Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing the absence of necessity or emergency requiring the ex parte appointment. Counsel should also insert facts showing that the applicant would not suffer irreparable injury, particularly during the time necessary for a hearing on notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]. See also the comments in § 200.50[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Confirmation Hearing

For a discussion of the service and filing requirements for the confirmation hearing under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(a) and (b), see § 200.50[2][c]. For a discussion of instances in which the party seeking to confirm appointment is excused under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(b), from setting forth all the matters usually required for an ex parte appointment, see § 200.50[3][a].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, a form of order to show cause why the ex parte appointment of a receiver should not be confirmed, a form of order confirming the ex parte appointment of a receiver, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment Void Absent Showing of Emergency or Necessity

The facts and procedural background of A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 238 P. 926 , are discussed in § 200.22[3][a]. The court of appeal ordered the trial court to vacate its orders appointing receivers. Citing Fischer v. Superior Court (1895) 110 Cal. 129, 138, 42 P. 561 (discussed in § 200.61[3][a]), the Court reiterated the principle that from the standpoint of the business welfare of a defendant corporation, the appointment of a receiver on an ex parte application is so dangerous that it should be done only in cases of the greatest emergency and when irreparable injury will unquestionably result if the appointment is not made (196 Cal. 604, 613) . In the instant case, the Court found that there was no such emergency, pending or imminent, that required so harsh a remedy as ousting the regularly qualified, acting, and financially successful officers of defendant corporations and substituting a receiver for the management and control of the business of the corporations (196 Cal. 604, 614) . The Court based its finding on petitioners' evidence, in the form of affidavits and testimony, that defendant directors did not convert stock to their own uses, that there was no conspiracy to defraud plaintiff, that plaintiff had no interest in property out of which it could be cheated by one of defendant corporations, and that neither corporation was in any danger of insolvency when the receivers were appointed (196 Cal. 604, 609-610) .

In Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475 , a savings and loan association, the real party in interest, sued petitioners, who were the coowners of certain real property and a hotel located on the property, on a promissory note, seeking judicial foreclosure on the property and the hotel. Pursuant to the terms of the deed of trust securing the property, and after notice and hearing, the savings and loan association obtained the appointment of a receiver to take possession of the property, operate the hotel business, and collect rents, issues, and profits. Subsequently, on the ex parte application of one of petitioners, the trial court appointed the same receiver to take possession of the other petitioners' liquor license, even though the license was not part of the security for the debt covered by the trust deed. Thereafter, one of petitioners noticed a motion for confirmation of a proposed sale of the property, including the liquor license, by the receiver. The remaining petitioners, seeking to halt the sale, petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of prohibition to prevent the trial court from confirming the sale. The petitioner who had sought confirmation of the sale then petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate to require the trial court to authorize sale of the liquor license.

Consolidating the two matters for consideration and decision, the court of appeal denied the petition for a writ of mandate to compel inclusion of the liquor license in the order authorizing sale of the property. The appellate court then issued a peremptory writ prohibiting the trial court from confirming the proposed sale of the property and ordering that court to vacate its order authorizing the sale (72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 819) . The court held that it was beyond the trial court's jurisdiction to authorize the receiver to take possession of the liquor license, because the license was not part of the property hypothecated under the trust deed and the owners of the license did not consent to the receiver's possession of it (72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 816) . The record did not support the ex parte appointment of the receiver to take possession of the liquor license. An order appointing a receiver on an ex parte application should only be issued in cases of emergency that make it imperatively necessary to act at once and without notice, and no showing of emergency or imperative necessity had been made in the case at hand. The stringent procedural requirements of former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 238 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175), for the ex parte appointment of a receiver were not satisfied (72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 809-810 fn. 2).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Appointment Void Absent Showing of Emergency

In Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 90 P.2d 75 , an action between corporate directors for damages for injury to the corporation, plaintiffs obtained the ex parte appointment of a receiver to take possession of the corporation's property, alleging the board of directors was deadlocked and the transaction of corporate business was thereby virtually suspended. On defendants' petition, the Supreme Court issued a writ of prohibition preventing enforcement of respondent court's order of appointment, finding the order to be in excess of that court's jurisdiction. The Court held, from the standpoint of the business welfare of a defendant corporation, the appointment of a receiver on an ex parte application should be done only in cases of the greatest emergency when, without an appointment, irreparable injury will unquestionably result (13 Cal. 2d 384, 393) . The Court found the requisite emergency justifying the appointment did not exist, since the corporation was clearly solvent at the time of the receivership and defendants were, in fact, transacting corporate business at a profit (13 Cal. 2d 384, 395-396) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
2. Order to Show Cause re Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.61

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.61 Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Inadequate Showing of Irreparable Injury [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]

[1] FORM Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Inadequate Showing of Irreparable Injury [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]

[Caption. See § 200.60[1].]

THE COURT'S EX PARTE ORDER APPOINTING A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION SHOULD NOT BE CONFIRMED, BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS FAILED TO MAKE THE REQUISITE SHOWING OF IRREPARABLE INJURY UNDER RULE 3.1175(a)(1) OF THE CALIFORNIA RULES OF COURT.

Appointment Void Absent Showing of Irreparable Injury. Appointment of a receiver will not be made ex parte and without notice except in the case of irreparable pending injury (Fischer v. Superior Court (1895) 110 Cal. 129, 138, 42 P. 561 ; McCall v. McCall Brothers Co. (1933) 135 Cal. App 558, 559, 27 P.2d 648 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)).

[Add points and authorities, as necessary, setting forth additional procedural grounds §§ 200.20 et seq. and §§ 200.60 and 200.62, as well as substantive grounds (see e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260), in opposition to the appointment of a receiver.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the ex parte order appointing a receiver should be confirmed, on the ground that the party seeking the appointment has failed to make the requisite showing of irreparable injury [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]. For points and authorities opposing confirmation of ex parte order appointing receiver on the ground that the party seeking receivership has failed to show emergency or necessity, see § 200.60[1].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.50 et seq.

This form may be combined with points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for opposing appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260].

In addition, these points and authorities may be adapted for use:

- In a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- As allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing the absence of necessity or emergency requiring the ex parte appointment. Counsel should also insert facts showing that the applicant would not suffer irreparable injury, particularly during the time necessary for a hearing on notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)(1)]. See also the comments in § 200.50[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Confirmation Hearing

For a discussion of the service and filing requirements for the confirmation hearing under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(a) and (b), see § 200.50[2][c]. For a discussion of instances in which the party seeking to confirm appointment is excused under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(b), from setting forth all the matters usually required for an ex parte appointment, see § 200.50[3][a].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, a form of order to show cause why the ex parte appointment of a receiver should not be confirmed, a form of order confirming the ex parte appointment of a receiver, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment Void Absent Showing of Irreparable Injury

In Fischer v. Superior Court (1895) 110 Cal. 129, 42 P. 561 , plaintiff, the real party in interest, commenced an action against petitioner and defendant corporation for wrongfully procuring shares belonging to plaintiff, wrongfully inducing plaintiff to sell a number of plaintiff's shares to petitioner, misappropriating dividends, and wrongfully issuing stock certificates. Plaintiff sought, among other relief, the appointment of a receiver to take possession and charge of the corporation's property, to work, operate, and develop the property during the pendency of the action, and to take possession of and hold all net corporate profits. The trial court granted plaintiff's ex parte application for appointment of the receiver, and petitioner subsequently sought a writ of prohibition from theSupreme Court to prevent the trial court from proceeding further under the order appointing the receiver.

The Supreme Court granted the petition and issued a peremptory writ of prohibition, ordering the trial court to desist from further proceedings under the order appointing the receiver. The Court held the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in appointing the receiver (110 Cal. 129, 144) . The Court noted the general rule that the appointment of a receiver to take property out of a defendant's possession without trial and without notice is unjustifiable except when it clearly appears that irreparable injury would be done during the few days necessary for a hearing on notice (110 Cal. 129, 138) . The trial court acted in excess of its jurisdiction in that the corporation was not subject to irreparable injury, because the corporation was already in receivership, as the result of a prior action, when the order appointing the receiver in the instant action was made (110 Cal. 129, 139) . The trial court further exceeded its jurisdiction in that it had no statutory authority to appoint a receiver to dissolve, in effect, the corporation by displacing the corporate management and putting the receiver in its place (110 Cal. 129, 140) .

McCall v. McCall Brothers Co. (1933) 135 Cal. App 558, 27 P.2d 648 , was an action for dissolution of partnership in which plaintiff sought, among other relief, the appointment of a receiver. On plaintiff's filing of her verified complaint, the trial court issued an ex parte order appointing a receiver. Defendant appealed from the order of appointment.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order appointing the receiver. The court held the trial court erred in making the ex parte order appointing the receiver, because plaintiff made no showing that irreparable injury would result if the receiver was not appointed. Relying on Fischer v. Superior Court (1895) 110 Cal. 129, 138, 42 P. 561 (discussed above), the court reiterated the general rule that so harsh a measure as the appointment of a receiver to take property out of a defendant's possession without trial and without notice would be unjustifiable except when it clearly appears that irreparable injury will be done during the few days necessary for a hearing on notice. The court found the allegations of the complaint in the instant case to be insufficient to show any great emergency or that any irreparable injury would be done during the few days necessary for a hearing on notice of an application for the appointment of a receiver (135 Cal. App 558, 559) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
2. Order to Show Cause re Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.62

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.62 Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Appointment Void for Lack of Undertaking by Party Seeking Appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)]

[1] FORM Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Appointment Void for Lack of Undertaking by Party Seeking Appointment [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)]

[Caption. See § 200.60[1].]

THE COURT'S EX PARTE ORDER APPOINTING A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION SHOULD NOT BE CONFIRMED, BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS FAILED TO FILE THE UNDERTAKING REQUIRED BY SECTION 566(b) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

Appointment Void When Applicant Fails to Give Undertaking. Before ordering the appointment of a receiver on an ex parte application, the court must require an undertaking from the applicant, and the court's failure to do so renders the order of appointment void (Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Stoff v. Erken (1916) 172 Cal. 481, 481-482, 156 P. 1033 ; Westphal v. Superior Court (1932) 120 Cal. App 263, 264, 7 P.2d 711).

[Add points and authorities, as necessary, setting forth additional procedural grounds §§ 200.21 et seq. and §§ 200.60, 200.61, and 200.63, as well as substantive grounds (see, e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260), in opposition to the appointment of a receiver.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the ex parte order appointing a receiver should be confirmed, on the ground that the party seeking the appointment has failed to file the undertaking required by Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b). The court must require the undertaking from the party seeking the appointment before making the order appointing the receiver ex parte. If the ex parte appointment has been procured wrongfully, maliciously, or without sufficient cause, the party opposing appointment is entitled to any damages sustained as a result of the receiver's appointment and entry on its duties [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.50 et seq.

This form may be combined with points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for opposing appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260].

In addition, these points and authorities may be adapted for use:

- In a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- As allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing the court's failure to exact the undertaking required by Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b) before making the ex parte appointment. See also the comments in § 200.50[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, a form of order to show cause why the ex parte appointment of a receiver should not be confirmed, and a form of order confirming the ex parte appointment of a receiver, California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment Void When Applicant Fails to Give Undertaking

In Stoff v. Erken (1916) 172 Cal. 481, 156 P. 1033 , an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage, the trial court issued an ex parte order appointing a receiver. Defendant subsequently appealed from the order of appointment.

Reversing the order of the trial court, the Supreme Court held the order to be erroneous because the record showed that the trial court failed to exact any undertaking from the applicant before making the order (172 Cal. 481, 481-482) . The Court based its ruling on former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)), which mandates a court, before making an ex parte order appointing a receiver, to require an undertaking from the applicant in an amount fixed by the court, to the effect that the applicant will pay to the defendant all damages sustained by the defendant if the applicant shall have wrongfully procured the order. The Court held the trial court's order erroneous even though the applicant, after filing the transcript in the Supreme Court, provided the Court with a certified copy of an undertaking purportedly on file in the trial court at the time the receiver was appointed. The Court noted that, even if it could consider the copy of the undertaking as part of the record on appeal, the copy did not cure the defect in the appointment, because it failed to show both that the undertaking was required by the trial court and the amount of the undertaking was fixed by the court as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 566. Because the bill of exceptions filed on appeal declared that it contained all of the proceedings surrounding the receiver's appointment but did not contain the undertaking or any order referring to it or fixing its amount, and because there was no proceeding to correct the bill, the copy of the undertaking could not be considered a part of the record on appeal (172 Cal. 481, 482) .

In Westphal v. Superior Court (1932) 120 Cal. App 263, 7 P.2d 711 , petitioner sought, and the court of appeal issued, a writ of prohibition to prevent a receiver appointed by respondent court from further interfering with petitioner's property. The court based its issuance of the writ on former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)), which mandates a court, before making an order appointing a receiver on an ex parte application, to require an undertaking from the applicant in an amount to be fixed by the court. By the undertaking, the applicant undertakes to pay to the defendant all damages the defendant may sustain by reason of the appointment of the receiver and entry by the receiver on his or her duties, in case the applicant has procured the appointment wrongfully, maliciously, or without sufficient cause. The court ruled that the appointment of the receiver was void because the applicant had not complied with the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (120 Cal. App 263, 264) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Appointment Void When Applicant Fails to Give Undertaking

In Sweins v. Superior Court (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 336, 60 P.2d 313 , an action to foreclose a chattel mortgage, respondent court issued an ex parte order appointing a receiver without requiring the applicants for the order to give an undertaking pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 556(b)). The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of prohibition to prevent enforcement of the order of appointment. The court held the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 to be mandatory such that the order of respondent court appointing the receiver without the required undertaking was void (16 Cal. App. 2d 336, 336) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
2. Order to Show Cause re Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.63

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.63 Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Appointment Void as to Codefendants to Whom Undertaking Does Not Run

[1] FORM Opposing Confirmation of Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver--Appointment Void as to Codefendants to Whom Undertaking Does Not Run

[Caption. See § 200.60[1].]

THE COURT'S EX PARTE ORDER APPOINTING A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION SHOULD NOT BE CONFIRMED, BECAUSE THE COURT'S APPROVAL OF THE UNDERTAKING DOES NOT RUN TO ALL THE DEFENDANTS IN THIS ACTION AND IS THEREFORE VOID AS TO THE DEFENDANTS TO WHOM THE UNDERTAKING DOES NOT RUN.

Undertaking Required to Run to All Defendants, and Appointment Void as to Codefendants to Whom Undertaking Does Not Run. The undertaking should be in such form that any defendant would have a right of action thereon if he or she is damaged by the appointment, and the court's approval of an undertaking that does not run to all defendants in an action renders the appointment void as to those defendants to whom the undertaking does not run (Title Insurance & Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 65, 127 P. 502 ; Falloon v. Superior Court (1926) 79 Cal. App 149, 153, 248 P. 1057).

[Add points and authorities, as necessary, setting forth additional procedural grounds §§ 200.21 et seq. and §§ 200.60 and 200.61, as well as substantive grounds (see e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260), in opposition to the appointment of a receiver.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the ex parte order appointing a receiver should be confirmed, on the ground that court's approval of the undertaking does not run to all the defendants in this action and is therefore void as to the defendants to whom the undertaking does not run [see Title Insurance & Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 65, 127 P. 502 ; Falloon v. Superior Court (1926) 79 Cal. App 149, 153, 248 P. 1057] . For points and authorities based on a lack of undertaking generally, see § 200.62[1].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.50 et seq.

This form may be combined with points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for opposing appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260].

In addition, these points and authorities may be adapted for use:

- In a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- As allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should insert facts showing the failure of the undertaking to run in favor of all defendants in the action. See also the comments in § 200.50[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, a form of order to show cause why the ex parte appointment of a receiver should not be confirmed, a form of order confirming the ex parte appointment of a receiver, and an opposing party's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Undertaking Required to Run to All Defendants, and Appointment Void as to Codefendants to Whom Undertaking Does Not Run

In Title Insurance & Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 127 P. 502 , an action to foreclose a mortgage or trust deed made by defendants to secure the payment of certain bonds issued by it, plaintiffs obtained the ex parte appointment of a receiver, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 564(2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) and (2), providing for the appointment of a receiver when mortgaged property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured, or when the property is probably insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt). Before the court issued its order of appointment, plaintiff filed the undertaking required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)). However, the undertaking ran in favor of one defendant only, and not in favor of defendant-appellant. When this defect in the undertaking was subsequently called to the trial court's attention, the court ordered plaintiff to file a new undertaking that would (1) run to all defendants, (2) ratify and confirm the original undertaking, and (3) provide that the liability on the undertaking last filed should relate back to and cover all damages caused by the appointment from the time it was made. On plaintiff's compliance with this order, defendant-appellant appealed from the ex parte order appointing the receiver, contending the order was void as to it.

The Supreme Court, finding that the undertaking in fact did run in favor of one of defendants and did not purport to run to or in favor of any other of defendants, including defendant-appellant, reversed the trial court's order appointing the receiver insofar as the order affected defendant-appellant (164 Cal. 58, 65, 66) . The Court held that the purpose of the undertaking requirement of former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)) is to provide security to each defendant for the recovery of any damages he or she might suffer at the hands of a receiver whose appointment was procured wrongfully, maliciously, or without sufficient cause. The undertaking should, therefore, be in such a form that any defendant has a right of action thereon if he or she is damaged by the appointment (164 Cal. 58, 65) . While the Court found it unnecessary to say whether the second undertaking operated to make the receiver's appointment valid from the date of the ex parte order of appointment, the Court did find that the second undertaking operated to make the appointment valid from the time of filing the second undertaking, and that it would also cure any defects in the manner of the execution of the original undertaking (164 Cal. 58, 65-66) . The Court noted that because defendant-appellant was not a necessary party to the action and did not claim any interest in the property in receivership, the reversal of the order of appointment would not affect the order's validity as to the other parties to the action and would inure only to the benefit of defendant-appellant. The result of excluding defendant-appellant from the order would be that its rights or interests would not be bound for any costs or expenses engendered by the receivership (164 Cal. 58, 66) .

In Falloon v. Superior Court (1926) 79 Cal. App 149, 248 P. 1057 , a contempt proceeding arose out of two underlying actions, a condemnation action and a quiet title action. In the quiet title action, plaintiff, who was not a party to the condemnation action, sued a number of defendants who each claimed an interest in the property that was the subject matter of both actions. One of these defendants, who was also an intervenor in the condemnation action, answered and cross complained, alleging both an equitable title to the property and the existence of an interlocutory judgment in the condemnation action in favor of the plaintiff city in that action. Her cross complaint also sought the appointment of a receiver to take charge of funds that the city had deposited in court in the condemnation action for ultimate disbursement to the owners of the condemned property. Subsequently, cross complainant noticed a motion to appoint the receiver. Five days later, plaintiff also noticed a motion to appoint a receiver of the funds. The trial court heard both motions on the same day and appointed a receiver.

In the contempt proceeding, cross complainant's attorney obtained a stipulation from all parties to both the condemnation and the quiet title actions, except the plaintiff in the quiet title action, to withdraw the funds, of which the receiver had been appointed, on deposit in court. The attorney then deliberately misrepresented to a presiding judge in a department other than the one in which the receiver had been appointed that the litigation was settled, and obtained an order from that judge permitting the withdrawal of the funds. Subsequently, counsel for plaintiff in the quiet title action instituted contempt proceedings against the attorney. After being found guilty of contempt under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(3) (willful neglect or violation of duty by an attorney as contempt) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(a)(3)), the attorney sought to annul the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of the trial court finding the attorney guilty of contempt (79 Cal. App 149, 159) . In so ruling, the court specifically addressed the appointment of the receiver. The court held the appointment to be, in effect, ex parte as to two of the defendants in the quiet title action, and as such, void as to them because the trial court failed to require from either of the moving parties the undertaking of an applicant for an ex parte order appointing a receiver, mandated by former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)). In so holding, the court found that neither motion for the appointment was served on these two defendants (79 Cal. App 149, 153) . Additionally, the notice of motion filed by the quiet title plaintiff not only was not served on the same two defendants, but also omitted all reference to any property or res to be taken into the possession of the receiver (79 Cal. App 149, 152-153) . Finally, even though the quiet title plaintiff amended her complaint to include a prayer for the appointment of a receiver, it was not clear to the court whether she had done so before or after the receiver was actually appointed (79 Cal. App 149, 153) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
2. Order to Show Cause re Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.64-200.69

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.64[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
3. Appointment of Receiver on Court's Own Motion

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.70

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.70 Supporting Court's Own Motion to Appoint Receiver

[1] FORM Supporting Court's Own Motion to Appoint Receiver

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name]	)	MEMORANDUM SUPPORTING COURT'S OWN
Plaintiff,	)	MOTION TO APPOINT RECEIVER
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE COURT HAS THE AUTHORITY TO APPOINT A RECEIVER ON ITS OWN MOTION, AND THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE SUPPORT THE EXERCISE OF THE COURT'S DISCRETION IN FAVOR OF THE APPOINTMENT.

Court May Appoint Receiver on Its Own Motion. In the exercise of its discretion, the court may appoint a receiver on its own motion, when the necessary facts and parties are before it, if it deems the case a proper one for a receiver (see Whitney v. Buckman (1864) 26 Cal. 447, 453 ; Venza v. Venza (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 883-884, 211 P.2d 913).

[Add points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for the appointment of a receiver (see, e.g., §§ 200.80 et seq., 200.270 et seq., and 200.350 et seq.).]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of appointment of a receiver on the court's own motion if the court requests briefing on the issue or may be incorporated in an appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

This form is a general form that should be combined with points and authorities that set forth appropriate substantive grounds for the appointment of a receiver [see, e.g., §§ 200.80 et seq., 200.270 et seq., and 200.350 et seq.].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities contending that the form of evidence is sufficient to justify appointment [see § 200.40[1]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is within the trial court's discretion under the particular facts of the case. For example, in an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in any of the following:

- Declarations and affidavits submitted in support of, or even in opposition to, the appointment [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver, general form of allegations and prayer in a complaint seeking the appointment of a receiver, and applicant's procedural checklist, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[d] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.20 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities. In addition, in an appropriate case, the memoranda opposing the appointment of a receiver on substantive grounds set in §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court May Appoint Receiver on Its Own Motion

In Whitney v. Buckman (1864) 26 Cal. 447 , plaintiffs obtained title to certain real property held by defendants. After judgment and pending defendants' motion for a new trial, plaintiffs sought injunctive relief to prevent defendants from diverting the flow of spring water on the property and to prevent defendants from damaging the building and machinery located on the property that plaintiffs used in their business of bottling and selling the spring water. At the hearing on plaintiffs' application for an injunction, the court did not grant injunctive relief but appointed a receiver to take charge of the springs, bottle and sell the waters, and retain the proceeds pending litigation. After entry of final judgment for plaintiffs, and on plaintiffs' motion, the trial court ordered the receiver to pay to plaintiffs the net proceeds of the sale of the water. Defendants appealed from this order.

The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order of payment of the proceeds to plaintiffs. The Court found the evidence sufficient to justify the appointment of the receiver (26 Cal. 447, 453) . The Court noted that when the trial court made the appointment, the necessary facts and parties were all before the court, and defendant did not object to the appointment. Furthermore, defendant did not seek a continuance to prepare himself further on the issue of the propriety of the appointment. On these facts, the Court found that the trial court, in the exercise of its discretion, deemed the case a proper one for a receiver rather than an injunction and made the appointment. The Court further found the interests of the parties to be served by the appointment. However, despite this language of approval, the Court held the order of appointment not reviewable, because defendant had not appealed from that order. Defendant appealed only from an order issued subsequent to judgment, and on that appeal the interlocutory order appointing the receiver could not be reviewed (26 Cal. 447, 453-454) .

In Venza v. Venza (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 211 P.2d 913 , plaintiff, a divorcee, brought an action against defendants, including her former husband, to establish her community interest in a cannery operated by defendants. Subsequent to filing the action, plaintiff obtained a temporary restraining order, restraining defendants from selling various agricultural products of the cannery during the current packing season. Defendants then moved the court for an order either dissolving the restraining order or requiring plaintiff to furnish an undertaking as a condition of continuing the restraining order. At the hearing on defendants' motion, and with the consent of all parties, the court suggested that a receiver of the cannery be appointed to take charge of the finances of the business. The next day, again without objection from defendants, the court appointed a receiver to take possession of all of defendants' assets. The court then enjoined defendants from interfering with the possession of the receiver, and subsequently dissolved the temporary restraining order. Defendants appealed from the trial court's order appointing the receiver.

Quoting from Whitney v. Buckman (1864) 26 Cal. 447, 453 (discussed above), the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order appointing the receiver, holding that an order appointing a receiver may be made without any previous request by either party (94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 883) . In so ruling, the court noted that even though the order appointing the receiver was broader than the kind of order suggested in open court, the record contained no showing that counsel for defendants objected to either the appointment of the receiver or the scope of the order of appointment (94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 882) . Indeed, the court noted defendants' counsel's statement in the record that he thought, as a practical matter, the receivership would work out all right (94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 883) . Additionally, defendants' counsel was present in court when the temporary restraining order was dissolved, and made no objection to the dissolution (94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 882) . Finally, the court found no showing in the record that defendants suffered from the action of the trial court, that any miscarriage of justice resulted from the court's order, or that the receiver interfered with the orderly operation of the business or extended his powers further than to maintain the status quo of the business as originally suggested by the trial court (94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 882-883) .

76 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
A. Proceedings to Appoint Receiver
3. Appointment of Receiver on Court's Own Motion

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.71-200.79

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.71[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
1. Vendor's Action to Vacate Fraudulent Purchase

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.80

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.80 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Vendor to Vacate Fraudulent Purchase of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Vendor to Vacate Fraudulent Purchase of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS A VENDOR WHO IS SEEKING TO VACATE A FRAUDULENT PURCHASE OF PROPERTY, HE/SHE/IT HAS A PROBABLE _____ [RIGHT TO or INTEREST IN] [THE PROCEEDS OF] THE PROPERTY SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP, AND THE _____ [PROCEEDS or PROPERTY] IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ [LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY].

Action by Vendor to Vacate Fraudulent Purchase of Property. The court in which an action or proceeding is pending may appoint a receiver in an action by a vendor to vacate a fraudulent purchase of property on the application of any party whose right to or interest in the property, or its proceeds, is probable, and when the applicant shows that the property is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action by a vendor to vacate a fraudulent purchase of property when [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]:

- The interest of the moving party in the property or its proceeds is probable, and
- It is shown that the property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured.

This memorandum should be combined with a form of memorandum relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, this memorandum may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].
- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].
- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].
- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing fraud, that the moving party has a right to or interest in the property sought to be placed in receivership, or its proceeds, and that the property is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. For example, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations and affidavits submitted in support of or in opposition to the appointment [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].
- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.
- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.
- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Showing Required

Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) states that a receiver may be appointed in an action by a vendor to vacate a fraudulent purchase of property on the application of any party whose right to or interest in the property, or its proceeds, is probable, and when it is shown that the property is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. Nevertheless, counsel should note that in Cal. Delta Farms v. Chinese Amer. Farms (1928) 204 Cal. 524, 526, 269 P. 443 , the Supreme Court held that in order to justify the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), either fraud must be shown in the purchase or the party seeking the receiver must be shown to have some right in, lien on, or claim to the property or fund in issue. Cal. Delta Farms is discussed in § 200.150[3][a].

[d] Related Memoranda

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
1. Vendor's Action to Vacate Fraudulent Purchase

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.81-200.89

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.81[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.90

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.90 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF], TOGETHER WITH _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT], JOINTLY _____ [OWNS or IS INTERESTED IN] [THE PROCEEDS OF] _____ [THE PROPERTY or A FUND] SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP, HE/SHE/IT HAS A PROBABLE _____ [RIGHT TO or INTEREST IN] [THE PROCEEDS OF] THE PROPERTY OR FUND, AND THE _____ [PROCEEDS or PROPERTY or FUND] IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ [LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY].

A. Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property, Fund, or Proceeds. In an action between parties jointly owning or interested in property or a fund, or the proceeds of either, a receiver may be appointed by the superior court in which the action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, on the application of any party whose right to or interest in the property, fund, or proceeds is probable, and when the applicant shows that the property, fund, or proceeds is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1); Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 710, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787).

B. Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds. If it appears that the party seeking the appointment of the receiver has at least a probable right to or interest in the property or fund sought to be placed in receivership, the appointment will not be disturbed on appeal (Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 710, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; Republic of China v. Chang (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 130-131, 285 P.2d 351).

C. Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury. If it appears that the property or fund sought to be placed in receivership is in danger of destruction, removal, or misappropriation, the appointment will not be disturbed on appeal (see Goes v. Perry (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 373, 381, 115 P.2d 441 ; Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 275, 171 P.2d 75).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should appoint a receiver in an action between parties jointly owning or interested in property or a fund, or the proceeds thereof, on the grounds that the party seeking the appointment must have a probable right to or interest in the property, fund, or proceeds sought to be placed in receivership, and that the property, fund, or proceeds is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].
- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].
- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].
- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing a probable joint or common interest between or among the parties in the property or fund sought to be placed in receivership, and showing that the property or fund, or its proceeds, is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 200.130 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the points and authorities set out in this general form (as well as the points and authorities designed to be combined with this form, set out in § 200.91).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property, Fund, or Proceeds.

The facts and procedural background of Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787 , are discussed in § 200.50[3][c]. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's affirmance of its ex parte order appointing a receiver of defendant's hotel and convention center. The court of appeal ruled that the pertinent question on a motion for a receivership is whether the facts alleged in a petitioner's complaint and declarations establish at least a probability of a joint or common interest in an enterprise that is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1). The court found not only that the allegations of the supporting documents in the instant case sufficiently disclosed the required interest and danger, but also that the trial court was justified in its finding that the ex parte appointment of the receiver was warranted (249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 712) .

[b] Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds

The facts and procedural background of Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787 , are discussed in § 200.50[3][c]. In affirming the trial court's affirmance of its ex parte order appointing a receiver of defendant's hotel and convention center, the court of appeal held that the appointment of a receiver rests largely in the discretion of the trial court. Therefore, if it appears that the party seeking the appointment has at least a probable right or interest in the property sought to be placed in receivership, the appointment of the receiver will not be disturbed on appeal (249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 710) . The court then held that plaintiffs had made a sufficient showing of joint or common interest in the property to warrant the appointment of the receiver (249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 710) . In so holding, the court considered the terms of the lease between plaintiffs and defendants, which provided that, in exchange for plaintiffs' lease of the real property to defendants for a period of 99 years, defendants would pay to plaintiffs a minimum monthly rental, together with a percentage rental of certain gross receipts of the hotel and convention business. The court also considered plaintiffs' agreement to allow defendant to subordinate the entire premises, including the land, to construction loans, and plaintiffs' agreement to act as co-trustors with defendant on chattel mortgages and two deeds of trust securing the purchase price of the property. The trust deeds assigned the rents of the property to the holders of the first and second deeds of trust in the event of a default (249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 708, 711) . In ruling that the totality of these financial arrangements provided a joint or common interest in the property among the parties, sufficient to justify the appointment of the receiver, the court noted the importance of the financial provisions, inasmuch as they increased the liabilities of plaintiffs far beyond those normally found in the usual lessor-lessee situation (249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 711) .

In Republic of China v. Chang (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 285 P.2d 351 , plaintiff government advanced in the course of business several million dollars to the director of one of its purchasing offices in the United States who, in turn, entered into a conspiracy with defendant to embezzle some of these funds. Pursuant to the conspiracy, defendant and the purchasing office director represented to plaintiff that they had spent several thousand dollars on the purchase of aircraft equipment and in payment of administrative expenses. In reality, the purchasing office director gave the funds to defendant, who used them to purchase assorted real and personal property for his own use, including various objets d'art and an automobile. Plaintiff subsequently closed the purchasing office and filed an action for an accounting in federal court against the director. After the director fled the United States, plaintiff commenced actions against defendant for embezzlement and money had and received, seeking damages and the imposition of a constructive trust on the property acquired by defendant with the embezzled funds. Plaintiff also sought the ex parte appointment of a receiver, claiming that defendant had threatened to leave the United States permanently in the near future and to take the personal property with him, and was in fact engaged in removing all of his assets, including the personal property, from the state. The trial court appointed, ex parte, a receiver of the property and subsequently confirmed the appointment. Defendant then appealed from both the order of appointment and the order of confirmation.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's orders. The court noted that the appointment of a receiver is a matter in the discretion of the trial court and that if it appears that the party seeking the appointment has at least a probable right or interest in the property, and that there is danger of the property being lost, destroyed, or misappropriated, then a reviewing court is, as a general rule, in no position to say that a court of first instance has abused its discretion in appointing the receiver. The court then held that the allegations of plaintiff's verified complaint, together with declarations supporting an application for an order for defendant's arrest and supporting plaintiff's application for the appointment of the receiver, were legally sufficient to show that plaintiff had a probable interest in the property and that there was danger that the property would be removed from the jurisdiction of the superior court (134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 131-132) . These documents contained allegations that defendant had in his possession a number of objets d'art that he had purchased with funds received by him from the purchasing office director, that defendant intended to leave the United States permanently, that he intended to ship all of his personal belongings, including the objets d'art, to an unknown destination, and that he had recently applied for a visa for entry into a foreign country (134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127-128) .

[c] Showing That Property Is in Danger of Destruction, Removal, or Loss

The facts and procedural background of Goes v. Perry (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 373, 381, 115 P.2d 441 , are discussed § 200.10[3][a]. In Goes, intervenor sought to impose a constructive trust on, and to place in receivership, personal property consisting of the furniture and fixtures of a hotel and club. Intervenor claimed that the money used to purchase the personal property was wrongfully appropriated from a trust fund belonging to her and others. The hotel and club, together with its business and the real property on which the hotel and club was located, were already in receivership at the time intervenor filed her complaint in intervention. In affirming the trial court's order appointing a receiver of the personal property, the Supreme Court held that the appointment of a receiver rests largely in the discretion of the trial court, and that its action in appointing the receiver will not be disturbed by an appellate court in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion. The Court found that the trial court did not abuse its discretion because the intervenor's allegations in support of the appointment were sufficient to justify the trial court in appointing the receiver for the preservation of the personal property. In so ruling, the Court considered intervenor's allegations that the quiet and peaceful possession, management, and control of all the property, real and personal, in the hands of one receiver was the best and only means of avoiding great confusion and loss of the property. The Court also considered intervenor's allegation that placing the personal property in receivership would not stop or seriously interfere with the hotel and club business but, on the contrary, would be absolutely essential to its continued operation (18 Cal. 2d 373, 380-381) .

The facts and procedural background of Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 171 P.2d 75 , are discussed in § 200.40[3][a]. In affirming the trial court's order appointing the receiver after notice and hearing, the court of appeal held that the appointment of a receiver is a matter in the discretion of the trial court. Therefore, if it appears that the party seeking the appointment has at least a probable right to or interest in the property, and that there is danger of the property being lost, destroyed, or misappropriated, a reviewing court is, as a general rule, in no position to say that a court of first instance has abused its discretion in appointing the receiver (75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 275) . The court of appeal found that under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) the apartment building in dispute was in danger of material injury. In so ruling, the court considered the allegations in defendant's cross complaint that plaintiff had, to the dissatisfaction of the tenants, failed to properly care for and manage the property, and that plaintiff was occupying one of the apartments in the building without paying rent. The court also considered plaintiff's claim that, unless a receiver was appointed, loss of rentals, deterioration and depreciation of the property, and dissipation of other assets was likely to result (75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 274) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.91

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.91 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Determination of Ultimate Issue of Precise Relationship of Parties Is Not Prerequisite to Granting Motion to Appoint Receiver

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Determination of Ultimate Issue of Precise Relationship of Parties Is Not Prerequisite to Granting Motion to Appoint Receiver

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS SHOWN A PROBABLE JOINT OR COMMON INTEREST IN THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND] CONCERNED, AND A DETERMINATION OF THE PRECISE RELATIONSHIP OF THE PARTIES IS NOT A PREREQUISITE TO APPOINTMENT OF A RECEIVER.

Determination of Ultimate Issue of Precise Relationship of Parties Is Not Prerequisite to Granting Motion to Appoint Receiver. In deciding whether to appoint a receiver, the trial court is not required to determine the ultimate issues involving the precise relationship of the parties; therefore, the party seeking the appointment of the receiver need show nothing more than a probable joint or common interest in the property or fund concerned (Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 711, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should appoint a receiver in an action between parties jointly owning or interested in property or a fund, or the proceeds thereof, on the ground that the party seeking the appointment has established a probable joint or common interest in the property or fund concerned. The trial court is not required to determine the ultimate issues involving the precise relationship of the parties [Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 711, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787 , discussed in § 200.91[3][a]].

From a strategic standpoint, counsel who represents a party who is seeking the appointment of a receiver normally would not raise the issue stated in these points and authorities in an initial memorandum. Rather, he or she would include the points and authorities in a reply memorandum or brief served in response to the opposing party's objection to the receivership.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For further discussion, see § 200.90[2][a].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel would refer to title, testamentary, or other documents that establish a probable joint or common interest in the property or fund concern. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 200.130 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the points and authorities set out in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Determination of Ultimate Issue of Precise Relationship of Parties Is Not Prerequisite to Granting Motion to Appoint Receiver

The facts and procedural background of Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787 , are discussed in § 200.50[3][c]. In affirming the trial court's affirmance of its ex parte order appointing a receiver of defendant's hotel and convention center, the court of appeal addressed appellants' contention that plaintiffs had established no joint or common interest in the property sought to be placed in receivership. Finding that plaintiffs had established a joint or common interest in the property, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), the court held that the trial court, at the hearing on the confirmation of the ex parte appointment of the receiver (which the court of appeal termed "the motion for receivership"), was not required to determine the ultimate issues involving the precise relationship of the parties. At that pretrial stage of the proceedings, the trial court needed to determine nothing more than that the parties seeking the receivership showed a probable joint or common interest in the property concerned (249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 711) .

81 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.92-200.99

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.92[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.100

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.100 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] and _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT] ARE PARTNERS, _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS A PROBABLE _____ [RIGHT TO or INTEREST IN] THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND or PROCEEDS OF THE _____ (PROPERTY or FUND)] SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP, AND THE _____ [PROCEEDS or PROPERTY or FUND] IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ [LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY].

A. Action Between Partners. A receiver may be appointed in an action between partners when the party seeking the appointment has a probable right to or interest in the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, sought to be placed in receivership, and there is danger of the property, fund, or proceeds being lost, removed, or materially injured (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1); Whitley v. Bradley (1910) 13 Cal. App. 720, 725, 110 P. 596).

B. Appointment on Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds. When the trial court, albeit on conflicting evidence, is presented with proof of an actual business partnership, the appointment of a receiver of the assets of the partnership is entirely within the trial court's discretion, and an appellate court is not justified in substituting its discretion for that of the trial court unless the trial court has abused its discretion in ordering the appointment (Baldwin v. Baldwin (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 175, 177, 153 P.2d 567 ; Whitley v. Bradley (1910) 13 Cal. App. 720, 725, 110 P. 596).

C. Appointment on Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury. When it appears that there is danger of misappropriation or loss of the property of a partnership, a reviewing court is in no position to say that the trial court has abused its discretion in appointing a receiver of the property (Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 19, 21-22, 247 P.2d 609 ; Breedlove v. Breedlove Excavating Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 141, 143, 132 P.2d 239)

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should appoint a receiver in an action between partners on the ground that the party seeking the appointment has a probable right to or interest in the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, sought to be placed in receivership, and that the property or fund, or its proceeds, is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

These points and authorities should be linked with points and authorities related to an action between parties jointly interested in property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, generally [see § 200.90[1]].

As required, these points and authorities may also be linked with points and authorities providing that determination of the ultimate issue of the precise relationship of the parties is not prerequisite to granting a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.91[1]], and with points and authorities providing that a determination of whether the relationship between the parties is a partnership or joint venture is immaterial [see § 200.121[1]].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that a partnership exists and that the partnership property or fund, or its proceeds, is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs . For memoranda of points and authorities relating to actions involving partnerships generally, see Ch. 170, Partnerships and Joint Ventures .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 200.140 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the points and authorities set out in this form.

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of allegations and prayers in complaints seeking the appointment of a receiver in an action between partners, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution . For discussion and forms of a notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver, and a declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Between Partners

In Whitley v. Bradley (1910) 13 Cal. App. 720, 110 P. 596 , plaintiffs sought the dissolution of a partnership, an accounting of the partnership's business, and the interim appointment of a receiver to take possession of the assets of and run the business. According to the complaint, plaintiffs and defendant entered into an agreement to form a partnership to conduct the business of manufacturing and selling cement wash-trays and to conduct a general cement construction business. Under the agreement, each of the three parties would furnish a third of the capital necessary to carry on the business, each would receive a third of the profits of the business, and each would be liable for a third of the debts of the business. By conducting the business according to the terms of the partnership agreement, the partnership acquired assorted real and personal property. Some time subsequent to the partnership agreement, defendant denied the existence of the partnership and plaintiffs' interest therein, excluded plaintiffs from any participation in the business, and took sole charge of the business, retaining all the income from the business. After notice and hearing on plaintiffs' motion to appoint a receiver, the trial court ordered a receiver of the business appointed. Defendants appealed from the order.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order appointing the receiver, finding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in ordering the appointment (13 Cal. App. 720, 726) . The court held that before a court is justified in appointing a receiver, it must appear that the person seeking the receivership has at least a probable right to or interest in the property or fund involved in the litigation, and that there is danger of its being lost, destroyed, or misappropriated unless a receiver is appointed (13 Cal. App. 720, 725) . The court found that there was a showing, sufficient to warrant affirming the trial court's order, that the parties formed themselves into a partnership for the purpose of conducting the business, preparatory to forming a corporation (13 Cal. App. 720, 728-729) . The court also found that plaintiff had made a showing that the business assets were in danger of loss or misappropriation, in light of the allegations in the complaint that defendant, in retaining sole charge of the business, had reduced the quality of goods manufactured by the business, sold the goods at unreasonably low prices, liquidated the business' assets, and applied the proceeds of the liquidated assets to his own use (13 Cal. App. 720, 723) .

[b] Appointment on Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds

In Baldwin v. Baldwin (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 175, 153 P.2d 567 , plaintiff sought a judgment for money had and received and on an account stated. Defendant answered and cross complained, alleging a partnership in a business with plaintiff, and demanding an accounting. Defendant then moved the trial court for the appointment of a receiver. Plaintiff answered defendant's cross complaint, and filed affidavits in opposition to defendant's motion. After considering the pleadings, affidavits, and testimony of the parties, the trial court entered an order appointing a receiver. Plaintiff appealed from that order.

The court of appeal affirmed the order of the trial court. It found plaintiff's contention that there were no assets to be placed in receivership in which defendant could claim an interest to be without merit. The court held that when it appears, albeit on conflicting evidence, that there is proof of an actual business partnership, that the business is insolvent, and that assets are being wasted or misappropriated, the appointment of a receiver of the assets is within the discretion of the trial court. An appellate court will not interfere with the exercise of that discretion unless it has been so abused as to result in a miscarriage of justice (67 Cal. App. 2d 175, 177) . In so ruling, the court, unconvinced that the trial court abused its discretion in appointing the receiver, held defendant's evidence, even though contradicted by plaintiff, to be sufficient to deter it from interfering with the trial court's order (67 Cal. App. 2d 175, 178) . The court based its holding on defendant's testimony that she loaned plaintiff the money with which to go into business, that she was his business partner, and that she assisted him in the manual performance of their business undertakings, including paying the bills and doing the banking. The court relied, additionally, on her testimony that the funds of the business were deposited jointly in her name and that of plaintiff, that the assets of the business amounted to approximately $10,000, and that appellant had threatened to ruin the business rather than account to her (67 Cal. App. 2d 175, 177-178) .

The facts and procedural background of Whitley v. Bradley (1910) 13 Cal. App. 720, 110 P. 596 , are discussed in § 200.100[3][a]. In Whitley, defendant contended the trial court abused its discretion in appointing a receiver of the partnership's assets and property in that there was no partnership relation among the parties by which plaintiffs could claim an interest in the assets and property of the business. The court of appeal rejected this contention. In affirming the trial court's order appointing the receiver, the court of appeal initially noted plaintiffs' contention that the original agreement between the parties was to form a partnership to conduct business, to thereafter incorporate the business, and then to transfer the business and the partnership's property to the corporation. Under that agreement, the property was owned and the business was conducted by the parties as partners (13 Cal. App. 720, 726) . While there was not an overwhelming amount of evidence showing that the parties first formed themselves into a partnership to conduct the business, there was a sufficient showing that that was the original arrangement and intention of the parties, and that they in fact did form a partnership and conduct business as partners, to warrant the appointment of a receiver on the basis of plaintiffs' probable partnership interest in the assets and property of the business (13 Cal. App. 720, 728-729) . The partnership did, in fact, acquire property, including the lease to property on which a building was to be built to house the operations of the business (13 Cal. App. 720, 727) . This lease, of itself, was a valuable asset. Additionally, a corporation was, in fact, formed, but the property and business were never transferred to it. Therefore, the property and business in which plaintiffs claimed an interest remained in the partnership (13 Cal. App. 720, 729) .

[c] Appointment on Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 19, 247 P.2d 609 , arose out of actions to rescind an assignment by plaintiffs to defendant of their interest in the invention of and the patent on a potato slicer, and an accounting to one of plaintiffs as administratrix of the affairs of a partnership between defendant and decedent, his partner. The trial court in that action, affirmed in Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 833, 245 P.2d 514 , decreed the existence of a partnership, the rescission of the assignment, a settlement of the partnership affairs, and an accounting to decedent's estate under the supervision of the probate court for decedent's interest in the partnership and in all profits collected by defendant from the business he conducted for the partnership. When plaintiffs received no accounting in probate, and when it appeared likely that they never would, they obtained an order, from another trial court, appointing a receiver of the business, books, records, property, and assets of the partnership. Defendant appealed from the order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal affirmed the order, finding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in making the order. The court held that when, as in the instant case, it appears there is danger of a misappropriation of the property of a partnership and there is evidence, albeit conflicting, of the likelihood of loss, a reviewing court is in no position to say that the trial court abused its discretion in appointing a receiver (113 Cal. App. 2d 19, 21-22) . In support of its holding, the court relied on the trial court's finding that defendant had in fact stated that he would personally spend the entire proceeds of the partnership business before he would pay the plaintiffs a nickel, that he would go bankrupt before he would account to them for anything, and that he would never turn any of the books of the partnership over to anyone. Relying on Baldwin v. Baldwin (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 175, 177, 153 P.2d 567 (discussed in § 200.10[3][a]), for the proposition that these statements of defendant were sufficient to deter a reviewing court from interfering with the order appointing the receiver, the court found the trial court's belief in the truth of the statements to be sufficient to warrant the order (113 Cal. App. 2d 19, 21) . The court noted, however, that the trial court also had before it the findings of the court in the underlying action that defendant had appropriated large amounts of money and property of the partnership to his own use, had sold products of a gross value in excess of one million dollars and pocketed the money without any record or account, and had invested the proceeds of the business for his own use (113 Cal. App. 2d 19, 22) .

The facts and procedural background of Breedlove v. Breedlove Excavating Co. (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 141, 132 P.2d 239 , are discussed in § 200.10[3][a]. In Breedlove, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order appointing a receiver of the partnership business. The court held it to be an elementary and controlling principle that when it appears, albeit on conflicting evidence, that danger is threatened to property or funds, and a receiver of the threatened property or funds is appointed, a reviewing court seldom will hold a trial court guilty of an abuse of discretion in making the appointment (56 Cal. App. 2d 141, 143) . The court affirmed the trial court's exercise of its discretion in finding that plaintiff was a partner of one of the individual defendants and, as such, entitled to an equal interest in the profits of the business. The court also found that plaintiff was deprived, by defendant partner, of his right to share in those profits (56 Cal. App. 2d 141, 142-143) . Plaintiff was, therefore, entitled to the assistance of the court in having the funds and earnings of the partnership impounded and conserved, and in having his property protected from threatened loss and injury at the hands of defendants (56 Cal. App. 2d 141, 144) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Between Partners

In Spira v. Superior Court (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 536, 540, 116 Cal. Rptr. 93 , petitioners sought a writ of mandate to order the trial court to vacate its order overruling their demurrer to the fourth cause of action in real party in interest's cross complaint and to enter an order sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend. Granting the petition, the court of appeal ruled that the allegations in real party in interest's fourth cause of action, to the effect that petitioners abused court process by moving to appoint a receiver in their action against him for a declaration of rights and an accounting under a partnership agreement, failed to state a cause of action. The court noted, in dictum, that Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) provides for the appointment of a receiver in an action between partners when it is shown that the property or fund sought to be placed in receivership is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury (41 Cal. App. 3d 536, 540) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.101

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.101 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Appointment of Receiver to Wind Up Partnership Business When Surviving Partner Refuses to Do So

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Appointment of Receiver to Wind Up Partnership Business When Surviving Partner Refuses to Do So

[This form should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting appointment of a receiver in an action between partners (see § 200.100).]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [name], THE SURVIVING PARTNER OF DECEDENT _____ [name] REFUSES TO WIND UP THE PARTNERSHIP'S BUSINESS.

Appointment of Receiver to Wind Up Business of Partnership When Surviving Partner Refuses to Do So. When the surviving partner refuses to wind up the business of the partnership on the death of a copartner, the trial court may appoint a receiver of the assets of a partnership, at the instance of the representative of a deceased partner (Jay v. Clark (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 94, 192 P.2d 462).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should appoint a receiver in an action between partners on the ground that a surviving partner refuses to wind up the business of the partnership on the death of a copartner [see Jay v. Clark (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 94, 192 P.2d 462 , discussed in § 200.101[3][a]].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting appointment of a receiver in an action between partners [see § 200.100[1]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that a partnership has deceased, and the surviving partner has refused to wind up the partnership's business. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 200.140 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the points and authorities set out in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Wind Up Business of Partnership When Surviving Partner Refuses to Do So

In Jay v. Clark (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 192 P.2d 462 , plaintiff administrator of decedent's estate brought an action against defendant to wind up the business of a partnership that had existed between decedent and defendant. The business of the partnership was the printing and publication of a newspaper. According to the complaint, defendant failed to wind up the partnership affairs after decedent's death and continued the business. Defendant refused to render any account of decedent's interest in the business, failed to keep true accounts of the business, and failed to pay funds due to decedent from the partnership. The court tried the matter sitting without a jury. It filed findings that since decedent's death, defendant had carried on the partnership business without the consent of plaintiff, decedent's heirs, or the legatees under decedent's will, that defendant had refused to wind up the partnership affairs or render any accounting of decedent's interest in the business, and that an accounting was necessary. The court entered an interlocutory judgment appointing a receiver to take possession of the property and assets of the partnership, to collect its assets and to sell the business, and to operate it until it could be sold as a going concern. Defendant appealed from the judgment, contending that it unlawfully ousted him from possession of the business and deprived him of his right to wind up.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment, finding the trial court did not abuse its discretion in appointing the receiver to wind up the partnership affairs and sell the assets (85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 94) . The court cited Whitley v. Bradley (1910) 13 Cal. App. 720, 110 P. 596 (discussed in § 200.100[3][b]), for the proposition that an order appointing a receiver of a partnership business is one of sound judicial discretion that will not be disturbed in the absence of a showing of clear abuse (85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 95) . Regardless of a surviving partner's general right to wind up the business, a court of equity may take the partnership assets from his or her possession and control and appoint a receiver when partnership property is being mismanaged, wasted, or improperly commingled with that of the survivor, or when the survivor is faithless to his or her duty and, for example, continues the business for a purpose other than closing it or delays unreasonably in closing it (85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 94-95) . The court noted that the relationship of a surviving partner to the administrator of a deceased partner is fiduciary; therefore, the survivor must exercise his or her talents and industry honestly and in the highest good faith. The court concluded that from defendant's testimony, his attitude toward the administrator of decedent's estate, and his conduct of the partnership's affairs, the trial court was justified in questioning defendant's good faith. The court noted that while defendant claimed the business had only a value of from $7,000 to $11,000 at the time of decedent's death, he admitted that he had had an offer of $20,000 for what would have been the equivalent of a two-thirds interest (85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 95) . Additionally, the record showed that three years prior to the commencement of the action, defendant would have been happy to buy an undivided half interest in the business for $22,500, take over the accounts, and assume all the indebtedness. Finally, one of plaintiff's witnesses testified, in effect, that at the time of decedent's death, the equipment alone was worth more than defendant's estimated value of the business.

In light of these showings, coupled with defendant's contentions that there was nothing due plaintiff, and that not only was defendant entitled to keep all of the partnership property but also that the estate was indebted to him for some $2,100, the court found the trial court justified in finding the appointment of the receiver necessary (85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 95-96) .

84 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.102-200.109

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.102[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.110

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.110 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Vendors and Vendees [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Vendors and Vendees [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS _____ [specify relationship between parties, e.g., THE VENDOR OF REAL PROPERTY TO _____ (specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT VENDEE)], HAS A PROBABLE _____ [RIGHT TO or INTEREST IN] _____ [THE PROPERTY or THE PROCEEDS OF THE PROPERTY] SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP, AND THE _____ [PROPERTY or PROCEEDS] IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ [LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY].

A. Action Between Vendor and Vendee. In an action between a vendor and a vendee, such as an action by a vendor of real property against a vendee in default under the contract of sale, Code of Civil Procedure, Section 564(b)(1) authorizes the appointment of a receiver when the party seeking receivership shows that it has a probable interest in the property and that there is danger of its loss or material injury (Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706, 191 P.2d 513 ; Barnes v. Morrison (1929) 102 Cal. App. 152, 159, 282 P. 986).

B. Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds. If it appears that the party seeking the appointment of the receiver has at least a probable right to or interest in the property sought to be placed in receivership, and the trial court so finds, then a reviewing court is, as a general rule, in no position to say that the trial court has abused its discretion in appointing the receiver (Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706, 191 P.2d 513 ; Barnes v. Morrison (1929) 102 Cal. App. 152, 158-159, 282 P. 986).

C. Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury. If it appears that the property sought to be placed in receivership is in danger of destruction, removal, or misappropriation, and the trial court so finds, then a reviewing court is, as a general rule, in no position to say that the trial court has abused its discretion in appointing the receiver (Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706, 191 P.2d 513).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should appoint a receiver in an action between a seller of real property and his or her buyer on the grounds that the seller has a probable interest in the property or its proceeds and when it appears that the property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

These points and authorities should be linked with points and authorities related to an action between parties jointly interested in property or fund, or proceeds thereof, generally [see § 200.90[1]]. As required, these points and authorities may also be linked with points and authorities providing that determination of ultimate issue of precise relationship of parties as not prerequisite to granting motion to appoint receiver [see § 200.91[1]].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].
- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].
- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].
- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the cause of action is one between parties jointly interested in property or its proceeds, that the party seeking the receivership has a probable right to or interest in the property, or its proceeds, and that the property or the proceeds is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 200.150[1] may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Between Vendor and Vendee

In Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 191 P.2d 513 , plaintiff vendor and defendant vendee entered into a contract for the sale of real property on which was located a citrus grove and a private residence. The contract provided that title was to remain in the vendor until the purchase price was paid in full, that the vendor had the right to all proceeds received from sale of the fruit produced from the citrus grove, and that if the vendor advanced money in connection with the care, operation, or maintenance of the property, he was to be reimbursed out of the first money received in connection with the transaction. The contract included a provision stating that there existed a trust deed on the property that required the property to be correctly cared for and protected. Defendant defaulted on his payments under the contract, and plaintiff instituted an action to quiet title to the property and sought, ex parte, the appointment of a receiver to culture and care for the citrus grove. The trial court ordered the appointment of a receiver, and defendant appealed from the order of appointment.

The court of appeal affirmed the order of the trial court, finding that the trial court had jurisdiction to appoint a receiver. The court ruled that Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) authorizes the appointment of a receiver on the application of the plaintiff or of any party whose right to or interest in the property or fund is probable, and when it is shown that the property or fund is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 704) . In so ruling, the court found that in the instant action between parties jointly interested in property, plaintiff had made a sufficient showing to the trial court that he had a probable interest in the property and that there was danger of its loss or material injury. Additionally, the court particularly noted the fact that plaintiff's right to the proceeds of the citrus crop was an admitted fact (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706) . The court based its ruling in part on the nature of the order appointing the receiver, which it found to be notable not for the powers it granted to the receiver but for the extreme limitation based on those powers. The order, which simply authorized the receiver to properly culture and care for the citrus grove, left the use and possession of the residence with defendants, and did not grant the receiver either possession or control of the proceeds of the crop (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 704) .

In Barnes v. Morrison (1929) 102 Cal. App. 152, 282 P. 986 , plaintiff administrator of decedent's estate entered into a contract for the sale of farmland of the estate. The buyer deposited a percentage of the purchase price with plaintiff, but failed to make further payments. When plaintiff subsequently demanded payment of the balance of the purchase price, the buyer responded that he was financially unable to obtain the money. Plaintiff then elected to rescind the sale, notifying the buyer of his breach of the contract of sale and declaring a forfeiture of the deposit. Subsequently, and without plaintiff's knowledge or authority, the buyer purported to lease the property to a third party, on terms entitling the buyer to share in the crops to be produced on the property. Pursuant to this purported lease, the third party took immediate possession of the property and planted crops. Plaintiff then instituted an action against both the buyer and his lessee, seeking forfeiture of the deposit, termination of defendants' claim to the property and the crops, and the appointment of a receiver to harvest and market the crops and to take charge of the proceeds pending the litigation. The trial court appointed the receiver but subsequently rescinded the order and revoked the appointment. The court then sustained defendants' demurrers to the complaint without leave to amend and entered judgment dismissing the action. Plaintiff appealed from both the judgment of dismissal and the order revoking the appointment of the receiver.

The court of appeal reversed both the judgment of dismissal and the order revoking the appointment of the receiver, holding that, in the instant action between parties jointly interested in the property, Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) authorized the receiver's appointment (102 Cal. App. 152, 159) . The court found that plaintiff had an interest in the property and the crops, since defendants, who wrongfully entered on the property and grew the crops without plaintiff's consent or knowledge, had no right or title to either (102 Cal. App. 152, 158) . Additionally, the crops were in immediate danger of removal because they were ready for harvest at the time plaintiff filed his complaint and because defendants had threatened to so harvest and market the crops for their own benefit (102 Cal. App. 152, 155) .

[b] Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds

The facts and procedural background of Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 191 P.2d 513 are discussed in § 200.110[3][a]. In Snidow, the court held that the trial court had jurisdiction, under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), to appoint the receiver. In support of its holding, the court found that plaintiff made a showing of probable interest in the property (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 706) . The court based its finding on the admitted fact of the provision in the contract of sale granting plaintiff the right to all the proceeds received from the sale of fruit from the citrus grove on the property. Additionally, the contract provided that title was to remain in plaintiff until the purchase price was paid in full. Finally, the contract provided that if plaintiff advanced money in connection with the care, operation, or maintenance of the property, he was to be reimbursed out of the first money received in connection with the transaction (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 703, 706) .

The facts and procedural background of Barnes v. Morrison (1929) 102 Cal. App. 152, 282 P. 986 , are discussed in § 200.110[3][a]. In reversing the trial court's order revoking the appointment of the receiver, the court of appeal found plaintiff to have a probable right to or interest in the property. The court found defendants to be trespassers and held that when crops are planted by a trespasser who wrongfully assumes to hold possession and threatens to harvest and market the crops for his or her own benefit, the appointment of a receiver is authorized in an appropriate proceeding (102 Cal. App. 152, 159) . The court reasoned that when a purchaser under an executory contract takes possession of property with the consent of the vendor, the purchaser has an equitable title. However, when the purchaser wrongfully enters without the knowledge or consent of the vendor, the purchaser acquires no right or title thereby. Similarly, the purchaser under an executory contract is the owner of crops grown on land during the time he or she is rightfully in possession, but the purchaser has no title to crops that are planted after his or her rights have been terminated by virtue of his or her own acts or default. Thus, if the facts alleged in plaintiff's complaint were true, defendant buyer was a mere trespasser who acquired no right, title, or interest in any share of the crops (102 Cal. App. 152, 158) . Similarly, if the buyer's codefendant and lessee had previous actual or constructive knowledge of defendant buyer's default and notice of termination of rights under the sale, the lessee could acquire no better title to the crops than his lessor possessed (102 Cal. App. 152, 159) .

[c] Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

The facts and procedural background of Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 191 P.2d 513 , are discussed in § 200.110[3][a]. In Snidow, the court held that the trial court had jurisdiction to appoint the receiver. The court found that plaintiff made a showing that the property was in danger of being lost or materially injured by the statement in his affidavit in support of the ex parte application that the value of the property had so depreciated since the contract was entered into that it was insufficient to discharge the balance due on the contract (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 703, 704) . The court found further evidence of danger of loss or material injury from the fact that defendants failed to irrigate, disc, and fertilize the grove at proper times, even though accepted agricultural practice required such care. Unless the grove was so tended when the trees were blooming and setting fruit, irreparable damage would be caused to the soil, trees, and crop (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 703, 706) . Additionally, testimony indicating a lack of financial ability on defendants' part to properly care for the property supported the showing of loss of or material injury to the property. Although the testimony taken at the hearing was sharply conflicting, plaintiff's testimony was in accordance with the statement in his affidavit, and he was corroborated by another witness as to defendants' lack of care of the property (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 703) . Finally, the contract of sale recognized the existence of a deed of trust on the property, and the trust deed required the property to be correctly cared for and protected (84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 703, 706) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action Between Vendor and Vendee

In Schreiber v. Ditch Road Investors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 164 Cal. Rptr. 633 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order approving the final account of a receiver and dismissing as moot a complaint in intervention. Plaintiff vendor brought the underlying action against defendant vendee in default under a contract of sale to enforce the provisions of a trust deed assigning rents, issues, and profits to plaintiffs as additional security. At plaintiff's request, and with the acquiescence of intervenor bank, which held a security interest in the crops growing on the property, the trial court appointed a receiver to take possession of the property, to care for, preserve, and maintain it, and to harvest and market the existing crops on the property and any other crops that might subsequently have matured during the term of the receivership (105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 678) .

86 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.111-200.119

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.111[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.120

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.120 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Joint Venturers [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Joint Venturers [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] AND _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT] ARE JOINT VENTURERS, _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS A PROBABLE _____ [RIGHT TO or INTEREST IN] _____ [THE PROPERTY or THE PROCEEDS OF THE PROPERTY] SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP, AND THE _____ [PROPERTY or PROCEEDS] IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ [LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY].

A. Action Between Joint Venturers. Section 564, subdivision (b)(1), of the Code of Civil Procedure authorizes the appointment of a receiver in an action between joint venturers when the moving party's right to or interest in the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, is probable and there is danger of the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, being lost, removed, or materially injured (Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 212-213, 331 P.2d 735 ; Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649, 279 P.2d 598).

B. Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds. When there is evidence that the moving party has at least a probable right to or interest in the property of a joint venture sought to be placed in receivership, the appointment of the receiver will not be disturbed on appeal (Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 213, 331

P.2d 735 ; Galich v. Brkich (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 187, 190, 229 P.2d 89).

C. Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury. When there is evidence that the property of a joint venture sought to be placed in receivership is in danger of destruction, removal, or misappropriation, the appointment of the receiver will not be disturbed on appeal (Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 213, 331 P.2d 735 ; Moore v. Oberg (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 223, 142 P.2d 443).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should appoint a receiver in an action between joint venturers on the ground that the party seeking appointment has a probable interest in the property or its proceeds and that the property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

These points and authorities should be linked with points and authorities related to an action between parties jointly interested in property or fund, or proceeds thereof, generally [see § 200.90[1]]. As required, these points and authorities may also be linked with points and authorities providing that determination of the ultimate issue of the precise relationship of the parties is not prerequisite to granting a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.91[1]].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].
- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].
- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].
- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing a joint venture as evidence of a probable joint or common interest between or among the parties in the property or fund sought to be placed in receivership, and showing that the property or fund, or its proceeds, is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to actions involving joint venturers generally, see Ch. 170, Partnerships and Joint Ventures .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 200.160[1] may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the points and authorities set out in this general form (as well as the points and authorities designed to be combined with this form, set out in § 200.121).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Action Between Joint Venturers

In Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 331 P.2d 735 , plaintiff brought an action for an accounting and for damages for fraud against his co-venturers. Plaintiff alleged that plaintiff and defendants entered into an agreement under which defendants undertook to manufacture a device for regulating the speed of electric motors which had been invented by plaintiff. Under the agreement, plaintiff was to do all experimental and design work, and to market the device, but was not to contribute any capital or be charged with any losses from the venture. Defendants, on the other hand, agreed to divide the net profits of the enterprise equally with plaintiff, to furnish him with quarterly statements, to remit with the statements any sums due him, and to permit him to inspect the books and records pertaining to the project. On termination of the venture, either party could buy out the interest of the other. Plaintiff then alleged that defendants formed a conspiracy to deprive him of his rightful share of the profits from the enterprise. Plaintiff also sought the appointment of a receiver of the business, and of all real and personal property owned by defendants, contending that defendants had acquired this property with funds wrongfully withheld from plaintiff. In support of the appointment, plaintiff alleged that defendants were insolvent, and that unless a receiver was appointed, they would conceal their property, remove it from the jurisdiction of the court, and alter or destroy their records. The trial court granted plaintiff's application for the ex parte appointment of the receiver and subsequently confirmed the order of appointment. Defendants appealed from both the order appointing the receiver and the order confirming the appointment.

The court of appeal dismissed, as not appealable, the ex parte order appointing the receiver, but affirmed the order confirming the appointment of the receiver (165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 215) . The court found that on the showing made by plaintiff, the trial court was warranted in confirming the appointment of the receiver. The appointment was authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), which provides for the appointment of a receiver in an action between parties jointly owning or interested in any property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, when the party seeking the appointment has a probable right to or interest in the property, fund, or proceeds and when it is shown that the property, fund, or proceeds are in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured (165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 212-213) .

In Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 279 P.2d 598 , an action by one of two joint venturers against the other and a corporation for an accounting, the interlocutory decree rendered in the action included an order appointing a receiver of the assets of the venture. The venture consisted in the management and use of a lease of certain real property owned jointly by plaintiff and the individual defendant. The individual defendant unsuccessfully claimed in the trial court that the venture also included the corporate codefendant, a refrigerator sales and repair business, and that therefore he was entitled to substantial offsets owing to losses in that phase of the venture. Defendants appealed from the trial court's order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order, finding that a clearer case could hardly be found for not disturbing the trial court's exercise of its sound discretion to order the appointment (130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 648-649) . The court ruled that the appointment came well within the purview of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) (130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649) . In support of its holding, the court found that the individual defendant was in sole control of the venture, executing subleases, collecting rents, and making disbursements through the medium of the refrigerator sales and repair business, the corporate codefendant (130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 648) . In this manner, defendant excluded plaintiff from participation in the management of the enterprise, from enjoyment of any share in its profits, and from all knowledge of its transactions. Additionally, the court found evidence that defendant had dissipated a very considerable portion of the receipts of the enterprise and had hazarded the loss of its sole asset (130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649) . For example, defendant failed to pay ad valorem taxes on the leased premises and allowed the property to remain sold to the state for nonpayment of prior taxes. Defendant also diverted a substantial amount of the venture's funds for the equipment, maintenance, and repair of the premises used for a restaurant business belonging to him personally and not to the joint venture (130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 648) . In light of these findings, the need for the appointment of the receiver to protect and conserve both the assets and plaintiff's share of future rentals was compelling (130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649) .

[b] Showing of Probable Interest in Property, Fund, or Proceeds

The facts and procedural background of Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 331 P.2d 735 , are discussed in § 200.120[3][a]. The court of appeal found that the trial court was warranted in confirming its ex parte order appointing a receiver of the joint venture and of defendants' real and personal property. In so doing, the court addressed defendants' contention that there was no evidence that plaintiff had an interest in the property placed in receivership. The court ruled that when there is evidence that a plaintiff has at least a probable right to or interest in the property sought to be placed in receivership, and that the property is in danger of destruction, removal, or misappropriation, the appointment of a receiver will not be disturbed on appeal. In applying this rule, the court found that under the agreement, plaintiff was to receive 50 percent of the net profits from the sale of the speed control device. Therefore, it could not be doubted that plaintiff had an interest in the net profits of the enterprise. Furthermore, the court found that the trial court could properly have inferred from the facts alleged in the affidavits supporting plaintiff's application for the appointment of the receiver that defendants were diverting to their own use the net profits which belonged to plaintiff. It was likewise a reasonable inference, if not a necessary one, from the showing made by plaintiff, that the real and personal property of defendants, subsequently placed in receivership, was acquired in large part with the funds withheld from plaintiff (165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 213) .

In Galich v. Brkich (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 187, 229 P.2d 89 , an action for dissolution and termination of an alleged partnership or joint venture, plaintiff moved the trial court for the appointment of a receiver of the business pending dissolution. The joint venture consisted in the operation of a contracting business by plaintiff and the individual defendant. The corporate defendant, which held the contractor's license under which business was conducted, was alleged to be the alter ego of the individual defendant, who was also the president of the corporation. The trial court granted plaintiff's motion and ordered the appointment of the receiver. Defendants appealed from the order.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order appointing the receiver, holding that it could not say that the trial court had manifestly abused its discretion in ordering the appointment. Even though the record disclosed conflict of evidence as to certain phases of the venture's transactions, and even though considerable confusion existed in reference to the accounts of the joint venture, the court found that plaintiff had shown a probable interest in the property and funds of the business. It was conceded that real and personal property was purchased with joint venture funds (103 Cal. App. 2d 187, 190) . Some of this property was held in the names of the individual parties, some in the name of the corporate defendant, and some in the name of plaintiff and the corporate defendant. Additionally, the oral agreement between the parties provided that profits and losses of the venture were to be equally shared, and specified an amount that each party was to draw in weekly wages (103 Cal. App. 2d 187, 188-189) .

[c] Showing That Property Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

The facts and procedural background of Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 331 P.2d 735 , are discussed in § 200.120[3][a]. In finding that the trial court was warranted in confirming its ex parte order appointing a receiver of the joint venture and of defendants' real and personal property, the court of appeal rejected defendants' contention that plaintiff made no showing that the property in receivership was in danger of loss, removal, or material injury (165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 214) . The court initially ruled that when there is evidence that a plaintiff has at least a probable right to or interest in the property sought to be placed in receivership, and that the property is in danger of destruction, removal, or misappropriation, the appointment of a receiver will not be disturbed on appeal (165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 213) . The trial court could reasonably have concluded from the evidence of defendants' continuous misappropriation of funds and diversion of profits into assets held by them in their own names, and from their concealment of the actual profits of the business, that those assets were in danger of being lost to plaintiff and placed beyond his reach. These facts, therefore, presented a showing sufficient to justify the appoint of the receiver (165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 214) .

The facts and procedural background of Moore v. Oberg (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 142 P.2d 443 , are discussed in § 200.51[3][a]. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order confirming its ex parte appointment of the receiver to take possession of the money, property, and accounts receivable of the joint construction contracting venture. The court found that the trial court did not clearly abuse its discretion, since the facts found by the trial court established an attempted scheme by defendants to deprive plaintiff of his property and of the advantages gained by the joint venture (61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 222-223) . Therefore, the appointment was warranted to the degree that plaintiff showed that the property or fund sought to be placed in receivership was in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured (61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 223) . The court relied on defendants' withdrawal of the bulk of the venture's funds from the venture's bank account, and their redeposit of the funds in personal accounts to which plaintiff had no access. Additionally, defendants' withdrawal of the funds left some obligations of the venture unsatisfied, over and above that portion of the funds due to plaintiff as his share of the profits of the business. The court thus found the appointment necessary to prevent defendants from collecting the accounts receivable and converting these accounts, together with the remaining joint assets of the business, to their own uses, and thereby irreparably injuring plaintiff's interest in the business (61 Cal. App. 2d 216, 218-219) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.121

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.121 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed--Action Between Joint Venturers--Whether Relationship Between Parties Is Partnership or Joint Venture Is Immaterial

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed--Action Between Joint Venturers--Whether Relationship Between Parties Is Partnership or Joint Venture Is Immaterial

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS SHOWN A PROBABLE JOINT OR COMMON INTEREST IN THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND] CONCERNED BY VIRTUE OF HIS/HER RIGHT UNDER THE AGREEMENT TO RECEIVE A SUBSTANTIAL PERCENTAGE OF THE NET PROFITS OF THE ENTERPRISE.

Whether Relationship Between Parties Is Partnership or Joint Venture Is Immaterial. It is immaterial whether an agreement creates a partnership or a joint venture when, under the agreement, the moving party is to receive a substantial percentage of the net profits of the enterprise (Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 213, 331 P.2d 735).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should appoint a receiver in an action between joint venturers on the ground that the moving party has shown a probable joint or common interest in the property or fund concerned in that under the agreement, the moving party is to receive a substantial percentage of the net profits of the enterprise.

From a strategic standpoint, counsel who represents a party who is seeking the appointment of a receiver normally would not raise the issue stated in these points and authorities in an initial memorandum. Rather, he or she would include the points and authorities in a reply memorandum or brief served in response to the opposing party's objection to the receivership.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For further discussion, see § 200.120[2][a].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should refer to the specific clause of the agreement creating the enterprise that establishes that the moving party is entitled to receive a substantial percentage of the net profits of the enterprise. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 200.160[1] may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the points and authorities set out in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Whether Relationship Between Parties Is Partnership or Joint Venture Is Immaterial

The facts and procedural background of Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 331 P.2d 735 , are discussed in § 200.120[3][a]. The court of appeal found that the trial court was warranted in confirming its ex parte order appointing a receiver of the joint venture and of defendants' real and personal property. In so doing, the court rejected defendants' contention that because the written agreement alleged in plaintiff's complaint created neither a partnership nor a joint venture, plaintiff was in the position of an unsecured creditor suing at law to recover a debt, and as such, not entitled to the appointment of a receiver. Preliminarily, the court noted that the action was not one at law, but essentially one in equity to obtain an accounting and establish a constructive trust. The court then held that it was immaterial whether the agreement created either a partnership or a joint venture, because under the agreement, whatever its denomination, plaintiff was to receive 50 percent of the net profits from the sale of the speed control device (165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 213) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.122-200.129

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.122[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.130

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.130 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Parties Jointly Owning or Interested in Property or Fund [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20 et seq.) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF], AS JOINTLY _____ [OWNING or INTERESTED IN] WITH _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT] THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND or PROCEEDS OF THE _____ (PROPERTY or FUND)] SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP, HAS NOT SHOWN THAT THE _____ [PROCEEDS or PROPERTY or FUND] IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ [LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY].

Party Who Fails to Show That Property, Fund, or Proceeds Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver. In order for a receiver to be appointed under Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(1), it is necessary that the party show that the property is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury (Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 873, 254 P.2d 599 ; Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 233, 237, 133 P. 1155).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action between parties jointly owning or interested in property or a fund, or the proceeds thereof, on the ground that the property or fund, or its proceeds, is not in danger of loss, removal, or material injury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in combination with memoranda opposing the appointment of receivers on procedural grounds [see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.20 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 200.90[1] and 200.91[1].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the property or fund, or its proceeds, is not in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

Counsel should note that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), the predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), which now provides for appointment of a receiver "in all other cases where necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party," that ground for appointment of a receiver could not be invoked in a case that alleged facts bringing it within one of the other subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 if the evidence did not support appointment under the other subdivision [Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599] . Therefore, these points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with the points and authorities set out in § 200.260[1] when it is contended that a subdivision other than Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) governs the appointment.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms, based on Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), of a notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver, and a declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party Who Fails to Show That Property, Fund, or Proceeds Is in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material

Injury Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver

The facts and procedural background of Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 254 P.2d 599 , are discussed in § 200.26[3][a]. Alhambra involved an attempt by plaintiff corporation to place in receivership certain mining property that it owned but that was under the control of defendant corporation, the assignee of a lease to the property. In reversing the trial court's order appointing the receiver, the court of appeal ruled that in order for plaintiff to invoke the power of the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), it was necessary for it to show that it shared a joint interest with defendant in the property, that its right to possession was probable, and that the property was in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured (116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 873) . While the court of appeal assumed, for the purposes of the opinion, that plaintiff shared a joint interest with defendant in the property, and conceded, for the purposes of the opinion, that the record justified the trial court's assumption that plaintiff's right to possession of the property was probable, the court found plaintiff unable to show that receivership was necessary to protect the property from loss, removal, or material injury. The court based its finding on defendant's showing that, contrary to plaintiff's allegations, defendant was not delinquent in the payment of wages to its employees, defendant was not in default of payment of certain tax and insurance obligations, and defendant was not in arrears in salary payments to the supervisor of the property because of defendant's inability to pay. Furthermore, the only purpose of the order appointing the receiver was to shut down the operations of the mine and mill on the property and to prohibit trespassing on the property, and this result could have been accomplished by injunctive relief (116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874) .

The facts and procedural background of Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 233, 133 P. 1155 , are discussed in § 200.20[3][b]. Dabney involved an attempt by plaintiff corporation to place in receivership two parcels of real property, one parcel of which was oil-producing and leased to defendant corporation, and the other parcel of which was undeveloped and unproved oil land owned by defendant corporation. In reversing the trial court's order appointing the receiver, the court of appeal found that the case clearly fell within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), as an action to recover property, together with a fund consisting of the proceeds derived from the operation of the property. As such, the trial court had no power to appoint a receiver unless it was satisfied that plaintiff's right in the property or fund, or its proceeds, was probable and that the property or fund, or its proceeds, was in danger of loss, removal, or material injury (22 Cal. App. 233, 237) . Conceding that the record justified the trial court's conclusion that plaintiff had a probable right to the property and the fund, the court of appeal found that the property was not in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured. The only purpose of the order appointing the receiver was to sequester the property's net income by requiring defendants to pay it to the receiver (22 Cal. App. 233, 238) . Because this purpose could have been achieved by injunctive relief, the court found the appointment of the receiver to be an abuse of discretion on the part of the trial court (22 Cal. App. 233, 239) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.131-200.139

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.131[Reserved]

92 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.140

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.140 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury--General Form

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20 et seq.) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF], AS A PARTNER OF _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT], HAS NOT SHOWN _____ [A PROBABLE _____ (RIGHT TO or INTEREST IN) THE _____ (PROPERTY or FUND or PROCEEDS OF THE _____ (PROPERTY or FUNDS)) SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP and/or THAT THE _____ (PROCEEDS or PROPERTY or FUND) IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ (LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY)].

[EITHER]

A. Failure to Show Probable Right to or Interest in Partnership Property or Funds. In an action between partners, a receiver may not be appointed pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(1) if it is not shown that the party seeking the appointment has a probable right to the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof (Rondos v. Superior Court (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 195, 311 P.2d 113 ; McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95, 223 P.2d 94).

[AND/OR]

B. Failure to Show That Partnership Property or Funds Are in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury. In an action between partners, a receiver may not be appointed pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(1) if it is not shown that the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured (Rondos v. Superior Court (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 195, 311 P.2d 113 ; McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95, 223 P.2d 94).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action between partners on the ground that the party seeking the appointment cannot show [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]:

- That the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, sought to be placed in receivership is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, or

- That he or she has a probable right to or interest in the property, fund, or proceeds.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 200.100[1] and 200.101[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, in an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in combination with memoranda opposing the appointment of receivers on procedural grounds [see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.20 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the property, fund, or proceeds are not in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, or that the party seeking the appointment has no probable interest in or right to the property, fund, or proceeds sought to be placed in receivership. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

Counsel should note that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), the predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), which now provides for appointment of a receiver "in all other cases where necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party," that ground for appointment of a receiver could not be invoked in a case that alleged facts bringing it within one of the other subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 if the evidence did not support appointment under the other subdivision [Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599] . Therefore, these points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with the points and authorities set out in § 200.260[1] when it is contended that a subdivision other than Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) governs the appointment.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of allegations and prayers in complaints seeking the appointment of a receiver in an action between partners, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution . For discussion and forms of a notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver, and a declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Show Probable Right to or Interest in Partnership Property or Funds

In Rondos v. Superior Court (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 311 P.2d 113 , plaintiff and defendants entered into an agreement to form a partnership. Under the agreement, one of two existing partners agreed to sell plaintiff an interest in a nightclub business, so that plaintiff and the remaining partner would then be new partners in the business. Plaintiff's purchase price was placed in an escrow, and the contract between the parties provided that title to the existing partner's interest would pass to plaintiff on closing of the escrow and after issuance of a new liquor license to the new partners. On the failure of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to issue the license, and on the remaining partner's withdrawal of the application for transfer of the liquor license and service of notice of rescission of the agreement on plaintiff, plaintiff brought an action for dissolution of partnership against the two partners. On plaintiff's motion, after notice and hearing, the trial court ordered the appointment of a receiver to take possession of and conduct the partnership's business. One of defendants appealed from the order, and sought a writ of prohibition in the court of appeal to prevent the trial court from enforcing the order.

The court of appeal issued the writ, concluding that the order appointing the receiver exceeded the trial court's jurisdiction in that plaintiff had no interest in the business. When a complaint fails by its allegations to show that the conditions required by law have been complied with, an order for the appointment of a receiver is void for all purposes (151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 195) . The court noted that plaintiff sought the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), providing that a receiver may be appointed in an action between partners on the motion of plaintiff or any party whose interest in the property is probable. The court found that plaintiff had no interest in the business since, by express stipulation of the contract between the parties, title to an interest in the business would not pass until the on-sale liquor license under which the business was operated had been transferred to the new partnership. Additionally, had the contract not so provided, the law would have, because the regulations governing the conduct of an on-sale liquor business prohibit the transfer of title to a licensed business except coincidentally with the transfer of the license (151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 194) .

In McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 223 P.2d 94 , plaintiff brought an action for dissolution of an oil drilling partnership. Defendant answered the complaint and, at the same time, filed a notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver for the preservation of the oil wells and pumping equipment constituting the physical property of the partnership. In support of his motion, defendant relied on assertions in his affidavit and in that of an employee that plaintiff was physically and mentally incompetent to manage the physical property of the partnership, and that plaintiff had negligently managed the property on one occasion. The trial court granted defendant's motion, and plaintiff appealed from the order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order, finding that the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) for the appointment of a receiver in an action between partners were not met. The trial court apparently based its order of appointment on the fact that if a partner in an action for dissolution requests the appointment of a receiver, he or she is entitled to one simply by virtue of the request. In finding this an insufficient basis on which to appoint a receiver, the court held that clearly the case at bar fell within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) as an action between partners. As such, the court had no power to appoint the receiver unless it was satisfied that the right of plaintiff in the property was probable and that the property was in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured (100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95) . Defendant's affidavits in support of the appointment of the receiver were insufficient to prove that plaintiff's negligence posed a danger to the partnership property since the allegation of negligence was merely a conclusion, unsupported by factual allegations. Thus, the court found there was no proof that the partnership property was in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, and ruled that the receiver should not have been appointed (100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 94-95) .

[b] Failure to Show That Partnership Property or Funds Are in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

The facts and procedural background of Rondos v. Superior Court (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 311 P.2d 113 , are discussed in § 200.140[3][a]. In granting defendant's writ of prohibition to prevent the trial court from enforcing its order appointing a receiver, the court of appeal held that it was apparent from the record that plaintiff neither alleged nor showed that even if plaintiff had any interest in the partnership business, there was any danger of loss, removal, or material injury to that interest (151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 194) . A party seeking appointment must demonstrate both that he or she has a probable right to or interest in the property, fund, or the proceeds sought to be placed in receivership, and that the property is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury (151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 195) .

McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 223 P.2d 94 , is discussed in § 200.140[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.141

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.141 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Mere Fact of Partner's Request for Appointment of Receiver in Dissolution Proceeding Is Insufficient to Justify Appointment

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Partners [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Mere Fact of Partner's Request for Appointment of Receiver in Dissolution Proceeding Is Insufficient to Justify Appointment

[This form should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities opposing appointment of a receiver in an action between partners (see § 200.140).]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE MERE REQUEST FOR APPOINTMENT OF A RECEIVER IN A CASE UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 564(b)(1) IS NOT SUFFICIENT TO JUSTIFY THE APPOINTMENT.

Mere Fact of Partner's Request for Appointment of Receiver in Dissolution Proceeding Is Insufficient to Justify Appointment. In an action for dissolution of a partnership, the mere fact that a partner requests the appointment of a receiver in a case falling within the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(1) is not a sufficient basis to justify the appointment (McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95, 223 P.2d 94).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action for dissolution of a partnership on the ground that the mere request for appointment of a receiver in such a case is not sufficient to justify the appointment under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1).

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities opposing appointment of a receiver in an action between partners [see § 200.140].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 200.100[1] and 200.101[1].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should refer to facts showing that the party seeking appointment has failed to show that the basic requirements for appointment under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) are present, despite the request for appointment. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Fact of Partner's Request for Appointment of Receiver in Dissolution Proceeding Is Insufficient to Justify Appointment

The facts and procedural background of McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 223 P.2d 94 , is discussed § 200.24[4][a]. The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order, finding that the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) for the appointment of a receiver in an action between partners were not met. The trial court apparently based its order of appointment on the fact that if a partner in an action for dissolution requests the appointment of a receiver, he or she is entitled to one simply by virtue of the request. In finding this an insufficient basis on which to appoint a receiver, the court held that clearly the case at bar fell within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) as an action between partners. As such, the court had no power to appoint the receiver unless it was satisfied that the right of plaintiff in the property was probable and that the property was in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured (100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.142-200.149

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.142[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.150

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.150 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Vendors and Vendees [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Failure to Show Fraud in Purchase or Interest in Property

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Vendors and Vendees [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Failure to Show Fraud in Purchase or Interest in Property

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20 et seq.) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify moving party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS NOT SHOWN A PROBABLE INTEREST IN THE _____ [PROPERTY or PROCEEDS OF THE PROPERTY] SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP IN THAT _____ [specify, e.g., PLAINTIFF VENDOR HAS SHOWN NEITHER FRAUD IN THE PURCHASE OF THE PROPERTY BY _____ (specify opposing party, e.g. DEFENDANT VENDEE) NOR ANY RIGHT IN OR LIEN ON THE PROPERTY].

Failure to Show Fraud in Purchase or Interest in Property. In order to justify the appointment of a receiver under Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(1) in an action between a vendor of real property and his or her vendee, the party seeking the appointment must show fraud in the purchase of the property or that he or she has some right in, lien on, or claim to the property (Cal. Delta Farms v. Chinese Amer. Farms (1928) 204 Cal. 524, 526, 269 P. 443 ; see Khatchadourian v. Davidian (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 539, 541, 179 P.2d 853).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action between a seller of real property and his or her buyer on the ground that the party seeking the appointment has no probable interest in the property or its proceeds [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)], or that there was fraud in the purchase of the property [see Cal. Delta Farms v. Chinese Amer. Farms (1928) 204 Cal. 524, 526, 269 P. 443] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, in an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in combination with memoranda opposing the appointment of receivers on procedural grounds [see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.20 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.110[1].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the party seeking the appointment has no probable interest in or right to the property, fund, or proceeds sought to be placed in receivership, or that there was fraud in the purchase of the property. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

Counsel should note that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), the predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), which now provides for appointment of a receiver "in all other cases where necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party," that ground for appointment of a receiver could not be invoked in a case that alleged facts bringing it within one of the other subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 if the evidence did not support appointment under the other subdivision [Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599] . Therefore, these points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with the points and authorities set out in § 200.260[1] when it is contended that a subdivision other than Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) governs the appointment.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms, based on Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), of a notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver, and a declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Show Fraud in Purchase or Interest in Property.

In Cal. Delta Farms v. Chinese Amer. Farms (1928) 204 Cal. 524, 269 P. 443 , plaintiff seller commenced an action against defendant buyer for forfeiture of the defendant's rights under a contract for the sale of agricultural land. Plaintiff alleged that defendant was in arrears in its payments under the contract and apparently insolvent. As the property was being cropped by various tenants of defendant under agreements providing for shares of the yield in lieu of rentals, plaintiff moved the court for an order appointing a receiver to secure and keep all of defendant's share, or its equivalent, of the crops produced on the property during the litigation. The trial court granted plaintiff's motion, and appointed the receiver under a sweeping order that essentially divested defendant of all rights as the owner of the property and invested those rights in the receiver. Defendant appealed from the order appointing the receiver.

The Supreme Court reversed the trial court's order, finding no authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) for the appointment. The Court ruled that under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), either fraud must be shown in the purchase of the property or the plaintiff must be shown to have some right in, lien on, or claim to the property sought to be impounded. The Court found that plaintiff made no claim of fraud, and in the Court's view, plaintiff had no right in or to the property, or any part of it (204 Cal. 524, 526) . The crops in the hands of defendant, a bona fide adverse claimant, were not the property of plaintiff, but the property of defendant, and remained so whether they were growing or severed (204 Cal. 524, 528) . Therefore, plaintiff had no rights in the crops, and even if plaintiff proved successful in his action, his rights were limited to the value of defendant's use and occupation of the property from the time of forfeiture of the contract. In so ruling, the Court distinguished the case at bar from the case of growing crops produced by a trespasser and not severed on the entry of the true owner of the property (204 Cal. 524, 526) [see, e.g., Barnes v. Morrison (1929) 102 Cal. App. 152, 159, 282 P. 986 (discussed in § 200.110[3][a])].

In Khatchadourian v. Davidian (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 539, 179 P.2d 853 , plaintiff buyer brought an action for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of agricultural property against his seller. Defendant seller answered and asserted, as an affirmative defense, that she had been induced to enter into the contract through misrepresentations made by plaintiff as to the value of the property. After trial, but before judgment, plaintiff sought the appointment of a receiver ex parte to take possession of the property, to harvest and sell all crops growing thereon, and to take possession of previously harvested crops that had been removed from the property. The trial court granted plaintiff's application, and defendant subsequently appealed from the court's ex parte order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order, holding the allegations in both the complaint and the petition for appointment insufficient to justify the appointment of a receiver. The court noted that defendant, contesting in court plaintiff's right to receive a deed to the land on payment of certain money and giving of certain security, was holding the property under a claim of right until the issue of ownership could be decided. Relying on the reasoning in Cal. Delta Farms v. Chinese Amer. Farms (1928) 204 Cal. 524, 269 P. 443 (discussed above), the court held that the party in possession of the property, holding it under a claim of right and contesting the right of another to title, is entitled to the crops produced on the land until a conveyance is made or a judgment entered (204 Cal. 524) . Plaintiff, therefore, had no interest in the property sufficient to justify the appointment of a receiver. While plaintiff might be entitled to the crops growing on the land when he paid and secured the purchase price and received a deed, or possibly when judgment was entered, he was not entitled to possession of crops that had been previously harvested, and he was not entitled to the appointment of a receiver to take possession of the harvested and unharvested crops prior to judgment (204 Cal. 524) .

96 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.151-200.159

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.151[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.160

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.160 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Joint Venturers [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action Between Joint Venturers [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20 et seq.) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF], AS A CO-VENTURER OF _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT], HAS NOT SHOWN THAT THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND or PROCEEDS OF THE _____ (PROPERTY or FUND)] SOUGHT TO BE PLACED IN RECEIVERSHIP IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ [LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY].

Failure to Show That Property or Funds of Joint Venture Are in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury. A showing that joint venture property or funds are in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured is a prerequisite for an order appointing a receiver under Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(1) (Thornburg v. Rais (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 304, 305, 244 P.2d 741).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action between joint venturers on the ground that property, funds, or proceeds sought to be put in receivership are not in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 200.120[1] and 200.121[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in combination with memoranda opposing the appointment of receivers on procedural grounds [see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.20 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the property, funds, or proceeds sought to be put in receivership are not in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

Counsel should note that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), the predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), which now provides for appointment of a receiver "in all other cases where necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party," that ground for appointment of a receiver could not be invoked in a case that alleged facts bringing it within one of the other subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 if the evidence did not support appointment under the other subdivision [Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599] . Therefore, these points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with the points and authorities set out in § 200.260[1] when it is contended that a subdivision other than Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) governs the appointment.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms, based on Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), of a notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver, and a declaration in support of the ex parte appointment of a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Show That Property or Funds of Joint Venture Are in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

In Thornburg v. Rais (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 304, 244 P.2d 741 , two joint venturers sought a declaration as to the rights, duties, and obligations of themselves and their co-venturers, the defendants, relative to the funds and property of the joint venture. The property of the joint venture consisted of 16 lots of residential rental property, together with the rental income generated by the property. Plaintiffs' complaint also sought to dissolve the venture, obtain a partition of the property of the venture, and place the property in receivership. The trial court appointed a receiver of the property, and defendants appealed from the order of appointment.

The court of appeal reversed the trial judge's order appointing the receiver. The court ruled that plaintiffs did not show that the joint venture property or the funds were in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured. As this showing is a prerequisite under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) for an order appointing a receiver, the appointment of the receiver was unwarranted. The court based its conclusion on the fact that, at the time the receiver was appointed, 14 multiple dwellings, located throughout the 16 lots, had been completed and were all rented. When the monthly rentals on the dwellings were collected, they were deposited in a bank account to the credit of two members of the joint venture, one of whom was plaintiff and the other of whom was defendant. These funds could only be withdrawn by check bearing the signatures of both venturers. Additionally, the funds in the bank account at all times exceeded any amounts payable on the deeds of trust against the property and on all other fixed charges against the property (111 Cal. App. 2d 304, 305) .

98 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
2. Action Between Joint Owners of Property or Fund

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.161-200.169

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.161[Reserved]

99 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
3. Unlawful Detainer Actions

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.170

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.170 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Unlawful Detainer Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Unlawful Detainer Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS UNLAWFUL DETAINER PROCEEDING BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY FOR _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF], AS A _____ [LANDLORD, TO OBTAIN POSSESSION OF THE PROPERTY FROM HIS/HER/ITS TENANT or PURCHASER AT A FORECLOSURE SALE, TO OBTAIN POSSESSION OF THE PROPERTY FROM THE PARTY CURRENTLY IN POSSESSION].

[EITHER]

Unlawful Detainer Proceeding. A court has jurisdiction under Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(7) to appoint a receiver of rental property in an unlawful detainer proceeding by a landlord against a tenant (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7); Telegraph Avenue Corp. v. Raentsch (1928) 205 Cal. 93, 100, 269 P. 1109).

[OR]

Unlawful Detainer Proceeding by Purchaser at Foreclosure Sale Against Party in Possession. Code of Civil

Procedure Section 564(b)(7) authorizes a court to appoint a receiver in an unlawful detainer proceeding by the purchaser of real property at a foreclosure sale under a deed of trust against the party in possession of the property (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7); Pacific States S. & L. Co. v. Hoffman (1933) 134 Cal. App. 601, 603, 25 P.2d 1006).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an unlawful detainer proceeding by either a landlord against a tenant or a purchaser at a foreclosure sale against a party in possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)].

Counsel should note that the appointment of a receiver who assumes full possession and control of the premises in an unlawful detainer proceeding constitutes an eviction of the tenant and, as such, relieves the tenant from payment of the rent during the period of the receiver's occupancy [Telegraph Avenue Corp. v. Raentsch (1928) 205 Cal. 93, 100, 269 P. 1109] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, when appropriate, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].
- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].
- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].
- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing either the landlord-tenant relationship or the purchaser-party in possession relationship between the parties. Counsel should also include specific facts showing that the proceeding is properly one for unlawful detainer. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms seeking the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unlawful Detainer Proceeding

In Telegraph Avenue Corp. v. Raentsch (1928) 205 Cal. 93, 269 P. 1109 , plaintiff sued in unlawful detainer to recover possession of a block of real property. Plaintiff and defendant lessee executed a lease for a term of 99 years. After lessee took possession under the lease, he executed first and second mortgages, respectively, to his codefendants.

The premises were occupied as a public market and were sublet to a number of subtenants. Subsequently, rent payments under the lease became delinquent. At the end of the first month in which payment was in default, plaintiff served on lessee and mortgagees notices declaring the default and demanding that the parties either pay or quit the premises within three days. The next month, plaintiff served them with similar notices of nonpayment of rent for that month. The month after that, plaintiff served similar notices of nonpayment of rent and demands to either pay or quit the premises on lessee, mortgagees, and some of the subtenants. Plaintiff then commenced the unlawful detainer action against all parties most recently served with payment and quit notices. Subsequent to filing the action, plaintiff obtained the ex parte appointment of a receiver to take possession and control of the premises, to collect all rents from subtenants that were paid to them, and to remain in possession until judgment in the action was entered. After a bench trial, the court rendered judgment canceling the lease under which the property was held, and awarding possession to plaintiff and a money judgment against defendant. Defendant lessee appealed from this judgment on a number of grounds, including that that portion of the money judgment representing rental due under the lease during the receiver's occupancy of the premises was erroneous.

The Supreme Court agreed with defendant lessee that inclusion of the disputed rental payments in the judgment was erroneous. The Court therefore modified the judgment by striking that amount from the money judgment awarded to plaintiff, but otherwise affirmed the trial court's judgment as modified (205 Cal. 93, 102) . In ruling on this issue, the Court held that the jurisdiction of the trial court to appoint a receiver in an action of unlawful detainer lay in former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7)]. Neither defendant nor the Court challenged the propriety of the receiver's appointment. However, the appointment of a receiver who assumes full possession and control of the premises in an unlawful detainer proceeding is an eviction of the tenant and, as such, relieves the tenant from payment of the rent called for by the lease during the period of the receiver's occupancy (205 Cal. 93, 100) .

[b] Unlawful Detainer Proceeding by Purchaser at Foreclosure Sale Against Party in Possession

In Pacific States S. & L. Co. v. Hoffman (1933) 134 Cal. App. 601, 25 P.2d 1006 , plaintiff, a purchaser of property at a foreclosure sale under a deed of trust, filed an unlawful detainer action against defendants. The complaint alleged, among other things, that the property consisted of an apartment house with a specified monthly income, and that one of defendants was insolvent and would collect and divert the proceeds from that income. By his complaint, plaintiff sought damages, possession of the property, and the appointment of a receiver to take possession of the premises pending determination of the action, with full power and authority to operate, control, and manage the apartment house. The trial court issued an order appointing a receiver. One of defendants, the successor in interest of the obligors, appealed the order.

The court of appeal affirmed the order of the trial court appointing the receiver. The court held that former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7)] authorizes the appointment of a receiver in an unlawful detainer action by the purchaser of real property at a foreclosure sale under a deed of trust against the party in possession of the property. Prior decisions had upheld suits in unlawful detainer following sales under trust deeds. The court reasoned that, because the remedy of unlawful detainer is purely statutory, and no constitutional inhibition intervenes, the question whether unlawful detainer actions shall be extended to cover cases when the conventional relation of landlord and tenant does not exist is a legislative and not a judicial question. The fact that in their legislative inception unlawful detainer proceedings were limited to cases in which the conventional relation existed does not prevent the Legislature from extending the remedy to other cases if it sees fit to do so. Therefore, since former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7), by its terms, authorizes the appointment of a receiver in actions of unlawful detainer, a receiver may be appointed in unlawful detainer actions involving the conventional relation of landlord and tenant, as well as unlawful detainer actions not involving that conventional relation between the parties (134 Cal. App. 601, 603) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
3. Unlawful Detainer Actions

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.171-200.179

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.171[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
4. Secured Lender's Action to Enter and Inspect Property for Hazardous Substance Release

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.180

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.180 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Secured Lender to Enforce Right to Inspect Real Property to Determine Release of Hazardous Substance [Civ. Code § 2929.5; Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Secured Lender to Enforce Right to Inspect Real Property to Determine Release of Hazardous Substance [Civ. Code § 2929.5; Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE SUPERIOR COURT MAY DO SO IN AN ACTION BY A SECURED LENDER TO ENTER AND INSPECT PROPERTY FOR RELEASE OF HAZARDOUS SUBSTANCE, AND THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE INDICATE THAT IT IS APPROPRIATE THAT THE COURT EXERCISE ITS DISCRETION IN FAVOR OF THE APPOINTMENT.

Secured Lender's Action to Enforce Rights to Enter and Inspect Property for Release of Hazardous Substance. The superior court may appoint a receiver in an action other than a limited civil case brought by a secured lender to enforce the rights provided in Section 2929.5 of the Civil Code, to enable the secured lender to enter and inspect the real property security for the purpose of determining the existence, location, nature, and magnitude of any past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance into, onto, beneath, or from the real property security (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action by a secured lender to enforce his or her rights under the law permitting inspection of real property regarding a release, or threatened release, of a hazardous substance [see Civ. Code § 2929.5; Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that it would be proper for the court to exercise its discretion in favor making the appointment. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion relating to an action under Civ. Code § 2929.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
4. Secured Lender's Action to Enter and Inspect Property for Hazardous Substance Release

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.181-200.189

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.181[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
5. Cases Involving Assignments of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.190

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.190 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action for Specified Performance of Assignment of Rents Provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action for Specified Performance of Assignment of Rents Provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE SUPERIOR COURT MAY DO SO IN AN ACTION BY A SECURED LENDER FOR SPECIFIED PERFORMANCE OF AN ASSIGNMENT OF RENTS PROVISION IN A _____ [DEED OF TRUST or MORTGAGE or SEPARATE ASSIGNMENT DOCUMENT], AND THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE SUPPORT THE APPOINTMENT OF A RECEIVER.

Receiver May Be Appointed in Action for Specified Performance of Assignment of Rents Provision. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, in an action by a secured lender for specified performance of an assignment of rents provision in a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action by a secured lender for specified performance of an assignment of rents provision in a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the party seeking receivership is a secured lender, that the action is based on an assignment of rents provisions in a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document, and that a receivership is appropriate to protect the interests of the secured lender under that document. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms seeking the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

[3] Related Cases

Counsel should also review the cases dealing with actions based upon assignment of rent provisions in a deed of trust, mortgage or separate assignment document, cited in § 200.252.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
5. Cases Involving Assignments of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.191

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.191 Supporting Contention That Appointment of Receiver Should Continue After Entry of Judgment for Specific Performance of Assignment of Rents Provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]--Appointment May Be Continued Pending Nonjudicial Foreclosure

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Appointment of Receiver Should Continue After Entry of Judgment for Specific Performance of Assignment of Rents Provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]--Appointment May Be Continued Pending Nonjudicial Foreclosure

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD PERMIT THE CONTINUATION OF THE RECEIVER'S APPOINTMENT AFTER ENTRY OF JUDGMENT FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE RECEIVERSHIP IS APPROPRIATE _____ [_____ (TO PROTECT, OPERATE, and/or MAINTAIN) and/or IN ORDER TO COLLECT RENTS FROM] ENCUMBERED REAL PROPERTY, PENDING THE COMPLETION OF A NONJUDICIAL FORECLOSURE UNDER A POWER OF SALE.

Appointment May Be Continued Pending Nonjudicial Foreclosure. An appointment of a receiver in an action by a secured lender for specific performance of an assignment of rents provision in a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document, may be continued after entry of a judgment for specific performance in that action, if appropriate to protect, operate, or maintain real property encumbered by the deed of trust or mortgage or to collect the rents therefrom while a pending nonjudical foreclosure under power of sale in the deed of trust or mortgage is being completed (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the appointment of receiver should continue after entry of a judgment for specific performance in an action by a secured lender for specific performance of an assignment of rents provision under deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11); see § 200.190[1]].

The basis for continuation of the appointment is that it is appropriate to protect, operate, or maintain real property encumbered by the deed of trust or mortgage or to collect the rents from the encumbered property while there is a pending nonjudical foreclosure under power of sale in the deed of trust or mortgage [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For discussion of these alternatives, see § 200.190[2].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that continuation of the receivership is appropriate to protect the secured lender's interests under assignment of rents clause. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms seeking the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
5. Cases Involving Assignments of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.192

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.192 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case by Assignee Under Assignment of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(12); Civ. Code § 2938(g)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case by Assignee Under Assignment of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(12); Civ. Code § 2938(g)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS CASE BECAUSE _____ [identify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS AN ASSIGNEE UNDER AN ASSIGNMENT OF _____ [LEASES or RENTS or ISSUES or PROFITS], AND THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE SUPPORT THE APPOINTMENT OF A RECEIVER.

Case by Assignee under Assignment of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, in a case brought by an assignee under an assignment of leases, rents, issues, or profits pursuant to Civil Code Section 2938(g) (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(12)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form is a memorandum of points and authorities for use by an assignee under an assignment of leases, rents, issues, or profits pursuant to Civ. Code § 2938(g) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(12); Civ. Code § 2938(g)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For discussion of these alternatives, see § 200.190[2].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel for the assignee seeking receivership should refer to (1) the assignment provisions, whether the assignment is in a separate document or as a part of a mortgage or deed of trust; and (2) refer to evidence, such as declarations, deposition transcripts, or other documents that tend to establish that a receivership should be appointed to enable the assignee to successfully enforce the assignment. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms seeking the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(12), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages (Matthew Bender).

[3] Related Cases

Counsel should also review the cases dealing with actions based upon assignment of rent provisions in a deed of trust, mortgage or separate assignment document, cited in § 200.252.

106 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
5. Cases Involving Assignments of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.193-200.199

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.193[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
6. Secured Lender's Foreclosure Action

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.200

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.200 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Foreclosure Action by Secured Lender [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]--Condition of Mortgage Not Performed or Property in Danger, and Property Is Insufficient to Discharge Secured Debt

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Foreclosure Action by Secured Lender [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]--Condition of Mortgage Not Performed or Property in Danger, and Property Is Insufficient to Discharge Secured Debt

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS A SECURED LENDER SEEKING FORECLOSURE AND SALE OF PROPERTY ON WHICH HE/SHE/IT HOLDS A LIEN UNDER A _____ [DEED OF TRUST or MORTGAGE], _____ [THE CONDITION OF THE _____ (DEED OF TRUST or MORTGAGE) HAS NOT BEEN PERFORMED or THE PROPERTY IS IN DANGER OF BEING LOST and/or REMOVED and/or MATERIALLY INJURED], AND THE PROPERTY IS PROBABLY INSUFFICIENT TO DISCHARGE THE SECURED DEBT.

Appointment of Receiver in Foreclosure Action. In an action by a secured lender for the foreclosure of the deed of trust or mortgage and sale of the property on which there is a lien under a deed of trust or mortgage, a receiver may be appointed when it appears that the property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured, or that the condition of the deed of trust or mortgage has not been performed, and that the property is probably insufficient to discharge the deed of trust or mortgage debt (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2); Boyd v. Benneyan (1928) 204 Cal. 23, 25, 266 P. 278 ; Brush v. Apartment & Hotel F. Corp. (1927) 82 Cal. App. 723, 725, 256 P. 285).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action by a secured lender for the foreclosure of a deed of trust or mortgage and the sale of the property subject to the deed of trust or mortgage. The grounds for this contention are that the property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured, or that the condition of the deed of trust or mortgage has not been performed, and that the property is probably insufficient to discharge the deed of trust or mortgage debt [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should cite specific allegations in the complaint or specific facts stated in supporting affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) to demonstrate that the value of the property is probably insufficient to discharge the secured debt [see Brush v. Apartment & Hotel F. Corp. (1927) 82 Cal. App. 723, 726, 256 P. 285 , discussed in § 200.200[3][a]]. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of allegations and prayers in complaints seeking the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

For a discussion and form of a complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(8) for specific performance of a provision in a trust deed authorizing the appointment of a receiver when the obligation secured by the trust deed is in default, together with a form of notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order for the appointment of a receiver as provided in a trust deed, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver in Foreclosure Action

In Boyd v. Benneyan (1928) 204 Cal. 23, 266 P. 278 , plaintiffs brought an action to foreclose a mortgage on property given to secure a promissory note executed by defendant mortgagor in favor of plaintiffs. By its terms, the mortgage covered the rents, issues, and profits of the mortgaged premises. Subsequent to the execution of the mortgage to plaintiffs, and prior to the commencement of the action, defendant mortgagor also gave to each of her two codefendants a mortgage on one year's crop, grown on her property, to secure payment for two promissory notes. At the commencement of the action, the court appointed a receiver to take possession of the premises; manage, cultivate, and farm it; harvest, sell, and dispose of the crops; and collect and hold the rents, issues, and profits subject to the further order of the court. After trial, the court entered a decree of foreclosure, adjudging plaintiffs entitled to a sale of the property, and adjudging that the receivership be continued to carry out the provisions of the decree. Subsequent to the judgment, defendant mortgagor sought the discharge of the receiver and the payment of the proceeds from the sale of the crops to her codefendants to apply on the notes secured by the mortgages that she had granted them. The trial court granted defendant mortgagor's motion, and plaintiffs appealed from that order.

The Supreme Court affirmed the order of the trial court discharging the receiver and ordering funds received by him to be paid to defendant mortgagor's codefendants (204 Cal. 23, 28) . In addressing the validity of the receiver's appointment, the Court held it beyond question that the trial court had the power, under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)], to appoint the receiver because plaintiffs had made a proper showing for the appointment (204 Cal. 23, 25-26) . Specifically, the Court affirmed the trial court's findings that the value of the mortgaged property was less than the mortgage debt, and that the mortgagor was impliedly unable to perform the condition of making payments on the mortgage since she was insolvent (204 Cal. 23, 24) .

In Brush v. Apartment & Hotel F. Corp. (1927) 82 Cal. App. 723, 256 P. 285 , plaintiff brought an action to foreclose a mortgage on a leasehold on an apartment house, together with the furniture and furnishings contained in the apartment house. On plaintiff's motion, the trial court ordered the appointment of a receiver of the property. Defendant appealed from the order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order, finding that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in ordering the appointment of the receiver. The court found that unless the leasehold, which comprised the bulk of the mortgaged property, was placed in receivership, it was in danger of becoming totally extinguished. Plaintiff had alleged facts sufficient to show that the value of the mortgaged property was insufficient to discharge the debt (82 Cal. App. 723, 727-728) . In so ruling, the court looked to the allegations in plaintiff's affidavits that the amount of the mortgage debt was $6,044 and the value of the furnishings covered by the mortgage was $3,500. Plaintiff also alleged that even if defendants were to continue in possession of the property for a year, the furnishings would not bring in more than $2,000. Finally, there was a pending condemnation action in which the cancellation of the leasehold was sought. If the condemnation action was successful, the leasehold would be totally extinguished so that by the time the instant action came to trial, the entire mortgaged property would be deteriorated and practically worthless (82 Cal. App. 723, 725-726) . As such, the property would, of course, be insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564 (b)(2)) (82 Cal. App. 723, 727) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
6. Secured Lender's Foreclosure Action

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.201-200.209

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.201[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
6. Secured Lender's Foreclosure Action

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.210

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.210 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Foreclosure Action by Secured Lender [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]--Property Is Sufficient to Discharge Secured Debt

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Foreclosure Action by Secured Lender [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]--Property Is Sufficient to Discharge Secured Debt

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20 et seq.) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS NOT ALLEGED SPECIFIC FACTS SUPPORTING HIS/HER/ITS ALLEGATION THAT THE VALUE OF THE PROPERTY IS PROBABLY INSUFFICIENT TO DISCHARGE THE DEBT SECURED BY THE _____ [DEED OF TRUST or MORTGAGE].

[EITHER]

A. Sufficiency of Property to Discharge Debt. A receivership should not be appointed in a foreclosure action under Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(2), except on a statement of facts showing that the actual value of the premises is less than the debt secured, with interest and costs, and that resort to the rents and profits is necessary (Bank of Woodland v. Stephens (1904) 144 Cal. 659, 660, 79 P. 379).

[AND/OR]

B. Material Injury to Property. A receiver should not be appointed under Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(2) on the ground that the property is in danger of being materially injured, unless the injury would so depreciate the property's value that it would no longer afford adequate security for the payment of the secured debt (Title etc. Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 61-62, 127 P. 502).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention a receiver should be appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2) in an action by a secured lender for the foreclosure of a deed of trust or mortgage and the sale of the property subject to the deed of trust or mortgage. The ground for opposition is that the party seeking the appointment has not demonstrated that the property is probably insufficient to discharge the secured debt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.200[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in combination with memoranda opposing the appointment of receivers on procedural grounds [see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.20 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the value of the property is sufficient to discharge the mortgage debt. Counsel may also include specific facts, when appropriate, showing that the property is not in danger of loss, removal, or material injury such as to cause the value of the property to drop below the level of the debt. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion and forms of allegation in a complaint seeking to appoint a receiver of property under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2) in an action by a mortgagee to foreclose on a mortgage, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of Property to Discharge Debt.

In Bank of Woodland v. Stephens (1904) 144 Cal. 659, 79 P. 379 , plaintiff brought an action to foreclose a mortgage, and sought the appointment of a receiver under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]. The trial court ordered the appointment of the receiver and, after trial, rendered judgment in plaintiff's favor. The judgment included a provision continuing the receiver in office after issuance of the final decree in the action. Defendant appealed from the judgment, contending that the court did not have jurisdiction under the facts of the complaint to appoint a receiver and, therefore, it had no power to continue him in office after making the final decree.

The Supreme Court modified the judgment by striking out that part concerning the continuance of the receiver in office after the final decree. In so ruling, the Court held that the allegation in the complaint that "the mortgaged premises are insufficient to pay and discharge the mortgage debt" was insufficient to support the appointment of the receiver under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]. The Court found the statement to be no more than a conclusion. It was not enough that the complaint stated the conclusion alone; the value of the property was required to be alleged. The Court analogized its reasoning to that underlying the requirement that a plaintiff must plead facts showing irreparable injury when seeking injunctive relief, and may not simply plead the conclusion that he or she will suffer irreparable injury that cannot be compensated in damages. The appointment of a receiver involves the taking of defendant's property from his or her possession, a measure more violent and drastic than an injunction. Therefore, receivership should never be allowed in cases of mortgage foreclosure, except on a statement of facts showing that the actual value of the mortgaged premises is less than the debt secured, with interest and costs, and that resort to the rents and profits is necessary. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (2) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)] states the various conclusions that must be made by a trial court before it can appoint a receiver in foreclosure suits. The complaint or affidavit on which the application for a receiver is based must state facts that support one or more of those conclusions; it is not enough to state the conclusions alone (144 Cal. 659, 660-661) .

[b] Material Injury to Property

The facts and procedural background of Title Insurance & Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 127 P. 502 , are discussed in § 200.63[3][a]. In Title, the Supreme Court reversed the trial court's order appointing the receiver, as to defendant-appellant, finding plaintiff's allegation that the property was probably insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt did not support the appointment of a receiver under former Code Civ. Proc. 564 subd. (2) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)) because neither the value of the property, nor any facts indicating its value, were set forth in the complaint or in the supporting affidavit (164 Cal. 58, 61) . The Court held it was necessary for plaintiff to show not only that the mortgaged property was in danger of material injury, but also that the injury would so depreciate the value of the property that the property would no longer afford adequate security for the payment of the debt (164 Cal. 58, 62) . If all the mortgaged property was lost or removed from the jurisdiction, then the entire security would be gone, and prejudice to the rights of the mortgagee would necessarily ensue, since he or she is entitled to have the property remain accessible, whatever its value, and even though the value may far exceed the mortgage debt. But if the danger is only that the property may be materially injured, then the relative value of the property after the injury has been inflicted and the amount of the debt must be considered in order to determine if the mortgagee's interests require the court to deprive the mortgagor of lawful possession of his or her own property. If the injury, though considerable, will still leave enough of the property remaining intact to be ample security for the debt, a trial court should not interfere because the mortgagee can suffer no injury to his or her interests (164 Cal. 58, 61-62) .

The Court looked to the property itself in finding there was no showing that the injury to plaintiff's property would so depreciate its value that it would no longer afford adequate security for the payment of the debt. The property consisted of an irrigation system, covering 318 acres of land, including a canal, and all buildings, structures, tools, and personal property used in connection with the system. The danger of material injury to the property was alleged to be the deterioration of certain structures on a portion of the land. The structures were alleged to be of importance to the irrigation system because they were the only suitable places for putting the canal water into the irrigation system. However, the Court found that plaintiff had not alleged the extent, the present condition, or the values of the remaining portions of the system. Therefore, it may well have been that, even with the injuries as alleged, the property remaining would far exceed the amount due on the indebtedness and would still constitute abundant security for its payment. If so, the additional expense incurred in appointing a receiver would not have been necessary to keep the system in operation (164 Cal. 58, 63) . While the water users might want the appointment for their protection, the system's bondholders, being otherwise fully secured, would have no interest sufficient to justify the appointment. Thus, the Court ruled that when the showing of apprehended injury fails to make it appear that the mortgagee's interests and security will be jeopardized, it is a clear abuse of the trial court's discretion to order the appointment of a receiver (164 Cal. 58, 64) .

110 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
6. Secured Lender's Foreclosure Action

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.211-200.219

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.211[Reserved]

111 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
7. Creditor's Action to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.220

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.220 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

[EITHER]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS A CREDITOR SEEKING TO SUBJECT _____ [PROPERTY and/or A FUND] TO HIS/HER/ITS CLAIM, AND _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., DEFENDANT] HAS _____ [TRANSFERRED THE PROPERTY or INCURRED AN OBLIGATION] THAT IS FRAUDULENT AS TO _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF].

[AND/OR]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS A CREDITOR SEEKING TO SUBJECT _____ [PROPERTY and/or A FUND] TO HIS/HER/ITS CLAIM, AND _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS A PROBABLE _____ [RIGHT TO or INTEREST IN] THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND or PROCEEDS OF THE _____ (PROPERTY or FUND)], AND THE _____ [PROCEEDS or PROPERTY or FUND] IS/ARE IN DANGER OF _____ [LOSS and/or REMOVAL and/or MATERIAL INJURY].

[EITHER, if proceeding under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B)]

A. Appointment of Receiver Available When Property Is Fraudulently Transferred or Obligation Is Fraudulently Incurred. In an action for relief under Civil Code Sections 3439 through 3439.12, a creditor, subject to applicable principles of equity and the limitations of Civil Code Section 3439.08, and in accordance with the applicable rules of civil procedure, may obtain the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the asset transferred or its proceeds (Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B)).

[AND/OR, if proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b) (1)]

B. Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim. When property is transferred with the intent to delay, hinder, or defeat creditors, even though there is consideration for the transfer, the appointment of a receiver for the property is proper (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1); Burrows v. Jorgensen (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 644, 647-648, 323 P.2d 150 ; Heffernan v. Bennett & Armour (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 564, 588, 243 P.2d 846).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action by a creditor under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (Civ. Code §§ 3439-3439.12) whether or not the creditor's claim has matured [see Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); see also Civ. Code § 3439.01(b) (defining claim), (c) (defining creditor)].

These points and authorities may also be submitted in support of the contention that the appointment of a receiver is proper in an action by a creditor to subject any property or fund to the creditor's claim when [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]:

- The creditor shows that his or her right to or interest in the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, sought to be placed in receivership is probable, and

- The creditor shows that the property or fund, or its proceeds, is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured.

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, if counsel is proceeding under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B), counsel should set forth the facts establishing the criteria of the type of fraudulent transfer claimed, specifying the provision of the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act under which the transfer or obligation is claimed as fraudulent, that is,

- Civ. Code § 3439.04(a) (intentional),

- Civ. Code § 3439.04(b)(1) (made by a debtor engaged or about to engage in a business or transaction for which the debtor's remaining assets are unreasonably small in relation to the business or transaction without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange),

- Civ. Code § 3439.04(b)(2) (made by a debtor who intended to incur, or believed, or reasonably should have believed that he or she would incur, debts beyond his or her ability to pay as they came due without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange), or

- Civ. Code § 3439.05 (as to a creditor whose claim arose before the transaction claimed to be fraudulent, a transfer or obligation made by a debtor who was insolvent at the time or became insolvent as a result of the transfer or obligation without receiving reasonably equivalent value in exchange) [see also Civ. Code § 3439.02 (defining insolvency)].

If counsel is proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), counsel should include specific facts showing that the property or fund sought to be placed in receivership is subject to the creditor's claim and is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury.

See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For related legal background, research, and forms of complaints and allegations relating to the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (Civ. Code § 3439 et seq.), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 270, Fraudulent Conveyances (Matthew Bender). For related legal background, research and procedural checklist, and forms of allegation, notice of motion, and declaration for appointment of receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) and (b)(8), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in §§ 200.230, 200.231 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the appointment of a receiver to take possession of property allegedly subject to a creditor's claim.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver Available When Property Is Fraudulently Transferred or Obligation Is Fraudulently Incurred

The Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act, as enacted in California (Civ. Code §§ 3439-3439.12), applies to transfers made and obligations incurred or after January 1, 1987 [Civ. Code § 3439.12; see also Stats. 1986, ch. 383]. Under the Act, no distinction is made between creditors whose claims have matured and those whose have not. "Claim" is defined to include all rights to payment, whether or not the right is reduced to judgment, liquidated, unliquidated, fixed, contingent, matured, unmatured, disputed, undisputed, legal, equitable, secured, or unsecured [Civ. Code § 3439.01(b)].

Except that creditors with matured claims may now have appointment of a receiver, cases considering appointment of receivers for the protection of creditors harmed by fraudulent transfer or obligations should remain applicable because, insofar as the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 3439-3439.12 are substantially the same as the provisions of former Civ. Code §§ 3439-3439.13 (repealed by Stats. 1986, ch 383), they shall be construed as restatements and continuations, and not as new enactments [Civ. Code § 3439.12].

The limitations of Civ. Code § 3439.08, referred to in Civ. Code § 3439.07(a) relate to exceptions to voidability and to the rights of the transferee or obligee. A transfer or obligation cannot be voided against a person who took in good faith and for reasonably equivalent value or against any subsequent transferee or obligee [Civ. Code § 3439.08(a)]. The creditor's judgment is limited to the value of the asset transferred, as adjusted under Civ. Code § 3439.08(c), or the amount necessary to satisfy the creditor's claim, whichever is less.

Judgment may be entered against [Civ. Code § 3439.08(b)]:

- The first transferee of the asset or the person for whose benefit the transfer was made, and
- Any subsequent transferee other than a good-faith transferee who took for value or from any subsequent transferee.

Any judgment based on the value of the asset transferred must be for an amount equal to the value of the asset at the time of the transfer, subject to adjustment as the equities may require [Civ. Code § 3439.08(c)].

Notwithstanding the voidability of a transfer or obligation, a good-faith transferee or obligee is entitled, to the extend of the value given the debtor for the transfer or obligation, to [Civ. Code § 3439.08(d)]:

- A lien or a right to retain any interest in the asset transferred,
- Enforcement of any obligation incurred, and/or
- A reduction in the amount of the liability on the judgment.

A transfer, other than one that is intentionally fraudulent under Civ. Code § 3439.04(a), is not voidable if it results from either of the following [Civ. Code § 3439.08(e)(2)]:

- Termination of a lease on default by the debtor when the termination is pursuant to the lease and applicable law [Civ. Code § 3439.08(e)(1)];
- Enforcement of a lien in a noncollusive manner and in compliance with applicable law, including Division 9 of the Commercial Code, other than a retention of collateral under Com. Code §§ 9620 and 9621 and other than a voluntary transfer by the debtor to the lienor in satisfaction of all or part of the secured obligation.

[b] Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim

A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge of that court in an action by a creditor to subject any property or fund to the creditor's claim. The receiver may be appointed on the application of the plaintiff, or of any party whose right to or interest in the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, is probable, and when it is shown that the property or fund is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

In Burrows v. Jorgensen (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 644, 323 P.2d 150 , plaintiffs filed an action for fraud in the sale of a leasehold. Defendants defaulted and judgment was entered in favor of plaintiffs. Plaintiffs then filed a second action to set aside transfers of three additional leaseholds in fraud of creditors. After filing the second action, plaintiffs moved for the appointment of a receiver to take over the management and control of defendants' property to satisfy the judgment in the first action. Subsequently, the trial court heard both the motion to appoint the receiver in the first action, and an order, issued in the second action, for defendants to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed. The trial court ordered a receiver appointed in both actions, and defendants then appealed the orders in each action.

The court of appeal affirmed each order appointing the receiver. The court initially found that there was consideration for defendants' transfers of the three leaseholds in the second action (158 Cal. App. 2d 644, 647) . However, even when a transfer is made with consideration, the transfer may be set aside if it was made with the intent to delay, hinder, or defeat creditors. In the instant action, the court noted that the transfers were made the day after defendants were served with an order of examination of their assets in the first action. Additionally, both defendants' counsel and one of defendants virtually admitted transferring the leaseholds to defeat plaintiffs' judgment. Furthermore, the transfers consisted of almost all of defendants' nonexempt property, which the court found to be an indication of fraud. Finally, the transferees were a daughter and son-in-law of defendants, which the court found to be another indication of fraud. Finding that defendants' transfers of the leaseholds were made with the intent to delay, hinder, or defeat plaintiffs' judgment in the first action, and that this fact was proven by clear and convincing evidence, the court held the appointment of the receiver to be proper. The court found authority for the appointment under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), providing for the appointment of a receiver in an action by a creditor to subject property or fund to the creditor's claim. The court found additional authority for the appointment under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4), providing for the appointment of a receiver after judgment to enforce the judgment, and under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)), providing for the appointment of a receiver in all cases in which receivers have been appointed by the usages of courts of equity (158 Cal. App. 2d 644, 648) .

In Heffernan v. Bennett & Armour (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 564, 243 P.2d 846 , plaintiff, an assignee of one of defendant corporation's creditors, brought a class action against defendant, on behalf of himself and all other creditors of defendant, to set aside as fraudulent the transfer of certain assets and the payment of certain funds. Prior to judgment, plaintiff obtained an order from the trial court appointing a receiver to take possession of the business and assets of defendant and to continue and manage the business as a going concern. The trial court found that defendant entered into the transfer of assets and the payment of funds with an actual intent to defraud existing and future creditors, and rendered judgment for plaintiff. Defendant appealed from the judgment and from the order appointing the receiver, and from the trial court's orders denying defendant's motions to set aside the judgment and the order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment, finding erroneous that portion of the judgment relating to the payment of plaintiff's claim out of the property and money fraudulently transferred. However, the court affirmed the order appointing the receiver, ruling that the trial court's findings of fact, conclusions of law, and judgment were correct insofar as they found that defendant's assets and money in issue were transferred in fraud of creditors (110 Cal. App. 2d 564, 597) . In affirming the appointment, the court found that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in appointing the receiver to preserve and conserve the property that was the subject matter of the action. The court cited Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), which provides for the appointment of a receiver in an action by a creditor to subject property or a fund to the creditor's claim. The court also cited former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), providing for the appointment of a receiver in all cases in which receivers have been appointed by the usages of courts of equity (110 Cal. App. 2d 564, 588) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
7. Creditor's Action to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.221-200.229

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.221[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
7. Creditor's Action to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.230

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.230 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Property or Fund Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

[EITHER, if subject of receivership is property or a fund]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND] IS NOT IN DANGER OF BEING LOST, REMOVED, OR MATERIALLY INJURED.

[OR, if subject of receivership is proceeds of property or a fund]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE PROCEEDS OF _____ [PROPERTY or FUND] ARE NOT IN DANGER OF BEING LOST, REMOVED, OR MATERIALLY INJURED.

[OR, if subject of receivership is both property or a fund and proceeds thereof]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND], AND THE PROCEEDS THEREOF, ARE NOT IN DANGER OF BEING LOST, REMOVED, OR MATERIALLY INJURED.

[CONTINUE]

Creditor Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver When Property or Fund Is Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury. When a complaint fails by its allegations to show that the property or fund sought to be placed in receivership is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, the appointment of a receiver is void for all purposes (Rogers v. Smith (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 21, 172 P.2d 365 ; In re Stein (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 303, 306, 58 P.2d 175).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B), or under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) in an action by a creditor to subject property or a fund to the creditor's claim.

The ground of opposition is that the creditor is unable to show that the property or the fund, or the proceeds thereof, sought to be placed in receivership is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. For discussion of 1986 and 1987 amendments to Civ. Code §§ 3439-3439.12, see § 200.220[3][a].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in combination with memoranda opposing the appointment of receivers on procedural grounds [see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.20 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

This form may be combined with the form in § 200.231[1], to contend, in addition, that a general creditor is not entitled to receivership.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.220[1].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the property or fund, or its proceeds, is not in danger of loss, removal, or material injury. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Receivership Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) Precluded if Another Subdivision Governs

Counsel should note that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), the predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), which now provides for appointment of a receiver "in all other cases where necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party," that ground for appointment of a receiver could not be invoked in a case that alleged facts bringing it within one of the other subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 if the evidence did not support appointment under the other subdivision [Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599] . Therefore, these points and authorities may be combined, when appropriate, with the points and authorities set out in § 200.260[1] when it is contended that a subdivision other than Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) governs the appointment.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Creditor Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver When Property or Fund Is Not in Danger of Loss, Removal, or Material Injury

In Rogers v. Smith (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 172 P.2d 365 , an action against a partnership and individual defendants for money had and received, plaintiff sought to recover a debt for payment of expenses, for services rendered, and for payments due under a contract for the purchase and sale of electric-machine gun motors. In his complaint, plaintiff prayed for an accounting, the sale of defendant partnership's assets to provide payment to plaintiff from the proceeds of the sale, injunctive relief, and for the appointment of a receiver of defendants' property. The trial court ordered, ex parte, the appointment of a receiver as requested and subsequently confirmed the appointment. Defendants appealed from the order confirming the appointment.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order confirming the ex parte appointment of the receiver. The court noted that plaintiff's authority for the appointment of the receiver was former Civ. Code § 3439.10(b) (now see Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B)), providing for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of property when a conveyance made or obligation incurred is fraudulent as to a creditor whose claim has not matured (76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 20) . The court first found plaintiff's action to be essentially one at law for the recovery of a debt in which the remedy of attachment was available and would have been adequate. The court then held that the showing made by plaintiff furnished no ground for the appointment of a receiver. Even though plaintiff alleged in the complaint that defendants were insolvent, allegations in his subsequent affidavits proved the contrary. Additionally, neither plaintiff's complaint nor his affidavit alleged that defendants were indebted to anyone except himself, and defendants, in fact, denied their indebtedness to plaintiff (76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 21) . Furthermore, there was no allegation that defendants had placed a single dollar or any item of property beyond their control or beyond the reach of creditors. Finally, the shifting of funds between the individual defendants and the partnership defendant was not such as to place the funds beyond plaintiff's reach and was of no more concern to the partnership's creditors than the transfer by a debtor of a roll of bills from one pocket to another (76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 22) .

In In re Stein (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 303, 58 P.2d 175 , petitioner was convicted of the misdemeanor offense of conducting the business of auctioneer without paying the required license fee. He was sentenced to pay a fine and, in default of payment, to be imprisoned in the county jail until he paid the fine. He did not pay, was committed to jail, and sought release on a writ of habeas corpus. Petitioner contended that he was appointed receiver in a pending superior court action and that the appointment gave him the power to conduct a public sale without having to first obtain an auctioneer's license. The complaint in that action alleged that defendants were indebted to plaintiff and other creditors, that the indebtedness was due and unpaid, and that if a receiver were appointed with authority to carry on defendants' business and dispose of their stock of merchandise, it would be possible to obtain funds sufficient to pay off the indebtedness.

The court of appeal discharged the writ and remanded petitioner to custody, finding that because the allegations in the complaint in the pending civil action failed to state facts conferring jurisdiction on that court to appoint a receiver, the trial court was without power to order the appointment (14 Cal. App. 2d 303, 306) . The court found that the complaint failed by its allegations to show that the conditions required by Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) for the appointment of a receiver were complied with, that is, that plaintiff had a probable right to or interest in the property sought to be placed in receivership and that the property was in danger of loss, removal, or material injury (14 Cal. App. 2d 303, 305) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
7. Creditor's Action to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.231

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.231 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Party in Position of General Creditor Not Entitled to Appointment

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Action by Creditor to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]--Party in Position of General Creditor Not Entitled to Appointment

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVE IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE _____ [specify party seeking appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS NOT SHOWN A PROBABLE _____ [RIGHT TO or INTEREST IN] THE _____ [PROPERTY or FUND or PROCEEDS OF THE _____ (PROPERTY or FUND)] IN THAT _____ [specify, e.g., PLAINTIFF IS A GENERAL CREDITOR OF DEFENDANT].

Party in Position of General Creditor Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver. In an action in which the appointment of a receiver is sought under Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(1), a party who is unable to show a right to the property sought to be placed in receivership is, at most, in no better position than that of a general creditor and, as such, not entitled to the appointment of a receiver (Cal. Delta Farms v. Chinese Amer. Farms (1928) 204 Cal. 524, 526, 269 P. 443).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B), or under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) in an action by a creditor to subject property or a fund to the creditor's claim.

The ground of opposition is that the creditor is only a general creditor who does not have a probable right to or interest in the property, fund, or the proceeds. For discussion of 1986 and 1987 amendments to Civ. Code §§ 3439-3439.12, see § 200.220[3][a].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.220[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. The procedural contexts in which this issue may arise are set forth in § 200.220[2].

This form may be combined with the form in § 200.230[1], to contend, in addition, that the property or fund is not in danger of loss, removal, or material injury.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the property or fund, or its proceeds, is not in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, or that the creditor is a general creditor and, as such, has no probable interest in or right to the property, fund, or proceeds sought to be placed in receivership. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party in Position of General Creditor Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver

The facts and procedural background of Cal. Delta Farms v. Chinese Amer. Farms (1928) 204 Cal. 524, 269 P. 443 , are discussed in § 200.150[3][a]. In reversing the trial court's order appointing the receiver, the Supreme Court found that because plaintiff made no claim of fraud and had no right whatsoever in or to the property or any part of it, plaintiff was at most in no better position than that of a general creditor, and as such not entitled to the appointment of a receiver. The Court noted that a vendee in default under an executory contract of purchase, who continues in possession after notice of cancellation, is an adverse claimant, and all privity between him or her and the vendor, ceases with that notice (204 Cal. 524, 526) .

115 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
7. Creditor's Action to Subject Property or Fund to Creditor's Claim

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.232-200.239

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.232[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
8. Cases Involving Dissolved or Insolvent Corporations

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.240

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.240 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case Involving Corporation That Is Insolvent or Has Forfeited Corporate Rights [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case Involving Corporation That Is Insolvent or Has Forfeited Corporate Rights [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE SUPERIOR COURT MAY DO SO IN A CASE IN WHICH A CORPORATION _____ [IS INSOLVENT or IS IN IMMINENT DANGER OF INSOLVENCY or HAS FORFEITED ITS CORPORATE RIGHTS], AND THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE INDICATE THAT IT IS APPROPRIATE THAT THE COURT EXERCISE ITS DISCRETION IN FAVOR OF THE APPOINTMENT.

Case Involving Corporation That Is Dissolved, Insolvent, or Has Forfeited Corporate Rights. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, in cases when a corporation is insolvent, or in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in a case involving a corporation that is insolvent, in imminent danger of insolvency, or has its forfeited corporate rights [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)].

The appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6) is ancillary to some other action that the plaintiff may bring against the corporation and does not provide an independent basis for appointment of a receiver [see Mason v. San-Val Oil & Water Co., Ltd. (1941) 1 Cal. 2d 670, 673, 36 P.2d 615] . Therefore, this provision does not authorize a private person, such as a shareholder or creditor seize a corporation's property out of the hands of the corporation's management and place it in the hands of a receiver [see Sunset Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 389, 401, 50 P.2d 106] .

For points and authorities supporting an application by a shareholder or creditor to appoint a receiver on dissolution of a corporation, see § 200.241. For memoranda for use in voluntary or involuntary dissolution proceedings generally, see Ch. 52, Corporations .

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the corporation is either insolvent, in imminent danger of insolvency, or has its forfeited corporate rights [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)]. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Modern Preference for Relief Under Corporations Code

Because of the strict construction that courts have applied to Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6), the instances in which a receiver may be appointed on these grounds has been greatly limited. Thus, courts are more likely to use remedies relating to voluntary or involuntary dissolution of the corporation, including the appointment of a receiver, provided in the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 1800 et seq.]. For further discussion, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, § 307.01 (Matthew Bender)].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms seeking the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(5) and (6), 565, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms relating to voluntary and involuntary dissolution of corporations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 160, Corporations , Pt. X (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
8. Cases Involving Dissolved or Insolvent Corporations

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.241

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.241 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed on Dissolution of Corporation on Application of Creditor or Shareholder [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(5), 565]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed on Dissolution of Corporation on Application of Creditor or Shareholder [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(5), 565]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE SUPERIOR COURT MAY DO SO ON THE DISSOLUTION OF ANY CORPORATION ON THE APPLICATION OF ANY _____ [CREDITOR or SHAREHOLDER or MEMBER], AND IT IS APPROPRIATE THAT THE COURT EXERCISE ITS DISCRETION IN FAVOR OF APPOINTMENT IN THIS CASE.

Appointment on Dissolution of Corporation on Application of Creditor or Shareholder. On the dissolution of any corporation, the superior court of the county in which the corporation carries on its business or has its principal place of business, on application of any creditor of the corporation, or of any stockholder or member thereof, may appoint one or more persons to be receivers or trustees of the corporation, to take charge of the estate and effects thereof and to collect the debts and property due and belonging to the corporation, and to pay the outstanding debts thereof, and to divide the moneys and other property that shall remain over among the stockholders or members (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(5), 565).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed on dissolution of corporation on application of a creditor or shareholder [see Code Civ. Proc. § 565; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(5) (receiver may be appointed when corporation has been dissolved as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 565)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the corporation has been dissolved [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(5)], and that the circumstances of the case justify the court's exercise of discretion in favor of appointing a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 565]. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Modern Preference for Relief Under Corporations Code

Because of the strict construction that courts have applied to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(5), 565, the instances in which a receiver may be appointed on these grounds has been greatly limited. Thus, courts are more likely to use remedies relating to voluntary or involuntary dissolution of the corporation, including the appointment of a receiver, provided in the General Corporation Law [see Corp. Code § 1800 et seq.]. For further discussion, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, § 307.01 (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms seeking the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 565, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers . For discussion and forms relating to voluntary and involuntary dissolution of corporations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 160, Corporations , Pt. X (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
8. Cases Involving Dissolved or Insolvent Corporations

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.242-200.249

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.242[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
9. Receivership in Cases Under Usages of Equity

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.250

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.250 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE ACTION IS ONE IN WHICH A RECEIVER IS NECESSARY TO PRESERVE THE _____ [PROPERTY or RIGHTS or PROPERTY AND RIGHTS] OF _____ [party status and name, e.g., PLAINTIFF ACME CORPORATION].

A. Appointment of Receiver to Preserve Property or Rights of Party. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, in all other cases when necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9); see Boyle v. Superior Court (1917) 176 Cal. 671, 673, 170 P. 1140 ; Quaglino v. Quaglino (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 542, 546, 152 Cal. Rptr. 47 (decided under prior law)).

[Optional] B. Broad Discretion to Appoint Receiver Under Predecessor Subdivision. Former Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(8), the predecessor to Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(9), granted the court the power to appoint a receiver in all cases in which receivers had been appointed by usages of courts of equity, and was held to give the court all discretion formerly utilized by a chancellor in equity. Further, exercise of that discretion would not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion (McNeil v. Graner (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374, 206 P.2d 1120).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in all other cases when necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]. Presumably "other" is to indicate, as under the predecessor subdivision, former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), that the authority of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) is not to be invoked if the facts of the case bring it within another subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b) [see Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599 ; Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 233, 237, 133 P. 1155 , discussed at § 200.260]. Optional Paragraph B is to argue that the authority granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) is in fact as broad as that granted by the predecessor subdivision, former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8).

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].
- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].
- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].
- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing the specific rights or property that are in jeopardy and that nothing other than appointment of a receiver will adequately protect those rights or that property. See also the comments in § 200.90[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of allegations and prayers in complaints seeking the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment to Preserve Property or Rights of Party

Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) was amended by Stats 2001, ch. 44, to allow for appointment of a receiver "in all other cases, when necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party." The predecessor subsection, which had been renumbered several times, provided for appointment of a receiver in all cases in which receivers had been appointed by usages of courts of equity. The cases cited in this form were decided under the statute granting power to appoint in accordance with usages of equity, but have been retained here because their facts show that the receiver in each case was appointed to protect the rights or property of a party when there appeared no other way to protect them.

In Boyle v. Superior Court (1917) 176 Cal. 671, 170 P. 1140 , a stockholder's derivative action, plaintiffs sought the removal of two directors of real party in interest defendant corporation. Plaintiffs also sought the appointment of a receiver to take possession and charge of the assets and property of the corporation. In their complaint, plaintiffs alleged the directors were guilty of fraud, dereliction of duty, and violation of their trust as directors. Plaintiffs also alleged that dissension had arisen in the board of directors such that the board had reached a deadlock. No corporate business was being transacted, and the corporation had ceased operations. During trial, but before judgment, the trial court appointed a receiver to take charge of the assets and continue the business of the corporation. Defendants sought a writ of prohibition in the court of appeal seeking to prevent the trial court from enforcing his order appointing the receiver. The court of appeal dismissed the proceeding and quashed the alternative writ. The receiver then sought a writ of mandate in the Supreme Court to order the trial court to approve his bond and undertaking and to allow him to qualify for his appointment as receiver.

The Supreme Court issued the writ of mandate as requested by the receiver. In so doing, the Court ruled that the trial court had jurisdiction to appoint the receiver under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6) (176 Cal. 671, 673) . The Court held it beyond controversy that courts of equity, both English and American, had appointed receivers under precisely the situation as presented in the case at bar (176 Cal. 671, 673-674) . These receivers were not appointed to close up the affairs of a corporation, or to dissolve the corporations, but to preserve their properties and, when possible, continue their corporate functions (176 Cal. 671, 674) . The Court ruled that dissensions and honest differences of opinion that result in making it impossible for a corporation to carry on its business to advantage or, as in the instant case, to carry on at all, are sufficient to invoke the action of a court of equity to appoint a receiver (176 Cal. 671, 674) . The Court concluded by noting that equity does not possess power to wind up the affairs of corporations, but in the case at bar, equity did not attempt to exercise that power (176 Cal. 671, 675) .

In Quaglino v. Quaglino (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 542, 152 Cal. Rptr. 47 , two minor children, through their guardian ad litem, sued their father for child support and sought the appointment of a receiver. Defendant was convicted of the murder of plaintiffs' mother, and was currently incarcerated on that charge. The trial court ordered the appointment of a receiver of certain property specified in the complaint. Defendant appealed from the trial court's order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal affirmed the order of the trial court. In so doing, the court addressed defendant's contention that the court lacked jurisdiction to appoint the receiver when there was no concomitant order to defendant to pay child support (88 Cal. App. 3d 542, 545) . Relying on former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7), the court held it clear that the appointment of the receiver, pending the outcome of the suit, was proper as a case in which receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of courts of equity. The court found that the complaint made out the case of need by the children and ability of the father to pay support. The trial court did not feel it had enough information on which to made a specific order of child support; it desired more information about the needs of the children and the income available for support before making a support order. In the interim, to prevent dissipation of defendant's assets that could be used for child support, the trial court acted properly in appointing a receiver, even though an order for child support had not been entered. The court cited Nichols v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 589, 594, 36 P.2d 380 , and Guay v. Superior Court (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 764, 768-769, 305 P.2d 990 , among other cases, in noting that similar preliminary orders of receivership, even though anticipatory of further spousal and/or child support orders, had theretofore been upheld as proper. The record in the instant case demonstrated the great probability that the court would soon make an order of support and that defendant's property was in fact needed as a source to provide payment (88 Cal. App. 3d 542, 546) .

[b] Broad Discretion to Appoint Receiver Under Predecessor Subdivision

In McNeil v. Graner (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 206 P.2d 1120 , plaintiffs brought an action against defendant owner and operator of oil-bearing properties for fraud based on defendant's commingling oil from different wells, overcharging for operating expenses, and submitting false royalty statements. After the action was commenced, plaintiffs applied, ex parte, for the appointment of a receiver. Finding that defendant's assets were in danger of being lost and dissipated to the irreparable injury of plaintiffs, the court appointed a receiver pending the determination of the action. Defendant then appealed from the trial court's order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order. The court ruled that there was substantial evidence to support the order, particularly plaintiffs' prior judgment against defendant in a similar action arising out of similar activities on defendant's part. The court found that, on the evidence before it, the trial court's order appointing the receiver was not an abuse of discretion (92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 373) . The instant action fell clearly within the purview of former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7). This broad provision gives to the trial court all the discretion formerly utilized by the chancellor in equity. The trial court's determination that under detailed circumstances, less drastic relief, such as injunctive relief, would be inadequate, and that resort should be made to receivership, will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion. In the instant case, there was no showing how injunctive relief would protect plaintiffs from the continued perpetration of practices that prior litigation had determined to be fraudulent (92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
9. Receivership in Cases Under Usages of Equity

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.251

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.251 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--Appointment of Receiver in Actions for Partition

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--Appointment of Receiver in Actions for Partition

[This form should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE COURT HAS JURISDICTION TO APPOINT A RECEIVER AS AN ANCILLARY REMEDY IN AN ACTION FOR PARTITION OF REAL PROPERTY.

Appointment of Receiver in Actions for Partition. The court has jurisdiction to appoint a receiver as an ancillary remedy in an action for partition of real property among tenants in common when circumstances require it (see Goodale v. Fifteenth Dist. Court (1880) 56 Cal. 26, 29, 33 ; Blodgett v. Haddock (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 17, 18, 212 P.2d 26).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed because the court has jurisdiction to appoint a receiver as an ancillary remedy in an action for partition of real property among tenants in common when circumstances require it. Although decided under the former wording of Code Civ. Proc. § 564, which allowed appointment of a receiver in all cases in which receivers had been appointed by usages of courts of equity, the cases cited in this form have been retained because their facts show that the receiver in each case was appointed to protect the rights or property of a party when there appeared to be no other way to protect them [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) (receiver may be appointed when necessary to preserve property or rights of party)]. Appointment of a receiver in a partition action between tenants in common has been limited to situations in which the tenant in possession is attempting to oust the party seeking the receiver or is in some way interfering with the applicant's common possession and use of the property, or otherwise endangering the rights of the applicant [see Reas v. Clemence (1916) 173 Cal. 106, 108, 159 P. 432] .

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting appointment of a receiver in an action when necessary to preserve the property or rights of a party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9); see § 200.250[1]].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the case is one in which the rights or property of the applicant are in jeopardy and that nothing other than appointment of a receiver will adequately protect those rights or that property. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver in Actions for Partition

In Goodale v. Fifteenth Dist. Court (1880) 56 Cal. 26 , plaintiffs brought a suit for partition against defendants. An interlocutory decree was subsequently entered, and three referees were appointed to partition the land in controversy. Thereafter, the trial court ordered the appointment of a receiver to take possession of the lands and lease them in parcels, to collect the rents, issues, and profits of the lands pending the action, and therefrom to pay the taxes and such other expenses as the court might direct, as well as to exercise the powers and duties of receivers in all similar cases. After the appointment, petitioner applied to the Supreme Court on a writ of certiorari to review the order of the trial court in appointing the receiver.

The Supreme Court dismissed the writ, finding the trial court's action in appointing the receiver to be correct (56 Cal. 26, 33) . The Court initially noted that a suit in partition is an equitable proceeding, and that former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6) provides that a receiver may be appointed in all cases in which receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of courts of equity (56 Cal. 26, 29) . The Court then surveyed a number of both English and American cases in which receivers had been appointed in partition suits. The Court concluded that it is competent for a court of equity, in some cases, to grant a receiver in partition suits when, for example, it is necessary to preserve the complainants from serious loss if they are unable to rent portions of the property, or to collect rent of other portions rented, because of defendant's conduct (56 Cal. 26, 32) .

In Blodgett v. Haddock (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 17, 212 P.2d 26 , decedent bequeathed a portion of his estate in trust to his executors as trustees for his daughter for life. At her death, the trust fund was to be equally divided among decedent's remaining children or their issue. Pursuant to the bequest, the trustees acquired a certain lot of real property and made improvements on it, for which they used money constituting that portion of the estate due the daughter. After the daughter's death, her surviving husband, the defendant, occupied one of the dwelling units on the property and collected rentals from the three tenants in possession of the other three units. Plaintiffs commenced a suit against defendant for partition of the property to reach him as the party in possession of the property. Finding that defendant was without means or assets to pay any judgment for rentals and had no income other than from the trust property, the trial court issued an order appointing a receiver. The trial court found that defendant was occupying the property, title to which reverted to plaintiffs on his wife's death, since she had only a life estate in the property and no interest to pass on to her husband at her death. Defendant appealed from the trial court's order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal affirmed the order. The court found the question for decision to be whether an order appointing a receiver for the corpus of a testamentary trust estate that has reverted to the testator's heirs on the death of the sole beneficiary is valid. The court found that it was a valid order. The court ruled that the superior court has jurisdiction to appoint a receiver as an ancillary remedy in an action for partition of real property among tenants in common, and should do so when the circumstances require it (95 Cal. App. 2d 17, 18) . Defendant lacked assets or income from which a judgment could have been satisfied and had no divine guaranty for avoiding death or protracted illness. How, the court asked, could the heirs and devisees of the testator have been made secure against loss otherwise than by the appointment of a receiver to collect and conserve the revenues earned by the properties pending the outcome of a trial? The remedy of receivership was prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 564 and was long in use in actions for partition. Pending the ultimate disposition, the trust corpus and its income had to be so conserved by the court as to enable the rightful owners to come into their own (95 Cal. App. 2d 17, 19) .

121 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
9. Receivership in Cases Under Usages of Equity

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.252-200.259

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.252[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
9. Receivership in Cases Under Usages of Equity

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.260

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.260 Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--Action Is Clearly Governed by Another Subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Case to Preserve Property or Rights of Party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]--Action Is Clearly Governed by Another Subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities opposing a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.20 et seq.) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.60 et seq.), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE ACTION IS CLEARLY GOVERNED BY _____ [specify, e.g., CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 564(b)(1)], THEREBY PRECLUDING APPOINTMENT UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 564(b)(9).

Party Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) When Case Is Clearly Governed by Another Subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564. A party may not invoke the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(9) to appoint a receiver in a case alleging facts bringing it within one of the other subdivisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 564 if the evidence does not support appointment under the other subdivision (Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599 ; Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 233, 237, 133 P. 1155 (decided under prior versions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed in an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) (where necessary to preserve property or rights of party) appointment based on usages of equity on the ground that the action is governed by another subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564. Although the cases cited in this form were decided when the applicable subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 provided for appointment of a receiver "[i]n all other cases where receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of courts of equity," while Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) now provides for appointment of a receiver "[i]n all other cases where necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party," the cases are being retained because the language "in all other cases" remains in the current version of the subdivision.

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in combination with memoranda opposing the appointment of receivers on procedural grounds [see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.20 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 200.250[1] and 200.251[1].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing not only that the case is clearly governed by any subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 other than subdivision (9), but also that the party seeking receivership has failed to meet the statutory prerequisites for the appointment under the appropriate subdivision. See also the comments in § 200.80[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party Is Not Entitled to Appointment of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8) When Case Is Clearly Governed by Another Subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564

The facts and procedural background of Alhambra-Shumway Mines, Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 254 P.2d 599 , are discussed in § 200.26[3][a]. In Alhambra, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order appointing the receiver, finding that plaintiff had failed to show that the property sought to be placed in receivership was in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1). The court also found that plaintiff could not invoke the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7), providing for the appointment of a receiver in all other cases in which receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of courts of equity. In so ruling, the court relied on Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 233, 237, 133 P. 11556 (discussed below), for the proposition that the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6) cannot be invoked in a case alleging facts bringing it within one of the other subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 (116 Cal.

App. 2d 869, 874) .

The facts and procedural background of Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 233, 133 P. 1155 , are discussed in § 200.20[3][b]. In Dabney, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order appointing the receiver, finding that plaintiff had failed to show that the property sought to be placed in receivership was in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, as required under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(1). Finding the case to fall clearly within the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(1), the court also ruled that plaintiff could not invoke the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(6), providing for the appointment of a receiver in all other cases in which receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of courts of equity. The court held that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(6) cannot be invoked in a case that alleges facts bringing it within one of the other subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 (22 Cal. App. 233, 237) .

123 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
B. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Actions
9. Receivership in Cases Under Usages of Equity

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.261-200.269

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.261[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
1. Receivership in Attachment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.270

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.270 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Attachment Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700]--Appointment Necessary to Preserve Value of Property

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Attachment Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700]--Appointment Necessary to Preserve Value of Property

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

[EITHER, if property is perishable or subject to depreciation]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION TO PRESERVE THE VALUE OF PROPERTY THAT _____ [HAS BEEN or IS SOUGHT TO BE] ATTACHED, BECAUSE THE PROPERTY IS _____ [PERISHABLE or WILL GREATLY DETERIORATE OR GREATLY DEPRECIATE IN VALUE]

[OR, if receivership is in best interests of parties]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION TO PRESERVE THE VALUE OF PROPERTY THAT _____ [HAS BEEN or IS SOUGHT TO BE] ATTACHED, BECAUSE THE INTERESTS OF THE PARTIES WILL BE BEST SERVED BY AN ORDER APPOINTING A RECEIVER.

[CONTINUE]

A. Appointment as Necessary to Preserve Property Value. If the property has been or is sought to be attached, the court may appoint a receiver to take any action the court orders necessary to preserve the value of property if the court determines that the property is perishable, or will greatly deteriorate or depreciate in value, or that, for some other reason, the interests of the parties will be best served by the appointment of a receiver (Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(a)).

B. Law Governing Appointment of Receiver in Attachment Proceedings. The provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Sections 564-571 govern the appointment, qualifications, powers, rights, and duties of a receiver appointed under Code of Civil Procedure Section 488.700 (Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700, when property has been or is sought to be attached. The court may appoint a receiver when the appointment is necessary to preserve the value of the property, if the court determines that the property is perishable, or will greatly deteriorate or depreciate in value, or that, for some other reason, the interests of the parties will be best served by the order [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.700(a), 699.070(a)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, this memorandum may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].
- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].
- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].
- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the property to be levied on is perishable, will greatly deteriorate, or will greatly depreciate in value, or any other specific facts showing that the interests of the parties will be best served by the appointment of a receiver. For example, in an appropriate case, counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations and affidavits submitted in support of, or even in opposition to, the appointment [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].
- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.
- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion")]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Parties Authorized to Seek Appointment of Receiver

An order appointing a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(a) may be made on application by the plaintiff, the defendant, or a person who has filed a third-party claim pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 720.010-720.800.

[d] Method of Application for Receiver

The application for the appointment of the receiver must be made on noticed motion if the court so directs or if a court rule so requires. Otherwise, the application may be made ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700(a)].

[e] Related Memoranda

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

For memoranda for use in attachment proceedings generally, see Ch. 23, Attachment .

125 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
1. Receivership in Attachment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.271-200.279

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.271[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.280

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.280 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Carry Judgment Into Effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Carry Judgment Into Effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)]--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY TO CARRY THE JUDGMENT INTO EFFECT.

Appointment of Receiver to Carry Judgment Into Effect. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, after judgment, to carry the judgment into effect (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3); Darter v. Magnussen (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 714, 720, 342 P.2d 528 ; Koshaba v. Koshaba (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 302, 314, 132 P.2d 854).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed after judgment to carry the judgment into effect [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example,

these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to carry the judgment into effect. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for the facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Carry Judgment Into Effect

In Darter v. Magnussen (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 714, 342 P.2d 528 , plaintiff was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce. The decree contained, among other provisions, a provision for sale of certain community property, a ranch. In that provision, the trial court reserved jurisdiction to make any further order relative to the sale of the ranch. No appeal was taken from that decree by either party. Subsequent to entry of the interlocutory decree, plaintiff died. Defendant thereafter moved to modify the interlocutory decree, principally by redistributing the ranch property. The court denied the motion, and defendant appealed. Plaintiff's executor, substituted for plaintiff in the action, then moved for an order appointing a receiver to sell the ranch in satisfaction of the interlocutory judgment. The trial court ordered a receiver of the ranch appointed. Defendant appealed from both the trial court's order denying defendant's motion to modify the interlocutory decree and the order appointing the receiver.

The court of appeal consolidated both appeals for hearing and decision, and affirmed the trial court's orders. In affirming the trial court's appointment of the receiver, the court ruled that the trial court did not abuse its discretion because the court did not, in appointing the receiver, reserve jurisdiction to change the property award or to determine that the ranch would not be sold. The court ruled that the property rights in the ranch were determined by the decree, which was not under attack. The trial court, in appointing the receiver, had no discretion to do otherwise. Its duty was to enforce the terms of the decree, and its order in appointing the receiver was made pursuant to the authority of former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (3), (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)) to enforce the decree and carry it into effect (172 Cal. App. 2d 714, 720) .

In Koshaba v. Koshaba (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 302, 132 P.2d 854 , plaintiff brought a stockholder's derivative action to remove one of defendants from his position as director of both of defendant corporations, and to compel him to restore certain moneys allegedly misappropriated from the corporations. Plaintiff also sought the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the business of defendant corporations, and to operate them until new directors could be appointed. After trial, the court found that the directors of one of defendant corporations were under the domination of defendant director, that defendant director was guilty of fraudulent and dishonest acts and gross abuse of authority, and that he had diverted corporate funds to his own use. The judgment ordered, among other things, that defendant director be removed from the boards of both corporations and that he be barred from election for ten years. The judgment also ordered the appointment of a receiver to carry into effect the terms of the judgment by operating the business until a new director could be duly elected to take defendant's place, calling an election for a new director, securing a writ of execution to be levied against defendant's stock to enforce the money judgment against him, to pay the court-appointed accountant, and to report back to the court (56 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307, 314) . Defendants appealed from the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment, including the order appointing the receiver. The court found no merit in defendants' contentions that the trial court possessed no power to divorce the duly constituted directors from control of the corporation. The court held that former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)) expressly conferred on the trial court power to appoint a receiver after judgment to carry the judgment into effect. This was exactly what the trial court did. It did not, for example, dissolve the corporation. It merely took reasonable steps to preserve the business in safe hands pending the election of a new director and manager, and to ensure that its judgment would be carried into effect (56 Cal. App. 2d 302, 314) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.281

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.281 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Carry Judgment into Effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)]--Appointment of Receiver to Abate Public Nuisance

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Carry Judgment into Effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)]--Appointment of Receiver to Abate Public Nuisance

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE APPOINTMENT IS APPROPRIATE TO CARRY INTO EFFECT A JUDGMENT TO ABATE A PUBLIC NUISANCE.

Appointment of Receiver to Abate Public Nuisance. The court has the discretion under Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(3) to appoint a receiver to carry into effect a judgment to abate a public nuisance (see City and County of San Francisco v. Daley (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 742-744, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed after judgment in an action to abate a nuisance to carry the judgment into effect [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)]. They may be combined with a general form of points and authorities supporting the contention that a receiver should be appointed to carry the judgment into effect [see § 200.280[1]].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to carry the judgment into effect. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for the facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Abate Public Nuisance

City and County of San Francisco v. Daley (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 , involved an action initiated by a city in August 1988 against a residential property owner and her daughter to abate a public nuisance existing on the property. Only defendant's son answered, after which a default was entered. At a following hearing, the court ordered defendants to remedy the violations and to apply for all appropriate building permits. After repeated continuances of an order to show cause hearing to hold the parties in contempt, the son was jailed for five days for contempt. Throughout this period the three transferred title to the property among themselves. The city finally noticed a hearing for November 1991 for the appointment of a receiver to correct the outstanding violations. The court ordered the appointment. Defendant mother filed an appeal from the order.

The court of appeal affirmed the appointment. The court rejected defendant's argument that Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3) was inapplicable in abatement proceedings. The plain language of that section permits the appointment of a receiver after judgment, to carry the judgment into effect. There is nothing in the statute to suggest that the Legislature intended to exclude judgments in abatement proceedings (16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 742-744) . Although the appointment of a receiver is sometimes characterized as a drastic remedy, the facts of the case supported the appointment. The court rejected defendant's argument that other remedies should have been considered. It would have been nonsensical to shut off the power and water to the unoccupied property, especially after jailing the son was not effective. The city did not have to attempt to seize the property under eminent domain. Contrary to defendant's argument, demolition had been offered as an option. Finally, the court rejected defendant's argument that the order to correct all outstanding code violations was overbroad. Defendant was protected from excessive repairs because the order required the receiver to first report to the court on the estimated costs of repairs (16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 745-746) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.282-200.289

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.282[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.290

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.290 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Dispose of Property According to Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Dispose of Property According to Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY TO DISPOSE OF PROPERTY ACCORDING TO THE JUDGMENT.

Appointment of Receiver to Dispose of Property According to Judgment. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, after judgment, to dispose of the property according to the judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4); see Sheridan v. Sheridan (1972) 33 Cal. App. 3d 917, 922, 109 Cal. Rptr. 466).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed after judgment to dispose of property according to the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example,

these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to dispose of property according to the judgment. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Dispose of Property According to Judgment

In Sheridan v. Sheridan (1972) 33 Cal. App. 3d 917, 109 Cal. Rptr. 466 , plaintiff petitioned the trial court for the appointment of a receiver to receive the salary checks of defendant, a federal employee, and to disburse the checks to plaintiff in payment of defendant's obligations of child support, attorney's fees, costs, and indebtedness pursuant to a judgment dissolving the marriage of plaintiff and defendant. The trial court granted plaintiff's petition, and defendant appealed from the order appointing the receiver, contending that the doctrine of sovereign immunity precluded the California court from appointing a receiver when the sole purpose of the appointment was the receipt and disbursement of the salary of defendant, an employee of a federal agency.

The court of appeal affirmed the order of appointment. The court held the doctrine of sovereign immunity inapplicable to prevent the appointment when no relief was sought against the federal government, and when the trial court's order did not attempt to garnish or attach any property in the possession of the federal government, was directed to defendant alone, and was applicable to defendant's salary only after it had come into his possession (33 Cal. App. 3d 917, 920) . Even though the salary could not be reached by plaintiff through a receiver while the money remained a mere debt due from the government to defendant, and as such was an intangible credit, the salary checks did become available and amenable to control of the court when defendant received them. Their character and status were changed thereby and became tangible property in the actual possession and control of defendant. If necessary or expedient to secure conversion of the checks into legal tender and apply them toward satisfaction of the judgment, the court was empowered to appoint a receiver for that purpose. Noting that no governmental agency was a party or objected to the action at bar, so long as the sovereign was not directly involved, the court found no cogent reason why federal employees should enjoy complete immunity from state enforcement of their financial obligations (33 Cal. App. 3d 917, 921-922) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.291-200.299

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.291[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.300

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.300 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Preserve Property During Pendency of Appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Preserve Property During Pendency of Appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY TO PRESERVE PROPERTY DURING THE PENDENCY OF _____ [specify party seeking the appointment, e.g., PLAINTIFF'S] APPEAL.

Appointment of Receiver to Preserve Property During Pendency of Appeal. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, after judgment, to preserve property during the pendency of an appeal (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4); Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 19, 22, 247 P.2d 609).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed after judgment to preserve property during the pendency of an appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example,

these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to preserve the property during the pendency of an appeal. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Preserve Property During Pendency of Appeal

The facts and procedural background of Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 19, 247 P.2d 609 , are discussed in § 200.100[3][c]. In Sibert, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order appointing a receiver of the partnership property on plaintiffs' motion. The court based its ruling, in part, on Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4), finding the appointment necessary to preserve the partnership's property during the pendency of defendant's appeals from the merits of the action. The court relied on the trial court's finding that defendant had in fact stated that he would personally spend the entire proceeds of the partnership business before he would pay the plaintiffs a nickel, that he would go bankrupt before he would account to them for anything, and that he would never turn any of the books of the partnership over to anyone (113 Cal. App. 2d 19, 22) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.301

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.301 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Preserve Property During Enforcement Proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.070]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Preserve Property During Enforcement Proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.070]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

[EITHER, if property is perishable or subject to depreciation]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION TO PRESERVE THE VALUE OF PROPERTY THAT HAS BEEN LEVIED ON BY WRIT OF EXECUTION, BECAUSE THE PROPERTY IS _____ [PERISHABLE or WILL GREATLY DETERIORATE OR GREATLY DEPRECIATE IN VALUE]

[OR, if receivership is in best interests of parties]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION TO PRESERVE THE VALUE OF PROPERTY THAT HAS BEEN LEVIED ON BY WRIT OF EXECUTION, BECAUSE THE INTERESTS OF THE PARTIES WILL BE BEST SERVED BY AN ORDER APPOINTING A RECEIVER.

[CONTINUE]

A. Appointment Is Necessary to Preserve Property Value. In the enforcement of a money judgment by writ of execution, the court may appoint a receiver to take any action the court orders necessary to preserve the value of property levied on if the court determines that the property is perishable, or will greatly deteriorate or depreciate in value, or that, for some other reason, the interests of the parties will be best served by the appointment of a receiver (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 699.010, 699.070(a)).

B. Law Governing Appointment of Receiver to Enforce Judgment. The provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Sections 564-571 govern the appointment, qualifications, powers, rights, and duties of a receiver appointed under Code of Civil Procedure Section 699.070 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.070(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070, to enforce a money judgment by writ of execution. The court may appoint a receiver when the appointment is necessary to preserve the value of the property, if the court determines that the property is perishable, or will greatly deteriorate or depreciate in value, or that, for some other reason, the interests of the parties will be best served by the order [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.700(a), 699.070(a)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].
- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].
- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].
- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the property to be levied on is perishable, will greatly deteriorate, or will greatly depreciate in value, or any other specific facts showing that the interests of the parties will be best served by the appointment of a receiver. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Parties Authorized to Seek Appointment of Receiver

An order appointing a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070(a) may be made on application of the judgment creditor, the judgment debtor, or a person who has filed a third-party claim pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 720.010-720.800.

[d] Method of Application for Receiver

The application for the appointment of the receiver must be made on noticed motion if the court so directs or if a court rule so requires. Otherwise, the application may be made ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070(a)].

133 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.302-200.309

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.302[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.310

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.310 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY TO ENFORCE THE JUDGMENT.

Appointment of Receiver to Enforce Judgment Under Enforcement of Judgments Law. The appointment of a receiver is proper after judgment to enforce a judgment under the Enforcement of Judgments Law contained in Code of Civil Procedure Sections 680.010-724.260 (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4); Bruton v. Tearle (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 48, 53, 59 P.2d 953 ; Crocker National Bank v. O'Donnell (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 264, 269, 171 Cal. Rptr. 225 (both cases decided prior to 1982 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4) and 680.010-724.260).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contentions that a receiver should be appointed to enforce a judgment under the Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.010-724.260) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4); Fam. Code § 290 (Family Code judgment or order may be enforced by appointment of receiver as court in its discretion determines to be necessary)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to enforce the judgment. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] 1982 Amendments to Laws Governing Enforcement of Judgments

In 1982, Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) was amended to delete the requirements that, before obtaining a receiver in aid of the execution of a judgment, the party seeking appointment had to show that execution had been returned unsatisfied or that the judgment debtor refused to apply his or her property in satisfaction of the judgment. Similarly, former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 714 and 715, providing for supplementary proceedings in aid of execution of judgments, were repealed and replaced by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.110-708.205, providing for the examination of a debtor and discovery of his or her assets. Finally, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.010-724.260 were added, comprising the new Enforcement of Judgments Law.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver to Enforce Judgment Under Enforcement of Judgments Law

A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, after judgment, to dispose of the property according to the judgment, or to preserve it during the pendency of an appeal, or pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.010-724.260 (enforcement of judgments), or after sale of real property pursuant to a decree of foreclosure, during the redemption period, to collect, expend, and disburse rents as directed by the court or otherwise provided by law (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)).

In Bruton v. Tearle (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 48, 59 P.2d 953 , the original plaintiff (subsequently deceased) brought an action against defendant to recover a judgment for unpaid alimony. She recovered judgment and defendant appealed the judgment. During the pendency of the appeal, the original plaintiff died, her administrator was substituted, and the judgment was affirmed. Despite various efforts to obtain satisfaction of the judgment, it was only partially satisfied. Defendant subsequently entered into an agreement with plaintiff's administrator by which defendant would, over time, satisfy the remainder of the judgment. After defendant had ceased making payments under the agreement, even though the judgment remained unsatisfied, plaintiff's administrator obtained, on notice and after hearing, the appointment of a receiver in aid of execution. The affidavit supporting the application for the appointment set forth facts showing that execution of the judgment had been returned only partially satisfied, that defendant refused to apply his earnings to the satisfaction of the judgment, and that defendant, his manager, and his film studio employer had conspired to defeat collection of the judgment. Defendant appealed from the order appointing the receiver.

Adopting, in part, the opinion of the court of appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order appointing the receiver. The Court ruled that the trial court had jurisdiction to make the order appointing the receiver under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (4), providing for the appointment of a receiver after judgment in proceedings in aid of execution, when an execution has been returned unsatisfied, or when the judgment debtor refuses to apply property in satisfaction of the judgment (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4), providing for the appointment of a receiver pursuant to the Enforcement of Judgments Law). The trial court also had jurisdiction to make the order because the action was not an attempt to bring an independent action in the nature of a creditor's bill, but was a proceeding strictly in accordance with the statutory provisions for proceedings supplemental to execution (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.110-708.205 (examination proceedings). Furthermore, showing was clearly sufficient to justify the appointment of the receiver (7 Cal. 2d 48, 53) .

In Crocker National Bank v. O'Donnell (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 264, 171 Cal. Rptr. 225 , plaintiff obtained a money judgment against defendant, based on a promissory note. Plaintiff unsuccessfully attempted to collect or execute on the judgment. Subsequently, plaintiff moved the trial court for the appointment of a receiver in aid of execution under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4). The matter came on for hearing, and the trial court granted plaintiff's motion. The order appointing the receiver authorized the receiver to demand, collect, and receive all earnings by defendant, individually, and as a corporation, from any and all sources, including the individual defendant's professional medical corporation, of which the individual defendant was the sole shareholder. The order also authorized the receiver to take possession of all books and records of defendant, individually and as a corporation, to enable the receiver to collect the earnings of defendant individually. Defendants appealed from the order, contending, among other things, that the order was invalid insofar as it applied to the records of the corporation.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order appointing the receiver, finding defendants' contention as to the invalidity of the order relative to the corporation to be wholly without merit (115 Cal. App. 3d 264, 267, 269) . The court found that the individual defendant was the sole shareholder of the corporation, that he used corporation funds as his own, and that his use of the corporate checking account for his personal expenses operated to defraud creditors by preventing plaintiff, as a practical matter, from reaching his earnings. The court accepted plaintiff's contention that the order appointing the receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) was necessary to prevent the individual defendant from taking his earnings out of the corporation for his own benefit without applying the earnings to the judgment (115 Cal. App. 3d 264, 267) .

NOTE:

Cases Decided Prior to 1982 Amendment. Counsel should note that these cases were decided prior to the 1982 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) [see discussion in § 200.310[2][c]]. However, the cases still appear to be valid authority for the proposition that a receiver may be appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4), after judgment, pursuant to the Enforcement of Judgments Law.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.311

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.311 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment Is Necessary to Ensure Fair and Orderly Satisfaction of Judgment

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment Is Necessary to Ensure Fair and Orderly Satisfaction of Judgment

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS A REASON ABLE METHOD TO OBTAIN THE FAIR AND ORDERLY SATISFACTION OF THE JUDGMENT.

A. Appointment to Ensure Fair and Orderly Satisfaction of Judgment. The court may appoint a receiver to enforce the judgment when the judgment creditor shows that, considering the interests of both the judgment creditor and the judgment debtor, the appointment of a receiver is a reasonable method to obtain the fair and orderly satisfaction of the judgment (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 708.620).

B. Law Governing Appointment of Receiver to Enforce Judgment. The provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Sections 564-571 govern the appointment, qualifications, powers, right, and duties of a receiver appointed under Code of Civil Procedure Sections 708.610-708.620 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 708.610).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed to enforce a judgment when the judgment creditor shows that the appointment is a reasonable method to obtain the fair and orderly satisfaction of the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 708.620]. For points and authorities that may be submitted in support of the contention that the appointment of a receiver is proper to apply the judgment debtor's interest in an alcoholic beverage license to the satisfaction of a money judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630, see § 200.320[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that, considering the interests of both the judgment creditor and the judgment debtor, the appointment of a receiver is a reasonable method to obtain the fair and orderly satisfaction of the judgment. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.312

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.312 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--General Form--Appointment Is Proper to Enforce Simple Money Judgment

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--General Form--Appointment Is Proper to Enforce Simple Money Judgment

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS PROPER TO ENFORCE THE SIMPLE MONEY JUDGMENT THAT THIS CASE PRESENTS.

Appointment of Receiver as Proper to Enforce Simple Money Judgment. The provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(4), authorizing the appointment of a receiver after judgment to enforce a judgment under the Enforcement of Judgments Law, do not exclude appointment of a receiver to collect a simple money judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4); Olsan v. Comora (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647, 140 Cal. Rptr. 835 (decided prior to 1982 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4) and 680.010-724.260).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the appointment of a receiver is proper to enforce a simple money judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]. For discussion regarding 1982 amendments to laws governing enforcement of judgments, see § 200.310[2][c].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to enforce the judgment. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver as Proper to Enforce Simple Money Judgment

The facts and procedural background of Olsan v. Comora (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 140 Cal. Rptr. 835 , are discussed in § 200.312[3][a]. In Olsan, in affirming the trial court's order appointing a receiver, the court of appeal held that the law, both statutory and decisional, did not support defendant's contention that a receiver could not be appointed to enforce a simple money judgment (73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 646) . The court looked to former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (4), providing for the appointment of a receiver in proceedings in aid of execution, when an execution has been returned unsatisfied, or when the judgment debtor refuses to apply his or her property in satisfaction of the judgment. The court found the wording of the former statute to be clear and ambiguous, and found that it did not exclude the appointment of a receiver to collect a simple money judgment. The court ruled that the wording only limited the circumstances under which a court may use the somewhat harsh remedy of receivership. The court ruled that prior case law confirmed that it was proper, under certain circumstances, to appoint a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) to enforce a simple money judgment (73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647) .

NOTE:

Case Decided Prior to 1982 Amendment. Counsel should note that this case was decided prior to the 1982 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) [see discussion in § 200.310[2][c]]. However, the case still appears to be valid authority for the proposition that a receiver may be appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4), after judgment, pursuant to the Enforcement of Judgments Law.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.313

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.313 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Court Is Not Required to Order Examination Proceedings Prior to Appointing Receiver

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Court Is Not Required to Order Examination Proceedings Prior to Appointing Receiver

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION WITHOUT EXAMINATION PROCEEDINGS.

Court Is Not Required to Order Examination Proceedings Prior to Appointing Receiver to Enforce Judgment. There is no provision in Code of Civil Procedure Section 564(b)(4) requiring examination proceedings under Code of Civil Procedure Sections 708.110-708.205 before the remedy of receivership may be invoked, and the court is not required to order an examination proceeding if it is convinced that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to aid in the execution of a judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4); Olsan v. Comora (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 648, 140 Cal. Rptr. 835 (decided prior to 1982 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4) and 680.010-724.260).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court is not required to order examination proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.110-708.205 before appointing a receiver to enforce a judgment. For discussion regarding 1982 amendments to laws governing enforcement of judgments, see § 200.310[2][c].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to enforce the judgment. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Is Not Required to Order Examination Proceedings Prior to Appointing Receiver to Enforce Judgment

In Olsan v. Comora (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 140 Cal. Rptr. 835 , plaintiff obtained a money judgment against defendant. The judgment became final after being affirmed on appeal. By means of an execution and garnishment, plaintiff collected a portion of the judgment from defendant out of a pending escrow. Plaintiff then sought the appointment of a receiver under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (4). After notice and hearing, the trial court appointed a receiver to take possession and collect all earnings, cash, bank deposits, and checks representing amounts received by defendant for services performed by him as a dentist. Defendant appealed from the order, contending that the appointment of a receiver to collect a simple money judgment can only be made in connection with supplemental proceedings in aid of execution under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 714 and 715 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.110-708.205 (examination proceedings)) (73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647) .

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order appointing the receiver. The court held that, contrary to defendant's contention, case law and former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) did not exclude the direct appointment of a receiver by a court absent supplementary proceedings (now examination proceedings). The court ruled there was no provision in former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd.(4) requiring supplemental proceedings before the remedy of receivership could be invoked. Furthermore, there was no similar provisional language in former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 714 and 715. Finally, the court noted that the practice in superior courts in numerous counties was that a petitioning party had procedural alternatives, and could proceed under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 714 and 715, or could proceed directly by motion to the court under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564 subd. (4) (73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 648) . Noting that the latter procedure was used by plaintiff, the court found a logical and expeditious reason for that pragmatic procedure in that the trial court was convinced of the need for the appointment by the evidence in support of plaintiff's motion (73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 648-649) . Therefore, the trial court was not required to order a supplementary proceeding that would only establish anew the need for a receiver. The court concluded that it was satisfied the trial court had jurisdiction to appoint the receiver under the facts and procedures used in the case, and that it did not abuse its discretion in doing so (73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 649) .

NOTE:

Case Decided Prior to 1982 Amendment. Counsel should note that this case was decided prior to the 1982 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) [see discussion in § 200.310[2][c]]. However, the case still appears to be valid authority for the proposition that a receiver may be appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4), after judgment, pursuant to the Enforcement of Judgments Law.

138 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.314-200.319

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.314[Reserved]

139 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.320

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.320 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment to Take Possession of Judgment Debtor's Interest in Alcoholic Beverage License [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment to Take Possession of Judgment Debtor's Interest in Alcoholic Beverage License [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY TO APPLY THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S INTEREST IN HIS/HER/ITS ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGE LICENSE TO THE SATISFACTION OF THE JUDGMENT.

Appointment to Take Possession of Judgment Debtor's Interest in Alcoholic Beverage License. A court may apply a judgment debtor's interest in an alcoholic beverage license to the satisfaction of a money judgment by appointing a receiver, for the purpose of transferring that portion of the judgment debtor's interest in the license that is transferable to the receiver, unless the judgment debtor shows that the amount of delinquent taxes and claims of creditors with priority over the judgment creditor exceeds the probable sale price of the license (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 708.630).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the appointment of a receiver is proper to apply the judgment debtor's interest in an alcoholic beverage license to the satisfaction of a money judgment by placing the license in receivership [see Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed to enforce a judgment [see § 200.310[1].

These points and authorities should also be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In a proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630, counsel should also include specific facts showing that some or all of debtor's interest in an alcoholic beverage license is transferable under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24070-24082 (transfer of alcoholic beverage licenses). See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment to Take Possession of Judgment Debtor's Interest in Alcoholic Beverage License

The judgment debtor's interest in an alcoholic beverage license may be applied to the satisfaction of a money judgment only as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630 [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630(a)]. The court may appoint a receiver for the purpose of transferring the judgment debtor's interest in an alcoholic beverage license that is transferable under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24070-24082, unless the judgment debtor shows, in the proceeding to appoint a receiver, that the amount of delinquent taxes described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 24049 and claims of creditors with priority over the judgment creditor pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 24074 exceed the probable sale price of the license (Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630(b)). The exercise of powers by the receiver is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630(c).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.321

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§ 200.321[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.322

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.322 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed--To Enforce Judgment--Judgment Debtor's Transferable Interest in General Partnership Charged With Unsatisfied Amount of Judgment Debt [Corp. Code § 16504]--Partnership Governed by Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 [Corp. Code §§ 16100-16962]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed--To Enforce Judgment--Judgment Debtor's Transferable Interest in General Partnership Charged With Unsatisfied Amount of Judgment Debt [Corp. Code § 16504]--Partnership Governed by Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 [Corp. Code §§ 16100-16962]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint a receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint a receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

A RECEIVER SHOULD BE APPOINTED AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY TO ENFORCE A JUDGMENT AGAINST THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR BY MEANS OF A CHARGING ORDER APPLYING THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR'S TRANSFERABLE INTEREST IN _____ [specify name of partnership], A PARTNERSHIP, TOWARD SATISFACTION OF THE JUDGMENT.

A. Charging Order as Available to Satisfy Judgment. If a money judgment is rendered against a partner or a partner's transferee, but not against the partnership, and the partnership is governed by the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (Corp. Code §§ 16100-16962), the judgment debtor's transferable interest may be applied toward the satisfaction of the judgment by an order charging the judgment debtor's transferable interest in the partnership (Corp. Code §§ 16111(a),(b), 16504(a)).

B. Appointment of Receiver. For a partnership governed by the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (Corp Code §§ 16100-16962), the court may appoint a receiver of the share of the distributions due or to become due the judgment debtor in respect of the partnership and make all other orders, directions, accounts, and inquiries the judgment debtor might have made or the circumstances of the case may require [Corp. Code §§ 16111(a), (b), 16504(a)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed after judgment to charge the judgment debtor's transferable interest in a general partnership to satisfy the unpaid amount of the judgment when a money judgment is rendered against a partner or a partner's transferee, but not against the partnership [see Corp. Code § 16504(a)].

For discussion of which Act applies, see [c], below.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing the nature and extent of the debtor partner's interest in the partnership. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.323

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.323 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment to Apply Franchise Granted by Public Entity to Satisfy Money Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.920]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.010 et seq.]--Appointment to Apply Franchise Granted by Public Entity to Satisfy Money Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.920]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY TO ENFORCE THE MONEY JUDGMENT BY APPLYING THE FRANCHISE GRANTED TO THE JUDGMENT DEBTOR BY _____ [specify public entity], A PUBLIC ENTITY, TO SATISFACTION OF THE JUDGMENT.

A. Application of Franchise Granted by Public Entity to Satisfaction of Money Judgment. The court may, in its discretion, order a franchise, granted by a public entity, applied to the satisfaction of a money judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 708.920(a)).

B. Factors Considered by Court in Applying Franchise to Satisfaction of Judgment. In exercising its discretion to order a franchise applied to the satisfaction of a money judgment, the court shall determine whether application of the franchise to the satisfaction of the judgment is proper, taking into account all the circumstances of the case, including, but not limited to, the nature of the franchise, whether the franchise is, by its terms, transferable, and the likelihood that application of the franchise to the satisfaction of the judgment will yield a substantial amount (Code Civ. Proc. § 708.920(a)).

C. Appointment of Receiver. If the court orders application of the franchise to the satisfaction of the judgment, application shall be by such means as appear proper to the court, including, but not limited to, the appointment of a receiver (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 708.920(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed after judgment to apply a franchise granted by a public entity to the satisfaction of a money judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 708.920(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 708.910 ("franchise" defined)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed to enforce a judgment [see § 200.310[1].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the franchise is amenable to receivership. Additionally, counsel should include facts showing that application of the franchise to satisfaction of the judgment will yield a substantial amount. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver

If the court orders application of the franchise to the satisfaction of the judgment, application shall be by such means as appear proper to the court, including, but not limited to, sale of the franchise, assignment of the franchise or its proceeds, or appointment of a receiver. The court may include in its order, or make additional orders containing, provisions to effectuate the application of the franchise to the satisfaction of the judgment, including, but not limited to, provisions relating to the place of sale of the franchise, possession of the judgment debtor's property necessary for the exercise of the franchise, receipt of proceeds of the franchise, recovery of penalties imposed by law and recoverable for injury to the franchise or for damages or other cause, and the judgment debtor's powers, duties, and liability for penalties and forfeitures [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.920(b)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.324-200.329

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.324[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.330

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.330 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment For Possession or Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 708.610-708.630, 712.060]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed to Enforce Judgment For Possession or Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 708.610-708.630, 712.060]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE APPOINTMENT IS NECESSARY TO ENFORCE THE JUDGMENT FOR THE _____ [POSSESSION or SALE] OF PROPERTY.

Appointment to Enforce Judgment for Possession or Sale of Property. The court may appoint a receiver under Code of Civil Procedure Sections 708.610-708.630 to enforce a judgment for possession or sale of property (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 712.060).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed to enforce a judgment for the possession or sale of property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 712.060].

These points and authorities should be combined with a general form of memorandum in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed to enforce a judgment [see § 200.310[1]]. It may also be combined with points and authorities in support of appointment to ensure the fair and orderly satisfaction of the judgment [see § 200.311[1]].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also, California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing the existence of a judgment for the possession or sale of property, and that, under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.620, the appointment is a reasonable method to obtain the fair and orderly satisfaction of the judgment. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.331-200.339

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.331[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
2. Receivership in Postjudgment Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.340

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.340 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed After Sale of Real Property Pursuant to Decree of Foreclosure [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.070]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed After Sale of Real Property Pursuant to Decree of Foreclosure [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564(b)(4), 699.070]

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER AFTER JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE A RECEIVER IS NECESSARY, AFTER SALE OF REAL PROPERTY PURSUANT TO THE DECREE OF FORECLOSURE, TO COLLECT, EXPEND, AND DISBURSE RENTS DURING THE REDEMPTION PERIOD, AS _____ [DIRECTED BY THE COURT or PROVIDED BY LAW].

Appointment After Sale of Real Property Pursuant to Decree of Foreclosure. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, after sale of real property pursuant to a decree of foreclosure, during the redemption period, to collect, expend, and disburse rents as directed by the court or otherwise provided by law (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed after real property has been sold pursuant to a decree of foreclosure, to collect, expend, and disburse rents, during the redemption period, as directed by the court or otherwise provided by law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary to collect, expend, and disburse rents during the redemption period. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
3. Receivership in Arbitration Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.341

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.341 Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Arbitrable Controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Should Be Appointed in Arbitrable Controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)]--General Form

[This form should be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a motion to appoint receiver (see § 200.10) or an ex parte application to appoint receiver (see § 200.50), or included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT A RECEIVER IN CONNECTION WITH THIS ARBITRABLE CONTROVERSY BECAUSE THE AWARD TO WHICH THE APPLICANT MAY BE ENTITLED MAY BE RENDERED INEFFECTUAL.

Appointment of Receiver in Connection With Arbitrable Controversy. A receiver may be appointed by the court in connection with an arbitrable controversy only on the ground that the arbitration award to which the applicant may be entitled may be rendered ineffectual without such an appointment (Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b); see Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 238, 248-249, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402 (court, not arbitrators, have authority to appoint receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed in connection with an arbitrable controversy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)].

Any application to appoint a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b) is required to be accompanied by a complaint or by copies of a demand for arbitration and any response thereto. If accompanied by a complaint, the application to appoint a receiver shall be accompanied by a statement stating whether the party is or is not reserving the party's right to arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)]. In addition, an application for appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b) does not operate to waive any right of arbitration which the applicant may have pursuant to written agreement to arbitrate if, at the same time the application is presented, the applicant also presents to the court an application that all the proceedings in the action be stayed pending the arbitration of any issue, question or dispute which is claimed to be arbitrable under the agreement and is relevant to the action in which appointment of receiver is sought. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(d)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the appointment of a receiver is necessary because the arbitration award which the applicant might be entitled to may be rendered ineffectual without the appointment of a receiver. See also the comments in § 200.270[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for the facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For related legal background, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.42 (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For additional points and authorities relating to arbitration of disputes, including points and authorities relating to staying an action pending arbitration, which may be used in conjunction with this form, see Ch. 20, Arbitration: Compelling .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Appointment of Receiver in Connection With Arbitrable Controversy

Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 238, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402 , involved a dispute between partners which resulted in one partner filing a complaint against the other for fraud, breach of fiduciary duty, and other causes of action. The other partner successfully petitioned to compel arbitration and stay the action pending arbitration. After lengthy proceedings, the panel of arbitrators rendered an award that included the appointment of one of the panel members as receiver to supervise the sale of the partnership's property and the dissolution of the partnership. The trial court confirmed award, and one of the partners appealed.

The Court of Appeal, addressing the part of the award appointing a receiver, held that receivers have no power to appoint a receiver (23 Cal. App. 4th at 245-249). The court first noted the absence of any statutory authority for arbitrators to appoint a receiver (23 Cal. App. 4th at 245-246), and then held that the parties cannot by their agreement empower an arbitrator to appoint a receiver (23 Cal. App. 4th at 246-248). The court, in declining to exercise its whatever liberty it might have to recognize a nonstatutory receiver, reasoned in part that the fact that the legislature has expressly provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8 that parties to an arbitration agreement may apply to the superior court for appointment of a receiver, meant that there was very little practical need to find that arbitrators do have the power to appoint a receiver. The court also relied on the fact that a receiver is an agent of the Court and not of the parties, and a receivership estate in the receiver's hands is under the control and continuing supervision of the court (23 Cal. App. 4th at 248). Therefore, the court held that the arbitrators had exceeded their powers by appointing a receiver and reversed the judgment confirming the award to that extent. The court went on however, to suggest that on remand the trial court should consider whether it should appoint a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) as a correction of the award (23 Cal. App. 4th at 248-249).

148 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
C. Appointment of Receiver in Specified Proceedings
3. Receivership in Arbitration Proceedings

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.342-200.349

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.342[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
D. Persons Eligible for Appointment as Receivers

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.350

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.350 Supporting Contention That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Written Consent to Appointment

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Written Consent to Appointment

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT _____ [name] AS RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE A PERSON WHO IS _____ [specify, e.g., INTERESTED IN THE ACTION] MAY BE APPOINTED RECEIVER WHEN THE PARTIES CONSENT IN WRITING TO THE APPOINTMENT.

Appointment of Receiver With Written Consent of Parties Filed With Clerk. A party or attorney of a party, or person interested in an action, or related to any judge of the court by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree, may be appointed receiver therein if written consent of the parties has been obtained and filed with the clerk of the court (see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)).

[Add additional points and authorities supporting the appointment of the receiver on substantive or procedural grounds (see, e.g., §§ 200.10 and 200.80 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed who is a party, an attorney of a party, a person interested in an action, or a person related to any judge of the court by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree because written consent of the parties has been obtained and filed with the clerk of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in support of a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.10].

- Submitted in support of the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.50].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

- Raised as allegations or as a prayer in a complaint in a pending action seeking the provisional relief of receivership [see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that all parties have consented, in writing, to the appointment of the receiver and that the written consent has been filed with the clerk of the court. Alternatively, counsel should include facts showing that the party seeking to deny the validity of the appointment failed to timely object when the receiver was appointed. For example, in an appropriate case counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations and affidavits submitted in support of, or even in opposition to, the appointment [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Nomination of Receivers

At the hearing of an application for the appointment of a receiver on notice, or at the hearing for confirmation of an ex parte appointment, each party appearing may suggest in writing one or more persons for appointment or substitution as receiver, stating the reasons. The suggestion shall be without prejudice to objections to the appointment or confirmation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177].

[d] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 200.360[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities in § 200.350[1].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
D. Persons Eligible for Appointment as Receivers

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.351

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.351 Supporting Contention That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Waiver of Objection

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Waiver of Objection

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPOINT _____ [name] AS RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE A PERSON WHO IS _____ [specify, e.g., INTERESTED IN THE ACTION] MAY BE APPOINTED RECEIVER WHEN THE OTHER PARTIES HAVE WAIVED THEIR OBJECTIONS TO THE APPOINTMENT.

Failure to Timely Object to Appointment Constitutes Waiver of Objection. It is the duty of the party opposed to the appointment of a receiver to make timely objection to the appointment. The failure to make a timely objection constitutes a waiver and estops the party from denying the validity of the appointment (Hise v. Superior Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 614, 623, 134 P.2d 748 ; Weygandt v. Larson (1933) 130 Cal. App 304, 309-310, 19 P.2d 852).

[Add additional points and authorities supporting the appointment of the receiver on substantive or procedural grounds (see, e.g., §§ 200.10 and 200.80 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver should be appointed who is a party, an attorney of a party, a person interested in an action, or a person related to any judge of the court by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree because a party has failed to timely object to the appointment.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, when the opposing party has failed to appeal the order appointing the receiver, counsel would request that the court take judicial notice of the fact that no appeal was filed by the opposing party, and point out that the failure to appeal constitutes a waiver of the party's objection to appointment of the receiver [Hise v. Superior Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 614, 623, 134 P.2d 748 , discussed in § 200.351[3][a]]. See also the comments in § 200.350[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.360[1] may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Timely Object to Appointment Constitutes Waiver of Objection

Hise v. Superior Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 614, 134 P.2d 748 , arose out of a class action to impress a constructive trust on the assets of one savings and loan association, title to which was held by defendant, another savings and loan association. Plaintiffs in that action sought to remove defendant as trustee of the assets and sought an accounting. After trial, the court entered judgment for plaintiffs, impressing a trust on the assets in favor of plaintiff class. The judgment provided for the appointment of a receiver to enforce the money judgment, requiring payment of certain of the assets to approximately 17,000 persons comprising the plaintiff class. Subsequently, the trial court issued an order appointing the then state building and loan commissioner as receiver to carry the judgment into effect. Petitioner in the instant action later succeeded the receiver as building and loan commissioner. Thereafter, the receiver filed with the trial court, respondent in the instant action, a petition for an order directing the building and loan commissioner to show cause why he should not be ordered to render an account of certain amounts held by him and to pay the receiver from that account an amount sufficient to satisfy that portion of the money judgment from which no appeal was taken. Respondent court issued the order, directing petitioner to show cause why the relief should not be granted. Petitioner then sought a writ of prohibition in the court of appeal, directing respondent court to show cause why it should not be prohibited from enforcing its judgment.

The court of appeal issued a peremptory writ of prohibition, restraining respondent court from taking any further steps to enforce the judgment, without, however, restricting the right of the receiver to receive and disburse any amounts paid by petitioner, as building and loan commissioner, in full or partial satisfaction of it (21 Cal. 2d 614, 630) . In seeking the writ, petitioner contended, among other things, that the receiver's appointment was a nullity because the receiver was a party to the underlying action, and the written consent to the appointment of all other parties to the action was not filed as required by former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)). Citing Weygandt v. Larson (1933) 130 Cal. App 304, 309-310, 19 P.2d 852 (discussed below), the court found the appointment valid, ruling that, under the circumstances of the case, petitioner was estopped to deny the validity of the appointment for all purposes for which the receiver could lawfully act under the judgment (21 Cal. 2d 614, 623) . The court found that, on notice to all interested parties in the action, respondent court appointed the then building and loan commissioner, in his individual capacity, as receiver to carry the judgment into effect (21 Cal. 2d 614, 622-623) . At the time of the appointment, no written consent of the parties was filed with the clerk. However, no appeal was taken from the order of appointment. Furthermore, petitioner recognized the receiver by virtue of petitioner's application to a superior court (other than respondent court) for an order permitting him to mail a required notice-to-creditors to the receiver in lieu of individual notices to each plaintiff in the action, and also by virtue of his payment to the receiver to apply on the judgment in favor of certain members of the plaintiff class. The court noted that the superior court, in issuing those orders, implicitly recognized the advantage of having a receiver represent the judgment creditors in the savings and loan association's liquidation proceedings (21 Cal. 2d 614, 623) .

In Weygandt v. Larson (1933) 130 Cal. App 304, 19 P.2d 852 , plaintiff, as distributee and representing the heirs of decedent, brought an action for an accounting and to restrain defendants from disposing of certain trust property. After trial, one of defendants was adjudged the record owner of certain real property to which he held title as trustee under a trust established by decedent. However, the interests of the beneficiaries of that trust were held subordinate to a certain indebtedness owing by some of them to the trust estate. The judgment included orders dissolving the trusts and appointing a receiver of the land held by defendant trustee. The judgment empowered the receiver to manage the property and to collect all indebtedness due the trust estate from the beneficiaries and others owing money to the trust estate. Thereafter, the receiver wound up the affairs of the trust estate and moved for a deficiency judgment against those defendants owing money to the trust estate. The trial court granted the receiver's motion, and rendered judgment in favor of the receiver and against defendants for the various amounts of their indebtedness. Those defendants then appealed from the deficiency judgment.

The court of appeal modified, and affirmed as modified, the trial court's deficiency judgment. Among other things, the court found the appointment of the receiver valid under Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)). It was admitted that the receiver was attorney for some of the heirs of decedent's estate prior to his appointment as receiver. However, the court found that the appointment was made in open court in the presence of defendants and their attorneys, all of whom knew of the receiver's prior association in the action. Defendants did not object to the appointment at the time it was made and had taken no steps to vacate the appointment. On the contrary, for two years they stood by, with no objection, and saw him take over the trust estate, administer its affairs, and consummate numerous transactions. For the first time, on the instant appeal, they raised the question of his competency to act as receiver. The court ruled that it was defendants' duty to make timely objection to the appointment if they were not content to have it stand. Citing Title Insurance & Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 227, 230, 152 P. 564 , the court ruled that failure to timely object to the appointment was a waiver of the right to object to it (130 Cal. App 304, 309) . The court noted that the order appointing the receiver was appealable, but no appeal was taken from it. Therefore, on appeal from a judgment, the appellate court is without authority to review any order from which an appeal might have been taken (130 Cal. App 304, 310) .

151 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
D. Persons Eligible for Appointment as Receivers

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.352-200.359

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.352[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
D. Persons Eligible for Appointment as Receivers

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.360

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.360 Opposing That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Consent Is Required

[1] FORM Opposing That Party, Party's Attorney, Person Interested in Action, or Relative of Judge Receiver Should Be Appointed Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)]--Consent Is Required

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT APPOINT _____ [name] AS RECEIVER IN THIS ACTION BECAUSE HE/SHE IS A PERSON WHO IS _____ [specify, e.g., INTERESTED IN THE ACTION] AND HAS NOT _____ [OBTAINED and/or FILED WITH THE CLERK OF THE COURT] THE WRITTEN CONSENT OF THE PARTIES TO HIS/HER APPOINTMENT.

A. Requirement That All Parties Consent in Writing to Appointment of Receiver. No party or attorney of a party, or person interested in an action, or related to any judge of the court by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree can be appointed receiver therein without the written consent of the parties, filed with the clerk of the court (Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a); A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 618, 238 P. 926).

B. Court Is Without Jurisdiction to Appoint Receiver Absent Written Consent of Parties Filed With Clerk. When there is neither the written consent of all parties to the appointment of, for example, a person interested in the action, as receiver, nor any oral consent by the parties in open court, even if oral consent would suffice, the court is without jurisdiction to make the appointment (see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a); A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 621, 238 P. 926).

[Add additional points and authorities opposing the appointment of the receiver on substantive grounds (see, e.g., §§ 200.130 et seq., 200.210, 200.230 et seq., and 200.260) or procedural grounds (see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver should be appointed who is a party, an attorney of a party, a person interested in an action, or a person related to any judge of the court by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree. The grounds for opposition are that written consent of the parties has not been obtained and filed with the clerk of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 200.350[1] and 200.351[2].

These points and authorities should be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the propriety of the appointment. For example, these points and authorities may be:

- Submitted in combination with memoranda opposing the appointment of receivers on procedural grounds [see, e.g., §§ 200.20 et seq. and 200.60 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to a motion to appoint a receiver [see § 200.20 et seq.].

- Submitted in opposition to the confirmation of an ex parte order appointing a receiver [see § 200.60].

- Adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing the absence of the written consent of any or all parties to the appointment of the receiver. If appropriate, counsel should also include specific facts showing the absence of the oral consent of the parties to the appointment. See also the comments in § 200.350[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for the facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement That All Parties Consent in Writing to Appointment of Receiver

The facts and procedural background of A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 238 P. 926 , are discussed in § 200.22[3][a]. In A.G. Col Co., the Supreme Court ordered the trial court to vacate its orders appointing receivers. In so ruling, the Court held that former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)) provides, in part, that no person interested in an action can be appointed receiver therein without the written consent of the parties, filed with the clerk. An examination of the proceedings in the case disclosed that no written consent to the appointment of the second receiver of defendant corporations was ever filed with the clerk of the court (196 Cal. 604, 618) . Finding that the conditions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 566, requiring the consent of all parties to the appointment of an interested party to serve as receiver and requiring the consent to be filed with the clerk, were not met, the Court held the trial court was without jurisdiction in making the appointment (196 Cal. 604, 621) .

[b] Court Is Without Jurisdiction to Appoint Receiver Absent Written Consent of Parties Filed With Clerk

The facts and procedural background of A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 238 P. 926 , are discussed in § 200.22[3][a]. In ordering the trial court to vacate its orders appointing receivers of defendant corporations, the Supreme Court held the trial court to have been without jurisdiction to appoint a party interested in the action as a second receiver in the action, in view of the fact that there was no compliance with the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 566 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a)) requiring the written consent of all parties to the appointment to be filed with the clerk. Additionally, assuming, without deciding, that some form of oral consent to the appointment would satisfy the requirements of former Code Civ. Proc. § 566, the trial court was without jurisdiction in making the appointment in the absence of any oral consent by all parties in open court (196 Cal. 604, 621) . In so holding, the Court found it clear that, if it could be said that defendants' attorney consented at all to the appointment of the receiver, the consent was not free and voluntary. Counsel for defendants was placed in the untenable position of having either to accept the trial court's appointment of an interested party as a second receiver or to accept a continuance in the case to an unspecified date with an apparently equally interested party serving as current receiver during the period of the continuance. As such, counsel's "consent" was a manifestation that, as a matter of preference, if the trial court insisted on continuing the matter in its then status, with the current receiver, it would be more agreeable to defendants to have the interested party appointed receiver. The Court also found that defendants never waived their objections to the appointment, that the record contained frequent statements by defendants' counsel that the court was without jurisdiction to appoint a receiver at all, and that defendants especially objected to the appointment of any person interested in the action (196 Cal. 604, 620) .

153 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
D. Persons Eligible for Appointment as Receivers

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.361-200.369

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.361[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.370

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.370 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Functions and Powers Controlled by Statute and Court Order

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Functions and Powers Controlled by Statute and Court Order

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER IS PROPERLY EXERCISING HIS/HER POWERS BECAUSE THOSE POWERS HAVE BEEN CONFERRED ON HIM/HER BY _____ [STATUTE and/or THE ORDER APPOINTING HIM/HER and/or COURT ORDERS SUBSEQUENT TO THE ORDER OF APPOINTMENT].

Functions and Powers of Receiver Controlled by Statute and Court Order. The functions and powers of the receiver are controlled by statute, by the order appointing the receiver, and by the court's subsequent orders (see Code Civ. Proc. § 568; Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in specific instances (see § 200.410 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver is properly exercising his or her powers, under statute and court order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568].

The form may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to engage in any of the activities authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the acts of the receiver are pursuant to statute and court order. Thus, for each act of the receiver that is an issue in the case, counsel should point how that act complies with the terms of the appointing order and the provisions of the statute. For example, in an appropriate case counsel would refer to evidence set forth in:

- Declarations and affidavits submitted in support of, or even in opposition to, the appointment [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1306(a)].

- Discovery documents, such as deposition transcripts and answers to interrogatories and requests for admission.

- The opposing party's pleadings that constitute admissions.

- Other documentary evidence generally.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits "upon a motion"), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702].

When counsel cites facts in his or her argument, counsel should refer to the particular page and line number of the declaration, deposition transcript, or other document, that contains the cited facts. In addition, the relevant portion of any testimony in a deposition should be marked in a manner that calls attention to the testimony [see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1116(c)].

For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice and affidavits and declaration, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.380 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Functions and Powers of Receiver Controlled by Statute and Court Order

In Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , defendants builders and developers sold a shopping center and office complex to plaintiff. Plaintiffs secured payment of the purchase price of the property by a promissory note and a trust deed. In order to give defendants sufficient time to complete construction and lease the premises, plaintiff agreed to a one-year leaseback. Subsequently, plaintiff filed a complaint against defendant for damages for breach of contract and for declaratory and equitable relief, seeking termination of the lease and cancellation of the promissory note and reconveyance of the trust deed. Defendant cross complained for rescission, for damages for breach of contract and fraud, and to foreclose the trust deed. Both pleadings sought the appointment of a receiver to preserve the property pending trial. Pursuant to stipulation, the court appointed a receiver. After his appointment, the receiver obtained an ex parte order from the trial court authorizing him to retain an appraiser to express an opinion on the fair market value of the property. The receiver also noticed a motion for an order of the trial court confirming the proposed sale. The receiver's petition for both orders included a letter to defendants from a law firm retained by a real estate broker representing an unidentified purchaser offering to buy the property. Before hearing on the motion to confirm the sale, the court received the appraiser's written opinion of the property's fair market value. The trial court also received one of defendants' affidavits, urging sale of the property pursuant to the offer, on the grounds that there were insufficient funds to pay various amounts due on the property, including funds needed to complete tenant improvements necessary to lease the premises, to pay money due subcontractors, and to pay real property taxes due and payable in two upcoming installments.

Plaintiff objected to the proposed sale and confirmation on a number of grounds, contending that the receiver lacked authority to sell the property, the alleged financial difficulties were caused by the receiver's ineffective marketing efforts and inept administrative abilities, the offer was too low in light of an earlier appraisal placing the value of the property at about $1 million higher than that of the current appraisal, and the sale was the result of collusion among one of defendants, the buyer, and the receiver. After hearing abbreviated oral argument from counsel, the trial court granted the receiver's motion to confirm the proposed sale. Plaintiff then moved the trial court for reconsideration of its order, to vacate the order appointing the receiver, and to terminate the receivership. The trial court denied each of these motions. Plaintiffs appealed from the trial court's order confirming the sale.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's order confirming the sale. The court of appeal did find, however, that the receiver had the power to sell the property (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273-274) . In affirming the receiver's power to sell, the court disagreed with plaintiff's contention that, under the stipulation appointing the receiver, the receivership was the same as a rents and profits receivership, in which the receiver's powers are limited to the express terms of the order of appointment. The court held that the receiver's functions and powers are controlled by statute, by the order appointing him or her, and by the court's subsequent orders (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273) . The court based its authority on Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568 (enumerating receiver's various powers) and 568.5 (enumerating receiver's power to sell property subject to court confirmation, and discussed in § 200.450 et seq.), which authorized the receiver to perform such acts respecting the property as the court may authorize, including the sale of real and personal property on notice and subject to court confirmation (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273-274) . The court also found that the order appointing the receiver authorized him to bring and defend actions in his own name, to take and keep possession of the real property, to employ a management company, to receive rents, to collect debts, to pay just claims and debts other than debts claimed to be due the parties, and generally to do such acts respecting the property as the court might authorize or the parties, by stipulation, could agree on without prejudice to any further order (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 272 n.1).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.371

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.371 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Enumeration of Receiver's Powers

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Enumeration of Receiver's Powers

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER IS PROPERLY EXERCISING HIS/HER POWERS BECAUSE THOSE POWERS HAVE BEEN CONFERRED ON HIM/HER BY STATUTE.

Functions and Powers of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 568. Under Section 568 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the court may authorize a receiver to bring and defend actions in his or her own name as receiver, to take and keep possession of the property in receivership, to receive rents and collect debts, to compound for and compromise the same, to make transfers, and generally to perform such acts respecting the property in receivership as the court may authorize (Code Civ. Proc. § 568; Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in specific instances (see § 200.410 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver is properly exercising his or her powers as enumerated by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568].

The form may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to engage in any of the activities authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the acts of the receiver are among the powers enumerated by statute. Therefore, counsel would refer to the particular acts of the receiver that are an issue in the case, and point out how those acts comply with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 et seq. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.380 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Functions and Powers of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 568

The facts and procedural background of Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , are discussed in § 200.370[3][a]. In affirming the power of the receiver to sell the property, although reversing the trial court's confirmation of the sale, the court of appeal held that Code Civ. Proc. § 568 authorized the receiver, in addition to the powers explicitly granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, to perform such acts respecting the property as the court may authorize. Additionally, the court held Code Civ. Proc. § 568, when construed together with Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 (authorizing receiver's sale of property), authorized the sale of real and personal property by the receiver on notice and subject to court confirmation (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273-274) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.372

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.372 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Court's Main Function Is to Act in Best Interest of Parties Concerned

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Court's Main Function Is to Act in Best Interest of Parties Concerned

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER IS PROPERLY EXERCISING HIS/HER POWERS BECAUSE HIS/HER ACTS WERE DONE IN THE BEST MANNER POSSIBLE AND FOR THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE PARTIES CONCERNED.

Functions of Court Toward Receivership Property. The main function of the court is to manage or dispose of the receivership estate in the best manner possible and for the best interests of the parties concerned (Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 499, 218 P.2d 536 ; Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 685-686, 278 P.2d 22).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in specific instances (see § 200.410 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver is exercising his or her powers in a way that is consistent with the court's main function to manage or dispose the receivership estate for the best interests of the concerned parties.

The form may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to engage in any of the activities authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the receiver's actions are in harmony with the court's purpose to oversee estate assets for the best interest of the concerned parties. For example, in a case in which the receiver is moving to amend an earlier order in which the court has instructed the receiver regarding his or her receiver's duties, counsel would refer to facts showing that the request is necessary for the best interest of the concerned parties, in order that the receivership estate's debts could be paid, the affairs of the business wound up, and the receivership terminated [see Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 685-686, 278 P.2d 22 , discussed in § 200.372[3][a]]. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.380 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Functions of Court Toward Receivership Property

In Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 218 P.2d 536 , an action to dissolve and terminate a partnership, plaintiffs sought an accounting and the appointment of a receiver to preserve the partnership assets. The trial court appointed a receiver with full powers to manage, operate, and control all of the partnership assets and business. The trial court reserved jurisdiction to instruct the receiver and increase his powers. Thereafter, plaintiffs moved the trial court for an order directing the receiver to sell the property. The trial court granted plaintiffs' motion, and provided detailed instructions about how and when the sale should be conducted. Subsequently, on receipt of an offer on the property, the receiver petitioned the trial court for an order confirming the proposed sale. After hearing on the motion for confirmation, the trial court ordered confirmation of sale of the partnership property not to the first offeree, but rather to plaintiffs. Defendants appealed from the trial court's order directing sale of the receivership assets.

The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order of sale. In affirming, the Court addressed defendants' contention that because the sale did not occur within the time specified in the trial court's initial order of sale, the trial court had no jurisdiction to confirm it. The Court held the main function of the trial court is to manage or dispose of the receivership estate in the best manner possible and for the best interest of the parties concerned. The Court ruled that the effectual performance of that duty necessarily required some flexibility and continuity of jurisdiction in giving instructions to a receiver about the manner in which property should be sold (35 Cal. 2d 494, 499) .

In Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 278 P.2d 22 , an action to dissolve a partnership, the presiding judge of the superior court issued and subsequently confirmed an ex parte order appointing a receiver of the partnership business and property. Thereafter, the judge provided the receiver with extensive instructions as to his duties and the conduct of the business and affairs of the partnership. The presiding judge then assigned the case to another judge for trial. After trial, the trial court entered an interlocutory judgment decreeing a dissolution of the partnership. Some time thereafter, the receiver filed his final report and account and petitioned for discharge. The receiver then filed an amendment and supplement to the final report, together with a motion to amend an early order of the presiding judge instructing the receiver in his duties. The receiver made the latter motion on the ground that it was necessary in order that partnership debts could be paid, the partnership wound up, and the receivership terminated. The presiding judge granted the motion and approved the report and account, as amended and supplemented. Pursuant to the order granting the motion, the judge ordered defendant to deliver certain property and pay a specified amount of money to the receiver. Defendant appealed from the order approving the report and account and ordering defendant to deliver the property and pay the money to the receiver.

The court of appeal affirmed the presiding judge's order. On appeal, defendant contended the presiding judge's order amending its earlier instructions to the receiver effectively declared certain of defendant's personal property to be partnership property and fixed values and rentals for its use. Defendant contended that not only did this arbitrarily change the agreement under which defendant had received and used the property, but it also invaded the powers of the trial court in the action. The court of appeal held the trial court's powers were not invaded, since a final judgment was not entered in the action and could not be entered until the partnership's assets were reduced to cash and the debts paid. Citing Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 499, 218 P.2d 536 (discussed above), the court held the main function of the court to be to manage or dispose of the receivership estate in the best manner possible and for the best interests of the parties concerned. To effectually perform that duty necessarily required some flexibility and continuity of jurisdiction in giving instructions as to the manner of disposition of the property (129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 685-686) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.373

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.373 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Enumeration of Receiver's Powers--Receiver's Management Is Under Court's Supervision and Control

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Enumeration of Receiver's Powers--Receiver's Management Is Under Court's Supervision and Control

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER IS PROPERLY EXERCISING HIS/HER POWERS BECAUSE HIS/HER ACTS WERE DONE UNDER THE COURT'S CONTROL AND CONTINUOUS SUPERVISION.

Receivership Property Under Control of Court. The receiver is an agent and officer of the court, holding custody of the receivership property on behalf of the court for the real owners thereof; the property in the receiver's hands is really under the control and continuous supervision of the court (Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 499, 218 P.2d 536 ; Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 685, 686, 278 P.2d 22).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in specific instances (see § 200.410 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the acts of the receiver comply with the court's supervision and control of the receiver.

The form may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to engage in any of the activities authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, for example, counsel would refer to specific acts performed by the receiver that complies with the supervisory requirements mandated by the court that issued the order that appointed the receiver. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.380 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receivership Property Under Control of Court

The facts and procedural background of Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 218 P.2d 536 , are discussed in § 200.372[3][a]. In affirming the trial court's order of the sale of receivership property, the Court found the trial court had the power to change the manner of sale of property in its custody from that previously prescribed by it in the order directing the sale. The Court held a receiver is a mere agent of the court, and the property in the receiver's hands is really under the control and continuous supervision of the court (35 Cal. 2d 494, 499) .

The facts and procedural background of Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 278 P.2d 22 , are discussed, are discussed in § 200.372[3][a]. In Steinberg, the court of appeal affirmed the final report and account of the receiver, together with an order of a judge of the superior court amending its instructions to the receiver. The court held that the receiver merely holds the custody of the property involved in the litigation on behalf of the court for the real owners of the property. The court may therefore direct the delivery to the receiver of specific property that is involved in litigation. The court also ruled that the extent of the property embraced by the receivership was a question the court appointing the receiver had the power and jurisdiction to determine. That court could therefore determine whether any particular property was or was not involved in the action and in the receivership proceeding (129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 686) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.374

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.374 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver May Petition Court for Additional Authority or Instructions As Needed

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver May Petition Court for Additional Authority or Instructions As Needed

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER MAY APPLY TO THE COURT FOR INSTRUCTION AND AUTHORITY FROM TIME TO TIME AS NECESSARY.

Receiver May Petition Court for Additional Authority or Instructions As Needed. It is eminently proper for a receiver to apply to the court by which he or she was appointed for instruction and authority from time to time as he or she may need it (Free Gold Mining Co. v. Spiers (1901) 135 Cal. 130, 131-132, 67 P. 61 ; see In re Executive Life Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 433, 399-400, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in specific instances (see § 200.410 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a request for additional instruction or authority by the receiver is appropriate.

The form may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to engage in any of the activities authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, for example, counsel should refer to specific facts in a declaration supporting an application for additional authority, by page and line number, showing that unforeseeable circumstances have arisen that require action by the receiver that was not provided for in the order appointing the receiver. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receiver May Petition Court for Additional Authority or Instructions As Needed

In Free Gold Mining Co. v. Spiers (1901) 135 Cal. 130, 67 P. 62 , a receiver who was appointed to take charge and control mining property petitioned the trial court for an order authorizing him to purchase and install a cyanide tailings plant for the purpose of working tailings in his possession. After a hearing, the trial court granted the petition and provided specifications relating to the daily capacity of the plant and method of payment. Persons who alleged that they were aggrieved parties appealed the order.

The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal. The Court stated that it is eminently proper for a receiver to apply to the court by which he or she was appointed for instruction and authority from time to time as the receiver may need it. In this case, the Court noted, the appointment order directed the receiver to apply to the court for instructions when necessary. The receiver is but the hand of the court, to aid it in preserving and managing the property involved in the suit for the benefit of those to whom it may ultimately be determined to belong. The Court held that any order the court may make on application of the receiver for such direction, whether for the expenditure of money or for the performance of any duty, may, if erroneous, be reviewed "on proper exceptions thereto after final judgment has been rendered" (135 Cal. 130, 131-132) .

In re Executive Life Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 344, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453 , involved proceedings for settlement of claims against an insolvent insurer whose portfolio contained various high-risk junk bonds. In addition to taking other action, the Insurance Commissioner granted motions for approval of professional fees retained for the rehabilitation of the insurer, and the trial court approved the Commissioner's action. Various entities appealed the trial court's decision, alleging that the trial court erred in the process it employed in discharging its statutory duty to approve those fees. The Commissioner asserted that the court of appeal was without jurisdiction to preview the issue because such orders were separately appealable and no appeal had been taken.

Although the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order relating to certain other aspects, the court affirmed the trial court's order relating to the Commissioner's approval of professional fees. The court cited, by analogy to receivership, Free Gold Mining Co. v. Spiers, discussed above, in which the Supreme Court stated that it "is eminently proper for a receiver to apply to the court for which he was appointed for instruction and authority from time to time as he may need it" and that the court would be hampered in its efforts to preserve the property and the parties' interests if every that order is subject to direct appeal. Accordingly, the court held that there was no jurisdictional obstacle to reviewing the trial court's order (32 Cal. App. 4th 344, 400) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.375

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.375 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver's Acts Done Without Prior Court Authorization May Be Ratified by Subsequent Approval

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver's Acts Done Without Prior Court Authorization May Be Ratified by Subsequent Approval

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD RATIFY THE RECEIVER'S ACTS BECAUSE _____ [state reason for receiver's action, e.g., THE RECEIVER ACTED IN AN EMERGENCY WHEN NO PRIOR APPROVAL WAS POSSIBLE], AND HE/SHE ACTED IN GOOD FAITH AND IN A MANNER THAT WAS BENEFICIAL TO THE INTERESTED PARTIES.

A. Receiver's Acts Done Without Prior Court Authorization May Be Ratified by Subsequent Approval. In a proper case, the action of a receiver, although taken without prior court authorization, may be ratified by subsequent court approval (Rochat v. Gee (1902) 137 Cal. 497, 500, 70 P. 478 ; People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 585, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[Optional] B. Ratification Rule Is One of Common Sense. The rule allowing ratification by subsequent court approval of a receiver's action in equity, is one of common sense. It is necessitated by the fact that often a receiver is required to act in an emergency when no prior approval is possible. When, therefore, a receiver has acted in good faith, in a manner beneficial to the interested parties, the receiver's acts, though taken without court authorization, should be subsequently approved (People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 585, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in specific instances (see § 200.410 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver properly exercised his or her powers and, therefore, the court should ratify the receiver's actions by subsequent approval.

From a strategic standpoint, counsel who represents a party who is seeking to uphold a receiver's action normally would not raise the issue stated in these points and authorities in an initial memorandum. Rather, he or she would include the points and authorities in a reply memorandum or brief served in response to an opposing party's objection to the receiver's acts.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, for example, counsel would refer to facts in declarations submitted in the proceedings that disclose that the situation in which the receiver acted was an emergency situation, and that under the circumstances, the action was in the best interest of the concerned parties. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.380 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receiver's Acts Done Without Prior Court Authorization May Be Ratified by Subsequent Approval

In Rochat v. Gee (1902) 137 Cal. 497, 70 P. 478 , an action for dissolution of a partnership, plaintiff obtained the appointment of a receiver. The order appointing the receiver was very broad, authorizing him, among other things, to manage, control, and dispose of all the property of the partnership. When the receiver took possession of the business of the partnership, a number of creditors were pressing the payment of their debts and threatening attachment suits. Plaintiff furnished the receiver with a list of the debts and requested the receiver to pay them. At the time, defendant knew that the receiver was paying these debts, but made no objection. At the conclusion of the litigation, the receiver submitted his final account to the court for approval. The trial court issued an order settling the final account, and defendant appealed from the order.

The Supreme Court affirmed the order of the trial court settling the receiver's final account. In affirming, the Court ruled that the receiver's payment of certain of the partnership's debts without specific authority to do so from the trial court did not warrant a reversal of the trial court's order (137 Cal. 497, 499) . Ordinarily a receiver should not pay debts without a previous direction of the court. Assuming, however, that the order appointing the receiver was not broad enough to cover the receiver's action in question, the general rule against payment of debts absent court authority is not inexorable. In a proper case, a receiver's act may be sanctioned by the trial court, either by a previous order or by a subsequent approval (137 Cal. 497, 500) .

In People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 , the Attorney General brought an action against Riverside University, a nonprofit corporation engaged in the operation of an educational institution, and three of its officers to secure compliance with the terms of the charitable trust with which the university's assets were impressed, and to enjoin the officers from engaging in unlawful and fraudulent business practices. In addition to the injunction, the complaint sought exemplary damages and other equitable relief. After the complaint was filed, the trial court issued an ex parte order appointing a receiver of the university. The trial court instructed the receiver to take possession of and preserve and maintain the property, assets, and records of the university, to continue the university in operation by employing such persons as necessary to conduct regular courses of instruction, to pay for their services at the usual rates, to do all those things and incur the risks and obligations ordinarily incurred by owners, managers, and operators of similar educational institutions, and to exert every means possible to ensure that all students currently enrolled had the opportunity to complete the current academic quarter. Thereafter, on the trial court's decision that the need for the receivership had ceased, the receiver filed his final account and petitioned for fees and discharge. Defendants objected to the request for fees and discharge, alleging that the receiver had sold assets of the university without court authority or confirmation, in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 (authority of receiver to sell property on court order subject to court confirmation of sale). The trial court then ordered the receiver to file, after the fact, the petition for authority to sell property and for confirmation of the sales. After the receiver had so filed, the court denied the petition for permission to sell the property, but nevertheless confirmed the sales. The court conditioned approval of the receiver's account and his discharge on defendants not having commenced proceedings against the receiver and/or his surety for damages resulting from the sale of certain of the property at less than fair market value. The receiver appealed from the order conditioning approval of his final account and his discharge on defendants' failure to commence proceedings against him or his surety.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's conditional approval of the account and discharge of the receiver, with directions to the trial court to approve the final account and grant the receiver and his surety an unconditional discharge (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 588) . The court first held that when a receiver is appointed to take possession of and operate a quasi-public corporation, such as Riverside University, that is obligated to render continued service to the public, the receiver may, in the first instance, be vested with broad authority to do anything the corporation might have done to make the most out of the assets in his or her hands (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 580) . Citing Rochat v. Gee (1902) 137 Cal. 497, 500, 70 P. 478 (discussed above), the court held that an action of a receiver in equity, though taken without prior court authorization, may be ratified by subsequent court approval (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 585) .

[b] Ratification Rule Is One of Common Sense

The facts and procedural background of People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 , are discussed in § 200.375[3][a]. Citing Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 713, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787 (discussed in § 200.50[3][c]), the court of appeal found the rule to be one of common sense, necessitated by the fact that often a receiver is required to act in an emergency when no prior approval is possible. When, therefore, a receiver has acted in good faith, in a manner beneficial to the interested parties, the receiver's acts, though taken without court authorization, should be subsequently approved (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582) . The court noted that the trial court could have authorized the receiver to sell the unneeded furniture and equipment at a private sale, at the best price attainable under the circumstances, in order to provide funds for the continued operation of the university. Having the power to authorize private sales in the first instance, the trial court possessed the power to approve sales so made without prior authorization (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 585) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.376-200.379

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.376[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.380

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.380 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver Lacks Power Beyond That Conferred by Statute or Court Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver Lacks Power Beyond That Conferred by Statute or Court Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]

[The following may be included in an memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER MAY NOT _____ [specify receiver's action, e.g., CONTRACTUALLY BIND THE RECEIVERSHIP PROPERTY] BECAUSE THE POWER TO DO SO HAS NOT BEEN CONFERRED ON HIM/HER BY _____ [STATUTE and/or THE ORDER APPOINTING HIM/HER and/or ANY COURT ORDER ISSUED SUBSEQUENT TO THE ORDER OF APPOINTMENT].

Receiver Lacks Power Beyond That Conferred by Statute and Court Order. The functions and powers of a receiver are controlled by statute, by the order appointing the receiver, and by orders subsequently made by the court, and the receiver has no powers beyond those so conferred (Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821).

[Add points and authorities opposing the receiver's exercise of his or her powers in specific instances (see, e.g., §§ 200.440 et seq., and 200.470 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the receiver is properly exercising his or her powers, under statute or court order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.370 et seq.

The form may be combined with points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a receiver's motion for permission to engage in any of the activities authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the receiver is acting or has acted beyond the scope of his or her authority under statute or court order. Therefore, for example, counsel would refer to declarations submitted in the proceedings, by page and line, and point out facts that disclose conduct by the receiver that was not authorized. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receiver Lacks Power Beyond That Conferred by Statute and Court Order

In Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 , a money judgment was obtained against one of petitioners, a corporation. When execution on the judgment was returned unsatisfied, the trial court appointed a receiver in aid of execution to take over any and all assets of the judgment debtor, to take all necessary actions to reduce them to possession, and to collect any rents due from tenants or sublessees of the judgment debtor. The receiver subsequently commenced an action for declaratory relief against the judgment debtor and four other parties, including the petitioners in the instant action, who were not mentioned by the receiver in his application to the court for permission to employ counsel. The action sought a judicial declaration that a certain sublease in which defendants allegedly claimed an interest was the sole property of the judgment debtor. The complaint also alleged that certain of the defendants were each the alter ego of the other, and prayed for punitive damages. Petitioners demurred to the complaint on the ground that the trial court had no jurisdiction to entertain the receiver's action against them. After the trial court overruled their demurrers, petitioners sought peremptory writs of mandate from the court of appeal directing that their demurrers be sustained without leave to amend.

The court of appeal issued alternative writs of mandate to the trial court and then issued peremptory writs, finding the trial court to be in error in overruling petitioners' demurrers since it was without jurisdiction to entertain the receiver's action against petitioners. The court held the receiver had no legal authority to commence the action against petitioners because the court appointing the receiver had given him no special or express permission to commence an action against petitioners (38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 353) . The functions and powers of a receiver are controlled by statute, by the order appointing the receiver, and by orders subsequently made by the court. The receiver has no powers beyond those so conferred (38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351) .

In Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821 , an action by plaintiff to foreclose certain chattel mortgages held by it against defendant and others, plaintiff sought the appointment of a receiver to hold and operate various poultry farms owned by defendants. The trial court issued an ex parte order appointing the receiver as requested, and subsequently confirmed the appointment. The order of appointment empowered the receiver, under the control and subject to the order of the trial court, to take, care for, keep possession of, manage, operate, and conduct the poultry farms, to take charge of and manage the property, to collect rents, issues, and profits, and to do all things necessary for the preservation and repair of and the reduction of indebtedness on the property, with all other usual powers and duties of a receiver. Thereafter, appellant filed a complaint in intervention against the receiver in his official capacity, alleging that appellant and the receiver had entered into a contract providing for the growing of fryer chickens on one of the properties subject to the receivership. In the complaint in intervention, appellant sought specific enforcement of the contract, together with damages for repudiation of the contract. The receiver generally demurred to the complaint in intervention, contending, among other things, that the complaint contained no allegations that the receiver had obtained court approval of the contract with appellant. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and entered judgment dismissing the complaint in intervention. Appellant appealed from the judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment of the trial court, holding that because appellant sued the receiver solely in his official capacity, but failed to allege court approval of the contract, a condition precedent to the statement of any cause of action against the receiver, the trial court properly sustained the demurrer. The court held the order appointing the receiver did not authorize him to enter into the contract with appellant. The order merely invested the receiver with the usual powers to manage, preserve, and repair the receivership property, under the control and subject to the order of the trial court. Thus, court approval for the contract was necessary (252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793) .

Furthermore, from examination of the record, the court found that neither the applicable statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 568) nor the order appointing the receiver contained language that could reasonably be construed as authorizing the receiver, without the consent of the trial court, to enter into a contract of such magnitude as that with appellant. The powers enumerated in the order appointing the receiver were specifically granted under the control and subject to the order of the court. As such, they did not include the power to enter into contracts with regard to the receivership property beyond those necessary to maintain and preserve it. The contract with appellant, if valid and enforceable, would have significantly interfered with the trial court's control over a portion of the receivership estate. Furthermore, the contract would have prevented plaintiff from foreclosing, during the duration of the contract, the chattel mortgages of personal property located on the property (252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.381

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.381 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Powers Limited to Those Enumerated by Statute

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Powers Limited to Those Enumerated by Statute

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER MAY NOT _____ [specify receiver's action, e.g., CONTRACTUALLY BIND THE RECEIVERSHIP PROPERTY] BECAUSE THE RECEIVER'S ACTION IS NOT WITHIN THE POWERS ENUMERATED BY STATUTE.

Enumerated Functions and Powers of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 568. The receiver has, under the control of the court, the power to bring and defend actions in his or her own name, as receiver, to take and keep possession of the property, to receive rents, collect debts, and compound for and compromise the same, to make transfers, and generally to do such acts respecting the property as the court may authorize (Code Civ. Proc. § 568; see Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791-792, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821).

[Add points and authorities opposing the exercise of the receiver's powers in specific instances (see, e.g., §§ 200.380, 200.440 et seq., and 200.470 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the receiver is properly exercising his or her powers as enumerated by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.370 et seq.

The form may be combined with points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a receiver's motion for permission to engage in any of the activities not specifically authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the receiver is acting or has acted beyond the scope of his or her authority enumerated under Code Civ. Proc. § 568. Therefore, for example, counsel should refer to page and line number of declarations submitted in the proceedings that disclosed instances of specific conduct that is unauthorized. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Enumerated Functions and Powers of Receiver Under Code Civ. Proc. § 568

The facts and procedural background of Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821 , are discussed in § 200.380[3][a]. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order dismissing appellant's complaint in intervention against the receiver. The court found the receiver acted beyond the scope of his powers in entering into a contract with appellant concerning certain of the property of the receivership estate (252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793) . In ruling that no statute or court order permitted the receiver to enter into the contract, the court found the receiver's actions to be circumscribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. Subject to court approval, Code Civ. Proc. § 568 provides for, and the receiver's powers were thereby limited to, the power to bring and defend actions in his own name as receiver, to take and keep possession of the property, to receive rents, collect debts, to compound for and compromise the same, to make transfers, and generally to do such acts respecting the property as the court may have authorized (252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.382

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.382 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Powers and Duties Depend on Order of Appointment

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Powers and Duties Depend on Order of Appointment

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

Powers and Duties Depend on Order of Appointment. When a receiver's powers and duties are not directly prescribed by statute, they depend on the court's order of appointment (Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821).

[Add points and authorities opposing the receiver's exercise of his or her powers in specific instances (see, e.g., §§ 200.440 et seq., and 200.470 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the receiver is properly exercising his or her powers as enumerated in the order of appointment.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.370 et seq.

The form may be combined with points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a receiver's motion for permission to engage in any of the activities authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 568. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel would:

- Refer to the powers set forth in the appointing order,
- Identify the objectionable acts of the receiver, and
- Point out how those acts exceed the scope of the receiver's appointment.

See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Powers and Duties Depend on Order of Appointment

Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821 , is discussed in § 200.380[3][a]. From examination of the record, the court found that neither the applicable statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 568, nor the order appointing the receiver contained language that could reasonably be construed as authorizing the receiver, without the consent of the trial court, to enter into a contract of such magnitude as that with appellant. The powers enumerated in the order appointing the receiver were specifically granted under the control and subject to the order of the court. As such, they did not include the power to enter into contracts with regard to the receivership property beyond those necessary to maintain and preserve it. The contract with appellant, if valid and enforceable, would have significantly interfered with the trial court's control over a portion of the receivership estate. Furthermore, the contract would have prevented plaintiff from foreclosing, during the duration of the contract, the chattel mortgages of personal property located on the property (252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.383

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.383 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--No Express Authority to Contractually Bind Property or Fund of Receivership Estate

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in General [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--No Express Authority to Contractually Bind Property or Fund of Receivership Estate

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER MAY NOT ENTER INTO A CONTRACT BINDING THE _____ [PROPERTY and/or FUND] IN THE RECEIVERSHIP ESTATE BECAUSE HE/SHE DOES NOT HAVE THE AUTHORITY OR APPROVAL OF THE COURT TO DO SO.

A. Contract of Receiver Binding Property or Fund Is Improper Without Court Approval. It is the general rule that a receiver has no right or power to make a contract binding the property or fund in his or her custody without the authority or approval of the court (see Code Civ. Proc. § 568; Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821).

B. Unauthorized Contract of Receiver Is Not Binding on Court. It is the general rule that an unauthorized agreement of a receiver does not bind the court in charge of the receivership, since it is not recognized as a contract of the receivership, but rather as the receiver's own contract (Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821).

[Add points and authorities opposing the receiver's exercise of his or her powers in specific instances (see, e.g., §§ 200.440 et seq., and 200.470 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the receiver is properly exercising his or her powers, under statute or court order, by entering into a contract binding the receivership property without court approval [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568].

The form may be combined with points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint in an action against a receiver for breach of contract, on the ground that the complaint fails to allege the trial court approved the contract [see, e.g., Nulaid Farmers Assn v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821] . They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should include specific facts showing that neither statute nor court order authorizes the receiver to enter into the contract. For example, counsel would refer to specific terms of the contract alleged to be beyond the receiver's powers, and point out how those terms exceed the receiver's authority. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract of Receiver Binding Property or Fund Is Improper Without Court Approval

The facts and procedural background of Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821 , are discussed in § 200.380[3][a]. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order dismissing appellant's complaint in intervention against the receiver. The court found the receiver acted beyond the scope of his powers in entering into a contract with appellant concerning certain of the property of the receivership estate. The court ruled that neither Code Civ. Proc. § 568 nor the trial court order appointing the receiver permitted the receiver to enter into the contract. The court so holding, the court stated the general rule that a receiver has no right or power to make a contract binding the property or fund in his or her custody without the authority or approval of the court (252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793) .

[b] Unauthorized Contract of Receiver Is Not Binding on Court

The facts and procedural background of Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821 , are discussed in § 200.380[3][a]. In Nulaid, the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order dismissing appellant's complaint in intervention against the receiver. The court held neither Code Civ. Proc. § 568 nor the order appointing the receiver authorized him to enter into the contract in question. They merely invested him with the usual powers to manage, preserve, and repair the receivership property under the control and subject to the order of the court. Hence, court approval for the contract was necessary. The court held it the general rule that an unauthorized agreement of a receiver does not bind the court in charge of the receivership, is not recognized as a contract of the receivership, and is treated as the receiver's own contract. Therefore, because intervenor saw fit to sue the receiver solely in his official capacity, and failed to allege court approval of the contract, which was a condition precedent to the statement of any cause of action against the receiver, the demurrer was properly sustained (252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
1. Exercise of Powers in General

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.384-200.409

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.384[Reserved]

166 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
2. Deposit of Securities

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.410

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.410 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Deposit of Securities [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1; Fin. Code §§ 1592, 30004-30006, 30200]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Deposit of Securities [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1; Fin. Code §§ 775, 30004-30006, 30200]

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD AUTHORIZE THE DEPOSIT OF THE SECURITIES BY THE RECEIVER BECAUSE THE RECEIVER HAS THE POWER, UNDER SECTION 568.1 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, TO DEPOSIT SECURITIES IN A SECURITIES DEPOSITORY THAT IS EITHER LICENSED UNDER SECTION 30200 OF THE FINANCIAL CODE, OR THAT IS EXEMPT FROM LICENSING BY SECTIONS 30005 OR 30006 OF THE FINANCIAL CODE.

Receiver's Power to Deposit Securities. The receiver may, under the control of the court, deposit any securities in a securities depository, as defined in Section 30004 of the Financial Code, which is either licensed under Section 30200 of the Financial Code or exempted from licensing by Section 30005 or 30006 of the Financial Code; the securities may be held by the securities depository in the manner authorized by Section 1592 of the Financial Code (Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver may properly deposit any securities in his or her hands in a securities depository, as defined by Fin. Code § 30004, that is either licensed under Fin. Code § 30200 or is exempt from licensing under Fin. Code § 30005 or 30006, and that the securities may be held by the securities depository in the manner authorized by Fin. Code § 1592 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1].

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to deposit securities [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing that the security depositories chosen meet the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1 in that they are either licensed under Fin. Code § 30200, or exempted from licensing by Fin. Code § 30005 or 30006. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
2. Deposit of Securities

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.411-200.419

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.411[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
3. Employment of Attorney

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.420

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.420 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Employment of Attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Employment of Attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180]

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD APPROVE THE EMPLOYMENT OF _____ [name of attorney or law firm] AS ATTORNEY BY THE RECEIVER BECAUSE THE RECEIVER HAS SHOWN THAT THE EMPLOYMENT IS NECESSARY AND THAT THE ATTORNEY HAS NO PROFESSIONAL RELATIONSHIP WITH ANY PARTY IN THE ACTION, OR WITH ANY PARTY'S ATTORNEY.

Receiver's Employment of Attorney Is Proper With Court Approval After Showing of Necessity for Employment. A receiver may employ an attorney after obtaining court approval. The written application for the receiver's employment of an attorney must state the necessity for the employment, the name of the attorney proposed to be employed, and that the attorney is not attorney for, associated with, or employed by an attorney for any party (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a receiver may properly employ an attorney [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180].

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, this form may be submitted in support of an application for the approval of the employment of an attorney by the receiver. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing the necessity for the receiver's employment of an attorney. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and a form of application by a receiver for authority to employ an attorney, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

169 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
3. Employment of Attorney

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.421-200.429

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.421[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
4. Commencement and Defense of Actions

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.430

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.430 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD PERMIT _____ [specify litigation, e.g., COMMENCEMENT OF _____ (specify action)] BY THE RECEIVER BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS THE POWER UNDER SECTION 568 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, TO BRING AND DEFEND ACTIONS IN HIS OR HER OWN NAME.

Power of Receiver to Bring and Defend Actions in Own Name as Receiver. The receiver has, under the control of the court, power to bring and defend actions in his or her own name, as receiver (Code Civ. Proc. § 568; Holzman v. United California Bank (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 833, 838-839, 57 Cal. Rptr. 33 ; Southern Pacific Co. v. Schwartz (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486, 38 Cal. Rptr. 243).

[Add points and authorities, if desired, supporting the contention that the receiver may employ an attorney (see, e.g., § 200.420).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver, under the control of the court, is able to bring and defend actions in his or her own name [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568].

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to bring or defend an action. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Counsel should, therefore, include specific facts showing that the receiver has authority to act, and identify the dispute that causes the need for litigation. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.440 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and a form of petition by a receiver for an order, together with a form of order, authorizing the receiver to sue a third party for the recovery of property, as well as a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order for use in a complaint in an action by or against a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Receiver to Bring and Defend Actions in Own Name as Receiver.

In Holzman v. United California Bank (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 833, 57 Cal. Rptr. 33 , plaintiff receiver commenced an action against defendant bank for breach of trust arising out of the bank's alleged wrongful dishonor of checks drawn on the account of the corporation of which plaintiff was receiver. The action arose out of a prior action by the corporations commissioner against the corporation. In that action, the commissioner had issued the corporation a permit to sell and issue its securities, and had required all subscription money to be paid to defendant bank for deposit in an escrow account. After discovering a diversion of some of these funds from the escrow account to the corporation's checking account in defendant bank, the commissioner suspended the permit and brought an action against the corporation for declaratory relief and an accounting. The commissioner also sought the appointment of a receiver of the corporation. The trial court appointed plaintiff. After his appointment, plaintiff obtained permission from the trial court to sue defendant bank. The bank answered plaintiff's complaint by raising the affirmative defense that plaintiff lacked standing to sue for money allegedly due to subscribers of the corporation, and the parties agreed to a separate trial on this issue. At trial, the court found that neither plaintiff nor the corporation had any right, title, or interest in the money, and that plaintiff was not the real party in interest and could not, therefore, maintain the action. The court dismissed the action, entered judgment, and denied plaintiff's subsequent motion for a new trial. Plaintiff appealed from the judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment of dismissal. The court initially based its ruling on its finding that the trial court's premise, that plaintiff was seeking to recover from the bank money in which the corporation had no interest, was contrary to the evidence and the law (248 Cal. App. 2d 833, 836) . The issue before the court was whether plaintiff, as receiver for the corporation, was entitled to maintain an action against the bank asserting the liability of the bank for the funds wrongfully deposited in the corporation's checking account. The court interpreted Code Civ. Proc. § 568 as authorizing the receiver to bring the action and found that he was clothed with the legal right to maintain the action seeking resolution of the respective rights and obligations of both the corporation and the subscribers as they resulted from the bank's handling of the accounts (248 Cal. App. 2d 833, 839) . Additionally, the order appointing the receiver specifically empowered him to bring and defend actions in his own name as receiver (248 Cal. App. 2d 833, 834-835) . The court held that as a contingent or conditional owner of the funds, the corporation, through its receiver, had an assertable interest in their recovery. As one entrusted with actual, even though temporary, possession of subscribers' funds while in transit to the bank as interim custodian, and as an entity charged with responsibility to the subscribers for the safety of their funds while its obligations to them were yet unfulfilled, the corporation had a continuing obligation to the subscribers (248 Cal. App. 2d 833, 839) .

In Southern Pacific Co. v. Schwartz (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 481, 38 Cal. Rptr. 243 , plaintiff commenced an action against defendants for money due for the transportation of certain salvage goods. Two of defendants, doing business as partners, cross complained against plaintiff for conversion of certain of their salvage goods. At trial, the receiver of the partnership in whose name the cross-complaining defendants were doing business moved to dismiss the cross complaint. The trial court granted the motion, and subsequently gave judgment for plaintiff against one of the cross-complaining defendants and judgment for the remaining defendants against plaintiff. Defendant against whom judgment was rendered moved the court for a new trial. When the trial court denied that motion, defendant appealed from the order denying the motion and the order dismissing the cross complaint.

The court of appeal reversed the order denying the new trial motion, dismissed the appeal from that order, and affirmed the order dismissing the cross complaint. In affirming the dismissal of the cross complaint, the court found that the firm composed of the cross complaining defendants was represented by the attorney for the receiver of the firm. Therefore, the receiver, by and through his attorney, had authority, under Code Civ. Proc. § 568, to move the court to dismiss the cross complaint (226 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486) .

171 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
4. Commencement and Defense of Actions

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.431-200.439

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.431[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
4. Commencement and Defense of Actions

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.440

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.440 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver Must Have Special or Express Authority

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Receiver Must Have Special or Express Authority

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER MAY NOT _____ [BRING or DEFEND] _____ [specify legal action] BECAUSE HE OR SHE HAS NO STATUTORY AUTHORITY AND THE COURT HAS NOT GRANTED HIM/HER EXPRESS PERMISSION UNDER SECTION 568 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

Requirement That Receiver Have Statutory or Express Court Authority to Bring or Defend Actions. A receiver may commence an action only by authority of statute or the special or express permission of the court that appointed him or her (Code Civ. Proc. § 568; Bishop v. McKillican (1899) 124 Cal. 321, 327, 57 P. 76 ; Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281).

[Add points and authorities opposing the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.380 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a receiver may bring or defend actions in his or her own name, as receiver, absent either statutory authority or the express permission of the appointing court to do so [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.430[1].

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint in an action commenced by a receiver [see, e.g., Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 352, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 , discussed in § 200.440[3][a]]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to specific facts show that commencement or defense of the litigation in question exceeds the receiver's statutory authority. In addition, counsel may request that the court take judicial notice of the fact that the court has issued no order authorizing the receiver to commence the litigation in question [see Evid. Code § 452(d)]. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and a form of petition by a receiver for an order, together with a form of order, authorizing the receiver to sue a third party for the recovery of property, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement That Receiver Have Statutory or Express Court Authority to Bring or Defend Actions

In Bishop v. McKillican (1899) 124 Cal. 321, 57 P. 76 , plaintiff receiver sued defendant county sheriff for the recovery of personal property which, according to plaintiff, belonged to the railroad corporation of which plaintiff was receiver. The trial court found the property to be properly in defendant's possession, and entered judgment accordingly. Plaintiff appealed from the judgment and from the trial court's order denying plaintiff's motion for a new trial.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment and order of the trial court. The Court first ruled that plaintiff never had possession of the articles sued for as receiver. The Court found that, by virtue of a stipulation between plaintiff and defendant, defendant, who obtained possession of the disputed corporate property by virtue of a writ of attachment issued on the same day that plaintiff was appointed receiver of the corporation, merely left the property with plaintiff for safekeeping. Furthermore, pursuant to the stipulation, plaintiff agreed to restore possession of the property to defendant on defendant's demand (124 Cal. 321, 324-325) . Thus, the property never passed into the receiver's possession (124 Cal. 321, 325) . Looking to the trial court's orders for plaintiff's authority to bring the action, the Court found that the only authority plaintiff had for bringing the action was the order appointing him. However, that order did not specially authorize plaintiff to sue for the recovery or value of property withheld or converted of which he was never in possession (124 Cal. 321, 325) . The Court ruled that plaintiff had no power under the order of appointment to bring suits for the recovery of property when the suits might involve risk or expensive litigation. Additionally, plaintiff had no power to contest the corporation's claimed property right if contesting that right might involve risk or expensive litigation (124 Cal. 321, 327) .

The facts and procedural background of Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 , are discussed in § 200.380[3][a]. In Morand, the court of appeal found the trial court to be in error in overruling petitioners' demurrers since it was without jurisdiction to entertain the receiver's action against petitioners. The court held the receiver had no legal authority to commence the action against petitioners, finding the court appointing the receiver had given him no special or express permission to commence an action against petitioners (38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 353) . The court held it to be the rule that the functions and powers of a receiver are controlled by statute, by the order appointing the receiver, and by orders subsequently made by the court. The receiver has no powers beyond those so conferred. This rule is given particular effect with regard to action sought to be commenced by the receiver. Citing Bishop v. McKillican (1899) 124 Cal. 321, 325-326, 57 P. 76 (discussed above), and Tibbets v. Cohn & Co. (1897) 116 Cal. 365, 367, 48 P. 372 , the court held that the receiver may commence an action only by authority of statute or the special or express permission of the court that appointed him or her (38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351) .

173 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
4. Commencement and Defense of Actions

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.441

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.441 Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Authority to Employ Counsel Is Insufficient

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Commencement and Defense of Actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]--Authority to Employ Counsel Is Insufficient

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE RECEIVER MAY NOT _____ [BRING or DEFEND] _____ [specify legal action] BECAUSE THE MERE FACT THAT HE/SHE MAY EMPLOY LEGAL COUNSEL DOES NOT AUTHORIZE HIM/HER TO COMMENCE OR DEFEND A CIVIL ACTION.

Authority of Receiver to Employ Counsel as Insufficient Authority to Bring or Defend Action. An order of the court, permitting a receiver to employ counsel to take necessary action to obtain possession of property, falls far short of leave to commence an action against parties unnamed in the order (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180; Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 353, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281).

[Add points and authorities opposing the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.380 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the mere authority of a receiver to employ counsel is adequate authority to bring or defend an action.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 200.430[1].

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint in an action commenced by a receiver [see, e.g., Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 352, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 , discussed in § 200.441[3][a]]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should refer to specific facts show that commencement or defense of the litigation in question exceeds the receiver's statutory authority. In addition, counsel may request that the court take judicial notice of the fact that the court has issued no order authorizing the receiver to commence the litigation in question [see Evid. Code § 452(d)]. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and a form of petition by a receiver for an order, together with a form of order, authorizing the receiver to sue a third party for the recovery of property, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Authority of Receiver to Employ Counsel as Insufficient Authority to Bring or Defend Action

The facts and procedural background of Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 , are discussed in § 200.380[3][a]. In holding the receiver had no legal authority to commence his action against petitioners, the court of appeal also held the trial court's order permitting the receiver to employ counsel was insufficient authority for the receiver to commence the action (38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 353) . Subsequent to the receiver's appointment, the trial court that appointed him authorized him to employ a designated attorney as his attorney to take whatever action might become necessary to obtain possession of the judgment debtor's property then in the possession of another named corporation, and to do all other things necessary to enable him to effectively carry out the responsibilities of the receivership (38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351-352) . The court of appeal noted that this order was the only conceivable authority of the receiver for bringing the action. However, the court found this questionable authority to sue one defendant fell far short of leave to commence an action against the unnamed parties who were the petitioners in the instant action. The order's language that the receiver should do all things necessary to enable him to effectively carry out the responsibilities of his receivership gave no special or express permission to commence an action against petitioners. Indeed, if it did, then the trial court would have improperly relinquished to the receiver the discretion whether an action might be commenced, and if so, against whom (38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 353) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
4. Commencement and Defense of Actions

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.442-200.449

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.442[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.450

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.450 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD AUTHORIZE THE RECEIVER'S PROPOSED SALE OF PROPERTY BECAUSE THE RECEIVER HAS THE POWER UNDER SECTION 568.5 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, SUBJECT TO CONFIRMATION BY THE COURT, TO SELL REAL OR PERSONAL PROPERTY IN THE RECEIVER'S POSSESSION.

Power of Receiver to Sell Property. A receiver may, pursuant to an order of the court and subject to confirmation by the court, sell real or personal property in the receiver's possession on the notice and in the manner prescribed by Sections 701.510-701.680 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5; Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273-274, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver may properly sell real or personal property in the receivership's possession, on the notice and in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680 (requirements for notice of sale and sale of property that has been levied on). The sale is not final until confirmed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5].

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to sell real or personal property in the receiver's possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should include specific facts showing the actual necessity for the sale [see, e.g., Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , discussed in § 200.450[3][a]]. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order for use in a complaint in an action by or against a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

For discussion and forms relating to execution sales pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Nonmoney Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Receiver to Sell Property

The facts and procedural background of Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , are discussed in § 200.370[3][a]. In affirming the receiver's power to sell the property, even though reversing the trial court's confirmation of the sale, the court found authority for the power of sale in both the order appointing the receiver and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568 and 568.5 (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273-274 n.1). The court held it did not need to decide whether an order based on the parties' stipulation appointing a receiver (purporting to limit both the receiver's and the trial court's power to act beyond the scope of the original order) could restrict the trial court's authority because the order in the case did not limit the trial court's power to confirm a sale of the property. Although the stipulation for the receiver's appointment did not expressly refer to a sale of the property by the receiver, it did not preclude that possibility. The order authorized the receiver generally to do such acts respecting the property as the trial court may have authorized. Additionally, as a result of the parties' apparent sensitivity to the need for flexibility to respond to changed circumstances, the order defining the receiver's duties was made without prejudice to any further order. The trial court also retained jurisdiction to enable either party to apply for further orders or for modifications of the existing order. The trial court thus correctly decided the receiver had the power to sell subject to its confirmation (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Power of Receiver to Sell Property

In Security National Bank v. Geernaert (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 245 Cal. Rptr. 912 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment in favor of the lender on grounds set forth in an unpublished part of the opinion. In holding that a secured party is exempted from the requirement of giving notice of sale when the sale of the collateral is conducted by a court appointed receiver, the court stated the receiver and not the secured party controls the time and place of the sale (199 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1431) . A receiver appointed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564-570 is an officer or representative of the court. He or she is not the agent of either party, but represents all parties interested in the property. The sale is made pursuant to an order of the court, and the receiver must give notice of the sale pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. 568.5. The debtor's protection is being able to object to the appointment of the receiver, to object to any defects in the notice of sale or mismanagement of the property, to seek to surcharge the receiver, or to object to the receiver's final accounting and discharge. In addition, the receiver's accounting should constitute a complete accounting of the proceeds of the sale. A debtor who fails to object to the notice of sale by the receiver or the receiver's accounting or discharge cannot thereafter attack the sale (199 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1431-1433) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.451

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.451 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]--Receiver's Duty to Realize Largest Possible Amount From Sale

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]--Receiver's Duty to Realize Largest Possible Amount From Sale

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD AUTHORIZE THE RECEIVER'S PROPOSED SALE OF PROPERTY BECAUSE THE RECEIVER HAS FULFILLED HIS/HER DUTY TO OBTAIN THE LARGEST POSSIBLE AMOUNT IN THE SALE OF THE PROPERTY.

Duty of Receiver to Realize Largest Possible Amount From Sale of Property. The receiver has the affirmative duty to endeavor to realize the largest possible amount from the sale of the receivership property (Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276 n.8, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver is properly exercising his or her powers by fulfilling his or her duty to realize the largest possible amount from the sale.

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to sell real or personal property in the receiver's possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

The form may also be modified for use in a reply brief to respond to an adverse party's contention that the receiver is acting without authority regarding sale of receivership property.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should refer to specific facts in, for example, supporting declarations, showing that the receiver's actions were consistent with his or her duty to sell the subject property at the highest possible price [see, e.g., Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276 n.8, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , discussed in § 200.451[3][a]]. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, and a form of allegation of a receiver's capacity to sue pursuant to court order for use in a complaint in an action by or against a receiver, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty of Receiver to Realize Largest Possible Amount From Sale of Property

The facts and procedural background of Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , are discussed in § 200.370[3][a]. In affirming the receiver's power to sell the property, even though reversing the trial court's confirmation of the sale, the court of appeal ruled that the trial court cannot be blind to pressure tactics frequently applied by real estate purchasers. In ruling that a buyer's refusal to extend the time of the offer to buy will not, standing alone, always go to the issue of necessity for sale of the receivership property, the court held the receiver has the affirmative duty to endeavor to realize the largest amount from the sale of the receivership property (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276 & fn. 8).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.452

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.452 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]--Court Has Power to Change Manner of Sale in Court's Custody

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 568.5, 701.510-701.680]--Court Has Power to Change Manner of Sale in Court's Custody

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD AUTHORIZE THE RECEIVER'S PROPOSED SALE OF PROPERTY BECAUSE THE COURT IS EMPOWERED TO CHANGE THE MANNER OF SALE IN THE COURT'S CUSTODY.

Court as Empowered to Change Manner of Sale of Property in Its Custody. If the trial court prescribes a different mode of sale, a receiver, when authorized, need not sell receivership property in the manner provided for in Section 568.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure (see Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 499, 218 P.2d 536 ; People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 583, 585, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver is properly exercising his or her powers in proposing a mode of sale that is not in the manner provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5.

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for permission to sell real or personal property in the receiver's possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

The form may also be modified for use in a reply brief to respond to an adverse party's contention that the receiver is acting without authority regarding sale of receivership property.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should refer to the specific circumstances of the proposed sale that support counsel's argument that the sale is consistent with the court's order. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms of petitions by a receiver for orders, forms of orders authorizing the receiver to engage in activities permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court as Empowered to Change Manner of Sale of Property in Its Custody

The facts and procedural background of Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 218 P.2d 536 , are discussed in § 200.372[3][a]. In Lesser, the trial court, in initially ordering the receiver to sell the partnership property in receivership, specified that the sale was to occur by a certain date and that if it did not occur on that date, then the property was to be sold in the manner prescribed by law for execution sales. Pursuant to that order, and after receiving an offer on the property, the receiver petitioned the trial court for confirmation of a proposed sale to the offeree. However, when the confirmation finally came on for hearing, and since notice had been duly given, the trial court offered all the property for sale in open court. Plaintiffs were the highest bidders, and the trial court accepted their bid.

The Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order directing sale of the property to plaintiffs. The Court held a court in an equity proceeding has the power to change the manner of sale of property in its custody by a receiver appointed by it from that previously prescribed by it in the order directing the sale. In that connection, the trial court may make the sale itself, even though the prior order called for it to be made by the receiver. The Court found, in effect, that the directions in the order of sale concerning the manner in which the sale should be made were merely instructions to the receiver. As procedural directions to the receiver, they did not go the substantive rights of the parties. Of course, they were binding on the receiver, but while for some purposes they may have been final, the main function of the trial court was to manage or dispose of the receivership estate in the best manner possible and for the best interest of the parties concerned. To effectively perform that duty necessarily required some flexibility and continuity of jurisdiction in giving instructions to the receiver as to the manner in which the property should be sold to meet exigencies as they may have arisen (35 Cal. 2d 494, 499) . In support of its holding, the Court found that operation of the property by the receiver had resulted in substantial loss, that plaintiffs had loaned money to the receiver to keep the operations afloat, but defendants had advanced none, that the parties had diligently tried to find a purchaser for the property, that plaintiffs were not only the highest bidders but also the only bidders, and that the bid was fair and reasonable (35 Cal. 2d 494, 498) .

The facts and procedural background of People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 , are discussed in § 200.375[3][a]. In Riverside University, the trial court apparently felt it was powerless to approve the receiver's account and to give him an unqualified discharge, since the receiver's sales of certain of the receivership property were admittedly not made in the manner prescribed by a former version of Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 (current version substantially the same in relevant parts) (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582-583) . Implicit in the trial court's order making the discharge conditional was the assumption that the receiver would be liable for the difference between the price received and the fair market value of the items sold. However, the court of appeal concluded the receiver was entitled to an approval of his account and to final discharge, notwithstanding the fact the sales were not made in the manner provided for sales on execution, as prescribed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5. The court therefore reversed the trial court's conditional approval and discharge, with directions to approve the final account and grant the receiver and his surety an unconditional discharge.

The court first ruled that, in the absence of a statute otherwise providing, the trial court may authorize a receiver to sell receivership property at either private or public sale (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 587-588) . The court then ruled that a trial court may prescribe or ratify unconditionally a different mode of sale than that provided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 for execution sales. A receiver is an agent of the trial court, and the property in receivership is really under the control and continuous supervision of the trial court. Consequently, unless regulated by statute, the trial court has full power to order the receiver to dispose of property in such a manner as the trial court may deem in the best interest of the parties concerned. Additionally, the receiver's advice and opinion regarding the value of the property, and the time, place, and manner of its disposition, are entitled to great respect and weight (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 583) . In the absence of more explicit language, the court did not read former Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 as restricting the inherent equitable power of a trial court to prescribe the manner in which a receiver may sell property. This is particularly true of the type of receivership with which was involved in the case at bar, that of a nonprofit corporation organized and operating as an institution of higher education. Therefore, the trial court could have authorized the receiver to sell the property at private sale, at the best price attainable under the circumstances, in order to provide funds for the continued operation of the university (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 585) .

178 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.453-200.459

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.453[Reserved]

179 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.460

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.460 Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court Has Power to Confirm Sale

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court Has Power to Confirm Sale

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD CONFIRM THE SALE OF PROPERTY BY THE RECEIVER BECAUSE CONFIRMATION IN THIS CASE IS WITHIN THE COURT'S POWER.

Power of Court to Confirm Receiver's Sale of Property. A receiver's sale of property under Section 568.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure, pursuant to an order of court, is final on confirmation by the court (Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5; People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 579, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should confirm a sale of real or personal property, pursuant to court order, by a receiver, because the confirmation is within the court's power [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5].

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for confirmation of the sale of property in the receiver's possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, for example, counsel would refer to documentary evidence, attached as exhibits to declarations in support of motion for confirmation of sale, showing that the sale has occurred. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.470 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Court to Confirm Receiver's Sale of Property

The facts and procedural background of People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 , are discussed in § 200.375[3][a]. In Riverside University, the trial court conditionally approved the receiver's account and gave him a qualified discharge because his sales of certain of the receivership property were admittedly not made in the manner prescribed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, containing substantially the same provisions). The court of appeal reversed the trial court's orders of conditional approval and discharge, with directions to unconditionally approve the account and discharge the receiver (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 587-588) . The court based its ruling on former Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, providing that a receiver may, pursuant to an order of court, sell real or personal property in his or her possession as receiver, on the notice and in the manner provided for sale of property under execution (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680), and providing that the sale is not final until confirmed by the court (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 579) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.461

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.461 Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court Has Wide Discretion in Confirming Sale

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court Has Wide Discretion in Confirming Sale

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD CONFIRM THE SALE OF PROPERTY BY THE RECEIVER BECAUSE THERE IS NO EVIDENCE OF FRAUD, UNFAIRNESS, OR OPPRESSION IN THE SALE.

Wide Discretion of Court in Confirming Receiver's Sale of Property. When there is no evidence of fraud, unfairness, or oppression in a receiver's sale of property under Section 568.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the court has wide discretion in confirming the sale (Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 503, 218 P.2d 536 ; People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court should confirm a sale of real or personal property, pursuant to court order, by a receiver, because the confirmation is within the court's power [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5].

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for confirmation of the sale of property in the receiver's possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing the absence of fraud, oppression, or unfairness in the sale [see People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68] . See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.470 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Wide Discretion of Court in Confirming Receiver's Sale of Property

The facts and procedural background of Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 218 P.2d 536 , are discussed in § 200.372[3][a]. In Lesser, the Supreme Court affirmed the receiver's sale of property and the court's confirmation of the sale under former Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, containing substantially the same provisions). The Court held the trial court has wide discretion in accepting a bid and confirming a judicial sale. The Court found no fraud, unfairness, or oppression in the sale in the case at bar. The Court further found the order confirming the sale was supported by the evidence in that the operation of the property by the receiver was a losing proposition, and plaintiffs were the only ones who advanced funds to keep the operations rolling. Additionally, even though there was evidence placing the fair market value of the sale property at a higher figure than that for which the trial court ultimately confirmed the sale, the Court held the trial court did not have to accept the higher figure. Finally, the Court found that endeavors had been made to sell the property, none of which were successful until plaintiffs offered to buy the property (35 Cal. 2d 494, 503) .

The facts and procedural background of People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 , are discussed in § 200.375[3][a]. In Riverside University, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's conditional discharge of the receiver and its conditional approval of the receiver's account, with directions to the trial court to unconditionally approve the account and discharge the receiver. The court addressed the controlling considerations in a trial court's exercise of its discretion to confirm a receiver's sale. The court found, generally, if no good reason appears for refusing to confirm a receiver's sale, such as chilling of bids or other misconduct, or gross inadequacy of price, the sale should be confirmed. The order of confirmation gives the judicial sanction of the court. When the order is made, it relates back to the time of sale and cures all defects and irregularities, except those founded in want of jurisdiction or in fraud. The matter of confirmation rests on the sound discretion of the appointing court, to be judicially exercised in view of all the surrounding facts and circumstances, and in the interests of fairness, justice, and rights of the respective parties. When there is no evidence of fraud, unfairness, or oppression in the sale, the trial court has wide discretion in confirming a judicial sale (35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.462

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.462 Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court May Confirm Sale Conducted in Mode Other Than That Provided for by Statute or Court Order

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Sale of Property Should Be Confirmed [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Court May Confirm Sale Conducted in Mode Other Than That Provided for by Statute or Court Order

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT HAS THE POWER TO CONFIRM THE RECEIVER'S SALE EVEN THOUGH THE SALE WAS CONDUCTED IN A MODE OTHER THAN THAT PROVIDED FOR BY STATUTE OR COURT ORDER.

Power of Court to Confirm Receiver's Sale of Property Conducted in Mode Other Than That Provided for by Statute or Court Order. Section 568.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not preclude a court from confirming a receiver's sale of property when the manner in which the sale is made is different from that provided for in Section 568.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure or by court order (see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5; Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 499, 503-504, 218 P.2d 536 ; People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 583, 585, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the court has the power to confirm a receiver's sale of real or personal property that has been conducted in a mode other than that provided for by statute or court order.

This form of points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for confirmation of the sale of property in the receiver's possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, counsel may refer to the circumstances of the sale that indicate that the change is merely a change in procedural directions to the receiver, and not one that affects the substantive rights of the parties [see Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 499, 218 P.2d 536 , discussed in § 200.462[3][a]]. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 200.470 et seq. may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Court to Confirm Receiver's Sale of Property Conducted in Mode Other Than That Provided for by Statute or Court Order

The facts and procedural background of Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 218 P.2d 536 , are discussed in § 200.372[3][a]. In Lesser, the Supreme Court affirmed the receiver's sale of property and the court's confirmation of the sale under former Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, containing substantially the same provisions). The Court ruled that a court in an equity proceeding has the power to change the manner of sale of property in its custody by a receiver appointed by it from that previously prescribed by it in the order directing the sale. The Court found the change in the manner of sale to be merely a change in procedural directions to the receiver, and not one to affect the substantive rights of the parties. To effectually manage the receivership estate in the best manner possible and for the best interest of the parties concerned, the trial court necessarily required some flexibility and continuity of jurisdiction in giving instructions to the receiver as to the manner in which the property should be sold to meet exigencies as they might have arisen (35 Cal. 2d 494, 499) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.463-200.469

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.463[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.470

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.470 Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Confirmation of Fraudulent, Unfair, or Oppressive Sale Is Improper

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Confirmation of Fraudulent, Unfair, or Oppressive Sale Is Improper

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT CONFIRM THE SALE OF PROPERTY BY THE RECEIVER BECAUSE THE SALE IS/WAS _____ [FRAUDULENT and/or UNFAIR and/or OPPRESSIVE].

Confirmation of Fraudulent, Unfair, or Oppressive Sale as Improper. On appeal, reversal of a trial court's order confirming a receiver's sale of property is warranted if the appellate court concludes the trial court abused its discretion by confirming a fraudulent, unfair, or oppressive sale (see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5; see also Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 503-504, 218 P.2d 536 ; Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703).

[Add points and authorities opposing the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.380 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should confirm a receiver's sale of property under Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, because the sale was fraudulent, unfair, or oppressive.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a receiver's motion for an order either permitting or confirming the sale of receivership property [see § 200.460 et seq., see also, e.g., Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 272-273, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , discussed in § 200.470[3][a]]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, for example, counsel would refer, by page and line numbers, to facts stated in declarations or in deposition transcripts that show that the sale is fraudulent, unfair, or oppressive. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to actions for fraud generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit . For discussion of fraud as defense to action for breach of contract, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Confirmation of Fraudulent, Unfair, or Oppressive Sale as Improper

The facts and procedural background of Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 218 P.2d 536 , are discussed in § 200.372[3][a]. In Lesser, the Supreme Court affirmed the trial court's order directing a sale of the receivership assets. The Court affirmed the order of sale even though the sale was conducted at a time and in a manner contrary to that prescribed in the trial court's initial order directing sale of the property. The Court held there is wide discretion in the trial court in accepting a bid and confirming a judicial sale. There was no fraud, unfairness, or oppression in the sale. Therefore, the trial court did not abuse its discretion in confirming the sale (35 Cal. 2d 494, 503-504) .

The facts and procedural background of Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , are discussed in § 200.370[3][a]. In Cal-American, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order confirming a sale of the receivership property. Citing People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 , discussed in § 200.310, the court held judicial confirmation of a receiver's sale rests on the appointing court's sound discretion exercised in view of all the surrounding facts and circumstances, and in the interest of fairness, justice, and the rights of the respective parties. The proper exercise of discretion requires the court to consider all material facts and evidence, and to apply legal principles essential to an informed, intelligent, and just decision. Reversal is warranted only after concluding the trial court abused its discretion by confirming a fraudulent, unfair, or oppressive sale (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274) . The court found the sale to be manifestly unfair to plaintiff because the receiver did not present facts demonstrating the need for a sale (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276) . Furthermore, the receiver did not describe an imminent fiscal crisis warranting the drastic action of an immediate sale (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275) . The trial court did not adequately consider the surrounding facts and circumstances in light of fairness, justice, and the rights of the parties, and therefore abused its discretion in confirming the sale (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.471

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.471 Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Receiver Has Failed to Establish Necessity for Sale

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Receiver Has Failed to Establish Necessity for Sale

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT CONFIRM THE SALE OF PROPERTY BY THE RECEIVER BECAUSE THE RECEIVER FAILED TO ESTABLISH THE NECESSITY FOR THE SALE.

Receiver Required to Establish Necessity for Sale. The receiver must establish actual, not imaginary, necessity for the sale, and must also demonstrate that the sale must be consummated at the time the receiver wishes the sale to occur (see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5; Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703).

[Add points and authorities opposing the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.380 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should confirm a receiver's sale of property under Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, on the ground that the receiver failed to establish the necessity for the sale.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a receiver's motion for an order either permitting or confirming the sale of receivership property [see § 200.460 et seq., see also, e.g., Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 272-273, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , discussed in § 200.471[3][a]]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, for example, counsel would refer to the facts in declarations in support of the receiver's motion to confirm, by page and line, and point out how the facts asserted, when viewed most favorably, are insufficient to support an order for an immediate sale [see Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , discussed in § 200.471[3][a]]. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Receiver Required to Establish Necessity for Sale

The facts and procedural background of Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , are discussed in § 200.370[3][a]. In Cal-American, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order confirming a sale of the receivership property. Citing Lesser & Son v. Seymour (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 494, 503, 218 P.2d 536 , discussed in § 200.472, the court held the receiver had to establish actual, not imaginary, necessity for the sale in order for the trial court to properly confirm the sale. The receiver also needed to demonstrate the sale had to be consummated at that time. The receiver had to show that the property would be lost to creditors at some future time unless the trial court ordered the sale, and that the sale had to occur within a specified time to avoid loss (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275) . The court found the distinction between the need for a sale and the timing of the sale critical. The trial court must engage in a two-level analysis, first deciding whether a sale is required, and then determining when the sale should take place. Naturally, a trial court will focus on the same factors at both analytical stages, but it will likely allocate different weights to these factors at each step (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275 n.7).

The court held that although the receiver presented information reflecting an unpleasant situation, those facts viewed most favorably were insufficient to support an order for an immediate sale. The receiver's moving papers for confirmation never stated why the sale was required. Additionally, even though defendant's papers suggested a sale should be considered at some future time, they did not describe an imminent fiscal crisis warranting the drastic action of an immediate sale (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275) . The fact that a potential buyer would not extend the time of the offer did not, standing alone, go to the issue of necessity for the sale when the court had no information on what efforts, if any, had been made to market the property, or whether other offers from other purchasers were forthcoming. The status of the litigation and the effect a sale would have on the parties were both facts and circumstances the court must consider before confirming a sale. At the time of the hearing to confirm the sale, the trial court was thus obligated to scrutinize the documents objectively to evaluate whether the circumstances required an immediate sale of the property with the resultant loss to plaintiff of the opportunity to litigate its rights to the property (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.472

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.472 Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Receiver Has Breached His or Her Duty to Obtain Best Possible Bargain on Sale

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Court Should Confirm Sale of Property [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]--Receiver Has Breached His or Her Duty to Obtain Best Possible Bargain on Sale

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT CONFIRM THE SALE OF PROPERTY BY THE RECEIVER BECAUSE THE RECEIVER HAS BREACHED HIS/HER DUTY TO OBTAIN THE BEST BARGAIN POSSIBLE ON THE SALE OF THE SUBJECT PROPERTY.

Duty of Court to Obtain Best Bargain Possible on Sale of Property. A court confirming the sale of property by a receiver should attempt to obtain the best bargain possible under the circumstances (see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5; Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276 fn. 8, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703).

[Add points and authorities opposing the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.380 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the court should confirm a receiver's sale of property under Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, has breached his or her duty to obtain the best bargain possible on the sale of the subject property.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a receiver's motion for an order either permitting or confirming the sale of receivership property [see § 200.460 et seq., see also, e.g., Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 272-273, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , discussed in § 200.472[3][a]]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should refer to specific facts in, for example, supporting declarations, showing that the receiver breached his or her duty to obtain the highest possible price [see, e.g., Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276 n.8, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , discussed in § 200.472[3][a]]. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty of Court to Obtain Best Bargain Possible on Sale of Property

The facts and procedural background of Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 , are discussed in § 200.370[3][a]. In Cal-American, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's order confirming a sale of the receivership property. The court found the sale was manifestly unfair to plaintiff because the receiver did not present facts demonstrating the need for a sale. Additionally, the trial court did not adequately consider the surrounding facts and circumstances in light of fairness, justice, and the rights of the parties. Under the circumstances, the court found it clearly unreasonable for the trial court to rush to accommodate a mystery buyer whose unknown credit was thought to be sufficient to support a $600,000 unsecured interest-bearing note in derogation of the ownership rights of plaintiffs (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276) . The court found that the trial court should not, in any case, be blind to tactics frequently applied by real estate purchasers. The receiver had the affirmative duty to endeavor to realize the largest amount from the sale of the receivership property. A trial court confirming the sale of property should also attempt to obtain the best bargain possible under the circumstances (138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276 n.8).

186 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
5. Sale of Property

20-200 California Points & Authorities §§ 200.473-200.479

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 200.473[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
6. Payment of Unclaimed Funds Into State Treasury

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.480

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.480 Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Payment of Unclaimed Funds Into State Treasury by Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 570]

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Is Properly Exercising His or Her Powers in Payment of Unclaimed Funds Into State Treasury by Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 570]

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD AUTHORIZE PAYMENT BY THE RECEIVER OF $_____ FROM THE RECEIVERSHIP ESTATE INTO THE STATE TREASURY BECAUSE THE FUNDS BELONG TO A PERSON WHOSE WHEREABOUTS ARE UNKNOWN TO THE RECEIVER.

A. Payment of Unclaimed Funds Into State Treasury by Receiver. A receiver possessing funds belonging to a person whose whereabouts are unknown to the receiver shall, before receiving his or her discharge as receiver, after publication of required notice, and on order of the court, pay the funds into the State Treasury (Code Civ. Proc. § 570).

B. Payment of Notice Publication Costs. All costs and expenses connected with the advertising of notice shall be paid out of the unclaimed funds in the receiver's possession (Code Civ. Proc. § 570).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's powers in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the receiver possessing funds belonging to a person whose whereabouts are unknown to the receiver must, before his or her discharge as receiver, after publication of notice, and on order of the court, pay the funds into the State Treasury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the powers of the receiver. For example, these points and authorities may be submitted in support of a receiver's motion for an order to pay unclaimed funds in the receiver's possession into the State Treasury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 570]. They may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs ; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs (Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. In particular, counsel should include specific facts showing the receiver has published notice in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 570. See also the comments in § 200.370[2][b] regarding evidentiary support for facts stated.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion and form of notice of unclaimed funds in a receiver's possession, together with a form of order for payment of unclaimed funds in a receiver's possession to the State Treasury, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 486, Receivers .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Payment of Unclaimed Funds Into State Treasury by Receiver

A receiver in possession of funds belonging to a person whose whereabouts are unknown to the receiver must, before being discharged as receiver, publish notice of the receiver's possession of the funds. The notice must appear at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county. It must set forth the name of the owner of any unclaimed funds, the last known place of residence or the post office address of the owner, and the amount of the unclaimed funds. Any funds remaining in the receiver's hands unclaimed for 30 days after the date of the last publication of notice shall be reported to the court. On order of the court, all such funds must be paid into the State Treasury, accompanied with a copy of the order, which must set forth the facts required in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

[b] Payment of Notice Publication Costs

All costs and expenses connected with the advertising of notice discussed in § 200.480[3][a] must be paid out of the funds the whereabouts of whose owners are unknown [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

188 of 188 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 200 RECEIVERS
PART II. FORMS
E. Administration of Receivership
7. Borrowing of Money

20-200 California Points & Authorities § 200.481

AUTHOR: Robert Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 200.481 Supporting Contention That Receiver Has the Authority to Borrow Money to Fund the Receivership Estate and to Issue Receivership Certificates

[1] FORM Supporting Contention That Receiver Has the Authority to Borrow Money to Fund the Receivership Estate and to Issue Receivership Certificates

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD AUTHORIZE THE RECEIVER TO BORROW MONEY IN THE FORM OF RECEIVERSHIP CERTIFICATES TO PRESERVE AND PROTECT THE RECEIVERSHIP ESTATE.

Power of Receiver to Borrow Money and Issue Receivership Certificates. A receiver may, pursuant to an order of the court, borrow money and issue first priority receiver certificates as security for the loans made to him or her (Title Ins. etc. Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 173, 191, 152 P. 542 ; Title Ins. etc. Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 227, 231, 152 P. 564).

[Add points and authorities supporting the exercise of the receiver's power in general (see, e.g., § 200.370 et seq.).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of an application made by a receiver to borrow money and to issue receivership certificates.

This form of points and authorities may also be adapted generally for use in a trial or appellate brief [see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs; see also California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs

(Matthew Bender)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should also add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. Therefore, counsel should include specific facts showing the actual necessity for the receiver's request to borrow money and to issue receivership certificates.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Receiver to Borrow Money and Issue Receivership Certificates

Title Ins. etc. Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 173, 152 P. 542 , involved convoluted litigation following the failure of the canal and irrigation system that caused the catastrophic 1904 flood of the Imperial Valley, which created the Salton Sea. The California Development Company was formed to build this canal and irrigation system. Because the canal went through Mexico, a Mexican corporation was also formed to facilitate the project. The Mexican corporation was owned by the California Development Company and by the principals who had formed that company. The Title Insurance and Trust Company was trustee on a deed of trust securing bonds issued to build the system. After the flood, the New Liverpool Salt Company, in 1908, recovered a judgment against the California Development Company for over $450,000, for the loss of its land and business. Meanwhile, the CDC, without means to control the flow, obtained a series of loans for that purpose from the Southern Pacific Railroad beginning in 1905. In seeking repayment, the SP ultimately formed a second Mexican corporation which bought the properties of the first Mexican corporation at an execution sale.

The case cited in this form commenced in 1909, when the Title Insurance and Trust Co. brought suit to foreclose on its deed of trust securing CDC bonds. Defendants, in addition to CDC, included the SP, the New Liverpool Salt Co., other parties claiming interests in the property subordinate to the plaintiff's lien, both Mexican corporations, and others. A receiver was appointed early in the litigation, and pursuant to court order, over $300,000 in receiver's certificates were issued (171 Cal. 173, 183) . (These certificates, issued to obtain funds to construct a restraining levee, were ordered to be repaid from the revenues of the receiver's carrying on of the CDC business, and were declared to be a first lien on the property in his possession [see Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Calif. etc. Co. (1911) 159 Cal. 484, 486, 114 P. 838 (holding that the order authorizing the issuance of the bonds was not appealable)]).

The trial court found that the irrigation system should be sold in its entirety, by selling the stock of the Mexican corporations and the system in the United States in one sale as one property. The judgment provided that after expenses of sale, the proceeds were to be paid to two of the original principals behind the CDC for amounts they had advanced in connection with creation of the first Mexican corporation, then to the amount due on the receiver's certificates, then to the Title Insurance and Trust Co., next to the New Liverpool Salt Co., then to the SP, and any remainder to CDC (171 Cal. 173, 191) . The SP and the new Mexican corporation appealed, raising issues relating to the treatment of the entire system, including Mexico corporations, as one property and the priority of the SP lien versus that of the New Liverpool Salt Co.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment, although it did note that the above statement of the priority of the receiver's certificates was not entirely accurate because the New Liverpool Salt Co. had appealed from the order appointing the receiver and the order had been reversed as to the New Liverpool Salt Co. Thus, the final judgment had actually given that company priority to a limited extent over the holders of receiver's certificates. This was not material to the appeal at hand, however, and therefore was not further detailed (171 Cal. 173, 192) .

Title Ins. etc. Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 227, 152 P. 564 , is the decision in another appeal of the judgment discussed above. This appeal was by an intervenor who was a holder of some of the bonds which were secured by the deed of trust that was being foreclosed upon in the action. The appeal was from that part of the judgment that gave holders of the receiver's certificates priority over the bonded indebtedness secured by the deed of trust (171 Cal. 227, 229) . The appellant argued that the court had no authority to make the receiver's certificates a lien prior to that secured by the bonded indebtedness (171 Cal. 227, 231) .

Affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court first noted the general rule that in a case involving a private corporation, the court will not authorize receiver's certificates and make them a prior lien on mortgaged property for the purpose of procuring funds to continue the management and operation of the business, with an exception for railroad receiverships. However, the court held that there can be no question of the right of the court to give priority to certificates issued to enable the receiver to carry out the primary object of his appointment, that is, the care and preservation of the property. The court concluded that in this case there was ample evidence to justify the conclusion that all of the expenditures authorized by the court were required for the actual care and preservation of the property committed to the receiver's custody (171 Cal. 227, 231) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES

20-201 California Points & Authorities 201.syn

§ 201.syn Synopsis to Chapter 201: REFERENCE AND REFEREES

§ 201.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 201.02 Governing Law

§ 201.03 Papers Filed in Cases Pending Before Referee

§ 201.04 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 201.05 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[2] Related Points and Authorities

§§ 201.06-201.09 [Reserved]

§ 201.10 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--To Try Any or All Issues in Action or Proceeding, Whether of Fact or of Law, and to Report Statement of Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Court to Correct Records to Show Reference Was Properly Made

[b] Failure to Secure Written Consent to General Reference or Enter Consent in Minutes Is Waiver

[c] "Exception" Defined

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Secure Written Consent to General Reference or Enter Consent in Minutes Is Waiver

§ 201.11 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--With Consent of Parties to Ascertain Fact Necessary to Enable Court to Determine Action or Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 201.12 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Trial of Issue of Fact Requires or Required Examination of Long Account [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Over Objection of Party

[b] Reference Authorized Whenever Court Has Authority to Take Account Itself

§ 201.13 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Taking of Account Is or Was Necessary for Information of Court Before Judgment or for Carrying Judgment or Order Into Effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 201.14 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Question of Fact, Other Than on Pleadings, Arises or Arose on Motion or Otherwise in any Stage of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Without Consent of Parties When Fact Question Arises on Motion or Otherwise

§ 201.15 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Necessary for Information of Court in Special Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Without Consent of Parties When Necessary for Court's Information in Special Proceeding

[b] Original Proceeding in Appellate Court

§ 201.16 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Appointment of Referee Is Necessary to Hear and Determine Discovery Matters and to Report Findings and Recommendation [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Without Consent of Parties to Hear and Determine Discovery Motions or Disputes

§ 201.17 Supporting Contention That Preliminary Adjudication of Right to Accounting Is or Was Not Required and That Reference May Be Ordered at any Stage of Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prior Adjudication of Party's Right to Accounting Is Not Required

[b] Stage of Proceeding at Which Reference Might Be Directed

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Prior Adjudication of Party's Right to Accounting Is Not Required

§ 201.18 Supporting Contention That Parties May Agree on Person to Be Appointed Referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 640]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Requirement That Referee Appointed Be Subordinate Judicial Officer

§ 201.19 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Contract Provision Requiring Reference Is Not Unconscionable [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Criteria of Unconscionability

[b] Burdens of Proof

[c] Level of Procedural Unconscionability Here Is Low

[d] Unilateral Opt-Out Provision Is Not Likely to Be Misused

[e] Attorney's Fee Provision Is Not Unconscionable

[f] Secrecy Provision May Be Illegal, but May Be Severed

[g] No Showing Has Been Made That Referee's Fees Will Impose Undue Burden

[h] Presumption of Benefit From Waiver of Jury Trial

§§ 201.20-201.39 [Reserved]

§ 201.40 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Court Has No Power to Order General Reference Without Consent of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Reference Requires Consent of Parties

[b] Parties Entitled to Trial by Jury in Action at Law

[c] Contractual Provision for Reference Is Not Enforceable Against Subsequent Purchaser

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] General Reference Requires Consent of Parties

§ 201.41 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Court Has No Power to Order Special Reference Not Authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 639 Without Consent of Parties

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Special Reference Not Authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 639 Is Improper Without Consent of Parties

[b] Limitation on Scope of Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)

[c] Specificity Required for Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3)

§ 201.42 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Reference to Take Account [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1), (2)] Is Discretionary With Court and Denied When Unnecessary

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Is Discretionary With Court

[b] Trial Court Has Discretion to State Account Itself

[c] Transaction Short and Not Complex

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Reference Is Discretionary With Court

[b] Trial Court Has Discretion to State Account Itself

§ 201.43 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Dissolution of Marriage Proceeding Is Not Special Proceeding Within Meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Classification of Dissolution of Marriage

§ 201.44 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Contract Provision Requiring Reference Is Unconscionable [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Elements of Procedural Unconscionability

[b] Elements of Substantive Unconscionability

§ 201.45 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Contract Provision Would Result in Inconsistent Rulings or Parallel Forums

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discretion of Trial Court

[b] Inconsistent Rulings

§§ 201.46-201.49 [Reserved]

§ 201.50 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Lacks Qualifications to Be Juror [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(a), 642]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 201.51 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Is Related to Party to Action, Officer of Corporate Party, or Judge of Court in Which Action Is Pending [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(b), 642]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Disqualification Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1

[d] Computing Degree of Consanguinity or Affinity

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[f] Related Points and Authorities

§ 201.52 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Stands in Prohibited Relationship With Party to Action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(c), 642]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 201.53 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Served as Juror or Witness in Trial Between Same Parties [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(d), 642]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 201.54 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Is Interested in Action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(e), 642]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 201.55 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Has Unqualified Opinion or Belief as to Merits of Action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(f), 642]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 201.56 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Is Biased Against Party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(g), 642]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 201.57 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Lacks Essential Technical Qualifications [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641.2, 642]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 201.58 Supporting Contention That Court Commissioner or Referee Is Disqualified--Person Is Prejudiced Against Party or Attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disqualification of Discovery Referee

[b] Timeliness of Peremptory Challenge to Discovery Referee

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Additional Disclosures Required

§§ 201.59-201.69 [Reserved]

§ 201.70 Supporting Contention That Referee's Report Under Special Reference [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(b), 639] Should Be or Was Properly Confirmed and Adopted by Trial Court

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Use of Motion Procedure to Confirm Report

[b] Referee's Decision as Special Verdict

[c] Weight of Special Referee's Decision

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Use of Motion Procedure to Confirm Report

[b] Referee's Decision as Special Verdict

[c] Weight of Special Referee's Decision

§ 201.71 Supporting Contention That Referee's Report Is Presumed to Be Supported by Evidence

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Referee's Report Presumed Supported by Evidence

[b] Effect of Failure to Produce Reporter's Transcript

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Effect of Failure to Produce Reporter's Transcript

§ 201.72 Supporting Contention That Factual and Legal Basis of Referee's Decision Is Not Required to Be Stated on Special Reference

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Statement of Decision by Referee Is Required

[b] When Factual and Legal Basis of Referee's Decision Is Required to Be Stated

§ 201.73 Supporting Contention That Referee's Decision on Whole Issue Must Stand as Decision of Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Referee's Decision as Basis for Judgment

[b] Distinctions Between Referee and Temporary Judge

[c] Referee Is Not Required to Take Oath

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Referee's Decision as Basis for Judgment

§ 201.74 Supporting Contention That Referee's Statement of Decision Forms Part of Judgment Roll [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 643(a), 644(a), 670(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Roll

§ 201.75 Supporting Contention That Order Confirming or Modifying Referee's Report on Special Reference Need Not Be Included in Judgment Roll [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Order Confirming or Modifying Referee's Report Is Not Part of Judgment Roll

§§ 201.76-201.79 [Reserved]

§ 201.80 Opposing Contention That Referee's Report Under Special Reference [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(b), 639] Should Be or Was Properly Confirmed--Report Is Not Supported by Evidence or Is Incomplete or Ambiguous

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Report Not Supported by Evidence

[b] Report Incomplete or Ambiguous

§ 201.81 Opposing Contention That Referee's Decision Must Stand as Decision of Court--Reference Presumed Special and Report Advisory Only

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Presumed to Be Special

[b] Referee's Report on Special Reference Is Not Binding on Trial Court

[c] Effect of Referee's Report on Special Reference

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Referee's Report on Special Reference Is Not Binding on Trial Court

§ 201.82 Opposing Contention That Referee's Decision Must Stand as Decision of Court--Reference Was by Consent of Parties Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) to Ascertain Facts Only

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) Is Special

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) Is Special

§ 201.83 Opposing Contention That Referee's Decision Must Stand as Decision of Court--Reference Was Ordered Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 Is Special

§ 201.84 Opposing Contention That Finding of Referee Must Stand as Finding of Court--Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) Was to Hear and Decide Whole Issue Relating Only to the Account

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Meaning of "Whole Issue"

§ 201.85 Opposing Contention That Decision of Referee Must Stand as Decision of Court--Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) Was to Report on Specific Questions of Fact Involved in Accounting

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Referee's Report on Specific Fact Questions Involved in Account Is Not Binding on Trial Court

§ 201.86 Opposing Contention That Discovery Referee's Report [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)] Should Be or Was Properly Confirmed--Referee Did Not Examine Each Item as to Which Privilege Was Claimed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dominant Purpose Standard

§§ 201.87-201.89 [Reserved]

§ 201.90 Supporting Contention That New Trial Should Be or Was Properly Granted Following Trial of Case by Referee Pursuant to General Reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]--Newly Discovered Evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(4)] or Evidence Insufficient to Support Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(6)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Applicability of New Trial Provisions to Trial by Referee

[b] Newly Discovered Evidence

[c] Insufficiency of Evidence

§ 201.91 Supporting Contention That Order Granting Premature Motion for New Trial After Interlocutory Order Directing an Accounting Is Void

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Invalidity of Order for New Trial after Interlocutory Judgment Directing Reference

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Invalidity of Order for New Trial After Interlocutory Judgment Directing Reference

§§ 201.92-201.99 [Reserved]

§ 201.100 Opposing Contention That New Trial Should Be or Was Properly Granted--Reference Was Special and Report May Be Set Aside Without Granting New Trial

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] New Trial Is Not Required in Order to Set Aside Referee's Report on Special Reference

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] New Trial Is Not Required in Order to Set Aside Referee's Report on Special Reference

§§ 201.101-201.109 [Reserved]

§ 201.110 Supporting Contention That Order or Judgment Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable--Order or Judgment Directs Reference to Take Account or Directs Parties to Account and Future Judicial Action to Settle Rights of Parties Is Required

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Order or Judgment Directing Reference to Take Accounting Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable

[b] Rule Applies When Accounting Is Ordered but No Reference Is Made

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Order or Judgment Directing Reference to Take Accounting Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable

[b] Rule Applies When Accounting Is Ordered but No Reference Is Made

§§ 201.111-201.119 [Reserved]

§ 201.120 Opposing Contention That Order or Judgment Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable--Judgment in Action for Accounting Fully Determines Rights of Parties and Is Final Because It Does Not Direct Reference to Take Account and No Further Judicial Action Is Required

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court's Denomination of Order or Judgment Is Not Determinative

[b] General Test

[c] When Judgment in Action for Accounting Is Final

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Court's Denomination of Order or Judgment Is Not Determinative

[b] General Test

[c] When Judgment in Action for Accounting Is Final

§ 201.121 Opposing Contention That Order or Judgment Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable--Appeal From Interlocutory Judgment Determining Right to Redeem Property From Mortgage or Lien and Directing Accounting Is Authorized [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(8)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.01

§ 201.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses references and contains memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing various contentions for use in an action or special proceeding involving a reference of one or more issues in a case to a referee to take evidence and report a statement of decision or facts.

This chapter contained the following forms:

- Memoranda supporting [see §§ 201.10 -201.16] and opposing [see §§ 201.40 -201.43] various contentions regarding the propriety of ordering a reference. Also included are a form of memorandum supporting the contention that the entry of an interlocutory judgment determining the parties' right to an accounting is not required as a condition precedent to ordering a reference to take an account [see § 201.17] and a form of memorandum supporting the contention that the parties may agree on the person or persons to serve as referees [see § 201.18].

- Forms supporting the contention that the person appointed or to be appointed as referee is not qualified to serve as a referee in the case [see § 201.50 et seq.].

- Forms supporting [see § 201.70 et seq.] and opposing [see § 201.80 et seq.] various contentions regarding the effect of the referee's report.

- Forms supporting [see § 201.90 et seq.] and opposing [see § 201.100]. contentions regarding the propriety of granting a new trial.

- Forms supporting [see § 201.110] and opposing [see § 201.120 et seq.] the contention that a judgment or order relating to a reference or an accounting is not appealable.

The provisions governing disqualification of a judge for cause (Code Civ. Proc. § 170 et seq.) also apply to the disqualification of a referee or court commissioner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(a)]. For discussion and forms relating to disqualification of judges for cause that may be adapted for use in disqualifying a referee, see Ch. 130, Judges . For discussion and forms relating to a peremptory disqualification of a judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 that may be adapted for use in disqualifying a referee, see Ch. 130, Judges .

This chapter does not include forms for use in hearings before referees who are employed by a court or public entity to take evidence in specific kinds of special proceedings, such as (1) juvenile court proceedings, or (2) administrative hearings, such as those before the state Department of Social Services, the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, or the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board. For a discussion and forms for use in such special proceedings, see the appropriate title in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesAppointmentsCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersReferencesInsurance LawIndustry RegulationState Insurance Commissioners & DepartmentsHearingsWorkers' Compensation & SSDIAdministrative ProceedingsHearings & Review

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.02

§ 201.02 Governing Law

References and trials by referees are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638-645.2. These provisions preserve the traditional distinction between a "general" reference, that is, a trial before a referee on all the issues of fact or of law in a case, and a "special" reference, in which the referee considers only part of the issue or some of the issues in the case [see Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722, 269 P.2d 3 ; Estate of Bassi (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 529, 536, 44 Cal. Rptr. 541] .

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638 and 639 apply only to references in civil actions or proceedings. Thus, while a discovery referee would be authorized pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5) to determine issues of privilege in a civil action, a reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4) is not available in a proceeding to determine whether documents seized from a criminal suspect are privileged because that is a criminal special proceeding and not the type of "special proceeding" to which section 639 applies [People v. Los Angeles Superior Court (Laff) (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 703, 707, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323, 23 P.3d 563] . Similarly, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638 and 639 do not apply to juvenile court referees [In re M. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 727, 734, 122 Cal. Rptr. 574, 537 P.2d 406] .

References with the consent of the parties are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 638 [see §§ 201.10 -201.11, 201.40] and references without the consent of the parties by Code Civ. Proc. § 639 [see §§ 201.12 -201.17, 201.41 -201.43].

In addition, a number of statutes authorize the appointment of a referee or referees in specified actions or proceedings [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 491.130 (examination by referee of third person in attachment proceedings); Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b) (reference to take account or proof of fact necessary to enable court to give judgment for plaintiff after defendant's default or to carry judgment into effect); Code Civ. Proc. § 636 (after judgment for plaintiff or defendant on issue of law, reference to take account or proof of fact necessary to enable court to carry judgment into effect or to complete judgment); Code Civ. Proc. § 708.110 et seq. (examination by referee of judgment debtor or third person supplemental to execution); Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010 et seq., 873.280, 873.290, 873.710, 873.940 et seq. (appointment of referees in partition actions); Prob. Code § 8920 et seq. (appointment of probate referee to appraise estate property)].

The person or persons to whom a reference may be ordered is covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 640 [see § 201.18]. Code Civ. Proc. § 640 in part provides a procedure for appointing a referee or referees the parties do not agree on the selection of a referee. The grounds for objecting to the appointment of any person as a referee are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641-642 [see §§ 201.50 -201.57]. The disqualification of referees and commissioners for cause is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(a)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 provides for the peremptory challenge for prejudice of a commissioner or referee to try a case or hear any matter therein which involves a contested issue of law or fact [see § 201.58].

The bond required of a referee or commissioner handling property or money is covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 571. Code Civ. Proc. § 1053 provides that when there are three referees all must meet, but that two of them may do any act which might be done by all. The authority of commissioners to take proof and make and report findings, and exceptions to their findings, are covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b), (e), and (g). When the referee's report must be filed is covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 643, and its effect is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644 and 645 [see §§ 201.70 -201.73, §§ 201.80 -201.85]. The manner of excepting to the report is also provided for in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644 and 645. A copy of a referee's finding forms a part of the judgment roll in a case [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b); § 201.74]. The manner of setting the referees' fees is covered by Code Civ. Proc. § 1023, and payment of the fees is covered by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 639(d)(6) and 645.1.

References by agreement are also governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.900 et seq. References by order are also governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.920 et seq.

The procedure for charging a person with contempt committed before a referee is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1211. For a discussion and forms for use in a contempt proceeding, see Ch. 135, Contempt , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For memoranda of points and authorities for use in a contempt proceeding, see Ch. 47, Contempt , in this publication.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesAppointmentsCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersReferences

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.03

§ 201.03 Papers Filed in Cases Pending Before Referee

In all cases pending before a referee appointed with [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638] or without [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639] the parties' consent, the word "Referee:" followed by the referee's name must appear below the nature of the paper or the character of the action or proceeding [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(8)].

Also, in cases pending before referees, a party must tender and the clerk must accept for filing all original documents accompanied by the required fee within the time limits specified by law. The filing party must provide a file-stamped copy to the referee of each documents relevant to the issues before the referee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)(1)].

If a document must be filed with the court before it is considered by a judge, the referee must not accept or consider any copy of that document unless the document has the clerk's file stamp or is accompanied by a declaration stating that the original document has been submitted to the court for filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)(2)]. If a document would ordinarily be filed with the court if a party submits an ex parte application, the party that submits the document or application to a referee must file the original with the court no later than the next court day after the document or application was submitted to the referee and must promptly provide a filed-stamped copy of the document or application to the referee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)(3)]. A party that has submitted a document to a referee must immediately notify the referee if the document is not accepted for filing by the court or if the filing is subsequently canceled [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.400(b)(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesAppointmentsCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersReferences

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.04

§ 201.04 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda of points and authorities must not exceed 15 pages, or 20 pages in a summary judgment proceeding. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, tables of contents and authorities, and proof of service are not counted. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d), (e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms included in this chapter are designed to be combined with other points and authorities to form a complete memorandum. For detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, §§ 1.03 -1.06. For a skeletal form of memorandum for use in creating a properly formatted outline in which to compile relevant forms from this publication, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.10.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersReferencesCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of Law

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.05

§ 201.05 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion of references and referees, a procedural guide, and forms for use in securing a reference in an action or special proceeding, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 38, Reference (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to disqualification of judges for cause that may be adapted for use in disqualifying a referee, see Ch. 130, Judges . For discussion and forms relating to a peremptory disqualification of a judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 that may be adapted for use in disqualifying a referee, see Ch. 130, Judges .

The procedure for charging a person with contempt committed before a referee is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1211. For a discussion and forms for use in a contempt proceeding, see Ch. 135, Contempt , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

For a discussion and/or forms for use in particular actions or special proceedings involving references or referees, see the following chapters in that publication:

- Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.
- Ch. 62, Attachment.
- Ch. 124, Intervention.
- Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees.
- Ch. 220, Dissolution of Marriage and Related Proceedings.
- Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments.

- Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus.
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition.
- Ch. 397, Partition.

[2] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda supporting and opposing the disqualification of judges for cause under Code Civ. Proc. § 170 et seq., which forms can be adapted for use in supporting or opposing the disqualification of a referee or commissioner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(a)], see Ch. 130, Judges , in this publication. For memoranda of points and authorities for use in a contempt proceeding, see Ch. 47, Contempt , in this publication.

Other related memoranda of points and authorities involving references may be found in the following chapters in this publication:

- Ch. 12, Accounting.
- Ch. 60, Costs.
- Ch. 169, Partition.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesAppointmentsCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersReferences

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.06-201.09

[Reserved]

§§ 201.06[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.10

§ 201.10 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--To Try Any or All Issues in Action or Proceeding, Whether of Fact or of Law, and to Report Statement of Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE TO TRY ANY AND ALL ISSUES IN THIS CASE, WHETHER OF FACT OR OF LAW, AND TO REPORT A STATEMENT OF DECISION _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY GRANTED BECAUSE _____ [_____ (BOTH or ALL) PARTIES BY AGREEMENT _____ (FILED WITH THE COURT or ENTERED IN THE MINUTES) CONSENTED TO IT or THE CONTROVERSY BETWEEN THE PARTIES _____ (ARISES or AROSE) OUT OF A _____ (CONTRACT or LEASE) THAT PROVIDES THAT ANY CONTROVERSY ARISING THEREFROM SHALL BE HEARD BY A REFERENCE or THE MATTER WAS REFERRED TO THE REFEREE WITHOUT ANY OBJECTION BY _____ (specify party, e.g., DEFENDANT) WHO PARTICIPATED FULLY IN THE HEARING BEFORE THE REFEREE].

A. Reference by Consent of Parties. A reference to hear and determine any or all of the issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision may be ordered on the agreement of the parties filed with the clerk or judge, or entered in the minutes, or on the motion of a party to a written contract or lease which provides that any controversy arising therefrom shall be heard by a reference if the court finds a reference agreement exists between the parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)).

[Optional] B. Power of Court to Correct Records to Show Reference Was Properly Made. A court has the inherent power to correct its records to show, when such is the fact, that an order of reference was properly made pursuant to the stipulation of the parties (Garland v. Smith (1933) 131 Cal. App. 517, 524, 21 P.2d 688).

[Optional] C. Failure to Secure Written Consent to General Reference or Enter Consent in Minutes Is Waiver.

The failure of the court to secure the written consent of the parties to a general reference or to enter their consent in the minutes is waived by the parties trying the entire matter before the referee without excepting to the order of reference or otherwise objecting or raising any question as to the sufficiency of the order of reference (see Shain v. Peterson (1893) 99 Cal. 486, 487, 33 P. 1085 ; Joshua Hendy Machine Works v. Pacific Cable Constr. Co. (1893) 99 Cal. 421, 423, 33 P. 1084 ; Garland v. Smith (1933) 131 Cal. App. 517, 525, 21 P.2d 688).

[Optional] D. "Exception" Defined. An exception is an objection on a matter of law to a decision made, either before or after judgment, by a court, tribunal, judge, or other judicial officer, in an action or proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 646).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a reference to hear and determine any or all of the issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision, may be or was properly ordered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]. Optional Paragraph B should be included when a nunc pro tunc entry was made in the court's records showing the agreement of the parties to the reference. Optional Paragraph C should be included when the court's records do not show that the reference was made pursuant to the agreement of the parties, but was in fact so made, or when, although the parties did not consent to the reference, they did not except or object to the order of reference and fully participated in the hearing before the referee. Optional Paragraph D should be included if the issue as to the propriety of the order of reference is raised, for example, on a motion for new trial or in an appellate court, and what constitutes an exception is in issue.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue regarding the propriety of a reference. For example, the points and authorities, excluding Paragraphs B, C, and D, may be combined with points and authorities submitted with a written stipulation for a reference or in support of a motion for a reference should the court decline to order a reference on the stipulation of the parties. The points and authorities, including Paragraph B or C may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) to vacate and set aside the referee's report and judgment on the ground and the judgment is void. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the reference is or was general, that is, to hear and determine any or all issues in the case, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision, and either (1) all the parties agreed to the reference and the agreement was filed with the clerk or judge or entered in the minutes, or the case arises or arose out of a written contract or lease providing that any controversy arising thereunder shall be heard by a reference, or (2) if not all the parties expressly consented to the reference, the nonconsenting parties did not object and participated fully in the hearing before the referee. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California

Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of stipulation for a general reference, and of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a reference, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms of stipulation for a general reference for accounting, and of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a reference, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for, in that publication.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities in § 201.40 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities at [1], above.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Power of Court to Correct Records to Show Reference Was Properly Made

Garland v. Smith (1933) 131 Cal. App. 517, 21 P.2d 688 , was an action for the balance due for work performed under a contract. Defendant cross complained to recover on a promissory note and for alleged overpayments on the present and another contract. The trial court ordered the matter referred to a referee to try all issues both of law and of fact. The court's minutes failed to indicate that the parties had agreed to the reference but were corrected by a nunc pro tunc order to so state. The order recited that an inspection of the records revealed that the minute order did not correctly set forth the order made and that the records should be corrected to conform to the facts and speak the truth. The nunc pro tunc order then provided that the order should be corrected to read that it being stipulated and agreed by and between the attorneys for the respective parties, in open court, that the cause be referred to a named person as referee as to the law and facts, the court orders the cause referred to the named person, as referee, as to the law and facts. The case was tried before the referee, who reported his findings and conclusions (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 644(a)]) to the court. The court adopted the findings and conclusions and rendered judgment for plaintiff. The judgment recited that at the time the case was set for trial the respective parties to the action, through their counsel, stipulated and agreed in open court to a reference to a named referee and that the court thereupon ordered a reference. Defendant appealed, contending among other things that the trial court erred in ordering the matter referred to a referee because the record failed to show the parties had stipulated to the reference.

The court of appeal rejected the contention and affirmed the judgment. The court held that entry of the nunc pro tunc order was proper. The court said it is fundamental that every court of record has the inherent power to cause its acts and proceedings to be correctly set forth in its records. When it is brought to the court's attention that the clerk's record does not correctly show the order that was made by the court at the time it was given, the authority of the court to cause its records to be corrected in accordance with the facts is undoubted (131 Cal. App. 517, 524) .

[b] Failure to Secure Written Consent to General Reference or Enter Consent in Minutes Is Waiver

Shain v. Peterson (1893) 99 Cal. 486, 33 P. 1085 , was an action by an assignee to recover payment for goods sold to defendant. The court referred the case to a referee to take the proof of all material allegations in the complaint and report the same to the court. The order did not appear to have been made by consent of the parties and the action was not one in which the court was authorized to make the order without the consent of the parties. The parties, however, appeared before the referee without objection and submitted their testimony. No objection to the order was ever made in the trial court. On the day after the referee concluded the taking of testimony, the court, without defendant's consent, made a further order, referring the case to the same referee to try all the issues in the action, both of fact and of law, and report a finding and judgment (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 644(a)]) to the court. No exception was taken to this order. The referee made his report with his finding of facts and conclusion of law that plaintiff was entitled to judgment for the amount stated in the complaint. Plaintiff moved for judgment. Defendant appeared at the hearing of the motion and made specific exceptions to certain findings on the ground they were contrary to the evidence. The motion was submitted to the court on the exceptions. The court thereafter rendered judgment for plaintiff in accordance with the referee's report. Defendant's motion for new trial was denied and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court held that defendant, by failing to object to the reference and by fully participating in the hearing before the referee, waived all objections to the reference. The Court further held that an appellate court would not undertake to review the trial court's action in making an order of reference without the consent of the parties, in a case when such consent is required, in the absence of an exception to it by the party complaining of the ruling (99 Cal. 486, 487) .

Joshua Hendy Machine Works v. Pacific Cable Constr. Co. (1893) 99 Cal. 421, 33 P. 1084 , was an action to recover the balance due for goods sold and work performed. The court, without the consent of the parties, made an order referring the cause to a referee to state an account between the parties and to report findings and a judgment (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 644(a)]). Judgment was eventually rendered for plaintiff, and defendant appealed, contending, among other things, that the trial court erred in referring the case to the referee without the consent of the parties.

With respect to the argument that the reference was unauthorized, the Supreme Court pointed out that the action was an ordinary action at law and that the trial court in such a case should not make a reference for the trial of all the issues except on the agreement of the parties. However, the Court said that defendant did not reserve any exception to the order of reference and held that, not having done so, defendant could not insist on the error of the court in making the order as a ground for the reversal of the judgment (99 Cal. 421, 423) . The Court nevertheless reversed the judgment on the ground the referee's findings did not support it.

The facts and procedural background of Garland v. Smith (1933) 131 Cal. App. 517, 21 P.2d 688 , are discussed at [a], above. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal said that defendant's contention that the court's record failed to show the parties had stipulated to the reference could be sufficiently answered by the recitation in the judgment that the parties had agreed to the reference (131 Cal. App. 517, 524) . The court added, however, that objection to a reference which has been ordered without consent is waived by a failure to take exception to it, and that since it affirmatively appeared from the record that defendant appeared before the referee without objection and submitted evidence in support of the allegations of his answer and cross complaint he must be held to have waived all objections to the reference (131 Cal. App. 517, 525) .

[c] "Exception" Defined

In addition to defining "exception," Code Civ. Proc. § 646 specifies when an exception must be taken. The orders and rulings reserved without exceptions are listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 647, which does not list an order of reference. The section does provide, however, that if the party, at the time when the order, ruling, action, or decision is sought or made, or within a reasonable time thereafter, makes known his or her position thereon, by objection or otherwise, all other orders, rulings, actions, or decisions are deemed to have been excepted to.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Secure Written Consent to General Reference or Enter Consent in Minutes Is Waiver

Estate of Hart (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 89, 77 P.2d 1082 , arose out of a probate proceeding. Exceptions and objections to the executor's first and final account, report, and petition for distribution were filed. The matter was then referred to a court commissioner who conducted a full hearing in which the parties participated and a number of witnesses were examined. The commissioner adopted the findings proposed by the objectors and rejected those proposed by the executor and thereafter filed his report, findings, and conclusions which were adopted by the court and a judgment adverse to the executor was rendered. The executor appealed, contending that his statutory rights under Code Civ. Proc. § 259a (now Code Civ. Proc. § 259) had been violated. Under that statute, any party to a contested proceeding heard before a commission has a right to argue exceptions before the court after notice of motion is given. The Supreme Court rejected the contention and affirmed the judgment. The Court held that the commissioner heard the matter as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 and not as a commissioner under former Code Civ. Proc. § 259a (now Code Civ. Proc. § 259). The Court said that while the original minute order of reference was so brief as perhaps to be uncertain, the subsequent developments must necessarily have made clear to the executor that the commissioner was acting as a referee, and if in fact there was no agreement of reference, it is most extraordinary that no point was made of this until after adverse findings were clearly indicated (11 Cal. 2d 89, 91-92) . The Court concluded that the participation of the executor in the hearing and subsequent consideration of the case, with knowledge of the commissioner's statements (regarding the legal issues involved, his intention to rule on them, and that he was hearing the matter as a referee and had to make a finding to the court) is indicative of a prior consent to the reference or a waiver of objection to it (11 Cal. 2d 89, 92) .

In Estate of Doran (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 541, 292 P.2d 655 , a proceeding to determine heirship, there were several groups of heirs represented by different attorneys, one of whom was a claimant himself who also represented two other heirs. However, by an association of attorneys by the attorneys of record, including the attorney-claimant, this group was also represented by one of the other attorneys. At a hearing at which the attorney-claimant did not appear, the court on stipulation of the attorneys present referred the matter to a referee. The referee subsequently filed his report and a judgment adverse to the group of heirs of which the attorney-claimant and heirs represented by him were members was entered. The court of appeal affirmed. The court rejected the attorney-claimant's argument that the probate court did not have jurisdiction to order the reference because he did not consent in writing or in open court to the reference as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 638 and did not appear at the hearing at which the reference was ordered. The court said that by virtue of the association of attorneys, all parties, including the attorney-claimant, were bound by the stipulation agreeing to the reference (138 Cal. App. 2d 541, 545-546) . With respect to the nonappearance at the hearing, the court pointed out that in Garland v. Smith (1933) 131 Cal. App. 517, 524, 21 P.2d 688 (discussed at [3][b], above), it was noted that any objection to a reference ordered without consent is waived by a failure to take exception to it and added that the heirs knew the matter of reference was to come up at the scheduled hearing, but nevertheless did not appear (138 Cal. App. 2d 541, 546-547) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.11

§ 201.11 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--With Consent of Parties to Ascertain Fact Necessary to Enable Court to Determine Action or Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE TO ASCERTAIN THE FACT(S) _____ [specify facts to be ascertained] _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY GRANTED BECAUSE ASCERTAINMENT OF _____ [THIS FACT or THESE FACTS] _____ [IS or ARE or WAS or WERE] NECESSARY TO ENABLE THE COURT TO DETERMINE THIS _____ [ACTION or PROCEEDING] AND BECAUSE _____ [BOTH PARTIES BY AGREEMENT _____ (FILED WITH THE COURT or ENTERED IN THE MINUTES) CONSENTED TO IT or THE CONTROVERSY BETWEEN THE PARTIES _____ (ARISES or AROSE) OUT OF A _____ (CONTRACT or LEASE) THAT PROVIDES THAT ANY CONTROVERSY ARISING THEREFROM SHALL BE HEARD BY A REFERENCE].

Reference by Consent of Parties. A reference to ascertain a fact necessary to enable the court to determine an action or proceeding may be ordered on the agreement of the parties filed with the clerk or judge, or entered in the minutes, or on the motion of a party to a written contract or lease that provides that any controversy arising therefrom shall be heard by a reference if the court finds a reference agreement exists between the parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a reference to ascertain a fact necessary to enable the court to determine an action or proceeding may be or was properly ordered because the parties consented to it either by written agreement filed with the court or orally in open court and the consent was entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)].

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted with a written stipulation for a reference or in support of a motion for a reference should the court decline to order a reference on the stipulation of the parties. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the reference is or was to ascertain a specified fact or facts necessary to enable the court to determine the action or proceeding and either that the reference was consented to in writing or in open court by the parties or that the action or proceeding arose out of a contract or lease providing that any controversy arising therefrom shall be heard by a reference. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of stipulation for a special reference, and of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a reference, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.12

§ 201.12 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Trial of Issue of Fact Requires or Required Examination of Long Account [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE ON THE _____ [COURT'S OWN MOTION or APPLICATION OF _____ (specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF)] TO TAKE AND STATE AN ACCOUNT [AND DIRECTING THE REFEREE TO HEAR AND DECIDE THE WHOLE ISSUE] _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY GRANTED BECAUSE THIS IS AN ACTION IN EQUITY AND THE EXAMINATION OF A LONG ACCOUNT _____ [IS or WAS] REQUIRED FOR TRIAL OF THE ISSUE _____ [specify issue of fact].

A. Reference to Examine Long Account. When the parties do not consent, the court may, on the written motion of any party, or on its own motion, appoint a referee pursuant to the provisions of subdivision (b) of Code of Civil Procedure Section 640 when the trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account on either side; [in which case the referee(s) may be directed to hear and decide the whole issue, or report on any specific question of fact involved therein] (Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)).

[Optional] B. Reference Over Objection of Party. The reference may be made over the objection of a party if the action is in equity and the examination of a long account is required (Putman v. Superior Court (1930) 209 Cal. 223, 228-229, 286 P. 425 ; Jones v. Gardner (1881) 57 Cal. 641, 643) .

[Optional] C. Reference Authorized Whenever Court Has Authority to Take Account Itself. Whenever a court has power to take an account itself, it may order a reference to take it under the general implied powers of the court (Trumpler v. Cotton (1895) 109 Cal. 250, 255, 41 P. 1033 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 187).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a court may order or properly ordered a reference without the consent of the parties because the examination of a long account is or was required by the trial of an issue of fact in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b), referred to in Paragraph A, governs the manner of choosing the person(s) to serve as referee when the parties cannot agree and is set forth in § 201.18[1]. Optional Paragraph B should be included if the reference is or was expressly objected to by the adverse party. Optional Paragraph C should be included if the action involves an account and there is a statute authorizing the court to take the account.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference to take an account. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities supporting a motion for a reference. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the action is in equity and the examination of a long account is or was required for the trial of an issue of fact in the case.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a special reference for an accounting under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities in §§ 201.41 and 201.42 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Over Objection of Party

Putman v. Superior Court (1930) 209 Cal. 223, 286 P. 425 , was a proceeding in prohibition, arising out of an action for dissolution of a partnership and an accounting in which defendant denied that any partnership existed. The trial judge, after he had announced his conclusion at trial that a partnership existed and over defendant's objection, directed a reference on the ground that trial of one of the issues of fact involved required the examination of a long account. Defendant petitioned for a writ of prohibition to prohibit the trial judge from proceeding further with the action and to prohibit the other parties from proceeding with the reference.

Although critical of the trial judge's premature, unwise, and unjudicial attitude, action, and conclusion, the Supreme Court denied the petition. The Court, quoting from Jones v. Gardner (1881) 57 Cal. 641 (discussed below), said that the language of former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(1) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)), authorizing a reference when the parties do not consent, indicates that the power of the court to refer depends on the pleadings on the one side or the other, that a reference is made when the trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account, and that a reference for such purpose may, under the state Constitution, be made in any equity suit when either party alleges facts showing an accounting to be necessary (209 Cal. 223, 229) .

Jones v. Gardner (1881) 57 Cal. 641 , was an action to declare a deed a mortgage and to foreclose it. From a judgment for plaintiff, defendant appealed, contending among other things that the trial court had no power to send the case to a referee for trial and that the parties were entitled to a jury trial on the legal issues.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court held that the language of former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(1) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)) indicates that the power of the court to refer depends on the pleadings on the one side or the other, that the reference is made when the trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account, that a reference for such purpose may, under the state Constitution, be made in any equity suit when either party alleges facts showing an accounting to be necessary, and that the action to declare the deed a mortgage and foreclose it was in equity (57 Cal. 641, 643) .

[b] Reference Authorized Whenever Court Has Authority to Take Account Itself

Trumpler v. Cotton (1895) 109 Cal. 250, 41 P. 1033 , was an action on an undertaking resulting from defendant guardian's failure to file his final account in a guardianship proceeding. The undertaking was executed by defendant guardian as principal and defendant sureties and conditioned on the guardian's faithful performance of his duties as guardian of plaintiff's person and estate. The guardian failed to appear in response to a citation, and the trial court referred the matter to a referee to prepare the guardian's final account. The account was made and presented by the referee. The sureties objected to the report and to the jurisdiction of the court. The court overruled the objections, settled the account, and rendered judgment for plaintiff. The sureties appealed, contending among other things that the trial court had no jurisdiction to settle and allow a guardian's account except when presented by the guardian and that no one else could swear to an account for him.

The Supreme Court rejected this contention. The Court held that under the applicable statute the trial court had power to compel the guardian to present his account for settlement. Citing Code Civ. Proc. § 187 relating to the implied powers of a court or judicial officer, the Court said that when jurisdiction is conferred on a court all the means to carry it into effect are also given and that if the course of proceedings is not specifically designated by the code any suitable mode may be adopted that may appear most conformable to the code (109 Cal. 250, 254-255) . The Court concluded that the trial court therefore had power to state the account, and since the trial court could take and state the account itself it could refer it to a referee to state it (109 Cal. 250, 255) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.13

§ 201.13 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Taking of Account Is or Was Necessary for Information of Court Before Judgment or for Carrying Judgment or Order Into Effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE TO TAKE AND STATE AN ACCOUNT IN THIS CASE _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY GRANTED BECAUSE THE TAKING OF AN ACCOUNT _____ [IS or WAS] NECESSARY FOR THE INFORMATION OF THE COURT _____ [BEFORE JUDGMENT or FOR CARRYING A _____ (JUDGMENT or ORDER) INTO EFFECT].

Reference Without Consent of Parties Necessary for Information of Court Before Judgment or to Carry Judgment or Order Into Effect. When the parties do not consent, the court may, on the written motion of any party, or of its own motion, appoint a referee pursuant to the provisions of subdivision (b) of Code of Civil Procedure Section 640 when the taking of an account is necessary for the information of the court before judgment or for carrying a judgment or order into effect (Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a reference to take and state an account may be or was properly granted because the taking of an account is or was necessary for the information of the court either before judgment or for carrying a judgment or order into effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b), referred to in the form, governs the manner of choosing the person(s) to serve as referee when the parties cannot agree and is set forth in § 201.18[1].

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for a reference. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the taking of an account is or was necessary for the information of the court either before judgment or for carrying a judgment or order into effect.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for, and Ch. 38, Reference, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities in § 201.42 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities in [1], above.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.14

§ 201.14 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Question of Fact, Other Than on Pleadings, Arises or Arose on Motion or Otherwise in any Stage of Action [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE TO _____ [specify nature of order] _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY GRANTED IN THIS CASE BECAUSE A QUESTION OF FACT AS TO _____ [specify issue about which question of fact exists] AROSE ON _____ [specify, e.g., THE MOTION OF _____ (party) FOR AN ORDER GRANTING SUMMARY JUDGMENT].

Reference Without Consent of Parties When Fact Question Arises on Motion or Otherwise. When the parties do not consent, the court may, on the written motion of any party, or of its own motion, appoint a referee pursuant to the provisions of subdivision (b) of Code of Civil Procedure Section 640 when a question of fact, other than on the pleadings, arises on motion or otherwise, in any stage of the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3); Estate of Beard (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 753, 777-778, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a reference may be or was properly granted because a question of fact, other than on the pleadings, arose on a motion or otherwise in any stage of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b), referred to in the form, governs the manner of choosing the person(s) to serve as referee when the parties cannot agree and is set forth in § 201.18[1].

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for a reference. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should show what question of fact arose and that it arose on a motion or otherwise, other than on the pleadings.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for, and Ch. 38, Reference.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Without Consent of Parties When Fact Question Arises on Motion or Otherwise

Estate of Beard (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 753, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276 , was a bitterly contested estate in part due to fact that decedent had not changed his will to include provision for his wife (appellant) at the time of his death. The will left the bulk of the estate to decedent's two adult children. The widow filed numerous claims and objections, including a petition for family allowance. The parties agreed to a compromise in October, 1988, which was memorialized in Order Approving Compromise and Settlement. That agreement was modified and an Amended Order issued in December, 1988, which provided for the widow and required her, among other things, to dismiss all of her pending appeals in the probate proceedings and to expunge a lis pendens she had filed against the estate. Appellant did not dismiss that appeal, and the court appointed a commissioner to execute the dismissal of that appeal. In 1990, the children filed a motion to set aside the Amended Order and to withdraw from the original Settlement, on the grounds appellant had failed to comply with the terms of the original Settlement, the Amended Order, or a 1989 order. In August, 1990, the court appointed a special referee "to determine (1) whether appellant's failure to dismiss the [then-pending] appeal breached the agreement; or (2) whether the appellant's failure to dismiss the appeal was necessitated by the executor's actions." The referee filed his report in December, 1990, finding that (1) appellant "breached" the express requirements of the original Settlement, the Amended Order, and the court's subsequent March 1989 order to dismiss her then-pending appeal; (2) appellant's failure to comply was not justified or excused by a clerical drafting error in the Order for Preliminary Distribution's (omission of the December 2, 1988, date for turning over apartments to appellant); and (3) appellant's procedural remedy for this drafting error was to file a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to correct the error. The children moved for confirmation of the referee's report, and appellant opposed it. The court rejected appellant's objections to the appointment of the referee as untimely and therefore waived, and ordered the referee's report confirmed and adopted as the decision of the court. Thereafter the widow appealed that and four other orders, claiming as to the reference that it was an improper referral of issues of law to a referee.

The court of appeal affirmed, noting that Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3), authorizes a trial court, without the consent of the parties, to make a special reference to a referee to make certain factual determinations. The scope of a nonconsensual special reference is limited to the resolution of particular factual questions on existing controversies; the referee's factual findings are advisory recommendations only, and do not become binding unless adopted by the court. Although it was unfortunate and confusing that the order appointing the referee and the referee's report both spoke in terms of appellant's "breach" of the court's orders, that terminology was not controlling. The questions which the trial court submitted to the referee were clearly ones of fact, i.e., had appellant in fact disobeyed the Amended Order; and if so, was her disobedience necessitated or justified by the acts or omissions of the executor? In light of the complexity of the factual and procedural record, the trial court's reference of these questions was not error (71 Cal. App. 4th 753, 777-778) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.15

§ 201.15 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Necessary for Information of Court in Special Proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE IN THIS CASE _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY GRANTED BECAUSE THIS IS A SPECIAL PROCEEDING AND A REFERENCE _____ [IS or WAS] NECESSARY FOR THE INFORMATION OF THE COURT.

A. Reference Without Consent of Parties When Necessary for Court's Information in Special Proceeding. When the parties do not consent, the court may, on the written motion of any party, or of its own motion, appoint a referee pursuant to the provisions of subdivision (b) of Code of Civil Procedure Section 640 when it is necessary for the information of the court in a special proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4); see Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 562-563, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441).

[Optional] B. Original Proceeding in Appellate Court. A reference is essential when the determination of controverted issues of fact becomes necessary in an original proceeding in an appellate court (Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 562, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a reference may be or was properly ordered because the proceeding is a special proceeding and the reference is or was necessary for the information of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b), referred to in Paragraph A of the form, governs the manner of choosing the person(s) to serve as referee when the parties cannot agree and is set forth in § 201.18[1]. Optional Paragraph B should be included when the special proceeding is or was commenced and pending in an appellate court (e.g., a proceeding for an extraordinary writ). Common special proceedings of a civil nature are covered by Part Three of the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1063 et seq.] and by Fam. Code §§ 1800 et seq., 4800 et seq. As a rule of thumb, special proceedings are normally commenced by petition, whereas civil actions are commenced by complaints. Notable exceptions are proceedings in unlawful or forcible detainer or forcible entry and eminent domain, all of which are special proceedings and all of which are commenced by the filing of a complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1166 (forcible entry or detainer and unlawful detainer), 1250.110 (eminent domain)].

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference in a special proceeding to ascertain facts for the information of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)]. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities supporting a motion for an order directing such a reference. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, these points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show, if there is any doubt about it, first that the case is a special proceeding, and then the matter to be referred and why the reference is necessary for the information of the court. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for, and Ch. 38, Reference.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities in § 201.43 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities in [1], above.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Without Consent of Parties When Necessary for Court's Information in Special Proceeding

Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441 , was a mandate proceeding against a sheriff by which petitioner sought recovery of property taken from him at the time of his arrest or its value if it could not be returned. Defendant's demurrer to the petition was sustained. Subsequently, petitioner sought a writ from the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court transferred the proceeding to the court of appeal with directions to issue an alternative writ of mandate. The court of appeal appointed counsel for petitioner and a referee to hear evidence and make findings on certain specified questions. The referee found that (1) the property claimed was taken from petitioner by the sheriff's department, (2) it was petitioner's property, (3) no written inventory of the property was made and the sheriff's office had no means of determining its ownership, (4) the property had a value of $500, and (5) none of the items was returned to petitioner. The court of appeal nevertheless denied relief.

The Supreme Court granted a hearing. In ordering that a writ of mandate issue directing respondent to return the property or, if unable to do so, the sum of $500, the Supreme Court said that the appointment of a special referee without the consent of the parties is authorized under former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(4) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)) when it is necessary for the information of the court in a special proceeding (20 Cal. 3d 560, 562) .

[b] Original Proceeding in Appellate Court

The facts and procedural background of Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441 , are discussed at [a], above. In upholding the propriety under former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(4) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)) of the reference ordered by the court of appeal, the Supreme Court said that since appellate courts are not equipped to take evidence, a reference is essential when the determination of controverted issues of fact becomes necessary in an original proceeding (20 Cal. 3d 560, 562) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.16

§ 201.16 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Without Consent of Parties When Appointment of Referee Is Necessary to Hear and Determine Discovery Matters and to Report Findings and Recommendation [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE IN THIS CASE _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY GRANTED BECAUSE A REFERENCE IS AUTHORIZED WHEN THE COURT DETERMINES IT IS NECESSARY TO APPOINT A REFEREE TO HEAR AND DETERMINE _____ [DISCOVERY MOTIONS and/or DISPUTES RELEVANT TO DISCOVERY] IN AN ACTION.

Reference Without Consent of Parties to Hear and Determine Discovery Motions or Disputes. When the parties do not consent, the court may, on the written motion of any party, or of its own motion, appoint a referee pursuant to the provisions of subdivision (b) of Code of Civil Procedure Section 640 when the court in any pending action determines in its discretion that it is necessary for the court to appoint a referee to hear and determine any and all discovery motions and disputes relevant to discovery in the action and to report findings and make a recommendation thereon (Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5); see Motown Record Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 482, 487, 202 Cal. Rptr. 227).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a reference may be or was properly granted because a reference is or was necessary to hear and determine discovery motions and/or disputes relevant to discovery in the action and to report findings and make a recommendation thereon [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b), referred to in the form, governs the manner of choosing the person(s) to serve as referee when the parties cannot agree and is set forth in § 201.18[1].

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for a reference. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should show the facts that necessitate the appointment of a referee to hear and determine the discovery motions or disputes relevant to discovery, or both. Necessity may be occasioned, for example, by the failure of counsel to narrow the issues presented by cross motions to compel production of documents caused by their inability to get along with each other [see Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 597, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530 (trial court ordered reference, but court of appeal correctly held reference not authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 639; holding repudiated by Legislature in its 1981 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 639 to add subdivision (e) [now (a)(5)] to expressly provide for such reference)].

It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations, and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, see Ch. 38, Reference, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for use in discovery proceedings, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations, Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions, Ch. 194, Discovery: Interrogatories, Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence, Ch. 196, Discovery: Requests for Admissions, Ch. 197, Discovery: Physical and Mental Examinations, Ch. 198, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information, Ch. 199, Discovery: Preservation of Evidence, Ch. 200, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders, in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing discovery motions, see Ch. 80, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing, Ch. 81, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations, Ch. 82, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse, Ch. 83, Discovery: Depositions, Ch. 84, Discovery: Interrogatories, Ch. 85, Discovery: Production or Inspection of Tangible Evidence, Ch. 86, Discovery: Requests for Admissions, Ch. 87, Discovery: Physical and Mental Examinations, Ch. 88, Discovery: Exchange of Expert Witness Information, Ch. 89, Discovery: Preservation of Evidence, Ch. 89A, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders, in this publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Without Consent of Parties to Hear and Determine Discovery Motions or Disputes

Motown Record Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 482, 202 Cal. Rptr. 227 , was a mandate proceeding that arose out of a discovery dispute between the parties to a civil action in which the reference provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(e) [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)] were utilized. In that case, the trial judge had referred the dispute to a referee who found that plaintiffs had failed to comply in a timely manner with the trial court's earlier order regarding production of documents and that the failure to comply resulted in a waiver of plaintiffs' claim that some of the documents were protected by the attorney-client and work-product privileges. The referee recommended that plaintiffs be ordered to produce all the documents described in defendant's request within 20 days and pay attorney fees of $1,000. The monetary sanction was based in part on plaintiffs' meritless objections to written interrogatories that the referee recommended be answered. Plaintiffs' motion for modification of the referee's tentative findings and recommendations, asserting that their slight tardiness in compliance (one day as to service of the required papers and 10 days as to service of an attorney declaration that concerned only a portion of the disputed documents) did not justify the severe sanction recommended and that the purported finding of a waiver of privilege was unauthorized by statutory or case law. The trial court adopted the referee's findings and recommendations and ordered plaintiffs to produce within 20 days all the documents to which they had asserted the privilege.

Although the court of appeal pointed out that the reference was ordered pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639, it nevertheless held that the sanctions imposed by the trial court were excessive and not reasonably calculated to achieve the purpose of effecting compliance with discovery and that plaintiffs had not waived the attorney-client privilege under Evid. Code § 912, which provides the exclusive means by which that privilege may be waived (155 Cal. App. 3d 482, 488, 490-492) . The court therefore ordered that a peremptory writ of mandate the trial court to vacate that part of its order finding a blanket waiver of privilege and ordering all disputed documents produced without a prior determination regarding the existence of a valid claim of privilege (155 Cal. App. 3d 482, 492-493) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.17

§ 201.17 Supporting Contention That Preliminary Adjudication of Right to Accounting Is or Was Not Required and That Reference May Be Ordered at any Stage of Action

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE IN THIS CASE _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY GRANTED BECAUSE THERE IS NO REQUIREMENT THAT THE TRIAL COURT FIRST ADJUDICATE A PARTY'S RIGHT TO AN ACCOUNTING BEFORE IT DIRECTS A REFERENCE TO TAKE AN ACCOUNT, [AND A REFERENCE TO TAKE AN ACCOUNT MAY BE ORDERED AT ANY STAGE OF THE ACTION, THE MATTER BEING ONE AS TO THE ORDER OF PROOF].

A. Prior Adjudication of Party's Right to Accounting Is Not Required. There is no requirement under either Section 638 or Section 639 of the Code of Civil Procedure, relating respectively to references on agreement of the parties and references without the consent of the parties, that the trial court before ordering a reference find that a party is entitled to an accounting and enter an interlocutory judgment to that effect (see Schefski v. Anker (1932) 216 Cal. 624, 627, 15 P.2d 744 ; Fredendall v. Shrader (1920) 45 Cal. App. 719, 724-726, 188 P. 580).

[Optional] B. Stage of Proceeding at Which Reference Might Be Directed. Section 639 of the Code of Civil Procedure places no restrictions on the trial court as to the time during the pendency of the action when it first acquires jurisdiction to appoint a referee; hence, the stage in an equity action at which the court may take testimony in the process of an accounting, or order a reference for that purpose, is not a matter of jurisdiction, but rather of the order of proof in the particular case (Putman v. Superior Court (1930) 209 Cal. 223, 228, 229, 286 P. 425).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that no prior adjudication of a party's right to an accounting is required as a prerequisite to the trial court's ordering a reference. Optional Paragraph B should be included if there is or is likely to arise any question as to the stage of a proceeding at which an accounting may be taken or a reference ordered.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference to take an account. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities, such as those publication out in § 201.12, supporting a motion for an order directing a reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)]. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order directing a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Prior Adjudication of Party's Right to Accounting Is Not Required

Schefski v. Anker (1932) 216 Cal. 624, 15 P.2d 744 , was an action for dissolution of a partnership and an accounting. The trial court, on stipulation of the parties and without first rendering an interlocutory judgment, ordered a reference to take an accounting. Thus, the reference was made under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) (reference on agreement of parties) rather than under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) (reference without consent of parties). The referee subsequently filed his report, but, unable to understand many of its entries, the judge refused to accept it and took additional testimony in open court. From the judgment subsequently entered, both parties appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed with directions because of errors in the account and confusion in the trial court's record. With respect to the trial court's failure to enter an interlocutory judgment directing the reference, the Court said the entering of an interlocutory judgment was not necessarily a condition precedent to ordering a reference, it being well settled in this state that the trial court may, whenever necessary, order an accounting with or without entry of an interlocutory judgment (216 Cal. 624, 627) .

Fredendall v. Shrader (1920) 45 Cal. App. 719, 188 P. 580 , was an action by stockholders (1) to cancel certain trust deeds and chattel mortgages given by defendant corporation to defendant partners to secure payment of promissory notes and shares of stock in defendant corporation issued to defendant partners, (2) to declare void a contract for the sale of oil by defendant corporation to defendant partners, and (3) for an accounting. Other stockholders filed complaints in intervention adopting plaintiffs' complaint. The original action was subsequently dismissed by the original plaintiffs and the case proceeded to trial on the complaints in intervention. After trial the case was referred to a referee to take an account under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a) (reference without consent of parties). The referee subsequently filed his report which was confirmed by the court. The court made findings (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]), and judgment was entered in favor of interveners and against defendant partners for $105,406.25. Defendant partners appealed, contending, among other things, that the trial court had no jurisdiction to appoint a referee to take an accounting without first making findings showing that the interveners were entitled to an accounting and rendering an interlocutory judgment to that effect.

The court of appeal rejected the contention and affirmed the judgment. The court said that Code Civ. Proc. § 639 provides for no such preliminary formality and that the procedure adopted by the trial court with respect to the order of reference appeared to be in accord with the customary practice which had prevailed in California for many years and had received the approval of the Supreme Court (45 Cal. App. 719, 724) .

[b] Stage of Proceeding at Which Reference Might Be Directed

The facts and background of Putman v. Superior Court (1930) 209 Cal. 223, 286 P. 425 , are discussed at § 201.12[3][a]. The Court said that Code Civ. Proc. § 639 places no restrictions on the trial court regarding the time during the pendency of the action when it first acquires jurisdiction to appoint a referee and that the implication of the section is to the contrary (209 Cal. 223, 228) . The Court explained that regarding the stage in an equity action when the court may proceed of itself to take testimony in the process of an accounting or order a reference for that purpose is not a matter of jurisdiction but, rather, a matter of the order of proof in the particular case (209 Cal. 223, 229) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Prior Adjudication of Party's Right to Accounting Is Not Required

The factual background of Putman v. Superior Court (1930) 209 Cal. 223, 286 P. 425 , is discussed § 201.12[3][a]. The Court, quoting Fredendall v. Shrader (1920) 45 Cal. App. 719, 724, 188 P. 580 (discussed at [3][a], above), disagreed with appellant's argument that the court was without jurisdiction to order a reference because it had not previously found that the interveners were entitled to an accounting and entered an interlocutory decree adjudging that fact. Code Civ. Proc. § 639 provides for no such preliminary formality, and the procedure adopted by the trial court with respect to the order of reference appeared to be in accord with the customary practice that had prevailed in California for many years and received the approval of the Supreme Court (209 Cal. 223, 228-229) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.18

§ 201.18 Supporting Contention That Parties May Agree on Person to Be Appointed Referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 640]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PARTIES [HAVE] EXPRESSLY AGREED ON THE APPOINTMENT OF _____ [name(s)] TO ACT AS REFEREE(S) HEREIN AND SUCH APPOINTMENT _____ [SHOULD BE or WAS PROPERLY] MADE.

A. Who May Be Appointed Referees. A reference may be ordered to the person or persons, not exceeding three, agreed on by the parties (Code Civ. Proc. § 640(a)). [If the parties do not agree, on the selection of the referee or referees, each party must submit to the court up to three nominees for appointment as referee and the court must appoint one or more referees, not exceeding three, from among the nominees against whom there is no legal objection. If no nominations are received from any of the parties, the court must appoint one or more referees, not exceeding three, against whom there is no legal objection, or the court may appoint who reside in the county in which the action or proceeding is triable, and against whom there is no legal objection, or the court may appoint a court commissioner of the county where the cause is pending as a referee (Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b))].

[Optional] B. No Requirement That Referee Appointed Be Subordinate Judicial Officer. A referee to whom a reference is made pursuant to Sections 638 et seq. of the Code of Civil Procedure need not be a subordinate judicial officer, but may be any person who is not disqualified to act as such under those provisions (see Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 597-598, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that the parties may agree on the person or persons to act as referees in the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 640(a)]. Optional Paragraph B should be included when the person or persons agreed on is or are not subordinate judicial officers. See §§ 201.50 -201.58 for memoranda supporting objections to the qualifications of persons to act as referees.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the right of the parties to agree on the person or persons who are or were to act as referees. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted to a judge with a stipulation or request for a reference in which the parties further agree on the person or persons to act as referees in the case. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the parties have agreed on a person or persons to serve as referees in the case and their identity or identities.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to the appointment of a referee, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Requirement That Referee Appointed Be Subordinate Judicial Officer

Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530 , was a mandate proceeding that involved an order appointing as referee a retired superior court judge to hear and determine issues presented by a discovery motion and future discovery motions in a case pending in the trial court. The court of appeal issued a writ directing the trial court to vacate the order on the ground the reference was not authorized by either Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639. In declining to consider the contention that hearing and determination of discovery matters is a subordinate judicial task which may be delegated to a subordinate judicial officer pursuant to Cal. Const., art. VI, § 22, the court said that a person to whom a reference is made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 et seq. is a referee and referees need not be subordinate judicial officers of the court, such as commissioners, or probate or juvenile referees employed the court (112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 597-598) . The court concluded that regardless of his qualifications, the retired judge was acting in the capacity of a referee in which, under Code Civ. Proc. § 641, any person competent as a juror might serve (112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 598) .

It should be noted that the precise holding of the court in Bird that the reference was not authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639 has been changed by the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 639 to allow references in the situation involved in Bird [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5); see also § 201.16].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.19

§ 201.19 Supporting Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Contract Provision Requiring Reference Is Not Unconscionable [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE TO _____ [A or THE] REFEREE TO TRY ANY OR ALL OF THE ISSUES IN THIS CASE, WHETHER OF FACT OR OF LAW, AND TO REPORT A STATEMENT OF DECISION THEREON _____ [MAY BE or WAS] PROPERLY ORDERED BECAUSE THE CONTRACT PROVISION REQUIRING A JUDICIAL REFERENCE IS NOT UNCONSCIONABLE AND SHOULD BE ENFORCED.

A. Criteria of Unconscionability. Unconscionability is a question of law for the court to decide. Unconscionability has both a "procedural" and a "substantive" element, the former focusing on "oppression" or "surprise" due to unequal bargaining power, the latter on "overly harsh" or "one-sided" results. The prevailing view is that procedural and substantive unconscionability must both be present in order for a court to refuse to enforce a contract or clause under the doctrine of unconscionability. [But they need not be present in the same degree. A sliding scale may be invoked: the more substantively oppressive the contract term(s), the less evidence of procedural unconscionability is required for a court to conclude that the term is unenforceable, and vice versa] (Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 343-344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 ; Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 727, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 ; Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1088, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288).

B. Burdens of Proof. The party who prepared and submitted a contract containing unexpected or harsh terms has the burden of showing that the other party had notice of them, and the party asserting unconscionability as a defense has the burden of establishing it (Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 727-728, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35).

C. Level of Procedural Unconscionability Here Is Low. Although the contracts are several pages long, and contain a great deal of small print, the _____ [specify party or status, e.g., buyers] were necessarily made aware of the existence of the judicial reference provision because they had to initial that paragraph separately. Although the print of the judicial reference provision is small and does not stand out, it is immediately prefaced [above the spaces for the buyers' initials] by the large, bolded statement: "By initialing below, the parties acknowledge that they have read and understand the foregoing and accept that they are waiving their right to a jury trial." Further, the caption--"JUDICIAL REFERENCE OF DISPUTES"--is not misleading, The most important aspect of the judicial reference, the fact that it does not involve a jury, is clearly and conspicuously set forth. In addition, the provision itself discloses that a reference will require fees for the referee, and sets out the presumptive method of apportioning those fees. Thus, even if the court were to assume that _____ [specify party or status, e.g., buyers] could not have eliminated the judicial reference provision, they still can show/have shown only a low level of procedural unconscionability because there was no surprise or misrepresentation (Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 730, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35).

[OR]

C. Level of Procedural Unconscionability Is Low. A contractual provision for judicial reference is not procedurally unconscionable if printed where the purchaser is likely to see it, immediately above the block for his or her signature, and there is no evidence that any purchasers tried to negotiate out of the provision and were rebuffed (Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 344-345, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371).

[Optional] D. Unilateral Opt-Out Provision Is Not Likely to Be Misused. A provision, like the one here, that allows _____ [specify party or status, e.g., defendant] to refuse to participate in the judicial reference unless it is satisfied that all necessary and appropriate parties will participate in the proceeding is designed to ensure that the entire dispute be resolved in one setting. There is nothing to indicate how or why _____ [specify party or status, e.g., defendant] might manipulate this provision to its advantage (Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35).

[Optional] E. Attorney's Fee Provision Is Not Unconscionable. The part of the judicial reference provision that requires each party to bear their own attorneys' fees, takes/took nothing away from _____ [specify party or status contesting provision, e.g., plaintiffs] and is neither harsh nor oppressive (Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35).

[Optional] F. Secrecy Provision May Be Illegal, but May Be Severed. The part of the judicial reference provision that requires a stenographic record of the trial, but requires that record to be kept confidential except as necessary for posthearing motions and appeals, is troubling, not because it is unfair or undesirable with respect to the parties themselves, but because it might interfere with the public interest in open proceedings. However, if the secrecy provision is/was challenged at some point in the proceedings and found to be unenforceable, it can be severed (Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 732, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35).

[Optional] G. No Showing Has Been Made That Referee's Fees Will Impose Undue Burden. The provision for judicial reference in this case calls for the expenses of the judicial reference to be shared evenly [but provides in addition that the referee may direct payment at his or her discretion. Expenses for the referee could be substantial, especially compared with the "free" access to the court itself]. While a contract which imposes on the weaker party the possibility of substantial expense is unconscionable, to satisfy his or her burden of proof, the party seeking to establish that the expense renders their agreement unconscionable, must establish at the least that the fees they are likely to pay would be greater than those which would accrue in litigation before the court. Here, _____ [specify party or status, e.g., buyers] made no such showing, nor did they establish that the probable additional expenses of a judicial reference, if any, would be impossible or unreasonably difficult for them to pay[, or that judicial reference was not economically sound from their point of view] (Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 ; Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 733-735, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35).

[Optional] H. Presumption of Benefit From Waiver of Jury Trial. A party can waive his or her right to a jury trial. Based on the public policy in favor of alternative dispute resolution, the court may assume, unless proven otherwise, that a party who gives up the right to a jury trial in favor of alternative dispute resolution gains the benefit of economies of time or expense. Each party also gains the other party's waiver of the right to a jury trial (Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 734-735, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) may be, or was, properly ordered to try any or all issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision thereon when the contract provision requiring judicial reference is fair enough not to be unconscionable; that is when the weaker party was not surprised by the inclusion of the provision for judicial reference, or any of its terms, and those terms are fair, or at least not so onerous as to "shock the conscience." The general statements of the elements of procedural unconscionability and substantive unconscionability are not included, but may be incorporated from the form at § 201.44[1]. Instead, the form at [1], above, focuses on the specific aspects of the judicial reference provisions at issue. Counsel should use only those which address the similar or identical aspects of the judicial reference provision her or she seeks to enforce. In particular, counsel may have to modify Paragraph C if any aspects of the situation differ from those considered by the authority used in the form. The bracketed language in Paragraph G is from Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 .

Counsel also should keep in mind that the party opposing enforcement of the judicial reference provision has the burden of proving unconscionability [see Paragraph B], and may prefer to use some of the optional paragraphs of the form in reply or rebuttal rather than at the outset. Optional Paragraph G especially lends itself to use after the party trying to establish that the judicial reference provision is unconscionable has failed to carry its burden with regard to the claim that the provision is financially burdensome.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a). For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities submitted in opposition to a motion for a general reference. They may also be combined with the points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for an order vacating an order of reference. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief. In addition, these points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, the argument should quote or refer to the provision at issue and the circumstances under which it was negotiated and explain each instance that shows the lack of surprise, oppression, unfairness, or unequal allocation of risk or expense. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing enforcement of arbitration provisions on the ground that they are unconscionable, see Ch. 20, Arbitration: Compelling , and Ch. 20A, Arbitration: Resisting .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities opposing enforcement of a provision for judicial reference on the ground that it is unconscionable, see § 201.44.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Criteria of Unconscionability

Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 , arose out of consolidated construction-defect cases by 69 owners of homes built by petitioner's predecessor. Forty-three of the real parties were original owners, and the remainder were subsequent purchasers. The development contract between the builder and the original purchasers provided that any disputes would be determined by judicial reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 et seq., with the referee to determine all issues of law and fact and to issue a final judgment. Parties were to bear the costs of the reference equally. The trial court refused to order the reference, finding that real parties would be subjected to a multiplicity of suits because subcontractors would not be joined in the reference, but it made no ruling on the issue of the provision's alleged unconscionability. Petitioner moved for reconsideration, supporting its motion with copies of contracts with its subcontractors. In the builder-subcontractor contracts, the subcontractors agreed that in any dispute between petitioner-builder and third parties that resulted in petitioner making a claim against a subcontractor, petitioner could require the subcontractor to join in the reference. The trial court denied the motion for reconsideration without explanation. Petitioner sought relief from that order by writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued an alternative writ of mandate and stayed all proceedings in the underlying actions. Ultimately, the court of appeal agreed that because subsequent purchasers never consented to judicial reference, they could not be forced to participate in a general reference (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 343) ; the court therefore denied the writ as to them. As to original purchasers, the court granted the writ, directing the trial court to vacate its ruling denying the reference of claims brought by original purchasers (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 348) . The court found no basis to refuse enforcement of the reference provision based on any threat of a multiplicity of suits because that risk was significantly minimized by the contracts binding all the subcontractors to join in the reference (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 346-348) . The court concluded that the provision for judicial reference was not unconscionable (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 346) .

Although unconscionability is a judicially created doctrine, Civ. Code § 1670.5 provides a statutory basis for a court's refusal to enforce a contract it finds to have been unconscionable at the time it was made (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 343-344) . Unconscionability has procedural and substantive aspects. Procedural unconscionability takes into consideration the parties' relative bargaining strength and the extent to which a provision is hidden or unexpected, while the substantive element requires terms that "shock the conscience," or at least may be described as harsh or oppressive.

Both elements must be present, but the more substantively oppressive the contract term, the less evidence of procedural unconscionability is required to conclude that the term is unenforceable, and vice versa. In this case, the reference provision was printed in the same size and font as the rest of the contract and appeared immediately above the signature block for purchasers (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 344) . The court found the provision not to be procedurally unconscionable. No evidence was presented that original purchasers lacked meaningful choice to decline agreeing to the reference or that any attempts to negotiate this provision had been rebuffed. There was no element of surprise. The provision was not buried, but appeared where the purchaser was likely to see it (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345) .

Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , like Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 , discussed in part below, and which is the basis of the form at § 201.44, considered unconscionability in the context of a provision for judicial reference in a form contract drafted by a developer/builder of tract homes, but came to a different conclusion (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 736) . Plaintiffs were buyers of homes from defendant under contracts which required any lawsuit relating to the condition, design, or construction of [any portion of] the purchased home to be submitted to judicial reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641 though 645.1. Significant provisions for the conduct of the reference included the following:

- The referee was to be a retired judge or attorney with substantial experience in real estate matters;
- The parties were entitled to discovery, with the referee to supervise and enforce orders;
- There was to be a stenographic record of the trial, which was to be kept confidential except as necessary for posthearing motions and appeals;
- The referee was to render a statement of decision with findings of fact and conclusions of law;
- The decision could be entered as a judgment, but was also appealable;
- Seller was not required to participate in the judicial reference unless it was satisfied that all necessary and appropriate parties would participate in the proceeding;
- The parties were to share costs and referee's fees equally, unless the referee ordered otherwise; and
- Each party was responsible for their own attorneys' fees.

Defendant moved to compel a reference, representing to the court that all subcontractors on the project were bound by agreements to participate in any reference of disputes related to their work. The trial court denied the motion, agreeing with buyers that the provision for judicial reference was unconscionable and unenforceable, in particular with regard to the provisions for confidentiality, compensation of the referee, the possibility that a mere attorney might be selected as referee; Woodside's unilateral power to decline to participate; and the lack of provision for mediation. Defendant sought review by petition for writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued the writ (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 726) . The court of appeal began its analysis by noting that this was not an arbitration case, and thus Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.7, which allows a purchaser to pursue a court action against a developer for construction and design defects despite having signed an arbitration agreement, was not applicable, nor was Basura v. U.S. Home Corp. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1212, 1214, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328 , which held when the transaction involves interstate commerce, Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.7 is preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act, and the arbitration provision should be enforced (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 726) . Nevertheless, the court noted that binding judicial reference is similar enough to nonjudicial arbitration that a similar approach is justified in evaluating the enforceability of the provision here at issue (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 727) . The court of appeal discussed the basic concept of unconscionability, saying that the term has both a procedural and a substantive element. The former takes into consideration the parties' relative bargaining strength and the extent to which a provision is "hidden" or unexpected, while the substantive element requires terms that "shock the conscience" or at the least may be described as "harsh or oppressive" (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 727) . It has been held that the party who prepared and submitted a contract containing unexpected or harsh terms has the burden of showing that the other party had notice of them, and that the party asserting unconscionability as a defense has the burden of establishing that condition (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 728) .

Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 arose from construction defect litigation regarding seven detached single-family "entry-level" residences built by defendant/petitioner Pardee. Each buyer had signed an "Offer to Purchase and Escrow Instructions" drafted by Pardee which required all agreement-related claims, including construction defects, to be determined by a general reference conducted by a single retired superior court judge appointed pursuant Code Civ. Proc. § 368 et seq. The provision included a waiver of the right to punitive damages. Defendant appeared specially to seek a stay of the proceedings and appointment of a judicial referee under the terms of the agreement. Plaintiffs claimed the agreements, including the provisions for judicial reference, were contracts of adhesion, unconscionable, and against public policy. The trial court denied Pardee's motion, finding that the provision requiring submission to judicial reference was unconscionable, that the waiver of the right to recover punitive damages was contrary to public policy [Civ. Code § 1668], and that the entire agreement was contrary to Code Civ. Proc. § 1298.7, which allows homeowners to sue on construction defect claims notwithstanding the fact that they have agreed to arbitrate those claims. Pardee petitioned for a writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order denying the motion for appointment of a judicial referee.

The court of appeal denied the petition, agreeing that the provisions for judicial reference were unconscionable (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1092-1093) . The court first determined that the entire contract was a contract of adhesion, but said that even if the agreements were deemed not to be adhesive, they were unconscionable at the time they were made (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1087) . The court discussed the elements of unconscionability, noting that unconscionability is a question of law for the court to decide. Unconscionability has both a "procedural" and a "substantive" element, the former focusing on "oppression" or "surprise" due to unequal bargaining power, the later on "overly harsh" or "one-sided" results. The prevailing view is that procedural and substantive unconscionability must both be present in order for a court to refuse to enforce a contract or clause under the doctrine of unconscionability. But they need not be present in the same degree. A sliding scale may be invoked: the more substantively oppressive the contract term(s), the less evidence of procedural unconscionability is required to come to the conclusion that the term is unenforceable, and vice versa (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1088) .

[b] Burdens of Proof

Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , is discussed at [a], above.

[c] Level of Procedural Unconscionability Here Is Low

The facts and procedural background of Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , are discussed at [a], above. The court of appeal chose to focus on the differences between the provision for judicial reference in this case and the one in Pardee (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 728) . Here, unlike Pardee, there was no evidence concerning any buyer's disagreement or attempt to reject the judicial reference provisions. Nor was there any evidence whether the homes here could be characterized as "entry level" or "mid-level" or "upper level," nor any evidence concerning the availability of similarly-priced housing stock in the region (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 729) . Although the contracts in this case were several pages long, and contained a great deal of small print, the buyers were necessarily made aware of the existence of the judicial reference provision because they had to initial that paragraph separately (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 729-730) . While the print of the provisions was small and did not stand out, immediately above the spaces for the buyers' initials was the large, bolded statement: "By initialing below, the parties acknowledge that they have read and understand the foregoing and accept that they are waiving their right to a jury trial." The caption--"JUDICIAL REFERENCE OF DISPUTES"--did not contain the arguably misleading addition present in Pardee: "TRIAL BY JUDGE IN COURT OF COMPETENT JURISDICTION." (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 729) . Here, the most important aspect of the judicial reference, the fact that it does not involve a jury, was clearly and conspicuously set forth. The paragraph also noted that a reference would require fees for the referee, and set out the presumptive method of apportionment. Thus, the contracts here lacked most, if not all, of the procedurally unconscionable factors found to exist in Pardee. Nor was there any evidence of either de facto coercion, lack of choice, or ignorance and unsophistication on the part of the buyers. Even if the court were to assume that buyers could not have eliminated judicial reference provisions, the buyers have shown only a low level of procedural unconscionability because, there was no surprise or misrepresentation. Thus, in order to prevail, buyers would have to establish a high level of substantive unconscionability (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 730) .

The facts and procedural background of Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 , and the portions of the opinion addressing unconscionability in general and procedural unconscionability are discussed at [a], above.

[d] Unilateral Opt-Out Provision Is Not Likely to Be Misused

The facts and procedural background of Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , are discussed at [a], above. In considering substantive unconscionability, the court of appeal again began by noting the differences between the judicial reference provision in Pardee and the one in this case. The provision in this case had no limit on damages and required the parties to share the referee's fees evenly unless the referee determined otherwise. The things that the trial court here was concerned--Woodside's power to "opt out," the lack of any provision for attorneys' fees, the possibility that a non-judge could be selected, the confidentiality of the transcript, and the lack of provisions for mediation, did not trouble the court of appeal (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 730) . The court noted that Woodside had required virtually all of its subcontractors to agree to participate in any judicial reference proceeding and that the provision was designed to ensure that the entire dispute could be resolved in one setting. The court found nothing to indicate how or why Woodside might manipulate this provision to its advantage (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731) . As for the trial court's concern that a mere attorney could be appointed as referee, the court of appeal pointed out that the law governing references accepts such persons as qualified referees [see Code Civ. Proc., §§ 638, 640-641]. Similarly, the court of appeal found speculative, and to a large extent rebutted by Woodside's counsel, the trial court's concern that mediation or settlement conferences would be unavailable (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731) . As for the provision that both sides would bear their own attorneys' fees, this took nothing away from the buyers and was neither harsh nor oppressive (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 731) . The confidentiality provision did trouble the court of appeal to the extent that it might interfere with the public interest in open proceedings. The court found nothing unfair or undesirable about the secrecy provision with respect to the parties themselves (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 732) . In addition, if the secrecy provision was challenged at some point in the proceedings and found to be unenforceable, it could be severed (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 732) .

[e] Attorney's Fee Provision Is Not Unconscionable

The facts and procedural background of Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , are discussed at [a], above. The court's consideration of the attorney's fee provision is discussed at [d], above.

[f] Secrecy Provision May Be Illegal, but May Be Severed

The facts and procedural background of Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , are discussed at [a], above. The court's consideration of the secrecy provision is discussed at [d], above.

[g] No Showing Has Been Made That Referee's Fees Will Impose Undue Burden

The facts and procedural background of Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 , and the portions of the opinion addressing unconscionability in general and procedural unconscionability are discussed at [a], above.

The Greenbriar Homes Communities court also found the provision not to be substantively unconscionable. Its terms were not one-sided and did not limit the amount or type of relief the original purchasers could obtain. The judicial reference provision attempted to ensure that the parties could enforce their rights and avail themselves of an efficient and fair a manner of resolving arguments, consistent with the rules of procedure and evidence that apply to a trial. Real parties challenged the fee-sharing provision as contrary to Ting v. AT&T (9th Cir. 2003) 319 F.3d 1126, 1151 , which found an arbitration fee-sharing provision categorically unreasonable because it imposed on consumers cost greater than they would have borne had they filed a complaint in court. The court of appeal disagreed, noting that California has applied this rule, announced in Armendariz v. Foundation Health Psychcare Services, Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 83, 110-111, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745, 6 P.3d 669 , only if an employee relies on unwaivable statutory rights, and that one appellate court has determined that in consumer arbitration cases, any claim that arbitral fees are unreasonable should be handled on a case-by-case basis, with the consumer having the burden of proof (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345) .

The facts and procedural background of Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , are discussed at [a], above. Turning to the matter of the expense of a reference, the court of appeal noted that the provision for judicial reference in this case called for the even division of the expenses of the judicial reference, with an additional provision authorizing the referee to direct payment at his or her discretion. Still, the expenses for the referee could be substantial. Arguably, compared with the "free" access to the court itself, a contract which imposes on the weaker party the possibility of substantial expense is unconscionable (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 732) . For buyers to show that their agreement is unconscionable, they had to demonstrate at the least that the fees they were likely to pay would be greater than those which would accrue in litigation before the court. Here, the buyers made no such showing, although Woodside's counsel's uncontradicted representation was that it was routine for courts to appoint a nonconsensual special master or referee to handle at least all pretrial matters such as discovery and settlement negotiations. Thus, in even if they were to pursue a trial, buyers could still be potentially responsible for a share of any fees charged by the referee. No attempt was made to establish the likely length of a jury trial, or the additional attorneys' fees, if any, which litigation before the court would be likely to generate (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 733) . Nor did buyers establish that the probable additional expenses of a judicial reference, if any, would be impossible or unreasonably difficult for them to pay or that judicial reference was not economically sound from their point of view (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 733-734) .

[h] Presumption of Benefit From Waiver of Jury Trial

The facts and procedural background of Woodside Homes of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (Folger) (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , are discussed at [a], above. Concerning the buyer's waiver of their rights to jury trial, the court of appeal noted that the waiver here was not obtained by a stealthy device, such as by a provision buried near the end of a long document (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 734) . The court of appeal noted that the Pardee court found no evidence in the record that the buyers had gained anything in return for their waiver, because it was not persuaded that there would be any economies of time or expense. This court of appeal however, took the approach that, based on the public policy favoring alternative dispute resolution, it should assume that economies existed unless proven otherwise. Buyers did get something in addition for their jury waiver, Woodside's matching waiver (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 734) . The court of appeal discussed the possible reasons for the popularity of alternative dispute resolution provisions in contracts drawn by the party most likely to be the defendant if disputes arose (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 734-736) , and concluded by noting that while it did not purport to hold all agreements for judicial reference to be valid and enforceable, the agreements for judicial reference is this case were enforceable (107 Cal. App. 4th 723, 736) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.20-201.39

[Reserved]

§§ 201.20[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.40

§ 201.40 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Court Has No Power to Order General Reference Without Consent of Parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE TO _____ [A or THE] REFEREE TO TRY ANY OR ALL OF THE ISSUES IN THIS CASE, WHETHER OF FACT OR OF LAW, AND TO REPORT A STATEMENT OF DECISION _____ [MAY NOT BE or WAS NOT PROPERLY] ORDERED BECAUSE NOT ALL THE PARTIES TO THIS ACTION [HAVE] CONSENTED TO THE REFERENCE.

A. General Reference Requires Consent of Parties. Except for a controversy arising out of a written contract or lease providing that such controversy shall be heard by a reference, a reference may be ordered to try any or all of the issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision only on the agreement of the parties filed with the clerk or judge, or entered in the minutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a); see Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 562, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441 ; Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722, 269 P.2d 3 ; Settlemire v. Superior Court (Settlemire) (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560).

[Optional] B. Parties Entitled to Trial by Jury in Action at Law. In view of a party's constitutional right to trial by jury secured by Article I, Section 16, of the California Constitution, the court may not, without the consent of all the parties to the action, order a reference in an action at law (Grim v. Norris (1861) 19 Cal. 140, 142 ; Smith v. Pollock (1852) 2 Cal. 92, 94) .

[Optional] C. Contractual Provision for Reference Is Not Enforceable Against Subsequent Purchaser. A provision in a development contract for consensual reference of any disputes arising under the agreement cannot be enforced against a subsequent purchaser of the home built for the original contracting party (Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 343, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371)

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) may be or was properly ordered to try any or all issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision when not all of the parties to the case consented to the reference. Optional Paragraph B should be included when the effect of the reference is or was to deprive a party of his or her constitutional right to trial by jury.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a). For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities submitted in opposition to a motion for a general reference. They may also be combined with the points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for an order vacating an order of reference or, since the referee's finding constitutes a part of the judgment roll [see Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b); § 201.74], a motion to set aside and vacate the judgment entered on the referee's report on the ground entry of the judgment was unauthorized and the judgment is void on its face [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, these points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that not all the parties, including the party he or she represents, consented to the reference. If optional Paragraph B is included, counsel should also show that the action is one in which the parties are entitled to a trial by jury and that a jury trial has been demanded or has not been waived. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms that may be adapted for use in moving to set aside or vacate a judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on the ground entry of judgment on the referee's report was unauthorized and the judgment is void, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders . For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing a motion to set aside a judgment on the ground it is void or a petition for writ of mandate or prohibition, see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief

From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.10.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] General Reference Requires Consent of Parties

The facts and background of Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441 , are discussed in § 201.15[3][a]. In upholding the propriety of a special reference, the Court, citing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a) and 644, said that a general reference is permitted only by the consent of the parties (20 Cal. 3d 560, 562) .

Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 269 P.2d 3 , involved an appeal from a superior court order vacating a prior order that adopted the findings and recommendation of a court commissioner. The case arose out of a proceeding by the mother to modify the provisions of a divorce decree awarding custody of the parties' minor son to the father. The matter had been referred to a court commissioner who, after a hearing, made findings of fact on which he based a recommendation that custody be given to the mother. The trial judge endorsed the report 'So ordered' and by a minute order directed a modification of the decree in accordance with the commissioner's recommendation. The father filed exceptions to the commissioner's findings of fact and the court's subsequent order, together with a motion to set them aside. The court sustained the exceptions and granted the motion, leaving in effect the custody order as set forth in the divorce decree. The mother appealed from the order vacating the first order, contending that the second order was equivalent to an order granting a new trial and was appealable. The father moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground the order was interlocutory and nonappealable.

The Supreme Court pointed out that the statutory provisions governing proceedings before referees and commissioners preserve the traditional distinction between a general reference, that is, a trial before a referee on all the issues of fact or of law, and a special reference, in which the referee considers only a part of the issues. Citing Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a), the Court said that a general reference may be had only with the consent of the parties (42 Cal. 2d 719, 722) . The Court, however, dismissed the appeal on the ground the order was interlocutory because the reference to the commissioner was made pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 259a(2) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b)). The Court said that this statute does not require the consent of the parties and does not contemplate a hearing on the whole issue within the meaning of the statutory provisions relating to a general reference and concluded that the proceeding was equivalent to a special and not a general reference (42 Cal. 2d 719, 723) .

Real party in Settlemire v. Superior Court (Settlemire) (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560 , applied for a domestic violence restraining order against her husband. A commissioner issued a temporary restraining order and set the matter for an order to show cause hearing to determine not just the restraining order, but temporary child custody, visitation, disposition of a community asset, the relinquishment of firearms, and the exclusion of husband from the residence. Husband objected to a commissioner deciding the case and moved to vacate the assignment as well as to disqualify the commissioner. The trial court denied the motion to vacate the assignment, referred it to a different commissioner, and modified the order to state that the matter was referred pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b) for a hearing, and findings on any matter of fact on which information was required by the court. Husband petitioned the court of appeal for writ of mandate, contending that without a stipulation from both parties, the commissioner lacked the authority to preside over the proceeding.

The court of appeal issued the writ, having concluded that the trial court's broad order for reference of a case with multiple factual issues was an improper delegation of judicial duties. The court of appeal directed the trial court to issue an order that specified the factual issues to be resolved (105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673) . Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b) provides in part that subject to the supervision of the court, every court commissioner has the power to take proof and make and report findings thereon as to any matter of fact on which information is required by the court. Any party to any contested proceeding may except to the commissioner's report. The court of appeal listed many duties of commissioners that do not require the consent or stipulation of the parties (105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 672-673) . As to references, there are two kinds: general and special. In a general reference hearing, the referee, with the consent of the parties, hears and decides the entire controversy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638]. A trial court's nonconsensual general reference constitutes an unconstitutional abdication of judicial authority (105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673) .

[b] Parties Entitled to Trial by Jury in Action at Law

Cal. Const., art. I, § 16, provides in part that trial by jury is an inviolate right and shall be secured to all and that in a civil cause a jury may be waived by the consent of the parties expressed as prescribed by statute. The applicable statute is Code Civ. Proc. § 631.

Grim v. Norris (1861) 19 Cal. 140 , was an action on common counts for work and labor performed (quantum meruit) and money paid (indebitatus assumpsit). Without the consent of the parties and over the objection of the defendant, the court referred the case to a referee for trial on the ground that trial of the case required examination of a long account (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)). On the report of the referee, a judgment was entered for plaintiff and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court pointed out that the constitution secures the right of trial by jury to all and provides that the right shall remain inviolate forever (now Cal. Const., art. I, § 16). The Court said that, if the statute (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)) could be construed to have authorized the reference, the right to trial by jury could be entirely swept away by legislative enactment. The Court explained that the framers of the constitution regarded the right to a jury trial as too sacred and valuable to be intrusted to the guardianship of the Legislature, and that the constitutional provision was intended as a restriction on legislative authority. The Court held that the constitutional provision did not, however, extend to equity causes and was limited in its operation to those cases in which the right of trial by jury previously existed. The Court would not presume an intentional violation of the constitution by the Legislature in enacting the statute and that, by construing the statute as applying solely to proceedings in equity, it would avoid even a seeming conflict between the two instruments (19 Cal. 140, 142). The Court had no doubt that this construction was in accordance with the legislative intent, but that, whether it was or wasn't, it was certain that no other effect could be given to the statute (19 Cal. 140, 142-143).

Smith v. Pollock (1852) 2 Cal. 92 , was an action on a common count for services rendered in which the trial court referred the case to a referee for trial on the ground the trial would involve the examination of a long account. Defendant's counsel did not object to the reference and, on his suggestion, a provision was added to the order requiring plaintiffs to serve defendant with a copy of the account sued on. Three days later, defendant moved that the order of reference be set aside and insisted on a jury trial. The motion was denied, and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court pointed out that the California Constitution (now Cal. Const., art. I, § 16) provides that the right to trial by jury shall be secured to all and remain inviolate forever, but that a jury may be waived in civil causes in the manner provided by law. The Court further pointed out that in the statute relating to references the Legislature had authorized a waiver of the right to jury trial by providing that a reference could be ordered on the agreement of the parties filed with the court or entered in the minutes (now Code Civ. Proc. § 638). The Court said: (1) the language of the constitution was explicit; (2) the mere silence of an attorney could not amount to a waiver of a constitutional right; (3) the act concerning references required the consent of the parties to be in writing or entered on the minutes; (4) the waiver must appear affirmatively and not by implication; and (5) defendant was not concluded by the act of his counsel because the statute concerning attorneys (now Code Civ. Proc. § 283(1)) gives an attorney power to bind his principal only by an agreement in writing, filed with the clerk or entered on the minutes of the court, and that no such agreement appeared in the record of the case (2 Cal. 92, 94) . The Court concluded that the effect of the order of reference was to deprive defendant of a constitutional right, that any waiver of the right must appear in the manner prescribed by law, that no such waiver appeared directly from the record, and that the Court could not infer it from the silence of defendant's counsel when the order of reference was made (2 Cal. 92, 94) .

[c] Contractual Provision for Reference Is Not Enforceable Against Subsequent Purchaser

The facts and procedural background of Greenbriar Homes Communities, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371 , and the portion of the opinion dealing with the alleged unconscionability of the provision for judicial reference are discussed at § 201.19[3][a] and [g]. The court of appeal agreed with the trial court regarding the claims of subsequent purchasers, holding that, because they had never consented to judicial reference, they could not be forced to participate in a general reference (117 Cal. App. 4th 337, 343) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] General Reference Requires Consent of Parties

In In re M. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 727, 122 Cal. Rptr. 574, 537 P.2d 406 , the Supreme Court, in seeking guidance from the roles of other types of referees in order to determine the constitutional limitations placed on judicial acts by juvenile court referees, pointed out that statutes governing references (Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a), 644(a)) permit a general reference of all the factual and legal issues of a civil case for binding determination by a referee only if the reference is consented to by the parties (14 Cal. 3d 727, 734) .

Jovine v. FHP, Inc. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322 , was a wrongful termination action in which a special discovery referee was appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5). However, that referee proceeded to hear and determine three motions for summary judgment, which disposed of plaintiff's case. Despite objections, the trial court adopted the referee's orders on the motions and entered judgment thereon. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Plaintiff's participation in the motions was no substitute for consent required by Code Civ. Proc. § 638. There was no written consent and no oral consent on the record. Nor did plaintiff's actions amount to waiver or estoppel of the right to have referee's determinations voided. To ratify a general reference on the basis of waiver or estoppel would undermine important public policies: (1) the constitutional prohibition on improper delegation of judicial power and (2) the principle that the courts are open to litigants and the cost of operating them is borne as a public expense because they are an integral and essential part of our democratic form of government (64 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 1509, 1523, 1526-1531) .

Additional cases stating or holding that a general reference may be had only on the consent of the parties include: Barker Bros. Inc. v. Coates (1931) 211 Cal. 756, 758, 297 P. 8 ; Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 599, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530 ; Estate of Bassi (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 529, 536, 44 Cal. Rptr. 541 ; Weinfeld v. Weinfeld (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 324 P.2d 342 .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.41

§ 201.41 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Court Has No Power to Order Special Reference Not Authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 639 Without Consent of Parties

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE IN THIS CASE _____ [MAY NOT BE or WAS NOT] PROPERLY GRANTED BECAUSE THE COURT HAS NO POWER TO ORDER A REFERENCE FOR ANY PURPOSE NOT AUTHORIZED BY SECTION 639 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF THE PARTIES.

A. Special Reference Not Authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 639 Is Improper Without Consent of Parties. A special reference without the consent of the parties for a purpose not authorized by Section 639 of the Code of Civil Procedure is improper (In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 150, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 599, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530).

[Optional] B. Limitation on Scope of Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1). The court has no power under Section § 639(a)(1) of the Code of Civil Procedure, authorizing a reference when trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account on either side, to order a reference without the consent of the parties for the trial of any issue of fact other than that involved in the examination of a long account (Williams v. Benton (1864) 24 Cal. 1451, 424, 425) .

[Optional] C. Specificity Required for Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3). A special reference is limited to specific fact determinations. A court may appoint a referee without the consent of the parties under Section 639(a)(3) of the Code of Civil Procedure when a question of fact, other than on the pleadings, arises on motion or otherwise, in any stage of the action. However, unless the trial court's order of reference specifies the factual issues it wishes the referee to resolve, a special reference of all issues [in a contested divorce action] is not permitted by [either] Section 639(a)(3) [or 259] of the Code of Civil Procedure (Settlemire v. Superior Court (Settlemire) (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673-676, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a special reference may be or was properly ordered without the consent of the parties. Optional Paragraph B should be included if the reference will be or was made under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) and the referee will be or was directed to find on issues other than those involved in the examination of a long account. Optional Paragraph C is for use if the reference will be or was made under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3) and the order of reference will not or does not specify the factual issues to be resolved. The bracketed language in Optional Paragraph C is for use if the special reference will be or has been made to a commissioner in a dissolution action law matter, purportedly under the authority of Code Civ. Proc. § 259.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference without the consent of the parties. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities submitted in opposition to a motion for a reference for a purpose not authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 639, or in opposition to a motion for a reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) to try a fact issue other than one involved in the examination of a long account. Alternatively, when an objection to the reference was timely made, they might be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order confirming and adopting the referee's report [see § 201.70] or in support of a motion to set aside and vacate the judgment entered on the referee's report on the ground entry of the judgment was unauthorized and the judgment is void [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)]. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, these points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that not all the parties or none of them has consented to the reference and that the reference is not authorized by any provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 639.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms that may be adapted for use in moving to set aside or vacate a judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) on the ground entry of judgment on the referee's report was unauthorized and the judgment is void, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders . For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing a motion to set aside and vacate a void judgment on various grounds or a petition for writ of mandate or prohibition, see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders , and Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 201.12 -201.16 or those in § 201.70.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Special Reference Not Authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 639 Is Improper Without Consent of Parties

In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659 , was a contested dissolution of marriage proceeding set before a commissioner. Prior to commencement of the trial, the parties were requested to stipulate that the matter could be heard and determined by the commissioner sitting as a temporary judge. Counsel for the wife refused to stipulate. The commissioner then transferred the matter to a judge of the court, who, over the wife's objection, assigned the same commissioner to hear evidence and make findings of fact and recommendations as to the disposition of the matter in his capacity as a referee. The commissioner proceeded to hear the evidence of the parties and subsequently issued findings of fact (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) and recommendations in the matter. The wife petitioned the judge who had made the reference for a reconsideration of the referee's recommendations and a trial before the judge on the issues of spousal support, child support, and attorney's fees. The petition was denied without a hearing. An interlocutory judgment (now judgment) of dissolution was subsequently granted by the judge that incorporated the findings and recommendations of the referee. The wife appealed.

The court of appeal remanded the case to the trial court with instructions to vacate the interlocutory judgment and the order of reference. The court said that when a party does not consent to a reference the authority of the court to make the reference on its own motion is defined and limited by Code Civ. Proc. § 639 (149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 150) . The court enumerated the matters listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 639 which may be referred, and, quoting from Williams v. Benton (1864) 24 Cal. 424, 425-426 (discussed at [b], below), said that the character of the issue which may be referred is particularly described in the section, and, by necessary implication, all issues not answering to that description are excluded from the operation of the section (149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 150-151) . The court of appeal concluded that the matter referred--a full-fledged contested dissolution proceeding--failed to qualify under any of the categories listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 639 (149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 152) .

The facts and procedural background of Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530 , are discussed at § 201.18[3][a]. As pointed out there, the case involved an order appointing a referee to hear and determine issues presented by a discovery motion and future discovery motions in a case pending in the trial court. The court of appeal issued a writ directing the trial court to vacate the order. The appellate court held: (1) the authority of the trial court to make a reference is defined and limited by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638 (reference with consent of parties) and 639 (reference without consent of parties); (2) since the reference was made without the consent of the parties it was a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639; and (3) Code Civ. Proc. § 639 did not authorize a reference for such purpose (112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 598-599) . In reaching its conclusion, the court said that in Williams v. Benton (1864) 24 Cal. 424, 425-426 (discussed at [b], below), the Supreme Court construed the corresponding substantially identical provisions of §§ 182 and 183 of the former Practice Act and held that a reference made without the consent of both parties in a suit to dissolve a partnership and settle the partnership account which empowered the referee to "try all the issues and report a finding and judgment thereon" was beyond the power of the court. The appellate court noted that in Williams there were issues other than the condition of the partnership accounts (e.g., what the respective partners' shares were). Quoting Williams, the court of appeal said that the power of the court to compel a reference is derived from § 183 of the former Practice Act [now Code Civ. Proc. § 639], can be exercised only as therein provided, that the character of the issue which may be referred is particularly described, and that by necessary implication all issues not answering to that description are excluded from the operation of the section (112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 599) .

Note that Code Civ. Proc. § 639 was amended in 1981 to allow references in the situation involved in Bird [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5); In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 154 n.5, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; see also § 201.16].

[b] Limitation on Scope of Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)

Williams v. Benton (1864) 24 Cal. 424 , was an action to dissolve a partnership and for an accounting. When the case was called for trial, plaintiff moved for the appointment of a referee to try all the issues and report a finding and judgment thereon. The motion was opposed by defendant but granted by the trial court and the matter was referred. The referee reported a judgment in favor of plaintiff and the court ordered a judgment in accordance with the report. Defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed on the ground the trial court had no power without the consent of the parties to refer issues other than those involved in the examination of a long account to the referee or to direct the referee to report a judgment (24 Cal. 424, 426) . The Court said that under § 83 of the former Practice Act [now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)] when the trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account on either side, a reference without the consent of the parties may be ordered, but that if there are other issues in the case not involving the examination of a long account, the court has no compulsory power to send them to a referee for trial (24 Cal. 424, 425) . The Court held that it was not the intention of the Legislature to confer compulsory power on the court over the question of reference beyond such issues as involve the examination of a long account. Even in this situation, under the Constitution, the statute could not apply to cases in which the parties have a constitutional right to a trial by jury, although the Court pointed out the right to a jury trial did not apply in the case before it (24 Cal. 424, 426) .

[c] Specificity Required for Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(3)

The facts and procedural background of Settlemire v. Superior Court (Settlemire) (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 560 , and the portion of the opinion addressing general references, is discussed at § 201.40[3][a]. The court of appeal issued a writ of mandate after concluding that the trial court's broad order for nonconsensual reference of a case with multiple factual issues was an improper delegation of judicial duties. The court of appeal directed the trial court to issue an order that specified the factual issues to be resolved (105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673) . The court noted that a special reference is limited to specific fact determinations. A court may appoint a referee without the consent of the parties when a question of fact, other than on the pleadings, arises on motion or otherwise, in any stage of the action [see Code Civ. Proc § 639(a)(3)]. The findings and recommendations made by a commissioner at a special reference hearing are advisory and not binding (105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 673) . Code Civ. Proc. § 259(e) provides in part that in family law matters, a commissioner is authorized to hear and report findings and conclusions to the court for approval, rejection, or change in all preliminary matters. In a typical order for reference, the trial court informs the hearing officer of the specific facts it wishes to be resolved (105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 674-675) . Reference of all issues in a contested divorce action is not permitted by either Code Civ. Proc. § 639 or Code Civ. Proc. § 259 (105 Cal. App. 4th 666, 676) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.42

§ 201.42 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Reference to Take Account [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1), (2)] Is Discretionary With Court and Denied When Unnecessary

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] MOTION FOR A REFERENCE TO TAKE AN ACCOUNT IS ADDRESSED TO THE DISCRETION OF THE TRIAL COURT AND _____ [SHOULD BE or WAS PROPERLY] DENIED BECAUSE A REFERENCE _____ [IS or WAS] UNNECESSARY.

A. Reference Is Discretionary With Court. A motion for a reference to take an account is addressed to the sound discretion of the court (Mashon v. Haddock (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 168-169, 11 Cal. Rptr. 865 ; Walsh v. Jack Rubin & Sons, Inc. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 655, 6 Cal. Rptr. 346 ; Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426, 99 P.2d 578).

[Optional] B. Trial Court Has Discretion to State Account Itself. A reference will not be ordered when the court, for any reason it deems it proper to do so, can, after examination of the testimony, state the account itself (Walsh v. Jack Rubin & Sons, Inc. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 655, 6 Cal. Rptr. 346 ; Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426, 99 P.2d 578).

[Optional] C. Transaction Short and Not Complex. A reference to take an account will not be ordered when the transaction to be considered is short and not complex (Walsh v. Jack Rubin & Sons, Inc. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 655, 6 Cal. Rptr. 346 ; Puim v. Callahan (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 70, 77, 286 P.2d 526 ; Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426, 99 P.2d 578).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a reference to take an account may be or was properly ordered when the reference is or was unnecessary. Optional Paragraph B should be included when the court can or was able to state the account itself on the basis of testimony or evidence already introduced. Optional Paragraph C should be included if the account is or was short and not complex.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference to take an account. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities submitted in opposition to a motion for a reference to take an account [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1), (2)]. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that a reference to take an account is or was unnecessary.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 201.12 and 201.13.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Is Discretionary With Court

Mashon v. Haddock (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 11 Cal. Rptr. 865 , involved consolidated actions by the personal representatives of deceased limited partners against the general partners (1) to determine the interests of the limited partners in a dissolved limited partnership and in joint venture corporations, (2) for an accounting, and (3) for other relief. Defendants' motion for a reference under former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(2) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2)), authorizing a reference when the taking of an account is necessary for the information of the court, was denied. The trial judge was of the opinion that all the evidence necessary for decision of the case was already in the record (190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 168) . Judgment was rendered for plaintiffs. Defendants appealed, contending, inter alia, that the denial of their motion for a reference was an abuse of discretion.

The court of appeal, in modifying the judgment to delete certain interest awarded and affirming it as modified, pointed out that the actions presented a most difficult and complex accounting, that it was and is a veritable accountant's nightmare, and that the trial judge had to make the best accounting he could (190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 163) . Despite the complexity involved, the appellate court concurred in the opinion of the trial court that all the evidence necessary for decision of the case was already in the record and held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion for a reference (190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 168) . A motion for a reference is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, and will not be disturbed on appeal unless there is an abuse of discretion (190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 169) .

Walsh v. Jack Rubin & Sons, Inc. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 6 Cal. Rptr. 346 , was an action by an employee against his former employer for an accounting and other relief. The employment contract provided that plaintiff was to receive commissions of 71/2 percent based on the gross profits of the business as his compensation. The term "gross profits" was defined in the contract. At the trial, the written contract, the purported commission statements, and defendant's ledger containing the record of sales, expenses, and all the accounts pertaining to the venture were introduced in evidence. Defendant then requested the trial court to order an accounting, and the trial court declined to do so. The trial court concluded that ordering an accounting was unnecessary, since it was able to determine from the records and evidence introduced that plaintiff was entitled to a specified sum, and it rendered judgment for plaintiff in that amount. Defendant appealed, contending that the trial court erred in not ordering an accounting and in proceeding to decide the case itself.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court said that it was solely within the discretion of the trial court to determine whether a reference for an accounting was necessary, that there was no error in refusing to grant appellant's request for a reference, and that the trial court may well have concluded from the evidence in the case that a reference to an accountant would not help it in correctly determining the issues involved (182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 654-655) . The court then quoted the statements from Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426, 99 P.2d 578 , discussed below (182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 655) .

Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 99 P.2d 578 , was an action to recover commissions due under a written contract and for an accounting. Judgment was for plaintiff and defendants appealed, contending, among other things, that the trial court erred in not referring the accounting problem to a qualified accountant.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court said that although Code Civ. Proc. § 639 authorizes the trial court in certain cases to appoint a referee for the taking of an accounting there is nothing in that section, or in any decision of our appellate courts, which makes it mandatory for the court to do so. The court added that inasmuch as references are ordered merely as an aid and assistance to the court, a reference is not necessary and may be dispensed with in any case when the court can get along well enough without it, and that ordering a reference is therefore a matter of discretion. Concluding that it was entirely within the discretion of the trial court to determine whether it was necessary to refer the accounting to an accountant, the court of appeal held that there was no error in the trial court's refusal to grant defendant's request for a reference (37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426) .

[b] Trial Court Has Discretion to State Account Itself

The facts and procedural background of Walsh v. Jack Rubin & Sons, Inc. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 6 Cal. Rptr. 346 , are discussed at [a], above. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the court of appeal quoted the statements from Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426, 99 P.2d 578 , discussed below.

The facts and background of Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 99 P.2d 578 , are discussed at [a], above. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the court of appeal said that it is ordinarily within the discretion of the court to state the account itself after an examination of the testimony, and that questions fit for reference will be determined by the court itself without a reference whenever it can conveniently do so, to the saving of time and expense (37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426) .

[c] Transaction Short and Not Complex

The facts and procedural background of Walsh v. Jack Rubin & Sons, Inc. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 6 Cal. Rptr. 346 , are discussed at [a], above. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the court of appeal quoted the statements from Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426, 99 P.2d 578 , discussed at [a], above (182 Cal. App. 2d 652, 655) .

Puim v. Callahan (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 70, 286 P.2d 526 , was an action for an accounting by an inventor against a partnership and its individual partners. The partnership was licensed under an exclusive license agreement with plaintiff to manufacture and sell plaintiff's specified patented devices in consideration of the payments to plaintiff of four percent of the net sales. The trial court found for defendants, expressly finding that defendants had accounted to plaintiff for all moneys due under the licensing agreement, and rendered judgment for defendants. Plaintiff appealed, contending, among other things, that the matter should have been referred to a referee.

The court of appeal affirmed. Citing Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426, 99 P.2d 578 (discussed at [a], above), the court said that references are ordered merely as an aid and assistance to the court, that in a case when the court can get along well enough without it a reference may be dispensed with, and that when the transaction under consideration is not complex, the court itself may make the accounting after an examination of the testimony (135 Cal. App. 2d 70, 77) .

The facts and procedural background of Berkowitz v. Kiener Co. (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 99 P.2d 578 , are discussed at [a], above. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the court of appeal said that a reference will not be ordered, even in a matter of account, when the transaction to be considered is short and in no respect complex (37 Cal. App. 2d 419, 426) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Reference Is Discretionary With Court

The facts and procedural background of Puim v. Callahan (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 70, 286 P.2d 526 , are discussed at [3][c], above. In affirming judgment for defendants, the court of appeal said that the granting or refusal of a motion for a reference is addressed to the sound discretion of the court, and the ruling will not be disturbed on appeal unless there is a showing of abuse of discretion (135 Cal. App. 2d 70, 76-77) .

[b] Trial Court Has Discretion to State Account Itself

In Chazan v. Most (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 519, 25 Cal. Rptr. 864 , which arose out of an action by one partner of a dissolved partnership against the other for an accounting and a cross action by defendant partner against plaintiff and an employee of the former partnership for damages for unfair competition in which the former employee filed a counterclaim (now cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.80]) against defendant for money due for services rendered the partnership, the court of appeal modified the judgment for plaintiff and the former employee for the net amounts found due them to correct an error in computation and affirmed the judgment as modified. Rejecting defendant's contention that reversal was required because the trial judge determined the profits of the partnership without appointing a referee to take the account, the court of appeal said there was no requirement that the trial court make a reference in an action for an accounting (209 Cal. App. 2d 519, 521) .

Stoll v. Selander (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 286, 183 P.2d 935 , arose out of a derivative action by a stockholder against the corporation and its president for an accounting and to quiet title to real and personal property. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment ordering defendant president to render an accounting to the corporation and then to deliver to and pay the corporation all assets and money found to belong to it, and declaring the corporation the absolute owner of the real property. The court of appeal stated that the practice in accounting suits is for the court to determine first whether an accounting is due and then either take the account or make a reference for that purpose. If a reference is required, an interlocutory judgment is usually entered, followed by a final judgment determining the amount of the recovery. Although the issues in the case had only been partly tried, the court said it could not reverse the judgment with directions that an accounting be had and judgment be entered in accordance with it, as should have been done instead of merely ordering defendant to account, because plaintiff had not appealed, but cautioned that its affirmance was not to be deemed an approval of the procedure (81 Cal. App. 2d 286, 294) . With respect to the court's statement that when a reference is made an interlocutory judgment is entered, it should be noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 639 imposes no such requirement [see § 201.17].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.43

§ 201.43 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Dissolution of Marriage Proceeding Is Not Special Proceeding Within Meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE IN THIS CASE WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF THE PARTIES _____ [MAY NOT BE or WAS NOT PROPERLY] GRANTED UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 639(a)(4) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE BECAUSE A DISSOLUTION OF MARRIAGE PROCEEDING IS NOT A SPECIAL PROCEEDING WITHIN THE MEANING OF THIS STATUTE.

Classification of Dissolution of Marriage. A dissolution of marriage proceeding is a civil action and not a special proceeding within the meaning of Section 639(a)(4) of the Code of Civil Procedure (In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 151-154, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4) (reference when necessary for information of court in special proceeding) may be or was properly ordered without the consent of the parties in a dissolution of marriage proceeding.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a reference without the consent of the parties. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in opposition to a motion for a reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4). The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the proceeding is in fact a dissolution of marriage proceeding and, hence, the reference is not authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4) or under any other provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 639.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in proceedings in mandate or prohibition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.15.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Classification of Dissolution of Marriage

The facts and procedural background of In re Marriage of Galis (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 196 Cal. Rptr. 659 , are discussed at § 201.41[3][a]. Although the court of appeal noted that a divorce action historically was neither an action law nor a suit in equity, and hence, could qualify as a special proceeding, it traced the constitutional and statutory background of divorce and concluded that a dissolution of marriage proceeding was an action and not a special proceeding within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4) (149 Cal. App. 3d 147, 151-154) .

It should be noted that in reaching its conclusion the court relied heavily on former constitutional provisions and pre-1970 cases decided when it was clear that divorce was treated as a civil action. However, the opinion fails to discuss the power of the Legislature to modify what historically has been treated as a civil action in which there was no right to a jury trial so as to convert it to a special proceeding. The Legislature appears to have done this in 1969 by its repeal of the statutes governing divorce actions and its adoption of "no-fault divorce." This legislative intent seems manifest in the Family Law Act (former Civ. Code §§ 4000-5183; now see Family Code) by its classification of the matter as a "proceeding" and not as an "action," and by its providing for a "hearing" and not a "trial" [see former Civ. Code §§ 4503, 4508; now see Fam. Code §§ 200, 2333, 2334]. Additionally, dissolution of marriage is commenced not by a complaint as was an action for divorce, but by a petition [Civ. Code § 4503], which is the pleading normally used to commence a special proceeding of a civil nature (e.g., petition for change of name [Code Civ. Proc. § 1276], petition for adoption [Fam. Code §§ 8714, 8802], petition for writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]). Under the holding in Galis, above, it appears a family law proceeding is now the only "civil action" commenced by the filing of a petition. Nevertheless, the result in Galis may be upheld on the theory that the order of reference was in effect an attempt by the trial judge to make a general reference of the entire case over the objection of a party. The trial court did not purport to act under the authority of Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4) by directing the referee to report facts "necessary for the information of the court," but directed the commissioner to hear the evidence and make findings of fact and recommendations as to the disposition of the matter in his capacity as a referee. That is, the court wanted the matter adjudicated by the referee, and such a reference is not authorized by any provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 639 and, without the consent of the parties, is not authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 638.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.44

§ 201.44 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Contract Provision Requiring Reference Is Unconscionable [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE TO _____ [A or THE] REFEREE TO TRY ANY OR ALL OF THE ISSUES IN THIS CASE, WHETHER OF FACT OR OF LAW, AND TO REPORT A STATEMENT OF DECISION THEREON _____ [MAY NOT BE or WAS NOT] PROPERLY ORDERED BECAUSE THE CONTRACT PROVISION REQUIRING A JUDICIAL REFERENCE IS UNCONSCIONABLE AND SHOULD NOT BE ENFORCED.

A. Criteria of Unconscionability. [See § 201.19[1], Paragraph A].

B. Burdens of Proof. [See § 201.19[1], Paragraph B.]

C. Elements of Procedural Unconscionability. Procedural unconscionability concerns the manner in which the contract was negotiated and the circumstances of the parties at that time. Procedural unconscionability focuses on factors of oppression and surprise. The oppression component arises from an inequality of bargaining power of the partes to the contract and an absence of real negotiation or real choice on the part of the weaker party. The surprise component relates to the terms to which the party supposedly agreed being hidden in a prolix printed form drafted by the party seeking to enforce those terms (Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1088-1089, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288).

D. Elements of Substantive Unconscionability. Substantive unconscionability focuses on the actual terms of the agreement and traditionally involves contract terms that are so one-sided as to "shock the conscience" or that impose harsh or oppressive terms. Oppression is present when an agreement includes terms serving to limit the obligations or liability of the stronger party (Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1090-1091, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) may be or was properly ordered to try any or all issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision thereon when the contract provision requiring judicial reference is so unfair as to be unconscionable; that is one when the weaker party had no real opportunity to negotiate and the reference provision allocates the risks, rights, or remedies in a manner so unfair as to "shock the conscience."

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a). For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities submitted in opposition to a motion for a general reference. They may also be combined with the points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for an order vacating an order of reference. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief. In addition, these points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, the argument should quote or refer to the provision at issue and the circumstances under which it was negotiated and explain each instance of unequal or unfair bargaining power and allocation of risk. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing enforcement of arbitration provisions on the ground that they are unconscionable, see Ch. 20, Arbitration: Compelling , and Ch. 20A, Arbitration: Resisting .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting enforcement of a provision for judicial reference on the ground that it is not unconscionable, see § 201.19.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Elements of Procedural Unconscionability

The facts and procedural background of Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App.

4th 1081, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 , and the portion of the opinion addressing the general criteria for unconscionability, are discussed at § 201.19[3][a]. The court of appeal continued, noting that procedural unconscionability concerns the manner in which the contract was negotiated and the circumstances of the parties at that time (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1088) . Procedural unconscionability focuses on factors of oppression and surprise. The oppression component arises from an inequality of bargaining power of the partes to the contract and an absence of real negotiation or real choice on the part of the weaker party. The surprise component relates to the terms to which the party supposedly agreed being hidden in a prolix printed form drafted by the party seeking to enforce those terms. With respect to the oppression component of unconscionability, the court noted that the parties had unequal bargaining power. As purchasers of entry-level homes, plaintiffs had far less economic power than Pardee. None of the several hundred buyers in the development struck out the judicial reference provision contained in the purchase agreement; there was no real negotiation about removal of that provision (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1089) . With regard to the surprise component of procedural unconscionability, the judicial reference provision, including the waiver of jury trial, was buried in a form contract, and was physically difficult to read as printed in dense single-spaced capital letters (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1089-1090) . A significant element of the surprise component was the absence of any mention of referee's fees or responsibility for their payment, which left open the potential that buyers might be liable, in part for those fees, which counsel indicated at oral argument were $200 to $300 per hour. Those three factor (lack of bargaining about the reference provision, the fact that the provision was difficult to read, and the fact there was no mention the economically significant issue of liability for referee's fees) rendered the reference provision procedurally unconscionable (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1090) .

[b] Elements of Substantive Unconscionability

The facts and procedural background of Pardee Construction Co. v. Superior Court (Rodriguez) (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288 , and the portion of the opinion addressing the general criteria for unconscionability, are discussed at § 201.19[3][a]. Addressing the issue of substantive unconscionability, the court of appeal noted that substantive unconscionability focuses on the actual terms of the agreement and traditionally involves contract terms that are so one-sided as to "shock the conscience" or that impose harsh or oppressive terms (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1090) . Oppression is present when an agreement includes terms serving to limit the obligations or liability of the stronger party. Waiver of the right to recover punitive damages, although potentially severable from the remainder of the reference provision, was substantively unconscionable because in practical reality, it was only for Pardee's benefit. Before upholding a provision waiving the right to a jury trial, the court said it must scrutinize the impact of that waiver. Sometimes waiver of the right to a jury trial can have advantages of speed or economy; however, nothing in this case suggested either. Although there was evidence that significant portions of construction defect cases were commonly sent to judicial reference, there was no evidence that any time-saving would result from referring the entire matter to a judicial referee (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1091-1092) . The court concluded that as the reference provision gave buyers nothing in return for waiving their right to a jury trial, it was so one-sided as to be substantively unconscionable (100 Cal. App. 4th 1081, 1092) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.45

§ 201.45 Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Contract Provision Would Result in Inconsistent Rulings or Parallel Forums

[1] FORM Opposing Contention That Reference May Be or Was Properly Ordered--Contract Provision Would Result in Inconsistent Rulings or Parallel Forums

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [AN or THE] ORDER OF REFERENCE TO _____ [A or THE] REFEREE TO TRY ANY OR ALL OF THE ISSUES IN THIS CASE, WHETHER OF FACT OR OF LAW, AND TO REPORT A STATEMENT OF DECISION THEREON _____ [MAY NOT BE or WAS NOT] PROPERLY ORDERED BECAUSE ORDERING REFERENCE UNDER THE CONTRACT WOULD RESULT IN _____ [INCONSISTENT RULINGS or PARALLEL FORUMS].

A. Discretion of Trial Court. By its plain terms, Code Civ. Proc. § 638 vests the trial court with discretion when the court is asked by a party to appoint a referee pursuant to a predispute reference agreement (Tarrant Bell Prop., LLC v. Superior Court (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1293, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 235).

B. Inconsistent Rulings. The court may deny reference where the action involves sending some of the parties to a referee while others remain in the superior court, and using a referee would risk inconsistent rulings on common issues of law or fact and would require the parties to conduct the same discovery, litigate and ultimately try the same issues in separate but parallel forums (Tarrant Bell Prop., LLC v. Superior Court (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1294-1295, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 235).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) may be or was properly ordered to try any or all issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision thereon when the ordering of reference under the contract provision would result in inconsistent rulings or parallel forums.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a). For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities submitted in opposition to a motion for a general reference. They may also be combined with the points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for an order vacating an order of reference. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief. In addition, these points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to vacate its order of reference or in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from enforcing its order.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, the argument should point to the multitudinous litigation occurring simultaneously with no certainty of consistent results or in various parallel judicial, arbitral, and/or quasi-judicial forums. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, arbitration proceedings, and administrative dockets or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Discretion of Trial Court

Tarrant Bell Property, LLC v. Superior Court (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 235, affirmed a trial court's denial of a motion to appoint a referee under a pre-dispute reference agreement between the parties. The court of appeals held that the "may" in the statute authorizing appointment of referees pursuant to a reference agreement make the appointment discretionary, not mandatory (179 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1290). By its plain terms, Code Civ. Proc. § 638 vests the trial court with discretion when the court is asked by a party to appoint a referee pursuant to a predispute reference agreement. Amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 allow enforcement of predispute agreements as a means to ease court congestion, and courts were effectively given discretion to refuse enforcement of such agreements where the case would more efficiently be handled in the superior court (179 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1293) . In doing so, the trial court may consider the risk of inconsistent rulings on a common issue of law or fact, the duplication of efforts, increased costs, potential delays in resolution, and any unmitigated burden on the superior court (179 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1293) . The portion of the opinion concerning risk of inconsistent rulings is discussed in [b], below.

[b] Inconsistent Rulings

Tarrant Bell Property, LLC v. Superior Court (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 235, affirmed a trial court's denial of a motion to appoint a referee under a pre-dispute reference agreement between the parties. The trial court found that sending some of the plaintiff-residents to a referee while others remained in the superior court risked inconsistent rulings on common issues of law or fact and would require the parties "to conduct the same discovery, litigate and ultimately try the same issues in separate but parallel forums," resulting in "duplication of effort, increased costs, and potentially, delays in resolution." The court rejected defendants' argument that there was a lack of commonality, and thus no risk of inconsistent rulings, because each resident's damages were unique. The court rightly noted that common issues do exist, including the primary issue of liability for the alleged failure to maintain the premises by, for example, failing to provide adequate sewage, water, and electrical services to all residents. The court also rejected defendants' argument that reference would reduce, not increase costs, by reducing the number of plaintiff witnesses appearing in the superior court. Thus, the trial court's finding of high risk of inconsistent rulings was supported by the evidence (179 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1294-1295). The portion of the opinion concerning discretion of the trial court to order reference is discussed in [a] above.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
A. Grounds for Reference

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.46-201.49

[Reserved]

§§ 201.46[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.50

§ 201.50 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Lacks Qualifications to Be Juror [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(a), 642]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE LACKS THE STATUTORY QUALIFICATIONS OF A JUROR IN THAT HE/SHE _____ [specify, e.g., HAS BEEN CONVICTED OF A FELONY].

A. Person Lacks Qualifications of Juror. A party may object to the appointment of any person as a referee on the ground that he or she lacks any of the qualifications prescribed by statute to render a person competent as a juror[, except a requirement of residence within a particular county in the state] (Code Civ. Proc. § 641(a)).

B. Persons Unqualified to Act as Jurors. All persons are eligible and qualified to be prospective trial jurors, except the following: (1) persons who are not citizens of the United States; (2) persons who are less than 18 years of age; (3) persons who are not domiciliaries of California as determined pursuant to Sections 200-217 of the Elections Code; (4) persons who are not residents of the jurisdiction in which they are summoned to serve; (5) persons who have been convicted of malfeasance in office or a felony, and whose civil rights have not been restored; (6) persons who are not possessed of sufficient knowledge of the English language, provided that no person shall be deemed incompetent solely because of the loss of sight or hearing in any degree or other disability that impedes the person's ability to communicate or that impairs or interferes with the person's mobility; (7) persons who are serving as grand or trial jurors in any California court; (8) persons who are the subject of conservatorship (Code Civ. Proc. § 203(a)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the contention that a person appointed or to be appointed referee in a case is disqualified to act as such because he or she is unqualified to serve as a juror [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641(a)]. For additional grounds of disqualification that may be combined with or used in lieu of the points and authorities at [1], above,, see §§ 201.51 -201.56. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting an objection to the appointment of a person as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2, relating to actions to protect and conserve natural resources, see § 201.57. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a peremptory challenge to a court commissioner or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see § 201.58.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a person as a referee in the case or in support of a motion to remove the appointed referee and appoint a new referee. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show the facts establishing the ground of disqualification to serve as a juror. For example, if the ground is that the person has been convicted of a felony, counsel should request the court to take judicial notice of the records of the court in which the person was convicted and secure an authenticated copy of the record of conviction for presentation to the court in the pending action or proceeding. Note, however, that felons whose civil rights have been restored are eligible for jury service [Code Civ. Proc. § 203(a)(5); see Penal Code §§ 1203.4 (expungement of record), 4852.13 (certificate of rehabilitation), 4853 (governor's pardon)]. On judicial notice, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d) and 453. On the admissibility of a final judgment adjudging a person guilty of a crime punishable as a felony as an exception to the hearsay rule in civil trials, see Evid. Code § 1300. Counsel can also submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion to remove an appointed referee and appoint a new referee, a supporting declaration, and an order granting the motion, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.51

§ 201.51 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Is Related to Party to Action, Officer of Corporate Party, or Judge of Court in Which Action Is Pending [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(b), 642]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE IS RELATED BY _____ [CONSANGUINITY or AFFINITY] WITHIN THE THIRD DEGREE TO _____ [name], WHO IS _____ [A PARTY TO THIS CASE or THE _____ (specify officer, e.g., PRESIDENT) OF _____ (name of corporation) WHICH IS A PARTY TO THIS CASE or A JUDGE OF THIS COURT] IN THAT HE/SHE and _____ [name of party, officer, or judge] ARE _____ [specify, e.g., BROTHERS].

A. Person Related to Party, Officer of Corporate Party, or Judge of Court. A party may object to the appointment of any person as a referee on the ground that he or she is related by consanguinity or affinity, within the third degree, to either party, or to an officer of a corporation which is a party, or to any judge of the court in which the appointment will be made (Code Civ. Proc. § 641(b)).

B. Computation of Relationship. The third degree of relationship is calculated according to the civil law system (see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(a), (d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a person appointed or to be appointed referee in a case is disqualified to act as such on the ground he or she is related within the third degree to either party, the officer of a corporate party, or a judge of the court in which the case is pending [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641(b); for additional grounds, see discussion at [c]. below]. See also §§ 201.50 and 201.52 -201.56 for grounds of disqualification that may be combined with or used in lieu of the points and authorities at [1], above. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting an objection to the appointment of a person as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2, relating to actions to protect and conserve natural resources, see § 201.57. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a peremptory challenge to a court commissioner or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see § 201.58.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a person as a referee in the case or in support of a motion to remove the appointed referee and appoint a new referee. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should present facts showing that the person is related by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree to a party to the case, or to an officer of a corporate party, or to a judge of the court. Such fact may be shown by the admission of the party or person or by the production of authenticated copies of birth or marriage certificates. On the admissibility of prior admissions of a party as an exception to the hearsay rule, see Evid. Code § 1220. On the admissibility of birth and marriage certificates as an exception to the hearsay rule and the authentication and proof of writings, see Evid. Code §§ 1281 and 1400-1454, respectively. The fact may also be established by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury of a witness who has personal knowledge of the relationship [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 700-702 (competency of witnesses)]. Counsel may also submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.] or by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Disqualification Under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1

Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 sets forth matters that will disqualify a judge from hearing or trying a matter. The word "judge," as used in this section, is defined as including court commissioners and referees [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(a)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a) provides that a judge shall be disqualified if any one or more of the following is true:

> (1) The judge has personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(1) (setting forth when judge is deemed to have personal knowledge)].
>
> (2) The judge served as a lawyer in the proceeding or, in any other proceeding involving the same issues, served as a lawyer for or gave advice to any party in the present proceeding on any matter involved in the action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2) (setting forth when judge is deemed to have served as a lawyer in the proceeding)].
>
> (3) The judge has a financial interest in the subject matter in the proceeding or in a party to the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3) (setting forth when judge is deemed to have a financial interest)].
>
> (4) The judge, or the judge's spouse, or a person within the third degree of relationship to either of them, or the spouse of such a person is a party to the proceeding or an officer, director, or trustee of a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(4)].

(5) A lawyer or a spouse of a lawyer in the proceeding is the spouse, former spouse, child, sibling, or parent of the judge or the judge's spouse or if such a person is associated in the private practice of law with a lawyer in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(5)].

(6) For any reason (a) the judge believes his or her refusal would further the interests of justice, (b) the judge believes there is a substantial doubt as to his or her capacity to be impartial, or (c) a person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial. Bias or prejudice towards a lawyer in the proceeding may be grounds for disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)].

(7) By reason of permanent or temporary physical impairment, the judge is unable to properly perceive the evidence or is unable to properly conduct the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(7)].

(8) Whether or not the judge has a current arrangement concerning prospective employment or other compensated service as a dispute resolution neutral, or is participating in, or within the last two years has participated in, discussions regarding such prospective employment either (A) with a party to the proceeding or (B) when the matter before the judge includes issues relating to the enforcement of an agreement to submit a dispute to alternative dispute resolution or the appointment or use of a dispute resolution neutral [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8), "party" includes the parent, subsidiary, or other legal affiliate of any entity that is a party and is involved in the transaction, contract, or facts that gave rise to the issues subject to the proceeding and, a "dispute resolution neutral" means an arbitrator, mediator, temporary judge appointed under Section 21 of Article VI of the California Constitution, referee appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or 639, special master, neutral evaluator, settlement officer, or settlement facilitator [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(8)].

As can be seen, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a) to some extent duplicate the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 641 as set forth at [1], above. For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing the disqualification of a judge on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a) that may be used alone in support of the contention that the referee is disqualified or adapted for use in combination with the points and authorities at [1], above, see Ch. 130, Judges , in this publication.

[d] Computing Degree of Consanguinity or Affinity

The degree of relationship is computed by the number of generations that must be counted between relatives. Each generation is a degree. There are two rules for counting the generations to compute the degree of consanguinity (blood relationship) or affinity (relationship by marriage) between persons. They are the common law rule and the civil law rule. Under the common law rule, a first cousin, or cousin-german, for example, is related in the third degree [see People v. de la Guerra (1864) 24 Cal. 73, 74, 76-77] . Under the civil law rule a cousin-german is related in the fourth degree [see Robinson v. Southern Pacific Co. (1895) 105 Cal. 526, 557-558, 38 P. 94 ; People v. de la Guerra (1864) 24 Cal. 73, 76] . That is, degrees in the collateral line under the civil law rule are counted by generations from one of the relatives up to the common ancestor, and from the common ancestor to the other relative; in computing the relationship, the first relative is excluded, the other relative included, and the ancestor counted but once. Thus, brothers are related in the second degree; uncle and nephew are related in the third degree; cousins-german are related in the fourth degree, and so on [former Prob. Code § 253].

The civil law rule was originally adopted in California by the Practice Act of 1850 [Stats. 1850, ch. 96, § 4 (predecessor to former Prob. Code § 253)], but applied only to the computation of relationship for the purpose of descent and distribution of estates. Consequently, the California Supreme Court held that the civil law rule for computing relationship set forth in the former Practice Act did not apply in computing the degree of consanguinity or affinity of a judge for the purpose of determining his or her disqualification to sit in a case because the statute, by its terms, applied to the descent and distribution of estates. The Court reasoned that the statute was in derogation of the common law and therefore had to be strictly construed [People v. de la Guerra (1864) 24 Cal. 73, 76-77] .

In 1872 the statutes were codified and the civil law rule for computing degrees of relationship was set forth in former Civ. Code § 1393, but again, by the placement of this statute, it applied only to descent and distribution of estates. Nevertheless, the Supreme Court held that since there was a statute it applied in computing the degree of consanguinity or affinity of judges for the purpose of determining their disqualification to sit in a case under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170 [Robinson v. Southern Pacific Co. (1895) 105 Cal. 526, 557-558, 38 P. 94] . The Robinson Court distinguished de la Guerra on the ground the latter case was decided before the codes were adopted. The Robinson Court reasoned as follows: (1) the civil law rule was codified (former Civ. Code § 1393); (2) this was the only statute on the subject; (3) all the codes were to be construed together as one statute; and (4) section 4 of each of the then existing codes provided (as they do now) that the common-law rule that statutes in derogation of the common law are to be strictly construed has no application to the codes.

Civ. Code § 1393 was repealed in 1931 and reenacted as former Prob. Code § 253 (Stats. 1931, ch 281). This latter code section was repealed in 1983 (Stats. 1983, ch 842), operative January 1, 1985, and not continued in other sections.

In 1984, former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.1, relating to the disqualification of judges, were repealed and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.5, covering the same matter, were enacted. Code Civ. Proc. § 170.5(d) provides that the third degree of relationship shall be calculated according to the civil law system. By its placement in the code, this statute appears to apply only to the grounds for disqualification of judges, court commissioners, and referees set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 and not to the grounds for disqualification of a referee set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 641. Nevertheless, under the reasoning of Robinson, above, it can be argued that the statute applies to the disqualification of referees for relationship under Civ. Code § 641.

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion to remove an appointed referee and appoint a new referee, a supporting declaration, and an order granting the motion, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[f] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing the disqualification of a judge on the grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a) that may be used alone in support of the contention that the referee is disqualified or adapted for use in combination with the points and authorities at [1], above, see Ch. 130, Judges , in this publication.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.52

§ 201.52 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Stands in Prohibited Relationship With Party to Action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(c), 642]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE _____ [STANDS IN THE RELATION OF _____ (GUARDIAN AND WARD or CONSERVATOR AND CONSERVATEE or MASTER AND SERVANT or EMPLOYER AND CLERK or PRINCIPAL AND AGENT) TO or IS A MEMBER OF THE FAMILY OF or IS A PARTNER IN BUSINESS WITH or IS SECURITY ON A _____ (BOND or OBLIGATION)] FOR _____ [name], WHO IS A PARTY IN THIS CASE.

Person Standing in Prohibited Relationship With Either Party. A party may object to the appointment of any person as a referee on the ground that he or she stands in the relation of guardian and ward, conservator and conservatee, master and servant, employer and clerk, or principal and agent, to either party or is a member of the family of either party, or a partner in business with either party, or security on any bond or obligation for either party (Code Civ. Proc. § 641(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a person appointed or to be appointed referee in a case is disqualified to act as such because of a particular prohibited relationship with one of the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641(c)]. For a discussion of related grounds for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, see § 201.51[2][c]. For additional grounds of disqualification that may be combined with or used in lieu of the points and authorities at [1], above,, see §§ 201.50, 201.51, and 201.53 -201.56. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting an objection to the appointment of a person as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2, relating to actions to protect and conserve natural resources, see § 201.57. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a peremptory challenge to a court commissioner or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see § 201.58.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue regarding the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a person as a referee in the case or in support of a motion to remove the appointed referee and appoint a new referee. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should present facts showing that the person stands in a prohibited relationship to either party. Such fact may be shown by the admission of the party. On the admissibility of prior admissions of a party as an exception to the hearsay rule, see Evid. Code § 1220. Alternatively, it may be shown by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury executed by a witness having personal knowledge of the facts [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 700-702 (competency of witnesses)]. Or, if the relationship is that of guardian and ward or conservator and conservatee, such fact may be established by requesting the court to take judicial notice of the records of the court establishing the relationship and producing an authenticated copy of the court's order appointing the guardian or conservator. On judicial notice, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. Or, if the relationship is a family relationship, the fact might be shown by producing authenticated copies of birth or marriage certificates. On the admissibility of birth and marriage certificates as an exception to the hearsay rule and the authentication and proof of writings, see Evid. Code §§ 1281 and 1400-1454. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see CALIFORNIA Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations, and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion to remove an appointed referee and appoint a new referee, a supporting declaration, and an order granting the motion, see Ch. 38, Reference, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.53

§ 201.53 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Served as Juror or Witness in Trial Between Same Parties [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(d), 642]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE _____ [SERVED AS A JUROR or WAS A WITNESS] ON A PRIOR TRIAL BETWEEN THE SAME PARTIES.

Person Served as Juror or Witness Between Same Parties. A party may object to the appointment of any person as a referee on the ground that he or she served as a juror or was a witness on any trial between the same (Code Civ. Proc. § 641(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a person appointed or to be appointed referee in a case is disqualified to act for having served as a juror or been a witness on any trial between the same parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641(d)]. For a discussion of related grounds for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, see § 201.51[2][c]. For additional grounds of disqualification that may be combined with or used in lieu of the points and authorities at [1], above, see §§ 201.50 -201.52 and 201.54 -201.56. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting an objection to the appointment of a person as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2, relating to actions to protect and conserve natural resources, see § 201.57. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a peremptory challenge to a court commissioner or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see § 201.58.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a person as a referee in the case or in support of a motion to remove the appointed referee and appoint a new referee. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should request the court to take judicial notice of the prior action or proceeding and secure authenticated copies of the pleadings in the prior case to establish identity of parties and cause and of the court's record identifying the person as a juror or witness in the prior case for presentation to the court in the pending action or proceeding. On judicial notice, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453. On authentication and proof of writings, see Evid. Code §§ 1400-1454. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion to remove an appointed referee and appoint a new referee, a supporting declaration, and an order granting the motion, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.54

§ 201.54 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Is Interested in Action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(e), 642]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS AN INTEREST IN THE _____ [EVENT OF or THE MAIN QUESTION INVOLVED IN] THE ACTION IN THAT _____ [specify].

Person Has Interest in Action. A party may object to the appointment of any person as a referee on the ground that he or she has an interest in the event of the action or in the main question involved in the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 641(e)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a person appointed or to be appointed referee in a case is disqualified to act on the ground of interest in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641(e)]. For a discussion of related grounds for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, see § 201.51[2][c]. For additional grounds of disqualification that may be combined with or used in lieu of the points and authorities at [1], above, see §§ 201.50 -201.53, 201.55, and 201.56. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting an objection to the appointment of a person as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2, relating to actions to protect and conserve natural resources, see § 201.57. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a peremptory challenge to a court commissioner or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see § 201.58.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a person as a referee in the case or in support of a motion to remove the appointed referee and appoint a new referee. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should present facts showing that the person has an interest in the case. Depending on the nature of the case, such interest may be established by the person's admission or by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury executed by a person who has personal knowledge of the fact [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1) 2003, 2009, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 700-702 (competency of witnesses)]. Or, if the action is one involving real property in which the person has an ownership interest, for example, the interest may be shown by presentation of authenticated copies of the public records showing the interest. On authentication and proof of writings, see Evid. Code §§ 1400-1454. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion to remove an appointed referee and appoint a new referee, a supporting declaration, and an order granting the motion, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.55

§ 201.55 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Has Unqualified Opinion or Belief as to Merits of Action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(f), 642]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS _____ [FORMED or EXPRESSED] AN UNQUALIFIED _____ [OPINION or BELIEF] AS TO THE MERITS OF THE ACTION.

Person Has Prejudged Action. A party may object to the appointment of any person as a referee on the ground that he or she has formed or expressed an unqualified opinion or belief as to the merits of the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 641(f)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a person appointed or to be appointed referee in a case is disqualified to act on the ground that he or she has prejudged the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641(f); but see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2 (when expression of view on legal or factual issue not ground for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1)]. For a discussion of related grounds for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, see § 201.51[2][c]. For additional grounds of disqualification that may be combined with or used in lieu of the points and authorities at [1], above, see §§ 201.50 -201.54 and 201.56. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting an objection to the appointment of a person as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2, relating to actions to protect and conserve natural resources, see § 201.57. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a peremptory challenge to a court commissioner or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see § 201.58.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a person as a referee in the case or in support of a motion to remove the appointed referee and appoint a new referee. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should present facts showing that the person has formed or expressed an unqualified opinion or belief as to the merits of the action. The fact may be shown by the person's admission. On the admissibility of prior admissions of a party as an exception to the hearsay rule, see Evid. Code § 1220. Or it may be shown by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury executed by a person having personal knowledge of the fact [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 700-702 (competency of witnesses)]. Or, if the opinion or belief was expressed in a writing, the fact may be shown by producing the writing or an authenticated copy of it. On the best evidence rule, see Evid. Code §§ 1500-1511. On authentication and proof of writings, see Evid. Code §§ 1400-1454. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion to remove an appointed referee and appoint a new referee, a supporting declaration, and an order granting the motion, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.56

§ 201.56 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Is Biased Against Party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641(g), 642]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE OF THE EXISTENCE OF A STATE OF MIND IN HIM/HER EVINCING ENMITY AGAINST OR BIAS TO _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF].

Person Is Biased Against Party. A party may object to the appointment of any person as a referee on the ground that there exists a state of mind in the potential referee evincing enmity against or bias toward either party (Code Civ. Proc. § 641(g)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a person appointed or to be appointed referee in a case is disqualified to act on the ground of enmity against or bias toward either party to the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641(g)]. For a discussion of related grounds for disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, see § 201.51[2][c]. For additional grounds of disqualification that may be combined with or used in lieu of the points and authorities at [1], above, see §§ 201.50 -201.55. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting an objection to the appointment of a person as a referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2, relating to actions to protect and conserve natural resources, see § 201.57. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a peremptory challenge to a court commissioner or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see § 201.58.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a person as a referee in the case or in support of a motion to remove the appointed referee and appoint a new referee. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should present facts showing that the person has a state of mind evincing enmity against or bias toward either party. The fact may be shown by the person's admission. On the admissibility of prior admissions of a party as an exception to the hearsay rule, see Evid. Code § 1220. Or it may be shown by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury executed by a person having personal knowledge of the fact [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 700-702 (competency of witnesses)]. Or, if the enmity or bias was expressed in a writing, the fact may be shown by producing the writing or an authenticated copy of it. On the best evidence rule, see Evid. Code §§ 1500-1511. On authentication and proof of writings, see Evid. Code §§ 1400-1454. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion to remove an appointed referee and appoint a new referee, a supporting declaration, and an order granting the motion, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.57

§ 201.57 Supporting Contention That Referee Is Disqualified--Referee Lacks Essential Technical Qualifications [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 641.2, 642]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE THE ACTION SEEKS TO _____ [CONSERVE or PROTECT or ENHANCE or combination of these] _____ [specify particular natural resource of California] FROM _____ [POLLUTION or IMPAIRMENT or DESTRUCTION] FROM _____ [summarize alleged activities threatening environment], AND _____ [name] IS NOT TECHNICALLY QUALIFIED WITH RESPECT TO THE PARTICULAR SUBJECT MATTER OF THIS ACTION IN THAT _____ [specify lack of technical qualifications].

Person Is Not Technically Qualified in Environmental Protection Case. In any action under Sections 12600 et seq. of the Government Code, relating to environmental protection, a party may object to the appointment of any person as a referee on the ground that he or she is not technically qualified with respect to the particular subject matter of the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a person appointed or to be appointed referee in an environmental protection action is disqualified to act as such on the ground that he or she is not technically qualified with respect to the particular subject matter of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 641.2; Gov. Code §§ 12600 et seq.]. For other grounds for disqualifying a person as a referee, see §§ 201.50 -201.56. For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting a peremptory challenge to a court commissioner or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see § 201.58.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a person as a referee in the case or in support of a motion to remove the appointed referee and appoint a new referee. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should show what qualifications are required, what the person's qualifications are, and in what respect they are deficient. This may be established by the admissions of the person. On the admissibility of prior admissions of a party as an exception to the hearsay rule, see Evid. Code § 1220. Or they may be established by affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury executed by persons having knowledge of the qualifications required and of the person's qualifications [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 700-702 (competency of witnesses)]. For who is qualified to be an expert witness, see Evid. Code § 720. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of a notice of motion to remove an appointed referee and appoint a new referee, a supporting declaration, and an order granting the motion, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.58

§ 201.58 Supporting Contention That Court Commissioner or Referee Is Disqualified--Person Is Prejudiced Against Party or Attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name] IS DISQUALIFIED TO ACT AS A REFEREE IN THIS CASE BECAUSE HE/SHE IS PREJUDICED AGAINST [THE INTEREST OF] _____ [specify party or party's attorney, e.g., PLAINTIFF or PLAINTIFF'S ATTORNEY] SO THAT _____ [specify, e.g., PLAINTIFF or PLAINTIFF's ATTORNEY] CANNOT OR BELIEVES THAT HE/SHE CANNOT HAVE A FAIR AND IMPARTIAL _____ [TRIAL or HEARING] BEFORE SUCH REFEREE.

A. Person Is Prejudiced Against Party. No court commissioner or referee of any California trial court shall try any civil action or special proceeding of any kind or character nor hear any matter therein that involves a contested issue of law or fact when it is established as provided in Section 170.6 of the Code of Civil Procedure that the court commissioner or referee is prejudiced against any party or attorney or the interest of any party or attorney appearing in the action or proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(a)(1)).

[Optional] B. Disqualification of Discovery Referee. A litigant may exercise his or her peremptory challenge under Section 170.6 of the Code of Civil Procedure to disqualify a court-appointed discovery referee (Autoland, Inc. v. Superior court (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 857, 860, 252 Cal. Rptr. 263).

[Optional] C. Timeliness of Peremptory Challenge to Discovery Referee. A peremptory challenge to a discovery referee appointed under Code of Civil Procedure, Section 639(a)(5) must be made to the court by a party either within the following time periods (Code Civ. Proc. § 639(b)):

If the discovery referee was appointed for all discovery purposes, within 10 days after notice of the appointment, or if the party has not yet appeared in the action, the motion must be made within 10 days after the that party's appearance.

If the discovery referee has been assigned only for limited discovery purposes and the referee assigned is known at least 10 days before the date set for hearing, at least five days before the date set for hearing.

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a court commissioner or referee appointed or to be appointed referee in a case is disqualified to act on the ground of prejudice towards a party or the party's attorney so that the party or attorney cannot or believes that he or she cannot have a fair and impartial trial or hearing before the referee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6]. Optional paragraph B is for use when a party is seeking to disqualify a court-appointed discovery referee. Optional Paragraph C is to establish the timeliness of a peremptory challenge to a discovery referee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(b)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.904(b) and 3.924(b), set forth at [4][a], below may be relevant in terms of describing certain information the referee is required to disclose.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the qualifications of a person to act as referee. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities submitted in support of objections to the appointment of a court referee or commissioner as a referee in the case or in support of a peremptory challenge to remove the appointed referee from the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6]. The points and authorities set forth at [1], above, may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, these points and authorities may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to grant a timely challenge to the referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 after it has failed to do so or for a writ of prohibition to restrain the challenged referee from proceeding or continuing to hear the matter after the trial court has failed to remove him or her as referee [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086 (writ of mandate), 1102, 1103 (writ of prohibition)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case and the points of law stated. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in peremptorily challenging a judge, court commissioner, or referee under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, see Ch. 317, Judges , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms of petitions for writ of mandate and writ of prohibition and related papers, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing a petition for writ of prohibition to restrain a judge from trying a case or hearing a matter after having denied a motion to disqualify under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, which may be adapted for use in challenging a referee, see Ch. 130, Judges . That chapter also contains memoranda addressing the timeliness of peremptory challenges.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disqualification of Discovery Referee

In Autoland, Inc. v. Superior court (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 857, 252 Cal. Rptr. 263 , the court of appeal issued a writ of mandate directing the superior court to vacate its order striking the petitioner's peremptory challenge against a discovery referee. The court held that a court-appointed discovery referee may be disqualified by peremptory challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6. The court noted respondents' argument that the circumstances under which the "referee" was added to Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 indicated that the Legislature was thinking only of juvenile court referees. The court concluded, however, that the language of the statute was not so limited and was too plain to be limited by reference to circumstantial evidence of legislative intent. The court concluded that, if a litigant can exercise his or her one peremptory challenge to disqualify a particular judge or court commissioner from hearing the discovery motion, there is no compelling reason why he or she should be unable to disqualify a particular referee from hearing the motion (205 Cal. App. 3d 857, 860) .

[b] Timeliness of Peremptory Challenge to Discovery Referee

Code Civ. Proc. § 639(b) was enacted by Stats 2000, ch. 1011, effective January 1, 2001. Before then, case law established a similar timing requirement for peremptory challenges to discovery referees [see People v. Superior Court (Lavi) (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1164, 1182-1185, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815, 847 P.2d 1031 ; Pedus Services, Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 140, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771 ; Stevens v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 55, 59, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Additional Disclosures Required

Effective July 1, 2001, in addition to any other disclosure required by law, no later than five days prior to the deadline for parties to file a motion for disqualification of the referee under Code of Civil Procedure § 170.6 or, if the referee is not aware of his or her appointment or of a matter subject to disclosure at that time, as soon as practicable thereafter, a referee must disclose to the parties the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.904(b) (reference by agreement, 3.924(b) (reference by order)]:

- Any matter subject to disclosure under subdivisions (D)(2)(f) and (D)(2)(g) of canon 6 of the Code of Judicial Ethics; and

- Any significant personal or professional relationship the arbitrator has or has had with a party, attorney, or law firm in the current case, including the number and nature of any other proceedings in the past 24 months in which the referee has been privately compensated by a party, attorney, law firm, or insurance company in the current case for any services. The disclosure must include privately compensated service as an attorney, expert witness, or consultant or as a judge, referee, arbitrator, mediator, settlement facilitator, or other alternative dispute resolution neutral.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon (D)(2)(f) requires the referee to disclose in writing or on the record information required by law, or information the referee believes the parties or their lawyers might consider relevant to the question of disqualification, even if he or she believes that there is no actual basis for disqualification.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Appendix Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon (D)(2)(g) requires the referee to disclose in writing or on the record membership in any organization that practices invidious discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, national origin, or sexual orientation, except for membership in a religious or an official military organization of the United States and membership in a nonprofit youth organization so long as membership does not violate canon 4A [conduct of extrajudicial activities].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
B. Grounds for Objection to Referee

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.59-201.69

[Reserved]

§§ 201.59[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.70

§ 201.70 Supporting Contention That Referee's Report Under Special Reference [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(b), 639] Should Be or Was Properly Confirmed and Adopted by Trial Court

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S REPORT IN THIS CASE IS SUPPORTED BY COMPETENT AND SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE AND _____ [SHOULD BE or WAS PROPERLY] CONFIRMED AND ADOPTED BY THE COURT.

A. Use of Motion Procedure to Confirm Report. Although no statutory authority exists for a motion to confirm the report of a referee appointed under an order of special reference, a motion has been commonly used to bring the referee's report to the attention of the court and has been approved without comment in several appellate opinions (see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b); Hall v. Bru (1932) 216 Cal. 153, 154, 13 P.2d 716 ; Fooshe v. Sunshine (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 336, 345, 215 P.2d 66).

B. Referee's Decision as Special Verdict. A referee's decision reported to the court pursuant to an order of reference to report the facts has the effect of a special verdict and should be sustained unless plainly not warranted by any reasonable view of the evidence (see Code Civ. Proc. § 645; Williams v. Flinn & Treacy (1923) 61 Cal. App. 352, 358-359, 214 P. 1024).

[Optional] C. Weight of Special Referee's Decision. A special referee's decision, although not binding and advisory only, is entitled to great weight when based in substantial part on the credibility of witnesses because of the referee's unique opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses when they testified (Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 562-563, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441 ; see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that the referee's report on a special reference should be or was properly confirmed. Optional Paragraph C should be included when witnesses testified at the hearing before the referee and the testimony was conflicting.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of the referee's report on a special reference. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for an order confirming and adopting the referee's report. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Initially, counsel need only show that the report complied with the order of reference, because the report is presumed to be supported by the evidence [see § 201.71]. Counsel may submit cognizable evidence by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion for an order adopting the referee's report on a special reference, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities in § 201.80 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities at [1], above. In the event the referee's report exceeded the scope of the order of reference, the points and authorities in § 201.41 may also be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Use of Motion Procedure to Confirm Report

As amended effective January 1, 2001, Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b) provides that in the case of all references other than consensual general references under Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court.

Hall v. Bru (1932) 216 Cal. 153, 13 P.2d 716 , was an action to partition real property. Pursuant to the stipulation of the parties, the court appointed a referee to ascertain whether the property could or could not be partitioned without great prejudice to the owners. The referee reported that after due notice and in the presence of counsel for all parties he personally inspected the premises and found that partition could not be had without great prejudice to the owners. Plaintiff's counsel served and filed a notice of motion for an order confirming the referee's report. At the hearing of the motion, plaintiff appeared with counsel and introduced evidence in support of the referee's report. The motion was granted and an interlocutory judgment ordering the property sold was filed. Subsequently, defendants moved for an order setting aside the order confirming the referee's report on the ground the order was taken through their inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect. The motion was denied, and defendants appealed.

The Supreme Court, after reciting the foregoing facts, said the showing in support of the motion to set aside failed to establish sufficient diligence on the part of the defendants, held the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying the motion to set aside, and affirmed the judgment (216 Cal. 153, 154-155) .

Fooshe v. Sunshine (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 336, 215 P.2d 66 , was an action by purchasers to rescind a sale of farm land or for damages in which one of the defendants filed a cross complaint against plaintiffs for damages, dissolution of a partnership with plaintiffs to farm the land, and an accounting. The trial of the case resulted in a judgment for defendants on the complaint. On the cross complaint, the court denied damages but ordered the partnership dissolved and an accounting. The judgment appointed a referee to take the accounting. All parties appeared at the hearing before the referee, evidence was introduced, and the matter was submitted. The referee thereafter filed his report with the court. The court subsequently approved and adopted the referee's report as its findings and made certain additional findings (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]). The court rendered judgment for plaintiffs and defendant appealed.

In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal said that when the motion to approve the referee's report was made and argued before the court, appellant tendered no additional evidence; the referee's findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) became the court's findings and properly support the judgment (96 Cal. App. 2d 336, 345) .

[b] Referee's Decision as Special Verdict

Code Civ. Proc. § 645 provides in part that when the reference is to report the facts, the decision reported has the effect of a special verdict.

Williams v. Flinn & Treacy (1923) 61 Cal. App. 352, 214 P. 1024 , was an action to recover alleged commissions owed plaintiff for street work contracts secured for defendant contractors. Plaintiff attached as an exhibit to his complaint an itemized statement of account, showing a balance due him of over $4,000. Defendants, in their answer, claimed certain credits and denied that the exhibit attached to the complaint was a full or complete statement of any account between the parties. The matter was referred to a referee to take an account. At the hearing before the referee, defendants discovered that they had failed in their answer to set up numerous credits against plaintiff in addition to those alleged in their answer and requested permission to amend their answer to include them. The referee said he would not permit the amendment at that time, but would receive all the evidence and then permit amendments accordingly. After completion of the hearing, it became clear the referee under the order appointing him had no power to permit amendments to the pleadings. The referee nevertheless in his findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) allowed all the credits to which defendants were entitled. Defendants' subsequent request to amend their answer to conform to the proof submitted by the parties and received by the referee was denied by the trial judge, and plaintiff's exceptions to the referee's report as to all credits allowed not specified in defendants' answer were sustained. Judgment was entered for plaintiff without any offset for the unpleaded credits, and defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with instructions to the trial court to accept and confirm the referee's report and give judgment for plaintiff in accordance with it. The appellate court held that an amendment of the answer was not necessary, since the items of the account were in issue by reason of the exhibit attached to the complaint and defendants' denial of it. The court held that under the denial, defendants were at liberty to contest each and every item of the alleged account and their right was not limited by the individual items of the account specifically denied in their answer (61 Cal. App. 352, 358) . The court said: (1) a referee's finding (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) on a question of fact is entitled to the same weight as a special verdict of a jury when the evidence was produced before and heard by him; (2) the finding should be sustained unless plainly not warranted by any reasonable view of the evidence; and (3) the trial court should have accepted the referee's findings and given judgment in accordance with them (61 Cal. App. 352, 358-359) .

[c] Weight of Special Referee's Decision

Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b) is set forth at [a], above.

The facts and procedural background of Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441 , are discussed at § 201.15[3][a]. In characterizing the weight to be accorded a referee's findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) on a special reference, the Court said a special referee's findings are not binding and are properly characterized as advisory only; nonetheless, when the findings of a referee are based in substantial part on the credibility of witnesses, such findings, although not binding on the court, are entitled to great weight in view of the referee's unique opportunity to observe the demeanor of the witnesses (20 Cal. 3d 560, 562-563) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Use of Motion Procedure to Confirm Report

In Klein v. Maddox (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 141, 138 P.2d 28 , the court of appeal, in an action to partition real property, affirmed an order made on plaintiff's motion confirming the referee's report that physical partition of the real property could not be had without injury to the parties and directing the referee to sell (59 Cal. App. 2d 141, 146) .

In In re Riccardi (1926) 80 Cal. App. 66, 251 P. 650 , the application of a disbarred attorney for reinstatement as an attorney at law was opposed by the local bar association and, on stipulation of the parties, the court of appeal referred the matter to a referee to hear all the testimony, take evidence, make findings of fact (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]), and report to the court. Subsequently, the referee's report was filed with the court. The attorney's motion to amend the referee's findings and to take such further testimony as may be proper to make such findings in the attorney's favor and against the contentions of the bar association was denied. The bar association's countermotion to accept the referee's findings was granted (80 Cal. App. 66, 70) .

[b] Referee's Decision as Special Verdict

In Bernard v. Sloan (1906) 2 Cal. App. 737, 84 P. 232 , an action to recover commissions for the sale of onion seed, a reference with the consent of the parties was ordered to report findings of fact (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) as to the state of account between plaintiff and defendants. Judgment based on the referee's report to which some of defendants' objections had been allowed and others overruled was rendered for plaintiff. The court of appeal affirmed. The court said that the finding of facts reported by the referee was equivalent to a special verdict [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645] or to the findings of fact (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) made by the court on its trial of a cause, and that a review of the referee's decision on a question of fact is subject to the same rules as is the action of a jury in a special verdict or of a court on its finding of facts (2 Cal. App. 738, 751) .

[c] Weight of Special Referee's Decision

In re De La Roi (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 354, 164 P.2d 10 , cert. denied, 329 U.S. 761, 67 S. Ct. 115, 91 L. Ed. 656 (1946) , was an original habeas corpus proceeding in the Supreme Court. Petitioner had been convicted of having murdered a fellow inmate and had been sentenced to death. Some of the fellow inmates who testified against him had since recanted their testimony. Petitioner alleged that he had been convicted on perjured testimony. The Court appointed a referee to take testimony on the issues of fact presented by the petition and the return to the petition. The referee took testimony and subsequently filed his report finding against petitioner's contentions. Counsel for petitioner filed exceptions. In ordering the writ discharged and the prisoner remanded to custody, the Court said that although it was not bound by the findings of fact (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) made by a referee, his conclusions are entitled to more consideration than the bare testimony of the witnesses, that he had an opportunity to observe the demeanor of those who appeared before him and to weigh what they said in connection with their manner on the witness stand. The Court added that the evidence not only fully justified the findings adverse to the petitioner but compelled them (27 Cal. 2d 354, 364) .

See also In re Lessard (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 497, 507, 42 Cal. Rptr. 583, 399 P.2d 39 (the findings of the referee are not binding on the court, although they are entitled to great weight); In re Rose (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 384, 387, 42 Cal. Rptr. 236, 398 P.2d 428 (same).

The facts and procedural background of Bernard v. Sloan (1906) 2 Cal. App. 737, 84 P. 232 , are discussed at [b], above. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the court said that the weight of evidence, the resolution of any conflict in the evidence, the credibility of the witnesses, and the character of their testimony are matters on which a referee is required to exercise his or her judgment and in which his or her judgment will be accepted by the court as correct, unless clearly shown to be erroneous. With respect to the oral testimony received by the referee, the court pointed out that the referee had an opportunity to observe the witness's manner of testifying, the clearness or hesitancy with which he was able to exercise his memory, and to determine whether he was entitled to credit or should be disbelieved (2 Cal. App. 737, 751) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.71

§ 201.71 Supporting Contention That Referee's Report Is Presumed to Be Supported by Evidence

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S REPORT IS PRESUMED TO BE SUPPORTED BY COMPETENT AND SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE AND THE BURDEN OF PROVING OTHERWISE IS ON THE PARTY CHALLENGING THE REPORT.

A. Referee's Report Presumed Supported by Evidence. The report of a referee comes before the trial court with a presumption that it is based on competent and sufficient evidence and the burden of proving otherwise is on the party challenging the sufficiency of the evidence to support the report (Brodie v. Barnes (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319, 132 P.2d 595).

[Optional] B. Effect of Failure to Produce Reporter's Transcript. The failure of the party excepting to a referee's report on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence to produce a copy of the reporter's transcript of the proceedings before the referee prevents a judicial consideration of the exceptions (Brodie v. Barnes (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319-320, 132 P.2d 595).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a referee's report is presumed to be supported by the evidence. Optional Paragraph B should be included when the challenge is based on the asserted insufficiency of the evidence to support the referee's report and the challenging party has failed to procure and produce a copy of the reporter's transcript of the proceedings before the referee.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the sufficiency of evidence to support the referee's report. For example, they may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities submitted in opposition to exceptions to the referee's report based on insufficiency of the evidence or, if the report has been confirmed and adopted by the trial court and the objection that the report is not supported by the evidence is raised on a motion for new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 657(6)] or a motion to set aside and vacate the judgment and enter a new and different judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 663], they may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities submitted in opposition to the motion. They may also be used in an appellate brief in opposition to the contention that the report should not have been confirmed and adopted by the trial court because it was not supported by the evidence produced at the hearing before the referee. In addition, the points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show how the challenging party has failed to sustain his or her burden of proving that the referee's report is not supported by the evidence. Counsel may submit cognizable evidence by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of exceptions to the report of a referee on a special reference, see Ch. 38, Reference ; in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for use on a motion for new trial or to set aside and vacate a judgment and enter a new and different judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , in that publication. For forms for use with respect to the record on appeal from superior and municipal courts, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record , and Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , respectively, in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing motions for new trial and motions to set aside and vacate the judgment and enter another and different judgment, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial , in this publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Referee's Report Presumed Supported by Evidence

Brodie v. Barnes (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 132 P.2d 595 , was an action against the widow and son of a deceased employee to impress a constructive trust on certain properties held by them to secure repayment of the amount embezzled by the employee after plaintiff's claim for reimbursement from the deceased's estate had been filed and rejected. Defendants were the executors of the estate. At the request of the parties, the trial court appointed a referee to investigate and report back the extent and disposition of all misappropriated funds. A report and supplemental report were subsequently filed. Defendants filed exceptions contending that certain of the referee's findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) were not supported by the evidence, but they failed to secure a reporter's transcript of the proceedings before the referee. The trial judge repeatedly called this to their attention and informed them he could not pass on the sufficiency of evidence to support the referee's findings unless the evidence was produced, and that the burden was on defendants to support their exceptions. Defendants refused to have a reporter's transcript prepared. The court eventually adopted the referee's report and rendered judgment for plaintiff for the amount embezzled not barred by the statute of limitations. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed a portion of the judgment relating to the source from which repayment was to be made and affirmed the balance of the judgment. With respect to the referee's report, the court said that the findings and report of the referee came before the trial court with a presumption that they were based on competent and sufficient evidence and that the burden was on defendants to support their exceptions (56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319) .

[b] Effect of Failure to Produce Reporter's Transcript

The facts and procedural background of Brodie v. Barnes (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 132 P.2d 595 , are discussed under [a], above. A reporter's transcript of the proceedings before the referee was included in the record on appeal. In reversing the judgment in part and affirming it in part, the court of appeal said the only way the defendants could support their exceptions to the referee's report relating to the sufficiency of the evidence was to produce the evidence and that, having failed and refused to produce it before the trial court, although given ample opportunity to do so, they could not properly produce the transcript before the appellate court and secure a ruling on their contentions relating to the sufficiency of the evidence (56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319-320) . The court said it is elementary that an appellate court, in passing on the sufficiency of the evidence, cannot consider evidence not before the trial court and held that, since it could not consider the reporter's transcript of the proceedings before the referee, all findings of the trial court (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) and all findings of the referee (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) had to be conclusively presumed to be supported (56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319-320) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Effect of Failure to Produce Reporter's Transcript

In Klein v. Maddox (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 141, 138 P.2d 28 , the court of appeal, in an action to partition real property, affirmed an order made on plaintiff's motion confirming the referee's report that physical partition of the real property could not be had without injury to the parties and directing the referee to sell. Defendant had filed no objections to the report and on appeal contended the evidence was insufficient to support the referee's and trial court's conclusions. The court of appeal held that defendants were precluded from urging this ground because no reporter's transcript of the proceedings before the referee or of the proceedings in court on the hearing of the motion to confirm the referee's report had been included in the record on appeal and because no objections to the report had been filed in the trial court (59 Cal. App. 2d 141, 144) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.72

§ 201.72 Supporting Contention That Factual and Legal Basis of Referee's Decision Is Not Required to Be Stated on Special Reference

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFERENCE IN THIS CASE WAS SPECIAL TO _____ [specify purpose] AND, HENCE, THERE IS NO REQUIREMENT THAT THE REFEREE SET FORTH IN HIS/HER REPORT THE FACTUAL AND LEGAL BASIS OF HIS/HER DECISION.

A. When Statement of Decision by Referee Is Required. Section 643(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure, providing that the referees or commissioners must report their statement of decision in writing to the court, applies only to a general reference under Section 638(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure to try any or all of the issues of an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and not to a special reference (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 643(a), 644; Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 589-590, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873).

B. When Factual and Legal Basis of Referee's Decision Is Required to Be Stated. Although the statement of decision of a referee reported by a referee under a general reference pursuant to Section 638(a) of the Code of Civil Procedure may be required to explain the factual and legal basis as to each of the principal controverted issues before the referee, no such requirement is imposed on the decision of a referee reported pursuant to a special reference (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 643(c); Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 589-590, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that on a special reference to report facts, a referee is not, in his or her report to the court, required to report a statement of decision explaining the factual and legal basis of his or her decision. However, for the purposes of this form, it is assumed that the statement of decision required by Code Civ. Proc. § 643(a), as in the case of a statement of decision issued by a court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632], must explain the factual and legal basis of the decision [see discussion at [3][b], below]. It is also assumed that the holding in Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 589, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873 , to the effect that Code Civ. Proc. § 643, prior to its 1984 amendment, applied only to general references under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) and not to special references continues to apply to Code Civ. Proc. § 643 as amended. These assumptions are supported by the fact that as a result of the 1984 amendments an order directing a referee to report a statement of decision is expressly required only by Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a), which authorizes a general reference. Further, the 2000 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 643 only refer to a "statement of decision" in Code Civ. Proc. § 643(a) [see [3][a], below] and set forth other requirements for a special referee's report [see Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c), at [3][b], below; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644, 645].

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to whether a referee in his or her report to the court pursuant to an order of special reference is required to explain the factual and legal basis for his or her decision. For example, they may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities submitted in opposition to exceptions to the referee's report based on the absence of the explanation. They may also be used in an appellate brief in opposition to the contention that the report should not have been confirmed and adopted by the trial court because the referee had failed to explain the factual and legal basis for his or her decision. In addition, the points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. However, all that counsel need show is that the referee's report complied with the order of reference. This may be done by asking the court to take judicial notice of its own file [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of exceptions to the report of a referee on a special reference, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for use with respect to the record on appeal from superior and municipal courts, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record , and Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , respectively, in that publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Statement of Decision by Referee Is Required

Of the two statutes authorizing the court to order a reference (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638, 639), only Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a), relating to a general reference, authorizes the court to order the referee to report a statement of decision, as opposed to a decision or report [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 643, 645]. Similarly, Code Civ. Proc. § 644 allows for entry of judgment after the filing of a statement of decision only after a general reference. Code Civ. Proc. § 643(a) provides that, unless otherwise directed by the court, the referees or commissioner must report their statement of decision in writing to the court within 20 days after the hearing, if any, has been concluded and the matter has been submitted. Code Civ. Proc. § 643(b) provides that a referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 must report as agreed by the parties and approved by the court.

Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a) provides that in the case of a consensual general reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner on the whole issue must stand as the decision of the court, and on filing of the statement of decision with the clerk of the court, judgment may be entered thereon in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court, while Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b) provides that in the case of all other references, the decision of the referee or commissioner is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court.

Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873 , was an action for loss of business profits and goodwill resulting from a breach of contract. Pursuant to the stipulation of the parties, the trial court ordered the matter referred to a court commissioner as referee to determine the existence and amount of damages. The referee subsequently filed his report which was adopted by the trial court. Judgment was for plaintiff. Defendant appealed, contending that the referee failed to make findings of fact (now statement of decision) as required by then Code Civ. Proc. § 643 and that the court's findings of fact (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) based on evidence not adduced before it were insufficient to support the judgment.

The court of appeal rejected the contentions and affirmed the judgment on the ground the reference was special under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b). The court said that then Code Civ. Proc. § 643 applied to a general reference to try any or all of the issues of an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) and not to a special reference (262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 590) .

[b] When Factual and Legal Basis of Referee's Decision Is Required to Be Stated

Code Civ. Proc. § 632, relating to trial by the court, abolishes findings of fact and conclusions of law and substitutes in their stead a statement of decision that must explain the factual and legal basis for the court's decision regarding each of the principal controverted issues at trial. The 1984 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 643, relating to referees, likewise, did away with findings of fact and conclusions of law and substituted in their stead a statement of decision. That same terminology, "statement of decision" is retained in Code Civ. Proc. § 643(a), as amended effective January 1, 2001. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c), first effective January 1, 2001, provides that the report filed by a referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639, must include a recommendation on the merits of any disputed issue, a statement of the total hours spent and the total fees charged by the referee, and the referee's recommended allocation of payment. Code Civ. Proc. § 643(c) also provides for objections to the report and requires the court to review any objections and responses to them. The sections relating to references (Code Civ. Proc. § 638 et seq.) fail to define statement of decision or to specify its contents. Nevertheless, the legislative purpose behind the 1984 amendments to the reference statutes was to make the procedure on references conform to that followed on a trial by the court [see Legislative Counsel's Digest to AB 3088, enacted as Stats. 1984, ch. 350]. Consequently, it would appear that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 632, relating to the content of the statement of decision issued by a court, would apply to a referee's statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a) and 643(a). Thus, like the court's statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632, it would appear that a referee's statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. 643(a) would have to explain the factual and legal basis for the decision as to each of the principle controverted issues.

The facts and procedural background of Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873 , are discussed at [a], above. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal held that the reference ordered by the trial court was a special reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) to ascertain a fact necessary to enable the court to determine the action and that in such a reference findings of fact and conclusions of law by the referee are not required (262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 589-590) . Quoting National Brass Wks. v. Weeks (1928) 92 Cal. App. 318, 321, 268 P. 412 (discussed at § 201.75[3][a]), the court reasoned that in such a case the court ultimately determines the facts and the law by rendering its decision containing the findings of fact and conclusions of law (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) which serves as the basis for the judgment entered; the judgment thus entered is in no way dependent on the referee's report for support but is grounded on the court's decision. The court added that such findings and conclusions (now statement of decision) must be made by the trial court (262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 590) . In rejecting defendant's contention that the court could not make findings of fact based on evidence not adduced before it, the court said that Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) expressly authorizes a reference to ascertain and report facts necessary to enable a court to determine an issue when the parties agree to such procedure, and that defendant, having stipulated to just such a procedure, could not complain (262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 590-591) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.73

§ 201.73 Supporting Contention That Referee's Decision on Whole Issue Must Stand as Decision of Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

JUDGMENT IN THIS CASE _____ [SHOULD BE or SHOULD HAVE BEEN or WAS PROPERLY] ENTERED IN THE SAME MANNER AS IF THE ACTION HAD BEEN TRIED BY THE COURT BECAUSE THE REFEREE'S DECISION WAS ON THE WHOLE ISSUE AND, THEREFORE, THE REFEREE'S STATEMENT OF DECISION _____ [MUST STAND or STANDS] AS THE DECISION OF THE COURT.

A. Scope of Reference. A reference on the agreement of the parties filed with the clerk or judge, or entered in the minutes, or on the motion of a party to a written contract or lease that provides that any controversy arising therefrom shall be heard by a reference if the court finds a reference agreement exists between the parties, may be ordered to hear and determine any or all issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision (Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)).

B. Referee's Decision as Basis for Judgment. In the case of a consensual general reference pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner on the whole issue must stand as the decision of the court, and on the filing of the statement of decision with the clerk of the court, judgment may be entered on it in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court (Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a); see Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 722, 269 P.2d 3 ; Lewis v. Grunberg (1928) 205 Cal. 158, 162, 270 P. 181).

[Optional] C. Distinctions Between Referee and Temporary Judge. Although a general reference referee's statement of decision must stand as the finding of the court, the actual judgment is entered by the trial judge in the same manner as though the matter had been tried by the court. A general reference preserves the court's power regarding new trial motions and other postjudgment remedies. A temporary judge has broader powers than a referee, including the power to render a judgment which is appealable in the same manner as one rendered by a constitutional judge. In keeping with this broad authority, a temporary judge must take an oath of office before performing judicial functions (Kajima Engineering and Construction, Inc. v. Pacific Bell (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1401, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464 ; see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831).

[Optional] D. Referee Is Not Required to Take Oath. The type of dispute resolution employed here was a general reference, not a trial by a temporary judge. Thus, the statement of decision [and judgment entered thereon] is/are not invalid because the referee did not need to take the oath required of a temporary judge by California Constitution, article IV, section 21 and California Rules of Court, Rule 244 (Kajima Engineering and Construction, Inc. v. Pacific Bell (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1400-1401, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of a contention that the referee's statement of decision, filed under a consensual general reference made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a), is binding on the court and that judgment on it must be entered in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court. For a form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the contention that a new trial should be or was properly granted when the judgment in the case is based on a referee's report, see § 201.90. Optional Paragraphs C and D are to rebut or anticipate any contention that the statement of decision of a referee serving under general reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a), or the judgment entered thereon, is invalidated because the referee did not take the oath of required of a temporary judge by Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831. Optional Paragraph C sets forth the primary distinction between a general reference and a trial by a temporary judge. Optional Paragraph D addresses the distinction that a temporary judge, but not a referee, need take the oath.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue regarding the effect of a referee's report. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to exceptions to the report filed by the other party. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may also be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to enter judgment on the referee's report or for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from proceeding to try the action after the referee's report has been submitted to the court, or both [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086 (writ of mandate), 1102, 1103 (writ of prohibition)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel must show that the reference was general and that the referee's report complies with the order of reference. If counsel is using optional Paragraph C or D, the argument should detail any stipulation of the parties and show how they came to be confused about whether they were agreeing to a reference or trial by a temporary judge. It is advisable for counsel to submit cognizable evidence in support of factual statements, by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of a referee's report on the whole issue and related forms, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Referee's Decision as Basis for Judgment

Lewis v. Grunberg (1928) 205 Cal. 158, 270 P. 181 , was an action by a seller of a stock of merchandise against the buyers arising out of a dispute as to the construction of the sale contract. The parties stipulated that the cause be ordered to a referee to try all of the issues in the action, whether of fact or of law, and to report a finding and judgment (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]) thereon, and an order to that effect was signed. The referee recited as a part of his findings that he was appointed to find on both questions of law and fact. The referee found for plaintiff in the sum of $3,439.76 with interest from February 15, 1922. By its judgment, the trial court awarded plaintiff the sum of $4,857.74 with interest from April 21, 1922. Defendants appealed.

The Supreme Court modified the judgment to conform to the referee's finding and affirmed the judgment as modified. The Court held that the reference was general and that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 644 the referee's findings were binding. It said that on the filing of the findings of the referee, judgment should have been entered in accordance with it (205 Cal. 158, 162) .

Although the cases discussed above relied on former Code Civ. Proc. § 644, the 1984 amendment to that section only changed the term "finding" to "decision" and "statement of decision," but did not change the section's basic requirement that judgment may be entered based on the referee's decision following a general reference.

[b] Distinctions Between Referee and Temporary Judge

Kajima Engineering and Construction, Inc. v. Pacific Bell (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464 , arose out of a work-related injury at a construction site. Kajima sued defendants to recover workers' compensation benefits paid to its injured employee, who joined the litigation as a plaintiff in intervention. After the case was assigned to a judge for all purposes, the parties stipulated on the record to have the action tried by a retired superior court judge. After a four-day bench trial, that judge ruled in favor of Pacific Bell, issued a statement of decision setting forth findings of fact and law, and filed it in the superior court. The judge to whom the case had been assigned entered judgment on the statement of decision and heard and decided the postjudgment motion regarding costs. The injured worker appealed, claiming the retired judge failed to take the oath required of temporary judges by former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 244, [see now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831], and Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21.

The court of appeal affirmed (103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403) , saying the appellant was mistaken concerning the form of alternative dispute resolution employed here (103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1399) . The case was not tried by a temporary judge. Instead, trial was conducted by a referee on a general reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a). Although a temporary judge is required to take an oath, a referee is not (103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1400) . A reference by the trial court involves sending an action or proceeding, or some issue raised therein, to a referee for hearing, determination, and report back to the court (103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1400-1401) . A general reference is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) if the parties have agreed thereto in an agreement filed with the clerk or judge or entered in the minutes or docket. Although a general reference referee's statement of decision must stand as the finding of the court, the actual judgment is entered by the trial judge in the same manner as though the matter had been tried by the court. Additionally, a general reference preserves the court's power regarding new trial motions and other postjudgment remedies (103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1401) . A temporary judge has broader powers than a referee, including the power to render a judgment which is appealable in the same manner as one rendered by a constitutional judge. In keeping with this broad authority, a temporary judge must take an oath of office before performing judicial functions (103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1401) . Here, the assigned judge entered judgment on the statement of decision filed by the retired judge, whose lack of authority to enter judgment establishes that he served as a referee on a general reference rather than as a temporary judge (103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1401-1402) . Additional evidence that the retired judge served as a referee is the fact the assigned judge ruled on the postjudgment motions concerning costs (103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1402) .

[c] Referee Is Not Required to Take Oath

Kajima Engineering and Construction, Inc. v. Pacific Bell (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464 , is discussed at [b], above.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Referee's Decision as Basis for Judgment

Bowie v. Borland (1885) 68 Cal. 233, 9 P. 79 , was an action for an accounting. The parties stipulated to a reference to determine all factual and legal issues in the case and to the entry of judgment on the referee's report when filed, and the court so ordered. Judgment was entered by the court clerk on the subsequently filed report. On motion of the losing party, the trial court vacated the judgment on the ground the clerk was not authorized to enter it. The Supreme Court held the clerk was expressly authorized by the trial court's order of reference to enter judgment in accordance with the referee's report and reversed the order (68 Cal. 233, 234) .

Additional supporting cases include: Dynair Electronics, Inc. v. Video Cable, Inc. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 20, 127 Cal. Rptr. 268 ; Estate of Johnston (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 859, 91 Cal. Rptr. 116 ; Estate of Bassi (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 529, 536, 44 Cal. Rptr. 541 .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.74

§ 201.74 Supporting Contention That Referee's Statement of Decision Forms Part of Judgment Roll [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 643(a), 644(a), 670(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S STATEMENT OF DECISION IN THIS CASE CONSTITUTES A PART OF THE JUDGMENT ROLL.

Judgment Roll. A referee's statement of decision is a part of the judgment roll (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 643(a), 644(a), 670(b); Brodie v. Barnes (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 320, 132 P.2d 595).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that the referee's statement of decision in the case constitutes a part of the judgment roll [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644(a), 670(b)].

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the contents of the judgment roll. For example, they may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities submitted in support of a motion to augment the record [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(a) (augmentation of record)]. They may also be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), to set aside the judgment on the ground the judgment is void when the invalidity appears from an examination of the referee's statement of decision on which judgment was entered. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use with respect to the record on appeal from superior or municipal courts, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record , and Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , respectively, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms of notices of motion to set aside a judgment which may be adapted for use in moving under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) for an order setting aside an order or judgment on the ground it is void, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders , in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting a motion to set aside a judgment on the ground it is void on its face, see Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders , in this publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Judgment Roll

Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b) provides that the judgment roll in a case other than one in which the complaint is not answered by any defendant consists of, among other papers, the statement of decision of the court, or finding of the referee. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b) uses the term "finding of the referee," the reference statutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 638 et seq.) were amended in 1984 to substitute the words "decision" or "statement of decision" for the words "finding" or "findings"; and that terminology was carried forward in later amendments [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 643(a), 644(a), 645; see also discussion at § 201.72[3][a] and [b]]. Code Civ. Proc. § 670, however, was not amended. Nevertheless, the term "finding of the referee" in Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b) should be read as "statement of decision of the referee" to comport with the amended reference statutes. Under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a) and 643(a), the referee or commissioner must report his or her "statement of decision" in writing to the court within 20 days after the hearing, if any, is concluded and the matter is submitted; under Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a) in a consensual general reference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner on the whole issue stands as the decision of the court, and on filing of the statement of decision, judgment is entered on it in the same manner as if the action had been tried by the court [see § 201.73].

The facts and procedural background of Brodie v. Barnes (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 132 P.2d 595 , are discussed in § 201.71[3][a]. In affirming the judgment in part and reversing it in part, the court of appeal said that there can be no doubt but that the referee's report and findings and exceptions thereto are properly part of the judgment roll (56 Cal. App. 2d 315, 320) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.75

§ 201.75 Supporting Contention That Order Confirming or Modifying Referee's Report on Special Reference Need Not Be Included in Judgment Roll [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PAPERS CONSTITUTING THE JUDGMENT ROLL ARE LISTED IN SECTION 670 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE AND THERE IS NO REQUIREMENT UNDER THIS SECTION THAT AN ORDER CONFIRMING OR MODIFYING A REFEREE'S REPORT FILED PURSUANT TO A SPECIAL REFERENCE BE INCLUDED IN THE JUDGMENT ROLL.

Court Order Confirming or Modifying Referee's Report Is Not Part of Judgment Roll. There is no legal requirement that a court order confirming or modifying a referee's findings made pursuant to a special reference be included in the judgment roll (see Code Civ. Proc. § 670; National Brass Wks. v. Weeks (1928) 92 Cal. App. 318, 322, 268 P. 412).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that there is no legal requirement that a court order confirming or modifying a referee's report on a special reference be included in the judgment roll [see Code Civ. Proc. § 670].

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to whether an order modifying or confirming a referee's report on a special reference constitutes a part of the judgment roll. For example, they may be used in an appellate brief in opposition to the contention that the judgment is defective because the judgment roll does not contain an order confirming or modifying the referee's finding. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use with respect to the record on appeal from superior courts and municipal courts, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record , and Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Order Confirming or Modifying Referee's Report Is Not Part of Judgment Roll

Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b) provides that in the case of all references other than general consensual references pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court.

National Brass Wks. v. Weeks (1928) 92 Cal. App. 318, 268 P. 412 , was an action to recover on a bond given by defendant sureties to secure the faithful performance of a building contract between plaintiff owner and defendant contractor. It was alleged the contractor had used materials different from and inferior to those required by the contract and the work was not performed in a workmanlike manner. When the cause came on for trial, the court, on stipulation of the parties, appointed a referee "to try any and all of the issues of fact and to report a finding thereon and to ascertain the facts necessary to enable the court to determine this action" (92 Cal. App. 318, 320) . The referee thereafter heard the evidence and filed his report, to which defendants filed written objections. The court subsequently filed its decision containing complete findings of fact and conclusions of law (now, statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]), and judgment was entered accordingly for plaintiff. Defendants appealed on the judgment roll, contending among other things that the judgment was fatally defective in that the judgment roll did not contain an order confirming or modifying the referee's findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644, 645]).

The court of appeal found no merit to this contention and affirmed. The court said that when the order of reference is made and the referee's findings are filed pursuant to a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) (reference to try any or all issues in action or proceeding, whether of fact or law), and judgment is entered thereon in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a), then, under the express provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 670, the findings of the referee constitute part of the judgment roll because the judgment in the action is based entirely on the referee's findings. But when the order of reference is made and the referee's findings are reported pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) (to ascertain fact necessary to enable court to determine action or proceeding), a special reference, there is no legal requirement that the order of the court confirming or modifying the findings be made part of the judgment roll (92 Cal. App. 318, 322) .

Although National Brass Wks. involved a special reference with the consent of the parties pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b), the same reasoning would appear to apply to a referee's report made pursuant to a special reference ordered without the consent of the parties under Code Civ. Proc. § 639.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.76-201.79

[Reserved]

§§ 201.76[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.80

§ 201.80 Opposing Contention That Referee's Report Under Special Reference [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(b), 639] Should Be or Was Properly Confirmed--Report Is Not Supported by Evidence or Is Incomplete or Ambiguous

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S REPORT IN THIS CASE _____ [IS or WAS] _____ [NOT SUPPORTED BY THE EVIDENCE and/or INCOMPLETE and/or AMBIGUOUS] AND _____ [SHOULD NOT BE or WAS IMPROPERLY] CONFIRMED AND ADOPTED BY THE COURT.

[EITHER, when report not supported by evidence]

Report Not Supported by Evidence. A court may refuse to accept the report of a referee under an order of special reference when the referee's decision is not supported by the evidence (see Clark v. Millsap (1926) 197 Cal. 765, 784-785, 242 P. 918 ; McHenry v. Moore (1855) 5 Cal. 90, 92) .

[OR, when report is incomplete or ambiguous]

Report Incomplete or Ambiguous. A court may refuse to accept the report of a referee appointed under an order of special reference when the report is incomplete or ambiguous (see Schefski v. Anker (1932) 216 Cal. 624, 627, 15 P.2d 744 ; San Diego Fruit & Prod. Co. v. Elster (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 86, 273 P.2d 70).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the referee's report should be or was properly confirmed and adopted by the trial court. Both paragraphs may be included, separately lettered A and B, if the report is not supported by the evidence and is incomplete or ambiguous.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of the referee's report. For example, the points and authorities may be submitted in support of exceptions to the referee's report. Or they may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order confirming or adopting the referee's report or in support of a motion to set aside the referee's report. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show in what respect the evidence is insufficient to support the referee's decision or the report is incomplete and ambiguous. With respect to the ground of insufficiency of evidence, counsel will need to procure a copy of the reporter's transcript of the proceedings before the referee and submit it to the court [see § 201.71].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion to set aside a referee's report based on exceptions to the report made pursuant to a special reference, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.70.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Report Not Supported by Evidence

Clark v. Millsap (1926) 197 Cal. 765, 242 P. 918 , was an action by a client against her former attorney for an accounting and other relief. Plaintiff had employed defendant to act as her attorney and counselor at law and represent her in certain legal matters which were then pending or about to be commenced, both against her and in her behalf. On defendant's advice, plaintiff had transferred substantially all of her estate, consisting of a large number of securities and real property, to a holding corporation, formed for the purpose by defendant. The property was to be held for her benefit pending a threatened contingency, which had long since passed, and then returned to her. Defendant, however, converted much of the property to cash, took possession of it, and refused to account to plaintiff for it. On the consent of the parties, the trial court appointed a referee to take and state an account between the parties, and the parties stipulated that all exceptions or objections to the report or findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]) of the referee might be made by either party at the time of trial. The referee thereafter made his report. The trial court refused to accept the referee's report as a complete accounting between the parties. Instead, the court heard evidence pertaining to the accounting and made its own findings (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]). Judgment was for plaintiff. Defendant appealed, contending, among other things, that the trial court committed reversible error by refusing to accept as conclusive and binding the findings of the referee.

The Supreme Court rejected the contention and affirmed the judgment, in effect holding that the reference was special under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) and not general under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) (197 Cal. 765, 784-785) . The Court said that the referee's report was not supported by evidence which was deemed satisfactory by the trial court and that the trial court had the inherent power to set it aside, as if it were a jury verdict (197 Cal. 765, 785) .

McHenry v. Moore (1855) 5 Cal. 90 , was an action for dissolution of a partnership and an accounting. The matter was referred to a referee to report on the condition of the account, take testimony, and report facts to the court. The referee reported a voluminous mass of testimony, somewhat contradictory in its character, and his findings of fact and conclusions of law (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 645]). Exceptions to the report were filed. The court set aside the report, made its own findings of fact (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) on the testimony reported, and rendered judgment on its own findings.

The Supreme Court affirmed. It said that it is well settled that a court can interfere and set aside the report of a referee on the same ground as it will proceed to set aside the verdict of a jury, and thus it can set aside a report of a master or referee, not only when it is against the weight of evidence, but also when the facts of the case are various and intricate and the matters involved are in doubt and obscurity (5 Cal. 90, 92) .

[b] Report Incomplete or Ambiguous

The facts and procedural background of Schefski v. Anker (1932) 216 Cal. 624, 15 P.2d 744 , are discussed in § 201.17[3][a]. Although the Supreme Court reversed the judgment with directions because of errors in the account and confusion in the trial court's record, the Court approved the trial court's rejection of the account reported by a referee. The Court pointed out that the report was incomplete in several respects and obviously incorrect as to others and that when it was submitted to the trial court, the judge admitted that he was unable to understand many of the entries. The Supreme Court rejected the contention that the reference was a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) and held that the reference was clearly under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) (a special reference to ascertain fact necessary to enable court to determine action or proceeding) (216 Cal. 624, 627) . The trial court was well within its power in refusing to accept the referee's report and in taking additional testimony after the report was submitted (216 Cal. 624, 628) .

San Diego Fruit & Prod. Co. v. Elster (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 273 P.2d 70 , was an action on promissory notes in which defendant cross complained for an accounting and other relief. Prior to trial, the court, without the consent of the parties, appointed a referee to determine certain factual matters insofar as possible. The referee subsequently filed a report that was objected to by defendant. The trial court proceeded to hear evidence and make an accounting between the parties. The court subsequently made findings (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) and rendered judgment for defendant for the amount found due him. Plaintiff appealed, contending, among other things, that the trial court had erred in disregarding the referee's report.

The court of appeal rejected the contention and affirmed the judgment. The court pointed out that the reference was special under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 to report on specific fact questions involved (127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 82, 85) . The court said the referee's report did not include facts which would have been sufficient for a decision in the case and the trial court was justified in not accepting the referee's report as final and in taking further evidence to bring out and determine the actual facts (127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 86) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.81

§ 201.81 Opposing Contention That Referee's Decision Must Stand as Decision of Court--Reference Presumed Special and Report Advisory Only

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S DECISION IN THIS CASE IS NOT BINDING ON THE COURT BECAUSE THE REFERENCE WAS NOT MADE FOR THE PURPOSE OF DETERMINING THE WHOLE ISSUE, AS THAT TERM IS USED IN SECTION 644(a) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, BUT RATHER WAS MADE FOR THE LIMITED PURPOSE OF _____ [specify purpose] AND WAS, THEREFORE, A SPECIAL REFERENCE ONLY.

A. Reference Presumed to Be Special. Unless it may be properly inferred by the court from the recitals in the decision of the referee and those of the court that the reference was general in its character, it must be presumed that it was a special reference for the benefit of the court (Estate of Johnston (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 860, 91 Cal. Rptr. 116 ; see Lewis v. Grunberg (1928) 205 Cal. 158, 161, 270 P. 181).

B. Referee's Report on Special Reference Is Not Binding on Trial Court. A special reference does not determine the whole issue and the referee's report does not become the decision of the court without further action by the trial judge (Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b); Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3 ; Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 599, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530).

C. Effect of Referee's Report on Special Reference. In a special reference, the referee's decision is binding only if accepted by the trial court and is accurately characterized as advisory; if the decision is accepted, it is, under Section 645 of the Code of Civil Procedure, treated as a special verdict; if it is not accepted, the referee's report, if admitted into evidence, is treated as any other evidence (Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b); Dynair Electronics, Inc. v. Video Cable, Inc. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 20, 127 Cal. Rptr. 268).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the decision of the referee must stand as the decision of the court.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of the referee's report. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate or a writ of prohibition seeking in the first instance to compel the trial court to enter judgment on the referee's report and in the second instance to restrain it from otherwise continuing with the trial of the case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086 (writ of mandate), 1102, 1103 (writ of prohibition)]. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel must show that the reference was not a general one, that the referee's report did not purport to decide the whole case, and the issues that were or are to be tried by the court.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.73.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Presumed to Be Special

Estate of Johnston (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 91 Cal. Rptr. 116 , arose out of a probate proceeding fixing an inheritance tax. The executrix filed objections to the report of the inheritance tax appraiser as to the taxability of a gift from the deceased to the executrix. The court ordered the issue submitted to the probate commissioner. After a hearing the commissioner filed his report with a recommendation that the objections be sustained. The court thereafter considered the evidence as reported by the commissioner, found the gift was made in contemplation of the decedent's death, and concluded as a matter of law that it was taxable. The commissioner's recommendation was rejected and the appraiser's report approved. The executrix appealed, contending that the reference was general under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) and the commissioner's findings of fact (now decision) had to stand as the finding (now decision) of the court under former Code Civ. Proc. § 644 [see now Code Civ. Proc. § 644(a)].

The court of appeal rejected the contention and affirmed the order. The court concluded the reference was special and quoted the statement from Lewis v. Grunberg (1928) 205 Cal. 158, 161, 270 P. 181 , below (12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 860) .

The facts and procedural background of Lewis v. Grunberg (1928) 205 Cal. 158, 270 P. 181 , are discussed in § 201.73[3][a]. In modifying the judgment to conform to the referee's findings and affirming it as modified, the Supreme Court said that unless it may be properly inferred by the court from the recitals in the findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644, 645]) of the referee and those of the court (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) that the reference was general in its character, it must be presumed that it was a special reference for the benefit of the court (205 Cal. 158, 161) .

[b] Referee's Report on Special Reference Is Not Binding on Trial Court

As amended effective January 1, 2001, Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b) provides that in the case of all references other than consensual general references under Code Civ. Proc. § 638, the decision of the referee or commissioner is only advisory. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations in whole or in part after independently considering the referee's findings and any objections and responses thereto filed with the court.

The facts and procedural background of Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 269 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 201.40[3][a]. In dismissing the appeal on the ground that the order vacating the order approving the commissioner's report was interlocutory and nonappealable, the Supreme Court held that the reference to the commissioner under former Code Civ. Proc. § 259a(2) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 259(b)), empowering court commissioners to take proof and make and report findings thereon as to any matter of fact on which information is required by the court, was equivalent to a special reference in which the referee's report does not become the decision of the court without further action by the trial judge, and that the commissioner's findings were advisory only (42 Cal. 2d 719, 722-723) .

The facts and procedural background of Bird v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 169 Cal. Rptr. 530 , are discussed in § 201.18[3][a]. Although the court of appeal ordered a writ issued directing the trial court to vacate its order of reference on the ground the reference was not authorized by statute, the court explained that a limitation applicable to special references of special issues under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 is that the report and findings of the referee are advisory only, comprise recommendations to the court on the specific issues referred, and become effective only when approved by the trial court. Quoting Holt v. Kelly (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 560, 562-563, 143 Cal. Rptr. 625, 574 P.2d 441 (discussed in § 201.15[3][a]), involving a reference by a court of appeal to hear evidence and make findings on certain specified questions, the court in Bird said in contrast to a general reference, which is permitted only by consent of the parties, a special referee's findings are not binding and are properly characterized as advisory only (112 Cal. App. 3d 595, 599) .

[c] Effect of Referee's Report on Special Reference

Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b) is set forth at [b], above. Code Civ. Proc. § 645, as amended effective January 1, 2001, provides that the decision of the referee appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638 or commissioner may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner as if made by the court. When the reference is to report the facts, the decision reported has the effect of a special verdict.

Dynair Electronics, Inc. v. Video Cable, Inc. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 127 Cal. Rptr. 268 , arose out of three actions consolidated for trial only. One of these was an action for, among other relief, an accounting. In this action, the court, on stipulation of the parties, appointed a referee to prepare an audit on funds advanced by plaintiffs (a corporation and its successor corporation) to defendant corporation which was involved in the construction of cable television systems. The referee's report was subsequently filed. Plaintiffs moved under former Code Civ. Proc. § 645 for an order accepting the referee's report as a special verdict. The court denied the motion but received the report in evidence as an expert opinion. The report showed that plaintiffs had advanced $124,600 to defendants. However, the referee could trace or allocate only $83,537 to construction of the television systems, and $41,063 remained unaccounted. The trial court reduced the $41,063 figure by $10,847 as representing an advance to the individual involved in constructing the systems and an allocation of a percentage of his salary directly to the projects, and rendered judgment in favor of plaintiffs for $30,216. Plaintiffs appealed, contending, among other things, that the trial court erred in denying the motion to accept the referee's report as a special verdict, in which event it would have recovered judgment in the amount of $41,063.

The court of appeal rejected the contention. Citing former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(1) and 644 [see now Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a) and 644(a)], the court said that in a general reference, consented to by all the parties, the factual and legal determinations (now statement of decision) of the referee are binding, but that in a special reference, the referee's findings of fact are binding only if so accepted by the trial court and are accurately characterized as advisory. Citing Code Civ. Proc. § 645, the court explained that if a special referee's findings (now decision) are accepted by the trial court they are treated as a special verdict, but added that before a special reference is accorded the status of a special finding of fact, the trial court must have accepted it as such; otherwise, the report, if admitted into evidence, is treated as any other evidence. The court held the trial court's election to treat the referee's report as evidence only, thus providing the latitude to consider other evidence in making its ruling in the action, was proper and no abuse of discretion appeared (55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 20) . However, the court modified the judgment to cover the amount of the advance given the individual constructing the cable television systems, noting there was no evidence that the amount had been repaid or forgiven, and affirmed the judgment as modified (55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 21-22) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Referee's Report on Special Reference Is Not Binding on Trial Court

Additional cases stating the rule that a special reference does not determine the whole issue and the report of the referee does not become the decision of the court without further action by the trial judge, include: In re M. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 727, 734, 122 Cal. Rptr. 574, 537 P.2d 406 (by analogy to references made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638, 639, and other statutory provisions, holding juvenile court referee's determinations in compulsory reference are not binding until adopted by court); Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 589, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873 ; Estate of Bassi (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 529, 537, 44 Cal. Rptr. 541 (until adoption of report and filing of findings of fact and conclusions of law [now statement of decision (Code Civ. Proc. § 632)], special referee's report may be set aside without necessity of granting new trial).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.82

§ 201.82 Opposing Contention That Referee's Decision Must Stand as Decision of Court--Reference Was by Consent of Parties Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) to Ascertain Facts Only

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S DECISION IN THIS CASE IS NOT BINDING ON THE COURT BECAUSE THE REFERENCE WAS MADE PURSUANT TO THE AGREEMENT OF THE PARTIES UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF SECTION 638(b) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE TO ASCERTAIN _____ [specify fact or facts], WHICH _____ [IS or ARE or WAS or WERE] NECESSARY TO ENABLE THE COURT TO DETERMINE THE _____ [ACTION or PROCEEDING], AND IT WAS, THEREFORE, A SPECIAL REFERENCE ONLY.

A. Statutory Authority for Reference With Consent of Parties. A referee may be appointed on the agreement of the parties filed with the clerk or judge, or entered in the minutes to ascertain a fact necessary to enable the court to determine an action or proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b)).

B. Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) Is Special. A reference on the agreement of the parties pursuant to Section 638(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure to ascertain a fact necessary to enable the court to determine an action or proceeding is a special reference (Dynair Electronics, Inc. v. Video Cable, Inc. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 20, 127 Cal. Rptr. 268 ; Estate of Johnston (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 859, 91 Cal. Rptr. 116).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the decision of the referee pursuant to a reference ordered with the consent of the parties must stand as the decision of the court when the reference was simply to ascertain facts and not to report a statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(b), 644].

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of the referee's report. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in § 201.81 and submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to enter judgment on the referee's report or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from otherwise continuing with the trial of the case. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the order of reference, although made with the consent of the parties, was to ascertain a fact or facts only, that the referee's report did not purport to decide the whole case, and what issues remain or remained for trial by the court.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.73.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) Is Special

The facts and procedural background of Dynair Electronics, Inc. v. Video Cable, Inc. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 127 Cal. Rptr. 268 , are discussed in § 201.81[3][c]. In modifying the judgment, the court of appeal said that the appointment of a referee pursuant to an agreement of the parties is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 638, and that Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) provides for a special reference in which the referee is appointed to ascertain a fact necessary to aid the court in reaching its decision (55 Cal. App. 3d 11, 20) .

The facts and procedural background of Estate of Johnston (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 91 Cal. Rptr. 116 , are discussed in § 201.81[3][a]. In affirming the order fixing inheritance tax, the court of appeal pointed out that Code Civ. Proc. § 638 relates only to references ordered on the agreement of the parties. The court explained (1) that a reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) refers to a general reference for trial before a referee, (2) that on such a reference the referee's findings (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 644(a)]) must stand as the findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 644(a)]) of the court, and (3) that judgment will be entered thereon in the same manner as though the matter had been tried by the court. The court added that, on the other hand, Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) provides for a special reference (to ascertain a fact necessary to enable the court to determine an action or proceeding) and that on such a reference the referee's report may be set aside or disregarded by the court, that the findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644(b), 645]) are advisory only (12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 859) . The court held the record on appeal did not indicate anything other than a limited or special reference was ordered by the court and, since it was a special reference, the court was permitted to make its own findings and decision on the evidence presented by the probate commissioner (12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 860) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) Is Special

The facts and procedural background of Schefski v. Anker (1932) 216 Cal. 624, 15 P.2d 744 , are discussed in § 201.17[3][a]. Although the Supreme Court reversed the judgment because of numerous errors in the record, it held that the reference was a special reference made under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b), and not a general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a), and that the trial court was well within its power in refusing to accept the report and in taking additional testimony after the report was submitted (216 Cal. 624, 627-628) .

The facts and procedural background of Clark v. Millsap (1926) 197 Cal. 765, 242 P. 918 , are discussed in § 201.80[3][a]. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court said that under the reference the referee was authorized only to take and state the account and was not authorized to try all issues of fact and law and report a finding and judgment (now statement of decision) thereon as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a) (197 Cal. 765, 784) . The referee was appointed to aid the court in the computation of accounts in the interests of time and the trial court went fully into the whole matter of the accounting. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 644 was not controlling as the reference did not include both questions of fact and law, and was not adopted by the trial court. The report was, therefore, susceptible of vacation without the necessity of granting a new trial (197 Cal. 765, 784-785) .

The facts and procedural background of National Brass Wks. v. Weeks (1928) 92 Cal. App. 318, 268 P. 412 , are discussed in § 201.75[3][a]. In affirming the judgment for plaintiff, the court of appeal said that a referee's report on an order of reference made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b) is not binding on the court, since further proceedings by the court are essential to a complete determination of the cause. The order of reference, by including the clause "and to ascertain the facts necessary to enable the court to determine this cause" and by omitting to state that the referee was authorized to try all issues "whether of fact or of law," clearly showed that the cause was not intended to be taken from the trial court and committed to the referee for decision (92 Cal. App. 318, 321) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.83

§ 201.83 Opposing Contention That Referee's Decision Must Stand as Decision of Court--Reference Was Ordered Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S DECISION IN THIS CASE IS NOT REQUIRED TO STAND AS THE DECISION OF THE COURT UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 644(a) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE BECAUSE THE REFERENCE WAS ORDERED WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF THE PARTIES PURSUANT TO THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 639(a) _____ [cite paragraph] OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE TO _____ [specify].

Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 Is Special. A reference under Section 639 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not require the consent of the parties and is a special reference (see Estate of Johnston (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 860, 91 Cal. Rptr. 116).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the decision of the referee pursuant to a reference allegedly ordered with the consent of the parties must stand as the decision of the court when the reference was made without the consent of the parties pursuant to one of the paragraphs of Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a).

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of the referee's report. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in § 201.81 and submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to enter judgment on the referee's report or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from otherwise continuing with the trial of the case. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show what the order of reference stated, that the order was made without the consent of all the parties, that the referee's report did not purport to decide the whole case, and what issues remain or remained to be tried by the court.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.73.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 Is Special

The facts and procedural background of Estate of Johnston (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 91 Cal. Rptr. 116 , are discussed in § 201.81[3][a]. In affirming the order fixing inheritance tax, the court said that in a reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 consent of the parties is not necessary and, except perhaps where "the referees may be directed to hear and decide the whole issue" (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1); see § 201.84), a reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 is obviously a special reference (12 Cal. App. 3d 855, 860) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.84

§ 201.84 Opposing Contention That Finding of Referee Must Stand as Finding of Court--Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) Was to Hear and Decide Whole Issue Relating Only to the Account

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S DECISION IN THIS CASE IS NOT REQUIRED TO STAND AS THE DECISION OF THE COURT UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 644(a) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE BECAUSE (1) THE REFERENCE WAS MADE WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF ALL THE PARTIES PURSUANT TO THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 639(a)(1) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE, AND (2) THE TERM "WHOLE ISSUE," AS USED IN THE ORDER REFERRING THE MATTER TO THE REFEREE TO TAKE AND STATE AN ACCOUNT AND DIRECTING THE REFEREE TO HEAR AND DETERMINE THE WHOLE ISSUE, MEANS ONLY THE WHOLE ISSUE INVOLVED IN THE ACCOUNT AND NOT OTHER ISSUES INVOLVED IN THE CASE.

Meaning of "Whole Issue." "Whole issue," as used in Section 639(a)(1) of the Code of Civil Procedure, authorizing a reference without the consent of the parties when trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account and providing that the referees may be directed to hear and decide the whole issue, means only the whole issue involved in the accounting and not other issues involved in the case (Barker Bros. Inc. v. Coates (1931) 211 Cal. 756, 758, 297 P. 8 ; Williams v. Benton (1864) 24 Cal. 424, 425 ; Fredendall v. Shrader (1920) 45 Cal. App. 719, 723, 188 P. 580).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the decision of the referee made pursuant to a reference directing the referee to hear and decide the whole issue is binding on the court when the order of reference was made without the consent of the parties pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) to take and state an account and the case involves the determination of other issues not related to the account.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of the referee's report. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities in § 201.40 or 201.81 and submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to enter judgment on the decision or in opposition to a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from otherwise continuing with the trial of the case. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should show what the order of reference stated, that the order was made without the consent of all the parties, that the referee's report did not purport to decide the whole case, and what issues remain or remained to be tried by the court. Counsel may submit cognizable evidence by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.73.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Meaning of "Whole Issue"

Barker Bros. Inc. v. Coates (1931) 211 Cal. 756, 297 P. 8 , involved consolidated actions to recover on claims for building materials and labor furnished and used in the construction of a bungalow. Plaintiff sought judgment against the contractor and the fixation of a lien on the property of the owners. The contractor defaulted. When the case came up for trial, the court on its own motion and over defendants' objection, referred it to a referee to try any and all issues of fact and law arising under the issues made by the pleadings. The referee heard the evidence and reported it to the court. The court, which had before it all the evidence taken by the referee and may have heard additional evidence, conducted a hearing on the report, approved the referee's findings, and amplified them by findings of fact and conclusions of law (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) of its own. Judgment was rendered for plaintiff impressing a lien on the property. The owners appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court said the record showed an examination of a "long account" was necessary, the reference was warranted under former Code Civ. Proc. § 639(1) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)), and under this provision the referee could be directed to hear and decide the whole issue or report on any specific question of fact involved therein. The Court said the decision of the "whole issue" in the foregoing statute meant the whole issue involved in the accounting (211 Cal. 756, 758) . Appellants had suffered no injury by the broad terms of the order of reference, since the trial court had done just what appellants intended it should do--it heard and determined the cause. Under this construction, the referee's findings did not determine the whole case and the trial court was able to make its own findings and conclusions (211 Cal. 756, 758-759) .

The facts and procedural background of Williams v. Benton (1864) 24 Cal. 424 , the leading case on this issue, are discussed at § 201.41[3][b]. In reversing the judgment for plaintiff entered on the referee's report, the Supreme Court said that under § 183 of the former Practice Act (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)) when the trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account on either side, a reference may be ordered, and the referees may in such case be directed to hear and decide the whole issue or report on any specific question of fact involved therein. The Court explained that the word "issue" is used twice in the statute, each time in the singular number, that no other issue is mentioned than such as requires the examination of a long account, and that no power is given the trial court to direct the referee to report a judgment. If there be but one issue in the action, and that issue involves the examination of a long account, the whole case may be sent to a referee, but even in that case the referee cannot be invested with power to report a judgment. If there are other issues in the case not involving the examination of a long account, the court has no compulsory power to send them to a referee for trial (24 Cal. 424, 425) .

The facts and procedural background of Fredendall v. Shrader (1920) 45 Cal. App. 719, 188 P. 580 , are discussed in § 201.17[3][a]. In affirming the judgment for the interveners, the court of appeal pointed out that the power of a referee under an order of reference made under the first subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 639 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)) is limited to the examination of a "long account," as to which the referee may, as directed by the court, either hear and decide the whole matter or issue, or report on any specific question of fact involved therein. The court held that the whole matter or "issue" refers to or means the account, and does not include other issues in the case or issues having no direct or immediate connection with the account (45 Cal. App. 719, 723) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.85

§ 201.85 Opposing Contention That Decision of Referee Must Stand as Decision of Court--Reference Under Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) Was to Report on Specific Questions of Fact Involved in Accounting

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFEREE'S REPORT IN THIS CASE IS NOT REQUIRED TO STAND AS THE DECISION OF THE COURT UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 644(a) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE BECAUSE THE REFERENCE WAS MADE WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF THE PARTIES PURSUANT TO THE PROVISIONS OF SECTION 639(a)(1) OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE TO REPORT ON SPECIFIC QUESTIONS OF FACT INVOLVED IN THE ACCOUNTING AND THE REPORT IS NOT BINDING ON THE COURT.

A. Direction to Report on Specific Fact Questions Involved in Accounting. On a reference ordered without the consent of the parties when the trial of an issue of fact requires the examination of a long account on either side, the referee may be directed to hear and decide the whole issue or report on any specific question of fact involved therein (Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1)).

B. Referee's Report on Specific Fact Questions Involved in Account Is Not Binding on Trial Court. The report of a referee made pursuant to a reference ordered under Section 639(a)(1) of the Code of Civil Procedure directing the referee to report on specific fact questions involved in an accounting is a special, not a general, reference and is not binding on the trial court (see Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b); San Diego Fruit & Prod. Co. v. Elster (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 85, 273 P.2d 70).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the report of the referee on a reference ordered pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(1) directing the referee to report on specific questions of fact involved in an account is binding on the court.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of the referee's report. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities in § 201.40 or 201.871 and submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to enter judgment on the decision or in opposition to a writ of prohibition to restrain the trial court from otherwise continuing with the trial of the case. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show (1) what the order of reference stated, (2) that the order was made without the consent of all the parties, (3) that the referee's report did not purport to decide the whole case, and (4) what issues remain or remained to be tried by the court. Counsel may submit cognizable evidence by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.73.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Referee's Report on Specific Fact Questions Involved in Account Is Not Binding on Trial Court

Code Civ. Proc. § 644(b) is set forth at § 201.70[3][a].

The facts and procedural background of San Diego Fruit & Prod. Co. v. Elster (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 273 P.2d 70 , are discussed at § 201.80[3][b]. In affirming judgment for defendant, the court of appeal, in response to plaintiff's argument that under Code Civ. Proc. § 645 the finding of the referee has the effect of a special verdict, said that ordinarily a jury's verdict is only advisory in an equity case and there is a distinction between the effect of the finding of a referee when the reference is general and when it is merely special. The court explained that this distinction is recognized in Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a) authorizing references without the consent of the parties, and providing that the court may either direct the referee to hear and decide the whole issue or merely to "report upon any specific question of fact involved." The reference involved was not a general one directing the referee to decide the whole issue, but was one directing the referee to find on certain specific questions involved (127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 85) . The court said the referee's report did not include facts which would have been sufficient for a decision of the case and the trial court was justified in not accepting it as final and in taking further evidence to bring out and determine the actual facts (127 Cal. App. 2d 80, 86) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.86

§ 201.86 Opposing Contention That Discovery Referee's Report [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)] Should Be or Was Properly Confirmed--Referee Did Not Examine Each Item as to Which Privilege Was Claimed

[1] FORM

A DISCOVERY REFEREE APPOINTED TO DETERMINE MATTERS OF ATTORNEY-CLIENT OR WORK PRODUCT PRIVILEGE MUST EXAMINE EACH ITEM TO DETERMINE ITS DOMINANT PURPOSE.

A. Dominant Purpose Standard. When a discovery referee is appointed to determine matters involving assertion of the attorney client privilege and/or work product privilege with regard to documents prepared by, or questions asked of, an attorney who served in a dual capacity, [for example, to do claims review and analysis as well as to render legal advice], the referee must examine each document and question to determine its dominant purpose (2,022 Ranch v. Superior Court (Chicago Title Ins. Co.) (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1392, 1397, 1401, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the report of a discovery referee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(5)] appointed to resolve claims of attorney-client and/or work product privilege should be, or was properly, adopted by the court. The contention is based on the ground that the referee did not conduct the requisite document-by-document or question-by-question review when the attorney served not only as an attorney, but also in some other capacity, such as claims investigator. Admittedly, this may be difficult to prove, because the referee does not have to set forth the reasons for his or her findings in the report [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 643(c); discussed in §§ 201.70 -201.72].

This memorandum is not intended as a complete memorandum and addresses only the procedure that must be adhered to by the discovery referee. It is not intended to address the substantive merits of a privilege claim. For authorities addressing the merits of a particular attorney-client or work product privilege claim, see Ch. 81, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitations . Counsel may wish to include authorities from that chapter in his or her memorandum. Counsel should also include other authority from this chapter, specifically § 201.80 et seq. as well as authority related to the procedural context in which the memorandum is submitted. For example, the points and authorities may be submitted in support of exceptions to the referee's report. Or they may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a motion for an order confirming or adopting the referee's report or in support of a motion to set aside the referee's report. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel must show that the referee did not make a document-by-document or question-by-question analysis of the privilege asserted. Perhaps, as in the authority used in this form, the referee's report itself will give evidence regarding how extensive a review he or she made. Counsel may submit cognizable evidence by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities in [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.70 et seq.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dominant Purpose Standard

2,022 Ranch v. Superior Court (Chicago Title Ins. Co.) (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197 was a bad faith action by an insured under a title insurance policy against its insurer to recover damages it claimed were caused by the insurer's failure to disclose exceptions in the title insurance policy. Defendant/real party objected to document production requests and deposition questions on the grounds of attorney-client privilege and work product. Its claims handlers, who made the decision to deny plaintiff/petitioner's title insurance claim, were attorneys. The matter was referred to a retired judge to determine the matter as a referee. The referee reported that two of the 65 documents were not privileged, and upheld the privilege as to all the deposition questions and the remainder of the documents. The trial court adopted the referee's report, which resulted in denial of the motions to produce documents and compel answers to deposition questions. Plaintiff petitioned for writ of mandate, contending that the dominant purpose of the claims handler review was investigation of the claim and therefore, even if the claims handlers were attorneys, that no attorney-client privilege attached. Plaintiff/petitioner further contended that no attorney-client privilege attached to items in a claim file in first party insured bad faith actions.

The court of appeal reversed, finding that the referee erred in failing to review each deposition question and withheld document to determine which constituted Chicago Title's factual investigation of 2,022 Ranch's claim and which constituted attorney-client communications or work product (113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1382) . The referee found that the attorneys were not engaged in activity beyond claims review and analysis, and that all the requested information was relevant, despite defendant's admission of liability, because plaintiff alleged defendant's actions were willful, malicious, and oppressive and sought punitive damages. Although the referee noted that assertion of the attorney-client privilege might interfere with a clear understanding of the circumstances of the matter, he nevertheless upheld the privilege claim (113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1386) . The court discussed cases and situations in which the privilege was asserted by attorneys serving a dual function: as negotiator and attorney, to give business and legal advice, and discussed the "dominant purpose" doctrine. In those situations, the court should base its ruling on the subject matter of each document (113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1390-1392) . The court noted that the attorney-client and work-product privileges can be waived by placing the contents of privileged communications at issue, and that when privileged information goes to the heart of the claim, fundamental fairness requires that it be disclosed for the litigation to proceed (113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1394-1396) . However, the court did not agree with plaintiff that all material developed by the in-house counsel claims adjusters was open to discovery (113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1397) . The court of appeal discussed several cases and treatises that emphasized the importance of the original claim file in bad faith cases: how else is the jury to know if the insured acted fairly and in good faith in denying the claim (113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1396) ? The court also reiterated the rule that when attorney-client privilege is asserted, the court must generally determine the issue on a document-by-document and issue-by-issue basis. The referee did not examine each deposition question and each document in accordance with that standard to determine the dominant purpose of each. Thus, the court of appeal granted the writ and returned the matter to the trial court with directions for the court to conduct a particularized review of the deposition questions and documents consistent with that standard (113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1397, 1401) . The court of appeal had reviewed some of the documents and questions in camera and determined that some concerned only factual claims and others could be discoverable after redaction to omit the attorney-adjuster's impressions or conclusions (113 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1399-1400) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
C. Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.87-201.89

[Reserved]

§§ 201.87[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
D. New Trial After Judgment on Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.90

§ 201.90 Supporting Contention That New Trial Should Be or Was Properly Granted Following Trial of Case by Referee Pursuant to General Reference [Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a)]--Newly Discovered Evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(4)] or Evidence Insufficient to Support Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 657(6)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

A NEW TRIAL IN THIS CASE _____ [SHOULD BE or WAS PROPERLY] GRANTED BECAUSE _____ [OF NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE, MATERIAL FOR _____ (specify, party who moved or is moving for new trial, e.g., DEFENDANT) WHICH _____ (specify, e.g., DEFENDANT) COULD NOT, WITH REASONABLE DILIGENCE, HAVE DISCOVERED AND PRODUCED AT THE TRIAL BEFORE THE REFEREE or THE EVIDENCE PRESENTED BEFORE THE REFEREE _____ (IS or WAS) INSUFFICIENT TO JUSTIFY HIS/HER DECISION].

A. New Trial Defined. A new trial is a reexamination of an issue of fact in the same court after a trial and decision by a jury, court, or referee (Code Civ. Proc. § 656).

B. Applicability of New Trial Provisions to Trial by Referee. The statutory provisions relating to a new trial (Code Civ. Proc. § 656 et seq.) apply when trial was by a referee on whose statement of decision a judgment was entered (see Cappe v. Brizzolara (1862) 19 Cal. 607, 608 ; In re Riccardi (1926) 80 Cal. App. 66, 71-72, 251 P. 650).

[EITHER, when ground is newly discovered evidence]

C. Newly Discovered Evidence. A new trial is proper under Section 657(4) of the Code of Civil Procedure when evidence, which is material to the party making application, has been newly discovered and could not, with reasonable diligence, have been discovered and produced at the trial (see Hoyt v. Saunders (1854) 4 Cal. 345, 347-348) .

[OR, when ground is insufficiency of the evidence]

C. Insufficiency of Evidence. A new trial is proper under Section 657(6) of the Code of Civil Procedure when the evidence presented before the referee is insufficient to sustain the referee's statement of decision on which judgment was entered (see Cappe v. Brizzolara (1862) 19 Cal. 607, 608 ; In re Riccardi (1926) 80 Cal. App. 66, 72-73, 251 P. 650).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that a new trial may be or was properly granted after trial of a case by a referee on a general reference. The first alternative for Paragraph C should be included when the new trial is or was grounded on newly discovered evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 657(4)]; the second alternative for Paragraph C should be included when the new trial is or was grounded on insufficiency of the evidence to support the referee's statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 644(a), 657(6)]. For a full discussion of the motion for new trial, including all the grounds on which the motion may be based and the procedure to follow, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of granting a new trial after trial by a referee pursuant to an order of general reference under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(a). For example, they may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities submitted in support of a motion for new trial following the filing of the referee's statement of decision. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, if the new trial is sought or was granted because of newly discovered evidence, counsel should show what the newly discovered evidence is or was, its materiality, and how it would or did affect the referee's report. These matters should be set out in affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 658, 2015.5]. If the ground is insufficiency of the evidence, counsel should identify each factual basis stated in the referee's statement of decision that is not supported by the evidence and point out all the evidence introduced that bears on that fact. If possible, counsel should produce a copy of the reporter's transcript, if any, of the proceedings before the referee and point out all the evidence in the transcript that bears on the challenged factual determination [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 658, 660]. Counsel may submit cognizable evidence by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations.

Affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) are authorized generally for use in support of or in opposition to a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009 (authorizing use of affidavits on a motion), 2015.5]. Their purpose is to supply the facts within the personal knowledge of the affiant (or declarant) necessary to establish the ground or grounds of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003; Evid. Code § 702]. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of judgment based on a referee's report made pursuant to a special reference and adopted by the court, a form of notice of intention to move for a new trial following entry of judgment on a referee's report made pursuant to a general reference, and a form of order setting aside a referee's report or judgment and granting a new trial, see Ch. 38, Reference , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for general use in moving for a new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing a motion for new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities in § 201.100 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Applicability of New Trial Provisions to Trial by Referee

Cappe v. Brizzolara (1862) 19 Cal. 607 , was an action on a promissory note by the assignee against the makers in which defendants (1) asserted as an affirmative defense that plaintiff took the note after maturity and (2) claimed various setoffs. The case was sent to a referee, who reported findings and judgment (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]) for defendants. Plaintiff's motion for new trial on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence to justify the decision was granted, and one of the defendants appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court said that the provisions of the former Practice Act relating to new trials (now Code Civ. Proc. § 656 et seq.) are general in their terms and vest in the courts the same power in cases tried by a referee as in cases tried by the court itself or by a jury, that every case is placed on the same footing, and the grounds on which a new trial may be granted are the same in all cases, irrespective of the manner in which the case was originally tried (19 Cal. 607, 608) .

The facts and procedural background of In re Riccardi (1926) 80 Cal. App. 66, 251 P. 650 , are discussed at § 201.70[4][a]. In denying the motion to amend the referee's findings and granting the counter motion to adopt and confirm the referee's findings, the court of appeal quoted the language from Cappe v. Brizzolara (1862) 19 Cal. 607, 608 , above (80 Cal. App. 66, 71) . The court explained that Cappe was based on provisions relating to references in the former Practice Act, but that the provisions contained in the former Practice Act had been codified, are now set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 638 et seq., and that no material change in the wording had been made (80 Cal. App. 66, 72) .

[b] Newly Discovered Evidence

Hoyt v. Saunders (1854) 4 Cal. 345 , was an action on a promissory note. By consent of the parties, the case was referred to a referee to report on all questions of law and fact in the case. After the referee had prepared his report but before it was filed, defendant applied for leave to reopen the case to introduce newly discovered evidence. The referee denied the application because of doubt as to his power to grant it. The referee subsequently filed his report (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638(a), 644(a)]), but, in a supplemental report, he intimated to the court that had such newly discovered evidence been adduced at trial, the result would probably have been different. Defendant's motion for a new trial was denied, and judgment was entered on the referee's report. Defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court said that the trial court should have granted a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence (4 Cal. 345, 347) . The Court pointed out that the referee's report disclosed some hesitation and doubt on the part of the referee in arriving at his conclusions of fact and that his supplemental report showed that, had the newly discovered evidence been adduced on the trial, the result in all probability would have been different (4 Cal. 345, 347-348) . The Court held that, under the circumstances, the ends of justice would be better preserved by a new trial (4 Cal. 345, 348) .

[c] Insufficiency of Evidence

The facts and procedural background of Cappe v. Brizzolara (1862) 19 Cal. 607 , are discussed at [a], above. In affirming the order granting a new trial, the Supreme Court said that there is no doubt that it was competent for the trial court to grant a new trial on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence and that its legal discretion in that respect was not affected by the fact that the case was tried before a referee (19 Cal. 607, 608) .

The facts and procedural background of In re Riccardi (1926) 80 Cal. App. 66, 251 P. 650 , are discussed at § 201.70[4][a]. In denying the motion to amend the referee's findings and granting the counter motion to adopt and confirm the referee's findings, the court of appeal pointed out that Code Civ. Proc. § 645 provides that the findings (now decision) of the referee or commissioner may be excepted to and reviewed in like manner as if made by the court and that when the reference is to report the facts, the finding reported has the effect of a special verdict (80 Cal. App. 66, 72) . The court said that on first reading, the first sentence of the section was not altogether clear, but that its history threw full light on its meaning. The court discussed the history of the section and concluded that under Code Civ. Proc. § 645 a party may object to the want of findings or on the ground that there is no finding regarding a particular fact in issue, but that when a party thinks any finding is contrary to or unsupported by the evidence, the party must make that a ground of a motion for a new trial and cannot avail himself or herself of the alleged error in any other manner (80 Cal. App. 66, 72-73) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
D. New Trial After Judgment on Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.91

§ 201.91 Supporting Contention That Order Granting Premature Motion for New Trial After Interlocutory Order Directing an Accounting Is Void

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE ORDER IN THIS CASE GRANTING A MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL AFTER ENTRY OF AN INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT FIXING THE LIABILITY AND RIGHTS OF THE PARTIES AND DIRECTING A REFERENCE FOR AN ACCOUNTING ON THE BASIS OF WHICH FUTURE JUDICIAL ACTION IS REQUIRED IS PREMATURE AND VOID.

Invalidity of Order for New Trial After Interlocutory Judgment Directing Reference. An order granting a motion for new trial after entry of an interlocutory judgment directing a reference to take and state an account is premature and void (Middleton v. Finney (1931) 214 Cal. 523, 528, 6 P.2d 938).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a contention that an order granting a motion for new trial after entry of an interlocutory order directing a reference to take and state an account is premature and void. For points and authorities in support of the contention that the order is interlocutory only, which may be combined with the points and authorities at [1], above, § 201.110.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the propriety of granting a new trial following entry of an order or judgment directing a reference to take and state an account. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a motion for new trial following the entry of such a judgment or in support of a motion to set aside the order granting a new trial. They may also be used in an appellate brief on appeal from the order granting a motion for new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(4), 904.2(e)]. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that an order of reference was made to take an accounting and that the order is interlocutory only, that is, that a judicial act remains to be done. Counsel may submit cognizable evidence by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use on a motion for a new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For form and contents of appellate briefs on appeal from superior or municipal court, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs , and Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing motions for new trial, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial , in this publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Invalidity of Order for New Trial after Interlocutory Judgment Directing Reference

Middleton v. Finney (1931) 214 Cal. 523, 6 P.2d 938 , was a certiorari proceeding arising out of an action for dissolution of a partnership and an accounting. The trial court rendered judgment dissolving the partnership, determining the respective interests of the parties in specified property, directing an accounting, and providing that on completion of the accounting the court would decree the amount of money due from the parties. Defendants moved for a new trial and the motion was denied. The accountant's report was subsequently filed and adopted by the trial court, which decreed the sums due. Defendants' motion to vacate both the original and subsequent judgments and for a new trial was granted. Plaintiff petitioned for a writ of certiorari, contending that the trial court had exhausted its jurisdiction to grant a new trial with respect to the first judgment by its prior order denying the motion for new trial.

The Supreme Court affirmed on the ground that an erroneous premature order cannot deprive the trial court of the power to make the correct order at the proper time (214 Cal. 523, 528) . The Court explained that under Gunder v. Gunder (1929) 208 Cal. 559, 561-562, 282 P. 794 , discussed at § 201.110[3][a], the parties correctly conceded that the first judgment was interlocutory and not final. The Court said: (1) though certain issues had been declared to be settled in the first decree and there remained only the necessity of ascertaining the amounts of money to be paid, this had to be done and until done the case before the trial court was not concluded; (2) the computations, though they involved a mere matter of arithmetic, were subject to the approval of the trial court and were to be incorporated, if approved, in a further judgment; and (3) a judicial act therefore remained to be done (214 Cal. 523, 525) . The Court held that if a judgment is interlocutory and not made subject to appeal or motion for new trial by express statutory authority, a motion for new trial is premature and void and may be set aside by the trial court (214 Cal. 523, 528) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Invalidity of Order for New Trial After Interlocutory Judgment Directing Reference

Other cases not involving an accounting but holding that proceedings for a new trial taken prematurely are a nullity include Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 459, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 ; Tabor v. Superior Court (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 505, 507, 170 P.2d 667 (matter as jurisdictional and not subject to change by consent, waiver, agreement, or acquiescence); and Ehrler v. Ehrler (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 147, 152, 178 Cal. Rptr. 642 .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
D. New Trial After Judgment on Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.92-201.99

[Reserved]

§§ 201.92[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
D. New Trial After Judgment on Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.100

§ 201.100 Opposing Contention That New Trial Should Be or Was Properly Granted--Reference Was Special and Report May Be Set Aside Without Granting New Trial

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REFERENCE IN THIS CASE WAS SPECIAL FOR THE PURPOSE OF _____ [specify]; HENCE, THE REFEREE'S REPORT MAY BE SET ASIDE AT ANY TIME PRIOR TO THE FILING OF THE COURT'S DECISION WITHOUT THE NECESSITY OF GRANTING A NEW TRIAL.

New Trial Is Not Required in Order to Set Aside Referee's Report on Special Reference. Until the adoption of the referee's report on a special reference and the filing of the court's decision, the report may be set aside without the necessity of granting a new trial (Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 723, 269 P.2d 3).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a new trial should be or was properly granted. The ground of opposition is that the reference was special, the referee's report was advisory only, and the report may be set aside by the trial court without the necessity of granting a new trial.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of a referee's report. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities submitted in opposition to a motion for new trial or in support of a motion to set aside the order granting a motion for new trial. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel the trial court to enter judgment on the referee's report or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the trial court from proceeding to try the case.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the reference made was, in fact, special. This may be done by showing the reference was made with the consent of the parties under Code Civ. Proc. § 638(b), or that it was made without the consent of the parties under Code Civ. Proc. § 639, or by showing the issues in the case that were tried by the court before the reference was ordered or the issues that remained to be tried after the referee's report was filed.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use on a motion for a new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing a motion for new trial or a petition for writ of mandate or prohibition, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial , and Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.90.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] New Trial Is Not Required in Order to Set Aside Referee's Report on Special Reference

The facts and procedural background of Ellsworth v. Ellsworth (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 719, 269 P.2d 3 , are discussed in § 201.40[3][a]. In dismissing the appeal from the order vacating the order approving the commissioner's report, the Supreme Court said that until the adoption of the report of the referee on a special reference and the filing of the trial court's findings of fact and conclusions of law (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]), the referee's report may be set aside without the necessity of granting a new trial (42 Cal. 2d 719, 723)

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] New Trial Is Not Required in Order to Set Aside Referee's Report on Special Reference

Additional cases stating the rule that until adoption of the report of the referee on a special reference and the filing of the trial court's findings of fact and conclusions of law (now statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]), the referee's report may be set aside without the necessity of granting a new trial, include: Estate of Bassi (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 529, 537, 44 Cal. Rptr. 541 ; and Weinfeld v. Weinfeld (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 324 P.2d 342 .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
D. New Trial After Judgment on Referee's Report

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.101-201.109

[Reserved]

§§ 201.101[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
E. Appeal

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.110

§ 201.110 Supporting Contention That Order or Judgment Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable--Order or Judgment Directs Reference to Take Account or Directs Parties to Account and Future Judicial Action to Settle Rights of Parties Is Required

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE _____ [ORDER or JUDGMENT] IN THIS CASE IS INTERLOCUTORY [AND NONAPPEALABLE] BECAUSE IT DIRECTS [A REFERENCE TO TAKE] AN ACCOUNTING ON THE BASIS OF WHICH FUTURE JUDICIAL ACTION IS REQUIRED TO FINALLY SETTLE THE RIGHTS OF THE PARTIES.

A. Order or Judgment Directing Reference to Take Accounting Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable. An order or judgment that fixes the rights and liabilities of the parties and directs a reference for an accounting on the basis of which future judicial action is required is interlocutory and nonappealable (see Hollar v. Saline Products, Inc. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 80, 81-82, 43 P.2d 273 ; Gunder v. Gunder (1929) 208 Cal. 559, 561-562, 282 P. 794); Yeboah v. Progeny Ventures, Inc. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 448, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 150).

[Optional] B. Rule Applies When Accounting Is Ordered but No Reference Is Made. The foregoing rule applies to an order or judgment in which the court orders an accounting but does not refer the accounting to a referee (Lacey v. Bertone (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 649, 653, 203 P.2d 755 ; see Rose v. Boydston (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 92, 97, 175 Cal. Rptr. 836).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in support of the contention that an order or judgment directing an accounting on the basis of which future judicial action is required to settle the rights of the parties is interlocutory only and nonappealable. Optional Paragraph B should be included if the court ordered an accounting but did not order a reference to take the account.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the finality or appealability of an order or judgment directing either a reference to take and state an account or an accounting by the parties. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in support of a motion for an order dismissing an appeal from such order or judgment. With appropriate modifications, they may also be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a motion for new trial or in support of a motion to vacate an order granting a new trial. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities in support of a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel a lower appellate court that has refused to do so to dismiss the appeal or in support of a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the lower appellate court from proceeding to hear the appeal after it has denied a motion to dismiss, or both.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show what future judicial action is required of the court to determine the rights of the parties in the case as opposed to any future orders that may be necessary merely to give effect to the order or judgment already rendered.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use on a motion for a new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for use in moving to dismiss an appeal from superior or municipal court, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure , and Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , in that publication. For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing motions for a new trial and petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial , and Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities in §§ 201.120 and 201.121 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities at [1], above.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Order or Judgment Directing Reference to Take Accounting Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable

Hollar v. Saline Products, Inc. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 80, 43 P.2d 273 , was an action for cancellation of a lease of real property, immediate possession of the property, and rents and royalties due. The trial court found for plaintiff on all issues and that defendant was indebted to plaintiff for rents and royalties "in excess of $_____," which excess could be determined only by an accounting. The trial court, by its judgment, ordered that plaintiff recover immediate possession of the property, that a writ of possession issue, and that the lease be canceled. It further ordered that a special master make the accounting and report back to the court the amount due plaintiff on account of rents and royalties, that plaintiff recover judgment against defendants in the amount of the sum of the indebtedness, and that the sum be inserted in the blank space left in the judgment for that purpose. Defendants appealed.

Plaintiff's motion to dismiss the appeal on the ground that no final judgment had been entered in the action was granted. The Supreme Court, citing the leading case of Gunder v. Gunder (1929) 208 Cal. 559, 282 P. 794 (discussed below), held that a decree that settles the basic issues between the parties, adjudges a party's right to an accounting, and refers the items of the account to be found by a master, is not appealable (3 Cal. 2d 80, 81) . Prior to Gunder there had existed considerable confusion as to the final effect of such a judgment, but Gunder squarely held that such a judgment is not final (3 Cal. 2d 80, 81-82) . The Court explained that the peculiar form of the trial court's judgment seemed at first to indicate that it was intended to be a final judgment, but that there remained a judicial act to be done (the approval of the account to be stated by the master appointed for that purpose) and that, as entered, the judgment was not complete (3 Cal. 2d 80, 82) .

Gunder v. Gunder (1929) 208 Cal. 559, 282 P. 794 , was an action (1) to rescind a property settlement agreement on the grounds of fraud and undue influence, (2) to declare an involuntary trust, (3) to cancel prior transfers of property, (4) to order reconveyances and retransfers, (5) for injunctive relief, and (6) for an accounting. Judgment was for plaintiff. The judgment required defendant to render an accounting to a referee who was to take the account and render his report and findings (now decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 644, 645]) to the court. The judgment provided that on rendition of the referee's account to the court, and the court's approval of it, plaintiff was to be given a final judgment against defendant. Defendant appealed.

Plaintiff's motion to dismiss the appeal was granted on the ground the judgment was not appealable (208 Cal. 559, 561) . Quoting from Pomper v. Superior Court (1923) 191 Cal. 494, 496, 216 P. 577 , the Supreme Court explained that a decree fixing the liability and rights of the parties which refers the case to a master or subordinate tribunal for a judicial purpose, such as the statement of an account, on which a further decree is to be entered is not final (208 Cal. 559, 561) . The Court believed it apparent that the trial court did not intend the judgment to be a final determination of the controversy. The Court said that final judgment regarding the issues adjudicated was reserved by the trial court to be entered on submission of the referee's report, which would then be subject to the court's approval, and at which time the court would also render its final judgment in favor of plaintiff and against defendant in the amount to which the court might find plaintiff was entitled (208 Cal. 559, 562) .

Yeboah v. Progeny Ventures, Inc. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 150 involved a contractual dispute regarding commissions due under six agency agreements or service contracts. The interlocutory judgment provided for an accounting of profits owing to the agent and appointed a retired judge to serve as a special master to adjudicate matters relating to the auditing, accounting and payments due. The referee's report was signed and served on April 8, 2003. On May 13, 2003, the trial court signed an order endorsed on approving it and adopting the report, including the findings and recommendations therein, as a decision of the court. Both parties appealed from that decision. On June 16, 2003, the special master held another hearing, pursuant to which he issued another report on July 8, 2003, awarding certain sums to Yeboah's assignee. Progeny filed objections to that report. However, the court approved it on August 13, 2003. Progeny filed a notice of appeal, purporting to appeal from the court's order approving the special master's report.

The court of appeal dismissed both purported appeals from the May 13th order and the purported appeal from the August 13th order (128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 451) , finding neither of those orders to be appealable (128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 450-451) . The court of appeal began its discussion by noting that the interlocutory judgment resolved some, but not all, of the issues between the parties. Reference to a master or referee was the factor that made that judgment interlocutory. When there is a reference, further judicial action is required in approving or disapproving the report of the referee or master. The rule is that when further judicial action is required after an accounting has been ordered, the initial order directing an accounting is interlocutory (128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 448) . First, there is an interlocutory order determining the right to an accounting, then the account is taken, and finally, judgment is entered for the amount found due. Two characteristics of an interlocutory order or judgment are (1) it is not final for purposes of appeal, and (2) it is also not final in the trial court, but may be modified after further evidence or law has been considered. Both parties claimed that the that the order of May 13, 2003, was an order entered after judgment that affected the substantial rights of the parties, and was therefore appealable. The court of appeal found their arguments to be based on the mistaken belief that the original interlocutory judgment was a final judgment (128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 449) . In the case of a special reference, the referee's report is only the first step. The court must determine the facts and the law by rendering its decision containing its findings of fact and conclusions of law, which serves as the basis for the judgment. If the court adopts the referee's report, the court still must enter a judgment to bring the matter to a conclusion. The court's order of May 13, 2003, was not a judgment and was therefore not a final determination (128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 450) . For the same reasons, the order of August 13, 2003, was not appealable. There has not been a final judgment in this case. The appropriate procedure is for the trial court to enter a final judgment, which should comprise the results of the accountings rendered up to the time of the entry of that judgment, including the orders of May 13, 2003, and August 13, 2003. An approval of a referee's report is not the same as a judgment entered following the receipt of the referee's report (128 Cal. App. 4th 443, 451) .

[b] Rule Applies When Accounting Is Ordered but No Reference Is Made

Lacey v. Bertone (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 649, 203 P.2d 755 , was an action for specific performance of a contract to sell plaintiff four apartment houses and for declaratory relief. Defendant cross complained for cancellation of the contract together with damages and an accounting of rents collected by plaintiff while he was in possession. The trial court rendered judgment for defendant terminating the contract, awarding damages, ordering an accounting, and providing for further proceedings in case an account was not rendered or was unsatisfactory. Plaintiff appealed from the judgment and certain orders.

The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal from the judgment. The Court pointed out that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 963 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1), an appeal lies only from a final judgment except in certain cases specified in that statute. The Court held that the rule that a judgment fixing the rights and liabilities of the parties and directing a reference for an accounting is interlocutory and nonappealable applies when the court orders a party to render an accounting instead of referring the matter to a master for that purpose, since a judicial act (approval of the account to be rendered) remains to be done, and that this is true even though the judgment does not expressly state that a later final judgment is to follow (33 Cal. 2d 649, 653) .

In Rose v. Boydston (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 92, 175 Cal. Rptr. 836 , a cross action for dissolution of an alleged joint venture and an accounting, a judgment in favor of cross complainants on the existence and terms of the joint venture was filed. The judgment (1) ordered an accounting be had and rendered to the court, (2) declared that the judgment was interlocutory, and (3) stated that the court retained jurisdiction for such additional period of time as may be necessary for the purpose of rendering and settling an account. Thereafter, the trial judge was elevated to a higher court. The case was reassigned to another judge of the same trial court who stated that a mistrial must be declared and the case tried anew unless the original judge returned to complete the trial or the parties stipulated to be bound by the prior findings, conclusions, and interlocutory judgment signed and entered by the original judge. The case was thereafter continued either on stipulation of the parties or the court's own motion for more than four years, after which time cross defendants moved to dismiss the case under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 (failure to bring case to trial within specified periods [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310]). The motion was granted.

In reversing the judgment on the ground the case had been partially tried and no order declaring a mistrial had been entered and, therefore, former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 did not apply, the court of appeal pointed out that substantial issues remained undecided after entry of the interlocutory judgment, that the interlocutory judgment was not final in any respect because further judicial decisions were required, and that the judgment was subject to modification at any time prior to the entry of a final judgment (122 Cal. App. 3d 92, 97) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Order or Judgment Directing Reference to Take Accounting Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable

In Wesley N. Taylor Co. v. Russell (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 816, 15 Cal. Rptr. 357 , an action for specific performance of a contract for the sale of real property, the trial court entered an "interlocutory judgment" (1) granting specific performance and directing a reference to take and state an account of all rents, issues, and profits received by defendants from the premises and to ascertain defendants' reasonable expenditures with respect to the property, and (2) stating that on the filing of the referee's report, plaintiff was to recover from defendants the net amount found due it as fixed by the court and that this amount was to be credited against the amount plaintiff was ordered to pay into escrow. On appeal by defendants, the court of appeal held that the judgment was interlocutory and nonappealable and dismissed the appeal (194 Cal. App. 2d 816, 822-824, 825) .

In Gollard v. Bayless (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 827, 345 P.2d 299 , the court of appeal, on plaintiff's motion, dismissed defendant's appeal from an "Interlocutory Judgment of Accounting" (except that portion of it granting an injunction). The court held that under former Code Civ. Proc. § 963(1) [*now Code Civ. Proc. § 904.*l(a)] an appeal may, except as otherwise provided in the section, be taken only from a final judgment. A judgment is final only when it determines all of the rights of the parties and requires no further judicial action to give effect to its provisions. A judgment that adjudicates the issues framed by the pleadings, orders a reference to a referee for an accounting, and then provides that on receipt of the accounting the court shall make its final distribution of the property and money to the parties legally entitled to it is interlocutory and not final (174 Cal. App. 2d 827, 828-829) .

[b] Rule Applies When Accounting Is Ordered but No Reference Is Made

In Degnan v. Morrow (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 358, 82 Cal. Rptr. 557 , an action and cross action for dissolution of a partnership, an accounting, and partition of partnership property, the trial court rendered judgment (1) ordering an accounting, payment of partnership debts, and payment of certain fees to defendant for services and (2) adjudging that certain real property was owned jointly and equally by the parties, partitioning it equally one-half to each, and providing for sale and disposition of the proceeds if the parties could not agree on an equal division. The judgment made no provision for dissolution of the partnership. On appeal by defendant, the court of appeal said that a judgment that orders an accounting is necessarily interlocutory in nature, and that although a judgment is final in form or designation, it is interlocutory and nonappealable if further judicial action is required. Failure to refer the accounting to a referee does not create a final judgment, and a reservation by the court of further jurisdiction over the accounting will be inferred (2 Cal. App. 3d 358, 363) . The court held, however, that the judgment was severable and that the portion relating to partition, though interlocutory, was appealable under former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(i) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(9)]. The court affirmed that portion of the judgment and held the remainder of it to be interlocutory and nonappealable (2 Cal. App. 3d 358, 364, 366) .

In David v. Goodman (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 162, 200 P.2d 568 , an action to rescind a partnership agreement and for an accounting in which defendant cross complained for dissolution of the partnership and an accounting, the trial court rendered judgment (1) decreeing the agreement void, (2) ordering defendant to render an accounting, (3) enjoining defendant from transferring or hypothecating any of his property pending the accounting, and (4) enjoining defendant from interfering with plaintiff in the conduct of the business. The judgment further decreed that when defendant shall have fully and satisfactorily accounted to plaintiff for monies and property belonging to the business, defendant was to be paid one half the net profits earned by the business in the course of its operations between specified dates, less monies received by him from a drawing account. On appeal by defendant, the court of appeal affirmed the judgment insofar as it granted an injunction but on its own motion dismissed the appeal as to the remainder of the judgment. The court said it was clear the judgment did not fully determine the rights of the parties in controversy. A decree which settles the basic interest between the parties, adjudges the complainant's right to an accounting and refers the finding of the items of the account to the master is not an appealable order (89 Cal. App. 2d 162, 166) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
E. Appeal

20-201 California Points & Authorities §§ 201.111-201.119

[Reserved]

§§ 201.111[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
E. Appeal

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.120

§ 201.120 Opposing Contention That Order or Judgment Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable--Judgment in Action for Accounting Fully Determines Rights of Parties and Is Final Because It Does Not Direct Reference to Take Account and No Further Judicial Action Is Required

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE JUDGMENT IN THIS ACTION FOR AN ACCOUNTING IS FINAL [AND APPEALABLE] BECAUSE IT FIXES THE RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF THE PARTIES AND NO FURTHER JUDICIAL ACTION IS REQUIRED OTHER THAN THAT NECESSARY TO CARRY THE JUDGMENT INTO EFFECT.

A. Court's Denomination of Order or Judgment Is Not Determinative. It is the substance and effect of a judgment, and not what it is denominated by the court, that determines its finality for the purposes of appeal (Price v. Slawter (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 448, 451, 337 P.2d 914 ; see Lyon v. Goss (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 659, 669-670, 123 P.2d 11).

B. General Test. When no issue is left for future consideration except the fact of compliance or noncompliance with the terms of the judgment, the judgment is final, but when anything further in the nature of judicial action on the part of the court is essential to a final determination of the rights of the parties, the judgment is interlocutory (see Lyon v. Goss (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 659, 670, 123 P.2d 11).

C. When Judgment in Action for Accounting Is Final. A judgment in an action involving an accounting is final if nothing further in the nature of judicial action on the part of the court is essential to a final determination of the rights of the parties (Zappettini v. Buckles (1914) 167 Cal. 27, 32-33, 138 P. 696).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a judgment in a case involving an accounting is interlocutory and nonappealable when nothing further in the nature of judicial action on the part of the court is essential to a final determination of the rights of the parties.

These points and authorities may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the effect of a judgment in an action involving an accounting. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a motion to dismiss an appeal from such a judgment. With appropriate modifications, they may also be combined with points and authorities in support of a motion for new trial. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, these points and authorities may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel a lower appellate court that has refused to do so to dismiss the appeal or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the lower appellate court from proceeding to hear the appeal after it has denied a motion to dismiss, or both.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that all issues in the case have been adjudicated and that no further judicial action is required or was contemplated other than that necessary to carry the judgment into effect. Counsel may submit cognizable evidence by request for judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 450 et seq.], by references to the court's file, including verified pleadings, or by affidavits or declarations. For further legal background, research guides, and forms relating to judicial notice, affidavits, and declarations, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations , and Ch. 321, Judicial Notice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms for use in moving for a new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for use on a motion to dismiss an appeal from superior or municipal court, see Ch. 45, Appeal: Motion Procedure , and Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases , in that publication. For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing motions for a new trial and petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial , and Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.110.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court's Denomination of Order or Judgment Is Not Determinative

Price v. Slawter (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 448, 337 P.2d 914 , was an action to terminate a joint venture. The trial court entered an "interlocutory" judgment adjudging that the joint venture should be dissolved and its affairs wound up, that its assets be sold by a commissioner appointed for the purpose, that the proceeds be applied to discharge the liabilities of the venture, and that pending further order of the court the management and control of the joint venture business (the operation of a motel) was left in plaintiffs, subject to the authority of the commissioner to sell it. The court found the total value of the assets and liabilities of the joint venture and the amount owed to plaintiffs for advances, and ordered that the net proceeds from the sale of the assets be applied in a specified order. The court reserved jurisdiction to make such further orders as may reasonably be required in order to consummate the dissolution and winding up of the joint venture and the rendition of a final judgment. Defendant appealed and petitioned for a writ of supersedeas. Plaintiff moved to dismiss the appeal on the ground the judgment was interlocutory and nonappealable.

In holding the judgment final and appealable, the court of appeal said that whether a judgment is a final one does not depend on what it is entitled but what it does (169 Cal. App. 2d 448, 451-452) .

Lyon v. Goss (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 659, 123 P.2d 11 , was an action for declaratory and equitable relief under a contract and lease. An interlocutory decree that the contract was in force and that defendant was entitled to fulfill it was entered. This decree did not complete the declaration of the rights and duties of the parties and reserved for future consideration issues pertaining to performance and prevention of performance of the agreement. Plaintiff appealed. Some five months later, a final decree adjudging that neither party recover relief other than a declaration of rights as set forth in the interlocutory decree was rendered, and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court concluded that the first decree was in fact interlocutory and the second final. The Court dismissed the appeal from the first decree and reversed the second decree on the merits. The Court explained, however, that a decree in equity which is denominated "interlocutory" and directs a further hearing for certain purposes, may make so complete and final adjudication of all issues of fact and law as to constitute a "final judgment" within the meaning of the term as used in the statutes concerning appeals and held that it is not the form of the decree but the substance and effect of the adjudication which is determinative (19 Cal. 2d 659, 669-670) .

[b] General Test

The facts and procedural background of Lyon v. Goss (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 659, 123 P.2d 11 , are discussed under [a], above. The Supreme Court said that, as a general test, when no issue is left for future consideration except the fact of compliance or noncompliance with the terms of the first decree, that decree is final, but when anything further in the nature of judicial action on the part of the court is essential to a final determination of the rights of the parties, the decree is interlocutory (19 Cal. 2d 659, 670) .

[c] When Judgment in Action for Accounting Is Final

Zappettini v. Buckles (1914) 167 Cal. 27, 138 P. 696 , arose on an application for a writ of supersedeas to stay execution of a judgment pending appeal. The action in which the judgment was rendered was for dissolution of a partnership, an accounting, and, after payment of debts, a distribution of the remaining assets between the parties as their respective interests may appear. The judgment dissolved the partnership, itemized the partnership property which consisted of both real and personal property, and ordered that the property be sold together as a whole and in one parcel at public sale for cash by a receiver appointed by the court, and that the receiver, after deducting the costs and expenses of sale, pay the remainder of the proceeds into court to abide the further order of the court. The judgment further provided that the proceeds of the sale be paid and applied as follows: (1) to the payment of the fees and expenses of the receiver, the same "to be fixed and determined by the court"; (2) to the payment of the fees and expenses of a referee appointed by the court, the same "to be fixed and determined by the court"; (3) to the payment of the partnership debts on determination thereof by the court (the court reserved jurisdiction to make this determination); and (4) any balance remaining to be paid to the two partners in specified proportions, such payments to be made as ordered by the court, or on the consent of the parties to the action. The judgment provided that each party to the action was to pay his own costs. Plaintiff appealed. Notwithstanding the appeal, defendant and the receiver proceeded with execution of the judgment insofar as it provided for the sale of the property, and plaintiff applied for a writ of supersedeas to stay the execution.

The Supreme Court held the judgment was final for the purposes of appeal and ordered a writ of supersedeas issued. The Court said that notwithstanding the deferring of the fixing of the compensation of the receiver and of the referee, and the reservation of the determination of the question of the debts of the firm to others, the judgment fully and finally determined all the rights of the parties as between themselves, that the partnership was dissolved, all the property was ordered sold, and the manner in which the proceeds should be divided was finally adjudicated, including the respective proportions of the two partners in any money remaining after the payment of the costs of sale, fees of receiver, fees of referee, and the debts of the firm. The Court said that nothing remained to be done by the trial court except the mere ascertainment of the amounts due to others than the parties on account of fees for services in the action and debts owing by the partnership, and to see that the decree already made was properly executed (167 Cal. 27, 32) .

It should be noted that if the Supreme Court had held the judgment nonappealable, the partnership property would have been sold at a forced sale with the expenses of the sale and receiver's fees charged against the proceeds of the sale before the matter could be reviewed by an appellate court. Any reversal by the appellate court of a subsequent "final" judgment in the case could not undo this damage.

However, it should also be noted that subsequent cases have cast some doubt on Zappettini as to the appealability of a judgment ordering a partnership accounting [Degnan v. Morrow (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 358, 363, 82 Cal. Rptr. 557 , discussed at § 201.110[4][b]]. The holding in Zappettini has been distinguished on the ground that it did not order an accounting or a reference for an accounting, but ordered a sale of property and specified the distribution to be made of the proceeds, and thus there was no further judicial action required on the part of the court to finally adjudicate the rights of the parties [see Gunder v. Gunder (1929) 208 Cal. 559, 561, 282 P. 794 , discussed at § 201.110[3][a]]. But in another case in which the trial court had ordered a reference to take an accounting, the Supreme Court, in holding the order interlocutory and nonappealable, said that Zappettini could be distinguished from the case before it but that even if this were not so, Zappettini would have to be considered as modified to conform to the holdings of, among other cases, Gunder [Di Blasi v. Di Blasi (1930) 209 Cal. 753, 754, 290 P. 7 ; see Hollar v. Saline Products, Inc. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 80, 82, 43 P.2d 273 (quoting Di Blasi, and discussed at § 201.110[3][a]); Degnan v. Morrow (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 358, 363, 82 Cal. Rptr. 557] . Thus, the rule of the foregoing cases distinguishing or commenting on Zappettini appears to be that an order or judgment directing a reference to take an account is interlocutory and nonappealable, and that an order or judgment that orders an accounting without directing a reference is also interlocutory and nonappealable, since a reservation by the court of further jurisdiction over the accounting will be inferred [see Degnan v. Morrow (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 358, 363, 82 Cal. Rptr. 557 ; but see Howard Townsite Owners, Inc. v. Mills (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 223, 227-228, 73 Cal. Rptr. 715 (discussed at [4][c], below); Phillips v. Cleaver (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 751, 755-756, 187 P.2d 80] . Finally, one court of appeal has maintained that there is no logical way to distinguish Zappettini from contrary authorities, and that Zappettini has been not only modified, but impliedly overruled [see Kinoshita v. Horio (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 959, 966, 231 Cal. Rptr. 241] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Court's Denomination of Order or Judgment Is Not Determinative

In Brown v. Memorial Nat. Home Foundation (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 448, 322 P.2d 600 , cert. denied 358 U.S. 943, 79 S. Ct. 353, 3 L. Ed. 2d 352 (1959) , the court of appeal denied a motion to dismiss appeals from an "interlocutory" judgment and from a minute order approving the first account current of receivers, fixing the receivers' compensation, and authorizing payment out of the receivership estate on the ground the judgment was final. In reaching its decision, the court noted the well-settled rule that denomination of a judgment as "interlocutory" is not determinative of its finality for purposes of appeal, but that the substance of the judgment determines its finality (158 Cal. App. 2d 448, 453) .

See also Eldridge v. Burns (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 396, 404, 142 Cal. Rptr. 845 ; Reynolds v. Special Projects, Inc. (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 496, 499, 67 Cal. Rptr. 374 .

[b] General Test

The facts and procedural background of Zappettini v. Buckles (1914) 167 Cal. 27, 138 P. 696 , are discussed at [3][c], above. In holding the judgment appealed from was final, the Court said the general rule in determining whether a judgment is final or merely interlocutory is that if anything further in the nature of judicial action on the part of the court is essential to a final determination of the rights of the parties, the judgment is interlocutory only (167 Cal. 27, 33) .

See also Knodel v. Knodel (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 752, 761 n.11, 122 Cal. Rptr. 521, 537 P.2d 353 ; Bakewell v. Bakewell (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 224, 227, 130 P.2d 975 ; Eldridge v. Burns (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 396, 404, 142 Cal. Rptr. 845 ; Palo Alto-Menlo Park Yellow Cab Co. v. Santa Clara County Transit Dist. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 121, 129, 135 Cal. Rptr. 192 .

[c] When Judgment in Action for Accounting Is Final

In Howard Townsite Owners, Inc. v. Mills (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 223, 73 Cal. Rptr. 715 , which arose out of an action to determine the validity of a community oil and gas lease and entitlement to payment of royalties under it, the court of appeal held that the "interlocutory judgment," decreeing the lease valid and that plaintiffs continued to be entitled to royalties under it and ordering the attorneys for the parties to determine and report to the court the amount of past royalties due for the purpose of entry of a final decree, was final and appealable. Quoting Phillips v. Cleaver (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 751, 755-756, 187 P.2d 80 , the court of appeal said that a present judgment was ordered for, defendants were ordered to pay the sum found to be due to plaintiff by reason of the accounting, nothing further remained to be done in the nature of a judicial action, the rights of the parties were fully established, and all that remained were such proceedings as were necessary to carry the judgment into effect (268 Cal. App. 2d 223, 228) .

The factual background of Price v. Slawter (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 448, 337 P.2d 914 , is discussed at [3][a], above. The court of appeal held that the judgment was practically identical to the one in Zappettini v. Buckles (1914) 167 Cal. 27, 138 P. 696 (discussed at [3][c], above), and held that the judgment was final, since it fully and finally determined all the rights of the parties as between themselves (169 Cal. App. 2d 448, 451-452) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 201 REFERENCE AND REFEREES
PART II. FORMS
E. Appeal

20-201 California Points & Authorities § 201.121

§ 201.121 Opposing Contention That Order or Judgment Is Interlocutory and Nonappealable--Appeal From Interlocutory Judgment Determining Right to Redeem Property From Mortgage or Lien and Directing Accounting Is Authorized [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(8)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

AN APPEAL BY THE AGGRIEVED PARTY FROM AN INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT DETERMINING THE RIGHT TO REDEEM _____ [REAL or PERSONAL] PROPERTY FROM A _____ [MORTGAGE or LIEN] AND DIRECTING AN ACCOUNTING IS EXPRESSLY AUTHORIZED BY THE PROVISIONS OF CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 904.1(a)(8).

A. Who May Appeal. Any party aggrieved may appeal in the cases prescribed in Code of Civil Procedure Section 901 et seq. (Code Civ. Proc. § 902).

B. Action to Redeem Property From Mortgage or Lien. An appeal may be taken from an interlocutory judgment, order, or decree made or entered in an action to redeem real or personal property from a mortgage thereof, or a lien thereon, determining the right to redeem and directing an accounting [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(8)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention that an interlocutory judgment directing an accounting is nonappealable when the judgment was entered in an action to redeem real or personal property from a mortgage or lien.

The points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a form of memorandum of points and authorities relating to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue as to the appealability of an interlocutory judgment determining the right to redeem and directing an accounting in an action to redeem property from a mortgage or lien. For example, the points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a motion to dismiss an appeal from such a judgment. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

In addition, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking to compel a lower appellate court that has refused to do so to dismiss the appeal or in opposition to a petition for a writ of prohibition seeking to restrain the lower appellate court from proceeding to hear the appeal after it has denied a motion to dismiss, or both.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the case is one coming within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(8).

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to appeals from superior and municipal courts, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , et seq. and Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For forms for use in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities generally supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this publication.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities at [1], above, may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 201.110.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
Chapters 202through 204 RESERVED

20-202 California Points & Authorities Chapters 202through 204

RESERVED

Chapters 202RESERVED

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF

20-205 California Points & Authorities 205.syn

§ 205.syn Synopsis to Chapter 205: REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF

§ 205.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 205.02 Governing Law

§ 205.03 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 205.04 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 205.05 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 205.06-205.19 [Reserved]

§ 205.20 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

[b] Petition by Beneficially Interested Party

[c] Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction

[d] Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Exercising Judicial Function

[e] Lack of Appellate Remedy

[f] Appeal Remedy Lost Because Lack of Required Notice

[g] Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

[b] Petition by Beneficially Interested Party

[c] Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction

[d] Lack of Appellate Remedy

[e] Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

§ 205.21 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--Judgment or Order of Contempt Not Appealable and in Excess of Jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable

[b] Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable

[b] Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction

§ 205.22 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--Abuse of Discretion by Local Board or Officer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper

§ 205.23 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

[b] Only Beneficially Interested Party May Petition

[c] Writ Denied if Action Within Jurisdiction

[d] Writ Denied if Seeks to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

[b] Writ Denied if Sought to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction

§ 205.24 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Not Exercising Judicial Functions

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions

§ 205.25 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Right of Appeal or Other Remedy Exists or Existed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available

[b] Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available

[b] Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction

§ 205.26 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Petitioner's Claim Moot or Barred by Laches

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot

[b] Writ of Review Denied for Laches

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot

[b] Writ of Review Denied for Laches

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.01

§ 205.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda that may be submitted as a part of a civil action to support or oppose issuance of a writ of review, also known as a writ of certiorari [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1067]. Points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of review are included in §§ 205.20-205.22. Points and authorities opposing issuance of writs of review are included in §§ 205.23-205.26.

The use of the writ of certiorari by the United States Supreme Court to review decisions of California appellate courts is beyond the scope of this chapter. For discussion and forms relating to this writ, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 406, Certiorari Jurisdiction Over State Courts (Matthew Bender).

Also beyond the scope of this chapter is the use of the writ of review by the California appellate courts to review adjudicatory decisions of statewide public agencies having constitutionally delegated adjudicatory power, such as the Agricultural Labor Relations Board [see Lab. Code § 1160.8; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.498], the Public Employment Relations Board [see Gov. Code §§ 3520, 3542, 3564; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.498], the Public Utilities Commission [Pub. Util. Code §§ 1756-1767; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.496], and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board [Lab. Code §§ 5950-5955; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.494].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionState Court ReviewCivil ProcedureU.S. Supreme Court ReviewGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.02

§ 205.02 Governing Law

Original jurisdiction to issue writs of review is granted to the California Supreme Court, courts of appeal, and superior courts by Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10. The application for and issuance of a writ of review (certiorari) is generally governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1067-1077, 1107, and 1108. Rules of practice and procedure are contained in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.485-8.493.

Although the term "review" is used in the California Rules of Court governing a petition for review to the Supreme Court of a court of appeal decision [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.500-8.552], this usage should not be confused with the term "writ of review" or "writ of certiorari" as used in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionState Court Review

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.03

§ 205.03 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda filed in discovery motion proceedings may not exceed 15 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d), (e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

This chapter contains general forms supporting [see § 205.20] and opposing [see § 205.23] a petition for a writ of review. When appropriate according to the facts of the case, any of the partial forms supporting [see §§ 205.21, 205.22] or opposing [see §§ 205.24 -205.26] the issuance of the writ should be combined with the general supporting or opposing form, respectively.

The forms may also be used when appropriate with points and authorities supporting a response to the petition by answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)], demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)], or motion to dismiss [see Pacific Home B.R. v. Daugherty (1925) 75 Cal. App 623, 626, 243 P. 473 (decided before answer was permissible pleading)].

A petition for a writ of review is frequently combined with requests for other writs in the alternative, such as prohibition, habeas corpus, and mandate [Lankton v. Superior Court (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 55 P.2d 1170 (prohibition); In re Smith (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296, 135 Cal. Rptr. 5 (habeas corpus); Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 691, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 (mandate)] Therefore, the forms in this chapter should be combined with those appropriate for any alternative relief sought. In addition, it should be noted that while this chapter has been prepared in accordance with statutorily authorized uses for the writ of review, alternative remedies should be investigated to determine whether any other is more appropriate in a given instance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandate)].

The captions on the forms in this chapter have been drafted on the premise that the petition has been or will be filed in a court of appeal. The captions may be appropriately modified when the petition is directed to the Supreme Court or a superior court.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresAppealsBriefsCivil ProceduresAppealsMotions on Appeal

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.04

§ 205.04 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion of the substantive law governing issuance of the writ of review, the relationship of this writ to other writs (such as mandate and prohibition), and forms of petition and response, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionState Court Review

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.05

§ 205.05 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

For memoranda supporting and opposing issuance of the writs of mandate, prohibition, and habeas corpus, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition and Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus , respectively, in this publication. For memoranda supporting and opposing issuance of a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law .

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a memorandum or a trial or appellate brief, and for a sample of a complete memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsProhibition

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities §§ 205.06-205.19

[Reserved]

§§ 205.06[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.20

§ 205.20 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[IN THE] COURT OF APPEAL OF CALIFORNIA
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]
[or other as appropriate depending on which court petition is filed in]

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Petitioner,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF WRIT OF RE-
vs.	)	VIEW (CERTIORARI)
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Respondent,	)	Time: _____
_____, [name]	)	Location: _____
Real Party in Interest.	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD ISSUE BECAUSE THE _____ [INFERIOR TRIBUNAL or OFFICER or BOARD] EXCEEDED ITS JURISDICTION IN THE EXERCISE OF ITS JUDICIAL FUNCTIONS AND THERE IS NO APPEAL, NOR ANY PLAIN, SPEEDY, AND ADEQUATE REMEDY.

A. Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review. A writ of review may be granted by court when an inferior tribunal, board, or officer, exercising judicial functions, has exceeded the jurisdiction of that tribunal, board, or officer, and there is no appeal nor, in the judgment of the court, any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; Buchwald v. Superior Court (1967)

254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353, 62 Cal. Rptr. 364).

B. Petition by Beneficially Interested Party. The application for the writ must be made on the verified petition of the party beneficially interested (Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; see Taylor v. Superior Court (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 244, 247, 125P.2d 1 ; see also Fuller v. San Bernardino Valley Mun. Wat. Dist. (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 52, 56-57, 51 Cal. Rptr. 120).

C. Notice to Adverse Party. The court may require a notice of the application for a writ of review to be given to the adverse party, or may grant an order to show cause why it should not be allowed, or may grant the writ without notice (Code Civ. Proc. § 1069).

[Optional] D. Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction. A court exceeds its jurisdiction if it acts in excess of its power, as defined by constitutional provision, statute, or rules developed by the courts and followed under the doctrine of stare decisis (Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 454-455, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 ; see Dvorin v. Appellate Dept. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363).

E. Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Exercising Judicial Function. The action taken by the tribunal, board or officer must have been in the exercise of judicial functions (Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 220, 232 P. 696 , O'Brien v. Olson (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 453, 109 P.2d 8).

F. Lack of Appellate Remedy. A lack of appellate remedy means that there is no right of appeal from the action taken by the inferior tribunal, board, or officer (see Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764-765, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921 ; Brady v. Superior Court (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 72, 19 Cal. Rptr. 242).

[Optional] G. Appeal Remedy Lost Because Lack of Required Notice. If the right of appeal is lost because petitioner, who was without fault, did not receive notice of the proceedings and entry of an adverse judgment, or order, and notice was required to be given, petitioner may have the proceedings reviewed by a writ of review (Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 554-556, 221 P. 635).

H. Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy. For a legal remedy to be adequate it must afford relief on the very matter that is the subject of the petition and must be equally as convenient and effective as the extraordinary remedy demanded (Estate of Bodger (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715, 276 P.2d 83).

[When appropriate, this form should be combined with partial forms governing specific fact situations (see, e.g., §§ 205.21, 205.22)].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a petition for issuance of a writ of review (or certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §

1068; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1067 (writ of certiorari may be denominated writ of review)].

The sample caption in this form is for use when the petition is directed to a court of appeal. The caption may be modified when the petition is directed to the Supreme Court or a superior court. For forms of alternative captions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

Memoranda in support of a petition for issuance of a writ of review are required to be filed if the petition is made to a court of appeal or the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)]. While neither the Code of Civil Procedure nor the California Rules of Court expressly requires the filing of points and authorities in support of a petition for the writ in superior court, construction of several rules together dictates that a memorandum should be filed. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1100 provides that the law and motion rules set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100 et seq. apply to civil law and motion proceedings in superior court. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a)(2) defines law and motion as including any proceedings on application for a writ of review. An application for an order is a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1003]. Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.1113(a) provides that a party filing a notice of motion must serve and file with it a memorandum to be relied on [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(b)]. Moreover, a petition for issuance of a writ of review is not listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114 as a petition that does not require a memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114]. The required format and contents of the memorandum are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113.

A petition for a writ of review is frequently combined with requests for other writs in the alternative, such as prohibition, habeas corpus, and mandate [Lankton v. Superior Court (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 55 P.2d 1170 (prohibition); In re Smith (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296, 135 Cal. Rptr. 5 (habeas corpus); Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 691, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 (mandate)]. Therefore, the points and authorities set forth in this form should be combined with those appropriate for any alternative relief sought.

If an inferior court's action is the subject of the petition, optional paragraph D should be used. If petitioner had a right of appeal but lost that right because of the failure to receive notice of the proceedings and of an adverse judgment or order,and notice was required to be given by the opposing party, optional paragraph G should be used.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Generally, counsel must present facts showing that an inferior tribunal, board, or officer that exercises judicial functions exceeded its jurisdiction, and that no appeal or any plain, speedy, or adequate remedy is available [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068]. A threshold matter is whether the action complained of was judicial in nature; facts showing judicial action should be established. If an inferior board or officer is involved, there may be a dispute over the judicial character of the action taken [see Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 216, 232 P. 696]. If the petition seeks review of judicial action by a local board, this form should be combined with the points and authorities in § 205.22 [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandate to review certain administrative action)].

Counsel should present authority demonstrating why the action complained of is not appealable. Appeal of civil actions is generally governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 901-914. While the appealability of judgments and orders has generally expanded since many of the older decisions concerning writs of review were rendered [see § 205.25[2][a]], certain adjudications remain nonappealable [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.710, 116.780 (superior court judgments after appeal from small claims court), 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222 (contempt)]. If a contempt action is involved counsel should combine the allegations found in § 205.21 with those in the foregoing form.

Counsel must also factually establish the manner in which jurisdiction was exceeded. In addition to addressing subject matter and personal jurisdiction, counsel should determine if the inferior body followed any constitutional provision, statute, or rule of decisional law requiring that it exercise its power over the parties in a particular manner [see Yoakum v. Small Claims Court (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 401-402, 125 Cal. Rptr. 882].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of petition for writ of review, notices of application for the writ, orders to show cause, motions and orders for further return of the writ, forms for the writ itself, and judgment on review, see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For forms in support of petitions for writs of mandate, prohibition and habeas corpus, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition and Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 205.23 -205.26 may be used to oppose the petition for writ of review supported by this points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

In People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421 , defendants were charged with civil violations of several consumer protection statutes. The trial judge ordered a reduction in a stipulated judgment between plaintiff and two defendants and subsequently refused to sign the unaltered judgment in his chambers on the ground that it imposed an excessive monetary penalty against the stipulating defendants. Plaintiff refused to prepare a new judgment and moved to have the matter set for trial as to those defendants. The motion was denied with prejudice, and no judgment was ever signed by the trial court, nor was any other stipulation ever reached. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal treated the appeal as a request for a writ of review and found that neither order was appealable. It further found that the trial judge exceeded his jurisdiction by establishing a penalty without benefit of a trial or a stipulation (81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 322) . Therefore, since the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction and there was no appeal or any plain, speedy and adequate remedy, the court of appeal held that a writ of review was the proper remedy under Code Civ. Proc. § 1068 (81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319) .

Buchwald v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 62 Cal. Rptr. 364 , involved a contract dispute between members of the musical group "Jefferson Airplane" and their common business representative. Each member's contract required arbitration of any dispute between the parties. A dispute arose between the members and the representative, and the representative commenced proceedings to compel arbitration. Plaintiff group members filed a petition with the California Labor Commissioner, claiming the representative violated the Artists' Managers Act (see Lab. Code §§ 1700-1700.46), the terms of the contract, and other statutory provisions. Plaintiffs also filed a superior court action seeking an injunction against arbitration. Defendant filed an answer objecting to the jurisdiction of the Labor Commissioner, and moved in superior court to compel arbitration. The trial court granted defendant's motion. Plaintiffs petitioned for a writ of review or, alternatively, for writs of mandate, or prohibition.

The court of appeal issued the writ of review, annulling the trial court's orders. It held that the superior court's order exceeded its jurisdiction because the contractual dispute was pending before the Labor Commissioner, which hadoriginal jurisdiction of the dispute by statute. Furthermore, there was no right of appeal or other plain, speedy, or adequate remedy (254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353) .

[b] Petition by Beneficially Interested Party

In Taylor v. Superior Court (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 244, 125 P.2d 1 , a superior court had issued a preliminary injunction in an action to establish a partnership. Plaintiff had posted security for the injunction pursuant to a minute order. Thereafter, orders to show cause against defendant charging contempt for alleged violations of the injunction were issued based on affidavits of an auditor employed by plaintiff. The orders to show cause were dismissed because the trial judge erroneously ruled that plaintiff had failed to post bond for the injunction. Plaintiff then petitioned for a writ of review. In opposition to the petition defendant contended that plaintiff was not a beneficially interested party within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069 because affidavits in support of the orders to show cause were made by plaintiff's auditor.

The Supreme Court annulled the order discharging the persons alleged to be in contempt of court. After determining that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction and that plaintiff had no appellate remedy, the Court held that plaintiff was a beneficially interested party for purposes of petitioning for a writ of review, within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069, because he was the person for whose protection the injunction was obtained, and was not a "stranger to the action" (20 Cal. 2d 244, 247) .

In Fuller v. San Bernardino Valley Mun. Wat. Dist. (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 52, 51 Cal. Rptr. 120 , a peremptory writ of mandate was issued ordering a water district to terminate proceedings for the annexation of certain lands. In its appeal from the issuance of the writ, the water district alleged, among other things, that the parties who obtained the writ were not beneficially interested in the action.

The court of appeal construed the term "beneficially interested" in both Code Civ. Proc. § 1069 (writ of review) and Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 (writ of mandate) to mean an interest in which a person has some particular right to be preserved or protected independent of that which he or she holds in common with the public at large. Here, the court found that plaintiffs were beneficially interested because they were property owners in the area to be annexed, and were moving forces in fixing its boundaries, securing boundary commission approval, and circulating and filing a petition for formation of a new district (242 Cal. App. 2d 52, 58) .

It should be noted that in Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 the Supreme Court stated that while ordinarily a writ of mandate will be issued only to persons who are beneficially interested, an exception exists in mandamus cases in which the question is one of public right and the object of the mandamus is to procure the enforcement of a public duty. In those circumstances, the petitioner need not show any legal or special interest in the result. It is sufficient that he or she is interested as a citizen in having the laws executed and the duty in question enforced (.

[c] Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction

Dvorin v. Appellate Dept. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363 , involved a complaint to recover unearned interest on a promissory note. Defendant was granted summary judgment by the trial court and plaintiff appealed to the appellate department of the superior court, which reversed and directed the municipal court to enter judgment for plaintiff. Defendant appealed, but the court of appeal denied transfer for further appellate review. Defendant then petitioned for a writ of review.

The Supreme Court granted the writ. It held that the action of the appellate department in entering judgment for plaintiff was in excess of its jurisdiction because plaintiff had never moved for summary judgment. No appellate or other remedy was available, since denial of the transfer by the appellate court was its prerogative and would ordinarily terminate appellate review. Thus, the Court annulled the judgment. In applying the standard set forth in Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 (discussed infra), the Court held that while a writ of review is not available to review the error of a lower court, it is available if the lower court exceeded its jurisdiction (15 Cal. 3d 648, 650) .

In Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 , the appellate department of a superior court had vacated a municipal court order granting a new trial to defendants in a civil suit. The superior court did so by overruling the only appellate decision that pertained to the facts and on which the municipal court had relied in granting the new trial. The superior court recognized the appellate decision, but refused to follow it on the ground that it had been incorrectly decided. Defendants then petitioned for a writ of review.

The Supreme Court held that the superior court had exceeded its jurisdiction. The Court explained that the writ of review is a jurisdictional writ, meaning that it cannot be used to attack an error of a lower tribunal committed in the exercise of its jurisdiction, but only against acts committed in excess of its jurisdiction (57 Cal. 2d 450, 454) . Here, the lower court refused to apply the one appellate decision that controlled the disposition of the case. Citing Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291, 109 P.2d 942 , a writ of prohibition case, the Court held that the failure of the lower court to adhere to the principal of stare decisis amounted to a jurisdictional error. Asthere was no appeal or other remedy available, it was proper to consider the matter by writ of review (57 Cal. 2d 450, 455) . However, the Court noted that there was only one controlling case to be applied. If there were conflicting cases from a higher court, it would not necessarily be an excess of jurisdiction for the inferior court to choose between them (57 Cal. 2d 450, 456) .

The holding in Auto Equity Sales was characterized in Yoakum v. Small Claims Court (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 125 Cal. Rptr. 882 , as being an attempt to state the concept of excess jurisdiction in broader terms than justified. The Yoakum court said that the holding in Auto Equity Sales concerning the failure to adhere to stare decisis did not broaden the concept of excess jurisdiction established in earlier cases. Under this concept, a court acts in excess of its jurisdiction if it does not follow the mandate of a constitutional provision, statute, or rule of decisional law of a higher court requiring that it exercise its power over the parties and the cause in a particular manner (53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 401-402) . Yoakum is discussed further in § 205.20[4][d].

[d] Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Exercising Judicial Function

In Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 232 P. 696 , a civil service board had made a finding that a police officer was guilty of insubordination and sustained his dismissal. The officer sought a writ of review. The superior court granted the writ and annulled the board's order. Defendant civil service board appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment annulling the order. The Court determined that the actions of the board were clearly quasi-judicial and not ministerial in nature (195 Cal. 212, 216) . While the Court focused on whether it could review the evidence considered by the inferior board, it also stated that in the absence of a right to appeal, the writ of review addresses only the jurisdiction of an inferior board or tribunal exercising judicial functions (195 Cal. 212, 220) .

In O'Brien v. Olson (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 109 P.2d 8 , a state governor had dismissed certain prison directors from office. A petition for writ of review was sought to examine the authority for those dismissals.

The court of appeal held that the provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1068 that refers to the exercise of judicial functions by an inferior tribunal, board, or officer applied to a state governor. The court determined that the dismissal action was of a judicial character (42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 453) . It held that a writ of review properly could be used to determine whether a state governor, sitting in a quasi-judicial capacity, had exceeded his or her jurisdiction in removing the prison directors from office (42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 455) . While the court ultimately found that the governor had not exceeded his jurisdiction in removing the prison directors, this did not prevent the writ of review from issuing to permit the court to evaluate his actions (42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 458) .

[e] Lack of Appellate Remedy

In Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921 , a judgment creditor had successfully

moved to have assets of debtors of the judgment debtor turned over to a court appointed receiver. These debtors claimed an interest adverse to the judgment debtor in the assets, one of which was a car wash. The debtors refused to comply with the receiver's request to allow his agent to participate in the daily operation of the car wash or otherwise turn over its profits to him. All debtors were found in contempt. They sought a writ of review to determine the validity of the trial court's contempt finding.

The court of appeal issued a writ of review, finding that the contempt citation was not appealable. The court annulled the citation, stating that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction by appointing a receiver as to assets in which the debtors of the judgment debtor claimed an adverse interest. By so doing the trial court had created a void order under applicable statutes, and violation of a void order could not be punished by contempt. The court noted that while an appeal might have been pursued from the original void order, this did not prevent the writ of review from being sought to collaterally attack that order, as there was no appeal from the contempt citation itself (28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764-765) .

In Brady v. Superior Court (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 19 Cal. Rptr. 242 , another contempt case, a trial court enjoined a real property owner from permitting occupancy of his real property by other than a single family. At the time the order was made some eight different tenants occupied various structures on the land, which was located in a residential area zoned specifically for single family dwellings. The injunction was based on the trial judge's narrow construction of the term "single family" in the local ordinance. The contempt citation was based on a finding that the property owner permitted his son and the son's friend to occupy the premises. The property owner petitioned for a writ of review.

The court of appeal found that a writ of review was the proper means to examine the contempt order, as there was no appellate remedy (200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 72) . It appeared that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction in authorizing the original injunction and the contempt citation thereafter (200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 82) . Citing the concept of jurisdiction as enunciated in Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 109 P.2d 942 , a writ of prohibition case, the court of appeal reiterated that any acts that exceed the defined power of a court in any instance are in excess of jurisdiction. Here, the court found that the trial judge's construction of the zoning ordinance was clearly removed from the legislative authorization of the ordinance,and exceeded the court's jurisdiction. Therefore, it annulled the contempt citation (200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 82) .

[f] Appeal Remedy Lost Because Lack of Required Notice

In Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 221 P. 635 , petitioner, a California resident, had been adjudged insane by a German court and was subsequently institutionalized in Germany, leaving substantial unattended assets in California. A California trust company petitioned for and was granted guardianship of her estate. The order prescribing notice of the proceedings directed that notice be given to certain of her relatives (all in Europe), but neither that order nor the notices themselves were directed to her, and she had no personal knowledge of the proceedings. The trust company managed her estate for several years. She sought annulment of the order appointing the guardian by writ of review on return to California, on the ground that the order was void for lack of notice to her of the proceedings and judgment.

The Supreme Court held that the guardianship proceeding was void because of the lack of personal notice to petitioner. As the lack of notice created a jurisdictional defect, a writ of review was the appropriate remedy to redress petitioner's grievance (192 Cal. 528, 554-555) . The respondent trust company argued that she was guilty of laches in waiting to bring the action, that she should have pursued her remedy of appeal, and otherwise had waived her rights to seek a writ of review. The Court held, however, that an insane person could not waive any rights, both by statute (former Civ. Code § 40) and case law (192 Cal. 528, 551-552) . Furthermore, while her ability to pursue an appeal had lapsed by the passage of time, she could not be required to pursue an appeal when she had no knowledge of the proceedings or judgment and was institutionalized when they occurred (192 Cal. 528, 556) . The Court indicated that the notice required was both statutory (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1793) and based on concepts of due process of law dating from the Magna Carta (192 Cal. 528, 541-542) .

Grinbaum has been cited in several cases, but its application appears restricted to the kind of situation in which notice of a proceeding is entirely inadequate or missing through no fault of the aggrieved party. For example, in Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 377, 341 P.2d 13 (discussed in § 205.23[3][a]), the Supreme Court distinguished Grinbaum, finding that extremely unusual circumstances existed in that case to justify issuance of the writ. In Grinbaum, the aggrieved party had no notice of the inception of the proceedings and was in no physical or mental condition to receive notice. However, in Simmons it was the petitioner's own lack of diligence that caused him to forfeit his appellate remedy (52 Cal. 2d 373, 377) . Grinbaum was also distinguished in Bernstein v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 569, 116 P.2d 172 (discussed in § 205.26[3][b]). In contrast to the situation in Grinbaum, a husband who was physically disabled but mentally competent was made the ward of his wife. After some six years, he contested the original establishment of the guardianship. However, the court left him to the remedy of challenging the continuation of the guardianship by his daughter (who had filed a separate petition to continue it after her mother's resignation), as he had received the benefit of his estate during the period of the guardianship and received timely notice of the proceedings.

[g] Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

In Estate of Bodger (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 276 P.2d 83 , a probate court made an ex parte appointment of an attorney to represent testamentary trust beneficiaries in resisting an appeal by a trustee of a decedent's estate from an order settling the trustee's report and account, and for the trustee's own fees. One of the beneficiaries petitioned the probate court and informed it that she did not wish the services of the appointed attorney, and demanded that the appointment be vacated. While the trustee's appeal was pending, she petitioned for a writ of review, alleging that she had no right of appeal nor other adequate, or speedy remedy at law from the order appointing the attorney.

The court of appeal held that the order appointing the attorney exceeded the jurisdiction of the probate court and was void. There was no law authorizing it to appoint counsel for a competent party to an action if that person had notice of the proceedings and was capable of selecting an attorney. The court also found the order violative of due process of law under U.S. Const., Amend. XIV, and Cal. Const., art. I, § 1, as well as infringing on petitioner's freedom of contract (128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 714) . Turning to the question of petitioner's remedies, the court said that under the provisions of former Prob. Code § 1240 there was no right of appeal available from the order. The suggestion by respondent that she file a repudiation of the appointment in the trustee's appeal was also without merit, because it would not be a part of the appeal and would constitute no part of the issues presented for review. Citing Dufton v. Daniels (1923) 190 Cal. 577, 582, 213 P. 949 , a mandate proceeding, the court stated that for a legal remedy to be adequate, it must afford relief on the very matter that is the subject of the petition and that is equally as convenient and efficacious as the extraordinary remedy demanded. It was not conceivable that the appointed attorney would withdraw after the appeal without compensation. Petitioner should not have to wait and appeal from the order for his fees. Even if the appointed attorney never sought compensation after pursuing the appeal to a decision, his representation would still remain of record (128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

In Thelander v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 811, 26 Cal. Rptr. 643, 376 P.2d 571 , persons injured in a vehicle collision brought suit against the state for negligence. The state was given additional time to plead over plaintiffs' objection, which plaintiffs claimed violated Code Civ. Proc. § 1054. In annulling the order by writ of review the Supreme Court held that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction because it extended the time for a responsive pleading by more than 30 days without the adverse party's consent (58 Cal. 2d 811, 813-814) . The Court noted that a writ of review was an appropriate remedy to test the power of the issuing court to make the offending order because, if the order was contrary to statute, the court acted beyond its jurisdiction (58 Cal. 2d 811, 814) .

In Hollaway v. Scripps Memorial Hospital (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 719, 168 Cal. Rptr. 782 , after plaintiff appealed from the modification of a personal injury judgment in her favor, the trial court ordered temporary removal of her guardians ad litem and counsel of record and appointed a new attorney and guardian ad litem to advise the court of any conflicts of interest. The court of appeal annulled the order and elected to examine them on writ of review, citing People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421 (discussed in § 205.20[3][a]). The court of appeal held that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction by issuing the orders, reasoning that once the appeal notices had been filed the court was divested of jurisdiction, except for collateral or independent matters not involved in the appeal (111 Cal. App. 3d 719, 721-722) .

[b] Petition by Beneficially Interested Party

In Johnson v. City of San Pablo (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 447, 283 P.2d 57 , proceedings for annexation of overlapping territories to the cities of San Pablo and Richmond were in progress when petitions for writs of mandamus and review were instituted against each city. A trial court concluded that the San Pablo proceeding was invalid because of jurisdictionally defective steps. The court of appeal, in addition to affirming the trial court's order that the San Pablo proceeding was void because the proceeding exceeded the jurisdiction prescribed by statute (132 Cal. App. 2d 447, 448-449) , held that the city of San Pablo was a party beneficially interested to apply for the writs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1069. The city had the legal capacity to be a party defendant and a justiciable interests in the controversy (132 Cal. App. 2d 447, 458) .

In Marculescu v. City Planning Com. (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 371, 46 P.2d 308 , a superior court issued a writ of prohibition restraining a city planning commission from hearing a petition by property owners to rezone property adjacent to them from commercial to residential use. The property owners appealed. The appellate court found that they were interested persons for purposes of bringing a petition to rezone the property and reversed the action of the superior court. In so doing the court stated that for the purpose of a writ of review, a person is beneficially interested if the judicial action that is sought to be annulled injuriously affects his or her legal right (7 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374) .

[c] Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction

In Andrews v. Superior Court (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 7 Cal. Rptr. 194 , a trial court imposed a monetary penalty under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 on an attorney it found to be in contempt of court on the ground that the attorney was responsible for the failure of his clients to appear at a court ordered deposition. Because the contempt finding was not appealable, the attorney sought a writ of review. The court of appeal held that the findings set forth in the order did not amount to a showing of contempt and annulled the order. The court stated that when a statute authorizes a prescribed procedure, and the court acts contrary to the authority thus conferred, it has exceeded its jurisdiction and a writ of review will issue to correct that excess (183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 759) .

[d] Lack of Appellate Remedy

People v. Gonter (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 333, 178 Cal. Rptr. 66 , was a criminal proceeding in which the prosecution appealed an order granting deferred jail commitments under a special program to several defendants. Although defendants had already pleaded guilty, judgment and sentence had not been imposed and there was no right of appeal from the order. The court of appeal treated the request for appeal as a petition for a writ of review and held that the matter was properly reviewable as such under Code Civ. Proc. § 1068, because there was a contention of at least arguable merit that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction and that there was no right of appeal or other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (125 Cal. App. 3d 333, 338) . In so treating this appeal, however, the court found that the trial court's jurisdiction had not been exceeded and affirmed the order (125 Cal. App. 3d 333, 340) .

[e] Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

In Yoakum v. Small Claims Court (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 125 Cal. Rptr. 882 , plaintiff in three small claims actions had originally petitioned a superior court for writs of review and mandate after denial of a motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to be relieved from adverse judgments. The superior court granted the writ of mandate, directing the small claims court to set aside the judgments and reset them for hearing. In affirming and reversing in part, the court of appeal held that either the writ of review or writ of mandate is proper to reviewan action in which a court lacks or exceeds jurisdiction. In this action, the superior court could properly use both writs to determine whether the small claims court exceeded its jurisdiction. However, a writ of mandate was the appropriate remedy to compel the small claims court to hear certain of the matters on which judgment was rendered (53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 403) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.21

§ 205.21 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--Judgment or Order of Contempt Not Appealable and in Excess of Jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum supporting a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.20).]

THE WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD ISSUE TO EXAMINE THE CONTEMPT _____ [JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE A DETERMINATION OF CONTEMPT IS NOT APPEALABLE AND THE ISSUING COURT EXCEEDED ITS JURISDICTION IN ADJUDICATING THE CONTEMPT.

A. Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable. An adjudication of contempt of court is not appealable (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222; Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764-765, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921).

B. Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction. An adjudication of contempt may be annulled by writ of review if the issuing court exceeded its jurisdiction (Chapman v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 196, 67 Cal. Rptr. 842 ; Little v. Superior Court (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 318, 67 Cal. Rptr. 77).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of the issuance of a petition for a writ of review if the inferior court has made an adjudication of contempt of court. Because contempt adjudications are not appealable [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222] they are frequently the subject of petitions for writs of review. § 205.21 should be used in conjunction with § 205.20, a general form supporting a petition for a writ of review.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, facts indicating how the underlying action, if any (such as an injunction), was in excess of the court's jurisdiction will help demonstrate why a particular contempt action should be annulled [see, e.g., Fortenbury v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 405, 408, 410, 106 P.2d 411 (contempt for violation of temporary restraining order prohibiting picketing)].

[b] Opposing Memoranda

See §§ 205.23 -205.26, which are in opposition to a petition for a writ of review, may be used to oppose this form when modified to address the specific facts of a contempt adjudication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable

The facts and procedural background of Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921), are discussed in § 205.20[3][e]. In Mitchell, the court of appeal issued a writ of review, found a contempt citation not appealable, and annulled the citation. The court stated that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction by appointing a receiver as to assets in which debtors of a judgment debtor claimed an adverse interest (28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764-765) .

[b] Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction

In Chapman v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 67 Cal. Rptr. 842 , a personal injury action, defendant obtained on the day of trial a subpoena duces tecum for medical records of plaintiff, directing her physician to bring the records to the courthouse on a certain date. Plaintiff was subsequently found in contempt of court for willful failure and refusal to comply with the subpoena and was given a suspended sentence. Plaintiff sought a writ of review, contending that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in finding her in contempt and imposing a sentence.

The court of appeal agreed with plaintiff, holding that by writ of review the court could examine the record of and evidence taken by the inferior court to determine whether it exceeded its jurisdiction in adjudicating contempt. Here, the contempt citation and judgment were void as to plaintiff because the subpoena was directed to her physician, not to her (261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 197) . While plaintiff happened to be a bookkeeper and receptionist in the office of her physician, she was not the custodian of her own medical records. Evidence must be strictly construed in favor of the accused (261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 196) , and the trial court's conclusion that plaintiff had disobeyed the subpoena was contrary to the evidence and to the presumption that she was not guilty of willful disobedience. Therefore, the order finding her in contempt and imposing sentence was annulled (261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 201) .

Little v. Superior Court (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 67 Cal. Rptr. 77), was an action for dissolution of marriage. During the proceedings plaintiff noticeddepositions of a psychoanalyst and psychotherapist whom defendant had consulted. After both deponents refused to answer specific questions on the grounds of the physician-patient privilege, plaintiff moved to compel defendant to execute a written consent authorizing the deponents to answer. This motion was granted, and included an order that in the event of defendant's failure or refusal to execute the written authorization within 10 days the county clerk would be appointed to do so on behalf of defendant. Subsequently, defendant's attorney notified plaintiff by letter that defendant had elected not to execute the authorization. Plaintiff's attorney then obtained an ex parte order directing the chief deputy county clerk to execute the authorization on behalf of defendant. The deposition of one of the consultants was then concluded. The remaining one, however, still refused to answer. Plaintiff moved to have defendant held in contempt of court, and the motion was granted. Defendant petitioned for a writ of review.

The court of appeal annulled the contempt order. It held that the contempt judgment was void because the trial court's order concerning the request for written authorization to have the deponents testify did not order defendant to perform any specific act, but merely approved plaintiff's request for an order. Furthermore, the court held that it could, by writ of review, examine the whole record of the court and the evidence to determine the trial court's jurisdiction (260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 316-317) . Strictly construing the evidence in favor of the accused, the court held that there was a lack of evidence of willful disobedience. In addition, the order was ambiguous because defendant believed he was in compliance with it by allowing the county clerk to execute the consent (260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 318) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable

The facts and procedural background of Andrews v. Superior Court (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 7 Cal. Rptr. 194 , are discussed in § 205.20[4][c]. In Andrews, the court of appeal held that findings set forth in the minute order of a trial court did not amount to a showing of contempt and annulled the order and its penalty. The court reiterated that when a statute authorizes a prescribed procedure, and a court acts contrary to the authority thus conferred, it has exceeded its jurisdiction and a writ of review will issue to correct that excess (183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 759) .

[b] Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction

In Cunningham v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 336, 222 Cal. Rptr. 854 , the court of appeal held that a trial court's order requiring an attorney to involuntarily represent an indigent paternity defendant without compensation deprived the attorney of equal protection of the law. The attorney had been held in contempt for refusing to represent the defendant in an action for paternity and reimbursement for public assistance paid on behalf of a child. The court of appeal said that a contempt order cannot stand if the underlying order is invalid. Thus, it issued a writ of review compelling the trial court to vacate its appointment order (177 Cal. App. 3d 336, 352, 356-357) .

The facts and procedural background of Brady v. Superior Court (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 19 Cal. Rptr. 242 , are discussed in § 205.20[3][e]. In Brady, a trial court enjoined a real property owner from permitting occupancy of his real property by other than a single family. A contempt citation was issued based on a finding that the owner permitted his son and the son's friend to occupy the premises. The court of appeal inferred that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction in authorizing the original injunction and the contempt citation, and thus annulled the citation (200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77) .

70 of 74 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.22

§ 205.22 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--Abuse of Discretion by Local Board or Officer

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum supporting a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.20).]

A WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD BE ISSUED TO REVIEW _____ [describe judicial action, e.g., THE DENIAL OF PETITIONER'S BUSINESS LICENSE] BY _____ [specify local board or officer, e.g., THE PARADISE CITY COUNCIL] BECAUSE _____ [specify board or officer, e.g., THE COUNCIL] ABUSED ITS DISCRETION AND THUS EXCEEDED ITS JURISDICTION IN THE EXERCISE OF THIS JUDICIAL FUNCTION.

Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper. A writ of review is the appropriate remedy to determine if a local board or officer exceeded his/her/its jurisdiction by abusing the discretion vested in him/her/it in the exercise of a judicial function (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 220-221, 232 P. 696 ; Ratchford v. County of Sonoma (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1077, 99 Cal. Rptr. 887).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities are for use to support a petition for a writ of review when it is alleged that a local board or officer has exceeded its jurisdiction byabusing its discretion in the exercise of a judicial function [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068]. This form should be used in conjunction with § 205.20, a general form supporting a petition for a writ of review. Note that a petition for writ of administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is usually a more appropriate remedy and should be considered, in addition to or as an alternative to, a petition for a writ of review.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, the judicial or quasi-judicial nature of the action complained of should be specified, as well as why the action constituted an abuse of discretion [see, e.g., Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 216, 232 P. 696 (civil service board action quasi-judicial)].

[b] Opposing Memoranda

With appropriate modifications, §§ 205.23-205.26 may be used to oppose the foregoing form, particularly § 205.24, which specifically opposes the contention that a judicial function was being exercised.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper

The facts and procedural background of Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 232 P. 696 , are discussed in § 205.20[3][d]. In Garvin, a civil service board had made a finding that a police officer was guilty of insubordination and sustained his dismissal. The officer sought a writ of review. The writ was granted by the superior court, which annulled the board's order. Defendant civil service board appealed. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment annulling the order (195 Cal. 212, 226) . It held that the board action was quasi-judicial and not ministerial in nature. The Court stated that the city charter provision directing the board to fully hear and determine the matter indicated that the board proceedings was in the nature of an original trial, and its determination was in the nature of an original and final judgment (195 Cal. 212, 216) . The Court also stated that in the absence of a right to appeal, the writ of review addresses only the jurisdiction of an inferior board or tribunal exercising judicial functions (195 Cal. 212, 220) .

In Ratchford v. County of Sonoma (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 99 Cal. Rptr. 887 , an owner of property abutting on a subdivision road discovered that a portion of her property encroached on the road, so she petitioned to have the county board of supervisors declare the road abandoned. The portion of the road in question had never been accepted for public dedication by the board. The board adopted a resolution abandoning the portion of the road containing the encroachment and made a finding that the road was not a county road and at best could be described as a purported county road. Another abutting landowner objected to the abandonment primarily on the ground that the land area was needed for future expansion of the road and underground utilities. She filed a petition for a writ of review contending that the board had no jurisdiction to adopt the abandonment resolution and exceeded its discretion in doing so, with the result being to benefit a private individual. The trial court granted the petition but denied any affirmative relief, and she appealed from the denial.

The court of appeal reversed the denial and remanded the case with instructions to order the resolution void. First, the court determined that the board of supervisors had exercised a judicial function in its action, contrary to older cases holding that matters relating to street improvements were usually legislative in character. The court recognized the test employed in Quinchard v. Board of Trustees (1896) 113 Cal. 664, 45 P. 856 (discussed in § 205.24[4][a]), namely, that the character of the act or determination sought to be reviewed is the important factor in determining whether a judicial action is present. However, it stated that a better test is whether the act or determination relates to the ascertainment of existing rights, and held that insofar as the abandonment of a street or highway affects the property rights of abutting owners there is something of a judicial function present (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1067) . The court also found that the abutting owner had sufficient interest to have standing to seek a writ of review (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1069) . The court then turned to the question of the scope of review of the board's action. It stated that either a writ of review or mandate is an appropriate remedy to test the proper exercise of discretion vested in a local board (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1068) . A board's decision of what constitutes public interest or convenience is legislative in character, in the absence of fraud or collusion (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1073-1074) . After acknowledging that examination of conflicting evidence is not part of the usual scope of review when a writ of review is issued, the court held that the board had exceeded its jurisdiction because there was insufficient evidence and possibly constructive fraud in the board's finding that a portion of the roadway was unnecessary for prospective public use (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1075) . Because the record failed to show any public benefit or interest in the abandonment of the portion of the right of way involved and failed to show that it was not necessary for prospective use, the board's resolution should have been declared void (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1077) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper

DeLucia v. County of Merced (1968) 257 Cal. App. 2d 620, 65 Cal. Rptr. 177 , was an appeal from a superior court order denying writs of mandate or review in order to reverse a holding of a local board of equalization. Although the court ofappeal affirmed this order, it held that a writ of review may be used to examine actions of boards when it is claimed that taxes were illegally collected or that the board's actions were tantamount to fraud. In such a review the chief issues are whether the person affected has been afforded a hearing and, if so, whether there is any evidence to support the board's determination (257 Cal. App. 2d 620, 623) .

In Swars v. Council of the City of Vallejo (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 858, 149 P.2d 397 , a superior court denied a petition for writ of review to examine the action of a civil service commission in dismissing a police officer from duty. The petitioner contended that the commission, sitting as an inferior tribunal or board exercising judicial functions, exceeded its jurisdiction in rendering a decision without introduction of evidence, and its purported findings in private were insufficient to support its decision (64 Cal. App. 2d 858, 863) . There was no appeal or other remedy available, but the trial court apparently believed that some other remedy existed (64 Cal. App. 2d 858, 861) . The court of appeal reversed the denial with directions to issue the writ, holding that the civil service commission lacked jurisdiction to make its decision without taking evidence. Although granting a writ of review is discretionary, it should not be denied if the petition's allegations are sufficient and no grounds for denial appear. Here, the trial judge simply presumed that the actions of the commission were legal, and did not exercise sound discretion (64 Cal. App. 2d 858, 865) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.23

§ 205.23 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--General Form

[1] FORM

[IN THE] COURT OF APPEAL OF CALIFORNIA
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]
[or other as appropriate depending on which court petition is filed in]

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Respondent,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO WRIT OF REVIEW
_____ [name],	)	(CERTIORARI)
Real Party in Interest.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487)]
	)
	)

_____

THE WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD NOT ISSUE BECAUSE THE _____ [INFERIOR TRIBUNAL or BOARD or OFFICER] ACTED WITHIN HIS/HER/ITS JURISDICTION WHILE EXERCISING JUDICIAL FUNCTIONS [AND PETITIONER IS NOT BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED IN THE UNDERLYING ACTION].

A. Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review. A writ of review will only be issued if an inferior tribunal, board, or officer, exercising judicial functions, has exceeded the jurisdiction of that tribunal, board, or officer, and there is no appeal, nor, in the judgment of the court, any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 375, 341 P.2d 13 ; Brown Co. v. Appellate Dept. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 903-905, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258).

[Optional] B. Only Beneficially Interested Party May Petition. A writ of review may only be issued if the petitioner is beneficially interested in the underlying action (Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; Marlow v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 393, 395, 110 P.2d 11 ; Katenkamp v. Dept. of Finance (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 343, 344, 49 P.2d 897).

C. Writ Denied if Action Within Jurisdiction. A writ of review will not issue to review errors made by the inferior tribunal, board, or officer, but only to determine if the inferior tribunal, board, or officer exceeded his/her/its jurisdiction while exercising judicial functions (McClearen v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal.2d 852, 857-858, 291 P.2d 449 ; Quezada v. Superior Court (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 528, 529, 340 P.2d 1018).

[Optional] D. Writ Denied if Seeks to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction. A writ of review will not issue to examine matters of discretion within the jurisdiction of an inferior tribunal, board, or officer (Estate of Kay (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 215, 218, 225-226, 181 P.2d 1 ; Turner v. Civil Service Commission (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 640, 643-644, 259 P.2d 698).

[When appropriate, the foregoing form should be combined with partial forms governing specific fact situations (see, e.g., §§ 205.24 -205.26.)]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be used to oppose issuance of a writ of review on the ground that the inferior tribunal, board, or officer did not exceed the jurisdiction of that entity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068]. Optional paragraph B should be used if there is a possibility that petitioner is not a beneficially interested party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069]. Optional paragraph D should be used if there was an exercise of judicial or quasi-judicial functions, but the action taken was within the discretion of the tribunal, board, or officer.

No statement in opposition to the petition is required unless requested by the court, but within ten days after the petition is filed, the respondent or real party in interest, or both, separately or jointly, may serve and file points and authorities in opposition and a statement of any fact considered material not included in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)] The court may, in its discretion, allow the filing of the petition without prior service and may deny the petition or issue an alternative writ without first requesting the filing of opposition points and authorities, but the grant of an ex parte application requires a showing of good cause [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(4)].

The sample caption in this form is for use when the petition is directed to a court of appeal. The caption must be modified when the petition is directed to the Supreme Court or a superior court. For forms of alternative captions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

The petition for a writ of review is frequently combined with requests for other writs in the alternative, such as prohibition, habeas corpus, and mandate [Lankton v. Superior Court (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 55 P.2d 1170 (prohibition); In re Smith (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296, 135 Cal. Rptr. 5 (habeas corpus); Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 691, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 (mandate)] Therefore, the points and authorities set forth in this form should be combined with those appropriate to oppose any alternative relief sought.

If the action complained of was taken by a board or officer, this form should be combined with § 205.24 to establish the judicial or quasi-judicial nature of the action. If the main issue is not the exercise of jurisdiction but whether a remedy of appeal existed or was exercised by petitioner, this form should be combined with § 205.25. If it appears that the underlying basis for the petition is moot, or that the petition should be barred by the assertion of equitable principles such as laches, § 205.26 should be combined with this form.

This form may also be used when appropriate with points and authorities supporting a response to the petition by answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487], demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487], or motion to dismiss [see Pacific Home B.R. v. Daugherty (1925) 75 Cal. App 623, 626, 243 P. 473 (decided before answer was permissible pleading)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, facts relating to the legal basis for the judgment or order of the inferior tribunal, board, or officer should be provided to show that jurisdiction was not exceeded by any abuse of discretion.

With appropriate modifications, this form and §§ 205.24-205.26 may be used to oppose the contentions found in §§ 205.20 -205.22.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of demurrers, motions to dismiss, and orders denying the writ of review see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For a general form of answer or demurrer, see Ch. 26, Answers and Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities in opposition to requests for writs of mandate,prohibition, and habeas corpus, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , and Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus , respectively.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

In Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 341 P.2d 13 , plaintiff brought a civil action in superior court against a cold storage company and others. After defendant's demurrer to a second amended complaint was sustained with leave to amend, defendant brought a motion to dismiss the complaint on the ground that plaintiff had failed to amend the complaint within the time allowed by the court. The judge granted the motion in chambers by oral direction to his clerk, who then entered the dismissal in the court minutes. No notice of dismissal was given to plaintiff, and he did not learn of it until almost five months after the time for appeal had expired. Plaintiff then petitioned for a writ of review contending that the court exceeded its jurisdiction in the manner of ordering the dismissal and because of a lack of notice to him.

The Supreme Court affirmed the dismissal. Citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1068, the Court held that the writ of review is available only if an inferior court has exceeded its jurisdiction and there is no appeal, nor any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy. Furthermore, the writ will not issue if the petitioner had a right of appeal from the order or judgment and permitted the time for appeal to lapse without perfecting it. If there was an opportunity to appeal and it was lost through the neglect of the aggrieved party, the subsequent absence of a remedy cannot be asserted as the basis for issuing the writ (52 Cal. 2d 373, 375) . Plaintiff was not entitled to any notice under prevailing law, and his lack of actual notice was immaterial. It was plaintiff's duty to protect his own record and his failure to do so, absent reasonable justification, did not entitle him to a writ of review (52 Cal. 2d 373, 376) . The Court distinguished Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 221 P. 635 (discussed in § 205.20[3][f]), finding that extremely unusual circumstances existed there justifying issuance of the writ, which were not present here. While in Grinbaum the aggrieved party had no notice of the inception of the proceedings and was in no condition to receive notice, here it was plaintiff's own lack of diligence that caused him to forfeit his appellate remedy (52 Cal. 2d 373, 377) . The Court also held that the trial court's jurisdiction was not exceeded by the clerk's entry of the dismissal on instructions from the judge (52 Cal. 2d 373, 378) .

Note that Simmons was decided prior to the 1965-1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5. The section now provides that a party who submits an order or judgment for entry in most contested actions or special proceedings must send notice of entry of judgment to all parties who have appeared, and that the clerk must mail the notice if a prevailing party is not represented by counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a), (b)].

In Brown Co. v. Appellate Dept. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258 , an action to enforce a mechanic's lien, plaintiff obtained judgment in its favor, whereupon the appellate division of the superior court reversed the judgment on the grounds that a preliminary notice concerning the lien required by Civ. Code § 3097 was prematurely served. The appellate department denied plaintiff's request to certify the case to the court of appeals. Plaintiff then petitioned for a writ of review or, in the alternative, a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued a writ of review, but dismissed the proceeding after concluding that the appellate department had not exceeded its jurisdiction, as that term is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1068. While the appellate department had made an erroneous decision as to the merits of the lien notice issue, it did not act without or in excess of its jurisdiction. The trial court had the duty to decide correctly, but its jurisdiction was not in any way defeated or limited by a wrong decision. In writ of review proceedings, the only question is whether the lower court has exceeded its jurisdiction, and if not, no matter how grievously it erred to the prejudice of petitioner, either in matters of fact or law, relief cannot be given (148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 903-904) . The court distinguished Auto Equity Sales Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 (discussed in § 205.20[3][c]). In Auto Equity Sales, the lower court had deliberately refused to follow a binding decision of a higher court, while here, the appellate department conscientiously attempted to follow the law even though its conclusions were wrong (148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 904) .

[b] Only Beneficially Interested Party May Petition

Marlow v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 393, 110 P.2d 11 , involved an heirship proceeding. A statement of heirship was filed by children whose grandfather was the uncle of the decedent. Prior to this filing the superior court had made an order of default against all claimants who had not appeared or entered petitions to determine heirship. A motion to strike the statement of heirship was granted, after which the children moved, unsuccessfully, to set aside the default and file their petition. They then petitioned for a writ of review to set aside the default.

The Supreme Court dismissed the proceeding, finding that under the provisions of former Prob. Code § 226 none of the petitioners stood in a relationship to the decedent so as to be beneficially interested in the estate, within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069, and therefore, a writ of review could not issue (17 Cal. 2d 393, 395) .

In Katenkamp v. Dept. of Finance (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 343, 49 P.2d 897 , a real property owner brought a petition for a writ of review to challenge the granting of a permit by the state to a private corporation. The permit allowed the corporation to maintain two structures on state-owned tidelands, which theproperty owner claimed removed the beach from his property by creating a breakwater effect, and amounted to a taking of private property for public purposes without due process of law. A demurrer to the petition was sustained by the lower court, and judgment was entered for the respondents. The property owner appealed.

The court of appeal held that the granting of the permit was a ministerial or executive function, not a judicial function, and therefore, it could not be challenged by means of a writ of review (9 Cal. App. 2d 343, 345) . While the court declined to rule on the question of whether the property owner was a beneficially interested party within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069, it recited that this statute has been repeatedly interpreted to mean that a writ of review will not issue in favor of strangers to the record, with exceptions for certain taxpayer actions (9 Cal. App. 2d 343, 344) . Therefore the judgment for respondents was affirmed.

[c] Writ Denied if Action Within Jurisdiction

In McClearen v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 852, 291 P.2d 449 , the state had served a notice on an employer to withhold monies owing an employee for delinquent sales taxes. The employee brought a suit for wages in justice court against the employer. The state moved for an order granting a lien on any judgment obtained by the employee pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 688.1, but the motion was denied. The state appealed to the superior court. During the pendency of the appeal the employee obtained judgment against the employer. The superior court remanded the cause for further hearing on the basis that the judge of the justice court had not used discretion in ruling on the motion for a lien. Subsequently the remittitur was recalled, on the ground that the superior court had earlier acted on the mistaken belief that the justice court had not heard any factual issues. A trial de novo was ordered, which resulted in an order granting the state a lien on the employee's judgment. The employee petitioned for a writ of review to annul the action taken by the superior court on the ground that it lacked jurisdiction to entertain any of the proceedings.

The Supreme Court affirmed the orders of the superior court. First, the Court determined that the orders were appealable under former Code Civ. Proc. § 974, which would prevent the employee from obtaining relief through a writ of review (45 Cal. 2d 852, 855) . The superior court acted within its jurisdiction in recalling the remittitur, trying the matter de novo, and proceeding without a copy of the pleadings in the main action because each of these actions was sanctioned by statute or case law (45 Cal. 2d 852, 856-857) . Finally, the Court stated that it could not make a ruling as to the correctness of the superior court's decision because mere error cannot be examined on a writ of review (45 Cal. 2d 852, 857-858) .

In Quezada v. Superior Court (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 528, 340 P.2d 1018 , a husband was held in contempt of court for failure to make child support payments pursuant to a temporary order for support in a proceeding for dissolution of marriage. At the time of the contempt hearing the parties stipulated that the matter could be heard by a commissioner sitting as a judge pro tempore. The husband was not found in contempt and the wife petitioned for a writ of review, alleging various errors and that the hearing could not take place before a judge pro tempore as it was criminal in nature.

The court of appeal denied the writ of review. Matters of alleged error are not subject to review. Secondly, while the contempt proceeding was criminal in nature it was not, strictly speaking, a criminal action. The court's jurisdiction was not exceeded because the contempt proceeding was ancillary to the dissolution proceeding and was a cause that the court had jurisdiction to decide by appointment of a pro tempore judge by stipulation of the parties, under Cal. Const., art. VI, § 5 (171 Cal. App. 2d 528, 529-530) .

[d] Writ Denied if Seeks to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction

In Estate of Kay (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 215, 181 P.2d 1 , a guardian was attempting to confirm the sale of the home of an incompetent person. The guardian was a bank and the incompetent person a physician who remained incompetent less than three months. Prior to being restored to competency, the guardian sold the physician's real property, which he had used as a home and office. The guardian obtained confirmation of the sale by the probate court, on the basis that the sale was in the best interests of the physician. Because the order confirming the sale was not appealable the physician sought a writ of review to annul the order confirming the sale, on the ground that the probate court had exceeded its jurisdiction in making the finding that the sale was in his best interest and in not granting him a continuance until after his hearing for restoration of competency, which was pending. A writ of review was issued and the matter examined by the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court affirmed the order confirming the sale. It held that the probate court acted within its discretion as limited by statutory authority. The determination of the sufficiency of evidence as to whether a sale was proper was within the court's discretion, and a writ of review could not be used to annul orders made within the court's jurisdiction that are subject to its discretion (30 Cal. 2d 215, 218) . The Court cited the concept of jurisdiction in Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 109 P.2d 942 (writ of prohibition), and held that even under the broad definition of jurisdiction in that case, the probate court had not exceeded its jurisdiction (30 Cal. 2d 215, 218-219) . Furthermore, the granting of a continuance was a matter well within the discretion of the court and it could not be examined on a writ of review (30 Cal. 2d 215, 225-226) .

Turner v. Civil Service Commission (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 640, 259 P.2d 698 , involved the dismissal of a deputy coroner from office based on insubordination and other misconduct. The deputy coroner appealed to the civil service commission, and after a hearing the dismissal was sustained. He then petitioned for and obtained a writ of review in the superior court. That court annulled the order of dismissal on the ground that the commission had acted arbitrarily and in excess of its jurisdiction in not admitting evidence of the deputy coroner's efficiency record and good reputation, and that there was insufficient evidence to sustain the dismissal. The civil service commission appealed the annulment, contending that it did not act outside of its jurisdiction or abuse its discretion.

The court of appeal reversed the superior court's annulment. It stated that a writ of review raises jurisdictional questions and cannot be used to review mere error. In reviewing decisions by such commissions the courts are not authorized to exercise their independent judgment on the evidence, and their review is limited to a determination of whether the agency's decision is supported by substantial evidence. Here, there was substantial evidence to sustain the dismissal, and thus there was no apparent abuse of discretion (119 Cal. App. 2d 640, 643-644) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

In Jillson v. Board of Supervisors (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 192, 34 Cal. Rptr. 419 , a taxpayer filed an application with Sacramento County, sitting as a board of equalization, for the reduction of her property tax assessment. The matter was heard and the application denied. She then petitioned for a writ of review or mandate, the respondent demurred to the petition, and the demurrer was sustained. The court of appeals affirmed the judgment of dismissal sustaining the demurrer, holding that the taxpayer had an adequate legal remedy in the form of paying her taxes under protest pursuant to former Rev. & Tax. Code § 5136, by which any deficiency in the hearing could be reviewed. A writ of review will not issue, unless the inferior tribunal has exceeded its jurisdiction and there is no appeal, or other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (221 Cal. App. 2d 192, 195) .

[b] Writ Denied if Sought to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction

In Nider v. City Commission (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 97 P.2d 293 , a city physician was removed from office by a commission for failure to maintain the professional confidence of the city employees and officers through various acts of misconduct. On examination by writ of review, the court of appeal held that in reviewing an order of a city commission it could only review the question of whether the commission had jurisdiction, and not mere errors in the exercise of jurisdiction (36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 20) . While the commission permitted evidence that went too far afield to be introduced, there was other sufficient evidence to sustain its findings. The court held that the commission may have gone to the limit of sound discretion, but did not go beyond it (36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 23) . Therefore, as the commission did not exceed its jurisdiction the dismissal of the physician was upheld (36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 30) .

In Nider one of the bases for finding that a writ of review was a proper remedy to examine the proceedings was the court's conclusion that a writ of mandate was not proper to review judicial action (36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 28) . For a discussion of when the remedy of administrative mandamus [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] may now be utilized to secure review of a public agency's actions, [see Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Assn. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 35, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.24

§ 205.24 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Not Exercising Judicial Functions

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum opposing a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.23)].

THE WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD NOT ISSUE, BECAUSE THE _____ [INFERIOR TRIBUNAL or BOARD or OFFICER] WAS NOT EXERCISING JUDICIAL FUNCTIONS.

Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions. A writ of review will not issue unless the inferior tribunal, board, or officer exceeded his/her/its jurisdiction while exercising judicial functions (Monarch Cablevision, Inc. v. City Council (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 210, 48 Cal. Rptr. 550 ; Meyers v. Board of Supervisors (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 623, 630-631, 243 P.2d 38 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose a petition for a writ of review on the ground that the inferior tribunal, board, or officer was not exercising judicial functions. The foregoing form should be used in conjunction with the general form opposing a petition for a writ of review [see § 205.23].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, if the action taken by the tribunal, board, or officer was legislative, rather than judicial,facts showing why the action was legislative should be included [see, e.g., Quinchard v. Board of Trustees (1896) 113 Cal. 664, 668-669, 45 P. 856 (order for street improvements as legislative function)]. Secondly, if the tribunal, board, or officer acted pursuant to a statute or ordinance, counsel should state how the actions taken comport with the provisions of the statute or ordinance [see, e.g., Estate of Kay (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 215, 218, 181 P.2d 1 (statute); Monarch Cablevision, Inc. v. City Council (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211, 48 Cal. Rptr. 550 (ordinance);

see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (review of administrative action by writ of administrative mandamus)].

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of review supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 205.20 -205.22.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions

In Monarch Cablevision, Inc. v. City Council (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 48 Cal. Rptr. 550 , a city council granted a community antenna television system franchise to a private corporation. A competitor had applied for the franchise as well, and both applications were heard by the council contemporaneously. The competitor claimed that the council exceeded its jurisdiction by erroneously awarding the franchise to the other corporation because the competitor's proposed rates were lower and no required financial statement had been submitted by the other corporation. In addition, it claimed that the award had been based on hearsay evidence about which it had been denied an opportunity to cross-examine. It filed a petition for writs of review and mandate in the superior court to annul the action of the council and to compel the council to grant it the franchise. The corporation awarded the franchise intervened and its motion to dismiss was granted. The competitor then appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal. The court found that the actions taken by the city council were legislative in character, based on case decisions concerning the granting of franchises. The character of the act sought to be reviewed is the test for determining whether the writ of review should issue. The writ of review should issue only to determine whether an inferior tribunal, board, or officer exceeded the jurisdiction of that entity in the exercise of judicial functions (239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 210) . Furthermore, the council acted pursuant to a city ordinance conferring discretion in awarding franchises and there was no apparent abuse of discretion in making the award (239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211) .

In Meyers v. Board of Supervisors (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 623, 243 P.2d 38 , a regional planning commission granted an operating permit to a county for a refuse dump near a residential area after notice and a public hearing by the zoning board of the commission. Certain owners of property adjacent to the proposed dumpsite filed protests. The zoning board recommended that the permit be granted, and the commission concurred. Thereafter, the property owners filed a notice of appeal with the board of supervisors, requesting a another hearing and an opportunity to introduce more evidence. The board met, reviewed a transcript of the zoning board proceedings and confirmed the granting of the permit, without notice to the property owners or further public hearing. The property owners petitioned the superior court for a writ of review, contending that the board of supervisors had exceeded its jurisdiction. The petition was denied and they appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the denial. The court held that the board of supervisors had not exceeded its jurisdiction in affirming the planning commission's decision because it acted within the scope of applicable county ordinances. A writ of review tries only the jurisdiction of an inferior board or tribunal exercising judicial functions (110 Cal. App. 2d 623, 626) . Neither the act of reviewing the transcript of the zoning board or the failure to provide the property owners an additional public hearing exceeded the jurisdiction of the board because county ordinances conferred that discretionary authority (110 Cal. App. 2d 623, 628, 630-631) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions

In Quinchard v. Board of Trustees (1896) 113 Cal. 664, 45 P. 856 , a writ of review was obtained to annul an order of a board of trustees for improvements to a city street. The board of trustees appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed the judgment, thereby dismissing the writ. The Court held that the actions of the board in ordering the street improvements were legislative, not judicial, the character of the act being determinative. A writ of review will only issue if the action complained of was judicial in nature (113 Cal. 664, 668-669) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.25

§ 205.25 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Right of Appeal or Other Remedy Exists or Existed

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum opposing a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.23).]

A WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD NOT ISSUE BECAUSE PETITIONER _____ [HAS or HAD] AN ADEQUATE REMEDY BY _____ [APPEAL or state other remedy].

A. Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available. A writ ofreview will not issue if the petitioner has a right of appeal or any other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; De Lao v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 711, 712, 234 P.2d 961 ; Goble v. Municipal Court (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 725, 726-727, 292 P.2d 585).

[Optional] B. Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction. A writ of review will not issue if the petitioner had the right to appeal but lost it because of failing to appeal within the time prescribed by law (Estate of Nersisian (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 561, 567, 318 P.2d 168 ; Faias v. Superior Court (1933) 133 Cal. App 525, 531, 24 P.2d 567).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used to oppose a petition for a writ of review on the ground that the petitioner has a right of appeal or some other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, or had that right or remedy and lost it by failing to pursue it within the time period prescribed by law. In the latter case, optional paragraph B should be used. This form should be used in conjunction with the general form opposing a petition for a writ of review [see § 205.23].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should indicate what remedies are available to petitioner, and why those remedies are plain, speedy, and adequate. Alternatively, counsel should ascertain whether the action taken by the inferior tribunal, board, or officer is appealable and state any statutory authority for appealability. Note that the availability of appeal has expanded since many of the older cases concerning writs of review were decided. Appeals in civil actions are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 901-914.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of review supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 205.20 -205.22.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a general discussion of civil appeals and appealable judgments and orders, see respectively Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , and Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available

In De Lao v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 711, 234 P.2d 961 , a trial court found for plaintiff in a negligence action. The trial judge signed a judgment reciting that findings of fact and conclusions of law had been waived on the basis of representations of plaintiff's attorney. Defendant moved for a new trial and denied the waiver of findings and conclusions. The court denied his motions, but granted plaintiff's motion to set aside the judgment and for leave to prepare findings and conclusions. Thereafter, a new judgment was signed that contained the findings and conclusions. Defendant then made a second motion for a new trial, which was denied, and proceeded to petition for a writ of review to annul the orders and judgments made by the trial court. He also filed notices of appeal.

The Supreme Court dismissed the proceeding, holding that under Code Civ. Proc. § 1068, defendant petitioning for review had to establish not only an excess of jurisdiction by the trial court, but also that there was no appeal or other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy. If the ruling or decision is not appealable, the writ will still not issue if the petitioner has an adequate remedy by appealing from a subsequent order or judgment. Here, the first judgment would have been appealable. While the Court did not determine the merits of the argument against its appealability, it held that because defendant had already commenced an appeal from the second judgment he had an adequate remedy (37 Cal. 2d 711, 712-713) .

In Goble v. Municipal Court (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 725, 292 P.2d 585 , a suit was brought for money due under a contract. The superior court's appellate department reversed the judgment for plaintiff at defendants' instance and ordered the trial court to make and file findings of fact and conclusions of law. The trial court did so and a second judgment for plaintiff was entered, after which defendants moved for a new trial. This motion was denied, and defendants appealed, but the appellate department dismissed the appeal on the ground that it was not timely filed. Defendants then petitioned for a writ of review in the superior court, alleging that the municipal court had failed to properly decide the case in accordance with certain evidence and the trial judge had exceeded his jurisdiction. A writ was initially granted by ex parte order, but plaintiff moved to vacate the writ and dismiss the proceeding on the ground that defendants previously had a right to appeal. The trial court ordered that the writ be vacated and dismissed the proceeding. Defendants appealed the order.

The court of appeal affirmed the order vacating the writ and dismissing the proceeding, holding that a writ of review would not issue if petitioner had a right to appeal, which was lost by petitioner's neglect. The fact that the order had been appealable was determinative. Furthermore, the court held that the trial court had not exceeded its jurisdiction, and to have granted a writ under these circumstances would have had the effect of providing defendants with an alternative or duplicate method of review entirely unauthorized by statute or established law (138 Cal. App. 2d 725, 726-727) .

[b] Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction

Estate of Nersisian (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 561, 318 P.2d 168 , involveddistribution of the estate of a California resident to his nonresident alien relatives. The decedent's will provided that in the event the relatives were not legally entitled to take under it the estate would be distributed to a fraternal organization for charitable purposes. A probate court approved a petition for partial distribution of the bulk of the estate to the fraternal organization because it found that the relatives lived in a country not having a reciprocity agreement for purposes of estate succession. Some of the relatives appealed from that order of distribution, but abandoned the appeals. Thereafter, they moved to vacate the judgment and their motion was denied. They also petitioned for a writ of review, contending that the probate court exceeded its jurisdiction in making the distribution because of a lack of adequate notice of the probate proceedings. The petition was denied and they appealed.

The court of appeal dismissed the appeal. It held that despite the nonappealability of the order denying the motion to vacate the decree of distribution, petitioners had an adequate appellate remedy from the decree of distribution itself, and their abandonment of it could not be grounds for issuance of a writ of review (155 Cal. App. 2d 561, 567) . Furthermore, the probate court had not exceeded its jurisdiction because the appearance through counsel cured any defects in the notices (155 Cal. App. 2d 561, 564-566) .

Faias v. Superior Court (1933) 133 Cal. App. 525, 24 P.2d 567 , also involved an estate. The former wife of a decedent filed a claim against his estate for child support due under a divorce decree between the decedent and herself. The estate administrator took no action on the claim and the probate court granted leave to enforce the judgment against the estate, after which the former wife commenced suit on the claim in superior court. Later, the administrator filed a petition to compromise the claim in the probate court. The guardian of an incompetent child of the decedent filed objections to the order requested on the ground that the claim was barred by the statute of limitations. The probate court approved the claim, and the guardian petitioned for a writ of review contending that the court had no jurisdiction to make the orders concerning the claim. A writ of review was granted.

The court of appeal discharged the writ, holding that the guardian should have moved to vacate the original order granting the claimant the right to proceed against the estate. Furthermore, the order would have been appealable as it was one that affected the judgment by way of enforcing it. Neither the administrator nor the heir moved to vacate the order. The fact that the right to appeal may have been lost by lapse of time would not change the general rule that a writ of review will not issue if the remedy of appeal exists, except in unusual cases, such as a want of notice, which was not alleged here (133 Cal. App. 525, 530-531) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available

In Arens v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 623, 290 P.2d 257 , a petition for writ of review was brought to review an order of a probate court denying a motion to vacate an order setting apart a probate homestead. The Supreme Court denied the writ on the grounds that the order setting aside the probate homestead was an appealable order and became final when the time for appeal expired. A writ of review will not issue to review an order, unless there is no appeal. While the order denying the motion to vacate was not appealable, and the petitioner had not received notice of the order setting aside the homestead, the fact that the homestead order was appealable was determinative (45 Cal. 2d 623, 625-626) .

The facts and procedural background of Jillson v. Board of Supervisors (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 192, 34 Cal. Rptr. 419 , are discussed in § 205.23[4][a]. In Jillson, the court of appeal affirmed the sustaining of a demurrer to a taxpayer's petition for a writ of review concerning denial of a reduction of property taxes. The court held that the taxpayer had an adequate legal remedy in the form of paying her taxes under protest, by which any deficiency in the tax reduction hearing she attended could be reviewed (221 Cal. App. 2d 192, 195) .

[b] Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction

Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 341 P.2d 13 , is discussed in § 205.23[3][a].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.26

§ 205.26 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Petitioner's Claim Moot or Barred by Laches

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum opposing a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.23)].

A WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD NOT ISSUE BECAUSE THE CLAIM OF PETITIONER IS _____ [MOOT and/or BARRED BY LACHES].

[EITHER]

A. Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot. A writ of review will not issue if the claim of petitioner is moot (Wilson v. L.A. County Civil Service Com. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 246 P.2d 688 ; James v. Superior Court (1917) 35 Cal. App 148, 149, 169 P. 398).

[AND/OR]

B. Writ of Review Denied for Laches. A writ of review will not issue if thedelay by petitioner in bringing the petition is so long as to constitute laches (Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; Bernstein v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 569, 116 P.2d 172).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose a petition for a writ of review on the grounds that the action complained of has become moot, or that a delay in bringing the petition amounts to laches. The foregoing form should be used in conjunction with the general form opposing a petition for a writ of review [see § 205.23].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should describe any circumstances that undermine the reasons for petitioning for a writ of review [see, e.g., James v. Superior Court (1917) 35 Cal. App. 148, 149, 169 P. 398 (propriety of injunction moot when purpose already accomplished)]. Facts indicating that the petition is being brought after the period in which an appeal from a final judgment is permitted should also be included, as well as any lack of explanation by petitioner for not bringing the petition sooner [see, e.g., Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620] .

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of review supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 205.20 -205.22.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot

Wilson v. L.A. County Civil Service Com. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 246 P.2d 688 , involved a dispute over a list of candidates eligible for the position of county clerk. The list originated after a civil service examination. One of the examinees, who placed last on the list, appealed his positioning to the civil service commission and, when that appeal was denied, petitioned for a writ of review in the superior court. The court issued a writ of mandate after finding that the oral portion of the examination was not competitive, and required the civil service commission to cancel the eligible list and hold a new examination. A new examination was held and a new list of candidates was generated. The examinee again petitioned for a writ of review, but it was denied and the denial was affirmed on appeal. In the interim both the examinee and the civil service commission had appealed from the order issuing the writ of mandate; the examinee's appeal was dismissed after being abandoned. However, the appeal by the civil service commission resulted in the reversal of the original order [see Wilson v. L.A. County Civil Service Com. (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 777, 778, 218 P.2d 547]. Subsequently, the trial court granted the commission's motion to dismiss the proceeding and discharge the writ of review. The motion was made on the ground that the issues in the action were moot and that the eligible list in question was no longer in existence and had expired. The examinee appealed from the order granting the dismissal.

The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal. It held that at the time the motion to dismiss was made, the eligible list in question was no longer in existence under the provisions of the county charter that governed the duration of the list (112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 452) . Therefore, the validity of the list had become a moot question. The fact that the court of appeal had made a ruling (reversing the issuance of the writ of mandate) that examined the validity of the examination did not mean that the question of mootness was decided there for purposes of precedent (112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 453-454) . Because the only question presented by the original petition for a writ of review was the validity of the original list, any judicial decision would be ineffectual (112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454) .

In James v. Superior Court (1917) 35 Cal. App. 148, 169 P. 398 , a preliminary injunction was issued and later dissolved in a civil action in superior court. The purpose of the injunction was to prevent the sale of certain capital stock of a corporation to enforce the payment of an assessment. Plaintiff in the suit paid the assessment and the corporation issued plaintiff a receipt and recorded the payment on its own books of account. However, plaintiff petitioned for a writ of review to annul the order dissolving the injunction, contending that the court was without jurisdiction to dissolve it.

The court of appeals denied the writ of review. The court found that plaintiff was correct in asserting that the superior court exceeded its jurisdiction in dissolving the injunction. However, the purpose of the injunction was already accomplished because plaintiff had prevented sale of the stock by paying the assessment. Therefore, the court held that it was no longer of any legal consequence whether plaintiff was correct in his contention about the injunction. Payment of the assessment had made the injunction issue virtually an abstract proposition of law on which no rights depended and no relief could be afforded (35 Cal. App. 148, 149) .

[b] Writ of Review Denied for Laches

In Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620 , a municipal court's judgment of contempt was challenged. The contemner was fined and petitioned the superior court for a writ of review. The superior court denied the petition as not being timely filed, based on a delay of approximately six months. The contemner appealed the denial, contending that although he had delayed in petitioning, his petition should not have been denied unless there had been prejudice to the opposing party.

The court of appeal affirmed the denial. It held that under the rule established in Reynolds v. Superior Court (1883) 64 Cal. 372, 28 P. 121 , a delay in bringing the petition that exceeds the time for the period of appeal from a final judgment bars the petition for review, unless the delay is satisfactorily explained. The court compared this rule to that in habeas corpus proceedings in which petitioners for that writ must explain delay in seeking it. The court distinguished the holding of Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 , because its holding that prejudice must be shown in order to establish laches applies only to administrative mandamus proceedings. Here, the court continued, the writ of review is more discretionary, although the discretion must be exercised within reason. The petition for the writ occurred well after the 60-day period for appeals from a final judgment (40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997) . The court did not comment, however, on the fact that there is no appeal remedy from a contempt judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222].

Bernstein v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 116 P.2d 172 , involved a challenge to the appointment of a wife as the guardian of the estate of her husband. After a period of almost six years the husband petitioned for a writ of review, contending that the appointment was invalid, citing Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 221 P. 635 (discussed in § 205.20[3][f]). At the time of the petition for the writ, the parties' daughter had also filed a petition to succeed the wife as guardian on the wife's resignation from that position.

The court of appeal denied the writ, holding that the husband's lengthy delay in seeking the writ amounted to laches, and his conduct had amounted to consent to the guardianship. In contrast to the situation in Grinbaum, the husband, although physically disabled, was mentally competent, had had the benefit of his estate during the period of the guardianship, and received timely notice of the proceedings. Furthermore, he would have an opportunity to challenge the continuation of the guardianship by his daughter when her petition was heard (46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 569) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot

In Raahauge v. Superior Court (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 941, 205 P.2d 1124 , a petition for a writ of review was filed to examine the action of a superior court in refusing to confirm a trustee's purchase of corporate stock. An appeal had also been filed concerning the same matter, and the stated purpose for petition was to prevent loss of the right to a review of the judgment in the event the court decided that it was not appealable. Because the judgment was determined to be appealable, the court of appeal discharged the writ of review, holding that the review proceeding would be meaningless in light of the appeal remedy (91 Cal. App. 2d 941, 941) .

[b] Writ of Review Denied for Laches

In Reid v. Superior Court (1919) 44 Cal. App. 349, 186 P. 634 , a district attorney was removed from office for willful misconduct. Some nine months later, after his term of elective office had expired, he petitioned for a writ of review. The court of appeal held that the matter was moot in that it could not restore the petitioner to elective office after the term had expired, and that his delay in seeking the writ amounted to laches. It cited with approval cases holding that a petitioner must give a sufficient reason for the delay in order for the court to grant the writ and if there is prejudice resulting from the delay the writ will not be issued (44 Cal. App. 349, 355) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF

20-205 California Points & Authorities 205.syn

§ 205.syn Synopsis to Chapter 205: REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF

§ 205.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 205.02 Governing Law

§ 205.03 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 205.04 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 205.05 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 205.06-205.19 [Reserved]

§ 205.20 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

[b] Petition by Beneficially Interested Party

[c] Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction

[d] Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Exercising Judicial Function

[e] Lack of Appellate Remedy

[f] Appeal Remedy Lost Because Lack of Required Notice

[g] Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

[b] Petition by Beneficially Interested Party

[c] Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction

[d] Lack of Appellate Remedy

[e] Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

§ 205.21 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--Judgment or Order of Contempt Not Appealable and in Excess of Jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable

[b] Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable

[b] Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction

§ 205.22 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--Abuse of Discretion by Local Board or Officer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper

§ 205.23 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

[b] Only Beneficially Interested Party May Petition

[c] Writ Denied if Action Within Jurisdiction

[d] Writ Denied if Seeks to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

[b] Writ Denied if Sought to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction

§ 205.24 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Not Exercising Judicial Functions

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions

§ 205.25 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Right of Appeal or Other Remedy Exists or Existed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available

[b] Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available

[b] Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction

§ 205.26 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Petitioner's Claim Moot or Barred by Laches

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot

[b] Writ of Review Denied for Laches

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot

[b] Writ of Review Denied for Laches

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.01

§ 205.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda that may be submitted as a part of a civil action to support or oppose issuance of a writ of review, also known as a writ of certiorari [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1067]. Points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of review are included in §§ 205.20-205.22. Points and authorities opposing issuance of writs of review are included in §§ 205.23-205.26.

The use of the writ of certiorari by the United States Supreme Court to review decisions of California appellate courts is beyond the scope of this chapter. For discussion and forms relating to this writ, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 406, Certiorari Jurisdiction Over State Courts (Matthew Bender).

Also beyond the scope of this chapter is the use of the writ of review by the California appellate courts to review adjudicatory decisions of statewide public agencies having constitutionally delegated adjudicatory power, such as the Agricultural Labor Relations Board [see Lab. Code § 1160.8; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.498], the Public Employment Relations Board [see Gov. Code §§ 3520, 3542, 3564; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.498], the Public Utilities Commission [Pub. Util. Code §§ 1756-1767; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.496], and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board [Lab. Code §§ 5950-5955; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.494].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionState Court ReviewCivil ProcedureU.S. Supreme Court ReviewGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.02

§ 205.02 Governing Law

Original jurisdiction to issue writs of review is granted to the California Supreme Court, courts of appeal, and superior courts by Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10. The application for and issuance of a writ of review (certiorari) is generally governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1067-1077, 1107, and 1108. Rules of practice and procedure are contained in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.485-8.493.

Although the term "review" is used in the California Rules of Court governing a petition for review to the Supreme Court of a court of appeal decision [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.500-8.552], this usage should not be confused with the term "writ of review" or "writ of certiorari" as used in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionState Court Review

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.03

§ 205.03 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda filed in discovery motion proceedings may not exceed 15 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d), (e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

This chapter contains general forms supporting [see § 205.20] and opposing [see § 205.23] a petition for a writ of review. When appropriate according to the facts of the case, any of the partial forms supporting [see §§ 205.21, 205.22] or opposing [see §§ 205.24 -205.26] the issuance of the writ should be combined with the general supporting or opposing form, respectively.

The forms may also be used when appropriate with points and authorities supporting a response to the petition by answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)], demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)], or motion to dismiss [see Pacific Home B.R. v. Daugherty (1925) 75 Cal. App 623, 626, 243 P. 473 (decided before answer was permissible pleading)].

A petition for a writ of review is frequently combined with requests for other writs in the alternative, such as prohibition, habeas corpus, and mandate [Lankton v. Superior Court (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 55 P.2d 1170 (prohibition); In re Smith (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296, 135 Cal. Rptr. 5 (habeas corpus); Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 691, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 (mandate)] Therefore, the forms in this chapter should be combined with those appropriate for any alternative relief sought. In addition, it should be noted that while this chapter has been prepared in accordance with statutorily authorized uses for the writ of review, alternative remedies should be investigated to determine whether any other is more appropriate in a given instance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandate)].

The captions on the forms in this chapter have been drafted on the premise that the petition has been or will be filed in a court of appeal. The captions may be appropriately modified when the petition is directed to the Supreme Court or a superior court.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresAppealsBriefsCivil ProceduresAppealsMotions on Appeal

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.04

§ 205.04 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion of the substantive law governing issuance of the writ of review, the relationship of this writ to other writs (such as mandate and prohibition), and forms of petition and response, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusCivil ProcedureAppealsAppellate JurisdictionState Court Review

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.05

§ 205.05 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

For memoranda supporting and opposing issuance of the writs of mandate, prohibition, and habeas corpus, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition and Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus , respectively, in this publication. For memoranda supporting and opposing issuance of a writ of mandate for review of a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law .

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a memorandum or a trial or appellate brief, and for a sample of a complete memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsProhibition

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-205 California Points & Authorities §§ 205.06-205.19

[Reserved]

§§ 205.06[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.20

§ 205.20 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--General Form

[1] FORM

[IN THE] COURT OF APPEAL OF CALIFORNIA
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]
[or other as appropriate depending on which court petition is filed in]

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Petitioner,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF WRIT OF RE-
vs.	)	VIEW (CERTIORARI)
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Respondent,	)	Time: _____
_____, [name]	)	Location: _____
Real Party in Interest.	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD ISSUE BECAUSE THE _____ [INFERIOR TRIBUNAL or OFFICER or BOARD] EXCEEDED ITS JURISDICTION IN THE EXERCISE OF ITS JUDICIAL FUNCTIONS AND THERE IS NO APPEAL, NOR ANY PLAIN, SPEEDY, AND ADEQUATE REMEDY.

A. Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review. A writ of review may be granted by court when an inferior tribunal, board, or officer, exercising judicial functions, has exceeded the jurisdiction of that tribunal, board, or officer, and there is no appeal nor, in the judgment of the court, any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; Buchwald v. Superior Court (1967)

254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353, 62 Cal. Rptr. 364).

B. Petition by Beneficially Interested Party. The application for the writ must be made on the verified petition of the party beneficially interested (Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; see Taylor v. Superior Court (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 244, 247, 125P.2d 1 ; see also Fuller v. San Bernardino Valley Mun. Wat. Dist. (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 52, 56-57, 51 Cal. Rptr. 120).

C. Notice to Adverse Party. The court may require a notice of the application for a writ of review to be given to the adverse party, or may grant an order to show cause why it should not be allowed, or may grant the writ without notice (Code Civ. Proc. § 1069).

[Optional] D. Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction. A court exceeds its jurisdiction if it acts in excess of its power, as defined by constitutional provision, statute, or rules developed by the courts and followed under the doctrine of stare decisis (Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 454-455, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 ; see Dvorin v. Appellate Dept. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363).

E. Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Exercising Judicial Function. The action taken by the tribunal, board or officer must have been in the exercise of judicial functions (Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 220, 232 P. 696 , O'Brien v. Olson (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 453, 109 P.2d 8).

F. Lack of Appellate Remedy. A lack of appellate remedy means that there is no right of appeal from the action taken by the inferior tribunal, board, or officer (see Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764-765, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921 ; Brady v. Superior Court (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 72, 19 Cal. Rptr. 242).

[Optional] G. Appeal Remedy Lost Because Lack of Required Notice. If the right of appeal is lost because petitioner, who was without fault, did not receive notice of the proceedings and entry of an adverse judgment, or order, and notice was required to be given, petitioner may have the proceedings reviewed by a writ of review (Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 554-556, 221 P. 635).

H. Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy. For a legal remedy to be adequate it must afford relief on the very matter that is the subject of the petition and must be equally as convenient and effective as the extraordinary remedy demanded (Estate of Bodger (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715, 276 P.2d 83).

[When appropriate, this form should be combined with partial forms governing specific fact situations (see, e.g., §§ 205.21, 205.22)].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a petition for issuance of a writ of review (or certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §

1068; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1067 (writ of certiorari may be denominated writ of review)].

The sample caption in this form is for use when the petition is directed to a court of appeal. The caption may be modified when the petition is directed to the Supreme Court or a superior court. For forms of alternative captions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

Memoranda in support of a petition for issuance of a writ of review are required to be filed if the petition is made to a court of appeal or the Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)]. While neither the Code of Civil Procedure nor the California Rules of Court expressly requires the filing of points and authorities in support of a petition for the writ in superior court, construction of several rules together dictates that a memorandum should be filed. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1100 provides that the law and motion rules set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100 et seq. apply to civil law and motion proceedings in superior court. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a)(2) defines law and motion as including any proceedings on application for a writ of review. An application for an order is a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1003]. Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.1113(a) provides that a party filing a notice of motion must serve and file with it a memorandum to be relied on [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(b)]. Moreover, a petition for issuance of a writ of review is not listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114 as a petition that does not require a memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114]. The required format and contents of the memorandum are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113.

A petition for a writ of review is frequently combined with requests for other writs in the alternative, such as prohibition, habeas corpus, and mandate [Lankton v. Superior Court (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 55 P.2d 1170 (prohibition); In re Smith (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296, 135 Cal. Rptr. 5 (habeas corpus); Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 691, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 (mandate)]. Therefore, the points and authorities set forth in this form should be combined with those appropriate for any alternative relief sought.

If an inferior court's action is the subject of the petition, optional paragraph D should be used. If petitioner had a right of appeal but lost that right because of the failure to receive notice of the proceedings and of an adverse judgment or order,and notice was required to be given by the opposing party, optional paragraph G should be used.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Generally, counsel must present facts showing that an inferior tribunal, board, or officer that exercises judicial functions exceeded its jurisdiction, and that no appeal or any plain, speedy, or adequate remedy is available [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068]. A threshold matter is whether the action complained of was judicial in nature; facts showing judicial action should be established. If an inferior board or officer is involved, there may be a dispute over the judicial character of the action taken [see Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 216, 232 P. 696]. If the petition seeks review of judicial action by a local board, this form should be combined with the points and authorities in § 205.22 [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandate to review certain administrative action)].

Counsel should present authority demonstrating why the action complained of is not appealable. Appeal of civil actions is generally governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 901-914. While the appealability of judgments and orders has generally expanded since many of the older decisions concerning writs of review were rendered [see § 205.25[2][a]], certain adjudications remain nonappealable [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.710, 116.780 (superior court judgments after appeal from small claims court), 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222 (contempt)]. If a contempt action is involved counsel should combine the allegations found in § 205.21 with those in the foregoing form.

Counsel must also factually establish the manner in which jurisdiction was exceeded. In addition to addressing subject matter and personal jurisdiction, counsel should determine if the inferior body followed any constitutional provision, statute, or rule of decisional law requiring that it exercise its power over the parties in a particular manner [see Yoakum v. Small Claims Court (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 401-402, 125 Cal. Rptr. 882].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of petition for writ of review, notices of application for the writ, orders to show cause, motions and orders for further return of the writ, forms for the writ itself, and judgment on review, see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For forms in support of petitions for writs of mandate, prohibition and habeas corpus, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition and Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 205.23 -205.26 may be used to oppose the petition for writ of review supported by this points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

In People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421 , defendants were charged with civil violations of several consumer protection statutes. The trial judge ordered a reduction in a stipulated judgment between plaintiff and two defendants and subsequently refused to sign the unaltered judgment in his chambers on the ground that it imposed an excessive monetary penalty against the stipulating defendants. Plaintiff refused to prepare a new judgment and moved to have the matter set for trial as to those defendants. The motion was denied with prejudice, and no judgment was ever signed by the trial court, nor was any other stipulation ever reached. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal treated the appeal as a request for a writ of review and found that neither order was appealable. It further found that the trial judge exceeded his jurisdiction by establishing a penalty without benefit of a trial or a stipulation (81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 322) . Therefore, since the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction and there was no appeal or any plain, speedy and adequate remedy, the court of appeal held that a writ of review was the proper remedy under Code Civ. Proc. § 1068 (81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319) .

Buchwald v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 62 Cal. Rptr. 364 , involved a contract dispute between members of the musical group "Jefferson Airplane" and their common business representative. Each member's contract required arbitration of any dispute between the parties. A dispute arose between the members and the representative, and the representative commenced proceedings to compel arbitration. Plaintiff group members filed a petition with the California Labor Commissioner, claiming the representative violated the Artists' Managers Act (see Lab. Code §§ 1700-1700.46), the terms of the contract, and other statutory provisions. Plaintiffs also filed a superior court action seeking an injunction against arbitration. Defendant filed an answer objecting to the jurisdiction of the Labor Commissioner, and moved in superior court to compel arbitration. The trial court granted defendant's motion. Plaintiffs petitioned for a writ of review or, alternatively, for writs of mandate, or prohibition.

The court of appeal issued the writ of review, annulling the trial court's orders. It held that the superior court's order exceeded its jurisdiction because the contractual dispute was pending before the Labor Commissioner, which hadoriginal jurisdiction of the dispute by statute. Furthermore, there was no right of appeal or other plain, speedy, or adequate remedy (254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353) .

[b] Petition by Beneficially Interested Party

In Taylor v. Superior Court (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 244, 125 P.2d 1 , a superior court had issued a preliminary injunction in an action to establish a partnership. Plaintiff had posted security for the injunction pursuant to a minute order. Thereafter, orders to show cause against defendant charging contempt for alleged violations of the injunction were issued based on affidavits of an auditor employed by plaintiff. The orders to show cause were dismissed because the trial judge erroneously ruled that plaintiff had failed to post bond for the injunction. Plaintiff then petitioned for a writ of review. In opposition to the petition defendant contended that plaintiff was not a beneficially interested party within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069 because affidavits in support of the orders to show cause were made by plaintiff's auditor.

The Supreme Court annulled the order discharging the persons alleged to be in contempt of court. After determining that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction and that plaintiff had no appellate remedy, the Court held that plaintiff was a beneficially interested party for purposes of petitioning for a writ of review, within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069, because he was the person for whose protection the injunction was obtained, and was not a "stranger to the action" (20 Cal. 2d 244, 247) .

In Fuller v. San Bernardino Valley Mun. Wat. Dist. (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 52, 51 Cal. Rptr. 120 , a peremptory writ of mandate was issued ordering a water district to terminate proceedings for the annexation of certain lands. In its appeal from the issuance of the writ, the water district alleged, among other things, that the parties who obtained the writ were not beneficially interested in the action.

The court of appeal construed the term "beneficially interested" in both Code Civ. Proc. § 1069 (writ of review) and Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 (writ of mandate) to mean an interest in which a person has some particular right to be preserved or protected independent of that which he or she holds in common with the public at large. Here, the court found that plaintiffs were beneficially interested because they were property owners in the area to be annexed, and were moving forces in fixing its boundaries, securing boundary commission approval, and circulating and filing a petition for formation of a new district (242 Cal. App. 2d 52, 58) .

It should be noted that in Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 the Supreme Court stated that while ordinarily a writ of mandate will be issued only to persons who are beneficially interested, an exception exists in mandamus cases in which the question is one of public right and the object of the mandamus is to procure the enforcement of a public duty. In those circumstances, the petitioner need not show any legal or special interest in the result. It is sufficient that he or she is interested as a citizen in having the laws executed and the duty in question enforced (.

[c] Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction

Dvorin v. Appellate Dept. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363 , involved a complaint to recover unearned interest on a promissory note. Defendant was granted summary judgment by the trial court and plaintiff appealed to the appellate department of the superior court, which reversed and directed the municipal court to enter judgment for plaintiff. Defendant appealed, but the court of appeal denied transfer for further appellate review. Defendant then petitioned for a writ of review.

The Supreme Court granted the writ. It held that the action of the appellate department in entering judgment for plaintiff was in excess of its jurisdiction because plaintiff had never moved for summary judgment. No appellate or other remedy was available, since denial of the transfer by the appellate court was its prerogative and would ordinarily terminate appellate review. Thus, the Court annulled the judgment. In applying the standard set forth in Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 (discussed infra), the Court held that while a writ of review is not available to review the error of a lower court, it is available if the lower court exceeded its jurisdiction (15 Cal. 3d 648, 650) .

In Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 , the appellate department of a superior court had vacated a municipal court order granting a new trial to defendants in a civil suit. The superior court did so by overruling the only appellate decision that pertained to the facts and on which the municipal court had relied in granting the new trial. The superior court recognized the appellate decision, but refused to follow it on the ground that it had been incorrectly decided. Defendants then petitioned for a writ of review.

The Supreme Court held that the superior court had exceeded its jurisdiction. The Court explained that the writ of review is a jurisdictional writ, meaning that it cannot be used to attack an error of a lower tribunal committed in the exercise of its jurisdiction, but only against acts committed in excess of its jurisdiction (57 Cal. 2d 450, 454) . Here, the lower court refused to apply the one appellate decision that controlled the disposition of the case. Citing Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291, 109 P.2d 942 , a writ of prohibition case, the Court held that the failure of the lower court to adhere to the principal of stare decisis amounted to a jurisdictional error. Asthere was no appeal or other remedy available, it was proper to consider the matter by writ of review (57 Cal. 2d 450, 455) . However, the Court noted that there was only one controlling case to be applied. If there were conflicting cases from a higher court, it would not necessarily be an excess of jurisdiction for the inferior court to choose between them (57 Cal. 2d 450, 456) .

The holding in Auto Equity Sales was characterized in Yoakum v. Small Claims Court (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 125 Cal. Rptr. 882 , as being an attempt to state the concept of excess jurisdiction in broader terms than justified. The Yoakum court said that the holding in Auto Equity Sales concerning the failure to adhere to stare decisis did not broaden the concept of excess jurisdiction established in earlier cases. Under this concept, a court acts in excess of its jurisdiction if it does not follow the mandate of a constitutional provision, statute, or rule of decisional law of a higher court requiring that it exercise its power over the parties and the cause in a particular manner (53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 401-402) . Yoakum is discussed further in § 205.20[4][d].

[d] Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Exercising Judicial Function

In Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 232 P. 696 , a civil service board had made a finding that a police officer was guilty of insubordination and sustained his dismissal. The officer sought a writ of review. The superior court granted the writ and annulled the board's order. Defendant civil service board appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment annulling the order. The Court determined that the actions of the board were clearly quasi-judicial and not ministerial in nature (195 Cal. 212, 216) . While the Court focused on whether it could review the evidence considered by the inferior board, it also stated that in the absence of a right to appeal, the writ of review addresses only the jurisdiction of an inferior board or tribunal exercising judicial functions (195 Cal. 212, 220) .

In O'Brien v. Olson (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 109 P.2d 8 , a state governor had dismissed certain prison directors from office. A petition for writ of review was sought to examine the authority for those dismissals.

The court of appeal held that the provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1068 that refers to the exercise of judicial functions by an inferior tribunal, board, or officer applied to a state governor. The court determined that the dismissal action was of a judicial character (42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 453) . It held that a writ of review properly could be used to determine whether a state governor, sitting in a quasi-judicial capacity, had exceeded his or her jurisdiction in removing the prison directors from office (42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 455) . While the court ultimately found that the governor had not exceeded his jurisdiction in removing the prison directors, this did not prevent the writ of review from issuing to permit the court to evaluate his actions (42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 458) .

[e] Lack of Appellate Remedy

In Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921 , a judgment creditor had successfully

moved to have assets of debtors of the judgment debtor turned over to a court appointed receiver. These debtors claimed an interest adverse to the judgment debtor in the assets, one of which was a car wash. The debtors refused to comply with the receiver's request to allow his agent to participate in the daily operation of the car wash or otherwise turn over its profits to him. All debtors were found in contempt. They sought a writ of review to determine the validity of the trial court's contempt finding.

The court of appeal issued a writ of review, finding that the contempt citation was not appealable. The court annulled the citation, stating that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction by appointing a receiver as to assets in which the debtors of the judgment debtor claimed an adverse interest. By so doing the trial court had created a void order under applicable statutes, and violation of a void order could not be punished by contempt. The court noted that while an appeal might have been pursued from the original void order, this did not prevent the writ of review from being sought to collaterally attack that order, as there was no appeal from the contempt citation itself (28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764-765) .

In Brady v. Superior Court (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 19 Cal. Rptr. 242 , another contempt case, a trial court enjoined a real property owner from permitting occupancy of his real property by other than a single family. At the time the order was made some eight different tenants occupied various structures on the land, which was located in a residential area zoned specifically for single family dwellings. The injunction was based on the trial judge's narrow construction of the term "single family" in the local ordinance. The contempt citation was based on a finding that the property owner permitted his son and the son's friend to occupy the premises. The property owner petitioned for a writ of review.

The court of appeal found that a writ of review was the proper means to examine the contempt order, as there was no appellate remedy (200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 72) . It appeared that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction in authorizing the original injunction and the contempt citation thereafter (200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 82) . Citing the concept of jurisdiction as enunciated in Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 109 P.2d 942 , a writ of prohibition case, the court of appeal reiterated that any acts that exceed the defined power of a court in any instance are in excess of jurisdiction. Here, the court found that the trial judge's construction of the zoning ordinance was clearly removed from the legislative authorization of the ordinance,and exceeded the court's jurisdiction. Therefore, it annulled the contempt citation (200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 82) .

[f] Appeal Remedy Lost Because Lack of Required Notice

In Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 221 P. 635 , petitioner, a California resident, had been adjudged insane by a German court and was subsequently institutionalized in Germany, leaving substantial unattended assets in California. A California trust company petitioned for and was granted guardianship of her estate. The order prescribing notice of the proceedings directed that notice be given to certain of her relatives (all in Europe), but neither that order nor the notices themselves were directed to her, and she had no personal knowledge of the proceedings. The trust company managed her estate for several years. She sought annulment of the order appointing the guardian by writ of review on return to California, on the ground that the order was void for lack of notice to her of the proceedings and judgment.

The Supreme Court held that the guardianship proceeding was void because of the lack of personal notice to petitioner. As the lack of notice created a jurisdictional defect, a writ of review was the appropriate remedy to redress petitioner's grievance (192 Cal. 528, 554-555) . The respondent trust company argued that she was guilty of laches in waiting to bring the action, that she should have pursued her remedy of appeal, and otherwise had waived her rights to seek a writ of review. The Court held, however, that an insane person could not waive any rights, both by statute (former Civ. Code § 40) and case law (192 Cal. 528, 551-552) . Furthermore, while her ability to pursue an appeal had lapsed by the passage of time, she could not be required to pursue an appeal when she had no knowledge of the proceedings or judgment and was institutionalized when they occurred (192 Cal. 528, 556) . The Court indicated that the notice required was both statutory (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1793) and based on concepts of due process of law dating from the Magna Carta (192 Cal. 528, 541-542) .

Grinbaum has been cited in several cases, but its application appears restricted to the kind of situation in which notice of a proceeding is entirely inadequate or missing through no fault of the aggrieved party. For example, in Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 377, 341 P.2d 13 (discussed in § 205.23[3][a]), the Supreme Court distinguished Grinbaum, finding that extremely unusual circumstances existed in that case to justify issuance of the writ. In Grinbaum, the aggrieved party had no notice of the inception of the proceedings and was in no physical or mental condition to receive notice. However, in Simmons it was the petitioner's own lack of diligence that caused him to forfeit his appellate remedy (52 Cal. 2d 373, 377) . Grinbaum was also distinguished in Bernstein v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 569, 116 P.2d 172 (discussed in § 205.26[3][b]). In contrast to the situation in Grinbaum, a husband who was physically disabled but mentally competent was made the ward of his wife. After some six years, he contested the original establishment of the guardianship. However, the court left him to the remedy of challenging the continuation of the guardianship by his daughter (who had filed a separate petition to continue it after her mother's resignation), as he had received the benefit of his estate during the period of the guardianship and received timely notice of the proceedings.

[g] Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

In Estate of Bodger (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 276 P.2d 83 , a probate court made an ex parte appointment of an attorney to represent testamentary trust beneficiaries in resisting an appeal by a trustee of a decedent's estate from an order settling the trustee's report and account, and for the trustee's own fees. One of the beneficiaries petitioned the probate court and informed it that she did not wish the services of the appointed attorney, and demanded that the appointment be vacated. While the trustee's appeal was pending, she petitioned for a writ of review, alleging that she had no right of appeal nor other adequate, or speedy remedy at law from the order appointing the attorney.

The court of appeal held that the order appointing the attorney exceeded the jurisdiction of the probate court and was void. There was no law authorizing it to appoint counsel for a competent party to an action if that person had notice of the proceedings and was capable of selecting an attorney. The court also found the order violative of due process of law under U.S. Const., Amend. XIV, and Cal. Const., art. I, § 1, as well as infringing on petitioner's freedom of contract (128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 714) . Turning to the question of petitioner's remedies, the court said that under the provisions of former Prob. Code § 1240 there was no right of appeal available from the order. The suggestion by respondent that she file a repudiation of the appointment in the trustee's appeal was also without merit, because it would not be a part of the appeal and would constitute no part of the issues presented for review. Citing Dufton v. Daniels (1923) 190 Cal. 577, 582, 213 P. 949 , a mandate proceeding, the court stated that for a legal remedy to be adequate, it must afford relief on the very matter that is the subject of the petition and that is equally as convenient and efficacious as the extraordinary remedy demanded. It was not conceivable that the appointed attorney would withdraw after the appeal without compensation. Petitioner should not have to wait and appeal from the order for his fees. Even if the appointed attorney never sought compensation after pursuing the appeal to a decision, his representation would still remain of record (128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

In Thelander v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 811, 26 Cal. Rptr. 643, 376 P.2d 571 , persons injured in a vehicle collision brought suit against the state for negligence. The state was given additional time to plead over plaintiffs' objection, which plaintiffs claimed violated Code Civ. Proc. § 1054. In annulling the order by writ of review the Supreme Court held that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction because it extended the time for a responsive pleading by more than 30 days without the adverse party's consent (58 Cal. 2d 811, 813-814) . The Court noted that a writ of review was an appropriate remedy to test the power of the issuing court to make the offending order because, if the order was contrary to statute, the court acted beyond its jurisdiction (58 Cal. 2d 811, 814) .

In Hollaway v. Scripps Memorial Hospital (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 719, 168 Cal. Rptr. 782 , after plaintiff appealed from the modification of a personal injury judgment in her favor, the trial court ordered temporary removal of her guardians ad litem and counsel of record and appointed a new attorney and guardian ad litem to advise the court of any conflicts of interest. The court of appeal annulled the order and elected to examine them on writ of review, citing People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421 (discussed in § 205.20[3][a]). The court of appeal held that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction by issuing the orders, reasoning that once the appeal notices had been filed the court was divested of jurisdiction, except for collateral or independent matters not involved in the appeal (111 Cal. App. 3d 719, 721-722) .

[b] Petition by Beneficially Interested Party

In Johnson v. City of San Pablo (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 447, 283 P.2d 57 , proceedings for annexation of overlapping territories to the cities of San Pablo and Richmond were in progress when petitions for writs of mandamus and review were instituted against each city. A trial court concluded that the San Pablo proceeding was invalid because of jurisdictionally defective steps. The court of appeal, in addition to affirming the trial court's order that the San Pablo proceeding was void because the proceeding exceeded the jurisdiction prescribed by statute (132 Cal. App. 2d 447, 448-449) , held that the city of San Pablo was a party beneficially interested to apply for the writs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1069. The city had the legal capacity to be a party defendant and a justiciable interests in the controversy (132 Cal. App. 2d 447, 458) .

In Marculescu v. City Planning Com. (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 371, 46 P.2d 308 , a superior court issued a writ of prohibition restraining a city planning commission from hearing a petition by property owners to rezone property adjacent to them from commercial to residential use. The property owners appealed. The appellate court found that they were interested persons for purposes of bringing a petition to rezone the property and reversed the action of the superior court. In so doing the court stated that for the purpose of a writ of review, a person is beneficially interested if the judicial action that is sought to be annulled injuriously affects his or her legal right (7 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374) .

[c] Action in Excess of Court's Power Exceeds Jurisdiction

In Andrews v. Superior Court (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 7 Cal. Rptr. 194 , a trial court imposed a monetary penalty under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2034 on an attorney it found to be in contempt of court on the ground that the attorney was responsible for the failure of his clients to appear at a court ordered deposition. Because the contempt finding was not appealable, the attorney sought a writ of review. The court of appeal held that the findings set forth in the order did not amount to a showing of contempt and annulled the order. The court stated that when a statute authorizes a prescribed procedure, and the court acts contrary to the authority thus conferred, it has exceeded its jurisdiction and a writ of review will issue to correct that excess (183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 759) .

[d] Lack of Appellate Remedy

People v. Gonter (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 333, 178 Cal. Rptr. 66 , was a criminal proceeding in which the prosecution appealed an order granting deferred jail commitments under a special program to several defendants. Although defendants had already pleaded guilty, judgment and sentence had not been imposed and there was no right of appeal from the order. The court of appeal treated the request for appeal as a petition for a writ of review and held that the matter was properly reviewable as such under Code Civ. Proc. § 1068, because there was a contention of at least arguable merit that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction and that there was no right of appeal or other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (125 Cal. App. 3d 333, 338) . In so treating this appeal, however, the court found that the trial court's jurisdiction had not been exceeded and affirmed the order (125 Cal. App. 3d 333, 340) .

[e] Lack of Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

In Yoakum v. Small Claims Court (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 125 Cal. Rptr. 882 , plaintiff in three small claims actions had originally petitioned a superior court for writs of review and mandate after denial of a motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to be relieved from adverse judgments. The superior court granted the writ of mandate, directing the small claims court to set aside the judgments and reset them for hearing. In affirming and reversing in part, the court of appeal held that either the writ of review or writ of mandate is proper to reviewan action in which a court lacks or exceeds jurisdiction. In this action, the superior court could properly use both writs to determine whether the small claims court exceeded its jurisdiction. However, a writ of mandate was the appropriate remedy to compel the small claims court to hear certain of the matters on which judgment was rendered (53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 403) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.21

§ 205.21 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--Judgment or Order of Contempt Not Appealable and in Excess of Jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum supporting a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.20).]

THE WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD ISSUE TO EXAMINE THE CONTEMPT _____ [JUDGMENT or ORDER] BECAUSE A DETERMINATION OF CONTEMPT IS NOT APPEALABLE AND THE ISSUING COURT EXCEEDED ITS JURISDICTION IN ADJUDICATING THE CONTEMPT.

A. Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable. An adjudication of contempt of court is not appealable (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222; Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764-765, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921).

B. Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction. An adjudication of contempt may be annulled by writ of review if the issuing court exceeded its jurisdiction (Chapman v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 196, 67 Cal. Rptr. 842 ; Little v. Superior Court (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 318, 67 Cal. Rptr. 77).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used in support of the issuance of a petition for a writ of review if the inferior court has made an adjudication of contempt of court. Because contempt adjudications are not appealable [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222] they are frequently the subject of petitions for writs of review. § 205.21 should be used in conjunction with § 205.20, a general form supporting a petition for a writ of review.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, facts indicating how the underlying action, if any (such as an injunction), was in excess of the court's jurisdiction will help demonstrate why a particular contempt action should be annulled [see, e.g., Fortenbury v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 405, 408, 410, 106 P.2d 411 (contempt for violation of temporary restraining order prohibiting picketing)].

[b] Opposing Memoranda

See §§ 205.23 -205.26, which are in opposition to a petition for a writ of review, may be used to oppose this form when modified to address the specific facts of a contempt adjudication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable

The facts and procedural background of Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921), are discussed in § 205.20[3][e]. In Mitchell, the court of appeal issued a writ of review, found a contempt citation not appealable, and annulled the citation. The court stated that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction by appointing a receiver as to assets in which debtors of a judgment debtor claimed an adverse interest (28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 764-765) .

[b] Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction

In Chapman v. Superior Court (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 67 Cal. Rptr. 842 , a personal injury action, defendant obtained on the day of trial a subpoena duces tecum for medical records of plaintiff, directing her physician to bring the records to the courthouse on a certain date. Plaintiff was subsequently found in contempt of court for willful failure and refusal to comply with the subpoena and was given a suspended sentence. Plaintiff sought a writ of review, contending that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in finding her in contempt and imposing a sentence.

The court of appeal agreed with plaintiff, holding that by writ of review the court could examine the record of and evidence taken by the inferior court to determine whether it exceeded its jurisdiction in adjudicating contempt. Here, the contempt citation and judgment were void as to plaintiff because the subpoena was directed to her physician, not to her (261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 197) . While plaintiff happened to be a bookkeeper and receptionist in the office of her physician, she was not the custodian of her own medical records. Evidence must be strictly construed in favor of the accused (261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 196) , and the trial court's conclusion that plaintiff had disobeyed the subpoena was contrary to the evidence and to the presumption that she was not guilty of willful disobedience. Therefore, the order finding her in contempt and imposing sentence was annulled (261 Cal. App. 2d 194, 201) .

Little v. Superior Court (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 67 Cal. Rptr. 77), was an action for dissolution of marriage. During the proceedings plaintiff noticeddepositions of a psychoanalyst and psychotherapist whom defendant had consulted. After both deponents refused to answer specific questions on the grounds of the physician-patient privilege, plaintiff moved to compel defendant to execute a written consent authorizing the deponents to answer. This motion was granted, and included an order that in the event of defendant's failure or refusal to execute the written authorization within 10 days the county clerk would be appointed to do so on behalf of defendant. Subsequently, defendant's attorney notified plaintiff by letter that defendant had elected not to execute the authorization. Plaintiff's attorney then obtained an ex parte order directing the chief deputy county clerk to execute the authorization on behalf of defendant. The deposition of one of the consultants was then concluded. The remaining one, however, still refused to answer. Plaintiff moved to have defendant held in contempt of court, and the motion was granted. Defendant petitioned for a writ of review.

The court of appeal annulled the contempt order. It held that the contempt judgment was void because the trial court's order concerning the request for written authorization to have the deponents testify did not order defendant to perform any specific act, but merely approved plaintiff's request for an order. Furthermore, the court held that it could, by writ of review, examine the whole record of the court and the evidence to determine the trial court's jurisdiction (260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 316-317) . Strictly construing the evidence in favor of the accused, the court held that there was a lack of evidence of willful disobedience. In addition, the order was ambiguous because defendant believed he was in compliance with it by allowing the county clerk to execute the consent (260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 318) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Adjudication of Contempt Not Appealable

The facts and procedural background of Andrews v. Superior Court (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 7 Cal. Rptr. 194 , are discussed in § 205.20[4][c]. In Andrews, the court of appeal held that findings set forth in the minute order of a trial court did not amount to a showing of contempt and annulled the order and its penalty. The court reiterated that when a statute authorizes a prescribed procedure, and a court acts contrary to the authority thus conferred, it has exceeded its jurisdiction and a writ of review will issue to correct that excess (183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 759) .

[b] Contempt Order May Be Annulled if Court Exceeded Jurisdiction

In Cunningham v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 336, 222 Cal. Rptr. 854 , the court of appeal held that a trial court's order requiring an attorney to involuntarily represent an indigent paternity defendant without compensation deprived the attorney of equal protection of the law. The attorney had been held in contempt for refusing to represent the defendant in an action for paternity and reimbursement for public assistance paid on behalf of a child. The court of appeal said that a contempt order cannot stand if the underlying order is invalid. Thus, it issued a writ of review compelling the trial court to vacate its appointment order (177 Cal. App. 3d 336, 352, 356-357) .

The facts and procedural background of Brady v. Superior Court (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 19 Cal. Rptr. 242 , are discussed in § 205.20[3][e]. In Brady, a trial court enjoined a real property owner from permitting occupancy of his real property by other than a single family. A contempt citation was issued based on a finding that the owner permitted his son and the son's friend to occupy the premises. The court of appeal inferred that the trial court had exceeded its jurisdiction in authorizing the original injunction and the contempt citation, and thus annulled the citation (200 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.22

§ 205.22 Supporting Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)]--Abuse of Discretion by Local Board or Officer

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum supporting a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.20).]

A WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD BE ISSUED TO REVIEW _____ [describe judicial action, e.g., THE DENIAL OF PETITIONER'S BUSINESS LICENSE] BY _____ [specify local board or officer, e.g., THE PARADISE CITY COUNCIL] BECAUSE _____ [specify board or officer, e.g., THE COUNCIL] ABUSED ITS DISCRETION AND THUS EXCEEDED ITS JURISDICTION IN THE EXERCISE OF THIS JUDICIAL FUNCTION.

Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper. A writ of review is the appropriate remedy to determine if a local board or officer exceeded his/her/its jurisdiction by abusing the discretion vested in him/her/it in the exercise of a judicial function (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 220-221, 232 P. 696 ; Ratchford v. County of Sonoma (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1077, 99 Cal. Rptr. 887).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities are for use to support a petition for a writ of review when it is alleged that a local board or officer has exceeded its jurisdiction byabusing its discretion in the exercise of a judicial function [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068]. This form should be used in conjunction with § 205.20, a general form supporting a petition for a writ of review. Note that a petition for writ of administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is usually a more appropriate remedy and should be considered, in addition to or as an alternative to, a petition for a writ of review.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, the judicial or quasi-judicial nature of the action complained of should be specified, as well as why the action constituted an abuse of discretion [see, e.g., Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 216, 232 P. 696 (civil service board action quasi-judicial)].

[b] Opposing Memoranda

With appropriate modifications, §§ 205.23-205.26 may be used to oppose the foregoing form, particularly § 205.24, which specifically opposes the contention that a judicial function was being exercised.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper

The facts and procedural background of Garvin v. Chambers (1924) 195 Cal. 212, 232 P. 696 , are discussed in § 205.20[3][d]. In Garvin, a civil service board had made a finding that a police officer was guilty of insubordination and sustained his dismissal. The officer sought a writ of review. The writ was granted by the superior court, which annulled the board's order. Defendant civil service board appealed. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment annulling the order (195 Cal. 212, 226) . It held that the board action was quasi-judicial and not ministerial in nature. The Court stated that the city charter provision directing the board to fully hear and determine the matter indicated that the board proceedings was in the nature of an original trial, and its determination was in the nature of an original and final judgment (195 Cal. 212, 216) . The Court also stated that in the absence of a right to appeal, the writ of review addresses only the jurisdiction of an inferior board or tribunal exercising judicial functions (195 Cal. 212, 220) .

In Ratchford v. County of Sonoma (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 99 Cal. Rptr. 887 , an owner of property abutting on a subdivision road discovered that a portion of her property encroached on the road, so she petitioned to have the county board of supervisors declare the road abandoned. The portion of the road in question had never been accepted for public dedication by the board. The board adopted a resolution abandoning the portion of the road containing the encroachment and made a finding that the road was not a county road and at best could be described as a purported county road. Another abutting landowner objected to the abandonment primarily on the ground that the land area was needed for future expansion of the road and underground utilities. She filed a petition for a writ of review contending that the board had no jurisdiction to adopt the abandonment resolution and exceeded its discretion in doing so, with the result being to benefit a private individual. The trial court granted the petition but denied any affirmative relief, and she appealed from the denial.

The court of appeal reversed the denial and remanded the case with instructions to order the resolution void. First, the court determined that the board of supervisors had exercised a judicial function in its action, contrary to older cases holding that matters relating to street improvements were usually legislative in character. The court recognized the test employed in Quinchard v. Board of Trustees (1896) 113 Cal. 664, 45 P. 856 (discussed in § 205.24[4][a]), namely, that the character of the act or determination sought to be reviewed is the important factor in determining whether a judicial action is present. However, it stated that a better test is whether the act or determination relates to the ascertainment of existing rights, and held that insofar as the abandonment of a street or highway affects the property rights of abutting owners there is something of a judicial function present (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1067) . The court also found that the abutting owner had sufficient interest to have standing to seek a writ of review (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1069) . The court then turned to the question of the scope of review of the board's action. It stated that either a writ of review or mandate is an appropriate remedy to test the proper exercise of discretion vested in a local board (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1068) . A board's decision of what constitutes public interest or convenience is legislative in character, in the absence of fraud or collusion (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1073-1074) . After acknowledging that examination of conflicting evidence is not part of the usual scope of review when a writ of review is issued, the court held that the board had exceeded its jurisdiction because there was insufficient evidence and possibly constructive fraud in the board's finding that a portion of the roadway was unnecessary for prospective public use (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1075) . Because the record failed to show any public benefit or interest in the abandonment of the portion of the right of way involved and failed to show that it was not necessary for prospective use, the board's resolution should have been declared void (22 Cal. App. 3d 1056, 1077) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Will Test Whether Exercise of Discretion by Local Board or Officer Was Proper

DeLucia v. County of Merced (1968) 257 Cal. App. 2d 620, 65 Cal. Rptr. 177 , was an appeal from a superior court order denying writs of mandate or review in order to reverse a holding of a local board of equalization. Although the court ofappeal affirmed this order, it held that a writ of review may be used to examine actions of boards when it is claimed that taxes were illegally collected or that the board's actions were tantamount to fraud. In such a review the chief issues are whether the person affected has been afforded a hearing and, if so, whether there is any evidence to support the board's determination (257 Cal. App. 2d 620, 623) .

In Swars v. Council of the City of Vallejo (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 858, 149 P.2d 397 , a superior court denied a petition for writ of review to examine the action of a civil service commission in dismissing a police officer from duty. The petitioner contended that the commission, sitting as an inferior tribunal or board exercising judicial functions, exceeded its jurisdiction in rendering a decision without introduction of evidence, and its purported findings in private were insufficient to support its decision (64 Cal. App. 2d 858, 863) . There was no appeal or other remedy available, but the trial court apparently believed that some other remedy existed (64 Cal. App. 2d 858, 861) . The court of appeal reversed the denial with directions to issue the writ, holding that the civil service commission lacked jurisdiction to make its decision without taking evidence. Although granting a writ of review is discretionary, it should not be denied if the petition's allegations are sufficient and no grounds for denial appear. Here, the trial judge simply presumed that the actions of the commission were legal, and did not exercise sound discretion (64 Cal. App. 2d 858, 865) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.23

§ 205.23 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--General Form

[1] FORM

[IN THE] COURT OF APPEAL OF CALIFORNIA
_____ APPELLATE DISTRICT
[DIVISION _____]
[or other as appropriate depending on which court petition is filed in]

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Respondent,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO WRIT OF REVIEW
_____ [name],	)	(CERTIORARI)
Real Party in Interest.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487)]
	)
	)

_____

THE WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD NOT ISSUE BECAUSE THE _____ [INFERIOR TRIBUNAL or BOARD or OFFICER] ACTED WITHIN HIS/HER/ITS JURISDICTION WHILE EXERCISING JUDICIAL FUNCTIONS [AND PETITIONER IS NOT BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED IN THE UNDERLYING ACTION].

A. Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review. A writ of review will only be issued if an inferior tribunal, board, or officer, exercising judicial functions, has exceeded the jurisdiction of that tribunal, board, or officer, and there is no appeal, nor, in the judgment of the court, any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 375, 341 P.2d 13 ; Brown Co. v. Appellate Dept. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 903-905, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258).

[Optional] B. Only Beneficially Interested Party May Petition. A writ of review may only be issued if the petitioner is beneficially interested in the underlying action (Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; Marlow v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 393, 395, 110 P.2d 11 ; Katenkamp v. Dept. of Finance (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 343, 344, 49 P.2d 897).

C. Writ Denied if Action Within Jurisdiction. A writ of review will not issue to review errors made by the inferior tribunal, board, or officer, but only to determine if the inferior tribunal, board, or officer exceeded his/her/its jurisdiction while exercising judicial functions (McClearen v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal.2d 852, 857-858, 291 P.2d 449 ; Quezada v. Superior Court (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 528, 529, 340 P.2d 1018).

[Optional] D. Writ Denied if Seeks to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction. A writ of review will not issue to examine matters of discretion within the jurisdiction of an inferior tribunal, board, or officer (Estate of Kay (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 215, 218, 225-226, 181 P.2d 1 ; Turner v. Civil Service Commission (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 640, 643-644, 259 P.2d 698).

[When appropriate, the foregoing form should be combined with partial forms governing specific fact situations (see, e.g., §§ 205.24 -205.26.)]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing memorandum may be used to oppose issuance of a writ of review on the ground that the inferior tribunal, board, or officer did not exceed the jurisdiction of that entity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068]. Optional paragraph B should be used if there is a possibility that petitioner is not a beneficially interested party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069]. Optional paragraph D should be used if there was an exercise of judicial or quasi-judicial functions, but the action taken was within the discretion of the tribunal, board, or officer.

No statement in opposition to the petition is required unless requested by the court, but within ten days after the petition is filed, the respondent or real party in interest, or both, separately or jointly, may serve and file points and authorities in opposition and a statement of any fact considered material not included in the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)] The court may, in its discretion, allow the filing of the petition without prior service and may deny the petition or issue an alternative writ without first requesting the filing of opposition points and authorities, but the grant of an ex parte application requires a showing of good cause [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(4)].

The sample caption in this form is for use when the petition is directed to a court of appeal. The caption must be modified when the petition is directed to the Supreme Court or a superior court. For forms of alternative captions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

The petition for a writ of review is frequently combined with requests for other writs in the alternative, such as prohibition, habeas corpus, and mandate [Lankton v. Superior Court (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 55 P.2d 1170 (prohibition); In re Smith (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296, 135 Cal. Rptr. 5 (habeas corpus); Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 691, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 (mandate)] Therefore, the points and authorities set forth in this form should be combined with those appropriate to oppose any alternative relief sought.

If the action complained of was taken by a board or officer, this form should be combined with § 205.24 to establish the judicial or quasi-judicial nature of the action. If the main issue is not the exercise of jurisdiction but whether a remedy of appeal existed or was exercised by petitioner, this form should be combined with § 205.25. If it appears that the underlying basis for the petition is moot, or that the petition should be barred by the assertion of equitable principles such as laches, § 205.26 should be combined with this form.

This form may also be used when appropriate with points and authorities supporting a response to the petition by answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487], demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487], or motion to dismiss [see Pacific Home B.R. v. Daugherty (1925) 75 Cal. App 623, 626, 243 P. 473 (decided before answer was permissible pleading)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, facts relating to the legal basis for the judgment or order of the inferior tribunal, board, or officer should be provided to show that jurisdiction was not exceeded by any abuse of discretion.

With appropriate modifications, this form and §§ 205.24-205.26 may be used to oppose the contentions found in §§ 205.20 -205.22.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of demurrers, motions to dismiss, and orders denying the writ of review see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For a general form of answer or demurrer, see Ch. 26, Answers and Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities in opposition to requests for writs of mandate,prohibition, and habeas corpus, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , and Ch. 110, Habeas Corpus , respectively.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

In Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 341 P.2d 13 , plaintiff brought a civil action in superior court against a cold storage company and others. After defendant's demurrer to a second amended complaint was sustained with leave to amend, defendant brought a motion to dismiss the complaint on the ground that plaintiff had failed to amend the complaint within the time allowed by the court. The judge granted the motion in chambers by oral direction to his clerk, who then entered the dismissal in the court minutes. No notice of dismissal was given to plaintiff, and he did not learn of it until almost five months after the time for appeal had expired. Plaintiff then petitioned for a writ of review contending that the court exceeded its jurisdiction in the manner of ordering the dismissal and because of a lack of notice to him.

The Supreme Court affirmed the dismissal. Citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1068, the Court held that the writ of review is available only if an inferior court has exceeded its jurisdiction and there is no appeal, nor any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy. Furthermore, the writ will not issue if the petitioner had a right of appeal from the order or judgment and permitted the time for appeal to lapse without perfecting it. If there was an opportunity to appeal and it was lost through the neglect of the aggrieved party, the subsequent absence of a remedy cannot be asserted as the basis for issuing the writ (52 Cal. 2d 373, 375) . Plaintiff was not entitled to any notice under prevailing law, and his lack of actual notice was immaterial. It was plaintiff's duty to protect his own record and his failure to do so, absent reasonable justification, did not entitle him to a writ of review (52 Cal. 2d 373, 376) . The Court distinguished Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 221 P. 635 (discussed in § 205.20[3][f]), finding that extremely unusual circumstances existed there justifying issuance of the writ, which were not present here. While in Grinbaum the aggrieved party had no notice of the inception of the proceedings and was in no condition to receive notice, here it was plaintiff's own lack of diligence that caused him to forfeit his appellate remedy (52 Cal. 2d 373, 377) . The Court also held that the trial court's jurisdiction was not exceeded by the clerk's entry of the dismissal on instructions from the judge (52 Cal. 2d 373, 378) .

Note that Simmons was decided prior to the 1965-1993 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5. The section now provides that a party who submits an order or judgment for entry in most contested actions or special proceedings must send notice of entry of judgment to all parties who have appeared, and that the clerk must mail the notice if a prevailing party is not represented by counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a), (b)].

In Brown Co. v. Appellate Dept. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258 , an action to enforce a mechanic's lien, plaintiff obtained judgment in its favor, whereupon the appellate division of the superior court reversed the judgment on the grounds that a preliminary notice concerning the lien required by Civ. Code § 3097 was prematurely served. The appellate department denied plaintiff's request to certify the case to the court of appeals. Plaintiff then petitioned for a writ of review or, in the alternative, a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued a writ of review, but dismissed the proceeding after concluding that the appellate department had not exceeded its jurisdiction, as that term is used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1068. While the appellate department had made an erroneous decision as to the merits of the lien notice issue, it did not act without or in excess of its jurisdiction. The trial court had the duty to decide correctly, but its jurisdiction was not in any way defeated or limited by a wrong decision. In writ of review proceedings, the only question is whether the lower court has exceeded its jurisdiction, and if not, no matter how grievously it erred to the prejudice of petitioner, either in matters of fact or law, relief cannot be given (148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 903-904) . The court distinguished Auto Equity Sales Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 (discussed in § 205.20[3][c]). In Auto Equity Sales, the lower court had deliberately refused to follow a binding decision of a higher court, while here, the appellate department conscientiously attempted to follow the law even though its conclusions were wrong (148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 904) .

[b] Only Beneficially Interested Party May Petition

Marlow v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 393, 110 P.2d 11 , involved an heirship proceeding. A statement of heirship was filed by children whose grandfather was the uncle of the decedent. Prior to this filing the superior court had made an order of default against all claimants who had not appeared or entered petitions to determine heirship. A motion to strike the statement of heirship was granted, after which the children moved, unsuccessfully, to set aside the default and file their petition. They then petitioned for a writ of review to set aside the default.

The Supreme Court dismissed the proceeding, finding that under the provisions of former Prob. Code § 226 none of the petitioners stood in a relationship to the decedent so as to be beneficially interested in the estate, within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069, and therefore, a writ of review could not issue (17 Cal. 2d 393, 395) .

In Katenkamp v. Dept. of Finance (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 343, 49 P.2d 897 , a real property owner brought a petition for a writ of review to challenge the granting of a permit by the state to a private corporation. The permit allowed the corporation to maintain two structures on state-owned tidelands, which theproperty owner claimed removed the beach from his property by creating a breakwater effect, and amounted to a taking of private property for public purposes without due process of law. A demurrer to the petition was sustained by the lower court, and judgment was entered for the respondents. The property owner appealed.

The court of appeal held that the granting of the permit was a ministerial or executive function, not a judicial function, and therefore, it could not be challenged by means of a writ of review (9 Cal. App. 2d 343, 345) . While the court declined to rule on the question of whether the property owner was a beneficially interested party within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069, it recited that this statute has been repeatedly interpreted to mean that a writ of review will not issue in favor of strangers to the record, with exceptions for certain taxpayer actions (9 Cal. App. 2d 343, 344) . Therefore the judgment for respondents was affirmed.

[c] Writ Denied if Action Within Jurisdiction

In McClearen v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 852, 291 P.2d 449 , the state had served a notice on an employer to withhold monies owing an employee for delinquent sales taxes. The employee brought a suit for wages in justice court against the employer. The state moved for an order granting a lien on any judgment obtained by the employee pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 688.1, but the motion was denied. The state appealed to the superior court. During the pendency of the appeal the employee obtained judgment against the employer. The superior court remanded the cause for further hearing on the basis that the judge of the justice court had not used discretion in ruling on the motion for a lien. Subsequently the remittitur was recalled, on the ground that the superior court had earlier acted on the mistaken belief that the justice court had not heard any factual issues. A trial de novo was ordered, which resulted in an order granting the state a lien on the employee's judgment. The employee petitioned for a writ of review to annul the action taken by the superior court on the ground that it lacked jurisdiction to entertain any of the proceedings.

The Supreme Court affirmed the orders of the superior court. First, the Court determined that the orders were appealable under former Code Civ. Proc. § 974, which would prevent the employee from obtaining relief through a writ of review (45 Cal. 2d 852, 855) . The superior court acted within its jurisdiction in recalling the remittitur, trying the matter de novo, and proceeding without a copy of the pleadings in the main action because each of these actions was sanctioned by statute or case law (45 Cal. 2d 852, 856-857) . Finally, the Court stated that it could not make a ruling as to the correctness of the superior court's decision because mere error cannot be examined on a writ of review (45 Cal. 2d 852, 857-858) .

In Quezada v. Superior Court (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 528, 340 P.2d 1018 , a husband was held in contempt of court for failure to make child support payments pursuant to a temporary order for support in a proceeding for dissolution of marriage. At the time of the contempt hearing the parties stipulated that the matter could be heard by a commissioner sitting as a judge pro tempore. The husband was not found in contempt and the wife petitioned for a writ of review, alleging various errors and that the hearing could not take place before a judge pro tempore as it was criminal in nature.

The court of appeal denied the writ of review. Matters of alleged error are not subject to review. Secondly, while the contempt proceeding was criminal in nature it was not, strictly speaking, a criminal action. The court's jurisdiction was not exceeded because the contempt proceeding was ancillary to the dissolution proceeding and was a cause that the court had jurisdiction to decide by appointment of a pro tempore judge by stipulation of the parties, under Cal. Const., art. VI, § 5 (171 Cal. App. 2d 528, 529-530) .

[d] Writ Denied if Seeks to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction

In Estate of Kay (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 215, 181 P.2d 1 , a guardian was attempting to confirm the sale of the home of an incompetent person. The guardian was a bank and the incompetent person a physician who remained incompetent less than three months. Prior to being restored to competency, the guardian sold the physician's real property, which he had used as a home and office. The guardian obtained confirmation of the sale by the probate court, on the basis that the sale was in the best interests of the physician. Because the order confirming the sale was not appealable the physician sought a writ of review to annul the order confirming the sale, on the ground that the probate court had exceeded its jurisdiction in making the finding that the sale was in his best interest and in not granting him a continuance until after his hearing for restoration of competency, which was pending. A writ of review was issued and the matter examined by the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court affirmed the order confirming the sale. It held that the probate court acted within its discretion as limited by statutory authority. The determination of the sufficiency of evidence as to whether a sale was proper was within the court's discretion, and a writ of review could not be used to annul orders made within the court's jurisdiction that are subject to its discretion (30 Cal. 2d 215, 218) . The Court cited the concept of jurisdiction in Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 109 P.2d 942 (writ of prohibition), and held that even under the broad definition of jurisdiction in that case, the probate court had not exceeded its jurisdiction (30 Cal. 2d 215, 218-219) . Furthermore, the granting of a continuance was a matter well within the discretion of the court and it could not be examined on a writ of review (30 Cal. 2d 215, 225-226) .

Turner v. Civil Service Commission (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 640, 259 P.2d 698 , involved the dismissal of a deputy coroner from office based on insubordination and other misconduct. The deputy coroner appealed to the civil service commission, and after a hearing the dismissal was sustained. He then petitioned for and obtained a writ of review in the superior court. That court annulled the order of dismissal on the ground that the commission had acted arbitrarily and in excess of its jurisdiction in not admitting evidence of the deputy coroner's efficiency record and good reputation, and that there was insufficient evidence to sustain the dismissal. The civil service commission appealed the annulment, contending that it did not act outside of its jurisdiction or abuse its discretion.

The court of appeal reversed the superior court's annulment. It stated that a writ of review raises jurisdictional questions and cannot be used to review mere error. In reviewing decisions by such commissions the courts are not authorized to exercise their independent judgment on the evidence, and their review is limited to a determination of whether the agency's decision is supported by substantial evidence. Here, there was substantial evidence to sustain the dismissal, and thus there was no apparent abuse of discretion (119 Cal. App. 2d 640, 643-644) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Review

In Jillson v. Board of Supervisors (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 192, 34 Cal. Rptr. 419 , a taxpayer filed an application with Sacramento County, sitting as a board of equalization, for the reduction of her property tax assessment. The matter was heard and the application denied. She then petitioned for a writ of review or mandate, the respondent demurred to the petition, and the demurrer was sustained. The court of appeals affirmed the judgment of dismissal sustaining the demurrer, holding that the taxpayer had an adequate legal remedy in the form of paying her taxes under protest pursuant to former Rev. & Tax. Code § 5136, by which any deficiency in the hearing could be reviewed. A writ of review will not issue, unless the inferior tribunal has exceeded its jurisdiction and there is no appeal, or other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (221 Cal. App. 2d 192, 195) .

[b] Writ Denied if Sought to Examine Discretionary Matters Within Jurisdiction

In Nider v. City Commission (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 97 P.2d 293 , a city physician was removed from office by a commission for failure to maintain the professional confidence of the city employees and officers through various acts of misconduct. On examination by writ of review, the court of appeal held that in reviewing an order of a city commission it could only review the question of whether the commission had jurisdiction, and not mere errors in the exercise of jurisdiction (36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 20) . While the commission permitted evidence that went too far afield to be introduced, there was other sufficient evidence to sustain its findings. The court held that the commission may have gone to the limit of sound discretion, but did not go beyond it (36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 23) . Therefore, as the commission did not exceed its jurisdiction the dismissal of the physician was upheld (36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 30) .

In Nider one of the bases for finding that a writ of review was a proper remedy to examine the proceedings was the court's conclusion that a writ of mandate was not proper to review judicial action (36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 28) . For a discussion of when the remedy of administrative mandamus [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] may now be utilized to secure review of a public agency's actions, [see Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Assn. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 35, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.24

§ 205.24 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Inferior Tribunal, Board, or Officer Was Not Exercising Judicial Functions

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum opposing a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.23)].

THE WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD NOT ISSUE, BECAUSE THE _____ [INFERIOR TRIBUNAL or BOARD or OFFICER] WAS NOT EXERCISING JUDICIAL FUNCTIONS.

Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions. A writ of review will not issue unless the inferior tribunal, board, or officer exceeded his/her/its jurisdiction while exercising judicial functions (Monarch Cablevision, Inc. v. City Council (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 210, 48 Cal. Rptr. 550 ; Meyers v. Board of Supervisors (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 623, 630-631, 243 P.2d 38 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose a petition for a writ of review on the ground that the inferior tribunal, board, or officer was not exercising judicial functions. The foregoing form should be used in conjunction with the general form opposing a petition for a writ of review [see § 205.23].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, if the action taken by the tribunal, board, or officer was legislative, rather than judicial,facts showing why the action was legislative should be included [see, e.g., Quinchard v. Board of Trustees (1896) 113 Cal. 664, 668-669, 45 P. 856 (order for street improvements as legislative function)]. Secondly, if the tribunal, board, or officer acted pursuant to a statute or ordinance, counsel should state how the actions taken comport with the provisions of the statute or ordinance [see, e.g., Estate of Kay (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 215, 218, 181 P.2d 1 (statute); Monarch Cablevision, Inc. v. City Council (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211, 48 Cal. Rptr. 550 (ordinance);

see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (review of administrative action by writ of administrative mandamus)].

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of review supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 205.20 -205.22.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions

In Monarch Cablevision, Inc. v. City Council (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 48 Cal. Rptr. 550 , a city council granted a community antenna television system franchise to a private corporation. A competitor had applied for the franchise as well, and both applications were heard by the council contemporaneously. The competitor claimed that the council exceeded its jurisdiction by erroneously awarding the franchise to the other corporation because the competitor's proposed rates were lower and no required financial statement had been submitted by the other corporation. In addition, it claimed that the award had been based on hearsay evidence about which it had been denied an opportunity to cross-examine. It filed a petition for writs of review and mandate in the superior court to annul the action of the council and to compel the council to grant it the franchise. The corporation awarded the franchise intervened and its motion to dismiss was granted. The competitor then appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal. The court found that the actions taken by the city council were legislative in character, based on case decisions concerning the granting of franchises. The character of the act sought to be reviewed is the test for determining whether the writ of review should issue. The writ of review should issue only to determine whether an inferior tribunal, board, or officer exceeded the jurisdiction of that entity in the exercise of judicial functions (239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 210) . Furthermore, the council acted pursuant to a city ordinance conferring discretion in awarding franchises and there was no apparent abuse of discretion in making the award (239 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211) .

In Meyers v. Board of Supervisors (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 623, 243 P.2d 38 , a regional planning commission granted an operating permit to a county for a refuse dump near a residential area after notice and a public hearing by the zoning board of the commission. Certain owners of property adjacent to the proposed dumpsite filed protests. The zoning board recommended that the permit be granted, and the commission concurred. Thereafter, the property owners filed a notice of appeal with the board of supervisors, requesting a another hearing and an opportunity to introduce more evidence. The board met, reviewed a transcript of the zoning board proceedings and confirmed the granting of the permit, without notice to the property owners or further public hearing. The property owners petitioned the superior court for a writ of review, contending that the board of supervisors had exceeded its jurisdiction. The petition was denied and they appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the denial. The court held that the board of supervisors had not exceeded its jurisdiction in affirming the planning commission's decision because it acted within the scope of applicable county ordinances. A writ of review tries only the jurisdiction of an inferior board or tribunal exercising judicial functions (110 Cal. App. 2d 623, 626) . Neither the act of reviewing the transcript of the zoning board or the failure to provide the property owners an additional public hearing exceeded the jurisdiction of the board because county ordinances conferred that discretionary authority (110 Cal. App. 2d 623, 628, 630-631) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ Denied if No Exercise of Judicial Functions

In Quinchard v. Board of Trustees (1896) 113 Cal. 664, 45 P. 856 , a writ of review was obtained to annul an order of a board of trustees for improvements to a city street. The board of trustees appealed, and the Supreme Court reversed the judgment, thereby dismissing the writ. The Court held that the actions of the board in ordering the street improvements were legislative, not judicial, the character of the act being determinative. A writ of review will only issue if the action complained of was judicial in nature (113 Cal. 664, 668-669) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.25

§ 205.25 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Right of Appeal or Other Remedy Exists or Existed

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum opposing a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.23).]

A WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD NOT ISSUE BECAUSE PETITIONER _____ [HAS or HAD] AN ADEQUATE REMEDY BY _____ [APPEAL or state other remedy].

A. Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available. A writ ofreview will not issue if the petitioner has a right of appeal or any other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy (Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; De Lao v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 711, 712, 234 P.2d 961 ; Goble v. Municipal Court (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 725, 726-727, 292 P.2d 585).

[Optional] B. Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction. A writ of review will not issue if the petitioner had the right to appeal but lost it because of failing to appeal within the time prescribed by law (Estate of Nersisian (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 561, 567, 318 P.2d 168 ; Faias v. Superior Court (1933) 133 Cal. App 525, 531, 24 P.2d 567).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used to oppose a petition for a writ of review on the ground that the petitioner has a right of appeal or some other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, or had that right or remedy and lost it by failing to pursue it within the time period prescribed by law. In the latter case, optional paragraph B should be used. This form should be used in conjunction with the general form opposing a petition for a writ of review [see § 205.23].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should indicate what remedies are available to petitioner, and why those remedies are plain, speedy, and adequate. Alternatively, counsel should ascertain whether the action taken by the inferior tribunal, board, or officer is appealable and state any statutory authority for appealability. Note that the availability of appeal has expanded since many of the older cases concerning writs of review were decided. Appeals in civil actions are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 901-914.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of review supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 205.20 -205.22.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a general discussion of civil appeals and appealable judgments and orders, see respectively Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , and Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available

In De Lao v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 711, 234 P.2d 961 , a trial court found for plaintiff in a negligence action. The trial judge signed a judgment reciting that findings of fact and conclusions of law had been waived on the basis of representations of plaintiff's attorney. Defendant moved for a new trial and denied the waiver of findings and conclusions. The court denied his motions, but granted plaintiff's motion to set aside the judgment and for leave to prepare findings and conclusions. Thereafter, a new judgment was signed that contained the findings and conclusions. Defendant then made a second motion for a new trial, which was denied, and proceeded to petition for a writ of review to annul the orders and judgments made by the trial court. He also filed notices of appeal.

The Supreme Court dismissed the proceeding, holding that under Code Civ. Proc. § 1068, defendant petitioning for review had to establish not only an excess of jurisdiction by the trial court, but also that there was no appeal or other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy. If the ruling or decision is not appealable, the writ will still not issue if the petitioner has an adequate remedy by appealing from a subsequent order or judgment. Here, the first judgment would have been appealable. While the Court did not determine the merits of the argument against its appealability, it held that because defendant had already commenced an appeal from the second judgment he had an adequate remedy (37 Cal. 2d 711, 712-713) .

In Goble v. Municipal Court (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 725, 292 P.2d 585 , a suit was brought for money due under a contract. The superior court's appellate department reversed the judgment for plaintiff at defendants' instance and ordered the trial court to make and file findings of fact and conclusions of law. The trial court did so and a second judgment for plaintiff was entered, after which defendants moved for a new trial. This motion was denied, and defendants appealed, but the appellate department dismissed the appeal on the ground that it was not timely filed. Defendants then petitioned for a writ of review in the superior court, alleging that the municipal court had failed to properly decide the case in accordance with certain evidence and the trial judge had exceeded his jurisdiction. A writ was initially granted by ex parte order, but plaintiff moved to vacate the writ and dismiss the proceeding on the ground that defendants previously had a right to appeal. The trial court ordered that the writ be vacated and dismissed the proceeding. Defendants appealed the order.

The court of appeal affirmed the order vacating the writ and dismissing the proceeding, holding that a writ of review would not issue if petitioner had a right to appeal, which was lost by petitioner's neglect. The fact that the order had been appealable was determinative. Furthermore, the court held that the trial court had not exceeded its jurisdiction, and to have granted a writ under these circumstances would have had the effect of providing defendants with an alternative or duplicate method of review entirely unauthorized by statute or established law (138 Cal. App. 2d 725, 726-727) .

[b] Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction

Estate of Nersisian (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 561, 318 P.2d 168 , involveddistribution of the estate of a California resident to his nonresident alien relatives. The decedent's will provided that in the event the relatives were not legally entitled to take under it the estate would be distributed to a fraternal organization for charitable purposes. A probate court approved a petition for partial distribution of the bulk of the estate to the fraternal organization because it found that the relatives lived in a country not having a reciprocity agreement for purposes of estate succession. Some of the relatives appealed from that order of distribution, but abandoned the appeals. Thereafter, they moved to vacate the judgment and their motion was denied. They also petitioned for a writ of review, contending that the probate court exceeded its jurisdiction in making the distribution because of a lack of adequate notice of the probate proceedings. The petition was denied and they appealed.

The court of appeal dismissed the appeal. It held that despite the nonappealability of the order denying the motion to vacate the decree of distribution, petitioners had an adequate appellate remedy from the decree of distribution itself, and their abandonment of it could not be grounds for issuance of a writ of review (155 Cal. App. 2d 561, 567) . Furthermore, the probate court had not exceeded its jurisdiction because the appearance through counsel cured any defects in the notices (155 Cal. App. 2d 561, 564-566) .

Faias v. Superior Court (1933) 133 Cal. App. 525, 24 P.2d 567 , also involved an estate. The former wife of a decedent filed a claim against his estate for child support due under a divorce decree between the decedent and herself. The estate administrator took no action on the claim and the probate court granted leave to enforce the judgment against the estate, after which the former wife commenced suit on the claim in superior court. Later, the administrator filed a petition to compromise the claim in the probate court. The guardian of an incompetent child of the decedent filed objections to the order requested on the ground that the claim was barred by the statute of limitations. The probate court approved the claim, and the guardian petitioned for a writ of review contending that the court had no jurisdiction to make the orders concerning the claim. A writ of review was granted.

The court of appeal discharged the writ, holding that the guardian should have moved to vacate the original order granting the claimant the right to proceed against the estate. Furthermore, the order would have been appealable as it was one that affected the judgment by way of enforcing it. Neither the administrator nor the heir moved to vacate the order. The fact that the right to appeal may have been lost by lapse of time would not change the general rule that a writ of review will not issue if the remedy of appeal exists, except in unusual cases, such as a want of notice, which was not alleged here (133 Cal. App. 525, 530-531) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Appeal or Other Remedy Available

In Arens v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 623, 290 P.2d 257 , a petition for writ of review was brought to review an order of a probate court denying a motion to vacate an order setting apart a probate homestead. The Supreme Court denied the writ on the grounds that the order setting aside the probate homestead was an appealable order and became final when the time for appeal expired. A writ of review will not issue to review an order, unless there is no appeal. While the order denying the motion to vacate was not appealable, and the petitioner had not received notice of the order setting aside the homestead, the fact that the homestead order was appealable was determinative (45 Cal. 2d 623, 625-626) .

The facts and procedural background of Jillson v. Board of Supervisors (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 192, 34 Cal. Rptr. 419 , are discussed in § 205.23[4][a]. In Jillson, the court of appeal affirmed the sustaining of a demurrer to a taxpayer's petition for a writ of review concerning denial of a reduction of property taxes. The court held that the taxpayer had an adequate legal remedy in the form of paying her taxes under protest, by which any deficiency in the tax reduction hearing she attended could be reviewed (221 Cal. App. 2d 192, 195) .

[b] Writ of Review Denied if Right to Appeal Lost by Petitioner's Inaction

Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 341 P.2d 13 , is discussed in § 205.23[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 205 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. FORMS

20-205 California Points & Authorities § 205.26

§ 205.26 Opposing Petition for Writ of Review (Certiorari) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]--Petitioner's Claim Moot or Barred by Laches

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined, if appropriate, with a general form of memorandum opposing a petition for a writ of review (see, e.g., § 205.23)].

A WRIT OF REVIEW SHOULD NOT ISSUE BECAUSE THE CLAIM OF PETITIONER IS _____ [MOOT and/or BARRED BY LACHES].

[EITHER]

A. Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot. A writ of review will not issue if the claim of petitioner is moot (Wilson v. L.A. County Civil Service Com. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454, 246 P.2d 688 ; James v. Superior Court (1917) 35 Cal. App 148, 149, 169 P. 398).

[AND/OR]

B. Writ of Review Denied for Laches. A writ of review will not issue if thedelay by petitioner in bringing the petition is so long as to constitute laches (Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; Bernstein v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 569, 116 P.2d 172).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be used to oppose a petition for a writ of review on the grounds that the action complained of has become moot, or that a delay in bringing the petition amounts to laches. The foregoing form should be used in conjunction with the general form opposing a petition for a writ of review [see § 205.23].

Counsel should insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In particular, counsel should describe any circumstances that undermine the reasons for petitioning for a writ of review [see, e.g., James v. Superior Court (1917) 35 Cal. App. 148, 149, 169 P. 398 (propriety of injunction moot when purpose already accomplished)]. Facts indicating that the petition is being brought after the period in which an appeal from a final judgment is permitted should also be included, as well as any lack of explanation by petitioner for not bringing the petition sooner [see, e.g., Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620] .

In an appropriate case, the foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of review supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 205.20 -205.22.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot

Wilson v. L.A. County Civil Service Com. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 246 P.2d 688 , involved a dispute over a list of candidates eligible for the position of county clerk. The list originated after a civil service examination. One of the examinees, who placed last on the list, appealed his positioning to the civil service commission and, when that appeal was denied, petitioned for a writ of review in the superior court. The court issued a writ of mandate after finding that the oral portion of the examination was not competitive, and required the civil service commission to cancel the eligible list and hold a new examination. A new examination was held and a new list of candidates was generated. The examinee again petitioned for a writ of review, but it was denied and the denial was affirmed on appeal. In the interim both the examinee and the civil service commission had appealed from the order issuing the writ of mandate; the examinee's appeal was dismissed after being abandoned. However, the appeal by the civil service commission resulted in the reversal of the original order [see Wilson v. L.A. County Civil Service Com. (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 777, 778, 218 P.2d 547]. Subsequently, the trial court granted the commission's motion to dismiss the proceeding and discharge the writ of review. The motion was made on the ground that the issues in the action were moot and that the eligible list in question was no longer in existence and had expired. The examinee appealed from the order granting the dismissal.

The court of appeal affirmed the dismissal. It held that at the time the motion to dismiss was made, the eligible list in question was no longer in existence under the provisions of the county charter that governed the duration of the list (112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 452) . Therefore, the validity of the list had become a moot question. The fact that the court of appeal had made a ruling (reversing the issuance of the writ of mandate) that examined the validity of the examination did not mean that the question of mootness was decided there for purposes of precedent (112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 453-454) . Because the only question presented by the original petition for a writ of review was the validity of the original list, any judicial decision would be ineffectual (112 Cal. App. 2d 450, 454) .

In James v. Superior Court (1917) 35 Cal. App. 148, 169 P. 398 , a preliminary injunction was issued and later dissolved in a civil action in superior court. The purpose of the injunction was to prevent the sale of certain capital stock of a corporation to enforce the payment of an assessment. Plaintiff in the suit paid the assessment and the corporation issued plaintiff a receipt and recorded the payment on its own books of account. However, plaintiff petitioned for a writ of review to annul the order dissolving the injunction, contending that the court was without jurisdiction to dissolve it.

The court of appeals denied the writ of review. The court found that plaintiff was correct in asserting that the superior court exceeded its jurisdiction in dissolving the injunction. However, the purpose of the injunction was already accomplished because plaintiff had prevented sale of the stock by paying the assessment. Therefore, the court held that it was no longer of any legal consequence whether plaintiff was correct in his contention about the injunction. Payment of the assessment had made the injunction issue virtually an abstract proposition of law on which no rights depended and no relief could be afforded (35 Cal. App. 148, 149) .

[b] Writ of Review Denied for Laches

In Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620 , a municipal court's judgment of contempt was challenged. The contemner was fined and petitioned the superior court for a writ of review. The superior court denied the petition as not being timely filed, based on a delay of approximately six months. The contemner appealed the denial, contending that although he had delayed in petitioning, his petition should not have been denied unless there had been prejudice to the opposing party.

The court of appeal affirmed the denial. It held that under the rule established in Reynolds v. Superior Court (1883) 64 Cal. 372, 28 P. 121 , a delay in bringing the petition that exceeds the time for the period of appeal from a final judgment bars the petition for review, unless the delay is satisfactorily explained. The court compared this rule to that in habeas corpus proceedings in which petitioners for that writ must explain delay in seeking it. The court distinguished the holding of Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 , because its holding that prejudice must be shown in order to establish laches applies only to administrative mandamus proceedings. Here, the court continued, the writ of review is more discretionary, although the discretion must be exercised within reason. The petition for the writ occurred well after the 60-day period for appeals from a final judgment (40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997) . The court did not comment, however, on the fact that there is no appeal remedy from a contempt judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 1222].

Bernstein v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 116 P.2d 172 , involved a challenge to the appointment of a wife as the guardian of the estate of her husband. After a period of almost six years the husband petitioned for a writ of review, contending that the appointment was invalid, citing Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 221 P. 635 (discussed in § 205.20[3][f]). At the time of the petition for the writ, the parties' daughter had also filed a petition to succeed the wife as guardian on the wife's resignation from that position.

The court of appeal denied the writ, holding that the husband's lengthy delay in seeking the writ amounted to laches, and his conduct had amounted to consent to the guardianship. In contrast to the situation in Grinbaum, the husband, although physically disabled, was mentally competent, had had the benefit of his estate during the period of the guardianship, and received timely notice of the proceedings. Furthermore, he would have an opportunity to challenge the continuation of the guardianship by his daughter when her petition was heard (46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 569) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writ of Review Denied if Matter Moot

In Raahauge v. Superior Court (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 941, 205 P.2d 1124 , a petition for a writ of review was filed to examine the action of a superior court in refusing to confirm a trustee's purchase of corporate stock. An appeal had also been filed concerning the same matter, and the stated purpose for petition was to prevent loss of the right to a review of the judgment in the event the court decided that it was not appealable. Because the judgment was determined to be appealable, the court of appeal discharged the writ of review, holding that the review proceeding would be meaningless in light of the appeal remedy (91 Cal. App. 2d 941, 941) .

[b] Writ of Review Denied for Laches

In Reid v. Superior Court (1919) 44 Cal. App. 349, 186 P. 634 , a district attorney was removed from office for willful misconduct. Some nine months later, after his term of elective office had expired, he petitioned for a writ of review. The court of appeal held that the matter was moot in that it could not restore the petitioner to elective office after the term had expired, and that his delay in seeking the writ amounted to laches. It cited with approval cases holding that a petitioner must give a sufficient reason for the delay in order for the court to grant the writ and if there is prejudice resulting from the delay the writ will not be issued (44 Cal. App. 349, 355) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES

20-206 California Points & Authorities 206.syn

§ 206.syn Synopsis to Chapter 206: SALES

§ 206.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 206.02 Governing Statutes

§ 206.03 Warranties Under Division 10 Governing Personal Property Leases

§ 206.04 Warranties Under Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

§ 206.05 Warranties Under Magnuson-Moss Act

§ 206.06 Goods and Services Defined

§ 206.07 Retail Installment Contract

[1] Definition

[2] Disclosure Requirements

§ 206.08 Retail Installment Account

[1] Definition

[2] Acceptance by Buyer

[3] Required Disclosures

§ 206.09 Prohibited Acts and Terms

§ 206.10 Remedies for Violations

§ 206.11 Nature and Purpose of Rees-Levering Act

§ 206.12 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 206.13 Related Pleadings and Practice Forms

§ 206.14 Related Points and Authorities

§§ 206.15-206.29 [Reserved]

§ 206.30 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Contract Made in Manner Sufficient to Show Agreement [Com. Code § 2204]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Open Terms

[c] Statute of Frauds

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Acceptance Stating Additional Terms

[b] Contract Evidenced by Conduct

[c] Court Authorized to Determine Effective Terms

§ 206.31 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Does Not Bar Enforcement--Contract Evidenced by Writing [Com. Code § 2201(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Writing Need Not Contain All Material Terms

[c] Definition of Merchant

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Satisfies Statute of Frauds

[b] Requirements Contract Satisfies Quantity Term

[c] Writing Evidencing Contract Between Merchants

[d] Signature Includes Use of Symbol

§ 206.32 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Does Not Bar Enforcement--Defendant Admits Existence of Contract [Com. Code § 2201(3)(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.33 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Does Not Bar Enforcement--Payment Made or Goods Accepted [Com. Code § 2201(3)(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Part Payment Made on Indivisible Unit

[b] Goods Delivered to Third Party at Buyer's Request

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Payment Made or Goods Accepted

§ 206.34 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Does Not Bar Enforcement by Seller Against Buyer--Goods Specially Manufactured for Buyer [Com. Code § 2201(3)(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Specially Manufactured Goods

§ 206.35 Opposing Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Bars Enforcement--Writing Insufficient to Show Existence of Contract [Com. Code § 2201(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Effect of Statute of Frauds

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute of Frauds

§ 206.36 Opposing Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Acceptance Made Conditional on Assent to Additional Terms [Com. Code § 2207(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Additional or Different Terms

§ 206.37 Supporting Contention That Seller Entitled to Damages for Buyer's Breach of Contract--Buyer's Nonacceptance of Goods--Resale and Recovery of Damages [Com. Code §§ 2703, 2706, 2708]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Appropriate Test for Measure of Damages

[c] Notice of Resale

[d] Proof of Market Price

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intermediate Seller Entitled to Lost Profits

[b] Lost-Volume Seller Entitled to Lost Profits Without Setoff

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Seller's Right of Resale and Damages Based on Contract Price

§ 206.38 Opposing Contention That Seller or Buyer Entitled to Damages for Breach of Contract--Action Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Com. Code § 2725]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Limitations Period

§ 206.39 Opposing Contention That Seller Entitled to Damages for Buyer's Breach of Contract--Seller Failed Adequately to Tender Goods [Com. Code §§ 2503, 2507(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Buyer's Conditional Duty

[c] Additional Requirements of Tender

[d] Place for Delivery

[e] Shipping Terms

§ 206.40 Opposing Contention That Seller Entitled to Damages for Buyer's Breach of Contract--Tendered Goods Failed to Conform to Contract [Com. Code § 2601]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.41 Opposing Contention That Seller Entitled to Damages for Buyer's Breach of Contract--Seller Failed to Notify Buyer of Resale of Goods [Com. Code § 2706]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Requirements for Notification of Private Sale

[c] Purpose for Notification of Public Sale

§ 206.42 Supporting Contention That Buyer Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Contract--Buyer's Remedies Regarding Accepted Goods [Com. Code § 2714]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Deduction of Damages From Price

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 206.43 Supporting Contention That Buyer Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Contract--Buyer's Remedies Regarding Nondelivered or Rejected Goods [Com. Code §§ 2711, 2712, 2713(1), 2715]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Installment Contracts

[c] Proof of Market Price

[d] Buyer's Security Interest and Right of Resale

[e] Buyer's Right to Goods on Seller's Insolvency

[f] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer's Right to Damages After Cover

[b] Incidental Damages Include Storage and Handling Costs

[c] Consequential Damages Include Lost Profits

[d] Seller That Knows Buyer Will Resell for Profit Is Liable for Lost Profits

[e] Seller Has Burden of Proving Inadequate Mitigation

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Consequential Damages Include Lost Profits

§ 206.44 Supporting Contention That Buyer Entitled to Consequential Damages [Com. Code § 2715(2)]--Limited or Exclusive Contract Remedy [Com. Code § 2719(1)] Barring Consequential Damages Failed of Its Essential Purpose [Com. Code § 2719(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Factual Showing Required

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure of Limited Remedy

[b] Consequential Damages Permitted When Limited Remedy Fails of Its Essential Purpose

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure of Limited Remedy of Its Essential Purpose

§ 206.45 Supporting Contention That Buyer Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Contract--Buyer's Right to Specific Performance [Com. Code §§ 2711(2)(b), 2716]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Replevin Available

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inability to Cover Constitutes Special Circumstances

§ 206.46 Opposing Contention That Buyer Entitled to Contract-Market Price Measure of Damages on Nondelivered or Rejected Goods [Com. Code § 2713]--Buyer Limited to Actual Loss When Seller Knew of Resale Contract [Com. Code § 1305(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer Limited to Actual Loss

§ 206.47 Opposing Contention That Buyer Entitled to Consequential Damages [Com. Code § 2715(2)]--Limited or Exclusive Remedy [Com. Code § 2719(1)] Bars Consequential Damages

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Unconscionability of Limitation on Consequential Damages

[c] Liquidation or Limitation of Damages

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limited Remedy Does Not Fail of Essential Purpose When Seller's Breach Not Total

§§ 206.48-206.59 [Reserved]

§ 206.60 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313]--Establishing Liability Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Elimination of Reliance Requirement

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Affirmation of Fact or Promise Creates Warranty

[b] Privity Not Required

[c] Express Warranty Applies to Leasing of Chattel

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Affirmation of Fact or Promise Creates Warranty

[b] Description of Goods Creates Warranty

[c] Privity Not Required

§ 206.61 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313]--Cause of Action Not Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Com. Code § 2725]--Warranty Explicitly Extends to Future Performance and Cause of Action Accrues on Discovery

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Accrual-on-Discovery Rule

[b] Promise to Repair Defects in Future

§ 206.62 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316(1)] Ineffective--Disclaimer Inconsistent With Language of Express Warranty

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disclaimer of Express Warranty Strictly Construed Against Seller

§ 206.63 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314]--Establishing Liability Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Warranty of Merchantability Arises by Operation of Law

[b] Merchantable Goods

[c] Privity Between Supplier and Buyer Who Contracts With Financing Lessor

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Merchantable Goods

§ 206.64 Supporting Contention That Defendant Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316(2)] Ineffective

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inconspicuous Disclaimer Is Invalid

[b] Disclaimer Inconspicuous When Contrast With Contract Is Slight

§ 206.65 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Establishing Liability Generally

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose

§ 206.66 Supporting Contention That Defendant Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316(2)] Ineffective

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 206.67 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313], Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314] and Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316(1)] Ineffective--Seller Did Not Clearly Limit Liability

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Disclaimer Unless Seller Clearly Limits Liability

§ 206.68 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Warranty of Title or Warranty Against Infringement of Buyer's Interest [Com. Code § 2312]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Disclaimer of Warranty of Title

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Rightful Claim of Infringement Is Any Nonfrivolous Claim

§ 206.69 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages [Com. Code §§ 2714(2), (3), 2715(2)(b)] for Seller's Breach of Warranty [Com. Code §§ 2312-2315]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Award of Lost Profits Plus Restitution Not Per Se Inconsistent

[b] Attorney's Fees as Damages

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Buyer's Consequential Damages

§ 206.70 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Warranty [Com. Code §§ 2312-2315]--Action

Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Com. Code § 2725]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Four-Year Limitations Period Inapplicable Absent Sales Contract Between Parties

[c] Four-Year Limitations Period Inapplicable When Dispute Does Not Involve Goods

[d] Two-Year Limitations Period Applicable in Action Based on Personal Injuries

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[f] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Limitations Period for Action Based on Breach of Warranty

[b] Extension of Warranty to Future Performance

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Extension of Warranty to Future Performance

§ 206.71 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages [Com. Code §§ 2714(2), (3), 2715(2)(b)] for Seller's Breach of Warranty [Com. Code §§ 2312-2315]--Limitation of Remedies [Com. Code § 2316(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

§ 206.72 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313], Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314], and Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Purpose of Disclaimer Modification Provision

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contractual Disclaimer of Implied Warranties

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Words Creating and Negating Warranty Construed as Consistent When Reasonable

[b] Implied Warranties Excluded by "As Is" Language

§ 206.73 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313], Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314], and Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Transaction Does Not Involve Goods [Com. Code § 2102]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Liability for Express Warranty When Dispute Does Not Involve Goods

§ 206.74 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313], Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314], and Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Transaction Does Not Involve Sale [Com. Code § 2106(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Breach of Warranty Absent Sale

[b] Blood Transfusion Not Sale

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Breach of Warranty Absent Sale

[b] Blood Transfusion Not Sale

§ 206.75 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313]--Seller Made No Affirmation of Fact or Promise

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Absence of Affirmation of Fact or Promise

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Absence of Affirmation of Fact or Promise

§ 206.76 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314] or Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--No Privity of Contract Between Plaintiff and Defendant

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Exceptions to Privity Requirement

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privity Required for Action Based on Implied Warranty

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privity Required for Action Based on Implied Warranty

§ 206.77 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314] or Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Class Action Cannot Be Maintained Because of Lack of Common Interests Among Plaintiffs

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Class Actions

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Class Action Based on Implied Warranty of Merchantability When Issues Requiring Separate Litigation Are Too Numerous

[b] No Class Action Based on Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Class Action Based on Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose

§ 206.78 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314]--Seller Not Merchant With Respect to Goods Sold [Com. Code § 2104(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Implied Warranty of Merchantability When Defendant Not Merchant

§ 206.79 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Buyer Did Not Rely on Seller's Skill or Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose Arises

[b] Buyer's Nonreliance on Seller's Skill or Judgment

§§ 206.80-206.99 [Reserved]

§ 206.100 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer, Distributor, or Seller Made Express Warranty in Consumer Sale [Civ. Code §§ 1790.3, 1791, 1791.2]--General Definitions Included

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Express Warranty Defined

[b] Consumer Warranty Act Supersedes Commercial Code Only in Case of Conflict

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Express Warranty Defined

§ 206.101 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer of New Motor Vehicle [Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2)] Sold in California, or Its Representative, Made Express Warranty

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] New Motor Vehicle Defined

[b] Typical Automobile Repair Warranty

§ 206.102 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty in Consumer Sale--Failure to Maintain Repair Facility in California [Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Duty to Maintain Repair Facility in California

§ 206.103 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Replacement or Reimbursement--Failure to Promptly Repair Goods (Other Than New Motor Vehicle) to Conform to Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1793.2(b)-(d)(1), (e)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Repair or Reimbursement

§ 206.104 Supporting Contention Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Replacement or Restitution--Nonconformity Persists After Reasonable Number of Attempts to Repair [Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d)(2), 1793.22]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements If Buyer Chooses Restitution

[b] Presumption Regarding Reasonable Number of Attempts to Repair

[c] Manufacturer's and Dealer's Repair Attempts Are Aggregated

[d] No Notification of Third-Party Dispute Resolution Process

[e] Buyer's Right to Rely on Presumption

[f] Buyer's Right to Rely on Presumption Nonconformity Defined

[g] Manufacturer Has Burden of Proving Extension of 30-Day Limit

[h] Buyer's Duty of Notification Never Arose

[i] Buyer Does Not Have to Prove Reliance

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements If Buyer Chooses Restitution

[b] Nonconformity Defined

§ 206.105 Supporting Contention That Seller Made Warranty in Consumer Sale [Civ. Code §§ 1791.2, 1792-1792.2]--Buyer's Waiver Is Void and Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1790.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Commercial Code Counterpart

[c] Related Points and Authorities

§ 206.106 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer or Retailer Impliedly Warranted Merchantability of Consumer Goods [Civ. Code § 1791.1(a), (c)]--Implied Warranty of Merchantability Accompanies Every Sale [Civ. Code § 1792]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Commercial Code Counterpart

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unless Disclaimed, Merchantability Is Warranted

[b] Vertical Privity Not Required if Product Is Purchased New

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Implied Warranty of Merchantability Defined

§ 206.107 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer or Retailer Has Impliedly Warranted Consumer Goods--Disclaimer Ineffective [Civ. Code §§ 1792.3, 1792.4(a), 1793]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Commercial Code Counterparts

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Express Warranty May Not Limit Implied Warranties

[b] Requirements of Disclaimer of Implied Warranties

§ 206.108 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer, Distributor, or Retailer Impliedly Warranted Fitness of Consumer Goods [Civ. Code §§ 1791.1(b), 1792.1, 1792.2(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Commercial Code Counterpart

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Manufacturer's Implied Warranty of Fitness

[b] Inference of Reliance on Implied Warranty of Consumability

§ 206.109 Supporting Contention That Retailer Impliedly Warranted Fitness of Assistive Devices [Civ. Code §§ 1791(p), 1791.1(b), 1792.2(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Retailer's Implied Warranty of Assistive Device

[b] Assistive Device Defined

§ 206.110 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--General Measure of Damages [Civ. Code § 1794(a)-(b)], Attorney's Fees and Costs [Civ. Code § 1794(d)], and Penalty for Willful Violation [Civ. Code § 1794(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Right of Action

[b] Attorney's Fees and Costs

[c] Penalty for Willful Violation

[d] Prejudgment Interest

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attorney's Fees and Costs

[b] Penalty for Willful Violation

[c] Measure of Damages for Breach of Consumer Warranty

§ 206.111 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--"Lemon Law" Measure of Damages [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 206.112 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Buyer's Reasonable Use of Vehicle Does Not Prevent Rescission

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reasonable Use Does Not Bar Rescission

§ 206.113 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Action Not Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Civ. Code § 1790.3; Com. Code § 2725]--General Availability

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Song-Beverly Adopts Commercial Code Limitation Period

[b] Song-Beverly Adopts Commercial Code Accrual Rule

§ 206.114 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Action Not Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Civ. Code § 1790.3; Com. Code § 2725]--Warranty Period Extended During Repairs [Civ. Code § 1795.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Receipts Required to Be Provided by Manufacturer

§ 206.115 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Action Not Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Civ. Code § 1790.3; Com. Code § 2725]--Limitation Period Extended During Third-Party Dispute Resolution Process [Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.116 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Entitled to Costs/Expert Witness Fees [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 998(c), 1032(b)] As Prevailing Party In Action Brought Under Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Seller's Recovery of Costs

[b] Seller's Recovery of Expert Witness Fees

§ 206.117 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer, Distributor, or Retailer Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness--Personal Injury Tort Claims Distinguished

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Product Liability Claims Unimpaired

§ 206.118 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Buyer Did Not Purchase "Consumer Goods" [Civ. Code § 1794(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Goods Must Be Removable From Their Location Without Causing Further Damage

§ 206.119 Opposing Contention That Seller Made Express Warranty in Consumer Sale--Mere Opinion, Commendation, or Policy Statement [Civ. Code § 1791.2(b), (c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Commercial Code Counterpart

§ 206.120 Opposing Contention That Seller Made Implied Warranty in Consumer Sale--No Implied Warranties Accompany an "As Is" Sale [Civ. Code § 1791.3]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Commercial Code Counterpart

§ 206.121 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Civ. Code §§ 1791.1(b), 1792.2(a)]--Buyer Did Not Rely on Seller's Skill or Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Same Analysis Under Song-Beverly and Commercial Code

§ 206.122 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty in Consumer Sale--No Sale Made in California [Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty to Maintain Repair Facility in California

[b] Act Does Not Apply to Vehicle Bought Outside California

§ 206.123 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty in Consumer Sale--Designated Repair Facility in California [Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(B)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Option to Designate Repair Facility in California

§ 206.124 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Replacement or Reimbursement--Buyer Failed to Deliver Goods for Repair or Notify Manufacturer of Defect [Civ. Code § 1793.2(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer's Duty of Return or Notification

§ 206.125 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Replacement or Reimbursement-Claim Based on Defect in New Residential Construction Is Specially Excepted [Civ. Code § 1793.2(e)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 206.126 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Replacement or Restitution--Buyer Who Did Not Submit to Qualified Third-Party Dispute Resolution Process Cannot Rely on Presumption to Establish Reasonable Number of Attempts to Repair [Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer Cannot Rely on Presumption

§ 206.127 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Replacement or Restitution--Impairment of Vehicle Was Not "Substantial" Within Meaning of Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(1)

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Impairment Must Be Substantial

[b] Test for Determining Whether Impairment Is Substantial

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Nonconformity Defined

[b] Test for Determining Whether Impairment Is Substantial

§ 206.128 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Replacement or Restitution--Manufacturer Was Not Given Opportunity to Repair Vehicle--"Reasonable Number of Attempts" Means at Least Two Attempts to Repair [Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] A "Reasonable Number of Attempts" To Repair Requires That the Manufacturer Be Given at Least Two Opportunities to Repair

§ 206.129 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(c)]--Recovery of Both Punitive Damages and Civil Penalty Is Prohibited

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Imposition of Both Penalty and Punitive Damages Barred

[b] Plaintiff's Election and Waiver

§ 206.130 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)]--Manufacturer Maintains Qualified Dispute Resolution Process [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.131 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)]--Buyer Did Not Demand That Manufacturer Replace Vehicle or Make Restitution [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.132 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)]--Manufacturer Complied With Buyer's Demand to Replace Vehicle or Make Restitution [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.133 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)]--Buyer Can Only Have One Penalty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(5)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.134 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Bad-Faith Breach of Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tort Damages for Breach of Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Not Available

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tort Damages for Breach of Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Not Available

§§ 206.135-206.149 [Reserved]

§ 206.150 Supporting Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Sales Transaction--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Construction

§ 206.151 Supporting Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Loan Transaction--Consumer Sale Was Financed by Lender Closely Connected to Seller [Civ. Code § 1801.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substance of Transaction

[b] Lender's Relation to Seller

§ 206.152 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Contract Was Not Made Within California [Civ. Code § 1802.19]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.153 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Contract Provided for Residential Construction or Sale of Real Property [Civ. Code § 1801.4(a), (b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.154 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Buyer Terminated Service Contract With No Continuing Obligation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Continuing Obligation

§ 206.155 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Buyer Did Not Purchase Goods Primarily for Personal Use [Civ. Code § 1802.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Personal Use

§ 206.156 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Transaction Was Insurance Premium Finance Agreement [Civ. Code § 1801.7]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Premium Finance Agreements

§ 206.157 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Recover Finance Charges Paid to Seller [Civ. Code § 1812.7]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 206.158 Supporting Contention That Buyer Can Recover Finance Charges Paid to Assignee of Installment Contract or Account [Civ. Code § 1812.7]--Assignee Had Knowledge of Unruh Act Violation

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Constructive Knowledge

§ 206.159 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Recover All Finance and Other Charges Paid to Seller or Assignee--Nonwillful Violation Was Corrected Within 30 Days [Civ. Code § 1812.8]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.160 Supporting Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account [Civ. Code § 1812.2]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 206.161 Opposing Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account--Seller Repossessed Goods and Deficiency Judgment Is Barred [Civ. Code § 1812.5]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.162 Opposing Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account--Buyer Discharged Obligation to Last Known Holder of Contract or Account [Civ. Code § 1806.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.163 Opposing Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account--Buyer Was Entitled to New Payment Schedule After Defaulting on Balloon Payment [Civ. Code § 1807.3]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Balloon Payment Defined

§ 206.164 Opposing Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account--Seller Relied on Acceleration Clause Prohibited by Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1804.1(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§§ 206.165-206.179 [Reserved]

§ 206.180 Supporting Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction [Civ. Code § 2981]--Sales Contract [Civ. Code § 2981(a)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 206.181 Supporting Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction [Civ. Code § 2981]--Transaction in Form of Lease Is Actually Conditional Sale [Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Must Look to Substance Rather Than Form of Agreement

§ 206.182 Supporting Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction [Civ. Code § 2981]--Seller-Assisted Financing Not Exempt [Civ. Code § 2982.5(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Purpose of Rees-Levering Act

[b] Rees-Levering Act Applies to Seller-Assisted Loans

[c] Court Looks to Substance of Transaction Rather Than Form

[d] Preparation of Loan Documents by Dealer

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Court Looks to Substance of Transaction Rather Than Form

§ 206.183 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Cash Sale

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intent of Rees-Levering Act

[b] Rees-Levering Act Does Not Apply to Cash Sales

§ 206.184 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Seller Is Not "Seller" Under Act [Civ. Code § 2981(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.185 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Vehicle Is Not "Motor Vehicle" Under Act

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exclusion Is Based on Purpose of Purchase

§ 206.186 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Lease Is Not Conditional Sale Contract [Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Rees-Levering Act Applies Only to Leases That Are "Conditional Sale Contracts"

[b] Lease Agreement Is Not "Conditional Sale Contract"

[c] Maximum Liability Established by Reference to Value at End of Lease

§ 206.187 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Independent Lender Financed Sale Is Exempt From Act [Civ. Code § 2982.5

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Private Financing Excluded From Act

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Private Financing Excluded From Act

§§ 206.188-206.199 [Reserved]

§ 206.200 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Contract Is Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Violated Formality Provisions [Civ. Code § 2981.9]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] No "Cooling Off" Period

[c] Attorney's Fees

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract Is Unenforceable

§ 206.201 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Contract Is Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Violated Disclosure Provisions [Civ. Code § 2982(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Purpose of Disclosure Requirements

[b] Contract Violates Disclosure Requirements

§ 206.202 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Contract Is Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Violated Finance Charge Provisions [Civ. Code § 2982(j), (k)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 206.203 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Contract Is Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Holder Had Knowledge of Violations [Civ. Code § 2983.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Violation Appears on Face of Contract

§ 206.204 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Purchaser Was Unable to Obtain Third-Party Financing [Civ. Code § 2982.9]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 206.205 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Election to Rescind Was Not Made With Reasonable Diligence

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] No "Cooling Off" Period

§ 206.206 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Is in Substantial Compliance With Statutory Requirements

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Seller Has Substantially Complied With Statute

[b] Rees-Levering Act Is to Be Used as Shield and Not Sword

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Seller Has Substantially Complied With Statute

§ 206.207 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Made Accidental or Bona Fide Error in Computation [Civ. Code § 2983]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Seller Made Accidental or Bona Fide Error in Computation

§ 206.208 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Corrected Violation [Civ. Code § 2984]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Contract May Be Enforced Seller or Holder if Defect Is Corrected

[c] When Correction Allowed

[d] Correction Increasing Amount Owed

[e] Time for Correction

[f] Delivery of Corrected Copy

[g] Improper Collections to Be Credited to Buyer

[h] Effect of Correction

§ 206.209 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Holder Acquired Contract Without Actual Knowledge of Seller's Violation [Civ. Code § 2983.1].

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.210 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Assignee Is Bona Fide Purchaser, Assignee, or Pledgee for Value [Civ. Code § 2983.1].

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.211 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Have Lien Canceled and Foreclosure Proceedings Enjoined--Lien Imposed on Impermissible Property [Civ. Code § 2984.2]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer Is Entitled to Cancellation of Encumbrance on Impermissible Property

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Buyer Is Entitled to Cancellation of Encumbrance on Impermissible Property

§§ 206.212-206.229 [Reserved]

§ 206.230 Supporting Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Buyer Is in Default [Com. Code § 9615(d)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Liability of Buyer for Deficiency Judgment

[c] Buyer's Right to Notice of Intention to Sell

[d] Acceleration of Maturity During Period of Right to Reinstate

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[f] Related Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Deficiency Judgment May Lie

§ 206.231 Supporting Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller Is Not Required to Allege Compliance With Every Provision of Act

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Seller or Holder Not Required to Allege Specific Compliance With All Sections of Act

§ 206.232 Supporting Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies [Com. Code § 2725]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[c] Four-Year Statute of Limitations in Contracts for Sale

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies

§ 206.233 Opposing Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller May Not Accelerate Maturity [Civ. Code § 2983.3(a)].

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.234 Opposing Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller Has Forfeited Right to Deficiency by Unjustifiable Denial of Reinstatement [Civ. Code § 2983.3(e)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notices Violated Notice Provisions

§ 206.235 Opposing Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller's Assignee Is Subject to Equities and Defenses of Buyer [Civ. Code § 2983.5(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.236 Opposing Contention that Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller Has Not Complied With Applicable Notice Provisions [Com. Code § 9611(b), (c)(1), (d)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Comply With Notice Requirements

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Comply With Notice Requirements

§ 206.237 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Conversion--Seller Has Conducted Unauthorized Sale or Has Unjustifiably Refused to Turn Over Vehicle to Buyer

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Forfeiture of Seller's Right to Deficiency Is Not Buyer's Exclusive Remedy

[b] Buyer May Assert Cause of Action for Conversion

[c] Unauthorized Sale and Unjustified Refusal to Turn Over Possession Constitute Conversion

§ 206.238 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Three Times Amount of Finance Charges Paid for Prepayment Penalty Violation [Civ. Code § 2983.1].

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

§ 206.239 Supporting Contention That Party Is Entitled to Attorney's Fees as Prevailing Party [Civ. Code § 2983.4]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Fees Available to Prevailing Party in Action Seeking Restitution After Prior Rescission

[b] Buyer Who Prevails on Cross Complaint Against Seller Is Entitled to Attorney's Fees

[c] Defendant in Deficiency Action Can Be Prevailing Party When Plaintiff Has Voluntarily Dismissed Action Without Prejudice

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.01

§ 206.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains points and authorities relating to the general subject of commercial and consumer sales. It covers sales governed by Division 2 of the California Code [Com. Code § 2101 et seq.], warranties under both Division 2 and California's Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.], consumer installment sales, and motor vehicle sales governed by the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.]. A more detailed description of the points and authorities included in this chapter is set out below.

This chapter contains points and authorities relating to sales governed by Division 2 of the California Commercial Code [Com. Code § 2101 et seq.], including points and authorities:

- Supporting [see §§ 206.30 -206.34] and opposing [see §§ 206.35, 206.36] the contention that an enforceable contract for the sale of goods exists.

- Supporting [see § 206.37] and opposing [see §§ 206.39 -206.41] the contention that the seller is entitled to damages for the buyer's breach of contract.

- Opposing the contention that either the seller or buyer is entitled to damages, based on the expiration of the limitations period [see § 206.38].

- Supporting [see §§ 206.42 -206.45] and opposing [see §§ 206.46, 206.47] the contention that the buyer is entitled to damages for the seller's breach of contract.

This chapter also contains memoranda of points and authorities relating to warranties under Division 2 of the Commercial Code. It contains points and authorities:

- Supporting the contention that a seller is liable for breach of express warranty [see §§ 206.60 -206.62].

- Supporting the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability [ see §§ 206.63 -206.64].

- Supporting the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose [see §§ 206.65 -206.66].

- Supporting the contention that a seller is liable for breach of those three warranties on the ground that a disclaimer is ineffective [see § 206.67].

- Supporting the contention that a seller is liable for breach of warranty of title or warranty against infringement of a buyer's interest [see § 206.68].

- Supporting the contention that a buyer is entitled to damages for the seller's breach of warranty [see § 206.69].

- Opposing the contention that a seller is liable for breach of warranty, on the ground that the action is time barred [see § 206.70].

- Opposing the contention that a buyer is entitled to damages for breach of warranty, on the ground that the agreement contained a limitation on remedies [see § 206.71].

- Opposing the contention that a seller is liable for breach of express warranty, or an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose [see §§ 206.72 -206.74].

- Opposing the contention that a seller is liable for breach of express warranty [see § 206.75].

- Opposing the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose [see §§ 206.76, 206.77].

- Opposing the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability [see § 206.78].

- Opposing the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose [see § 206.79].

In addition, this chapter contains points and authorities relating to California's Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.]. In many cases, the Song-Beverly Act provisions duplicate or parallel the Commercial Code (Division 2) warranty provisions, so counsel may wish to refer to discussion of Commercial Code warranties and incorporate authorities from the provisions referred to above, especially when there is no case interpretation available for a Song-Beverly Act provision but there is for the parallel Commercial Code provision. The chapter contains the following points and authorities specifically relating to the Song-Beverly Act:

- Supporting the contention that a manufacturer, distributor, or retail seller made a warranty within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Act [see §§ 206.100, 206.101 (express warranty), §§ 206.106-206.109 (implied warranty)].

- Supporting the contention that the manufacturer or seller violated the Act and breached its obligation by failing to maintain a repair facility in California [see § 206.102] or failing to repair the goods to conform to the warranty [see §§ 206.103, 206.104].

- Supporting the contention that a seller is liable for breach of warranty on the ground that a disclaimer is ineffective [see § 206.105].

- Supporting a buyer's entitlement to various elements of damages [see §§ 206.110 -206.115].

- Supporting the contention that the Song-Beverly Act was not intended to bar tort remedies for personal injury based on traditional product liability concepts [see § 206.117].

- Opposing the manufacturer's, distributor's, or retail seller's liability are based on the grounds that no warranty was made because the statements relied on were mere opinion [see § 206.119], no warranty is created in an "as is" sale [see § 206.120], and no implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose is created without the buyer's reliance [see § 206.121].

- Opposing the contention that a seller is liable for failure to maintain a repair facility in California on the ground that no sale was made "in this state" [see § 206.122].

- Opposing the contention that a seller is liable for failure to maintain a repair facility in California when it has designated a facility [see § 206.123].

- Opposing liability on the ground that the buyer failed either to notify the seller or manufacturer of the defect or nonconformity [see § 206.124], or, in the case of a new motor vehicle, failed to participate in the manufacturer's qualified third-party dispute resolution process [see § 206.126].

- Opposing the buyer's recovery of various specific elements of damages or penalties [see §§ 206.129 -206.134].

In addition, this chapter contains points and authorities relating to the requirements for consumer installment sales, including points and authorities:

- Supporting [see §§ 206.150, 206.151] and opposing [see §§ 206.152 -206.156] contentions that the Unruh Act applies to sales or loan transactions.

- Supporting [see §§ 206.157, 206.158] and opposing [see § 206.159] contentions that a buyer may recover finance charges.

- Supporting [see § 206.160] and opposing [see §§ 206.161 -206.164] contentions that a seller is due the balance on a retail installment contract or account.

This chapter concludes with points and authorities relating to actions involving motor vehicle sales finance contracts subject to California's Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], including points and authorities:

- Supporting [see §§ 206.180 -206.182] and opposing [see §§ 206.183 -206.187] the contention that the Rees-Levering Act applies to the transaction.

- Supporting [see §§ 206.200 -206.204] and opposing [see §§ 206.205 -206.210] the contention that a conditional sale contract should be rescinded.

- Supporting the contention that a buyer is entitled to have an encumbrance canceled and foreclosure proceedings enjoined because the encumbrance was imposed on impermissible property [see § 206.211].

- Supporting [see §§ 206.230 -206.232] and opposing [see §§ 206.233 -206.236] the contention that a seller is entitled to recover a deficiency on the total amount due on the contract after repossession and sale.

- Supporting the contention that a seller is liable for conversion for refusing to restore a motor vehicle when a buyer has a right to reinstate the contract [see § 206.237].

- Supporting the contention that a buyer is entitled to three times the amount of finance charges paid for a prepayment penalty violation [see § 206.238], and supporting the contention that a party is entitled to attorney's fees [see § 206.239].

This chapter does not discuss federal credit disclosure requirements prescribed by the Truth in Lending Act [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.]. That Act, which includes provisions for civil liability when a seller fails to make required disclosures, is discussed in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender), and California Legal Forms, Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales (Matthew Bender).

This chapter contains points and authorities supporting [see §§ 206.230 -206.232] and opposing [see §§ 206.233 -206.236] the contention that a seller is entitled to recover a deficiency on the total amount due on the contract after repossession and sale. It also includes points and authorities supporting the contention that a seller is liable for conversion for refusing to restore a motor vehicle when a buyer has a right to reinstate the contract [see § 206.237], supporting the contention that a buyer is entitled to three times the amount of finance charges paid for a prepayment penalty violation [see § 206.238], and supporting the contention that a party is entitled to attorney's fees [see § 206.239].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Breach, Repudiation & ExcuseGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Subject MatterGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)WarrantiesGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.02

§ 206.02 Governing Statutes

Commercial sales are governed generally by Division 2 of the California Commercial Code [Com. Code § 2102 et seq.], which is California's version of the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC). Formation of a contract for the sale of goods is governed by Com. Code § 2201 et seq. Obligations under a contract for the sale of goods, and construction of the contract are governed by Com. Code § 2301 et seq. The passing of title to goods and the rights of creditors and good faith purchasers are governed by Com. Code § 2401 et seq. Performance by the parties is governed by Com. Code § 2501 et seq. Breach of the contract is governed by Com. Code § 2601 et seq. Remedies regarding breach of the contract are governed by Com. Code § 2701 et seq.

Warranties under the Commercial Code are governed generally by Com. Code §§ 2312-2316. Warranty of title and warranty against infringement of a buyer's interest are governed by Com. Code § 2312. Express warranty is governed by Com. Code § 2313. The implied warranty of merchantability is governed by Com. Code § 2314. The implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose is governed by Com. Code § 2315. Exclusion or modification of warranties is governed by Com. Code § 2316. The limitations period for warranty actions is governed by Com. Code § 2725(1). The measure of damages for breach of warranty is governed by Com. Code § 2714(2).

Warranties of consumer goods sold in California are governed by the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, set forth in Civ. Code § 1790 et seq. The parts of the Consumer Warranty Act dealing with express warranties of new motor vehicles is commonly referred to as "the Lemon Law," and that term is used occasionally in this subpart.

The Unruh Act, set forth in Civ. Code § 1801 et seq., governs retail installment sales, or sales made for a deferred payment price payable in installments, entered into by retail sellers and retail buyers for consumer goods in California [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.1 ("goods" defined), 1802.5-1802.7]. Installment sales covered by the Act include both retail installment contracts and retail installment accounts, which commonly take the form of retailer-issued credit card accounts [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.6, 1802.7; see also §§ 206.07[1], 206.08[1]]. The Act sets limits on allowable finance charges; requires sellers to disclose certain terms of the contract to the buyer and to any cosignors; and creates a cause of action for damages or an injunction against a seller who violates the finance charge or disclosure provisions, entitling the prevailing party to attorney's fees.

Sales of motor vehicles under conditional sale contracts, defined in Civ. Code § 2981(a), are governed under California law by the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code §§ 2981-2984.4). Sales of motor vehicles required to be registered under the Vehicle Code are specifically excluded from coverage by the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.), which governs all retail installment sales generally [see Civ. Code § 1802.1 (definition of "goods")]. Damages for conversion are governed by Civ. Code § 3336.

Sales of motor vehicles under conditional sales contracts may also be governed by the federal Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.), and regulations (referred to as Regulation Z) promulgated thereunder (12 C.F.R. § 226.1 et seq.). The federal Act governs a conditional sale contract if it imposes a finance charge or provides for payment in more that four installments [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(e)-(g)].

If the buyer entered military service after the obligation was incurred, the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] will limit the rate of interest and the creditor's rights to enforce the obligation [see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 511(8) (definition of motor vehicle), 522 (stay of proceedings), 526 (tolling of limitations), 527 (maximum rate of interest), 532 (restriction on repossession)].

Parts of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.) deal with express warranties of new motor vehicles, and are set forth in Subpart II (B).

Open-end leases are governed by the Vehicle Leasing Act (Civ. Code § 2985.7 et seq.), but are beyond the scope of this chapter. For discussion and forms relating to the Vehicle Leasing Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 90, Automobiles: Vehicle Leasing Act .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)General OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Breach, Repudiation & ExcuseGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Subject MatterGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.03

§ 206.03 Warranties Under Division 10 Governing Personal Property Leases

Warranties between the supplier or lessor and lessee of a personal property lease first made or effective between the parties on or after January 1, 1990, are governed by Division 10 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 10600; see also Com. Code §§ 10103, 10107, 10208-10215, 10516]. Division 10 is not discussed in this chapter, although a new subpart may be added when Division 10 generates sufficient case law. Although the provisions of Division 10 are fairly similar to those of Division 2, counsel should be aware of the distinction if he or she is working with a situation involving a finance lease or personal property lease. Cases involving personal property lease transactions that occurred before January 1, 1990, are discussed in this part when otherwise applicable [see, e.g., § 206.63]. For further discussion and forms relating to warranties under personal property leases and Division 10 of the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)WarrantiesGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Leases (Article 2A)Formation & ConstructionWarranties

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.04

§ 206.04 Warranties Under Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

Although not required to be written, an express warranty for purposes of Division 2 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 2313] has some of the same elements as an express warranty under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (also known as the "Song-Beverly Act"). For instance the exclusion of "puffery" or opinion as a basis for an express warranty is common to both the Commercial Code express warranty and an express warranty under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. Many plaintiffs allege causes of action under both provisions arising from the same nucleus of facts. Counsel should consider alleging or arguing that express warranties were created under both provisions. Even cases that only address the creation of an express warranty under Com. Code § 2313 may be used to argue a particular aspect of the definition in the context of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. For points and authorities relating to the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, see § 206.100 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)WarrantiesGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)WarrantiesExclusion & ModificationCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)WarrantiesExpress Warranties

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.05

§ 206.05 Warranties Under Magnuson-Moss Act

The federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty--Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act (15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.) provides further protection to consumers, primarily through disclosure requirements. This federal Act is beyond the scope of this chapter. For discussion and forms relating to the Magnuson-Moss Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Antitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionDeceptive Acts & PracticesGeneral OverviewAntitrust & Trade LawConsumer ProtectionMagnuson-Moss Warranty ActGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.06

§ 206.06 Goods and Services Defined

"Goods" for purposes of the Unruh Act include tangible chattels bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. Certificates or coupons exchangeable for these consumer goods are also included. The Act also covers goods that will be affixed to and become part of real property at or after the time of the sale, whether or not the goods are severable from the real property. The Unruh Act does not cover automobiles or any other vehicle required to be registered under the Vehicle Code, or any goods sold or leased with a vehicle under a contract governed by the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) [Civ. Code § 1802.1; for discussion of the Rees-Levering Act, see § 206.150 et seq.]. A trailer sold with a vessel is covered by the Unruh Act if it is designed solely to carry the vessel, unless the cash price of the vessel exceeds $25,000 [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.1, 1801.4(d) (exemption of vessel); see also Veh. Code § 9840(a) ("vessel" defined)].

"Services" covered by the Unruh Act are work, labor, and services that are not for commercial or business use. These include services furnished in connection with the improvement of real property or the providing of insurance. Services furnished in connection with the repair of motor vehicles are also included, although service contracts that are sold in conjunction with the sale or lease of a vehicle required to be registered under the Vehicle Code are not covered by the Act [Civ. Code § 1802.2; see Civ. Code § 2981(o) ("service contract" defined)]. The Act does not apply to the services of physicians or dentists, nor services for which the tariffs, rates, charges, costs or expenses, including in each instance the deferred payment price, are required by law to be filed with and approved by the federal government or any official, department, division, commission or agency of the United States [Civ. Code § 1802.2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Subject MatterGoodsDefinitionCommercial Law (UCC)Secured Transactions (Article 9)Application & ConstructionDefinitionsCollateralGoodsConsumer Goods

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.07

§ 206.07 Retail Installment Contract

[1] Definition

A "retail installment contract" is a contract for consumer goods or services [see § 206.06] which is entered into in California by a retail seller and a retail buyer and which (1) provides for repayment in more than four installments; or (2) provides for repayment in any number of installments and imposes a finance charge on the buyer; or (3) provides for repayment in any number of installments and charges more for the goods or services than they would have cost if the buyer had paid by cash or credit card, or gives the buyer fewer or lower quality goods or services than he or she would have received in a cash sale [see Civ. Code § 1802.6]. The contract may or may not contain a title retention provision. Retail installment contracts also include security agreements taken in connection with deferred-payment consumer sales, and leasing contracts giving the lessee the option to purchase the leased goods, for no or nominal consideration, after completing "lease" payments that are substantially equivalent to or in excess of value of the goods [see Civ. Code § 1802.6].

Typically a retail installment contract is a "closed-end" contract [see Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 875, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893] . The contract may provide for add-on sales, however, permitting the buyer to make subsequent purchases under the contract, subject to the same finance charges and other terms as the original purchase [see Civ. Code § 1808.1].

[2] Disclosure Requirements

A retail installment contract must be written, dated, and contained in a single document, with printed portions appearing in a specified type size [Civ. Code §§ 1803.1, 1803.2]. The buyer must be given a legible copy of the contract at the time he or she signs it [Civ. Code § 1803.7]. The contract must contain the entire agreement concerning cost and terms of payment, including any promissory notes and any other evidences of indebtedness between the parties relating to the transaction [Civ. Code § 1803.2]. The contract also must contain all of the following:

- A heading in specified type size identifying the nature of the contract and, if the contract is secured by real property, a conspicuous warning concerning the consequences of a default [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)].

- A warning that the buyer should not sign the contract until all blank spaces are filled in [Civ. Code § 1803.2(c)-(e)].

- Identification of the buyer and seller, their addresses, and a description of the goods or services sold [Civ. Code § 1803.3(a)].

- Disclosures required to be made by Regulation Z of the federal Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C § 1601 et seq.) [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b); for discussion of Regulation Z, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender)].

- Itemization of the cash price (plus tax and any insurance or official fees) and any down payment, including any trade-in, rebate, or down payment deferred without finance charge; and, when applicable, a description of property traded in and terms of insurance [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)-(e), (g); see also Civ. Code § 1803.5 (procuring of insurance)].

- Disclosures concerning the buyer's right to prepay in full and, in case of prepayment, the seller's method of calculating a refund of unearned finance charges [Civ. Code §§ 1803.2(c)-(e), 1803.3(f)].

- Notice of the buyer's absolute right to a new payment schedule on default of any balloon payment [Civ. Code § 1807.3(a)].

- The buyer's acknowledgment, if any, of receipt of a copy of the contract, appearing in a specified type size directly above the buyer's signature [Civ. Code § 1803.7].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Secured Transactions (Article 9)Security AgreementsEffectivenessContracts LawSecured TransactionsInstallment ContractsGeneral OverviewContracts LawSecured TransactionsInstallment ContractsLegal TitleContracts LawTypes of ContractsInstallment Contracts

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.08

§ 206.08 Retail Installment Account

[1] Definition

A "retail installment account" is a revolving account established by an agreement, entered into in California by a retail seller and a retail buyer, that requires the buyer to pay in installments the outstanding balance incurred in buying consumer goods or services [see § 206.06] from the seller. The account carries a finance charge expressed as a percentage of the periodic balances to accrue in the future, providing the charge is not capitalized or stated as a dollar amount in the agreement. The seller may or may not retain a security interest in the goods sold [see Civ. Code § 1802.7]. More commonly known as a "revolving charge account," this type of retail installment account is exemplified by a charge account tied to a credit card issued by a retailer, such as a department store or an oil company [see Fox v. Federated Department Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 871, 875, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893] .

Credit cards that are not issued by a retail seller, but instead are issued by banks or other institutions to finance purchases from many different merchants accepting the card, are not covered by the Unruh Act. For discussion of finance charge limitations applicable to these accounts, see Ch. 568, Usury , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[2] Acceptance by Buyer

A retail installment account agreement is considered to be accepted by the buyer if (1) the buyer signs the agreement, including signing the application containing the agreement's terms, or (2) the buyer, or a person authorized by the buyer, uses the account, and the buyer has been notified in writing that the use of the credit card will mean that the agreement has been accepted by the buyer [Civ. Code § 1810]. The agreement will not become effective, however, unless and until the buyer has been given the disclosures required by Civ. Code § 1810.1 [see § 206.08] and has accepted the agreement as required [Civ. Code § 1810].

[3] Required Disclosures

All sellers under retail installment accounts must provide the buyer with the following:

- Full disclosures, in a single written statement given to the buyer before the first transaction the account is made, concerning finance charges, payment requirements, and the conditions under which the seller may retain or acquire a security interest [Civ. Code § 1810.1].

- Periodic statements, mailed or delivered at least 14 days before the end of the period within which payment must be made, providing detailed information about account transactions during the period, finance charges, and the amount due [Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)-(c)].

- Notice of any change to be made in the terms of the account [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)].

- Notice of the buyer's right to a refund when a credit balance exists in the account [Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)-(f)].

- Notice concerning any agreement on the cost of insurance and who is to procure it [Civ. Code § 1810.5].

- Any application form or preapproved solicitation for a credit card issued in connection with an account must, with specified exceptions, contain either (1) disclosure of the periodic rate, any annual fee, and any "free-ride" period, or (2) a disclosure that satisfies the initial disclosure statement requirements of Regulation Z [Civ. Code § 1810.21(a)]. Similar disclosure requirements for open-end credit cards and charge cards are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1748.11(a) and 1748.22.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsPerformanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawTypes of ContractsInstallment Contracts

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.09

§ 206.09 Prohibited Acts and Terms

The Unruh Act restricts the types of provisions that may be included in any retail installment contract. If a prohibited clause appears in a contract covered by the Act, the provision is void but the validity of the contract is not otherwise affected [Civ. Code § 1804.4]. The forbidden provisions include any waiver of the Act's provisions [Civ. Code § 1801.1]; waiver of claims and defenses that can be asserted against the seller or assignees [Civ. Code § 1804.1(a), (g)]; or waiver of protection from certain illegal acts committed in collection or repossession [see Civ. Code § 1804.1(e)]. Finance charges are limited [see Civ. Code § 1805.1 et seq.], as well as delinquency charges made in either retail installment contracts or retail installment accounts [see Civ. Code §§ 1803.6, 1810.12]. The finance and delinquency charge limitations are discussed in detail in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender). Provisions creating a security interest in goods fully paid for or not sold by the seller [Civ. Code § 1804.3(a)], in real property unrelated to the goods sold [Civ. Code § 1804.3(b)], or in household goods unrelated to the contract [Civ. Code § 1799.100] are also prohibited. Other prohibited clauses include a power of attorney appointing the seller or holder of the contract as the buyer's agent for collection or repossession [Civ. Code § 1804.1(f)], a provision requiring the buyer to pay any charge by reason of the exercise of his or her right to rescind or void the contract [Civ. Code § 1804.1(h)], a provision in a contract for a home improvement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7151.2 (definition)] under which the seller takes a security interest, other than a mechanics' lien, in the buyer's real property which is the buyer's primary residence, if the buyer is a person who is 65 years of age or older [Civ. Code § 1804.1(j)], a confession of judgment [Civ. Code § 1804.1(c)], or waiver of the venue requirements for actions brought under the Act [see Civ. Code §§ 1804.1(i), 1812.10].

In addition to proscribing certain contract provisions, the Act prohibits a seller from doing any of the following:

- Obtaining the buyer's signature to a contract that contains blank spaces to be filled in after it has been signed [Civ. Code § 1803.4].

- Failing to deliver a legible copy of the contract and any other required documents to the buyer at the time of execution [Civ. Code § 1803.7].

- Inducing an agreement by offering consideration contingent on the happening of a future event [Civ.

Code § 1803.10].

- Imposing a delinquency charge for any default of payment on any purchase made before written disclosure concerning the delinquency charge has been given to the buyer [Civ. Code §§ 1810.3(d), 1810.12].

- Assessing any finance charge for goods purchased until the goods are in the buyer's possession, except as provided in Civ. Code §§ 1805.6(b)-(c), 1810.10(b)-(c) [Civ. Code §§ 1805.6(a), 1810.10(a); for further discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender)].

- Requiring the buyer to obtain financing from a particular source [Civ. Code § 1812.20].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsGeneral OverviewContracts LawSales of GoodsPerformanceGeneral OverviewContracts LawTypes of ContractsInstallment Contracts

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.10

§ 206.10 Remedies for Violations

Any person who fails to comply with the provisions of the Unruh Act, or any person who acquires a contract or installment account with knowledge of the noncompliance, is barred from recovery of any finance charge or of any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral or refinance charge imposed in connection with the contract or installment account. The buyer has the right to recover from such a person an amount equal to any charges paid by the buyer [Civ. Code § 1812.7]. A buyer who prevails in an action on a contract or account subject to the Act is entitled to attorney's fees and costs, whether the buyer brings the action or defends against an action by the seller or a holder of the contract or account [see Civ. Code § 1811.1].

Treble damages can be assessed if the violations are willful. In any case in which a person willfully violates any provision of this chapter in connection with the imposition, computation, or disclosures of or relating to a finance charge on a consolidated total of two or more contracts under the provisions of Article 8 (Civ. Code § 1808.1 et seq.) of this chapter, the buyer may recover from that person three times the total of the finance charges and any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral or refinance charges imposed, contracted for, or received on all contracts included in the consolidated total, and the seller shall be barred from the recovery of any such charges against a violator [Civ. Code § 1812.9]. Willful violations may also result in the imposition of criminal penalties [see Civ. Code § 1812.6].

For forms for use in bringing an action to recover damages and statutory penalties for violations of the Unruh Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawSecured TransactionsInstallment ContractsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.11

§ 206.11 Nature and Purpose of Rees-Levering Act

The Rees-Levering Act is a comprehensive statute enacted for the protection of motor vehicle purchasers. The Act contains disclosure requirements that are designed to protect the buyer from excessive charges by requiring full disclosure of all items of cost [Story v. Gateway Chevrolet Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 705, 709, 47 Cal. Rptr. 267 ; see Civ. Code § 2982(a)].

The Act also contains substantive provisions that are designed to accomplish the following:

- Establish maximum permissible finance and other charges [see Civ. Code §§ 2982(j), (k), 2982.3, 2982.8].

- Restrict the types of provisions that may be contained in any security interests that may be created by conditional sale contracts [see Civ. Code §§ 2982.1, 2983.7, 2984.2].

- Give the buyer a right to prepay such contracts without penalty [see Civ. Code § 2982(l)].

- Regulate the repossession and resale of vehicles by the seller or holder [see Civ. Code §§ 2982.7, 2982.9, 2983, 2983.1].

The Act also provides the buyer certain remedies [see Civ. Code §§ 2982.7, 2982.9, 2983, 2983.1], and establishes criminal penalties for persons who willfully violate the Act [see Civ. Code § 2983.6].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Commercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)RemediesBuyer's RemediesGeneral OverviewCommercial Law (UCC)Sales (Article 2)Subject MatterGoodsGeneral OverviewContracts LawSecured TransactionsInstallment ContractsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.12

§ 206.12 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda may not exceed 15 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

Counsel should combine the contentions in this chapter with points and authorities supporting or opposing the particular procedure by which the points of law are raised. For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a memorandum of points and authorities or a trial or appellate brief, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting Memoranda

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.13

§ 206.13 Related Pleadings and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to contracts generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to consumer contracts, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to specific performance generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 528, Specific Performance (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to warranties, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to the Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.), see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

For discussion and forms relating to warranties between the supplier or lessor and lessee in personal property leases first made or effective between the parties on or after January 1, 1990, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases .

For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability .

For discussion and forms relating to retail installment sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to actions under the Rees-Levering Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act .

For discussion and forms relating to accounting actions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms relating to the basic elements of contract law, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

The procedural and general aspects of, and forms relating to, rescission of a contract and restitution, are covered in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.14

§ 206.14 Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities that may be useful in actions based on a commercial sales contract, see Ch. 50, Contracts , and Ch. 214, Specific Performance .

For additional related memoranda of points and authorities that may be useful in actions based on warranty, see the following chapters:

Ch. 41, Class and Representative Actions.

Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions.

Ch. 190, Products Liability.

For additional related memoranda of points and authorities that may be useful in actions based on a motor vehicle conditional sale contract, see Ch. 12, Accounting , Ch. 50, Contracts , and Ch. 116, Injunctions .

30 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-206 California Points & Authorities §§ 206.15-206.29

[Reserved]

§§ 206.15[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.30

§ 206.30 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Contract Made in Manner Sufficient to Show Agreement [Com. Code § 2204]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

AN ENFORCEABLE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT HAS BEEN MADE IN A MANNER SUFFICIENT TO SHOW AGREEMENT, BECAUSE _____ [specify, e.g., THE CONDUCT OF BOTH PARTIES SUPPORTS A FINDING THAT THE PARTIES RECOGNIZE THE EXISTENCE OF THE CONTRACT].

A. Contract Made in Manner Sufficient to Show Agreement. A contract for sale of goods may be made in any manner sufficient to show agreement, including conduct by both parties that recognizes the existence of the contract (Com. Code § 2204(1)).

[Optional] B. Contract Formed Despite Indefinite Terms. An agreement sufficient to constitute a contract for sale may be found even though the moment of its making is undetermined; and even though one or more terms are left open, a contract for sale does not fail for indefiniteness if the parties have intended to make a contract and there is a reasonably certain basis for giving an appropriate remedy (Com. Code § 2204(2), (3)).

[Optional] C. Acceptance Stating Additional Terms. A definite and seasonable expression of acceptance or a written confirmation that is sent within a reasonable time operates as an acceptance even though it states terms additional to or different from those offered or agreed on, unless acceptance is expressly made conditional on assent to the additional or different terms (Com. Code § 2207(1); Steiner v. Mobil Oil Corp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 90, 93-94, 101, 141 Cal. Rptr. 157, 569 P.2d 751).

[Optional] D. Contract Evidenced by Conduct. Conduct by both parties that recognizes the existence of a contract is sufficient to establish a contract for sale although the writings of the parties do not otherwise establish a contract. The terms of the contract consist of those terms on which the writings of the parties agree, together with any supplementary terms incorporated under any other provisions of the Commercial Code (Com. Code § 2207(3); Steiny and Company, Inc. v. California Electric Supply Co., Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 285, 294-296, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 920 ; Transwestern Pipeline Co. v. Monsanto (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 502, 514-515, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887 ; National Controls, Inc. v. Commodore Bus. Machines, Inc. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 693, 209 Cal. Rptr. 636 ; Textile Unlimited, Inc. v. A. BMH and Co. Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 240 F.3d 781, 787-788) .

[Optional] E. Court Authorized to Determine Effective Terms. If the parties intend to contract, but the terms of their offer and acceptance differ, the court is authorized to determine which terms are part of the contract, either by reference to the parties' own dealings, or by reference to other provisions of the Commercial Code (Steiner v. Mobil Oil Corp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 90, 99-100).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that an enforceable contract for the sale of goods between plaintiff and defendant was made in a manner sufficient to show agreement [see Com. Code § 2204(1)]. Optional Paragraph B is for use if terms of the contract are left open, although the parties intended to contract and there is a reasonably certain basis for a remedy. Optional Paragraph C is for use if the offeree gave a definite expression of acceptance that included additional terms, but did not condition its acceptance on the offeror's agreement to the new terms. Optional Paragraph D is for use if the existence of the contract is evidenced by the parties' conduct. Optional Paragraph E is for use if there is a conflict between the terms of the offer and the acceptance that does not negate the existence of a contract, but requires court determination of the exact terms of the contract.

This form may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the existence of a contract for the sale of goods. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case; for example, argument that a contract was made in a manner sufficient to show agreement between the parties, for example, based on the conduct of the parties.

[b] Open Terms

Under Com. Code § 2204(3), if the parties intend to enter into a binding agreement, the agreement is valid despite missing terms if there is any reasonably certain basis for granting a remedy. The test is not certainty as to what the parties were to do or as to the exact amount of damages due the plaintiff, nor is the fact that one or more terms are left open enough by itself to defeat an otherwise adequate agreement. Rather, commercial standards on "indefiniteness" are intended to be applied [see, e.g., Com. Code §§ 2305 (open price term), 2311 (parties may supply missing terms in course of performance)]. However, the more terms the parties leave open, the less likely it is that they intend to conclude a binding agreement, although their actions may be conclusive on the matter despite the omissions [see U.C.C. Comment to Com. Code § 2204].

[c] Statute of Frauds

Com. Code § 2204 embodies the basic policy of recognizing any manner of expression of agreement, whether oral, written, or otherwise. However, the legal effect of such an agreement is, of course, qualified by other provisions of the Commercial Code [see U.C.C. Comment to Com. Code § 2204]. For example, a contract for the sale of goods for $500 or more is subject to the statute of frauds [see Com. Code § 2201; see also §§ 206.31 -206.35].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender).

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.35 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Acceptance Stating Additional Terms

In Steiner v. Mobil Oil Corp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 90, 141 Cal. Rptr. 157, 569 P.2d 751 , a service station owner brought an action seeking declaratory and monetary relief against an oil company with which it had entered a 10-year written contract, to enforce a subsequent agreement regarding a competitive discount. Under the written contract, defendant provided the down payment for plaintiff's purchase of a service station in exchange for a 10-year contract under which the cash advance was treated as a prepaid competitive allowance, to be amortized over the 10-year period through plaintiff's purchase of 5.8 million gallons of gasoline. Subsequently, plaintiff and defendant's representative negotiated a proposal to allow plaintiff an additional competitive allowance of 1.4 cents per gallon. The additional agreement was contained in a standard form provided by defendant, which stated that defendant could change its terms at any time. Plaintiff sought a promise that defendant would not revoke the 1.4-cent reduction, in response to which the representative with whom plaintiff negotiated sent him a letter declaring that the plaintiff relied on the prepaid competitive allowance plus the 1.4-cent allowance, and that defendant's rejection of those terms would void the contract. The letter remained in the district office through bureaucratic oversight, and consequently was not incorporated into the final agreement package. Approximately one year later, defendant informed plaintiff of a reduction of the discount. The instant action ensued, and the trial court found for plaintiff. Defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court initially noted that Com. Code § 2207 indisputably applies to the instant case (20 Cal. 3d 90, 98) . In place of the "mirror image" rule, under which the terms of both offer and acceptance must be identical, Com. Code § 2207 inquires as to whether the parties intended to complete an agreement. If the parties intend to contract, but the terms of their offer and acceptance differ, Com. Code § 2207 authorizes a court to determine which terms are part of the contract, either by reference to the parties' own dealings, or by reference to other provisions of the Commercial Code (20 Cal. 3d 90, 99-100) . Plaintiff offered to enter into a 10-year contract with defendant only if defendant, among other things, agreed to advance plaintiff $30,000, and to give him a 1.4 cents-per-gallon competitive discount on the price of defendant's gasoline for the duration of the contract. When plaintiff telephoned defendant's employee to inquire about the status of his offer, he was told that defendant had a check for him, that he should open an escrow account, and that he should proceed with the purchase of the service station property. The Court stated that in context, defendant clearly had approved the deal (20 Cal. 3d 90, 100-101) . Moreover, the trial court also found that defendant did not in any way make its acceptance expressly conditional on plaintiff's assent to the additional or different terms (20 Cal. 3d 90, 101) . The Court held that despite the fact that the terms of defendant's acceptance departed partially from the terms of plaintiff's offer, the parties did form a contract. Under Com. Code § 2207(2), additional terms are to be construed as proposals for additions to the contract. Between merchants, the terms become part of the contract unless: (a) the offer expressly limits acceptance to the terms of the offer; (b) they materially alter it; and (c) notification of objection to them has already been given or is given within a reasonable time after notice is received. Applying Com. Code § 2207(2)(a) and (b), the Court concluded that defendant's declaration that the 1.4-cents discount was terminable at defendant's discretion did not become part of the contract. Instead, the parties formed a contract incorporating the terms of plaintiff's offer. Under that contract, plaintiff was guaranteed the discount throughout the 10-year period of the dealer contract (20 Cal. 3d 90, 100-102) .

The Court rejected defendant's contention that Com. Code § 2207 does not apply if the general contract formation rules of Com. Code § 2204 are not met. The rules of contract formation under the Commercial Code do not include the principle that the parties must agree to all essential terms in order to form a contract (20 Cal. 3d 90, 103-105) . Courts have held that, under Com. Code § 2204(3), parties may form a contract even though they do not agree as to the terms of payment, the time or place for performance, the quantity of the goods sold, or the price, which are all terms that might appear to be "essential" to an agreement (20 Cal. 3d 90, 105) . The Court also rejected defendant's contention that Com. Code § 2207(1) provides that if acceptance is expressly made conditional on assent to additional terms, the acceptance does not operate as an acceptance but as a counteroffer. Although there is some decisional authority for this construction, it conflicts with the language of Com. Code § 2207(1) and duplicates the function of the material-variation clause of Com. Code § 2207(2)(b) (20 Cal. 3d 90, 107) . The Court concluded that the guaranteed discount included in the terms of plaintiff's offer, and not defendant's standard revocable discount provision, became part of the agreement. Defendant cannot assert as a defense the failure of its own bureaucracy to respond to plaintiff's efforts to modify the standard dealer contract furnished by defendant (20 Cal. 3d 90, 108) .

[b] Contract Evidenced by Conduct

In Steiny and Company, Inc. v. California Electric Supply Co., Inc. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 285, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 920 , a general contractor that was sued by an aircraft company after the explosion of an electric switchboard settled the action and sued the subcontractor that installed the switchboard for indemnity. The subcontractor brought an action against the general contractor for work payments withheld, and against the seller of the switchboard for breach of the express warranties of merchantability and fitness for intended use. Trial went forward on the subcontractor's claim against the supplier of the defective equipment. The evidence concerning the contract included the subcontractor's purchase order and the seller's invoice, which contained conflicting provisions concerning warranties. Neither party signed the other party's document and the evidence was in conflict regarding which party's document was first tendered to the other (79 Cal. App. 4th 285, 290-291) .

The subcontractor requested the trial court to instruct the jury on the rules in Com. Code § 2207 and on the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness. The trial court declined these requests. The court instructed that the jury must find "mutual consent in order to conclude that there was a contract"; that "consent is not mutual unless the parties all agreed upon the same thing and the same sense"; and that conduct alone is not effective as an expression of consent. The jury returned a general verdict in favor of the seller (79 Cal. App. 4th 285, 290-291) . On appeal, the subcontractor contended the trial court erred in refusing the requested instructions. The court of appeal held that Com. Code § 2207 squarely applied in this case. The purchase order and invoice contained materially differing terms: the former imposed broad warranty coverage, the latter disclaimed all warranties. The parties, however, manifested an agreement by their conduct: the seller supplied, and the subcontractor accepted, the switchboard gear. Under Com. Code § 2207(3) there was a contract, which consisted of the terms on which the two writings agreed, supplemented by the provisions of the code. The code imposes warranties of merchantability by operation of law absent contractual modification or disclaimer. It also imposes a warranty of fitness, absent contractual exclusion or modification, if the seller knows the buyer's purpose for the goods and knows that the buyer is relying on the seller's judgment to furnish suitable goods. The evidence in the case warranted giving the requested instructions under Com. Code § 2207, and it was prejudicial error to refuse them (79 Cal. App. 4th 285, 294-295) .

In Transwestern Pipeline Co. v. Monsanto (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 502, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887 , the plaintiff, whose business was the interstate transportation of natural gas, contaminated Southern California Gas Company's pipeline with gas containing PCBs. After settling the gas company's claim, the plaintiff sought equitable indemnity from Monsanto, the PCB manufacturer, on several theories. A jury found Monsanto 37.5 percent responsible for the PCB contamination and awarded the plaintiff damages accordingly. Monsanto filed a timely notice of appeal. In defending against Transwestern's claims, Monsanto relied in part on the limitation-of-liability clauses in its invoices to the plaintiff's parent company, Texas Eastern. These clauses purported to disclaim any liability for consequential damages and limited the buyer's other damages to the purchase price of the particular order. Monsanto contended that the parent assented to these limitations on liability at the outset of the parties' relationship, and that they had become part of the contract through a course of dealing between the parties over a 12-year period. Therefore, Monsanto concluded, because the parent acted as Transwestern's agent, the limitations on liability were imputed to Transwestern. The trial court directed a verdict against Monsanto on this defense. The court concluded that Monsanto had failed to establish that the limitations on liability contained in its invoices had become part of its sales agreements with Texas Eastern through express agreement or a course of dealing. Thus, even if Texas Eastern acted as Transwestern's agent in transactions with Monsanto, as the jury subsequently found, the limitations on liability could not be imputed to Transwestern because they were not binding on its agent.

The appellate court affirmed. Monsanto's acceptance of Texas Eastern's purchase orders was expressly conditioned, substantially in the language of Com. Code § 2207(1), on Texas Eastern's assent to the additional limitation of liability terms contained in Monsanto's invoices. The court found that Texas Eastern did not expressly or implicitly assent to Monsanto's liability limits (46 Cal. App. 4th 502, 515) . No contract, therefore, was formed under Com. Code § 2207(1) and (2), and the case was governed by Com. Code § 2207(3), which recognizes a de facto contract between the parties based on the terms on which the parties did agree plus any supplementary terms incorporated under any other provisions of the Commercial Code. Under that section, furthermore, Texas Eastern's assent to the limitation-of-liability clauses could not be inferred from the parties' course of dealing. The court concluded that the conflicting terms and conditions on liability contained in the forms exchanged by the parties failed to establish a course of dealing and Monsanto's liability limits did not become a part of the parties' contracts (46 Cal. App. 4th 502, 519) .

In National Controls, Inc. v. Commodore Bus. Machines, Inc. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 209 Cal. Rptr. 636 , plaintiff electronics manufacturer brought a breach of contract action against defendant customer, based on defendant's failure to accept the bulk of the merchandise shipped. The parties negotiated several successive orders by telephone. In all cases but one, defendant gave plaintiff a purchase order number by telephone, and plaintiff sent defendant a copy of the sales order. In the last order, for 900 units of merchandise, defendant mailed to plaintiff its own purchase order, which contained a provision on the reverse side disclaiming liability for any incidental or consequential damages. Defendant accepted only 50 of the units, and the remaining 850 units were ultimately sold to another customer of plaintiff. Among other findings, the trial court found that the provision on limitation of damages in defendant's purchase order was a proposal for an additional term that did not become part of the contract because it constituted a material alteration of the agreement. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 699) . Although the parties agreed that the sales provisions of the Commercial Code applied, they disagreed about the application of Com. Code § 2207. Under Com. Code § 2207, parties may conclude a contract even though, after reaching accord, the forms that they exchange to memorialize their agreement differ because each has drafted its form to its own advantage (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 693) . The parties' conduct, including their negotiating procedure, may indicate a consummated process of offer and acceptance, and thus an intent to contract (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 693-694) . In this case, the parties agreed on the terms of a firm order for 900 units over the telephone, prior to defendant's mailing of the purchase order containing the damages provision (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 694) . Therefore, the damages provision did not become part of the agreement, inasmuch as it constituted a material alteration of the agreement within the meaning of Com. Code § 2207(2)(b) (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 695-696) . For discussion of the issue of damages in this case, see § 206.37[3][b].

In Textile Unlimited, Inc. v. A. BMH and Co. Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 240 F.3d 781 , a California corporation which bought goods from a Georgia corporation sued to enjoin arbitration being conducted in Georgia. The arbitration clause was not part of the purchase order, but rather was set forth in the back of the Georgia corporation's invoice. The case arose after plaintiff received a shipment which it claimed was defective and refused to pay. Defendant submitted the matter to arbitration in Georgia. Plaintiff eventually protested on the basis that the arbitration clause was not part of the contract. It moved for a stay of the arbitration pending in Georgia, and the district court preliminarily enjoined the pending arbitration. Defendant appealed the order.

The Ninth Circuit held that the district court did not abuse its discretion in granting the preliminary injunction. Plaintiff had showed that serious questions were raised and that it had a probability of success on the merits. The court first determined that no contract including the arbitration clause was formed pursuant to Com. Code § 2207(1). No specific and unequivocal assent to the supplemental terms was given (240 F.3d 781, 787-788) . The court next found that the parties did not dispute that through their actions, they formed a contract under Com. Code § 2207(3). The terms of an agreement pursuant to Com. Code § 2207(3) are those terms upon which the parties expressly agreed, coupled with the standard "gap-filler" provisions of Article Two. The UCC does not contain a "gap-filler" provision providing for arbitration. Under Com. Code § 2207(3), the disputed additional items on which the parties do not agree simply drop out and are trimmed from the contract. Thus, the supplemental terms proposed by defendant, including the disputed arbitration clause, did not become part of contract (240 F.3d 781, 788) .

[c] Court Authorized to Determine Effective Terms

Steiner v. Mobil Oil Corp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 90, 141 Cal. Rptr. 157, 569 P.2d 751 , is discussed under § 206.30[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.31

§ 206.31 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Does Not Bar Enforcement--Contract Evidenced by Writing [Com. Code § 2201(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

AN ENFORCEABLE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT EXISTS BECAUSE THE AGREEMENT IS EVIDENCED BY A WRITING SIGNED BY THE DEFENDANT THAT INDICATES THAT A CONTRACT WAS MADE, AND SPECIFIES A QUANTITY TERM.

A. Writing Satisfies Statute of Frauds. A contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is enforceable by way of action or defense if there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made between the parties, and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought, or by his or her authorized agent or broker, except as otherwise provided in Commercial Code Section 2201. A writing is not insufficient because it omits or incorrectly states a term agreed on, although the contract is not enforceable beyond the quantity of goods shown in the writing (Com. Code § 2201(1); Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 764, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158).

[Optional] B. Requirements Contract Satisfies Quantity Term. A signed writing evidencing a requirements contract specifies a quantity term for purposes of satisfying the statute of frauds under Commercial Code Section 2201(1) (Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 764, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158).

[Optional] C. Writing Evidencing Contract Between Merchants. Between merchants, if within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the contract and sufficient against the sender is received and the party receiving it has reason to know its contents, it satisfies the requirements of Commercial Code Section 2201(1) against the party, unless written notice of objection to its contents is given within 10 days after it is received (Com. Code § 2201(2); Procyon Corp. v. Components Direct, Inc. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 409, 412, 249 Cal. Rptr. 813).

[Optional] D. Signature Includes Use of Symbol. For purposes of the Commercial Code, "signed" includes any symbol executed or adopted by a party with present intention to authenticate a writing (Com. Code § 1201(b)(37); Donovan v. RRL Corp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 261, 276-278, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 27 P.3d 702).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that an enforceable contract for the sale of goods exists between plaintiff and defendant, on the ground that although a formal contract does not exist, an agreement was reached that is evidenced by some writing sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds [see Com. Code § 2201(1)]. Optional Paragraph B is for use if the writing evidences a requirements contract. Optional Paragraph C is for use if the contract is between merchants. Optional Paragraph D is for use to assert that a symbol constitutes a signature under the Commercial Code.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the writing evidencing the agreement sufficiently indicates a contract for sale between the parties, and is signed by the defendant.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the contract is outside the statute of frauds. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Writing Need Not Contain All Material Terms

The writing required to satisfy the statute of frauds need not contain all the material terms of the contract, and the material terms that are stated need not be precisely stated. All that is required is that the writing afford a basis for believing that the offered oral evidence rests on a real transaction [see U.C.C. Comment 1 to Com. Code § 2201].

[c] Definition of Merchant

A merchant is a person who deals in goods of the kind involved in the transaction, or is charged with having knowledge or skill associated with dealing with those kinds of goods, by virtue of that person's occupation, or the asserted knowledge or skill of his or her employee, agent, or broker [see Com. Code § 2104(1)].

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.35 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Satisfies Statute of Frauds

In Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 , a ship chandler brought an action against an oil company for breach of an agreement to supply fuel. After plaintiff and defendant reached an agreement regarding defendant's supply of fuel to plaintiff in connection with plaintiff's 40-year marina lease, plaintiff requested an instrument evidencing a binding commitment. Defendant wrote a letter setting forth the terms of the agreement, which included the following language: "we would appreciate your acknowledgement and acceptance of these terms by signing and returning two copies of this letter." The letter was signed by defendant's agent under the legend, "we accept and agree to the terms and conditions stated herein." Plaintiff signed the letter, and various comments were made by the parties indicating that an agreement had been consummated. Plaintiff obtained a lease for use of a marina based on the letter. Soon afterward, the price of oil rose, and defendant asserted that new federal regulations barred the contract. The federal government issued a supply order on plaintiff's instigation; defendant then denied the existence of a binding agreement, and appealed the government order. Ultimately, the government stated that a supply order would be issued after a court order was obtained establishing that a valid contract existed. Plaintiff's action for breach of contract and related tort claims resulted in a jury verdict in favor of plaintiff, awarding compensatory and punitive damages. Judgment was entered after a reduction of the punitive damages award, and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment with respect to the breach of contract action (36 Cal. 3d 752, 774) . The Court initially determined whether the letter signed by the parties satisfied the statute of frauds. The Court noted that the general statute of frauds is embodied in Civ. Code § 1624, and concluded that inasmuch as the letter contained all the essential terms of a specific, consummated agreement, it was enforceable under the Civil Code (36 Cal. 3d 752, 762-763) . Further, because the contract contemplated a sale of goods, the requirements of the statute of frauds under Com. Code § 2201 must also be met. Hence, the writing must be signed, it must indicate that a contract has been made, and it must specify a quantity term. Defendant argued that the letter failed to satisfy the Commercial Code's statute of frauds because a quantity term was not specified. But the Court stated that the letter evidenced a "requirements" contract, which was sufficient to satisfy that statute. Inasmuch as a written contract for output and requirements is binding under the Commercial Code, a writing is sufficient that indicates that there has been a real transaction for the sale of output or for the purchase of requirements (36 Cal. 3d 752, 764) .

[b] Requirements Contract Satisfies Quantity Term

Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 , is discussed under § 206.31[3][a].

[c] Writing Evidencing Contract Between Merchants

In Procyon Corp. v. Components Direct, Inc. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 409, 249 Cal. Rptr. 813 , plaintiff merchant brought an action against defendant supplier of computer chips for breach of an oral contract. Defendant offered plaintiff a certain quantity of computer chips at a certain price, and guaranteed delivery within six weeks. As a condition of delivery, defendant required plaintiff to obtain an irrevocable letter of credit issued to defendant's bank. The bank issued the irrevocable letter of credit to defendant's bank; it included a description of the chips, sales price, date of delivery, identification of the parties, and the bank's warranty that all requests for payment in accordance with the terms of sale would promptly be filled. Defendant failed to deliver the chips on the agreed date. Plaintiff's action sought the difference between the agreed sales price and the market price on the date of the alleged breach. At trial, defendant argued that the oral contract was unenforceable because it violated the statute of frauds, in that the letter of credit did not meet the writing requirement of Com. Code § 2201. The trial court held that the letter of credit sufficed to bring the contract outside the statute of frauds and found for plaintiff, pursuant to Com. Code § 2201(2). Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (203 Cal. App. 3d 409, 414) . The court noted that the statute of frauds, codified in Com. Code § 2201, provides as follows:

> Except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 2201, a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made between the parties, and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought, or by his or her authorized agent or broker. A writing is not insufficient because it omits or incorrectly states a term agreed on, but the contract is not enforceable beyond the quantity of goods shown in the writing (203 Cal. App. 3d 409, 411-412) .

When the contract is between merchants, Com. Code § 2201(2) provides the following exception to the formal writing requirement of Com. Code § 2201(1):

> Between merchants, if within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the contract and sufficient against the sender is received and the party receiving it has reason to know its contents, it satisfies the requirements of Com. Code § 2201(1) against the party, unless written notice of objection to its contents is given within 10 days after it is received.

The court rejected defendant's contention that the letter of credit could not be a satisfactory writing for purposes of Com. Code § 2201(2) because it lacked the signature of plaintiff's authorized agent, and therefore could not constitute confirmation sufficient against the sender. The obvious purpose of the relaxed writing requirement under Com. Code § 2201(2) is to expedite confirmation of oral contracts among commercial traders who are presumably knowledgeable in business matters. The statute does not specify that the writing must be signed; additionally, pursuant to Com. Code § 1201(b)(37), "signed" includes any symbol executed or adopted by a party with present intention to authenticate a writing. The requirement of a signature would therefore defeat the goal of quick, informal confirmations of business deals, and lacks support in the Commercial Code. Between merchants, failure to answer a written confirmation of a contract within 10 days of receipt is tantamount to a writing under Com. Code § 2201(2) and is sufficient against both parties under Com. Code § 2201(1) (203 Cal. App. 3d 409, 412) . The court stated that plaintiff did "sign" the irrevocable letter of credit within the meaning of Com. Code § 1201(b)(37), in that it directed the bank to issue the letter, and supplied the relevant contract terms for incorporation in the document. In this limited sense, the bank acted as plaintiff's agent when it sent the letter; and the bank's signature was thus adopted by plaintiff with present intention to authenticate a writing. Moreover, the irrevocable letter of credit fully bound plaintiff to the terms of the contract. In fact, the court noted, the letter not only memorialized the oral contract terms, but also guaranteed payment on delivery of the goods. Consequently, the document more than satisfied the writing requirement of Com. Code § 2201(2). One purpose of the statute is to equalize the position of both sides and avoid giving one party the advantage of monitoring a fluctuating market, knowing that it can bind the other party, but not be bound itself. Defendant demanded the irrevocable letter of credit for precisely that reason, noting that plaintiff had cancelled several previous orders, and defendant wished to ascertain that plaintiff would not renege again. Therefore, the trial court correctly ruled that the irrevocable letter of credit satisfied Com. Code § 2201(2) (203 Cal. App. 3d 409, 413) .

[d] Signature Includes Use of Symbol

Donovan v. RRL Corp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 261, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 27 P.3d 702 , is discussed in § 92.98[3][a]. In that case, the California Supreme Court held that a car dealer's newspaper advertisement reflected an objective manifestation of its intention to make an offer for the sale of a car at a stated price. The dealer's printed name in the ad similarly evidenced an intention to authenticate the advertisement as an offer and therefore constituted a signature satisfying the statute of frauds (26 Cal. 4th 261, 276-278) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.32

§ 206.32 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Does Not Bar Enforcement--Defendant Admits Existence of Contract [Com. Code § 2201(3)(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

AN ENFORCEABLE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT EXISTS BECAUSE A VALID AGREEMENT EXISTS BETWEEN THE PARTIES, AND DEFENDANT HAS ADMITTED THE EXISTENCE OF THE CONTRACT IN COURT.

Existence of Contract Admitted in Court. A contract that does not satisfy the requirements of Commercial Code Section 2201(1) but is valid in other respects, is enforceable if the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his or her pleading, testimony, or otherwise in court, that a contract for sale was made, in which case the contract is enforceable with respect to the quantity of goods admitted (Com. Code § 2201(3)(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that an enforceable contract for the sale of goods exists between plaintiff and defendant, on the ground that although a formal contract does not exist, the defendant has admitted the existence of the contract in court [see Com. Code § 2201(3)(b)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the contract is outside the statute of frauds. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should describe defendant's admission, and show that the contract has been confirmed with respect to the quantity of goods admitted.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.33

§ 206.33 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Does Not Bar Enforcement--Payment Made or Goods Accepted [Com. Code § 2201(3)(c)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

AN ENFORCEABLE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT EXISTS BECAUSE A VALID AGREEMENT EXISTS BETWEEN THE PARTIES, AND _____ [PLAINTIFF or DEFENDANT], AS BUYER, HAS _____ [RECEIVED AND ACCEPTED or PAID FOR] THE GOODS.

A. Payment Made or Goods Accepted. A contract that does not satisfy the requirements of Commercial Code Section 2201(1) but is valid in other respects is enforceable with respect to goods for which payment has been made and accepted, or that have been received and accepted pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2606 (Com. Code § 2201(3)(c)).

[Optional] B. Part Payment Made on Indivisible Unit. A contract that does not satisfy the requirements of Commercial Code Section 2201(1) but is valid in other respects is enforceable if part payment is made on the sale of an indivisible unit (Lockwood v. Smigel (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 803-804, 96 Cal. Rptr. 289).

[Optional] C. Goods Delivered to Third Party at Buyer's Request. A contract that does not satisfy the requirements of Commercial Code Section 2201(1) but is valid in other respects is enforceable with respect to goods that have been received and accepted when the goods are delivered to a third person, at the direction of the buyer (Dairyman's Cooperative Creamery Assn. v. Leipold (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 188, 109 Cal. Rptr. 753).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that an enforceable contract for the sale of goods exists between plaintiff and defendant, on the ground that the buyer has either paid for the goods or received and accepted them [see Com. Code § 2201(3)(c)]. This contention may be used by the seller, for example, to assert the existence of a contract if the buyer has accepted goods under an agreement between the parties, but refuses to pay for them on the ground that no contract exists [see, e.g., Dairyman's Cooperative Creamery Assn. v. Leipold (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 188, 109 Cal. Rptr. 753] . It may be used by the buyer, for example, to assert an entitlement to goods that were not delivered, for which payment was made [see, e.g., Lockwood v. Smigel (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 802, 96 Cal. Rptr. 289] . Optional Paragraph B is for use by a buyer when the contract sought to be enforced is based on part payment made on an indivisible unit. Optional Paragraph C is for use by a seller when the contract sought to be enforced is based on goods delivered to a third person at the direction of the buyer.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the contract is outside the statute of frauds. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the buyer under the contract has either paid for the goods or accepted them, and that the contract has been confirmed with respect to those goods. If appropriate, counsel should show that the goods were delivered to a third person at the direction of the buyer, in accordance with the agreement between the seller and buyer.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Part Payment Made on Indivisible Unit

In Lockwood v. Smigel (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 96 Cal. Rptr. 289 , the buyer of an automobile brought an action against the seller to enforce an oral contract. Plaintiff and defendant entered into an oral contract for the sale of an automobile for $11,400, $100 of which was to be paid on acceptance of the offer, and the balance on delivery. Plaintiff paid defendant the $100, and defendant failed to deliver the vehicle, having sold it to someone else. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer without leave to amend, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed (18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 804) . The court framed the issue presented as whether under Com. Code § 2201(3)(c), an oral contract for the sale of an automobile (an indivisible unit) is made enforceable by reason of a part payment (18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 801) . The oral contract, as pleaded, would have been enforceable under law in effect prior to the enactment of Com. Code § 2201(3)(c), because under former Civ. Code § 1624a, an oral contract for the sale of goods was enforceable if the buyer gave part payment. In place of that rule, Com. Code § 2201(3)(c) now states that the contract is enforceable with respect to goods for which payment has been made (18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 802) . The official comments to the Uniform Commercial Code note that when the goods are apportionable, the contract is enforceable only with respect to the portion for which payment has been made (18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 802-803) . The text of the provision, however, is ambiguous with respect to a part payment on an indivisible unit. The court noted that the purpose of the statute of frauds (Com. Code § 2201) is to prevent the enforcement of alleged promises that never were made; it is not to justify contractors in repudiating promises that were in fact made. (18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 803) . The new requirement that part payment validates the contract only with respect to goods for which payment has been made is an exception to the policy of liberalization under the Commercial Code, exemplified by its validation of some written memoranda that did not qualify under prior law (18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 803-804) . The court stated that the policies of the law were well served by enforcement of the contract alleged in the instant case. When there is part payment instead of a memorandum, this fact evidences the existence of a contract and identifies the party to be charged, that is, the seller who received the money. If the buyer is claiming to have purchased no more than one unit, there can be no dispute over quantity. The possibility that other terms of the bargain may be disputed is not a ground for nonenforcement, because a memorandum that satisfies the statute need not state all of the terms fully or accurately. The statutory policy that under prior law permitted the enforcement of oral contracts on proof of part payment is equally sound under the Commercial Code, as applied to the sale of an indivisible unit (18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 804) .

[b] Goods Delivered to Third Party at Buyer's Request

In Dairyman's Cooperative Creamery Assn. v. Leipold (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 109 Cal. Rptr. 753 , a seller of dairy products brought an action against a broker, seeking to enforce an oral contract for the purchase of powdered milk. Defendant did not deny that he ordered the goods, but claimed he was not obligated to pay because he acted as a broker rather than a principal, and because the oral agreement was unenforceable under the statute of frauds. The trial court found in favor of plaintiff and awarded damages. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 189) . The court set forth the substance of the statute of frauds pursuant to Com. Code § 2201 (34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 186) . The court stated that the oral agreement fell within the exception to the statute of frauds under Com. Code § 2201(3)(c) because the milk was delivered to a third party at the direction of defendant. The seller's delivery of goods to a third person at the direction of the buyer was effective to transfer title to the buyer; the receipt and acceptance of the milk by the third party satisfied the statute. The court rejected the defendant's contention that under Com. Code § 2201(3)(c), the receipt and acceptance of the goods must be by the buyer or the buyer's authorized agent, and not some unrelated third party. The adoption of the Commercial Code has not changed the decisional law of California. According to prevailing law, when delivery of goods is made to a third person under the direction of the buyer, it is sufficient to take the case out of the statute. Moreover, defendant's position is inconsistent with the principles of liberal construction of the Commercial Code. The Commercial Code was adopted to simplify, clarify, and modernize the law governing commercial transactions, and to permit the continued expansion of commercial practices to custom, usage, and agreement of the parties (34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 188) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Payment Made or Goods Accepted

In Del E. Webb Corp. v. Structural Materials Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 593, 176 Cal. Rptr. 824 , a general contractor brought an action against a building-material supplier for breach of a subcontract agreement. The court of appeal reversed the trial court's dismissal entered on the sustaining of defendant's demurrer without leave to amend. The court held that inasmuch as plaintiff paid in full for all the materials to be furnished under an oral contract, the contract was enforceable as an exception to the statute of frauds, pursuant to Com. Code § 2201(3) (123 Cal. App. 3d 593, 606-607) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.34

§ 206.34 Supporting Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Does Not Bar Enforcement by Seller Against Buyer--Goods Specially Manufactured for Buyer [Com. Code § 2201(3)(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

AN ENFORCEABLE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT EXISTS BECAUSE A VALID AGREEMENT EXISTS BETWEEN THE PARTIES, UNDER WHICH PLAINTIFF WAS OBLIGATED TO MANUFACTURE GOODS SPECIALLY FOR DEFENDANT; THE GOODS ARE NOT SUITABLE FOR RESALE TO OTHER BUYERS; AND PLAINTIFF MADE FIRM COMMITMENTS FOR THEIR _____ [MANUFACTURE or PROCUREMENT] PRIOR TO ANY REPUDIATION OF THE AGREEMENT BY DEFENDANT.

Specially Manufactured Goods. A contract that does not satisfy the requirements of Commercial Code Section 2201(1) but is valid in other respects is enforceable if the goods are to be specially manufactured for the buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business, and the seller, before notice of repudiation is received and under circumstances that reasonably indicate that the goods are for the buyer, has made either a substantial beginning of their manufacture or commitments for their procurement (Com. Code § 2201(3)(a); Distribu-Dor, Inc. v. Karadanis (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 467-469, 90 Cal. Rptr. 231).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that an enforceable contract for the sale of goods exists between plaintiff seller and defendant buyer, on the ground that although a formal contract does not exist, the goods were to be specially manufactured for defendant, plaintiff is unable to resell the goods to other buyers, and prior to any repudiation by defendant, plaintiff began manufacture or made commitments for the procurement of the goods [see Com. Code § 2201(3)(a)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the contract is outside the statute of frauds. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the goods were specially manufactured for defendant, that because of their nature, the goods were unsuitable for sale to other buyers, and that prior to any repudiation by defendant, plaintiff either substantially began manufacture, or made a commitment to procure the goods.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Specially Manufactured Goods

The facts and procedural background of Distribu-Dor, Inc. v. Karadanis (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 90 Cal. Rptr. 231 , are discussed in § 206.37[3][a]. In Distribu-Dor, the court held that an intermediate seller is entitled to damages based on lost profits on the buyer's wrongful rejection or repudiation of acceptance of goods. Preliminarily, the court noted that although the trial court found no express written contract, it made no finding regarding evidence submitted that an express oral contract existed within the estoppel exception to the statute of frauds (11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 467) . Plaintiff testified that the mirrors he ordered were of an unusual size, and were not readily resaleable; that many of them had to be recut and edged at great expense and loss; and that defendant's order distorted his company's inventory beyond normal requirements. Com. Code § 2201(3)(a) requires a written contract for sale of goods in an amount over $500 unless the goods are to be specially manufactured for the buyer; the goods are not suitable for resale in the ordinary course of the seller's business; and the seller, before receiving notice of repudiation, and under circumstances that reasonably indicate that the goods are for the buyer, has already started the manufacture or has attempted to procure the goods. Under this provision, a bona fide business transaction is evidenced by a seller's conduct that reasonably indicates that the goods are for the buyer. Therefore, the court held there was no justification in holding one portion of the contract enforceable and one not (11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 468) . Com. Code § 2201(3)(a) clearly codifies one aspect of the general rule that does not permit a party to plead the bar of the statute of frauds if it represents to another the intention to enter an oral contract, and the other pary changes its position in reliance on the representation. Strict adherence to the statute of frauds has been abandoned in favor of certain limited exceptions to promote equity and fair dealing between parties. The court concluded that plaintiff had a valid contract for sale of the mirrors (11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 469) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.35

§ 206.35 Opposing Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Statute of Frauds Bars Enforcement--Writing Insufficient to Show Existence of Contract [Com. Code § 2201(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

THE PURPORTED AGREEMENT BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT IS UNENFORCEABLE BY VIRTUE OF THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE THERE IS NO WRITING SUFFICIENT TO INDICATE THAT A CONTRACT FOR SALE HAS BEEN MADE BETWEEN THE PARTIES AND SIGNED BY THE DEFENDANT OR HIS/HER AUTHORIZED AGENT OR BROKER.

Statute of Frauds. Except as otherwise provided in Commercial Code Section 2201, a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made between the parties, and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought, or by his or her authorized agent or broker (Com. Code § 2201(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that an enforceable contract for the sale of goods exists between plaintiff and defendant. The ground for opposition is that there is not writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made [see Com. Code § 2201(1)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the contract is unenforceable under the statute of frauds. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in support of a motion for summary judgment on the ground that the alleged agreement is unenforceable pursuant to the statute of frauds. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that any writing asserted by plaintiff to evidence an agreement is insufficient for that purpose.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.30 and 206.31.

[b] Effect of Statute of Frauds

Failure to satisfy the requirements of Com. Code § 2201 does not render the contract void for all purposes, but merely prevents it from being judicially enforced in favor of a party to the contract [see U.C.C. Comment 4 to Com. Code § 2201].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender).

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute of Frauds

In C.R. Fedrick, Inc. v. Borg-Warner Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 552 F.2d 852 , a contractor brought a breach-of-contract action against a pump supplier, seeking to enforce an oral contract. The court of appeals affirmed summary judgment for defendant on the ground that the statute of frauds (Com. Code § 2201(1), (2)) barred the action. The court held, inter alia, that plaintiff's letters to defendant, which expressed plaintiff's intention to purchase the pumps from defendant based on defendant's telephonic bid regarding a certain construction contract, were insufficient to constitute confirmation of a contract. The letters were, at most, self-serving statements of actions taken by plaintiff (552 F.2d 852, 855) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.36

§ 206.36 Opposing Contention That Enforceable Contract for Sale of Goods Exists--Acceptance Made Conditional on Assent to Additional Terms [Com. Code § 2207(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief or in jury instructions.]

THE PURPORTED AGREEMENT BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT IS UNENFORCEABLE BECAUSE ACCEPTANCE OF THE OFFER WAS EXPRESSLY MADE CONDITIONAL ON ASSENT TO ADDITIONAL OR DIFFERENT TERMS.

Additional or Different Terms. No acceptance under Commercial Code Section 2207(1) exists when the conditional nature of an acceptance proposing additional or different terms is clearly expressed (PMC Inc. v. Porthole Yachts Ltd. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 882, 888-889, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 832 ; Textile Unlimited, Inc. v. A. BMH and Co. Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 240 F.3d 781, 787-788) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities are for use in opposing the contention that an enforceable contract for the sale of goods exists between plaintiff and defendant. The ground for opposition is that there the proposal of additional or different terms did not constitute unconditional acceptance [see Com. Code § 2207(1)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and points of law stated.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the contract is unenforceable due to a conditional acceptance proposing additional or different.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Additional or Different Terms

In PMC Inc. v. Porthole Yachts Ltd. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 882, 888-889, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 832 , the parties entered into an agreement for the purchase and sale of a motorsailer with payment consisting of cash and transfer of title to another boat. The transaction was contingent on completion of a trial run and marine survey on each vessel to the satisfaction of the acquiring party. The agreement required the buyer to accept or reject the trial run and surveys in writing or by telex on or before a certain date. The buyer's president accepted the trial run but proposed a price reduction of $100,000 upon review of the survey. The seller countered with a $50,000 price reduction. The buyer's president then signed a document designated Addendum B, which stated that the buyer and seller agreed to a survey allowance $50,000, and also that the parties agreed to extend the date for the buyer's final acceptance of the vessel to a new and later date. The addendum was sent to the seller's broker with a cover letter requesting extension of the final acceptance date as an alternative to letting the contract expire. The seller did not sign the addendum and the buyer then requested return of its deposit (65 Cal. App. 4th 882, 885-886) .

The buyer's broker filed an action by interpleading the deposit with the court. The buyer and seller each asserted a right to the deposit, with the buyer seeking declaratory relief and the seller claiming breach of contract. The superior court entered judgment in favor of the buyer and the seller appealed. The court of appeal found that while Addendum B did not expressly condition acceptance on the seller's agreement to extend the final acceptance date, the cover letter prepared by the buyer's agent clarified the addendum's conditional nature and placed the seller on notice that the buyer would not proceed with the transaction unless the seller agreed to extend the time for final acceptance of the yacht. The court found that the cover letter was a permissible method of expressing the conditional nature of the buyer's acceptance. All that was required under Com. Code § 2207(1) was a clear expression in a manner sufficient to notify the offeror that the offeree was unwilling to proceed with the transaction unless the additional or different terms were included in the contract. Given the timing of the addendum (sent on the last day to accept), the contents of the addendum which contained a new term (extended final date), and the cover letter emphasizing the conditional nature of the acceptance, the court held that the parties' original agreement expired by its terms since the buyer had not unconditionally accepted the survey by that expiration date (65 Cal. App. 4th 882, 888-889) .

The facts and procedural context of Textile Unlimited, Inc. v. A. BMH and Co. Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 240 F.3d 781 , are set forth in § 206.30[3][b]. Plaintiff's purchase order for goods containing the terms of the purchase was sent to defendant, which responded with an invoice containing additional terms (including a provision for binding arbitration in Georgia) followed by shipment of the goods. Defendant argued that a contract including the arbitration clause was formed pursuant to Com. Code § 2207(1) because the fine print provided that plaintiff was deemed to have accepted the new terms in full if it did not respond in 24 hours.

The court noted that under Com. Code § 2207(1), an acceptance will operate to create a contract even if additional or different terms are stated unless the acceptance is expressly conditioned on assent to the new terms. If a contract is created under Com. Code § 2207(1), then Com. Code § 2207(2) defines the terms of the contract. However, if the acceptance is expressly conditioned on the offeror's assent to the new terms, the acceptance operates as a counteroffer. If the counteroffer is accepted, a contract exists and the additional terms become part of the contract (citing Diamond Fruit Growers Inc. v. Krack Corp. (9th Cir. 1986), 794 F.2d, 1440, 1443) . To qualify as an acceptance under Com. Code § 2207(1), an offeror must give specific and unequivocal assent to the supplemental terms. If the new provisions are not accepted, then no contract is formed. However, even when the parties' written expressions do not establish a binding agreement under Com. Code § 2207(1), a contract may arise based upon their subsequent conduct pursuant to Com. Code § 2207(3). In this case, acceptance was expressly made conditional on plaintiff's assent to additional or different terms, as defendant's documents provided that "Seller's willingness to sell yarn to you is conditioned on your acceptance of these Terms of sale." Further, plaintiff did not give "specific and unequivocal assent" to the supplemental conditions, including the arbitration clause. Thus, a contract containing the new terms that defendant attempted to pin on plaintiff was not formed under Com. Code § 2207(1) (240 F.2d 781, 787-788) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.37

§ 206.37 Supporting Contention That Seller Entitled to Damages for Buyer's Breach of Contract--Buyer's Nonacceptance of Goods--Resale and Recovery of Damages [Com. Code §§ 2703, 2706, 2708]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF SELLER IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER FROM DEFENDANT BUYER THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE RESALE PRICE AND THE CONTRACT PRICE, PLUS INCIDENTAL DAMAGES ALLOWED UNDER THE COMMERCIAL CODE, BECAUSE DEFENDANT WRONGFULLY BREACHED THE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS AND PLAINTIFF CONSEQUENTLY RESOLD THE GOODS AFFECTED BY THE BREACH ACCORDING TO THE REQUIREMENTS UNDER THE COMMERCIAL CODE.

[EITHER]

A. Seller's Right of Resale and Damages Based on Contract Price. If the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods, fails to make a payment due on or before delivery, or repudiates part or all of the sale, then with respect to any goods directly affected and, if the breach is of the whole contract, then also with respect to the whole undelivered balance, the aggrieved seller may resell and recover damages as provided in Commercial Code Section 2706 (Com. Code § 2703(d)).

B. Difference Between Contract Price and Resale Price Plus Incidental Damages. If the resale is made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, the seller may recover the difference between the resale price and the contract price together with any incidental damages allowed under Commercial Code Section 2710, less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach (Com. Code § 2706(1)).

[OR]

A. Seller's Right of Resale and Damages Based on Market Price. If the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods, fails to make a payment due on or before delivery, or repudiates part or all of the sale, then with respect to any goods directly affected and, if the breach is of the whole contract, then also with respect to the whole undelivered balance, the aggrieved seller may recover damages for nonacceptance, as provided in Commercial Code Section 2708 (Com. Code § 2703(e)).

B. Difference Between Market Price and Contract Price Plus Incidental Damages. The measure of damages for nonacceptance or repudiation by the buyer is the difference between the market price at the time and place for tender and the unpaid contract price, together with any incidental damages provided in Commercial Code Section 2710, less expenses saved because of the buyer's breach, and subject to Commercial Code Section 2708(2) and to the provisions regarding proof of market price under Commercial Code Section 2723 (Com. Code § 2708(1)).

[Optional] C. Lost Profits Plus Incidental Damages. If the measure of damages provided in Commercial Code Section 2708(1) is inadequate to put the seller in as good a position as performance would have done, then the measure of damages is the profit (including reasonable overhead) that the seller would have made from full performance by the buyer, together with any incidental damages provided in Commercial Code Section 2710, due allowance for costs reasonably incurred and due credit for payments or proceeds of resale (Com. Code § 2708(2)).

[Optional] D. Intermediate Seller Entitled to Lost Profits. The award of damages based on the difference between the contract price and the market price, pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2708(1), does not adequately compensate an intermediate seller on the buyer's repudiation of an agreement to purchase goods; the proper measure of damages is the dealer's anticipated profit, pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2708(2) (Distribu-Dor, Inc. v. Karadanis (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 470, 90 Cal. Rptr. 231).

[Optional] E. Lost-Volume Seller Entitled to Lost Profits Without Setoff. When a buyer repudiates a fixed-price contract to purchase goods, Commercial Code Section 2708(2) allows courts to award lost profits under the contract to the seller who proves that he or she is a "lost-volume seller." The seller must show that even though he or she resold the contract goods, sale to the third party would have been made regardless of buyer's breach (National Controls, Inc. v. Commodore Bus. Machines, Inc. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 697, 209 Cal. Rptr. 636).

[CONTINUE]

F. Definition of Incidental Damages. Incidental damages to an aggrieved seller include any commercially reasonable charges, expenses, or commissions incurred in stopping delivery, in the transportation, care, and custody of goods after the buyer's breach, in connection with return or resale of the goods, or otherwise resulting from the breach (Com. Code § 2710).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the plaintiff seller is entitled to recover damages based on resale of the goods following the defendant buyer's breach of the contract [see Com. Code §§ 2703(d) (right of resale), 2706(1) (measure of damages)]. The first alternative Paragraphs A and B are for use to apply the measure of damages based on resale and recovery of the difference between the contract price and the resale price. The second alternative Paragraphs A through E are for use to apply the measure of damages based on recovery of damages for nonacceptance. Optional Paragraph C is for use to apply the measure of damages for lost profits. Optional Paragraph D is for use if Optional Paragraph C is used, and plaintiff is an intermediate seller. Optional Paragraph E is for use if Optional C is used, and plaintiff is a lost-volume seller. For a discussion of the circumstances under which each measure of damages is appropriate, see § 206.37[2][b].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's measure of damages on the buyer's nonacceptance or repudiation. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth the facts of the breach and the resale, and apply the appropriate measure of damages.

[b] Appropriate Test for Measure of Damages

These points and authorities set forth different standards for the measure of damages to which a seller is entitled after a buyer's breach of a sales contract based on nonacceptance or repudiation. Under most circumstances, the measure of damages set forth in Com. Code § 2706 is appropriate. For example, if the goods have not been resold in a commercially reasonable manner as specified in that statute, the measure of damages under Com. Code § 2708 is applicable [see National Controls, Inc. v. Commodore Bus. Machines, Inc. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 696, 209 Cal. Rptr. 636 (discussed under § 206.37[3][b])]. With regard to Com. Code § 2708, the measure of damages is the difference between the market price at the time of tender and the unpaid contract price or, in the alternative, the loss of profits to the seller, whichever is greater [Nixdorf Computer, Inc. v. Jet Forwarding, Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 579 F.2d 1175, 1177] . Under this provision, the appropriate measure of damages is the difference between the market price and contract price under Com. Code § 2708(1) unless special circumstances exist, in which case the measure of damages based on lost profits under Com. Code § 2708(2) is appropriate. Special circumstances for this purpose exist, for example, if plaintiff is an intermediate seller; in that case, the difference between the market price and contract price is not a true representation of the seller's damages, and plaintiff is entitled to lost profits under Com. Code § 2708(2) [Distribu-Dor, Inc. v. Karadanis (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 470, 90 Cal. Rptr. 231 (discussed under § 206.37[3][a])].

[c] Notice of Resale

If the resale of goods is at a private sale, the seller must give the buyer reasonable notification of the intention to sell [Com. Code § 2706(3)]. The seller must also give the buyer reasonable notice of the time and place of a public resale of the goods, unless the goods are perishable or threaten to decline in value rapidly [Com. Code § 2706(4)(b)]. For points and authorities in opposition to the seller's entitlement to damages, based on Com. Code § 2706, see § 206.41.

[d] Proof of Market Price

If an action based on anticipatory repudiation comes to trial before the time for performance with respect to some or all of the goods, any damages based on market price, pursuant to Com. Code § 2708 or 2713, are determined according to the price of the goods prevailing at the time when the aggrieved party learned of the repudiation [Com. Code § 2723(1)].

If evidence of a price prevailing at the times or places described in the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 2101 et seq.] is not readily available, the price prevailing within any reasonable time before or after the time described, or at any other place that in commercial judgment or under usage of trade serves as a reasonable substitute for the one described, may be used, making any proper allowance for the cost of transporting the goods to or from the other place [Com. Code § 2723(2)].

Evidence of a relevant price prevailing at a time or place other than the one described in the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 2101 et seq.] offered by one party is not admissible unless and until that party has given the other party notice that the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise [Com. Code § 2723(3)].

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.38 -206.41 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[f] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intermediate Seller Entitled to Lost Profits

In Distribu-Dor, Inc. v. Karadanis (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 90 Cal. Rptr. 231 , plaintiff, an intermediate seller of bathroom fixtures, brought an action against a contractor for breach of contract. Plaintiff, after extensive discussions with defendant regarding supply requirements, asked defendant to sign the written price quotation. Defendant refused, stating that his word was his bond. Plaintiff took measurements for custom mirrors at the construction site, and ordered the mirrors. Subsequently, defendant told plaintiff he had decided to do business with another firm. The trial court specifically found there was no written contract, but made no finding with respect to the existence of an oral express contract. It held that plaintiff was not entitled to recover because he failed to prove damages. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed (11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 471) . The court first determined that a valid contract existed for the sale of goods (discussed in § 206.34[3][a]). The court also stated that Com. Code § 2703(e) provides that when the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods, fails to make a payment due on or before delivery, or repudiates with respect to a part or the whole, then with respect to any goods directly affected and, if the breach is of the whole contract, then also with respect to the whole undelivered balance, the aggrieved seller may recover damages for nonacceptance, or, in a proper case, the price. Com. Code § 2708(1) provides that, subject to Com. Code § 2708(2), and to provisions regarding proof of market price, the measure of damages for nonacceptance or repudiation by the buyer is the difference between the market price at the time and place for tender and the unpaid contract price, together with any recoverable incidental damages, but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach. Com. Code § 2708(2) provides that if the measure of damages under Com. Code § 2708(1) is inadequate to put the seller in as good a position as performance would have done, then the measure of damages is the profit that the seller would have made from full performance by the buyer, together with recoverable incidental damages (11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 469) . The court noted that the trial court did not indicate which measure of damages it considered. The legislative history of Com. Code § 2708 indicates that it is similar to former Civ. Code § 1784(3), under which a "middleman," or intermediate seller, is a special circumstance; the measure of damages based on the difference between the market price and contract price is not a true representation of the seller's damages. Plaintiff in the instant case was acting as a "middleman," that is, one who buys at one price from a manufacturer for resale at a higher price. Therefore, the court concluded, the measure of damages under Com. Code § 2708(2) must be applied, and plaintiff was entitled to lost profits. The court stated that uncertainty as to the fact of damages, that is, the nature, existence, or cause of the damages, is fatal. However, the same certainty as to the amount of damage is not required (11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 470) .

[b] Lost-Volume Seller Entitled to Lost Profits Without Setoff

The facts and procedural background of National Controls, Inc. v. Commodore Bus. Machines, Inc. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 209 Cal. Rptr. 636 , are discussed in § 206.30[3][b]. In National, the court held that the parties' conduct supported the finding that they entered into a contract for the sale of goods (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 693-694) . The court also discussed the issue of allowable damages. Defendant asserted that plaintiff was not entitled to damages for lost profits under Com. Code § 2708(2); but that if lost profits were properly awarded, defendant was entitled under Com. Code § 2708 to a credit for the proceeds of plaintiff's resale of the goods. The court stated that damages caused by a buyer's breach or repudiation of a sales contract are usually measured by the difference between the resale price of the goods and the contract price, pursuant to Com. Code § 2706. When it is not appropriate to use this difference to measure the seller's loss (for example, when the goods have not been resold in a commercially reasonable manner), the seller's measure of damages is the difference between the market and the contract prices, pursuant to Com. Code § 2708(1). Ordinarily this measure results in recovery equal to the value of the seller's bargain. However, under certain circumstances, this formula is also not an adequate means to ascertain that value, and the seller may recover the loss of expected profits on the contract under Com. Code § 2708(2) (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 696) . When buyers have repudiated a fixed-price contract to purchase goods, other jurisdictions have construed provisions embodying Com. Code § 2708 to permit the award of lost profits under the contract to the seller who establishes that it is a "lost volume seller," that is, one who proves that even though it resold the contract goods, that sale to a third party would have been made regardless of the buyer's breach, and in addition to the sale to the buyer. The lost-volume seller must establish that had the breaching buyer performed, the seller would have realized profits from two sales (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 697) . Although this rule has been criticized by some commentators, courts have nevertheless implemented it.

The court rejected defendant's contention that if plaintiff is entitled to lost profits under the contract, defendant should receive credit for the proceeds of the resale. The literal language of Com. Code § 2708(2) does provide some support for that contention, in that it allows "due credit for payments or proceeds of resale." However, courts in other jurisdictions have uniformly held that this provision does not apply to a lost-volume seller. Logically, lost-volume status, which entitles the seller to the formula under Com. Code § 2708(2) rather than that under Com. Code § 2708(1), is inconsistent with a credit for the proceeds of resale (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 698) . The whole concept of lost-volume status is that the sale of goods to the resale purchaser could have been made with other goods, had there been no breach (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 698-699) . In essence, the original sale and the second sale are independent events, becoming related only after breach, as the original sale goods are applied to the second sale. To require a credit for the proceeds of resale is to deny the essential element that entitles the lost-volume seller to Com. Code § 2708(2) in the first place, that is, the mutual independence of the contract and the resale. Practically, if the "due credit" clause is applied to the lost-volume seller, the measure of damages is no difference from the recovery under Com. Code § 2708(1), under which the seller recovers the contract-market differential and the profit made on resale. If the "due credit" provision is applied, the seller recovers only the profit made on resale plus the difference between the resale price and the contract price, an almost identical measure to Com. Code § 2708(1). If the "due credit" clause is applied to the lost-volume seller, the damage measure of "lost profits" is rendered nugatory, and the seller is not put in as good a position as if there had been performance. The court observed that at all relevant times, plaintiff's manufacturing plant had the capacity to supply both defendant and the third party to which it resold the goods. Accordingly, the trial court correctly determined that plaintiff was a lost-volume seller, that the usual "contract price minus market price" rule under Com. Code § 2708(1) was inadequate to put plaintiff in as good a position as performance would have, and that it was therefore entitled to lost profits on the contract with defendant, without any setoff for profits on the resale (163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 699) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Seller's Right of Resale and Damages Based on Contract Price

In Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872 , a cooperative corporation of grape growers brought an action against a grape-crushing company based on defendant's refusal to accept a portion of the grapes it had ordered. After attempting unsuccessfully to resell the remaining grapes to wineries, plaintiff created a subsidiary corporation that purchased the crop. Although the prevailing price of the grapes was $100 per ton, the value of the grapes to the subsidiary was $70 per ton; to minimize the damage, the subsidiary paid $85 per ton, and split the $30 loss with plaintiff. Plaintiff sought damages in the amount of $15 per ton. The court of appeal upheld the trial court's judgment for plaintiff, holding, inter alia, that under Com. Code § 2706, plaintiff's resale was in good faith. The court specifically held that the statute does not prohibit resale to affiliated entities, nor is that type of sale per se commercially unreasonable (203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 445-447) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.38

§ 206.38 Opposing Contention That Seller or Buyer Entitled to Damages for Breach of Contract--Action Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Com. Code § 2725]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION IS NOT ENFORCEABLE BECAUSE THE ACTION ON IT IS BARRED BY THE EXPIRATION OF THE LIMITATIONS PERIOD.

A. Limitations Period. An action for breach of any contract for sale must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued. By the original agreement the parties may reduce the period of limitation to not less than one year but may not extend it (Com. Code § 2725(1)).

B. Accrual of Cause of Action. A cause of action accrues when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party's lack of knowledge of the breach (Com. Code § 2725(2)).

[Optional] C. Limitations Period for Subsequent Action. If an action commenced within the time limited by Commercial Code Section 2725(1) is so terminated as to leave available a remedy by another action for the same breach, the other action may be commenced after the expiration of the time limited and within six months after the termination of the first action, unless the termination resulted from voluntary discontinuance or from dismissal for failure or neglect to prosecute (Com. Code § 2725(3)).

[Optional] D. Statute Does Not Affect Tolling. Commercial Code Section 2725 does not alter the law on tolling of the statute of limitations (Com. Code § 2725(4)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the action on a contract for the sale of goods is enforceable and that plaintiff, whether seller or buyer, is entitled to damages. The ground of the contention is that the action on the contract is barred pursuant to the expiration of the limitations period [see Com. Code § 2725]. Optional Paragraph C is for use if the action on the contract is one brought subsequent to a previous action terminated prior to the expiration of the limitations period. Optional Paragraph D is for use to assert that the statute does not affect the law on tolling.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the expiration of the limitations period. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in support of a demurrer to the complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth the date of the accrual of the cause of action, and show that the applicable limitations expired before the date the complaint was filed.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.37 and 206.42 -206.45.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender).

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Limitations Period

In Jack Heskett Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. v. Metcalf (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 204 Cal. Rptr. 355 , an automobile dealer brought an action against a buyer, seeking damages in a deficiency action following repossession of the vehicle. The court of appeal reversed the trial court's dismissal based on application of a one-year period of limitations. The reviewing court held that the applicable limitations period is four years, pursuant to Com. Code § 2725, based on an action under the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) seeking a deficiency judgment on a conditional sales contract, rather than the recovery of any penalty or forfeiture (158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 41-43) . For points and authorities relating to the Rees-Levering Act, see § 206.180 et seq.

In Therma-Coustics Manufacturing, Inc. v. Borden, Inc. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 282, 213 Cal. Rptr. 611 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's holding that a one-year limitations provision barred the action, which was brought 21 months after the causes of action arose (167 Cal. App. 3d 282, 300) . The court held that the limitations provision, included in defendant's sales documents, became part of the contract as an incorporated additional term, pursuant to Com. Code § 2207 [see § 206.30], and that, in view of Com. Code § 2725 (stating that the parties may shorten the period to one year), the one-year period was not unreasonable (167 Cal. App. 3d 282, 295-296) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.39

§ 206.39 Opposing Contention That Seller Entitled to Damages for Buyer's Breach of Contract--Seller Failed Adequately to Tender Goods [Com. Code §§ 2503, 2507(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF SELLER IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER FROM DEFENDANT BUYER FOR BREACH OF THE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION BECAUSE PLAINTIFF FAILED ADEQUATELY TO TENDER THE GOODS TO DEFENDANT.

A. Buyer's Duty of Acceptance of Goods Is Conditional. Tender of delivery is a condition to the buyer's duty to accept the goods and, unless otherwise agreed, to the buyer's duty to pay for them. Tender is required before the seller is entitled to acceptance of the goods and to payment according to the contract (Com. Code § 2507(1)).

B. Seller's Duty to Deliver Goods. Tender of delivery requires that the seller put and hold conforming goods at the buyer's disposition, and give the buyer any notification reasonably necessary to enable the buyer to take delivery. The manner, time, and place for tender are determined by the agreement and the Commercial Code (Com. Code § 2503(1); see Com. Code § 2101 et seq.).

C. Tender Requirements. Tender must be at a reasonable hour, and tendered goods must be kept available for the period reasonably necessary to enable the buyer to take possession; but unless otherwise agreed, the buyer must furnish facilities reasonably suited to the receipt of the goods (Com. Code § 2503(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that plaintiff seller is entitled to recover damages arising from the buyer's breach of a contract for the sale of goods. The basis for the contention is that plaintiff failed adequately to tender delivery of the goods [see Com. Code § 2507(1)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the buyer's conditional duty to accept the goods under a contract for the sale of goods. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should describe plaintiff's failure to tender the goods in a manner that satisfies plaintiff's duty to do so under the contract, and consequently, that defendant's duty to accept them did not arise. Counsel should discuss the requirements applicable to specified methods of tender under Com. Code § 2503(2)-(5), set forth under § 206.39[2][c], if applicable.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.37.

[b] Buyer's Conditional Duty

With respect to the buyer's conditional duty of payment, based on the seller's proper tender of goods, the "unless otherwise agreed" language of Com. Code § 2507(1) is directed primarily to cases in which payment in advance has been promised, or a letter of credit term has been included. "Payment according to the contract" contemplates immediate payment, payment at the end of an agreed credit term, payment by a time acceptance, and similar terms [see U.C.C. Comment 2 to Com. Code § 2507].

[c] Additional Requirements of Tender

The seller's duty of tender is specified under Com. Code § 2503(2)-(5), depending on the particular methods of delivery to which the parties have agreed. If the seller is under an obligation to ship the goods, under Com. Code § 2504, the seller must comply with the provisions of that statute [Com. Code § 2503(2)]. If the seller is required to deliver at a particular destination, the seller must comply with Com. Code § 2503(1), and, when applicable, 2503(4) (goods in possession of a bailee), and 2503(5) (delivery of documents) [Com. Code § 2503(3)].

[d] Place for Delivery

If no place or means of delivery is specified in a commercial contract for the sale of goods, the place for delivery is the seller's place of business, or, if none, the seller's residence, unless the contract involves the sale of identified goods that parties know are in some other place, in which case the goods must be delivered to that place [Com. Code § 2308(a), (b); see U.C.C. Comment 1 to Com. Code § 2308].

[e] Shipping Terms

Unless otherwise agreed, the term F.O.B. (free on board) at a named place, even though used only in connection with the stated price, is a delivery term under which:

- When the term is F.O.B. the place of shipment, the seller must at that place ship the goods in the manner provided in Com. Code § 2504, and bear the expense and risk of putting them into the possession of the carrier [Com. Code § 2319(1)(a); see Com. Code § 2319(3) (buyer's duty to give needed instructions)];

- When the term is F.O.B. the place of destination, the seller must at the seller's expense and risk transport the goods to that place and there tender delivery of them in the manner provided in Com. Code § 2503 [Com. Code § 2319(1)(b)];

- When under Com. Code § 2319(1)(a) or (b), the term is also F.O.B. vessel, car, or other vehicle, the seller must also, at the seller's expense and risk, load the goods on board. If the term is F.O.B. vessel, the buyer must name the vessel, and, in an appropriate case, the seller must comply with the provisions of Com. Code § 2323 on the form of bill of lading [Com. Code § 2319(1)(c); see Com. Code § 2319(3) (buyer's duty to give needed instructions)].

Unless otherwise agreed, the term F.A.S. (free alongside) vessel, at a named port, even though used only in connection with the stated price, is a delivery term under which the seller must [Com. Code: § 2319(2); see Com. Code § 2319(3) (buyer's duty to give needed instructions)]:

- At the seller's expense and risk, deliver the goods alongside the vessel in the manner usual in that port or on a dock designated and provided by the buyer; and

- Obtain and tender a receipt for the goods in exchange for which the carrier is under a duty to issue a bill of lading.

Under the terms F.O.B. vessel or F.A.S., the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents, and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents, unless otherwise agreed [Com. Code § 2319(4)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.40

§ 206.40 Opposing Contention That Seller Entitled to Damages for Buyer's Breach of Contract--Tendered Goods Failed to Conform to Contract [Com. Code § 2601]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF SELLER IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER FROM DEFENDANT BUYER FOR BREACH OF THE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION BECAUSE PLAINTIFF TENDERED GOODS [IN A MANNER] THAT DID NOT CONFORM TO THE REQUIREMENTS UNDER THE CONTRACT.

Tendered Goods Failed to Conform to Contract. If the goods or the tender of delivery fails in any respect to conform to the contract, the buyer may either reject the whole, accept the whole, or accept any commercial unit or units and reject the rest, unless otherwise agreed pursuant to Commercial Code Sections 2718 and 2719, regarding contractual limitations of remedy, and subject to Commercial Code Section 2612, regarding breach in installment contracts (Com. Code § 2601).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that plaintiff seller is entitled to recover damages arising from the buyer's breach of a contract for the sale of goods. The basis for the contention is that plaintiff's tender of goods failed to conform to the requirements under the contract [see Com. Code § 2601].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the plaintiff's failure to tender goods in conformance with the contract. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should compare plaintiff's tender of the goods with the terms of the contract in that respect, and describe the nonconformity.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.37.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.41

§ 206.41 Opposing Contention That Seller Entitled to Damages for Buyer's Breach of Contract--Seller Failed to Notify Buyer of Resale of Goods [Com. Code § 2706]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF SELLER IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER FROM DEFENDANT BUYER FOR BREACH OF THE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION BECAUSE PLAINTIFF FAILED TO NOTIFY DEFENDANT OF THE RESALE OF THE GOODS.

[EITHER]

Seller Required to Notify Buyer of Private Resale. If the seller, pursuant to the seller's remedy under Commercial Code Section 2706, resells goods at a private sale, the seller must give the buyer reasonable notification of the intention to resell (Com. Code § 2706(3)).

[OR]

Seller Required to Notify Buyer of Public Resale. If the seller, pursuant to the seller's remedy under Commercial Code Section 2706, resells goods at a public sale, the sale must be made at a usual place or market for public sale, if one is reasonably available, and the seller must give the buyer reasonable notice of the time and place of the resale, unless the goods are perishable or threaten to decline in value rapidly; and, if the goods are not to be within the view of those attending the sale, the notification of sale must state the place where the goods are located, and provide for their reasonable inspection by prospective bidders (Com. Code § 2706(4)(b), (c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that plaintiff seller is entitled to recover damages arising from the buyer's breach of a contract for the sale of goods. The basis for the contention is that plaintiff failed to notify defendant of the resale of goods prior to a private or public sale [see Com. Code § 2706(3), (4)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the plaintiff's duty to notify the defendant prior to resale of the goods. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should describe plaintiff's resale of the goods, and show that plaintiff failed to comply with notification requirements with respect to the sale.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.37.

[b] Requirements for Notification of Private Sale

The length of notification of a private sale depends on the urgency of the matter. Notification of the time and place of this type of sale is not required [see U.C.C. Comment 8 to Com. Code § 2706].

[c] Purpose for Notification of Public Sale

The purpose for the requirement of notification to the buyer of a public sale is to give the buyer an opportunity to bid or to secure the attendance of other bidders [see U.C.C. Comment 8 to Com. Code § 2706].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.42

§ 206.42 Supporting Contention That Buyer Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Contract--Buyer's Remedies Regarding Accepted Goods [Com. Code § 2714]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER DAMAGES FROM DEFENDANT SELLER ARISING FROM DEFENDANT'S NONCONFORMITY OF TENDER OF THE GOODS, BASED ON PLAINTIFF'S ACCEPTANCE OF THE GOODS AND RESULTANT LOSS IN THE ORDINARY COURSE OF EVENTS.

A. Damages Recoverable After Acceptance of Nonconforming Goods. If the buyer has accepted goods and given notification pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2607, the buyer may recover as damages for any nonconformity of tender the loss resulting in the ordinary course of events from the seller's breach, determined in any reasonable manner, and, in a proper case, may recover any incidental and consequential damages under Commercial Code Section 2715 (Com. Code § 2714(1), (3)).

B. Buyer's Incidental Damages. [See § 206.43, Paragraphs I, J.]

C. Buyer's Consequential Damages. [See § 206.43, Paragraph K.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the plaintiff buyer is entitled to recover damages based on defendant seller's breach of the contract arising from defendant's delivery of nonconforming goods or delivery of goods in a manner not in compliance with the contract, when plaintiff has accepted the goods [see Com. Code § 2714(1), (3)]. For points and authorities supporting a buyer's right to recover damages for a seller's breach of warranty, see § 206.69.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the buyer's entitlement to remedies on acceptance of nonconforming goods. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth damages based on the loss resulting in the ordinary course of events from acceptance of the nonconforming goods, determined in a reasonable manner.

[b] Deduction of Damages From Price

The buyer, on notifying the seller of the intention to do so, may deduct all or any part of the damages resulting from any breach of the contract from any part of the price still due under the same contract [Com. Code § 2717; Hughes Tool Co. v. Max Hinrichs Seed Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 194, 202, 169 Cal. Rptr. 160 ; see AmerisourceBergen Corp. v. Dialysist W., Inc. (9th Cir. 2006) 445 F.3d 1132, 1135-1136 , (construing Arizona statute identical to Com. Code § 2717; buyer may not set off contractual claim against debt on separate contract; statute pre-empts common law right of equitable set-off, in situations in which statute applies)].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.47 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.43

§ 206.43 Supporting Contention That Buyer Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Contract--Buyer's Remedies Regarding Nondelivered or Rejected Goods [Com. Code §§ 2711, 2712, 2713(1), 2715]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER DAMAGES FROM DEFENDANT SELLER BASED ON _____ [specify, e.g., THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE COST OF COVER AND THE CONTRACT PRICE], ON DEFENDANT'S BREACH OF THE CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF GOODS, ARISING FROM DEFENDANT'S _____ [NONDELIVERY or DELIVERY OF GOODS (IN A MANNER) NOT IN CONFORMANCE WITH THE TERMS OF THE CONTRACT AND PLAINTIFF'S CONSEQUENT REJECTION OF THE GOODS].

A. Buyer's Right to Cancel. If the seller fails to make delivery or repudiates, or the buyer rightfully rejects or justifiably revokes acceptance, then with respect to any goods involved, and with respect to the whole if the breach goes to the whole contract, the buyer may cancel (Com. Code § 2711(1)).

[Optional] B. Breach Based on Installment Contract. Whenever nonconformity or default with respect to one or more installments of an installment contract substantially impairs the value of the whole contract, there is a breach of the whole contract (Com. Code § 2612(3)).

[EITHER, if buyer covers]

C. Buyer's Right to Cover. Whether or not the buyer has canceled a contract for the sale of goods pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2711(1), the buyer may recover so much of the price as has been paid, and, in addition, may cover and have damages under Commercial Code Section 2712 with respect to all the goods affected, whether or not they have been identified to the contract (Com. Code § 2711(1)(a)).

D. Definition of Cover. After a breach within Commercial Code Section 2711, the buyer may cover by making in good faith and without unreasonable delay any reasonable purchase of or contract to purchase goods in substitution for those due from the seller (Com. Code § 2712(1)).

E. Buyer's Right to Damages After Cover. The buyer may recover from the seller as damages the difference between the cost of cover and the contract price, together with any incidental or consequential damages defined under Commercial Code Section 2715, less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach (Com. Code § 2712(2); see KGM Harvesting Co. v. Fresh Network (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 389, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286).

F. Buyer's Right to Other Remedies After Attempted Cover. Failure of the buyer to effect cover under Commercial Code Section 2712 does not bar the buyer from any other remedy (Com. Code § 2712(3)).

[OR, if buyer seeks damages under Com. Code § 2713]

G. Buyer's Right to Recover Damages for Nondelivery. Whether or not the buyer has canceled a contract for the sale of goods under Commercial Code Section 2711(1), the buyer may recover so much of the price as has been paid, and, in addition, may recover damages for nondelivery as provided in Commercial Code Section 2713 (Com. Code § 2711(1)(b)).

[CONTINUE, relettering as appropriate depending on which alternatives are selected above]

H. Measure of Damages. The measure of damages for nondelivery or repudiation by the seller is the difference between the market price at the time when the buyer learned of the breach, and the contract price, together with any incidental and consequential damages provided in Commercial Code Section 2715, less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach, and subject to the provisions regarding proof-of-market price under Commercial Code Section 2723 (Com. Code § 2713(1)).

I. Buyer's Incidental Damages. Incidental damages resulting from the seller's breach include expenses reasonably incurred in inspection, receipt, transportation, care, and custody of goods rightfully rejected, any commercially reasonable charges, expenses, or commissions in connection with effecting cover, and any other reasonable expense incident to the delay or other breach (Com. Code § 2715(1)).

[Optional] J. Incidental Damages Include Storage and Handling Costs. On nonacceptance of goods, a buyer's reasonable costs of storage and handling, and interest on that amount, constitute incidental damages (S & R Metals, Inc. v. C. Itoh & Co. (America) (9th Cir. 1988) 859 F.2d 814, 818) .

K. Buyer's Consequential Damages. Consequential damages resulting from the seller's breach include any loss resulting from general or particular requirements and needs of which the seller at the time of contracting had reason to know, and that could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise; and injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty (Com. Code § 2715(2)).

[Optional] L. Consequential Damages Include Lost Profits. In addition to the difference between the market price and the contract price, the buyer can recover consequential damages, such as lost profits, to the extent they could not have been avoided by cover (Sun-Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 791, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612).

[Optional] M. Seller That Knows Buyer Will Resell for Profit Is Liable for Lost Profits. If the seller knows that the buyer is in the business of reselling the goods, the seller is charged with knowledge that the buyer will be selling the goods in anticipation of a profit; therefore, absent a contractual provision against consequential damages, a seller in breach is liable for the buyer's resulting loss of profit (Sun-Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 791-792, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612).

[Optional] N. Seller Has Burden of Proving Inadequate Mitigation. Under Commercial Code Section 2715, the breaching party has the burden of proving the inadequacy of efforts to mitigate consequential damages (Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 818, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that plaintiff buyer is entitled to recover damages based on defendant seller's breach of the contract arising from either defendant's nondelivery, or defendant's delivery of nonconforming goods or delivery of goods in a manner not in compliance with the contract, when plaintiff has rejected the goods for that reason [see generally Com. Code §§ 2711 (right to cancel and cover), 2712 (right to damages after cover), 2713 (measure of damages), 2715 (incidental and consequential damages)]. Optional Paragraph B is for use to assert breach of an installment contract. Optional Paragraph J is for use to assert that incidental damages include storage and handling costs. Optional Paragraphs L and M are for use to seek damages based on lost profits. Optional Paragraph N is for use to assert that the breaching seller has the burden to prove that the buyer's attempted mitigation of consequential damages was inadequate.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the buyer's right to remedies based on the seller's breach of contract, after nondelivery or rejection of the goods. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should describe the seller's breach, and apply the appropriate remedy sought.

[b] Installment Contracts

An installment contract is one that requires or authorizes the delivery of goods in separate lots to be separately accepted, even though the contract contains a clause stating "each delivery is a separate contract," or equivalent language [Com. Code § 2612(1)]. The buyer may reject any installment that is nonconforming if the nonconformity substantially impairs the value of that installment and cannot be cured, or if the nonconformity is a defect in the required documents. However, if the nonconformity does not fall within Com. Code § 2612(3) (breach of the whole contract), and the seller gives adequate assurance of its cure, the buyer must accept that installment [Com. Code § 2612(2)]. When the seller breaches the whole contract, the aggrieved party nevertheless reinstates the contract by either accepting a nonconforming installment without giving seasonable notice of cancellation, bringing an action with respect only to past installments, or demanding performance of future installments [Com. Code § 2612(3)].

[c] Proof of Market Price

Market price is to be determined as of the place of arrival in cases of rejection after arrival or revocation of acceptance [Com. Code § 2713(2)].

If an action based on anticipatory repudiation comes to trial before the time for performance with respect to some or all of the goods, any damages based on market price, under Com. Code § 2708 or 2713, are determined according to the price of the goods prevailing at the time when the aggrieved party learned of the repudiation [Com. Code § 2723(1)].

If evidence of a price prevailing at the times or places described in Com. Code § 2101 et seq. is not readily available, the price prevailing within any reasonable time before or after the time described, or at any other place that in commercial judgment or under usage of trade serves as a reasonable substitute for the one described, may be used, making any proper allowance for the cost of transporting the goods to or from the other place [Com. Code § 2723(2)].

Evidence of a relevant price prevailing at a time or place other than the one described in Com. Code § 2101 et seq. offered by one party is not admissible unless and until that party has given the other party notice that the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise [Com. Code § 2723(3)].

[d] Buyer's Security Interest and Right of Resale

On rightful rejection or justifiable revocation of acceptance, a buyer has a security interest in goods in the buyer's possession or control for any payments made on their price and any expenses reasonably incurred in their inspection, receipt, transportation, care, and custody, and may hold the goods and resell them in the same manner as an aggrieved seller, pursuant to Com. Code § 2706 [Com. Code § 2711(3); see § 206.41].

[e] Buyer's Right to Goods on Seller's Insolvency

If the seller fails to deliver or repudiates, and if the goods have been identified, the buyer may, in addition to the remedies provided under Com. Code § 2711(1), recover the goods as provided under Com. Code § 2502 [Com. Code § 2711(2)(a)]. A buyer who has paid a part or all of the price of goods in which the buyer has a special property interest under Com. Code § 2501 may, on making and keeping good a tender of any unpaid portion of their price, recover them from the seller if the seller becomes insolvent within 10 days after receipt of the first installment on their price, even though the goods have not been shipped, and, if the identification creating the special interest has been made by the buyer, only with respect to goods that conform to the contract for sale [Com. Code § 2502(1)(b), (3)].

[f] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.46 and 206.47 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer's Right to Damages After Cover

In KGM Harvesting Co. v. Fresh Network (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286 , the seller under contract for the sale of lettuce sued the buyer for the balance allegedly due on invoices, and the buyer cross-complained, alleging breach of contract. The trial court determined that the seller breached the contract and that the buyer was entitled to cover damages (and prejudgment interest beginning 30 days before trial). Both buyer and seller appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed in part (on the issue of cover damages) and reversed and remanded in part (on the issue of the date from which buyer was entitled to prejudgment interest) (36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 389, 392) . The seller contended that the contract-cover differential is inappropriate when the aggrieved buyer is ultimately able to pass on its additional costs to other parties, and that Com. Code § 1305 (formerly 110) acts to limit the amount of damages otherwise recoverable under Com. Code § 2712, requiring that all subsequent events impacting on the buyer's ultimate profit or loss be taken into consideration. In this case, the buyer had passed on all but $70,000 of its loss to a lettuce broker (36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 384) .

The seller relied on Sun Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612 (discussed under § 206.43[3][c]) and Allied Canners & Packers, Inc. v. Victor Packing Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 209 Cal. Rptr. 60 . The court explained that Sun Maid did not stand for the proposition that the non-breaching party is entitled to nothing more than being placed in the position that would have resulted from the breaching party's full performance (36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 385) . The court also noted that Allied Canners, which holds that Com. Code § 1305 does act as a limitation of the amount of damages otherwise recoverable under Com. Code § 2713, has been sharply criticized. The court explained that although it had serious reservation about whether the result in Allied Canners, with its "inappropriate" emphasis on the good faith of the breaching party in a commercial sales case, would be appropriate in an action seeking damages under Com. Code § 2713, it had no reservation about not extending the Allied Canners rationale to a Com. Code § 2712 case such as the one at issue. Quoting what it had earlier referred to as the "unequivocal language of [Com. Code] section 2712" (36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 381) , the court concluded that when a buyer "cover[s] by making in good faith and without reasonable delay any reasonable purchase ... of goods in substitution for those due from the seller, ... [the buyer] may recover from the seller as damages the difference between the cost of cover and the contract price ... " This, the court reasoned, gives the buyer the benefit of the bargain. What the buyer then chooses to do with that bargain is not relevant to the determination of damages under Com. Code § 2712 (36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 389) .

[b] Incidental Damages Include Storage and Handling Costs

In S & R Metals, Inc. v. C. Itoh & Co. (America) (9th Cir. 1988) 859 F.2d 814 , the buyer under contract for the sale of bulk steel brought an action against the seller after revoking acceptance of the goods based on their defective quality. The district court found that plaintiff was entitled to revoke acceptance, and awarded damages, interest, and costs, based on the purchase price of the revoked steel, the reasonable cost of transportation from the delivery place to plaintiff's facility, the reasonable costs of storage and handling, and interest. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeals affirmed. With respect to damages, defendant argued that a contract clause excluding recovery for "special, indirect, or consequential damages" prevents plaintiff from recovering storage, handling, or interest charges. The court held that Com. Code § 2715(1) defines incidental damages as including expenses reasonably incurred in the receipt, care, and custody of goods. Because consequential damages are defined in a separate subsection of that statute (Com. Code § 2515(2)), these expenses are distinct from consequential damages. The court also held that storage and handling charges are included in expenses for receipt, care, and custody. Because the contract did not exclude incidental damages, it did not exclude storage and handling expenses, which were therefore properly awarded (859 F.2d 814, 818) .

[c] Consequential Damages Include Lost Profits

In Sun-Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612 , a raisin company brought an action against a packing company, seeking specific performance, injunctive relief, and damages based on breach of an agreement to supply raisins over a period of time. Defendant supplied a portion of the order before August of the relevant year, when it breached the agreement. Plaintiff purchased from other sources some of the raisins it needed, but the crop was damaged by heavy rainfall in September, which increased the market price and prevented plaintiff from purchasing the entire amount needed. The trial court found for plaintiff, and awarded damages based on lost profits. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 795) . Defendant contended that the damages award for lost profits was excessive (146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 789) . The court stated that the basic measure of damages for a seller's nondelivery or repudiation is the difference between the market price and the contract price, in addition to which the buyer can recover incidental damages such as expenses of cover (Com. Code § 2715(1)), and consequential damages such as lost profits (Com. Code § 2715(2)(a)), to the extent they could not have been avoided by cover (146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 790-791) . Under Com. Code § 2715(2)(a), consequential damages include any loss resulting from general or particular requirements and needs of which the seller at the time of contracting had reason to know, and that could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise. The "reason to know" language arises from the foreseeability requirement under Hadley v. Baxendale (1854) 9 Ex. 341, 347, 156 Eng. Rep. 145. The court noted, however, that the Commercial Code has imposed an objective, rather than a subjective, standard in determining whether the seller should have anticipated the buyer's needs. Thus, actual knowledge by the seller of the buyer's requirements is not required. The only requirement under the statute is that the seller reasonably should have been expected to know of the buyer's exposure to loss. The U.C.C. Comment to Com. Code § 2715 provides that if the seller knows that the buyer is in the business of reselling the goods, the seller is charged with knowledge that the buyer will be selling the goods in anticipation of a profit (146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 791) . Therefore, absent a contractual provision against consequential damages, a seller in breach will always be liable for the buyer's resulting loss of profit (146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 791-792) . In the instant case, the evidence supported the finding that plaintiff acted in good faith in a commercially reasonable manner to cover, and that the trial court awarded the lesser of the actual cost of cover and the loss of prospective profits (146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 792) . Inasmuch as defendant was charged at the time of contracting with the knowledge that plaintiff would resell the raisins to its customers and attempt to cover in the manner in which it subsequently did, defendant had reason to know that its failure to deliver a portion of the raisins in a timely manner would result in lost profits on resales by plaintiff (146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 793) . The court rejected defendant's claim that it was not liable for damages based on the high price of raisins caused by rains that destroyed much of that season's crop, because the possibility of rain damage was clearly foreseeable. The fact that defendant might be surprised by an extraordinary rise in the market price does not mean that the buyer's prospective profits on resale are unforeseeable as a matter of law (146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 794) .

[d] Seller That Knows Buyer Will Resell for Profit Is Liable for Lost Profits

Sun-Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612 , is discussed under § 206.43[3][c].

[e] Seller Has Burden of Proving Inadequate Mitigation

In Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261 , the buyer under contract to purchase chicken feed brought an action against the seller based on fraud and breach of warranty. (For points and authorities dealing with warranty issues, see § 206.60 et seq.) With respect to plaintiff's request for consequential damages under Com. Code § 2715(2)(a), based on loss of goodwill, the trial court granted defendant's motion for nonsuit, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with respect to that issue (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 819) . The court noted that the nonsuit was granted on the theory that Com. Code § 2715(2)(a) places on the aggrieved party the burden of showing it took reasonable steps to mitigate its consequential damages, and that the trial court determined, as a matter of law, that plaintiff failed to present evidence to meet that burden (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 814) . The court stated that the burden of proof with regard to mitigation of consequential damages under Com. Code § 2715(2)(a) is a case of first impression (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 814-815) . The statute itself is ambiguous in this respect, and the U.C.C. Comments to Com. Code § 2715 do not address the issue, although the Comments do indicate that the right to consequential damages should be broadly construed (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 815) . The Comment also states that the burden of proving the extent of loss incurred by way of consequential damages is on the buyer, but does not address the allocation of the burden of proof on the mitigation issue (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 815-816) . The statute has been construed to be a codification of prior California law that the buyer must attempt to minimize damages. Thus, the adoption of the U.C.C. did nothing to alter preexisting California law on the right to recover consequential damages and the duty to mitigate losses (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 816) . The court concluded that it should continue to place the burden on this issue on the breaching party (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 817) . Accordingly, the court reversed judgment, because defendant never presented evidence on the issue of plaintiff's mitigation of the consequential damages arising from defendant's breach (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 818-819) . The court also determined issues regarding an offset of a cross claim (189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 819-821) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Consequential Damages Include Lost Profits

In Grupe v. Glick (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 680, 160 P.2d 832 , a breach of warranty action based on a sale of oil-refining equipment, the trial court entered judgment for the plaintiff buyer, and awarded damages, including those based on lost profits. The Supreme Court reversed and remanded, because the trial court failed to make certain findings in support of the award for damages based on lost profits (26 Cal. 2d 680, 694) . With respect to the issue of lost profits, the Court stated that the loss of future profits is subject to the general rule that the amount that would have come, but for the defendant's wrongful act, to the plaintiff, must be certain and must have been within the contemplation of the parties when they contracted (26 Cal. 2d 680, 691) . When the operation of an established business is prevented or interrupted, as by a tort, or breach of contract or warranty, damages for the loss of prospective profits that otherwise might have been made from its operation are generally recoverable because their occurrence and extent may be ascertained with reasonable certainty from the past volume of business and other provable data relevant to the probable future sales (26 Cal. 2d 680, 692) . Damages for the loss of prospective profits are recoverable if the evidence makes reasonably certain their occurrence and extent (26 Cal. 2d 680, 693) .

Counsel should note that although Grupe involves a breach of warranty (see § 206.60 et seq.), it has been cited in an action based on breach of contract for the sale of goods, for its holding regarding a buyer's right to recover lost profits if the evidence shows with reasonable certainty both their occurrence and extent [see Gerwin v. Southeastern Cal. Assn. of Seventh Day Adventists (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 209, 221, 92 Cal. Rptr. 111 (action by buyer for specific performance or damages based on breach of contract)].

In Green Wood Indus. Co. v. Forceman Int'l Dev. Group, Inc. (2008) 156 Cal. App. 4th 766, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 , the defendant induced the plaintiff to prepay part of the price for goods that the defendant promised to deliver, although in fact the defendant did not have the goods and had no intention of obtaining the goods for delivery to the plaintiff. The plaintiff had made a resale contract, which could not be performed because of the defendant's fraudulent nondelivery of the goods. The plaintiff, having elected not to cover, sued and obtained a verdict for recovery of the amount paid [see Com. Code § 2711(1)] and recovery of the profit lost on the resale contract. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment awarding the amount prepaid and the amount of lost profit. The defendant had contended that the lost profit was not recoverable, that the measure of recovery was the difference between the contract price and the market price of the goods as stated in Com. Code § 2713. The court of appeal pointed out that the statute goes on to say "together with any incidental and consequential damages" pursuant to Com. Code § 2715 and cited Sun-Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612 , discussed in § 206.43[3][c], for its conclusion that consequential damages can include lost profit on a resale contract (156 Cal. App. 4th 766, 773-774) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.44

§ 206.44 Supporting Contention That Buyer Entitled to Consequential Damages [Com. Code § 2715(2)]--Limited or Exclusive Contract Remedy [Com. Code § 2719(1)] Barring Consequential Damages Failed of Its Essential Purpose [Com. Code § 2719(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES AS PROVIDED IN COMMERCIAL CODE SECTION 2715 BECAUSE THE _____ [EXCLUSIVE or LIMITED] CONTRACT REMEDY PURPORTING TO BAR RECOVERY TO CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES HAS FAILED OF ITS ESSENTIAL PURPOSE, AND PLAINTIFF IS THEREFORE ENTITLED TO THE REMEDIES UNDER THE COMMERCIAL CODE, WHICH INCLUDE RECOVERY OF CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES.

A. Failure of Limited Remedy of Its Essential Purpose. If circumstances cause an exclusive or limited remedy to fail of its essential purpose, remedy may be had as provided in the Commercial Code (Com. Code § 2719(2); RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 543, 547) .

B. Consequential Damages Permitted When Limited Remedy Fails of Its Essential Purpose. When a limited damages provision excluding recovery of consequential damages fails in its essential purpose, the award of consequential damages is permitted (RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 543, 547) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that plaintiff buyer is entitled to recover consequential damages despite a contractual provision either limiting or excluding that right. The ground of the contention is that the limited remedy failed of its essential purpose, and plaintiff is therefore entitled to consequential damages as provided in Com. Code § 2715 [see Com. Code § 2719(2), (3)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which the issue of the buyer's right to consequential damages is raised. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. This issue is particularly fact-oriented, evidenced by decisions stating that "each case must stand on its own facts" [see RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 543, 547 (discussed under § 206.44[3][a]); S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363, 1376 (discussed in § 206.47[3][a])]. Therefore, counsel should set forth all applicable facts in detail and show that under all circumstances of the case, the seller's breach is total or fundamental, and therefore that any bar or limit to the recovery of consequential damages is unenforceable. Facts supporting this contention include the seller's willful and arbitrary denial of its duty to repair or replace the goods, as well as the seller's untimely and sporadic efforts to comply with the contractual remedy [see, e.g., Fiorito Bros., Inc. v. Fruehauf Corp. (9th Cir. 1984) 747 F.2d 1309, 1312 (seller's "callous disregard" of limited remedy's purpose; discussed under § 206.44[4][a])]. Facts falling short of these circumstances, however, may also support this contention if the seller's efforts, however diligent, to comply with the limited remedy provision fail to rectify the problem substantially.

[b] Factual Showing Required

Counsel should note that one commentator has observed a trend in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals toward finding a "total and fundamental" failure of the limited remedy (rendering a contractual limit to recovery of consequential damages ineffective) under facts exhibiting less than willful conduct by the seller, an apparent retreat from that court's previous view that a limited remedy did not fail in that respect absent the seller's willful failure to comply with it (as opposed to the seller's inability to comply). That commentator noted, for example, that although the court in RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 543 construed S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363 (discussed in § 206.47[3][a]), it ignored the reasoning in Wilson, in that the Wilson court was heavily influenced by the fact that the seller did not willfully refuse to repair, but rather was unable to do so [see Comment, RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc.: Is the Ninth Circuit's Inconsequential Treatment of Consequential Damages Limitations Under U.C.C. § 2-719 Unconscionable? 20 Loy. L.A.L. Rev. 181, 202 (1986)]. (The court in Wilson also reasoned that the buyer's right to Commercial Code remedies in light of the failure of a limited remedy's essential purpose does not necessarily nullify a contractual bar to consequential damages, in which case the buyer ordinarily would be entitled to recover the measure of damages appropriate to that type of contract [see S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363, 1375 (parties stipulated that buyer's damages consisted only of consequential damages)].) In light of the apparent trend evidenced by RRX Industries, it appears that courts applying California law may decide whether a limited remedy's essential purpose has failed based on the ultimate outcome of the seller's efforts, rather than the extent and sincerity of those efforts.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.47 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure of Limited Remedy

In RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 543 , the buyer of a computer software system brought a diversity action in federal district court against the seller based on defects in the product. Plaintiff filed suit after repeated unsuccessful efforts by defendant to render the software functional. The district court found that defendant breached the contract, and awarded plaintiff the amount paid under the contract plus consequential damages.

Defendant appealed.

The court of appeals affirmed (772 F.2d 543, 547) . With respect to the issue of damages, defendant asserted that the award of consequential damages was improper because the contract limited damages to the amount paid. The court stated that a plaintiff may pursue all the remedies available for breach of contract if its exclusive or limited remedy fails of its essential purpose, pursuant to Com. Code § 2719(2). Pursuant to S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363, 1375 (discussed in § 206.47[3][a]), the same court reasoned that when parties agree to a limitation of damages provision, courts should not alter the bargained-for risk allocation unless a breach of contract is so fundamental that it causes a loss that is not part of that allocation. The court in the instant case stated that the district court's award of consequential damages is consistent with the holding of Wilson, agreeing with the district court's finding that inasmuch as defendant was either unwilling or unable to provide a system that worked as represented, or to fix the "bugs" in the software, the limited remedies under the contract failed of their essential purpose. It held that the district court properly found the default of the seller so total and fundamental that its consequential damages limitation was expunged from the contract. Consequently, plaintiff was entitled to consequential damages under the Commercial Code. The court stressed that the applicability of Com. Code § 2719(2) depends on the facts of each case (772 F.2d 543, 547) .

[b] Consequential Damages Permitted When Limited Remedy Fails of Its Essential Purpose

For discussion of RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 543 , see § 206.44[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure of Limited Remedy of Its Essential Purpose

In Milgard Tempering, Inc. v. Selas Corp. of America (9th Cir. 1990) 902 F.2d 703 , the court of appeals affirmed the district court's holding that a "repair or replacement" remedy in a contract for the sale of a glass-tempering furnace failed of its essential purpose, rendering the contractual "cap" on the recovery of consequential damages unenforceable. The district court's holding was based on the findings that the furnace never lived up to the contract specifications and that the few successful improvements made by the seller were not made within a reasonable period of time (902 F.2d 703, 706-709) . Although this case was decided according to Washington law, it construes S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363 , decided under California law (discussed in § 206.47[3][a]).

In Fiorito Bros., Inc. v. Fruehauf Corp. (9th Cir. 1984) 747 F.2d 1309 , the court of appeals affirmed the district court's holding that a "repair or replacement" remedy under a contract to sell trucks intended to haul wet concrete failed of its essential purpose, in an action by the buyer against the seller based on the trucks' inability to hold concrete, and the seller's subsequent denial that the problems were covered under warranty. The district court described defendant's conduct as "callous disregard" for the purposes for which the exclusive repair-or-replacement remedy was designed. The buyer was therefore entitled to consequential damages because the contractual clause barring those damages was unenforceable (747 F.2d 1309, 1312-1315) . Although this case was decided according to Washington law, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has noted that it does not differ significantly from California law [see RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 543, 547 , discussed under § 206.44[3][a]].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.45

§ 206.45 Supporting Contention That Buyer Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Contract--Buyer's Right to Specific Performance [Com. Code §§ 2711(2)(b), 2716]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF BUYER IS ENTITLED TO SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF THE CONTRACT BREACHED BY DEFENDANT SELLER BECAUSE _____ [THE GOODS ARE UNIQUE or specify proper circumstances, e.g., PLAINTIFF IS UNABLE TO COVER THE GOODS].

A. Buyer's Right to Specific Performance. If the seller fails to deliver or repudiates, the buyer may, in a proper case, obtain specific performance pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2716 (Com. Code § 2711(2)(b)).

B. Remedy of Specific Performance. Specific performance may be decreed if the goods are unique or in other proper circumstances. The decree for specific performance may include such terms and conditions as to payment of the price, damages, or other relief as the court may deem just (Com. Code § 2716(1), (2)).

[Optional] C. Inability to Cover Constitutes Special Circumstances. The relief of specific performance may be granted in proper circumstances, which include the buyer's inability to cover or replace the goods (Kaiser Trading Co. v. Associated Metals & Minerals Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1970) 321 F. Supp. 923, 932) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that plaintiff buyer is entitled to specific performance of the contract for the sale of goods [see Com. Code § 2716]. Optional Paragraph C is for use to assert that plaintiff's inability to cover or replace the goods is a circumstance under which the remedy of specific performance is available.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the buyer's right to specific performance of a contract for the sale of goods. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth plaintiff's ground for entitlement to specific performance, that is, describe the goods as unique, or set forth other proper circumstances.

[b] Replevin Available

If the seller fails to deliver or repudiates, the buyer may, in a proper case, obtain replevin pursuant to Com. Code § 2716 [Com. Code § 2711(2)(b)]. The buyer has a right of replevin for goods identified to the contract if after reasonable effort the buyer is unable to effect cover for the goods, if the circumstances reasonably indicate that the effort will be unavailing, or if the goods have been shipped under reservation and satisfaction of the security interest in them has been made or tendered [Com. Code § 2716(3); see Com. Code § 2505 (shipment under reservation)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of specific performance generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 528, Specific Performance (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda related to specific performance generally, see Ch. 214, Specific Performance .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inability to Cover Constitutes Special Circumstances

In Kaiser Trading Co. v. Associated Metals & Minerals Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1970) 321 F. Supp. 923 , a buyer under contract to purchase a chemical compound brought an action in federal district court against the seller, seeking specific performance, damages, and injunctive relief. Plaintiff required the chemical compound, cryolite, for use in the production of aluminum. With respect to the remedy of specific performance under Com. Code § 2716(1), the court noted that the enactment of that statute broadened the availability of specific performance from those situations involving only ascertained or specified goods, to situations involving "other proper circumstances." The court noted that the U.C.C. Comment [see U.C.C. Comment 2 to Com. Code § 2716] states that uniqueness is not the sole basis of the remedy under the statute, because relief may also be granted in other proper circumstances, and that inability to cover is strong evidence of other proper circumstances. Although no California case has held explicitly that an inability to cover is sufficient justification for decreeing specific performance, other jurisdictions have done so (321 F. Supp. 923, 932) . Based on those decisions, the U.C.C. Comment to Com. Code § 2716, and the general trend toward a more liberalized availability of specific performance, the court held that the remedy is available when goods cannot be covered or replaced (321 F. Supp. 923, 932-933) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.46

§ 206.46 Opposing Contention That Buyer Entitled to Contract-Market Price Measure of Damages on Nondelivered or Rejected Goods [Com. Code § 2713]--Buyer Limited to Actual Loss When Seller Knew of Resale Contract [Com. Code § 1305(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF BUYER IS LIMITED TO ITS ACTUAL LOSS, RATHER THAN THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE MARKET PRICE AND THE CONTRACT PRICE, BECAUSE DEFENDANT SELLER KNEW THAT PLAINTIFF HAD A RESALE CONTRACT, PLAINTIFF HAS NOT SHOWN THAT IT IS LIABLE IN DAMAGES TO THE BUYER UNDER THAT CONTRACT, AND DEFENDANT HAS NOT ACTED IN BAD FAITH IN BREACHING THE CONTRACT WITH PLAINTIFF.

Buyer Limited to Actual Loss. When the seller knew that the buyer had a resale contract, the buyer is not liable in damages to the buyer on its forward contract, and the seller has not acted in bad faith, on the seller's breach of a contract for the sale of goods, the award of damages to the buyer is limited to the buyer's actual loss, or the amount that it expected to make on the transaction (Allied Canners & Packers, Inc. v. Victor Packing Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 915, 209 Cal. Rptr. 60 ; see Com. Code §§ 1305, 2713).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that plaintiff buyer is entitled to a measure of damages based on the difference between the market price and the contract price, on the seller's breach of a contract for the sale of goods based on nondelivered or rejected goods. The ground of the contention is that the buyer is entitled to only its actual loss, because the seller knew that the buyer had a resale contract, the buyer is not liable in damages to the buyer on its forward contract, and the seller has not acted in bad faith [see Allied Canners & Packers, Inc. v. Victor Packing Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 915, 209 Cal. Rptr. 60 ; see also Com. Code §§ 1305, 2713].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the scope of the buyer's recoverable damages. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that at the time of contracting, defendant seller knew that plaintiff buyer had a resale contract, that plaintiff was not liable in damages to the buyer on its forward contract, and that defendant did not act in bad faith.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.43.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer Limited to Actual Loss

In Allied Canners & Packers, Inc. v. Victor Packing Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 209 Cal. Rptr. 60 , a raisin exporter brought an action against a fruit processor, seeking damages based on the defendant's failure to deliver a shipment of raisins pursuant to contract. Raisins that are to be sold outside the United States are subject to certain governmental controls administered by the Raisin Administrative Committee (RAC), and are priced substantially below the prevailing market price. Plaintiff, as an exporter, was not eligible to purchase these raisins directly. Defendant, which was eligible to buy the raisins, contracted to sell them to plaintiff, with the knowledge that plaintiff intended in turn to fulfill contracts to supply the raisins to several Japanese firms, pursuant to "forward contracts." Plaintiff was to realize a profit of approximately $4,000. Subsequently, the raisin crop was severely damaged by heavy rainfall. At that point, defendant had not yet applied to purchase the raisins required to fulfill its contract with plaintiff, and the RAC withdrew its offer to release the raisins to any subsequent applicants. Defendant conceded that it breached the contract with plaintiff by notifying plaintiff that it would not deliver the raisins pursuant to the contract. Plaintiff did not cover by purchasing raisins on the open market, which would have cost four times the contract price. The buyers under plaintiff's resale contract either rescinded or did not sue; and plaintiff paid no damages voluntarily. The trial court found that plaintiff was a broker, rather than a buyer, and therefore was not entitled to damages under the Commercial Code. The court found in favor of plaintiff in the amount of the $4,000 it would have profited under its forward contracts, categorizing the damages as lost "commission." Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that although plaintiff was in fact a buyer, rather than a broker, for purposes of applying Commercial Code remedies it was entitled to damages only in the amount of its actual loss (162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 910-916) . The relevant remedies for nondelivery of goods by a seller are provided by Com. Code §§ 2712 (cover damages), 2713 (damages when buyer has not covered), and 2715 (incidental and consequential damages). Pursuant to Com. Code § 2712(1), after a breach within Com. Code § 2711, the buyer may cover, by making in good faith and without unreasonable delay, any reasonable purchase of goods in substitution for those due from the seller. Pursuant to Com. Code § 2712(2), the buyer may recover from the seller as damages, the difference between the cost of cover and the contract price, together with any incidental or consequential damages, less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach. Com. Code § 2713(1) provides that the measure of damages when the buyer has not covered is the difference between the market price when the buyer learned of the breach and the contract price, together with incidental and consequential damages. The court noted that Com. Code §§ 2712 and 2713 are sometimes referred to as

"cover" and "hypothetical cover," respectively, because the first involves an actual entry into the market by the buyer, and the second does not (162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 911) . The use of the market-contract price formula under Com. Code § 2713 does not, absent pure accident, result in a damage award reflecting the buyer's actual loss. In the instant case, plaintiff's actual lost profit was $4,000, although application of the market-contract price formula would yield damages of approximately $150,00. Courts interpreting the Uniform Commercial Code are divided on the issue of whether market damages, even though in excess of the plaintiff's loss, are appropriate for a supplier's breach of delivery obligations. One legal commentator has suggested that Com. Code § 2713 is either an historical anomaly (because cover was not a recognized remedy under pre-Commercial Code law), or, more likely, a statutory liquidated damage clause, that is, a breach inhibitor, the payout of which need bear no close relation to plaintiff's actual loss (162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 912-913) . It noted, however, that the explanation conflicts with Com. Code § 1305(a) (formerly 1106(1)), which provides that the remedies under the Commercial Code must be liberally administered to the end that the aggrieved party may be put in as good a position as if the other party had fully performed (162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 913) . Viewing Com. Code § 2713 as, in effect, a statutory provision for liquidated damages, the court framed the issue before it as the determination of whether a damage award to a buyer who has not covered is ever appropriately limited to the buyer's actual economic loss that is below the damages produced by the market-contract formula, and, if so, whether the rule is applicable to the present case (162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 913-914) .

Under one view, Com. Code § 2713 establishes the principle that a buyer's resale contract and damage claims made under it are irrelevant to an award of damages, and that damages therefore cannot be limited to a plaintiff's actual economic loss. It can be argued, however, that Com. Code § 1305(a) (formerly 1106(1)) calls for an opposite conclusion. The court found no cases discussing the interaction of Com. Code §§ 1305 and 2713, although some pre-Uniform Commercial Code cases held that a limitation to actual losses should be placed on the market-contract price measure of damages under general contract principles (162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 914) . In the instant case, the seller knew that the buyer had a resale contract (necessarily so because of RAC requirements), the buyer has not been able to show that it will be liable in damages to the buyer on its forward contracts, and there has been no finding of bad faith on the part of the seller. Under these circumstances, the court concluded that the policy of Com. Code § 1305(a) to put the aggrieved party in as good a position as if the other party had performed requires that the award of damages to the buyer be limited to its actual loss, that is, the amount it expected to make on the transaction. The court noted that another appellate case has approved the use of Com. Code § 1305 to limit damages to the amount that would put the plaintiff in as good a position as if the defendant had performed [citing Sun-Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 792, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612 , discussed in § 206.43[3] [c] (162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 915)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.47

§ 206.47 Opposing Contention That Buyer Entitled to Consequential Damages [Com. Code § 2715(2)]--Limited or Exclusive Remedy [Com. Code § 2719(1)] Bars Consequential Damages

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF BUYER IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES FROM DEFENDANT SELLER BECAUSE THE CONTRACT BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT PROVIDED _____ [AN EXCLUSIVE or A LIMITED] REMEDY THAT _____ [BARS or LIMITS] THE AMOUNT OF RECOVERABLE CONSEQUENTIAL DAMAGES[, AND THE CONTRACTUAL REMEDY DID NOT FAIL IN ITS ESSENTIAL PURPOSE, BECAUSE DEFENDANT'S BREACH WAS NOT TOTAL OR FUNDAMENTAL].

A. Contract May Limit Damages. The agreement for the sale of goods may provide for remedies in addition to or in substitution for those provided in the Commercial Code, and may limit or alter the measure of damages recoverable under the Code, as by limiting the buyer's remedies to return of the goods and repayment of the price or to repair and replacement of nonconforming goods or parts, subject to Commercial Code provisions regarding failure of the limited remedy, unconscionability, and liquidation and limitation of damages (Com. Code § 2719(1)(a)).

B. Expressly Exclusive Remedy Is Sole Remedy. If a remedy provided in the agreement for the sale of goods is expressly agreed to be exclusive, it is the sole remedy, subject to Commercial Code provisions regarding failure of the exclusive remedy, unconscionability, and liquidation and limitation of damages (Com. Code § 2719(1)(b)).

[Optional] C. Limited Remedy Does Not Fail of Essential Purpose When Seller's Breach Not Total. In an action for breach of a contract for the sale of goods brought by a buyer against the seller, when an exclusive or limited remedy is provided to the exclusion of the recovery of consequential damages, the failure of the limited remedy to serve its essential purpose does not require the permitting of consequential damages pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2719(2) unless the seller's default is so total and fundamental as to require that the limitation be expunged from the contract (S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363, 1375) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that plaintiff buyer is entitled to recover consequential damages arising from the seller's breach of a contract for the sale of goods. The basis for the contention is that an exclusive or limited remedy under the contract excludes or limits recovery of consequential damages [see Com. Code § 2719(1)]. Optional Paragraph C is for use to assert that the contractual remedy did not fail in its essential purpose, and therefore did not effect application of remedies under the Code, because the seller's default was not total or fundamental [see S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363, 1375 ; see also § 206.44].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the scope of the buyer's recoverable damages. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth the applicable limited contractual remedy. The issue regarding whether a limited remedy failed of its essential purpose is particularly fact-oriented, evidenced by decisions stating that "each case must stand on its own facts" [see RRX Industries, Inc. v. Lab-Con, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 543, 547 (discussed in § 206.44[3][a]; S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363, 1376] . Therefore, counsel should set forth all applicable facts in detail and show that under all circumstances of the case, the seller's breach is not total or fundamental. This contention has been supported by such facts as the equal bargaining power of the parties, and their knowing and voluntary allocation of risks by virtue of the contractual limitation or exclusion, as well as extensive and timely repairs made by the seller. However, whether courts will continue to restrict a plaintiff to a limited remedy under facts such as these is subject to question in light of more recent case holdings. For further discussion, see § 206.44[2][b].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.44.

[b] Unconscionability of Limitation on Consequential Damages

A contractual limit or bar to the recovery of consequential damages may be held ineffective on the ground of unconscionability. If the loss is commercial, limitation of consequential damages is valid unless it is proved that the limitation is unconscionable. However, with respect to injury to the person in the case of consumer goods, the defendant must prove that the limitation is not unconscionable [Com. Code § 2719(3)]. This form may be adapted to include this ground. For points and authorities relating to unconscionability, see Ch. 50, Contracts .

[c] Liquidation or Limitation of Damages

The enforceability of a limited or exclusive remedy under Com. Code § 2719(1) is subject to Com. Code § 2718, which concerns liquidated and limited damages [see Com. Code § 2719(1)]. Pursuant to Com. Code § 2718(1), damages for breach by either party may be liquidated in the agreement subject to and in compliance with Civ. Code § 1671 [for further discussion of liquidated damages, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 177, Damages]. If the agreement provides for liquidation of damages not in compliance with Civ. Code § 1671, remedy may be had pursuant to Com. Code § 2101 et seq.

If the seller justifiably withholds delivery of goods because of the buyer's breach, the buyer is entitled to restitution of any amount by which the sum of his or her payment exceeds: (1) the amount to which the seller is entitled by virtue of terms liquidating the seller's damages in accordance with Com. Code § 2718(1); or (2) in the absence of those terms, the lesser amount of either 20 percent of the value of the total performance for which the buyer is obligated under the contract or $500 [Com. Code § 2718(2)]. The buyer's right to restitution under Com. Code § 2718(2) is subject to offset to the extent that the seller establishes: (1) a right to recover damages under Com. Code § 2701 et seq. other than Com. Code § 2718(1); and (2) the amount or value of any benefits received by the buyer directly or indirectly by reason of the contract [Com. Code § 2718(3)]. If a seller has received payment in goods, their reasonable value or the proceeds of their resale is treated as payments for the purposes of Com. Code § 2718(2), but if the seller has notice of the buyer's breach before reselling goods received in part performance, his or her resale is subject to the Com. Code § 2706, regarding resale by an aggrieved seller [Com. Code § 2718(4)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limited Remedy Does Not Fail of Essential Purpose When Seller's Breach Not Total

In S. M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Intern., Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363 , the buyer under a contract for the sale of a tunnel-boring machine brought an action against the seller, stating causes of action that included breach of contract and breach of implied warranty. (For points and authorities dealing with substantive warranty issues, see § 206.60.) The written agreement warranted that the machine would be free from defects in material and workmanship, and that the warranty was established expressly in lieu of all other unwritten warranties, express or implied. The seller limited its liability for any breach of warranty to repair or replacement of defective parts, and generally excluded any liability resulting from the use or loss of use of the machine. The machine did not operate properly, and the problems continued despite defendant's repeated attempts to repair it and provide various replacement parts. The federal district court found for defendant with respect to the breach of contract and breach of implied warranty causes of action, on the ground that plaintiff suffered only consequential damages (pursuant to stipulation by the parties), and that consequential damages were not recoverable. The court dismissed the remaining causes of action as well. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeals affirmed, holding, inter alia, that the contractual bar to consequential damages is valid (587 F.2d 1363, 1374-1375) . With respect to the damages issue on the breach of contract and breach of implied warranty claims, the court noted that both parties agreed that defendant's attempts to repair the machine were unsuccessful. The court framed the issue before it as the effect, if any, of the defendant's inability to repair on its disclaimers and liability limitations. If defendant's inability to repair demolishes its disclaimer and limited liability, plaintiff can invoke the implied warranty of fitness, and obtain consequential damages permitted under Com. Code § 2715 (587 F.2d 1363, 1372) . Under the Commercial Code, consequential damages are recoverable under Com. Code § 2714, regarding breach of warranty. Pursuant to Com. Code § 2719(1)(a), a seller may limit a buyer's remedy to repair and replacement of nonconforming goods or parts, but Com. Code § 2719(2) permits the buyer the remedies provided in the Commercial Code when circumstances cause an exclusive or limited remedy to fail of its essential purpose (587 F.2d 1363, 1373-1374) .

The court discussed a line of cases in other jurisdictions involving the effect of the failure of a limited remedy's essential purpose on the contractual disclaimer of implied warranties. In the among them, the failure raised an implied warranty of "reasonably prompt and timely repairs," notwithstanding a disclaimer, but the existence of an implied warranty that the product (a tractor) was good and satisfactory, and capable of doing the work for which it was sold, was prevented by the disclaimer. Those cases did not, as defendant asserted, hold that the failure wipes from the contract entirely a disclaimer of express or implied warranties, although they do preclude the existence of an implied warranty of fitness. The court stated that this line of cases supports unanimously the proposition that the failure of a limited remedy's essential purpose removes from the contract the bar to the recovery of consequential damages. Against that authority, plaintiff relied on another line of cases in other jurisdictions, in which the clause barring recovery of consequential damages survived the failure of the repair remedy in its essential purpose. The court then considered, preliminarily, the issue of whether the repair remedy failed its essential purpose (587 F.2d 1363, 1374) . The court cited commentary regarding the limited repair warranty, to the effect that it rests on at least three assumptions: that the warrantor will diligently make repairs, that the repairs will cure the defects, and that consequential loss in the interim will be negligible. As long as these assumptions hold true, the commentator stated, the limited remedy appears to operate fairly, and will usually withstand contentions of unconscionability; but when one of these assumptions proves false, the buyer may find that the substantial benefit of the bargain has been lost. The court stated that two of those assumptions proved false in the instant case: the repairs did not cure the defects, and consequential damages are not negligible. However, defendant attempted to repair the machine, but was unable to do so. As a result, plaintiff lost a substantial benefit of its bargain despite defendant's efforts to provide the limited remedy. Although the failure of the limited repair warranty to achieve its essential purpose made available to the buyer remedies under the Commercial Code, it did not mean that the bar to recovery of consequential damages should be eliminated. Under ordinary circumstances, plaintiff should be entitled to recover the monetary equivalent of the benefit of its bargain pursuant to Com. Code § 2714(2), that is, the difference between the value of what it should have received and what it actually received. However, plaintiff stipulated that it suffered only consequential damages; absent that stipulation, the court stated it would have reversed and remanded to permit plaintiff to recover damages under Com. Code § 2714(2).

The court framed the remaining issue as whether the failure of the limited repair remedy to serve its purpose requires permitting the recovery of consequential damages under Com. Code §§ 2714(3) and 2715, concluding that it does not, based on the characteristics of the contract between plaintiff and defendant. The court stated that parties of relatively equal bargaining power negotiated an allocation of their risks of loss, and consequential damages were assigned to the buyer. While the machine was a complex piece of equipment designed for the buyer's purposes, the seller did not ignore its obligation to repair, but rather was unable to perform it. This fact was not enough to require that the seller absorb losses the buyer plainly agreed to bear. Risk shifting is commercially expensive, and should not be undertaken in the absence of a good reason; an even better reason is required when shifting is contrary to a contract freely negotiated. The default of defendant, as seller, was not so total and fundamental as to require that its consequential damage limitation be expunged from the contract (587 F.2d 1363, 1375) . The court emphasized that a bar to consequential damages will not always survive the failure of a limited repair remedy to serve its essential purpose and that each case must stand on its own facts (587 F.2d 1363, 1375-1376) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
A. Sales Under Commercial Code

20-206 California Points & Authorities §§ 206.48-206.59

[Reserved]

§§ 206.48[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.60

§ 206.60 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313]--Establishing Liability Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF EXPRESS WARRANTY BASED ON _____ [specify, e.g., DEFENDANT'S AFFIRMATION OF FACT THAT _____ (specify, e.g., THE YACHT SOLD TO PLAINTIFF WAS SEAWORTHY FOR OCEAN TRAVEL), WHICH BECAME A PART OF THE BASIS OF THE BARGAIN], AND DEFENDANT'S SALE TO PLAINTIFF OF _____ [specify, e.g., A YACHT] THAT _____ [specify, e.g., FAILED TO BE SEAWORTHY].

A. Affirmation of Fact or Promise Creates Warranty. Any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer that relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the affirmation or promise (Com. Code § 2313(1)(a); Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 117, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 ; Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 22, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392).

B. Description of Goods Creates Warranty. Any description of the goods that is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the description (Com. Code § 2313(1)(b)).

C. Sample or Model Creates Warranty. Any sample or model that is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the whole of the goods will conform to the sample or model (Com. Code § 2313(1)(c)).

D. Formal Words Unnecessary. It is not necessary to the creation of an express warranty that the seller use formal words such as "warrant" or "guarantee," or that the seller have a specific intention to make a warranty, although an affirmation merely of the value of the goods or a statement purporting to be merely the seller's opinion or commendation of the goods does not create a warranty (Com. Code § 2313(2)).

[Optional] E. Privity Not Required. Privity is not required for an action based on an express warranty (Fundin v. Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 957, 199 Cal. Rptr. 789).

[Optional] F. Express Warranty Applies to Leasing of Chattel. The concept of express warranty under Commercial Code Section 2313 extends to the leasing of chattel (Pau v. Yosemite Park and Curry Co. (9th Cir. 1991) 928 F.2d 880, 886) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an express warranty regarding the sale of goods [see Com. Code § 2313]. Optional Paragraph E is for use to assert that privity is not required in an action based on breach of express warranty. Optional Paragraph F is for use to assert that the express warranty provision of Com. Code § 2313 applies to the leasing of chattel.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller is liable for breach of an express warranty regarding the sale of goods. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Factual discussion is particularly crucial if the express warranty is based on evidence other than a written promise expressly covering the defect that is the basis of the action. For example, if the seller showed plaintiff a brochure describing the vessel as "a picture of sure-footed seaworthiness," and plaintiff explained to defendant the need for a seaworthy ocean-going vessel, counsel should describe the circumstances of negotiations in detail, and argue that the assertion in the brochure became a part of the basis of the bargain, and therefore constituted an express warranty [see Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 22, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 (discussed under § 206.60[3][a])].

[b] Elimination of Reliance Requirement

The basis-of-the-bargain requirement under Com. Code § 2313 represents a significant change in the law of warranties. Prior to the adoption of the Uniform Commercial Code, plaintiffs were required to prove their reliance on specific promises made by the seller [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 115, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] . For further discussion of the evolution of this area of the law of express warranty, see the discussion of Hauter in § 206.80[3][a].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.70, 206.72 -206.95 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Affirmation of Fact or Promise Creates Warranty

In Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 , a boy who was injured by a golfing device, and his mother, who purchased the product, sued the manufacturer and seller. The device was designed to train unskilled golfers, and was advertised as a "completely equipped backyard driving range." It consisted of metal pegs for insertion into the ground, cords, and a golf ball. The label on the shipping carton and the instruction booklet urged players to "drive the ball with full power," and further stated: "COMPLETELY SAFE BALL WILL NOT HIT PLAYER." The boy, a 13-year old with limited golfing experience, read the printed instructions, and also received instructions from his father concerning the use of the device. On his thirteenth try, he took his normal swing with a seven-iron and apparently hit beneath the ball, which looped over the club and knocked him unconscious, causing brain damage. The complaint included causes of action for breach of express and implied warranties and strict products liability. At trial, experts testified that the device was dangerous when the golf club undercuts or hits beneath the ball, and was therefore particularly hazardous to beginners. After a jury verdict for defendants on each cause of action, the trial court granted plaintiffs' motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict. Defendants appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed, and remanded the case for determination of damages (14 Cal. 3d 104, 121) . With respect to the cause of action based on express warranty, the Court stated that defendants clearly created an express warranty, and that the remaining issue was whether they could escape liability by impliedly limiting the scope of their promise. Breach of express warranty is governed by Com. Code § 2313; the key to this provision is that the seller's statements, whether fact or opinion, must become part of the basis of the bargain. The Court noted that the "basis of the bargain" requirement represents a significant change in the law of warranties. Although under former law, plaintiffs had to prove their reliance on specific promises made by the seller, the Commercial Code requires no such proof. According to the U.C.C. Comment to Com. Code § 2313, no particular reliance need be shown in order to weave the seller's affirmations of fact into the fabric of the agreement. Rather, any fact that is to take those affirmations out of the agreement requires clear affirmative proof (14 Cal. 3d 104, 115) . Commentators have disagreed with regard to the impact of this development, some of whom think the bargain requirement merely shifts the burden of proving nonreliance to the seller, and some of whom find that the Code eliminates the concept of reliance altogether (14 Cal. 3d 104, 115-116) . The Court did not resolve the reliance issue, noting that plaintiffs were fully able to meet their burden under either test (14 Cal. 3d 104, 116-117) . The boy read and relied on the safety information included with the device. Defendants failed to present any evidence that could remove defendants' assurance of safety from the basis of the bargain. The Court affirmed the trial court's conclusion that defendants expressly warranted the safety of their product and were liable for the injuries that resulted from a breach of that warranty (14 Cal. 3d 104, 117) .

In Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , a yacht purchaser brought an action against the seller based on alleged unseaworthiness of the vessel. Plaintiff purchased the yacht after obtaining advertising literature, and allegedly telling sales representatives that he wished to purchase an ocean-going boat that would cruise long distances. Plaintiff's own experts inspected the boat prior to purchase and before the boat was put to sea, and they advised plaintiff that it would suit his needs. After delivery of the vessel, a dispute arose with regard to its seaworthiness. Plaintiff's complaint stated causes of action for breach of express warranty and breach of implied warranty. The trial court granted defendants' motion for judgment after the close of plaintiff's case, on the grounds that no express or implied warranties were created. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with respect to the existence of the express warranty, and remanded for further findings regarding an implied warranty (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 26) . Under Com. Code § 2313, express warranties are created by: (1) any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer that relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain; and (2) any description of the goods that is made part of the basis of the bargain. Formal words such as "warranty" or "guarantee" are not required, although the seller's affirmation of the value of the goods or an expression of opinion or commendation of the goods does not create an express warranty (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 19) . To determine whether a seller's statement constitutes an express warranty under Com. Code § 2313, the court must consider whether it constitutes an "affirmation of fact or promise" or a "description of the goods," or merely expresses the seller's opinion or commendation of the goods. If the court finds language in support of a warranty, it must then determine whether the statement was "part of the basis of the bargain," and whether the warranty was breached. A warranty relates to the title, character, quality, identity, or condition of the goods. The purpose of the law of warranty is to determine what it is that the seller has in essence agreed to sell (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 20) . Whether a particular statement is an expression of opinion or an affirmation of a fact frequently depends on the circumstances at the time the statement is made. The court observed a trend toward narrowing the scope of representations that are considered opinion, or "puffing," resulting in an expansion of the liability for broad statements regarding a product's quality. A seller's statements made during contract negotiations are presumptively affirmations of fact, unless they can reasonably be construed only as opinion. Factors that indicate an opinion include lack of spcificity, equivocality, and an assertion that the goods are experimental (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 21) . Te court concluded that representations in the sales brochure describing the vessel as "a picture of sure-footed seaworthiness" and "a carefully well-equipped and very seaworthy vessel" were affirmations of fact relating to the quality or condition of the boat.

The court noted that under former provisions of the law, a buyer was required to prove reliance on the seller's representations. Com. Code § 2313 indicates only that the seller's statements must become "part of the basis of the bargain." According to the U.C.C. Comment to that statute, no particular reliance need be shown in order to weave the seller's affirmations of fact into the fabric of the agreement. Rather, once the seller makes the affirmation, a seller can take the affirmation out of the agreement only by providing clear affirmative proof. The court noted that some commentators have criticized the impact of this development, opining that it shifts the burden of proving nonreliance to the seller, or eliminates the concept of reliance altogether (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 22) . The California Supreme Court, although not resolving the issue, has noted that other jurisdictions have retained the reliance requirement despite adoption of the Uniform Commercial Code (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 22-23) . The court stated that the degree to which the seller's representation must be shown to have affected the buyer's decision has clearly changed because of the Code. A buyer need not show that he or she would not have entered into the agreement absent the warranty, or even that it was a dominant factor inducing the agreement. A warranty statement is deemed to be part of the basis of the bargain, and to have been relied on as one of the inducements for the purchase of the product. In other words, the buyer's reliance on an express warranty is not a prerequisite for breach of warranty, as long as the express warranty became part of the bargain. If, however, the resulting bargain does not rest at all on the sellers' representations, they cannot be considered as part of the basis of the bargain. The relevant U.C.C. Comment indicates that in actual practice, affirmations of fact made by the seller about the goods during a bargain are regarded as part of the description of the gods; hence, no particular reliance on the statements need be shown in order to incorporate them into the agreement. Therefore, the representations need only be part of the basis of the bargain, or merely a factor or consideration inducing the buyer to enter into the bargain. A warranty statement made by a seller is presumptively part of the basis of the bargain, and the burden is on the seller to prove that the resulting bargain does not rest at all on the representation (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 23) .

The court stated that the buyer's actual knowledge of the true condition of the goods prior to the contract may show that he or she did not rely on the seller's statement as an inducement for the purchase, although the burden is on the seller to demonstrate the buyer's knowledge (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 23-24) . If the buyer inspects the goods before purchase, he or she may be deemed to have waived the seller's express warranties. However, an examination or inspection by the buyer does not necessarily discharge the seller from an express warranty if the defect was not actually discovered and waived. The court held that plaintiff's inspection of the boat by his own experts did not constitute a waiver of the express warranty of seaworthiness, because although they were experienced boat builders, they did not test the boat in the water, and seaworthiness necessarily relates to the vessel at sea. The court concluded that the defendant did not overcome the presumption that the representations regarding seaworthiness were part of the basis of the bargain (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 24) .

[b] Privity Not Required

The facts and procedural background of Fundin v. Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 199 Cal. Rptr. 789 , are discussed in § 206.62[3][a]. In Fundin, the court of appeal held that a contractual disclaimer was ineffective to negate an express warranty created by the manufacturer's sales brochure for a drilling rig (152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 957-958) . The court preliminarily stated that plaintiff's cause of action against the manufacturer did not require privity. When a consumer relies on representations made by a manufacturer in labels or advertising material, recovery is allowable on the theory of express warranty without a showing of privity (152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 957) .

[c] Express Warranty Applies to Leasing of Chattel

In Pau v. Yosemite Park and Curry Co. (9th Cir. 1991) 928 F.2d 880 , the survivors of a woman killed in a bicycle accident sued the company that had rented the bicycle and recommended to her the bike trail on which the accident occurred. The decedent's family, while visiting Yosemite Park, received defendant's brochure showing numerous bike trails, and advertising defendant's bike-rental service. The brochure encouraged people to "see the sights by bicycle." It illustrated various bike paths, and recommended a certain bike trail, noting that it was closed off to automobile traffic, and describing it as a "safe and enjoyable cycling area." They rented standard (one-speed) bicycles equipped with "coaster-style" brakes, which are engaged when the rider pedals backward, rather than hand brakes, which are located on the handle bars. While riding on the recommended trail, the decedent lost control of the bicycle, and speeded down a hill with her feet off the pedals, eventually striking a pedestrian and suffering fatal injuries herself. Her family brought the action in federal district court, asserting tort and breach-of-warranty causes of action. The court denied plaintiffs' summary judgment motion on the express warranty claim, ruling that that claim could proceed only as negligent or intentional misrepresentation, because the representation in question concerned only the bicycle trail, rather than the rental of the bicycle. The jury found in favor of defendant, and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeals reversed (928 F.2d 880, 891) . With respect to the express warranty claim, the court noted that the district court's ruling in effect dismissed that claim. Preliminary, it noted that the parties agree that California extends the concept of express warranty to the leasing of chattel. Under Com. Code § 2313(1)(a) and (b), express warranties by the seller are created as follows: (a) any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer that relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the affirmation or the promise; (b) any description of the goods that is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the description; and (c) any sample or model that is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the whole of the goods will conform to the sample or model. The court stated that the dismissal appeared to be based on the conclusion that the statements in defendant's brochure did not, as a matter of law, either "relate to the goods" or become "part of the basis of the bargain." The court held this conclusion to be erroneous. Based on trial testimony, a reasonable jury could have concluded that defendant's brochure advertising its rental bikes and stating that the trail was safe constituted a statement of fact that defendant's bikes were safe for that trail, and that this statement became part of the basis of the bargain (928 F.2d 880, 887) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Affirmation of Fact or Promise Creates Warranty

In McDonnell-Douglas Corp. v. Thiokol Corp. (9th Cir. 1997) 124 F.3d 1173 , the manufacturer of a space shuttle's upper stage motors contracted to provide motors to McDonnell-Douglas for inclusion in its upper-stage payload assist module, which was designed to propel satellites from the space shuttle into orbit. In the contract, the motor manufacturer warranted that the motors would be free of defects in material, labor, and manufacture and that the motors would comply with contract drawings and specifications. Following the failure of two satellites to reach their intended orbit, McDonnell-Douglas brought a warranty action against the manufacturer. The district court entered judgment against McDonnell-Douglas. The module manufacturer appealed and the appellate court affirmed (124 F.3d 1173, 1174) .

On appeal, McDonnell-Douglas argued that the manufacturer had made two separate promises, both of which constituted express warranties. McDonnell-Douglas first claimed that the manufacturer promised to deliver goods that were free from defects in labor, material, and manufacture. It also claimed that the manufacturer promised to deliver goods that complied with any drawings or specifications incorporated into or referenced by the contract. The Ninth Circuit stated that under Com. Code § 2313(1)(a), any affirmation of fact or promise relating to the subject matter of a contract for the sale of goods, which is made part of the basis of the parties' bargain, creates an express warranty. The court reviewed the criteria enumerated in Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , discussed under § 206.60[3][a]. As set forth in Keith v. Buchanan, the court first determines whether the seller's statement amounts to an affirmation of fact or promise relating to the goods sold. Second, the court determines if the affirmation or promise was part of the basis of the bargain. Finally, if the seller made a promise relating to the goods and that promise was part of the basis of the bargain, the court must determine if the seller breached the warranty (124 F.3d 1173, 1176) . In applying this three-part test, the appellate court found that the manufacturer's promise to deliver goods free from defects in labor, material, and manufacture related to the goods and was made a part of the basis of the parties' bargain, and therefore constituted an express warranty. It found, however, that the evidence did not show that the motor manufacturer breached its warranty to supply motors that were free from defects in labor, material, or manufacture. To prove a breach of that express warranty, McDonnell-Douglas had to demonstrate that the satellite motors suffered from a flaw in the quality of the material used in their construction, and McDonnell-Douglas failed to do this (124 F.3d 1173, 1177-1178) .

As to the second issue, the court stated that the essential inquiry was whether statements in a drawing attached to the contract constituted additional express warranties that were understood and bargained for by the parties. It found that these provisions would constitute performance warranties with serious financial risks involved and it would be very unusual to find the parties intended to bury them in drawings attached to the contract. It held that the facts and circumstances surrounding the making of the contract, the testimony of McDonnell-Douglas agents, understandings prevalent throughout the aerospace industry, and McDonnell-Douglas' own conduct all supported the conclusion that McDonnell Douglas did not bargain for a performance warranty. Accordingly, the court concluded that the statements in the drawings attached to the contract were not intended to be additional warranties forming a part of the bargain of the parties (124 F.3d 1173, 1178-1179) .

In Weinstat v. Dentsply Int'l, Inc. (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 , the seller's affirmations of fact became known to the buyer only after the buyer took delivery of the goods, because the statements in question were made in directions on use that were included with the goods in a sealed package. The seller argued that affirmations or descriptions concerning the goods could become express warranties only if they were part of the "dickered" aspects of the individual bargain [see Com. Code § 2313, UCC Comment 1], and thus only representations that actually reach the buyer before the purchase is consummated can become "part of the basis of the bargain" [see Com. Code § 2313(1)(a)] so as to constitute an express warranty. The court rejected that argument on several grounds, concluding that "the California Uniform Commercial Code contemplates that affirmations, promises and descriptions about the goods contained in product manuals and other materials that are given to the buyer at the time of delivery can become part of the basis of the bargain, ... notwithstanding that delivery occurs after the purchase price has been paid" (180 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1230) . Moreover, "the notion of 'good faith' which infuses the California Uniform Commercial Code affords another rationale for recognizing the validity of express warranties delivered with the purchased product. ... Even before purchasing a product, a buyer would reasonably expect any statement or description of the product appearing in a user manual or similar publication to be true, regardless of when the manual was received or read. A seller's defense based solely on the postsale timing of receipt or awareness of the manual arguably would fall short of good faith" (180 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1231) .

In Nunes Turfgrass, Inc. v. Vaughan-Jacklin Seed Co. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 246 Cal. Rptr. 823 , a sod grower brought an action against a seed company, alleging breach of warranty and products liability, based on the sale of perennial ryegrass seed that was contaminated with annual ryegrass seed. The trial court entered judgment for plaintiff, but limited the recoverable damages, and both parties appealed. The court of appeal affirmed (200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1540) . It held, inter alia, that defendant breached its express warranty to plaintiff in that defendant expressly warranted that the seed conformed to the label description as required by state and federal law, when in fact defendant failed to list the percentage by weight of annual ryegrass seed in the perennial ryegrass, as required by those laws (200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1532) . The court also discussed the contractual limitation on plaintiff's entitlement to consequential damages for breach of express warranty and breach of the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose (200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1532-1539) . For discussion of these issues in this case, see Ch. 50, Contracts .

In Putensen v. Clay Adams, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1062, 91 Cal. Rptr. 319 , a heart patient brought an action against a surgical-tubing manufacturer and others, based on injuries incurred when the surgical tubing, which was purchased by the hospital and selected by plaintiff's surgeon, kinked during a heart operation, requiring an additional procedure to remove the tubing. The court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment for defendant manufacturer, following its motion for nonsuit. With regard to the cause of action for express warranty, the court noted that defendant made no oral or written representations that the tubing was fit for that particular procedure, although it stated that the tubing was useful for moving fluids into and from body cavities, and the surgeon inferred that the tubing was suitable for that particular operation. The court held that questions of fact existed regarding whether defendant made an express warranty, and whether defendant breached the warranty, that is, whether the tubing was reasonably fit for the purpose intended (12 Cal. App. 3d 1062, 1079-1080) .

The facts and procedural background of Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Anderson (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 87 Cal. Rptr. 893 , are discussed in § 206.63[3][b]. The court in Eichler found implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular use in the sale of steel tubing (9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 231) . With respect to the express warranty claim against one of the steel manufacturers, the evidence supported the reasonable conclusion that defendant and its representatives stated that their tubing was suitable for the type of radiant heating systems installed by the subcontractors. The court interpreted former Civ. Code § 1732, which preceded Com. Code § 2313, and required reliance on the seller's affirmation by the buyer to establish an express warranty (9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 229 n.3). The court found an express warranty (under the former code) supported by substantial evidence (9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 232) . Counsel should note, however that the former law has been superseded by Com. Code § 2313, which does not require reliance, but rather indicates only that the seller's statements must become "part of the basis of the bargain" [see Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , discussed under § 206.60[3][a]].

[b] Description of Goods Creates Warranty

In Anthony v. General Motors Corp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 699, 109 Cal. Rptr. 254 , a class action suit brought by truck owners seeking a recall of the wheels installed as optional equipment by the manufacturer, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's dismissal, which was based on the determination that a class action could not be maintained (33 Cal. App. 3d 699, 709) . With respect to plaintiffs' assertion of a breach of warranty theory, the court of appeal noted that although an express warranty must ordinarily be created at the time the product is purchased, it can also be created by advertisements. An express warranty could be shown by nationwide advertisements that the wheels in question were free from inherent risk of failure; and by a plate attached to each truck referring to a user's manual, which asserted that the wheels, if loaded within stated limits, were safe and adequate for those loads (33 Cal. App. 3d 699, 706-707) .

[c] Privity Not Required

The facts and procedural background of Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 , are discussed under § 206.60[3][a]. In Hauter, the Supreme Court held that any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer that relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the affirmation or promise (14 Cal. 3d 104, 115, 117) . The Court noted that although plaintiff was not the purchaser of the product, the fact that he was not in privity with defendants did not bar recovery, because privity is not required for an action based on express warranty (14 Cal. 3d 104, 114 n.8).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.61

§ 206.61 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313]--Cause of Action Not Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Com. Code § 2725]--Warranty Explicitly Extends to Future Performance and Cause of Action Accrues on Discovery

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S CAUSE OF ACTION AGAINST DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] FOR BREACH OF EXPRESS WARRANTY IS NOT BARRED BY THE EXPIRATION OF THE FOUR-YEAR LIMITATIONS PERIOD BASED ON ACCRUAL OF THE CAUSE OF ACTION AT THE TIME OF DELIVERY, BECAUSE THE WARRANTY EXPLICITLY EXTENDS TO FUTURE PERFORMANCE OF THE GOODS, AND PLAINTIFF COULD NOT DISCOVER THE BREACH UNTIL THE TIME OF THAT PERFORMANCE. THEREFORE THE CAUSE OF ACTION ACCRUED WHEN PLAINTIFF DISCOVERED, OR SHOULD HAVE DISCOVERED, THE BREACH, WHICH OCCURRED WITHIN THE LIMITATIONS PERIOD PRIOR TO THE FILING OF THE COMPLAINT.

A. Accrual-on-Discovery Rule. When a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods and discovery of the breach must await the time of the performance, the cause of action accrues when the breach is or should have been discovered, which is an exception to the general rule that an action for breach of warranty accrues on tender of delivery (Com. Code § 2725(2); Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 215-218, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717).

[Optional] B. Promise to Repair Defects in Future. A promise to repair defects that occur during a future period constitutes an express warranty of future performance under the Commercial Code (Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 217).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a seller is liable to the buyer for breach of express warranty under the Commercial Code. The ground for the contention is that the complaint was filed within the limitations period under Com. Code § 2725 (either the four-year statutory period or a reduced period not less than one year, pursuant to the original agreement), based on the accrual-on-discovery rule applicable to an explicit extension of the warranty to future performance [see Com. Code § 2725(2)]. It is for use when the seller asserts that the action is time-barred based on the general accrual rule, which states that a cause of action under the Commercial Code accrues when the breach occurs, and that a breach of warranty occurs on tender of delivery. Optional Paragraph B is for use to assert that a promise to repair future defects constitutes an express warranty of future performance.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which the issue of the limitations period is raised. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to the complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel set forth the contract terms explicitly extending the warranty to future performance, and set forth the dates of the breach and the filing of the complaint.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.70 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Accrual-on-Discovery Rule

In Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 , an automobile owner brought a complaint for damages against the manufacturer and several dealerships, alleging defendants' inability to rectify the car's defective performance. The buyer of a new BMW automobile purchased it for his son. Within the first 24 hours of use, a portion of the drive train fell out, and performance problems continued to plague the owner. During the first five months, the car was serviced five times by the dealer that sold the car. After determining that that dealer could not repair the car, the owner took it to another dealer, at the suggestion of the distributor. The owner and the estate of the buyer (referred to in this discussion as "plaintiff") filed suit approximately three-and-a-half years after that date. The complaint stated five causes of action, including breach of warranty under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (the Consumer Warranty Act, Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.) and breach of written warranty under the Commercial Code (Com. Code § 2313). The trial court granted defendants' motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action was time-barred. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding, inter alia, that the warranty causes of action were not time-barred (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 212-215) . The court noted that one cause of action alleged breach of the warranty provisions under the Consumer Warranty Act, and another alleged breach of a written warranty to repair the vehicle within 36 months of its purchase or during the first 36,000 miles of its use, whichever first occurred (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 210-211) . Defendant's motion for summary judgment was based on the application of the three-year limitations provision under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) to the Consumer Warranty Act, and the four-year limitations provision under Com. Code § 2525 to the written warranty governed by the Commercial Code. In granting the motion, the trial court did not specify which limitation period applied to each cause of action. The court noted that Com. Code § 2725 provides a four-year limitations period for breach of warranty (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213-214) . With respect to the accrual of the cause of action, under Com. Code § 2725(2) an action for breach of warranty accrues on tender of delivery. An exception is made when a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods and discovery of the breach must await the time of that performance (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 215) . The court noted that no California case has interpreted this provision, although other jurisdictions, applying the corresponding Uniform Commercial Code provision, have held that a defendant who moves for summary judgment bears the burden of negating the applicability of the discovery exception for accrual of an action on a future warranty (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 215-216) . Plaintiff alleged in the complaint that he received a written warranty that all defects would be repaired for a period of 36 months or within the first 36,000 miles of use. In opposition to the summary judgment motion, he relied on the discovery rule under Com. Code § 2725(2), submitting a service information bulletin from the manufacturer that discussed problems caused by the fuel quality in the United States and specified that a special service program may reveal additional necessary repairs not covered by the regular BMW limited warranties (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 216) . Plaintiff also submitted repair invoices labeled "warranty," which contained standard clauses informing buyers of their repair rights during the warranty period (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 216-217) . Defendant contended that the case did not involve future performance. It argued that, if in fact BMW represented that it would repair the vehicle for 36 months or 36,000 miles, the representation constituted only an agreement to repair the vehicle free of charge, rather than a warranty of future performance or an extension of the limitations period for an additional four years. The court stated that a promise to repair defects that occur during a future period is the very definition of express warranty of future performance, under both the Consumer Warranty Act and the Commercial Code. Plaintiff's evidence was sufficient to raise a genuine issue with respect to the existence of an express warranty under Com. Code § 2313 (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 217) . The court concluded that plaintiff raised an issue of material fact with regard to the applicability of the accrual-on-discovery rule codified in Com. Code § 2725(2) (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 218) . The court also stated that because both causes of action are governed by the same statute of limitations, the same rule of accrual applies as well. Under the facts, a reasonable trier of fact could conclude that the causes of action accrued when the owner determined that the first dealership could not fix the car. Inasmuch as the complaint was filed less than four years after that date, it is not time-barred (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 218-219) .

[b] Promise to Repair Defects in Future

Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 215-218, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 , is discussed under § 206.61[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.62

§ 206.62 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316(1)] Ineffective--Disclaimer Inconsistent With Language of Express Warranty

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF EXPRESS WARRANTY DESPITE THE PURPORTED CONTRACTUAL DISCLAIMER, BECAUSE THE DISCLAIMER IS INCONSISTENT WITH THE LANGUAGE DESCRIBING THE EXPRESS WARRANTY.

A. Construction of Words Creating and Negating Warranty. Words or conduct relevant to the creation of an express warranty and words or conduct tending to negate or limit warranty are construed whenever reasonable as consistent with each other; but subject to Commercial Code Section 2202, regarding parol or extrinsic evidence, negation or limitation is inoperative to the extent that the construction is unreasonable in that regard (Com. Code § 2316(1)).

B. Disclaimer of Express Warranty Strictly Construed Against Seller. A disclaimer of an express warranty is essentially contradictory; courts strictly construe contract language against a party that has both warranted a particular fact to be true and then attempted to disclaim the warranty (Fundin v. Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 958, 199 Cal. Rptr. 789).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an express warranty regarding the sale of goods [see Com. Code § 2313]. The basis of the contention is that the seller provided an express warranty, but also attempted to negate or limit it, the effect of which is to create the express warranty according to the appropriate rules of construction [see Com. Code § 2316(1)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that an express warranty is effective despite the seller's attempt to disclaim it. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the seller provided an express warranty, but also attempted to negate or limit it, and that the two provisions are inconsistent.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.72 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disclaimer of Express Warranty Strictly Construed Against Seller

In Fundin v. Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 199 Cal. Rptr. 789 , the purchaser of a drill rig brought an action against the seller and the manufacturer, alleging causes of action that included breach of express and implied warranties arising from the drill rig's failure to perform as expected. Plaintiff purchased the drill rig from a company that had purchased it for plaintiff from the manufacturer. After obtaining the drill rig, plaintiff discovered, among other problems, that it did not drill as deeply or pump as efficiently as expected. He brought an action against both the seller and the manufacturer. The trial court sustained the manufacturer's demurrer on the grounds that it was not a party to the sales contract, and that the action was time-barred pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 339. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, on the ground that the action was time-barred (152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 959-960) . With respect to the substantive warranty issues, however, the court held that privity was not required in an action based on express warranty, and that a purported disclaimer was ineffective to negate the express warranties from the manufacturer (152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 957-958) . With respect to the express-warranty disclaimer issue, the court noted that, according to plaintiff, both defendants disseminated a sales brochure, which constituted a warranty. The brochure included detailed specifications of the drilling depth and diameter, and the pumping capacity of the drill rig. The bottom of that page contained the following language: "We reserve the right to amend these specifications at any time without notice. The only warranty applicable is our standard written warranty. We make no other warranty count expressed or implied and particularly make no warranty of suitability for any particular purpose." The court stated that the brochure clearly warrants, under favorable conditions and using a particular drill pipe, that the rig will drill to a certain depth (152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 957) . Under Com. Code § 2316(1), words or conduct relevant to the creation of an express warranty and words or conduct tending to negate or limit warranty are construed whenever reasonable as consistent with each other. But subject to Com. Code § 2202, regarding parol or extrinsic evidence, negation or limitation is inoperative to the extent that that construction is unreasonable (152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 957-958) . According to the U.C.C. Comment to that provision, it is designed principally to deal with those frequent clauses in sales contracts that seek to exclude "all warranties, express or implied." It seeks to protect a buyer from unexpected and unbargained language of disclaimer by denying effect to that language when inconsistent with language of express warranty, and permitting the exclusion of implied warranties only by conspicuous language or other circumstances that protect the buyer from surprise. The court stated that strict construction against the person who has both warranted a particular fact to be true, and then attempted to disclaim the warranty, is especially appropriate in light of the fact that a disclaimer of an express warranty is essentially contradictory. In the instant case, when a product had been expressly described by its manufacturer as having certain detailed capacities under certain conditions, it would be both unfair and unreasonable to construe the language "[t]he only warranty applicable is our standard written warranty" as negating the express description, particularly when, for all the consumer knows, the standard warranty is the detailed list of specifications. The court held, therefore, that the warranties contained in the brochure could not be disclaimed or excluded, and hence, they were not (152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 958) . However, the court also held that, inasmuch as plaintiff and the manufacturer did not enter into a sales contract, an action by plaintiff against the manufacturer was governed by the two-year limitations provision under Code Civ. Proc. § 339, rather than the four-year provision of Com. Code § 2725, and, consequently, was time-barred (152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 958-960) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.63

§ 206.63 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314]--Establishing Liability Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF THE IMPLIED WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS A MERCHANT WITH REGARD TO THE _____ [specify, e.g., STEEL TUBING] IT SOLD TO PLAINTIFF, AND THOSE GOODS ARE NOT MERCHANTABLE BECAUSE _____ [specify, e.g., THEY ARE NOT FIT FOR THE ORDINARY PURPOSES FOR WHICH THEY ARE USED], AND SPECIFICALLY, _____ [specify, e.g., AFTER INSTALLATION OF THE STEEL TUBING IN RESIDENTIAL STRUCTURES FOR THE PURPOSE OF CONDUCTING RADIANT HEAT, THE TUBING BECAME CORRODED AND DISINTEGRATED].

A. Warranty Implied When Seller Is Merchant. A warranty that the goods will be merchantable is implied in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of that kind, unless the warranty is excluded or modified pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2316 (Com. Code § 2314(1)).

B. Warranty of Merchantability Arises by Operation of Law. A seller's liability for breach of the implied warranty of merchantability does not arise from any statements or conduct by the seller, but arises by operation of law from the contract of sale (Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 117, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377).

[Optional] C. Service of Food or Drink Constitutes Sale. With respect to the implied warranty of merchantability under Commercial Code Section 2314, the serving for value of food or drink to be consumed either on the premises or elsewhere is a sale (Com. Code § 2314(1)).

D. Merchantable Goods. Merchantable goods must satisfy at least the following criteria: (1) pass without objection in the trade under the contract description; (2) in the case of fungible goods, are fair average quality within the description; (3) are fit for the ordinary purposes for which they are used; (4) run, within the variations permitted by the agreement, of even kind, quality, and quantity within each unit and among all units involved; (5) are adequately contained, packaged, and labeled as the agreement may require; and (6) conform to the promises or affirmations of fact made on the container or label (Com. Code § 2314(2); Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 117-118, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 ; Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Anderson (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 231, 87 Cal. Rptr. 893).

[Optional] E. Privity Between Supplier and Buyer Who Contracts With Financing Lessor. For purposes of establishing liability based on implied warranty, privity may be found between the supplier of a product and a lessee-buyer that entered into a contract with a financing lessor if the supplier and lessee-buyer arranged together to select the product and otherwise had direct dealings with each other in the procurement and maintenance of the product (U.S. Roofing, Inc. v. Credit Alliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1442, 279 Cal. Rptr. 533).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability [see Com. Code § 2314]. Optional Paragraph C is for use to assert that the service of food or drink constitutes a sale. Optional Paragraph E is for use to assert that privity exists between plaintiff, as a lessee-buyer, and defendant, as a supplier of the goods, when plaintiff entered into a contract with a third-party financing lessor, based on the direct dealings between plaintiff and defendant. If the lease was first made or effective between the parties on or after January 1, 1990, it will be governed by Com. Code §§ 10103, 10107, 10208-10215, 10516 [see Com. Code § 10600; see discussion in California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases (Matthew Bender)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller is liable for breach of the implied warranty of merchantability. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that defendant is a merchant, and that the goods are not merchantable pursuant to one or more of the criteria set forth in Com. Code § 2314(2), for example, that they are not fit for the ordinary purposes for which those goods are used.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.72 -206.74, 206.76 -206.78 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Warranty of Merchantability Arises by Operation of Law

The facts and procedural background of Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 , are discussed in § 206.60[3][a]. In Hauter, the Supreme Court held that defendants were liable for breach of the express warranty that their product, a golfing device, was safe to use as instructed (14 Cal. 3d 104, 117) . The Court also held that defendants breached the implied warranty of merchantability with respect to the device (14 Cal. 3d 104,117-118). The Court stated that, unlike express warranties, which are basically contractual in nature, the implied warranty of merchantability arises by operation of law. Consequently, defendants' liability for an implied warranty does not depend on any specific conduct or promise on their part, but instead turns on whether their product is merchantable under the Commercial Code (14 Cal. 3d 104, 117) . The two definitions of merchantability applicable to the instant case are: (1) the product must conform to the promises or affirmations of fact made on the container or label (Com. Code § 2314(2)(f)); and (2) the product must be fit for the ordinary purposes for which those goods are used (Com. Code § 2314(2)(c)) (14 Cal. 3d 104, 117-118) . The Court concluded that the device failed in both respects. As the Court explained in its discussion regarding breach of express warranty, the device did not live up to the statement on the carton that it is completely safe. Further, inasmuch as the product was marketed for use by inexperienced golfers who, by definition, do not hit the ball correctly, the device was not fit for the ordinary purposes for which it is normally used; that is, it was shown at trial to be safe only when the ball was hit correctly (14 Cal. 3d 104, 118) .

[b] Merchantable Goods

The facts and procedural background of Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 , are discussed in § 206.60[3][a]. In Hauter, the Supreme Court stated that the seller created an express warranty by virtue of assertions made in the printed instructions for use of the product, a golfing device (14 Cal. 3d 104, 117) . According to the evidence, the device was not fit for the ordinary purposes for which it was normally used. The device was designed and marketed for golfers described as "duffers" who desire to improve their technique and who rarely hit a ball solidly. The Court cited expert testimony describing the device as a major safety hazard, and defendants' admission that a person who hits beneath the ball incurs substantial risk of serious injury. The Court rejected, as wholly without merit, defendants' attempt to avoid liability by limiting the scope of their warranties, based on the claim that assertions of complete safety applied only when the ball was hit properly, and supported only by a drawing in the instructions of a golfer "correctly" using the product (14 Cal. 3d 104, 118) .

In Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Anderson (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 87 Cal. Rptr. 893 , a builder, who was sued by homeowners based on defective steel tubing installed in their residences, cross complained against the subcontractors that installed the tubing and the steel manufacturers that supplied it. The subcontractors cross complained against the same steel manufacturers, seeking indemnity. The subcontractors generally installed copper tubing in the homes for heating purposes. When they were unable to import the copper tubing, because of a political crisis, they procured the steel tubing instead. Several years after it was installed, the steel tubing became corroded and leaked. Prior to trial, the builder settled with the homeowners, and the trial proceeded on the cross complaints. The trial court entered judgment in favor of the builder and against the subcontractors on the cross complaint, and in favor of the subcontractors and against the steel manufacturers for indemnification. The steel manufacturers appealed from the judgment, and the other parties appealed from the court's denial of legal fees in the action.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment in its entirety (9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 235) . The court interpreted former Civ. Code § 1735, which applied to the present case, although at the time of appeal it had been superseded by Com. Code §§ 2314, 2315 (9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 229 n.3). The court held that the steel manufacturers impliedly warranted to the subcontractors that the steel tubing was reasonably fit for its intended use and was of merchantable quality (9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 231) .

[c] Privity Between Supplier and Buyer Who Contracts With Financing Lessor

In U.S. Roofing, Inc. v. Credit Alliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 279 Cal. Rptr. 533 , the lessee-buyer of an allegedly defective crane brought an action against the manufacturer, the supplier, and the financing lessor for breach of warranties. Plaintiff required a particular crane for use in a construction project. It entered into a lease agreement with a leasing company, under which plaintiff selected the equipment and the supplier, and the leasing company purchased the equipment and leased it to plaintiff for a certain period of time. Plaintiff had paid the supplier a deposit prior to arranging the financing. The lease agreement included an option to purchase the crane at the end of the lease term for a certain price; it also contained a disclaimer stating that the lessor makes no express or implied warranties. The leasing company paid the full price of the crane to the supplier, less the amount of plaintiff's deposit. After delivery of the crane, plaintiff immediately experienced problems, which persisted despite repeated repairs. Plaintiff discontinued payments and attempted to revoke the lease. The leasing company treated the nonpayment as a breach of the lease, invoked the acceleration clause, and repossessed and resold the crane. Plaintiff filed suit, and the leasing company cross complained for breach of the lease, seeking a deficiency judgment. The jury found against the supplier and the leasing company on the complaint, awarding damages to plaintiff, and found for plaintiff on the cross complaint. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgments against the leasing company on both the complaint and the cross complaint, and reversed the judgment against the supplier, remanding the case for a new trial limited to the issue of damages (228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1454-1455) . The supplier claimed that it was not liable for any breach of warranty as a matter of law because, inter alia, the lack of a written sale agreement between it and plaintiff evidenced the absence of privity of contract between those two parties. The court noted that vertical privity is a prerequisite in California for recovery on a theory of breach of the implied warranties of fitness and merchantability (228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1441) . In response to the supplier's motion for nonsuit, based in part on lack of privity, plaintiff argued that the sale of the crane was between it and the supplier, with the leasing company providing the financing. The trial court denied the motion and determined that the identity of the parties to the sale was a factual issue for the jury to decide. The jury was instructed that privity of contract between plaintiff and defendant was necessary to support a finding that the defendant is liable for a breach of warranty (228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1441-1442) . The supplier asserted that since it sold the crane to the leasing company, not to plaintiff, as a matter of law there was no privity between it and plaintiff, and, accordingly, it could not be liable for breach of implied warranty. The court stated that the supplier's argument focused solely on the paper contract, but ignored the considerable testimony regarding the direct dealings between the supplier and plaintiff for the sale and purchase of the crane. These parties had an oral agreement for the sale of the crane, supported by plaintiff's deposit. In addition, the supplier admitted it made at least one express warranty about the crane. When plaintiff experienced problems with the crane, it contacted the supplier, which arranged and paid for the needed repairs. The court concluded that the jury could find the necessary privity to support liability for breach of an implied warranty (228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1442) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Merchantable Goods

The facts and procedural background of Pisano v. American Leasing (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 194 Cal. Rptr. 77 , are discussed in § 206.75[3][a]. In Pisano, the court of appeal held that a buyer cannot recover damages under the theory of breach of express warranty in the absence of any affirmations of fact or promises made by defendants to plaintiff (146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 197-198) . With regard to plaintiff's claim based on breach of implied warranty of merchantability and fitness for normal use (Com. Code § 2314), the court stated that defendants' liability does not depend on any specific statement or conduct of the seller, but rather arises from the sale contract. The most relevant definition of merchantability in this case is a product's fitness for the ordinary purposes for which it is used. In a breach of warranty action, plaintiff may recover only after demonstrating that a warranty existed, that defendant breached that warranty, and that the breach proximately caused the loss sustained. The court noted that determination of whether the product conformed to the standard performance of like products used in the trade is crucial to that inquiry. Inasmuch as that determination may depend on expert testimony regarding industry standards and local practices, summary judgment for defendant was improper. The court therefore reversed summary judgment for defendant on that cause of action (146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 198) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.64

§ 206.64 Supporting Contention That Defendant Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316(2)] Ineffective

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF THE IMPLIED WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY DESPITE THE PURPORTED CONTRACTUAL DISCLAIMER, BECAUSE THE DISCLAIMER IS INEFFECTIVE IN THAT _____ [specify, e.g., IT DOES NOT MENTION MERCHANTABILITY].

A. Modification of Implied Warranty of Merchantability. Subject to Commercial Code Section 2316(3), which describes enforceable exclusions and modifications of warranty, an exclusion or modification of all or any part of the implied warranty of merchantability must mention merchantability, and, if in writing, must be conspicuous (Com. Code § 2316(2)).

[Optional] B. Definition of Conspicuous. A term or clause is conspicuous when it is so written that a reasonable person against whom it is to operate ought to have noticed it. Language in the body of a form is conspicuous if it is in larger or other contrasting type or color. The determination of whether a term or clause is conspicuous is for decision by the court (Com. Code § 1201(b)(10)).

[Optional] C. Inconspicuous Disclaimer Is Invalid. A valid disclaimer provision must be in clear and distinct language and prominently set forth in large, bold print in such a position as to compel notice; a disclaimer provision is invalid if it is inconspicuous (Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 17-19, 120 Cal. Rptr. 516).

[Optional] D. Disclaimer Inconspicuous When Contrast With Contract Is Slight. A disclaimer provision is not conspicuous when there is only a slight contrast with the balance of the instrument (Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 19, 120 Cal. Rptr. 516).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability [Com. Code § 2314]. The basis of the contention is that although the written sales contract contains a purported disclaimer of implied warranties, the disclaimer is ineffective [see Com. Code § 2316(2)]. Optional Paragraphs B-D are for use if the buyer contends that the disclaimer language was inconspicuous.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a written disclaimer is ineffective to negate an implied warranty of merchantability. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the purported disclaimer of the implied warranty of merchantability either does not mention the word merchantability, or is inconspicuous, in which case counsel should produce a facsimile of the written agreement and compare the characteristics, such as typeface and location, of the disclaimer, with respect to the rest of the contract. Counsel should argue facts showing that the disclaimer was insufficiently conspicuous to inform a reasonable buyer that he or she was waiving the right to have a quality product.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.72 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inconspicuous Disclaimer Is Invalid

In Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 120 Cal. Rptr. 516 , the purchaser of a tractor and backhoe brought an action against the manufacturer based on breach of express and implied warranties, arising from the equipments' failure to function properly. After a jury verdict in favor of plaintiff, the trial court granted defendant's motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict and reduced the amount of damages awarded. Plaintiff appealed. (Defendant cross appealed the portion of the judgment on the motion that awarded plaintiff damages, and on other orders not discussed here.)

The court of appeal reversed (46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 21) . With respect to the disclaimer issue, the court noted that its terms appeared on the face of the preprinted form sales contract, directly following the terms of the sale, and immediately above the parties' signatures. It stated the following, with original italics and punctuation: "The equipment covered hereby is sold subject only to the applicable manufacturer's standard printed warranty, if any, in effect at the date hereof, receipt of a copy of which is hereby acknowledged, and no other warranties, express or implied, including without limitation, the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose shall apply." The trial court concluded that it was sufficiently conspicuous to constitute a valid disclaimer of the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose, pursuant to Com. Code § 2316 (46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 15-16) . On appeal, plaintiff contended that the trial court erred in its ruling of the validity of the disclaimer provision because, inter alia, the provision is inconspicuous. The court stated that Com. Code § 2316(2) provides that an exclusion of the implied warranty of merchantability in case of a writing must be conspicuous, and that an exclusion of the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose must be by a writing and conspicuous (46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 17) . Pursuant to

Com. Code § 1201(b)(10), conspicuous is defined as so written that a reasonable person against whom it is to operate ought to have noticed it. A printed heading in capital letters is conspicuous. Language in the body of a form is conspicuous if it is in larger or other contrasting type or color. The determination of whether a term or clause is conspicuous is for decision by the court (46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 17-18) . The U.C.C. Comment to Com. Code § 1201(b)(10) states that the test of conspicuousness is whether attention can reasonably be expected to be called to the disclaimer provision. The U.C.C. Comment to Com. Code § 2316 states that it is designed principally to deal with those frequent clauses in sales contracts that seek to exclude "all warranties, express or implied." It seeks to protect a buyer from unexpected and unbargained language of disclaimer by denying effect to that language when inconsistent with language of express warranty, and permitting the exclusion of implied warranties only by conspicuous language or other circumstances that protect the buyer from surprise. In other words, the court observed, Com. Code § 2316 seeks to protect the buyer from the situation in which the salesman's "pitch," advertising brochures, or large print in the contract, giveth, and the disclaimer clause, in fine print, taketh away. In the instant case, the disclaimer provision appeared close to plaintiff's signature, but emphasized the wording "merchantability and fitness for particular purpose shall apply." Although the disclaimer provision was printed in a slightly larger typeface than was the preceding paragraph of the contract, it was not in boldface type. The court concluded that the disclaimer was not sufficiently conspicuous to have negated the implied warranties, particularly because no standard printed warranty was in fact given to plaintiff at that time (46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 18) . The court held that a provision is not conspicuous when there is only a slight contrast with the balance of the instrument. The instant disclaimer did not reach that level of conspicuousness so as to exclude the right of the buyer to implied warranties that are an integral part of the transaction. It therefore violated the underlying rationale of Com. Code § 2316 as set forth in the official comment as protecting the buyer from an unbargained limitation in the purchase of a product The contract also failed to provide an adequate heading for the disclaimer provision. In addition, the punctuation of the italicized portion of the disclaimer was ambiguous and possibly misleading. An implied warranty must be disclaimed by terms so clear, definite, and specific as to leave no doubt as to the intent of the contracting parties. Moreover, the court noted, the manufacturer's standard printed warranty was not included in the contract; it was located on the reverse side of the purchase order, a separate document not shown to be signed by plaintiff or delivered to him at any time (46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 19) . A disclaimer of warranties must be specifically bargained for, so that a disclaimer in a warranty given to the buyer after signing the contract is not binding (46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 19-20) . The court concluded that the disclaimer was insufficiently conspicuous to inform a reasonable buyer that he or she was waiving the right to have a quality product (46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 20) .

[b] Disclaimer Inconspicuous When Contrast With Contract Is Slight

Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 120 Cal. Rptr. 516 , is discussed under § 206.64[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.65

§ 206.65 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Establishing Liability Generally

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF THE IMPLIED WARRANTY OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE BECAUSE AT THE TIME OF CONTRACTING FOR THE SALE OF THE _____ [specify, e.g., STEEL TUBING], DEFENDANT HAD REASON TO KNOW THAT PLAINTIFF'S PARTICULAR PURPOSE WAS TO _____ [specify, e.g., INSTALL THE TUBING IN RESIDENTIAL BUILDINGS FOR THE CONDUCTION OF RADIANT HEATING], PLAINTIFF RELIED ON DEFENDANT'S SKILL AND/OR JUDGMENT TO SELECT THE GOODS FOR THAT PURPOSE, AND THERE WAS NO EXCLUSION OR MODIFICATION OF THAT WARRANTY.

Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose. If the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know any particular purpose for which the goods are required, and that the buyer is relying on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish suitable goods, there is unless excluded or modified under Commercial Code Section 2316 an implied warranty that the goods are fit for that purpose (Com. Code § 2315; Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Anderson (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 231, 87 Cal. Rptr. 893).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose [see Com. Code § 2315].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller is liable for breach of the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should therefore discuss all facts concerning the communications between plaintiff and defendant prior to the sale, and show that plaintiff clearly explained the intended purpose for the goods, and that he or she relied on plaintiff's skill or judgment in selecting those goods for that purpose. Counsel should also indicate that no exclusion or modification affects that warranty.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.70, 206.72 -206.74, 206.76, 206.77, and 206.79 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose

The facts and procedural background of Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Anderson (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 87 Cal. Rptr. 893 , are discussed in § 206.63[3][b]. In Eichler, the court of appeal held that the steel manufacturers impliedly warranted to the subcontractors that the steel tubing was reasonably fit for its intended use and was of merchantable quality. According to the evidence, the subcontractors had made known to the steel manufacturers the particular purposes for which the steel tubing was required. When a buyer makes known to the seller the particular purpose for which goods are required, the seller offers to sell the goods for those purposes, and the buyer accepts the offer, it is reasonable to assume that the buyer relied on the seller's skill and judgment (9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 231) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.66

§ 206.66 Supporting Contention That Defendant Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316(2)] Ineffective

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF THE IMPLIED WARRANTY OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE DESPITE THE PURPORTED CONTRACTUAL DISCLAIMER BECAUSE THE DISCLAIMER _____ [specify defect in disclaimer, e.g., IS NOT CONSPICUOUS] AND THUS IS INEFFECTIVE.

A. Modification of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose. Subject to Commercial Code Section 2316(3), which describes enforceable exclusions and modifications of warranty, an exclusion or modification of any implied warranty of fitness must be in writing and conspicuous (Com. Code § 2316(2)).

[Optional] B. Definition of Conspicuous. [See § 206.64, Paragraph B].

[Optional] C. Inconspicuous Disclaimer Is Invalid. [See § 206.64, Paragraph C].

[Optional] D. Disclaimer Inconspicuous When Contrast With Contract Is Slight. [See § 206.64, Paragraph D].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose [see Com. Code § 2315]. The basis of the contention is that the seller's purported disclaimer of warranty is ineffective [see Com. Code § 2316(2)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a written disclaimer is ineffective to negate an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the disclaimer is not in writing or, if in writing, that it is inconspicuous, in which case counsel should produce a facsimile of the written agreement and compare the characteristics, such as typeface and location, of the disclaimer with respect to the rest of the contract. Counsel should argue facts showing that the disclaimer was insufficiently conspicuous to inform a reasonable buyer that he or she was waiving the right to have a quality product.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.72 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.67

§ 206.67 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313], Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314] and Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316(1)] Ineffective--Seller Did Not Clearly Limit Liability

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF _____ [EXPRESS WARRANTY and/or IMPLIED WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY and/or IMPLIED WARRANTY OF FITNESS FOR PARTICULAR PURPOSE] DESPITE ITS PURPORTED DISCLAIMER OF WARRANTIES BECAUSE DEFENDANT DID NOT CLEARLY LIMIT ITS LIABILITY IN ANY MANNER RELEVANT TO PLAINTIFF'S WARRANTY CLAIMS.

No Disclaimer Unless Seller Clearly Limits Liability. No warranty, express or implied, can be modified or disclaimed unless a seller clearly limits its liability (Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 119, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an express warranty, or an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose, regarding the sale of goods [see Com. Code § 2313]. The basis of the contention is that, despite a purported disclaimer of warranty, the seller did not clearly limit its liability with respect to the warranties that are the subject of the action [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 119, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller's purported disclaimer of warranty is ineffective because the seller did not clearly limit its liability in that regard. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should argue facts showing that defendant did not use words that clearly communicate that a particular risk falls on the buyer, and that plaintiff therefore was not placed on fair notice of any disclaimer or modification of a warranty.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For a discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.72 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Disclaimer Unless Seller Clearly Limits Liability

The facts and procedural background of Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 , are discussed in § 206.60[3][a]. In Hauter, the Supreme Court held that defendants created an express warranty by virtue of statements that the product was completely safe, and that implied warranties of merchantability and fitness existed as well. The Court rejected defendants' contention that the warranties were limited in scope and only applied when the device was used properly (14 Cal. 3d 104, 115-118) . The Court stated that defendants failed to meet the stern requirements of Com. Code § 2316, which governs disclaimer and modification of warranties (14 Cal. 3d 104, 118) . The Court noted that although Com. Code § 2316 has drawn criticism for its vagueness, its purpose is clear (14 Cal. 3d 104, 118-119) . No warranty, express or implied, can be modified or disclaimed unless a seller clearly limits its liability. According to the relevant U.C.C. Comment, this provision is designed principally to deal with those frequent clauses in sales contracts that seek to exclude all warranties, express or implied. It protects a buyer from unexpected and unbargained language of disclaimer by denying effect to that language when inconsistent with language of express warranty, and permitting the exclusion of implied warranties only by conspicuous language or other circumstances that protect the buyer from surprise. Because a disclaimer or modification is inconsistent with an express warranty, words of disclaimer or modification give way to words of warranty unless some clear agreement between the parties dictates the contrary relationship. At the very least, Com. Code § 2316 allows limitation of warranties only by means of words that clearly communicate that a particular risk falls on the buyer. Moreover, any disclaimer or modification must be strictly construed against the seller (14 Cal. 3d 104, 119) . Although parties are free to write their own contract, the consumer must be placed on fair notice of any disclaimer or modification of a warranty and must freely agree to the seller's terms (14 Cal. 3d 104, 119-120) . A unilateral nonwarranty cannot be tacked onto a contract containing a warranty (14 Cal. 3d 104, 120) . The Court noted that defendants did not point to any language or conduct on their part negating their warranties. They referred only to a drawing on the box and to the notion that golf is a dangerous game, and, based on that meager foundation, attempted to limit their explicit promise of safety. The Court concluded that this showing was insufficient under Com. Code § 2316, which requires clear language from anyone seeking to avoid warranty liability (

14 Cal. 3d 104, 120) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.68

§ 206.68 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Warranty of Title or Warranty Against Infringement of Buyer's Interest [Com. Code § 2312]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF THE WARRANTY _____ [OF TITLE or AGAINST INFRINGEMENT OF PLAINTIFF'S INTEREST] BECAUSE _____ [specify, e.g., WHEN DEFENDANT DELIVERED THE AUTOMOBILE TO PLAINTIFF, THE AUTOMOBILE WAS SUBJECT TO A SECURITY INTEREST OF WHICH PLAINTIFF WAS UNAWARE AT THE TIME OF CONTRACTING].

[EITHER]

A. Warranty of Title. Subject to exclusion or modification pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2312(2), there is in a contract for sale of goods a warranty by the seller that the title conveyed shall be good and its transfer rightful (Com. Code § 2312(1)(a)).

[AND/OR]

B. Warranty Against Infringement of Buyer's Interest. Subject to exclusion or modification pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2312(2), there is in a contract for sale of goods a warranty by the seller that the goods shall be delivered free from any security interest or other lien or encumbrance of which the buyer at the time of contracting has no knowledge (Com. Code § 2312(1)(b)).

[CONTINUE]

C. Requirements for Exclusion or Modification. A warranty of title, or warranty that the goods shall be delivered free from any security interest or other lien or encumbrance of which the buyer at the time of contracting has no knowledge, will be excluded or modified only by specific language or by circumstances that give the buyer reason to know that the seller does not claim title in himself or herself, or that he or she is purporting to sell only the right or title that the seller or a third person may have (Com. Code § 2312(2)).

D. Warranty of Merchant Dealing With Particular Type of Goods. Unless otherwise agreed, a seller who is a merchant regularly dealing in goods of the kind warrants that the goods shall be delivered free of the rightful claim of any third person by way of infringement or the like, except that the seller is held harmless against a buyer's claim that arises out of the seller's compliance with the buyer's specifications (Com. Code § 2312(3)).

[Optional] E. "Rightful Claim" of Infringement Means Any Nonfrivolous Claim. A "rightful claim" under Commercial Code Section 2312(3) it is a nonfrivolous claim of infringement that has any significant and adverse effect on the buyer's ability to make use of the goods. "Rightful claim" is not synonymous with a claim that ultimately will prove successful in litigation (Pacific Sunwear of Cal., Inc. v. Olaes Enters., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 466, 470, 481, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 182).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the seller is liable for breach of a warranty of title, or warranty against infringement of the buyer's interest [see Com. Code § 2312].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller breached the warranty of title, or warranty against infringement of the buyer's interest. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should describe the deficiency in the title, or show that the goods that were delivered were subject to a security interest or other lien or encumbrance, of which the plaintiff was not aware at the time of contracting.

[b] Disclaimer of Warranty of Title

The warranty of title under Com. Code § 2312(1) is not designated as an "implied" warranty, and therefore is not subject to Com. Code § 2316(3), set forth in § 206.72. Disclaimer of the warranty of title is governed instead by Com. Code § 2312(2), which requires either specific language or the described circumstances [see U.C.C. Comment 6 to Com. Code § 2312].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms relating to warranties in the sale of goods, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.70 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Rightful Claim of Infringement Is Any Nonfrivolous Claim

In Pacific Sunwear of Cal., Inc. v. Olaes Enters., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 466, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 182 , the defendant, a merchant dealing in T shirts imprinted with graphic designs, supplied T shirts for resale in the plaintiff's stores. The plaintiff sued for damages, based on breach of the warranty in Com. Code § 2312(3), to compensate for litigation expenses incurred in defending against a third person's trademark-infringement claim that arose out of the plaintiff's sale of the T shirts. The trial court granted the defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the trademark infringement claim did not constitute a "rightful claim" of infringement and thus did not breach the Com. Code § 2312(3) warranty. The trial court reached this conclusion, as a matter of law, after analyzing a federal district court's ruling in the trademark infringement case to the effect that there was not a likelihood of confusion between the allegedly infringing T shirts and the claimant's trademark, and therefore the claimant would not prevail in the infringement lawsuit.

The court of appeal reversed. The issue of what is a "rightful claim" under Com. Code § 2312(3) was one of first impression. The court held that a "rightful claim" in this context is not synonymous with a claim that ultimately will prove successful in litigation. Rather, it is a nonfrivolous claim of infringement that has any significant and adverse effect on the buyer's ability to make use of the goods (167 Cal. App. 4th 466, 470) . "In sum, it is clear from the official commentary, the statutory scheme and the public policy rationales underlying California Uniform Commercial Code section 2312, that the section 2312(3) warranty covers a broad scope of infringement claims and is not limited to claims that ultimately will prove successful in litigation. As we have explained, the warranty against rightful claims applies to all claims of infringement that have any significant and adverse effect on the buyer's ability to make use of the purchased goods, excepting only frivolous claims that are completely devoid of merit. This exception for frivolous claims comports with the Uniform Commercial Code commentary and policy rationales discussed above, while giving necessary effect to the statutory qualifier 'rightful.' The seller's warranty under California Uniform Commercial Code section 2312 is broad, but neither the statutory text, nor the policy rationales, can support extension of the seller's warranty to even frivolous claims of infringement. As reflected in the statutory text, a seller cannot reasonably be required to seek out and resolve even meritless claims of infringement prior to sale" (167 Cal. App. 4th 466, 481) (citation omitted).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.69

§ 206.69 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages [Com. Code §§ 2714(2), (3), 2715(2)(b)] for Seller's Breach of Warranty [Com. Code §§ 2312-2315]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER FROM DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] DAMAGES ARISING FROM DEFENDANT'S BREACH OF WARRANTY IN THE SALE OF GOODS TO PLAINTIFF, MEASURED BY THE DIFFERENCE AT THE TIME AND PLACE OF ACCEPTANCE BETWEEN THE VALUE OF THE GOODS ACCEPTED BY PLAINTIFF AND THE VALUE THEY WOULD HAVE HAD IF THEY HAD BEEN AS WARRANTED.

A. Measure of Damages for Breach of Warranty. The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and the value they would have had if they had been as warranted, unless special circumstances show proximate damages of a different amount (Com. Code § 2714(2)).

B. Incidental and Consequential Damages Recoverable. In a proper case, any incidental and consequential damages under Commercial Code Section 2715 may also be recovered in an action for breach of warranty (Com. Code § 2714(3)).

C. Buyer's Incidental Damages. Incidental damages resulting from the seller's breach include expenses reasonably incurred in inspection, receipt, transportation, care, and custody of goods rightfully rejected, any commercially reasonable charges, expenses, or commissions in connection with effecting cover, and any other reasonable expense incident to the delay or other breach (Com. Code § 2715(1)).

D. Buyer's Consequential Damages. Consequential damages resulting from the seller's breach include any loss resulting from general or particular requirements and needs of which the seller at the time of contracting had reason to know, and that could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise; and injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty (Com. Code § 2715(2)).

[Optional] E. Award of Lost Profits Plus Restitution Not Per Se Inconsistent. In an action for breach of warranty, the award of lost profits plus restitution of the purchase price are not per se inconsistent under proper circumstances (Berge v. International Harvester Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 163, 190 Cal. Rptr. 815).

[Optional] F. Attorney's Fees as Damages. When defendant's breach of warranty causes plaintiff to become involved in litigation with a third person, plaintiff may recover, as an item of damages, attorney's fees incurred in prosecuting or defending the third-party action (De La Hoya v. Slim's Gun Shop (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 9-12 , 146 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a buyer is entitled to recover damages based on a seller's breach of warranty [see Com. Code § 2714(2), (3)]. This form is applicable to warranty of title, express warranty, and an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose. Optional Paragraph E is for use to assert entitlement to lost profits plus restitution for the purchase price. Optional Paragraph F is for use to assert entitlement to attorney's fees as damages.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the buyer's entitlement to remedies for breach of warranty. In the appropriate case, they may also be combined with points and authorities in support of the buyer's entitlement to remedies based on breach of contract for the sale of nonconforming, accepted goods, such as those set out in § 206.42. They may also be combined with the appropriate points and authorities set out in § 206.43, regarding specific types of incidental and consequential damages available to the buyer. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth damages based on the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and their value if they had been as warranted, or, alternatively, damages based on special circumstances.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.71 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Award of Lost Profits Plus Restitution Not Per Se Inconsistent

In Berge v. International Harvester Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 190 Cal. Rptr. 815 , the purchaser of a new commercial truck brought an action against the manufacturer, stating causes of action for breach of express and implied warranties. Plaintiff purchased the vehicle for use in her trucking business. Her drivers immediately experienced serious problems, including malfunctioning and missing parts, and inadequate engine power; consequently, the truck required frequent repairs, and the drivers became afraid to use it. As a result, plaintiff, who owned one other truck, suffered financial setbacks and ultimately ceased operating her business. Plaintiff sued the manufacturer, which cross complained for damages arising from its repossession of the vehicle. The trial court granted plaintiff's motion for nonsuit on the cross complaint. After a jury trial, the court awarded damages for the sums plaintiff paid toward the purchase price plus lost profits. The trial court granted a new trial on the issue of damages, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's order granting a new trial on the issue of damages (and reversed the trial court's order denying plaintiff attorney's fees) (142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 165) . Defendant challenged the award of lost profits on the ground that they were so uncertain and speculative as to be improper as a matter of law. The court stated that lost profits to an established business may be recovered if their extent and occurrence can be ascertained with reasonable certainty (142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 161) . The court held that the calculations supporting the amount of lost profits awarded could not be sustained because the evidence on which they were based concerned unrelated businesses (142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 162-163) . Consequently, the net profit figure was entirely speculative, and the trial court's order on that issue proper. For the trial court's guidance on remand, the court stated that the award of lost profits and the restitution of sums plaintiff paid toward the purchase price are not per se inconsistent. The Commercial Code does not include a rule of election of remedies (citing U.C.C. Comment 1 to Com. Code § 2608), and a similar award has been approved by the Supreme Court (citing Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 14, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145). The court also stated that the truck's reasonable rental value must be offset, that mitigation was not required because plaintiff was financially unable to purchase another truck and resume her business, and that the income plaintiff did procure after ceasing the trucking operation should be offset from any lost profits awarded on retrial only if the trucking business, if operable, would have occupied the time she spent earning those sums (142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 163) .

[b] Attorney's Fees as Damages

In De La Hoya v. Slim's Gun Shop (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6 , 146 Cal. Rptr. 68 , a person who bought a used hand gun that had been stolen brought an action against the seller, seeking damages arising from his arrest for possession of the weapon. Neither party knew the gun was stolen at the time of the purchase. The trial court found that plaintiff was entitled to damages under Com. Code § 2714, based on breach of warranty of title under Com. Code § 2312, and that recoverable damages included the price of the gun and attorney's fees arising from the criminal prosecution of plaintiff. Defendant appealed.

The appellate department of the trial court affirmed (80 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 12) . The court stated that a party who becomes embroiled in litigation with third persons as a result of the defendant's tort or breach of contract may recover, as an item of damages, attorney's fees incurred in the third-party action (80 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 9) . The court noted that the trial court impliedly found that the parties could reasonably have contemplated at the time defendant sold the gun that if plaintiff's possession of it was questioned, and the gun was discovered to be stolen, plaintiff would be subject to arrest for receiving stolen property. Once the foreseeability of arrest is established, a natural and usual consequence is that plaintiff would incur attorney's fees (80 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 11) . The court noted that plaintiff's action was cast in the form of a buyer seeking damages for breach of warranty. Under the Commercial Code, the buyer may in a proper case measure damages by the loss resulting in the ordinary course of events from the seller's breach as determined in any manner that is reasonable. This rule applies to breach of warranty of title, as to any other breach (80 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 11-12) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Buyer's Consequential Damages

Bishop v. Hyundai Motor Co. (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 750, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 134 , is discussed in § 206.110[4][c]. The court of appeal, construing the consequential damages provision of Com. Code § 2715 as incorporated by Civ. Code § 1794 (Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act), concluded that Com. Code § 2715's reference to losses must be construed and applied in the context of monetary losses actually incurred. Thus, the plaintiff buyer's "loss of use" damages for a period in which she did not have a replacement vehicle after destruction of her vehicle by fire were not recoverable (44 Cal. App. 4th 750, 755-757) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.70

§ 206.70 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Warranty [Com. Code §§ 2312-2315]--Action Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Com. Code § 2725]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF _____ [EXPRESS AND/OR IMPLIED] WARRANTY BECAUSE THE LIMITATIONS PERIOD EXPIRED PRIOR TO THE FILING OF THE COMPLAINT.

A. Limitations Period. [See § 206.38, Paragraph A].

B. Four-Year Limitations Period for Action Based on Breach of Warranty. The limitations period for an action based on breach of warranty under the Commercial Code is four years (Com. Code § 2725(1); Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213-214, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717).

C. Accrual of Cause of Action. [See § 206.38, Paragraph B].

D. Extension of Warranty to Future Performance. A breach of warranty occurs when tender of delivery is made, except that when a warranty explicitly extends to future performance and discovery of the breach must await the time of that performance, the cause of action accrues when the breach is or should have been discovered (Com. Code § 2725(2); Carrau v. Marvin Lumber and Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 290-292, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869). [Optional: Generalized assertions in advertisements and literature do not rise to the level of a warranty explicitly extending to future performance (Carrau v. Marvin Lumber and Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 290-292, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869)].

[Optional] E. Limitations Period for Subsequent Action. [See § 206.38, Paragraph C].

[Optional] F. Statute Does Not Affect Tolling. [See § 206.38, Paragraph D].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable to the buyer for breach of warranty under the Commercial Code, on the ground that the four-year limitations period expired prior to the filing of the complaint [see Com. Code § 2725(1); Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213-214, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717] . This form applies to warranty of title, express warranty, and the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose [see Com. Code §§ 2312-2315].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the expiration of the limitations period. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in support of a demurrer to the complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth the date of the accrual of the cause of action, and show that the applicable limitations period expired before the date the complaint was filed.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.60, 206.61, 206.83, 206.85, and 206.88.

[b] Four-Year Limitations Period Inapplicable Absent Sales Contract Between Parties

The limitations provision under Com. Code § 2725 does not apply if no contract for sale exists between plaintiff and defendant. For example, if the buyer purchases goods from a company that previously purchased the goods from the manufacturer for resale to the buyer, the buyer's action against the manufacturer is not based on a "sales contract" between those two parties. Therefore, the action is governed by the two-year limitations provision under Code Civ. Proc. § 339, rather than the four-year provision under the Commercial Code [see Fundin v. Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 951, 959-960, 199 Cal. Rptr. 789 , discussed in § 206.62[3][a]].

[c] Four-Year Limitations Period Inapplicable When Dispute Does Not Involve Goods

Inasmuch as Com. Code § 2201 et seq. applies only to a contract for the sale of goods, the limitations period under Com. Code § 2725 does not apply to an action based on a contract for the sale of nongoods, for example, services [see Filmservice Laboratories, Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enterprises, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1304, 256 Cal. Rptr. 735 (oral contract for sale of services governed by two-year limitations period under Code Civ. Proc. § 339)].

[d] Two-Year Limitations Period Applicable in Action Based on Personal Injuries

Causes of action for breach of express and implied warranties in suits based on personal injuries are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1, prescribing a two-year limitations period (supplanting former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3), which allowed one year), rather than the four-year period under Com. Code § 2725 [Rose v. Fife (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 760, 772, 255 Cal. Rptr. 440 ; Becker v. Volkswagen of America, Inc. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 794, 802] . For discussion and forms related to the limitations period under Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender).

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms relating to commercial sales, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[f] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Limitations Period for Action Based on Breach of Warranty

The facts and procedural background of Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 , are discussed in § 206.61[3][a]. In Krieger, the court of appeal held that plaintiff's causes of action based on breach of warranty were not time-barred (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 218-219) . In arriving at this holding, the court stated, preliminarily, that Com. Code § 2725 provides a four-year limitations period for breach of warranty (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213-214) .

[b] Extension of Warranty to Future Performance

In Carrau v. Marvin Lumber and Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 , the purchaser of 50 defective windows sued the manufacturer. The trial court granted summary adjudication to the defendant on the implied warranty claim, finding that claim to be time-barred. The remaining claims were tried to a jury, which found for plaintiff on his claims of breach of express warranty and strict products liability, but found for defendant on the claim of breach of the Song-Beverly Act. The defendant appealed from the trial court order denying defendant's motion for new trial or for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, contending that plaintiff's claim of breach of express warranty was time-barred. The appellate court agreed and reversed the judgment. The buyer did not produce any express warranty that accompanied the sale of the windows, but claimed that the manufacturer's advertisements acted as an express warranty that its products were durable and long-lasting. The court cited Com. Code § 2725(1) for the requirement that such an action must be brought within four years after the cause of action has accrued. It was undisputed that plaintiff failed to file suit within four years of delivery of the windows; therefore the jury's verdict could be sustained only if, under Com. Code § 2725(2), it could be concluded that defendant's warranty explicitly extended to future performance of the goods (93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 290) . The court noted that although no California case has determined the scope of the "future performance" exception to Com. Code § 2725, it has been the subject of decisions from other jurisdictions. The vast majority of courts that have considered the point have concluded that the "future performance" exception to the four-year limitations period applies only when the seller explicitly has agreed to warrant its product for a defined period of time. The exception reflects the drafter's intention to establish a reasonable period of time beyond which sellers need not worry about stale warranty claims, but permits a buyer and seller to negotiate to extend liability into the future. Under that reasoning, general assertions as to the performance or durability of a product do not explicitly extend to future performance of the product (93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 291) . The court thus held that generalized assertions in advertisements and literature, such as the assertions defendant made about its windows in its advertisements, do not rise to the level of a warranty explicitly extending to future performance. Defendant therefore was entitled to judgment notwithstanding the verdict on plaintiff's claim of breach of express warranty (93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 292) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Extension of Warranty to Future Performance

Cardinal Health 301, Inc. v. Tyco Electronics Corp. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5 , was an action for damages based on breach of express and implied warranties, which was commenced after expiration of the four-year limitation period in Com. Code § 2725(2). Opposing the defendant's motion for nonsuit, the plaintiff pointed to the defendant's representation, in their agreement, that the product would have a "mechanical life" of 50,000 cycles, and contended that this was an express warranty extending to "future performance," and therefore, under the discovery rule, the plaintiff's suit was timely. The trial court agreed and denied the motion for nonsuit. The court of appeal reversed. Relying on Carrau v. Marvin Lumber & Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 , which in § 206.70[3][b], the court stated, "Although this case presents a more specific warranty involving a promise that the product will work for '50,000 cycles,' the principles expressed in Carrau compel a similar conclusion that this warranty does not fall within the 'future performance' exception of section 2725, subdivision (2). The promise about the mechanical life of the spring probe connectors does not specify a date or time in the future, nor did the 50,000 cycle warranty pertain to a time period that could be determined by reference to an external source" (169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 131) . In addition, the plaintiff's claims for breach of implied warranties were not subject to the future performance exception. Because an implied warranty is one that arises by operation of law rather than by an express agreement of the parties, courts have consistently held that it is not a warranty that "explicitly extends to future performance of the goods," as required by Com. Code § 2725(2) (169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 134) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.71

§ 206.71 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages [Com. Code §§ 2714(2), (3), 2715(2)(b)] for Seller's Breach of Warranty [Com. Code §§ 2312-2315]--Limitation of Remedies [Com. Code § 2316(4)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER FROM DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] THE DAMAGES ASSERTED BECAUSE DEFENDANT EFFECTIVELY LIMITED PLAINTIFF'S REMEDIES TO THE EXCLUSION OF THOSE DAMAGES.

Limitation of Remedies. Remedies for breach of warranty may be limited in accordance with the provisions under Commercial Code Sections 2718 and 2719 on liquidation or limitation of damages, and on contractual modification of remedy (Com. Code § 2316(4)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a buyer is entitled to certain damages from a seller based on breach of warranty, on the ground that the seller effectively limited remedies to the exclusion of those damages [see Com. Code § 2316(4)]. This form applies to warranty of title, express warranty, and the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose [see Com. Code §§ 2312-2315].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller limited the buyer's remedies to the exclusion of the damages asserted by plaintiff. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should set forth the limitation of remedies, for example, the contractual modification of a statutory remedy.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.69.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.72

§ 206.72 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313], Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314], and Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Disclaimer of Warranty [Com. Code § 2316]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF AN _____ [EXPRESS AND/OR IMPLIED] WARRANTY BECAUSE DEFENDANT EFFECTIVELY DISCLAIMED ALL WARRANTIES ASSERTED BY PLAINTIFF, PURSUANT TO _____ [specify, e.g., A CONTRACTUAL PROVISION WAIVING ALL IMPLIED WARRANTIES EXCEPT FOR THOSE EXPLICITLY STATED, NONE OF WHICH APPLY TO THIS ACTION].

[EITHER]

A. Words Creating and Negating Warranty Construed as Consistent When Reasonable. Words or conduct relevant to the creation of an express warranty and words or conduct tending to negate or limit warranty are construed whenever reasonable as consistent with each other; but subject to Commercial Code Section 2202, regarding parol or extrinsic evidence, negation or limitation is inoperative to the extent that the construction is unreasonable in that regard (Com. Code § 2316(1))

[AND/OR]

B. Contractual Disclaimer of Implied Warranties. A contractual provision waiving all "other" implied warranties except for those explicitly stated effectively disclaims the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose under Commercial Code Section 2316 (Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 855-856, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67).

[AND/OR]

C. Implied Warranties Excluded by "As Is" Language. Notwithstanding Commercial Code Section 2316(2), which sets forth requirements for exclusion or modification of warranty, unless the circumstances indicate otherwise, all implied warranties are excluded by expressions like "as is," "with all faults," or other language that is commonly understood to alert the buyer to the exclusion of warranties, and plainly expresses that there is no implied warranty (Com. Code § 2316(3)(a)).

[AND/OR]

D. No Implied Warranty When Inspection Would Have Revealed Defect. Notwithstanding Commercial Code Section 2316(2), which sets forth requirements for exclusion or modification of warranty, when the buyer before entering into the contract has examined the goods, or a sample or model of the goods, as fully as desired, or has refused to examine the goods, there is no implied warranty with regard to defects that an examination should have revealed under the circumstances (Com. Code § 2316(3)(b)).

[AND/OR]

E. Modification of Implied Warranty by Trade Usage. Notwithstanding Commercial Code Section 2316(2), which sets forth requirements for exclusion or modification of warranty, an implied warranty can be excluded or modified by course of dealing, course of performance, or usage of trade (Com. Code § 2316(3)(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an express warranty, or an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose, on the ground that the seller effectively disclaimed the warranty asserted by the buyer [see Com. Code § 2316].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that seller is not liable for breach of the warranties mentioned above. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the disclaimer was in writing and conspicuous, and produce a facsimile of the written agreement and compare the characteristics, such as typeface and location, of the disclaimer with respect to the rest of the contract. Counsel should argue facts showing that the disclaimer was sufficiently conspicuous to inform a reasonable buyer that he or she was waiving the warranty rights.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.64, 206.66, and 206.87.

CAUTION:

A disclaimer of warranty may be denied enforcement despite technical compliance with the requirements of Com. Code § 2316 if it is unconscionable [A & M Produce Co. v. FMC Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 473, 484, 186 Cal. Rptr. 114] . For points and authorities on this and related issues, see Ch. 50, Contracts .

[b] Purpose of Disclaimer Modification Provision

Com. Code § 2316(1) is designed principally to deal with clauses in sales contracts that seek to exclude "all warranties, express or implied." It seeks to protect a buyer from unexpected and unbargained language of disclaimer by denying effect to that language when inconsistent with language of express warranty, and permitting the exclusion of implied warranties only by conspicuous language or other circumstances that protect the buyer from surprise [see Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 34, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716 ; see also U.C.C. Comment 1 to Com. Code § 2316].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contractual Disclaimer of Implied Warranties

In Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67 , plaintiffs filed suit against the manufacturers of a crane, seeking damages resulting from an accident caused by a defect in the crane. The accident occurred nine years after plaintiffs purchased the crane. The complaint stated causes of action for negligence, strict liability in tort, and breach of implied warranties. The trial court granted defendants' motion for summary judgment, and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed as to the cause of action for breach of warranty but reversed with respect to the other causes of action (120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 857) . The court held that a clause in the contract limiting defendants' liability for defects to 18 months from the date of delivery, and a provision waiving all "other" implied warranties (except for title to the crane's parts) barred plaintiffs' action on the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose under Com. Code § 2316 (120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 855-856) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Words Creating and Negating Warranty Construed as Consistent When Reasonable

In Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716 , the insurer of a company that purchased a telecommunications satellite brought an action against the manufacturer, stating causes of action in strict products liability, based on the satellite's failure and the insured purchaser's consequent policy claims. The court of appeal affirmed summary judgment for defendants, holding, inter alia, that a disclaimer of express warranties in the contract between buyer and manufacturer effectively negated an express warranty by the rocket subcontractor to the manufacturer. Inasmuch as the buyer failed to show that the warranty by the subcontractor formed a basis of the bargain in its sales contract, the disclaimer was enforceable (214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 34-35) .

[b] Implied Warranties Excluded by "As Is" Language

The facts and procedural background of U.S. Roofing, Inc. v. Credit Alliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 279 Cal. Rptr. 533 , are discussed in § 206.63[3][c]. In U.S. Roofing, the court of appeal held that for purposes of establishing liability based on implied warranty, privity may be found between the supplier of a product and a lessee-buyer that entered into a contract with a financing lessor, if the supplier and lessee-buyer arranged together to select the product and otherwise had direct dealings with each other in the procurement and maintenance of the product (228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1442) . The lease in question contained the following language in capital letters: "The equipment is leased hereunder as-is, and lessor makes no express nor implied nor statutory warranties as to any matter whatsoever, including without limitation the condition of the equipment, its merchantability or its fitness for any purpose" (228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1438) . With respect to the issue whether the disclaimer is unconscionable, the court held that warranty disclaimers under the Commercial Code are subject to the defense of unconscionability, and concluded that the leasing company's disclaimer, under the circumstances, was not unconscionable (228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1447-1451) [for discussion of the case for this issue, see Ch. 50, Contracts]. More particularly, the court also determined that a warranty disclaimer by a financing lessor-vendor that had no active dealing in the manufacture or selection of the product is not per se unconscionable if the lessee otherwise has an adequate remedy for breach of warranty if the product proves defective (228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1450) .

In Triple C. Leasing, Inc. v. All-American Mobile Wash (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 244, 134 Cal. Rptr. 328 , the lessor of a vehicle brought an action against the lessee, based on defendants' default on payments. The court of appeal affirmed judgment for plaintiff (64 Cal. App. 3d 244, 251) . Although not an issue on appeal, the court rejected defendants' assertion of breach of warranty based on defects in the van. The agreement between plaintiffs and defendants expressly provided that there are no express or implied warranties concerning the equipment and that defendants were receiving the equipment "as is." By contract, parties may provide that there are no warranties as to the condition or merchantability of goods (64 Cal. App. 3d 244, 250) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.73

§ 206.73 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313], Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314], and Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Transaction Does Not Involve Goods [Com. Code § 2102]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF AN _____ [EXPRESS AND/OR IMPLIED] WARRANTY BECAUSE THE TRANSACTION THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION DID NOT INVOLVE GOODS WITHIN THE MEANING OF THE COMMERCIAL CODE.

A. Commercial Code Applies to Sale of Goods. Unless the context otherwise requires, Commercial Code Section 2101 et seq. applies to transactions in goods. [It does not apply to any transaction that although in the form of an unconditional contract to sell or present sale is intended to operate only as a security transaction, nor does it impair or repeal any statute regulating sales to consumers, farmers, or other specified classes of buyers] (Com. Code § 2102).

B. Definition of Goods. "Goods" are defined as all things, including specially manufactured goods, that are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities under Commercial Code Section 8101 et seq., and things in action. They also include the unborn young of animals and growing crops, and other identified things attached to realty pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2107 (Com. Code § 2105(1)).

C. Goods Must Be Existing and Identified. Goods must be both existing and identified before any interest in them can pass. Goods that are not both existing and identified are "future" goods, and a purported present sale of future goods, or of any interest in them, operates as a contract to sell (Com. Code § 2105(2)).

[Optional] D. No Liability for Express Warranty When Dispute Does Not Involve Goods. A cause of action for breach of an express warranty, pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2313, does not lie when the dispute does not involve goods defined under Commercial Code Section 2105 (Kazerouni v. De Satnick (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 871, 873, 279 Cal. Rptr. 74).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an express warranty, or an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose, on the ground that the transaction that is the subject of the action does not involve goods [see Com. Code § 2105]. Optional Paragraph D is for use if the action involves an express warranty.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that seller is not liable for breach of a warranty regarding the sale of goods. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should describe the subject of the dispute, and show that it does not involve goods, as defined under Com. Code § 2105.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.60, 206.63, and 206.85.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Liability for Express Warranty When Dispute Does Not Involve Goods

In Kazerouni v. De Satnick (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 871, 279 Cal. Rptr. 74 , the seller of a business brought an action against the buyers to enforce the promissory note given in payment, on which the buyers had defaulted. The issue at trial was whether defendants' performance was excused, or the plaintiffs entitled to damages, for a misrepresentation in the sale documents as to the approximate monthly receipts and approximate monthly net profits of the business. The trial court found for plaintiffs because, although the listing agreement misstated the monthly receipts and not profits, defendants did not rely on the misstatement. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (228 Cal. App. 3d 871, 874) . Defendants asserted that as a matter of law, reliance was not required because the representation in the sale documents was an express warranty, and that, pursuant to Com. Code § 2313, reliance by the buyer is not required. The court stated, however, that Com. Code § 2313 relates to warranties in the sale of goods, and that the dispute between the parties did not involve goods. Under Com. Code § 2102, unless the context otherwise requires, Com. Code § 2101 et seq. applies to transaction in goods. Under Com. Code § 2105, goods are defined as all things, including specially manufactured goods, that are movable at the time of identification to the contract. The court held that the pattern of monthly receipts or profits of plaintiff's business, as to which defendants claims an express warranty, did not involve goods or movables. The instant case was not a dispute over a warranty of the equipment or inventory that were included in the sale of the business; nor was it a case in which it would be impossible or unreasonable to segregate the nongoods aspects of the sale in determining the proper law to be applied (228 Cal. App. 3d 871, 873) . Defendants cited no authority applying Com. Code § 2313 to representations of the monthly receipts or profits of a going business (228 Cal. App. 3d 871, 873-874) . Therefore, the court concluded, defendants failed to sustain the contention that the trial court misapplied the law by requiring them to prove reliance (228 Cal. App. 3d 871, 874) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.74

§ 206.74 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313], Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314], and Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Transaction Does Not Involve Sale [Com. Code § 2106(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF AN _____ [EXPRESS AND/OR IMPLIED] WARRANTY BECAUSE THE TRANSACTION THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION DID NOT INVOLVE A SALE WITHIN THE MEANING OF THE COMMERCIAL CODE.

A. Definition of Sale. A sale consists in the passing of title from the seller to the buyer for a price (Com. Code § 2106(1)).

B. No Breach of Warranty Absent Sale. An action for breach of warranty does not lie for a transaction that does not involve the sale of goods; a sale is an essential element to impose liability under warranties (Shepard v. Alexian Brothers Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 615, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132).

[Optional] C. Blood Transfusion Not Sale. A blood transfusion is a service and not a sale; consequently, an entity that furnishes a blood transfusion cannot be held liable for breach of warranty (Shepard v. Alexian Brothers Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 615, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an express warranty, or an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose, on the ground that the transaction that is the subject of the action does not involve a sale [see Com. Code § 2106(1)]. Optional Paragraph C is for use to assert that a blood transfusion is not a sale.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller is not liable for breach of warranty because the transaction did not involve a sale. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in support of a demurrer to the complaint on the ground that a sale of goods is an element of a cause of action for breach of warranty, and that the face of the complaint shows that the transaction that is the basis of the action is not a sale. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should describe the transaction, and show that it does not involve a sale. For example, if appropriate, counsel should show that the action is based on a service, rather than a sale. For this purpose, counsel should cite any appropriate statutory authority that supports the classification of the particular activity in issue as a service, rather than a sale. It would be especially helpful if the statute states that the activity is construed to be a service for all purposes [see, e.g., Health & Safety Code § 1606 (blood transfusion or injection is service, not sale, for all purposes); see also Shepard v. Alexian Brothers Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 614-615, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 (noting similarities between strict products liability and concept of implied warranties, and applying Health & Safety Code § 1606 to bar actions under both theories)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.60, 206.63, and 206.85.

CAUTION:

Note that for purposes of the implied warranty of merchantability, the serving of food or drink is a sale [see Com. Code § 2314, discussed in § 206.63].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Breach of Warranty Absent Sale

In Shepard v. Alexian Brothers Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 , a person who contracted serum hepatitis brought an action against a hospital, asserting causes of action for, inter alia, strict products liability and breach of warranty, based on allegations that the disease was caused by a transfusion of contaminated blood administered to him while he was a patient. The trial court sustained defendant's demurrers to the complaint, without leave to amend, and dismissed the action. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed (33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 615) . With respect to the warranty causes of action, the court stated that a sale is an essential element in the imposition of liability under warranty law, pursuant to Com. Code §§ 2313-2316. The court rejected plaintiff's contention that the warranties should be extended to the service of blood transfusion (33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 614) . Pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1606, the transfusion of blood and blood product into the human body is construed for all purposes to be the rendition of a service, and not a sale (33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609) . Health & Safety Code § 1606 states specifically that the procurement, processing, distribution, or use of whole blood, plasma, blood products, and blood derivatives, for the purpose of injecting or transfusing them into the human body, is construed to be, for all purposes whatsoever, the rendition of a service, and is not construed to be a sale for any purposes whatsoever (33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609-610) . According to the rationale of the statute, the supplying of blood by a hospital to a patient is incidental to the services rendered, and therefore cannot be considered a sale. The court held, therefore, that the doctrine of strict products liability was inapplicable to the instant case (33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 610-614) . [For discussion of this case with regard to strict products liability issues, see Ch. 190, Products Liability

] The court observed that the doctrine of strict products liability is essentially the same as that of implied warranty, when stripped of the contract doctrines of privity, disclaimer, requirements of notice of defect, and limitations through inconsistencies with express warranties (33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 614-615) . The cause of action based on express warranty asserts the same elements as the implied warranty claims. Consequently, because the furnishing of a blood transfusion is, by law, a service and not a sale, defendant cannot be held liable under a breach of warranty theory (33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 615) .

[b] Blood Transfusion Not Sale

Shepard v. Alexian Brothers Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 , is discussed under § 206.74[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Breach of Warranty Absent Sale

In Gautier v. General Telephone Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404 , decided prior to the enactment of the Commercial Code, plaintiffs filed suit against a telephone company for defective telephone service, alleging several theories of liability, including breach of implied warranty of merchantability. The trial court dismissed the action after sustaining defendants' demurrer. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that there is no liability for breach of implied warranty based on a transaction that is construed as the furnishing of services, rather than a sale of chattels (234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 306) .

[b] Blood Transfusion Not Sale

In Fogo v. Cutter Laboratories, Inc. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 744, 137 Cal. Rptr. 417 , the estate of a man who died after contracting viral hepatitis from a blood coagulant administered prior to a tooth extraction brought an action against the manufacturer of the coagulant on theories including strict products liability and breach of express and implied warranties. The trial court refused plaintiffs' instructions on strict liability and on express and implied warranty, and the jury returned a verdict for the manufacturer. Plaintiffs appealed, and the court of appeal affirmed, holding, inter alia, that in transactions involving services, there can be no liability based on either a theory of strict liability or warranty (68 Cal. App. 3d 744, 759) [for discussion of this case with respect to the strict products liability issues, see Ch. 190, Products Liability].

In McDonald v. Sacramento Medical Foundation Blood Bank (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 866, 133 Cal. Rptr. 444 , the estate of a woman who died from serum hepatitis contracted from a blood transfusion administered during a routine surgical operation sued the doctor, the hospital, and the blood bank that supplied the blood, alleging causes of action in strict liability, breach of warranty, and negligence. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers to the strict liability and breach of warranty actions, and the court of appeal affirmed, holding that Health & Safety Code § 1606 defines the furnishing of blood and blood products for the purpose of transfusions as the rendition of a service rather than a sale (62 Cal. App. 3d 866, 870-871) . [For discussion of this case with respect to the strict products liability issues, see Ch. 190, Products Liability]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.75

§ 206.75 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty [Com. Code § 2313]--Seller Made No Affirmation of Fact or Promise

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF AN EXPRESS WARRANTY IN THE SALE OF _____ [specify, e.g., THE YACHT] THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THE ACTION BECAUSE DEFENDANT MADE NO AFFIRMATION OF FACT OR PROMISE OF ANY KIND TO PLAINTIFF REGARDING _____ [specify, e.g., THE SEAWORTHINESS OF THE YACHT FOR OCEAN TRAVEL].

Absence of Affirmation of Fact or Promise. A buyer cannot recover damages under the theory of breach of express warranty in the absence of any affirmations of fact or promises made by defendants to plaintiff (Pisano v. American Leasing (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 197-198, 194 Cal. Rptr. 77 ; Balido v. Improved Machinery, Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 639, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an express warranty regarding the sale of goods, on the ground that the seller made no affirmation of fact or promise that could constitute an express warranty [see Com. Code § 2313; see also Pisano v. American Leasing (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 197-198, 194 Cal. Rptr. 77] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller is not liable for breach of an express warranty. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in support of a motion for summary judgment on the ground that there is no material issue of fact regarding the lack of an affirmation or promise by the seller. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the seller made no affirmation of fact or promise to the buyer that relates to the buyer's claim for breach of warranty.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.60.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Absence of Affirmation of Fact or Promise

In Pisano v. American Leasing (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 194 Cal. Rptr. 77 , a cabinetmaker sued the manufacturer, supplier, and lessor of a sanding machine based on alleged defects that caused damage to wooden cabinets he had contracted to construct. The complaint stated causes of action for strict products liability, breach of express warranty, breach of implied warranty, and negligence. The trial court granted defendants' summary judgment motion, and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed with respect to the cause of action for breach of express warranty, which was granted on the ground that plaintiff did not rely on any express warranty in leasing the sander (146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 198) . The court stated that in the absence of any affirmations of fact or promises made by defendants to plaintiff, plaintiff cannot recover damages under the theory of breach of express warranty (Com. Code § 2313) (146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 197-198) . In order to establish an express warranty, plaintiff must demonstrate that defendants' statements of fact or opinion were the basis of the agreement to lease the sander, pursuant to Com. Code § 2313(1)(a). Inasmuch as plaintiff concedes that no such representations were made, summary judgment for defendant was proper (146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 198) . For discussion of the products liability issues in this case, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

In Balido v. Improved Machinery, Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890 , plaintiff was injured when a plastic injection molding press she was operating in the course of her employment closed on her hand, crushing it. She filed an action against the manufacturer, the former owner, and her employer, who was the current owner of the press. The action against the former owner stated causes of action for negligence, breach of warranty, and strict liability. The former owner had purchased the press from the manufacturer, and then sold it to the employer five years later. The trial court entered judgment of nonsuit in favor of all defendants after plaintiff had presented her case, and plaintiff appealed the judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed with respect to the judgment in favor of the former owner, and reversed as to other defendants (29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 649) . In ruling on the breach of warranty claim against the former owner, the court noted that there was no evidence presented that the former owner had made any express warranties when it sold the press seven years prior to the accident. Furthermore, because the former owner did not deal in plastic molding presses, its sale of the press did not carry implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for intended use under Com. Code § 2314 (29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 639) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Absence of Affirmation of Fact or Promise

The facts and procedural background of McDonnell-Douglas Corp. v. Thiokol Corp. (1997) 124 F.3d 1173 , are discussed in § 206.60[4][a]. Plaintiff argued that defendant had made two separate promises, both of which constituted express warranties. The appellate court held that defendant's promise to deliver goods free from defects in labor, material, and manufacture related to the goods and was made a part of the basis of the parties' bargain, and therefore constituted an express warranty. It found, however, that the evidence did not show that defendant breached that warranty (124 F.3d 1173, 1177-1178) . As to the second promise, the court held that statements in drawings attached to the contract were not intended to be additional warranties forming a part of the parties' bargain (124 F.3d 1173, 1178-1179) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.76

§ 206.76 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314] or Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--No Privity of Contract Between Plaintiff and Defendant

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF AN IMPLIED WARRANTY OF _____ [MERCHANTABILITY or FITNESS FOR PARTICULAR PURPOSE] BECAUSE THERE WAS NO PRIVITY OF CONTRACT BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT.

Privity Required for Action Based on Implied Warranty. Privity between plaintiff and defendant is required in an action based on an implied warranty of merchantability or an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose (Rodrigues v. Campbell Industries (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 500, 151 Cal. Rptr. 90).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose. The ground for opposition is that a cause of action for breach of an implied warranty cannot be maintained because there is no privity of contract between plaintiff and defendant [see Rodrigues v. Campbell Industries (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 500, 151 Cal. Rptr. 90] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of absence of privity between plaintiff and defendant. For example, if the absence of privity between plaintiff and defendant is apparent on the face of the complaint, these points and authorities may be used in support of a demurrer to the complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

CAUTION:

An exception to the privity requirement has been created in the case of a family member of the buyer [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 114 n.8, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] . In addition, certain other exceptions have been recognized for food and drug products, although these cases were decided prior to the enactment of the Commercial Code. For further discussion, see § 206.76[2][b].

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should therefore show that the plaintiff did not buy the goods from defendant.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.63 and 206.65.

[b] Exceptions to Privity Requirement

Although the general rule is that privity between plaintiff and defendant is required in an action based on implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose, courts have recognized an exception with regard to a plaintiff who is a family member of the buyer [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 114 n.8, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 (discussed in § 206.60[3][a])]. In addition, a line of cases predating the Commercial Code have created exceptions with respect to food products [see, e.g., Klein v. Duchess Sandwich Co., Ltd. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 272, 283, 93 P.2d 799 (construing former Civ. Code § 1735, now see Com. Code § 2315, governing implied warranty of fitness for particular purpose]. Similarly, pre-code cases have created an exception for drug vaccines [see, e.g., Gottsdanker v. Cutter Laboratories (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 602, 607, 6 Cal. Rptr. 320 (regarding implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for particular purpose)].

If the manufacturer or supplier of goods affirmatively engages in conduct directly with the ultimate buyer, so that functionally the manufacturer or supplier is in the position of the direct seller, then it is fair and appropriate to hold that manufacturer or supplier to an implied warranty that the goods will be fit for the buyer's purposes, if all other elements of the buyer's claim have been established [Cardinal Health 301, Inc. v. Tyco Electronics Corp. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 144, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5 ; e.g., U.S. Roofing, Inc. v. Credit Alliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1441-1442, 1445, 279 Cal. Rptr. 533 (roofing contractor negotiated with equipment supplier for specific item at agreed price; unrelated finance lessor then bought that item from supplier and leased it to contractor, because lease was financially advantageous for contractor; court held that implied warranty of fitness ran from supplier to contractor, in spite of lack of actual privity between them, because of their direct dealings; participation of finance lessor as accommodation party was disregarded)].

Counsel should also note that the privity requirement does not apply to actions for breach of express warranty [see Rodrigues v. Campbell Industries (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 500, 151 Cal. Rptr. 90] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Privity Required for Action Based on Implied Warranty

In Rodrigues v. Campbell Industries (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 151 Cal. Rptr. 90 , plaintiffs were crew members of a fishing boat that prematurely returned from the high seas to shore for repairs to the boat's rudder, thus depriving plaintiffs of earnings and a share of the catch. Plaintiffs sued the boat manufacturer for lost wages and a share of the catch, asserting causes of action including breach of implied and express warranties, and strict products liability. The trial court sustained demurrers to the complaint and entered judgment of dismissal against plaintiffs.

The court of appeal reversed, with the exception of the causes of action based on implied warranty (87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 501) . The court held that under a breach of implied warranty theory, with certain exceptions inapplicable to the instant case, privity between plaintiffs and defendants is required. This requirement applies to the implied warranty of merchantability, as well as the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose. However, the court noted, it is inapplicable to an action based on an express warranty (87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 500) . Accordingly, the court concluded that plaintiffs should be permitted to amend the complaint in order to limit the warranty cause of action to express warranty (87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 501) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Privity Required for Action Based on Implied Warranty

In re Air Crash Disaster at Sioux City Iowa (N.D. Ill. 1991) 760 F. Supp. 1283 was a federal case transferred to Illinois from the Central District of California, and decided under California law. The estate of a person killed in an airplane crash sued the airplane manufacturer, the manufacturer of the airplane's hydraulic system, and others, alleging that the crash resulted from engine failure and loss of hydraulic power. The federal district court dismissed the cause of action based on breach of implied warranties of fitness for the hydraulic system's intended use and purpose, holding that privity is a requirement for actions based on implied warranty of fitness under California law, and noting that the passenger who was killed was not in privity with the manufacturer of the hydraulic system. The court stated that when there is no contention of privity between the parties on the face of the complaint, the court may properly dismiss a claim based on breach of implied warranty (760 F. Supp. 1283, 1287) .

The facts and procedural background of Osborne v. Subaru of America, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 243 Cal. Rptr. 815 , are discussed in § 206.77[3][a]. In Osborne, the court of appeal upheld the trial court's refusal to certify a nationwide class of plaintiffs for the purpose of seeking relief for defects in a range of automobiles of a certain make, holding, inter alia, that too many issues required separate litigation (198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 653, 664-665) . Those issues included the nationwide variations in the law of implied warranty. Although all of the states adopted the cause of action for implied warranty of merchantability under the Uniform Commercial Code, they do not all require vertical privity as a prerequisite. Under Com. Code § 2314, vertical privity is required, precluding recovery by used-car buyers in California (198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 656) .

In Anthony v. Kelsey-Hayes Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 102 Cal. Rptr. 113 , truck owners brought an action against the truck manufacturer and the manufacturer of certain wheels sold as optional features on the trucks, seeking damages arising from defects in the wheels. Plaintiffs appealed the trial court's dismissal, with respect to the wheel manufacturer, of causes of action based on negligence, strict products liability, and implied warranty of fitness for use. The court of appeal affirmed, holding, inter alia, that privity between the parties is a necessary element to recovery on a breach of an implied warranty of fitness for the buyer's use, with exceptions not applicable to this case. The court stated that a demurrer is properly sustainable in an action based on breach of an implied warranty when lack of privity between plaintiff and defendant is disclosed on the face of the complaint (25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 448) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.77

§ 206.77 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314] or Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Class Action Cannot Be Maintained Because of Lack of Common Interests Among Plaintiffs

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

PLAINTIFFS CANNOT MAINTAIN A CLASS ACTION AGAINST DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] FOR BREACH OF THE IMPLIED WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY AND/OR THE IMPLIED WARRANTY OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE BECAUSE THE ELEMENTS OF THE WARRANTY CANNOT BE SHOWN EXCEPT BY PROOF OF THE INDIVIDUAL CIRCUMSTANCES OF EACH TRANSACTION.

[EITHER]

A. No Class Action Based on Implied Warranty of Merchantability When Issues Requiring Separate Litigation Are Too Numerous. No class action based on the implied warranty of merchantability may be maintained when the questions that plaintiffs will be required to litigate separately are too numerous or substantial (Osborne v. Subaru of America, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 653, 659, 243 Cal. Rptr. 815).

[AND/OR]

B. No Class Action Based on Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose. A class action based on the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose cannot be maintained because individual testimony is required to establish the elements of the intended purpose, plaintiff's reliance on defendant's skill or judgment, and defendant's knowledge of the particular purpose and reliance (Metowski v. Traid Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 332, 341-342, 104 Cal. Rptr. 599).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose, brought in a class action suit. The ground for opposition is that determination of the issues supporting each cause of action would require separate litigation for each plaintiff, and therefore, that the action is not one of sufficiently common interest to warrant its certification as a class action.

The points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a cause of action for breach of the implied warranty of merchantability or the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose cannot be maintained in a class action. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the above form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel should show that determination of the existence of the warranty and breach varies from plaintiff to plaintiff, giving specific examples if available.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.63 and 206.65.

[b] Class Actions

Generally, a class action may be maintained when the question is one of a common or general interest, of many persons, or when the parties are numerous, and it is impracticable to bring them all before the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 382; see also Civ. Code § 1781 (class actions under Consumers Legal Remedies Act, Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For additional related discussion and forms, see the following chapters in that publication:

- Ch. 120, Class Actions
- Ch. 460, Products Liability
- Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For additional points and authorities that may be used in a class action, see Ch. 41, Class and Representative Actions in this set. For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Class Action Based on Implied Warranty of Merchantability When Issues Requiring Separate

Litigation Are Too Numerous

In Osborne v. Subaru of America, Inc. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 243 Cal. Rptr. 815 , owners of new and used automobiles of a certain make and range of years attempted to bring a class action against the manufacturer and importer-marketer, on theories including breach of express and implied warranty, based on defective engine design. The trial court refused to certify a nationwide class of plaintiffs, holding, inter alia, that too many issues required separate litigation.

The court of appeal affirmed (198 Cal. App. 3d 646) . The court stated that pursuant to Com. Code § 2314(2)(c), plaintiffs' claim for breach of implied warranty of merchantability requires a determination regarding whether the vehicles were fit for the ordinary purposes for which they are used (198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 659) . The court noted that the party seeking certification of a class must demonstrate that the questions they will be required to litigate separately are not numerous or substantial. Therefore, certification is properly denied when the individual questions to be decided may prove too complex, numerous, and substantial to allow the class action, or when the benefits to be gained may not be significant enough to justify imposition of a judgment binding on absent parties (198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 653) . The court stated that that determination in the instant case necessarily varies from vehicle to vehicle, and requires proof of the history of each vehicle and its problems. For example, one plaintiff drove her car approximately 50,000 miles before it required expensive repairs, while other plaintiffs experienced problems much earlier (198 Cal. App. 3d 646, 659) .

[b] No Class Action Based on Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose

Metowski v. Traid Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 332, 104 Cal. Rptr. 599 , involved an action by 50 named plaintiffs who filed suit individually and as members of a class of purchasers of an electronic camera against the company that manufactured and sold the camera. The complaint alleged causes of action for breach of express and implied warranties and for fraud and deceit. The trial court sustained demurrers to the complaint and entered judgment of dismissal as to the class suit. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed as to the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose and reversed as to all other counts (28 Cal. App. 3d 332, 342) . The court agreed with defendant's contention that a class action for breach of implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose could not be maintained because a warranty cannot be shown except by proof of the special circumstances peculiar to each individual transaction. The court stated that the warranty arises only when the purchaser at the time of contracting intends to use the goods for a particular purpose; the seller has reason to know of this particular purpose; the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish goods suitable for the particular purpose; and the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know that the buyer is relying on the seller's skill or judgment. Each of these elements could be established only by testimony from each purchaser as to what his or her intended purpose was, whether the purchaser relied on defendant's skill or judgment, and whether defendant had reason to know of the purchaser's purpose and reliance (28 Cal. App. 3d 332, 341) . Inasmuch as there is no common method by which these elements could be proved, a class action for implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose could not be maintained (28 Cal. App. 3d 332, 341-342) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Class Action Based on Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose

In American Suzuki Motor Corp. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 526 , the court of appeal issued a writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order denying the plaintiff's motion to decertify the class in a products liability class action alleging that automobiles were defectively designed (37 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1301) . The court of appeal explained that for a class to be certifiable, its members must have a viable cause of action, in this case based on the implied warranty of merchantability or of fitness for a particular purpose (37 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1294-1296) . The court immediately concluded that no implied warranty of fitness claim against the plaintiff had been stated because the real parties had failed to identify any "particular purpose" for which they supposedly obtained their vehicles (other than the general purpose of providing transportation) (37 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1295, n.2).

The court further explained that in the case of automobiles, the implied warranty of merchantability can be breached only if the vehicle manifests a defect so basic it tenders the vehicle unfit for its ordinary purpose of providing transportation (37 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1296-1297) . The evidence presented in this case demonstrated that only a small percentage of the vehicles sold during the class period were involved in rollover accidents and that nearly all of the vehicles sold to the putative class "did what they were supposed to do for as long as they were supposed to do it"; that is, provide transportation (37 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1298-1299 , quoting Feinstein v. Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. (1982)535 F. Supp. 595, 603) . Because this evidence indicated that a breach of the implied warranty of merchantability could be maintained by only a few members of the putative class, the court concluded that no ascertainable class existed and the class action for implied warranty of merchantability could not be maintained (37 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1301) . The court noted that the proper remedy for automobile purchasers who alleged they had suffered no personal injury or property damage from the automobiles they claimed were defectively designed was to petition the National Highway Safety Administration for defective investigation, rather than to pursue an implied warranty claim (37 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1300-1301) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.78

§ 206.78 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability [Com. Code § 2314]--Seller Not Merchant With Respect to Goods Sold [Com. Code § 2104(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF AN IMPLIED WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS NOT A MERCHANT WITH RESPECT TO THE _____ [specify, e.g., MOLDING PRESS] SOLD TO PLAINTIFF.

A. No Implied Warranty of Merchantability When Defendant Not Merchant. A seller of goods is not liable to the buyer for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability if the seller is not a merchant with respect to the goods sold (Balido v. Improved Machinery, Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 639, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890).

B. Definition of Merchant. A merchant is a person who deals in goods of the kind involved in the transaction, or otherwise by occupation holds himself or herself out as having knowledge or skill peculiar to the practices or goods involved in the transaction, or to whom that knowledge or skill may be attributed by the employment of an agent, broker, or other intermediary who by occupation holds himself or herself out as having that knowledge or skill (Com. Code § 2104(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability, on the ground that the seller is not a merchant with respect to the goods sold [see Com. Code § 2314].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the seller is not liable for breach of the implied warranty of merchantability. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the seller is not a merchant with respect to the goods that are the subject of the action.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.63.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Implied Warranty of Merchantability When Defendant Not Merchant

The facts and procedural background of Balido v. Improved Machinery, Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890 , are discussed in § 206.75[3][a]. In Balido, the court of appeal held that the seller made no express warranties when it sold the press seven years prior to the accident. Furthermore, because the former owner did not deal in plastic molding presses, its sale of the press did not carry implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for intended use under Com. Code § 2314 (29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 639) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.79

§ 206.79 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Com. Code § 2315]--Buyer Did Not Rely on Seller's Skill or Judgment

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF AN IMPLIED WARRANTY OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE BECAUSE AT THE TIME OF CONTRACTING FOR THE SALE, PLAINTIFF DID NOT RELY ON DEFENDANT'S SKILL OR JUDGMENT TO SELECT THE GOODS FOR PLAINTIFF'S PARTICULAR PURPOSE.

A. When Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose Arises. An implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose arises only if: (1) the purchaser at the time of contracting intends to use the goods for a particular purpose; (2) the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know of the particular purpose; (3) the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish goods suitable for the particular purpose; and (4) the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know that the buyer is relying on that skill and judgment (Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 25, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392).

B. Buyer's Nonreliance on Seller's Skill or Judgment. An implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose does not arise if the seller had no reason to know that it was being relied on, and if the buyer did not in fact rely on the seller's skill or judgment in selecting goods for the buyer's particular purpose (Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 25, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose, on the ground that the buyer did not rely on the seller's skill or judgment in selecting goods for a particular purpose [see Com. Code § 2315].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the buyer's nonreliance on the seller with regard to an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should therefore describe the circumstances surrounding the sale of the goods, and show that either the seller was unaware that the buyer was relying on its skill or judgment, or that the buyer in fact did not rely on the seller. This point can be shown, for example, by the buyer's use of independent expert advice prior to making a decision to purchase the goods.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.65.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose Arises

The facts and procedural background of Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , are discussed in § 206.60[3][a]. The court's determination that no implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose arose under the circum stances is discussed under § 206.79[3][b].

[b] Buyer's Nonreliance on Seller's Skill or Judgment

The facts and procedural background of Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , are discussed in § 206.60[3][a]. In Keith, the court of appeal reversed judgment for defendants with respect to the existence of the express warranty, and remanded for further findings regarding breach of implied warranty (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 26) . With regard to the claim for breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose, the court stated that it arises when a seller at the time of contracting has reason to know any particular purpose for which the goods are required, and that the buyer is relying on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish suitable goods that are fit for the stated purpose (Com. Code § 2315) (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 24-25) . The Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.) makes an implied warranty applicable to retailers, distributors, and manufacturers [see Civ. Code §§ 1791.1, 1792.1, 1792.2(a), set forth in Subpart B]. An implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose arises only if: (1) the purchaser at the time of contracting intends to use the goods for a particular purpose; (2) the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know of the particular purpose; (3) the buyer relies on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish goods suitable for the particular purpose; and (4) the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know that the buyer is relying on that skill and judgment. The court emphasized that these four elements of reliance are important to the consideration of whether an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose exists. If the seller had no reason to know that it was being relied on, its conduct in providing goods cannot fairly be deemed a tacit representation of their suitability for a particular purpose. If the buyer did not in fact rely, then the principal justification for imposing fitness warranty disappears. In fact, reliance is the primary factor in determining the existence of such a warranty (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 25) . The court agreed with the trial court's finding that plaintiff did not rely on the skill and judgment of defendants to select a suitable vessel, inasmuch as he relied on his own experts (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 25-26) .

70 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
1. Commercial Code Warranties

20-206 California Points & Authorities §§ 206.80-206.99

[Reserved]

§§ 206.80[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.100

§ 206.100 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer, Distributor, or Seller Made Express Warranty in Consumer Sale [Civ. Code §§ 1790.3, 1791, 1791.2]--General Definitions Included

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE WRITTEN DOCUMENT ENTITLED _____ AND GIVEN TO PLAINTIFF IN CONNECTION WITH THE PURCHASE OF _____ [specify consumer good, e.g., A WORD PROCESSOR AND RELATED PROGRAMS] ON _____ [date] CONSTITUTES AN EXPRESS WARRANTY BY DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller, manufacturer, or distributor] THAT _____ [specify, e.g., IT WOULD REPAIR ANY DEFECTS CAUSED BY DEFECTIVE MATERIALS THAT BECAME MANIFEST WITHIN ONE YEAR AFTER THE PURCHASE].

A. Express Warranty Defined. "Express warranty" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act is a written statement arising out of a sale to the consumer of a consumer good pursuant to which the manufacturer, distributor, or retailer undertakes to preserve or maintain the utility or performance of the consumer good or provide compensation if there is a failure in utility or performance[, or, if a sample or model is used, that the whole of the goods conforms to that sample or model] (Civ. Code § 1791.2(a); see Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 19-20, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392).

[Optional] B. Formal Words Unnecessary. It is not necessary to the creation of an express warranty that the seller use formal words such as "warrant" or "guarantee," but if such words are used, then an express warranty is created (Civ. Code § 1791.2(b)).

[Optional] C. Consumer Goods Defined. "Consumer goods" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act is any new product, or part of a new product, that is used, bought, or leased for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, except for clothing and consumables. ["Consumer goods" includes new and used assistive devices sold at retail] (Civ. Code § 1791(a)).

[Optional] D. Sale Defined. "Sale" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act is (1) the passing of title from the seller to the buyer for a price, or (2) a consignment for sale (Civ. Code § 1791(n)).

[Optional] E. Manufacturer Defined. "Manufacturer" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act is any individual, partnership, corporation, association, or other legal relationship that manufactures, assembles, or produces consumer goods (Civ. Code § 1791(j)).

[Optional] F. Consumer Warranty Act Supersedes Commercial Code Only in Case of Conflict. The provisions of the Consumer Warranty Act do not affect the rights and obligations of parties determined by reference to the Commercial Code except that, when the provisions of the Commercial Code conflict with the rights guaranteed to buyers of consumer goods under the Consumer Warranty Act, the provisions of the Consumer Warranty Act prevail (Civ. Code § 1790.3; Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 19, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392).

[Optional] G. Home Electronic Product Defined. "Home electronic product" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act means any television, radio, antenna rotator, audio or video recorder or playback equipment, video camera, video game, video monitor, computer equipment, telephone, telecommunications equipment, electronic alarm system, electronic appliance control system, or other kind of electronic product, if it is normally used or sold for personal, family, or household purposes. The term includes any electronic accessory that is normally used or sold with a home electronic product for one of those purposes, but excludes any single product with a wholesale price to the retail seller of less than $50 (Civ. Code § 1791(s)).

[Optional] H. Distributor Defined. "Distributor" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act is any individual, partnership, corporation, association, or other legal relationship that stands between the manufacturer and the retail seller in purchases, consignments, or contracts for the sale of consumer goods (Civ. Code § 1791(e)).

[Optional] I. Retail Seller Defined. "Retail seller" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act is any individual, partnership, corporation, association, or other legal relationship that engages in the business of selling or leasing consumer goods to retail buyers (Civ. Code § 1791(l)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a manufacturer, distributor, or retail seller made an express warranty within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act in connection with the sale of consumer goods [see Civ. Code § 1791.2(a)]. The various optional paragraphs are for use if any of the elements of the definition or status of the parties are in dispute.

This form may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue establishing the existence of an express warranty. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case. Generally, counsel should attach the written statement that is claimed to create the express warranty.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, see

California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). That chapter also discusses warranties under the Commercial Code and under the federal Magnuson-Moss Act. For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 206.119 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities in this form on the ground that the statement was mere policy, commendation, or opinion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Express Warranty Defined

Although not required to be written, an express warranty for purposes of the Commercial Code (Division 2) [see Com. Code § 2313], has some of the same elements as an express warranty under the Consumer Warranty Act. For instance, the exclusion of "puffery" or opinion as a basis for an express warranty is common to both the Commercial Code express warranty and an express warranty under the Consumer Warranty Act. Many plaintiffs allege causes of action under both Codes arising from the same nucleus of facts. Counsel should consider alleging or arguing that express warranties were created under both Codes. Even cases that only address the creation of an express warranty under Com. Code § 2313 may be used to argue a particular aspect of the definition in the context of the Consumer Warranty Act. For forms relating to an express warranty under the Commercial Code, see §§ 206.80 -206.82.

The facts and procedural background of Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , and the portion of the opinion considering the claim for breach of express warranty under Division 2 of the Commercial Code are set forth in § 206.60[3][a]. The only written materials on which plaintiff based his claim of express warranty were advertising brochures. With respect to any express warranty that might have been created under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, the court noted that the Consumer Warranty Act establishes broad statutory control over warranties in consumer sales when the consumer goods are bought primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. Provisions of the Consumer Warranty Act do not affect the rights and obligations of parties under the Commercial Code except that if a conflict exists between the code provisions, the rights guaranteed to buyers of consumer goods under the Consumer Warranty Act prevail [see Civ. Code § 1790.3] (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 19) . The court set forth Civ. Code § 1791.2(a)(1), but agreed with the trial court that the retail seller did not make any written undertaking (at the time the purchase contract for the sailboat was made) to preserve or maintain the utility or performance of a consumer good or to provide compensation if there was a failure of utility or performance. Thus, in this case, there was no cognizable claim for breach of express warranty under the Consumer Warranty Act (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 20) .

[b] Consumer Warranty Act Supersedes Commercial Code Only in Case of Conflict

Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 19, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , is discussed under § 206.100[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Express Warranty Defined

Civ. Code § 1793.1 requires every manufacturer, distributor, or retailer making express warranties with respect to consumer goods to fully set forth the warranties in simple and readily understood language, which clearly identifies the party making the express warranties, and which conforms to the federal standards for disclosure of warranty terms and conditions set forth in the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act (15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.), and in the regulations of the Federal Trade Commission adopted pursuant to the provisions of that Act.

In Reveles v. Toyota By the Bay (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543 , the buyer of a defective used truck sued the dealership for breach of contract, rescission and restitution, negligent and intentional misrepresentation, breach of the Consumers Legal Remedies Act, and breach of the Song-Beverly Act. The buyer accepted a settlement offer on condition that the parties stipulate that the court retain jurisdiction to determine whether plaintiff was the "prevailing party" entitled to attorneys' fees and other costs. The municipal court awarded the buyer attorneys' fees, expert witness fees, and other costs. The buyer and dealership appealed. The superior court reversed and issued an order certifying transfer to the Court of Appeal to determine whether the sale of a used car which includes the additional sale of an extended service contract is a transaction that falls within the provisions of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1795.5] (57 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1148-1149) . The court of appeal held that a written service contract covering a used vehicle, under which the dealer "undertakes to preserve or maintain the utility or performance" of the vehicle, is an express warranty under Civ. Code § 1795.5 (applicable to used consumer goods), even though the consumer is required to pay additional consideration for the promised services (57 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1155-1158) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.101

§ 206.101 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer of New Motor Vehicle [Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2)] Sold in California, or Its Representative, Made Express Warranty

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE WRITTEN DOCUMENT ENTITLED _____ AND GIVEN TO PLAINTIFF IN CONNECTION WITH THE PURCHASE OF _____ [specify new motor vehicle, e.g., A 2003 DODGE VIPER] ON _____ [date] CONSTITUTES AN EXPRESS WARRANTY BY DEFENDANT _____ [name of dealer or manufacturer] THAT _____ [specify, e.g., IT WOULD REPAIR ANY DEFECTS CAUSED BY DEFECTIVE MATERIALS THAT BECAME MANIFEST WITHIN ONE YEAR AFTER THE PURCHASE].

A. New Motor Vehicle Defined. "New motor vehicle" within the meaning of California's "Lemon Law" is a new motor vehicle that is bought or used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. "New motor vehicle" also means a new motor vehicle with a gross vehicle weight under 10,000 pounds that is bought or used for business by a person, including a partnership, limited liability company, corporation, association, or any other legal entity, to which not more than five motor vehicles are registered in California, provided that at least one motor vehicle must be registered to that person in California. "New motor vehicle" includes _____ [use any or all of the following that are applicable: the chassis, chassis cab, that portion of a motorhome devoted to its propulsion, but excluding any portion designed, used, or maintained primarily for human habitation, and a dealer-owned vehicle and a "demonstrator" (a vehicle assigned by a dealer for the purpose of demonstrating qualities and characteristics common to vehicles of the same or similar model and type) or other motor vehicle sold with a manufacturer's new car warranty] (Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2); see Park City Services, Inc. v. Ford Motor Co. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 295, 306-309, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373 (at least one motor vehicle must be registered to person in California); Jensen v. BMW of North America, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 112, 123, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 (used vehicle sold with balance remaining on manufacturer's warranty is "other motor vehicle sold with a manufacturer's new car warranty").

B. Express Warranty Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph A.]

C. Typical Automobile Repair Warranty. The typical new motor vehicle repair contract which promises that the vehicle will be free of defects in material and workmanship for a period of months or within the first specified number of miles of its use and that the manufacturer or retail seller will repair any such defects that occur during the applicable period is the very definition of express warranty of future performance, under Civil Code Section 1791.2 [and under the Commercial Code] (Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 217, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717).

[Optional] D. Demonstrator Defined. A "demonstrator" is a vehicle assigned by a dealer for the purpose of demonstrating qualities and characteristics common to vehicles of the same or similar model and type (Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2)).

[Optional] E. Service Contract Defined. A "service contract" within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act is a contract in writing to perform, over a fixed period of time or for a specified duration, services relating to the maintenance, replacement, or repair of a consumer product, except that this term does not include a policy of automobile insurance, as defined in Insurance Code Section 116 (Civ. Code § 1791(o)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a manufacturer, or its representative in California, made an express warranty regarding a new motor vehicle sold in California and therefore is subject to California's "Lemon Law" [see Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d)(2), 1793.22; see also Cummins, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 478, 483, 493, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 823, 115 P.3d 98 (Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act applies only to new vehicles that were bought in California; Act did not apply to new vehicle that California resident had bought in Idaho and that could not be repaired after repeated attempts at manufacturer's authorized repair facility in California)]. A typical express warranty involved in Lemon Law cases is the promise to repair all defects in materials or workmanship discovered in the first "30,000 miles or 3 years" of operation of the vehicle (Paragraph C) [see Civ. Code § 1791.2].

If counsel's particular case involves issues regarding the status of the parties [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1791(j) (defining "manufacturer")], or the definition of "sale" [Civ. Code § 1791(n)], or "consumer goods" [Civ. Code § 1791(a)], optional paragraphs from the form in § 206.100 should also be incorporated as necessary.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue establishing the existence of an express warranty. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Generally, counsel should attach the written statement that is claimed to create the express warranty.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 206.119 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities on the ground that the statement was mere policy, recommendation, or opinion.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] New Motor Vehicle Defined

In Park City Services, Inc. v. Ford Motor Co. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 295, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373 , a limousine service operating in Texas sued a vehicle manufacturer in California, alleging a claim under the lemon law provisions in the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. The plaintiff had acquired the vehicle in California; however, the plaintiff took it to Texas, never registered it in California, and never had any other vehicle registered in California. The manufacturer asserted in the trial court that the plaintiff lacked standing because under the statutory definition of "new motor vehicle," the condition of having "not more than five motor vehicles ... registered in" California implicitly required the plaintiff to have at least one vehicle registered in California, yet the plaintiff had no vehicles registered in California. The trial court ruled against the manufacturer on that point. After a trial, judgment was entered in favor of the plaintiff, and the manufacturer appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. After describing the legislative evolution of the lemon law provisions in the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, the court noted that while the statutory text was unclear on the point, the legislative intent revealed by the history of amendments was to extend the lemon law provisions so as to benefit small businesses in California. It was evident that the legislature had in mind any business with a vehicle registered in California, except a business having more than five registered vehicles (which was presumed not to be a small business in need of statutory warranty protection). The court observed, "We can avoid absurdity only by adding a gloss to the plain language of the statute." In short, there is an implicit requirement that the plaintiff must have at least one vehicle registered in California (144 Cal. App. 4th 295, 306-308). A plaintiff with no vehicle registered in California cannot invoke the lemon law provisions of the Act (144 Cal. App. 4th 295, 309).

In Jensen v. BMW of North America, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 112 , the court of appeal held that the phrase "other motor vehicle sold with a manufacturer's new car warranty" in Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2) includes all cars sold with a balance remaining on the new motor vehicle warranty, whether or not they qualify as "demonstrators" under the statute, and that such cars therefore qualify as "new" motor vehicles for purposes of the statute. In Jensen, a luxury car lessee sued the vehicle manufacturer for willful violation of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.]. The dealership that leased the car to plaintiff had represented that the car was a demonstrator car from the dealership, but the dealership had in fact bought the vehicle from an auto leasing affiliate of the manufacturer. The car was leased to plaintiff subject to a manufacturer's new car warranty. Plaintiff alleged that the defendant manufacturer refused to replace the car or provide a refund after six attempts at repairing the brakes were unsuccessful. The trial court entered judgment on jury verdict for plaintiff (but refused to award plaintiff's expert fee). Defendant and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded the judgment denying plaintiff's request for expert witness fees, and affirmed the judgment in all other respects (35 Cal. App. 4th 112, 138) . The principal issue on appeal was whether plaintiff's vehicle was a "new motor vehicle" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2) (35 Cal. App. 4th 112, 119) . Defendant argued that the phrase "or other motor vehicle sold with a manufacturer's new car warranty" clarified the preceding word ("demonstrator") in the statute and was not intended as a separate category of new motor vehicle (plaintiff's car did not meet the definition of "demonstrator" in Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2)). Plaintiff contended that the Legislature intended the phrase in question to mean a separate category of vehicle, neither a daily rental car nor a demonstrator (35 Cal. App. 4th 112, 122) . The court reviewed the amendments to former Civ. Code § 1793.2 (effective January 1, 1993, the definition of "new motor vehicle" was moved without change to Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2); see Stats. 1992, ch. 1232, § 7), documents related to those legislative proceedings, and the statutory scheme as a whole, as well as the plain meaning of the words themselves, and concluded that "other motor vehicle" was intended as an alternative or separate category of "new motor vehicle," if the vehicle was sold with a manufacturer's new car warranty (35 Cal. App. 4th 112, 123-125) . The court held that cars sold with a balance remaining on the manufacturer's new motor vehicle warranty therefore come within the definition of "new motor vehicle" (35 Cal. App. 4th 112, 123) .

[b] Typical Automobile Repair Warranty

The facts and procedural background of Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 , are discussed in § 206.61[3][a]. The complaint stated five causes of action, including breach of warranty under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act and breach of written warranty under the Commercial Code. Concerning the issue of whether an express warranty had been made under either Code, plaintiff argued that the written warranty that all defects would be repaired for a period of 36 months or within the first 36,000 miles of use amounted to a warranty of future performance. Defendant contended it did not promise that the car would be free of defects but only that it would repair them (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 216-217) . The court agreed with plaintiff, stating that a promise to repair defects occurring during a future period is the very definition of express warranty of future performance, under both the Consumer Warranty Act [see Civ. Code § 1791.2] and the Commercial Code (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 217) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.102

§ 206.102 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty in Consumer Sale--Failure to Maintain Repair Facility in California [Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT HAS BREACHED ITS DUTY IN CONNECTION WITH THE EXPRESS WARRANTY, GIVEN IN CONNECTION WITH THE PURCHASE OF _____ [describe consumer goods] ON _____ [date], BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS FAILED TO MAINTAIN A REPAIR FACILITY IN CALIFORNIA.

Duty to Maintain Repair Facility in California. Every manufacturer of consumer goods that sells them in California with its express warranty must maintain in California sufficient service and repair facilities reasonably close to all areas where its consumer goods are sold to carry out the terms of those warranties (Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a manufacturer, or its representative in California, failed to comply with its obligation in regard to express warranties to maintain a repair facility in California [Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A)].

This form may be combined with points and authorities addressing other aspects of breach and damages [see, e.g., §§ 206.103, 206.104, 206.130 -206.135]. They may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the failure to maintain a repair facility in California. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The manufacturer may oppose the contention that a seller is liable for failure to maintain a repair facility in California on the ground that no sale was made "in this state." The manufacturer has the option of appointing an independent entity as its authorized repair and service facility [see § 206.123].

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Duty to Maintain Repair Facility in California

Every manufacturer, distributor, or retailer making express warranties and maintaining service and repair facilities in California must, (1) at the time of sale, provide the buyer with the name and address of each such facility or, (2) at the time of the sale, provide the buyer with the name and address and telephone number of a service and repair facility central directory in California, or the toll-free telephone number of a service and repair facility central directory outside California, or (3) maintain at the premises of retail sellers of the warrantor's consumer goods a current listing of the warrantor's authorized service and repair facilities or retail sellers to whom the consumer goods are to be returned for service and repair [Civ. Code 1793.1(e)].

A manufacturer that fails to maintain a repair facility in California is liable to any retail seller who incurs obligations in giving effect to the express warranties [see Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(2), 1793.5].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.103

§ 206.103 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Replacement or Reimbursement--Failure to Promptly Repair Goods (Other Than New Motor Vehicle) to Conform to Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1793.2(b)-(d)(1), (e)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO _____ [REPLACEMENT or REIMBURSEMENT FOR PAYMENTS MADE FOR THE PURCHASE] OF THE _____ [specify product, e.g., COMPUTER PRINTER] BECAUSE DEFENDANT, AFTER A REASONABLE NUMBER OF ATTEMPTS, FAILED TO REPAIR IT TO CONFORM TO THE EXPRESS WARRANTY.

[EITHER]

A. Repair or Reimbursement. For goods other than new motor vehicles, if the manufacturer or its representative in California does not service or repair the goods to conform to the applicable express warranties after a reasonable number of attempts, the manufacturer must either replace the goods or reimburse the buyer in an amount equal to the purchase price paid by the buyer, less that amount directly attributable to use by the buyer prior to the discovery of the nonconformity (Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(1)).

[OR]

A. Repair or Reimbursement. If the goods (other than new motor vehicles) cannot practicably be serviced or repaired by the manufacturer or its representative to conform to the applicable express warranties _____ [because of the method of installation or because the goods have become so affixed to real property as to become a part of the real property], then the manufacturer must either replace and install the goods or reimburse the buyer in an amount equal to the purchase price paid by the buyer, including installation costs, less that amount directly attributable to use by the buyer before the discovery of the nonconformity (Civ. Code § 1793.2(e)(1)).

[Optional] B. Retail Buyer Defined. "Buyer" or "retail buyer" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act is an individual who buys consumer goods from a person engaged in the business of manufacturing, distributing, or selling consumer goods at retail. "Person" within the meaning of the Consumer Warranty Act is any individual, partnership, corporation, limited liability company, association, or other legal entity that engages in any such business (Civ. Code § 1791(b)).

[Optional] C. Requirement of Promptness. When service or repair of consumer goods is necessary because they do not conform with the applicable express warranties, service and repair at a facility in California must be commenced within a reasonable time by the manufacturer or its representative in this state. Unless the buyer agrees in writing to the contrary, the goods must be serviced or repaired so as to conform to the applicable warranties within 30 days. [Delay caused by conditions beyond the control of the manufacturer or his representatives extend this 30-day requirement. If delay arises, conforming goods must be tendered as soon as possible following termination of the condition giving rise to the delay] (Civ. Code § 1793.2(b)).

[Optional] D. Manufacturer's Obligation to Transport Goods for Repair. When a buyer has notified the manufacturer or its nearest service and repair facility in California of a defect and that he or she cannot deliver them to the manufacturer for repair because of their size, weight, method of attachment, method of installation, or nature of the nonconformity, the manufacturer, at its option, must service or repair the goods at the buyer's residence, or pick up the goods for service and repair, or arrange for transporting the goods to its service and repair facility. All reasonable costs of transporting the goods when a buyer cannot return them for any of the above reasons are at the manufacturer's expense. The reasonable costs of transporting nonconforming goods after delivery to the service and repair facility until return of the goods to the buyer are at the manufacturer's expense (Civ. Code § 1793.2(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a manufacturer, or its representative in California, failed to promptly repair a consumer product other than a new motor vehicle to conform to express warranties as promptly as required, and that the buyer is therefore entitled to replacement or reimbursement [Civ. Code § 1793.2(b)-(d)(1), (e)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities addressing other aspects of breach and damages [see, e.g., §§ 206.102, 206.104, 206.130 -206.135]. They may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the failure to maintain a repair facility in California. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show when the manufacturer was notified of the defect, when the product was delivered for repair, the period consumed in repair attempts, and the ways in which the product still did not conform to the express warranties.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

When the buyer neither delivered the goods for repair or notified the manufacturer of the defect, the points and authorities in § 206.124 may be used to oppose those in this form.

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Repair or Reimbursement

Although the coach portion of a motor home is not included in the definition of "new motor vehicle" for purposes of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.; see Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(2), (3)], and thus is not subject to Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2), the replace-or-refund provision applicable to new motor vehicles [see §§ 206.104, 206.121[3][a]], motorhome coaches are included in the term "consumer goods," and therefore are covered by Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(1), the Act's replace-or-refund provision of general application [National R.V., Inc. v. Foreman (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1072, 1083] .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.104

§ 206.104 Supporting Contention Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Replacement or Restitution--Nonconformity Persists After Reasonable Number of Attempts to Repair [Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d)(2), 1793.22]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO _____ [REPLACEMENT or RESTITUTION] BECAUSE DEFENDANT, AFTER A REASONABLE NUMBER OF ATTEMPTS, FAILED TO REPAIR THE _____ [describe new motor vehicle] TO CONFORM TO THE EXPRESS WARRANTY.

A. Buyer's Options After Failed Repair Attempts. If the manufacturer or its representative in California is unable to service or repair a new motor vehicle to conform to the applicable express warranties after a reasonable number of attempts, the manufacturer must either promptly replace the new motor vehicle or promptly make restitution to the buyer. The buyer may elect restitution in lieu of replacement, and in no event may the manufacturer require the buyer to accept a replacement vehicle (Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2)).

[Optional] B. Requirements if Buyer Chooses Replacement. When the buyer of a new motor vehicle that cannot be repaired to conform to express warranties chooses replacement, the manufacturer must replace the buyer's vehicle with a new motor vehicle substantially identical to the vehicle replaced. The replacement vehicle must be accompanied by all express and implied warranties that normally accompany new motor vehicles of that specific kind. The manufacturer also must pay for, or reimburse the buyer the amount of any sales or use tax, license fees, registration fees, and other official fees that the buyer is obligated to pay in connection with the replacement, plus any incidental damages to which the buyer is entitled under Civil Code Section 1794, including, but not limited to, reasonable repair, towing, and rental car costs actually incurred by the buyer. The buyer is liable to pay the manufacturer an amount directly attributable to use by the buyer of the replaced vehicle prior to the time the buyer first delivered the vehicle to the manufacturer or distributor, or its authorized service and repair facility, for correction of the problem that gave rise to the nonconformity

(Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2)(A), (C)).

[Optional] C. Requirements if Buyer Chooses Restitution. When the buyer of a new motor vehicle that cannot be repaired to conform to express warranties chooses restitution, the manufacturer must make restitution in an amount equal to the actual price paid or payable by the buyer, including any charges for transportation and manufacturer-installed options, but excluding nonmanufacturer items installed by a dealer or the buyer, and including any collateral charges such as sales tax, license fees, registration fees, and other official fees, plus any incidental damages to which the buyer is entitled under Civil Code Section 1794, including, but not limited to, reasonable repair, towing, and rental car costs actually incurred by the buyer. "The actual price paid or payable by the buyer" includes paid finance charges. The amount to be paid by the manufacturer to the buyer may be reduced by the manufacturer by that amount directly attributable to use by the buyer prior to the time the buyer first delivered the vehicle to the manufacturer or distributor, or its authorized service and repair facility, for correction of the problem that gave rise to the nonconformity (Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2)(B), (C); Mitchell v. Blue Bird Body Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 32, 35-39, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 81).

[Optional] D. Calculating Value of Buyer's Use Before Nonconformity Arose. The amount directly attributable to use by the buyer is determined by multiplying the actual price of the new motor vehicle paid or payable by the buyer, including any charges for transportation and manufacturer-installed options, by a fraction having as its denominator 120,000 and having as its numerator the number of miles traveled by the new motor vehicle prior to the time the buyer first delivered the vehicle to the manufacturer or distributor, or its authorized service and repair facility, for correction of the problem that gave rise to the nonconformity. Nothing in this paragraph in any way limits the rights or remedies available to the buyer under any other law (Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2)(C)).

E. Presumption Regarding Reasonable Number of Attempts to Repair. "A reasonable number of attempts" will be presumed to have been made to conform a new motor vehicle to the applicable express warranties if, within one year from delivery to the buyer or 18,000 miles on the odometer of the vehicle, whichever occurs first, either (1) the same nonconformity results in a condition that is likely to cause death or serious bodily injury if the vehicle is driven, and the nonconformity has been subject to repair two or more times by the manufacturer or its agents and the buyer has at least once directly notified the manufacturer of the need for the repair of the nonconformity, or (2) the same nonconformity has been subject to repair four or more times by the manufacturer or its agents, and the buyer has at least once directly notified the manufacturer of the need for the repair of the nonconformity, or (3) the vehicle is out of service by reason of repair of nonconformities by the manufacturer or its agents for a cumulative total of more than 30 calendar days since delivery of the vehicle to the buyer. [The 30-day limit is extended only if repairs cannot be performed due to conditions beyond the control of the manufacturer or its agents.] This is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof, and it may be asserted by the buyer in any civil action, including an action in small claims court, or other formal or informal proceeding (Civ. Code § 1793.22(b); see Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 886, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64).

[Optional] F. Manufacturer's and Dealer's Repair Attempts Are Aggregated. Civil Code Sections 1793.2(d) and 1793.22(b) treat the manufacturer and its "representatives in this state," as used in subdivision (d), or "agents," as used in Section 1793.22, as a single entity. The repair efforts of both are aggregated for the purpose of calculating whether the nonconformity has been subject to repair four or more times (Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 889, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64).

[Optional] G. No Notification of Third-Party Dispute Resolution Process. A buyer can rely on the presumption of Civil Code Section 1793.22(b) in an action to enforce the buyer's rights under Section 1793.2(d) if he or she did not receive timely notification that the manufacturer maintained a qualified third-party dispute resolution process. Notification of the availability of the qualified third-party dispute resolution process is not timely if the buyer suffers any prejudice resulting from any delay in giving the notification (Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)).

[Optional] H. Buyer's Right to Rely on Presumption. If a qualified third-party dispute resolution process does not exist, or if the buyer is dissatisfied with that third-party decision, or if the manufacturer or its agent neglects to promptly fulfill the terms of the qualified third-party dispute resolution process decision after the decision is accepted by the buyer, the buyer may assert the presumption provided in Civil Code Section 1793.22(b) in an action to enforce the buyer's rights under Civil Code Section 1793.2(d) (Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)).

I. Nonconformity Defined. "Nonconformity" in the context of express warranties regarding new motor vehicles is one that substantially impairs the use, value, or safety of the new motor vehicle to the buyer or lessee. Whether an impairment is substantial is determined by an objective test, based on what a reasonable person would understand to be a defect (Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(1); Lundy v. Ford Motor Company (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545).

[Optional] J. Manufacturer Has Burden of Proving Extension of 30-Day Limit. Once a buyer presents sufficient evidence to activate the presumption that a reasonable number of repair attempts have been made, the manufacturer or other party against whom the manufacturer operates has the burden of proving the nonexistence of the presumed fact, including any grounds for extension of the 30-day period (Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 890, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64).

[Optional] K. Buyer's Duty of Notification Never Arose. The buyer must directly notify the manufacturer of the need for repair of a nonconformity only if the manufacturer has clearly and conspicuously disclosed to the buyer, with the warranty or the owner's manual, the provisions of Civil Code Sections 1793.2(d) and 1793.22, including the requirement of direct notification (Civ. Code § 1793.22(b); Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 891, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64).

[Optional] L. Buyer Does Not Have to Prove Reliance. The purchaser of a new motor vehicle does not have to prove that he or she relied on an express warranty or service contract given by the manufacturer. [If the buyer did have that burden of proof, reliance would be established by the buyer's continued efforts to have the vehicle repaired to conform to the warrants] (Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 890-891, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a manufacturer, or its representative in California, failed to promptly repair a new motor vehicle to conform to express warranties within a reasonable number of attempts, and that the buyer is therefore entitled to replacement or restitution [Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2); see Civ. Code § 1793.22(b), (e)(2) (presumption of reasonable number of attempts to repair, definition of new motor vehicle, respectively)]. Additional points and authorities from § 206.101 (relating to definitions) should be incorporated as necessary.

Paragraph A describes the buyer's options, the particulars of which are described in Paragraphs B and C. Paragraph D may be used to support calculations under either the replacement or restitution option. Paragraph E sets forth the statutory presumption regarding "reasonable attempts," but except as noted in Optional Paragraph G, it may not be asserted in litigation unless the buyer has first resorted to any third-party dispute resolution process maintained by the manufacturer [see Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)]. Thus, Paragraph E should be used with either Optional Paragraph G or H. The remaining optional paragraphs are for use when any of the particular issues they address have been raised.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the manufacturer has not been able to repair the vehicle to conform to the express warranty. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 206.126 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities on the ground that the buyer cannot rely on the presumption to establish reasonable attempts to repair when he or she did not resort to a third-party dispute resolution process maintained by the manufacturer.

The points and authorities in § 206.128 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities on the ground that the manufacturer was not given at least two opportunities to repair the vehicle, as required by the language in Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2) which provides for consumer remedies only when the manufacturer is unable to service or repair a new motor vehicle after a "reasonable number of attempts."

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirements If Buyer Chooses Restitution

In Mitchell v. Blue Bird Body Co. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 32, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 81 , plaintiffs purchased a new motor home built by defendant through one of its authorized dealers. The cash price was $364,232. Plaintiffs executed a motor vehicle sale contract in which they agreed to make a $55,000 down payment and finance the balance of the purchase price. The dealer assigned the contract to a lender. Plaintiffs then paid $143,162 under the contract, including $25,291 in principal and $117,871 in interest charges. Plaintiffs sued defendant, the dealer, the lender and others, claiming that the motor home had several nonconformities substantially impairing its value and that after making several unsuccessful attempts to correct the defects, plaintiffs notified defendant of their decision to revoke acceptance of the vehicle. Before trial, plaintiffs and defendant reached a partial settlement whereby plaintiffs returned the vehicle and defendant paid them $60,616, and paid $289,305 to the lender for the balance owed under the contract. The parties agreed to have the court determine the sole remaining issue: whether plaintiffs could recover the $117,871 in finance charges paid by them. The trial court decided this issue against plaintiffs by way of a summary judgment motion (80 Cal. App. 4th 32, 34) .

The court of appeal reversed and remanded to the trial court with directions to enter a judgment awarding plaintiffs recovery of their finance charges. It noted that the issue was one of first impression under California's version of the lemon law. Plaintiffs claimed that Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2)(B) entitled a buyer exercising the refund remedy to recover finance charges paid because those charges constituted part of the "actual price paid or payable" under the statute. The court stated that although that section does not expressly allow recovery of paid finance charges, a reasonable construction of the statute was that the Legislature intended to allow buyers to recover the entire amount actually expended for a new motor vehicle, including paid finance charges, less any of the expenses expressly excluded by the statute (80 Cal. App. 4th 32, 37) . That conclusion was supported by the fact that most motor vehicle sales involve financing, and there must be a passage of time before a buyer can seek the refund remedy. In plaintiffs' case, the finance charges constituted the bulk of the money plaintiffs paid to acquire the motor home (80 Cal. App. 4th 32, 38-39) .

[b] Presumption Regarding Reasonable Number of Attempts to Repair

Plaintiff in Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , purchased a Cougar in May, 1984. The "Ford Warranty Information" given to plaintiff at the time of purchase provided that the selling dealer would repair, replace, or adjust parts, except tires, found to be defective in factory materials or workmanship made or supplied by Ford. The warranty applied to defects that might develop during the 12 months following the date of purchase or after the first 12,000 miles, whichever occurs earlier. From June 1984 to October 1984, plaintiff had the car in for repairs eight times for approximately 55 days. Repairs ranged from the relatively minor to the replacement of the

A-frame. The one complaint that was not resolved to plaintiff's satisfaction was the car engine's tendency to surge or die unexpectedly. Plaintiff asked the dealer to correct the problem each time the car was at the dealer for repair. When plaintiff brought the car to the dealer on October 17, 1984, it had been driven 11,760 miles, which would seem to coincide with the end of the warranty period. Nevertheless, the dealer attempted two more times, in November and December 1984, to correct the erratic engine performance. After approximately 30 more days in the shop, the problem was still not solved. In early 1985, after a harrowing experience in which the car died while passing over railroad tracks, plaintiff decided she had had enough and asked the Ford Consumer Appeals Board (hereinafter "FCAB") for a full refund of the purchase price. In March 1985, plaintiff made the vehicle available for Ford's inspection by taking it to the dealership, but Ford failed to keep the appointment. After that, plaintiff refused to make the vehicle available to Ford for further repair attempts and Ford apparently never asked again to inspect it. In July 1985, FCAB denied plaintiff's request for a refund. Plaintiff kept the car and kept making payments on it, but bought another vehicle as her primary means of transportation, using the Ford only occasionally. In October 1985, plaintiff commenced an action for rescission, restitution and damages, breach of express and implied warranties, fraud, negligent misrepresentation, and breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing against both Ford and the dealer. The dealer settled. The causes of action for breach of express and implied warranties of fitness and merchantability were brought under the Consumer Warranty Act, the Commercial Code, and the Magnuson-Moss Consumer Warranty Act (15 U.S.C. § 2310 et seq.). A six-person jury returned a unanimous verdict for Ford. The trial court denied plaintiff's motion for new trial. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, for cumulative errors in jury instructions (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 891-892) , the most egregious of which instructed that Ford, as well as the dealer, had to be given a reasonable number of attempts to repair the car before plaintiff could bring suit. The court of appeal set forth former Civ. Code § 1793.2(d) and (e) (now see Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d), 1793.22(b)), and commented that neither 30 days in the shop nor four unsuccessful attempts at repair would conclusively prove a buyer's right to replacement or reimbursement (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 886) . These alternative remedies are still dependent on a "reasonable number of attempts" to conform the vehicle to the warranty. The dual criteria of former Civ. Code § 1793.2(e) (now see Civ. Code § 1793.22(b)) simply embody the Legislature's decision to declare presumptive standards of what is reasonable for purposes of Civ. Code § 1793.2(d). The court stated that unreasonableness may be found even if a new vehicle has been out of service for less than 30 days, or if there have been fewer than four attempts to repair the same problem. By enacting former Civ. Code § 1793.2(e) (now see Civ. Code § 1793.22(b)), the Legislature has not decreed a per se, valid-in-all-circumstances, money-back guarantee for every purchaser whose new automobile has spent 30 days at the dealership for repairs, or who has suffered through four attempts to fix a problem. Those are "only markers on the path of reasonableness that the trier of fact must trod" (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 886) .

[c] Manufacturer's and Dealer's Repair Attempts Are Aggregated

The facts and procedural background of Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , are discussed at § 206.124[3][b]. Ford's primary defense was that the provisions of former Civ. Code § 1793.2(d), (e) (now see Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d), 1793.22) were not triggered until it, not the dealership, had at least one opportunity to repair plaintiff's car. The jury was instructed accordingly, that the repair attempts of the dealership were not to be considered for the purpose of determining plaintiff's entitlement to reimbursement or replacement. The court of appeal held that it was error to instruct that the manufacturer was entitled to a separate attempt to repair. The legislative history of former Civ. Code § 1793.2(d) and (e) (now see Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d), 1793.22) demonstrates beyond any question that any differentiation between the manufacturer and the local representative is unwarranted. The court set forth Civ. Code § 1793.2(d) as it existed in 1981 when it referred to "the manufacturer or its representatives in this state." That year, a bill was introduced to add the presumption of reasonableness found in former Civ. Code § 1793.2(e) (now see Civ. Code § 1793.22(b)). That bill would have given the buyer the benefit of the presumption "if the same nonconformity has been subject to repair 3 or more times by the dealer and one time by the manufacturer." The bill was subsequently amended and ultimately adopted as what was then Civ. Code § 1793.2(e) (now see Civ. Code § 1793.22(b)), using the language "the manufacturer or its agents" (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 888) . The court reasoned that the Legislature's rejection of precise language favorable to Ford's position demonstrates beyond any possible doubt that the instructions were based on a false and legally erroneous construction of former Civ. Code § 1793.2(d) and (e) (now see Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d), 1793.22(b)). Those provisions treat the manufacturer and its "representatives in this state," as used in Civ. Code § 1793.2(d), or "agents," as used in Civ. Code § 1793.22(b), as a single entity. The repair efforts of both are aggregated for the purpose of calculating whether "the nonconformity has been subject to repair four or more times." The instructions had a pronounced potential for misinforming the jury that Ford could not be required to reimburse plaintiff unless and until Ford, notwithstanding the dealership's previous efforts on Ford's behalf, had been given at least one opportunity to fix the problem itself. Former Civ. Code § 1793.2 (now see Civ. Code § 1793.22(b)) has no such requirement (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 889-890) .

[d] No Notification of Third-Party Dispute Resolution Process

Other aspects of Civ. Code § 1793.22(c) are discussed in §§ 206.115 and 206.126.

[e] Buyer's Right to Rely on Presumption

Other aspects of Civ. Code § 1793.22(c) are discussed in §§ 206.115 and 206.126.

[f] Buyer's Right to Rely on Presumption Nonconformity Defined

The facts and procedural background of Lundy v. Ford Motor Company (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545 are discussed under § 206.127[3][a]. In Lundy, the count held that whether an impairment is substantial, as contained in Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(1), is determined by an objective test, based on what a reasonable person would understand to be a defect. The court declined to draft an instruction defining "substantial," but noted that the term injects an element of degree, and not every impairment is sufficient to satisfy the statute (87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478) . The court further found that the erroneous jury instruction required reversal, as it was prejudicial resulting in a miscarriage of justice (87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479-480) .

Note, however, that the procedural context of the case involved reversal of a jury instruction that "substantially" in this context meant that the nonconformity was not imaginary and actually impaired the use, value, or safety of the vehicle. The appellate court concluded that trial court's definition effectively wrote the term "substantially" out of the statue, and held instead that the term injects an element of degree; not every impairment is sufficient to satisfy the statute (87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478) . Thus, although plaintiffs may cite this case for the proposition that whether or not a defect is "substantial" is to be determined by an objective test as discussed above, they should also be aware that it stands for the proposition that, at the least, the requirement is not automatically satisfied by any impairment, however insignificant, that affects use, value, or safety (87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478) . For additional discussion, see § 206.127.

[g] Manufacturer Has Burden of Proving Extension of 30-Day Limit

The facts and procedural background of Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , are discussed at § 206.104[3][b]. Additionally, the court of appeal found error in the jury instructions regarding the issue of an extension of the 30-day repair period. The jury was instructed that plaintiff had the burden of proving that Ford's failure to repair the defect after the statutory number of attempts and days out of service was not caused by conditions beyond the control of defendant. The court held that it was error to assign this burden to plaintiff. Plaintiff's evidence was sufficient to activate the presumption of former Civ. Code § 1793.2(e) (now see Civ. Code § 1793.22(b)), which the Legislature specifically declared to be a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof. The effect of such a presumption is to impose on the party against whom it operates the burden of proof regarding the nonexistence of the presumed fact [Evid. Code § 606]. Thus, the presumption established by former Civ. Code § 1793.2(e) (now see Civ. Code § 1793.22(b)) operated against Ford. By claiming an extension of the 30-day period, Ford was obligated to carry the burden of proving that the delay was caused by conditions beyond its control (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 890) .

[h] Buyer's Duty of Notification Never Arose

The facts and procedural background of Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , are discussed at § 206.104[3][b]. Regarding the notification issue, the trial court instructed the jury in the statutory language that plaintiff was required to notify Ford of the recurring nonconformity. The court of appeal said that the instruction should not have been given, because the consumer's obligation of direct notification [see Civ. Code § 1793.22] only arises if the manufacturer made disclosure to the buyer in the manner provided by that section. The written statement, "Ford Warranty Information," was admitted in evidence, but, as a matter of law, that did not satisfy the requirement of conspicuous disclosure. Although Ford claimed the requisite information was in the owner's manual, the manual was not admitted in evidence. The court noted that even instructions that correctly state the law are improper when they lack support in evidence (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 891) .

[i] Buyer Does Not Have to Prove Reliance

The facts and procedural background of Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , are discussed at § 206.104[3][b]. The jury was instructed that plaintiff had the burden of proving she relied on the written statement, "Ford Warranty Information." The court of appeal said that this too was error, because, as held in Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 22-23, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , the manufacturer or seller, not the buyer, has the burden of proving nonreliance (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 890) . Reliance was manifested by plaintiff's continued efforts to have the vehicle repaired and by defendant's acceptance of the responsibility to correct the problem (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 891) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Requirements If Buyer Chooses Restitution

In Bishop v. Hyundai Motor Co. (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 750, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 134 , a buyer sought emotional-distress damages and loss-of-use damages for the period when she did not have a replacement vehicle after her vehicle was destroyed by fire. The court of appeal, construing the consequential-damages provision of Com. Code § 2715 as incorporated by Civ. Code § 1794, held that those damages were not recoverable under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (44 Cal. App. 4th 750, 757-758) .

[b] Nonconformity Defined

In Oregel v. American Isuzu Motors, Inc. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 583 , plaintiff leased a new car, which subsequently developed a chronic oil leak that Isuzu was unable to fix. The manufacturer declined to repurchase the car and plaintiff filed suit. The jury found that the car's oil leak was a nonconformity that substantially impaired the use, value, or safety of the car and that the manufacturer was unable to fix the leak after a reasonable number of attempts. The jury also found that the manufacturer willfully violated its obligation to repurchase the car under the Song-Beverly Act, and that it should pay a civil penalty equal to the amount of the damage award. The court of appeal affirmed. It held that the jury's finding that the oil leak was due to a nonconformity, rather than to improper maintenance, was supported by substantial evidence (90 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1101-1103) . The court held further that there was substantial evidence that Isuzu did not repair the car after a reasonable number of attempts, and that there was substantial evidence to support the civil penalty (90 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1103-1105) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.105

§ 206.105 Supporting Contention That Seller Made Warranty in Consumer Sale [Civ. Code §§ 1791.2, 1792-1792.2]--Buyer's Waiver Is Void and Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1790.1]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE WARRANTY MADE BY DEFENDANT TO PLAINTIFF IN CONNECTION WITH THE PURCHASE OF _____ [specify consumer good, e.g., A WORD PROCESSOR AND RELATED PROGRAMS] ON _____ [date] IS BINDING ON DEFENDANT BECAUSE THE WAIVER CONTAINED IN _____ [specify document, e.g., PARAGRAPH 12 OF THE PURCHASE AND SALE CONTRACT] IS VOID.

Buyer's Waiver of Warranties Are Void. Any waiver by the buyer of consumer goods of the provisions of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act[, including what is commonly called "the Lemon Law,"] except as expressly provided in that Act, is deemed contrary to public policy and is unenforceable and void (Civ. Code § 1790.1).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a buyer is entitled to certain damages from a seller, based on breach of warranty, on the ground that the buyer's waiver or limitation of his or her remedies is void and unenforceable [see Civ. Code § 1790.1].

This form applies to an express warranty and the implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for a particular purpose [see Civ. Code §§ 1791.2, 1792-1792.2].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the limitation or attempted waiver is void. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should set forth the limitation of remedies, for example, a contractual modification of a statutory remedy.

[b] Commercial Code Counterpart

The Commercial Code counterpart to Civ. Code § 1790.1, Com. Code § 2316(4), allows a manufacturer or seller to limit the buyer's remedies for breach of warranty in accordance with Com. Code § 2718 (limitation of damages) and Com. Code § 2719 (modification of remedy) [see § 206.71].

Com. Code § 2316 describes several aspects of their enforcement:

- Rules of construction, parol evidence, and statute of frauds [see §§ 206.62, 206.67].

- Limitations on enforcement of remedies for breach of implied warranties [see § 206.84 (merchantability), § 206.86 (fitness)].

- Limitations in standard ways, such as the use of "as is," use of a model or sample, and in accordance with prior dealing of the parties or trade usage [see § 206.72].

[c] Related Points and Authorities

§ 206.107 contains points and authorities regarding waiver of the implied warranties.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.106

§ 206.106 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer or Retailer Impliedly Warranted Merchantability of Consumer Goods [Civ. Code § 1791.1(a), (c)]--Implied Warranty of Merchantability Accompanies Every Sale [Civ. Code § 1792]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of manufacturer or seller] IMPLIEDLY WARRANTED THE MERCHANTABILITY OF _____ [specify item, e.g., THE EXERCISE EQUIPMENT] BECAUSE, UNLESS EFFECTIVELY DISCLAIMED, SUCH A WARRANTY ACCOMPANIES ALL RETAIL SALES OF CONSUMER GOODS IN CALIFORNIA.

A. Implied Warranty of Merchantability Defined. "Implied warranty of merchantability" or "implied warranty that goods are merchantable" within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act is a warranty that the consumer goods meet each of the following criteria: (1) pass without objection in the trade under the contract description; (2) are fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used; (3) are adequately contained, packaged, and labeled; and (4) conform to the promises or affirmations of fact made on the container or label (Civ. Code § 1791.1(a)).

B. Unless Disclaimed, Merchantability Is Warranted. Unless disclaimed in the manner prescribed by the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, every sale of consumer goods that are sold at retail in California is accompanied by the manufacturer's and the retail seller's implied warranty that the goods are merchantable (Civ. Code § 1792).

[EITHER]

[Optional] C. Duration of Implied Warranty That Accompanies Express Warranty. The duration of the implied warranty of merchantability, and if present the implied warranty of fitness, are coextensive in duration with an express warranty that accompanies the consumer goods, provided the duration of the express warranty is reasonable; but in no event shall the duration of the implied warranty be less than 60 days nor more than one year following the sale of new consumer goods to a retail buyer (Civ. Code § 1791.1(c)).

[OR]

[Optional] C. Duration of Implied Warranty With No Express Warranty. If no duration for an express warranty is stated with respect to consumer goods, or parts of them, the duration of the implied warranty extends for one year following the sale of new consumer goods to a retail buyer (Civ. Code § 1791.1(c)).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] D. Consumer Goods Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph C.]

[Optional] E. Sale Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph D.]

[Optional] F. Manufacturer Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph E.]

[Optional] G. Retail Seller Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph I.]

[Optional] H. Vertical Privity Not Required if Product Is Purchased New. California does not require vertical privity in order to state a cause of action for breach of implied warranty if the consumer purchased a new article[, but does require vertical privity for second-hand purchases] (Walsh v. Ford Motor Co. (D.D.C. 1984) 588 F. Supp. 1513, 1528 ; see Civ. Code §§ 1791(a), 1791.1(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a manufacturer or retail seller impliedly warranted the merchantability of consumer goods within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. The various optional paragraphs from § 206.100 should be incorporated if any of the elements of definitions or the status of the parties are in dispute.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue establishing the existence of an implied warranty of merchantability. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Generally, counsel should attach relevant advertising and sale documents.

[b] Commercial Code Counterpart

The Commercial Code counterpart regarding implied warranty of merchantability is Com. Code § 2314, which is set forth in § 206.63.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). That chapter also discusses warranties under the Commercial Code and under the federal Magnuson-Moss Act. For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unless Disclaimed, Merchantability Is Warranted

Civ. Code § 1792 also provides that the retail seller has a right of indemnity against the manufacturer in the amount of any liability under Civ. Code § 1792.

[b] Vertical Privity Not Required if Product Is Purchased New

Walsh v. Ford Motor Co. (D.D.C. 1984) 588 F. Supp. 1513 was an action for damages and declaratory and injunctive relief for breach of written and implied warranties, negligence, and strict liability based on allegedly defective transmissions in certain types of automobiles manufactured by defendant between 1976 and 1980. The action was brought under the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act (15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.). In order to maintain the action as a class action in federal court, 15 U.S.C. § 2310(d)(3) required there to be 100 plaintiffs. In determining whether there were 100 plaintiffs who had stated causes of action, the district court examined, among other things, the claims for breach of implied warranty of merchantability. Under Magnuson-Moss [15 U.S.C. § 2301(7)], causes of action for breach of implied warranty are based on state law. Thus, plaintiffs from states that do not authorize a cause of action for breach of implied warranty unless there is vertical privity between the manufacturer and the consumer could not be counted towards the 100-plaintiff requirement (588 F. Supp. 1513, 1524-1526) .

Three plaintiffs alleged that they bought used Fords in California. The district court cited Civ. Code § 1791(a) [see § 206.100, Paragraph C (defining "consumer goods" as new)] and Civ. Code § 1791.1(d), and held that California does not require vertical privity for breach of implied warranty if the consumer purchased a new vehicle, but does require vertical privity for second-hand purchases. Thus, the plaintiffs who had purchased used cars could not be counted towards the 100-plaintiff requirement (588 F. Supp. 1513, 1528) . Nevertheless, with six plaintiffs to spare, the action was certified (588 F. Supp. 1513, 1538) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Implied Warranty of Merchantability Defined

Mocek v. Alfa Leisure, Inc. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 402, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546 , is discussed in § 206.130[3][a]. Before holding that there is no requirement that a seller be given an opportunity to repair when the implied warranty of merchantability is breached, the court provided an overview of the implied warranty of merchantability as set forth in Civ. Code § 1791.1(a) (114 Cal. App. 4th 402, 406) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.107

§ 206.107 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer or Retailer Has Impliedly Warranted Consumer Goods--Disclaimer Ineffective [Civ. Code §§ 1792.3, 1792.4(a), 1793]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] IS LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF THE IMPLIED WARRANTY OF _____ [MERCHANTABILITY and/or FITNESS FOR PARTICULAR PURPOSE] DESPITE THE PURPORTED CONTRACTUAL DISCLAIMER, BECAUSE THE DISCLAIMER IS INEFFECTIVE IN THAT _____ [THE CONSUMER GOODS WERE NOT SOLD ON AN "AS IS" OR "WITH ALL FAULTS" BASIS or A CONSPICUOUS WAIVER WAS NOT PROVIDED][, AND THE PURPORTED DISCLAIMER IS INCLUDED WITHIN AN EXPRESS WARRANTY].

A. Strict Construction of Purported Disclaimer. No implied warranty of merchantability and, if applicable, no implied warranty of fitness may be waived, except in the case of a sale of consumer goods on an "as is" or "with all faults" basis in which the provisions of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act affecting "as is" or "with all faults" sales are strictly complied with (Civ. Code § 1792.3).

B. Buyer's Waivers Void. [See § 206.105.]

[Optional] C. Express Warranty May Not Limit Implied Warranties. A manufacturer, distributor, or retailer, in transacting a sale in which express warranties are given, may not limit, modify, or disclaim the implied warranties guaranteed by the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act to the sale of consumer goods (Civ. Code § 1793).

D. Requirements of Disclaimer of Implied Warranties. A sale of goods, governed by the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, on an "as is" or "with all faults" basis effectively disclaims the implied warranty of merchantability or, if applicable, the implied warranty of fitness, but only if a conspicuous writing is attached to the goods that clearly informs the buyer, prior to the sale, in simple and concise language of each of the following: (1) the goods are being sold on an "as is" or "with all faults" basis, (2) the entire risk as to the quality and performance of the goods is with the buyer, and (3) should the goods prove defective following their purchase, the buyer and not the manufacturer, distributor, or retailer assumes the entire cost of all necessary servicing or repair (Civ. Code § 1792.4(a)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a manufacturer or retail seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of a consumer good. The basis of the contention is that the purported disclaimer was ineffective [see Civ. Code § 1792.3]. Optional Paragraph B incorporates the general Song-Beverly rule with respect to voidness of buyer's waivers [see Civ. Code § 1791.3]. Optional Paragraph C is for use when there is an express warranty to ensure that it is not interpreted in a way that would negate the implied warranties given by the Consumer Warranty Act. Paragraph D sets forth the particular statements that must be included to effectively disclaim implied warranties.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a written disclaimer is ineffective to negate an implied warranty. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should show that the purported disclaimer of the implied warranty does not contain the required statements, or is inconspicuous, or both. Counsel should produce a facsimile of the written agreement, and compare the characteristics, such as typeface and location, of the disclaimer, with respect to the rest of the contract. Counsel should argue facts showing that the disclaimer was insufficiently conspicuous to inform a reasonable buyer that he or she was waiving the right to have a quality product.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For a discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[d] Commercial Code Counterparts

Disclaimer of Commercial Code warranties is governed by Com. Code § 2316, which is the basis for §§ 206.64, 206.66, and 206.87. § 206.72 is for use when a disclaimer has complied with all the Commercial Code requirements and therefore is effective.

Civ. Code § 1793 (Paragraph C) has no Commercial Code counterpart. However Com. Code § 2316(1) requires specific language to exclude or modify the statutory implied warranties [see §§ 206.64, 206.66].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Express Warranty May Not Limit Implied Warranties

Civ. Code § 1793 also specifies that nothing in the Consumer Warranty Act is intended to prevent a manufacturer, distributor, or retailer from making express warranties with respect to consumer goods.

[b] Requirements of Disclaimer of Implied Warranties

In the event of a sale of consumer goods by means of a mail order catalog, the catalog offering the goods must contain the required writing as to each item so offered in lieu of the requirement of notification prior to the sale [Civ. Code § 1792.4(b)].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.108

§ 206.108 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer, Distributor, or Retailer Impliedly Warranted Fitness of Consumer Goods [Civ. Code §§ 1791.1(b), 1792.1, 1792.2(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of manufacturer or seller] KNEW PLAINTIFF WAS RELYING ON IT IN CHOOSING A SUITABLE _____ [specify item, e.g., EXERCISE AND WEIGHT MACHINE], THAT PLAINTIFF'S PARTICULAR PURPOSE WAS TO _____ [specify, e.g., BEGIN REHABILITATION AND EXERCISE AFTER A DISABLING ACCIDENT AND SEVERAL SURGERIES], AND THAT PLAINTIFF WAS RELYING ON DEFENDANT'S SKILL AND/OR JUDGMENT TO SELECT THE GOODS FOR THAT PURPOSE.

A. Implied Warranty of Fitness Defined. "Implied warranty of fitness" within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act means (1) that when the retailer, distributor, or manufacturer has reason to know any particular purpose for which the consumer goods are required, and further, that the buyer is relying on the skill and judgment of the seller to select and furnish suitable goods, then there is an implied warranty that the goods will be fit for that purpose[, and (2) that when an assistive device is sold at retail in California, there is an implied warranty by the retailer that the device is specifically fit for the particular needs of the buyer] (Civ. Code § 1791.1(b)).

[Optional] B. Manufacturer's Implied Warranty of Fitness. Every sale of consumer goods that are sold at retail in California by a manufacturer who has reason to know at the time of the retail sale that the goods are required for a particular purpose and that the buyer is relying on the manufacturer's skill or judgment to select or furnish suitable goods is accompanied by the manufacturer's implied warranty of fitness (Civ. Code § 1792.1; Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 142, 229 Cal. Rptr. 605).

[Optional] C. Distributor's or Retailer's Implied Warranty of Fitness. Every sale of consumer goods that are sold at retail in California by a retailer or distributor who has reason to know at the time of the retail sale that the goods are required for a particular purpose, and that the buyer is relying on the retailer's or distributor's skill or judgment to select or furnish suitable goods, is accompanied by the retailer's or distributor's implied warranty that the goods are fit for that purpose (Civ. Code § 1792.2(a)).

[Optional] D. Duration of Implied Warranty. [See § 206.106, Alternative Paragraphs C.]

[Optional] E. Inference of Reliance on Implied Warranty of Consumability. A plaintiff need not allege reliance when it may be inferred from other allegations that the manufacturer had reason to know that the product was required for a particular purpose and that the buyer was relying on the manufacturer's skill or judgment to select or furnish a suitable product (Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 142, 229 Cal. Rptr. 605).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a manufacturer, distributor, or retail seller impliedly warranted the fitness of consumer goods within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [see Civ. Code §§ 1791.1(b), 1792.1, 1792.2(a)]. Appropriate points and authorities from § 206.100 should be added if any definitional elements are in dispute, for example, whether the seller is a retailer.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the manufacturer, distributor, or retail seller is liable for breach of the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel therefore should discuss all facts concerning the communications between plaintiff and defendant prior to the sale, and show that plaintiff clearly explained the intended purpose for the goods, and that he or she relied on plaintiff's skill or judgment in selecting those goods for that purpose. Counsel should also indicate that no exclusion or modification affects that warranty.

[b] Commercial Code Counterpart

Com. Code § 2315 governs implied warranties under the Commercial Code, and is set forth in § 206.65. Lack of the reliance element is demonstrated in the opposing points and authorities in § 206.79.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Commercial Code, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability , (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities relating to products liability generally, see Ch. 190, Products Liability .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Manufacturer's Implied Warranty of Fitness

Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 229 Cal. Rptr. 605 , is discussed under §

206.108[3][b].

[b] Inference of Reliance on Implied Warranty of Consumability

Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 229 Cal. Rptr. 605 , was a products liability action brought by a guardian ad litem on behalf of a three-and-one-half-year-old child. The child fell while using a glass apple-juice bottle manufactured by defendant. The bottle broke and cut the child's wrist. The bottle was shaped like a baby bottle and was equipped with a screw top mouth that could accommodate plastic and rubber type screw-on nipples commonly used by infants to drink liquids. The complaint contained four uncaptioned causes of action. The trial court sustained defendant's general demurrer to the fourth amended complaint without leave to amend. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Even without labels, the substantive allegations indicated that plaintiff sought recovery under four theories: strict products liability, negligence, breach of express warranty, and implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for intended purpose (185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 139) . With respect to the cause of action for breach of implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for intended purpose, the court said that the retail purchase of a consumable product in California carries an implied warranty of fitness for its intended purpose (185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 142) . The court cited Civ. Code § 1792.1 and Com. Code § 2315 for the proposition that the chief consideration is whether the manufacturer had reason to know the product was required for a particular purpose and that the buyer is relying on the manufacturer's skill or judgment to select or furnish a suitable product. The complaint alleged that defendant produced and sold the juice container knowing or reasonably foreseeing that the product would be given to a child of plaintiff's age; that the child might drop the container; and that it could break and injure the child. Plaintiff failed to allege reliance on defendant's implied warranty. However, the court held that the totality of the allegations reasonably permitted an inference of reliance, and thus met the core prerequisites for pleading breach of implied warranty (185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 142) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.109

§ 206.109 Supporting Contention That Retailer Impliedly Warranted Fitness of Assistive Devices [Civ. Code §§ 1791(p), 1791.1(b), 1792.2(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of retail seller] IMPLIEDLY WARRANTED THAT THE _____ [specify assistive device e.g., PROSTHETIC LEG] WAS FIT FOR PLAINTIFF'S PERSONAL NEEDS BECAUSE SUCH A WARRANTY ACCOMPANIES ALL RETAIL SALES OF ASSISTIVE DEVICES IN CALIFORNIA.

A. Retailer's Implied Warranty of Assistive Device. Every sale of an assistive device sold at retail in California is accompanied by the retail seller's implied warranty that the device is specifically fit for the particular needs of the buyer (Civ. Code § 1792.2(b)).

B. Assistive Device Defined. "Assistive device" within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act is any instrument, apparatus, or contrivance, including any component or part thereof or accessory thereto, which is used or intended to be used to assist an individual with a disability in the mitigation or treatment of an injury or disease or to assist or affect or replace the structure or any function of the body of an individual with a disability (Civ. Code § 1791(p)).

[Optional] C. Duration of Implied Warranty. [See § 206.106, Alternative Paragraphs C.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a retail seller impliedly warranted the fitness of an assistive device within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. Appropriate points and authorities from § 206.100 should be added if any definitional elements are in dispute, for example, whether the seller is a retailer.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the retail seller is liable for breach of the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Retailer's Implied Warranty of Assistive Device

All new and used assistive devices sold at retail in California must be accompanied by the retail seller's written warranty, which must contain the following language: "This assistive device is warranted to be specifically fit for the particular needs of you, the buyer. If the device is not specifically fit for your particular needs, it may be returned to the seller within 30 days of the date of actual receipt by you or completion of fitting by the seller, whichever occurs later. If you return the device, the seller will either adjust or replace the device or promptly refund the total amount paid. This warranty does not affect the protections and remedies you have under other laws." In lieu of the words "30 days," the retail seller may specify any longer period [Civ. Code § 1793.02(a)]. Other aspects of this specific warranty and the rights of buyers with respect to them are governed by Civ. Code § 1793.02(b)-(h).

[b] Assistive Device Defined

The term "assistive device" is defined by Civ. Code § 1791(p), and is set out in Paragraph B of the form. Prescriptive lenses and other ophthalmic goods are excluded from the definition of "assistive device" unless they are sold or dispensed to a blind person, as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 19153, and unless they are intended to assist the limited vision of the person so disabled [Civ. Code § 1791(p)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.110

§ 206.110 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--General Measure of Damages [Civ. Code § 1794(a)-(b)], Attorney's Fees and Costs [Civ. Code § 1794(d)], and Penalty for Willful Violation [Civ. Code § 1794(c)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER _____ [specify elements of damages, repair, or replacement, e.g., THE COSTS OF HAVING A THIRD PARTY REPAIR THE _____ (specify consumer goods, e.g., HIGH-RESOLUTION TELEVISION SYSTEM), COURT COSTS, AND ATTORNEY'S FEES] EXPENDED ON ACCOUNT OF DEFENDANT'S BREACH OF ITS [EXPRESS or IMPLIED] WARRANTY, GIVEN IN CONNECTION WITH THE PURCHASE OF _____ [specify consumer goods] ON _____ [date].

A. Right of Action. Any buyer of consumer goods who is damaged by a failure to comply with any obligation under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act or under an implied or express warranty or service contract may bring an action for the recovery of damages and other legal and equitable relief (Civ. Code § 1794(a); see Mocek v. Alfa Leisure, Inc. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 402, 406-408, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546 ; Gomez v. Volkswagen of America, Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925, 215 Cal. Rptr. 507).

B. Measure of Damages for Breach of Consumer Warranty. A buyer damaged by a violation of the Consumer Warranty Act is entitled to replacement or reimbursement as set forth in Civil Code Section 1793.2(d), and [ADD, buyer has rightfully rejected or justifiably revoked acceptance goods or has exercised any right to cancel sale] to "cover," damages, including incidental and consequential damages, but less expenses saved in consequence of the breach, or specific recovery of property previously identified in the contract, all in accordance with Commercial Code Sections 2711, 2712, and 2713 (Civ. Code § 1794(b)(1)).

[OR, buyer has accepted goods] to damages as measured by Commercial Code Sections 2714 and 2715, including the cost of repairs necessary to make the goods conform (Civ. Code § 1794(b)(2)).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] C. Commercial Code Remedies for Breach of Implied Warranty. Any buyer of consumer goods injured by a breach of the implied warranty of merchantability and, if applicable, by a breach of the implied warranty of fitness has the remedies provided in Chapter 6 (commencing with Commercial Code Section 2601) and Chapter 7 (commencing with Commercial Code Section 2701) of Division 2 of the Commercial Code, and, in any action brought under those provisions, Civil Code Section 1794 applies (Civ. Code § 1791.1(d)).

D. Attorney's Fees and Costs. If the buyer prevails in an action under the Consumer Warranty Act, the court must award the buyer as part of the judgment a sum equal to the aggregate amount of costs and expenses, including attorney's fees based on actual time expended, to the extent that the court determines the fees were reasonably incurred by the buyer in connection with the commencement and prosecution of the action (Civ. Code § 1794(d); Levy v. Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Inc. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 807, 814-817, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770).

[Optional] E. Consumer Warranty Act Supersedes Commercial Code Only in Case of Conflict. [See § 206.100, Paragraph F.]

[Optional] F. Penalty for Willful Violation. _____ [Except in any class action under Code of Civil Procedure Section 382 or under Civil Code Section 1781, or with respect to a claim based solely on a breach of an implied warranty, if or If] the buyer establishes that the failure to comply was willful, the judgment may include, in addition to the amounts recovered under Civil Code Section 1794(a), a civil penalty that shall not exceed two times the amount of actual damages (Civ. Code § 1794(c); see Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 894, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64).

[Optional] G. Song-Beverly Remedies Are Cumulative. The remedies provided by the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act are cumulative and do not restrict any remedy that is otherwise available, and, in particular, must not be construed to supplant the provisions of the Unfair Practices Act (Business and Professions Code Section 16700 et seq.) (Civ. Code § 1790.4).

[Optional] H. Prejudgment Interest. Prejudgment interest may be recovered in an appropriate case, pursuant to Civil Code Section 3287 (Doppes v. Bentley Motors, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1010-011, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of the buyer's entitlement to various elements of damage or other remedies under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [see Civ. Code § 1794(a)-(d)]. Counsel should incorporate the appropriate paragraphs from §§ 206.103 or 206.124 regarding any replacement, reimbursement, or restitution component of the relief sought [see Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)]. The various optional paragraphs are for use if any of the elements of the remedy are in dispute. Com. Code §§ 2711-2713, the general Commercial Code remedies, are discussed in §§ 206.42 -206.47. The Commercial Code measure of damages for breach of warranty [see Com. Code § 2714(2)] and related definitions of consequential and incidental damages [see Com. Code §§ 2714(3), 2715] are set forth in § 206.69 and should be incorporated whenever they apply.

For memoranda in support of a prevailing seller's entitlement to costs and expert witness fees in an action under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, see § 206.116.

This form applies to express and implied warranties, except that no penalty for willful breach can be recovered for breach of an implied warranty (Paragraph F). If the product involved is a new motor vehicle, the buyer need not rely on Optional Paragraph F, but may have the double penalty of Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1) without having to prove that the manufacturer's violation of the "Lemon Law" was willful [see § 206.111]. For additional memoranda supporting a claim for prejudgment interest pursuant to Civ. Code § 3287 (Paragraph H), see Ch. 121, Interest, § 121.30 et seq.

This memorandum may be combined with memorandum pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue regarding the remedy or recovery. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case; for example, the calculations of each element of damages being sought.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Right of Action

In Mocek v. Alfa Leisure*, Inc. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 402, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546* , plaintiff purchased a travel trailer, manufactured by defendant, which was delivered at a recreational vehicle park. Plaintiff was required to sign documents and pay for the trailer before being given an opportunity to inspect it. When plaintiff's son connected plaintiff's trailer to the power source, electrical problems resulted with the TV/VCR. Defendant's technician examined the trailer, but was unable to fix its electric system in place and wanted to move the trailer to defendant's plant for repairs. The technician told plaintiff defendant would have to replace all the appliances and test each wire. Plaintiff refused to let defendant take the trailer to be repaired, and advised defendant that he wanted a new trailer or a refund of the purchase price. Plaintiff said he would have no confidence in a repaired trailer because the damage was too extensive. When defendant did not replace the trailer or refund the purchase price, plaintiff brought an action for breach of the implied warranty of merchantability under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. The trial court found that the defects constituted a breach of the implied warranty and rendered a judgment in the amount of the purchase price, plus interest, conditioned upon plaintiff returning the trailer to defendant. It concluded that when the implied warranty of merchantability is breached, applicable statutes do not require a buyer to give the seller an opportunity to repair before rescinding the purchase (114 Cal. App. 4th 402, 404-405) . Defendant appealed, contending that plaintiff could not rescind the purchase without first giving it an opportunity to repair the defects.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, finding that although a different rule may apply when there is a breach of an express warranty, there is no requirement the seller be given an opportunity to repair when the implied warranty of merchantability is breached. The court first gave an overview of the implied warranty and the right of action under Civ. Code § 1794. It then concluded that the remedies for breach of express and implied warranties are not identical, and that neither the Song-Beverly Act nor the provisions of the Commercial Code incorporated into the Act supported the defendant's claim. The language of the statutes was unambiguous; there was no reason to believe that the Legislature's failure to set out the same lengthy provisions as those requiring repairs after breach of an express warranty was an oversight (114 Cal. App. 4th 402, 406-408) .

Gomez v. Volkswagen of America, Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 215 Cal. Rptr. 507 , is discussed in § 206.134[3][a]. The court held that the demurrer to the tort cause of action should not have been sustained because, although neither party had mentioned it, the cause of action entitled "bad faith breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing" stated a cause of action for damages under Civ. Code § 1794. A general demurrer should never be sustained if a pleading states a cause of action on any theory (169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925) .

[b] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The court of appeal in Levy v. Toyota Motor Sales U.S.A., Inc. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 807, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770 , affirmed the trial court's determination that plaintiff was entitled to $30,000 in attorney's fees and $3,314 in costs. The judgment was for $22,619 ($17,619 plus a $5,000 civil penalty), and was based on breach of express warranty to repair faulty brakes in a 1988 Toyota. Plaintiff could not recover the cost of serving the finance company, which settled with plaintiff before trial (4 Cal. App. 4th 807, 813) . Nor was plaintiff allowed to recover costs considered duplicative of law office overhead, such as copying and secretarial services (4 Cal. App. 4th 807, 816) . With respect to attorneys' fees, the court of appeal said that although the Song-Beverly Act is obviously designed to protect the public interest, not every action brought under the Act should use the "private attorney general" criteria [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021] to determine the fee award (4 Cal. App. 4th 807, 814-815) . This case has no public benefit aspect, so plaintiff had to show that the fees incurred were "allowable," "reasonably necessary to the conduct of the litigation," and "reasonable in amount." Although the trial court found that the items submitted in support of the fee claim were grossly exaggerated and that no more than 10 days of counsel's time should have been required, the record did not indicate how the trial court arrived at its award. The $30,000 award did not reflect an abuse of discretion (4 Cal. App. 4th 807, 816) .

Plaintiff also sought an additional $4,200 for attorneys' fees incurred for representation at the motion to tax costs. The court of appeal agreed with the trial court that a separate award for that motion was not appropriate. It was reasonable to conclude that the $30,000 award was adequate to compensate counsel for all services, including those relating to the motion to tax costs (4 Cal. App. 4th 807, 817) .

[c] Penalty for Willful Violation

The court of appeal in Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , reversed a judgment for defendant manufacturer because of several errors in jury instructions. One error involved the instruction regarding willfulness. The jury was instructed that "willful" meant something more blameworthy than the sort of misconduct involved in ordinary negligence and something more than the mere intentional doing of an act constituting negligence (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 893) . It connoted an act that is undertaken with either a knowing or reckless disregard of the rights of the consumer in failing to comply with the obligations under the warranty. The court pointed out that it has been more than a decade since the California Supreme Court held that "willful," when used in a penal statute such as Civ. Code § 1794(c), requires only that the illegal act or omission occur intentionally without regard to motive or ignorance of the act's prohibited character. This concept of willfulness does not include a moral component, such as conveyed in the jury instructions by the use of words such as "blameworthy" and "reckless disregard of consumer's rights" associated with oppression, fraud, or malice required by Civ. Code § 3294 for the recovery of punitive damages. The instructions should have told the jury that it could award a civil penalty if it determined that Ford knew of its obligations but intentionally declined to fulfill them. Instead, the instructions confused the issue with language that virtually compelled a wholly extraneous moral assessment of Ford's conduct (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 894) .

[d] Prejudgment Interest

In Doppes v. Bentley Motors, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797 , the buyer of an automobile sued the manufacturer for violations of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. The trial court rendered judgment for the buyer, which included an award of prejudgment interest. The manufacturer moved to set aside the judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), contending that it was void because the Act does not permit recovery of prejudgment interest, and therefore the court had no jurisdiction to award it. The trial court denied the motion.

The court of appeal affirmed, concluding that nothing in the Song Beverly Consumer Warranty Act bars recovery of prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3287 (174 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1010-1011) . The court pointed out that remedies under the Act "are cumulative and shall not be construed as restricting any remedy that is otherwise available" [Civ. Code § 1790.4].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Attorney's Fees and Costs

In Nightingale v. Hyundai Motor America (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 99 , the buyer was billed and liable only for fees at the hourly rate set at the beginning of the litigation. For purposes of awarding attorney's fees under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.], the plain language of the statute allows for recovery of attorney's fees that have been "reasonably incurred by the buyer" [see Civ. Code § 1794(d)]. Attorney's fees were not "incurred" by Nightengale at rates that increased over the years since the case had begun; therefore, fees could not be awarded at higher rates (31 Cal. App. 4th 99, 104-105) .

[b] Penalty for Willful Violation

In Schreidel v. American Honda Motor Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's holding that the defendant willfully failed to comply with the obligation under Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2) to replace or make restitution to a buyer for a new automobile with a defective clutch system, thus entitling the buyer to an award of civil penalties in addition to damages [see Civ. Code § 1794(c)] (34 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1254-1255) . The buyer had brought the problems to the dealer's attention on six separate occasions, and an independent service station mechanic had reported his observation of pedal-sticking problems to the dealer. Citing Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 894, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , the court of appeal noted that with regard to the "willful" requirement of Civ. Code § 1794(c), a civil penalty may be awarded if the jury determines that the manufacturer knew its obligations but intentionally declined to fulfill them (34 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1250) . There is no requirement of blame, malice, or moral delinquency (34 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1250) .

However, a manufacturer's failure to refund or replace a defective product is not "willful" under Civ. Code § 1794(c) if the manufacturer reasonably and in good faith believes the facts of the case do not call for a refund or replacement [Kwan v. Mercedes Benz of North America, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 174, 186, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371] .

[c] Measure of Damages for Breach of Consumer Warranty

In Bishop v. Hyundai Motor Co. (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 750, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 134 , the trial court awarded the buyer "lemon law" penalties under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, damages for emotional distress, and damages for loss of use of her vehicle. The manufacturer appealed. The court of appeal, construing the consequential-damages provision of Com. Code § 2715 as incorporated by Civ. Code § 1794, held that emotional-distress damages or damages for loss of use of the vehicle during a period when the buyer incurred no expenses or other monetary loss were not recoverable under the Consumer Warranty Act (44 Cal. App. 4th 750, 757-758) . The court also held that evidence of the buyer's emotional distress did not taint the remainder of the jury's verdict, and that the manufacturer's failure to object to an erroneous jury instruction constituted a waiver of the issue on appeal (44 Cal. App. 4th 750, 758-760) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.111

§ 206.111 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--"Lemon Law" Measure of Damages [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER _____ [specify elements of damages, repair, or replacement, e.g., DAMAGES, COSTS, AND ATTORNEY'S FEES, AND A CIVIL PENALTY] CAUSED BY DEFENDANT'S FAILURE TO REPAIR THE _____ [specify, e.g, 1992 MERCEDES BENZ 300 SL AUTOMOBILE] TO CONFORM TO DEFENDANT'S EXPRESS WARRANTY AFTER A REASONABLE NUMBER OF ATTEMPTS TO DO SO.

Measure of Damages for "Lemon Law" Violation. Except as otherwise provided in Civil Code Section 1794(e), if the buyer establishes that the manufacturer or its representative in California (1) did not service or repair the new motor vehicle to conform to the applicable express warranties after a reasonable number of attempts have been made and (2) failed to either replace the vehicle or return any payments and expenses to the buyer, the buyer may recover damages and reasonable attorney's fees and costs, and a civil penalty of up to two times the amount of damages (Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the proponent's entitlement to damages and the civil penalty imposed for failure to conform a new motor vehicle to express warranties made in connection with its sale [see Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1)]. This penalty applies after the manufacturer and its agents have made a reasonable number of attempts to repair the new motor vehicle [see Civ. Code § 1793.22(c) (set forth in § 206.104)], and, being unsuccessful, have also failed to provide restitution or a replacement vehicle, as required by Civ. Code § 1973.2(d)(2) (also set forth in § 206.104). Counsel should incorporate any needed definitions from §§ 206.100 or 206.101, and the appropriate paragraphs from §§ 206.104 or 206.111 regarding any component elements of damages or their calculations.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue regarding the remedy or recovery. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the above form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Generally, counsel should show the calculations of each element of damages being sought.

Civ. Code § 1794(e) provides for a separate action for damages, civil penalties, and attorney's fees from the action provided by Civ. Code § 1794(a)-(d). While Civ. Code § 1794(a)-(d) impose a willfulness requirement for the imposition of a civil penalty, Civ. Code § 1794(e) requires no such showing of willfulness. A civil penalty may be imposed based on a manufacturer's failure to comply with a new motor vehicle warranty obligation pursuant to Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2) [Suman v. BMW of North America, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10-11, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133] .

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

§§ 206.130-206.133 set forth exceptions when the civil penalty cannot be awarded for violation of the "Lemon Law."

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.112

§ 206.112 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Buyer's Reasonable Use of Vehicle Does Not Prevent Rescission

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE FACT THAT PLAINTIFF CONTINUED TO USE THE _____ [specify item, e.g., FORD PINTO AUTOMOBILE] OCCASIONALLY AFTER HE/SHE DISCOVERED THE DEFECT DOES NOT AMOUNT TO WAIVER OF THE RIGHT TO RESCIND AND COLLECT RESTITUTION.

Reasonable Use Does Not Bar Rescission. Reasonable continued use of a motorized vehicle after the buyer learns of the nonconformity does not, as a matter of law, prevent the buyer from asserting rescission, or its Commercial Code equivalent "revocation of acceptance" (Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 897, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the proponent's entitlement to damages for a manufacturer's or dealer's failure to conform a new motor vehicle to express warranties made in connection with its sale even though the buyer used the vehicle after learning of the defect.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue regarding the remedy or recovery. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show the reasonableness of the continued use.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Reasonable Use Does Not Bar Rescission

The facts and procedural background of Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , are discussed at § 206.104[3][b]. The last issue addressed by the court was whether plaintiff's continued use of the vehicle for 28,000 miles, until April 1986, and continued payments for the car resulted in a waiver of her right to rescind. The jury instructions on the issue were based mainly on Commercial Code provisions [see Com. Code §§ 2606-2608]. The court noted that prior to the enactment of the statutory remedies invoked by plaintiff, California's approach to waiver was clear: waiver will be presumed against a party who, having full knowledge of the circumstances that would warrant rescission, nevertheless accepts and retains benefits accruing under the contract. However, it is clear that reasonable, continued use of a motorized vehicle does not, as a matter of law, prevent the buyer from asserting rescission or its Commercial Code equivalent "revocation of acceptance" (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 897) . This view is based on judicial recognition of the practical realities--purchasers of unsatisfactory vehicles may be compelled to continue using them because of the financial burdens of securing alternative means of transportation for a substantial period of time. The court held that although nothing in the language of the Uniform Commercial Code or the Consumer Warranty Act suggests abrogation of common law principles relating to continued use and waiver of a buyer's right to rescind, the instructions should be reevaluated on retrial (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 898) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.113

§ 206.113 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Action Not Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Civ. Code § 1790.3; Com. Code § 2725]--General Availability

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S CAUSE OF ACTION IS GOVERNED BY THE FOUR-YEAR LIMITATIONS PERIOD OF COMMERCIAL CODE SECTION 2725, WHICH HAS NOT EXPIRED.

A. Song-Beverly Adopts Commercial Code Limitation Period. The four-year limitations period under Commercial Code Section 2725(1) applies to civil actions brought under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 215, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717).

B. Limitations Period. [See § 206.38, Paragraph A].

[Optional] C. Song-Beverly Adopts Commercial Code Accrual Rule. Because the limitations period under Commercial Code Section 2725(1) applies to civil actions brought under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, the rule of accrual on discovery, pursuant to Commercial Code Section 2725(2), applies to those actions as well (Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 219, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717).

[Optional] D. Accrual-on-Discovery Rule. [See § 206.61, Paragraph A.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the limitation period applicable to a cause of action under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act has not expired. Optional Paragraphs C and D are for use if there is some issue regarding when the cause of action accrued [see also Civ. Code §§ 1793.22(c), 1795.6, regarding tolling, in §§ 206.114, 206.115].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which the issue of the limitations period is raised. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to the complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should set forth the applicable contract provision and the relevant dates, such as the date the nonconformity was discovered, the date the warrantor was notified, the date repairs were commenced, the date repairs were completed, and the date it became apparent that the goods could not be made to conform [see § 206.114[2][b]].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Song-Beverly Adopts Commercial Code Limitation Period

The facts and procedural background of Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 , are discussed in § 206.61[3][a]. The complaint stated five causes of action, including breach of warranty under the Consumer Warranty Act and breach of written warranty under the Commercial Code (Com. Code § 2313). The trial court granted defendants' motion for summary judgment on the ground that the action was time-barred. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding, inter alia, that the warranty causes of action were not time-barred (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 212-215) . The express warranty involved was a written warranty to repair the vehicle within 36 months of its purchase or during the first 36,000 miles of its use, whichever occurred first (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 210-211) . The relevant dates were: December 31, 1983, date of purchase; May 30, 1984, last of five repair attempts by defendant; October 1984, commencement of alternative dispute resolution process [see Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)]; February 5, 1988, filing of complaint. Defendant's motion for summary judgment was based on the application of the three-year limitation provision under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) (actions based on statutory rights) to the Consumer Warranty Act cause of action, and the four-year limitation provision under Com. Code § 2525 to the cause of action under the Commercial Code.

In granting the motion, the trial court did not specify which limitation period applied to each cause of action. Plaintiff argued that the cause of action under the Consumer Warranty Act did not accrue until one year after the delivery of the car, or until the odometer reached 12,000 miles, or alternatively, that the limitation period was tolled for the dispute resolution process. The court noted that the issue of which limitations period applies to the Consumer Warranty Act is one of first impression. Whichever limitation period applied, the cause of action accrued no later than May 1984, when plaintiff concluded that defendant would be unable to repair the car (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 211) .

Preliminarily, the court stated that sales of consumer goods are governed by two overlapping California statutory schemes: the Commercial Code and the Consumer Warranty Act. Commercial Code remedies include the right to reject nonconforming goods, to revoke acceptance, to cover by purchasing substitute goods, and to recover damages for breach of warranty (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 212) [for discussion of Commercial Code remedies under Com. Code § 2701 et seq. generally, see pt. I]. The Consumer Warranty Act regulates warranty terms, imposes service and repair obligations on manufacturers, distributors, and retailers who make express warranties, requires disclosure of specified information in express warranties, and broadens a buyer's remedies to include costs, attorney's fees, and civil penalties. The court said, citing Civ. Code §§ 1790.3 and 1794(b), that the Consumer Warranty Act supplements, rather than supersedes, the provisions of the Commercial Code. The "Lemon Law" (Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d)(2), 1793.22) was added to the Consumer Warranty Act in 1982 (and amended in 1992) to give recourse to the buyer of a new automobile that suffers from the same defect repeatedly, or is out of service for cumulative repairs for an extended period (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213) . The Consumer Warranty Act itself contains no express limitations period for a civil action (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213) . Com. Code § 2725 provides a four-year limitations period for breach of warranty (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213-214) . The court considered the procedural and substantive statutory scheme of the Consumer Warranty Act in general and Civ. Code § 1790.3 in particular, as well as the rule that a general provision is controlled by a specific one, the specific one being treated as an exception to the general one (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 214-215) . Thus, a specific statute of limitations, Com. Code § 2725 in this case, dealing with breaches of warranties, controls over a general limitation such as Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a), especially since the intent of the Consumer Warranty Act was to supplement rather than to supersede the rights and obligations created by the Commercial Code (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 215) .

[b] Song-Beverly Adopts Commercial Code Accrual Rule

The facts and procedural background of Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 , are discussed in § 206.61[3][a]. With respect to the accrual of the cause of action, the court noted that under Com. Code § 2725(2), an action for breach of warranty accrues on tender of delivery. An exception is made when a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods and discovery of the breach must await the time of that performance (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 215) . The court noted that no California cases have interpreted this provision, although other jurisdictions, applying the corresponding Uniform Commercial Code provision, have held that a defendant who moves for summary judgment bears the burden of negating the applicability of the discovery exception for accrual of an action on a warranty of future performance (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 216) . Plaintiff urged that the written warranty stating that all defects would be repaired for a period of 36 months or within the first 36,000 miles of use amounted to a warranty of future performance, while defendant contended the warranty did not promise that the car would be free of defects but only that it would repair them (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 216-217) .

The court agreed with plaintiff [see § 206.101], and found that plaintiff's evidence was sufficient to raise a genuine issue of material fact with respect to the existence of an express warranty under Com. Code § 2313 (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 217) , and thus, with regard to the applicability of the accrual-on-discovery rule codified in Com. Code § 2725(2) (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 218) . The court also stated that because both causes of action (Commercial Code and Consumer Warranty Act) are governed by the same statute of limitations, the same rule of accrual applies as well (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 219) . Although plaintiff claimed the odometer reading of 11,560 miles on December 20, 1984, should be used to set accrual in December 1984, a reasonable trier of fact could conclude that the cause of action arose on May 30, 1984, the last time the vehicle was repaired by defendant, which coincided with plaintiff's deposition testimony that that was when he decided to take the vehicle to another dealer after defendant failed to repair it. Choosing May 1984 as the date when the cause of action accrued under the discovery rule is consistent with the policy of the "Lemon Law" to give the seller a reasonable opportunity to repair the car [see Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d)(2), 1793.22] (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 218) . Adopting the rule urged by defendant, that the cause of action accrued when the car was first delivered to a buyer, would undermine the legislative purpose that the parties attempt to resolve any deficiencies in performance before resorting to the remedies provided by the Lemon Law (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 218-219) . Since both causes of action are governed by the same statute of limitations, if both causes of action accrued in May 1984, the four-year statute would not have run by February 1988, when the complaint was filed. Thus, summary judgment on those causes of action was improper and had to be reversed (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 219) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.114

§ 206.114 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Action Not Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Civ. Code § 1790.3; Com. Code § 2725]--Warranty Period Extended During Repairs [Civ. Code § 1795.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S CAUSE OF ACTION IS NOT BARRED BY THE EXPIRATION OF THE FOUR-YEAR LIMITATIONS PERIOD OF COMMERCIAL CODE SECTION 2725 BECAUSE THE WARRANTY PERIOD WAS EXTENDED DURING THE TIME DEFENDANT ATTEMPTED REPAIRS.

A. Warranty Period Extended During Repair. Every warranty period relating to an implied or express warranty accompanying a sale or consignment for sale of consumer goods selling for $50 or more is automatically tolled for the period beginning on the date when the buyer either (1) delivers nonconforming goods to the manufacturer or seller for warranty repairs or service, or (2) pursuant to Civil Code Section 1793.2(c) or 1793.22, notifies the manufacturer or seller of the nonconformity of the goods up to, and including, the date on which (1) the repaired or serviced goods are delivered to the buyer, (2) the buyer is notified the goods are repaired or serviced and are available for the buyer's possession, or (3) the buyer is notified that repairs or service is completed, if repairs or service is made at the buyer's residence (Civ. Code § 1795.6(a)).

[Optional] B. When Repairs Have Not Commenced. Notwithstanding the date or conditions set for the expiration of the warranty period, a warranty period is not deemed expired if, after the buyer has satisfied the requirements of Civil Code Section 1795.6(a), the warranty repairs or service has not been performed due to delays caused by circumstances beyond the control of the buyer. [When the warranty repairs or service has been performed so as to remedy the nonconformity, the warranty period expires in accordance with its terms, including any extension to the warranty period for warranty repairs or service] (Civ. Code § 1795.6(b)).

[Optional] C. When Repairs Do Not Correct Nonconformity. Notwithstanding the date or conditions set for the expiration of the warranty period, a warranty period is not deemed expired if the warranty repairs or service performed on the nonconforming goods did not remedy the nonconformity for which the repairs or service was performed and the buyer notified the manufacturer or seller of this failure within 60 days after the repairs or service was completed (Civ. Code § 1795.6(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the limitation period applicable to a cause of action under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act has not expired because the warranty period was tolled during repairs or service [see Civ. Code § 1795.6]. The optional paragraphs are for use if repairs have not been started or completed to achieve conformity when the warranty period would otherwise have expired. In the situations contemplated by Optional Paragraphs B and C, once the warranty repairs or service has been performed so as to remedy the nonconformity, the warranty period expires in accordance with its terms, including any extension to the warranty period for warranty repairs or service [Civ. Code § 1795.6(b)].

For purposes of Civ. Code § 1795.6 only, "manufacturer" includes the manufacturer's service or repair facility [Civ. Code § 1795.6(c)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which the issue of the limitations period is raised. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to the complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should set forth the contract provisions governing the expiration of the warranty period and other significant dates, such as the dates the nonconformity was discovered, the date the warrantor was notified, the date repairs were commenced, the date repairs were completed, and the date it became apparent that the goods could not be made to conform [see § 206.114[2][b]].

[b] Receipts Required to Be Provided by Manufacturer

Every manufacturer or seller of consumer goods selling for $50 or more must provide a receipt to the buyer showing the date of purchase [Civ. Code § 1795.6(d)]. Every manufacturer or seller performing warranty repairs or service on the goods must provide to the buyer a work order or receipt with the date of return and either the date the buyer was notified that the goods were repaired or serviced or, if applicable, the date the goods were shipped or delivered to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1795.6(d)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.115

§ 206.115 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Action Not Barred by Expiration of Limitations Period [Civ. Code § 1790.3; Com. Code § 2725]--Limitation Period Extended During Third-Party Dispute Resolution Process [Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF'S CAUSE OF ACTION IS NOT BARRED BY THE EXPIRATION OF THE FOUR-YEAR LIMITATIONS PERIOD OF COMMERCIAL CODE SECTION 2725 BECAUSE IT WAS EXTENDED FOR THE PERIOD CONSUMED BY THE THIRD-PARTY DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROCESS.

Extension for Third-Party Dispute Resolution. Any period of limitation of actions under any federal or California laws with respect to any person is be extended for a period equal to the number of days between the date a complaint is filed with a third-party dispute resolution process and the date of its decision or the date before which the manufacturer or its agent is required by the decision to fulfill its terms if the decision is accepted by the buyer, whichever occurs later (Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The above points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the limitation period applicable to a cause of action under the "Lemon Law" or the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act has not expired because it was tolled during the third-party resolution process. In the case of express warranties of new motor vehicles, use of the third-party resolution process contemplated by this form is required before a buyer may rely on the presumption of Civ. Code § 1793.22(b), regarding reasonable attempts to repair, if the manufacturer maintains one and has notified the buyer of its existence [see Civ. Code § 1793.22(c); see § 206.101 for applicable definitions].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which the issue of the limitations period is raised. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to the complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should set forth the significant dates.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.116

§ 206.116 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Entitled to Costs/Expert Witness Fees [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 998(c), 1032(b)] As Prevailing Party In Action Brought Under Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER _____ [specify, e.g., COSTS AND EXPERT WITNESS FEES] AS THE PREVAILING PARTY IN AN ACTION BROUGHT UNDER THE SONG-BEVERLY CONSUMER WARRANTY ACT.

A. Seller's Recovery of Costs. A seller who is the prevailing party in an action brought under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act may recover costs (Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b); Murillo v. Fleetwood Enterprises (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 985, 999, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682, 953 P.2d 858).

B. Seller's Recovery of Expert Witness Fees. A seller who is the prevailing party in an action brought under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act may recover expert witness fees actually incurred and reasonably necessary in preparation for either trial or arbitration, or both, or during trial or arbitration, of the case (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 998(c), 1032(b); Murillo v. Fleetwood Enterprises (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 985, 1001, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682, 953 P.2d 858).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of the seller's entitlement to costs and/or expert witness fees as the prevailing party in an action brought under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.].

This form may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue regarding the remedy or recovery. The form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case; for example, the calculation of each element of costs or fees being sought.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Seller's Recovery of Costs

In Murillo v. Fleetwood Enterprises (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 985, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682, 953 P.2d 858 , the California Supreme Court held that defendant sellers who are the prevailing parties in an action brought under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act are entitled to recover their costs and expert witness fees. The plaintiff purchased a motorhome in 1991 from an authorized retail dealer. Later that year, he allegedly perceived various defects in the vehicle. He sought and received repairs to the motorhome but found them unsatisfactory. The purchaser then filed suit, alleging that the sellers breached express and implied warranties as well as other statutory provisions of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. The sellers offered to settle the case for $12,000 with the buyer to retain possession of the vehicle, but the buyer refused the offer and the parties proceeded to trial. The sellers prevailed and sought to recover their costs and expert witness fees under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1032(b) and 998(c). The buyer moved to strike their memorandum of costs or, in the alternative, to tax costs. The trial court denied the buyer's motions, stating that Civ. Code § 1794(d) did not bar defendants' entitlements to costs under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 998 or 1032. Plaintiff's alternative motions to tax were also denied. On appeal, the appellate court affirmed (17 Cal. 4th 985, 988-989) .

The California Supreme Court affirmed. The court concluded that defendants were entitled to recover both their costs and expert witness fees. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b), a prevailing party is entitled as a matter of right to recover costs in any action or proceeding except as otherwise expressly provided by statute. The court examined the buyer's argument that Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b) conflicts with the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. It concluded that, although Civ. Code § 1794(d) refers only to "prevailing buyers," it does not expressly disallow recovery of costs for prevailing sellers (17 Cal. 4th 985, 991) . Furthermore, the two statutes are not inconsistent because they may be reconciled. A buyer who prevails in an action under the Act is entitled to costs, expenses, and attorney fees pursuant to Civ. Code § 1794(d). A seller who prevails in an action under the Act is entitled to costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b) (17 Cal. 4th 985, 992) . Thus, finding the buyer's cited authority distinguishable and finding no express exception in Civ. Code § 1794(d) to the general rule set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b) under which prevailing defendants are entitled to costs, the California Supreme Court concluded that the court of appeal ruled correctly that the sellers were entitled to their costs (17 Cal. 4th 985, 999) .

[b] Seller's Recovery of Expert Witness Fees

The facts and procedural background of Murillo v. Fleetwood Enterprises (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 985, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682, 953 P.2d 858 , are discussed under § 206.116[3][a]. The trial court also had granted the sellers their expert witness fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c) because the buyer recovered less than the sellers had offered in a Code Civ. Proc. § 998 settlement offer. Having concluded that Civ. Code § 1794(d) fails to set forth an express exception to the general cost-recovery rule set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b), the California Supreme Court concluded that this section of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act provides no exception to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Code Civ. Proc. § 998(a) expressly states that the costs allowed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032 may be augmented as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Thus, the requirements for recovery of costs and fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 must be read in conjunction with Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b), including the requirement that Code Civ. Proc. § 998 costs and fees are available to the prevailing party except as otherwise provided by statute. Because the cost-shifting provisions of the Act do not expressly prevent a prevailing defendant from recovering Code Civ. Proc. § 998 costs and fees, the court found nothing in the Act prohibiting the trial court's exercise of discretion to award expert witness fees to the sellers (17 Cal.

4th 985, 1000) . The court noted that permitting a seller who prevails in a suit brought under the Act to recover expert witness fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 follows from the Legislature's express intent to encourage settlement by forcing the parties to assess their positions realistically before trial. The California Supreme Court concluded that the court of appeal correctly ruled that the sellers were entitled to recover their expert witness fees actually incurred and reasonably necessary in preparation for trial of the case (17 Cal. 4th 985, 1001) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.117

§ 206.117 Supporting Contention That Manufacturer, Distributor, or Retailer Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness--Personal Injury Tort Claims Distinguished

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE SONG-BEVERLY CONSUMER WARRANTY ACT DOES NOT IMPAIR PLAINTIFF'S PRODUCT LIABILITY TORT CLAIMS.

Product Liability Claims Unimpaired. An injured party may recover for personal injuries, without the need to rely on either a contract theory of warranty, and thus need not establish privity. The Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act does not apply to a personal injury case; the Act is clear on its face that its application is limited to sale contracts in general (Williams v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 1268-1269, 226 Cal. Rptr. 306).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The above points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act does not apply to personal injury cases and that its requirements should not be imposed to prevent recovery of personal injury damages based on traditional product liability concepts.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which this substantive issue is raised. For example, they may be combined with points and authorities in opposition to a demurrer to the complaint. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Product Liability Claims Unimpaired

Williams v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 226 Cal. Rptr. 306 , was an action for damages for personal injuries sustained in an automobile accident. Plaintiff, who had purchased a used "demonstrator" model, sued the manufacturer, the importer, and the dealer on theories of strict liability, breach of implied warranty, negligence, and negligent design, inspection, and manufacture. The jury found no design defect, but did find manufacturing defects, and thus found against the manufacturer on the negligence count and against all three defendants on the count for breach of implied warranty. Defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. Defendants claimed the award for breach of warranty was erroneous as a matter of law because there was no privity of contract. The court responded that because plaintiff suffered physical injuries from the use of a product marketed by defendant, the rules of product liability pertain, including certain warranties of suitability, not the rules of contract, which apply to nonpersonal injury sales warranties (180 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 1267) . A long line of California cases has upheld an injured plaintiff's right to recover for personal injuries, without the need to rely on either a contract theory or privity. A manufacturer is strictly liable in tort when an article it places on the market, knowing that it is to be used without inspection for defects, proves to have a defect that causes injury to a human being. That liability, though historically grounded on express or implied warranty, is not based on an agreement, which would make privity relevant, but is imposed by law. So foreign is the principle of privity of contract to the law of strict liability today that even a bystander may recover for injuries sustained because of a defective product (180 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 1268) .

The court held that Civ. Code § 1795.5 does not impair plaintiff's remedies under strict liability/implied warranty theory. Civ. Code § 1795.5 provides that notwithstanding the provisions of Civ. Code § 1791(a), defining consumer goods to mean "new" goods, the obligation of a distributor or retail seller of used consumer goods in a sale in which an express warranty is given shall be the same as that imposed on manufacturers. Civ. Code § 1795.5 simply does not apply to personal injury cases. It is clear on its face that its application is limited to sale contracts in general and those involving express warranties in particular. The court was unaware of any authority that stood for the proposition that the Consumer Warranty Act was intended to impair or restrict personal injury product liability causes of action (180 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 1269) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.118

§ 206.118 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Seller's Breach of Warranty in Consumer Sale--Buyer Did Not Purchase "Consumer Goods" [Civ. Code § 1794(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

DEFENDANT IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF THE SONG-BEVERLY CONSUMER WARRANTY ACT BECAUSE PLAINTIFF WAS NOT A BUYER OF "CONSUMER GOODS."

A. Buyer of "Consumer Goods." To prevail in an action under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, the purchaser must be a buyer of consumer goods. Civ. Code § 1794(a)

B. Definition of "Consumer Goods." "Consumer goods" means any new product or part thereof that is used, bought, or leased for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, except for clothing and consumables. "Consumer goods" includes new and used assistive devices sold at retail. Civ. Code § 1791(a).

C. Goods Must Be Removable From Their Location Without Causing Further Damage. If the goods cannot be returned to the manufacturer because of the method of attachment, the fact that the manufacturer has a choice of three options under Civ. Code 1792.3(c) for arranging service and repair of defective goods implies that the goods must be at least removable from their location without causing further damage. Goods that are not removable, or cannot be serviced or repaired, without causing additional damage therefore are not "consumer goods" within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Act. Atkinson v. Elk Corporation (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 739, 756-757, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433 .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a seller is liable for breach of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, such as the contention set forth in § 206.130. They are based on the grounds that the purchaser was not a "buyer of consumer goods" under the Act.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific factual context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the purchaser was not a "buyer of consumer goods" under the Act. For example, Paragraph C may be used if the goods in question are building materials or other similar goods that cannot be removed or serviced without further damage. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the above form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Goods Must Be Removable From Their Location Without Causing Further Damage

In Atkinson v. Elk Corporation (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 739, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433 , a homeowner brought an action against a roofing company (later dismissed from the action) and a manufacturer of roof shingles which he claimed were defective. The trial court granted a nonsuit on its own motion, on the grounds that the homeowner was not a buyer of consumer goods within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Act. The homeowner appealed. The court of appeal found that although the grant of nonsuit on the court's own motion was irregular, plaintiff was not prejudiced because he would not have withstood a motion for nonsuit after opening statement as to the Song-Beverly causes of action (109 Cal. App. 4th 739, 757-758) . To prevail in an action under Song-Beverly, plaintiff must be a "buyer of consumer goods" under Civ. Code § 1794(a). The court first found that plaintiff was a "buyer" under Civ. Code § 1791(b). It examined the statutory language and history to determine that the roofing company was a retail seller within the meaning of Song-Beverly (109 Cal. App. 4th 739, 749-751) . It then turned to the issue of whether roof shingles were consumer goods (109 Cal. App. 4th 739, 751-756) . That term, as defined in Civ. Code § 1791(a), refers to any new product used primarily for personal, family, or household purposes. The court of appeal noted that the Act must be construed to bring its benefits into action, with reference to the entire scheme of law of which it is a part. Civ. Code § 1793.2 provides that if goods cannot be returned to a manufacturer because of the method of attachment, the manufacturer has three options. The goods can be serviced at the owner's residence, picked up for service or repair, or transported to the manufacturer's repair facility. This implies that the goods are removable from their location without causing further damage. The court stated that roofing shingles attached to a roof are not removable, nor can they be serviced or repaired without damage. The court therefore held that roof shingles were not consumer goods under the Act. (109 Cal. App. 4th 739, 757-758) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.119

§ 206.119 Opposing Contention That Seller Made Express Warranty in Consumer Sale--Mere Opinion, Commendation, or Policy Statement [Civ. Code § 1791.2(b), (c)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE WRITTEN DOCUMENT ENTITLED _____ AND GIVEN TO PLAINTIFF IN CONNECTION WITH THE PURCHASE OF _____ [describe consumer good] ON _____ [date] DOES NOT CONSTITUTE AN EXPRESS WARRANTY BY DEFENDANT _____ [name of seller] BUT IS ONLY AN EXPRESSION OF AN OPINION AND/OR COMMENDATION AND/OR POLICY STATEMENT.

A. Express Warranty Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph A.]

B. Opinion or Commendation Does Not Create Warranty. An affirmation merely of the value of the goods or a statement purporting to be merely an opinion or commendation of the goods does not create a warranty (Civ. Code § 1791.2(b)).

C. Policy Statement Does Not Create Warranty. Statements or representations such as expressions of general policy concerning customer satisfaction that are not subject to any limitation do not create an express warranty (Civ. Code § 1791.2(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted to oppose the contention that a retail seller made an express warranty within the meaning of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act when it is claimed that the statement was only opinion, commendation, or a statement regarding the retailer's general customer satisfaction policy [see Civ. Code § 1791.2(b), (c)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that no express warranty was created. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Generally, counsel should attach the written statement that is claimed to have created the express warranty.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving warranties under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties (Matthew Bender). That chapter also discusses warranties under the Commercial Code and under the federal Magnuson-Moss Act. For discussion and forms regarding strict products liability, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 460, Products Liability (Matthew Bender).

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.100 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[d] Commercial Code Counterpart

The Commercial Code counterpart of the "puffery" exclusion is Com. Code § 2313(2).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.120

§ 206.120 Opposing Contention That Seller Made Implied Warranty in Consumer Sale--No Implied Warranties Accompany an "As Is" Sale [Civ. Code § 1791.3]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER DAMAGES ON ACCOUNT OF THE ALLEGED _____ [LACK OF MERCHANTABILITY or UNFITNESS FOR INTENDED PURPOSE] OF THE _____ [describe product] BECAUSE THE SALE WAS "AS IS" AND THUS NO IMPLIED WARRANTIES ACCOMPANIED IT.

A. No Implied Warranties for "As Is" Sale. As used in the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, a sale "as is" or "with all faults" means that the manufacturer, distributor, and retailer disclaim all implied warranties that would otherwise attach to the sale of consumer goods under the provisions of the Act (Civ. Code § 1791.3).

[Optional] B. Consumer Goods Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph C.]

[Optional] C. Sale Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph D.]

[Optional] D. Manufacturer Defined. [See § 206.100, Paragraph E.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a manufacturer, distributor, or retailer is liable for breach of an implied warranty of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose, on the ground that the sale was "as is" [see Civ. Code § 1791.3]. The optional paragraphs are for use if the status of the parties or elements of a definition are in dispute. Other definitions, such as "distributor" and "retail seller," are set forth in § 206.100, and should also be incorporated as necessary.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that seller is not liable for breach of implied warranties. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should attach any document setting forth the "as is" term.

[b] Commercial Code Counterpart

The Commercial Code counterpart to this Song-Beverly "as is" rule is Com. Code § 2316(3)(a), which is set forth in § 206.72.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.121

§ 206.121 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose [Civ. Code §§ 1791.1(b), 1792.2(a)]--Buyer Did Not Rely on Seller's Skill or Judgment

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT _____ [name of retail seller] IS NOT LIABLE TO PLAINTIFF FOR BREACH OF AN IMPLIED WARRANTY OF FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE BECAUSE AT THE TIME OF CONTRACTING FOR THE SALE, PLAINTIFF DID NOT RELY ON DEFENDANT'S SKILL OR JUDGMENT TO SELECT THE GOODS FOR PLAINTIFF'S PARTICULAR PURPOSE.

A. Same Analysis Under Song-Beverly and Commercial Code. The elements and analysis of a buyer's reliance on seller's skill and judgment in determining whether the seller has made an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose is the same under the Commercial Code and the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (see Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 24-25, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392).

B. When Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose Arises. [See § 206.79, Paragraph A].

C. Buyer's Nonreliance on Seller's Skill or Judgment. [See § 206.79, Paragraph B].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller is liable for breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose on the ground that the buyer did not rely on the seller's skill or judgment in selecting goods for a particular purpose. Because the elements are the same under the Commercial Code and the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, this form incorporates authorities from § 206.99 in which plaintiff asserted causes of action under both [see Civ. Code §§ 1791.1(b), 1792.2(a); Com. Code § 2315].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue of the buyer's nonreliance on the seller with regard to an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should therefore describe the circumstances surrounding the sale of the goods, and show that either the seller was unaware that the buyer was relying on its skill or judgment, or that the buyer in fact did not rely on the seller. This point can be shown, for example, by the buyer's use of independent expert advice prior to making a decision to purchase the goods.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Same Analysis Under Song-Beverly and Commercial Code

The facts and procedural background of Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392 , are discussed in § 206.60[3][a]. The court's determination that no implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose arose is discussed in § 206.79[3][b]. Plaintiff had asserted claims for breach of implied warranty of fitness under both the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act and under the Commercial Code. The elements are the same, and the court analyzed them together (173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 25-26) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.122

§ 206.122 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty in Consumer Sale--No Sale Made in California [Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT HAS NOT BREACHED ITS DUTY IN CONNECTION WITH THE EXPRESS WARRANTY, GIVEN IN CONNECTION WITH THE PURCHASE OF _____ [describe consumer good] ON _____ [date], BECAUSE DEFENDANT DID NOT MAKE THE SALE IN CALIFORNIA.

A. Duty to Maintain Repair Facility in California. A manufacturer of consumer goods need not comply with the service-and-repair-facility requirement if it does not sell the goods in California (Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A); California State Electronics Assn. v. Zeos Internat. Ltd. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1276-1277, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127).

B. Act Does Not Apply to Vehicle Bought Outside California. Insofar as the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act applies to new motor vehicles, the Act is limited in application to vehicles that were bought in California. The Act does not apply to a vehicle that was bought outside California Cummins, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 478, 483, 493).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted to oppose the contention that a manufacturer failed to maintain a repair facility in California when the manufacturer did not make the sale in California [see Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A)].

Paragraph B should be included if the vehicle in question was purchased outside California.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case.

This form may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue regarding where the sale was made. They also may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 206.102 oppose those in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty to Maintain Repair Facility in California

In California State Electronics Assn. v. Zeos Internat. Ltd. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127 , a trade association sought to compel compliance with the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act's repair facilities requirement. Every manufacturer of consumer goods that sells them in California with its express warranty must maintain in California sufficient service and repair facilities reasonably close to all areas where its consumer goods are sold to carry out the terms of those warranties (Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A)). The defendant was a non-California manufacturer and mail-order distributor of personal computers, which the defendant sold to California consumers directly through telephone orders. The manufacturer moved for summary judgment on the ground that the requirement did not apply to it because its sales were not made in California, or that the statute was invalid because it conflicted with the Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution. The trial court bypassed the question of application and granted summary judgment on the ground that the law was unconstitutional, assuming but not deciding that the statute applied to the defendant's sales.

The court of appeal concluded that the manufacturer was entitled to judgment because the Consumer Warranty Act requirement did not apply to the manufacturer's sales, and affirmed the judgment without reaching the constitutional issue. The court stated that whether goods are sold in California depends on where title passes (41 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1275) . It found that the Consumer Warranty Act incorporates the concept of sale by passage of title in the Commercial Code, and the court looked to Com. Code § 2401, which provides that title passes to the buyer on shipment when the parties agree to shipment by the seller. The court held that in this case, title passed from the defendant to a California customer on shipment in Minnesota, and thus those sales were not subject to Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(A) (41 Cal. App. 4th 1270, 1276-1277) .

[b] Act Does Not Apply to Vehicle Bought Outside California

In Cummins, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 478, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 823, 115 P.3d 98 , a California resident had bought a new motor vehicle--a motor home containing an engine manufactured by defendant--in Idaho. The engine, which was subject to a manufacturer's warranty, proved to be defective. After the manufacturer's authorized repair facility in California failed to remedy the defects despite numerous attempts, the manufacturer refused to replace the vehicle and refused to provide a refund. The buyer sued for relief under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [see Civ. Code §§ 1793.2(d)(2), 1793.22]. The manufacturer moved for summary adjudication on the ground that the plaintiff had bought the vehicle in Idaho, arguing that the Act applies only to vehicles bought in California. The trial court denied the motion for summary adjudication. The court of appeal subsequently denied the manufacturer's petition for a writ of mandate, concluding that the Act applies whenever a manufacturer that sells goods in California (or its representative) fails to service or repair the goods to conform to its express warranty, even in cases when the particular goods in question were bought outside California.

The Supreme Court reversed. After analyzing the text of the Act, and considering particularly the language of Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2) in the context of the Act, the court concluded that the Legislature intended the Act to apply only to new vehicles sold in California (36 Cal. 4th 478, 493) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.123

§ 206.123 Opposing Contention That Seller Is Liable for Breach of Express Warranty in Consumer Sale--Designated Repair Facility in California [Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(B)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT HAS NOT BREACHED ITS DUTY IN CONNECTION WITH THE EXPRESS WARRANTY, GIVEN IN CONNECTION WITH THE PURCHASE OF _____ [describe consumer good] ON _____ [date], BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAS DESIGNATED _____ [name] AS ITS AUTHORIZED REPAIR FACILITY IN CALIFORNIA.

Option to Designate Repair Facility in California. In lieu of maintaining its own repair facility, a manufacturer of consumer goods that sells them in California with its express warranty may designate and authorize independent repair or service facilities in California as its service and repair facilities to carry out the terms of the warranties as long as they are reasonably close to all areas where its consumer goods are sold (Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(B)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted to oppose the contention that a manufacturer failed to maintain a repair facility in California when the manufacturer has designated an independent repair facility located in California [see Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(B)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue regarding maintenance of a repair facility in California. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 206.102 oppose those in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Option to Designate Repair Facility in California

If a manufacturer chooses to designate independent entities as authorized warranty repair or service facilities, it must comply with Civ. Code § 1793.2(a)(1)(B), regarding rates and terms of the designation and authorization contract.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.124

§ 206.124 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Replacement or Reimbursement--Buyer Failed to Deliver Goods for Repair or Notify Manufacturer of Defect [Civ. Code § 1793.2(c)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO REPLACEMENT OR REIMBURSEMENT FOR PAYMENTS MADE FOR THE PURCHASE OF THE _____ [describe product, e.g., WORD PROCESSOR] BECAUSE PLAINTIFF NEVER DELIVERED THE PRODUCT FOR REPAIR OR NOTIFIED THE MANUFACTURER OF THE DEFECT.

Buyer's Duty of Return or Notification. The buyer must deliver nonconforming goods to the manufacturer's service and repair facility in California, unless, due to reasons of size and weight, or method of attachment, or method of installation, or the nature of the nonconformity, delivery cannot reasonably be accomplished. If the buyer cannot return the nonconforming goods for any of these reasons, he or she must notify the manufacturer or its nearest service and repair facility in California. Written notice of nonconformity to the manufacturer or its service and repair facility constitutes return of the goods for purposes of this section (Civ. Code § 1793.2(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted to oppose the contention that a manufacturer, or its representative in California, failed to promptly repair a consumer product when the buyer failed to return the item for repair or notify the manufacturer of the defect [Civ. Code § 1793.2(c)].

If definitional elements of the transaction are in issue, counsel should incorporate appropriate paragraphs from § 206.100 or § 206.123.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the failure to return the product for repairs or to give notification of the defect. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be used to appose those in § 206.103.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer's Duty of Return or Notification

On receipt of notice of nonconformity, the manufacturer, at its option, must service or repair the goods at the buyer's residence, or pick up the goods for service and repair, or arrange for transporting the goods to its service and repair facility. All reasonable costs of transporting the goods when a buyer cannot return them for any of the above reasons are at the manufacturer's expense. The reasonable costs of transporting nonconforming goods after delivery to the service and repair facility, through return of the goods to the buyer, are also at the manufacturer's expense [Civ. Code § 1793.2(c)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.125

§ 206.125 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Replacement or Reimbursement-Claim Based on Defect in New Residential Construction Is Specially Excepted [Civ. Code § 1793.2(e)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO REPLACEMENT OR REIMBURSEMENT FOR PAYMENTS MADE FOR THE PURCHASE OF THE _____ [briefly describe product] BECAUSE PLAINTIFF'S CLAIM ARISES OUT OF DEFICIENCIES IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF A NEW RESIDENTIAL DWELLING AND _____ [THE PRODUCT IS NOT A "MANUFACTURED PRODUCT" or DEFENDANT IS NOT THE MANUFACTURER THAT ORIGINALLY MADE THE EXPRESS WARRANTY FOR THE PRODUCT].

[EITHER]

Product Is Not "Manufactured Product." With respect to claims arising out of deficiencies in the construction of a new residential dwelling, the requirement that a manufacturer replace or reimburse when goods cannot practicably be serviced or repaired to conform to the applicable express warranties does not apply to a product that is not a "manufactured product," as defined in Civil Code Section 896(g) (Civ. Code § 1793.2(e)(2)). Civil Code Section 896(g) defines "manufactured product" as a product that is completely manufactured off-site (Civ. Code § 896(g)(3)(C)).

[OR]

Defendant Did Not Make Original Warranty. With respect to claims arising out of deficiencies in the construction of a new residential dwelling, the requirement that a manufacturer replace or reimburse when goods cannot practicably be serviced or repaired to conform to the applicable express warranties does not apply to a claim against a person or entity that is not the manufacturer that originally made the express warranty for the product (Civ. Code § 1793.2(e)(2)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted to oppose the contention that a manufacturer, or its representative in California, failed to service or repair a consumer product, when the plaintiff's claim arises out of deficiencies in the construction of a new residential dwelling. The first alternative should be used if the product is not a "manufactured product" as defined in Civ. Code § 896(g) (concerning standards for determining when post-2002 construction is defective). The second alternative should be used if the plaintiff's claim is asserted against a person or entity that is not the manufacturer that originally made the express warranty for that manufactured product [see Civ. Code § 1793.2(e)(2)].

If definitional elements of the transaction are at issue, counsel should incorporate appropriate paragraphs from § 206.100 or § 206.123.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the failure to return the product for repairs or to give notification of the defect. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be used to oppose those in § 206.103.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.126

§ 206.126 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Replacement or Restitution--Buyer Who Did Not Submit to Qualified Third-Party Dispute Resolution Process Cannot Rely on Presumption to Establish Reasonable Number of Attempts to Repair [Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF DID NOT RESORT TO DEFENDANT'S THIRD-PARTY DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROCESS AND THUS MAY NOT RELY ON THE PRESUMPTION THAT A REASONABLE NUMBER OF ATTEMPTS HAVE BEEN MADE TO REPAIR THE VEHICLE.

A. Buyer Cannot Rely on Presumption. If a qualified third-party dispute resolution process exists, and the buyer receives timely notification in writing of the availability of that process with a description of its operation and effect, the buyer cannot assert the presumption in Civil Code Section 1793.22(b) to establish that a reasonable number of repair attempts have been made until after the buyer has initially resorted to the qualified third-party dispute resolution process (Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)).

B. Notification Is Timely. Notification of the availability of the qualified third-party dispute resolution process is timely if the buyer does not suffer any prejudice resulting from any delay in giving the notification (Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used by a manufacturer of new motor vehicles to oppose a new motor vehicle buyer's use of the presumption of Civ. Code § 1793.21(b) [see § 206.104] to establish that the manufacturer has expended a "reasonable number of attempts to repair." The ground for opposition is that the manufacturer maintains a qualified third-party dispute resolution process, and gave notice of that fact to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue regarding the presumption. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For instance, counsel should incorporate an authenticated copy of the certification from the Department of Consumer Affairs regarding the qualification of the third-party dispute resolution process and its operation and existence at the time of the incidents complained of [see Civ. Code § 1793.22(d)(9)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer Cannot Rely on Presumption

Civ. Code § 1793.22 also provides that if a qualified third-party dispute resolution process does not exist, or if the buyer is dissatisfied with the third-party decision, or if the manufacturer or its agent neglects to promptly fulfill the terms of the qualified third-party dispute resolution process decision after the decision is accepted by the buyer, the buyer may assert the presumption provided in Civ. Code § 1793.22(b) in an action to enforce the buyer's rights under Civ. Code § 1793.2(d) to restitution or a replacement vehicle [see § 206.104].

The findings and decision of a qualified third-party dispute resolution process are admissible in evidence in the action without further foundation [Civ. Code § 1793.22(c)].

The criteria for qualification are set forth in Civ. Code § 1793.22(d).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.127

§ 206.127 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Replacement or Restitution--Impairment of Vehicle Was Not "Substantial" Within Meaning of Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(1)

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO REPLACEMENT OF OR RESTITUTION FOR THE MOTOR VEHICLE THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE ALLEGED IMPAIRMENT TO THE VEHICLE IN QUESTION WAS NOT "SUBSTANTIAL" AND THEREFORE DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A "NONCONFORMITY" FOR WHICH REPLACEMENT OR RESTITUTION IS AVAILABLE UNDER THE APPLICABLE STATUTES.

A. Nonconformity Defined. "Nonconformity," in the context of express warranties regarding new motor vehicles, is one that substantially impairs the use, value, or safety of the new motor vehicle to the buyer or lessee. (Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(1))

B. Impairment Must Be Substantial. The term "substantial" in Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(1) injects an element of degree, and not every impairment is sufficient to satisfy the statute. (Lundy v. Ford Motor Company (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545)

C. Test for Determining Whether Impairment Is Substantial. Whether an impairment is substantial is determined by an objective test, based on what a reasonable person would understand to be a defect. (Lundy v. Ford Motor Company (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545)

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by the defendant in an action by the buyer of a new motor vehicle to rebut the contention that the buyer is entitled to replacement or restitution of the Vehicle under the California Lemon Law. The ground asserted in these points and authorities is that the nonconformity forming the basis of the action is not "substantial" within the meaning of the statute. Whether or not a defect is "substantial" ordinarily may be expected to be a question of fact, but these points and authorities may be used to (1) rebut the assertion that any defect, however trivial, automatically rises to the level of a "nonconformity" under the statute; and (2) place in issue whether or not the specific defect in question satisfies the applicable requirement of substantial impairment.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In this context, defendant should allege facts indicating that the impairment at issue in the case was so significantly trivial or inconsequential that a reasonable person would not regard it as a defect [see § 206.127[3][b]].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Impairment Must Be Substantial

In Lundy v. Ford Motor Company (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545 , plaintiff purchased a new vehicle covered by a three-year warranty. He had his vehicle serviced numerous times during the first year of ownership due to an air conditioning system odor and transmission related problems. After the last repair attempt, when his complaints were not corrected to his satisfaction, he requested that Ford replace or repurchase his vehicle. Ford refused the request, and plaintiff brought an action against the manufacturer and dealer for breach of implied and express warranty under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. The jury was instructed that plaintiff had to prove, among other things, that plaintiff's vehicle contained a nonconformity covered by the warranty that substantially impaired the use, value, or safety of the vehicle to the buyer. The jury asked for clarification of the term "substantially" as used in that instruction. The court refused defendants' proposed response which was based on a dictionary definition. It then instructed the jury that "substantially" is an adverb modifying the verb impaired, and the use of that term meant that the nonconformity was not imaginary and actually impaired the use, value, or safety of the vehicle. The jury returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff and defendants appealed.

Defendants argued that the definition of "substantially" given the jury did not describe the "degree, quantity or extent of an object or condition" and rendered the defined term meaningless. The court of appeal agreed and reversed. It noted that Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(1), which defines "nonconformity," does not also define "substantially." The trial court's definition effectively wrote the term "substantially" out of the statue. The term injects an element of degree; not every impairment is sufficient to satisfy the statute (87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478) . The court further found that the erroneous jury instruction required reversal, as it was prejudicial resulting in a miscarriage of justice (87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 479-480) .

[b] Test for Determining Whether Impairment Is Substantial

The facts and procedural background of Lundy v. Ford Motor Company (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545 are discussed under § 206.127[3][a]. In reversing an erroneous jury instruction regarding the meaning of "substantially" in this context, the court offered some suggestions about the meaning of the term. The term modifies its object, "impairment." It injects an element of degree; not every impairment is sufficient to satisfy the statute. The court stated that the most analogous definition of "substantially" it found in a context similar to its usage here is in Com. Code § 2608. Like Civ. Code § 1793.22(e)(1), Com. Code § 2608(1) requires a determination of whether a defect "substantially impairs" the value of goods sold to a buyer. Under Com. Code § 2608(1), the trier of fact may consider the nature of the defects; the cost and length of time required for repair; whether past repair attempts have been successful; the degree to which the goods can be used while repairs are attempted; inconvenience to the buyer; and the availability and cost of alternative goods pending repair [citing Annot., What Constitutes "Substantial Impairment" Entitling Buyer to Revoke His Acceptance of Goods Under UCC § 2-608(1) (1996) 38 A.L.R. 5th 191 . While concluding that "substantial," like the term "reasonable," may be incapable of precise definition, the court stated that at the least, the requirement is not satisfied by any impairment, however insignificant, that affects use, value, or safety (87 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Nonconformity Defined

The facts and procedural background of Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64 , are discussed under § 206.104[3][b]. In Ibrahim, plaintiff argued that the use of the term "defect" instead of the statutory term "nonconformity" operated to "mislead the jury into believing that they had to find the vehicle was unsafe in design or manufacture as in a products liability setting rather than simply nonconforming to the warranty after a reasonable number of repair attempts." Although the court stated that it while would have been better practice to instruct the jury with the statutory language, the substitution of "defect" in place of "nonconformity" was not grounds for reversal. The court concluded that the statutory definition of "nonconformity" is nothing more than a means of describing what the average person would understand to be a defect. The two words are in effect synonyms (214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 887) . Accord, see Schreidel v. American Honda Motor Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1249, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576 .

[b] Test for Determining Whether Impairment Is Substantial

The meaning of "substantially impaired" is discussed in CACI No. 3204 [Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 3204 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.128

§ 206.128 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Replacement or Restitution--Manufacturer Was Not Given Opportunity to Repair Vehicle--"Reasonable Number of Attempts" Means at Least Two Attempts to Repair [Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO REPLACEMENT OF OR RESTITUTION FOR THE MOTOR VEHICLE THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE MANUFACTURER WAS NOT GIVEN AT LEAST TWO OPPORTUNITIES TO REPAIR PURSUANT TO CIVIL CODE SECTION 1793.2(d)(2) WHICH REQUIRES "A REASONABLE NUMBER OF ATTEMPTS" TO REPAIR THE VEHICLE.

A "Reasonable Number of Attempts" To Repair Requires That the Manufacturer Be Given at Least Two Opportunities to Repair. Because the phrase "reasonable number of attempts" in Civil Code Section 1793.2(d)(2) is written in the plural, the statute does not require the manufacturer to make restitution or replacement after only one opportunity to repair. Silvio v. Ford Motor Company (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1207-1208, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used by the defendant in an action by the buyer of a new motor vehicle to rebut the contention that the buyer is entitled to replacement or restitution of the vehicle under Civ. Code § 1793.2. The ground asserted in these points and authorities is that the manufacturer was not given at least two opportunities to repair the vehicle, as required by the language in Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2), which provides for consumer remedies only when the manufacturer is unable to service or repair a new motor vehicle after a "reasonable number of attempts."

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] A "Reasonable Number of Attempts" To Repair Requires That the Manufacturer Be Given at Least Two Opportunities to Repair

In Silvio v. Ford Motor Company (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846 , plaintiffs purchased a new vehicle from defendants. The vehicle developed acceleration problems. The evidence established that defendants were given only one opportunity to repair the vehicle. After that single failed attempt, plaintiffs wanted defendants to buy back the vehicle and did not want it fixed. After defendants refused to buy back the vehicle, plaintiffs brought an action under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. Defendants moved for nonsuit on the ground that the express language of Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2), which provides for consumer remedies only when the manufacturer is unable to service or repair a new motor vehicle after a "reasonable number of attempts," is written in the plural and requires that the manufacturer be given at least two opportunities to repair. The trial court agreed with defendants' reading of the statute and granted their motion for nonsuit (109 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1207) . The court of appeal affirmed. It phrased the issue on appeal as whether the single failed attempt to repair triggered the manufacturer's obligations set forth in Civ. Code § 1793.2(d)(2). The court saw no ambiguity or uncertainty in the statutory language, which is written in the plural. The statute does not require the manufacturer to make restitution or replacement if it has had only one opportunity to repair the vehicle. The court found that the trial court correctly interpreted and statute, and affirmed (109 Cal. App. 4th 1205, 1207-1208) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.129

§ 206.129 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(c)]--Recovery of Both Punitive Damages and Civil Penalty Is Prohibited

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER BOTH PUNITIVE DAMAGES AND THE CIVIL PENALTY PROVIDED FOR IN CIVIL CODE SECTION 1794(c).

A. Imposition of Both Penalty and Punitive Damages Barred. Awarding both punitive damages and the civil penalty under Civil Code Section 1794(c) would amount to double punishment in derogation of a defendant's due process rights, and is thus prohibited (Troensegaard v. Silvercrest Industries, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 218, 228, 220 Cal. Rptr. 712).

[Optional] B. Plaintiff's Election and Waiver. A plaintiff who seeks the civil penalty and also attorney's fees and costs under Civil Code Section 1794 will be deemed to have elected to waive punitive damages under Civil Code Section 3294 (Troensegaard v. Silvercrest Industries, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 218, 228, 220 Cal. Rptr. 712).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to an award or claim for both punitive damages and the civil penalty of Civ. Code § 1794(c), which is set forth in § 206.110, Paragraph F. A plaintiff is likely to seek both only when he or she is advancing some other tort cause of action in addition to his or her claim under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act. Optional Paragraph B is for use to establish that plaintiff has elected the Song-Beverly penalty rather than punitive damages and is best used when punitive damages are greater than the civil penalty.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that both punitive damages and the penalty cannot be imposed. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Imposition of Both Penalty and Punitive Damages Barred

Troensegaard v. Silvercrest Industries, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 218, 220 Cal. Rptr. 712 , was an action for damages for personal injuries based on breach of express warranty, products liability, and fraudulent concealment. Plaintiff had purchased a mobilehome that exuded unacceptable levels of formaldehyde fumes, causing illness and emotional distress. The express warranty was that required by Civ. Code § 1797.3. All defendants except the manufacturer settled before trial for $6,000. The trial proceeded against the manufacturer only. The jury awarded plaintiff $90,000 in compensatory damages, $55,000 in punitive damages, and $90,000 as civil penalty. The court thereafter awarded plaintiff $56,555 in attorney's fees and $35,726.71 in costs. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal modified the judgment by striking the $55,000 in punitive damage award and giving the manufacturer credit for the $6,000 paid by the settling defendants, and as modified, affirmed (175 Cal. App. 3d 218, 230) . The court found that there was substantial evidence that defendant's breach of warranty was willful in that after plaintiff notified defendant of the defects, it refused to make her whole and it concealed reports establishing the existence of formaldehyde in excess of recommended limits (175 Cal. App. 3d 218, 226) . Defendant contended that awarding both punitive damages and the civil penalty under Civ. Code § 1794(c) amounted to double punishment in derogation of its due process rights. The court agreed, maintaining that had the Legislature intended to permit both penal and punitive recovery under Civ. Code §§ 1794(c) and 3294 for the same willful, malicious, and oppressive acts, it would in some appropriate manner have said so. The court also held that in seeking the civil penalty and attorney's fees and costs under Civ. Code § 1794, plaintiff had elected to waive punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 (175 Cal. App. 3d 218, 228) .

[b] Plaintiff's Election and Waiver

Troensegaard v. Silvercrest Industries, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 218, 220 Cal. Rptr. 712 , is discussed under § 206.129[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.130

§ 206.130 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)]--Manufacturer Maintains Qualified Dispute Resolution Process [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE DOUBLE PENALTY PROVIDED FOR IN CIVIL CODE SECTION 1794(e) BECAUSE DEFENDANT MAINTAINS A QUALIFIED DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROCESS.

No Penalty May Be Imposed on Manufacturer That Maintains Dispute Resolution Process. No civil penalty may be assessed under Civil Code Section 1794(e)(1) (the "Lemon Law") against a manufacturer of new motor vehicles if the manufacturer maintains a qualified third-party dispute resolution process that substantially complies with Civil Code Section 1793.22 (Civ. Code § 1794(e)(2)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the claim of a purchaser of a new motor vehicle that he or she is entitled to recover the double penalty of Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1) [see § 206.111] from a manufacturer when the manufacturer maintains a qualified dispute resolution process under Civ. Code § 1793.22 [see §§ 206.124, 206.146].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the penalty cannot be imposed. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In this instance, counsel should incorporate the sale documents that notified the buyer of the existence of the qualified dispute resolution process, and should attach and incorporate the certificate from the Department of Consumer Affairs regarding the qualification of the process and its operation and existence at the time of the incidents complained of [see Civ. Code § 1793.22(d)(9)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.131

§ 206.131 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)]--Buyer Did Not Demand That Manufacturer Replace Vehicle or Make Restitution [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(3)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE DOUBLE PENALTY PROVIDED FOR IN CIVIL CODE SECTION 1794(e) BECAUSE HE/SHE DID NOT DEMAND THAT DEFENDANT REPLACE THE VEHICLE OR MAKE RESTITUTION.

No Penalty May Be Imposed on Manufacturer Unless Buyer Gave Notice. No civil penalty may be assessed under Civil Code Section 1794(e) against a manufacturer of new motor vehicles unless, after the occurrence of the events giving rise to the presumption regarding reasonable number of attempts to repair established in Civil Code Section 1793.22(b), the buyer served written notice on the manufacturer requesting it to comply with its duty under Civil Code Section 1793.2(d)(2) to replace the vehicle or to make restitution (Civ. Code § 1794(e)(3)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the claim of a purchaser of a new motor vehicle that he or she is entitled to recover the double penalty of Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1) [see § 206.111] from a manufacturer when the buyer failed to demand replacement or restitution before commencing suit [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(3)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the penalty cannot be imposed. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.132

§ 206.132 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)]--Manufacturer Complied With Buyer's Demand to Replace Vehicle or Make Restitution [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(4)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE DOUBLE PENALTY PROVIDED FOR IN CIVIL CODE SECTION 1794(e) BECAUSE DEFENDANT _____ [REPLACED THE VEHICLE or MADE RESTITUTION] WITHIN 30 DAYS OF PLAINTIFF'S DEMAND THAT IT DO SO.

No Penalty May Be Imposed if Manufacturer Complies With Buyer's Demand. No civil penalty may be assessed under Civil Code Section 1794(e) against a manufacturer of new motor vehicles that complied with a buyer's demand for a replacement vehicle or restitution within 30 days of the service of that demand (Civ. Code § 1794(e)(4)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the claim of a purchaser of a new motor vehicle that he or she is entitled to recover the double penalty of Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1) [see § 206.111] from a manufacturer that complied with the buyer's demand for replacement or restitution within 30 days [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(4)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the penalty cannot be imposed. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.133

§ 206.133 Opposing Contention That Buyer of New Motor Vehicle Is Entitled to Double Penalty for Breach of Express Warranty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)]--Buyer Can Only Have One Penalty [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(5)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE DOUBLE PENALTY UNDER BOTH CIVIL CODE SECTION 1794(c) AND (e).

Only One Penalty May Be Imposed. If a buyer recovers a civil penalty under Civil Code Section 1794(c), the buyer may not also recover a civil penalty under Civil Code Section 1794(e) for the same violation (Civ. Code § 1794(e)(5)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the claim of a purchaser of a new motor vehicle that he or she is entitled to recover both the double penalty of Civ. Code § 1794(e)(1) [see § 206.111] and the double penalty of Civ. Code § 1794(c) [see § 206.110] for a single violation [Civ. Code § 1794(e)(5)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that the penalty can only be imposed once. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.134

§ 206.134 Opposing Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Damages for Bad-Faith Breach of Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

[1] FORM

Tort Damages for Breach of Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Not Available. No cause of action for bad faith breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing arises from breach of an express warranty of consumer goods because the purchaser's remedy is limited to the double damages penalty provided by Civil Code Section 1794(c) (Gomez v. Volkswagen of America, Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 929, 215 Cal. Rptr. 507 ; see also Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 222, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 (finding no cause of action on other grounds)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be used by a manufacturer, distributor, or retail seller to oppose a buyer's attempt to recover tort damages for breach of express warranty.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue regarding breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tort Damages for Breach of Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Not Available

Plaintiff in Gomez v. Volkswagen of America, Inc. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 215 Cal. Rptr. 507 , bought a 1975 Porsche 914 in January 1975 from a retail dealer defendant that was not a party to the appeal. The car was manufactured by defendant Porsche, A.G. and Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft (VWAG) in Germany and imported by Volkswagen of America, Inc. (hereinafter "VWoA"). The car came with an express warranty by VWoA to be "free of defects in material and workmanship for 12 months after the date of delivery of the vehicle to the original retail customer or until the vehicle has been driven 20,000 miles, whichever comes first." In May 1975, when the car had about 4,500 miles on it, plaintiff tried to start the car but a fire broke out and severely damaged the car. Plaintiff had the car towed to the dealer and demanded that defendant replace or repair the car, at no cost to plaintiff, pursuant to the warranty. Defendant gave plaintiff a "loaner" car, but refused to repair or replace it, claiming the fire was not a result of a "defect" within the meaning of the warranty. In August 1975, plaintiff purchased a Saab to replace the Porsche. In May 1976, plaintiff sued defendants for strict product liability, negligence, breach of express warranty, breach of implied warranty, and bad faith breach of the covenant of good faith and fair dealing in an express warranty that accompanied the purchase of the Porsche. A demurrer was sustained to the cause of action for "bad faith." After a substantially unchanged first amended complaint, another demurrer was sustained with respect to the bad faith cause of action, this time without leave to amend. Although plaintiff applied for review of that order by writ, the writ was denied. Judgment was entered for plaintiff on the other four causes of action. Plaintiff appealed the order sustaining the demurrer without leave to amend, and defendant appealed the judgment for plaintiff and an order denying a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict.

The court of appeal reversed the order sustaining the demurrer on the ground that, although neither party had mentioned it, the cause of action entitled "bad faith breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing" stated a cause of action for damages under Civ. Code § 1794. The court discussed the cause of action for bad faith and the requirement of a special relationship in order for a breach of the covenant to entitle an injured party to tort damages (169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 926-927) . The court found the gravamen of plaintiff's cause of action to be based on defendant's attempt to avoid liability by adopting a "stonewall" position without probable cause and with no belief in the existence of a defense.

The court said that if the Legislature had not acted, the argument for extending a tort remedy to plaintiff's cause of action would be most persuasive. However, in enacting the Consumer Warranty Act, the Legislature did act. This appears to indicate that the Legislature felt that the remedy provided by Civ. Code § 1794 is adequate with regard to the amount of damages a meritorious plaintiff may recover and constitutes a sufficient deterrent to the proscribed conduct (169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 928) . Without any apparent inadequacy of the statutory remedy, the court heeded the admonition of the Supreme Court to proceed with caution when addressing undecided areas of law, and concluded that the stated cause of action allowed plaintiff no more than the statutory remedy afforded by Civ. Code § 1794 (169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 928-929) . Because the jury verdict for plaintiff carried no special findings and the facts were so interwoven, the court vacated the entire judgment and remanded for further proceedings (169 Cal. App. 3d 921, 926, 929) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tort Damages for Breach of Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing Not Available

In Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717 (discussed in § 206.113[3][a]), the court of appeal found no tort cause of action to exist for bad faith on the ground that plaintiff had failed to establish the existence of a special relationship between the parties (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 222) . The cause of action labeled "Tortious Bad Faith Breach of the Covenant of Good Faith" was challenged as barred by the statute of limitations. The court applied the rule set forth in Frazier v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 90, 102-103, 214 Cal. Rptr. 883 , that when a cause of action sounds in both tort and contract, the plaintiff is entitled to an election, and is not deemed to have waived the right to apply the four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1) until he or she obviously makes the election to proceed only in tort (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 220-221) . Defendant in this case failed to establish any such election. Under both the tort theory and the contract theory, the statute of limitations begins to run on the occurrence of the last element necessary to the cause of action, which in the case of a contract, is usually its breach. An exception is that a cause of action does not accrue until the plaintiff discovers the breach, or should have discovered it. The "discovery rule" is generally applied to contract and tort causes of action in situations involving fiduciary relationships such as professional malpractice (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 221) , and when there is a statutory scheme that imposes a duty to disclose similar to the duty imposed by a fiduciary relationship (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 222) . Although the complaint in this action alleged that a special relationship existed between the parties, no evidence was proffered to establish that the parties were either in a fiduciary relationship or that defendant was governed by a statutory scheme that imposed a duty to disclose. The court caracterized the evidence submitted in opposition to defendant's motion for summary judgment as establishing a traditional seller-buyer relationship governed by the Commercial Code and the Consumer Warranty Act. Thus, there was no basis for application of the discovery rule, and the judgment for defendant on the bad faith cause of action was affirmed (234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 222) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
B. Warranties
2. Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities §§ 206.135-206.149

[Reserved]

§§ 206.135[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.150

§ 206.150 Supporting Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Sales Transaction--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT IS SUBJECT TO THE UNRUH ACT BECAUSE IT WAS A RETAIL INSTALLMENT SALE BETWEEN A RETAIL BUYER AND A RETAIL SELLER FOR _____ [GOODS FOR USE PRIMARILY FOR PERSONAL, FAMILY, OR HOUSEHOLD PURPOSES or SERVICES FOR OTHER THAN A COMMERCIAL OR BUSINESS USE].

A. Liberal Construction. The Unruh Act's provisions should be liberally construed to protect consumers (Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 823, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964).

B. Seller. A "retail seller" for purposes of the Unruh Act is a person engaged in the business of selling goods or furnishing services to retail buyers (Civ. Code § 1802.3).

C. Buyer. A "retail buyer" for purposes of the Unruh Act is a person who buys goods or obtains services from a retail seller in a retail installment sale and not principally for the purpose of resale (Civ. Code § 1802.4).

[EITHER]

D. Goods. "Goods" covered by the Unruh Act are tangible chattels bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, including certificates or coupons exchangeable for such goods; goods that will be affixed to and become a part of real property at or after the time of the sale, whether or not the goods are severable from the real property; and any trailer sold with and designed solely to carry a vessel having a cash price of $25,000 or less (Civ. Code § 1802.1; see Civ. Code § 1801.4(d) (exemption of vessel)).

[AND/OR]

E. Services. "Services" covered by the Unruh Act are work, labor, and services that are not for a commercial or business use, including services furnished in connection with the improvement of real property, the providing of insurance, or the repair of motor vehicles if the repair is not done under a service contract sold in conjunction with the sale or lease of a vehicle required to be registered under the Vehicle Code (Civ. Code § 1802.2; see Civ. Code § 2981(p) (service contract defined)).

[AND EITHER]

F. Contract. A "retail installment contract" is a contract for consumer goods or services which is entered into in California by a retail seller and a retail buyer and which (1) provides for repayment in more than four installments; or (2) provides for repayment in any number of installments and imposes a finance charge on the buyer; or (3) provides for repayment in any number of installments and charges more for the goods or services than they would have cost if the buyer had paid by cash or credit card, or gives the buyer fewer or lower quality goods or services than he or she would have received in a cash sale (see Civ. Code § 1802.6).

[OR]

F. Account. A "retail installment account" is a revolving account established by an agreement, entered into in California by a retail seller and a retail buyer, that requires the buyer to pay in installments the outstanding balance incurred in buying consumer goods or services from the seller and carries a finance charge expressed as a percent of the periodic balances to accrue in the future, providing the charge is not capitalized or stated as a dollar amount in the agreement (see Civ. Code § 1802.7).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general contention that the Unruh Act applies to a consumer sales transaction.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Unruh Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.152 -206.156 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Construction

Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 , was an action brought by a group of consumers who had purchased goods under installment contracts. Plaintiffs sued the seller, as well as the finance company to which the sales contracts were assigned, on the theories of fraud and violation of the Unruh Act. The trial court refused to certify the class action for fraud and the Supreme Court issued a writ of mandate holding, among other things, that the finance company was a proper party to the class action. Although former Civ. Code § 1804.2 limited an assignee's liability to the amount owing "at the time the defense is asserted against the assignee," the Court found the statute did not prevent plaintiffs from bringing an affirmative action against the finance company rather than simply asserting fraud as a defense. The Court reasoned that the purpose of the Unruh Act is to protect consumers, and it should be liberally construed to that end (4 Cal. 3d 800, 823) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.151

§ 206.151 Supporting Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Loan Transaction--Consumer Sale Was Financed by Lender Closely Connected to Seller [Civ. Code § 1801.6]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE LOAN TRANSACTION BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT IS SUBJECT TO THE UNRUH ACT BECAUSE DEFENDANT IS A SUPERVISED FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION _____ [RELATED TO THE SELLER BY COMMON OWNERSHIP AND CONTROL, AND THAT RELATIONSHIP WAS A MATERIAL FACTOR IN THE LOAN TRANSACTION or WHO SHARED WITH THE SELLER IN THE PROFITS AND LOSSES OF EITHER OR BOTH THE SALE AND THE LOAN].

A. Substance of Transaction. In applying the Unruh Act, a court must look to the substance rather than the form of the transaction (Civ. Code § 1801.6(a)).

B. Lender's Relation to Seller. The Unruh Act applies to a transaction in the form of a loan made by a supervised financial organization to a buyer of goods or services covered by the Unruh Act, when all or a portion of the loan proceeds are used to purchase the goods or services, if either the supervised financial organization and the seller are related by common ownership and control and the relationship was a material factor in the loan transaction, or the supervised financial organization and the seller share in the profits and losses of either or both the sale and the loan (Civ. Code § 1801.6(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the Unruh Act applies to a loan used to finance a consumer installment sale, whether or not the installment contract was not assigned to the lender, when the lender was closely related to the seller. For forms for use when the installment contract or account was assigned to the lender, see § 206.160.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Unruh Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substance of Transaction

Civ. Code § 1801.6, which establishes standards for determining whether a loan transaction is subject to the Unruh Act, was enacted in response to King v. Central Bank (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 840 , 135 Cal. Rptr. 771 , 558 P.2d 857 [Civ. Code § 1801.6(a)]. In King, a bank regularly furnished its printed contract forms to an insurance broker, who required his clients to finance their purchases through the bank, received a fee for each customer meeting the bank's credit requirements, and shared in the bank's profits. The "loan" contract assigned the insurance policy to the bank as security, together with all rights to cancel the policy in event of nonpayment. The Court in King held that the transaction was subject to the Unruh Act because the bank and the broker were jointly engaged in "the providing of insurance" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1802.2 (18 Cal. 3d 840, 845-846) . The close connection between the bank and the broker, the bank's direct role in arranging and supervising the transaction, and the bank's retention of substantial control over and interest in the insurance policy could all lead a reasonable trier of fact to infer that the bank provided plaintiffs the insurance (18 Cal. 3d 840, 846-847) . Civ. Code § 1801.6 makes clear that a close relationship between the seller and the lender is required before the Unruh Act will apply to a loan transaction.

The statute is not intended to abrogate the judicial principle that the substance of a transaction rather than its form is determinative of its characterization as a loan or credit sale. Furthermore, it is not intended to abrogate what remained of Morgan v. Reasor Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 881, 893, 73 Cal. Rptr. 398, 447 P.2d 638 (discussed in § 206.158[3][a]) after Stats. 1969, ch. 554 enacted Civ. Code § 1801.4 to exempt residential construction contracts from the Unruh Act [see Civ. Code § 1801.6(a)].

[b] Lender's Relation to Seller

The term "supervised financial organization" means a person organized, chartered, or holding a license or authorization certificate to make loans pursuant to the laws of California or the United States who is subject to supervision by an official or agency of California or the United States [Civ. Code § 1801.6(c)(1)].

For purposes of the Unruh Act, receipt of a loan commission or brokerage or referral fee by a seller from a supervised financial organization does not constitute a sharing of profits of the supervised financial organization, provided that the payment (1) is reasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the loan is consummated, and (2) is not refundable or is wholly or partly refundable only if the loan is voluntarily paid in full prior to its scheduled maturity [Civ. Code § 1801.6(c)(2)]. A loan commission, brokerage or referral fee is considered reasonable if it does not exceed the greater of $20 or one percent of the amount financed [see Civ. Code § 1801.6(c)(2)].

Payment of money by a seller to a supervised financial organization pursuant to an actual or alleged contractual or statutory obligation to indemnify a supervised financial organization for losses incurred as a result of the assertion by a buyer of claims or defenses with respect to goods or services purchased with loan proceeds does not constitute participation in or sharing of loan losses by the seller [Civ. Code § 1801.6(c)(3)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.152

§ 206.152 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Contract Was Not Made Within California [Civ. Code § 1802.19]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE UNRUH ACT DOES NOT APPLY TO THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT] THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION BECAUSE THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT] WAS NOT MADE IN CALIFORNIA.

A. California Contract or Account. A retail installment contract, contract, retail installment account, installment account, or revolving account is not subject to the Unruh Act unless the seller offers or agrees in California to sell to a buyer who is a California resident, or a buyer who is a California resident accepts or offers in California to buy (see Civ. Code § 1802.19(a)).

[Optional] B. Solicitation by Out-of-State Seller. A solicitation or communication to sell, oral or written, originating outside of California, but forwarded to, and received in this state by, a buyer who is a resident of this state is deemed to be an offer or agreement to sell in California (see Civ. Code § 1802.19(b)).

[Optional] C. Solicitation by Buyer to Out-of-State Seller. A solicitation or communication to buy, oral or written, originating within California, from a buyer who is a California resident, but forwarded to, and received by, a retail seller outside of this state, is deemed to be an acceptance or offer to buy in this state (see Civ. Code § 1802.19(c)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Unruh Act applies to a consumer sales transaction on the ground that the transaction did not take place in California. Although an out-of-state consumer sales transaction is not subject to the Unruh Act, it may be governed by the federal credit disclosure requirements prescribed by the Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.). For discussion of that Act, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales (Matthew Bender).

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Unruh Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in §§ 206.150 and 206.151.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.153

§ 206.153 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Contract Provided for Residential Construction or Sale of Real Property [Civ. Code § 1801.4(a), (b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT(S) BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT PROVIDE(S) FOR THE _____ [CONSTRUCTION AND/OR SALE OF A STRUCTURE DESIGNED FOR _____ (RESIDENTIAL or COMMERCIAL) OCCUPANCY or SALE OF REAL PROPERTY], AND THEREFORE IS/ARE NOT SUBJECT TO THE UNRUH ACT.

Construction or Real Estate Contracts. The Unruh Act does not apply to any contract or series of contracts providing for: (1) the construction, sale, or construction and sale of an entire residence, including a mobilehome, or all or part of a structure designed for commercial or industrial occupancy, with or without a parcel of real property or an interest in the parcel; or (2) for the sale of a lot or parcel of real property, including any site preparation incidental to the sale (Civ. Code § 1801.4(a), (b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Unruh Act applies to a consumer sales transaction on the ground that the sales contract provided for construction or sale of an entire residence or for the sale of real property. Civ. Code § 1801.4 serves as an exception to the rule that a contract for services furnished in connection with the improvement of real property is generally subject to the Act [see Civ. Code § 1802.2].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Unruh Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in §§ 206.150 and 206.151.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.154

§ 206.154 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Buyer Terminated Service Contract With No Continuing Obligation

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE UNRUH ACT DOES NOT APPLY TO THE SERVICE CONTRACT BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT BECAUSE NONPAYMENT OF AN INSTALLMENT TERMINATED THE CONTRACT WITH NO CONTINUING OBLIGATION TO PAY.

No Continuing Obligation. The Unruh Act does not apply to a service contract that can be terminated without further obligation by nonpayment of the next installment when due because there is no remaining balance or underlying debt to pay (Crawford v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1164, 1169 , 207 Cal. Rptr. 155).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Unruh Act applies to a consumer service contract on the ground that the contract was terminated by nonpayment of the next installment, with no continuing obligation or underlying debt.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Unruh Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in §§ 206.150 and 206.151.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Continuing Obligation

In Crawford v. Farmers Group, Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1164 , 207 Cal. Rptr. 155 , plaintiff brought a class action for violations of the Unruh Act on behalf of consumers who bought automobile insurance from defendant insurer. Plaintiff's premium was calculated on the basis of a six-month term of insurance and could be paid in monthly installments, with a monthly service fee. The plan provided one month of coverage for each month a premium was paid, without any further obligation to pay or purchase beyond that month. The trial court found for defendant insurance company and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the payment plan, although a sale of "services" furnished in connection with the providing of insurance, did not constitute a "retail installment sale" under the Unruh Act because it did not involve an extension of credit. The court reasoned that a buyer could terminate the policy without further obligation by not paying the next month's premium when due, and no creditor-debtor relationship arose because there was no remaining balance or underlying debt to pay (160 Cal. App. 3d 1164, 1169) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.155

§ 206.155 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Buyer Did Not Purchase Goods Primarily for Personal Use [Civ. Code § 1802.1]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT WAS NOT SUBJECT TO THE UNRUH ACT BECAUSE PLAINTIFF DID NOT INTEND AT THE TIME THE CONTRACT WAS ENTERED INTO TO USE THE GOODS PRIMARILY FOR PERSONAL USE.

Personal Use. A transaction is not covered by the Unruh Act if, at the time the contract for sale of goods was entered into, the plaintiff did not intend to use the goods primarily for personal, family, or household purposes (Civ. Code § 1802.1; Cessna Finance Corp. v. Pivo (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 281, 287-288, 129 Cal. Rptr. 888).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Unruh Act applies to a consumer sales transaction on the ground that the buyer did not intend to use the purchased goods primarily for personal use.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Unruh Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in §§ 206.150 and 206.151.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Personal Use

In Cessna Finance Corp. v. Pivo (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 281, 129 Cal. Rptr. 888 , three brothers bought three planes together from a Cessna dealer, who during negotiations suggested that the monthly installment payments could be raised by leasing the planes to a flying club. After the sale, the brothers leased the planes to the club, which made installment payments directly to the dealer's finance company. The brothers themselves each logged under 100 hours of flying time on the planes. When the contract went into default, the finance company repossessed the planes and sought a deficiency judgment against the brothers. The trial court found for defendants, reasoning that the aircraft were "goods" within the meaning of the Unruh Act and that Civ. Code § 1812.5 prohibits deficiency judgments.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the aircraft were not bought primarily for personal use under the Unruh Act (58 Cal. App. 3d 281, 286) . The question is determined by looking to the intent of the parties at the time the contract was entered into, not the actual use as demonstrated over the life of the contract (58 Cal. App. 3d 281, 287-288) . The court found that defendants intended from the beginning that the aircraft would be leased for the purpose of generating revenue to make the monthly payments, necessarily contemplating that the primary use of the aircraft would be by persons other than the buyers. Corroborating that intent, the defendants actually made very little personal use of the aircraft (58 Cal. App. 3d 281, 288) . In addition, the court observed that defendants were successful businessmen, not the unsophisticated consumers the Unruh Act was designed to protect (58 Cal. App. 3d 281, 287) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.156

§ 206.156 Opposing Contention That Unruh Act Applies to Transaction--Transaction Was Insurance Premium Finance Agreement [Civ. Code § 1801.7]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION BETWEEN PLAINTIFF AND DEFENDANT WAS NOT SUBJECT TO THE UNRUH ACT BECAUSE IT WAS AN INSURANCE PREMIUM FINANCING AGREEMENT ENTERED INTO BY AN INDUSTRIAL LOAN COMPANY.

Insurance Premium Finance Agreement. The Unruh Act does not apply to any premium finance agreement entered into by an industrial loan company pursuant to Financial Code Section 18560 et seq. (Civ. Code § 1801.7).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Unruh Act applies to a consumer sales transaction on the ground that the transaction was a premium finance agreement entered into by an industrial loan company pursuant to Fin. Code § 18560 et seq.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Unruh Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in §§ 206.150 and 206.151.

[b] Premium Finance Agreements

A premium finance agreement is an agreement between an insured and an industrial loan company that is incorporated under Fin. Code § 18000 et seq. and is in the business of financing insurance premiums [see Fin. Code §§ 18560, 18564, 18565]. The financing agreement takes the form of a loan contract, note, agreement, or obligation by which the insured agrees to pay to the company in installments the principal amount advanced by the company to an insurer or producer in payment of premium on an insurance contract or contracts [see Fin. Code § 18564]. The required disclosures and finance charge limitations applicable to premium financing agreements are set out in Fin. Code §§ 18605 et seq. and 18625 et seq.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.157

§ 206.157 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Recover Finance Charges Paid to Seller [Civ. Code § 1812.7]--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER ALL _____ [FINANCE and/or DELINQUENCY and/or COLLECTION and/or EXTENSION and/or DEFERRAL and/or REFINANCE] CHARGES IMPOSED IN CONNECTION WITH THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT] THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION BECAUSE DEFENDANT FAILED TO COMPLY WITH THE UNRUH ACT.

A. Seller's Forfeiture of Finance Charges. When any person fails to comply with the Unruh Act, that person is barred from recovery of any finance charge or of any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charge imposed in connection with the contract or installment account, and the buyer has the right to recover from that person an amount equal to any of the charges paid by the buyer (Civ. Code § 1812.7).

[Optional] B. Treble Damages for Illegal Charges on Add-On Sales. When a person willfully violates the Unruh Act in connection with the imposition, computation, or disclosures of or relating to a finance charge on a consolidated total of two or more contracts under the Act's provisions governing add-on sales, the buyer may recover from that person an amount equal to three times the total of the finance charges and any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charges imposed, contracted for, or received on all contracts included in the consolidated total, and the seller is barred from the recovery of any such charges (Civ. Code § 1812.9; see Civ. Code § 1808.1 et seq. (add-on sales)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a consumer who is a party to a retail installment contract or installment account is entitled to recover all finance and other charges paid to the seller.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's liability for finance and other charges already paid. In addition, if the consumer is a defendant in a collection action, the form may be adapted to support the contention that the seller is barred from recovery of any finance or other charges [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 206.159 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.158

§ 206.158 Supporting Contention That Buyer Can Recover Finance Charges Paid to Assignee of Installment Contract or Account [Civ. Code § 1812.7]--Assignee Had Knowledge of Unruh Act Violation

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER ALL _____ [FINANCE and/or DELINQUENCY and/or COLLECTION and/or EXTENSION and/or DEFERRAL and/or REFINANCE] CHARGES IMPOSED IN CONNECTION WITH THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT] THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAD CONSTRUCTIVE KNOWLEDGE THAT THE SELLER VIOLATED THE UNRUH ACT.

A. Assignee's Forfeiture of Finance Charges. Any person who acquires a contract or installment account with knowledge of noncompliance with the Unruh Act is barred from recovery of any finance charge or of any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charge imposed in connection with such contract or installment account, and the buyer has the right to recover from that person an amount equal to any of the charges paid by the buyer (Civ. Code § 1812.7).

B. Constructive Knowledge. Constructive knowledge, or knowledge of facts sufficient to put a reasonable person on inquiry, are sufficient to constitute "knowledge" under Civ. Code § 1812.7 (Morgan v. Reasor Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 881, 893, 73 Cal. Rptr. 398, 447 P.2d 638).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the Unruh Act applies to an installment contract or account that was assigned to a third party, such as to a lender who financed the sales transaction.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's liability for finance and other charges already paid. In addition, if the consumer is a defendant in a collection action, the form may be adapted to support the contention that the seller is barred from recovery of any finance or other charges [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Constructive Knowledge

In Morgan v. Reasor Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 881, 73 Cal. Rptr. 398, 447 P.2d 638 , a builder contracted with plaintiffs to construct a house on their real property. Plaintiffs gave the builder a promissory note for payment in installments, and the builder then assigned the contract and the note to a lender. Plaintiffs later brought an action to recover finance charges paid, claiming the original transaction had not complied with the Unruh Act. The trial court found for plaintiffs, and defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the lender had knowledge of noncompliance with the Unruh Act. The court explained that constructive knowledge, or knowledge of facts sufficient to put a reasonable person on inquiry, are sufficient to constitute "knowledge" under Civ. Code § 1812.7 (69 Cal. 2d 881, 889) . Because the lender received the note and the contract as two separate documents, the court reasoned that the lender knew of facts that would have put a reasonable person on inquiry as to whether it had violated the Unruh Act's single-document requirement. The court went on to explain that any prior complaints against the seller or an unusually high discount rate might also constitute suspicious circumstances putting an assignee on inquiry notice (69 Cal. 2d 881, 893) .

Morgan was abrogated in part in 1969 when Civ. Code 1801.4 was enacted to provide that the Unruh Act does not apply to residential construction contracts. For further discussion of this provision, see § 206.153.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.159

§ 206.159 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Recover All Finance and Other Charges Paid to Seller or Assignee--Nonwillful Violation Was Corrected Within 30 Days [Civ. Code § 1812.8]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT IS NOT LIABLE FOR FINANCE AND OTHER CHARGES PAID BY PLAINTIFF BECAUSE THE UNRUH ACT VIOLATIONS WERE NOT WILLFUL AND WERE CORRECTED BY DEFENDANT WITHIN 30 DAYS OF THE EXECUTION OF THE ORIGINAL CONTRACT BY PLAINTIFF.

Correction by Seller or Assignee. A holder of a contract or installment account who corrects a nonwillful violation of the Unruh Act by (1) making delivery to the buyer of a corrected copy of the contract within 30 days of the execution of the original contract by the buyer, and (2) crediting any amount improperly collected from the buyer against the indebtedness evidenced by the contract, is not subject to any penalty under the Act (Civ. Code § 1812.8).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a consumer who is a party to a retail installment contract or installment account is entitled to recover all finance and other charges paid to the seller or assignee.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's liability for finance and other charges already paid. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in §§ 206.157 and 206.158.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.160

§ 206.160 Supporting Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account [Civ. Code § 1812.2]--General Form

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

DEFENDANT HAS DEFAULTED ON THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT] THAT IS THE SUBJECT OF THIS ACTION AND PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED UNDER THE TERMS OF THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT] TO RECOVERY OF THE BALANCE DUE.

Recovery of Balance Due on Default. In the event of any default by the buyer in the performance of his or her obligations under a contract or installment account, the holder, pursuant to any rights granted therein, may proceed to recover judgment for the balance due (Civ. Code § 1812.2).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the seller or assignee may recover the balance due on an installment contract or installment account because the buyer has defaulted.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's entitlement to the balance due on the contract or account. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.161 -206.163 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.161

§ 206.161 Opposing Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account--Seller Repossessed Goods and Deficiency Judgment Is Barred [Civ. Code § 1812.5]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER ANY DEFICIENCY JUDGMENT AFTER REPOSSESSION AND RESALE OF THE GOODS THAT ARE THE SUBJECT OF THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT] ON WHICH PLAINTIFF HAS SUED.

Deficiency Judgment Prohibited. If the proceeds from the repossession and resale of goods that are the subject of a contract or installment account with a defaulting buyer are not sufficient to cover the expenses of resale, expenses of retaking, and satisfaction of the balance due under the contract or account, the holder may not recover the deficiency from the buyer or from anyone who has succeeded to the obligations of the buyer (Civ. Code § 1812.5).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the seller or assignee may recover the remaining balance due on an installment contract or installment account on the ground that the seller elected to repossess and resell the goods and therefore is barred from any deficiency judgment.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's entitlement to the balance due on the contract or account. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in § 206.160.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.162

§ 206.162 Opposing Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account--Buyer Discharged Obligation to Last Known Holder of Contract or Account [Civ. Code § 1806.1]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE BALANCE SUED FOR BECAUSE DEFENDANT HAD NO NOTICE OF ACTUAL OR INTENDED ASSIGNMENT OF THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT] AND PAID THE LAST KNOWN HOLDER OF THE _____ [CONTRACT or ACCOUNT].

Payment to Last Known Holder Discharges Obligation. Unless the buyer has notice of actual or intended assignment of a contract or installment account, payment made by the buyer to the last known holder of the contract or installment account discharges the buyer's obligation to the extent of that payment (Civ. Code § 1806.1).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that an assignee may recover the balance due on an installment contract or installment account on the ground that the buyer paid the last known holder of the contract or account and therefore discharged his or her obligation.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's entitlement to the balance due on the contract or account. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in § 206.160.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.163

§ 206.163 Opposing Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account--Buyer Was Entitled to New Payment Schedule After Defaulting on Balloon Payment [Civ. Code § 1807.3]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE BALANCE SUED FOR BECAUSE THE DEFAULT SUED ON WAS IN THE PAYMENT OF A BALLOON PAYMENT AND DEFENDANT DID NOT OBTAIN A NEW PAYMENT SCHEDULE WITH PAYMENTS NOT SUBSTANTIALLY GREATER THAN THE AVERAGE OF THE PRECEDING INSTALLMENTS.

Buyer Entitled to New Payment Schedule. If a buyer defaults in the payment of any balloon payment, he or she must be given an absolute right to obtain a new payment schedule under which, unless the buyer agrees otherwise, the periodic payments are not substantially greater than the average of the preceding installments (Civ. Code § 1807.3).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that a seller or assignee may recover the balance due on an installment contract or installment account on the ground that the buyer was entitled to a new payment schedule after defaulting on a balloon payment.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's entitlement to the balance due on the contract or account. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in § 206.160.

[b] Balloon Payment Defined

For purposes of Civ. Code § 1807.3, a balloon payment is any payment, other than a deferred down payment, under a contract or refinancing agreement that is more than twice the amount of an otherwise regularly scheduled equal payment. The contract or refinancing agreement providing for a balloon payment must also contain a notice to the buyer of his or her absolute right to obtain a new payment schedule in case of a default in the payment of any balloon payment [see Civ. Code § 1807.3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.164

§ 206.164 Opposing Contention That Seller or Assignee Is Due Balance on Retail Installment Contract or Account--Seller Relied on Acceleration Clause Prohibited by Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1804.1(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

PLAINTIFF IS NOT ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE BALANCE SUED FOR BECAUSE IT BECAME DUE PURSUANT TO AN ACCELERATION CLAUSE AND IN THE ABSENCE OF ANY OTHER DEFAULT BY DEFENDANT.

A. Prohibited Clause Is Void. Any provision in a contract that is prohibited by the Unruh Act is void (Civ. Code § 1804.4).

B. Acceleration Clause. No contract or obligation may contain a provision by which the holder may accelerate the maturity of any part or all of the amount owing under the contract, in the absence of a buyer's default in the performance of any of his or her obligations (Civ. Code § 1804.1(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that an assignee may recover the balance due on an installment contract or installment account on the ground that the seller accelerated the maturity of the balance due, pursuant to a contractual clause prohibited by the Unruh Act, in the absence of any default by the buyer.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of the seller's entitlement to the balance due on the contract or account. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

This form may be used in opposition to the points and authorities set forth in § 206.160.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
C. Consumer Installment Sales

20-206 California Points & Authorities §§ 206.165-206.179

[Reserved]

§§ 206.165[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.180

§ 206.180 Supporting Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction [Civ. Code § 2981]--Sales Contract [Civ. Code § 2981(a)(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION IS SUBJECT TO THE REES-LEVERING MOTOR VEHICLE SALES AND FINANCE ACT BECAUSE IT IS BASED ON A "CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT."

A. Transaction Is Subject to Rees-Levering Act. The provisions of the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act ("Rees-Levering Act") apply to all conditional sale contracts between a buyer and any person engaged in the business of selling or leasing under conditional sale contracts motor vehicles that are required to be registered under the Vehicle Code and are bought primarily for personal or family purposes (see Civ. Code § 2981(b), (c), (k)).

B. Contract for Sale Is Conditional Sale Contract. A "conditional sale contract" for purposes of the Rees-Levering Act is any contract for the sale of a motor vehicle between a buyer and a seller, with or without accessories, under which possession is delivered to the buyer and either (A) the title vests in the buyer thereafter only on the payment of all or a part of the price, or the performance of any other condition, or (B) a lien on the property is to vest in the seller as security for the payment of part or all of the price, or for the performance of any other condition (Civ. Code § 2981(a)(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) applies to an automobile sales transaction.

This form may be used, as appropriate, by either a buyer or a seller. For example, it may be used by a buyer who is seeking to establish his or her right to rescind an unenforceable conditional sale contract [see § 206.200 et seq.], or by a seller who is seeking to enforce the contract and recover a deficiency after repossession and sale [see § 206.230].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Rees-Levering Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, for example, counsel may refer to specific provisions of the sales agreement between the parties to demonstrate that the agreement satisfies the statutory definition of a conditional sale contract under Civ. Code § 2981(a)(1) and is therefore subject to the formalities and disclosure requirements under the Rees-Levering Act.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.183 -206.187 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.181

§ 206.181 Supporting Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction [Civ. Code § 2981]--Transaction in Form of Lease Is Actually Conditional Sale [Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION IS SUBJECT TO THE REES-LEVERING MOTOR VEHICLE SALES AND FINANCE ACT BECAUSE THE TRANSACTION, ALTHOUGH IN THE FORM OF A LEASE, IS A CONDITIONAL SALE.

A. Transaction Is Subject to Rees-Levering Act. [See § 206.180, Paragraph A.]

B. Contract for Bailment Is Conditional Sale Contract. A "conditional sale contract" for purposes of the Rees-Levering Act means any contract for the bailment of a motor vehicle between a buyer and a seller, with or without accessories, by which the bailee or lessee agrees to pay as compensation for use a sum substantially equivalent to or in excess of the aggregate value of the vehicle and its accessories, if any, at the time the contract is executed, and by which it is agreed that the bailee or lessee will become, or for no other or for a nominal consideration has the option of becoming, the owner of the vehicle on full compliance with the terms of the contract (Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2)).

C. Court Must Look to Substance Rather Than Form of Agreement. Law and equity require that a court look to substance rather than form in ascertaining the nature and legal effect of an agreement. Therefore, a court must examine the substantive rights and liabilities created by a motor vehicle lease agreement in order to determine whether or not it is a conditional sale contract within the meaning of Civil Code Section 2981(a)(2) (Thomas v. Wright (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 924-925, 98 Cal. Rptr. 874).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) applies to a transaction, even though the transaction is characterized as a lease.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Rees-Levering Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, for example, counsel would identify the substantive rights and liabilities created by the lease agreement, referring to specific paragraph numbers or clauses in the agreement, pointing out how those provisions satisfy the statutory definition of a conditional sale contract under Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2) and is therefore subject to the formalities and disclosure requirements under the Rees-Levering Act.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.183 -206.187 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Court Must Look to Substance Rather Than Form of Agreement

In Thomas v. Wright (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 98 Cal. Rptr. 874 , plaintiff brought an action seeking cancellation and enjoining the foreclosure of a deed of trust on her home executed by her to secure payment of obligations assumed by her under the provisions of an instrument entitled "Automobile Leasing Contract." The trial court rendered judgment in favor of defendants and dissolved a previously granted injunction against the foreclosure. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court recited the definition of a condition sale contract under Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2) and held that the contract fell within that definition. Defendants argued that because the automobile financing contract was entitled "Automobile Leasing Contract" and the parties were therein referred to as "lessor" and "lessee," it was not governed by the Rees-Levering Act (21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 924) . The court stated that such nomenclature is not conclusive, however, and that law and equity require that it look to substance rather than form in ascertaining the nature and legal effect of the agreement (21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 924-925) . Therefore, the court examined the substantive rights and liabilities created by the so-called "Automobile Leasing Contract" and determined that it was a "Conditional Sale Contract" within the meaning of Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2) (21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925) .

NOTE:

After the holding in Thomas, Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2) was amended, and Civ. Code § 2981.5 was added to the Rees-Levering Act to exclude certain kinds of "open-ended" automobile leases from the coverage of the Act [see Stats. 1973, ch. 696, § 4 (setting forth changes intended to clarify and restate existing law in light of uncertainty in law as evidenced by Thomas); see also Budget Rent-A-Car of Southern Cal. v. Bergman (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264-265 n.2, 175 Cal. Rptr. 286] . The point set forth in Paragraph C, however, does not appear to have been affected by the changes.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.182

§ 206.182 Supporting Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction [Civ. Code § 2981]--Seller-Assisted Financing Not Exempt [Civ. Code § 2982.5(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION IS SUBJECT TO THE REES-LEVERING MOTOR VEHICLE SALES AND FINANCE ACT BECAUSE THE MOTOR VEHICLE FINANCING IN THIS CASE WAS A SELLER-ASSISTED LOAN.

A. Purpose of Rees-Levering Act. The Rees-Levering Act was not designed to protect the sophisticated buyer, capable of arranging his or her own financing, but to protect the unwary naive purchaser who is the victim of financing arrangements controlled jointly by the seller and lender (Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 75, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279).

B. Rees-Levering Act Applies to Seller-Assisted Loans. The exemption under Civil Code Section 2982.5(a) is designed to exclude from the coverage of the Rees-Levering Act only independent private negotiations between a buyer and his or her lender, without involvement of the seller (Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 77, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279).

[Optional] C. Court Looks to Substance of Transaction Rather Than Form. In determining the application of consumer protection laws to particular transactions, the court must look to the substance of the transaction and not allow mere form to dictate the result (Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 77, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279).

[Optional] D. Preparation of Loan Documents by Dealer. When a dealer assists a purchaser of a vehicle by preparing the loan paperwork and taking it to a lending institution, that constitutes a seller-assisted loan and the Rees-Levering Act applies (Eldorado Bank v. Lytle (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17, 21 , 195 Cal. Rptr. 499).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) applies to a transaction because the seller assisted in the financing.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Rees-Levering Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts showing that the seller assisted the buyer in obtaining financing, such as: (1) completion of loan documents for the buyer [see Eldorado Bank v. Lytle (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17, 21 , 195 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 73, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279] ; (2) delivery of loan documents to the seller [see Eldorado Bank v. Lytle (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17, 21 , 195 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 73, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279] ; (3) contact by the seller with the finance company to determine on what terms the finance company will extend credit to the buyer [Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 68, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279] ; or (4) transportation of buyer to finance company [Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 73, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279] .

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.184 and 206.187 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Purpose of Rees-Levering Act

Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279 , involved an action brought on behalf of the general public against a finance company and a used motor vehicle dealer for conduct alleged to be in violation of the Rees-Levering Act. Plaintiff alleged that the dealer solicited and obtained prospective purchasers for the sale of its used vehicles by assisting purchasers to obtain loans from defendant finance company. Plaintiff further alleged that the finance company used as security the purchaser's furniture and other personal possessions in addition to the automobile being purchased. Following a court trial, judgment on the merits was granted in favor of defendants and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. On appeal defendants argued that they were exempt from the Rees-Levering Act under Civ. Code § 2982.5(a), which exempts a loan between the purchaser of a motor vehicle and a supervised financial organization. Plaintiff contended that the exemption was enacted to cover only privately obtained personal loans, and maintained that the Rees-Levering Act was not designed to protect the sophisticated buyer, capable of arranging his or her own financing, but to protect the unwary, naive purchaser who is the victim of financing arrangements controlled jointly by the seller and lender. The court found that the legislative history of the Rees-Levering Act supported plaintiff's position (105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 75) . The court held that the conduct of the seller and the finance company was not exempt from the Rees-Levering Act (105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 78) , and that the trial court erred in finding that there was no common scheme or design to deprive consumers of the rights secured to them and the general public by the provisions of Rees-Levering (105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 81) .

[b] Rees-Levering Act Applies to Seller-Assisted Loans

The facts and procedural background of Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279 , are discussed under § 206.182[3][a]. In Hernandez, the court of appeal addressed the issue of whether a transaction in which an automobile dealer obtained a prospective purchaser and arranged with a finance company for a loan that was to be secured by the purchaser's furniture and other personal possessions is exempt from the requirements of the Rees-Levering Act. The court recited the provisions under Civ. Code § 2982.5(a) that provide an exemption for loans between a purchaser of a motor vehicle and a supervised financial organization, as defined, and looked to the plain meaning of the words used by the Legislature. It concluded that the exemption under § 2982.5(a) is designed to exclude from the coverage of the Rees-Levering Act only independent private negotiations between a buyer and his or her lender (105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 77) .

[c] Court Looks to Substance of Transaction Rather Than Form

The facts and procedural background of Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279 , are discussed under § 206.182[3][a]. In Hernandez, the court of appeal held that an automobile sales finance transaction was not exempt under Civ. Code § 2982.5(a), which applies to independent private negotiations between a buyer and his or her lender, without the involvement of the seller. In determining the application of consumer protection laws to particular transactions, the court must look to the substance of the transaction and not allow mere form to dictate the result (105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 77) .

[d] Preparation of Loan Documents by Dealer

Eldorado Bank v. Lytle (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17 , 195 Cal. Rptr. 499 , was an action by a bank against purchasers of a motorhome for the deficiency after the vehicle was repossessed and sold on the default of the purchasers. The vehicle was purchased by defendants with the assistance of a sales employee of the dealer who assisted defendants by filling out a credit application and sending the application to the bank. The lower court held that the loan was seller-assisted and therefore came within the Rees-Levering Act. Since the bank's notice of sale did not comply with the requirements of the Act, the bank was not entitled to a deficiency.

The appellate department of the superior court affirmed the judgment. Citing Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279 (discussed under § 206.182[3][a]), the court stated that when a dealer assists a purchaser of a vehicle by preparing the loan paperwork and taking it to a lending institution, that constitutes a seller-assisted loan and the Rees-Levering Act applies (147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17, 21) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Court Looks to Substance of Transaction Rather Than Form

The facts and procedural background of Thomas v. Wright (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 98 Cal. Rptr. 874 , are discussed in § 206.181[3][a]. In Thomas, the court of appeal held that a lease was a conditional sale contract. Law and equity require that a court look to substance rather than form in ascertaining the nature and legal effect of an agreement. Therefore, a court must examine the substantive rights and liabilities created by a motor vehicle lease agreement in order to determine whether or not it is a conditional sale contract within the meaning of Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2) (21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 924-925) .

Brewer v. Home Owners Auto Finance Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 337, 89 Cal. Rptr. 231 , involved a conditional sale contract for the purchase of a used car, which provided for full payment within seven days. The contract was signed by the buyer and the dealer, and assigned by the dealer to a lender on the same day. Two days later the buyer and the lender entered into an amendment of the agreement that provided for five-year financing. The lender took the purchased automobile as security and, in addition, took a deed of trust on the buyer's home. Following repossession of the car, the buyer brought an action challenging the validity of the trust deed. The court of appeal held that the conditional sale was actually a joint undertaking between the dealer and the finance company and did not avoid the effect of the Rees-Levering Act. The court cited as factors the concurrent assignment of the security agreement to the lender; the fact that it was couched in terms of a conditional sales contract although full payment was required at the end of seven days; the rapidity with which the new agreement was executed; the modification form of the new agreement; and the failure of the new agreement to refer to the trust deed (10 Cal. App. 3d 337, 342) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.183

§ 206.183 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Cash Sale

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE REES-LEVERING MOTOR VEHICLE SALES AND FINANCE ACT BECAUSE IT IS MERELY A CASH SALE, NOT A CREDIT SALE.

A. Intent of Rees-Levering Act. The Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act is intended to protect the inexperienced and unwary retail installment plan purchaser and yet leave the greatest freedom of contract available to the experienced business person (Shapiro v. Ogle (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 261, 266, 104 Cal. Rptr. 553).

B. Rees-Levering Act Does Not Apply to Cash Sales. The Rees-Levering Act is directed only toward credit sales, and its provisions do not apply to cash sales (Shapiro v. Ogle (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 261, 263, 266, 104 Cal. Rptr. 553).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Rees-Levering Act applies to a motor vehicle sales transaction. The ground set forth in this form is that the transaction is a cash sale, which is not governed under the Rees-Levering Act.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Rees-Levering Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the sales document was a standard form of agreement entitled "Conditional Sale Contract," but its terms provided for a cash deposit and total balance due prior to delivery of the vehicle, counsel should refer to those provisions in arguing that the transaction was not a credit sale, and therefore not governed by the Act [see Shapiro v. Ogle (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 261, 267, 104 Cal. Rptr. 553 (illustrating terms of cash sale agreement)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.180 -206.182.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intent of Rees-Levering Act

In Shapiro v. Ogle (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 261, 104 Cal. Rptr. 553 , plaintiff was a purchaser of a custom mobilehome who sued the seller for return of deposits paid toward the purchase price and attorney's fees under the Rees-Levering Act. In the complaint, plaintiff alleged that the parties entered into a written conditional installment sales contract. The trial court found that the contract was a conditional sales contract under the Rees-Levering Act, and awarded the judgment prayed for with interest and attorney's fees. The seller appealed.

