recreational Activities" Immunity Is Inapplicable to Athletic Activities Under Supervision of School Personnel

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.01

§ 196.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the procedure for submitting a claim against a public entity as a prerequisite for filing an action against that entity. It includes forms of points and authorities supporting the contentions that (1) the action sued on is exempt from the claim-filing requirement [see §§ 196.30, 196.32]; (2) the failure to have presented a timely claim is excused because the person who sustained the injury or loss was a minor [see § 196.33], was mentally or physically incapacitated [see § 196.34], or has died [see § 196.35]; and (3) the failure to have presented a timely claim was excused because of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [see §§ 196.36 -196.41]. It also includes forms of points and authorities supporting the following contentions: (1) that the claims period was tolled because of the plaintiff's belated discovery of the existence of the cause of action [see § 196.60]; (2) that there has been substantial compliance with the claims presentation requirement [see § 196.61]; (3) that a claim for equitable or partial equitable indemnity was timely presented [see § 196.80]; (4) that the failure to give notice of the insufficiency of the claim constitutes a waiver of the defense that the claim was insufficient [see § 196.100]; (5) that the public entity's failure to give timely notice that the claim was late constitutes a waiver of the defense that the claim was not timely [see § 196.101]; (6) that the failure to present a timely claim is no defense when the public agency failed to have the required statement on file in the roster of public agencies [see § 196.102]; and (7) that the public entity is estopped by its conduct from relying on the claimant's failure to have filed a timely claim as a defense to the claimant's action [see § 196.103].

Because authorities opposing the contentions set out in this chapter would not generally be used by private practitioners, they are not set out in opposing forms. Instead, authorities opposing contentions set out in a particular form, if any, are discussed in that form under a heading entitled Opposing Authorities. Authorities included under this heading are provided for informational purposes, to indicate qualifications of or limitations to the authority set out in the form.

This chapter contains forms of points and authorities relating to the timeliness of an action against a public entity under the California Tort Claims Act.

The forms in Part II, B.1. contain points and authorities relating to a complaint filed prior to the time complaints are ordinarily filed and includes a form of contention supporting the timeliness of a complaint that was prematurely filed [see § 196.120].

The forms in Part II, B.2. contain points and authorities relating to compliance with the appropriate statute of limitations. It includes forms of supporting contentions that the complaint was timely filed after rejection of the claim [see § 196.140], when no claim against the public entity was required [see § 196.141], after the court ordered relief from the claim filing requirement [see § 196.142], and in an action against a public employee or former public employee [see § 196.143].

The forms in Part II, B.3. contain points and authorities relating to the timeliness of complaints filed after the statute of limitations has run. It includes forms of contentions supporting the tolling of the statute of limitations pending resolution of a related administrative hearing [see § 196.160] and while a related federal action is pending [see § 196.161]. It also includes forms of contentions that the public entity is estopped from relying on the statute of limitations by engaging in settlement negotiations throughout the limitations period [see § 196.162], and that an amended complaint is timely because it relates back to the original complaint that was timely filed [see § 196.163].

This chapter also discusses the tort liability of public entities and their employees.

The forms in Part II, C.1. contain forms of points and authorities supporting various contentions that a public entity or employee is liable for injury resulting from an act or omission [see §§ 196.180 -196.189].

The forms in Part II, C.2. contain forms of points and authorities supporting various contentions that a public entity or employee is liable for injury resulting from a dangerous condition of the public entity's property [see §§ 196.210 -196.214].

The forms in Part II, C.3. contain forms of points and authorities supporting various contentions that a public entity or employee is liable for injury resulting from the breach of a duty imposed as the result of a special relationship between the injured party and the public entity or the public entity's employee, or a duty imposed as the result of some other special circumstance [see §§ 196.230 -196.235].

Part II, C.4. contains a form of points and authorities supporting the contentions that a public entity is liable for injury resulting from the maintenance of a nuisance on its property [see § 196.250].

The statutory exceptions and immunities to the general liability of public entities and employees are discussed [see §§ 196.07 -196.10; 196.270 -196.306]. It discusses the statutory immunities that operate to insulate a public entity or employee from tort liability for acts or omissions. It includes forms of points and authorities supporting the contention that the following immunities are unavailable: the licensing immunity [see §§ 196.270, 196.271], the inspection immunity [see § 196.272], the misrepresentation immunity [see §§ 196.273, 196.274], the prisonerimmunity [see § 196.275], the firefighter's immunity [see §§ 196.276, 196.277], the immunity for discretionary acts [see § 196.278], the law enforcement and prosecution immunities [see §§ 196.279 -196.281], and the immunity for failure to conduct a physical or mental examination or to conduct an adequate examination [see § 196.282].

For discussion of the general statutory bases for liability of public entities and employees for acts or omissions, see §§ 196.11 -196.12. It includes a discussion of the statutory immunities that operate to insulate a public entity or employee from tort liability for a dangerous condition of public property. It includes forms of points and authorities supporting the contention that the design immunity is not applicable [see § 196.300], that the immunity for weather conditions is not applicable [see § 196.301], that the immunity for natural conditions is not applicable [see § 196.302], that the general recreational users immunity is not applicable [see § 196.303], that the traffic control sign immunity is not applicable [see § 196.304], and that the immunity for maintenance of nondedicated roads does not apply [see § 196.305].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

TortsProcedureCommencement & ProsecutionSurvivalDeath of PlaintiffsTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsTollingGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationTime LimitationsTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsProcedural Requirements

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.02

§ 196.02 Governing Statutes

The statutes of limitations in actions against public entities are set forth in Gov. Code §§ 945.6, 945.8, and 946.6(f). The statute of limitations for bringing an action against a public employee or former public employee is set forth in Gov. Code § 950.6.

The liability of public entities and their employees for injuries caused by an act or omission or a dangerous condition of public property is governed by Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8. However, nothing in these provisions affects liability based on contract or the right to obtain relief other than money or damages against a public entity or public employee [Gov. Code § 814]. Liability for nuisances are governed by Civ. Code §§ 3479-3508.2. The right of an erroneously convicted felon to recover from the state indemnification not exceeding $10,000 for pecuniary injury suffered as a result of the conviction, and the procedure for making the claim are governed by Penal Code §§ 4900-4906.

The general public entity immunities are set forth in Gov. Code §§ 816-818.4, and 818.6-818.9. The general public employee immunities are set forth in Gov. Code §§ 818.7, 818.9 and 820.2-822.2.

Immunities to liability of public entities and employees for injuries resulting from a dangerous condition of property are set forth generally in Gov. Code §§ 830-831.8, 835.4, 840, and 840.6.

The liabilities of public entities and public employees and the immunities protecting them are governed generally by Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8, Health & Safety Code § 25400, and Veh. Code §§ 17000-17004.7. Additional statutory exceptions and immunities are discussed in §§ 196.180[4] and 196.210[5]. Claims and actions against public entities and public employees are governed by Gov. Code §§ 900-996.6. Tort liability under agreements between public entities is covered in Gov. Code §§ 895-895.8 [see First Interstate Bank v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 627, 634, 243 Cal. Rptr. 8] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Real Property LawTortsNuisanceElementsTortsPremises Liability & PropertyGeneral Premises LiabilityDangerous

ConditionsGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationTime LimitationsTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.03

§ 196.03 Summary of Procedures in Claims and Actions Against Public Employees and Public Entities

[1] Presentation of Claim

Except as otherwise expressly provided, a person having a claim against a public entity or public employee for money or damages must present the claim to the public entity as a prerequisite to filing an action on it [Gov. Code §§ 905 (claim against a local public entity), 905.2 (claim against the state of California)]. A claim relating to a cause of action for death or for injury to a person or to personal property or growing crops must be presented within six months after the date the cause of action accrued. A claim relating to any other cause of action must be presented within one year after the date the cause of action accrued [Gov. Code § 911.2(a)].

For purposes of determining whether a claim was presented within the required period, the presentation date is: (1) the date that the claim is submitted with the filing fee; (2) if a fee waiver is granted, the date that the claim was submitted with an affidavit requesting the fee waiver; or (3) if a fee waiver is denied, the date that the claim was submitted with an affidavit requesting the fee waiver, so long as the filing fee is paid within ten calendar days after the mailing of the notice of denial of the fee waiver [Gov. Code § 911.2(b)].

If a claim is filed, it must be acted on within 45 days after its presentation or it is deemed rejected [Gov. Code § 912.4]. If the claim is rejected by action or inaction, written notice must be given warning the claimant of the six-month period for filing a court action [Gov. Code § 913].

A claim must be presented not only for a cause of action sounding in tort, but for a cause of action for breach of contract as well [City of Stockton v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 730, 738, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295, 171 P.3d 20] . However, a local public entity, or a state agency, may include in any written agreement to which the public entity is a party provisions governing the presentation, by or on behalf of any party, of any or all claims arising out of or related to the agreement and the consideration and payment of such claims [Gov. Code §§ 930, 930.2]. Such claims procedures established in the agreement govern the claims to which the agreement relates, although statutory procedures for relief from late claims apply if the agreement requires a claim to be presented less than one year from accrual [Gov. Code § 930.4; see [5], below], and the limitations of Gov. Code §§ 945.6 and 946 apply if the contractual provisions require presentation of a claim prior to suit [Gov. Code § 930.6; see [6], below]. However, other than the required application of those statutory procedures, a claim subject to contractual claims procedures written into a public contract is not subject to the statutory claims presentation requirements of Gov. Code §§ 905 and 910 et seq., unless such a requirement is written into the agreement [Arntz Builders v. City of Berkeley (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 276, 288-291, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605].

[2] Insufficient Claim

Gov. Code §§ 910 and 910.2 prescribe content requirements applicable to claims against public entities. Gov. Code § 910 requires a claim to contain several listed items, including the name and post office address of the claimant and the circumstances of the occurrence or transaction that gave rise to the claim [Gov. Code § 910(a), (c)]. Gov. Code § 910.2 generally requires the claim to be signed, by either the claimant or by another person on the claimant's behalf [Gov. Code § 910.2]. If a public entity receives a claim that fails to comply substantially with the requirements of Gov. Code § 910 or 910.2, the entity may, within 20 days after the claim is presented, give written notice of the insufficiency to the claimant [see Gov. Code § 910.8; see also Gov. Code § 915.4 (manner of giving notice)]. Failure by a public entity to give timely notice of insufficiency may result in waiver of any defense concerning the sufficiency of the claim based on a defect or omission in the claim [see Gov. Code §§ 910.8, 911].

A document presented to a public entity triggers the notice and defense-waiver provisions of Gov. Code §§ 910.8 and 911 if it discloses the existence of a claim that, if not satisfactorily resolved, would result in a lawsuit against the entity [Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 709, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 364 notice as defective claim triggering notice and defense-waiver provisions of Gov. Code §§ 910.8 and 911)].

Not every document is sufficient to trigger the notice and waiver provisions, however. One court held, for example, that a "Patient Problem/Complaint Form," submitted to a hospital quality assurance department, together with a "Supplemental Note" dated a few days later, both of which complained about the quality of medical care, did not constitute substantial compliance with the claims statute, and was insufficient to trigger the notice and defense-waiver provisions of Gov. Code §§ 910.8 and 911. In this case there was a total failure to comply with at least two of the statutory requirements: (1) failure to transmit the document to the statutorily designated agent under Gov. Code § 915, and (2) failure to indicate that a monetary claim was being asserted, as required by Gov. Code § 910(f) [Wood v. Riverside Gen. Hosp. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1116-1119, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 8 (Phillips distinguished)].

[3] Late Claim

Application for leave to present a late claim is provided for in Gov. Code § 911.4. If a claim required by Gov. Code § 911.2 to be presented not later than six months after accrual of the cause of action is presented without the application provided in Gov. Code § 911.4, the public entity may, at any time within 45 days after the claim is presented, give written notice to the person presenting it that the claim was not timely filed and is being returned without further action [Gov. Code § 911.3(a)]. The form of the notice must be substantially in the form set forth in Gov. Code § 911.3(a). Failure to give the notice within 45 days after the claim is presented constitutes a waiver of any defense as to the time limit for presenting the claim, except that no notice need be given and no waiver results when the claim fails to state either an address to which the person presenting it desires notices to be sent or an address of the claimant [Gov. Code § 911.3(b)]. While the failure to give notice constitutes a waiver of any defense that the claim was untimely, it does not constitute a waiver of the defense that the action is barred by the statute of limitations set forth in Gov. Code § 945.6, discussed in § 196.03[6] [County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1283, 1287, 241 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

A document presented to a public entity triggers the notice and defense-waiver provisions of Gov. Code § 911.3 if it discloses the existence of a claim that, if not satisfactorily resolved, would result in a lawsuit against the entity [Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 709, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 (Code Civ. Proc. § 364 notice as defective claim triggering notice and defense-waiver provisions of Gov. Code § 911.3)].

[4] When Cause of Action Accrues

A cause of action accrues on the date it would be deemed to have accrued within the meaning of the statute of limitations that would apply had there been no requirement that a claim be presented to and acted on by the public entity before an action on the cause of action can be commenced. However, the date on which a cause of action for equitable indemnity or partial equitable indemnity accrues against a public entity is the date a defendant is served with the complaint giving rise to the defendant's indemnity claim against the public entity [Gov. Code § 901; see § 196.80].

For purposes of the claim-filing requirements of the Tort Claims Act, a minor's medical malpractice cause of action against a government defendant accrues when the minor's parent or guardian knew or should have known through the exercise of reasonable diligence that a negligent wrongful act of medical care caused the child's injuries [Torres v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 325, 334-335, 257 Cal. Rptr. 211 (holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 is unconstitutional to the extent that it provides different accrual rules for adults and minors); for further discussion of this holding, see Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice].

Courts may also equitably grant additional time for the accrual of molestation claims by minors who, because of their young age, inexperience, ignorance, or other vulnerabilities, were unable at the time of the assault to comprehend the wrongfulness of the conduct [Curtis T. v. County of Los Angeles (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1405, 1421, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 208] . However, an admission by the abused minor that he or she understood at the time of the abuse the wrongfulness of the conduct can defeat an attempt to delay the accrual of the cause of action [S.M. v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2010) 184 Cal. App. 4th 712, 720-721, 109 Cal. Rptr. 3d 270] .

[5] Relief From Failure to Present Claim

If no claim is timely filed and the application for leave to present a late claim [Gov. Code § 911.4] is denied or deemed denied [see Gov. Code § 911.6], the injured person may, if grounds exist, petition the superior court for relief from the claim-presentation requirement [see Gov. Code § 946.6]. The petition must be filed within six months after the application for leave to present a late claim is denied or deemed denied by the publicentity [Gov. Code § 946.6(b)]. The petition for relief necessarily places in issue the date the cause of action accrued, which question is resolved in a nonjury proceeding [Reyes v. County of Los Angeles (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 584, 595, 243 Cal. Rptr. 35] . §§ 196.33-196.41 set out points and authorities that may be used to support this type of petition.

An order denying a petition for leave to file a late claim against a public entity under Gov. Code 946.6 is appealable. An order granting relief is not appealable but may be reviewed on appeal by the public entity from an adverse judgment on the merits [County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 622, 242 Cal. Rptr. 215] . Moreover, an order granting relief may be reviewed by a petition for writ of mandate when that extraordinary relief may prevent a needless and expensive trial [County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 623, 242 Cal. Rptr. 215] .

[6] Action on Claim

Except as provided in Gov. Code § 946.4 (failure to have a proper statement on file in the Roster of Public Agencies) [see § 196.102] and in Gov. Code § 946.6 [see § 196.03[5]], no suit for money or damages can be brought against a public entity or employee unless a claim is presented to, and is acted on or deemed rejected by, the public entity [Gov. Code §§ 945.4, 950.2]. Thus, the failure to file a claim when one is required is normally fatal to the cause of action [City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 447, 454, 115 Cal. Rptr. 797, 525 P.2d 701] . However, a workers' compensation carrier, which has paid compensation benefits to an injured worker and seeks to intervene in the injured worker's action against a public entity that is alleged to be a third-party tortfeasor, is entitled to use the tort claim filed by the injured worker to satisfy its own claim filing requirement under the California Tort Claims Act [San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. Superior Court (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 843, 845, 847-852, 243 Cal. Rptr. 163] .

Except as provided in Gov. Code §§ 946.4 and 946.6, and subject to Gov. Code § 945.6(b) (relating to persons sentenced to prison), an action against a public entity or employee must be commenced within six months after the written notice of denial of the claim given in accordance with Gov. Code § 913 or, if written notice is not given, within two years from the date the cause of action accrued [Gov. Code § 945.6(a); see Reyes v. County of Los Angeles (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 584, 595, 243 Cal. Rptr. 35] . When, however, an action against a public entity as a third-party tortfeasor is timely filed by either the injured worker for damages or by the worker's employer or its compensation carrier to recover compensation benefits paid or to be paid to the injured worker, a complaint in intervention by the employer/carrier in the worker's action or by the worker in the employer/carrier's action [see Lab. Code § 3853], as the case may be, is timely even though not filed within the time specified in Gov. Code § 945.6(a) [Home Ins. Co. v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 522, 523-526, 241 Cal. Rptr. 858] .

If the court grants a petition under Gov. Code § 946.6, discussed in § 196.03[5], suit on the cause of action to which the claim relates must be filed in the court within 30 days [Gov. Code § 946.6(f); see Bell v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 438, 441, 444, 241 Cal. Rptr. 796 (prematurely filed complaint complies with 30-day requirement)].

A plaintiff suing a public entity or employee for medical malpractice must meet the three-year limitations period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, and failure to do so will provide a limitations defense for the defendant even if the plaintiff's action is otherwise timely under the Government Claims Act [Roberts v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 474, 481, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 60] . For further discussion, see Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice .

[7] Pleading Presentation and Rejection of Claim; Variance

Because submission of a claim to a public entity is a condition precedent to filing suit against that entity [see Gov. Code § 945.4], the California Supreme Court has held that a plaintiff must allege in the complaint either facts demonstrating that the plaintiff has complied with the claim presentation requirement or facts excusing such compliance [State of California v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1234, 1239-1243, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 534, 90 P.3d 116] . The plaintiff's failure to do so subjects the complaint to a general demurrer for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [State of California v. Superior Court (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1234, 1243, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 534, 90 P.3d 116] .

For the effect of a variance between the claim presented and rejected and the complaint filed, see Stevenson v. San Francisco Hous. Auth. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 269, 275-278, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398 ; Watson v. State of California (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 844-845, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262 ; Donohue v. State of California (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 795, 799, 801, 802-805, 224 Cal. Rptr. 57 ; and Moore v. State of California (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 715, 719-720, 722-725, 203 Cal. Rptr. 847 .

For discussion of when a complaint that includes elaboration or addition of detail to a claim will not be construed as a variance of the claim, see White v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1505, 1511, 275 Cal. Rptr. 706 .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsAccrual of ActionsGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationContent & FormTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationTime LimitationsTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsProcedural Requirements

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.04

§ 196.04 General Rule of Nonliability of Public Entities for Torts

All common-law or judicially declared forms of liability for public entities other than liability imposed by the California or United States Constitution (for example, liability for inverse condemnation) are abolished by Gov. Code § 815. Gov. Code § 815 provides that except as otherwise provided by statute, (1) a public entity is not liable for an injury, whether the injury arises out of an act or omission of the public entity or a public employee or any other person [Gov. Code § 815(a); see Fredette v. City of Long Beach (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 129, 231 Cal. Rptr. 598] ; and (2) the liabilityof a public entity established by Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8 is subject to any immunity of the public entity provided by statute and is subject to any defenses that would be available to the public entity if it were a private person [Gov. Code § 815(b); see Harshbarger v. City of Colton (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1339, 243 Cal. Rptr. 463] . Thus, Gov. Code § 815 restores sovereign immunity in California except as provided in the California Tort Claims Act or in other statutes [Tolan v. State of California ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 980, 983, 986, 161 Cal. Rptr. 307] . That is, in California, all government tort liability must be based on statute, although the statute providing for liability need not be part of the California Tort Claims Act [see, e.g., DeJung v. Superior Court (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 533, 545-547, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99 (Fair Employment and Housing Act applies to public entity employers, making such employers susceptible to direct liability for prohibited discrimination); see Gov. Code § 12926(d)]. Nor must the statute provide on its face that it is applicable to public entities. Rather, a liability is deemed provided by statute if a statute defines the tort in general terms [Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 785 n.2, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907] .

However, a public entity may not be directly liable under general tort principles in the absence of a specific statute that provides that the entity may be liable [Munoz v. City of Union City (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1111-1113, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 521] . Thus, for example, a public entity cannot be held liable under general tort principles for alleged negligence in hiring and supervising its employees, as there is no statutory basis for imposing such liability [de Villers v. County of San Diego (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 238, 252-253, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 253] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsClaims By & AgainstTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunitySovereign

ImmunityTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsExclusions From Liability

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.05

§ 196.05 Basis of Liability of Public Employees and Public Entities

[1] Act or Omission

Basically, a public entity is liable for an injury proximately caused by an act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of his or her employment if the act or omission would have given rise to a cause of action against that employee or his or her personal representative [Gov. Code § 815.2(a)]. A public employee is liable for an injury caused by his or her act or omission to the same extent as a private person and has the same defenses [Gov. Code § 820]. However, special pleading requirements may apply in actions against certain public employees or officers [see Gov. Code § 951]. Points and authorities relating to the general liability of public entities and employees for an act or omission are set forth in § 196.180, with additional points and authorities relating to liability for an act or omission set out in §§ 196.181 -196.189.

Both public employees and public entities are protected from liability by a variety of statutory immunities. The general public entity immunities are set forth in Gov. Code §§ 816-818.4, and 818.6-818.9, and the general public employee immunities are set forth in Gov. Code §§ 818.7, 818.9 and 820.2-822.2. The public employee immunities are important in actions against public entities because the public entity is normally immune from liability if the public employee is immune [Gov. Code § 815.2(b)]. The statutory immunities to general liability of public entities and employees for an act or omission are discussed fully in §§ 196.07-196.10. §§ 196.180-196.189 include forms of points and authorities supporting contentions that a particular immunity does not apply in a given fact situation.

[2] Dangerous Condition of Public Property

A public entity is also liable for injuries resulting from a dangerous condition of its property [Gov. Code § 835]. The liability of public employees for a dangerous condition is set forth in Gov. Code § 840.2. Points and authorities relating to the general liability of public entities and employees for injuries resulting from a dangerous condition of property are set forth in § 196.210, with additional points and authorities relating to liability for a dangerous condition of public property set out in §§ 196.211 -196.214.

The res ipsa loquitur presumption does not satisfy the requirements for holding a public entity liable under Gov. Code § 835(a). Res ipsa loquitur requires the plaintiff to show only that (1) the accident was of a kind ordinarily not occurring in the absence of negligence, (2) the instrumentality of harm was within the defendant's exclusive control, and (3) the plaintiff did not voluntarily contribute to the injuries. By contrast, Gov. Code § 835(a) requires the plaintiff to show that an employee of the public entity created the dangerous condition [Brown v. Poway Unified Sch. Dist. (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 820, 836, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679, 843 P.2d 624] . The term "created" means the sort of involvement by an employee that would justify a presumption of notice on the entity's part; because res ipsa loquitur alone does not establish that level of involvement, it cannot be the basis for dangerous-condition liability [Brown v. Poway Unified Sch. Dist. (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 820, 836-838, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679, 843 P.2d 624] .

Immunities to the liability of public entities and employees for injuries resulting from a dangerous condition of property are set forth generally in Gov. Code §§ 830-831.8, 835.4, 840, and 840.6. These statutory immunities are discussed fully in § 196.12. §§ 196.300-196.306 includes forms of points and authorities supporting contentions that a particular immunity does not apply in a given fact situation.

[3] Special Relationship

An essential element of a cause of action for tort damages is that there be a duty, or obligation, owed by the defendant to the plaintiff [see Civ. Code § 3333]. The duty may arise out of a special relationship between the parties [see Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 203, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894] . Points and authorities supporting the existence of a special relationship in specific fact situations between a public entity or a public employee and a person injured are set forth in §§ 196.230 -196.235.

[4] Maintenance of Public Nuisance

Apart from liability under the California Tort Claims Act, a public entity may be liable for the maintenance of a nuisance on its property. Points and authorities supporting liability for the maintenance of a nuisance is set forth in § 196.250.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Real Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPublic NuisanceTortsNegligenceDutyAffirmative Duty to ActSpecial RelationshipsGovernment OfficialsTortsPremises Liability & PropertyGeneral Premises LiabilityDangerous ConditionsGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsProcedural RequirementsTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsScope of EmploymentTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityVicarious Liability

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.06

§ 196.06 Defense and Indemnification of Public Employees

Defense and indemnification of public employees is covered in Gov. Code §§ 825-825.6. Gov. Code § 995.2(c) allows a public entity to withdraw from the defense of an employee in conflict of interest situations [see Stewart v. City of Pismo Beach (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1600, 1606, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsIndemnityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityVicarious Liability

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.07

§ 196.07 Availability of Statutory Immunities and Defenses

Gov. Code § 815 provides, except as otherwise provided by statute, that (a) a public entity is not liable for an injury, whether such injury arises out of an act or omission of the public entity or a public employee or any other person, and (b) the liability of a public entity established by Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8 is subject to any immunity of the public entity provided by statute and is subject to any defenses that would be available to the public entity if it were a private person.

Gov. Code § 820(b) provides that the liability of a public employee under Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8 is subject to any defenses that would be available to the public employee if he or she were a private person.

For forms of points and authorities supporting contentions that a particular statute applies to impose liability on a public entity or employee for its act or omission, see §§ 196.180 -196.189.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsExclusions From LiabilityTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsScope of Employment

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.08

§ 196.08 Immunity of Public Entity

[1] When Employee Is Immune

Gov. Code § 815.2(b) provides, except as otherwise provided by statute, that a public entity is not liable for an injury resulting from an act or omission of an employee of the public entity where the employee is immune from liability.

[2] Act or Omission of Independent Contractor for Which Public Entity Is Immune

Gov. Code § 815.4, providing that a public entity is liable for injury proximately caused by a tortious act or omission of an independent contractor of the entity to the same extent that the entity would be subject to such liability were it a private person, does not subject the public entity to liability for the act or omission of an independent contractor if the public entity would not have been liable had the act or omission been that of an employee of the public entity.

[3] Injuries by Members of National Guard

Gov. Code § 816 provides that a public entity is not liable for injury arising out of any activity conducted by a member of the California National Guard pursuant to 32 U.S.C.S. §§ 316, 502, 503, 504, or 505 and compensated pursuant to the Federal Tort Claims Act. Moreover, under Mil. & Vet. Code § 392, members of the militia are not liable for any act or acts done by them in active service of the state in performance of their duty. Thus, for example, one court held that the state was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 815.2 and Mil. & Vet. Code § 392 in a wrongful death action brought by the family of a county deputy sheriff who was killed during a drug interdiction operation in the crash of a helicopter that was being flown by an officer of the California National Guard, which provided air support to state and federal law enforcement officials engaged in the operation [see Chester v. State of California (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1002, 1004-1008, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575] .

[4] Punitive Damages

Gov. Code § 818 provides that, notwithstanding any other provision of law, a public entity is not liable for damages awarded under Civ. Code § 3294 (exemplary or punitive damages) or other damages imposed primarily for the sake of example and by way of punishing the defendant. Gov. Code § 818 applies only to punitive damages; it does not prohibit the assessment of civil penalties against a public entity [see Kizer v. County of San Mateo (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 139, 145-150, 279 Cal. Rptr. 318, 806 P.2d 1353 (penalties for noncompliance with Long-Term Care, Health, Safety, and Security Act of 1973 (Health & Safety Code § 1417 et seq.) governing long-term health care facilities); Los Angeles County Metro. Transp. Auth. v. Superior Court (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 261, 270-271, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92 (civil penalty provided by Civ. Code § 52(b)(2) for victims of hate crimes may be imposed against public entity)].

[5] Adoption or Failure to Adopt or Enforce Law

Gov. Code § 818.2 provides that a public entity is not liable for injury caused by adopting or failing to adopt an enactment or by failing to enforce any law [see Nunn v. State of California (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 616, 621, 200 Cal. Rptr. 440, 677 P.2d 846] .

For forms of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 818.2 does not apply, see §§ 196.271 and 196.279.

[6] Acts Relating to Permits, Licenses, Certificates, Approvals, Orders, and Similar Authorizations by Public Entities

Gov. Code § 818.4 provides that a public entity is not liable for an injury caused by the issuance, denial, suspension, or revocation of, or by the failure or refusal to issue, deny, suspend, or revoke, any permit, license, certificate, approval, order, or similar authorization where the public entity or its employee is authorized by enactment to determine whether such authorization should be issued, denied, suspended, or revoked.

For forms of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 818.4 does not apply, see §§ 196.270 and 196.271.

[7] Acts Relating to Inspection of Property

Gov. Code § 818.6 provides that a public entity is not liable for injury caused by its failure to make an inspection, or by reason of making an inadequate or negligent inspection, of any property, other than its property (as defined in Gov. Code § 830(c), relating to dangerous condition of public property) for the purpose of determining whether the property complies with or violates any enactment or contains or constitutes a hazard to health or safety [see Harshbarger v. City of Colton (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1344-1345, 243 Cal. Rptr. 463 ; Cochran v. Herzog Engraving Co. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 405, 411-413, 205 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

For a form of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 818.6 does not apply, see § 196.272.

[8] Misrepresentations of Employees

Gov. Code § 818.8 provides that a public entity is not liable for an injury caused by misrepresentations by its employee, whether or not the misrepresentation is negligent or intentional [see Jopson v. Feather River Air Quality Mgmt. Dist. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 492, 495-499, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506 ; Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 532-533, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; Harshbarger v. City of Colton (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1339-1343, 243 Cal. Rptr. 463] .

For forms of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 818.8 does not apply, see §§ 196.273 and 196.274.

[9] Injuries by and to Prisoners

Gov. Code § 844.6(a) provides that, notwithstanding any other provision in Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8 (relating to tort liability of public entities and employees), and except as provided in Gov. Code §§ 814 (liability based on contract or right to relief other than money or damages), 814.2 (relating to workers' compensation), 845.4 [see § 196.09[6]], and 845.6 [see § 196.09[7]], or in Penal Code §§ 3500-3524 (relating to biomedical and behavioral research), a public entity is not liable for (1) an injury proximately caused by any prisoner (defined in Gov. Code § 844) or (2) an injury to any prisoner.

Gov. Code § 844.6(b) provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 844.6 affects the liability of a public entity under Veh. Code §§ 17000-17004.7, relating to motor vehicles. Gov. Code § 844.6(c) provides that, except for an injury to a prisoner, nothing in Gov. Code § 844.6 prevents recovery from the public entity for an injury resulting from the dangerous condition of public property under Gov. Code §§ 830-840.6 [see §§ 196.11 -196.12]. Gov. Code § 844.6(d) provides that (1) nothing in Gov. Code § 844.6 exonerates a public employee from liability for injury proximately caused by his or her negligent or wrongful act or omission; and (2) the public entity may but is not required to pay any judgment, compromise, or settlement, or may but is not required to indemnify any public employee, in any case where the public entity is immune from liability under Gov. Code § 844.6; except that the public entity shall pay, as provided in Gov. Code §§ 825-825.6, any judgment based on a claim against a public employee who is lawfully engaged in the practice of one of the healing arts under any law of California for malpractice arising from an act or omission in the scope of his or her employment, and shall pay any compromise or settlement of a claim or action, based on the malpractice, to which the public entity has agreed.

For a form of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 844.6 does not apply, see § 196.275.

[10] Fire Protection or Firefighting Service Received From Another Public Entity

Although Gov. Code § 850.6 imposes liability on the public entity providing fire protection or firefighting service outside its regular area for injuries for which liability is imposed by statute caused by its act or omission or the act or omission of its employee [see § 196.180], it also provides that, notwithstanding any other law, the public entity receiving such fire protection or firefighting service is not liable for any act or omission of the public entity providing the service or for any act or omission of an employee of the public entity providing the service.

Gov. Code § 850.6 further provides that (1) the two public entities may by agreement determine the extent, if any, to which the public entityreceiving the service will be required to indemnify the public entity providing the service; and (2) any claims against the state shall be presented to the California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board in accordance with Gov. Code §§ 900-935.7 (relating to claims against public entities) and Gov. Code §§ 940-962 (relating to actions against public entities and public employees).

[11] Injury to Mental Patient

Gov. Code § 854.8(a) provides that, notwithstanding any other provision of Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8 (relating to tort liability of public entities and employees), and except as provided in Gov. Code §§ 814 (liability based on contract or right to relief other than money or damages), 814.2 (relating to workers' compensation), 855 [see § 196.185], and 855.2 [see § 196.09[14]], a public entity is not liable for (1) an injury proximately caused by a patient of a mental institution; or (2) an injury to an inpatient of a mental institution.

Gov. Code § 854.8(b) provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 854.8 affects the liability of a public entity under Veh. Code §§ 17000-17004.7, relating to motor vehicles. Gov. Code § 854.8(c) provides that, except for an injury to an inpatient of a mental institution (defined in Gov. Code § 854.2), nothing in Gov. Code § 854.8 prevents recovery from the public entity for an injury resulting from the dangerous condition of public property under Gov. Code §§ 830-840.6 [see §§ 196.11 -196.12]. Gov. Code § 854.8(d) provides that (1) nothing in Gov. Code § 854.8 exonerates a public employee from liability for injury proximately caused by his or her negligent or wrongful act or omission; and (2) the public entity may but is not required to pay any judgment, compromise, or settlement, or may but is not required to indemnify any public employee, in any case where the public entity is immune from liability under Gov. Code § 854.8; except that the public entity shall pay, as provided in Gov. Code §§ 825-825.6, any judgment based on a claim against a public employee who is lawfully engaged in the practice of one of the healing arts under any law of California for malpractice arising from an act or omission in the scope of his or her employment, and shall pay any compromise or settlement of a claim or action, based on the malpractice, to which the public entity has agreed.

The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 854.8 is jurisdictional and may be raised at any time [see Hata v. Los Angeles County Harbor/UCLA Med. Ctr. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1804, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630] .

[12] Act Constituting Nuisance

Civ. Code § 3482 provides that nothing that is done or maintained under the express authority of a statute can be deemed a nuisance. This provision applies to public entities as well as to others [see Farmers Ins. Exch. v. State of California (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 494, 503, 221 Cal. Rptr. 225 ; see also § 196.250].

[13] Training Programs for Emergency Medical Services

Health & Safety Code § 1799.100 provides in relevant part that in order to encourage local agencies and other organizations to train people in emergency medical services, no local agency, entity of state or local government, or other public organization that sponsors, authorizes, supports, finances, or supervises the training of people, or certifies those people, excluding physicians and surgeons, registered nurses, and licensed vocational nurses, in emergency medical services shall be liable for any civil damages alleged to result from those training programs. Effective January 1, 2009, Health & Safety Code § 1799.100 also provides similar civil immunity from liability for improper training for local agencies, state or local government entities, and private businesses or nonprofit organizations included on the statewide emergency services registry established under Gov. Code § 8588.2 that voluntarily and without expectation and receipt of compensation donate services, goods, labor, equipment, resources, or dispensaries or other facilities in compliance with Gov. Code § 8588.2 [Health & Safety Code § 1799.100].

[14] Peace Officers Conducting Vehicular Pursuit

Effective July 1, 2007, a public agency that adopts and promulgates a written policy on vehicular pursuits that meets specified criteria, and provides regular and periodic training on vehicular pursuits on an annual basis, is immune from liability for civil damages for personal injury, death, or property damage resulting from the collision of a vehicle being operated by an actual or suspected violator of the law who is being, has been, or believes he or she is being or has been, pursued in a motor vehicle by a peace officer employed by the public agency [Veh. Code § 17004.7(b)(1), (g)]. Similar statutory immunity was provided prior to July 1, 2007, although the earlier version of the statute did not impose either a promulgation or training requirement on the public agency, and it imposed less detailed substantive criteria on the adopted policy [see former Veh. Code § 17004.7(b), (c)].

Veh. Code § 17004.7(c) sets forth the minimum standards that must be met by any written policy on vehicular pursuits adopted by the public entity, and Veh. Code § 17004.7(f) provides that a determination of whether the policy adopted, or training implemented, complies with Veh. Code § 17004.7(c) is a question of law for the court [see Brumer v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 983, 987-988, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 515 (although decided under former version of statute, immunity applies when pursuit policy complies with statute, extent to which pursuit policy followed in particular pursuit irrelevant if policy meets statutory criteria)].

The policy must do more than advise officers to exercise their discretion and use their best judgment. Instead, the policy must control and channel the officer's discretion by providing objective standards by which to evaluate whether the pursuit should be initiated or terminated [Ketchum v. State of California (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 957, 966-970, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152 (policy adopted by CHP held to provide adequate guidelines for justification, initiation, and termination of pursuit under former version of Veh. Code § 17004.7)].

Veh. Code § 17004.7(a) provides that the adoption of a policy by a public agency is discretionary and that the immunity provided by Veh. Code§ 17004.7(b) is in addition to any other immunity provided by law.

The statute uses the terms "public entity" and "public agency" interchangeably and both terms include a city [Alcala v. City of Corcoran (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 666, 671, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908] .

[15] Peace Officer Employed as Private Security Guard or Patrolman

Pen. Code § 70(d) provides that a public entity may be liable for the actions of off-duty peace officers who are engaged in casual or part-time employment as security guards or patrolmen for private employers, but only under limited circumstances. For a public entity to be liable for an off-duty officer's tortious conduct while engaged in secondary employment, (1) the peace officer must have been in his or her uniform, (2) the secondary employment must have been approved by the county board of supervisors or city council of the principal employer, or their designees, (3) the wearing of uniforms and equipment must have been approved by the principal employer, and (4) the peace officer must be subject to reasonable rules and regulations of the principal employer [Pen. Code § 70(d)(1); Melendez v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-7, 12, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469 (trial court judgment holding city liable reversed when all conditions of statute were not met)]. However, it should be noted that as of 1997, the principal public employer is required to get an indemnity agreement from the secondary private employer as a condition of approving the casual or part-time employment [Pen. Code § 70(d)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsDamagesPunitive DamagesAvailabilityGovernmental EntitiesTortsPremises Liability & PropertyGeneral Premises LiabilityDefensesFirefighter's RuleTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsEmployeesTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsExclusions From LiabilityTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityVicarious Liability

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.09

§ 196.09 Immunity of Public Entity and Employee

[1] Publication of Records Relating to Controlled Substances Violators

Gov. Code § 818.7 provides that no board, commission, or any public officer or employee of the state of California or of any district, county, city and county, or city is liable for any damage or injury to any person resulting from the publication of any reports, records, prints, or photographs of or concerning any person convicted of violation of any law relating to the use, sale, or possession of controlled substances, when such publication is to school authorities for use in instruction on the subject of controlled substances or to any person when used for the purpose of general education. However, the name of any person concerning whom any such reports, records, prints, or photographs are used shall be kept confidential and every reasonable effort shall be made to maintain as confidential any information which may tend to identify the person.

[2] Advice to Small Claims Court Litigants

Gov. Code § 818.9 provides that a public entity, its employees, and volunteers shall not be liable because of any advice provided to small claims court litigants pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.260, 116.940.

[3] Failure to Restrict or Prohibit Tunnel Traffic of Vehicles Carrying Flammable Liquids

Gov. Code § 821.5 provides that neither a public entity nor an employee acting within the scope of his or her employment is liable for failing to prohibit or restrict the time that cargo tank vehicles required to display flammable liquid placards may travel through a tunnel.

[4] Failure to Provide Police Protection

Gov. Code § 845 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for failure to establish a police department or otherwise provide police protection service or, if police protection service is provided, for failure to provide sufficient police protection service [see Zelig v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1112, 1144-1147, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 43 P.3d 1171 (county not liable for failing to prevent shooting in public courthouse); Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 815, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 (college district not liable for failure to provide police protection to female student for injuries sustained when assaulted while ascending staircase of campus parking lot); Gates v. Superior Court (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 481, 494, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489 (while Gov. Code § 845 applied to complaint for money damages for failure to provide sufficient police protection during riot, immunity is inapplicable to suit for equitable relief); see also Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 203-205, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 (discussing "trilogy of cases" in which court considered duty of care owed by police or correctional officials)].

[5] Failure to Provide Prison, Jail, or Correctional Facilities

Gov. Code § 845.2 provides that except as provided in Gov. Code §§ 830-840.6, relating to dangerous conditions of public property, neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for failure to provide a prison, jail, or penal or correctional facility or, if such facility is provided, for failure to provide sufficient equipment, personnel, or facilities therein.

[6] Interference With Prisoner's Right to Judicial Determination or Review of Legality of Confinement

Gov. Code § 845.4 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee acting within the scope of his or her employment is liable forinterfering with the right of a prisoner to obtain a judicial determination or review of the legality of his or her confinement. Gov. Code § 845.4 further provides, however, that a public employee, and the public entity when the employee is acting within the scope of his or her employment, is liable for injury proximately caused by the employee's intentional and unjustifiable interference with such right, but no cause of action for the injury shall be deemed to accrue until it has first been determined that the confinement was illegal.

[7] Failure to Provide Prisoner With Medical Care

Gov. Code § 845.6 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for injury proximately caused by the failure of the employee to furnish or obtain medical care for a prisoner in his or her custody. Gov. Code § 845.6 further provides, however, that (1) except as otherwise provided in Gov. Code §§ 855.8 and 856 [see § 196.09[17] and [18]], a public employee, and the public entity when the employee is acting within the scope of his or her employment, is liable if the employee knows or has reason to know that the prisoner is in need of immediate medical care and he or she fails to take reasonable action to summon such medical care (see § 196.183); and (2) nothing in Gov. Code § 845.6 exonerates a public employee who is lawfully engaged in the practice of one of the healing arts under any law of California from liability for injury proximately caused by malpractice, or exonerates the public entity from its obligation to pay any judgment, compromise, or settlement that it is required to pay under Gov. Code § 844.6(d) [see § 196.08[9]].

[8] Determinations Relating to Parole or Release of Prisoner and Injuries by Escaping or Escaped Prisoner, Escaping or Escaped Arrestee, or Person Resisting Arrest

Gov. Code § 845.8(a) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for any injury resulting from determining whether to parole or release a prisoner or from determining the terms and conditions of his or her parole or release or from determining whether to revoke the parole or release. Ministerial acts undertaken in the performance of correctional policy decisions are not covered by this immunity, however [Perez-Torres v. State of California (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 136, 144-145, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 155, 164 P.3d 583 (overruling Swift v. Department of Corrections (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 406 , failure to release prisoner after learning wrong man was imprisoned was ministerial act not protected by immunity)].

Gov. Code § 845.8(b) provides immunity for any injury caused by (a) an escaping or escaped prisoner, (b) an escaping or escaped arrested person, or (c) a person resisting arrest. This immunity is absolute in that it encompasses both discretionary and ministerial acts or omissions of public entities and public employees [Ladd v. County of San Mateo (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 913, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 309, 911 P.2d 496 ; Duarte v. City of San Jose (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 654, 161 Cal. Rptr. 140 ; see Whitcombe v. County of Yolo (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 698, 712-713, 141 Cal. Rptr. 189] .

[9] Failure to Arrest or Retain Arrested Person in Custody

Gov. Code § 846 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for injury caused by the failure to make an arrest or by the failure to retain an arrested person in custody [see Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 205-206 n.4, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894] .

[10] Failure to Provide Fire Protection Service

Gov. Code § 850 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for failure to establish a fire department or otherwise to provide fire protection service.

[11] Failure to Provide or Maintain Sufficient Personnel, Equipment, or Other Fire Protection Facilities

Gov. Code § 850.2 provides that neither a public entity that has undertaken to provide fire protection service, nor an employee of the public entity, is liable for any injury resulting from the failure to provide or maintain sufficient personnel, equipment, or other fire protection facilities.

[12] Condition of Firefighting Equipment or Facilities or Injuries Caused in Fighting Fires

Gov. Code § 850.4 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee acting in the scope of his or her employment is liable for any injury resulting from the condition of fire protection or firefighting equipment or facilities or, except as provided in Veh. Code §§ 17000-17004.7, relating to motor vehicles, for any injury caused in fighting fires.

For forms of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 850.4 does not apply, see §§ 196.276 and 196.277.

[13] Transportation of Person Injured by Fire

Gov. Code § 850.8 provides that (1) any member of an organized fire department, fire protection district, or other firefighting unit of either the state of California or any political subdivision, any employee of the Department of Forestry, or any other public employee when acting in the scope of his or her employment, may transport or arrange for the transportation of any person injured by a fire, or by a fire protection operation, to a physician and surgeon or hospital if the injured person does not object to the transportation; and (2) neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for any injury sustained by the injured person as a result of or in connection with that transportation or for any medical, ambulance, or hospital bills incurred by or in behalf of the injured person or for any otherdamages. Gov. Code § 850.8 further provides, however, that a public employee is liable for injury proximately caused by his or her willful misconduct in transporting the injured person or arranging for the transportation [see § 196.184].

[14] Interference With Right of Medical Facility Inmate to Judicial Determination or Review of Legality of Confinement

Gov. Code § 855.2 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee acting within the scope of his or her employment is liable for interfering with the right of an inmate of a medical facility (defined in Gov. Code § 854) operated or maintained by a public entity to obtain a judicial determination or review of the legality of the inmate's confinement. Gov. Code § 855.2 further provides, however, that a public employee, and the public entity when the employee is acting within the scope of his or her employment, is liable for injury proximately caused by the employee's intentional and unjustifiable interference with such right, but no cause of action for the injury shall be deemed to accrue until it has first been determined that the confinement was illegal.

[15] Decision Relating to Prevention or Control of Communication of Disease

Gov. Code § 855.4(a) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for an injury resulting from the decision to perform or not to perform any act to promote the public health of the community by preventing disease or controlling the communication of disease within the community if the decision whether the act was or was not to be performed was the result of the exercise of discretion vested in the public entity or the public employee, whether or not such discretion is abused. Gov. Code § 855.4(b) adds that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for an injury caused by an act or omission in carrying out with due care a decision described in Gov. Code § 855.4(a).

[16] Failure to Make Adequate Physical or Mental Examination

Gov. Code § 855.6 provides that, except for an examination or diagnosis for the purpose of treatment, neither a public entity nor a public employee acting within the scope of his or her employment is liable for injury caused by the failure to make a physical or mental examination, or to make an adequate physical or mental examination, of any person for the purpose of determining whether the person has a disease or physical or mental condition that would constitute a hazard to the health or safety of him or herself or others [see Smith v. County of Kern (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1830-1835, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716 (immunity under Gov. Code § 855.6 did not apply to county hospital's negligent failure to perform test for AIDS virus on blood sample taken from patient for purpose of determining whether plaintiff police officer had been exposed to the virus, because the test was for the purpose of treating plaintiff); see also § 196.282].

[17] Diagnosing or Failing to Diagnose Mental Illness or Addiction and Treatment

Gov. Code § 855.8(a) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee acting within the scope of his or her employment is liable for injury resulting from diagnosing or failing to diagnose that a person is afflicted with mental illness or addiction (defined in Gov. Code § 854.4) or from failing to prescribe treatment for mental illness or addiction. Gov. Code § 855.8(b) provides that a public employee acting within the scope of his or her employment is not liable for administering with due care the treatment prescribed for mental illness or addiction.

Gov. Code § 855.8(c) provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 855.8 exonerates a public employee who has undertaken to prescribe for mental illness or addiction from liability for injury proximately caused by his or her negligence or wrongful act in so prescribing. Gov. Code § 855.8(d) provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 855.8 exonerates a public employee from liability for injury proximately caused by his or her negligent or wrongful act or omission in administering any treatment prescribed for mental illness or addiction.

[18] Determinations With Respect to Confinement of Person for Mental Illness or Addiction

Gov. Code § 856(a) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee acting within the scope of his or her employment is liable for any injury resulting from determining in accordance with any applicable enactment: (1) whether to confine a person for mental illness or addiction (defined in Gov. Code § 854.4) [see also Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 447-448, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 (therapists held immune under this provision from liability for wrongful death of woman killed by man undergoing therapy for failure to confine man after he had confided to therapist his intention to kill the woman)]; (2) the terms and conditions of confinement for mental illness or addiction; and (3) whether to parole, grant a leave of absence to, or release a person confined for mental illness or addiction. Gov. Code § 856(b) further provides that a public employee is not liable for carrying out with due care a determination described in Gov. Code § 856(a).

Gov. Code § 856(c) provides that nothing in Gov. Code §§ 856 exonerates a public employee from liability for injury proximately caused by his or hernegligent or wrongful act or omission in carrying out or failing to carry out any of the determinations made under Gov. Code § 856(a).

[19] Injury Caused by or to Escaping or Escaped Person Confined for Mental Illness or Addiction

Gov. Code § 856.2(a) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for (1) an injury caused by an escaping or escaped person who has been confined for mental illness or addiction, or (2) an injury to, or the wrongful death of, an escaping or escaped person who has been confined for mental illness or addiction.

Gov. Code § 856.2(b) provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 856.2 exonerates a public employee from liability (1) if he or she acted or failed to act because of actual fraud, corruption, or actual malice, or (2) for injuries inflicted as a result of his or her own negligent or wrongful act or omission on an escaping or escaped mental patient in recapturing the patient.

[20] Failure to Admit Person to Public Medical Facility

Gov. Code § 856.4 provides that, except as provided in Gov. Code § 815.6 (relating to mandatory duty of public entity to protect against particular kinds of injuries [see § 196.182]), neither a public entity nor a public employee acting in the scope of his or her employment is liable for an injury resulting from the failure to admit a person to a public medical facility.

[21] National Influenza Program of 1976

Gov. Code § 856.6(a) provides that a public entity, public employee, or volunteer (defined in Gov. Code § 856.6(c)(2)), participating in the National Influenza Program of 1976, shall not be liable for an injury caused by an act or omission in the promotion of a community program (defined in Gov. Code § 856.6(c)(1)) or the administration of vaccine in a community program, including the residual effects of the vaccine, unless the act or omission constitutes willful misconduct.

[22] Acts Relating to Taxes

Gov. Code § 860.2 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for an injury caused by (1) instituting any judicial or administrative proceeding or action for or incidental to the assessment or collection of a tax (defined in Gov. Code § 860), or (2) an act or omission in the interpretation or application of any law relating to a tax.

[23] Activities to Abate Impending Peril

Gov. Code § 866(a) provides that, subject to the provisions of Gov. Code § 866(b) and (c), in the event of public necessity and to avoid impending peril to persons or property as a result of gradual earth movement, a local public entity (as defined in Gov. Code § 900.4) is not liable for damages or injury to persons or property resulting from the impending peril or from any action taken to abate the peril, provided the local public entity has, on the basis of expert opinion or other reasonable basis, done all of the following: (1) found, on the basis of adequate evidence such as expert opinion or otherwise, the existence of the impending peril; (2) determined appropriate remedial action to halt, stabilize, or abate the impending peril; and (3) undertaken to implement the remedial action. "Gradual earth movement" is defined as including, without limitation, perceptible changes in the earth either in a subterranean area or at the surface, or both, which if not arrested or contained will, over a gradual period of time, result in damage to or destruction of underground or aboveground property or harm to persons, but does not include movement which is caused by activity undertaken by a local public entity for purposes other than the abatement of peril caused by gradual earth movement [Gov. Code § 866(a)].

Gov. Code § 866(b) provides that if the local public entity is unable to complete any of the above described three steps because (1) of the cessation of the hazard, (2) the actions cannot be completed before the occurrence of the hazard, or (3) the entity's legislative body reasonably determines that the remedial action will not abate the danger, the immunity nevertheless applies.

Gov. Code § 866(c) provides that the immunity provided in Gov. Code § 866 is in addition to any other immunity provided by law or statute and that any claim of liability based on the impending peril or any action of the local public entity is subject to the immunities and any defenses that would be available to the local public entity if it were a private person.

Gov. Code § 867 provides that an employee of a local public entity is not liable for damages for injury to persons or property resulting from an impending peril or from any action taken to abate the peril pursuant to Gov. Code § 866.

[24] Emergency Medical Instructions

Health & Safety Code § 1799.104 provides that (a) no physician or nurse, who in good faith gives emergency instructions to an individual certified as an emergency medical technician-II or a mobile intensive care paramedic at the scene of an emergency, shall be liable for any civil damages as a result of issuing the instructions, and (b) no emergency medical technician-II or mobile intensive care paramedic rendering care within the scope of his or her duties who, in good faith and in a nonnegligent manner, follows the instructions of a physician or nurse shall be liable for any civil damages as a result of following such instructions.

[25] Emergency Medical Services

Health & Safety Code § 1799.106 provides that, in addition to the provisions of Health & Safety Code § 1799.104 [see § 196.09[24]], and Civ. Code § 1714.2 (immunity to civil liability for cardiopulmonary resuscitation at scene of emergency), and in order to encourage the provision of emergency medical services by firefighters, police officers, or other law enforcement officers, emergency medical technicians I and II, or emergency medical technicians-paramedics, any such person who renders emergency medical services at the scene of an emergency shall only be liable in civil damages for acts or omissions performed in a grossly negligent manner or acts or omissions not performed in good faith, and that a public agency employing such a person shall not be liable for civil damages if the firefighter, police officer, or other such person is not liable [see City of Santa Cruz v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1007, 244 Cal. Rptr. 105 (city lifeguard who was certified emergency medical technician as immune under this section and city as immune)].

[26] Emergency Rescue Operations

Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(a) states that the legislature has found and declared that a threat to the public health and safety exists whenever there is a need for emergency services and that public entities and emergency rescue personnel should be encouraged to provide emergency services, and that, to this end, a qualified immunity from liability shall be provided for public entities and "emergency rescue personnel" (defined in Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(d)) providing "emergency services" (defined in Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(e)).

Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(b) provides that, except as provided in Veh. Code §§ 17000-17004.7 (liability of public entities and employees arising out of operation of motor vehicles), neither a public entity nor emergency rescue personnel shall be liable for any injury caused by an action taken by the emergency rescue personnel acting within the scope of their employment to provide emergency services, unless the action taken was performed in bad faith or in a grossly negligent manner.

Health & Safety Code § 1799.107(c) provides that for the purposes of Health & Safety Code § 1799.107, it shall be presumed that the action taken when providing emergency services was performed in good faith and without gross negligence, and that this presumption shall be one affecting the burden of proof.

The qualified immunity of Health & Safety Code § 1799.107 extends to protect public entities for the allegedly negligent conduct of 911 emergency dispatchers [Eastburn v. Regional Fire Prot. Auth. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1175, 1184-1185, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552, 80 P.3d 656] .

[27] Abatement of Hazardous Substances

Health & Safety Code § 25400 provides a qualified immunity from liability to public entities and specified public employees for injuries caused by their efforts to abate the hazards caused by the discharge, spill, or presence of hazardous substances on public or private property. The immunity is not available when the act or omission taken to abate or attempt to abate a hazard reasonably believed to be an imminent peril to public health and safety was performed in bad faith or in a grossly negligent manner, but there is a presumption that the act or omission was performed in good faith and without gross negligence.

[28] Immunities Under Lanterman-Petris-Short Act

The Lanterman-Petris-Short Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 5000 et seq.), relating to the detention and treatment of mentally disordered and gravely disabled persons, contains a number of statutory immunities.

Welf. & Inst. Code § 5113 provides that, except as otherwise provided in specified code sections, the facility providing treatment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150-5157 (detention of mentally disordered persons for evaluation and treatment), Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5170-5176 (detention of inebriates for evaluation and treatment), Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5250-5259.3 (certification for intensive treatment), Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5260-5268 (additional intensive treatment of suicidal persons), or Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5300-5309 (postcertification procedures for imminently dangerous persons), the superintendent of the facility and his or her designee, or the peace officer responsible for the detainment of the person shall not be civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person released at or before the end of the period for which he or she was admitted pursuant to the provisions of the appropriate statutes.

Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154, relating to mentally disordered persons, provides as follows:

- Notwithstanding Welf. & Inst. Code § 5113 [see § 196.09[28]], if the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152 (relating to evaluation, treatment and care, release, and information on medication side effects) have been met, the professional person in charge of the facility providing 72-hour treatment and evaluation, his or her designee, the medical director of the facility or his or her designee described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5152, the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment, or the psychologist, cannot be held civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person released before the end of the 72 hours pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150-5157.

- The professional person in charge of the facility providing 72-hour treatment and evaluation, his or her designee, the medical director of the facility or his or her designee described in Welf. & Inst. Code§ 5152, the psychiatrist directly responsible for the person's treatment, or the psychologist, cannot be held civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person released at the end of the 72 hours pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150-5157.

- The peace officer responsible for the detainment of the person cannot be civilly or criminally liable for any action by a person released at or before the end of the 72 hours pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5150-5157 [see Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 449-450, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 (campus police officers were immune under this provision from liability for wrongful death of woman killed by man they'd been asked to detain at request of therapist and whom they released after brief confinement because he appeared rational); see also Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 204, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 (discussing Tarasoff)].

Immunities substantially similar to those set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154(a)-(c) are provided in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5173 and 5259.3, and immunities substantially similar to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5154(a) and (b), are set out in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5267 and 5306.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsCourtsSmall Claims CourtsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsClaims By & AgainstTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsExclusions From Liability

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.10

§ 196.10 Immunity of Public Employee

[1] Discretionary Acts

Gov. Code § 820.2 provides that, except as otherwise provided by statute, a public employee is not liable for an injury resulting from his or her act or omission where the act or omission was the result of the exercise of the discretion vested in him or her, whether or not such discretion is abused [see Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 793, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352 ; Whitcombe v. County of Yolo (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 698, 710-713, 141 Cal. Rptr. 189] .

For a form of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 820.2 does not apply, see § 196.278.

[2] Decisions of Peace Officers or Law Enforcement Officials Not to Render Assistance or Respond to Emergency

Gov. Code § 820.25(a) provides that, for the purposes of Gov. Code § 820.2 [see § 196.10[1]], the decision of a peace officer, as defined in Penal Code §§ 830.1 and 830.2, or a state or local law enforcement official, to render assistance to a motorist who has not been involved in an accident or to leave the scene after rendering assistance, on learning of a reasonably apparent emergency requiring his or her immediate attention elsewhere or on instructions from a superior to assume duties elsewhere, shall be deemed an exercise of discretion [see Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 25 & n.5, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137 ; see also § 196.233[3][b]].

Gov. Code § 820.25(b) provides that Gov. Code § 820.25(a) shall not apply if the act or omission occurred pursuant to the performance of a ministerial duty and that, for the purposes of the section, "ministerial duty" is defined as a plain and mandatory duty involving the execution of a set task and to be performed without the exercise of discretion.

[3] Execution or Enforcement of Laws

Gov. Code § 820.4 provides that a public employee is not liable for his or her act or omission, exercising due care, in the execution or enforcement of any law. Gov. Code § 820.4 also provides, however, that nothing in Gov. Code § 820.4

exonerates a public employee from liability for false arrest or false imprisonment.

For forms of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 820.4 does not apply, see §§ 196.279 and 196.280.

[4] Acts Under Invalid or Inapplicable Enactment

Gov. Code § 820.6 provides that if a public employee acts in good faith, without malice, and under the apparent authority of an enactment that is unconstitutional, invalid, or inapplicable, he or she is not liable for an injury caused thereby except to the extent that he or she would have been liable had the enactment been constitutional, valid, and applicable [see, e.g., O'Toole v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 488, 504-509, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 531 (police officers immune from liability for enforcing college's requirement that nonstudents get permit before distributing anti-abortion information on campus)].

[5] Acts or Omissions of Others

Gov. Code § 820.8 provides that except as otherwise provided by statute, a public employee is not liable for an injury caused by the act or omission of another person. Gov. Code § 820.8 further provides, however, that this immunity does not exonerate a public employee from liability for injury proximately caused by his or her own negligent or wrongful act or omission.

[6] Local Officials

Gov. Code § 820.9 provides that members of city councils, mayors, members of boards of supervisors, members of school boards, members of governing boards of other local public entities, and members of locally appointed or elected boards and commissions are not vicariously liable for injuries caused by the act or omission of the public entity. Gov. Code § 820.9 further provides, however, that nothing in Gov. Code § 820.9 (1) exonerates an official from liability forinjury caused by that individual's own wrongful conduct or (2) affects the immunity of any other public official.

[7] Adoption or Failure to Adopt or Enforce Enactment

Gov. Code § 821 provides that a public employee is not liable for injury caused by his or her adoption of or failure to adopt an enactment or by his or her failure to enforce an enactment [see Nunn v. State of California (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 616, 621-622, 200 Cal. Rptr. 440, 677 P.2d 846] .

[8] Acts Relating to Permits, Licenses, Certificates, Approvals, Orders, and Similar Authorizations by Public Employees

Gov. Code § 821.2 provides that a public employee is not liable for an injury caused by his or her issuance, denial, suspension, or revocation of, or by his or her failure or refusal to issue, deny, suspend, or revoke, any permit, license, certificate, approval, order, or similar authorization where he or she is authorized by enactment to determine whether or not such authorization should be issued, denied, suspended, or revoked [see Colome v. State Athletic Comm'n (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1457, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 300] .

[9] Failure to Inspect or Negligent Inspection of Property

Gov. Code § 821.4 provides that a public employee is not liable for injury caused by his or her failure to make an inspection, or by reason of making an inadequate or negligent inspection, of any property, other than the property (as defined in Gov. Code § 830(c), relating to dangerous condition of public property) of the public entity employing the public employee, for the purpose of determining whether the property complies with or violates any enactment or contains or constitutes a hazard to health or safety.

[10] Institution or Prosecution of Judicial or Administrative Proceeding

Gov. Code § 821.6 provides that a public employee is not liable for injury caused by his or her instituting or prosecuting any judicial or administrative proceeding within the scope of his or her employment, even if he or she acts maliciously and without probable cause.

For forms of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 821.6 does not apply, see §§ 196.280 and 196.281.

The test of the application of the immunity is causal connection, not time of occurrence, and the immunity applies even to conduct occurring after termination of the prosecution [Cappuccio, Inc. v. Harmon (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1496, 1498, 257 Cal. Rptr. 4 (inaccurate statements about prosecution made after prosecution were still protected by immunity)].

Persons appointed as deputy district attorneys are protected by prosecutorial immunity under Gov. Code § 821.6, even if there is a ministerial defect in the appointment process, so long as the deputy district attorney acts under color of authority and is performing the proper function of a deputy district attorney at the time [Miller v. Filter (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 652, 666-669, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 671 (deputy district attorneys protected by Gov. Code § 821.6 despite district attorney's failure to file written appointments for deputies with county clerk)]. Prosecutorial immunity protects an appointed deputy district attorney even though the deputy receives no salary from the public entity [Miller v. Filter (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 652, 669-670, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 671] .

[11] Prosecutor Immunity

As a quasi-judicial officer, a prosecutor enjoys absolute immunity while acting within his or her official capacity [Falls v. Superior Court (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1031, 1043, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908] . A prosecutor is acting within his or her official capacity when subpoenaing a witness or preparing for a post-charging hearing by interviewing a witness and encouraging the witness to testify [Falls v. Superior Court (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1031, 1045, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908] .

[12] Entry on Property

Gov. Code § 821.8 provides that a public employee is not liable for injury arising out of his or her entry on any property where the entry is expressly or impliedly authorized by law. Gov. Code § 821.8 further provides, however, that this immunity does not exonerate a public employee from liability for an injury proximately caused by his or her own negligent or wrongful act or omission.

[13] Theft of Money From Employee's Custody

Gov. Code § 822 provides that a public employee is not liable for money stolen from his or her official custody. Gov. Code § 822 further provides, however, that this immunity does not exonerate a public employee from liability if the loss was sustained as a result of his or her own negligent or wrongful act or omission.

[14] Misrepresentations

Gov. Code § 822.2 provides that a public employee acting in the scope of his or her employment is not liable for an injury caused by his or her misrepresentation, whether or not the misrepresentation is negligent or intentional, unless the employee is guilty of actual fraud, corruption, or malice [see Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 533, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; Harshbarger v. City of Colton (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1340, 243 Cal. Rptr. 463] .

[15] Emergency Care and Emergency Field Care Treatment at Scene

Health & Safety Code § 1799.102, as amended effective for actions filed on or after August 6, 2009, provides that medical, law enforcement, and emergency personnel providing emergency medical or nonmedical care in good faith and not for compensation at the scene of an emergency are not liable for any civil damages resulting from any act or omission. The scene of an emergency for these purposes does not include emergency departments and other places where medical care is usually offered [Health & Safety Code § 1799.102(a)]. Under that statute, persons other than medical, law enforcement, and emergency personnel who render emergency medical or nonmedical care or assistance at the scene of an emergency are not to be held liable for civil damages for any act or omission other than an act or omission that constitutes gross negligence or willful or wanton misconduct [Health & Safety Code § 1799.102(b)(2)]. Prior to the 2009 amendment, this statute provided a single, more general immunity for all persons volunteering aid at the scene of an emergency [see former Health & Safety Code § 1799.102], although the California Supreme Court in 2008 had interpreted the protection to apply only to persons rendering medical aid at the scene of a medical emergency [Van Horn v. Watson (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 322, 329-331, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 350, 197 P.3d 164 (pulling injured friend from car involved in accident out of fear that car might explode was not emergency medical care)].

Health & Safety Code § 1799.108 provides that any person who has a certificate issued pursuant to Health & Safety Code §§ 1797-1799.110 from a certifying agency to provide prehospital emergency field care treatment at the scene of emergency, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1799.102, shall be liable for civil damages only for acts or omissions performed in a grossly negligent manner or acts or omissions not performed in good faith.

[16] Operation of Emergency Vehicle

Veh. Code § 17004 provides that a public employee is not liable for civil damages on account of personal injury to or death of any person or damage to property resulting from the operation, in the line of duty, of an authorized emergency vehicle while responding to an emergency call or when in the immediate pursuit of an actual or suspected violator of the law, or when responding to, but not on returning from, a fire alarm or other emergency call.

[17] Public Employee Engaged in Rescue of Vessel

Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(c)(1) provides that an individual employee of a public entity engaged in a rescue pursuant to the Harbors and Navigation Code shall not be a proper party defendant and shall be dismissed on motion, unless the employee has violated a statute other than a statute creating a general obligation to rescue or is guilty of oppression, fraud, malice, or the conscious disregard of the safety of others.

[18] Peace Officer for Service of Arrest Warrant

Civ. Code § 43.55(a) provides that there is no liability on the part of, and no cause of action arises against, a peace officer who makes an arrest pursuant to a warrant of arrest regular on its face if the peace officer in making the arrest acts without malice and in the reasonable belief that the person arrested is the one referred to in the warrant.

[19] Detention of Patients by Acute Care Hospital

Under Health & Safety Code § 1799.111, a licensed acute care hospital as defined by Health & Safety Code § 1250(a), and a licensed acute psychiatric hospital as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1250(b), that are not county-designated facilities pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150, licensed professional staff of those hospitals, or any physician and surgeon providing emergency medical services in any department of those hospitals to a person at the hospital, is not civilly or criminally liable for detaining a person who is subject to detention pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150, if all of the following conditions exist during the detention:

- In the opinion of the treating physician and surgeon, or a clinical psychologist with the medical staff privileges, clinical privileges, or professional responsibilities provided in Health & Safety Code § 1316.5

, the person cannot be safely released from the hospital because the person, as a result of a mental disorder, presents a danger to himself or herself, or others, or is gravely disabled. Gravely disabled means an inability to provide for his or her basic personal needs for food, clothing, or shelter;

- The hospital staff, treating physician and surgeon, or appropriate licensed mental health professional, have made, and documented, repeated unsuccessful efforts to find appropriate mental health treatment for the person;

- The person is not detained beyond 24 hours; and

- There is probable cause for the detention.

Pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1799.111(b), if the person is detained more than eight hours, but less than 24 hours, the following additional conditions must also be met:

- A discharge or transfer for appropriate mental health treatment for the person has been delayed because of the need for continuous and ongoing care, observation, or treatment provided by the hospital; and

- In the opinion of the treating physician and surgeon, or a clinical psychologist with the medical staff privileges or professional responsibilities provided for in Health & Safety Code § 1316.5, the person, as a result of a mental disorder, is still a danger to himself or herself, or others, or is gravely disabled.

Pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1799.111(c), this protection from liability extends to protection from liability for conduct committed by the detained person after that person's release, if the following conditions exist during the detention:

- The person has not been admitted to a licensed general acute care hospital or a licensed acute psychiatric hospital for evaluation and treatment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 5150; and

- The release from the licensed general acute care hospital or the licensed acute psychiatric hospital is authorized by a physician and surgeon or a clinical psychologist with the medical staff privileges or professional responsibilities provided for in Health & Safety Code § 1316.5, who determines, based on a face-to-face examination of the person detained, that the person does not present a danger to himself or herself or others and is not gravely disabled. In order for this protection to extend to a clinical psychologist, the psychologist must have a collaborative treatment relationship with the physician and surgeon. The clinical psychologist may authorize the release of the person from the detention, but only after he or she has consulted with the physician and surgeon. In the event of a clinical or professional disagreement regarding the release of a person subject to the detention, the detention must be maintained unless the hospital's medical director overrules the decision of the physician and surgeon opposing the release. Both the physician and surgeon and the clinical psychologist must enter their findings, concerns, or objections in the person's medical record.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityQualified ImmunityTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunitySovereign ImmunityTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsExclusions From Liability

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.11

§ 196.11 Dangerous Condition on Property

[1] Availability of Statutory Immunities and Defenses

[a] To Public Entity

[i] Generally

Gov. Code § 815 provides that, except as otherwise provided by statute, (1) a public entity is not liable for an injury, whether such injury arises out of an act or omission of the public entity or a public employee or any other person, and (2) the liability of a public entity established by Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8 is subject to any immunity of the public entity provided by statute and is subject to any defenses that would be available to the public entity if it were a private person [see Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 813 n.12, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193] .

For forms of points and authorities supporting contentions that Gov. Code § 835 applies to impose liability on a public entity for injury caused by a dangerous condition of public property, see §§ 196.180 -196.189.

Because Gov. Code § 835 qualifies liability for a dangerous condition of public property by stating that the liability applies "except as provided by statute," some immunity statutes, in addition to those statutes that specifically provide defenses to dangerous-condition liability, may be applicable. For example, immunity under Gov. Code § 855.4 for the failure to prevent the communication of a disease applies to a claim of dangerous condition of public property [Wright v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 683, 688-689, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352] .

[ii] Dangerous Condition Created by Reasonable Act or Omission of Public Entity

Gov. Code § 835.4(a) provides that a public entity is not liable under Gov. Code § 835(a) (dangerous condition created by negligent or wrongful act or omission of public employee within scope of employment) for injury caused by a condition of its property if the public entity establishes that the act or omission that created the condition was reasonable. The reasonableness of the act or omission that created the condition shall be determined by weighing the probability and gravity of potential injury to persons and property foreseeably exposed to the risk of injury against the practicability and cost of taking alternative action that would not create the risk of injury or of protecting against the risk of injury.

Gov. Code § 835.4(b) provides that a public entity is not liable under Gov. Code § 835(b) (public entity had actual or constructive notice of condition in time to protect against it) for injury caused by a dangerous condition of its property if the public entity establishes that the action it took toprotect against the risk of injury created by the condition or its failure to take such action was reasonable. The reasonableness of the action or inaction of the public entity shall be determined by taking into consideration the time and opportunity it had to take action and by weighing the probability and gravity of potential injury to persons and property foreseeably exposed to the risk of injury against the practicability and cost of protecting against the risk of such injury [see Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 813 n.12, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 (discussed in § 196.230); Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 720, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755 (discussed in § 196.211)].

[iii] Public Land Trust

For the purposes of the immunities available under Gov. Code §§ 831.2, 831.4, and 831.7, discussed in § 196.12[7], "public entity" includes a public land trust [see Gov. Code § 831.5(b) (also enumerating conditions for qualification as public land trust)]. "Public entity" also includes a public land trust for purposes of the land failure immunity provided by Gov. Code § 831.25 [see Gov. Code § 831.5(b); see also § 196.12[5][c]].

[b] To Public Employee

[i] Generally

Gov. Code § 840 provides that, except as provided in Gov. Code §§ 840-840.6, a public employee is not liable for injury caused by a condition of public property when the condition exists because of any act or omission of the employee within the scope of his or her employment and that the liability established by Gov. Code §§ 840-840.6 is subject to any immunity of the public employee provided by statute and is subject to any defenses that would be available to the public employee if he or she were a private person.

For forms of points and authorities supporting contentions that Gov. Code § 840.2 applies to impose liability on a public employee for injury caused by a dangerous condition of public property, see § 196.210 et seq.

[ii] Dangerous Condition Created by Reasonable Act or Omission of Public Employee

Gov. Code § 840.6(a) provides that a public employee is not liable under Gov. Code § 840.2(a) (dangerous condition attributable in whole or in substantial part to employee) for injury caused by a dangerous condition of public property if he or she establishes that the act or omission that created the condition was reasonable. The reasonableness of the act or omission that created the condition shall be determined by weighing the probability and gravity of potential injury to persons and property foreseeably exposed to the risk of injury against the practicability and cost of taking alternative action that would not create the risk of injury or of protecting against the risk of injury.

Gov. Code § 840.6(b) provides that a public employee is not liable under Gov. Code § 840.2(b) (public employee had authority, responsibility, and funds to protect against dangerous condition and had actual or constructive notice of condition in time to protect against it) for injury caused by a dangerous condition of public property if he or she establishes that the action taken to protect against the risk of injury created by the condition or the failure to take such action was reasonable. The reasonableness of the inaction or action shall be determined by taking into consideration the time and opportunity the public employee had to take action and by weighing the probability and gravity of potential injury to persons and property foreseeably exposed to the risk of injury against the practicability and cost of protecting against the risk of such injury.

[2] Determination That Condition Is Not Dangerous

In addition to the statutory immunities to liability for injuries caused by a dangerous condition, there are several statutory provisions affecting the determination that a condition is "dangerous" so as to give rise to liability for resulting injuries. These include: Gov. Code § 830.2 (court may examine evidence in first instance and determine as matter of law that condition is too minor, trivial, or insignificant to be dangerous); Gov. Code § 830.4 (condition is not dangerous merely because of failure to provide certain traffic control signals or signs); and Gov. Code § 830.5 (use of evidence of occurrence of accident or postaccident corrective measures to show dangerousness of condition). For further discussion of these provisions, see § 196.210[2][d].

[3] Potential Damages Limitations in Automobile Accident Cases

Civ. Code § 3333.4 may limit the damages that may be recovered from a public entity for an injury sustained in the course of an automobile accident. That statute, adopted as Proposition 213 in the general election of 1996, provides generally that in any action to recover damages arising out of the operation or use of a motor vehicle, a person may not recover noneconomic losses to compensate for pain, suffering, inconvenience, physical impairment, disfigurement, and other nonpecuniary damages if any of the following applies [Civ. Code § 3333.4(a)]:

- At the time of the accident, the injured person was operating the vehicle while under the influence of alcohol or drugs, and was convicted of that offense [see Veh. Code §§ 23152, 23153].

- The injured person was the owner of a vehicle involved in the accident, and the vehicle was not insured as required by the financial responsibility laws [see Veh. Code § 16000 et seq.].

- The injured person was the operator of a vehicle involved in the accident and cannot establish his or her financial responsibility as required by the financial responsibility laws [see Veh. Code § 16000 et seq.].

However, the owner of an uninsured automobile, within the meaning of the financial responsibility laws, may nevertheless recover the noneconomic losses listed above if injured by a motorist who was driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs and who was convicted of that offense [Civ. Code § 3333.4(c); see Veh. Code §§ 23152, 23153].

The California Supreme Court has held that Civ. Code § 3333.4 prevents an uninsured motorist from recovering noneconomic damages from a public entity based on a claim alleging a dangerous condition of public property, or a claim of nuisance, if the claim involves the operation or use of a motor vehicle [Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 276-277, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196] . The Court concluded that those actions fall within the clear, unambiguous language of the statute and that construing the statute to cover those actions against a public entity comports with the initiative's declared intent to prevent people who fail to take personal financial responsibility from seeking unreasonable damages [Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 277, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196] . The Court also noted that public entities are among those directly affected by uninsured motorists, because they are often left to bear the cost of repairs to public property necessitated by an uninsured tortfeasor's acts and financial irresponsibility [Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 276-277, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Real Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPublic NuisanceTortsPremises Liability & PropertyGeneral Premises LiabilityDangerous ConditionsGeneral OverviewTortsPremises Liability & PropertyGeneral Premises LiabilityDefensesGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsExclusions From Liability

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.12

§ 196.12 Immunities

[1] Plan or Design

Gov. Code § 830.6 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for an injury caused by the plan or design of a construction of, or an improvement to, public property when the plan or design has been approved in advance of the construction or improvement by the legislative body of the public entity or by some other body or employee exercising discretionary authority to give such approval, or when the plan or design is prepared in conformity with standards previously so approved, if the trial or appellate court determines that there is any substantial evidence on the basis of which (a) a reasonable public employee could have adopted the plan or design or the standards therefor or (b) a reasonable legislative body or other body or employee could have approved the plan or design or the standards therefor [see Hefner v. County of Sacramento (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1010, 1013-1018, 243 Cal. Rptr. 291] .

Gov. Code § 830.6 also provides that, notwithstanding notice that constructed or improved public property may no longer be in conformity with a plan or design or a standard that reasonably could be approved by the legislative body or other body or employee, this immunity will continue for a reasonable period of time sufficient to permit the public entity to obtain funds for and carry out remedial work necessary to allow the public property to be in conformity with a plan or design approved by the legislative body of the public entity or other body or employee, or with a plan or design in conformity with a standard previously approved by the legislative body or other body or employee. In the event that the public entity is unable to remedy the public property because of practical impossibility or lack of sufficient funds, this immunity shall remain so long as the public entity shall reasonably attempt to provide adequate warnings of the existence of the condition not conforming to the approved plan or design or to the approved standard. Unlike the determination of whether substantial evidence supports the reasonableness of the adoption of the original plan or design, which as noted above is reserved by statute for determination by the court, a plaintiff has a right to have a jury decide whether design immunity has been lost if triable issues of material fact are presented [Cornette v. Department of Transp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 63, 67, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 26 P.3d 332] .

Gov. Code § 830.6 further provides, however, that when a person fails to heed the warning or occupies public property despite the warning, the failure or occupation shall not in itself constitute an assumption of the risk of the danger indicated by the warning.

For a form of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 830.6 does not apply, see § 196.300.

[2] Failure to Provide Traffic or Warning Signals, Signs, Markings, or Devices

Gov. Code § 830.8 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable under Gov. Code §§ 830-840.6 for an injury caused by the failure to provide traffic or warning signals, signs, markings, or devices described in the Vehicle Code.

Gov. Code § 830.8 further provides, however, that nothing in this section exonerates a public entity or public employee from liability for injury proximately caused by such failure if a signal, sign, marking, or device (other than one described in Gov. Code § 830.4, discussed in § 196.11[2]) was necessary to warn of a dangerous condition that endangered the safe movement of traffic and that would not be reasonably apparent to, and would not have been anticipated by, a person exercising due care [see 172 L. Ed. 2d 650, 657-659) ; Kessler v. State of California (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 317, 321-322, 253 Cal. Rptr. 537 ; Hefner v. County of Sacramento (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1017-1018, 243 Cal. Rptr. 291 ; see also Gov. Code §§ 830(b), 835, and 840.2 (discussed in § 196.210); Bunker v. City of Glendale (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328, 168 Cal. Rptr. 565 (discussed in §§ 196.210[3][a], 196.300[4][d])].

However, Gov. Code § 830.8 provides immunity to a public entity for failing to repaint a marked crosswalk after preexisting markings are removed for construction, at least in the absence of any hazardous condition that would not be apparent to pedestrians or motorists using the intersection with due care [Sun v. City of Oakland (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1193, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372 (installation of "bulb out" sidewalk extensions did not make intersection dangerous condition, even when crosswalk markings were removed in process)]. Moreover, a city's failure to comply with the public notice requirements of Veh. Code § 21950.5 prior to removing crosswalk markings does not render the city liable for injury to a pedestrian caused by a motorist who fails to yield the right of way [Sun v. City of Oakland (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1191-1192, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372].

[3] Traffic Signals Under Control of Emergency Vehicle

Gov. Code § 830.9 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for injury caused by the operation or nonoperation of official traffic control signals when controlled by an emergency vehicle in accordance with the provisions of Veh. Code § 25258(a).

[4] Weather Conditions

Gov. Code § 831 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for an injury caused by the effect on the use of streets and highways of weather conditions as such, and that, for the purpose of this provision, the effect on the use of streets and highways of weather conditions includes the effect of fog, wind, rain, flood, ice, or snow, but does not include physical damage to or deterioration of streets and highways resulting from weather conditions.

Gov. Code § 831 further provides, however, that nothing in the section exonerates a public entity or public employee from liability for injury proximately caused by such effect if it would not be reasonably apparent to, and would not be anticipated by, a person exercising due care.

For a form of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 831 does not apply, see § 196.301.

[5] Natural Condition of Unimproved Property

[a] Generally

Gov. Code § 831.2 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for an injury caused by a natural condition of any unimproved public property, including but not limited to any natural condition of any lake, stream, bay, river, or beach [see Mercer v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 158, 164-165, 242 Cal. Rptr. 701 (to qualify public property as improved so as to take it outside natural condition immunity, improvements must change the physical nature or characteristics of the property at the location of the injury to the extent that it can no longer be considered in a natural condition); see also Tessier v. City of Newport Beach (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 310, 313-315, 268 Cal. Rptr. 233 (human-altered conditions that have existed for some years, that merely duplicate models common to nature are still natural conditions); Bartlett v. State of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 392, 395, 397-400, 245 Cal. Rptr. 32 ; Geffen v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 188, 192, 242 Cal. Rptr. 492 ; Osgood v. County of Shasta (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 586, 589, 123 Cal. Rptr. 442] .

In Milligan v. City of Laguna Beach (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 829, 831, 196 Cal. Rptr. 38, 670 P.2d 1121 , this immunity was held to apply only to users of the public property and not to nonusers on adjacent property who are injured [see § 196.213].

For a form of points and authorities supporting the contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 831.2 does not apply, see § 196.301.

[b] Public Beaches

Gov. Code § 831.21(a) provides that public beaches shall be deemed to be in a natural condition and unimproved notwithstanding the provision or absence of public safety services such as lifeguards, police or sheriff patrols, medical services, fire protection services, beach cleanup services, or signs [see City of Santa Cruz v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1007, 244 Cal. Rptr. 105] .

Gov. Code § 831.21(a) further provides, however, that these provisions apply only to natural conditions of public property and shall not limit any liability or immunity that may otherwise exist pursuant to the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6). In addition, Gov. Code § 831.21 applies only to causes of action based on acts or omissions occurring on or after January 1, 1988 [Gov. Code § 831.21(b)].

[c] Land Failure Caused by Natural Condition

Gov. Code § 831.25(a) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for any damage or injury to property, or for emotional distressunless the plaintiff has suffered substantial physical injury, off the public entity's property caused by land failure (defined in Gov. Code § 831.25(c)) of any unimproved public property if the land failure was caused by a natural condition of the unimproved public property. Gov. Code § 831.25(b) provides that, for the purposes of Gov. Code § 831.25, a natural condition exists and property shall be deemed unimproved notwithstanding the intervention of minor improvements made for the preservation or prudent management of the property in its unimproved state that did not contribute to the land failure. Gov. Code § 831.25(e) provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 831.25 shall limit the immunity provided by Gov. Code § 831.2 [see § 196.12[5]], and Gov. Code § 831.25(f) provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 831.25 creates a duty of care or basis of liability for damage or injury to property or of liability for emotional distress.

Conditions that occur in nature, but are produced by a combination of human and natural forces, are natural conditions as a matter of law [Schooler v. State of California (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1009, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343] . In one case, for example, the fact that pedestrian traffic may have added to the corrosive effect of wind, water, and wave action along a bluff adjacent to a state-owned beach did not alter the fact that bluff erosion was a natural condition, precluding the adjacent landowner from successfully prosecuting a tort suit against the state for damage to the lateral support of his own property caused by the erosion [Schooler v. State of California (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1010, 102 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 343] .

Gov. Code § 831.25(d) provides further, however, that Gov. Code § 831.25 shall not benefit any public entity or public employee who had actual notice of probable damage that is likely to occur outside the public property because of land failure and who fails to give a reasonable warning of the danger to the affected property owners. Gov. Code § 831.25(d) also provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for any damage or injury arising from the giving of a warning under Gov. Code § 831.25.

[6] Nondedicated Roads

Gov. Code § 831.3 provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for any injury occurring on account of the grading or the performance of other maintenance or repair on or reconstruction or replacement of any road which has not been officially accepted as a part of the road system under the jurisdiction of the public entity if the grading, maintenance, repair, or reconstruction or replacement is performed with reasonable care and leaves the road in no more dangerous or unsafe condition than it was before the work commenced. No act of grading, maintenance, repair, or reconstruction or replacement within the meaning of Gov. Code § 831.3 shall be deemed to give rise to any duty of the public entity to continue any grading, maintenance, repair, or reconstruction or replacement on any road not a part of the road system under the public entity's jurisdiction. As used in these provisions, "reconstruction or replacement" means reconstruction or replacement performed pursuant to Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 1160-1197 (relating to methods of performing highway work by permanent road divisions).

[7] Unpaved Access Roads to and Trails in Recreational and Scenic Areas

Gov. Code § 831.4 provides that a public entity, public employee, or a grantor of a public easement to a public entity for any of the following purposes is not liable for an injury caused by a condition of:

- Any unpaved road that provides access to fishing, hunting, camping, hiking, riding (including animal and all types of vehicular riding), water sports, or recreational or scenic areas, and that is not a: (1) city street or highway; (2) county, state, or federal highway; or (3) public street or highway of a joint highway district, boulevard district, bridge and highway district, or similar district formed for the improvement or building of public streets or highways;

- Any trail used for the above purposes; and

- Any paved trail, walkway, path, or sidewalk on an easement of way which has been granted to a public entity, which easement provides access to any unimproved property, so long as such public entity shall reasonably attempt to provide adequate warnings of the existence of any condition of the paved trail, walkway, path, or sidewalk that constitutes a hazard to health or safety. Warnings required by this subdivision shall only be required where pathways are paved, and such requirement shall not be construed to be a standard of care for any unpaved pathways or roads [see Astenius v. State of California (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 472, 476, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877 (state immune from liability for death sustained on unpaved trail despite failure to post warnings and regardless of whether state made other improvements to area)].

Gov. Code § 831.4 has been read as embracing three related immunities. Subdivisions (a) and (c) provide immunity for the condition of certain roads and trails that provide "access" to recreational areas. By contrast, the "above purposes" language contained in Gov. Code § 831.4(b) has been construed to provide immunity for injuries caused by a condition of any trail that is used for any of the recreational activities described in Gov. Code § 831.4(a) [Carroll v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 606, 610, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504 (immunity of Gov. Code § 831.4(b) barred liability for injuries suffered by plaintiff while rollerblading on a paved bicycle path in state park); Giannuzzi v. State of California (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 462, 466-467, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 (immunity of Gov. Code § 831.4(b) barred liability for injuries suffered by plaintiff while riding motorcycle on a dirt trail in state park); but see Treweek v. City of Napa (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 221, 232, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 883 (boat ramp, standing alone and not as integral part of trail, was not itself "trail")]. Under this construction, a trail that is intended for one of these recreational purposes need not provide access to anything for the immunity of Gov. Code § 831.4(b) to attach [see Giannuzzi v. State of California (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 462, 465, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335] . Immunity may also extend under Gov. Code § 831.4(b) if the trail is used only for access to a listed recreation and is not used for the actual recreation itself [see Treweek v. City of Napa (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 221, 229, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 883] .

Trail immunity is available under these provisions even when the trail is paved and even when the claim alleges defects in the design or maintenance of the trail [Amberger-Warren v. City of Piedmont (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1084-1085, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 631 (immunity applied when injury was sustained onpaved pathway through public dog park, despite allegations that handrails should have been installed); see also Prokop v. City of Los Angeles (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1341-1342, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 355 (injury allegedly caused by design of access gate to bikeway was covered by trail immunity)].

[8] Specific Unimproved Lands

Gov. Code § 831.6 provides that neither the state of California nor an employee of the state is liable for any injury caused by a condition of the unimproved and unoccupied portions of:

- The ungranted tidelands and submerged lands, and the beds of navigable rivers, streams, lakes, bays, estuaries, inlets, and straits, owned by the state; and

- The unsold portions of the 16th and 36th sections of school lands, the unsold portions of the 500,000 acres granted to the state for school purposes, and the unsold portions of the listed lands selected of the United States in lieu of the 16th and 36th sections and losses to the school grant.

[9] Hazardous Recreational Activities

Gov. Code § 831.7(a) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable to any person who participates in a hazardous recreational activity (defined in Gov. Code § 831.7(b)), including any person who assists the participant, or to any spectator who knew or reasonably should have known that the hazardous recreational activity created a substantial risk of injury to himself or herself and was voluntarily in the place of risk, or having the ability to do so failed to leave, for any damage or injury to property or persons arising out of that hazardous recreational activity.

Gov. Code § 831.7(c) provides further that, notwithstanding the provisions of Gov. Code § 831.7(a), Gov. Code § 831.7 does not limit liability that would otherwise exist for any of the following:

- Failure of the public entity or employee to guard or warn of a known dangerous condition or of another hazardous recreational activity known to the public entity or employee that is not reasonably assumed by the participant as inherently a part of the hazardous recreational activity out of which the damage or injury arose;

- Damage or injury suffered in any case where permission to participate in the hazardous recreational activity was granted for a specific fee; for the purpose of this paragraph, a "specific fee" does not include a fee or consideration charged for a general purpose such as a general park admission charge, a vehicle entry or parking fee, or an administrative or group use application or permit fee, as distinguished from a specific fee charged for participation in the specific hazardous recreational activity out of which the damage or injury arose [see also Perry v. East Bay Regional Park Dist. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1, 13,

45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 477 (when park charged fee specifically for swimming when lifeguards are on duty, specific fee exception to immunity did not apply when swimmer drowned after lifeguards had gone off duty)];

- Injury suffered to the extent proximately caused by the negligent failure of the public entity or public employee to properly construct or maintain in good repair any structure, recreational equipment or machinery, or substantial work improvement used in the hazardous recreational activity out of which the damage or injury arose;

- Damage or injury suffered in any case in which the public entity or employee recklessly or with gross negligence promoted the participation in or observance of a hazardous recreational activity; for the purposes of this paragraph, promotional literature or a public announcement or advertisement that merely describes the available facilities and services on the property does not in itself constitute a reckless or grossly negligent promotion; and

- An act of gross negligence by a public entity or a public employee which is the proximate cause of the injury.

Gov. Code § 831.7(c) further provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 831.7(c) creates a duty of care or basis of liability for personal injury or for damage to personal property.

Gov. Code § 831.7(d) provides that nothing in Gov. Code § 831.7 shall limit the liability of an independent concessionaire, or any person or organization other than the public entity, whether or not the person or organization has a contractual relationship with the public entity to use the public property, for injuries or damages suffered in any case as a result of the operation of a hazardous recreational activity on public property by the concessionaire, person, or organization.

[10] Reservoirs, Canals, Conduits, or Drains

Gov. Code § 831.8(a) provides that, subject to Gov. Code § 831.8(d) and (e), neither a public entity nor a public employee is liable for an injury caused by the condition of a reservoir if at the time of the injury the person was using the property for any purpose other than that for which the public entity intended or permitted the property to be used.

Gov. Code § 831.8(b) provides that, subject to Gov. Code § 831.8(d) and (e), neither an irrigation district nor an employee thereof nor the state of California nor a state employee is liable for an injury caused by the condition of canals, conduits, or drains used for the distribution of water if at the time of the injury the personinjured was using the property for any purpose other than that for which the district or state intended it to be used.

Gov. Code § 831.8(d) provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is exonerated under Gov. Code § 831.8 from liability for injury proximately caused by a dangerous condition of property if:

- The injured person was not guilty of a criminal offense under Penal Code §§ 552-555.5 (relating to trespassing or loitering near posted industrial property) in entering on or using the property;

- The condition created a substantial and unreasonable risk of death or serious bodily harm when the property or adjacent property was used with due care in a manner in which it was reasonably foreseeable that it would be used;

- The dangerous character of the condition was not reasonably apparent to, and would not have been anticipated by, a mature reasonable person using the property with due care; and

- The public entity or the public employee had actual knowledge of the condition and knew or should have known of its dangerous character a sufficient time prior to the injury to have taken measures to protect against the condition.

Gov. Code § 831.8(e) further provides that neither a public entity nor a public employee is exonerated under Gov. Code § 831.8 from liability for injury proximately caused by a dangerous condition of property if:

- The person injured was less than 12 years of age;

- The dangerous condition created a substantial and unreasonable risk of death or serious bodily harm to children under 12 years of age using the property or adjacent property with due care in a manner in which it was reasonably foreseeable that it would be used;

- The person injured, because of immaturity, did not discover the condition or did not appreciate its dangerous character; and

- The public entity or the public employee had actual knowledge of the condition and knew or should have known of its dangerous character a sufficient time prior to the injury to have taken measures to protect against the condition.

An analogous exception to immunity applies to Los Angeles County flood control agencies and water conservation facilities and their employees, although that exception extends to children 16 years old or younger [Gov. Code § 831.8(f)]. The qualified immunity for those agencies, facilities, and employees generally extends to injuries caused by the condition or use of unlined flood control channels or adjacent groundwater recharge spreading grounds if, at the time of injury, the person injured was using the property for any purpose other than that for which the public entity intended it to be used [Gov. Code § 831.8(c)].

[11] General Recreational Users Immunity

Civ. Code § 846, which relieves private property owners from liability for injuries to recreational users in specified instances, does not apply to public entities [see Delta Farms Reclamation Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 699, 707, 190 Cal. Rptr. 494, 660 P.2d 1168] . For a form of points and authorities supporting this contention, see § 196.303. For additional discussion and forms of points and authorities relating to Civ. Code § 846, see Ch. 178, Premises Liability .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsPublic ImprovementsGeneral OverviewTortsPremises Liability & PropertyGeneral Premises LiabilityDangerous ConditionsNatural ConditionsTortsPremises Liability & PropertyGeneral Premises LiabilityPremisesRecreational FacilitiesGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsExclusions From Liability

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.13

§ 196.13 Terminology Used in This Chapter

[1] "Tort Claims Act"

The tort liability of government entities and the requirement for presenting claims prior to suing a public entity for money or damages are covered in Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6, which comprise Division 3.6 of the Government Code. Division 3.6 is entitled "Claims and Actions Against Public Entities and Public Employees." Enacted in 1963 in response to Muskopf v. Corning Hosp. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 211, 11 Cal. Rptr. 89, 359 P.2d 457 , which struck down governmental immunity to tort liability, this division does not have a short title, and the actual title is cumbersome to use. The result has been for the courts and others to refer to the entire division by the short title, "Tort Claims Act" [see, e.g., Milligan v. City of Laguna Beach (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 829, 831, 196 Cal. Rptr. 38, 670 P.2d 1121] , or, to distinguish the California act from the Federal Tort Claims Act, the "California Tort Claims Act" [see, e.g., Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 233 n.5, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713] , or, occasionally, "California's Tort Claims Act" [see, e.g., Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193] .

The short title can, however, be misleading. Division 3.6 is divided into seven parts. Tort liability of public entities and employees is covered in Part 2 (Gov. Code §§ 814-895.8). Part 3 (Gov. Code §§ 900-935.7) deals with claims against public entities and Part 4 (Gov. Code §§ 940-960.8) deals with actions against public entities and employees. Part 3 applies to claims against public entities for "money or damages" (see Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2) and its provisions apply to both tort and contract claims. Thus, Gov. Code § 905, relating to claims against "local" public entities (defined in Gov. Code § 900.4), requires the presentation to the public entity of "all claims for money or damages" except as set forth in the section. Although some of the exceptions relate to specific kinds of contract liability (see Gov. Code § 905(b), (c), (g) and § 196.30), contract liability as a class is not excluded. The specific contract exceptions would not have been necessary if the statute did not otherwise apply to contract claims [see Dilts v. Cantua Elementary Sch. Dist. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 27, 31-32, 234 Cal. Rptr. 612 (judgment of dismissal of complaint for damages for breach of written employment contract affirmed for failure to comply with claim-presentation requirements)]. Gov. Code § 905.2, relating to claims against the "state" (defined in Gov. Code § 900.6) is more precise. It requires the presentation of all claims for money or damages "(1) on express contract, or (2) for an injury for which the state is liable" [Gov. Code § 905.2(b)(3); see, e.g., White v. State of California (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 452, 477, 240 Cal. Rptr. 732] . That is, it expressly covers both contracts and torts. Thus, the title "Tort Claims Act," which suggests that the claims must arise from tort, is misleading. In deference to the court cases using the term, however, this chapter refers to the act as the "Tort Claims Act" or the "California Tort Claims Act," although a more accurate title might be the "California Public Liability Act."

[2] "Board," "Local Public Entity," and "State"

As used in the California Tort Claims Act, the word "board" means, in the case of a local public entity, the entity's governing body or, in the case of the state, the Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board [Gov. Code § 900.2]. The term "local public entity" includes a county, city, district, public authority, public agency, and any other political subdivision or public corporation in the state of California but does not include the state [Gov. Code § 900.4]. The term "State" means the state of California and any office, officer, department, division, bureau, board, commission, or agency of the state claims against which are paid by warrants drawn by the State Controller [Gov. Code § 900.6].

[3] "Employee"

The word "employee," as used in the California Tort Claims Act, includes an officer, judicial officer as defined in Elec. Code § 327, employee, or servant, whether or not compensated, but does not include an independent contractor [Gov. Code § 810.2; see Briggs v. Lawrence (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 605, 618, 281 Cal. Rptr. 578 (salaried full-time public defender engaged in representing assigned clients is public employee, not independent contractor)].

Although the definition of employee may include an employee or servant who is not receiving compensation, unpaid volunteers of public agencies are excluded from the definition of "employee" for workers' compensation purposes. Due to this exclusion, a city was not liable under the doctrine of respondeat superior for the alleged tort of an unpaid volunteer [Munoz v. City of Palmdale (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 367, 368-369, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229 (alleged tortfeasor was volunteer at city's senior center); see Lab. Code § 3352(i)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsEmployeesTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsEntities CoveredTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsProcedural Requirements

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.14

§ 196.14 Judgment Against Public Entity

[1] Effect of Collateral Source Payments

The effect of collateral source payments, as defined in Gov. Code § 985(a), on a judgment against a public entity for personal injury or wrongful death and their pretrial discovery are governed by Gov. Code § 985. For further discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[2] Satisfaction of Judgment

[a] Award in Excess of $100,000

On the entry of a verdict in excess of $100,000 against a public entity in an action for personal injury or wrongful death, the public entity may, within the time set in Code Civ. Proc. § 659 (relating to motion for new trial), make a written request for a mandatory settlement conference for the purpose of discussing available methods by which the judgment will be satisfied. The court shall then set a date for the conference [Gov. Code § 962]. For further discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[b] Periodic Payment of Judgment

A judgment against a public entity may be ordered to be paid by periodic payments only as follows: pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7 (action against health care provider), or Gov. Code § 970.6 (installment payment of judgments against local public entities), or Gov. Code § 984(d) (installment payments when public entity is not insured and judgment exceeds $500,000), or by agreement of the parties [Gov. Code § 984(c)]. For discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 667.7, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice (Matthew Bender). For discussion of Gov. Code §§ 970.6 and 984, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsDamagesCollateral Source RuleGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureSettlementsEnforcementTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.15

§ 196.15 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are pagelimits: supporting and opposing memoranda filed in discovery motion proceedings may not exceed 15 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d), (e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using Forms to Build Draft Memorandum

Forms in this chapter are in the form of contentions based on particular procedural and substantive points of law, and may be combined with each other depending on the facts and issues involved. They may also be combined with any appropriate procedural forms, depending on the context in which they are raised. For example, the forms supporting a contention that a public entity or employee is liable under the circumstances, or that a statutory immunity from liability does not apply, may be raised in the context of opposing or supporting a motion for summary judgment and, in that context, might be combined with appropriate procedural forms in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments . The contentions may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief or be used to research office memoranda and jury instructions. Whatever procedural context or paper is involved, counsel should add argument to the points and authorities being used showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a memorandum of points and authorities or a trial or appellate brief, discussion of drafting requirements and considerations applicable to memoranda generally, and a skeletal form of a complete memoranda, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion

PracticeSupporting MemorandaTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationContent & Form

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.16

§ 196.16 Related Pleadings and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedural guides, and forms for use in claims and actions against public entities and public employees under the California Tort Claims Act and otherwise, see the following chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender):

- Ch. 102, Bridges
- Ch. 246, Emergency Vehicles
- Ch. 257, False Imprisonment
- Ch. 304, Insane and Other Incompetent Persons
- Ch. 340, Libel and Slander
- Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process
- Ch. 391, Nuisance
- Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act
- Ch. 512, Schools

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsPublic ImprovementsBridges & RoadsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsClaims By & AgainstTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsEntities Covered

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.17

§ 196.17 Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing a general demurrer to a complaint based on the ground that the action is barred by a statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

For forms of points and authorities relating to tort liability in general for negligent conduct or for maintaining a nuisance, see respectively Ch. 165, Negligence and Ch. 167, Nuisance . Related forms of points and authorities, that may be useful in particular actions against public entities or employees, may also be found in Ch. 103, False Imprisonment , Ch. 117, Insane and Incompetent Persons: Actions Involving Mental Patients , and Ch. 210, Schools: Actions by Students .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersEducation LawCivil LiabilityGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceElementsTortsIntentional TortsFalse ImprisonmentGeneral OverviewTortsNegligenceActionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.18-196.29

[Reserved]

§§ 196.18[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.30

§ 196.30 Supporting Contention That Plaintiff's Claim Against Public Entity Is Excepted or Exempt From Claim Filing Provisions [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] of California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6]--Statutory Exceptions [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.1, 905.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S CLAIM AGAINST _____ [name of public entity] IS FOR _____ [specify], WHICH IS EXPRESSLY EXCEPTED FROM THE CLAIMS PROVISIONS OF THE CALIFORNIA TORT CLAIMS ACT.

[EITHER]

Claim Against Local Public Entity Relating to Taxes and Assessments. Claims against local public entities under the Revenue and Taxation Code or other statute prescribing procedures for the refund, rebate, exemption, cancellation, amendment, modification, or adjustment of any tax, assessment, fee, or charge, or any portion thereof, or of any penalties, costs, or charges related thereto, are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(a)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity Relating to Mechanics' Liens. Claims against local public entities in connection with which the filing of a notice of lien, statement of claim, or stop notice is required under any provision of law relating to mechanics', laborers', or materialpersons' liens, are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(b)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity by Public Employee for Fees, Salary, or Expenses. Claims against local public entities by public employees for fees, salaries, wages, mileage, or other expenses and allowances are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(c)).

[OR]

Workers' Compensation Claim Against Local Public Entity. Claims against local public entities for which the workers' compensation authorized by Lab. Code § 3200 et seq. is the exclusive remedy are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(d)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity for Public Assistance. Applications or claims against local public entities for any form of public assistance under the Welfare and Institutions Code or other provisions of law relating to public assistance programs and claims for goods, services, provisions, or other assistance rendered for or on behalf of any recipient of any form of public assistance, are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(e)).

[OR]

Retirement or Pension Claim Against Local Public Entity. Applications or claims against local public entities for money or benefits under any public retirement or pension system are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(f)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity on Bonds or Other Evidences of Indebtedness. Claims against local public entities for principal or interest on any bonds, notes, warrants, or other evidences of indebtedness are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(g)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity Relating to Special Assessment Constituting Lien. Claims against local public entities that relate to a special assessment constituting a specific lien against the property assessed and that are payable from the proceeds of the assessment, by offset of a claim for damages against it or by delivery of any warrant or bonds representing it, are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(h)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity by State of California, or Other Local Public Entity. Claims against local public entities by the state of California, by a state department or agency, by another local public entity, or by a judicial branch entity are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(i)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity Under Unemployment Insurance Code. Claims against local public entities arising under any provision of the Unemployment Insurance Code, including but not limited to claims for money or benefits, or for refunds or credits of employer or worker contributions, penalties, or interest, or for refunds to workers of deductions from wages in excess of the amount prescribed, are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(j)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity Under Labor Code for Penalty or Forfeiture. Claims against local public entities for the recovery of penalties or forfeitures made pursuant to Sections 1720-1740 of the Labor Code, relating to public works contracts, are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(k)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity Governed by Pedestrian Mall Law of 1960. Claims against local public entities governed by the Pedestrian Mall Law of 1960, set forth as Sections 11000-11806 of the Streets and Highways Code, are excepted from the claim presentation requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(l)).

[OR]

Claim Against Local Public Entity for Childhood Sexual Abuse. Claims to recover damages for childhood sexual abuse brought pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 340.1 are excepted from the claim presentation requirement set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code, if arising from conduct occurring on or after January 1, 2009 (Gov. Code § 905(m)).

[OR]

Claim Against Sheriff for Failure to Pay Over Money Due to Another. Claims to recover from a sheriff money that has come into the sheriff's possession by virtue of his or her office, that the sheriff neglects or refuses to pay over to the entitled person upon demand under Government Code Section 26680, are excepted from the claims filing requirements set forth in Sections 900-915.4 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 905(n)).

[OR]

Claim for Inverse Condemnation. No claim is required to be filed to maintain an action against a public entity for the taking of, or damage to, private property pursuant to Section 19 of Article I of the California Constitution (Gov. Code § 905.1).

[OR]

Claim Against Regents of University of California. The provisions of Sections 900-935.7 of the Government Code, relating to claims against California state or local public entities, do not apply to claims against the Regents of the University of California (Gov. Code § 905.6).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claim sued on is expressly excepted from the claim presentation provisions of the Government Code (Gov. Code §§ 900-915.4).

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint, a motion for judgment on the pleadings, or a motion for summary judgment when the ground of the demurrer or motion for judgment on the pleadings is that the complaint fails to allege the presentation and rejection of the claim or when the ground of the motion for summary judgment is that no claim was presented. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of claims and related forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[3] Opposing Authorities

[a] Claim Against Local Public Entity by State of California or Other Local Public Entity

In City of Ontario v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 894, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 32 , the state filed a complaint for equitable indemnity against a city, alleging that third-party plaintiffs had recovered a judgment against the state based on flood damage for which the city was liable, and that the state had paid the judgment. The city demurred, arguing that the state'sdemand was barred because it had not filed a claim with the city pursuant to the city's ordinance requiring all claimants not otherwise governed by state or local laws to present claims pursuant to the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 910 through 915.2. The claims requirements were further subject to the provisions of Gov. Code § 945.4, i.e., they were a condition precedent to filing suit. The trial court overruled the demurrer, and the court of appeal let a peremptory writ of mandate issue, directing the vacation of that order. The appellate court held that the state is not exempted from the provisions of Gov. Code § 935, which allows a local public entity to establish its own policies and procedures for the presentation of claims that are exempted by Gov. Code § 905, inasmuch as the state is specified in § 905, and not otherwise excluded from § 935. Therefore, the city's claims requirements apply to state claims (12 Cal. App. 4th 894, 898-903) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.31

§ 196.31 Supporting Contention That Plaintiff's Claim Against Public Entity Is Excepted or Exempt from Claim Filing Provisions [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] of California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6]--Money Recovery Is Incidental to Other Judicial Relief Sought

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE CLAIMS PRESENTATION PROVISIONS OF THE CALIFORNIA TORT CLAIMS ACT BECAUSE THE PRIMARY PURPOSE OF THE ACTION IS TO SECURE _____ [specify relief sought, other than money or damages, e.g., REINSTATEMENT TO EMPLOYMENT] AND THE CLAIM FOR _____ [specify money or damages claimed, e.g., BACK PAY] IS MERELY INCIDENTAL TO THAT RELIEF.

A. Monetary Claim Incidental to Other Judicial Relief Sought. A claim for money which is merely incidental to some other form of judicial relief sought in an action or proceeding against a public entity is not subject to the claim provisions of Sections 905, 905.2, and 945.4 of the Government Code (see Minsky v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 113, 121, 113 Cal. Rptr. 102, 520 P.2d 726 ; Harris v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 639, 643, 216 Cal. Rptr. 274 ; Snipes v. City of Bakersfield (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 861, 869, 193 Cal. Rptr. 760).

[Optional] B. Action for Return of Property Wrongfully Withheld. A claim against a public entity for the specific recovery of property, including money, is not a claim for "money or damages" within the meaning of Section 905 of the Government Code, requiring the presentation of claims against local public entities as a prerequisite to a judicial action on the claim (Minsky v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 113, 116-117, 121-124, 113 Cal. Rptr. 102, 520 P.2d 726 ; Hibbard v. City of Anaheim (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 270, 275-276, 208 Cal. Rptr. 733).

[Optional] C. Mandate Proceeding for Reinstatement to Job and Back Pay. A proceeding in mandate by a former state employee seeking reinstatement to employment and back pay is exempt from the claim presentation requirements of Gov. Code § 905.2(b)(4) (formerly Gov. Code § 905.2(d)) because the principal relief sought is reinstatement and the claim for back pay is merely incidental to that relief (Harris v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 639, 643, 216 Cal. Rptr. 274).

[Optional] D. Action for Injunctive Relief and Damages for Violation of Fair Employment and Housing Act. An action against a public entity for injunctive relief and damages under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code §§ 12900-12996) is not subject to the claims provisions of Gov. Code §§ 905 and 945.4 because the action basically is an action for injunctive relief with the claim for damages being merely incidental to that relief (Snipes v. City of Bakersfield (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 861, 869-870, 193 Cal. Rptr. 760).

[Optional] E. Proceeding to Compel State Officer to Perform Express Statutory Duty to Pay Money. A proceeding in mandate which seeks to compel a state officer to perform an express statutory duty to pay money is not an action against the state and is outside the purview of the claims statute (Gov. Code § 905.2) (Forde v. Cory (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 434, 437-438, 135 Cal. Rptr. 903).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claim sued on is not subject to the claim presentation provisions of the Government Code (Gov. Code §§ 900-915.4). The point of the contention is that a claim for money that is incidental and secondary to some other judicial relief sought against a public entity is exempt from the claims presentation statutes.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint, a motion for judgment on the pleadings, or a motion for summary judgment when the ground of the demurrer or motion for judgment on the pleadings is that the complaint fails to allege the presentation and rejection of the claim or when the ground of the motion for summary judgment is that no claim was presented. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of claims and related forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Monetary Claim Incidental to Other Judicial Relief Sought

Minsky v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 113, 113 Cal. Rptr. 102, 520 P.2d 726 , was an action by the assignee of the claim of an arrestee for the return of property, specifically a sum of money, that was taken by local police officers at the time of the arrest and wrongfully withheld following the disposition of criminal charges. In reversing the judgment of dismissal following the sustaining of a demurrer without leave to amend on the ground the complaint failed to allege compliance with the claims presentation requirement (Gov. Code § 905), the Supreme Court said a claim for the specific recovery of property has never been considered a claim for "money or damages" as used in Gov. Code § 905 and its predecessors and that only claimants seeking money or damages, as distinguished from other types of judicial relief, are required to conform to the claims procedure (11 Cal. 3d 113, 121) . The Court added that the claims statutes do not impose any requirements for nonpecuniary actions, such as those seeking injunctive, specific, or declaratory relief (11 Cal. 3d 113, 121) .

NOTE:

Although Minsky v. City of Los Angeles arose under Gov. Code § 905 relating to claims against local public entities, the Court's holding would appear to apply as well to an action under Gov. Code § 905.2 relating to claims against the state, because that statute is also limited by its terms to claims for "money or damages."

Harris v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 639, 216 Cal. Rptr. 274 , was a supplemental proceeding in mandate by which a discharged employee sought back pay after he had been ordered reinstated without back pay. The board's demurrer to the supplemental petition for writ of mandate was sustained on the ground the employee had not complied with Gov. Code § 905.2(d) [now see Gov. Code § 905.2(b)(4)], which requires as a condition precedent to suit (see Gov. Code § 945.4) the presentation of a claim against the state for money or damages for which settlement is not otherwise provided by statute or constitutional provision. The petition was dismissed with prejudice and the employee appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment of dismissal and remanded the case to the trial court with instructions to issue a writ of mandate directing the State Personnel Board to reconsider the employee's request for back pay. In holding that the claim was not subject to the claim presentation provision of Gov. Code § 905.2 and that the demurrer to the supplemental petition for writ of mandate should have been overruled, the court said that those actions which seek injunctive or declaratory relief and certain actions in mandamus, such as the employee's action where money is an incident thereto, are exempted from the claim presentation requirements of Gov. Code §§ 905 and 905.2 (170 Cal. Ap. 3d 639, 643) .

Snipes v. City of Bakersfield (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 861, 193 Cal. Rptr. 760 , was an action for injunctive relief and damages by a job applicant against a city police department for alleged racial discrimination in refusing to employ him as a police officer solely because he was black, in violation of (now) Gov. Code § 12940. The action was filed after the applicant had exhausted his administrative remedies. The city's demurrer to the complaint on the ground the plaintiff had failed to allege compliance with the Tort Claims Act, specifically with Gov. Code § 945.4 (providing in part that no action for damages for which a claim must first be presented may be brought until that claim has been presented to, and acted on or deemed rejected by, the public entity), was sustained without leave to amend and the action was dismissed.

The court of appeal reversed; it held that no portion of the applicant's complaint was subject to the claims presentation requirements of Gov. Code §§ 905 and 945.4 and that the demurrer had therefore been improperly sustained (145 Cal. App. 3d 861, 870-871) . The court said that the general scope of the Tort Claims Act's notice-of-claim provisions is limited to "claims for money or damages" (Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2) and that the quoted language exempts actions seeking specific relief other than money or damages, such as injunctive or declaratory relief and certain actions in mandate. An action for specific relief, the court said, does not lose its exempt status solely because incidental money damages are sought (145 Cal. App. 3d 861, 869-870) .

[b] Action for Return of Property Wrongfully Withheld

The facts and procedural background of Minsky v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 113, 113 Cal. Rptr. 102, 520 P.2d 726 , are discussed in § 196.31[3][a]. In holding that the claims statutes (Gov. Code §§ 900-905.8) did not apply and reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court said that Gov. Code § 905 (relating to claims against local public entities) makes clear that the requirements for presentation of claims apply only to "claims for money or damages" and not to claims for other forms of relief, such as specific recovery of property taken by the city as bailee (11 Cal. 3d 113, 117) . The Court added that a claim for the specific recovery of property has never been considered a claim for "money or damages" as used in Gov. Code § 905 and its predecessors. Only claimants seeking money or damages, as distinguished from other types of judicial relief, are required to conform to the claims procedures (11 Cal. 3d 113, 121) . The Court discussed with approval a similar holding [Bertone v. City & County of San Francisco (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 579, 588, 245 P.2d 29] , and disapproved any contrary indications in Union Bank & Trust Co. v. County of Los Angeles [Union Bank & Trust Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 600, 605-607, 38 P.2d 442] (11 Cal. 3d 113, 122, 123 n.15).

The Court noted that even if the money taken from an arrestee was no longer traceable to any property presently in the defendant's possession and thus was not strictly available for specific recovery, the cause of action would not be foreclosed by the claims statutes. The Court explained that after a local governmental entity wrongfully withholds an arrestee's property, the arrestee clearly can seek specific recovery of the property while it is still in the possession of the local entity without being limited to the relatively short period for filing claims set forth in the claims statutes. This initial exemption of the action from the claims statute is not lost simply because the city takes the further wrongful step of disposing of the bailed property. The city cannot be permitted to invoke the claims statute, originally not available to it, by virtue of a later wrongful dissipation of the property. To so hold, would be in effect to allow the local entity to profit by its own wrong penalizing a plaintiff who, in the light of the specific recovery remedy available, justifiably did not file a claim (11 Cal. 3d 113, 121-122 n.14).

Hibbard v. City of Anaheim (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 270, 275-276, 208 Cal. Rptr. 733 , was an action by a husband and wife against the city to recover property seized in connection with the execution of a search warrant, which was later suppressed, or damages in lieu of the property. The trial court sustained the city's demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend on the ground plaintiffs had failed to comply with the claim-filing requirements of the Government Code. The court of appeal reversed. The court held that the action was not subject to the claim filing requirements of the Tort Claims Act (162 Cal. App. 3d 270, 275) . The court said that even if it assumed that the city breached its duty to return the property by auctioning it without a court order, the plaintiffs' claim was still not subject to the act (162 Cal. App. 3d 270, 276) . The court said that the initial exemption of the action from the claims statute is not lost simply because the city takes the further wrongful step of disposing of the bailed property. The city cannot be permitted to invoke the claims statute, originally not available to it, by virtue of a later wrongful dissipation of the property. To so hold would be in effect to allow the local entity to profit by its own wrong, penalizing a plaintiff who, in light of the specific recovery remedy apparently available, justifiably did not file a claim (162 Cal. App. 3d 270, 277) .

[c] Mandate Proceeding for Reinstatement to Job and Back Pay

The procedural background of Harris v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 639, 216 Cal. Rptr. 274 , is discussed in § 196.31[3][a]. Petitioner, a California State University employee, had sustained a work-related injury and was found by his physician to be temporarily disabled until May 14, 1979. On March 22, 1979, he was referred to the State Compensation Employment Fund for examination by the fund's physician who advised him to return to work May 7th. On May 7th the employee considered himself still disabled but did not advise his employer he would not be returning to work on that date. On the same day, the fund's adjuster advised the employee to file for adjudication of his claim with the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board and told him that he could not be terminated from his employment for filing the claim, which the employee misinterpreted to mean that, if he filed, the employer would have no right to fire him. The employer considered the employee to be absent without leave from May 8, 1979, to May 14, 1979, and, pursuant to Educ. Code § 89541, providing that absence without leave of an employee, whether voluntary or involuntary, for five consecutive working days is an automatic resignation from state service as of the last date on which the employee worked, considered the employee to have automatically resigned on May 8th and so notified him. After a subsequent hearing on appellant's application for reinstatement, the State Personnel Board found that the employee's mistaken belief regarding the filing of a workers' compensation claim was a satisfactory reason for his absence from work without first obtaining consent but denied reinstatement on the ground there was no showing that the employee was ready, willing, and able to return to work. After a successful mandate proceeding against the board by the employee, the board ordered the employee reinstated without back salary. The board's demurrer to the employee's subsequent supplemental petition for writ of mandate to the superior court seeking an order for back salary was sustained on the ground the employee had not complied with Gov. Code§ 905.2(d) [now see Gov. Code § 905.2(b)(4)], which, as a condition precedent to suit, requires the presentation of a claim against the state for money or damages for which settlement is not otherwise provided by statute or constitutional provision. The petition was dismissed with prejudice and the employee appealed.

In reversing the judgment of dismissal and remanding the case to the trial court with directions to issue a writ of mandate, the court of appeal held that the claim for back salary was not subject to the claim presentation provision of Gov. Code § 905.2, that it was clearly incidental to the employee's request for an order of reinstatement, and that it was therefore exempt from the claim presentation requirements of Gov. Code § 905.2 (170 Cal. App. 3d 639, 643) .

[d] Action for Injunctive Relief and Damages for Violation of Fair Employment and Housing Act

The facts and procedural background of Snipes v. City of Bakersfield (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 861, 193 Cal. Rptr. 760 , are discussed in § 196.31[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal held that Gov. Code §§ 905 and 945.4 do not apply to an action that seeks principally injunctive relief for employment discrimination, and that an action under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.) is basically nonpecuniary, the claims for damages and back pay being incidental to the claim for injunctive relief (145 Cal. App. 3d 861, 869-870) .

[e] Proceeding to Compel State Officer to Perform Express Statutory Duty to Pay Money

Forde v. Cory (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 434, 135 Cal. Rptr. 903 , was a mandate proceeding by the executor of the will of a judge who died before retirement to compel the State Controller to pay the judge's children a lump-sum benefit pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 75104 and 75104.5 in addition to a surviving children's monthly allowance pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 75091 and 75096. The trial court ruled that the children were entitled to the monthly allowance but not the lump-sum benefit and the court of appeal affirmed. Answering the Attorney General's argument that the lawsuit could not be maintained because plaintiff had failed to precede it by a State Board of Control claim, the court acknowledged that Gov. Code § 905.2 requires a claim prior to a money action against the state on an express contract but said that the suit before it was to compel a state officer to perform an express statutory duty, that it was not a money action against the state, and that it was outside the purview of the claims statutes (66 Cal. App. 3d 434, 437-438) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action for Return of Property Wrongfully Withheld

In Long v. City of Los Angeles (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 782, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 583 , plaintiff's 525 birds were seized by defendant city following a complaint of neglect. After the city notified plaintiff that he could recover the birds after reimbursing the city for the amounts expended for their care and feeding while in the city's possession, plaintiff sued the city to recover possession of the birds, alleging wrongful seizure, as well as for injunctive relief and money damages to compensate for birds that had allegedly been injured or died as a result of the wrongful detention. The trial court granted the city's motion for summary judgment, agreeing with the city that plaintiff's failure to comply with claims filing requirements of the Tort Claims Act precluding the plaintiff's action. The court of appeal reversed, holding that, under the rule of Minsky v. City of Los Angeles [Minsky v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 113, 113 Cal. Rptr. 102, 520 P.2d 726 ; see § 196.31[3][b]] and Holt v. Kelly [Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441] , the Tort Claims Act did not apply to the plaintiff's action for recovery of his property (68 Cal. App. 4th 782, 786-787) . The court of appeal additionally held that the exception for the recovery of specific property applies even when loss of some of the property while in government custody due to the government's own negligence necessitates that plaintiff also seek monetary damages in lieu of return of the lost property (68 Cal. App. 4th 782, 787) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Monetary Relief Incidental to Other Judicial Relief Sought

In Lozada v. City and County of San Francisco (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 209 , plaintiff was a police officer who filed a claim for relief for alleged violations of the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act, Gov. Code § 3300 et seq. (POBRA). The police officer sought declaratory and injunctive relief for the violations, as well as actual damages and civil penalties of $25,000 for each of 13 violations. The trial court barred the POBRA action on the grounds that the officer failed to file a claim with the entity pursuant to the Government Claims Act, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal concluded that the claims for money and damages were not merely incidental to the declaratory and injunctive relief sought by the officer, but rather were the primary focus of the officer's action. Instead of seeking immediate judicial relief from the alleged POBRA violations, the officer had waited until numerous violations allegedly taking place over a period of six months had occurred and then sought significant monetary damages and penalties for those violations. Under the circumstances, the court concluded that the officer was required to comply with the claims presentation requirements (145 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1160-1168) .

[b] Action for Return of Property Wrongfully Withheld

In City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 422, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 560 , plaintiffs filed a class action lawsuit seeking to recover money paid to a city as compensation for emergency response costs associated with incidents caused when plaintiffs were driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs. Plaintiffs alleged that some of the money paid was for fixed costs that did not arise directly from plaintiffs' conduct and should not have been paid. The lead plaintiff had filed a claim with the city in December 2004, which was rejected, and the class action complaint was filed in March 2005. The trial court granted class certification and, after concluding that the claim was not governed by the claims presentation requirements of the Government Claims Act because the claim was one for the specific recovery of property, included in the class all persons who were arrested and billed for emergency response costs after March 23, 2002. The city sought a writ of mandate overturning the trial court's determination that the Government Claims Act did not apply, arguing that it did apply and the class of plaintiffs should thus be limited to those who were arrested and billed within one year of the date the complaint was filed. The court of appeals agreed with the city. The court distinguished the rationale and result of Minsky v. CIty of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 113, 113 Cal. Rptr. 102, 520 P.2d 726 , discussed in [3][b], above. The court noted that unlike in Minsky, the city did not seize money from plaintiffs and hold it for them as a bailee, and the city was under no obligation to return the specific property. Thus, plaintiffs claim for monetary relief was a claim for "money or damages" with the meaning of Gov. Code § 905 and was subject to the requirements of the 168 Cal. App. 4th 422, 430) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.32

§ 196.32 Supporting Contention That Plaintiff's Claim Against Public Entity Is Excepted or Exempt From Claim Filing Provisions [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] of California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code § 810 et seq.]--Cross Complaint Is Defensive Response to Case Initiated by Public Entity

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

CROSS COMPLAINANT'S CROSS COMPLAINT IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE CLAIMS PRESENTATION REQUIREMENT PROVISIONS OF THE CALIFORNIA TORT CLAIMS ACT BECAUSE IT ASSERTS ONLY DEFENSIVE MATTERS IN RESPONSE TO A CASE INITIATED BY THE PUBLIC ENTITY AND ARISES OUT OF THE SAME EVENT FORMING THE BASIS OF THE PLAINTIFF'S CLAIM.

Defensive Cross Complaint in Response to Case Initiated by Public Entity. A defensive cross complaint is exempt from the claim filing requirement of the California Tort Claims Act when (1) it is in response to a case initiated by the co-defendant public entity, (2) it arises out of the same transaction or event that forms the basis of the plaintiff's claim and does not introduce an unrelated claim, and (3) it asserts only defensive matters, making no claim for affirmative relief (Krainock v. Superior Court (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 1478, 265 Cal. Rptr. 715).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claim made the subject of a cross-complaint is not subject to the claim presentation provisions of the Government Code [see Gov. Code §§ 900-915.4]. The point of the contention is that the cross complainant's cross complaint against codefendant public entity is in response to a case initiated by that public entity, it arises out of the same transaction or event that forms the basis of the plaintiff's claim, and it asserts only defensive matters.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are used. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to the cross complaint, a motion for judgment on the pleadings, or a motion for summary judgment when the ground of the demurrer or motion for judgment on the pleadings is that the cross complaint fails to allege the presentation and rejection of the claim or when the ground of the motion for summary judgment is that no claim was presented. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of claims and related forms, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Defensive Cross Complaint in Response to Case Initiated by Public Entity

In Krainock v. Superior Court (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 265 Cal. Rptr. 715 , a personal injury action was filed against two defendants: an individual and a public school district. The school district defendant filed a cross complaint for indemnity, apportionment, and declaratory relief, naming the individual defendant as the sole cross defendant. In response, the individual defendant filed his own cross complaint for the same relief against the school district. The trial court granted defendant school district's motion for judgment on the pleadings, based on the individual defendant's failure to comply with the claim filing requirement. The individual defendant filed a petition for writ of mandate challenging the trial court's ruling.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate, directing the trial court to vacate its previous order and to enter a new and different order denying the motion for judgment on the pleadings. The court of appeal said that when a cross complaint is defensive and is filed in response to an initiation of action by a public entity, it is unjust to impose a claim filing requirement because the issue of the cross complainant's liability relative to that of the public entity was first raised by the public entity itself in its own cross complaint, and because the public entity had the opportunity to investigate the relevant facts of the incident giving rise to all the claims before the individual defendant ever filed his or her cross complaint, thereby protecting one of the purposes underlying the claim requirement. The court further observed that a contrary rule could lead to unnecessary claims and litigation against public entities, filed purely as precautions against anticipated future actions by those entities (216 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 1478) .

The court adopted three rules for determining whether or not the claim filing requirement is not applicable to defensive cross complaints. First, the inapplicability of the claim requirement is limited to cases initiated by the public entity, as opposed to those initiated by a third party in which a defendant seeks to cross complain against a public entity not previously a party to the action. Second, to be exempt from the claim requirement the defensive pleading must arise out of the same transaction or event forming the basis of the plaintiff's claim and may not introduce an unrelated claim. Third, the cross complaint may assert only defensive matter. That is, a cross complaint may be filed without a governmental claim as a prerequisite if it is limited to claims that, if successful, would destroy or diminish the plaintiff's recovery, but not to claims for affirmative relief (216 Cal. App. 3d 1473, 1478) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.33

§ 196.33 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Person Who Sustained Injury, Damage, or Loss Was a Minor [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CLAIMANT _____ [MUST BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A CLAIM BECAUSE THE CLAIMANT WAS A MINOR DURING THE ENTIRE PERIOD IN WHICH THE CLAIM COULD HAVE BEEN TIMELY PRESENTED, AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC ENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME NOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Right to Petition for Relief From Claim Requirement. When an application for leave to present a late claim is denied or deemed to have been denied by a public entity, a petition may be made to the court in which the cause of action will be filed for an order relieving the petitioner from the provisions of Section 945.4 of the Government Code, providing that no action for money or damages may be brought against a public entity on a cause of action for which a claim is required until a claim has been presented to and acted on by the public entity or until it has been deemed to have been rejected by it (Gov. Code § 946.6(a)).

B. Minor's Right to Relief. The petitioner is entitled to relief if the application to a public entity to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time, not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued, and the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss was a minor during the entire period in which the claim could have been timely presented (Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(2)).

C. Relief Is Mandatory. The petitioner's right to relief is mandatory (see Gov. Code §§ 14, 946.6(c)).

D. Denial of Relief Is Abuse of Discretion. If the application to the public entity to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time, and the petition for relief from the claim requirement was timely filed, it is an abuse of discretion for the court not to grant the petition when the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss was a minor during the entire time in which the claim could have been timely presented (Williams v. Mariposa County Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 843, 851, 147 Cal. Rptr. 452 ; see Whitfield v. Roth (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 874, 884, 112 Cal. Rptr. 540, 519 P.2d 588).

[Optional] E. Effect of Parent's or Attorney's Lack of Diligence. In determining whether an application to a public entity to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time, the neglect or ignorance of the minor's parents or attorney is not attributed to the minor (Hernandez v. County of Los Angeles (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1020, 1029-1031, 232 Cal. Rptr. 519, 728 P.2d 1154).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have presented a timely claim to the public entity as a condition precedent to his or her filing of a lawsuit, when the application to the public entity for leave to file a late claim was presented within a reasonable time not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued [see Gov. Code § 911.4(b)] and was denied or deemed denied pursuant to Gov. Code § 911.6 (failure or refusal to act on application within 45 days or any extended period agreed to in writing by the parties). The ground for relief is that the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss was a minor during all of the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 for the presentation of a claim (six months after date cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops accrued, or one year after date of accrual of any other cause of action) and is, therefore, entitled to be relieved from the claim presentation requirement [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(2)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Computing One-Year Period

In computing the one-year period in which the application for leave to present a late claim must be presented to the public entity, time during which the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss is a minor shall be counted, but the time during which he or she is mentally incapacitated and does not have a guardian or conservator of his or her person shall not be counted [Gov. Code § 911.4(c)]. This tolling provision applies only to mentally incapacitated adults who lack a guardian or conservator [Hernandez v. County of Los Angeles (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1020, 1025, 232 Cal. Rptr. 519, 728 P.2d 1154 ; Reyes v. County of Los Angeles (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 584, 593, 243 Cal. Rptr. 35 ; see also County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1310-1313, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471 (appointment of independent counsel empowered to prosecute legal claims on person's behalf does not preclude reliance on tolling provision of Gov. Code § 911.4(c))].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of hearing and a form of petition for relief from the claim requirement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Relief Is Mandatory

Gov. Code § 946.6(c) provides that the court "shall" relieve the petitioner from the provisions of Gov. Code § 945.4 if the conditions in Gov. Code § 946.6(c) are met. Gov. Code § 14 defines the word "shall," as used in the Government Code, as mandatory.

[b] Denial of Relief Is Abuse of Discretion

In Williams v. Mariposa County Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 843, 147 Cal. Rptr. 452 , a minor's claim was not timely filed and his timely application to file a late claim was denied. He then filed a petition for relief from the claim requirements, which was also denied. The court of appeal reversed, holding that a minor's petition for relief from the claim requirements must be granted under the statute on a showing that the minor was under the age of 18 years during the entire 100-day (now six-month) claim period prescribed by Gov. Code § 911.2, and that the minor's application to the public entity for leave to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time, not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued (82 Cal. App. 3d 843, 849) .

In Whitfield v. Roth (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 874, 112 Cal. Rptr. 540, 519 P.2d 588 , the Supreme Court upheld a medical malpractice verdict against a public entity and held that a cause of action for malpractice did not accrue until the plaintiff's mother discovered, or through the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the injury and its cause. In the course of the discussion, the Court stated in dicta that an application for leave to present a late claim by a person who was a minor during the entire claim period must be allowed (10 Cal. 3d 874, 884) .

[c] Effect of Parent's or Attorney's Lack of Diligence

In Hernandez v. County of Los Angeles (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1020, 232 Cal. Rptr. 519, 728 P.2d 1154 , plaintiff suffered severe mental retardation and physical handicaps at birth, allegedly from negligent medical care provided by defendant's physicians. Plaintiff failed to file a claim within 100 days (now six months) after the cause of action accrued as prescribed by Gov. Code § 911.2 but filed an application for leave to present a late claim approximately four and one-half months after discovering the cause of action, a period well within the one-year outer limit prescribed by Gov. Code § 911.4(b). The county denied the application. Plaintiff then petitioned the court pursuant to Gov. Code § 946.6(b) for relief from the claims filing requirements. The trial court denied the petition on the ground that plaintiff's application to the public entity was not made within a reasonable time, since plaintiff's attorney was aware of the cause of action from the time that it accrued and there was no explanation for the four and one-half month delay. The court of appeal affirmed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court stated the general rule that a public entity is required to accept the late claim of a minor presented within one year after the date the cause of action accrued if the claimant was a minor for the entire 100-day (now six-month) claim period, and that any delay in the late filing was not clearly attributable to a lack of diligence on the part of the minor (42 Cal. 3d 1020, 1029-1031) . The Court emphasized that the neglect or ignorance of the minor's parents or attorney was not attributed to the minor in determining lack of diligence on the part of the minor (42 Cal. 3d 1020, 1030) . The Court held that because (1) plaintiff's late-claim application was presented within one year of the accrual of his cause of action, (2) plaintiff was a minor for the entire 100-day (now six-month) claim period, and (3) any delay was not clearly attributable to the minor himself, the county was under an obligation to accept the minor's late claim application and the trial court erred in refusing to grant plaintiff relief from the county's denial of his application (42 Cal. 3d 1020, 1031) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Effect of Parent's or Attorney's Lack of Diligence

In Rousseau v. City of San Carlos (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 498, 236 Cal. Rptr. 373 , plaintiff, a minor, had been seriously injured in an automobile accident, suffering a skull fracture and brain damage. She filed applications to file late tort claims against various governmental entities 11 months after the accident. Taking into account the dilatory actions of the minor's guardian and attorney, the trial court denied the minor's petition for late claim relief. The court of appeal reversed, finding that the trial court abused its discretion. The court held that the dilatory actions of the guardian and attorney should not have been considered by the trial court; the proper focus should have been on the minor's behavior alone. In light of the minor's seriously debilitated condition, the court found that the time she took to file the petition for judicial relief was not unreasonable (192 Cal. App. 3d 498, 501-502) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Minor's Right to Relief

Reyes v. County of Los Angeles (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 584, 243 Cal. Rptr. 35 , was a petition for relief from the claim filing requirement by a 20-year-old mother whose child had been injured at birth by the alleged medical malpractice of the defendant county's medical center. The child was born June 10, 1980. The physician's response to the mother's inquiry a few days later as to what was wrong with the child, after she'd noticed the child had problems including welts on his head and a broken collar bone, was that the child was born that way and it was the mother's fault because she'd squeezed him. In April 1983, the mother discussed the child's problem with her sister, who advised her to consult an attorney. She did so on April 12, 1983, and, according to her, was told she didn't have much of a case and would have to pay all expenses for the attorney to investigate (the attorney's deposition testimony was different). Consequently, she did not pursue the matter. In August 1983, the mother discussed the matter with an acquaintance, who suggested she again consult an attorney. She consulted a law firm on September 15, 1983, and retained it to represent her. On November 18, 1983, the firm filed a claim with the county board of supervisors that was denied on January 5, 1984, and her subsequent application to file a late claim filed on May 23, 1984, was denied on July 9, 1984. The trial court found the cause of action accrued on April 12, 1983, when the mother consulted the first attorney, and denied the petition on the ground that more than a year had elapsed between the date the cause of action accrued and the date the petition for leave to present a late claim was filed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court said that when the plaintiff is a minor it is not the minor's knowledge or lack of it which determines when the cause of action accrued, but the parents' knowledge or lack of it, and that the mental incapacity of a minor does not excuse the requirement that application for leave to file a late claim be made within one year after the date of accrual (197 Cal. App. 3d 584, 592) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.34

§ 196.34 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Person Who Sustained Injury, Damage, or Loss Was Physically or Mentally Incapacitated [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(3)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CLAIMANT _____ [MUST BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM BECAUSE THE CLAIMANT WAS _____ [PHYSICALLY and/or MENTALLY] INCAPACITATED DURING THE ENTIRE PERIOD IN WHICH A CLAIM COULD HAVE BEEN TIMELY PRESENTED, AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC ENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME NOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Right to Petition for Relief From Claim Requirement. [See § 196.33, Paragraph A.]

B. Physical or Mental Incapacity. The petitioner is entitled to relief if the application to a public entity to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time, not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued, and the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss was physically or mentally incapacitated during the entire period in which the claim could have been timely presented and, by reason of the disability, failed to present a claim during that time (Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(3); Draper v. City of Los Angeles (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 502, 507-509, 276 Cal. Rptr. 864, 802 P.2d 367).

C. Relief Is Mandatory. [See § 196.33, Paragraph C.]

D. Denial of Relief Is Abuse of Discretion. If the application to the public entity to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time, and the petition for relief from the claim requirement was timely filed, it is an abuse of discretion for the court not to grant the petition when the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss was mentally or physically incapacitated during the entire time in which the claim could have been timely presented and, by reason of the disability, failed to present a claim during that time (Baber v. Napa State Hosp. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 514, 517-519, 201 Cal. Rptr. 432).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have presented a timely claim to the public entity as a condition precedent to his or her filing of a lawsuit when the application to the public entity for leave to file a late claim was presented within a reasonable time not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued and was denied or deemed denied pursuant to Gov. Code § 911.6 (failure or refusal to act on application within 45 days or any extended period agreed to in writing by the parties) [see Gov. Code §§ 911.4(b), 946.6(c)]. The ground for relief is that the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss was physically or mentally incapacitated during all of the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 for the presentation of a claim (six months after date cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops accrued, or one year after date of accrual of any other cause of action) and, by reason of such disability, failed to present a claim during such time [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(3)].

A plaintiff who establishes that he or she was physically or mentally incapacitated during the entire period in which the claim could have been timely filed is entitled to relief even though the public entity was prejudiced by the delay [see County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625 n.3 , Cal. Rptr. 215]. This distinguishes this type of relief from relief granted pursuant to Gov. Code § 911.6(b)(1) or 946.6(c)(1), both of which authorize the public entity to grant leave to file a late claim and the court to grant relief from the claim presentation requirement, respectively, on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, and which can be granted only if the public entity fails to establish that it would be prejudiced in its defense of the claim if leave or relief is granted [see §§ 196.36 -196.41].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of hearing and a form of petition for relief from the claim requirement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Physical or Mental Incapacity

In Draper v. City of Los Angeles (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 502, 276 Cal. Rptr. 864, 802 P.2d 367 , plaintiff was seriously injured while in a crosswalk when she was struck by a car driven by a high school student. (Although Gov. Code § 911.2 now provides that a claim must be filed within six months after the accrual of a cause of action, at the time of plaintiff's accident the limitation period was 100 days.) Within two months after the expiration of the claim filing period, plaintiff applied for leave to present a late claim with several governmental entities, including the Los Angeles School District. Plaintiff alleged that the accident was caused by defects in the condition of the intersection, and that she had not filed a timely claim because she was severely injured in the accident, suffered permanent brain damage, was unconscious and hospitalized for a long time, and did not have the assistance of counsel. After the applications were denied, plaintiff filed a petition for relief from the claim filing requirement in court. In its opposition to plaintiff's petition, the school district stated that a claim had been timely filed by a different attorney on plaintiff's behalf against it and had been rejected. The trial court denied the petition, ruling that plaintiff failed to establish that her injuries were the cause of her failure to file a timely claim. The trial court also denied plaintiff's subsequent motion for reconsideration, ruling that the claim timely filed by the first attorney on her behalf demonstrated that any failure to file a claim against the other defendants within the claim filing period was not caused by disability. Onappeal by plaintiff, the court of appeal affirmed both orders made by the trial court.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal and directed it to reverse the orders appealed from with instructions to grant plaintiff the relief requested; five justices joined in the judgment. In the lead opinion joined by three justices, the Court explained that the grounds for relief provided by Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(3) require a showing of both incapacity and that the incapacity was the cause of the failure to file a timely claim (52 Cal. 3d 502, 506-507) . The Court concluded that the evidence, viewed in the light of the whole record, established that plaintiff was incapacitated during the claim filing period. Based on the rule of liberal construction of remedial statutes, the Court concluded that plaintiff should be granted relief from the claim filing requirement in light of her serious and prolonged incapacity, but cautioned that the supporting evidence was the minimum acceptable, and in less peculiar and compelling circumstances might well not suffice (52 Cal. 3d 502, 507-508) .

Defendants contended that even if plaintiff was incapacitated, she failed to show that her disability caused her failure to timely file her claim. They argued that the timely filing of a claim on her behalf against the school district provided countervailing evidence that her incapacity did not cause her omission. The Court observed that the record of the trial court's reasoning on this point was unclear, and said it was reluctant to bar plaintiff's claim on that basis. It observed that on the date the first claim was filed against the school district, plaintiff was just emerging from a long coma and her ability to reason was severely impaired. In such circumstances the Court found it was inconceivable that she could have authorized the filing of the claim. The Court also said that it could not uphold the ruling on the basis of an assumption that some unnamed person retained that attorney to file a claim for plaintiff, since it is the incapacity of the person who failed to file a claim that is in issue (52 Cal. 3d 502, 508) .

[b] Denial of Relief Is Abuse of Discretion

In Baber v. Napa State Hosp. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 514, 201 Cal. Rptr. 432 , plaintiff had lost the use of his eye on July 9, 1977, while he was involuntarily hospitalized in a mental hospital as a gravely disabled conservatee. He was released in November 1977 to a halfway house and remained a conservatee pursuant to a treatment plan. Plaintiff continued to suffer severe mental problems, which were exacerbated when he failed to take his antipsychotic medication. Even when he took his medication, it was difficult to converse with and understand him. He also failed to maintain regular contact with his conservator and periodically disappeared from his halfway house. Plaintiff met with an attorney in December 1977. The attorney had difficulty understanding plaintiff and requested hospital records and other information from defendant. The records were not sent to the attorney for over two months, and the hospital staff refused to discuss the case with the attorney. Plaintiff also disappeared and could not be located for some time. A claim, which was denied, was presented on behalf of plaintiff in May 1978. Thereafter, plaintiff filed a complaint against the state and petitioned for relief from the claim-presentation requirement of Gov. Code § 945.4. The trial court denied relief.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the uncontradicted evidence of plaintiff's mental illness established his incapacity to comply with the claim requirements, which rendered his delay reasonable and the trial court's denial an abuse of discretion (154 Cal. App. 3d 514, 516-517) . The court stated that under Gov. Code § 945.6, a petitioner may be relieved from the claim-filing requirement of Gov. Code § 945.4 if the court finds that the application was made within a reasonable time not exceeding one year, and if the failure to file a timely claim was due to the plaintiff's incapacity, as defined in Gov. Code § 911.6. The court stated that the determination of what constitutes a reasonable time depends on the particular facts of the case and the policies of the law regarding personal injury claims against the state, and that it also depends on the court's discretion. In finding that the claim was made within a reasonable time, the court pointed out that claim statutes are to be liberally construed to permit the action to be tried on the merits whenever possible. Because the evidence all pointed to the fact that plaintiff was mentally incapacitated, it was arbitrary to disregard that factor as a substantial reason for the delay in presenting the claim (154 Cal. App. 3d 514, 518-519) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.35

§ 196.35 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Person Who Sustained Injury, Damage, or Loss Has Died [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(4)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

THE CLAIMANT _____ [MUST BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM BECAUSE THE PERSON WHO SUSTAINED THE _____ [INJURY or DAMAGE or LOSS] DIED DURING THE PERIOD IN WHICH A CLAIM COULD HAVE BEEN TIMELY PRESENTED, AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TOTHE PUBLIC ENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME NOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Right to Petition for Relief From Claim Requirement. [See § 196.33, Paragraph A.]

B. Relief From Claim Requirement Is Required When Injured Person Dies During Claim Period. If an application to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued and was denied or deemed denied, the court shall relieve the petitioner from the claim requirement if the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss died during the period in which a claim could have been timely presented (Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(4)).

C. Relief Is Mandatory. [See § 196.33, Paragraph C.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to the public entity as a condition precedent to the filing of a lawsuit when the application to the public entity for leave to file a late claim was presented within a reasonable time not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued and was denied or deemed denied pursuant to Gov. Code § 911.6 (failure or refusal to act on application within 45 days or any extended period agreed to in writing by the parties) [see Gov. Code §§ 911.4(b), 946.6(c)]. The ground for relief is that the person who sustained the alleged injury, damage, or loss died before expiration of the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 for the presentation of the claim (six months after date cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops accrued, or one year after date of accrual of any other cause of action) [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(4)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which these points are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of hearing and a form of petition for relief from the claim requirement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers; California Tort Claims Act .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.36

§ 196.36 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--General Grounds

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CLAIMANT _____ [MUST BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM BECAUSE THE FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM WAS THROUGH _____ [MISTAKE and/or INADVERTENCE and/or SURPRISE and/or EXCUSABLE NEGLECT], AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC ENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME NOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Right to Petition for Relief From Claim Requirement. [See § 196.33, Paragraph A.]

B. Grounds for Relief. The claimant is entitled to relief from the claim requirement when the application to the public entity for leave to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued and the failure to present a timely claim was through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, unless the public entity establishes that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the court grants the relief (Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1); Ebersol v. Cowan (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 427, 431, 197 Cal. Rptr. 601, 673 P.2d 271).

C. Relief Is Mandatory. [See § 196.33, Paragraph C.]

D. Resolution of Doubts in Favor of Relief. Because the primary policy underlying Government Code Section 946.6 is that of trial on the merits, any doubts should be resolved in favor of granting relief (Bettencourt v. Los Rios Cmty.

Coll. Dist. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 270, 275-276, 228 Cal. Rptr. 190, 721 P.2d 71).

[Optional] E. Reasonable Time. Because a person who failed to present a timely claim to the public entity due to mistake or inadvertence cannot apply for leave to present a late claim until the mistake is discovered, an application for leave to present a late claim presented shortly after the mistake is discovered, and within one year after the cause of action accrued, is within a reasonable time (Gov. Code § 946.6; Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 32-33, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818).

[Optional] F. Applicability of Case Authority Construing *Code Civ. Proc. § 473. The showing required for relief because of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Government Code Section 946.6 is generally same as that for relieving a party from a dismissal under Code of Civil Procedure Section 473. Therefore, cases construing Code of Civil Procedure Section 473 may be cited for the meaning of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Government Code Section 946.6 (Ebersol v. Cowan (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 427, 435, 197 Cal. Rptr. 601, 673 P.2d 271 ; Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 29, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818).

[Optional] G. Public Entity Has Burden of Showing Prejudice if Relief Is Granted. Once it is shown that an application for leave to file a late claim was made within a reasonable time and that the failure to present a timely claim was through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, the burden shifts to the public entity to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the court relieves the petitioner from the provisions of Government Code Section 945.4, which provide that, with specified exceptions, no suit for money or damages may be brought against a public entity on a cause of action for which a claim is required to be presented until a written claim therefor has been presented to the public entity and has been acted on by the board, or has been deemed to have been rejected by the board (Ramariz v. County of Merced (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 688-689, 239 Cal. Rptr. 774).

[Add points and authorities supporting the specific ground justifying relief from the claim presentation requirement (see, e.g., §§ 196.37 -196.41).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have presented a timely claim to the public entity as a condition precedent to his or her filing of a lawsuit when the application to the public entity for leave to file a late claim was presented within a reasonable time not exceeding one year after the date the cause of action accrued and was denied or deemed denied pursuant to Gov. Code § 911.6 (failure or refusal to act on application within 45 days or any extended period agreed to in writing by the parties) [see Gov. Code §§ 911.4(b), 946.6(c)]. The ground for relief is that the failure to present a claim within the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 (six months after date cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops accrued, or one year after date of accrual of any other cause of action) was through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]. Relief is authorized unless the public entity establishes that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the relief is granted [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1); see County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625 n.3, 242 Cal. Rptr. 215] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which these points are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if relief is sought on the ground of excusable neglect when the claimant made diligent but futile attempts to retain legal counsel, counsel should state the facts showing that the claimant, by attempting to retain legal counsel, made a reasonable effort to ascertain whether or not he or she had a claim but was rebuffed by the attorneys contacted and thus did not identify the claim until the period for presenting a claim had passed [see Ebersol v. Cowan (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 427, 439, 197 Cal. Rptr. 601, 673 P.2d 271 ; see also § 196.36[3][a]].

[b] Requirement That Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Neglect Be Excusable

Of the four stated grounds (mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect), only neglect is qualified by the adjective "excusable." Nevertheless, it is "uniformly held" that for relief on any or all of the stated grounds it must be shown that one's misconception was reasonable or might have been the conduct of a reasonably prudent person under similar circumstances [Kaslavage v. West Kern County Water Dist. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 529, 534 n.1, 148 Cal. Rptr. 729 (citing Shaddox v. Melcher (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 598, 601, 76 Cal. Rptr. 80)]. Apparently, because the inquiry in all cases under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) is whether the person's actions were reasonable under the circumstances, the cases interpreting Gov. Code § 946.6 have not always differentiated the four grounds. Decisions favoring the public entity are noted in § 196.36[5].

In relying on relief from default cases under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see Optional Paragraph F of the form), only cases involving excusable mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect may be used. The provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), providing for relief from dismissal or default based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, regardless of excusability, does not apply to relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 [Tackett v. City of Huntington Beach (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 60, 64-67, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of hearing and a form of petition for relief from the claim requirement, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender). For discussion relating to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms relating to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Grounds for Relief

In Ebersol v. Cowan (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 427, 197 Cal. Rptr. 601, 673 P.2d 271 , claimant was a privately employed bus driver transporting mentally retarded teenagers to a work training program run by a county school district. She was bitten and seriously injured by one of the teenagers and immediately began seeking legal advice on the matter. The first two attorneys contacted informed her that she had no claim and they were not retained. The claimant continued her efforts to retain counsel for approximately four months, but not one of the attorneys contacted expressed an interest in the case and none of them advised her regarding the nature of her claim. Unknown to claimant, the former 100-day (now six-month) limitation for presenting a claim against the county expired before she was finally able to obtain counsel. Twenty-seven days after the period expired, claimant presented to the county a written application for leave to present a late claim pursuant to Gov. Code § 911.4. The application was summarily rejected, and claimant petitioned the superior court for relief from the claim requirement pursuant to Gov. Code § 946.6. The superior court denied the petition on the ground claimant had failed to make a sufficient showing of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. Claimant appealed the denial.

The Supreme Court reversed the order denying relief and remanded the cause to the trial court. The substantive portion of its opinion is discussed further in § 196.41[3][a]. Before beginning its analysis of the facts, however, the Court cited Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) for the rule that the court must grant a petition for relief under that statute if the claimant demonstrates by a preponderance of the evidence that the application to the public entity was made within a reasonable time not exceeding one year after the accrual of the cause of action, and if the court concludes that the failure to timely present the claim was through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. The Court further said that under Gov. Code § 946.6(e), the trial court must make an independent determination on the petition, relying on any affidavits in support of or in opposition to the petition and any additional evidence received at the hearing on the petition. The Court also stated that the court must then determine whether the public entity would be prejudiced by the granting of the petition (35 Cal. 3d 427, 431) .

[b] Resolution of Doubts in Favor of Relief

In Bettencourt v. Los Rios Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 270, 228 Cal. Rptr. 190, 721 P.2d 71 , plaintiffs consulted an attorney concerning a possible cause of action against a community college and its employees. The attorney, under the mistaken belief that the community college employees were employees of the state of California, filed a claim with the state. By the time the attorney realized that he should have filed the claim with the local community college district, the former 100-day (now six-month) claims period had lapsed. Plaintiffs' application for leave to present a late claim was denied by the college district, and plaintiff's petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 was denied by the superior court.

The Supreme Court reversed, holding that the trial court had abused its discretion in denying relief. The Court reasoned that, because the primary policy underlying Gov. Code § 946.6 is that of trial on the merits, and because it is a remedial statute intended to provide relief from technical rules, it should be construed in favor of relief whenever possible (42 Cal. 3d 270, 275-276) .

[c] Reasonable Time

In Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818 , plaintiff's wife was killed in an automobile accident, which plaintiff claimed was caused by a dangerous and defective condition in the highway. Plaintiff failed to present a timely claim against the state based on information received from insurance adjusters experienced in claims work that he had a year in which to bring an action. When plaintiff consulted an attorney almost nine months after the accident, he learned of the 100-day (now six-month) claim requirement and within two weeks presented an application to the State Board of Control for leave to present a late claim, which application was denied. Plaintiff and his minor son then petitioned the trial court for relief from the claim requirement based on mistake. The court granted the son's petition but denied that of the plaintiff who then appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the order denying relief. The Court said that before one is entitled to relief, in addition to showing that the failure to file a timely claim was due to mistake or excusable neglect, a petitioner for relief must also show that application to the board for leave to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time not to exceed one year after the date on which the cause of action was deemed to have accrued and must also act with reasonable diligence after discovering the default (66 Cal. 2d 24, 31) . The Court held that both of these requirements were met, that plaintiff did not discover the mistake until he had consulted with an attorney and then acted with reasonable diligence to apply to the state for leave to present a late claim (66 Cal. 2d 24, 31-32) . The Court further explained that when plaintiff's mistake was the actual cause of his failure to comply with the claim presentation requirement, his application to the board could obviously not have been made until he discovered his mistake, and the delay was, therefore, reasonable under the circumstances (66 Cal. 2d 24, 32) .

[d] Applicability of Case Authority Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 473

The facts and procedural background of Ebersol v. Cowan (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 427, 197 Cal. Rptr. 601, 673 P.2d 271 , are discussed in § 196.36[3][a]. In reversing the order denying relief from the claims requirement and remanding the cause to the trial court, the Supreme Court said that the showing required for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 because of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is the same as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for relieving a party from a default judgment (35 Cal. 3d 427, 435) .

The facts and procedural background of Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818 , are discussed in § 196.36[3][c]. In reversing the order denying the father's petition for relief, the Supreme Court said that the showing required of a petitioner seeking relief because of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under former Gov. Code § 912(b)(1) [now see Gov. Code § 946.6] is the same as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for relieving a party from a default judgment (66 Cal. 2d 24, 29) . The Court then examined the cases under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to determine what constitutes a reasonable mistake (66 Cal. 2d 24, 29) .

NOTE:

Only cases involving excusable mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), may be used to support relief under Gov. Code § 946.6. The provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), providing for relief from a dismissal or default based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, regardless of excusability, does not apply to relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 [Tackett v. City of Huntington Beach (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 60, 64-65, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133] .

[e] Public Entity Has Burden of Showing Prejudice if Relief Is Granted

In Ramariz v. County of Merced (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 239 Cal. Rptr. 774 , plaintiff injured himself, suffering quadriplegia, when he allegedly struck his head on an object while swimming in a lake owned by an irrigation district and operated by a county's Parks and Recreation Division. His devastating injuries, inability to speak English, lack of family in the area, and ignorance of the Government Code resulted in his not filing a claim within the required period. Two hundred fifty five days after the alleged accident he filed an application for leave to present a late claim and a proposed claim for damages, which was denied. Plaintiff then sued the irrigation district and county for damages. Defendants demurred to the complaint on the ground plaintiff had failed to comply with the claim filing requirements, in response to which plaintiff filed a motion for relief from the claims filing requirement. After a hearing, the trial court denied the petition for relief and sustained the demurrers. The court of appeal reversed, holding that plaintiff's failure timely to file his claim was the result of excusable neglect under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) and that his applicationfor leave to file a late claim was made within a reasonable time. The court of appeal remanded the case to the trial court for a determination as to whether defendants were prejudiced by plaintiff's delay in filing. On remand, the county's motion, in which the irrigation district joined, for denial of relief from the claims requirement and dismissal of the complaint, was supported by several declarations that sought to establish prejudice. The motion was granted on the ground that defendants suffered prejudice because plaintiff's lateness in seeking relief prevented defendants from locating any persons, whether employees, bystanders, or emergency personnel, who had any knowledge of the incident, or from developing any information as to the location or causation of the incident. Plaintiff again appealed.

In reversing the judgment with directions to vacate the order denying plaintiff's petition for relief from the claim filing requirements and to grant the petition, the court of appeal stated that, once it is shown that an application for leave to file a late claim was made within a reasonable time and that the failure to present a timely claim was through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, the burden shifts to the public entity to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the court relieves the petitioner from the provisions of

Gov. Code § 945.4 (194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 688-689) . The court acknowledged that it found no reported case defining what constitutes prejudice in this context but agreed with Van Alstyne (Val Alstyne, California Government Tort Liability (Cal. C.E.B. 1980, p. 517)) that the showing of prejudice, when asserted, appears to require a factual basis for concluding that the delay has substantially impaired the entity's ability to present a full and fair defense on the merits (194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 689) . The court found the declarations in support of the motion deficient in that they showed only that defendants had been unable to find any witnesses having knowledge of plaintiff's alleged injury or any physical evidence that may have contributed to the injury and had been unable to determine where the alleged injury is supposed to have occurred (194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 691) . The court said that completely absent from the declarations was any change of circumstances that could have affected the location of the incident causing plaintiff's injury, such as a change in the water level of the lake, or any showing that any such witness or physical evidence would have been discoverable had plaintiff filed a timely claim. The court said that on the basis of the evidence before the trial court, whether there ever were any such witnesses, physical evidence, or change of circumstances are matters of pure speculation, and that there was no substantial evidence to support the trial court's finding that defendants suffered prejudice. The court said that it necessarily follows that the trial court abused its discretion in denying plaintiff's petition for relief from the claim filing requirements (194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 691) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Grounds for Relief

In Bertorelli v. City of Tulare (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 432, 225 Cal. Rptr. 582 , petitioner, having been injured in a traffic accident involving a municipal vehicle, engaged in continual settlement discussions with an insurance adjuster for the municipality during the 100-day (now six-month) claim period following the accident. The petitioner was not aware of the limitation period until he contacted an attorney after the period had passed. The trial court denied the petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6. The court of appeal reversed, holding that if there is undisputed evidence of ongoing settlement discussions within the former 100-day (now six-month) period between the injured party and an adjuster or other agent for a public entity, the injured party's failure to present a timely formal claim may, under some circumstances, be excused even though the injured party made no attempt to employ counsel (180 Cal. App. 3d 432, 436) .

[b] Applicability of Case Authority Construing Code Civ. Proc. § 473

Additional cases stating that the showing required of a petitioner seeking relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is the same as that required under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for relieving a party from a default judgment include Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 233 n.5, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 ; County of Santa Clara v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 545, 550 n.1, 94 Cal. Rptr. 158, 483 P.2d 774 ; County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 242 Cal. Rptr. 215 ; Kaslavage v. West Kern County Water Dist. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 529, 535, 148 Cal. Rptr. 729 ; Flores v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 483, 91 Cal. Rptr. 717 ; and Nilsson v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 979, 58 Cal. Rptr. 20 (predecessor statute).

NOTE:

Only cases involving excusable mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), may be relied on to support relief under Gov. Code § 946.6. The provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), providing for relief from default based on an attorney's affidavit of fault regardless of excusability does not apply to relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 [Tackett v. City of Huntington Beach (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 60, 64-65, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133] .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Grounds for Relief

[i] Diligence

In Tammen v. County of San Diego (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 468, 58 Cal. Rptr. 249, 426 P.2d 753 , further discussed in § 196.38[4][a], the Supreme Court, in affirming the denial of the widow's petition for relief from failure to present to the county a timely claim for wrongful death and reversing the denial as to the minor child, said that a person seeking relief must show both (1) that the application to the public entity for leave to present a late claim was made within a reasonable time not to exceed one year after the accrual of the cause of action and (2) that he or she falls within one of the four alternative situations set forth in former Gov. Code § 912 [now Gov. Code § 946.6], that is, mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect (66 Cal. 2d 468, 474) .

In People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 39, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60 , an apparent arson along a highway caused a car fire that killed a woman. Her husband and children filed a late claim against the state that alleged failure to properly maintain the roadside. They waited almost eight months after the death before first consulting an attorney, which they finally did only on the suggestion of the husband's barber. Two weeks later, their attorney filed an application to present a late claim, which was denied by operation of law when the state failed to respond within 45 days. The claimants successfully petitioned the superior court for relief from failing to file a timely claim based on Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1), but the court of appeal granted a writ of mandate compelling the superior court to vacate its order. The court of appeal held that the claimants could not demonstrate reasonable diligence because they claimant did nothing within the six-month period for filing claims (105 Cal. App. 4th 39, 44-45) . The court also rejected the argument that the late claim should be excused because the claimants believed that the fire was caused by an arsonist, because their proposed theory of recovery was that the state was negligent in failing to maintain the weeds and shrubbery along the highway, which represented a dangerous condition no matter how the fire was started (105 Cal. App. 4th 39, 45) .

In Department of Water & Power v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1288, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173 , the Department of Water & Power of the City of Los Angeles sought a writ of mandate from the court of appeal directing the trial court to vacate its order granting a petition for relief for filing a late claim against the City. The petition had been granted in favor of an automobile accident victim who was seeking to file a claim against the City based on the Department's role in causing the roadway at the site of the automobile accident to be flooded. In granting the writ of mandate, the court of appeal held that the accident victim's total failure to investigate the Department's potential liability and take action within the requisite time period was not reasonable under the circumstances. The accident victim, who was represented by counsel, at all relevant times had or had ready access to the police report of the accident, which indicated that a crew was working on a water line near the accident, gave the crew supervisor's name, and indicated that the roadway was flooded. The police had also taken photographs of the scene, available to the victim, which showed the crew working in the area (82 Cal. App. 4th 1288, 1292, 1295-1296) .

In Spencer v. Merced County Office of Educ. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 750 , plaintiff was crossing the street when she was hit by a car driven by defendant, who was acting in the course and scope of his employment with the County Office of Education at the time of the accident. Plaintiff retained two lawyers. The first, sent a letter claiming damages on behalf of plaintiff, and received a letter back indicating that the County Office of Education, rather than the County, was defendant's employer and the proper public entity to serve. However, this lawyer erroneously completed but did not file a claim form against the County. The second lawyer received plaintiff's case file which included the above letter, the claim form against the County, and a police accident report listing the County Department of Education as defendant's employer. Because of the completed claim form in the file, the second lawyer assumed the prior attorney had determined that the County was the correct public entity to be served, and filed a government tort claim for plaintiff against the County. The claim was rejected. Plaintiff petitioned for relief from the claim presentation requirements of the Tort Claims Act on the ground of excusable neglect. The trial court denied her petition and plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the mistake was not reasonable under the circumstances and that plaintiff's counsel was not otherwise diligent. The court found that counsel, who failed to consult a roster of public agencies, investigate the case, hire an investigator, request information about the accident involving plaintiff, or read the police report and letter in plaintiff's file which indicated defendant's employer, was not reasonably diligent in determining the proper public entity to serve (59 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1440) .

In Munoz v. State of California (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1767, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860 , plaintiff appealed an order denying permission to file a late tort claim for wrongful death against a governmental entity. The claim was based on defendant's failure to treat plaintiff's father for cancer. Plaintiff argued that any neglect in filing the late claim was excusable because it was caused by defendant's failure to honor plaintiff's attorney's repeated requests for medical records. Plaintiff contended that the medical records were needed before counsel could file a claim in good faith. In affirming the denial of permission to file the late claim, the court of appeal notedthat the specificity required for service of a notice in a medical malpractice case, required by Code Civ. Proc. § 364, does not apply to the filing of a claim under Gov. Code § 911.2. Instead, the contents of a claim are governed by Gov. Code § 910, which requires only a general description of the injury. The court thus concluded that the lower court was correct that plaintiff's counsel's goal of perfect precision was no excuse for failure to file the claim within the statutory six-month period (33 Cal. App. 4th 1767, 1785) .

In Greene v. State of California (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 117, 272 Cal. Rptr. 52 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order denying the petition for relief from the claim-filing requirement. The court cited the general rule that a petitioner must show more than the failure to discover a fact until too late; he or she must establish that in the use of reasonable diligence, he or she failed to discover it. Petitioner had been injured in a traffic accident, and the purported reason for the failure to timely file a claim was his ignorance about which public entity owned the road where the accident occurred. The court was not convinced that this was the result of excusable neglect, observing that his counsel had received a copy of the CHP report covering the investigation of the accident, which showed that the accident occurred on a state road, clearly part of the state highway system, and that should have placed counsel on notice of the state's potential liability. It rejected the argument that counsel erroneously believed the county owned the road, saying that counsel should have immediately filed a claim with the state to protect her client's interests (222 Cal. App. 3d 117, 121-122).

In Rojes v. Riverside Gen. Hosp. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 250 Cal. Rptr. 435 , the court of appeal affirmed an order denying relief to a petitioner who had argued that he had not timely filed his claim because he had not been timely informed that defendant hospital was a public entity. The court held that petitioner did not meet his burden of showing that he or his attorney had used reasonable diligence in failing to discover that fact. Indeed, to the contrary, petitioner admitted signing admission forms and receiving billing envelopes that did identify the hospital's connection with the county; petitioner had not noticed the designation on either of these. Petitioner unsuccessfully argued that the hospital had an affirmative duty to inform him that it was a public entity, and to identify itself as such on his medical records, which were examined by his attorney. The court of appeal disagreed, holding that the burden was on petitioner to use reasonable diligence to ascertain the public status of the hospital and the consequent necessity of filing a claim; the hospital had no affirmative duty to identify itself as a public entity to petitioner or to tell him to file a claim (203 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1163-1164). The court noted that a public entity cannot misrepresent itself to be a nonpublic entity, and under Gov. Code § 7530 is required to identify itself as a public entity when it is identifying itself for any purpose. However, the hospital met this requirement in its identification on the admission papers and on the billing envelopes, and was not required to include this identification on petitioner's medical records as well (203 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1165-1166) .

In Clark v. City of Compton (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 522, 99 Cal. Rptr. 613 , the court of appeal, in affirming an order denying relief, after quoting the rule from Tammen, held that the same showing is required under Gov. Code § 946.6 as that required on a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, including the requirement of reasonable diligence in applying for relief and that no such showing had been made (22 Cal. App. 3d 522, 527-528) .

[ii] Reasoned Decision Not to Present Claim

In Hernandez v. Garcetti (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 675, 683-684, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 , the court of appeal affirmed that plaintiff's claim for spoliation of evidence was not timely presented to a county district attorney's office. The spoliation claim arose when an automobile that was to be used as evidence in a product liability action was sold to satisfy a storage lien after having been impounded by the county in conjunction with a DUI charge pending against plaintiff's husband. The impounded automobile was sold in October 1996, and while plaintiff's attorney learned of the sale in mid-December 1996, plaintiff did not present the spoliation claim until July 1997, more than six months after plaintiff's attorney learned the vehicle had been sold and three to four months after the attorney abandoned his attempts to locate the vehicle. Although plaintiff's counsel knew of the spoliation claim and the claim filing time requirements, he argued that he believed the spoliation claim accrued only when he abandoned his attempts to locate the evidence, and thus the claim presented was timely. The court of appeal disagreed, holding that the claim accrued at the latest when it was learned that the automobile had been sold and the decision not to file the claim within six months after learning that the automobile had been sold was an unreasonable mistake of law that was not excusable under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) (68 Cal. App. 4th 675, 683-684) .

In Mitchell v. Department of Transp. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 210 Cal. Rptr. 266 , the court of appeal, in upholding the trial court's denial of plaintiff's petition for relief from the claim presentation requirement, held that an attorney's failure to present a claim based on a reasoned decision that no cause of action lay against a public entity did not constitute excusable neglect or positive misconduct. A party who relies on the attorney's decision by not presenting a timely claim cannot later obtain relief from claim presentation requirements on those grounds (163 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1019-1023) .

[b] Reasonable Time

In Hasty v. County of Los Angeles (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 623, 131 Cal. Rptr. 347 , the court of appeal held that a 60-day delay, from the time thepetitioner's attorney received a complete investigator's report on the accident at issue until the filing of an application to file a late claim, was an unreasonable delay. Therefore, it held that the trial court's denial of the application for relief from claim requirements was proper (61 Cal. App. 3d 623, 626-627) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.37

§ 196.37 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Mistake of Law by Layperson

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief, and should be combined with general points and authorities supporting the contention that the claimant should be relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to the public entity (see, e.g., § 196.36).]

THE CLAIMANT _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM BECAUSE THE FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM WAS THROUGH A MISTAKE OF LAW BY A LAYPERSON AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC ENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME NOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Mistake of Law Defined. A mistake of law is a mistake occurring when a person knows the facts as they really are but has a mistaken belief as to the legal consequence of those facts (Powell v. City of Long Beach (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 109, 218 Cal. Rptr. 97).

B. Mistake of Law by Layperson. A mistake of law, although not excusable when made by an attorney, may be excusable when made by a layperson (Powell v. City of Long Beach (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 109, 218 Cal. Rptr. 97).

C. Honest Mistake. Relief should be allowed when the failure to present a timely claim was the result of an honest mistake of law by a claimant (Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 27-31, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818 ; Powell v. City of Long Beach (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 109-111, 218 Cal. Rptr. 97).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have presented a timely claim to a public entity. The ground for relief is that the failure to present a claim within the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 (six months after date of cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops accrued, or one year after date of accrual of any other cause of action) was the result of the claimant's mistake of law [see Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]. Relief is authorized unless the public entity establishes that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the relief is granted [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]. Decisions favoring the public entity are noted in § 196.37[5].

These points and authorities may be used alone or in conjunction with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.36 and 196.38 -196.41. They should be combined with other points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law Defined

In Powell v. City of Long Beach (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 218 Cal. Rptr. 97 , petitioner sought relief from denial of permission to present a late claim to a public entity. Petitioner was injured in a work-related accident on a public wharf, although there were no signs posted indicating that the property was in fact owned by a municipal entity. Petitioner, believing that the wharf was owned by his employer, obtained workers' compensation benefits, believing them to be his exclusive remedy. After disagreeing with his employer concerning consultation with a company physician, and approximately five months after the accident, petitioner consulted anattorney. Shortly thereafter, he presented to the public entity a claim along with an application for leave to present a late claim, both of which were denied. The superior court denied the petition for relief, and petitioner appealed.

In reversing the order with directions to grant the petition, the court of appeal said that a mistake of law is a mistake occurring when a person knows the facts as they really are but has a mistaken belief as to the legal consequence of those facts (172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 109) .

[b] Mistake of Law Made by Lay Person

The facts and background of Powell v. City of Long Beach (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 218 Cal. Rptr. 97 , are discussed in § 196.37[3][a]. In reversing the order with directions to grant the petition for relief from the claim presentation requirement, the court of appeal, quoting Tammen v. County of San Diego [Tammen v. County of San Diego (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 468, 479, 58 Cal. Rptr. 249, 426 P.2d 753 ; see § 196.38[4][a]], said that a mistake of law may be excusable when made by a layperson, but not when made by an attorney (172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 109) .

[c] Honest Mistake

The facts and background of Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818 , are discussed in § 196.36[3][c]. Plaintiff failed to present a timely claim to the State Board of Control based on information received from insurance adjusters experienced in claims work that he had a year in which to bring an action, from which he erroneously concluded that an action against the state could be brought in the same manner and within the same time limits as one against a private person. When plaintiff consulted an attorney almost nine months after the accident, he learned of the 100-day (now six-month) claim requirement and within two weeks presented an application to the State Board of Control for leave to present a late claim, which application was denied. In reversing the order denying relief, the Supreme Court stated that the showing required of a claimant seeking relief from the claim requirement based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is the same as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for relieving a party from a default judgment and that an examination of the cases applying Code Civ. Proc. § 473 disclosed that not every mistake of law is excusable but that an honest mistake is excusable, the determining factor being the reasonableness of the misconception (66 Cal. 2d 24, 29) . The Court said that plaintiff's erroneous conclusion was not an unreasonable misconception or one that the average prudent person in the conduct of important business affairs would not have formed (66 Cal. 2d 24, 29-30) . The Court concluded that plaintiff's honest mistake of law in reliance on an insurance investigator's statements that plaintiff had one year to act was the type of mistake contemplated by the statute; thus the petition should have been granted (66 Cal. 2d 24, 31-33) .

The facts and background of Powell v. City of Long Beach (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 218 Cal. Rptr. 97 , are discussed in § 196.37[3][a]. In reversing the order with directions to grant the petition for relief from the claim presentation requirement, the court of appeal said that not every mistake is excusable, but an honest mistake is excusable if the misconception is reasonable (172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 109) . Petitioner's failure to seek advice of counsel was excusable because he believed that workers' compensation was his sole remedy. Under the circumstances, petitioner's actions were reasonable (172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110) . Petitioner presented a claim well within the one-year limitation imposed by Gov. Code § 946.6 and, hence, did not prejudice the city in its efforts to obtain fresh evidence and resolve the matter in a speedy manner. Judicial policy favors trial on the merits, especially when doubts exist as to the excusability of a petitioner's conduct (172 Cal. App. 3d 105, 111) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Honest Mistake

In Syzemore v. County of Sacramento (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 517, 127 Cal. Rptr. 741 , petitioner for relief from the claim requirement was a young, inexperienced serviceman who was injured allegedly as a result of a dangerous condition maintained by the county. He did not learn of the claim requirement until 19 days after the former 100-day (now six-month) period for presenting the claim had expired. He promptly consulted an attorney and applied for leave to present a late claim, which was denied; he then petitioned the court for relief from the claim requirement, which was also denied. The court of appeal reversed holding that his mistake and neglect were clearly excusable (55 Cal. App. 3d 517, 524) .

NOTE:

The court of appeal in Harrison v. County of Del Norte [Harrison v. County of Del Norte (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1, 213 Cal. Rptr. 658] expressly declined to follow Syzemore. The Harrison court said that the appellant in the case before it sought solace in Syzemore, which concluded that it was an abuse of discretion for the trial court to deny relief to a layperson unlearned in the law, ignorant of the four claim requirement, and unaware of the existence of the tenable cause of action, and the appellant cited four cases that seemingly follow Syzmore. The court said that in each of the four cases, Syzmore is cited only as dicta. The court then respectfully declined to follow Syzmore, "because it is inconsistent with governing authority" [Harrison v. County of Del Norte (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7 n.5, 213 Cal. Rptr. 658] .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Mistake of Law

The following court of appeal decisions uphold trial courts' denials of petitions and hold that mere ignorance of the existence of the claim requirement and failure to consult an attorney does not constitute a showing of mistake sufficient to entitle petitioners to relief: Drummond v. County of Fresno (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1406, 1412, 238 Cal. Rptr. 613 ; Garcia v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 701, 708-709, 219 Cal. Rptr. 544 ; Harrison v. County of Del Norte (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7, 213 Cal. Rptr. 658 ; El Dorado Irrigation Dist. v. Superior Court (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 57, 62, 159 Cal. Rptr. 267 ; Tsingaris v. State of California (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 312, 314, 154 Cal. Rptr. 135 ; Roberts v. State of California (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 844, 847, 114 Cal. Rptr. 518 ; Bennett v. Los Angeles (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 116, 119-121, 90 Cal. Rptr. 479 ; Martin v. City of Madera (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 76, 80-82, 70 Cal. Rptr. 908 .

[b] Deliberate Failure to Comply with Claims Statutes

NOTE:

Mistakes concerning the existence of the claims requirement, for which relief has sometimes been granted, should be distinguished from deliberate failure to comply with the claims requirement as the result of a mistake concerning the effect of filing a claim, for which relief cannot be granted.

Mitchell v. Department of Transp. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 210 Cal. Rptr. 266 , is discussed in § 196.36[3][a][ii].

In Rivera v. City of Carson (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 718, 173 Cal. Rptr. 4 , a petition was filed for relief from the provisions of Gov. Code § 945.4 that require the presentation of a written claim to the city before bringing an action against it. The petition alleged that the delay in presenting the claim was the result of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect on the part of petitioners in that they feared that criminal proceedings would be filed against them as a result of the accident that was the basis of the claim. Petitioners' counsel apparently feared that presenting a claim would jeopardize petitioners' position in the criminal proceedings. The petition was denied as to one of the petitioners, who asserted only mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect as the grounds for delay.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that under certain circumstances, claimant's mistaken belief as to the existence, or applicability of the claims statutes, or even mere forgetfulness on the part of claimant's attorney, may be considered adequate mistakes to justify relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1). The court said, however, that in those instances the failure timely to file was not deliberate and that a deliberate decision not to comply with the claims statutes cannot be considered mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. Referring to this case, the court said the record indicated that petitioner intentionally chose not to file a claim pending the outcome of the criminal proceedings, but there was no discernible basis for his counsel's apparent belief that the filing of a claim would have jeopardized his position in such proceedings. The court, therefore, held that those circumstances did not constitute cognizable mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect in connection with the failure to present a timely claim (117 Cal. App. 3d 718, 724-725) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.38

§ 196.38 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Excusable Neglect Caused by Reliance on Investigative Report

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief, and should be combined with general points and authorities supporting the contention that the claimant should be relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to the public entity (see, e.g., § 196.36).]

THE CLAIMANT _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM BECAUSE THE FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM WAS THROUGH THE _____ [CLAIMANT'S EXCUSABLE NEGLECT or EXCUSABLE NEGLECT OF THE INVESTIGATOR EMPLOYED BY THE CLAIMANT'S ATTORNEY], AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TO THE PUBLICENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME NOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Excusable Neglect Defined. Excusable neglect is that neglect which might have been the act of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances (Boas v. County of San Diego (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 355, 358, 169 Cal. Rptr. 828).

[EITHER]

B. Excusable Neglect of Claimant in Relying on Public Entity's Request to Forgo Action Pending Investigative Report. Relief should be granted when the failure to present a timely claim resulted from the claimant's compliance with the public entity's request to forgo any action pending its investigative report (Boas v. County of San Diego (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 355, 358, 169 Cal. Rptr. 828).

[OR]

B. Excusable Neglect of Attorney's Investigator. Relief should be granted when the failure to present a timely claim resulted from the investigation of an accident by an investigator, employed by claimant's attorney, which was reasonably diligent but mistakenly failed to disclose the potential liability of the public entity (Kaslavage v. West Kern County Water Dist. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 529, 536-538, 148 Cal. Rptr. 729).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to a public entity. The ground for relief is that the failure to present a claim within the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 (six months after date of accrual of cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops, or one year after date of accrual of any other cause of action) was the result of excusable neglect [see Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)], specifically, that the claimant complied with the public entity's request to forgo action pending an investigative report or relied on the report of an investigator, employed by the claimant's attorney, which failed to identify the potential liability of the public entity, although the investigator otherwise acted diligently in investigating the accident. Relief is authorized unless the public entity establishes that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the relief is granted [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]. Decisions favoring the public entity are noted in § 196.38[4].

These points and authorities may be used alone or in conjunction with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.36, 196.37, and 196.39 -196.41. These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Excusable Neglect Defined

In Boas v. County of San Diego (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 355, 169 Cal. Rptr. 828 , petitioners' daughter was suffocated on April 10, 1979, after sinking in an area along the San Diego River. Despite suffering emotional trauma resulting from their daughter's death, petitioner father contacted several government agencies during early May in an attempt to discover the property owner responsible for the dangerous condition at the accident site and to ascertain the available remedies. On June 12th, the father contacted the office of a San Diego County supervisor and suggested protective measures to prevent future accidents at the site. The supervisor's office promised an investigation and told the father to forgo any other action pending the county's investigative report. On August 27th, after the 100-day (now six-month) period in which to present a claim had expired, the office sent the father a letter implying that the county did not own the accident site. In September the father contacted an attorney who determined that the county owned the property and on September 18th the father filed an application to present a late claim. On November 6th, the father filed a petition for relief from the claim presentation requirement. The trial court denied the petition, and petitioners appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court said that excusable neglect is that neglect which might have been the act of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances (113 Cal. App. 3d 355, 358) .

[b] Excusable Neglect of Claimant in Relying on Public Entity's Request to Forgo Action Pending Investigative Report

The facts and procedural background of Boas v. County of San Diego (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 355, 169 Cal. Rptr. 828 , are discussed in § 196.38[3][a]. In reversing the judgment denying the petition for relief, the court of appeal said that Gov. Code § 946.6 is liberally interpreted and that the policy of deciding cases on their merits supports resolving doubts in favor of the application for relief (113 Cal. App. 3d 355, 358) . The court held that petitioner's neglect was excusable because he believed he had done everything necessary to notify the county of the claim and reasonably relied on the assurances of an investigation in waiting until the report was received before consulting an attorney (113 Cal. App. 3d 355, 358) . The court said that in light of the county's request that petitioner forgo other action pending the county's investigation and the county's supplying inaccurate information regarding ownership of the property, petitioner's neglect to file a timely claim was excusable (113 Cal. App. 3d 355, 358) .

[c] Excusable Neglect of Attorney's Investigator

In Kaslavage v. West Kern County Water Dist. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 529, 148 Cal. Rptr. 729 , plaintiff was seriously injured while swimming when he dove from a pipe into an irrigation canal and struck his head. Plaintiff consulted an attorney who sent an investigator to the scene. The investigator spent parts of two days in the investigation but mistakenly failed to ascertain the identity of the public entity that owned the pipe. As a result, a timely claim was not presented to that public entity and plaintiff's application to present a late claim, made eight days after discovery of the fact, was denied. The plaintiff's petition for relief to the trial court was denied. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the failure to discover the existence of, and present a claim to, the public entity, though neglectful, was not inexcusable and that the trial court had abused its discretion in denying the petition as there was no allegation or proof that the public entity would be prejudiced by granting relief (84 Cal. App. 3d 529, 536-537) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Investigative Mistakes Generally

In Tammen v. San Diego County (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 468, 58 Cal. Rptr. 249, 426 P.2d 753 , plaintiff's husband was killed when his automobile struck two horses which had strayed onto the highway. She immediately consulted an attorney but several months passed before it was suggested that there might be a claim against the county for failure to maintain the highway so that it would not be in a dangerous and defective condition by being exposed to roaming livestock. Six months after that suggestion, the application to present a late claim was presented. The Supreme Court upheld the denial of the widow's petition for relief, holding that the attorney's failure to investigate for that period of time was unreasonable (66 Cal. 2d 468, 478-480) .

In Black v. Los Angeles County (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 670, 91 Cal. Rptr. 104 , petitioner's attorney investigated the accident but went to the wrong location, which prevented him from ascertaining the possibility of a claim against the county. The proper location was available in the police report. The court of appeal upheld the denial of the petition and held that the attorney's failure to use reasonable diligence made his neglect inexcusable (12 Cal. App. 3d 670, 674-678).

In Shaddox v. Melcher (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 598, 76 Cal. Rptr. 80 , plaintiff and her attorney failed to make a timely claim against the state even though the state car involved in the accident had a state emblem on it and the driver's employment by the state was revealed in statements to the police. The court of appeal upheld the denial of the petition for relief on the basis that the failure to investigate was inexcusable neglect (270 Cal. App. 2d 598, 602) .

In Fresno v. Superior Court (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 25, 163 Cal. Rptr. 807 , the court of appeal, in issuing a writ of mandate directing the trial court to set aside its order granting relief, held that the total failure of plaintiff's attorney to investigate the ownership of a garage in the basement of a Hilton Hotel to determine that it was maintained by the city, a fact the attorney discovered only after defendant filed a cross-complaint against the city, was not excusable neglect (104 Cal. App. 3d 25, 33-34).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.39

§ 196.39 Supporting Contention that Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Attorney's Excusable Neglect in Calendaring

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief, and should be combined with general points and authorities supporting the contention that the claimant should be relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to the public entity (see, e.g., § 196.36).]

THE CLAIMANT _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM BECAUSE THE FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM WAS THROUGH A CALENDARING MISTAKE OF THE CLAIMANT'S ATTORNEY, AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC ENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIMENOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Excusable Neglect Defined. [See § 196.38, Paragraph A.]

B. Calendaring Mistake by Attorney. Calendar errors by an attorney or a member of the attorney's staff are excusable when the claimant has done everything necessary to enable a claim to be timely presented, the application to the public entity for relief from the timely filing requirement is made within a reasonable time not to exceed one year after the accrual of the cause of action, and there is no showing by the public entity that it would be prejudiced if relief were granted (Nilsson v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 979-983, 58 Cal. Rptr. 20 ; see Flores v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 483-485, 91 Cal. Rptr. 717 ; Segal v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 509, 511-512, 90 Cal. Rptr. 720).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to a public entity. The ground for relief is that the failure to present a claim within the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 (six months after date of accrual of cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops, or one year after date of accrual of any other cause of action) was the result of the excusable neglect [see Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)] of the attorney, consisting of an error in calendaring. Relief is authorized unless the public entity establishes that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the relief is granted [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)].

These points and authorities may be used alone or in conjunction with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.36 -196.38, 196.40, and 196.41. These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Calendaring Mistake by Attorney as Sufficient

In Nilsson v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 58 Cal. Rptr. 20 , the court of appeal reversed an order denying claimant's petition for leave to file a late claim under Gov. Code § 912(b)(1) (repealed, now see Gov. Code § 946.6, providing for relief from having to present any claim at all when an application to present a late claim has been rejected or deemed denied). Claimant had been arrested by city police, held in custody, and later released after charges against her had been dropped. While in custody, she consulted an attorney who sent the police department a letter suggesting that his client might have a cause of action for false imprisonment and requesting the names of the complainants, the arresting officers, and the deputy district attorney contacted after the arrest. The late filing of the claim was due to an office error in calendaring a date and was not done to prejudice the defendant or to hide the fact that a claim was to be made. The time for filing the claim expired on April 7th; the claim was filed on May 19th; the application to file a late claim was presented on September 19th. The appellate court noted that the application for leave to present a late claim was filed within one year after the accrual of the cause of action and that no showing was made that the city would be prejudiced if leave were granted. The appellate court concluded that the trial court's order of denial could have been made only on a finding that the claimant did not apply for leave to present a late claim within a reasonable time or that the failure to present the claim was not through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect (249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 979) . The court said that while not every mistake of an attorney constitutes excusable neglect, calendar errors by an attorney or a member of his or her staff are, under appropriate circumstances, excusable (citing cases in which relief had been granted) (249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 980-981) . The court noted that at least one other case had granted relief when the claimant's own neglect caused the delay [see Viles v. State of California (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 24, 56 Cal. Rptr. 666, 423 P.2d 818] , and observed that the remedial purpose of the statute authorizing relief would not be served if relief were available when the claimant caused the delay but not, as in the present case, when the claimant's attorney caused the delay. Courts are somewhat loath to penalize a litigant on account of some omission on the part of the attorney, particularly where the litigant has acted promptly and has relied on the attorney to protect his or her rights (249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 982) . The court recognized that a claimant must act with reasonable diligence after discovering the default but held that the attorney's delay in applying for relief to file a late claim was immaterial in the absence of any showing of prejudice to the city (249 Cal. App. 2d 976, 982) .

In Flores v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 91 Cal. Rptr. 717 , plaintiffs, the parents of a child who died on the day of birthbecause of allegedly medically inappropriate procedures in a county hospital, consulted counsel, retained them, and remitted to them the cost of copying the hospital records, all within the statutory period allowed for the filing of the claim, but the claim was filed 23 days late because the attorneys failed to open a file on the case and thus were not reminded of the 100-day (now six-month) limitation period. The trial court denied the petition for relief. The court of appeal reversed, holding that under the facts of the case the attorney's error was excusable neglect. The court stated that, while not every mistake of an attorney constitutes excusable neglect, calendar errors by an attorney or a member of his or her staff are excusable under appropriate circumstances (13 Cal. App. 3d 480, 483-484) .

In Segal v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 509, 90 Cal. Rptr. 720 , the claim was filed one day late due to the attorney's mistaken calculation of the applicable time period. The trial court denied the petition for relief. The court of appeal reversed, holding that allowing relief from the claim requirements in such circumstances was consistent with the intent of the statute (12 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Calendaring Mistake by Attorney as Sufficient

In Renteria v. Juvenile Justice, Dep't of Corr. & Rehab. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 903 , the plaintiff was bitten by a correctional officer's dog while incarcerated in a juvenile correctional facility. Prior to expiration of the six-month period for filing a claim, the plaintiff's attorney filed a court petition to perpetuate testimony and preserve evidence relating to the event. A deputy attorney general sent a letter to the plaintiff's attorney informing the attorney that a court order would not be necessary and that they would take steps to preserve the evidence. A member of the attorney's staff erroneously assumed after reviewing this letter that a claim had been filed and removed the six-month deadline from their calendar. Nine days after expiration of the six-month deadline, the plaintiff filed a petition to file a late claim with the state. When no response was received, the petition was deemed rejected. The plaintiff sought relief from the court, but the trial court denied the plaintiff's petition to file a late claim. The court of appeal reversed, concluding that the calendaring error constituted excusable neglect. The court concluded that the attorney's reliance on his staff to calendar the deadline was reasonable, and that the error by the attorney's staff was a reasonable mistake under the circumstances. In addition, the plaintiff had exercised appropriate diligence in hiring an attorney and pursuing his claim, and the petition to file a late claim was made only nine days after expiration of the six-month deadline. Finally, the Division of Juvenile Justice had not demonstrated that they would be prejudiced by allowing the late claim (135 Cal. App. 4th 903, 911-912).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.40

§ 196.40 Supporting Contention that Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Excusable Neglect Caused by Emotional Trauma or by Inability to Think Clearly Induced by Medication

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief, and should be combined with general points and authorities supporting the contention that the claimant should be relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to the public entity (see, e.g., § 196.36).]

THE CLAIMANT _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM BECAUSE THE FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM WAS THROUGH EXCUSABLE NEGLECT CAUSED BY _____ [EMOTIONAL TRAUMA or INABILITY TO THINK CLEARLY INDUCED BY MEDICATION TAKEN PURSUANT TO PRESCRIPTION FOR THE INJURY SUSTAINED], AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC ENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME NOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Excusable Neglect Defined. [See § 196.38, Paragraph A.]

[EITHER]

B. Neglect Based on Emotional Trauma. Neglect is excusable and relief should be granted when the claimant's failure to present a timely claim was caused by emotional trauma suffered by the claimant (County of Santa Clara v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 545, 552-554, 94 Cal. Rptr. 158, 483 P.2d 774).

[OR]

B. Neglect Based on Inability to Think Clearly Induced by Medication Prescribed for Injury. Neglect is excusable and relief should be granted when the claimant's failure to present a timely claim was caused by the claimant's inability to think clearly which was induced by the medication prescribed and taken as a result of the claimant's injury (County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 242 Cal. Rptr. 215).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention thatthe claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have presented a timely claim to a public entity. The ground for relief is that the failure to present a claim within the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 (six months after the date a cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops accrued, or one year after the date of accrual of any other cause of action) was the result of the claimant's excusable neglect [see Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)] caused by emotional trauma or by inability to think clearly because of the medication taken pursuant to prescription as a result of the claimant's injury. Relief is authorized unless the public entity establishes that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the relief is granted [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)].

These points and authorities may be used alone or in conjunction with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.36 -196.39, 196.41. These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Neglect Based on Emotional Trauma

In County of Santa Clara v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 545, 94 Cal. Rptr. 158, 483 P.2d 774 , the respondent trial court had granted plaintiffs' petition for relief from the claim requirement based in part on the testimony of plaintiffs' attorney that the claim for wrongful death was not timely filed because of the emotional trauma resulting from the death of plaintiffs' son, on which the claim was based, during the trial of the son's action against the county in which a timely claim by the son had been presented and denied. In upholding the decision of the trial court, the Supreme Court held that the emotional trauma was sufficient to make the neglect or inadvertence excusable (4 Cal. 3d 545, 554) .

[b] Neglect Based on Inability to Think Clearly Induced by Medication Prescribed for Injury

County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 242 Cal. Rptr. 215 , was a mandate proceeding which arose out an action against a county by a worker who had been injured on August 22, 1985, when his leg was crushed while he was repairing slide damage on a public road. The worker was hospitalized for several weeks after the accident and underwent surgery on his leg. He later returned to the hospital for further surgery consisting of a bone graft. During this period, he was taking prescribed pain medication. The worker did not learn about the claim-filing requirements until May 4, 1986, when he consulted an attorney, and consequently failed to present a timely claim to the county. His application for leave to present a late claim was presented on May 29, 1986, and denied by operation of law. He then petitioned for an order relieving him of the claim presentation requirement of Gov. Code § 945.4 (requirement that claim be presented before suit may be brought against a public entity) on the ground of excusable neglect, grounded primarily on his physical and mental condition following the accident. He testified that while he was on the medication prescribed he could not think clearly or tend to important business. A physician familiar with the effects of the medication (Percodan) testified by affidavit that opioids, of which Percodan is one, generally induce in patients a state of apathy toward their painful stimuli and many times toward their surroundings. The trial court granted plaintiff's petition for relief, and the county petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate, challenging the trial court's order. The court of appeal denied the petition for the writ. The Supreme Court granted review and transferred the petition to the court of appeal with directions to issue the alternative writ.

In denying the peremptory writ and discharging the alternative writ after hearing, the court of appeal said it had "no difficulty in concluding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion" in finding that the worker was excused for his neglect in failing to file a timely claim (196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624-625) . The court further concluded that on considering the evidence of real party (plaintiff) that the medication prevented him from thinking clearly, and the expert evidence supporting the possibility of such an effect, the finding of excusable neglect was not unsupported by the evidence (196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625) .

The court distinguished Harrison v. County of Del Norte [Harrison v. County of Del Norte (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1, 213 Cal. Rptr. 658] , a case the court had previously decided on generally similar facts, on the ground that in Harrison the trial court denied relief, and the court of appeal upheld its discretion (in the case before it, the trial court had granted relief and again the court of appeal was upholding the trial court's discretion) (196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624) . The court also distinguished Lutz v. Tri-City Hospital [Lutz v. Tri-City Hosp. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 807, 224 Cal. Rptr. 787] , in which plaintiff contended his physical incapacity during the period in which a claim could have been timely filed excused his failure to present a claim to a public hospital, on the ground that plaintiff did not suggest how his claimed paraplegia prevented him from presenting his claim within the specified period (196 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Neglect Based on Emotional Trauma

In People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 39, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60 , an apparent arson along a highway caused a car fire that killed a woman. Her husband and children filed a late claim against the state that alleged failure to properly maintain the roadside. They waited almost eight months after the death before first consulting an attorney, which they finally did only on the suggestion of the husband's barber. Two weeks later, their attorney filed an application to present a late claim, which was denied by operation of law when the state failed to respond within 45 days. The claimants successfully petitioned the superior court for relief from failing to file a timely claim based on Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1), but the court of appeal granted a writ of mandate compelling the superior court to vacate its order. The court of appeal held that the claimants could not demonstrate reasonable diligence because they claimant did nothing within the six-month period for filing claims (105 Cal. App.4th 39, 44-45) . The court also rejected the argument that excusable neglect could be found, based on the emotional effect that the accident had on the husband, because the evidence only indicated a 17-day stay in the hospital by the husband and a bare allegation of postaccident depression, with no evidence showing how these conditions substantially interfered with the husband's ability to function or seek out legal counsel. In addition, no evidence was offered excusing the total lack of diligence by the children (105 Cal. App. 4th 39, 46) .

126 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.41

§ 196.41 Supporting Contention that Failure to Present Timely Claim to Public Entity Is Excused--Failure Was Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)]--Excusable Neglect Caused by Claimant's Fruitless Efforts to Secure Counsel

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief, and should be combined with general points and authorities supporting the contention that the claimant should be relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to the public entity (see, e.g., § 196.36).]

THE CLAIMANT _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] RELIEVED FROM HIS/HER FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM BECAUSE THE FAILURE TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM WAS THROUGH EXCUSABLE NEGLECT CAUSED BY PLAINTIFF'S FRUITLESS EFFORTS TO OBTAIN AN ATTORNEY TO TAKE THE CASE, AND THE APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO PRESENT A LATE CLAIM, WHICH WAS _____ [DENIED or DEEMED DENIED BY LAPSE OF TIME], WAS PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC ENTITY WITHIN A REASONABLE TIME NOT EXCEEDING ONE YEAR FROM THE DATE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED.

A. Excusable Neglect Defined. [See § 196.38, Paragraph A.]

B. Failure to Present Timely Claim Resulted From Claimant's Inability to Obtain Legal Counsel Notwithstanding Diligent Efforts to Do So. Neglect in failing to present a timely claim is excusable and relief from the failure should be granted when the failure was caused by the claimant's inability, as a result of the repeated refusals by numerous attorneys to take the claimant's case, to secure the services of legal counsel until after the period for presenting a claim had expired, and the claimant did not learn of the possible cause of action against the public entity until legal counsel was obtained and then promptly applied for leave to present a late claim (Ebersol v. Cowan (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 427, 434, 197 Cal. Rptr. 601, 673 P.2d 271).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant is entitled to be, should have been, or was properly relieved from his or her failure to have timely presented a claim to a public entity. The ground for relief is that the failure to present a claim within the time specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 (six months after date of accrual of cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops, or one year after date of accrual of any other cause of action) was the result of the excusable neglect [see Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)] of the claimant caused by the claimant's inability to obtain legal counsel despite diligent efforts to do so. Relief is authorized unless the public entity establishes that it would be prejudiced in the defense of the claim if the relief is granted [Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1)].

These points and authorities may be used alone or in conjunction with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.36 -196.40. These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) or in opposition to points and authorities filed by the defendant. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

For a discussion of when the complaint on the claim must be filed if the points and authorities are submitted in support of a petition for relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 and the court grants the relief, see § 196.143[2].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Present Timely Claim Resulted From Claimant's Inability to Obtain Legal Counsel Notwithstanding Diligent Efforts to Do So

The factual background of Ebersol v. Cowan (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 427, 197 Cal. Rptr. 601, 673 P.2d 271 , is discussed in § 196.36[3][a]. In holding that claimant's failure to present a timely claim against the county wasdue to excusable neglect, the Court said that excusable neglect is neglect that might have been the act or omission of a reasonably prudent person under the same or similar circumstances (35 Cal. 3d 427, 435) . The county argued on appeal that claimant should be denied relief since she had made no effort to identify her claim against the public entity within the 100-day (now six-month) period. Examining earlier appellate cases dealing with the issue, the Court found that those cases did not require claimants seeking relief under Gov. Code § 946.6 to undertake their own factual investigations. The cases indicated instead that the claimant must at a minimum make a diligent effort to obtain legal counsel within 100 days (now six months) after the accrual of the cause of action. The court noted that the claimant in the case before it had diligently attempted to obtain legal advice and retain counsel on the matter but was discouraged from pursuing the claim by the attorneys she contacted. Given that nine attorneys told her she had no claim, it could not be reasonably expected that claimant would undertake, or should have undertaken, her own legal or factual investigation (35 Cal. 3d 427, 439) .

NOTE:

Although incorrect legal advice may provide a sufficient basis on which to grant relief from the claims-filing requirement, it does not toll the running of the statute of limitations. In a medical malpractice action against a private hospital and private doctors rather than an action against a public entity or public employees, as in Ebersol, the Court distinguished Ebersol on the ground that the claim-statute relief provisions addressed in that case were fundamentally distinct from the statute of limitations issue involved in case at bench [Gutierrez v. Mofid (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 892, 901, 218 Cal. Rptr. 313, 705 P.2d 886] . The Court said that (1) the 100-day (now six-month) government claim requirement is an obstacle in addition to the normal limitations period applicable to the tort alleged; (2) because the claim period is so short, and because lay persons may have no idea of its existence, it looms as a trap for the unwary; (3) realizing this, the legislature has devised a remedial scheme for relief from this harsh and technical deadline when justice so requires; (4) by the terms of Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1), relief is justified in this special case for any "neglect" of plaintiff (or his or her counsel) which is excusable; and (5) with traditional exceptions, the language of Gov. Code § 946.6(c)(1) invites inquiry into all aspects of plaintiff's diligence in presenting his or her claim, and the courts have so concluded [Gutierrez v. Mofid (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 892, 901, 218 Cal. Rptr. 313, 705 P.2d 886] . The Court said that, by contrast, the one-year limitations period for medical malpractice [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5] begins to run on discovery, actual or constructive, of an injury and expires inexorably one year later, that the legislature has made no provision in medical malpractice actions for relief on general grounds of excusable neglect to file in time, and that the discovery limitations period for medical malpractice is not delayed, suspended, or tolled when a plaintiff with actual or constructive knowledge of the facts underlying the malpractice claim is told by an attorney that he or she has no remedy [Gutierrez v. Mofid (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 892, 902, 218 Cal. Rptr. 313, 705 P.2d 886] .

127 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
1. Failure To File Timely Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.42-196.59

[Reserved]

§§ 196.42[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
2. Claim Presentation Provisions Tolled or Substantially Met

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.60

§ 196.60 Supporting Contention That Period for Presenting Claim [Gov. Code § 911.2] Was Tolled--Belated Discovery

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT PLAINTIFF'S CLAIM WAS UNTIMELY _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [PLEADED or SHOWN] THAT BECAUSE OF HIS/HER BELATED DISCOVERY OF THE FACTS, PLAINTIFF'S CAUSE OF ACTION DID NOT ACCRUE UNTIL _____ [date].

A. Belated Discovery Rule. Under the belated discovery rule, a cause of action does not accrue from the occurrence of the last essential fact or from discovery of the damage to property, but, rather, from the point in time when plaintiff becomes aware, or could have become aware through the exercise of reasonable diligence, of defendant's negligence as a cause (Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 527, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78).

B. Showing Required for Belated Discovery Rule to Apply. To raise the issue of belated discovery, the plaintiff must state when the discovery was made, the circumstances behind the discovery, and plead facts showing that the failure to discover was reasonable, justifiable, and not the result of a failure to investigate or act. Once belated discovery is pleaded, the issue of whether plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in discovering the negligent cause of the injury is a question of fact (Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 527, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78).

C. Test for Determining Applicability of Belated Discovery Rule. The test for determining whether the belated discovery doctrine applies to toll the California Tort Claims Act limitations period for filing a claim (Gov. Code §§ 911.2, 911.4) is whether the plaintiff has information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry, or has the opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to his or her investigation. If the plaintiff believes that, because of the injury suffered, someone has done something wrong, such a fact is sufficient to alert the plaintiff to the necessity for investigation and the pursuit of his or her remedies (Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 527, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78).

D. Test for Determining Reasonable Diligence. The test for determining whether the plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in discovering the negligent cause of the injury is not whether the plaintiff was successful in his or her timely investigation, but whether the plaintiff's efforts were reasonable (Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 528, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78).

E. When Cause of Action Is Preserved by Belated Discovery Rule. For purposes of the California Tort Claims Act limitation provisions (Gov. Code §§ 911.2, 911.4), the belated discovery doctrine preserves a plaintiff's cause of action when, despite diligent investigation, he or she is blamelessly ignorant of the cause of his or her injuries. The rule also protects the defendant, who is spared precipitous litigation (Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 529, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant's cause of action did not arise until discovery of the defendant's negligence as a cause of plaintiff's injury, and that plaintiff's claim was therefore timely presented to the public entity.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the claim against the public entity was untimely and the action is barred for that reason, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action is so barred. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Belated Discovery Rule

Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 , was an action against a deputy sheriff and his employing county for damages. A driver had been killed in a one-car accident on February 19, 1982. A deputy sheriff arrived on the scene and placed alongside the victim's body an empty vodka bottle that he had found some distance away. Plaintiff, a newspaper photographer, arrived a short time later and, in the presence of the deputy sheriff, photographed the scene without knowing that it had been contrived by the placement of the bottle. The photograph was published in the newspaper for which plaintiff worked, which caused a local storm of protest. Because of the publication of the misleading photograph, plaintiff was fired and his reputation as a newspaper photographer suffered. The survivors of the accident victim sued the photographer and the newspaper, among others, but not the deputy sheriff, for damages for intentional infliction of emotional distress, claiming the plaintiff and the newspaper had staged the photograph. On being sued, plaintiff undertook to investigate whether someone had tampered with the accident scene. Plaintiff spoke to the California Highway Patrol officers who attended the scene and they claimed to have no knowledge that the bottle had been moved. Plaintiff tried unsuccessfully to speak to the deputy sheriff, who was uncooperative. The sheriff's department issued a statement asserting that there were no grounds for suspecting that the deputy sheriff was a party to any wrongdoing. During the course of the survivors' lawsuit, the deputy sheriff, on November 11, 1984, testified that he had found the vodka bottle some distance from the accident victim's body and placed it next to the body. Plaintiff did not learn of this testimony until January 7, 1985. Four days later, he filed a claim with the county for damages for loss of job, for loss of reputation, and for emotional distress and suffering. The county rejected the claim and plaintiff sued. Plaintiff alleged that the deputy sheriff knew plaintiff was a newspaper photographer and that the deputy sheriff had either negligently or intentionally injured plaintiff by not warning plaintiff that the accident scene had been altered. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the negligence action without leave to amend and to the intentional conduct action with leave to amend on the ground, among others, that plaintiff had failed to file a timely claim with the county. Plaintiff declined to amend, and the action was dismissed. Plaintiff appealed, claiming that his complaint sufficiently alleged the tolling of the California Tort Claims Act limitation statutes (Gov. Code § 911.2, 911.4) under the doctrine of belated discovery because the cause of his injury, the deputy sheriff's negligence, was unknown until January 7, 1985.

The court of appeal reversed as to the negligence cause of action and affirmed as to the intentional conduct cause of action. The court pointed out that a cause of action normally accrues at the time of injury, but added that, in some situations, the cause of action does not accrue from the occurrence of the last essential fact, or from discovery of the damage to property, but rather from the point in time when plaintiff becomes aware of the defendant's negligence as a cause, or could have become so aware through the exercise of reasonable diligence (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 527) .

[b] Showing Required for Rule to Apply

The facts and procedural background of Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 , are discussed in § 196.60[3][a]. In reversing the judgment, the court said that to raise the issue of belated discovery, the plaintiff must state when the discovery was made, the circumstances behind the discovery, and plead facts showing that the failure to discover was reasonable, justifiable, and not the result of a failure to investigate or act, and that once belated discovery is pleaded the issue of whether plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in discovering the negligent cause of the injury is a question of fact. The court concluded that the complaint alleged facts sufficient to establish these pleading requirements and so raised the issue of belated discovery (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 527) .

[c] Test for Determining Applicability of Belated Discovery Rule

The facts and procedural background of Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 , are discussed in § 196.60[3][a]. In reversing the judgment, the court said that the test for belated discovery is whether the plaintiff has information of circumstances that is sufficient to put a reasonable person on inquiry, or has the opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to his or her investigation, and that if plaintiff believes that he or she sustained injuries because someone had done something wrong, such a fact is sufficient to alert the plaintiff to the necessity for investigation and the pursuit of his or her remedies (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 527) .

[d] Test for Determining Reasonable Diligence

The facts and procedural background of Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 , are discussed in § 196.60[3][a]. In reversing the judgment, the court discussed the investigation undertaken by plaintiff and said that it was true that the survivors' lawsuit put plaintiff on notice of the possibility that someone had moved the vodka bottle and that plaintiff had reason to believe that the deputy sheriff might know something about it, but that the test for diligence is not whether plaintiff was successful in his timely investigation of the causeof his injury, but whether his efforts were reasonable (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 528) . The court concluded that it could not find, as a matter of law, that the plaintiff was not diligent because he had been unsuccessful in his efforts to discover the truth (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 527-528) .

[e] When Cause of Action is Preserved by Belated Discovery Rule

The facts and procedural background of Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 , are discussed in § 196.60[3][a]. In reversing the judgment, the court explained that to find as a matter of law that plaintiff was not diligent because he was unsuccessful in his efforts to discover the truth, would encourage other plaintiffs to file suits against government entities even though a diligent investigation fails to uncover facts that give rise to a cause of action (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 528-529) . For the purposes of the California Tort Claims Act limitation provisions (Gov. Code § 911.2, 911.4), the court said that the belated discovery rule protects the plaintiff, whose cause of action is preserved when, despite diligent investigation, he or she is blamelessly ignorant of the cause of his or her injuries, and that the rule also protects the defendant, who is spared precipitous litigation (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 529) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Test for Determining Applicability of Belated Discovery Rule

The facts and procedural background of Reyes v. County of Los Angeles (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 584, 243 Cal. Rptr. 35 , are discussed in § 196.33[5][a]. In affirming the order denying the petition for relief from the claim presentation requirement on the ground that the application for leave to present a late claim was not presented within one year after the cause of action accrued (which the trial court determined to be a date almost three years after the alleged medical malpractice occurred), the court of appeal, quoting Gutierrez v. Mofid (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 892, 897-898, 218 Cal. Rptr. 313, 705 P.2d 886 , an action for medical malpractice not involving a public entity, said that the uniform California rule is that a limitations period dependent on discovery of the cause of action begins to run no later than the time the plaintiff learns, or should have learned, the facts essential to his or her claim. It is irrelevant that plaintiff is ignorant of his or her legal remedy or the legal theories underlying his or her cause of action. If one has suffered appreciable harm and knows or suspects that professional blundering is the cause, that is sufficient to commence the running of the limitations period (197 Cal. App. 3d 584, 591) . The court further pointed out that any concealment by the entity's employees of a claimant's injuries does not toll the accrual of the cause of action once discovery has occurred (197 Cal. App. 3d 584, 595) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
2. Claim Presentation Provisions Tolled or Substantially Met

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.61

§ 196.61 Supporting Contention That Requirement for Presenting Claim [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] Was Substantially Met

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT PLAINTIFF FAILED TO COMPLY WITH THE CLAIM PRESENTATION REQUIREMENT _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF SUBSTANTIALLY COMPLIED WITH THAT REQUIREMENT.

A. Substantial Compliance. The purpose of the claims statutes is to apprise the public entity of the claim to promote settlement of meritorious claims. Therefore, the claims statutes should not be a trap for the unwary, and substantial rather than strict compliance with the statutes is all that is required (Elias v. San Bernardino County Flood Control Dist. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 70, 74, 135 Cal. Rptr. 621).

[Optional] B. Substantial Compliance Requires Disclosure of Sufficient Information to Enable Public Entity to Make Adequate Investigation. The test of substantial compliance is whether sufficient information is disclosed on the face of the claim to reasonably enable the public entity to make an adequate investigation of the merits of the claim and to settle it without the expense of a lawsuit. A claim need not conform to pleading standards, so long as the facts constituting the cause of action pleaded in any subsequent complaint substantially correspond with the circumstances described in the claim as the basis of the plaintiff's injury (Smith v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 266, 277, 262 Cal. Rptr. 754).

[Optional] C. Filing With Proper Officials. A claim directed to the wrong entity that is filed with the officials who must evaluate the claim and who are the officials of both the entity to whom the claim was directed and the entity to whom the claim should have been directed constitutes substantial compliance with the claimpresentation requirement (Elias v. San Bernardino County Flood Control Dist. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 70, 75-76, 135 Cal. Rptr. 621).

[Optional] D. Filing With State Agency Other Than Board of Control. A claim filed with the state agency responsible for the condition at issue rather than with the state Board of Control, which is the proper agency, constitutes substantial compliance with the claim presentation requirement because the state agency is duty-bound to forward the claim to the Board of Control (Jamison v. State of California (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 513, 516-518, 107 Cal. Rptr. 496).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the claimant substantially complied with the claims presentation requirement of Gov. Code § 905 or 905.2 and that substantial compliance is all that is required. Paragraph C is for use when the claim was presented to the wrong public entity but the officials of that entity and the responsible public entity are the same and thus the proper entity received actual notice of the claim. Paragraph D is for use when the claim was filed with the state agency responsible for the injury rather than with the State Board of Control.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint shows noncompliance with the claims presentation statute, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that no timely claim was presented. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance

Elias v. San Bernardino County Flood Control Dist. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 70, 135 Cal. Rptr. 621 , involved a claim for damages from a defective condition in a road. Plaintiff filed a timely claim against the county and filed suit. A year later, the county moved for a summary judgment based on the fact that the road was owned by the Flood Control District. It obtained the summary judgment and plaintiff served the district as a Doe defendant. The district then obtained a judgment on the pleadings against plaintiff on the theory of noncompliance with the claims statute. The court of appeal reversed and held that plaintiff had substantially complied with the claims statute by filing with the county. The district's officers and directors were also the officers and directors of the county, and the filing of the claim with the county apprised the officers and directors of the claim (68 Cal. App. 3d 70, 75) .

[b] Substantial Compliance Requires Disclosure of Sufficient Information to Enable Public Entity to Make Adequate Investigation

In Smith v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 266, 262 Cal. Rptr. 754 , plaintiffs, owners of homes destroyed by a landslide, filed a tort claim against defendant county claiming property damage and emotional distress, alleging that in creating a roadway, defendant had cut into a hill, thereby removing support for plaintiffs' homes and creating a landslide danger, resulting in the demolition of plaintiffs' homes. They subsequently brought suit on causes of action for inverse condemnation, dangerous condition of public property, and nuisance. Defendant argued that plaintiffs' claims for dangerous condition of public property and nuisance were not timely filed pursuant to the California Tort Claims Act. The trial court disagreed, and entered judgment for plaintiffs on all three causes of action. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. Defendant argued that plaintiffs' tort claim did not sufficiently allege nuisance and dangerous condition of public property in that the claim alleged only that the construction of the road caused the landslide, and that plaintiffs were barred from later contending that clearance of slide debris from the roadway and water runoff over the roadway contributed to the landslide. In responding to defendant, the court explained that in order to be sufficient, a tort claim against a public entity must describe the circumstances of the occurrence or transaction that gave rise to the claim asserted. Although a claim need not conform to pleading standards, the facts constituting the cause of action pleaded in the complaint must substantially correspond with the circumstances described in the claim as the basis of the plaintiff's injury. The test of substantial compliance is whether sufficient information is disclosed on the face of the filed claim to enable the public entity to make an adequate investigation of the merits of the claim and to settle it without the expense of a lawsuit (214 Cal. App. 3d 266, 277) . The court said that although the claim did not expressly encompass the additional facts asserted by plaintiffs at trial regarding removal of debris from the roadway and water runoff, those are not allegations based on a set of facts entirely different from those firstnoticed. The court said the issue was whether the factual basis for plaintiffs' cause of action was fairly reflected in the claim. It concluded that plaintiffs' assertions at trial are matters closely connected with construction of the road, and that the claims were sufficient to put defendant on fair notice that the nature of the road, its maintenance, and its construction were all covered by the claim (214 Cal. App. 3d 266, 279-280) .

[c] Filing With Proper Officials

Elias v. San Bernardino County Flood Control Dist. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 70, 135 Cal. Rptr. 621 , is discussed in § 196.61[3][a].

[d] Filing With State Agency Other Than Board of Control

In Jamison v. State of California (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 513, 107 Cal. Rptr. 496 , the plaintiff was injured in an accident with an employee of the state Department of Water Resources. A timely claim was filed with the Department of Water Resources but no claim was filed with the state Board of Control, where all claims against the state must be filed [see Gov. Code § 915(b)]. The trial court dismissed the action after a motion for judgment on the pleadings. The dismissal was reversed by the court of appeal, which held that the plaintiff had substantially complied with the claims statute. The claim had been filed in good faith with the state agency responsible for the action. That agency had the duty to forward the claim to the Board of Control. Therefore, the purpose of the claims statutes of notification to the state was fulfilled (31 Cal. App. 3d 513, 518) .

NOTE:

One court of appeal has criticized the reasoning of Jamison, especially to the extent that it would permit a finding of substantial compliance in the absence of any evidence that the claim was actually received by the appropriate agency [see Life v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 894, 900-901, 278 Cal. Rptr. 196 ; see also § 196.61 [5][b].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance

White v. Moreno Valley Unified Sch. Dist. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1024, 226 Cal. Rptr. 742 , involved a claim against a school district for damages for personal injuries incurred by plaintiff, a minor. Plaintiff's mother had filed the claim with defendant, claiming medical expenses suffered by plaintiff; however, when plaintiff turned 18, her mother dismissed her separate claim. The trial court granted defendant's motion in limine to exclude evidence of plaintiff's medical expenses. Plaintiff appealed from the trial court's denial of her motion for a new trial, or in the alternative for an additur to the damages awarded against the school district. The court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment and ordered a new trial on the issue of damages. The court held that the claim presented to the school district by plaintiff's mother was sufficient under the doctrine of substantial compliance to put the school district on notice that plaintiff was claiming medical expenses, even though the claim contained medical expenses incurred by plaintiff's mother only, because plaintiff was also responsible for the reasonable value of the medical services rendered to her (181 Cal. App. 3d 1024, 1030) .

Dhuyvetter v. City of Fresno (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 659, 168 Cal. Rptr. 61 , involved a claim against a city for damages arising from the operation of its airport that was filed on behalf of named property owners adjacent to the airport and those residing with them and on behalf of all persons similarly adversely affected. Plaintiffs were granted leave to amend the complaint to add as plaintiffs the children residing with them. The city demurred to the amended complaint, urging that the amended complaint failed to comply with the notice requirements of the claim statutes (Gov. Code §§ 900-996.6). The demurrer was sustained without leave to amend, but the court of appeal reversed, holding that there was substantial compliance with the claim statutes because the city could determine from the original complaint, if not the names of the children, their existence at a particular address, the nature of the damages suffered, a specific sum claimed as damages, to wit, $5,000 per claimant, the alleged cause of the injury and damage, and the allegation that the city was the responsible party for the injury and damages (110 Cal. App. 3d 659, 663-664) .

In Wheeler v. County of San Bernardino (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 143 Cal. Rptr. 295 , plaintiff filed an application to file a late claim relating to recording of an improper survey of plaintiff's property. Plaintiff attached a notice of claim to the application. The application was filed after the 100-day (now six-month) period for personal injury and personal property claims, but within the one-year period for real property damage claims. Plaintiff's complaint was dismissed pursuant to a demurrer for failure to comply with the claims requirement. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the applicable period was one year and that the application to file a late claim, with the attached copy of a proposed claim, constituted substantial compliance with the claims statute (76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 847-848) .

[b] Substantial Compliance Requires Disclosure of Sufficient Information to Enable Public Entity to Make Adequate Investigation

In Connelly v. County of Fresno (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 29, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 720 , plaintiff was injured in an automobile accident allegedly caused when a county employee ran a stop sign. Less than two months later, plaintiff filed a claim with the county describing the nature of the accident and claiming damage to her truck and car rental costs, as well as "unspecified medical, lost income, future medical." However, she did not otherwise state in the claim that she sufferedpersonal injury. Five months later, plaintiff learned the nature of her physical injuries and that surgery would be required. The county subsequently rejected her claim for personal injuries and plaintiff filed suit. The county argued that plaintiff's claim did not state a claim for personal injuries. The court of appeal held that plaintiff had substantially complied with the claim filing requirement for a personal injury claim. The court concluded that the language in the claim seeking "unspecified medical, lost income, future medical" put the county on notice of personal injuries suffered by the claimant in the accident and that the claimant did not at that time know the extent of the injuries or the associated costs. More detailed information could have been obtained by the county had they investigated, rather than merely rejecting the claim (146 Cal. App. 4th 29, 39-42) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance

In Schaefer Dixon Assocs. v. Santa Ana Watershed Project Auth. (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 524, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698 , plaintiff, a construction contractor, alleged that a letter sent to the general manager of a government agency constituted a claim for purposes of the Government Tort Claims Act. The letter outlined the history of plaintiff's work and a dispute over fees, and demanded full payment of invoiced fees. The trial court granted a motion by the defendant agency for summary judgment, basing its ruling on the failure of the letter to threaten litigation. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the letter was never intended and never treated as the functional equivalent of a formal claim. The court stated that although only substantial compliance rather than strict compliance with statutory claim requirements is required, a claim must be readily identifiable as such (48 Cal. App. 4th 524, 533) . The court held that the plain import of plaintiff's letter was merely to provide information and not to advise of imminent litigation over a claim. Furthermore, the letter was not presented as required to the proper person, but was directed to the personal attention of the general manager (48 Cal. App. 4th 524, 534) .

In Johnson v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 692, 266 Cal. Rptr. 187 , after plaintiff was struck and injured by a speeding motorcycle as she left the grounds of a high school, she filed claims for personal injuries with the city of San Diego and the State Board of Control, naming defendant school district as the responsible entity. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendant in plaintiff's subsequent personal injury action on the grounds of her failure to comply with the claim-filing requirement. The court of appeal affirmed, explaining that the doctrine of substantial compliance is not applicable to a claim that is addressed to the wrong entity (217 Cal. App. 3d 692, 697) . It said that although a school district is a state agency, it is a local public entity under the claim-filing requirement of the Tort Claims Act because it is not a state agency; claims against state agencies are paid by warrants issued by the controller (217 Cal. App. 3d 692, 699) . The court distinguished plaintiff's situation from the situations in Elias and Jamison because service on the State Board of Control did not constitute receipt by the proper board ultimately responsible or a subordinate of the governmental entity ultimately liable (217 Cal. App. 3d 692, 700) .

Dilts v. Cantua Elementary Sch. Dist. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 27, 234 Cal. Rptr. 612 , was an action for damages for breach of a written employment contract brought by a district elementary school superintendent whose services had been terminated. The trial court dismissed the action after sustaining the district's demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend. It found that a series of letters from the superintendent's attorney to the district, written on the superintendent's behalf, did not constitute sufficient compliance with the claim-filing requirement of the California Tort Claims Act.

The court of appeal affirmed. It held that actions for breach of contract fall within the scope of claims for money or damages and, hence, compliance with the Tort Claims Act filing requirements is compelled (189 Cal. App. 3d 27, 31) . The court said that the primary function of the Tort Claims Act is to apprise the governmental body of imminent legal action so that it may investigate and evaluate the claim and, when appropriate, avoid litigation by settling meritorious claims. The court added that compliance with the statute is mandatory, and that failure to file a claim is fatal to a cause of action (189 Cal. App. 3d 27, 32) . The court then explained that the issue before it was whether plaintiff filed a defective claim, in which case the doctrine of substantial compliance can be applied, or whether he filed no claim, in which case the doctrine of substantial compliance cannot be invoked (189 Cal. App. 3d 27, 33) . The court held that the series of letters did not constitute a claim within the meaning of the act (189 Cal. App. 3d 27, 36) . The court added that, assuming arguendo that they did constitute such a claim, they did not contain the information required by Gov. Code 910, and, therefore, did not constitute substantial compliance with the act in that they (1) did not contain the name and post office address of the claimant, (2) did not contain the name or names of the public employee or employees causing plaintiff's alleged injury, and (3) did not provide a sufficient description of the circumstances which gave rise to the claim (189 Cal. App. 3d 27, 37) . The court concluded that since the letters did not contain the required information, the defendant district was never given an opportunity to grant or deny a claim against it, and, hence, the letters did not fulfill the purposes of the act (189 Cal. App. 3d 27, 38) .

NOTE:

There is authority that the doctrine of substantial compliance does not apply if the claim fails to set forth the factual basis for recovery [see, e.g., Watson v. State of California (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 844-845, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262] . In addition, some cases have indicated that for the doctrine of substantialcompliance to apply, their must be at least some compliance with all of the statutory requirements [see, e.g., Wood v. Riverside Gen. Hosp. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1116-1119, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 8 (Patient Problem/Complaint Form submitted to hospital quality assurance department, together with Supplemental Note dated a few days later, both complaining about quality of medical care held not to constitute substantial compliance with claims statute when there was total failure to comply with at least two of statutory requirements: (1) failure to transmit document to statutorily designated agent under Gov. Code § 915, and (2) failure to indicate that monetary claim being asserted as required by Gov. Code § 910(f)); see also Del Real v. City of Riverside (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 761, 769-771, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705 (letter sent to individual city employee involved in auto accident with plaintiff was insufficient to constitute claim against city, because letter failed to provide sufficient information about identity of claimant or nature of accident, failed to indicate what injury was suffered or what damages were sought, and merely requested information rather than threatened formal proceedings)].

[b] Filing With State Agency Other Than Board of Control

In Life v. County of Los Angeles (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 894, 278 Cal. Rptr. 196 , plaintiff's attorney filed a personal-injury claim alleging medical negligence some time after plaintiff was treated at a medical center owned and operated by defendant county. The claim was sent to the medical center, to the attention of "legal department," because plaintiff's attorney claimed she had been instructed to do so by an unnamed medical center employee. Five months later plaintiff retained new counsel, who filed a claim with the county board of supervisors, which rejected the claim as untimely. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's grant of summary judgment in plaintiff's subsequent medical malpractice action against defendant county on the ground that plaintiff failed to comply with the claim-filing requirement. Plaintiff contended he had substantially complied with that requirement. The court of appeal said that plaintiff's claim to the medical center's legal department would have constituted substantial compliance only if the misdirected claim were actually received by the appropriate public entity within the time prescribed for presentation. Because there was no evidence to show that the claim actually reached defendant, as a matter of law, there was no substantial compliance with the claims statute (227 Cal. App. 3d 894, 900). The court declined to follow Jamison and criticized its reasoning. It said that Jamison deems the presentation of a claim to a public employee to amount to substantial compliance, irrespective of whether the claim actually reaches the body responsible for evaluating it. The court opined that Jamison's reasoning that regardless of whether the claim was received by the board, it should have been, is at odds with the substantial-compliance doctrine as codified in Gov. Code § 915(c), which demands that the misdirected claim be "actually received" by the appropriate person or board. If a public employee fails to forward a misdirected claim, that claim cannot be in substantial compliance, because it was not "actually received" by the appropriate party. Further, the court criticized Jamison's reliance on a public entity's internal transmittal of a claim, saying it conflicts with Gov. Code § 915, which requires the claimant to file with the appropriate official or board. The court said that by focusing on the duty of a public employee in receipt of a claim to forward it to the proper agency, Jamison shifts responsibility for appropriately filing a claim from the claimant to the public entity (227 Cal. App. 3d 894, 901) .

130 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
2. Claim Presentation Provisions Tolled or Substantially Met

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.62-196.79

[Reserved]

§§ 196.62[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
3. Presentation of Indemnity Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.80

§ 196.80 Supporting Contention That Claim for Equitable or Partial Equitable Indemnity Was Timely Presented [Gov. Code §§ 901, 911.2]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT PLAINTIFF FAILED TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE THE CLAIM WAS PRESENTED WITHIN SIX MONTHS AFTER DEFENDANT/CROSS COMPLAINANT WAS SERVED WITH THE COMPLAINT GIVING RISE TO THE DEFENDANT/CROSS COMPLAINANT'S CLAIM FOR [PARTIAL] EQUITABLE INDEMNITY.

A. Equitable Indemnity Action Authorized. When a plaintiff's injury is proximately caused by the negligent acts of more than one tortfeasor and plaintiff elects to sue fewer than all of the tortfeasors, any of the named defendants can file a cross complaint for equitable indemnity or partial equitable indemnity against unnamed tortfeasors (People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 747, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673).

B. When Claim Must Be Presented. A claim relating to a cause of action for death or injury to person or to personal property or growing crops shall be presented not later than six months after the accrual of the cause of action. A claim relating to any other cause of action shall be presented not later than one year after the accrual of the cause of action (Gov. Code § 911.2).

C. When Cause of Action Accrues. A cause of action for equitable indemnity or partial equitable indemnity accrues on the date on which a defendant is served with the complaint giving rise to the defendant's claim for equitable indemnity or partial equitable indemnity against the public entity (Gov. Code § 901).

D. Indemnity Claim Timely Filed. A claim against a public entity for equitable indemnity or partial equitable indemnity is timely when it is presented within six months after the date on which defendant/cross complainant was served with the complaint giving rise to the indemnity claim (see Gov. Code §§ 901, 911.2).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of the contention that a claim for equitable or partial equitable indemnity is timely when presented within six months after the party claiming indemnity was served with the complaint giving rise to the claim. Counsel should note that it is uncertain whether an indemnity claim against a public entity must be presented within the six-month period or the one-year period specified in Gov. Code § 911.2 for the presenting of a claim after the cause of action has accrued [see § 196.80[3][b]].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint shows noncompliance with the claims presentation statute, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that no timely claim was presented. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Indemnity Action by Subrogee

If a subrogee (for example, an insurance carrier) pays an injured party on behalf of a subrogor (or insured), and the subrogor had already satisfied the claim-filing requirements under Gov. Code § 911.2, the subrogee has the same right of action against the public entity as the subrogor had. Consequently, a subrogee may then proceed with an action against the public entity, and a demurrer brought on the ground that the subrogee failed to comply with claim-filing requirements independently should properly be overruled [Smith v. Parks Manor (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 872, 880-881, 243 Cal. Rptr. 256 (in which the subrogee filed a complaint in intervention, and the public entity's demurrer was ultimately overruled); see Ch. 220, Subrogation].

[c] Indemnity Claim Timely Filed

Claims against public entities under the California Tort Claims Act fall into two categories for purposes of determining whether they are timely filed. A claim relating to a cause of action for death, personal injury, or personal property damage must be presented not later than six months (formerly, 100 days) after the cause of action accrued. A claim relating to any other cause of action must be presented within one year after theaccrual date [Gov. Code § 911.2]. A cause of action for equitable indemnity or partial equitable indemnity accrues on the date when defendant is served with the complaint giving rise to defendant's indemnity claim against the public entity [Gov. Code § 901].

When read together, Gov. Code §§ 901 and 911.2 provide that the time for filing an equitable indemnity claim does not expire until at least six months after the date of accrual of the claimant's cause of action, regardless of the category in which it is classified [see People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 750, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673 (decided under former version of Gov. Code § 911.2, when claim presentation period was 100 days)]. The statutes do not state, however, whether a claim against a public entity for equitable indemnity falls within the six-month or the one-year filing requirement. The Supreme Court has noted, without deciding the issue, that there may be some question concerning the category of Gov. Code § 911.2 into which a claim for equitable indemnity arising out of a governmental entity's tortious activity falls [People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 750, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673] . Thus, it is uncertain whether an indemnity claim is timely when presented between six months and one year after accrual of the cause of action.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Equitable Indemnity Action Authorized

In People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673 , plaintiff sued private persons for injuries resulting from an automobile accident on a state highway, but failed to include the state in the action. Approximately six years after the complaint was filed, defendants filed a cross complaint for equitable indemnity against the state, alleging that the accident was caused by a dangerous condition of public property. The state demurred to the cross complaint on the ground that the action was barred by the California Tort Claims Act because defendants had not filed a claim within 100 days (now six months) of the accident. The trial court overruled the demurrer, and the state then filed a petition for writ of prohibition and/or mandate challenging the trial court's order as arbitrary and in excess of its jurisdiction.

The Supreme Court denied the writ and affirmed the trial court's order overruling the demurrer (26 Cal. 3d 744, 764) . Relying on American Motorcycle Ass'n v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 , the Court noted that when plaintiff's injury is proximately caused by the negligent acts of a number of joint tortfeasors, although each tortfeasor is jointly and severally liable for the injury, plaintiff may not single out only one or a few of the tortfeasors to bear all of the loss. The Court stated that a named defendant who has been so selected for suit may pursue his or her own equitable indemnity action against an additional unnamed tortfeasor to obtain indemnity for any liability that should properly be borne by the additional tortfeasor (26 Cal. 3d 744, 747) . The Court also noted that a tort defendant does not lose the right to seek equitable indemnity from another tortfeasor simply because the original plaintiff's action against the nonnamed party may be barred by the statute of limitations. Defendant's equitable indemnity action, the Court stated, is independent of the plaintiff's action, and a defendant may pursue his or her own indemnity action against the nonnamed tortfeasor as long as the statute of limitations on that action has not expired (26 Cal. 3d 744, 748) .

The Court devoted most of its discussion to the issue of when a cause of action for equitable indemnity accrues and concluded that the action accrues when the tort defendant pays a judgment or settlement for which he or she is entitled to indemnity (26 Cal. 3d 744, 748, 750-762) . This holding was in effect overturned by the legislature's 1981 amendment of Gov. Code § 901, which is set out in Paragraph C of this form.

Finally, the Court concluded that when an equitable indemnity action is pursued through a third-party cross complaint prior to accrual of the cause of action, a prior claim need not be filed with the public entity (26 Cal. 3d 744, 763) . This ruling also was overturned by the 1981 amendment of Gov. Code § 901, because under the statute as amended a private defendant's cause of action for equitable or partial equitable indemnity accrues on the date he or she is served with the complaint giving rise to an indemnity claim, instead of on the date when payment is made. Thus, it would not be possible for an indemnity claim to be pursued by cross complaint prior to the accrual of the indemnity cause of action under Gov. Code § 901.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Accrual of Indemnity Cause of Action

In Greyhound Lines, Inc. v. County of Santa Clara (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 480, 231 Cal. Rptr. 702 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of a petition by defendant in a personal injury action to file a late claim against the county for equitable indemnity. The court held that Gov. Code § 901 created a special accrual date for pursuing equitable claims against the government, which is the date on which a defendant is served with the complaint giving rise to defendant's claim for equitable indemnity against the government. Enactment of Gov. Code § 901 changed the rule established by case law [People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585,

608 P.2d 673 ; see § 196.80[3][a]] that an indemnity claim does not accrue until the party seeking indemnity pays the underlying liability (187 Cal. App. 3d 480, 484) . Following anearlier decision [State of California v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 754, 758, 192 Cal. Rptr. 198] , the court declined to declare a late-discovery rule for the accrual of an indemnity action under Gov. Code § 901 (187 Cal. App. 3d 480, 485-488) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
3. Presentation of Indemnity Claim

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.81-196.99

[Reserved]

§§ 196.81[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
4. Waiver And Estoppel of Claim Presentation Defenses

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.100

§ 196.100 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Waived Defense--Failure to Give Notice of Insufficiency of Claim [Gov. Code § 910.8] Constitutes Waiver of Defense That Claim Is Insufficient [Gov. Code § 911]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT THE CLAIM PRESENTED BY PLAINTIFF WAS INSUFFICIENT _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE DEFENDANT WAIVED THAT OBJECTION BY FAILING TO NOTIFY PLAINTIFF OF THE INSUFFICIENCY.

A. Notice of Insufficiency Is Required. If in the opinion of the _____ [either, if action is against state or state agency, State Board of Control or, if action is against local public entity, name of defendant's governing body], or the person designated by it, a claim as presented fails to comply substantially with the requirements of Sections 910 and 910.2 of the Government Code, or with the requirements of a form provided under Section 910.4 of the Government Code if a claim is presented pursuant thereto, the _____ [board or name of governing body] or the person may, at any time within 20 days after the claim is presented, give written notice of the insufficiency, stating with particularity the defects or omissions in it. The notice shall be given in the manner prescribed by Section 915.4 of the Government Code, and the _____ [board or name of governing body] may not take action on the claim for a period of 15 days after the notice is given (Gov. Code § 910.8).

B. When Document Constitutes a Claim for Purpose of Invoking Waiver. A document presented to a public entity constitutes a "claim as presented," triggering the notice and waiver provisions of Sections 910.8 and 911 of the Government Code, if it discloses the existence of a claim that, if not satisfactorily resolved, will result in a lawsuit against the entity (Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 709, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 ; see Alliance Fin. v. City & County of San Francisco (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 635, 647, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 ; Foster v. McFadden (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 949, 106 Cal. Rptr. 685).

C. Waiver by Failure to Give Notice of Insufficiency. Any defense as to the sufficiency of the claim based on a defect or omission in the claim as presented is waived by failure to give notice of the insufficiency with respect to the defect or omission as provided in Section 910.8 of the Government Code although no notice is necessary and no waiver results if the claim fails to state either the claimant's address or the address of a person to whom the claimant wishes notice to be sent (Gov. Code § 911; see Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 711, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 ; Foster v. McFadden (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 946-949, 106 Cal. Rptr. 685).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to defendant's objection that the claim presented was insufficient and that, therefore, no proper claim was timely presented when the public entity failed to give notice of the insufficiency of the claim as required by Gov. Code § 910.8. Gov. Code § 910.8 uses the term "board," which is defined in Gov. Code § 900.2 as meaning, in the case of a local public entity, the entity's governing body and, in the case of the state, the Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board [see also § 196.13[2]].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, if the complaint on its face, or from judicially noticed matter, shows that the claim presented was insufficient, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the claim presented was legally insufficient. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Document Constitutes a Claim for Purpose of Invoking Waiver

In Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 , plaintiffs, a patient and her husband, asserted multiple tort causes of action against defendant hospital and several treating physicians. Before filing the complaint, plaintiffs' counsel mailed to the hospital a notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a) (requiring potential medical malpractice plaintiffs to notify health care providers 90 days before filing a complaint of the intent to sue). This notice advised the defendants, inter alia, that plaintiffs intended to commence a medical malpractice action against them arising out of services provided at the hospital. The hospital demurred to plaintiffs' complaint on the ground that plaintiffs had failed to state a cause of action because plaintiffs did not allege compliance with claim-presentation requirements. Before the demurrer was scheduled to be heard, plaintiffs filed a first amended complaint stating that they had complied with the Tort Claims Act. Plaintiffs also attached and incorporated by reference applications they had recently sent to the state and county for leave to present a late claim. According to the amended complaint, the hospital's demurrer was the first indication to plaintiffs that the hospital was a public entity. The hospital demurred to the first amended complaint, again on the ground that plaintiffs did not comply with the claim-presentation requirements of the Tort Claims Act. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and subsequently dismissed the amended complaint. Plaintiffs appealed from the order of dismissal, and the court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The Supreme Court granted review and transferred the case to the court of appeal for reconsideration in light of Foster v. McFadden [Foster v. McFadden (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 106 Cal. Rptr. 685] and Gov. Code §§ 910.8, 911, and 911.3. The court of appeal rendered a second opinion in which it reaffirmed its initial judgment and distinguished this case from Foster v. McFadden. The Supreme Court again granted review.

The Supreme Court unanimously reversed the judgment of the court of appeal, with directions to remand to the trial court with directions to vacate its order dismissing the action and to enter an order overruling the demurrer (49 Cal. 3d 699, 712) . The Court noted that Gov. Code §§ 910.8 and 911 use the phrase "claim as presented" to identify a claim that is defective because of its failure to comply substantially with Gov. Code §§ 910 and 910.2. The Court stated that only a "claim as presented that fails to comply substantially" with the claim-presentation requirements triggers the notice and defense-waiver provisions. Defendants attempted to distinguish between defective "claims" that properly trigger the act's notice and defense-waiver provisions and other notices of possible claims, such as plaintiffs' notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 364, which, according to the hospital, it was at liberty simply to ignore without consequence. The Court could perceive no principled basis for the purported distinction, and it concluded that a notice, such as plaintiffs' notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 364, must be treated as a defective claim activating the notice and defense-waiver provisions (49 Cal. 3d 699, 707-708) . The Court concluded that a document constitutes a "claim as presented," triggering Gov. Code§§ 910.8 and 911, if it discloses the existence of a "claim" that, if not satisfactorily resolved, will result in a lawsuit against the entity. A public entity's receipt of written notice that a claim for monetary damages exists and that litigation may ensue places on the public entity the responsibility, and gives it the opportunity, to notify the potential plaintiff pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 910.8 and 911 of the defects that render the document insufficient under Gov. Code §§ 910 and 910.2 and thus might hamper investigation and possible settlement of the claim. Such a written notice claiming monetary damages thereby satisfies the purposes of the Tort Claims Act: to facilitate investigation of disputes and their settlement without trial if appropriate (49 Cal. 3d 699, 709) .

NOTE:

Phillips has been held to apply retroactively [Watts v. Valley Med. Ctr. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1057, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 794 ; Wilson v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 450, 270 Cal. Rptr. 436] .

In Alliance Fin. v. City & County of San Francisco (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 635, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 , plaintiff financing agency purchased a series of invoices from a maintenance company, with the right to payment on those invoices assigned to plaintiff. A number of the invoices were for janitorial services performed at Candlestick Park. Plaintiff forwarded copies of the invoices, with notice that it had been assigned the right to payment, to the department of recreation and parks. No payment was made on the invoices and a series of telephone calls and letters were exchanged. Eventually the matter was brought to the attention of the city attorney, who questioned the validity of the invoices and the plaintiff's right to payment. Over an eight month period, plaintiff's attorney sent a pair of letters to the city attorney seeking payment on the invoices. In the first letter, plaintiff's attorney explained the right to payment and requested that the city attorney provide further information "as promptly as possible so we can avoid the necessity of litigation in this matter." In the second letter, plaintiff's attorney again explained the right to payment and closed by volunteering to "meet with the City's representatives prior to filing an action for recovery of those sums." Several months later, plaintiff filed an action against the City and County of San Francisco seeking payment of the money allegedly owed. Defendant moved for summary judgment on the grounds that plaintiff had not filed a claim as required by the Tort Claims Act. The trial court agreed and granted defendant's motion. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the grant of summary judgment. The court first held that, despite some case authority to the contrary, they agreed with existing court opinions that the claims requirements of the Tort Claims Act applied to actions seeking money owed on a contract (64 Cal. App. 4th 635, 641) . The court next reviewed the statutory claims presentation requirements, noting that a "claim as presented" is a claim that fails to comply substantially with the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 910 and 910.2, but nonetheless puts the public entity on notice that the claimant is attempting to file a valid claim and that litigation will result if it is not paid or the matter otherwise resolved. A "claim as presented" triggers a duty on the part of the public entity to notify the claimant of the defects or omissions in the claim, and a failure to so notify the claimant waives any defense as to the sufficiency of the claim notice (64 Cal. App. 4th 635, 643) . Turning to the communications sent by plaintiff to defendant, the court concluded that the invoices and notices sent to the department of recreation and parks could not be considered a claim or a "claim as presented," in part for failing to communicate that a cause of action for failure to pay the bills had accrued and that litigation might result if the bills were not paid (64 Cal. App. 4th 635, 646) . However, the court considered the two letters sent by plaintiff's attorney to the city attorney and concluded that the requirements for a "claim as presented" had been met. The court noted that the first letter stated the existence of a debt, asserted the right to payment, spoke of avoiding litigation, pointed out that the failure to pay would result in interest and possible future court costs, and asked for more information in order to avoid litigation. Additionally, the second letter confirmed to the city that the claim was ripe and that litigation could be expected if the matter was not resolved. These were held to be sufficient notice of the claim, even though the intent to sue could have been communicated in stronger language and may have been somewhat equivocal (64 Cal. App. 4th 635, 646-647) .

In Foster v. McFadden (1973), 30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 106 Cal. Rptr. 685 , plaintiff was injured in an accident with a public employee. Plaintiff's attorney sent the employee a letter that was not in substantial compliance with the claims statutes (Gov. Code §§ 910, 910.2). The attorney's letter to the employee, with a copy to the employer, gave the client's name and the date and place of the accident, and requested that the employee forward the letter to his insurance carrier and have it contact the attorney immediately, or that the employee contact the attorney if he carried no insurance. The employer, rather than the employee, responded to the letter and informed the attorney of the name, address, and phone number of the employer's insurance carrier and suggested that any further correspondence in connection with the matter be directed to the carrier.

The court of appeal held that the attorney's letter, although not addressed to the employee's employer and not labeled a claim, or even using the word "claim," nevertheless performed the function of a claim (30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 947) . It told the employer of a recent accident at a specifiedtime and place involving a specified employee of the employer and requested that the employer forward the letter to its insurance carrier. By its reply, the employer identified the letter for what it was, an unlabeled and deficient claim by plaintiff against the employer for unstated damages for undescribed injuries he allegedly suffered in an identified but undescribed recent accident involving a specified employee of the employer (30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 947) . The court said, however, that the letter accomplished the two principal purposes of a sufficient claim: (1) it afforded the district the opportunity to make a prompt investigation of the accident and (2) it gave the employer the opportunity to settle without suit if it so desired (30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 949) .

[b] Waiver by Failure to Give Notice of Insufficiency

The facts and procedural background of Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 , are discussed in § 196.100[3][a]. The court found that inasmuch as the hospital failed to notify plaintiffs of the insufficiencies in their Code Civ. Proc. § 364 notice that rendered it defective to comply substantially with Gov. Code §§ 910, 910.2, the hospital waived any defenses it may have otherwise asserted on the basis of such insufficiencies (49 Cal. 3d 699, 711) .

The facts and procedural background of Foster v. McFadden (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 106 Cal. Rptr. 685 , are discussed in § 196.100[3][a]. The court of appeal treated the letter to the employee as an insufficient claim and held that under Gov. Code §§ 910.8 and 911, the public entity waived a defense based on the defects in the claim by not giving the statutorily required notice of insufficiency (30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 949) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Waiver by Failure to Give Notice of Insufficiency

The facts and procedural background of Wilson v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 270 Cal. Rptr. 436 , is discussed in § 196.101[3][a]. The court of appeal concluded that plaintiff's correspondence met the requirement of Phillips v. Desert Hospital District and Foster v. McFadden [Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 ; Foster v. McFadden (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d. 943, 106 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; see § 196.100[3][a]] and thus triggered the notice and defense-waiver provisions of Gov. Code §§ 910.8, 911, and 911.3 (221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449) . The court explained that under Gov. Code § 910.8 defendant had only 20 days from the date plaintiff's claim was presented in which to give him notice of defects in the form or substance of his claim. The court said that because that deadline had begun running with the date of the last letter from plaintiff's counsel, the affirmative defense raised in the answer was already waived by the defendant's inaction. Thus, by the time the answer was served, actual notice of any defects was irrelevant: defendant no longer had any right to assert the defects as a defense (221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449-450) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] When Document Constitutes Claim for Purpose of Invoking Waiver

In Green v. State Ctr. Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1348, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140 , the trial court sustained a demurrer to plaintiff's complaint for personal injuries on the basis that the complaint showed on its face noncompliance with the California Tort Claims Act. Plaintiff contended that a letter by plaintiff's attorney to the governmental entity constituted notice of the claim, and even though the letter did not meet the requirements of the Act it triggered the waiver provisions because the governmental entity did not notify plaintiff of the deficiencies of the claim. The court of appeal disagreed, stating that other than the ambiguous fact that the letter was from an attorney, it found nothing in the letter from which it could infer that a claim was being made or that litigation would follow if the matter was not resolved. According to the court, the letter warned the defendant to contact its insurance carrier and "advise what disposition you wish to make of this matter." The court held that to be sufficient to constitute a trigger claim, the content of the correspondence to the recipient entity must at least be of such nature as to make it readily discernible by the entity that the purpose is to convey the assertion of a compensable claim, which if not otherwise satisfied, will result in litigation. The court then concluded that the letter from plaintiff's attorney did not satisfy this test (34 Cal. App. 4th 1348, 1358) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
4. Waiver And Estoppel of Claim Presentation Defenses

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.101

§ 196.101 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Waived Defense--Failure to Give Timely Notice That Claim Was Late [Gov. Code § 911.3(a)] Constitutes Waiver of Defense That Claim Is Not Timely [Gov. Code § 911.3(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT THE CLAIM PRESENTED BY THE PLAINTIFF WAS NOT TIMELY PRESENTED _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE THE DEFENDANT WAIVED THAT OBJECTION BYFAILING TO NOTIFY THE PLAINTIFF THAT THE CLAIM WAS LATE.

A. Notice That Claim Was Late. When a claim is required by Section 911.2 of the Government Code to be presented not later than six months after accrual of the cause of action, but is presented after that time without the application provided in Section 911.4 of the Government Code, the _____ [either, if action is against state or state agency, Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board or, if action is against local public entity, name of defendant's governing body] or other person designated by it may, at any time within 45 days after the claim is presented, give written notice, substantially in the form prescribed by Section 911.3(a) of the Government Code, to the person presenting the claim that the claim was not timely filed and that it is being returned without further action (Gov. Code § 911.3(a)).

B. Definition of Claim. A document presented to a public entity constitutes a "claim as presented," triggering the notice and waiver provisions of Section 911.3 of the Government Code, if it discloses the existence of a claim that, if not satisfactorily resolved, will result in a lawsuit against the entity (Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 709, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 ; Wilson v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449, 270 Cal. Rptr. 436).

C. When Failure to Give Notice Waives Defense That Claim Was Not Timely. Provided the claim as presented states either an address to which the person presenting it desires notices to be sent or an address of the claimant, any defense as to the time limit for presenting a claim described in Section 911.3(a) of the Government Code is waived by failure to give the notice set forth in that statute within 45 days after the claim is presented (Gov. Code § 911.3(b); Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 711, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 ; Wilson v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449-450, 270 Cal. Rptr. 436).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the public entity waived any defense based on the claimant's failure to present a timely claim subject to the six-month period under Gov. Code § 911.2 by failing to give the claimant timely notice of the late filing [Gov. Code § 911.3]. Gov. Code § 911.3(a) uses the term "board," which is defined in Gov. Code § 900.2 as meaning, in the case of a local public entity, the entity's governing body and, in the case of the state, the Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board [see also § 196.13[2]].

However, although the failure to give notice constitutes a waiver of any defense that the claim was untimely, it does not constitute a waiver of the defense that the action is barred by the statute of limitations set forth in Gov. Code § 945.6 [County of Alameda v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1283, 1287, 241 Cal. Rptr. 312] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, if the complaint on its face, or from judicially noticed matter, shows that the claim presented was late, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the claim presented was not timely presented. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Definition of Claim

The facts and procedural background of Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1988) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 , are set forth in § 196.100[3][a]. The Supreme Court held that a document constitutes a "claim as presented" triggering the notice and waiver provisions of Gov. Code § 911.3 if it discloses the existence of a claim that, if not satisfactorily resolved, will result in a lawsuit against the public entity (49 Cal. 3d 699, 709) .

In Wilson v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 270 Cal. Rptr. 436 , after plaintiff had been terminated from his employment with defendant hospital district, his attorney wrote to the hospital board of directors claiming the termination was wrongful and a breach of contract. In response, defendant retained counsel who wrote back that defendant had not violated any contract provisions and that plaintiff had received all he was entitled to. Plaintiff's counsel engaged in series of letters with defendant's attorney, culminating in a letter dated August 7 explaining that plaintiff would be asking for substantial money as a reasonable settlement, asking if defendant would waive any further discussions and administrative actions so that he could file a lawsuit and if counsel would accept service on behalf of his client. Plaintiff then filed a wrongful-terminationand breach-of-covenant complaint. Defendant's answer to the complaint raised Gov. Code §§ 900.4, 905, and 911.2 as an affirmative defense. In response, plaintiff filed an amended complaint alleging that counsel's correspondence with the hospital board and counsel constituted substantial compliance with the provisions of the claims statute or in the alternative that defendant waived or was estopped to assert the statute. Defendant's demurrer was sustained without leave to amend and the trial court entered a dismissal. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. In response to defendant's contention that the first letter on behalf of plaintiff was not an unequivocal demand for payment of money damages that gave defendant notice that a suit would result if the matter was not resolved, the court expressed its doubt about defendant's reaction to the letter, observing that in response to that letter, defendant felt obliged to retain outside counsel. Aside from that letter, the court was persuaded by the language of the August 7 letter in which plaintiff's counsel informed defendant that plaintiff would indeed be asking for "substantial money" and inquired whether or not opposing counsel would accept service on behalf of his client. The court said that plainly the letter met the requirement of Phillips and McFadden [Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 ; Foster v. McFadden (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 943, 106 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; see § 196.100[3][a]]: in the most unequivocal terms it had advised defendant both that plaintiff had a claim for money damages and that a lawsuit would result if he was not paid. The court concluded that under Phillips and McFadden that letter triggered the notice and defense-waiver provisions of Gov. Code §§ 910.8, 911, and 911.3 (221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449) .

[b] When Failure to Give Notice Waives Defense That Claim Was Not Timely

The facts and procedural background of Phillips v. Desert Hosp. Dist. (1988) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 , are set forth in § 196.100[3][a]. The Supreme Court held that inasmuch as the defendant hospital failed to notify plaintiff of any timeliness defects pursuant to Gov. Code § 911.3, the hospital waived any defenses it might have raised on the ground of plaintiffs' asserted failure to present a timely claim (49 Cal. 3d 699, 711) .

The facts and procedural background of Wilson v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 270 Cal. Rptr. 436 , are discussed in § 196.101[3][a]. The court of appeal held that since plaintiff's August 7 letter was sufficient to present a claim and thereby prompt notice, defendant's failure to provide that notice waived its right to any defense based on any defect or tardiness in the claim as presented (221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 450) . Although the fact that defendant wrote back to plaintiff indicated it was aware of a proper address, the court observed that the stationery of both of plaintiff's counsel included an address (221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 444 , nn.2, 3). It rejected defendant's contention that its answer to the complaint, raising the claims statute as an affirmative defense, provided plaintiff with "actual notice" that his claim was defective. The court explained that consistent with the goal of encouraging prompt attention to claims, governmental agencies do not have an unlimited period of time in which to give claimants notice of defects. Under Gov. Code § 911.3 defendant had only 45 days in which to give plaintiff notice his claim was not timely filed. The court said that because the August 7 letter was the last and most unequivocal correspondence from plaintiff, the affirmative defense raised in the answer was already waived by the defendant's inaction. Thus, by the time the answer had been served, actual notice of any defects was irrelevant: defendant no longer had any right to assert the defects as a defense (221 Cal. App. 3d 441, 449-450) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
4. Waiver And Estoppel of Claim Presentation Defenses

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.102

§ 196.102 Supporting Contention That Failure to Present Claim Is No Defense When Public Agency Failed to Have Required Statement on File in Roster of Public Agencies [Gov. Code § 946.4]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT _____ [NO or A LATE or AN INADEQUATE] CLAIM WAS PRESENTED BY PLAINTIFF TO _____ [name of public agency] _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS A PUBLIC AGENCY AS DEFINED IN SECTION 53050 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE AND IT FAILED DURING THE REQUIRED PERIOD TO HAVE A [SUBSTANTIALLY _____ (CORRECT and/or COMPLETE)] STATEMENT ON FILE IN THE ROSTER OF PUBLIC AGENCIES.

A. Roster of Public Agencies. The California Secretary of State and each county clerk have the duty to establish and maintain an indexed "Roster of Public Agencies," to be so designated, which shall contain the information set forth in Section 53051(a), (b) of the Government Code, and is a public record (Gov. Code § 53051(c)).

B. Statements to Be Filed in Roster. Within 70 days after the date it commences its legal existence, the governing body of each public agency, as hereinafter defined, must file with the Secretary of State on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State and also withthe county clerk of each county in which it maintains an office, a statement setting forth (1) the full, legal name of the public agency; (2) the official mailing address of the public agency's governing body; (3) the name and residence or business address of each member of the public agency's governing body; and (4) the name, title, and residence or business address of the chairman, president, or other presiding officer, and the clerk or secretary of the public agency's governing body (Gov. Code § 53051(a)).

[Optional] C. Change of Facts. Within 10 days after any change in the facts required to be stated pursuant to Section 53051(a) of the Government Code, an amended statement containing the information required by that section must be filed on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State (Gov. Code § 53051(b)).

D. Public Agency Defined. As used in Section 53051 of the Government Code, "public agency" means a district, public authority, public agency, and any other political subdivision or public corporation in California, but does not include the state of California or a county, city and county, or city (Gov. Code § 53050).

[EITHER, if no statement was on file]

E. Effect on Claims Requirement of Public Agency's Failure to File Statement. When presentation of a claim is a condition precedent to filing suit against a public agency as defined in Section 53050 of the Government Code, the failure to present a claim does not constitute a bar or defense to the maintenance of the suit against the agency if, during the 70 days immediately following the accrual of the cause of action, no statement pertaining to the public agency is on file, or is placed on file, in the Roster of Public Agencies in the office of the California Secretary of State and of the county clerk of each county in which the public agency then maintains an office, as required by Section 53051 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 946.4(a)(1); see Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 560, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872).

[OR, if statement on file was substantially incorrect or incomplete]

E. Effect on Claims Requirement of Public Agency's Filing Substantially Noncomplete Statement. When presentation of a claim is a condition precedent to filing suit against a public agency as defined in Section 53050 of the Government Code, the failure to present a claim does not constitute a bar or defense to the maintenance of the suit against the agency if, during the 70 days immediately following the accrual of the cause of action, the information contained in the public agency's statement in the Roster of Public Agencies in the office of the Secretary of State and of the county clerk of each county in which the public agency then maintains an office, is so inaccurate or incomplete that it does not substantially conform to the requirements of Section 53051 of the Government Code (Gov. Code § 946.4(a)(2); see Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 560, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872).

[Optional] F. Plaintiff Not Misled by Erroneous Statement. Section 946.4 of the Government Code, contains no requirement of a showing of actual deception or confusion on the part of the plaintiff and no such requirement exists. These rules apply whether or not the plaintiff was misled by the erroneous statement (Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 562, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872).

[Optional] G. Effect on Late or Inadequate Claim. These rules apply both to persons who filed no claim at all and to those who filed a late or inadequate claim (see Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 561, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872 ; Cavalier Acres, Inc. v. San Simeon Acres Cmty. Servs. Dist. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 798, 800-801, 199 Cal. Rptr. 4).

[Optional] H. Effect on Statute of Limitations. The public agency's failure to comply with the provisions of Section 53051 of the Government Code not only entitles the claimant to ignore the claim filing requirement entirely but relieves the claimant from compliance with the period specified in Section 945.6 of the Government Code for commencement of the action after notice of rejection of a claim that was nevertheless timely filed (Helzer v. North San Diego County Transit Dev. Bd. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 708, 710-711, 169 Cal. Rptr. 416).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the plaintiff's failure to have presented a claim, or the presentation of an inadequate or late claim, to a public agency is no bar or defense to the plaintiff's action against the public agency because the public agency failed to have any statement, or a sufficient statement, on file in the Roster of Public Agencies at any time during the 70-day period immediately following the accrual of plaintiff's cause of action [see Gov. Code § 946.4].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, if the complaint on its face, or from judicially noticed matter, shows that no claim was presented or that the claim presented was inadequate or late, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that no claim or an inadequate or late claim was presented. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect on Claims Requirement of Public Agency's Failure to File Statement

In Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872 , plaintiff was injured as a result of the condition of a city street. He presented a timely claim to the city but was later informed that a public agency was responsible. Plaintiff then filed a claim with the agency after the then applicable 100-day (now six-month) period had expired. However, the agency's statement on file in the Roster of Public Agencies contained the wrong address and misstated the names of some of its directors and was, therefore, incorrect. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend for failure to present a timely claim and dismissed the action.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court said the agency's failure to comply with Gov. Code § 53051 entitles the claimant to ignore the claim-filing requirement entirely (19 Cal. 3d 555, 560) .

NOTE:

The court of appeal has held that the plaintiff's being excused from failure to timely file a claim due to the hospital's own failure to file an informational statement deprived plaintiff of an extension of the applicable statute of limitations period [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5], which would otherwise have been tolled during the period in which plaintiff was seeking relief from the claim-filing requirement [Banfield v. Sierra View Local Dist. Hosp. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 444, 456-457, 177 Cal. Rptr. 290 , disapproved on other grounds, Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 328 n.4, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455] .

[b] Effect on Claims Requirement of Public Agency's Filing Substantially Noncomplete Statement

The facts and procedural background of Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872 , are discussed in § 196.102[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Court said that under Gov. Code § 946.4 substantial noncompliance with the requirements of Gov. Code § 53051 unconditionally excuses the claimant from filing a claim and that a fair reading of the applicable statutes suggests that the agency's failure to comply with Gov. Code § 53051 entitles the claimant to ignore the claim-filing requirement entirely (19 Cal. 3d 555, 560) .

[c] Plaintiff Not Misled by Erroneous Statement

The facts and procedural background of Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872 , are discussed in § 196.102[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court pointed out that Gov. Code § 946.4 contains no requirement of a showing of actual deception or confusion and the Court would not read such requirement into the section (19 Cal. 3d 555, 562) .

[d] Effect on Late or Inadequate Claim

The facts and procedural background of Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872 , are discussed in § 196.102[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court held that Gov. Code § 946.4 applies to persons who file a late claim as well as to those who file no claim at all. Otherwise, a belated attempt by a person to comply with the claim-filing requirement would place that person in a worse position than one who filed no claim at all (19 Cal. 3d 555, 561) .

Cavalier Acres, Inc. v. San Simeon Acres Cmty. Servs. Dist. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 798, 199 Cal. Rptr. 4 , was an action by a developer against a community services district to recover the amount of a sewer and water connection fee paid under protest. The developer filed a timely claim but it was inadequate to support some of the pertinent allegations in the complaint. The developer was granted a summary judgment and the district appealed, contending, among other things, that its affirmative defense of the failure of the developer to comply with the appropriate claims statute respecting the bringing of the lawsuit against a public entity was valid. The developer contended that the district's contention that its claim was inadequate was immaterial as it was exempt from filing a claim because the district admittedly had failed to comply with Gov. Code § 53051 (151 Cal. App. 3d 798, 800) . The court of appeal rejected the district's contention and accepted that of the developer, and affirmed thejudgment. The court said that, under Wilson [Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872] , a public agency's failure to comply with Gov. Code § 53051 entitles claimants to ignore the claim filing requirement altogether (151 Cal. App. 3d 798, 800-801) . The court also noted that an earlier court of appeal decision held that even if a timely "but inadequate" claim is filed, the public agency's failure to comply with the requirements of Gov. Code § 53051 made the claim presentation procedures inapplicable and superfluous [Helzer v. North San Diego County Transit Dev. Bd. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 708, 711, 169 Cal. Rptr. 416 ; see § 196.102[3][e]] (151 Cal. App. 3d 798, 801) .

[e] Effect on Statute of Limitations

In Helzer v. North San Diego County Transit Dev. Bd. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 708, 169 Cal. Rptr. 416 , plaintiffs presented a timely claim against the public agency for wrongful death, but filed the complaint more than six months after the claim was denied. The agency demurred based on the six-month period of limitations for filing an action after denial of a claim set forth in Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1). The trial court dismissed the action after sustaining demurrers to the complaint. The court of appeal reversed, based on the fact that the agency concededly did not have a proper statement on file with the Register of Public Agencies as required by Gov. Code § 53051. The court pointed out that Gov. Code § 945.6 is limited by its own terms by Gov. Code § 946.4 and held that Gov. Code § 946.4, which excuses a plaintiff from the claim requirement if a proper statement is not on file, also applies to excuse the plaintiff from compliance with the six-month statute of limitation after denial even if the claim requirement was met. Since compliance with the claim requirement was excused, the six-month limit of Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1) does not apply. The court pointed out that to apply the six-month limit to plaintiffs would place them in a worse position than if they had not filed a claim at all and that they should not be penalized for filing the unnecessary claim that was at most superfluous (112 Cal. App. 3d 708, 710-711) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Public Agency Defined

In Lundeen Coatings Corp. v. Department of Water & Power (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 816, 283 Cal. Rptr. 551 , plaintiff subcontractor brought an action against several parties involved in the contract, including defendant city department, alleging a variety of causes of action, and claiming it was owed more money for services it had rendered. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's dismissal of defendant city department. After losing its argument that its action was not timely filed in accordance with Gov. Code § 945.6, plaintiff argued that it did not need to comply with the provisions of the Tort Claims Act because defendant city department failed to file the statement required by Gov. Code § 53051 et seq. However, the court cited Gov. Code § 53050, which exempts cities, and held that defendant, as a department of the city, is exempt (232 Cal. App. 3d 816, 830 n.8).

[b] Effect on Statute of Limitations

In Tubbs v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 671, 63 Cal. Rptr. 377, 433 P.2d 169 , the plaintiff filed a timely claim with the proper public agency but failed to commence her suit to enforce her claim within six months after the claim was deemed rejected, as required by Gov. Code § 945.6. She argued that since defendant agency had not complied with Gov. Code § 53051, she was excused from filing a claim and, a fortiori, from observing the six-month statute of limitations. The Supreme Court rejected the argument, noting that a claimant who has actually presented a timely claim with the proper public entity may not invoke former Gov. Code § 945.5 (now Gov. Code § 946.4) and Gov. Code § 53051 to excuse noncompliance with the claims statutes and circumvent the special six-month statute of limitations (67 Cal. 2d 671, 676) . In that case, plaintiff's claim arose on May 27, 1963, and a claim was timely presented to the public entity. Thereafter, on September 20, 1963, the California Tort Claims Act became effective and by its own terms was made retroactive; hence it applied to plaintiff's claim. Under that act, plaintiff should have filed her complaint by May 4, 1964; it was filed May 25, 1964. The Court explained that Gov. Code § 53051 was enacted to provide a means for identifying public agencies and the names and addresses of designated officers needed to enable or assist a person to comply with the applicable claims procedure and that that statute and former Gov. Code § 945.5 (now Gov. Code § 946.4) were manifestly designed to assist persons who had not filed claims (67 Cal. 2d 671, 676-677) . Notwithstanding this statement, it should be noted that the Court rested its decision in part at least (1) on the fact that Gov. Code § 945.5 (now Gov. Code § 946.4) and Gov. Code § 53051 were enacted together in 1963 in a chapter different from the California Tort Claims Act and that, unlike the latter act, the former two statutes were not made retroactive; and (2) on the fact that plaintiff had presented a timely claim before they were enacted (67 Cal. 2d 671, 675-676) .

NOTE:

The court of appeal followed Tubbs in a case in which it held that when a claim has in fact been timely presented to the public entity, the claimant is not in a position to question whether the public entity complied with Gov. Code § 946.4 and thus circumvent the special six-month statute of limitations. No question of retroactivitywas involved in that case [Rogers v. Board of Educ. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 355, 359, 67 Cal. Rptr. 905] . The California Supreme Court cited both Tubbs and Rogers in a decision in which the Court pointed out that Tubbs had been criticized by a commentator, but instead of ruling on the continued viability of Tubbs, the Court found Tubbs distinguishable from the case before it [Wilson v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 555, 561-562, 138 Cal. Rptr. 720, 564 P.2d 872 ; see § 196.102 [3][a]]. Although the court of appeal relied exclusively on the statutes and on statements made in Wilson in reaching its decision in Helzer v. North San Diego County Transit Development Board, it did not mention Tubbs or Rogers [Helzer v. North San Diego County Transit Dev. Bd. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 708, 169 Cal. Rptr. 416 ; see § 196.102 [3][e]].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
4. Waiver And Estoppel of Claim Presentation Defenses

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.103

§ 196.103 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Estopped From Relying on Claimant's Failure to File Claim as Defense to Claimant's Action

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT PLAINTIFF FAILED TO PRESENT A TIMELY CLAIM TO _____ [name of public agency] _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS ESTOPPED FROM RELYING ON THAT DEFENSE.

A. Estoppel as Applicable to Public Entities. In an appropriate case, the claimant's failure to file a timely claim may be excused and the public entity estopped from urging the failure as a defense (Fredrichsen v. Lakewood (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 353, 357, 99 Cal. Rptr. 13, 491 P.2d 805 ; Farrell v. County of Placer (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 624, 630-631, 145 P.2d 570).

B. Elements of Estoppel. The essential elements of estoppel are false statements or concealments, or conduct amounting thereto, with reference to the transaction made by one who has actual or virtual knowledge of the facts to another who is ignorant of the truth, with the intention, resulting in consummation, that the other should act on such false statements or concealments, or equivalent conduct (Bruce v. Jefferson Union High Sch. Dist. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 632, 634, 26 Cal. Rptr. 762).

C. Factors to Be Considered. Among the factors to be considered in determining whether the government's action was sufficiently culpable to warrant estoppel are whether the inaccurate advice or information is negligently ascertained, whether or to what extent the agency is certain of the information it dispenses, whether the agency purports to advise and direct or merely to inform and respond to inquiries, whether the agency acts in bad faith, whether the claimant is one who purports to have no knowledge or training that would aid him or her in determining his or her rights and the public agency purports to be informed and knowledgeable, whether the right of which claimant is being deprived is significant, and whether a confidential relationship exists between the claimant and the public entity (Fredrichsen v. Lakewood (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 353, 358, 99 Cal. Rptr. 13, 491 P.2d 805).

[EITHER]

D. Misrepresentation of Need to File Claim. A public entity is estopped from relying on plaintiff's failure to file a timely claim when the failure was caused by the misrepresentations of the public entity's employee as to the necessity of filing a claim (Fredrichsen v. Lakewood (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 353, 357-360, 99 Cal. Rptr. 13, 491 P.2d 805).

[OR]

D. Misleading Advice. A public entity is estopped from relying on plaintiff's failure to file a timely claim when the public entity's agent advised plaintiff not to employ counsel, and to wait until he or she ascertained all of his or her damages and failed to advise plaintiff of the claim requirement (Farrell v. Placer County (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 624, 628-631, 145 P.2d 570).

[OR]

D. Failure to Speak When Under Duty to Speak. A public entity is estopped from relying on plaintiff's failure to file a timely claim when employees of the entity informed plaintiff that they would tell plaintiff what he or she should do after an accident and thereafter failed to inform plaintiff of the need to file a timely claim (Bruce v. Jefferson Union High Sch. Dist. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 632, 633-635, 26 Cal. Rptr. 762).

[OR]

D. Misleading Name. A defendant public entity is estopped from complaining that plaintiff failed to file a timely claim, when defendant does business under a name different from that filed with the Secretary of State under Section 53051 of the Government Code, and plaintiff, relying on information from the Secretary of State that defendant is not listed on the roster of public agencies, fails to present a timely claim (Elmore v. Oak Valley Hosp. Dist. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 716, 723-724, 251 Cal. Rptr. 405).

[Optional] E. Estoppel Appropriate if Employee of Public Entity Threatens Plaintiff to Gain Silence. A public entity may be estopped from asserting the limitations of the claims presentation statute if the entity's agent or employee has prevented or deterred the filing of a timely claim by some affirmative act or threat designed to gain the plaintiff's silence (Doe v. Bakersfield City Sch. Dist. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 556, 568-573, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 79).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity is estopped from relying on the defense that plaintiff failed to file a timely claim when the failure was the result of misrepresentations made by its employees.

These points and authorities may be combined, in an appropriate case, with the points and authorities set out in § 196.162, which support the contention that a public entity is estopped from relying on the statute of limitations. They may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, if the complaint on its face, or from judicially noticed matter, shows that no timely claim was presented, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that no timely claim was presented. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Estoppel as Applicable to Public Entities

In Fredrichsen v. Lakewood (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 353, 99 Cal. Rptr. 13, 491 P.2d 805 , the plaintiff was injured by a fall on a public sidewalk in defendant city. When the plaintiff requested a claim form from the city, the city replied with a letter erroneously stating that the responsibility for sidewalk maintenance rested with a private corporation. Relying on this representation, plaintiff did not pursue her claim against the city but commenced negotiations with the private corporation, which she later sued. Subsequently, plaintiff's attorney discovered that the sidewalk was maintained by the city and immediately thereafter amended the complaint to include the city as a defendant. The trial court sustained the city's demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend because of plaintiff's failure to have presented a claim.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court said that it is settled that the failure to file the required claim, in the proper circumstances, may be excused and the governmental agency estopped from urging strict compliance with the statutory provisions and that the rule has been applied to allow estoppel in factual situations where claimants have been misled by governmental agents with respect to the procedural and time requirements of the claim statute (6 Cal. 3d 353, 357) .

In Farrell v. Placer County (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 624, 145 P.2d 570 , plaintiff was injured in an accident allegedly caused by the defective condition of a bridge maintained by Placer and Sutter Counties. Thirteen days after the accident, an agent of the counties visited plaintiff in the hospital, took a complete statement from her, advised her not to hire an attorney and to personally negotiate a settlement, and told her that she could wait until she knew all her damages before making any claim. Based on this advice, she failed to file a timely claim. The trial court sustained the defendants' demurrer to the complaint and dismissed the action.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court pointed out that although it has been said generally that a governmental agency may not be estopped by the conduct of its officers and employees, there are many instances in which an equitable estoppel in fact will run against the government when justice and right so require (23 Cal. 2d 624, 627-628) . The Court said that the filing of a timely claim, while mandatory on the claimant and a condition precedent to his or her cause of action, is nothing more than a procedural requirement as to the public agency, which, as to the claimant, may be excused by estoppel (23 Cal. 2d 624, 630-631) .

[b] Elements of Estoppel

In Bruce v. Jefferson Union High Sch. Dist. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 632, 26 Cal. Rptr. 762 , plaintiff was a student. Prior to being injured, he had been told that if an injury occurred, a student should report to the school nurse, who would tell him what to do, and that failure to report would preclude compensation. On being injured, plaintiff reported to the nurse, who treated him. After his return to school, he asked the nurse and his teacher what to do about the accident but they refused to talk about it. He failed to file a timely claim. The trial court sustained a general demurrer to the minor's complaint and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal stated that the essential elements of estoppel are false statements or concealments, or conduct amounting thereto, with reference to the transaction made by one who has actual or virtual knowledge ofthe facts, to another who is ignorant of the truth, with the intention, resulting in consummation, that the other should act on such false statements or concealments, or equivalent conduct (210 Cal. App. 2d 632, 634) .

[c] Factors to Be Considered

The facts and procedural background of Fredrichsen v. Lakewood (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 353, 99 Cal. Rptr. 13, 491 P.2d 805 , are discussed in § 196.103[3][a]. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court stated that among the factors to be considered in determining whether the government's action was sufficiently culpable to warrant estoppel are whether the inaccurate advice or information is negligently ascertained, whether or to what extent the agency is certain of the information it dispenses, whether the agency purports to advise and direct or merely to inform and respond to inquiries, whether the agency acts in bad faith, whether the claimant is one who purports to have no knowledge or training which would aid him or her in determining his or her rights and the public agency purports to be informed and knowledgeable, whether the right of which claimant is being deprived is significant, and whether a confidential relationship exists between the claimant and the public entity (6 Cal. 3d 353, 358) . The Court added that the applicability of the estoppel doctrine is not limited to situations where all the enumerated factors are present. Rather, estoppel is available in all circumstances where the complaint alleges facts which, if true, would establish that the government had acted in an unconscionable manner (6 Cal. 3d 353, 359) .

[d] Misrepresentation of Need to File Claim

The facts and procedural background of Fredrichsen v. Lakewood (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 353, 99 Cal. Rptr. 13, 491 P.2d 805 , are discussed in § 196.103[3][a]. In reversing the judgment, the Supreme Court held that a public entity could be estopped from relying on the claim statute when a claimant has been misled about filing requirements and that this rule applied because the city misrepresented its responsibility for the sidewalk and effectively precluded plaintiff from filing a timely claim (6 Cal. 3d 353, 359) . The Court pointed out that the plaintiff had made prompt inquiry of the city and was precluded from filing a timely claim by the city's misrepresentation. It held that the city could not frustrate the plaintiff's attempt to comply with the claims statute, which was enacted for its benefit, and then assert noncompliance as a defense (6 Cal. 3d 353, 360) .

[e] Misleading Advice

The facts and procedural background of Farrell v. Placer County (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 624, 145 P.2d 570 , are discussed in § 196.103[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court held that a public entity could be estopped by the actions of its agent from relying on plaintiff's failure to file a timely claim and that the agent's actions were sufficient for estoppel since they had lulled plaintiff into not actively pursuing her rights or consulting an attorney (23 Cal. 2d 624, 628) .

[f] Failure to Speak When Under Duty to Speak

The facts and procedural background of Bruce v. Jefferson Union High Sch. Dist. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 632, 26 Cal. Rptr. 762 , are discussed in § 196.103[3][b]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal held that the school had put itself in the position of having a duty to advise plaintiff as to how to be compensated for the accident, and, because of its silence in the face of that duty, it was estopped from relying on the claims statute (210 Cal. App. 2d 632, 634) .

In Elmore v. Oak Valley Hosp. Dist. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 716, 251 Cal. Rptr. 405 , plaintiffs filed a malpractice action, naming defendant as "Oak Valley Hospital" in the complaint. Defendant did business either under the name "Oak Valley Hospital" or "Oak Valley District Hospital." When plaintiffs' attorney attempted to ascertain whether "District Hospital" was listed in the roster of public agencies, he was advised by the Secretary of State there was no such listing. Defendant demurred on the grounds that it was a public agency and that plaintiffs had failed to plead compliance with the government claims statute. Defendant had filed its statement with the Secretary of State pursuant to Gov. Code § 53051 under the name "Oak Valley Hospital District." The trial court sustained the demurrer with leave to amend and plaintiffs amended the complaint to allege that noncompliance with the claims statute was excused because (1) defendant failed to comply substantially with Gov. Code § 53051, or (2) defendant was estopped to assert plaintiffs' noncompliance because of the misleading information it provided in the statement filed with the Secretary of State. Defendant demurred again, contending that it had substantially complied with Gov. Code § 53051, and the trial court sustained the demurrer.

The court of appeals reversed. The court held that defendant substantially complied with Gov. Code § 53051 by setting out its full legal name and the other required information in its statement filed with the Secretary of State (204 Cal. App. 3d 716, 722) . However, the court also held that the question of whether defendant was estopped to assert plaintiffs' noncompliance with the government claims statute was an issue of fact not properly decided on demurrer (204 Cal. App. 3d 716, 724) . In their amended complaint, plaintiffs had alleged that (1) defendant did business under name "Oak Valley District Hospital" but filed a certificate with the Secretary of State under the name "Oak Valley Hospital District"; (2) plaintiffs were informed by Secretary of State that "Oak Valley District Hospital" was not listed on roster of public agencies; (3) in reliance on that information, plaintiffs' attorney did not present a claim; and (4) defendant misled plaintiffs by filing the certificate as it did. The court held that these allegations were sufficient to constitute an estoppel. Whether plaintiffs couldprove the elements of estoppel required a determination of factual issues, such as whether the hospital was apprised of the potential for confusion caused by the discrepancy in names, whether the hospital intended possible claimants to act on the assumption that its name was as represented in its records, and whether plaintiffs reasonably relied on the manner in which the hospital identified itself in its records (204 Cal. App. 3d 716, 723-724) . The court also stated the elements that must be present in order to apply the doctrine of estoppel to a public entity: (1) the public entity was apprised of the facts; (2) the public entity intended that its conduct be acted on, or acted so that plaintiff had a right to believe it was so intended; (3) plaintiff was ignorant of the true state of facts; and (4) plaintiff relied on the public entity's conduct to his or her injury (204 Cal. App. 3d 716, 724) .

[g] Estoppel Appropriate if Employee of Public Entity Threatens Plaintiff to Gain Silence

In Doe v. Bakersfield City Sch. Dist. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 556, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 79 , a school counselor had sexually molested the plaintiff from the time the plaintiff was in junior high school until the plaintiff was 19 or 20 years old. The plaintiff never reported the molestation during the time that it was taking place because the counselor repeatedly threatened the plaintiff that if he did so, the counselor would publicly humiliate the plaintiff. The plaintiff did eventually reveal the molestation to his girlfriend when he was 21 years old. About six months later, after the abuse was revealed publicly, the plaintiff was enrolled in a witness protection program, and the plaintiff began to receive counseling from a psychotherapist, the plaintiff finally felt safe enough to file a claim against the school district that employed the counselor. However, the claim was denied, as was the plaintiff's application to file a late claim. The plaintiff then filed a petition seeking relief from the denial of his application to file a late claim. The trial court denied the petition after refusing to apply the doctrine of equitable estoppel based on the counselor's threats designed to ensure the plaintiff's silence. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal held that the trial court abused its discretion when it refused to apply the doctrine of equitable estoppel under the circumstances of the case. Under existing case law, application of estoppel in these types of cases required that (1) the public entity or one of its agents engaged in some calculated conduct or made some representation that induced the plaintiff not to file a claim within the statutory time for doing so, and (2) the plaintiff then acted promptly, within a year or so, after cessation of the public entity's conduct that caused the estoppel. The court noted that the plaintiff had presented uncontradicted evidence that after he departed junior high and started high school in a different district, the counselor continued to molest him and threatened him to gain his silence. The counselor engaged in similar conduct after the plaintiff graduated from high school. Even after the plaintiff became a legal adult, there was no evidence that the counselor's threats lost any of their effectiveness in dissuading the plaintiff from revealing the ongoing molestations. Because the threats actually deterred the plaintiff from reporting the abuse even after he graduated from school, application of the estoppel doctrine provided the plaintiff a reasonable time to file a claim after the deterrent effect of the counselor's threats wore off (136 Cal. App. 4th 556, 571-573) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Estoppel as Applicable to Public Entities

The facts and procedural background of Bruce v. Jefferson Union High Sch. Dist. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 632, 26 Cal. Rptr. 762 , are discussed in § 196.103[3][b]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal said that while it is the general rule that a government agency may not be estopped by the conduct of its officers and employees, there are instances in which an equitable estoppel will run, as, for example, where justice and right require it (210 Cal. App. 2d 632, 635) .

[b] Misleading Advice

In Rand v. Andreatta (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 846, 36 Cal. Rptr. 846, 389 P.2d 382 , plaintiff alleged that, after plaintiff was injured in an accident with a county employee, an agent of the county visited her. He told her (an uneducated woman) not to employ counsel and that her rights would be protected. Relying on these representations, plaintiff did not employ counsel until after the time for filing a claim. Failure to timely file a claim was raised as a special defense and judgment was entered for the public entity. The Supreme Court held that plaintiff's allegations of estoppel were sufficient (60 Cal. 2d 846, 850) and reversed the judgment for defendant.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
A. Claims Against Public Entities
4. Waiver And Estoppel of Claim Presentation Defenses

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.104-196.119

[Reserved]

§§ 196.104[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
1. Premature Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.120

§ 196.120 Supporting Contention That Prematurely Filed Action Is Timely

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

AN ACTION FILED PRIOR TO _____ [THE REJECTION OF THECLAIM BY THE APPROPRIATE PUBLIC ENTITY or THE GRANTING OF RELIEF FROM CLAIM FILING REQUIREMENT WHEN A TIMELY CLAIM WAS NOT FILED] IS TIMELY, NOT FATALLY PREMATURE.

[EITHER]

Action Filed Before Claim Denied Is Timely. When an action is filed before the claim against the public entity is denied or deemed denied, that prematurely filed complaint states a cause of action and meets the requirement in Section 945.4 of the Government Code that the action be filed within six months after the denial of the claim (Cory v. City of Huntington Beach (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 131, 135-136, 117 Cal. Rptr. 475).

[OR]

Action Filed Before Relief From Claim Filing Is Granted Is Timely. When no claim was timely filed, and an action is filed before an order relieving the plaintiff from the claim filing requirement has been granted by the court, that prematurely filed complaint satisfies the provisions of Section 946.6(f) of the Government Code, and the filing of a new pleading is unnecessary (Bell v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 438, 445, 241 Cal. Rptr. 796 ; Bahten v. County of Merced (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 101, 106-107, 130 Cal. Rptr. 539).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the complaint was timely filed, even though itwas filed prematurely in the typical progression of a proceeding under the California Tort Claims Act. The alternate paragraphs may be used depending on whether the complaint was filed before the claim was denied by the public entity, or if no timely claim was filed, before relief from the claim filing requirement was granted.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer or motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Bell v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 438, 440, 241 Cal. Rptr. 796 (demurrer); Cory v. City of Huntington Beach (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 131, 133, 117 Cal. Rptr. 475 (summary judgment)]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to demurrers on the ground of prematurity of an action, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Filed Before Claim Denied Is Timely

In Cory v. City of Huntington Beach (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 131, 117 Cal. Rptr. 475 , plaintiff was injured in an automobile accident and filed a timely claim against defendant city. Two days after filing the claim, before the claim was denied or deemed denied, plaintiff filed a personal injury action in superior court. Defendant moved for summary judgment, claiming that the action was prematurely filed. The trial court granted the motion. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed (43 Cal. App. 3d 131, 136) . It said that when a proper claim has been filed against a local governmental entity, the waiting period is not part of the cause of action, but is a procedural condition precedent to suit. The California Tort Claims Act does not create a cause of action against a public entity, but merely prescribes the manner in which it may be asserted. The prerequisite of rejection may be considered more of a procedural than a substantive requirement. Moreover, the court recognized that since Gov. Code § 911.2 requires that a cause of action accrue before a claim is filed, rejection of that claim cannot be a part of that cause of action (43 Cal. App. 3d 131, 135) . The court went on to conclude that the defense of prematurity, based on plaintiff's failure to comply with the waiting period, merely would have been a ground for abatement, which is waived if not timely made. Moreover, the court observed that even if defendant gave serious consideration to plaintiff's claim rather than merely turning it over to its insurer, defendant could not have been prejudiced by the premature filing of the action since the complaint was not served until the time period had run (43 Cal. App. 3d 131, 136) .

[b] Action Filed Before Relief From Claim Filing Requirement Is Granted Is Timely

Bell v. Tri-City Hosp. Dist. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 438, 241 Cal. Rptr. 796 , was an action in which plaintiffs alleged medical negligence and use of a defectively designed and manufactured product after a series of unsuccessful surgeries was performed on plaintiff husband. Plaintiffs served defendant hospital district with a notice of intention to commence action against a health care provider, and two days later filed their complaint against only fictitiously named defendants. About a month later, plaintiffs served defendant with a written claim and later applied for leave to file a late claim. After defendant denied the late claim application, plaintiffs filed their first amended complaint, naming several defendants and 600 fictitiously named defendants. Defendant was not named in the caption or preliminary allegations, but was named as a defendant in the eighth cause of action. Thereafter plaintiffs petitioned the court for relief from the written claim requirement. The order granting relief was signed and filed on June 3, 1985. On August 8, 1985, plaintiffs filed an amendment to their first amended complaint substituting defendant for Doe 402, and served defendant on August 12, 1985. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer without leave to amend based on plaintiffs' failure to file an action against defendant within the 30-day period provided by Gov. Code § 946.6(f), and dismissed the action. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, concluding that the first amended complaint, which was on file at the time the court granted relief from the claim requirement, adequately stated a cause of action against defendant despite the fact that defendant was not named in the caption of the complaint (196 Cal. App. 3d 438, 440-441) . The court said it did not believe that compliance with the tort claims procedure is an element of a cause of action against a public entity and, therefore, that a complaint naming a public entity cannot be filed before compliance is either achieved or excused (196 Cal. App. 3d 438, 444) . The court found that plaintiffs' first amended complaint, which named defendant as a defendant, was a premature complaint under Bahten v. County of Merced (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 101, 130 Cal. Rptr. 539 , and might obviate the need for plaintiffs to take any action within the 30-day period. The court reasoned that the only question was whether that complaint's failure to identify defendant in the caption rendered it insufficient to constitute the "suit on the cause of action to which the claim relates" within the meaning of Gov. Code § 946.6(f), andultimately concluded that the incomplete caption was not a fatal defect. The court observed that reliance on the Doe defendant procedures of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 would be unavailable to plaintiffs because they were not ignorant of a potential cause of action against defendant and because nothing precluded them from naming defendant as a defendant before relief from the claim presentation requirement had been obtained (196 Cal. App. 3d 438, 445) .

In Bahten v. County of Merced (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 101, 130 Cal. Rptr. 539 , plaintiff was permanently disabled due to injuries sustained in a high school football game. In September 1973, his parents petitioned defendant county for leave to file a late claim, and one week later, before the petition was acted on or deemed denied, filed in superior court a complaint against defendant alleging negligence. Later, plaintiff petitioned the court for an order for relief from compliance with the claims presentation requirement. The motion was granted on April 5, 1974. On June 25, 1974, plaintiff filed an amended complaint. Later the trial court dismissed the action, based on defendant's demurrer. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It characterized the dispositive issue as whether plaintiff's amended complaint was barred because it was filed more than 30 days after the court made its order relieving plaintiff from compliance with the claim presentation requirement. The court said that Gov. Code § 946.6(f) requires only that suit be brought on the cause of action to which the claim relates within 30 days after the order is made relieving the plaintiff from compliance with Gov. Code § 945.4. In cases when the complaint was actually on file when the order granting that relief was made, that prematurely filed complaint satisfies the provisions of Gov. Code § 946.6(f), and the filing of a new pleading is unnecessary (59 Cal. App. 3d 101, 106-107) . The court found that defendant was put on notice in September 1973 that plaintiff was charging it with negligence. There was no showing that any of the county's rights were prejudiced or impaired by the premature filing of the original complaint (59 Cal. App. 3d 101, 112) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Action Filed Before Claim Denied Is Timely

In Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. State of California (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 31 Cal. Rptr. 524 , plaintiff contractor and the state were in dispute concerning the amount of money owed plaintiff after its work on a state highway. After plaintiff's claim on the contract was rejected by the state, plaintiff filed a second claim. The board declined to take any action on that claim, alleging that it was identical with the already rejected claim. Plaintiff then filed suit against the state. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer and dismissed the case. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court discussed the claim requirements of the predecessor to Gov. Code § 945.4, observing that a claim must be presented, and if the claim is rejected or disallowed, the claimant may bring an action against the state on that claim (217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 101). It said that rejection or disallowance of a claim has been made a condition precedent to the commencement of an action against the state. It also said that when the rejection of a claim is a prerequisite to suit, the claim does not ripen into a cause of action until that rejection, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until that event, and the commencement of any action prior to rejection is premature. Failure or refusal to act on the claim is not the equivalent of its rejection or disallowance (217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 102).

139 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
1. Premature Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.121-196.139

[Reserved]

§§ 196.121[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
2. Timely Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.140

§ 196.140 Supporting Contention That Action Was Timely Filed--Following Rejection of Claim [Gov. Code § 945.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION WAS TIMELY FILED BECAUSE IT WAS FILED WITHIN _____ [specify the applicable statute of limitations, e.g., SIX MONTHS AFTER THE NOTICE OF REJECTION OF HIS/HER CLAIM], THE PERIOD APPLICABLE TO HIS/HER ACTION IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE CLAIMS PROCEDURES.

[EITHER]

A. Action Filed Within Six Months After Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Timely. The plaintiff's action was timely filed because it was filed within six months after the date the written notice of the rejection of claim was personally delivered or deposited in the mail (Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1); see DeLeon v. Bay Area Rapid Transit (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 456, 457, 189 Cal. Rptr. 181, 658 P.2d 108 ; Rincon v. Burbank Unified Sch. Dist. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 949, 952, 224 Cal. Rptr. 88).

[OR]

A. Action Filed Within Two Years After Accrual of Cause of Action Is Timely When Proper Written Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Not Given. The plaintiff's action was timely filed because written notice of the rejection of claim was not given, and the action was filed within two years of the accrual of the cause of action. [The plaintiff and the board agreed to extend the period within which the board was required to act on the claim. Because that period of extension is not part of the time limited for the commencement of the action, the plaintiff's action was timely filed even though filed more than two years after the accrual of the cause of action] (Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(2); see Jenkins v. County of Contra Costa (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 152, 156, 213 Cal. Rptr. 126 ; Scott v. County of Los Angeles (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 476, 482-484, 140 Cal. Rptr. 785).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] B. "Six Months" Is Six Calendar Months or 182 Days, Whichever Is Longer. "Six months," as used in the Gov. Code § 945.6 period of limitation, means six calendar months or 182 days, whichever period is longer (Gonzales v. County of Los Angeles (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 601, 604, 245 Cal. Rptr. 112).

[Optional] C. Action Filed Within Ninety Days After Notice of Intent to Sue Is Timely. An action is timely filed when it is filed within ninety days after providing a notice of intent to sue, even if the action is filed more than six months after notice of rejection of claim, because the notice of intent to sue tolls the limitation period for ninety days (Wurts v. County of Fresno (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 380, 382, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the complaint was timely filed because it was filed within the time requirements set forth in Gov. Code § 945.6.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which these points are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer or motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., DeLeon v. Bay Area Rapid Transit (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 456, 458, 189 Cal. Rptr. 181, 658 P.2d 108 (demurrer); Rincon v. Burbank Unified Sch. Dist. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 949, 956, 224 Cal. Rptr. 88 (summary judgment)]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Accrual of Cause of Action

For the purpose of computing the time limits prescribed by Gov. Code § 945.6, the date of the accrual of a cause of action to which a claim relates is the date on which the cause of action would be deemed to have accrued within the meaning of the statute of limitations, which would be applicable thereto if there were no requirement that a claim be presented to and be acted on by the public entity before an action could be commenced thereon [Gov. Code § 901].

[c] Notice

Written notice of the action taken or the inaction that signifies rejection must be given in the manner prescribed in Gov. Code § 915.4 (personaldelivery or mail). The notice must be in substantially the form set forth in Gov. Code § 913 [Gov. Code § 913(a)]. A warning specifying the six-month statute of limitations for filing an action on the rejected claim must be included in the notice [Gov. Code § 913(b)]. If the notice sent to the plaintiff does not include the required warning, the plaintiff will have two years, rather than six months, in which to file an action [see Scott v. County of Los Angeles (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 476, 484, 140 Cal. Rptr. 785] .

[d] Plaintiff Imprisoned in State Prison

Gov. Code § 945.6(b) provides that when a person is unable to commence a suit on a cause of action within the time prescribed in Gov. Code § 945.6(a) because he or she was sentenced to imprisonment in a state prison, the time limit for the commencement of such suit is extended to six months after the date that the civil right to commence such a suit is restored to such person, except that the time limit cannot be extended if the public entity establishes that the plaintiff failed to make a reasonable effort to commence the suit, or to obtain a restoration of his or her civil right to do so, before the time prescribed in Gov. Code § 945.6(a) expired. Since 1976, however, state prisoners have had the civil right to initiate civil actions [Penal Code § 2601(e)]. Since state prisoners are not legally precluded from bringing civil actions, the six-month "extension" period specified in Gov. Code § 945.6(b) for commencing a civil action against a public entity appears to be, practically speaking, inoperative. However, see Gov. Code § 945.3 for statute of limitation tolling provisions concerning a civil action for money damages by a person accused of a crime against a peace officer, or the public entity employing a police officer, based on conduct of the peace officer relating to the offense for which the accused is charged.

If a prisoner files a civil action pro se against a government entity while the prisoner is still incarcerated, the complaint is deemed filed when the complaint is delivered to prison authorities for forwarding to the superior court [Moore v. Twomey (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 910, 918, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 163] .

[e] Intervention

The limitations period of Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1) may be tolled with regard to a party who intervenes in an action that was timely filed when that party had timely filed a claim. Thus, when an injured employee intervened, pursuant to Lab. Code § 3853, in an action for damages against a transit district brought by his employer's insurer, although he did not file his complaint until more than six months after rejection of his timely filed tort claim, the court held that the limitations period of Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1) was tolled by the timely filing of the insurer's action [Home Ins. Co. v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 522, 525-526, 241 Cal. Rptr. 858 ; for forms of points and authorities relating to intervention generally, see Ch. 124, Intervention].

[f] Amended Claim

If an amended claim is timely filed that relates to the same transaction or occurrence that gave rise to the original claim, the six-month period for filing suit generally runs from the time that the first claim is rejected [Sofranek v. County of Merced (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1248, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426] . However, a narrow exception to this rule has been recognized when a wrongful death claim is originally submitted without including all the necessary heirs [Norwood v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 741, 743-744, 211 Cal. Rptr. 6] . In addition, if a government entity sends notice upon rejection of an amended claim that the claimant has six-months from rejection of the claim to file suit, the entity may be estopped from relying on rejection of the original claim for purposes of calculating the six-month period for filing suit [Sofranek v. County of Merced (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1251-1252, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426] . The rules governing the amendment of claims are set forth in Gov. Code § 910.6. For a form of amendment of claim, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[g] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing a general demurrer to a complaint based on the ground that the action is barred by a statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a demurrer to a medical malpractice complaint brought against a public entity on the ground that the action is time-barred under Gov. Code § 945.6, even though timely under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, see Ch. 175, Physicians and Surgeons: Medical Malpractice .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within Six Months After Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Timely

In DeLeon v. Bay Area Rapid Transit (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 456, 189 Cal. Rptr. 181, 658 P.2d 108 , plaintiff filed a personal injury claim with defendant transit district. Although plaintiff's complaint alleged that defendant denied her claim, it did not state the date of the denial. Plaintiff proposed to amend her complaint to state that the claim had been denied in writing on June 25, 1979, making the complaint, which was filed December 26, one day beyond the six-month time limit. She argued that Code Civ. Proc. § 12a extended the time period by one day since the last day fell on a holiday. The trial court rejected plaintiff's argument, sustained defendant's demurrer without leave to amend, and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The California Supreme Court reversed. The Court found that Code Civ. Proc. § 12a, which extends the period when the last day for performing an act falls on a holiday, is applicable to the time limit of Gov. Code § 945.6 for bringing an action against a public entity (33 Cal. 3d 456, 457) . The Court acknowledged case law holding that statutory provisions requiringthat an act "shall" be performed "not later than" a certain date are mandatory and are not subject to exception, and that the time limits of Gov. Code § 945.6 are strictly construed (33 Cal. 3d 456, 458) . However, it concluded that Code Civ. Proc. § 12a applies to statutes of limitation in general, and no cogent reason for departing from that general rule in this case is apparent. Its applicability would be consistent with the broad language of Code Civ. Proc. § 12a and with the purpose of the time limit in Gov. Code § 945.6 (33 Cal. 3d 456, 461) .

In Rincon v. Burbank Unified Sch. Dist. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 949, 224 Cal. Rptr. 88 , plaintiff filed a claim against defendant school district, alleging that injuries sustained by her resulted from defendant's failure to properly maintain its school premises. Defendant rejected the claim on February 2, 1984, and alleged that it sent notice of that rejection to plaintiff on February 3, 1984. Plaintiff filed her complaint on September 24, 1984. Defendant moved for summary judgment on the ground that plaintiff had failed to file her complaint within the six-month statutory period. The motion was supported by three declarations. The trial court granted the motion. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Citing Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1), the court said that if notice was given by defendant of action or inaction on her claim, as required by Gov. Code § 913, plaintiff claimant must have commenced her action within six months after that notice was personally delivered or deposited in the mail. The six-month period begins to run when notice, sent by certified mail with return receipt requested, was deposited in the mail, rather than when the postal employee delivered the notice and secured signature on receipt (178 Cal. App. 3d 949, 952) . The court said the real issue on appeal was whether defendant complied with Gov. Code §§ 913 and 915.2 (178 Cal. App. 3d 949, 953) . The court reviewed the strict requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c regarding the moving party's presentation of all the material facts necessary to support a judgment, and noted that the supporting affidavits and declarations are strictly construed (178 Cal. App. 3d 949, 954-955) . The court found that none of defendant's supporting declarations satisfied the minimum requirements for granting the summary judgment motion. One was conclusory only on the subject of the mailing, and did not set forth that the declarant observed the notice of rejection mailed, by whom or where it was mailed, or that it was deposited in a properly addressed and stamped envelope in the United States mail. Another declaration also failed to meet the requirements of personal knowledge. The court also found the final declaration, prepared by the secretary who prepared and mailed the rejection, to be inadequate. The court said that the strictures of Gov. Code § 915.2 require the establishment by declaration or other competent evidence that the notice of rejection was deposited in the United States mail in a sealed envelope, properly addressed with postage paid, and where it was deposited, as well as by whom (178 Cal. App. 3d 949, 955-956) .

[b] Action Filed Within Two Years of Accrual of Cause of Action Is Timely When Proper Written Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Not Given

In Jenkins v. County of Contra Costa (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 152, 213 Cal. Rptr. 126 , plaintiff filed a complaint against defendants on March 25, 1983, for medical malpractice that occurred on June 22, 1981. Plaintiff had presented a claim and an application for leave to present a late claim with defendant public entity on June 22, 1982. Defendant denied the application for leave to present a late claim, but did not specifically reject the claim. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrer without leave to amend on the basis of failure to comply with applicable claim statutes, and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Plaintiff contended that the filing of her complaint within nine months after the accrual of her cause of action was within the two-year limitation set forth in Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(2), and therefore was timely, since her claim was never rejected in writing. Defendants contended that the six-month period applied, since the written rejection of the application for leave to present a late claim also constituted written rejection of the claim. They argued that when a claim is presented and at the same time an application for leave to file a late claim is presented, the public entity is entitled to believe it is only being requested to act on the application for leave to file a late claim. The court disagreed, and said that a public entity cannot assume that a claim is not timely presented just by the fact that a claim and an application for leave to file a late claim are presented at the same time. To assure itself that the six-month period will apply, it is necessary to give specific written notice of the rejection of the claim. The court said that plaintiff's claim was never rejected in writing as required by the Government Code. Noncompliance with the claim provisions allowed plaintiff two years from the time her cause of action accrued to file her complaint (167 Cal. App. 3d 152, 156) .

In Scott v. County of Los Angeles (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 476, 140 Cal. Rptr. 785 , plaintiff filed a claim against defendant county on July 14, 1975, alleging that the negligence of medical personnel at defendant's hospital at the time of her son's birth in 1960 caused him to be severely retarded. Notice of the denial of the claim, which was sent to plaintiff on September 2, 1975, did not contain the warning required by Gov. Code § 913(b). Instead of filing a complaint, plaintiff filed a new claim, which defendant treated as an application to file a late claim, and rejected; that rejection contained the required warning. Plaintiff then petitioned the court for relief from the claim filing requirement. That petition was denied on July 20, 1976. Plaintiff filed a complaint for damages against defendant on October 27, 1976. Plaintiff appealed the denial of her petition for relief from the claim filing requirement.

The court of appeal concluded that the procedure under consideration was a redundancy, discussed the pertinent issues as guidance for the trial court in future proceedings, and ultimately reversed the trial court order (73 Cal. App. 3d 476, 480, 485) . The court explained that under the provisions of Gov. Code § 911.2, the time for filing a claim is tied into the accrual of the cause of action. It then discussed the statute of limitations applicable to medical malpractice cases, Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, explaining that under the unique circumstances of the case the issue of when the cause of action accrued and whether the statute of limitations was tolled is critical to both compliance with the California Tort Claims Act and plaintiff's ultimate success on her complaint for malpractice (73 Cal. App. 3d 476, 480-481) . In its discussion of the claims procedure, the court concluded that the filing of the claim was in substantial compliance with the claims statutes (73 Cal. App. 3d 476, 482) . The court noted that the claim did not on its face show that it was untimely; rather, it contained allegations, which, if true, would have tolled the running of the statute of limitations, and postponed the date of accrual of the cause of action. It said that defendant's rejection of that claim must be treated as an outright rejection and not simply a denial of permission to file a late claim. The failure to include the required warning extended the period for filing the action two years from the accrual of the cause of action. Thus, the court concluded that if plaintiff could succeed at trial in proving that her cause of action did not accrue until a date less than two years prior to October 1976, and that because of a tolling of the statute of limitations, her action was not previously barred, then her complaint was timely filed. The court further explained that if, on the other hand, the cause of action was already barred a the time the claim was filed, then the extension provided by the claims statute would not serve to revive the cause of action (73 Cal. App. 3d 476, 484) .

[c] "Six Months" Is Six Calendar Months or 182 Days, Whichever Is Longer

In Gonzales v. County of Los Angeles (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 601, 245 Cal. Rptr. 112 , after plaintiffs were arrested by sheriffs employed by defendant county they alleged they were falsely arrested, assaulted and battered, and that they suffered emotional distress. Their timely claims were rejected by defendant on January 20, 1983. On July 21, 1983, plaintiffs filed suit against defendant. Defendant moved for summary judgment on the ground that plaintiffs failed to file within the six-month time limitation of Gov. Code § 945.6. The trial court granted defendant's motion and entered summary judgment. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded. The court explained that the issue was the interpretation of the term "six months." A problem in the computation of the limitation period arises from the irregularity in the number of days in a month in the calendar. Although six calendar months always equals one half year, the number of days contained in six calendar months varies, ranging from 181 to 184 days. The court reasoned that to harmonize Gov. Code § 6803, which provides that "year" means 365 days, and Gov. Code § 6804, which provides that "month" means a calendar month, unless otherwise expressed, as well as to eliminate any ambiguity, the six-month bar in Gov. Code § 945.6 should be construed to mean an action must be filed within six calendar months or 182 days, whichever is longer (199 Cal. App. 3d 601, 604) . The court buttressed its position by referring to the strong public policy that seeks to dispose of litigation on the merits, rather than on procedural grounds, whenever possible. Because of this strong public policy, the statute of limitations is a disfavored defense, and such a technical defense should be strictly construed to avoid the forfeiture of a plaintiff's rights (199 Cal. App. 3d 601, 605) .

[d] Action Filed Within Ninety Days After Notice of Intent to Sue Is Timely

In Wurts v. County of Fresno (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 380, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689 , plaintiff filed a medical malpractice action against a doctor and a County hospital after the six-month deadline for filing tort claims against public entities specified in Gov. Code § 945.6 had passed, but within the ninety-day period of Code of Civ. Proc. § 364. The lawsuit was preceded by a timely claim under the Tort Claims Act, after which the County had notified plaintiff that her claim was rejected. Plaintiff then filed a notice of intent to sue pursuant to Code of Civ. Proc. § 364. Defendant moved for summary judgment on the ground that plaintiff failed to commence her action within six months after receiving notice of the rejection of her claim. Plaintiff contended that her notice of intent to sue, sent within ninety days after the limitations period, operated to toll the period for ninety days. The trial court granted the motion, and entered judgment in favor of defendant.

The court of appeal reversed. Defendants argued that plaintiff's tort claim was in effect a notice of intent to sue, and consequently, plaintiff's subsequent separate notice was a nullity which did not toll the six-month limitations period. However, a tort claim does not also constitute a notice of intent to sue in the absence of evidence the claimant intended otherwise (44 Cal. App. 4th 380, 386) . The court reasoned that the similarity of purpose behind Code of Civ. Proc. § 364 and Gov. Code § 910 does not justify a holding that a tort claim constituted a notice simply because the tort claim happened to include specific information about the nature of the injuries suffered by the claimant. Moreover, the filing of a tort claim does not necessarily evidence an intent to sue on the part of the plaintiff. In addition, the court stated that the two statutes addressed different social ills (44 Cal. App. 4th 380, 386) . The court acknowledged the Supreme Court's holding in Phillips v. Desert Hosp. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 699, 263 Cal. Rptr. 119, 780 P.2d 349 , that a notice of intent to sue may activate the notice and defense waiver provisions of the Tort Claims Act. However, it concluded that while a notice of intent to sue may ultimately function as a tort claim for purposes of the Tort Claims Act under certain circumstances this does not mandate the reverse conclusion that a tort claim must be deemed notice under other circumstances (44 Cal. App. 4th 380, 387) . According to the court, a claimant who has complied with the letter and spirit of both code sections is entitled to the full benefit of both statutes, including tolling for ninety days the six-month limitations period of Gov. Code § 945.6 (44 Cal. App. 4th 380, 387) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within Six Months After Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Timely

In Massa v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 , plaintiff filed an action against a police officer for the use of excessive force. The complaint was filed outside of the one-year statute of limitations, but within six months after plaintiff's claim was denied by the governmental entity. The trial court granted defendant's summary judgment motion, and dismissed the case on the grounds of the statute of limitations. The court of appeal disagreed, noting initially that Gov. Code § 945.6 provides that any suit against a public entity must be commenced not later than six months after the date of delivery of notice of the claim. In Schmidt v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 23, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340 , another division of the same district of the court of appeal held that the one-year statute of limitations is satisfied if a lawsuit against a governmental entity is filed within six months after the time the claim is denies, even though it is filed more than one year after the date the cause of action arose. The court found that the facts in Schmidt were almost identical to the current case, with the exception that in Schmidt the lawsuit was against the governmental entity rather than an employee (43 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1220-1221) . Also noting that Gov. Code § 950.6 requires that any suit against a public employee be commenced within the time prescribed by Gov. Code § 945.6 for bringing an action against the public entity, the court reversed the trial court judgment for the defendant.

In Schmidt v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 23, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340 , the claimant, who was injured in a bus accident, filed a claim with the appropriate government agency one day short of the six-month filing requirement of Gov. Code § 911.2. The agency denied the claim, and notified the claimant that she had only six months in which to file a court action on the claim. She filed the action within that six-month period, but after the one-year statute of limitations for personal injury actions under former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year statute of limitations, beginning in 2003)]. The trial court granted a defense motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the ground that the claim was time-barred under former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3). The court of appeal reversed, holding that in a personal injury action not involving negligence of a health-care provider, compliance with the provisions of the Tort Claims Act exempts a claimant from the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (14 Cal. App. 4th 23, 30) .

[b] Action Filed Within Two Years of Accrual of Cause of Action Is Timely When Proper Written Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Not Given

In Mandjik v. Eden Twp. Hosp. Dist. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 582 , when plaintiffs, a married couple, planned to sue defendant hospital district for medical malpractice, they sent defendant a Code Civ. Proc. § 364 notice (notice of intent to sue). Defendant treated the notice as a claim for damages under the Tort Claims Act, returned it as untimely, and by letter advised plaintiffs to apply for leave to present a late claim. After plaintiffs did so, attaching a claim for damages to their application, defendant denied the application. Plaintiffs filed an application for relief from the claims presentation requirement in superior court. Although the trial court granted the requested relief in a minute order, plaintiffs' attorney waited four months after receiving it to draft and submit a formal order, and filed a complaint one month after receiving the signed order back from the court. The trial court granted defendant's demurrer without leave to amend and dismissed the action. The court of appeal reversed, and directed the trial court to vacate its order and to issue an order overruling the demurrer. The court explained that neither rejection letter sent by defendant to plaintiffs contained any of the warnings set forth in Gov. Code § 913 (4 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 1499) . Defendant contended that § 913 and its requirement that certain specific language be included in an outright rejection of a timely claim never came into play. It argued that the claim for damages accompanying plaintiffs' application for leave to present a late claim was a required attachment, and not a separate claim. The court disagreed, observing that plaintiffs' application expressly stated it was an alternative application to the claim (4 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 1500) . It went on to say that a public entity cannot assume that a claim is not timely presented merely because a claim and an application for leave to file a late claim are presented at the same time. Nor is a public entity permitted to make factual determinations relating to the timeliness of a claim. Rather, when a claim submitted along with an application for leave to present a late claim alleges facts, which, if true, would make the claim timely, the public entity must give specific written notice of rejection under Gov. Code § 913. If the public entity fails to do so, the claimant has two years fromthe accrual of his or her cause of action to file the complaint. Thus, the court framed the issue as whether plaintiffs' claim for damages attached to the application for leave to present a late claim was timely on its face. If so, defendant's failure to give a specific written notice of rejection in § 913 entitled plaintiffs to a two-year statute of limitations in § 945.6(a)(2). Although in its letter rejecting plaintiffs' claim, defendants did give a warning, the court found that the version given was incorrect. It used the amended version that reflected the change in the claim presentation requirement from 100 days to six months. However, the incident on which plaintiffs based their claim was governed by the earlier deadline, and the prior version of the warning should have been used. The court explained that the main purpose for requiring a public entity to notify a claimant about the nature of the timeliness defects in a claim is to enable the claimant to perfect the claim. In this case, defendant, albeit unintentionally, frustrated plaintiffs' efforts to perfect their claim by giving them inaccurate notice. This defective notice caused plaintiffs to focus on the wrong presentation period in drafting their subsequent claim. Under these circumstances, defendant, by virtue of its defective notice, waived its right to assert anything other than a six-month presentation period (4 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 1503-1504) . Since plaintiffs' claim was timely on its face under a six-month presentation period and since defendant failed to give specific written notice of rejection in § 913, under Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(2) plaintiffs had two years from the accrual of their cause of action to file their complaint (4 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 1504) .

In Wheeler v. County of San Bernardino (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 143 Cal. Rptr. 295 , plaintiff's neighbors contracted with a surveyor to survey and stake out the boundaries of their property, and then recorded that survey in the county records on November 19, 1975. Plaintiff, alleging that the survey was inaccurate and that the county surveyor knew, or should have known of the inaccuracy, on March 12, 1976, petitioned defendant county for leave to file a late claim. Defendant sent plaintiff notice of its denial of that application on April 5, 1976. On September 14, 1976, plaintiff filed a petition for relief from the claim filing requirement, which was denied. On November 12, 1976, plaintiff brought suit against defendant for damages to real property. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend and dismissed the action. The court of appeal reversed (76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 849) . The court observed that in actions for injury to real property, a claimant has one year in which to present a claim, and that plaintiff had attached a copy of a claim to his petition for leave to file a late claim, and thus had complied with the claim presentation requirement. The court, citing Gov. Code § 945.6, said that suit against a governmental entity must be commenced within six months after the governmental entity gives notice of rejection of claim, or within two years after the cause of action accrues if no notice of rejection of claim is given. Defendant contended that its notice of April 14, 1976, was a notice of rejection of claim and consequently plaintiff's action, filed on November 12, 1976, was untimely. The court said that the April 14 notice was on a form designed for use in denying claims. However, it was filled out in a manner that clearly indicated that defendant was not ruling on the claim, but was denying leave to present a late claim (76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 847) . The court noted that throughout the case defendant had taken the position that no claim was ever presented, and had fostered and encouraged plaintiff's mistaken belief that he should obtain relief from the claim presentation requirement. The court concluded that if defendant had acknowledged the claim as having been timely presented, and sent a notice expressly rejecting the claim, plaintiff would have filed suit within six months (76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 848) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within Six Months After Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Timely

In Orr v. City of Stockton (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 622, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 662 , plaintiff was injured in an automobile collision with a city police officer. The day before plaintiff filed a claim with the city, he filed a petition to perpetuate testimony or preserve evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. The city rejected the claim six weeks later, and complied with the discovery request approximately six weeks after that. Plaintiff filed suit approximately eight months after the claim was rejected by the city. The trial court overruled the city's demurrer on statute of limitations grounds and allowed the action to go to trial. Judgment was entered for plaintiff. The court of appeal reversed. The court rejected plaintiff's argument that the petition to perpetuate testimony or preserve evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. constituted the filing of a "suit" for purposes of the six-month limitations period. The court held that a "suit" for these purposes is an adversarial proceeding in which one party initiates a proceeding against a public entity to enforce a right or redress an injury. Plaintiff's discovery petition did not meet these requirements and thus his suit was not timely filed and should have been dismissed (150 Cal. App. 4th 622, 629-630) .

In Jordan v. City of Sacramento (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 641 , plaintiff sustained injuries when she tripped and fell on a public sidewalk. She filed a timely claim against the city, which was rejected. A representative of the city told plaintiff's attorney that, pursuant to a specified city ordinance, the city was not responsible for maintenance of the sidewalk. The claim was then forwarded to the abutting property owner. The property owner rejected the claim, and plaintiff filed suit against the property owner. Approximately seven months later, after discovering that the city could be partially liable, plaintiff amended the complaint to add the city as a defendant. The city successfully moved for summary judgment on the grounds that the six-month period for filing suit against the city had expired. The court of appeal affirmed. The court rejected plaintiff'sargument that the city should be estopped from relying on the statute of limitations. According to the court, while the city had purported to advise and direct plaintiff to sue only the property owner, this erroneous legal advice did not warrant disregard of the applicable limitations period. The court noted the lack of evidence that the city acted in bad faith or that the plaintiff had a confidential relationship with the city that would warrant holding the city to a higher standard of care when advising plaintiff. The court also noted that plaintiff was represented by an attorney at the time that the erroneous advice was given, and thus plaintiff was not a person lacking knowledge or training that would aid in determining her rights compared with the city. Because the court concluded that the city's conduct was not unconscionable, nor did the city take unfair advantage of plaintiff, estoppel was inappropriate and the trial court properly granted summary judgment (148 Cal. App. 4th 1487, 1499) .

In Han v. City of Pomona (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 552, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 616 , plaintiff appealed from an order denying a petition for relief from his failure to file a timely tort claim. The trial court concluded that plaintiff showed a lack of diligence from the time when the cause of action arose to the day the petition for relief was heard. The court of appeal affirmed the order denying the petition, finding that although there was excusable neglect for the failure to timely file a tort claim, no excuse existed for the failure to timely serve defendant with the petition for relief. Plaintiff filed the petition for relief in April 1991, but did not serve the defendant with the petition until October 12, 1993. The explanation given by plaintiff's attorney for this lapse of two and one-half years between the time the petition was filed and the time it was served on defendant, was that the attorney "lost contact" with plaintiff. The court reasoned that although Gov. Code § 946.6 states that the petition should be "filed within six months," and thus does not say "filed and served and a hearing set within six months," setting the hearing and serving the petition on defendant some two and one-half years after it is filed does not comply with the spirit of the statute (37 Cal. App. 4th 552, 559-560) .

In City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 621, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 703 , property owners who suffered damages from a sewer backup submitted a claim to the city with respect to both personal and real property. Initially, the city denied the claim as untimely because it was not filed within six months after the date on which the damage occurred; it advised claimants that they could seek relief to present a late claim (Gov. Code § 911.4). Ultimately, the city allowed a portion of the real property claim, but denied a portion on the ground that it had no prior notice of the condition that caused the damage. The city also denied claimants' request for leave to file a late claim with respect to the personal propertydamage. Claimants simultaneously filed an action seeking damages against the city, and submitted an application under Gov. Code § 945.6 relieving them from the claims requirement of Gov. Code § 945.4. The trial court denied a defense motion for summary judgment. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the personal property cause of action was barred because the petition for relief from the claims requirement was filed more than six months after the city's denial of the claim; and the action based on real property loss was untimely filed because the written rejection contained an explicit warning (Gov. Code § 913(b)) with regard to the six-month limitation period under Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1), and the action was filed more than six months after date of written denial of claim was deposited in the mail (14 Cal. App. 4th 621, 627-629) .

In Cole v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1, 222 Cal. Rptr. 426 , plaintiff high school football player filed a claim against defendant school district for injuries sustained during a football game. Defendant rejected plaintiff's claim. After plaintiff brought an action, the trial court granted defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings based on the fact that plaintiff had failed to file a complaint within six months as required by Gov. Code § 945.6. The court of appeal affirmed, saying that Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 is not applicable to Gov. Code § 945.6, and does not extend the time for filing a complaint by five days past the six-month limit after the deposit in the mail of the notice of rejection. The triggering date under Gov. Code § 945.6 generally will be the date the notice is deposited in the mail or personally delivered to the claimant, at which time the claimant will receive a warning that he or she has a limited time within which to sue and a suggestion that an attorney be consulted (177 Cal. App. 3d 1, 3) . The court said it was undisputed that the rejection was mailed on January 4, 1984, and that plaintiff did not file his complaint until July 9, 1984, more than six months after the notice was mailed. A failure to start the action within the statutory time period is a valid ground for dismissal of the action (177 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5) .

In Chalmers v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 461, 221 Cal. Rptr. 19 , after plaintiffs filed personal injury and wrongful death suits against defendant county, the trial court granted defendant's demurrer without leave to amend on the ground plaintiffs' suit was barred by application of the six-month statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1) and dismissed the action. The court of appeal affirmed. The court observed that plaintiffs received notice of rejection on September 7, 1983, and filed their lawsuit on March 19, 1984, after the six-month limit had passed. Plaintiffs contended that they were entitled to the two-year statute of limitations. They claimed that the letter of rejection did not comply with the notice requirements of Gov. Code § 913. They argued that, among other things, Gov. Code § 913(a) requires the written notice to contain the date on which the claim was presented and the date of action taken by the public entity or rejection by operation of law (175 Cal. App. 3d 461, 464) . Since the letter sent by defendant did not include either date, plaintiffs contended the notice was defective. The court disagreed, saying that Gov. Code § 913(a) describes the manner of notice and provides a suggested format. It said that Gov. Code § 913(a) does not require everything suggested by plaintiffs. The public entity has the option to follow the format and include the dates. Although not applicable to the notice sent to plaintiffs, the court went on to say that Gov. Code § 913(b) requires the notice to include a warning of the six-month time limitation. Because that is mandatory, a failure to include the warning would extend the time for filing the suit to two years from the time of accrual (175 Cal. App. 3d 461, 465) .

[b] Action Filed Within Two Years of Accrual of Cause of Action Is Timely When Proper Written Notice of Rejection of Claim Is Not Given

In Him v. City & County of San Francisco (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 437, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 838 , the plaintiffs were the parents of an individual who committed suicide while an inpatient at a city-owned hospital. The plaintiffs filed claims against the city on August 30, 2001. Although the city allegedly mailed formal notices rejecting the claims to the plaintiffs' attorney on November 19, 2001, the attorney's office claimed it never received the mailed notices. The plaintiffs subsequently filed a negligence action against the city on March 3, 2003. The city moved for summary judgment on the grounds that the action was untimely, and supported this motion with the claim rejection notices, accompanied by proofs of service by mail signed by a city claims adjuster and a declaration of the adjuster stating that she had mailed the notices in the city on November 19, 2001. The plaintiffs opposed the motion with a declaration from the secretary responsible for mail in the law office of the plaintiffs' attorney stating that no notices were received, along with a letter from the plaintiffs' attorney to potential referral counsel, dated May 2002, informing the referral counsel that no notices had been received as of that date. The trial court granted the motion for summary judgment, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court held that the proofs of service were not deficient merely because they did not indicate the precise mailbox at which the notices had been mailed. It was sufficient that they provided the city and state of mailing (133 Cal. App. 4th 437, 443-444) . The court concluded that in determining the timeliness of the lawsuit, the plaintiffs' contention that their attorney never received the notice of rejected claims was legally insufficient to create a triable issue on nonreceipt because the city had provided proofs of service by mail. Recognizing that evidence of nonreceipt is logically probative of nonmailing, the court nonetheless concluded that the Tort Claims Act places on the claimant the risk that a properly mailed notice of claimrejection will not be received due to an error by postal authorities. The Act provides a specific time frame for a public entity to reject a claim, and following a reasonable time after expiration of this period, a claimant should be aware that the claim has been denied and should inquire about notice of denial. A claimant should not be permitted to forgo this opportunity and rely on the fact that no notice was provided in order to extend the limitations period (133 Cal. App. 4th 437, 445-446) .

In Dowell v. County of Contra Costa (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 896, 219 Cal. Rptr. 341 , plaintiff filed a timely claim for the wrongful death of her husband with defendant county and the state. Defendant county rejected her claim and mailed plaintiff notice of the rejection on March 24, 1982, without stating how or when it was served. The state rejected plaintiff's claim on June 1, 1982, but did not serve her with its notice of rejection until September 20, 1982. Plaintiff filed suit against defendant on November 12, 1982. Defendant filed a motion for summary judgment on the ground of failure to timely file a court action pursuant to Gov. Code § 945.6. The trial court granted the motion and rendered judgment for defendant. The court of appeal affirmed, concluding that the mailing of a notice of rejection starts the running of the six months within which the claimant must file suit on the claim, even though the notice neither states the date on which it was mailed nor is accompanied by a proof of service of mail (173 Cal. App. 3d 896, 898) .

Plaintiff had argued that the applicable statute of limitations was two years, since the notice of rejection of her claim did not specify the date on which it was mailed. She contended that defendant's notice did not comply with the requirements of Gov. Code § 913. The court disagreed and said that the language of Gov. Code § 913 does not require that the notice of rejection indicate the date notice was personally delivered or deposited in the mail. The court said when the notice of rejection complies with Gov. Code § 913, the six-month statute of limitations cannot be extended by provisions outside the California Tort Claims Act, and plaintiff must be charged with knowledge of the six-month statute of limitations because she filed a timely government tort claim. The court suggested that a claimant who fails to receive a written notice of the public entity's action on the claim within a reasonable time after the end of the 45-day period or its consideration should make inquiry to determine whether, and if so, when, the notice was in fact served. The two-year period of limitations obtains only when the notice was not served; the six-month rule applies if notice was served, even though not actually received by the claimant (173 Cal. App. 3d 896, 901) . The court concluded that the notice sent to plaintiff contained a warning of the six-month statute of limitations and clearly informed her of the rejection of her claim. Since she filed a timely claim and received a notice of rejection, plaintiff must be charged with the knowledge of the six-month statute of limitations (173 Cal. App. 3d 896, 901) . It was her duty to investigate the exact date on which the rejection was mailed. Her cause of action against defendant was barred (173 Cal. App. 3d 896, 902) .

In Glorietta Foods, Inc. v. City of San Jose (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 835, 195 Cal. Rptr. 355 , plaintiff, alleging that it suffered damages as result of action by the fire department of defendant city, filed a claim for damages. Fifty days after the claim was filed, defendant mailed a notice of rejection of the claim to plaintiff. Over one year later plaintiff filed suit. The trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground the action was barred by Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1). The court of appeal affirmed. Plaintiff contended that it had two years within which it could file the action pursuant to Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(2), because defendant failed to accept or reject its claim within the 45 days prescribed by Gov. Code §§ 911.6(a) and 912.4(a). The court agreed that both code sections provided that the board "shall" act within 45 days, but said they were restricted in their scope to applications for late claims, and authorized extensions to the deadline for acting before a claim is deemed rejected by operation of law, respectively. The court said that Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1) makes it clear that a public entity may give notice of rejection of a claim and commence the running of the six-month statute of limitations (147 Cal. App. 3d 835, 838) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
2. Timely Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.141

§ 196.141 Supporting Contention That Action Was Timely Filed--No Presentation of Claim Required [Gov. Code § 945.8]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION WAS TIMELY FILED BECAUSE THE CLAIM FILING REQUIREMENT DID NOT APPLY TO THE ACTION AND IT WAS FILED WITHIN _____ [specify the applicable statute of limitations, e.g., ONE YEAR OF THE DATE OF PERSONAL INJURY], THE PERIOD APPLICABLE TO A DEFENDANT OTHER THAN A PUBLIC ENTITY.

When No Claim Required, Action Filed Within Statute of Limitations Applicable to Nonpublic Entity Defendant Is Timely. The plaintiff's action was timely filed because a claim was not required to be presented, and the action was commenced within the time prescribed by the statute of limitations that would be applicable if the action was brought against a defendant other than a public entity (see Gov. Code § 945.8; Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 398, 405-408, 163 Cal. Rptr. 711).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the complaint was timely filed against a public entity because (1) the action was not one that required presentation of a claim, (2) the action was commenced within the statutory period that would otherwise apply if the action were brought against a defendant other than a public entity, and (3) no different statute of limitations is specifically applicable to the public entity [Gov. Code § 945.8].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 398, 402, 163 Cal. Rptr. 711] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Applicable Statute of Limitations

An action against a public entity on a cause of action for which a claim is required to be presented in accordance with Gov. Code §§ 900-915.4 must be commenced within the time provided by Gov. Code § 945.6 [Code Civ. Proc. § 342; see § 196.140]. When presentation of a claim is not required, the action must be commenced within the time pre scribed by the statute of limitations that would be applicable if the action was brought against a defendant other than a public entity, unless a different statute of limitations is specifically applicable to the public entity [see Gov. Code § 945.8].

[c] Actions Not Requiring Claim

Gov. Code § 905 specifically exempts a variety of actions from the claim presentation requirement, among them claims under the Revenue and Taxation Code, claims for public assistance under the Welfare and Institutions Code, and claims for money under any public retirement or pension system [see Gov. Code § 905(a), (e), (f); see also Gov. Code §§ 905.1, 905.6]. Exceptions to the claim presentation requirement are set out fully in § 196.30.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a general discussion of the limitation of actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions (Matthew Bender). For discussion of the limitation of actions in particular areas, see the chapters pertaining to those topics in that publication.

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing a general demurrer to a complaint based on the ground that the action is barred by a statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When No Claim Required, Action Filed Within Statute of Limitations Applicable to Nonpublic Entity Defendant Is Timely

In Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 398, 163 Cal. Rptr. 711 , plaintiffs brought an action in inverse condemnation, continuing nuisance, and dangerous condition of public property, arising from subsidence-related damage to real property alleged to be the result of defective sewage and drainage systems of defendant city. The trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action was barred by the statute of limitations. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Although never mentioned by the court, the action was not one in which a claim was required to be presented prior to bringing suit against a public entity. Thus, in deciding whether the action was barred by the statute of limitations, the court considered Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 and former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b)], rather then any of those within the provisions of the California Tort Claims Act. The court said that defendant was not a developer, which was the class that Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 was designed to protect, and concluded that Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 did not govern the action (104 Cal. App. 3d 398, 405) . Thus, whether or not plaintiffs' claim was barred by some other applicable statute of limitations was dependent on a determination of when the cause of action accrued. The court said that the cause of action accrued from the time when plaintiffs became aware of defendant's negligence as a cause, or could have become so aware through the exercise of reasonable diligence (104 Cal. App. 3d 398, 408) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] When No Claim Required, Action Filed Within Statute of Limitations Applicable to Nonpublic Entity Defendant Is Timely

In Tharp v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 496, 186 Cal. Rptr. 335, 651 P.2d 1141 , petitioners filed a petition for writs of prohibition andmandate seeking to compel the New Motor Vehicles Board to dismiss a proceeding against them. The Board successfully moved for a change of venue on the basis of Gov. Code § 955. The California Supreme Court issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the superior court to vacate its order for change of venue. The Court discussed the scope of the California Tort Claims Act, and said that Gov. Code §§ 940-960.8 cover actions against public entities, including the state. It said there is no doubt that the actions against public entities to which those statutes relate are only those to which the claims procedures of Gov. Code §§ 900-935.7 apply--claims for money or damages--or claims which, though for money or damages, are specifically exempted from the requirement of a claim. Citing Gov. Code §§ 945.4 and 945.8 as authority, the Court listed as an example the matters listed in Gov. Code §§ 905 and 905.2. The Court concluded that Gov. Code § 955 is part of the special provisions relating to actions against the state and there was absolutely no reason to suppose that it related to any type of action other than actions on claims for money or damages for which the filing of a claim is a statutory prerequisite or actions on claims for money or damages which are specifically exempted from the filing requirement (32 Cal. 3d 496, 500-501) .

In Tubbs v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 671, 63 Cal. Rptr. 377, 433 P.2d 169 , plaintiff was injured while a passenger on defendant's bus. She presented a timely claim to the public entity, and later filed a complaint for personal injuries. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed. The California Supreme Court affirmed. The Court said that because plaintiff's cause of action accrued before the effective date of the general claims procedure and she presented a timely claim to the public entity, her claim was deemed to have been presented on September 20, 1963. The Court found that under the applicable provisions, her complaint was not timely filed, and was barred by the statute of limitations (67 Cal. 2d 671, 675) . In order to obviate the bar of the statute of limitations, plaintiff filed a second amended complaint in which she argued that no claim was required, and that her filing of a claim had been a superfluous act and should be disregarded. The Court considered the applicable Government Code provisions and rejected plaintiff's argument (67 Cal. 2d 671, 676) . Finally, plaintiff argued that the usual one-year statute of limitations, and not the six-month statute, applied to her cause of action by virtue of Gov. Code § 945.8. The Court disagreed, noting that Gov. Code § 945.8 applies to certain claims exempt from the general claims procedure, for example, the exceptions listed in Gov. Code § 905, but it did not apply to plaintiff's action (67 Cal. 2d 671, 677) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
2. Timely Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.142

§ 196.142 Supporting Contention That Action Was Timely Filed--Following Order Granting Relief From Claim Presentation Requirement [Gov. Code § 946.6(f)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION WAS TIMELY FILED BECAUSE IT WAS FILED WITHIN 30 DAYS AFTER THE COURT ORDER RELIEVING HIM/HER FROM THE CLAIM FILING REQUIREMENT.

Action Filed Within 30 Days After Court-Ordered Relief From Claim Requirement Is Timely. The plaintiff's action was timely filed because the court issued an order relieving the plaintiff from the claim filing requirement of Government Code section 945.4, and the suit was filed within 30 days after that order (Gov. Code § 946.6(f); County of Nevada v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 806, 809, 228 Cal. Rptr. 447 Brown v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 640, 646, 93 Cal. Rptr. 417).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the complaint was timely filed because it was filed within 30 days after the court order relieving the plaintiff from the claim filing requirement [see Gov. Code § 946.6(f)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., Brown v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 640, 642, 93 Cal. Rptr. 417] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Commencement of Thirty-Day Period

When the court order granting relief from compliance with the claims requirement is contained in a minute order that does not call for the preparation and filing of a formal order, the 30-day statute of limitations commences on the date the minute order is made and filed [McHale v. State of California (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 396, 399, 178 Cal. Rptr. 83] . However, the 30-day period commences on the date of the minute order only if the minute order does not call for the preparation and filing of a formal order. If the court elects to make a formal order, or direct that such an order be prepared and entered, then the 30-day period commences with the entry of that formal order [County of Nevada v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 806, 808-809, 228 Cal. Rptr. 447 ; Todd v. County of Los Angeles (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 661, 663, 663 n.1, 141 Cal. Rptr. 622] . The period commences with the date of the order, and is not extended until actual notice [Fritts v. County of Kern (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 303, 307-308, 185 Cal. Rptr. 212] .

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing a general demurrer to a complaint based on the ground that the action is barred by a statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within 30 Days After Court-Ordered Relief From Claim Requirement Is Timely

In County of Nevada v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 806, 228 Cal. Rptr. 447 , plaintiff petitioned the court for relief from the claim filing requirement. Defendant did not oppose that request, and on August 26, 1985, the trial court announced from the bench that the motion was granted. A minute order reflecting that ruling was entered by the clerk that same day. Plaintiff's counsel prepared a formal order which was signed by the judge and filed on September 4. On October 3, plaintiff filed a complaint against defendant for personal injuries. Defendant demurred, claiming the complaint was barred by the 30-day limitation of Gov. Code § 946.6(f). The trial court overruled the demurrer and defendant sought a writ of mandate directing the trial court to sustain the demurrer.

The court of appeal denied the petition for writ of mandate. Defendant contended that the 30-day period commenced running with the minute order, and cited McHale v. State of California (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 396, 178 Cal. Rptr. 83 , as authority. The court distinguished McHale, and said that the entry of the minute order constitutes the operative date for commencement of the 30-day period only if the minute order does not call for the preparation and filing of a formal order. The court observed that a trial court may elect to make a formal order, or direct that such an order be prepared and entry then consists of filing the signed order with the clerk (183 Cal. App. 3d 806, 808-809) . Although the minute order entered in this case did not include an express instruction that a formal order be prepared, the court of appeal noted that by operation of local court rule, the trial court was deemed to have directed preparation by plaintiff of a formal order for its signature when, on August 26, it granted the application for relief. Accordingly, the court found the 30 days within which plaintiff could file her action did not commence until September 4, and the complaint was timely (183 Cal. App. 3d 806, 809) .

In Brown v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 640, 93 Cal. Rptr. 417 , plaintiff sustained personal injuries in an accident, which she alleged was caused by the negligence of defendant public entities. On April 16, 1969, the trial court granted plaintiff relief from the claim filing requirement. Plaintiff filed a complaint on May 7, 1969, 21 days after that court order. Defendants demurred to the complaint, claiming it was barred by the statute of limitations. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court said that Gov. Code § 946.6(f) provides a special period of limitations on actions that can be commenced only after relief from the claims presentation requirement is granted. It establishes a maximum period of 30 days after the granting of judicial relief within which the claimant may commence his or her action. The court said that period may be longer or shorter than the normal period of limitations for actions on claims. The court observed that plaintiff was granted the right to commence suit and did so within the period enunciated. The court further observed that defendant was not injured by the commencement of the action, but had been informed of the accident since the day it occurred (15 Cal. App. 3d 640, 646) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within 30 Days After Court-Ordered Relief From Claim Requirement Is Timely

In Black v. County of Los Angeles (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 920, 127 Cal. Rptr. 916 , plaintiffs filed an original and an amended complaint against defendant county in which they sought damages resulting from an automobile accident. After a trial, the trial court entered judgment in favor of plaintiffs. Plaintiffs moved for new trial on the grounds that damages were inadequate. That motion was granted as to only two of the minor plaintiffs and only on the issue of damages. Defendants appealed the judgment and the order granting a new trial. The court of appeal affirmed in part and reversed in part. In addressing the issue of the timeliness of minor plaintiffs' actions, the court reviewed the timelines of the case. The trial court had granted plaintiff minors' petition relieving them of the provisions of Gov. Code § 945.4. That order was dated September 10, 1969. The amended complaint was not filed until December 2, 1969. Defendant county contended that the cause of action was barred because minorplaintiffs failed to file the amended complaint within 30 days after the court order (55 Cal. App. 3d 920, 930) . However, the court disagreed, and said that the original complaint alleged that plaintiffs did not know and did not have reason to know within the claim-filing period that any public entity defendants might be responsible for the accident. The court found that plaintiffs sufficiently stated a cause of action to permit the amended complaint to relate back to the original complaint. Thus, the court concluded that the causes of action for personal injuries and wrongful death asserted by minors were not barred by Gov. Code § 946.6(f) (55 Cal. App. 3d 920, 931) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Action Filed Within 30 Days After Court-Ordered Relief From Claim Requirement Is Timely

The facts and procedural background of Mandjik v. Eden Township Hosp. Dist. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 582 , are discussed in § 196.140[4][b]. Although the court of appeal reversed the trial court dismissal, that holding was based on the defective warning language. The court of appeal agreed with the trial court determination that the complaint was not filed within the statutory 30-day period following late claim relief. It said that the 30-day period commences when the court makes an order granting relief. Absent a court directive or a local rule requiring that a formal order be prepared, the date the court "makes an order" is the date it enters its minute order granting relief (4 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 1496-1497) . The court rejected plaintiffs' attempts to distinguish their case from the McHale line of cases (4 Cal. App. 4th 1488, 1497-1498) .

In Fritts v. County of Kern (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 303, 185 Cal. Rptr. 212 , after failing to file a timely claim against defendant county, plaintiff petitioned the court to be relieved of the claim filing requirement. A minute order granting the petition was prepared and mailed to the parties. Thirty one days later plaintiff filed a complaint. Defendant demurred to the complaint, claiming it was barred by the 30-day statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 946.6(f). The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court said the procedure for granting relief from the claim statutes is remedial in nature and must be liberally construed in favor of the claimant, but that liberality does not extend to the 30-day statute of limitations. The California Tort Claims Act indulges late claimants, not late suitors. A late claim suggests late discovery of the proper means of redress. Once a claimant has filed a claim, he or she demonstrates familiarity with the statutory procedures governing that grievance, and can reasonably be charged with knowledge of the time limitations that are part of that procedure (135 Cal. App. 3d 303, 305-306) .

The court concluded that the commencement of the 30-day limitation period in Gov. Code § 946.6(f) is not extended until actual notice (135 Cal. App. 3d 303, 307) . Nor is it extended for an additional five days due to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) (service of notice by mail) (135 Cal. App. 3d 303, 308) .

In Rivera v. City of Carson (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 718, 173 Cal. Rptr. 4 , plaintiffs petitioned for relief from the claim filing requirement so that they could file a negligence action against defendant city. On August 29, 1979, the trial court granted the petition on the ground that plaintiffs were minors during the period for presentation of claims. On October 1, 1979, plaintiffs filed a complaint against defendant, who demurred to the complaint, claiming it was barred by the 30-day statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 946.6(f). The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and dismissed the action, and the court of appeal affirmed (117 Cal. App. 3d 718, 728) . The court said that the statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 946.6(f) is not tolled by the minority of a petitioner who has been relieved of the requirement of filing a claim before bringing suit against a public entity. The prescribed statutes of limitation for commencement of actions against the state are mandatory and must be strictly complied with. The complaint showed on its face that plaintiffs' action was barred by the Gov. Code § 946.6(f) statute of limitations (117 Cal. App. 3d 718, 726) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
2. Timely Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.143

§ 196.143 Supporting Contention That Action Against Public Employee Was Timely Filed [Gov. Code § 950.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION AGAINST _____ [name], A[N] [FORMER] EMPLOYEE OF _____ [specify public entity] WAS TIMELY FILED BECAUSE IT WAS FILED WITHIN _____ [specify the applicable statute of limitations, e.g., SIX MONTHS AFTER THE NOTICE OF REJECTION OF HIS/HER CLAIM], THE PERIOD APPLICABLE TO AN ACTION BY HIM/HER AGAINST THE PUBLIC ENTITY.

A. Action Against Public Employee Is Timely When Commenced Within Time Applicable to Public Entity. The plaintiff's action against the public employee or former public employee whose act or omission caused the plaintiff injury was timely filed because a written claim for money or damages for injury was presented to the employing public entity, and that claim was rejected, or wasdeemed to have been rejected, and the action was commenced within the time by Section 945.6 of the Government Code for bringing an action against a public entity (Gov. Code § 950.6(a), (b)).

[Optional] B. Action Filed Within Six Months After Restoration of Civil Right to Commence Action Is Timely. The plaintiff's action was timely filed because he or she was sentenced to imprisonment in a state prison, and was thereby deprived of his or her civil right to commence actions, and the plaintiff filed the action within six months after the date that his or her civil right to commence actions was restored (Gov. Code § 950.6(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the complaint against a public employee or former public employee was timely filed because it was filed within the time requirements set forth in Gov. Code § 945.6 [see Gov. Code § 950.6].

When appropriate, these points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities set out in § 196.140, which support the general contention that an action has been filed within the time requirements of Gov. Code § 945.6. They may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer or a motion for summary judgment. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing a general demurrer to a complaint based on the ground that the action is barred by a statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

[3] Opposing Authorities

[a] Action Against Public Employee Is Timely When Commenced Within Time Applicable to Public Entity

In Julian v. City of San Diego (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 169, 229 Cal. Rptr. 664 , on June 20, 1984, plaintiff filed a claim with defendant city for damages for personal injuries. On August 3, that claim was rejected. Additionally, plaintiff's claim for consequential damages arising from the accident, filed on July 31, was rejected on September 14, 1984. On March 5, 1985, plaintiff filed an application to present a late claim for damages, and attached a proposed claim naming the city and specific city employees as defendants. After defendant city refused to consider the proposed claim, plaintiff petitioned the court for an order for relief from the claim filing requirement. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's denial of that petition (183 Cal. App. 3d 169, 177). It said that the six-month period within which to commence an action for damages for personal injuries against public employees begins to run once the six-month period for instituting an action against the employing public entity is triggered by rejection of a claim for damages against the public entity and unnamed public employees (183 Cal. App. 3d 169, 171) . The court said only one claim was required and plaintiff's attempt to file a late claim with defendant city by naming city employees allegedly responsible for creating the dangerous condition was ineffective to avoid the bar of the six-month statute of limitations governing his claim (183 Cal. App. 3d 169, 173) . The court found that the allegations in plaintiff's claim and proposed late claim show he did not seek to impose liability against individuals who just happened to be public employees. Rather, the claims reflected liability, if any, for plaintiff's injuries arising from the acts of omissions of the employees in the course and scope of their employment resulting in the creation and maintenance of a dangerous condition. No independent or separate basis for imposing liability against the employees outside their employment was alleged in the proposed late claim such that the city would not be subject to potential liability (183 Cal. App. 3d 169, 174) . The court said that presentation of a claim against a public employee or former public employee for injury resulting from an act or omission in the scope of his or her public employment is not a prerequisite to the maintenance of an action against the employee, but presentation of a claim against the employing public entity is a prerequisite. Gov. Code § 950.6 requires an action against the employee to be commenced within the time prescribed for bringing an action against the public entity. A claim for damages for injuries caused by a public employee while acting within the course and scope of his or her employment need not be presented before instituting a court action for those damages against the public employee. However, presentation of a claim to the employing public entity is a condition precedent to maintenance of a court action and the six-month limitations period applies to those actions. The court said plaintiff's assertion that a separate claim for damages against the city employees for his personal injuries was required to be presented was without merit. Scrutiny of the claim and the proposed late claim shows that the basis of potential liability is the same in each (183 Cal. App. 3d 169, 175) . Since the only difference between the proposed late claim and the first claim was the substitution of names of the public employees in the later claim, the later claim amounted to no more than an attempt to amend the original claim. Thus,the amendment relates back to the date the original claim was filed. As a consequence, the court said the six-month statute of limitations began to run from the date the claim was rejected. Since a separate claim was not required, the application for relief from the claim filing requirement was properly denied because the six-months statute of limitation barred any action against the city employees (183 Cal. App. 3d 169, 176) .

144 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
2. Timely Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.144-196.159

[Reserved]

§§ 196.144[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
3. Late Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.160

§ 196.160 Supporting Contention That Action Is Not Barred by Statute of Limitations--Statute Tolled Pending Resolution of Related Administrative Hearing

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION IS NOT BARRED BECAUSE THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS WAS TOLLED WHILE PLAINTIFF WAS PURSUING HIS/HER ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES.

A. Tolling of Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations for actions against public entities is tolled while the plaintiff is pursuing related administrative remedies that may be dispositive of an essential element of the cause of action (Olson v. County of Sacramento (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 958, 960-965, 113 Cal. Rptr. 664).

[Optional] B. Tolled Pending Review of Dismissal. The statute of limitations for an action against a public entity for wrongful dismissal is tolled while the former employee plaintiff is pursuing administrative remedies for his or her dismissal and then seeking judicial review of the denial of administrative relief (Olson v. County of Sacramento (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 958, 960-965, 113 Cal. Rptr. 664).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the argument that the action is barred by the statute of limitations. It is based on the contention that the plaintiff's pursuit of related administrative remedies tolled the statute of limitations.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [ see, e.g., Olson v. County of Sacramento (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 958, 959, 113 Cal. Rptr. 664] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Additional Tolling Provisions

No person charged with a criminal offense may bring a civil action for money or damages against a police officer or the employing public entity based on that peace officer's conduct relating to the charged offense while those charges are pending before a municipal or superior court. However, this restriction does not prohibit the filing of a claim with the board of a public entity, and does not extend the time within which a claim is required [see Gov. Code § 945.3; see also Schmidlin v. City of Palo Alto (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 728, 756-760, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 365 ("charges pending before a court" includes charges embodied in notice to appear served on plaintiff)].

Any person, including any insurer, who makes an advance or partial payment, as an accommodation to an injured person or on that person's behalf to his or her heirs or dependents, must at the time of beginning payment notify the recipient in writing of the statute of limitations applicable to the cause of action which that recipient may bring against that person as a result of that injury or death, including any time limitations within which claims are required to be made against the state or any local public entity when those payments are made on behalf of those public entities. Failure to provide that written notice will operate to toll any applicable statute of limitations or time limitations from the time of that advance or partial payment until that written notice is actually given [Ins. Code § 11583].

Code Civ. Proc. § 352 sets forth generally tolling provisions applicable to persons who are minors, insane, or imprisoned. It is not applicable to actions against a public entity or public employee within the parameters of the California Tort Claims Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 352(b); Moyer v. Hook (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 491, 494, 89 Cal. Rptr. 234] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a general discussion of the limitation of actions, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions , California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For discussion of review of administrative hearings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 474. Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decision , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to the tolling of the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For memoranda of points and authorities relating to public administrative decisions, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tolling of Statute of Limitations

Olson v. County of Sacramento (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 958, 113 Cal. Rptr. 664 , was an action for damages for wrongful dismissal from employment with defendant county. Prior to bringing the action, plaintiff had appealed his dismissal to the Civil Service Commission, sought a writ of administrative mandamus to review denial of reinstatement by the commission, and appealed the denial of the writ. The appeal resulted in plaintiff's reinstatement. He then filed a claim and action against defendant. Defendant demurred, contending that the statute of limitations had run because the action was not timely filed in relationship to plaintiff's dismissal from employment. The trial court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It said that the basis of plaintiff's claim was the wrongfulness of his discharge. If the discharge was lawful, so long as the order of discharge and the findings, decision, and rulings of the civil service commission and the court remained undisturbed, any emotional, mental, or physical pain consequential thereto were not compensable. They would constitute an insuperable barrier to the successful prosecution of plaintiff's claim for damages (38 Cal. App. 3d 958, 963) . The court observed that if plaintiff had not exhausted his administrative remedies and the writ of mandate proceedings, his dismissal would have become final and a permanent bar to his assertion of any rights flowing from his wrongful discharge (38 Cal. App. 3d 958, 964) . The court emphasized that the judicial policy underlying the tolling of statutes of limitations during the pendency of interrelated administrative proceedings in cases when the latter may be dispositive of an essential element of a legal cause of action is founded on the need for harmony and the avoidance of chaos in the administration of justice. Tolling avoids a multiplicity of actions in cases having common elements of law or fact, or both and relieves litigants of the pressure to outrace each other in seeking an adjudication of one or the other of the legal proceedings in a forum where he or she may believe there is a greater chance of prevailing. The court concluded that the orderly administration of justice is best served by tolling the statute of limitations on independent causes of actions at law until the final determination of the interrelated administrative proceeding (38 Cal. App. 3d 958, 965) .

[b] Tolled Pending Review of Dismissal

Olson v. County of Sacramento (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 958, 113 Cal. Rptr. 664 , is discussed in § 196.160[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tolling of Statute of Limitations

In A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. State of California (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 48 Cal. Rptr. 225 (qualified on another point in E.H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 792, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551), plaintiff was a contractor on a state highway construction project. There was a dispute about payment for extra work and plaintiff followed settlement remedies prescribed by the contract. When an adequate settlement was not reached, plaintiff filed a claim and then filed suit. In the trial court the state prevailed on the theory that the claim and action were not timely filed because plaintiff's cause of action arose when the contract was completed. The court of appeal reversed, stating that the statute of limitations is suspended during the pendency of administrative proceedings, which form a necessary prelude to a lawsuit (238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 746) , or during pursuit of extrajudicial settlement of disputes as required by contract (238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 746, 747) . The court found that under one doctrine or the other, the claims under the contract with the state did not accrue, and the two-year period for filing such claims did not start until completion of the settlement procedure established by the contract specifications (238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 747) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
3. Late Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.161

§ 196.161 Supporting Contention That Action Is Not Barred By Statute of Limitations--Statute Tolled While Related Federal Action Pending

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PLAINTIFF'S ACTION IS NOT BARRED BECAUSE THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS WAS TOLLED PENDING THE RESOLUTION OF A RELATED FEDERAL ACTION.

Tolling Statute of Limitations. The statute of limitations in Section 945.6 of the Government Code providing that an action against a public entity must be filed within six months after the denial of the claim is tolled when, after timely filing a claim with the public entity, the plaintiff files the action in federal court. The statute of limitations is tolled during the period the federal action is pending, and the state court action is timely if it is filed within six months after the denial of the claim, not including the time the federal action was pending (Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 316-321, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the argument that the action is barred by the statute of limitations. It is based on the contention that the statute of limitations is tolled pending the resolution of a related federal action between the parties.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 316, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to the tolling of the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tolling Statute of Limitations

In Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941 , plaintiffs, sellers of automobiles at auctions, were investigated for fraudulent sales practices in a widely publicized investigation during which records were seized. No criminal proceedings resulted. Plaintiffs then filed timely damage claims with the state and defendant investigating county for defamation, abuse of process, and conversion. After the claims were denied, plaintiffs filed an action in federal court, based on the same claims for civil rights violations, and relying on pendent jurisdiction for the torts. More than six months after the denial of the claim, plaintiffs also filed a state court action. The federal action was then dismissed without prejudice to the state action. The state trial court sustained defendants' demurrer on the basis of the statute of limitations, and dismissed the action. Plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed, after applying the doctrine of equitable tolling and finding that the six-month limitation period was suspended during the period when plaintiffs' claims were pending in federal court (21Cal. 3d 313, 316) . The Court acknowledged the primary purpose of statutes of limitations, which is to prevent the assertion of stale claims by plaintiffs who have failed to file while the evidence is fresh and witnesses are available. However, it also recognized the general policy that favors relieving a plaintiff from the bar of a limitations statute when, possessing several legal remedies, that plaintiff, reasonably and in good faith, pursues one designed to lessen the extent of his or her injuries or damage (21 Cal. 3d 313, 317) . It said that equitable tolling requires timely notice, and lack of prejudice, to the defendant, and reasonable and good-faith conduct on the part of the plaintiff. The Court found that all those elements were present. The federal action involved the same set of facts, and its filing notified defendants of the action and gave them the opportunity to gather evidence and prepare a defense. The Court concluded that applying equitable tolling in plaintiffs' case satisfied the policy underlying the statute of limitations without ignoring the competing policy of avoiding technical and unjust forfeitures (21 Cal. 3d 313, 319) . The Court disagreed with defendants' contention that the equitable tolling doctrine should not apply to public entities because it would conflict with the California Tort Claim Act (21 Cal. 3d 313, 319-320) .

NOTE:

In Addison, the Court found it significant that the warning contained in the notice of rejection of the plaintiffs' claim, although in compliance with the notice set forth in Gov. Code § 913(b), did not specify that the action was required to be filed in state court, and gave no indication that filing in federal court would not comply equally with the statutory mandate [Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 320, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941] . For additional discussion of notice of rejection of claim, see § 196.140.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tolling Statute of Limitations

In McAlpine v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1, 257 Cal. Rptr. 32 , a police officer stopped two men who matched a description of recent robbery suspects, but when they drove away before he could question them, he fired shots, killing the driver and injuring plaintiff. Plaintiff's timely filed tort claim against defendants, the city and the police officer, was denied. Plaintiff was charged with armed robbery, attempted robbery, and auto theft, to which he pleaded nolo contendere. He was found guilty, and was sentenced three months later. Four months after sentencing, plaintiff filed a tort action in federal court, which he dismissed seven months later when he filed his tort action in state court. Defendants demurred, contending the action was barred by Gov. Code § 945.6. The trial court overruled the demurrer, and the court of appeal denied defendants' petition for a writ of mandate. Gov. Code § 945.3 prevented plaintiff from filing a tort action against defendants while the criminal charges against him were pending. The court concluded that for purposes of Gov. Code § 945.3, criminal charges are pending until the date of judgment and sentence. Thus, the complaint in federal court was timely filed (209 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6-8) . The court also held that under the doctrine of equitable tolling, the federal filing tolled the statute of limitations on the state complaint, explaining that under the equitable tolling doctrine an alternative remedy pursued during the limitations period, such as a timely filed federal action, will toll the statute of limitations (209 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Tolling Statute of Limitations

In Dowell v. County of Contra Costa (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 896, 219 Cal. Rptr. 341 , discussed in § 196.140[5][b], plaintiff's action against defendant county was subject to a summary motion by defendant for failure to comply with the statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 945.6. On appeal, plaintiff contended that the statute of limitations on her cause of action against defendant county was tolled during the pendency of her claim against the state, and therefore her action against defendant was timely filed following the state's notice of rejection of her claim on September 20, 1982. The court of appeal observed that this argument invoked the doctrine of equitable tolling, and that plaintiff had not raised that doctrine in the trial court. Since she may not raise a new theory for the first time on appeal, the court did not need to address the issue, but went on to address it anyway (173 Cal. App. 3d 896, 902) . The court said the doctrine was not applicable. The doctrine of equitable tolling applies only when the plaintiff commences a second action that is in reality a continuation of an earlier action involving the same parties, facts, and cause of action. Due to the lack of identity of the parties, the existence of continuing administrative proceedings by plaintiff against the state would not toll the statute of limitations for plaintiff's cause of action against defendant. The court explained there are three basic requirements for application of the doctrine of equitable tolling: timely notice, lack of prejudice to the defendants, and reasonable and good-faith conduct on the part of the plaintiff. The court said that plaintiff's failure to file suit against defendant until her action on her claim against the state did not provide defendant with notice of her intention to bring suit or prevent prejudice to it. Since the claims proceedings were entirely separate and defendant was not put on notice of plaintiff's intention to sue, the doctrine of equitable tolling was inapplicable (173 Cal. App. 3d 896, 903) .

In Loehr v. Ventura County Community College Dist. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 195 Cal. Rptr. 576 , plaintiff was dismissed as school superintendent and brought an action under the federal Civil Rights Act in federal court. While that action was pending, plaintiff attempted to comply with the filing requirements under the California Tort Claims Act by filing a claim with defendant college district. After his claim was rejected, plaintiff attempted to amend his federal pleading to add pendent state claims and filed an action in state court for wrongful termination seeking damages and reinstatement. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers to the complaint and dismissed the action. The court of appeal affirmed (147 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1087). After the court concluded that plaintiff had not complied with the claim filing requirement because his alleged claim did not satisfy the requirements of a claim, it examined the doctrine of equitable tolling of the statute of limitations (147 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1084) . It said that the doctrine of equitable tolling generally applies when an injured person has several legal remedies and, reasonably and in good faith, pursues one designed to lessen the extent of the injury or damages (147 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1084) . The court explained that equitable tolling involves a three-part test. First, the filing of the first claim must provide the defendant in the second claim with timely notice of the need to begin investigating the facts that form the basis of that claim. Generally this means that the defendant in the first claim is the same one being sued in the second. Second, the facts of the two claims must be identical or at least so similar that the defendant's investigation of the first claim will place him or her in a position to fairly defend the second. Third, the plaintiff must have acted reasonably and in good faith in filing the second claim (147 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1085) . The court observed that each of the causes of action asserted in plaintiff's complaint was predated on a different wrong, and based on a set of facts independent of those set forth in his suit under the federal Civil Rights Act (147 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1085) . The court characterized plaintiff's reliance on Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941 , as misplaced. It said that Addison applied the doctrine of equitable tolling to situations involving litigants who, possessing several legal remedies for the same harm, reasonably and in good faith pursued one. Addison does not say that the statute of limitations should be tolled while a plaintiff who allegedly suffered different wrongs pursues only one remedy for one of those wrongs. The court said that plaintiff failed timely to file any claim that would have alerted defendants to the nature of the various causes of action eventually asserted in the state court suit. Because the federal and state court actions were substantially dissimilar in both the remedies sought and the wrongs alleged, the filing of the federal suit could not have provided timely notice to defendants of the causes of action subsequently alleged in the state court complaint (147 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1086) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
3. Late Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.162

§ 196.162 Supporting Contention That Action Is Not Barred by Statute of Limitations--Public Entity Estopped From Relying on Statute by Engaging in Settlement Negotiations Throughout Limitations Period

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION IS NOT BARRED BECAUSE DEFENDANT PUBLIC ENTITY IS ESTOPPED FROM RELYING ON THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS IN THAT IT CONTINUED TO NEGOTIATE WITH PLAINTIFF IN AN ATTEMPT TO COMPROMISE THE CLAIM DURING THE LIMITATION PERIOD.

A. Public Agency Is Estopped From Asserting Statute of Limitations When It Continued to Engage in Settlement Negotiations. When a public entity engages in settlement negotiations with the plaintiff through the period of limitations for filing an action, the plaintiff is justified in relying on the public entity to reject the claim if a compromise is not reached and thus the public entity is estopped from relying on the statute of limitations (Potstada v. City of Oakland (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1027-1029, 106 Cal. Rptr. 705).

[Optional] B. Estoppel Based on Request to Delay Filing Action. A public entity is estopped from relying on the statute of limitations when it has engaged in settlement negotiations with the plaintiff and has requested that suit not be filed until after a specified document is received, when the public entity knew that receipt would not occur until after the expiration of the limitations period (Sumrall v. City of Cypress (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 565, 569-571, 65 Cal. Rptr. 755 (medical report)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the argument that the action is barred by the statute of limitations. It is based on the contention that the public entity is estopped from relying on the statute of limitations because it engaged in settlement negotiations with the plaintiff through the end of the period.

These points and authorities may be combined, in an appropriate case, with the points and authorities set out in § 196.103, which support thecontention that a public entity is estopped from relying on the claims presentation requirements. They may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer or a motion for summary judgment. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities relating to estoppel acting to prevent the defendant from asserting the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Public Agency Is Estopped From Asserting Statute of Limitations When It Continued to Engage in Settlement Negotiations

In Potstada v. City of Oakland (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 106 Cal. Rptr. 705 , plaintiff was injured in an automobile action with a vehicle owned by defendant city. Plaintiff entered into settlement negotiations with an agent of the city, who was authorized to settle the claim, and later filed a timely claim that was rejected by nonaction. Offers and counteroffers were made until two months before the limitation period expired. At trial, the sole issue was whether defendant could rely on the fact the action was filed after the limitations period. The trial court found for plaintiff. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court reviewed the four elements of estoppel: the party to be estopped must be apprised of the facts; that party must intend that his or her conduct be acted upon, or must so act that the party asserting the estoppel had a right to believe it was so intended; the other party must be ignorant of the true state of facts; and the other party must rely on the conduct to his or her injury (30 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1028) . It held that defendant's actions in attempting to negotiate a settlement with plaintiff justified his assuming that, if a settlement was not reached, the claim would be denied and he would then have time to file the action. Thus, defendant was estopped from relying on the statute of limitations (30 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1029) .

NOTE:

However, if a plaintiff or his or her attorney did not rely on the conduct of the public entity in failing to file the complaint on time, the public entity is not estopped because reliance is an essential element of estoppel [Isaacson v. City of Oakland (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 414, 419, 69 Cal. Rptr. 379] .

[b] Estoppel Based on Request to Delay Filing Action

Sumrall v. City of Cypress (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 565, 65 Cal. Rptr. 755 , involved an injury to plaintiff caused by an employee of defendant city. A timely claim was filed and plaintiff's attorney was contacted by defendant's insurance company. Settlement negotiations commenced, and during the negotiations a medical report was given to the insurance agent indicating that a final medical report would take three to six months. The agent indicated a desire to settle and requested that plaintiff's attorney not file an action until the final medical report was received. Pending the receipt of the medical report, the period of limitations ran. Suit was filed against defendant and the trial was bifurcated to try the issue of the applicability of the statute of limitations first. The trial court held that defendant was estopped from relying on the statute of limitations.

The court of appeal affirmed. It held that defendant was estopped from relying on the statute of limitations because plaintiff's attorney would have filed the action on time if defendant's agent had not requested that he not file until the final medical report was received, with full knowledge that the report would not be available until after the statute of limitations had run, at which point a settlement might be reached (258 Cal. App. 2d 565, 571) .

NOTE:

A public entity's mere request for further information on a claim, especially when the plaintiff is represented by an attorney, does not estop the entity from relying on the statute of limitations [Tubbs v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 671, 678-679, 63 Cal. Rptr. 377, 433 P.2d 169 ; Rogers v. Board of Educ. (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 355, 360-361, 67 Cal. Rptr. 905] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Public Agency Is Estopped From Asserting Statute of Limitations When It Continued to Engage in Settlement Negotiations

Nicholson-Brown, Inc. v. City of San Jose (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 526, 133 Cal. Rptr. 159 , overruled on other grounds, Bullis v. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 801, 815 n.18, 148 Cal. Rptr. 22, 582 P.2d 109 , involved a dispute over a construction contract, concerning which plaintiff contractor filed a timely claim against defendant city. The parties commenced negotiations and settled some of the issues by an agreement. After the agreement was signed, plaintiff brought suit against defendant city as well as the architect. Defendant city claimed that the statute of limitations had expired, but the trial court found that it was estopped from relying on the statute of limitations. The court of appeal affirmed. After reviewing the elements of estoppel, the court held that by its conduct in participating in the negotiations and eventual partial settlement, defendant city was estopped from relying on the bar of the statute of limitations (62 Cal. App. 3d 526, 531-533) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
3. Late Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.163

§ 196.163 Supporting Contention That Action Is Not Barred by Statute of Limitations--Amended Complaint Relates Back to Timely Filed Original Complaint

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION WAS TIMELY FILED WITH RESPECT TO _____ [name] BECAUSE THE _____ [specify, e.g., THIRD] AMENDED COMPLAINT SUBSTITUTING _____ [name] FOR A FICTITIOUSLY NAMED DEFENDANT RELATES BACK TO THE ORIGINAL COMPLAINT, WHICH WAS TIMELY FILED.

A. Amendment to Substitute Public Employees for Doe Defendants Relates Back. An amendment to a complaint meeting the requirements of Code of Civil Procedure Section 474 relates back to the date of filing of the original complaint in an action against a public employee or former public employee under the California Tort Claims Act. Thus, when a plaintiff sues a public entity and various fictitiously named defendants, that plaintiff may amend his or her complaint to substitute the names of employees or former employees of that public entity for the fictitiously named defendants after the statute of limitations applicable under the California Tort Claims Act has run (Olden v. Hatchell (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1037, 201 Cal. Rptr. 715).

[Optional] B. Amendment to Substitute Public Entity for Doe Defendant When Plaintiff Was Ignorant of True Name. A plaintiff who, in good faith, is ignorant of the true identity of the defendant, but has substantially complied with the claims presentation requirements by filing a claim with one public entity, may amend a complaint against that public entity and fictitious defendants, to substitute for a fictitiously named defendant the name of a different public entity whose jurisdiction the plaintiff subsequently discovers (Carlino v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1535-1536, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the action is not time-barred against a particular defendant who was not substituted for a fictitiously named defendant until after the applicable limitations period had expired, on the ground that the amendment related back to the original complaint, which was timely filed [see, e.g., Carlino v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1535-1536, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437] . Optional Paragraph B may be used in the situation in which plaintiff was, in good faith, ignorant of defendant's true identity, but substantially complied with the claims presentation requirement by filing a timely claim with the entity that would respond to a similar claim against the Doe defendant [Carlino v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1536, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion to strike the amendment [see, e.g., Olden v. Hatchell (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1034, 201 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; see also Gov. Code § 910.6 (rules governing amendment of claims)]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of amendment of claim, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to amended pleadings, see Ch. 16, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Amendment to Substitute Public Employees for Doe Defendants Relates Back

In Olden v. Hatchell (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 201 Cal. Rptr. 715 , plaintiff sued defendant county and 20 fictitiously named defendants in tort, alleging injuries caused by failure to provide him with necessary medical treatment while he was in custody at the county jail. After the statute of limitations applicable under the California Tort Claims Act had run, plaintiff amended his complaint substituting the names of five employees or former employees of defendant for five of the fictitiously named defendants. The substituted employee defendants moved to strike the amendment on the ground that the claims were barred by the statute of limitations. The trial court granted the motion. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Plaintiff contended that pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474, the amendment related back to the filing of the original complaint, which was within the six-month statute of limitations. Defendants argued that Code Civ. Proc. § 474 does not apply to actions against public employees under the California Tort Claims Act. The court disagreed, and said that when a complaint sets forth a cause of action against a defendant designated by a fictitious name and his or her true name is thereafter discovered and substituted by amendment, he or she is considered a party to the action from its commencement so that the statute of limitations stops running as of the date the original complaint was filed (154 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1035) . The court distinguished Chase v. State of California (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 808, 136 Cal. Rptr. 833 , as inapposite to the case. The court said the plaintiff in Chase knew the identity of the public entity, and could not possibly have met the requirement of good-faith ignorance of the name of a defendant under Code

Civ. Proc. § 474. Indeed, the court observed that because presentation of a claim to a public entity is a prerequisite to bringing suit against it, it appears that a plaintiff could never effectively use a fictitiously named defendant to bring in a public entity defendant [but see Carlino v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1536, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437 (dicta unpersuasive); see generally § 196.163[3][b]]. Either the action would be barred for failure to present a claim, or the plaintiff would know the identity of the entity to whom the claim had been presented and thus not be ignorant of the name. Considering Gov. Code §§ 950 and 950.2, the court opined that the statutory scheme does not similarly preclude the use of a fictitiously named defendant to sue a public employee because only a claim against the public entity, and not against the individual employee, is a prerequisite to bringing a suit (154 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1036-1037) . The court found that the circumstances of the case aptly demonstrated the propriety of the use of Code Civ. Proc. § 474. The employee defendants whose names were added by amendment were persons on duty in the sheriff's department when plaintiff was transported to and confined in, the county jail. Thus, it was not surprising that he did not know their individual names at the time suit was filed, and that he did not, or was not able to, discover their names during the brief period of limitations. To require a plaintiff in this type of situation to identify and to name specifically public employee defendants within six months after rejection of a claim by the public entity would have the objectionable result of creating unnecessary litigation through the naming of a greater number of employees than were actually involved in the occurrences relating to the lawsuit (154 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1038) .

[b] Amendment to Substitute Public Entity for Doe Defendant When Plaintiff Was Ignorant of True Name

In Carlino v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437 , plaintiff filed a claim under the Tort Claims Act with the county board of supervisors, based on personal injuries incurred when he fell from a county pier. The board of supervisors failed to respond to the claim. Less than two years after the cause of action accrued, plaintiff filed a complaint against the county, the city, the state of California, and certain Does. Two years later, plaintiff amended the complaint by substituting the county flood control district as a fictitious defendant. The flood control district demurred to the second amended complaint on the ground that no government claim was filed against it, and that the Doe statutes could not be used to avoid a statute of limitations against a governmental entity. The trial court sustained the demurrer with leave to amend. That defendant filed a demurrer to the third amended complaint on the ground that plaintiff failed to file a government claim, and the complaint was time-barred by the two-year mandatory filing requirement of Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(2). The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and entered a judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the complaint was not barred by the statute of limitations, because when the complaint was filed plaintiff was ignorant of the true name of the public entity having jurisdiction over the matter (10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1536) . The court stated that even if plaintiff should have filed his claim directly with the flood control district, he substantially complied with the claims procedures by filing with the county board of supervisors, which ultimately controlled the flood control district (10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1533) . The court rejected defendant's claim that the suit was untimely. It noted that plaintiff's cause of action was subject to the two-year limitations period under Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(2), and that the flood control district was not named until that period had expired. Therefore, the sole issue is whether the substitution of the flood control district for a Doe defendant relates back to the filing of the originalcomplaint. Defendant cited Chase v. State of California (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 808, 813-814, 136 Cal. Rptr. 833 [see § 196.163[5][a]], for the rule that Doe defendant statutes do not apply to suits filed under the Tort Claims Act (10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1535) . The court distinguished this case because in Chase, the plaintiff intentionally failed to name as a defendant a known public entity, against which he had earlier presented his claim for personal injuries. By contrast, the plaintiff before the court was, in good faith, ignorant of the true identity of the defendant, but substantially complied with the claims presentation requirements by fortuitously filing a claim with the public entity that would respond to a similar claim against the Doe defendant. Therefore, plaintiff's complaint is not barred by the applicable statutes of limitations (10 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1536) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Amendment to Substitute Public Employees for Doe Defendants Relates Back

In Dhuyvetter v. City of Fresno (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 659, 168 Cal. Rptr. 61 , plaintiffs, property owners residing in the flight pattern of the airport owned by defendant city, filed claims against defendant. Each claim was filed on behalf of the claimants named therein, those residing with them, and a class comprised of all those similarly situated. After denial of the claims, plaintiffs timely filed a class action seeking to recover their damages. About 16 months after the class action was decertified, the named plaintiffs amended the complaint to add the children residing with them as plaintiffs. Defendant demurred, arguing in part that the suit was not brought within six months after its rejection as required by Gov. Code § 945.6. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer. The court of appeal reversed. The court concluded that there was substantial compliance with the governmental claims statutes (110 Cal. App. 3d 659, 664-665) . It then characterized the remaining issue as whether or not the amended complaint related back in time to the filing of the original complaint. The court saw no prejudice to defendant in the filing of the amended complaint. Defendant was apprised from the initiation of the lawsuit that persons residing with the named claimants were seeking damages. But for the fortuitous circumstance to defendant of the decertification of the class, no issue would have arisen concerning the children's right to seek damages (110 Cal. App. 3d 659, 665) . The court set forth the modern rule with respect to actions involving parties designated by their true names in the original complaint which is that, when an amendment is sought after the statute of limitations has run, the amended complaint will be deemed filed as of the date of the original complaint provided recovery is sought in both pleadings on the same general set of facts. The court felt that the facts of this case were strongly supportive of permitting an amendment back. It observed that not only was the statute of limitations not a factor, but the parties-plaintiffs to be added by the amendment were alleged in the original complaint, albeit not by name. Nor could it be contended that their injuries and damages, if any, were not of like character and incurred in like manner of their parents who were specifically named. The court saw no possible prejudice in holding that the amended complaint related back to the original date of filing (110 Cal. App. 3d 659, 665-666) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Amendment to Substitute Public Employees for Doe Defendants Relates Back

In Chase v. State of California (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 808, 136 Cal. Rptr. 833 , plaintiff's initial complaint, timely filed after his claim for damages had been rejected, included eight named defendants and 50 Doe defendants, but not the state. Almost two years later plaintiff filed an amended complaint in which the state was added as a named defendant. The state's demurrer on the ground that plaintiff's action was barred by the statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 945.6 was sustained, and the case dismissed by the trial court. The court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that the state claims procedures requirements were enacted in implementation of the provisions of Cal. Const. art. III, § 5, which provides that suits may be brought against the state in that manner and in those courts as is directed by law. Under those procedures the legislature has prescribed the time and manner of filing claims against the state, and the conditions under which the state may be sued. A valid condition is that recovery will be denied when legal action is not brought against the state within the period prescribed by statute (67 Cal. App. 3d 808, 811) . The court observed that in plaintiff's original complaint he abandoned any reliance on his previously filed claim. Its presentation was not mentioned, and by that omission no cause of action was alleged against the state, even had it been joined as a named defendant (67 Cal. App. 3d 808, 812) . The court said that plaintiff's failure to name the state as a defendant or to allege a cause of action against it appeared purposeful and intentional. At the time of the commencement of plaintiff's action the state was but one of an infinite number of public entities who were subject to the possibility of later joinder as defendants in the action. The court found it would do violence to reason, and to language, to conclude that the filing of the original complaint constituted commencement of an action against any and every public entity who might later be chosen to replace a Doe. The court distinguished cases involving Code Civ. Proc. § 474 and the liberality of amendment of pleadings permitted by modern rule under which a subsequently named Doe defendant is considered a party to the action from its commencement for purposes of the statute of limitations. It said that the state claims procedure permits no similar liberality in derogation of its mandate that anaction must be commenced within six months after the rejection of the claim (67 Cal. App. 3d 808, 813) .

In Dominguez v. City of Alhambra (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 237, 173 Cal. Rptr. 345 , decedent was severely injured in a motor vehicle accident and died 11 days later. Plaintiff, his widow, filed a complaint for wrongful death, and 11 months later attempted to amend the complaint to assert an additional cause of action under former Prob. Code § 573 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.30-377.35] (survival of cause of action). Defendants included public entities and private parties. The trial court denied her motion to amend. The court of appeal affirmed, stating that a prerequisite to a tort action for damages against a public entity is the prior filing of a claim. Plaintiff timely filed the requisite claim with defendant city. Defendant contended that the claim was only for wrongful death and did not constitute a valid claim for the personal injury cause of action under former Prob. Code § 573 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.30-377.35] (118 Cal. App. 3d 237, 243-244) . The court observed that the proposed amended complaint was barred unless it could be deemed to relate back to the filing of the original complaint for wrongful death. The court noted an action under former Prob. Code § 573 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.30-377.35] is wholly distinct from an action under former Code Civ. Proc. § 377 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.60-377.61]. The first is by the estate for injuries suffered by decedent prior to his death, while the latter is by the heirs for loss of support. Additionally, former Code Civ. Proc. § 377 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.60-377.61] expressly excludes damages recoverable under former Prob. Code § 573 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.30-377.35]. Thus, the proposed amendment sought to enforce an independent right for an independent entity and it could not relate back, for purposes of satisfying the underlying statute of limitations, to the action for wrongful death (118 Cal. App. 3d 237, 243, 245) .

149 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
B. Filing of Action
3. Late Filing of Action

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.164-196.179

[Reserved]

§§ 196.164[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.180

§ 196.180 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT(S) _____ [IS or ARE] NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURIES _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE THE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT HIS/HER INJURIES WERE PROXIMATELY CAUSED BY THE _____ [ACT or OMISSION] OF [DEFENDANT _____ (name)], AN EMPLOYEE OF DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity], IN THE SCOPE OF THE EMPLOYEE'S EMPLOYMENT, AND THAT THE _____ [ACT or OMISSION] WOULD, APART FROM GOVERNMENT CODE SECTION 815.2, HAVE GIVEN RISE TO A CAUSE OF ACTION AGAINST THE EMPLOYEE OR HIS/HER PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE.

A. Liability of Public Entity. A public entity is liable for injury proximately caused by an act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of his or her employment if the act or omission, would, apart from Government Code Section 815.2, have given rise to a cause of action against that employee or his or her personal representative (Gov. Code § 815.2(a); see Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1395, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146 ; Mann v. State of California (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 779, 139 Cal. Rptr. 82).

B. Liability of Public Employee. Except as otherwise provided by statute, a public employee is liable for injury caused by his or her act or omission to the same extent as a private person (Gov. Code § 820(a)).

[Optional] C. Liability for Tortious Act of Independent Contractor. A public entity is liable for injury proximately caused by a tortious act or omission of an independent contractor of the publicentity to the same extent that the public entity would be subject to such liability were it a private person (Gov. Code § 815.4).

[Optional] D. Fire Protection or Firefighting Service Outside Regular Area. Whenever a public entity provides fire protection or firefighting service outside of the area regularly served and protected by the public entity providing the service, the public entity providing the service is liable for any injury for which liability is imposed by statute caused by its act or omission or the act or omission of its employee occurring in the performance of the fire protection or firefighting service (Gov. Code § 850.6).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the public entity is liable for the plaintiff's injuries because the injuries were proximately caused by the act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of the employment and would have given rise to a cause of action against the employee or the employee's personal representative apart from Gov. Code § 815.2 [see Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a); see also § 196.180[2][c]].

Optional Paragraph C should be included if the tortious act or omission was that of an independent contractor [see Gov. Code § 815.4; for discussion of statutory immunity from liability under Gov. Code § 815.4, see § 196.08[2]].

Optional Paragraph D should be included if the injury was caused by the act or omission of an employee of a public entity providing fire protection or firefighting service outside the area regularly protected and served by it [see Gov. Code § 850.6; for discussion of statutory immunity from liability under Gov. Code § 850.6, see § 196.08[10]]. In such case, an additional point and authority would be required to show that liability for the particular act or omission is imposed by statute. An example of such a statute would be Veh. Code § 17001, imposing liability on public entities for injuries caused by the negligent or wrongful act of an employee in the operation of a motor vehicle [see § 196.187].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which the substantive points are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit, or in support of plaintiff's motion or in opposition to defendant's motion for a new trial. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] When Elected Official Must Be Named as Codefendant to Hold Public Entity Liable

Notwithstanding any other provision in Gov. Code § 814 et seq., if a plaintiff seeks to hold a public entity liable for an act or omission constituting an intentional tort committed by an elected official employed by or otherwise representing the public entity, the plaintiff must name the elected official and the public entity as codefendants in the same action. If plaintiff fails to do so, the public entity is not liable to the plaintiff under Gov. Code § 814 et seq. for the elected official's act or omission [Gov. Code § 815.3(a)]. Similarly, in a complaint for damages against an elected or appointed state or local officer in his or her individual capacity alleging injuries proximately caused by the officer acting under color of law, the plaintiff must allege with particularity sufficient facts to establish the officer's individual liability and the plaintiff's right to recover from the officer [Gov. Code § 951].

Acts or omissions that constitute intentional torts within the meaning of Gov. Code § 815.3 include, but are not limited to, harassment, sexual battery, and intentional infliction of emotional distress. For purposes of Gov. Code § 815.3, harassment in violation of state or federal law constitutes an intentional tort to the extent permitted by federal law. Gov. Code § 815.3 does not, however, apply to actions for defamation [Gov. Code § 815.3(a)].

For further discussion of Gov. Code § 815.3, see Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 60 (Matthew Bender).

[c] Statutory Immunity From Liability

There are several statutes immunizing a public entity, a public employee, or both, from liability in given situations. Any one or more of these statutes may, in a proper case, be cited in opposition to these points and authorities. These statutes are discussed fully in §§ 196.07-196.10.

Strictly, the question of the applicability of a statutory immunity does not arise until it is determined that a defendant otherwise owes a duty of care to the plaintiff and thus would be liable in the absence of such immunity [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 22, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137 ; Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 201-202, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 ; Stark v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 276, 282, 214 Cal. Rptr. 216] . An immunity avoids liability in tort under all circumstances within the limits of theimmunity itself; it is conferred, not because of the particular facts, but because of the status or position of the favored defendant; and it does not deny the tort, but, rather, the resulting liability [Whitcombe v. County of Yolo (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 698, 704-705, 141 Cal. Rptr. 189] . This is true even if the duty is created by a special relationship between the public entity and the injured person. The existence of a special relationship does not operate to bypass a statutory immunity that expressly applies [Whitcombe v. County of Yolo (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 698, 705, 141 Cal. Rptr. 189 ; see Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 202, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 ; for points and authorities relating to liability arising from a special relationship, see §§ 196.230 -196.235].

For forms of points and authorities establishing exceptions to the immunity statutes, see §§ 196.270 et seq.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of complaints against public entities and public employees based on general liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity

Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146 , which is discussed in § 196.232[3][a], was an action against the county by plaintiff, whose thumb was bitten off by a dog he'd captured, pursuant to the request of a county animal control officer. The trial court granted the county's motion for summary judgment, and the plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal reversed. The court said that when a public employee breaches a duty of due care, the public entity is liable for injuries caused by the employee's negligence (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1395) .

Mann v. State of California (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 139 Cal. Rptr. 82 , which is discussed in § 196.233[3][a], was an action against the state for personal injuries sustained in a freeway accident. The state's liability was predicated on the alleged breach of duty of a California Highway Patrol officer in investigating motorists stranded on a freeway because of stalled vehicles. The trial court granted the state's motion for a directed verdict, and plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal quoted the provisions of Gov. Code § 815.2(a) (70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 779) and held that it was a jury question in regard to whether the officer's conduct constituted actionable negligence towards the plaintiff (70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 780-781) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity

In Van Ort v. Estate of Stanewich (9th Cir. 1996) 92 F.3d 831 , plaintiffs, who were the victims of an assault and attempted robbery by an undercover narcotics officer, sued the County and the Sheriff's Department that employed the officer, for negligence. The district court ruled against them as a matter of law and plaintiffs appealed. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeal ruled that the County was not vicariously liable under Gov. Code § 815.2(a) because the officer was not acting within his scope of employment. In its ruling, the court relied on the holding of Farmers Ins. Group v. County of Santa Clara (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 992, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478 , which provided that an employer will not be held vicariously liable for an employee's malicious or tortious conduct if the employee substantially deviates from the employment duties for personal purposes. The court found that the free-lance criminal exploits of a law enforcement officer fell within the California Supreme Court's language in Farmers. The court dismissed plaintiff's argument that Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a) left open the possibility that there was statutory authority for a negligent supervision lawsuit (92 F.3d 831, 840) .

[b] Liability for Tortious Act of Independent Contractor

In Bostrom v. County of San Bernardino (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669 , plaintiff sought to hold the County liable for injuries resulting from the crash of a small airplane. The airplane crashed after takeoff from an airport owned by the County, and leased by the County to a third party for the purpose of providing jet fueling and other services. The crash occurred because an employee of the third party fueled the plane with jet fuel instead of ordinary aviation gas. Plaintiff contended that the third party was the County's independent contractor, and therefore the County could be held vicariously liable under the "independent contractor" exception to sovereign immunity. The trial court held that the independent contractor exception did not apply, and entered an order for summary judgment in favor of the County. The court of appeal noted that the agreement between the County and the third party was entitled "Airport Lease Agreement," and contained conventional lease terms concerning the property and the rent. Furthermore, the third party made its money from its customers, not from the County. The court concluded that there was insufficient evidence to raise a triable issue of fact as to whether the County was liable under the independent contractor exception, and affirmed the trial court judgment (35 Cal. App. 4th 1654, 1671) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.181

§ 196.181 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Department of Motor Vehicles Is Liable for Damages Resulting From Department's Negligent Omission of Lienholder's Name From Ownership Certificate [Gov. Code § 818.5]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT PLAINTIFF WAS A _____ [GOOD-FAITH PURCHASER or LIENHOLDER] OF THE VEHICLE IN QUESTION, THAT DEFENDANT NEGLIGENTLY OMITTED THE LIENHOLDER'S NAME FROM THE OWNERSHIP CERTIFICATE IT ISSUED, AND THAT, AS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF THAT OMISSION, PLAINTIFF WAS DAMAGED.

Liability of DMV for Omission of Lienholder's Name. The Department of Motor Vehicles is liable for any injury to a lienholder or good-faith purchaser of a vehicle caused by the department's negligent omission of the lienholder's name from an ownership certificate issued by the department (Gov. Code § 818.5).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the Department of Motor Vehicles is liable for the loss sustained by plaintiff that was proximately caused by the department's negligent omission of the lienholder's name from the ownership certificate it issued for the vehicle and the fact that plaintiff is the lienholder or a good-faith purchaser of the vehicle [Gov. Code § 818.5]. Note that Gov. Code § 818.5 provides further that this liability shall not exceed the actual cash value of the vehicle.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.182

§ 196.182 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity Is Liable for Injury Caused by Public Entity's Failure to Discharge Mandatory Duty That Was Designed to Protect Against Risk of That Kind of Injury [Gov. Code § 815.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT DEFENDANT WAS UNDER A MANDATORY DUTY IMPOSED BY _____ [specify constitutional provision, statute, charter provision, or regulation] TO _____ [specify duty imposed], THAT THIS DUTY WAS DESIGNED TO PROTECT AGAINST THE RISK OF _____ [specify particular kind of injury], THAT DEFENDANT FAILED TO DISCHARGE THAT DUTY, AND THAT, AS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF THAT FAILURE, PLAINTIFF _____ [specify injury sustained by plaintiff of kind enactment was designed to prevent].

A. Liability for Breach of Mandatory Duty. When a public entity is under a mandatory duty imposed by an enactment that is designed to protect against the risk of a particular kind of injury, the public entity is liable for an injury of that kind proximately caused by its failure to discharge the duty unless the public entity establishes that it exercised reasonable diligence to discharge the duty (Gov. Code § 815.6; see Allison v. Ventura County (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 689, 698, 137 Cal. Rptr. 542).

[Optional] B. "Enactment" Defined. "Enactment," as used in the California Tort Claims Act, means constitutional provision, statute, charter provision, ordinance, or regulation (Gov. Code § 810.6).

[Optional] C. "Regulation" Defined. "Regulation," as used in the California Tort Claims Act, means a rule, regulation, order, or standard, having the force of law, adopted by an employee or agency of the United States pursuant to the federal Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C.S. § 500 et seq.) or as a regulation by an agency of the state of California pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) (Gov. Code § 811.6).

[Optional] D. Underlying Enactment Need Not Create Private Right of Action. If an enactment creates a mandatory governmental duty that is violated, and the requirements of Gov. Code § 815.6 are otherwise satisfied, Gov. Code § 815.6, rather than the underlying enactment, creates the private right of action, and the enactment itself need not manifest an intent to create a private right of action (Haggis v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 490, 499-500, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327, 993 P.2d 983).

[Optional] E. Coroner's Duty to Attempt to Identify Body and Locate Family Member. A Coroner has a mandatory duty under Government Code Section 27471(a), and Health & Safety Code Sections 7104 and 7104.1, to act with reasonable diligence in attempting to identify a body placed in his or her custody and then to attempt with reasonable diligence to locate the decedent's family (Davila v. County of Los Angeles (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 137, 143, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 651).

[Optional] F. Liability Based on Police Officer's Failure to Investigate Child Abuse Allegations. Penal Code Section 11166(a) imposes a mandatory duty on a police officer to investigate child abuse allegations that the officer receives and, if a reasonable person would have suspected child abuse, to report to the appropriate child protective agency, and the failure to perform these mandatory statutory duties may support a tort action for negligence per se against the officer and employing entity, if the child is subsequently injured (Alejo v. City of Alhambra (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1184-1190, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768).

[Optional] G. Public Entity's Liability for Failure to Require Posting of Payment Bond. A public entity has a mandatory duty under Civil Code Sections 3247 and 3251 to require the posting of a payment bond as a condition to awarding a public construction contract (N.V. Heathorn, Inc. v. County of San Mateo (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1532, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 400).

[Optional] H. Public Entity's Liability for Failure to Ensure Sufficiency of Contractor's Surety. A public entity awarding a public contract has a mandatory duty under the Bond and Undertaking Law to take reasonable steps to ensure the financial solvency of the sureties provided by its contractors by ensuring that a proposed surety is an admitted surety insurer, or by requiring two or more sufficient personal sureties or a combination of sufficient personal sureties or admitted surety insurers, and by requiring an alleged admitted surety to submit a county clerk's certificate showing that fact (Walt Rankin & Assocs., Inc. v. City of Murrieta (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 605, 622, 624, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity is liable for the plaintiff's injury, which was proximately caused by the entity's failure to discharge a mandatory duty imposed by an "enactment" (defined in Gov. Code § 810.6) designed to protect against the kind of injury sustained by plaintiff. Liability results unless the public entity establishes that it exercised reasonable diligence to discharge the duty [Gov. Code § 815.6].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Pleading the Enactment

The specific enactment relied on as imposing the mandatory duty must be pleaded in the complaint [Lehto v. City of Oxnard (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 285, 293, 217 Cal. Rptr. 450 (expressly repudiating contrary holding in Green v. City of Livermore (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 82, 90, 172 Cal. Rptr. 461)].

[c] Test for Determining Whether Liability May Be Imposed

Gov. Code § 815.6 contains a three-pronged test for determining whether liability may be imposed: (1) the enactment must impose a mandatory, not discretionary, duty; (2) the enactment must be intended to protect against the kind of risk or injury the plaintiff suffered; and (3) the breach of the duty must be a proximate cause of the injury suffered [Gray v. State of California (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 151, 154-155, 254 Cal. Rptr. 581 (test not met); Posey v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 848, 225 Cal. Rptr. 830 (test not met); State of California v. Superior Court (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 848, 854, 197 Cal. Rptr. 914 (same); see also First Interstate Bank v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 627, 636, 243 Cal. Rptr. 8 (same test, but stating that it must be the, rather than a, proximate cause of injury suffered, and holding test not met)]. The term "mandatory duty," as used in Gov. Code § 815.6, means an obligatory duty that a governmental entity is required to perform, in contrast with a permissive power that a governmental body may choose or not choose to exercise [Morris v. County of Marin (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 901, 908, 136 Cal. Rptr. 251, 559 P.2d 606 ; Posey v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 848, 225 Cal. Rptr. 830] .

Whether a particular statute is intended to impose a mandatory duty is a question of interpretation for the courts. The legislative intent can usually be determined from the statutory language. However, when the specific language does not shed light about the intent of the legislature, it can be determined from other factors that indicate the intent of the legislature [Nunn v. State of California (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 616, 624, 200 Cal. Rptr. 440, 677 P.2d 846] . Not all statutes using direct obligatory language create a mandatory duty within the meaning of Gov. Code § 815.6 [Shelton v. City of Westminster (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 610, 615, 188 Cal. Rptr. 205 (discussing methods for determining legislative intent, but holding that although it assumed statute in question was mandatory, its purpose was not to protect against kind of injury sustained by plaintiff)]. For points and authorities supporting and opposing various contentions relating to the interpretation of statutes, see Ch. 217, Statutory Interpretation .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability for Breach of Mandatory Duty

Allison v. Ventura County (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 689, 137 Cal. Rptr. 542 , was an action for damages for false imprisonment against a county resulting from plaintiff's arrest and incarceration for "many" hours pursuant to a bench warrant issued some three years before in a family law proceeding. The trial court dismissed the complaint after sustaining a demurrer to it without leave to amend. Plaintiff appealed. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal said that both case and statutory law seem to indicate that prompt service of process by a peace officer is in the nature of a mandatory duty, that is, a duty of the type envisioned in Gov. Code § 815.6, which provides that an injury resulting from a failure of a public entity to perform a mandatory duty imposed by a statute that is designed to protect against the risk of such an injury is actionable. The court further held that because the bench warrant failed to comply with a number of statutory requirements, it was not regular on its face and the defendant was, therefore, not protected by the immunity provided in former Civ. Code § 43.5(a) [now Civ. Code § 43.55; see also § 196.10[18]] (68 Cal. App. 3d 689, 698) .

[b] Underlying Enactment Need Not Create Private Right of Action

In Haggis v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 490, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327, 993 P.2d 983 , the plaintiff had purchased a home on property located on a coastal bluff, and the home was extensively damaged by landslides following the Northridge Earthquake in 1994 and subsequently had to be demolished. The defendant had known since 1959 that the coastal bluff was vulnerable to landslides, and in 1966 a large slide had in fact destabilized the property that plaintiff eventually purchased. After the slide in 1966, the defendant had issued a notice to the owner of the property to vacate the property and perform stabilization work. However, the defendant failed to record a certificate of substandard condition with the county recorder as required by the municipal code. In 1970, the defendant determined that a hazardous slide condition still existed on the property and issued another notice to abate, but again failed to record a certificate with the county recorder, even though the defendant knew that the owner had not yet complied with the 1966 notice. From 1970 through 1977, the defendant approved various building permits for additions to the residence and surrounding property without requiring any evidence that the unstable conditions had been abated. When plaintiff purchased the property in 1991, the property's geologic instability was not visually apparent nor was it contained in the title report. The plaintiff brought action against the defendant of Los Angeles under Gov. Code § 815.6 for breach of mandatory duties contained in the municipal code, arguing that because the defendant had failed to record a certificate of substandard conditions or require the previous owners to record affidavits of awareness of slide conditions before issuing building permits, the plaintiff did not know the property was in an active landslide area or that the instability caused by the earlier landslides had never been corrected. The defendant successfully demurred on several grounds. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the claims were time barred under the applicable statute oflimitations and that the defendant was immune under Gov. Code § 818.6, which generally provides immunity for injuries caused by a public entity's failure to conduct a proper safety inspection. The plaintiff appealed, and the Supreme Court subsequently requested briefing on the additional question of whether the municipal code provisions at issue imposed mandatory duties that could form the basis for liability under Gov. Code § 815.6.

The Supreme Court affirmed judgment for the defendant. As a preliminary matter, in its analysis of whether the relevant city ordinances imposed mandatory duties that could support a claim of liability under Gov. Code § 815.6, the Court rejected the defendant's argument that the action was barred because the ordinances were not intended to create a private right of action. Instead, the Court ruled that if an enactment creates a mandatory governmental duty that is violated, and the requirements of Gov. Code § 815.6 are otherwise satisfied, Gov. Code § 815.6, rather than the underlying enactment, creates the private right of action, and the enactment itself need not manifest an intent to create a private right of action (22 Cal. 4th 490, 499-500) .

NOTE:

Despite the general rule described in Haggis, above, that the underlying statute need not provide for a private right of action, if the underlying statute that allegedly creates the mandatory duty explicitly immunizes a public entity from damages liability for the failure to act, then the more general provisions of Section 815.6 cannot be used to overcome that immunity [Arterberry v. County of San Diego (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1528, 1536, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 743 (county liability for failure to approve solar energy system could not be predicated on Gov. Code § 815.6 when Civ. Code § 714 explicitly shielded public entity from liability)].

[c] Coroner's Duty to Attempt to Identify Body and Locate Family Member

In Davila v. County of Los Angeles (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 137, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 651 , a decedent's children sued the Coroner for failing to make a reasonable attempt to locate them before cremating their father's body. The Coroner moved for summary judgment on the ground that he owed no duty to plaintiffs. The trial court granted defendant's motion and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It began its analysis by stating the rule enunciated in Posey v. State of California (1986)

180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 225 Cal. Rptr. 830 , that in order for liability to attach under Gov. Code § 815.6 there must be (1) an enactment imposing a mandatory duty, (2) the enactment must be intended to protect against the risk of the kind of injury suffered by the individual asserting liability, and (3) the breach of the duty must be the cause of the injury suffered. The court first found that the existence of a mandatory duty to make a reasonable attempt to locate decedent's family was established by three California statutes, Gov. Code § 27471(a), and Health & Safety Code §§ 7104, 7104.1. The court then found that the purpose of the statutory scheme was not limited to the recovery of costs, as defendant argued, but extended to the right of surviving families to control the disposition of their loved one's remains. Accordingly, the court concluded that the rights granted by all three statutes would have no meaning unless they were read to impose upon the Coroner a duty to act with reasonable diligence in attempting to identify a body placed in his or her custody and then to attempt with reasonable diligence to locate some family member. Finally, the court noted that it was undisputed that, assuming a duty existed in this case, that the duty was breached and the breach was the cause of the injury suffered by plaintiffs. Having found that a duty existed and that it was owed to plaintiffs, the court reversed the summary judgment and remanded the matter for trial on the issues of whether the Coroner acted with reasonable diligence in attempting to identify the decedent's body and in attempting to locate a family member (50 Cal. App. 4th 137, 143) .

[d] Liability Based on Police Officer's Failure to Investigate Child Abuse Allegations

In Alejo v. City of Alhambra (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 , the plaintiff, was a three-year-old child who was living with his mother and her live-in boyfriend. The plaintiff's father became concerned when he noticed that the plaintiff had a black eye, and, when questioned, neither the plaintiff nor his mother gave an explanation sufficient to dispel his concerns. Three days later, the plaintiff's father received a phone call from a neighbor of the plaintiff's mother, who advised the father that the plaintiff's mother and her boyfriend were using drugs and that the boyfriend was physically abusing the plaintiff. Concerned for his son's safety, the plaintiff's father immediately went to the police department, related the story to an officer, and, after giving the officer the address where his son was living, requested immediate help and investigation and even offered to take the police there. However, the police neither investigated nor reported to another agency the allegations of abuse, and six weeks later the plaintiff was severely injured when he was further beaten by his mother's boyfriend. The plaintiff brought an action against the police officer, the city that employed the officer, and the boyfriend. The basis for the action against the officer and the city was negligence in failing to investigate or report a reasonable suspicion of child abuse as mandated by Pen. Code § 11166(a). The city successfully demurred to the complaint, arguing that its officers had no special duty to protect the plaintiff from abuse, that the investigation and reporting of child abuse are discretionary functions, that its officers are immune from liability for the failure to act, and that, in any event, their failure to act was not the cause of the plaintiff's injuries. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the complaint stated a cause of action for negligence per se based on a violation of Pen. Code § 11166(a). The court held that Pen. Code § 11166(a) imposes a mandatory, rather than discretionary, duty on a police officer to investigate child abuse allegations that the officer receives and, if a reasonable person would have suspected child abuse, to report to the appropriate child protective agency (75 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1186) . The court, pointing to the statutory language limiting the duty to investigate and report to those claims that are objectively reasonable, rejected the city's argument that the burden on policedepartments would be intolerable if they were required to investigate every report of child abuse, no matter how frivolous (75 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1188-1189) . The court also held that the question of whether the officer's negligence was the proximate cause of the plaintiff's subsequent injury was a question of fact that could not be resolved at the pleading stage. However, the court specifically rejected the city's claim that the boyfriend's abuse of the plaintiff was an intervening or superseding cause that broke the chain of causation, because the boyfriend's future criminal conduct may have been a foreseeable result of the plaintiff's remaining in his custody. The court also rejected the city's argument that causation could not be established because it was pure speculation as to whether an investigation or report would have prevented the plaintiff's injuries, holding that the plaintiff should have the opportunity to prove by expert testimony how a reasonably prudent social worker would have responded to the allegations of abuse and how the abuse would have then been prevented (75 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1190-1192) . Finally, the court rejected the city's and the officer's claims that, as a matter of public policy, the investigation of child abuse should be treated as a discretionary act and that they should be immune from liability for that reason (75 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1192-1194) .

[e] Public Entity's Liability for Failure to Require Posting of Payment Bond

In N.V. Heathorn, Inc. v. County of San Mateo (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 400 , the plaintiff was a subcontractor on a public construction contract awarded by a county. The plaintiff filed sued against the general contractor, contending that the general contractor owed the plaintiff over $400,000 for work performed on the project. The general contractor then filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection, terminating its obligation to pay the plaintiff the unpaid amounts. During discovery, the plaintiff learned that the general contractor had not posted a payment bond before being awarded the contract, as required by Civ. Code §§ 3247 and 3251. The plaintiff then added the county to the suit as a defendant, alleging that the county was liable for breach of the mandatory duty to require posting of a payment bond. The trial court sustained a general demurrer filed by the county on the grounds that the plaintiff's inability to collect money owed to it by the general contractor on a public works project from a statutory payment bond was not an "injury" protected under the Tort Claims Act. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeals reversed. The court held first that the county had a mandatory duty under the Civil Code to require posting of a payment bond before awarding the contract to the general contractor, and that the plaintiff sufficiently alleged a breach of that duty (126 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1532) . The court went on to note that under the Tort Claims Act, a public entity is liable only for injuries to the kind of interests that have been protected by the courts in actions between private parties. Because private parties have an analogous protection afforded by the mechanic's lien, the court held that the subcontractor's injury sustained after the county failed to require the posting of a payment bond was an "injury" actionable under Tort Claims Act (126 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1535-1537) . The court also pointed to the holding in Walt Rankin & Assocs., Inc. v. City of Murrieta (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 605, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48 , discussed in § 196.182[3][f], noting that it would be anomalous to hold a public entity liable for failing to ensure the sufficiency of a contractor's surety, while allowing a public entity to escape liability for failing to require a surety at all (126 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1536-1537) .

[f] Public Entity's Liability for Failure to Ensure Sufficiency of Contractor's Surety

In Walt Rankin & Assocs., Inc. v. City of Murrieta (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 605, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48 , the plaintiff was a subcontractor on a city's public works project for the construction of a playground park. After being awarded the construction contract, the general contractor provided the city with a payment surety bond as required by Civ. Code §§ 3247 and 3248, executed by an Arizona attorney acting for the surety. After the city inquired of the Arizona attorney about the surety, the attorney provided the city with a copy of his special power of attorney to act for the surety, as well as with a letter from the California Secretary of State acknowledging the surety's filing of a statement by a foreign lending institution. However, the city made no further investigation into the financial solvency of the surety. When the general contractor failed to make payment to the plaintiff, the plaintiff initiated statutory stop notice procedures. The city responded by withholding payment of the remaining sum due the general contractor and disbursing that amount to the plaintiff. The parties then discovered that the surety was a foreign corporation that was not licensed as a surety in any state and that the president of the surety had pled guilty to fraudulent misrepresentation in a prosecution brought in federal court. Eventually, the principals for the surety vacated their Arizona offices, leaving no assets or any information on their current location. The plaintiff brought suit to recover the amount still owed. As part of the suit, the plaintiff sued the city for failing to require that the surety was an admitted surety insurer or to confirm the solvency of the surety, which the plaintiff alleged were mandatory duties under the relevant statutes. The trial court ruled on stipulated facts that the city did not have such a duty, and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, finding that the city had failed to fulfill mandatory statutory duties that could be the basis for tort liability under Gov. Code § 815.6. Initially, the court ruled that Civ. Code §§ 3247 and 3248 did not impose a mandatory duty on a public entity to investigatethe solvency of a surety on a public contract. Instead, those sections required only that a payment bond meeting certain requirements be provided, and the city had met those requirements in this case (84 Cal. App. 4th 605, 615-616) . However, the court also ruled that those provisions had to be read in conjunction with the statutory provisions of the Bond and Undertaking Law, Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq. The court agreed with the plaintiff that the Bond and Undertaking Law imposed mandatory duties. The court first concluded that Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310 imposed a mandatory duty on a public entity to require that the bond be executed by an admitted surety insurer, or to require two or more sufficient personal sureties or a combination of sufficient personal sureties or admitted surety insurers, and that the city did not do so in this case (84 Cal. App. 4th 605, 621-622) . The court also concluded that Code Civ. Proc. § 995.660 imposed a mandatory duty on a public entity to require an alleged admitted surety to submit a county clerk's certificate showing that it was in fact an admitted surety, a duty that the city had also violated in this case (84 Cal. App. 4th 605, 624) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Liability for Breach of Mandatory Duty

In 172 L. Ed. 2d 650, 659) , residents of a mobile home park sued the county for failing to direct the park owner to notify the residents when tests showed that the park drinking water contained levels of naturally occurring fluoride that substantially exceeded the maximum contaminant level specified by the Safe Drinking Water Act. The court of appeal held that the county had an implied mandatory duty to direct the park owner to give such notification to residents, but the California Supreme Court disagreed. The Supreme Court noted that in order to impose liability on a government entity for failing to discharge a mandatory duty, the relevant statute or regulation must explicitly mandate that the government entity take the particular action the plaintiff alleges was not taken (46 Cal. 4th 887, 898) . The Court then concluded that none of the provisions of the Safe Drinking Water Act or its implementing regulations cited by plaintiffs explicitly mandated that a county, as the local primacy agency overseeing the quality of water within its jurisdiction, direct an operator of a water system to notify the public that their drinking water had impermissibly high levels of any contaminant. The Court noted that the county was generally responsible for oversight of its public water systems under Health & Safety Code § 116325, but that statute did not require the county to take any particular act. Moreover, Health & Safety Code § 116450(a) required the water system operator, not the county, to notify residents of contamination, and made clear that any specific direction from the county to the water system operator to notify the public was a recommendation and not based on a compulsory duty. The Court also concluded that other implementing regulations in effect during the relevant period permitted, but did not require, a county to intervene in the notification process (46 Cal. 4th 887, 902-911) .

NOTE:

On remand from the California Supreme Court after the decision described above, the court of appeal noted that the Supreme Court had held only that no mandatory duty to ensure that the water system operator provided notice to his residents could be implied. The court of appeal concluded, however, that plaintiffs had properly alleged that the county had a mandatory duty under 22 C.C.R. § 64256(e) to read the water quality reports submitted by the operator and failed to do so. The appellate court concluded that these allegations were sufficient to withstand the county's demurrer and any factual disputes as to whether the county even received the reports would have to be resolved by the trial court in future proceedings [Guzman v. County of Monterey (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 983, 992-994, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793] .

The facts and procedural background of Haggis v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 490, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 327, 993 P.2d 983 , are discussed in § 196.182[3][b]. In addressing the issue of whether the defendant had failed to comply with a mandatory duty under its own municipal code when it failed to record a notice of substandard property conditions with the county recorder in 1966 and 1970, the Court first concluded that under the relevant municipal code language, the defendant's duty was mandatory. However, the Court then held that the injury to the plaintiff was not the kind of injury that the municipal code recording requirement was meant to prevent. The Court concluded that the mandatory requirement that the city record a notice of substandard conditions of property with the county recorder, although having the incidental effect of notifying potential purchasers of the property of substandard conditions, was intended as leverage to induce the correction of the substandard condition and was not intended to protect future purchasers or lenders from economic damage subsequently resulting because the substandard conditions were not corrected (22 Cal. 4th 490, 503) . As to the plaintiff's claims that the defendant had violated other municipal code provisions that imposed mandatory duties, the Court concluded that the duties imposed by those particular provisions were discretionary and not mandatory, and thus could not be the basis for imposing liability under Gov. Code § 815.6 (22 Cal. 4th 490, 506-508) .

In Creason v. Department of Health Servs. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 623, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489, 957 P.2d 1323 , plaintiffs, a minor and her parents, sued the state of California seeking damages allegedly arising from the state's failure to diagnose and report timely and accurately that the minor was suffering from congenital hypothyroidism in breach of an alleged mandatory duty to do so under the Hereditary Disorders Act, Health & Safety Code § 124975 et seq. Shortly after the minor's birth and pursuant to the Act, a blood specimen was sent to a state-contracted laboratory for analysis to determine the existence of certain genetic disorders, including congenital hypothyroidism. Although the plaintiffs and their physicians were informed that the test was negative, in accordance with standards contained in regulations adopted to govern the testing and reporting of results, plaintiffs later discovered the infant lacked a thyroid gland and suffered from congenital hypothyroidism. Plaintiffs then brought suit, alleging that defendant breached its duty by failing to exercise reasonable care in formulating the testing and reporting procedures, since the standards adopted failed to report all possible cases of hypothyroidism. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer without leave to amend, the court of appeal reversed, and the Supreme Court reversed the court of appeal. The Supreme Court concluded that the legislature, in enacting the Hereditary Disorders Act, intended that the Department of Health Services would exercise discretion in selecting the necessary and appropriate testing and reporting standards, after considering the ever-increasing and changing information concerning heritable and congenital defects, as well as expert and public views on testing. In reaching this conclusion, the Court noted statutory language suggesting that the Director of Health Services was vested with the discretion to adopt the testing standards he or she deemed necessary, subject to certain guiding principles. Thus, the Court held that, despite some mandatory language in the Hereditary Disorders Act, including language requiring that the testing procedures "be accurate [and] provide maximum information," the allegedly negligent exercise of discretion in selecting the appropriate testing and reporting standards did not constitute breach of a mandatory duty under Gov. Code § 815.6 (18 Cal. 4th 623, 633) . The Court also held that, even had the plaintiffs stated a cause of action for breach of a mandatory duty, Gov. Code § 855.6, which immunizes a government entity from liability for injuries caused by the failure to make a physical or mental examination, or make an adequate physical or mental examination, would have immunized the state from liability (18 Cal. 4th 623, 635-638) .

In de Villers v. County of San Diego (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 238, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 253 , plaintiffs filed a wrongful death action against a county after their decedent was murdered by his wife with toxic drugs that she stole from the medical examiner's office at which she worked. Plaintiffs alleged both that the county was liable for negligently supervising its employees and for violating a mandatory duty imposed by 21 C.F.R. § 1301.71, which imposes federal regulatory requirements on licensees who hold controlled substances to "provide effective controls and procedures to guard against theft." The court of appeal held that 21 C.F.R. § 1301.71 did not impose a mandatory duty on the county the violation of which could support liability under Gov. Code § 815.6, as the regulation established only general goals, but granted wide discretion to licensees to decide how to achieve those goals and did not describe any discrete acts that must be performed (156 Cal. App. 4th 238, 258-261) . In addition, the court concluded that the regulation was not designed to prevent the theft of controlled substances that would then be used to commit murder, the particular injury that occurred here (156 Cal. App. 4th 238, 261-263) .

In Department of Corporations v. Superior Court (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 916, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 , plaintiffs were investors who brought suit against the California Department of Corporations after plaintiffs lost money in a pyramid scheme. Plaintiffsalleged that because the Department initially issued desist and refrain orders against the perpetrators of the scheme, the Commissioner was under a mandatory duty imposed by Corp. Code § 25612 to rescind the orders only if finding that the rescission was necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors. Plaintiffs alleged that because the Commissioner failed to make explicit findings pursuant to this statute before the orders were rescinded, the Department could be held liable for plaintiffs' losses caused by the fraudulent investment scheme perpetrated after the orders were rescinded. The court of appeal held that Corp. Code § 25612 did not impose a mandatory duty that could be the basis for a tort suit against the Department. While recognizing that the statute does use mandatory language, the court noted that the overall statutory framework gives the Commissioner significant discretion in the exercise of his or her duties, and Corp. Code § 25612 fails to provide any guidance with respect to the nature or form of the required findings. As such, the statute does not impose a mandatory duty that could be the basis for a suit brought by investors (153 Cal. App. 4th 916, 932-933) . As an independent basis for its decision, the court also held that another provision of the same Act, Corp. Code § 25510, expressly stated that apart from four private causes of action authorized by statute, no other provision of the Act could be used to support a private cause of action (153 Cal. App. 4th 916, 934-935) .

In Tilton v. Reclamation Dist. No. 800 (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 848, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366 , plaintiffs were the owners of two parcels of property that allegedly had been damaged by failures in the levee underlying the properties. They sued the reclamation district responsible for maintaining the levee. Among their causes of action were claims for inverse condemnation, negligence, failure to provide lateral and subjacent support, nuisance, and trespass. The trial court sustained a demurrer without leave to amend on these causes of action, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal concluded that the plaintiffs had not pleaded a mandatory duty imposed on defendant to prevent leakage of the levee. The court rejected plaintiffs' argument that regulations and guidelines adopted by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and the California Reclamation Board, either together or individually, created an applicable mandatory duty. The Army Corps of Engineers' guidelines, which were in the form of a manual and not actually "regulations," were not mandatory and dealt with the construction of a levee, not subsequent maintenance. Thus, even in conjunction with a California regulation requiring that levees be designed and constructed in accordance with those guidelines, they imposed no applicable mandatory duty, given that the plaintiffs' causes of action were predicated on negligent maintenance of the levee, not negligent design or construction (142 Cal. App. 4th 848, 862-863) . The court also rejected reliance on FEMA regulations designed to implement a federal flood insurance program, since the regulations did not impose a mandatory duty upon a levee district to maintain its levees in any particular manner (142 Cal. App. 4th 848, 863) .

In Wilson v. County of San Diego (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 974, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173 , the plaintiff was a 13-year-old minor who was placed into protective custody at a nonsecure county children's facility, ran away from the facility, and was struck by a car. The plaintiff alleged that the county had a mandatory duty to keep him safe and stop him from running away based on Welf. & Inst. Code § 300.2, which provides that the purpose of the juvenile dependency law is "to provide maximum safety and protection for children who are currently being physically, sexually, or emotionallyabused, being neglected, or being exploited, and to ensure the safety, protection, and physical and emotional well-being of children who are at risk of that harm." The court of appeal held that this statute, which does not require a public agency to take any particular action, but merely recites legislative goals and policies that must be implemented through a public agency's exercise of judgment, cannot reasonably be interpreted to impose a mandatory duty on public agencies to guarantee the safety of dependent children in all circumstances (91 Cal. App. 4th 974, 980) .

In Sutherland v. City of Fort Bragg (2000) 86 Cal. App. 4th 13, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736 , property owners brought an action against a city alleging that the city, in approving a building permit on an adjacent lot, had violated a mandatory duty under a city ordinance requiring site and architectural review (SAR) of applications for building permits. As a result of the new building constructed on the adjacent lot, the plaintiffs' existing building lost access to light and air on one side, eventually causing loss of residential rents and eventual foreclosure when they could not make their mortgage payments. These plaintiffs also alleged that the city fire chief had violated a mandatory duty to enforce provisions of the city's fire code by allowing the adjacent building to be built even though its construction obstructed windows in the existing building that were being used as fire exits. In affirming judgment on the pleadings for the city, the court of appeal held that the city's SAR ordinance did not impose a mandatory duty for purposes of Gov. Code § 815.6 due to the level of discretion accompanying application of the ordinance (86 Cal. App. 4th 13, 20-22) . The court also held that the ordinance was intended primarily to protect scenic and aesthetic interests and was not intended to protect light and air access, or fire escape access, for a neighboring landowner's building (86 Cal. App. 4th 13, 22-23) . The court also held that the plaintiffs failed to establish that the lack of SAR review caused their injuries, given evidence that city zoning provisions would have allowed the neighboring landowner to build right up to the edge of his property line (86 Cal. App. 4th 13, 23-24) . Finally, the court concluded that the city fire chief exercised considerable discretion in enforcing the fire code and that the fire chief therefore did not violate a mandatory duty in allowing the adjacent building to be built in such a way that it blocked windows in the plaintiffs' building being used as the requisite second fire exit required by code (86 Cal. App. 4th 13, 24) .

In Fleming v. State of California (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63 , plaintiffs appealed from the dismissal of their action against the state of California and a parole officer for failure to prevent a murder by a parolee who was in violation of his parole. The trial court sustained both defendants' demurrers on grounds of immunity. Plaintiffs argued that their complaint adequately alleged claims against the state for failing to perform the mandatory and statutory duty to arrest the parolee. After he was paroled, the parolee visited the states of Arizona and Oklahoma in violation of his parole. Plaintiffs urged that defendants were then required to arrest the parolee by Penal Code § 3059, which states that if any paroled prisoner leaves the state without permission he must be held as an escaped prisoner and arrested as such. However, the court of appeals noted that liability under Gov. Code § 815.6 arises only where the statute creating the duty is designed to protect against the injury which occurs. The court stated that Penal Code § 3059 was not intended to protect the public against the risk of criminal attack by a parolee who leaves the state without permission, but rather to keep the parolee available to meet with the parole officer by subjection him or her to arrest as an escapee (34 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 1384) . The court also held that the alleged breach was not a legal or proximate cause of plaintiffs' injuries (34 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 1387) .

In State of California v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 954, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527 , the parents of school children molested by a teacher filed a complaint against the state for damages. Plaintiffs alleged that Educ. Code § 44346(a), which requires the denial of teaching credentials to any applicant convicted of a sex offense, placed on the state a mandatory duty to deny the teacher's application because he had a prior sex conviction when hired. The state filed a motion for summary judgment, arguing, inter alia, that § 44346(a) did not impose a mandatory duty under Gov. Code § 815.6, and was not intended as a vehicle for damages actions against the state. The court of appeal let a peremptory writ issue directing the trial court to vacate its order and to enter an order granting summary judgment (8 Cal. App. 4th 954, 959) . It held that, as used in Gov. Code § 815.6, the term "mandatory" refers to an obligatory duty that a governmental entity is required to perform, as opposed to a permissive power that a governmental entity may exercise or not as it chooses. The court stated that although § 44346(a) may be a mandatory provision, it neither sets forth a mandatory duty that is privately enforceable, nor renders governmental entities liable to molested students for negligent investigation of a credential applicant. The court noted that there is no indication that the legislature intended to impose a duty that would provide a basis for civil liability (8 Cal. App. 4th 954, 958) .

Fredette v. City of Long Beach (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 231 Cal. Rptr. 598 , was an action against a city by a 22-year-old man who'd been rendered a quadriplegic when he dove from a city pier into a lagoon and struck his head against the bottom of the lagoon or some unknown solid object. The pier had been undergoing reconstruction that was substantially complete at the time of the accident. Plaintiff requested a jury instruction to the effect that the city was negligent per se in failing to erect barricades in the vicinity of the construction site in violation of regulations contained in the Uniform Building Code. The trial court refused to give the instruction. In affirming the judgment for defendant city on the ground that substantial evidence supported the jury's finding that there was nodangerous condition of public property and that the city's failure to erect barricades or post warning signs was not the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries, the court of appeal said that the statutes relied on by plaintiff had no application to the case and that the trial court properly refused to instruct on negligence per se (187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 135) . The court said that if the injury of the kind sustained by plaintiff was not one of the consequences that the legislature sought to prevent through imposition of the alleged mandatory duty, liability does not obtain under Gov. Code § 815.6 (187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 135-136) . The court said the provisions of the Uniform Building Code relied on by plaintiff were intended to provide protection to pedestrians using a public way adjacent to building sites from construction related accidents, that the reconstruction of the pier had been substantially completed and any activities that were ongoing simply did not contribute to plaintiff's accident, that the injuries sustained were not of the type that the Uniform Building Code was enacted to prevent, and that plaintiff, in walking onto the pier and intentionally diving from it, was not one of the class of persons for whose protection the regulations were adopted (187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 136) .

[b] "Enactment" Defined

The facts of Wilson v. County of San Diego (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 974, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173 , are discussed in § 196.182[4][a]. The court of appeal rejected the plaintiff's argument that a mandatory duty could be found in the county facility's child care worker manual, which provided that facility staff should know where the children are and keep them within view at all times. The court noted that the term "enactment" as used in Gov. Code § 815.6 means "a constitutional provision, statute, charter provision, ordinance, or regulation," and is intended to refer to all measures of a formal legislative or quasi-legislative nature. The court also noted that the term "regulation" means a rule, regulation, order, or standard adopted pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act. It does not extend to a regulation that relates only to the internal management of a state agency, and it does not extend to a regulation that is directed to a specific person or group of persons and does not apply generally throughout the state. Therefore, the facility's child care worker manual did not constitute an administrative regulation within the meaning of Gov. Code § 815.6 and could not impose a mandatory duty for these purposes (91 Cal. App. 4th 974, 982) .

In Posey v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 225 Cal. Rptr. 830 , the court of appeal stated, with respect to the definition of regulation, that regulations having the "force of law" have been defined as those regulations that are promulgated pursuant to an authorization to implement, interpret, or make specific a law being enforced or administered by the promulgator, and that this excludes informal guides, policy manuals, and recommended procedures helpful in establishing the standards of statutes, but lacking the force of law (180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 849). The court held that an internal general order of the California Highway Patrol, which was not adopted pursuant to the authority vested in the California Highway Patrol by statute (Veh. Code § 2402), was not a regulation having the force of law and was not, therefore, an enactment within the meaning of Gov. Code § 815.6 (180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 849) .

NOTE:

Additional cases holding that the particular rule or regulation involved imposed no mandatory duty on the public entity or its employees include: Searcy v. Hemet Unified Sch. Dist. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 792, 799, 223 Cal. Rptr. 206 (guidelines in School Area Pedestrian Safety manual promulgated by State Department of Transportation as not internally binding on defendant unified school district); and Lehto v. City of Oxnard (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 285, 294-295, 217 Cal. Rptr. 450 (internal police department regulations). For provisions concerning when a rule, policy, manual, or guideline of state or local government shall not be considered to be a statute, ordinance, or regulation for the purposes of Evid. Code § 669(a), see Evid. Code § 669.1.

[c] "Regulation" Defined

Wilson v. County of San Diego (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 974, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173 , is discussed in § 196.182[4][b].

Posey v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 836, 225 Cal. Rptr. 830 , is discussed in § 196.182[4][b].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.183

§ 196.183 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity and Public Employee Are Liable for Injury Caused by Public Employee's Failure to Summon Medical Care for Prisoner in Custody and in Need of Immediate Medical Care [Gov. Code § 845.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT(S) _____ [IS or ARE] NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT PLAINTIFF SUSTAINED INJURY PROXIMATELY CAUSED BY THE FAILURE OF DEFENDANT _____ [name of employee] TO SUMMON MEDICAL CARE FOR PLAINTIFF AND THAT, AT THE TIME OF DEFENDANT'S FAILURE, HE/SHE KNEW, OR HAD REASON TO KNOW, THAT PLAINTIFF WAS IN NEED OF IMMEDIATE MEDICAL CARE AND FAILED TO TAKE ANY REASONABLE ACTION [OR ANY ACTION AT ALL] TO SUMMON SUCH CARE.

Liability for Failure to Summon Medical Care. Except as otherwise provided in Sections 855.8 and 856 of the Government Code, a public employee, and the public entity if the employee was acting within the scope of his or her employment, is liable for injury proximately caused by the employee's failure to furnish or obtain medical care for a prisoner in his or her custody if the employee knew or had reason to know that the prisoner was in need of immediate medical care and the employee failed to take reasonable action to summon such medical care (Gov. Code § 845.6; Hart v. County of Orange (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 302, 305-308, 62 Cal. Rptr. 73).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity and its employee are liable for injury sustained as a result of the failure of the employee, acting within the scope of his or her employment, to take reasonable action to summon medical care for a prisoner (defined in Gov. Code § 844) when the employee knew or had reason to know that the prisoner was in need of immediate medical care [see Gov. Code § 845.6]. For discussion of the immunity otherwise provided by Gov. Code § 845.6, see § 196.09[7].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability for Failure to Summon Medical Care

In Hart v. County of Orange (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 302, 62 Cal. Rptr. 73 , a man was taken ill in his truck. The police were called and found him unconscious. They placed him in the drunk tank, although there was evidence from which the police could have determined that he was sick and not drunk. When he was still unconscious the next morning, he was taken to the hospital where he later died from his illness. His heirs sued the county, which appealed a verdict in favor of the heirs. The court of appeal affirmed. It held that the provisions of Gov. Code § 845.6 provided for liability of the public entity and public employee to a prisoner for unreasonable failure to summon medical aid despite the general immunity in Gov. Code § 844.6 for injuries to prisoners. It then held that there was sufficient evidence to support the verdict (254 Cal. App. 2d 302, 305-308) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Liability for Failure to Summon Medical Care

Lucas v. County of Los Angeles (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 277, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 655 , involved an action against a county and individual police officers arising out of the death of a prisoner who swallowed a bag of methamphetamine. Prior to this action plaintiff had filed an action in the federal district court for violation of decedent's civil rights. The federal court granted summary judgment to defendants, with the following conclusions of law: (1) the individual officers were not deliberately indifferent to the serious medical needs of decedent, and (2) the individual officer took reasonable action regarding the obtaining of medical care for decedent. The trial court in the state action then awarded judgment to defendants, ruling without trial that the conclusions of law which came from the federal court were to be given res judicata effect. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the term "reasonable action" in terms of the "deliberate indifference" standard of cruel and unusual punishment under the federal Constitution was not identical to the "reasonable" standard for immunity under Gov. Code § 845.6. The court noted that federal law applied a subjective standard of knowledge, so that even if prison officials know of a substantial risk to inmate health or safety, they may be found free from liability if they respond reasonably to the risk. However, under Gov. Code § 845.6, in order for a public employee to be liable for failing to provide medical care to prisoners, the employee must know or have reason to know of the need of immediate medical care and fail to summon such care. The court thendetermined that unlike the federal subjective standard of knowledge, the phrase "has reason to know" in Gov. Code § 845.6 is the equivalent of an objective standard. The court stated that because the standards are different and because it did not know wether the federal court used an objective or subjective test in its factual findings, it must reverse the judgment (47 Cal. App. 4th 277, 290) .

Zeilman v. County of Kern (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1174, 214 Cal. Rptr. 746 , was an action by a person who had been arrested and, while on crutches as the result of a ski accident, had fallen in the county jail facility where she was being booked. She sued the county for damages for injuries resulting from the failure of jail personnel to provide her with immediate medical care pursuant to Gov. Code § 845.6. Plaintiff's counsel had arrived at the jail after the fall and during the booking procedure and could observe his client being booked in an "agitated, emotional and weakened condition which was easily apparent to him and to any other person in his vicinity." The trial court granted the county's motion for summary judgment on the ground that plaintiff was a prisoner at the time and the county was, therefore, immune from liability under Gov. Code §§ 844 (defining "prisoner") and 844.6 (granting immunity for an injury to any prisoner). Plaintiff's contentions were that she was not a prisoner at the time of the fall and that therefore the county was not immune under Gov. Code § 844.6, or if she was a prisoner, the county was liable under Gov. Code § 845.6 for failure of the jail officials to have summoned immediate medical care. The court of appeal reversed the summary judgment, holding that there existed triable issue of fact in regard to (1) whether plaintiff was a "prisoner" at the time she fell (the court discussed the conflict among the cases concerning the meaning of Gov. Code § 844 and concluded that the line of demarcation between status as an arrestee and as a confined person is the completion of the booking process) (168 Cal. App. 3d 1174, 1181-1183) ; and (2) whether plaintiff's use of crutches and her agitated condition should have given rise to knowledge of her need for immediate medical care under Gov. Code § 845.6 (168 Cal. App. 3d 1174, 1184-1187) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Liability for Failure to Summon Medical Care

In Watson v. State of California (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262 , an inmate in a county jail injured his ankle playing basketball. A nurse examined him the next day, noted that his Achilles tendon was intact, and gave him an ace bandage and pain medication and provided in-cell feeding to minimize leg use. An internist reviewed plaintiff's medical chart, but did not see plaintiff. On and after his transfer to state prison, he complained about his ankle, to three different doctors. The first did not examine the tendon because plaintiff was walking and a torn tendon would cause him to be screaming in pain and in a wheelchair or on crutches. The second provided medication for a sprained ankle after examining an x-ray of the ankle. The third doctor examined the ankle, entered in the medical chart, based on the oral history, that plaintiff had a probable torn Achilles tendon that was mending, furnished medication and tennis shoes, and saw plaintiff five or six more times before plaintiff's release. After being released, plaintiff saw another doctor who determined that he had a ruptured Achilles tendon, which, if not treated could result in permanent injury. The doctor told plaintiff that the doctor believed the tendon should have been treated during his incarceration and that chances for a successful surgical repair were significantly reduced due to the passage of time. Plaintiff then sued the county and state based on a failure to summon and provide reasonable medical care and sued the state employees for medical malpractice. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of the state, ruling that no triable facts were presented to support a Gov. Code § 845.6 claim against the state, but denied the county's summary judgment motion (21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 840) . The trial court also sustained the state employees' demurrers to the first amended complaint without leave to amend on the grounds that it was barred by the claims presentation statute (21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 840) .

The court of appeal affirmed. With regard to Gov. Code § 845.6, the court pointed out that the state had provided prompt medical care (21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 842) . The court noted that liability under Gov. Code § 845.6 is limited to serious and obvious medical conditions, if the public entity intentionally or unjustifiably fails to furnish immediate medical care (21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 841) . Moreover, the court noted that the state did not have a concomitant duty to assure that its employees (the prison medical staff) properly diagnosed and treated the medical condition (21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 842) . To the contrary, under Gov. Code § 845.6, a medical malpractice action must be brought against the employees, not the public entity (21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 842) . Furthermore, no triable facts were presented that the state knew or had reason to know that the medical care provided at the state prisons was so deficient so as to be tantamount to no medical care (21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 845). Notice cannot be imputed to the state based on medical hindsight by an orthopedic specialist who diagnosed the medical problem almost a year after the injury (21 Cal. App. 4th 836, 845).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.184

§ 196.184 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Employee Is Liable for Injury to Victim of Fire or Fire Operation Caused by Employee's Willful Misconduct in Transporting or Arranging for Transportation of Victim to Physician or Hospital [Gov. Code § 850.8]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of employee] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT PLAINTIFF WAS INJURED BY A _____ [FIRE or FIRE PROTECTION OPERATION], THAT AT THE TIME DEFENDANT WAS AN EMPLOYEE OF _____ [name of public entity], THAT DEFENDANT, ACTING IN THE SCOPE OF HIS/HER EMPLOYMENT, _____ [TRANSPORTED or ARRANGED FOR THE TRANSPORTATION OF] PLAINTIFF TO A _____ [PHYSICIAN or SURGEON or HOSPITAL], AND THAT, AS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF DEFENDANT'S WILLFUL MISCONDUCT IN _____ [TRANSPORTING or ARRANGING FOR THE TRANSPORTATION OF] PLAINTIFF, PLAINTIFF SUSTAINED FURTHER INJURY.

Liability of Public Employee for Injury Caused by Willful Misconduct in Transporting or Arranging for Transportation of Fire Victim to Physician and Surgeon or Hospital. Notwithstanding the immunity of a public employee and his or her employing public entity for any injury sustained by a fire victim, or fire protection operation victim, as a result of or in connection with the transportation of the victim to a physician and surgeon or hospital by, or arranged by, the public employee, the employee is liable for injury to the victim proximately caused by his or her willful misconduct in transporting the victim to the physician and surgeon or hospital or arranging for the transportation (Gov. Code § 850.8).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public employee acting in the scope of his or her employment is liable for injury sustained by a fire victim or fire protection operation victim who was further injured by the willful misconduct of the employee in transporting, or arranging for the transportation of, the victim to a physician and surgeon or hospital [Gov. Code § 850.8]. For discussion of the immunity otherwise provided by Gov. Code § 850.8, see § 196.09[13].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.185

§ 196.185 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity That Operates Medical Facility [Gov. Code § 854] Is Liable for Injury Caused by Entity's Failure to Provide Equipment, Personnel, or Facilities Required by Statute or Regulation [Gov. Code § 855]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT DEFENDANT _____ [OPERATES or MAINTAINS] A MEDICAL FACILITY AND THAT PLAINTIFF'S INJURY WAS PROXIMATELY CAUSED BY DEFENDANT'S FAILURE TO PROVIDE ADEQUATE OR SUFFICIENT _____ [EQUIPMENT and/or PERSONNEL and/or FACILITIES] AS REQUIRED BY _____ [specify statute or regulation].

[EITHER]

Liability of Public Entity Operating or Maintaining Medical Facility Subject to Regulation by State Department. A publicentity that operates or maintains any medical facility (as defined in Section 854 of the Government Code) that is subject to regulation by the California State Department of Health Services, Social Services, Developmental Services, or Mental Health is liable for injury proximately caused by the failure of the public entity to provide adequate or sufficient equipment, personnel, or facilities required by any statute or any regulation of those departments prescribing minimum standards for equipment, personnel, or facilities, unless the public entity establishes that it exercised reasonable diligence to comply with the applicable statute or regulation (Gov. Code § 855(a)).

[OR]

Liability of Public Entity Operating or Maintaining Medical Facility Not Subject to Regulation by State Department. A public entity that operates or maintains any medical facility that is not subject to regulation by the State Department of Health Services, Social Services, Developmental Services, or Mental Health is liable for injury proximately caused by the failure of the public entity to provide adequate or sufficient equipment, personnel, or facilities substantially equivalent to those required by any statute or any regulation of those departments prescribing minimum standards for equipment, personnel, or facilities applicable to a public medical facility of the same character and class, unless the public entity establishes that it exercised reasonable diligence to conform with those minimum standards (Gov. Code § 855(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity that operates a medical facility, as defined in Gov. Code § 854, is liable for the plaintiff's injury, which was proximately caused by the entity's failure to provide adequate or sufficient equipment, personnel, or facilities required by any statute or regulation of the designated department [Gov. Code § 855].

If liability is predicated on the failure to comply with a statute, the statute should be cited; the court will take judicial notice of its contents [see Evid. Code § 451(a)]. If liability is predicated on the medical facility's failure to comply with a departmental regulation, it would appear that counsel may request the court to take judicial notice of the regulation under Evid. Code § 452(b), which authorizes the taking of judicial notice of regulations of any public entity in the United States. In this latter situation, counsel should furnish the court with sufficient information to enable it to take judicial notice of the matter [Evid. Code § 453(b)]. If the regulation is published in the California Code of Regulations, a citation to the appropriate code section would appear to be sufficient. If it is not so published, it would appear that the better practice would be to set forth the regulation verbatim in the points and authorities and secure a certified copy of the regulation to present to the court [see Evid. Code §§ 1530, 1531].

Counsel should note that if a plaintiff seeks to impose liability under Gov. Code § 855 for violation of a regulation, that regulation must have been promulgated by one of the four state departments specified in the statute [Lockhart v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 289, 305-306, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 62] . In addition, regardless of whether liability is predicated on a statute or regulation, the relevant statute or regulation must prescribe a specific minimum standard that has been violated. Provisions that merely provide general guidelines, such as those requiring "sufficient" personnel or the like, cannot be a basis for imposing liability under the statute [Lockhart v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 289, 307-309, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 62] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.186

§ 196.186 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity Is Liable for Injury Caused by Entity's Use of Pesticide [Gov. Code § 862(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF'S INJURIES WERE CAUSED BY DEFENDANT'S USE OF A PESTICIDE.

A. Liability of Public Entity for Use of Pesticide. A public entity is liable for injuries caused by its use of a pesticide to the same extent as a private person except that no presumption of negligence arises from the failure of a public entity or a public employee to comply with a provision of a statute or regulation relating to the use of a pesticide if the statute or regulation by its terms is made inapplicable to the public entity or the public employee (Gov. Code § 862(b)).

B. "Pesticide" Defined. As used in Section 862 of the Government Code, the word "pesticide" means (1) a "substance" as defined in Section 12753 of the Food and Agricultural Code; (2) an "injurious material" the use of which is regulated or prohibited under Sections 14001-14063 of the Food and Agricultural Code; and (3) any material used for the same purpose as any of the already mentioned materials (Gov. Code § 862(a)).

C. State Must Adhere to Statutory Notification Requirements. As part of a Mediterranean fruitfly eradication program, the state is obligated by the Food and Agricultural Code Sections 5029, 5771 et seq. to comply with strict notification requirements expressly designed for such programs (Adkins v. State of California (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1811, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity is liable for injuries caused by its use of a pesticide as defined in Gov. Code § 862(a). Gov. Code § 862 is limited to pesticides and has no effect on the rules that determine the liability of public entities for injuries arising from the use of a chemical that is not a pesticide.

Theses points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Construction of Gov. Code § 862

There appear to be no appellate court cases expressly construing Gov. Code § 862. However, in one court of appeal case, the plaintiffs were insurers that sought, on a variety of theories including "strict liability" under Gov. Code § 862, to recover from the state of California the amounts they'd paid out on insurance claims for damage done to automobile paint finishes caused by the aerial spraying of Malathion in the 1980-82 Mediterranean fruit fly eradication program in response to the Governor's proclamation of a state of emergency under the Emergency Services Act (Gov. Code §§ 8550-8668). The court of appeal said that it is by no means clear that the statute does impose strict liability on the state and quoted the California Law Revision Commission note to Gov. Code § 862 stating that, although it appears that the effect of the California statutes and regulations relating to the use of pesticides is to impose strict liability for injuries resulting from such use, this conclusion will remain uncertain until there has been a judicial determination of the question in California. The court said that research revealed no case to date interpreting this code section [Farmers Ins. Exch. v. State of California (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 494, 504, 221 Cal. Rptr. 225] .

However, the court did "tend to agree" with the Attorney General's argument that Gov. Code § 862(b) simply did not apply to the facts of the case, reasoning that the statute plainly appears to govern those situations when the state is carrying out proprietary activities on property it either owns or controls as a private person would do and that it does not apply in a situation when the state is acting in its governmental capacity to abate a statewide nuisance [Farmers Ins. Exch. v. State of California (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 494, 504, 221 Cal. Rptr. 225] . The court nevertheless concluded that whether or not Gov. Code § 862(b) imposed strict liability, the state and its agents would be immune from liability under Gov. Code § 862(b) by virtue of the immunity provision (Gov. Code § 8655) of the Emergency Services Act pursuant to which the Governor acted in proclaiming the state of emergency [Farmers Ins. Exch. v. State of California (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 494, 504, 221 Cal. Rptr. 225] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] State Must Adhere to Statutory Notification Requirements

The decision in Adkins v. State of California (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59 , arose out of the Mediterranean fruit fly (Medfly) eradication program of 1989. Plaintiffs, who were hired by the state to hang Medfly traps, became ill after handling the chemical used in the traps. Plaintiffs' supervisors knowingly lied to them about the effect of the chemical, told plaintiffs the chemical was completely safe, and refused to allow them to wear protective clothing. Plaintiffs sued the state for the physical injuries they incurred as a result of exposure to the chemical. The trial court granted a nonsuit, and entered judgment finding the state was immune from liability under the Emergency Services Act, Gov. Code §§ 8550 et seq.

The court of appeal reversed, concluding that the state was not immune under the Emergency Services Act for intentional concealment of known dangers which cause personal injuries. The court stated that in prosecuting the Medfly eradication program the state was acting pursuant to itsauthority under the Emergency Services Act, and that as part of an eradication program, the state was obligated by Food & Agric. Code §§ 5029, 5771 et seq. to comply with a number of strict notification requirements expressly designed for such programs. It acknowledged that States were immune from civil actions stemming from the administration of the notice requirements if the director or commissioner used his or her best efforts to comply with the requirements. However, the court found that intentionally misrepresenting the toxic nature of a chemical used in the eradication program could not possibly be considered best efforts to comply with the strict notice requirements, or to comply with the state's obligation to provide complete and accurate information relating to health and safety (50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1816) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.187

§ 196.187 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity Is Liable for Death or Injury to Person or Property Proximately Caused by Public Employee's Negligent Operation of Motor Vehicle, Including Emergency Vehicle [Veh. Code § 17001]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT _____ [specify, e.g., PLAINTIFF SUSTAINED SERIOUS PERSONAL INJURIES] AS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF THE NEGLIGENT OPERATION OF A MOTOR VEHICLE BY _____ [name], WHO, AT THE TIME OF THE ACCIDENT, WAS DEFENDANT'S EMPLOYEE ACTING WITHIN THE SCOPE OF HIS/HER EMPLOYMENT.

A. Liability of Public Entity for Motor Vehicle Accidents. A public entity is liable for death or injury to person or property proximately caused by a negligent or wrongful act or omission in the operation of any motor vehicle by an employee of the public entity acting within the scope of his or her employment (Veh. Code § 17001).

[Optional] B. Immunities Not Applicable to Liability Under Vehicle Code. Government Code Sections 815.2(b) and 845.8 do not provide immunity to public entities for liability that is predicated on Vehicle Code Section 17001 (Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1165, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185 (Gov. Code § 845.8); Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 883-887, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 (Gov. Code § 815.2(b)).

[Optional] C. Liability When Motor Vehicle Involved Was Emergency Vehicle. Despite the fact that a public employee operating an authorized emergency vehicle responding to an emergency call, or in the immediate pursuit of an actual or suspected law violator, or responding to a fire alarm or other emergency call, is immune from liability under Vehicle Code Section 17004, the public entity employer is liable under Vehicle Code Section 17001 for injuries caused by the negligent operation of that vehicle (Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 883, 885, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 ; City of Sacramento v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 395, 400, 182 Cal. Rptr. 443).

[Optional] D. Failure of Emergency Vehicle to Sound Siren. Police officers are under a duty to exercise due care during a chase for the safety of innocent persons that may be injured, and the duty to use due care may include the duty to sound a siren to warn others of the approaching pursuit. Thus, when police officers engage in a vehicle pursuit and their pursuit causes the suspect to engage in a course of conduct creating a danger to other users of the highway, the trier of fact may conclude that the officers were negligent in failing to flash their red lights or sound their siren in order to alert other innocent parties to the approaching danger created by their pursuit (Stark v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 276, 283-284, 214 Cal. Rptr. 216).

[Optional] E. Liability When Prisoner Is Negligently Allowed to Steal Emergency Vehicle in Operation. When a police officer arrests a person and negligently permits the person to steal the police car in which he was placed and, in a chase in which the stolen police car was pursued by other police cars, injure a third person, the officer's public entity employer is liable to the third person under Section 17001 of the Vehicle Code (Duarte v. San Jose (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 654-659, 161 Cal. Rptr. 140).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the defendant public entity is liable for the injury to plaintiff or to plaintiff's property or for the death of plaintiff's decedent proximately caused by the negligent operation of a motor vehicle by an employee of the defendant acting within the scope of his or her employment [Veh. Code § 17001].

Optional Paragraph B should be included if the public entity has asserted (or may assert) that it is immune from liability pursuant to the provisions of either Gov. Code § 815.2(b) (providing immunity to public entity if employee is immune) or Gov. Code § 845.8 (providing immunity to public entity based on injury caused by escaping arrested person or person resisting arrest). Optional Paragraph C should be included if the employee is immune from liability under Veh. Code § 17004, which provides that a public employee is immune from civil liability for death, personal injury, or property damage resulting from the operation of an emergency vehicle in the line of duty [see also § 196.10[16]]. Optional Paragraph D should be included when the injury is caused by the failure of police officers giving chase in an emergency vehicle to sound its siren. Optional Paragraph E should be included when the injury is caused by a person who is negligently permitted to steal an emergency vehicle in operation and injure a third person with it.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunities Not Applicable to Liability Under Vehicle Code

In Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185 , plaintiff fled on foot when a police car approached, and was rendered a quadriplegic when the pursuing police car struck plaintiff in the street. Plaintiff sued the driver of the car and the public entity; the trial court granted summary judgment in favor of both defendants, holding that they were immune under Gov. Code § 845.8 and Veh. Code § 17004. The court of appeal affirmed the grant of summary judgment in favor of the public entity, but reversed as to the driver on the ground that a public entity is not immune if its police officers act negligently or intentionally use excessive force while pursuing a fleeing suspect. Because there were triable issues of fact regarding these issues, the court held that summary judgment should have been denied. The public entity appealed, and the California Supreme Court affirmed.

The Court noted its previous holding in Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 883-887, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 , discussed that the public entity liability provided by Veh. Code § 17001 is not subject to the immunity set forth in Gov. Code § 815.2(b), and concluded that the immunity granted by Gov. Code § 845.8 is similarly subject to the public entity liability imposed by Veh. Code § 17001 (9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1165) . The Court rejected the analysis used in Hooper v. City of Chula Vista (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 442, 454-455, 260 Cal. Rptr. 495 , which had posited that a different rule would apply if the fleeing person, rather than a third person, was injured during the pursuit; the Court held that nothing in the statutory scheme permitted such a distinction (9 Cal. 4th 1154, 1164-1165) .

Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 , was an action by a motorist, who was injured in an automobile accident with one of two police cars engaged in a high speed pursuit of a suspected felon, against the two police officers and their employer county. The trial court granted defendants' motions for summary judgment on the grounds the officers were immune from liability under Veh. Code § 17004 and that the county was derivatively immune under Gov. Code § 815.2(b), which provides that except as otherwise provided by statute, a public entity is not liable for an injury resulting from an act or omission of an employee of the public entity when the employee is immune from liability.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment in regard to the two officers but reversed it in regard to the county. With respect to the immunity provided by Gov. Code § 815.2(b), the Court said that liability was, in fact, otherwise provided by statute. Specifically, Veh. Code § 17001 imposed such liability by making a public entity liable for its employee's negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle (21 Cal. 3d 880, 883) . After discussing the legislative history of the statutes, the Court said that Veh. Code § 17004 defined only a limited immunity, that is, an employee immunity, that Veh. Code § 17001 "otherwise" provides for public entity liability, and that Veh. Code § 17001, therefore, is cognizable under the exception of Gov. Code § 815.2(b) (21 Cal. 3d 880, 885) . The Court concluded thatbased on the evidence in the record, there existed sufficient evidence of the officers' negligence, which would trigger the county's liability, to require that a jury weigh the facts (21 Cal. 3d 880, 887) .

[b] Liability When Motor Vehicle Involved Was Emergency Vehicle

Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 , is discussed in § 196.187[3][a].

City of Sacramento v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 395, 182 Cal. Rptr. 443 , was a mandate proceeding arising out of an action by a highway patrolman against a city and two city policemen for damages for personal injuries resulting from a collision with an automobile that the police officers were pursuing in their patrol vehicle after seeing it go through a red light. The trial court denied the defendants' motions for summary judgment and the defendants petitioned for a writ of mandate. In granting the writ with respect to defendant police officers but denying it with respect to the city, the court of appeal pointed out that the city's argument that it was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 815.2 because the officers were immune was rejected in Brummett v. County of Sacramento (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 880, 148 Cal. Rptr. 361, 582 P.2d 952 . The court said that the specific provision for public entity liability in Veh. Code §

17001 overrides the general derivative immunity provided by Gov. Code § 815.2 (131 Cal. App. 3d 395, 400) .

NOTE:
For the conditional immunity from liability for death or personal injury or property damage resulting from the collision of the pursued vehicle, see Veh. Code § 17004.7. This statute, which was enacted in 1987, is discussed in § 196.08]14].

[c] Failure of Emergency Vehicle to Sound Siren

In Stark v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 276, 214 Cal. Rptr. 216 , the court of appeal affirmed a jury finding that police were negligent when a suspect they were pursuing injured plaintiff. The court held that the failure of police to sound their siren during the chase of the suspect provided a sufficient basis for liability under a negligence theory, even though it was the suspect's car rather than the police car that collided with plaintiff (168 Cal. App. 3d 276, 282-285) . The court also held that the immunity of Gov. Code § 845.8 for injuries caused by escaping prisoners or persons resisting arrest did not preclude public entity liability under Veh. Code § 17001 for torts committed by public employees during the course of employment in situations when the police have not yet detained the suspect (168 Cal. App. 3d 276, 285-287) .

NOTE:
A police officer's negligence for failing to sound a vehicle siren or flash emergency lights while pursuing a suspect may only be used to argue for liability against the public entity, because police officers themselves, as public employees, are entitled to immunity under Veh. Code § 17004. In applying this immunity to police pursuit cases, the language of Veh. Code § 17004 is clear and unambiguous and immunizes the public employee even if negligence in the course of the pursuit is alleged [Cruz v. Briseno (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 568, 572, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 715, 994 P.2d 986 (sheriff's deputy was immune despite failing to turn on lights and siren while pursuing speeding vehicle)]. For the conditional immunity from liability for death or personal injury or property damage resulting from the collision of the pursued vehicle, see Veh. Code § 17004.7. This statute, which was enacted in 1987, is discussed in § 196.08]14].

[d] Liability When Prisoner Is Negligently Allowed to Steal Emergency Vehicle in Operation

In Duarte v. City of San Jose (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 161 Cal. Rptr. 140 , a police officer had stopped a car for speeding, arrested the driver for being under the influence of alcohol, placed him in the back of the police car, then left the motor running while he went to help another officer move the arrested driver's car. The arrestee then sped off in the police car and was pursued by other police cars. The chase ended when the stolen vehicle ran off the road and struck and seriously injured the plaintiff, who was mowing his lawn. The injured person sued the officers and their employer city. The trial court granted the defendants' motion for summary judgment on the grounds that (1) both the city and the police officers were immune from liability and (2) neither the city nor the officers owed plaintiff a duty under the circumstances. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment for the officers and reversed it in regard to the city. The court held that the officers were immune from liability by Gov. Code § 845.8, relating to injuries caused by an escaping prisoner, an escaping or escaped arrested person, or a person resisting arrest, and under Veh. Code § 17004, immunizing public employees from liability for civil damages resulting from the operation, in the line of duty, of an authorized emergency vehicle or when in the immediate pursuit of an actual or suspected violator of the law (100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 654-657) . The court held, however, that the city was not immune from liability under Gov. Code § 845.8 because what was alleged was not that the police used insufficient force to restrain the arrestee, but, rather, that they negligently operated police vehicles (100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 657) . The court held that the plaintiff could challenge the officers' conduct of the chase pursuant to Veh. Code § 17001. The court further held that to be in operation within the meaning of Veh. Code § 17001, the vehicle must be in a state of being at work or in the active exercise of some specific function, and that it need not be moving to be in operation within the meaning of the statute (100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 657) . The court concluded that at the time of the theft the stolen police car was in a state of being at work and therefore in operation within the meaning of Veh. Code § 17001 (100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 658) . The court further held that a police officer's duty to operate his police vehicle with due care encompasses a duty to third persons such as plaintiff not to leave that vehicle unattended with its motor still running, under circumstances that invite theft and flight, and that the trial court erred in granting a summary judgment in favor of the city, which may be held liable for the negligence of its employees pursuant to Veh. Code § 17001 (100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 659) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Liability When Motor Vehicle Involved Was Emergency Vehicle

In City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 695, 212 Cal. Rptr. 661 , the court of appeal held that Gov. Code § 845.8, relating to injuries caused by an escaping prisoner, an escaping or escaped arrested person, or a person resisting arrest, does not immunize a public entity from liability under Veh. Code § 17001 for the negligent acts of its employees in operating emergency vehicles. The court rejected the city's claim that Gov. Code § 845.8 immunized it from a suit for damages by persons injured when a vehicle being pursued by city police for traffic violations struck a third vehicle. Under Duarte v. City of San Jose (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 648, 161 Cal. Rptr. 140 , discussed in § 196.187[3][d], and City of Sacramento v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 395, 182 Cal. Rptr. 443 , discussed in § 196.187[3][b]; a public entity may be liable under Veh. Code § 17001 even if its employee is immune from liability under Veh. Code § 17004 (166 Cal. App. 3d 695, 700-702) .

In Gibson v. City of Pasadena (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 651, 148 Cal. Rptr. 68 , the complaint alleged that plaintiff was injured when a car that the police were chasing crashed into plaintiff's car. The cause of action against the city was based on the negligence of the police in chasing the vehicle, which had run a red light. The complaint was dismissed after a demurrer was sustained. The court of appeal reversed. It held that the public employee immunity of Veh. Code § 17004 for injuries caused by emergency vehicles chasing a suspect does not protect the public entity from liability under Veh. Code § 17001 for injuries caused by the negligence of their employees in operating motor vehicles (83 Cal. App. 3d 651, 655-656) .

NOTE:

For the conditional immunity from liability for death or personal injury or property damage resulting from the collision of the pursued vehicle, see Veh. Code § 17004.7. This statute, which was enacted in 1987, is discussed in § 196.08]14].

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Immunities Not Applicable to Liability Under Vehicle Code

In Ladd v. County of San Mateo (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 913, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 309, 911 P.2d 496 , the Supreme Court held that the provisions of Veh. Code § 17001 did not apply. Plaintiff was injured while attempting to escape a vehicle in which she was being transported to a county juvenile hall. Plaintiff had been placed in custody, handcuffed, and was riding in the rear seat of a county vehicle. While the vehicle was stopped at a red traffic signal near some railroad tracks, plaintiff jumped out of the vehicle, ran towards a train, attempted to climb aboard a boxcar, but fell beneath the train and lost both of her legs. Plaintiff relied on Thomas v. City of Richmond (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 1154, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442, 892 P.2d 1185 , to contend that Gov. Code § 845.8 did not provide immunity because defendants were liable under Veh. Code § 17001. However, the Supreme Court held that the alleged negligence of the county and its employees in failing to provide a secure vehicle, failing to adequately restrain plaintiff, and failing to have a county employee sit in the rear seat with plaintiff to prevent her from escaping, did not constitute negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle within the meaning of Veh. Code § 17001. For that statute to apply, it is not sufficient that a motor vehicle somehow be involved in the series of events that results in the injury. The injury must be proximately caused by the negligent operation of the vehicle (12 Cal. 4th 913, 923) .

In Champion v. County of San Diego (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 972, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 205 , plaintiffs brought actions for wrongful death and emotional distress based on a murder committed by a prisoner who had escaped from a county van in which he was being transported. The trial court entered judgment in favor of the county after sustaining a demurrer on the basis of Gov. Code § 845.8. On appeal, plaintiffs contended that Veh. Code § 17001 defeats the governmental immunity. The court ofappeal affirmed the judgment, relying on Ladd v. County of San Mateo (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 913, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 309, 911 P.2d 496 , finding no allegation of negligence relating to the operation of the van. Plaintiffs attempted to allege negligent operation of the van through improper loading of the prisoner, and failure to inform the driver of the danger. However, the court found that the thrust of the negligence allegation was failure to properly train county personnel and failure to secure and supervise the prisoner, rather than anything relating to the driving of the van (47 Cal. App. 4th 972, 979) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.188

§ 196.188 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity Is Liable for Injury Caused by Public Employee's Failure to Act as Reasonably Prudent Person While Engaged in Rescue Following Collision, Accident, or Other Casualty Involving Vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(a), (c)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT PLAINTIFF'S LOSS WAS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF THE FAILURE OF DEFENDANT'S EMPLOYEE TO ACT AS A REASONABLY PRUDENT PERSON WOULD HAVE ACTED UNDER THE SAME OR SIMILAR CIRCUMSTANCES IN THE RESCUE OPERATION.

Liability of Public Entity When Its Employee Fails to Act as Reasonably Prudent Person in Rescue Operation. The public entity employing an individual engaged in a rescue pursuant to the Harbors and Navigation Code following a collision, accident, or other casualty involving a vessel is liable in civil damages when the individual employee failed to act as a reasonably prudent person would have acted under the same or similar circumstances (Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(a), (c)(2)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the defendant public entity is liable for plaintiff's loss, which was proximately caused by the failure of defendant's employee to act as a reasonably prudent person would have acted under the same or similar circumstances while engaged in a rescue operation following a collision, accident, or other casualty involving a vessel [Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(a), (c)(2)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.189

§ 196.189 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820(a)]--Public Entity That Warned of Danger Causing Need for Rescue Involving Vessel Is Liable for Injury Caused by Public Employee's Gross Negligence During Rescue [Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(a), (c)(3)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF, BECAUSE DEFENDANT GAVE A REASONABLE _____ [PRINTED or ELECTRONIC or VERBAL] WARNING OF THE DANGER CAUSING THE DISTRESS THAT CREATED THE NECESSITY FOR THE RESCUE, AND BECAUSE THERE WAS A REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY FOR THE PARTY IN DISTRESS TO RECEIVE THE WARNING, _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT PLAINTIFF'S LOSS WAS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF THE GROSS NEGLIGENCE OF DEFENDANT'S EMPLOYEE.

Public Entity Liable for Gross Negligence of Employee. When a public entity has given a reasonable printed, electronic, or verbal warning of the danger causing the distress that created the necessity for the rescue, and there was a reasonable opportunity for the party in distress to have received the warning, the public entity is liable only for the acts or omissions of its employee that were taken in a grossly negligent manner (Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(c)(3)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the defendant public entity is liable for the grossly negligent acts or omissions of its employee engaged in a rescue following the collision, accident, or other casualty involving a vessel when the entity gave a reasonable printed, electronic, or verbal warning of the danger causing the distress that created the necessity for the rescue and there was a reasonable opportunity fo the party in distress to have received the warning [see Harb. & Nav. Code § 656(a), (c)(3)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.190

§ 196.190 Supporting Contention That Public Entity is Liable for Act or Omission [Gov. Code § 815.2(a)]--Public Entity is Liable for Discrimination Prohibited by Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12926(d)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF MAY PURSUE AN ACTION AGAINST A PUBLIC ENTITY EMPLOYER FOR PROHIBITED DISCRIMINATION MADE ACTIONABLE BY THE FAIR EMPLOYMENT AND HOUSING ACT.

Public Entity Employer May be Directly Liable for Discrimination Prohibited by Fair Employment and Housing Act. The Fair Employment and Housing Act applies to public entity employers, making such employers susceptible to direct liability for prohibited discrimination (DeJung v. Superior Court (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 533, 545-547, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that, despite the general immunities of the California Government Claims Act, a plaintiff may state a cause of action for discrimination under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA), Gov. Code § 12900 et seq., against a public entity who is or was the plaintiff's employer. However, liability under the FEHA must be predicated on the direct liability of the public entity employer. The employer may not be held vicariously liable based on the liability of a public employee.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the contention that the discrimination action is not barred. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should include facts supporting the claim of discrimination prohibited by the FEHA and facts under which the public entity employer may be directly, rather than vicariously, liable.

[3] Discussion of Immunities

[a] Public Entity Employer May be Directly Liable for Discrimination Prohibited by Fair Employment and Housing Act

In DeJung v. Superior Court (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 533, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99 , plaintiff brought an action for age discrimination under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA), Gov. Code § 12900 et seq., against a county superior court. Plaintiff, who formerly worked as a part-time court commissioner for the defendant, alleged that the defendant discriminated on the basis of age when it hired a new full-time commissioner who was only 43 years old after court members made statements indicating that they wanted to hire someone younger than defendant to fill the full-time position. The trial court granted summary judgment for the defendant on the grounds that the court enjoyed immunity for discretionary hiring acts under provisions of the Government Claims Act, specifically Gov. Code §§ 815.2(d) and 820.2. Alternatively, the trial court ruled that plaintiff had failed to raise a triable issue of fact with regard to the discrimination claim. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held that discretionary immunity under the Government Claims Act did not provide immunity from suits for illegal discrimination under the FEHA. The court noted that in two earlier California Supreme Court opinions, the Supreme Court had indicated, albeit in dicta, that a public employer might be susceptible to direct liability under the FEHA, even if a public employee could not be personally liable under that statute. The court of appeal then noted that the statutory definition of "employer" under the FEHA, which specifically included "the state or any political or civil subdivision of the state, and cities . . . ," constituted an express declaration of the Legislature's intent to subject public entities to liability for violations of the FEHA, effectively withdrawing in those particular cases any immunity provided under the Government Claims Act. The court also concluded that, as the FEHA was a statute of more specific application than the generalized immunity found in the Government Claims Act, FEHA liability took precedence (169 Cal. App. 4th 533, 545-547) . The court then held that triable issues of fact remained on the plaintiff's claim of age discrimination (169 Cal. App. 4th 533, 549-554) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
1. Liability For Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.191-196.209

[Reserved]

§§ 196.191[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
2. Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.210

§ 196.210 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT(S) _____ [IS or ARE] NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURIES _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT (1) PLAINTIFF'S INJURIES WERE PROXIMATELY CAUSED BY A DANGEROUS CONDITION OF PROPERTY _____ [OWNED or CONTROLLED] BY DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity]; (2) THE DANGEROUS CONDITION CREATED A REASONABLY FORESEEABLE RISK OF THE KIND OF INJURY THAT WAS INCURRED; AND (3) _____ [THE DANGEROUS CONDITION WAS CREATED BY A _____ (NEGLIGENT or WRONGFUL) _____ (ACT or OMISSION) OF _____ (DEFENDANT _____ [name of employee] or AN EMPLOYEE OF THE DEFENDANT) WITHIN THE SCOPE OF HIS/HER EMPLOYMENT or DEFENDANT _____ (name of public entity) (AND DEFENDANT _____ [name of employee]) HAD ACTUAL OR CONSTRUCTIVE NOTICE OF THE DANGEROUS CONDITION A SUFFICIENT TIME PRIOR TO PLAINTIFF'S INJURY TO HAVE TAKEN MEASURES TO PROTECT AGAINST THE DANGEROUS CONDITION].

A. Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Its Property. Except as provided by statute, a public entity is liable for injury caused by a dangerous condition of its property if the plaintiff establishes that the property was in a dangerous condition at the time of the injury, that the injury was proximately caused by the dangerous condition, that the dangerous condition created a reasonably foreseeable risk of the kind of injury that was incurred and that either (1) a negligent or wrongful act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of his or her employment created the dangerous condition; or (2) the public entity had actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition under Section 835.2 of the Government Code a sufficient time prior to the injuryto have taken measures to protect against the dangerous condition (Gov. Code § 835; see Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 715-716, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755 ; Bunker v. City of Glendale (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328, 168 Cal. Rptr. 565).

B. Liability of Public Employee for Dangerous Condition of Public Property. An employee of a public entity is liable for injury caused by a dangerous condition of public property if the plaintiff establishes that the property was in a dangerous condition at the time of the injury, that the injury was proximately caused by the dangerous condition, that the dangerous condition created a reasonably foreseeable risk of the kind of injury that was incurred, and that either: (1) the dangerous condition was directly attributable wholly or in substantial part to a negligent or wrongful act of the employee and the employee had the authority and the funds and other means immediately available to take alternative action that would not have created the dangerous condition; or (2) the employee had the authority and it was his or her responsibility to take adequate measures to protect against the dangerous condition at the expense of the public entity and the funds and other means for so doing were immediately available to him or her, and he or she had actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition under Section 840.4 of the Government Code a sufficient time prior to the injury to have taken measures to protect against the dangerous condition (Gov. Code § 840.2).

C. "Property" Defined. "Property of a public entity" and "public property" mean real or personal property owned or controlled by the public entity (Gov. Code § 830(c)).

D. "Dangerous Condition" Defined. "Dangerous condition" means a condition of property that creates a substantial (as distinguished from a minor, trivial, or insignificant) risk of injury when the property or adjacent property is used with due care in a manner in which it is reasonably foreseeable that it will be used (Gov. Code § 830(a); see Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 718-720, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755).

[Optional] E. Kind of "Due Care" Required. There is no requirement that the plaintiff plead or prove that at the time of the injury he or she was actually using the property with due care. So long as a plaintiff-user can establish that a condition of the property creates a substantial risk to any foreseeable user of the public property who uses it with due care, he or she has successfully alleged or shown the existence of a dangerous condition regardless of his or her personal lack of due care (Alexander v. State of California ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 890, 899, 901, 902, 205 Cal. Rptr. 758).

[Optional] F. "Actual Notice" Defined. A public entity had actual notice of a dangerous condition if it had actual knowledge of the existence of the condition and knew or should have known of its dangerous character (Gov. Code § 835.2(a)). A public employee had actual notice of a dangerous condition if he or she had actual personal knowledge of the existence of the condition and knew or should have known of its dangerous character (Gov. Code § 840.4(a)).

[Optional] G. "Constructive Notice" of Public Entity Defined. A public entity had constructive notice of a dangerous condition if the plaintiff establishes that the condition had existed for such a period of time and was of such an obvious nature that the public entity, in the exercise of due care, should have discovered the condition and its dangerous character (Gov. Code § 835.2(b); see Carson v. Facilities Dev. Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 830, 842-843, 206 Cal. Rptr. 136, 686 P.2d 656).

[Optional] H. "Constructive Notice" of Public Employee Defined. A public employee had constructive notice of a dangerous condition if the plaintiff establishes (1) that the public employee had the authority and it was his or her responsibility as a public employee to inspect the property or to see that inspections were made to determine whether dangerous conditions existed in the property, (2) that the funds and other means for making the inspections or for seeing that the inspections were made were immediately available to the employee, and (3) the dangerous condition had existed for such a period of time and was of such an obvious nature that the employee, in the exercise of his or her authority and responsibility with due care, should have discovered the condition and its dangerous character (Gov. Code § 840.4(b)).

[Optional] I. "Protect Against" Defined. "Protect against" includes repairing, remedying, or correcting a dangerous condition, providing safeguards against a dangerous condition, or warning of a dangerous condition (Gov. Code § 830(b); see Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 716-717, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755 ; Ramariz v. County of Merced (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 239 Cal. Rptr. 774 ; Bunker v. City of Glendale (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328, 168 Cal. Rptr. 565).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity is liable for the plaintiff's injuries because the injuries were proximately caused by a dangerous condition of the entity's property [see Gov. Code § 835; see also § 196.210[2][b]].

Optional Paragraph E is for use when there is some question about whether the plaintiff was exercising due care at the time that he or she was injured. Optional Paragraphs F--I are for use, if appropriate, when the dangerous condition was not created by an employee of the public entity.

These points and authorities may be combined, in an appropriate case, with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.211 -196.214. These points and authorities may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit, or in support of plaintiff's motion or in opposition to defendant's motion for a new trial. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Statutory Immunities

Several statutes declare that certain conditions do not constitute a dangerous condition or provide immunity from liability in given situations. Any one or more of these statutes may, in a proper case, be cited in opposition to these points and authorities. These statutes are discussed fully in §§ 196.11-196.12, 196.210-196.214, and 196.300-196.306.

Strictly, the question of the applicability of a statutory immunity does not arise until it is determined that a defendant otherwise owes a duty of care to the plaintiff and thus would be liable in the absence of such immunity [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 22, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137 ; Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 201-202, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 ; Stark v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 276, 282, 214 Cal. Rptr. 216] . An immunity avoids liability in tort under all circumstances within the limits of the immunity itself; it is conferred, not because of the particular facts, but because of the status or position of the favored defendant; and it does not deny the tort, but, rather, the resulting liability [Whitcombe v. County of Yolo (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 698, 704-705, 141 Cal. Rptr. 189] . This is true even if the duty is created by a special relationship between the public entity and the injured person. The existence of a special relationship does not operate to bypass a statutory immunity that expressly applies [Whitcombe v. County of Yolo (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 698, 705, 141 Cal. Rptr. 189 ; see Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 202, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 ; for points and authorities relating to liability arising from a special relationship, see §§ 196.230 -196.235].

For forms of points and authorities establishing exceptions to the immunity statutes, see § 196.270 et seq.

[c] Exclusions From "Property"

For purposes of Gov. Code §§ 830-840.6, seismic safety improvements or fire sprinkler improvements that are owned, built, controlled, operated, and maintained by the private owner of the building in which they are installed are not public property or property of a public entity solely because they were financed through formation of a special assessment district [Gov. Code § 830.1].

[d] Dangerousness of Condition

[i] Generally

In addition to the statutory immunities to liability for injuries caused by a dangerous condition, there are several statutory provisions [see § 196.210[2][d][ii]-[iv]] that affect the determination that a condition is "dangerous" so as to give rise to liability for resulting injuries. Any one or more of these statutes may also be cited, in a proper case, in opposition to these points and authorities.

[ii] Condition Creating Minor, Trivial, or Insignificant Risk

A condition is not a dangerous condition if the trial or appellate court, viewing the evidence most favorably to the plaintiff, determines as a matter of law that the risk created by the condition was of such a minor, trivial, or insignificant nature in view of the surrounding circumstances that no reasonable person would conclude that the condition created a substantial risk of injury when such property or adjacent property was used with due care in a manner in which it was reasonably foreseeable that it would be used [Gov. Code § 830.2]. For discussion of cases holding that a condition is not dangerous as a matter of law pursuant to Gov. Code § 830.2, see § 196.210[5][b].

[iii] Failure to Provide Traffic Control Signals or Signs

Gov. Code § 830.4 provides that a condition is not dangerous within the meaning of Gov. Code §§ 830-840.6 merely because of the failure to provide regulatory traffic control signals, stop signs, yield right-of-way signs, or speed restriction signs, as described in the Vehicle Code, or distinctive roadway markings as described in Veh. Code § 21460. For example, under Gov. Code § 830.4, a city is under no affirmative duty to erect stop signs at a blind intersection [Mittenhuber v. City of Redondo Beach (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6, 190 Cal. Rptr. 694 ; see also City of South Lake Tahoe v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 971, 978-980, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 146 (city not liable for injuries sustained when two vehicles collided at intersection after earlier accident knocked down stop sign at intersection)].

[iv] Evidence of Happening of Accident

Except where the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur is applicable, the occurrence of the accident that results in the injury is not in and of itself evidence that public property was in a dangerous condition [Gov. Code § 830.5(a)].

[v] Evidence of Postaccident Protective Corrective Action by Public Entity

The fact that action was taken after an injury occurred to protect against a condition of public property is not evidence that the public property was in a dangerous condition at the time of the injury [Gov. Code § 830.5(b)].

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of complaints against public entities and public employees based on a dangerous condition of public property, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Its Property

The facts and procedural background of Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755 , are discussed in § 196.211[3][a]. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the Court said that, generally speaking, under Gov. Code § 835 a public entity is liable for an injury if the plaintiff establishes (1) that the property was in a dangerous condition at the time of the injury; (2) that the injury was proximately caused by the dangerous condition; (3) that the dangerous condition created a reasonably foreseeable risk of the kind of injury that was incurred; and (4) either (a) that a public employee negligently or wrongfully created the dangerous condition or (b) that the public entity had actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition under Gov. Code § 835.2 a sufficient time prior to the injury to have taken measures to protect against the dangerous condition (25 Cal. 3d 707, 715-716) .

Bunker v. City of Glendale (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 168 Cal. Rptr. 565 , was an action by a motorcyclist for personal injuries sustained when, while driving on a city street over the crest of a hill late at night, he collided with a car on the other side that was backing out of a driveway. Before the crest of the hill there was a sign advising motorists to "Slow to 15 Miles an Hour." The jury found plaintiff contributorily negligent and fixed his liability at 44 percent and apportioned the remaining 56 percent to the city. The city appealed.

In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal said that generally, a public entity is liable for injury caused by a dangerous condition of its property if the entity had notice of the danger and failed to take appropriate measures to warn of or remedy the condition, and that the city did not contest the fact that the lack of visibility on the street constituted a dangerous condition (111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328) .

[b] "Dangerous Condition" Defined

The facts and procedural background of Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755 , are discussed in § 196.211[3][a]. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the Court quoted the definition of "dangerous condition" in Gov. Code § 830(a) (25 Cal. 3d 707, 718) . In reply to the state's argument that cross-median freeway accidents usually result from the negligence of either the victim or a third party, and therefore that the jury could not properly conclude that the absence of a median barrier created a substantial risk of injury when the freeway was used with due care, the Court said that, although it may well be that many, perhaps even most, cross-median accidents result from the negligence of one or more drivers, the evidence was clearly sufficient for the jury to conclude that the lack of a median barrier created a substantial risk of injury even in the absence of negligent conduct. The Court explained that one state highway engineer testified that it is not uncommon to have the violating vehicle be an innocent party and that numerous expert witnesses identified various situations in which cross-median accidents might occur in the absence of negligence, as when the accident results, for example, from mechanical failure, sudden illness, or animals in the road (25 Cal. 3d 707, 719) . Citing Morris v. State of California (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 962, 965, 153 Cal. Rptr. 117 , the Court added that the court of appeal, in rejecting an identical argument of the state, said that the median barrier's obvious function was to protect motorists on the freewayfrom the intrusion into their lanes of vehicles crossing the median out of control whether by reason of mechanical or tire failures or other causes unrelated to negligence, or by reason of the negligence of those drivers and owners (25 Cal. 3d 707, 720) .

[c] Kind of "Due Care" Required

In Alexander v. State of California ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 890, 205 Cal. Rptr. 758 , an injured car passenger won a verdict against the state of California based on the dangerous condition of the highway intersection at which plaintiff's car collided with another car. The state moved for judgment notwithstanding the verdict and for a new trial. In granting the motions, the trial court opined that "use with due care," as used in Gov. Code § 830(a), includes obeying traffic laws and found, as a matter of law, that no dangerous condition existed at the intersection. In reversing the orders granting the motions, the court of appeal said that the Tort Claims Act does not require plaintiff to prove that the property was actually being used with due care at the time of the injury, either by the plaintiff or by a third party (159 Cal. App. 3d 890, 899) . Discussing Swaner v. City of Santa Monica (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 789, 198 Cal. Rptr. 208 , the court said that so long as a plaintiff-user can establish that a condition of the property creates a substantial risk to any foreseeable user of the public property who uses it with due care, the plaintiff-user has successfully alleged the existence of a dangerous condition regardless of his or her personal lack of due care and that although a public entity may assert the negligence of a plaintiff-user as a defense, it has no bearing on the determination of a dangerous condition in the first instance. They are separate questions of fact, for the trier of fact, and may not be combined or intertwined (159 Cal. App. 3d 890, 901, 902) .

[d] "Constructive Notice" of Public Entity Defined

The facts and procedural background of Carson v. Facilities Dev. Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 830, 206 Cal. Rptr. 136, 686 P.2d 656 , are discussed in § 196.213[3][a]. The action was for wrongful death and personal injuries arising out of an intersection accident in which the driver of a car (plaintiffs' decedent), entering from a stop sign street, could not see oncoming cross traffic from the stop line because of a sign placed by a private company on adjacent property. To see whether there was any cross traffic, she had to first enter the intersection and was hit broadside by an oncoming car when she did so. One of the grounds asserted by the city in support of its motion for nonsuit was that it could not be liable for any injuries caused by the sign because it had no notice of the sign's presence. In rejecting this ground and reversing the judgment of nonsuit, the Court observed that, unless the dangerous condition is created by a negligent or wrongful act or omission of an employee of the public entity, plaintiff must prove that the public entity had actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition. There was no evidence that the city had actual notice, but the Court said that constructive notice may be imputed if it can be shown that an obvious danger existed for an adequate period of time before the accident to have permitted the public entity, in the exercise of due care, to discover and remedy the situation (36 Cal. 3d 830, 842) . The Court added that questions of whether a dangerous condition could have been discovered by reasonable inspection and whether there was adequate time for preventive measures are properly left to the jury (36 Cal. 3d 830, 843) . The court pointed out that the sign had existed next to the intersection for seven months prior to the accident and that a city police officer testified that the traffic at the accident location was on the heavy side of moderate to the low side of heavy, from which a jury could reasonably have inferred that city police officers regularly patrolled the intersection, and that, for the purposes of a motion for nonsuit, the trial court should have accepted as true the evidence that the city had constructive notice (36 Cal. 3d 830, 844) .

[e] "Protect Against" Defined

The facts and procedural background of Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755 , are discussed in § 196.211[3][a]. The state argued, among other things, that it was under no duty to protect the freeway-driving public against dangers not created by physical defects in its property (25 Cal. 3d 707, 715) . In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the Court said that Gov. Code § 835 specifically provides that, when a public entity has actual or constructive notice of a dangerous condition, the entity's liability may be predicated on its failure to take protective measures to safeguard the public from dangers that may not necessarily be of the entity's own creation. This reading of Gov. Code § 835 is confirmed by reference to Gov. Code § 830(b), which specifically defines the "protect against" language of Gov. Code § 835(b) to include "providing safeguards against a dangerous condition." Thus, the language of the applicable statutes refutes the state's argument that it is under no "duty" to protect the public against dangers that are not created by physical defects in public property (25 Cal. 3d 707, 716-717) .

The facts and procedural background of Ramariz v. County of Merced (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 239 Cal. Rptr. 774 , are discussed in § 196.36[3][e]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal said that, under the theory of dangerous condition of public property, tort liability can be imposed on a public entity either if it created the dangerous condition or, with actual or constructive notice, did not protect against it (194 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690) .

The facts and procedural background of Bunker v. City of Glendale (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 168 Cal. Rptr. 565 , are discussed in*§§ 196.210[3][a]* and 196.300[4][d]. On appeal, the city argued that (1) the sign gave sufficient warning of the danger and that plaintiff could have avoided the collision had he conformed his speed to that advised by the sign, and (2), citing Gov. Code § 830.4 [see § 196.210[2][d][iii]], argued that even if the sign did not give sufficient warning of the danger, failure to post an adequate sign could not furnish a basis for imposition of liability on a public entity (111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328) . In affirming the judgment apportioning liability between the plaintiff and the city, the court rejected both arguments. Citing Gov. Code § 830.8 [see § 196.12[2]], the court said that when a dangerous condition exists that would not be reasonably apparent to, or anticipated by, a person exercising due care, and a sign is necessary to warn of the condition, the public entity's failure to provide such a sign may provide a basis for imposition of liability (111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328) . The court pointed out that the sign, having been posted 500 feet below, and three intersections away from, the crest of the hill was confusing in that motorists could not tell whether the warning applied to the intersections or to the grade of the hill, and that the jury's conclusion that the city failed to warn motorists about a dangerous condition was supported by the evidence (111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Its Property

In Huffman v. City of Poway (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 975, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 , the plaintiff was rehearsing a play at a performing arts center when he fell through an open trapdoor on the stage. Although the plaintiff knew that the trapdoor was open, he brought suit against the city that owned the center, arguing that the trapdoor constituted a dangerous condition on public property. After the jury found for the plaintiff, the trial court granted judgment notwithstanding the verdict for the city on the grounds that the city did not own or control the property on which the dangerous condition was located, apparently based on the fact that the actual trapdoor mechanism was private property that had been attached to the stage for this production. The court of appeal reversed, finding in part that the city did own the center, the property on which the dangerous condition was located, that further evidence of the city's control over the property was not necessary, and that in any event substantial evidence existed showing that the city retained sufficient control over the center to be liable (84 Cal. App. 4th 975, 989-990) . The court also held that there was sufficient evidence that the technical director for the play's production, who had supervised the installation of the trapdoors, was a city employee, even though he was loaned to the organization staging the play at the time of the injury, and that he had the power to prevent, remedy, or guard against the dangerous condition (84 Cal. App. 4th 975, 990-991) . The court then concluded that reasonable minds could differ as to whether a dangerous condition actually existed because of the trapdoors, making judgment notwithstanding the verdict inappropriate. The city, through its employee, could have ensured the use of understage lighting, spotters, or glo-tape, as was customary in the theater industry to alert people to the locations of trapdoors, and the absence of these precautions was sufficient to support the jury's finding that a dangerous condition existed (84 Cal. App. 4th 975, 992-993) .

[b] "Dangerous Condition" Defined

In Lane v. City of Sacramento (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 730 , plaintiffs were injured while traveling in an automobile that struck a six-to-seven-inch raised median at a city intersection. Plaintiffs sued the city, arguing that the raised median, coupled with the narrow width of the road lane, constituted a dangerous condition of public property. The trial court granted summary judgment for the city. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the city had failed to demonstrate as a matter of law that the raised center divider did not constitute a dangerous condition of public property. In rejecting the city's proof that the divider was not a dangerous condition as a matter of law, the court concluded that the city failed to prove the absence of prior accidents involving the raised center divider at that particular traffic intersection when the city provided evidence only that the city's claims administrator searched its database and found no claims other than plaintiffs' for the previous five years for that intersection. In rejecting the conclusion that this proved the absence of prior accidents at the intersection for that time period, the court noted that the city had provided no evidence of how the database was created or maintained or how the search was conducted, had provided no evidentiary basis for concluding that the database constituted an accurate record of claims submitted to the city, and no evidence to support the conclusion that all pertinent records were retrieved. The court also noted that the lack of claims would not prove the lack of accidents at the site that did not result in claims to the city (183 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1345-1347) .

In Stathoulis v. City of Montebello (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 559, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 910 , plaintiff was injured when the heel of her shoe caught in a depression in the street as she was crossing toward a friend's residence. As she tried to catch her balance, her other foot became embedded in another adjacent hole in the street and she fell. She sued the city for a dangerous condition of public property, but the trial court granted summary judgment for the defendant after determining that the gouges in the road constituted a trial defect as a matter of law. The court of appeal held that there were triable issues as to whether the defect was trivial and reversed. The court noted that none of the three gouge marks in the road were that large, ranging to no more than about one inch deep at most, there was no debris or other sight obstructions in the road, the weather was clear and dry on the evening of the accident, and the street was lit by streetlamps. However, the court also noted plaintiff's evidence tending to show that the holes were irregularly shaped, with jagged, abrupt vertical edges and containing loose material within, and that the presence of three holes in close proximity may have increased the risk of pedestrian accident and injury. Although there was no evidence that anyone other than plaintiff was ever injured by the potholes, plaintiff had presented evidence that the defects had existed for at least three years. Recognizing that the issue was a close one, the court held that the evidence demonstrated a triable issue regarding the degree of dangerousness of the gouges in the street and whether they presented a substantial risk of injury, and whether the city had notice of the dangerous defect (164 Cal. App. 4th 559, 568-569) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Its Property

In Metcalf v. County of San Joaquin (2008) 42 Cal. 4th 1121, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 382, 176 P.3d 654 , plaintiff was seriously injured in an automobile accident when, after stopping at a railroad crossing, he proceeded to drive over the elevated tracks and into a "T" intersection where his vehicle collided with a truck. Plaintiff sued the county, who owned and controlled the property, for a dangerous condition of public property based on the fact that although the county placed a stop sign before the railroad tracks, they only painted the word "STOP" and marked a stop line on the pavement in front of the street intersection. At trial, the jury found that a dangerous condition of public property existed, but also found that the dangerous condition was not created through the negligent or wrongful conduct of a public employee, nor did the county have notice of the dangerous condition with sufficient time to take remedial measures. Judgment was entered in favor of defendants. Plaintiff appealed, the court of appeal affirmed, and plaintiff appealed again. The California Supreme Court affirmed. Plaintiff argued that having proven that a dangerous condition of public property existed, he was not required to additionally prove that the dangerous condition was created through the negligence or wrongful conduct of a public employee acting within the scope of employment, or if he was so burdened, that the negligence he must prove was different from common-law negligence. The Supreme Court disagreed. The Court held that, under the plain language of Gov. Code § 835, it is not enough that the plaintiff plead and prove that a dangerous condition of public property existed and that it caused injury to plaintiff. He must also plead and prove that the dangerous condition was created through the negligent or wrongful act or omission of an employee of the public entity, or that the public entity had notice of the dangerous condition a sufficient time prior to the injury to take remedial steps (42 Cal. 4th 1121, 1131) . The Court noted that while the fact that a dangerous condition was created by a public entity employee, even created deliberately, may be used to support a finding that the dangerous condition was created negligently, such facts do not necessitate a factual finding that the dangerous condition was created negligently or wrongfully (42 Cal. 4th 1121, 1135-1136). The Court also affirmed that the negligence standard applicable to a finding of liability under this statute is the common-law ordinary negligence standard, which measures the reasonableness of a defendant's conduct in light of the foreseeable risk of harm (42 Cal. 4th 1121, 1136, 1139) . By contrast, the Court explained, the "reasonability" relevant to a public entity's affirmative defense under Gov. Code § 835.4 was a different type of reasonability. Under that defense, a public entity may avoid liability by showing that it did not act unreasonably, in light of the practicality and cost of pursuing the alternative courses of action available to it, when it created or failed to remedy a dangerous condition, cost/benefit concerns which are irrelevant to establishing negligence liability under Gov. Code § 835 or under ordinary tort principles (42 Cal. 4th 1121, 1137-1138) .

[b] "Property" Defined

In Public Utilities Com. v. Superior Court (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 364, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234 , a wrongful death action was brought against the Public Utilities Commission and others following a death at a railroad crossing caused when a truck pinned a railroad worker to a railcar. Plaintiff alleged the PUC could be held liable for a dangerous condition of public property because many years earlier the PUC had recommended that a gate be placed at the crossing but then failed to ensure that the gate was installed. The Court of Appeal held as a matter of law that the PUC did not control the property and thus could not be held liable for a dangerous condition on public property. The court relied on the following facts: (1) the PUC did not own the property; (2) the railroad was responsible for maintaining the crossing, the signals at the crossing, and an area two feet outside the tracks; (3) the city was responsible for maintaining the approaches and those portions of the crossing not under the railroad's responsibility; and (4) although the PUC could issue orders to others to take preventive measures, and other entities had to seek PUC approval before changing warning devices at the crossing, the PUC had no authority itself to correct any defects associated with the crossing. In addition, the court rejected the claim that the PUC's authority to inspect for safety violations and close the crossing to vehicular and pedestrian traffic established the requisite control, as these were merely aspects of its regulatory powers (181 Cal. App. 4th 364, 375-376) . The court noted as well that while the PUC had reached agreement with the other relevant entities that a gate be constructed at the crossing, the PUC had never ordered that the gate be built nor had federal construction funds ever been allocated for the project (181 Cal. App. 4th 364, 376 n.8).

Tolan v. State of California ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 980,161 Cal. Rptr. 307 , was an action against the state and others by a pedestrian who had sustained personal injuries when a motorist jumped an angling curve where a boulevard narrowed from four to two lanes. The parties stipulated that the condition that existed at the time of the accident existed when the state had control and ownership of the street, but that the state had relinquished control to the city three years prior to the accident. Based on this stipulation, the trial court dismissed the action in regard to the state, and plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal affirmed. The court held that to be liable the public entity must be the owner or in control of the property at the time of the injury (100 Cal. App. 3d 980, 983, 984) . The court said that the crucial element is control, because, for liability to be imposed, the entity must be in a position to protect against or warn of the hazard (100 Cal. App. 3d 980, 984) .

[c] "Dangerous Condition" Defined

In Sun v. City of Oakland (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372 , a city altered an intersection to install "bulb outs," sidewalk extensions designed to lessen the distance pedestrians must travel to cross an intersection, and in the construction process removed preexisting crosswalk markings at the intersection. A pedestrian attempting to cross at that intersection was then killed by a motorist who failed to yield the right of way. In an action brought against the city by the decedent's family, the trial court granted summary judgment for the city and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal held that the presence of the bulb outs, which may have invited pedestrians to cross the street, did not create a dangerous condition for purposes of imposing liability on the city. They did not increase or intensify the danger when crossing the street, and a reasonably careful motorist would have had no difficulty seeing and stopping for a pedestrian (166 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1190) . The court also held that the city's failure to comply with the public notice requirements of Veh. Code § 21950.5 prior to removing the crosswalk markings did not render the city liable for the pedestrian's death, as the city would have been free to remove the markings even after a public hearing (166 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1191-1192) . Finally, the court held that Gov. Code § 830.8 provided immunity to the city for failing to repaint the marked crosswalk, at least in the absence of any hazardous condition that would not be apparent to pedestrians or motorists using the intersection with due care (166 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1193) .

In Cerna v. City of Oakland (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168 , plaintiffs were the survivors and family members of an accident in which an automobile driver struck children who were crossing an intersection while walking to school. The intersection, which had a painted striped crosswalk, was a few blocks from the only entrance to the school. Plaintiffs sued the city and the school district, alleging both that the crosswalk constituted a dangerous condition of public property and that the school district could be held liable under Ed. Code § 44808. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendants, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal first held that the crosswalk did not constitute a dangerous condition of public property for failing to comply with the crosswalk marking requirements of Veh. Code § 21368. That statute applied to crosswalks that are "contiguous" to school grounds and the crosswalk at issue was not. Additionally, the court held that liability could not be premised on the failure to provide a traffic light or crossing guards. The court noted that Gov. Code § 830.4 specifically provided that a condition is not dangerous merely because of the failure to provide traffic signals, and the presence or absence of crossing guards is not a physical condition of the intersection and thus not actionable as a dangerous condition (161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1350-1351) . The court also held that the school district could not be held liable under Ed. Code § 44808 because the district had not undertaken to provide for the safety of the students while they were off-campus (161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1357-1360) .

In Biscotti v. Yuba City Unified School Dist. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 554, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 825 , a nine-year-old boy propped his bicycle handlebar through a chain link fence on the perimeter of a public school, stood on top of the bicycle in order to reach oranges growing on a tree on adjacent property, and injured his arm on the metal tines at the top of the fence when he fell. The boy sued the school district, arguing that the fence was a dangerous condition on public property. The trial court granted summary judgment for the district, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court held that the chain link fence around the perimeter of the school was not a dangerous condition rendering the school district liable for the boy's injury. The court concluded that the danger of using the bicycle as a ladder to reach over a spiked fence had to be reasonably obvious even to a child of plaintiff's age, and plaintiff was not using the fence in a manner in which it was reasonably foreseeable that it would be used (158 Cal. App. 4th 554, 560-561) .

In Brenner v. City of El Cajon (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 434, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316 , the plaintiff was struck by a car while crossing a street near a busy intersection that lacked traffic control devices. She sued the city in which the intersection was located, alleging that the street constituted a dangerous condition of public property. She argued that the expansion of the street from two to four lanes resulted in an increase in the volume and speed of traffic on the street, that the proximity of a bus stop, park, convenience store, and school near the intersection resulted in an increase in the number of pedestrians trying to cross the street, and that the defendant failed to install any traffic control devices to help protect pedestrians. The trial court sustained a demurrer for the defendant, and the court of appeal affirmed. As to the first two factors identified by the plaintiff, the court of appeal concluded that neither an increase in volume or speed of traffic after the street was widened, nor the location of facilities such as a bus stop, park, or school near the busy intersection, rendered the street a dangerous condition of public property, at least in the absence of some other allegations concerning the physical condition of the street that made it unsafe to cross when motorists and pedestrians were exercising due care (113 Cal. App. 4th 434, 440-441) . As for the failure to install traffic control devices, the court recognized that Gov. Code § 830.4 specifically provides that the failure to install traffic control devices does not constitute a dangerous condition of public property (113 Cal. App. 4th 434, 442) .

In Sambrano v. City of San Diego (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 225, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 , a two-year-old child being supervised by other family members wandered into a fire ring at the defendant's beach park and suffered third degree burns. The fire rings were approximately five feet square, had six-inch thick concrete walls that extended about 15 inches above the sand, and were painted with red warning signs reading "CAUTION, HOT." The fire ring did not have an active fire at the time of the injury and the family had been in control of the ring for at least four hours. No reports of similar injuries had been reported to the defendant in the five-year period prior to the accident. Suit was brought against the defendant on behalf of the child. The trial court granted summary judgment for the defendant, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court held that the fire rings did not constitute a dangerous condition and that the risk of a small child being burned in a fire ring was a minor, insignificant, or trivial risk if the rings were used with due care in a foreseeable manner by members of the public. The court rejected the argument that the condition was dangerous merely because it was reasonably foreseeable that small children would not always be closely supervised by parents or other responsible adults, as well as the argument that because the child was seriously injured, there must have been a substantial risk of such injury attributable to the condition of the property (94 Cal. App. 4th 225, 240-241) .

In Schonfeldt v. State of California (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464 , a teenager climbed a fence, ran across the freeway and was seriously injured when he was struck by a truck. Plaintiffs, as guardian ad litem for their son, contended that four defects combined to constitute a dangerous condition of property funnelingtheir son to run across the freeway: an unlit pedestrian tunnel and muddy narrow pedestrian walkway; a freeway fence four feet, ten inches high instead of recommended height of six feet; a hole in the fence on the other side; and lack of signs warning freeway drivers that pedestrians may illegally attempt to cross the freeway at that location. The trial court granted defendants motion for judgment on the pleadings Plaintiffs appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that none of the alleged facts constituted a dangerous condition, either by themselves or in combination (61 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1468) . According to the court, in climbing the fence and running across the freeway, the teenager chose to use the freeway without due care in a manner which was not reasonably foreseeable. Therefore, the state was not liable for his injury (61 Cal. App. 4th 1462, 1468) .

Fredette v. City of Long Beach (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 231 Cal. Rptr. 598 , was an action against a city by a 22-year-old man who'd been rendered a quadriplegic when he dove from a city pier into a lagoon and struck his head against the bottom of the lagoon or some unknown solid object. In affirming the judgment for defendant city on the ground that substantial evidence supported the jury's finding that there was no dangerous condition of public property and that the city's failure to erect barricades or post warning signs was not the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries, the court of appeal, quoting 4 Calif. L. Rev. Comm. Report (1963) p 822, said that the "dangerous condition" of property should be defined in terms of the manner in which it is foreseeable that the property will be used by persons exercising due care in recognition that any property can be dangerous if used in a sufficiently abnormal manner, and added that even though it is foreseeable that persons may use public property without due care, a public entity may not be held liable for failing to take precautions to protect such persons (187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 132) . The court said that no reasonable person could conclude that a swimmer, exercising due care and confronted with the notice that the condition itself provided, would have used the pier as a diving platform and that the assertion that the placement of guard rails or the posting of warning signs may have been of some value in no way suggested that the absence of such precautionary measures contributed in any way to the creation of the defective or dangerous condition, and that the danger, if present at all, had to be obvious to anyone using the pier. The court concluded that when all the circumstances were considered, the accident did not result from a momentary miscalculation or lapse on the part of the human agent against which the city was somehow required to prevent. It simply was not foreseeable that any member of the public would use the facilities in such an abnormal or reckless manner (187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 132) .

Antenor v. City of Los Angeles (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 477, 220 Cal. Rptr. 181 , was an action by pedestrians who were struck by a car while crossing an intersection, Under Gov. Code § 830.2 [see § 196.210[2][d][ii]], a court may determine in the first instance, as a matter of law, that a particular condition is too minor, trivial, or insignificant to be deemed dangerous. The court said that while recognizing that Gov. Code § 830.2 codified a line of decisions involving breaks, depressions, and irregularities in sidewalk surfaces, the Law Revision Commission comment to the statute is instructive on the scope of the section. The comment states as follows: "This section declares a rule that has been applied by the courts in cases involving dangerous conditions of sidewalks. Technically, it is unnecessary, for it merely declares the rule that would be applied in any event when a court rules on the sufficiency of the evidence. It is included in the chapter to emphasize that the courts are required to determine that there is evidence from which a reasonable person could conclude that a substantial, as opposed to possible, risk is involved before they may permit the jury to find that a condition is dangerous" (174 Cal. App. 3d 477, 481) . Quoting Barone v. City of San Jose (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 284, 290-291, 144 Cal. Rptr. 836 , the court said that the correct approach is to determine first if the claimed defect is too trivial, as a matter of law, to be dangerous. An inquiry into this issue is a logical preliminary step before reaching the larger question of whether the nature of the defect, along with other circumstances, is sufficient to raise a jury question concerning notice. This initial inquiry into the question of "dangerousness" would involve consideration of such matters as the size ad location of the defect with respect to the surrounding area and lighting conditions and whether it has been the cause of other accidents, while the question of notice would necessarily involve not only the factors that are primarily related to "dangerousness," but also such matters as the visibility of the condition, the frequency of travel in the area and the probability, if any, that a reasonable inspection by the appropriate public officials would have discovered its existence and its dangerous character (174 Cal. App. 3d 477, 482).

The court, in affirming the judgment for defendant entered on a directed verdict, held that risks, if any, existing at the intersection where pedestrians were struck by a car as they were crossing a city street in an unmarked crosswalk on a winter's evening were as a matter of law of such minor, trivial, or insignificant nature that no reasonable person would conclude that there existed a substantial risk of injury and hence that no dangerous condition existed. The court said that this was so even though an expert testified that a dangerous condition existed because (1) a traffic engineering study, conducted less than 60 days before the accident, showed no necessity for marked crosswalks, stop signs, or signal lights, despite the fact that the lighting was below national standards, and there had been no prior pedestrian versus car accidents at the intersection; (2) pedestrians were seen at a distance of somewhat over one half of 340 feet by an eyewitness; (3) there was no high traffic volume at the time of the accident; and (4) the curvature of the street where the accident occurred was acceptable for stopping sight distances (174 Cal. App. 3d 477, 483-484) .

In Fielder v. City of Glendale (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 719, 139 Cal. Rptr. 876 , an action by a 79-year-old woman who tripped over a raised edge of a segment of a sidewalk and suffered a fractured femur, the court of appeal said that in determining whether a given defect in a city sidewalk is trivial, as a matter of law, the court should not rely merely on the size of the depression; while size may be one of the most relevant factors to the decision, it is not always the sole criterion, and the court should determine whether there existed any circumstances surrounding the accident that might have rendered the defect more dangerous than its mere abstract depth would indicate (71 Cal. App. 3d 719, 734) .

In court, in reversing a judgment for plaintiff, held that the fact that the irregularityin the sidewalk constituted a trivial defect as a matter of law, despite expert testimony by one witness that it was a hazard, was indicated by the evidence that it consisted of about a three-fourths inch difference in the level of the two adjoining slabs of the sidewalk, with no evidence of jagged edges, prior falls by others at the same spot, or other factors that would have allowed reasonable minds to conclude that it was dangerous (71 Cal. App. 3d 719, 732-734) . The court explained that in the first instance it is for the court to determine whether, as a matter of law, a given defect is not dangerous, to guarantee that cities do not become insurers against injuries arising from trivial defects (71 Cal. App. 3d 719, 734) . The court concluded that when a court determines that sufficient evidence has been presented so that reasonable minds may differ about whether the defect is dangerous, the court may not rule that the defect is not dangerous as a matter of law. However, when the only evidence available on the issue of dangerousness does not lead to the conclusion that reasonable minds may differ, then it is proper for the court to find that the defect was trivial as a matter of law (71 Cal. App. 3d 719, 734) .

In Davis v. City of Pasadena (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 701, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 8 , a woman sued a city after she fell while descending steps at a convention center. Although she was not using a handrail at the time of her fall, she had been walking down the stairs parallel to a handrail which rises diagonally to the stairs. Plaintiff attributed her fall to difficulty in walking down stairs at an oblique angle, and contended that having a handrail which met the steps diagonally invited patrons to descend in that way and thus constituted a dangerous condition. The city moved for summary judgment, and the trial court granted the motion, ruling as a matter of law that steps converging at a right angle with a handrail along the line of convergence did not constitute a dangerous condition. The court of appeal noted that the plaintiff's claim that the handrail invited people to use the stairs at that location illustrated that what was involved was not a defective set of steps, but rather a choice to descend them at an angle. The court noted that the stairs could be descended perpendicularly to the steps along nearby handrails, or could be bypassed completely in favor of other available means of entry. Thus, the dangerous condition, as defined by the plaintiff, was the making available of a choice of descending the stairs in the area of the diagonal handrail as an alternative to other routes of descent. The court concluded that this was at most the type of minor, trivial or insignificant risk contemplated by the statutes as not being a dangerous condition. The summary judgment was thus affirmed (42 Cal. App. 4th 701, 705) .

[d] Kind of "Due Care" Required

In Milligan v. Golden Gate Bridge Hwy. & Transp. Dist. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 25 , the plaintiff's 14-year-old daughter committed suicide by climbing over a three-and-a-half foot railing andjumping from the Golden Gate Bridge. The plaintiff sued the bridge district for the death, arguing that the railing was inadequate and constituted a dangerous condition of public property. The trial court sustained a demurrer for the district, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal held that as a matter of law, the bridge district could not be liable for the suicide because, by definition, persons using the bridge to kill themselves were not using the bridge with due care (120 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7) . Although the plaintiff pointed out that the three-and-a-half foot railing could be insufficient to prevent persons from accidentally falling from the bridge under the appropriate circumstances, the court noted that even if this were true, the plaintiff's case would still fail due to the lack of a causal connection between those perceived deficiencies in preventing accidental harm and the intentionally self-inflicted death suffered by the decedent (120 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8-9) .

The facts and procedural background of Fredette v. City of Long Beach (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 231 Cal. Rptr. 598 , are discussed in § 196.210[5][b]. In affirming the judgment for defendant city, the court of appeal said that so long as a plaintiff-user can establish that a condition of the property creates a substantial risk to any foreseeable user of the public property who uses it with due care, he or she has successfully alleged the existence of a dangerous condition regardless of his or her personal lack of due care, but that, if it can be shown that the property is safe when used with due care and that a risk of harm is created only when foreseeable users fail to exercise due care, then such property is not "dangerous" within the meaning of Gov. Code § 830(a) (187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 131) . The court further rejected plaintiff's argument that the principles of comparative negligence applied. The court said that this was not a case of negligence on the part of the city, which allowed a dangerous condition of public property to exist, being compared to its negligent use by plaintiff, nor was it a case in which the foreseeably negligent user was led into a trap. Plaintiff knew of the condition and he alone created the sole risk of injury (187 Cal. App. 3d 122, 133) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
2. Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.211

§ 196.211 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--Public Entity Is Liable Even Though Negligent Act or Omission of Third Party Combined With Dangerous Condition to Cause Plaintiff's Injury

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE THE FACT THAT THE NEGLIGENCE OF A THIRD PARTY COMBINED WITH THE DANGEROUS CONDITION OF THE PUBLIC ENTITY'S PROPERTY TO INFLICT THE INJURY ON PLAINTIFF DOES NOT EXONERATE THE PUBLIC ENTITY FROM LIABILITY WHEN THE INJURY WAS CAUSED IN PART BY A DANGEROUS CONDITION OF THE PUBLIC ENTITY'S PROPERTY.

Third Party's Negligence Does Not Preclude Public Entity's Liability for Injury Caused by Dangerous Condition. If the condition of the public property is dangerous to the public in general, the negligence of a third party that contributes to the plaintiff's injury does not preclude the public entity from liability (Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 718-719, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755 ; Mathews v. State of California ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 116, 120-121, 145 Cal. Rptr. 443).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity is liable for the plaintiff's injuries caused by a dangerous condition of the entity's property even though the concurrent negligence of a third party contributed to the injuries. For the law that applies when the dangerous condition is a third party's use of public property that foreseeably creates a danger of injury to others and is made with the consent of the public entity that knows of the danger, see § 196.212.

These points and authorities may be combined, in an appropriate case, with the general points and authorities set out in § 196.210 or with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.212 -196.214. These points and authorities may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Limits on Liability When Concurrent Negligence of Two or More Tortfeasors Caused Plaintiff's Injuries

On June 3, 1986, after the cases cited and discussed in this form were decided, Proposition 51, the so-called "deep-pockets" initiative, was adopted. It amended Civ. Code § 1431 (relating to joint and several liability) and Civ. Code § 1432 (relating to contribution between obligors on joint or joint and several obligations) and added Civ. Code §§ 1431.1-1431.5. The purpose of the proposition was to limit the liability of a concurrent tortfeasor for "noneconomic damages" (defined in Civ. Code § 1431.2(b)(2)) to his or her percentage of fault. The proposition does this by providing that in any action for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death, based on principles of comparative fault, the liability of each defendant for noneconomic damages shall be several only and shall not be joint, and that each defendant shall be liable only for the amount of noneconomic damages allocated to that defendant in direct proportion to that defendant's percentage of fault, and a separate judgment shall be rendered against the defendant for that amount [Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)]. Consequently, although the public entity would be jointly and severally liable with its concurrent tortfeasor for plaintiff's "economic damages" (defined in Civ. Code § 1431.2(b)(1)), it would be only severally liable for its percentage share of fault for the plaintiff's noneconomic damages.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Third Party's Negligence Does Not Preclude Public Entity's Liability for Injury Caused by Dangerous Condition

In Ducey v. Argo Sales Co. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 707, 159 Cal. Rptr. 835, 602 P.2d 755 , plaintiffs were seriously injured when the driver of a car coming in the opposite direction, in attempting to stop because of a traffic jam, lost control of the car in a centrifugal skid on the pavement, crossed the freeway median area, and collided head-on with their car. The driver of the out-of-control car was killed in the accident. Plaintiffs sued the state of California, the estate of the deceased driver, and others. The cause of action against the state was based on its failure to have installed a median barrier after notice that its failure to install such a barrier created a dangerous condition. The jury rendered a verdict for plaintiff against the state and the deceased driver's estate. On appeal the Supreme Court affirmed. The Court said that the state recognized that if the condition of its property created a substantial risk of injury even when the property was used with due care, the state gained no immunity from liability simply because, in a particular case, the dangerous condition of its property combined with the negligent conduct of a third person to inflict injury (25 Cal. 3d 707 , pp. 718-719).

In Mathews v. State of California ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 116, 145 Cal. Rptr. 443 , plaintiff alleged in effect that she was injured when the car she was driving in a westerly direction was struck broadside by a car being negligently driven in a northerly direction in an intersection at which the traffic control lights were malfunctioning. The east-west lights were stuck on green, indicating "go," and the north-south lights were stuck on red, indicating "stop." Plaintiff further alleged that on the morning of the day of the accident the state was informed several times that the lights were malfunctioning and created a highly dangerous situation at a heavily traveled intersection, but failed to remedy, repair, or correct the malfunction. The court granted the state's motion for judgment on the pleadings on the ground the complaint failed to state a cause of action, and plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal reversed. The Court held that the malfunctioning street lights created a dangerous condition of public property of which the state had notice. It then held that the negligence of the other driver would not preclude the state's liability for the dangerous condition (82 Cal. App. 3d 116, 121-122) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Third Party's Negligence Does Not Preclude Public Entity's Liability for Injury Caused by Dangerous Condition

In Callahan v. City & County of San Francisco (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 696, 57 Cal. Rptr. 639 , plaintiff was a passenger in a car that crashed allegedly because of the dangerous condition of a public street. The driver of plaintiff's car was driving recklessly. The trial court dismissed the complaint after sustaining a general demurrer. The court of appeal reversed. It held that the concurrent negligence of the driver did not exonerate the city from liability for the dangerous condition (249 Cal. App. 2d 696, 701) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Third Party's Negligence Does Not Preclude Public Entity's Liability for Injury Caused by Dangerous Condition

In Zelig v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1112, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709, 45 P.3d 1171 , the plaintiffs were the minor children of a woman who was shot and killed by her ex-husband, the children's father, while the woman and her ex-husband were in a courthouse awaiting a hearing regarding spousal and child support. At least three times prior to the date of the shooting, the decedent had told the bailiff in one department of the family court that she feared her ex-husband and believed he might try toharm or kill her. The decedent had in the past obtained restraining orders that limited her ex-husband's right to carry firearms and prevented him from being within 100 yards of a firearm while in the presence of the decedent or their children. However, although the courthouse had posted notices that firearms were not allowed in the courthouse, the county did not actually search patrons to prevent the carrying of concealed firearms into the building. Therefore, the ex-husband was able to carry a concealed revolver into the courthouse, which he used to shoot the decedent in the chest. The plaintiffs, through their guardians, brought suit against the county and the county sheriff's department, asserting various causes of action and alleging primarily that these defendants failed to provide adequate security against third party violence inside the courthouse. The trial court sustained a demurrer for these defendants, but the court of appeal reversed.

The California Supreme Court granted review, reversed the court of appeal, and upheld the trial court's ruling. In addressing the plaintiff's claim that the defendants were liable for allowing a dangerous condition to exist on public property, the Court first held that Gov. Code § 835 is the sole avenue for imposing liability on a public entity for a dangerous condition on public property and that plaintiffs may not rely on the general negligence principals of Civ. Code § 1714 to impose liability on a public entity landowner, as they could in an action against a private property owner (27 Cal. 4th 1112, 1132) . The Court then reviewed the case law dealing with the liability of a public entity for a dangerous condition of public property in the context of third-party criminal conduct. The Court reaffirmed that liability may only be imposed if there is some physical defect in the property itself and if a causal connection is established between that defect and the injury. In the case of third-party criminal conduct, this requires a causal relationship between the physical defect in the property and the third-party conduct that creates the injury (27 Cal. 4th 1112, 1135-1136) . In this particular case, the Court held that the plaintiffs were unable to show that any physical condition of the courthouse increased the risk of the shooting or otherwise had a causal connection to the shooting. In fact, the Court noted that the risk of injury to the decedent was at least as great outside the courthouse as inside (27 Cal. 4th 1112, 1137) . The failure to adequately screen for firearms being brought into the building was not a physical defect that could support liability under Gov. Code § 835 (27 Cal. 4th 1112, 1137) , and in any event, the defendants were immune under Gov. Code § 845 from liability for failing to provide sufficient security to persons conducting business in a courthouse (27 Cal. 4th 1112, 1144-1146) .

In City of San Diego v. Superior Court (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 21, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26 , one car was trying to make a left turn across two lanes of oncoming traffic when it was struck by another vehicle engaged in a race. The city street on which the race was taking place was straight and relatively flat, although there was little street lighting and the accident occurred in the evening. The plaintiffs, who were in the car that was struck, sued the driver of the other car and the city. The plaintiffs argued that the physical condition of the street should have been altered to make it safer, including the addition of more lighting to make it easier for drivers to see approaching traffic and properly gauge its speed. After reviewing the principles set out by the Supreme Court in Zelig v. County of Los Angeles, the court of appeal held that the flat, straight city street was not physically defective because of inadequate lighting, but that even if it were, there was no evidence that the lack of adequate lighting influenced the other driver to race (137 Cal. App. 4th 21, 31) .

In Turner v. State of California (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 883, 284 Cal. Rptr. 349 , plaintiff, an individual who was shot in the parking lot at Cal Expo, brought a personal injury action against the state and related defendants. The complaint included four causes of action, among them dangerous condition of public property. It alleged that there had been a number of assaults in the parking lot, and that defendants were aware of gang-related violence, but failed to take appropriate steps to protect or warn the public. The court of appeal affirmed the summary judgment granted to defendants by the trial court. The court began by disregarding plaintiff's attempt to claim inadequate lighting as a defective condition of the property because no such allegation had been included in the claim (232 Cal. App. 3d 883, 888) . It then said that liability for a dangerous condition of property cannot be premised on third party conduct alone. Such liability may arise only where third party conduct is coupled with a defective condition of the property. The only dangerous condition alleged in plaintiff's complaint was the existence of ongoing criminal activity and/or gang-related violence. This is not a condition of the property itself and cannot alone support a claim under Gov. Code § 835 (232 Cal. App. 3d 883, 892) .

In Crow v. State of California (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 192, 271 Cal. Rptr. 349 , the court of appeal affirmed summary judgment in a student's tort action against the university that owned a dormitory in which he was assaulted by another student, because of plaintiff's failure to identify any defect in the dormitory that contributed to the injuries he sustained. The court explained that third-party conduct by itself, unrelated to the condition of the property, does not constitute a dangerous condition for which a public entity may be liable (222 Cal. App. 3d 192, 204-206).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
2. Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.212

§ 196.212 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--Public Entity Is Liable Even Though Dangerous Condition Was Negligent Use of Property by Third Party With Knowledge of Public Entity

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE THE FACT THAT THE DANGEROUS CONDITION RESULTED FROM THE NEGLIGENT USE OF THE PROPERTY BY A THIRD PERSON WITH DEFENDANT'S KNOWLEDGE DOES NOT EXONERATE DEFENDANT FROM LIABILITY FORINJURY SUFFERED AS A RESULT OF SUCH USE WHEN IT WAS FORESEEABLE THAT INJURY WAS LIKELY TO RESULT.

A. Dangerous Condition Caused by Use of Property. It is not only structural defects that can create a dangerous condition of property; the dangerous condition may consist of a use of the property in a reasonably foreseeable manner that creates a danger of injury (Quelvog v. City of Long Beach (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 590, 86 Cal. Rptr. 127).

B. Foreseeable Use of Property by Third Person. A public entity is liable for injuries sustained as the result of a dangerous condition of its property when that condition results from the negligent use of the property by third persons and it was reasonably foreseeable to the entity that the property would be so used and that such use created a danger of injury to others (Quelvog v. City of Long Beach (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 590-591, 86 Cal. Rptr. 127).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity is liable for the plaintiff's injuries caused by a dangerous condition of the entity's property that resulted from the use of the property made with the knowledge of the public entity, rather than from a structural defect in the property, and it was foreseeable that the use would result in the kind of injury sustained.

These points and authorities may be combined, in an appropriate case, with the general points and authorities set out in § 196.210 or with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.211, 196.213, and 196.214. These points and authorities may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dangerous Condition Caused by Use of Property

Quelvog v. City of Long Beach (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 86 Cal. Rptr. 127 , was an action against the city by the surviving wife and child of a man who had been killed in a fall from a ladder. The man was engaged in the business of repairing neon signs, and, while he was standing on a ladder some 14 feet above a public sidewalk, on which the foot of the ladder rested, and working on a sign, the ladder was struck by an electrically powered wheelchair or "autoette" that knocked the ladder down and caused the man to fall to his death. Although state law (Veh. Code § 21663) prohibited the use of motor vehicles on public sidewalks, the city not only permitted autoettes to be driven on the city sidewalks, but encouraged such use, constructed special access areas for the vehicles in the curbs of public sidewalks, and instructed its police department that such use was not to be prevented. Plaintiffs alleged that ever since Veh. Code § 21663 was enacted, autoettes have been knocking down pedestrians on the city's sidewalks, causing severe injury and much litigation, and that the city had knowledge of the accidents but still encouraged the continued use of autoettes on its sidewalks. The trial court granted the city's motion for judgment on the pleadings, and plaintiff appealed. The city argued that no dangerous condition of its property as defined in Gov. Code § 830(a) (see § 196.210, Paragraph D) was created or existed, that the sole cause of the accident was the negligence of the driver of the autoette, that the city had done nothing in violation of its duties except to refrain from enforcing Veh. Code § 21663, and that under Gov. Code § 818.2, providing that a public entity is not liable for an injury caused by failing to enforce any law, it incurred no liability for the accidental death (6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 589) .

The court of appeal rejected the city's argument and reversed the judgment on the ground that the complaint sufficiently stated a cause of action against the city for creating and maintaining a dangerous condition (6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 591-592) . The court said it is not only structural defects that can create a dangerous condition; a dangerous condition may consist of a use of property in a reasonably foreseeable manner that creates a danger of injury (6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 590) . The court explained that the city could not justify its conduct on the ground that it was the duty of the operators to use the vehicles with due care and not create a dangerous condition on the sidewalks, if, as alleged, it had knowledge of accidents they had caused in the past and it was reasonably foreseeable there would be more similar accidents (6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 591) . The court said that, on the basis of the allegations of the complaint, it must be presumed that autoettes would not have been operated on the sidewalks if the city had not flouted the state law and encouraged individuals to disobey it. Clearly, it cannot justly claimimmunity from the consequences of its alleged conduct by relying on the fact that it was also failing to enforce state law. Gov. Code § 818.2 excuses the city for failure to enforce laws that are being violated by others but it does not excuse the city for violating its duty, to avoid the creation of conditions that are dangerous to its citizens or the public generally. The city enjoys no immunity for its alleged affirmative actions and must be held responsible for their consequences (6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 591) .

[b] Foreseeable Use of Property by Third Person

Quelvog v. City of Long Beach (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 86 Cal. Rptr. 127 , is discussed in § 196.212[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
2. Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.213

§ 196.213 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--Public Entity Is Liable Even Though Dangerous Condition Was Caused by Condition on Adjacent Property

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE THE FACT THAT THE DANGEROUS CONDITION OF THE DEFENDANT'S PROPERTY WAS CAUSED BY A CONDITION ON ADJACENT PROPERTY DOES NOT EXONERATE THE PUBLIC ENTITY FROM LIABILITY.

Public Entity Liable for Dangerous Condition of Its Property Caused by Condition on Adjacent Property. A dangerous or defective condition may be found to exist on public property sufficient to impose a duty on the public entity to take corrective or protective measures notwithstanding that the danger exists only by reason of a condition on adjacent property (Bonanno v. Central Contra Costa Transit Auth. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 139, 147-151, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 65 P.3d 807 ; Carson v. Facilities Dev. Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 830, 841, 206 Cal. Rptr. 136, 686 P.2d 656).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity is liable for the plaintiff's injuries caused by a dangerous condition of the entity's property even though the dangerous condition was caused by a condition on adjacent property.

These points and authorities may be combined, in an appropriate case, with the general points and authorities set out in § 196.210 or with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.211, 196.212, and 196.214. They may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For discussion of the limitations on the joint and several liability doctrine imposed by Civ. Code § 1431.2 with respect to liability for noneconomic damages, see § 196.211[2][b].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Public Entity Liable for Dangerous Condition of Its Property Caused by Condition on Adjacent Property

In Bonanno v. Central Contra Costa Transit Auth. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 139, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 65 P.3d 807 , the plaintiff was attempting to reach a bus stop by crossing a busy, uncontrolled intersection on a county road, in order to reach a bus stop. A negligent driver rear-ended another car that had stopped at a painted crosswalk to allow the plaintiff to cross, causing the car that had stopped to strike the plaintiff. Prior to this accident, the county transit authority responsible for locating the bus stop at that site had been put on notice through another accident and other complaints that crossing the busy adjacent street to get to the bus stop was hazardous. The plaintiff brought suit against the county, the county transit agency, the negligent driver, and other parties, but following various settlements eventually went to trial only against the county transit agency. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff on her claim based on a dangerous condition of public property and awarded damages. The court of appeal affirmed. The California Supreme Court granted review limitedto the question of whether the location of a bus stop may constitute a dangerous condition of public property because patrons must cross a dangerous crosswalk on adjacent property to reach the stop.

The California Supreme Court answered this question in the affirmative, so long as the other elements for imposing liability under Gov. Code § 835 have been met. The Court noted that the defendant had no control over the adjacent county street, with its uncontrolled intersection, nor could it control the actions of third-party drivers such as the driver who caused the plaintiff's injuries (30 Cal. 4th 139, 151-152) . However, existing law had already established that public property may be considered dangerous if a condition on adjacent property exposes those using the public property to a substantial risk of injury (30 Cal. 4th 139, 148-151) . Equally established was the proposition that a dangerous condition exists if some characteristic of the property exposes users to increased risk of harm from third-party negligence or criminal conduct, as discussed in § 196.211, (30 Cal. 4th 139, 152-153) . Moreover, the defendant was on notice of the dangers involved in reaching that bus stop, and although installing a new stop at another location would have required the approval of the county, the defendant had sole control over whether to remove that bus stop if its location was unnecessarily dangerous (30 Cal. 4th 139, 144-147 & n.2). Under those circumstances, the Court found no reason to reverse the jury's determination that the location of the bus stop constituted a dangerous condition of public property (30 Cal. 4th 139, 156) .

Carson v. Facilities Dev. Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 830, 206 Cal. Rptr. 136, 686 P.2d 656 , was a wrongful death and personal injury action by the surviving husband and children of a driver killed in an auto accident, which also injured the children, at an intersection maintained by a city. The defendants were the city, the development company that had built a condominium complex located near the site of the accident, a homeowners' association that had subsequently purchased the condominium complex from the company, and the driver of the other car. Plaintiffs alleged that the decedent's view of the intersection was obscured by an encroaching address sign, which had been placed by the development company on an adjacent strip of land owned by the city, and some trees located near the sign on the same strip of land. The company had not obtained an encroachment permit to put up the sign on the city's property as was required by city ordinance. The trial court granted defendant city's motion for nonsuit and plaintiffs appealed. In support of its motion for nonsuit, the city asserted that even if the sign created a dangerous condition, the city was not statutorily liable because it did not erect the sign.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court rejected the city's assertion that it could not be held liable because it did not erect the sign. The Court said that under Gov. Code § 835 one of the elements necessary to establish liability of a public entity is that the dangerous condition be of its property and that, under the definition of property of a public entity or public property in Gov. Code § 830(c), easements, encroachments, and other property located on the property of the public entity but not owned or controlled by the entity are not included (36 Cal. 3d 830, 840) . The Court held, however, that ownership of the sign was irrelevant to the city's liability, since the property at issue was not the sign but the intersection that was rendered dangerous by the erection of the sign, and that the property of a public entity may be considered dangerous if a condition on adjacent property exposes those using the public property to substantial risk of injury (36 Cal. 3d 830, 840-841) . The Court distinguished Mark v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 170, 101 Cal. Rptr. 908, 496 P.2d 1276 , in which the Court had held that a public entity was not liable for the electrocution of the decedent by a street lamp that was located on public property but owned and maintained by a utility company. The Court said that in Mark the street lamp itself constituted the allegedly dangerous condition, whereas, in the case before it, the sign was not in a dangerous condition, but its location rendered the defendant's intersection dangerous, and that ownership and control of the intersection, not the sign, was the basis of the city's liability (36 Cal. 3d 830, 841-842) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Public Entity Liable for Dangerous Condition of Its Property Caused by Condition on Adjacent Property

In Joyce v. Simi Valley Unified Sch. Dist. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 292, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 712 , the plaintiff, a junior high school student, was struck by a car while attempting to cross a busy four-lane street adjacent to her school. The crosswalk she used was marked, but it had no lights or stop signs. The plaintiff sued the school district, arguing that the placement of a school entrance gate adjacent to the dangerous crosswalk constituted a dangerous condition on the school property under Gov. Code § 830 and Gov. Code § 835. The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal, citing the California Supreme Court's opinion in Bonanno v. Central Contra Costa Transit Auth. (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 139, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 65 P.3d 807 [see § 196.213[3][a]], agreed that the school district could be liable to the plaintiff for the placement of the entrance gate next to a crosswalk at an intersection that the district knew to be dangerous. The placement of that particular gate encouraged students to cross at that crosswalk even though the district was aware both that the crosswalk was at a heavily-traveled intersection that had no lights and that the city had recently raised the speed limit on that street (110 Cal. App. 4th 292, 298-300) .

In Jordan v. City of Long Beach (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 878, 95 Cal. Rptr. 246 , plaintiff was injured while walking down a city-maintained sidewalkwhen she fell because of a hole in the pavement and a protruding water pipe that were situated on private property immediately adjacent to the property line between the portion of the pavement on city property and that which extended onto the adjoining private property. The trial court granted the city a summary judgment based on proof that the conditions were on private property. The court of appeal reversed. The court held that a dangerous or defective condition may be found to exist on public property sufficient to impose a duty on the public entity to take corrective or protective measures notwithstanding that the danger exists only by reason of a condition existing on adjacent privately owned property (17 Cal. App. 3d 878, 883) . The court concluded that there existed triable issues of fact about whether there was a dangerous condition of public property and this required that the summary judgment be reversed (17 Cal. App. 3d 878, 881) .

In De La Rosa v. City of San Bernardino (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 739, 94 Cal. Rptr. 175 , plaintiff was injured when he ran a stop sign and collided with another car. The complaint was based on a dangerous condition of public property in that the stop sign could not be seen at night because of its placement and the fact that it was obscured by foliage growing on adjacent private property. The trial court granted a directed verdict for defendant. The court of appeal reversed. The court held that the condition of public property can be dangerous when the condition of adjacent property exposes persons using public property to a substantial risk of harm (16 Cal. App. 3d 739, 746) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
2. Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.214

§ 196.214 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Dangerous Condition of Public Property [Gov. Code § 835]--Public Entity Is Liable for Natural Condition of Its Unimproved Property That Injures Adjacent Property or Persons on Adjacent Property

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE, EXCEPT WHEN THE INJURY RESULTS FROM A LAND FAILURE CAUSED BY A NATURAL CONDITION OF THE PROPERTY, A PUBLIC ENTITY IS NOT IMMUNE FROM LIABILITY FOR AN INJURY CAUSED BY A NATURAL CONDITION OF ITS UNIMPROVED PROPERTY WHEN THE INJURY WAS TO ADJACENT PROPERTY OR TO A PERSON ON ADJACENT PROPERTY.

Liability for Injury to Adjacent Property or Person on Adjacent Property Caused by Natural Condition of Public Entity's Unimproved Property. Although Section 831.2 of the Government Code provides that a public entity is not liable for injury caused by a natural condition of unimproved public property, the public entity is liable when the natural condition injures adjacent property or a person on adjacent property (Milligan v. City of Laguna Beach (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 829, 834-835, 196 Cal. Rptr. 38, 670 P.2d 1121).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a public entity's immunity for injuries resulting from a natural condition on unimproved public property under Gov. Code § 831.2 does not insulate it from liability for injury caused by the dangerous condition of its property to adjacent property or to a person on adjacent property, as opposed to a user of the unimproved public property. For the immunity to liability of a public entity and its employees for damage or injury to property or for emotional distress off the public entity's unimproved property as the result of land failure caused by a natural condition of the property, see Gov. Code § 831.25, discussed in § 196.12[5][c].

These points and authorities may be combined, in an appropriate case, with the general points and authorities set out in § 196.210 or with the additional points and authorities set out in §§ 196.211 -196.213. These points and authorities may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability for Injury to Adjacent Property or Person on Adjacent Property Caused by Natural Condition of Public Entity's Unimproved Property

In Milligan v. City of Laguna Beach (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 829, 196 Cal. Rptr. 38, 670 P.2d 1121 , plaintiffs sued to recover damages for injury to property and for emotional distress suffered as a result of the fall of several eucalyptus trees growing on unimproved property owned by defendant city. The complaint alleged that the trees constituted a dangerous condition under Gov. Code § 835. Plaintiffs' residence, which was damaged by the fallen trees, was on property adjacent to defendant's property. The trial court entered judgment for defendant on the ground that Gov. Code § 831.2 immunized defendant from liability under Gov. Code § 835 caused by a natural condition of unimproved land, and plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that the natural condition immunity of Gov. Code § 831.2 did not apply when the injury is to adjacent property or to persons on adjacent property (34 Cal. 3d 829, 834) . In reaching its conclusion, the Court relied on comments to the California Tort Claims Act adopted by the Senate Committee on the Judiciary and the Assembly Committee on Ways and Means, which stated in regard to Gov. Code § 831.2 that the intent of the immunity was to encourage public entities to permit public access to unimproved land without the risk of lawsuits based on dangerous condition liability (34 Cal. 3d 829, 833) . The Court held that plaintiffs were not within the intended scope of the immunity because they did not use the public property, and the immunity did not apply to nonusers (34 Cal. 3d 829, 834) . In view of its holding that Gov. Code § 831.2 did not apply, the Court did not reach the question of whether the trees constituted a natural condition (34 Cal. 3d 829, 835) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
2. Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.215-196.229

[Reserved]

§§ 196.215[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
3. Liability Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.230

§ 196.230 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Public Entity to Warn of Known Criminal Activity on Public Property

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY BECAUSE IT OWED PLAINTIFF NO DUTY TO PROTECT HIM/HER FROM THE CRIMINAL ACT OF A THIRD PARTY ON ITS PROPERTY _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT (1) DEFENDANT MAINTAINED ITS PROPERTY IN A DANGEROUS CONDITION IN SUCH A WAY AS TO INCREASE THE RISK OF CRIMINAL ACTIVITY; (2) CRIMINAL CONDUCT OF WHICH DEFENDANT HAD KNOWLEDGE HAD TAKEN PLACE ON ITS PROPERTY; (3) A SPECIAL RELATIONSHIP EXISTED BETWEEN DEFENDANT AS POSSESSOR OF THE PREMISES AND PLAINTIFF AS INVITEE; (4) AS A RESULT OF THAT RELATIONSHIP, DEFENDANT OWED PLAINTIFF THE DUTY TO WARN HIM/HER OF THE KNOWN CRIMINAL CONDUCT ON ITS PROPERTY; (5) DEFENDANT BREACHED THAT DUTY BY FAILING TO WARN PLAINTIFF OF THAT CONDUCT OR TO TAKE ANY OTHER PROTECTIVE MEASURES WITH RESPECT TO ITS PROPERTY; AND (6) AS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF THE DANGEROUS CONDITION OF THE PROPERTY, TOGETHER WITH THE CRIMINAL ACT OF A THIRD PARTY, PLAINTIFF WAS INJURED.

A. Factors to Consider in Determining Duty. In considering whether one owes another a duty of care, factors that must be weighed include the following: (1) the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff, (2) the degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury, (3) the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered, (4) the moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct, (5) the policy of preventing future harm, (6) the extent of the burden to the defendant and the consequences to thecommunity of imposing a duty to exercise care with resulting liability for breach, and (7) the availability, cost, and prevalence of insurance for the risk involved. When public agencies are involved, additional elements include the extent of the agency's powers, the role imposed on it by law, and the limitations imposed on it by budget (Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 806, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 ; Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 203, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894).

B. Duty to Protect Person From Misconduct of Third Person. Although generally, under common law, one has no duty to control the conduct of another and no duty to warn those who may be endangered by such conduct, a duty may nevertheless arise when (1) a special relationship exists between the actor and the third person that imposes a duty on the actor to control the third person's conduct or (2) a special relationship exists between the actor and the other that gives the other a right to protection (Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 806, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 ; Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 203, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894).

C. Special Relationship Between Possessor of Land and Invitee. Among the commonly recognized special relationships is the one between a possessor of land and members of the public who enter in response to the landowner's invitation. Liability will normally be imposed in circumstances when the possessor had reasonable cause to anticipate the misconduct of third persons (Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 806, 807, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193).

D. Applicability of General Tort Law to Government Tort Liability. Although the liability of a public entity under the California Tort Claims Act is statutory, the conceptual theory of that liability is keyed to the common law of negligence and damages (Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 809, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193).

E. Liability of Public Entity for Dangerous Condition of Its Property. Except as provided by statute, a public entity is liable for injury caused by a dangerous condition of its property if the plaintiff establishes that the property was in a dangerous condition at the time of the injury, that the injury was proximately caused by the dangerous condition, that the dangerous condition created a reasonably foreseeable risk of the kind of injury that was incurred and that either (a) a negligent or wrongful act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of his or her employment created the dangerous condition; or (b) the public entity had actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition under Section 835.2 of the Government Code a sufficient time prior to the injury to have taken measures to protect against the dangerous condition (Gov. Code § 835).

F. "Actual Notice" Defined. [See § 196.210, Paragraph F.]

G. "Constructive Notice" Defined. [See § 196.210, Paragraph G.]

H. "Protect Against" Defined. [See § 196.210, Paragraph H.]

I. Liability of Public Entity for Criminal Act of Third Party. A cause of action for damages sustained as a result of a criminal assault, the risk of which was increased by the dangerous condition of the entity's property, is stated or established under Gov. Code § 835 by a person to whom the public entity owed a duty of due care by reason of a special relationship between them when the entity, being aware of the condition, failed to take reasonable protective measures, including the providing of safeguards against the dangerous condition or warning plaintiff of the danger, and the plaintiff suffers injury as a result (Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 812-814, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193).

[Optional] J. Determination of Whether Condition Is Dangerous. Whether a given set of facts and circumstances creates a dangerous condition is usually a question of fact and may only be resolved as a question of law if reasonable minds can come to but one conclusion (Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 810, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of the contention that a public entity is liable for injuries sustained by a plaintiff as the victim of a criminal assault on the entity's property when, by virtue of a special relationship between it and the plaintiff, the entity was under a duty to exercise due care to protect plaintiff from and/or to warn plaintiff of the danger created by the condition of its property, which increased the risk of criminal activity of which the public entity had knowledge, and did neither.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For the liability of a psychotherapist and his or her public entity employer for failure to warn a victim of a patient's threat to kill her, see the discussion of Tarasoff v. Regents of University of California [Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334] in Ch. 165, Negligence.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Factors to Consider in Determining Duty

In Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 , plaintiff, a community college student, sued the college district under the California Tort Claims Act for damages for injuries sustained as a result of an attempted daylight rape in the parking lot area of a college campus. The complaint set forth two causes of action. In the first, plaintiff alleged that, by virtue of a special relationship between defendant district and herself, the defendants had a duty to protect her and/or to warn her of danger, and in the second cause of action, which incorporated the provisions of her first cause of action, she alleged liability under Gov. Code § 835 (see Paragraph E of this form) for maintaining a dangerous condition of property that together with the criminal act of a third party caused her injuries. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrer to plaintiff's first amended complaint without leave to amend, and entered a judgment of dismissal. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that plaintiff's first cause of action alleged facts that were sufficient to establish a common law duty of care, but were inadequate to state a cause of action against a public entity for failure to provide adequate police protection [see Gov. Code § 845] (36 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 815) , but that plaintiff's second cause of action, by incorporating by reference the allegations in the first cause of action and by pleading the elements of Gov. Code § 835 (see Paragraph E of form), did successfully state a cause of action against the defendant (36 Cal. 3d 799, 815) . The Court also rejected defendant's contention that it was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 820.2 (discretionary decisions) (36 Cal. 3d 799, 815) . The Court said the primary question before it was whether under the facts alleged the defendants owed plaintiff a duty of due care (36 Cal. 3d 799, 805) . The Court said that in considering whether one owes another a duty of care, several factors must be weighed including, among others, (1) the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff, (2) the degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury, (3) the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered, (4) the moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct, (5) the policy of preventing future harm, (6) the extent of the burden to the defendant and the consequences to the community of imposing a duty to exercise care with resulting liability for breach, and (7) the availability, cost, and prevalence of insurance for the risk involved. Additional factors to be weighed, when public agencies are involved, include the extent of the agency's powers, the role imposed on it by law, and the limitations imposed on it by budget (36 Cal. 3d 799, 806) .

In Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 , an action for damages against a city by a woman who had been stabbed in a public laundromat that was under police surveillance, the Supreme Court, although it held that no special relationship was created under the facts of the case between the woman and city police officers, so that there was no duty on the part of the police to the plaintiff, said that in determining the existence of a duty of care in a given case, there are a number of pertinent factors to consider. These factors include (1) the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff, (2) the degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury, (3) the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered, (4) the moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct, (5) the policy of preventing future harm, (6) the extent of the burden to the defendant and the consequences to the community of imposing a duty to exercise care with resulting liability for breach, and (7) the availability, cost, and prevalence of insurance for the risk involved. When public agencies are involved, additional elements include the extent of the agency's powers, the role imposed on it by law, and the limitations imposed on it by budget (32 Cal. 3d 197, 203) .

[b] Duty to Protect Person From Misconduct of Third Person

The facts and procedural background of Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 , are discussed in § 196.230[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court, citing Restatement (Second) of Torts § 315,said that as a general rule one has no duty to control the conduct of another, and no duty to warn those who may be endangered by such conduct, but that a duty may arise when (1) a special relationship exists between the actor and the third person that imposes a duty on the actor to control the third person's conduct, or (2) a special relationship exists between the actor and the other that gives the other a right to protection (36 Cal. 3d 799, 806) .

In Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 , an action for damages against a city by a woman who had been stabbed in a public laundromat that was under police surveillance, the Supreme Court, although it held that no special relationship was created under the facts of the case between the woman and city police officers, so that there was no duty on the part of the police to the plaintiff, said that, as a general rule, one owes no duty to control the conduct of another, nor to warn those endangered by such conduct, but that such a duty may arise if (1) a special relationship exists between the actor and the third person that imposes a duty on the actor to control the third person's conduct, or (2) a special relationship exists between the actor and the other that gives the other a right to protection (32 Cal. 3d 197, 203) .

[c] Special Relationship Between Possessor of Land and Invitee

The facts and procedural background of Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 , are discussed in § 196.230[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court said that among the commonly recognized special relationships is the one between a possessor of land and members of the public who enter in response to the landowner's invitation (36 Cal. 3d 799, 806) . Citing Civ. Code § 1714 and Gomez v. Ticor (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 622, 628, 193 Cal. Rptr. 600 , the Court said that there was no question that if the defendant district were a private landowner operating a parking lot on its premises it would owe plaintiff a duty to exercise due care for her protection (36 Cal. 3d 799, 807) ; and that it has long been recognized that a possessor of land who holds it open to the public for entry for business purposes is subject to liability to members of the public while they are on the land for such a purpose, for physical harm caused by the accidental, negligent, or intentionally harmful acts of third persons and by the failure of the possessor to exercise reasonable care (2) to give a warning adequate to enable the visitors to avoid the harm, or otherwise to protect them against it [see Restatement (Second) of Torts § 344]. The Court added that liability will normally be imposed in circumstances in which the possessor has reasonable cause to anticipate the misconduct of third persons (36 Cal. 3d 799, 807) . Thus, the fact that plaintiff's injuries were caused by a third party would not absolve the defendant of liability. If the realizable likelihood that a third person may act in a particular manner is the hazard or one of the hazards that makes the actor negligent, such an act whether innocent, negligent, or intentionally tortious or criminal does not prevent the actor from being liable for harm caused by it (36 Cal. 3d 799, 808) .

[d] Applicability of General Tort Law to Government Tort Liability

The facts and procedural background of Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 , are discussed in § 196.230[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court said that under the circumstances of the case, plaintiff, an enrolled student using the parking lot in exchange for a fee, was an invitee to whom the possessor of the premises would ordinarily owe a duty of due care, but that the question remained whether the provisions of the Tort Claims Act precluded the imposition of such a duty on the defendant under the circumstances of the case (36 Cal. 3d 799, 808-809) . The Court, turning to the Tort Claims Act, noted initially that public entity liability is statutory in nature (see Gov. Code § 815), but that its provisions are to be read against the background of general tort law, and that the conceptual theory of statutory liability under the act is keyed to the common law of negligence and damages (36 Cal. 3d 799, 809) . Quoting Low v. City of Sacramento (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 826, 831, 87 Cal. Rptr. 173 , the Court said that the exclusive sway of statutory rules does not foreclose the aid of common-law tort doctrines and analogies in ascertaining and achieving imperfectly expressed statutory objectives (36 Cal. 3d 799, 809) . The Court concluded that an examination of the pertinent doctrines and analogies [see § 196.230[3][a]] compelled the conclusion that the defendant did in fact owe the plaintiff a duty of due care (36 Cal. 3d 799, 814) .

[e] Liability of Public Entity for Criminal Act of Third Party

The facts and procedural background of Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 , are discussed in § 196.230[3][a]. Plaintiff had alleged that the property was in a dangerous condition because the thick untrimmed foliage and trees around the parking lot and stairway permitted the assailant to perpetrate his crime; she further alleged that defendants were aware of the condition and failed to take reasonable protective measures, including trimming the foliage or warning of the danger, and that defendant created a reasonably foreseeable risk that she and others using the stairway would be injured (36 Cal. 3d 799, 812) .

In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court noted that although cases have held that a third party's conduct by itself, unrelated to the conditions of the property, does not constitute a dangerous condition for which a public entity may be held liable, Gov. Code § 835 does not specifically preclude a finding that a public entity may be under a duty, given special circumstances, to protect against harmful criminal conduct on its property (36 Cal. 3d 799, 810-811) . The Court said that intervening criminal conduct cannot absolve the defendant of liability when the plaintiff alleges that defendant maintained its property in such a way so as to increase the risk of criminal activity (36 Cal. 3d 799, 812) , and that the risk of assault was reasonably foreseeable, since defendant was aware of the occurrence of other, similar assaults in the parking area but did nothing to either publicize them or warn plaintiff of their occurrence (36 Cal. 3d 799, 814) . The Court noted that policy factors militating against imposing a governmental duty to warn in prior cases were inapplicable to the case in question. In the closed environment of a school campus where students pay tuition and fees in exchange for using the facilities, where they spend significant portions of their time and may in fact live, they can reasonably expect the premises to be free from physical defects and that school authorities will exercise reasonable care to keep the campus free from conditions that increase the risk of crime. The warnings sought in this case would not result in preventing students from using the campus, but only in alerting them to unknown dangers and encouraging them to exercise more caution (36 Cal. 3d 799, 813-814) . The Court concluded that the district had a duty to exercise due care to protect students from reasonably foreseeable assaults on the campus (36 Cal. 3d 799, 814) ; and that, in light of the relationship between plaintiff and defendants as well as the facts known to the defendants, plaintiff hd stated a cause of action under the Tort Claims At (36 Cal. 3d 799, 812-813) .

[f] Determination of Whether Condition Is Dangerous

The facts and procedural background of Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193 , are discussed in § 196.230[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Supreme Court said that, in general, whether a given set of facts and circumstances creates a dangerous condition is usually a question of fact and may only be resolved as a question of law if reasonable minds can come to but one conclusion (36 Cal. 3d 799, 810) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
3. Liability Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.231

§ 196.231 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Public Entity or Employee to Warn of Peril Created by Entity and Not Readily Discoverable by Others

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY BECAUSE IT OWED PLAINTIFF NO DUTY _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT DEFENDANT CREATED A FORESEEABLE PERIL TO PLAINTIFF, THAT THE PERIL WAS NOT READILY DISCOVERABLE BY PLAINTIFF, AND THAT, AS A CONSEQUENCE, DEFENDANT OWED PLAINTIFF THE DUTY TO WARN HIM/HER OF THAT PERIL.

A. Duty of Public Entity to Warn of Foreseeable Peril Created by It. A public entity that creates a foreseeable peril, not readily discoverable by endangered persons, has the duty to warn the endangered persons of the potential peril and is liable to an endangered person who is injured as a result of the breach of that duty (Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 786, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352).

[Optional] B. Duty of State When Placing Juvenile Parolee in Foster Home. In placing a teenage parolee in a foster home, the state owes a duty to warn the foster parents of any latent, dangerous qualities suggested by the parolee's history or character; at a minimum, the duty to warn requires disclosure to the foster parents of any homicidal tendencies the youth may have, any background of violence and cruelty, and the youth's criminal record (Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 785-786, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352).

[Optional] C. Special Relationship Not Required. The duty to warn of the peril does not require that a special relationship exist between the victim of the peril and the public entity or employee that created the peril (Bastian v.

County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 529, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of the contention that, when a public entity creates a foreseeable peril not readily discoverable by the persons endangered by the peril, that entity by reason of this special circumstance has the duty to warn the endangered persons of the peril and is liable for injuries sustained by an endangered person as a result of the breach of that duty.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty of Public Entity to Warn of Foreseeable Peril Created by It

Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352 , was an action by a foster mother against the state of California for damages for injuries suffered when assaulted by a 16-year-old youth with homicidal tendencies and a background of violence and cruelty towards both animals and humans, who had been placed in plaintiff's home by the California Youth Authority without any notice of the boy's dangerous propensities, even though defendant knew of them. The state moved for summary judgment on the ground, among others, that it owed no duty to plaintiff. The motion was granted and plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court, citing several cases, said that these cases impose a duty on those who create a foreseeable peril, not readily discoverable by endangered persons, to warn them of the potential peril (69 Cal. 2d 782, 786) . The Court further rejected the contention that the state was immune from liability by reason of specified statutory immunities (69 Cal. 2d 782, 786-800) .

NOTE:

The Court pointed out in Johnson that the duty to warn may be subject to some qualification, for example, in cases in which sufficiently important policy objectives, achievable only by silence, outweigh the obvious interest in cautioning persons exposed to danger, but that it didn't have to dwell on the question at length because the state offered no such justification for its failure to warn plaintiff [Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 786 n.2, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352] . In a subsequent case, the Supreme Court said that Johnson, stripped of its immunity issue, was a straightforward case of liability based on failure to warn of a foreseeable peril created by the defendant and not readily discoverable by the potential victim [Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 208, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894] .

[b] Duty of State When Placing Juvenile Parolee in Foster Home

The facts and procedural background of Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447

P.2d 352 , are discussed in § 196.231[3][a]. In reversing the summary judgment, the Supreme Court said that as the party placing the youth with the plaintiff, the state had a relationship to the plaintiff that was such that its duty extended to warning of latent, dangerous qualities suggested by the parolee's history or character (69 Cal. 2d 782, 785) . Accordingly, the state owed a duty to inform plaintiff of any matter that its agents knew or should have known that might endanger plaintiff's family and that, at a minimum, these facts certainly would have included the youth's homicidal tendencies and background of violence and cruelty, as well as his criminal record (69 Cal. 2d 782, 786) . The Court said that this was a classic case for the imposition of tort liability. Defendant failed to warn plaintiff of a foreseeable, latent danger, and this failure led to plaintiff's injury from precisely the expected source. The loss falls peculiarly on plaintiff, who, having no administrative recourse, must achieve vindication in litigation or none at all (69 Cal. 2d 782, 797) . The Court explained that since the entire populace of California benefits from the activity of the Youth Authority, it should also share equally the burden of injuries negligently inflicted on individual citizens, and that suits against the state provide a fair and efficient means to distribute these losses (69 Cal. 2d 782, 797-798) .

[c] Special Relationship Not Required

The facts and procedural background of Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 , are discussed in § 196.60[3][a]. In reversing the judgment on the negligence cause of action, the court rejected the county's argument that in order for the deputy sheriffto owe a duty to plaintiff there had to be a special relationship between the two (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 529, 531) . The court said that the deputy sheriff created a peril by placing the vodka bottle alongside the victim's body and that, by this act, he had a duty to warn plaintiff that the accident scene plaintiff was photographing was contrived. The court noted that plaintiff had alleged that it was reasonably foreseeable to the deputy sheriff that publication of a photograph of the victim's body with the vodka bottle deliberately placed next to it would injure plaintiff's reputation and employment status and would subject him to possible civil liability to the victims' survivors and held that this was a question that the jury may decide (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 529-530) . The court said that one who creates a foreseeable danger not readily discoverable by the endangered persons has the duty to warn them of the potential peril. The court added that in this situation, a special relationship is not required to impose the duty (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 530) . The court further held that the trial court erred in finding that the defendants were immunized from liability by Gov. Code §§ 818.8 and 822.2 (relating to immunity for misrepresentations) (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 532-533) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
3. Liability Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.232

§ 196.232 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Public Entity or Employee to Private Citizen Asked to Perform Public Function Involving Foreseeable Risk of Injury

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY BECAUSE IT OWED NO DUTY TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT (1) _____ [name], AN EMPLOYEE OF DEFENDANT ACTING IN THE SCOPE OF HIS/HER EMPLOYMENT, REQUESTED PLAINTIFF TO _____ [specify public function to be performed]; (2) THIS FUNCTION WAS PART OF THE EMPLOYEE'S OFFICIAL DUTIES AND INVOLVED A FORESEEABLE RISK OF INJURY TO PLAINTIFF; AND (3) PLAINTIFF'S COMPLIANCE WITH THAT REQUEST, AS A RESULT OF WHICH A SPECIAL RELATIONSHIP WAS CREATED IMPOSING ON _____ [name of employee], AND THROUGH HIM/HER, ON DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity], THE DUTY TO EXERCISE DUE CARE TO PREVENT INJURY TO PLAINTIFF.

A. When Special Relationship Exists. A special relationship exists when a public officer assumes a duty toward the person injured that is greater than the duty owed to another member of the public (Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1398, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146).

B. Creation of Special Relationship by Asking Private Citizen to Perform Public Function. By requesting the assistance of a private citizen in the performance of a dangerous task that is a part of the public employee's official duties and that is for the benefit of the general public, a public employee creates a special relationship with the private citizen and owes that citizen the duty to exercise due care to prevent his or her injury (Carpenter v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 923, 931-934, 281 Cal. Rptr. 500 ; Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1401-1404, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146).

C. Liability of Public Entity. [See § 196.180, Paragraph A.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of the contentions that, by virtue of a special relationship between an employee of the public entity and the plaintiff, created by the employee's requesting the plaintiff to perform a public function involving a foreseeable risk of injury that was a part of the employee's official duties and for the benefit of the general public, the employee was under a duty to exercise due care to prevent injury to the plaintiff, and the public entity is liable for injuries sustained by plaintiff as a result of its employee's breach of that duty.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Special Relationship Exists

Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146 , was an action against the county by plaintiff, whose thumb was bitten off by a dog he'd captured, pursuant to the request of a county animal control officer. Plaintiff alleged that the officer had failed to give him proper equipment and support and otherwise had failed to exercise due care in connection with his attempt to capture the dog. The trial court granted the county's motion for summary judgment on the ground, among others, that there was no special relationship of reliance on the officer that would give rise to a cause of action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed on the ground that a triable issue existed in regard to whether the officer, and through her the county, owed a duty of due care toward plaintiff (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1404) . Citing Restatement (Second) of Torts § 314, the court acknowledged that private citizens ordinarily do not owe an affirmative duty to save their fellow citizens from harm unless they personally created the risk, but that in a very real sense the general public pays public employees specifically for the purpose of having them assume an affirmative duty to aid everyone in that general public and that, if ordinary standards applied, public employees might be held responsible in tort for every injury suffered by every member of society every time a public employee negligently failed to do something that could have prevented harm. The court said that this concept of duty might expose public employees and especially the public treasury to intolerable financial burdens, and that to avoid this possibility, most jurisdictions required something extra before public employees owe a duty in tort to do something to prevent injury to any member of the general public (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1398) . The court explained that in California this concern is addressed by requiring a "special relationship" between the public employee and a specific private citizen before a duty is created, and that a special relationship exists if and only if an injured person demonstrates that the public officer assumed a duty toward him or her greater than the duty owned to another member of the public (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1398) .

[b] Creation of Special Relationship by Asking Private Citizen to Perform Public Function

In Carpenter v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 923, 281 Cal. Rptr. 500 , plaintiff had been shot while making a night deposit of theater receipts. He cooperated with the police investigation and testified at the preliminary hearing. When plaintiff became concerned for his safety, he was assured by the police detective that he had nothing to worry about. Before the trial, the police received from a reliable informant specific information that plaintiff's life was in danger because the robbery defendant had taken out a contract on plaintiff's life. The police never warned plaintiff, who was shot by an unknown assailant two months later, and then placed in a witness protection program. Plaintiff sued defendant city for damages suffered when he was shot by the unknown assailant. The trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court concluded that plaintiff, as a witness in a criminal prosecution who had been assured that the robbery defendant posed no real danger to him, enjoyed a special relationship with the city, through its police department, sufficient to impose on the city a duty of care, which required it to warn him about the defendant's subsequent threat to his life (230 Cal. App. 3d 923, 931) . The court distinguished the case from previous cases that narrowly circumscribed the liability of a public entity based on police failure to act reasonably in protecting members of the public, characterizing those cases as involving a member of the general public, seeking assistance from an officer within the ambit of the officer's normal course of duty. Plaintiff was a witness who had been asked to assist in a felony prosecution (230 Cal. App. 3d 923, 931-932) . The court cited Walker, discussed below, and its emphasis on the benefit society derived from a citizen who, on request, assisted a public employee in the performance of the employee's public function. It said the societal benefit derived in this case is of even greater importance. Criminal prosecution would utterly cease without the assistance of witnesses (230 Cal. App. 3d 923, 933) . The court observed that the police specifically requested and needed plaintiff's assistance in order to prosecute the robbery case. It was of little consequence that plaintiff did not request or seek police protection. The court said the duty arises because the police, after assuring plaintiff that the defendant posed no real danger, received reliable information that plaintiff's life was in danger, but failed to warn him. The court concluded that considerations of policy mandate a finding that the police owed plaintiff a duty of care. Reasonable care required that the police, after lulling plaintiff into a false sense of security, inform him of the threat. As evidenced by the Witness Protection Program, the city already recognized its duty to protect certain witnesses (230 Cal. App. 3d 923, 933-934) . The court found that there were no statutory immunities that barred the action (230 Cal. App. 3d 923, 934-935) .

The facts and procedural background of Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146 , are discussed in § 196.232[3][a]. In reversing the summary judgment for the county, the court held that a public employee creates a special relationship with a private citizen by asking that citizen to perform a public function that involves a foreseeable risk of injury, and that by creating the special relationship the public employee owes a duty of due care toward the privatecitizen (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1395, 1401-1404) . The court said that it was difficult to imagine a situation in which a public employee has affirmatively created a more direct special relationship or has taken on a more obvious special duty to protect than by expressly requesting a specific private citizen to perform all or part of the employee's public function, especially when this public function involves a foreseeable risk of substantial harm (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1401) . The court further pointed out that the control officer had gone to the citizen's home and asked him to help capture the stray animal the trained professional animal control officer had been unable to capture, and that this was enough to create a special relationship from which flowed a duty to minimize any foreseeable risk of harm to the private citizen (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1402-1403) . The court added that the case fell within the ambit of Restatement (Second) of Torts § 321, providing that if the actor does an act, and subsequently realizes or should realize that it has created an unreasonable risk of causing physical harm to another, the actor is under a duty to exercise reasonable care to prevent that risk from taking effect. The court said that the officer's act was asking plaintiff to capture the wild dog, that she knew or should have known this created an unreasonable risk of causing physical harm to plaintiff, and that the officer was thus under a duty to exercise reasonable care to prevent this risk from taking effect (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1404) .

The court noted that the criteria for the existence of a duty [see § 196.230, Paragraph A] had been met (192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 1402 n.6).

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Creation of Special Relationship by Asking Private Citizen to Perform Public Function

In Hernandez v. City of Pomona (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1492, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406 , plaintiff sued a County, a City and individual police officers for the wrongful death of her son, who was killed by fellow gang members after implicating one of the gang members in a murder. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers without leave to amend and dismissed plaintiff's complaint. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's ruling that, under the circumstances alleged by plaintiff, defendants owed no duty to protect plaintiff's deceased son from retaliation by fellow gang members against whom he provided incriminating evidence (49 Cal. App. 4th 1492, 1495) . Plaintiff argued that a special relationship existed between the defendants and her son which gave rise to their duty to protect him. She offered two bases for this special relationship: (1) that according to the authority in Wallace v. City of Los Angeles (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1385, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113 and Carpenter v. City of Los Angeles (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 923, 281 Cal. Rptr. 500 , police officers assurances to her son that no harm would come to him by giving a statement, obligated the officers to protect him; and (2) that pursuant to Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1393, 238 Cal. Rptr. 146 , defendants were obligated to protect her son because defendants solicited his assistance in prosecuting the underlying murder case. The court rejected both of these bases. As to the first, the court distinguished both cases as involving a duty to warn as opposed to a duty to protect. To impose this duty, which required the commitment of substantially greater resources than the former, would, according to the court, require both careful consideration and an explicit and well defined commitment to do so. The court ruled that although given ample opportunity to amend her complaint, plaintiff failed to allege that the officer's assurances amounted to such a commitment. As to the duty to assist basis, the court found that there was a great difference between a citizen's role in assisting an animal control officer, as was the case in Walker, and a citizen's role in assisting in a criminal prosecution. While the plaintiff in Walker was asked to assist the officer and agreed, he had no duty to do so; whereas a citizen has a duty to assist law enforcement in the prosecution of crimes. According to the court, in a world of budgetary constraints and limited resources, the duty on the part of citizens to assist in criminal prosecution did not give rise to a right to protection on demand (49 Cal. App. 4th 1492, 1504) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
3. Liability Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.233

§ 196.233 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of California Highway Patrol Officer Investigating Plight of Specific Persons on Roadway to Prevent Foreseeable Injury to Persons and Onlookers

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY BECAUSE IT OWED NO DUTY TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT (1) _____ [name], A CALIFORNIA HIGHWAY PATROL OFFICER, UNDERTOOK TO INVESTIGATE THE PLIGHT OF SPECIFIC PERSONS STALLED ON THE ROADWAY, AND KNEW OR SHOULD HAVE KNOWN OF THE FORESEEABLE DANGER TO THOSE PERSONS AND TO ONLOOKERS FROM PASSINGTRAFFIC; AND (2) AS A CONSEQUENCE, A SPECIAL RELATIONSHIP WAS CREATED BETWEEN THOSE PERSONS, INCLUDING PLAINTIFF, AND THE CALIFORNIA HIGHWAY PATROL OFFICER, WHICH IMPOSED ON THE OFFICER, AND THROUGH HIM/HER ON THE STATE, THE DUTY TO THOSE PERSONS TO EXERCISE ORDINARY CARE TO PREVENT FORESEEABLE INJURY TO THEM FROM PASSING TRAFFIC.

A. Special Relationship Requirement. Liability for the negligent omissions of a California Highway Patrol officer can be imposed on the officer, and through him or her, on the state of California, only if a special relationship exists between the officer and the plaintiff at the time the injury was sustained (Mann v. State of California (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 779, 139 Cal. Rptr. 82).

B. Creation of Special Relationship by Investigation and Ascertainment of Foreseeable Danger. A special relationship is established by a California Highway Patrol officer's investigating the plight of specific persons on a roadway and informing him or her of the foreseeable danger to the persons from passing traffic. Once the special relationship is established, the officer has the duty to exercise ordinary care to protect the persons from any foreseeable risk of harm (Mann v. State of California (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 780, 139 Cal. Rptr. 82).

C. Liability of Public Entity. [See § 196.180, Paragraph A.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of two contentions: (1) that the employee was under a duty to exercise due care to prevent injury to the plaintiff, and (2) that the public entity is liable for injuries sustained by plaintiff as a result of its employee's breach of that duty. Those contentions exist by virtue of a special relationship between a California Highway Patrol officer and the plaintiff, created by the officer's investigating the plight of specific persons on a roadway and apprising him or her of the dangerous position of the persons and those about them, such as plaintiff.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Special Relationship Requirement

Mann v. State of California (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 139 Cal. Rptr. 82 , was an action for personal injuries sustained in a freeway accident on a late winter morning in which some people were killed and others injured, including plaintiff, as the result of a motorist's negligence. On the date of the accident, a California Highway Patrolman, on patrol in his fully equipped and distinctively marked patrol car, saw two cars stranded in the speed-change lane of a freeway. He pulled his vehicle behind them, turned on his rearward flashing amber light, and tried to get the forward car started. In doing so, he stood in the speed-change lane himself and failed to instruct the occupants of the stalled cars and other interested motorists (including plaintiff), some of whom had gotten out of their cars, to get back into them and to avoid standing between the stalled cars. A few minutes after a tow truck operator appeared at the scene, the officer left to resume his normal patrol without advising any of those present that he was leaving. His departure left the stranded cars unprotected by the rearward flashing amber light of his patrol car. He also failed to put out on the freeway any protective flares and did not wait for the tow truck, also equipped with a rearward flashing light, to assume the protective position his patrol car was vacating. A few minutes after the officer left, plaintiff and others, while standing beside the stalled cars, were struck by a partially blind motorist. The trial court granted a motion for directed verdict for the state on the ground that the sole cause of the accident as a matter of law was the negligence of the partially blind driver, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment on the ground that it was at the very least a jury question in regard to whether the officer's conduct constituted actionable negligence toward plaintiff, proximately causing plaintiff's injuries (70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 780-781) . The court said the evidence did not foreclose a finding that if proper protection had been provided the collision would not have occurred. Anyone legally responsible for the victims of the accident being in their exposed position could therefore have been found to have contributed in a substantial way to the causation of the accident. The jury could also have found that the independent intervening negligent conduct of the partially blind driver was reasonably foreseeable by the officer and would not, in that event, have been a superseding cause, but merely the immediate cause of plaintiff's injuries (70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 777) . The court pointed out that the negligence charged against the officer consisted of his failure to do certain things that would have wholly or partially protected the stranded motorists and those about them, including plaintiff, which, as an expert in traffic safety, the officer was enjoined to do, and in leaving them in a dangerous, unprotected position on a freeway after he had investigated and presumably become fully aware of their plight (70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 779) . The court said that this misconduct would appear to be a series of negligent omissions, rather than affirmative acts of negligence. That is, the court said the misconduct amounted to nonfeasance rather than misfeasance, and that the officer and, through him, the state of California, could be held liable for those omissions only if a special relationship obtained between him and plaintiff (70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 779) .

[b] Creation of Special Relationship by Investigation and Ascertainment of Foreseeable Danger

The facts and procedural background of Mann v. State of California (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 139 Cal. Rptr. 82 , is discussed in § 196.233[3][a]. In reversing the judgment for the state, the court said that while no special relationship may exist between members of the California Highway Patrol and the motoring public generally, or between the CHP and stranded motorists generally, once a state traffic officer has chosen to investigate the plight of a specific person or persons on a freeway and informed him or her of the foreseeable danger from passing traffic, a special relationship requiring him or her to protect the motorists by readily available means arises and liability may attach if the officer's limited duty to protect these people under these special circumstances is not performed. Stated otherwise, the foreseeable risk of harm to those people may have been unreasonable and, if so, the officer, as a state traffic officer who had acquainted himself with their plight, had a duty to exercise ordinary care to protect them from the risk (70 Cal. App. 3d 773, 780) .

NOTE:

The California Supreme Court has discussed Mann with approval [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] . The Court nevertheless has pointed out that the legislature viewed Mann as dangerously extending the liability of peace officers while engaged in activities not involving law enforcement, that is, while rendering assistance to stranded motorists not involved in accidents [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 25, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] . The Court explained that the legislature purported to overrule Mann by enacting Gov. Code § 820.25 [see § 196.10]2]] as an urgency measure in 1979 [see Stats. 1979, ch 806, § 2; and Historical Note to Gov. Code § 820.25] and said that Gov. Code § 820.25 has been described by some as conceptually flawed. The Court declined further to discuss the statute on the ground that it dealt with immunities, which were not involved in the case before it [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 25 n.5, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] . However, the Court said that Mann is no more than the application of the duty of care attaching to any volunteered assistance [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 25-26, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] and pointed out that in Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 208, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 , the Court, citing Restatement (Second) of Torts §§ 323 and 324, characterized Mann, properly read, as a simple application of the "good samaritan" doctrine [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 26, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] . Neither Supreme Court case purported to disapprove Mann, and the Court, in Williams, confirmed the holding in Mann that although no special relationship may exist between members of the California Highway Patrol and the motoring public generally, or between the California Highway Patrol and stranded motorists generally, if the state, through its agents, voluntarily assumes a protective duty toward certain member of the public and undertakes action on behalf of that member, thereby inducing reliance, it is held to the same standard of care as a private person or organization Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 24, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] .

The decision in Mann was followed by the court of appeal that rendered the decision in Clemente v. State of California (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 374, 161 Cal. Rptr. 799 , in which the court reversed a judgment of dismissal following the sustaining of a demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend. The court in Clemente held that the failure of a police officer investigating a traffic accident at the scene to secure the identity of the alleged tortfeasor who admitted to the officer that his or her vehicle had struck the plaintiff but denied fault, thereby effectively depriving plaintiff, who had been seriously injured and rendered helpless at the accident scene, of the opportunity to sue the tortfeasor for damages, could constitute a breach of the officer's duty of due care and could possibly render him and his employer liable to the plaintiff under Mann [Clemente v. State of California (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 374, 379-380, 161 Cal. Rptr. 799] . In Williams, the Supreme Court first criticized Clemente as being contrary to the holding in Winkelman v. City of Sunnyvale (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 509, 130 Cal. Rptr. 690 [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 26-27, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] , and then disapproved Clemente to the extent that it was inconsistent with the views stated in Williams [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 28 n.9, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] . Williams held that the statehighway patrol has the right, but not the duty, to investigate accidents, or to come to the aid of stranded motorists, and that stopping to aid an injured or stranded motorist does not, in itself, create a special relationship that would give rise to an affirmative duty to secure information or preserve evidence for civil litigation between the motorist and third parties [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 21, 24, 27-28, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] . The trial court in Williams had granted the state's motion for judgment on the pleadings. The Supreme Court concluded that the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that no duty was alleged, but reversed the judgment with directions t permit plaintiff to file an amended complaint, should she ask leave to do so [Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 28, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137] .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
3. Liability Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.234

§ 196.234 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Law Enforcement Officer to Exercise Reasonable Care for Safety of Persons Whom Officer Stops on Highway

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

A LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER HAS A DUTY TO EXERCISE REASONABLE CARE FOR THE SAFETY OF THOSE PERSONS WHOM THE OFFICER STOPS ON A ROADWAY, INCLUDING A DUTY NOT TO EXPOSE THOSE PERSONS TO AN UNREASONABLE RISK OF INJURY BY THIRD PARTIES.

Duty Owed to Motorists Stopped by Law Enforcement Officer. A law enforcement officer has a duty to exercise reasonable care for the safety of those persons whom the officer stops on a roadway, which includes a duty not to expose those persons to an unreasonable risk of injury by third parties (Lugtu v. California Hwy. Patrol (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 703, 718, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528, 28 P.3d 249).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a law enforcement officer owes a duty to exercise reasonable care for the safety of persons the officer has stopped on a roadway and that this duty owed by the officer includes a duty not to expose persons who have been stopped to an unreasonable risk of injury by third parties driving on the road.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should include facts showing that the officer directed the person being stopped along a roadway where to stop his or her vehicle, and explain how these actions and any subsequent actions by the officer may have increased the risk of injury to that person.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which these points are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty Owed to Motorists Stopped by Law Enforcement Officer

In Lugtu v. California Hwy. Patrol (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 703, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528, 28 P.3d 249 , the vehicle in which the plaintiffs were riding was pulled over for speeding by an officer of the California Highway Patrol (CHP). Because the speeding vehicle was being driven in the far left lane, the officer, who was riding a motorcycle, had approached from the right and signaled the driver of the vehicle to pull onto the center median area that divided the highway, rather than onto the far right shoulder of the highway. After the vehicle had been parked on the center median for about six to eight minutes, a truck being driven in the same direction in the far left lane left the highway and struck the back of the vehicle. The plaintiffs brought suit against the truck driver, the driver of the vehicle in which they had been riding, and the CHP and its officer. Prior to trial, the CHP and the officer moved for summary judgment, arguing among other points that the officer owed no legal duty of care to the plaintiffs. The trial court grantedthe motion for summary judgment, in part on the grounds that, as a matter of law, the officer had no duty to stop the plaintiffs on the right shoulder rather than on the median and that there was no triable issue of fact as to whether the officer acted with due care or whether his conduct caused the injuries. The court of appeal reversed, concluding that the officer owed a duty of reasonable care when he directed the driver to pull over to a particular location and that triable issues of fact existed regarding causation and whether the officer exercised reasonable care.

The California Supreme Court affirmed the court of appeal. The Supreme Court noted that the question of whether the officer owed a duty of care under the circumstances turned on general principles of tort law. The Court then reaffirmed the established principle of law that in carrying out routine traffic enforcement duties or investigations, a law enforcement officer owes a duty of care if the officer engages in an affirmative act that places another person in peril or increases the risk of harm to that person. Accordingly, the Court held that the officer owed a duty to exercise reasonable care for the safety of the persons stopped by the officer, which included a duty not to expose those persons to an unreasonable risk of injury by third parties (26 Cal. 4th 703, 716-718) . The Court then rejected the defendants' call for a bright-line rule providing that the duty of a law enforcement officer who has made a traffic enforcement stop entirely off the travel lanes of a freeway does not extend to liability for injuries when a third party's vehicle strikes the vehicle stopped by the officer, adopting instead the application of general negligence principles to the particular facts of the case (26 Cal. 4th 703, 718-722) .

In the case before it, the Court concluded that triable issues of fact remained as to whether the officer had breached the applicable duty of reasonable care. The parties had presented conflicting declarations on the issue of whether the officer had acted appropriately in directing the vehicle to park on the median, and the CHP Officer Safety manual indicated that officers were to stop vehicles on the right shoulder. Therefore, summary judgment on this issue was inappropriate (26 Cal. 4th 703, 722-724) . Finally, the Court held that the trial court erred in finding that, as a matter of law, the officer's conduct was not the legal cause of the injuries. If a defendant's negligence is based on having exposed the plaintiff to an unreasonable risk of harm from others, the occurrence of the type of conduct against which the defendant had a duty to protect the plaintiff does not constitute a superseding cause that completely relieves the defendant from liability. However, the third party's negligent conduct would properly be considered when allocating fault among the tortfeasors (26 Cal. 4th 703, 725) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
3. Liability Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.235

§ 196.235 Supporting Contention That Public Entity or Employee Is Liable for Injury Caused by Violation of Duty Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance--Duty of Public Common Carrier to Exercise Utmost Diligence in Providing Safe Carriage of Passengers [Civ. Code § 2100]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE FOR PLAINTIFF'S INJURY BECAUSE IT OWED NO DUTY TO PLAINTIFF _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS _____ [ALLEGED FACTS SHOWING or SHOWN] THAT DEFENDANT HAD A DUTY TO PROTECT PASSENGERS ABOARD ITS _____ [specify, e.g., BUSES] FROM _____ [specify, e.g., ASSAULTS BY FELLOW PASSENGERS], AND THAT AS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF THE BREACH OF THAT DUTY, PLAINTIFF WAS INJURED.

A. Duty of Common Carrier to Provide Safe Carriage. A carrier of persons for reward must use the utmost care and diligence for their safe carriage, and provide everything necessary for that purpose, and must exercise to that end a reasonable degree of skill (Civ. Code § 2100).

B. Applicability of Statutory Duty to Public Carriers. The duty imposed by Section 2100 of the Civil Code applies to public carriers as well as private carriers and requires them to do all that human care, vigilance, and foresight reasonably can do under the circumstances (Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 785, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907).

[Optional] C. Duty to Protect Passengers From Assaults by Fellow Passengers. By virtue of the duty imposed by Section 2100 of the Civil Code and the special relationship that exists between a carrier and its passengers, common carriers have a duty to protect passengers from assaults by fellow passengers (Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 785, 789-790, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907 , disapproving Hernandez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1063, 191 Cal. Rptr. 436).

[Optional] D. Liability of Public Carrier for Breach of Duty. A common carrier, whether public or private, is liable for injuries resulting from an assault by one passenger on another when, in the exercise of the required degree of care, the carrier has or should have knowledge from which it may reasonably be apprehended that an assault on a passenger may occur, and has the ability in the exercise of that degree of care to prevent the injury (Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 791, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of the contentions that a public common carrier has a duty to exercise the utmost care to provide safe carriage of its paying passengers and is liable for injuries suffered as a proximate result of the breach of that duty.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motion for judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Applicability of Statutory Duty to Public Carriers

Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907 , was an action for damages against a transit district for injuries received by plaintiffs when a fight broke out among passengers on board one of defendant's buses. The complaint alleged that, while plaintiffs were on board the bus as fare-paying passengers, a group of juveniles began harassing other passengers and a violent argument ensued; that the bus driver was notified of the altercation but failed to take any precautionary measures and continued to operate the bus; that defendant so negligently operated, owned, maintained, supervised, entrusted, inspected, controlled, and drove the bus so as to allow the passengers involved in the violent argument to engage in a violent physical fight; and that plaintiffs were injured as a direct and proximate result of defendant's negligence. They further alleged that there was a history of violent and assaultive conduct by passengers on this particular bus route, that violent incidents occurred daily or weekly, and that defendant was fully aware of this history of violence and the risk posed to passengers riding its buses. The defendant demurred to the complaint on the ground, among others, that it had no duty to protect passengers from assaults by fellow passengers. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and dismissed the action.

The Supreme Court reversed. The court held that the duty imposed by Civ. Code § 2100 applies to public carriers as well as private carriers and requires them to do all that human care, vigilance, and foresight reasonably can do under the circumstances (40 Cal. 3d 780, 785) . The Court added that common carriers are not, however, insurers of their passengers' safety, and that the degree of care and diligence that they must exercise is only such as can reasonably be exercised consistent with the character and mode of conveyance adopted and the practical operation of the business of the carrier (40 Cal. 3d 780, 785) .

[b] Duty to Protect Passengers From Assaults by Fellow Passengers

The facts and procedural background of Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907 , are discussed in § 196.235[3][a]. Citing Terrell v. Key System (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 682, 686, 159 P.2d 704 , the Court said that it has been held that the duty imposed on carriers by Civ. Code § 2100 includes a duty to protect passengers from assaults by fellow passengers (40 Cal. 3d 780, 785) . Quoting Terrell, the Court said it could see no reason not to apply the rule of Civ. Code § 2100, that a "carrier of persons for reward must use utmost care and diligence for their safe carriage," to the recognized duty of a carrier to protect a passenger from assaults by fellow passengers, that this duty can only arise if in the exercise of the required degree of care the carrier has or should have knowledge of conditions from which it may reasonably be apprehended that an assault on a passenger may occur, and has the ability in the exercise of that degree to prevent injury (40 Cal. 3d 780, 786) . The Court noted that the holding of Terrell is supported by the overwhelming weight of authority, and that virtually all commentators who have considered the issue have concluded that a common carrier's duty to its passengers includes a duty to protect them from assaults by fellow passengers (40 Cal. 3d 780, 786) .

Defendant contended that to impose on it the costs of trying to prevent third-party assaults would create a colossal financial burden on the district and that nothing short of an armed security force could be expected to curb effectively criminal violence aboard its buses (40 Cal. 3d 780, 786-787) .The Court rejected the argument as not in issue, and that the issue involved was whether defendant, as a public carrier, has a duty to use utmost care and diligence, whatever that may require in a particular case, to protect its passengers from assaults by fellow passengers (40 Cal. 3d 780, 787) . The Court said that finding such a duty to exist is not the functional equivalent of finding a duty to provide an armed security guard on every bus, that there are a number of actions a carrier might take short of placing an armed guard on each bus which, in a given case, might be sufficient to meet the duty imposed by Civ. Code § 2100, and gave a number of examples (40 Cal. 3d 780, 787-788) .

The defendant further argued that under Williams v. State of California (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 18, 192 Cal. Rptr. 233, 664 P.2d 137 , a public entity is deemed to stand in a special relationship with members of the public only where the entity voluntarily assumes a protective role and induces reliance on its actions, and that since no such detrimental reliance was alleged in the complaint, it had no duty to protect plaintiffs. The Court, after pointing out defendant's argument was a misconstruction of Williams, which involved the duty of a police officer and application of the "good samaritan" doctrine, said that implicit in the discussion in Williams is the recognition that some relationships by their very nature are "special ones" giving rise to an "initial duty" to come to the aid of others, regardless of whether there has been detrimental reliance in a particular case, and that the relationship between a common carrier and its passengers is just such a special relationship, as is the relationship between an innkeeper and his or her guests, between a possessor of land and those who enter in response to the landowner's invitation, and between a psychiatrist and his or her patients (40 Cal. 3d 780, 788-789) .

The Court explained that the special relationship between a carrier and its passengers is even greater than that between other types of businesses and their customers who come on to the "premises" for business purposes. Bus passengers are sealed in a moving steel cocoon. Large numbers of strangers are forced into very close physical contact with one another under conditions that often are crowded, noisy, and overheated. At the same time, the means of entering and exiting the bus are limited and under the exclusive control of the bus driver. Thus, passengers have no control over who is admitted on the bus and, if trouble arises, are wholly dependent on the bus driver to summon help or provide a means of escape. These characteristics of buses are, at the very least, conducive to outbreaks of violence between passengers and at the same time significantly limit the means by which passengers can protect themselves from assaults by fellow passengers. These characteristics of public transportation, along with the duty of utmost care and diligence imposed by Civ. Code § 2100, provide a more than ample basis for finding a special relationship between common carriers and their passengers (40 Cal. 3d 780, 789) .

[c] Liability of Public Carrier for Breach of Duty

The facts and procedural background of Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907 , are discussed in § 196.235[3][a]. In reversing the judgment of dismissal, the Court held that Civ. Code § 2100 imposes on all common carriers, public or private, a duty of utmost care and diligence to protect their passengers from assaults by fellow passengers. The court reiterated, however, that carriers are not insurers of their passengers' safety and will not automatically be liable, regardless of the circumstances, for any injury suffered by a passenger at the hands of a fellow passenger. Rather, a carrier is liable for injuries resulting from an assault by one passenger on another only when, in the exercise of the required degree of care, the carrier has or should have knowledge from which it may reasonably be apprehended that an assault on a passenger may occur, and has the ability in the exercise of that degree of care to prevent the injury (40 Cal. 3d 780, 791) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
3. Liability Arising From Special Relationship or Circumstance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.236-196.249

[Reserved]

§§ 196.236[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
4. Liability For Nuisance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.250

§ 196.250 Supporting Contention That Public Entity Is Liable for Damages Resulting From Entity's Maintenance of Nuisance [Civ. Code § 3479]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE OBJECTION THAT DEFENDANT _____ [name of public entity] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR DAMAGES SUSTAINED AS A PROXIMATE RESULT OF DEFENDANT'S MAINTENANCE OF A NUISANCE BECAUSE THE CALIFORNIA TORT CLAIMS ACT DOES NOT IMPOSE SUCH LIABILITY ON A PUBLIC ENTITY _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] OVERRULED BECAUSE THAT ACT DOES NOT BAR ACTIONS AGAINST PUBLIC ENTITIES BASED ON NUISANCE, AS DEFINED IN SECTION 3479 OF THE CIVIL CODE, AND SUCH ACTIONS ARE, THEREFORE, AUTHORIZED.

A. "Nuisance" Defined. Anything that is injurious to health, including but not limited to the illegal sale of controlled substances, or that is indecent or offensive to the senses, or that is an obstruction to the free use of property, so as to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property, or that unlawfully obstructs the free passage or use, in the customary manner, of any navigable lake, or river, bay, stream, canal, or basin, or any public park, square, street, or highway, is a nuisance (Civ. Code § 3479).

B. "Public Nuisance" and "Private Nuisance" Distinguished. A public nuisance is one that affects at the same time an entire community or neighborhood, or any considerable number of persons, although the extent of the annoyance or damage inflicted on individuals may be unequal (Civ. Code § 3480). Every other nuisance is a private nuisance (Civ. Code § 3481).

C. California Tort Claims Act Does Not Bar Actions for Nuisance. Section 815 of the Government Code, limiting the tort liability of public entities, does not bar nuisance actions against public entities to the extent that such actions are founded on Section 3479 of the Civil Code, and, hence, such actions are authorized (Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 932-936, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480 ; Pfleger v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 426, 431-432, 218 Cal. Rptr. 371).

[Optional] D. Pleading Nuisance and Dangerous Condition Alternatively. When the facts pleaded in a nuisance action may also support a claim based on the dangerous condition of real property under Section 835 of the Government Code, a plaintiff may in the same complaint plead both theories of liability; that is, the plaintiff may state a cause of action (count) for nuisance and a cause of action (count) for dangerous condition of real property, although there can be only one recovery for the same injury (Pfleger v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 431, 431 n.5, 218 Cal. Rptr. 371).

[Optional] E. When Statutory Sanction Will Justify Nuisance. A statutory sanction cannot be pleaded in justification of acts that by the general rules of law constitute a nuisance, unless the acts complained of are authorized by the express terms of the statute under which the justification is made, or by the plainest and most necessary implication from the powers expressly conferred, so that it can be fairly stated that the legislature contemplated the doing of the very act that brings about the injury (Greater Westchester Homeowners Ass'n v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 101, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of the contention that an action against a public entity to recover damages for the maintenance of a nuisance [see Civ. Code §§ 3491, 3501], as defined in Civ. Code § 3479, is not precluded by the California Tort Claims Act [see § 196.250[2][b]].

Paragraph D should be included if the complaint pleads causes of action (counts) based on both nuisance and dangerous condition of public property and defendant claims the joinder is impermissible. Paragraph E should be included if the defendant contends that the complained-of act is done or maintained under statutory authority [see Civ. Code § 3482], but the statutory authority relied on does not expressly or by necessary implication authorize the act.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the public entity's demurrer to the complaint, or motionfor judgment on the pleadings, on the asserted ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or in opposition to the public entity's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action has no merit. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Exceptions to Liability for Nuisance

Civ. Code § 3482 provides that nothing that is done or maintained under the authority of a statute can be deemed a nuisance [see Longfellow v. County of San Luis Obispo (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384, 192 Cal. Rptr. 580 ; see also § 196.08[12]]. However, although an activity authorized by statute cannot constitute a nuisance, the manner in which the activity is performed may do so [see Greater Westchester Homeowners Ass'n v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 101, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329 ; see also § 196.250[3][c]].

Additionally, any statutory immunity in the California Tort Claims Act will apply to a nuisance cause of action if the elements of that immunity are established by sufficient evidence [Pfleger v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 428, 430, 218 Cal. Rptr. 371 (design immunity under Gov. Code § 830.6); Barnhouse v. City of Pinole (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 171, 195-196, 183 Cal. Rptr. 881 (same)]. For discussion of statutory immunities in the California Tort Claims Act, see §§ 196.07 -196.10.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of complaints based on nuisance generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 391, Nuisance (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities supporting and opposing various contentions relating to nuisance generally, see Ch. 167, Nuisance .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] California Tort Claims Act Does Not Bar Actions for Nuisance

Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480 , was an action for personal injury and property damages caused by defendant city's operation of a municipal airport. Specifically, plaintiffs claimed that vibration, fumes, and noise emanating from jet aircraft landing and taking off at the airport caused damage to their property, interfered with the free enjoyment of their property, and resulted in physical pain, suffering, and emotional disturbance. They asserted four theories of recovery: (1) inverse condemnation, (2) nuisance, (3) negligence, and (4) zoning violations. The trial court first ruled that the negligence and zoning violations counts failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. After trial, the court found for defendant city on the inverse condemnation count on the ground plaintiffs had failed to establish that their property had been damaged. It then ruled that the nuisance count failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action on the theory that Gov. Code § 815, granting general immunity to public entities for an injury except as otherwise provided by statute, precluded liability for nuisance. Judgment for defendant was entered on the inverse condemnation count, and the other three counts were dismissed. Plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment for defendant on the inverse condemnation count, but reversed the judgment dismissing the counts for nuisance, negligence, and zoning violations. With respect to the nuisance count, the Court pointed out that in Gov. Code § 815 (discussed in the § 196.04) the legislature erected as its policy cornerstone a bar against governmental liability except as otherwise provided by statute. The Court said that the Senate committee comments made clear that the California Tort Claims Act itself does not provide for governmental liability for nuisance and that the right to recover damages for nuisance will have to be established under the provisions relating to dangerous conditions of public property or under some other statute that may be applicable to the situation (6 Cal. 3d 920, 932) . The Court pointed out that, prior to the enactment of the California Tort Claims Act, public entities had been held liable for nuisances as defined in Civ. Code § 3479 and that it appeared that with respect to nuisance the rule immediately prior to the enactment of the act was consistent with that subsequently required by the act (6 Cal. 3d 920, 932-933) . That is, to avoid the general rule of immunity set forth in Gov. Code § 815 a suit for nuisance must find statutory support and such support may be furnished by Civ. Code § 3479 (6 Cal. 3d 920, 933) . The Court said that the fact that the nuisance statutes are general in language, and do not specifically refer to public entities, does not preclude their application to such entities, because generally worded code sections are applied to governmental bodies if no impairment of sovereign powers would result (6 Cal. 3d 920, 933) . The Court further noted that although the legislature substantially adopted the Law Revision Commission's recommendations for amendment of the California Tort Claims Act in 1970, it deleted from its bill that provision that would have eliminate liability for damages founded on nuisance (6 Cal. 3d 920, 935) . The Court, therefore, concluded that the legislature intended to allow such causes of action if they could be tailored to meet the specifications of statutory provisions, such as Civ. Code § 3479 (6 Cal. 3d 920, 936) . The Court added that its conclusion was further supported by the profound interest the 1970Legislature demonstrated in the eradication of evils caused by the various forms of pollution, with particular emphasis on noise pollution (6 Cal. 3d 920, 936) . The Court said that because it is well-documented that a nuisance theory provides an effective means for redress in a wide range of actions resulting from pollution, including noise disturbance, it appeared that, in deleting the commission's recommendation to preclude governmental nuisance liability, the legislature intended to preserve this additional weapon in the arsenal available to combat grievous injury to the environment (6 Cal. 3d 920, 936-937) . The Court concluded that Gov. Code § 815 does not bar nuisance actions against public entities to the extent such actions are founded on Civ. Code § 3479 or other statutory provision that may be applicable, and held that the trial court incorrectly dismissed plaintiffs' cause of action on the ground that it was precluded by Gov. Code § 815 (6 Cal. 3d 920, 937) .

For purposes of retrial, the Court also discussed the statute of limitations that would apply (6 Cal. 3d 920, 937-938) .

Pfleger v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 218 Cal. Rptr. 371 , was a mandate proceeding arising out of consolidated lawsuits by owners and occupants of single-family dwellings located in the City of Pacifica against the city and a county (real parties in interest). The complaints contained, among other causes of action, one based on nuisance in which it was alleged that real parties, who were the owners of real property located uphill from petitioners' homes, had maintained their property in a dangerous condition and had failed and refused to design or construct a drainage system or other slide control facilities for their property adequate to divert and drain hillside surface and subsurface waters and prevent future flooding of and mud slides onto petitioners' properties. Real parties, aware that it was more difficult to defend against a cause of action for nuisance than one for negligence, in that nuisance does not require proof of negligence, demurred to the nuisance causes of action on the ground that a cause of action for nuisance cannot be stated against a public entity when it is predicated on a hazard that could be the basis of a cause of action for dangerous condition of public property for which recovery is permitted under Gov. Code § 835 [see § 196.210, Paragraph A]. The trial court ordered the demurrers sustained without leave to amend, and the plaintiffs petitioned for writs of mandate to compel the trial court to vacate those orders. Real parties contended that to allow a cause of action for nuisance against a public entity, based on a dangerous condition of property, would allow a plaintiff to circumvent the provisions of Gov. Code § 835, which they contended required a more stringent showing to impose liability for a dangerous condition on a public entity than does the nuisance statute, Civ. Code § 3479.

The court of appeal rejected the real parties' contention, after discussing the holdings in Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480 , including the holding that Gov. Code § 815 does not bar nuisance actions against public entities to the extent such actions are founded on Civ. Code § 3479 or other statutory provision that may be applicable (172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 426) , and other cases involving actions against a public entity involving liability based on nuisance. The court said that boiled down, the contention assumed that because in enacting the Tort Claims Act the legislature explicitly permitted a cause of action for a specific form of negligence against a public entity (Gov. Code § 835), which is easier to defend against than a cause of action for nuisance, the legislature must be presumed to have impliedly prohibited a cause of action for nuisance against a public entity (172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 431-432) . The court's answer was that if, as the case law establishes, no governmental immunity against a cause of action for nuisance can be found or implied in that provision of the Tort Claims Act where it would most likely be placed (i.e., Gov. Code § 815), it would be too great an exercise of judicial imagination to find it by implication in Gov. Code § 835, which, without purporting to prescribe an exclusive remedy, defines a form of governmental liability, not immunity (172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 432) .

NOTE:

This opinion fails to disclose whether the public property involved was improved or unimproved. Gov. Code § 831.25 [see § 196.12 [5][c]], immunizes public entities and employees for damage or injury to property, or for emotional distress, unless plaintiff has suffered substantial physical injury off the public entity's property caused by land failure of any unimproved public property, if the land failure was caused by a natural condition of the property [Gov. Code § 831.25(a)]. This immunity would be available in any case in which the damage or injury was caused by any movement of unimproved land, including a landslide, mudslide, creep, subsidence, and any other gradual or rapid movement of land [see Gov. Code § 831.25(c); see also § 196.250 [2][b]].

[b] Pleading Nuisance and Dangerous Condition Alternatively

The facts and procedural background of Pfleger v. Superior Court (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 218 Cal. Rptr. 371 , are discussed in § 196.250[3][a]. In ordering the issuance of peremptory writs of mandate directing the trial court to set aside its orders sustaining without leave to amend the demurrers to the petitioners' nuisance causes of action and to enter orders overruling the demurrers, the court of appeal rejected, as a proposition with which it could not agree, real parties' argument that plaintiff could not assert simultaneously causes of action for nuisance andfor dangerous condition of real property arising from the same condition (172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 431) . The court added that although causes of action may be maintained on more than one theory (count), there can, of course, be only one recovery for the same injury, and that the phrase "cause of action" is often used indiscriminately to mean what it says and to mean counts that state differently the same cause of action. However, the court also said that even when there are multiple legal theories on which recovery might be predicated, one injury gives rise to only one claim for relief (172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 431 n.5).

The court characterized language in Longfellow v. County of San Luis Obispo (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384, 192 Cal. Rptr. 580 , to the effect that a party could not sue on the basis of nuisance when the action was predicated on a claim of faulty design, as dicta and also as internally inconsistent (172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 428-430) . The court further expressly declined to follow language in that case to the extent that it might be construed to say that a party could not simultaneously maintain an action based on nuisance and one based on dangerous condition that arose from the same condition (172 Cal. App. 3d 421, 430-431) .

[c] When Statutory Sanction Will Justify Nuisance

In Greater Westchester Homeowners Ass'n v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329 , the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment for plaintiffs in a nuisance action by persons living near a municipal airport for damages for annoyance, inconvenience, discomfort, mental distress, and emotional distress, resulting from noise generated by the arrival and departure of jet planes, although it reversed the postjudgment order relating to prejudgment interest and attorney's fees. After discussing the interrelationship between state and federal law, the Court pointed out that, although the Court had previously held that commercial flights conducted in strict accordance with federal regulations may not be enjoined as nuisances, the prior decision expressly did not determine the rights of landowners who suffer from airplane annoyances to seek damages from the owner or operators of the aircraft or airport, and that preemption did not operate per se to preclude the enforcement of private state remedies for aircraft noise damage, in the absence of a compelling federal interest that would support a finding that Congress intended to nullify state-created rights (26 Cal. 3d 86, 94) . The Court then examined relevant law and concluded that claims for personal injuries founded on nuisance have not been federally preempted (26 Cal. 3d 86, 94-100) . The city contended that it could not be liable for nuisance because the noise-generating activity complained of was specifically sanctioned by federal and state statutes. The city relied particularly on Civ. Code § 3482, providing that nothing that is done or maintained under the express authority of a statute can be deemed a nuisance (26 Cal. 3d 86, 100) . The Court, quoting from Hassell v. San Francisco (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 168, 171, 78 P.2d 1021 , stated that a statutory sanction cannot be pleaded in justification of acts that by the general rules of law constitute a nuisance, unless the acts complained of are authorized by the express terms of the statute under which the justification is made, or by the plainest and most necessary implication from the powers expressly conferred, so that it can be fairly stated that the legislature contemplated the doing of the very act that occasions the injury. The court explained that a requirement of express authorization embodied in the statute itself insures that an unequivocal legislative intent to sanction a nuisance will be effectuated, while avoiding the uncertainty that would result were every generally worded statute a source of undetermined immunity from nuisance liability (26 Cal. 3d 86, 101) . Quoting Venuto v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 116, 129, 99 Cal. Rptr. 350 , the court said that accordingly, although an activity authorized by statute cannot be a nuisance, the manner in which the activity is performed may constitute a nuisance (26 Cal. 3d 86, 101) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] California Tort Claims Act Does Not Bar Actions for Nuisance

Barnhouse v. City of Pinole (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 171, 183 Cal. Rptr. 881 , was an action by homeowners for damages to real property and personal injuries resulting from soil subsidence in a housing subdivision. Various of plaintiffs' theories were eliminated through demurrer, dismissal, or nonsuit. One count against the city and the State Department of Transportation, as the owners of public streets, highways, and associated drainage systems that drained storm waters into a ditch onto property owned by defendant Pacific Gas and Electric Company and bordering plaintiffs' lots to the north, was based on a nuisance theory for the design, construction, and maintenance of storm drain systems that allegedly contributed to the slide conditions on the property. This cause of action was eliminated by the court at the close of plaintiffs' case on the theory that the entities were immune from liability for negligence based on the design and construction of public improvements [see Gov. Code § 830.6; see also § 196.12[1]]. The one theory that went to the jury against the government respondents, inverse condemnation, resulted in a defense verdict. Plaintiffs appealed.

In reversing the elimination of the nuisance count in favor of the city and the state, the court of appeal noted that the California Supreme Court in Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480 [see § 196.250[3][a]], held that the general rule of governmental immunity provided in Gov. Code § 815 alone does not preclude anuisance action against a government entity founded on Civ. Code § 3479 (133 Cal. App. 3d 171, 195 n.14). The court held there was sufficient evidence that the inadequately designed, constructed, and maintained storm drain systems contributed to the slide and was sufficient to support a finding of proximate cause, and that because there was insufficient evidence in the record to support the defense of design immunity, the trial court erred in eliminating the nuisance theory (133 Cal. App. 3d 171, 196) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] When Statutory Sanction Will Justify Nuisance

In Jordan v. City of Santa Barbara (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1245, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340 , landowners filed an action against various public agencies alleging that defendants' activities increased the salinity of plaintiffs' groundwater, thereby causing crop losses and reduced land value. The trial court granted judgment to defendants, concluding, among other things, that the operation of a waste treatment facility was authorized by a state permit, thus precluding liability for nuisance pursuant to Civ. Code § 3482, which provides that nothing done under the express authority of a statute can be deemed a nuisance. Plaintiffs contended that the permit did not specify that wastewater could be used in the way that it was. The court of appeal recognized that courts have circumscribed the exculpatory effect of to Civ. Code § 3482 by making the statutory immunity available only where the acts complained of are authorized by the express terms of the statute or permit. However, the permit in question specified that the discharge could not contain specified substances in concentrations which would promote aquatic growths, and plaintiffs did not allege that the facility was operating in violation of this or any other standards imposed in the permit (46 Cal. App. 4th 1245, 1258-1259) . The court thus affirmed the judgment for defendants.

176 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
C. Liability of Public Entities And Employees
4. Liability For Nuisance

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.251-196.269

[Reserved]

§§ 196.251[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.270

§ 196.270 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Licensing Immunity [Gov. Code § 818.4] Does Not Apply to Issuance of License That Creates Dangerous Condition of Public Property

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE LICENSING IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 818.4 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE ISSUANCE OF A LICENSE CREATES A DANGEROUS CONDITION OF PUBLIC PROPERTY.

Licensing Immunity Not Applicable if Dangerous Condition Created. The licensing immunity of Section 818.4 of the Government Code is only applicable to discretionary acts, and is not applicable when a public entity issues a license that results in a dangerous condition of public property since the public entity does not have discretion to create a dangerous condition (Hill v. People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 426, 430, 432, 154 Cal. Rptr. 142).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the licensing immunity of Gov. Code § 818.4 is not applicable because the defendant's granting of the license created a dangerous condition of public property. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 818.4 is discussed in § 196.08[6].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., Hill v. People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 426, 428, 154 Cal. Rptr. 142] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Licensing Immunity Not Applicable if Dangerous Condition Created

In Hill v. People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 426, 154 Cal. Rptr. 142 , plaintiff was injured in an accident caused by an oversized truckload hitting the top of an underpass. The truckload was being moved pursuant to a license issued by defendant Department of Transportation that specified the route and mistakenly directed the truck to go through an underpass that was too low. In plaintiff's action for personal injuries against defendant the trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint based on the licensing immunity, and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the issuance of the license created a dangerous condition of public property for which defendant was liable. In response to defendant's reliance on the licensing immunity, the court held that immunity only applied to discretionary activities and that a public entity has no discretion to create a dangerous condition of public property by issuing a license. Therefore, the licensing immunity was not applicable (91 Cal. App. 3d 426, 431-432) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.271

§ 196.271 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Licensing [Gov. Code § 818.4] and Enforcement [Gov. Code § 818.2] Immunities Do Not Apply When Public Entity or Employee Has Breached Mandatory Duty [Gov. Code § 815.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE _____ [LICENSING IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 818.4 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE and/or ENFORCEMENT IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 818.2 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE] DOES/DO NOT APPLY WHEN THE PUBLIC ENTITY HAS BREACHED ITS MANDATORY DUTY TO _____ [specify duty].

[EITHER]

Licensing Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty. The licensing immunity of Section 818.4 of the Government Code only protects the public entity against failure to discharge a discretionary duty, and does not apply when the cause of action is based on the failure of a public entity to discharge a mandatory duty under Section 815.6 of the Government Code (Morris v. County of Marin (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 901, 917, 136 Cal. Rptr. 251, 559 P.2d 606 ; Elson v. Public Utilities Commission (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 577, 582-589, 124 Cal. Rptr. 305).

[AND/OR]

Enforcement Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty. The immunity from liability for failure to enforce a law of Section 818.2 of the Government Code only protects the public entity against failure to discharge a discretionary duty, and does not apply when the cause of action is based on the failure of a public entity to discharge a mandatory duty under Section 815.6 of the Government Code (Morris v. County of Marin (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 901, 917, 136 Cal. Rptr. 251, 559 P.2d 606 ; Elson v. Public Utilities Commission (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 577, 589, 124 Cal. Rptr. 305).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that neither the licensing immunity of Gov. Code § 818.4 nor the adoption or law enforcement immunity of Gov. Code § 818.2 apply, because the complaint alleges the public entity's failure to discharge a mandatory duty. The immunities provided by Gov. Code § 818.4 and Gov. Code § 818.2 are discussed in § 196.08[6] and [5], respectively. Gov. Code § 815.6 provides that generally when a public entity is under a mandatory duty, it is liable for its failure to discharge that duty. For a form of contention supporting public entity liability arising out of Gov. Code § 815.6, see § 196.182.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer or a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Johnson v. Mead (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 156, 158, 236 Cal. Rptr. 277 (demurrer); West v. State of California (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 753, 758, 227 Cal. Rptr. 16 (summary judgment)]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Federal Civil Rights Actions

A licensing immunity identical to that applicable to public entities under Gov. Code § 818.4 is applicable to public employees under Gov. Code § 821.2. The immunity of Gov. Code § 821.2 is not available to provide immunity to public employees in federal civil rights actions [Guillory v. County of Orange (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1379, 1382] . Thus, it appears that the public entity licensing immunity of Gov. Code § 818.4 also does not apply in federal civil rights actions. For a form of contention that the law enforcement immunity of Gov. Code § 820.4 is not applicable in a federal civil rights action, see § 196.279. For forms of points and authorities relating to civil rights generally, see Ch. 35, Civil Rights: Unruh Civil Rights Act and Ch. 35A, Civil Rights: Equal Protection .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Licensing Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

In Morris v. County of Marin (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 901, 136 Cal. Rptr. 251, 559 P.2d 606 , defendant county issued a building permit to a contractor without requiring that the contractor file the statutorily-required certificate of insurance establishing that he had workers' compensation insurance. When plaintiff, an employee of that contractor, was injured on the job, he was unable to obtain compensation benefits because the contractor was uninsured. Plaintiff sued defendant county, alleging a breach of its statutory duty to require the filing of certificates of insurance before issuing building permits. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. It held that there was a mandatory duty imposed by statute on defendant that required the filing of the certificate, and that under Gov. Code § 815.6 defendant could be held liable for its failure to comply with that duty (18 Cal. 3d 901, 910-911) . Before reaching its ultimate conclusion that the licensing and enforcement immunities are only available to immunize a public entity concerning its discretionary acts, and are not available to mandatory duties (18 Cal. 3d 901, 917) , the Court thoroughly examined the legislative history and judicial interpretation of the two statutes (18 Cal. 3d 901, 911-917) .

In Elson v. Public Utilities Commission (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 577, 124 Cal. Rptr. 305 , plaintiff was injured in an accident with a bus and recovered an uncollectible judgment against the bus company since the bus company did not carry liability insurance. Defendant Public Utilities Commission had a general order requiring that all carriers maintain liability insurance. Plaintiff sued defendant, alleging that it knew that the bus company did not have the insurance but failed to revoke its operating authority, as it was legally required to do. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It held that defendant had a mandatory duty to revoke the bus company's operating authority, and that defendant could be held liable for the breach of that duty (51 Cal. App. 3d 577, 581-582) . The court examined the scope of the licensing immunity granted by Gov. Code § 818.4, finding that it provides immunity only for discretionary activities of a public entity (51 Cal. App. 3d 577, 582-589) . It then applied the same type of analysis to the enforcement immunity by Gov. Code § 818.2, once again concluding that it provides immunity only for discretionary activities of a public entity (51 Cal. App. 3d 577, 589) .

[b] Enforcement Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

Morris v. County of Marin (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 901, 136 Cal. Rptr. 251, 559 P.2d 606 , is discussed in § 196.271[3][a].

Elson v. Public Utilities Commission (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 577, 582-589, 124 Cal. Rptr. 305 , is discussed in § 196.271[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Licensing Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

In Corona v. State of California (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 723, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591 , a boxing referee and his wife sued the State of California after discovering that the State Athletic Commission had issued a boxing license to a boxer without first ensuring that the boxer had submitted a negative HIV blood test result as required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 18712. The referee worked a fight by the boxer and a week later received a letter from the Commission informing him that the boxer was HIV-positive and that the license had been issued without prior submission of the required test results. The trial court sustained the State's demurrer on the grounds that the State was immune for its licensing activities under Gov. Code § 818.4. The Court of Appeal reversed. The court of appeal first held that the State had a mandatory duty under Bus. & Prof. Code § 18712 to deny a boxing license to a boxer who has not submitted the negative blood test results required by that statute (178 Cal. App. 4th 723, 729) . The court also held that the immunity for licensing activities provided under Gov. Code § 818.4 applies only to discretionary licensing activities and does not apply if a public entity violates a mandatory duty. As such, the State was not immune under that statute for issuing a boxing license without first ensuring that the required blood tests were submitted (178 Cal. App. 4th 723, 733) .

In Thompson v. City of Lake Elsinore (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 49, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 344 , the plaintiff obtained a building permit from the city and thereafter complied with all the appropriate building codes, regulations, and requirements in completing her renovation. The city by ordinance had adopted Sections 306 and 307 of the Uniform Building Code and a building official approved the owner's building by giving a "Final Inspection Okay." Nevertheless, the city refused to issue a certificate of occupancy and plaintiff instituted suit alleging as one of her causes of action the defendants' failure to perform a mandatory duty. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers to plaintiff's complaint without leave to amend.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment as to the cause of action for defendants' failure to perform a mandatory duty (as well as to a cause of action for inverse condemnation that was not discussed in the opinion) and affirmed the judgment as to the other causes of action. With regard to the cause of action for failure to perform a mandatory duty, the court of appeal initially pointed out that the decision whether or not to issue a building permit is the type of discretionary decision covered by the immunity of Gov. Code §§ 818.4 and 821.4 (18 Cal. App. 4th 49, 55) . Referring to Section 307 of the Uniform Building Code, as adopted by the city ordinance, the court noted that under Gov. Code §§ 818.4 and 821.2, the public entityand building official would be immune if the building official refused to issue a certificate of occupancy based on determining that the building or structure had not satisfied applicable requirements, even if the determination was erroneous or negligent (18 Cal. App. 4th 49, 57) . Under Sections 306(c) and 307(c) of the Uniform Building Code, however, the building official by giving a "Final Inspection Okay" actually approved the building and retained no further discretion to withhold a certificate of occupancy (18 Cal. App. 4th 49, 58) . Thus, the immunity of Gov. Code §§ 818.4 and 821.2 did not act as a bar to liability based on a cause of action for failure to discharge a mandatory ministerial duty (18 Cal. App. 4th 49, 58) .

In Johnson v. Mead (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 156, 236 Cal. Rptr. 277 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's dismissal of the state of California and the Department of Motor Vehicles after sustaining their general demurrer to a complaint for the wrongful death of plaintiffs' nine-year-old daughter. While in a crosswalk, the decedent was hit by the individual defendant who was driving under the influence of alcohol and drugs. The court said that Veh. Code §§ 12805 (department shall not issue or renew driver's license when person is incapable of safely operating vehicle because of alcoholism or drug addiction) and 12806 (physical or mental defect that in department's opinion does not affect applicant's ability to exercise reasonable control in operating motor vehicle will not prevent issuance of license) indicated the legislature's intent that the department has discretion in the issuance of driver's licenses to persons such as the individual defendant (191 Cal. App. 3d 156, 159) . The court nevertheless held that the department had a mandatory duty to refuse to issue or renew a license if it has determined beforehand that the person is unable safely to operate a motor vehicle on a highway. Thus, if the department had already exercised its discretion under Veh. Code § 12806 and decided that the individual defendant was unable to operate a motor vehicle safely on a highway, it had a mandatory duty not to issue or renew his person's driver's license. The court found that, although the complaint was ambiguous on this issue, it was not subject to a general demurrer (191 Cal. App. 3d 156, 160) .

In Trewin v. State of California (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 198 Cal. Rptr. 263 , after plaintiffs were seriously injured when an automobile driven by an 87-year-old man crossed the center divider of a highway and collided with their automobile, they brought a negligence action against the state that had issued the elderly man a driver's license less than two months before, through the Department of Motor Vehicles. The complaint alleged that the department knew the man was elderly and had diminished physical and mental agility to the point of senility and that issuance of driving privileges to him would endanger the lives of others. The trial court entered judgment on the pleadings in favor of the state. The court of appeal reversed. The court found that Veh. Code § 12805, which specifies the grounds for refusing to issue a license, was an enactment that imposed a mandatory duty on the department. The result of Veh. Code § 12805 is that the department must not issue to, or renew a driver's license of, any person when it is determined by examination or other evidence that the person is unable safely to operate a motor vehicle (150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 979-980) . Defendant contended the court was required to dismiss the action because the facts are so similar to those in Papelian v. State of California (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 958, 135 Cal. Rptr. 665 , in which the state was immune. The court held that the department had a mandatory duty to refuse to issue or renew a license if it had determined beforehand that the person is unable safely to operate a motor vehicle on a highway, and observed that Papelian was not necessarily inapposite. It noted that the Papelian complaint did not specifically allege that the department had examined and determined beforehand that it was unsafe to issue the license to the driver causing the accident, as plaintiffs' pleadings did. The Papelian complaint had merely alleged that the department was negligent because it failed to ascertain that the driver was too elderly and senile to be capable of safely driving a motor vehicle. The court said the language in Papelian indicated the result would have been different had the complaint alleged facts that the license was issued in a manner other than as authorized by the Vehicle Code (150 Cal. App. 3d 975, 980-981) .

Young v. City of Inglewood (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 437, 154 Cal. Rptr. 724 , involved a complaint by plaintiff homeowner against defendant city that had knowingly issued a building permit to an unlicensed contractor to work on plaintiff's property in violation of its statutory duty only to issue permits to licensed contractors. The trial court sustained a general demurrer to the complaint and the court of appeal reversed. It held that the licensing immunity was not applicable to complaints based on failure to discharge a mandatory duty relying on Morris v. Marin County (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 901, 136 Cal. Rptr. 251, 559 P.2d 606 , discussed in § 196.271[3][a] (92 Cal. App. 3d 437, 440) .

[b] Enforcement Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

Quelvog v. City of Long Beach (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 86 Cal. Rptr. 127 , was a wrongful death action brought against defendant city after decedent was killed in a fall caused by a person driving an electric autoette on the sidewalk who knocked over decedent's ladder. The complaint alleged that defendant had encouraged the driving of autoettes on the sidewalk and failed to enforce the state law against driving those vehicles on the sidewalk. The trial court granted the city's demurrer. The court of appeal reversed the judgment for defendant. It held that permitting the autoettes on sidewalks created a dangerous condition of public property and that defendant was not immune based on the failure to enforce state lawsimmunity of Gov. Code § 818.2 because defendant violated its own duty not to create a dangerous condition (6 Cal. App. 3d 584, 591) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Licensing Immunity Is Not Applicable With Breach of Mandatory Duty

In Sonoma Ag Art v. Department of Food & Agric. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 122, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468 , the plaintiff was a grower who sued the State of California and the Department of Food and Agriculture for negligence in incorrectly finding under a grapevine certification program that the grower's grapevines had fanleaf virus, which lowered the sale price of the vines. The trial court sustained the defendants' demurrer to the cause of action, finding that the defendants were immune from suit under Gov. Code §§ 818.4 and 821.2. The court of appeal affirmed. The court concluded that in grading the plaintiff's grapevine, the state had issued a "certificate" within the meaning of those Government Code provisions (125 Cal. App. 4th 122, 126-127). The court further held that the issuing of the certificate was a discretionary act for which immunity was provided. The court noted that although there was mandatory language in the statutes establishing the duty to test grapevines, the state was required under those establishing statutes to exercise significant discretion in performing its testing duty, including significant discretion in adopting specific regulations, in overseeing vineyards, and in issuing and renewing certificates (125 Cal. App. 4th 122, 128-129).

In Inland Empire Health Plan v. Superior Court (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 588, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 735 , the plaintiff suffered a perforation of the uterus and bowel while undergoing an abortion performed at a clinic to which she was referred by her primary care physician, who was a member of a private independent practice association under contract to provide health coverage for Medi-Cal participants. The plaintiff sued various parties, including the public entity health maintenance organization (HMO) to which she belonged. She alleged that the HMO was liable for negligent credentialing of the physician who owned the clinic at which the abortion was performed. The trial court denied the HMO's motion for summary judgment, but the court of appeal granted a writ of mandate ordering the trial court to grant summary judgment. The court of appeal held that the decision of a public entity HMO to credential a physician to receive Medi-Cal reimbursements was a discretionary decision protected by the immunity of Gov. Code § 818.4. The HMO was authorized by statute to determine which physicians are eligible to receive Medi-Cal reimbursements, after setting its own standards and policies, consistent with federal standards, to guide its determinations, and the court concluded that the application of these standards to a particular physician was a discretionary one (108 Cal. App. 4th 588, 592-594) .

In Waschek v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 640, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296 , a pedestrian injured by a 96-year-old licensed driver sued the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) which had determined that the driver was able to safely drive a motor vehicle on a highway. The trial court granted summary judgment to the DMV and the court of appeal affirmed. On appeal, plaintiff contended that Veh. Code § 12805, which provides that the department must not issue or renew a driver's license to, any person when it is determined that the person is unable to safely operate a motor vehicle upon a highway, imposed a mandatory duty on the DMV which it failed to discharge. The court rejected this argument, finding that not only was there no determination that the applicant was unable to safely operate a motor vehicle, but a license examiner specifically made the determination that he was able to safely operate a motor vehicle. Because there was no dispute that the DMV had determined that applicant was able to safely drive, and, in its discretion, issued him a license, its decision was cloaked in immunity (59 Cal. App. 4th 640, 647) .

In Burchett v. City of Newport Beach (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 , plaintiffs sued a city and various individuals based on a denial of an application to retain a nonconforming driveway, in connection with a proposed redevelopment of their residential property. Defendants demurred on the grounds of the immunity for discretionary determinations. Plaintiffs did not respond to the demurrer, and it was granted by the trial court. Plaintiffs appealed, claiming that the trial court's conclusion that statutory immunity applied was incorrect. Plaintiffs claimed that prior to the denial of their application, they had a written agreement with the city in which the city agreed to allow plaintiffs to improve their property and to retain the existing driveway. This allegation was based on a letter plaintiff had written to the city planning department, on which an assistant planner had penned a note stating that the letter's information was "correct." The court of appeal noted that the City's charter provided that it could not be bound by any contract unless the contract was approved by the City Council and signed by the Mayor and City Clerk (33 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1479) . The court also noted that plaintiffs did not have a building permit or any official agreement to allow their improvements. However, even if the planning department employee's note was considered as some sort of license, the court held that this did not bind the City to issue an encroachment or building permit, since Gov. Code § 818.4 provides that a public entity is not liable for an injury caused by the refusal to issue a permit when the entity is authorized by law to determine whether or not the permit should be issued (33 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1480) .

In Cancun Homeowners Ass'n v. City of San Juan Capistrano (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1352, 264 Cal. Rptr. 288 , plaintiff condominium homeowners association filed a complaint for damages suffered as result of the subsidence of the land underlying its condominium complex. Defendant city wasincluded in the suit because its building inspector issued the grading and building permits even though he knew that all the soil was not compacted to the optimum level set forth by the local ordinance. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of defendant city based on the licensing immunity. The court of appeal affirmed, finding that the issuance of a permit was discretionary in that on its face the local ordinance granted the inspector the discretion to deviate from the recommended compaction standard, and the facts showed he did so only after a thorough investigation (215 Cal. App. 3d 1352, 1356-1361) .

In West v. State of California (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 753, 227 Cal. Rptr. 16 , plaintiffs were five couples who contracted for home improvements with defendant contractor. A sales representative for the contractor fraudulently represented that plaintiffs were required first to pay the full contract price, which would be placed in a trust account to be used as needed. In all, plaintiffs paid contractor $276,000. When no or little work was done, and no funds repaid, and they learned that the deposit procedure was a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 7159(d), plaintiffs sued, alleging fraud and conversion against defendant contractor and defendant banks. Plaintiffs also sued the state, the Department of Consumer Affairs, and the Contractors' State License Board, alleging that the board had a mandatory duty to investigate the contractor and its sales representatives, that had it performed this duty it would not have licensed them, and that plaintiffs would not have entered into contracts in the absence of these licenses. The trial court issued a summary judgment in favor of defendant. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. Before beginning its analysis, the court reviewed additional facts. The board had issued a general contractor's license to defendant contractor corporation. It had also registered the sales representative, even though that individual had previously been a contractor and lost his license due to grand theft. The board admitted that if proper procedures had been followed, that individual would not have been registered. In light of these facts, the court looked at Bus. & Prof. Code § 7153.1, which provides that the registrar may refuse to register the applicant. The court said that "may" was permissive, and the decision to register a sales representative was discretionary. The court noted the board was careless, and even slovenly in allowing that registration, but because it was under no mandatory duty, it was immune from liability pursuant to Gov. Code § 818.4 (181 Cal. App. 3d 753, 760-761) . The court applied the same type of analysis to the contractor, concluding that the board did not breach any mandatory duty when it issued the general contractor's license. The sales representative was not designated as an officer, director, or responsible managing employee (181 Cal. App. 3d 753, 761) . It also refuted plaintiffs' arguments that the board had other mandatory duties, which, if properly fulfilled, would have prevented the losses suffered by plaintiffs. The court examined each alleged mandatory duty, and found they were not mandatory, and therefore the immunity of Gov. Code § 818.4 protected defendants from liability (181 Cal. App. 3d 753, 761-765) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.272

§ 196.272 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Inspection Immunity [Gov. Code § 818.6] Applies Only to Inspections of Physical Property

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE IMMUNITY FOR FAILURE TO MAKE AN ADEQUATE INSPECTION OF PROPERTY UNDER SECTION 818.6 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY TO INSPECTIONS OF PERSONS.

A. Inspection Immunity Only Applicable to Inspections of Physical Property. The inspection immunity provided by Section 818.6 of the Government Code only applies to inspections of physical property and not to inspections of persons (Elton v. County of Orange (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 1059-1060, 84 Cal. Rptr. 27).

[Optional] B. Inspection Immunity Not Applicable to Inspections of Foster Parents. Because the inspection immunity is only applicable to inspections of physical property, it is not applicable to inspections of foster parents for fitness as foster parents (Elton v. County of Orange (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 1059-1060, 84 Cal. Rptr. 27).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the inspection immunity of Gov. Code § 818.6 is not applicable because the inspection was not of physical property. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 818.6 is discussed in § 196.08[7].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., Elton v. County of Orange (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 1055, 84 Cal. Rptr. 27] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inspection Immunity Only Applicable to Inspections of Physical Property

In Elton v. County of Orange (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 84 Cal. Rptr. 27 , plaintiff minor was the victim of various types of abuse when she was placed in a foster home licensed by the state. She brought an action for mental and physical injuries against defendant county, alleging her injuries were the result of defendant's placing her in the foster home and then failing adequately to supervise and control the foster parents. The trial court granted defendant's demurrers and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to the trial court to overrule the demurrers. After it found that two other immunities asserted by defendant were not applicable, the court considered whether the inspection immunity of Gov. Code § 818.6 applied. The court explained that the immunity applied only to the inspection of physical property for the purpose of determining whether the property violates the law or is hazardous to health or safety. The court said plaintiff was complaining of the permitted deficiencies of her foster parents, and not of the physical inadequacies of the foster home (3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 1059) .

[b] Inspection Immunity Not Applicable to Inspections of Foster Parents

Elton v. County of Orange (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 84 Cal. Rptr. 27 , is discussed in § 196.272[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inspection Immunity Only Applicable to Inspections of Physical Property

In Sava v. Fuller (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 281, 57 Cal. Rptr. 312 , the complaint alleged that a state employee negligently tested a material ingested by a child and found it to be toxic, which it was not. As a result, the child was incorrectly treated and died. The trial court sustained a demurrer on the basis that the acts were discretionary and the inspection immunity was applicable. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the actions were not discretionary. In ruling on a claim that the inspection immunity was applicable, the court cited the Legislative comment to Gov. Code § 818.6, which said that inspections such as those made of a building under construction were the type contemplated. The court found that plaintiff claimed no property interest in the plant material, and moreover, that it was not dangerous, before it concluded that the inspection immunity was not applicable (249 Cal. App. 2d 281, 292-293) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.273

§ 196.273 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Misrepresentation Immunity [Gov. Code § 818.8] Does Not Apply--No Interference With Plaintiff's Financial or Commercial Interests

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MISREPRESENTATION IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 818.8 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY TO MISREPRESENTATIONS UNLESS THOSE MISREPRESENTATIONS INTERFERE WITH THE PLAINTIFF'S FINANCIAL OR COMMERCIAL INTERESTS.

A. Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable Unless Interference Is With Financial or Commercial Interests. The public entity misrepresentation immunity provided by Section 818.8 of the Government Code is applicable only when the misrepresentation interferes with the plaintiff's financial or commercial interests. Therefore, it is not applicable when the complaint does not allege that interference (Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 799-801, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352).

[Optional] B. No Immunity for Intentional Concealment of Health and Safety Information. The public entity misrepresentation immunity provided by Government Code Section 818.8 does not immunize governmental entities for intentional misrepresentations relating to a risk of physical harm (Adkins v. State of California (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1819, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the immunity of public entity's from liability for misrepresentation by employees under Gov. Code § 818.8 is not applicable, because the alleged misrepresentation did not interfere with theplaintiff's commercial or financial interests. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 818.8 is discussed in § 196.08[8].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., Connelly v. State of California (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 744, 747, 84 Cal. Rptr. 257] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Public Employee Immunity

The misrepresentation immunity available to public employees under Gov. Code § 822.2 should be distinguished from the misrepresentation immunity available to public entities under Gov. Code § 818.8. The former immunity does not apply when the employee is guilty of actual fraud, corruption, or actual malice [see Gov. Code § 822.2; see also Universal By-Prods., Inc. v. City of Modesto (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 145, 153-154, 117 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Thus, the public employee is liable if he or she was motivated by a conscious intent to deceive, vex, annoy, or harm the plaintiff in his or her business [Schonfeld v. City of Vallejo (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 401, 410, 123 Cal. Rptr. 669 ; see Cooper v. Jevne (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 860, 874, 128 Cal. Rptr. 724 (nondisclosure of adverse material facts may be sufficient if defendant under duty to disclose)]. For further discussion of the immunity under Gov. Code § 822.2, see § 196.10[14].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable Unless Interference Is With Financial or Commercial Interests

The facts in Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352 , are discussed in § 196.278[3][a]. The Supreme Court noted that the term "misrepresentation" potentially lends itself to an extremely expansive and elusive interpretation and could apply in a broad variety of fact situations. The Court then focused on the legislative intention in enacting the immunity and held that the legislature was concerned with providing immunity for the specific tort of misrepresentation, which applies only to interferences with financial or commercial interest. It said that the legislature did not intend to provide immunity for every action that could be deemed a misrepresentation and thus did not provide immunity for a parole officer's failure to give adequate warnings to a foster parent about the dangerous propensity of a minor (69 Cal. 2d 782, 799-800) .

[b] No Immunity for Intentional Concealment of Health and Safety Information

The facts and procedural background of Adkins v. State of California (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59 , are discussed in § 196.283[3][a]. Plaintiffs alleged they were injured due to the intentional concealment of health and safety information. The court of appeal held that under the Government Tort Claims Act, Gov. Code § 818.8, governmental entities would not be immunized for intentional misrepresentations relating to a risk of physical harm (50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1819) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable Unless Interference Is With Financial or Commercial Interests

In Michael J. v. Los Angeles County Dep't of Adoptions (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 859, 247 Cal. Rptr. 504 , the court of appeal held that Gov. Code §§ 818.8, 822.2 do not preclude an action against a county adoption agency for intentional misrepresentation or fraudulent concealment of an adoptee's medical condition as part of the adoption process. The adoption process is not a commercial transaction, such as leasing and purchasing property or contracting for a pension. The immunity provided governmental entities and public employees by these statutes does not shield a county from liability for misrepresentation and deceit in this social service area, designed to serve the interests of society by acting in the best interests of the child. While the adoptive parents will suffer a financial loss in the sense that they have incurred, and will continue to incur, substantial medical expenses, their loss did not result from a commercial transaction with the county or from the county's interference with a commercial transaction (201 Cal. App. 3d 859, 872) .

The facts in Bastian v. County of San Luis Obispo (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 245 Cal. Rptr. 78 , are discussed in § 196.60[3][a]. The court of appeal found that the trial court had erred by finding that the deputy sheriff and county were immunized from liability by Gov. Code §§ 818.8 and 822.2. It said that Gov. Code § 818.8 immunized the county from liability for misrepresentation or deceit, a tort distinct from the general milieu of negligent and intentional wrongs. Thus, the Gov. Code § 818.8 immunity applied to interferences with financial or commercial interest only. The court further observed that Gov. Code § 822.2 is a counterpart to Gov. Code § 818.8, and the financial or commercial interest restriction applied to it as well (199 Cal. App. 3d 520, 533) .

The facts in Connelly v. State of California (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 744, 84 Cal. Rptr. 257 , are discussed in § 196.278[4][a]. In reversing thejudgment based on the sustained demurrer, the court of appeal in Connelly held that the misrepresentation immunity did not apply when the loss, although a form of commercial loss, did not result from a commercial transaction between plaintiff and the public entity nor from the public entity's interference with plaintiff's commercial transactions (3 Cal. App. 3d 744, 752) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable Unless Interference Is With Financial or Commercial Interests

In Burden v. County of Santa Clara (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 244, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587 , the plaintiff, who was fired from the office of county counsel only two weeks after he began work, brought an action for common law fraud and for violations of Lab. Code § 970 against the county. The plaintiff alleged that the conditions of his employment had been misrepresented--specifically, that he was induced to relocate on the promise of a permanent position only to find out after he had been fired that he had been hired into a "provisional" position. The trial court granted summary judgment for the county on the basis of immunity under Gov. Code § 818.8, and the court of appeal affirmed. After reviewing case law applying Gov. Code § 818.8, the court of appeal rejected the plaintiff's contention that the "routine administrative actions" involved in his hiring did not constitute the kind of commercial or financial transaction that supports application of immunity under that statute. Instead, the court concluded that the alleged misrepresentations regarding his recruitment and hiring clearly arose out of a business transaction between him and the county and that his employment involved a sufficient financial interest to trigger immunity under Gov. Code § 818.8 (81 Cal. App. 4th 244, 248-252) . In addition, citing Harshbarger v. City of Colton, the court of appeal held that application of Gov. Code § 818.8 took precedence over the liability that might otherwise be imposed on the county through application of Gov. Code §§ 815.2 and 822.2, which in tandem would seem to impose liability on a public entity for the misrepresentations of employees in cases of actual fraud, corruption, or actual malice (81 Cal. App. 4th 244, 253).

In Harshbarger v. City of Colton (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 243 Cal. Rptr. 463 , plaintiffs contracted with a general contractor for construction of a home on property they owned within the boundaries of defendant city. City building inspectors periodically inspected the residence to ensure that construction was in compliance with applicable codes. The inspectors signed the job card after each inspection, acknowledging compliance, even though their inspections revealed noncompliance. After the contractor stopped work, defendant notified plaintiffs that their residence was not in compliance. Plaintiffs paid a substantial amount of money for reconstruction to bring it into compliance, and then brought suit against defendant city and the building inspectors on several counts, including misrepresentation. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer without leave to amend and dismissed the action. The court of appeal affirmed (197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1350) . Citing Gov. Code §§ 815.2 and 822.2, plaintiffs argued that under the doctrine of respondeat superior a public entity is liable for wrongful acts of its employees, whether those acts are negligent or intentional, when the employees are guilty of actual fraud, corruption, or actual malice. In response, the court said Gov. Code § 822.2 applied only to a public employee, not to a public entity. Gov. Code § 818.8 provides public entities with absolute immunity from liability for negligent or intentional misrepresentations of its employees. Moreover, the court cited Gov. Code § 815(b), which provides that statutory liabilities are subordinate to statutory immunities, in support of the idea that the immunity provisions of Gov. Code § 818.8 prevail over the general liability of Gov. Code § 815.2. The court concluded that a public employee may be liable for actual fraud, but the public entity is wholly immune (197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1340-1341) . Plaintiffs alleged that by signing the job card, the inspectors misrepresented that the residence complied with code standards when they knew it was defective. Citing case authority, the court found this alleged interference with plaintiffs' financial interest was analogous to situations in which the government was held to be immune from liability. Thus, the court concluded that defendant was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 818.8 (197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1341-1342) . The court also found that the misrepresentation immunity applied to concealment or suppression of fact as well as intentional misrepresentation and negligent misrepresentation. An active concealment has the same force and effect as a misrepresentation that is positive in form (197 Cal. App. 3d 1335, 1343) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.274

§ 196.274 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Misrepresentation Immunity [Gov. Code § 818.8] Does Not Apply--Claim Based on Contract

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MISREPRESENTATION IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 818.8 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE ALLEGED MISREPRESENTATION IS THE BASIS OF A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR BREACH OF CONTRACT.

A. California Tort Claims Act Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions. Nothing in Government Code Sections 814 through 895.8 (liability of public entities and public employees) affects liability of a public entity for breach of contract (Gov. Code § 814; see E.H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 793-794, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551).

B. Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions. Because the California Tort Claims Act does not affect actions for breach of contract, the misrepresentation immunity provided by Section 818.8 of the Government Code is not applicable when the plaintiff alleges a misrepresentation as a breach of contract (E.H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 793-794, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551 ; Arthur L. Sachs, Inc. v. City of Oceanside (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 315, 323, 198 Cal. Rptr. 483).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the misrepresentation immunity of Gov. Code § 818.8 is not applicable because the plaintiff's action is based on breach of contract. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 818.8 is discussed in § 196.08[a].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., E.H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 789, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] California Tort Claims Act Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions

The facts and holding in E.H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551 are discussed in § 196.274[3][b].

[b] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions

In E.H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551 , plaintiff contractor brought an action for damages for the costs of performing additional work under a construction contract with the state. Plaintiff alleged that the state misrepresented subsurface conditions, and that those conditions made the cost of performing the contract higher. The trial court sustained the state's demurrer to the complaint based in part on the misrepresentation immunity. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. In discussing the applicability of the misrepresentation immunity, the Court cited Gov. Code § 814, which provides that the California Tort Claims Act does not apply to causes of action for breach of contract. Thus, when a public entity makes a contract it is liable for a breach of its agreement and the doctrine of governmental immunity does not apply. The Court concluded that the misrepresentation immunity was not applicable because the alleged misrepresentations were the basis of a breach of contract cause of action (65 Cal. 2d 787, 793-794) .

In Arthur L. Sachs, Inc. v. City of Oceanside (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 315, 198 Cal. Rptr. 483 , plaintiff school district's complaint against defendant arose out of the sale and purchase of real property. Defendant cross complained, and the trial court entered judgment against defendant due to his failure to comply with the claims statute. Although it agreed to supply defendant with appraisals of the property while that action was pending, plaintiff failed to do so for several years. When defendant finally received a copy of the appraisals they indicated a value much greater than that asserted by plaintiff, and he sought to amend his cross complaint to rescind the contract on the basis of fraud. The trial court denied his motion. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Plaintiff asserted that as a public entity it was entitled to absolute immunity for the alleged fraudulent representations under Gov. Code § 818.8. The court disagreed, stating that when the a public entity makes a contract it is liable for a breach of its agreement and the doctrine of governmental immunity does not apply. The fact that a breach is fraudulent does not make the rule inapplicable (151 Cal. App. 3d 315, 321) . The court analyzed whether defendant's cross complaint was a contract or a tort action. Based on its analysis of defendant's pleadings, and the fact that the action was based on a breach of promise, the court concluded that the cross complaint was an action based on contract. It held that because the action was one in contract, the misrepresentation immunity did not apply (151 Cal. App. 3d 315, 322-323) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions

Warner Constr. Corp. v. Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 285, 85 Cal. Rptr. 444, 466 P.2d 996 , was a contract action. In dicta, the Supreme Court stated that although tort causes of action for misrepresentation are precluded by the immunity, the causes of action for breach of contract based on misrepresentations by the public entity were not immune (2 Cal. 3d 285, 293-294, 294 n.4).

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Misrepresentation Immunity Is Not Applicable in Contract Actions

In Craland, Inc. v. State of California (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1400, 263 Cal. Rptr. 255 , plaintiff was the successful bidder on tax-defaulted real property. Plaintiff later filed claims against the county and state alleging the land was worthless due to Subdivision Map Act violations, and that the county and state had failed to disclose a landslide defect on the property at the time of sale. Plaintiff filed a lawsuit after his claims were denied. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrer to the complaint and dismissed the action. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal discussed the immunity enjoyed by the county and state. Public entities are immune from tort liability arising from any misrepresentations made in conjunction with the tax sale of the property. However, the misrepresentation immunity does not affect the contractual liabilities, and plaintiff claimed that the county and state were bound to disclose known, hidden defects just like private sellers of land. The court explained that ordinary contract law does not apply to determine the rights of the purchaser against the seller, and that absent a representation to the contrary, neither the county nor the state warrant the validity or regularity of tax sale proceedings (214 Cal. App. 3d 1400, 1405) . The court noted that neither the county nor the state had made any warranty or representation that the property was free of landslides, and in fact, had issued a document cautioning buyers to investigate all parcels prior to purchase (214 Cal. App. 3d 1400, 1406-1407) .

In Page v. City of Montebello (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 658, 169 Cal. Rptr. 447 , plaintiffs, widow and minor daughter of decedent, brought suit against defendants on several causes of action. Decedent, who was not a police officer, had been working with defendant police department as an informant and died as result of his undercover activities. Decedent had been promised by one police officer that he or his heirs would receive compensation as though he was a policeman. Plaintiffs claimed that defendants at the time of making the promise had no intent to perform, that decedent performed in reliance on that promise, and that decedent would not have assisted defendants without that promise. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendants. The court of appeal affirmed. The court said that one of plaintiffs' causes of action, although framed in terms of contract, constituted an effort to hold defendant city responsible for the tort of its employee. The court said that Gov. Code § 818.8 constituted a complete defense. Plaintiffs argued that defendant was not immune, and attempted to distinguish their cause of action as one that sounded in deceitful contract, claiming that it was based on deceit (112 Cal. App. 3d 658, 670) . The court observed that plaintiffs never claimed that any promise was made by any one associated with defendant except that one officer. Thus, the only person who could have made a promise without intent to perform was that officer, and only if his promise and intention or lack thereof were imputed to defendant under respondeat superior could defendant be held liable. The court said that defendant enjoyed absolute immunity under Gov. Code § 818.8. No contract was ever formed in the absence of knowledge or ratification of the officer's promise by defendant. Gov. Code § 818.8 establishes its immunity with respect to misrepresentation by an employee (112 Cal. App. 3d 658, 671) .

In Universal By-Prods., Inc. v. City of Modesto (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 145, 117 Cal. Rptr. 525 , defendant city issued a notice that it would receive bids for the granting of an exclusive license to provide garbage collection services within the city for eight years. The notice stated that defendant reserved the right to reject any or all bids, and that the award, if made, would be to the lowest responsible bidder. Plaintiff, a bidder, performed a market analysis and other complex studies. After its bid was rejected, it brought suit against defendant, alleging misrepresentation, fraud, and breach of contract. The trial court sustained defendant's general demurrers and dismissed the action. The court of appeal affirmed. Plaintiff attempted to overcome defendant's claim of governmental immunity by characterizing the action as a misrepresentation in breach of contract. The court did not agree, noting that there were no allegations of an express contract, and the facts did not support the inference of an implied contract. It said the gravamen of the action was an allegation of a lack of good faith in the solicitation of bids preliminary to the awarding of a contract, and thus, the misrepresentation was in tort rather than in contract (43 Cal. App. 3d 145, 153) . The court said that even under the limitation of the immunity to interferences with financial or commercial interests, the fraudulent representation alleged by plaintiff clearly was a commercial transaction within the intended scope of Gov. Code § 818.8 (43 Cal. App. 3d 145, 154) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.275

§ 196.275 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Prisoner Immunity [Gov. Code § 844.6] Does Not Apply When Neither Plaintiff Nor Person Causing Injury Was Prisoner

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PRISONER IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 844.6 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY WHEN _____ [PLAINTIFF or THE PERSON CAUSING PLAINTIFF'S INJURY] WAS NOT LAWFULLY INCARCERATED AND THUS NOT A PRISONER.

A. Immunity Is Only Applicable When Either Injured or One Causing Injury Is Prisoner. The prisoner immunity of Section 844.6 of the Government Code is only applicable to public entities when either the person injured, or the person causing the injury, is a prisoner, that is, a person confined in a correctional facility or institution under the authority of law enforcement authorities or legal process (Patricia J. v. Rio Linda Union Sch. Dist. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 278, 287, 132 Cal. Rptr. 211 (person causing injury was not prisoner); see Gov. Code § 844).

[Optional] B. Detained Person Is Not Prisoner. A person who has been detained by the police but who has not been arrested or booked is not a prisoner and the public entity is not immune from liability for injury to that person (Larson v. City of Oakland (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96-98, 94 Cal. Rptr. 466).

[Optional] C. Minor Committed to Care of Parent Is Not Prisoner. A minor who has been placed on probation and committed to the care of his or her parents is not a prisoner and a public entity is not immune from liability for an injury caused by that person (Thompson v. County of Alameda (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 741, 747, 167 Cal. Rptr. 70, 614 P.2d 728 ; Patricia J. v. Rio Linda Union Sch. Dist. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 278, 286-288, 132 Cal. Rptr. 211).

[Optional] D. Person Falsely Imprisoned Is Not Prisoner. The prisoner immunity of Section 844.6 of the Government Code does not apply to a case of false imprisonment because a person who has been illegally confined is not a prisoner.

[Even if a person was originally a prisoner, false confinement beyond the proper term of his or her imprisonment does not extend his or her existence as a prisoner within the immunity] (Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 716-717, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865).

[Optional] E. Parolee Is Not Prisoner. Neither a person on the way to prison, nor a parolee on the way out of prison are prisoners (Fearon v. Department of Corr. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1254, 1256, 209 Cal. Rptr. 309).

[Optional] F. Child Residing With Incarcerated Mother Under Pregnant and Parenting Women's Alternative Sentencing Program Act is Not Prisoner. A child residing with his or her incarcerated mother under the Pregnant and Parenting Women's Alternative Sentencing Program Act is not a "prisoner" for purposes of the Government Tort Claims Act, as such a child resides in the facility because the mother is housed there and not because the child is the subject of any legal restraint (Lawson v. Superior Court (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1387, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 834 ; see Pen. Code § 1174 et seq.).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the prisoner immunity of Gov. Code § 844.6 is not applicable because neither the plaintiff nor the person causing the plaintiff's injury was a prisoner. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 844.6 is discussed in § 196.08[9].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Zeilman v. County of Kern (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1174, 1176, 214 Cal. Rptr. 746] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity Is Only Applicable When Either Injured or One Causing Injury Is Prisoner

In Patricia J. v. Rio Linda Union Sch. Dist. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 278, 132 Cal. Rptr. 211 , plaintiffs' daughter was raped by a minor school employee, who was a ward of the court committed to the custody of his mother. Plaintiffs sued defendant school district for negligently hiring a dangerous person and negligently failing to supervise him or warn of his dangerous propensities. Defendant demurred based on its immunity for injuries caused by prisoners. The trial court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the action. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It analyzed the definition of prisoner set forth in Gov. Code § 844, the terms of which include an inmate of a prison, jail, or penal or correctional facility, and the legislative comment. The court concluded that for the immunity provided by Gov. Code § 844.6 to apply, a prisoner must be a person confined in a correctional facility or institution under the authority of law enforcement authorities or legal process.Because this definition did not include a minor ward committed to the custody of his or her parent, defendant was not immune from liability for the minor's acts that injured plaintiffs' daughter (61 Cal. App. 3d 278, 283-288) .

[b] Detained Person Is Not Prisoner

In Larson v. City of Oakland (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 91, 94 Cal. Rptr. 466 , plaintiff's suit against defendant city for personal injuries alleged that he had been injured when he was beaten by a police officer who suspected plaintiff was driving a stolen car, and chased him after a minor traffic offense. Although plaintiff was never arrested or booked, the injury occurred after he had been detained and handcuffed. After granting defendant's motion for nonsuit, the trial court granted a motion for new trial on the basis that plaintiff was not a prisoner within the terms of the immunity. Defendant appealed the order granting a new trial.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court reviewed statutory and case definitions of "prisoner," concluding that it does not include a person detained by the police but not arrested, or arrested and not booked, and that it clearly was not intended to embrace persons detained by law officers temporarily for purposes of investigation. It said that in specifying what the term prisoner includes, in context, that which is not included is excluded. The court further substantiated its position by observing that immunities from liability should be narrowly construed because liability is the general rule and immunities are exceptions to the general rule (17 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96-98) .

[c] Minor Committed to Care of Parent Is Not Prisoner

The facts and procedural background of Thompson v. County of Alameda (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 741, 167 Cal. Rptr. 70, 614 P.2d 728 , are discussed in § 196.278[5][a]. The plaintiff's son was killed by a juvenile who had been given temporary leave from his custody with defendant county to his mother's home. Although the Supreme Court found defendant immune on other grounds, it held that the prisoner immunity did not apply because the juvenile was not a prisoner when he was placed in custody of his parents (27 Cal. 3d 741, 747) .

Patricia J. v. Rio Linda Union Sch. Dist. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 278, 132 Cal. Rptr. 211 , is discussed in § 196.275[3][a].

NOTE:

A ward of the juvenile court confined in a facility, including a foster home, has been held to be a prisoner for purposes of the immunity [Jiminez v. County of Santa Cruz (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 407, 411, 116 Cal. Rptr. 878] .

[d] Person Falsely Imprisoned Is Not Prisoner

The facts in Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 , are discussed in § 196.280[3][b]. The plaintiff was confined in jail beyond his proper jail term and brought an action for false imprisonment. The Supreme Court disagreed with defendant's contention that the prisoner immunity applied. It said that plaintiff was not a prisoner at the time he was allegedly falsely imprisoned. The Court explained that false imprisonment is not an injury to a prisoner, but instead, is an injury to a nonprisoner which converts him or her to a prisoner. It found that the legislature did not intend to distinguish between an individual who is wrongfully deprived of his or her liberty before the starting of a jail term and one who is wrongfully deprived of his or her liberty after the jail term ends. The Court said that continued confinement cannot legally make someone a prisoner when that person's jail term has expired, and concluded that Gov. Code § 844.6 did not apply to a case of false imprisonment (12 Cal. 3d 710, 716-717) .

[e] Parolee Is Not Prisoner

In Fearon v. Department of Corr. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1254, 209 Cal. Rptr. 309 , when plaintiff was first incarcerated in state prison, his silver belt buckle was taken by prison officials for safekeeping until his release. After he was released on parole, plaintiff demanded his property and was told that it had been lost. Plaintiff filed a complaint alleging negligent loss of the property and conversion. The trial court granted defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings and dismissed the complaint, relying solely on the immunity set forth in Gov. Code § 844.6. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment on the conversion action and affirmed on the negligence action (162 Cal.

App. 3d 1254, 1258) . Plaintiff argued that because he was paroled prior to the time defendant refused to return his property, he was not a prisoner and the statutory immunity provided by Gov. Code § 844.6 did not apply. The court detailed some of the instances in which a person is not a prisoner, concluding that a person on the way to prison and a parolee on the way out of prison are not prisoners and are not barred from bringing a tort action against a public entity (162 Cal. App. 3d 1254, 1256) . Although plaintiff was barred from injury that took place during the time he was a prisoner, he was not barred from action arising during the time his status was that of parolee rather than prisoner. On the date of his parole plaintiff had the right to immediate possession of the belt buckle. A conversion can occur when a willful failure to return property deprives the owner of possession. The court concluded that plaintiff had sufficiently alleged a claim for a conversion that occurred while he was on parole (162 Cal. App. 3d 1254, 1257) .

[f] Child Residing With Incarcerated Mother Under Pregnant and Parenting Women's Alternative Sentencing Program Act is Not Prisoner

In Lawson v. Superior Court (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 834 , a female inmate was serving a prison sentence with her infant daughter at a community-based facility pursuant to the Pregnant and Parenting Women's Alternative Sentencing Program Act, Pen. Code § 1174 et seq., which provides an alternative to state prison commitment to female prisoners with substance abuse problems who are pregnant or have young children at the time of sentencing. The inmate's daughter developed severe respiratory problems, later diagnosed as double pneumonia, but, according to the complaint, facility staff members repeatedly denied requests for treatment for eight to eleven days. A staff member eventually took the inmate's daughter for treatment, but the delay resulting in permanent injury. The inmate, on behalf of herself and her daughter, sued the State, certain state employees, the facility, and certain facility employees, including causes of action for negligence, infliction of emotional distress, and failure to furnish medical care to a prisoner under Gov. Code § 845.6. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers to most of the causes of action. Plaintiffs sought writ relief.

The court of appeal granted a writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate portions of its order sustaining the demurrers. With respect to claims brought by the mother against the State and a state employee, the court held that the demurrers were properly sustained. Because she was an inmate in the facility after being sentenced for criminal conduct, she was a prisoner for purposes of the Tort Claims Act and, pursuant to Gov. Code § 844.6, the State could not be held liable unless the complaint alleged facts showing that a state employee failed to take action when she was in need of immediate medical care. Because she could not do so, both the State and the state employee were immune from liability to the mother (180 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1384-1385) . The court ruled, however, that the daughter was not a prisoner for purposes of applying the Tort Claims Act. The court noted that under Gov. Code § 844, a "prisoner" includes an inmate of a correctional facility, and such status begins upon initial entry into a correctional facility, pursuant to penal process, for the purpose of being booked following a lawful arrest. In addition, the commonly understood meaning of the term generally designates a person in legal custody charged with some crime or public offense. Prior case law had also established that a prisoner must be confined in a correctional facility under the authority of law enforcement authorities or legal process. Under these authorities, the court of appeal concluded that the daughter was not a prisoner under the Tort Claims Act. She resided in the facility because her mother was housed there, not because she was the subject of any legal restraint. Because the daughter was not a prisoner, although neither the State nor the state employee were entitled to claim the special immunities of Gov. Code §§ 844.6 and 845.6, the complaint did not state a cause of action for failure to provide medical care to a prisoner in violation of Gov. Code § 845.6 (180 Cal. App. 4th 1372, 1385-1388) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Detained Person Is Not Prisoner

In Zeilman v. County of Kern (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1174, 214 Cal. Rptr. 746 , plaintiff, who had an injured leg and was using crutches, was arrested. While being booked, she remained standing for an extended period of time and eventually slipped and fell. Plaintiff brought an action against defendant county for damages resulting from personal injuries suffered in the fall, and the trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment based on a claim of governmental immunity pursuant to Gov. Code § 844. The court of appeal reversed, holding that plaintiff's status when injured, as either a prisoner or mere detainee awaiting booking, remained a triable issue of fact precluding summary judgment (168 Cal. App. 3d 1174, 1178-1183) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Immunity Is Only Applicable When Either Injured or One Causing Injury Is Prisoner

In Teter v. City of Newport Beach (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 446, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 66 P.3d 1225 , the plaintiff was arrested and booked into the city jail for public intoxication pursuant to Pen. Code § 647, which permits a peace officer to place a person under the influence of intoxicating liquor in civil protective custody. While in jail, the plaintiff was assaulted by another prisoner. He then sued the city for negligence, and the city defended on the grounds that it was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 844.6 because the plaintiff was a prisoner at the time of the assault. The California Supreme Court agreed that the city was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 844.6. The Court first held that a person confined in a correctional facility or institution pursuant to Pen. Code § 647 is a prisoner for purposes of Gov. Code § 844.6, because the person is being held pursuant to a penological objective. In reaching this conclusion, the Court rejected a contrary holding of the court of appeal in Meyer v. City of Oakland (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 770, 166 Cal. Rptr. 79 (30 Cal. 4th 446, 451-453) . The Court additionally held that if a person taken into custody pursuant to a valid arrest under Pen. Code § 647 is subsequently released without charges being filed, and if a certificate is issued under Pen. Code § 851.6 that describes the earlier period of custody as a "detention," that person is still considered a prisoner during the time of detention for purposes of applying the immunity of Gov. Code § 844.6 (30 Cal. 4th 446, 454) .

In Badiggo v. County of Ventura (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 357, 254 Cal. Rptr. 771 , plaintiff husband sued defendant county for injuries sustained when he fell descending the stairs at the county work furlough facility, and his wife sued for loss of consortium. Contending that it was immune from liability under Gov. Code §§ 844 and 844.6, defendant brought a motion for summary judgment. The summary judgment granted by the trial court was affirmed by the court of appeal. Plaintiff husband claimed that he was not a "prisoner" because the work facility was not a "jail" within the meaning of Gov. Code §§ 844 and 844.6. The court acknowledged the many differences between work furlough facilities and jails and prisons, but noted that the decisive element in determining whether or not a person is a prisoner is whether or not that individual was confined due to court commitment or legal process (207 Cal. App. 3d 357, 359-360) . It concluded that plaintiff's restraint satisfied the element of confinement (207 Cal. App. 3d 357, 361) . The court also rejected plaintiff wife's claim because it was based on injuries to her husband, a prisoner, and thus barred by Gov. Code § 844.6 (207 Cal. App. 3d 357, 361-362) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.275A

§ 196.275A Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Parole Decision Immunity [Gov. Code § 845.8(a)] Does Not Apply When Based on Ministerial Act

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PAROLE DECISION IMMUNITY OF GOVERNMENT CODE SECTION 845.8(a) APPLIES ONLY TO BASIC POLICY DECISIONS, SUCH AS WHETHER TO GRANT PAROLE, AND DOES NOT APPLY WHEN PLAINTIFF'S INJURY IS CAUSED BY A MINISTERIAL ACT.

Parole Decision Immunity Inapplicable to Ministerial Acts. Ministerial acts undertaken in the performance of correctional policy decisions are not covered by the parole decision immunity of Gov. Code § 845.8(a) (Perez-Torres v. State of California (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 136, 144-145, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 155, 164 P.3d 583).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the parole decision immunity of Gov. Code § 845.8(a) does not apply when plaintiff's injury is caused by a ministerial decision undertaken to implement a basic policy decision for which immunity would be available.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which the issue of defendant's liability arises. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should include facts detailing the ministerial conduct that caused plaintiff's injury and argue that immunity is not available for such conduct.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Parole Decision Immunity Inapplicable to Ministerial Acts

In Perez-Torres v. State of California (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 136, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 155, 164 P.3d 583 , plaintiff was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol. When police checked plaintiff's criminal history, they learned that he had an earlier arrest for spousal abuse. Although no charges were filed for the earlier arrest, plaintiff had erroneously been assigned the criminal identification and information (CII) number ofanother arrestee who shared the same name as plaintiff and who had served prison time for an arrest on charges of spousal abuse. Because this other arrestee was on parole when plaintiff was arrested, the decision was made to imprison plaintiff for a parole violation because of the DUI charges, even though plaintiff was not actually on parole. Despite protesting that the police had the wrong man, plaintiff remained in jail for 20 days before it was determined that plaintiff was not the man who was on parole, and plaintiff remained in jail for an additional 5 days because of a federal immigration hold also erroneously caused by the mistaken identity. Plaintiff sued the State and three parole agents for negligence, false imprisonment, and related causes of action. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendants. The court of appeal affirmed on the basis of immunity under Gov. Code § 845.8(a).

The California Supreme Court reversed. The Court first held that the error in assigning plaintiff the wrong CII number, and the subsequent decision to revoke plaintiff's (non-existent) parole based on that error, were basic policy decisions covered by the immunity of Gov. Code § 845.8(a) (42 Cal. 4th 136, 141-142) . Relying in part on its earlier analysis in Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352 , however, the Court then held that ministerial acts undertaken in the performance of correctional policy decisions are not covered by the immunity of Gov. Code § 845.8(a), overruling a contrary suggestion made by the court of appeal in Swift v. Department of Corrections (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 406 . The Supreme Court held that the distinction articulated in Johnson between basic policy decisions, for which statutory immunity is available, and ministerial decisions undertaken to implement those policy decisions, for which immunity is not generally available, applies to the immunity provided under Gov. Code § 845.8(a). In the case before it, the Court concluded that while the State's decision to revoke plaintiff's parole, even if based on erroneous information about his identity, was a policy decision covered by immunity, the failure of state personnel to release plaintiff after they knew or should have known that they were detaining the wrong person was a ministerial act not protected by immunity under Gov. Code § 845.8(a) (42 Cal. 4th 136, 144-145) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.276

§ 196.276 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Fire Fighter's Immunity [Gov. Code § 850.4] Does Not Apply--Negligent Actor Omission Unrelated to Fire Fighting

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE FIREFIGHTERS' IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 850.4 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY WHEN PLAINTIFF'S INJURIES ARE CAUSED BY A NEGLIGENT ACT THAT OCCURS DURING A RESCUE UNRELATED TO FIGHTING FIRES.

A. Immunity for Firefighters Is Not Applicable in Emergency Rescue Unrelated to Fire. An injury caused by the negligent act of firefighters employed by a public entity that occurs during a rescue incident unrelated to fighting a fire is not an injury caused in "fighting fires" pursuant to Section 850.4 of the Government Code, and the public entity and the firefighters are therefore not entitled to immunity from liability for the injury (Lewis v. Mendocino Fire Prot. Dist. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 345, 346-347, 190 Cal. Rptr. 883).

[Optional] B. Immunity for Firefighters Is Not Applicable Before Fire Starts. An injury caused by the negligent act of a firefighter employed by a public entity before a fire is started is not an injury caused in "fighting fires" pursuant to Section 850.4 of theGovernment Code, and the public entity and the firefighter are not entitled to immunity from liability for the injury (Potter v. City of Oceanside (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 564, 566, 170 Cal. Rptr. 753).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the firefighters' immunity of Gov. Code § 850.4 is not applicable because the negligent act of the firefighter that caused the plaintiff's injury did not occur during the course of fighting a fire. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 850.4 is discussed in § 196.09[12].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., Lewis v. Mendocino Fire Prot. Dist. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 345, 346, 190 Cal. Rptr. 883] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity for Firefighters Is Not Applicable in Emergency Rescue Unrelated to Fire

In Lewis v. Mendocino Fire Prot. Dist. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 345, 190 Cal. Rptr. 883 , plaintiff was injured when a tree fell on his tent, trapping him underneath. Members of defendant fire department attempted to rescue him, but in the course of the rescue they negligently dropped the tree on plaintiff twice, causing him further injuries. In plaintiff's negligence action against defendant, the trial court sustained defendant's demurrer and entered judgment for defendants on the basis of the firefighters' immunity. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that Gov. Code § 850.4 does not grant immunity to a fire district when its personnel negligently injure a person rescued during a nonfirefighting incident (142 Cal. App. 3d 345, 346) . The court said that Gov. Code § 850.4 should be construed to bar governmental liability only when the legislature has clearly intended to provide immunity, and that in governmental tort cases, liability is the rule and immunity is the exception. It quoted the language of Gov. Code § 850.4, which specifies injury caused in fighting fires. The court observed that the legislature could have exempted firefighters from tort liability from all emergency rescue operation, not merely those related to combatting fires, but chose not to do so (142 Cal. App. 3d 345, 347-348) .

[b] Immunity for Firefighters Is Not Applicable Before Fire Starts

In Potter v. City of Oceanside (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 564, 170 Cal. Rptr. 753 , plaintiff was operating a trenching machine that broke a natural gas line, causing gas to escape. He summoned help, and employees of defendant city's fire department arrived. The fire captain negligently told plaintiff to start the trenching machine and move it from the area. When plaintiff did so, the escaping gas caused a fire that injured him. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer to plaintiff's negligence complaint on the ground that defendant was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 850.4 and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, reasoning that pursuant to Gov. Code § 850.4, the legislature could have granted immunity to firefighters "acting in the scope of their employment" or "acting to prevent fires," but chose to bar liability only for injuries caused in "fighting fires." The court then held that plaintiff's complaint was not barred by Gov. Code § 850.4 because the negligent act of the firefighter occurred before any fire started (114 Cal. App. 3d 564, 566) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Immunity for Firefighters Is Not Applicable Before Fire Starts

In City & County of San Francisco v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 837, 207 Cal. Rptr. 6 , after their property was damaged by fire, plaintiffs filed a complaint for damages against defendant city and individual firefighters of defendant's fire department. Plaintiffs alleged that those firefighters participated in an improper social gathering on the evening of the fire, leaving the fire station nearest plaintiff's property unattended, and intentionally, negligently, wilfully, and wrongfully failed to carry out their duties. The trial court failed to grant defendants' demurrer. The court of appeal granted a peremptory writ of mandate directing the trial court to set aside its order overruling defendants' demurrer, sustain the demurrer, and enter judgment for defendants. The court said that firefighters are immune from liability for injuries caused in fighting fires. The court disagreed with plaintiffs' contention that the legislature never intended immunity for willful misconduct (160 Cal. App. 3d 837, 841). It said that the absolute immunity of Gov. Code § 850.4 absolved defendant from liability for acts of itself or its employees while they are fighting fires. Although the immunity does not apply if firefighters are engaged in an activity other than fighting fires, the court said that getting to the firequickly is of the very essence of fighting fires. The court further observed that even if Gov. Code § 850.4 could be so narrowly construed to apply to actions only after firefighters reached the fire, the immunity of Gov. Code § 850 (failure to provide fire protection service) would apply (160 Cal. App. 3d 837, 842) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.277

§ 196.277 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Fire Fighter's Immunity [Gov. Code § 850.4] Does Not Apply--Waiver of Immunity by Public Entity or Employee

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE FIREFIGHTERS' IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 850.4 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY WHEN THE DEFENDANT WAIVED THE IMMUNITY BY NOT PLEADING AND PROVING IT.

Firefighters' Immunity Is Not Applicable After Waiver by Defendant. The defendant's failure to plead and prove the immunity provided by Section 850.4 of the Government Code will be deemed a waiver of that immunity (McMahan's of Santa Monica v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 689, 194 Cal. Rptr. 582).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the firefighters' immunity of Gov. Code § 850.4 is not applicable because the defendant waived that immunity by failing to plead and prove it. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 850.4 is discussed in § 196.09[12].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief [see, e.g., McMahan's of Santa Monica v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 689, 194 Cal. Rptr. 582] .

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Firefighters' Immunity Is Not Applicable After Waiver by Defendant

In McMahan's of Santa Monica v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 194 Cal. Rptr. 582 , plaintiff's furniture store and inventory were damaged when a water main owned and operated by defendant city broke and spewed forth water. Plaintiff brought suit against defendant on several causes of action. Subsequently, due to the liquidation of defendant's insurer, all the causes of action except inverse condemnation were voluntarily dismissed. The trial court entered judgment for plaintiff on the inverse condemnation suit. Defendant appealed the judgment, and plaintiff appealed the damage award as inadequate.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court observed that defendant city had failed to plead and prove the immunity provided by Gov. Code § 850.4. The court said that immunity was considered an affirmative defense and must be plead and proven or is deemed waived. Thus, the court concluded it did not need to decide the question of whether the facts presented would have shown an immunity (146 Cal. App. 3d 683, 689) .

186 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.278

§ 196.278 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Discretionary Immunity [Gov. Code § 820.2] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE DISCRETIONARY IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 820.2 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY BECAUSE THE PUBLIC EMPLOYEE'S ACT WAS NOT DISCRETIONARY, BUT WAS MERELY AN IMPLEMENTATION OF A BASIC POLICY DECISION.

A. Discretionary Immunity Only Applies to Basic Policy Decisions. The discretionary act immunity afforded to public employees by Section 820.2 of the Government Code is only applicable when the employee makes a basic policy decision. Subsequent implementation of that basic decision is ministerial, not discretionary, and therefore not immune (Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 794, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907 ; Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 793-798, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352).

[Optional] B. Negligent Implementation of Discretionary Decision Is Not Immune. When an injury results from the negligent implementation of a discretionary decision, there is no immunity (McCorkle v. City of Los Angeles (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 252, 261-262, 74 Cal. Rptr. 389, 449 P.2d 453).

[Optional] C. Contents of Discussion With Press Is Not Discretionary. A public official's decision to discuss a matter of public interest with the press and the decision concerning the contents of that discussion are not basic policy decisions and thus not discretionary acts immune from liability (Sanborn v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 406, 414-416, 134 Cal. Rptr. 402, 556 P.2d 764).

[Optional] D. Decision Not to Warn of Latent Danger From Patient Is Not Discretionary. When a psychiatrist is informed by a patient that the patient is going to harm a specific person physically, the decision not to tell that person of that threat is not a basic policy decision and thus not a discretionary act immune from liability (Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 444-447, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334).

[Optional] E. Effectuation of Legislative Policy Is Not Discretionary. A public official's determination of whether or not standards set by statute and state regulation have been met is not a basic policy decision and thus not a discretionary act immune from liability, because the basic policy decision was made in the setting of the standards (Ramos v. County of Madera (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 685, 692-695, 94 Cal. Rptr. 421, 484 P.2d 93).

[Optional] F. Manner of Conducting Police Investigation Is Not Discretionary. While a police officer's decision to investigate an accident may be discretionary, the officer's negligent choice of a method to conduct the investigation is ministerial and thus not immune (McCorkle v. City of Los Angeles (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 252, 259-261, 74 Cal. Rptr. 389, 449 P.2d 453).

[Optional] G. Public Official's Duties in Determining Whether Document Recordable Is Not Discretionary. The factors considered by a county surveyor in determining whether or not surveys can properly be recorded are statutorily prescribed and do not involve discretion, and thus the surveyor's decision is not immune from liability (Wheeler v. County of San Bernardino (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 848-849, 143 Cal. Rptr. 295).

[Optional] H. Determination of Fulfillment of Residency Requirements Is Not Discretionary. The determination by the county clerk and an elections board of whether or not residency requirements are met by potential voters is ministerial and thus the decision is not immune from liability (Fenton v. Groveland Cmty. Servs. Dist. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 797, 806-807, 185 Cal. Rptr. 758).

[Optional] I. Notice of Proposed Disposition of Exhibits Used in Criminal Case Is Not Discretionary. The notification of the attorneys of record and parties not represented by attorneys of the proposed disposition of exhibits used in a criminal case is not discretionary, and the destruction of exhibits without that notice renders the governmental entity liable to the owner for conversion of exhibits that should have been returned (Tallmadge v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 251, 254-255, 236 Cal. Rptr. 338 , construing predecessor statute).

[Optional] J. Deputy Public Defender Not Immune When Representing Criminal Defendant. A deputy public defender is not immune from liability for acts or omissions made in the course of providing legal representation to a criminal defendant, because these are operational decisions that are incident to the normal functioning of the office of the public defender and are not the type of discretionary policy decisions that are immunized from liability (Barner v. Leeds (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 676, 688, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 13 P.3d 704).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the discretionary act immunity of Gov. Code § 820.2 is not applicable because the act of the public employee was not discretionary, but instead was an implementation of a basic policy decision. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 820.2 is discussed in § 196.10[1].

These points and authorities may, in an appropriate case, be combined with the points and authorities set out in § 196.279 (relating to application of the law enforcement immunity), when Optional Paragraph G (relating to conduct of investigation) is used. They may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Johnson v. California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 784, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Discretionary Act Immunity

The discretionary act immunity of Gov. Code § 820.2 is one of the most important of the immunities because of its general application. It is also one of the hardest immunities to analyze because of the difficulties of drawing the line between discretionary policy decisions and ministerial implementation of those decisions. The courts have not set out a general rule concerning what is discretionary and what is ministerial. In arguing against the application of the immunity, counsel should emphasize that the action that damaged his or her client was an improper implementation of a basic policy decision, not the policy decision itself. Therefore, it is important to analyze the situation carefully and make the proper distinctions between discretionary policy decisions and ministerial implementation.

[c] Procedural Considerations

Although the issue of whether or not the discretionary immunity applies to immunize the public entity has been decided at the demurrer stage [see, e.g., Thompson v. County of Alameda (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 741, 746, 167 Cal. Rptr. 70, 614 P.2d 728 ; Watts v. County of Sacramento (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 232, 234, 186 Cal. Rptr. 154] , there is authority indicating that the requisite showing cannot be made by a defendant at the demurrer stage [see Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 794, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907] . To be entitled to the immunity, the public entity must make a showing that a basic policy decision, consciously balancing risks and advantages, took place. The fact that an employee normally engages in discretionary activity is irrelevant if, in a given case, the employee did not render a considered decision. Such a showing cannot be made at the demurrer stage [Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 794, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907] . Indeed, the applicability of any statutory immunity does not even arise until it is determined that a defendant otherwise owes a duty of care to the plaintiff [Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 785, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907] .

[d] Federal Civil Rights Actions

The discretionary act immunity of Gov. Code § 820.2 does not provide immunity to public employees in federal civil rights actions [Guillory v. County of Orange (9th Cir. 1984) 731 F.2d 1379, 1382 ; for additional discussion of the relation of immunities provided by the California Tort Claims Act to federal civil rights actions, see § 196.279[2]]. For memoranda of points and authorities relating to civil rights generally, see Ch. 35, Civil Rights: Unruh Civil Rights Act and Ch. 35A, Civil Rights: Equal Protection .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discretionary Immunity Only Applies to Basic Policy Decisions

In Lopez v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 780, 221 Cal. Rptr. 840, 710 P.2d 907 , while plaintiffs were passengers on board a bus owned and operated by defendant transit district, a group of juveniles began harassing other passengers and a violent argument ensued. The bus driver was notified of the altercation but failed to take any precautionary measures, and continued to operate the bus. The argument escalated into a violent physical fight and plaintiffs were injured. Plaintiffs alleged that there was a history of violent and assaultive conduct by passengers on that bus route, and that defendant was fully aware of that history and the risk posed to passengers. When plaintiffs brought a personal injury action against it, defendant demurred, arguing that it had no duty to protect passengers from assaults by fellow passengers and that it was immune from liability under Gov. Code §§ 845, 820.2, and 815.2(b). The trial court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the action. Plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed and remanded. The Court concluded that plaintiffs' complaint alleged facts sufficient to establish the existence of a duty and that the facts alleged did not implicate either Gov. Code § 845 (immunity for failure to provide police protection) or Gov. Code § 820.2 to bar plaintiffs from bringing the action. The Court emphasized that its holding was limited, and said it did not hold that defendant breached its duty to plaintiff, or that Gov. Code §§ 845 and 820.2 would necessarily be inapplicable to the facts of the case as those facts unfold during discovery and at trial (40 Cal. 3d 780, 796) . In its discussion of the Gov. Code § 820.2 immunity, the Court said that any act, no matter how ministerial, involves some degree of discretion and judgment in the literal sense. Gov. Code § 820.2 confers immunity only for those basic policy decisions which have been committed to coordinate branches of government; it does not immunize government entities from liability for subsequent ministerial actions taken in the implementation of those basic policy decisions. This distinction is often characterized as that between the planning and operation levels of decision making (40 Cal. 3d 780, 793) . The Court said that the basic policy decision concerning protection of passengers was a decision made by the legislature in enacting Civ. Code § 2100 and in authorizing defendant to conduct business as a common carrier. It said that Civ. Code § 2100 requires bus drivers to act to protect passengers from assaults by fellow passengers, at least to the extent required by the exercise of utmost care and diligence and consistent withtheir personal safety. Furthermore, the Court observed that an individual bus driver's decision concerning what form of protective action to take in a particular case does not rise to the level of governmental decisions calling for judicial restraint. Rather, it is the kind of ministerial, operational action taken to implement the legislature's basic policy decision that is not immunized by Gov. Code § 820.2. The fact that in a particular case a bus driver might have alternative courses of action from which to choose and this choice might involve a certain degree of judgment, does not elevate the driver's decision to the level of basic policy. Moreover, the Court said that even if a bus driver's decision concerning what kind of protective action to take could be considered a discretionary one, it would be improper to sustain defendant's demurrer on the basis of Gov. Code § 820.2. Gov. Code § 820.2 provides immunity only for the acts or omissions that are the result of the exercise of the discretion vested in a public employee. Thus, to avail itself of the discretionary immunity a public entity must prove that the employee, in deciding to perform (or not to perform) the act which led to a plaintiff's injury, consciously exercised discretion in the sense of assuming certain risks in order to gain other policy objectives. To be entitled to immunity, the public entity must make a showing that such a policy decision, consciously balancing risks and advantages, took place. The fact that an employee normally engages in discretionary activity is irrelevant if, in a given case, the employee did not render a considered decision. Such a showing was not and could not have been made by a defendant at the demurrer stage (40 Cal. 3d 780, 794) .

Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352 , was a personal injury action brought by a foster parent who had been assaulted by a foster child placed in her home. Plaintiff sued the state alleging that the placement officer had negligently failed to warn her of the known dangerous propensities of the child. The trial court entered summary judgment for defendant. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court said the determinative issue was whether the placement officer's failure to warn was protected by the discretionary immunity of Gov. Code § 820.2. The Court rejected a strictly semantic inquiry into the meaning of "discretionary" because almost any act admits of some element of discretion and it was clear that such a broad definition was not intended by the legislature. The Court concluded that the issue must be judged on the basis of the underlying policy reasons for the immunity (69 Cal. 2d 782, 787-790) . The Court found that the danger that public employees would be insufficiently zealous in the performance of their duties was not the reason for the immunity because public employees do not have to defend themselves or pay judgments against themselves in actions arising out of their employment (69 Cal. 2d 782, 790-793) . The Court held that the discretionary act immunity was intended to protect officials making basic policy decisions and not to protect the ministerial implementation of such basic policy decisions (69 Cal. 2d 782, 793-794) . To be entitled to the immunity, the public entity must be able to show that a policy decision, consciously balancing risks and advantages, took place (69 Cal. 2d 782, 794-795 n.8). Based on the distinction between discretionary or planning decisions and ministerial or operational decisions, the Court found that, although the decision to place a foster child might have been discretionary, the decision not to warn the parents of the child's violent propensities was clearly only a ministerial implementation of the placement decision and not entitled to immunity (69 Cal. 2d 782, 797-798) .

[b] Negligent Implementation of Discretionary Decision Is Not Immune

In McCorkle v. City of Los Angeles (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 252, 74 Cal. Rptr. 389, 449 P.2d 453 , plaintiff was injured following an automobile accident. A police officer employed by defendant city investigated the accident, and during that investigation requested plaintiff to show him the skid marks in the road. In so doing, plaintiff was struck by another car. Plaintiff brought suit against defendant city, alleging his injuries were caused by the officer's negligence. The trial court entered judgment on the verdict for plaintiff. Defendant city appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court said that even if the act of a public employee was discretionary, immunity will not result if the injury to another results, not from the public employee's exercise of the discretion vested in him or her to undertake the act, but from that employee's negligence in performance after having made the discretionary decision to do so. Thus, even if the police officer exercised his discretion in undertaking the accident investigation, Gov. Code § 820.2 did not clothe him with immunity from the consequences of his negligence in conducting it. There would only have been immunity if plaintiff's injury was the result of the officer's exercise of discretion. The Court concluded that plaintiff's injury was the result of the officer's negligence after any discretion had been exercised (70 Cal. 2d 252, 261-262) .

[c] Contents of Discussion With Press Is Not Discretionary

In Sanborn v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 406, 134 Cal. Rptr. 402, 556 P.2d 764 , plaintiff brought a defamation action based on statements made by a county clerk to a newspaper reporter in explanation of why the clerk released certain funds to plaintiff. The trial court judgment was for plaintiff. Defendants appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court found that the statements were not privileged (18 Cal. 3d 406, 412-414) . It then foundthat the decision to talk to the press was not a discretionary act in the nature of a basic policy decision made at the planning stage of the city's operations. Rather, the decision was a routine, ministerial act, and thus the discretionary act immunity did not apply (18 Cal. 3d 406, 415) .

[d] Decision Not to Warn of Latent Danger From Patient Is Not Discretionary

Tarasoff v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 425, 131 Cal. Rptr. 14, 551 P.2d 334 , was a wrongful death action brought by the parents of a murdered young woman. The action was based on the failure of psychotherapists employed by a public university to warn the young woman that a patient had threatened to kill her. The patient later made good on his threat. The trial court sustained demurrers to the complaint. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. It held that the psychotherapists owed a duty to the victim. It then held that defendants were not immune from liability for their failure to warn the victim of the latent danger. The Court said the decision of whether or not to warn did not rise to the level of a basic policy decision required for a discretionary act (17 Cal. 3d 425, 445-446) .

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 43.92, enacted after Tarasoff, establishes limitations on a psychotherapist's duty to predict, warn, and protect a third person from a patient's violent behavior.

[e] Effectuation of Legislative Policy Is Not Discretionary

In Ramos v. County of Madera (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 685, 94 Cal. Rptr. 421, 484 P.2d 93 , officials of defendant county terminated plaintiff's welfare payments because her minor children refused to work harvesting grapes. Plaintiff recipient brought a class action for injunctive relief and damages. The trial court sustained a demurrer on the basis of failure to exhaust administrative remedies. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed, holding that plaintiffs did not have to exhaust administrative remedies. It then discussed defendant's claims of immunity based on the discretionary act immunity. The Court held that the officials were not exercising discretion in cutting off welfare because state law and regulations determined who was eligible and left no room for discretion in local officials. Also, the officials did not have discretion to coerce plaintiffs to violate state law by having minors work without work permits (4 Cal. 3d 685, 694) .

[f] Manner of Conducting Police Investigation Is Not Discretionary

McCorkle v. City of Los Angeles (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 252, 74 Cal. Rptr. 389, 449 P.2d 453 , is discussed in § 196.278[3][b].

[g] Public Official's Duties in Determining Whether Document Recordable Is Not Discretionary

In Wheeler v. County of San Bernardino (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 143 Cal. Rptr. 295 , plaintiff brought an action for damages to real property alleging that the county surveyor of defendant county allowed a survey to be recorded when he knew or should have known it was inaccurate. The trial court sustained a general demurrer and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court found that the function of the county surveyor in connection with the recording of a survey is set forth by state statute. Thus, it held that the surveyor was not engaged in discretionary activity when he was engaged in his statutory duty to examine the survey and determine if it should be filed. Such duties did not amount to basic policy decisions (76 Cal. App. 3d 841, 849) .

[h] Determination of Fulfillment of Residency Requirements Is Not Discretionary

Fenton v. Groveland Cmty. Servs. Dist (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 797, 185 Cal. Rptr. 758 , was an action for damages for denial of plaintiffs' right to vote. The trial court dismissed the action for failure to make a timely amendment to the complaint after sustaining defendants' demurrer. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded the case. The court found that in determining if potential voters met residency requirements the county clerk and elections board were exercising a ministerial task (135 Cal. App. 3d 797, 806-807) . Thus, the court held that the grant of governmental immunity in Gov. Code § 820.2 did not immunize defendant officials when they denied plaintiffs the right to vote (135 Cal. App. 3d 797, 807) .

[i] Notice of Proposed Disposition of Exhibits Used in Criminal Case Is Not Discretionary

In Tallmadge v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 251, 236 Cal. Rptr. 338 , when plaintiff was prosecuted for unlawful possession of firearms, machine guns and other firearms were seized and used as evidence in the case. Plaintiff was convicted of unlawful possession of machine guns, but was not convicted of unlawful possession of the otherfirearms. All the firearms were destroyed pursuant to court order without notice to plaintiffs as required by former Penal Code § 1418 [now see Penal Code § 1417.7] and contrary to the representation of the deputy district attorney that the guns would be returned without the necessity for plaintiff to initiate legal process for their recovery. Plaintiff and the co-owner of the firearms then sued the county and the deputy district attorney. The trial court granted defendants' motion for summary judgment on the ground of governmental immunity (191 Cal. App. 3d 251, 253) .

The court of appeal reversed the judgment with directions. The court held that although plaintiffs were barred by governmental immunity from stating a cause of action for misrepresentation based on the district attorney's statements [see Gov. Code §§ 818.8, 822.2], their complaint stated a cause of action against the county for conversion, which is not barred by statutory governmental immunity (191 Cal. App. 3d 251, 253-254) . With regard to defendant's contention that it was immune by application of the discretionary act immunity, the court held that the provisions of former Penal Code § 1418 were mandatory and hence immunity for discretionary acts did not bar the suit (191 Cal. App. 3d 251, 255) .

NOTE:

Penal Code § 1417.7 provides that no less than 15 days before any proposed disposition of an exhibit, the court must notify the district attorney (or other prosecuting attorney), the attorney of record of each party, and each party who is not represented by counsel of the proposed disposition.

[j] Deputy Public Defender Not Immune When Representing Criminal Defendant

In Barner v. Leeds (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 676, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 13 P.3d 704 , the plaintiff was represented by a deputy public defender in an underlying criminal action in which the plaintiff was convicted for taking part in a bank robbery. In the course of the underlying representation, the deputy public defender chose not to file a motion for disclosure of confidential informants mentioned in the case file or to conduct an independent investigation regarding the informants or the information they revealed to police authorities, despite the fact that information in the file suggested that there may have been information available that was favorable to the defense. Although the plaintiff was convicted in the criminal action and incarcerated for more than one year, the plaintiff was subsequently found to have been factually innocent of the charges, and his conviction was set aside when the actual bank robber was apprehended. The plaintiff then brought a lawsuit that included a legal malpractice action against the deputy public defender who represented him in the criminal action, alleging negligence in failing to investigate and act on the information regarding the confidential informants. The deputy public defender moved for summary judgment, contending that, as a public employee, she was immune from liability for discretionary acts or omissions under Gov. Code § 820.2. The trial court agreed and granted the motion. The court of appeal reversed, however, concluding that deputy public defenders were subject to liability for legal malpractice unless and until the legislature clearly provided for discretionary immunity for those particular public employees.

The California Supreme Court agreed that the trial court erred in granting summary judgment for the deputy public defender, although the Court rejected the analysis of the court of appeal, which centered on whether or not the legislature expressly provided discretionary acts immunity to deputy public defenders. The Supreme Court noted that the legislature has clearly provided discretionary acts immunity for all public employees, so long as the acts or omissions are the type of acts or omissions protected by the statute. However, case law beginning with Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352 [see § 196.278[3][a]], had established that immunity under Gov. Code § 820.2 is limited to basic policy decisions that are expressly committed to coordinate branches of government and as to which judicial interference would be inappropriate, and does not extend to lower-level acts or omissions that are merely operational in nature. Therefore, the issue to be decided was whether or not the actions of the deputy public defender while representing a criminal defendant were policy decisions protected by the statute or operational decisions that were not protected (24 Cal. 4th 676, 684-685) .

Relying on the analysis and conclusions of Johnson and its progeny, the Court concluded that once a deputy public defender has undertaken to represent a criminal defendant, discretionary acts immunity does not protect the public defender's actions implementing the basic decision to provide representation, to the extent those actions do not implicate policy-level decisions. Therefore, the actions taken by the defendant while representing the plaintiff in the underlying robbery prosecution were not protected by discretionary acts immunity (24 Cal. 4th 676, 687) . The Court noted that although legal representation includes difficult choices among often complex alternatives and the exercise of professional skill and judgment, the attorney's actions for purposes of Gov. Code § 820.2 ordinarily involve operational judgments that implement the initial decision to provide representation to the client. Moreover, holding deputy public defenders liable for malpractice merely subjects these attorneys to the same standards and principles of liability applicable to private attorneys performing identical services in the same type of proceedings, and does not result in unwarranted judicial interference in the affairs of the other branches of government (24 Cal. 4th 676, 688) . The Court also rejectedvarious policy arguments advanced by the defendant suggesting reasons that deputy public defenders ought to be provided discretionary acts immunity, ultimately concluding that these policy arguments are properly addressed to the legislature and not the courts (24 Cal. 4th 676, 690-691) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Discretionary Immunity Only Applies to Basic Policy Decisions

In Ogborn v. City of Lancaster (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 448, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238 , the plaintiffs brought an action against a city and individual city officials after the city, as part of a nuisance abatement program and pursuant to a valid warrant, destroyed the rental house in which the plaintiffs were living. The plaintiffs alleged that the city failed to provide due process before destroying their home and belongings, and asserted causes of action for civil rights violations under federal law and the California Constitution, as well as claims for trespass and conversion. The defendants successfully moved for summary judgment on the grounds of qualified immunity. The court of appeal affirmed in part and reversed in part. Although the qualified immunity doctrine protected the individual defendants from the civil rights claims, that doctrine did not protect against the state tort claims. The court then considered whether the individual defendants were protected from tort liability under Gov. Code § 820.2. The court briefly reviewed the distinction between basic policy decisions, which are afforded protection under the statute, and ministerial decisions, which implement basic policy decisions and are not afforded protection. The court then concluded that one city official, the director of the department of community development, was immune from tort liability under the statute for his role in administering the nuisance abatement program, because his role was limited to conducting the initial hearing at which the relevant property was declared a public nuisance. However, another city official who actively participated in implementing the nuisance abatement program with respect to the property at issue was not immune under the statute, because he was present at the time the house was bulldozed and in fact gave the order to demolish the house, conduct that was ministerial in nature (101 Cal. App. 4th 448, 461) .

In Wallace v. City of Los Angeles (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1385, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113 , the mother of a witness in a criminal trial who was murdered after anonymous threats against her life, brought a wrongful death action against the police officer in charge of the criminal case and the city having jurisdiction over the police force. The individual defendant, a detective in the police agency in question, persuaded the decedent to testify in a murder trial. After it became apparent that she was an important witness, the decedent's mother received an anonymous telephone call threatening decedent's life if she testified. Evidence at the trial conflicted with regard to the extent to which decedent engaged in conversations with the defendant concerning her safety, and the degree of fear that the decedent expressed to him. Nevertheless, the evidence showed that she was concerned about her safety, and that the defendant assured her that she was in no danger because her testimony was not needed, in that there were cumulative witnesses. Based on that assurance, the decedent, a college student, allegedly did not alter her daily routine, nor did she seek refuge with relatives. Allegedly, the defendant told the decedent and plaintiff, with whom she lived, that if he felt she were in danger, he would tell her and remove her from her home, that none of the people in the house needed to take precautions regarding daily routines, and that there was no need to provide police protection. Based on the immunity afforded by Gov. Code § 845, the trial court granted nonsuit in favor of both defendants, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment, and remanded the case. The court first discussed the individual defendant's duty of care to the decedent, concluding that he had a duty to warn based of the creation of a peril (12 Cal. App. 4th 1385, 1401-1402) . With respect to Gov. Code § 820.2, the court stated that the defendant did not engage in discretionary acts when he (1) minimized the importance of the threatening phone call that the plaintiff received, (2) determined at various points in his murder investigation that he would not inform the decedent or plaintiff about the criminal defendant's possible involvement in other murders or his threats against other witnesses, (3) determined that he would not inform them that he considered the criminal defendant to be a threat to the community at large and especially to persons who might testify against him, and (4) determined that he would not offer protection to decedent despite what he knew about the phone call and about the criminal defendant. The court stated the established rule that the decision to warn or not warn of foreseeable, latent dangers does not rise to the level of a basic policy decision that constitutes a discretionary act (12 Cal. App. 4th 1385, 1403) . The court held that although the defendant's decision to offer the decedent to the prosecutor as a witness may have been a discretionary one, his subsequent decisions to refrain from warning her about the danger associated with her role of witness and refrain from offering her protection were not (12 Cal. App. 4th 1385, 1404) .

Bohrer v. County of San Diego (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 155, 163 Cal. Rptr. 419 , was a wrongful death action brought after the deceased died of a drug overdose. Plaintiffs alleged that employees of defendant county had negligently increased decedent's prescription for drugs after notice of her abuse of those drugs, and that such abuse caused her death. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer and dismissed the action. The court of appeal reversed. It held that the decision to increase the prescriptionafter notice of abuse was not a discretionary act such that defendant was immune from liability, even though the decision to allow decedent to administer her own medication may have been a discretionary act (104 Cal. App. 3d 155, 162) .

In Elton v. County of Orange (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 84 Cal. Rptr. 27 , plaintiff was injured when she was placed in a foster home where she was mistreated. She brought an action against defendant county alleging that its employees failed to properly investigate and supervise her placement. The complaint was dismissed after a general demurrer was sustained. The court of appeal reversed. It held that the acts of defendant in implementing the decision to place a child in a foster home were ministerial and did not amount to basic policy decisions (3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 1058) .

In Connelly v. State of California (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 744, 84 Cal. Rptr. 257 , plaintiff brought a negligence action on various causes against the state when, in reliance on information received from the state regarding how high the river would rise, plaintiff set his marina docks too low and they were damaged when the river rose higher than predicted. Defendant's demurrers were sustained and judgment entered accordingly. The court of appeal affirmed and reversed in part. It found that defendant was not protected from liability by the discretionary act immunity. The court distinguished between the planning and operational levels of decision making, observing that planning and basic policy decisions are discretionary acts within the scope of the immunity, while the administrative duties that carry out policy decisions are not. It found that the determination to issue flood forecasts was a policy making function, a discretionary activity within the scope of governmental immunity, while gathering, evaluating, and disseminating flood forecast information were administrative or ministerial activities outside the scope of governmental immunity. Thus, the question of whether the unprotected acts were performed negligently must be determined from the facts (3 Cal. App. 3d 744, 750-751) .

[b] Negligent Implementation of Discretionary Decision Is Not Immune

In Newton v. County of Napa (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1551, 266 Cal. Rptr. 682 , parents brought suit on various causes of action against various county agencies on behalf of themselves and as guardians ad litem for their children after defendants had subjected each of the children to a body search after receiving a report of child abuse. The trial court granted defendants' demurrer and dismissed the case. The court of appeal reversed dismissal on some of the causes of action. The court explained that Welf. & Inst. Code § 16504 requires county welfare departments to carry out an immediate in-person response in emergency situations after receiving a report of child abuse, and that Welf. & Inst. Code § 16513 and Gov. Code § 820.4 provide immunity for such investigations. The court observed that such a response implies a prior determination that an emergency exists. Thus, defendants are immune from liability for the decision to conduct an in-person response to an emergency situation. However, the immunity does not extend beyond actions implied in the decision to investigate (217 Cal. App. 3d 1551, 1560) . Thus, the court concluded that defendants' immunity from liability for the various causes of action depended on whether or not their actions went beyond the actions necessary for an investigation. Accordingly, defendants were granted full immunity in the action for invasion of privacy which alleged no gratuitous actions unnecessary for a proper investigation, partial immunity to the action for negligent infliction of emotional distress, which alleged negligence not only in the decision to investigate but in certain abusive actions by defendants that were unrelated to a proper investigation, and no immunity to the causes of action for battery and false imprisonment (217 Cal. App. 3d 1551, 1561-1562) .

[c] Contents of Discussion With Press Is Not Discretionary

In H & M Assocs. v. City of El Centro (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 167 Cal. Rptr. 392 , plaintiff limited partnership owned and operated a large apartment complex. Defendants city and members of the city council knew that plaintiff had made an application for refinancing with the Federal Housing Authority and that plaintiff had contractual relationships with its tenants. Defendant city furnished water to the apartment complex through eight separate water meters, each with its own account number. Through its city manager, defendant city terminated water service to the apartment complex without notifying plaintiff of its intent to do so, without providing plaintiff with either a hearing or an opportunity to pay the delinquent amount due, and after plaintiff had tendered payment on seven of the eight accounts. The city manager, by telephone, then notified the mortgagees, the FHA, the local newspaper, and several other government agencies that the water service had been terminated and would not be reinstated. As a result of defendants' action, plaintiff lost numerous tenants, and became unable to pay the mortgage payments. The mortgages were foreclosed, the premises sold, and plaintiff lost the property. Plaintiff brought an action against defendants for intentional interference with contractual relationships, invasion of privacy, and conspiracy, alleging that defendants acted with the intent to interfere with and disrupt plaintiff's contractual relationships based on their hope to buy the property at a bargain price at the foreclosure sale. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer and dismissed the action.

The court of appeal reversed. In its decision the court addressed defendants' assertion that the actions of its city manager were discretionary in nature for which immunity is granted to the public employee and vicariously to the public entity. They urged that the city ordinance giving thecity manager wide latitude in functioning as the administrative head of the government of te city under the direction and control of the city council supported the discretionary nature of his actions. The court was not persuaded by defendants' argument, quoting authority that to be entitled to immunity the public entity must make a showing that a policy decision, consciously balancing risks and advantages, took place. The fact that an employee normally engages in "discretionary activity" is irrelevant if, in a given case, the employee did not render a considered decision (109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 406-407) . The court observed that the ordinance neither refers to nor describes the alleged conduct as discretionary. Even if it was so labeled, the court doubted that a decision of a city manager to terminate water service to a customer fell within the ambit of planning as contrasted to the operational level of decision making. The court concluded that defendants failed to make the required showing necessary for immunity (109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 407) .

Toney v. State of California (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 779, 126 Cal. Rptr. 869 , was an action for defamation and intentional infliction of emotional distress based in part on press releases issued discussing plaintiff's actions. The trial court entered judgment for plaintiff, and the court of appeal affirmed. It held that although the decision to issue a press release was discretionary, the timing, content, and manner of release, were ministerial acts and the state was not immune from liability arising from those ministerial acts (54 Cal. App. 3d 779, 793) .

[d] Manner of Conducting Police Investigation Is Not Discretionary

In Green v. City of Livermore (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 82, 172 Cal. Rptr. 461 , plaintiffs' car was struck by an intoxicated driver driving the car of a person arrested a short time before for drunk driving. During their investigation of the drunk driving, the police officers of defendant city had failed to impound the car or remove the keys, thereby allowing the intoxicated passenger of the car to drive it from the scene of the arrest and collide with plaintiffs' car. Plaintiffs sued defendant for their injuries. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer and dismissed the action. The court of appeal reversed, reasoning that the allegations did not involve the discretion of the officers in deciding whether or not to investigate the car, but instead, only their negligence in the conduct of the discretionary investigation. The court then held that neither the discretionary immunity of Gov. Code § 820.2, nor the specific discretionary immunity for failure to enforce a statute (Gov. Code §§ 821, 818.2), immunized defendant from the legal consequences of the officers' negligence in failing to remove the keys from the vehicle (117 Cal. App. 3d 82, 87-89) .

NOTE:

The Green case has been criticized for its discussion of the pleading of the special relationship between the investigating officer and the injured plaintiff [see Lehto v. City of Oxnard (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 285, 292-294, 217 Cal. Rptr. 450] .

Gibson v. City of Pasadena (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 651, 148 Cal. Rptr. 68 , was a wrongful death action in which the decedent was killed when a car being chased by the police for running a red light crashed into his car. The action alleged negligence by the police in chasing the vehicle. The trial court's dismissal of the action after sustaining defendant's demurrer was reversed by the court of appeal. It held that the decision to stop the driver was a discretionary act, but that the implementation of that decision by chasing the driver at over 100 miles-per-hour was ministerial and thus the discretionary act immunity did not preclude liability (83 Cal. App. 3d 651, 659-660) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Discretionary Immunity Only Applies to Basic Policy Decisions

In Caldwell v. Montoya (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 972, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842, 897 P.2d 1320 , plaintiff, who had been a school district superintendent, sought damages from individual members of an elected school board for voting to terminate his employment. Plaintiff alleged that defendants' motivation for their votes was race and age discrimination. The defendants demurred, claiming discretionary immunity under Gov. Code § 820.2. The trial court agreed, sustained the demurrer, and entered judgment dismissing the individual defendants. The court of appeal reversed, concluding that the complaint did not establish defendants' claim of personal immunity for discretionary acts because such immunity turns on the factual question of whether defendants' conduct involved conscious consideration of risks and benefits (10 Cal. 4th 972, 977) . The California Supreme Court reversed the court of appeal, concluding that the trial court was correct that Gov. Code § 820.2 provided discretionary act immunity (10 Cal. 4th 972, 978) . The Court noted that the test for whether an act is an immune discretionary act distinguishes between "planning" and "operational" functions of government (10 Cal. 4th 972, 981) . The Court also stated that the board's decision about who should be superintendent is a peculiarly sensitive and subjective choice, and that it would be unwise to hold individual board members personally accountable at law for things they said in the course of deliberations of such a matter. Plaintiff argued that because his discrimination causes of action were created by the legislature and not by commonlaw, that they were not covered by the immunity of Gov. Code § 820.2. However, the Court rejected this, ruling that the statute does not grant or withhold its protection on the basis of whether the legal duty arose by common law or by statute (10 Cal. 4th 972 986) .

In Thompson v. County of Alameda (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 741, 167 Cal. Rptr. 70, 614 P.2d 728 , defendant county had a juvenile offender in its custody and control under court order, and knew that he had latent, extremely dangerous and violent propensities regarding young children, and that he had indicated he would, if released, take the life of a young child residing in his mother's neighborhood. Plaintiffs and their son lived down the street from the mother of that juvenile offender. Defendant released the offender into his mother's custody at her home without warning her, the local police, or any parents in the area. Within 24 hours of his release, the offender murdered plaintiffs' five-year-old son. Plaintiffs sued defendant county for wrongful death, alleging several counts of negligence. The trial court sustained defendant's general demurrer and dismissed the action. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court analyzed the discretionary act immunity pertaining to two actions by defendant: the act of releasing the offender, and the selection of his mother as custodian. The Court said the determination of whether or not to release an offender is a discretionary decision clothed with immunity under Gov. Code § 820.2 when made by the appropriate authorities. The decision to parole comprises the resolution of policy considerations, entrusted by statute to a coordinate branch of government, that compels immunity from judicial examination. Plaintiffs did not allege that the releasing agent was not empowered to make the determination to release the offender. Thus, the release decision was immune (27 Cal. 3d 741, 747) . In analyzing whether or not the custodian selection was within the immunity of Gov. Code § 820.2, the Court had to decide whether that decision was ministerial, because it amounted only to an obedience to orders or the performance of a duty in which the officer is left no choice of his or her own, or discretionary, because it required personal deliberation, decision, ad judgment. The Court concluded that the discretionary nature of the selection of custodians for potentially dangerous minors and the determination of the requisite level of government supervision for those custodians became apparent when the underlying policy considerations were analyzed. Choosing a proper custodian to direct the attempted rehabilitation of a minor with a prior history of antisocial behavior is a complex task involving a careful consideration and balancing of such factors as the protection of the public, the physical and psychological needs of the minor, the relative suitability of the home environment, the availability of other resources, and the need to reintegrate the minor into the community. That decision, requiring comparisons, choices, judgments, and evaluations, comprised the very essence of the exercise of discretion and is immunized under Gov. Code § 820.2 (27 Cal. 3d 741, 748-749) .

In Jacqueline T. v. Alameda County Child Protective Services (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 456, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 157 , a mother brought suit against a county and county employees for alleged negligence in investigating three separate reports of possible child abuse of her children. Plaintiff's children routinely spent weekends with their father, his girlfriend, and her 11-year-old son, and evidence came to light indicating that the girlfriend's son may have been sexually abusing two of plaintiff's children. Three reports were made to county personnel and investigations were made after all three reports, which included interviews with the parties involved, and reports were filed with the police department. However, county personnel after all three investigations concluded that the allegations were unsubstantiated and took no further action to protect plaintiff's children. The girlfriend's son subsequently admitted to the sexual abuse, prompting plaintiff to sue the county for negligence. The court of appeal held that the county and the county employees who conducted the investigations were immune from liability because the decisions they made during the investigation of the child abuse allegations, including the decision that the charges were unsubstantiated, were discretionary decisions protected under Gov. Code § 820.2. The court noted that the conduct of which plaintiff complained was not conduct dealing with the actual delivery of social services to abused, neglected, or exploited children, but rather the preliminary determinations regarding whether such social services were actually necessary. The court also concluded that the county was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 821.6, which provides broad immunity for instituting and prosecuting any judicial or administrative proceeding (155 Cal. App. 4th 456, 464-468) .

In Masters v. San Bernardino County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 30, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860 , plaintiff sued a county retirement association and individual members of the association's retirement board for alleged wrongful conduct in initially denying and failing to promptly award her a disability retirement pension. Plaintiff alleged that the association's administrator caused plaintiff's medical reports to be withheld from consideration by the association's medical advisor. Since the medical advisor was without benefit of the reports, he reported to the board that, although plaintiff was disabled, there was insufficient medical evidence to establish the service connection of the injury to plaintiff's employment. Plaintiff alleged a delay of 19 months between the time she applied for and the time she was ultimately awarded a disability pension. The defendants demurred to the complaint, asserting governmental immunity, and the trial court sustained the demurrer. The court of appeal agreed that the individual board members had discretionary immunity for their adjudicatory decisions on plaintiff's application. However, the court held that Gov. Code § 820.2 did not provide discretionary immunity for the administrator's decisions about how to process the application. (32 Cal. App. 4th 30, 47-49) . The court reasoned that no discretion is provided to suppress evidence intentionally. The court concluded that the association was immune for any alleged breach of fiduciary duty as to the individual board members, but not as to the administrator, provided that plaintiff could state a cause of action against the administrator (32 Cal. App. 4th 30, 49). The court thus reversed the judgment in part, sustaining the demurrer, but requiring that plaintiff be granted leave to amend the complaint to state a cause of action against the administrator and the association (32 Cal. App. 4th 30, 49).

[b] Negligent Implementation of Discretionary Decision Is Not Immune

In Ortega v. Sacramento County Dept. of Health & Human Services (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 713, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390 , plaintiff was an 11-year-old minor who wasremoved from her father's custody by the county when her father was arrested for screaming uncontrollably in the street while under the influence of PCP. Three days later, plaintiff was returned to the custody of her father, and four days after being returned, her father stabbed her in the heart and lungs with a knife. Plaintiff lived and sued the county for returning her to her father's custody, but the court of appeal held that the county was immune from suit under the discretionary functions immunity of Gov. Code § 820.2. The undisputed evidence indicated that the investigation conducted by the social worker handling plaintiff's case was woefully inadequate in that the social worker failed to ascertain that plaintiff's father had been under the influence of PCP, rather than alcohol, and that he had a history of violence and drug abuse and 30 prior convictions, even though this information was in the relevant case file available to the worker. The social worker, who was inexperienced and handling only her second case, also failed to discuss the case with a supervisor as required before making the decision to release plaintiff back to her father. Nonetheless, the court of appeal held that the decision to release plaintiff back to her father was a discretionary decision protected by immunity, even if the social worker was negligent in her investigation. According to the court, allowing plaintiff to proceed on a theory that the social worker breached a ministerial duty to gather the pertinent facts before making a decision would effectively eviscerate the discretionary functions immunity, as in every case there would have to be a trial to determine the actions that comprised the investigation forming the basis for any exercise of discretion (161 Cal. App. 4th 713, 732-733) .

[c] Manner of Conducting Police Investigation Is Not Discretionary

In Watts v. County of Sacramento (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 232, 186 Cal. Rptr. 154 , plaintiffs contracted with a landowner entitling plaintiffs to grow and harvest crops on the landowner's land. When plaintiffs arrived to harvest their crop, the landowner ordered them off the land and called the sheriff's department of defendant county to remove plaintiffs. Plaintiffs were instructed by the officers, upon threat of arrest, to leave the property. Plaintiffs obeyed and thereafter brought an action against defendant seeking damages for unlawful interference with their economic business opportunity. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer and dismissed. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. It said a decision to arrest, or to take some protective action less drastic than arrest, is an exercise of discretion for which a peace officer may not be held liable in tort. The court said that settling a disagreement concerning plaintiffs' right to be on the land by ordering them to leave was clearly action short of arrestfor which the officers are immune from liability (136 Cal. App. 3d 232, 234) . The court characterized plaintiffs' action as a claim of negligent investigation. Plaintiffs claimed the officers breached the duty of care owed them by failing to investigate whether they had any legal right to be on the property. The court said there was no legal basis for plaintiffs' assumption that once law enforcement officials have decided to intervene in a dispute, any subsequent action by the officials is ministerial. In order to settle the dispute, the officers were obliged to exercise their discretion after they had observed what was happening and had listened to the explanation of those present. Any direction given by the officers purporting to exercise official authority would have been an invasion of the personal liberty of at least some of those present. Those intrusions are a regular and necessary part of police work conducted for the preservation of public safety ad order and the decision to use this official authority on any particular occasion is peculiarly a matter of judgment and discretion for which neither the officers nor defendant may be held liable in tort (136 Cal. App. 3d 232, 235) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.279

§ 196.279 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Law Enforcement Immunity [Gov. Code §§ 818.2, 820.4] Does Not Apply in Federal Civil Rights Action

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE LAW ENFORCEMENT IMMUNITY UNDER SECTIONS 818.2 AND 820.4 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY IN AN ACTION ALLEGING VIOLATION OF FEDERAL CIVIL RIGHTS.

No Enforcement Immunity in Federal Civil Rights Action. Because the state may not impair federally created rights or impose conditions on them, the immunity afforded public entities by Section 818.2 of the Government Code and the immunity afforded public employees by Section 820.4 of the Government Code for failure to enforce the law do not apply in an action against police officers under the federal Civil Rights Act of 1871 (42 U.S.C.S. §§ 1981-1983, 1985, and 1986) (Graham v. City of Biggs (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 250, 255, 157 Cal. Rptr. 761).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the law enforcement immunity of Gov. Code § 818.2, available to public entities, and the law enforcement immunity of Gov. Code § 820.4, available to public employees, are not available because the action is one alleging a violation of the plaintiff's federal civil rights. The immunities provided by Gov. Code §§ 818.2 and 820.4 are discussed in §§ 196.08[5] and 196.10[3], respectively.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., Graham v. City of Biggs (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 250, 252, 157 Cal. Rptr. 761] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Other Immunities

Although the case on which this form is based considered only the law enforcement immunities, there is authority that none of the governmental immunity statutes may be successfully applied against a claim brought under the federal Civil Rights Act [Martinez v. California (1980) 444 U.S. 277, 284, 284 n.8, 100 S. Ct. 553, 62 L. Ed. 2d 481 ; Fenton v. Groveland Cmty. Servs. Dist. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 797, 808, 185 Cal. Rptr. 758] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of federal civil rights statutes (42 U.S.C.S. §§ 1981-1983, 1985, and 1986), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post -Civil War Civil Rights Statutes (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to civil rights generally, see Ch. 35, Civil Rights: Unruh Civil Rights Act and Ch. 35A, Civil Rights: Equal Protection .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Enforcement Immunity in Federal Civil Rights Action

In Graham v. City of Biggs (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 250, 157 Cal. Rptr. 761 , after she was raped in her car, plaintiff reported the rape and theidentity of the rapist to the police department of defendant city. Although plaintiff was in physical pain and emotional distress, the responding officer refused to drive her to the hospital, required her to wait at the hospital and later to drive herself home while under the influence of valium, and subsequently made her pay for the examination. The police chief and police commissioner, who was also the mayor, refused to order the questioning of three men overheard discussing the rape shortly after it occurred. Plaintiff's car was never examined for evidence; nor was the man she identified ever located or questioned. Plaintiff brought an action for violation of her civil rights against defendant city and individuals, alleging they acted in concert in the performance (or lack thereof) of their official duties to deny plaintiff due process and equal protection. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers without leave to amend and dismissed the case. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held the allegations of the complaint were sufficient to state a cause of action under 42 U.S.C.S. §§ 1983, 1985(3), and 1986 for violation of plaintiff's civil rights (96 Cal. App. 3d 250, 253-255) . The court refuted defendants' contention that plaintiff's action was barred by Gov. Code §§ 818.2 and 820.4 of the California Tort Claims Act, and flatly stated that was never the law. The court discussed Williams v. Horvath (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 834, 838-842, 129 Cal. Rptr. 453, 548 P.2d 1125 , which considered the effect of the claim filing requirement in a similar federal civil rights action, and which concluded that the state may not impair federally created rights or impose conditions on them as support for its conclusion that defendants' were not absolved of liability on the basis of the enforcement immunity (96 Cal. App. 3d 250, 255-256) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.280

§ 196.280 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Law Enforcement Immunity [Gov. Code § 820.4] and Immunity for Instituting or Prosecuting Judicial Proceeding [Gov. Code § 821.6] Do Not Apply in Action for False Arrest or Imprisonment

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

NEITHER THE PUBLIC EMPLOYEE LAW ENFORCEMENT IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 820.4 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE NOR THE IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 821.6 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE FOR INSTITUTING OR PROSECUTING ANY JUDICIAL PROCEEDING APPLY TO AN ACTION FOR FALSE ARREST OR IMPRISONMENT.

A. No Enforcement Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment. A public employee is not immune from liability in an action for false arrest or false imprisonment by reason of the immunity of Section 820.4 of the Government Code for executing or enforcing the law (Milliken v. City of South Pasadena (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 834, 839-840, 158 Cal. Rptr. 409).

B. No Prosecution Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment. A public employee is not immune from liability in an action for false arrest or false imprisonment by reason of the immunity of Section 821.6 of the Government Code for instituting or prosecuting a judicial proceeding. That immunity only protects against actions for malicious prosecution (Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 719-721, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865).

[Optional] C. Employing Public Entity Is Derivatively Liable. When a public employee is liable as a public employee for false imprisonment, the employing public entity is derivatively liable under the provisions of Section 815.2 of the Government Code (Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 717, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that there is no governmental immunity precluding liability for false arrest or false imprisonment. Paragraph A is based on the inapplicability of the law enforcement immunity of Gov. Code § 820.4 because that immunity specifically excludes those types of actions. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 820.4 is discussed in 196.10[3]; Paragraph B is based on the inapplicability of the prosecution immunity of Gov. Code § 821.6 because that immunity only protects against actions for malicious prosecution. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 821.6 is discussed in § 196.10[10].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Milliken v. City of South Pasadena (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 834, 838, 158 Cal. Rptr. 409] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Conditional Immunity for False Arrest

There is no liability on the part of and no cause of action will arise against any peace officer who makes an arrest pursuant to a warrant regular on its face if the peace office in making the arrest acts without malice and in the reasonable belief that the person arrested is the one referred to in the warrant [Civ. Code § 43.55(a)]. However, this immunity is a conditional immunity, and is destroyed by evidence of malice in effecting the arrest [McKay v. County of San Diego (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 251, 254, 168 Cal. Rptr. 442] . For further discussion, see § 196.10[18].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Enforcement Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment

In Milliken v. City of South Pasadena (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 834, 158 Cal. Rptr. 409 , while at a police station complaining of a neighbor's disturbing the peace and furnishing liquor to minors, plaintiff was informed that there was a bench warrant on her. In fact, that warrant had been recalled, and plaintiff so informed the officer. Although there was disagreement on whether or not the recall was verified by the warrant card file and another officer, plaintiff was arrested at that time. After she was booked, plaintiff was arrested without a warrant on an unrelated charge of carrying a concealed weapon, although once again the parties disagreed on the surrounding facts. After her release plaintiff brought a complaint against defendants on three causes of action: false arrest and imprisonment for both arrests, and malicious prosecution for the weapons charge. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendants. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Based on the immunity provided by Gov. Code § 821.6, the court agreed with defendants' contention that plaintiff had no cause of action against them for malicious prosecution in instituting criminal proceedings, even if the officer acted maliciously and without probable cause. However, the court stated that Gov. Code § 820.4 provided no comparable immunity for the false arrest and imprisonment charges, and those charges involved triable issues of fact that could not be resolved by way of summary judgment (96 Cal. App. 3d 834, 839-840) .

[b] No Prosecution Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment

In Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 , plaintiff's complaint for false imprisonment alleged that the sheriff of defendant county had kept plaintiff in jail after the sheriff knew or should have known that plaintiff should have been released. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer on the basis of governmental immunity and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed and remanded, concluding that no governmental immunity protected defendant in a false imprisonment action (12 Cal. 3d 710, 722) . It held that the immunity in Gov. Code § 821.6 for instituting or prosecuting judicial proceedings even maliciously only provides immunity against actions for malicious prosecution, and does not provide immunity against actions for false arrest or false imprisonment, which do not involve initiating or prosecuting a judicial proceeding (12 Cal. 3d 710, 719-721) .

[c] Employing Public Entity Is Derivatively Liable

The facts and procedural background of Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 , are discussed in § 196.280[3][b]. The Supreme Court said that no immunity provision in the California Tort Claims Act insulates a public entity from liability for false imprisonment (12 Cal. 3d 710, 715) . It then set forth the statutory scheme under which a public entity might be derivatively liable when its employee is liable. Gov. Code § 820 provides that unless immunized by statute, a public employee is liable for injury caused by his or her act or omission to the same extent as a private person. Gov. Code § 815.2 extends that liability to the public entity. Gov. Code § 820.4 specifically precludes false arrest and false imprisonment from its immunity provisions. Thus, if the county sheriff was liable as a public employee for his alleged failure to release plaintiff from jail after all charges against him were dismissed, then the county would be derivatively liable for those acts (12 Cal. 3d 710, 717) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Enforcement Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment

In Jackson v. City of San Diego (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 175 Cal. Rptr. 395 , plaintiff sued defendant city for damages for false imprisonment after being convicted and imprisoned for crimes he did not commit. Plaintiff was initially arrested without a warrant, but after a grand jury indictment, he was lawfully rearrested on a bench warrant pursuant to the indictment. A jury awarded plaintiff damages. The court of appeal reversed for a limited retrial on the issue of damages. The court balanced the competing policy considerations expressed in Gov. Code § 820.4, which permits a public employee to be liable for false arrest or false imprisonment, and Gov. Code § 821.6, which provides immunity to public employees for maliciousprosecution. The court ultimately concluded that there was liability for false imprisonment, but the damages were limited by the prosecution immunity, which became relevant after the grand jury indictment. The court reasoned that by enacting both Gov. Code §§ 820.4 and 821.6, the legislature intended that a ceiling be placed on damages that may be awarded for false imprisonment, limiting those damages to the period of incarceration beginning with the false arrest, but ending when lawful process begins. The court then held that plaintiff was entitled to all the damages he suffered during the period from his warrantless arrest to the date he was rearrested pursuant to the grand jury indictment (121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 582) .

[b] No Prosecution Immunity for Public Employee for False Arrest or Imprisonment

In Harden v. San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 7, 263 Cal. Rptr. 549 , plaintiff was a police officer for defendant public transit district who ran a part-time typewriter repair business. Some time after opening his business plaintiff was charged with possession of stolen typewriters, arrested, and released. After the charges were dismissed for lack of evidence, plaintiff sued defendant and its employee, his superior officer, for false imprisonment and negligent and intentional infliction of emotional harm. Plaintiff alleged that his superior officer, who had previously subjected him to racially motivated harassment, had knowingly given false and materially incomplete information of a character that could be expected to stimulate plaintiff's arrest. The trial court entered judgment against defendants for false arrest and false imprisonment. The court of appeal rejected defendants' contention that the Gov. Code § 821.6 immunity applied. It cited the language of Gov. Code § 820.4, the enforcement immunity, which provides that it does not exonerate a public employee from liability for false arrest or false imprisonment, and concluded that there is no immunity provision that insulates a public entity from liability for false imprisonment. The court said the legislative intent behind Gov. Code § 821.6 was to protect public employees from liability only for malicious prosecution and not for false imprisonment, and thus, it cannot be interpreted to defeat the common law liability for false imprisonment preserved in Gov. Code § 820.4 (215 Cal. App. 3d 7, 14) . In analyzing an unrelated immunity, the court did observe that the distinction between malicious prosecution and false arrest is not always easy to discern, and that a cause of action for false arrest or imprisonment may lie where the same facts also support a cause of action for malicious prosecution (215 Cal. App. 3d 7, 16-17) .

In McKay v. County of San Diego (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 251, 168 Cal. Rptr. 442 , plaintiff brought a false imprisonment action alleging that an investigative officer in the district attorney's office obtained a warrant to arrest plaintiff based on information the officer knew to be false. The trial court dismissed the action, declaring it was barred because of the blanket immunity given public employees and employers under Gov. Code § 821.6. The court of appeal reversed. The court held that Gov. Code § 821.6 cannot be interpreted to defeat the common-law liability for false imprisonment preserved in Gov. Code § 820.4, which excludes public employees from any immunity for false arrest or imprisonment (111 Cal. App. 3d 251, 254) .

189 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.281

§ 196.281 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Immunity for Instituting or Prosecuting Judicial Proceeding [Gov. Code § 821.6] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PUBLIC EMPLOYEE IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 821.6 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE FOR INSTITUTING OR PROSECUTING ANY JUDICIAL OR ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEEDING DOES NOT APPLY BECAUSE _____ [THE ACTION BROUGHT BY PLAINTIFF IS NOT A MALICIOUS PROSECUTION ACTION or _____ (name of public employee) WAS ACTING OUTSIDE THE SCOPE OF HIS/HER EMPLOYMENT IN INSTITUTING THE _____ (JUDICIAL or ADMINISTRATIVE) PROCEEDING AGAINST THE PLAINTIFF or THE ACTION BROUGHT BY PLAINTIFF IS BASED ON VIOLATION OF THE WHISTLE-BLOWER STATUTE, TO WHICH PROSECUTION IMMUNITY DOES NOT APPLY].

[EITHER]

A. Prosecution Immunity Only Applicable to Malicious Prosecution Action. The prosecution immunity of Government Code Section 821.6 is only applicable to actions based on malicious prosecution or similar type of misconduct (see Tallmadge v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 251, 254-255, 236 Cal. Rptr. 338).

[OR]

A. No Prosecution Immunity When Public Employee Acts Outside Scope of Employment. A public employee is not immune from liability in an action for malicious prosecution by reason of the immunity of Government Code

Section 821.6 for instituting orprosecuting a judicial proceeding when that employee has acted outside the scope of his or her employment (Vivell v. City of Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 40-41, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841).

[Optional] B. Scope of Employment. A public employee is only acting in the course and scope of employment when he or she is engaged in work that employee was employed to perform or when the act is an incident to that employee's duty and was performed for the benefit of the employer and not to serve that employee's own purposes or conveniences (see Sanborn v. Chronicle Publishing Co. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 406, 411, 134 Cal. Rptr. 402, 556 P.2d 764).

[Optional] C. No Prosecution Immunity in Whistle-Blower Actions. The prosecution immunity of Government Code Section 821.6 does not apply to immunize public employees charged with violation of Government Code Section 19683, the whistle-blower statute, which provides redress to state employees for harm suffered by the use of official power to deter reporting of unlawful government activity (Shoemaker v. Myers (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1423-1425, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 203).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the prosecution immunity of Gov. Code § 821.6 is not applicable because the action brought by the plaintiff is not a malicious prosecution or similar type of action, because the public employee was acting outside the scope of his or her employment, or because the action is based on the whistle-blower statute, and the prosecution immunity does not apply. Optional Paragraph B may be used to delineate the proper scope of the public employee's employment. Optional Paragraph C may be used when the whistle-blower statute is involved. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 821.6 is discussed in § 196.10[10].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a nonsuit [see, e.g., Vivell v. City of Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 39, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prosecution Immunity Only Applicable to Malicious Prosecution Action

The facts and procedural background of Tallmadge v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 251, 236 Cal. Rptr. 338 , are discussed in § 196.278[3][i]. The court of appeal held that the prosecution immunity did not protect defendant county from liability. It said that the immunity did not apply because plaintiff's action was one to recover damages for firearms destroyed by defendant after plaintiff had been convicted of unlawful possession of firearms; it was not a malicious prosecution action. The court reasoned further that because the prosecution had ended when the act complained of occurred, the injury was not caused by a public employee instituting or prosecuting a judicial proceeding (191 Cal. App. 3d 251, 254-255) .

[b] No Prosecution Immunity When Public Employee Acts Outside Scope of Employment

In Vivell v. City of Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841 , plaintiff and individual defendant were adjoining landowners who agreed to share the cost of constructing a sewer line along their common boundary. Plaintiff refused to pay the full amount demanded by individual defendant, but paid a smaller amount, allegedly the agreed upon amount. When plaintiff did not connect his property to the sewer line, but continued to use a septic tank, the individual defendant, who was a city councilman of defendant city, claimed plaintiff lived on the land and caused defendant city to file a misdemeanor complaint for violation of a city sewer ordinance. A warrant was issued on the complaint, and plaintiff was arrested by the San Francisco police. Plaintiff brought a complaint against defendant individual and defendant city alleging false arrest and imprisonment, malicious prosecution, and abuse of process. The trial court issued a judgment of nonsuit in favor of defendant city. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. Initially the court observed that the only cause of action available against defendant city, malicious prosecution, was barred by reason of governmental immunity (274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 40) . The court then addressed the potential liability of individual defendant for malicious prosecution. It said the immunity of a public employee from liability for malicious prosecution extends only to proceedings within the scope of his or her employment. The court said defendant was acting wholly outside the scope of his duties as a councilman if he sought private gain from urging prosecution by the city. To be entitled to immunity, he would have to show that he acted within the scope of his employment as a city councilman (274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 40-41) .

[c] Scope of Employment

The facts and procedural background of Sanborn v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 406, 134 Cal. Rptr. 402, 556 P.2d 764 , are discussed in § 196.278[3][c]. Although the court of appeal concluded that the city clerk was acting within the scope of his employment when he spoke with a reporter, because he had at least implied authority to speak with the press about operations of the clerk's office (18 Cal. 3d 406, 412) , its discussion of the term "scope of employment," as it concerns public employees for purposes of the California Tort Claims Act is instructive. The court said that a public employee is acting in the course and scope of employment when he or she is engaged in work that employee was employed to perform or when the act is an incident to that employee's duty and was performed for the benefit of the employer and not to serve that employee's own purposes or conveniences. The court explained further that scope of employment has been equated with the express or implied power of the public employee to act in a particular instance, and in evaluating the employee's conduct to determine whether it is within the ambit of his or her authority, courts look not to the nature of the act itself, but to the purpose or result intended. If the object or end to be accomplished is within the employee's express or implied authority, the act is deemed to be within the scope of his or her employment irrespective of its wrongful nature (18 Cal. 3d 406, 411) .

[d] No Prosecution Immunity in Whistle-Blower Actions

In Shoemaker v. Myers (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 203 , plaintiff, a former investigator for a state department, sued the department, its director, and assorted management personnel. Plaintiff's complaint set forth a variety of counts based on his allegedly wrongful termination for his investigation and reporting of instances of illegal conduct tolerated by the department. One of plaintiff's counts alleged violation of Gov. Code § 19683, the whistle-blower statute. Defendants contended that the prosecution immunity of Gov. Code § 821.6 applied, and that they were immune from liability. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers and dismissed the case. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment insofar as it ordered dismissal of plaintiff's claim for violation of the whistle-blower statute, remanded for further proceedings, and otherwise affirmed. The court accepted the characterization of the whistle-blower claim as within the general rubric of malicious prosecution. Plaintiff argued that the whistle-blower statute must be considered an exception to Gov. Code § 821.6 immunity. Defendants contended that all tort claims are expressly covered by the immunity statutes and policy considerations permit no exception for § 19683 (2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1423) . The court contrasted the application of the two statutes. Section 821.6 applies to claims against a public employee arising from the initiation or prosecution of judicial or administrative proceedings. Gov. Code § 19683 applies when any state employee directly or indirectly uses or threatens to use any official authority or influence in any manner whatsoever which tends to discourage, restrain, interfere with, coerce or discriminate against any other state employee because the latter has reported information relating to an actual or suspected violation of law. The court said the coverage of §§ 821.6 and 19683 overlaps when public employees are accused of using official authority to discourage, restrain, interfere with, coerce, and discriminate against another public employee by means of a judicial or administrative proceeding (2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1423) . The policy behind Gov. Code § 821.6 is to encourage fearless performance of official duties. State employees should investigate and prosecute matters within their purview without fear of reprisal. Protection is provided even when official action is taken maliciously and without probable cause. The purpose underlying § 19683 is to provide redress to state employees for harm suffered by the use of official power to deter reporting of unlawful government activity. It is designed to encourage such reporting and thereby facilitate the detection or prosecution of official wrongdoing (2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1424) . Because the scope and purposes of § 19683 are narrower than those of § 821.6, the court said the former prevails when the two are in conflict. It continued by saying that to hold otherwise would reduce the protection afforded by § 19683 to situations where a public employee uses official authority to harm another public employee by means other than formal disciplinary proceedings, or where a nonpublic employee uses official authority to harm a public employee in any way. The court found that because it is far more likely the party violating § 19683 will be a public employee, granting § 821.6 immunity would immunize the most egregious conduct undertaken to discourage whistleblowing. The right of the injured party to civil damages for such conduct, as expressly guaranteed by § 19683, would be rendered illusory (2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1424) . The court concluded that recognition of § 821.6 immunity for cases falling within § 19683 would seriously weaken the whistle-blower statute and thereby frustrate the legislative purpose behind its enactment. Thus, violators of § 19683 are not entitled to § 821.6 immunity (2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1424-1425) .

Plaintiff also asserted a Tameny claim for wrongful termination in violation of public policy for investigating and reporting unlawful conduct and for invoking his right to counsel upon interrogation for misconduct. These claims were based on the public policies implicated by the whistle-blower statute and former Gov. Code § 3303(h) [now see Gov. Code § 3303(i)], which permits him, as a public safety officer, the right to counsel during interrogation for misconduct. The court concluded that nothing in those statutes suggests that the legislature intended that a claim for wrongful termination in violation of public policy against otherwise immune public employees could survive simply because, from among all of the sources ofpublic policy that might theoretically be implicated, the particular policies at issue arose from those particular statutes (2 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1425) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Prosecution Immunity Only Applicable to Malicious Prosecution Action

In County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2009) 181 Cal. App. 4th 218, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 230 , investigators in the district attorney's office began a criminal investigation into the real estate dealings of a county employee. In the course of the investigation, the chief investigator obtained a search warrant from a magistrate to search the residence and office of the suspect. The district attorney's office seized documents, computer hard drives and associated computer equipment, and passports. The seized materials were eventually returned, although some of the computers allegedly no longer functioned properly. The district attorney's office decided not to file charges, concluding that there was insufficient admissible evidence to prove criminal charges. The suspect sued the district attorney's office and others for civil rights violations under Civ. Code § 52.1 and under the federal civil rights statute, 42 U.S.C. § 1983. All defendants filed a motion for summary adjudication of those causes of action, which the trial court denied. Defendants sought writ relief of this decision, which the Court of Appeal granted. The Court of Appeal held that the district attorney and the county were immune under Gov. Code § 821.6 from liability for obtaining and executing the search warrant, and searching, seizing, retaining, and even damaging plaintiffs' property. Even if members of the district attorney's office acted with malice or without probable cause, the conduct was causally connected to a criminal investigation and prosecution, and under those circumstances, prosecutorial immunity applied. The fact that the decision was eventually made not to file charges did not change this result (181 Cal. App. 4th 218, 229-230) . The court also held that immunity under Gov. Code § 821.6 applied to a cause of action under Civ. Code § 52.1 (52 Cal. 3d 65, 72-73) . As to the cause of action under the federal civil rights statute, the court held that the district attorney was a state actor and thus immune to the same extent as the state would be under the Eleventh Amendment (52 Cal. 3d 65, 75) .

In Gillan v. City of San Marino (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1033, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 158 , plaintiff was a high school girls basketball coach who was accused of sexual touching and harassment by a former player. Police officers who had interviewed the accuser took plaintiff into custody, but released him shortly thereafter after issuing a detention notice and press release. Their stated purpose in detaining plaintiff was to publicize the accusations so that other victims would come forward, but no one did. The district attorney subsequently decided not to prosecute the case due to the lack of corroborating evidence. Plaintiff sued various parties, including the city and police officers, for civil rights violations under Civ. Code § 52.1, defamation, and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Plaintiff prevailed at trial on those causes of action and was awarded substantial damages. The court of appeal reversed in part. After reviewing the facts, including the accuser's inconsistent statements, the court held that the police lacked probable cause to arrest plaintiff and on that basis defendants could be held liable under Civ. Code § 52.1 (147 Cal. App. 4th 1033, 1044-1050) . However, the court also held that the defendants could not be liable for defamation or intentional infliction of emotional distress. The press releases and other public statements made by the individual defendants were made in the course of and in furtherance of a criminal investigation. Therefore, regardless of whether those statements were reasonable or appropriate, or made maliciously as part of a groundless threat of criminal prosecution, the defendants were immune from liability pursuant to the prosecutorial immunity provided under Gov. Code § 821.6, which applied not just to malicious prosecution actions (147 Cal. App. 4th 1033, 1048-1050) .

In Ross v. San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1507, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715 , plaintiff sued his former employer, the San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART), for discrimination and wrongful termination in violation of public policy. He alleged that BART employees, fueled by discriminatory and retaliatory motives because of plaintiff's alleged participation in a work stoppage, initiated and prosecuted administrative proceedings to discipline or discharge him based on accusations they knew to be false. The court of appeal held that Gov. Code § 821.6 shielded BART from liability for wrongful termination in violation of public policy. The court noted that, in the case of common law liability for wrongful termination in violation of public policy, a public entity could be liable only vicariously and would be immune if the employee is immune (146 Cal. App. 4th 1507, 1514) . The court concluded that plaintiff's claims, although not specifically claims for malicious prosecution, fell under the general rubric of that tort, and as such the immunity of Gov. Code § 821.6 applied (146 Cal. App. 4th 1507, 1516) .

In Javor v. Taggart (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 795, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 , the plaintiff was a general building contractor who brought suit against personnel of the California Uninsured Employer's Fund stemming from their conduct in placing an erroneous lien against the plaintiff's residence. The lien was placed after the Fund, which provided benefits to an injured worker totaling $37,000, determined that the worker was employed by the plaintiff, who did not provide workers' compensation benefits. After four years of unsuccessfully trying to get the lien removed, the plaintiff hired an attorney and eventually prevailed. The plaintiff then brought suit against personnel of the Fund, alleging a federal civil rights claim and state law causes of action for slander and clouding of title, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and negligence. However, the defendants successfully demurred to the state law claims on the ground that they were immune under Gov. Code § 821.6, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that the immunity of Gov. Code § 821.6 was not limited to only malicious prosecution actions, nor was it limited to conduct occurring during formal proceedings. Instead, the immunity may be extended to the employees of administrative departments, and it may be extended to investigation and other actions taken in preparation for formal proceedings (98 Cal. App. 4th 795, 808) . In this particular case, the defendants worked within the administrative system established to implement the Workers' Compensation Act, and they were charged with seeking reimbursement from illegally uninsured employers after the state has paid benefits. Therefore, the defendants, who made their decisions in the course of investigations and through formal administrative proceedings, were entitled to immunity under Gov. Code § 821.6 so that they could carry out their duties without fear of reprisal (98 Cal. App. 4th 795, 809) .

In Gensburg v. Miller (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 512, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97 , plaintiffs, who operated a foster home out of their residence, brought a federal civil rights action against employees of the state Department of Social Services and the County Department of Social Services based on the suspension of plaintiffs' foster home license. Plaintiffs alleged that defendants had a vendetta to drive plaintiffs out of the foster care business because of the plaintiffs' practice of accepting foster children from divergent racial and ethnic backgrounds. The trial court sustained a demurrer on the ground that the defendants were absolutely immune from civil liability. The court of appeal agreed with the trial court, initially noting that the defendants were protected by the immunity set forth in Gov. Code § 821.6 against any state or common law causes of action (31 Cal. App. 4th 512, 518) . The court then looked to federal law to determine the scope of immunity of governmental officials from an action based on federal law. The court discussed a United States Supreme Court decision which has held thatprosecutors have absolute immunity from civil rights suits, and noted that this type of immunity has been extended by most federal courts to social workers performing their statutorily authorized functions. Reasoning that the defendants had done nothing but perform the very functions granted to them by state law, the court concluded that their actions were shielded by absolute immunity (31 Cal. App. 4th 512, 525) .

In Alicia T. v. County of Los Angeles (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 869, 271 Cal. Rptr. 513 , the parents of a four-year-old girl sued the county for various torts after their daughter was removed from their custody and placed in a foster home for several months. A child-abuse investigation had been instigated when the attending medical personnel had discovered a vaginal infection that they believed was the result of molestation. A subsequent examination revealed that there had been no molestation. The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal of the action. The court held that both Gov. Code § 821.6 and Gov. Code § 820.2 (discretionary-act immunity) provided complete immunity for the social workers in their investigation of the abuse and the instigation of child dependency proceedings (222 Cal. App. 3d 869, 882-883) .

In Jenkins v. County of Orange (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 278, 260 Cal. Rptr. 645 , a mother whose son had been removed from her custody based on reports of child abuse, brought suit against defendant county and its employee social worker after her son was returned to her, alleging negligence in the investigation of the reported child abuse. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrer and dismissed the action. The court of appeal affirmed, finding that the Gov. Code § 821.6 immunity applied. The court said that Gov. Code § 821.6 is not limited to suits for damages for malicious prosecution, although that is its principal use. It cited cases in which Gov. Code § 821.6 has provided immunity to government officials who published charges of improper collection methods, and in which government officials published records of a disciplinary action against plaintiff (212 Cal. App. 3d 278, 283) . The court explained that it is for the best interests of the community as a whole that public officials be protected from harassment in the performance of the duty to investigate crime and to institute criminal proceedings. It found that defendant social worker was also immune for failing to consider all of the evidence and thereby misrepresenting information to the juvenile court, because weighing and presenting evidence are prosecutorial functions. As such, these acts are within the ambit of instituting or prosecuting any judicial or administrative proceeding. The court concluded that since the social worker is immune from liability, so was defendant county (212 Cal. App. 3d 278, 284) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.282

§ 196.282 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Immunity for Failure to Make to Physical or Mental Examination or for Inadequate Examination [Gov. Code § 855.6] Does Not Apply--Examination Made for Purpose of Treatment

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE IMMUNITY OF A PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE UNDER GOVERNMENT CODE SECTION 855.6 FOR FAILURE TO MAKE A PHYSICAL OR MEDICAL EXAMINATION, OR FOR FAILING TO MAKE AN ADEQUATE EXAMINATION, OF ANY PERSON DOES NOT APPLY TO THIS CASE BECAUSE THE EXAMINATION THAT DEFENDANT DID NOT [ADEQUATELY] CONDUCT WAS IN CONNECTION WITH DEFENDANT'S TREATMENT OF PLAINTIFF'S _____ [PHYSICAL or MENTAL] CONDITION.

Governmental Immunity for Failure to Conduct Physical or Mental Examination Does Not Apply to Examination for Treatment. The immunity in Government Code Section 855.6 for failure to make a physical or mental examination, or for failure to make an adequate examination, does not apply to an examination or diagnosis made for purposes of treatment, regardless of whether the examination is of the person being treated or some other person (Smith v. County of Kern (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1833-1835, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a contention that the immunity under Gov. Code § 855.6 for failure to make a physical or mental examination, or for failure to make an adequate examination, does not apply because the physical or medical examination at issue pertained to the public entity's or employee's treatment of plaintiff's physical or mental condition. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 855.6 is discussed in § 196.09[16].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which the substantive points are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer to plaintiff's complaint. They also may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Governmental Immunity for Failure to Conduct Physical or Mental Examination Does Not Apply to Examination for Treatment

In Smith v. County of Kern (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716 , a police officer, in discharge of his duties, had assisted a man ("Doe") who had attempted suicide and had stated that he had AIDS. In the course of assisting Doe, the officer became covered with Doe's blood. The officer requested that a county employee obtain an AIDS test from Doe. The county agreed to do so and obtained a blood sample from Doe, but the county employee inadvertently conducted the wrong type of test on the blood sample, discarded the rest of the blood sample, and then discharged Doe without determining his identity. Later, Doe was again located and a new blood sample was taken. The correct test showed that Doe was infected with the AIDS virus. The police officer sued the county for negligence based on the emotional distress suffered by him and his family during the period between the administration of the erroneous and the correct blood tests. The trial court sustained with prejudice the county's demurrer to the amended complaint and entered judgment on the demurrer.

The court of appeal reversed, initially noting that in evaluating whether a plaintiff may be able to state a cause of action, all allegations are taken as true even though their proof appears unlikely and accepts facts that may be implied or inferred from those expressly alleged (20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1830). The court construed the amended complaint to allege that in order to facilitate diagnosis and treatment of the plaintiff for possible exposure to the AIDS virus, the plaintiff requested that employees of the county's medical center obtain a blood sample from Doe and determine whether Doe suffered from AIDS. The county employees agreed to undertake the necessary testing in order to facilitate plaintiff's diagnosis and treatment and in furtherance of that agreement, obtained a blood sample but negligently tested the blood for hepatitis instead of AIDS and negligently discarded the remaining unused blood sample (20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1831-1832).

The county argued that it was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 855.6, which provides that, except for an examination or diagnosis for the purpose of treatment, a public entity is immune for injuries caused by the failure to make a physical examination, or to make an adequate physical or mental examination, of any person for the purpose of determining whether such person has a disease or medical condition that would constitute a health or safety hazard (20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1832-1833 & n.6). The crucial question in this case was whether the AIDS test of Doe's blood was "an examination or diagnosis for the purpose of treatment" within the meaning of the statute (20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1833) . The court noted that this section would clearly not provide immunity if defendant's laboratory had undertaken to test the plaintiff's blood for AIDS in order to assist in the diagnosis of whether he had contracted the disease (20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1834) . The court then concluded that the source of the material examined was not determinative of the applicability of that section, but rather, the question was whether the public employee's actions were taken to facilitate the delivery of medical diagnosis or care to the individual who was injured by the employee's actions. It found that the facts in the amended complaint permitted a reasonable inference that the county's laboratory undertook to perform a test on the Doe's blood for the purpose of assisting the plaintiff's physician in examining or diagnosing his exposure to AIDS. The court stated that plaintiff was entitled to amend the complaint to expressly allege a negligence cause of action based on those facts (20 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1834-1835) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.283

§ 196.283 Supporting Contention that Immunity From Liability for Act or Omission Does Not Apply--Immunity Under Emergency Services Act [Gov. Code § 8655] Does Not Apply to Intentional Misrepresentations Related to Physical Safety

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

IMMUNITY UNDER THE EMERGENCY SERVICES ACT, GOVERNMENT CODE SECTION 8655, DOES NOT APPLY IN THIS CASE BECAUSE DEFENDANT INTENTIONALLY CONCEALED A KNOWN DANGER WHICH CAUSED PERSONAL INJURIES TO PLAINTIFFS.

A. Immunity Under Emergency Services Act. The state or its political subdivisions are not liable for any claim based upon the exercise or performance, or the failure to exercise or perform, a discretionary function or duty on the part of a state or local agency or any employee of the state or its political subdivisions in carrying out the emergency services provisions (Gov. Code § 8655).

B. No Emergency Services Act Immunity for Intentional Concealment of Known Dangers Which Cause Personal Injuries. The state is not immune from liability under the Emergency Services Act, Gov. Code § 8655, for the intentional concealment of known dangers which cause personal injuries (Adkins v. State of California (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1806, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the immunity of Gov. Code § 8655 is not applicable because thestate intentionally concealed known dangers which caused personal injuries.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a nonsuit [see, e.g., Adkins v. State of California (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1805, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59] . These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief or in jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence of intentional concealment of known dangers on the part of the state which caused personal injuries, and should argue that the grant of immunity under the Emergency Services Act does not cover these actions [see Adkins v. State of California (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1806, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms and discussion relating to the immunity of public entities, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to the liability of public entities for injury caused by the entities use of pesticide, see § 196.186.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Emergency Services Act Immunity for Intentional Concealment of Known Dangers Which Cause Personal Injuries

Adkins v. State of California (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59 , arose out of the Mediterranean fruit fly (Medfly) eradication program of 1989. Plaintiffs were hired by the state to hang Medfly traps and became ill after handling the chemical used in the traps. Plaintiffs' supervisors knowingly lied to them about the effect of the chemical, told plaintiffs the chemical was completely safe, and refused to allow them to wear protective clothing. Plaintiffs sued the state for the physical injuries they incurred as a result of exposure to the chemical. The trial court granted a nonsuit in favor of defendant at the conclusion of plaintiff's opening statement and entered judgment finding the state immune from liability under the Emergency Services Act, Gov. Code §§ 8550 et seq.

The court of appeal reversed, concluding that the state was not immune from liability under the Emergency Services Act for intentional concealment of known dangers which cause personal injuries. The court acknowledged that in prosecuting the Medfly eradication program the state was acting pursuant to its authority under the Emergency Services Act, and that the Act provided the state and its political subdivisions immunity from liability for any claim based upon the exercise or performance, or the failure to exercise or perform, a discretionary function or duty on the part of the state or local agency in carrying out the provisions of the Act. The court noted that as part of an eradication program, the state was obligated by Food & Agric. Code §§ 5029, 5771 et seq. to comply with a number of strict notification requirements, and acknowledged that states were immune from civil actions stemming from the administration of the notice requirements if the director or commissioner used his or her best efforts to comply with the requirements. The court also noted the recent decision of Macias v. State of California (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 844, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592 , which requires the state to convey the most complete and accurate health information practicable to affected citizens. The court then rejected the state's argument that Gov. Code §§ 8550 et seq. immunized it because the acts were discretionary. The court felt that this approach failed to recognize the state's mandatory obligation to provide complete and accurate information, and failed to recognize that the exercise of the state's police powers must be reasonable and proper under the circumstances. Thus, while the state had the discretion to formulate the eradication program and had the discretion to carry out that function, the state had no discretion not to use its best efforts to accurately notify its citizens of health and safety precautions to be taken. The court concluded that intentionally misrepresenting the toxic nature of a chemical used in the eradication program could not possibly be considered best efforts to comply with the strict notice requirements or to comply with the obligation to provide complete and accurate information relating to health and safety (50 Cal. App. 4th 1802, 1816) .

192 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
1. Immunity From Liability for Acts or Omissions

19A-196 California Points & Authorities §§ 196.284-196.299

[Reserved]

§§ 196.284[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
PART 2. Immunity From Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.300

§ 196.300 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Design Immunity [Gov. Code § 830.6] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE DESIGN IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 830.6 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE DOES NOT APPLY BECAUSE ITS REQUIRED ELEMENTS HAVE NOT BEEN SHOWN TO EXIST.

A. Required Elements of Design Immunity. To rely on the design immunity of Section 830.6 of the Government Code, the defendant public entity or public employee has the burden of proving: that there was a causal relationship between the plan and the accident, that there was discretionary approval of the plan prior to construction, and that there was substantial evidence supporting the reasonableness of the design (Anderson v. City of Thousand Oaks (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 82, 88-89, 135 Cal. Rptr. 127 ; De La Rosa v. City of San Bernardino (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 739, 748, 94 Cal. Rptr. 175).

[Optional] B. Feature That Caused Accident Is Not Part of Approved Design. The design immunity applies only to those features included in the design approved by the public entity, and does not apply to features that, although part of the completed project, were not part of the approved design plan (Cameron v. State of California (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 318, 324-326, 102 Cal. Rptr. 305, 497 P.2d 777).

[Optional] C. Adoption of Unreasonable Design. The design immunity does not apply when the design of the facility is unreasonable because it is hazardous and presents a high risk of injury, and the cost of providing safeguards is relatively small (Davis v. Cordova Recreation & Park Dist. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 789, 796-800, 101 Cal. Rptr. 358).

[Optional] D. Injury Is Not Caused by Design. The design immunity does not apply to negligence independent of design, even though the independent negligence is only a concurring proximate cause of the injury; thus, it provides no immunity when the injury was not caused by a feature of the design (Mozzetti v. City of Brisbane (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 574-575, 136 Cal. Rptr. 751 ; Flournoy v. State of California (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 806, 812-813, 80 Cal. Rptr. 485).

[Optional] E. Immunity Is Not Applicable When Changed Circumstances Create Dangerous Condition. The design immunity does not apply when a plan or design, although originally approved, is operating under changed circumstances and produces a dangerous condition of public property, thereby causing injury (Baldwin v. State of California (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 424, 438, 99 Cal. Rptr. 145, 491 P.2d 1121).

[Optional] F. "Trap" Exception to Design Immunity Is Applicable. The design immunity does not apply if a sign is necessary to warn of a dangerous condition that would not be reasonably apparent to, and would not have been anticipated by, a person using a highway with due care, and the public entity fails to post adequate warning signs, thereby creating a trap to the motorist (Cameron v. State of California (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 318, 327, 102 Cal. Rptr. 305, 497 P.2d 777 ; Anderson v. City of Thousand Oaks (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 82, 93, 135 Cal. Rptr. 127 ; see Gov. Code § 830.8).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the design immunity of Gov. Code § 830.6 is not applicable to immunize the defendant public entity from liability for dangerous conditions of public property [Gov. Code § 835] because the defendant did not establish the elements required for application of the design immunity. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 830.6 is discussed in § 196.12[1].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for nonsuit [see, e.g., Cameron v. State of California (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 318, 321, 102 Cal. Rptr. 305, 497 P.2d 777] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Required Elements of Design Immunity

In Anderson v. City of Thousand Oaks (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 82, 135 Cal. Rptr. 127 , plaintiffs' son was killed when a car in which he was a passenger failed to negotiate a curve of a road designed, constructed, and maintained by defendant city. Plaintiffs sued defendant for wrongful death alleging it was negligent in the maintenance of the road in a dangerous condition, in the failure to provide speed or warning signs, and defendant had notice of the dangerous condition. Defendant's motion for a summary judgment based on the design immunity was granted by the trial court. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to vacate the order granting a summary judgment (65 Cal. App. 3d 82, 93) . It held that three basic elements must be established for a public entity successfully to invoke the design immunity: first, a causal relationship between the plan and the accident; second, discretionary approval of the plan prior to construction; and third, substantial evidence supporting the reasonableness of the design (65 Cal. App. 3d 82, 88-89) . The court then found that defendant had established all these elements by its affidavits and was thus protected by the design immunity. The court found, however, that there was an independent basis of liability for failure to warn of a known dangerous condition and that there were factual issues concerning defendant's notice of the condition. Therefore, a summary judgment was inappropriate (65 Cal. App. 3d 82, 91-93) .

The facts and procedural background of De La Rosa v. City of San Bernardino (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 739, 94 Cal. Rptr. 175 , are discussed in § 196.213[3][a]. In reversing the trial court's judgment entered on defendant's motion for directed verdict, the court discussed the elements of design immunity. It said that a successful defense of design immunity depends on the entity's establishing a causal relationship between the design and the accident and establishing the design's approval in advance of construction, and a court must find substantial evidence of the design's reasonableness. The court then held that defendant could not rely on the design immunity because it had not established that the installation or position of the stop sign in question was a part of the approved design (16 Cal. App. 3d 739, 748) .

[b] Feature That Caused Accident Is Not Part of Approved Design

In Cameron v. State of California (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 318, 102 Cal. Rptr. 305, 497 P.2d 777 , plaintiff was injured when the car in which she was a passenger went out of control rounding a curve. Plaintiff sued defendant state for damages for the personal injuries she sustained, alleging that the improper banking of the curve caused the accident. The trial court entered a judgment of nonsuit based on the design immunity. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court said defendant presented facts sufficient to establish the initial applicability of a design immunity under Gov. Code § 830.6, but then plaintiff introduced evidence to show that the design plans contained no specification of superelevation, and that it was the superelevation that caused the accident. The Court concluded that defendant's failure to present evidence that the superelevation that was actually constructed on the curve was the result of or conformed to a design approved by the public entity vested with discretionary authority was fatal to its claim of immunity. It thus held that the design immunity was not applicable (7 Cal. 3d 318, 326) .

[c] Adoption of Unreasonable Design

In Davis v. Cordova Recreation & Park Dist. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 789, 101 Cal. Rptr. 358 , plaintiffs' son drowned in a pond in a public park. Although most of the pond was very shallow, there was a deeper portion with steep sides in the middle of the pond. The child's drowning apparently was the result of his falling into the deeper portion. Plaintiffs sued defendant, the public entity operating the park, for damages for their son's death alleging two negligence causes of action. Although it denied defendant's motions for nonsuit, the trial court ultimately directed judgment for defendant on the basis of design immunity. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. It reviewed the facts, noting that the park was located in a neighborhood with many small children who frequented the park and its facilities. The pond was located in the center of sloping lawn area, with an area of flat cement around its perimeter. The pond had several purposes: decoration, drainage during the rainy season, and fishing for young children. The court was unpersuaded by defendant's contention that the design immunity applied because the design was obviously aesthetic rather than for wading or swimming purposes. It said that Gov. Code § 830.6 required measurement of the facility by the standard of reasonableness. Thus, the court had to look, not only to the plan, but to the practice, and not only to the artistic and architectural conception on the drawing board, but to the facility in being and in reality. The court said that neither it, nor the planners, could ignore the attraction that children feel for water when considering the reasonableness of the design of a pond located in a park heavily used by children. Moreover, the court found the immunity could not be supported by an argument that to erect fences or post signs would do artistic violence to the general scheme (24 Cal. App. 3d 789, 799) . Citing Gov. Code § 835.4, the court said that the determination of reasonableness also involved a weighing of the probability and gravity of potential injury to persons and property foreseeably exposed tothe risk of injury against the practicability and cost of taking alternative action. It concluded that in this case the risk of injury was relatively great and the cost of protection relatively small (24 Cal. App. 3d 789, 800) .

[d] Injury Is Not Caused by Design

In Mozzetti v. City of Brisbane (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 136 Cal. Rptr. 751 , plaintiffs' property was damaged by flooding allegedly caused by the resurfacing of a street and construction of a new sidewalk. Plaintiffs sued defendants city and city engineer for damages on several negligent causes of action. The trial court entered judgment in favor of plaintiffs after a jury verdict in their favor. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of liability but reversed for retrial the issue of damages. The court said that the design immunity defense rests on the combination of three statutory elements: the approval of design in advance of construction by a legislative body or officer exercising discretionary authority, a court finding of substantial evidence of the design's reasonableness, and a causal relationship between the plan or design and the accident. The court said that the defendant public entity has the burden of pleading and proving the defense of design immunity and each of its essential elements. Failure to prove any element is fatal to the applicability of that defense (67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 574) . The court found that the evidence negating the requisite causal relationship between the design defect and the flooding was overwhelming. The inundation of plaintiffs' premises and damages resulting therefrom were not attributable solely to the design defect of the project, but were caused, at least partially, by the poor maintenance and clogging of the drainage system. The court said that by its very terms the design immunity is limited to a design-caused accident. It does not immunize against liability caused by negligence independent of design, even though independent negligence is only a concurring proximate cause of the accident (67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 575) .

Flournoy v. State of California (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 806, 80 Cal. Rptr. 485 , was a wrongful death action in which the decedent was killed when her car skidded on an icy bridge and was struck by a truck and a trailer. There were no warning signs indicating the icy condition or the necessity for a reduction in driving speed. The trial court granted a summary judgment based on the design immunity. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Defendant argued that the design immunity prevailed over any liability for a dangerous condition of public property. The court disagreed, saying that the design immunity is limited to a design-caused accident. It does not immunize from liability caused by negligence independent of design, even though the independent negligence is only a concurring, proximate cause of the accident (275 Cal. App. 2d 806, 811) . The court said that Gov. Code § 830.6 protects the public from liability for reasonably conceived design choices made in the exercise of discretionary authority. The ice on the bridge was a consequence of the bridge's physical surroundings, not of a design choice. The court found that defendant failed to establish the bridge's plan or design as a proximate cause of the accident (275 Cal. App. 2d 806, 812) , and concluded that the design immunity was not an available defense (275 Cal. App. 2d 806, 813) .

[e] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Changed Circumstances Create Dangerous Condition

In Baldwin v. State of California (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 424, 99 Cal. Rptr. 145, 491 P.2d 1121 , plaintiff was injured when his vehicle was struck from behind while waiting to make a left turn from a heavily travelled highway at an intersection without a left-turn lane. Plain tiff sued the state, alleging that the intersection had become hazardous as a result of the large increase of traffic. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of defendant on the basis of the design immunity. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. It held that when a plan or design of construction of, or improvement to, public property, although shown to have been reasonably approved in advance or prepared in conformity with standards previously so approved, as being safe, nevertheless in its actual operation under changed physical conditions produces a dangerous condition of public property and causes injury, the public entity does not retain the immunity from liability conferred on it by Gov. Code § 830.6 (6 Cal. 3d 424, 438) . The Court said that design immunity persists only so long as conditions have not changed. After it has approved a plan or design, the public entity may not hide its head in the blueprints, blithely ignoring the actual operation of the plan. Once the public entity has notice that the plan or design, under changed physical conditions, has produced a dangerous condition of public property, it must act reasonably to correct or alleviate the hazard. That notice may be actual or constructive, and must be a sufficient time prior to the injury to have permitted the public entity to take measures to protect against the danger (6 Cal. 3d 424, 434) .

[f] "Trap" Exception to Design Immunity Is Applicable

The facts and procedural background of Cameron v. State of California (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 318, 102 Cal. Rptr. 305, 497 P.2d 777 , are discussed in § 196.300[3][b]. The Supreme Court reversed a judgment of nonsuit in favor of plaintiff. The Court said Gov. Code § 830.8 provides that a public entity may be liable for failure to provide warning signs if a sign was necessary to warn of a dangerous condition which would not be reasonably apparent to, and would not have been anticipated by, a person using the highway with due care. It found that the evidence introduced by plaintiffs showing: that a driver entering the curve at a lawful speed and exercising due care would be unable to perceive the uneven superelevation; that thisuneven superelevation would trap the driver into thinking the curve would continue to the left, while it in fact continued to the right; that the driver, too late to remedy the situation, would discover himself or herself going too fast, the weight of the car shifting and perhaps rolling over; and that warning signs, indicating the proper speed to negotiate the curve, if obeyed by the driver, would eliminate the dangerousness from the condition of uneven superelevation, was sufficient to find the state was negligent in failing to warn of the dangerous condition (7 Cal. 3d 318, 327) .

The facts and procedural background of Anderson v. City of Thousand Oaks (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 82, 135 Cal. Rptr. 127 , are discussed in § 196.300[3][a]. The court of appeal reversed the summary judgment granted by the trial court in favor of defendant. Plaintiffs alleged that defendant was negligent in its failure to warn motorists adequately of the curve, because although the posted speed limit was 65 miles per hour, the design speed of the curve was 45 miles per hour, and defendant posted no warning signs of the curve. In response to that allegation, the court addressed the sign placement immunity granted by Gov. Code §§ 830.4 and 830.8. It said that the broad discretion allowed a public entity in the placement of road control signs is limited by the requirement that there be adequate warning of dangerous conditions not reasonably apparent to motorists. Thus, a public entity is not shielded from liability for maintenance of a dangerous condition in its property, if it fails to post signs in circumstances constituting a trap to the motorist. The court found that plaintiffs' averments regarding the speed parameters of the curve in the road illustrated the type of trap contemplated. Without any warnings prior to the curve, even a cautious driver might well commit himself or herself to the curve at a speed 10 miles per hour in excess of the maximum safe speed, but still within the posted speed limit, posing the grave danger of either losing control of the automobile or of leaving the roadway (65 Cal. App. 3d 82, 93) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Required Elements of Design Immunity

In Levin v. State of California (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 410, 194 Cal. Rptr. 223 , plaintiffs brought a wrongful death action against the state after decedent was killed when her automobile went over an embankment after a head-on collision with another automobile. Plaintiffs alleged that defendant was liable under Gov. Code § 835 for a dangerous condition of public property because the road lacked guardrails or a median barrier. The court of appeal reversed the summary judgment issued by the trial court on the basis of the design immunity. The court noted that the elements of the design immunity defense are: (1) a causal relationship between the design and the accident; (2) approval of the design in advance of the construction by an officer exercising discretionary authority; and (3) substantial evidence of the reasonableness of the design. The court found that although a causal relationship had been established, defendant failed to establish the second and third elements of the defense (146 Cal. App. 3d 410, 415-418) .

The facts and procedural background of Mozzetti v. City of Brisbane (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 136 Cal. Rptr. 751 , are discussed in § 196.300[3][d]. The court of appeal explained that the defendant public entity has the burden of pleading and proving the defense of design immunity and each of its essential elements, and that failure to prove any enumerated ingredient is fatal to the applicability of that defense (67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 574) . The court then found that the evidence fell short of showing that the plan or design of the project was approved in advance of construction by the city council or an authorized officer. It observed that although there was testimony that the project was approved by the city council, the evidence was uncontradicted that the one-page surface drawing so approved did not show the requisite details of the road design; there were several changes during the construction that materially affected plaintiffs' property; and there was no satisfactory evidence that the changes were approved by either the city council or a public employee possessing that discretionary authority (67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 574) .

[b] Feature That Caused Accident Is Not Part of Approved Design

Johnston v. Yolo County (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 46, 79 Cal. Rptr. 33 , involved an accident allegedly caused by the design of two sharp curves in a road. Plaintiff brought a personal injury action against defendant county. The trial court entered judgment for plaintiff after a jury verdict in his favor. The court of appeal affirmed (274 Cal. App. 2d 46, 61) . It held that the design immunity did not apply to immunize defendant from liability because the evidence showed that the county engineer did not approve the design of the curve. He actually disapproved the design but was required to order the construction because the board of supervisors would not finance a proper design (274 Cal. App. 2d 46, 52-54) .

[c] Adoption of Unreasonable Design

In Morfin v. State of California (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 812, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861 , persons who were injured while inside a DMV building, by a vehicle that crashed into the building, brought an action against the state alleging unsafe design of the building. The defendant raised the defense of design immunity under Gov. Code § 830.6, and the plaintiffs sought discovery of information regarding prior vehicle collisions with not only that particular building, but also other DMV buildings within the previous ten years, on the ground that the evidence would tend to show that the state was on notice of an unusually high risk of that type of accident at DMV facilities, and therefore was not entitled to immunity. The trial court denied discoverywith respect to accidents at other DMV locations, and judgment was entered for defendant. The court of appeal reversed, holding that evidence relating to other DMV buildings was relevant with respect to whether the state had knowledge of the unusual risk associated with DMV parking lots vis-a-vis danger to adjacent buildings (12 Cal. App. 4th 812, 816-817) .

[d] "Trap" Exception to Design Immunity Is Applicable

In Bunker v. City of Glendale (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 168 Cal. Rptr. 565 , while riding his motorcycle up a steep hill, plaintiff collided with a woman backing out of a driveway. Plaintiff brought an action for personal injuries and property damages against defendant city, alleging that he was unable to see the woman in sufficient time to stop and avoid the collision, and that defendant failed to provide adequate warning of the dangerous condition. The trial court denied defendant's motion for summary judgment, and entered judgment in favor of plaintiff on the basis of the jury's special verdict. The court of appeal affirmed. The court explained that although Gov. Code § 830.4 provides that the absence of traffic control signals or signs does not in itself make a condition a dangerous one, Gov. Code § 830.8 provides that when a dangerous condition exists which would not be reasonably apparent to, or anticipated by, a person exercising due care, and a sign is necessary to warn of the condition, the public entity's failure to provide such a sign may provide a basis for imposition of liability against the public entity. It said that the sign warning oncoming traffic to slow to 15 miles per hour was sited three intersections away from, and approximately 500 feet below, the crest of the hill. The court said there was evidence that motorists could not tell whether the warning applied to the intersections or to the grade of the hill. It held that the jury's conclusion that defendant failed to warn motorists about a dangerous condition was supported by substantial evidence (111 Cal. App. 3d 325, 328-329) .

[5] Opposing Authorities

[a] Required Elements of Design Immunity

In Laabs v. City of Victorville (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 372 , plaintiff was injured while she was a passenger in a northbound car that collided with another car that was attempting a left turn onto the southbound lane of the same street. Because of the particular history of that street, the northbound lane was the property of the county, while the southbound lane was the property of the city. Plaintiff sued both entities, alleging that the curvature of the road created a dangerous condition of public property in that there was insufficient visibility leading up to the intersection. The trial court granted the city's motion for summary judgment, and the court of appeal affirmed. Because the driver of the other car was trying to reach city property when the accident occurred, the court first concluded that there were triable issues as to whether the city could be liable for a collision that occurred on the county's adjacent property (163 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1262) . However, the court then held that the city was nonetheless immune from liability under the design immunity of Gov. Code § 830.6. The court concluded that the evidence on summary judgment was sufficient to show a causal relationship between the curvature of the road and adequacy of stopping sight distance, as well as discretionary approval of the road design plans prior to construction. As to the third element of the defense, substantial evidence to support the reasonableness of the design, the court concluded that while the city's own evidence was insufficient to meet its burden of proof, the evidence submitted by the plaintiff in opposition to the motion for summary judgment provided sufficient evidence. Plaintiff's evidence included a declaration, originally submitted by the county, giving the opinion of a civil traffic engineer that the design of the road was not only reasonable, but excellent, and that there was no defect in the design or operation of the road. The court concluded that this declaration implicitly supported the conclusion that the design was reasonable (163 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1263-1267) .

In Fuller v. Department of Transp. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 823 , the plaintiffs brought a wrongful death action against the State Department of Transportation following the death of family members in an automobile accident. The plaintiffs alleged a dangerous condition of public property, arguing that the posted 55-miles-per-hour speed limit was too fast for the curved highway condition at the scene of the accident. The trial court granted nonsuit in favor of the defendant, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal held that the defendant was entitled to assert design immunity in a suit alleging that injury was caused by setting a roadway speed limit too high, if that speed limit was set in accordance with some plan and discretionarily adopted by an employee with the authority to do so (89 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1115) . The court rejected the plaintiffs' argument that design immunity should not apply because the setting of a speed limit has nothing to do with the construction of, or improvements to, public property. Instead, the court concluded that roadway construction was an improvement to public property, that "design speed," such as the safe speed at which a curve may be negotiated, was an inherent part of roadway design, and that speed regulations are part and parcel of the safety features of a road improvement (89 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1114-1115) . The court also held that in this case the speed plan approved by the defendant's traffic engineer took into account the relevant statutory and engineering considerations and was therefore reasonable (89 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1118) .

In Uyeno v. State of California (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 286 Cal. Rptr. 328 , plaintiffs, parents of a young boy killed when struck by a car in an intersection, sued the state, alleging the death was the result of an improperly timed traffic signal at the intersection. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court dismissal based on the design immunity. Plaintiffs argued that the design immunity defense was improper because there was no prior approval of the timing sequence and because it was not approved by anyone other than the signal operator. The court explained that the timing sequence of traffic lights requires some observance in operation and does not readily lend itself to a full pre-implementation determination. Although preliminary plans are formulated in accordance with basic guidelines, it is not until the timing sequence has been set and observed that it can be finally approved. Accordingly, the authority for designating and implementing timing systems has been delegated to employees who are experts within the field. The court found this type of approval to constitute the prior discretionary approval as contemplated by § 830.6 (234 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1378-1379) . The court also said that although it may be prudent in many instances to have a third person approve a design for an improvement, such review is not always necessary, or compelled by law. Section 830.6 requires only that the project be approved by an employee exercising discretionary authority to give such approval. There is no requirement that the approving employee be someone other than the person who prepares the plan or design (234 Cal.

App. 3d 1371, 1380) .

In Compton v. City of Santee (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 591, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 660 , a motorist brought an action against a city seeking damages arising from a traffic accident, and alleging that the placement of a bridge constituted a dangerous condition of public property. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendant based on immunity under Gov. Code § 830.6. The court of appeal affirmed, holding, inter alia, that under the facts a substantial basis existed on which a governmental official could have decided that the design was reasonable. The court noted that the design was supervised by the county engineer, and that the design metor exceeded the state and county standards in effect at the time it was approved, and still met or exceeded the present sight line recommendations promulgated by the state Department of Transportation and American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (12 Cal. App. 4th 591, 597) .

[b] Adoption of Unreasonable Design

In Hefner v. County of Sacramento (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 243 Cal. Rptr. 291 , after plaintiff was injured in an automobile accident in which she was struck broadside by a car at an intersection, she sued defendant county alleging the defective design of the intersection at which the accident occurred constituted a dangerous condition of property that caused the collision. A stop sign and a limit line were placed 38 feet and 13 feet south of the edge of the pavement of the cross street, respectively. Plaintiff alleged that she had stopped her vehicle at the limit line, but her view of the cross street was obscured, and that as she pulled beyond the limit line she was hit by a driver approaching on the cross street who believed she was pulling out in front of him and therefore swerved his car to avoid what he thought would be a collision. In fact, plaintiff's car was stopped and the intended evasive maneuver actually directed the other car straight into plaintiff's. The trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground it was immune from liability arising out of the defective design of improvements to public property provided by Gov. Code § 830.6.

The court of appeal affirmed, concluding that there was substantial evidence on the basis of which a reasonable public employee could have adopted the design (197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1010) . The court said a public entity is entitled to a defense of design immunity if there is any substantial evidence on which the approval can be reasonably based, and it is error to submit a design defense to a jury. In determining whether evidence before the trial court is substantial, the question is whether the evidence "reasonably inspires confidence" and is of "solid value." The court said that since there was no dispute that the injury was caused by the design and that the design was approved by an employee exercising discretionary authority, he issue was whether there was any substantial evidence on the basis of which a reasonable public employee could have adopted the design. Defendant failed to disprove plaintiff's allegations that the vision and visibility of those stopped at the limit line were totally obscured by a mound of vegetation and dirt. The court thus assumed that a driver stopped at the limit line could neither see nor be seen by drivers approaching on the cross street. County engineers, however, testified that the placement of the limit line met all national and state standards for design and safety, and that it met reasonable and safe engineering practices. Plaintiff's engineer testified that the manual pertaining to traffic control devices required different placement of the limit line (197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1014-1015) .

The court noted that ordinarily, the opinion of a civil engineer regarding the reasonableness of design constitutes any substantial evidence sufficient to support a design immunity defense, but courts have rejected expert testimony ostensibly supporting design immunity when the testimony has been flawed sufficiently to destroy its substantiality (197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1015) . The court found that the trial court was entitled to disregard the testimony of plaintiff's expert, since no language in the manual pertaining to traffic control devices supported his testimony (197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1015-1016) . The court concluded that the placement of the limit line satisfied all established design criteria and safe engineering practices, and that the testimony of the county engineers constituted substantial evidence sufficient to justify placement of the line, and defendant was entitled to design immunity (197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1017) .

[c] Injury Is Not Caused by Design

In Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. v. Superior Court (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 476, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906 , plaintiff brought an action against the defendant, a transit district, for negligent maintenance based on injuries she received after a train she was riding jerked back and forth. The defendant moved for summary judgment on the basis of the statutory design immunity of Gov. Code § 830.6, introducing evidence of a design which may cause lurching during acceleration. In opposition, plaintiff offered an expert declaration stating that there had been a failure of one of the elements of the system, and that this could be caused by negligent maintenance or supervision. The defendant replied with the undisputed fact that the car in question had received preventive maintenance six days before the accident. The trial court denied the defendant's motion, and the defendant sought a writ of mandate. The court of appeal found that the defendant had demonstrated that the accident was caused by the design of the train, because the acceleration system could cause lurching, and held that the declaration by plaintiff's expert failed to raise a triable issue of fact that something other than the acceleration design produced the lurching that caused the accident (46 Cal. App. 4th 476, 481-482) . The court thus directed the trial court to enter a new order granting the defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[d] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Changed Circumstances Create Dangerous Condition

In Alvis v. County of Ventura (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494 , plaintiffs brought suit against a county after a large landslide killed 10 people and destroyed 16 homes. Plaintiffs argued that the retaining wall built five years earlier after another landslide constituted a dangerous condition of public property in that it redirected the path of the subsequent landslide and may in fact have helped cause the subsequent landslide. The trial court granted summary judgment or summary adjudication in favor of defendant on all causes of action except a cause of action for inverse condemnation, which plaintiffs subsequently dismissed. The court of appeal affirmed. The court first held that plaintiffs' expert's declaration was not substantial evidence to create a triable issue of fact as to the cause of the landslide, because that expert's earlier statements about the cause of the landslide directly contradicted his subsequent statements and no reason for the contradictory positions was provided (178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 548-549) . The court then held that the design immunity of Gov. Code § 830.6 provided a complete defense to the county. The court rejected plaintiffs' claim that the county could be liable for negligence in its maintenance of the wall because it did not drain adequately. The court noted that the "maintenance" proposed by the plaintiff was actually a change in the original design of the project, in that plaintiffs were actually arguing for different drainage measures that had been considered and rejected when the original design was approved (178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 550-551) . The court also rejected plaintiffs' claims that the original wall design approval was not made knowingly because the county board was not apprised of all negative concerns expressed by one consultant. The court held that application of design immunity did not require that the decision-maker who approved the design first be informed of every negative comment or concern expressed by every consultant or expert who reviewed the proposed plan, so long as evidence supported the reasonableness of the plan or design (178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 553) . Finally, the court held that plaintiffs had not shown a change of physical conditions sufficient to defeat design immunity. The court noted that a claimed change of physical conditions cannot be based on the same technical data or policy decisions that went into the original plan or design. Instead, immunity is preserved if a public entity approves a design that contemplated and made allowances for the possibility of the specific change of condition argued by the plaintiff. Because the county's approval of the retaining wall considered and made allowances for drainage through the wall, the plaintiffs' change of condition argument failed as it was based on alleged inadequate drainage that allegedly allowed for water to build up in the soil behind the wall (178 Cal. App. 4th 536, 554-555) .

In Mirzada v. Department of Transp. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 802, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205 , the plaintiffs were a family involved in an automobile accident in which a drunk driver had crossed a 60-foot median on the highway and hit the plaintiffs' car, killing one family member. The plaintiffssued the California Department of Transportation, arguing that liability could be imposed for failing to install a barrier on the median prior to the accident. The trial court granted summary judgment for the defendant on the grounds of design immunity, and the court of appeal affirmed. Conceding that the defendant was entitled to design immunity for the original design of the highway, the plaintiffs argued that changed conditions had resulted in the loss of that immunity. The court of appeal disagreed. The court disregarded the fact that the defendant subsequently scheduled erection of a barrier for the accident site, because that decision did not constitute an admission that the lack of a barrier constituted a dangerous condition (111 Cal. App. 4th 802, 807) . The court noted that the fact that traffic volume on the highway more than tripled from the construction year of 1972 to the accident year of 1998 did not, by itself, establish a dangerous condition or result in a loss of design immunity (111 Cal. App. 4th 802, 807-808) . The court also rejected the relevance of the plaintiffs' general claim that accidents across medians more than 45 feet wide had increased substantially since 1991, because this claim proved nothing about the condition at the accident site, which itself had a 60-foot median (111 Cal. App. 4th 802, 808) . Finally, the court rejected the plaintiffs' claim that vague evidence of the number of vehicle accidents in the "vicinity" of the accident site created a triable issue of fact as to a changed condition, because the defendant had countered with evidence showing that no accidents had occurred within 5 years prior to the plaintiffs' accident along a more specific 2.8-mile stretch of highway that included the precise site of the plaintiffs' accident (111 Cal. App. 4th 802, 808-809) .

In Wyckoff v. State of California (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 45, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 , the plaintiff's family was killed when a driver traveling in the opposite direction on a state freeway crossed over the center median and collided head-on with the plaintiff's car. The plaintiff argued in his suit against the state of California that the lack of a center median barrier constituted a dangerous condition of public property. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's grant of summary judgment for the defendant. The court of appeal first held that the defendant was entitled to assert design immunity. Although the highway median width averaged 45 feet 5 inches at the site of the accident, and the approved plans called for a median of 46 feet, the median as built was in substantial conformity with and did not materially depart from the plans (90 Cal. App. 4th 45, 52-55) . Addressing the plaintiff's contention that changed conditions made the location a dangerous condition, the court of appeal first concluded that an increase in traffic volume on the highway did not constitute a changed condition, noting in part that the peak traffic volume was still well below the designed capacity of the road (90 Cal. App. 4th 45, 60) . The court then concluded that the change in speed limit from 55 miles per hour to 65 miles per hour did not constitute a changed condition. The defendant's expert had explained that there was no evidence that the higher posted speed limit resulted in higher cross-median accidents, and in fact studies showed that prior to the elimination of the national speed limit of 55 miles per hour, drivers were largely ignoring that restriction and there was very little actual speed increase after the speed limits were raised (90 Cal. App. 4th 45, 60) . Finally, the court concluded that the plaintiff's evidence of nine cross-median accidents over a 24-mile stretch of the highway during a 21-month period, none of which were within a half-mile in either direction from the site of the plaintiff's accident, was not statistically aberrant enough to put the defendant on notice of a dangerous condition (90 Cal. App. 4th 45, 61-62) .

In Alvarez v. State of California (1999) 79 Cal. App. 4th 720, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 719 , the plaintiff was injured and her son killed when a vehicle traveling on the highway in the opposite direction veered across the median and struck her vehicle. The plaintiff sued the state of California, alleging that the lack of a median barrier constituted a dangerous condition of public property. The state successfully moved for summary judgment based on design immunity. The plaintiff appealed on the grounds that even if the state established design immunity, that immunity was defeated by changed conditions because an increase in traffic flow had triggered a state review as to whether to add a barrier to the highway, engineers had recommended adding the barrier, and State officials had approved the barrier (although this barrier approval occurred after the plaintiff's accident).

The court of appeal affirmed. In reaching its decision, the court reconsidered its earlier decision in Bane v. State of California (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 860, 256 Cal. Rptr. 468 , in which the court had held that the 1979 amendment to Gov. Code § 830.6 eliminated the requirement of a changed physical condition before an approved design may be deemed unreasonable [see Baldwin v. State of California (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 424, 99 Cal. Rptr. 145, 491 P.2d 1121 ; see also § 196.300[3][e]]. The court agreed with subsequent court of appeal decisions that the Bane decision erred in eliminating the changed physical condition requirement (79 Cal. App. 4th 720, 736-737) . In addition, although the court agreed that an increase in traffic flow may constitute a changed physical condition under the appropriate circumstances, the plaintiff had failed to demonstrate that the traffic increase caused a dangerous condition of which the state was aware. The court noted that median barriers statistically increased the accident rate and that the accident history at the particular site was unremarkable. Therefore, the state's determination, triggered because of an increase in traffic flow, that the benefit of adding a barrier now outweighed the detriment did not constitute a determination that the median without a barrier was a dangerous condition or that that conditions had changed so that design immunity had ended (79 Cal. App. 4th 720, 737-739) .

In Dole Citrus v. State of California (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 486, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348 , a Dole employee was driving on the freeway towards a freewayovercrossing when a person lit himself on fire, jumped off the overcrossing, and crashed through his windshield, severely injuring him. Plaintiff, the driver's employer, sued the state in an effort to recover the amount of workers' compensation benefits it had paid on behalf of its injured driver. Plaintiff contended that the guardrail along the side of the overpass was inadequate in height to prevent objects from being thrown onto or falling onto the freeway below. The trial court upheld that state's claim of design immunity, and granted the state's motion for summary judgment. On appeal plaintiff argued that the state lost the design immunity protection of Gov. Code § 830.6 due to changed circumstances.

The court of appeal disagreed, holding that plaintiff failed to present sufficient evidence of changed circumstances; evidence that physical conditions at a specific location had changed in such a manner that the original design had created a dangerous condition of which the entity had notice (60 Cal. App. 4th 486, 489, 493-494) . Plaintiff argued that a 1971 statute, Sts. & Hy. Code § 92.6, which required the Department of Transportation to install and maintain screening on state freeway overpasses at such locations as it determined to be appropriate, and subsequent Department attempts to comply with it (including changes in its design manual) constituted both a recognition that unscreened overcrossings were a dangerous condition, and a conclusion by the state that circumstances have changed, such that the original design immunity ended. The court first determined that neither the statute nor the changes in the design manual required the installation of protective screening on every freeway overpass in the state. Instead, they required the department to install screening on new construction and at other locations it deemed appropriate. It then disagreed with the concept that changes in the design manual which sought to improve the design standards, supported the conclusion or constituted an admission that the superseded design standards were defective. According to the court, the new standards only provided alternative railing standards for new construction (60 Cal. App. 4th 486, 494) .

In Grenier v. City of Irwindale (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 931, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454 , plaintiff sued a City over the dangerous condition of a flooded street. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendant on the theory of design immunity, Gov. Code § 830.6 and the court of appeal affirmed. On appeal plaintiff argued that even if the City had initially acquired immunity for its design of the street, that immunity was lost when the City became aware that flooding of the street was a dangerous condition. The court of appeal reviewed the pertinent case and statutory authority in order to determine whether a change in physical conditions was necessary to defeat design immunity [see Baldwin v. State of California (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 424, 434, 99 Cal. Rptr. 145, 491 P.2d 1121 ; see also § 196.300[3][e]], or whether immunity terminated if the subsequent history showed the design was unreasonable for any reason once the public entity had notice of the dangerous condition and a sufficient time period to remedy it. After reviewing the history of the immunity statute, the court declined to follow Bane v. State of California (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 860, 256 Cal. Rptr. 468 , and held that the requirement of changed physical conditions was a prerequisite to the loss of design immunity. In this case, plaintiff's evidence, showing that one previous accident occurred on the street in seven years, and that City knew that the street flooded during storms, failed to show a change in conditions sufficient to defeat design immunity (57 Cal. App. 4th 931, 945) .

[e] "Trap" Exception to Design Immunity Is Applicable

In Weinstein v. Department of Transp. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 52, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 417 , the plaintiffs were involved in an accident in which one car crossed a median on a state highway and struck another car that was traveling in the other direction. The plaintiffs sued the Department of Transportation, alleging that the accident site was a dangerous condition of public property. The accident site included a "lane drop" in which one of three northbound lanes merged with another, a sign on the right-hand side of the road indicating the lane merger, pavement arrows indicating the merger, a 94-foot-wide median with cyclone fencing to prevent u-turns, and a relatively straight road with no sight restrictions. The trial court granted the defendant's motion for summary judgment based on design immunity, and the court of appeal affirmed. The plaintiffs argued that although the absence of a sturdy median barrier, the width of the paved median, and the alignment of the road were all aspects of the approved design, it was unreasonable for any public entity to approve such a design because it did not conform to applicable state standards. The court disagreed, concluding that the design conformed to applicable state standards, which entitled the defendants to design immunity (139 Cal. App. 4th 52, 58-59) . The plaintiffs also argued that even if design immunity were appropriate, the defendant could be liable for failing to provide a sign warning of the lane drop on the median side of the highway. The court, citing Gov. Code § 830.8, noted that the absence of a warning sign cannot be the basis for liability unless there is a hidden dangerous condition. The plaintiffs' claim for the need of a warning sign was based on the absence of a median barrier, the horizontal alignment of the roadway, and the width of the paved median, none of which were hidden dangers. Because the defendant could not be liable for any of these aspects of the highway's approved design as dangerous conditions, it could not be liable for failing to warn of these same aspects of the highway (139 Cal. App. 4th 52, 61) .

The facts and procedural background of Hefner v. County of Sacramento (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 243 Cal. Rptr. 291 , are discussed in § 196.300[5][b]. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment for defendant. It considered plaintiff's contention that the allegedly defective design of the intersection created a "trap" that would override any immunity provided by Gov. Code § 830.6. The court explained the "trap" exception to the design immunity.Under Gov. Code § 830.8, an entity can be liable for its failure to warn of a dangerous condition that causes harm. By force of its terms the design immunity of Gov. Code § 830.6 is limited to a design-caused accident. It does not immunize from liability caused by negligence independent of design, even though the independent negligence is only a concurring, proximate cause of the accident. The court said that when a public entity is immune from liability for injuries caused by a dangerous condition of its property because the dangerous condition was created as a result of a plan or design that conferred immunity under Gov. Code § 830.6, the public entity may nevertheless be liable for failure to warn of this dangerous condition when the failure to warn is negligent and is an independent, separate, concurring cause of the accident (197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1017-1018) . It said, however, that the "trap" exception applies only when it is alleged that the entity failed to post adequate signs warning of a dangerous condition. The court observed that plaintiff's case did not present the issue of defective or inadequate warning signs; instead, plaintiff hoped to circumvent immunity based only on the allegation that the intersection design itself presented a trap. Absent a claim that warning signs are inadequate, the "trap" exception to governmental immunity is inapplicable (197 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1018) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
PART 2. Immunity From Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.301

§ 196.301 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Immunity for Weather Conditions [Gov. Code § 831] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 831 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE, GRANTED TO A PUBLIC ENTITY FOR WEATHER CONDITIONS AFFECTING STREETS AND HIGHWAYS, IS NOT APPLICABLE WHEN _____ [SUCH EFFECT WOULD NOT BE REASONABLY APPARENT TO, AND WOULD NOT BE ANTICIPATED BY, A PERSON EXERCISING DUE CARE or THE DANGEROUS CONDITION IS DUE TO A COMBINATION OF THE EFFECT OF THE WEATHER CONDITION AND THE CONDITION OF THE HIGHWAY or THE CONDITION IS A FIXED AND PREDICTABLE ASPECT OF NATURE AGAINST WHICH HUMAN CARE AND FORESIGHT COULD PROTECT].

[EITHER]

Immunity Is Not Applicable When Effect Not Apparent and Could Not Be Anticipated in Exercise of Due Care. The immunity for the effect of weather conditions on streets and highways of Section 831 of the Government Code does not exonerate a public entity or public employee from liability for injury proximately caused by such effect if it would not be reasonably apparent to, and would not be anticipated by, a person exercising due care in using the streets or highways (Erfurt v. State of California (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 845, 190 Cal. Rptr. 569 ; Callahan v. City & County of San Francisco (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 696, 704, 57 Cal. Rptr. 639).

[AND/OR]

Immunity Is Not Applicable When Dangerous Condition Due to Combination of Weather and Condition of Highway. The immunity for weather conditions affecting streets and highways of Section 831 of the Government Code does not apply when the dangerous condition is due to a combination of the effect of the weather condition and the condition of the highway (see Erfurt v. State of California (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 845-846, 190 Cal. Rptr. 569).

[AND/OR]

Immunity Is Not Applicable When Condition Fixed and Predictable. The immunity for weather conditions affecting streets and highways of Section 831 of the Government Code does not apply when the condition is a fixed and predictable aspect of nature that human care and foresight could protect against (see Erfurt v. State of California (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 846, 190 Cal. Rptr. 569).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the immunity for weather conditions affecting public streets and highways of Gov. Code § 831 is not applicable. The alternative optional paragraphs may be used either separately or in conjunction with one another, depending on the facts. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 831 is discussed in § 196.12[4].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a demurrer [see, e.g., Callahan v. City & County of San Francisco (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 696, 697, 57 Cal. Rptr. 639] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Effect Not Apparent and Could Not Be Anticipated in Exercise of Due Care

In Erfurt v. State of California (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 190 Cal. Rptr. 569 , plaintiff brought an action against the state for personal injuries sustained in an automobile accident allegedly due to a dangerous condition on a highway. Plaintiff was driving her automobile up an incline on the highway and was suddenly blinded by the rising sun when she reached the crest. The highway split in a "Y" formation immediately after the crest and went around a pillar to an overpass. Plaintiff could not see in front of her because of the sun and could not find any highway lane markings to guide her and consequently crashed into the pillar. The evidence disclosed that there were no devices, such as "bot dots," on the highway to warn a driver of the pillar or guide traffic away from the abutment. Inaddition, the distance from the guard rail surrounding the pillar to the point where the striping began did not meet the minimum standard for channelization of a highway. The trial court entered judgment on the jury verdict in favor of plaintiff, and the state appealed, contending in part that the weather condition immunity of Gov. Code § 831 applied.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The court held that the immunity of Gov. Code § 831 did not apply for three independent reasons. It said that by its own terms, Gov. Code § 831, does not apply to the effect of weather conditions on the use of a highway if it would not be reasonably apparent to, and would not be anticipated by, a person exercising due care. The court noted that there was sufficient testimony that, given the nature of the incline on which plaintiff was driving, the blinding sun could not be anticipated, nor was it reasonably apparent (141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 845) .

In Callahan v. City & County of San Francisco (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 696, 57 Cal. Rptr. 639 , plaintiff brought a personal injury action against defendant city for injuries sustained when the car in which she was a passenger drove into a lake. Plaintiff alleged defendant was negligent in that the street where the accident occurred was frequently covered with fog, and it was designed with the appearance of a freeway, but ended abruptly at another street. Ahead there were logs, trees, and a declivity into a lake. She alleged that it was reasonably likely that a careful driver, in foggy conditions, might continue over the end of the road into the logs, trees, or lake. No adequate warning signs or devices were provided. Defendant demurred, and the trial court sustained that demurrer and entered judgment accordingly. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, with direction to overrule the demurrer. The court said that Gov. Code § 831 exempts public entities from liability caused by the effect on the use of streets and highways of weather conditions, but does not exonerate a public entity from liability for injury proximately caused by that effect if it would not be reasonably apparent to, and would not be anticipated by, a person exercising due care (249 Cal. App. 2d 696, 704) . Plaintiff's allegations related not only to a condition of fog, but also to the layout of the streets and especially to the appearance of a freeway where actually there was none, and to the lack of signs. The reference to persons using due care has to do with the public at large as distinguished from one particular driver (249 Cal. App. 2d 696, 705) .

[b] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Dangerous Condition Due to Combination of Weather and Condition of Highway

The facts and procedural background of Erfurt v. State of California (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 190 Cal. Rptr. 569 , are discussed in § 196.301[3][a]. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment in favor of plaintiff, finding that the immunity of Gov. Code § 831 did not apply for three independent reasons. The second reason it articulated for the inapplicability of that immunity was that the dangerous condition was not merely the effect of blinding sunlight on a public highway, but was the result of the effect of blinding sunlight combined with improper channelization and lack of devices to properly guide and warn the driver around an object in the middle of the freeway (141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 845-846) .

[c] Immunity Is Not Applicable When Condition Fixed and Predictable

The facts and procedural background of Erfurt v. State of California (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 190 Cal. Rptr. 569 , are discussed in § 196.301[3][a]. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment in favor of plaintiff, finding that the immunity of Gov. Code § 831 did not apply for three independent reasons. The third reason given by the court was based on the constant and predictable presence of the sun. The legislative purpose of Gov. Code § 831 was to immunize against the effect of weather conditions, known or unknown, predictable or unpredictable, that no amount of human care or foresight could fully protect against. The court reasoned that considered in this light, the rising of the sun resembles more a fixed aspect of nature than does wind, rain, flood, ice, or snow, all of which are set out in Gov. Code § 831 and none of which are absolutely certain to be present in a certain time or place. The court noted that from the standpoint of human care and foresight, the rising of the sun is like the contours of the shoreline, the nature of the soil on which the road is built, or even nightfall itself, since every day, at any given time, regardless of the weather, the sun occupies a predictable point in the sky relative to any given location. The sun is always there, unlike the weather conditions set out in the statute (141 Cal. App. 3d 837, 847) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
PART 2. Immunity From Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.302

§ 196.302 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Immunity for Natural Conditions [Gov. Code § 831.2] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE NATURAL CONDITIONS IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 831.2 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE ONLY APPLIES TO NATURAL CONDITIONS ON UNIMPROVED PROPERTY, AND DOES NOTAPPLY _____ [WHEN ANY IMPROVEMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE BY THE PUBLIC ENTITY or WHEN THE INJURY IS SUSTAINED BY A NONUSER OF THE PUBLIC PROPERTY].

[EITHER]

Natural Condition Immunity Not Is Applicable to Improvements. The natural condition immunity of Section 831.2 of the Government Code only applies to natural conditions on unimproved property. It does not apply when the injury is the result of an improvement of property made by a public entity (Buchanan v. City of Newport Beach (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 221, 225-227, 123 Cal. Rptr. 338).

[AND/OR]

Natural Condition Immunity Not Applicable to Injuries to Nonusers of Adjacent Land. The natural condition immunity of Section 831.2 of the Government Code is not applicable to injuries caused to persons who are not users of the public land, but are nonusers on adjacent property (Milligan v. City of Laguna Beach (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 829, 833-835, 196 Cal. Rptr. 38, 670 P.2d 1121).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the immunity for injuries resulting from a natural condition on unimproved public property of Gov. Code § 831.2 is not applicable either because some type of improvement has been made or because the injury is sustained by someone not using the publicly held land. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 831.2 and related immunities are discussed in § 196.12[5].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Mercer v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 158, 161, 242 Cal. Rptr. 701] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Injury to Nonuser Caused by Land Failure

Gov. Code § 831.25(a) [see § 196.12[5][c]] provides an immunity to liability for certain injuries caused by land failure of any unimproved public property if the land failure was caused by a natural condition of the unimproved public property. It includes injuries to property, or for emotional distress unless the plaintiff has suffered substantial physical injury, off the public entity's property [Gov. Code § 831.25(a)]. It appears that to abrogate the prior decision in Milligan v. City of Laguna Beach (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 829, 196 Cal. Rptr. 38, 670 P.2d 1121 [see § 196.302[3][b]], to the extent that it may be applied to injuries caused by land failure.

[c] Natural Condition of Public Beaches

Gov. Code § 831.21 [see § 196.12[5][b]] provides that public beaches are deemed to be in a natural condition and unimproved notwithstanding the provision or absence of public safety services such as lifeguards, police or sheriff patrols, medical services, fire protection services, beach cleanup services, or signs. Thus, it appears that the prior decision in Buchanan v. City of Newport Beach (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 221, 123 Cal. Rptr. 338 [see § 196.302[3][a]], no longer controls with respect to improvements that fall within that section's description of public safety services on public beaches.

[d] Hybrid Natural and Artificial Conditions

In one case, decided prior to the enactment of Gov. Code § 831.21 [see § 196.12[5][b]], a court of appeal held that the Gov. Code § 831.2 immunity did not apply when the dangerous condition was a hybrid of natural and artificial conditions. For example, when the public entity voluntarily, but negligently, provides a protective service, and thereby creates a dangerous condition by combining a known natural defect on the property with public reliance on the entity's protective warnings, a public entity is not protected by the immunity [Gonzales v. City of San Diego (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 882, 885-889, 182 Cal. Rptr. 73] . Because, however, the facts of the Gonzales case involved life guard services at a public beach, the ruling appears to be abrogated by Gov. Code § 831.21 [Geffen v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 188, 192-194, 242 Cal. Rptr. 492] . However, counsel could conceivably argue that the reasoning of Gonzales is persuasive in hybrid situations involving public property other than public beaches.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Natural Condition Immunity Not Applicable to Improvements

In Buchanan v. City of Newport Beach (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 221, 123 Cal. Rptr. 338 , after plaintiff was injured while body surfing at a beach under the control of defendant city, he brought an action for personalinjury against defendant. Plaintiff alleged that the wedge of beach where he was injured was created by defendant by constructing a jetty, dredging sand from the channel of the harbor entrance adjacent to the jetty, and depositing the dredged sand on what had been submerged sand spits, raising the beach level by 27 feet and causing a steep slope from the shoreline into the water, and that this condition of the beach, plus the interaction of the ocean swells against the jetty, caused a refraction of the waves, producing a dangerous surfing condition. Plaintiff claimed that defendant had notice of the dangerous condition a sufficient time prior to the injury to have taken measures to protect against the dangerous condition. The trial court concluded that the injury sustained by plaintiff was caused by a natural condition of unimproved public property for which defendant was not liable by virtue of Gov. Code § 831.2, and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, concluding there was evidence supporting plaintiff's cause of action and that the evidence did not establish that recovery was foreclosed by Gov. Code § 831.2 (50 Cal. App. 3d 221, 229) . The court reviewed the evidence concerning the wave action in the wedge area of beach where plaintiff was injured. The court concluded that the type of wave that plaintiff was riding, which thrust him down and caused him to break his neck, was the product of an improvement of property by governmental agencies, was man-made, and was not a natural condition. It said that the alteration of the flow of the ocean, the wave action, and the slope of the beach caused unnatural conditions, and that defendant had actual notice of the dangerous condition of the beach, but posted no warning signs, even though it had considered closing the beach to swimmers. The court observed that question whether these conditions had become natural by the passage of time and by the action of tides, was a question of fact (50 Cal. App. 3d 221, 225-227) .

NOTE:
This decision may be limited by Gov. Code § 831.21 [see § 196.302[2][c]].

[b] Natural Condition Immunity Not Applicable to Injuries to Nonusers of Adjacent Land

In Milligan v. City of Laguna Beach (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 829, 196 Cal. Rptr. 38, 670 P.2d 1121 , eucalyptus trees growing on defendant city's property fell during a storm, causing injury to plaintiffs' residence on adjacent property. Plaintiffs sued defendant for damages to their house and for emotional distress, alleging that defendant maintained the trees in a dangerous condition. Among its other defenses, defendant claimed immunity under Gov. Code § 831.2. The trial court held that the immunity applied and rendered judgment in favor of defendant. Plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed, holding that the natural condition immunity of Gov. Code § 831.2 is inapplicable to injuries caused to nonusers on adjacent property (34 Cal. 3d 829, 835) . The Court reviewed the Legislative policy underlying the immunity, which is that it is desirable to permit public use of governmental property, and recognizing that governmental agencies might prohibit that use if they were put to the expense of making the property safe, responding to tort actions, and paying damages. That policy reflects the shortage of funds for improving property for recreational use and the fairness of requiring users to assume the risk of injury. The Court said the policy has nothing to do with an injury sustained by an adjacent landowner from a tree on government land. The governmental agency may not preclude landowners from using their land, and immunity is not necessary to assure that landowners are permitted to use their land. Moreover, the Court found that nonusers of government land do not receive the reciprocal benefit of use, and the principle of fairness has no application. Since the policy on which the immunity relied on by defendant is based was not applicable to injuries occurring to nonusers on adjacent land, the Court found that immunity did not apply (34 Cal. 3d 829, 833) . The Court concluded that while the natural condition immunity may be applicable when the decayed tree limb falls on a user of the governmental property, it is not applicable when the limb injures adjacent property or persons on adjacent property because there is no danger that the governmental agency will close the property to use (34 Cal. 3d 829, 834) .

NOTE:
This decision may be limited by Gov. Code § 831.25 [see § 196.302 [2][b]].

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] Natural Condition Immunity Not Applicable to Improvements

In Arroyo v. State of California (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 755, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627 , plaintiff was injured by a mountain lion while walking on a hiking trail in a state park. He then sued the state, alleging that the state knew of the dangerous condition posed by mountain lions in the area. The state demurred to the complaint based on the immunity established by Gov. Code § 831.2. The trial court sustained the demurrer. On appeal, plaintiffquestioned whether a wild animal constitutes a "natural condition" of the park within the meaning of the immunity statute. The court of appeals concluded that it does, stating that the immunity is not restricted to conditions of real property, but applies to property of a public entity including personal property. The court concluded that wild animals fall within this definition because they are owned by the state. Plaintiff also argued that the state negligently assumed voluntary protective service because its signs generally indicated that the park was reasonably safe. However, the court ruled that the immunity of Gov. Code § 831.2 permits public entities to provide signs without incurring potential liability for failure to notify of every possible danger (34 Cal. App. 4th 755, 764) .

In State of California v. Superior Court (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 325, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 , a plaintiff who fell off a horse on a trail in a state park sued the state for injuries. The complaint stated that plaintiff fell when a mountain bicyclist came towards her at an extremely high rate of speed and spooked her horse, and alleged that a dangerous condition was created by the combination of the speeding mountain cyclist and the narrow, steep and twisting trails. The state demurred, claiming immunity based on Gov. Code § 831.2 and on Gov. Code § 831.4, which provides immunity from injuries caused by a condition of trails which provide access to riding. The trial court ruled that the statute provided only a limited immunity, and reasoned that the combination of the third party conduct and the physical defect removed plaintiff's suit from the limited scope of the immunity statutes. The state then sought a prerogative writ to set aside the trial court's order overruling the demurrer. The court of appeal issued the peremptory writ of mandate, ruling that the state is absolutely immune from liability for injuries caused by a physical defect of a trail. The court concluded that Gov. Code § 831.4 extended the cloak of immunity to cover roads or trails used for recreational activities (32 Cal. App. 4th 325, 328) .

In Valenzuela v. City of San Diego (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 258, 286 Cal. Rptr. 1 , plaintiff brought a personal injury action against defendant city after he dove from a rock on a city beach into shallow water and severely damaged his spinal cord. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of defendant on the grounds it was immune under Gov. Code §§ 831.2 and 831.7 (hazardous recreational activity immunity). In affirming that judgment, the court of appeal addressed plaintiff's argument that Gov. Code § 831.2 was inapplicable because defendant placed appropriate warning signs only a quarter of a mile south of the accident, thereby creating a dangerous condition requiring warning signs directly in the area of the accident. The court reasoned that signs are passive and are designed simply to warn people to take care if they assume the risk in using the unimproved public property in its natural condition. Defendant never assumed an active role in risk management. It simply placed warning signs in an area where injuries had occurred. The mere placement of signs in a dangerous area does not reasonably induce the public to believe all other areas are safe. This is particularly true where the danger is obvious, such as jumping off a rock into shallow water. Moreover, plaintiff did not even allege the warning signs a quarter mile south of his accident induced his decision to dive (234 Cal. App. 3d 258, 262) .

In City of Santa Cruz v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 999, 244 Cal. Rptr. 105 , plaintiff became a quadriplegic as a result of his dive into a river in which he injured his spine. Plaintiff sued defendant city, alleging that its failure to provide warnings caused his accident. A lifeguard assigned to the area had been instructed to prohibit persons from diving into the river. Although there was contradictory evidence concerning their presence, signs prohibiting diving were normally posted in the area. The trial court found that the river was unimproved public property in a natural condition. Defendant moved for summary judgment on the basis of the immunity provided by Gov. Code § 831.2. The trial court denied the motion. The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of mandate, directing the trial court to grant summary judgment in favor of defendant. The court explained that the Gov. Code § 831.2 immunity is absolute (198 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1004) . The court said that there was no evidence that lifeguards were ever placed so as to induce people to think it was safe to dive wherever there were no lifeguards. Nor was there evidence that anyone induced plaintiff to dive into shallow water in an unimproved area, or that he was misled by any public employee into believing the area was safe for diving (198 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1005-1006) . The court observed that the presence or absence of warning signs could not abrogate defendant's statutory immunity for injuries resulting from use of unimproved public property (198 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1006) . It explained that the legislative policy underlying the immunity is to permit public use of governmental property without making the cost prohibitive, given the shortage of funds to improve property for recreational use and given the fairness of requiring users to assume the risk of injury. The intent of the Legislature was to preclude liability for unimproved natural conditions unless the public entity engaged in conduct which actively increased the degree of dangerousness of a natural condition (198 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1006-1007) .

In Mercer v. State of California (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 158, 242 Cal. Rptr. 701 , plaintiff suffered permanent paralysis after falling down the side of a sand dune while riding an all-terrain vehicle in a park owned and managed by the state. When plaintiff brought a personal injury action against the state, alleging its negligence in failing to warn him of the treacherous conditions of the dunes, the trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment on the basis of Gov. Code § 831.2 and dismissed the case. The court of appeal affirmed (197 Cal. App. 3d 158, 170) . The court addressed plaintiff's contention that the immunity did not apply because the state had improved the park by posting signs anderecting fences. It observed that the scope of Gov. Code § 831.2 is not made clear by its language, but it appears that to qualify public property as improved, and thereby take it outside the natural condition immunity, the improvements must change the physical nature or characteristics of the property at the location of the injury to the extent that it can no longer be considered in a natural condition. The court continued that to avoid the immunity, not only must the improvements change the physical characteristics of property, they must do so at the location of the injury. Thus, improvements of a portion of a public park do not remove the immunity from the unimproved areas. The court concluded there was no evidence of any alteration in the natural condition of the dunes in the vehicular recreation area. None of the improvements plaintiff claimed removed the immunity--signs setting speed limits, warning of surf conditions, marking access roads, and prohibiting entry into environmentally sensitive or nonpublic areas, and fences, were erected in the dunes area. The dunes were not therefore transformed into improved property. Moreover, the court noted that there was no evidence suggesting that any of the alleged improvements had any causal connection with plaintiff's accident (197 Cal. App. 3d 158, 165) .

In McCauley v. City of San Diego (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 981, 235 Cal. Rptr. 732 , plaintiff was injured after falling from cliffs overhanging a beach owned and operated by defendant city. In the resultant personal injury action, the trial court entered judgment in favor of the city on the ground that the city was entitled to absolute immunity under Gov. Code § 831.2. The court of appeal affirmed. Plaintiff contended that defendant's posting of signs warning of false and slippery trails along the cliffs constituted an ineffective attempt to warn the public, and that it should be held responsible for its negligence in failing to warn properly. The court said the passive nature of defendant's posting of warning signs was designed simply to warn people to take care if they assumed the risk in using the unimproved property in its natural condition, and that defendant had not induced any public reliance on defendant's detecting and warning of latent and hidden dangers (190 Cal. App. 3d 981, 988-989) . The court went on to say that the legislative purpose of Gov. Code § 831.2 is fostered by allowing public entities to post warnings of purely natural dangerous conditions on unimproved public property without jeopardizing their Gov. Code § 831.2 immunity (190 Cal. App. 3d 981, 990-991) .

In Winterburn v. City of Pomona (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 878, 231 Cal. Rptr. 105 , after their 11-year-old son died when rocks and debris fell from the roof of a cave where he was playing, plaintiffs brought a wrongful death action against defendant city as owner of the cave property. The trial court granted defendant's motion for summary judgment on the basis of Gov. Code § 831.2. The court of appeal affirmed. After refuting plaintiffs' contention that Gov. Code § 831.2 was only applicable to rural recreational areas, the court addressed plaintiffs' contention that defendant voluntarily undertook to protect the public from the cave, and then negligently failed to do so. The court found no voluntary assumption of duty by defendant. It said that defendant had done nothing to prevent access to the cave, and had not promised to do anything to prevent such access. Although plaintiffs alleged there had been complaints to defendant about the cave, the court observed they were irrelevant, as they related to its use by gang members (186 Cal. App. 3d 878, 882) .

In Keyes v. Santa Clara Valley Water Dist. (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 882, 180 Cal. Rptr. 586 , plaintiff was injured when he struck a submerged object while swimming and diving in a reservoir owned and operated by defendants. He brought an action claiming negligence against defendants alleging that the reservoir contained numerous submerged logs and objects creating a dangerous and hazardous condition and that defendants had actual knowledge of that condition. Defendants claimed immunity based on Gov. Code § 831.2. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrer and dismissed the action. The court of appeal reversed and remitted the case, granting plaintiff 20 days to file an amended complaint. The immunity conferred to public entities by Gov. Code § 831.2 extends to any natural condition of any lake, whether it is natural or artificial. In this case, the reservoir was an artificial, man-made lake used by the public for recreational activities. The court said Gov. Code § 831.2 codifies an absolute immunity regarding injuries caused by natural conditions associated with unimproved publicly held real property, including water bodies and courses, and applies to natural conditions on unimproved realty (128 Cal. App. 3d 882, 887) . It noted that Gov. Code § 831.2 fails to define or establish a precise standard for determining when, as the result of developmental activity, public property in its natural state ceases to be unimproved. However, the court concluded that some form of physical change in the condition of the property at the location of the injury, which justifies the conclusion that the public entity is responsible for reasonable risk management in that area is required for the property to be deemed improved. Plaintiff's complaint did not allege the necessary element of causal nexus between the dangerous condition and either human conduct or an artificial improvement (128 Cal. App. 3d 882, 888) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
PART 2. Immunity From Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.303

§ 196.303 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--General Recreational Users Immunity [Civ. Code § 846] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE GENERAL RECREATIONAL USERS IMMUNITY OF CIVIL CODE SECTION 846 DOES NOT APPLY TO PUBLIC ENTITIES.

General Recreational User Immunity Not Applicable to Public Entities. The recreational user immunity set forth in Section 846 of the Civil Code does not apply to public entities; it is only applicable to private landowners (Delta Farms Reclamation Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 699, 707, 190 Cal. Rptr. 494, 660 P.2d 1168 ; Nelsen v. City of Gridley (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 87, 90-96, 169 Cal. Rptr. 757).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the general recreation user immunity of Civ. Code § 846 is not applicable to immunize the defendant public entity from liability for dangerous conditions of public property [Gov. Code § 835] because Civ. Code § 846 does not apply to public entities. The immunity under Civ. Code § 846 is discussed in § 196.12[11].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Nelsen v. City of Gridley (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 87, 89, 169 Cal. Rptr. 757] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Recreation User Immunity Not Applicable to Public Entities

In Delta Farms Reclamation Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 699, 190 Cal. Rptr. 494, 660 P.2d 1168 , plaintiffs sought damages against defendant water district for wrongful death and emotional distress. While wading in a waterway, two 15-year-old girls stepped off a hidden drop point and drowned. Plaintiffs, mothers and sister of the deceased, alleged that defendant knew of the dangerous condition, knew that visitors were common, and should have provided some warning of the latent danger in the waterway. Defendant demurred on several grounds, among them the limitation of duty set forth in Civ. Code § 846. When the trial court failed to sustain its demurrer, defendant petitioned for a writ of mandate directing the trial court to sustain its general demurrer.

The Supreme Court denied the writ of mandate. Defendant claimed the protection of Civ. Code § 846, which limits the duty of care owed by an owner of any estate or other interest in real property to persons using the property for designated recreational purposes. The Court said the legislative history of Civ. Code § 846, when considered in conjunction with other matters then before the legislature, left no doubt that public entity liability was then very much on the mind of the legislature, and that had it intended to bring those entities under the umbrella of Civ. Code § 846, it would have done so. Because Civ. Code § 846 and the California Tort Claims Act were passed simultaneously and deal with the same problem, the Court said they must be interpreted to avoid any conflict with regard to injuries to recreational users of public property (33 Cal. 3d 699, 704-705) . Further analysis by the Court revealed additional reasons for the inapplicability of Civ. Code § 846 to public entities. Civ. Code § 846 preserved the distinction between trespassers, licensees, and invitees, concepts that are foreign to the California Tort Claims Act. Application of Civ. Code § 846 to public entities would eviscerate large portions of the California Tort Claims Act and would lead to some patently absurd results (33 Cal. 3d 699, 706-707) .

The Delta Farms Court disapproved the holdings in Moore v. City of Torrance (1979) 101 Cal. App. 3d 66, 166 Cal. Rptr. 192 , Gerkin v. Santa Clara Valley Water Dist. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 157 Cal. Rptr. 612 , and English v. Marin Mun. Water Dist. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 725, 136 Cal. Rptr. 224 , to the extent they hold that Civ. Code § 846 applies to public entities (33 Cal. 3d 699, 707) .

Plaintiff in Nelsen v. City of Gridley (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 87, 169 Cal. Rptr. 757 , was injured when his motorcycle struck a cable across a city-owned road. He then sued defendant city for personal injuries allegingthat the cable constituted a known dangerous condition on city property. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendant on the basis of Civ. Code § 846, which provides that an owner of real property has no duty of care to keep the premises safe for entry or use of others for certain specific recreational uses. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that Civ. Code § 846 does not apply to public entities. The court noted that the purpose of Civ. Code § 846 was to encourage private landowners to allow recreational uses and that this purpose did not apply to public entities (113 Cal. App. 3d 87, 91) . The court also noted that Civ. Code § 846 was incompatible with the provisions of the California Tort Claims Act, which contains specific immunities covering certain recreational uses of public land that are not consistent with Civ. Code § 846. Finally, the court examined the history of Civ. Code § 846 and the California Tort Claims Act, and found that there was no legislative intent that Civ. Code § 846 apply to public entities (113 Cal. App. 3d 87, 92-94) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
PART 2. Immunity From Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.304

§ 196.304 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Traffic Control Sign Immunity [Gov. Code § 830.4] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE IMMUNITY UNDER SECTION 830.4 OF THE GOVERNMENT CODE, GRANTED TO A PUBLIC ENTITY FOR FAILURE TO PROVIDE REGULATORY TRAFFIC CONTROL SIGNALS OR SIGNS, IS NOT APPLICABLE WHEN THE CONDITION IS DANGEROUS FOR REASONS OTHER THAN THE FAILURE TO PROVIDE REGULATORY TRAFFIC SIGNALS OR SIGNS.

Traffic Control Sign Immunity Limited to Danger Resulting From Failure to Provide Sign. Gov. Code § 830.4 immunizes a public entity from liability only where the dangerous condition exists solely as a result of that entity's failure to provide a regulatory traffic device or street marking. If a traffic intersection is dangerous for reasons other than the failure to provide regulatory signals or street markings, Gov. Code § 830.4 provides no immunity (Washington v. City & County of San Francisco (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1531, 1534-1535, 269 Cal. Rptr. 58).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the Gov. Code § 830.4 immunity for failure to provide traffic control signals or signs is not applicable. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 830.4 is discussed in § 196.11[2].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are used. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict [see, e.g., Washington v. City & County of San Francisco (1990) 219

Cal. App. 3d 1531, 1534, 269 Cal. Rptr. 58] . They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Traffic Control Sign Immunity Limited to Danger Resulting From Failure to Provide Sign

Washington v. City & County of San Francisco (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1531, 269 Cal. Rptr. 58 , was a wrongful-death action in which plaintiffs' decedent died in a motor vehicle accident in an intersection adjacent to an elevated freeway. The city and county was included as a defendant based on allegations that the intersection was dangerous public property. Defendant city and county appealed the trial court's judgment based on the jury verdict in favor of plaintiffs.

The court of appeal affirmed. Defendant claimed immunity pursuant to Gov. Code § 830.4, which protects a public entity from liability for its failure to provide a regulatory traffic device or street marking. Both the trial court and court of appeal were unpersuaded by that claim. The court of appeal explained that Gov. Code § 830.4 provides immunity only where the allegedly dangerous condition exists solely as a result of the failure to provide a regulatory traffic device or street marking. It said that if a traffic intersection is dangerous for reasons other than the failure to provide regulatory signals or street markings, Gov. Code § 830.4 provides no immunity. Although the intersection at which decedent was killed had no traffic device or street marking, the court observed that the danger was not caused solely by the failure to provide those traffic controls. The intersection was additionally dangerous because of the vision limitations caused by the presence of metal pillars in the middle of the street, and the shadow caused by the freeway above (219 Cal. App. 3d 1531, 1534-1535) .The court pointed out that cases involving the absence of traffic control signals or signs often confuse the provisions of Gov. Code § 830.4 with those of § 830.8, and incorrectly frame the issue as whether or not the lack of signs created a "trap" for the unwary. It dismissed the "trap" argument as irrelevant (219 Cal. App. 3d 1531, 1537-1539) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
PART 2. Immunity From Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.305

§ 196.305 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Maintenance of Nondedicated Roads Immunity [Gov. Code § 831.3] Does Not Apply--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE IMMUNITY UNDER GOVERNMENT CODE SECTION 831.3, GRANTED TO A PUBLIC ENTITY FOR INJURY RESULTING FROM ANY ACT OF REPAIR TO OR MAINTENANCE OF A ROAD THAT HAS NOT BEEN OFFICIALLY ACCEPTED INTO THE JURISDICTION OF THAT ENTITY, DOES NOT APPLY IF THE WORK WAS NOT PERFORMED WITH REASONABLE CARE OR IF IT LEFT THE ROAD IN A MORE DANGEROUS OR UNSAFE CONDITION THAN IT WAS BEFORE THE WORK WAS COMMENCED.

Immunity for Maintenance of Nondedicated Road Limited to Work Performed With Reasonable Care. Government Code Section 831.3 immunizes a public entity for any act of grading, reconstruction, replacement, maintenance, or repair to a road that has not been accepted by that public entity only if the work was done with reasonable care and did not leave the road in a more dangerous or unsafe condition than it was before the work was commenced (Matthews v. County of San Bernardino (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1623, 1634-1635, 285 Cal. Rptr. 422).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the immunity for the repair or maintenance of a nondedicated road provided by Gov. Code § 831.3 is not applicable because it is limited to work performed with reasonable care and that did not leave the road in a more dangerous or unsafe condition than it was before the work was commenced.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are raised. For example, they may be combined with general points and authorities opposing a motion for summary judgment [see, e.g., Matthews v. County of San Bernardino (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1623, 1626, 285 Cal. Rptr. 422] .

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Road Maintenance Immunity

There are two general statutory schemes regarding public entity immunity from liability for road maintenance. The first provides that a public entity is not liable for any injury occurring on account of the grading, maintenance, repair, or reconstruction or replacement of any road that has not officially been accepted as a part of the road system under the jurisdiction of the public entity if that work is performed with reasonable care and leaves the road in no more dangerous or unsafe condition than it was before the work commenced [see Gov. Code § 831.3]. The second scheme is specific to counties and cities. No county will be held liable for failure to maintain any road unless and until it has been accepted into the county road system by action of the board of supervisors, or its designee [see Sts. & Hy. Code § 941(b)]. No city will be held liable for failure to maintain any road until it has been accepted into the city system by resolution of the governing body [see Sts. & Hy. Code § 1806].

Although Gov. Code § 831.3 and Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 941 and 1806 address similar topics, they are distinct without being inconsistent. Gov. Code § 831.3 addresses a public entity's misfeasance in its action of maintaining, grading, or repairing an unaccepted road. Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 941 and 1806 immunize a county or a city from any claimed nonfeasance regarding its lack of maintaining unaccepted roads. Gov. Code § 831.3 and Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 941 and 1806 address different circumstances regarding the liability of a county or a city if it maintains or does not maintain unaccepted roads. Moreover, while Gov. Code § 831.3 includes all public entities described in Gov. Code § 811.2, Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 941 and 1806 are limited to counties and cities [see Matthews v. County of San Bernardino (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1623, 1633, 1633 n.6, 285 Cal. Rptr. 422 (no city involved; court discussed Sts. & Hy. Code § 941 and characterized Sts. & Hy. Code § 1806 as city equivalent of § 941)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Immunity for Maintenance of Nondedicated Road Limited to Work Performed With Reasonable Care

In Matthews v. County of San Bernardino (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1623, 285 Cal. Rptr. 422 , after sustaining injuries when the automobile in which she was riding struck a berm and rolled over, plaintiff sued defendant county and road maintenance district alleging negligent road maintenance and dangerous condition of public property. Defendants denied the allegations and raised numerous affirmative defenses, including several public entity immunities. Defendant county moved for summary judgment on the grounds that it did not own, possess, or control the road where the incident occurred, and that even if it did own or control the subject road, it was not liable because the road had never been accepted into its road system. Defendant district moved for summary judgment on the grounds that the road had never been accepted into the system of county roads, and that therefore it was immune, and that as a district, it was part of the county and not a legal entity capable of being sued. The trial court granted both motions and entered judgment for defendants. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment for defendant county, concluding that the trial court had erred because there were triable issues of material fact. For reasons stated in an unpublished portion of its opinion, the court of appeal affirmed the judgment for defendant district. The court was not persuaded by defendant county's argument based on two affirmative defenses: (1) nonliability for any dangerous condition of public property based on its lack of ownership and control of the subject road portion, pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 835 and 830(c); and (2) nonliability for damages and injuries incurred by users of unaccepted roads, based on Sts. & Hy. Code § 941 (233 Cal. App. 3d 1623, 1634) . Although Sts. & Hy. Code § 941 has since been amended, the court observed that at the time of plaintiff's accident, a road could only have been accepted into the county road system by resolution by the board of supervisors. Defendant argued that because no such resolution of acceptance was ever passed, the road was never accepted, and it was not liable for injuries occurring on an unaccepted road. The court said that defendant's reliance on § 941, which simply precludes liability for failure to maintain unaccepted roads, did not consider the effect of Gov. Code § 831.3, which specifically excludes from immunity any act of grading, reconstruction, replacement, maintenance, or repair to unaccepted if that work was not done with reasonable care and if that work left the road in a more dangerous or unsafe condition than it was in before the work commenced (233 Cal. App. 3d 1623, 1631) . The court said that although plaintiff had produced evidence of defendant's control of the road and the fact that defendant had done maintenance work on the road prior to the accident, defendant failed to produce any countervailing evidence sufficient to meet its initial burden of establishing all the undisputed facts necessary for either affirmative defense. Specifically, defendant failed to produce any evidence that, to the extent it did maintain the road, that work was performed with reasonable care and left the road in no more dangerous or unsafe condition than it was before the work commenced (233 Cal. App. 3d 1623, 1634-1635) .

199 of 199 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 196 PUBLIC ENTITIES
PART II. FORMS
D. IMMUNITY OF PUBLIC ENTITY OR EMPLOYEE FROM LIABILITY
PART 2. Immunity From Liability For Dangerous Condition of Public Property

19A-196 California Points & Authorities § 196.306

§ 196.306 Supporting Contention That Immunity From Liability for Dangerous Condition of Public Property Does Not Apply--Immunity for Participation in a Hazardous Recreational Activity [Gov. Code § 831.7] Does Not Apply--Students Engaged in School-Sponsored or Required Activities

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

GOVERNMENT CODE SECTION 831.7, WHICH GRANTS IMMUNITY TO A PUBLIC ENTITY FOR INJURIES TO A PERSON ENGAGED IN A HAZARDOUS RECREATIONAL ACTIVITY, DOES NOT BAR THIS ACTION BECAUSE THAT IMMUNITY IS NOT APPLICABLE TO STUDENTS ENGAGED IN SCHOOL-SPONSORED OR REQUIRED ACTIVITIES.

"Hazardous Recreational Activities" Immunity Is Inapplicable to Athletic Activities Under Supervision of School Personnel. The hazardous recreational activities immunity of Government Code Section 831.7 does not apply when the injury occurs during an athletic activity under the supervision of school personnel (Avila v. Citrus Cmty. Coll. Dist. (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 148, 159-160, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299, 131 P.3d 383 ; Iverson v. Muroc Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 ; Acosta v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 471, 476, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted by plaintiff in support of the contention that the Gov. Code § 831.7 immunity from injuries to people who participate in hazardous recreational activities is not applicable. The immunity provided by Gov. Code § 831.7 is discussed in § 196.12[9].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which they are used. For example, they may be used in a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict [Acosta v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 471, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171] .

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss the nature of the activity in which plaintiff was participating when injured, and should discuss facts showing that the activity was supervised by school personnel, either in a required physical education class [see Acosta v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 471, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171] or in school-sponsored extracurricular activities [see Iverson v. Muroc Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Hazardous Recreational Activities" Immunity Is Inapplicable to Athletic Activities Under Supervision of School Personnel

In Avila v. Citrus Cmty. Coll. Dist. (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 148, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299, 131 P.3d 383 , the plaintiff, a baseball player for a community college baseball team, was struck in the head by a pitch thrown during a preseason exhibition game played on the opponent's field. The plaintiff alleged that the pitch was either thrown negligently or intentionally in retaliation because one of the pitcher's teammates was hit by a pitch in the previous inning. The plaintiff staggered, felt dizzy, and was in pain, although his manager made him stay in the game for a few minutes before finally taking him out. No one tended to his injuries, which turned out to be serious. The plaintiff sued both school districts, his manager, and various other entities. As to the opposing school district, the plaintiff alleged that it school was negligent in failing to summon or provide medical care at the time of the injury, failing to supervise and control the opposing pitcher, failing to provide adequate supervisory personnel and officials, and failing to provide adequate equipment. The school district demurred on the grounds that it was immune from liability under Gov. Code § 831.7(a), the public entity immunity statute for injuries occurring during hazardous recreational activities, and the trial court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the action as to the district. The court of appeal reversed, relying on previous court of appeal opinions to rule that Gov. Code § 831.7 does not extend immunity to claims predicated on the negligent supervision of public school athletes and that the school district owed a duty of supervision to plaintiff. The school district appealed.

The California Supreme Court reversed the court of appeal. Addressing the issue of immunity under Gov. Code § 831.7, the Court first concluded that the statute itself was ambiguous as to what constitutes a "recreational" activity, and noted a split in authority at the court of appeal level as to whether it applied to negligence claims against schools and universities for athletic injuries (38 Cal. 4th 148, 154-155) . The Court then looked to the legislative history of the statute and concluded that the statute was adopted as a premises liability measure designed to limit liability based on a public entity's failure either to maintain public property or to warn of a dangerous condition on public property when a person suffers an injury while using the public property for unsupervised hazardous recreational activity (38 Cal. 4th 148, 156-157) . However, the Court also noted the tension between Gov. Code § 831.7 and a separate body of law that imposes on public schools and universities the duty to supervise their students, including during athletic practices and games. Without deciding whether Gov. Code § 831.7 applies outside the premises liability context, the Court, agreeing with two earlier court of appeal opinions, held that school-sponsored and supervised sports activities are not "recreational" in the sense of voluntary unsupervised play as envisioned by the statute. Instead, these sports are a fundamental part of the school's educational mission. Therefore, the statute did not apply to immunize public educational entities from liability for injuries to students sustained during those activities (38 Cal. 4th 148, 158-160) . The Court then went on to hold that getting hit by a pitch, even a pitch thrown at a batter intentionally, was an inherent risk of the game of baseball, and under the primary assumption of risk doctrine, the school district owed no duty to the plaintiff to protect him from the injury he suffered (38 Cal. 4th 148, 163-168) .

In Iverson v. Muroc Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , plaintiff, a student injured during a soccer match as part of a physical education class conducted during regular school hours, sued the school for negligently instructing and supervising the students engaged in the class. The defendant moved for summary judgment on the basis of Gov. Code § 831.7, contending that plaintiff was participating in a hazardous recreational activity in which he voluntarily placed himself at risk. The trial court agreed that immunity attached as a matter of law, and granted the motion.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that Gov. Code § 831.7 does not apply to injuries sustained on school grounds during a physical education class required by the school and conducted during school hours (32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227) . The court addressed two issues in analyzing the case. First, with regard to whether the immunity would apply to an involuntary participant, the court rejected defendants claim that the words "voluntarily in the place of risk" in the statute applied only to spectators and not to participants, concluding that the reference to voluntariness applies only to spectators (32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 225) . Second, the court reviewed the Legislative history and determined that the immunity statute was aimed at "recreational" area users, and that there was no indication that the law was meant to apply to school children, school playgrounds, or physical education classes (32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 225) . The court also noted that a recent appellate court decision had concluded that "hazardous recreational activities" do not include school-sponsored extracurricular athletic activities under the supervision of school personnel (32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 226) . The court concluded that a body contact sport incorporated into a schooltime physical education class is not a "recreational" activity within the meaning of the immunity statute, and held that the statute was not applicable to the plaintiff's injuries (32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227) .

In Acosta v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 471, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171 , a member of a high school gymnastics team sued the school district for injuries received while practicing under the supervision of his coach in the school gymnasium after school. By special verdict, the jury found that at the time of the accident plaintiff was engaged in a "hazardous recreational activity" within the immunity of Gov. Code § 831.7. The trial court thus entered judgment in favor of the school district. Plaintiff then moved for a new trial and judgment notwithstanding the verdict. The trial court concluded that it had failed to properly instruct the jury on a distinction between a "recreational" activity and a "school directed" activity, and thus ordered a new trial limited to determining whether plaintiff's injury resulted from a "school-directed" activity.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the immunity provided by Gov. Code § 831.7 had no application. The court stated that since the facts were undisputed, the question of whether plaintiff was engaged in a "hazardous recreational activity" was a question of law for the court, and concluded that the issue of immunity should never have gone to the jury because "hazardous recreational activities" do not include school-sponsored extracurricular athletic activities under the supervision of school personnel (31 Cal. App. 4th 471, 476) . The court reasoned that if the term "hazardous recreational activity" was interpreted to include school-sponsored and supervised activities, then schools should be immune from liability for the negligent supervision of students engaged in virtually every extracurricular sport, as well as activities that are often part of a school's physical education program. The court concluded that this would constitute a major revision of California law with respect to school district tort liability (31 Cal. App. 4th 471, 477) . Since the immunity was not available, the court held that the trial court should have granted plaintiff's motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict as to liability and ordered a new trial on damages (31 Cal. App. 4th 471, 479) .

[4] Opposing Authorities

[a] "Hazardous Recreational Activities" Immunity Is Inapplicable to Athletic Activities Under Supervision of School Personnel

In Ochoa v. California State Univ. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 768 , the plaintiff was a university student who was punched by another player while participating in an intramural soccer game. Although the game was officiated, the referee closest to the plaintiff and his attacker was unable to prevent the punch, although he separated the combatants immediately afterwards. The plaintiff brought suit against the university, alleging that the university negligently failed to supervise the game and instruct the participants. The defendant successfully moved for summary judgment, with the trial court determining that under Crow v. State of California (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 192, 271 Cal. Rptr. 349 , the plaintiff's status as a student did not create a special relationship with the defendant that imposed a duty of due care owed by the defendant to the plaintiff. The defendant had also argued that it was entitled to immunity under Gov. Code § 831.7, but the trial court did not rule on that claim.

The court of appeal affirmed, reiterating that colleges and universities may no longer be charged with a general duty of care to supervise student activities. Although the language in the referee handbook supplied by the defendant authorized referees to take steps to control unruly behavior at games, the court rejected the plaintiff's contention that a special relationship was formed, giving rise to a duty to protect students from the criminal acts of third parties, by the defendant's organizing and sponsoring the intramural activity (72 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1305) . The court also agreed with the defendant that no duty should be created under general tort law or public policy (72 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1306) . Moreover, although the trial court had not ruled on the claim of immunity under Gov. Code § 831.7, the court of appeal held that the university was immune under that statute. The court distinguished the decisions in Acosta v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 471, 37 Cal. Rptr. 171 , and Iverson v. Muroc Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , described in § 196.306[3][a], on the basis that the plaintiff was an adult taking part in a voluntary activity. Because, as the Supreme Court had noted, colleges and universities had no duty to supervise the activities of their adult students, the duty of supervision required of school districts used by the courts in Acosta and Iverson could not override Gov. Code § 831.7. Moreover, because the defendant did not require or expect the plaintiff to take part in intramural soccer, the plaintiff in this case was not similarly situated to the plaintiffs in Acosta and Iverson (72 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1308) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
Chapter 197 RESERVED

19A-197 California Points & Authorities Chapter 197

RESERVED

Chapter 197RESERVED

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE

19A-198 California Points & Authorities 198.syn

§ 198.syn Synopsis to Chapter 198: QUIETING TITLE

§ 198.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 198.02 Governing Law

§ 198.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 198.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[2] Related Memoranda

[3] Related California Real Estate Law and Practice Chapter

§§ 198.05-198.09 [Reserved]

§ 198.10 Demurrer to Action For Rescission Based on Lapse of Limitation Period

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to State Cause of Action

[b] Limitation Period for Quiet Title Action Governed by Plaintiff's Basic Cause of Action

[c] Failure to Rescind Promptly Bars Quiet Title Action

§ 198.11 Quiet Title Action Is Barred by Limitation Period Applicable to Fraud or Mistake

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Three-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Quiet Title Action Based on Fraud or Mistake

§ 198.12 Quiet Title Action Is Barred by Limitation Period Relating to Seisin or Possession

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Proof

§§ 198.13-198.19 [Reserved]

§ 198.20 Quiet Title Action Is Not Barred Because There Is No Limitation Against Plaintiff in Possession

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Limitation Period Against Plaintiff in Possession

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Limitation Period Against Plaintiff in Possession

§ 198.21 Quiet Title Action Is Not Barred by Limitation Period for Fraud or Mistake When Deed Was Never Delivered

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute of Limitations for Fraud or Mistake Does Not Apply if Deed Not Delivered

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute of Limitations for Fraud or Mistake Does Not Apply if Deed Not Delivered

§ 198.22 Quiet Title Action Is Not Barred by Limitation Period for Fraud or Mistake Because Cause of Action Did Not Accrue Until Discovery

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Quiet Title Action Based on Fraud or Mistake Does Not Accrue Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake

§ 198.23 Action to Quiet Title to Easement by Necessity Is Not Barred by Limitation Period

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Limitation Period in Action to Quiet Title to an Easement by Necessity

§§ 198.24-198.29 [Reserved]

§ 198.30 Equitable Interest Is Insufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action Against Holder of Legal Title

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Equitable Interest Is Insufficient to Quiet Title Against Holder of Legal Title

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Equitable Interest Is Insufficient to Quiet Title Against Holder of Legal Title

§§ 198.31-198.34 [Reserved]

§ 198.35 Any Interest in Real Property Is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Any Estate or Interest in Land Is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Any Estate or Interest in Land Is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action

§ 198.36 Equitable Interest Is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action Against Another Holder of Equitable Interest

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Equitable Interest is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action Against Holder of Equitable Title

§ 198.37 Adverse Claimant Can Obtain Relief in Quiet Title Action Based on Lack of Title in Plaintiff

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court May Determine Conflicting Claims of Any Estate or Interest

§§ 198.38-198.39 [Reserved]

§ 198.40 Demurrer to Quiet Title Action Based on Failure to Allege Plaintiff's Title and Basis of Title

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Allege Plaintiff's Title and Basis of Title

§ 198.41 Demurrer to Answer in Quiet Title Action Based on Failure to Include Required Allegations

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Allege Defendant's Claim and Facts Controverting Material Allegations of Complaint

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Allege Defendant's Claim and Facts Controverting Material Allegations of Complaint

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.01

§ 198.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda relating to quieting title. Specifically, it includes the following types of memoranda:

- Supporting (see §§ 198.10 -198.12) and opposing (see §§ 198.20 -198.23) actions based on the statute of limitations.

- Supporting (see § 198.30) and opposing (see §§ 198.35 -198.37) actions based on the sufficiency of particular interests to maintain a quiet title action.

- Supporting a demurrer to the complaint (see § 198.40) and a demurrer to the answer (see § 198.41) based on the failure to include required allegations.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsReal Property LawTitle QualityAdverse Claim ActionsQuiet Title Actions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.02

§ 198.02 Governing Law

Quiet title actions are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq. When such an action involves real property, it may also be governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 318, a statute of limitation, and by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 742, 743, concerning a court-ordered survey of the property.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsReal Property LawTitle QualityAdverse Claim ActionsQuiet Title Actions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.03

§ 198.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda must not exceed 15 pages, or 20 pages for a summary judgment motion or summary adjudication motion. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, tables of contents, a table of authorities, or proof of service are not counted [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. A party must apply to the court for permission to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms in this chapter are designed to be combined with other points to form a complete memorandum. For a detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, §§ 1.03 -1.06. For a skeletal form of memorandum for use in creating a properly formatted outline in which to compile relevant forms from this publication, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.10.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresSummary JudgmentOppositionMemoranda in OppositionCivil ProceduresSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of LawReal Property LawTitle QualityAdverse Claim ActionsQuiet Title Actions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.04

§ 198.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For detailed legal background discussion, a research guide, a procedural checklist, and practice forms of motions and other papers relating to quiet title actions generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 482, Quieting Title (Matthew Bender).

Other related chapters in the publication include:

- Ch. 101, Boundaries.
- Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments.
- Ch. 184, Deeds.
- Ch. 213, Documents of Title.
- Ch. 240, Easements.
- Ch. 241, Ejectment.
- Ch. 270, Fraudulent Conveyances.
- Chs. 330-335, Landlord and Tenant.
- Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions.
- Ch. 348, Lis Pendens.

[2] Related Memoranda

- For coverage of quiet title actions by adverse possessors, see Ch. 13, Adverse Possession .

- For memoranda supporting and opposing demurrers based on statutes of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions .

[3] Related California Real Estate Law and Practice Chapter

For a comprehensive discussion of the law pertaining to quieting title, see California Real Estate Law & Practice, Ch. 370, Quieting Title and Determining Adverse Claims (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Real Property LawAdjoining LandownersBoundariesReal Property LawDeedsGeneral OverviewReal Property LawLimited Use RightsEasementsGeneral OverviewReal Property LawPriorities & RecordingLis PendensReal Property LawTitle QualityAdverse Claim ActionsEjectmentReal Property LawTitle QualityAdverse Claim ActionsQuiet Title Actions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-198 California Points & Authorities §§ 198.05-198.09

[Reserved]

§§ 198.05[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.10

§ 198.10 Demurrer to Action For Rescission Based on Lapse of Limitation Period

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER
[and DOES I through _____,]	)	TO COMPLAINT
Defendant(s).	)
	)
	)

_____

THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR QUIETING TITLE BECAUSE IT REVEALS ON ITS FACE THAT (1) THE BASIC CAUSE OF ACTION GIVING RISE TO PLAINTIFF'S RIGHT TO RELIEF IS BASED ON RESCISSION, AND (2) THERE WAS INEXCUSABLE DELAY IN SEEKING RESCISSION.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object to the complaint by demurrer on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)). When any ground for objection to a complaint appears on the face of the complaint (or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice), the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)).

B. Failure to State Cause of Action. The objection that an action is barred by a statute of limitations may be made by demurrer (Basin Construction Corp. v. Department of Water & Power (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823, 245 Cal. Rptr. 178) notwithstanding the fact that Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 does not specifically list the statute of limitations as an objection permitted to be raised by demurrer. An objection based on the statute of limitations is deemed to be included in the ground of demurrer that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e) (Bank of America Etc. Assn. v. Ames (1936) 18 Cal. App. 2d 311, 313-314) .

C. Limitation Period for Quiet Title Action Governed by Plaintiff's Basic Cause of Action. The limitation period in a quiet title action for the recovery of real property is based on the limitation period applicable to the basic cause of action giving rise to the plaintiff's right to relief (Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 212 214, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12).

D. Failure to Rescind Promptly Bars Quiet Title Action. When the plaintiff's basic right in a quiet title action is to rescind based on defendant's fraud or duress, a complaint that shows on its face that the plaintiff did not rescind promptly after knowledge of the facts entitling the plaintiff to rescission is demurrable regardless of the form in which the prayer for relief is couched (Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 214, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant

_____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a defendant s general demurrer to a complaint when (1) the complaint reveals that the underlying action supporting the plaintiff's right to quiet title is based on the plaintiff's right to rescission due to fraud or duress, and (2) the complaint shows that plaintiff did not rescind promptly after becoming aware of facts entitling the plaintiff to rescission. Even though the facts in Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12 justifying rescission involved duress [see [3][b], below, for discussion of Leeper] presumably this form could also be used in other situations entitling the plaintiff to rescission, such as mutual mistake.

This form may also be adapted for use in a motion for judgment on the pleadings based on the failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(ii)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, counsel should refer to the allegations in the complaint that establish that the plaintiff's underlying cause of action is based on plaintiff's right to rescission, and the allegations that demonstrate that the plaintiff failed to rescind promptly after becoming aware of facts entitling the plaintiff to rescind. Counsel can then argue the complaint is subject to demurrer based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For related coverage in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender), see the following chapters:

- Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions (includes form of demurrer for use in asserting the bar of statute of limitations).
- Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (discussion, procedures, and forms relating to demurrers generally).
- Ch. 537, Summary Judgment (form of notice for summary judgment and related discussion).
- Ch. 482, Quieting Title (forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in supporting demurrers based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For memoranda supporting demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda for use in supporting motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points set out in § 198.20 (when the plaintiff has been in possession of the property) may be used to oppose a demurrer supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to State Cause of Action

In Basin Construction Corp. v. Department of Water & Power (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 819, 245 Cal. Rptr. 178 , the owners of a property filed a complaint in intervention in another property owner's action against the City of Los Angeles for damages to their property arising out of a fire caused by malfunctioning city electrical equipment. The trial court sustained the defendant's demurrer without leave to amend based on the applicable five-year statute of limitations. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that a complaint is subject to general demurrer when the complaint shows on its face that the cause of action is barred by the statute of limitations (199 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823) .

An explanation for the above ruling was set forth in Bank of American Etc. Assn. v. Ames (1936) 18 Cal. App. 2d 311 . In this action for money due under a contract, the trial court overruled the defendant's demurrer, which was based on the bar of the statute of limitations. Judgment was entered for the plaintiff and the defendant appealed, in part on the theory that the action was barred by the statute of limitations. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, holding that the demurrer had been properly overruled because, under any theory, a part of the claim was good (18 Cal. App. 2d 311, 315) . The court did acknowledge that Code Civ. Proc. § 430 does not expressly authorize the common practice of raising the statute of limitations bar by way of demurrer. However, citing California Safe etc. Co. v. Sierra etc. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 690, 112 P. 274 , the court concluded that the only ground under which the statute of limitations could be brought was the ground of failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (18 Cal. App. 2d 311, 314) .

[b] Limitation Period for Quiet Title Action Governed by Plaintiff's Basic Cause of Action

Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12 , involved in pertinent part an action in which plaintiffs sought to quiet title and to set aside or cancel an executed deed by which certain property was conveyed as a result of duress by two of the defendants. Plaintiffs alleged that the defendant grantee of the deed had knowledge of the duress leading to the conveyance. Following the sustaining of defendants' demurrer to plaintiffs' complaint, the trial court entered judgment, from which plaintiffs appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed that portion of the trial court's judgment in favor of defendant grantee. The court noted that the plaintiffs' right to quiet title was based on their right to rescind the conveyance and cancel the deed, which right to rescission was in turn based on the grantee's knowledge of duress perpetrated by other defendants. After discussing the considerable confusion in authorities on the applicable statute of limitations for such a cause of action, the court found that the modern rule places more emphasis on the basic rights involved to determine the applicable statute of limitations. Thus, the court noted that it has been held that, when the complaint is in two counts, one to quiet title and one to cancel a deed, if the count to quiet title depends on the cancellation count, the complaint must stand or fall on that count. Similarly, many cases have held that, when the legal title is in the defendant, and the plaintiff seeks to quiet title on the ground defendant's title was secured from the plaintiff by fraud, the plaintiff must plead and prove facts constituting the fraud. The court concluded that "the modern tendency is to look beyond the relief sought, and to view the matter from the basic cause of action giving rise to the plaintiff's right to relief" (53 Cal. 2d 195, 213-214) .

[c] Failure to Rescind Promptly Bars Quiet Title Action

The facts and procedural background of Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12 are discussed under Limitation Period for Quiet Title Action Governed by Plaintiff's Basic Cause of Action, above. The court held in this case that the plaintiff's right at issue was to rescind based on fraud, and that a party must rescind promptly after knowledge of the fraud or duress. The complaint revealed that the plaintiffs waited for two or three years to attempt to rescind. This was inexcusable delay and the complaint was demurrable (53 Cal. 2d 195, 211-214) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.11

§ 198.11 Quiet Title Action Is Barred by Limitation Period Applicable to Fraud or Mistake

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S QUIET TITLE ACTION IS BARRED BECAUSE THE BASIC CAUSE OF ACTION GIVING RISE TO PLAINTIFF'S RIGHT TO RELIEF IS BASED ON _____ [FRAUD or MISTAKE] AND THE COMPLAINT WAS FILED MORE THAN THREE YEARS AFTER PLAINTIFF'S DISCOVERY OF FACTS CONSTITUTING THE _____ [FRAUD or MISTAKE].

A. Limitation Period for Quiet Title Action Governed by Plaintiff's Basic Cause of Action. [See § 198.10[1], Paragraph C.]

B. Three-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Quiet Title Action Based on Fraud or Mistake. When the underlying cause of action for plaintiff's quiet title action is based on fraud or mistake, the action is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), which requires the action to be brought within three years of the discovery of facts constituting the fraud or mistake (Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d); Ankoanda v. Walker-Smith (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 610, 615, 52 Cal. Rptr. 39 ; Turner v. Milstein (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 651, 659, 230 P.2d 25).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the defendant s contention that the plaintiff's quiet title action is barred by a three-year statute of limitations when the underlying cause of plaintiff's action is based on fraud or mistake.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise this statute of limitations issue. For example, this form may be combined with § 198.10[1], Paragraphs A and B, to support a general demurrer to a complaint. This form may also be adapted for use in a motion for summary judgment, a motion for judgment on the pleadings, a trial or appellate brief, or jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in supporting a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish that (1) the plaintiff's underlying cause of action is based on fraud or mistake, and (2) plaintiff failed to bring action within three years from discovering the fraud or mistake. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in a motion for summary judgment or a brief. Counsel can then argue that the complaint is subject to demurrer, or judgment should be entered for the defendant, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of demurrer for use in asserting the bar of the statute of limitations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions (Matthew Bender). For a form of notice for summary judgment and related discussion, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in supporting demurrers based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For memoranda supporting demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda and authorities for use in supporting motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the memoranda set out in § 198.20 (when the plaintiff has been in possession of the property), 198.21 (when the deed was never delivered), or 198.22 (when plaintiff's discovery of the fraud or mistake occurred within three years of the filing of the complaint) may be used to oppose a contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Three-Year Statute of Limitations Applies to Quiet Title Action Based on Fraud or Mistake

In Ankoanda v. Walker-Smith (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 610, 52 Cal. Rptr. 39 , the plaintiff executed sequential deeds granting the defendant an interest in plaintiff's property (first as a tenant in common and later as a joint tenant), because of a mistaken belief that the defendant needed to be on title to qualify for a certain grant program. Later, the defendant asserted full ownership rights. The plaintiff brought a quiet title action and the trial court entered judgment for the plaintiff, based on mutual mistake, and also found that a five-year statute of limitations applied, but that the statute was tolled during the period of the tenancy. The defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. First, it held that the three-year statute of limitations based on fraud or mistake [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)] applied to this action because the underlying cause of action was based on the mutual mistake of the parties regarding the grant program requirements (44 Cal. App. 4th 610, 615) . Furthermore, on a issue unrelated to this point, it held that the statute of limitations was not tolled during the tenancy [see § 198.20[4] for discussion of court's ruling on this point].

In Turner v. Milstein (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 651, 230 P.2d 25 , the plaintiff brought a quiet title action based on the defendant's fraud in causing a sheriff's sale of the plaintiff's property to satisfy a judgment, without notice to plaintiff and with the intent to conceal from plaintiff the time and place of the sale. The property was sold to the defendant for a small fraction of the fair market value. The trial court sustained the defendant's demurrer based, in part, on the application of the four-year statute of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 343 (for actions not otherwise covered).

The court of appeal reversed and held that when, as in this case, the gist of the action is fraud, and relief is sought on that ground, the action comes directly within the provision of former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)), irrespective of the form of action. Because this section was not specified as a ground of demurrer, the court would not consider it as a ground for affirming the judgment because the only question before it was whether the cause of action was barred by the particular section mentioned in the demurrer (103 Cal. App. 2d 651, 659) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.12

§ 198.12 Quiet Title Action Is Barred by Limitation Period Relating to Seisin or Possession

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S QUIET TITLE ACTION IS BARRED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF WAS NOT SEISED OR POSSESSED OF THE PROPERTY WITHIN FIVE YEARS BEFORE THE COMPLAINT WAS FILED.

A. Limitation Period. No action for the recovery of real property, or for the recovery of possession of real property, can be maintained unless it appears that the plaintiff, or the plaintiff's ancestor, predecessor, or grantor, was seised or possessed of the property in question within five years before the commencement of the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 318).

B. Burden of Proof. Plaintiff has the burden of proof to show that plaintiff or his or her predecessors in interest have been seised or possessed of the property in question within five years before commencement of the action (Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 311, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that plaintiff's quiet title action is barred by the limitation period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 318, which requires plaintiff or plaintiff's predecessors to have been seised or possessed of the property within five years before commencement of the action.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise this statute of limitations issue. For example, this form may be combined with § 198.10[1], Paragraphs A and B, to support a general demurrer to a complaint. This form may also be adapted for use in a motion for summary judgment, a motion for judgment on the pleadings, a trial or appellate brief, or jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in supporting a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish that plaintiff's cause of action is primarily for the recovery of real property [see § 198.12[3][b] for discussion of related, incidental causes of action], and that plaintiff was not seised or possessed of the property within five years of the filing of the complaint. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in a motion for summary judgment or brief. Counsel can then argue that the complaint is subject to demurrer, or judgment should be entered for defendant, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of demurrer for use in asserting the bar of the statute of limitations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions (Matthew Bender). For a form of notice for summary judgment and related discussion, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in supporting demurrers based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For memoranda supporting demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings. For memoranda for use in supporting motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 198.20 (when the plaintiff has been in possession of the property) or 198.23 (when the plaintiff's title is based on an easement by necessity) may be used to oppose a contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Proof

In Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405 , the plaintiff, as executrix of an estate, brought an action to quiet title to an abandoned street, and, incidentally, to reform an ambiguous deed executed by the original grantor approximately 30 years before the action was filed. The two defendants each owned a lot adjacent to the abandoned street and each claimed title to the center of the street. The trial court entered judgment for the plaintiff in pertinent part, and the defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed on the issue appealed by the defendants. First, it held that the applicable statute of limitations in this case was governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 318, which requires the plaintiff to show that the plaintiff, or the plaintiff's predecessor in interest, was seised or possessed of the property within five years of the commencement of the action. The court explained that Section 318 is more than an ordinary statute of limitations, which constitutes merely a personal defense that is waived if not pleaded. Section 318 is an expression of public policy that bars an action to recover real property after five years, regardless of whether or not it is affirmatively pleaded (50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 311) .

The court held further that the plaintiff has the burden of proof to show that it has met the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 318, and that, in this case, the plaintiff had not carried this burden. Therefore, her quiet title action was barred and the judgment was reversed (50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 311-312) .

The court also discussed an important distinction to be made in quiet title actions involving statute of limitations issues. It noted that California authorities distinguish between the following: cases in which a cause of action for reformation on the ground of fraud or mistake is incidental to a quiet title action, which are subject to the five-year statute in Code Civ. Proc. § 318; and those cases in which there is no attempt to recover property or establish title over and above the action for reformation, which are subject to the three-year statute that was set forth in former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) at the time the opinion was filed, and is now found in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) (see 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 310 ; citations omitted, emphasis added).

This holding is somewhat inconsistent with the authorities discussed in § 198.11[3]. Those cases held that the three-year statute in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) applies to a quiet title action in which the underlying cause of action is based on fraud or mistake, irrespective of the form of action [Ankoanda v. Walker-Smith (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 610, 615 ; Turner v. Milstein (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 651, 659, 230 P.2d 25] . When viewed together, the case authorities appear to turn on the interpretation of whether the cause of action for fraud or mistake is incidental to the quiet title action or the reverse. Counsel should review the facts and discussion in these cases carefully to craft a persuasive argument based on the facts of the subject action.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities §§ 198.13-198.19

[Reserved]

§§ 198.13[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.20

§ 198.20 Quiet Title Action Is Not Barred Because There Is No Limitation Against Plaintiff in Possession

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S QUIET TITLE ACTION IS NOT BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS BECAUSE NO LIMITATION PERIOD APPLIES TO A PLAINTIFF IN POSSESSION OF THE PROPERTY.

A. No Limitation Period Against Plaintiff in Possession. No statute of limitations runs against a plaintiff seeking to quiet title while he or she is in possession of the property (Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 560, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d 659).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted to oppose the contention that a statute of limitations bars the plaintiff's quiet title action.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the statute of limitations does not apply to a plaintiff while the plaintiff is in possession of the property. For example, this form may be adapted for use to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint, or for inclusion in a motion for summary judgment, a trial or appellate brief, or jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in opposing a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish that plaintiff has been in possession of the property. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in a motion for summary judgment or brief. Counsel can then argue that the demurrer should be overruled, or judgment should be entered for the plaintiff, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to summary judgment proceedings, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in opposing demurrers based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For memoranda authorities opposing demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda for use in opposing motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, this memorandum may be used in opposition to the points set forth in §§ 198.10 (action barred for failure to rescind promptly), 198.11 (action barred by statute of limitations for fraud or mistake), or 198.12 (action barred for failure to show seisin or possession within five years of the commencement of the action).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Limitation Period Against Plaintiff in Possession

In Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d 659 , the 75-year-old plaintiff executed a grant deed to his son, subject to a life estate, but without intending to relinquish control over the property prior to his death. The father continued to live on the property, and when the son later refused to cooperate in a sale of a part of the property, the father brought an action to quiet title. The trial court ruled that the three-year statute of limitations for fraud or mistake [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)] barred the plaintiff's quiet title action. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment for the defendant. It acknowledged the ruling in Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12 [see § 198.10[3][c] for discussion of Leeper] that it is ordinarily necessary to refer to the underlying theory of relief to determine which statute of limitations applies. However, the court held that in this case, it was unnecessary to determine the applicable statute of limitations, for no statute of limitations runs against a plaintiff seeking to quiet title while he or she is in possession of the property (63 Cal. 2d 558, 560) .

The Court explained that, in many instances, one in possession would not know of dormant adverse claims of persons not in possession. Moreover, even if, as in plaintiff's case, the party in possession knows of such a potential claimant, there is no reason to put the party to the expense and inconvenience of litigation until such a claim is pressed against him or her (63 Cal. 2d 558, 560-561) .

Counsel should be aware of the following limitations of the ruling in Muktarian.

The facts of Ankoanda v. Walker-Smith (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 610, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 are discussed in detail in § 198.11[3]. The trial court in Ankoanda held that the plaintiff-landlord had remained seised and possessed of the leased property through her tenant and therefore that the statute of limitations was tolled under Muktarian v. Barmby [see § 198.20[3] for discussion of Muktarian].

In reversing the judgment for the plaintiff, the court of appeal held that (1) the applicable statute of limitations was the three-year period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), based on the mutual mistake of the parties, and (2) the statute was not tolled during the tenancy of the defendant, contrary to the trial court's ruling. The court of appeal held that the possession required to toll the statute of limitations under Muktarian must be "exclusive and undisputed" (44 Cal. App. 4th 610, 615) . In Ankoanda, both landlord and tenant were record owners of the property, and had an equal right to possession of the entire property as against third parties, but did not have right to the exclusive possession of the property as against each other (44 Cal. App. 4th 610, 618) .

The Muktarian rule tolling the statute of limitations when the plaintiff is in possession does not apply to set aside a tax collector's deed issued to the State of California for delinquent taxes. In such cases, the one-year statutes of limitations set forth in Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 175 and 3521 apply [Sears v. Calaveras (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 518, 520-522, 289 P.2d 425] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Limitation Period Against Plaintiff in Possession

In In re Allustiarte (9th Cir. 1986) 786 F. 2d 910 applied the ruling of Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d 659 [see § 198.20[3] for discussion of Muktarian] to permit a bankruptcy trustee to quiet title in a parcel that had been transferred by the debtors to certain family trusts, when the debtors had at all times remained in possession of the property. The court of appeals in Allustiarte affirmed the trial court judgment in favor of the trustee, holding that a trustee stands in the shoes of the debtors (786 F.2d 910, 913) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.21

§ 198.21 Quiet Title Action Is Not Barred by Limitation Period for Fraud or Mistake When Deed Was Never Delivered

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S QUIET TITLE ACTION IS NOT BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR FRAUD OR MISTAKE BECAUSE THE DEED WAS NEVER DELIVERED.

A. Statute of Limitations for Fraud or Mistake Does Not Apply if Deed Not Delivered. If a deed is executed as a result of fraud or mistake but there is no delivery of the deed, the three-year statute of limitations for fraud or mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)] does not apply to the plaintiff's quiet title action (Kenney v. Parks (1902) 137 Cal. 527, 530, 70 P. 556).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted to oppose the contention that the plaintiff's quiet title action is barred by the three-year statute of limitations for fraud or mistake, when the deed was never delivered.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the three-year statute of limitations for fraud or mistake does not apply because of nondelivery of the deed. For example, this form may be adapted for use to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint, or for use in a motion for summary judgment, a trial or appellate brief, or jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in opposing a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish that there was never any delivery of the deed. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, or in a brief. Counsel can then argue that the demurrer should be overruled, or judgment should be entered for plaintiff, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to summary judgment proceedings, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in opposing demurrers based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For memoranda opposing demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda for use in opposing motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, this form may be used in opposition points set forth in § 198.11 (action barred by statute of limitations for fraud or mistake).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute of Limitations for Fraud or Mistake Does Not Apply if Deed Not Delivered

In Kenney v. Parks (1902) 137 Cal. 527, 70 P. 556 , the plaintiff executed two deeds in favor of her husband based on the mutual understanding that the deeds would have no effect until recorded and that the deeds would not be recorded unless her husband survived her. The deeds were subsequently recorded by her husband. After her husband's death, plaintiff was ousted from the property by the executors of her husband s estate. After an initial action and an appeal, the plaintiff brought a second action, and the trial court found that this action was barred by Code Civ. Proc. § 338, based on fraud or mistake. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed and remanded for further proceedings. It acknowledged that mistake and fraud were indeed alleged and found, but that the plaintiff's cause of action was complete without regard to these facts. The court held that because of the mutual understanding of the plaintiff and her husband regarding the execution of the deed, either there was no delivery, or the deed took effect subject to a trust in favor of the plaintiff. In the former event, the applicable statute of limitations would be governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 318; in the latter event, by Code Civ. Proc. § 343. Because the only statute pleaded was Code Civ. Proc. § 338, the court held that the plaintiff was entitled to relief. Further, on an issue not directly relevant to the point in question, it held that plaintiff should not be barred because she brought the second action within one year of the reversal in the first action, in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 355 (137 Cal. 527, 528-530) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute of Limitations for Fraud or Mistake Does Not Apply if Deed Not Delivered

In Estate of Pieper (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 670, 37 Cal. Rptr. 46 , the decedent executed a deed in favor of Parkinson, the eventual administrator of the decedent's estate. It was alleged that the decedent was totally incompetent to comprehend the meaning and nature of the deed, and therefore was unable to form the intent to divest herself of title, resulting in the lack of delivery of the deed to Parkinson. Parkinson raised the defense of the statute of limitations. The trial court made no findings on this issue and declared the deed invalid. Parkinson appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded, with directions to the trial court to make findings on the issue of the statute of limitations. The court held that the gravamen of the petitioner's action was not fraud or mistake and therefore Code Civ. Proc. § 338 did not apply. The court found no authorities directly holding which statute of limitations applies to an action to set aside a deed or declare it invalid on the basis of nondelivery, and concluded that the four-year statute in Code Civ. Proc. § 343 was applicable. The delay was over 13 years. However, the petitioner claimed that Parkinson should be estopped from asserting the bar of the statute of limitations (for reasons not relevant to this point), and the court remanded the case to the trial court for a determination on the statute of limitations issue (224 Cal. App. 2d 670, 688-690) .

The Supreme Court in Kenney v. Parks (1903) 137 Cal. 527, 70 P. 556 [see § 198.21[3] for discussion of Kenney] held that the five-year period in Code Civ. Proc. § 318 applied to an action for nondelivery of a deed. The Pieper court did not take notice of this holding, but instead held that the four-year period in Code Civ. Proc. § 343 applied. Counsel arguing cases involving the nondelivery of a deed should be aware of the inconsistency in these holdings.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.22

§ 198.22 Quiet Title Action Is Not Barred by Limitation Period for Fraud or Mistake Because Cause of Action Did Not Accrue Until Discovery

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S QUIET TITLE ACTION IS NOT BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR FRAUD OR MISTAKE BECAUSE PLAINTIFF'S DISCOVERY OF THE _____ [FRAUD or MISTAKE] OCCURRED WITHIN THREE YEARS OF THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE ACTION.

A. Quiet Title Action Based on Fraud or Mistake Does Not Accrue Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake. When the underlying right to relief in a quiet title action is fraud or mistake, the applicable statute of limitations is three years, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), but the cause of action does not accrue until discovery of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake (Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d); Arthur v. Davis (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 178 Cal. Rptr. 920).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted to oppose the contention that the quiet title action is barred by the three-year statute of limitations for fraud or mistake when the claimant's discovery of the fraud or mistake occurred within three years of the commencement of the action.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the cause of action did not accrue until discovery of the facts constituting fraud or mistake. For example, this form may be adapted for use to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint, or for inclusion in a motion for summary judgment, a trial or appellate brief, or jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in opposing a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish that the plaintiff's discovery of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake occurred within three years of the date the complaint was filed. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, or in a brief. Counsel can then argue that the demurrer should be overruled, or judgment should be entered for plaintiff, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to summary judgment proceedings, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in opposing demurrers based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For memoranda opposing demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda and authorities for use in opposing motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, this form may be used in opposition to the memorandum set forth in § 198.11 (action barred by statute of limitations for fraud or mistake).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Quiet Title Action Based on Fraud or Mistake Does Not Accrue Until Discovery of Facts Constituting Fraud or Mistake

Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) provides that an action for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake is not to be deemed to have accrued until the discovery, by the aggrieved party, of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake.

In Arthur v. Davis (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 684, 178 Cal. Rptr. 920 , the plaintiff and her husband purchased a home with the help of a loan from their real estate agent. After escrow closed, the real estate agent asked the buyers to sign a paper which turned out to be a grant deed to the property, granting the property to the real estate agent. The buyers thought the blank form they signed was some sort of guarantee of security for the loan. The buyers lived in the property, paying the mortgage and property taxes. Several years later the real estate agent asserted ownership and demanded that the buyers pay rent to the agent. In a second trial, the trial court quieted title in favor of plaintiff and the defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. It held that the applicable statute of limitations was the three-year period in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)] for fraud or mistake, based on the plaintiff's justifiable mistake as to the nature of the document. The court further held that the cause of action did not accrue "until the discovery, by the aggrieved party, of the facts constituting the ... mistake" (citations omitted). The court noted that there was substantial evidence to support the trial court's finding that at no time prior to three years of the filing of the complaint did the plaintiff or her husband discover that they had signed a deed in favor of the real estate agent, nor should they have discovered that fact (126 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.23

§ 198.23 Action to Quiet Title to Easement by Necessity Is Not Barred by Limitation Period

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S ACTION IS NOT BARRED BY A STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS BECAUSE NO LIMITATION PERIOD APPLIES TO AN ACTION TO QUIET TITLE TO AN EASEMENT BY NECESSITY.

A. No Limitation Period in Action to Quiet Title to an Easement by Necessity. It is not appropriate to fix a limitation period on a quiet title action to establish an easement by necessity arising out of a remote grant of contiguous parcels (Lichty v. Sickels (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 696, 703, 197 Cal. Rptr. 137).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted to oppose the contention that an action to quiet title to an easement by necessity is barred by a statute of limitations.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that there is no statute of limitations for an easement by necessity. For example, this form may be adapted for use to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint, or for inclusion in a motion for summary judgment, a trial or appellate brief, or jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in opposing a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish the creation and continued existence of an easement by necessity. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, or in a brief. Counsel can then argue that the demurrer should be overruled, or judgment should be entered for plaintiff, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to summary judgment proceedings, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in opposing demurrers based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions . For memoranda opposing demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda for use in opposing motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, this form of memorandum may be used in opposition to points set forth in § 198.12 (action barred by statute of limitations relating to seisin or possession).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Limitation Period in Action to Quiet Title to an Easement by Necessity

In Lichty v. Sickels (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 696, 197 Cal. Rptr. 137 , the plaintiff filed an action to establish an easement by necessity across a contiguous parcel of property owned by the defendant. The trial court granted a motion for summary judgment in favor of the defendant on the basis that the plaintiff's cause of action was barred by the five-year statute of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 318. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court held that it would not be appropriate to fix a limitation period on actions to establish easements by necessity in the nature of quiet title actions such as this, in light of the public policy considerations for these easements. It noted that there is an inconsistency between on the one hand applying a limitation period and on the other hand giving effect to the rule that the easement terminates only when the necessity ceases. The court likened the situation to that in Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d 659 [see § 198.20[3] for discussion of Muktarian], where there is no reason to put the party to the expense and inconvenience of litigation until the activity adverse to the easement by necessity (i.e., threatening to cut it off) occurs (149 Cal. App. 3d 696, 703) .

The court noted, however, that its holding did not affect any assertions pertaining to issues such as the creation or continued existence of an easement by necessity, or laches (149 Cal. App. 3d 696, 704) .

16 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
A. Statute of Limitations

19A-198 California Points & Authorities §§ 198.24-198.29

[Reserved]

§§ 198.24[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
B. Sufficient Interests

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.30

§ 198.30 Equitable Interest Is Insufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action Against Holder of Legal Title

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S QUIET TITLE ACTION IS BARRED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF'S INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY IS MERELY EQUITABLE IN NATURE AND DEFENDANT HOLDS LEGAL TITLE TO THE PROPERTY.

A. Equitable Interest Is Insufficient to Quiet Title Against Holder of Legal Title. It has been repeatedly held in this state that an action to quiet title will not lie in favor of the holder of an equitable title as against the holder of a legal title (G.R. Holcomb Estate Co. v. Burke (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 289, 297, 48 P.2d 669).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the contention that the party seeking to quiet title cannot do so because the claimant's interest is merely equitable in nature and the adverse claimant holds legal title to the property.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that a quiet title action will not lie for the holder of an equitable interest as against the holder of legal title. For example, this form may be combined with § 198.10[1], Paragraphs A and B, to support a general demurrer to a complaint. This form may also be adapted for use in a motion for summary judgment, a motion for judgment on the pleadings, a trial or appellate brief, or jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in supporting a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish that the plaintiff's claim is based on an equitable interest only and not on a right to legal title to the property. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in a motion for summary judgment or brief. Counsel can then argue that the complaint is subject to demurrer, or judgment should be entered for defendant or adverse claimant, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For a form of notice for summary judgment and related discussion, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda for use in supporting motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points set out in § 198.36 (equitable interest is sufficient as against holder of equitable title) or 198.37 (equitable right to legal title to be distinguished from equitable interest) may be used to oppose a contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Equitable Interest Is Insufficient to Quiet Title Against Holder of Legal Title

The factual background of G.R. Holcomb Estate Co. v. Burke (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 289, 48 P.2d 669 involved a complex financial plan for a family with significant real property holdings. When G.R. Holcomb died, his wife and children set up a family corporation to which they transferred the property they inherited from Holcomb. The family conducted this corporation as a family affair, paying all their living expenses out of the corporation's accounts. At one point, the corporation issued checks for the purchase of five properties that were held in the names of certain individual heirs.

Subsequently, the family corporation experienced financial difficulty, and 87 percent of the stock was transferred to trustees for a creditor bank of the corporation. These trustees, on behalf of the plaintiff corporation, brought an action to quiet title to the five parcels owned by the heirs on the theory that the heirs held title in trust for the plaintiff corporation. The trial court ruled in favor of the defendant heirs, and the plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. In reviewing the evidence, it noted that the intention of the plaintiff corporation and the defendant heirs at the time the plaintiff paid for the parcels in question was that the heirs were purchasing these properties with their own money, and for their own use and benefit. The court held that at most the plaintiff would be the equitable owner of the lands, and that quiet title will not lie in favor of the holder of an equitable title as against the holder of a legal title (4 Cal. 2d 289, 297-298) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Equitable Interest Is Insufficient to Quiet Title Against Holder of Legal Title

In Strong v. Strong (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 540, 140 P.2d 386 , the husband of the defendant purchased a property partially with community funds. The husband induced his wife to sign a deed to the property to his mother, on the theory that he was in financial difficulty, that the conveyance would protect their home, and that the mother would shortly reconvey the property to them. The husband and wife divorced and the wife was awarded the property. The mother brought a quiet title action against the wife. The trial court ruled in favor of the defendant (wife). The plaintiff (mother) appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court rejected the defendant's argument that judgment in her favor should be affirmed on the ground that she was induced to sign the deed based on a false representation by her husband. The court held that the defendant failed to plead fraud, a specific requirement. And because the defendant did not hold legal title to the property, any rights she might have to the cancellation of the deed or to the declaration of a construction trust were entirely equitable. These rights cannot be established in a quiet title action when the pleadings contain merely general allegations asserting defendant's ownership and denying that of plaintiff (22 Cal. 2d 540, 545-546) .

The Strong court, by implication, indicated that had the defendant pleaded and proved fraud, she may have had a cause of action to set aside the deed to the plaintiff.

Counsel should be aware that the quiet title statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.] includes provisions that might arguably expand the scope of quiet title actions to include an equitable interest in property. For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 (a) defines a "claim" as a legal or equitable right, title, estate, lien or interest in property or cloud upon title (emphasis added). Likewise, Code Civ. Proc. § 760.020 (a) provides that a quiet title action may be brought to establish title against adverse claims to real or personal property or any interest therein (emphasis added). The Law Revision Commission Comment to this latter statute included the following statement: "This chapter does not limit the interests that may be determined ...; it is intended to provide the broadest possible forum for clearing title to the fee or any other interest in property."

To date, however, there have been no cases that deal specifically with the issue of whether the quiet title statute modifies prior case law on this point. In at least one case subsequent to the effective date of the current statute, the court of appeal held that a party who had alleged essentially a cause of action for theft had no standing to bring a quiet title action, "because whatever interest it might have is only equitable, and the holder of equitable title cannot maintain a quiet title action against the legal owner," thereby confirming prior case law [see Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1866, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63] . For discussion of the distinction between an equitable right to legal title and an equitable interest in real property, see § 198.37[3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
B. Sufficient Interests

19A-198 California Points & Authorities §§ 198.31-198.34

[Reserved]

§§ 198.31[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
B. Sufficient Interests

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.35

§ 198.35 Any Interest in Real Property Is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY, CONSISTING OF _____ [specify], IS SUFFICIENT TO MAINTAIN A QUIET TITLE ACTION BECAUSE ANY ESTATE OR INTEREST IN LAND MAY BE QUIETED.

A. Any Estate or Interest in Land is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action. It is well settled that the owner of any estate or interest in land of which the law takes cognizance is entitled to have any claim adverse to the owner's interest, such as it is, determined (German-American Savings Bank v. Gollmer (1909) 155 Cal. 683, 687, 102 P. 932 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 738; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted to oppose the contention that the claimant s interest is not sufficient to maintain a quiet title action when the claimant's interest is in fact an interest in real property, even if less than a fee interest.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the claimant's interest is sufficient to maintain a quiet title action. For example, this form may be adapted for use to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint, in a motion for summary judgment, in a trial or appellate brief, or in jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in opposing a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish the exact nature of the plaintiff's interest, stating that such an interest is an interest or estate in real property. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, or in a brief. Counsel can then argue that the demurrer should be overruled, or judgment should be entered for claimant, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to summary judgment proceedings, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda opposing demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda for use in opposing motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Any Estate or Interest in Land Is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action

In German-American Savings Bank v. Gollmer (1909) 155 Cal. 683, 102 P. 932 , plaintiff filed an action to quiet title to its leasehold interest of an estate for years. Judgment was entered for the plaintiff and the defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court stated that while the action was somewhat novel, it saw no reason why it could not be maintained under the quiet title statute. It held that the owner of any estate or interest in land is entitled to have any claim adverse to his or her interest, such as it is, determined. Whatever interest plaintiff has may be quieted. If a title in fee, the interest may be quieted; if a lesser interest, the lesser interest may be likewise quieted (155 Cal. 683, 686-687) . The court held that there was no error in overruling the demurrer (155 Cal. 683, 687) , but reversed the judgment and remanded the case on other grounds (155 Cal. 683, 689, 692) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Any Estate or Interest in Land Is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action

In Hendershott v. Shipman (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 190, 231 P.2d 481 , the plaintiffs brought a quiet title action based on a treasurer s deed. The trial court held that the plaintiffs were not owners of the lot, but they did have a valid and subsisting lien on the property by way of a certificate of sale on a bond. The defendants appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment, holding that the fact that the plaintiffs did not prevail on their claim of title in fee did not preclude the court from declaring a lesser interest. It is well settled that the court may finally determine as between the parties in a quiet title action all of the conflicting claims regarding any estate or interest in the property (37 Cal. 2d 190, 194) .

In Golden West Baseball Company v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378 , the plaintiff sued the City of Anaheim for issuing a conditional use permit to a third party for development of part of the parking lot used by the plaintiff. The trial court determined in part that the plaintiff had a leasehold interest in the parking lot on game days.

The court of appeal held that the plaintiff's interest was not a leasehold, but rather either an easement or an irrevocable license (25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 19) , and, in either event, its interest could be the subject of a quiet title action (25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 50) . The judgment was affirmed with certain modifications (25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 51-52) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
B. Sufficient Interests

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.36

§ 198.36 Equitable Interest Is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action Against Another Holder of Equitable Interest

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S EQUITABLE INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY IS SUFFICIENT TO MAINTAIN A QUIET TITLE ACTION AGAINST DEFENDANT BECAUSE DEFENDANT ALSO ASSERTS AN EQUITABLE INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY.

A. Equitable Interest is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action Against Holder of Equitable Title. Although it is true that one claiming an equitable interest cannot quiet title as against a party with legal title, it is also true that when both parties assert mere equities in real property, a quiet title action may be maintained to ascertain which party has the superior equity (Horn v. Govan (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 77, 82, 341 P.2d 784).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted to oppose the contention that the holder of an equitable interest cannot maintain a quiet title action when the adverse claimant has an equitable interest only.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that a holder of an equitable interest cannot maintain a quiet title action. For example, this form may be adapted for use to oppose a general demurrer to a complaint, in a motion for summary judgment, in a trial or appellate brief, or in jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in opposing a demurrer to a complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the complaint that establish that both the plaintiff and the defendant have equitable interests only in the property. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, or in a brief. Counsel can then argue that the demurrer should be overruled, or judgment should be entered for plaintiff, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to summary judgment proceedings, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda opposing demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda for use in opposing motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, this form may be used in opposition to points set forth in § 198.30 (equitable interest insufficient to quiet title).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Equitable Interest is Sufficient to Maintain Quiet Title Action Against Holder of Equitable Title

In Horn v. Govan (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 77, 341 P.2d 784 , two brothers, Roy and Orville, inherited some property. Orville conveyed his interest to Roy but remained in possession of the property. Roy opened escrow to sell the property to the plaintiffs. Before closing escrow, the plaintiffs brought an action to quiet title as against Orville and his wife (defendants). The plaintiffs then proceeded to close escrow on the property. Judgment was entered for the plaintiffs and the defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. The defendants contended on appeal that the plaintiffs could not maintain a quiet title action because their interest in the property at the time they filed the complaint, as buyers under a contract to purchase the property and not as holders of legal title, was merely equitable. The defendants also argued that Roy should have held the property in trust for Orville after Orville conveyed his interest to Roy. The court held that while it was true that the plaintiffs interest was merely equitable at the commencement of the action, so also was the defendants interest. It further held that when both parties assert mere equities in real property, a quiet title action may be maintained to ascertain which party has the superior equity (172 Cal. App. 2d 77, 82) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
B. Sufficient Interests

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.37

§ 198.37 Adverse Claimant Can Obtain Relief in Quiet Title Action Based on Lack of Title in Plaintiff

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT CAN OBTAIN RELIEF IN A QUIET TITLE ACTION BASED ON THE _____ [WEAKNESS OF PLAINTIFF'S TITLE or LACK OF TITLE IN PLAINTIFF].

A. Court May Determine Conflicting Claims of Any Estate or Interest. The court may determine as between the parties in a quiet title action all of the conflicting claims regarding any estate or interest in the property (Baucum v. LeBaron (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 289 P.2d 266).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted to oppose the contention that an adverse claimant cannot obtain relief in a quiet title action based on the weakness or lack of title in the plaintiff.

This form may be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the court has the power to determine all the conflicting claims in a quiet title action. For example, this form may be adapted for use to oppose a general demurrer to a cross-complaint, in a motion for summary judgment, in a trial or appellate brief, or in jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in opposing a demurrer to a cross-complaint, counsel should refer to allegations in the cross-complaint that establish that the adverse claimant has an interest in real property in his or her own right. Likewise, counsel should set forth these facts, supported by affidavits or declarations when appropriate, in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, or in a brief. Counsel can then argue that the demurrer should be overruled, or judgment should be entered for the adverse claimant, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to summary judgment proceedings, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , in that set. For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda opposing demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For memoranda for use in opposing motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court May Determine Conflicting Claims of Any Estate or Interest

In Baucum v. LeBaron (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 593, 289 P.2d 266), plaintiffs brought a quiet title action, alleging that defendants claimed certain easements on the real property. Defendants filed a cross-complaint seeking reformation of a deed (which contained an error in the legal description of the easements) and quiet title to their easements. The trial court ruled in pertinent part that the defendants were the owners of the easements in question. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. It rejected the plaintiff's argument on appeal that the defendants could not recover because of the general rule that one can recover only on the strength of one's own title rather than on the weakness or lack of title in one's adversary. It noted that the defendants claim was based on a mutual mistake of the parties in the deeds. The court held that when a party shows an equitable right to have a legal title conveyed to him or her, the court in the exercise of its chancery powers may grant the proper relief under (former) Code Civ. Proc. § 738 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.]. The court of appeal also held that the trial court may determine, as between the parties in a quiet title action, all of the conflicting claims regarding any estate or interest in the property (136 Cal. App. 2d 593, 594-595) .

This case can be distinguished from the authorities discussed in § 198.30[3], [4], which held that an equitable interest is insufficient to quiet title as against the holder of a legal title. In the subject case, the defendants had an equitable right (based on mutual mistake) to have the legal title to their easements quieted. Counsel should be mindful of the distinction between an equitable right to a legal title on the one hand, and a mere equitable interest in property on the other hand.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
B. Sufficient Interests

19A-198 California Points & Authorities §§ 198.38-198.39

[Reserved]

§§ 198.38[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
C. Pleading Requirements

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.40

§ 198.40 Demurrer to Quiet Title Action Based on Failure to Allege Plaintiff's Title and Basis of Title

[1] FORM

[For caption, see § 198.10[1].]

THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION BECAUSE IT DOES NOT INCLUDE ALLEGATIONS REGARDING PLAINTIFF'S TITLE AND THE BASIS OF PLAINTIFF'S TITLE, [AND DOES NOT ALLEGE THE SPECIFIC FACTS CONSTITUTING THE ADVERSE POSSESSION].

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 198.10]1], Paragraph A.]

B. Failure to Allege Plaintiff's Title and Basis of Title. In a quiet title action, the complaint must include the title of the plaintiff as to which a determination is sought and the basis of the title. [Further, when the title is based on adverse possession, the complaint must allege the specific facts constituting the adverse possession] (Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(b); see Stafford v. Ballinger (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 289, 18 Cal. Rptr. 568).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant

_____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint or cross-complaint seeking to quiet title to property when the complaint fails to include allegations regarding the claimant s title and basis of the title. This form may also be adapted for use in a motion for judgment on the pleadings based on the failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(B)(ii)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in supporting a demurrer to a complaint or a cross-complaint, counsel should refer to the lack of allegations in the complaint or cross-complaint establishing the claimant s title and the basis of the title. If the complaint includes specific allegations that affirmatively reveal the absence of title, counsel should refer to these allegations. Counsel can then argue that the complaint or cross-complaint is subject to demurrer based on the authorities set forth above and discussed below.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Allege Plaintiff's Title and Basis of Title

In Stafford v. Ballinger (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 289, 18 Cal. Rptr. 568 , plaintiff alleged in his amended complaint that he had entered into a contract to buy a lot from the predecessor of one of the defendants. The seller reneged and refused to complete the sale. The plaintiff brought an action to quiet title and the trial court sustained defendants' demurrers to plaintiff's third amended complaint without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that in an action to quiet title, the complaint should allege the interest of the plaintiff in the property at the time the action is commenced. The complaint set forth two causes of action, one to quiet title and the other setting forth the facts and circumstances on which plaintiff's claim of title was based. Although a general allegation of ownership of the property is sufficient if the plaintiff owns the property in fee, such an allegation is treated as a conclusion if the detailed facts on which the claim of ownership is predicated are also alleged. The court stated that in such a case, (1) the specific facts will control rather than the general allegation in determining whether the complaint states sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action, and (2) only one cause of action will have been stated. Accordingly, if the specifically pleaded facts affirmatively reveal the absence of an essential element in a plaintiff's claim of title, no cause of action is stated. In applying these rules, the court found plaintiff's complaint did not state a cause of action because the allegations in the second cause of action disclosed that plaintiff did not have legal title to the property in question. At most, the plaintiff may have acquired some equitable rights by virtue of his contract to purchase (199 Cal. App. 2d 289, 292-295) .

The holding in Stafford was rendered prior to the effective date of the current quiet title statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010 et seq.]. Because Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(b) requires that the complaint include not only the title of plaintiff, but also the basis for the title, it is possible that the general rule referred to in Stafford (i.e., that a general allegation of ownership of the property is sufficient if the plaintiff owns the property in fee) may not withstand a challenge based on the current statute. Because the holding in Stafford was not based on this general rule, however, this possibility should not impact the authority of Stafford for the point stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 198 QUIETING TITLE
PART II. FORMS
C. Pleading Requirements

19A-198 California Points & Authorities § 198.41

§ 198.41 Demurrer to Answer in Quiet Title Action Based on Failure to Include Required Allegations

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER
[and DOES I through _____,]	)	TO ANSWER
Defendant(s).	)
	)
	)

THE ANSWER TO THE COMPLAINT [OR CROSS-COMPLAINT] IS SUBJECT TO DEMURRER BECAUSE IT FAILS TO INCLUDE THE DEFENDANT'S CLAIM TO TITLE [AND/OR] ANY FACTS CONTROVERTING MATERIAL ALLEGATIONS OF THE COMPLAINT.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom an answer has been filed may object to the answer by demurrer on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)). When any ground for objection to an answer appears on the face of the answer (or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice), the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the answer (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)).

B. Failure to Allege Defendant's Claim and Facts Controverting Material Allegations of Complaint. In an answer to a quiet title action, the defendant must allege his or her claims to the property and any facts tending to controvert any material allegations of the complaint that the defendant does not wish to be taken to be true (Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030(a)(1), (2)).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant

_____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a demurrer to an answer to a complaint or cross-complaint seeking to quiet title when the answer fails to include allegations regarding the defendant's title and/or any facts tending to controvert material allegations of the complaint. This form may also be adapted for use in a motion for judgment on the pleadings based on the failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 438(c)(1)(A)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. For example, in supporting a demurrer to an answer, counsel should refer to the lack of (1) allegations in the answer establishing the defendant s claim to title, or (2) any facts controverting the material allegations in the complaint. Counsel can then argue that the answer is subject to demurrer, or judgment on the pleadings should be entered for the plaintiff, as appropriate, based on the authorities set forth above.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedures and forms relating to demurrers generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings (Matthew Bender). For forms and discussion relating to quieting title generally, see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , also in that set.

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting demurrers generally, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Allege Defendant's Claim and Facts Controverting Material Allegations of Complaint

The answer in a quiet title action must be verified and must set forth the following: (1) any claim the defendant has, (2) any facts tending to controvert any material allegations of the complaint that the defendant does not wish to be taken as true, and (3) a statement of any new matter constituting a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030(a)].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Allege Defendant's Claim and Facts Controverting Material Allegations of Complaint

In Morel v. Morel (1928) 203 Cal. 417, 264 P. 760 , the plaintiff filed a complaint to quiet title in which she alleged in detail the facts on which her asserted title was based. In the answer, the defendant only denied that plaintiff was the owner or was entitled to the possession of the property. The plaintiff moved for, and the trial court rendered, a judgment on the pleadings in the plaintiff's favor, on the ground that the answer lacked sufficient denials of the allegations of the complaint.

In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court held that defendant's denial could not be held sufficient to present an issue. The court reasoned that, because the complaint set forth in detail the probative facts on which the plaintiff's title was based and the defendant failed to deny these facts in his answer, his denial of ownership in the plaintiff must be held to be merely the denial of a legal conclusion. Therefore, the trial court was not in error in granting the plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings (203 Cal. 417, 418-419) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO

19A-199 California Points & Authorities 199.syn

§ 199.syn Synopsis to Chapter 199: QUO WARRANTO

§ 199.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 199.02 Governing Law

§ 199.03 When Points and Authorities Required

[1] Application for Leave to Sue

[2] Appearance by Proposed Defendant to Oppose Application

[3] Other Proceedings

§ 199.04 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

§ 199.05 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 199.06 Related Points and Authorities

§§ 199.07-199.19 [Reserved]

§ 199.20 Supporting Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]--Usurpation of Public Office [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Public Office Defined

[b] Title to Elective Office

[c] Two Persons Elected to Same Office

[d] Person Holding Two Incompatible Offices

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Quo Warranto Proper Against Usurper of Public Office

[b] Title to Elective Office

§ 199.21 Supporting Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]--Usurpation of Franchise--By Person [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Franchise Defined

[b] How Franchise Granted

§ 199.22 Supporting Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]--Usurpation of Franchise--By Corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Usurpation Defined

[b] Exclusive Remedy to Attack Corporate Validity

[c] Proper to Oust Corporation From Exercise of Unlawful Franchise

§ 199.23 Supporting Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]--Invalid Annexation by Municipal Corporation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Proper to Challenge Invalid Annexation

§§ 199.24-199.29 [Reserved]

§ 199.30 Opposing Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3]--Public Office Not Involved

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Quo Warranto Not Proper When Public Office Not Involved

§ 199.31 Opposing Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3]--Complaint on Information and Belief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint on Information and Belief Insufficient

§ 199.32 Opposing Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3]--Issues Previously Litigated

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Issues Previously Litigated

§§ 199.33-199.39 [Reserved]

§ 199.40 1/2 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811]--Bar of Relevant Statute of Limitations [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 349.1, 349.4, 349]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to State Cause of Action

[b] Statute Applicable to Quo Warranto Actions

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Applicable to Quo Warranto Actions

§ 199.41 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811]--Failure to Allege Facts Establishing Usurpation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Establish Usurpation

§ 199.42 Supporting Demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] to Complaint in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811] to Invalidate Annexation Proceedings--Annexation Proceedings Not Complete

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Remedy in Quo Warranto Not Mature When Annexation Proceedings Incomplete

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Remedy in Quo Warranto Not Mature When Annexation Proceedings Incomplete

§§ 199.43-199.49 [Reserved]

§ 199.50 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811]--Statute of Limitations Inapplicable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute of Limitations as Not Invocable to Bar Challenge of Subsequent Void Annexation Proceedings

§§ 199.51-199.59 [Reserved]

§ 199.60 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Attorney General to Grant Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Leave to Sue as Compelled When Abuse of Discretion in Refusing Requested Leave to Sue

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Leave to Sue as Compelled When Abuse of Discretion in Refusing Requested Leave to Sue

26 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.01

§ 199.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda of points and authorities for use in supporting [see §§ 199.20 -199.23] and opposing [see §§ 199.30 -199.32] applications for leave to sue in quo warranto; supporting [see §§ 199.40 -199.42] and opposing § 199.50 demurrers to complaints in quo warranto; and supporting a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the Attorney General to sue in quo warranto § 199.60.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsQuo Warranto

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.02

§ 199.02 Governing Law

Actions in quo warranto are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803-811. The statutes of limitation applicable to actions in quo warranto are found in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 349.1, 349.4, and *349*1/2.

Regulatory requirements applicable to a relator's application for leave to sue in quo warranto and appearances by a proposed defendant to oppose such an application are set out in 11 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1-11 and 28.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsQuo WarrantoGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.03

§ 199.03 When Points and Authorities Required

[1] Application for Leave to Sue

The application for leave to sue in quo warranto submitted to the Attorney General by a relator [see 11 Cal. Code Reg. § 1 (relator as private party desiring leave to sue in name of people of California under law requiring prior permission from Attorney General)] must include points and authorities showing why the proposed proceeding should be brought in the name of the people of California [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]. This requirement is satisfied by an application and a memorandum of points and authorities showing that it would be in the public interest to have the substantial issue of law or fact raised in the proposed complaint determined judicially [see 35 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 198, 199 (1960) (application in quo warranto to question right of city councilman to remain on council after moving to new residence outside city as presenting issue of importance to more than 350 California cities)].

The application for leave to sue must also include points and authorities supporting the contentions of the relator that a public office [8 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 221, 222 (1946)] or franchise [9 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 1, 2 (1947)] is usurped, intruded into, or unlawfully held or exercised by the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)].

[2] Appearance by Proposed Defendant to Oppose Application

Any appearance by the proposed defendant [see 11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3 (time in which proposed defendant may appear to oppose application for leave to sue in quo warranto)] may be supported by points and authorities, but points and authorities are not required by any statute or administrative regulation. It is probably better practice for a proposed defendant to support any opposition to an application for leave to sue in quo warranto with points and authorities (1) showing why the proposed proceeding should not be brought in the name of the people of California, and (2) refuting the contentions of the relator that a public office or franchise is usurped, intruded into, or unlawfully held or exercised by the proposed defendant [see 11 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2(b), 3]. Such opposition may be written [30 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 36, 39 (1957)] . It may take the form of opposing affidavits (or declarations [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [8 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 221, 222 (1946)] or petitions [8 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 221, 223 (1946)] . In addition, the Attorney General may require that opposition be made by means of an informal appearance by the proposed defendant.

[3] Other Proceedings

Once a complaint in quo warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811] is filed, the action proceeds in the same manner as any other civil action [People v. Richmond (1965) 141 Cal. App. 2d 107, 117, 296 P.2d 351] . The requirements with respect to when memoranda of points and authorities must be submitted are the same as in any other civil action. For example, a party filing a demurrer or motion, except for a motion listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114 must serve and file with that demurrer or motion a supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for detailed discussion regarding when memoranda are required in civil proceedings generally, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsQuo Warranto

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.04

§ 199.04 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

Generally, a supporting or opposing memorandum of points and authorities must not exceed 15 pages, or in the case of a memorandum supporting or opposing motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, 20 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. For further discussion of the page limitations under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113, and of other basic format requirements of memoranda of points and authorities, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentOppositionMemoranda in OppositionCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of LawCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsQuo Warranto

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.05

§ 199.05 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion, procedures, and forms for use in quo warranto actions, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE. For discussion, procedures, and forms for use in related proceedings, see the following chapters in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE:

- Ch. 160, Corporations.
- Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief.
- Ch. 243, Elections.
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition.
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawCorporationsDirectors & OfficersTerms in OfficeElectionsCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsProhibitionCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsQuo WarrantoCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionState Court Review

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.06

§ 199.06 Related Points and Authorities

Related memoranda of points and authorities that may be useful in particular quo warranto cases may be found in Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the PleadingsCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsQuo Warranto

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART I. INTRODUCTION

19A-199 California Points & Authorities §§ 199.07-199.19

[Reserved]

§§ 199.07[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.20

§ 199.20 Supporting Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]--Usurpation of Public Office [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]

[1] FORM

BEFORE THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

The People of the State of California on the Relation of _____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO SUE IN QUO WARRANTO
vs.	)
_____ [name (s)],	)
Defendant(s).	)
	)

A SUIT IN QUO WARRANTO IS PROPER TO REMEDY THE USURPATION OF A PUBLIC OFFICE.

A. Quo Warranto Proper Against Usurper of Public Office. An action in quo warranto may be brought by the Attorney General, in the name of the people of the State of California, upon his/her own information or upon the complaint of a private party, against any person who usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises any public office, civil or military (Code Civ. Proc. § 803).

B. Public Office Defined. A public office is created by a legislature prescribing the duties of a position or employment and fixing the compensation therefor, where those duties pertain to the public and are continuing and permanent, not occasional or temporary (People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 636, 639, 107 P.2d 388).

[Optional] C. Title to Elective Office. Title to an elective office cannot be litigated by any other means than a quo warranto action (Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Educ. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469).

[Optional] D. Two Persons Elected to Same Office. A cause of action for usurpation of public office is stated where it appears from the complaint that two persons are declared elected to one office, received certificates and qualified, and are performing duties thereof (People v. Davidson (1905) 2 Cal. App 100, 103, 83 P 161).

[Optional] E. Person Holding Two Incompatible Offices. An action in quo warranto is the only proper method of challenging an individual's right to hold two incompatible offices (People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 636, 644, 107 P.2d 388).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Relator

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of an application for leave to sue in quo warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)] brought against a person usurping a public office, civil or military [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of application for leave to sue in quo warranto and proposed complaints in quo warranto for usurpation of public office, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Public Office Defined

In People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 636, 107 P.2d 388 , the Attorney General instituted a suit in quo warranto against an individual to determine by what right and authority that individual held the offices of city judge and city attorney for the community concurrently. Defendant demurred to the complaint, arguing that a city attorney was not a public officer and, in the alternative, if a city attorney was a public officer, his duties were not in conflict with his duties as a city judge. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend. On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed with directions to the trial court to overrule the demurrer and proceed with the disposition of the case. The Court found that the position of city attorney was a public office in that the legislature created the position, fixed the compensation therefor, and prescribed the duties, which pertained to the public and were continuing and permanent, not occasional or temporary (16 Cal. 2d 636, 639) . Furthermore, the Court found that the Attorney General had stated a cause of action in quo warranto by alleging the holding of two incompatible offices by one individual since the duties of city judge and city attorney are incompatible and, when two offices are incompatible, an individual terminates his or her right to hold the first office upon his or her accepting the second (16 Cal. 2d 636, 644) .

[b] Title to Elective Office

In Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Educ. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469 , plaintiff petitioned for a writ of mandate against a school district to require reapportionment of the seven trustee areas within the school district. The trial court found the school district in need of reapportionment and approved a plan of reapportionment. The plaintiff requested a special election in which all trustees were to stand for election even though their terms were not yet expired. This request was granted in the judgment, and the writ of mandate issued. The school district appealed. On plaintiff's request, the trial court issued an order directing that the school district's appeal not operate as a stay of execution of the judgment, whereupon the school district petitioned for a writ of mandate compelling the superior court to vacate this order. The court of appeal stayed the order directing a special election of trustees and found that an action in quo warranto, not a mandate proceeding, was the proper means to try title to elective office and that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction in ordering a special election which would have reduced the term of office of some of the trustees (37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690) .

[c] Two Persons Elected to Same Office

In People v. Davidson (1905) 2 Cal. App. 100, 83 P. 161 , a complaint in quo warranto to oust individuals exercising the office of constable was amended at trial following a motion by defendants for nonsuit. The defendants objected to the amending of the complaint. However, amendment was permitted. Subsequently, judgment was entered ousting defendants and defendants' motion for a new trial was denied. The defendants maintained on appeal that the complaint should not have been amended and that the complaint, even as amended to include an allegation that illegal ballots were regularly counted in the election of a constable, failed to state a cause of action. The court of appeals affirmed the trial court's decision in favor of plaintiff and found that plaintiff had stated a cause of action by alleging that two persons had been declared elected to one office, had received certificates and qualified, had performed the duties of the office, and were usurpers and intruders (2 Cal. App. 100, 103) .

[d] Person Holding Two Incompatible Offices

People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 636, 107 P.2d 388 is discussed under § 199.20[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Quo Warranto Proper Against Usurper of Public Office

In 27 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 249 (1956) , a relator sought permission to sue in quo warranto from the Attorney General. The relator stated that a special election had been ordered by a county's board of supervisors to determine if the voters would recall a hospital director, and that the relator had been nominated by the board of supervisors as a candidate to succeed the hospital director in the event the director was recalled. The relator challenged the election which had failed to recall the hospital director by a slim margin by alleging the invalidity of some of the absentee ballots cast. The Attorney General, in granting leave to sue in quo warranto to the relator, found that the right of a director to hold office in a hospital district could be tested in an action in quo warranto when the allegation is made that ballots were improperly cast in a recall election of that director, thus making him a usurper of public office [27 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 249, 252 (1956)] .

[b] Title to Elective Office

In People v. Kwolek (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 , a criminal defendant claimed that his conviction was void because the judge, a municipal judge sitting by assignment on the superior court, had no authority to sit as a permanent member of the superior court. Defendant raised the issue on appeal. Although it addressed the issue on the merits, and concluded that the judge did have proper authority, the court of appeal also held that the validity of the judge's appointment could not be challenged in the appeal because the proper method of challenge was a quo warranto proceeding (40 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1531) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.21

§ 199.21 Supporting Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]--Usurpation of Franchise--By Person [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 199.20.]

A SUIT IN QUO WARRANTO IS PROPER TO REMEDY THE USURPATION OF A FRANCHISE BY AN INDIVIDUAL.

A. Quo Warranto Proper Against Usurper of Franchise. An action in quo warranto may be brought by the Attorney General, in the name of the people of the State of California, upon his/her own information or upon the complaint of a private party, against any person who usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises any franchise (Code Civ. Proc. § 803).

B. Franchise Defined. A franchise is a special privilege to perform certain acts or exercise certain functions which is conferred upon an individual by a government duly empowered to grant the privilege (Oakland v. Hogan (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 346, 106 P.2d 987).

C. How Franchise Granted. The grant of a franchise may be in the exercise of administrative, legislative, or judicial powers (Oakland v. Hogan (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 342, 106 P.2d 987).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Relator

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of an application for leave to sue in quo warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)] brought against a person usurping a franchise [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of application for leave to sue in quo warranto and proposed complaints in quo warranto for usurpation of a franchise, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Franchise Defined

In Oakland v. Hogan (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 106 P.2d 987 , the City of Oakland initiated a quo warranto action under Code Civ. Proc. § 811 to determine the authority of certain persons to maintain and operate a private wharf on public tidelands without having obtained any city or state franchise for that right. Defendants' demurrer to the city's amended complaint was sustained without leave to amend. The city did not amend, judgment was entered for defendants, and the city appealed. Defendants argued that the maintenance of a wharf for the private business of its owner did not constitute the exercise of a franchise. The court of appeal defined a franchise as a special privilege conferred on an individual or a corporation by a government duly empowered legally to grant the privilege and stated that if the privilege is one that any individual may enjoy without a permit from the government or is a right which one individual may grant to another individual without approval of the government, the privilege is not a franchise (41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 346) . The court found that the city was vested with jurisdiction to grant or withhold a franchise to operate a private wharf on its public lands and was, under Code Civ. Proc. § 811, entitled to maintain an action in quo warranto. Therefore, it reversed and remanded the case to the superior court with instructions to overrule the demurrer and allow defendants a reasonable time in which to answer (41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 358-359) .

[b] How Franchise Granted

Oakland v. Hogan (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 106 P.2d 987 is discussed under § 199.21[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.22

§ 199.22 Supporting Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]--Usurpation of Franchise--By Corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 199.20.]

A SUIT IN QUO WARRANTO IS PROPER TO REMEDY THE USURPATION OF A FRANCHISE BY A CORPORATION.

A. Quo Warranto Proper Against Corporate Usurper of Franchise. An action in quo warranto may be brought by the Attorney General, in the name of the people of the State of California, upon his/her own information or upon the complaint of a private party, against any corporation, either de jure or de facto, which usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises any franchise in the State of California (Code Civ. Proc. § 803).

B. Franchise Defined. A franchise is a special privilege to perform certain acts or exercise certain functions which is conferred upon a corporation by a government duly empowered to grant the privilege (Oakland v. Hogan (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 346, 106 P.2d 987).

C. Usurpation Defined. Usurpation occurs where a corporation exercises a power it has no right to exercise (People v. Rosenstein-Cohn Cigar Co. (1900) 131 Cal. 153, 157, 63 P 163).

[Optional] D. Exclusive Remedy to Attack Corporate Validity. An action in quo warranto is the only proper remedy in cases questioning or attacking the existence and organization of a private, municipal, or other public corporation (San Ysidro Irrigation Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 715, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753).

[Optional] E. Proper to Oust Corporation From Exercise of Unlawful Franchise. An action in quo warranto is proper to oust a corporation from the exercise of a franchise which is unlawful for it to exercise (People v. California Protective Corp. (1926) 76 Cal. App 354, 361, 244 P 1089).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Relator

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of an application for leave to sue in quo warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)] brought against a corporation usurping a franchise [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of application for leave to sue in quo warranto and proposed complaints in quo warranto for usurpation of a franchise, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Usurpation Defined

In People v. Rosenstein-Cohn Cigar Co. (1900) 131 Cal. 153, 63 P 163 , an action was brought in quo warranto to revoke a corporation's charter and to dissolve the corporation for its alleged failure to organize and commence the transaction of business within one year of its incorporation as required by statute. The trial court found that the corporation did commence business within one year. Judgment was entered in favor of defendant and plaintiff's motion for a new trial was denied. Plaintiff appealed on the ground that the judgment was not supported by the evidence. The Supreme Court stated that a franchise is in the nature of a trust, the terms of a corporation's charter being the conditions of the trust, and that a corporation's charter is to be forfeited when it violated one or more of the essential conditions of the trust. The Court found that no essential conditions of the corporation's charter had been violated by the corporation and, thus, that there had been no usurpation of its corporate franchise (131 Cal. 153, 156-157) . Because the corporation had not usurped its franchise, the Court affirmed the trial court's judgment for defendant and order denying a new trial.

[b] Exclusive Remedy to Attack Corporate Validity

In San Ysidro Irrigation Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753 , the City of San Diego brought an action for declaratory relief and for preliminary and permanent injunctions against an irrigation district to prevent construction of new water lines. The trial court issued a temporary restraining order against the irrigation district. The district moved for dismissal and filed a demurrer alleging that quo warranto was the exclusive means by which the city could test the existence of the district. The demurrer was overruled and a preliminary injunction was issued. The district then petitioned for a writ of prohibition to restrain the superior court from any further proceedings against the district. The Supreme Court denied the writ. The Court pointed out that, in an action by the Attorney General under Code Civ. Proc. § 803, quo warranto is the exclusive remedy by which to question or attack the existence and organization of a private, municipal, or other public corporation. Therefore, a declaratory relief action would not be proper (56 Cal. 2d 708, 715-716) . However, the court noted that when a quo warranto action is brought by a city under Code Civ. Proc. § 811, an action for declaratory relief is equally available since the latter action does not enlarge the jurisdiction of the superior court over the parties or the subject matter [San Ysidro Irrigation Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 717, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753] .

[c] Proper to Oust Corporation From Exercise of Unlawful Franchise

In People v. California Protective Corp. (1926) 76 Cal. App 354, 244 P 1089 , the Attorney General brought an action in quo warranto against a corporation employing attorneys to render legal services for its clients for a yearly charge. The corporation's first demurrer was overruled and its second demurrer was overruled when it failed to appear. The trial court issued an order restraining the corporation from the practice of law and excluding it from exercising a corporate franchise in California. In addition, the trial court levied a fine and costs on the defendant corporation. The corporation appealed from the judgment and from the order denying its motion to retax costs. The judgment and order were affirmed on appeal. The court of appeal found that a cause of action was stated in that the complaint alleged that defendant was incorporated for and was engaged in the rendering of legal services to its patrons, members, and clients paying a specified yearly charge pursuant to an employment contract (76 Cal. App 354, 359) . In addition, because the court of appeal found that the right to practice law was in the nature of a franchise from the State, it held that an action in quo warranto lies to secure a judgment of ouster and seizure of the franchise when a corporation unlawfully assumes to exercise that right (76 Cal. App 354, 361) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.23

§ 199.23 Supporting Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)]--Invalid Annexation by Municipal Corporation

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 199.20.]

A SUIT IN QUO WARRANTO IS PROPER TO CHALLENGE AN INVALID ANNEXATION BY A MUNICIPAL CORPORATION.

A. Quo Warranto Proper Against Corporate Usurper of Franchise. [See § 199.22, Paragraph A.]

B. Usurpation Defined. [See § 199.22, Paragraph C.]

C. Proper to Challenge Invalid Annexaton. An attempted annexation which goes beyond the applicable annexation statutes in a basic and fundamental respect may be attacked by a suit in quo warranto, whether the annexation was protested effectively or not, and irrespective of any finding with respect to such protect (People v. Corte Madera (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 726, 732, 218 P.2d 810).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Relator

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of an application for leave to sue in quo warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2(b)] brought against a municipal corporation invalidly annexing territory.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of application for leave to sue in quo warranto and proposed complaints in quo warranto against annexing municipal corporations, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Proper to Challenge Invalid Annexation

In People v. Corte Madera (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 726, 218 P.2d 810 , a complaint in quo warranto was brought on the application of a landowner in purportedly annexed territory. The complaint alleged that the town council had initiated proceedings to annex three separate parcels of uninhabited territory and that each parcel was contiguous to the town but not contiguous to the other parcels as required by the applicable annexation statutes. The town filed a general demurrer which was overruled. The town declined to answer within the time allowed it and stood on its demurrer. After a default judgment was entered for plaintiff nullifying the annexation proceedings, the town appealed. The court of appeal found that separated parcels could not be annexed in a single annexation proceeding under the applicable statutes when the parcels were not contiguous to one another. The court of appeal further found that when an attempted annexation goes beyond the applicable annexation statutes in a basic and fundamental respect, as here, it may be attacked by a suit in quo warranto whether the relator had protested the annexation proceedings effectively, ineffectively, or not at all, and irrespective of the conclusiveness of the town council's finding of an insufficient protest (97 Cal. App. 2d 726, 732) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities §§ 199.24-199.29

[Reserved]

§§ 199.24[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.30

§ 199.30 Opposing Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3]--Public Office Not Involved

[1] FORM

BEFORE THE ATTORNEY GENERAL OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

The People of the State of California on the Relation of _____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO APPLICATION FOR LEAVE TO SUE IN QUO WARRANTO [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3]
vs.	)
_____ [name(s)],	)
Defendant(s).	)
	)

A SUIT IN QUO WARRANTO AGAINST A USURPING PUBLIC OFFICER IS NOT PROPER WHEN A PUBLIC OFFICE IS NOT INVOLVED.

Quo Warranto Not Proper When Public Office Not Involved. An action in quo warranto is not proper when a public office is not involved, and a public office is not involved when an individual does not exercise powers and perform duties for the government (Stout v. Democratic County Cent. Comm. (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 91, 94, 251 P.2d 321).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Proposed Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing form of memorandum points and authorities is for use by a proposed defendant in opposing [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3] an application for leave to sue in quo warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2] when the relator alleges the usurpation of a public office [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of application for leave to use in quo warranto and proposed complaints in quo warranto for usurpation of public office, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Quo Warranto Not Proper When Public Office Not Involved

In Stout v. Democratic County Cent. Comm. (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 91, 251 P.2d 321 , individuals elected as committee persons for a political party petitioned the Supreme Court for a writ of mandate compelling the political party to revoke its appointment of additional committee persons. In opposing the petition, the political party argued that a writ of mandate should not issue because the proper remedy for the wrong alleged was by a suit in quo warranto. The Court issued a peremptory writ of mandate as requested. The Court held that the remedy of quo warranto was not appropriate because it related to public officers in the sense of incumbents exercising sovereign powers of government and that political party committee persons were not public officers because they performed duties for a particular political party rather than the sovereign power of the public (40 Cal. 2d 91, 94) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.31

§ 199.31 Opposing Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3]--Complaint on Information and Belief

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 199.30.]

A SUIT IN QUO WARRANTO IS PROPERLY DENIED WHEN APPLICATION INCLUDES A COMPLAINT BASED SOLELY ON INFORMATION AND BELIEF.

Complaint on Information and Belief Insufficient. A complaint based solely on information and belief is not sufficient to warrant an Attorney General granting leave to sue in quo warranto in the absence of any other showing by the relator in the form of affidavits or oral testimony of any person concerning facts within his/her knowledge touching on the alleged usurpation (Lamb v. Webb (1907) 151 Cal. 451, 455-456, 91 P. 102, 91 P. 646).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Proposed Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities are for use by a proposed defendant in opposing [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3] an application for leave to sue in quo warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2] when the relator's complaint is based solely on information and belief.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of application for leave to sue in quo warranto and proposed complaints in quo warranto for usurpation of an office or franchise, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint on Information and Belief Insufficient

In Lamb v. Webb (1907) 151 Cal. 451, 91 P. 102, 91 P. 646 , the cause of action arose after a relator applied to the Attorney General for leave to sue an alleged usurper of public office in quo warranto. The purpose of the suit was to show that the relator and defendant did not tie in the election for the position of supervisor but, rather that plaintiff had won a majority of the legal votes cast. The Attorney General, after a hearing, refused to grant leave to sue to the relator. The relator applied to the governor for an order directing the Attorney General to grant leave to sue, but the governor refused to issue such an order. Thereafter, the relator petitioned for a writ of mandate to compel the Attorney General to grant leave to sue. The Attorney General, the defendant named in the petition, demurred, and the demurrer was overruled. The trial court ordered the peremptory writ as prayed for and the defendant appealed from that order. The Supreme Court held that that decision by the Attorney General on an application for leave to sue in quo warranto was a matter of discretion and that the Attorney General could be compelled to grant leave to sue by a writ of mandate only where the Attorney General had abused his or her discretion in reviewing the application (151 Cal. 451, 454) . In examining the application, the Court found that it included a verified complaint in which the relator, on information and belief, alleged that four illegal votes were cast for the defendant and that election officers had discarded votes marked for the relator plaintiff in tabulating the results of the election. No affidavits or oral testimony was offered by any person as to facts within his or her knowledge touching on the election. The Supreme Court found the complaint in quo warranto insufficient to give the Attorney General reason to believe the defendant's a usurper. Therefore, the Court reversed the judgment of the trial court and directed it to sustain the demurrer to the complaint (151 Cal. 451, 455-456) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.32

§ 199.32 Opposing Application for Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3]--Issues Previously Litigated

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 199.30.]

A SUIT IN QUO WARRANTO IS PROPERLY DENIED WHEN THE APPLICATION RAISES ISSUES PREVIOUSLY LITIGATED.

Issues Previously Litigated. Leave to sue in quo warranto may be denied when the relator's application raises the same issues which have been litigated in a previous action (36 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 317, 319 (1960)) .

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Proposed Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities are for use by a proposed defendant in opposing [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 3] an application for leave to sue in quo warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg. § 2] when the issues raised in the application have been previously litigated.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of application for leave to sue in quo warranto and proposed complaints in quo warranto for usurpation of a franchise by annexation, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Issues Previously Litigated

In 36 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 317 (1960) , two persons petitioned for a writ of mandate, a preliminary injunction, and declaratory relief in the superior court against a city to block the completion of annexation proceedings by the city. The trial court handed down a memorandum adverse to the petitioners and judgment was entered in conformity with the memorandum. The petitioners then applied to the court of appeal for a writ of supersedeas and their request was denied. The petitioners next applied to the superior court for a temporary restraining order preventing the city from passing and filing the annexation ordinance during appeal. The superior court refused to issue such an order. Thereafter, the petitioners, as relators, sought leave from the Attorney General to sue in quo warranto, claiming that their appeal had become moot by virtue of the annexation being completed. The city opposed the application, arguing that the relators had had their day in court and that the Attorney General should deny leave to sue in quo warranto on a doctrine analogous to res judicata. The Attorney General denied leave to sue in quo warranto because, with one exception, the relators' application raised the same issues litigated in the previous superior court action (36 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 317, 319) . Only one new matter was raised in the relators' application, and the Attorney General found it to be a minor tecnical defect in procedure not affecting the validity of the annexation (36 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 317, 321) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities §§ 199.33-199.39

[Reserved]

§§ 199.33[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.40

§ 199.40 1/2 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811]--Bar of Relevant Statute of Limitations [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 349.1, 349.4, 349]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____ [The People of the State of California on the Relation of] _____ [name], Plaintiff, vs. _____ [name(s)], Defendant(s).	))))))	NO. _____ POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER TO COMPLAINT IN QUO WARRANTO [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, _____ (803 or 811)]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT IN QUO WARRANTO FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT APPEARS ON THE FACE THEREOF THAT IT IS BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object, by demurrer as provided in Section 430.30 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to the complaint on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)). When any ground for objection to a complaint appears on the face thereof [or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice], the objection on that ground may be taken by a demurrer to the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)).

B. Failure to State Cause of Action. The objections that an action is barred by a statute of limitations must be deemed to be included in the ground of demurrer that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Bell v. Bank of Cal. (1908) 153 Cal. 234, 245, 94 P 889).

[OR]

C. Statute of Limitations. An action to contest the validity of acts or proceedings taken under color of law to form, organize, incorporate, dissolve, consolidate, change organization or reorganize, or to change the territorial boundaries of, a city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation or other public entity, or an improvement district within any of the foregoing, must be brought within six months from the date of completion of the acts or proceedings contested in the absence of any existing statute prescribing a shorter period of limitation (Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1).

[OR]

C. Statute of Limitations. An action to contest the validity of acts or proceedings taken under color of law either to form, organize, incorporate, or change the territorial boundaries of a city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation or other public entity, or an improvement district, annexed area, or zone within any of the foregoing or to authorize, issue, sell, or exchange bonds of the entity or territory, must be brought within 60 calendar days from the date notices are mailed by the entity or territory informing property owners within the entity or territory of the acts or proceedings (Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4).

[EITHER]

C. Statute of Limitations. An action to contest the validity of proceedings for the incorporation of a municipal corporation, the annexation of territory to a municipal corporation, or for the consolidation of municipal corporation must be brought within three months after the completion of the proceedings (*Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2).

[Optional] D. Statute Applicable to Quo Warranto Actions. Section 3491/2 of the Code of Civil Procedure is applicable to actions in quo warranto (People v. Los Angeles (1928) 93 Cal. App 532, 536, 538, 269 P 934).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint in quo warranto which is brought either by a relator with leave from the Attorney General [Code Civ. Proc. § 803] or by a board of supervisors or legislative body of a municipal corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 811] where it appears on the face of the complaint, or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice, that the action is barred by a statute of limitations.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose an application for leave to sue in quo warranto by a relator [see 11 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2, 3].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of complaint in quo warranto, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to State Cause of Action

Bell v. Bank of Cal. (1908) 153 Cal. 234, 94 P 889 was an action for the recovery of shares of stock. The defendant asserted in a general demurrer that the action was barred by a statute of limitations, and the trial court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the action. The method of asserting the defense of bar of a statute of limitations was not, apparently, an issue either in the trial court or on appeal; but the Supreme Court said that the bar of the statute of limitations is not specified as a ground of demurrer in the code, and that objection to a complaint, while required to be stated in the demurrer, must be deemed to be included within the ground of want of facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

[b] Statute Applicable to Quo Warranto Actions

In People v. Los Angeles (1928) 93 Cal. App 532, 269 P 934 , a complaint in quo warranto was brought to challenge the validity of certain proceedings taken by a municipality to annex certain territory. The municipality demurred to the complaint on the ground that the action was barred by *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2. On sustaining the demurrer, the trial court entered judgment dismissing the action, and the plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's dismissal, finding that *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 applies to all actions within which the validity of proceedings for the annexation of territory to municipal corporations, or the consolidation of municipal corporations, can be challenged (93 Cal. App 532, 536) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Applicable to Quo Warranto Actions

In 23 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 300 (1954) , two relators applied to the Attorney General for leave to sue in quo warranto to determine whether a proposed defendant city could validly exercise municipal and corporate jurisdiction over an area of land purportedly annexed by it. The relators claimed there were serious defects in the annexation proceedings by the city. On the other 1hand, the proposed defendant argued that the relators could not contest the validity of the proceedings since the provisions of *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 limited any attack on the validity of annexation proceedings to a three-month period after the completion of the annexation. The Attorney General denied the relators leave to sue in quo warranto because their objections to the annexation were not raised within three months after the completion of the annexation and affirmed the applicability of *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 to quo warranto actions (23 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 300, 300-301, 304) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.41

§ 199.41 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811]--Failure to Allege Facts Establishing Usurpation

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 199.40.]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT IN QUO WARRANTO FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT THE SPECIFIC FACTS ALLEGED THEREIN DO NOT CONSTITUTE A USURPATION.

A. Objection By Demurrer. [See § 199.40, Paragraph A.]

B. Failure to Establish Usurpation. A complaint in quo warranto is subject to a general demurrer if the specific facts stated and relied on by the pleader to show a usurpation do not state a cause of action (People v. Palm Springs (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 38, 41, 331 P.2d 4).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint in quo warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811] where the allegations in the complaint do not state a cause of action because they fail to establish a usurpation.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose an application for leave to sue in quo warranto by a relator [see 11 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2, 3].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of complaint in quo warranto, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Establish Usurpation

In People v. Palm Springs (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 38, 331 P.2d 4 , an action in quo warranto was brought to test the validity of an annexation of uninhabited territory by a city. Defendant demurred to plaintiff's complaint, which charged the invalidity of the annexation both generally and specifically. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and, thereafter, entered judgment in favor of defendant. Plaintiff appealed and the Supreme Court affirmed. The Court examined plaintiff's allegations as to why the annexation was void to determine if a cause of action for usurpation was stated. The complaint had alleged that the annexation was void because: (1) written notice of the annexation proceedings was not given to one owner of land within the territory; (2) the notice and hearing given the other landowners did not satisfy the statutory requirements; (3) protests submitted to the city council deprived it of jurisdiction to annex the territory; and (4) because the annexation was unreasonable, amounted to a fraudulent abuse of the statute, and operated to take property without due process of law. Finding that each of plaintiff's allegations was unsupported by case law, the Court concluded that the allegations did not establish the invalidity of the annexation.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.42

§ 199.42 Supporting Demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] to Complaint in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811] to Invalidate Annexation Proceedings--Annexation Proceedings Not Complete

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 199.40.]

A SUIT IN QUO WARRANTO CONTESTING ANNEXATION PROCEEDINGS IS NOT PROPER WHEN THE PROCEEDINGS ARE NOT COMPLETE.

A. Objection By Demurrer. [See § 199.40, Paragraph A.]

B. Remedy in Quo Warranto Not Mature When Annexation Proceedings Incomplete. Quo warranto is not an appropriate remedy unless annexation proceedings are completed and the municipal corporation or district is exercising control over the annexed territory (American Distilling Co. v. City Council, Sausalito (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 660, 667, 213 P.2d 704).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Defendant

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint in quo warranto brought by the Attorney General [Code Civ. Proc. § 803] or by the board of supervisors or legislative body of a municipal corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 811] where the complaint contests certain annexation proceedings, but is brought prior to the completion of such proceedings. It should be noted that the foregoing points and authorities would appear to be inapplicable to an action in quo warranto brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4 (60 days to contest annexation after notice to landowners), set out in § 199.40, Paragraph C (second alternative).

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose an application for leave to sue in quo warranto by a relator [see 11 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2, 3].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of complaint in quo warranto to challenge annexation proceedings, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Remedy in Quo Warranto Not Mature When Annexation Proceedings Incomplete

In American Distilling Co. v. City Council, Sausalito (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 660, 213 P.2d 704 , the petitioner commenced a mandate proceeding to compel the Sausalito City Council to terminate annexation proceedings with respect to certain industrial property contiguous to Sausalito. The trial court issued an alternative writ of mandate directing the city council to terminate its annexation proceedings or to show cause why it had not done so. In addition, the alternative writ directed the city council to make a finding that petitioner's protest as an owner of land within the territory to be annexed was duly made. Subsequently, the city council approved the annexation on the ground that a sufficient protest had not been presented. Counsel for the city council moved at trial for dismissal of the mandate proceedings on the ground that an annexation ordinance had been adopted and that the granting of relief would interfere with the performance of a legislative act. The motion was denied. After a hearing on the merits, the trial court declared the ordinance void and issued a peremptory writ of mandate commanding the city council to adopt a resolution setting aside the ordinance and the annexation proceedings. On appeal, the city council argued that the trial court should have exercised its discretionary power to deny the peremptory writ because the petitioner had a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy at law in quo warranto. In rejecting this argument, the Supreme Court declared that quo warranto is the appropriate remedy to question the legality of annexation proceedings only where the annexation proceedings have been completed and the municipal corporation or district is exercising control over the annexed territory. Because the remedy in quo warranto was not mature at the time relief was sought by the petitioner, a petition in mandate was proper. Therefore, the Court reasoned, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting the writ (34 Cal. 2d 660, 667) . The judgment appealed from was affirmed with the modification that the provision commanding the city council to set aside the annexation ordinance be struck.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Remedy in Quo Warranto Not Mature When Annexation Proceedings Incomplete

In Colton v. Rialto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 174, 40 Cal. Rptr. 766 , the City of Colton petitioned for a writ of mandate to declare certain annexations by the City of Rialto void. Rialto's motion to quash service was denied. In addition, Rialto demurred on the ground that the petition did not state a cause of action and that there was a nonjoinder of respondents in that the city council and city clerk of Rialto were not named in the petition. Colton thereafter filed a complaint in quo warranto alleging the same facts alleged in its petition and subsequently filed an amended petition for writ of mandate. Rialto filed a motion to dismiss the petition, alleging that mandate was not proper to review completed annexation proceedings, as well as an answer and a demurrer. The trial court found that the Rialto annexations were invalid from their inception and that the enabling ordinances passed after the proceedings in mandate had commenced were likewise invalid. Rialto appealed from the adverse judgment on the ground that quo warranto was the sole remedy to question completed annexation proceedings, such as the Rialto annexations. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment, finding that the annexation proceedings were incomplete in that Rialto had not passed its enabling ordinances in good faith and that, therefore, mandate was the proper remedy (230 Cal. App. 2d 174, 181-183) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities §§ 199.43-199.49

[Reserved]

§§ 199.43[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.50

§ 199.50 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10] in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811]--Statute of Limitations Inapplicable

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____ [The People of the State of California on the Relation of] _____ [name], Plaintiff, vs. _____ [name(s)], Defendant(s).	)))))))	NO. _____ POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO DEMURRER TO COMPLAINT IN QUO WARRANTO [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, _____ (803 or 811)]

COMPLAINT IS NOT BARRED BY STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS WHEN ANNEXATION PROCEEDINGS CONTESTED ARE NULL AND VOID FROM THE BEGINNING.

Statute of Limitations as Not Invocable to Bar Challenge of Subsequent Void Annexation Proceedings. Section 3491/2 of the Code of Civil Procedure may not be invoked as a bar to a quo warranto action brought to contest subsequent annexation proceedings which were initiated after other annexation proceedings were complete and which were, thus, null and void from the beginning (People v. Corte Madera (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 32, 37-38, 251 P.2d 988).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for _____

[Plaintiff or Relator]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer to a complaint in quo warranto [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811] where the defendant has demurred on the ground that the complaint to challenge the validity of annexation proceedings is barred by the applicable statute of limitations [*see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 349.1, 349.4, 349*1/2]. The practitioner should note that the authority cited in the foregoing form applies specifically to the statute of limitations set by *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2; the practitioner may wish to include additional authority to support the applicability of the case authority cited in the foregoing to the statute limitations raised by the defendant in the demurrer if that statute differs from *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute of Limitations as Not Invocable to Bar Challenge of Subsequent Void Annexation Proceedings

In People v. Corte Madera (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 32, 251 P.2d 988 , an action in quo warranto was instituted by the Attorney General on the relation of a private party to invalidate certain annexation proceedings by a municipal corporation. Finding that the challenged annexation proceedings had been commenced prior to those of another town and thus prevailed over the subsequent proceedings, the trial court entered judgment for the defendants. Plaintiff appealed on the ground that the quo warranto action constituted an attack on the subsequent annexation proceedings in violation of *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 and that the subsequent proceedings were valid for failure of any action contesting them within the period set forth in *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2. The defendant agreed that *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 was applicable to quo warranto actions but contended that the statute could not be used to perfect a subsequent annexation in derogation of a valid prior annexation. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of the trial court in favor of defendants. It found that, since the subsequent proceedings were null and void from their inception, the failure to contest the subsequent proceedings within the period prescribed by *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 did not validate them (115 Cal. App. 2d 32, 37-38) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities §§ 199.51-199.59

[Reserved]

§§ 199.51[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 19A Chapters 196-199 PUBLIC ENTITIES---to---QUO WARRANTO
CHAPTER 199 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. FORMS

19A-199 California Points & Authorities § 199.60

§ 199.60 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Attorney General to Grant Leave to Sue in Quo Warranto [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____ _____ _____ [name], Petitioner, vs. _____ [name], Attorney General, Respondent.	)))))))	NO. _____ POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]

LEAVE TO SUE IN QUO WARRANTO MAY BE COMPELLED BY MANDATE WHERE ATTORNEY GENERAL ABUSES DISCRETION IN REFUSING TO GRANT REQUESTED LEAVE TO SUE.

Leave to Sue as Compelled When Abuse of Discretion in Refusing Requested Leave to Sue. The court may compel by mandate that the Attorney General grant leave to sue in quo warranto when the Attorney General's abuse of discretion in refusing the requested leave to sue is extreme and clearly indefensible (Campbell v. Mosk (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 640, 648, 17 Cal. Rptr. 584).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Petitioner

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing form of memorandum of points and authorities may be used to support a petition for a writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086] compelling an Attorney General to grant leave to sue in quo warranto [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]. It should be noted, however, that although many cases have affirmed the right of a court to compel the Attorney General to grant leave to sue in quo warranto when he or she has abused his or her discretion in refusing requested leave to sue, there are no cases compelling the Attorney General to exercise his or her discretion by granting the requested leave to sue [Lamb v. Webb (1907) 151 Cal. 451, 454-455, 91 P 102 ; Campbell v. Mosk (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 640, 648, 17 Cal. Rptr. 584] .

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of application for leave to sue in quo warranto and proposed complaints in quo warranto, see Ch. 483, Quo Warranto in CALIFORNIA FORMS OF PLEADING AND PRACTICE. For forms of petition for a writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition in that set.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Leave to Sue as Compelled When Abuse of Discretion in Refusing Requested Leave to Sue

In Campbell v. Mosk (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 640, 17 Cal. Rptr. 584 , a relator applied for leave to sue in quo warranto to challenge the validity of an annexation of territory by the City of San Jose. The Attorney General granted conditional leave to sue and the relator filed its complaint accordingly. Subsequently, the Attorney General denied leave to sue on the ground that a quo warranto action would not serve the public interest and ordered the relator to dismiss the complaint. Thereafter, the relator petitioned for a writ of mandate and/or review (certiorari) to compel the Attorney General to grant the denied leave to sue. The City of San Jose and the Attorney General demurred to the petition on the grounds that it did not state a cause of action and that the petitioner lacked standing to attack the annexation. The trial court sustained the demurrers without leave to amend. The petitioner appealed from the judgment entered against it. On appeal, the Attorney General argued that a court should never compel an Attorney General to grant leave to sue in quo warranto. However, the court of appeal held that court intervention was justified and proper when the Attorney General's abuse of discretion in refusing the requested leave to sue was extreme and clearly indefensible. The court did not find a showing of such abuse in the case at hand. The court reexamined the four factors instrumental in the Attorney General's decision not to institute the quo warranto suit and declared that the Attorney General had some justification in finding that no public interest would be served by the proposed quo warranto action. Therefore, the court affirmed the judgment sustaining the demurrers (197 Cal. App. 2d 640, 648) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Leave to Sue as Compelled When Abuse of Discretion in Refusing Requested Leave to Sue

International Assn. of Fire Fighters v. City of Oakland (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 687, 220 Cal. Rptr. 256 involved consolidated appeals of the dismissal of two complaints for declaratory relief to invalidate the effectiveness of city charter amendments passed by the electorate in propositions on a city ballot. The court of appeal affirmed the judgments of dismissal, holding that each action was one that may only be brought as a quo warranto action by the Attorney General. In affirming, however, the court recognized the dangers of resting the decision of whether or not to bring such an action in the arbitrary discretion of the Attorney General. The court also recognized that the Attorney General's pivotal role in quo warranto proceedings has its origin deep in the roots of the common law. The court explained that the law on quo warranto remains murky in California, because Code Civ. Proc. § 803 provides that an action "must" be brought when the Attorney General "has reason to believe" that conditions exist warranting the bringing of the action, indicating that the decision to bring the action is within the Attorney General's discretion even when cloaked with the appearance of being mandatory. Thus, the court indicated that in a proper case when the proposed relator has an individual right distinct in kind from the right of the general public enforceable by an action in the nature of quo warranto, and when he or she has presented a proper petition with facts necessary to establish that right, the court would not hesitate to hold that mandamus would issue to correct any arbitrary, capricious, or unreasonable action by the Attorney General in his or her control of such action. In affirming the dismissal, the court then made clear that plaintiffs might be able to seek judicial review by way of mandamus, should the Attorney General fail to act on a petition by plaintiffs for leave to file a quo warranto acton (174 Cal. App. 3d 687, 693-699) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS

20-200 California Points & Authorities 200.syn

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.syn Synopsis to Chapter 200: RECEIVERS

§ 200.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 200.02 Governing Law

[1] Statutes

[a] Appointment of Receiver

[b] Administration of Receivership

[2] Rules of Court

§ 200.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 200.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[2] Related Points and Authorities

§§ 200.05-200.09 [Reserved]

§ 200.10 Supporting Motion to Appoint Receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(8), 564]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discretion of Trial Court to Appoint Receiver

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Discretion of Trial Court to Appoint Receiver

§§ 200.11-200.19 [Reserved]

§ 200.20 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Refusal to Appoint Receiver Is Largely Within Discretion of Trial Court

[b] Power to Appoint Receiver to Be Used With Caution

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Refusal to Appoint Receiver Is Largely Within Discretion of Trial Court

§ 200.21 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Complaint Fails to State Cause of Action on Which Relief Can Be Granted

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receivership Is Provisional Remedy Ancillary to Pending Action

[b] Failure of Complaint to State Cause of Action on Which Relief Can Be Granted

§ 200.22 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Less Drastic Means of Relief Are Available

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Availability of Less Drastic Relief

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Availability of Less Drastic Relief

§ 200.23 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--No Reasonably Certain Benefit to Moving Party and Distinct Disadvantage to Opposing Party

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Certain Benefit to One Party and Distinct Disadvantage to Other Party

§ 200.24 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Evidence Used to Support Appointment Is Conclusory or Based on Information and Belief

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Reply Memorandum

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Evidence Based on Conclusory Allegations and on Information and Belief Is Insufficient to Appoint Receiver

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Evidence Based on General and Conclusory Allegations and on Information and Belief Is Insufficient

§ 200.25 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Evidence Used to Support Appointment Lacks Factual Allegation of Injury

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Reply Memorandum

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Evidence Lacking Factual Allegations of Any Injury Is Insufficient to Appoint Receiver

§ 200.26 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Party Seeking Appointment Has Failed to Show by Preponderance of Evidence That Appointment Is Warranted

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Reply Memorandum

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Proof Is Preponderance of Evidence

§§ 200.27-200.39 [Reserved]

§ 200.40 Reply Memorandum Supporting Motion to Appoint Receiver--Form of Evidence Is Sufficient to Justify Appointment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Form of Evidence to Justify Appointment of Receiver

§§ 200.41-200.49 [Reserved]

§ 200.50 Supporting Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175, 3.1176]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Confirmation Hearing

[d] Modification for Use in Support of Ex Parte Application for Order to Show Cause Why Receiver Should Not Be Appointed

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[f] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Court to Appoint Receiver Ex Parte

[b] Appointment on Showing of Necessity or Emergency

[c] Appointment on Showing of Irreparable Injury

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Appointment on Showing of Necessity or Emergency

[b] Appointment on Showing of Irreparable Injury

§ 200.51 Supporting Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a), 3.1176(a), (b)]--Exercise of Discretion Governed by Circumstances at Time of Making Order

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exercise of Discretion Governed by Circumstances at Time of Making Order

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exercise of Discretion Governed by Circumstances at Time of Making Order

§§ 200.52-200.59 [Reserved]

§ 200.60 Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Receiver Should Not Be Confirmed Because of Inadequate Showing of Imperative Emergency or Necessity [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Confirmation Hearing

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment Void Absent Showing of Emergency or Necessity

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Appointment Void Absent Showing of Emergency

§ 200.61 Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Inadequate Showing of Irreparable Injury [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Confirmation Hearing

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment Void Absent Showing of Irreparable Injury

§ 200.62 Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Appointment Void for Lack of Undertaking by Party Seeking Appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment Void When Applicant Fails to Give Undertaking

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Appointment Void When Applicant Fails to Give Undertaking

§ 200.63 Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Appointment Void as to Codefendants to Whom Undertaking Does Not Run

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Undertaking Required to Run to All Defendants, and Appointment Void as to Codefendants to Whom Undertaking Does Not Run

§§ 200.64-200.69 [Reserved]

§ 200.70 Supporting Court's Own Motion to Appoint Receiver

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court May Appoint Receiver on Its Own Motion

§§ 200.71-200.79 [Reserved]

§ 200.80 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Vendor to Vacate Fraudulent Purchase of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Showing Required

[d] Related Memoranda

§§ 200.81-200.89 [Reserved]

§ 200.90 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property, Fund, or Proceeds.

[b] Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds

[c] Showing That Property Is in Danger of Destruction, Removal, or Loss

§ 200.91 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Determination of Ultimate Issue of Precise Relationship of Parties Is Not Prerequisite to Granting Motion to Appoint Receiver

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Determination of Ultimate Issue of Precise Relationship of Parties Is Not Prerequisite to Granting Motion to Appoint Receiver

§§ 200.92-200.99 [Reserved]

§ 200.100 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Between Partners

[b] Appointment on Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds

[c] Appointment on Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Between Partners

§ 200.101 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Appointment of Receiver to Wind Up Partnership Business When Surviving Partner Refuses to Do So

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Wind Up Business of Partnership When Surviving Partner Refuses to Do So

§§ 200.102-200.109 [Reserved]

§ 200.110 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Vendors and Vendees

[Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Between Vendor and Vendee

[b] Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds

[c] Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Between Vendor and Vendee

§§ 200.111-200.119 [Reserved]

§ 200.120 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Joint Venturers [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Between Joint Venturers

[b] Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds

[c] Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

§ 200.121 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed--Action Between Joint Venturers--Whether

Relationship Between Parties Is Partnership or Joint Venture Is Immaterial

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Whether Relationship Between Parties Is Partnership or Joint Venture Is Immaterial

§§ 200.122-200.129 [Reserved]

§ 200.130 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party Who Fails to Show That Property, Fund, or Proceeds Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver

§§ 200.131-200.139 [Reserved]

§ 200.140 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Show Probable Right to or Interest in Partnership Property or Funds

[b] Failure to Show That Partnership Property or Funds Are in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

§ 200.141 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Mere Fact of Partner's Request for Appointment of Receiver in Dissolution Proceeding Is Insufficient to Justify Appointment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Fact of Partner's Request for Appointment of Receiver in Dissolution Proceeding Is Insufficient to Justify Appointment

§§ 200.142-200.149 [Reserved]

§ 200.150 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Vendors and Vendees [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Failure to Show Fraud in Purchase or Interest in Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Show Fraud in Purchase or Interest in Property.

§§ 200.151-200.159 [Reserved]

§ 200.160 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Joint Venturers [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Show That Property or Funds of Joint Venture Are in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

§§ 200.161-200.169 [Reserved]

§ 200.170 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Unlawful Detainer Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unlawful Detainer Proceeding

[b] Unlawful Detainer Proceeding by Purchaser at Foreclosure Sale Against Party in Possession

§§ 200.171-200.179 [Reserved]

§ 200.180 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Secured Lender to Enforce Right to Inspect Real Property to Determine Release of Hazardous Substance [Civ. Code § 2929.5; Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§§ 200.181-200.189 [Reserved]

§ 200.190 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action for Specified Performance of Assignment of Rents Provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Related Cases

§ 200.191 Supporting Contention That Appointment of Receiver Should Continue After Entry of Judgment for Specific Performance of Assignment of Rents Provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]--Appointment May Be Continued Pending Nonjudicial Foreclosure

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 200.192 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case by Assignee Under Assignment of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(12); Civ. Code § 2938(g)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Related Cases

§§ 200.193-200.199 [Reserved]

§ 200.200 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Foreclosure Action by Secured Lender [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]--Condition of Mortgage Not Performed or Property in Danger, and Property Is Insufficient to Discharge Secured Debt

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver in Foreclosure Action

§§ 200.201-200.209 [Reserved]

§ 200.210 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Foreclosure Action by Secured Lender [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]--Property Is Sufficient to Discharge Secured Debt

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of Property to Discharge Debt.

[b] Material Injury to Property

§§ 200.211-200.219 [Reserved]

§ 200.220 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver Available When Property Is Fraudulently Transferred or Obligation Is Fraudulently Incurred

[b] Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim

§§ 200.221-200.229 [Reserved]

§ 200.230 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Creditor Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver When Property or Fund Is Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

§ 200.231 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Party in Position of General Creditor Not Entitled to Appointment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party in Position of General Creditor Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver

§§ 200.232-200.239 [Reserved]

§ 200.240 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case Involving Corporation That Is Insolvent or Has Forfeited Corporate Rights [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Modern Preference for Relief Under Corporations Code

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 200.241 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed on Dissolution of Corporation on Application of Creditor or Shareholder [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(5), 565]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Modern Preference for Relief Under Corporations Code

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§§ 200.242-200.249 [Reserved]

§ 200.250 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment to Preserve Property or Rights of Party

[b] Broad Discretion to Appoint Receiver Under Predecessor Subdivision

§ 200.251 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--Appointment of Receiver in Actions for Partition

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver in Actions for Partition

§§ 200.252-200.259 [Reserved]

§ 200.260 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--Action Is Clearly Governed by Another Subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8) When Case Is Clearly Governed by Another Subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564

§§ 200.261-200.269 [Reserved]

§ 200.270 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Attachment Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700]--Appointment Necessary to Preserve Value of Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Parties Authorized to Seek Appointment of Receiver

[d] Method of Application for Receiver

[e] Related Memoranda

§§ 200.271-200.279 [Reserved]

§ 200.280 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Carry Judgment Into Effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Carry Judgment Into Effect

§ 200.281 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Carry Judgment into Effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)]--Appointment of Receiver to Abate Public Nuisance

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Abate Public Nuisance

§§ 200.282-200.289 [Reserved]

§ 200.290 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Dispose of Property According to Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Dispose of Property According to Judgment

§§ 200.291-200.299 [Reserved]

§ 200.300 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Preserve Property During Pendency of Appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Preserve Property During Pendency of Appeal

§ 200.301 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Preserve Property During Enforcement Proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.070]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Parties Authorized to Seek Appointment of Receiver

[d] Method of Application for Receiver

§§ 200.302-200.309 [Reserved]

§ 200.310 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] 1982 Amendments to Laws Governing Enforcement of Judgments

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Enforce Judgment Under Enforcement of Judgments Law

§ 200.311 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment Is Necessary to Ensure Fair and Orderly Satisfaction of Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 200.312 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--General Form--Appointment Is Proper to Enforce Simple Money Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver as Proper to Enforce Simple Money Judgment

§ 200.313 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Court Is Not Required to Order Examination Proceedings Prior to Appointing Receiver

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Is Not Required to Order Examination Proceedings Prior to Appointing Receiver to Enforce Judgment

§§ 200.314-200.319 [Reserved]

§ 200.320 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment to Take Possession of Judgment Debtor's Interest in Alcoholic Beverage License [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment to Take Possession of Judgment Debtor's Interest in Alcoholic Beverage License

§ 200.321 [Reserved]

§ 200.322 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed--To Enforce Judgment--Judgment Debtor's Transferable Interest in General Partnership Charged With Unsatisfied Amount of Judgment Debt [Corp. Code § 16504]--Partnership Governed by Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 [Corp. Code §§ 16100-16962]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 200.323 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment to Apply Franchise Granted by Public Entity to Satisfy Money Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.920]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver

§§ 200.324-200.329 [Reserved]

§ 200.330 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment For Possession or Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 708.610-708.630, 712.060]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§§ 200.331-200.339 [Reserved]

§ 200.340 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed After Sale of Real Property Pursuant to Decree of Foreclosure [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.070]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 200.341 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Arbitrable Controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver in Connection With Arbitrable Controversy

§§ 200.342-200.349 [Reserved]

§ 200.350 Supporting Contention That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Written Consent to Appointment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Nomination of Receivers

[d] Opposing Memoranda

§ 200.351 Supporting Contention That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Waiver of Objection

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Timely Object to Appointment Constitutes Waiver of Objection

§§ 200.352-200.359 [Reserved]

§ 200.360 Opposing That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Consent Is Required

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement That All Parties Consent in Writing to Appointment of Receiver

[b] Court Is Without Jurisdiction to Appoint Receiver Absent Written Consent of Parties Filed With Clerk

§§ 200.361-200.369 [Reserved]

§ 200.370 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Functions and Powers Controlled by Statute and Court Order

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Functions and Powers of Receiver Controlled by Statute and Court Order

§ 200.371 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Enumeration of Receiver's Powers

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Functions and Powers of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 568

§ 200.372 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Court's Main Function Is to Act in Best Interest of Parties Concerned

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Functions of Court Toward Receivership Property

§ 200.373 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Enumeration of Receiver's Powers--Receiver's Management Is Under Court's Supervision and Control

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receivership Property Under Control of Court

§ 200.374 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver May Petition Court for Additional Authority or Instructions As Needed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receiver May Petition Court for Additional Authority or Instructions As Needed

§ 200.375 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver's Acts Done Without Prior Court Authorization May Be Ratified by Subsequent Approval

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receiver's Acts Done Without Prior Court Authorization May Be Ratified by Subsequent Approval

[b] Ratification Rule Is One of Common Sense

§§ 200.376-200.379 [Reserved]

§ 200.380 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver Lacks Power Beyond That Conferred by Statute or Court Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receiver Lacks Power Beyond That Conferred by Statute and Court Order

§ 200.381 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Powers Limited to Those Enumerated by Statute

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Enumerated Functions and Powers of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 568

§ 200.382 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Powers and Duties Depend on Order of Appointment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Powers and Duties Depend on Order of Appointment

§ 200.383 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--No Express Authority to Contractually Bind Property or Fund of Receivership Estate

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract of Receiver Binding Property or Fund Is Improper Without Court Approval

[b] Unauthorized Contract of Receiver Is Not Binding on Court

§§ 200.384-200.409 [Reserved]

§ 200.410 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Deposit of Securities [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1; Fin. Code §§ 1592, 30004-30006, 30200]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§§ 200.411-200.419 [Reserved]

§ 200.420 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Employment of Attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§§ 200.421-200.429 [Reserved]

§ 200.430 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Receiver to Bring and Defend Actions in Own Name as Receiver.

§§ 200.431-200.439 [Reserved]

§ 200.440 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver Must Have Special or Express Authority

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement That Receiver Have Statutory or Express Court Authority to Bring or Defend Actions

§ 200.441 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Authority to Employ Counsel Is Insufficient

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Authority of Receiver to Employ Counsel as Insufficient Authority to Bring or Defend Action

§§ 200.442-200.449 [Reserved]

§ 200.450 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Receiver to Sell Property

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Power of Receiver to Sell Property

§ 200.451 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]--Receiver's Duty to Realize Largest Possible Amount From Sale

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty of Receiver to Realize Largest Possible Amount From Sale of Property

§ 200.452 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]--Court Has Power to Change Manner of Sale in Court's Custody

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court as Empowered to Change Manner of Sale of Property in Its Custody

§§ 200.453-200.459 [Reserved]

§ 200.460 Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court Has Power to Confirm Sale

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Court to Confirm Receiver's Sale of Property

§ 200.461 Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court Has Wide Discretion in Confirming Sale

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Wide Discretion of Court in Confirming Receiver's Sale of Property

§ 200.462 Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court May Confirm Sale Conducted in Mode Other Than That Provided for by Statute or Court Order

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Court to Confirm Receiver's Sale of Property Conducted in Mode Other Than That Provided for by Statute or Court Order

§§ 200.463-200.469 [Reserved]

§ 200.470 Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Confirmation of Fraudulent, Unfair, or Oppressive Sale Is Improper

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Confirmation of Fraudulent, Unfair, or Oppressive Sale as Improper

§ 200.471 Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Receiver Has Failed to Establish Necessity for Sale

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receiver Required to Establish Necessity for Sale

§ 200.472 Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Receiver Has Breached His or Her Duty to Obtain Best Possible Bargain on Sale

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty of Court to Obtain Best Bargain Possible on Sale of Property

§§ 200.473-200.479 [Reserved]

§ 200.480 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Payment of Unclaimed Funds Into State Treasury by Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 570]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Payment of Unclaimed Funds Into State Treasury by Receiver

[b] Payment of Notice Publication Costs

§ 200.481 Supporting Contention That Receiver Has the Authority to Borrow Money to Fund the Receivership Estate and to Issue Receivership Certificates

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Receiver to Borrow Money and Issue Receivership Certificates

Robert Kaplan
Editorial Consultant n*

FOOTNOTES:
(n14)Footnote *. Robert Kaplan is a partner at Frandzel & Share, in San Francisco, California, and specializes in receivership law and creditors' rights.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.01

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda of points and authorities relating to the appointment of a receiver and administration of receivership.

Part II, Subpart A, relating to proceedings to appoint a receiver generally includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing motions to appoint receivers (see § 200.10 et seq.).
- Supporting and opposing confirmation of ex parte appointments of receivers (see § 200.50 et seq.).
- Supporting court's own motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.70 et seq.).

Part II, Subpart B, relating to appointment of receiver in specified actions, includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting the contention that a receiver should be appointed in a vendor's action to vacate a fraudulent purchase (see § 200.80).
- Supporting and opposing the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action between joint owners of property or fund (see § 200.90 et seq.).
- Supporting the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an unlawful detainer action (see § 200.170).
- Supporting the contention that a receiver should be appointed in a secured lender's action to enter and inspect property for the release of a hazardous substance (see § 200.180 et seq.).
- Supporting the contention that a receiver should be appointed in a case involving assignment of leases, rents, issues, or profits (see § 200.190 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing the contention that a receiver should be appointed in a foreclosure action by a secured lender (see § 200.200 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing the contention that a receiver should be appointed in a creditor's action to subject the property or fund to a creditor's claim (see § 200.220 et seq.).

- Supporting the contention that a receiver should be appointed in a case involving a corporations that is dissolved, insolvent, or has forfeited corporate rights (see § 200.240 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing the contention that a receiver should be appointed in cases under usages of equity (see § 200.250 et seq.).

Part II, Subpart C, relates to the appointment of a receiver in specified proceedings, and includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting the contention that a receiver should be appointed in attachment proceedings (see § 200.270).

- Supporting the contention that a receiver should be appointed in post judgment proceedings (see § 200.280 et seq.).

Part II, Subpart D, relates to the eligibility of receivers, and includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing the contention that a party, party's attorney, person interested in the action, or relative of the judgment should be appointed a receiver (see § 200.350 et seq.).

Part II, Subpart E, relates to administration of receiverships, and includes the following types of forms:

- Supporting and opposing the contention that a receiver is properly exercising his or her powers in general (see § 200.370 et seq.).

- Supporting the contention that a receiver is properly exercising his or her powers in the deposit of securities (see § 200.410).

- Supporting the contention that a receiver is properly exercising his or her powers in the employment of an attorney (see § 200.420).

- Supporting and opposing the contention that a receiver is properly exercising his or her powers in the commencement and defense of actions (see § 200.430 et seq.).

- Supporting and opposing the contention that a receiver is properly exercising his or her powers in the sale of property (see § 200.450 et seq.).

- Supporting the contention that a receiver is properly exercising his or her powers in the payment of unclaimed funds into the state treasury (see § 200.480).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.02

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.02 Governing Law

[1] Statutes

[a] Appointment of Receiver

Code Civ. Proc. § 564 is the principal statute governing the appointment of receivers both while an action is pending and after judgment. Authority for the appointment of receivers pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 564 in a limited civil case is contained Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8).

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), a receiver may be appointed in various actions on the application of any party whose right to or interest in the subject property or fund is probable and when it is shown that the property or fund is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2), a receiver may be appointed in an action by a secured lender for the foreclosure of the deed of trust or mortgage and sale of the property on which there is a lien under a deed of trust or mortgage, when it appears that the property is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, or that the condition of the deed of trust or mortgage has not been performed and that the property is probably insufficient to discharge the deed of trust or mortgage debt.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3), a receiver may be appointed after judgment to carry the judgment into effect. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4), a receiver may be appointed after judgment:

- To dispose of property according to the judgment,
- To preserve property during the pendency of an appeal,
- Pursuant to the Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq.), or

- After the sale of real property pursuant to a decree of foreclosure, during the redemption period, to collect, expend, and disburse rents as directed by the court or otherwise provided by law.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(5), a receiver may be appointed when a corporation has been dissolved, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 565.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6), a receiver may be appointed when a corporation is insolvent, is in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7), a receiver may be appointed in an action of unlawful detainer.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), a receiver may be appointed at the request of the Public Utilities Commission, pursuant to Pub. Util. Code § 855, which provides for the appointment of a receiver to take possession of the property of, and to operate, a water or sewer system corporation under specified circumstances.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), a receiver may also be appointed at the request of the Public Utilities Commission, pursuant to Pub. Util. Code § 5259.5, which provides for the appointment of a receiver to identify stored items of property, take possession of property, return property to an owner or owners, and/or manage the business of a household goods carrier or carriers, whenever the commission determines that any household goods carrier or any officer, director, or agent of a household goods carrier has abandoned, or is abandoning stored household goods or property of any shippers under contract with the carrier or carriers.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(10), a receiver may be appointed at the request of the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development, or the Attorney General, pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 129173. Section 129173 provides for the appointment of a receiver for a borrower (or the borrower's assets) when the borrower may be unable to fulfill its obligations under an insured loan transaction that is subject to the California Health Facility Construction Loan Insurance Law [Health & Safety Code § 129125 et seq.].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11), a receiver may be appointed in an action by a secured lender for specified performance of an assignment of rents provision in a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document, and in addition, the appointment may be continued after entry of judgment for specific performance in that action if appropriate to protect, operate, or maintain real property encumbered by the deed of trust or mortgage, or to collect the rents, while a pending nonjudicial foreclosure under power of sale in the deed of trust or mortgage is being completed.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(12), a receiver may be appointed in a case brought by an assignee under an assignment of leases, rents, issues, or profits pursuant to Civ. Code § 2938(g).

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), a receiver may be appointed in all other cases when necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c), a receiver may be appointed in an action brought by a secured lender under Civ. Code § 2929.5 to obtain entry and an inspection of the real property security when there is reason to believe there has been or will be a release of a hazardous substance to or from the real property.

Code Civ. Proc. § 565 governs the appointment of a receiver on the dissolution of a corporation.

Various other statutes govern the appointment of receivers in specific instances. For example:

Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B) governs the appointment of a receiver in an action for relief against a transfer or obligation under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (Civ. Code § 3439 et seq.).

Fam. Code § 290 governs the appointment of a receiver to enforce a judgment, order, or decree of the court under the Family Code.

Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700 provides for the appointment of a receiver in attachment proceedings.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1422 provides for the appointment of a receiver in escheat actions by the attorney general, and Gov. Code § 12527 provides for the appointment of a receiver to take possession of property unlawfully derived in an action by the attorney general in the name of the people of the State of California.

Corp. Code §§ 6216, 6511, 6513, 8216, 8511, and 8513 govern the appointment of receivers in actions by the attorney general against corporations. Fin. Code § 8250 governs the appointment of receivers by the Savings and Loan Commissioner for savings associations under specified circumstances.

Health & Safety Code § 1325 governs the appointment of receivers by the State Department of Health Services to manage long-term health care facilities.

Ins. Code §§ 11093, 11095-11096, and 11106 govern the appointment of receivers of domestic fraternal benefit societies in actions by the attorney general against those societies.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(7), an order of a superior court appointing a receiver, other than in a limited civil case, is appealable to the court of appeal. An order appointing a receiver in a limited civil case is appealable to the appellate division of the superior court under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2(h).

[b] Administration of Receivership

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 566-570 are the principal statutes governing the administration of receivership and the powers and duties of receivers. Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a) establishes eligibility requirements for the appointment of receivers. Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b) requires the posting of an undertaking by a receiver appointed ex parte. Code Civ. Proc. § 567(a) requires a receiver to take an oath to perform his or her duties faithfully. Code Civ. Proc. § 567(b) requires the receiver to give an undertaking to the state of California, to the effect that the receiver will faithfully discharge the duties of receiver in the action and obey the orders of the court and allows the receiver the cost of the undertaking. Code Civ. Proc. § 568 governs the power of the receiver to bring and defend actions in his or her own name, to take and keep possession of the receivership property, to receive rents, to collect debts, to compound for and compromise debts, to make transfers, and generally to do any acts respecting the property that are authorized by the court. Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1 governs the power of the receiver to deposit securities. Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 governs the power of the receiver to sell property, subject to court confirmation. Code Civ. Proc. § 569 governs the power of the receiver to deposit funds. Code Civ. Proc. § 570 requires the receiver to pay unclaimed funds into the State Treasury.

Various other statutes govern the powers and duties of receivers. For example:

Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 governs the priority of claims against property turned over to a receiver for the benefit of creditors.

Fin. Code §§ 8251-8254 govern the administration of a receivership when the Savings and Loan Commissioner has appointed a receiver of a savings and loan association.

Gov. Code § 6860 provides that farm loan bonds are acceptable investments of receivership funds.

Health & Safety Code §§ 1326-1335 govern the administration of a receivership when the State Department of Health Services has appointed a receiver to manage a long-term health care facility.

[2] Rules of Court

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175, governs the application procedure for obtaining an ex parte order appointing a receiver.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176, governs the confirmation by the court of its ex parte order appointing a receiver. In particular, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b) requires that the following papers be served on all adverse parties as soon as reasonably practical, but no later than 5 days after the date on which the order to show cause is issued, unless the court orders another time for service:

- A copy of the complaint if not previously served.
- The order to show cause stating the date, time, and place of the hearing.
- Any affidavits supporting the application.
- A memorandum supporting the application.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177, governs the procedure for nomination of one or more persons for appointment or substitution as receiver.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180, governs the application procedure for the receiver's employment of counsel.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1179 recites the neutral status of a receiver and prohibits specified contracts and agreements between a receiver or potential receiver and the party seeking appointment of the receiver. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1181, governs the procedure for the receiver's filing of initial and supplementary inventories with the court of all property of which the receiver has taken possession by virtue of appointment. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1182 governs a receiver's monthly reports to the parties, and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1183 governs interim fees and objections to interim accounts and reports. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1184, governs the procedure for settling the receiver's account.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.03

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting memoranda must not exceed 15 pages (20 in a summary adjudication proceeding). Exhibits, declarations, attachments, a table of contents, a table of authorities, and the proof of service are not included in the page limitation. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages [Cal. Rulesof Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.04.

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms included in this chapter are designed to be combined with other memoranda to form a complete memorandum. For a detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.03 et seq.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.04

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For detailed legal background discussion, research guides, procedural checklists, and practice forms of motions and other papers relating to the appointment of receivers and administration of receiverships, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender). For forms of complaints for use in actions in which a receiver might be appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), see the appropriate title in that publication, for example:

- Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.
- Ch. 160, Corporations, Pt. X.
- Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement: General Enforcement Principles and Remedies, §§ 258.70 et seq., 258.120 et seq.
- Ch. 270, Fraudulent Conveyances.
- Ch. 303, Injunctions.
- Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions.
- Ch. 482, Quieting Title.
- Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages.

Other related chapters in that publication include the following:

- Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances (receivership as basis for quasi-in-rem jurisdiction).

- Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings (undertaking on appointment of receiver pendente lite).

[2] Related Points and Authorities

- For memoranda relating to actions involving accountings generally, see Ch. 12, Accounting .

- For memoranda relating to actions involving attachment generally, see Ch. 23, Attachment .

- For memoranda relating to actions involving corporations generally, see Ch. 52, Corporations .

- For memoranda relating to actions involving injunctions generally, see Ch. 116, Injunctions .

- For memoranda relating to actions involving joint venturers generally, see Ch. 170, Partnerships and Joint Ventures .

- For memoranda relating to actions involving trust deeds and mortgages generally, see Ch. 230, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

- For memoranda relating to unlawful detainer actions generally, see Ch. 236, Unlawful Detainer .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.05-200.09

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.05[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.10

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.10 Supporting Motion to Appoint Receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(8), 564]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Appoint Receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(8), 564]--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name]	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTSAND AUTHORIT-Plaintiff,	)	IES SUPPORTING MOTION TO APPOINT RE-
vs.	)	CEIVER
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE COURT HAS JURISDICTION TO MAKE THE APPOINTMENT AND SHOULD EXERCISE ITS DISCRETION TO MAKE THE APPOINTMENT AFTER CONSIDERATION OF THE EVIDENCE.

[EITHER if unlimited civil case]

A. Jurisdiction of Court. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending in any case in which the court is empowered by law to appoint a receiver (Code Civ. Proc. § 564).

[OR if limited civil case]

A. Jurisdiction of Court. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding, including a limited civil case, is pending in any case in which the court is empowered by law to appoint a receiver (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(8), 564).

B. Discretion of Trial Court to Appoint Receiver. The appointment of a receiver rests largely in the discretion of the trial court; its action in appointing a receiver will not be disturbed in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion (Goes v. Perry (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 373, 381, 115 P.2d 441 ; City and County of San Francisco v. Daley (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256).

[Add points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for the appointment of a receiver (see, e.g., §§ 200.80 et seq., 200.270 et seq., and 200.350 et seq.).]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver. They set forth the grounds that the court has jurisdiction to make the appointment, and that the court should exercise its discretion to make the appointment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175-3.1177].

This is a general form that should be combined with memoranda that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for the appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., §§ 200.80 et seq., 200.270 et seq., and 200.350 et seq.].

This memorandum may be combined with memoranda contending that the form of evidence is sufficient to justify appointment [see § 200.40[1]].

In addition, this memoranda may be adapted for use:

- In supporting the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- In a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- As allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that theappointment of a receiver is within the trial court's discretion under the particular facts of the case. For memoranda supporting the exercise of the trial court's discretion in appointing a receiver, see §§ 200.80 et seq., 200.270 et seq., and 200.350 et seq. For example, in an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations and affidavits submitted in support of, or even in opposition to, the appointment [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For related legal background, research and procedural checklists, and forms, including a form of notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver and general form of allegations and prayer in a complaint seeking the appointment of a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 200.20 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discretion of Trial Court to Appoint Receiver

Goes v. Perry (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 373, 115 P.2d 441 , was an action by plaintiff for claim and delivery to recover furniture and fixtures located in a building on property that plaintiff purchased at a trustee's sale. Intervenor subsequently intervened in the action, claiming that the money used to purchase the property was wrongfully appropriated from a trust fund belonging to her and her co-owners of the real property on which the building was located. By her complaint in intervention, intervenor sought to impose a trust on the property, in favor of herself and her co-owners, and to obtain a receiver of the personalty. Based on her complaint and a supporting affidavit, the trial court issued an ex parte order appointing a receiver of the personalty. Defendant appealed the order, contending it could not be sustained, because neither the complaint in intervention nor the supporting affidavit alleged facts entitling intervenor to the appointment.

The Supreme Court initially noted that the trial court had appointed a receiver of the real property and the building prior to intervenor's intervention, and that the order appointing that receiver was affirmed in the related case of Baumann v. Bedford (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 366, 372, 115 P.2d 437 . The Court then affirmed the trial court's order appointing the receiver in the instant action, holding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in making the appointment (18 Cal. 2d 373, 382) . The Court held that the appointment of a receiver rests largely in the discretion of the trial court and that the trial court's action in appointing a receiver will not be disturbed by an appellate court in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion (18 Cal. 2d 373, 381) . The Court noted the extended period of bitter litigation between parties holding conflicting interests in the property and in security devices financing the property, and the fact that the owners of the security devices had received nothing on the principal of their investments in the property. Additionally, the Court noted that to remove the furniture and fixtures allegedly purchased with funds that respondent claimed were misappropriated from her would impair the value of the building as well as lessen, if not destroy, the income from the real property. The Court found that these facts supported the trial court's decision to place the property under the receiver's management until the conclusion of the litigation (18 Cal. 2d 373, 382) .

In City and County of San Francisco v. Daley (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 , the city and county brought suit against defendants to abate a public nuisance based on the hazardous condition of their single-family residence. After extended proceedings, the plaintiff moved for appointment of a receiver to make the repairs. The court granted the motion, citing three years of noncompliance. The receiver's powers were "to make necessary repairs and alterations to bring the property into full compliance with the San Francisco Municipal Code." The court's order granted the receiver the power to "undertake, to employ and to enter, into contracts with persons and services as necessary to repair the Property." The receiver was also ordered to "conduct a study of the estimated cost of repairs and report to the court on the feasibility of rehabilitation prior to beginning such repairs." One of the defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court held that the trial court had the power to appoint a receiver in this situation under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3), which allows appointment after judgment, in order to carry a judgment into effect, and that this power applied in abatement proceedings (16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 742-743) . The court then stated that the rule is established that the appointment of a receiver rests largely in the discretion of the trial court and that its action in appointing a receiver (or in refusing to do so) will not be disturbed in the absence of a showing that the court's discretion has been abused (16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 744) . The court then concluded that the trial court had not abused its discretion, rejecting three arguments made by the defendant. First, although appointment of a receiver is a drastic remedy, the procedural history of the case demonstrated clearly that this was an exceptional case warranting appointment of a receiver. Second, the trial court did not abuse its discretion by failing to consider options short of receivership. The court noted that the existence of such options does not in itself preclude appointment of a receiver; their availability and efficacy must be considered, and that the defendant's contention was utterly unsupported by the record. Finally, the court held that the order was not overbroad in the repairs it authorized the receiver to address (16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 742-746) . After further finding that the trial court had accorded defendant a fair hearing on the appointment of a receiver, the court of appeal affirmed the appointment (16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 746-747) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Discretion of Trial Court to Appoint Receiver

Breedlove v. Breedlove Excavating Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 141, 132 P.2d 239 , was an action for an accounting involving a partnership, in which plaintiff claimed that he was deprived of his right to share in the profits of the business. After noticed motion and hearing, plaintiff obtained the appointment of a receiver to take charge of certain books and funds of both the partnership and the individual defendants, and to conduct certain functions of defendant partnership. The order appointing the receiver was then stayed pending appeal when the action went to trial. However, because the trial judge died before a decision was rendered, the action ended in a mistrial. Defendants then appealed the order appointing the receiver, contending that plaintiff was not a partner in the business and therefore had no right to interfere with its conduct, to seek an accounting, or to have a receiver administer and guard the funds and property.

The court of appeal affirmed the order, finding that the order appointing the receiver to keep the property and funds intact pending the outcome of the trial was within the scope of the trial court's constitutional discretion. The court noted that because the parties' contentions were fortified by persuasive and sufficient affidavits, whatever position the trial court took would be amply supported (56 Cal. App. 2d 141, 144) . The court held it both elementary and controlling that the question of the appointment of a receiver is one commonly addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, to be exercised on the basis of all the facts before it. Thus, when it is found, based on conflicting evidence, that danger is threatened to property or funds, and the appointment of a receiver is made, the reviewing court will seldom hold that the lower tribunal has been guilty of an abuse of discretion. Indeed, the discretion of the trial court is so broad that an appellate tribunal will interfere with its exercise only in those cases when the trial court has arbitrarily exercised its power (56 Cal. App. 2d 141, 143) .

In Venza v. Venza (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 211 P.2d 913 (discussed in § 200.70[3]), an action by plaintiff, a divorcee, against defendants, including her former husband, to establish her community interest in a cannery operated by defendants, defendants appealed the trial court's appointment of a receiver of the business pending conclusion of the litigation. Quoting from Goes v. Perry (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 373, 381, 115 P.2d 441 (discussed in § 200.10[3][a]), the court of appeal affirmed the order appointing the receiver, holding the rule well established that the appointment of a receiver rests largely in the discretion of the trial court, and that its action in appointing a receiver will not be disturbed by an appellate court in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion (94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 883) . The court of appeal upheld the trial court's order even though the trial court issued the order on its own motion and even though the order was broader in scope than that originally suggested by the court to the parties (94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 882-884) .

56 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.11-200.19

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.11[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.20

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.20 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--General Form

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____ _____

_____ [name]	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
vs.	)	IES OPPOSING MOTION TO APPOINT RECEIV-
_____ [name],	)	ER
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE AN APPOINTMENT WOULD BE AN ABUSE OF DISCRETION, IN THAT IT WILL RESULT IN AN INJURY GREATER THAN THAT SOUGHT TO BE AVERTED BY THE APPOINTMENT.

A. Refusal to Appoint Receiver Is Largely Within Discretion of Trial Court. The refusal to appoint a receiver rests largely within the discretion of the trial court, and its refusal of an application for the appointment of a receiver will not be disturbed on appeal in the absence of a clear showing that the court has abused its discretion (Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280 ; Elson v. Nyhan (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-5, 113 P.2d 474).

B. Power to Appoint Receiver to Be Used With Caution. The power to appoint a receiver is a delicate one, to be exercised with caution lest the injury caused by the appointment be greater than the injury sought to be averted (Cohen v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495, 8 Cal. Rptr. 922 ; Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App 233, 238, 133 P. 1155).

[Add points and authorities, as necessary, setting forth additional procedural grounds §§ 200.21 et seq., as well as substantive grounds (see e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260), in opposition to the appointment of a receiver.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion to a appoint a receiver and that a court should exercise its discretion to make the appointment. They are general procedural points related to the law of receivership and designed for use in opposition to the appointment of a receiver, regardless of the substantive law of the action in which they are raised.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.10[1].

This general form of points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for opposing appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260].

These points and authorities may be modified for use in opposing the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see §§ 200.60 et seq.]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing that the appointment of the receiver would be a clear abuse of the court's discretion. See also the comments in § 200.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to appoint receiver, legal background, research guide, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Refusal to Appoint Receiver Is Largely Within Discretion of Trial Court

In Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280 , plaintiffs brought a stockholders' derivative action against defendants, a corporation and its directors. Alleging fraud and abuse of authority and discretion on the part of the board, plaintiffs sought the removal of the board, the installation of a new board, a permanent prohibition against defendant directors from ever holding office in the corporation, and the appointment of a receiver of the assets of the corporation during litigation. The trial court sustained, without leave to amend, general demurrers of 13 defendants to plaintiffs' fifth amended and supplemental complaint, denied plaintiffs' application for the appointment of the receiver, and sustained, with leave to amend, the general demurrer of the three remaining defendants to the fifth amended and supplemental complaint. The court subsequently entered judgment for the 13 defendants and, after plaintiffs failed to amend the complaint within the time allowed, dismissed the action against the remaining three defendants. Plaintiffs appealed from the judgment for the 13 defendants and from the order dismissing the action against the remaining three defendants.

The court of appeal sustained the judgment and order of the trial court, holding that plaintiffs failed to state a cause of action against all defendants. In so ruling, the court expressly affirmed the trial court's refusal to appoint a receiver and held that in the absence of a clear showing of an abuse of discretion, the trial court's order appointing or refusing to appoint a receiver will be upheld. Because the complaint failed to state a cause of action on which the ancillary relief of receivership could be based, and because there exists no separate cause of action for the appointment of a receiver, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to order appointment of the receiver (203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261) .

In Elson v. Nyhan (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 113 P.2d 474 , plaintiff recovered a money judgment in a personal injury action against defendants. Plaintiff then assigned her judgment to appellant. When execution on the money judgment was returned unsatisfied, appellant petitioned the trial court for the appointment of a receiver in aid of execution in order to satisfy the judgment by selling five taxicab licenses issued to defendants by the San Francisco Police Commission. After notice and hearing, the trial court denied the petition, and appellant then appealed from the order of denial.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order denying appellant's petition for the appointment of a receiver (45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5) . At the outset, the court noted that although the case involved a number of issues, the appeal could be decided on the sole ground of the trial court's discretionary power to deny the petition for the appointment of a receiver (45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 2) . The court held that under the circumstances as they appeared in the record, it was unable to say the trial court abused its discretion in refusing to make the appointment (45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5) . The court based its ruling on the trial court's determination that because sale of the licenses required the police commission's approval, the appointment of the receiver would be an idle act, since the commission would not recognize the transfer of the licenses at a receiver's sale in light of its policy of refusing to recognize involuntary transfers of taxicab licenses (45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4) . The court reiterated the established rule that the appointment of, or the refusal to appoint, a receiver rests largely in the discretion of the trial court and that its action in appointing a receiver or refusing to appoint a receiver will not be disturbed in the absence of a showing that the court's discretion has been abused (45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-5) .

[b] Power to Appoint Receiver to Be Used With Caution

In Cohen v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 488, 8 Cal. Rptr. 922 , plaintiffs brought an action against defendants, one of whom was a limited partner of plaintiffs and both of whom were general partners of each other. The complaint alleged that the limited partner defendant had made various improper charges against partnership accounts, and had commingled assets and liabilities of the partnership with other entities under his control and failed to account. It also alleged that both defendants, as general partners, had charged numerous personal living and traveling expenses to the partnership. Plaintiffs sought an accounting, declaratory relief, damages, and the appointment of a receiver of the partnership. Subsequently, plaintiffs obtained an order against defendants to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed. At the hearing on the order, the trial court denied defendants' request for a continuance of one week and ordered the appointment of the receiver to take possession of all the property and assets of the partnership and to operate the partnership. It also enjoined defendants from interfering with the operation or control of the receiver or his actions. Furthermore, it required defendants to deliver any property or assets of the limited partnership in their possession to the receiver. Defendants appealed from the order appointing the receiver and from the orders denying their motions for a continuance of the hearing on the receiver's appointment.

The court of appeal noted initially that the orders denying the continuance were not appealable and dismissed that appeal, holding them to be reviewable on the appeal from the order appointing the receiver (186 Cal. App. 2d 488, 490) . The court then reversed the order appointing the receiver, finding a clear abuse of discretion on the part of the trial court in denying the motions for continuance. The court did not rule on defendants' contention that plaintiffs' showing was insufficient to warrant the appointment, nor did it imply that it deemed the showing to be sufficient (186 Cal. App. 2d 488, 496) . However, in reversing the trial court, the court of appeal held the power of a court to appoint a receiver a delicate one, to be exercised with caution lest injury be done to the parties and their properties. The remedy is an extraordinary and harsh one. Thus, courts should grant reasonable time to parties to prepare for a hearing on an application for the appointment of a receiver, since such a serious matter should not be made without a full and complete hearing unless the due administration of justice clearly requires it. The court found defendants' showing most persuasive, finding nothing in the record showing a lack of diligence or good faith on their parts (186 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495) .

In Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App 233, 133 P. 1155 , plaintiff corporation sought to quiet title to and impose a constructive trust on two parcels of real property, one parcel of which was oil-producing and leased to defendant corporation, and the other parcel of which was undeveloped and unproved oil land owned by defendant corporation. Additionally, plaintiff sought to void the deed transferring one of the parcels to defendant. Plaintiff also sought an accounting from all defendants, individual and corporate. After filing the complaint, plaintiff moved the court for the appointment of a receiver of all of the property and for an injunction enjoining defendants from operating the property. After hearing, the trial court issued an order appointing a receiver to take possession of the net proceeds of the sale of oil produced on the property. The court's order included a provision that defendants, together with any other persons or firms holding any proceeds of the property, surrender to the receiver all proceeds of the property. Defendants appealed from the order of the trial court appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order appointing the receiver. The court held it an abuse of the trial court's discretion to appoint a receiver when the purpose sought by the appointment could be accomplished and the rights of the parties more adequately protected by the granting of an injunction (22 Cal. App 233, 239) . The court ruled that the power to appoint a receiver is a delicate one and should be exercised with caution, lest the injury caused by the appointment be greater than the injury sought to be averted (22 Cal. App 233, 238) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Refusal to Appoint Receiver Is Largely Within Discretion of Trial Court

In Stevens v. Torregano (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 13 Cal. Rptr. 604 , an action to impose a constructive trust on certain assets of a decedent's estate, plaintiff appealed from the trial court's judgment dismissing her first cause of action and its order, contained therein, refusing to appoint a receiver. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment and its refusal to appoint the receiver, holding that the appointment of the receiver was within the court's discretion and noting that the trial court, having determined that plaintiff was entitled to no relief on her first cause of action, properly denied the interim relief sought on that cause of action (192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 111) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.21

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.21 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Complaint Fails to State Cause of Action on Which Relief Can Be Granted

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Complaint Fails to State Cause of Action on Which Relief Can Be Granted

[This form should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20) or a memorandum opposing an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE AN APPOINTMENT WOULD BE AN ABUSE OF DISCRETION, IN THAT THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION ON WHICH RELIEF, TO WHICH RECEIVERSHIP IS ANCILLARY, CAN BE GRANTED.

A. Receivership Is Provisional Remedy Ancillary to Pending Action. Statutes authorizing the appointment of receivers do not create substantive rights of action to appoint receivers. There is, therefore, no such thing as an action brought distinctively for the mere appointment of a receiver, and an appointment, when made, is ancillary to the action brought (Murray v. Superior Court (1900) 129 Cal. 628, 632, 62 P. 191 ; French Bank Case (1879) 53 Cal. 495, 552, 553) .

B. Failure of Complaint to State Cause of Action on Which Relief Can Be Granted. When a complaint fails to state a cause of action such that it asks for no affirmative relief to which a receivership is incidental, an order appointing a receiver has no validity (Frick v. Calmin Mortgage Corp., Ltd. (1934) 220 Cal. 746, 748, 32 P.2d 619 ; Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should appoint a receiver on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action that supports the appointment of a receiver.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in see § 200.10[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver [see § 200.20[1]]. These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a memorandum opposing the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60 et seq.]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing that the moving party's complaint fails to state a cause of action for relief other than the appointment of a receiver. See also the comments in § 200.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to appoint receiver, legal background, research guide, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receivership Is Provisional Remedy Ancillary to Pending Action

In Murray v. Superior Court (1900) 129 Cal. 628, 62 P. 191 , plaintiff, a real party in interest, brought an action against defendant life insurance corporation, also a real party in interest, alleging that the corporation's liabilities exceeded its assets, that the corporation had ceased to issue insurance policies and to carry on the business for which it was organized, and that, unless the court took charge of the corporation's assets, the assets would be consumed in expenses and there would be nothing left with which to pay death claims due to policy holders. Plaintiff prayed that the directors be enjoined from paying out corporate funds and from interfering with or transacting corporate business. Plaintiff also prayed for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of all funds and properties, to collect all dues, and to receive and pay creditors' claims. The trial court granted plaintiff the relief sought and ordered the appointment of a receiver to take charge of all the funds, property, and assets of the corporation. Petitioner subsequently obtained a judgment against real-party-in-interest corporation and attempted to levy on the funds, credits, and personal property under the receiver's control. When these attempts failed, petitioner sought a writ of prohibition from the Supreme Court to prevent the trial court from enforcing its order appointing the receiver.

The Supreme Court issued a peremptory writ of prohibition to the trial court, finding that the trial court did not have jurisdiction to appoint the receiver (129 Cal. 628, 630-631, 635) . The Court noted that the purpose of plaintiff's action was to take the assets and business of the corporation out of the hands of the directors and turn them over to a stranger. Quoting from the French Bank Case (1879) 53 Cal. 495, 552, 553 (discussed below), the Court held that there is no such thing as an action brought distinctively for the mere appointment of a receiver. The appointment, when made, is ancillary to or in aid of an action, and the authority conferred on a court to make the appointment necessarily presupposes that an action is pending before it, instituted by someone authorized by law to commence it (129 Cal. 628, 632) . The Court noted that the trial court did not possess the power, under the facts stated in the complaint, to take the property from the corporation and turn it over to the hands of a third party when the corporation had not been dissolved or judged insolvent, when there were no allegations of fraud or mismanagement on the part of the directors, and when plaintiff's complaint did not seek the removal of the directors (129 Cal. 628, 631) .

In the French Bank Case (1879) 53 Cal. 495 , plaintiff depositor brought an action against defendant corporate thrift institution for payment for legal services rendered. In addition to a money judgment, plaintiff sought orders declaring the corporation insolvent, dissolving the corporation, and appointing a receiver to take charge of and wind up the affairs of the corporation. The trial court granted plaintiff's prayer for appointment of a receiver and appointed a receiver to take charge of the corporation, to take possession of all corporate assets, and to do everything necessary to protect the rights of its creditors and depositors. The corporation appealed from the trial court's order appointing the receiver.

The Supreme Court reversed, holding the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in issuing the order, because plaintiff's complaint failed to state a cause of action on which relief could be granted 53 Cal. 495, 553-554) . The Court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 564, the statute on which plaintiff based his action and which authorizes the appointment of receivers, does not create substantive rights of action when none existed before. Its aim is simply to provide a more efficacious remedy for causes of action that already exist and are provided for elsewhere. Its purpose is to preserve the property pending litigation so that the relief awarded by the judgment, if any, may be effective. Therefore, there is no such thing as an action brought distinctively for the appointment of a receiver. An appointment, when made, is ancillary to or in aid of the action brought, and the authority conferred on the court to make the appointment necessarily presupposes that an action is pending before it, instituted by someone authorized by law to commence it (53 Cal. 495, 552-553) . The Court found that there was no statute that confers on a private person, either as stockholder or creditor, the right to maintain an action to dissolve a corporation on the ground that it is insolvent, or to obtain relief by seizing its property from its constituted management and placing it in the hands of a receiver (53 Cal. 495, 553) . Furthermore, the Court found no inherent equitable power by which the trial court could effectively dissolve the corporation by appointing the receiver when the power of the receiver, once put in motion, would necessarily supersede the corporate power (53 Cal. 495, 550-551) .

[b] Failure of Complaint to State Cause of Action on Which Relief Can Be Granted

In Frick v. Calmin Mortgage Corp., Ltd. (1934) 220 Cal. 746, 32 P.2d 619 , plaintiffs, a judgment creditor and two stockholders of defendant corporation, filed a complaint in the nature of a creditors' bill to collect on the judgment creditor's judgment against the corporation. Plaintiffs sought the sole relief of the appointment of a receiver of the assets and property of the corporation. On the same day that plaintiffs filed their complaint, defendant corporation voluntarily appeared in the cause and filed a written consent to the appointment of a receiver. Subsequently, the trial court ordered the appointment of a receiver. One year later the trial court, on its own motion, vacated its order appointing the receiver and ordered off calendar a pending petition to appoint another receiver. Subsequently, the trial court filed a nunc pro tunc supplemental order, amending its vacation of the order appointing the original receiver to show that the order of vacation was based on the court's finding that its original order of appointment was in excess of its jurisdiction. One of the plaintiffs then appealed from the order removing the appointment of the other receiver from the calendar.

The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order removing the appointment of the later receiver from the calendar. In so doing, the Court agreed with the trial court that the initial appointment was in excess of the trial court's jurisdiction. The Court held that the complaint failed to state a cause of action in that it asked for no affirmative relief to which a receivership might be incidental. Hence, the order appointing the receiver had no validity (220 Cal. 746, 748) .

The facts and procedural background of Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280 , are discussed in § 200.20[3][a]. In affirming the trial court's judgment for defendants and concomitant refusal to order the appointment of a receiver, the court of appeal found that plaintiffs were not entitled to the appointment of a receiver, because the complaint failed to state a cause of action. The court relied on Frick v. Calmin Mortgage Corp., Ltd. (1934) 220 Cal. 746, 748, 32 P.2d 619 (discussed above), for the proposition that because the appointment of a receiver is incidental to the main objects of the complaint, there is no separate cause of action for the appointment of a receiver ( 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.22

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.22 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Less Drastic Means of Relief Are Available

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Less Drastic Means of Relief Are Available

[This form should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20) or a memorandum opposing an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE AN APPOINTMENT WOULD BE AN ABUSE OF DISCRETION IN THAT _____ [specify other available remedy, e.g., INJUNCTIVE RELIEF], A REMEDY LESS DRASTIC THAN RECEIVERSHIP, IS AVAILABLE TO _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF].

Availability of Less Drastic Relief. Because the appointment of a receiver is a drastic remedy, a court should carefully weigh the propriety of appointment in exercising its discretion to appoint a receiver and should not make the appointment when a remedy less drastic in nature and scope will adequately protect the interests of the litigants (A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 613, 238 P. 926 ; Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App 233, 239, 133 P. 1155).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should appoint a receiver on the ground that remedies less drastic than receivership are available to the party seeking the appointment of a receiver.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in see § 200.10[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver [see § 200.20[1]]. These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a memorandum opposing the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60 et seq.]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing that a less drastic remedy, such as an injunction, is available to the party seeking the receivership in lieu of the appointment of a receiver. See also the comments in § 200.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to appoint receiver, legal background, research guide, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Availability of Less Drastic Relief

In A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 238 P. 926 , plaintiff corporation, the real party in interest, brought an action against defendant petitioners. Plaintiff alleged that defendant directors converted stock of one of defendant corporations to their own uses as part of a conspiracy to defraud plaintiff of its property, that another of defendant corporations was brought into existence for the purpose of cheating plaintiff of its property, and that the latter corporation was in imminent danger of insolvency. Plaintiff sought, among other relief, the appointment of a receiver to take charge of and manage the business of both corporations in order to preserve and protect plaintiff's rights and interests. Based on the complaint and a supporting affidavit, the trial court issued an ex parte order appointing a receiver of the corporations. Petitioners then moved the court, ex parte, for an order setting aside the order appointing the receiver. The trial court denied this ex parte motion but after a hearing on petitioners' subsequent noticed motion to set aside, set aside the appointment of the original receiver and appointed another to take his place. Petitioners then sought a writ of prohibition in the Supreme Court to vacate the trial court's orders appointing the receivers, both ex parte and after notice and hearing.

The Supreme Court granted the petition and ordered the trial court to vacate its orders appointing both receivers. The Court found it clear that every presumed right of plaintiff corporation, for which it sought relief in the complaint, could have been fully protected and made available by either injunctive relief or other statutory remedies which the Court did not identify (196 Cal. 604, 614) . The Court held it a well-established rule that a receiver should not be appointed when a remedy less drastic in nature and scope is available to insure adequate protection of the rights of the litigants (196 Cal. 604, 613) . The Court found that there was no emergency, pending or imminent, that required so harsh a remedy as ousting the regularly qualified, acting, and financially successful officers of defendant corporations and substituting a receiver for the management and control of the business of the corporations (196 Cal. 604, 614) . The Court based its finding on petitioners' evidence, in the form of affidavits and testimony, that defendant directors did not convert stock to their own uses, that there was no conspiracy to defraud plaintiff, that plaintiff had no interest in property out of which it could be cheated by one of defendant corporations, and that neither corporation was in any danger of insolvency when the receivers were appointed (196 Cal. 604, 609-610) .

The facts and procedural background of Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App 233, 133 P. 1155 , are discussed in § 200.20[3][b]. In reversing the trial court's order appointing the receiver, the court noted that a receiver should not be appointed when the result desired by the appointment can be obtained by less stringent means calculated to protect the rights of all parties. Additionally, the court noted that when an injunction will protect all the rights to which the applicant for the receivership appears to be entitled, a receiver will not be appointed. It is an abuse of the trial court's discretion to appoint a receiver when the purpose sought by the appointment could be accomplished and the rights of the parties more adequately protected by the granting of an injunction (22 Cal. App 233, 239) . The court found that the sole purpose of the trial court's order, besides empowering the receiver to seek recovery of proceeds derived by defendants from operation of the property, was to sequester the net income from the property by requiring defendants to pay it over to the receiver. However, the court found that the purpose of holding net proceeds intact pending the suit could have been accomplished by an order granting an injunction in which, on plaintiff's giving of a sufficient undertaking to protect defendants from damages, defendants would be restrained from paying out any proceeds from the sale of oil, other than for operation of the wells (22 Cal. App 233, 238) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Availability of Less Drastic Relief

In Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 90 P.2d 75 , a stockholders' derivative suit, defendants sought a writ of prohibition to prevent the enforcement of respondent court's ex parte order appointing a receiver and its subsequent orders denying their motion to vacate the appointment and confirming the appointment. The Supreme Court issued the writ, finding that no sufficient grounds existed for continuing the receivership during litigation and that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in confirming its ex parte order appointing the receiver (13 Cal. 2d 384, 396) . The Court noted the drastic character of the remedy of receivership and held that, ordinarily, if there is any other remedy less severe in its results that will adequately protect the rights of the parties, a court should not take property out of the hands of its owners (13 Cal. 2d 384, 393) .

In Rogers v. Smith (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 172 P.2d 365 , an action for money had and received, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order confirming the ex parte appointment of a receiver, finding plaintiff's action to be essentially one at law for the recovery of a debt in which the remedy of attachment was available and would have been adequate. The court held that receivership is not a substitute for attachment and thus could not be resorted to for the reason urged by plaintiff, that an attachment would have been more expensive than receivership. The court noted that the saving of expense was a poor excuse for the appointment of a receiver when plaintiff's sole argument for appointment was that only a nominal bond was required to enable a receiver to take possession of all of defendants' property, while a very large bond was required to attach that property (76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 21) . Rogers is discussed in § 200.230[3][a].

In Ryan v. Murphy (1919) 39 Cal. App 640, 179 P. 517 , a creditors' action brought to subject certain real property of defendant to plaintiffs' claims, defendant appealed from an order appointing a receiver of the property. The court of appeal reversed, on a number of grounds, the trial court's order appointing the receiver. One of the grounds for reversal was the fact that plaintiffs could have adequately protected their interests in the property against future alienation by filing a lis pendens (39 Cal. App 640, 642-643) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.23

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.23 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--No Reasonably Certain Benefit to Moving Party and Distinct Disadvantage to Opposing Party

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--No Reasonably Certain Benefit to Moving Party and Distinct Disadvantage to Opposing Party

[This form should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20) or a memorandum opposing an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE AN APPOINTMENT WOULD BE AN ABUSE OF DISCRETION, IN THAT NO REASONABLY CERTAIN BENEFIT WILL RESULT TO _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] FROM THE APPOINTMENT, AND A DISTINCT DISADVANTAGE WILL RESULT TO _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT].

No Certain Benefit to One Party and Distinct Disadvantage to Other Party. When it appears that no reasonably certain benefit will result to one litigant and a distinct disadvantage will result to another, courts should weigh carefully the propriety of appointing a receiver, and should not make the appointment when there is no benefit or advantage to be gained thereby (Elson v. Nyhan (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 113 P.2d 474 ; Lowe v. Copeland (1932) 125 Cal. App 315, 324, 13 P.2d 522).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should appoint a receiver on the ground that no reasonably certain benefit will result to the party seeking the appointment, and a distinct disadvantage will result to the party opposing the appointment.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.10[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver [see § 200.20[1]]. These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a memorandum opposing the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60 et seq.]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing not only that the party seeking the appointment will gain no certain benefit by the receivership, but also, if appropriate, that the opposing party will be placed at a distinct disadvantage by the appointment. See also the comments in § 200.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to appoint receiver, legal background, research guide, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Certain Benefit to One Party and Distinct Disadvantage to Other Party

The facts and procedural background of Elson v. Nyhan (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 113 P.2d 474 , are discussed in § 200.20[3][a]. In affirming the trial court's refusal to order the appointment of a receiver in aid of execution, as requested by plaintiff's assignee, the court of appeal held that when it appears that no reasonably certain benefit will result to one litigant, and a distinct disadvantage will result to another, courts should weigh carefully the propriety of appointing a receiver. The court noted that receivers are often legal luxuries, frequently representing an extravagant cost to a losing litigant (45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5) .

In Lowe v. Copeland (1932) 125 Cal. App 315, 13 P.2d 522 , an action for declaratory relief, plaintiff sought a decree declaring him to be the owner of certain shares of stock in one of defendant corporations and enjoining the individual defendant and the other corporate defendant from transferring certain patent rights. In the alternative, plaintiff sought damages and the appointment of a receiver of the business of one of defendant corporations. The trial court refused to appoint the receiver and, after trial, entered judgment denying plaintiff the relief prayed for in his complaint. Plaintiff appealed from the judgment, contending that portions of the trial court's findings were unsupported and that the findings did not support the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment and the trial court's refusal to appoint a receiver. The court held that the trial court did not err, because a receiver should not be appointed when no benefit or advantage is to be gained thereby. The court found that there was no advantage to be gained by any party by placing the business of the corporation in receivership. There was no allegation or claim that, with the exception of the patent rights, defendant corporation had any assets that could be subject to receivership or that, even if the rights were retained, the corporation could or would continue in business. Furthermore, there were no funds in the company's treasury, no means of raising funds from its stockholders, and no business prospect that would bring any funds into the treasury to enable it to carry on the business (125 Cal. App 315, 324) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.24

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.24 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Evidence Used to Support Appointment Is Conclusory or Based on Information and Belief

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Evidence Used to Support Appointment Is Conclusory or Based on Information and Belief

[This form should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20) or a memorandum opposing an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE AN APPOINTMENT WOULD BE AN ABUSE OF DISCRETION, IN THAT THE _____ [specify evidence used to support appointment, e.g., COMPLAINT] CONSISTS OF _____ [ALLEGATIONS BASED LARGELY ON INFORMATION AND BELIEF and/or _____ (GENERAL and/or CONCLUSORY) ALLEGATIONS)], AND THUS THE SUPPORTING EVIDENCE IS INSUFFICIENT TO JUSTIFY THE APPOINTMENT OF A RECEIVER.

Evidence Based on Conclusory Allegations and on Information and Belief Is Insufficient to Appoint Receiver. A complaint or affidavit based largely on generalities, conclusions, and information and belief is insufficient to support the appointment of a receiver (Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 396, 90 P.2d 75 (complaint); Mason v. San-Val Oil & Water Co., Ltd. (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 670, 672-673, 36 P.2d 616 (complaint and affidavit)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should appoint a receiver on the ground that the evidence used to support the appointment is conclusory or based on information and belief.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.10[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver [see § 200.20[1]]. These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a memorandum opposing the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60 et seq.]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing that the evidence of the party seeking the appointment consists of generalities, conclusions, and allegations or declarations based largely on information and belief. See also the comments in § 200.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to appoint receiver, legal background, research guide, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[d] Reply Memorandum

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.40[1] may be used to reply to the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Evidence Based on Conclusory Allegations and on Information and Belief Is Insufficient to Appoint Receiver

In Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 90 P.2d 75 , plaintiff directors brought a stockholder's derivative action against defendant directors for damages for injury to the corporation, alleging defendants committed acts of fraud and mismanagement, and that the board of directors was deadlocked, thus virtually suspending transaction of corporate business. Based on the allegations in the verified complaint, plaintiffs sought and the trial court granted an ex parte application for the appointment of a receiver to take possession, during litigation, of the corporation's property. Defendants moved to vacate the order and subsequently sought to resist a confirmation of the appointment, but the trial court denied each of these motions. Defendants sought a writ of prohibition to prevent the enforcement of respondent court's orders appointing the receiver.

The Supreme Court issued the writ of prohibition, finding that no sufficient grounds existed for continuing the receivership during litigation and that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in confirming its ex parte order appointing the receiver (13 Cal. 2d 384, 396) . The court found that, contrary to plaintiffs' allegations, corporate business was being transacted by defendants, the corporation was solvent, and that during the month in which plaintiffs' complaint was filed the corporation had assets in excess of its liabilities (13 Cal. 2d 384, 395-396) . The Court noted that while these findings did not address plaintiffs' allegations of defendants' fraud and mismanagement, those allegations were stated as conclusions or on information and belief. The Court found that stronger proof was essential to justify the receivership in the face of specific and detailed evidence that the corporation's business was being successfully conducted at a profit. Relying on Mason v. San-Val Oil & Water Co., Ltd. (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 670, 672-673, 36 P.2d 616 (discussed below), the Court held that a complaint based largely on generalities, conclusions, and information and belief is insufficient on which to appoint a receiver (13 Cal. 2d 384, 396) .

In Mason v. San-Val Oil & Water Co., Ltd. (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 670, 36 P.2d 616 , a stockholder's derivative action, plaintiff shareholders sued defendant corporation, its directors, officers, and other shareholders, seeking an accounting of all corporate transactions, cancellation of stock issued to defendant stockholders, and removal of defendant directors, together with a declaration that their offices were vacant. Plaintiffs' complaint alleged the failure of consideration for the issuance of stock to defendant shareholders, and misappropriation of funds, fraud, and conspiracy to defraud on the part of defendant directors. Contending that the corporation was in imminent danger of insolvency, plaintiffs, after notice and hearing, obtained the appointment of a receiver of the corporation pending conclusion of the suit. Defendants appealed from the trial court's order appointing the receiver.

The Supreme Court reversed the trial court's order, agreeing with defendants' contention that the trial court improperly appointed the receiver on the showing made. Looking to the complaint, the Court noted that the allegations of malfeasance on defendants' part were based on information and belief and were replete with generalities and conclusions, without any allegations of fact substantiating or purporting to substantiate the charges. The Court ruled that the allegations, in their current form, without more, could not be considered sufficient allegations of the charges made (1 Cal. 2d 670, 672) . Looking to plaintiffs' affidavits supporting the motion for the appointment of the receiver, the Court found that these added nothing to the complaint. The Court ruled that the generalities contained in the affidavits could not be deemed sufficient to supplement the complaint by making up for its deficient factual allegations (1 Cal. 2d 670, 672-673) . Finally addressing plaintiffs' contention that the corporation was in imminent danger of insolvency, the Court found it to be uncontroverted at the appointment hearing that the corporation had long since been conducting business at between $2,000 and $6,500 a month and appeared to be a going and prosperous concern. The Court noted that it was difficult to ascertain on what theory the action was brought or the appointment of a receiver authorized (1 Cal. 2d 670, 673) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Evidence Based on General and Conclusory Allegations and on Information and Belief Is Insufficient

In McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 223 P.2d 94 , an action for dissolution of an oil drilling partnership, the trial court placed the physical property of the partnership in receivership. The court did so on defendant's motion, and in principal reliance on affidavits, filed by defendant, declaring that plaintiff's negligence necessitated the receivership. On plaintiff's appeal from the trial court's order, the court of appeal reversed the order, holding that, in an application for the appointment of a receiver, the facts allegedly supporting the conclusions of an affiant must be based on the affiant's knowledge. The statements in the affidavits filed by defendant were mere conclusions, not based on the affiants' personal knowledge and, as such, not competent evidence of plaintiff's negligence (100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 94) . McCaslin is discussed in 200.140[3][a].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.25

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.25 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Evidence Used to Support Appointment Lacks Factual Allegation of Injury

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Evidence Used to Support Appointment Lacks Factual Allegation of Injury

[This form should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20) or a memorandum opposing an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE AN APPOINTMENT WOULD BE AN ABUSE OF DISCRETION, IN THAT THE _____ [specify evidence used to support appointment, e.g., COMPLAINT] LACKS FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS OF ANY INJURY AND THUS THE SUPPORTING EVIDENCE IS INSUFFICIENT TO JUSTIFY THE APPOINTMENT OF A RECEIVER.

Evidence Lacking Factual Allegations of Any Injury Is Insufficient to Appoint Receiver. A complaint that lacks factual allegations of any injury is an insufficient basis on which to appoint a receiver (Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261-262, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should appoint a receiver on the ground that the evidence used to support the appointment lacks factual allegations of any injury.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.10[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver [see § 200.20[1]]. These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a memorandum opposing the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60 et seq.]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing that the moving party's evidence lacks factual allegations of any injury. See also the comments in § 200.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to appoint receiver, legal background, research guide, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[d] Reply Memorandum

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.40[1] may be used to reply to the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Evidence Lacking Factual Allegations of Any Injury Is Insufficient to Appoint Receiver

The facts and procedural background of Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280 , a stockholder's derivative action, are discussed in § 200.20[3][a]. In sustaining the judgment and order of the trial court dismissing plaintiffs' complaint for failure to state a cause of action, the court of appeal expressly affirmed the trial court's refusal to appoint a receiver. The court found a fatal deficiency in the complaint in its lack of factual allegation of any injury necessitating the appointment of a receiver (203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261) . While the complaint stated, by way of conclusion, that great and irreparable damage had been and would be done unless a receiver was appointed, it alleged no fact to show how either plaintiffs or the corporation had been, or would be, injured. Additionally, while the complaint alleged that it was defendants' intent to force plaintiffs to sell their shares in the corporation, or be deprived of them, it contained no allegation that any defendant had taken or threatened to take any specific action reasonably calculated to accomplish that purpose. Finally, while the complaint suggested that the assets of the corporation would be dissipated unless a receiver was appointed, it contained no allegation of actual injury and no showing of how or in what manner any injury would result to the corporation because of any alleged threatened act or omission by defendants (203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261-262) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.26

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.26 Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Party Seeking Appointment Has Failed to Show by Preponderance of Evidence That Appointment Is Warranted

[1] FORM Opposing Motion to Appoint Receiver--Party Seeking Appointment Has Failed to Show by Preponderance of Evidence That Appointment Is Warranted

[This form should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20) or a memorandum opposing an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS AN ABUSE OF THE COURT'S DISCRETION IN THAT _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS FAILED TO SHOW BY A PREPONDERANCE OF THE EVIDENCE THAT THE APPOINTMENT IS WARRANTED.

Burden of Proof Is Preponderance of Evidence. A party seeking the appointment of a receiver must show by a preponderance of the evidence that the appointment is warranted (Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should appoint a receiver on the ground that the party seeking the appointment has failed to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the appointment is warranted.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.10[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver [see § 200.20[1]]. These points and authorities may be adapted for use in a memorandum opposing the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60 et seq.]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing that the party seeking the appointment has not met its burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the appointment of the receiver is warranted.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver, research guide, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[d] Reply Memorandum

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.40[1] may be used to reply to the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Burden of Proof Is Preponderance of Evidence

In Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 254 P.2d 599 , plaintiff corporation brought an action against defendant corporation, who was the assignee of a lease to mining property owned by plaintiff, to rescind the lease and for an accounting. By noticed motion, plaintiff also sought the appointment of a receiver to shut down operation of the mine and mill on the property and to prohibit persons from trespassing on the property, contending that defendant had refused to allow plaintiff's representatives to enter the property, that defendant had used plaintiff's machinery and failed to keep it in good repair, that defendant was insolvent, and that defendant was removing ores and minerals from the mine. The trial court granted the motion and appointed the receiver. Defendant appealed from the order appointing the receiver, contending that the trial court abused its discretion in making the appointment in that plaintiff's showing of the need for a receiver was insufficient to warrant the appointment.

The court of appeal reversed the order of the trial court appointing the receiver. The court held that in order to obtain the appointment of the receiver, plaintiff was required to meet a burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the appointment was warranted (116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874) . The court found that plaintiff had failed to meet its burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that under Code Civ. Proc. 564(1) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)) (authorizing the appointment of a receiver in an action between parties jointly interested in property), (1) it shared a joint interest in the mine, (2) the mine was in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, and (3) plaintiff's right to possession of the mine was probable (116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 873) . The court observed that certain declarations submitted by plaintiff relative to defendant's solvency were unfounded, unsupported, and rebutted by the declaration and testimony of defendant's president and one of its employees (116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874) .

64 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.27-200.39

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.27[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.40

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.40 Reply Memorandum Supporting Motion to Appoint Receiver--Form of Evidence Is Sufficient to Justify Appointment

[1] FORM Reply Memorandum Supporting Motion to Appoint Receiver--Form of Evidence Is Sufficient to Justify Appointment

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name]	)	REPLY MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AU-
Plaintiff,	)	THORITIES SUPPORTING MOTION TO AP-
vs.	)	POINT RECEIVER
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE EVIDENCE IS IN THE PROPER FORM AND SUPPORTS APPOINTMENT.

Form of Evidence to Justify Appointment of Receiver. Evidence to justify the appointment of a receiver may be presented in the form of allegations in a complaint or other pleading, or on noticed motion by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) or testimony (Brown v. Memorial Nat. Home Foundation (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 448, 456, 322 P.2d 600 , cert. denied, 358 U.S. 943 (1959) ; Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 274-275, 171 P.2d 75).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is a reply memorandum of points and authorities that may be submitted in support of a motion to appoint receiver. The basis of the reply is that the evidence is in the proper form to justify appointment. Evidence to justify the appointment of a receiver may be presented in the form of allegations in a complaint or other pleading, or on noticed motion by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) or testimony.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in reply to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 200.24 -200.26.

From a strategic standpoint, counsel who represents a party who is seeking the appointment of a receiver normally would not raise the issue stated in these points and authorities in an initial memorandum. Rather, he or she would include the points and authorities in a reply memorandum or brief served in response to the opposing party's objection to the receivership.

These points and authorities may be adapted for use in memorandum supporting a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10[1]], or supporting the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50[1]]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is within the trial court's discretion under the particular facts of the case. See also the comments in § 200.10[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For related legal background, research and procedural checklists, and forms, including a form of notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver and general form of allegations and prayer in a complaint seeking the appointment of a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Form of Evidence to Justify Appointment of Receiver

In Brown v. Memorial Nat. Home Foundation (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 448, 322 P.2d 600 , cert. denied, 358 U.S. 943 (1959) , the California Attorney General brought an action to resolve a dispute between two private corporations over the charitable trusts managed and controlled by one of the corporations. At the conclusion of the trial, the court entered a judgment, which it termed an interlocutory judgment. Among the provisions of the judgment was the appointment of receivers to take possession of all of appellant corporation's assets, books, records, and papers. Appellant subsequently appealed from the judgment. Respondents attorney general and corporation, contending that the judgment was interlocutory rather than final, and thus not appealable, moved to dismiss appellant's appeal.

The court of appeal found the judgment to be final rather than interlocutory, despite the trial court's terminology, and dismissed respondents' motion to dismiss appellant's appeal (158 Cal. App. 2d 448, 453, 457) . Additionally, because a review of the order appointing the receivers would be essentially coextensive with a review of the merits of the case, the court held the provision of the judgment appointing the receivers to be specifically appealable under former Code Civ. Proc. § 963(2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(g), authorizing an appeal from an order appointing a receiver in a superior court case) (158 Cal. App. 2d 448, 453, 456) . Relying on Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 274-275, 171 P.2d 75 (discussed below), the court held that evidence to justify the appointment of a receiver may be presented in the form of allegations in a complaint or other pleading, by affidavit, or by testimony (158 Cal. App. 2d 448, 456) .

Counsel should note that the trial court's judgment appointing the receivers was subsequently affirmed in Brown v. Memorial Nat. Home Foundation (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 448, 322 P.2d 600 .

In Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 171 P.2d 75 , plaintiff brought an action against his former spouse to rescind a written agreement establishing a joint tenancy in an apartment building and to establish his interest in certain real and personal property. Defendant answered the complaint and cross complained, seeking appointment of a receiver to preserve the property during litigation. After notice and hearing of defendant's motion for appointment of a receiver, the trial court granted the motion and appointed a receiver. At the hearing on the motion, the court permitted plaintiff to testify, but not defendant, since her notice of motion did not indicate that the motion would be presented on oral testimony. However, the court did consider the matter, as requested in defendant's motion, on the verified cross complaint and on the records and files in the action. Plaintiff appealed the order, contending, among other things, that defendant's failure to produce oral testimony amounted to a failure to produce evidence sufficient to warrant appointment of the receiver.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order. The court held that evidence to justify the appointment of a receiver may be presented in the form of allegations in a complaint or other pleading, by affidavit, or by testimony (75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 274-275) . The court held that defendant's failure to testify at the hearing did not constitute a failure to produce evidence in support of her motion, since the trial court considered the matter on the verified cross complaint, the records, and the files in the action. The court of appeal found it readily apparent that the pleadings relied on by the trial court were considered as an affidavit or as evidence in support of the application for appointment. The pleadings were properly before the trial court, since the notice of motion stated defendant's intended reliance on the verified cross complaint and the records and files in the action (75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 275) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
1. Noticed Motion to Appoint Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.41-200.49

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.41[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
2. Order to Show Cause re Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.50

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.50 Supporting Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175, 3.1176]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175, 3.1176]--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name]	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM SUPPORTING CONFIRMA-
vs.	)	TION OF EX PARTE ORDER APPOINTING RE-
_____ [name],	)	CEIVER
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT'S EX PARTE ORDER APPOINTING A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION SHOULD BE CONFIRMED BECAUSE THE COURT HAS JURISDICTION, POWER, AND DISCRETION TO MAKE THE APPOINTMENT ON _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF'S] SHOWING OF _____ [EMERGENCY or NECESSITY] AND IRREPARABLE INJURY UNDER RULE

3.1175(a)(1) OF THE CALIFORNIA RULES OF COURT.

[EITHER if unlimited civil case]

A. Jurisdiction of Court. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending in any case in which the court is empowered by law to appoint a receiver (Code Civ. Proc. § 564).

[OR if limited civil case]

A. Jurisdiction of Court. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding, including a limited civil case, is pending in any case in which the court is empowered by law to appoint a receiver (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(8), 564).

B. Power of Court to Appoint Receiver Ex Parte. The court has the power to appoint a receiver ex parte under certain circumstances on a proper showing of need therefor (Huellmantel v. Huellmantel (1899) 124 Cal. 583, 589, 57 P. 582 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175).

C. Appointment on Showing of Necessity or Emergency. The court may appoint a receiver ex parte and without notice if the imperative necessity or emergency is shown in the complaint or supporting affidavits (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1); Misita v. Distillers Corp., Ltd. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 250, 128 P.2d 888).

D. Appointment on Showing of Irreparable Injury. The appointment of a receiver may be made ex parte if the complaint or supporting affidavits show an immediate danger of irreparable injury to the applicant together with the reasons the applicant would suffer irreparable injury during the time necessary for a hearing on notice (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1); Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 712, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787).

E. Exercise of Discretion Governed by Situation at Time of Making Order. [see § 200.51[1]].

[Add points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for the appointment of a receiver (see, e.g., §§ 200.80 et seq., 200.270 et seq., and 200.350 et seq.).]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that an ex parte order appointing a receiver should be confirmed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175(a), 3.1176(a)]. For a memorandum providing that the exercise of discretion by the court is evaluated by the circumstances at the time that the court made its order, see § 200.51[1].

This form is a general form that should be combined with points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for the appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., §§ 200.80 et seq., 200.270 et seq., and 200.350 et seq.].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities contending that the form of evidence is sufficient to justify appointment [§ 200.40[1]].

In addition, this memoranda may be adapted for use:

- In a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- As allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing the nature of the emergency justifying the ex parte appointment and the reasons the applicant would suffer irreparable injury, especially during the time necessary for a hearing on notice. Counsel should also insert facts showing the nature of the irreparable injury. For example, when appropriate, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in any of the following:

- Declarations and affidavits submitted in support of, or even in opposition to, the appointment [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Confirmation Hearing

Whenever a receiver is appointed without notice, the appointment must be made returnable on an order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(a)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176 sets forth the procedure to be followed prior to the hearing, including service of papers, and provisions for continuing the hearing. In particular, counsel should note that as soon as is practical, but no later than 5 days after the date on which the order to show cause is issued, unless the court orders another time for service, the applicant must serve the following on each of the adverse parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b)]:

- A copy of the complaint, if not previously served.
- The order to show cause, showing the date, time, and place of the hearing.
- Any affidavits supporting the application.
- A memorandum supporting the application.

[d] Modification for Use in Support of Ex Parte Application for Order to Show Cause Why Receiver Should Not Be Appointed

An ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed is a substitute for the noticed motion procedure when the adverse party has not yet appeared in the case and it is subject to the same rules regarding notice and memoranda that apply to a notice of motion for appointment of a receiver [see, generally, Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 8 n.6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53 ; Cohen v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 488, 491-492, 8 Cal. Rptr. 922] . Hence, this memorandum supporting the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver, under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175(a), 3.1176(a), may be adapted for use in such a case.

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, a form of order to show cause why the ex parte appointment of a receiver should not be confirmed, a form of order confirming the ex parte appointment of a receiver, legal background, and an applicant's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[f] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 200.60 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Court to Appoint Receiver Ex Parte

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a), authorizes the court to appoint a receiver ex parte. It sets forth, in addition to any other matters supporting an application forthe ex parte appointment of a receiver, elements on which the applicant must make a detailed showing by verified complaint or affidavit in order to obtain the appointment. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(b), permits the applicant to be excused from setting forth any such elements if they are unknown to the applicant and cannot be ascertained with due diligence.

Huellmantel v. Huellmantel (1899) 124 Cal. 583, 57 P. 582 , was an action for dissolution of marriage in which the trial court awarded plaintiff wife specific sums in alimony and attorney's fees, together with costs at trial and on appeal. As part of the judgment, the trial court placed a lien on real property owned by both plaintiff and defendant. The court also ordered the property to be sold, and appointed a receiver to take possession of the property, collect its rents and profits, conduct the sale of the property, receive the proceeds, and pay plaintiff the amount of her judgment from the proceeds. Defendant appealed both the judgment and the trial court's order denying his motion for a new trial.

The Supreme Court, affirming in part and reversing in part the judgment, affirmed the order appointing the receiver for the property. The Court held that a receiver ought to be appointed on only the clearest proof of the propriety of the appointment, on the application of one of the parties, and generally not without notice. While noting that the ex parte appointment of a receiver is exceptional, the Court held that appointment is allowable under certain circumstances on proper showing. In so holding, the Court noted that even though there was nothing in the transcript to show that the trial court had acted on its own motion and without the application of plaintiff or notice to defendant in appointing the receiver, in support of the trial court's judgment it must presume that the trial court acted on due application and after notice to defendant. Furthermore, if its presumption were wrong, the Court noted that it was the defendant's duty to show otherwise (124 Cal. 583, 589) .

[b] Appointment on Showing of Necessity or Emergency

Misita v. Distillers Corp., Ltd. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 128 P.2d 888 , was an action to remove one of defendants as director of defendant corporation. Plaintiff sought the ex parte appointment of a receiver to control the business of the corporation, preserve its assets, and protect the rights of complaining stockholders during litigation. On plaintiff's presentation of a verified complaint and supporting affidavits to the trial court, together with plaintiff's filing of a bond, the court ordered the appointment of the receiver and ordered defendants to appear subsequently to show cause why the receivership should not continue until the termination of the action. After hearing on the order to show cause, in which plaintiffs moved to continue the receivership and defendants moved to vacate the appointment, the trial court ordered the receivership continued until termination of the action and denied defendants' motion to vacate. On the same day the court issued the ruling, the parties stipulated to and obtained orders terminating the receivership, discharging the receiver, and issuing an injunction under the terms of which the respective rights of the parties would be protected. Thereafter, defendants appealed from the ex parte order appointing the receiver, the order continuing the appointment, and the order denying their motion to vacate the appointment.

The court of appeal affirmed the orders of the trial court. The court initially noted that defendants sought reversal of the trial court's orders, to enable themselves to sue on the plaintiff's bond to recover for expenditures made and damage done by reason of the receivership. However, because the receivership was terminated by stipulation on the same day the trial court ordered its continuance, no expenses were incurred or damage done thereafter. Therefore, the appeal narrowed down to the question of the validity of the trial court's ex parte order appointing the receiver (54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 246-247) . Citing Huellmantel v. Huellmantel (1899) 124 Cal. 583, 57 P. 582 (discussed in § 200.50[3][a]), for the proposition that ex parte appointment of a receiver is allowable under certain circumstances on a proper showing, the court ruled that the appointment of a receiver may be made ex parte and without notice if the imperative necessity or emergency is shown in the application or supporting affidavits (54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 250) . The court held that the allegations in the complaint demonstrated the requisite necessity and emergency in that the corporation's board of directors was unable to function as such, the stockholders were unable to meet, and the defendant director, in sole control of the corporation's management, was using the employees, the premises, and the equipment for personal purposes and was engaged in the commission of illegal acts that could result in loss of the corporation's license to do business at all. Under these facts and circumstances, and in view of other pending litigation, the trial court was amply justified in appointing the receiver ex parte (54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 251-252) .

[c] Appointment on Showing of Irreparable Injury

Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787 , involved actions for an accounting, monies had and received, account stated, declaratory relief, and specific performance of a lease providing for defendant's construction and subsequent operation of a hotel and convention facility on plaintiffs' real property. On presentation of their complaint to the trial court, together with supporting declarations, plaintiffs obtained an ex parte order appointing a receiver to protect and maintain the business of the hotel and convention facility. After hearings on plaintiffs' petition for confirmation of the appointment, the trial court affirmed the appointment, finding it justified, reasonable, and necessary to protect and maintain the business. However, the court found that confirmation of the appointment would compel defendant to incur extra expenses duplicating certain existing expenses and might prevent the corporation from continuing to operate. Therefore, on defendant's stipulation to amandatory injunction that it would not voluntarily terminate or close the business, and that it would perform certain terms of the lease, the court denied confirmation of the appointment and terminated the receivership. Defendant appealed from the order affirming the ex parte appointment.

The court of appeal affirmed the order of the trial court affirming its ex parte appointment of the receiver. The court held that plaintiffs established the requisite immanency and irreparable injury to justify the ex parte appointment. The court ruled that the undisputed insolvent financial status of defendant and its hotel operations, together with defendant's threats to close down, indicated an immediate danger of irreparable injury to the going enterprise and to plaintiffs' interest in the total property (249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 712) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Appointment on Showing of Necessity or Emergency

In People v. Christ's Church (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 181 P.2d 49 , an action for the removal of the church's trustee and for an accounting, the People obtained an ex parte order appointing a receiver of the church pending the accounting. On defendant's appeal of the order, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court, finding that the trustee's proposed sale of real estate owned by the church, together with his intended conversion of the proceeds to his own use, constituted a showing of emergency sufficient to support the ex parte order (79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 860-861) . Quoting from Misita v. Distillers Corp., Ltd. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 128 P.2d 888 (discussed in § 200.50[3][b]), the court held that a receiver may be appointed ex parte and without notice if the imperative necessity or emergency warranting the appointment is shown in the application or supporting affidavits (79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 862) .

[b] Appointment on Showing of Irreparable Injury

People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 , was an action to enjoin a university and certain of its officers from engaging in unlawful and fraudulent business practices and to secure compliance with terms of the charitable trust with which the university's assets were impressed. The People had obtained the ex parte appointment of a receiver to take possession of, preserve, and maintain the property, assets, and records of the university, to continue the university in operation, and to ensure that all currently enrolled students had the opportunity to complete the current academic quarter. The court of appeal affirmed the unconditional release of the receiver. The trial court had found the appointment warranted by virtue of the irreparable injury students would suffer if the university closed before completion of the current academic quarter in that students would have expended hours of study for which they would receive no credit, law students would be ineligible to take the first bar examination for unaccredited law schools, and many students would not receive degrees to which they would be entitled. Additionally, closing classes before the end of the quarter would result in termination of accreditation and approval theretofore issued by the State Superintendent of Public Institutions and other state and federal agencies (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 577) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
2. Order to Show Cause re Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.51

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.51 Supporting Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a), 3.1176(a), (b)]--Exercise of Discretion Governed by Circumstances at Time of Making Order

[1] FORM Supporting Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a), 3.1176(a), (b)]--Exercise of Discretion Governed by Circumstances at Time of Making Order

[This form should be combined with a general memorandum supporting confirmation of ex parte appointment of receiver (see § 200.50[1]), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT'S EX PARTE ORDER APPOINTING A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION SHOULD BE CONFIRMED BECAUSE THE COURT PROPERLY EXERCISED ITS DISCRETION BASED ON THE CIRCUMSTANCES THAT EXISTED AT THE TIME OF ITS ORDER.

Exercise of Discretion Governed by Circumstances at Time of Making Order. In general, the granting of an ex parte order appointing a receiver rests in the sound discretion of the trial court, in the exercise of which the court must be governed necessarily by the situation as it is presented and appears to the court at the time of making the order (Moore v. Oberg (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 221, 142 P.2d 443 ; Misita v. Distillers Corp., Ltd. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 247, 128 P.2d 888).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that an ex parte order appointing a receiver should be confirmed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175(a), 3.1176(a)].

This memorandum should be combined with a general memorandum supporting confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50[1]]. This memorandum may be adapted for use in a memorandum supporting a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10[1]]. It may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts ofthe case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing the nature of the emergency justifying the ex parte appointment and the reasons the applicant would suffer irreparable injury, especially during the time necessary for a hearing on notice. Counsel should also insert facts showing the nature of the irreparable injury. See also the comments in § 200.50[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 200.60 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exercise of Discretion Governed by Circumstances at Time of Making Order

Moore v. Oberg (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 142 P.2d 443 , involved an action by one joint venturer against his coventurers for recovery of his share of the assets of the business. On plaintiff's application, the trial court issued an ex parte order appointing a receiver to take possession of the money, property, and accounts receivable of the business. At a subsequent noticed hearing during which both plaintiff and defendants submitted conflicting affidavit evidence, the trial court confirmed the appointment of the receiver, finding the appointment necessary to prevent defendants from collecting the accounts receivable and converting these accounts, together with the remaining joint assets of the business, to their own uses, and thereby irreparably injuring plaintiff's interest in the business. Defendants appealed from both the order appointing the receiver and the order confirming the appointment.

The court of appeal dismissed the appeal from the ex parte order of appointment and affirmed the order confirming the receiver's appointment (61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 223) . The court found that the trial court had not clearly abused its discretion in appointing the receiver, since the facts found by the trial court established an attempted scheme by defendants to deprive plaintiff of his property and of the advantages gained by the joint venture (61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 222-223) . The court held that when the propriety of the appointment of a receiver is doubtful and based on uncontradicted evidence, or when the evidence is conflicting, the question of the appointment of a receiver is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, to be exercised on all the facts before it. The trial court's discretion is so broad that an appellate court will not reverse an order of appointment if it is based on facts concerning which reasonable minds might differ relative to the necessity for the receivership,. The court noted that even if it were of the opinion that there was no danger of the loss of, removal of, or other irreparable injury to the assets of the joint venture, it could not substitute its conclusion for that of the trial court when the trial court's conclusion was based on sufficient evidence to support its orders. To justify the interference of an appellate court with an order confirming the ex parte appointment of a receiver, it must be clear that the order was an arbitrary exercise of power on the part of the trial court (61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 221-222) .

The facts and procedural background of Misita v. Distillers Corp., Ltd. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 128 P.2d 888 , are discussed in § 200.50[3][b]. In upholding the trial court's ex parte appointment of a receiver, the court of appeal noted that since the power to appoint ex parte lies in the superior court, the question on appeal is not one of jurisdiction but of error and, as such, is limited to the inquiry whether the trial court abused its discretion (54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 250) . The court held that generally, the granting of an ex parte order appointing a receiver rests in the sound discretion of the trial court, in the exercise of which the trial court must be governed necessarily by the situation as it is presented and appears to the court at the time of making the order (54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 247) . Therefore, the pending emergency and necessity for the appointment of a receiver are matters for the trial court to decide. In the present case, the court of appeal could not find an abuse of discretion in the appointment of the receiver (54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 252) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Exercise of Discretion Governed by Circumstances at Time of Making Order

In McNeil v. Graner (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 206 P.2d 1120 , an action for fraud, defendants appealed from the trial court's ex parte order appointing a receiver to prevent the dissipation of defendants' assets, in which plaintiffs claimed an interest. In affirming the trial court's order, the court of appeal found substantial evidence to support the order and held, therefore, that the trial court's action was not an abuse of discretion (92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 373) . The court held that the trial court may appoint a receiver in all cases in which receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of courts of equity, and that the appointment will not be disturbed on appeal in the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion (92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374) .

69 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
2. Order to Show Cause re Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.52-200.59

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.52[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
2. Order to Show Cause re Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.60

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.60 Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Receiver Should Not Be Confirmed Because of Inadequate Showing of Imperative Emergency or Necessity [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]

[1] FORM Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Receiver Should Not Be Confirmed Because of Inadequate Showing of Imperative Emergency or Necessity [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name]	)	MEMORANDUM OPPOSING CONFIRMATION
Plaintiff,	)	OF EX PARTE ORDER APPOINTING RECEIVER
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT'S EX PARTE ORDER APPOINTING A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION SHOULD NOT BE CONFIRMED, BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS FAILED TO MAKE THE REQUISITE SHOWING OF _____ [EMERGENCY or NECESSITY] UNDER RULE 3.1175(a)(1) OF THE CALIFORNIA RULES OF COURT.

Appointment Void Absent Showing of Emergency or Necessity. Appointment of a receiver will not be made ex parte and without notice except in cases of emergency that make it imperatively necessary to act at once and without notice (A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 613, 238 P. 926 ; Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 809-810 n.2, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)).

[Add points and authorities, as necessary, setting forth additional procedural grounds §§ 200.20 et seq. and §§ 200.61 et seq., as well as substantive grounds (see, e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260), in opposition to the appointment of a receiver.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the ex parte order appointing a receiver should be confirmed, on the ground that the party seeking the appointment has failed to make the requisite showing of emergency [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]. For a memorandum opposing confirmation of ex parte order appointing receiver on the ground that the party seeking receivership has failed to show irreparable harm, see § 200.61[1].

In an appropriate case, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the memorandum set out in § 200.50 et seq.

This form may be combined with points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for opposing appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260].

In addition, this memorandum may be adapted for use:

- In a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- As allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

