The court of appeal affirmed the judgment for the sum prayed for in the complaint, but reversed the portion allowing attorney's fees. The court stated that the Act is intended to protect the inexperienced and unwary retail installment plan purchaser and yet leave the greatest freedom of contract available to the experienced business person (28 Cal. App. 3d 261, 266) . The transaction in question was an intended sale with the full purchase price payable on delivery of the mobilehome, and therefore not governed by the Rees-Levering Act. Civ. Code § 2983.4 provides for payment of reasonable attorney's fees to the party who prevails in any action on a conditional sale contract; since the action was not on a conditional sale contract, the allowance of an attorney's fee was error (28 Cal. App. 3d 261, 267) .

Civ. Code § 2981(k), which defines "motor vehicle" for purposes of the Rees Levering Act, was amended in 1981 to exclude from that definition a mobilehome, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18008, that is sold on or after July 1, 1981 [see Stats. 1981, ch. 134 § 1].

[b] Rees-Levering Act Does Not Apply to Cash Sales

The facts and procedural background of Shapiro v. Ogle (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 261, 104 Cal. Rptr. 553 , are discussed under § 206.183[3][a]. In Shapiro, the court of appeal held that the provisions of the Rees-Levering Act did not apply to a cash sale when the buyer paid earnest money before receiving delivery of a mobilehome to be custom built, there was a mutual rescission of the contract, and the buyer sued to recover that earnest money. The court referred to the provisions of Civ. Code § 2981(a)(1) in concluding that the Act is directed only toward credit sales (28 Cal. App. 3d 261, 266) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.184

§ 206.184 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Seller Is Not "Seller" Under Act [Civ. Code § 2981(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REES-LEVERING MOTOR VEHICLE SALES AND FINANCE ACT DOES NOT APPLY TO THIS TRANSACTION BECAUSE THE PERSON WHO SOLD THE VEHICLE IS NOT ENGAGED IN THE BUSINESS OF SELLING OR LEASING MOTOR VEHICLES UNDER CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACTS.

A. Conditional Sale Contract Must Have "Seller." Under the Rees-Levering Act, a "conditional sale contract" is a contract for the sale of a motor vehicle between a buyer and a "seller," as defined (Civil Code § 2981(a)(1)).

B. Definition of "Seller." "Seller," for purposes of the Rees-Levering Act, means a person engaged in the business of selling or leasing motor vehicles under conditional sale contracts (Civ. Code § 2981(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Rees-Levering Act applies to a motor vehicle sales transaction. The ground set forth in this form is that the person who has sold the vehicle is not a "seller" within the meaning of the Rees-Levering Act, and therefore the Act does not apply to the transaction [see Civ. Code § 2981(b)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Rees-Levering Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the person who has sold the vehicle is a building contractor, not someone engaged in the business of buying and selling motor vehicles, and the contract in question was for the sale of his or her own vehicle with the buyer allowed to pay in installments, counsel should refer to these facts in arguing that there is no "seller" within the meaning of the Rees-Levering Act.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.180 -206.182.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.185

§ 206.185 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Vehicle Is Not "Motor Vehicle" Under Act

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE REES-LEVERING MOTOR VEHICLE SALES AND FINANCE ACT BECAUSE THE VEHICLE IS NOT A VEHICLE REQUIRED TO BE REGISTERED UNDER THE VEHICLE CODE FOR USE PRIMARILY FOR PERSONAL OR FAMILY PURPOSES.

A. Conditional Sale Contract Must Be for "Motor Vehicle." Under the Rees-Levering Act, a "conditional sale contract" is a contract for the sale of a "motor vehicle" between a buyer and a seller, as defined (Civil Code § 2981(a)(1)).

B. Vehicle Is Not "Motor Vehicle." For purposes of the Rees-Levering Act, a "motor vehicle" means any vehicle required to be registered under the Vehicle Code that is bought for use primarily for personal or family purposes, and does not mean any vehicle that is bought for use primarily for business or commercial purposes (Civ. Code § 2981(k)).

[Optional] C. Vehicle Is Mobilehome. A "motor vehicle," for purposes of the Rees-Levering Act, does not mean a mobilehome, as defined in Health & Safety Code Section 18008, that is sold on or after July 1, 1981 (Civ. Code § 2981(k)).

[Optional] D. Vehicle Is Trailer Sold With Vessel and Within Unruh Act Definition of "Goods." "Motor vehicle," for purposes of the Rees-Levering Act, does not include any trailer that is sold in conjunction with a vessel and that comes within the definition of "goods" under Civil Code Section 1802.1 (Civ. Code § 2981(k)).

[Optional] E. Exclusion Is Based on Purpose of Purchase. The exclusionary clause in the statute makes no distinction based on the magnitude of the "business or commercial purpose." The Legislature obviously has focused on the purpose for which the vehicle is bought, not on the qualifications or business acumen of the buyer (San Jose Autocar White Co. v. Williamson (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 619, 621, 57 Cal. Rptr. 692).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Rees-Levering Act applies to a motor vehicle sales transaction. The ground set forth in this form is that the vehicle is not a "motor vehicle" within the meaning of the Rees-Levering Act, and therefore the Act does not apply to the transaction [see Civ. Code § 2981(k)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Rees-Levering Act applies. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the buyer has purchased two truck tractors, and is operating a trucking company that hauls large freight trailers, counsel should argue that the facts demonstrate that the buyer is purchasing the vehicles primarily for business purposes [see San Jose Autocar White Co. v. Williamson (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 619, 621 , 57 Cal. Rtpr. 692].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.180 -206.182.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exclusion Is Based on Purpose of Purchase

San Jose Autocar White Co. v. Williamson (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 619, 57 Cal. Rptr. 692 , involved an action to recover the amount due on a conditional sale contract after the buyers defaulted and the vehicles, two tractor trucks, were repossessed. Defendants denied liability based on alleged violations of the Rees-Levering Act. The trial court granted judgment for plaintiff and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court stated that the application of the Act is limited to the sale of a motor vehicle "which is bought for use primarily for personal or family purposes, and does not mean any vehicle that is bought for use primarily for business or commercial purposes." The exclusionary clause in the statute makes no distinction based on the magnitude of the "business or commercial purpose." The Legislature obviously has focused on the purpose for which the vehicle is bought, not on the qualifications or business acumen of the buyer (249 Cal. App. 2d 619, 621) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.186

§ 206.186 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Lease Is Not Conditional Sale Contract [Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REES-LEVERING MOTOR VEHICLE SALES AND FINANCE ACT DOES NOT APPLY TO THE TRANSACTION BECAUSE THE LEASE AGREEMENT IS NOT A CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT.

A. Rees-Levering Act Applies Only to Leases That Are "Conditional Sale Contracts." The Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act ("Rees-Levering Act") applies when a contract for the bailment of a motor vehicle is a "conditional sale contract," as defined by the Act (see Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2); Budget Rent-A-Car of Southern Cal. v. Bergman (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 265, 175 Cal. Rptr. 286).

B. Lease Agreement Is Not "Conditional Sale Contract." A "conditional sale contract" for purposes of the Rees-Levering Act means any contract for the bailment of a motor vehicle between a buyer and a seller, with or without accessories, by which the bailee or lessee agrees to pay as compensation for use a sum substantially equivalent to or in excess of the aggregate value of the vehicle and its accessories, if any, at the time the contract is executed, and by which it is agreed that the bailee or lessee will become, or for no other or for a nominal consideration has the option of becoming, the owner of the vehicle on full compliance with the terms of the contract (Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2); Estate of Gonzalez (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1598, 1603, 269 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[Optional] C. Maximum Liability Established by Reference to Value at End of Lease. A contract for the bailment or leasing of a motor vehicle, with or without accessories, that establishes the maximum for which a bailee or lessee may be held liable at the end of the lease or bailment period, or on an earlier termination, by reference to the value of the vehicle at such time, is not a contract by which the bailee or lessee will become or for no other or for a nominal consideration has the option of becoming the owner of the vehicle, for the purposes of Civil Code Section 2981(a)(2) or any other provision of the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code § 2981.5; Budget Rent-A-Car of Southern Cal. v. Bergman (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 265, 175 Cal. Rptr. 286).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Rees-Levering Act applies to an agreement for bailment of a motor vehicle. The ground set forth in this form is that the lease agreement does not satisfy the definition of a "conditional sale contract" under Civ. Code § 2981 and, therefore, the Act is not applicable to the transaction.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Rees-Levering Act applies to a motor vehicle lease agreement. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, if the amount under the lease agreement was not an amount "substantially equivalent to or in excess of the aggregate value of the vehicle," counsel should refer to specific provisions of the motor vehicle lease agreement to: (1) identify the number of payments agreed to under the lease and the total amount to be paid by those payments; (2) argue that such total amount is not an amount substantially equivalent to or in excess of the aggregate value of the vehicle; and (3) conclude that the agreement does not satisfy the definition of a "conditional sale contract" under Civ. Code § 2981 and, therefore, the Act is not applicable to the transaction [see Estate of Gonzalez (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1598, 1603, 269 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

In an appropriate case, the foregoing may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.181.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Rees-Levering Act Applies Only to Leases That Are "Conditional Sale Contracts"

In Budget Rent-A-Car of Southern Cal. v. Bergman (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 175 Cal. Rptr. 286 , an automobile leasing company leased a Rolls Royce automobile to a dealer of old time cars under a 36-month lease. The dealer sold the vehicle to the purchaser. After the certificate of title was not received from the Department of Motor Vehicles, the purchaser learned that the car was under a lease and unsuccessfully attempted to get the dealer to provide the funds to pay the leasing company off and clear the way for the purchaser to get the promised title to the car. The leasing company unsuccessfully attempted to repossess the car and sued the purchaser to recover possession and for damages. In addition to not disturbing the purchaser's possession of the car, the trial court gave a single judgment in favor of the purchaser and against the leasing company. The leasing company appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. One of the issues on the appeal was whether the open-ended lease agreement between the leasing company and the dealer who sold the car to the buyer was actually a sale, thereby permitting the buyer to take title. The buyer contended it was a sale, or like a sale, stating that there was specific authority for the proposition that an "open-ended" automobile lease is actually a conditional sale (121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264) . The court, however, noted that after the cases cited by the buyer were decided, Civ. Code § 2981.5 was added to the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Act to exclude certain kinds of open-ended automobile leases from the Act (121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264-265 n.2). Specifically, the court found that the lessee's maximum liability was to be established by the value of the car as determined by its sales price at the end of the lease. This fact took the agreement out of the application of the Rees-Levering Act under Civ. Code § 2981.5 (121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 265) .

[b] Lease Agreement Is Not "Conditional Sale Contract"

In Estate of Gonzalez (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1598, 1603, 269 Cal. Rptr. 68 , the decedent was injured after his vehicle was struck by another vehicle, and then died from a heart attack. The administratrix of the decedent's estate brought an action against the company that leased the vehicle that struck decedent's automobile, seeking damages for decedent's wrongful death, personal injuries, and property damages. The leasing company filed a motion for summary judgment, which was granted. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The estate's sole contention on appeal was that the trial court erred in determining as a matter of law that the lease agreement between the lessee (who was the driver of the vehicle that struck decedent's) and the leasing company was a conditional sale agreement. The significance of the distinction is that the liability imposed by Veh. Code § 17150 on the owner of a motor vehicle does not attach when the owner has sold the car under a conditional sales agreement under Veh. Code § 17156. The court agreed with the estate's contention on the ground that the lease agreement did not satisfy either of the requirements under Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2) of the Rees-Levering Act, defining a conditional sale agreement. At the time the contract was entered into, the lessee agreed to 29 payments of $215, for a total of $6,235. This amount, in the words of the statute, was not "substantially equivalent to or in excess of the aggregate value of the vehicle," which the parties agreed was $8,295.86. In addition, the anticipated payoff amount was 85 percent of $4,400, almost half of the agreed value of the car. Under no circumstances could that amount be considered, in the words of the statute, "no" consideration or "nominal" consideration. Since the agreement was not a conditional sale agreement, the court concluded that the leasing company was liable for any negligent misuse of its vehicle by the lessee (219 Cal. App. 3d 1598, 1602-1603) .

[c] Maximum Liability Established by Reference to Value at End of Lease

The facts and procedural background of Budget Rent-A-Car of Southern Cal. v. Bergman (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 175 Cal. Rptr. 286 , are discussed under § 206.186[3][a]. In Budget, the court of appeal found that the lessee's maximum liability under the lease agreement was to be established by the value of the automobile at the end of the lease. By virtue of Civ. Code § 2981.5, that fact took the agreement out of the Rees-Levering Act (121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 265) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.187

§ 206.187 Opposing Contention That Rees-Levering Act Applies to Motor Vehicle Transaction--Independent Lender Financed Sale Is Exempt From Act [Civ. Code § 2982.5

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRANSACTION IS EXEMPT FROM THE REES-LEVERING MOTOR VEHICLE SALES AND FINANCE ACT BECAUSE THE LOAN WAS MADE BY A SUPERVISED FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION.

A. "Supervised Financial Organization" Defined. As used in Civil Code Section 2982.5, a "supervised financial organization" means a person organized, chartered, or holding a license or authorization certificate under a law of California or the United States to make loans and subject to supervision by an official or agency of this state or the United States (Civ. Code § 2982.5(a)).

B. Loan by Supervised Financial Organization Is Exempt From Act. Nothing contained in the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act ("Rees-Levering Act") affects a loan, or the security therefor, between a purchaser of a motor vehicle and a supervised financial organization, other than the seller of the motor vehicle, all or a portion of which loan is used in connection with the purchase of a motor vehicle (Civ. Code § 2982.5(a)).

C. Private Financing Excluded From Act. The exemption in Civil Code Section 2982.5(a) is designed to exclude from coverage of the Rees-Levering Act independent private negotiations between a buyer and his or her lender without involvement of the seller, which is consistent with the legislative purpose and policy of the Act (Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 77).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the Rees-Levering Act applies to a motor vehicle sales transaction. The ground set forth in this form is that the loan, or the security therefor, is between a purchaser of a motor vehicle and a "supervised financial organization," as defined by statute, and is therefore exempt from the Act [Civ. Code § 2982.5(a)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the Rees-Levering Act applies to a motor vehicle lease agreement. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should identify facts establishing that the entity providing the loan for the motor vehicle sales transaction is a supervised financial organization, and that the loan was made without the involvement of the seller of the vehicle.

In an appropriate case, the foregoing may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 206.182.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Private Financing Excluded From Act

The facts and procedural background of Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279 , are discussed in § 206.182[3][a]. In Hernandez, the court of appeal held that the Rees-Levering Act applied to an automobile sales transaction because of the involvement of the seller in the loan. The court stated, however, that to conclude that the exemption in Civ. Code § 2982.5(a) is designed to exclude from the coverage of the Rees-Levering Act only independent private negotiations between a buyer and his or her lender, without involvement of the seller, is consistent with the Legislature's purpose and policy (105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 77) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Private Financing Excluded From Act

The facts and procedural background of Eldorado Bank v. Lytle (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17 , 195 Cal. Rptr. 499 , are discussed in § 206.182[3][d]. In Eldorado Bank, the court held that assistance by the dealer constituted a seller-assisted loan and the Rees-Levering Act applied. The court agreed with the respondents' contention, however, that Civ. Code § 2982.5 was designed to exempt only private financing obtained independently by a motor vehicle purchaser (147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17, 21) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
1. Applicability Of Rees-Levering Act

20-206 California Points & Authorities §§ 206.188-206.199

[Reserved]

§§ 206.188[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.200

§ 206.200 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Contract Is Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Violated Formality Provisions [Civ. Code § 2981.9]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RESCIND THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE SELLER FAILED TO COMPLY WITH THE FORMALITY REQUIREMENTS OF THE REES-LEVERING ACT.

A. Conditional Sale Contract Must Comply With Formality Requirements. Every conditional sale contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act must comply with the requirements stated in Civil Code Section 2981.9 (Civ. Code § 2981.9).

[EITHER]

B. Seller Violated Writing Requirement. Every conditional sale contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act must be in writing (Civ. Code § 2981.9).

[AND/OR]

C. Seller Violated Print Requirements. Every conditional sale contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act, if printed, must be printed in type no smaller than six points (Civ. Code § 2981.9).

[AND/OR]

D. Seller Violated Single Document Requirement. Every conditional sale contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act must contain in a single document all of the agreements of the buyer and seller with respect to the total cost and the terms of payment for the motor vehicle, including any promissory notes or any other evidences of indebtedness (Civ. Code § 2981.9).

[AND/OR]

E. Seller Violated Signature Requirement. The conditional sale contract or a purchase order must be signed by the buyer or his or her authorized representative and by the seller or its authorized representative (Civ. Code § 2981.9; General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Kyle (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 101, 106, 4 Cal. Rptr. 496, 351 P.2d 768).

[AND/OR]

F. Seller Obtained Buyer's Signature on Contract With Blanks. The seller is not permitted to obtain the signature of the buyer to a contract when it contains blank spaces to be filled in after it has been signed (Civ. Code § 2981.9).

[AND/OR]

G. Seller Violated Copy Requirement. An exact copy of the contract or purchase order must be furnished to the buyer by the seller at the time the buyer and the seller have signed it. A motor vehicle may not be delivered pursuant to a contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act until the seller delivers to the buyer a fully executed copy of the conditional sale contract or purchase order and any vehicle purchase proposal and any credit statement which the seller has required or requested the buyer to sign and which he or she has signed during the contract negotiations (Civ. Code § 2981.9).

[CONTINUE]

H. Contract Is Unenforceable. Under Civil Code Section 2983, if the seller, except as the result of an accidental or bona fide error in computation, violates any provision of Civil Code Section 2981.9, the conditional sale contract is not enforceable, except by a bona fide purchaser, assignee, or pledgee for value, or until after the violation is corrected as provided by statute (Civ. Code § 2983; see Zmak v. Arata Pontiac (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 689, 692-693, 71 Cal. Rptr. 506).

I. Buyer May Rescind Contract. When a conditional sale contract is not enforceable under Civil Code Section 2983, the buyer may elect to rescind the contract and return the motor vehicle (Civ. Code § 2983.1).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the buyer is entitled to a rescission of an unenforceable conditional sale contract under the Rees-Levering Act because the contract does not comply with the formality requirements stated in Civ. Code § 2981.9 [see Civ. Code § 2983.1].

Before a contract may be determined to violate the above provisions, a determination must be made that the

Rees-Levering Act governs the transaction. For points and authorities supporting and opposing the contention that the Act applies to a transaction, see § 206.180 et seq.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, for example, if the writing fails to comply with the print requirements under Civ. Code § 2981.9, counsel should refer to the specific clauses that fail to comply with the statute.

[b] No "Cooling Off" Period

There is a common misconception that California law provides for a "cooling off" or other cancellation period after the sale or lease of a motor vehicle [Stats 1993, ch. 1092, § 1]. It does not, and the type of rescission for legal cause addressed by this form is to be distinguished. Since July 1, 1994, all sale and lease contract forms have been required to contain a notice with a heading in at least 12-point boldface type, and the text in at least 10-point boldface type, in the prescribed language, stating that no such "cooling off" period exists during which the purchaser may change his or her mind and that after the contract is signed, it can be canceled only for legal cause such as fraud [Civ. Code § 2982(r)]. However, on or after July 1, 2006, California law does require a seller to offer a two-day contract cancellation option on used vehicles with a purchase price of less than $40,000, subject to statutory conditions [see Veh. Code § 11713.21]. (This contract cancellation option requirement does not apply to the sale of a recreational vehicle, a motorcycle, or an off-highway motor vehicle subject to identification under California law.)

[c] Attorney's Fees

Although a motor vehicle conditional sale contract is extinguished by rescission, the prevailing party is entitled to attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 2983.4 [Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 378-379, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749] . For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting the contention that a party is entitled to attorney's fees, see § 206.239.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.205 -206.210 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract Is Unenforceable

In Zmak v. Arata Pontiac (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 689, 71 Cal. Rptr. 506 , the buyer sued for rescission of a conditional sales contract. The trial court held that the dealer, salespersons, and assignee bank violated Civ. Code § 2982 because the written contract did not state the true trade-in allowance agreed on by the parties; defendants induced plaintiff to sign the contract form in blank; and no completed copy was delivered to plaintiff at the time of the transaction. The trial court further found that plaintiff made a timely election to rescind the contract and ordered its rescission. The trial court granted judgment for the buyer, and the seller appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court, noting that the sole issue on appeal was the sufficiency of the evidence, held that the findings attacked by defendants were supported by substantial evidence and that plaintiffs were therefore entitled to rescission of the contract (265 Cal. App. 2d 689, 692-693) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.201

§ 206.201 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Contract Is Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Violated Disclosure Provisions [Civ. Code § 2982(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RESCIND THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE SELLER FAILED TO COMPLY WITH THE DISCLOSURE REQUIREMENTS OF THE REES-LEVERING ACT.

A. Purpose of Disclosure Requirements. The obvious purpose of Civil Code Section 2982(a) is to protect purchasers of motor vehicles against excessive charges by requiring full disclosure of all items of cost (General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Kyle (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 101, 106, 4 Cal. Rptr. 496, 351 P.2d 768).

B. Contract Violates Disclosure Requirements. The contract must contain disclosures as required by Civil Code Section 2982(a), which must be labeled "itemization of the amount financed" (Civ. Code § 2982(a); see General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Kyle (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 101, 106, 4 Cal. Rptr. 496, 351 P.2d 768).

C. Specification of Nondisclosure Violations. _____ [Here, and in subsequent paragraphs as necessary, specify provisions under Civ. Code § 2982(a) that are alleged to have been violated, e.g., The contract must contain the cash price, exclusive of _____ (specify what was improperly included, e.g., document preparation fees and taxes imposed on the sale) (Civ. Code § 2982(a)(1)(A))].

D. Contract Is Unenforceable. Under Civil Code Section 2983, if the seller, except as the result of an accidental or bona fide error in computation, violates Civil Code Section 2982(a), the conditional sale contract is not enforceable, except by a bona fide purchaser, assignee, or pledgee for value, or until after the violation is corrected as provided by statute (Civ. Code § 2983).

E. Buyer May Rescind Contract. [See § 206.200, Paragraph I.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the buyer is entitled to a rescission of an unenforceable conditional sale contract under the Rees-Levering Act because the contract does not comply with the disclosure requirements stated in Civ. Code § 2982(a) [see Civ. Code §§ 2983, 2983.1].

Before a contract may be determined to violate these provisions, a determination must be made that the Rees-Levering Act governs the transaction. For points and authorities supporting and opposing the contention that the Act applies to a transaction, see § 206.180 et seq.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, for example, if the writing fails to recite an "itemization of the amount financed," counsel should refer to that omission in support of the argument that the contract fails to comply with the statute, and that the buyer is therefore permitted to elect to rescind the agreement.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.205 -206.210 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Purpose of Disclosure Requirements

In General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Kyle (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 101, 4 Cal. Rptr. 496, 351 P.2d 768 , a purchaser of a motor vehicle counterclaimed for damages in an action by an assignee of a conditional sale contract against the purchaser for specific recovery of an automobile or its value. The finance company contended that it was a bona fide purchaser for value of the conditional sale contract executed between the purchaser and the seller. The trial court entered judgment against the finance company, and the finance company appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed with directions. The Court quoted its earlier decision in Carter v. Seaboard Finance Co. (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 564, 573, 203 P.2d 758 , in which the Court stated that the obvious purpose of Civ. Code § 2982(a) is to protect purchasers of motor vehicles against excessive charges by requiring full disclosure of all items of cost (54 Cal. 2d 101, 105-106) . However, the Court stated that subdivision (a) was not intended to penalize the seller who violates it in the manner concerned in the case before it (that is, to allow the purchaser double recovery by permitting him to have possession of the car, and to recover the purchase price). Thus, the Court reversed the judgment with directions to permit the purchaser to amend his counterclaim and seek recovery on a restitutive rather than a punitive theory (54 Cal. 2d 101, 106) .

NOTE:

General Motors was decided prior to 1961 legislation and subsequent amendments that clarified a buyer's right to restitution for violation of disclosure provisions of former Civ. Code § 2981(a) (now Civ. Code § 2982) [see Stats. 1961, ch. 1626].

[b] Contract Violates Disclosure Requirements

The facts and procedural background of General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Kyle (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 101, 4 Cal. Rptr. 496, 351 P.2d 768 , are discussed under § 206.201[3][a]. In General Motors, the Supreme Court stated that the motor vehicle sales and finance transaction violated Civ. Code § 2982(a) in numerous respects, including the fact that the contract failed to recite a "description and itemization of amounts ... which will actually be paid by the seller ... to any public officer as fees in connection with the transaction" (54 Cal. 2d 101, 106) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.202

§ 206.202 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Contract Is Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Violated Finance Charge Provisions [Civ. Code § 2982(j), (k)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RESCIND THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE SELLER FAILED TO COMPLY WITH THE FINANCE CHARGE LIMITATIONS OF THE REES-LEVERING ACT.

A. Contract Must Comply With Finance Charge Limitations of Act. To the extent applicable, every conditional sale contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act must satisfy the requirements and limitations of Civil Code Section 2982 (Civ. Code § 2982).

[EITHER]

B. Dollar Amount of Disclosed Finance Charge Exceeds Amount Allowed. The dollar amount of the disclosed finance charge must not exceed the greater of the amounts stated in Civil Code Section 2982(j)(1)(A)-(C) (Civ. Code § 2982(j)(1)).

[AND/OR]

C. Holder of Contract Has Charged Amount in Excess of Disclosed Finance Charge. The holder of the contract is not permitted to charge, collect, or receive a finance charge that exceeds the disclosed finance charge, except to the extent provided for in Civil Code Section 2982(j)(2) (Civ. Code § 2982(j)(2)).

[AND/OR]

D. Holder of Contract Has Charged Excessive Administrative Finance Charge. If the finance charge or a portion thereof is determined by the simple-interest basis and the amount of the unpaid balance exceeds $5,000, the holder of the contract may, in lieu of its right to a minimum finance charge under Civil Code Section 2982(j)(1)(C)), charge, receive, or collect on the date of the contract an administrative charge not to exceed the amount stated in Civil Code Section 2982(j)(3) (Civ. Code § 2982(j)(3)).

[AND/OR]

E. Finance Charge in Contract Providing for Unequal or Irregular Payments Exceeds Amount Allowed. When a contract provides for unequal or irregular payments, or payments on other than a monthly basis, the maximum finance charge must be at the effective rate provided for in Civil Code Section 2982(j)(1), having due regard for the schedule of installments (Civ. Code § 2982(j)(4)).

[AND/OR]

F. Contract Violates Delinquency Charge Limitations. The contract may provide that for each installment in default for a period of not less than 10 days the buyer is required to pay a delinquency charge in an amount not to exceed in the aggregate 5 percent of the delinquent installment, which amount may be collected only once on any installment regardless of the period during which it remains in default (Civ. Code § 2982(k)).

[AND/OR]

G. Contract Imposes Delinquency Charge on Payments Under Extension or Deferral Agreement. Payments timely received by the seller under an extension or deferral agreement may not be subject to a delinquency charge unless the charge is permitted by Civil Code Section 2982.3 (Civ. Code § 2982(k)).

[AND/OR]

H. Contract Imposes Unreasonable Collection Costs. The contract may only provide for reasonable collection costs and fees in the event of delinquency (Civ. Code § 2982(k)).

[CONTINUE]

I. Contract Is Unenforceable. Under Civil Code Section 2983, if the seller, except as the result of an accidental or bona fide error in computation, violates Civil Code Section 2982(j), the conditional sale contract is not enforceable, except by a bona fide purchaser, assignee, or pledgee for value, or until after the violation is corrected as provided by statute (Civ. Code § 2983).

J. Buyer May Rescind Contract. [See § 206.200, Paragraph I.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the buyer is entitled to a rescission of an unenforceable conditional sale contract under the Rees-Levering Act because the contract does not comply with the finance charge requirements stated in Civ. Code § 2982(j), (k) [see Civ. Code §§ 2983, 2983.1].

Before a contract may be determined to violate these provisions, a determination must be made that the Rees-Levering Act governs the transaction. For points and authorities supporting and opposing the contention that the Act applies to a transaction, see § 206.180 et seq.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to portions of the contract, with appropriate identification of the clauses in question, that show how the contract violates the finance charge limitations of Civ. Code § 2982(j), (k).

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.205 -206.210 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.203

§ 206.203 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Contract Is Unenforceable [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Holder Had Knowledge of Violations [Civ. Code § 2983.1]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RESCIND THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE HOLDER OF THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT KNEW OF THE VIOLATION[S] OF _____ [identify statute on which rescission is based, e.g., CIVIL CODE SECTION 2982(a)].

A. Holder of Contract Knew of Violations. If a holder acquires a conditional sale contract with knowledge of a violation of Civil Code Section 2981.9 or 2982(a), (j), or (k), the conditional sale contract is not enforceable except by a bona fide purchaser, assignee, or pledgee for value, or unless the violation is corrected as provided in Civil Code Section 2984 (Civ. Code § 2983.1).

[Optional] B. Violation Appears on Face of Contract. A holder of a conditional sale contract may not claim that he or she had no notice of a defect giving rise to a right of rescission if the defect appears on the face of the contract (see General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Kyle (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 101, 108, 4 Cal. Rptr. 496, 351 P.2d 768).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the buyer is entitled to a rescission of an unenforceable conditional sale contract under the Rees-Levering Act because the holder of a conditional sale contract had acquired the contract with knowledge of a violation of Civ. Code § 2981.9 or 2982(j), (k) [see Civ. Code §§ 2983, 2983.1].

Before a contract may be determined to violate these provisions, a determination must be made that the Rees-Levering Act governs the transaction. For points and authorities supporting and opposing the contention that the Act applies to a transaction, see § 206.180 et seq.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to portions of the contract, or other evidence, that demonstrates that the holder of the conditional sale contract acquired the contract with knowledge of the violation.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.205 -206.210 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Violation Appears on Face of Contract

The facts and procedural background of General Motors Accept. Corp. v. Kyle (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 101, 4 Cal. Rptr. 496, 351 P.2d 768 , are discussed in § 206.201[3][a]. In General Motors, the Supreme Court reversed with direction a trial court's judgment for defendant buyer. The Court examined the issue of whether the holder of the finance company acquired the contract with knowledge of a violation of Civ. Code § 2982(a). The Court stated that the failure of the contract to describe and itemize amounts to be paid as fees appeared on the face of the contract, and therefore the holder of the contract could in no event properly claim that it had no notice of that defect (54 Cal. 2d 101, 108) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.204

§ 206.204 Supporting Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract--Purchaser Was Unable to Obtain Third-Party Financing [Civ. Code § 2982.9]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RESCIND THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE BUYER FAILED TO OBTAIN FINANCING FROM A THIRD PARTY.

Buyer Is Unable to Obtain Financing. In the event a buyer obligates himself or herself to purchase, or receive possession of, a motor vehicle under a contract or purchase order, and the seller knows that the buyer intends to obtain financing from a third party without the assistance of the seller, and the buyer is unable to obtain such financing, the contract or purchase order must be deemed rescinded and all consideration thereon must be returned by the respective parties without demand (Civ. Code § 2982.9).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the buyer is entitled to a rescission of an unenforceable conditional sale contract under the Rees-Levering Act because the buyer was unable to obtain financing from a third party as provided in Civ. Code § 2982.9.

Before a contract may be determined to violate these provisions, a determination must be made that the Rees-Levering Act governs the transaction. For points and authorities supporting and opposing the contention that the Act applies to a transaction, see § 206.180 et seq.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts, such as the written agreement between the parties, showing that [Civ Code § 2982.9]:

- The buyer was obligated to purchase or receive possession of the vehicle under a contract or purchase order.
- The seller had knowledge of the buyer's intent to obtain financing without the seller's assistance.
- The buyer is unable to obtain the financing.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.205 -206.210 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.205

§ 206.205 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Election to Rescind Was Not Made With Reasonable Diligence

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

BUYER SHOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO RESCIND THE CONTRACT BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS FAILED MAKE THE ELECTION WITH REASONABLE DILIGENCE.

Election to Rescind Not Made With Reasonable Diligence. The election to rescind an unenforceable conditional sale contract and return the motor vehicle must be made with reasonable diligence (Civ. Code § 2983.1).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the buyer may rescind an unenforceable conditional sale contract. The ground set forth in the form is that the buyer failed to make the election to rescind with "reasonable diligence," as required by Civ. Code § 2983.1.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts that indicate the buyer failed to exercise reasonable diligence in electing to rescind the conditional sale contract [cf. Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 909, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692 (no substantial evidence that defendants exercised "reasonable diligence" in locating stockholders and heirs under former statute relating to determination of conflicting claims to realty); People v. Mendieta (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1039, 230 Cal. Rptr. 162 (state failed to exercise "reasonable diligence" under Evid. Code § 240, defining unavailability of witnesses)].

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.200 -206.204.

Points and authorities submitted in opposition to the contention that the Rees-Levering Act applies to the transaction may also be used to oppose the contention that the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract because of an alleged violation of the Act [see § 206.180 et seq.].

[b] No "Cooling Off" Period

There is a common misconception that California law provides for a "cooling off" or other cancellation period after the sale or lease of a motor vehicle [Stats 1993, ch. 1092, § 1]. It does not, and the type of rescission for legal cause addressed by this form is to be distinguished. Since July 1, 1994, all sale and lease contract forms have been required to contain a notice with a heading in at least 12-point boldface type and the text in at least 10-point boldface type, in the prescribed language, stating that no such "cooling off" period exists during which the purchaser may change his or her mind and that after the contract is signed, it can be canceled only for legal cause such as fraud [Civ. Code § 2982(r)]. However, on or after July 1, 2006, California law does require a seller to offer a two-day contract cancellation option on used vehicles with a purchase price of less than $40,000, subject to statutory conditions [see Veh. Code § 11713.21]. (This contract cancellation option requirement does not apply to the sale of a recreational vehicle, a motorcycle, or an off-highway motor vehicle subject to identification under California law.)

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.206

§ 206.206 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Is in Substantial Compliance With Statutory Requirements

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellate brief.]

BUYER SHOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO RESCIND THE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE CONTRACT SUBSTANTIALLY CONFORMS TO THE PROVISIONS OF THE REES-LEVERING ACT.

A. Seller Has Substantially Complied With Statute. When there is actual compliance with all matters of substance rather than mere technical imperfections of form or variations in mode of expression, the seller should not be given the stature of noncompliance, thereby transforming the transaction into a windfall for an unscrupulous and designing buyer (Stasher v. Harger-Haldeman (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 23, 29, 22 Cal. Rptr. 657, 372 P.2d 649).

B. Rees-Levering Act Is to Be Used as Shield and Not Sword. Civil Code Section 2982 and its companion provisions constitute a shield, not a sword, for the use of buyers in proper cases. Thus, the statutes must not be applied in a manner that will give a windfall to the conditional purchaser. The purpose of the statute is merely to protect, not to enrich, the buyer in cases of purely formal violations (Stasher v. Harger-Haldeman (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 23, 29-30, 22 Cal. Rptr. 657, 372 P.2d 649).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the buyer may rescind an unenforceable conditional sale contract. The ground set forth in this form is that the seller has substantially complied with the terms of the Rees-Levering Act.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts, such as the written agreement between the parties, to demonstrate that the agreement substantially complies with the requirements of the Act.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.200 -206.204.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Seller Has Substantially Complied With Statute

In Stasher v. Harger-Haldeman (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 23, 22 Cal. Rptr. 657, 372 P.2d 649 , a buyer brought an action to compel restitution on a claimed rescission of a conditional sale contract to recover payments made under the contract. The trial court found that the contract complied strictly with certain provisions of former Civ. Code § 2982(a), and complied substantially with other provisions under that statute, and granted judgment for defendant automobile dealer. Plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. Citing Carter v. Seaboard Finance Co. (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 564, 573, 203 P.2d 758 , the Court stated that the purpose of former Civ. Code § 2982 [now see Civ. Code § 2983] is to protect purchasers of motor vehicles against excessive charges by requiring full disclosure of all items of cost, and that the form and requisites prescribed by the statute are mandatory. However, Carter emphasized that a contract that does not substantially conform to the form and requisites is unenforceable. The Court in Stasher defined "substantial compliance" to mean actual compliance in respect to the substance essential to every reasonable objective of the statute. But if there is such actual compliance as to all matters of substance, then mere technical imperfections of form or variations in mode of expression by the seller, or such minima as obvious typographical errors, should not be given the stature of noncompliance and thereby transformed into a windfall for an unscrupulous and designing buyer. Further, Civ. Code § 2982 and its companion provisions constitute a shield not a sword, for the use of buyers in proper cases (58 Cal. 2d 23, 29) . Thus, it must not be applied in a manner that will give a windfall to the conditional purchaser, as the purpose of the statute is merely to protect, not to enrich, the buyer in cases of purely formal violations (58 Cal. 2d 23, 29-30) .

[b] Rees-Levering Act Is to Be Used as Shield and Not Sword

The facts and procedural background of Stasher v. Harger-Haldeman (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 23, 22 Cal. Rptr. 657, 372 P.2d 649 , are discussed under § 206.206[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Seller Has Substantially Complied With Statute

Davis v. Ford Motor Credit Co. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 581, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 697 , concerned a creditor's billing practice with respect to a consumer's payments made pursuant to a an automobile installment sale contract. The contract provided, "We may apply each payment to the earned and unpaid part of the Finance Charge, to the unpaid part of the Amount Financed and to other amounts you owe under this contract in any order we choose." The creditor's practice was to apply a consumer's payment to an earlier missed installment (for which a late fee was imposed), rather than to the current month's installment, with the result that the current month's installment became unpaid, triggering a late fee for the current month. The plaintiff's theory was that the successive late fees were prohibited by Civ. Code § 2982(k) and were actionable under the unfair competition law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.] and under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.]. The creditor demurred generally. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend, and entered a judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal affirmed, concluding that the creditor's practice did not violate the statutory prohibition against charging more than one late fee per delinquent installment [see Civ. Code § 2982(k) (late fee "may be collected only once on any installment regardless of the period during which it remains in default")]. The court explained, "For example, if an ontime payment received during the month of April is allocated to March because the March payment was missed, the result of allocating said payment to March is that the April payment was missed, so as to trigger a new late fee for the month of April. Under those circumstances, the consumer has not been charged more than one late fee for the missed March payment. Rather, the first late fee is for the payment missed in March, and the second late fee represents the payment missed in April" (179 Cal. App. 4th 581, 584). The plaintiff had argued that when a payment is received on time, it is not delinquent even though a payment was missed in an earlier month, and therefore the creditor should not be able to render the timely payment delinquent by treating it as the earlier missed payment and then treating the current payment as missed. Both the trial court and the appellate court rejected that argument because Civ. Code § 2982(k) was not intended to prohibit that practice but instead was intended to prohibit the pyramiding of late fees, that is, imposing a late fee for each month a payment is delinquent (179 Cal. App. 4th 581, 590-592).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.207

§ 206.207 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Made Accidental or Bona Fide Error in Computation [Civ. Code § 2983]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

BUYER MAY NOT RESCIND THE CONTRACT BECAUSE ANY VIOLATION OF THE REES-LEVERING ACT WAS THE RESULT OF AN ACCIDENTAL OR BONA FIDE ERROR IN COMPUTATION.

Seller Made Accidental or Bona Fide Error in Computation. Although a conditional sale contract is normally unenforceable when there has been a violation under Civil Code Section 2983, an exception applies when the violation occurred as the result of an accidental or bona fide error in computation (Civ. Code § 2983; Stasher v. Harger-Haldeman (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 23, 33, 22 Cal. Rptr. 657, 372 P.2d 649).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the buyer may rescind an unenforceable conditional sale contract. The ground set forth in this form is that the violation occurred as the result of an accidental or bona fide error in computation under Civ. Code § 2983.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.200 -206.204.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Seller Made Accidental or Bona Fide Error in Computation

The facts and procedural background of Stasher v. Harger-Haldeman (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 23, 22 Cal. Rptr. 657, 372 P.2d 649 , are discussed in § 206.206[3][a]. In Stasher, which was decided under a former version of Civ. Code § 2982 [now see Civ. Code § 2983], plaintiff buyer contended that the contract failed to recite correctly the number of installments required to pay the contract balance. The Court noted that the trial court found on substantial evidence that the total "39" contained in the "Schedule of Installments" clause was correct, and that the figure "36," referring to the number of installments in the "Statement of Transaction," was a typographical error. The Court held that such an error "of course" did not render the contract voidable at the instance of the buyer (58 Cal. 2d 23, 33) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.208

§ 206.208 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Seller Corrected Violation [Civ. Code § 2984]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

BUYER SHOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO RESCIND THE CONTRACT BECAUSE SELLER HAS CORRECTED THE CONTRACT TO CONFORM TO STATUTORY REQUIREMENTS.

Failure to Comply Has Been Corrected. Any failure to comply with any provision of the Rees-Levering Act may be corrected by the holder as prescribed in Civil Code Section 2984, with limitations relating to willful violations. A violation corrected as provided in that section may not be the basis of any recovery by the buyer or affect the enforceability of the contract by the holder, and may not be deemed to be a substantive change in the agreement of the parties (Civ. Code § 2984).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the buyer may rescind an unenforceable conditional sale contract. The ground set forth in this form is that the seller corrected the violations under Civ. Code § 2984.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts, such as the corrected copy of the contract delivered to the buyer, showing that the defect has been corrected.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.200 -206.204.

[b] Contract May Be Enforced Seller or Holder if Defect Is Corrected

If the seller, except as the result of an accidental or bona fide error in computation, violates any provision of Civ. Code § 2981.9 or 2982(a), (j), or (k), the conditional sale contract is not enforceable. After the violation is corrected, however, as provided in Civ. Code § 2984, the contract may be enforced [see Civ. Code § 2983].

If a holder acquires a conditional sale contract with knowledge of a violation of Civ. Code § 2981.9 or 2982(a), (j), or (k), the conditional sale contract may be enforced if the violation is corrected as provided in Civ. Code § 2984 [Civ. Code § 2983.1].

[c] When Correction Allowed

Any failure to comply with any provision of the Rees-Levering Act may be corrected by the holder, provided, however, that a willful violation may not be corrected unless it is a violation appearing on the face of the contract and is corrected within 30 days of the execution of the contract or within 20 days of its sale, assignment, or pledge, whichever is later. The 20-day period must commence with the initial sale, assignment, or pledge of the contract, and provided that any other violation appearing on the face of the contract may be corrected only within such time periods [Civ. Code § 2984].

[d] Correction Increasing Amount Owed

A correction that will increase the amount of the contract balance or the amount of any installment as such amounts appear on the conditional sale contract is not effective unless the buyer concurs in writing to the correction [Civ. Code § 2984].

[e] Time for Correction

If notified in writing by the buyer of such a failure to comply with any provision of the Rees-Levering Act, the correction must be made within 10 days of notice [Civ. Code § 2984].

[f] Delivery of Corrected Copy

When any provision of a conditional sale contract fails to comply with any provision of the Rees-Levering Act, the correction must be made by mailing or delivering a corrected copy of the contract to the buyer [Civ. Code § 2984].

[g] Improper Collections to Be Credited to Buyer

Any amount improperly collected by the holder from the buyer must be credited against the indebtedness evidenced by the contract or returned to the buyer [Civ. Code § 2984].

[h] Effect of Correction

A violation corrected as provided in Civ. Code § 2984 must not be the basis of any recovery by the buyer or affect the enforceability of the contract by the holder, and must not be deemed to be a substantive change in the agreement of the parties [Civ. Code § 2984].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.209

§ 206.209 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Holder Acquired Contract Without Actual Knowledge of Seller's Violation [Civ. Code § 2983.1].

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

BUYER SHOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO RESCIND THE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE HOLDER OF THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT ACQUIRED IT WITHOUT ACTUAL KNOWLEDGE OF THE VIOLATION BY THE SELLER.

Contract Is Enforceable by Holder Without Knowledge. If a holder acquires a conditional sale contract without actual knowledge of the violation by the seller of Civil Code Section 2981.9 or 2982(a), (j), or (k), the contract is valid and enforceable by such holder (Civ. Code § 2983.1).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the buyer may rescind an unenforceable conditional sale contract. The ground set forth in this form is that the holder acquired the contract without actual knowledge of the violation by the seller of Civ. Code § 2981.9 or 2982(a), (j), or (k) [see Civ. Code § 2983.1].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.200 -206.204.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.210

§ 206.210 Opposing Contention That Buyer May Rescind Contract [Civ. Code § 2983.1]--Assignee Is Bona Fide Purchaser, Assignee, or Pledgee for Value [Civ. Code § 2983.1].

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

BUYER SHOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO RESCIND THE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE HOLDER OF THE CONTRACT IS A BONA FIDE _____ [PURCHASER or ASSIGNEE or PLEDGEE] FOR VALUE.

Contract Is Enforceable by Bona Fide Assignee. Although a conditional sale contract is normally not enforceable if a holder acquires it with knowledge of a violation under Civil Code Section 2981.9 or 2982(a), (j), or (k), an exception applies when the holder is a bona fide purchaser, assignee, or pledgee for value (Civ. Code § 2983.1).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the buyer may rescind an unenforceable conditional sale contract. The ground set forth in this form is that the holder is a bona fide purchaser, assignee, or pledgee for value [see Civ. Code § 2983.1]. Presumably, Civ. Code § 2983.1 refers to enforceability by a subsequent taker, since a holder with knowledge cannot be a bona fide purchaser.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to rescind a motor vehicle sales contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.200 -206.204.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.211

§ 206.211 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Have Lien Canceled and Foreclosure Proceedings Enjoined--Lien Imposed on Impermissible Property [Civ. Code § 2984.2]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE BUYER IS ENTITLED TO HAVE THE _____ [identify interest, e.g., LIEN] CANCELED[, AND FORECLOSURE PROCEEDINGS AGAINST THE PROPERTY ENJOINED], BECAUSE THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT PROVIDES FOR THE INCLUSION OF TITLE TO OR A LIEN ON ANY PROPERTY OTHER THAN THAT ALLOWED UNDER CIVIL CODE SECTION 2984.2(a).

A. Contract Imposes Lien on Impermissible Property. No conditional sale contract, and no agreement between a seller and a buyer made in connection with a conditional sale contract, may provide for the inclusion of title to or a lien on any property other than those specified in Civil Code Section 2984.2(a)(1)-(4) (Civ. Code § 2984.2(a)).

[Optional] B. Buyer Is Entitled to Cancellation of Encumbrance on Impermissible Property. When a conditional sale contract falls within the coverage of the Rees-Levering Act, with the result that the security taken for the obligation created by the contract is invalid and unenforceable under Civil Code Section 2984.2, the buyer is entitled to a judgment canceling the security (see Thomas v. Wright (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 922-923, 98 Cal. Rptr. 874).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a buyer is entitled to a cancellation of title to or a lien on property provided for in the conditional sale contract in violation of Civ. Code § 2984.2(a).

Civ. Code § 2984.2(a) does not, however, apply to any agreement that meets the requirements of Civ. Code § 2982.5(b)

(governing loans by "supervised financial organizations"), and otherwise complies with the Rees-Levering Act. In addition, Civ. Code § 2984.2(a) does not apply to any agreement whereby a security interest is taken in real property on which a mobilehome is installed on a foundation system under Health & Safety Code § 18551 [Civ. Code § 2984.2(b)].

Before a contract may be determined to violate these provisions, a determination must be made that the Rees-Levering Act governs the transaction. For points and authorities supporting and opposing the contention that the Act applies to a transaction, see § 206.180 et seq.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to cancellation of title to or a lien on property provided for in the conditional sale contract in violation of Civ. Code § 2984.2(a).

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to facts showing that the conditional sale contract provides for inclusion of title to or lien on property other than that stated in Civ. Code § 2984.2(a).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Buyer Is Entitled to Cancellation of Encumbrance on Impermissible Property

The facts and procedural background of Thomas v. Wright (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 98 Cal. Rptr. 874 , are discussed in § 206.181[3][a]. In Thomas, the purchaser brought an action for cancellation and enjoining foreclosure of a deed of trust signed to secure obligations under a document entitled "Automobile Leasing Contract." Judgment for the defendant lessor was reversed on appeal. The court of appeal stated that the Rees-Levering Act prohibits the seller from taking as security for the contract balance the title to or a lien on any property other than the motor vehicle that is the subject matter of the conditional sale (21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 922) . The court concluded that the contract fell within the coverage of the Act, and thus the deed of trust that was taken by the finance company as security for the obligations created by the contract was invalid and unenforceable under the provisions of Civ. Code § 2984.2. The court concluded that buyer was entitled to a judgment canceling the deed of trust (21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 922-923) .

NOTE:

After the holding in Thomas, Civ. Code § 2981(a)(2) was amended, and Civ. Code § 2981.5 was added to the Rees-Levering Act, to exclude certain kinds of "open-ended" automobile leases from the coverage of the Act [see Stats. 1973, ch. 696, § 4 (changes intended to clarify and restate existing law in light of uncertainty as evidenced by Thomas); see also Budget Rent-A-Car of Southern Cal. v. Bergman (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264-265 n.2, 175 Cal. Rptr. 286)]. The point set forth in Paragraph B, however, does not appear to have been affected by the changes. The legislative intent as expressed above would apparently only affect the holding in the case that an open-end lease is a contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act [Thomas v. Wright (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 924, 98 Cal. Rptr. 874] . The holding that a collateral deed of trust is subject to the ban in the Rees-Levering Act would apparently be unaffected [see Thomas v. Wright (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 921, 922-923, 98 Cal. Rptr. 874] . Open-end leases are now covered by the Vehicle Leasing Act [see Civ. Code § 2985.7 et seq.].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Buyer Is Entitled to Cancellation of Encumbrance on Impermissible Property

The facts and procedural background of Hernandez v. Atlantic Finance Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 164 Cal. Rptr. 279 , are discussed in § 206.182[3][a]. In Hernandez, suit was brought on behalf of the general public to enjoin a finance company and a used automobile dealer from conducting illegal and unfair business practices, and from violating the Rees-Levering Act. The dealer was alleged to have assisted prospective purchasers in obtaining loans from the finance company. The finance company then wrote personal loans rather than conditional sale contracts, and took as security purchasers' furniture and other personal possessions, in addition to the automobiles being purchased (105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 68) . The court held that defendants' conduct constituted unlawful, unfair, and fraudulent business practice, and was enjoinable (105 Cal. App. 3d 65, 81) .

In Brewer v. Home Owners Auto Finance Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 337, 89 Cal. Rptr. 231 , the court of appeal affirmed summary judgment for buyers in an action for declaratory judgment and quiet title. The buyers entered into a conditional sale contract for purchase of an automobile with payment due in seven days. The contract was assigned to defendant two days later and amended to provide for five-year financing and an increased balance due. Concurrent with the execution of the amendment, plaintiffs gave a deed of trust to a parcel of improved real property to defendant. The trial court stated that the transaction between the buyer and seller-assignee was one that "philosophically and logically falls directly into the caldron of vicissitudes sought to be remedied by Civ. Code § 2984.2, and must fall in a motion for summary judgment" (10 Cal. App. 3d 337, 340) . The transaction did not legally avoid the effect of Civ. Code § 2984.2, but instead fell within the context of the section and at best was a subterfuge to illegally evade the section (10 Cal. App. 3d 337, 342) .

144 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
2. Rescission Of Contract Or Injunction Against Enforcement

20-206 California Points & Authorities §§ 206.212-206.229

[Reserved]

§§ 206.212[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.230

§ 206.230 Supporting Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Buyer Is in Default [Com. Code § 9615(d)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Identify party, e.g., SELLER] IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER THE BALANCE DUE UNDER THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE BUYER HAS DEFAULTED ON HIS/HER OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE CONTRACT AND A DEFICIENCY REMAINS FOR WHICH THE BUYER IS LIABLE.

A. Deficiency Judgment May Lie. A deficiency judgment may lie after a sale or other disposition of a motor vehicle if the sale or other disposition was in conformity with the provisions of the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act and the relevant provisions of Division 9 of the Commercial Code, including Commercial Code Sections 9610-9615 and 9626 (Civ. Code § 2983.8(b); Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 208-210, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 960 P.2d 1133).

B. Debtor Is Liable for Deficiency. If a security interest, under which a disposition of collateral is made, secures payment or performance of an obligation, then after payments are made and proceeds are applied as required by Commercial Code Section 9615(a) and permitted by Commercial Code Section 9615(c), the obligor is liable for any deficiency (Com. Code § 9615(d)(2)).

[Optional] C. Consumer Debtor Is Liable. In the case of a consumer transaction, the debtor or any secondary obligor is liable for any deficiency if (1) notice of the disposition of the collateral was duly given to the debtor and any secondary obligor and (2) the collection, enforcement, disposition, and acceptance by the secured party were conducted in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner (Com. Code § 9626(b)(2)(B), (C)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the seller is entitled to the balance due after repossession, notice of intention to sell and buyer's right of reinstatement, and sale resulting in a deficiency on the balance due under the contract. Optional Paragraph C may be included in a consumer transaction case.

This form may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the seller or holder is entitled to recover the contract price after default, repossession, and sale. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of his or her case; for example, facts establishing that:

- The notice required under Civ. Code § 2983.2(a) was given.

- The buyer failed to exercise the right to reinstate (or the basis for a reasonable and good faith determination that buyer was not entitled to the right to reinstate, as provided in Civ. Code § 2983.2(a));

- A sale was conducted in a commercially reasonable manner [see Com. Code § 9607(c)].

- Appropriate notice of a private or public sale was given [see Com. Code §§ 9611-9614; Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 214, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 960 P.2d 1133 ; see also Union Safe Deposit Bank v. Floyd (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 25, 32, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 (bank's notice was defective under former Com. Code § 9504(3) when it failed to state, expressly or impliedly, whether sale would be public or private)].

- A deficiency remained after disposition of the motor vehicle.

[b] Liability of Buyer for Deficiency Judgment

Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 2983.2 (see § 206.230[2][c]) or any other provision of law, no deficiency judgment will lie in any event after any sale or other disposition of a motor vehicle unless the court has determined that the sale or other disposition was in conformity with the provisions of the Rees-Levering Act and the relevant provisions of Division 9 of the Commercial Code, including Com. Code §§ 9610-9615 and 9626. The determination may be made on an affidavit unless the court requires a hearing in the particular case [Civ. Code § 2983.8(b)].

Under those Commercial Code provisions, in the case of a consumer transaction, the debtor or any secondary obligor is liable for any deficiency only if (1) notice of the disposition of the collateral was duly given to the debtor and any secondary obligor [see Com. Code §§ 9611-9614 (notice requirements)] and (2) the collection, enforcement, disposition, and acceptance by the secured party were conducted in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner [Com. Code § 9626(b)(2)(B), (C)]. In any other case, if the debtor has placed in issue the secured party's compliance with notice requirements, then unless the secured party proves compliance, the debtor or any secondary obligor has only limited liability for any deficiency [see Com. Code § 9626(a)]. For further discussion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions (Matthew Bender).

[c] Buyer's Right to Notice of Intention to Sell

Except when the motor vehicle has been seized by a public entity as described in Civ. Code § 2983.3(b)(6), the buyer is not liable for the deficiency unless the seller or holder gives the buyer 15 days written notice of his or her intention to sell the repossessed vehicle. This notice must be given within 60 days after repossession of the vehicle and must contain the information and notices set forth in Civ. Code § 2983.2(a)(1)-(9), including notice to the buyer of his or her right to redeem the automobile and reinstate the contract within 15 days of the giving of notice [Civ. Code § 2983.2(a)].

[d] Acceleration of Maturity During Period of Right to Reinstate

If after default by the buyer, the seller or holder repossesses or voluntarily accepts surrender of the motor vehicle, any person liable on the contract has a right to reinstate the contract. The seller or holder may not accelerate the maturity of any part or all of the contract prior to expiration of the right to reinstate, unless the seller or holder reasonably and in good faith determines that any of the circumstances stated in Civ. Code § 2983.3(b)(1)-(6) has occurred [Civ. Code § 2983.3(b)].

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.233 -206.236 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[f] Related Forms

For a complaint for a deficiency judgment by the seller of a motor vehicle or a holder against a buyer, see California Forms of Pleading & Practice, Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act, § 89.80 (Matthew Bender). For a complaint for a deficiency judgment, alleging compliance with notice requirements of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9101 et seq.], see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions (Matthew Bender). For a form for notification that collateral will be sold, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 42, Secured Transactions. (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Deficiency Judgment May Lie

In Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 914-915, 960 P.2d 1133 , the California Supreme Court held that to obtain a deficiency judgment, a secured creditor who sells a defaulting debtor's repossessed car must comply not only with all the provisions of the Rees-Levering Act, but also with any relevant provisions in Division 9 of the Commercial Code. In that case, the purchaser bought a car on credit from a dealer, who assigned the contract and the security agreement to Bank of America. When the purchaser failed to make several payments, the bank repossessed the car. The bank notified the purchaser that if she did not redeem the car or reinstate the contract within 15 days, it would sell the car. The bank's vendor advertised that it would conduct an open to the public sealed bid auto auction. It then showed the purchaser's car at several auctions. The car was sold at a sealed bid auction at less than its Blue Book value. The bank sought a deficiency judgment against the purchaser for the difference between what she still owed on the car and the resale price. The purchaser cross-complained for an injunction and restitution. She asserted that bank's practice of giving notice of a private sale but then, without complying with the notice requirements for a public sale, conducting a public sale, was contrary to the Commercial Code and was therefore an unfair business practice under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200, a claim that the trial court rejected but the Court of Appeal accepted. The Court of Appeal remanded the case to the trial court to rule on the purchaser's request for injunctive and restitutionary relief. The California Supreme Court granted the bank's petition for review (19 Cal. 4th 203, 207-208) .

The Court held that the secured creditor was required to comply with both the notice provisions of the Rees-Levering Act and former Division 9 of the Commercial Code (19 Cal. 4th 203, 210) . It reached its conclusion by interpreting the statutory requirements as follows. Civ. Code § 2983.2(a) requires a creditor to give the debtor written notice of its intent to dispose of a repossessed car. It specifies that except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code § 2983.8, the debtor will be liable for any deficiency after disposition of the repossessed motor vehicle if the creditor gives the debtor requisite timely notice and provides statutorily specified information. Civ. Code § 2983.8 provides that no deficiency judgment will lie after any sale or other disposition of a motor vehicle unless the court has determined that the sale or other disposition was in conformity with the provisions of both the Rees-Levering Act and the relevant provisions of Division 9 of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 9101 et seq.], including provisions governing notice and the manner of disposition [see former Com. Code § 9504 (now see Com. Code §§ 9611-9615 and 9626)] (19 Cal. 4th 203, 208-209) .

In Lallana, the debtor's car was sold at a public auction, which the Court concluded was a public sale (19 Cal. 4th 203, 210-212) . The court determined that the secured creditor gave proper notice pursuant to the Rees-Levering Act (19 Cal. 4th 203, 208) but because it failed to give the debtor proper notice of a public sale pursuant to former Com. Code § 9504(3) (notice of both the time and place of sale), it was precluded from obtaining a deficiency judgment (19 Cal. 4th 203, 214-215) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.231

§ 206.231 Supporting Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller Is Not Required to Allege Compliance With Every Provision of Act

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Identify party, e.g., SELLER] IS NOT REQUIRED TO ALLEGE COMPLIANCE SPECIFICALLY UNDER EVERY APPLICABLE SECTION OF THE REES-LEVERING ACT.

Seller or Holder Not Required to Allege Specific Compliance With All Sections of Act. A party bringing an action to recover a deficiency following default and sale under a conditional sale contract is not required to allege compliance specifically with each and every applicable section of the Rees-Levering Act (Jack Heskett Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. v. Metcalf (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 43).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the seller is entitled to the balance due after repossession and sale, when the buyer objects on the ground that the seller has failed to sufficiently allege compliance under the Rees-Levering Act.

From a tactical point of view, these points and authorities would normally be raised after the buyer has raised an objection that the seller has inadequately alleged compliance with the Act.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the seller or holder is entitled to recover the contract price after default, repossession, and sale. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts establishing that the seller has at least alleged compliance with the statutory scheme [see Jack Heskett Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. v. Metcalf (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 43, 204 Cal. Rptr. 355] .

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.233 -206.235 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Seller or Holder Not Required to Allege Specific Compliance With All Sections of Act

In Jack Heskett Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. v. Metcalf (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 204 Cal. Rptr. 355 , plaintiff automobile dealer brought an action against defendant buyer alleging causes of action for deficiency and accounting. Defendant had defaulted, and the vehicle was surrendered and then sold, leaving a deficiency on the balance due on the contract. Plaintiff filed an amended complaint to substitute a corporate entity for an individual. Defendant demurred, claiming the statute of limitations had run on the substituted plaintiff and plaintiff failed to plead compliance with Civ. Code § 2983.2 (governing notice to buyer of intention to sell repossessed vehicle). The trial court sustained defendant's demurrer without leave to amend and entered judgment accordingly. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. With regard to the issue of whether plaintiff had sufficiently pleaded compliance with Civ. Code § 2983.2, the court noted that the amended complaint specifically alleged compliance with "all applicable requirements of section 2981 et seq. of the Civil Code." The court stated that it was unaware of any authority that supports the proposition that a complaint must allege compliance specifically with each and every applicable section of a statutory scheme (158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 43) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.232

§ 206.232 Supporting Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies [Com. Code § 2725]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE FOUR-YEAR STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS UNDER COMMERCIAL CODE SECTION 2725 APPLIES IN AN ACTION FOR A DEFICIENCY JUDGMENT ON A CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT.

Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies. When a plaintiff's action is one seeking a deficiency judgment on a conditional sale contract, the four-year limitations period contained in Commercial Code Section 2725 is applicable (Jack Heskett Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. v. Metcalf (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 42-43, 204 Cal. Rptr. 355).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the seller is entitled to the balance due after repossession and sale, when the buyer objects on the ground that the statute of limitations has run.

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the seller is entitled to the balance due after repossession, notice of intention to sell and buyer's right of reinstatement (or holder's reasonable and good faith determination that buyer lacks that right), and sale, when a deficiency remains.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the seller or holder is entitled to recover the contract price after default, repossession, and sale. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel refer to facts establishing the action is one for recovery of a deficiency judgment on a conditional sale contract, and that the four-year limitation period has not elapsed in the action.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.233 -206.235 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[c] Four-Year Statute of Limitations in Contracts for Sale

An action for breach of any contract for sale must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued. By the original agreement, the parties may reduce the period of limitation to not less than one year, but may not extend it [Com. Code § 2725(1)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Statute of Limitations Applies

The facts and procedural background of Jack Heskett Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. v. Metcalf (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 204 Cal. Rptr. 355 , are discussed in § 206.231[3][a]. In Metcalf, defendant buyer relied on Stone v. James (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 738, 740, 299 P.2d 305 , to contend that the applicable period in an action for a deficiency judgment on a conditional sale contract is one year. The court of appeal distinguished Stone on the ground that that case involved an action to recover unearned finance charges from the seller for the seller's failure to refund those charges when the buyer paid off the balance due on an automobile sale contract prior to maturity, and therefore sought to enforce a penalty or forfeiture. The instant case, however, had nothing to do with a forfeiture or penalty. Rather, the court concluded, the instant case was consistent with Massey-Ferguson Credit Corp. v. Casaulong (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 1024, 1028, 133 Cal. Rptr. 497 , which held that an action for a deficiency judgment was barred by the four-year limitations period contained in Com. Code § 2725 (158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 42) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.233

§ 206.233 Opposing Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller May Not Accelerate Maturity [Civ. Code § 2983.3(a)].

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Identify party, e.g., SELLER] IS NOT ENTITLED TO THE BALANCE ON THE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE BUYER HAS NOT DEFAULTED AND THE OBLIGATION HAS NOT YET MATURED.

Seller May Not Accelerate Maturity. In the absence of default in the performance of any of the buyer's obligations under the contract, the seller or holder may not accelerate the maturity of any part or all of the amount due thereunder or repossess the motor vehicle (Civ. Code § 2983.3(a)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the seller may recover the amount due on the contract. The ground set forth in the form is that the buyer has not defaulted and the obligation has not yet matured [Civ. Code § 2983.3(a)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the seller is entitled to the balance due on the contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should refer to facts indicating that the buyer is not in default and that the seller is accelerating the maturity of the obligation.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.230 -206.232.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.234

§ 206.234 Opposing Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller Has Forfeited Right to Deficiency by Unjustifiable Denial of Reinstatement [Civ. Code § 2983.3(e)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Identify party, e.g., SELLER] MAY NOT RECOVER ANY DEFICIENCY ON THE TOTAL AMOUNT DUE UNDER THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS FORFEITED ANY SUCH RIGHT BY UNJUSTIFIABLY DENYING THE BUYER OF HIS/HER RIGHT TO REINSTATE THE CONTRACT.

A. Person Liable on Contract Has Right to Reinstate. If after default by the buyer, the seller or holder repossesses or voluntarily accepts surrender of the motor vehicle, any person liable on the contract has a right to reinstate the contract, and the seller or holder is not permitted to accelerate the maturity of any part or all of the contract prior to expiration of the right to reinstate, unless the seller or holder reasonably and in good faith determines that any of circumstances stated in Civil Code Section 2983.3(b)(1)-(6) has occurred (Civ. Code § 2983.3(b)).

[Optional] B. Notices Violated Notice Provisions. Except as otherwise provided in Civil Code Section 2983.8, prohibiting deficiency judgments in mobilehome sales, persons liable on a conditional sale contract may be liable for any deficiency after disposition of the repossessed or surrendered motor vehicle only if the notice prescribed by Civil Code Section 2983.2 is given within 60 days of repossession or surrender and does all of those things required under Civil Code Section 2983.2(a)(1)-(6) (Civ. Code § 2983.2(a); Eldorado Bank v. Lytle (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17, 18-19 n.3 , 195 Cal. Rptr. 499).

C. Seller Has Burden of Proof That Denial of Reinstatement Was Justified. If the seller or holder denies the right to reinstatement under Civil Code Section 2983.3(b) or (d)(4), the seller or holder has the burden of proving that the denial was justified in that it was reasonable and made in good faith (Civ. Code § 2983.3(e)).

D. Seller Has Forfeited Right to Deficiency by Failing to Sustain Burden. If the seller or holder fails to sustain the burden of proof, the seller or holder is not entitled to a deficiency[, but it shall not be presumed that the buyer is entitled to damages by reason of the failure of the seller or holder to sustain the burden of proof] (Civ. Code § 2983.3(e)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the seller may recover the amount due on the contract. The ground set forth in the form is that the seller has forfeited his or her right to deficiency by failing to sustain the burden of proving that the denial was justified in that it was reasonable and made in good faith, as required under Civ. Code § 2983.3(e).

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the seller is entitled to the balance due on the contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to facts that demonstrate that the buyer had a right to reinstate, that the seller denied that right, and that the seller has failed to satisfy the burden of proving that the denial was justified under Civ. Code § 2983.3(e).

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.230 -206.232.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notices Violated Notice Provisions

The facts and procedural background of Eldorado Bank v. Lytle (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17 , 195 Cal. Rptr. 499 , are discussed in § 206.182[3][d]. In Eldorado Bank, the parties stipulated that the notices respecting repossession and sale of a motorhome that were sent to respondents did not comply with Civ. Code § 2983.2(a) of the Rees-Levering Act. Since the notices failed to comply with the Act, defendant bank, which held the contract, was not entitled to a deficiency, and the trial court awarded plaintiff buyer's attorney's fees (147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17, 19) . After determining that the contract was a conditional sale contract and therefore governed by the Rees-Levering Act, because the transaction involved a "seller-assisted loan," the appellate department of the superior court affirmed the judgment (147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 17, 21-22) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.235

§ 206.235 Opposing Contention That Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller's Assignee Is Subject to Equities and Defenses of Buyer [Civ. Code § 2983.5(a)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE HOLDER OF THE CONDITIONAL SALES CONTRACT, AS ASSIGNEE OF THE SELLER, MAY NOT NOT RECOVER ANY DEFICIENCY ON THE TOTAL AMOUNT DUE UNDER THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE HE/SHE IS SUBJECT TO ALL EQUITIES AND DEFENSES THAT THE BUYER HAS AGAINST THE SELLER.

A. Seller's Assignee Is Subject to Equities and Defenses of Buyer. An assignee of the seller's right is subject to all equities and defenses of the buyer against the seller, notwithstanding an agreement to the contrary, although the assignee's liability may not exceed the amount of the debt owing to the assignee at the time of the assignment (Civ. Code § 2983.5(a)).

B. Particular Equities and Defenses Applicable. _____ [Here, and in subsequent paragraphs as appropriate, set forth the equities and defenses of the buyer against the seller, which apply to the assignee].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention that the holder may recover the amount due on the contract, when the holder is an assignee of the seller. The ground set forth in the form is that the assignee is subject to the equities and defenses of the buyer against the seller under Civ. Code § 2983.5(a). The assignee's liability, however, may not exceed the amount of the debt owing to the assignee at the time of the assignment [Civ. Code § 2983.5(a)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the seller is entitled to the balance due on the contract. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to particular equities and defenses that the buyer has against the seller, and identify the facts that give rise to those assertions.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 206.230 -206.232.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.236

§ 206.236 Opposing Contention that Seller or Holder Is Due Balance on Contract--Seller Has Not Complied With Applicable Notice Provisions [Com. Code § 9611(b), (c)(1), (d)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief or in jury instructions.]

_____ [Identify party, e.g., SELLER] MAY NOT RECOVER ANY DEFICIENCY ON THE TOTAL AMOUNT DUE UNDER THE CONDITIONAL SALE CONTRACT BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS FORFEITED THAT RIGHT BY FAILING TO PROVIDE THE BUYER WITH APPROPRIATE NOTICE AS REQUIRED BY STATUTE

A. Failure to Comply With Notice Requirements. A secured creditor who sells a defaulting debtor's repossessed car may obtain a deficiency judgment only after compliance with the notice provisions of both the Rees-Levering Act and Division 9 of the Commercial Code (Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 210).

B. Reasonable Notice Is Required. When collateral is not perishable, does not threaten to decline speedily in value, and is not of a type customarily sold on a recognized market, a secured party that disposes of the collateral is required to send to the debtor a reasonable authenticated notification of disposition (Com. Code § 9611(b), (c)(1), (d)).

[Optional] C. Consumer Debtor Is Not Liable. In the case of a consumer transaction, the debtor is not liable for any deficiency unless notice of the disposition of the collateral was duly given to the debtor pursuant to Commercial Code Sections 9611-9614 (Com. Code § 9626(b)(2)(B)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities are for use in opposing the contention that the seller may recover the amount due on the contract. The ground for opposition is that the seller has forfeited his or her right to a deficiency judgment by failing to provide reasonable notice of disposition of the collateral. Optional Paragraph C may be included in a consumer transaction case.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and points of law stated.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the seller is entitled to the balance due on the contract.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Comply With Notice Requirements

The facts and procedural background of Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 960 P.2d 1133 , are discussed in § 206.230[3][a]. In Lallana, the debtor's car was sold at a public auction, which the California Supreme Court concluded was a public sale (19 Cal. 4th 203, 210-212) . The Court determined that the secured creditor gave proper notice pursuant to the Rees-Levering Act [see Civ. Code § 2983.2] (19 Cal. 4th 203, 208) . The Court, however, held that to obtain a deficiency judgment, a secured creditor who sells a defaulting debtor's repossessed car must comply not only with all the provisions of the Rees-Levering Act, but also with any relevant provisions in Division 9 of the Commercial Code (19 Cal. 4th 203, 210) . Because the creditor failed to give the debtor proper notice of a public sale pursuant to former Com. Code § 9504(3) (notice of both the time and place of sale), it was precluded from obtaining a deficiency judgment (19 Cal. 4th 203, 214-215) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Comply With Notice Requirements

Cerritos Valley Bank v. Stirling (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 432 was an action on a guaranty. The guarantor moved for summary judgment on the basis that the secured creditor's failure to give him post-default notice of the sale of the collateral barred its claim for a deficiency judgment. The trial court found that the guarantor's pre-default waiver of the requirement of notice was void as a matter of law, and granted summary judgment to the guarantor. The court of appeal affirmed. The guarantor relied on former Com. Code § 9504(3), which required the secured party to give notice of sale to the debtor (now see Com. Code § 9611(b)), and former Com. Code § 9501, which barred pre-default waiver of the right to notice (now see Com. Code § 9602(7)). The court of appeal noted that the protections of former Com. Code § 9504 were to be strictly construed and could not be waived by the debtor before the default. Furthermore, it is the prevailing view in California that a guarantor comes within the statutory definition of "debtor"; thus, the guarantor was entitled to notice (81 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1113-1114) . The court therefore held that the guarantor's waiver of notice in the guaranty was void as a matter of law (81 Cal. App. 4th 1108, 1114-1115) .

In Union Safe Deposit Bank v. Floyd (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 25, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36 , the court of appeal held that a bank's notice was defective in failing to state, expressly or implicitly, whether the sale would be public or private, and therefore it failed to comply with the specific notice requirements of former Com. Code § 9504(3) (now see Com. Code §§ 9611-9614). A general partnership borrowed funds from the bank and issued an installment note signed by the partners. The bank took a security interest in a helicopter owned by the partnership. The loan went into default, and the bank repossessed the helicopter. The bank sent a notice to the partnership and each partner, which stated in part: "Notice Is Hereby Given of the undersigned's intent to sell the repossessed motor vehicle at the expiration of 5 days from the date this notice was mailed ... and 'by private or public sale whichever deems [sic] necessary at redemption address at close of business day.' " The helicopter ultimately was sold for far less than the loan amount, and the bank sued for breach of the installment note. The jury found that the helicopter had been sold in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner. The trial court entered a deficiency judgment in favor of the bank (76 Cal. App. 4th 25, 27-28) . On appeal, the court examined the purpose of former Com. Code § 9504(3). Citing Bank of America v. Lallana (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 203, 214, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910, 960 P.2d 1133 (see § 206.236[3][a]), the court stated that the purpose of that section was to give the debtor an opportunity to discharge the debt and redeem the collateral, produce another purchaser, or see that the sale is conducted in a commercially reasonable manner (76 Cal. App. 4th 25, 29) . The court found that the content of the notice was defective as it did not contain sufficient information to ascertain with specificity the type of sale the bank intended to undertake. The language of the notice arguably suggested either a public or a private sale. It specified the time and place of a possible public sale, but also might have been read to indicate the date after which a private sale would take place. The court noted that California law mandated strict compliance with the notice requirements in former Com. Code § 9504. The law did not permit the creditor to leave the debtor guessing regarding the type of sale contemplated (76 Cal. App. 4th 25, 29-31) . The court therefore concluded that the notice was defective, and the bank was precluded from obtaining a deficiency judgment (76 Cal. App. 4th 25, 32) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.237

§ 206.237 Supporting Contention That Seller Is Liable for Conversion--Seller Has Conducted Unauthorized Sale or Has Unjustifiably Refused to Turn Over Vehicle to Buyer

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

SELLER IS LIABLE FOR CONVERSION BECAUSE BUYER HAS A RIGHT TO REINSTATE THE CONTRACT AND _____ [SELLER HAS CONDUCTED AN UNAUTHORIZED SALE or BUYER HAS DEMANDED THAT SELLER TURN OVER POSSESSION OF THE VEHICLE AND SELLER HAS UNJUSTIFIABLY REFUSED TO DO SO].

A. Forfeiture of Seller's Right to Deficiency Is Not Buyer's Exclusive Remedy. When a buyer has a right to the notice set forth in Civil Code Section 2983.2, and to reinstate a conditional sale contract in the manner outlined in Civil Code Section 2983.3, depriving the noncomplying seller of a deficiency judgment is not the buyer's only remedy (Cerra v. Blackstone (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 609, 218 Cal. Rptr. 15).

B. Buyer May Assert Cause of Action for Conversion. Once it is determined that a buyer has a right to reinstate the conditional sale contract, the buyer has a right to possession of the vehicle and standing to bring conversion (Cerra v. Blackstone (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 609, 218 Cal. Rptr. 15).

C. Unauthorized Sale and Unjustified Refusal to Turn Over Possession Constitute Conversion. Both an unauthorized sale and an unjustified refusal to turn over possession on demand, even when possession by the withholder was originally obtained lawfully, constitute conversion (Cerra v. Blackstone (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 609, 218 Cal. Rptr. 15).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the buyer may maintain an action for conversion, after establishing that the buyer has been deprived of his or her right of reinstatement of the conditional sale contract [see Civ. Code § 3336 (detriment presumed caused by wrongful conversion of personal property)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to bring an action for conversion. For example, the form may be used to oppose a general demurrer on the ground that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action, or to oppose a defendant's motion for summary judgment or adjudication of the cause of action of conversion. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to facts that demonstrate that the buyer had a right to reinstate, that the seller denied that right, and that the seller either has conducted an unauthorized sale of the motor vehicle or has unjustifiably refused to turn over possession on the buyer's demand.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of complaint for damages based on conversion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 150, Conversion (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For a form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting a contention that defendant has converted plaintiff's personal property generally, see Ch. 51, Conversion .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Forfeiture of Seller's Right to Deficiency Is Not Buyer's Exclusive Remedy

Cerra v. Blackstone (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 218 Cal. Rptr. 15 , involved an action for conversion arising out of the repossession and sale of a vehicle in a transaction that was subject to the Rees-Levering Act. Defendant automobile dealer lawfully repossessed a Chevrolet truck sold to plaintiffs after plaintiffs defaulted on one or more installments due under a conditional sale contract. After repossession, the dealer gave a notice of intent to sell the vehicle that, in the court of appeal's words, "did not even come close to complying with Civ. Code § 2983.2." Plaintiffs alleged that after they received the notice, they offered to bring the payments current and demanded restoration of the truck, but the dealer rejected the offer and insisted on payoff of the entire loan. Defendant moved for summary judgment, asserting that plaintiffs had no claim for conversion even if the facts asserted were true. The trial court entered summary judgment in favor of defendant and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment. The court noted that while the motion was one for summary judgment, in essence it had the purpose and effect of a general demurrer. On appeal, the dealer contended that a repossessing conditional seller of a vehicle subject to the Rees-Levering Act suffers one and only one penalty when he or she fails to give the notice required by Civ. Code § 2983.2: that the seller may not collect a deficiency (172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 607) . After reviewing the Legislature's objective to provide a more comprehensive protection for the unsophisticated motor vehicle consumer under the Rees-Levering Act (172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 608) , the court held that a buyer has a right to the notice set forth in Civ. Code § 2983.2 and, subject to the exceptions in Civ. Code § 2983.3(b), to reinstate the contract in the manner outlined in Civ. Code § 2983.3. Depriving the noncomplying seller of a deficiency judgment is not the buyer's only remedy (172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 609) .

[b] Buyer May Assert Cause of Action for Conversion

The facts and procedural background of Cerra v. Blackstone (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 218 Cal. Rptr. 15 , are discussed under § 206.237[3][a]. In Cerra, the court of appeal stated that once it is determined that the buyer has a right to reinstate the conditional sale contract, the buyer has a right to possession of the vehicle and standing to bring conversion (172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 609) .

[c] Unauthorized Sale and Unjustified Refusal to Turn Over Possession Constitute Conversion

The facts and procedural background of Cerra v. Blackstone (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 218 Cal. Rptr. 15 , are discussed under § 206.237[3][a]. In Cerra, the court of appeal stated that unjustified refusal to turn over possession on demand constitutes conversion even when possession by the withholder was originally obtained lawfully, and of course so does an unauthorized sale (172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 609) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.238

§ 206.238 Supporting Contention That Buyer Is Entitled to Three Times Amount of Finance Charges Paid for Prepayment Penalty Violation [Civ. Code § 2983.1].

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

BUYER IS ENTITLED TO RECOVER FROM THE _____ [identify party, e.g., SELLER] THREE TIMES THE AMOUNT OF FINANCE CHARGES PAID TO HIM/HER BECAUSE _____ [identify party, e.g., SELLER] HAS VIOLATED THE PROHIBITIONS AGAINST PREPAYMENT PENALTIES UNDER THE REES-LEVERING ACT.

Buyer May Recover Three Times Amount of Finance Charges Paid. If the seller or holder of a conditional sale contract, except as the result of an accidental or bona fide error of computation, violates any provision of Civil Code Section 2982(l), the buyer may recover from such person three times the amount of any finance charge paid to that person (Civ. Code § 2983.1).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the buyer may recover from seller three times the amount of finance charges paid to the seller or the holder of the conditional sale contract, under Civ. Code § 2983.1.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the buyer is entitled to triple amount of finance charges paid seller, as provided in Civ. Code § 2983.1. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to facts that show how the conditional sale contract violates Civ. Code § 2982(l).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 206 SALES
PART II. FORMS
D. Automobile Sales Finance
3. Enforcement Of Conditional Sale Contract

20-206 California Points & Authorities § 206.239

§ 206.239 Supporting Contention That Party Is Entitled to Attorney's Fees as Prevailing Party [Civ. Code § 2983.4]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Identify party, e.g, SELLER] IS ENTITLED TO AN AWARD OF REASONABLE ATTORNEY'S FEES AND COSTS BECAUSE HE/SHE IS THE PREVAILING PARTY IN AN ACTION ON A _____ [CONTRACT or PURCHASE ORDER] SUBJECT TO THE PROVISIONS OF THE REES-LEVERING ACT.

A. Party Entitled to Attorney's Fees and Costs. Reasonable attorney's fees and costs shall be awarded to the prevailing party in any action on a contract or purchase order subject to the provisions of the Rees-Levering Act regardless of whether the action is instituted by the seller, holder, or buyer [Civ. Code § 2983.4].

[Optional] B. When Defendant Deemed Prevailing Party. When the defendant alleges in his or her answer that he or she tendered to the plaintiff the full amount to which he or she was entitled, and thereon deposits in court, for the plaintiff, the amount so tendered, and the allegation is found to be true, the defendant is deemed to be a prevailing party within the meaning of Civil Code Section 2983.4 (Civ. Code § 2983.4).

[Optional] C. Attorney's Fees Available to Prevailing Party in Action Seeking Restitution After Prior Rescission. Although a motor vehicle conditional sale contract is extinguished by rescission, a later action seeking restitution based on the prior rescission nevertheless involves that contract and the prevailing parties are entitled to attorney's fees (Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 378-379, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749).

[Optional] D. Buyer Who Prevails on Cross Complaint Against Seller Is Entitled to Attorney's Fees. When a conditional seller's assignee sues the buyer of the vehicle for a deficiency judgment and the buyer prevails on a cross complaint against the seller, the buyer is entitled to attorney's fees as a prevailing party pursuant to Civil Code Section 2983.4 (Golden West Credit Corp. v. Maury (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 913, 916 , 75 Cal. Rptr. 757).

[Optional] E. Defendant in Deficiency Action Can Be Prevailing Party When Plaintiff Has Voluntarily Dismissed Action Without Prejudice. The defendant in a deficiency action brought under the Rees-Levering Act can be the prevailing party for purposes of awarding attorney fees pursuant to the Act when the plaintiff has voluntarily dismissed the underlying contract-based action without prejudice prior to trial (Damian v. Tamondong (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1115, 1129-1130, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the party is entitled to an award of reasonable attorney's fees and costs as the prevailing party under Civ. Code § 2983.4.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue of whether or not the party is entitled to an award of reasonable attorney's fees and costs. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should refer to facts that indicate that there was an action on a contract or purchase order subject to the provisions of the Rees-Levering Act, and that the party was a prevailing party in the action, as provided in Civ. Code § 2983.4 [see, e.g., Graciano v. Robinson Ford Sales, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 140, 149-164, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 273 (how to determine which party has prevailed, and how to compute amount of fees to which that party is entitled)].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion and forms relating to recovery of attorney's fees generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting motions to award or establish entitlement to attorney's fees generally, see Ch. 60, Costs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Attorney's Fees Available to Prevailing Party in Action Seeking Restitution After Prior Rescission

Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749 , involved an action by a buyer against an automobile dealer for restitution based on rescission of a motor vehicle conditional sale contract, and attorney's fees. Judgment was entered in favor of plaintiffs and against defendant, but failed to include an award of attorney's fees. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the judgment insofar as it failed to include an award of attorney's fees. The court stated that inasmuch as Civ. Code § 1811.1, governing attorney's fees and court costs, provides for the recovery of attorney's fees in language identical in all material respects with the language of Civ. Code § 2983.4, the phrase "on a contract" should be given the same meaning in both statutes. The legislative history of § 1811.1 provides for liberal interpretation of the phrase, and the assembly subcommittee that recommended the Unruh Act clearly intended no limitation on the type of action covered by the section (47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 378) . A contract is extinguished by its rescission, and the instant action sought restitution based on plaintiff's prior rescission of the motor vehicle conditional sale contract. The action nevertheless involved that contract, which was subject to the provisions of the Rees-Levering Act. Therefore, plaintiffs, as prevailing parties, were entitled to attorney's fees (47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 378-379) .

[b] Buyer Who Prevails on Cross Complaint Against Seller Is Entitled to Attorney's Fees

Golden West Credit Corp. v. Maury (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 913 , 75 Cal. Rptr. 757 , involved an action by an assignee of a conditional sale contract for a motor vehicle against the buyer for a deficiency, and a cross complaint by the buyer against the assignor-seller for attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 2983.4. The trial court granted judgment for the cross complainant and the cross defendant appealed.

The appellate department of the superior court affirmed. The court stated that an interpretation that would exempt the original seller from liability to the "prevailing party" would allow a culpable seller to escape responsibility for the cost of litigation by assigning his or her claim at the last minute for purpose of collection to a known insolvent. Thus, the court affirmed the judgment (270 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 913, 916) .

[c] Defendant in Deficiency Action Can Be Prevailing Party When Plaintiff Has Voluntarily Dismissed Action Without Prejudice

In Damian v. Tamondong (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1115, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262 , the buyer purchased a car pursuant to a contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act. The seller's assignee filed a complaint in municipal court to collect a deficiency judgment after the bank repossessed and sold the vehicle. The buyer's attorney spent approximately 54 hours actively defending the deficiency action. The seller's assignee then voluntarily dismissed the action on the eve of trial. The buyer filed a motion for attorney fees and costs, which the assignee opposed. The trial court denied the motion and the buyer appealed to the appellate department of the superior court. The appellate department vacated the trial court's order and remanded for a determination, using a pragmatic approach based on an analysis of the relevant facts at the trial level, whether the buyer was the "prevailing party" in the action (65 Cal. App. 4th 1115, 1118-1119) .

The court of appeal was thus presented with an issue of first impression: whether the defendant in a deficiency action brought under the Rees-Levering Act can be the prevailing party for purposes of awarding attorney fees pursuant to Civ. Code § 2983.4 when, prior to trial, the plaintiff has voluntarily dismissed the underlying contract-based action without prejudice. Because neither the Rees-Levering Act nor Civ. Code § 2983.4 defines the term "prevailing party," the respondent urged the court to affirm the municipal court's order denying attorney fees based on Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2), which provides that there is no prevailing party for purposes of that section when an action has been voluntarily dismissed. The court, however, reviewed the legislative history of Civ. Code §§ 1717 and 2983.4 and held that Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2) does not bar a statutory award of attorney fees under Civ. Code § 2983.4 for a defendant in whose favor a dismissal has been entered in an action on a contract subject to the Rees-Levering Act (65 Cal. App. 4th 1115, 1120-1128) . It did not, however, decide whether the buyer was the prevailing party in this case. The court merely stated that the issue of whether a voluntary dismissal was really entered 'in favor" of the defendant can arise in a variety of procedural settings, may involve questions of fact, and is a matter best left to the discretion of the trial court. The court of appeal therefore affirmed the judgment of the appellate department and remanded for a determination on the merits (65 Cal. App. 4th 1115, 1129-1130) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS

20-207 California Points & Authorities 207.syn

§ 207.syn Synopsis to Chapter 207: SANCTIONS

§ 207.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 207.02 Governing Law

§ 207.03 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 207.04 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

§ 207.05 Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§§ 207.06-207.19 [Reserved]

§ 207.20 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--General Authority for Motion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Effective Date of Sanctions Statute

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority to Award Monetary Sanctions Consisting of Reasonable Expenses, Including Attorney's Fees

[b] "Actions or Tactics" Defined

[c] "Frivolous" Defined

[d] Sanctions May Be Awarded in Favor of Pro Se Litigant

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority to Award Monetary Sanctions Consisting of Reasonable Expenses, Including Attorney's Fees

[b] "Actions or Tactics" Defined

§ 207.21 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Sufficient Nexus Between Offending Action and Expenses Incurred

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Causal Connection

[b] Action's Lack of Merit Is Sufficient Basis for Imposition of Sanctions

§ 207.22 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Expenses May Be Awarded for Entire Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Actions or Tactics" Includes Entire Action

§ 207.23 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Sanctions for Defense of Action Permitted

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Actions or Tactics" Includes Defenses

§ 207.24 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Sanctions Permitted for Some, but Not All, Causes of Action

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Partially Frivolous Complaint

§ 207.25 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Liability for Sanctions Not Precluded by Existence of Other Remedies for Misconduct

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability Not Exclusive

§ 207.26 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. §

128.5]--Punitive Damages May Be Awarded in Action by Convicted Felon Against Victim Arising Out of Felony

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 207.27 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Expenses Other Than Costs and Attorney's Fees Available

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Expenses Are Not Limited to Costs and Attorney's Fees

§ 207.28 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--General Authority for Motion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Sanctions Available Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 Are Not Limited to Monetary Sanctions

[d] Notice and Opportunity to Respond

[e] Sanctions for Discovery Violations Are Not Available Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7

[f] Effective Date

[g] Relevance of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11

[h] Opposing Points and Authorities

[i] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Certification After Reasonable Inquiry

§ 207.29 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Notice of Corrective Action Not Given Within Safe Harbor Period

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice of Corrective Action Must Be Given Within "Safe Harbor" Period

§ 207.30 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Paper Filed for Improper Purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Paper Presented for Improper Purpose

§ 207.31 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Paper Contains Legal Contentions Not Warranted by Existing Law or Nonfrivolous Argument for Change in Existing Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Legal Contentions Are Not Warranted by Existing Law or Nonfrivolous Argument for Change in Existing Law

§ 207.32 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Paper Contains Allegations or Factual Contentions Without Evidentiary Support [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Factual Contentions Lacking Sufficient Evidentiary Support

§ 207.33 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Paper Contains Denials of Factual Contentions Not Warranted by Evidence or Not Reasonably Based on Lack of Information or Belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 207.34 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Punitive Damages May Be Awarded in Action by Convicted Felon Against Victim Arising Out of Felony [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(f)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 207.34A Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Juvenile Court Referee May Impose Sanctions in Juvenile Court Dependency Proceedings

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Juvenile Court May Impose Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7

§ 207.35 Supporting Countermotion for Sanctions--Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 Sanctions Motion Has an Improper Purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(h)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 207.36 Supporting Motion to Impose Monetary Sanction for Violation of Court Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Additional Authorities

§ 207.37 Supporting Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule [Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2; Gov. Code § 68608(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] No Independent Power to Impose Sanction on Innocent Party Under Gov. Code § 68608(b)

[c] Argument

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 207.38 Supporting Motion to Recover Defense Costs in Action Under Tort Claims Act or for Indemnity or

Contribution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038]--Defense Costs May be Awarded If Plaintiff Lacked Either Reasonable Cause or Good Faith

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority to Award Defense Costs Under California Tort Claims Act

[b] Defense Costs Available If Either Reasonable Cause or Good Faith Lacking

§ 207.39 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Action Taken in Good Faith and Not Frivolous

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[d] Effective Dates

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limit on Power to Award Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5

[b] Action's Lack of Merit as Insufficient Basis Alone for Imposition of Sanctions

[c] Frivolous Action Is One Prosecuted for Improper Motive or Indisputably Without Merit

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action's Lack of Merit as Insufficient Basis Alone for Imposition of Sanctions

§ 207.40 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Requirements of Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard Not Met

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard Required

[b] Written Notice Required

[c] Due Process Requires Adequate Notice

[d] Ex Parte Imposition of Sanctions Offends Due Process

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard Required

[b] Due Process Requires Adequate Notice

§ 207.41 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Sanctions Authorized Only Against Party or Party's Attorney in Favor of Opposing Party or Opposing Party's Attorney

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Award of Sanctions Against Attorney of Nonparty Improper

[b] Award of Sanctions Against Attorney Associated With Party Through Separate Litigation in Foreign Jurisdiction Improper

§ 207.42 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Mere Filing of Complaint Without Service on Other Party Is Not Basis for Sanctions

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 207.43 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Attorney or Unrepresented Party Conducted Reasonable Inquiry Under Circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inquiry Is Reasonable Under the Circumstances

§ 207.44 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Legal Contentions Warranted by Existing Law or Nonfrivolous Argument for Change in Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sanctions Not Justified if Legal Contentions Are Nonfrivolous

§ 207.45 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Factual Contentions Had Adequate Evidentiary Support [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Factual Contentions Have Sufficient Evidentiary Support

§ 207.46 Opposing Motion for Sanctions Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Motion Violates Safe Harbor Provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion for Sanctions May Not Violate Safe Harbor Provision.

§ 207.47 Opposing Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule [Gov. Code § 66608(b)]--Terminating Sanction Is Inappropriate

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Drastic Measure of Terminating Sanction Not to Be Used in First Instance

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Drastic Measure of Terminating Sanction Not to Be Used in First Instance

§ 207.48 Opposing Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule [Gov. Code § 66608(b)]--Noncompliance Is Responsibility of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Noncompliance Is Responsibility of Counsel

§ 207.49 Opposing Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule--Local Rule Permitting Sanctions Conflicts With Statute on Same Subject

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Local Rule Allowing For Sanctions May Not Conflict With Statute

§ 207.50 Opposing Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule--Conduct Did Not Violate Local Rule

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sanctions Improper Under Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 When Local Rule Not Violated

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.01

§ 207.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains points and authorities for use in supporting and opposing motions for sanctions in trial court actions and proceedings. It contains memoranda of points and authorities supporting [see §§ 207.20 -207.27] and opposing [see §§ 207.39 -207.42] a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 for actions or tactics that are frivolous or have an improper purpose arising from complaints filed or proceedings initiated before 1995. The chapter also contains memoranda of points and authorities supporting [see §§ 207.28 -207.35] and opposing [see §§ 207.43 -207.45] a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, which replaces Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 for complaints filed or other proceedings initiated after 1994. For further discussion of the effective dates for these two sanctions provisions, see § 207.02.

The chapter also contains points and authorities supporting a motion for sanctions for the violation of a court order [see § 207.36], points and authorities supporting a motion for sanctions for the violation of local court rules [see § 207.37] and points and authorities supporting a motion for defense costs in an action under the California Tort Claims Act or any civil action for indemnity or contribution [see § 207.38]. A form of memorandum opposing the imposition of a terminating sanction for violation of local rules [see § 207.47] is also included.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesSelf-RepresentationSanctionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryDisclosuresSanctionsCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesSanctionsCivil ProcedureSanctionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.02

§ 207.02 Governing Law

A number of different statutes provide for sanctions for improper litigation tactics. The most generally applicable statutes are Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5 and 128.7.

Sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 apply to actions or tactics that "arise from a complaint filed, or a proceeding initiated, on or before December 31, 1994" [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5(b)(1), 128.7(i); see also Olmstead v. Arthur J. Gallagher & Co. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 804, 809-819, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 86 P.3d 354 (statutory language of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 and related statutes, and other indicia of legislative intent, establish that § 128.5 does not apply to conduct arising from claim initiated after December 31, 1994)]. Sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 apply to a "complaint or petition filed on or after January 1, 1995, and any other pleading, written notice of motion, or other similar paper filed in such a matter" [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i)].

Whether § 128.5 or 128.7 applies is determined by whether the actions or tactics which the court finds to be in bad faith arise from a proceeding initiated on or before December 31, 1994. Where the court maintains continuing jurisdiction over a proceeding initiated by a dissolution of a marriage [see In re Marriage ofReese & Guy (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 ; In re Marriage of Drake (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466] or administration of a trust since its admission to probate [see Levy v. Blum (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 625, 638-643, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144] , § 128.5 applies if the initial proceeding was filed before December 31, 1994.

Because Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 is derived in part from Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11, some of the discussion in this chapter is based on federal decisions that interpret parts of Rule 11 that are virtually identical to portions of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7. While these federal rulings are not binding on California courts, they should be helpful in interpreting the new California sanctions statute.

Unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 does not apply to discovery requests, responses, objections, and motions [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(g)]. For points and authorities on discovery sanctions, see Ch. 82, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse .

NOTE:

> The statutory language governing the effective dates of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5 and 128.7 does not clearly resolve which sanctions to apply with respect to an amended complaint or petition filed in 1995 with respect to an action or proceeding commenced before 1995. On the one hand, the amended complaint or petition "arises from a complaint filed or a proceeding initiated" before 1994, arguably making Section 128.5 sanctions applicable. On the other hand, the amended complaint or petition is a "complaint or petition filed on or after January 1, 1995," arguably making Section 128.7 applicable to any subsequent papers filed in the matter.

Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5 governs sanctions for violation of a court order. Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 and Gov. Code § 68608 govern sanctions for violation of a local court rule.

For points and authorities relating to the recovery of costs and attorney's fees, and to obtain security for costs and attorney's fees, as of right (rather than as a sanction), see Ch. 60, Costs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSanctionsGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsSanctionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.03

§ 207.03 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda filed in discovery motion proceedings may not exceed 15 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits [Cal.Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The points and authorities in this chapter the form of memoranda supporting and opposing motions for orders relating to sanctions. Related supporting or opposing forms may be combined, if appropriate, depending on the facts and issues involved. The forms in this chapter may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief, or be used to research office memoranda. No matter what procedural context is involved, counsel should add argument to the points and authorities being used, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

For a discussion of how to use the forms in this chapter to draft a memorandum of points and authorities or a trial or appellate brief, and for a sample of a complete memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresSanctionsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.04

§ 207.04 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting memoranda of points and authorities (other than those in a summary judgment proceeding) must not exceed 15 pages in length. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, and tables of content are not included in the page limitation. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs § 1.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of Law

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.05

§ 207.05 Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion, procedure, and forms pertaining to trial court sanctions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms relating to sanctions for frivolous appeals, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms relating to discovery sanctions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 192, Discovery: Sanctions for Discovery Misuse General Introduction (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms relating to sanctions in family law proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage and Related Proceedings: Child Support (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

20-207 California Points & Authorities §§ 207.06-207.19

[Reserved]

§§ 207.06[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.20

§ 207.20 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--General Authority for Motion

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR Plaintiff,	)	SANCTIONS
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THIS COURT SHOULD AWARD EXPENSES, INCLUDING ATTORNEY'S FEES, [AND PUNITIVE DAMAGES] TO _____ [specify moving party, e.g., DEFENDANT], _____ [name], AGAINST _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 AS A SANCTION FOR _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF'S] BAD FAITH ACTIONS AND TACTICS THAT WERE _____ [FRIVOLOUS and/or SOLELY INTENDED TO CAUSE UNNECESSARY DELAY].

A. Statutory Authority to Award Monetary Sanctions Consisting of Reasonable Expenses, Including Attorney's Fees. Every trial court may order a party, the party's attorney, or both, to pay any reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by another party as a result of bad-faith actions or tactics that are frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5; 580 Folsom Associates v. Prometheus Development Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 19-28, 272 Cal. Rptr. 227).

B. "Actions or Tactics" Defined. Actions or tactics include, but are not limitedto, the making or opposing of motions or the filing and service of a complaint or cross complaint, but only if the actions or tactics arise from a complaint filed, or a proceeding initiated, on or before December 31, 1994 (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(1); see Albion River Watershed Protection Assn. v. Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 34, 37-38, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341).

C. "Frivolous" Defined. Frivolous means (1) totally and completely without merit, or (2) for the sole purpose of harassing an opposing party (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(2); Bank of America v. Henkin (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 919, 922, 230 Cal. Rptr. 113).

[Optional] D. Sanctions May Be Awarded in Favor of Pro Se Litigant. Sanctions may be awarded under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 in favor of both a self-representing attorney and a non-attorney pro se litigant (Abandonato v. Coldren (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 264, 269, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429).

[Add additional points and authorities from §§ 207.21-207.27, as appropriate, to support any specific contentions regarding the motion for sanctions.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 is a trial court sanction that also applies to judicial arbitration proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(a); see Lyons v. Wickhorst (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 911, 926, 928, 231 Cal. Rptr. 738, 727 P.2d 1019 (majority of Court suggesting that if litigant fails to participate in judicial arbitration as means of avoiding costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21, court may award such costs as element of monetary sanctions authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5)]. Expenses under this provision may not be imposed except on notice contained in a party's moving or responding papers, or on the court's own motion, after notice and opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c)]. For forms of notice of motion, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender).

In an appropriate case, this form should be combined with the points and authorities set forth in §§ 207.21 -207.27 pertaining to specific issues that may arise concerning an award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss facts showing that the petition filed or proceeding initiated before 1995 was totally and completely without merit, or had harassment or unnecessary delay as its sole purpose. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations that support the memorandum.

[c] Effective Date of Sanctions Statute

Sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 apply only to actions or proceedings pending as of December 31, 1994 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(1)]. The award of expenses, including attorney's fees, for frivolous actions or delaying tactics in actions and proceedings commenced after December 31, 1994, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5(b)(1), 128.7(i); see also § 207.02]. For points and authorities that may be used in support of a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, see §§ 207.28 -207.35.

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 207.39 -207.42 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of motion and declaration supporting a motion for attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority to Award Monetary Sanctions Consisting of Reasonable Expenses, Including Attorney's Fees

580 Folsom Associates v. Prometheus Development Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 272 Cal. Rptr. 227 , involved a dispute between parties to a real estate purchase contract. Defendant purchasers had failed to comply with certain contractual obligations during the escrow period concerning indemnification of plaintiff sellers and had declined to carry out the purchase of the property by the end of the escrow period. Plaintiffs demanded that defendants execute a quitclaim deed of their interest in the property, but defendants continued to assert an interest in the property and refused to execute the requested quitclaim deed. Plaintiffs brought a quiet title action against defendants and sought to recover on the indemnity agreement between the parties. Defendants cross complained, assertingthat the plaintiffs breached a joint venture agreement.

The trial court granted plaintiffs' motion for summary adjudication of issues with regard to the defendants' cross complaint, and imposed sanctions on both the defendants and their law firm pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The trial court found that the defendants' actions were not in good faith, and that sanctions were warranted both for the filing of a cross complaint containing allegations that were frivolous and totally and completely without merit, and for submission of pleadings in opposition to plaintiffs' motion for summary adjudication that contained lengthy citations to the record that either did not relate to the factual propositions for which they were cited, or contained no competent evidence and referred to materials that were clearly incompetent. After final judgment, defendants and defendants' law firm brought appeals seeking reconsideration of the sanctions awards under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5.

The court of appeal could find no abuse of discretion by the trial court, and upheld the sanctions imposed under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 22, 28) . With respect to the sanctions against the defendant parties, the court stated that sanctions were justified, because the cross complaint contained numerous material factual allegations concerning the purported formation of a joint venture between the plaintiffs and defendants that were utterly devoid of supporting evidence; in addition, several of the allegations of the cross complaint were completely false. The court noted that a complete lack of evidence to substantiate key allegations of a cross complaint alleging the terms of a purported joint venture is sufficient ground for imposition of sanctions for the filing of a frivolous pleading (223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 21-22) .

Concerning the sanctioning of the law firm, the court of appeal agreed with the law firm that it could not be sanctioned for the filing of the cross complaint, because the firm relied on factual information supplied by one of the defendants to draft the document. However, the court held that the firm could be sanctioned under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 for its separate statement in opposition to the plaintiffs' revised statement of undisputed facts; this document, in the trial court's opinion, included citation to large quantities of material that did not support directly or indirectly the alleged facts for which they were cited (223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 23) .

The court of appeal noted that while it was uncontested in the trial court that the law firm initially relied on the factual information it received from defendants to draft the cross complaint, the firm attorneys sat through all of the discovery depositions noticed by plaintiffs and at some point the attorneys had to become aware that their clients had no evidence to support the factual allegations of the cross complaint (223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 26) .

The court of appeal also pointed to the attorneys' citations to over 800 pages of evidence, large portions of which did not support the facts for which they were cited, and concluded that the attorneys deliberately misled the trial court, causing the trial court hours of work reviewing irrelevant matter (223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 24-26) .

[b] "Actions or Tactics" Defined

In Albion River Watershed Protection Assn. v. Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 34, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341 , an unincorporated association petitioned for a writ of mandate. In doing so, however, it violated local rules and state laws by failing to serve the complaint within 60 days after filing, failing to request a hearing within 90 days, and filing the complaint in pro per instead of through counsel as required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125 et seq.

The trial court sanctioned the petitioner for failure to serve the complaint within 60 days and failure to request a hearing within 90 days, finding these tactics were in bad faith and for the purpose of delay. The court of appeal reversed. It held the petitioner could not be sanctioned because the requirement of requesting a hearing within 90 days had not yet been applied by the courts to the type of action brought by petitioner However, the court remanded for a determination of whether the failure to serve the complaint within 60 days or the failure to be represented by counsel supported sanctions (20 Cal. App. 4th 34, 36-37) .

Note that the the mere filing of a complaint without serving it does not constitute "actions or tactics" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(1)].

[c] "Frivolous" Defined

In Bank of America v. Henkin (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 919, 230 Cal. Rptr. 113 , the court of appeal upheld a trial court's order granting summary judgment for plaintiff. Plaintiff was granted summary judgment in an action to recover money due on a promissory note, despite defendant's claim that plaintiff had not complied with the 28-day notice requirement for the motion. Defendant's counsel then moved to vacate the summary judgment based on the same claim, and the trial court denied the motion and imposed sanctions against defendant and/or his counsel.

After defendant raised the same claim on appeal, the appellate court affirmed the trial court's ruling and imposed additional sanctions against defendant's counsel. It noted that the repetition on appeal of his error in performing the simplest, most rudimentary function--counting the days on a calendar--was inexcusable in light of the trial court's finding that it formed the basis of a frivolous motion below. The court concluded that any reasonable attorney would find the appeal completely and indisputably devoid of merit (185 Cal. App. 3d 919, 922) .

[d] Sanctions May Be Awarded in Favor of Pro Se Litigant

In Abandonato v. Coldren (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 264, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429 , pro se attorneys demurred to a complaint and moved for an award of attorney fees pursuant to Code Civ Proc. § 128.5. The plaintiff dismissed the complaint before the demurrer could be heard. The trial court proceeded with the hearing for sanctions, and made an award on the ground that the complaint was filed in bad faith and plaintiff's tactics were frivolous. Plaintiff contended that defendants could not be awarded attorney fees because they were attorneys representing themselves and thus neither paid, nor incurred any liability to pay, attorney fees.

The court of appeal reasoned that sanctions under Code Civ Proc. § 128.5 are not limited to court costs and attorney fees, but include those reasonable expenses directly related to and in furtherance of the litigation. Furthermore, a judgment for sanctions could be greater than the amount of attorney time actually billed since it is more like a money judgment compensating a party for harmful conduct than it is like an award of fees as part of the costs of the lawsuit (41 Cal. App. 4th 264, 268-269) . The court concluded that sanctions may be awarded under Code Civ Proc. § 128.5 in favor of both a self-representing attorney and a non-attorney pro se litigant. Accordingly, the order awarding attorney fees was affirmed.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority to Award Monetary Sanctions Consisting of Reasonable Expenses, Including Attorney's Fees

In Rush v. Weinzettl (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 66, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354 , a party dismissed the attorney who filed her personal injury action. She retained another attorney, who filed motions on her behalf without first filing a written, formal substitution of attorney. At the hearing on the motions, the trial court declared that the attorney had no standing to appear on his client's behalf, and on request of defendant ordered sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court has jurisdiction to sanction an attorney who has no standing to act on behalf of a party in the action, but nevertheless appears after being retained by the client for that purpose (14 Cal. App. 4th 66, 68-69) .

In Wilhelm v. Pray, Price, Williams & Russell (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1324, 231 Cal. Rptr. 355 , plaintiff brought suit against defendant attorney alleging several causes of action in tort. Defendant interposed successful demurrers to plaintiff's original, first amended, and second amended complaints. Plaintiff's third amended complaint revealed only superficial amendments, and the demurrer to that complaint was sustained on precisely the same ground as the previous demurrers. On this record, the court of appeal concluded that the trial court did not err in awarding sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (186 Cal. App. 3d 1324, 1334) .

In Winick Corp. v. County Sanitation Dist. No. 2 (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 230 Cal. Rptr. 289 , the court of appeal upheld the trial court's imposition of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 against plaintiff. Plaintiff was given notice early in the action that defendant was not a proper party, but plaintiff nevertheless failed to voluntarily dismiss the action and caused defendant to file its answer and move for summary judgment. The court of appeal found that the trial court's findings that plaintiff's tactics and actions were not based on good faith, were frivolous, and caused unnecessary delay were amply supported by the record (185 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1181) .

[b] "Actions or Tactics" Defined

In Estate of DiGrazia (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 681, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 621 , a party in a probate action challenged the judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1. Following the disqualification hearing, during which the judge was represented by the county counsel, the trial court found the challenge was frivolous and awarded sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The court of appeal affirmed, noting that although the disqualification proceeding is not a part of the main action, it is ancillary to it. In that proceeding, the judge appears as a party for all practical purposes. The court therefore rejected the assertion that the trial court lacked jurisdiction to award sanctions because the judge was not a party to the action (13 Cal. App. 4th 681, 683-685) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.21

§ 207.21 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Sufficient Nexus Between Offending Action and Expenses Incurred

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.20), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

IT IS PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO AWARD SPECIFIED EXPENSES, INCLUDING ATTORNEY'S FEES, AS SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 BECAUSE THERE IS A SUFFICIENT NEXUS BETWEEN THE OFFENDING ACTIONS OR TACTICS AND THE EXPENSES INCURRED, SPECIFICALLY _____ [specify connection that justifies imposition of sanctions, e.g., THERE IS A CAUSAL RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN OPPOSING PARTY'S OFFENDING ACTION AND THE EXPENSES INCURRED BY PARTY and/or THE ACTION'S LACK OF MERIT IS SUFFICIENT BASIS BY ITSELF FOR IMPOSING SANCTIONS].

[EITHER]

A. Causal Connection. Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 requires nomore than a causal relationship between a party's offending action and the expenses incurred by an opposing party (On v. Cow Hollow Properties (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1568, 1577, 272 Cal. Rptr. 535).

[AND/OR]

B. Action's Lack of Merit Is Sufficient Basis for Imposition of Sanctions. The fact that an action is objectively without merit is itself sufficient basis for imposing sanctions. There is no requirement of a showing of improper motive or that the party bringing the action knew or should have known that the facts or law or both preclude the action or any recovery (Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581 (First District, Division Four) ; Weisman v. Bower (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 1236, 238 Cal. Rptr. 756 (Second District, Division Three) ; contra, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 116, 189 Cal. Rptr. 208 (Third District)) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities from § 207.20 and submitted in support of a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 to support the contention that such expenses incurred by a party are recoverable when causally connected to an opposing party's offending action.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that establishes a causal connection between between expenses sought and opposing party's offending actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [see, e.g., On v. Cow Hollow Properties (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1568, 1577, 272 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Causal Connection

In On v. Cow Hollow Properties (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1568, 272 Cal. Rptr. 535 , plaintiff filed a complaint seeking specific performance of a real estate purchase agreement. Defendant responded by answering, as defendant in the specific performance action, and by filing a cross complaint against plaintiff seeking damages for wrongful filing of a lis pendens relating to the action. The trial court found for defendant, both as defendant and as cross complainant. On appeal, however, the court of appeal reversed the judgment on the cross complaint, holding that the plaintiff's filing of the lis pendens was privileged.

On remand, the trial court directed plaintiff to pay defendant/cross complainant a specified amount for attorney's fees, basing the award alternatively on Civ. Code § 1717 or on Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. Plaintiff challenged the amount of the fee award, which included compensation for two items that related exclusively to the cross complaint, arguing, inter alia, that it was improper to require him to reimburse defendants for their unsuccessful prosecution of the cross complaint against him.

The court of appeal determined that fees related to the cross complaint were properly included in the fee award. The court noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(a) authorizes the award of attorney's fees incurred by another party "as a result of" bad-faith actions. Construing this language broadly in light of the legislative purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, to control bad-faith and frivolous litigation, the court concluded that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 requires no more than a causal relationship between the offending action and the expense incurred by the opposing party. With regard to the instant case, the requisite relationship was clearly present. The filing of the cross complaint was occasioned solely by the filing of appellant's bad-faith complaint, and if the complaint had not been filed, defendant/cross complainant would have lacked not only the incentive, but the factual basis to pursue its claim on the cross complaint (222 Cal. App. 3d 1568, 1577-1578) .

[b] Action's Lack of Merit Is Sufficient Basis for Imposition of Sanctions

The California courts of appeal currently are divided on the question of whether an action's lack of merit is a sufficient basis, standing alone, for the imposition of sanctions. Several courts have indicated that sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 may be imposed solely on the basis of objective frivolousness [see, e.g., Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581 (First District, Division Four) ; Weisman v. Bower (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 1236, 238 Cal. Rptr. 756 (Second District, Division Three) ; see also Summers v. City of Cathedral City (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1070-1072, 275 Cal. Rptr. 594 (discussing split of authority)].

Other courts have followed the position stated in Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117, 189 Cal. Rptr. 208 (Third District; discussed as an authority under § 207.39[3][a]) and have declined to permit sanctions absent a finding of subjective bad faith [see, e.g., Llamas v. Diaz (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1047-1048, 267 Cal. Rptr. 427 (Fourth District, Division Three; discussed as an authority under § 207.39[3][a])]. Those courts would, in all likelihood, reject the point raised by Paragraph B of this form.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.22

§ 207.22 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Expenses May Be Awarded for Entire Action

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.20), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

IT IS PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO AWARD EXPENSES, INCLUDING ATTORNEY'S FEES, FOR THE ENTIRE ACTION AS SANCTIONS UNDER CODE CIV. PROC. § 128.5.

"Actions or Tactics" Includes Entire Action. "Actions or tactics" within the purview of Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 include entire actions (see Lesser v. Huntington Harbor Corp. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 928-930, 219 Cal. Rptr. 562).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities from § 207.20 and submitted in support of a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 to support the contention that such sanctions may be sought for an entire action.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that the entire action for which expenses are being sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 is not based on good faith, is frivolous, or is causing unnecessary delay in the resolution of a dispute [see, e.g., Lesser v. Huntington Harbor Corp. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 928-929, 219 Cal. Rptr. 562] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Actions or Tactics" Includes Entire Action

In Lesser v. Huntington Harbor Corp. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 219 Cal. Rptr. 562 , plaintiff brought suit alleging various causes of action. After plaintiff presented his case at trial, the court granted defendant's motion for a nonsuit and imposed sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The court of appeal, in reversing the judgment, held as a preliminary matter that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 applies to entire actions not based on good faith that are frivolous or cause unnecessary delay in the resolution of a dispute (173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 928-930) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.23

§ 207.23 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Sanctions for Defense of Action Permitted

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.20), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

IT IS PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO AWARD EXPENSES, INCLUDING ATTORNEY'S FEES, UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 AGAINST DEFENDANT FOR PURSUING A DEFENSE THAT IS _____ [FRIVOLOUS and/or INTENDED TO CAUSE UNNECESSARY DELAY].

"Actions or Tactics" Includes Defenses. "Actions or tactics" within the purview of Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 include defenses (Southern Christian Leadership Conference v. Al Malaikah Auditorium Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 207, 226, 281 Cal. Rptr. 216).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities from § 207.20 and submitted in support of a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 to support the contention that such sanctions may be sought for a frivolous defense.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of laws stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that the defense pursued by the opposing party was frivolous or was interposed solely for the purpose of causing unnecessary delay and was therefore subject to sanction under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [see, e.g., Southern Christian Leadership Conference v. Al Malaikah Auditorium Co. (1991) 230 Cal.

App. 3d 207, 226-228, 281 Cal. Rptr. 216] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] "Actions or Tactics" Includes Defenses

In Southern Christian Leadership Conference v. Al Malaikah Auditorium *Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 207, 281 Cal. Rptr. 216 , a breach of contract action, the defendants asserted as an affirmative defense that there was no binding contract. The trial court entered judgment for plaintiffs, and imposed sanctions against the defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 for bringing a frivolous and unmeritorious defense. The defendants appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the award, holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 applies to the opposing of an entire action without proper justification or to the interposing of a frivolous defense to an action (230 Cal. App. 3d 207, 226-228) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.24

§ 207.24 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Sanctions Permitted for Some, but Not All, Causes of Action

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.20), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

IT IS PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO AWARD DEFENDANT EXPENSES, INCLUDING ATTORNEY'S FEES, AS SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 BASED ON _____ [ONE or SOME] OF THE CAUSES OF ACTION IN THE COMPLAINT IN THIS ACTION, SPECIFICALLY THE CAUSE(S) OF ACTION FOR _____ [specify], BECAUSE _____ [THAT or THOSE] CAUSE(S) OF ACTION IS/ARE FRIVOLOUS, EVEN IF OTHER CAUSES OF ACTION ALLEGED ARE NOT SUBJECT TO SANCTIONS.

Partially Frivolous Complaint. Sanctions may be awarded under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 when some but not all of the causes of action alleged in the complaint are frivolous (Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 875-876, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities from § 207.20 and submitted in support of a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 to support the contention that sanctions may be sought for some but not necessarily all of the causes of action alleged in the complaint.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law

stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that some of the causes of action in the complaint, but not necessarily all, are frivolous. Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 limits the application of sanctions to the entire complaint [see, e.g., Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 875-876, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Partially Frivolous Complaint

In Bach v. McNelis (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 255 Cal. Rptr. 232 , an attorney brought an action against two judges, challenging the constitutional validity of the assignment of one of the judges, and also alleging that both judges violated the Political Reform Act of 1974. The trial court sustained defendants' demurrers without leave to amend, and awarded defendants attorney's fees as sanctions. Plaintiff appealed from the dismissal of his complaint and from the award of sanctions.

The court reversed the judgment dismissing the Political Reform Act cause of action against one of the judges, but affirmed the judgment in all other respects. The court noted that because of the reversal concerning one of the plaintiff's causes of action, that cause of action would remain presumptively meritorious. Consequently, that portion of plaintiff's complaint could not yet be the subject of sanctions. Only the remaining portions of plaintiff's complaint would be subject to possible sanctions for frivolousness (207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 881) .

The court concluded that sanctions may be awarded under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 when some but not all of the causes of action alleged in a complaint are frivolous. The court noted that nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 limits bad-faith "actions or tactics" to the entire complaint. Also, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 permits the imposition of sanctions when motions or other tactics are frivolous or made for the purpose of causing unnecessary delay even though the underlying action may be entirely meritorious. It would be anomalous, noted the court, to permit sanctions in those circumstances and yet deny them when an utterly frivolous and bad-faith cause of action is joined with a meritorious one (207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 875-876) . In addition, the court noted, because sanctions have been imposed in analogous circumstances for a partially frivolous appeal, by a parity of reasoning, sanctions should also be available for filing and serving or otherwise prosecuting a partially frivolous complaint (207 Cal. App. 3d 852, 875-876) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.25

§ 207.25 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Liability for Sanctions Not Precluded by Existence of Other Remedies for Misconduct

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.20), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THIS COURT IS NOT PRECLUDED FROM AWARDING SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 BY THE EXISTENCE OF OTHER POTENTIAL REMEDIES, [INCLUDING TORT LIABILITY FOR MALICIOUS PROSECUTION], FOR THE SAME MISCONDUCT BECAUSE LIABILITY FOR SANCTIONS UNDER SECTION 128.5 IS IN ADDITION TO ANY OTHER LIABILITY IMPOSED BY LAW FOR ACTS OR OMISSIONS WITHIN THE PURVIEW OF THAT STATUTE.

Liability Not Exclusive. The liability imposed by Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 is in addition to any other liability imposed by law for conduct within the purview of that statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(e)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities in § 207.20 and submitted in support of a plaintiff's contention that the liability for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 is in addition to other available remedies.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liability Not Exclusive

The liability imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 is in addition to any other liability imposed by law (for example, tort actions for abuse of judicial process and malicious prosecution, contempt, or sanctions for violation of a court order under Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5) for acts or omissions that are within the purview of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(e)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.26

§ 207.26 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Punitive Damages May Be Awarded in Action by Convicted Felon Against Victim Arising Out of Felony

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.20), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

IT IS PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO [ALSO] ASSESS PUNITIVE DAMAGES AGAINST PLAINTIFF BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS BEEN CONVICTED OF A FELONY AND IS BRINGING THIS ACTION AGAINST _____ [THE VICTIM or HEIRS OF THE VICTIM or RELATIVES OF THE VICTIM or THE VICTIM'S ESTATE or THE VICTIM'S PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE] FOR INJURIES ARISING FROM THE ACTS FOR WHICH PLAINTIFF WAS CONVICTED OF A FELONY, AND THE PLAINTIFF IS GUILTY OF FRAUD, OPPRESSION, OR MALICE IN MAINTAINING THIS ACTION.

Punitive Damages Available in Action by Convicted Felon. The court may assess punitive damages against the plaintiff on a determination by the court that the plaintiff's action was an action maintained by a person convicted of a felony against the person's victim, or the victim's heirs, relatives, estate, or personal representative, for injuries arising from the acts for which the person was convicted of a felony, and that the plaintiff is guilty of fraud, oppression, or malice in maintaining the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities in § 207.20 and submitted in support of a defendant's contention that the court should assess punitive damages against plaintiff, in addition to other sanctions awarded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, because plaintiff has been convicted of a felony, the action is for injuries allegedly suffered by plaintiff arising from the acts on which the plaintiff's felony conviction was based, and the defendant is the victim of the felony or the heir relative, estate or personal representative of the victim.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discussevidence that (1) plaintiff has been convicted of a felony, (2) the defendant is the victim of the felony or the victim's heirs, relatives, estate, or personal representative, (3) the alleged injuries arose from the acts for which the plaintiff was convicted of a felony, and (4) the plaintiff is guilty of fraud, oppression, or malice in maintaining the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(d)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.27

§ 207.27 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Expenses Other Than Costs and Attorney's Fees Available

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.20), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

IT IS PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO AWARD EXPENSES OTHER THAN COSTS AND ATTORNEY'S FEES AS SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5.

Expenses Are Not Limited to Costs and Attorney's Fees. The expenses to be awarded as sanctions under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 may include expenses other than costs and attorney's fees (Abandonato v. Coldren (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 264, 268, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429 ; 580 Folsom Associates v. Prometheus Development Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 27-28, 272 Cal. Rptr. 227).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities from § 207.20 and submitted in support of a motion for expenses, in addition to costs and attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence of expenses other than attorney's fees and costs that were incurred in the frivolous action brought by opposing party and that should be paid by the opposing party as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [see, e.g., 580 Folsom Associates v. Prometheus Development Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 27-28, 272 Cal. Rptr. 227] .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Expenses Are Not Limited to Costs and Attorney's Fees

In Abandonato v. Coldren (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 264, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429 , the facts and procedural background of which are discussed at § 207.20[3][d], the court of appeal reasoned that sanctions under Code Civ Proc. § 128.5 are not limited to court costs and attorney fees, but include those reasonable expenses directly related to and in furtherance of the litigation (41 Cal. App. 4th 264, 268) .

The facts and procedural background of 580 Folsom Associates v. Prometheus Development Co. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 272 Cal. Rptr. 227 , are set forth in § 207.20[3][a]. In 580 Folsom, the sanctioned law firm argued that the trial court improperly awarded as sanctions compensation for time spent by plaintiffs' personnel in defending against the cross complaint. The law firm argued that the "expenses" to be awarded as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 cannot include expenses other than costs including attorney's fees. The court of appeal disagreed, noting that the term "expenses" has not been so limited by other courts. The court of appeal remarked that if the law firm's interpretation were followed, it would mean that where a party was (as in the instant case) entitled to attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 1717 and costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032, then no sanctions could be awarded against the losing party no matter how frivolous its conduct or how unscrupulous its bad faith (223 Cal. App. 3d 1, 27-28) .

170 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.28

§ 207.28 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--General Authority for Motion

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.20[1].]

IT IS PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO IMPOSE _____ [specify type of sanction(s), e.g., AN ORDER TO PAY A PENALTY INTO COURT], AGAINST _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], FOR PRESENTING A PLEADING, PETITION, WRITTEN NOTICE OF MOTION, OR OTHER SIMILAR PAPER THAT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7(b).

A. Certification After Reasonable Inquiry. By presenting to the court a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or similar paper, an attorney or unrepresented party is certifying that to the best of that person's knowledge, information, and belief formed after a reasonable inquiry under the circumstances, the paper meets the conditions specified in Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b)(1)-(4) (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b); see McGhee v. Sanilac County (6th Cir. 1991) 934 F.2d 89, 92-93 (decided under similar federal rule)).

[Add appropriate points and authorities from §§ 207.30-207.33 pertaining to the specific basis or bases under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) for the motion for sanctions.]

B. Imposition of Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. If, after notice and a reasonable opportunity to respond, the court determines that a paper fails to meet the conditions set forth under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b), it may impose an appropriate sanction on the attorney, law firm, or party responsible for the violation (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)).

[EITHER]

C. Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. A trial court may issue a directive of a nonmonetary nature, as warranted for effective deterrence, as a sanction against a party or attorney for the submission of a paper incorrectly certifying that the conditions set forth in Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b) are met (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(d)).

[AND/OR]

C. Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. A trial court may order an attorney or party to pay a penalty into court, in an amount providing effective deterrence, as a sanction for the submission of a paper incorrectly certifying that the conditions set forth in Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b) are met (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(d)).

[AND/OR]

C. Code Civ. Proc. A trial court may order an attorney or party to pay a sanction, as warranted for effective deterrance, equal to some or all of the reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by the moving party as a direct result of a pleading, written notice of motion, or other similar paper incorrectly certifying that the conditions set forth in Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b) are met (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(d)).

[CONTINUE]

D. Sanctions Apply When Complaint or Petition Filed After 1994. Sanctions under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7 may be awarded with respect to a complaint filed or petition initiated on or after January 1, 1995, or any pleading, written notice of motion, or other similar paper filed in such a matter (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(i)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be used in support of a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7. This form sets forth the general statutory authority for such a motion and contains points and authorities pertaining to the types of sanctions that may be imposed. Counsel should add to this form the appropriate points and authorities set forth in §§ 207.30 -207.33 pertaining to the specific violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) involved in the case.

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) provides that every pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper must be signed by at least one attorney of record, or by the party if unrepresented. By presenting the pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper to the court, the signing party is certifying that, to the best of his or her knowledge, information, and belief formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances, the paper meets the conditions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) [see §§ 207.30 -207.33]. Presentation of a paper by opposing party or counsel may be by signing, filing, submitting or later advocating the paper [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that opposing party or counsel presented a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or similar paper that, after a reasonable inquiry under the circumstances, should have been identified as not meeting the conditions provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)-(4) [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b), (c)].

Points and authorities covering the specific conditions certified as having been met by the presentation of a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper are set forth in §§ 207.30 -207.33 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)-(4)].

[c] Sanctions Available Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 Are Not Limited to Monetary Sanctions

If an attorney or party violates Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) by presenting a paper that does not meet the conditions set forth therein, that person may be subject to sanctions that include directives of a nonmonetary nature, an order to pay a penalty to the court, or payment of expenses, including attorney's fees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(d)].

The sanction imposed must be limited to what is sufficient to deter repetition of the conduct or comparable conduct by others similarly situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(d)]. Although this statute has not yet been interpreted by California appellate courts, federal courts interpreting a similar provision in the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure have indicated that directives of a nonmonetary nature may include injunctive relief, disqualification of counsel, or even referral to bar disciplinary authorities [see Total Television Entertainment Corp. v. Chestnut Hill Village Associates (1992) 145 F.R.D. 375, 385 ; Merrigan v. Affiliated Bankshares of Colorado, Inc. (D. Colo. 1991) 775 F. Supp. 1408, 1412-1413] .

Sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 may not be imposed except by a seperate motion, on notice, after a reasonable opportunity to respond, and consideration of whether the party seeking sanctions has exercised due diligence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)].

[d] Notice and Opportunity to Respond

A party must serve the notice of motion for imposition of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 at least 21 days before filing the motion with the court. The motion may not be filed with the court unless the challenged paper is not withdrawn or appropriately corrected within the 21-day period [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1)]. Thus, a party or attorney who has the motion for sanctions served on him or her has a 21-day "safe harbor" period within which to withdraw or correct the paper before being subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7.

[e] Sanctions for Discovery Violations Are Not Available Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7

Unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, which applies to complaints filed or proceedings initiated before 1995, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 does not apply to discovery proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(g)]. For points and authorities on discovery sanctions, see Ch. 80, Discovery .

[f] Effective Date

Sanctions for frivolous actions or delaying tactics are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 for actions and proceedings commenced after 1994 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5(b)(1), 128.7(i)]. Actions or proceedings pending as of December 31, 1994, are subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, which authorizes an award of expenses, including attorney's fees, for frivolous actions or delaying tactics [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5(b)(1); see also § 207.02]. For points and authorities supporting a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, see §§ 207.20 -207.27.

[g] Relevance of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11

The certification requirements contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) are patterned after those contained in Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11. A federal court interpretation of Rule 11 is discussed below as a guide in interpreting the new California sanctions statute. While the federal decision is not necessarily binding on California courts, it may provide guidance in interpreting the similar California sanctions statute.

[h] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 207.43 -207.45 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[i] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of notice of motion supporting a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Certification After Reasonable Inquiry

In McGhee v. Sanilac County (6th Cir. 1991) 934 F.2d 89 , plaintiff, formerly an employee of Sanilac County, brought a defamation action against a newspaper, his former employer, and various Sanilac County employees for their involvement in the publication of an article in a local newspaper claiming that the plaintiff had resigned his position because of an allegation of sexual assault. After a deposition in which plaintiff admitted that the article in question was true, the district court granted the defendants' motion for summary judgment, but denied defendants' motion for sanctions under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11. Defendants appealed the denial of Rule 11 sanctions.

On review, the appellate court found that the district court should have imposed sanctions against the plaintiff's attorney under Rule 11. The appeals court found that the plaintiff's attorney should have known that the pleadings at issue were inadequate after a reasonable inquiry. The standard employed by the court for a reasonable inquiry was what a reasonable attorney would have investigated under the circumstances. According to the court, a reasonable attorney would have investigated the defamation claim to see if the allegedly defamatory statement was true. A reasonable inquiry in this case would have revealed the allegation to be true by a simple questioning of the plaintiff. Furthermore, the court pointed out that a close reading of the article would have alerted a reasonable attorney to the fact that the article, which simply stated that the plaintiff was accused, was not defamatory. The appeals court held that the attorney had not conducted a reasonable inquiry under the circumstances and thus should have been subject toRule 11 sanctions for filing the plaintiff's defamation claim (934 F.2d 89, 93) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.29

§ 207.29 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Notice of Corrective Action Not Given Within Safe Harbor Period

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.20[1].]

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (see § 207.28), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

IT IS PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO IMPOSE _____ [specify type of sanction(s), e.g., AN ORDER TO PAY A PENALTY INTO COURT], AGAINST _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], FOR PRESENTING A PLEADING, PETITION, WRITTEN NOTICE OF MOTION, OR OTHER SIMILAR PAPER THAT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7(b) AND FOR FAILING TO GIVE NOTICE OF ANY CORRECTIVE ACTION TAKEN WITHIN 30 DAYS AFTER SERVICE OF THIS MOTION ON _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name] PURSUANT TO CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7(c)(1).

No Notice of Corrective Action Given Within Safe Harbor Period. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1) provides that a motion for sanctions pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 may be filed 21 days after service of the motion on the offending party unless within the 21-day period, the offending party withdraws or corrects the improper pleading. The offending party must also give notice of the corrective action within the 21 days to avoid the award of sanctions [Liberty Mutual Fire Ins. Co. v. McKenzie (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 681, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910] .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be combined with the memorandum of points and authorities in §

207.28 and submitted in support of the contention that an attorney or party is subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 for presenting a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper primarily for an improper purpose, and for failing to give notice of any corrective action taken within the "safe harbor" 21-day period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1).

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that even though the offending party may have withdrawn or corrected the pleading within the 21-day "safe harbor" period, the offending party failed to give notice of the corrective action within that period.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice of Corrective Action Must Be Given Within "Safe Harbor" Period

In Liberty Mutual Fire Ins. Co. v. McKenzie (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 681, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910 , an insured cross complained against his insurer for breach of contract and breach of the implied covenant of good faith and named one of the insurer's claims handlers as a cross defendant. However, as a matter of law, an insurance employee cannot be sued for either breach of contract or breach of the implied covenant of good faith [see Ch. 120, Insurance § 120.170]. In June, the insurer requested by letter that the insured delete the employee from the cross complaint, and in July, filed an order to show cause to dismiss the employee and for imposition of sanctions. The court issued an order to show cause and set a hearing. On October 21st, the insurer served the insured's attorney with a motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 for sanctions for failing to dismiss the cross complaint against the employee within 30 days of the service of the motion. The insured dismissed the employee on November 17th. However, the insured did not serve the insurer with notice of the dismissal and the insurer did not learn of the dismissal until November 25th. In the meantime, on November 21th, the insurer filed its motion for sanctions. The trial court granted the motion and awarded sanctions against the insured and his attorney (88 Cal. App. 4th 681, 689-691) .

The Court of Appeal affirmed the sanctions award. The purpose of the safe harbor provision in § 128.7(c)(1) is to permit an offending party to avoid sanctions by withdrawing the improper pleadings during the statutory 30-day period, saving the court and the parties time and money litigating the pleading as well as the sanctions request. Thus, to avoid an award of sanctions, the offending party must not only take corrective action, but must also give notice to the moving party that it has taken that step. Without that notice, the moving party has no knowledge that the problem has been resolved and consequently it will proceed with filing the motion, thus requiring the expenditure of attorney and court time which could have been avoided had notice been given (88 Cal. App. 4th 681, 692) .

NOTE:

The statutory period in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1) as discussed in Liberty Mutual was 30 days. However, effective January 1, 2003, the statutory safe harbor period is 21 days.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.30

§ 207.30 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Paper Filed for Improper Purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (see § 207.28), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7 ARE APPROPRIATE BECAUSE THE _____ [PLEADING or PETITION or NOTICE OF MOTION or other similar paper] WAS PRESENTED TO THE COURT BY _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name] PRIMARILY FOR THE IMPROPER PURPOSE OF _____ [specify, e.g., HARASSING THE DEFENDANT AND CAUSING UNNECESSARY DELAY].

Paper Presented for Improper Purpose. By presenting to the court a pleading, petition, written notice of motion, or other similar paper, counsel or an unrepresented party is certifying that the paper is not being presented primarily for an improper purpose, such as to harass, cause unnecessary delay, or needlessly increase the cost of litigation (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)). If a paper is presented primarily for an improper purpose in violation of Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b)(1), the attorney or party presenting the paper may be subject to sanctions (see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c), (d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be combined with the memorandum of points and authorities in § 207.28 and submitted in support of the contention that an attorney or party is subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 for presenting a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper primarily for an improper purpose. The "presentation" of a paper may be by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating the paper [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that the pleading or other paper in question was more likely than not presented primarily for an improper purpose such as to harass, cause unnecessary delay, or needlessly increase the cost of litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Paper Presented for Improper Purpose

Unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)-(4), which are taken verbatim from Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(b)(2)-(4), Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1) appears to differ significantly from Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(b)(1). Rule 11(b)(1) appears to authorize sanctions if a paper is filed for any improper purpose, while Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1) appears to require a showing that a paper was filed primarily for an improper purpose as a condition for imposing sanctions. The extent to which this difference in language will result in significant differences in interpretation and application of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1) and Rule 11(b)(1)has yet to be determined by case law.

173 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.31

§ 207.31 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Paper Contains Legal Contentions Not Warranted by Existing Law or Nonfrivolous Argument for Change in Existing Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (see § 207.28), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7 ARE APPROPRIATE BECAUSE THE LEGAL CONTENTIONS MADE IN THE _____ [PLEADING or PETITION or NOTICE OF MOTION or specify some other similar paper] PRESENTED TO THE COURT BY _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], ARE NOT WARRANTED BY EXISTING LAW OR BY ANY NONFRIVOLOUS ARGUMENT FOR THE EXTENSION, MODIFICATION, OR REVERSAL OF EXISTING LAW OR FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF NEW LAW.

Legal Contentions Are Not Warranted by Existing Law or Nonfrivolous Argument for Change in Existing Law. By submitting a pleading, petition,written notice of motion, or other similar paper, counsel or an unrepresented party is certifying that the claims, defenses, and other legal contentions in the paper are warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2); see DeSisto College, Inc. v. Line (11th Cir. 1989) 888 F.2d 755, 764-766 (decided under similar federal rule)). If a paper is presented in violation of Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b)(2), the party presenting the paper may be subject to sanctions (see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c), (d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be combined with the memorandum of points and authorities in § 207.28 and submitted in support of the contention that an attorney or party is subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 for presenting a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper that contains frivolous legal arguments. The "presentation" of a paper may be by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating the paper [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)].

Monetary sanctions may not be awarded against a represented party for presenting a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper that contains frivolous legal arguments [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(d)(1)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should show that the legal contentions within the pleading or paper in question are not warranted by existing law or consist of frivolous arguments for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or for the establishment of new law [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 207.44 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Legal Contentions Are Not Warranted by Existing Law or Nonfrivolous Argument for Change in Existing Law

The certification requirements contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) are patterned after Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11. A federal court interpretation of Rule 11 is discussed below as a guide in interpreting the new California sanctions statute. While the federal decision is not necessarily binding on California courts, it should may guidance in interpreting the new California sanctions statute.

In De Sisto College, Inc. v. Line (11th Cir. 1989) 888 F.2d 755 , the attorney for an institution created to serve students with learning disabilities was sanctioned under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11, in a suit against individual members of a zoning commission. The college claimed that a zoning commission decision unconstitutionally and illegally misconstrued local zoning ordinances in order to deny the school an opportunity to establish the college. Plaintiff's counsel did not address the issue of legislative immunity in the initial complaint and even after having the issue brought to attention by defendants' motions to dismiss first, second, and third amended complaints, plaintiffs' counsel never addressed the existence of a decision that clearly supported legislative immunity for the individual defendants.

Counsel's failure to acknowledge the clear precedent supporting defendants' assertion of immunity demonstrated an ignorance of the law and thus bad faith, a violation of Rule 11 that requires that a legal contention in a pleading be warranted by existing law or a good faith argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law (888 F.2d 755, 764-766) .

174 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.32

§ 207.32 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Paper Contains Allegations or Factual Contentions Without Evidentiary Support [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3)]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (see § 207.28), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7 ARE APPROPRIATE BECAUSE THE ALLEGATIONS AND OTHER FACTUAL CONTENTIONS MADE IN THE _____ [PLEADING or PETITION or NOTICE OF MOTION or specify some other similar paper] PRESENTED TO THE COURT BY _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], DO NOT HAVE EVIDENTIARY SUPPORT [AND ARE UNLIKELY TO HAVE EVIDENTIARY SUPPORT AFTER A REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY FOR FURTHER INVESTIGATION OR DISCOVERY].

Factual Contentions Lacking Sufficient Evidentiary Support. By submitting a pleading, petition, written notice of motion, or other similar paper, counsel or an unrepresented party is certifying that the allegations and other factual contentions have sufficient evidentiary support or, if specifically identified, are likely to haveevidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3); see Aetna Ins. Co. v. Meeker (11th Cir. 1992) 953 F.2d 1328, 1332 (decided under similar federal rule)). If a paper is presented in violation of Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b)(3), the party presenting the paper may be subject to sanctions (see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c), (d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be combined with the memorandum of points and authorities in § 207.28 and submitted in support of the contention that a party is subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 for presenting a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper containing allegations and other factual contentions that have no evidentiary support or are unlikely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery. The "presentation" of a paper may be by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating the paper [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should establish that the allegations and other factual contentions within the pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper in question are not supported by the evidence, or that they would not be supported by any evidence from further investigation or discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3); see, e.g., Aetna Ins. Co. v. Meeker (11th Cir. 1992) 953 F.2d 1328, 1332] .

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 207.45 may be used to oppose the motion supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Factual Contentions Lacking Sufficient Evidentiary Support

The certification requirements contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) are patterned after Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11. A federal court interpretation of Rule 11 is discussed below as a guide in interpreting the new California sanctions statute. While the federal decision is not necessarily binding on California courts, it may provide guidance in interpreting the new California sanctions statute.

In Aetna Ins. Co. v. Meeker (11th Cir. 1992) 953 F.2d 1328 , plaintiff insurance company denied the claim of defendant for the purportedly accidental sinking of a sailboat and filed a complaint for declaratory judgment against defendant for a determination of damages. On further investigation, it appeared that the sailboat in question had been stolen and sunk intentionally. Plaintiff insurance company then filed a motion for summary judgment on its complaint for declaratory relief and defendant's claims and counterclaims for insurance company's refusal to pay his claim.

Defendant's attorney filed an opposition to the motion for summary judgment, claiming that there was no evidence that the boat had been sunk intentionally. The district court granted the motion for summary judgment and imposed Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11, sanctions on the defendant's attorney for making contentions in his opposition to summary judgment that had no basis in fact.

The appeals court upheld the district court's imposition of sanctions. The appeals court pointed out that the at the time of the attorney's opposition to the motion for summary judgment, an investigation had found that the boat had been intentionally sunk. Defendant's attorney did not dispute the standardized methods or means used to ascertain that the boat had been intentionally sunk; thus, his contention that there was no evidence that the boat had been sunk intentionally was not grounded in the evidence and the attorney was subject to sanction for a violation of Rule 11 (953 F.2d 1328, 1332-1333) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.33

§ 207.33 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Paper Contains Denials of Factual Contentions Not Warranted by Evidence or Not Reasonably Based on Lack of Information or Belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(4)]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (see § 207.28), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7 ARE APPROPRIATE BECAUSE THE DENIALS OF FACTUAL CONTENTIONS IN THE _____ [PLEADING or PETITION or NOTICE OF MOTION or specify some other similar paper] PRESENTED TO THE COURT BY _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], ARE NOT WARRANTED BY THE EVIDENCE [AND ARE NOT REASONABLY BASED ON A LACK OF INFORMATION AND BELIEF].

Denials of Factual Contentions Are Unwarranted. By submitting a pleading, petition, written notice of motion, or other similar paper, counsel or an unrepresented party is certifying that the denials of factual contentions arewarranted on the evidence or, if specifically so identified, are reasonably based on a lack of information or belief (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(4)). If a paper is presented in violation of Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b)(4), the party presenting the paper may be subject to sanctions (see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c), (d)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the memorandum of points and authorities in § 207.28 and submitted in support of the contention that a party is subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 for presenting a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper containing denials of factual contentions that are not warranted on the evidence or are not reasonably based on lack of information or belief. The "presentation" of a paper may be by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating the paper [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should establish that the denials of factual contentions within the paper in question are not warranted on the evidence, or, if the denials are specifically identified in the pleading as being based on information and belief, that they are not reasonably based on a lack of information or belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(4)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.34

§ 207.34 Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Punitive Damages May Be Awarded in Action by Convicted Felon Against Victim Arising Out of Felony [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(f)]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (see § 207.28), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

[IN ADDITION TO OTHER SANCTIONS THAT MAY BE IMPOSED UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7], IT IS [ALSO] PROPER FOR THIS COURT TO ASSESS PUNITIVE DAMAGES AGAINST PLAINTIFF BECAUSE PLAINTIFF HAS BEEN CONVICTED OF A FELONY AND IS BRINGING THIS ACTION AGAINST _____ [THE VICTIM or HEIRS OF THE VICTIM or RELATIVES OF THE VICTIM or THE VICTIM'S ESTATE or THE VICTIM'S PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE] FOR INJURIES ARISING FROM THE ACTS FOR WHICH PLAINTIFF WAS CONVICTED OF THE FELONY, AND THE PLAINTIFF IS GUILTY OF FRAUD, OPPRESSION, OR MALICE IN MAINTAINING THIS ACTION.

Punitive Damages Available in Action by Convicted Felon Against Victim of Felony. In addition to any sanctions available for violation of Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(b), the court may assess punitive damages against the plaintiff on a determination by the court that the plaintiff's action was an action maintained by a person convicted of a felony against the person's victim, or the victim's heirs, relatives, estate, or personal representative, for injuries arising from the acts for which the person was convicted of a felony, and that the plaintiff is guilty of fraud, oppression, or malice in maintaining the action (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(f)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities in §§ 207.28 -207.33 and submitted in support of a defendant's contention that the court should assess punitive damages against plaintiff in addition to other sanctions awarded under to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 because plaintiff is a convicted felon bringing an action against the victim of the felony (or the victim's heirs, relatives, estate, or personal representative) for injuries arising out of the felony for which plaintiff was convicted. The statutory language regarding assessment of punitive damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(f) is identical to that under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(d) [see § 207.26].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that (1) plaintiff has been convicted of a felony; (2) plaintiff is maintaining an action against the victim of the felony or the victim's heirs, relatives, estate, or personal representative for injuries arising from the acts for which plaintiff was convicted of a felony; and (3) plaintiff is guilty of fraud, oppression, or malice in maintaining the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(f)].

177 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.34A

§ 207.34A Supporting Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Juvenile Court Referee May Impose Sanctions in Juvenile Court Dependency Proceedings

[1] FORM
[Caption. See § 207.20[1].]

[The following should be combined with a general memorandum supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (see § 207.28), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

A JUVENILE COURT REFEREE MAY IMPOSE _____ [specify type of sanction(s), e.g., AN ORDER TO PAY A PENALTY INTO COURT], AGAINST _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], FOR PRESENTING A PLEADING, PETITION, WRITTEN NOTICE OF MOTION, OR OTHER SIMILAR PAPER THAT VIOLATES CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7(b) AND FOR FAILING TO GIVE NOTICE OF ANY CORRECTIVE ACTION TAKEN WITHIN 30 DAYS AFTER SERVICE OF THIS MOTION ON _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name] PURSUANT TO CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7(c)(1).

A. Juvenile Court Referee Hearing a Dependency Case May Impose Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, on its face, applies to all civil courts and civil proceedings, and thus applies to juvenile court proceedings. A juvenile court hearing a dependency case under Welf. & Inst. Code § 300 may lawfully impose sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7. A juvenile court referee in dependency proceedings may lawfully impose sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 because a juvenile court referee in dependency proceedings has essentially the same powers as a judge, and any differences are not material to this issue (In re Mark B. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 61, 74-81, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 697).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities in § 207.28 and submitted in support of the contention that an attorney or party in juvenile court proceedings is subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 for presenting a pleading, petition, notice of motion, or other similar paper primarily for an improper purpose, and for failing to give notice of any corrective action taken within the "safe harbor" 21-day period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1), and for the contention that a juvenile court referee may impose sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Juvenile Court May Impose Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7

In In re Mark B. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 61, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 697 , an attorney filed a motion attacking the Sacramento County juvenile court's contract system for appointing conflict counsel in juvenile court dependency proceedings. The attorney who established that system, who was not an attorney of record in the proceedings, obtained leave from the juvenile court to oppose the motion, and then moved for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7. The juvenile court referee denied the conflict motion, granted the sanctions motion, and ordered payment of reasonable attorney's fees and expenses to the attorney opposing the conflicts motion (149 Cal. App. 4th 61, 65-74) . The court of appeal held that the juvenile court in dependency proceedings could impose sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, because that section on its face applies to all civil courts and civil proceedings, and thus applies to juvenile court proceedings (149 Cal. App. 4th 61, 74-80). The court then held that a juvenile court referee in dependency proceedings may lawfully impose sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 because a juvenile court referee in dependency proceedings has essentially the same powers as a judge, and any differences are not material to this issue (149 Cal. App. 4th 61, 80-81).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.35

§ 207.35 Supporting Countermotion for Sanctions--Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 Sanctions Motion Has an Improper Purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(h)]

[1] FORM

[The following should be combined with a general form of memorandum ofpoints and authorities supporting the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (see § 207.28), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

SANCTIONS UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7(h) ARE APPROPRIATE BECAUSE THE SANCTION MOTION BY _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], WAS BROUGHT FOR THE IMPROPER PURPOSE OF _____ [specify, e.g., HARASSING THE DEFENDANT AND NEEDLESSLY INCREASING THE COST OF THE LITIGATION].

Sanctions for Improper Sanctions Motions. A motion for sanctions brought primarily for an improper purpose, such as to harass, cause unnecessary delay, or needlessly increase the cost of litigation, is itself subject to a motion for sanctions under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7 (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(h)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that a party is subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(h) for bringing a motion for sanctions for an improper purpose. It is the intent of the California Legislature that courts must vigorously use their sanctions authority to deter such improper use of a motion for sanctions [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(h)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that the sanctions motion brought by opposing party was brought for an improper purpose such as to harass, cause unnecessary delay, or needlessly increase the costs of litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(h)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.36

§ 207.36 Supporting Motion to Impose Monetary Sanction for Violation of Court Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.20[1].]

THIS COURT SHOULD IMPOSE SANCTIONS AGAINST _____ [name of party, attorney, or witness] FOR VIOLATING THE COURT'S ORDER OF _____ [date], _____ [describe nature of court order violated], WITHOUT GOOD CAUSE OR SUBSTANTIAL JUSTIFICATION.

Sanction for Violation of Lawful Court Order. A judicial officer has the power to impose reasonable money sanctions, not to exceed $1,500, for any violation of a lawful court order without good cause or substantial justification (Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to sanction a party, witness, or attorney for violating the lawful court order without good cause or substantial justification. Sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5 for violating a court order are not to exceed $1,500 and do not apply to advocacy of counsel before the court. Sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5 are payable to the county in which the judicial officer is located, rather than to the moving party.

Sanctions for violating a court order must not be imposed except on notice contained in a party's moving or responding papers or on the court's own motion, after notice and an opportunity to be heard. The order imposing sanctions must be in writing and recite in detail the conduct or circumstances justifying the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that the person against whom sanctions are sought violated a lawful court order without good cause or justification [Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5].

[3] Additional Authorities

In In re Woodham (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 438, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 431 , after an evidentiary hearing in consolidated proceedings on habeas corpus petitions brought by prison inmates, the superior court entered an order concluding that the Board of Prison Terms violated due process by unacceptable delays in processing life-term inmates' administrative appeals. The court also set a time limit for the Board to answer life-term inmates' appeals, and ordered that if the Board were unable to comply with the time limit, it was required to give the inmate written notice that its response would be delayed. The Board then violated the order by failing to respond to a life-term inmate's administrative appeal involving his asserted legal right to be present at a review hearing on the Board's decision denying him parole or to notify him of the delay. The inmate petitioned thesuperior court for habeas corpus asserting that the Board had denied him due process by not timely responding to the appeal, and the court issued an order to show cause. The court after hearing denied the petition on the ground that the inmate had no right to be present at the review hearing, but found the Board's response to the administrative appeal was untimely, the argument that the failure to make a timely response was attributable to a backlog of appeals and not wilful was unpersuasive, and ordered the Board to show cause why sanctions should not be imposed under Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 227. The court then held a hearing and imposed sanctions (95 Cal. App. 4th 438, 440-442) . The Court of Appeal affirmed the sanctions order, holding that it was statutorily authorized, since the Board's failure to respond caused unnecessary litigation, and that there was a sufficient factual basis for the award, because the trial court properly concluded that the excuses of administrative error and increase in the number of administrative appeals filed near the same time as this inmate's did not establish that the Board had good cause or substantial justification for violating the underlying order (95 Cal. App. 4th 438, 443-447) .

In 20th Century Ins. Co. v. Choong (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753 , at a mandatory settlement conference, the court imposed a monetary sanction of $200 on counsel for failure to prepare a mandatory settlement conference statement as required by local rule. The order provided that the sanction would be set aside if the statement was submitted by 4:30 the next day. The court also continued the settlement conference to the next week. At the continued conference, counsel conceded that the sanction had not been paid and told the court he did not know the sanction order was directed at him. The trial court rejected the excuse as counsel was present when the order was issued, and imposed an additional sanction of $250 for failing to pay the original sanction. On appeal, the original sanction was not challenged, but counsel argued that the second sanction was an abuse of discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5. The court of appeal held that it was not an abuse of discretion, where the court had every right to impose a monetary sanction to compel obedience to its lawful orders or to punish disobedience and disrespect of the court's processes, and the court could have reasonably believed a swift additional sanction in response to the failure to obey its first order would be more effective than enforcing the first sanction order by a time-consuming action to obtain a writ of execution and levy on counsel's property (79 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1278) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.37

§ 207.37 Supporting Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule [Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2; Gov. Code § 68608(b)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.20[1].]

THIS COURT SHOULD IMPOSE SANCTIONS AGAINST _____ [name of party or attorney] FOR NONCOMPLIANCE WITH _____ [specify local court rule violated].

Sanction for Noncompliance With Local Rules. The court may impose sanctions on a party or attorney for failure to comply with local rules. These sanction may include the striking of pleadings, dismissal, entry of a default judgment, or an order to pay expenses including attorney's fees (see Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(a); Gov. Code § 68608(b)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion to sanction a party or attorney for the violation of local rules. Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 provides general authority for the court to enforce local rules with sanctions; Gov. Code § 68608(b) specifically authorizes sanctions to enforce local trial court delay reduction (fast-track) rules. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 177.5, 575.1, 575.2, together with Gov. Code § 68608(b) provide a comprehensive statewide scheme of regulation concerning fast-track matters, and local rules supplement the statewide scheme [see Moyal v. Lanphear (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 491, 500, 256 Cal. Rptr. 296] .

Local court rules and policies should be checked before moving for sanctions for a violation of local court rules to ascertain if there are any local requirements concerning the motion.

[b] No Independent Power to Impose Sanction on Innocent Party Under Gov. Code § 68608(b)

Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b) applies to fast track rules and provides that when a party is in no way personally responsible for counsel's failure to comply with a local fast track rule, sanctions must only be imposed on counsel, not the innocent party. The more general provision contained in Gov. Code § 68608(b) does not express a legislative intent to establish an independent sanctioning power. Rather, the two statutes must be read in harmony with each other [see Garcia v. McCutchen (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 469, 481-482, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 940 P.2d 906] .

For further discussion of the relationship between Gov. Code § 68608(b) and*Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b),* see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender).

[c] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that the party or attorney against whom sanctions are sought violated a local court rule and provide argument concerning why the sanction sought is appropriate under the circumstances.

If seeking a sanction of dismissal or other sanction that adversely affects the opposing party's cause of action or defense, counsel should discuss evidence that the party was responsible or partly responsible for the violation of local rule or that the violation was of fast-track rules and thus the sanction is not subject to the prohibition of Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b) against punishing a party for the failure of counsel to follow local rules [see § 207.48; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2; Gov. Code § 68608(b)].

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 207.47 and 207.48 may be used to oppose the motion supported by the points and authorities in this form.

181 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.38

§ 207.38 Supporting Motion to Recover Defense Costs in Action Under Tort Claims Act or for Indemnity or Contribution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038]--Defense Costs May be Awarded If Plaintiff Lacked Either Reasonable Cause or Good Faith

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.20[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD ORDER PLAINTIFFS TO PAY DEFENSE COSTS, INCLUDING ATTORNEY'S FEES BECAUSE THE ACTION WAS NOT BROUGHT WITH REASONABLE CAUSE AND IN GOOD FAITH BELIEF THERE WAS A JUSTIFIABLE CONTROVERSY UNDER THE FACTS AND LAW.

A. Statutory Authority to Award Defense Costs Under California Tort Claims Act. If, after the defendant prevails on a dispositive motion, the trial court finds the plaintiff lacked either reasonable cause or good faith in filing or maintaining an action _____ [under the California Tort Claims Act or for express or implied indemnity or for contribution], the court shall award to defendant all reasonable and necessary defense costs, in addition to costs normally awarded to the prevailing party. Defense costs include reasonable attorney's fees, expert witness fees, the expense of services of experts, advisers, and consultants in defense of the proceeding, and where reasonably and necessarily incurred in defending the proceeding (Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a), (b)).

B. Defense Costs Available If Either Reasonable Cause or Good Faith Lacking. The defendant need not establish that both reasonable cause and good faith are lacking to recover defense costs under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1038(a) (Kobzoff v. Los Angeles County Harbor/UCLA Medical Center (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 851, 853, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803, 968 P.2d 514).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted by a defendant in an action under the California Tort Claims Act, when the action was brought either without reasonable cause or without a good faith belief in the justifiability of the action.

An award of defense costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 may be made only on notice and opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a)].

Note that filing a motion to recover defense costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 waives the defendant's right to malicious prosecution damages, while the failure to make the motion is not deemed a waiver of the right to pursue a malicious prosecution action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(c)].

Counsel should add argument to this form, linking the points in the form with the facts of his or her case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Authority to Award Defense Costs Under California Tort Claims Act

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 , in any civil proceeding under the California Tort Claims Act, or in any civil action for express or implied indemnity or for contribution, the court, upon motion of the defendant or cross-defendant, shall, at the time of the granting of any summary judgment, motion for directed verdict, motion for judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 631.8, or any nonsuit dismissing the moving party other than the plaintiff, petitioner, cross-complainant, or intervenor (or at such later time set forth by rule), determine whether or not the plaintiff, petitioner, cross-complainant, or intervenor brought the proceeding with reasonable cause and in the good faith belief that there was a justifiable controversy under the facts and law which warranted the filing of the complaint, petition, cross-complaint, or complaint in intervention. If the court should determine that the proceeding was not brought in good faith and with reasonable cause, an additional issue shall be decided as to the defense costs reasonably and necessarily incurred by the party or parties opposing the proceeding, and the court shall render judgment in favor of that party in the amount of all reasonable and necessary defense costs, in addition to those costs normally awarded to the prevailing party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a)].

An award of defense costs under this section shall not be made except on notice contained in a party's papers and an opportunity to be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(a)].

"Defense costs" include reasonable attorneys' fees, expert witness fees, the expense of services of experts, advisers, and consultants in defense of the proceeding, and where reasonably and necessarily incurred in defending the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 applies only on motion made prior to the discharge of the jury or entry of judgment, and any party requesting the relief pursuant to this section waives any right to seek damages for malicious prosecution. Failure to make the motion shall not be deemed a waiver of the right to pursue a malicious prosecution action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(c)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 applies only if the defendant or cross-defendant has made a motion for summary judgment, judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 631.8, directed verdict, or nonsuit, and the court grants that motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(d)].

[b] Defense Costs Available If Either Reasonable Cause or Good Faith Lacking

In Kobzoff v. Los Angeles County Harbor/UCLA Medical Center (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 851, 853, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803, 968 P.2d 514 , a decedent's family brought an action against a county after the decedent, who was admitted to a county hospital after emergency personnel prevented him from jumping off a cliff, left the hospital and committed suicide. The county answered the complaint and asserted immunity under Gov. Code § 856.2(a)(2). The trial court granted the county's motion for summary judgment because the plaintiffs failed to refute the county's immunity claim. The court also granted the county's motion for defense costs, including attorney's fees, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 because, since the statutory immunity was irrefutable, there was no reasonable cause for filing the action. The court did not make a finding on whether the action was brought in good faith. The court of appeal reversed. It held that, in order to award defense costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038, the court had to find the defendant lack both reasonable cause and good faith in filing the action.

The Supreme Court reversed. It held that the statutory language plainly required only that the plaintiffs lacked reasonable cause or bad faith in filing or maintaining the action to support the award of defense costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038. Since the plaintiffs' action lacked reasonable cause as a matter of law, the award of defense costs was proper (19 Cal. 4th 851, 856-864) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.39

§ 207.39 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Action Taken in Good Faith and Not Frivolous

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name]	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
vs.	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR AWARD
_____ [name],	)	OF SANCTIONS
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE MOTION BY _____ [specify party, e.g., DEFENDANT] FOR SANCTIONS, UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE ACTIONS OR TACTICS OF _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] WERE IN GOOD FAITH AND WERE NOT FRIVOLOUS OR SOLELY INTENDED TO CAUSE UNNECESSARY DELAY.

A. Limit on Power to Award Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. The court's power to award monetary sanctions under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 for tactics or actions not based on good faith that are frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay is not intended to chill the valid assertion of a litigant's rights, and sanctions should not be imposed except in the clearest of cases (see Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983)

140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117, 189 Cal. Rptr. 208).

[Optional] B. Action's Lack of Merit as Insufficient Basis Alone for Imposition of Sanctions. The fact that an action is determined to be without merit does not by itself make the action frivolous when there is no showing of improper motive or that the party bringing the action knew or should have known that the facts or law or both preclude the action or any recovery (see Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 116, 189 Cal. Rptr. 208).

[Optional] C. Frivolous Action Is One Prosecuted for Improper Motive or Indisputably Without Merit. An action is frivolous only when an issue is prosecuted for an improper motive--to harass the respondent or delay the effect of an adverse judgment--or when it indisputably has no merit. Frivolousness should be narrowly construed to avoid a chilling effect on the assertion of rights, and attorneys should be sanctioned only for the most egregious conduct (Luke v. Baldwin-United Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 664, 668, 213 Cal. Rptr. 654).

[Add appropriate contentions from §§ 207.40-207.42 to support the motion for sanctions.]

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, when the opposition is based on the fact that no bad faith was shown, and the actions or tactics of the party opposing the motion were not frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel could insert in Paragraph A the facts supporting the reasonableness of the actions taken under the circumstances. If opposition to the motion is based on more than one ground, these points and authorities may be combined with the memoranda in §§ 207.40-207.42, as appropriate.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 207.20 -207.27.

[d] Effective Dates

Sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 apply only to actions or proceedings pending as of December 31, 1994 [see

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(1)]. For actions and proceedings commenced after 1994, the award of expenses, including attorney's fees, as a sanction for frivolous actions or delaying tactics is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5(b)(1), 128.7(i); see also § 207.02]. For forms that may be used to oppose a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, see §§ 207.43 -207.45.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Limit on Power to Award Sanctions Under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5

Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 189 Cal. Rptr. 208 , involved an action for damages to real and personal property caused by the failure of a levee and the resulting flooding of plaintiff's property. After filing claims against various public entities, including defendant, and the rejection of those claims, plaintiff commenced this action within the six-month statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 945.6.

The plaintiff was unsure of the potential liability of defendant port district, so the complaint was not served on the district, and plaintiff informed the district that no action would be taken against it unless discovery instituted against other named and served defendants indicated that the port district was somehow responsible for the levee failure. The port district answered, nevertheless, and sought a summary judgment and discovery.

The court denied the summary judgment motion, but ordered plaintiff to respond to the district's interrogatories. Instead, plaintiff dismissed the action, and the district filed a motion for expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 on the ground that the action against the district was frivolous. The trial court granted the motion on the ground that the failure to respond to the district's interrogatories and the dismissal showed that plaintiff never had a meritorious action against the district. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the trial court applied an improper standard (140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 116) . The important factor in determining if a party has instituted a frivolous action is not whether a party has a meritorious action, but rather whether the action was initiated with an improper motive, or with knowledge that no action or recovery is possible (140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 116) . The court noted that although the Legislature through Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 to broaden the trial courts' power to award sanctions for tactics or actions not based on good faith, the Legislature did not intend to chill the valid assertion of a litigant's rights against a public entity or against any other defendant. For this reason, the court observed, sanctions should not be imposed except in the clearest of cases. In this case, the court held, plaintiff filed the action only to avoid the bar of limitations, while at the same time taking no steps that would require the district to incur any expense, and the court therefore concluded that under the circumstances an award of sanctions constituted a manifest abuse of discretion (140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 117) .

Note that Stockton Port Dist. was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, prior to its amendment by 1984 and 1985 legislation. Under current Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(2) "frivolous" means totally and completely without merit or for the sole purpose of harassing an opposing party. It is unclear how the case would be decided under the current statute, but given the facts in the case and plaintiff's need to commence its action within the six-month limitation period, it appears that it could be argued that plaintiff's actions were not frivolous even under the new standard. Furthermore, under the current version of the statute, "actions or tactics" do not include the mere filing of a complaint without serving it on the other party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(1); see also § 207.42]. Thus, on that basis alone, the trial court would have had no power to award sanctions to the port district.

[b] Action's Lack of Merit as Insufficient Basis Alone for Imposition of Sanctions

Note that the California courts of appeal currently are divided on the question of whether an action's lack of merit is a sufficient basis, standing alone, for the imposition of sanctions. Several courts have followed the position stated in Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Stockton Port Dist. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 111, 116, 189 Cal. Rptr. 208

(discussed in § 207.39[3][a]) and have declined to permit sanctions absent a finding of subjective bad faith [see, e.g., Llamas v. Diaz (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1046-1048, 267 Cal. Rptr. 427 (Fourth District, Division Three) (discussed in § 207.39[4][a])].

Other courts, however, have indicated that sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 may be imposed solely on the basis of objective frivolousness [see, e.g., Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581 (First District, Division Four) ; Weisman v. Bower (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1231, 1236, 238 Cal. Rptr. 756 (Second District, Division Three) ; see also Summers v. City of Cathedral City (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1070-1072, 275 Cal. Rptr. 594 (discussing split of authority)]. Such courts would, in all likelihood, reject the point raised by Paragraph B.

[c] Frivolous Action Is One Prosecuted for Improper Motive or Indisputably Without Merit

In Luke v. Baldwin-United Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 664, 213 Cal. Rptr. 654 , plaintiff filed an action against defendant corporation for his wrongful termination. Before answering the complaint, defendant's attorneys questioned adirector in charge of defendant's internal audit about defendant's contacts with California and researched the law on personal jurisdiction over foreign corporations. Defendant's attorneys filed a motion to quash, asserting California did not have personal jurisdiction over defendant, and attached a declaration by the director that contained statements indicating no California contacts.

Defendant's attorneys stipulated to a continuance of the hearing on the motion to allow plaintiff to conduct discovery on the jurisdictional issue. During the deposition of the director, a number of California contacts were disclosed. Defendant's attorneys withdrew the motion to quash. Although no opposition to the motion to quash had been filed, plaintiff filed a request for sanctions, seeking attorney's fees and costs. The trial court ordered sanctions imposed against defendant and defendant's attorneys for filing a frivolous motion to quash. Defendant's attorneys appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court focused its inquiry on whether the conduct of defendant's attorneys was so egregious as to justify the imposition of sanctions pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The court cited pertinent language by the Supreme Court in In re Marriage of Flaherty (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 637, 183 Cal. Rptr. 508, 646 P.2d 179 , on the issue of the attorney's role. Attorneys face the danger of being trapped between their obligation to their clients to diligently pursue any possibly meritorious claims, and their obligation to the judicial system to refrain from prosecuting frivolous claims. The Court in Flaherty narrowly confined frivolous to include only issues prosecuted for an improper motive--to harass the respondent or delay the effect of an adverse judgment--or when it indisputably has no merit. Even after defining frivolous, the Court cautioned that any definition must be read so as to avoid a serious chilling effect on the assertion of litigants' rights, and the power to punish attorneys should be used most sparingly to deter only the most egregious conduct (167 Cal. App. 3d 664, 668) .

Defendant's attorneys in Luke contended that their filing of the motion to quash fell far short of the requisite egregious conduct. The court compared the attorneys' conduct with that of attorneys in three cases in which sanctions were upheld and found that the conduct of defendant's attorneys stood in glaring contrast. The trial court punished the attorneys because it seemed inconceivable that an attorney could not or would not have elicited all the facts prior to the filing of the motion to quash. Yet it had no way to allocate responsiblity between counsel and its client. In all of the cases in which attorneys have been personally sanctioned, their derelictions were blatant; they personally misused the judicial system. The imposition of sanctions against defendant's attorneys was based on impermissible speculation and conjecture as to facts they could have or should have discovered. The Legislature did not intend to chill the valid assertion of a litigant's rights against any defendant. It is clear sanctions should not be imposed except in the clearest of cases (167 Cal. App. 3d 664, 668-669) .

The culpability of the attorneys was far from clear. The trial court ignored the unique circumstances and seemed to attribute defendant's conduct to its lawyers, an improper basis for the imposition of sanctions against attorneys. The trial court had no way to determine whether defendant or its attorneys were to blame for filing the motion without invading the attorney-client privilege. Because there was insufficient evidence that the attorneys initiated the motion for an improper motive, the motion was not utterly without merit when filed. Additionally, the privilege prevented defendant's attorneys from exonerating themselves. Thus, the trial court abused its discretion by ordering the sanctions (167 Cal. App. 3d 664, 669-670) .

It should be noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 was amended in 1985 to include a definition of frivolous. The statutory definition does not appear to conflict with the language of the case or dictate a different result.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Action's Lack of Merit as Insufficient Basis Alone for Imposition of Sanctions

In Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 , the plaintiff moved to vacate an arbitration judgment while an appeal was pending. The trial court denied the motion for lack of jurisdiction and imposed sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 on the plaintiff's counsel for filing a frivolous motion. The appellate court reversed the order imposing sanctions. Pendency of an appeal does not divest a trial court of jurisdiction if a judgment is wholly void and not merely voidable. The plaintiff's motion was not frivolous due to the lack of uniformity in the case law on the issue of whether the arbitration judgment was void or voidable (16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 940-941) .

In Llamas v. Diaz (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 267 Cal. Rptr. 427 , parties who prevailed on the merits as defendants in a fraud action appealed from an order of the trial court denying their motion for sanctions against the plaintiffs' attorney. The court of appeal affirmed the order, noting that although the attorney against whom sanctions were sought brought an action that was "totally and completely without merit," the action was not instituted in bad faith. Citing a specific finding by the trial court that the attorney "sincerely believed there was a basis for recovery," the court of appeal found that any subjective bad faith was negated. The court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 requires an assessment of subjective bad faith in addition to finding that a particular action or tactic was frivolous (218 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1047-1048) .

In Garcia v. Sterling (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 17, 221 Cal. Rptr. 349 , the trial court assessed costs to plaintiff for bringing a frivolous motion to strike portions of defendant's answer. Plaintiff contended that these portions constituted false pleadings within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 436 and 437, because theycontradicted defendant's prior deposition. In reversing, the court of appeal ruled that the motion was clearly without merit since the trial court could not take judicial notice of the truth of the matters contained in the deposition, but held that the trial court nonetheless erred in ordering plaintiffs to pay attorney's fees and costs. The court noted that it could not be said that plaintiff's motion was in bad faith and frivolous simply because plaintiff's counsel relied on decisions that, in the trial court's view, misstated or misapplied the law regarding judicial notice of court records (176 Cal. App. 3d 17, 22-23) .

183 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.40

§ 207.40 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Requirements of Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard Not Met

[1] FORM

[The following can be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities opposing the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.39), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MOTION TO AWARD SANCTIONS TO _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] _____ [name] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE ADEQUATE NOTICE AND AN OPPORTUNITY TO BE HEARD HAVE NOT BEEN GIVEN TO _____ [specify party or other person against whom sanctions have been assessed].

A. Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard Required. Sanctions may not be imposed under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5, except on notice contained in a party's moving or responding papers, or the court's own motion, after notice and opportunity to be heard (see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c); Lesser v. Huntington Harbor Corp. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 930-934, 219 Cal. Rptr. 562).

B. Written Notice Required. The notice required by Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5(c) must be written, and telephonic notice is not sufficient to meet the statutory requirements (O'Brien v. Cseh (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 961, 196 Cal. Rptr. 409 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010).

C. Due Process Requires Adequate Notice. The due process clauses of both the state and federal Constitutions also require that adequate notice be given prior to the imposition of sanctions (U.S. Const., Amend. XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7; O'Brien v. Cseh (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 961, 196 Cal. Rptr. 409).

[Optional] D. Ex Parte Imposition of Sanctions Offends Due Process. The imposition of sanctions ex parte by a superior court is a violation of due process principles (O'Brien v. Cseh (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 962, 196 Cal. Rptr. 409).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities from § 207.39 and submitted in opposition to a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The ground for opposition is that the requirement for notice and opportunity to be heard, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c) and due process principles, was not met.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard Required

In Lesser v. Huntington Harbor Corp. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 219 Cal. Rptr. 562 , plaintiff brought suit against defendant, alleging various causes of action. Defendant's trial brief, served on plaintiff on the day of the trial, contained a demand for expenses that was "buried on page 17 of the trial brief, without any special headings or notice language." After plaintiff presented his case at trial, defendant moved for a nonsuit. The court granted defendant's motion, finding that plaintiff's evidence was unbelievable and did not substantiate plaintiff's claims. The court then concluded that the case was a proper one for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. 128.5 and ordered a hearing for the next day to determine the amount of the sanctions. At that hearing, after taking evidence regarding the expenses of the defendant, it imposed costs and attorney's fees of more than $59,000 (173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 927, 932) .

The court of appeal reversed on the grounds that plaintiff did not receive adequate notice and was not afforded an adequate opportunity to be heard. It held that notice was required not only by Code Civ. Proc. 128.5, but also by the due process clauses of the state and federal constitutions. It also noted that adequate notice should be determined on a case-by-case basis with an additional measure of notice required when the entire lawsuit is questioned as frivolous and the potential amount of sanctions is substantial (173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 930-932) . The court held that the notice afforded plaintiff was insufficient since the expenses in defense were substantial and the one or two days' notice afforded plaintiff did not give plaintiff time to prepare declarations in support of his position.

The court additionally held that plaintiff was denied adequate opportunity to be heard. In reviewing case authority, the court suggested that a party subject tosanctions under Code Civ. Proc. 128.5 is entitled to an evidentiary hearing at which, within the discretion of the trial judge, he or she may produce evidence and witnesses and otherwise defend against the motion (173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 933-934) . The court held that the hearing on the motion for sanctions did not adequately allow plaintiff to present evidence in light of the trial court's statement that "the only reason for this hearing, so far as I am concerned, is to determine the amount of the attorney fees" (173 Cal. App. 3d 922, 934-935) .

[b] Written Notice Required

In O'Brien v. Cseh (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 196 Cal. Rptr. 409 , plaintiff in the underlying personal injury action sought sanctions of attorney's fees against defendant. The underlying case had been ordered to arbitration, and the appointed arbitrator sent a letter to both parties notifying them of a scheduled date for the arbitration hearing. Defendant's attorney sent letters back to the arbitrator and to plaintiff's attorney notifying them that that date was not acceptable. One week later, plaintiff's attorney filed an ex parte application for a court order setting an arbitration date, in which he sought sanctions against defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5.

In the application for sanctions, plaintiff's attorney declared that defendant's attorney was trying to "Stonewall" the arbitration date, based on the fact that plaintiff's attorney had placed eight unanswered telephone calls to defendant's attorney, and based on the arbitrator's mentioning having had some difficulty in contacting defendant's attorney. Plaintiff's attorney declared that he had given the necessary four-hour notice under local court rule requirements for ex parte matters by placing telephone calls to two secretaries in defendant's attorney office, informing them of the date, time, and place of the ex parte application, on the day before the hearing on the motion. The trial court set the date for the arbitration hearing and ordered defendant and defendant's attorney to pay $150, stating only as the reason therefor "for good cause appearing." Defendant appealed the part of the order imposing attorney's fees.

The court of appeal reversed because the notice requirements of due process and former Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c)] were not met and because the order did not detail the justification for the imposition of sanctions with the degree of specificity required by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 961-962) . The court stated that complying with the local requirements for notice in ex parte matters was not sufficient because an application for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 is not an ex parte matter. Applications for orders may not be ex parte if a statute or rule requires notice, as does Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The court stated that Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 requires notice to be in writing, and that the federal and state due process clauses require that adequate notice be given (148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 961) .

The court discussed the purpose for the enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, which was to ensure that appropriate safeguards would be used when monetary sanctions are awarded. The court stated that another court of appeal decision, Ellis v. Roshei Corp. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647 & n.5, 192 Cal. Rptr. 57 , had suggested that the five-day notice requirement for responding papers might not be sufficient to satisfy due process requirements when the responding papers include a request for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 961-962) .

The court also stated that summary imposition of sanctions by appellate courts offends due process principles, and that ex parte imposition of sanctions by a superior court is no less offensive (148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 962) .

[c] Due Process Requires Adequate Notice

O'Brien v. Cseh (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 196 Cal. Rptr. 409 , is discussed in § 207.40[3][b].

[d] Ex Parte Imposition of Sanctions Offends Due Process

O'Brien v. Cseh (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 957, 196 Cal. Rptr. 409 , is discussed in § 207.40[3][b].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard Required

In Eby v. Chaskin (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517 , a court imposed sanctions on a judgment debtor's attorney at a judgment debtor examination when the attorney did not appear. This was the third hearing for the examination. At the first hearing, the debtor failed to appear, but the attorney was there and stated that the debtor was ill. At the second hearing the debtor appeared with an attorney, but failed to produce some documents she had been required to bring. At the third hearing the debtor appeared with the documents, but without her attorney. The attorney appealed the sanctions on the ground that they had been imposed with insufficient notice and opportunity to be heard. The court of appeal noted that the sanctions were imposed in the attorney's absence, and prior to giving the attorney an opportunity to explain her absence (47 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1049) . Since the decision was made without providing the attorney an opportunity to be heard, the court reversed the order of sanctions.

[b] Due Process Requires Adequate Notice

In Barrientos v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 63, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520 , the trial judge imposed sanctions against the parties' attorneys for alleged conduct of the attorneys in an unreported status conference in chambers. The attorneys objected to the sanctions on the ground that they were not given notice of the court's intent to impose sanctions and an opportunity to be heard. The courtof appeal reversed the trial court's order imposing sanctions. Although the trial judge argued that the attorneys did have notice and an opportunity to be heard, the court of appeal determined that an indirect allusion by the judge of the possibility of a sanctions award made to only one of the two attorneys did not satisfy the notice requirement. In addition, the attorneys should have been provided with an opportunity to explain, on the record, their conduct before the court made its decision (30 Cal. App. 4th 63, 71) . Furthermore, the court's offer to strike the sanctions order if the case settled constituted an attempt to coerce a settlement, which is improper (30 Cal. App. 4th 63, 71-72) .

In In re Marriage of Quinlan (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1417, 257 Cal. Rptr. 850 , the court of appeal reversed a trial court's order imposing sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, finding that the sanctioned attorney did not have adequate notice of or opportunity to respond to the threat of sanctions. The court noted that opposing party's oral request for sanctions at a post-dissolution hearing based on the attorney's "unorthodox and wholly improper conduct" did not give the attorney any notice of the grounds underlying the sanction order. Furthermore, the grounds recited in the court's formal order imposing sanctions were grounds that were never asserted as a basis for sanctions, either by the opposing party or the judge, at any time before rendition of the sanctions order. In addition, the court never gave the attorney a clue that sanctions might be imposed for conduct not previously specified by the opposing party. The court concluded that the attorney was deprived of due process and that the sanctions order would have to be reversed (209 Cal. App. 3d 1417, 1421-1422) .

In Corralejo v. Quiroga (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 871, 199 Cal. Rptr. 733 , plaintiffs filed a complaint against defendants in municipal court. When defendants cross complained, seeking damages in excess of the jurisdictional limits of municipal court, the matter was transferred to superior court on payment of transfer fees by defendants. Plaintiffs filed a motion to dismiss the cross complaint for defendants' failure to pay the requisite transfer fees. Defendants paid the fee one day prior to the hearing on that motion. Plaintiffs received no notice of that payment, and subsequently sought imposition of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, contending that defendants' actions were dilatory and required plaintiffs to suffer expenses of filing and appearing at the hearing to dismiss the cross complaint. The trial court ordered the sanctions imposed as follows: "Motion is granted. Sanctions of $100 from defense counsel to plaintiffs' counsel are ordered." Defendants appealed. The court of appeal reversed (152 Cal. App. 3d 871, 874) .

The court observed that the notice given provided that plaintiffs would move for an order for payment of expenses, including attorney's fees, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (152 Cal. App. 3d 871, 873-874) . It did not clearly provide that sanctions were being sought against the attorney. The attorney must be put on notice of the need to prove his or her own blamelessness in the complained of action. Moreover, the order failed to cite specific circumstances justifying the imposition of sanctions. That lack of specificity violated not only the statute, but due process principles as well (152 Cal. App. 3d 871, 874) .

184 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.41

§ 207.41 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Sanctions Authorized Only Against Party or Party's Attorney in Favor of Opposing Party or Opposing Party's Attorney

[1] FORM

[The following can be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities opposing the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.39), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

IT IS NOT PROPER FOR THE COURT TO AWARD SANCTIONS AGAINST _____ [name] AND IN FAVOR OF _____ [specify, e.g., PLAINTIFF _____ (name)] UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 BECAUSE A COURT MAY IMPOSE SANCTIONS UNDER THAT SECTION ONLY AGAINST A PARTY OR A PARTY'S ATTORNEY AND IN FAVOR OF AN OPPOSING PARTY OR AN OPPOSING PARTY'S ATTORNEY.

A. Award of Sanctions Against Nonparty or Attorney of Nonparty Improper. Sanctions under Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 may only be imposed against a party or a party's attorney and in favor of an opposing party or an opposing party's attorney. Thus, for example, sanctions against the attorney of a nonparty in favor of that attorney's nonparty client are improper (see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(a); Rabbitt v. Vincente (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 170, 174-175, 240 Cal. Rptr. 524).

[Optional] B. Award of Sanctions Against Attorney Associated With Party Through Separate Litigation in Foreign Jurisdiction Improper. Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 does not authorize the imposition of sanctions against an attorney who is not of record and is simply associated with a party through separate litigation pursued entirely in a foreign jurisdiction (County of Imperial v. Farmer (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 479, 485, 252 Cal. Rptr. 382).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points andauthorities from § 207.39 and submitted to oppose a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The ground for opposition is that an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 is improper unless it is made against a party or party's attorney and in favor or an opposing party or opposing party's attorney.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Award of Sanctions Against Attorney of Nonparty Improper

In Rabbitt v. Vincente (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 170, 240 Cal. Rptr. 524 , two plaintiffs hired the same attorney to sue defendants for personal injuries arising out of an automobile accident. The attorney for plaintiffs settled the cause of action on behalf of one of the plaintiffs, but continued to represent the other in the underlying suit. After the one plaintiff had settled out of the case, defendants served her with a subpoena requiring her appearance at a deposition. Plaintiff failed to appear on the scheduled date, due to a false statement by her attorney's secretary that the deposition had been continued. Defendants initiated a contempt proceeding against the settled plaintiff, and the settled plaintiff hired a new attorney to represent her in this proceeding.

In the contempt proceeding, the presiding referee found that the settled plaintiff was not in contempt. The referee also awarded settled plaintiff sanctions and attorney's fees against her former attorney pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, based on a finding that the advice to the plaintiff concerning her attendance at her deposition was unreasonable and in bad faith. The trial court adopted the referee's recommendations and denied the attorney's motion for reconsideration. The attorney appealed, claiming, inter alia, that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction by awarding the fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5.

The court of appeal reversed. It noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 enables a trial court to impose sanctions on a party, the party's attorney, or on both, and that cases imposing Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 sanctions do so only against a party or a party's attorney, and in favor of an opposing party or an opposing party's attorney. The court said that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 does not give trial courts the power to adjudicate attorney-client disputes of the kind in the instant case. Furthermore, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 does not extend so far as to enable a trial court to impose sanctions against the attorney of a nonparty in favor of that attorney's nonparty client. The court concluded that the sanctions awarded by the trial court exceeded the jurisdictional scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (195 Cal. App. 3d 170, 174-175) .

Counsel should note that a case decided subsequent to Rabbitt has held that sanctions may be awarded under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 in favor of a former party. In Frank Annino & Sons Construction, Inc. v. McArthur Restaurants, Inc. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 353, 263 Cal. Rptr. 592 , a case in which a dismissed party defendant to a breach of contract action sought sanctions for the bad faith tactics he suffered while he was a party, the court of appeal held that a trial court has jurisdiction to consider a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 for sanctions on behalf of person whom plaintiff had previously dismissed as a party defendant, if the plaintiff's bad faith tactics occurred while the movant was a party (215 Cal. App. 3d 353, 357-359) .

The Frank Annino court distinguished Rabbitt, noting that the sanctions sought in Rabbitt were for bad-faith tactics that occurred after the settling party withdrew from the underlying lawsuit; furthermore, the bad-faith tactics in Rabbitt related to the settling party's role as a witness--not as a party (215 Cal. App. 3d 353, 358 n.3). Although the holding in Frank Annino could be argued to be inconsistent with the statement in Rabbitt that cases imposing Code Civ. Proc. §

128.5 sanctions do so only in favor of an opposing party or opposing party's attorney, the general rule that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 sanctions are unavailable to nonparties appears to remain valid, except when, as in Frank Annino, the person seeking sanctions is a former party who suffered bad-faith tactics while still a party.

[b] Award of Sanctions Against Attorney Associated With Party Through Separate Litigation in Foreign Jurisdiction Improper

In County of Imperial v. Farmer (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 479, 252 Cal. Rptr. 382 , a California trial court imposed sanctions against an attorney under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, purportedly based on the attorney's legal services provided to a father in a 1987 custody action filed in the State of Washington under the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act. The sanctions were imposed during a proceeding brought by the mother to reactivate a 1976 paternity/support action that had been filed in Imperial County, California. The attorney was neither a party nor an attorney of record to this California proceeding. The trial court denied the attorney's motion to vacate the sanction order.

The court of appeal reversed. It held that the reach of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 is confined to actions and conduct within proceedings conducted in California trial courts. Here, the trial court erred by trying to apply the statute to the attorney, who had never been a party to the California paternity/support action, had never been an attorney of record in any California action, and had merely provided legal services to a party to a custody petition in the State of Washington. The attorney filed no action in California, and thus was not subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 for conduct interfering with the orderly dispatch of litigationproceedings within the supervisory power of the California courts (205 Cal. App. 3d 479, 485-486) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.42

§ 207.42 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Complaint Filed or Proceeding Initiated Before 1995--Bad-Faith Actions or Tactics That Are Frivolous or Solely Intended to Cause Unnecessary Delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5]--Mere Filing of Complaint Without Service on Other Party Is Not Basis for Sanctions

[1] FORM

[The following can be combined with a general form of memorandum of points and authorities opposing the award of sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see § 207.39), or may be included in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PLAINTIFF'S MERE FILING OF A COMPLAINT WITHOUT SERVING IT ON THE DEFENDANT DOES NOT CONSTITUTE "ACTIONS OR TACTICS" WITHIN THE MEANING OF CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.5 AND THEREFORE CANNOT SERVE AS THE BASIS FOR THE IMPOSITION OF SANCTIONS UNDER THAT STATUTE.

Filing of Complaint Without Service on Opposing Party Is Not Within Purview of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The mere filing of a complaint without serving it on an opposing party does not constitute "actions or tactics" for purposes of Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.5 (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(1)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be combined with the appropriate points and authorities from § 207.39 and submitted in opposition to a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5. The ground for opposition is that an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 may not be based on the mere filing of a complaint without serving it on the opposing party.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.43

§ 207.43 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Attorney or Unrepresented Party Conducted Reasonable Inquiry Under Circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.39[1].]

THE MOTION BY _____ [specify moving party, e.g., DEFENDANT], _____ [name], FOR SANCTIONS AGAINST _____ [specify opposing party or attorney, e.g., PLAINTIFF'S ATTORNEY], _____ [name], UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7 SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE _____ [specify opposing party or attorney, e.g., PLAINTIFF'S ATTORNEY] MADE AN INQUIRY THAT WAS REASONABLE UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES.

Inquiry Is Reasonable Under the Circumstances. The inquiry required by counsel or an unrepresented party before presenting a pleading, petition, written notice of motion, or other similar paper and certifying that the conditions specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)-(4) are met is one that is reasonable under the circumstances (see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b); CTC Imports and Exports v. Nigerian Petroleum (3d Cir. 1991) 951 F.2d 573, 578-579 (decided under similar federal rule)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These point and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for sanctions for a violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b), which provides that by presenting a pleading, petition, written notice of motion, or other similar paper to the court, counsel or an unrepresented party is certifying that to the best of the person's knowledge, information, and belief, formed after an inquiry reasonable under the circumstances, the conditions specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)-(4) are met.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, the memorandum should discuss evidence that counsel or the unrepresented party made an inquiry that was reasonable under the circumstances before presenting the pleading or other paper to the court and that, at the time of presentation, to the best of counsel's or unrepresented party's knowledge, information, and belief, the conditions specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(1)-(4) were met [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)]. Because the standard is a fact-specific one, the court must consider all the circumstances [CTC Imports and Exports v. Nigerian Petroleum (3d Cir. 1991) 951 F.2d 573, 578] .

If the motion is opposed on more than one ground, these memorandum may be combined with the memoranda in § 207.44 or 207.45, as appropriate.

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 207.28 -207.35.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inquiry Is Reasonable Under the Circumstances

The certification requirements contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) are patterned after Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11. A federal court interpretation of Rule 11 is discussed below as a guide in interpreting the new California sanctions statute. While the federal decision is not necessarily binding on California courts, it may provide guidance in interpreting the new California sanctions statute.

In CTC Imports and Exports v. Nigerian Petroleum (3d Cir. 1991) 951 F.2d 573 , the attorney representing plaintiff oil importing company obtained an emergency warrant to arrest an oil shipment aboard a tanker. Two days after the execution of the arrest warrant, it was vacated pursuant to the stipulation of both parties. Defendants later moved for summary judgment and Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11 sanctions against the attorney for the plaintiff corporation. The district court granted both the summary judgment and the motion for sanctions, holding that a reasonable inquiry should have put the attorney for plaintiffs on notice that the action he was filing was fraudulent.

The appeals court overruled the district court's order for sanctions against the attorney for pursuing the fraudulent arrest warrant. The appeals court determined the reasonableness of the attorney's inquiry with a standard of objective reasonableness under the circumstances. The court noted that because the standard is a fact-specific one, the court must consider all the circumstances (951 F.2d 573, 578) .

The court of appeals found that because the attorney had never worked with the company before, he could not have known of its history of pursuing similar fraudulent actions. The court also noted that because the attorney had only one day in which to file the emergency pleading, he did not have time to fully investigate the situation. The court concluded that the district court had erred in not considering these circumstances and that under the circumstances the attorney had conducted a reasonable inquiry and was not subject to sanction under Rule 11 (951 F.2d 573, 578, 579) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.44

§ 207.44 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Legal Contentions Warranted by Existing Law or Nonfrivolous Argument for Change in Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.39[1].]

THE MOTION BY _____ [specify moving party, e.g., DEFENDANT], _____ [name], FOR SANCTIONS AGAINST _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7 SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE LEGAL CONTENTIONS CONTAINED IN THE _____ [PLEADING or PETITION or NOTICE OF MOTION or other similar paper] WERE WARRANTED EITHER BY EXISTING LAW OR BY A NONFRIVOLOUS ARGUMENT FOR THE EXTENSION, MODIFICATION, OR REVERSAL OF EXISTING LAW OR FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF NEW LAW, [EVEN THOUGH THOSE CONTENTIONS WERE ULTIMATELY REJECTED BY THE COURT].

Sanctions Not Justified if Legal Contentions Are Nonfrivolous. By presenting a pleading, petition, written notice of motion, or other similar paper to the court, an attorney or unrepresented party is certifying that the claims, defenses, and other legal contentions in that paper are warranted either by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law (Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)). The law does not require that the legal theory espoused in a filing prevail, but rather that the legal theory be at least plausible (CJC Holdings, Inc. v. Wright & Lato, Inc. (5th Cir. 1993) 989 F.2d 791, 793-794) .

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7. The basis for opposition is that, at the time the pleading or other paper was presented, the legal contentions contained in the pleading or other paper were warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous legal argument for a change in the existing law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence that, at the time of presentation, to the best of counsel's or unrepresented party's knowledge, information, and belief, after a reasonable inquiry, the claim, defense, or other legal contention at issue was warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(2)].

[c] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 207.31.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sanctions Not Justified if Legal Contentions Are Nonfrivolous

The certification requirements contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) are patterned after Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11. A federal court interpretation of Rule 11 is discussed below as a guide in interpreting the new California sanctions statute. While the federal decision is not necessarily binding on California courts, it may provide guidance in interpreting the new California sanctions statute.

In CJC Holdings Inc. v. Wright & Lato, Inc. (5th Cir. 1993) 989 F.2d 791 , plaintiff corporation obtained a default judgment in a district court in Texas against defendant. Plaintiff then tried to collect the default judgment in district court in New Jersey, which was defendant's principal place of business. Plaintiff then brought a motion for sanctions against defendant in New Jersey. The district court in New Jersey found that it did not have jurisdiction to sanction conduct in another court and in turn sanctioned plaintiff under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11 for failing to conduct a reasonable legal inquiry into the proper forum for its motion to sanction.

The appeals court overruled the district court's Rule 11 sanctions. The court pointed out that Rule 11 does not require that the legal theory espoused in a filing prevail but only that it be a result of reasonable inquiry into the law. In this case, the court noted, there was authority on either side of the issue of whether the motion for sanctions was appropriate in the New Jersey court and that plaintiff's view that the motion was appropriate was at least plausible (989 F.2d 791, 793) .

Finally the court warned that misapplication of Rule 11 sanctions can chill counsel's enthusiasm and creativity in pursuing novel legal theories and therefore sanctions should not be imposed for the advocacy of a plausible legal theory, especially where the law is unclear (989 F.2d 791, 794) .

188 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.45

§ 207.45 Opposing Motion for Sanctions--Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Factual Contentions Had Adequate Evidentiary Support [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.39[1].]

THE MOTION BY _____ [specify moving party, e.g., DEFENDANT], _____ [name], FOR SANCTIONS AGAINST _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7 SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE ALLEGATIONS AND OTHER FACTUAL CONTENTIONS CONTAINED IN THE _____ [PLEADING or PETITION or NOTICE OF MOTION or other similar paper] HAVE EVIDENTIARY SUPPORT OR ARE LIKELY TO HAVE SUCH SUPPORT AFTER A REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY FOR FURTHER INVESTIGATION AND DISCOVERY.

Factual Contentions Have Sufficient Evidentiary Support. Sanctions for untrue allegations or other factual contentions are not appopriate if the allegations or other factual contentions have evidentiary support or, if specifically so identified, are likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery (see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3)). Contentions based on reasonable inquiry should not be found to be factually frivolous unless some clear authority or a litigant's own clear admission erases the factual underpinning from some essential element of the litigant's pleading (Greenberg v. Sala (9th Cir. 1987) 822 F.2d 882, 887) .

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may submitted in opposition to a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7. The basis for opposition is that the supposedly untrue allegations or factual contentions in a pleading or other paper have evidentiary support or are likely to have such support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss facts showing that, to the best of counsel's or unrepresented party's knowledge, information, and belief, after a reasonable inquiry, the allegations and other factual contentions at issue had evidentiary support at the time that the pleading or other paper was presented to the court, or that the contentions were likely to have evidentiary support after a reasonable opportunity for further investigation or discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b)(3)].

[c] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the form in § 207.32.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Factual Contentions Have Sufficient Evidentiary Support

The certification requirements contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) are patterned after Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11. A federal court interpretation of Rule 11 is discussed below as a guide in interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b). While the federal decision is not necessarily binding on California courts, it may provide guidance in interpreting the California sanctions statute.

In Greenberg v. Sala (9th Cir. 1987) 822 F.2d 882 , a partnership brought an action against its former attorneys for fraud and misrepresentation in the sale of a business enterprise. The attorney for the partnership brought the action quickly after approximately 100 hours of research because of his fear that the suit would soon be time-barred. After serving one of the defendant attorneys, but none of the others, the suit was quickly voluntarily dismissed by plaintiffs. When the other defendant attorneys found out about the suit, they moved for Rule 11 sanctions against plaintiffs.

The district court held that while the complaint did contain some factual errors, such as the amount of time that one of the attorneys was associated with the other defendants, Rule 11 sanctions were not appropriate. The appellate court upheld the ruling of the district court, noting that plaintiffs had made reasonable investigation into the facts of the case. The court held that a complaint based on reasonable inquiry should not be found to be factually frivolous unless some clear authority or a litigant's own clear admission erases the factual underpinnings of the pleading (822 F.2d 882, 887) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.46

§ 207.46 Opposing Motion for Sanctions Pleading, Notice of Motion, or Other Similar Paper Filed in Action or Proceeding Initiated After 1994 [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]--Motion Violates Safe Harbor Provision [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.39[1].]

THE MOTION BY _____ [specify moving party, e.g., DEFENDANT], _____ [name], FOR SANCTIONS AGAINST _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF], _____ [name], UNDER CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE SECTION 128.7 SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE MOTION WAS SERVED AND FILED AT A TIME WHEN _____ [specify opposing party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] COULD NO LONGER TAKE CORRECTIVE ACTION.

Motion for Sanctions May Not Violate Safe Harbor Provision. Code of Civil Procedure Section 128.7(c)(1) provides that a motion for sanctions shall not be filed unless, within 21 days after service of the motion, the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, allegation, or denial is not withdrawn or appropriately corrected. This is referred to as the "safe harbor provision." If the motion for sanctions is served and filed at a time when the party opposing the motion can no longer take corrective action, the motion violates the safe harbor provision and must be denied (Galleria Plus, Inc. v. Hanmi Bank (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 535, 537-538, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 ; Li v. Majestic Industrial Hills LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 585, 590-591, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 334 ; Barnes v. Department of Corrections (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 126, 136-137, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may submitted in opposition to a motion for expenses, including attorney's fees, as sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7. The basis for opposition is that the motion violates the so-called "safe harbor provision" of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1), which provides the opposing party 21 days after service to withdraw or correct the offending paper, claim, etc. If corrective action is taken within this time the motion, although served, is not to be filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1)]. The ground for opposition is that the motion was served and filed at a time, for example, after a trial on the merits, when it was no longer possible for the opposing party to take corrective action.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss facts showing that, when the motion for sanctions was served, it was no longer possible to withdraw or otherwise appropriately correct the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, allegation, or denial pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Motion for Sanctions May Not Violate Safe Harbor Provision.

Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1) provides that a motion for sanctions shall not be filed unless, within 21 days after service of the motion, the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, allegation, or denial is not withdrawn or appropriately corrected. This is referred to as the "safe harbor provision."

In Galleria Plus, Inc. v. Hanmi Bank (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 535, 537, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 , after the plaintiff sued the defendant, the defendant served the plaintiff with a notice of motion for sanctions asserting that the claims underlying the complaint were not warranted by existing law. The notice stated that the motion would come on for hearing "on AAA at BBB." The defendant served the motion on the same day it filed it. Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1) provides that a notice of motion for sanctions must be served as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1010, but may not be filed with or presented to the court unless, within 21 days after service of the motion, or any other period as the court may prescribe, the challenged paper, claim, defense, contention, allegation, or denial is not withdrawn or appropriately corrected. This 21-day period gives the offending party 21 days to withdraw a questionable pleading without penalty, thus saving the court and the parties time and money litigating the pleading as well as the sanctions request (179 Cal. App. 4th 535, 538) . Because the defendant filed the motion on the same day it served it, it did not provide notice of the 21-day period or serve the remedial purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7's notice provisions (179 Cal. App. 4th 535, 538) .

In Li v. Majestic Industrial Hills LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 585, 590-591, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 334 , the plaintiff sued the defendant for wrongful termination. Five years after the parties settled and the plaintiff dismissed the case, the plaintiff filed a motion to vacate the dismissal. The defendant opposed the motion to vacate and served a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, claiming the motion was frivolous. Nineteen days after the defendant served its motion for sanctions, the court denied the plaintiff's motion. Twenty-eight days after it served its motion for sanctions, the defendant filed its motion for sanctions. The court granted the motion and the plaintiff appealed, arguing the motion for sanctions violated the safe harbor provision set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1).

The court of appeal agreed with the plaintiff that the defendant's motion for sanctions violated the safe harbor provision set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1). It held that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(c)(1) required the party seeking sanctions to serve on the opposing party, without filing or presenting to the court, a notice of motion specifically describing the sanctionable conduct. Service of the motion initiates a 21-day "hold" or "safe harbor" period. During this time, the offending document may be corrected or withdrawn without penalty. If that occurs, the motion for sanctions may not be filed (177 Cal. App. 4th 585, 590-591) . Although the defendant waited more than 21 days after serving its motion for sanctions on the plaintiff to file the motion with the court, the trial court heard the plaintiff's motion to vacate on the 19th day following service of the sanctions motion. Therefore, the plaintiff did not have 21 days to correct or withdraw his motion. The court held that because the hearing date selected by the plaintiff for his motion to vacate did not allow the defendant 21 days before its motion for sanctions was heard, the defendant was obligated to move to continue the plaintiff's motion or shorten time to file the motion for sanctions (177 Cal. App. 4th 585, 592-595) .

In Barnes v. Department of Corrections (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 126, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594 , the plaintiff sued defendant Department of Corrections, alleging the department kept documents concerning him in violation of the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act. After trial, judgment was entered in favor of the Department. The Department then filed a motion for sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, asserting the complaint was frivolous and totally without foundation. The trial court ordered the plaintiff to pay the department $80,636 as a sanction for filing a frivolous lawsuit.

The court of appeal reversed. It concluded that the Legislature intended that a party could avoid sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 by withdrawing or appropriately correcting the offending paper, claim, defense, contention, allegation or denial. Allowing a party to wait until corrective action was no longer possible would clearly defeat legislative intent. Therefore, the court held that a motion for sanctions filed after judgment alleging that the complaint was frivolous violates the "safe harbor provision" because it does not allow the offending party the opportunity to take corrective action (74 Cal. App. 4th 126, 132, 136-137) .

190 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.47

§ 207.47 Opposing Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule [Gov. Code § 66608(b)]--Terminating Sanction Is Inappropriate

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.39[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT IMPOSE THE DRASTIC MEASURE OF A TERMINATING SANCTION AGAINST _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] BECAUSE _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS NOT PREVIOUSLY FAILED TO COMPLY WITH A RULE OR ORDER IN THIS MATTER.

A. Drastic Measure of Terminating Sanction Not to Be Used in First Instance. The trial court delay reduction rules and the policy of expeditious processing of civil cases do not override, in all situations, the court's obligation to hear cases on the merits (Wantuch v. Davis (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 786, 795, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 47). Preventing parties from presenting their cases on the merits is a drastic measure; under Government Code Section 68608(b), the sanction of dismissing actions or striking pleadings is only authorized if it appears that less severe sanctions would not be effective after taking into account the effect of previous sanctions or previous lack of compliance in the case (Gov. Code § 68608(b); Wantuch v. Davis (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 786, 795, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 47 (construing similar language in former Gov. Code § 68609(d)); Marriage v. Keener (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 186, 194, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511 (construing similar language in former Gov. Code § 68609(d)).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for a sanction based on violation of local rules [see Gov. Code § 66608(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2] when the sanction sought would terminate the lawsuit and deny the sanctioned party the opportunity to a hearing on the merits of the action.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 207.37. For discussion of the relationship between terminating sanctions under Gov. Code § 68608(b) and Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b), which restricts sanctions that impact parties when the counsel was at fault, see § 207.37[2][b].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Drastic Measure of Terminating Sanction Not to Be Used in First Instance

The plaintiff in Wantuch v. Davis (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 786, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 47 , was an indigent prisoner who brought a civil action in propria persona against his former criminal defense attorney and others for legal malpractice and other causes of action. The plaintiff failed to appear at a status conference of which he had notice. The trial court ordered a further status conference and a hearing on an order to show cause for failure to prosecute. The plaintiff informed the court that he was serving a lengthy prison sentence and requested appointment of counsel or transfer to court. He did not appear at the further status conference or hearing on the order to show cause. The trial court struck plaintiff's pleadings and entered judgment against him. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The court recognized the trial court's responsibility to expedite the processing of civil cases, and their power under former Gov. Code § 68609(d) (now see Gov. Code § 68608(b)); Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2; former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 227, and local Los Angeles County court rules to impose sanctions for violation of court rules and orders, including terminating sanctions (32 Cal. App. 4th 786, 794-795) . Making the statement set out in the form, however, the court, citing former Section 68609(d) and several cases, concluded that terminating sanctions should not be ordered as a first response when noncompliance is through no fault of the party. Because that was the case in the instant matter and the plaintiff had otherwise diligently prosecuted the case, which was little more than a year old, the court held that the trial court abused its discretion (32 Cal. App. 4th 786, 795) .

Plaintiff in Marriage v. Keener (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 186, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511 , filed a quiet title action against several defendants on July 3, 1991. As to one defendant, plaintiff did not serve the complaint until April, 1993. The trial court dismissed the complaint as to that defendant due to the untimeliness of service, which under the local trial court delay rules was required to be served within 60 days of filing. Plaintiff appealed from the dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed. After noting some conflict among the courts of appeal as to whether a case may be dismissed under former Gov. Code § 68609(d) (now see Gov. Code § 68608(b)) for failure to serve a summons in the time required by local rule before the expiration of the time allowed for service under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.420 (discretionary dismissal after two years), the court stated that it did not have to reconcile those authorities because under the facts of the case, Section 68609(d) did not authorize dismissal. The court looked to the statutory language authorizing dismissal or striking pleadings if it appears that less severe sanctions would not be effective after taking into account the effect of previous sanctions or previous lack of compliance in the case. The court pointed out that the record contained no indication of prior sanctions and the trial court did not mention any previous lack of compliance. Thus, the record did not support the severe sanction of dismissal, and the trial court abused its discretion in imposing that sanction (26 Cal. App. 4th 186, 194) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Drastic Measure of Terminating Sanction Not to Be Used in First Instance

Sigala v. Anaheim City School Dist. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 661, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38 , was a personal injury action in which the defendant requested trial de novo after the case went through judicial arbitration. The trial court struck the request for trial de novo on a finding that the defendant had made no good faith attempt and had no intention of making any good faith attempt to comply with the court rules requiring parties to participate in good faith at a settlement conference.

191 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.48

§ 207.48 Opposing Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule [Gov. Code § 66608(b)]--Noncompliance Is Responsibility of Counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b)]

[1] FORM

THE COURT MAY NOT IMPOSE A SANCTION THAT ADVERSELY AFFECTS _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF'S] _____ [CAUSE OF ACTION or DEFENSE] WHEN THE FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH LOCAL RULES WAS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF COUNSEL.

Noncompliance Is Responsibility of Counsel. If a failure to comply with local rules is the responsibility of counsel and not of the party, sanctions can only be imposed on counsel and the sanction cannot adversely affect the party's cause of action or defense (Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b); Garcia v. McCutchen (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 469, 481-482, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 940 P.2d 906).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a motion for the imposition of sanctions on a party based on violation of local rules [see Gov. Code § 66608(b); Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b)] when the failure to comply with local rules is the responsibility of the party's counsel and not that of the party.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the motion supported by the points and authorities set out in § 207.37.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss facts showing that failure to comply with local rules is the responsibility of counsel and not of the party.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For related legal background on Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b) generally, and the relationship of Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 and Gov. Code § 68608 sanctions for violation of local court rules, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 510, Sanctions (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Noncompliance Is Responsibility of Counsel

In Garcia v. McCutchen (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 469, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 940 P.2d 906 , the plaintiff's action for personal injuries was dismissed without prejudice after his attorney failed to comply with local rules pertaining to service of all defendants, and filing of a status memorandum, both within a specified number of days. Although the dismissal was without prejudice, the statute of limitations would have barred claims alleged in a new complaint. The trial court denied the attorney's motion to reconsider. The Court of Appeal reversed the trial court's ruling, concluding that Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(b) prohibits dismissal as a sanction when noncompliance with local court rules is the fault of counsel, not of the litigant. The Supreme Court granted review to resolve an apparent conflict between the Court of Appeal's decision and the decision in Intel Corp. v. USAIR, Inc. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1559, 1563-1566, 279 Cal. Rptr. 569 (construing predecessor of Gov. Code § 68608(b), concluding that § 575.2(b) does not limit a court's power to dismiss as sanction for counsel's noncompliance with local rules implementing fast track rules)].

The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment of the Court of Appeal. The defendant contended on appeal that a trial court's power under Gov. Code § 68608(b) to dismiss an action for violation of local fast track rules is not subject to the limits of § 575.2(b). The Court disagreed, preferring to construe the two statutes in harmony. The Court stated that under "its plain and common sense meaning, the phrase, 'authorized by law,' incorporates only those sanctioning powers that the law otherwise establishes, including those set forth in section 575.2. It does not express a legislative intent to establish an independent sanctioning power" (16 Cal. 4th 469, 476) .

The defendant also cited Intel Corp. v. USAIR, Inc. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1559, 1563-1566, 279 Cal. Rptr. 569 , which concluded that Gov. Code § 68608(b) is more narrowly circumscribed and specific than § 575.2(b), and is therefore controlling. The Court observed that § 68608(b) relates only generally about a court's power to impose sanctions "authorized by law" in connection with local programs. It does not expressly address the power of a court to impose sanctions for noncompliance with local rules. The Legislature has expressly addressed that subject in § 575.2 and has expressly limited the court's power in subdivision (b) of that section. Thus, it is arguable which statute is the more specific and which the more general (16 Cal. 4th 469, 477-478) . Thus, the Court concluded that granting a trial court power to dismiss an action when counselalone is responsible for noncompliance with local rules would be a significant change in the law. Nothing in either the statutory language or the legislative history of the Act reflects a legislative intent to override section 575.2(b)'s limits on a court's sanctioning powers or to give courts expanded dismissal powers with respect to fast track rules (16 Cal. 4th 469, 481-482) .

The Court disapproved Intel Corp. v. USAIR, Inc. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1559, 1563-1566, 279 Cal. Rptr. 569 and dictum in Laguna Auto Body v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 481, 490, 282 Cal. Rptr. 530 , to the extent they are inconsistent with its conclusion.

192 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.49

§ 207.49 Opposing Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule--Local Rule Permitting Sanctions Conflicts With Statute on Same Subject

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.39[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT IMPOSE SANCTIONS FOR VIOLATION OF LOCAL RULE _____ [specify], BECAUSE THIS RULE IS INCONSISTENT WITH A STATUTE ON THE SAME SUBJECT.

Local Rule Allowing For Sanctions May Not Conflict With Statute. A local rule allowing sanctions may not permit a lower standard of culpability or less due process protections than a statute on the same subject (Pacific Trends Lamp & Lighting Products, Inc. v. J. White, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1135, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form points and authorities may be submitted by a party in opposition to a request for the imposition of sanctions pursuant to a local rule, when the local rule concerns the same subject matter covered by a state statute, and permits the imposition of sanctions under a lower standard of wrongful conduct, and with less due process protection, than that provided by the state statute.

Counsel should add argument to this form, linking the point in the form with the facts of his or her case.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Local Rule Allowing For Sanctions May Not Conflict With Statute

In Pacific Trends Lamp & Lighting Products, Inc. v. J. White, Inc. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918 , a party filed a motion for new trial, but thereafter dis not "meet and confer" with the opposing party and file a report on that meeting, pursuant to a local rule requiring that this be done before most motions. In denying the motion, the trial court also imposed sanctions for violating its local rule, which also provided that the court could impose specified sanctions against a party at fault when the court found "no good reason" for the failure to meet and resolve the dispute.

The court of appeal found this rule to be inconsistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (and with Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 if it were applicable). The local rule essentially functioned to discourage meritless motions, and to avoid expending judicial resources in hearing such motions. As such, it served the same purpose as the more general sanction statutes, Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 and Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, which function more generally to discourage both meritless motions and also meritless actions or other proceedings. The local rule in this instance, however, permitted sanctions to be imposed merely if the court found no good reason for refusing to resolve the dispute informally. The rule thus conflicted with and was preempted by Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 or Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7, because the latter statutes impose a greater showing of wrongful conduct, and which also provide greater due process protections to the party or attorney subjected to sanctions. The court of appeal held the sanction provision of the local rule could be invoked when there was such conflict with the general sanction statutes (and, alternatively, with the statutes governing new trial motions) (65 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1135-1136) .

193 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
CHAPTER 207 SANCTIONS
PART II. FORMS

20-207 California Points & Authorities § 207.50

§ 207.50 Opposing Motion to Impose Sanctions for Violation of Local Court Rule--Conduct Did Not Violate Local Rule

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 207.39[1].]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT IMPOSE SANCTIONS FOR VIOLATION OF LOCAL RULE _____ [specify], BECAUSE THE CONDUCT DID NOT VIOLATE THE RULE.

Sanctions Improper Under Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 When Local Rule NotViolated. Sanctions may not be awarded under Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 when the conduct, even though objectionable, does not violate a local rule (Blum v. Republic Bank (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 245, 248-249, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 226).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form points and authorities may be submitted by a party in opposition to a request for the imposition of sanctions for violation of a local rule, when the conduct complained of is not in violation of the rule.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument to this form, linking the point in the form with the facts of his or her case. Thus, counsel should argue facts showing that there was, in fact, no actual violation of the local rule alleged to have been violated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sanctions Improper Under Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 When Local Rule Not Violated

In Blum v. Republic Bank (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 245, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 226 , an attorney called the court clerk and scheduled a status conference without conferring with other counsel. The trial court ordered the attorney to pay $2,500 in sanctions pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2 for violation of a local rule that prohibits ex parte communications with the court on the substance of a pending case.

The court of appeal reversed. Since the local rule prohibited ex parte communications only on the substance of a pending case, scheduling a status conference without conferring with other counsel did not violate the rule. The ex parte prohibitions were not intended to preclude simple communications between attorneys and court clerks on purely administrative matters having nothing to with the substance of the case. The trial court could not expand the local rule to justify the sanctions order (73 Cal. App. 4th 245, 248-249 .)

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 20 Chapters 200-209 RECEIVERS---to---SANCTIONS
Chapters 208through 209 RESERVED

20-208 California Points & Authorities Chapters 208through 209

RESERVED

Chapters 208RESERVED

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS

21-210 California Points & Authorities 210.syn

§ 210.syn Synopsis to Chapter 210: SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS

§ 210.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 210.02 Governing Law

§ 210.03 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 210.04 Related Points And Authorities Chapters

§§ 210.05-210.19 [Reserved]

§ 210.20 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] by Defendants in Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--No Duty to Supervise or Provide for Safety of Students While off School Property [Educ. Code § 44808]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

[e] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty of Care as Essential Element of Negligence

[b] Existence of Duty as Question for Court

[c] School District Not Insurer of Safety of Students

[d] No Liability for Student Safety off School Property

[e] No Duty to Protect Safety of Students on Way to and From School

[f] No Duty to Furnish Transportation or Assign Pupil to Particular School

[g] No Duty to Scout Neighborhood for Gang Members

[h] No Duty to Students Injured Off-Campus While Awaiting Pick-Up by Parents

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] School District as Not Insurer of Safety of Students

[b] No Liability for Student Safety Off School Property

§ 210.21 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] by Defendants in Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--No Duty to Supervise School Grounds Around-the-Clock

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Duty to Supervise School Grounds Around-the-Clock

§ 210.22 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] by Defendants in Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--Waiver of Claims by Students Making Nonrequired Field Trip or Excursion [Educ. Code § 35330]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver of Claims by Student Making Field Trip or Excursion

[b] Immunity Extends to School District Employees

[c] Immunity Extends to Any Districts Providing Significant Participation in Conducting Field Trip

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Waiver of Claims by Student Making Field Trip or Excursion

§ 210.23 Supporting Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Private Action for Damages and Injunctive Relief for Sexual Harassment in Violation of Title IX of Education Amendments of 1972 [20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq.] Against School District and Employees--Harassment by Another Student

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Allegation or Proof That Defendant Is Recipient of Federal Funding as Required by 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681(a)

[b] No Allegation or Showing that Defendants Were Deliberately Indifferent to Known Acts of Sexual Harassment

[c] In Action Based on Sexual Harassment by Fellow Student, No Allegation of Essential Elements Stating Claim for Relief

§ 210.24 Supporting Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Action for Damages for Violation of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Against School Officials and Employees--Unlawful Search and Seizure in Violation of U.S. Const. amends. IV, XIV

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Allegation or Proof That Search of Plaintiff Was Unreasonable

[b] School Officials Need Not Show Individualized Suspicion to Justify Search

[c] Reasonable Suspicion Not Needed to Stop Students to Ask Questions or Conduct Investigation

[d] "Reasonableness" Standard Applies to School Official's Independent Decision to Search Even If Police Provide Information and Are Present

[4] Additional Authorities

§ 210.25 Supporting Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Action for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief for Violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 [42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d] Against School District--Hostile Racial Educational Environment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Allegation or Proof That Defendant Is a Recipient of Federal Financial Assistance as Required by 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d.

[b] In Action Based on Hostile Racial Educational Environment, No Allegation of Essential Elements Stating Claim for Relief

[c] No Allegation or Showing that Defendant Had Notice of or Was Deliberately Indifferent to Hostile Racial Educational Environment

§ 210.26 Supporting Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Action for Injunctive Relief for Violation of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Against School District--Removal of Racially Discriminatory Literary Works From Mandatory Curriculum

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint for Violation of Equal Protection Under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Must Plead Intentional Discrimination

[b] Courts May Not Ban Literary Works From School Curricula on Basis of Content

§ 210.27 Opposing Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] in Action for Damages for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Rules Governing Summary Judgment Procedure

[b] Duty to Supervise Students

[c] Standard of Care

[d] Lack of Ordinary Care

[e] Vicarious Liability of School District

[f] Adequacy of Supervision as Question of Fact

[g] Off-Campus Injury Proximately Caused by Negligent On-Campus Supervision

[h] Failure to Prevent Unauthorized Departure From School

[i] Foreseeability of Injury to Special Needs Student Inflicted in Hidden Area of Campus

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Duty to Supervise Students

[b] Adequacy of Supervision as Question of Fact

[c] Off-Campus Injury Proximately Caused by Negligent On-Campus Supervision

§ 210.28 Opposing Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] in Action for Damages for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--School District as Not Immune From Liability for Injury Sustained on Required Off-Premises School Activity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty to Supervise Required Off-Campus School Activities

§ 210.29 Opposing Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] in Action for Damages for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--Cause of Action Exists for Failure to Warn of Other Student's Violent Tendencies

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] School District May Be Held Liable for Damages Based on Failure to Warn

§ 210.30 Opposing Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] in Action for Damages for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--School District Not Immune Under "Hazardous Recreational Activity" Immunity [Gov. Code § 831.7] From Liability for Injury Sustained During Physical Education Class Conducted on School Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Required Physical Education Class Is Not "Recreational Activity"

§ 210.30A Opposing Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Action for Damages for Violation of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Against School Officials and Employees--Use of Excessive Force in Violation of U.S. Const. amends. IV, XIV

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Uses

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Excessive Use of Force Against Student

[b] Law Clearly Established

[c] Supervisory Liability

§ 210.31 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--Denial of Due Process

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Expulsion Order as Reviewable by Mandate

[b] Authority of School District to Discipline Students

[c] Due Process as Required in Student Disciplinary Proceedings

[d] Notice and Hearing as Required

§ 210.32 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--Improper Grounds for Expulsion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ground for Expulsion Is Required to Be Related to School Activity or Attendance

[b] Possession of Firearm Defined

[c] Vague and Standardless Grounds

[d] Protected Speech

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ground for Expulsion as Required to Be Related to School Activity or Attendance

[b] Protected Speech

§ 210.33 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--Decision to Expel Not Supported by Evidence

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Evidence Requirement

[b] Reliance on Contradictory Statements and Reports to Support Student Expulsion as Improper

§ 210.34 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Procedure for Appealing Decision to Expel

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

§ 210.35 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--School District "Zero Tolerance" Rule Does Not Violate State Law or Federal Due Process Rights

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] In General

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.01

§ 210.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda for use in certain actions by or on behalf of students against school districts. It contains memoranda supporting [see §§ 210.20 -210.22] and opposing [see §§ 210.27 -210.30] motions for summary judgment in actions against school districts for damages for personal injuries caused by negligent supervision. This chapter also contains memoranda supporting a motion to dismiss an action for damages and injunctive relief based on sexual harassment by a teacher or fellow student in violation of Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq.) [see § 210.23], and supporting a motion to dismiss an action for damages for violation of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 against school officials and employees based on allegedly unlawful search and seizure in violation of U.S. Const. amends. IV and XIV [see § 210.24]. This chapter also contains memoranda supporting [see §§ 210.31, 210.32] and opposing [see § 210.34] a petition for writ of mandate to review the decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student, and opposing a motion to dismiss an action for damages for violation of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 against school officials and employees based on alleged use of excessive force in disciplining a student [see § 210.30A].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of LawEducation LawDiscriminationGender & Sex DiscriminationTitle IXGeneral OverviewEducation LawFaculty & StaffMisconduct & PerformanceSexual MisconductSexual HarassmentEducation LawStudentsDiscipline MethodsGeneral OverviewEducation LawStudentsSearch & SeizureRemedies

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.02

§ 210.02 Governing Law

Tort liability of public entities, including school districts, and their employees, is governed by Gov. Code § 810 et seq. Actions for personal injury, death, and economic loss arising out of exposure to asbestos within school buildings are governed by Gov. Code § 905.5. The liability of school districts for injuries occurring during or because of school-sponsored field trips or excursions is governed by Educ. Code § 35330. School district liability for the safety and conduct of pupils when they are off school property generally is governed by Educ. Code § 44808. Student disciplinary proceedings are governed by Educ. Code §§ 48900, 48900.5, 48902, 48903, 48910-48925. Actions based on sexual harassment of students in public schools and facilities are governed by Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 [20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq.]. Actions based on school searches of students are governed by U.S. Const. amends. IV and XIV and 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Education LawCivil LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.03

§ 210.03 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms for use in actions against school districts for personal injuries to students, including sexual harassment, and discussion of and forms relating to school searches and student disciplinary proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender). Fordiscussion and forms relating to actions under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms related to actions against public entities generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms for use in mandate proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , and Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Education LawCivil LiabilityHarassmentEducation LawDiscriminationGender & Sex DiscriminationSexual HarassmentEducation LawStudentsSearch & SeizureGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsExclusions From Liability

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.04

§ 210.04 Related Points And Authorities Chapters

For memoranda for use in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda for use in mandate proceedings to review administrative adjudicatory decisions, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda for use in mandate proceedings generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

For memoranda for use in actions regarding certification, dismissal, or other employment actions, see Ch. 211, Schools: Certification, Dismissal and Related Employment Issues .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-210 California Points & Authorities §§ 210.05-210.19

[Reserved]

§§ 210.05[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.20

§ 210.20 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] by Defendants in Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--No Duty to Supervise or Provide for Safety of Students While off School Property [Educ. Code § 44808]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
[a minor, by _____ (name), his/her Guardian ad Litem,]	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT
Plaintiff,	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [names],	)	Time: _____
Defendants.	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE A SCHOOL DISTRICT AND ITS EMPLOYEES HAVE NO DUTY TO SUPERVISE OR PROVIDE FOR THE SAFETY OF STUDENTS WHEN THEY ARE OFF SCHOOL PROPERTY UNLESS IT HAS PROVIDED TRANSPORTATION, SPONSORED AN OFF-CAMPUS ACTIVITY, OTHERWISE SPECIFICALLY ASSUMED RESPONSIBILITY FOR

THEIR SAFETY, OR FAILED TO EXERCISE REASONABLE CARE UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES.

A. Summary Judgment. Defendant may move for summary judgment in any action or proceeding if it is contended that the action has no merit. Such motionmust be granted if all of the papers submitted show that there is no triable issue as to any material fact and that defendant is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law (Code Civ. Proc. § 437c).

B. Duty of Care as Essential Element of Negligence. An indispensable condition of negligence liability is a duty of care owed by the alleged wrongdoer to the injured person or to a class of which he or she is a member (Richards v. Stanley (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 60, 63, 271 P.2d 23 ; Wright v. Arcade Sch. Dist. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 272, 276, 40 Cal. Rptr. 812).

C. Existence of Duty as Question for Court. Existence of a duty of care is initially a question of law for determination by the court (Wright v. Arcade Sch. Dist. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 272, 276-277, 40 Cal. Rptr. 812 ; Raymond v. Paradise Unified Sch. Dist. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 1, 7-8, 31 Cal. Rptr. 847).

D. School District Not Insurer of Safety of Students. School districts and their employees are not insurers of the physical safety of their students, but rather are placed under a duty to exercise reasonable supervision over students while school is in session (Woodsmall v. Mt. Diablo Unified Sch. Dist. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 262, 267, 10 Cal. Rptr. 447).

E. No Liability for Student Safety Off School Property. School districts, city or county boards of education, county superintendents of schools, and officers and employees thereof, are not responsible or liable in any way for the conduct or safety of any pupil of the public schools at any time when the pupil is not on school property, unless the district, board, or other person has undertaken to provide transportation to the pupil to and from the school premises, has undertaken a school-sponsored activity off the premises of the school, has otherwise specifically assumed such responsibility or liability, or has failed to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances. In the event of a specific undertaking, the district, board, or person may be liable or responsible for the conduct or safety of a student only if the student is or should be under the immediate and direct supervision of an employee of the school district or board (Educ. Code § 44808; Ramirez v. Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist. (2002) 105 Cal. App. 4th 182, 190, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 128).

[Optional] F. No Duty to Protect Safety of Students on Way to and From School. A school district is under no duty to supervise or provide for the protection of pupils on their way to and from school, unless it has undertaken to provide transportation for them (Gilbert v. Sacramento Unified Sch. Dist. (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 505, 508, 65 Cal. Rptr. 913 ; Kerwin v. San Mateo County (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307, 1 Cal. Rptr. 437).

[Optional] G. No Duty to Furnish Transportation or Assign Pupil to Particular School. A school district is under no legal duty to furnish transportation to or from school and its failure to do so does not constitute negligence (Kerwin v. San Mateo County (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 304, 308, 1 Cal. Rptr. 437 ; Girard v. Monrovia City Sch. Dist. (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 737, 743, 264 P.2d 115). Similarly, a school district owes no duty to assign a pupil to a particular school within the district (Girard v. Monrovia City Sch. Dist. (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 737, 743-744, 264 P.2d 115).

[Optional] H. No Duty to Scout Neighborhood for Gang Members. A school cannot be an insurer of the safety of students, particularly after school and off school premises, when it has exercised ordinary prudence and due care appropriate to the circumstances. Absent a specific indication of a real and imminent gang-related threat at a particular time and place, or prior incidents reflecting the foreseeable possibility of gang assaults, a school is not required to send observers outside to scout the neighborhood for gang members off the campus and to wait until all is clear before releasing the students (Brownell v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 787, 795-797, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756).

[Optional] I. No Duty to Students Injured Off-Campus While Awaiting Pick-Up by Parents. A school district has no duty to students, who are waiting after school for their parents to pick them up, to protect them from injuries that occur off-campus on a public street that is not under the control of the school, at least if the injury does not result from the school district's on-campus negligence and the district has not undertaken any specific responsibilities to supervise or protect those students (Guerrero v. South Bay Union Sch. Dist. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 264, 269-270, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 509).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of defendants' motion for summary judgment in an action against a school district and its employees for damages for personal injuries based on allegedly negligent supervision of students. The ground of the motion is that a school district and its employees are under no duty to supervise or provide for the safety of students when they are not on school property except where it has furnished transportation, sponsored an off-campus activity, specifically assumed responsibility for the students' safety or has failed to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances [Educ. Code § 44808]. Liability for failure to exercise "reasonable care under the circumstances" applies only when the district has undertaken to care for students as described above and does not otherwise create a basis for liability for general negligence on the part of a school district [Cerna v. City of Oakland (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1357, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168].

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations which support the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c].

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a demurrer to the complaint if the ground of objection appears on the face of the complaint or from any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries against a school district and its employees based on negligent supervision of students, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For general memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[e] Opposing Memoranda

The points and authorities in § 210.27 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a motion for summary judgment supported by this memorandum.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty of Care as Essential Element of Negligence

In Richards v. Stanley (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 60, 271 P.2d 23 , plaintiff brought an action to recover damages for personal injuries suffered when his motorcycle collided with an automobile owned by defendants, which was being driven at the time by a thief. The complaint alleged that defendants had parked the car on the street and left it unattended and unlocked with the ignition key in the car lock in violation of a city ordinance, and that as a result of defendants' carelessness, the thief was induced to enter the automobile and drive it into a nearby intersection in such a careless and negligent manner as to cause the collision and resulting injuries to plaintiff. Although the defendants' general demurrer to the complaint was overruled, the lower court, at the start of the trial, sustained defendants' objection to the introduction of any evidence against them on the ground that the complaint failed to state a cause of action against them and then granted their motion for a nonsuit.

On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. The Court stated that it is an elementary principle that an indispensable factor to liability founded on negligence is the existence of a duty of care owed by the alleged wrongdoer to the person injured, or to a class of which he is a member (43 Cal. 2d 60, 63) . The Court then held that under the circumstances of this case, defendants owed no duty to protect plaintiff from injury caused by the negligent driving of their car by a thief (43 Cal. 2d 60, 63-69) .

In Wright v. Arcade Sch. Dist. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 272, 40 Cal. Rptr. 812 , plaintiff, a child, was struck by an automobile while crossing a public street on his way to school. Through his guardian ad litem, he brought a negligence action against the automobile driver and the school district. At the completion of his trial counsel's opening statement, the trial court granted the school district's motion for nonsuit and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, noting that an indispensable condition of liability for negligence is a duty of care owed by the alleged wrongdoer to the injured person or to a class of which the injured person is a member and that the existence of a duty of care is initially a question of law for determination by the court, although when reasonable foreseeability of the injury is at issue, the latter element is a jury question (230 Cal. App. 2d 272, 276-277) . The court then reviewed other general principles of negligence and concluded that plaintiff's opening statement described a claim of tort liability for negligent failure to take protective action, but did not contain any facts justifying imposition of an affirmative duty to act, and thus lacked a vital element of actionable negligence. Accordingly, the school district's motion for nonsuit was properly granted (230 Cal. App. 2d 272, 281) .

[b] Existence of Duty as Question for Court

Wright v. Arcade Sch. Dist. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 272, 40 Cal. Rptr. 812 , is discussed in § 210.20[3][a].

Raymond v. Paradise Unified Sch. Dist. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 1, 31 Cal. Rptr. 847 , was an action by a minor pupil against a school district for personal injuries sustained when he was struck by a school bus. The evidence at the trial indicated that the place where the accident occurred was the driveway of a high school of the district, which was used as a bus stop for elementary school pupils. The district provided no supervision of elementary students during the periods of the day when the driveway was so used. Plaintiff and other pupils often played on the lawn near the bus and would frequently run toward the buses as they approached the stop, although they had been repeatedly warned by the bus drivers not to do this. On the day of the accident, plaintiff ran toward the bus, placed his hand on the moving vehicle, and then fell backwards, injuring himself. The jury found that the school district was negligent in failing to provide supervision for the area. Judgment was entered for plaintiff and the district appealed, contending that it owed no duty to plaintiff.

In affirming the judgment, the court first noted the rule that a duty of care, owed by the alleged wrongdoer to the injured plaintiff or to a class of which he is amember, is indispensable to negligence liability (218 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6) . The court then observed that implicit in this appeal was the thesis that the question of duty is one of law for the court, not a question of fact for the jury. The court stated that to the extent that the existence of a duty of care turns on conflicting evidence as to the reasonable foreseeability of injury, the question may be one for the jury. Initially, however, presence of a duty rests on factors other than foreseeability, and its existence is primarily for judicial determination. Thus, in the present case, the court concluded that the trial judge must have made a determination that, granted a foreseeable risk, the school district owed a duty of care, and this determination was one of law, within the scope of appellate review (218 Cal. App. 2d 1, 7-8) . The court then held that, under the facts of this case, the school district owed a duty as a matter of law to provide adequate supervisory measures to protect children using the bus loading zone on the grounds of the high school (218 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10-11) .

[c] School District Not Insurer of Safety of Students

Woodsmall v. Mt. Diablo Unified Sch. Dist. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 262, 10 Cal. Rptr. 447 , was an action for personal injuries sustained when plaintiff was pushed by another pupil on student property. The trial court, sitting without a jury, entered judgment for plaintiff. The facts showed that plaintiff was injured when he was pushed from behind by another pupil as his class was lining up for physical education instruction on the school playground. The teacher was not present on the school yard at the time of the injury because he had remained behind the class momentarily to lock the door of the classroom, but he arrived shortly thereafter. No other supervisory personnel were on the playground at the time of the incident.

On appeal, the school district contended that the evidence was insufficient as a matter of law to support the judgment. The court of appeal agreed and reversed the judgment. The court first noted that lack of supervision of pupils or improper supervision may constitute negligence on the part of the school district (188 Cal. App. 2d 262, 264) . The court concluded, however, that in this case the uncontroverted evidence demonstrated that supervision would not have prevented the injury and thus lack of supervision was not a proximate cause of the injury (188 Cal. App. 2d 262, 265) . The court stated that although the question of whether or not a school district provided adequate supervision is a question of fact, there was in this case no evidence to support a finding that lack of supervision was a proximate cause of plaintiff's injury (188 Cal. App. 2d 262, 266-267) . To hold otherwise, said the court, would contradict the rule that school districts are not insurers of the safety of pupils at play or elsewhere (188 Cal. App. 2d 262, 267) .

[d] No Liability for Student Safety off School Property

In Ramirez v. Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist. (2002) 105 Cal. App. 4th 182, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 128 , the plaintiff was the mother of a 15-year-old boy who drowned in a lake while at a camp in the Sequoia National Forest. The camp, designed to provide leadership skills, was run by a nonprofit organization. The boy's school promoted and encouraged attendance at the camp, although the school did not participate in running the camp nor otherwise provide supervision over camp activities. The plaintiff brought suit against the school district, alleging essentially that the school failed to properly supervise at the camp and that the district misrepresented the safety of the camp. The trial court sustained the district's demurrer and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that Educ. Code § 44808 provides, with limited exceptions, that school districts are not generally responsible for the safety of students when not on school property. Essentially, a district is immune from liability under the statute for injuries sustained off school property unless a student was or should have been directly supervised by school personnel during a specified undertaking by the school. Under the facts in this case, the court first concluded that the camp was not a school-sponsored activity and that the district did not provide transportation to the camp. The court then concluded that there was no evidence that the school indicated in any way that it would be responsible for the safety of the boy while he was at the camp, no evidence that the boy would have been under the supervision of any school employees while at the camp, and no evidence that the district employed, trained, or supervised the counselors at the camp. Therefore, the school district was entitled to immunity under Educ. Code § 44808 (105 Cal. App. 4th 182, 190-192) . The court also rejected the plaintiff's contention that the immunity did not extend to causes of action for misrepresentation, as well as her contention that the school was engaged in a joint venture with the camp, because there was no evidence that the school had any right to control the camp, its employees, or its counselors (105 Cal. App. 4th 182, 193-194) .

[e] No Duty to Protect Safety of Students on Way to and From School

In Gilbert v. Sacramento Unified Sch. Dist. (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 505, 65 Cal. Rptr. 913 , the decedent, a six-year-old girl, was struck by a train and killed on her way home from school. The administratrix of her estate brought an action for wrongful death against the school district, among others, alleging that the district was negligent in permitting students to leave school at a time of day when it knew or should have known that a train would be passing by and is not realigning school boundaries so that students would not have to cross the railroad tracks in order to attend school. The trial court sustained demurrers to the complaint and the action was dismissed as against the school district, and plaintiff appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the school district had no duty to exercise due care to conduct or supervise children in going to or from theirhomes (258 Cal. App. 2d 505, 508) . The court noted that although the district must exercise due care when it elects to transport children to or from their homes, the district in this case had not assumed any duty in connection with the transportation of the children (258 Cal. App. 2d 505, 508) . The court stated that if any general duty to transport or otherwise provide for the safety of all children who attend school from the school building to home, and vice versa, is to be imposed, then the legislature should do so (258 Cal. App. 2d 505, 510) .

In Kerwin v. San Mateo County (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 304, 1 Cal. Rptr. 437 , plaintiff's brother a six-year-old child, became ill while at school. School authorities called his home and directed plaintiff, who was eleven years old and who was at home alone, to come and take his brother home. Plaintiff proceeded to school on a bicycle designed for one rider. The two boys attempted to ride home on the single bicycle, but the bicycle tipped over, resulting in injuries to plaintiff. Plaintiff brought an action against the school district, alleging that the school district was negligent in failing to investigate, inspect, and ascertain the mode and means of transportation to be used by the children and the safety and adequacy thereof, and in failing to provide a safe an adequate means of transportation for them. The trial court dismissed the action after sustaining a demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend.

On appeal, the court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that a school district is under no duty to supervise or provide for the protection of its pupils on their way home, unless it has undertaken to provide transportation for them (176 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307) . The court noted that in this case, defendant had not undertaken to provide transportation for the children, and that plaintiff's complaint appeared to be based on the theory that the district had a duty either to provide transportation for plaintiff and his brother or to determine the manner in which plaintiff was going to transport him (176 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307-308) . The court held that no such duty existed (176 Cal. App. 2d 304, 308) .

NOTE:

Gilbert and Kerwin were decided prior to the enactment of both Educ. Code § 44808 and its predecessor Educ. Code § 13557.5, providing that no school district, city or county board of education, county superintendent of schools, or any officer or employee of such district or board may be responsible or in any way liable for the conduct or safety of any pupil of the public schools at any time when the pupil is not on school property. However, Educ. Code § 44808 also provides that this immunity does not apply when the district, board, or person has failed to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances. Thus, the statute may modify the language of Gilbert and Kerwin, which indicates that a school district has absolutely no duty to supervise students on their way to and from school unless it has undertaken to provide transportation for them. A court could hold that a school district had a duty to supervise students if, under the circumstances, its failure to do so constituted a failure to exercise reasonable care.

Moreover, the Supreme Court has stated, in dictum, that a school district may, in some limited instances, bear a duty to supervise students when they are not on school property [see Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 515, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851 ; see also § 210.27[3][g]]. In the absence of further decisions interpreting the statute, the effect of Educ. Code § 44808 on the Gilbert and Kerwin holdings is unclear.

[f] No Duty to Furnish Transportation or Assign Pupil to Particular School

Kerwin v. San Mateo County (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 304, 1 Cal. Rptr. 437 , is discussed in § 210.20[3][e].

In Girard v. Monrovia City Sch. Dist. (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 737, 264 P.2d 115 , decedent, a nine-year-old child, was struck and killed by an automobile while crossing a busy street on his way home from school. Plaintiffs, his parents, brought an action for wrongful death against both the driver of the vehicle and two school districts. The school districts filed a demurrer to the complaint which the trial court sustained without leave to amend. Judgment of dismissal was entered and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that no legal breach of duty was committed by the school districts (121 Cal. App. 2d 737, 743) . The court rejected plaintiffs' contention that the districts owed a duty to provide decedent with safe transportation home from school, noting that the Education Code provisions which authorize a school district to provide transportation for pupils are clearly permissive in character, and the plaintiffs had cited no authority for the proposition that it was negligence for a school district to fail to provide transportation. The court stated that while a district which undertakes to provide transportation must use due care in doing so, in this case the school district had only undertaken to provide transportation from home to school and was under noduty to provide transportation in both directions (121 Cal. App. 2d 737, 743) . The court also rejected plaintiffs' argument that either district owed a duty to the pupil to see that he was enrolled in a particular school within the district (121 Cal. App. 2d 737, 743-744) .

[g] No Duty to Scout Neighborhood for Gang Members

In Brownell v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 787, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756 , after plaintiff, a high school student, was shot and wounded by gang members immediately after school hours and on a public street adjacent to school property, he sued defendant school district alleging negligent supervision in dismissing students without first ascertaining if the street was free of any gang members. The jury awarded plaintiff damages, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed with directions to the trial court to dismiss the complaint. The general rule that schools are not legally responsible for accidents that students may suffer once they have been released from school is qualified by Educ. Code § 44808, which indicates liability when the school has failed to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances (4 Cal. App. 4th 787, 794) . The standard of due care imposed on school authorities in exercising their supervisorial responsibilities is that degree of care that a person of ordinary prudence, charged with comparable duties, would exercise under the same circumstances. The court found that the school exercised due care and, under any view of the evidence, satisfied its supervisorial responsibilities in protecting students from potential gang-related violence. A school cannot and should not be an insurer of the safety of students, particularly after school and off school premises, when it has exercised ordinary prudence and due care appropriate to the circumstances. The school exercised reasonable care and satisfied its duty to supervise adequately students in view of the general precautions it always took to minimize gang-related violence and the absence of any advance indication to school personnel of potential gang violence pertinent to the incident. It was not required to send observers outside to scout the neighborhood for gang members off the campus and to wait until all was clear before releasing the students. The court said that schools should not be required to engage in such visual precaution, absent either (1) any specific indication of a real and imminent gang-related threat at the particular time and place of the shooting, or (2) prior incidents reflecting not necessarily this identical type of assault but that the possibility of this type of harm was foreseeable (4 Cal. App. 24th 787, 795-797).

[h] No Duty to Students Injured Off-Campus While Awaiting Pick-Up by Parents

In Guerrero v. South Bay Union Sch. Dist. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 264, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 509 , the plaintiff was a six-year-old first grade student who was struck by a car after school in a public street adjacent to the school. First and second grade students had been dismissed from classes at 2:00, older students, including the plaintiff's brother, were dismissed from school at 2:25, and at 2:30, the plaintiff was waiting with her siblings at the school to be picked up by a parent. She crossed the street with her brother to watch another child playing with a toy, and when she decided to cross back to the side of the street where the school was located, she was struck by the car. The plaintiff sued the school district, alleging that the district breached a duty to supervise the students when school ended and failed to provide adequate procedures for the students to be picked up by parents after school. The trial court granted the defendant's motion for summary judgment, concluding that Educ. Code § 44808 provided an immunity for the district because the injury occurred off-campus and after school hours and because the plaintiff was under the care of an older sibling. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that pursuant to Educ. Code § 44808, the school district would not be liable for the injuries unless they were the result of the district's negligence occurring on school property or were the result of some specific undertaking by the district that the district performed in a negligent manner. Although plaintiff argued that the district's negligence in supervising the dismissed students on-campus while they were waiting to be picked up was sufficient to overcome the limitations on liability imposed by Educ. Code § 44808, the court of appeal disagreed. Noting that the plaintiff had failed to articulate exactly what actions the school district should have taken, the court concluded that the plaintiff was essentially arguing that the school district was required to supervise the students after school, even on a public street, until their families have picked them up or they have been safely escorted home. The court declined to impose such a broad duty (114 Cal. App. 4th 264, 269-270) . The court also rejected the plaintiff's argument that the school district, in promulgating two written regulations governing student supervision, had undertaken to protect the plaintiff. The court noted that the first regulation, by its own terms, applied only to the supervision of students who are on school grounds. The second regulation provided procedures to deal with students who are left on school grounds and have not been picked up by a certain time. The court again noted that this regulation dealt specifically with on-campus students and suggested no undertaking by the district regarding students who have left campus (114 Cal. App. 4th 264, 272-273) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] School District as Not Insurer of Safety of Students

In Thompson v. Sacramento City Unified Sch. Dist. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1352, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 748 , a school district was entitled to summary judgment on a claim of failing to protect the plaintiff, a student, from injuries caused by another student during a fight. Although the plaintiff's assailant had been introuble before, no aspect of his prior conduct bore any relation to the plaintiff. In fact, there was no indication that the assailant even knew the plaintiff before the attack, which was precipitated when the assailant tried to steal marijuana that the plaintiff was allegedly carrying. In addition, the fight between the plaintiff and the assailant arose suddenly during the lunch break, immediately after a school monitor had passed through the area in which the fight occurred. Noting that school districts and their employees are not insurers of the physical safety of students, and that students who deliberately intend to escape supervision will always find a way to do so, the court held that if a fight occurs under these circumstances with such rapidity that supervisory personnel have no opportunity to discover and respond beforehand, claims of abstract negligence based merely on the fact that the fight occurred are insufficient to support actionable negligence (107 Cal. App. 4th 1352, 1369-1372) . The court also rejected arguments that the school district could be liable to the plaintiff based on a failure to suspend the assailant, before the fight with the plaintiff, for misconduct unrelated to the plaintiff (107 Cal. App. 4th 1352, 1361-1369) .

[b] No Liability for Student Safety Off School Property

In Cerna v. City of Oakland (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168 , plaintiffs were the survivors and family members of an accident in which an automobile driver struck children who were crossing an intersection while walking to school. The intersection, which had a painted striped crosswalk, was a few blocks from the only entrance to the school. Plaintiffs sued the city and the school district, alleging both that the crosswalk constituted a dangerous condition of public property and that the school district could be held liable under Ed. Code § 44808. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendants, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal first held that the crosswalk did not constitute a dangerous condition of public property for failing to comply with the crosswalk marking requirements of Veh. Code § 21368, as that statute applied to crosswalks that are "contiguous" to school grounds and the crosswalk at issue was not. Additionally, liability could not be premised on the failure to provide a traffic light or crossing guards (161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1350-1351) . The court then held that the school district could not be held liable under Ed. Code § 44808 because the district had not undertaken to provide for the safety of the students while they were off-campus. The court held that liability for failure to exercise "reasonable care under the circumstances," as described in the statute, was appropriate only when the district had undertaken to care for the students under the circumstances covered by the statute, that is, only when the district had undertaken to provide transportation to or from the school, undertaken an off-premises activity, or otherwise specifically undertaken responsibility for student safety. The phrase did not otherwise create a basis for liability for general negligence on the part of a school district (161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1357) . The court went on to hold that the district had not undertaken responsibility for the students under the circumstances. The court rejected plaintiff's claim that an an assumption of responsibility could be premised on an environmental impact report analyzing traffic safety that was prepared in conjunction with opening the school, or on the fact that the school district approved the school site and claimed compliance with safety manuals when doing so. Finally, the court rejected an assumption of responsibility based on allegations that an unidentified school official had induced parents to transfer their children to the school with promises that a crossing guard would be assigned to that particular intersection (161 Cal. App. 4th 1340, 1358-1360) .

In Bassett v. Lakeside Inn, Inc. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 863, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 827 , a high school student died after being struck by a drunk driver while she was crossing an intersection on a public street in order to reach a school bus stop. Her parents sued the school district, among others, alleging that the district was liable for creating a dangerous condition of public property through its placement of the school bus stop adjacent to a dangerous intersection. The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's decision to sustain the district's demurrer. The court noted that under Educ. Code § 44808, a school district is liable for injuries sustained off of school property only if the injury occurs while the student is under or should have been under the direct supervision of a school employee. While the school district had control over selecting the location for the bus stop and had undertaken to provide transportation for students, the injury did not occur at a time when the district was or should have been providing direct supervision over the student (140 Cal. App. 4th 863, 872) .

In Mosley v. San Bernardino City Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724 , a high school student died after she fell from a school van being driven by the women's basketball coach. The student's parents brought a wrongful death action against the school district, but the trial court sustained the defendant's demurrer, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court held that the district was immune from liability under Educ. Code § 44808 because the accident did not occur on school property, nor did it occur during a school-sponsored or school-sanctioned activity. The plaintiffs argued that the school district was negligent in hiring and supervising the coach because they should have known that she lacked the experience, training, or psychological stability necessary to drive a van safely. The court disagreed, noting that the school district hired the woman to coach, not to drive, and that the Department of Motor Vehicles was the proper authority to determine whether the woman was competent enough to drive. The court also rejected the implications of the plaintiffs' argument, which could impose broad liability on a school district for any action that could be traced back to allegedly negligent hiring or supervision (134 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1264-1265) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.21

§ 210.21 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] by Defendants in Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--No Duty to Supervise School Grounds Around-the-Clock

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.20.]

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE A SCHOOL DISTRICT AND ITS EMPLOYEES HAVE NO DUTY TO SUPERVISE PERSONS ON SCHOOL PROPERTY OTHER THAN DURING SCHOOL-RELATED OR ENCOURAGED FUNCTIONS OR ACTIVITIES TAKING PLACE DURING SCHOOL HOURS.

A. Summary Judgment. [See § 210.20, Paragraph A.]

B. Duty of Care as Essential Element of Negligence. [See § 210.20, Paragraph B.]

C. Existence of Duty as Question for Court. [See § 210.20, Paragraph C.]

D. School District Not Insurer of Safety of Students. [See § 210.20, Paragraph D.]

E. No Duty to Supervise School Grounds Around-the-Clock. A school district's duty to supervise persons on school property is limited to school-related or encouraged functions and to activities taking place during school hours (Bartell v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Sch. Dist. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 492, 499, 147 Cal. Rptr. 898).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of defendants' motion for summary judgment in an action against a school district and its employees for damages for personal injuries based on allegedly negligent supervision of students. The ground of the motion is that a school district and its employees have no duty to supervise persons on school property other than during school-related or encouraged functions or activities taking place during school hours.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations which support the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c].

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used in support of a general demurrer to a complaint if the ground of objection appears on the face of the complaint or from any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries against a school district and its employees based on negligent supervision of students, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to summary judgments generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Duty to Supervise School Grounds Around-the-Clock

In Bartell v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Sch. Dist. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 492, 147 Cal. Rptr. 898 , the trial court sustained demurrers to plaintiffs' complaint for wrongful death without leave to amend, and plaintiffs appealed from the judgment of dismissal. According to complaint, the decedent, plaintiffs' son, entered the playground of an elementary school maintained by defendant school district when school was not in session, either through an unlocked gate or a hole in a fence, and suffered fatal injuries when he fell while playing a dangerous game involving the use of a skateboard. The complaint further alleged knowledge by defendant that the game was dangerous and could be played locally only on the unobstructed surface of the school grounds. The complaint predicated recovery against the school district on theories of (1) maintenance of a dangerous condition, and (2) negligent failure to maintain and supervise the grounds or notify parents that the grounds were accessible. In affirming the judgment of dismissal, the court of appeal first noted that school districts and their employees have never been considered insurers of the safety of their students, but rather are placed under a general duty to supervise the conduct of children on school grounds during school sessions, school activities, recesses, and lunch periods (83 Cal. App. 3d 492, 498) . The court then held that the school district's duty of supervision is limited to school-related or encouraged functions and to activities taking place during school hours (83 Cal. App. 3d 492, 499-500) . The court stated that to require around-the-clock supervision or prison-tight security would impose a financial burden which manifestly would impinge on the very educational purpose for which the school exists (83 Cal. App. 3d 492, 500) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.22

§ 210.22 Supporting Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] by Defendants in Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--Waiver of Claims by Students Making Nonrequired Field Trip or Excursion [Educ. Code § 35330]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.20.]

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT SHOULD BE GRANTED BECAUSE PLAINTIFF WAS MAKING NONREQUIRED FIELD TRIP OR EXCURSION AND THEREFORE IS DEEMED TO HAVE WAIVED ALL CLAIMS AGAINST THE SCHOOL DISTRICT FOR INJURY, ACCIDENT, ILLNESS, OR DEATH OCCURRING DURING OR BECAUSE OF THE FIELD TRIP OR EXCURSION.

A. Summary Judgment. [See § 210.20, Paragraph A.]

B. Waiver of Claims by Student Making Field Trip or Excursion. A student participating in a nonrequired field trip or excursion is deemed to have waived all claims against the school district or charter school conducting it and against the State of California for injury, accident, illness, or death occurring during or because of the field trip or excursion (Educ. Code § 35330; Castro v. Los Angeles Bd. of Educ. (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 236, 126 Cal. Rptr. 537).

[Optional] C. Immunity Extends to School District Employees. The field trip immunity of Education Code Section 35330 immunizes school district employees acting in the course and scope of employment, even though school district employees are not explicitly included in the language of the statute (Casterson v. Superior Court (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 177, 189, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637).

[Optional] D. Immunity Extends to Any Districts Providing Significant Participation in Conducting Field Trip. The immunity of Educ. Code § 35330 is not limited to the school district in which the injured student is enrolled, but extends to any school district that is a significant participant in conducting the field trip, such as a district that hosts the field trip at its facilities (Sanchez v. San Diego County Office of Education (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1580, 1584-1586, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 750).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of defendants' motion for summary judgment in an action against a school district and its employees for damages for personal injuries based on allegedly negligent supervision of students. The ground of the motion is that plaintiff, by participating in a nonrequired school-sponsored field trip or excursion, is deemed to have waived all claims against the school district, charter school, or state for injury, accident, illness, or death occurring during or because of the field trip or excursion. Optional Paragraph C should be included by a defendant who is a school district employee being sued individually for conduct within the course and scope of employment.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations which support the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c].

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a general demurrer to a complaint if the ground of objection appears on the face of the complaint or from any matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries against a school district and its employees based on negligent supervision of students, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment, generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Waiver of Claims by Student Making Field Trip or Excursion

Educ. Code § 35330 authorizes school districts to conduct field trips or excursions in connection with courses of instruction or school-related social, educational, cultural, athletic, or school band activities to and from places in the state, any other state, the District of Columbia, or a foreign country for pupils enrolled in elementary or secondary schools, and to employ instructors and supervisors and arrange transportation for such field trips and excursions. The section also provides, however, that all persons making the field trip or excursion are deemed to have waived all claims against the district or the State of California for injury, accident, illness, or death occurring during or because of the field tripor excursion. All adults taking out-of-state field trips or excursions and all parents or guardians of pupils taking such trips are required to sign a statement waiving such claims.

In Castro v. Los Angeles Bd. of Educ. (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 126 Cal. Rptr. 537 , the court of appeal was called on to interpret the waiver of claims provision of former Educ. Code § 1081.5 [now see Educ. Code § 35330]. In that case, plaintiffs brought an action for wrongful death, alleging that decedent, a high school student, was killed while participating in a "summer camp, bivouac, or summer training" with his high school R.O.T.C. unit, which was organized by and under the supervision and control of agents, representatives, and employees of defendant school board, and that his death occurred as a result of their negligence. The school board demurred to the complaint on the ground that former Educ. Code § 1081.5 [now see Educ. Code § 35330], which immunizes school districts from liability for injury, accident, illness, or death occurring during or because of a "field trip or excursion," was applicable. The trial court agreed, sustained the demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend, and dismissed the action.

On appeal, the court of appeal reversed. The court noted that former Educ. Code § 13557.5 [now see Educ. Code § 44808], which limits liability for injuries occurring off of school property, specifically provides for liability where the district has undertaken a school-sponsored activity off of the school premises (54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 235) . The court observed that there would have been no purpose in the legislature's adding this provision to the Education Code if it had intended, by its amendment of former Educ. Code § 1081.5 [now see Educ. Code § 35330], to provide absolute immunity from liability for the same away-from-school activity (54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 236) . The court then attempted to harmonize the two statutes and concluded that students who are off of the school's property for required school purposes are entitled to the same safeguards as those who are on school property, within supervisorial limits. However, students who participate in nonrequired trips or excursions, although possibly in furtherance of their education are effectively on their own; the voluntary nature of the event absolves the district of liability. The court therefore held that where a school-sponsored activity is involved, that is, one that requires attendance and for which attendance credit may be given, the event is a specific undertaking of the district, and the district is liable and responsible for the safety of any pupil while the pupil is or should be under the immediate and direct supervision of a school district employee (54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 236) . The court then examined the allegations of the complaint and concluded that they were sufficient to state a cause of action for school district liability under former Educ. Code § 13557.5 [(now see Educ. Code § 44808] and did not place plaintiffs within the immunity provisions of former Educ. Code § 1081.5 [now see Educ. Code § 35330] (54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 237) .

[b] Immunity Extends to School District Employees

In Casterson v. Superior Court (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 177, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637 , the plaintiff was participating in an overnight school field trip when he nearly drowned after being pushed into the deep end of a motel swimming pool by other students. The plaintiff filed suit against one of the school district employees who was a chaperone on the trip and should have been at the pool at the time of the incident. The defendant demurred to the complaint on the grounds that she was protected by the field trip immunity of Educ. Code § 35330. The trial court overruled the demurrer because the statute only immunized school districts and the state and did not include school district employees. The defendant petitioned for writ of mandate.

The court of appeal issued the writ. After reviewing the legislative history of Educ. Code § 35330, the court of appeal concluded that the statute immunizes school district employees acting in the course and scope of employment, even though school district employees are not explicitly included in the language of the statute. According to the court, a contrary conclusion would effectively destroy the immunity of the school district, because the district would be vicariously liable for the employee's conduct under Gov. Code § 815.2(a), which generally requires public entities to pay any judgment against employees for tortious conduct in the course and scope of employment (101 Cal. App. 4th 177, 180, 189) .

[c] Immunity Extends to Any Districts Providing Significant Participation in Conducting Field Trip

In Sanchez v. San Diego County Office of Education (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 1580, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 750 , plaintiffs were the parents of a sixth grade student who died while suffering an asthma coronary attack during a field trip. The excursion, a science camp, was held at an outdoor school facility owned and operated by a school district other than the district in which the student was enrolled. Camp counselors gave the decedent her asthma inhaler when her attack occurred and performed CPR until paramedics arrived, but by the time the paramedics were able to airlift her a hospital, she had died from natural causes. Plaintiffs sued the school district that owned and hosted the camp. While defendant argued that it was immune from liability under Educ. Code § 35330(d), plaintiffs argued that this immunity only protected the school district in which the injured student was enrolled. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of the school district, and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that it was undisputed that the defendant was a school district within the meaning of Educ. Code § 35330. The court then concluded that there was no triable issue of fact as to whether defendant took part in conducting the field trip to their camp, as defendant provided and operated the physical facility for the field trip and all employees at the camp were defendant's employees. Under those facts, the court concluded that defendant played a sufficiently significant role in conducting the field trip to satisfy the requirements for application of the immunity provided by Educ. Code § 35330 (182 Cal. App. 4th 1580, 1584-1585) . The court rejected plaintiffs' argument that because some of the provisions of Educ. Code § 35330 could only be applied to the school district in which the injured student was enrolled, only that school district was protected by the immunity of Educ. Code § 35330(d). The court also rejected plaintiffs' argument that providing immunity to a school district other than the district in which the injured student was enrolled would frustrate the goals of the statutory immunity. The court noted instead that if a participating school district were denied immunity merely because the injured student was not enrolled in that district, districts such as defendant that provided facilities and personnel for a field trip would require contractual indemnity from other participating school districts as a condition of participation, thereby effectively defeating the immunity provided by the statute to the student's own school district (182 Cal. App. 4th 1580, 1585-1587) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Waiver of Claims by Student Making Field Trip or Excursion

In Wolfe v. Dublin Unified Sch. Dist. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 126, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280 , an action was brought on behalf of an elementary school student who was injured in an automobile accident on the way home from a field trip. The trip was organized by teachers, and took place during normal school hours. Students needed parental consent to participate, and thus was not required for all students. Transportation was provided by volunteers from among the parents. The trial court granted a summary judgment in favor of the school district based on the immunity for nonrequired field trips provided by Ed. Code § 35330. The court of appeal affirmed, relying on the reasoning of Castro v. Los Angeles Board of Education (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 126 Cal. Rptr. 537 . As in Castro, the court assumed the application of Ed. Code § 44808 to school-hours travel to and from school. However, the court found the Ed. Code § 35330 field trip exception applicable, and held that the special provisions of Ed. Code § 35330 control over any overlapping application of the more general provisions of Ed. Code § 44808 (56 Cal. App. 4th 126, 135) . Plaintiff criticized the emphasis in Castro on the voluntary or nonrequired nature of a field trip to distinguish it from a school-sponsored activity, and proposed that the difference should be a matter of degreeof involvement by the school in initiating, arraigning, and supervising the activity. The court rejected this argument as providing too vague of a standard, stating that Castro has the advantages of relative certainty and safety.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.23

§ 210.23 Supporting Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Private Action for Damages and Injunctive Relief for Sexual Harassment in Violation of Title IX of Education Amendments of 1972 [20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq.] Against School District and Employees--Harassment by Another Student

[1] FORM

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF
CALIFORNIA, _____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)	Civil Action, File No. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS PLAINTIFF'S ACTION FOR FAILURE TO STATE CLAIM ON WHICH RELIEF CAN BE GRANTED [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)]
vs.	)
_____ [name(s)],	)
Defendant(s).	)
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF ALLEGING SEXUAL HARASSMENT BY _____ [TEACHER or FELLOW STUDENT] IN VIOLATION OF TITLE IX OF THE EDUCATION AMENDMENTS OF 1972 [20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq.] DOES NOT STATE A CLAIM ON WHICH THIS COURT CAN GRANT RELIEF AGAINST DEFENDANTS AND SHOULD BE DISMISSED.

A. Complaint That Fails to State Claim on Which Court Can Grant Relief Should Be Dismissed Under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6). Under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6), a defendant may move for dismissal of the plaintiff's complaint if the complaint fails to state a claim on which relief can be granted. The defendant has the burden of showing beyond doubt that the plaintiff can prove no set of factsin support of the plaintiff's claim that would entitle the plaintiff to relief [Hishon v. King & Spalding (1984) 467 U.S. 69, 73, 104 S. Ct. 2229, 81 L. Ed. 2d 59 ; Hughes v. Rowe (1980) 449 U.S. 5, 10, 101 S. Ct. 173, 66 L. Ed. 2d 163 ; 47 Cal. 4th 725, 737) .

B. No Allegation or Proof That Defendant Is Recipient of Federal Funding as Required by 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681(a). To be liable in damages or injunctive relief for sexual harassment of a student by a teacher or fellow student under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., a school district must be "an education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance" [20 U.S.C.S. § 1681(a); Davis v. Monroe County Bd. of Educ. (1999) 526 U.S. 629, 639, 119 S. Ct. 1661, 143 L. Ed. 2d 839 (student-on-student sexual harassment); Gebser v. Lago Vista Indep. Sch. Dist. (1998) 524 U.S. 274, 280-281, 118 S. Ct. 1989, 141 L. Ed. 2d 277 (teacher-on-student sexual harassment); Franklin v. Gwinnett County Pub. Sch. (1992) 503 U.S. 60, 112 S. Ct. 1028, 117 L. Ed. 2d 208 (teacher-on-student sexual harassment)].

C. No Allegation or Showing that Defendants Were Deliberately Indifferent to Known Acts of Sexual Harassment. A school district, as a recipient of federal education funds, may only be liable in damages under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., for sexual harassment of a student by a teacher or fellow student when the school district is deliberately indifferent to known acts of sexual harassment by the teacher or fellow student [Davis v. Monroe County Bd. of Educ. (1999) 526 U.S. 629, 641, 119 S. Ct. 1661, 143 L. Ed. 2d 839 (student-on-student sexual harassment); Gebser v. Lago Vista Indep. Sch. Dist. (1998) 524 U.S. 274, 277, 118 S. Ct. 1989, 141 L. Ed. 2d 277 (teacher-on-student sexual harassment)].

D. In Action Based on Sexual Harassment by Fellow Student, No Allegation of Essential Elements Stating Claim for Relief. To state a claim for monetary [and injunctive] relief based on sexual harassment of a student by a fellow student under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., the complaint must allege that the harasser was [and continues to be] under the school's disciplinary authority and that the harassment was [and continues to be] so severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive that it effectively bars the victim's access to an educational opportunity or benefit [Davis v. Monroe County Bd. of Educ. (1999) 526 U.S. 629, 650-651, 119 S. Ct. 1661, 143 L. Ed. 2d 839] .
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) to dismiss a complaint in an action against a school district and its employees for monetary and injunctive relief based on alleged sexual harassment of a student by a teacher or by a fellow student.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations that support the motion.

For discussion of motions to dismiss a federal court action under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim for relief, see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 12, § 12.34 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for summary judgment brought under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56. For discussion of motions for summary judgment in federal court actions generally, see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 56 (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for monetary and injunctive relief for discrimination based on sexual harassment by a teacher or fellow student under Title IX of Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment, generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Allegation or Proof That Defendant Is Recipient of Federal Funding as Required by 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681(a)

Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., and specifically 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681(a), prohibits the exclusion of any person from participation in, denial of the benefits of, or subjection to discrimination, onthe basis of sex, under any education program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

Davis v. Monroe County Bd. of Educ. (1999) 526 U.S. 629, 119 S. Ct. 1661, 143 L. Ed. 2d 839 , is discussed in § 210.23[3][c].

In Gebser v. Lago Vista Indep. Sch. Dist. (1998) 524 U.S. 274, 118 S. Ct. 1989, 141 L. Ed. 2d 277 , the procedural and factual background of which is discussed in § 210.23[3][b], the United States Supreme Court held that there is a private right of action under Title IX against recipients of federal education funding, money damages are available, and actionable discrimination includes sexual harassment (524 U.S. 274, 281) .

In Franklin v. Gwinnett County Pub. Sch. (1992) 503 U.S. 60, 112 S. Ct. 1028, 117 L. Ed. 2d 208 , a student sued a school district, which was a recipient of federal funds, under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., alleging that she had been subjected to continual sexual harassment and abuse by a teacher, including having sexually oriented conversations with her, forcibly kissing her on the mouth, telephoning her at home, and subjecting her to coercive intercourse. She further alleged that although teachers and administrators took no action to halt the sexual harassment after becoming aware of and investigating it. The teacher resigned on condition that all matters pending against him be dropped, and the school closed its investigation. The District Court dismissed the complaint on the ground that Title IX does not authorize an award of damages. The Eleventh Circuit affirmed.

The United States Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that the general rule is that absent clear direction to the contrary by Congress, the federal courts have the power to award appropriate relief in a cognizable cause of action brought pursuant to a federal statute, and that Congress did not intend to limit application of the general principle in the enforcement of Title IX (503 U.S. 60, 70-76) .

[b] No Allegation or Showing that Defendants Were Deliberately Indifferent to Known Acts of Sexual Harassment

Davis v. Monroe County Bd. of Educ. (1999) 526 U.S. 629, 119 S. Ct. 1661, 143 L. Ed. 2d 839 , is discussed in § 210.23[3][c].

In Gebser v. Lago Vista Indep. Sch. Dist. (1998) 524 U.S. 274, 118 S. Ct. 1989, 141 L. Ed. 2d 277 , a high school student sued a school district that was a recipient of federal funds, raising a claim under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., based on a sexual relationship with one of her teachers. The student had not reported the relationship to school officials, and after the couple was discovered having sex and the teacher was arrested, the school district terminated his employment. During the time of the relationship, the school district had not distributed an official grievance procedure for lodging sexual harassment complaints or a formal antiharassment policy, as required by federal regulations. The District Court granted the school summary judgment, and the Fifth Circuit affirmed, holding that school districts are not liable under Title IX for teacher-student sexual harassment unless an employee with supervisory power over the offending employee actually knew of the abuse, had the power to end it, and failed to do so.

The United States Supreme Court affirmed. The Court held that under Title IX, a recipient of federal education funds may only be liable in damages under Title IX when it is deliberately indifferent to known acts of sexual harassment by a teacher. Liability arises from an official decision by the recipient not to remedy a violation; agency principles may not be used to impute liability under Title IX to a recipient of federal education funds such as a school district for the misconduct of its teachers, and a school district will not be liable for what amounts to a negligence standard--that is, for a failure to react to harassment of which it knew or should have known (524 U.S. 274, 279-289) .

[c] In Action Based on Sexual Harassment by Fellow Student, No Allegation of Essential Elements Stating Claim for Relief

In Davis v. Monroe County Bd. of Educ. (1999) 526 U.S. 629, 119 S. Ct. 1661, 143 L. Ed. 2d 839 , a mother sued a county board of education that received federal funds and other defendants, alleging that her daughter was the victim of a prolonged pattern of severe sexual harassment by a fellow fifth-grade student, and claimed monetary and injunctive relief under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq. The complaint alleged that plaintiff's daughter was the victim of sexually harassing conduct by a fellow student that continued for many months. Plaintiff alleged that her daughter reported each incident to plaintiff or to school officials; plaintiff, in turn, contacted employees of the defendant school district, but despite the reports, no disciplinary action was taken against the other student. The harassment allegedly continued for several months, until the other student was charged with, and pleaded guilty to, sexual battery. Plaintiff alleged that the school district's and its employees' deliberate indifference to the other student's persistent sexual advances toward her daughter created an intimidating, hostile, offensive, and abuse school environment that violate Title IX. The District Court dismissed the claim under Title IX on the ground that peer sexual harassment provides no ground for a private cause of action under 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., and the Eleventh Circuit, sitting en banc, affirmed.

The United States Supreme Court reversed and held that under Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972, 20 U.S.C.S. § 1681 et seq., a private right of action may lie against a recipient of Title IX funding, such as a school board, in cases of "student-on-student" harassment. However, liability will lie only under the following circumstances (526 U.S. 629, 638-648) :

- The funding recipient acts with deliberate indifference to known acts of harassment in its programs or activities;

- The harasser is under the school's disciplinary authority; and

- The harassment is so severe, pervasive, and objectively offensive that it effectively bars the victim's access to an educational opportunity or benefit.

The Court held further that liability for damages is limited to circumstances in which the recipient exercises substantial control over both the harasser and the context in which the known harassment occurs, such as when the misconduct occurs during school hours and on school grounds, as in the facts alleged in this case (526 U.S. 629, 644-646) . The funding recipient's response to the harassment or the lack of a response must be clearly unreasonable in light of the known circumstances, but need not necessarily be expulsion of every student accused of sexual misconduct in all circumstances (526 U.S. 629, 647-648) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.24

§ 210.24 Supporting Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Action for Damages for Violation of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Against School Officials and Employees--Unlawful Search and Seizure in Violation of U.S. Const. amends. IV, XIV

[1] FORM

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF
CALIFORNIA, _____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)	Civil Action, File No. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS PLAINTIFF'S ACTION FOR FAILURE TO STATE CLAIM ON WHICH RELIEF CAN BE GRANTED [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)]
vs.	)
_____ [name(s)],	)
Defendant(s).	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES ALLEGING UNLAWFUL SEARCH AND SEIZURE BY _____ [TEACHER or specify other school official] IN VIOLATION OF THE FOURTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENTS TO THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION DOES NOT STATE A CLAIM ON WHICH THIS COURT CAN GRANT RELIEF AGAINST DEFENDANTS AND SHOULD BE DISMISSED.

A. Complaint That Fails to State Claim on Which Court Can Grant Relief Should Be Dismissed Under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6). [See § 210.23, Paragraph A.]

B. No Allegation or Proof That Search of Plaintiff Was Unreasonable. Although the federal and state constitutional prohibitions against unreasonable searches and seizures apply to searches conducted by public school officials(Board of Educ. v. Earls (2002) 536 U.S. 822, 828, 122 S. Ct. 2559, 153 L. Ed. 2d 735 ; Vernonia Sch. Dist. 47J v. Acton (1995) 515 U.S. 646, 652, 115 S. Ct. 2386, 132 L. Ed. 2d 564 ; New Jersey v. T.L.O. (1985) 469 U.S. 325, 337-342, 105 S. Ct. 733, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720 ; In re William G. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 550, 561, 221 Cal. Rptr. 118, 709 P.2d 1287 ; People v. Alexander B. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1576, 270 Cal. Rptr. 342), strict adherence to the requirement that a search be based on probable cause is not required in the public school setting (New Jersey v. T.L.O. (1985) 469 U.S. 325, 341, 105 S. Ct. 733, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720 ; People v. Alexander B. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1576, 270 Cal. Rptr. 342), and a search in a public school is justified if school officials have reasonable grounds for suspecting that the search will yield evidence that the student has violated or is violating either the law or school rules, and if the measures adopted for the search are reasonably related to the objectives of the search and not excessively intrusive in light of the age and sex of the student and the nature of the infraction (New Jersey v. T.L.O. (1985) 469 U.S. 325, 337-342, 105 S. Ct. 733, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720 ; People v. Alexander B. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1577, 270 Cal. Rptr. 342 ; see Vernonia Sch. Dist. 47J v. Acton (1995) 515 U.S. 646, 656-657, 115 S. Ct. 2386, 132 L. Ed. 2d 564).

C. School Officials Need Not Show Individualized Suspicion to Justify Search. In conducting searches of students, school officials need not show individualized suspicion if the search is otherwise reasonable (Board of Educ. v. Earls (2002) 536 U.S. 822, 828-829, 122 S. Ct. 2559, 153 L. Ed. 2d 735 ; Smith v. McGlothlin (1997) 119 F.3d 786, 788 ; see Vernonia Sch. Dist. 47J v. Acton (1995) 515 U.S. 646, 664, 115 S. Ct. 2386, 132 L. Ed. 2d 564 ; People v. Alexander B. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1577-1578, 270 Cal. Rptr. 342).

[Optional] D. Reasonable Suspicion Not Needed to Stop Students to Ask Questions or Conduct Investigation. School officials have the power to stop a minor student in order to ask questions or conduct an investigation even in the absence of reasonable suspicion of criminal activity or violation of a school rule, so long as the officials do not exercise that authority in an arbitrary, capricious, or harassing manner (In re Randy G. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 556, 561-568, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516, 23 P.3d 239).

[Optional] E. "Reasonableness" Standard Applies to School Official's Independent Decision to Search Even If Police Provide Information and Are Present. When a school official independently decides to search a student and conducts the search, the "reasonableness" standard of New Jersey v. T.L.O. applies, even if the police provide the information justifying the search and are present when it occurs (In re K.S. (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 72, 77-84, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) to dismiss a complaint in an action against a school district and its employees for damages based on a search of a student by school officials.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations that support the motion.

For discussion of motions to dismiss a federal court action under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim for relief, see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 12, § 12.34 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for summary judgment brought under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56. For discussion of motions for summary judgment in federal court actions generally, see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 56 (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for damages based on an allegedly unlawful search of a public school student by school officials, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment, generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Allegation or Proof That Search of Plaintiff Was Unreasonable

The facts and procedural background of Board of Educ. v. Earls (2002) 536 U.S. 822, 122 S. Ct. 2559, 153 L. Ed. 2d 735 , are discussed in § 210.24[3][b]. The United States Supreme Court held that searches by public school officials, such as the collection of urine samples, implicate Fourth Amendment interests, and a court is required to review a policy requiring students who participate incompetitive extracurricular activities to submit to drug testing for reasonableness, which is the touchstone of the constitutionality of a governmental search (536 U.S. 822, 828) .

In Vernonia Sch. Dist. 47J v. Acton (1995) 515 U.S. 646, 115 S. Ct. 2386, 132 L. Ed. 2d 564 , in response to a growing drug problem involving and led by high school athletes, and with input from and approval of parents, an Oregon school district adopted a policy authorizing random urinalysis drug testing of all students participating in interscholastic athletics programs, with the expressed purpose to prevent student athletes from using drugs to protect their health and safety and to provide drug users with assistance programs. A student denied participation in a football program when he and his parents refused to consent to the testing, sued in federal court for declaratory and injunctive relief on the grounds that the policy violated U.S. Const., amends. IV, XIV. The district court denied relief, but the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the policy violated both federal and state constitutions (515 U.S. 646, 648-652) .

The United States Supreme Court vacated the judgment and remanded to the Court of Appeals on the ground that the policy does not violate the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments. The Court found that students in a school environment have a lesser expectation of privacy than members of the population in general, and legitimate privacy expectations are even less with regard to student athletes (515 U.S. 646, 656-657) . The court found the invasion of privacy in this case not significant, the nature of the governmental concern was important, if not compelling, and the governmental concern was effectively addressed by the policy (515 U.S. 646, 658-664) .

In New Jersey v. T.L.O. (1985) 469 U.S. 325, 105 S. Ct. 733, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720 , a teacher discovered two students smoking in a high school lavatory; one of the students denied smoking, whereupon a school official searched her purse and discovered marijuana and paraphernalia implicating the student in marijuana dealing. The official notified the student's mother and the police, and turned the evidence of drug dealing over to the police. The student then confessed that she had been selling marijuana at the high school. The student was suspended from school, which a state court set aside on the ground it was based on evidence seized in violation of the Fourth Amendment. The juvenile court, however, denied the student's motion to suppress in the course of her prosecution on delinquency charges. The juvenile court held that although the Fourth Amendment applies to searches carried out by school officials, a school official may properly conduct a search of a student if the official has a reasonable suspicion that a crime has been committed or is in the process of being committed, or reasonable cause to believe the search is necessary to maintain school discipline or enforce school policies. The court concluded that the search in this case was reasonable as being based on the official's well-founded suspicion that the student had violated a rule forbidding smoking in the lavatory. Once the student's purse was open, evidence of marijuana violations was in plain view, and the school official was entitled to conduct a thorough search to determine the nature and extent of the student's drug-related activities (469 U.S. 325, 329-330) .

The New Jersey appellate and supreme courts agreed that the Fourth Amendment applies to searches conducted by school officials. The New Jersey Supreme Court, however, rejected that state's argument that the exclusionary rule should not be employed to prevent the use of evidence unlawfully seized by school officials in juvenile proceedings. The Court agreed with the juvenile court that a warrantless search by a school official does not violate the Fourth Amendment so long as the official has reasonable grounds to believe the student possesses evidence of illegal activity or activity that would interfere with school discipline and order, but disagreed with the conclusion that the search in this case was reasonable. The New Jersey Supreme Court found that the contents of the student's purse had no bearing on the accusation against the student for smoking in the lavatory, since possession of cigarettes did not violate school rules and a mere desire for evidence that would impeach the student's claim that she did not smoke cigarettes could not justify the search, and that even if a reasonable suspicion that the student had cigarettes in her purse would justify a search, the school official had no such suspicion, as no one had given him specific information that there were cigarettes in the purse. Finally, whether or not the school official was justified in opening the purse, the evidence of drug use he saw inside did not justify the extensive "rummaging" through the student's papers and effects that followed (469 U.S. 325, 330-331) .

The United States Supreme Court agreed that the Fourth Amendment prohibition of unreasonable searches and seizures applies to searches conducted by public school officials (469 U.S. 325, 333) , but found that the search in this case was not unreasonable (469 U.S. 325, 344-348) . The Court found that school authorities are state actors for the purposes of constitutional guarantees related to searches of students, rather than merely surrogates for parents, so they cannot claim parents' immunity from the strictures of the Fourth Amendment (469 U.S. 325, 336-337) . The U.S. Supreme Court also examined what is reasonable in the context of school searches, and found that the students' legitimate expectations of privacy must be balanced against the schools' equally legitimate need to maintain an environment in which learning can take place; thus, school officials need not obtain a warrant before searching a student under their authority and a search will be justified when school officials have reasonable grounds for suspecting the search will yield evidence that the student has violated or is violating either the law or school rules, and when the measures adopted for the search are reasonably related to the objectives of the search and not excessively intrusive in light of the age and sex of the student and the nature of the infraction (469 U.S. 325, 337-342) .

In re William G. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 550, 221 Cal. Rptr. 118, 709 P.2d 1287 was an appeal from an order declaring a high school student to be a ward of the juvenile court based on unlawful possession of marijuana for purposes of sale in violation of the Health & Safety Code. An assistant principal had seen the student walking on campus during a regular class period, and had searched a calculator carried by the student, which had what the assistant principal thought was an odd bulge. In the search, he found marijuana and other paraphernalia, and called the police, who arrested the student. The assistant principal had no prior information leading him to believe the student possessed marijuana or otherwise violated the law or a school rule, but had a standard procedure of questioning students not in class during regular class periods. The juvenile court denied the student's motion to suppress, finding that the search was reasonable under the circumstances (40 Cal. 3d 550, 556) .

The California Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that California public school officials are subject to the prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures contained in both U.S. Const. amends. IV, XIV, and in Cal. Const. art. I, § 13 (40 Cal. 3d 550, 558-561) . The applicable standard to apply in determining the reasonableness of a search by public school officials is reasonable suspicion, and the governmental interests in providing an environment that protects the health and welfare of all students must be balanced with the privacy interests of individual students, so the standard is less than probable cause (40 Cal. 3d 550, 562) . The Court found, however, that the search conducted in this case did not meet the standard of reasonable suspicion, since the assistant principal articulated no facts to support a reasonable suspicion that the student was engaged in a proscribed activity justifying a search (40 Cal. 3d 550, 566-567) .

People v. Alexander B. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 270 Cal. Rptr. 342 , is discussed in § 210.24[3][b].

[b] School Officials Need Not Show Individualized Suspicion to Justify Search

In Board of Educ. v. Earls (2002) 536 U.S. 822, 122 S. Ct. 2559, 153 L. Ed. 2d 735 , a board of education of an independent school district in Oklahoma adopted a Student Activities Drug Testing Policy, requiring all students who participate in competitive extracurricular activities to submit to drug testing designed to detect only the use of illegal drugs, including amphetamines, marijuana, cocaine, opiates, and barbiturates, not medical conditions or the presence of authorized prescription medications. The policy requires that students take a drug test before participating in an extracurricular activity, submit to random drug testing while participating in that activity, and agree to be tested at any time on reasonable suspicion. Two students sued the school district, alleging that the policy violates the Fourth Amendment's protection against unreasonable search and seizure, both on its face and as applied, the school district failed to identify a special need for testing students who participate in extracurricular activities, and the policy neither addresses a proven problem nor promises to bring any benefit to students or the school. The students did not challenge the policy as it applies to athletes or as it provides for drug testing on reasonable, individualized suspicion. The District Court rejected students' claims and granted summary judgment to the school district, noting that special needs exist in the public school context, that, although the district did not show a drug problem of epidemic proportions, there was a history of drug abuse starting in 1970 that presented legitimate cause for concern, and that it could not be disputed that the drug problem among the student body is effectively addressed by making sure that the large number of students participating in competitive, extracurricular activities do not use drugs. The United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit reversed, holding that the policy violated the Fourth Amendment, concluding that before imposing a suspicionless drug testing program, a school must demonstrate some identifiable drug abuse problem among a sufficient number of those subject to the testing and that testing that group of students will actually redress its drug problem. Because the district failed to demonstrate such a problem existed among students participating in competitive extracurricular activities, the Court of Appeals found the policy unconstitutional (536 U.S. 822, 825-828) .

The United States Supreme Court reversed. The Court held first that special needs inhere in the public school context, and that although schoolchildren do not shed their constitutional rights when they enter the schoolhouse, Fourth Amendment rights are different in public schools than elsewhere, and the inquiry into whether a particular search is reasonable cannot disregard the schools' custodial and tutelary responsibility for children. The Court held that in particular, a finding of individualized suspicion may not be necessary when a school conducts drug testing (536 U.S. 822, 830). The Court concluded that the policy is constitutional because students who participate in competitive extracurricular activities have a limited expectation of privacy since they voluntarily subject themselves to many of the same intrusions on their privacy as do athletes, because given the minimally intrusive nature of the sample collection and the limited uses to which the test results are put, the invasion of students' privacy is not significant. In addition, the Court found that given the nationwide epidemic of drug use, and the evidence of increased drug use in Tecumseh schools, it was entirely reasonable for the district to enact this particular drug testing policy. Further, testing students who participate in extracurricular activities is a reasonably effective means of addressing the district's legitimate concerns in preventing, deterring, and detecting drug use (536 U.S. 822, 830-837) .

The factual and procedural background of Vernonia Sch. Dist. 47J v. Acton (1995) 515 U.S. 646, 115 S. Ct. 2386, 132 L. Ed. 2d 564 , is discussed in § 210.24[3][a]. The United States Supreme Court suggested that individualized suspicion is not needed to justify a school search in upholding a policy ofrandomly drug testing high school students participating in interscholastic athletic programs. The Court stated that in many respects, the Court thought that drug testing of the students based on suspicion of drug use would be worse than the school district's policy of random testing (515 U.S. 646, 664) .

In Smith v. McGlothlin (9th Cir. 1997) 119 F.3d 786 , a high school vice principal ordered a search of a group of high school students suspected of smoking near campus after complaints from neighbors. The search led to discovery of one student's possession of knives. A juvenile court judge suppressed evidence of the knives and dismissed charges against the student. The student then sued the vice principal who ordered the search under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983. She alleged that the vice principal acted unreasonably in searching her even though school authorities did not have individualized suspicion that she had been smoking, and that the search was conducted in an unreasonable manner. The district court dismissed the action on the grounds that the vice principal was entitled to qualified immunity under Section 1983, since at the time of the search, it was not clearly established that the search was improper.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed. The court held that there was authority for concluding that the search was lawful, and that as it is fairly clear that the student was not entitled to individualized suspicion before she could be searched, it could not have been clearly established at the time of the search that she had that right. The court held further that the manner of conducting the search was reasonable (119 F.3d 786, 788) .

People v. Alexander B. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 270 Cal. Rptr. 342 , was an appeal of an order declaring a minor high school student a ward of the juvenile court on a finding that he violated Penal Code § 12020(a) by concealing on his person a dirk or dagger. The student was in a group of students about whom the dean of students received information that someone in the group had a weapon. A machete was found on the student by a police officer who was on campus, after the student attempted to move away from a search of the group by the police officer ordered by the dean of students. The information about the weapon was provided by another student, whose name was either not obtained or was forgotten by school authorities. The juvenile court denied the student's motion to suppress evidence of the machete.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the dean of students acted reasonably in ordering a search of the student for weapons (220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1577-1578) . The court held that under the totality of the circumstances, a cursory search of the student and others in his group for dangerous weapons was not only reasonable, it was constitutionally compelled under Cal. Const., art. I, § 28(c), which provides that students and staff of public schools have the inalienable right to attend safe, secure, and peaceful campuses (220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1577) . The court also held that although there was no individualized suspicion that plaintiff possessed a weapon, suspicion had focused on a group of five or six students, and given the potential danger to students and staff that would have resulted from not searching the entire group, a weapons search of the several accused students was reasonable (220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 1577-1578) .

[c] Reasonable Suspicion Not Needed to Stop Students to Ask Questions or Conduct Investigation

In In re Randy G. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 556, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516, 28 P.3d 239 , a high school security officer, after observing a student, called him out of class, asked for and received his consent to search his bag, and discovered a knife with a locking blade. In a juvenile court proceeding, the minor was declared a ward of the court after a finding that he violated Pen. Code § 626.10(a) by possessing a knife with a locking blade on school grounds. The minor's motion to suppress the knife as the result of an illegal detention in violation of the Fourth Amendment was denied. The court of appeal agreed with the minor that the standard to be applied was whether the detaining officer had reasonable suspicion that the person to be detained has been, is, or is about to be engaged in criminal activity or a violation of school rules, but held that the detention was reasonable (26 Cal. 4th 556, 560-561) . The Supreme Court affirmed.

Without deciding the issue, the Court held that it would seem that when a school official stops a student to ask a question, the student's liberty has not been restrained over and above the limitations he or she already experiences by attending school, so that the conduct of school officials in moving students about the classroom or from one classroom to another, sending students to the office, or taking them into the hallway to ask a question would not qualify as a detention as defined by the Fourth Amendment. In the absence of a Fourth Amendment claim, relief, if at all, would come by showing that school officials acted in such an arbitrary manner as to deprive the student of substantive due process in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment (26 Cal. 4th 556, 563-565) . However, the Court held that detentions of minor students on school grounds do not offend the Constitution, so long as they are not arbitrary, capricious, or for the purposes of harassment, and that reasonable suspicion, whether called "particularized suspicion," "articulable and individualized suspicion," "founded suspicion," or "reasonable cause," need not be shown (26 Cal. 4th 556, 567) . The Court disapproved People v. Alexander B. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1572, 270 Cal. Rptr. 342 [see § 210.24[3][b]] to the extent it is inconsistent with this conclusion (26 Cal. 4th 556, 567 n.2). The Court then refused to distinguish the power of school security officers over students from that of other school personnel, whose authority over student conduct may have been delegated to those officers (26 Cal. 4th 556, 568) .

[d] "Reasonableness" Standard Applies to School Official's Independent Decision to Search Even If Police Provide Information and Are Present

In In re K.S. (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 72, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32 , a narcotics detective received a message from a confidential informant the detective had used before and who had proved reliable, that a high school student possessed Ecstasy pills, hidden in a slit in his pants. The detective contacted another police officer, who was the school resource officer at another high school, who contacted the vice-principal of the student's high school, but did not ask her to search or further investigate the student. The resource officer informed the narcotics detective that he had contacted the vice-principal and provided her with the information. Thereafter, the detective went to the school to see if the school was going to follow up on the information given to the vice-principal, but he did not ask the school to do any follow up. Because the information came from the resource officer, the vice-principal believed the tip to be reliable and thereafter confirmed that the student was at school that day. She decided to search the student to ensure the safety of the school's students. She ascertained that the student was scheduled for a physical education (P.E.) class and had a school security officer verify that he was present at that class and dressed for P.E. and not wearing his street clothes, and decided to search his P.E. locker, accompanied by the narcotics detective and a police detective sergeant Conley. The vice-principal had the police officers accompany her because she did not feel comfortable keeping something she found on her person across campus. However, she did not ask either officer to conduct the search. After a campus supervisor opened the locker, she searched the locker and found the jeans with the slit. Inside the slit was a plastic bag containing several pills. The vice-principal took the pants to the school office, and the student was detained. The vice-principal suspected the pills were Ecstasy, and the narcotics detective later confirmed that suspicion. The school resource officer from the other high school arrived at the school after the search was completed and told the vice-principal the amount of Ecstasy found was consistent with possession for sale. A juvenile court petition filed against the student alleged he possessed Ecstasy. After filing an unsuccessful motion to suppress, the student admitted the offense and appealed the dispositional order making him a ward of the juvenile court and placing him on home probation (183 Cal. App. 4th 72, 76-77) .

The Court of Appeal affirmed. The court first discussed the reasonableness standard of New Jersey v. TLO and In re William G. [see 3[a], above], noting that in both cases the courts declined to address the standard for searches conducted by school officials "in conjunction with or at the behest of law enforcement agencies" (183 Cal. App. 4th 72, 78 ; see New Jersey v. T. L. O. (1985) 469 U.S. 325, 341 n.7, 105 S. Ct. 733, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720 ; In re William G. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 550, 562 n.12, 221 Cal. Rptr. 118, 709 P.2d 1287). However, in K.S., a police detective provided the information relied on by school officials to conduct the search and was present when the search occurred. The court found that a certain level of cooperation between school and police officials is likely when violations of the criminal law, as well as the student code of conduct, are the basis for discipline (183 Cal. App. 4th 72, 80) . In K.S., the police role in the search of the student was at all times clearly subordinate to the role of the vice-principal, who made the decision to search and conducted the search, and for that reason, the T.L.O. standard applied (183 Cal. App. 4th 72, 80) . The narcotics detective's involvement as a mere information conduit did not change the balance of interests. Neither the narcotics detective nor the resource officer advised, instructed, or directed the vice-principal to conduct the search; they merely provided the information that she independently evaluated. Before conducting the search, the vice-principal learned the student was in a P.E. class and his pants could be searched without compelling him to disrobe or be subject to a patdown search. Thus she gathered additional information before acting on the informant's tip. The narcotics detective's presence during the vice-principal's search did not change the result. So long as the school official independently decides to search and invites law enforcement personnel to attend the search to help ensure the safety and security of the school, it would be unwise to discourage the school official from doing so, at least where it is reasonable to suspect that contraband inimical to a secure learning environment is present (183 Cal. App. 4th 72, 80-81) . The extent of the police role in a student search at a school governs whether the T.L.O. standard applies. In making this determination, the court must examine the totality of the circumstances. The trial court implicitly found that the vice-principal made the decision to search and to have the officers present during the search, and each decision was designed to protect the safety of the school. Further, substantial evidence supported the trial court findings (183 Cal. App. 4th 72, 83-84) .

[4] Additional Authorities

In Redding v. Safford Unif. School Dist. (9th Cir. 2007) 504 F.3d 828 , aff'd in part, rev'd in part, Safford Unified Sch. Dist. #1 v. Redding, 2009 U.S. LEXIS 4735, 21 Fla. L. Weekly Fed. S 1011 , a middle school student filed an action alleging violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1983 based on a school search. The school had prohibited the nonmedical use, possession, or sale of drugs on school property or at school events. At a school dance, several staff members noticed unusually rowdy behavior from a small group of students, including plaintiff and her friend and detected the smell of alcohol coming from that group. Later, staff members found a bottle of alcohol and a package of cigarettes in the girls' restroom, but no official action was taken against any of the students at that time. Later in the year, the mother of another student told school administrators that her son had become violent with her and was sick to his stomach and the student claimed the incident occurred after he had taken some pills a classmate had given him and that certain students werebringing drugs and weapons to school, giving the administrators detailed accounts regarding the actions of several students, including plaintiff. During a subsequent meeting with the vice principal, the student handed the vice principal a white pill and said that plaintiff's friend had given it to him and a group of students were planning to take pills at lunch. The school nurse identified the pill as a pill available only by prescription. Based on this information, the vice principal went to the friend's classroom and asked the friend to collect her belongings and accompany him to his office. He also noticed a black planner lying on the desk next to hers, which she denied owning. He nevertheless picked up the planner and handed it to a teacher, who promised he would attempt to find the owner; soon thereafter, the teacher discovered the planner contained knives, lighters, a cigarette, and a permanent marker, and he promptly communicated this information to the vice principal. School officials asked the friend to turn out her pockets and open her wallet, which produced one blue pill, several white pills, and a razor blade. The blue pill was later identified as an over-the-counter drug used to treat pain and inflammation. The friend, in response to questioning, identified plaintiff as the person who had given her the pills, and she denied ownership of the planner and claimed no knowledge of its contents. School officials then searched the friend's person and clothing for pills, which did not produce any more pills. While officials searched the friend, the vice principal retrieved plaintiff from her classroom. In his office, she acknowledged the planner belonged to her but claimed that she had lent it to her friend to hide some things from her parents and denied any knowledge of the planner's contents. She also denied knowledge of the pills seized from the friend and denied bringing pills to school and distributing pills to her classmates, and told the vice principal she did not mind being searched. A search her backpack and of her person did not yield anything. She then filed suit. The district court granted defendants' motion for summary judgment, holding that defendants did not violate plaintiff's Fourth Amendment rights because their search of her person was both justified at its inception and permissible in its scope (

504 F.3d 828, 829-831) . The Ninth Circuit affirmed. The court held first that because the search was conducted by public school officials and took place during school hours and on school premises, the validity of the search was governed by New Jersey v. T. L. O. (1985) 469 U.S. 325, 105 S. Ct. 733, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720 (504 F.3d 828, 832 ; for discussion of New Jersey v. T.L.O., see [3][a], above]. The court then held that the search was justified at its inception, because based on the information available to them, defendants had reasonable grounds for suspecting that the search of plaintiff's person would turn up evidence she had violated or was violating either the law or the rules of the school. At the time defendants searched plaintiff, they had several key pieces of information tying her to the possession and distribution of pills in violation of school policy, including the information that had been provided by the other student and by plaintiff's friend (504 F.3d 828, 832-834) . The court also found the search permissible in scope and conducted in a reasonable manner. Barring the unauthorized use of prescription drugs on school premises was an important governmental interest, favoring defendant. The size of the contraband to be found also favored defendants, because they were searching for something small, i.e., pills, and they searched plaintiff's person only after receiving reliable information that she had pills, failing to find them in her backpack, and observing that she was wearing clothes without pockets. The search was conducted by two employees of the same gender as plaintiff, and took place in the privacy of the school nurse's office with the door securely locked. Plaintiff was not physically touched in any way during the search, she was not asked to remove her bra or underwear, and defendants returned her clothing and permitted her to get dressed as soon as the search was over (504 F.3d 828, 834-836) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.25

§ 210.25 Supporting Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Action for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief for Violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 [42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d] Against School District--Hostile Racial Educational Environment

[1] FORM

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF
CALIFORNIA, _____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	Civil Action, File No. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Defendant(s).	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS
	)	PLAINTIFF'S ACTION FOR FAILURE TO STATE
	)	CLAIM ON WHICH RELIEF CAN BE GRANTED
		[Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF ALLEGING HOSTILE RACIAL EDUCATIONAL ENVIRONMENT IN VIOLATION OF TITLE VI OF THE CIVIL RIGHTS ACT OF 1964 [42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d] DOES NOT STATE A CLAIM ON WHICH THIS COURT CAN GRANT RELIEF AGAINST DEFENDANT AND SHOULD BE DISMISSED.

A. Complaint That Fails to State Claim on Which Court Can Grant Relief Should Be Dismissed Under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6). [See § 210.23, Paragraph A.]

B. No Allegation or Proof That Defendant Is a Recipient of Federal Financial Assistance as Required by 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d. To be liable for a hostile racial educational environment under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d, a defendant school district must be a recipient of federal financial assistance (42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d; Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022, 1032) .

C. In Action Based on Hostile Racial Educational Environment, No Allegation of Essential Elements Stating Claim for Relief. For a school district to be liable under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d, for a hostile racial educational environment, the plaintiff must allege and prove that: there is a racially hostile environment--that is, one in which racial harassment is so severe, pervasive or persistent as to interfere with or limit the ability of an individual to participate in or benefit from services, activities, or privileges provided by the school district; the school district had notice of the problem; and the district failed to respond adequately to redress the racially hostile environment (Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022, 1032-1035) .

D. No Allegation or Showing that Defendant Had Notice of or Was Deliberately Indifferent to Hostile Racial Educational Environment. To be liable under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d, for a hostile racial educational environment, a school district must have actual or constructive notice of racial harassment and must have been deliberately indifferent to the hostile racial environment [Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022, 1034] .
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) to dismiss a complaint in an action against a school district for declaratory and injunctive relief based on a hostile racial educational environment.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations that support the motion.

For discussion of motions to dismiss a federal court action under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim for relief, see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 12, § 12.34 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for summary judgment brought under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56. For discussion of motions for summary judgment in federal court actions generally,see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 56 (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief for violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d, for a hostile racial education environment, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment, generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Allegation or Proof That Defendant Is a Recipient of Federal Financial Assistance as Required by 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d.

Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022 is discussed in § 210.25[3][b].

[b] In Action Based on Hostile Racial Educational Environment, No Allegation of Essential Elements Stating Claim for Relief

In Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022 , the mother of a high school freshman sued a school district, alleging causes of action under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 for violation of the Equal Protection Clause of U.S. Const. amends. V, XIV seeking to bar assignment in English classes of The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn by Mark Twain and A Rose for Emily by William Faulkner based on use of word "nigger" as racially discriminatory and encouraging racial discrimination and harassment of African-American students at her daughter's high school. The complaint alleged that African-American students suffered psychological injuries and lost educational opportunities due to the required reading of the literary works, and that the school district had notice that the student suffered these injuries, but refused to offer a remedy other than to allow her to study alone in the library while the works were being discussed in class. It further alleged a violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d), alleging that the assignment of the literary works "created and contributed to a racially hostile educational environment," including increased racial harassment by other students. The district court dismissed the complaint on the ground that plaintiff failed to state a claim under either the Equal Protection Clause or Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 because the complaint did not contain specific allegations of fact necessary to sustain a claim of discriminatory intent, and dismissed as moot the request for injunctive relief for removal of the literary works from particular English classes because the student was no longer a member of the freshman English class.

The Ninth Circuit affirmed the dismissal of the claim in § 1983 but reversed the dismissal of the claim under Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 based on a hostile racial educational environment. The court held that a school district's failure to respond to racial harassment of one or more pupils by other students constitutes a violation of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C.S. § 2000d, which provides that no person in the United States can be excluded on the ground of race, color, or national origin from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under and program or activity receiving federal financial assistance (158 F.3d 1022, 1032-1035) . Title VI prohibits student-to-student racial harassment (158 F.3d 1022, 1033) . A school district violates Title VI when all of the following are true (158 F.3d 1022, 1033) :

- There is a racially hostile environment.
- The school district had notice of the problem.
- The district failed to respond adequately to redress the racially hostile environment.

A "racially hostile environment" is one in which racial harassment is so severe, pervasive or persistent as to interfere with or limit the ability of an individual to participate in or benefit from services, activities or privileges provided by the school district. Whether a hostile educational environment exists is a question of fact, determined with reference to the totality of the circumstances, including the victim's race and age. Racial harassment creates a hostile environment if it is sufficiently severe that it would interfere with the educational program of a reasonable person of the same age and race as the victim. Racist attacks need not be directed at the complainant in order to create a hostile educational environment. A complaint by a parent alleging that her ninth-grade daughter and other similarly situated African-American students attended a school where they were called "niggers" by white children, and that term was written on the walls of the buildings in which they were supposed to learn civics and social studies, sufficiently alleged a hostile racial environment under Title VI (158 F.3d 1022, 1033) .

A school district may have either actual or constructive notice of racial harassment. Actual notice may occur when a student or parent makes a complaint about racially demeaning incidents to the appropriate educational authorities. Once on notice of the problem, the district has a legal duty to take reasonable steps to eliminate a racially hostile environment. When a district is "deliberately indifferent" to its students' right to a learning environment free of racial hostility and discrimination, it is liable for damages under Title VI. The district is liable for its failure to act if the need for intervention was so obvious, or if inaction was solikely to result in discrimination, that it can be said to have been deliberately indifferent to the need (158 F.3d 1022, 1034) .

[c] No Allegation or Showing that Defendant Had Notice of or Was Deliberately Indifferent to Hostile Racial Educational Environment

Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022 is discussed in § 210.25[3][b].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.26

§ 210.26 Supporting Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Action for Injunctive Relief for Violation of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Against School District--Removal of Racially Discriminatory Literary Works From Mandatory Curriculum

[1] FORM

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF
CALIFORNIA, _____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	Civil Action, File No. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Defendant(s).	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO DISMISS
	)	PLAINTIFF'S ACTION FOR FAILURE TO STATE
	)	CLAIM ON WHICH RELIEF CAN BE GRANTED
		[Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FOR INJUNCTIVE RELIEF FOR REMOVAL OF OFFENSIVE LITERARY WORKS FROM A SCHOOL'S MANDATORY CURRICULUM DOES NOT STATE A CLAIM ON WHICH THIS COURT CAN GRANT RELIEF AGAINST DEFENDANT AND SHOULD BE DISMISSED.

A. Complaint That Fails to State Claim on Which Court Can Grant Relief Should Be Dismissed Under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6). [See § 210.23, Paragraph A.].

B. Complaint for Violation of Equal Protection Under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Must Plead Intentional Discrimination. A complaint brought under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 that alleges a violation of the equal protection clause of U.S. Const. amend. V, must allege facts showing intentional unlawful discrimination or facts that are at least susceptible of an inference of discriminatory intent [Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022, 1026] .

C. Courts May Not Ban Literary Works From School Curricula on Basis of Content. Other than educational material subject to prohibitions of religion clauses of U.S. Const. amend. I), courts may not ban books or other literary works from school curricula on the basis of their content, even when the works are accused of being racist in whole or in part [Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022, 1028-1032] .
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a defendant's motion under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) to dismiss a complaint in an action against a school district for removal of allegedly offensive literary works from a school's mandatory curriculum.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations that support the motion.

For discussion of motions to dismiss a federal court action under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim for relief, see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 12, Defenses and Objections--When and How Presented--By Pleading or Motion--Motion for Judgment on Pleadings, § 12.34 (3d ed., Matthew Bender).

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for summary judgment brought under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56. For discussion of motions for summary judgment in federal court actions generally, see Moore's Federal Practice, Ch. 56, Summary Judgment (3d ed., Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment, generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Complaint for Violation of Equal Protection Under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Must Plead Intentional Discrimination

Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022 is discussed in §§ 210.25[3][b] and 210.26[3][b].

[b] Courts May Not Ban Literary Works From School Curricula on Basis of Content

The facts and procedural background of Monteiro v. Tempe Union High Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 1998) 158 F.3d 1022 , are discussed in § 210.25[3][b]. The plaintiff's complaint alleged that the mother of a high school freshman sued a school district seeking to bar assignment in English classes of The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn by Mark Twain and A Rose for Emily by William Faulkner based on use of word "nigger" as racially discriminatory and encouraging racial discrimination and harassment of African-American students at her daughter's high school. The complaint alleged that African-American students suffered psychological injuries and lost educational opportunities due to the required reading of the literary works, and that the school district had notice that the student suffered these injuries but refused to offer a remedy other than to allow her to study alone in the library while the works were being discussed in class. It further alleged that the assignment of the literary works "created and contributed to a racially hostile educational environment," including increased racial harassment by other students. Finally, it alleged that by its conduct the School District intentionally discriminated against Doe. The district court dismissed the complaint on the ground that plaintiff failed to state a claim under the Equal Protection Clause because the complaint did not contain specific allegations of fact necessary to sustain a claim of discriminatory intent, and dismissed as moot the request for injunctive relief for removal of the literary works from particular English classes because the student was no longer a member of the freshman English class.

The Ninth Circuit affirmed. The court held that courts may not ban books or other literary works from school curricula on the basis of their content, even when the works are accused of being racist in whole or in part, excluding from its holding and analysis educational material subject to the prohibitions of religion clauses of U.S. Const. amend. I (158 F.3d 1022, 1028-1032) . Ruling on whether a parent's complaint seeking removal of allegedly racially discriminatory books from a high school's mandatory curriculum stated a cause of action under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 based on the Equal Protection Clause of the United States Constitution, the court found that attaching civil liability on the basis of the assignment of a book and requiring removal of literary works from the classroom, would severely restrict a student's right to receive material that the school board or other educational authority determines to be of legitimate educational value, and that when a school board identifies information that it believes to be a useful part of a student's education, the student has the right to receive the information (158 F.3d 1022, 1028-1029) . Allowing the complaint to go forward would inevitably lead many school districts to "buy their peace" by avoiding the use of books or other materials that express messages or simply use terms that could beargued to cause harm to a group of students (158 F.3d 1022, 1029) , and a school board attempting to remove books from its curriculum on the ground that the works might offend would likely be vulnerable to First Amendment actions brought by students wishing to study those books, and possibly teachers, as well (158 F.3d 1022, 1030) . Important countervailing considerations (that books and words can hurt, particularly racist epithets; that some of the most lauded works of literature convey, explicitly or more subtly, messages of racism and sexism or other ideas that, if accepted blindly, would serve to maintain or promote the invidious inequalities that exist in our world today; that the younger a person is, the more likely it is that those messages will help form that person's thinking; that the feelings of minority students, especially younger ones, are extremely vulnerable when it comes to books that are racist or have racist overtones; and that American society has all too often failed to afford its African-American citizens the equal treatment that the Fourteenth Amendment requires, particularly in the area of public education) do not outweigh the First Amendment considerations (158 F.3d 1022, 1031-1032) .

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

§ 210.27 Opposing Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] in Action for Damages for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
[a minor, by _____ (name),	)
his/her Guardian ad Litem]	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
vs.	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR SUM-
_____ [names],	)	MARY JUDGMENT
Defendants.	)	[Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]
	)
	)

_____

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON THE GROUND THAT A SCHOOL DISTRICT AND ITS EMPLOYEES BREACHED NO DUTY TO SUPERVISE OR PROVIDE FOR THE PROTECTION OF PLAINTIFF SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THERE IS A TRIABLE ISSUE OF FACT AS TO WHETHER OR NOT PLAINTIFF'S INJURY WAS PROXIMATELY CAUSED BY DEFENDANTS' NEGLIGENT SUPERVISION.

A. Rules Governing Summary Judgment Procedure. Granting a motion for summary judgment is proper only if the affidavits or declarations supporting the motion establish every element necessary to sustain a judgment in favor of the moving party and the opposing party has not presented any facts which give rise to a triable issue. In ruling on the motion, the moving party's affidavits are strictly construed while the opposing party's are liberally construed, and doubts as to the propriety of granting the motion should be resolved in favor of the opposing party (Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 851, n.6, 852, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953). The court may not properly grant summary judgment based on inferences reasonably deducible from the papers submitted, if such inferences are contradicted by other inferences which raise a triable issue of fact (Hepp v. Lockheed-Cal. Co. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 714, 717-718, 150 Cal. Rptr. 408).

B. Duty to Supervise Students. School authorities have a duty to supervise at all times the conduct of students on school property and to enforce those rules and regulations necessary to their protection (Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 747, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360).

C. Standard of Care. The standard of care imposed on school personnel in carrying out the duty to supervise students is that degree of care which a person of ordinary prudence, charged with comparable duties, would exercise under the same circumstances (Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 747, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360).

D. Lack of Ordinary Care. Either a total lack of supervision or ineffective supervision may constitute a lack of ordinary care on the part of those responsible for student supervision (Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 747, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360).

E. Vicarious Liability of School District. A school district is vicariously liable for injuries proximately caused by the negligent failure of school officials or employees to properly supervise its students (Gov. Code § 815.2(a); Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 747, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360).

F. Adequacy of Supervision as Question of Fact. The questions of whether a school district has provided adequate supervision under the circumstances and whether the supervisor was negligent are for determination by the trier of fact (J.H. v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 123, 148, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 182 ; Charonnat v. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 840, 843-844, 133 P.2d 643).

G. Off-Campus Injury Proximately Caused by Negligent On-Campus Supervision. The fact that an injury occurs off-campus does not in itself insulate school officials from liability if the injury was proximately caused by the school district's negligent failure to properly supervise students on the school premises (Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 514-518, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851).

[Optional] H. Failure to Prevent Unauthorized Departure From School. School officials have a duty to exercise ordinary care to enforce rules prohibiting students from leaving the school premises before the end of the school day without proper authorization (Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 514, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851).

[Optional] I. Foreseeability of Injury to Special Needs Student Inflicted in Hidden Area of Campus. If a school district allows a hidden area to be maintained on campus without taking adequate steps to prevent access by students, the foreseeability of that area being used to inflict injury on a special-needs student may be imputed to the district even without proof of prior incidents of victimization taking place in that hidden area (Jennifer C. v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1328-1329, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to defendants' motion for summary judgment in an action for damages for negligent supervision when the motion for summary judgment is based on the ground that defendant breached no duty to provide adequate supervision to plaintiff on school grounds. The ground of opposition set out is that there is a triable issue of fact as to whether or not plaintiff's off-campus injury was proximately caused by defendants' negligent supervision of students in the school premises.

In an appropriate case, this form may be used in opposition to a motion for summary judgment supported by the points and authorities in § 210.20.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated, including arguments showing either the insufficiency of the supporting affidavits or declarations or the existence of a triable issue of fact. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations which oppose the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries against a school district and its employees based on negligent supervision of students, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Rules Governing Summary Judgment Procedure

Plaintiffs in Corwin v. Los Angeles Newspaper Serv. Bureau, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 842, 94 Cal. Rptr. 785, 484 P.2d 953 , filed an action against defendants for violations of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 16720, 16726 (prohibited restraints of tradeunder Cartwright Act). The trial court granted defendants' motion for summary judgment and plaintiffs appealed from the judgment entered in defendants' favor. The Supreme Court concluded that the trial court had erroneously granted the summary judgment and reversed the judgment. In reviewing the trial court's action, the Court commented that summary judgment is a drastic procedure which should be used with caution so that it does not become a substitute for the open trial method of determining facts (4 Cal. 3d 842, 851, 852) .

Hepp v. Lockheed-Cal. Co. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 714, 150 Cal. Rptr. 408 , was an action for breach of contract and fraud. The trial court granted summary judgment for defendant, and the court of appeal reversed the judgment of dismissal. The court of appeal reviewed the rules for granting summary judgment. It relied on Code Civ. Proc. § 437c in stating that summary judgment may not be granted on the basis of inferences that are contradicted by other inferences, which raise a triable issue of fact (86 Cal. 3d 714, 717-718).

[b] Duty to Supervise Students

In Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360 , the decedent, plaintiffs' son, a high school student, was killed in the course of an unsupervised "slap boxing" match with another student which took place on the school grounds during lunch period. Plaintiffs brought a wrongful death action against the school district, alleging that the district's negligence in failing to provide adequate supervision was the proximate cause of their son's death. After both sides had rested, the trial court granted a motion for directed verdict in favor of all defendants. Plaintiffs appealed from the judgment entered on that verdict.

The Supreme Court reversed. The Court first noted that while school districts and their employees have never been considered insurers of the physical safety of students, California law has long imposed on school authorities a duty to supervise at all times the conduct of children on the school grounds and to enforce those rules and regulations necessary to their protection. The Court stated that the standard of care imposed on school personnel in carrying out this duty to supervise is that degree of care which a person of ordinary prudence, charged with comparable duties, would exercise under the same circumstances. Either a total lack of supervision or ineffective supervision may constitute a lack of ordinary care on the part of those responsible for student supervision. The Court observed that under Gov. Code § 815.2(a), a school district is vicariously liable for injuries proximately caused by such negligence (2 Cal. 3d 741, 747) . The Court then considered the evidence in the case and concluded that it was sufficient to support a verdict in favor of plaintiffs and that the trial court thus erred in granting the motion for a directed verdict (2 Cal. 3d 741, 749-751) .

[c] Standard of Care

Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360 , is discussed in § 210.27[3][b].

[d] Lack of Ordinary Care

Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360 , is discussed in § 210.27[3][b].

[e] Vicarious Liability of School District

Gov. Code § 815.2(a) provides that a public entity is liable for injury proximately caused by an act or omission of an employee of the public entity within the scope of his or her employment if the act or omission would, apart from Gov. Code § 815.2, have given rise to a cause of action against that employee or his or her personal representative.

In Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360 , which is discussed in § 210.27[3][b], the Supreme Court observed that under Gov. Code § 815.2(a), a school district is vicariously liable for the negligence of school personnel in failing to provide adequate supervision (2 Cal. 3d 741, 747) . In a footnote, the Court further explained that Gov. Code § 815.2 carries over to all public entities the respondeat superior liability previously imposed on school districts by former Educ. Code § 903, which provided that the governing board of a school district is liable in the name of the district for any judgment against the district on account of injury to person or property arising because of the negligence of the district, or its officers or employees (2 Cal. 3d 741, 747 n.3).

[f] Adequacy of Supervision as Question of Fact

In J.H. v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 123, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 182 , plaintiff, while she was a seven-year-old second grade student, was sexually assaulted by other students during a voluntary after-school program intended to provide a playground setting for the students in the mid- to late-afternoon hours. While attending the program, plaintiff alleged that she was a reluctant participant in a "kissing club" that included four other students of her age group. The first incident occurred during the after-school program when three of the students encouraged the fourth to kiss plaintiff against her will. Two days later, also during the after-school program, plaintiff was forced into an unlocked storage shed by the group and slapped repeatedly by one of the girls until she submitted to forced sexually contact with one of the boys. The incidents were reported four days later. Plaintiff sued the school district and supervisory school personnel, as well as the other students and their parents. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of the school district defendants, concluding both that a school generally has no duty to children participating in voluntary after-school programs and that the school was not in a special relationship with the students involved because the school had no prior knowledge that the instigating students had sexual proclivities towards plaintiff or other students. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the school district did owe a duty of care when supervising students in the after-school program. The court noted that, based on principles established in earlier cases, the fact that participation in the after-school school program was voluntary did not preclude a finding that the school was in a special relationship with the students and owed a duty of care to protect them. The school district had told parents that the after-school program would be supervised, although on the day that plaintiff was sexually assaulted in the shed by the other students, the district had provided only one supervisor for 113 students (183 Cal. App. 4th 123, 142-143) . The court also noted that California cases have cited the immaturity of children as a factor to consider when determining a school district's duty of care to students. In the case before it, while there was evidence that the playground supervisor told students to stay within a certain area of the playground, the court noted the tendency of young children to act impulsively and disregard directives regarding their own safety and boundaries, and such immaturity might make a shed obscured from view an enticing location for young children looking to act out (183 Cal. App. 4th 123, 144-145) . Under the circumstances present, the court concluded that a duty of care was owed by school personnel and issues remained for the trier of fact as to whether the school district breached this duty and, if so, whether the assault was proximately caused by such breach (183 Cal. App. 4th 123, 148) .

In Charronat v. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 840, 133 P.2d 643 , plaintiff, an elementary school student, brought an action against the school district for damages allegedly sustained as a result of having his leg broken by another student during the noon hour at school. The trial court, sitting without a jury, entered a judgment for the plaintiff, finding that his injuries were the result of negligent supervision by the defendant. On appeal, the school district contended that under the facts of the case, to hold the district liable would in effect make the school district an insurer of the safety of its pupils. The district based its contention on the argument that it had, in fact, provided adequate supervision. The court of appeals affirmed the judgment for plaintiff, noting that the questions of whether defendant provided proper supervision under the circumstances, and whether the supervisor was negligent, were questions of fact for the trial court (56 Cal. App. 2d 840, 843-844) . The court held that the trial court's findings were sustained by substantial evidence (56 Cal. App. 2d 840, 844) .

[g] Off-Campus Injury Proximately Caused by Negligent On-Campus Supervision

In Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851 , plaintiff, a ten-year-old boy, was attending summer classes at a school operated by defendant school district. On one occasion, plaintiff left the school premises before the end of scheduled classes and was struck by a motorcycle on a public street near the school. Plaintiff and his mother brought an action against the district, alleging that the accident and resulting injuries were proximately caused by the school district's negligent supervision. The trial court sustained demurrers to all causes of action and dismissed the action. In reversing the judgment as to the injuries suffered by the minor plaintiff, the Supreme Court held that the allegations of the complaint were sufficient to state a cause of action against the school district (22 Cal. 3d 508, 523) . In so holding, the Court rejected the school district's contention that a school district may not be held liable for an off-campus injury. The Court first observed that several California decisions had held a school district liable for such injuries (22 Cal. 3d 508, 514-515) . The Court stated that the district's emphasis on situs of the injury was totally misplaced because, contrary to its assertion, no California decision suggests that when a school district fails to properly supervise a student on school premises, the district can automatically escape liability simply because the student's ultimate injury occurs off school property (22 Cal. 3d 508, 515) . The Court also held that Educ. Code § 44808 (relieving school district and personnel from liability for safety or conduct of pupils at any time when pupils are not on school property, except when district has undertaken to transport them or otherwise has assumed responsibility for their safety or conduct) did not relieve the school district of liability in this case because the statute is, by its own terms, inapplicable when the school district has failed to exercise reasonable care under the circumstances, as was alleged in plaintiff's complaint in this case (22 Cal. 3d 508, 516-517) . Moreover, the Court noted that neither Educ. Code § 44808 nor any case relied on by the district limits in any way a school district's responsibility to supervise students during school hours on school premises (22 Cal. 3d 508, 518) .

[h] Failure to Prevent Unauthorized Departure From School

The factual and procedural background of Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851 , is discussed in § 210.27[3][g]. In holding that the plaintiff's complaint stated a cause of action for negligent supervision, the Supreme Court rejected the school district's contention that the duty to supervise pupils does not include any responsibility for assuring that pupils remain on the school premises during the school day. The Court noted that, as an earlier case pointed out [see Dailey v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 741, 747, 87 Cal. Rptr. 376, 470 P.2d 360 ; see also § 210.27[3][b]], the duty to supervise includes the duty to enforce those rules and regulations necessary for pupils' protection. The Court then cited a state regulation prohibiting pupils from leaving the school premises at recess, or at any other time before the regular hour for closing school, except in case of emergency, or with the approval of the principal of the school, and observed that this rule is no doubt at least partly for the pupils' protection. The Court then held that school authorities bore the duty of exercising ordinary care to enforce the rule (22 Cal. 3d 508, 514) .

[i] Foreseeability of Injury to Special Needs Student Inflicted in Hidden Area of Campus

In Jennifer C. v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274 , a 14-year-old female student with a mental disability was sexually assaulted by another student. The assault took place during and immediately after lunch break in an alcove under a stairway along the school's border, after the assailant had requested that plaintiff follow him to the secluded area. While the space in the alcove was visible through a chain-link fence to people on the street walkingpast, the alcove was not visible to school supervisors unless they made a specific effort to go to and look inside the alcove. The area around the alcove was marked with a bright yellow chain to indicate that the area was off-limits to students. A supervisor had checked the alcove about five times during the 30-minute lunch break, the final time being approximately three minutes before the bell rang to end lunch break. Plaintiff and the assailant were discovered in the alcove about 11 minutes after the bell rang after a parent walking outside of campus reported that two students were having sex in the alcove. Prior to this incident, school officials were unaware of any sexual assaults or other illicit activity occurring during school hours in or around the alcove. When suit was brought against the school district on behalf of the student, the trial court granted summary judgment for the district. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Recognizing that the law with respect to "special needs" children was still developing, the court of appeal noted that the court in in M. W. v. Panama Buena Vista School Dist. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 508, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 673 , discussed in [4][a], below, had recognized the unique vulnerability of such students and imposed a duty of care on a school to protect a child from an assault that took place in a campus restroom that was not adequately monitored. In accordance with the rationale in M. W., the court of appeal concluded that the school district might have breached a duty owed to the special-needs plaintiff in the instant case. In focusing on the issue of whether the assault was foreseeable, the court held that if a school district allows a hidden area to be maintained on campus without taking adequate steps to prevent access by students, the foreseeability of that area being used to inflict injury on a special-needs student may be imputed to the district even without proof of prior incidents of victimization taking place in that hidden area. Thus, the fact that school officials were aware of no earlier assaults or misconduct in the alcove was not dispositive on the issue of whether the school's duty to provide proper supervision extended to providing better supervision over the hidden alcove (168 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1328-1329) . In light of an expert witness declaration supporting the proposition that the school district failed to provide appropriate supervision, the court held that a triable issue of fact remained such that summary judgment was improper (168 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1330-1333) . The court also held that a triable issue remained on the issue of whether the hidden alcove constituted a dangerous condition of public property within the meaning of Gov. Code § 835 (168 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1333-1335) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Duty to Supervise Students

In M. W. v. Panama Buena Vista Union Sch. Dist. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 508, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 673 , the plaintiff, a special education student with learning disabilities, was sexually assaulted by another student in a junior high school restroom at 7:15 in the morning before the start of classes. The plaintiff sued the school district for failure to provide adequate supervision, and the jury awarded the plaintiff over $2,000,000 in damages. The court of appeal upheld the judgment, finding that the school district owed the plaintiff a duty of care under the circumstances. The school gates were opened each morning at 7:00, the restrooms were unlocked between 7:00 and 7:45, administrators and staff typically arrived between 7:00 and 7:30, and classes started at 8:15. However, despite the regular presence of early arriving students and the specific knowledge that the plaintiff regularly arrived at school by 7:15, the school did not assign adult supervisors for specific areas to which students had access until 7:45. In addition, the plaintiff's assailant had a long history of disciplinary problems at the school, including over 30 instances of discipline in the previous two years, and the plaintiff had on several occasions complained to school officials that the assailant was bothering him. Under the circumstances, and in consideration of the special needs presented by special education students, the court of appeal concluded that the assault was foreseeable and that the defendant owed the plaintiff a duty to protect him from the assault. The court also noted that it was not necessary that the school specifically foresee the exact nature of the assault (110 Cal. App. 4th 508, 520-521) .

In Lucas v. Fresno Unified Sch. Dist. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th. 866, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79 , the court of appeal reversed the granting of a summary judgment motion by the trial court in favor of the school district based on the doctrine of implied assumption of risk. The court held that the school district owed a duty to a student, which was breached, when the student was struck in the eye and injured by a dirt clod thrown by another student while both students were on the school premisesduring a school day at the morning recess. The school district had a duty to supervise students' conduct on school grounds and owed a duty of care to plaintiff student (14 Cal. App. 4th. 866, 868-869) .

In Constantinescu v. Conejo Valley Unified Sch. Dist. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 734 the court of appeal held a school district liable under Gov. Code § 835, relating to the dangerous condition of public property, for negligently supervising a congested school parking lot. The court found that the school district did not exercise reasonable care by failing to erect a barrier between the lot and a sidewalk where children waited to be picked up by parents (16 Cal. App. 4th 1466, 1474-1476) .

[b] Adequacy of Supervision as Question of Fact

In Farley v. El Tejon Unified Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 371, 274 Cal. Rptr. 780 , the family of an eight-year-old boy killed when hit by an automobile while crossing the road after being dropped off by a school bus brought a wrongful death action against defendant school district, the owner and operator of the bus. Plaintiffs alleged defendant was negligent in dropping off passengers at that location without signaling the red school bus flashers, and that in doing so, defendant violated Educ. Code § 44808, regarding the safety of students off school premises when the school has undertaken to provide transportation for students, and a former version of Veh. Code § 22112, which requires the driver of a school bus to operate the flashing red signals whenever the bus is stopped to load children who must cross the road to board the bus.

The court of appeal reversed the summary judgment for defendant granted by the trial court, finding that whether the exercise of reasonable care under the circumstances required defendant to supervise the children's safe crossing of the road is a question to be resolved by the trier of fact. The court explained that once a school district supplies transportation to its pupils, it has the obligation to provide a reasonably safe system. Although defendant argued that it had no duty of care at the time of the accident because the school bus was no longer in sight, and the victim was no longer under the immediate and direct supervision of defendant, the court framed the issue differently. It said that whether or not the victim should have been under the immediate and direct supervision of an employee of defendant depends on whether the exercise of reasonable care under the circumstances required the school bus driver to supervise students crossing the road after being discharged from the bus (225 Cal. App. 3d 371, 377-380) .

[c] Off-Campus Injury Proximately Caused by Negligent On-Campus Supervision

In Eric M. v. Cajon Valley Union School Dist. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 285, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428 , plaintiff was a six-year-old child who initially boarded a school bus to ride home, but was then allowed to leave the bus unattended when she told the driver that she saw her father's car and would ride home with him. The student, realizing that her father was not there, left the school grounds on foot with other students and was hit by a car when walking toward the bus drop-off spot. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of the school district, but the court of appeal reversed. The court of appeal held that there were triable issues of fact as to whether the school's duty to exercise immediate and direct supervision over its pupils was breached, and that a reasonable juror could conclude that the school's supervision and precautions at the time the buses were loaded and the child was allowed to leave were deficient and constituted a violation of its duty of care (174 Cal. App. 4th 285, 299) .

In Satariano v. Sleight (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 278, 129 P.2d 35 , plaintiff, a high school student, was injured when he was struck by an automobile while crossing a public street which ran between the high school gymnasium and the athletic fields. Plaintiff and his parents brought an action against the driver of the automobile and the school district. The trial court entered a judgment of nonsuit after the close of plaintiff's case. On appeal, the court of appeal reversed.

In discussing the liability of the school district, the court of appeal noted that school authorities are entrusted with the safety of children during school hours and that the school authorities are bound to exercise an amount of care for the children's safety during that period commensurate with the immaturity of their charges and the importance of their trust (54 Cal. App. 2d 278, 284) . The court rejected the trial court's view that the school district's duty to supervise students ceased once the child was on a public street, noting that in going from the gymnasium to the playing field, the students were still subject to the school authorities and were merely passing from class to class during the regular hours of school and that the public street under these circumstances became in a sense an extension of the school grounds (54 Cal. App. 2d 278, 284) . The court concluded that the evidence presented a question of fact for the jury as to whether with knowledge of the dangerous practice of a large part of the students in crossing the street outside of a crosswalk, ordinary care for their protection required school authorities to do more than merely give sporadic warnings to individuals and groups in those accidental instances when teachers happened to be present (54 Cal. App. 2d 278, 284-285) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.28

§ 210.28 Opposing Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] in Action for Damages for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--School District as Not Immune From Liability for Injury Sustained on Required Off-Premises School Activity

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.27.]

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT ON THE GROUND THAT PLAINTIFF WAS MAKING A FIELD TRIP OR EXCURSION AND THEREBY WAIVED ALL CLAIMS AGAINST THE SCHOOL DISTRICT FOR INJURY, ACCIDENT, ILLNESS, OR DEATH OCCURRING DURING OR BECAUSE OF THE FIELD TRIP OR EXCURSION SHOULD NOT BE GRANTED BECAUSE THERE IS A TRIABLE ISSUE OF FACT AS TO WHETHER OR NOT THE SCHOOL ACTIVITY IN WHICH PLAINTIFF PARTICIPATED WAS ONE WHICH HE/SHE WAS REQUIRED TO ATTEND AND FOR WHICH ATTENDANCE CREDIT WAS GIVEN.

A. Duty to Supervise Students. [See § 210.27, Paragraph A.]

B. Standard of Care. [See § 210.27, Paragraph B.]

C. Lack of Ordinary Care. [See § 210.27, Paragraph C.]

D. Vicarious Liability of School District. [See § 210.27, Paragraph D.]

E. Adequacy of Supervision as Question of Fact. [See § 210.27, Paragraph E.]

F. Duty to Supervise Required Off-Campus School Activities. Students who are off school property for required school purposes are entitled to same safeguards as those who are on school property, within supervisorial limits; where a school-sponsored activity is involved, that is, one that requires attendance and for which attendance credit may be given, the school district is liable and responsible for the safety of any pupil while that pupil is or should be under the immediate and direct supervision of an employee of the district (Castro v. Los Angeles Bd. of Educ. (1976) 54 Cal.

App. 3d 232, 236, 126 Cal. Rptr. 537).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to defendants' motion for summary judgment in an action for damages for negligent supervision when the summary judgment is based on the ground that plaintiff has waived his or her cause of action by participating in a field trip or excursion [see Educ. Code § 35330]. The ground of opposition set out is that there is a triable issue of fact as to whether or not the activity in which plaintiff participated was a school-sponsored activity for which attendance was required so that there was no waiver of liability.

In an appropriate case, this form may be used in opposition to a motion for summary judgment supported by the points and authorities in § 210.22.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated, including arguments showing either the insufficiency of the supporting affidavits or declarations or the existence of a triable issue of fact. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations which oppose the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries against a school district and its employees based on negligent supervision of students, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Duty to Supervise Required Off-Campus School Activities

The factual and procedural background of Castro v. Los Angeles Bd. of Educ. (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 126 Cal. Rptr. 537 , is discussed in § 210.22[3][a]. The court of appeal held that although students who participate in nonrequired trips or excursions are effectively on their own because of the deemed waiver provision of former Educ. Code § 1081.5 [now see Educ. Code § 35330], students who are off school property for required school purposes are entitled tothe same safeguards as those who are on school property, within supervisorial limits. Thus, the court concluded, when a "school-sponsored activity" is involved (that is, one that requires attendance and for which attendance credit may be given), the district is liable for the safety of any pupil while he or she is under the immediate and direct supervision of a district employee (54 Cal. App. 3d 232, 236) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.29

§ 210.29 Opposing Defendants' Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] in Action for Damages for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--Cause of Action Exists for Failure to Warn of Other Student's Violent Tendencies

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.27.]

DEFENDANT'S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT, MADE ON THE GROUND THAT NO BREACH OF DUTY COULD BE ESTABLISHED UNDER THE FACTS ALLEGED IN THE COMPLAINT, SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE A SCHOOL DISTRICT MAY BE HELD LIABLE FOR A SCHOOL ADMINISTRATOR'S FAILURE TO WARN A SUPERVISING TEACHER OF A STUDENT'S VIOLENT TENDENCIES.

A. Rules Governing Summary Judgment Procedure. [See § 210.27, Paragraph A.]

B. Duty to Supervise Students. [See § 210.27, Paragraph B.]

C. Standard of Care. [See § 210.27, Paragraph C.]

D. Lack of Ordinary Care. [See § 210.27, Paragraph D.]

E. Vicarious Liability of School District. [See § 210.27, Paragraph E.]

F. Adequacy of Supervision as Question of Fact. [See § 210.27, Paragraph F.]

G. School District May Be Held Liable for Damages Based on Failure to Warn. A school district may be held liable for damages to a student for injuries suffered in an attack by another student, based on a school administrator's failure to warn the supervising teacher of the attacking student's violent tendencies (Skinner v. Vacaville Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 31, 42, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a defendant'smotion for summary judgment in an action for damages for negligent supervision when the motion is based on the ground that an administrator's failure to warn the supervising teacher of the attacking student's known violent tendencies cannot give rise to a cause of action. The ground of opposition set out is that a school district may be held liable for a school administrator's failure to warn a supervising teacher of a student's violent tendencies.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence showing a failure to warn, and that the administrator had knowledge of the attacking student's violent tendencies, and should argue that the school district is liable for damages resulting from a breach of the duty to warn [see Skinner v. Vacaville Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 31, 42, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to negligence, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 380, Negligence (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] School District May Be Held Liable for Damages Based on Failure to Warn

In Skinner v. Vacaville Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 31, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 , a former student brought a negligence action against a school district for injuries she suffered in an attack by another student. The incident occurred during a volleyball game in a high school physical education class with the physical education teacher standing at a distance of 20 to 30 feet from the volleyball court. Plaintiff sought to prove that the school's principal and vice-principal were negligent in the administration of discipline by failing to warn the physical education teacher of the student's proclivity toward fighting. In a special verdict, the jury found that the District was negligent in failing to protect plaintiff. The District appealed the decision.

Although it reversed the judgment on other grounds, the court of appeal ruled that the evidence would support a finding that the school administrators breached their duty of care toward students under their supervision by failing to notify the physical education teacher of the student's prior record of fighting (37 Cal. App. 4th 31, 42-43) . Plaintiff argued that a school district's duty to warn could be based both on statutory grounds and on general principles of negligence. The court of appeal concluded that the verdict could not be upheld on statutory grounds because the trial court had failed to instruct on the requirements of proximate cause incorporated in Gov. Code § 815.6 (37 Cal. App. 4th 31, 40) . As to the negligence theory, the court acknowledged that the duty issue was very close since the student had not inflicted physical injury on other students, but had shown an inordinate tendency to engage in mutual combat that often led to injuries (37 Cal. App. 4th 31, 42) . Ultimately, the court determined that the evidence would support a finding that the school administrators breached their duty of care toward plaintiff, a student under their supervision, by failing to notify the physical education teacher of the aggressor student's record of fighting (37 Cal. App. 4th 31, 42) . Despite the court's ruling on the duty issue, the court reversed the judgment on other grounds, ruling that the record could not support for the jury's finding on causation (37 Cal. App. 4th 31, 43) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.30

§ 210.30 Opposing Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] in Action for Damages for Personal Injuries Against School District and Employees--Negligent Supervision of Students [Civ. Code § 1714(a); Gov. Code §§ 815.2, 820]--School District Not Immune Under "Hazardous Recreational Activity" Immunity [Gov. Code § 831.7] From Liability for Injury Sustained During Physical Education Class Conducted on School Property

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.27.]

DEFENDANTS' MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE STATUTORY IMMUNITY FOR A SCHOOL DISTRICT AND ITS EMPLOYEES BASED ON "RECREATIONAL ACTIVITIES" IS INAPPLICABLE TO INJURIES SUSTAINED ON SCHOOL GROUNDS DURING A PHYSICAL EDUCATION CLASS REQUIRED BY THE SCHOOL AND CONDUCTED DURING SCHOOL HOURS.

A. Rules Governing Summary Judgment Procedure. [See § 210.27, Paragraph A.]

B. Required Physical Education Class Is Not "Recreational Activity." A body contact sport incorporated into a schooltime physical education class is not a "recreational activity" within the meaning of Government Code Section 831.7, which provides qualified immunity to public entities and employees for injuries sustained by a person during "hazardous recreational activity" (Iverson v. Muroc Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to defendants' motion for summary judgment in an action for damages for negligent supervision, when the motion is based on the ground that defendant is immune from liability under Gov. Code § 831.7. The ground for opposing defendants' summary judgment motion is that Gov. Code § 831.7 is inapplicable to injuries sustained on school grounds during a class required by the school and conducted during school hours.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the substantive issue that defendant is liable, or at least is not immune from liability, for damages from personal injury. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief or in jury instructions.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should discuss evidence of injuries occurring on school grounds during a class required by the school and conducted during school hours, and argue that, because the injuries were not incurred during activities that are "recreational" within the meaning of Gov. Code § 831.7, the immunity statute is inapplicable [see Iverson v. Muroc Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of complaint for damages for personal injuries against a school district and its employees based on negligent supervision of students, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda relating to summary judgment generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments . For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Required Physical Education Class Is Not "Recreational Activity"

In Iverson v. Muroc Unified Sch. Dist. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 , a 14-year-old student brought a negligence action against a school district and a physical education teacher for injuries sustained in a soccer match. The soccer match took place on a school field during an eighth grade physical education class conducted during regular school hours. The student alleged that the district negligently instructed and supervised its students engaged in the class. The district moved for summary judgment on the ground that Gov. Code § 831.7, which provides qualified immunity to public entities and employees for injuries sustained by a person during "hazardous recreational activity," immunized them from liability for the student's injuries. The trial court concluded that immunityattached as a matter of law and granted the summary judgment. The student appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the trial court erred in concluding that Gov. Code § 831.7 applied. The court first examined the legislative intent behind the statute, which was to protect public entities from lawsuits when recreational users engage in dangerous activities on public property and are injured. It then concluded that a body contact sport incorporated into a school time physical education class is not a "recreational activity" within the meaning of § 831.7, hazardous as that activity may be in the abstract. The court further reasoned that application of § 831.7 to activities that are a part of a school's physical education program would constitute a major revision of California law with respect to school district tort liability. The court concluded that as a matter of law, § 831.7 was inapplicable to injuries sustained on school grounds during a physical education class required by the school and conducted during school hours (32 Cal. App. 4th 218, 227) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.30A

§ 210.30A Opposing Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)] Action for Damages for Violation of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 Against School Officials and Employees--Use of Excessive Force in Violation of U.S. Const. amends. IV, XIV

[1] FORM

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE _____ DISTRICT OF
CALIFORNIA, _____ DIVISION

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	Civil Action, File No._____
Proc.	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-)	IES OPPOSING MOTION TO DISMISS
	)	PLAINTIFF'S ACTION FOR FAILURE TO STATE CLAIM ON WHICH RELIEF CAN BE GRANTED [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6)]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES ALLEGING USE OF EXCESSIVE FORCE BY _____ [TEACHER or specify other school official] IN VIOLATION OF THE FOURTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENTS TO THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION STATES A CLAIM ON WHICH THIS COURT CAN GRANT RELIEF AGAINST DEFENDANTS AND SHOULD NOT BE DISMISSED.

A. Complaint Does Not Fail to State Claim on Which Court Can Grant Relief and Should Not Be Dismissed Under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6). [See § 210.23, Paragraph A.]

B. Plaintiff Has Alleged Facts Sufficient to Show That Force Used Against Plaintiff Was Excessive. Excess force by a school official against a student violates the student's constitutional rights (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1180 ; P.B. v. Koch (9th Cir. 1996) 96 F.3d 1298, 1302-1303) . The consequences of a teacher's use of force against a school student are generally analyzed under the "reasonableness" rubric of the Fourth Amendment, and historically courts have applied a substantive due process analysis under the Fourteenth Amendment's "shocks the conscience" test (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1180 ; see Doe v. Haw. Dep't. of Educ. (9th Cir. 2003) 334 F.3d 906, 908-909 , quoting New Jersey v. T.L.O. (1985) 469 U.S. 325, 342, 105 S. Ct. 733, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720 (1985) .

C. Student's Right to Be Free From Use of Excessive Force Was Established at Time of Alleged Events, and Reasonable _____ [Teacher or name other school official] Would Not Have Believed _____ [His or Her] Actions Were Lawful. Since as early as 1977, public school students have had a constitutional due process right to be free from and obtain judicial relief for unjustified intrusions on personal security (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1181 , quoting Ingraham v. Wright (1977) 430 U.S. 651, 673, 97 S. Ct. 1401, 51 L. Ed. 2d 711). Arbitrary corporal punishment represents an invasion of personal security to which their parents do not consent when entrusting the educational mission to the State (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1181 , quoting Sandin v. Conner (1995) 515 U.S. 472, 485, 115 S. Ct. 2293, 132 L. Ed. 2d 418). Excessive and unreasonable corporal punishment of public school students violates the students' constitutional rights (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1182 ; P.B. v. Koch (9th Cir. 1996) 96 F.3d 1298, 1304) .

[Optional] D. School Officials May Be Liable in Supervisory Capacity and For Failure to Remediate. Under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983, a supervisor is liable for the acts of subordinates if the supervisor participated in or directed the violations or knew of the subordinates' violations and failed to act to prevent them (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1182 ; Taylor v. List (9th Cir. 1989) 880 F.2d 1040, 1045) . Supervisory liability is also imposed against a supervisory official in an individual capacity for the supervisor's own culpable action or inaction in the training, supervision, or control of subordinates, for acquiescence in the constitutional deprivations of which the complaint is made, or for conduct that showed a reckless or callous indifference to the rights of others (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1183 ; Menotti v. City of Seattle (9th cir. 2005) 409 F.3d 1113, 1149) . A person subjects another to the deprivation of a constitutional right within the meaning of § 1983, if the person does an affirmative act, participates in another's affirmative act, or omits to perform an act which the person is legally required to do that causes the deprivation of which complaint is made (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1182 ; Johnson v. Duffy (9th Cir. 1978) 588 F.2d 740, 743) . The requisite causal connection may be established when an official sets in motion a series of acts by others which the actor knows or reasonably should know would cause others to inflict constitutional harms (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1183) . In opposing a motion to dismiss, plaintiff need not show with great specificity how each defendant contributed to the violation of plaintiff's constitutional rights. Rather, plaintiff must state the allegations generally so as to provide notice to the defendants and alert the court as to what conduct violated clearly established law. (Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175, 1182 ; see Hydrick v. Hunter (9th Cir. 2006) 466 F.3d 676, 689-690) . Plaintiff's allegations are sufficiently specific to meet this pleading requirement.
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a plaintiff's motion under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) to dismiss a complaint in an action against a school district and its employees for damages based on the use of excessive force against a student by school officials.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. In addition, counsel should attach affidavits or declarations that support the motion.

For discussion of motions to dismiss a federal court action under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim for relief, see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 12, § 12.34 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may be used to oppose a motion for summary judgment brought under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b)(6). For discussion of motions for summary judgment in federal court actions generally, see Moore's Federal Practice--Civil, Ch. 56 (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting and opposing motions for summary judgment in actions against public entities generally, see Ch. 196, Public Entities . For memoranda relating to motions for summary judgment, generally, see Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Excessive Use of Force Against Student

In Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175 , a four-year old preschool student, who had been diagnosed with tuberous sclerosis, a neurological disease that caused tumors to form in variousorgans, primarily in the brain, eyes, heart, kidneys, skin, and lungs, and who suffered from non-verbal autism, alleged that his teacher physically abused him on repeated occasions by assaulting and slapping him repeatedly, hitting his head and face; by body slamming him into a chair; and by forcing him to walk without shoes across the asphalt from the school bus to the classroom. After unsuccessful administrative proceedings, the child's mother filed suit in federal court, alleging causes of action for violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act, the Rehabilitation Act, and 42 U.S.C. § 1983 based on the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments; supervisory liability; and various state law claims. The school officials moved to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted and asserted qualified immunity with respect to the cause of action under § 1983. The district court denied the motion to dismiss as to all claims. The court also denied qualified immunity on the ground that plaintiff had alleged conduct sufficient to support a claim for constitutional deprivation under the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments and violations of clearly established law. Officials appealed on the qualified immunity issue (479 F.3d 1175, 1178-1179) .

The Ninth Circuit held that the physical abuse allegations rose to the level of constitutional violations. The consequences of a teacher's force against a student at school are generally analyzed under the "reasonableness" rubric of the Fourth Amendment. Historically courts applied substantive due process analysis under the Fourteenth Amendment's "shocks the conscience" test. The court found that the teacher's seizure of the preschooler and her alleged slapping, forced participation in self-beating and slamming were unreasonable in light of the child's age and disability and the context of the events. He posed no danger to anyone nor was he disruptive in the classroom, and he was more vulnerable than the average pre-school child. The beating, slapping, and slamming by the teacher violated the Fourth Amendment's prohibition of the use of excessive force against public schoolchildren (479 F.3d 1175, 1180) .

[b] Law Clearly Established

The facts and procedure in Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175 , are discussed in [a], above. The alleged abuse in that case took place between 2002-2003. The Ninth Circuit found that at that time, the right of public school students to be free from excessive force imposed by their teachers was uncontroverted (479 F.3d 1175, 1181) . In light of the clear constitutional prohibition of excessive physical abuse of schoolchildren, and the heightened protections for disabled pupils, no reasonable special education teacher would have believed that it was lawful to force a seriously disabled four year old child to beat himself or to violently throw or slam him, so that the teacher was not entitled to qualified immunity for the alleged head beating and slamming assaults on the child (479 F.3d 1175, 1182) .

[c] Supervisory Liability

The facts and procedure in Preschooler II v. Clark County School Board of Trustees (9th Cir. 2007) 479 F.3d 1175 , are discussed in [a], above. The plaintiff alleged that school officials were on notice of the violent and unlawful conduct ongoing in the classroom before and during the time plaintiff was abused, and they failed to act to prevent further harm to him and related several events to support the notice allegation. Further, the school principal and district personnel failed to report the incidents as required by state statute, or to correct the situation. Plaintiff alleged that the superintendent, administrative personnel and the principal were individually liable under § 1983 for their inaction in the training, supervision and control of the teacher. He also alleged that the officials showed a reckless and callous indifference to his rights by permitting the teacher to continue to work with him, knowing she posed a safety risk to the children, and by not reporting or remediating the alleged abuse when they became aware of it. The Ninth Circuit found that although there is no pure respondeat superior liability under § 1983, a supervisor is liable for the acts of his subordinates if the supervisor participated in or directed the violations, or knew of the subordinates' violations and failed to act to prevent them (479 F.3d 1175, 1182) . The court also found that at this early stage of the proceedings, the plaintiff did not need to show with great specificity how each defendant contributed to the violation of his constitutional rights. Rather, he needed to state the allegations generally so as to provide notice to the defendants and alert the court as to what conduct violated clearly established law, and that the complaint were sufficiently specific to meet the pleading requirement (479 F.3d 1175, 1182) . The court also found that it has been clearly established that supervisory liability is imposed against a supervisory official in an individual capacity for the supervisor's own culpable action or inaction in the training, supervision, or control of subordinates, acquiescence in the constitutional deprivations of which the complaint is made, or conduct that showed a reckless or callous indifference to the rights of others. The requisite causal connection may be established when an official sets in motion a series of acts by others which the actor knows or reasonably should know would cause others to inflict constitutional harms (479 F.3d 1175, 1183) . In this case, the alleged acts and omissions on the part of the officials, if proven true, established that they were liable for the violation of clearly established constitutional rights, because they demonstrated disregard of their responsibilities in hiring, training, supervising, disciplining and reporting abuses committed by the teacher, and that a reasonable special education school official would have known that the teacher's alleged abusive conduct, and the failure of other special education officials to address that conduct, were grounds for liability (479 F.3d 1175, 1183) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.31

§ 210.31 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--Denial of Due Process

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name of pupil],	)	NO. _____
[a minor, by _____ (name), his/her	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES _____ [IN SUPPORT OF or IN OPPOSITION TO] PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
Guardian ad Litem], and _____	)	[Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1094.5]
[name of parent],	)	Date: _____
Petitioners,	)	Time: _____
vs.	)	Location: _____
_____ [names],	)	[Judge: _____]
Respondents.	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE THE PROCEDURE FOLLOWED BY RESPONDENT GOVERNING BOARD OF RESPONDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT IN EXPELLING PETITIONER FROM SCHOOL DENIED PETITIONER DUE PROCESS.

A. Decisions Reviewable in Mandate Proceeding. A final administrative order or decision is reviewable in a mandate proceeding if it was the result of an administrative proceeding in which a hearing was required by law for the purpose of taking evidence on the basis of which the agency had discretion to determine relevant facts (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)).

B. Expulsion Order as Reviewable by Mandate. A decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student is reviewable in a mandate proceeding(see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); Educ. Code § 48918; Miller v. Dailey (1902) 136 Cal. 212, 214-220, 68 P. 1029 ; Fremont Union High Sch. Dist. v. Santa Clara County Bd. of Educ. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 286 Cal. Rptr. 915 ; Garcia v. Los Angeles County Bd. of Educ. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 807, 809, 813, 177 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; Noonan v. Green (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 26-31, 80 Cal. Rptr. 513 ; Myers v. Arcata Union High Sch. Dist. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 563, 75 Cal. Rptr. 68).

C. Inquiry in Mandate Proceeding. The inquiry in a mandate proceeding to review a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision extends to the questions of whether the agency has proceeded without, or in excess of jurisdiction; whether there was a fair trial; and whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion established by the agency not proceeding in the manner required by law, the order or decision not being supported by the findings, or the findings not being supported by the evidence (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)).

D. Authority of School District to Discipline Students. Although a school district has the authority to maintain discipline in the schools and to suspend or expel a pupil for misconduct or for refusal or failure to obey school rules, the district must exercise this authority in a manner that satisfies statutory and constitutional standards for disciplinary proceedings (Abella v. Riverside Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 167, 135 Cal. Rptr. 177).

E. Due Process as Required in Student Disciplinary Proceedings. When the state has established a right to a public education, that right is a property interest that may not be taken away for misconduct without adherence to the minimum procedures required by due process (Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 574, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725).

[Optional] F. Notice and Hearing as Required. At the very minimum, due process requires that students who are threatened with removal from school be entitled to notice of the grounds for removal and an opportunity to be heard (Abella v. Riverside Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 169, 135 Cal. Rptr. 177 ; see Educ. Code § 48918 (requiring governing board of each school district to establish rules and regulations governing, and imposing minimum procedures for, expulsion of pupils, including written notice, hearing, service of process, and applicable evidentiary rules); Educ. Code § 48918.5 (rules and regulations governing expulsion hearings involving sexual assault or battery)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition to a superior court for a writ of mandate to review the administrative decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student when the procedure followed by the board denied the student due process.

Optional Paragraph F should be included when the board expelled the student without giving notice of the grounds for expulsion or affording the student an opportunity to be heard.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review a decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice. Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Expulsion Order as Reviewable by Mandate

In Noonan v. Green (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 80 Cal. Rptr. 513 , the court of appeal reversed a judgment granting issuance of a writ of mandate, but did not discuss the propriety of the mandate proceeding. Instead, the court based its decision on the failure of the student to exhaust her administrative remedies, including appeal to the county board of education (276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 31) .

NOTE:

Although Educ. Code § 48924 states that the decision of the county board of education in an appeal from an expulsion order is "final and binding" on the pupil and the governing board of the school district, it appears that a decision to expel a student may, nevertheless, be reviewed judicially in a mandate proceeding. Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a) provides for judicial review by mandate for the purpose of inquiring into the validity of any final administrative order or decision made as the result of a proceeding in which by law a hearing is required to be given, evidence is required to be taken, and discretion in the determination of facts is vested in an inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or officer. Educ. Code § 48918 specifically requires that a hearing be held to determine whether a pupil should be expelled, that evidence be taken at the hearing, and that the governing board or a hearing officer or administrative panel appointed by it determine the facts and render a decision. Although no reported decision has expressly considered the question of the propriety of a mandate proceeding to review the expulsion of a pupil, several appellate decisions have affirmed trial court judgments ordering issuance of a writ of mandate to overturn an expulsion order or reversed judgments denying issuance of such a writ [see, e.g., Miller v. Dailey (1902) 136 Cal. 212, 214-220, 68 P. 1029 ; Fremont Union High Sch. Dist. v. Santa Clara County Board of Educ. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 286 Cal. Rptr. 915 ; Garcia v. Los Angeles County Bd. of Educ. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 807, 809, 813, 177 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; Myers v. Arcata Union High Sch. Dist. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 563, 75 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

[b] Authority of School District to Discipline Students

Abella v. Riverside Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 135 Cal. Rptr. 177 , was an appeal from a superior court judgment holding that the school district had legally exempted the plaintiff from school attendance under former Educ. Code § 12152. Plaintiff, who had disciplinary problems, was excluded from school over the objection of her mother, following a conference between her mother and several school officials. The school district based its decision on former Educ. Code § 12152 which exempts from compulsory school attendance any child whose physical or mental condition is such as to prevent, or render inadvisable, attendance at school or application to study, on presentation to the governing board of satisfactory evidence of the condition.

The court of appeal reversed. It first held that former Educ. Code § 12152 does not establish grounds for involuntary removal of a child from public school attendance (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 160) . The court also held that plaintiff had not been properly excluded under former Educ. Code § 10553 (authorizing governing board to exclude from attendance at school any child whose physical or mental disability is such as to cause his or her attendance to be inimical to the welfare of other pupils) because the evidence showed that plaintiff was excluded for disciplinary reasons and not because of any mental or physical disability (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 165-167) .

The court then noted that although the school district does have authority to maintain discipline in the schools and to suspend or expel a pupil for refusal or neglect to obey school rules or for other misconduct, that authority must be exercised in a manner that satisfies statutory and constitutional standards for disciplinary proceedings (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 167) . The court concluded that the procedure followed by the school district in excluding plaintiff from school denied her due process of law (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 167-170) .

[c] Due Process as Required in Student Disciplinary Proceedings

Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725 , was an appeal from the judgment of a three-judge federal court holding that an Ohio statute that permitted the principal of a public school to suspend a student for up to 10 days without notice or hearing violated the Due Process Clause of U.S. Const. amend. XIV. The United States Supreme Court affirmed the judgment. The Court noted that although a state may not be constitutionally obligated to establish and maintain a public school system, Ohio had in this case done so and had required its children to attend. The Court stated that although the authority possessed by the state to prescribe and enforce standards of conduct in its schools is concededly very broad, that authority must be exercised consistently with constitutional safeguards. Thus, the Court held, the state is constrained to recognize a student's legitimate entitlement to a public education as a property interest that is protected by the Due Process Clause and that may not be taken away for misconduct without adherence to the minimum procedures required by that clause (419 U.S. 565, 574) . The Court then concluded that the Ohio suspension procedure violated due process (419 U.S. 565, 577-584) .

[d] Notice and Hearing as Required

The procedural and factual background of Abella v. Riverside Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 135 Cal. Rptr. 177 , is discussed in § 210.31[3][b]. The plaintiff was involuntarily excluded from school by the school district under former Educ. Code § 12152. In reversing a judgment holding that the exclusion was lawful, the court of appeal noted that the opportunity for instruction at public expense is provided by the laws of this state in response to the mandate of the California Constitution (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 167) , and that this right has been held to be a fundamental interest. The court stated that the legislature has been zealous in establishing precise standards and procedural safeguards to insure that children are not arbitrarily denied their right to a free public education without due cause and an opportunity to be heard. However, noted the court, use of the exemption procedure to exclude a child for a behavior problem denied plaintiff the protection afforded by those statutes (65Cal. App. 3d 153, 168) . The court held that due process required, at the very minimum, that students threatened with removal from school, depriving them of the fundamental right to a publicly financed education, be given notice of the grounds for the removal and an opportunity to be heard (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 169) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.32

§ 210.32 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--Improper Grounds for Expulsion

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.31.]

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE RESPONDENT GOVERNING BOARD OF RESPONDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT EXPELLED PETITIONER FOR IMPROPER GROUNDS.

A. Decisions Reviewable in Mandate Proceeding. [See § 210.31, Paragraph A.]

B. Expulsion Order as Reviewable by Mandate. [See § 210.31, Paragraph B.]

C. Inquiry in Mandate Proceeding. [See § 210.31, Paragraph C.]

D. Permissible Grounds for Expulsion. A pupil may not be suspended from school nor recommended for expulsion unless the superintendent or the principal of the school in which the pupil is enrolled determines that the pupil committed one of the acts enumerated in Education Code Section 48900. A pupil may be suspended or recommended for expulsion for the following acts (Educ. Code § 48900): (1) causing, attempting to cause, or threatening to cause physical injury to another person, or willfully using force or violence on another person, except in self-defense; (2) possessing, selling, or otherwise furnishing any firearm, knife, explosive, or other dangerous object, unless, in the case of possession of such objects, the pupil has obtained written permission to possess the item from a certificated school employee, which is concurred in by the principal or the principal's designee; (3) unlawfully possessing, using, selling, or otherwise furnishing, or being under the influence of any controlled substance listed in Health and Safety Code Sections 11053 et seq., an alcoholic beverage, or an intoxicant of any kind; (4) unlawfully offering, arranging, or negotiating to sell any controlled substance listed in Health and Safety Code Sections 11053 et seq., an alcoholic beverage, or an intoxicant of any kind, and then either selling, delivering, or otherwise furnishing to any person another liquid, substance, or material and representing the liquid, substance, or material as a controlled substance, alcoholic beverage, or intoxicant; (5) committing or attempting to commit robbery or extortion; (6) causing or attempting to cause damage to school property (as defined in Education Code Section 48900(t)) or private property; (7) stealing or attempting to steal school property (as defined in Education Code Section 48900(t)) or private property; (8) possessing or using tobacco, or any products containing tobacco or nicotine products, including but not limited to cigarettes, cigars, miniature cigars, clove cigarettes, smokeless tobacco, snuff, chew packets, and betel; however, a pupil is not prohibited from using or possessing his or her own prescription products; (9) committing an obscene act or engaging in habitual profanity or vulgarity; (10) unlawfully possessing, offering, arranging, or negotiating to sell any drug paraphernalia, as defined in Health and Safety Code Section 11014.5; (11) disrupting school activities or otherwise willfully defying the valid authority of supervisors, teachers, administrators, school officials, or other school personnel engaged in the performance of their duties; (12) knowingly receiving stolen school property or private property; (13) possessing an imitation firearm as defined in Education Code Section 48900(m); (14) committing or attempting to commit a sexual assault as defined in Penal Code Section 261, 266c, 286, 288, 288a, or 289, or committing a sexual battery as defined in Penal Code Section 243.4; (15) harassing, threatening, or intimidating a pupil who is a witness in a school disciplinary proceeding for the purpose of preventing that pupil from being a witness or of retaliating against that pupil for being a witness, or both; (16) unlawfully offering, arranging to sell, negotiating to sell, or selling the prescription drug Soma; (17) engaging in, or attempting to engage in, hazing; and (18) engaging in the act of bullying, including, but not limited to, bullying committed by means of an electronic act, as defined by Educ. Code § 32261(f), (g), directed specifically toward a pupil or school personnel. A pupil may not be suspended or expelled for any of the acts enumerated unless that act is related to school activity or school attendance occurring within a school under the jurisdiction of the superintendent or principal or occurring within any other school district. A pupil may be suspended or expelled for any of the acts that are related to school activity or attendance that occur at any time, including, but not limited to, any of the following: (1) while on school grounds; (2) while going to or coming from school; (3) during the lunch period, whether on or off the campus; and (4) during, or while going to or coming from, a school sponsored activity [Educ. Code § 48900(s)]. A pupil who aids or abets, as defined in Penal Code Section 31, the infliction or attempted infliction of physical injury to another may be suspended, but not expelled, except that a pupil adjudged by a juvenile court to have committed, as an aider and abettor, a crime of physical violence in which the victim suffered great bodily injury or serious bodily injury, is subject to recommendation for expulsion (Educ. Code § 48900(t)).

[Optional] E. Additional Ground of Sexual Harassment. In addition to the reasons specified in Education Code Section 48900, a pupil enrolled in grade four or higher may be suspended from school or recommended for expulsion if the superintendent or the principal of the school in which the pupil is enrolled determines that the pupil has committed sexual harassment, as defined in Education Code Section 212.5. For this purpose, the conduct must be considered by a reasonable person of the same gender as the victim to be sufficiently severe or pervasive to have a negative impact on the victim's academic performance, or to create an intimidating, hostile, or offensive educational environment (Educ. Code § 48900.2).

[Optional] F. Additional Ground of Hate Violence. In addition to the reasons specified in Education Code Sections 48900, 48900.2, a pupil enrolled in grade four or higher may be suspended from school or recommended for expulsion if the superintendent or the principal of the school in which the pupil is enrolled determines that the pupil has caused, attempted to cause, threatened to cause, or participated in anact of, hate violence, as defined in Education Code Section 223(e) (Educ. Code § 48900.3).

[Optional] G. Additional Ground of Harassment, Threats, or Intimidation. In addition to the grounds specified in Education Code Sections 48900 and 48900.2, a pupil enrolled in grades 4 to 12, inclusive, may be suspended from school or recommended for expulsion if the superintendent or the principal of the school in which the pupil is enrolled determines the pupil has intentionally engaged in harassment, threats, or intimidation directed against school personnel or pupils, that is sufficiently severe or pervasive to have the actual and reasonably expected effect of materially disrupting classwork, of creating substantial disorder, and of invading the rights of either school personnel or pupils by creating an intimidating or hostile educational environment (Educ. Code § 48900.4).

[Optional] H. Additional Ground of Terroristic Threats. In addition to the grounds specified in Education Code

Sections 48900-48900.4, a pupil may be suspended from school or recommended for expulsion if the superintendent or the principal of the school in which the pupil is enrolled determines that the pupil has made terroristic threats against school officials or school property, or both, as defined in Education Code Section 48900.7(b) (Educ. Code § 48900.7(a)).

I. Ground for Expulsion Is Required to Be Related to School Activity or Attendance. A pupil may not be suspended or expelled for any of the acts set forth in Education Code Section 48900 unless the act is related to school activity or school attendance occurring within a school under the jurisdiction of the superintendent or principal or occurring within any other school district (Educ. Code § 48900(s)).

J. Alternatives to Suspensions or Expulsions. A superintendent or principal may use his or her discretion to provide alternatives to suspension or expulsion, including, but not limited to, counseling and an anger management program, for a pupil subject to discipline under Education Code Section 48900 (Educ. Code § 48900(v)). [Optional] The legislature intends that alternatives be imposed against a pupil who is truant, tardy, or otherwise absent from school activities (Educ. Code § 48900(w)).

[Optional] K. Vague and Standardless Grounds. The grounds for removal of a student from public school attendance must not be unconstitutionally vague and standardless (see Abella v. Riverside Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 169-170, 135 Cal. Rptr. 177 ; Myers v. Arcata Union High Sch. Dist. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 549, 559-560, 75 Cal. Rptr. 68).

[Optional] L. Protected Speech. Students in public schools cannot be punished merely for expressing their personal views on the school premises, unless school authorities have reason to believe that the expression will substantially interfere with the work of the school, impinge on the rights of other students or promote illegal drug use (Morse v. Frederick, 127 S. Ct. 2618 (2007) Hazelwood Sch. Dist. v. Kuhlmeier (1988) 484 U.S. 260, 266, 108 S. Ct. 562, 98 L. Ed. 2d 592 ; Tinker v. Des Moines Cmty. Sch. Dist. (1969) 393 U.S. 503, 509, 512-513, 89 S. Ct. 733, 21 L. Ed. 2d 731, 49 Ohio Op. 2d 222 see Educ. Code § 48950; see also Stats. 1992, ch. 1363, § 4).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to review the administrative decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student when the grounds for expulsion were improper.

Optional Paragraph E may be used if a pupil in grade four or higher is accused of sexual harassment.

Optional Paragraph F may be used if a pupil in grade four or higher is accused of participating in an act of hate violence. The language of the controlling statute for this paragraph, Educ. Code § 48900.3, refers to former Educ. Code § 33032.5, which was renumbered as Educ. Code § 223 in 1998. Although the legislature did not amend Educ. Code § 48900.3 to reflect this change, Paragraph F refers to the current, rather than the former, code section.

Optional Paragraph G is for use if the pupil is accused of engaging in intentional harassment, threats, or intimidation directed against a pupil or group of pupils. Optional Paragraph H is for use if the pupil is accused of engaging in terroristic threats. The optional language in Paragraph J is for use in urging an alternative to suspension or expulsion for a student who is truant, tardy, or otherwise absent from school activities. Optional Paragraph K is for use to assert that the ground for expulsion is unconstitutionally vague. Optional Paragraph L is for use to assert that the student cannot be punished for expression that constitutes protected speech.

This form also may be adapted for other uses, including an appellate brief. For example, Paragraph L may be used to support a civil action for injunctive or declaratory relief [see Educ. Code § 48950 (public high schools and private secondary schools)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review a decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For other memoranda supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ground for Expulsion Is Required to Be Related to School Activity or Attendance

A pupil may not be suspended or expelled for any of the acts enumerated in Educ. Code § 48900 unless the act is related to school activity or school attendance occurring within a school under the jurisdiction of the superintendent or principal or occurring within any other school district. However, a pupil may be suspended or expelled for acts enumerated in the statute and related to school activity or attendance that occur at any time, including, but not limited to, any of the following [Educ. Code § 48900(s)]:

- While on school grounds.
- While going to or coming from school.
- During the lunch period, whether on or off the campus.
- During, or while going to or coming from, a school sponsored activity.

[b] Possession of Firearm Defined

Under Educ. Code § 48900 and Educ. Code § 48915, "possession" of a firearm for purposes of expulsion means the pupil knowingly and voluntarily hasdirect control over a firearm, unless the pupil has the permission of school officials to possess the firearm or the possession is brief and solely for the purpose of disposing of the firearm, such as handing it to school officials [80 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 91 (1997)] .

[c] Vague and Standardless Grounds

The procedural and factual background of Abella v. Riverside Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 135 Cal. Rptr. 177 , is discussed in § 210.31[3][b]. The court of appeal held that the procedure followed by the school district in excluding children from school attendance under former Educ. Code § 12152 denied those children due process of law. In so holding, the court noted that a school board may, under its rule-making power, expand the grounds for removal of a student for the purpose of maintaining discipline in the schools. The exercise of that power must, however, meet constitutional standards of reasonableness. The court noted that by providing for an involuntary exemption from school based on former Educ. Code § 12152, the district had authorized an indefinite exclusion based on a physical, behavioral, or emotional disorder that prevents, or renders inadvisable, attendance at school or application to study. This rule, the court held, was so vague and standardless that the parent would be without any opportunity to refute the charge, thereby making parent participation and right of appeal meaningless (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 169) . The court observed that civil as well as criminal statutes must be sufficiently clear as to give a fair warning of the conduct prohibited, and they must provide a standard or guide against which conduct can be uniformly judged by courts and administrative agencies (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 169-170) . The court noted that this rule has been applied to school regulations, violation of which subject a student to suspension or expulsion. The court further noted that the word "inadvisable" was far less susceptible to precise definition an the word "extreme" which ws condemned in the Myers case, and held that the term was unconstitutionally vague when used as the sole standard for involuntary exclusion from school (65 Cal. App. 3d 153, 170) .

In Myers v. Arcata Union High Sch. Dist. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 549, 75 Cal. Rptr. 68 , petitioner, a high school student, was suspended from school because of the length of his hair. Petitioner brought an action in mandate to compel school authorities to reinstate him. At trial, it was established that petitioner was suspended because the length of his hair violated a portion of the school's dress policy which prohibited "extremes of hair styles." The term was not defined in the school regulations, nor were the actual standards used by school officials in determining what was "extreme" communicated to petitioner or to anyone else. The trial court concluded that the school policy was so vague and indefinite as to render the rule unconstitutional and unenforceable, and entered judgment granting the writ of mandate prayed for.

On appeal, the court of appeal affirmed the order directing issuance of the writ. The court noted that in exercising its rulemaking power, a school district governing board must meet the following constitutional standards of reasonableness (269 Cal. App. 2d 549, 558-559) :

- The restraint imposed by the regulations must rationally relate to the enhancement of the educational function.

- The public benefits produced must outweigh the consequent impairment of the student's constitutional rights.

- There can be no alternative less subversive of those rights.

The court observed that when there is empirical evidence that an aspect of a student's dress or appearance (such as hair style) has a disruptive effect within a school, the governing board may exercise its rulemaking power to prohibit it (269 Cal. App. 2d 549, 558) . However, the court held, because inhibition of hair styles restrains the freedom of expression guaranteed by the First or Fourteenth Amendments of the U.S. Constitution, any regulation in this area must be made with narrow specificity (269 Cal. App. 2d 549, 559) . The court then held that the dress policy concerning hair styles in this case was vague and standardless, and that it totally lacked the specificity required of governmental regulations which limit the exercise of constitutional rights. The importance of an education to a child is substantial, the court stated, and the state cannot condition its availability on compliance with an unconstitutionally vague standard of conduct (269 Cal. App. 2d 549, 560) .

NOTE:

Counsel should exercise some caution in using the Myers case. In a more recent case, a court of appeal upheld a school district regulation prohibiting the wearing of long hair by male students. In that case, the court held that hair style, without more, is not per se an expression of speech, symbolic or pure, within the protection of the First Amendment, but that hair styles were protected instead as liberty interests under the Fourteenth Amendment [Montalvo v. Madera Unified Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 323, 334, 98 Cal. Rptr. 593] . Because hair styles were protected by the Fourteenth rather than First Amendment, their regulation is presumed valid, and the burden is on those who assail it to prove its invalidity. The regulation need only be justified by some reasonable relationship between the legitimate concerns of the school administration relating to the educational process and controlling the length and style of male hair [Montalvo v. Madera Unified Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 323, 335, 98 Cal. Rptr. 593] . The court concluded that measured by these standards, the regulations involved were constitutional [Montalvo v. Madera Unified Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ. (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 323, 335-337, 98 Cal. Rptr. 593] . This case is, however, distinguishable from Myers on its facts in that the hair regulation involved was considerably less vague than the regulation condemned in Myers. Thus, Myers, insofar as it holds that a student may not be expelled for violation of a vague or standardless school regulation, is arguably still good law.

[d] Protected Speech

In Hazelwood Sch. Dist. v. Kuhlmeier (1988) 484 U.S. 260, 108 S. Ct. 562, 98 L. Ed. 2d 592 , high school journalism students brought an action against the school district seeking injunctive relief and monetary damages for violation of their First Amendment rights, based on censorship by school officials of articles they had written for the school newspaper. The articles, which concerned the pregnancies of several anonymous students, and the impact of divorce on other students, were deleted from the final version of an issue of the newspaper. The officials in questions made the deletions because the pregnant students might be identifiable, and the families discussed in the divorce article might object. The federal district court held for the defendants, but the court of appeals reversed, holding that the school officials had violated plaintiffs' rights because their censorship actions were not justified. Defendants filed a writ of certiorari.

The Supreme Court reversed, ultimately holding that no violation of First Amendment rights occurred (484 U.S. 260, 276) . In reaching its conclusion, the Court set forth guidelines regarding limitations on student speech. The Court stated, "Students in the public schools do not shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate ... . They cannot be punished merely for expressing their personal views on the school premises ... unless school authorities have reason to believe that such expression will substantially interfere with the work of the school or impinge upon the rights of other students" (quotation marks deleted) (484 U.S. 260, 266) . The Court proceeded to analyze the facts before it based on the consideration that a student's First Amendment rights must be applied in light of the special characteristics of the school environment (484 U.S. 260, 267-276) .

In Tinker v. Des Moines Cmty. Sch. Dist. (1969) 393 U.S. 503, 512-513, 89 S. Ct. 733, 21 L. Ed. 2d 731, 49 Ohio Op. 2d 222 , high school students brought an action against the school district seeking injunctive relief based on their suspensions for wearing black armbands in protest of the Vietnam War. The federal district court dismissed the complaint, and the federal court of appeals affirmed. Plaintiffs filed a writ of certiorari.

The United States Supreme Court reversed and remanded, holding that a school regulation banning the wearing of armbands, as a form of discussion about the Vietnam War, violates the students' First Amendment rights if it is not justified (393 U.S. 503, 505-514, 49 Ohio Op. 2d 222) . The Court noted that the district court recognized that the wearing of an armband for the purpose of expressing certain views is the type of symbolic act that is within the free speech clause of the First Amendment (393 U.S. 503, 505-506, 49 Ohio Op. 2d 222) . The Court stated that the wearing of armbands in the circumstances of the case was entirely divorced from actually or potentially disruptive conduct by those participating in it; and that it was closely akin to "pure speech," which is entitled to comprehensive protection under the First Amendment (393 U.S. 503, 505-514, 49 Ohio Op. 2d 222) . The Court stated that if a regulation were adopted by school officials forbidding discussion of the Vietnam War, or the expression by any student of opposition to it anywhere on school property except as part of a prescribed classroom exercise, it would be obvious that the regulation would violate the constitutional rights of students, at least if it could not be justified by a showing that the students' activities would materially and substantially disrupt the work and discipline of the school. In the circumstances of the case, the Court concluded, banning the wearing of armbands is no less offensive to the Constitution's guarantees. The Court noted the absence of facts that might reasonably have led school authorities to forecast substantial disruption of or material interference with school activities, and that no disturbances or disorders on the school premises in fact occurred (393 U.S. 503, 514, 49 Ohio Op. 2d 222) .

In Frederick v. Morse (9th Cir. 2006) 439 F.3d 1114 , rev'd, Morse v. Frederick, 127 S. Ct. 2618 (2007) , at an off-site event for which students were released from school to watch the Olympic torch pass by, a high-school senior and friends waited until television cameras would catch it, then unfurled a banner reading "Bong Hits 4 Jesus." The school principal grabbed and crumpled up the banner and suspended the student for 10 days. The student filed a 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 action against the principal and the school board, seeking declaratory and other relief. The principal and the school board conceded that their objective in crumpling up the banner and disciplining the student was their objection to the display, and that the principal ripped down the banner not over concern that it would cause disruption, but because its message would be understood as advocating or promoting illegal drug use in contradiction to one of the school's educational missions. The district court granted summary judgment for the principal and the school board, on the grounds that no constitutional rights were violated and they had qualified immunity even if First Amendment rights were violated.

The Ninth Circuit reversed, finding that the defendants were not entitled to qualified immunity. The banner did not cause disruption, was not sponsored or endorsed by the school, was not part of the curriculum, and did not take place as part of an official school activity, so that discipline based on the banner plainly violated the student's First Amendment expression rights. Furthermore, the violated right was clearly established under the case law of the United States Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit governing the panoply of student speech cases that might face a school principal, so that a reasonable principal would haveunderstood that what this particular principal did violated the student's First Amendment rights. Finally, the principal could not have reasonably but mistakenly believed that his conduct did not violate a clearly established constitutional right, given that the law was clear and the principal was aware of it (439 F.3d 1114, 1117-1125) . The U.S. Supreme Court granted the principal's and school board's petition for writ of certiorari and reversed the Ninth Circuit's decision (Morse v. Frederick, 127 S. Ct. 2618 (2007)). The Court held that school officials can restrict student speech that they reasonably believe promotes illegal drug use without running afoul of the First Amendment (Morse v. Frederick, 127 S. Ct. 2618 (2007)).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ground for Expulsion as Required to Be Related to School Activity or Attendance

In Fremont Union High Sch. Dist. v. Santa Clara County Bd. of Educ. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 286 Cal. Rptr. 915 , a school district expelled a student after he used a stun gun during an altercation with another student. The incident occurred on a campus other than the one that the expelled student regularly attended. The county board of education overturned the expulsion on the ground that the school district lacked jurisdiction to expel the student because the conduct did not take place on his own campus or relate to his own school activity and was therefore not "related to school activity or school attendance" as required by Educ. Code § 48900. The trial court granted the district's petition for writ of mandate to overturn the county board's decision, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court of appeal rejected the student's contention that the quoted phrase was limited to conduct that occurs during the student's own school activities or on his own campus, reasoning that such an interpretation of Educ. Code § 48900 was inconsistent with its statutory language and would not promote a safe and orderly educational environment (235 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 1186-1187) .

NOTE:
In 1989, the Legislature amended Educ. Code § 48900 to clarify that the grounds for expulsion may be based on conduct occurring within a school under the jurisdiction of the superintendent or principal or occurring within any other school district.

[b] Protected Speech

In Pinard v. Clatskanie Sch. Dist. 6J, 467 F.3d 755 (9th Cir. 2006) , members of a high school varsity basketball team presented a petition seeking the resignation of their coach, and then refused to board a bus to play in an out-of-town game. They were permanently suspended from the team. In their action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 alleging that they were punished in violation of their First Amendment rights, the trial court denied defendants' motion to dismiss, but granted defendants' motion for summary judgment, concluding that plaintiffs were not engaged in a constitutionally protected activity because their speech was not a matter of public concern nor political in nature, but was akin to speech addressing merely a private grievance against a school employee, with no political dimension. In the alternative, the court concluded that even if the plaintiffs' speech was constitutionally protected, their conduct substantially and materially interfered with a school activity, giving the school district authority to punish them (467 F.3d 755, 764-769). The Ninth Circuit held that the petition and their complaints were protected speech because they could not reasonably have led school officials to forecast substantial disruption of or material interference with school activity. However, their refusal to board the bus was not protected by the First Amendment because, even if it was expressive conduct, it substantially disrupted and materially interfered with the operation of the varsity boys' basketball program (467 F.3d 755, 769-770) . However, the court also found that remand of a claim of retaliation based on their permanent suspension from the team was required for the district court to determine whether they offered evidence from which a reasonable jury could conclude the petition and complaints against the coach were a substantial or motivating factor in the decision to suspend them from the team, not simply the boycott of the out-of-town game (446 F.3d 964, 977-979).

In Harper v. Poway Unif. Schl. Dist. (9th Cir. 2006) 445 F.3d 1166 , vacated, 549 U.S. 1262, 127 S. Ct. 1484, 167 L. Ed. 2d 225, 2007 U.S. LEXIS 2830 , a high school with a history of conflict among its students over issues of sexual orientation, required a student to remove a T-shirt with a message quoting the Bible and condemning and denigrating other students on the basis of their sexual orientation. When he refused, he was kept in the front office for the remainder of the school day because of concerns that his t-shirt was inflammatory, but he was not disciplined. The student sued the school district and individuals in federal district court. He alleged federal causes of action, including violations of his right to free speech, his right to free exercise of religion, the Establishment Clause, the Equal Protection Clause, and the Due Process Clause, and one state law claim based on Civ. Code § 52.1, creating a private cause of action for violation of individual federal and state constitutional rights. The district court granted the district's motion to dismiss as to equal protection, due process, and state law claims, but denied as to his three First Amendment claims. The court denied the student's motion for a preliminary injunction seeking to enjoin the school from continuing its violation of his constitutional rights. The court also granted the motion to dismiss damages claims against the district and individual defendants on the ground of qualified immunity (445 F.3d 1166, 1171-1173) , vacated, 549 U.S. 1262, 127 S. Ct. 1484, 167 L. Ed. 2d 225, 2007 U.S. LEXIS 2830 . On the student's appeal of the denial of the preliminary injunction, the Ninth Circuit held that although the student made the necessary showing of irreparable harm because his First Amendment claims survived the motion to dismiss, he failed to demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits as to any of his three First Amendment claims. As to the free speech and viewpoint discrimination claims, the evidence was sufficient to permit school officials to reasonably prohibit speech that intruded on the rights of other students, and the wearing of the t-shirt collided with therights of other students in the most fundamental way (445 F.3d 1166, 1175-1186) . As to his free exercise claim, the court found that the school's restriction regarding the t-shirt did not impose a substantial burden on the free exercise of his religious beliefs, because there was no evidence the school compelled affirmation of a repugnant belief, penalized or discriminated against the student because he held religious views abhorrent to the authorities, or conditioned the availability of benefits on his willingness to violate a cardinal principle of his religious faith, nor did the school lend its power to one or the other side in a controversy over religious authority or dogma, or punish the expression of religious doctrines it believed to be false. The school did not punish the student at all by simply prohibiting him from wearing the offensive and disruptive shirt and requiring him to refrain from attending class for a portion of a day, if he insisted on continuing to wear it. The restriction imposed on wearing the t-shirt also did not constitute a substantial limitation on his right to express his religious views. Further, the school had a compelling interest in providing a proper educational environment for its students and its actions were narrowly tailored to achieve that end (445 F.3d 1166, 1186-1190) , vacated, 549 U.S. 1262, 127 S. Ct. 1484, 167 L. Ed. 2d 225, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2830 . As to the Establishment Clause claim, the court found that there was no evidence the school's actions were based on anything other than an entirely secular and legitimate aim of protecting the rights of students and promoting a tolerant and safe learning environment. There was no evidence or allegation that school authorities sought to coerce or encourage the student to participate in some other religion or to adopt some state-supported or other religious faith (445 F.3d 1166, 1190-1191) , vacated, 549 U.S. 1262, 127 S. Ct. 1484, 167 L. Ed. 2d 225, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2830 .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.33

§ 210.33 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--Decision to Expel Not Supported by Evidence

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.31.]

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE THE DECISION OF RESPONDENT GOVERNING BOARD OF RESPONDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT TO EXPEL PETITIONER IS NOT SUPPORTED BY SUBSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

A. Decisions Reviewable in Mandate Proceeding. [See § 210.31, Paragraph A.]

B. Expulsion Order as Reviewable by Mandate. [See § 210.31, Paragraph B.]

C. Inquiry in Mandate Proceeding. [See § 210.31, Paragraph C.]

D. Decision of Governing Board to Expel Student Must Be Supported by Substantial Evidence. Technical rules of evidence do not apply in student expulsion hearings, but relevant evidence may be admitted and given probative effect only if it is the kind of evidence on which reasonable persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs. A decision of the governing board to expel shall be supported by substantial evidence showing that the pupil committed any of the acts enumerated in Education Code Section 48900 (Educ. Code § 48918(h)).

[Optional] E. Reliance on Contradictory Statements and Reports to Support Student Expulsion as Improper. Reliance by the governing board in a school expulsion hearing on statements and reports rather than on testimony by witnesses is improper when the evidence is conflicting and there is no showing that the witnesses were unavailable or that the disclosure of their identity and presence would subject them to a significant and specific risk of harm (John A. v. San Bernardino City Unified Sch. Dist. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 301, 308, 187 Cal. Rptr. 472, 654 P.2d 242).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to review the administrative decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student when there is insufficient evidence to support the expulsion.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel should show that reliance by the governing board on written reports and contradictory statements without supporting testimony is not the type of evidence that reasonable persons are accustomed to relying on in the conduct of serious affairs, as required by Educ. Code § 48918(h).

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review a decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender). For discussion of and other forms of use in obtaining judicial review of administrative decisions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For other memoranda supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Evidence Requirement

A governing board's decision to expel a pupil must be supported by substantial evidence showing that the pupil committed any of the acts enumerated in Education Code Section 48900 (Educ. Code § 48918(h). Substantial evidence is not synonymous with "any" evidence. It must be reasonable, credible, and of solid value [see Kuhn v. Department of Gen. Servs. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1627, 1633, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 191 (reviewing decision of State Personnel Board revoking probationary rejection of employee); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(c) (standard of judicial review of administrative decisions)].

[b] Reliance on Contradictory Statements and Reports to Support Student Expulsion as Improper

In John A. v. San Bernardino City Unified Sch. Dist. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 301, 187 Cal. Rptr. 472, 654 P.2d 242 , a public high school student who was expelled for assaulting two other students petitioned the trial court for a writ of mandate to compel his readmission. A hearing panel appointed by the governing board of the school district recommended expulsion on the basis of a report by the school vice-principal and statements by witnesses. Neither the injured students nor other witnesses to the alleged assault testified. Petitioner was present at the hearing and testified, denying any assault. The school board adopted the hearing panel's recommendation, which was affirmed by the county board of education. The trial court found that the hearing panel's findings were supported by the weight of the evidence and denied the petition for writ of mandate. Petitioner appealed, contending that the hearing panel denied him due process by denying him the right to confront and cross examine witnesses to the alleged assault.

The Supreme Court held that under the relevant statutory provisions governing student expulsions, the school board acted improperly in expelling petitioner without the testimony of any of the witnesses to the altercation. Accordingly, the Court did not address the issue of petitioner's rights of confrontation and cross examination in violation of the due process clauses of the federal and state Constitutions (33 Cal. 3d 301, 307) . The Court stated that under former Educ. Code § 48914(f) [now see Educ. Code § 48918(h)], the technical rules of evidence are not applicable to a student expulsion hearing. Evidence can be admitted and given probative effect, however, only if it is the kind of evidence on which reasonable persons are accustomed to relying on in the conduct of serious affairs, and any decision of the governing board of a school district to expel a student has to be supported by a preponderance of the evidence. The Court stated that a reasonable person, in the conduct of serious affairs, would not rely solely on written statements but would demand that witnesses be produced so that their credibility may be tested and their testimony weighed against conflicting evidence when their testimony appears readily available and there is no substantial reason why their testimony cannot be produced. The Court added that in some cases revelation of student witnesses' names and the requirement that they testify could subject them to a substantial risk of retaliation. In such cases, the witnesses are not readily available. The Court concluded that under the facts of this case, there was no showing or finding of a significant and specific risk of harm, and therefore the school board could not rely on administrative reports and witnesses' statements when the evidence was conflicting and witnesses were readily available. Consequently, the Court held that the school district failed to establish cause for expulsion by a preponderance of evidence (33 Cal. 3d 301, 308).

NOTE:

Educ. Code § 48914 was repealed, revised, and reenacted as Educ. Code § 48918 in 1983. The required standard of proof was changed from preponderance of evidence to substantial evidence (Educ. Code § 48918(h)). Although the reasoning of John A. may not be different under the new statute, it appears the result might change.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.34

§ 210.34 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.31.]

MANDATE IS NOT PROPER BECAUSE PETITIONER FAILED TO EXHAUST HIS/HER ADMINISTRATIVE REMEDIES, INCLUDING APPEAL TO THE COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION, PRIOR TO INSTITUTING THE MANDATE PROCEEDING.

Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies. A student expelled from public school must exhaust administrative remedies, including appeal of the expulsion order to the county board of education under Section 48919 of the Education Code, prior to seeking judicial review of the action in a mandate proceeding (see Noonan v. Green (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 31, 80 Cal. Rptr. 513).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to review the administrative decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student where the student has failed to exhaust his or her administrative remedies, including appeal to the county board of education, prior to instituting the mandate proceeding.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Procedure for Appealing Decision to Expel

County boards of education are required to adopt rules and regulations establishing procedures for expulsion appeals conducted under Educ. Code § 48919, which must, at a minimum, include rules and regulations governing (Educ. Code § 48919):

- Filing a notice of appeal;
- Setting a hearing date;
- Furnishing notice to the pupil and the governing board regarding the appeal;
- Furnishing a copy of the expulsion hearing record to the county board of education;
- Procedures for the conduct of the hearing; and
- Preserving a record of the appeal.

Within 30 days following a governing board's decision to expel a pupil from school, the pupil or the pupil's parent or guardian may file an appeal to the county board of education. Within 20 school days following the filing of a formal request for an appeal, the board must hold a hearing on the decision to expel. A pupil who fails to appeal the original action of the board within the prescribed time may not subsequently appeal a decision of the board to revoke probation and impose the original order of expulsion (Educ. Code § 48919).

In the alternative, a county board of education in Class 1 or Class 2 counties may elect to have appeals under Education Code Section 48919 heard by a hearing officer or by an impartial administrative panel appointed by the board (Educ. Code § 48919.5(a); see Educ. Code § 48919.5(e)(1)-(3) (definition of Class 1 and Class 2 counties)). The hearing officer or impartial administrative panel must prepare a recommended decision, including any findings or conclusions required for that decision, for a final decision by the county board of education (Educ. Code § 48919.5(b)).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of the governing board of a school district to expel a student, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

In Noonan v. Green (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 80 Cal. Rptr. 513 , petitioner, a high school student, was suspended from school for refusal to obey a school rule requiring all female students to wear a uniform to school. A few days later, her parents were served with a notice of a hearing for the purpose of considering petitioner's expulsion from school and were directed to appear and show cause why petitioner should not be expelled. Without waiting for this hearing, petitioner brought an action for a writ of prohibition (later amended to mandate) to prohibit enforcement of the uniform requirement and to reinstate petitioner as a student. The trial court found that the school rule was unreasonable and unconstitutional and entered judgment granting the writ of mandate.

On appeal, the court reversed. The court noted that the record in this case concerning the regulation and its purpose was indefinite and vague (276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 28-29) . The court stated that had petitioner first resorted to the administrative hearing and appeal provided for by the Education Code, much of this vagueness and indefiniteness would have been cleared up (276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 30) . The court further stated that the general policy of the law is that where in an administrative proceeding there is an administrative appellate body provided by statute, that body must exercise its jurisdiction before the courts may be called on to act. The parties to such a proceeding may not waive the benefits of a statute established for a public reason, nor may jurisdiction be conferred on the court by consent. The court held that because the parties failed to pursue the administrative remedies provided by the Education Code, the trial court had no jurisdiction to determine the matter (276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 31) .

23 of 147 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 210 SCHOOLS: ACTIONS BY STUDENTS
PART II. FORMS

21-210 California Points & Authorities § 210.35

§ 210.35 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Governing Board of School District and County Board of Education [Educ. Code §§ 48918, 48923]--Expulsion of Public School Student--School District "Zero Tolerance" Rule Does Not Violate State Law or Federal Due Process Rights

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 210.31.]

MANDATE IS NOT PROPER BECAUSE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S "ZERO TOLERANCE" RULE DOES NOT VIOLATE STATE LAW OR STUDENT'S DUE PROCESS RIGHTS.

School District's "Zero Tolerance" Rule Does Not Violate State Law or Student's Right to Due Process. A school district's "zero tolerance" policy governing expulsions that requires a principal or the principal's designee to immediately suspend and recommend for expulsion a pupil who committed specified acts at school or at a school activity off school grounds does not violate state law by eliminating the principal's statutory discretion to decide not to recommend the student for an expulsion hearing. The rule also does not violate a student's federal and state due process rights when the rule provides required procedural protections to students (T.H. v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1281-1287, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to review the administrative decision by the governing board of a school district to expel a student under a "zero tolerance" policy, requiring the principal or the principal's designee to recommend to the school board that a student be expelled for committing specified offenses at school or at a school activity off school grounds.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of the governing board of a school district to expel a student, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda supporting a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] In General

In T.H. v. San Diego Unified Schl Dist. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532 , a middle school vice-principal, under the district's "zero tolerance" administrative regulations removing a principal or the principal's designee discretion and making referral for expulsion mandatory for specified acts, recommended that a student be expelled from school because she was involved in repeated acts of fighting. After a series of hearings, the school district agreed with the recommendation and expelled the student from its schools. Under state law, this type of offense could lead to an expulsion, but a school principal has the discretion to decide not to refer the matter to the governing school board for an expulsion hearing. The student brought a civil action against the district, alleging that the district's "zero tolerance" policy of requiring a principal to recommend an expulsion hearing for a student who has committed certain offenses violated state statutes and was unconstitutional. The trial court held that the district's mandatory referral policies violated applicable statutes because they eliminate a school principal's statutory discretion to decide not to recommend a student for an expulsion hearing and violated a student's due process rights, and entered judgment enjoining the district from enforcing or utilizing its zero tolerance policy to the extent the policy required a principal or superintendent to recommend expulsion of pupils in circumstances other than circumstances explicitly identified in the Education Code as requiring a recommendation for expulsion from a principal or superintendent (122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1273-1275) .

The court of appeal reversed. The court first described the legislature's comprehensive statutory scheme governing the suspension and expulsion of students, including the exclusive grounds for which a student may be suspendedor expelled [see Educ. Code §§ 48900, 48900.2, 48900.3, 48900.4], and mandatory procedures a school district must follow before the district may expel a student who has committed one of the identified expulsion offenses [see Educ. Code § 48918], which are detailed and extensive. In addition to providing the procedures for conducting the expulsion hearing, the legislature specified the circumstances for triggering an expulsion hearing and the findings that must be made, grouped in three primary categories, depending on the degree of the principal's or superintendent's discretion as to whether to recommend expulsion and the school board's discretion as to whether to order expulsion, depending on the nature of the act [see Educ. Code § 48915]. To implement these statutes, the district (1) promulgated a rule governing expulsions that identified causes for expulsion that were essentially identical to the causes identified in the Education Code, (2) set forth procedural requirements for the expulsion hearing process that mirrored the statutory requirements in the Education Code mandating extensive procedural rights, and (3) specified the circumstances under which a principal was required to refer a student for expulsion under the district's "zero tolerance" policies (122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1276-1278) . The court then held that although the district's expulsion requirements are different from the statutory requirements in that they eliminate a principal's discretion to decide not to recommend a student for an expulsion hearing, the regulations were not inconsistent with the applicable statutes, since there are no provisions in the Education Code requiring a district to provide a principal with the authority to dismiss an expulsion charge if the principal has found the student has committed the expulsion offense. A different situation would have been presented if the district's stricter recommendation procedures infringed on a student's statutory rights to an objective and fair expulsion procedure, which they did not, and the district's mandatory recommendation requirements did not preclude the principal from expressing his or her own views as to whether expulsion was appropriate in a particular case. Further, a principal retained the discretion to determine a student did not in fact commit the alleged offense and therefore to determine that any referral would be unwarranted (122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1281-1285) .

The court also found that the expulsion procedures did not violate a student's federal and state constitutional due process rights. The district provided repeated notices to parents and students subject to expulsion, and the regulations provided the required procedural protections. To the extent a student believed he or she did not receive proper notice in a particular case, the student could bring an "as-applied" challenge to the expulsion order. However, in this case it was conceded that the student and her mother had prior written notice that repeated acts of fighting would subject her to expulsion, and that she had been warned on numerous occasions that her continued misconduct would subject her to expulsion (122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1286-1287 & n.8). Further, a student is not constitutionally entitled to have notice of the scope of a principal's authority vis-a-vis the governing school board, and a student's procedural rights were not diminished merely because a principal did not have the discretion to dismiss the matter at the outset of the process. Finally, to the extent the district permitted the principal/superintendent to recommend a student for expulsion for offenses not included in the discipline provisions of the Education Code, those inconsistencies did not create an inevitable due process violation (122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1287) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES

21-211 California Points & Authorities 211.syn

§ 211.syn Synopsis to Chapter 211: SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES

§ 211.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 211.02 Governing Law

§ 211.03 Reorganization of Education Code

§ 211.04 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 211.05 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 211.06-211.19 [Reserved]

§ 211.20 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee [Educ. Code § 44929.21]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Memoranda

[d] Opposing Memorandum

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandate as Proper to Compel Recognition of Teacher's Permanent Status

[b] Attainment of Permanent Status as Automatic

[c] Probationary Service for 75 Percent of Hours Required of Full-Time Teacher as Constituting One Complete School Year

[d] Leave of Absence Does Not Cause Break in Continuity of Service

[e] Full-Time Permanent Status

[f] Probationary Year Served Under University Internship Credential

§ 211.21 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Reinstatement of Certificated Employee to Administrative or Supervisory Position--Failure to Give Required Advance Notice [Educ. Code § 44951]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Advance Notice Required Before Supervisory or Administrative Employee Released From Position

§ 211.22 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee--Non-Reelection of Probationary Teacher (Large District) [Educ. Code § 44929.21]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Probationary Teachers Generally

[b] Non-Reelection of Probationary Teachers

[c] Collective Bargaining and Due Process Rights of Probationary Teachers

[d] More Than One Year of Service in Categorically Funded Position Is Not Included in Computing Service Time for Attainment of Permanent Status

[e] Service as Instructor at Regional Occupational Center Is Not Included in Computing Service Time for Attainment of Permanent Status

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Non-Reelection of Probationary Teachers

§ 211.23 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee--Teacher as Not Attaining Permanent Status in Supervisory or Administrative Position

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Use

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Scope of Tenure Generally

[b] Reassignment of Permanent Employees

[c] Administrative and Supervisory Personnel as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teachers Only

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Administrative and Supervisory Personnel as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teachers Only

§ 211.24 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee--Teacher Holding Multiple Credentials as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teacher Only

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Use

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Teacher Holding Multiple Credentials as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teacher Only

§ 211.25 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee--Tenure as Not Bestowing Right to Teach at Particular School or Grade Level

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Use

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tenure as Not Bestowing Vested Right to Teach at Specific School or Grade Level

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tenure as Not Bestowing Vested Right to Teach at Specific School or Grade Level

§ 211.26 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Reinstatement of Certificated Employee to Administrative or Supervisory Position--Advance Notice Requirement of Educ. Code § 44951 Is Not Applicable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Reassignment of Administrator or Supervisor for Cause

[b] Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Transfer of Administrator or Supervisor to Another Position With Same Administrative Classification

§ 211.27 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Discharge Procedure Not Followed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandate to Review Dismissal of Permanent Employee

[b] Strict Compliance With Dismissal Procedure

[c] Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Independent Judgment on Evidence

[b] Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary

§ 211.28 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Immoral or Unprofessional Conduct [Educ. Code § 44932]--Showing of Unfitness to Teach Required

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Use of Optional Paragraphs; Contrary Authorities

[c] Suspension Without Pay as Alternative Discipline

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dismissal for Cause Only

[b] Unfitness to Teach as Proper Criteria for Discharge on Ground of Immoral or Unprofessional Conduct

[c] Showing of Significant Danger as Required

[d] Commission of Sex Offense as Not Constituting Unfitness to Teach Per Se

[e] Possession of Marijuana as Not Constituting Immoral Conduct Per Se

§ 211.29 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Violation of School Rules [Educ. Code § 44932]--Grounds for Dismissal Only Where Conduct Is Persistent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Use of Optional Paragraph; Contrary Authorities

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Violation of School Rules as Grounds for Dismissal Only Where Conduct Is Persistent

[b] Single Absence Without Leave as Not Constituting Persistent Violation of School Rules

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Violation of School Rules as Grounds for Dismissal Only Where Conduct Is Persistent

§ 211.30 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Violation of School Rules [Educ. Code § 44932]--Refusal to Obey Invalid Order as Not Grounds for Dismissal

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Refusal to Obey Invalid Order as Not Grounds for Dismissal

§ 211.31 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Unprofessional Conduct or Unsatisfactory Performance [Educ. Code § 44932]--School Board as Not Permitted to Dismiss for Unprofessional Conduct or Unsatisfactory Performance Unless Prior Notice and Opportunity to Correct Faults Given [Educ. Code § 44938]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Use of Optional Paragraph

[c] Limitations on Use of Form

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Give Notice as Fatal to Action by Board to Dismiss Teacher for Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct

[b] Dismissal as Improper Where Teacher Deprived of Opportunity to Correct Faults by Transfer to Nonteaching Position

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Give Notice as Fatal to Action by Board to Dismiss Teacher for Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct

§ 211.32 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Conviction of Crime [Educ. Code § 44932]--Conviction of Felony as Not Ground for Dismissal Unless Felony Involves Moral Turpitude

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Use of Optional Paragraph; Contrary Authorities

[c] Summary Dismissal for Conviction of Certain Crimes

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[e] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Conviction of Felony as Not Grounds for Dismissal Unless Felony Involves Moral Turpitude

[b] Offense of Cultivation of Marijuana as Not Involving Moral Turpitude as a Matter of Law

§ 211.33 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Conviction of Felony or Crime Involving Moral Turpitude [Educ. Code § 44932]--Pre-1976 Possession of Marijuana Conviction as Not Grounds for Dismissal [Health & Safety Code § 11361.7(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pre-1976 Possession of Marijuana Conviction as Not Grounds for Dismissal

§ 211.34 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Limitation on Dismissal for Exercise of Constitutional Rights

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Independent Assessment of True Reason for Dismissal

[b] Dismissal for Exercise of Constitutional Rights

[c] Teacher's Right to Speak

[d] Discipline Improper Where Teacher's Views Expressed in Proper Forum

[e] Failure to Receive Evidence of Dismissal for Exercise of Constitutional Rights

§ 211.35 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] Re Restrictions on Political Speech of School District Employees During Working Hours--[Educ. Code § 7055]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] District's Power to Regulate Employees' Political Activities

[b] District Has Right to Refuse Sponsorship of Political Speech

[c] District's Regulation of Political Speech Does Not Violate Employees' Constitutional Rights

§ 211.36 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945; Gov. Code § 11523]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Failure to Give Prior Notice and Opportunity to Correct Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct as Not Precluding Dismissal for Other Causes

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Separate Grounds for Dismissal

[b] Failure to Give Notice of and Opportunity to Correct Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct as Not Precluding Dismissal on Other Grounds

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Separate Grounds for Dismissal

[b] Failure to Give Notice of and Opportunity to Correct Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct as Not Precluding Dismissal on Other Grounds

§ 211.37 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945; Gov. Code § 11523]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--School Board Substantially Complied With Statutory Requirements for Dismissal

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance Is Sufficient to Satisfy Statutory Requirements

[b] Hypertechnical Procedural Oversights Should Not Thwart Process

211.37A Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945; Gov. Code § 11523]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--School Board Properly Considered Evidence of Matters Occurring More Than Four Years Before Notice of Intent to Dismiss

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memorandum

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Limitation is Subject to Equitable Exceptions

§ 211.38 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Reinstatement of Permanent Employee After Economic Layoff [Educ. Code § 44955]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Permanent Employees Dismissed Pursuant to Reduction in Particular Kind of Service

[b] Use of Contract Instead of Full-Time Employees Does Not Violate Educ. Code § 44955 Where Services Provided in Different Manner

§ 211.39 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] to Review Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Teacher Dismissed During School Year Without Following Required Procedures [Educ. Code § 44948.3]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Required Procedures

[c] Writ of Mandate

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dismissal of Probationary Teacher During School Year

§ 211.40 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] to Review Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Teacher Not Reelected for Following School Without Required Advance Notice [Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Required Notice

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice of Nonreelection of Probationary Teacher for Succeeding School Year

§ 211.41 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] to Review Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Teacher May Not Be Terminated for Engaging in Protected Activity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exercise of Constitutional Rights

[b] Exercise of Protected Labor Rights

§ 211.42 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] to Review Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Decision to Not Reelect Teacher for Following School Year Within Sole Discretion of Board

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonrenewal of Probationary Teacher's Contract at Discretion of Governing Board

[b] Effect of Collective Bargaining Agreement

[c] Effect of Statutory Provisions for Preferential Rehiring of Teachers Laid Off for Economic Reasons

§ 211.43 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate to Nullify Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Open Session of Board Not Required to Terminate Teacher Based on Performance Evaluation [Gov. Code § 54957]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Governing Board May Meet in Closed Session to Make Personnel Decisions

[b] Scope of Performance Evaluation Under Personnel Exception

§ 211.44 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Prohibit School District's Use of Unclassified Non-Academic Personnel in Nonmerit District [Educ. Code §§ 88003, 88004]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Use of Outside Employees Permitted in Nonmerit School District

§ 211.45 Supporting Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Lawful Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--School District as Without Authority to Lower Salaries After Beginning of School Year

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandate as Proper to Compel Payment of Salary by School District

[b] School Board as Without Authority to Reduce Salaries After Beginning of School Year

§ 211.46 Supporting Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Lawful Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--Nonsupervisory Certificated Employee as Required to Be Classified on Basis of Uniform Allowance for Years of Training and Experience [Educ. Code § 45028]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Certificated Employees as Required to Be Classified for Salary Purposes on Basis of Uniform Allowance for Years of Training and Experience

[b] Uniform Allowance for Outside Experience

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Certificated Employees as Required to Be Classified for Salary Purposes on Basis of Uniform Allowance for Years of Training and Experience

§ 211.47 Opposing Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--Governing Board as Permitted to Lower Salaries Prior to Beginning of School Year

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Governing Board as Permitted to Lower Salaries Before Beginning of School Year

§ 211.48 Opposing Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review School District Decision Reducing Teacher Hours and Wages

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice and Hearing Procedures Not Required Unless Permanent Employee Terminated

[b] Termination Not Accomplished by Partial Reduction in Work Hours

§ 211.49 Opposing Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--Certain Pay Incentive Programs as Permitted

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] School Board Permitted to Define Experience for Purposes of Salary Classification

[b] Pay Incentive Program as Permitted

§ 211.50 Opposing Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--District Permitted to Grant Differential Credit for Purposes of Initial Placement on Salary Schedule [Educ. Code § 45028(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] District Permitted to Grant Differential Credit for Purposes of Initial Placement on Salary Schedule

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.01

§ 211.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains forms of memoranda for use in mandate proceedings involving certificated employees, such as teachers, of public school districts. This part includes forms of memoranda for use in supporting [see §§ 211.27 -211.34] and opposing [see §§ 211.36 -211.37A] a petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence dismissing a permanent employee. It also includes forms supporting [see §§ 211.39 -211.41] and opposing [see § 211.42] a petition for mandate to review the decision of a governing board to terminate the contract of a probationary teacher. Finally, this part contains memoranda supporting and opposing a petition for writ of mandate to compel recognition of an employee's permanent status [see §§ 211.20, 211.23 -211.25] and to compel payment of salary to a school district employee [see §§ 211.45 -211.47, 211.49].

As noted in the discussion under § 211.02, a certificated employee's rights with respect to dismissal or suspension are dependent on whether he or she is classified as a permanent, probationary, substitute, or temporary employee. The question of how a particular teacher should be classified is frequently a cause of litigation [see, e.g., Balen v. Peralta Junior College Dist. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 821, 826-830, 114 Cal. Rptr. 589, 523 P.2d 629] . This part contains forms of memoranda for use in supporting and opposing a petition for writ of mandate to compel recognition of an employee's permanent status [see §§ 211.20, 211.23 -211.25]. For a more complete discussion of classification of certificated employees, see Ch. 512, Schools , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusEducation LawFaculty & StaffCompensationPaymentEducation LawFaculty & StaffDiscipline & DismissalAdministrative ProceedingsDecisions

26 of 147 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.02

§ 211.02 Governing Law

General definitions and provisions relating to certificated employees of school districts are set forth in Educ. Code § 44000 et seq. General rights and duties of all school district employees are set forth in Educ. Code § 44030 et seq. The issuance, denial, suspension, and revocation of certification documents is governed by Educ. Code § 44200 et seq. General rules governing the employment and classification of certificated employees are set forth in Educ. Code § 44830 et seq. Resignations, dismissals, suspensions, and leaves of absence are governed by Educ. Code § 44930 et seq. Salaries of certificated employees are governed by Cal. Const., art. IX, § 6 and Educ. Code § 45022 et seq.

The Education Code classifies certificated employees into permanent, probationary, substitute, and temporary employees. A certificated employee who has not been classified as a permanent or substitute employee ordinarily is classified as a probationary employee [Educ. Code § 44915]. Generally, a probationary certificated employee automatically will be reclassified as permanent if he or she hasbeen employed by a school district for two complete consecutive school years and is reelected for the next succeeding school year [Educ. Code § 44929.21(b); but see Educ. Code § 44911 (service under provisional credential not included in computing service required for classification as permanent employee)]. A substitute employee is one who is employed in a position requiring certification to fill in for regularly employed persons who are absent from service [Educ. Code § 44917]. Alternatively, a certificated employee may be classified as temporary if employed to teach certain temporary classes of limited duration, to serve in a limited assignment supervising athletic activities, or to serve in an emergency to prevent the stoppage of school district business [Educ. Code § 44919]. A nonpermanent certificated employee will be deemed probationary unless, at the time of initial employment, the employee is given a written statement indicating the temporary nature of the employment [Educ. Code § 44916; see Kavanaugh v. West Sonoma County High Sch. Dist. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 911, 919-926, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811, 62 P.3d 54 (for purposes of Educ. Code § 44916, "time of initial employment" is certificated employee's first day of paid service for school district)].

The classification of a certificated employee depends on the position he or she occupies, and a school district may not determine a teacher's classification based on the type of credential or certification he or she has. For example, if a certificated employee occupies a position the Education Code defines as temporary, he or she is a temporary employee; if it is not a position that requires temporary classification (or permanent or substitute), he or she is a probationary employee [Bakersfield Elementary Teachers Assn. v. Bakersfield City School Dist. (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1299, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 486 (Educ. Code grants school districts no discretion to deviate from statutory classification scheme)].

An employee's rights with respect to dismissal and suspension are determined by his or her classification. For example, substitute employees may be dismissed at any time at the pleasure of the governing board of the school district [Educ. Code § 44953]. Governing boards of school districts may release temporary employees requiring certification qualifications under the following circumstances: (1) at the pleasure of the board, before an employee has served during one school year at least 75 percent of the number of days the regular schools of the district are maintained; or (2) after an employee has served during one school year the number of days described above, if he or she is notified before the end of the school year of the district's decision not to reelect him or her for the next succeeding year [Educ. Code § 44954].

On the other hand, permanent teachers cannot be dismissed or suspended except for certain causes [see Educ. Code §§ 44932, 44933] and are entitled to certain procedural safeguards [see Educ. Code §§ 44934-44947]. During the school year, probationary employees hired in or after the 1983-1984 fiscal year may be dismissed or suspended for unsatisfactory performance determined pursuant to Educ. Code §§ 44660-44665 or for cause pursuant to Educ. Code § 44932. The procedure for their dismissal or suspension is set out in Educ. Code § 44948.3. However, probationary employees who are employed in a school district with an average daily attendance of less than 250 pupils (hereinafter referred to as asmall school district) may be dismissed or suspended during the school year only for cause as in the case of permanent employees and have the same procedural rights as those accorded to permanent employees [see Educ. Code § 44948; Pennel v. Pond Union School Dist. (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 832, 839, 105 Cal. Rptr. 817] . Small school districts may also elect to dismiss probationary employees during the school year pursuant to Educ. Code § 44948.3 [Educ. Code § 44948.2]. Probationary employees employed in small school districts may be dismissed at the end of the school year only for cause that relates solely to the welfare of the schools and the pupils thereof [see Educ. Code § 44948.5(e)]. The procedure for their dismissal is set out in Educ. Code § 44948.5. In addition, both permanent and probationary employees may have their services terminated when the governing board reduces the number of certificated employees for reasons specified in Educ. Code §§ 44955 or 44955.5. The procedure regarding notice and hearing for termination of services pursuant to Educ. Code § 44955 is set out in Educ. Code § 44949.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Education LawFaculty & StaffDiscipline & DismissalGeneral OverviewEducation LawFaculty & StaffDiscipline & DismissalAdministrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewEducation LawFaculty & StaffPersonnel ActionsSuspensionsEducation LawFaculty & StaffQualificationsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.03

§ 211.03 Reorganization of Education Code

The statutory provisions governing the public school system generally and public school employees in particular have been amended and reorganized numerous times. The original provisions governing the dismissal of teachers were contained in the Political Code. These provisions were transferred to the School Code in 1931. The provisions of the School Code were reorganized and renumbered and the Code was renamed the Education Code in 1943. The Education Code itself was reorganized in 1959 and again in 1976. Many of the cases cited and discussed in this part were decided prior to the latest reorganization of the Education Code under statutory provisions that were either identical or substantially the same as the current provisions. These provisions are cited as "former Educ. Code (or School Code) § _____ (now Educ. Code § _____)" when referred to in the Discussion of Authorities.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Education LawFaculty & StaffDiscipline & DismissalAdministrative ProceedingsStatutory Procedures

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.04

§ 211.04 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion and forms for use in actions involving certificated employees of school districts, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms relating to administrative adjudicatory hearings and judicial review thereof, see Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms relating to mandate proceedings generally, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For discussion and forms relating to employees subject to the civil service system, see Ch. 118, Civil Service in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.05

§ 211.05 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

For memoranda of points and authorities for use in actions involving students, see Ch. 210, Schools: Actions by Students .

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities for use in mandate proceedings generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition . For forms of memoranda for use in mandate proceedings to review administrative adjudicatory decisions, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities for use in mandate proceedings involving employees subject to the civil service system, see Ch. 35, Civil Rights .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-211 California Points & Authorities §§ 211.06-211.19

[Reserved]

§§ 211.06[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.20

§ 211.20 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee [Educ. Code § 44929.21]

[1] FORM

	)
	)	NO. _____
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
COUNTY OF_____	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR WRIT OF
_____ [name],	)	MANDATE
Petitioner,	)	Date: _____
vs.	)	Time: _____
_____ [name],	)	Location: _____
Respondent.	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD OF RESPONDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT TO RECOGNIZE PETITIONER'S STATUS AS A PERMANENT EMPLOYEE OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT.

A. Mandate as Proper to Compel Performance of Duty or Enjoyment of Right. A writ of mandate may be issued by any court to any inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person, to compel the performance of an act that the law specially enjoins, as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station; or to compel the admission of a party to the use and enjoyment of a right or office to which he or she is entitled, and from which he or she is unlawfully precluded by the inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person (Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)).

B. Mandate as Proper to Compel Recognition of Teacher's Permanent Status. Mandate directed to the governing board of a school district is the appropriate vehicle to compel the district to recognize a teacher's status as a permanent employee, and may be pursued without first exhausting any administrative remedy (Middaugh v. Board of Trustees (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 776, 781, 119 Cal. Rptr. 826).

C. Mandatory Classification of Permanent Employee. After having been employed by the district for two complete consecutive school years in a position or positions requiring certification qualifications, every employee of a school district of any type or class having an average daily attendance of 250 or more pupils who is reelected for the next succeeding school year to a position requiring certification qualifications, shall be classified as and become a permanent employee of the district at the commencement of the succeeding school year (Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)).

D. Attainment of Permanent Status as Automatic. When a teacher fulfills the statutory requirements, attainment of permanent status is automatic; no application need be made by the teacher, nor is any affirmative action required on the part of the school board (Vittal v. Long Beach Unified School Dist. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 112, 118, 87 Cal. Rptr. 319).

[Optional] E. Probationary Service for 75 Percent of School Days as Constituting One Complete School Year. A probationary employee, who has served in any one school year for at least 75 percent of the number of days the regular schools of the district in which he or she is employed are maintained, must be deemed to have served a complete school year (Educ. Code § 44908).

[Optional] F. Probationary Service for 75 Percent of Hours Required of Full-Time Teacher as Constituting One Complete School Year. A probationary teacher who, during one school year, has taught for 75 percent of the hours required of a full-time teacher, but not 75 percent of the school days, has nonetheless served a complete school year for purposes of attaining permanent status (Vittal v. Long Beach Unified School Dist. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 112, 119-120, 87 Cal. Rptr. 319).

[Optional] G. Leave of Absence Does Not Cause Break in Continuity of Service. When a probationary employee has been granted a leave of absence, that leave of absence does not constitute a break in the continuity of service required for classification of the employee as a permanent employee (Educ. Code § 44975; see Griego v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 515, 519-521, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556).

[Optional] H. Full-Time Permanent Status. Where a probationary employee serves in a full-time position in which some or all of the duties require certification qualifications for the entire probationary period, he or she acquires full-time, not part-time, permanent status (Holbrook v. Board of Educ. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 316, 329-330, 231 P.2d 853).

[Optional] I. Probationary Year Served Under University Internship Credential. If a person has completed a university teaching internship program and obtained a clear credential (see Educ. Code § 44450 et seq.), the last year of teaching under the university internship credential counts toward tenure if the person is employed for the next complete school year under the clear credential by the same school district that employed him or her in the last year of internship (Educ. Code § 44466). Thus, at the completion of the first year under the clear credential, the person will attain tenure unless the school district gives timely notice of its decision not to reelect him or her (Peoples v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 463, 468-472, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 383).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to recognize that a teacher has attained tenure, that is, status as a permanent employee of the school district. Such a mandate proceeding may be brought if the school district has attempted to discharge the employee without complying with the procedures applicable to permanent employees, or in any other situation in which the district has failed to accord the employee the rights of a permanent employee.

When optional Paragraph F is included, optional Paragraph E should also be included.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to compel a school district to recognize a teacher's status as a permanent employee, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools , Pt. II (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[d] Opposing Memorandum

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in set out in § 211.22 may be submitted in opposition to the petition supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandate as Proper to Compel Recognition of Teacher's Permanent Status

Middaugh v. Board of Trustees (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 776, 119 Cal. Rptr. 826 , was an action for a writ of mandate to compel a school district to recognize appellant's status as a permanent employee and to enjoin the district from proceeding to dismiss her under the procedure applicable to the dismissal of probationary teachers. The trial court granted the district's motion for judgment on the pleadings on the ground that the school board's determination that appellant was a probationary employee in its proceedings to dismiss her was res judicata on that issue. In reversing, the court of appeal noted that mandate directed to the governing board of a school district is an appropriate vehicle to compel the district to recognize a teacher's status as a permanent employee of the district and that it may be pursued without first exhausting any administrative remedy (45 Cal. App. 3d 776, 781) . The court held that the allegations of appellant's petition stated a good cause of action for a writ of mandate, and that since a motion for judgment on the pleadings requires the court to accept the allegations as true, the petition established appellant's right to relief unless the school board proceedings of which the trial court took judicial notice conclusively rebutted a necessary allegation of the petition (45 Cal. App. 3d 776, 781) . The court then held that the school board's finding that appellant was a probationary employee was not res judicata on that issue and that the trial court had thus erred in granting the motion for judgment on the pleadings (45 Cal. App. 3d 776, 781-782) .

[b] Attainment of Permanent Status as Automatic

In Vittal v. Long Beach Unified School Dist. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 112, 87 Cal. Rptr. 319 , petitioner sought a writ of mandate from the superior court to compel respondent school district to retroactively classify her as a permanent employee of the district and to pay her alleged salary arrearages. The trial court rendered a judgment requiring the district to classify her as a permanent employee as of a certain date, but denying her any award for the claimed salary deficiencies. The evidence showed, in part, that petitioner had been hired in 1956 to teachEnglish as a second language at an hourly rate, and that she had been employed under similar contracts every year since then, although the number of hours and school days taught per week varied from year to year. The trial court found that for all years except 1967-1968, petitioner had carried a teaching load equivalent to or greater than other permanent teachers instructing the same course. Both parties appealed from the judgment.

In affirming, the court of appeal held, inter alia, that petitioner was entitled to classification as a permanent employee and that the judgment should be modified to require respondent to classify petitioner as a "Full Time Permanent Employee (English as a Second Language)" as the distinction between full and part time is significant (8 Cal. App. 3d 112, 119, 123-124) . The court noted that when the provisions for permanent status contained in the Education Code are met, the attainment of permanent status is automatic. No application need be made by the teacher, nor is any affirmative action on the part of the school board necessary (8 Cal. App. 3d 112, 118) .

[c] Probationary Service for 75 Percent of Hours Required of Full-Time Teacher as Constituting One Complete School Year

The facts and procedural background of Vittal v. Long Beach Unified School Dist. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 112, 87 Cal. Rptr. 319 , are discussed in § 211.20[3][b]. In rejecting the school district's contention that petitioner had not fulfilled the statutory requirement of former Educ. Code §§ 11304, 13328 (now Educ. Code § 44929.21) that she serve for three complete consecutive school years because petitioner could not point to any three consecutive years in which she had taught at least 75 percent of the school days, the court of appeal held that a teacher who has taught at least 75 percent of the number of hours required of a full-time teacher, but not 75 percent of the days of the school years, has nonetheless taught a complete school year for purposes of attaining permanent status, and is within the class of teachers intended by the Legislature to be benefited by the tenure statute (8 Cal. App. 3d 112, 119-120) .

[d] Leave of Absence Does Not Cause Break in Continuity of Service

In Griego v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 515, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556 , the plaintiff had taught a complete school year (i.e., more than 75 percent of the number of days that regular school was maintained) as a probationary employee during the 1989-1990 school year. In the 1990-1991 school year, plaintiff was given an approved leave of absence due to a work-related injury and therefore taught slightly less than a complete school year. In the 1991-1992 school year, plaintiff again taught a complete school year as a probationary employee. On June 23, 1992, the school district notified plaintiff that she was not reelected to her position for the 1992-1993 school year. Plaintiff brought a mandate proceeding to compel the district to classify her as a permanent employee of the district, relying on Educ. Code § 44929.21(b), which provides that when an employee in a school district with an average daily attendance of 250 or more pupils has been employed by the district for two complete consecutive school years in a position requiring certification qualifications and is reelected for the next succeeding school year, he or she must be classified as and become a permanent employee of the district. The statute further provides that the governing board of the district must notify the employee on or before March 15 of the employee's second complete consecutive school year of the board's decision to reelect or not reelect the employee for the next succeeding school year, and that the employee is deemed reelected if the board does not give such notice by March 15. The trial court denied the writ, and plaintiff appealed.

On appeal, the district contended that plaintiff had not met the requirements of Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) for automatic classification as a permanent employee because plaintiff had not served a complete school year during 1990-1991; therefore, she had not served two complete consecutive school years as required by the statute. The court of appeal rejected this contention, noting that Educ. Code § 44929.21 must be construed in light of Educ. Code § 44975. The first sentence of the latter statute provides that "[n]o leave of absence when granted to a probationary employee shall be construed as a break in the continuity of service required for classification of the employee as permanent." The court held that the "continuity of service" language in Educ. Code § 44975 relates to the "consecutive" element in Educ. Code § 44929.21. Thus, the court concluded, plaintiff properly relied on the first sentence of Educ. Code § 44975 to argue that between her complete year of service in 1989-1990 and her complete year of service in 1991-1992, there was no break in the continuity of her service--i.e., she had served two consecutive complete school years (28 Cal. App. 4th 515, 519) . The court held that the language in the second sentence of Educ. Code § 44975, which provides that the time during which the employee is on leave is not to be considered employment for purposes of Educ. Code § 44929.21, did not aid the district's case because that language relates to the requirement in § 44929.21 that the consecutive years be "complete." In this case, the court noted, plaintiff was not arguing that the year during which she took her leave (1990-1991) was a complete year; she was only arguing that because of her leave there was no break in continuity between her first and second complete years (1989-1999 and 1991-1992) and that therefore the district was required to notify her by March 15, 1992, of her non-reelection in order to prevent her from achieving permanent status. The court agreed with plaintiff's argument and therefore reversed the judgment (28 Cal. App. 4th 515, 519-521) .

[e] Full-Time Permanent Status

Holbrook v. Board of Educ. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 316, 231 P.2d 853 , was an appeal from a judgment denying a petition for a writ of mandate to compelrespondent school board to reinstate petitioner to a prior position and classify him as a full-time permanent employee of the district. Petitioner was employed by the board for seven consecutive years in a full-time position in which approximately three-fourths of his time was devoted to duties that did not require certification qualifications and approximately one-fourth of his time was spent performing duties that did require certification qualifications. At the completion of the seven years, the board attempted to discontinue his services as a full-time employee to employ him for only one-fourth time to perform the duties that required certification qualifications. The board contended that petitioner was entitled to only one-fourth time tenure. The trial court agreed and entered judgment denying the writ.

On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that if all or some of the duties assigned to an employee required certification qualifications, then the employee holds a position requiring certification qualifications within the meaning of the tenure statute [see former Educ. Code § 13081 (now Educ. Code § 44929.21)] (37 Cal. 2d 316, 329) . The Court found that nothing in the statutes requires a local school board to assign only certificated duties to any one employee, and observed that no authority referred to the Court necessitated a holding that, on reelection for a fourth consecutive school year, an employee becomes entitled to permanent status only as to the amount of time devoted to certificated duties during the probationary period. The Court stated that to make an employee's tenure rights dependent on the duties assigned to him or her for which a certificate was required, allocated according to time, would mean that an employee would attain permanent status on a part-time basis in every case where, in accordance with the board's authority, the employee was assigned some other, noncertificated duties during his probationary period. To one who must earn his living from his profession, the Court observed, such part-time tenure rights would be valueless and the Court would not assume that the Legislature intended such a result (37 Cal. 2d 316, 329-330) .

The Court assumed that part-time employment in a position requiring certification qualifications during the period of employment results in the right to permanent employment on a part-time basis only, and that a school board could contract to employ the same person in two separate part-time positions, only one of which required certification qualifications (37 Cal. 2d 316, 331) . The Court concluded, however, that in this case the petitioner was employed in one full-time position, rather than two part-time positions (37 Cal. 2d 316, 332) . Thus, on reelection to his fourth consecutive school year in that position, petitioner was entitled to full-time permanent employment in the school district (37 Cal. 2d 316, 334) .

[f] Probationary Year Served Under University Internship Credential

In Peoples v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 463, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 383 , the plaintiff taught in an elementary school for the defendant school district for two school years with a university intern credential issued under the Teacher Internship Act of 1967 (see Educ. Code § 44450 et seq.). At the end of the second year, she obtained a clear (non-internship) credential and taught for the defendant district for another school year. In May of that third year, the defendant notified the plaintiff that she would not be reelected (i.e., rehired) for the next year. The defendant gave this notice under law permitting a school district to terminate a teacher without cause after his or her first year of probationary employment (Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)). The plaintiff contended, however, that she could not be terminated without cause because she had attained tenure by the time the defendant gave notice of its intention not to reelect her. Specifically, she contended that (1) the law allowing termination without cause requires the notice to be given by March 15 of the teacher's second qualifying year of employment (see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)), and (2) applying the provisions of the Teacher Internship Act, her year of teaching under the clear credential was her second qualifying year of employment. The court of appeal agreed. Under the Teacher Internship Act, if a person has completed a university teaching internship program and obtained a clear credential, the last year of teaching under the university internship credential counts toward tenure if the person is employed for the next complete school year under the clear credential by the same school district that employed him or her in the last year of internship [Educ. Code § 44466]. Thus, at the completion of the first year under the clear credential, the person attains tenure unless the school district gives timely notice of its decision not to reelect him or her. Since the notice in this case was not given by March 15 of the first year under the clear credential, the plaintiff in this case had attained tenure (138 Cal. App. 4th 463, 468-472) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.21

§ 211.21 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Reinstatement of Certificated Employee to Administrative or Supervisory Position--Failure to Give Required Advance Notice [Educ. Code § 44951]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.20.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD BE ISSUED TO COMPEL RESPONDENT TO REINSTATE PETITIONER TO HIS/HER FORMER POSITION OF _____[specify former administrative or supervisory position] BECAUSE RESPONDENT FAILED TO NOTIFY PETITIONER IN ADVANCETHAT HE/SHE MAY BE RELEASED FROM HIS/HER POSITION AS REQUIRED BY EDUCATION CODE SECTION 44951 AND NO EXCEPTION TO THE NOTICE REQUIREMENT APPLIES TO THIS CASE.

A. Mandate as Proper to Compel Performance of Duty or Enjoyment of Right. [See § 211.20, Paragraph A.]

B. Advance Notice Required Before Supervisory or Administrative Employee Released From Position. Subject to certain statutory exceptions, a certificated employee holding a position requiring an administrative or supervisory credential must be continued in his position for the succeeding school year unless (1) he or she is sent written notice (deposited in the United States registered mail with postage prepaid to his or her last known address) by March 15 stating that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year, or (2) his or her signature is obtained by March 15 on a written notice stating that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year (Educ. Code § 44951).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition for writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to reinstate a certificated employee to an administrative or supervisory position, when the district has failed to provide the advance notice required by Educ. Code § 44951 prior to terminating his or her employment or reassigning him or her to a non-administrative or non-supervisory position.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. If appropriate, counsel should also show that the facts of the case do not support the assertion by the district of any exception to the notice requirement [see § 211.21[3][a]].

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 211.26 may be submitted in opposition to petition supported by the points and authorities set out in this form.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Advance Notice Required Before Supervisory or Administrative Employee Released From Position

Under Educ. Code § 44951, a certificated employee holding a position requiring an administrative or supervisory credential must be continued in his position for the succeeding school year unless (1) he or she is sent written notice (deposited in the United States registered mail with postage prepaid to his or her last known address) by March 15 stating that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year, or (2) his or her signature is obtained by March 15 on a written notice stating that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year. The purpose of this statute is to afford the certificated employee an opportunity to seek other employment as an administrator or supervisor in the event that he or she is reassigned to a teaching or other non-administrative or non-supervisory position [see Hahn v. Board of Education (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 744, 752, 252 Cal. Rptr. 471 ; Barton v. Governing Board (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 476, 479-480, 131 Cal. Rptr. 455] .

Educ. Code § 44951 further provides, however, that it does not apply to (1) a certificated employee who holds a written contract with an expiration date beyond the current school year; (2) a certificated employee holding a position that is funded for less than a school year; (3) a certificated employee assigned to an acting position whose continuing right to hold this position depends on being selected from an eligible list established for the position; or (4) to the termination of employment under Educ. Code § 44955 (termination of employment due to decline in average daily attendance, reduction or elimination of services, or modification of curriculum) [see § 211.26]. In addition, a court of appeal has held that the notification requirements of Educ. Code § 44951 do not apply when a school district reassigns a supervisor or administrator for misconduct or other cause [Jefferson v. Compton Unified School Dist. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 32, 39, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 ; see § 211.26].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.22

§ 211.22 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee--Non-Reelection of Probationary Teacher (Large District) [Educ. Code § 44929.21]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT ISSUE TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD TO RECOGNIZE THAT PETITIONER HAS ATTAINED PERMANENT STATUS IN HIS/HER POSITION BECAUSE THE SCHOOL DISTRICT HAS THE ABSOLUTE RIGHT TO DECLINE REELECTION OF PROBATIONARY TEACHERS.

A. Probationary Teachers Generally. A teacher who has not attained permanent status is classified as a probationary employee. A probationary employee may only become a permanent employee if he/she has been employed by the school district for two complete, consecutive school years in a position or positions requiring certification qualifications and is reelected by the district for the succeeding school year to a position requiring certification qualifications (Educ. Code § 44929.21; Culbertson v. San Gabriel Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1397-1399, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234 ; Smith v. Governing Bd. of Elk Grove Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 563, 567-569, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 ; Fine v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 1076-1080, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 876).

B. Non-Reelection of Probationary Teachers. School districts with an average daily attendance of 250 students are permitted to decline reelection of probationary teachers for the ensuing school year without any showing of cause, statement of reasons, and without administrative hearings or appeal. The only procedural requirement that the school district must provide is notice to the affected teacher on or before March 15 in his/her second year of employment (Educ. Code § 44929.21). Provided this notice requirement is met, the affected teacher has no procedural recourse against the district (Board of Education v. Round Valley Teachers Assn. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 269, 279, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115, 914 P.2d 193).

C. Collective Bargaining and Due Process Rights of Probationary Teachers. Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) grants the school district exclusive authority over the decision whether or not to reelect a probationary teacher. Furthermore, Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) preempts any collective bargaining agreements seeking to provide greater due process rights to probationary teachers or impose greater procedural requirements for non-reelection on school districts (Board of Education v. Round Valley Teachers Assn. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 269, 284-287, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115, 914 P.2d 193).

D. More Than One Year of Service in Categorically Funded Position Is Not Included in Computing Service Time for Attainment of Permanent Status. A teacher's service in a position requiring certification in a program or project conducted under contract with a public or private agency, or in a categorically funded project, that is not required by federal or state statutes generally does not count toward the service time required for attainment of permanent status. However, up to one year of such service may be counted if (1) the employee has served in that position pursuant for at least 75 percent of the number of days the regular schools of the district are maintained, and (2) the employee is subsequently employed as a probationary employee in a position requiring certification qualifications (Educ. Code § 44909; Schnee v. Alameda Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 555, 560-565, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 800).

E. Service as Instructor at Regional Occupational Center Is Not Included in Computing Service Time for Attainment of Permanent Status. An employee's service as an instructor at a regional occupation center is not included in computing the service time required for attainment of permanent status, unless the employee is a regularly credentialed teacher who has been employed to teach in the regular educational programs of the school district and subsequently assigned as an instructor in the regional occupational center or program (Educ. Code § 44910). A teacher who retains his or her part-time regular teaching position, and is assigned to an additional part-time regional occupation center teaching position, is not "subsequently assigned" to the regional occupation center for this purpose (Reis v. Biggs Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 809, 816-821, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to recognize an employee's permanent status. The basis of the opposition is that, under Educ. Code § 44929.21(b), a school district has an exclusive right not to reelect a probationary teacher for the ensuing school year without any showing of cause, statement of reasons, and without administrative hearings or appeal as long as the district provides notice of its decision to the teacher on or before March 15 in his or her second year of employment.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition . For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate to compel recognition of the permanent status of school district employees or the reinstatement of a supervisory level employee, see §§ 211.20 and 211.21, respectively.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Probationary Teachers Generally

The plaintiff in Culbertson v. San Gabriel Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234 , was employed by the defendant school district during the 1999-2000 school year under an "Emergency Long Term Single Subject Teaching Permit." The plaintiff then received a"Professional Clear Single Subject Teaching Credential" and was employed by the defendant district for the 2000-2001 school year as a probationary employee. On May 23, 2001, the defendant sent the plaintiff a written notice of non-reelection of employment for the 2001-2002 school year. The plaintiff sought a writ of mandate to compel the defendant to classify him as a permanent employee, contending that he was entitled to permanent status because he had been employed for two years, and the defendant district had not sent the notice of non-reelection by March 15 of his second year, as required by Educ. Code § 44929.21(b). The trial court denied the writ application, and the court of appeal affirmed.

Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) provides, in relevant part, that if an employee of a large school district (i.e., with an average daily attendance of 250 or more) has been employed by the district for two complete consecutive school years in a position requiring certification qualifications, and the employee is reelected for the next succeeding school year to a position requiring certification qualifications, he or she becomes a permanent employee of the district. Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) also provides that if the governing board of the district does not notify the employee, on or before March 15 of the employee's second complete consecutive school year of employment by the district in a position or positions requiring certification qualifications, of a decision not to reelect the employee for the next succeeding school year, the employee will be deemed reelected for the next succeeding school year.

The court of appeal explained that the two-year tenure provision of Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) applies only to employees who work two years while eligible to attain permanent status. The plaintiff did not fit within this category because his service in 1999-2000 under the emergency permit constituted service under a provisional credential. Such service may not be included in computing the service required as a prerequisite to attainment of, or eligibility to, classification as a permanent employee of a school district [Educ. Code § 44911]. Thus, the defendant district's notice of non-reelection sent in May 2001 was sent during the plaintiff's first year of eligible employment and was well before the statutory deadline of March 15 of the second year of eligible employment. The court of appeal rejected an argument that the notice requirement of Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) should be applied independently of the statute's tenure provision. That is, an employee must be eligible for permanent employment under the tenure provision before he or she is entitled to the March 15 notice of non-reelection (121 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1397-1399) .

The plaintiff in Smith v. Governing Bd. of Elk Grove Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 563, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , held a social science teaching credential. In the 1999-2000 school year she was employed by the defendant school district as a resource specialist in the district's special-education program. Her credential did not qualify her for that job, so she had to obtain an "Emergency Education Specialist Instruction Permit." She obtained a similar permit for the 2000-2001 year. In the 2001-2002 year her teaching duties changed to two-thirds time as a social studies teacher and one-third time in special education. The plaintiff sought a writ of mandate requiring the district to classify her as a permanent tenured teacher as of the beginning of the 2001-2002 school year. She contended that she was entitled to permanent status because she taught for two full years in a position requiring certification classifications, automatically qualifying her for permanent status under Educ. Code § 44929.21(b). The trial court denied the writ, and the court of appeal affirmed.

The court of appeal explained that Section 44929.21(b) would entitle the plaintiff to permanent status, except for the exclusion provided by Educ. Code § 44911, which provides that service under a provisional credential may not be included in computing the service required as a prerequisite to attainment of, or eligibility to, classification as a permanent employee of a school district. It is established that an emergency credential such as the one held by the plaintiff is a type of "provisional credential" within the meaning of Educ. Code § 44911. Therefore, since the plaintiff's two years of service as a resource specialist were under a provisional credential, at the end of those two years she had not attained permanent status under Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) (120 Cal. App. 4th 563, 567) .

The court of appeal rejected the plaintiff's contention that she fit within an exception to Educ. Code § 44911 that allows certain service under an emergency credential to count toward eligibility for permanent status. Specifically, Educ. Code § 44911 states that "This section shall not be applicable to teachers granted a one-year emergency credential under the conditions specified in subdivision (b) of Section 44252 and subdivision (h) of Section 44830." (Educ. Code §§ 44252(b) and 44830(h) [repealed eff. Jan. 1, 2009] deal with the credentialing and hiring of certain teachers pending fulfillment of the California basic skills assessment test requirement.) The court of appeal noted that several cases have held that the exception to Educ. Code § 44911 can be invoked only by holders of sister-state credentials. Therefore, the exception was not applicable to the plaintiff in this case, who did not have a special-education credential from any state (120 Cal. App. 4th 563, 568-569) .

Fine v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 876 , involved a teacher who was initially employed as a provisional teacher, under an emergency permit, prior to the issuance of her teaching credential. Her credential was valid from August 27, 1999, but she did not receive it until March, 2000, at which time she registered it with the school district that employed her; she and the district then executed a new contract for employment as a probationary teacher. The contract specified that the teacher's first day as a probationary employee was March 8, 2000. The issue in this case was whether the teacher attained permanent status before the district's March 2002, notice of its decisionnot to reelect her. The teacher contended that her probationary status should have related back to the August 27, 1999, effective date of her credential, making the 1999-2000 and 2000-2001 school years her first and second complete school years as a probationary employee. Therefore, the teacher contended, her rehiring for the 2001-2002 school year made her a permanent employee, and the district's March 2002 notice was not timely.

The court of appeal rejected the teacher's contention and held that the district was not required to classify her as probationary retroactive to the validity date of her credential. The court reasoned that a teacher serving under an emergency permit continues to serve under that permit, and under the contract to which he or she agreed, until the teacher is issued a credential and registers it with the school district (see Educ. Code § 44330). Thus, in this case the teacher's service as a probationary teacher could not begin until her credential was registered with the school district and a new contract was executed. Therefore, her status as a probationary employee began not on the validity date of her teaching credential, but on the date stated in her contract with the employing school district (116 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 1076-1080) . Accordingly, the 2000-2001 and 2001-2002 school years were her first two complete school years as a probationary employee, and the district's March 2002 notice of its decision not to reelect her was timely (116 Cal. App. 4th 1070, 1072-1073) .

[b] Non-Reelection of Probationary Teachers

In Board of Education v. Round Valley Teachers Assn. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 269, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115, 914 P.2d 193 , the Round Valley Teacher's union had struck a collective bargaining agreement which set forth procedures for the dismissal or decision not to reelect probationary teachers for the following school year. In particular, the agreement provided that probationary teachers would receive no less than 30 days' notice of non-reelection by the district and would be permitted to appeal the decisions. In addition, the agreement provided that "just cause" was required for non-reelection of probationary teachers (13 Cal. 4th 269, 272-273) .

The California Supreme Court distinguished between a "dismissal for cause" pursuant to Educ. Code §§ 44932 et seq., 44941 et seq., and 44948 et seq., and a "decision against reelection" pursuant to Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) (13 Cal. 4th 269, 283) . The court also distinguished between the rights of permanent and probationary teachers (13 Cal. 4th 269, 284-285) . Accordingly, Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) permits a school district to decline reelection of a probationary teacher at the end of the second year without any showing of cause, statement of reasons, and without administrative hearings or appeal as long as the district provides notice of the decision to the teacher on or before March 15 in his/her second year of employment (13 Cal. 4th 269, 279) . Furthermore, Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) grants the district exclusive discretion over reelection and preempts any collective bargaining agreements seeking to provide greater due process rights to probationary teachers (13 Cal. 4th 269, 284-287) .

[c] Collective Bargaining and Due Process Rights of Probationary Teachers

Board of Education v. Round Valley Teachers Assn. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 269, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115, 914 P.2d 193 , is discussed in § 211.22[3][b].

[d] More Than One Year of Service in Categorically Funded Position Is Not Included in Computing Service Time for Attainment of Permanent Status

Schnee v. Alameda Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 555, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 800 , presented the question whether a certificated teacher who has been employed for several years in a categorically funded position under Educ. Code § 44909 attains permanent status on commencing employment by the school district in a probationary position. The court of appeal held that the teacher does not attain permanent status at the commencement of the probationary position; rather, permanent status is reached only if the teacher is retained for the succeeding school year.

The teacher in this case had been employed for 8 years as a reading specialist, a position that was categorically funded under Section 44909. The next school year, the district hired the teacher as a third-grade teacher, a position supported by general funds, and classified her as a probationary employee. When the district notified the teacher that she would not be reelected for the following school year, the teacher filed a petition for a writ of mandate, claiming that the district did not have the unqualified right to terminate her employment. Specifically, she argued that she had attained permanent status at the commencement of her third-grade position. The trial court dismissed the teacher's petition, holding that she had been properly classified as a probationary employee and the district had properly exercised its unqualified right not to reelect her (125 Cal. App. 4th 555, 559-560) .

The court of appeal affirmed. The court acknowledged that Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) states that if a teacher is employed by a school district for two complete consecutive school years in a position or positions requiring certification qualifications, and is reelected for the next succeeding school year to a position requiring certification qualifications, the teacher becomes a permanent employee at the commencement of the succeeding school year. The teacher in this case argued that since the reading specialist position and the third-grade position both required certification qualifications, Section 44929.21(b) required that she be classified as a permanent employee at the beginning of her service in the third-grade position.

The court of appeal rejected the teacher's argument, however, because the literal application of Section 44929.21(b) is precluded by the need to reconcile its provisions with other sections of the Education Code. For example, Educ. Code § 44909 limits the effect of Section 44929.21(b). Section 44909 provides that employment in a categorically funded position not required by federal or state statute does not count toward the service required as a prerequisite to attainment of permanent status unless the employee (1) has served pursuant for at least 75 percent of the number of days the regular schools of the district are maintained, and (2) "is subsequently employed as a probationary employee in a position requiring certification qualifications."

Although Section 44909 is not explicit on the point, the court of appeal interpreted the statute's "is subsequently employed as a probationary employee" language as contemplating one school year of service as a probationary employee before permanent status can be attained. The court found support for this position in the evident intent of the Legislature in the statutory provisions dealing with temporary employees, which clearly require that a teacher who has served at least one year as a temporary employee must serve an additional year as a probationary employee before attaining permanent status (see Educ. Code §§ 44919, 44920). Accordingly, reading Sections 44909 and 44929.21(b) together, the court of appeal concluded that the teacher in the present case could not attain permanent status until she completed one year of service as a probationary employee and was reelected for the following school year. In effect, then, only one year of her previous service in the categorically funded position could be counted toward the service required as a prerequisite to attainment of permanent status (125 Cal. App. 4th 555, 560-565) .

[e] Service as Instructor at Regional Occupational Center Is Not Included in Computing Service Time for Attainment of Permanent Status

In Reis v. Biggs Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 809, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393 , the plaintiff was a credentialed teacher who for several years was employed by the defendant school district in two concurrent positions: (1) a part-time regular teaching position, and (2) a part-time teaching position in a regional occupational center. When the school district sent the teacher a notice that he was not being reelected to either position, he filed a petition for a writ of mandate. The trial court, finding that the teacher had attained permanent status by virtue of his several years of service, ordered the school district to reinstate the teacher.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment as to the regular teaching position, but it reversed as to the position at the regional occupational center. The court of appeal observed that a teacher generally attains permanent status after two years of continuous employment as a probationary teacher in a position requiring certification upon his or her reelection to the district for the third consecutive year (Gov. Code § 44929.21(b)). This general rule is subject to several limitations. For example, Educ. Code § 44910 provides that service as an instructor in classes conducted at a regional occupational center or program (see Educ. Code § 52301) is not to be included in computing the service required as a prerequisite to attainment of permanent status. Section 44910 does not apply, however, to any regularly credentialed teacher who has been employed to teach in the regular educational programs of a school district "and [is] subsequently assigned as an instructor in regional occupational centers or programs" (Educ. Code § 44910) (126 Cal. App. 4th 809, 816-818) .

The question presented by this case was whether the Legislature intended that a teacher such as the plaintiff, who retains his or her part-time regular teaching position but is assigned an additional part-time teaching position at a regional occupational center, falls within this exception to Section 44910. The court of appeal held that the Legislature did not intend that result. The court found it significant that the plaintiff was a regularly credentialed teacher who was employed to teach in the regular educational programs of the school district, and who continued to teach in that position when he took the additional assignment at the regional occupational center. Thus there was no change to his regular position when he accepted the additional assignment (126 Cal. App. 4th 809, 818-820) .

Finding that the pivotal language in the exception to Section 44910, "subsequently assigned," is ambiguous, the court of appeal turned to the legislative history for help in construing that language. The court found that the legislative history of Section 44910 shows that it was designed to allow school districts more flexibility in operating their regional occupational programs (ROPs). The Legislature was concerned that, because ROPs involve education and training in career technical courses (see Educ. Code § 52301(a)), an ROP teacher may have only specialized training. The concern was that if a particular program was dropped, but the teacher in that program had acquired permanent status, the teacher could be virtually untransferable to another teaching assignment within the district (126 Cal. App. 4th 809, 820-821) .

Therefore, Section 44910 was designed to prevent these specialized, virtually untransferable ROP teachers from becoming permanent employees. At the same time, however, the Legislature sought to shield from the effects of the statute regularly credentialed teachers who had been employed in regular educational programs and then assigned as ROP instructors. Thus, under Section 44910, a probationary teacher in the regular education program of a school district who was accruing credit toward permanent status, but who was then assigned to teach in an ROP, could keep counting his or her service toward the attainment of permanent status even while teaching ROP (126 Cal. App. 4th 809, 821) .

In light of the concerns reflected in the legislative history, the court of appeal concluded that Section 44910's "subsequently assigned" language refers to a teacher who is in a regular teaching position and then is reassigned from that position to a ROP position. Accordingly, because the plaintiff's ROP service was a second, concurrent assignment in addition to his regular teaching position, he was not the sort of employee the Legislature was seeking to protect when it enacted the exception to Section 44910 (126 Cal. App. 4th 809, 821) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Non-Reelection of Probationary Teachers

In Grimsley v. Board of Trustees (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 235 Cal. Rptr. 85 , two first-year probationary teachers filed a petition for writ of mandate which alleged that they were unlawfully terminated from their positions. Both teachers were hired by Murdoc Joint Unified School District for the 1983-1984 school year. Although both received satisfactory performance evaluations, the district declined to rehire them for the following school year. Both teachers requested that the district provide them with a statement of reasons for their non-reelection and a hearing to determine if there was cause for the district's decision not to rehire them. The district denied their requests (189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1444-1445) .

The court ruled that pursuant to Educ. Code § 44882(b), the district was permitted to dismiss first year probationary teachers without cause, without notice, or any rights to an administrative hearing or appeal (189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1447-1448) . Furthermore, the court held that probationary teachers did not have a property interest in their jobs and thus their due process rights were not violated by their non-reelection without procedural redress (189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1449-1451) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.23

§ 211.23 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee--Teacher as Not Attaining Permanent Status in Supervisory or Administrative Position

[1] FORM

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,	)	AND AUTHORITIES IN COUNTY OF _____	)	OPPOSITION
_____ [name],	)	TO PETITION FOR WRIT
Petitioner,	)	OF MANDATE
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Respondent.	)	Location: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]
	)

_____

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT BE ISSUED TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD TO RECOGNIZE THAT PETITIONER HAS ATTAINED PERMANENT STATUS IN HIS/HER POSITION BECAUSE ADMINISTRATIVE AND SUPERVISORY PERSONNEL DO NOT ATTAIN PERMANENT STATUS IN THEIR ADMINISTRATIVE OR SUPERVISORY POSITIONS.

A. Scope of Tenure Generally. Tenure (i.e., permanent status) entitles an employee only to permanent employment within the scope of the certificate under which tenure was acquired (Adelt v. Richmond Sch. Dist. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152, 58 Cal. Rptr. 151).

B. Reassignment of Permanent Employees. Subject to a requirement of reasonableness, school districts may reassign permanent employees to any position which is within the scope of the certificate under which permanent status was acquired or in which the work is of a rank and grade equivalent to that by which permanent status was acquired (Thompson v. Modesto City High School Dist. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 620, 623, 139 Cal. Rptr. 603, 566 P.2d 237 ; Adelt v. Richmond Sch. Dist. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152, 58 Cal. Rptr. 151).

C. Administrative and Supervisory Personnel as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teachers Only. School district employees holding administrative or supervisory positions requiring certification qualifications do not acquire tenure in their status as supervisors or administrators. On completion of the probationary period, such employees attain permanent status as classroom teachers only (Educ. Code § 44897(a); Council of Directors & Supervisors v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 147, 152, 110 Cal. Rptr. 624 ; Hentschke v. Sink (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 19, 22, 109 Cal. Rptr. 549).

[Optional] D. Teacher Promoted to Supervisory or Administrative Position as Retaining Permanent Status as Teacher. A permanent employee when advanced from a teaching position to an administrative or supervisory position, or assigned any special or other type of work, or given special classification or designation requiring certification qualifications, retains his or her permanent classification as a classroom teacher (Educ. Code § 44893).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to recognize an employee's permanent status in an administrative or supervisory position. The ground of opposition is that certificated employees may not acquire permanent status as supervisors or administrators.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Use

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may also be submitted in opposition to a petition for writ of mandate brought by a permanent employee to challenge his or her assignment from an administrative or supervisory position to a classroom teaching position.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition in this set.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Scope of Tenure Generally

In Adelt v. Richmond Sch. Dist. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 58 Cal. Rptr. 151 , appellant was employed as a fourth grade teacher at a particular elementary school in respondent school district. After returning from a sabbatical leave of absence, appellant was informed that she had been transferred to a different elementary school to teach fifth and sixth grades. After attempting unsuccessfully to have respondent transfer her back to her old school, appellant resigned under protest. Thereafter, appellant filed a petition for writ of mandate to compel the district to reinstate her as a permanent fourth grade teacher at her old school. After a hearing, the trial court denied her petition.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, rejecting appellant's contention that she was entitled to be reinstated in the specific position she held prior to taking her sabbatical leave. The court noted that a tenured teacher has a vested right to permanent employment, subject to those provisions of the Education Code regulating its termination; however, the permanent employment protected is merely employment within the scope of the certificate under which tenure was acquired. Thus, the court held that a school district is entitled to assign teachers anywhere within their certificate, according to the needs of the district. The court observed that tenure does not bestow on the school teacher a vested right to a specific school or to a specific class level of students within any school, and thus, if appellant had not taken a sabbatical leave, she could not have contended that her transfer to a different school was improper (250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152) . The court then held that her right to be reinstated following a leave of absence did not require the school district to assign her to the same specific position she held prior to the leave, as long as the new position was within the scope of the certificate under which she was employed at the time the leave of absence began (250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152-153) . The court also held that the transfer was not unreasonable and that the district was not estopped from transferring appellant (250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 153-156) .

[b] Reassignment of Permanent Employees

In Thompson v. Modesto City High School Dist. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 620, 139 Cal. Rptr. 603, 566 P.2d 237 , petitioner was a certificated permanentemployee of defendant school district, holding both a teaching credential and a counseling credential. Petitioner commenced employment with the district as a high school teacher but was later assigned to a counseling position which he held at the time he attained permanent status. Thereafter, petitioner was informed that he was being reassigned as a classroom teacher, which involved a reduction in salary. He sought a hearing to contest the reassignment, but was informed that he was not entitled to a hearing because none was required in the case of reassignment as opposed to termination. Petitioner accepted the reassignment under protest and filed a petition for writ of mandate to compel the district to reinstate him as a counselor. The trial court denied the writ and plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The Court noted the well-established rule that school districts in the normal course of administration have broad powers to reassign their permanent employees to different positions, including positions involving a reduction in pay and prestige, subject to only two requirements: (1) reasonableness and (2) that the reassigned position be within the scope of the certificate under which tenure was acquired, or the work assigned is of a rank and grade equivalent to that by which the permanent status was acquired (19 Cal. 3d 620, 623) . The Court stated that in order to determine the propriety of the reassignment, it is thus necessary to ascertain the certificate under which tenure was acquired or the rank and grade at which permanent status was acquired (19 Cal. 3d 620, 624) . The Court then held that petitioner had acquired tenure as a classroom teacher only and that he could therefore be reassigned from a position as a counselor to one as a classroom teacher subject only to the requirement of reasonableness (19 Cal. 3d 620, 626) . The Court also held that the hearing procedures applicable to dismissals and termination of services were not applicable to such a reassignment (19 Cal. 3d 620, 626-628) .

Adelt v. Richmond Sch. Dist. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 58 Cal. Rptr. 151 , is discussed in § 211.23[3][a].

[c] Administrative and Supervisory Personnel as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teachers Only

Educ. Code § 44897(a) provides that a person employed in an administrative or supervisory position requiring certification qualifications, on completing a probationary period, including any time served as a classroom teacher in the same district, must be classified as and become a permanent employee as a classroom teacher, in a district having an average daily attendance of 250 or more pupils. Permanent classification is discretionary in a district having an average daily attendance of less than 250 pupils.

In Council of Directors & Supervisors v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 147, 110 Cal. Rptr. 624 , defendant school district ordered mass demotions of certain supervisorial and administrative personnel because of budgetary and organizational reasons. Plaintiff, on behalf of these employees, brought an action for declaratory relief, alleging that the mass demotions were illegal. The trial court entered judgment denying declaratory relief. On appeal, plaintiff contended that the mass demotions were illegal because, inter alia, the district had failed to comply with the notice and hearing provisions of former Educ. Code §§ 13447, 13448 (now Educ. Code §§ 44949, 44955, 44956) applicable to reduction in number of permanent employees due to decline in pupil attendance or reduction of services. The court of appeal rejected this contention and affirmed the judgment. In holding those provisions inapplicable to the demotion of supervisorial employees, the court noted that supervisors and administrators are not permanent employees as such, but are permanent employees only as classroom teachers (35 Cal. App. 3d 147, 152) .

In Hentschke v. Sink (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 19, 109 Cal. Rptr. 549 , petitioner, who held both teaching and administrative credentials, was reassigned from his position as dean of students at a high school to a classroom teaching position. Petitioner requested and was granted a hearing and a statement of reasons for the reassignment, but the governing board of the district confirmed the action. Petitioner then brought an action seeking a writ of mandate to compel his reassignment to his administrative position and declaratory relief as to his rights, duties, and status. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend and dismissed the action. The court of appeal affirmed. It held that, as opposed to a classroom teacher, an administrator attains no tenure in his or her status as such, but serves at the pleasure of the appointing power. Nothing in the Education Code statutes, the court observed, limits the authority of the appointing power to remove an administrator for any reason satisfactory to it, and nothing in the statutes entitles an administrator so removed to any hearing, other than the requirement that, on request, he be furnished with a statement of the reasons for his reassignment to a different status (34 Cal. App. 3d 19, 22) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Administrative and Supervisory Personnel as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teachers Only

The facts and procedural background of Jefferson v. Compton Unified School Dist. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 32, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 , are discussed in § 211.26[3][a]. In holding that a school district's failure to comply with the advance notice requirement of Educ. Code § 44951 did not prevent thedistrict from reassigning a school principal to a classroom teaching position for cause, the court of appeal observed that school administrators do not have tenure in their positions and may be reassigned for any reason (14 Cal. App. 4th 32, 38) .

In Neumarkel v. Allard (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 457, 209 Cal. Rptr. 616 , a school psychologist and several school nurses terminated by the county superintendent of schools appealed from a judgment denying their petition for a writ of mandate. Petitioners sought to compel the superintendent to reinstate them on the grounds that they had not been accorded the termination procedures set forth in Educ. Code §§ 44949 and 44955. On appeal, the court affirmed the denial of the writ. The court held that certificated persons employed by the county superintendent of schools are entitled to the termination rights set forth in Educ. Code §§ 44949 and 44955 only if they are employed in teaching positions within the meaning of Educ. Code § 1296, since only under these circumstances would they be considered probationary or permanent certificated employees (163 Cal. App. 3d 457, 462-466) .

In LaBelle v. San Francisco Unified School Dist. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 292, 189 Cal. Rptr. 530 , plaintiff was reassigned to a classroom teaching position after four years as the principal of an elementary school. She brought an action challenging the reassignment, arguing that a provision of the San Francisco city charter made her appointment as principal permanent after three years. The trial court entered judgment for the district. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that Educ. Code §§ 44850.1, 44895, and 44894(b) grant tenure only to a position as a classroom teacher and not to administrative or supervisory positions, and any charter provision that purports to grant a broader tenure is preempted by those statutes (140 Cal. App. 3d 292, 299-300) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.24

§ 211.24 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee--Teacher Holding Multiple Credentials as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teacher Only

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT BE ISSUED TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD TO RECOGNIZE THAT PETITIONER HAS ATTAINED PERMANENT STATUS IN HIS/HER POSITION AS _____ [specify, e.g., A COUNSELOR] BECAUSE AN EMPLOYEE WHO HOLDS BOTH A TEACHING CREDENTIAL AND A CREDENTIAL AUTHORIZING HIM/HER TO RENDER OTHER SERVICES ATTAINS PERMANENT STATUS AS A CLASSROOM TEACHER ONLY.

A. Scope of Tenure Generally. [See § 211.23, Paragraph A.]

B. Reassignment of Permanent Employees. [See § 211.23, Paragraph B.]

C. Teacher Holding Multiple Credentials as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teacher Only. An employee who holds both a teaching credential and a credential authorizing him or her to render other services acquires permanent status as a classroom teacher only, regardless of the amount of time served in the nonteaching position and irrespective of which position was held at the completion of the probationary period (Educ. Code § 44894(b); Thompson v. Modesto City High Sch. Dist. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 620, 626, 139 Cal. Rptr. 603, 566 P.2d 237 ; Netwig v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 529, 532, 125 Cal. Rptr. 170).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to recognize an employee's permanent status, where an employee holding both a teaching credential and a credential authorizing him or her to render other services claims permanent status in a nonteaching position. The ground of opposition is that such an employee attains permanent status as a classroom teacher only [Educ. Code § 44894(b)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Use

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may also be submitted in opposition to a petition for writ of mandate brought bya permanent employee to challenge his or her reassignment from a nonteaching position (e.g., counselor) to a classroom teaching position.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition in this set.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Teacher Holding Multiple Credentials as Attaining Permanent Status as Classroom Teacher Only

The procedural and factual background of Thompson v. Modesto City High Sch. Dist. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 620, 139 Cal. Rptr. 603, 566 P.2d 237 , is discussed in § 211.23[3][b]. In that case, the Supreme Court held that under Educ. Code § 44894, employees holding both teaching and counseling certificates acquire permanent status as classroom teachers only and not as counselors, regardless of which position was held by the employee at the completion of the probationary period. Therefore, the court concluded, petitioner acquired tenure as a classroom teacher only and could be reassigned from a counseling position to a teaching position subject only to the requirement of reasonableness (19 Cal. 3d 620, 626) .

In Netwig v. Huntington Beach Union High Sch. Dist. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 529, 125 Cal. Rptr. 170 , petitioner, who held both teaching and counseling credentials, had served as a teacher with the district for three years and having been appointed for a fourth year, became a permanent (i.e., tenured) employee of the district. Petitioner was later reassigned to the position of counselor, in which he served until the district served him with a notice of intention to dismiss him. Petitioner's employment with the district was suspended pending outcome of the dismissal proceedings. The trial court upheld the dismissal but this judgment was reversed on appeal and petitioner was ordered reinstated, whereupon the district notified him that he would be assigned to a teaching position. Petitioner then filed a mandate proceeding to compel the district to reassign him to the position of counselor. The trial court denied the petition, and petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court noted that although petitioner had tenure, tenure only provides security of employment within the scope of the certificates under which tenure was acquired. The court held that a credentialed teacher who serves his entire probationary period as a teacher and who later is assigned to a counseling position continues to hold tenure only as a teacher regardless of the length of time served as counselor. Thus, the court concluded, petitioner acquired tenure as a teacher and could not challenge his reassignment to that position on the basis of the tenure laws (52 Cal. App. 3d 529, 532) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.25

§ 211.25 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Recognition of Permanent Status of School District Employee--Tenure as Not Bestowing Right to Teach at Particular School or Grade Level

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT BE ISSUED TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD TO RECOGNIZE THAT PETITIONER HAS ATTAINED PERMANENT STATUS IN HIS/HER POSITION BECAUSE PERMANENT STATUS DOES NOT ENTITLE A TEACHER TO TEACH AT A PARTICULAR SCHOOL OR GRADE LEVEL.

A. Scope of Tenure Generally. [See § 211.23, Paragraph A.]

B. Reassignment of Permanent Employees. [See § 211.23, Paragraph B.]

C. Tenure as Not Bestowing Vested Right to Teach at Specific School or Grade Level. Tenure does not bestow on the school teacher a vested right to teach at a specific school or to teach a specific grade level of students within any school (Malynn v. Morgan Hill Unified School Dist. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 785, 788, 187 Cal. Rptr. 303).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to recognize an employee's permanent status, when the employee claims permanent status in a position at a particular school or teaching a particular grade level. The ground of opposition is that permanent status does not bestow on the teacher a vested right to teach at a particular school or grade level.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Use

With appropriate modifications, these points and authorities may also be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate by a teacher to contest his or her reassignment to a different school or grade level.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Tenure as Not Bestowing Vested Right to Teach at Specific School or Grade Level

Malynn v. Morgan Hill Unified School Dist. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 785, 187 Cal. Rptr. 303 , involved reassignment of a certificated teacher from a high school to a middle school. A teacher, who was certificated to teach grades nine through 12 and held a special credential for teaching those grades in driver training and driver education, was employed by a high school district, which was later incorporated into the respondent unified school district, to teach exclusively in the district's high school in grades nine through 12. Petitioner received tenure while employed in this position. Following a reorganization of the respondent school district, petitioner was transferred to teach at the district's middle school. This transfer was within the scope of petitioner's teaching certificate. After unsuccessfully contesting the reassignment, petitioner filed a petition for writ of mandate with the superior court to compel the district to reinstate him to the high school. The trial court denied the writ, and petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the trial court's determination. The court stated that it has been well settled at least since 1932 that tenure does not infringe on the general power of assignment. The court cited Adelt v. Richmond Sch. Dist. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152, 58 Cal. Rptr. 151 (discussed in Additional Authorities, Tenure as Not Bestowing Vested Right to Teach at Specific School or Grade Level, infra), for the rule that tenure does not bestow on the school teacher a vested right to a specific school or to a specific class level within any specific school (137 Cal. App. 3d 785, 788) . The court also restated from Thompson v. Modesto City High Sch. Dist. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 620, 623-624, 139 Cal. Rptr. 603, 566 P.2d 237 (discussed in § 211.23[3][b]), the rule that the power of a school district to reassign a teacher is subject to only the following two requirements: (1) reasonableness, and (2) that the reassigned position be within the scope of the certificate under which tenure was acquired or the work assigned is of a rank and grade equivalent to that by which permanent status was acquired. The court held that the second requirement set out by Thompson is meant to be applied disjunctively. Thus, the court concluded that since the position to which petitioner had been reassigned was within the scope of petitioner's certificate, the reassignment was proper, despite the fact that the new position was of a different rank and grade than that in which petitioner had obtained tenure (137 Cal. App. 3d 785, 789) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Tenure as Not Bestowing Vested Right to Teach at Specific School or Grade Level

Adelt v. Richmond Sch. Dist. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 58 Cal. Rptr. 151 , is discussed in § 211.23[3][a]. In rejecting the teacher's contention that she had a right to be reinstated in the same specific position she held prior to taking her sabbatical leave, the court observed that tenure does not bestow on a school teacher a vested right to teach at a specific school or to teach a specific class level of students within a school (250 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.26

§ 211.26 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1107] to Compel Reinstatement of Certificated Employee to Administrative or Supervisory Position--Advance Notice Requirement of Educ. Code § 44951 Is Not Applicable

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT BE ISSUED TO COMPEL RESPONDENT TO REINSTATE PETITIONER TO HIS/HER FORMER POSITION OF _____ [specify former administrative or supervisory position] BECAUSE THE ADVANCE NOTICE REQUIREMENT OF EDUCATION CODE SECTION 44951 DOES NOT APPLY TO THIS CASE IN THAT _____ [THE CASE FALLS WITHIN ONE OF THE STATUTORY EXCEPTIONS SET FORTH IN SECTION 44951 or PETITIONER WAS TRANSFERRED FROM HIS/HER POSITION FOR CAUSE].

[EITHER]

Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Employee With Written Contract That Expires on Date Beyond Current School Year. The provisions of Education Code Section 44951 requiring that a certificated administrative or supervisory employee receive notice by March 15 that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year do not apply to a certificated employee who holds a written contract with an expiration date beyond the current school year (Educ. Code § 44951).

[OR]

Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Employee Holding Position That is Funded for Less Than One School Year. The provisions of Education Code Section 44951 requiring that a certificated administrative or supervisory employee receive notice by March 15 that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year do not apply to a certificated employee holding a position that is funded for less than a school year ( Educ. Code § 44951).

[OR]

Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Certain Employees in Acting Positions. The provisions of Education Code Section 44951 requiring that a certificated administrative or supervisory employee receive notice by March 15 that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year do not apply to a certificated employee assigned to an acting position whose continuing right to hold this position depends on being selected from an eligible list established for the position (Educ. Code § 44951).

[OR]

Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Termination of Employment Under Education Code Section 44955. The provisions of Education Code Section 44951 requiring that a certificated administrative or supervisory employee receive notice by March 15 that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year do not apply to the termination of employment under Education Code Section 44955 (termination of employment due to decline in average daily attendance, reduction or elimination of services, or modification of curriculum) (Educ. Code § 44951).

[OR]

Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Reassignment of Administrator or Supervisor for Cause. The provisions of Education Code Section 44951 requiring that a certificated administrative or supervisory employee receive notice by March 15 that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year do not apply when a school district reassigns a supervisor or administrator for misconduct or other cause (Jefferson v. Compton Unified School Dist. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 32, 39, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474).

[OR]

Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Transfer of Administrator or Supervisor to Another Position With Same Administrative Classification. The provisions of Educ. Code Section 44951 requiring that a certificated administrative or supervisory employee receive notice by March 15 that he or she may be released from his or her position for the following year do not apply when a school district transfers or reassigns an administrator with the same administrative classification, as opposed to a demotion or reassignment to another position in a different classification (Gilliam v. Moreno Valley Unified School District (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 518, 520-521, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to reinstate a certificated employee to an administrative or supervisory position, when the district has allegedly failed to provide the advance notice required by Educ. Code § 44951 prior to terminating his or her employment or reassigning him or her to a non-administrative or non-supervisory position. The ground of opposition is that the advance notice requirement does not apply to the case because it falls within one of the four statutory exceptions set forth in Educ. Code § 44951 or because the employee was reassigned for misconduct or other cause.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for writ of mandate supported by the points and authorities set out in § 211.21.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition , in this set.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Reassignment of Administrator or Supervisor for Cause

In Jefferson v. Compton Unified School Dist. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 32, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 , the petitioner, a school principal, was suspended from his duties on May 26, 1988. On June 16, 1988, the superintendent of the district notified petitioner by letter that he had decided to recommend to the school district's governing board that petitioner be reassigned to a classroom teaching position. The letter was accompanied by a statement charging petitioner with various acts of misconduct and incompetence in his position as principal. On June 28, 1988, the governing board adopted the superintendent's recommendation and demoted petitioner to the position of classroom teacher. Petitioner was informed of the board's decision by letter on June 30, 1988. Petitioner then filed a petition for writ of mandate directing the school board to reinstate him as principal on the ground, among others, that the school district's failure to notify him of the reassignment before March 1, 1988, violated Educ. Code § 44951, which at that time required that school districts notify principals by March 1 if they are being released from their position for the following year. The trial court denied the writ, finding that the district had failed to comply with the March 1 notice requirement, but that the failure to comply with the notice requirement did not prevent the district from reassigning the petitioner for cause. Petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed the denial of the writ. The court noted that the statutory purpose of Educ. Code § 44951 is to provide the certificated employee a measure of security in terms of year-to-year employment by affording the employee time to seek other employment as an administrator and that the notice requirement has been termed jurisdictional. Reassignment under this section does not require a finding of cause, may be based on no more than a personality conflict, and does not entitle the administrator to a hearing (14 Cal. App. 4th 32, 38) . The court observed, however, that notwithstanding this statutory provision, school administrators do not have tenure in their positions and may be reassigned for any reason (14 Cal. App. 4th 32, 38) . The court reasoned that although the goal of Educ. Code § 44951 (providing reassigned administrators time to find other employment for the following school year) is a laudable one, it is less significant that the school district's right to reassign an administrator for misconduct or other cause. The court stated that if Educ. Code § 44951 were interpreted to apply to reassignment for cause, it would, in effect, preclude a school district from reassigning an administrator after March 1, regardless of the conduct that necessitated the reassignment. The court concluded that such an interpretation would lead to an absurd result. The court therefore held that because petitioner's reassignment was for cause, compliance with Educ. Code § 44951 was unnecessary (14 Cal. App. 4th 32, 39) .

NOTE:

In 1993, the Legislature amended Educ. Code § 44951 to eliminate the March 1 notice requirement for principals [see Stats. 1993, ch. 261]. However, the statute still contains the general requirement that supervisors and administrators be notified by March 15 that they will be released from their position for the following school year, and the court's reasoning in Jefferson appears equally applicable to the March 15 notification requirement.

[b] Advance Notice Requirement Does Not Apply to Transfer of Administrator or Supervisor to Another Position With Same Administrative Classification

In Gilliam v. Moreno Valley Unified School District (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 518, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695 , the plaintiff was hired as a principal in the Moreno Valley Unified School District. He was a probationary employee and was notified that he would not be reelected by the district on March 11. In a separate letter dated March 16 he was notified that he was being transferred from principal of Canyon Springs High School to a position of "Principal on Assignment." The plaintiff went out on disability and never reported to the new assignment. Plaintiff petitioned for a writ of mandate, claiming that he had not received timely notice of his non-reelection or of his transferred assignment, pursuant to Educ. Code § 44951. The trial court found notice of plaintiff's non-reelection was timely and Section 44951 did not apply to his transfer. The appellate court affirmed, holding that plaintiff was not entitled to notice of his transfer, under Section 44951, because he was neither demoted nor reassigned to another administrative position in a different classification. Rather, plaintiff was merely transferred from one position as principal to another, similar position (principal on assignment) within the same administrative classification (48 Cal. App. 4th 518, 520-521) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.27

§ 211.27 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Discharge Procedure Not Followed

[1] FORM

	)
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,	)	NO._____
COUNTY OF_____	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
_____ [name],	)	IES IN SUPPORT OF PETITION FOR WRIT OF Petitioner,	)	MANDATE
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Respondent[,	)	Location: _____
_____ (name),	)	Date Action Filed: _____
Real Party in Interest].	)	[Trial Date: _____]
	)

_____

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE ORDERED PETITIONER'S DISMISSAL WITHOUT COMPLYING WITH THE REQUIRED PROCEDURES.

A. Decisions Reviewable in Mandate Proceeding. A final administrative order or decision is reviewable in a mandate proceeding if it was the result of an administrative proceeding in which a hearing was required by law for the purpose of taking evidence on the basis of which the agency had discretion to determine relevant facts (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)).

B. Mandate to Review Dismissal of Permanent Employee. The decision of a Commission on Professional Competence dismissing a permanent employee is reviewable in a mandate proceeding (Educ. Code § 44945; Gov. Code § 11523; Pasadena Unified School Dist. v. Commission on Professional Competence (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 309, 313-314, 142 Cal. Rptr. 439, 572 P.2d 53).

C. Independent Judgment on Evidence. In a mandate proceeding to review the decision of a Commission on Professional Competence to discharge a permanent employee, the reviewing trial court must exercise its independent judgment on the evidence (Educ. Code § 44945).

D. Scope of Inquiry in Mandate Proceeding. The inquiry in a mandate proceeding to review a final administrative adjudicatory order or decision extends to the questions of whether the agency has proceeded without or in excess of jurisdiction, whether there was a fair trial, and whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion. Abuse of discretion is established if the agency did not proceed in the manner required by law, the order or decision is not supported by the findings, or the findings are not supported by the evidence (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)).

E. Strict Compliance With Dismissal Procedure. A permanent employee may not be dismissed by the governing board of a school district unless the board strictly complies with the statutory procedures for dismissal (Mass v. Board of Educ. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 612, 617-618, 39 Cal. Rptr. 739, 394 P.2d 579 ; see Shields v. Poway Unified School Dist. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 955, 958-962, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 ; Matteson v. State Bd. of Educ. (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 991, 997-999, 136 P.2d 120). If the board fails to follow those procedures, the act of dismissal is a nullity (Pennel v. Pond Union School Dist. (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 832, 838-839, 105 Cal. Rptr. 817).

F. Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary. Reinstatement of a permanent employee in his or her former position, with payment of back salary, is the proper procedure following a finding that the teacher was dismissed illegally (See Educ. Code § 44946; Matteson v. State Bd. of Educ. (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 991, 1000, 136 P.2d 120).

G. [Add points and authorities relating to specific statutory procedure or school board regulation which respondent board failed to comply with in dismissing petitioner.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memoranda of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence discharging a permanent employee where the procedure required by law to be followed was not strictly complied with.

To complete this memorandum, counsel should include additional paragraphs discussing the specific statutory procedure or school board regulation with which the respondent board failed to comply in dismissing the petitioner.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see Ch. 512, Schools , Pt. II, in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For other memoranda of points and authorities supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandate to Review Dismissal of Permanent Employee

Educ. Code § 44945 provides that the decision of a Commission on Professional Competence may, on petition of either the governing board or the employee, be reviewed by a court of competent jurisdiction in the same manner as a decision made by a hearing officer under Gov. Code §§ 11500-11528. Gov. Code § 11523 provides that review of an administrative adjudicatory decision rendered under Gov. Code §§ 11500-11528 may be had by filing a petition for a writ of mandate in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, subject to the statutes relating to the particular agency.

Pasadena Unified School Dist. v. Commission on Professional Competence (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 309, 142 Cal. Rptr. 439, 572 P.2d 53 , was an appeal by the school district from a trial court judgment denying the school district's petition for a writ of mandate to set aside the decision of a Commission on Professional Competence which found that the school district had violated its own procedures and improperly dismissed a teacher. On September 10, the teacher had been notified that she was being involuntarily transferred to another school within the district even though district policy required a teacher to be notified no later than May 15 in the absence of an emergency. The teacher refused to obey the transfer order, and the school board dismissed her. The Commission on Professional Competence found that the district had no grounds to dismiss the teacher, and the trial court agreed.

The Supreme Court noted that the decision of a Commission on Professional Competence may be challenged in superior court by means of a petition for a writ of mandate, and it stated that in reviewing the commission's decision, the superior court should exercise its independent judgment on the evidence. The Court then ruled that in such situations, the scope of review on appeal is limited and an appellate court must sustain the superior court's findings if substantial evidence supports them (20 Cal. 3d 309, 313-314) . The Court found substantial support for the finding that no emergency existed and that the district had thus violated its own policy and improperly discharged the teacher (20 Cal. 3d 309, 314-316) .

[b] Strict Compliance With Dismissal Procedure

In reversing, the Supreme Court noted that since plaintiff had tenure, the board could dismiss him only if it complied with the statutory procedures (61 Cal. 2d 612, 617-618) . At the time, the Education Code required that a governing board obtain a judgment that the board had grounds todismiss a permanent employee; otherwise, the employee could not be dismissed. The board had not obtained such a judgment and could not do so because its original action had been dismissed with prejudice. The Court held, therefore, that the board had failed to follow the strict statutory procedures for dismissal of a school teacher which are set forth in the Education Code and that the plaintiff could not properly be dismissed. Accordingly, plaintiff was entitled to reinstatement, plus full salary for the period of his suspension (61 Cal.

2d 612, 618-630) .

In Shields v. Poway Unified School Dist. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 955, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 , a permanent, tenured teacher's credential had been suspended for 10 years due to allegations of sexual misconduct, and the employing school district had notified the teacher of its intention to terminate the teacher's employment. The teacher then made a timely demand for a pretermination hearing under Educ. Code § 44934 et seq ., but the school district refused and terminated the teacher without a hearing. The trial court granted the teacher's petition for a writ of mandate requiring the school district to set aside the termination and conduct a pretermination hearing. The court of appeal affirmed. A permanent, tenured teacher has a property interest in continued employment; that property interest is entitled to constitutional protection through procedural due process. The mere fact that the credential had been suspended did not affect the teacher's status as a permanent employee, because the suspension of the credential was only temporary. Thus, if a statute provides for a pretermination hearing if requested by the teacher, the school district may not terminate the teacher without conducting the hearing, even if the termination is based on the long-term suspension of the employee's teaching credential (63 Cal. App. 4th 955, 958-962) .

Matteson v. State Bd. of Educ. (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 991, 136 P.2d 120 , is an appeal from a trial court judgment in favor of the board of education in a proceeding in mandate. A permanent teacher employed by the San Francisco School Department applied for a renewal of her state teaching credentials, but her application was denied by the State Commission of Credentials on the basis that she had failed to verify at least five months of successful teaching experience secured in the public schools of California. The commission based its decision on the fact that her principal stated in a letter to the commission that her work had been entirely unsatisfactory without specifying any facts supporting his opinion. At no time during her 11 years of employment as a teacher were charges ever brought against her or was she ever subjected to any disciplinary action. When her credentials were not renewed, the city board of education dismissed her, and the teacher filed a petition for a writ of mandate asking that she be restored to her position with payment of back salary. The court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment for the board of education. The court held that the action of the state commission in denying the teacher's application for a renewal of her credential, and the subsequent action of the local board of education in summarily dismissing her as a permanent teacher were in violation of her rights as a teacher under state law (57 Cal. App. 2d 991, 995) . The court stated that a permanent teacher could not be dismissed and deprived of a teaching credential without charges being filed against him or her and without being afforded the right of trial thereon in accordance with the dismissal procedures established by law. Since the commission thus illegally failed to renew the teacher's credentials and the local board illegally dismissed her, the teacher was held by the court to be entitled to be reinstated in her position with full salary from the date of dismissal (57 Cal. App. 2d 991, 996-1000) .

In Pennel v. Pond Union School Dist. (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 832, 105 Cal. Rptr. 817 , plaintiff was fired by defendant school district from her job as a probationary school teacher on the ground that she had abandoned her position by failing to appear for the first day of school. The school board made its decision at a meeting which plaintiff was not notified of and did not attend. Plaintiff thereafter filed a petition for a writ of mandate to compel her reinstatement and payment of back salary. The trial court denied the writ and plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding in part that a school board's unilateral termination of a teacher's contract by reason of the teacher's behavior during the school year is governed by the Education Code provisions setting forth the administrative procedures for the dismissal of teachers, rather than by general contract law (29 Cal. App. 3d 832, 838) . The court noted that former Educ. Code § 13442 (now Educ. Code § 44948; applicable only to probationary employees who are employed in school districts with daily average attendance of less than 250 employees) is intended to give probationary teachers the same procedural rights during the school year as permanent teachers, including the right to written notice of the charges and the board's intention to dismiss at the expiration of 30 days unless the employee demands a hearing, and the right to a hearing in a superior court on timely demand [former Educ. Code §§ 13404, 13412; now see Educ. Code §§ 44934, 44944, 44948.5]. Since the school district failed to follow the statutory procedure for terminating plaintiff's employment during the school year, the court held that the board's act in terminating plaintiff's employment was a nullity (29 Cal. App. 3d 832 , pp. 838-839).

[c] Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary

Educ. Code § 44946 provides that if a teacher has been suspended pending a hearing, he or she must be reinstated within five days after the governing board's decision in his favor, and shall be paid full salary by the governing board for the period of his suspension.

Matteson v. State Bd. of Educ. (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 991, 136 P.2d 120 , is discussed in § 211.27[3][b].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Independent Judgment on Evidence

In Governing Board v. Haar (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 369, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744 , the school district instituted dismissal proceedings against a teacher for immoral conduct based on his alleged sexual harassment of female students. The Commission on Professional Competence (CPC) found that the teacher had not committed immoral conduct and ordered him reinstated with back pay. The school district sought a writ of mandate from the superior court. The superior court granted the writ and reversed the CPC's decision. On appeal, the teacher contended, among other things, that the trial court improperly substituted its judgment for that of the CPC by independently reviewing the evidence, instead of applying the substantial evidence test. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal rejected this contention, holding that both Educ. Code § 44945 and case law require the superior court to exercise its independent judgment on the evidence when reviewing the decision of the CPC (28 Cal. App. 4th 369, 377) .

[b] Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary

The factual and procedural background of Mass v. Board of Educ. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 612, 39 Cal. Rptr. 739, 394 P.2d 579 , is discussed in § 211.27[3][b]. After holding that the defendant board had failed to follow the proper statutory procedure in dismissing plaintiff, and that it could not automatically terminate plaintiff's employment rights by reason of the lapse of his credential during a part of the period of his suspension, the Supreme Court held that plaintiff was entitled to reinstatement, to payment of full salary from the date of suspension, including retirement benefits, and to interest thereon (61 Cal. 2d 612, 630) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.28

§ 211.28 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Immoral or Unprofessional Conduct [Educ. Code § 44932]--Showing of Unfitness to Teach Required

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE ORDERED PETITIONER DISMISSED FOR _____ [IMMORAL or UNPROFESSIONAL] CONDUCT WITHOUT _____ [ANY or A SUFFICIENT] SHOWING THAT PETITIONER IS UNFIT TO TEACH BECAUSE OF SUCH CONDUCT.

A--D. Propriety of Mandate to Review Discharge of Permanent Employee. [See § 211.27, Paragraphs A--D.]

E. Dismissal for Cause Only. No permanent employee may be dismissed except for one or more of the following causes: (1) immoral or unprofessional conduct; (2) commission, or aiding or advocating the commission, of acts of criminal syndicalism, as prohibited by Chapter 188 of the Statutes of 1919, or any amendment thereof; (3) dishonesty; (4) unsatisfactory performance; (5) evident unfitness for service; (6) physical or mental condition unfitting him or her to instruct or associate with children; (7) persistent violation of or refusal to obey the school laws of the state or reasonable regulations prescribed for the government of the public schools by the State Board of Education or by the governing board of the district employing him or her; (8) conviction of a felony or of any crime involving moral turpitude; (9) violation of Education Code Section 51530, or conduct specified by Government Code Section 1028, as added by Chapter 1418 of the Statutes of 1947; (10) knowing membership by the employee in the Communist Party; or (11) alcoholism or other drug abuse that makes the employee unfit to instruct or associate with children (Educ. Code § 44932(a); see Educ. Code § 44933).

F. Unfitness to Teach as Proper Criteria for Discharge on Ground of Immoral or Unprofessional Conduct. A school employee may not be discharged on the ground of immoral or unprofessional conduct unless such conduct indicates his or her unfitnessto teach (Board of Educ. v. Jack M. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 691, 696-697, 139 Cal. Rptr. 700, 566 P.2d 602 ; see Morrison v. State Bd. of Educ. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 227-230, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375).

G. Showing of Significant Danger as Required. An individual can be removed from the teaching profession as unfit to teach only on a showing that his or her retention in the profession poses a significant danger of harm to either students, school employees, or others who might be affected by his or her actions as a teacher (Board of Educ. v. Jack M. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 691, 698, 139 Cal. Rptr. 700, 566 P.2d 602 ; Oakland Unified School Dist. v. Olicker (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1098, 1108, 102 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; see Morrison v. State Bd. of Educ. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 235, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375).

[Optional] H. Commission of Sex Offense as Not Constituting Unfitness to Teach Per Se. Absent a criminal conviction, a finding in a dismissal proceeding that a teacher committed a sex offense does not demonstrate unfitness to teach per se (Board of Educ. v. Jack M. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 691, 700-704, 139 Cal. Rptr. 700, 566 P.2d 602).

[Optional] I. Possession of Marijuana as Not Constituting Immoral Conduct Per Se. A finding of possession of marijuana by a teacher, without more, does not constitute immoral conduct as a matter of law (Von Durjais v. Board of Trustees (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 681, 688, 148 Cal. Rptr. 192).

J. Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary. [See § 211.27, Paragraph F.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence discharging a permanent teacher when the ground for discharge is immoral or unprofessional conduct, but the district failed to show that the alleged conduct demonstrated petitioner's unfitness to teach.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Use of Optional Paragraphs; Contrary Authorities

Optional Paragraph H may be included when petitioner has been discharged solely on the basis of a finding by the commission that he or she committed a sex offense. The Supreme Court has held that commission of a sex offense does not in itself render an individual unfit to teach, and a teacher may introduce relevant and admissible evidence to show that, notwithstanding the commission of the act, he or she is presently fit [Board of Educ. v. Jack M. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 691, 704, 139 Cal. Rptr. 700, 566 P.2d 602 (discussed in § 211.28[3][d])]. Counsel should note, however, that commission of a sex offense may, if accompanied by evidence of its adverse effect on ability to teach, indicate unfitness. A number of reported decisions have upheld the dismissal of a teacher on the grounds of "immoral or unprofessional conduct" or "evident unfitness to teach" based on sexual misconduct [see, e.g., Governing Board v. Haar (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 369, 383-385, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744 (sexual harassment of female students indicated unfitness to teach and justified dismissal); Gardner v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1037-1038, 1040, 210 Cal. Rptr. 795 ; Board of Trustees v. Stubblefield (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 820, 824-827, 94 Cal. Rptr. 318] . It is thus necessary to look at all the facts of a particular case to determine whether commission of a sex offense may constitute grounds for dismissal.

Optional Paragraph I may be inserted when petitioner has been discharged for "immoral or unprofessional conduct" or "evident unfitness to teach" solely on the basis of a finding that he or she was guilty of possession of marijuana. Counsel should exercise caution in using this authority. Whether or not possession of an illegal substance such as marijuana is immoral conduct demonstrating unfitness to teach is a factual issue to be determined in the light of all the surrounding circumstances of a particular case [Von Durjais v. Board of Trustees (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 681, 688, 148 Cal. Rptr. 192 (discussed in § 211.38[3][d])]. Thus, although possession of marijuana may not demonstrate unfitness to teach as a matter of law, a number of courts have upheld the dismissal of a teacher for possession of marijuana on the ground that it showed unfitness under the facts of the particular case [see, e.g., Comings v. State Bd. of Educ. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 94, 105-106, 100 Cal. Rptr. 73 ; Governing Bd. v. Brennan (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 396, 402, 95 Cal. Rptr. 712 ; see also West Valley-Mission Community College Dist. v. Concepcion (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1766, 1775-1778, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 5 (interpreting similarly worded provisions of Educ. Code § 87732, governing dismissal of community college instructors; under facts of case, substantial evidence supported trial court's finding that teacher's participation in cocaine dealing demonstrated unfitness to teach)].

Counsel should note that Educ. Code § 44932(a) has been subsequently amended and now provides that alcoholism or other drug abuse that makes the employee unfit to instruct or associate with children is a separate cause for dismissal of a permanent employee [see Educ. Code § 44932(a)(11)].

Counsel should also note that criminal conviction of certain designated sex and controlled substance offenses is grounds for automatic revocation of teaching credentials [see Educ. Code §§ 44425, 44010, 44011].

[c] Suspension Without Pay as Alternative Discipline

A permanent certificated employee may also be suspended without pay for a specific period of time on the grounds of unprofessional conduct pursuant to the procedures specified in Educ. Code §§ 44933-44937, 44943, and 44944 [Educ. Code § 44932(b)].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools , Pt. II (Matthew Bender).

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For other memoranda of points and authorities supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dismissal for Cause Only

Educ. Code § 44932(a) provides that no permanent employee may be dismissed except for one or more of the causes specified therein. Educ. Code § 44933 provides that a permanent employee may be dismissed on grounds of unprofessional conduct consisting of acts or omissions other than those specified in Educ. Code § 44932, but any such charge must specify instances of behavior deemed to constitute unprofessional conduct.

[b] Unfitness to Teach as Proper Criteria for Discharge on Ground of Immoral or Unprofessional Conduct

In Board of Educ. v. Jack M. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 691, 139 Cal. Rptr. 700, 566 P.2d 602 , defendant school teacher had been arrested for an alleged homosexual solicitation in a public restroom. Although no criminal charges were ever filed against him, plaintiff school board instituted proceedings in superior court to establish its right to discharge him under former Educ. Code § 13412 (see now Educ. Code §§ 44943, 44944) from his tenured teaching position on grounds of immoral or unprofessional conduct. The superior court found that defendant had committed the alleged act, but found, on the basis of conflicting evidence, that his conduct did not demonstrate unfitness to teach. On the basis of these findings, the trial court rendered a judgment in favor of the defendant.

On appeal, the Supreme Court affirmed. The Court first noted that the terms "immoral or unprofessional conduct" are so broad that, standing alone, they could be constitutionally infirm; hence, the proper criteria is fitness to teach (citing Morrison v. State Bd. of Educ. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 227-230, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 , discussed below) (19 Cal. 3d 691, 696-697) . The Court then held that the findings of the trial court supported its ultimate finding that defendant's conduct did not demonstrate an unfitness to teach, and that the record revealed substantial evidence to support these findings (19 Cal. 3d 691, 697-700) .

For a discussion of possible limitations on the use of this case, see § 211.28[2][b].

In Morrison v. State Bd. of Educ. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 , petitioner's teaching credential had been revoked by respondent board on grounds of immoral or unprofessional conduct. Petitioner had engaged in a one week homosexual relationship with another teacher. The record indicated that petitioner had never been accused or convicted of any criminal activity, that he had not engaged in any "abnormal activities" since the incident in question, and that no one had ever complained about or criticized his performance as a teacher. Petitioner sought a writ of mandate to compel the board to set aside its decision and restore his credential. After a hearing, the trial court denied the writ, and petitioner appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed and remanded. The court first held that, in the context of the Education Code provisions for revocation of teaching credentials, the terms "immoral or unprofessional conduct" or "conduct involving moral turpitude" must be interpreted to denote conduct that indicates unfitness to teach. In determining whether the teacher's conduct indicates unfitness to teach, the board may consider such matters as: (1) the likelihood that the conduct may have adversely affected students or fellow teachers, (2) the degree of such adversity anticipated, (3) the proximity or remoteness in time of the conduct, (4) the type of teaching certificateheld by the party involved, (5) the extenuating or aggravating circumstances surrounding the conduct, (6) the praiseworthiness or blameworthiness of the motives resulting in the conduct, (7) the likelihood of the recurrence of the conduct, and (8) the extent to which disciplinary action may inflict an adverse impact or chilling effect upon the constitutional rights of the teacher involved or other teachers (1 Cal. 3d 214, 229) . The Court held that the statute so interpreted could constitutionally be applied to the petitioner (1 Cal. 3d 214, 230-235) . The Court stated, however, that under this statute, an individual can be removed from the teaching profession only upon a showing that his retention in the profession poses a significant danger of harm to either students, school employees, or others who might be affected by his actions as a teacher (1 Cal. 3d 214, 235) . The Court then examined the record and found that it contained no evidence whatsoever that petitioner was unfit to teach (1 Cal. 3d 214, 235-238) .

[c] Showing of Significant Danger as Required

The procedural and factual background of Board of Educ. v. Jack M. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 691, 139 Cal. Rptr. 700, 566 P.2d 602 , is discussed in § 211.28[3][b]. In affirming the trial court's decision in favor of defendant teacher, the Supreme Court noted that the trial court's finding that the defendant did not present a threat to students or fellow teachers was supported by substantial evidence in the record and was in accordance with the Supreme Court's holding in the Morrison case, that an individual can be removed from the teaching profession only upon a showing that his or her retention poses a significant danger of harm to his students or fellow teachers (19 Cal. 3d 691, 698) .

Oakland Unified School Dist. v. Olicker (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1098, 102 Cal. Rptr. 421 , involved an appeal from a judgment for plaintiff school district justifying defendant's dismissal from her job as a school teacher on grounds of evident unfitness for service. Defendant had reproduced and distributed to her students certain materials prepared by them as lesson assignments and which contained vulgar and obscene language. In reversing the trial court, the court of appeal noted that a permanent or probationary school teacher may not be dismissed on the basis that he or she is unfit to teach unless there is a showing that the teacher's retention in the teaching profession poses a significant danger of harm either to students, school employees, or others who might be affected by his or her actions as a teacher (citing Morrison v. State Bd. of Educ. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 235, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 , discussed in § 211.28[3][b]). The court then examined the undisputed facts of the case and held that, under the principles set forth in Morrison there was no support in the record for the trial court's conclusion that defendant's conduct constituted evident unfitness for service (25 Cal. App. 3d 1098, 1109-1111) .

Morrison v. State Bd. of Educ. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 , is discussed in § 211.28[3][b].

[d] Commission of Sex Offense as Not Constituting Unfitness to Teach Per Se

The procedural and factual background of Board of Educ. v. Jack M. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 691, 139 Cal. Rptr. 700, 566 P.2d 602 , is discussed in § 211.28[3][b]. After determining that the trial court's finding that defendant was not unfit to teach was supported by substantial evidence, the Supreme Court considered and rejected plaintiff school board's contention that proof that defendant committed a public sexual offense demonstrates unfitness to teach per se. The Court noted that the Education Code imposes automatic sanctions only upon teachers who are convicted of certain offenses and ruled that the trial court's finding that defendant committed the alleged acts was not the equivalent of a criminal conviction. The Court also noted that in those cases which have upheld sanctions against teachers who allegedly committed sex offenses (but had not been criminally convicted), the trial court had made findings of fact adverse to the teacher, and the appellate court merely affirmed the findings below as supported by substantial evidence without declaring any rule of per se unfitness (19 Cal. 3d 691, 700-703) . Moreover, a rule that commission of such acts renders a person unfit to teach as a matter of law would make meaningless 1976 legislation [see Educ. Code § 44008(b)], which grants certain persons convicted of offenses the right to a fitness hearing. The Court therefore concluded that the trial court's finding that defendant committed the alleged homosexual solicitation did not compel a finding that defendant was unfit per se. To the contrary, the trial court could properly consider all evidence on the issue of fitness (19 Cal. 3d 691, 703-704) .

For a discussion of possible limitations on the use of this case, see § 211.28[2][b].

[e] Possession of Marijuana as Not Constituting Immoral Conduct Per Se

In Von Durjais v. Board of Trustees (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 681, 148 Cal. Rptr. 192 , a criminal complaint had been lodged against plaintiff charging her with possession and cultivation of marijuana, and possession of peyote. This complaint was later dismissed. The board, however, filed a formal statement of charges specifying four grounds for dismissal (dishonesty, immoral conduct, evident unfitness for service, and the three alleged narcotics offenses). On plaintiff's demand, a hearing was conducted before a Commission on Professional Competence. The commission found that plaintiff had possessed marijuana, and that the evidence thus established the ground of evident unfitness for service. The commission also determined that the evidence failed to establish any of the other grounds charged. The commission ordered plaintiff's dismissal and denied her claim for back pay during the period of her suspension. Plaintiff then filed adeclaratory relief action in superior court for determination of her right to back pay under the terms of her employment contract. The trial court treated the complaint as a petition for a writ of mandate and exercised its independent judgment on the evidence. In addition to adopting the commission's findings, the trial court also found that plaintiff had possessed peyote as well as marijuana and that this constituted immoral conduct as a matter of law, which justified plaintiff's suspension without pay as well as her dismissal.

In reversing, the court of appeal held, inter alia, that a finding of possession of marijuana or peyote, without more, does not constitute immoral conduct as a matter of law. The court stated that it is well established that whether the possession of prohibited substances constitutes immoral conduct presents a factual issue to be determined in light of all of the surrounding facts and circumstances. The court then noted that the commission had expressly determined that the evidence failed to establish the charge of immoral conduct and that the trial court's reasoning equating the commission's finding of unlawful possession with immoral conduct per se was unsound (83 Cal. App. 3d 681, 688) .

For a discussion of possible limitations on the use of this case, see the Comments to this form under Use of Optional Paragraphs; Contrary Authorities.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.29

§ 211.29 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Violation of School Rules [Educ. Code § 44932]--Grounds for Dismissal Only Where Conduct Is Persistent

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE ORDERED PETITIONER DISMISSED FOR VIOLATION OF AND REFUSAL TO OBEY SCHOOL _____ [LAWS or REGULATIONS] WITHOUT ANY SHOWING THAT SUCH CONDUCT WAS PERSISTENT.

A--D. Propriety of Mandate to Review Discharge of Permanent Employee. [See § 211.27, Paragraphs A--D.]

E. Dismissal for Cause Only. [See § 211.28, Paragraph E.]

F. Violation of School Rules as Grounds for Dismissal Only Where Conduct Is Persistent. A permanent employee may not be dismissed for violation of or refusal to obey state school laws or school board regulations under Section 44932(a)(7) of the Education Code unless such conduct is persistent (Governing Bd. of the Oakdale Union School Dist. v. Seaman (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 81, 84, 104 Cal. Rptr. 64, 104 Cal. Rptr. 527 ; Fresno City High School Dist. v. De Caristo (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 675, 92 P.2d 668).

[Optional] G. Single Absence Without Leave as Not Constituting Persistent Violation of School Rules. A single violation of school rules forbidding absence without leave does not of itself constitute a persistent violation of school regulations which justifies dismissal of a permanent teacher under Section 44932 (a)(7) of the Education Code, even though the violation may result in an absence of several school days (Governing Bd. of the Oakdale Union School Dist. v. Seaman (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 82-84, 104 Cal. Rptr. 64, 104 Cal. Rptr. 527 ; see Fresno City High School Dist. v. De Caristo (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 675, 92 P.2d 668).

H. Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary. [See § 211.27, Paragraph F].
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate filed in superior court for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence discharging a permanent employee when the ground for discharge is violation of or refusal to obey state school laws or school board regulations and the alleged violations were not shown to be persistent as required by Educ. Code § 44932(a)(7).

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Use of Optional Paragraph; Contrary Authorities

Optional Paragraph G may be inserted when the sole violation of school rules alleged is a single unauthorized absence from school. Two court of appeal decisions have indicated that a single violation of school regulations prohibiting absences without leave does not constitute persistent violation of or refusal to obey school rules justifying dismissal even where the violation results in an absence of several school days [see Governing Bd. of the Oakdale Union School Dist. v. Seaman (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 82-84, 104 Cal. Rptr. 64 ; Fresno City High School Dist. v. De Caristo (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 675, 92 P.2d 668 (both discussed in § 211.29[3][a])]. Counsel should note that repeated absences, however, may constitute a persistent violation of school regulations in some circumstances, especially when accompanied by an attitude of continuing insubordination [see Governing Bd. of the Oakdale Union School Dist. v. Seaman (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 82-83, 104 Cal. Rptr. 64 (distinguishing Board of Educ. v. Mathews (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 265, 308 P.2d 449)]. Moreover, a blatant disregard of school authority may in some instances constitute unprofessional conduct, a separate ground for dismissal under Educ. Code § 44932 [see Governing Bd. of the Oakdale Union School Dist v. Seaman (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 84, 104 Cal. Rptr. 64] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For other memoranda of points and authorities supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Violation of School Rules as Grounds for Dismissal Only Where Conduct Is Persistent

In Governing Bd. of the Oakdale Union School Dist. v. Seaman (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 104 Cal. Rptr. 64 , appellant, a permanent school teacher who taught mentally retarded children, had been invited to attend an international conference on mental health to be held in Paris during September 1969. In order that she might attend, appellant appeared before the respondent board in June 1969 and applied for a leave of absence until October 1. The school year began in September. The board considered her request, but a motion to grant the leave failed to pass for lack of a second. In July, appellant wrote the superintendent of the school district from Japan and once again requested a leave of absence, reiterating the reasons for her request and suggesting a well-qualified substitute teacher. The superintendent failed to bring this letter to the attention of the board, and appellant received no response to this request. Nevertheless, she did not return to school until October 2. The board then served appellant with notice of its intent to dismiss her. Appellant demanded a hearing in the superior court. The trial court found that appellant had willfully and persistently violated, refused, and failed to obey school board regulations and that there were sufficient grounds for her dismissal.

In reversing, the court of appeal noted that since the trial court's decision that appellant could be dismissed was based on former Educ. Code § 13403(g) (now see Educ. Code § 44932(a)(7) (identically worded)), the question was not only whether appellant had violated regulations promulgated by the school district, but also whether the violation was persistent (28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 81) . The court rejected the board's argument, based on Board of Educ. v. Mathews (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 265, 308 P.2d 449 , that each day of appellant's absence was a separate violation of the school board's regulations, and that hence, the violation in this case met the statutory requirement of persistence (28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 81-82) . The court noted that the evidence did not show that appellant was motivated by an attitude of continuous insubordination. There was no evidence that she had ever violated a school law or regulation before. Moreover, she had requested a leave of absence before leaving and had given sound academic reasons for her request, and she could have reasonably assumed that the request had not been emphatically denied. The court stated that to hold appellant guilty of a persistent violation would be to distort the meaning of the term "persistent," no matter what acceptable definition is used, even though the violation resulted in an absence of several school days (28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 82) . The court distinguished the Mathews case on the ground that in that case there was conclusive evidence of unethical conduct and continuing insubordination on the part of the teacher (28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 82-83) . Finally, the court stated in dictum that it did not mean to suggest that a single willful act of disobedience could never be grounds for dismissal of a permanent teacher. Blatant defiance of school authority might in some instances constitute unprofessional conduct, which is a separate ground for dismissal. The court noted, however, that appellant here was not charged with unprofessional conduct, but only with persistent violation of school regulations (28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 84-85) .

Fresno City High School Dist. v. De Caristo (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 92 P.2d 668 , involved a teacher's appeal from a superior court judgment permitting respondent school district to dismiss her. Respondent had served appellant with notice of its intention to dismiss her on a number of grounds, including her violation of school district rules prohibiting absence from school without consent of the district. Appellant had been absent without leave on two school days. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal noted that three paragraphs of the notice of intention to dismiss were insufficient under former School Code § 5.650 (now see Educ. Code § 44932(a)(7)) in that they failed to allege that the violations of school regulations were persistent as required by the statute. The court specifically noted that the third paragraph of the complaint alleged only the two absences without leave and appellant's alleged failure to let a substitute teacher act on one occasion when one had been assigned in appellant's place. As to the latter conduct, the court noted that the rules cited by the school board as allegedly violated by appellant's failure to let the substitute act did not deal with such a situation at all and that therefore the court could disregard this charge. As to the absences without leave, the court held, inter alia, that two absences without leave may not be said to be a persistent course of conduct (33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 675) .

[b] Single Absence Without Leave as Not Constituting Persistent Violation of School Rules

Governing Bd. of the Oakdale Union School Dist. v. Seaman (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 77, 104 Cal. Rptr. 64 , is discussed in § 211.29[3][a].

Fresno City High School Dist. v. De Caristo (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 92 P.2d 668 , is discussed in § 211.29[3][a].

For a discussion of possible limitations on the use of the Seaman and De Caristo cases for the point set out in optional Paragraph G, see § 211.29[2][b].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Violation of School Rules as Grounds for Dismissal Only Where Conduct Is Persistent

In Bourland v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 317, 219 Cal. Rptr. 906 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's granting of a writ of mandate commanding the local school district commission to set aside its dismissal of a teacher, and to reinstate her. The teacher had been dismissed because she had repeatedly refused to include two objectives in a statement of objectives by which her performance for the school year would be evaluated, at the principal's direction. The principal repeated the request on numerous occasions during the next three months, and the teacher repeatedly replied in writing that she refused to supply the two demanded objectives. The board dismissed her pursuant to Educ. Code § 44932(a)(7) for persistent violation of or refusal to obey school laws or regulations. In affirming the trial court's granting of a writ of mandate to reverse the board's dismissal, the court of appeal opined that the board had in effect dismissed the teacher for repeatedly refusing to admit agreement with the principal's assertion that she needed improvement in two areas, and not for any actual inadequate performance in those two areas. The court concluded that the continuing debate between the teacher and principal over their difference of opinion could not reasonably be transformed into a "persistent" violation of rules, and thus the trial court had properly concluded that the evidence did not support the dismissal charges.

In San Dieguito Union High School Dist. v. Commission on Professional Competence (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 278, 185 Cal. Rptr. 203 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's finding that a teacher was guilty of persistent violation of or refusal to obey rules of the school district for failure to prepare adequate and timely lesson plans for substitute teachers. The court noted that evidence at the hearing before the Commission on Professional Competence showed that only two of 16 substitutes complained of lack of lesson plans and that the teacher had offered lengthy explanations about the difficulty of submitting lesson plans when sudden illness prevented notification in advance or preparation of lesson plans. Although the trial court had found this evidence to be a sufficient showing of willfulness constituting a violation or persistent refusal to obey, the court of appeal disagreed, holding that the evidence did not demonstrate willfulness as a matter of law and returned the case to the trial court to make a finding consistent with all the evidence in the case relating to, and warranting the ultimate conclusion of, unfitness to teach (135 Cal. App. 3d 278, 287-288) .

41 of 147 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.30

§ 211.30 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Violation of School Rules [Educ. Code § 44932]--Refusal to Obey Invalid Order as Not Grounds for Dismissal

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE PETITIONER'S DISMISSAL BY THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE WAS PREDICATED ON PETITIONER'S REFUSAL TO OBEY AN ORDER WHICH THE SCHOOL AUTHORITIES WERE NOT ENTITLED TO GIVE AND THEREFORE NOT ENTITLED TO HAVE OBEYED.

A--D. Propriety of Mandate to Review Discharge of Permanent Employee. [See § 211.27, Paragraphs A--D.]

E. Dismissal for Cause Only. [See § 211.28, Paragraph E.]

F. Refusal to Obey Invalid Order as Not Grounds for Dismissal. A teacher's refusal to obey an order which the school authority was not entitled to give and have obeyed is not grounds for dismissal for insubordination (Pasadena Unified School Dist. v. Commission on Professional Competence (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 309, 314 n. 7, 142 Cal. Rptr. 439, 572 P.2d 53).

G. Reinstatement of Teacher and Payment of Back Salary. [See § 211.27, Paragraph F.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence discharging a permanent teacher where the ground for discharge is violation of or refusal to obey state school laws or school board regulations but where such ground is predicated solely on the teacher's refusal to obey an invalid order given by school authorities.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For other memoranda of points and authorities supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Refusal to Obey Invalid Order as Not Grounds for Dismissal

The factual and procedural background of Pasadena Unified School Dist. v. Commission on Professional Competence (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 309, 142 Cal. Rptr. 439, 572 P.2d 53 , is discussed in § 211.27[3][a]. In that case, a school teacher had been discharged for her refusal to obey an involuntary transfer order which had been given on September 10. The school district's own policy required that notice of such transfers be given no later than May 15, absent an emergency. In affirming the trial court's ruling that the teacher had been improperly dismissed, the Supreme Court noted that under Educ. Code § 35035(d), when a school district adopts a policy concerning transfers of teachers, the superintendent has authority to transfer teachers consistent with that policy. If, however, the superintendent acts contrary to district policy, the transfer order is invalid (20 Cal. 3d 309, 314) . The Court then stated that the teacher's refusal to obey an invalid transfer order could not be grounds for her dismissal. In a footnote, the Court supported this statement by citing the rule followed in civil service cases that insubordination can be rightfully predicated only upon a refusal to obey some order which a superior officer is entitled to give and entitled to have obeyed (20 Cal. 3d 309, 314, fn. 7). Thus, the teacher'sdismissal could only be justified if the transfer order was valid. The validity of the transfer order depended in turn on whether the evidence established that there was an emergency which excused the school district's failure to give the teacher notice of the transfer before May 15. The Court held that substantial evidence supported the trial court's finding that no such emergency existed (20 Cal. 3d 309, 314-316) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.31

§ 211.31 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Unprofessional Conduct or Unsatisfactory Performance [Educ. Code § 44932]--School Board as Not Permitted to Dismiss for Unprofessional Conduct or Unsatisfactory Performance Unless Prior Notice and Opportunity to Correct Faults Given [Educ. Code § 44938]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE ORDERED PETITIONER DISMISSED FOR _____ [UNSATISFACTORY PERFORMANCE or UNPROFESSIONAL CONDUCT] BUT THE GOVERNING BOARD OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT FAILED TO GIVE PETITIONER THE PRIOR WRITTEN NOTICE AND OPPORTUNITY TO CORRECT HIS/HER FAULTS REQUIRED BY EDUCATION CODE SECTION 44938.

A--D. Propriety of Mandate to Review Discharge of Permanent Employee. [See § 211.27, Paragraphs A--D.]

E. Strict Compliance With Discharge Procedure. [See § 211.27, Paragraph E.]

F. Dismissal for Cause Only. [See § 211.28, Paragraph E.]

[EITHER]

G. Prior Notice of Charges of Unsatisfactory Performance as Required. The governing board of a school district may not act on any charges of unsatisfactory performance unless, at least 90 calendar days prior to the date of the filing, the board or its authorized representative has given the teacher against whom the charge is filed written notice of the unsatisfactory performance, specifying the nature thereof with such specific instances of behavior and with such particularity as to furnish the teacher with an opportunity to correct his or her faults and overcome the grounds for the charge (Educ. Code § 44938(b)(1)).

[OR]

G. Prior Notice of Charges of Unsatisfactory Performance as Required. The governing board may not act on any charges of unsatisfactory performance during the time period composed of the last one-fourth of the school days it has scheduled for purposes of computing apportionments in any fiscal year, unless the board or its authorized representative has given the teacher against whom the charge is filed written notice of the unsatisfactory performance prior to the beginning of that time period, specifying the nature of the unsatisfactory performance with such specific instances of behavior and with such particularity as to furnish the teacher with an opportunity to correct his or her faults and overcome the grounds for the charge (Educ. Code § 44938(b)(2)).

[OR]

G. Prior Notice of Charges of Unprofessional Conduct as Required. The governing board may not act on any charges of unprofessional conduct unless at least 45 calendar days prior to the date of the filing, the board or its authorized representative has given to the teacher against whom the charge is filed written notice of the unprofessional conduct, specifying the nature of the unprofessional conduct with such specific instances of behavior and with such particularity as to furnish the teacher with an opportunity to correct his or her faults and overcome the grounds for the charge (Educ. Code § 44938(a)).

H. Failure to Give Notice as Fatal to Action by Board to Dismiss Teacher for Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct. A school board's failure to give a permanent teacher the written notice required by Education Code Section 44938 is fatal to any action or proceeding by the school board to dismiss a teacher for unsatisfactory performance or unprofessional conduct (see Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 257-259, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522 ; Fresno City High School Dist. v. De Caristo (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 676, 92 P.2d 668).

[Optional] I. Dismissal as Improper Where Teacher Deprived of Opportunity to Correct Faults by Transfer to Nonteaching Position. A school board is without jurisdiction to dismiss a teacher on grounds of unsatisfactory performance or unprofessional conduct if the teacher is deprived, by reason of his or her transfer to a nonteaching position, of the opportunity of the statutory requisite period of days in which to correct his or her faults following service on him or her of the written notice required by Education Code Section 44938 (see Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 258-259, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522).

J. Reinstatement of Teacher and Payment of Back Salary. [See § 211.27, Paragraph F.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence discharging a permanent teacher when the ground for discharge is unprofessional conduct or unsatisfactory performance, but the school board has failed to give the teacher the prior written notification and opportunity to correct his or her faults required by Educ. Code § 44938.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Use of Optional Paragraph

Optional Paragraph I may be included when the required notice is served but the teacher is deprived of the opportunity of the number of days prescribed by Educ. Code § 44938 to correct his or her faults by reason of his or her transfer to a nonteaching position before the statutory period has expired [see Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 257-258, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522 (discussed in § 211.31[3][a])].

[c] Limitations on Use of Form

Counsel should note that the term "unprofessional conduct" as used in Educ. Code § 44938 means and refers only to the unprofessional conduct particularly specified as cause for dismissal in Educ. Code §§ 44932(a)(1) and 44933, and does not include any other cause for dismissal specified in Educ. Code § 44932. The term "unsatisfactory performance" as used in Educ. Code § 44938 means and refers only to the unsatisfactory performance particularly specified as cause for dismissal in Educ. Code § 44932(a)(4), and does not include any other cause for dismissal specified in Educ. Code § 44932 [Educ. Code § 44938(c)]. Thus, the failure of a school board to comply with the provisions of Educ. Code § 44938 does not preclude the board from seeking dismissal of a teacher on grounds other than unsatisfactory performance or unprofessional conduct (e.g., evident unfitness for service) [see Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 260, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522] .

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools , Pt. II (Matthew Bender).

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For other memoranda of points and authorities supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Give Notice as Fatal to Action by Board to Dismiss Teacher for Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct

In Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522 , respondent was a permanent teacher employed by appellant school district. The district served on respondent a written notice of unsatisfactory service, charging respondent with, among other things, incompetency, and recommending that he be discontinued from service with the district. Attached to the notice was a specification of charges setting forth the specific instances of behavior alleged to constitute incompetency on respondent's part. During the same month, respondent was transferred to a nonteaching position and was not thereafterassigned to classroom teaching. Subsequently, the governing board of appellant district served on respondent written notice of its intention to dismiss him on grounds of incompetency, evident unfitness for service, and persistent violation of or refusal to obey school regulations. Respondent demanded and was granted a hearing before a Commission on Professional Competence. The commission held that the district had complied with former Educ. Code § 13407 (now see Educ. Code § 44938(b)) and then proceeded to hear the substantive charges against respondent. The commission, in its findings of fact, sustained 34 of 47 charges alleged against respondent and concluded that cause existed for dismissing respondent on all three of the grounds alleged by the district. Accordingly, it ordered respondent's dismissal. Respondent thereafter commenced a mandate proceeding to compel the commission to set aside its decision. The superior court found in respondent's favor and issued the writ of mandate prayed for.

On appeal, appellant district contended, inter alia, that it had complied with former Educ. Code § 13407 (now see Educ. Code § 44938(b)(1)). The court of appeal rejected this contention, stating that the purpose of the statute is to give a permanent teacher at least 90 days within which to correct his conduct alleged to constitute incompetency and thus prevent his dismissal on that ground. In the present case, the court noted, appellant district had given respondent notice of his faults within the period prescribed by the statute, but its subsequent removal of respondent from his teaching duties during the same month deprived him of the opportunity to correct his deficiencies alleged to constitute incompetency (84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 257-258) . The court therefore concluded that for this and other reasons, the district had failed to comply with the statute and was without jurisdiction to proceed against respondent on charges of incompetency (84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 259) . The court held, however, that the district's failure to comply with former Educ. Code § 13407 (now see Educ. Code § 44938(b)(1)) did not preclude it from proceeding against respondent on grounds of evident unfitness for service and persistent violation of or refusal to obey school regulations. The court therefore reversed and remanded to the trial court with instructions to review the commission's decision ordering respondent's dismissal on these grounds (84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 260-262) .

Counsel should note, however, that in Blake v. Commission on Professional Competence (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 513 , the court of appeal found only the notice requirement of Educ. Code § 44938(a) to be jurisdictional. The court held that the portion of the statute that pertains to the opportunity to correct behavior is not jurisdictional, but merely an evidentiary consideration. Thus, the teacher's inability to take advantage of the opportunity because of illness or disability did not deprive the Commission on Judicial Competence of jurisdiction to proceed on the charge of unprofessional conduct. However, the failure to provide a teacher with the opportunity to correct his or her deficiencies may constitute a defect in due process (212 Cal. App. 3d 513, 517-518) .

The procedural and factual background of Fresno City High School Dist. v. De Caristo (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 92 P.2d 668 , is discussed in § 211.29[3][a]. In that case, respondent school board had sought to dismiss appellant, a permanent school teacher, on a number of grounds, including incompetency and unprofessional conduct. No notice of the conduct alleged to constitute incompetency and unprofessional conduct had been given to appellant prior to service of the notice of intention to dismiss. The court of appeal noted that the purpose of former School Code § 5.652 (now see Educ. Code § 44938(a), (b) (similarly worded)) was to enable a permanent teacher to remedy faults or defects that might be corrected in 90 days and thus prevent discharge. The court then examined the various faults specified in the notice of intention to dismiss and found that they were serious delinquencies which indicated a quick temper and an uncontrolled tongue. The court stated, however, that while such faults were not to be excused, often they can be corrected. The court held, therefore, that appellant should have been given 90 days' notice of the correctable faults before service of the notice of intention to dismiss, that the faults here charged were correctable, and that the failure to give such 90 days' notice was fatal to the action to dismiss appellant (33 Cal. App. 2d 666, 675-676) .

Counsel should note that in 1983, Educ. Code § 44938 was amended and subdivided into subdivisions (a) and (b). In 1995, Educ. Code §§ 44932 and 44938 were amended to substitute "unsatisfactory performance" for "incompetency" as a ground for dismissal of a permanent certificated employee. As amended, Educ. Code § 44938(a) provides for 45 days' written notice to the employee before the employee is dismissed for unprofessional conduct. Educ. Code § 44938(b) provides that before an employee may be dismissed for unsatisfactory performance, the governing board must either provide 90 days' written notice or, if the dismissal takes place during period comprising the last 1/4 of the school days scheduled for the fiscal year, written notice prior to beginning of that period. The requirement that the notice be served "during the preceding term or half school year" was deleted from the statute in 1983.

NOTE:

In Crowl v. Commission on Professional Competence (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 334, 275 Cal. Rptr. 86 , the court held that Educ. Code § 44938 applies to suspensions as well as to dismissals (225 Cal. App. 3d 334, 342-347) . The court further held that if the evidence establishes that the teacher has remediated the conduct during the 45-day period, the teacher may not be suspended based on prior actsof unprofessional conduct (225 Cal. App. 3d 334, 349-352) . However, the court did not reach the issue of whether the teacher may demonstrate remediation simply by refraining from unprofessional conduct for 45 days, because the district had stipulated that the teacher had remediated his conduct (225 Cal. App. 3d 334, 350) .

[b] Dismissal as Improper Where Teacher Deprived of Opportunity to Correct Faults by Transfer to Nonteaching Position

Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522 , is discussed in § 211.31[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Give Notice as Fatal to Action by Board to Dismiss Teacher for Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct

In Forker v. Board of Trustees (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 13, 206 Cal. Rptr. 303 , defendant school district notified plaintiff, a librarian with permanent employee status of 19 years, that she would not be reemployed because of a proposed reduction in services. Some months later, defendant reestablished the librarian services it had earlier reduced, but notified plaintiff that she would not be rehired because of her incompetence. After defendant denied plaintiff's request for an evidentiary hearing, she petitioned the superior court for a writ of mandate compelling defendant to reinstate her. The court ordered defendant to reinstate plaintiff and to pay her attorney's fees.

The court of appeal affirmed the judgment. A permanent school employee who continues in service may be dismissed only for a cause specifically allowed by statute. In the case of dismissal for incompetence, one of the allowable causes, the employee is entitled to written notice, and has 90 days to correct the faults and thus prevent discharge for incompetence [Educ. Code §§ 44932(d), 44938(b)]. In refusing to rehire her on the ground of incompetence, the board effected plaintiff's dismissal without affording her a hearing, a right possessed by permanent employees who continue in service, and in so doing, the board subjected her to a requirement not imposed on other employees who continued in service (160 Cal. App. 3d 13, 18) . The court rejected defendant's attempt to apply its discretion, which it had with respect to competence in layoff cases, to cases involving dismissal for lack of competence, and found that its denial of plaintiff's request for an evidentiary hearing was a violation of her right to due process of law (160 Cal. App. 3d 13, 20) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.32

§ 211.32 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Conviction of Crime [Educ. Code § 44932]--Conviction of Felony as Not Ground for Dismissal Unless Felony Involves Moral Turpitude

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE ORDERED PETITIONER DISMISSED FOR CONVICTION OF A FELONY WITHOUT A SHOWING THAT THE FELONY WAS ONE WHICH INVOLVED MORAL TURPITUDE.

A--D. Propriety of Mandate to Review Discharge of Permanent Employee. [See § 211.27, Paragraphs A--D.]

E. Dismissal for Cause Only. [See § 211.28, Paragraph E.]

F. Conviction of Felony as Not Grounds for Dismissal Unless Felony Involves Moral Turpitude. A permanent employee may not be dismissed for conviction of a felony under Section 44932(a)(8) of the Education Code unless the felony involves moral turpitude (Board of Trustees v. Judge (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 920, 925-928, 123 Cal. Rptr. 830).

[Optional] G. Offense of Cultivation of Marijuana as Not Involving Moral Turpitude as a Matter of Law. The offense of cultivation of marijuana is not a crime or felony involving moral turpitude as a matter of law (Board of Trustees v. Judge (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 920, 923-925, 123 Cal. Rptr. 830).

H. Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary. [See § 211.27, Paragraph F.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence discharging a permanent employee when the ground for discharge is the employee's conviction of a felony yet there is no showing that the felony involved moral turpitude.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Use of Optional Paragraph; Contrary Authorities

Optional Paragraph G may be inserted if the offense involved is cultivation of marijuana. Counsel should note, however, that although the offense of cultivation of marijuana has been held not to constitute a crime involving moral turpitude as a matter of law, it may constitute an offense involving moral turpitude on the facts of a particular case [see Board of Trustees v. Judge (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 920, 923-924, 123 Cal. Rptr. 830 , and cases cited therein (discussed in § 211.32[3])].

Counsel should also note that conviction of a particular felony, while not involving moral turpitude and therefore not in itself grounds for dismissal under Educ. Code § 44932(a)(8), may nevertheless constitute unprofessional conduct or demonstrate evident unfitness for service, which are separate grounds for dismissal under Educ. Code § 44932 [see, e.g., Comings v. State Bd. of Educ. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 94, 98-100, 105-106, 100 Cal. Rptr. 73] . Furthermore, counsel should note that Educ. Code § 44932 has been subsequently amended and now provides that alcoholism or drug abuse which makes the employee unfit to instruct or associate with children is a separate cause for dismissal of a permanent employee [see Educ. Code § 44932(a)(11)].

[c] Summary Dismissal for Conviction of Certain Crimes

As noted in § 211.32[2][a], this form is for use when the school district relies on a criminal conviction to establish a cause for dismissal under Educ. Code § 44932. Under some circumstances, however, the district's governing board may dismiss a permanent employee based on a criminal conviction without following the usual hearing procedures or establishing cause under Educ. Code § 44932. Educ. Code § 44425 requires the Commission on Teacher Credentialing to suspend a teaching credential "immediately" if the credential holder is convicted of a sex offense as defined in Educ. Code § 44010 or a controlled substance offense as defined in Educ. Code § 44011. The Commission must revoke the credential if the conviction becomes final, but must terminate the suspension if the conviction is reversed and the holder is acquitted of the offense in a new trial or the charges against the holder are dismissed [see Educ. Code § 44425]. Furthermore, Educ. Code § 44836 prohibits a school district from employing or retaining in employment any person who has been convicted of a sex offense as defined in Educ. Code § 44010 or a controlled substance offense as defined in Educ. Code § 44011, but also provides that if the conviction is reversed and the person is acquitted of the offense in a new trial or the charges against the holder are dismissed "this section does not prohibit his or her employment thereafter."

At least one court of appeal has held that Educ. Code § 44836 requires the summary dismissal of an employee who has been convicted of one of the specified sex or narcotics offenses, even though an appeal of the conviction may be pending [see Tuffli v. Governing Board (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1406-1407, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433] . Thus, an employee who has been convicted of one of the specified offenses may be terminated without a hearing or showing of unfitness to teach as ordinarily required for dismissal of a permanent employee [see Tuffli v. Governing Board (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1405, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433] . Generally, if the conviction is subsequently reversed on appeal, the employee must be reinstated to his or her previous position, unless the governing board institutes the hearing procedures under Educ. Code § 44934 et seq. and establishes a cause for dismissal under Educ. Code § 44932 [see Tuffli v. Governing Board (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1398, 1408-1409, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433] . However, if the conviction was for one of the specified sex offenses perpetrated against a minor, and the dismissal of the offense was pursuant to Penal Code § 1203.4 (change of plea after completion of probation), the convicted person may not be employed or reinstated [Educ. Code § 44836(a)(2)].

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form for a petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools (Matthew Bender).

[e] Related Points and Authorities

For other memoranda supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Conviction of Felony as Not Grounds for Dismissal Unless Felony Involves Moral Turpitude

In Board of Trustees v. Judge (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 920, 123 Cal. Rptr. 830 , appellant board sought to dismiss appellant, a permanent teacher, on grounds of conviction of a felony, conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude, and evident unfitness for service. Respondent had found a single marijuana plant in a pot in an open field while on a walk. Out of curiosity, he took it home and placed it in his backyard, believing that it might be marijuana. About one week later, respondent was arrested and charged with cultivation of marijuana in violation of Health & Safety Code § 11358. On respondent's subsequent conviction of this offense, appellant sought his dismissal. After a hearing, the trial court found that the felony conviction and the activity that formed the basis for the conviction did not constitute a crime involving moral turpitude and also that the evidence was insufficient to establish that respondent was unfit to teach by reason of his conduct. On appeal, appellant board contended that respondent's conviction of the crime of cultivation of marijuana involved moral turpitude as a matter of law, and that even if it did not involve moral turpitude, it was a felony, conviction of which was in itself ground for dismissal. In affirming, the court of appeal rejected both of these contentions.

For discussion of certain circumstances under which conviction of a felony may result in summary dismissal without any showing of moral turpitude or unfitness to teach, see § 211.32[2][c].

[b] Offense of Cultivation of Marijuana as Not Involving Moral Turpitude as a Matter of Law

Board of Trustees v. Judge (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 920, 123 Cal. Rptr. 830 , is discussed in § 211.32[3][a]. For a discussion of possible limitations on the use of this case, see § 211.32[2][b] -211.32[2][c].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.33

§ 211.33 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Conviction of Felony or Crime Involving Moral Turpitude [Educ. Code § 44932]--Pre-1976 Possession of Marijuana Conviction as Not Grounds for Dismissal [Health & Safety Code § 11361.7(b)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

THE COURT SHOULD ISSUE A WRIT OF MANDATE BECAUSE THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE ORDERED PETITIONER DISMISSED FOR A CONVICTION FOR POSSESSION OF MARIJUANA THAT OCCURRED PRIOR TO JANUARY 1, 1976.

A--D. Propriety of Mandate to Review Discharge of Permanent Employee. [See § 211.27, Paragraphs A--D.]

E. Dismissal for Cause Only. [See § 211.28, Paragraph E.]

F. Pre-1976 Possession of Marijuana Conviction as Not Grounds for Dismissal. A public school district has no authority to dismiss a permanent teacher because of an arrest for or conviction of possession of marijuana occurring prior to January 1, 1976 (Governing Bd. v. Mann (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 819, 826-828, 135 Cal. Rptr. 526, 558 P.2d 1 ; see Health & Safety Code § 11361.7(b)).

G. Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary. [See § 211.27, Paragraph F.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate for review of a final adjudicatory order or decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence discharging a permanent employee when the ground for discharge is the petitioner's conviction of a felony or crime involving moral turpitude yet such ground is based on a pre-1976 conviction of possession of marijuana.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For other memoranda of points and authorities supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Pre-1976 Possession of Marijuana Conviction as Not Grounds for Dismissal

In Governing Bd. v. Mann (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 819, 135 Cal. Rptr. 526, 558 P.2d 1 , defendant, a tenured teacher employed by plaintiff school district, pled guilty to a charge of possession of marijuana arising out of his use and possession of a small quantity of that substance in his private residence. His conviction occurred in 1971. Shortly thereafter, plaintiff school board notified defendant of its intention to dismiss him, asserting that his conviction constituted cause for dismissal under former Educ. Code § 13403(h) (now see Educ. Code § 44932(a)(8)). Defendant demanded and was granted a hearing in superior court under the pre-1977 dismissal procedure. The trial court concluded that defendant had been convicted of a felony and that moral turpitude was involved and entered judgment authorizing plaintiff to dismiss defendant.

On appeal, the Supreme Court reversed. The Court noted that the Legislature had recently enacted Health & Safety Code § 11361.7(b) which provides, in broad and sweeping language, that no public agency, including a school district, shall impose any sanction on an individual on the basis of a possession of marijuana arrest or conviction, or on the basis of the facts or events leading to such an arrest or conviction, on or after the date the records of such an arrest or conviction are required to be destroyed (by Health & Safety Code § 11361.5), or two years from the date of such conviction, or arrest without conviction, with respect to arrests and convictions occurring prior to January 1, 1976. The Court stated that defendant's 1971 conviction fell squarely within this section's reach (18 Cal. 3d 819, 826-827) . After examining the statute's purpose, the Court held that the enactment of Health & Safety Code § 11361.7 has the effect of repealing the statutory authority granted by former Educ. Code § 13403(h) (now see Educ. Code § 44932(a)(8)) to dismiss a defendant on the basis of arrests or convictions for possession of marijuana encompassed by Health & Safety Code § 11361.7(b). Accordingly, the plaintiff had no statutory authority to dismiss defendant on the basis of his past possession of marijuana conviction (18 Cal. 3d 819, 828) . The Court also held that the statute was intended to be applied retroactively to proceedings pending at the time it was enacted (18 Cal. 3d 819, 829-831) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.34

§ 211.34 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Gov. Code § 11523] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Limitation on Dismissal for Exercise of Constitutional Rights

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

MANDATE IS PROPER BECAUSE THE TRUE REASON FOR THE DECISION BY THE GOVERNING BOARD OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT TO DISMISS PETITIONER AS A PERMANENT EMPLOYEE WAS THE DISSATISFACTION OF SCHOOL OFFICIALS WITH PETITIONER'S EXERCISE OF CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS, THE LIMITATION OF WHICH WAS NOT JUSTIFIED BY A COMPELLING PUBLIC INTEREST.

A--D. Propriety of Mandate to Review Discharge of Permanent Employee. [See § 211.27, Paragraphs A--D.]

E. Independent Assessment of True Reason for Dismissal. In a mandate proceeding to review an administrative decision dismissing a public school teacher, the trial court must make an independent assessment of the evidence on the question of whether the true reason for the dismissal was official dissatisfaction with the teacher's exercise of constitutional rights (Adcock v. Board of Education (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 60, 66, 109 Cal. Rptr. 676, 513 P.2d 900).

F. Dismissal for Exercise of Constitutional Rights. A public school teacher may not be dismissed from employment for the exercise of constitutional rights absent a showing that the restraints imposed on those rights are justified by a compelling public interest (Bekiaris v. Board of Educ. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 575, 585-586, 100 Cal. Rptr. 16, 493 P.2d 480).

[Optional] G. Teacher's Right to Speak. A public school teacher's right to speak is constitutionally protected as long as it does not result in any disruption, or impairment of discipline, or materially interfere with school activities (Adcock v. Board of Educ. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 60, 65, 109 Cal. Rptr. 676, 513 P.2d 900).

[Optional] H. Discipline Improper if Teacher's Views Expressed in Proper Form. In the absence of actual disruption, administrative discipline of a public school teacher is improper if the teacher's views, although unpopular, are expressed in a forum designed for the airing of different views on controversial issues (Adcock v. Board of Educ. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 60, 68, 109 Cal. Rptr. 676, 513 P.2d 900).

[Optional] I. Failure to Receive Evidence of Dismissal for Exercise of Constitutional Rights. The failure to receive, consider, and make findings regarding evidence offered by the public school teacher that he or she is being dismissed in retaliation for the exercise of constitutional rights whose limitation is not justified by a compelling interest constitutes legal error to be corrected by the issuance of an appropriate writ of mandate (Bekiaris v. Board of Educ. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 575, 587-588, 592-593, 100 Cal. Rptr. 16, 493 P.2d 480).

J. Reinstatement of Employee and Payment of Back Salary. [See § 211.27, Paragraph F.]
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to review an adjudicatory decision by a Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent certificated employee, if the petitioner alleges that the true reason for his or her dismissal was official dissatisfaction with petitioner's exercise of constitutional rights whose limitation was not justified by a compelling public interest.

Optional Paragraphs G and H may be included if the constitutional right impaired is that of freedom of expression. Optional Paragraph I may be included if petitioner claims that the official conducting the hearing committed legal error by failing to receive, consider, and make findings regarding evidence of the motive for the dismissal.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. It should be established that (1) the teacher was exercising a constitutionally protected right, such as freedom of expression; (2) that the exercise of the right didnot interfere in any way with the educational program of the school district, or that the right was exercised within the context of an educational activity that encouraged the free exchange of ideas; and (3) that soon after the exercise of the right, the district took the adverse personnel action that was the subject of the hearing. If possible, the absence of any ground for the adverse action prior to the exercise of the protected right should be shown.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities in support of a writ of mandate alleging the improper termination of a probationary teacher for the exercise of constitutional rights, see § 211.41. For other memoranda of points and authorities supporting a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Independent Assessment of True Reason for Dismissal

Adcock v. Board of Educ. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 60, 109 Cal. Rptr. 676, 513 P.2d 900 , is discussed principally under Teacher's Right to Speak, infra. In the case, the California Supreme Court held that in order to retain the ultimate responsibility for insuring that constitutional rights are not abridged in the absence of a sufficient compelling public interest, the trial court must make an independent assessment of the established factual elements to determine whether the true reason for a school board's personnel action was the teacher's exercise of constitutional rights, and, if so, whether the resulting limitation on the exercise of these rights can be justified by any compelling state interest. On appeal from the decision of the trial court, the appellate court must uphold the trial court's determination as to the basis of the administrative action if supported by substantial evidence (10 Cal. 3d 60, 66) .

[b] Dismissal for Exercise of Constitutional Rights

Bekiaris v. Board of Educ. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 575, 100 Cal. Rptr. 16, 493 P.2d 480 , is discussed principally under § 211.34[3][e] and also in § 211.41[3][a]. Although the case involved the dismissal of a probationary teacher, the California Supreme Court set forth the substantive principle applicable to all public employees, i.e., that a public employee may not be dismissed from employment for the exercise of constitutional rights absent a showing that the restraints that the employing body would impose on those rights are justified by a compelling public interest (6 Cal. 3d 575, 585-586) .

[c] Teacher's Right to Speak

In Adcock v. Board of Educ. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 60, 109 Cal. Rptr. 676, 513 P.2d 900 , plaintiff, a permanent teacher, was transferred to another school because of his open criticism of certain school policies and regulations and the effects of this criticism on school staff and parents. On plaintiff's request, a hearing was held. The evidence at the hearing showed that although plaintiff was openly critical of various school policies and advocated their change, he was not abusive, offensive, or overly loud, and had presented most of his criticism at school-sponsored forums designed for the open discussion of views on these issues. The evidence also showed that plaintiff had never actually violated any school rule or policy, nor had he encouraged or permitted any student to do so. Finally the evidence showed that although many parents and staff members had expressed strong disagreement with plaintiff's views, there was no proof that plaintiff had presented controversial issues in a distorted manner in the classroom or that the dissension engendered by his views had consumed a disproportionate amount of the school staff's time.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the hearing officer issued a proposed decision finding that the transfer was discriminatory and a misuse of authority, and ordered plaintiff reinstated at his old school. The board rejected the proposed decision and, after reviewing the record of the hearing, issued its own decision finding that plaintiff's open and persistent criticism of rules and policies undermined the authority of teachers, parents, and the administration; that his attitudes alienated some of his fellow teachers, administrators, and many parents; and that the divisiveness affected faculty morale and community attitudes towards the school. Accordingly, it approved the transfer.

Plaintiff petitioned the superior court for a writ of mandate. The trial court concluded that the purpose and effect of the transfer was to deny plaintiff his First Amendment freedoms, and it therefore issued the writ. The board appealed, and the California Supreme Court affirmed.

The Court first stated the rule that a teacher's right to speak is constitutionally protected as long as it does not result in any disruption, or impairment of discipline, or materially interfere with school activities (10 Cal. 3d 60, 65) . The Court noted that while plaintiff's speech may have caused disharmony, mere disharmony or fear of disruption due to the expression of unpopular views will not justify interference with the free expression of opinion (10 Cal. 3d 60, 68) . The Court then considered the record and held that in the absence of any actual disruption, any kind of administrative discipline for the content of speech is improper if, as here,the unpopular views were uttered in forums designed for the airing of different views on controversial issues, in a polite but forceful manner (10 Cal. 3d 60, 68-69) .

[d] Discipline Improper Where Teacher's Views Expressed in Proper Forum

Adcock v. Board of Educ. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 60, 109 Cal. Rptr. 676, 513 P.2d 900 , is discussed in § 211.34[3][c].

[e] Failure to Receive Evidence of Dismissal for Exercise of Constitutional Rights

In Bekiaris v. Board of Educ. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 575, 100 Cal. Rptr. 16, 493 P.2d 480 , petitioner, a probationary teacher, was notified by respondent board of its intention not to reemploy him for the succeeding school year, stating several reasons therefor. Petitioner demanded and was granted a hearing, which was his right under the then-applicable law [cf. Educ. Code § 44949.21(b); § 211.40 (no longer any right to hearing in school district having average daily attendance of 250 or more)]. At the hearing, he attempted to introduce evidence that the true reason for his dismissal was official dissatisfaction with his political activities outside of school. The hearing officer refused to admit this evidence for substantive purposes, stating that the motives of petitioner's superiors were irrelevant if the evidence otherwise justified the dismissal. After the hearing, however, the hearing officer issued a proposed decision in petitioner's favor, without discussing petitioner's claim that he was dismissed for exercise of his constitutional rights. The board rejected the proposed decision and issued its own decision, based on the record before the hearing officer, in which it found that some of the charges against petitioner were supported by the evidence and that these charges constituted sufficient cause not to reemploy petitioner. Although petitioner appeared before the board and submitted arguments that the real reason for his discharge was official dissatisfaction with his political activities and that his dismissal was improper for that reason, the board failed to make a finding on the issue. Thereafter, petitioner filed a petition for writ of mandate in superior court seeking to have the board's decision set aside. The trial court found that the findings and decision of the board were adequately supported by the record, and it entered judgment denying the writ (6 Cal. 3d 575, 585) .

On appeal, the California Supreme Court reversed. The Court held that if a teacher, at an administrative hearing to consider the dismissal, seeks to present evidence that he was being dismissed not for the reasons stated in the accusation but for the exercise of constitutional rights, that evidence must be received substantively, and findings must be made concerning it. The failure to do so constitutes legal error, which may be corrected by mandate (6 Cal. 3d 575, 587-589) .

The Court then ruled that neither the board nor the trial court had followed these procedures, and accordingly remanded the case to the trial court with instructions to issue a writ of mandate ordering the board to receive all evidence offered to show the real reasons for petitioner's dismissal and to make a finding as to whether the cause of the dismissal was official dissatisfaction with petitioner's exercise of constitutional rights (6 Cal. 3d 575, 593-594) .

NOTE:

Counsel should note that not only is it proper for the employee to present evidence related to a constitutional defense at a dismissal hearing, it is essential. A judgment on a writ of mandate to review the administrative determination operates as res judicata to a subsequent civil action arising from the dismissal because all potential defenses, including constitutional and civil rights defenses, may be raised at the administrative hearing [Takahashi v. Board of Education (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1464, 1484-1485, 249 Cal. Rptr. 578] .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.35

§ 211.35 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] Re Restrictions on Political Speech of School District Employees During Working Hours--[Educ. Code § 7055]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT ISSUE TO OVERTURN SCHOOL BOARD POLICY RESTRICTING POLITICAL ADVOCACY BY SCHOOL DISTRICT EMPLOYEES DURING INSTRUCTION.

A. District's Power to Regulate Employees' Political Activities. Education Code Section 7055 empowers school districts to establish rules and regulations concerning: (a) officers and employees engaging in political activity during working hours, and (b) political activities on school premises (California Teachers Association v. Governing Board of San Diego (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1390-1393, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474).

B. District Has Right to Refuse Sponsorship of Political Speech. A school has the right to refuse to sponsor political speech, even passive speech, in an instructional setting, that might reasonably be perceived to associate the school with any position otherthan neutrality on a political issue in order to disassociate itself from political controversy (California Teachers Association v. Governing Board of San Diego (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1390-1393, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474).

C. District's Regulation of Political Speech Does Not Violate Employees' Constitutional Rights. School employees' free speech rights are not violated by a prohibition on political advocacy during working hours in instructional settings if school employees are permitted to express political views to one another outside the classroom (California Teachers Association v. Governing Board of San Diego (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1390-1393, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate regarding a school district's policy restricting the political speech of employees in instructional settings. The basis of the opposition is that, under Educ. Code § 7055, a school district has authority to refuse to permit any political advocacy, even "passive" speech, that might reasonably be perceived to associate the school with any position other than neutrality on a political issue.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] District's Power to Regulate Employees' Political Activities

In California Teachers Association v. Governing Board of San Diego (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 , the teachers' union sought a writ of mandate to overturn a San Diego school board policy restricting the wearing of political buttons by school district employees. The trial court granted the writ. The court of appeal affirmed, but modified the writ, holding that the district's restriction on political speech by employees in the classroom, pursuant to Educ. Code § 7055, fell within the legitimate power of schools to disassociate themselves from political controversy. This is because of the power teachers have over students in their classes and the potentially coercive aspect of any political advocacy by school employees in an instructional setting. However, because there was little risk of similar undue influence when school employees expressed their political views to one another outside the classroom, the district had no power to similarly restrict teachers' political speech in that arena (45 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1390-1393) .

[b] District Has Right to Refuse Sponsorship of Political Speech

California Teachers Association v. Governing Board of San Diego (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 , is discussed in § 211.35[3][a].

[c] District's Regulation of Political Speech Does Not Violate Employees' Constitutional Rights

California Teachers Association v. Governing Board of San Diego (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1390-1393, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 , is discussed in § 211.35[3][a].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.36

§ 211.36 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945; Gov. Code § 11523]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--Failure to Give Prior Notice and Opportunity to Correct Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct as Not Precluding Dismissal for Other Causes

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____ _____ [name] Petitioner, vs. _____ [name], Respondent[, _____ (name), Real Property in Interest].	)))))))))))	NO._____ MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE

MANDATE IS NOT PROPER BECAUSE THE GOVERNING BOARD'S FAILURE TO GIVE PETITIONER NOTICE OF AND OPPORTUNITY TO CORRECT HIS/HER FAULTS AS REQUIRED BY EDUCATION CODE SECTION 44938 DOES NOT PRECLUDE THE SCHOOL DISTRICT'S COMMISSION ON PROFESSIONAL COMPETENCE FROM DISMISSING PETITIONER FOR GROUNDS OTHER THAN UNPROFESSIONAL CONDUCT OR UNSATISFACTORY PERFORMANCE.

A. Separate Grounds for Dismissal. Although a particular act or omission on the part of an employee may constitute more than one of the causes for removal specified in Education Code Section 44932(a), each of the causes for dismissal specified therein refers to acts or omissions not necessarily included in the other causes (Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 260, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522).

B. Failure to Give Notice of and Opportunity to Correct Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct as Not Precluding Dismissal on Other Grounds. The failure by the governing board to comply with the provisions of Education Code Section 44938, requiring the board to give a permanent employee prior notice of and an opportunity to correct his or her faults before proceeding on any charges of unsatisfactory performance or unprofessional conduct, does not preclude the board from proceeding to dismiss the employee on grounds not involving unsatisfactory performance or unprofessional conduct (see Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 260, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition to the superior court for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence dismissing a permanent employee. The ground of opposition is that the alleged failure by the governing board to give the employee prior notice of unsatisfactory performance or unprofessional conduct and an opportunity to correct his or her faults, as required by Educ. Code § 44938, does not preclude the board from proceeding to dismiss the employee for causes other than unsatisfactory performance or unprofessional conduct.

In an appropriate case, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition supported by points and authorities set out in § 211.31.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should also include argument and points and authorities demonstrating adequate factual and legal support for dismissal of the petitioner on grounds other than unsatisfactory performance or unprofessional conduct.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools , Pt. II (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities supporting a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisons generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Separate Grounds for Dismissal

The factual and procedural background of Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522 , is discussed in § 211.31[3][a]. After holding that the school district's governing board had failed to comply with the provisions of former Educ. Code § 13407 (now see Educ. Code § 44938), the court of appeal held that this failure by the board precluded them only from proceeding against respondent on the charge of incompetency. Former Educ. Code § 13407 (now see Educ. Code § 44938), requiring notice of and opportunity to cure fault, was not applicable to the remaining charges of evident unfitness for service and persistent violation of school laws and regulations, and the board had jurisdiction to proceed on those grounds for removal which did not involve incompetency (84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 260) .

The court also rejected the trial court's conclusion that receipt of evidence of incompetency tainted the entire proceeding against respondent, thereby depriving him of a fair hearing. The court observed that although a particular act or omission on the part of a teacher may constitute more than one of the causes for removal specified in former Educ. Code § 13404 (now see Educ. Code § 44932(a)), each of the causes for removal specified therein nevertheless refers to acts or omissions not necessarily included in the others (84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 260) . The court noted that the Commission on Professional Conduct sustained 14 charges against respondent which were based on grounds other than incompetency, and that none of these acts formed the basis of any charge sustained by the commission which alleged incompetency (84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 261) . The court also noted that at the hearing, evidence on each charge was presented separately, so that evidence on the charges of evident unfitness for service and persistent violation of school rules did not include evidence on any charge based on incompetency (84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 261-262) . The court concluded that under these circumstances, admission of evidence on the charges of incompetency did not deprive respondent of a fair hearing on the remaining charges (84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 262) .

Counsel should note that Educ. Code §§ 44932 and 44938 were amended in 1995 to substitute "unsatisfactory performance" for "incompetency" as a ground for dismissal of a permanent certificated employee. However, the principles set forth in Tarquin would be equally applicable to a dismissal based on unsatisfactory performance.

[b] Failure to Give Notice of and Opportunity to Correct Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional Conduct as Not Precluding Dismissal on Other Grounds

Tarquin v. Commission on Professional Competence (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 251, 148 Cal. Rptr. 522 , is discussed in § 211.36[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Separate Grounds for Dismissal

In Pittsburg Unified School Dist. v. Commission on Professional Competence (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 964, 194 Cal. Rptr. 672 , a permanent certified employee was charged with unprofessional conduct and other separate offenses. At the hearing before the Commission on Professional Competence the unprofessional conduct charge was dropped by the school district. The commission determined that no grounds existed for the teacher's dismissal. The district sought and obtained a writ of mandate commanding the commission to set aside its decision and order the teacher's dismissal. The teacher appealed, contending that all charges should be dismissed for failure of the district to comply with the 90-day notice requirement of former Educ. Code § 44938 (now see Educ. Code § 44938(a), (b)). The court of appeal held that the 90-day notice requirement of former Educ. Code § 44938 (now see Educ. Code § 44938(a), 45-days' notice required before filing charges of unprofessional conduct, and Educ. Code § 44938(b), 90-days' notice required before filing charges of unsatisfactory performance) applied only to the charge of unprofessional conduct and was not applicable here because the charge of unprofessional conduct was dismissed at the hearing (146 Cal. App. 3d 964, 974) .

[b] Failure to Give Notice of and Opportunity to Correct Unsatisfactory Performance or Unprofessional

Conduct as Not Precluding Dismissal on Other Grounds

In Woodland Joint Unified School Dist. v. Commission on Professional Competence (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 , the district charged many instances of misconduct as evident unfitness for service [see Educ. Code § 44932(a)(5)] rather than as unprofessional conduct. The dismissal was upheld on appeal despite the fact that no notice under Educ. Code § 44938 was given. The court first defined "evident unfitness for service" as clearly not fit, not adapted to, or unsuitable for teaching, ordinarily because of temperamental defects or inadequacies. It then foundthat, unlike unprofessional conduct, evident unfitness for service connotes a fixed character trait, presumably not remediable merely on receipt of notice that one's conduct fails to meet the expectations of the employing school district [cf. Bevli v. Brisco (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 986, 991, 260 Cal. Rptr. 57 (unprofessional conduct and evident unfitness for service substantially overlap and may have merged into single ground)] (2 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1442-1445) . Therefore, notice was not required to dismiss on the ground of evident unfitness for service, even though the charged conduct was also unprofessional (2 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1446-1448) .

48 of 147 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.37

§ 211.37 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945; Gov. Code § 11523]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--School Board Substantially Complied With Statutory Requirements for Dismissal

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.36.]

MANDATE IS NOT PROPER BECAUSE THE _____ [SCHOOL DISTRICT or GOVERNING BOARD] SUBSTANTIALLY COMPLIED WITH THE REQUIREMENTS OF _____ [EDUCATION CODE SECTION 44938 and/or THE STULL ACT (EDUCATION CODE SECTIONS 44660-44665) and/or other statute] WHEN IT _____ [specify actions in substantial compliance].

A. Substantial Compliance Is Sufficient to Satisfy Statutory Requirements. A school district or governing board of a school district need only substantially comply with the requirements of Education Code Section 44938 or the Stull Act (Education Code Sections 44660-44665), notwithstanding the use of the word "shall," a word generally indicating a mandatory requirement (Governing Board v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 324, 333-334, 217 Cal. Rptr. 457).

B. Hypertechnical Procedural Oversights Should Not Thwart Process. To allow hypertechnical procedural oversights to thwart the orderly process delineated by the statutory scheme of the dismissal procedure would be to exalt form over substance and would result in an abuse of the judicial process (Governing Board v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 324, 333, 217 Cal. Rptr. 457).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition to the superior court for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence dismissing a permanent employee. The ground of opposition is that the school district substantially complied with the requirements of Educ. Code § 44938 or Educ. Code §§ 44660-44665, or some other code section that petitioner claims the district did not strictly follow.

In an appropriate case, this memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a petition supported by points and authorities set out in §§ 211.27 or 211.31.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to review the decision of a school district's Commission on Professional Competence to dismiss a permanent employee, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 512, Schools , Pt. II (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting a demurrer to a petition for writ of mandate to review administrative adjudicatory decisions generally, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law . For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Substantial Compliance Is Sufficient to Satisfy Statutory Requirements

In Governing Board v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 324, 217 Cal. Rptr. 457 , the school districtcompleted a written evaluation of a permanent certificated teacher in February 1980, finding her classroom control and presentation to be unsatisfactory. Follow-up evaluations were completed in May 1980, February 1981, and May 1981, also finding her performance unsatisfactory. On October 14, 1981, the district sent the teacher a 90-day letter pursuant to former Educ. Code § 44938 (now see Educ. Code § 44938(b)(1)), informing her of 58 instances of unprofessional conduct and incompetence. A copy of the May 1981 evaluation was attached. On March 3, 1982, the district served the teacher with a notice of intent to dismiss, accompanied by a statement of 57 charges. The teacher filed a written demand for a hearing, at which she moved for dismissal of the charges because the attached evaluation was presented to her later than 60 days before the end of the school year and thus the district had not complied with the requirement of former Educ. Code § 44938 (now see Educ. Code § 44938(b)(1)) that a copy of a Stull Act (Educ. Code §§ 44660-44665) evaluation be included in the 90-day letter. The administrative law judge agreed with the teacher and dismissed the charges. The district sought a writ of mandate in the superior court, which was denied. The district then appealed the denial of the writ of mandate.

The court of appeal reversed, and ordered the superior court to grant the petition for writ of mandate to compel the administrative law judge to vacate his order dismissing the charges against the teacher. The court held that the district had substantially complied with the requirements of former Educ. Code § 44938 and Educ. Code §§ 44660-44665, and that such substantial compliance was all that was required by the statutes despite the use of the word "shall" in the provisions. The court explained that the district had given the teacher unsatisfactory evaluations during the two-year period preceding the dismissal, and that she had not been prejudiced by receiving the May 1981 evaluation rather than the February 1981 evaluation (which was in compliance with the Stull Act) as an attachment to the notice of intent to dismiss. The court also noted that the Legislature had recently amended Educ. Code § 44944(c) to include a provision that the decision that an employee should not be dismissed or suspended shall not be based on nonsubstantive procedural errors committed by the school district or governing board unless the errors are prejudicial errors. The court opined that this provision was added to eliminate the type of situation encountered in the case at bar. The court explained that allowing hypertechnical procedural oversights to thwart the orderly process delineated by the statutory scheme of the dismissal procedure would be to exalt form over substance and would result in an abuse of the judicial process. Thus, the court concluded that only substantial compliance with the dictates of the statutes was required, and because the district had substantially complied with those requirements, the charges against the teacher should not have been dismissed (171 Cal. App. 3d 324, 332-334) .

[b] Hypertechnical Procedural Oversights Should Not Thwart Process

Governing Board v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 324, 217 Cal. Rptr. 457 , is discussed in § 211.37[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities 211.37A

211.37A Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review Administrative Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] of Commission on Professional Competence [Educ. Code § 44945; Gov. Code § 11523]--Dismissal of Permanent Employee--School Board Properly Considered Evidence of Matters Occurring More Than Four Years Before Notice of Intent to Dismiss

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum opposing mandate, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

[Caption. See § 211.36.]

MANDATE IS NOT PROPER BECAUSE, ALTHOUGH THE _____ [SCHOOL DISTRICT or GOVERNING BOARD] CONSIDERED EVIDENCE OF MATTERS THAT OCCURRED MORE THAN FOUR YEARS BEFORE THE FILING OF THE NOTICE OF INTENT TO DISMISS, THE FOUR-YEAR LIMIT OF EDUCATION CODE SECTION 44944(a) IS INAPPLICABLE UNDER THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF THIS CASE.

Four-Year Limitation is Subject to Equitable Exceptions. Generally, a school district's decision to dismiss or suspend a permanent, certificated employee generally may not be based on charges or evidence of any nature relating to matters occurring more than four years prior to the filing of the notice of intent to dismiss or suspend the employee (Educ. Code § 44944(a)). However, this four-year limit is subject to equitable exceptions. For example, an employee may be equitably estopped from asserting the four-year limit if the employee's own conduct induced the school district or governing board to delay the filing of the notice of intent to dismiss or suspend the employee (Atwater Elementary Sch. Dist. v. California Dep't of Gen. Servs. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 227, 235-238, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233, 158 P.3d 794).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be used to oppose a contention that a certificated employee's dismissal or suspension is improperly based on matters occurring more than four years before the filing of the notice of intent to dismiss or suspend the employee [ see Educ. Code § 44944(a)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel should explain how the conduct of the employee induced the school district or governing board to delay filing the notice of intent to a date more than four years after the events on which the dismissal or suspension is based.

[b] Opposing Memorandum

In an appropriate case, the memorandum set out in § 211.27 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Four-Year Limitation is Subject to Equitable Exceptions

In Atwater Elementary Sch. Dist. v. California Dep't of Gen. Servs. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 227, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233, 158 P.3d 794 , the California Supreme Court considered the scope of Education Code Section 44944(a), which prohibits the introduction of evidence relating to matters occurring more than four years before a school district files a notice of intention to dismiss a teacher. It also bars the dismissal of a teacher for events occurring more than four years before the notice was filed (Educ. Code § 44944(a)). The Supreme Court concluded that the four-year period specified in Section 44944(a) is not absolute, and its application may be limited by equitable principles in an appropriate case (41 Cal. 4th 227, 234, 237-238) .

The school district in this case filed and served a notice of intent to dismiss a teacher in 2002, alleging that the teacher had engaged in sexual misconduct with several students between 1992 and 1998 (see Educ. Code § 44932(a)). During subsequent administrative proceedings, the teacher moved under Section 44944(a) to dismiss all allegations based on incidents occurring more than four years before the district served its notice of intent to dismiss, and to exclude all evidence of such incidents. The administrative law judge granted the teacher's motions, and the school district sought a writ of mandate to vacate the rulings; after the superior court and court of appeal issued conflicting decisions, the matter came before the Supreme Court. The teacher died after the Supreme Court granted review, rendering the case moot; however, the Court retained the case for decision because it presented an issue of statewide importance (41 Cal. 4th 227, 235) .

The precise issue before the Supreme Court was whether Section 44944(a)'s four-year limit is absolute or may be subject to equitable principles. The Court concluded that the limit is not absolute, and that its application is subject to equitable doctrines such as equitable tolling, equitable estoppel, fraudulent concealment, and delayed discovery. For example, equitable estoppel may be applied to prevent a teacher from relying on the four-year limit if the school district's delay in initiating dismissal proceedings was induced by the conduct of the teacher (41 Cal. 4th 227, 236-238) .

The Court rejected an argument that the four-year limit of Section 44944(a) is absolute because the statute does not expressly provide an exception for allegations of sexual misconduct. Education Code Section 44242.7, which imposes a four-year limit for disciplinary proceedings initiated by the Commission on Teacher Credentialing against credentialed teachers, does contain an explicit exception for allegations of sexual misconduct. However, the Supreme Court reasoned that the Legislature's failure to include a similar express exception in Section 44944(a), which pertains to disciplinary proceedings initiated by school districts, did not foreclose the application of equitable principles to the time limit established by that statute. "It simply reflects a legislative disinclination to write a sweeping exception into the statutory scheme as a matter of law" (41 Cal. 4th 227, 237-238) .

The Supreme Court also pointed out that treating Section 44944(a)'s time limit as absolute would create an anomalous situation in which a teacher could be prosecuted criminally, the Commission on Teacher Credentialing could institute credential-revocation proceedings, and a school district could be sued for negligent hiring, retention, and supervision--all on the basis of sexual misconduct occurring more than four years in the past--but the school district would be barred from dismissing the teacher (41 Cal. 4th 227, 238) .

Accordingly, the Court concluded that if the school district in this case could have met the requirements of equitable estoppel or another equitable doctrine, it could have introduced evidence of (and based its dismissal proceedings on) incidents falling outside Section 44944(a)'s four-year window (41 Cal. 4th 227, 238) .

Associate Justice Kennard filed a dissenting opinion. Justice Kennard would construe the statutory scheme, particularly Education Code Sections 44242.7 and 44944(a), as a clear statement of the Legislature's intent that only the Commission on Teacher Credentialing have the power to discipline a teacher based on allegations of sexual misconduct more than four years old (41 Cal. 4th 227, 235-238) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.38

§ 211.38 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Reinstatement of Permanent Employee After Economic Layoff [Educ. Code § 44955]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT ISSUE TO COMPEL A SCHOOLDISTRICT TO REINSTATE PERMANENT EMPLOYEE LAID OFF PURSUANT TO EDUC. CODE § 44955(b) BECAUSE OF A REDUCTION IN A PARTICULAR KIND OF SERVICE.

A. Permanent Employees Dismissed Pursuant to Reduction in Particular Kind of Service. Education Code Section 44955(b) permits dismissal of permanent and probationary school district employees if there is a sustained decline in average daily pupil attendance or whenever a particular kind of service is reduced or discontinued (Educ. Code § 44955(b); Gallup v. Alta Loma School District (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1571, 1585-1589, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289).

B. Use of Contract Instead of Full-Time Employees Does Not Violate Education Code Section 44955 Where Services Provided in Different Manner. Economic Dismissal of three full-time employees (school psychologists) and replacement by independent contractors, does not violate Education Code Section 44955(b) where layoffs constitute a reduction or discontinuance of "a particular kind of service" and where services provided by contract employees are accomplished in different manner than by full-time employees (Gallup v. Alta Loma School District (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1571, 1585-1589, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to compel a school district to reinstate permanent employees after layoffs due to a reduction or discontinuance "in a particular kind of service," pursuant to Educ. Code § 44955.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Permanent Employees Dismissed Pursuant to Reduction in Particular Kind of Service

In Gallup v. Alta Loma School District (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1571, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289 , the plaintiff, a school psychologist, was laid off together with two other full-time school psychologists. They were replaced by an administrative psychologist and independent contractor psychologists. The trial court ruled in favor of the plaintiff's reinstatement on the ground that the school board action was not a "reduction or discontinuance of a particular kind of service" under Educ. Code § 44955(b). The trial court reasoned that the services would not be performed in a different manner because they would still be performed by certified school psychologists "in the legally prescribed manner," and thus would continue to be provided in the same way. The court of appeal reversed, holding that use of contract employees instead of full-time psychologists was itself a change in the manner of service and thus the school board's layoffs were in compliance with Educ. Code § 44955 (41 Cal. App. 4th 1571, 1585-1589) .

[b] Use of Contract Instead of Full-Time Employees Does Not Violate Educ. Code § 44955 Where Services Provided in Different Manner

Gallup v. Alta Loma School District (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1571, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 289 , is discussed in § 211.38[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.39

§ 211.39 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] to Review Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Teacher Dismissed During School Year Without Following Required Procedures [Educ. Code § 44948.3]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

THE GOVERNING BOARD IMPROPERLY DISMISSED PETITIONER FROM HIS/HER PROBATIONARY TEACHING POSITION DURING THE SCHOOL YEAR BECAUSE PETITIONER WAS NOT AFFORDED PROPER NOTICE AND A HEARING AS REQUIRED BY EDUCATION CODE SECTION 44948.3.

A. Writ of Mandate. The superior court may issue a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to admit a party to the use and enjoyment of a right to which he or she is entitled, and from which he or she is unlawfully precluded by the board (Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)).

B. Dismissal of Probationary Teacher During School Year. First- and second-year probationary teachers may be dismissed during the school year only for unsatisfactory performance determined pursuant to Education Code Section 44660 et seq. or for cause determined pursuant to Education Code Section 44932 (Educ. Code § 44948.3(a); Grimsley v. Board of Trustees (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1446, 235 Cal. Rptr. 85).

C. Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard. A probationary teacher who is dismissed from his or her teaching position during the school year for unsatisfactory performance or for cause must be given 30 days' prior written notice of dismissal and an opportunity to appeal by administrative hearing (Educ. Code § 44948.3(a)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a probationary teacher's petition to the superior court for writ of mandate to review a final decision of a school district to dismiss the teacher during the school year. The contention of the form is that the governing board dismissed the teacher without following the procedures required by Educ. Code§ 44948.3. This form is for use with regard to a school district that has an average daily attendance of 250 pupils or more [see Educ. Code § 44948.3(c)]. However, a smaller school district may elect to dismiss probationary employees during the school year pursuant to Educ. Code § 44948.3 [Educ. Code § 44948.2].

The form may not be used in the case of nonrenewal of a probationary teacher's contract at the end of the year [see Grimsley v. Board of Trustees (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1446, 235 Cal. Rptr. 85] . For forms of points and authorities for use with regard to nonrenewal, see §§ 211.40 and 211.41.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. It should be established that (1) the petitioner was a probationary teacher employed by the respondent school district; (2) petitioner was dismissed from his or her teaching position during the first or second school year of employment; and (3) the petitioner was not afforded the procedures required by Educ. Code § 44948.3 [see § 211.39[2][b]].

[b] Required Procedures

First- and second-year probationary teachers may be dismissed during the school year for unsatisfactory performance determined pursuant to Educ. Code § 44660 et seq. or for cause pursuant to Educ. Code § 44932 [see §§ 211.28 -211.34]. Any such dismissal must be in accordance with the procedures of Educ. Code § 44948.3 [Educ. Code § 44948.3(a)].

Under this statute, the superintendent of the district (or his or her designee) must give 30 days prior written notice of dismissal. The notice must be given no later than March 15 in the case of a second-year probationary teacher. The notice must include a statement of the reasons for the dismissal and notice of the opportunity to appeal. If the dismissal is for unsatisfactory performance, a copy of the evaluation conducted pursuant to Educ. Code § 44664 must accompany the written notice [Educ. Code § 44948.3(a)(1); see Achene v. Pierce Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 757, 769-771, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 899 (classroom observation report stating that employee needed to "refine" her performance, and lacking any indication that employee's performance was unsatisfactory or that she would be dismissed if she did not make recommended refinements, did not constitute sufficient notice of unsatisfactory performance under Educ. Code § 44664(b))].

If the cause for dismissal is unprofessional conduct or unsatisfactory performance [see Educ. Code §§ 44932(a)(1), (4), 44938(c)] the school district must also have sent the employee a previous written notice specifying the nature of the unprofessional conduct or unsatisfactory performance, with such specific instances of behavior and with such particularity as to furnish the employee an opportunity to correct his or her faults and overcome the grounds for the charge. This previous notice must include a copy of the evaluation conducted pursuant to Educ. Code § 44664 [Educ. Code § 44938(a), (b)]. If the cause for dismissal is unprofessional conduct, this previous notice must have been given at least 45 calendar days before the notice of dismissal described in the preceding paragraph [Educ. Code § 44938(a)]. If the cause is unsatisfactory performance, this previous notice ordinarily must have been given at least 90 calendar days before the notice of dismissal described in the preceding paragraph [Educ. Code § 44938(b); see Achene v. Pierce Joint Unified Sch. Dist. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 757, 766-768, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 899 (because Educ. Code § 44938 specifies procedure for dismissal for cause under Educ. Code § 44932, it also applies to dismissal for unsatisfactory performance of probationary teacher under Educ. Code § 44948.3(a), which incorporates procedures applicable to dismissal for cause under Educ. Code § 44932)].

The teacher then has 15 days from receipt of the notice of dismissal to submit to the governing board a written request for a hearing. The governing board may establish procedures for the appointment of an administrative law judge to conduct the hearing and submit a recommended decision to the board. The failure of a teacher to timely request the hearing is a waiver of the right to a hearing [Educ. Code § 44948.3(a)(2)].

Educ. Code § 44948.3 does not apply to probationary teachers in a school district having an average daily attendance of less than 250 pupils [Educ. Code § 44948.3(c); but see Educ. Code § 44948.2 (small school district may elect to dismiss under Educ. Code § 44948.3)].

[c] Writ of Mandate

Administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 may be used to inquire into the validity of any final administrative decision made as the result of a proceeding in which a hearing must be afforded, evidence must be taken, and discretion in determination of facts is vested in the governing board [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); see § 211.27]. Thus, dismissal of a probationary teacher would be reviewable by administrative mandate, if the procedures required by Educ. Code § 44948.3 were followed, but the determination after hearing was unfavorable to the probationary teacher on the merits.

The points and authorities set forth in this form, however, attack the dismissal because of the failure to afford the required procedures. Thus, it would seem that the proper remedy is ordinary mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 rather than administrative mandate [see Grimsley v. Board of Trustees (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1443, 235 Cal. Rptr. 85] . Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a), a writ of mandate may be issued to a board to compel the admission of a party to the use and enjoyment of a right or office to which he or she is entitled and from which he or she is unlawfully precluded by the board. Alternatively, the writ may be sought under both Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 and Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5.

A memorandum for use in a case of dismissal of a probationary teacher during the school year that is reviewable by administrative mandate may be assembled using Paragraph B with the procedural points regarding administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (see § 211.27, Paragraphs A and D) and the particular substantive points and authorities concerning satisfactory performance or absence of cause for dismissal [see §§ 211.28 -211.34, 211.41].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Dismissal of Probationary Teacher During School Year

Grimsley v. Board of Trustees (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 235 Cal. Rptr. 85 , is discussed principally in § 211.4[3][a]. In the case, the court rejected the argument advanced by petitioning probationary teachers that Educ. Code § 44948.3 governs the decision of a school board not to retain a probationary teacher for the next school year. The court held that the statute is limited to dismissals during the school year, defining the school year as only the time prior to the end of classes in June. The court stated that a school board will use Educ. Code § 44948.3 if it wishes to remove a probationary teacher from the classroom as soon as possible. The import of the statute is that the dismissal becomes effective 30 days after the required notice is given, subject to the hearing and appeals procedures if requested by the teacher (189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1446) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.40

§ 211.40 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] to Review Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Teacher Not Reelected for Following School Without Required Advance Notice [Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

PETITIONER IS ENTITLED TO CLASSIFICATION AS A PERMANENT EMPLOYEE OF RESPONDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT BECAUSE HE/SHE HAS COMPLETED TWO CONSECUTIVE SCHOOL YEARS AS A PROBATIONARY TEACHER AND WAS NOT NOTIFIED PRIOR TO MARCH 15 OF RESPONDENT'S DECISION NOT TO REELECT HIM/HER FOR THE SUCCEEDING SCHOOL YEAR.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 211.39, Paragraph A.]

B. Notice of Nonreelection of Probationary Teacher for Succeeding School Year. The governing board of a school district must notify a probationary teacher on or before March 15 of the teacher's second complete consecutive school year of employment of the decision to reelect or not reelect the teacher for the next succeeding school year, and if the notice is not given, the teacher is deemed reelected for the next school year and must be classified as a permanent employee of the district at the commencement of that year (Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)). The notice must be given by personal service or some other method that imparts actual notice (Hoschler v. Sacramento City Unified Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 258, 263-264, 269, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a probationary teacher's petition to the superior court for writ of mandate to review a final decision of a school district not to reelect the teacher for the succeeding school year. The contention of the form is that the governing board decided not to reelect the teacher without giving the notice required by Educ. Code § 44929.21(b). This form is for use only with regard to a school district that has an average daily attendance of 250 pupils or more [see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. It should be established that (1) the petitioner was a probationary teacher employed by the respondent school district; (2) petitioner completed two consecutive school years in a position requiring certification qualifications; (3) petitioner was not reelected (that is, his or her contract was not renewed) for the succeeding (third) school year to a position requiring certification qualifications; and (4) the petitioner was not given notice of the nonreelection on or before March 15, of the second year as required by Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) [see § 211.40[3][b]].

[b] Required Notice

The governing board of a school district of any type or class having an average daily attendance of 250 or more must notify a probationary teacher, on or before March 15 of the teacher's second complete school year in a position requiring certification qualifications, of the decision to reelect or not reelect the teacher to that position for the next succeeding school year. If the notice is not given, the teacher is deemed reelected for the next succeeding school year [Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)]. The notice must be given by personal service or some other method that imparts actual notice [Hoschler v. Sacramento City Unified Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 258, 264, 269, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115] .

The effect of the reelection of a probationary teacher for a third year is to grant the teacher status as a permanent employee (tenure). Every probationary teacher who, after having been employed by the district for two complete consecutive school years in a position requiring certification qualifications, is reelected for the next succeeding school year to a position requiring certification qualifications, must, at the commencement of the succeeding school year, be classified as and become a permanent employee of the district [Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice of Nonreelection of Probationary Teacher for Succeeding School Year

In Hoschler v. Sacramento City Unified Sch. Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 258, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115 , the central issue was whether a school district had given a teacher timely notice of his nonreelection. Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) provides that a teacher on probationary status is deemed to have been reelected for the next school year unless the district notifies the teacher by March 15 of its decision not to reelect him or her. The statute does not prescribe the method of giving notice (see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)).

In this case, the district sent a notice of nonreelection by certified mail on March 12, but the teacher did not receive actual notice until weeks later. (It was undisputed that the teacher had not willfully refused to pick up his mail.) The trial court ruled that sending notice by certified mail complies with Educ. Code § 44929.21(b), but the court of appeal reversed.

The court of appeal noted that under "settled principles of statutory construction," a statute that requires the giving of notice, but is silent as to the manner of giving such notice, contemplates personal service (149 Cal. App. 4th 258, 264) . Since Section 44929.21 does not specify the manner of giving notice, the court concluded thatpersonal service, or some other method equivalent to imparting actual notice, is required. Because the district in this case failed to comply with this requirement (and the teacher did not otherwise receive actual notice), the district had not given the teacher timely notice of his nonreelection, and the teacher was deemed reelected for the next school year (149 Cal. App. 4th 258, 264, 269) .

Finally, because the practice of sending notices of nonreelection by certified mail was widespread in many school districts, the court of appeal gave its decision limited retroactive effect, making the personal-notice requirement applicable only to the present case and to teachers who are issued notices of nonreelection after the decision in this case became final (i.e., July 11, 2007, when the California Supreme Court denied review) (149 Cal. App. 4th 258, 271) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.41

§ 211.41 Supporting Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] to Review Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Teacher May Not Be Terminated for Engaging in Protected Activity

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.27.]

A SCHOOL DISTRICT MAY NOT REFUSE TO REELECT A PROBATIONARY TEACHER FOR THE SUCCEEDING SCHOOL YEARIF THE ACTION IS TAKEN IN RETALIATION FOR THE EXERCISE OF A PROTECTED RIGHT.

A. Writ of Mandate. [See § 211.39, Paragraph A.]

[EITHER]

B. Exercise of Constitutional Rights. A probationary teacher or one serving at the pleasure of the governing board may not be dismissed from employment for the exercise of constitutional rights absent a showing that the restraints that the employing body would impose on those rights are justified by a compelling public interest (Bekiaris v. Board of Education (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 575, 585-586, 100 Cal. Rptr. 16, 493 P.2d 480).

[OR]

B. Exercise of Protected Labor Rights. The power to deny a teacher tenure for any lawful reason regardless of the sufficiency of the cause does not permit a school district to refuse to reelect a probationary teacher if the action is taken in retaliation for the exercise of a protected right and constitutes an unfair labor practice under the Educational Employment Relations Act (McFarland Unified School Dost. v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 166, 169, 279 Cal. Rptr. 26 ; see Gov. Code § 3540 et seq.).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a probationary teacher's petition to the superior court for writ of mandate to review a final decision of a school district not to reelect the teacher for the succeeding school year. The contention of the form is that the governing board decided not to reelect the teacher for reasons involving the teacher's exercise of a protected activity. The first alternative Paragraph B alleges that the teacher was dismissed because of the exercise of constitutionally protected rights, such as freedom of speech. The second alternative Paragraph B alleges that the teacher was dismissed because of the exercise of protected labor rights under the Educational Employment Relations Act [see Gov. Code § 3540 et seq.].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. It should be established that (1) the petitioner was a probationary teacher employed by the respondent school district; (2) while under probationary status, petitioner exercised a protected right, such as freedom of expression; (3) that the exercise of the right did not interfere in any way with the educational program of the school district, or that the right was exercised within the context of an educational activity that encouraged the free exchange of ideas; (4) that soon after the exercise of the right, the district decided not to reelect the petitioner to a teaching position for the succeeding school year; and (5) but for the exercise of the protected right, the teacher would have been reelected for the succeeding year.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities in support of a writ of mandate alleging the improper termination of a permanent teacher for the exercise of constitutional rights, see § 211.34.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exercise of Constitutional Rights

The facts and procedural background of Bekiaris v. Board of Educ. (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 575, 100 Cal. Rptr. 16, 493 P.2d 480 are set forth in § 211.34[3][b], [e]. In the case, a probationary teacher was notified by respondent board of its intention not to reemploy him for the succeeding school year, stating several reasons therefor. Petitioner alleged that the true reason for his dismissal was official dissatisfaction with his political activities outside of school.

The California Supreme Court held that if a teacher seeks to present evidence to show that he or she was dismissed for the exercise of constitutional rights whose consequent limitation was not justified by a compelling public interest, that evidence must be received substantively and a determination made (6 Cal. 3d 575, 587-588) . In so holding, the court set forth the applicable substantive principle, stating that, "It is now well-settled that even a probationary public employee or one serving at the pleasure of the appointing authority may not be dismissed from his employment for the exercise of constitutional rights absent a showing that the restraints which the employing body would impose on those rights are justified by a compelling public interest" (6 Cal. 3d 575, 585-586) .

[b] Exercise of Protected Labor Rights

McFarland Unified School Dist. v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 166, 279 Cal. Rptr. 26 , involved a petition of a school district to the court of appeal to reverse a ruling of the Public Employment Relations Board (PERB). In the case, a probationary teacher was not reelected to her teaching position at the end of her second year, which had the effect of denying her tenure [see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b); § 211.40]. The teacher filed a complaint with PERB alleging that her nonreelection was because of her exercise of rights as a member of the district's collective bargaining unit. PERB found in favor of the teacher and ordered her reinstated to her position. Because she had completed two years as a probationary teacher, the effect of the reinstatement order was to afford her tenure under Educ. Code § 44929.21(b). The district petitioned the court of appeal for a writ of mandate, alleging that PERB's reinstatement order impermissibly interfered with its authority to decide whether to grant tenure to a probationary teacher.

The court of appeal upheld the PERB order as not in excess of PERB's authority. In an unpublished part of the opinion, the court determined that the evidence supported PERB's conclusion that the district chose not to rehire the teacher for an illegal reason--her participation in protected activity, and that the other lawful reasons advanced by the district were pretextual (228 Cal. App. 3d 166, 168) . The court agreed that the final determination about rehiring probationary teachers lies within the discretion of the governing board and that tenure can be denied for any lawful reason regardless of the sufficiency of the cause. However, it disagreed that the power to deny tenure for any lawful reason insulated the district from the scrutiny of PERB if an unfair labor practice complaint alleged that tenure was denied in retaliation for the exercise of protected rights under the Educational Employment Relations Act [Gov. Code § 3540 et seq.] (228 Cal. App. 3d 166, 169) .

The court then approved reinstatement as a remedy, finding that the determination regarding whether there had been an unfair labor practice and the appropriate remedy for the unfair practice was within the exclusive jurisdiction of PERB. The fact that the teacher would obtain tenure as a result of reinstatement did not mean that PERB was interferring with the district's authority to establish and regulate tenure. It merely gave effect to the determination that the teacher would not have been denied tenure but for her exercise of protected rights (228 Cal. App. 3d 166, 169) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.42

§ 211.42 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] to Review Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Decision to Not Reelect Teacher for Following School Year Within Sole Discretion of Board

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.36.]

THE WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE DECISION AS TO WHETHER TO REELECT A PROBATIONARY TEACHER FOR THE SUCCEEDING SCHOOL YEAR LIES WITHIN THE DISCRETION OF THE GOVERNING BOARD, AND TENURE CAN BE DENIED FOR ANY LAWFUL REASON REGARDLESS OF THE SUFFICIENCY OF THE CAUSE.

A. Nonrenewal of Probationary Teacher's Contract at Discretion of Governing Board. The governing board of a school district has the absolute right under Education Code Section 44929.21(b) to dismiss a probationary teacher at the end of a school year without any showing of cause, without any statement of reasons, and without any right of appeal or administrative redress (Grimsley v. Board of Trustees (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1444-1448, 235 Cal. Rptr. 85); see Bellflower Education Assn. v. Bellflower Unified School Dist. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 805, 808, 279 Cal. Rptr. 179).

[Optional] B. Effect of Collective Bargaining Agreement. The discretion of a school district governing board with regard to the nonretention of probationary teachers may not be altered by a collective bargaining agreement (Fontana Teachers Assn. v. Fontana Unified School Dist. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1517, 1524-1526, 247 Cal. Rptr. 761 ; see Bellflower Education Assn. v. Bellflower Unified School Dist. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 805, 809-812, 279 Cal. Rptr. 179); see also Gov. Code § 3543.2).

[Optional] C. Effect of Statutory Provisions for Preferential Rehiring of Teachers Laid Off for Economic Reasons. Statutory provisions for the preferential rehiring of teachers who have been laid off for economic reasons (see Educ. Code §§ 44955, 44957) do not prevent a school district from validly determining not to reelect a probationary teacher under Education Code Section 44929.21(b) (California Teachers Assn. v. Mendocino Unified School Dist. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 522, 526-528).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a probationary teacher's petition to the superior court for writ of mandate to review a final decision of a school district not to reelect the teacher for the succeeding school year. Paragraph A sets forth the basic proposition that the governing board has the sole discretion as to whether to reelect a probationary teacher for the next school year. Optional Paragraph B is for use if the issue arises in the context of a grievance procedure under a collective bargaining agreement. The contention is that non-reelection of a probationary teacher is not a permissible subject for collective bargaining. Optional Paragraph C is for use if the probationary teacher has been laid off for economic reasons and then dismissed pursuant to the governing board's discretion not to reelect probationary teachers. This form is for use by a school district with an average daily attendance of 250 or more [see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. It should be established that (1) the petitioner was a probationary teacher employed by the respondent school district; and (2) prior to March 15 of the teacher's second consecutive probationary year, the teacher was given notice of the governing board's decision not to reelect him or her for the succeeding school year [see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)].

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set forth in this form may be submitted in opposition to a petition for writ of mandate supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 211.40 and 211.41.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Nonrenewal of Probationary Teacher's Contract at Discretion of Governing Board

In Grimsley v. Board of Trustees (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 235 Cal. Rptr. 85 , two first-year probationary teachers were not reelected to their positions for a second school year. They were afforded no statement of reasons or hearing. They then filed a writ of mandate seeking reinstatement to second-year probationary status and back pay, alleging that they could only be terminated for cause or for unsatisfactory performance as teachers, and thus were entitled to a statement of reasons for their dismissal and the opportunity of a hearing and appeal to the governing board.

The superior court denied the writ, and the court of appeal affirmed. The court found that the 1983 amendments to the Education Code changed the procedural rules governing the reemployment of first- and second-year probationary teachers so that they could be terminated without any showing of cause. It held that for probationary teachers hired during or after the 1983-1984 fiscal year, the right to reemployment for the ensuing year is subject to termination without cause at any time before March 15th of the second consecutive year of employment (189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1443-1444) .

The court first rejected Educ. Code § 44948.3 as a source of any procedural rights for probationary teachers dismissed at the end of the school year, limiting that section to dismissals during the school year (189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1445-1446 ; see § 211.39[3][a]). The court found nonrenewal to be governed by former Educ. Code § 44882 [now see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)], which states the tenure requirements for probationary teachers. Under this statute, the only procedural right afforded a probationary teacher is the right to notice of nonrenewal on or before March 15 of the second year of employment [see § 211.40]. With regard to first-year probationary teachers, the court posited that the statute might require notice of nonrenewal without specifying any particular time during the first year by which the notice must be given. If not, there would be no statutory notice requirement at all, and the governing board would be free to terminate a probationary teacher's employment after the first year under basic principles of contract law (189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1446-1448) .

Finally, the court rejected the petitioners' due process arguments. The court found that nothing in the teachers' contracts or in the Education Code provided the teachers with a clearly implied promise of continuing employment, so as to constitute a property interest protected by constitutional due process [see Board of Regents v. Roth (1972) 408 U.S. 564, 577, 92 S. Ct. 2701, 33 L. Ed. 2d 548] (189 Cal. App. 3d 1440, 1449-1452) .

Bellflower Education Assn. v. Bellflower Unified School Dist. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 805, 279 Cal. Rptr. 179 , is discussed principally under § 211.40[3][b]. In the case, the court of appeal set forth the basic statutory principle under Educ. Code § 44929.21(b), that probationary teachers may be nonreelected without any showing of cause, without any statement of reasons, and without any right of appeal or administrative redress (228 Cal. App. 3d 805, 808) .

[b] Effect of Collective Bargaining Agreement

Fontana Teachers Assn. v. Fontana Unified School Dist. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1517, 247 Cal. Rptr. 761 , involved a petition for writ of mandate brought by a collective bargaining unit (FTA) to compel arbitration of a school district's decision under former Educ. Code § 44882(b) [now see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)] not to reelect a probationary teacher for a third year, thereby denying her tenure. FTA alleged that the teacher could not be dismissed unless the district first followed progressive step discipline requirements set forth in the collective bargaining agreement. The trial court's denial of the petition was affirmed on appeal.

The court of appeal first noted that under Gov. Code § 3543.2(a), all matters not specifically enumerated as subject to collective bargaining are reserved to the public school employer and may not be a subject of meeting and negotiating. Gov. Code § 3543.2(b) allows parties to a collective bargaining agreement to meet and negotiate regarding causes and procedures for disciplinary action other than dismissal. However, the court rejected FTA's arguments that dismissal of a probationary teacher via nonreelection can be a form of discipline subject to collective bargaining. The court held that the Education and Government Codes have preempted collective bargaining agreements as to dismissal of probationary teachers through nonreelection, and that the dismissal was not a proper subject of arbitration (201 Cal. App. 3d 1517, 1523-1526) .

In Bellflower Education Assn. v. Bellflower Unified School Dist. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 805, 279 Cal. Rptr. 179 , the collective bargaining agreement provided for specific evaluation procedures that were to be followed with regard to all teachers, including probationary teachers. The school district gave a probationary teacher timely notice of its decision not to reelect her for a third year. The teacher filed a grievance, alleging that the evaluation procedures of the collective bargaining agreement had not been followed. The matter went to arbitration, where the arbitrator first found that the matter was arbitrable and then that the district had violated the evaluation procedures with respect to the grievant. The arbitrator ordered the district to cease and desist from conducting further evaluations in violation of the collective bargaining agreement and ordered that the teacher be reinstated for an additional probationary year, during which time she was to be evaluated for reelection in accordance with required procedures.

The trial court granted the district's petition to vacate the arbitration award. On appeal, the court affirmed denial of that part of the award that ordered the teacher reinstated. Relying on Gov. Code § 3543.2 and Fontana Teachers Assn. v. Fontana Unified School Dist. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1517, 247 Cal. Rptr. 761 , the court held that collective bargaining agreements are preempted as to causes and procedures relating to nonreelection. The court held that reinstatement together with extension of the probationary period would impinge on the district's right to nonreelect the teacher without cause (228 Cal. App. 3d 805, 809-812) .

However, the court reversed as to that part of the trial court's order vacating the cease-and-desist order. The subject of the grievance, violation of bargained-for evaluation procedures, was within the allowable scope of collective bargaining under the Government Code. Further, the finding by the arbitrator that evaluation procedures were violated was not challenged by the district. Thus, the arbitrator's order that the district cease and desist from conducting certificated employee evaluations in violation of the agreement was within the scope of his authority and not in conflict with any applicable statutes (228 Cal. App. 3d 805, 812-813) .

[c] Effect of Statutory Provisions for Preferential Rehiring of Teachers Laid Off for Economic Reasons

In California Teachers Assn. v. Mendocino Unified School Dist. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 522 , the school district told a probationary teacher she would be laid off for economic reasons, pursuant to Educ. Code § 44955. A month later, she was informed that she would not be reelected, pursuant to Educ. Code § 44929.21. The teacher then sought a writ of mandate to compel the district to grant her preferential rehiring rights pursuant to Educ. Code § 44957, which provides that teachers laid off for economic reasons have preferential rehiring rights for 24 months. The trial court granted the writ, but the court of appeal reversed. Harmonizing the relevant statutory provisions, the court of appeal held that the provisions for the preferential rehiring of teachers who have been laid off for economic reasons (Educ. Code §§ 44955, 44957) do not prevent a school district from validly determining not to reelect a probationary teacher under Educ. Code § 44929.21(b) (92 Cal. App. 4th 522, 526-528) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.43

§ 211.43 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate to Nullify Decision of Governing Board to Terminate Probationary Teacher--Open Session of Board Not Required to Terminate Teacher Based on Performance Evaluation [Gov. Code § 54957]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.36.]

THE WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD BE DENIED BECAUSE THE GOVERNING BOARD MAY DECIDE NOT TO REELECT A PROBATIONARY TEACHER IN A CLOSED EXECUTIVE SESSION, ANDTHE TEACHER'S RIGHT TO REQUEST AN OPEN SESSION DOES NOT APPLY UNLESS THE BOARD IS HEARING A SPECIFIC COMPLAINT OR CHARGE AGAINST THE TEACHER.

A. Nonrenewal of Probationary Teacher's Contract at Discretion of Governing Board. [See § 211.42, Paragraph A.]

B. Governing Board May Meet in Closed Session to Make Personnel Decisions. Although the California Constitution (Cal. Const., art. I, § 3(b)(1)) and the Ralph M. Brown Act (Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.) generally requires local legislative bodies (including school district governing boards) to conduct open sessions, that requirement is subject to a "personnel exception," under which a board may hold closed meetings to consider the appointment, employment, evaluation of performance, discipline, or dismissal of a public employee (Gov. Code § 54957; see Cal. Const., art. I, § 3(b)(5)). Thus, a board may hold a closed session on matters of performance evaluation and to consider or deliberate whether charges justify dismissal or disciplinary action, so long as the board does not conduct an evidentiary hearing. The teacher's right to request an open session applies only if the board is hearing evidence on specific complaints or charges against the teacher (Kolter v. Commission on Prof'l Competence of L.A. Unified Sch. Dist. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1352, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620 ; Fischer v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 95-98, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452).

C. Scope of Performance Evaluation Under Personnel Exception. For purposes of the Brown Act's personnel exception, the "evaluation of performance" includes preliminary matters such as the selection of criteria and the establishment of a process for evaluation, as well as post-evaluation action finding the performance satisfactory (Gov.

Code § 54957; Duval v. Board of Trs. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 902, 908-910, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a probationary teacher's petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to overturn a final decision of the governing board of a school district not to reelect the teacher for the succeeding school year, when the teacher contends that the termination decision is invalid because it was made in a closed session of the board. Paragraph B sets forth the proposition that an open session is not required when the board is making a personnel decision based on a performance evaluation. Paragraph C delineates the scope of matters that are included in "performance evaluation" in this context. This form is for use by a governing board of a school district with an average daily attendance of 250 or more [see Educ. Code § 44929.21(b)].

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. The argument should, therefore, establish that board's decision was based on the overall evaluation of the teacher's performance, and the board did not conduct a hearing on specific complaints or charges brought against the teacher at its closed session [see Fischer v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 95-98, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452] .

[b] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set forth in this form may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate supported by the points and authorities set out in §§ 211.40 and 211.41.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Governing Board May Meet in Closed Session to Make Personnel Decisions

In Kolter v. Commission on Prof'l Competence of L.A. Unified Sch. Dist. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620 , the issue was whether the governing board of a school district could convene in a closed session to initiate the process of dismissing a permanent certificated teacher without complying with the Ralph M. Brown Act's requirement that the teacher be given 24-hour written notice of the right to have the matter heard in an open session (see Gov. Code § 54957). The court of appeal held that a closed session was permissible and that the teacher's right to an open session did not apply, because the board did not conduct an evidentiary hearing on the charges against the teacher in this case. Rather, the board considered whether those charges justified the initiation of dismissal proceedings under Educ. Code § 44944. The court reasoned that under the Brown Act's "personnel exception" to the general open-hearing requirement, the employee's right to notice and to an open hearing applies only when the board "hears" charges, but not when it "considers" discipline or dismissal (170 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1352 ; see Gov. Code § 54957).

In Fischer v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452 , the school district's governing board decided, in closed session, not to reelect several probationary teachers, after reviewing performance evaluations and staff recommendations concerning each teacher. The teachers petitioned for mandate, contending that the termination decisions were void because the board had not given the teachers notice of the closed session and had not offered them an opportunity to defend themselves in an open session. The trial court granted the petition for mandate, but the court of appeal reversed, holding that the board's review of the teachers' performance evaluations did not trigger any right of the teachers to request an open session (Fisher v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 91, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452).

The court acknowledged that the Ralph M. Brown Act (Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.) generally requires local legislative bodies (including school district governing boards) to conduct open sessions (Fisher v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 95, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452 ; see Gov. Code §§ 54951, 54952, 54956). However, that requirement issubject to a "personnel exception," under which a board ordinarily may hold closed sessions to consider the appointment, employment, evaluation of performance, discipline, or dismissal of a public employee (Gov. Code § 54957). The personnel exception is itself subject to an exception: if the board is to hear complaints or charges brought against an employee, it must notify the employee of his or her right to have the complaints or charges heard in an open session. If the board fails to give such notice, any action taken by the board against the employee based on the complaints or charges is void (Gov. Code § 54957).

The court rejected the teachers' contention that the right to request an open session applies to any personnel matters other than the hearing of specific complaints and charges. This interpretation was based on the court's reading of the statutory language, the policy underlying the personnel exception (to protect employees from public embarrassment and to permit candid discussion of personnel matters by the board), and the policy embodied in Educ. Code § 44929.21, which authorizes a school board to decide not to reelect a probationary teacher without a hearing (Fisher v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 96-98, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452).

The court also held that as a matter of law, when a board reviews a performance evaluation conducted in the due course of school district business, the board is not "hearing" specific complaints or charges brought against a teacher, even if the evaluation contains specific allegations of misconduct. Both "complaint" and "charge" connote specific accusations brought against an employee by another person; performance evaluations are not normally thought of as being brought against the evaluated employee within the meaning of the Ralph M. Brown Act (Fisher v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 100-101, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452).

[b] Scope of Performance Evaluation Under Personnel Exception

In Duval v. Board of Trs. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 902, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517 , a school board conducted closed sessions at which it considered general guidelines and standards for evaluating an employee's performance and the form that would be used for such an evaluation; and the board took action to find the employee's evaluation satisfactory. The court of appeal held that such actions did not violate the Brown Act's general prohibition against closed sessions, because they fit within the Act's "personnel exception," under which a board may hold closed meetings to consider the appointment, employment, evaluation of performance, discipline, or dismissal of a public employee (see Gov. Code § 54957). In particular, the board's actions in this case constituted "evaluation of performance" under the personnel exception. The court rejected a contention that the statutory term "evaluation of performance" should be construed narrowly to encompass only formal, periodic review of an employee's performance. In keeping with the statutory purpose of permitting the majority of personnel matters to be discussed freely and candidly in closed session, the court held that "evaluation of performance" encompasses a review of an employee's job performance even if that review involves particular instances of job performance rather than a comprehensive review of performance. The court further opined that "evaluation" may include consideration of the criteria for evaluation, consideration of the process for conducting the evaluation, and other preliminary matters, to the extent those matters constitute an exercise of the board's discretion in evaluating a particular employee. These preliminary considerations are an integral part of the actual evaluation. The court also held that taking action to find an evaluation satisfactory is part of the evaluation itself, since "feedback" to the employee is a traditional part of a formal performance evaluation (Duval v. Board of Trs. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 902, 908-910, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.44

§ 211.44 Opposing Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Prohibit School District's Use of Unclassified Non-Academic Personnel in Nonmerit District [Educ. Code §§ 88003, 88004]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT ISSUE TO PREVENT NONMERIT SCHOOL DISTRICT FROM HIRING UNCLASSIFIED NON-ACADEMIC EMPLOYEES.

A. Use of Outside Employees Permitted in Nonmerit School District. Education Code Sections 88003, 88004, providing for classification of nonacademic employees, is not violated by the use of outside contractors in a nonmerit community college district; the statutory scheme makes a distinction between merit and nonmerit districts, permitting nonmerit districts to utilize services of individuals who are not classified employees (California School Employees Assn. v. Kern Community College Dist. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1003, 1012-1013, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to prevent employment by a nonmerit district of unclassified non-academic workers.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Use of Outside Employees Permitted in Nonmerit School District

In California School Employees Assn. v. Kern Community College Dist. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1003, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889 , the California school employees' union sought a petition for a writ of mandate, claiming that a contract between a nonmerit community college district and an outside groundskeeping service violated Educ. Code §§ 88003, 88004, allegedly prohibiting hiring of non-classified employees. The union also argued that use of a private groundskeeping service violated the collective bargaining agreement to which the district and union were parties. The trial court granted injunctive relief to the union. The court of appeal reversed, finding that the statutory scheme made a distinction between merit and nonmerit districts, prohibiting the former, but permitting the latter to employ non-classified personnel. In addition, the court of appeal found that the contract between the district and the private groundskeeping service did not result in the layoff of any classified district employees and thus did not violate the collective bargaining agreement (California School Employees Assn. v. Kern Community College Dist. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1003, 1012-1013, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.45

§ 211.45 Supporting Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Lawful Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--School District as Without Authority to Lower Salaries After Beginning of School Year

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.20.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD OF A SCHOOL DISTRICT TO PAY PETITIONER HIS/HER LAWFUL SALARY IS PROPER BECAUSE THE GOVERNING BOARD ATTEMPTED, AFTER THE BEGINNING OF THE SCHOOL YEAR, TO REDUCE SALARIES FOR THAT SCHOOL YEAR.

A. Mandate as Proper to Compel Performance of Duty or Enjoyment of Right. [See § 211.20, Paragraph A.]

B. Mandate as Proper to Compel Payment of Salary by School District. Mandate is an appropriate remedy for a public school teacher to recover salary due from a school district (A.B.C. Fed'n of Teachers v. A.B.C. Unified Sch. Dist. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 332, 340-342, 142 Cal. Rptr. 111).

C. School Board as Without Authority to Reduce Salaries After Beginning of School Year. The governing board of a school district may not take action after the beginning of the school year to reduce salaries of school district employees for that particular year (A.B.C. Fed'n of Teachers v. A.B.C. Unified Sch. Dist. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 332, 337-340, 142 Cal. Rptr. 111).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to pay a certificated employee his orher lawful salary where the board has attempted, after the beginning of the school year, to reduce salaries for that particular year.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to pay a certificated employee his or her lawful salary, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandate as Proper to Compel Payment of Salary by School District

In A.B.C. Fed'n of Teachers v. A.B.C. Unified Sch. Dist. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 332, 142 Cal. Rptr. 111 , the salary schedule of respondent school district had provided for an annual stipend in addition to the basic annual salary rate for teachers at the district's continuation high school. In August 1975, after the commencement of the 1975-1976 school year, and after petitioners had already notified the district of their intent to accept reemployment for that school year, the governing board of the district amended its salary policy to delete the extra pay provision for continuation high school teachers for the 1975-1976 school year. When petitioner's demand for payment of the stipend was refused, they filed a petition for writ of mandate in superior court. The trial court concluded that the district had abused its discretion, that the stipend provision had become part of petitioners' contracts for the 1975-1976 school year, and that each petitioner was therefore entitled to receive the stipend in addition to his or her regular salary for that school year.

On appeal, the district contended, inter alia, that mandate was an inappropriate remedy. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal rejected this contention. The court noted that although the usual remedy for failure of an employer to pay wages owing to an employee is an action at law for breach of contract, such a remedy is inadequate in the case of a public employee because payment of wages to such an employee usually requires performance of certain ministerial acts by public officials, such as the drawing of a warrant, which cannot be compelled in an ordinary action at law. The court, therefore, held that mandate was the proper remedy to compel the district to pay petitioners the salary lawfully due them (75 Cal. App. 3d 332, 340-342) .

[b] School Board as Without Authority to Reduce Salaries After Beginning of School Year

The procedural and factual background of A.B.C. Fed'n of Teachers v. A.B.C. Unified Sch. Dist. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 332, 142 Cal. Rptr. 111 , is discussed in § 211.45[3][a]. In that case, the school district, on appeal, contended, inter alia, that the stipend for continuation high school teachers was extra pay for extra services which the district could terminate at any time. In affirming the judgment for the teachers, the court of appeal rejected this argument. The court first stated the rule that salaries, as fixed by the district's salary schedule and policy, become an integral part of each teacher's employment contract and that school boards may not lower such salaries after the beginning of the school year (75 Cal. App. 3d 332, 337-338) . The court then held that since the provision for the stipend was in effect at the time petitioners notified the district of their intent to accept reemployment, the stipend was an integral part of the employment contract in force as of the beginning of the school year, and the district's unilateral action in amending its policy to eliminate the stipend after the beginning of the school year could have no effect on petitioner's right to receive the stipend during that school year (75 Cal. App. 3d 332, 339) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.46

§ 211.46 Supporting Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Lawful Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--Nonsupervisory Certificated Employee as Required to Be Classified on Basis of Uniform Allowance for Years of Training and Experience [Educ. Code § 45028]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.20.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD OF A SCHOOL DISTRICT TO PAY PETITIONER HIS/HER LAWFUL SALARY IS PROPER BECAUSE THE GOVERNING BOARD HAS FAILED TO CLASSIFY HIM/HER FOR SALARY PURPOSES ON THE BASIS OF A UNIFORM ALLOWANCE FOR YEARS OF TRAINING AND YEARS OF EXPERIENCE, AS REQUIRED BY SECTION 45028 OF THE EDUCATION CODE.

A. Mandate as Proper to Compel Performance of Duty or Enjoyment of Right. [See § 211.20, Paragraph A.]

B. Mandate as Proper to Compel Payment of Salary by School District. [See § 211.45, Paragraph B.]

C. Certificated Employees as Required to Be Classified for Salary Purposes on Basis of Uniform Allowance for Years of Training and Experience. Each person employed by a school district in a position requiring certification qualifications, except a supervisory or administrative position, must be classified on the salary schedule strictly on the basis of a uniform allowance for years of training and years of experience, unless a collective bargaining agreement provides a salary schedule based on other criteria (Educ. Code § 45028(a)(1); Palos Verdes Faculty Assn. v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 650, 660-662, 147 Cal. Rptr. 359, 580 P.2d 1155).

[Optional] D. Uniform Allowance for Outside Experience. Under Section 45028 of the Education Code, where a school district, for salary classification purposes, grants credit to employee for outside teaching experience, such credit must be made available on a uniform basis to all employees in the district, regardless of when the employee was first employed (Palos Verdes Faculty Assn. v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 650, 660-664, 147 Cal. Rptr. 359, 580 P.2d 1155).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a petition for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to pay a certificated employee his or her lawful salary where the school has failed to classify petitioner on the salary schedule on the basis of a uniform allowance for years of training and experience.

Optional Paragraph D may be included where the school district has granted credit for outside teaching experience on less than a uniform basis to all teachers in the district.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for a writ of mandate to compel the governing board of a school district to pay a certificated employee his or her lawful salary, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Certificated Employees as Required to Be Classified for Salary Purposes on Basis of Uniform Allowance for Years of Training and Experience

Palos Verdes Faculty Assn. v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 650, 147 Cal. Rptr. 359, 580 P.2d 1155 , involved an appeal from a judgment ordering issuance of a writ of mandate directing defendant school district to place plaintiff on a step of its salary schedule commensurate with his years of teaching in both public and private schools and to pay certain elements of back salary. Plaintiff, at the time he was hired by defendant school district, had prior teaching experience consisting of one year in the public schools and five years at an accredited private school. At that time, however, defendant's policy relating to credit for outside teaching experience for purposes of salary classification allowed credit only for service in the public schools. Accordingly, plaintiff was given only one year's outside service credit. The district later amended its policy to allow incoming teachers credit for service in any properly accredited private school. Subsequently, plaintiff requested that he be reclassified on the salary schedule on the basis of the new policy. When this request was rejected, he sought a writ of mandate in superior court. The trial court ordered issuance of the writ, holding that former Educ. Code § 13506 (now Educ. Code § 45028), as amended, required that plaintiff be placed on the salary schedule as requested.

On appeal by the district, the Supreme Court affirmed. The Court first noted that prior to its amendment in 1969, former Educ. Code § 13506 had been interpreted as permitting governing boards to make credit for outside teaching experience available on a less than uniform basis to teachers within the system, as long as such classifications were not arbitrary, discriminatory, or unreasonable (21 Cal. 3d 650, 655-657) . The Court stated, however, that the intent of the Legislature in amending former Educ. Code § 13506 (now Educ. Code § 45028) was to establish a uniform base salary schedule in each school district (21 Cal. 3d 650 , 660). Thus, the Court held, the new statute had the two-fold purpose of (1) requiring that teachers be classified for salary purposes, and (2) establishing that such classification proceed wholly on a uniform basis of years of training andyears of experience. One effect of this action was to eliminate the possibility of situations in which a district, while granting a given maximum of credit for outside experience, makes such credit available on less than a uniform basis to all teachers (21 Cal. 3d 650, 661) . The Court concluded that under the amended version of the statute, certificated employees not occupying supervisory or administrative positions must be classified for salary purposes strictly according to years of training and experience up to the applicable maximum and that the principle of reasonable classification may no longer be employed to justify variations from such uniform treatment on basis of considerations such as stabilizing continuity of service, attracting new teachers, or policy changes necessitated by employment needs (21 Cal. 3d 650, 662) . Accordingly, the Court held that plaintiff had to be reclassified for salary purposes in accordance with the district's new rule, allowing credit for prior teaching experience in private as well as public schools (21 Cal. 3d 650, 665) .

NOTE:

Counsel should note that the applicability of the above authorities is limited in cases in which a teacher's employment is governed by a collective bargaining agreement. Notwithstanding Educ. Code § 45028, a district and the exclusive bargaining representative of its certificated employees must, on the request of either, meet and negotiate regarding the payment of additional compensation based on criteria other than training and years of experience [Educ. Code § 45028(a)(1); see Educ. Code § 3540 et seq.; see also Educ. Code § 45028(e) (encouraging public-school employers and teachers' exclusive representatives to recognize teacher contributions to improving pupil achievement, provide incentives to teachers to accept teaching assignments in areas of highest need, and recognize relevant professional experience on salary schedule in lieu of units and degrees or in lieu of teaching experience)]. If the parties do not reach mutual agreement, then Educ. Code § 45028 applies [Gov. Code § 3543.2(d); see United Teachers of Ukiah v. Board of Education (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 632, 636-640, 251 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; see also Dixon v. Board of Trustees (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1269, 1280, 265 Cal. Rptr. 511] . However, Gov. Code § 3543.2(d) does not provide blanket authority for the parties to a collective bargaining agreement to deviate from Educ. Code § 45028 in any manner they choose. Years of training and years of experience are the only criteria allowable in setting base salaries. Gov. Code § 3543.2(d) then allows for the parties to the CBA to agree on additional compensation. However, there must be some particularized bargained-for criteria, other than years of training and years of experience, to support disparate pay between teachers with like training and experience [California Teachers' Assn. v. Livingston Union School Dist. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1503, 1522-1523, 269 Cal. Rptr. 160 ; San Francisco Classroom Teachers Assn. v. San Francisco Unified School Dist. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 627, 635, 242 Cal. Rptr. 352] . Thus, if teacher salary schedules are based solely on education and experience, with no other criteria established by the applicable collective bargaining agreement, the salary schedules must be wholly uniform, and teachers with the same education and experience must receive the same salary (Adair v. Stockton Unified Sch. Dist. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1436, 1444-1447, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 62). For general discussion of the permissible scope of bargaining regarding compensation of public school certificated employees, see Zerger et al., California Public Sector Labor Relations, Chapter 11, Part A.

[b] Uniform Allowance for Outside Experience

Palos Verdes Faculty Assn. v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 650, 147 Cal. Rptr. 359, 580 P.2d 1155 , is discussed in § 211.46[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Certificated Employees as Required to Be Classified for Salary Purposes on Basis of Uniform Allowance for Years of Training and Experience

In California Teachers Assn. v. Governing Board (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 695, 280 Cal. Rptr. 286 , the court of appeal found that several salary rules of the Lancaster School District violated the uniformity requirement of Educ. Code § 45028. First, the court held that disparate treatment of teachers hired before and after the effective date of Educ. Code § 45028 is not permitted, and that the district could not "grandfather" in nonuniform treatment on the ground that the policy predated the statute (229 Cal. App. 3d 695, 701) .

The court also held that the district could not freeze future salary increases, despite acquisition of additional years of experience, because a teacher failed to complete additional training within a period of time [see Wygant v. Victor Valley Joint Union High School Dist. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 319, 329, 214 Cal. Rptr. 205] (229 Cal. App. 3d 695, 702-703) .

Finally, the court held that the district could not limit the number of classification advances for training that a teacher may obtain to one per year. Such a limitation creates a lack of uniformity among teachers with the same training and experience based on the amount of time it takes a teacher to achieve the level of training (229 Cal. App. 3d 695, 703-704) .

Wygant v. Victor Valley Joint Union High School Dist. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 319, 214 Cal. Rptr. 205 , was a mandate proceeding by a teacher and a teachers' association based on dispute over the school district's professional growth policy. The policy required certificated teachers to earn a certain number of professional growth units within an allotted time period. Failure to earn the units subjected a teacher to denial of credit for years of experience as a teacher, and ultimately to be denied salary increases based on years of experience. The trial court issued a writ of mandate to compel the district to reclassify the teacher and raise her salary and commanded the district to rescind the policy. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the policy, both on its face and as applied, violated Educ. Code § 45028 because it did not treat years of training and years of experience uniformly for salary purposes, as required by the statute (168 Cal. App. 3d 319, 326-331) .

California Teachers Assn. v. Board of Education (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 826, 181 Cal. Rptr. 432 , was a mandate proceeding by state and local teachers' associations to compel a city school district and its superintendent to eliminate its rule governing salary advance of certificated teachers. The rule limited a teacher who advanced on the salary schedule from one column to the next, on attainment of a higher educational level, to a one-step increase for experience even though the teacher had additional years of experience and the new column had steps for those additional years of experience.

The trial court denied the writ and dismissed the petition. The court of appeal reversed, except to the extent that the judgment dismissed that part of the petition relating to claims barred by the statute of limitations (129 Cal. App. 3d 826, 834) . The court of appeal held that the district's rule contravened Educ. Code § 45028 (129 Cal. App. 3d 826, 828) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.47

§ 211.47 Opposing Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--Governing Board as Permitted to Lower Salaries Prior to Beginning of School Year

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT BE ISSUED TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT TO PAY PETITIONER THE PARTICULAR SALARY REQUESTED BECAUSE THE BOARD MAY REDUCE AN EMPLOYEE'S SALARY IN THE EXERCISE OF A REASONABLE DISCRETION AND BEFORE THE BEGINNING OF THE SCHOOL YEAR.

Governing Board as Permitted to Lower Salaries Before Beginning of School Year. The governing board of a school district may, in the exercise of a reasonable discretion and before the beginning of the school year, reduce the salary of a permanent employee with whom it had contracted in previous year to teach at a higher salary (Brown v. Hanford Elementary School Bd. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 170, 174, 69 Cal. Rptr. 154).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted to oppose a petition for a writ of mandate to compel payment of a particular salary by the governing board of a school district. The ground of opposition is that the governing board lowered the employee's salary in the exercise of a reasonable discretion and before the beginning of the school year.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for a writ of mandate to compel payment of salary by the governing board of a school district to a certificated employee, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition in this set.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Governing Board as Permitted to Lower Salaries Before Beginning of School Year

Brown v. Hanford Elementary School Bd. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 170, 69 Cal. Rptr. 154 , was an appeal from a trial court judgment denying a writ of mandate to compel respondent governing board to restore an additional sum of $200 to the salary of two permanent teachers. The board had, in fixing the salaries of the two teachers for the school year 1956-1957, provided that they should be paid the $200 sum in addition to their regular salary in recognition of their holding valid credentials to teach mentally retarded students. The contracts of each teacher provided for the $200 sum for each succeeding year until 1964-1965, when the board eliminated the extra $200 for these teachers. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the teachers did not gain tenure as to a particular salary classification which included the $200 bonus (263 Cal. App. 2d 170, 172) . The court reviewed previous decisions [see, e.g., San Diego Fed'n of Teachers v. Board of Educ. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 758, 762, 31 Cal. Rptr. 146 ; Fidler v. Board of Trustees (1931) 112 Cal. App. 296, 300-302, 304, 296 P. 912] and noted that they established the principle that a school board can, in the exercise of a reasonable discretion and before the beginning of the school year, reduce the salary of a permanent teacher with whom it had contracted in previous years to teach at a higher salary (263 Cal. App. 2d 170, 174) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.48

§ 211.48 Opposing Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Review School District Decision Reducing Teacher Hours and Wages

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

A WRIT OF MANDATE SHOULD NOT ISSUE TO COMPEL A SCHOOL DISTRICT TO RESTORE HOURS TO AN EMPLOYEE WORK SCHEDULE OR COMPENSATE AN EMPLOYEE FOR RESULTING LOST WAGES--NOTICE AND HEARING REQUIREMENTS OF EDUCATION CODE SECTIONS 44949, 44955 ARE NOT APPLICABLE.

A. Notice and Hearing Procedures Not Required Unless Permanent Employee Terminated. Notice and hearing procedures set forth in Education Code Sections 44949 and 44955 are required only when permanent employees are "terminated," and not when teacher hours are reduced in response to legitimate fiscal pressures (Black v. Compton Unified School Dist. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 493, 500, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140).

B. Termination Not Accomplished by Partial Reduction in Work Hours. Termination, for purposes of Education Code Sections 44949 and 44955, does not occur because of a reduction in the hours of employment, when teachers continue as "full-time" employees, working at least 20 hours per week with no loss in benefits (Black v. Compton Unified School Dist. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 493, 500, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to compel a school district to restore teacher hours and to provide compensation for lost wages resulting from those reductions, because of an alleged failure to comply with notice and hearing requirements.

[b] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Notice and Hearing Procedures Not Required Unless Permanent Employee Terminated

In Black v. Compton Unified School Dist. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 493, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140 , teachers filed an action to compel the school district to restore teacher hours and lost wages, which were reduced due to a district fiscal crisis. The teachers complained that they had been "partially" or "constructively" terminated and that the district had failed to comply with the notice and hearing procedures required under Educ. Code §§ 44949 and 44955; however, the court held that such procedures were not required when teacher hours were merely reduced in the range of 5.7 to 17.6 percent and teachers remained full time employees with no loss in benefits (46 Cal. App. 4th 493, 500) .

[b] Termination Not Accomplished by Partial Reduction in Work Hours

Black v. Compton Unified School Dist. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 493, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140 , is discussed in § 211.48[3][a].

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.49

§ 211.49 Opposing Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--Certain Pay Incentive Programs as Permitted

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

MANDATE IS NOT PROPER TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT TO PAY PETITIONER THE SALARY DEMANDED BECAUSE THE BOARD IS PERMITTED TO DEFINE EXPERIENCE FOR PURPOSES OF SALARY CLASSIFICATION, PROVIDED THAT THE DEFINITION UNIFORMLY APPLIES TO ALL EMPLOYEES, AND PETITIONER DID NOT POSSESS THE EXPERIENCE REQUIRED TO QUALIFY FOR THE SALARY DEMANDED.

A. School Board Permitted to Define Experience for Purposes of Salary Classification. Under Section 45028 of the Education Code, which provides that, unless a collective bargaining agreement provides a salary schedule based on other criteria, all certificated employees must be classified on the salary schedule on the basis of a uniform allowance for years of training and years of experience, the governing board of a school district is free to define "experience" for purposes of its salary schedule, provided that the definition applies uniformly to all teachersemployed by the district (Mayer v. Board of Trustees (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 476, 487, 165 Cal. Rptr. 655).

[Optional] B. Pay Incentive Program as Permitted. A pay incentive program which conditions advancement to the next step of the salary schedule on receipt of a satisfactory evaluation of the previous year's service, and which applies to all employees alike, does not violate Section 45028 of the Education Code (Mayer v. Board of Trustees (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 476, 487-495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 655).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition to the superior court for a writ of mandate to compel payment of salary by the governing board of a school district to a certificated employee. The ground of opposition is that the board is free to define the experience required for a particular salary classification and that petitioner did not have the experience required for the salary demanded. Optional Paragraph B may be included if the board properly declined to advance the employee to the next step on the salary schedule pursuant to a pay incentive program which conditions advancement to the next step on the salary schedule on satisfactory completion of the previous year's service, and which is uniformly applicable to all certificated employees. In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 211.46.

Where appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for a writ of mandate to compel payment of salary by the governing board of a school district to a certificated employee, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] School Board Permitted to Define Experience for Purposes of Salary Classification

In Mayer v. Board of Trustees (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 476, 165 Cal. Rptr. 655 , the salaries of teachers in a school district were governed by a collective bargaining agreement which provided, in part, that at the end of each year a teacher would be advanced to the next step on the salary schedule, provided that he or she received a satisfactory performance rating for the previous year's service. If the rating were unsatisfactory, the teacher would be denied a salary increase for the ensuing school year. Petitioners received unsatisfactory ratings for a certain school year and were denied salary increases for the subsequent year pursuant to the agreement. They petitioned the superior court for a writ of mandate which, if granted, would have required the governing board of the district to pay them the difference between the salary they would have earned had they received satisfactory performance ratings and the salary they actually earned. Petitioners also prayed that the district be ordered to cease and desist from enforcing any policy whereby salary increases were conditioned on the teachers' receipt of satisfactory performance ratings. The trial court entered judgment for the petitioners, finding that the collective bargaining contract's condition of satisfactory performance to qualify for pay increases violated Educ. Code § 45028, which requires that certificated employees be classified on the salary schedule on the basis of a uniform allowance for years of training and years of experience. The board appealed from the judgment.

The court of appeal reversed. It held that under the amended version of Educ. Code § 45028 (formerly Educ. Code § 13506), a school district is still free to define "experience" for purposes of its salary schedule, provided that the definition applies uniformly to all teachers employed by the district. The court observed that this is precisely what the collective bargaining agreement in this case did. If defined a year of experience within the district's employment as one for which the teacher has received a satisfactory evaluation, and the provision applied to all teachers alike (106 Cal. App. 3d 476, 487) . The court noted that cases decided prior to the 1969 amendment of the section had established that despite the legislative requirement of uniformity of salary treatment of teachers based on their years of experience, a school district could adopt differential salaries based on professional competence or the lack of it (106 Cal. App. 3d 476, 489-493) . The court concluded that the subsequent amendment to the section did not affect the validity of those holdings (106 Cal. App. 3d 476, 493-495) and that pay incentive program such as the one involved in this case do not contravene Educ. Code § 45028 (106 Cal. App. 3d 476, 495) .

[b] Pay Incentive Program as Permitted

Mayer v. Board of Trustees (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 476, 165 Cal. Rptr. 655 , is discussed in § 211.49[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 211 SCHOOLS: CERTIFICATION, DISMISSAL, AND RELATED EMPLOYMENT ISSUES
PART II. FORMS

21-211 California Points & Authorities § 211.50

§ 211.50 Opposing Employee's Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] to Compel Payment of Salary by Governing Board to School District Employee--District Permitted to Grant Differential Credit for Purposes of Initial Placement on Salary Schedule [Educ. Code § 45028(b)]

[1] FORM

[Caption. See § 211.23.]

MANDATE IS NOT PROPER TO COMPEL THE GOVERNING BOARD OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT TO PAY PETITIONER THE SALARY DEMANDED BECAUSE THE DISTRICT IS PERMITTED, WITH THE AGREEMENT OF THE EXCLUSIVE REPRESENTATIVE OF CERTIFICATED EMPLOYEES, TO GRANT DIFFERENTIAL CREDIT FOR PRIOR YEARS OF EXPERIENCE OR PRIOR UNITS OF CREDIT FOR PURPOSES OF AN EMPLOYEE'S INITIAL PLACEMENT ON THE DISTRICT'S SALARY SCHEDULE.

District Permitted to Grant Differential Credit for Purposes of Initial Placement on Salary Schedule. It is not a violation of the uniformity requirement of Education Code section 45028 for a school district, with the agreement of the certificated employees' exclusive representative, if any, to grant any employee, who is hired after a locally specified date, differential credit for prior years of experience or prior units of credit for purposes of initial placement on the district's salary schedule (Educ. Code § 45028(b)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a petition for a writ of mandate to compel payment of salary by the governing board of a school district to a certificated employee. The ground of opposition is that the board is free, with the agreement of the certificated employees' bargaining representative, to grant an employee hired after a certain date differential credit for prior years of experience or prior units of credit for purposes of initial placement on the district's salary schedule [see Educ. Code § 45028(b)]. In an appropriate case these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the points and authorities set out in § 211.46.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a form of petition for writ of mandate to compel payment of salary by the governing board of a school district to a certificated employee, see Ch. 512, Schools in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] District Permitted to Grant Differential Credit for Purposes of Initial Placement on Salary Schedule

Educ. Code § 45028(b) provides that it is not a violation of the uniformity requirement of Educ. Code § 45028 for a district, with the agreement of the exclusive representative of certificated employees, if any, to grant any employee hired after a locally specified date differential credit for prior years of experience or prior units of credit for purposes of initial placement on the district's salary schedule. The subdivision, enacted by the Legislature in 1988, is by its own terms declaratory of existing law [Educ. Code § 45028(b); see Stats. 1988, ch. 1461, § 19.7].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME

21-212 California Points & Authorities 212.syn

§ 212.syn Synopsis to Chapter 212: SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME

§ 212.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 212.02 Governing Law

§ 212.03 Necessity for Memoranda of Points and Authorities

§ 212.04 Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

§ 212.05 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

§ 212.06 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 212.07 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 212.08-212.09 [Reserved]

§ 212.10 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Construction

[b] Showing Good Cause

[c] Timely Application

[d] Before Whom Heard

§ 212.11 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054]--For Filing of Cost Bill Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extension of Time to File Cost Bill

§ 212.12 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time--To Answer or Otherwise Plead to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a), 1054]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Uses

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Construction

[b] Showing Good Cause

[c] Timely Application

[d] Extensions in Excess of 30 Days as Permissible With Adverse Party's Consent

[e] Before Whom Heard

§ 212.13 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Vacating Order Extending Time to Answer or Otherwise Plead to the Complaint

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inherent Equitable Power of Court to Vacate Orders

[b] Order Extending Time Made After Expiration of Time for Answer

[c] Extension for More Than 30 Days

[d] Setting Aside Ex Parte Order Based on Inadvertence, Mistake, or Fraud

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Order Extending Time Made After Expiration of Time for Answer

§ 212.14 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time--Attorney Member of Legislature [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] When Extension Not Mandatory

[d] Code of Civil Procedure Sections 595 and 1054.1

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandatory Extension for Attorney Member of Legislature

[b] Liberal Construction

[c] Timely Application

[d] Before Whom Heard

§ 212.15 Opposing Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time--Attorney Member of Legislature [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1]--Within Court's Discretion

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Objection on Ground of Untimeliness

[d] Motion to Vacate

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extension for Attorney Legislator as Discretionary

[b] Right to Relief Pendente Lite in a Paternity Action

[c] Right to Invoke a Provisional Remedy

[d] Nature and Urgency of Rights Involved

[e] Availability of Other Counsel

[f] Purposeful Delay

§§ 212.16-212.29 [Reserved]

§ 212.30 Supporting Application for Order Shortening Time for Notice of Motion or for Order to Show Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Order to Show Cause

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.01

§ 212.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains forms of memoranda for use in supporting [see §§ 212.10 -212.12, 212.14] and opposing [see § 212.15] an application or motion to extend time and for supporting an application for shortening time for notice of motion [see § 212.30].

A form of memorandum is also included for supporting an application or motion to vacate an order extending time [see § 212.13].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsExtensions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.02

§ 212.02 Governing Law

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 is the general section governing extensions of time. Code Civ. Proc. § 473 governs extensions of time relating to answers and demurrers, while Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) governs extension and shortening of time relating to notices of motion.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 governs extensions for an attorney attending the Legislature while Code Civ. Proc. § 595 governs postponements when an attorney, party, or witness is attending the Legislature.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20 governs extension of time before the trial courts, respectively. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(b) governs shortening of time in law and motion proceedings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1100].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsExtensions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.03

§ 212.03 Necessity for Memoranda of Points and Authorities

An order shortening or extending time may be obtained either through the use of a noticed motion or an application for an ex parte order. Frequently the nature of the order sought dictates the use of an application for an ex parte order since there is not enough time for a noticed motion.

The forms of memoranda in this chapter can be used to support either a noticed motion or an application for an ex parte order. A supporting memorandum must be included with either a motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a)], or an application for an ex parte order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1200 et seq.]; however, a memorandum is not required, but may be filed, if seeking an ex parte application for extension of time to serve pleadings and the application is filed on a Judicial Council form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(a)(2), (b)]. For a illustration of Judicial Council Form CM-020, Ex Parte Application for Extension of Time to Serve Pleadings and Orders, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time, § 524.53A (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsExtensions

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.04

§ 212.04 Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

Superior courts in all California counties are required to implement delay reduction programs [Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68607, 68620(a)]. Under Gov. Code § 68607 the trial judge is given the responsibility to maintain control over the pace of litigation. This responsibility includes the duty, consistent with statute, to adopt and use a firm, consistent policy against continuances, to the maximum extent possible and reasonable, in all stages of the litigation [Gov. Code § 68607(g)].

Be sure also to review the statute for the procedures involved, because in some cases the court is without authority to shorten some time periods [see McMahon v. Superior Court (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 112, 118, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407 (75-day notice period for summary judgment cannot be shortened by order of court)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsExtensionsCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersContinuances

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.05

§ 212.05 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

Generally, a supporting or opposing memorandum must not exceed 15 pages in length, or, in the case of a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, 20 pages in length. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. The page limit does not include exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, or the proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. For further discussion of the page limitations under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113, and of other basic format requirements of memoranda, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of Law

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.06

§ 212.06 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion and forms relating to shortening and extension of time, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time (Matthew Bender).

For a discussion of and forms for obtaining continuances, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 136, Continuances (Matthew Bender).

For a discussion of and forms relating to extending and/or shortening the time relating to discovery proceedings, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 193, Discovery: Depositions , Ch. 194, Discovery: Interrogatories , Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence , and Ch. 196, Discovery: Requests for Admissions (Matthew Bender).

For a discussion of and forms for noticed and ex parte motions, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 372, Motions and Orders (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsExtensionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.07

§ 212.07 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

Memoranda of points and authorities that may be used in supporting or opposing motions for continuance or advancement of proceedings may be found in Ch. 48, Continuance of Proceedings .

Memoranda of points and authorities that may be used in supporting or opposing motions for relief from failure to timely file a cost bill may be found in Ch. 60, Costs .

Memoranda of points and authorities that may be used in supporting or opposing motions to set aside defaults may be found in Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-212 California Points & Authorities §§ 212.08-212.09

[Reserved]

§§ 212.08[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. FORMS

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.10

§ 212.10 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054]--General Form

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF
vs.	)	_____'S [specify party, e.g., DE-
_____ [name],	)	FENDANT] _____
Defendant.	)	[APPLICATION or MOTION] FOR AN ORDER
	)	EXTENDING TIME TO _____
	)	[specify act to be done as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1054]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____
		[Judge: _____]
		Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

THE COURT MAY EXTEND THE TIME FOR ANY ACT RELATING TO _____ [THE PLEADINGS or AMENDMENTS TO THE PLEADING or THE PREPARATION OF BILLS OF EXCEPTIONS or AMENDMENTS TO BILLS OF EXCEPTIONS OR PLEADINGS or THE SERVICE OF NOTICES].

A. Extension for Act Under Code of Civil Procedure. When an act to be done, as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure, relates to the pleadings in the action, or the preparation of bills of exceptions, or of amendments thereto, or to the service of notices other than of appeal and of intention to move for a new trial, the time allowed for performance may be extended (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054).

B. Liberal Construction. Section 1054 of the Code of Civil Procedure is to be liberally construed with a view to effect its objects and to promote justice (see Code Civ. Proc. § 4).

C. Showing Good Cause. The party seeking the extension must make a showing of good cause for the extension (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054). The concept of good cause should not be enshrined in legal formalism; it calls for a factual exposition of a reasonable ground for the order sought. The good cause may be equated to a good reason for a party's failure to perform the specific requirement from which he or she seeks to be excused (Waters v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 885, 893, 27 Cal. Rptr. 153, 377 P.2d 265).

D. Timely Application. An order extending time must be entered during the period within which the act must be performed (see Coast Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124, 126, 295 P.2d 346).

[Optional] E. Extension in Excess of 30 Days With Adverse Party's Consent. The court may grant an extension in excess of 30 days, with the consent of the adverse party (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1054).

[Optional] F. Extensions Pursuant to Stipulation Excluded From 30-Day Limit. Previous extensions pursuant to stipulation are excluded in the computation of the 30-day limitation upon extensions of time allowed by court order (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054).

G. Before Whom Heard. _____ [Applications or Motions] for extensions of time must be heard and determined by the judge before whom the matter is pending or by the judge who presided at the trial (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 [if form is to be used in support of application add ; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a)]).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be used in support of either an application for an ex parte order extending time or a notice of motion for an order extending time. It is a general form that sets out the authority of the court to extend time and outlines the general guidelines for the exercise of the court's discretion.

For a discussion of the use of memoranda of points and authorities to support ex parte applications and noticed motions, see the discussion in § 212.03.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should demonstrate why the facts of the current situation constitute good cause for the extension. Counsel should show that the motion is timely by informing the court, in a declaration, of when performance is currently due.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of application and declaration for an ex parte order extending time, and a form of order extending time, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Construction

Code Civ. Proc. § 4 is a general statute mandating that all provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure and all proceedings under it are to be liberally construed with a view to effect their objects and to promote justice.

[b] Showing Good Cause

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 provides for extensions by court order only on a showing of good cause. Although to date, there have been no reported cases specifically interpreting "good cause" under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, in Waters v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 885, 27 Cal. Rptr. 153, 377 P.2d 265 , the Supreme Court found the presence of and defined "good cause" as required under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2019(a)(3) for an order to take a deposition without notice to an unserved defendant. That statement, discussed below, has been repeated as a definition of good cause under several other statutes and has been widely accepted as a general definition of good cause [see Ontario v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 335, 345-346, 85 Cal. Rptr. 149, 466 P.2d 693 (good cause for failure to comply with requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 863 relating to publication of summons in certain actions against public agencies); United States Postal Serv. v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 506, 514, 134 Cal. Rptr. 19 (good cause under Unemp. Ins. Code § 1328 for filing late appeal from original determination of Department of Human Resources Development); Conservatorship of Gray (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 513, 521, 90 Cal. Rptr. 776 (good cause under Prob. Code § 2201 for appointment of a temporary conservator)].

Waters calls for a showing of good cause which consists of a factual exposition of a reasonable ground for the sought order, and which may be equated to a good reason for a party's failure to perform the specific requirement from which the party seeks to be excused (58 C2d 885, 893) .

Therefore, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, the party seeking an extension should make a factual showing of good cause which consists of an exposition of a reasonable ground for the order extending time, that is, which shows a good reason to excuse the party from doing the particular act in question within the required time.

[c] Timely Application

In Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124 , the trial court made an ex parte order, three days after the expiration of the statutory period, extending the time in which the plaintiff could file its memorandum of costs. The memorandum of costs was filed within this extended period. In holding that the defendant's motion to strike the memorandum should have been granted, the court of appeal stated that it is well settled that orders of extension granted pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 must be made during the period of time within which the act may be done, that is, while the right is still alive; if made after the expiration of such period, the orders are void and confer no legal authority for the doing of the act (111 Cal. App. 124, 126) .

[d] Before Whom Heard

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 requires that extensions be granted by the judge of the court in which the action is pending, or by the judge who presided at the trial of the action.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a) , requires that applications for orders extending time be heard and determined by the judge before whom the matter is pending, provided, however, that in case of the inability, death or absence of this judge, the application may be heard and determined by another judge of the same court.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. FORMS

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.11

§ 212.11 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054]--For Filing of Cost Bill Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF Plaintiff,	)	_____'S [specify party, e.g.,
vs.	)	PLAINTIFF] _____
_____ [name],	)	[APPLICATION or MOTION] FOR ORDER EX-
Defendant.	)	TENDING TIME FOR FILING COST BILL
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT MAY EXTEND THE TIME FOR FILING A COST BILL.

A. Extension for Act Under Code of Civil Procedure. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Extension of Time to File Cost Bill. Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 empowers the court to extend the time for filing a cost-bill (Beilby v. Superior Court (1902) 138 Cal. 51, 52, 70 P. 1024).

C. Liberal Construction. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph B.]

D. Showing Good Cause. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph C.]

E. Timely Application. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph D.]

[Optional] F. Extensions in Excess of 30 Days With Adverse Party's Consent. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph E.]

[Optional] G. Extensions Pursuant to Stipulation Excluded From 30-Day Limit. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph F.]

H. Before Whom Heard. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph G.]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum of points and authorities may be used in support of either an application for an ex parte order or a notice of motion for an order extending time for filing a cost bill. It sets out the general guidelines for the exercise of the court's discretion in granting any extension under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 as well as specific case authority recognizing the court's power to extend the time for filing a cost bill.

For a discussion of the use of memoranda of points and authorities to support ex parte applications and noticed motions, see the discussion in § 212.03.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should be certain to demonstrate why the facts of his or her case constitute good cause for an extension of time to file the cost bill.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion forms, and a procedural checklist relating to costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

For a general form of application and declaration for an ex parte order extending time and for a form of order extending time, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time , in that publication.

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For additional memoranda of points and authorities relating to cost bills, see Ch. 60, Costs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extension of Time to File Cost Bill

In Beilby v. Superior Court (1902) 138 Cal. 51, 70 P. 1024 , there was a verdict for defendant. Defendant filed his cost bill within an extension of time granted by the trial judge. The California Supreme Court rejected the argument of the plaintiff that the trial judge lacked the power to extend the time for the filing of the cost bill. It held that the service and filing of a cost bill is within a proper construction of Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 because it is "substantially a notice other than of appeal" (138 Cal. 51, 52) . At the time Beilby was decided, Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 provided for extension of time for acts to be done as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure relating "to the service of notices other than of appeal." It was later amended to provide for extensions relating to "notices other than of appeal and of intention to move for a new trial."

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. FORMS

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.12

§ 212.12 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time--To Answer or Otherwise Plead to Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a), 1054]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFEND-Defendant.	)	ANT'S _____ [APPLICATION or
	)	MOTION] TO EXTEND TIME TO ANSWER OR )	OTHERWISE PLEAD TO COMPLAINT

_____

THE COURT MAY EXTEND THE TIME WITHIN WHICH A DEFENDANT MAY ANSWER OR OTHERWISE PLEAD TO THE COMPLAINT.

A. Extension for Answer or Demurrer. The court may, in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as may be proper, enlarge the time for answer or demurrer (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)).

B. Extension for Act Under Code of Civil Procedure. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph A.]

C. Liberal Construction. Sections 1054 and 473 of the Code of Civil Procedure are to be liberally construed with a view to effect their objects and to promote justice (see Code Civ. Proc. § 4).

D. Showing Good Cause. Section 1054 of the Code of Civil Procedure requires the party seeking the extension to make a showing of "good cause" for the extension and Section 473 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides for an extension in furtherance of justice (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a), 1054). The concept of good cause should not be enshrined in legal formalism; it calls for a factual exposition of a reasonable ground for the sought order. The good cause may be equated to a good reason for a party's failure to perform that specific requirement from which he or she seeks to be excused (Waters v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 885, 893, 27 Cal. Rptr. 153, 377 P.2d 265).

E. Timely Application. An order extending time must be entered during the period within which the act must be performed (see Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124, 126).

[Optional] F. Extensions in Excess of 30 Days as Permissible With Adverse Party's Consent. An extension pursuant to Section 1054 of the Code of Civil Procedure for an act relating to the pleadings may be granted for more than 30 days with the consent of the adverse party (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054). Although Section 473 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not specifically limit the length of the extension the court may grant to answer or demur, generally extensions under the Code of Civil Procedure have been held to be governed by the time requirements set out in Section 1054 of the Code of Civil Procedure, even if made pursuant to a statute without an express limit on the length of the permitted extension (see Lewith v. Rehmke (1933) 217 Cal. 563, 565, 20 P.2d 687).

[Optional] G. Extensions Pursuant to Stipulation Excluded From 30-Day Limit. [See § 212.10[1], Paragraph F.]

H. Before Whom Heard. _____ [Applications or Motions] for extension of time to answer or otherwise plead must be heard and determined by the judge before whom the matter is pending (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 [if form is to be used to support application add; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a)]).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be used in support of either an application for an ex parte order or a notice of motion for an order extending time to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint. The form sets out the authority of the court to extend the time to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint and outlines the general guidelines for the exercise of the court's discretion.

For a discussion of the use of memoranda to support ex parte applications, see the discussion in § 212.03.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should be certain to demonstrate why the facts of his or her case constitute good cause for an extension of time to file a responsive pleading to the complaint.

[c] Related Uses

With slight modification this memorandum of points and authorities may be used by a cross defendant seeking an order extending the time within which to file a responsive pleading to the cross complaint.

[d] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of application and declaration for an ex parte order extending time for answer and for a form of order extending time to answer or otherwise plead, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Liberal Construction

Code Civ. Proc. § 4 is a general provision mandating that all provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure and all proceedings under it are to be liberally construed with a view to effect their objects and to promote justice.

[b] Showing Good Cause

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 requires a showing of good cause for an order extending time. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 473 does not use the term "good cause," it does provide for an order extending time "in furtherance of justice," a term which may logically be equated with "good cause." Counsel may therefore insert argument in this paragraph that these two terms should be equated with the definition of "good cause" from Waters, below, applying to both Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1054 and 473.

The term "good cause" was defined in Waters v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 885, 27 Cal. Rptr. 153, 377 P.2d 265 , which is discussed in § 212.10[3][b].

[c] Timely Application

Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124 , is discussed in § 212.10[3][c]. Although this case was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, it is most likely that the logic of the case, that an extension must be granted while the right is still alive, would also apply to an extension based on Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a). Furthermore, since Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1054 and 473(a) both relate to extensions of time relating to the pleadings, it would be unjust to allow a party to obtain an extension under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a) after the time to perform the act had run, while the same extension is not allowed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.

[d] Extensions in Excess of 30 Days as Permissible With Adverse Party's Consent

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 provides that an extension under that section may not exceed 30 days without the consent of the adverse party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1054].

In Lewith v. Rehmke (1933) 217 Cal. 563, 20 P.2d 687 , the plaintiff appealed a judgment for defendant. Plaintiff obtained an extension of more than 30 days within which to prepare and serve his bill of exceptions. At that time, former Code Civ. Proc. § 650 required that the draft of a bill of exceptions be prepared and served within 10 days after notice of entry of an order denying a motion for new trial "or such further time as the court in which the action is pending, or a judge thereof, may allow." In holding that the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in granting an extension of more than 30 days, the Supreme Court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 650 did not authorize the court to grant an indefinite extension of time for the preparation and service of the draft, but that Code Civ. Proc. § 650 was to be read in connection with the restriction contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 on the length of the extension which may be allowed by the court (217 Cal. 563, 565) .

Therefore, it appears that Code Civ. Proc. § 473 should also be read as not authorizing the court to grant an indefinite extension to answer or demur. Rather, it is to be read in connection with the restriction contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 on the length of the extension which may be allowed for any act relating to the pleadings, as well as with the modification on that restriction, providing for an extension exceeding 30 days on the consent of the adverse party.

[e] Before Whom Heard

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 requires that extensions be granted by the judge of the court in which the action is pending. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a) requires that applications for orders extending time be heard and determined by the judge before whom the matter is pending; provided, however, that in case of the inability, death, or absence of this judge, the application may be heard and determined by another judge of the same court.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. FORMS

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.13

§ 212.13 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Vacating Order Extending Time to Answer or Otherwise Plead to the Complaint

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF'S
Defendant.	)	_____ [APPLICATION or MO-)	TION] FOR ORDER VACATING ORDER EX-)	TENDING TIME TO ANSWER OR OTHERWISE
		PLEAD

_____

THE COURT MAY VACATE AN ORDER EXTENDING TIME TO ANSWER WHEN THAT ORDER _____ [WAS ENTERED AFTER THE EXPIRATION OF TIME FOR DEFENDANT TO FILE HIS/HER/ITS ANSWER or EXTENDED THE TIME TO ANSWER MORE THAN 30 DAYS WITHOUT PLAINTIFF'S CONSENT or WAS ENTERED BECAUSE OF INADVERTENCE, MISTAKE, OR FRAUD].

A. Statutory Power of Court to Vacate Orders. Every court has the power to amend and control its process and orders to make them conform to law and justice (Code Civ. Proc. § 128(a)(8)).

B. Inherent Equitable Power of Court to Vacate Orders. Independent of statutory provisions, a court has power to correct mistakes in its proceedings, and to annul, within a reasonable time, orders and judgments inadvertently made (see Wiggin v. Superior Court (1886) 68 Cal. 398, 402, 9 P. 646).

[EITHER]

C. Order Extending Time Made After Expiration of Time for Answer. An order extending the time to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint must be made before expiration of the time to answer or otherwise plead. If made after the expiration of such time, the order is void (see Lantz v. Vai (1926) 199 Cal. 190, 194, 248 P. 665 ; Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124, 126).

[OR]

D. Extension for More Than 30 Days. The court may not, without the consent of the plaintiff, extend for more than 30 days the right of the defendant to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint. An order attempting to do so is void (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054; Thelander v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 811, 813, 26 Cal. Rptr. 643, 376 P.2d 571 ; Kennedy v. Mulligan (1902) 136 Cal. 556, 557, 69 P. 291 ; see also Lewith v. Rehmke (1933) 217 Cal. 563, 565, 20 P.2d 687).

[OR]

E. Setting Aside Ex Parte Order Based on Inadvertence, Mistake, or Fraud. A valid ex parte order may be vacated only after a showing that in the making of the original order there was inadvertence, mistake, or fraud (Wyoming Pacific Oil Co. v. Preston (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 736, 739, 329 P.2d 489 ; Sheldon v. Superior Court (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 406, 408, 108 P.2d 945).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum of points and authorities may be used in support of either an application or a noticed motion to vacate an order extending time to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint. Paragraphs A and B set out the statutory and inherent equitable power of the court to vacate its prior order. Paragraphs C, D, and E set out the alternative bases for setting aside an order extending time to answer or otherwise plead. Counsel should select and use whichever paragraph(s) is warranted by the particular facts. Paragraph C would be used when the order extending time is void because it was made after the expiration of time for the defendant to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint. Paragraph D would be used when the total extension(s) ordered by the court exceeds 30 days without plaintiff's consent. Paragraph E would be used whenever plaintiff can prove that the original order extending time was based on inadvertence, mistake, or fraud.

For a discussion of the use of memoranda of points and authorities to support ex parte applications, see the discussion in § 212.03.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, if counsel is proceeding under Paragraph E, he or she should indicate what precise facts constitute the inadvertence, mistake, or fraud on which the original order extending time was based.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inherent Equitable Power of Court to Vacate Orders

In Wiggin v. Superior Court (1886) 68 Cal. 398, 9 P. 646 , the superior court made a decree of final discharge of the administrator of an estate. Afterwards, on application of some of the heirs, the court made an order setting aside and vacating its decree of final discharge on the ground that such discharge was made "inadvertently and ex parte." A writ of prohibition was sought on the ground that the court lacked the jurisdiction to set aside its decree of final discharge. The Supreme Court, in denying the application for a writ of prohibition, recognized the inherent power of the trial court, independent of statutory provisions, to correct mistakes in its proceedings and to annul, within a reasonable time, orders and judgments inadvertently made (68 Cal. 398, 402) .

[b] Order Extending Time Made After Expiration of Time for Answer

In Lantz v. Vai (1926) 199 Cal. 190, 248 P. 665 , after the expiration of the prescribed period, plaintiff sought and obtained an order extending time to serve a proposed bill of exceptions. The Supreme Court held that the judge's order, granting the extension after the expiration of the statutory period within which to prepare the bill, was ineffective and properly ignored by the lower court (199 Cal. 190, 193-194) .

For a discussion of Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124 , see § 212.10[3][c]. The court in that case stated that an order extending time pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 must be made during the time within which the act could be done.

Although neither of these cases was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, it is most likely that the logic of these cases, that an extension must be granted while the right is still alive, would also apply to an extension based solely on Code Civ. Proc. § 473 without reference to Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.

[c] Extension for More Than 30 Days

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 provides that an extension of time to plead shall not exceed 30 days, without the consent of the adverse party.

In Thelander v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 811, 26 Cal. Rptr. 643, 376 P.2d 571 , defendant State of California was granted an extension to plead to the complaint until 30 days after the 91st day after the final adjournment of the 1963 Regular Session of the Legislature. In annulling the extension, the Supreme Court held that the order was directly contrary to the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, inasmuch as it extended the time for a period of more than 30 days without the consent of the adverse parties (58 Cal. 2d 811, 813) .

In Kennedy v. Mulligan (1902) 136 Cal. 556, 69 P. 291 , the trial court granted the defendant an order allowing him one day to appear and plead after the trial court ruled on his pending motion to dismiss. In affirming the trial court's subsequent order denying the motion to dismiss and ordering the entry of default against the defendant, the Supreme Court held that the order extending the time to plead was beyond the jurisdiction of the court and void because it was an attempt to extend the time to plead beyond 30 days without the consent of the plaintiff (136 Cal. 556, 557) .

For a discussion of Lewith v. Rehmke (1933) 217 Cal. 563, 20 P.2d 687 , and its applicability to Code Civ. Proc. § 473, which does not expressly limit extensions of time to answer or demur, see § 212.12[3][d].

[d] Setting Aside Ex Parte Order Based on Inadvertence, Mistake, or Fraud

In Wyoming Pac. Oil Co. v. Preston (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 736 , the plaintiff, almost three years after filing the complaint, obtained an ex parte order allowing service by publication based on affidavits that the defendant was hiding to avoid service. Shortly thereafter, the defendant was personally served. The defendant then made a motion to dismiss under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 et seq.] for failure to serve and return the summons within the three-year period. The trial court granted the motion. The Supreme Court reversed this order, holding that a dismissal under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a was improper where there has been a judicial determination that the defendant has been hiding to avoid service. Crucial to this holding was the fact that the ex parte order allowing service by publication was not vacated and could not have been vacated. A valid ex parte order may be vacated only after a showing that there was inadvertence, mistake, or fraud in its making (50 Cal. App. 2d 736, 739-740) .

In Sheldon v. Superior Court (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 406, 108 P.2d 945 , the probate court had appointed the petitioner as special administrator of an estate. Subsequently, the respondent obtained an order removing petitioner and appointing respondent as special administrator solely on the ground that respondent had a "prior right to act as special administratrix." The court of appeal annulled the order of removal because the probate court lacked the power to vacate its original, valid ex parte order of appointment absent a showing of inadvertence, mistake, or fraud in its issuance (42 Cal. App. 2d 406, 407-408) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Order Extending Time Made After Expiration of Time for Answer

In Manning v. Gavin (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 44, 92 P.2d 795 , the plaintiff sought an order extending the time within which to file a bill of exceptions. The order extending time was made after the expiration of the prescribed period for filing the bill. The Supreme Court stated that the trial court acted properly in subsequently granting the defendant's motion to set aside the order extending time. Although the Court did not state its reason, it was presumably because the order was made after expiration of the prescribed period (14 Cal. 2d 44, 45) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. FORMS

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.14

§ 212.14 Supporting Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time--Attorney Member of Legislature [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF DEFEND-
_____ [name],	)	ANT'S _____ [APPLICATION or Defendant.	)	MOTION] _____ [specify, e.g.,
	)	FOR ORDER EXTENDING TIME TO ANSWER
	)	OR OTHERWISE PLEAD TO COMPLAINT]
		[Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1]

_____

THE COURT MUST EXTEND THE TIME FOR _____ [specify, e.g., A DEFENDANT TO ANSWER OR OTHERWISE PLEAD TO THE COMPLAINT] WHEN HIS/HER/ITS ATTORNEY IS A MEMBER OF THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE AND _____ [THE LEGISLATURE IS IN _____ (SESSION or RECESS FOR LESS THAN 41 DAYS) or THE ATTORNEY IS A MEMBER OF A LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE WHICH _____ _____ (IS MEETING or IS TO MEET WITHIN A PERIOD NOT EXCEEDING THE TIME REASONABLY NECESSARY TO ENABLE THE ATTORNEY TO REACH THE COMMITTEE MEETING BY THE ORDINARY MODE OF TRAVEL)].

A. Mandatory Extension for Attorney Member of Legislature. An extension to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint must be granted to a defendant whose attorney is a member of the California Legislature if the Legislature is in session or in recess for less than 41 days or when the attorney is a member of a legislative committee which is meeting or is to meet within a period which does not exceed the time reasonably necessary to enable the attorney to reach the meeting by the ordinary mode of travel (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1; Beckley v. Reclamation Bd. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 710, 716, 312 P.2d 1098 ; Bottoms v. Superior Court (1927) 82 Cal. App. 764, 768, 256 P. 422).

B. Liberal Construction. Section 1054.1 of the Code of Civil Procedure is to be liberally construed with a view to effect its objects and to promote justice (see Code Civ. Proc. § 4).

C. Timely Application. An order extending time must be entered during the period within which the act must be performed (see Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124, 126).

D. Before Whom Heard. _____[Applications or Motions] for extensions of time must be heard and determined by the judge before whom the matter is pending (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 [if form to be used to support application, add Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a)].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be used by an attorney member of the California Legislature in support of either an application for an ex parte order or a notice of motion for an order extending time. With slight modification, it may be used to support an application or motion to extend the time for doing any act relating to the pleadings, or the undertakings to be filed, or the justification of sureties, or the preparation of bills of exceptions, or of amendments to them, or to the service of notices (other than of appeal, intention to move for a new trial, or intention to move to vacate a judgment). It also may not be used to seek an extension to file a motion for a judgment notwithstanding the verdict [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1].

For a discussion of the use of memoranda to support ex parte applications, see the discussion in § 212.03.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel should show that the motion is timely by informing the court, in a declaration, when the response to the complaint is currently due.

[c] When Extension Not Mandatory

Prior to 1963, Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 provided that an extension under the described circumstances "shall" be granted. In 1963 the statute was amended to provide that the extension is mandatory unless the court determines the extension would defeat or abridge a right to relief pendente lite in a paternity action or a right to invoke a provisional remedy such as pendente lite support in a domestic relations controversy, attachment and sale of perishable goods, receivership of a failing business, and temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, and that the extension should not be granted.

The mandatory nature of Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 was further weakened in 1967 by the Supreme Court when it decided that the statute is directory and not mandatory. It is to be applied subject to the discretion of the court as to whether its process and order of business should be delayed. Among the factors to be considered are (1) the nature and urgency of the rights involved, (2) whether the party seeking delay has or can secure other counsel to represent him or her for the particular step in the proceedings then before the court, and (3) whether the attorney who is a member of the Legislature was employed for no other purpose than attempted delay [Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 839-840, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985] .

If counsel for the moving party feels that any of the factors in Thurmond might be at least arguably applicable, he or she might wish to add Thurmond to the memorandum with argument as to why the factor or factors on which the court might deny the extension are in fact not applicable.

[d] Code of Civil Procedure Sections 595 and 1054.1

Many applications for extensions based on the attorney's membership in the state Legislature, as well as appellate decisions in this area, rely on both Code Civ. Proc. §§ 595 and 1054.1 without drawing distinctions between the two statutes. Although the two provisions are in fact very similar, it should be noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 595 deals primarily with continuances of trials and hearings, while Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 deals with extensions of time to do various acts such as filing pleadings. It should also be noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 595 applies when the legislator is either a party, an attorney of record, or a principal witness, while Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 applies only when the legislator is an attorney of record.

[e] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a general form of application and declaration for an ex parte order extending time and an order granting the application, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mandatory Extension for Attorney Member of Legislature

In Beckley v. Reclamation Bd. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 710, 312 P.2d 1098 , a demurrer was sustained without leave to amend. Plaintiff's attorney, a member of the California Legislature which was then in session, sent a telegram to the judge asking him to delay entry of judgment until the Legislature recessed and there was time to study the ruling. The judge never received the telegram and judgment was entered for defendant. When the attorney became aware that the judgment had in fact been entered, he made a motion to vacate the judgment on the grounds that it was entered through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect and on the grounds that the judgment was contrary to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 595, 1054, and 1054.1. The trial court denied the motion to vacate and the plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court, in reversing the trial court, relied on a statement from Bottoms v. Superior Court (1927) 82 Cal. App. 764, 769-770, 256 P. 422 (discussed below), that the policy behind Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 is that attorney-legislators should be relieved by the law from concerning themselves with extraneous matters or interests not pertaining to their legislative duties while they are in attendance at sessions of the Legislature and actually prosecuting their duties. In view of this clearly expressed legislative policy, the settled policy that where possible there shall be a trial on the merits, the fact that the extension was mandatory had the judge known of the attorney's attendance at a session of the Legislature, and the fact that plaintiff's attorney was in no way to blame for the nondelivery of the telegram advising the court of his legislative duties and his request for a continuance, the Supreme Court concluded that the trial court abused its discretion in refusing to vacate the judgments under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (48 Cal. 2d 710, 718) .

In Bottoms v. Superior Court (1927) 82 Cal. App. 764, 256 P. 422 , the defendant had applied for, and was granted, an extension to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint. The defendant's application for an extension was based on former Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 (see now Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1) in that defendant's attorney was a member of the California Legislature which was then in session. Subsequently the trial court granted the plaintiff's motion to vacate the order extending the defendant's time to plead to the complaint.

The court of appeal noted that the purpose behind the statute is obvious. Since there is no activity connected with and essential to the preservation and maintenance of the social fabric of greater importance than that of the functioning of the legislative department, attorney members of the Legislature should be relieved by the law from concerning themselves with extraneous matters or interests not pertaining to their legislative duties while they are in attendance on sessions of the Legislature and actually prosecuting their duties as such. As a result, the court interpreted the statute as requiring a mandatory postponement where the facts support the application, or where, in a particular case, considerations do not exist or are not satisfactorily shown which would justify a denial of the application. Therefore, the court of appeal annulled the order which vacated the order extending time (82 Cal. App. 764, 768-769) .

It should be noted that the provision requiring extensions for attorney legislators was originally enacted in 1895 as an amendment to then Code Civ. Proc. § 1054. In 1947 the provision was enacted as Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1. In 1963 the mandatory nature of the statute was somewhat qualified by the addition of its last sentence. For further discussion of both statutory and decisional qualifications of the mandatory aspect of Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1, see [2][c], above.

[b] Liberal Construction

Code Civ. Proc. § 4 is a general provision mandating that all provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure and all proceedings under it are to be liberally construed with a view to effect its objects and to promote justice.

[c] Timely Application

Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124 , is discussed in § 212.10[3][c]. Coast Elec. was decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 which at that time also governed extensions of time for legislators, now governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1. Although Coast Elec. was not decided based on the part of then Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 dealing with extensions for legislators, it is most likely that its reasoning, that an extension must be granted while the right is still alive, would also apply to an extension based solely on the current Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 providing for extensions for legislators. Therefore, counsel should seek an extension before the time for doing the act has expired, allowing enough time for the order to be granted and entered prior to the expiration of time, as well.

[d] Before Whom Heard

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 requires that extensions be granted by a judge of the court where the action is pending.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a) requires that applications for orders extending time be heard and determined by the judge before whom the matter is pending; provided, however, that in case of the inability, death, or absence of this judge, the application may be heard and determined by another judge of the same court.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. FORMS

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.15

§ 212.15 Opposing Application or Noticed Motion for Order Extending Time--Attorney Member of Legislature [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1]--Within Court's Discretion

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	MEMORANDUM IN OPPOSITION TO
_____ [name],	)	_____'S [specify party e.g., DE-
Defendant.	)	FENDANT] _____
	)	[APPLICATION or MOTION] FOR AN ORDER
	)	EXTENDING TIME TO _____
		[specify, e.g., ANSWER OR OTHERWISE PLEAD TO THE COMPLAINT]
		[Code Civ. Proc. §§ 595, 1054.1]

_____

AN EXTENSION FOR A PARTY WHOSE ATTORNEY IS A STATE LEGISLATOR IS SUBJECT TO THE COURT'S DISCRETION IN DETERMINING WHETHER ITS PROCESS AND ORDER OF BUSINESS SHOULD BE DELAYED.

A. Extension for Attorney Legislator as Discretionary. An extension for an attorney legislator pursuant to Section 1054.1 of the Code of Civil Procedure is subject to the discretion of the court as to whether its process and order of business should be delayed (Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 839-840, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985).

[Optional] B. Right to Relief Pendente Lite in a Paternity Action. An extension for an attorney legislator should not be granted when it would defeat or abridge a right to relief pendente lite in a paternity action (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1).

[Optional] C. Right to Invoke a Provisional Remedy. An extension for an attorney legislator should not be granted when it would defeat or abridge a right to invoke a provisional remedy (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1).

[Optional] D. Nature and Urgency of Rights Involved. In exercising its discretion in deciding whether to grant an extension to an attorney legislator, the court should consider the nature and urgency of the rights involved (Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 840, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985).

[Optional] E. Availability of Other Counsel. In exercising its discretion in deciding whether to grant an extension to an attorney legislator, the court should consider whether the party seeking delay has or can secure other counsel to represent him or her for the particular step in the proceedings then before the court (Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 840, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985).

[Optional] F. Purposeful Delay. In exercising its discretion in deciding whether to grant an extension to an attorney legislator, the court should consider whether the attorney legislator was employed for no other purpose than attempted delay (Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 840, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to an application or motion seeking an extension on the grounds that a party's attorney is a member of the Legislature (Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1). Counsel should use those optional paragraphs which apply to his or her factual situation.

For further discussion, see also § 212.14.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[c] Objection on Ground of Untimeliness

If the extension is sought after the expiration of the time for performance of the act in question, counsel should add to this form a point contending that the court has the power to grant an extension only when the right to perform the act is still alive. See § 212.14[1], Paragraph C and the discussion of that paragraph in § 212.14[3][c].

[d] Motion to Vacate

If the extension has already been granted ex parte, counsel may wish to make a motion to vacate the order, adapting the form in § 212.13, if counsel can assert that the extension order was entered because of inadvertence, mistake, or fraud, or if the order was made after the expiration of time for performance.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Extension for Attorney Legislator as Discretionary

In Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985 , the plaintiff had scheduled a hearing on an order to show cause why the defendant, the alleged father of plaintiff's unborn child, should not pay support, and maintenance, and medical expenses necessary for the unborn child during the pendency of a paternity action. The defendant obtained an ex parte continuance of the hearing on the order to show cause. The sole ground for the continuance, which was based on Code Civ. Proc. §§ 595 and 1054.1, was that the defendant's attorney was a member of the California Legislature which was then in session. The Supreme Court issued a writ of mandate directing the trial court to vacate its order of continuance. The Court decided that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 595 and 1054.1 are directory, not mandatory. They are to be applied subject to the discretion of the court as to whether its process and order of business should be delayed. Among the factors to be considered are (1) the nature and urgency of the rights involved, (2) whether the party seeking delay has or can secure other counsel to represent him or her for the particular step in the proceedings then before the court, and (3) whether the attorney who is a member of the Legislature was employed for no other purpose than attempted delay (66 Cal. 2d 836, 839-840) .

[b] Right to Relief Pendente Lite in a Paternity Action

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 requires an extension for most proceedings in court or before any state administrative agency when an attorney for a party is a member of the Legislature which is in session. It provides that the extension is "mandatory unless the court determines that such extension would defeat or abridge a right to relief pendente lite in a paternity action or a right to invoke a provisional remedy such as pendente lite support in a domestic relations controversy, attachment and sale of perishable goods, receivership of a failing business, and temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, and that the continuance should not be granted."

[c] Right to Invoke a Provisional Remedy

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 is discussed under Right to Relief Pendente Lite in a Paternity Action, above.

[d] Nature and Urgency of Rights Involved

Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985 , is discussed under Extension for Attorney Legislator as Discretionary, above.

[e] Availability of Other Counsel

Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985 , is discussed under Extension for Attorney Legislator as Discretionary, above.

[f] Purposeful Delay

Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985 , is discussed under Extension for Attorney Legislator as Discretionary, above.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. FORMS

21-212 California Points & Authorities §§ 212.16-212.29

[Reserved]

§§ 212.16[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 212 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. FORMS

21-212 California Points & Authorities § 212.30

§ 212.30 Supporting Application for Order Shortening Time for Notice of Motion or for Order to Show Cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)]

[1] FORM

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF
vs.	)	_____'S [specify party, e.g.,
_____ [name],	)	PLAINTIFF] APPLICATION FOR AN ORDER
Defendant.	)	SHORTENING TIME FOR NOTICE OF MOTION
	)	_____ [specify, e.g., FOR PRO-)	TECTIVE ORDER]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
		Location: _____
		Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

THE COURT MAY SHORTEN THE TIME FOR GIVING WRITTEN NOTICE OF MOTION.

A. Application for Shortening Time. The court, or a judge of the court, may prescribe a time shorter than that prescribed by Section 1005(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure for the giving of written notice of motion (Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)), either sua sponte or on application supported by a declaration showing good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(b)].

[Optional] B. Order to Show Cause. An order to show cause is, in effect, a notice of motion (Difani v. Riverside County Oil Co. (1927) 201 Cal. 210, 213-214, 256 P. 210 ; Donald J. v. Evna M. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 929, 933, 147 Cal. Rptr. 15).

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____

[party's status and name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of memorandum may be used in support of an application for an ex parte order shortening time for notice of a motion or for the hearing on an order to show cause. The form sets out the authority of the court to shorten time for notice of motion and, in optional Paragraph B, authority for the proposition that an order to show cause is, in effect, a notice of motion.

For a discussion of the use of memoranda to support ex parte applications, see the discussion in § 212.03.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Facts showing good cause for the order shortening time must be set out in a declaration supporting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(b)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of application and declaration for an ex parte order shortening time for notice of motion, and for forms of orders shortening time for notice of motion, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Order to Show Cause

In Difani v. Riverside County Oil Co. (1927) 201 Cal. 210, 256 P. 210 , plaintiff obtained a default judgment against defendant corporation for unpaid salary and commissions. Thereafter, on application of a creditor and shareholder of the defendant, the court ordered the plaintiff to show cause why the judgment should not be vacated. Subsequently, the trial court ordered the order to show cause stricken as being a collateral attack on the judgment by a stranger. The creditor and shareholder appealed this order. In holding that the trial court acted properly in striking the order to show cause why the judgment should not be vacated, the Supreme Court held that an order to show cause is a notice of motion and a citation to the party to appear at a stated time and place to show cause why a motion should not be granted (201 Cal. 210, 213-214) .

In Donald J. v. Evna M. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 929, 147 Cal. Rptr. 15 , plaintiff commenced an action for declaratory relief to have himself declared the natural father of the subject child. Visitation rights were ordered. Subsequently, the plaintiff filed an order to show cause seeking clarification of the visitation rights and asking the court to enter judgment (1) declaring him as the natural father, (2) directing the child to use his surname, and (3) ordering correction of the birth certificate. The court resolved the visitation issue, dismissed the causes of action for a determination of paternity and correction of the birth certificate, and denied the request for an order directing the child to use his surname. Plaintiff appealed. In holding that plaintiff's requests for a determination of paternity, a change of the child's surname, and a correction of the child's birth certificate should have been raised in a formal complaint separate and independent of the order to show cause for a clarification of visitation rights, the court stated that an order to show cause is, in effect, a notice of motion. A motion is not an independent right or remedy; it is confined to incidental matters in the progress of a cause. A motion relates to some question that is collateral to the main object of the action (81 Cal. App. 3d 929, 933-934) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
Chapter 213 RESERVED

21-213 California Points & Authorities Chapter 213

RESERVED

Chapter 213RESERVED

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE

21-214 California Points & Authorities 214.syn

§ 214.syn Synopsis to Chapter 214: SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE

§ 214.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 214.02 Governing Statutes

§ 214.03 Specific Performance Defined

§ 214.04 Effect of Misrepresentation or Mistake

§ 214.05 Performance of Conditions Precedent

§ 214.06 Elements

[1] Generally

[2] Contract Sufficiently Definite and Certain in Its Terms

[3] Adequate Consideration and Just and Reasonable Contract

[4] Mutuality of Remedy

[5] Inadequacy of Remedy at Law

§ 214.07 Contracts Not Subject to Specific Performance

§ 214.08 Quasi-Specific Performance

§ 214.09 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

§ 214.10 Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 214.11 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 214.12 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 214.13-214.29 [Reserved]

§ 214.30 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Valid Agreement

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Existence of Valid and Binding Agreement

[b] Illegal Contract

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Existence of Valid and Binding Agreement

[b] Illegal Contract

§ 214.31 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Performance of Conditions Precedent [Civ. Code § 3392]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Performance of Conditions Precedent

§ 214.32 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Contract Terminated by Failure of Condition Precedent [Civ. Code § 3392]--Disapproval of "Satisfaction" Condition Precedent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disapproval of "Satisfaction" Condition

§ 214.33 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Plaintiff Was Ready, Willing, and Able to Perform in Alleging Excuse

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ability and Willingness to Perform

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ability and Willingness to Perform

§ 214.34 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Agreement Sufficiently Certain in Its Terms [Civ. Code § 3390(5)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Certainty of Terms of Agreement

§ 214.35 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Adequate Consideration or That Contract Is Just and Reasonable [Civ. Code § 3391(1), (2)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Adequate Consideration and Just and Reasonable Contract

§ 214.36 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Contract for Sale or Transfer of Personal Property--Failure to Allege Inadequate Remedy at Law

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

§ 214.37 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Failure to Allege Inadequate Remedy at Law

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

[b] Contract to Leave Money by Will

[c] Services Compensable in Money

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract to Leave Money by Will

[b] Services Compensable in Money

§ 214.38 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Alleged Oral Agreement Fails to Satisfy Statutory or Equitable Criteria for Enforcement [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Required

[b] Estoppel to Rely on Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing

[c] Unconscionable Injury

[d] Unjust Enrichment

[e] Will Insufficient as Memorandum

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Estoppel to Rely on Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing

[b] Unconscionable Injury

[c] Unjust Enrichment

[d] Will Insufficient as Memorandum

§ 214.39 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--No Cause of Action Arises During Promisor's Lifetime Unless Agreement Designates Specific Property and Restricts Promisor's Use of That Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Cause of Action During Promisor's Lifetime

§ 214.40 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--General Allegation of Plaintiff's Performance Sufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 457]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Allegation of Performance of Conditions Precedent

§ 214.41 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Defendant's Repudiation Excuses Plaintiff's Performance [Civ. Code § 1440]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Repudiation as Excuses Performance

§ 214.42 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Terms of Contract Are Sufficiently Certain

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract containing Material Terms Is Sufficient

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract Containing Material Terms Is Sufficient

§ 214.43 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Sufficient Contract Description of Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of Property Description

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of Property Description

§ 214.44 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Agreed Consideration Is Reasonable Value of Property

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Fair and Reasonable Value of Property

§ 214.45 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Remedy at Law Inadequate

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

[b] Remedy at Law Inadequate for Untraded Stock

[c] Remedy at Law Inadequate for Unavailable Stock

[d] Goods Which Cannot Be Covered or Replaced

[e] Contractual Stipulation for Equitable Relief Should Be Honored

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

§ 214.46 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Consideration for Agreement Was Peculiar Personal Services

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law for Peculiar Personal Services

[b] Services Involving Close Relationship

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law for Peculiar Personal Services

[b] Services Involving Close Relationship

§ 214.47 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Agreement to Leave Particular Real Property by Will

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

[b] Promise Enforceable During Promisor's Lifetime

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Promise Enforceable During Promisor's Lifetime

§ 214.48 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Consideration for Agreement Was Conveyance of Real Property to Decedent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

§ 214.49 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Rendering Peculiar Services Lifts Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Rendition of Services of Peculiar Character

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Rendition of Services of Peculiar Character

§ 214.50 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Contract to Make Will Complaint Alleges Facts Sufficient to Support Application of Equitable Doctrine of Promissory Estoppel [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Estoppel to Assert Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing

[b] Receiving Benefit Under Agreement to Make Irrevocable Joint or Reciprocal Wills

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Estoppel to Assert Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing

[b] Estoppel to Assert Statute of Limitations as Defense

[c] Receiving Benefit Under Agreement to Make Irrevocable Joint or Reciprocal Wills

§ 214.51 Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Defaulting Purchaser Denied Specific Performance as Entitled to Restitution of Only Reasonable Value of Services That Benefited Seller

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Restitution to Defaulting Purchaser Denied Specific Performance Is to Be Only Reasonable Value of Services

§ 214.52 Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Basis for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Impossibility Must Be Reconsidered at Time of Entry of Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Impossibility at Time of Entry of Judgment Controls

§ 214.53 Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Order to Debtor to Convey Collateral to Secured Party as Reversible Error

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Order to Debtor to Convey Collateral Is Error

§ 214.54 Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Award of Damages in Lieu of Specific Performance Although Defendant Did Not Rebut Presumption Against Adequacy of Damages as Remedy [Civ. Code § 3387]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Breaching Party Must Prove That Damages Will Be Adequate Remedy

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.01

§ 214.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda of points and authorities for use in supporting [see §§ 214.30 -214.36] and opposing [see §§ 214.40 -214.45] a general demurrer to a complaint alleging a cause of action for specific performance, and supporting [see §§ 214.37 -214.39] and opposing [see §§ 214.46 -214.50] a general demurrer to a complaint alleging a cause of action for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to leave property by will. It also contains memoranda of points and authorities supporting a motion to vacate judgment and enter another judgment based on the court's error of law [see §§ 214.51 -214.54].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.02

§ 214.02 Governing Statutes

Specific performance is governed by Civ. Code §§ 3384-3395.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.03

§ 214.03 Specific Performance Defined

Specific performance is the remedy developed by the equity courts for the breach of a contract. A party to a contract who is damaged because of the contract's breach by another party has the option of either going to a law court to recover damages for the breach or going to an equity court to compel specific performance of the contract. Before the equity court will compel specific performance, however, the contract must be one which can be specifically performed. Further, equity courts were designed to supplement the deficiencies of the law courts and will withhold their aid when the law affords full redress [Glock v. Howard & Wilson Colony Co. (1898) 123 Cal. 1, 6, 55 P. 713] .

Except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code § 3384 et seq., the specific performance of an obligation may be compelled [Civ. Code § 3384].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawBreachGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesEquitable ReliefGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.04

§ 214.04 Effect of Misrepresentation or Mistake

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if his or her assent was obtained by the misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices of any party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by any promise of such a party that has not been substantially fulfilled [Civ. Code § 3391(3)]. The same is true if a party's assent was given under the influence of mistake, misapprehension, or surprise, except that when the contract provides for compensation in case of mistake, a mistake within the scope of such a provision may be compensated for and the contract specifically enforced in other respects, if proper [Civ. Code § 3391(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawDefensesGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesAmbiguity & MistakeGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesFraud & MisrepresentationGeneral OverviewContracts LawFormationAmbiguity & MistakeGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.05

§ 214.05 Performance of Conditions Precedent

Specific performance cannot be enforced in favor of a party who has not fully and fairly performed all the conditions precedent on his or her part to the obligation of the other party, except when failure to perform is only partial, and either entirely immaterial or capable of being fully compensated, in which case specific performance may be compelled on full compensation being made for the default [Civ. Code § 3392].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsConditions PrecedentContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.06

§ 214.06 Elements

[1] Generally

Six elements are requisite to obtaining the desired relief in a specific performance suit [Taramind Lithography Workshop, Inc. v. Sanders (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 571, 575, 193 Cal. Rptr. 409 ; Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 674, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] :

- A contract sufficiently definite and certain in its terms to be enforced.
- A just and reasonable contract.
- Performance of plaintiff's side of the bargain.
- The promisor's failure to perform the contract.
- That the contract was supported by adequate consideration.
- That plaintiff's remedy at law is inadequate.

[2] Contract Sufficiently Definite and Certain in Its Terms

An agreement, the terms of which are not sufficiently certain to make the precise act which is to be done clearly ascertain able, cannot be specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3390(5); see, e.g., Roth v. Malson (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 552, 557-559, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 226 (in action by prospective buyer for specific performance of alleged contract for sale of real property, buyer's response to seller's counteroffer was held to be counter-counteroffer rather than acceptance, and no contract was formed)].

A greater amount or degree of certainty is required in the terms of a contract which is sought to be specifically enforced than is required in the terms of a contract which is the basis of an action at law for damages. An action at law for damages for breach of a contract is based on a nonperformance of the contract by defendant and this negative conclusion can often be established without determining all the terms of the agreement with exactness. The suit in equity for specific performance is wholly an affirmative proceeding. The mere fact of nonperformance is not enough; its object is to procure a performance by the defendant, and this demands a clear, definite, and precise understanding of all the terms that must be exactly ascertained before the performance can be enforced [Patterson v. Reddish (1922) 56 Cal. App 197, 201-202, 204 P. 565] . Formerly, courts held that a complaint for specific performance could not supply or cure deficiencies in the agreement that would otherwise render the agreement too uncertain for a judgment of specific performance. Rather, the terms to be enforced had to be ascertainable from the terms of the agreement itself [Durst v. Jolly (1917) 35 Cal. App. 184, 190, 169 P. 449] . However, the modern trend of the law is to carry out the parties' intent through enforcement of contracts, and to disfavor findings of uncertainty; the defense of uncertainty is valid only when the uncertainty or incompleteness prevents the court from knowing what to enforce [Blackburn v. Charnley (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 758, 766] . Courts determine the parties' intent, and the terms to be enforced, by examining the contract terms in the context of the agreement and in view of surrounding circumstanced [De Anza Enterprises v. Johnson (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1307, 1314-1315, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749 (court determined parties' intent with regard to joint venture buyout by looking both to contract document and to circumstances of agreement)]. Extrinsic evidence may supply sufficient certainty to an otherwise uncertain contract so as to support specific enforcement, by explaining or giving meaning or content to the contract terms [Blackburn v. Charnley (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 758, 766 (trial court correctly ordered specific enforcement of real estate purchase agreements based on proper admission of extrinsic evidence to explain general terms of agreements, which evidence rendered agreements sufficiently definite for enforcement)].

[3] Adequate Consideration and Just and Reasonable Contract

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if he or she has not received an adequate consideration for the contract [Civ. Code § 3391(1)] or if it is not just and reasonable as to that party [Civ. Code § 3391(2)]. Plaintiff must allege and prove facts from which the court may determine that the contract he or she seeks to have specifically enforced was based on an adequate consideration and is just and reasonable as to the defendant [Foley v. Cowan (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 70, 74, 181 P.2d 410] . This does not mean that it must be alleged in haec verba that the contract was supported by an adequate consideration, and is, as to the defendant, fair and just. These might be held insufficient, but the fact that the contract will satisfy the conscience of the trier of fact must appear from proper statement of facts [Stiles v. Cain (1901) 134 Cal. 170, 172, 66 P. 231] .

[4] Mutuality of Remedy

Notwithstanding that the agreed counterperformance is not or would not have been specifically enforceable, specific performance may be compelled if (1) specific performance would otherwise be an appropriate remedy, and (2) the agreed counterperformance has been substantially performed or its concurrent or future performance is assured or, if the court deems necessary, can be secured to the satisfaction of the court [Civ. Code § 3386; see Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 215, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 ; Converse v. Fong (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 86, 91-92, 205 Cal. Rptr. 242] .

A person who has signed a written contract may be compelled to specifically perform it, although it is not signed by the other party, if the other party has performed the contract or offers to perform it [Civ. Code § 3388].

[5] Inadequacy of Remedy at Law

As in all cases that invoke the equitable powers of a court, a plaintiff seeking performance of a contract must show that the remedy at law is inadequate [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 674, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

It is presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately relieved by pecuniary compensation [Civ. Code § 3387; see § 214.54]. No similar presumption for the agreements for the sale or transfer of personal property exists. However, the Commercial Code does provide that specific performance may be decreed of a contract for the sale of goods when "the goods are unique or in other proper circumstances" [Com. Code § 2716(1)]. Goods are defined in the sales division as all things that are movable other than money, investment securities, and things in action [Com. Code § 2105(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawBreachNonperformanceContracts LawConsiderationGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.07

§ 214.07 Contracts Not Subject to Specific Performance

Civ. Code § 3390 lists five specific types of obligations not specifically enforceable:

- An obligation to render personal services.
- An obligation to employ another in personal services [see Herman v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 484, 488-489, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 691 (finding statute inapplicable to contract providing for transfer of county police officers to sheriff's department)].
- An agreement to perform an act which the party has not power lawfully to perform when required to do so.
- An agreement to procure the act or consent of the spouse of the contracting party, or of any other third person.
- An agreement, the terms of which are not sufficiently certain to make the precise act which is to be done clearly ascertainable.

In addition, an agreement for the sale of property cannot be specifically enforced in favor of a seller who cannot give to the buyer a title free from reasonable doubt [Civ. Code § 3394].

The fact that a contract provides for liquidated damages or a penalty does not prevent the contract from being specifically enforceable [Civ. Code § 3378]. Whenever an obligation in respect to real property would be specifically enforced against a particular person, it may be enforced against any other person claiming under him or her by a title created subsequently to the obligation except a purchaser or encumbrancer in good faith and for value [Civ. Code § 3395].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.08

§ 214.08 Quasi-Specific Performance

The provisions of Civ. Code § 3384 et seq. also cover quasi-specific performance. This remedy consists in the imposition by the court of a constructive trust on property that should have gone to the plaintiff pursuant to a contract the court cannot specifically enforce [Bank of Cal. v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 516, 524, 106 P.2d 879] . For example, the making of a will cannot be compelled and therefore cannot be specifically performed. Under some circumstances, however, equity will provide relief equivalent to specific performance by imposing a constructive trust on the property that a decedent had promised to a plaintiff [see Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1467, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 ; Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 130] . The constructive trust imposed by the court is referred to as an "involuntary trust," and is defined as a trust created by operation of law [Lauricella v. Lauricella (1911) 161 Cal. 61, 66, 118 P. 430 (interpreting former Civ. Code § 2217, now repealed; see Prob. Code § 15002 (common law regarding trusts controlling); Prob. Code § 15003 (repeal of former Civ. Code § 2217 not affecting common law regarding fiduciary and confidential relationships)].

Civ. Code § 2224 provides that "One who gains a thing by fraud, accident, mistake, undue influence, the violation of a trust, or other wrongful act is, unless he has some other and better right thereto, an involuntary trustee of the thing gained, for the benefit of the person who would otherwise have had it."

Additionally, Civ. Code § 2223 provides that "One who wrongfully detains a thing is an involuntary trustee thereof, for the benefit of the owner."

The quasi-specific performance of a contract will be decreed in equity on the same conditions as specific performance of any other contract will be decreed in equity [see Monsen v. Monsen (1916) 174 Cal. 97, 98, 162 P. 90] . In other words, the same elements are required for quasi-specific performance and specific performance [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 674-675, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawRemediesGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific PerformanceEstate, Gift & Trust

LawTrustsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.09

§ 214.09 Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits. Supporting or opposing memoranda (other than those in a summary judgment proceeding) must not exceed 15 pages in length. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, and tables of contents are not included in the page limitation. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages in length [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.05.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of Law

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.10

§ 214.10 Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The forms included in this chapter are designed to be included with other points and authorities to form a complete memorandum. For detailed discussion on how to select and use the forms in the publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic or stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, §§ 1.03 -1.06. For a skeletal form of memorandum for use in creating a properly formatted outline in which to compile relevant forms from this publication, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs, § 1.10.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting Memoranda

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.11

§ 214.11 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion and forms for complaints, allegations, and affirmative defenses involving specific performance, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 528, Specific Performance (Matthew Bender). For discussions and forms for use in particular cases involving specific performance, see the following chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice:

- Ch. 6, Accord and Satisfaction.
- Ch. 160, Corporations.
- Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.
- Ch. 253, Escrows.
- Ch. 330, Landlord and Tenant: General Introduction.
- Ch. 331, Landlord and Tenant: Creating the Tenancy.
- Ch. 332, Landlord and Tenant: The Tenancy.
- Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions.
- Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages.
- Ch. 335, Landlord and Tenant: Rent Control.
- Ch. 375, Motions to Strike.
- Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes.

- Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership.
- Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties.
- Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners.
- Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnerships.
- Ch. 405, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners or Partnerships and Third Parties.
- Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution.
- Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds.
- Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages.
- Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.12

§ 214.12 Related Points and Authorities Chapters

Related memoranda of points and authorities that may be useful in particular cases involving specific performance may be found in the following chapters:

- Ch. 50, Contracts.
- Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings.
- Ch. 101, Escrows.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsGeneral OverviewContracts LawRemediesSpecific Performance

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-214 California Points & Authorities §§ 214.13-214.29

[Reserved]

§§ 214.13[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.30

§ 214.30 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Valid Agreement

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Valid Agreement

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF DEMURRER TO COMPLAINT
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT FAILS TO ALLEGE FACTS SHOWING THE EXISTENCE OF A VALID AND BINDING AGREEMENT.

A. Objection by Demurrer. The party against whom a complaint has been filed may object, by demurrer as provided in Code of Civil Procedure Section 430.30, to the complaint on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)). When any ground for objection to a complaint appears on the face of the complaint (or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice), the objection on the ground may be taken by a demurrer to the complaint (Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)).

B. Existence of Valid and Binding Agreement. The complaint in an action for specific performance must show the existence of a valid and binding agreement which can be specifically enforced (Spector v. Pete (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 432, 437, 321 P.2d 59).

[EITHER]

C. Illegal Contract. When an agreement contravenes the provision of a statute in force at the time it was executed, it is void and cannot be specifically enforced (Kreamer v. Earl (1891) 91 Cal. 112, 118, 27 P. 735).

[OR]

C. Statute of Frauds. An agreement for the sale of real property or any interest therein is invalid unless it, or a memorandum thereof, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by the party's agent (Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that there is no allegation of a valid and binding agreement that can be specifically enforced. While only two grounds for invalidity are set forth as Alternative Paragraphs C, counsel may substitute another ground to conform to the facts of the case.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Existence of Valid and Binding Agreement

Spector v. Pete (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 432, 321 P.2d 59 , was an action for specific performance of a contract to convey land. The defendant asserted in a general demurrer that the contract was invalid and not subject to specific performance and the trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and entered judgment for defendant. In affirming the judgment the court of appeal noted that, under the terms of a federal statute by which the defendant had acquired title to the land in question, any conveyance of it made by him within a period of 25 years was null and void. As such, the contract was not specifically enforceable (157 Cal. App. 2d 432, 440) .

[b] Illegal Contract

Kreamer v. Earl (1891) 91 Cal. 112, 27 P. 735 , was an action to specifically enforce a contract for the conveyance of land. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment for the plaintiff with directions to the trial court to dismiss the action. The contract in question contemplated that defendant administrator's predecessor in title (now deceased) would acquire the land from the state in a manner not authorized by statute and then convey it to the plaintiff in performance of the contract. The Supreme Court held that when the agreement on which the plaintiff relies for specific performance contravenes the provisions of the statutes which were in force at the time it was executed, no recovery can be had upon it (91 Cal. 112, 118) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Existence of Valid and Binding Agreement

In Roth v. Malson (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 552, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 226 , a prospective buyer brought an action against the seller for specific performance of an alleged contract for the sale of real property. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of the seller and the prospective purchaser appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the buyer's response to seller's counteroffer was a counter-counteroffer rather than an acceptance, and no thus contract was formed (67 Cal. App. 4th 552, 557-559) .

[b] Illegal Contract

Napa Valley Elec. Co. v. Calistoga Elec. Co (1918) 38 Cal. App. 477, 176 P. 699 , was an action for specific performance of an option to sell a public utility plant to plaintiff. A demurrer to the complaint was sustained for failure to allege that a Railroad Commission order authorizing the sale as required by the Public Utilities Act had been secured. In affirming, the court of appeal held that when the purported contract is illegal and that fact is called to the attention of the court, the court will refuse the plaintiff any relief and will leave the parties where it finds them. In denying a hearing, the Supreme Court found it unnecessary to decide whether the attempted agreement was absolutely void (38 Cal. App. 477, 480) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.31

§ 214.31 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Performance of Conditions Precedent [Civ. Code § 3392]

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Performance of Conditions Precedent [Civ. Code § 3392]

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT FAILS TO ALLEGE FACTS SHOWING PLAINTIFF'S PERFORMANCE OF CONDITIONS PRECEDENT ON HIS/HER PART TO THE OBLIGATION SOUGHT TO BE SPECIFICALLY ENFORCED.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Performance of Conditions Precedent. Specific performance cannot be enforced in favor of a party who has not fully and fairly performed all the conditions precedent on his or her part to the obligation of the other party (Civ. Code § 3392).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance on the ground that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because there is no

allegation that plaintiff has performed conditions precedent on his or her part to the obligation sought to be specifically enforced.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Performance of Conditions Precedent

Cockrill v. Boas (1931) 213 Cal. 490, 2 P.2d 774 , was a vendee's action for specific performance of a contract for the sale of real property along with a deduction in the purchase price for alleged defects in the vendors' title. Judgment was rendered for the vendors, quieting their title and forfeiting the vendee's deposit. The Supreme Court held that an essential basis for granting specific performance must be a showing by the plaintiff of performance, tender of performance, or ability and willingness to perform (213 Cal. 490, 492) .

In Realmuto v. Gagnard (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 193, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569 , a seller of real property sued the buyers for specific performance and breach of contract after they failed to complete their purchase of the property. The trial court granted summary judgment for the buyers, finding that providing them with a transfer disclosure statement was a condition precedent to the buyers' duty to perform. Because it was undisputed that the seller never delivered the statement to the buyers, the trial court concluded that there were no triable issues of fact and that the buyers were entitled to judgment as a matter of law. The court of appeal affirmed. It held that delivery of the disclosure statement is a nonwaivable condition precedent to the buyers' duty of performance in every sale of real estate covered by Civ. Code § 1102 et seq. The seller's performance of this condition also gives rise to a statutory right of rescission by the buyer. A buyer has no duty to perform the contract unless the seller complies with the statutory disclosure requirements and the buyer chooses not to exercise the right of rescission. In this case, the seller's failure to deliver a transfer disclosure statement precluded this action against the buyers for specific performance and breach of contract (110 Cal. App. 4th 193, 205) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.32

§ 214.32 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Contract Terminated by Failure of Condition Precedent [Civ. Code § 3392]--Disapproval of "Satisfaction" Condition Precedent

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Contract Terminated by Failure of Condition Precedent [Civ. Code § 3392]--Disapproval of "Satisfaction" Condition Precedent

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

THE COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE BECAUSE ITS ALLEGATIONS CLEARLY ESTABLISH THAT THE CONTRACT WAS TERMINATED BY FAILURE OF THE CONDITION PRECEDENT THAT _____ [specify condition precedent, e.g., BUYER APPROVE THE SURVEY AND PRELIMINARY TITLE REPORT].

A. Objections by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Disapproval of "Satisfaction" Condition. One who expressly and unequivocally disapproves of things, his or her approval of which is a condition precedent to his or her obligations under the contract, has terminated the contract and cannot "waive" the earlier disapproval or enforce the agreement (Beverly Way Associates v. Barham (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-56, 276 Cal. Rptr. 240).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance when the demurrer asserts that the plaintiff has terminated the contract by disapproval of a "satisfaction" condition precedent.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the allegations of the complaint and the points of law stated.

These points and authorities may be adapted for use in any other procedural context, such as a trial or appellate brief.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Disapproval of "Satisfaction" Condition

Plaintiff in Beverly Way Associates v. Barham (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 49, 276 Cal. Rptr. 240 , contracted to buy real property from defendant. The contract specified that plaintiff had 28 days from delivery of certain materials to inspect and approve them. One of the documents subject to this condition was an ALTA survey of the property showing all improvements on the property and the location of all exceptions referred to in the preliminary title. Before the 28-day period expired, plaintiff wrote to defendant rejecting the survey, apparently because an electrical room encroached into areas designated for parking and thus insufficient parking spaces were provided. In the letter, plaintiff expressed the hope that some resolution could be found to the problem and proposed two alternatives. The seller never responded. Plaintiff wrote again, waiving the objections expressed in the first letter. Seller ordered the escrow to prepare cancellation instructions. Plaintiff demanded that the seller complete the transaction. The seller refused; and plaintiff sued for specific performance. Defendant's demurrer was sustained without leave to amend. Plaintiff appealed from the resulting judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed. The condition of buyer's approval is a condition precedent (226 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54) . The effect of a buyer's power to approve documentation required is to give the buyer an option not to consummate the purchase but to terminate the contract if it reasonably concludes that the condition precedent has not been fulfilled. The court likened the power of a buyer in that position to the holder of an option and to an offeree (226 Cal. App. 3d 49, 55) . The buyer's disapproval was express and unequivocal, and once communicated to the seller terminated the contract. This left the buyer with no power to create obligations against the seller with a late "waiver" of its objections and acceptance of the proferred documentation (226 Cal. App. 3d 49, 56) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.33

§ 214.33 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Plaintiff Was Ready, Willing, and Able to Perform in Alleging Excuse

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Plaintiff Was Ready, Willing, and Able to Perform in Alleging Excuse

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT FAILS TO ALLEGE PLAINTIFF'S BEING READY, WILLING, AND ABLE TO PERFORM IN PLEADING EXCUSE FOR PERFORMANCE.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Ability and Willingness to Perform. One seeking specific performance of a contract has the burden of pleading and proving that he was ready, willing, and able to perform the contract where there is no allegation of performance or tender of performance (Am-Cal Investment Co. v. Sharlyn Estates, Inc. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 526, 539, 63 Cal. Rptr. 518).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance

when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that there is no allegation that the plaintiff was ready, willing, and able to perform in pleading excuse for performance.

When appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of his case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ability and Willingness to Perform

Am-Cal Investment Co. v. Sharlyn Estates, Inc. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 526, 63 Cal. Rptr. 518 , involved an agreement for the sale of land which provided for an extension of time to pay the purchase price balance. The vendee treated the vendor's refusal of an extension as an anticipatory breach of the agreement and brought an action for specific performance of the agreement. During the requested extension period, the vendor repudiated the agreement by conveying the land to a third party. In reversing a judgment for the vendee, the court of appeal held that an essential basis for the equitable remedy of specific performance must be a showing by the plaintiff of performance, tender of performance, or ability and willingness to perform. The court further stated that while the positive repudiation of a contract of sale by the vendor excuses the vendee from a formal tender of the price as a condition precedent to an action for specific performance, it does not obviate the necessity of stating in his complaint in such action that he is ready, able, and willing to pay the amount due.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ability and Willingness to Perform

In Buckmaster v. Bertram (1921) 186 Cal. 673, 200 P. 610 , prior to bringing an action to cancel an agreement to sell and convey land, the vendor had notified the vendee that he was selling part of the land to another and cancelling the agreement. In a cross complaint for specific performance of the vendor's agreement, the vendee alleged that she had been damaged by the vendor's repudiation of the agreement and was ready, able, and willing to perform her part of the agreement after an accounting to determine the amount of damages that should be deducted from the unpaid purchase price. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment awarding damages to the vendee and quieting the title of the vendor and his grantees on payment of the damages. The Court held that the cross complaint was insufficient because, while the positive repudiation of a contract of sale by the vendor excuses the vendee from a formal tender of the price as a condition precedent to an action for specific performance, it does not obviate the necessity that the vendee state in the complaint that the vendee is ready, able, and willing to pay the amount due. This requisite is not complied with by an offer to pay the amount due after deducting the damages to the vendee.

99 of 147 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.34

§ 214.34 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Agreement Sufficiently Certain in Its Terms [Civ. Code § 3390(5)]

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Agreement Sufficiently Certain in Its Terms [Civ. Code § 3390(5)]

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT FAILS TO ALLEGE AN AGREEMENT SUFFICIENTLY CERTAIN IN ITS TERMS.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Certainty of Terms of Agreement. An agreement, the terms of which are not sufficiently certain to make the precise act which is to be done clearly ascertainable, cannot be specifically enforced (Civ. Code § 3390(5)).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance if the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it fails to allege an agreement sufficiently certain in its terms.

When appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of his case and the points of law stated.

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Certainty of Terms of Agreement

Gatley v. Shockley (1932) 215 Cal. 604 , was an action to quiet title to real property. The defendant contended that she had an equitable interest in the property under her predecessor's exercise of an option to purchase the property and cross complained for specific performance of the option agreement. The agreement was silent as to the respective amounts of two mortgages to be given for the unpaid sale price. In affirming the judgment quieting plaintiff's title and denying specific performance, the Supreme Court held that equity requires as a condition of specific performance a clear, mutual understanding and a positive assent on both sides as to the terms of the contract, and it will withhold the exercise of jurisdiction in that respect unless there is such a degree of certainty as will enable it to do complete equity.

Smith v. Taylor (1890) 82 Cal. 533, 23 P. 217 , was a vendee's action for the recovery of his down payment on the purchase of an interest in real property. The trial court sustained a general demurrer to the vendor's cross complaint for specific performance. In affirming the judgment for the vendee, the Supreme Court held that the cross complaint was indefinite, ambiguous, and uncertain in that it did not allege how or when conveyance of title was to be made, how the deferred payments were to be secured, or what was agreed as to the assumption of mortgages. If a contract is vague and uncertain, a court will not decree specific performance, but will leave the party to his remedy at law.

Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533 , was an action for specific performance of the release clause in a purchase money deed of trust. The release clause provided for releases of successive portions of the land which were "contiguous to a portion previously released." The court of appeal held that the uncertainty of the release clause prevented specific performance but did not require invalidation of the entire sale agreement. The court concluded that the release clause was uncertain because the contiguous work permitted the selection for release of parcels of any shape which touched a previously released portion. The court explained that the agreement, to be specifically enforceable, must not only contain all the material terms but must also express each term in a reasonably definite manner.

Berven v. Miller (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 39, 194 P.2d 80 , involved a tenant's action for specific performance of a landlord's agreement that, in the event of sale, the tenant would have the "first chance to buy property at the offer made for same." It was alleged that the landlord's heirs sold the property after his death. Judgment for the heirs was entered after sustaining of a general demurrer without leave to amend. In affirming, the court of appeal stated that the terms of payment, the times of payment, and the property to be sold were each so indefinite and uncertain that a court could not decree specific performance of the agreement.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.35

§ 214.35 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Adequate Consideration or That Contract Is Just and Reasonable [Civ. Code § 3391(1), (2)]

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Failure to Allege Adequate Consideration or That Contract Is Just and Reasonable [Civ. Code § 3391(1), (2)]

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT FAILED TO ALLEGE FACTS SHOWING THAT _____ [either THE DEFENDANT RECEIVED AN ADEQUATE CONSIDERATION FOR THE CONTRACT SOUGHT TO BE ENFORCED or THE CONTRACT IS JUST AND REASONABLE AS TO THE DEFENDANT].

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

[EITHER]

B. Adequate Consideration. Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if he has not received an adequate consideration for the contract (Civ. Code § 3391(1)).

[OR]

B. Just and Reasonable Contract. Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if it is not, as to him, just and reasonable (Civ. Code § 3391(2)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance if the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it fails to allege that adequate consideration was received by the defendant or that the contract is just and reasonable as to the defendant.

When appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of his case and the points of law stated.

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Adequate Consideration and Just and Reasonable Contract

Joyce v. Tomasini (1914) 168 Cal. 234, 142 P. 67 , was an action for specific performance of a contract to execute a lease of land. The complaint alleged that the contract was "in all respects, just, fair, and reasonable." In reversing the trial court's judgment for plaintiff and holding that defendant's demurrer should have been sustained, the Supreme Court held the plaintiff, in order to allege to good cause of action, must set forth facts which show that the consideration provided for in the contract sought to be specifically enforced is adequate, and that the contract is just and reasonable as to the defendant.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.36

§ 214.36 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Contract for Sale or Transfer of Personal Property--Failure to Allege Inadequate Remedy at Law

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Contract for Sale or Transfer of Personal Property--Failure to Allege Inadequate Remedy at Law

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION IN THAT IT FAILS TO ALLEGE FACTS SHOWING THAT THE REMEDY AT LAW IS INADEQUATE IN AN ACTION FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF A CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OR TRANSFER OF PERSONAL PROPERTY.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Inadequate Remedy at Law. Specific performance of a contract for the sale or transfer of personal property will not be decreed where the remedy at law is adequate (Dunner v. Hoover (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 753, 757, 111 P.2d 737).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance of a contract for the sale or transfer of personal property if the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it fails to allege that the remedy at law is inadequate.

When appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of his case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

Dunner v. Hoover (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 753, 111 P.2d 737 , was an action to enforce rescission of the plaintiff's contract to sell a milk route with a customer list enabling defendant to sell 150 quarts per day. A judgment for specific performance was rendered in favor of defendant. In reversing the judgment, the court of appeal held that the action did not come within the exceptions to the rule that equity will not decree specific performance of a contract for the sale of personal property except in rare cases where the remedy at law is not adequate. The breach of the agreement could be relieved by pecuniary compensation on proof of the value of the customer list.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

In Wehen v. Lundgaard (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 610, 107 P.2d 491 , a seller's assignee brought an action for specific performance of a conditional sale contract for an ice machine after default in the installments payable by the buyer. A judgment was entered for plaintiff but reversed on appeal. The court of appeal held that it is only where there are present circumstances in view of which a judgment for damages would fall short of the redress which the plaintiff's situation demands that equity will decree specific performance. The court stated that equity will not decree the specific performance of contracts relating to personal property where there is no specific quality in the individual articles which gives them a special value to the contracting party and where the recovery of damages will enable him to purchase others in the market of like kind and quality.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.37

§ 214.37 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Failure to Allege Inadequate Remedy at Law

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Failure to Allege Inadequate Remedy at Law

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION BECAUSE IT FAILS TO ALLEGE FACTS SHOWING THAT THE REMEDY AT LAW IS INADEQUATE AND THEREFORE QUASI-SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF THE CONTRACT TO LEAVE PROPERTY TO THE PLAINTIFF BY WILL CANNOT BE GRANTED.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Inadequate Remedy at Law. A cause of action for quasi-specific performance of a contract to leave property in a prescribed manner by will will not lie unless the remedy at law is inadequate (Flood v. Templeton (1905) 148 Cal. 374, 378, 83 P. 148 ; Wilkison v. Wiederkehr (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 822, 832-833).

[Optional] C. Contract to Leave Money by Will. When the contract is one to leave a sum of money by will, the remedy at law for breach of the contract is adequate (Chahon v. Schneider (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 334, 345-346, 256 P.2d 54).

[Optional] D. Services Compensable in Money. When services are performed by the plaintiff in consideration of the agreement, quasi-specific performance will not be granted because there is an adequate remedy at law in quantum meruit for the value of the services rendered, unless the services were of such a peculiar nature that their value cannot be estimated by any pecuniary standard (Shive v. Barrow (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 838, 843-844, 199 P.2d 693).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to leave property by will when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it fails to allege that the remedy at law is inadequate.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

The points and authorities set out in §§ 214.46 -214.48 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a demurrer supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

Flood v. Templeton (1905) 148 Cal. 374, 83 P. 148 , was an action to enforce a contract to devise real property to plaintiff. The trial court overruled a demurrer to the complaint. Judgment for plaintiff was reversed on appeal. The Supreme Court held that equity does entertain contracts for specific performance to convey the whole or any portion of the promisor's property by will but only when the plaintiff cannot be compensated in money (148 Cal. 374).

In Wilkison v. Wiederkehr (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 822 , plaintiff brought an action for quasi-specific performance, seeking to impose a constructive trust on the proceeds from the sale of the family home. Several of plaintiff's relatives had signed an agreement obligating each of them to make a will leaving that home to plaintiff's father. If all of the signatories had honored the agreement, plaintiff would have received the property by way of his father's will. Instead, however, his grandmother changed her will shortly before her death, which had the effect of leaving the property to plaintiff's aunt. The house was sold and the proceeds were placed in a bank account. Plaintiff sought to impose a constructive trust on those proceeds, and the trial court found in his favor. The court of appeal reversed. It determined that plaintiff could not maintain his action, which sought an equitable remedy, because he had an adequate remedy at law. He could have made a claim based on his grandmother's breach of the written agreement to leave the property to his father. In an action at law for damages, the plaintiff is a creditor and must file a claim against the estate of the deceased promisor. Plaintiff, however, failed to file a creditor's claim in his grandmother's probate proceeding. Because he had and adequate legal remedy, albeit not properly pursued, he could not obtain equitable relief in the form of quasi-specific performance of the family's written agreement (101 Cal. App. 4th 822, 832-833) .

[b] Contract to Leave Money by Will

Chahon v. Schneider (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 334, 256 P.2d 54 , involved an action for quasi-specific performance of an oral contract to bequeath a certain bank account to the plaintiff. The trial court sustained a general demurrer to the complaint on the grounds the action was barred by the statute of frauds and entered judgment for defendants. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal stated that an additional reason why equity would not intervene was that the complaint failed to state facts showing plaintiff's remedy at law was inadequate since damages for the breach of the agreement could be measured and was a definite sum of money recoverable at law (117 Cal. App. 2d 334).

[c] Services Compensable in Money

In Shive v. Barrow (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 838, 199 P.2d 693 , an action for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to devise a parcel of real property by will in consideration of, among other things, plaintiff's rendition of labor and services in constructing a building on the property, judgment was entered for defendant after a demurrer was sustained to the third amended complaint. In affirming, the court of appeal noted that no facts were alleged to indicate that the services rendered by plaintiffs were of such a peculiar nature that their value could not be estimated by any pecuniary standard. The court then held that plaintiffs had an adequate remedy at law in quantum meruit for the value of the services performed, and that given the adequate remedy at law, quasi-specific performance could not be granted (88 Cal. App. 2d 838).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract to Leave Money by Will

Morrison v. Land (1915) 169 Cal. 580, 147 P. 259 , was an action for quasi-specific performance of a contract to bequeath $50,000 to plaintiff. A judgment for defendant was entered after a general demurrer to the complaint had been sustained without leave to amend. In affirming the judgment, the Supreme Court held that an ordinary action at law for breach of the contract would afford him full and adequate relief and, therefore, an action to specifically enforce the contract was not proper (169 Cal. 580).

[b] Services Compensable in Money

Kobus v. San Diego Trust & Sav. Bank (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 574, 342 P.2d 468 , involved an action to impose a constructive trust on all of the decedent's property and to enforce his oral agreement to leave the property to plaintiff, a professional nurse, in consideration of plaintiff's agreement to move into the decedent's residence, to do all the housework, and to care for the decedent for the rest of his life. In affirming a judgment in defendant's favor, the court of appeal found that there was no close family relationship and that the contract did not contemplate the giving of companionship, love, and affection that could not be compensated for in money. The court held that since the services were compensable in damages or in quantum meruit, plaintiff was not entitled to the equitable relief sought (172 Cal. App. 2d 574).

Hoyt v. Thomas (1922) 58 Cal. App 14, 207 P. 1038 , involved an action for specific performance of the decedent's agreement to leave plaintiff all of her property if plaintiff would provide the care and personal services, particularly in the management of her business affairs, as she might require for the rest of her life. A general demurrer to the second amended complaint was sustained, and judgment was entered in defendant's favor. Affirming, the court of appeal found that the agreement did not require plaintiff to provide the decedent with filial services or affection and that the services were not of such a peculiar nature that they were not susceptible to pecuniary measurement. Accordingly, the court held that plaintiff could be adequately compensated in money, so that specific performance should not be decreed (58 Cal. App. 14).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.38

§ 214.38 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Alleged Oral Agreement Fails to Satisfy Statutory or Equitable Criteria for Enforcement [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Alleged Oral Agreement Fails to Satisfy Statutory or Equitable Criteria for Enforcement [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT, BASED ON AN ALLEGED ORAL CONTRACT MADE IN _____ [year] TO LEAVE PROPERTY TO PLAINTIFF BY WILL, FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION BECAUSE THE ALLEGED CONTRACT DOES NOT MEET THE REQUIREMENTS OF THE APPLICABLE STATUTE, _____ [for pre-1985 contracts: FORMER CIVIL CODE SECTION 1624(6) (REPEALED EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1, 1985) or, for contracts made in the period beginning January 1, 1985 and ending December 31, 2000: FORMER PROBATE CODE SECTION 150 (REPEALED EFFECTIVE JANUARY 1, 2001) or, for contracts made on or after January 1, 2001: PROBATE CODE SECTION 21700] AND IS THEREFORE UNENFORCEABLE [for contracts made prior to 2001, add:, AND THE COMPLAINT DOES NOT ALLEGE FACTS SHOWING THAT DEFENDANT IS EQUITABLY ESTOPPED FROM RELYING ON THAT STATUTE].

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

[Either, if complaint is based on contract made before 1985:]

B. Writing Required. The validity of a contract to make a will or devise, when the contract was made before 1985, is governed by the law in effect before 1985 (see Prob. Code § 21700(c); former Prob. Code § 150(c)). Former Civil Code Section 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985) provided that an agreement to devise or bequeath any property, or to make any provision for any person by will, was invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, was in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by his or her agent.

[Or, if complaint is based on contract made in 1985-2000:]

B. Writing Required. The validity of a contract to make a will or devise, when the contract was made in 1985-2000, is governed by the law in effect during that period (see Prob. Code § 21700(c)). Former Probate Code § 150(a) (effective January 1, 1985; repealed January 1, 2001) provided that a contract to make a will or devise, or not to revoke a will or devise, or to die intestate, when the contract was made after 1984, could be established only by (1) provisions of a will stating material provisions of the contract, or (2) an express reference in a will to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract, or (3) a writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract.

[Or, if complaint is based on contract made after 2000:]

B. Writing Required. A contract to make a will or devise or other instrument, or not to revoke a will or devise or other instrument, or to die intestate, when the contract was made after January 1, 2001, can be established only by (1) provisions of a will or other instrument stating the material provisions of the contract, or (2) an expressed reference in a will or other instrument to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract, or (3) a writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract, or (4) clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and the claimant or a promise by the decedent to the claimant that is enforceable in equity, or (5) clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and another person for the benefit of the claimant or a promise by the decedent to another person for the benefit of the claimant that is enforceable in equity (Prob. Code § 21700(a)).

[Continue with the following:]

[If complaint is based on an oral agreement that allegedly is enforceable in equity, add Paragraphs C, D, and E, below, as appropriate:]

C. Estoppel to Rely on Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing. An oral agreement to make a provision by will is enforceable in equity under the doctrine of estoppel only when the plaintiff alleges that he or she will suffer an unconscionable injury if the agreement is not enforced because of a detrimental change of position in reliance on the oral agreement or that unjust enrichment will result if the party who has received the benefits of the plaintiff's performance were allowed to invoke the statute (see Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 646, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154).

D. Unconscionable Injury. The plaintiff's rendition of services for the decedent does not constitute unconscionable injury unless the services rendered were of such a peculiar, extraordinary, or unique nature that the law could not compensate for them in money (Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 647-648, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154).

E. Unjust Enrichment. Unjust enrichment is not established by allegations that services were rendered to the decedent unless it is alleged that those services substantially contributed to the value of the decedent's business or to the assets that comprise the decedent's estate (Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 649, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154).

[Optional if alleged agreement was made prior to 1985:] F. Will Insufficient as Memorandum. The execution of a will in accordance with an oral agreement when the will does not expressly refer to the agreement does not constitute a memorandum sufficient to satisfy the requirement that the contract be evidenced by a writing (see Shive v. Barrow (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 838, 848, 199 P.2d 693).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will. The grounds for the demurrer are that the agreement does not satisfy the applicable statutory criteria [see § 214.38[3][a]] for enforcement of a promise to leave property by will and that plaintiff has not alleged facts demonstrating that the alleged oral agreement is enforceable in equity.

Counsel should consider combining these points and authorities with the points and authorities set forth in § 214.37 because the facts pertaining to whether the plaintiff is unconscionably injured for the purposes of estoppel may also relate to whether the plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law for the purposes of determining the availability of quasi-specific performance [see Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 678, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

If the complaint alleges that an oral agreement made prior to 1985 is evidenced by a will made pursuant to it, but the will does not expressly refer to the agreement, Paragraph F should be included to show that the will is insufficient as a memorandum for the purposes of validating the contract under the applicable statute of frauds, former Civ. Code § 1624(6). For additional discussion, see § 214.38[3][e].

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel should state that plaintiff has failed to allege either that he or she will suffer an unconscionable injury or that the party who received the benefits of the plaintiff's per formance will be unjustly enriched if the contract is not enforced [see Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 646, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154 (discussed under § 214.38[3] [b])].

The points and authorities set out in §§ 214.49 and 214.50 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose a demurrer supported by this memorandum.

Counsel should note that the following cases were decided prior to legislation eliminating the language in former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (statute of frauds) referring to agreements to devise or bequeath property, or to make any provision for any person by will [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(5)]. However, as noted above, former Prob. Code § 150 appears to continue the effect of the statute of frauds with respect to contracts to make a will or bequeath property. In fact, former Prob. Code § 150 incorporates the language of a number of the following cases with regard to the requirement that in order to constitute a memorandum of an oral contract to make a will, the will must reflect the essential terms of the contract, or expressly refer to the contract [see former Prob. Code § 150(a)(1), (2); Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 649, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154 (discussed under § 214.38[3] [b]); Shive v. Barrow (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 838, 848, 199 P.2d 693 (discussed under § 214.38[3][e]); Luders v. Security Trust & Sav. Bank (1932) 121 Cal. App 408, 410, 9 P.2d 271 (discussed under § 214.38[4][d])]. Therefore, it seems that the principles of equity relied on by the following cases remain in effect, and that counsel may still rely on the reasoning of the cases in support of the rule that under circumstances of unjust enrichment or unconscionable injury, a defendant will be estopped from arguing that an oral contract to make a will or devise property in exchange for certain services is invalid because of the absence of written evidence of the contract.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Required

The validity of a contract to make a will or devise is governed by one of three statutes of frauds, depending on when the contract was made. Before 1985, the applicable statute of frauds was former Civ. Code § 1624(6). That section was superseded on January 1, 1985, by former Prob. Code § 150, which in turn was repealed as of January 1, 2001, and supplanted by the current statute, Prob. Code § 21700. The current statute provides that "[a] contract to make a will or devise or other instrument, or not to revoke a will or devise or other instrument, or to die intestate, if made prior to the effective date of this section, shall be construed under the law applicable to the contract prior to the effective date of this section" [Prob. Code § 21700(c) (eff. Jan. 1, 2001)]. Former Prob. Code § 150 similarly provided, "A contract to make a will or devise, or not to revoke a will or devise, or to die intestate, if made on or before December 31, 1984, can be established only under the law applicable to the contract on December 31, 1984" [former Prob. Code § 150(c) (eff. Jan. 1, 1985)]. (A careful reading of the current statute shows an unintended gap in coverage. Neither the current statute nor the supplanted statute would apply in the case of a contract made on January 1, 2001, since the current statute applies to a contract "made after the effective date of this statute" [Prob. Code § 21700(a) (emphasis added)], while the supplanted statute would apply to a contract "made prior to the effective date of this section" [Prob. Code § 21700(c) (emphasis added)]. However, the legislature cannot have intended an absurd result; therefore, such a contract must be held to be governed by one or the other of those statutes.)

For pre-1985 contracts, case law established equitable rules under which an oral contract could be enforced on a theory of estoppel even if it did not satisfy the requirements of former Civ. Code § 1624(6) [see discussion under § 214.38[3][b]].

For 1985-2000 contracts, former Prob. Code § 150(a), expressly provided that a contract to make a will or devise could be established "only" by (1) provisions of a will stating material provisions of the contract, or (2) an express reference in a will to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract, or (3) a writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract. However, courts have repeatedly held that the language of that section, notwithstanding use of the word "only" as noted above, did not preclude application of equitable estoppel in appropriate cases [see, e.g., Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 353 354, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 , discussed in § 214.50[3] [a]; Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 , discussed in § 214.50[4][a]; Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 , discussed in § 214.50[4][a]].

For 2001 and later contracts, the current statute, Prob. Code § 21700, retains the three methods for establishing a contract or devise that previously appeared in former Prob. Code § 150, noted above, but in addition specifies two new statutory grounds under which such a contract may be established: (4) clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and the claimant or a promise by the decedent to the claimant that is enforceable in equity, or (5) clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and another person for the benefit of the claimant or a promise by the decedent to another person for the benefit of the claimant that is enforceable in equity. Legislative analysis indicates that these additions were intended at least in part to codify the equitable basis for establishing such a contract that previously had been recognized by the case law [see Bill Analysis, Senate Judiciary Committee, AB 1491, 1999-2000 Regular Session, pp. 12-13 (March 28, 2000); Bill Analysis, Assembly Committee on Judiciary, AB 1491, 1999-2000 Regular Session, p. 4 (Jan. 11, 2000)].

[b] Estoppel to Rely on Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing

In Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154 , judgment was entered for the defendants after a demurrer to plaintiff's second amended complaint for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will was sustained without leave to amend. The court of appeal noted that the estoppel to lift an agreement to make a provision by will out of the operation of the statute of frauds is based either on an unconscionable injury that would result from denying enforcement after one party has been induced to make a detrimental change of position in reliance on the oral agreement or on the unjust enrichment that would result if the party who has received the benefits of the performance of the other were allowed to invoke the statute. The court affirmed because plaintiff had not pleaded facts sufficient to allege either ground of estoppel (237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 646) .

As discussed under § 214.38[3][a], case law has validated the continuing application of promissory estoppel principles to oral contracts to make wills when those contracts are made on or after January 1, 1985. Although the leading cases applying equitable estoppel principles to post-1984 contracts held that the facts presented were appropriate to invoke application of promissory estoppel, they do note the continuing applicability of the requirements of unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment in the context of post-1984 agreements [see Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 351, 353-354, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 , discussed in § 214.50[3] [a]; Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 892, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 , also discussed in § 214.50[4][a]].

[c] Unconscionable Injury

The procedural background of Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154 , is discussed under § 214.38[3][b]. In affirming, the court of appeal held that plaintiff's allegations that she performed services as a domestic servant and as an assistant in the decedent's retail gasoline station business could be adequately compensated in money and were not peculiar, exceptional, or unique (237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 647) . The court noted that plaintiff did not allege that she made her home with the decedent, that any close familiar relationship was involved, that she attended to the decedent's personal needs or nursed him through any illness, or that she did anything destructive to her peace and comfort or injurious to her health for which money could not compensate (237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 647-648) . The court additionally noted that plaintiff did not allege that she was uprooted from an established home, moved to a new area, abandoned a going business, sacrificed better opportunities, took the decedent into her owm home, or had any greater relationship than master and servant (237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 647-648) .

[d] Unjust Enrichment

The procedural background of Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154 , is discussed under § 214.38[3][b]. The court held that the complaint did not allege sufficient facts to show that the decedent or the benefeciaries under his will would be unjustly enriched if the oral agreement were not enforced because there was no allegation that the services plaintiff rendered substantially contributed to the value of the decedent's business or to the assets which comprised the decedent's estate. The court held that unjust enrichment does not result and cannot be implied from mere allegations that plaintiff performed services of an impersonal nature for the decedent (237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 649) .

[e] Will Insufficient as Memorandum

The facts and procedural background of Shive v. Barrow (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 838, 199 P.2d 693 , are discussed in § 214.37[3][c]. In affirming, the court of appeal held that the execution of a will in accordance with an oral agreement which does not expressly refer to the agreement does not constitute a note or memorandum sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds, and that the making of a will by the promisor conforming to an oral agreement is not part performance of the agreement (88 Cal. App. 2d 838, 848) [citing Notten v. Mensing (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 469, 473, 474, 45 P.2d 198 (discussed in § 214.50[3][b])].

By contrast, in Potter v. Bland (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 125, 288 P.2d 569 , a will was held to be a sufficient memorandum to remove an oral agreement to leave real property by will when the will stated: "I agree to leave my property upon my death as provided in this will" (136 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129-132) .

Note that the above cases involved contracts made prior to 1985; those contracts are governed by former Civ. Code § 1624(6). Contracts to make wills made after January 1, 1985, are governed by former Prob. Code § 150 (1985-2000) and Prob. Code § 21700 (post-2000), which contain much more specific statements regarding validation of such contracts by references in wills. Under both of those sections, a contract to make a will can be validated by either (1) provisions of a will stating material provisions of the contract, or (2) an express reference in a will to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract. The validity of the above cases to a contract made in or after 1985 therefore is questionable in light of the statutory grounds noted in the preceding sentence, and caution should be exercised in using these cases as authority with respect to such a contract in the absence of authority specifically holding these cases applicable to contracts made in or after 1985.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Estoppel to Rely on Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing

Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 266 P.2d 850 , involved an action for quasi-specific performance of the decedent's oral agreement to make a will leaving all her property to plaintiffs in consideration of services rendered by plaintiffs. The services included caring for the decedent's business matters, advising in personal matters, furnishing transportation, assisting in shopping, nursing, and caring for the decedent, doing laundry, running errands, and furnishing companionship and enjoyment. Defendants dafaulted, but the court held that the complaint failed to state a cause of action and entered judgment dismissing the suit. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the complaint failed to allege facts showing unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment that would establish estoppel and lift the bar of the statute of frauds (123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 295) .

In Chahon v. Schneider (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 334, 256 P.2d 54 , the court of appeal affirmed judgment for the defendant entered after a demurrer to the amended complaint for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will was sustained without leave to amend. The court held that the plaintiff had failed to allege facts showing estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds. Plaintiff had alleged that she agreed to take the decedent into her home and give him room, board, and laundry for $40 per month. Later, plaintiff also provided nursing care, and when she and her husband decided to terminate the relationship, the decedent promised, that, if plaintiff would care for him for the rest of his life, he would leave her a bank account, then containing $46,000. Plaintiff allowed the decedent to stay and provided him with household services and nursing care, did all of his personal errands outside the house, and took him on weekend trips. Plaintiff also alleged that after her husband's death, when she wished to sell her house and engage in a fuller social life than she could while continually at home to care for the decedent, the decedent reiterated his promise to leave her the bank account and she continued to care for him in reliance on his promises. The court held that plaintiff had not so changed her position and that the services rendered were not so peculiar that she could not be compensated in money. The court held that neither unconscionable injury nor unjust enrichment was present since there was an adequate remedy at law for the value of the services (117 Cal. App. 2d 334, 338-339) .

[b] Unconscionable Injury

Lombardo v. Santa Monica Young Men's Christian Assn. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 529, 215 Cal. Rptr. 244 , was determined on summary judgment and involved claims for the devise of specific property or plaintiff's right to live there rent-free for as long as she chose. The consideration had been services and affection. There were two writings. One was interpreted as merely expressing appreciation and the intention to devise property to plaintiff, not an actual promise to do so. Insufficient facts existed to estop application of the statute of frauds (169 Cal. App. 3d 529, 537-540) . The writing relating to claim for rent-free occupancy was determined to have memorialized an agency, the rent-free occupancy being consideration for the services involved in performance of the agent's duties. Such an agency, not coupled with an interest, did not survive the principal's death (169 Cal. App. 3d 529, 540-542) .

Kobus v. San Diego Trust & Sav. Bank (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 574, 342 P.2d 468 , is discussed in § 214.37[4][b].

The procedural background of Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291 , 266 P.2d 850 , is discussed under §

214.38[4][a]. In affirming, the court of appeal held that the miscellaneous services involved, including some that were purely impersonal and some that were intimate and confidential in nature, were not so peculiar, extraordinary, or exceptional in character that their value could not be estimated by any pecuniary standard and that since their value could be recovered in quantum meruit and no other detrimental change in position was alleged, neither unconscionable injury nor unjust enrichment was sufficiently alleged (123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 295-296) .

[c] Unjust Enrichment

In Smith v. Smith (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 194, 272 P.2d 118 , the court of appeal affirmed a judgment for defendant entered after a demurrer to the second amended complaint for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property to the plaintiff in consideration of services rendered to his aunt and uncle was sustained without leave to amend. The court of appeal held that there was no allegation of unjust enrichment because plaintiff did not allege that his management of his aunt and uncle's property met with any success that benefited them (126 Cal. App. 2d 194, 198) .

Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 266 P.2d 850 , is discussed under § 214.38[4][b].

[d] Will Insufficient as Memorandum

In Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154 , which is discussed under § 214.38[3][b], the decedent executed both a holographic will and a formal will to carry out his agreement before he executed another will in which plaintiff was not named as a beneficiary. In affirming part of a judgment for defendants, the court of appeal held that the wills that would have carried out the agreement did not constitute sufficient memoranda of the oral agreement to satisfy the statute of frauds because neither will referred to the oral agreement (237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 649) .

The factual and procedural background of Kobus v. San Diego Trust & Sav. Bank (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 574, 342 P.2d 468 , is discussed in § 214.37[4][b]. In that case, the decedent executed a will to fulfill his promise to leave his property to plaintiff, but the will could not be probated because it was improperly executed. In affirming judgment for defendants, the court of appeal held that the invalid will, which contained no reference to the alleged oral agreement, did not constitute a sufficient memorandum to satisfy the statute of frauds (172 Cal. App. 2d 574, 577, 579) .

Luders v. Security Trust & Sav. Bank (1932) 121 Cal. App 408, 9 P.2d 271 , was an action to enforce a trust on a decedent's property in accordance with the decedent's promise to leave all her property to plaintiff. In affirming judgment for defendants, the court of appeal held that a will executed by the decedent and leaving her property to plaintiff "for her faithful service to me" was not a sufficient memorandum to remove the agreement from the statute of frauds because it did not contain the essential terms of the contract (121 Cal. App 408, 410-413) .

NOTE:

The above cases involved contracts made prior to 1985; those contracts are governed by former Civ. Code § 1624(6). Contracts to make wills made after January 1, 1985, are governed by former Prob. Code § 150 (1985-2000) and Prob. Code § 21700 (post-2000), which contain much more specific statements regarding validation of such contracts by references in wills. For discussion, see § 214.38[3][e].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.39

§ 214.39 Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--No Cause of Action Arises During Promisor's Lifetime Unless Agreement Designates Specific Property and Restricts Promisor's Use of That Property

[1] FORM Supporting Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--No Cause of Action Arises During Promisor's Lifetime Unless Agreement Designates Specific Property and Restricts Promisor's Use of That Property

[Caption. See § 214.30[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FAILS TO STATE A CAUSE OF ACTION BECAUSE THE AGREEMENT INVOLVED DOES NOT SPECIFY ANY PARTICULAR PIECE OF PROPERTY [AND DOES NOT RESTRICT DEFENDANT'S RIGHT TO CONSUME OR SELL HIS/HER PROPERTY]. THE PROMISE IS EFFECTIVE ONLY AS TO PROPERTY OWNED BY DEFENDANT AT THE TIME OF HIS/HER DEATH AND NO CAUSE OF ACTION ARISES UNTIL THEN.

A. Objection by Demurrer. [See § 214.30[1], Paragraph A.]

B. No Cause of Action During Promisor's Lifetime. When an agreement provides that the promisor will leave to the promisee whatever property the promisor owns at the time of his or her death, the promisor has the right, during his or her lifetime, to consume his or her property for reasonably necessary living expenses and to dispose of his or her property. Since the specific property in which the promisee may claim an interest cannot be identified until the promisor's death, no constructive trust can be imposed on the promisor's property during his or her lifetime (Westbrook v. Superior Court (l986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 703, 712, 222 Cal. Rptr. 317).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a general demurrer to a complaint filed during the promisor's lifetime seeking quasi-specific performance, by imposition of a constructive trust on property of the promisor, of an agreement to leave property by will when the agreement at issue did not reserve particular or identifiable property to the promisee.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the point of law stated. Counsel may wish to contrast the agreement at issue with those cases which described specifics with requisite sufficiency to give rise to a cause of action during the promisor's lifetime. Those cases are discussed in § 214.47[3][b].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Cause of Action During Promisor's Lifetime

The agreement in Westbrook v. Superior Court (l986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 703, 222 Cal. Rptr. 317 , provided that defendant, the husband of plaintiff's aunt, would make a will, and not revoke it, providing that on defendant's death, plaintiff would receive all of defendant's property. The agreement obligated plaintiff, if his aunt died before she was old enough to receive a principal distribution from a trust of which both she and plaintiff were beneficiaries, to pay defendant $3000 a month for the rest of defendant's life or to give him property which would generate comparable income. Plaintiff had earlier fulfilled his obligation under the agreement by giving defendant a half interest in an inn then worth approximately $1 million. Later, plaintiff sold his half of the inn to defendant. Still later, defendant sold the inn for $2.2 million and invested the proceeds in the property that was the subject of the action. Defendant had refused to confirm to plaintiff that he had made a will for plaintiff's benefit and told plaintiff that he would leave him nothing. As far as plaintiff knew, the property sought to be subjected to the trust was the only property defendant owned. Plaintiff also filed a lis pendens on the property. The trial court expunged the lis pendens, and plaintiff sought a writ of mandate compelling the trial court to vacate its order expunging the lis pendens.

The court of appeal refused to issue the writ of mandate, saying the expunging of the lis pendens was proper under former Code Civ. Proc. § 409.1 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.30-405.33]. The court of appeal gave two reasons why imposition of the constructive trust was not proper: first, a promisor has the right, during his or her lifetime, to consume his or her property for reasonably necessary living expenses in good faith, and at least so long as it is not done for the purpose of defeating the agreement, to dispose of his or her property; and, second, the specific property in which the promisee may claim an interest cannot be identified until the promisor's death (176 Cal. App. 3d 703, 712) . The court of appeal concluded by distinguishing Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 , and Osborn v. Hoyt (1919) 181 Cal. 336 (discussed in § 214.47[3][b]), on the basis that in those cases specific property had been named in the agreement or, in the case of spouses agreeing to make and not to revoke mutual wills, became identifiable on the first death (176 Cal. App. 3d 703, 712-713) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.40

§ 214.40 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--General Allegation of Plaintiff's Performance Sufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 457]

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--General Allegation of Plaintiff's Performance Sufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 457]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORIT-
Plaintiff,	)	IES IN OPPOSITION TO DEMURRER TO COM-
vs.	)	PLAINT
_____ [name],	)	Date: _____
Defendant.	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	[Judge: _____]
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
		[Trial Date: _____]

_____

PLAINTIFF NEED NOT ALLEGE FACTS SHOWING PERFORMANCE, TENDER OF PERFORMANCE, OR ABILITY AND WILLINGNESS TO PERFORM CONDITIONS PRECEDENT WHERE PLAINTIFF HAS ALLEGED GENERALLY PLAINTIFF'S DUE PERFORMANCE OF ALL CONDITIONS ON PLAINTIFF'S PART.

Allegation of Performance of Conditions Precedent. In pleading the performance of conditions precedent in a contract, it is not necessary to state the facts showing such performance, but it may be stated generally that the party duly performed all the conditions on his part, and if such allegation be controverted, the party pleading must establish at trial the facts showing such performance (Code Civ. Proc. § 457).

Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts showing plaintiff's performance, tender of performance, or ability and willingness to perform conditions precedent, and when the complaint generally alleges the plaintiff's performance of all conditions on plaintiff's part.

When appropriate, counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Allegation of Performance of Conditions Precedent

Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 141 P. 623 , was an action by a vendee for specific performance of a contract to sell 50,000 shares of stock. A judgment for defendant, rendered after the sustaining of a demurrer to the complaint, was reversed on appeal. The Supreme Court held that an allegation that the plaintiff has duly and faithfully complied with and performed each and all of the provisions of the contract on his part to be kept and performed is a sufficient allegation of the performance of all the conditions precedent.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.41

§ 214.41 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Defendant's Repudiation Excuses Plaintiff's Performance [Civ. Code § 1440]

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Defendant's Repudiation Excuses Plaintiff's Performance [Civ. Code § 1440]

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

PLAINTIFF NEED NOT ALLEGE FACTS SHOWING PERFORMANCE, TENDER OF PERFORMANCE, OR ABILITY AND WILLINGNESS TO PERFORM CONDITIONS PRECEDENT WHERE PLAINTIFF HAS ALLEGED DEFENDANT'S REPUDIATION OF THE AGREEMENT.

Repudiation as Excuses Performance. When one party to an obligation gives notice to another party that the first party will not perform the obligation, the other party who is not then in default is entitled to enforce the obligation without performing or offering to perform any conditions on that party's own part in favor of the defaulting party (Civ. Code § 1440).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts showing plaintiff's performance, tender of performance, or ability and willingness to perform conditions precedent, and when the complaint alleges defendant's repudiation of the agreement sought to be enforced.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Additional Authorities

[a] Repudiation as Excuses Performance

In Beverage v. Canton Placer Mining Co. (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 769, 278 P.2d 694 , an action for specific performance of the defendant's contract to convey a parcel of real property to plaintiffs, the plaintiffs alleged that the defendant refused and failed to perform the contract after repeated demands for performance, and plaintiffs were and continued to be ready, willing, and able to perform the contract. In reversing a judgment on the pleadings for defendant with directions to permit amendment of the complaint to allege repudiation, the Supreme Court held that when a vendor repudiates a contract and indicates that he is not bound thereby, performance of a tender of performance is unnecessary.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.42

§ 214.42 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Terms of Contract Are Sufficiently Certain

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Terms of Contract Are Sufficiently Certain

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

A COMPLAINT IS NOT SUBJECT TO DEMURRER ON THE GROUND OF UNCERTAINTY OF THE TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT IF ALL THE MATERIAL TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT ARE ALLEGED AND THE INCIDENTAL TERMS CAN BE INFERRED FROM CUSTOM AND USAGE.

Contract Containing Material Terms Is Sufficient. A complaint for specific performance states a cause of action if the contract as alleged in the complaint contains all the material terms of the agreement and the incidental terms of the agreement can be inferred from custom and usage (King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 588-589, 197 P.2d 321 , disapproved on other grounds, Patel v. Liebermensch (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 344, 351, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366, 197 P.3d 177).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts showing an agreement with terms sufficiently certain as to make clearly ascertainable the precise act to be enforced but when the contract as alleged in the complaint contains all the material terms of the parties' agreement and the incidental terms of the agreement can be inferred from custom and usage.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of his case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract containing Material Terms Is Sufficient

King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 197 P.2d 321 , was an action for specific performance of a contract to sell two lots, resulting in judgment for plaintiff. On appeal, it was contended that it could not be ascertained with reasonable certainty from the parties' exchange of writings the duties of each and the conditions of performance. In rejecting this contention, the Supreme Court held that equity does not require that all the terms and conditions of a proposed agreement be set forth in the contract. The usual and reasonable conditions of such a contract are a part of the agreement, and, in the absence of express conditions, custom determines incidental matters relating to the opening of an escrow, furnishing deeds and title insurance policies, prorating of taxes, and the like. The material facts that must be ascertainable from the written contract are the seller, the buyer, the price to be paid, and the property to be transferred (32 Cal. 2d 584, 588-589) .

In the list of essential terms, the court in King v. Stanley included the time and manner of payment. However, in a subsequent case the court concluded that neither the time of payment nor the manner of payment is an essential term in a contract for sale; therefore, King v. Stanley is disapproved to the extent that it states otherwise (Patel v. Liebermensch (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 344, 351, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366, 197 P.3d 177).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract Containing Material Terms Is Sufficient

In De Anza Enterprises v. Johnson (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1307 , a joint venturer sought specific performance of a term in the joint venture agreement allowing plaintiff to purchase the interest of defendant in the property owned by plaintiff and defendant as part of their joint venture. The agreement did not specify a date by which the valuation was to be measured. The trial court concluded that the agreement was clear on fixing the purchase price by mutual agreement or by appraisal, leaving the date when the fixing would occur to follow as a matter of course after the selection of appraisers. It ordered specific performance, setting the date of valuation to correspond to the time of appraisal, i.e., to follow the buy-out election and appointment of appraisers "as a matter of course." The court did not propose to override the parties' apparent intent to have the property valued by appraisers as part of the appraisal process, which neither party had yet triggered. On appeal, plaintiff disputed the purchase price of defendant's interest, contending that the appraised value of the property should have been determined as of the date defendant defaulted on his contractual obligation, the date plaintiff declared an intention to buy out defendant, or at the latest, the date plaintiff brought the lawsuit. The court of appeal affirmed. Examination of the contract terms, in the context of the document as a whole and the surrounding circumstances, led to the conclusion reached by the trial court that the parties intended to fix the purchase price by mutual agreement or appraisal, leaving the date when the fixing would occur to follow as a matter of course (104 Cal. App. 4th 1307, 1318) .

Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220 , dealt with the defense of uncertainty in the context of affirming the portions of a judgment awarding plaintiff specific performance and damages for breach of contract. The provision at issue was in an investment contract stating that plaintiff could participate in future ventures "in a manner mutually agreeable in the same ratio which we currently hold stock." It was challenged as a fatally uncertain agreement to agree. The court of appeal said that the defense of uncertainty only has validity when the uncertainty or incompleteness of the contract prevents the court from knowing what to enforce (203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 817) . Even when the uncertainty goes to the precise act which is to be done, extrinsic evidence is admissible to determine what the parties intended. It is only when the extrinsic evidence fails to remove the ambiguity that specific performance must be refused (203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 819) . In this case, the extrinsic evidence regarding the conduct of the parties in implementing that provision with respect to their second and third ventures cured any defects or omissions that might render the provision unenforceable (203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 817-820) .

In Burrow v. Timmsen (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 283, 35 Cal. Rptr. 668, 100 A.L.R.2d 544 , plaintiff sought specific performance of a land sale or damages. Judgment was entered for defendants after defendants' objections to the introduction of evidence were sustained and their motion for judgment of the pleadings was granted. The contract provided that for the unpaid balance of the purchase price the plaintiff would execute a promissory note for $37,000 with 7 percent interest, payments at $300 per month, and a deed of trust as security for the note. Judgment was reversed on appeal. In concluding that the agreement was not so uncertain as to be incapable of specific enforcement, the court of appeal stated that it was not required that every term and condition of an agreement be set forth in the contract. The usual and reasonable terms found in similar contracts, inferences from the writing, external facts, and custom and usage may be resorted to in an effort to supply a deficiency in an agreement.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.43

§ 214.43 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Sufficient Contract Description of Property

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Sufficient Contract Description of Property

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

A COMPLAINT IS NOT SUBJECT TO DEMURRER ON THE GROUND THAT THE DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPERTY SOUGHT TO BE CONVEYED IS INSUFFICIENTLY CERTAIN WHEN IT ALLEGES AN AGREEMENT WITH A DESCRIPTION SUFFICIENT TO ENABLE A COMPETENT SURVEYOR TO LOCATE OR IDENTIFY THE PROPERTY.

Sufficiency of Property Description. A description of property is sufficient if it would enable a competent surveyor to locate or identify the property (Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 207, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege that the property sought to be conveyed was sufficiently described in the agreement.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of Property Description

Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769 , was a vendees' action for specific performance of an agreement to sell one acre of a certain coastal promontory enclosed by drawing a line from northwest to southeast across the neck of the promontory. A judgment of dismissal was entered after sustaining of a general demurrer to the complaint. In reversing the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer, the court of appeal held that the usual test for sufficiency of a property description is whether a competent surveyor would have any difficulty in locating the land and establishing its boundaries from the description contained in the agreement to convey. The court explained that a description is certain enough if it furnished the means or key by which the location of the property in question may be identified (267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 207) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Sufficiency of Property Description

Calvi v. Bittner (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 312, 17 Cal. Rptr. 850 , involved an action for specific performance of a deposit receipt agreement for the defendant's sale of land. The complaint alleged that the receipt's notation "AP 73-28-12" referred to a particular parcel shown on a certain assesor's parcel map. A judgment entered after a general demurrer to the complaint has been sustained without leave to amend was reversed on appeal. In holding that the parcel was sufficiently described in the agreement, the court of appeal stated that the description must be such, either in terms or by reference, that the property can be ascertained without resort to parol evidence for the purpose of supplying a description.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.44

§ 214.44 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Agreed Consideration Is Reasonable Value of Property

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Agreed Consideration Is Reasonable Value of Property

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

A COMPLAINT IS NOT SUBJECT TO DEMURRER ON THE GROUND THAT IT FAILS TO ALLEGE THAT THE CONSIDERATION FOR THE AGREEMENT IS ADEQUATE, FAIR, AND JUST TO THE DEFENDANT WHERE IT ALLEGES THAT THE AGREED CONSIDERATION IS THE FAIR AND REASONABLE VALUE OF THE PROPERTY.

Fair and Reasonable Value of Property. An allegation that the agreed sale price is a fair and reasonable value of the property is a sufficient allegation that the consideration was fair and adequate (W.G. Reese Co. v. House (1912) 162 Cal. 740, 745, 124 P. 442).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance where the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege that the agreed consideration for the agreement was fair and reasonable.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Fair and Reasonable Value of Property

W.G. Reese Co. v. House (1912) 162 Cal. 740, 124 P. 442 , was an action for specific performance of an option to buy certain real property duly exercised by plaintiff and conveyance of the property to plaintiff by the defendant's grantees. A judgment of dismissal was entered on the sustaining of a demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend. In reversing the judgment with directions to overrule the demurrer, the Supreme Court held that to compel the specific performance of a contract, it must be made to appear by affirmative allegation that the consideration was fair and adequate. It is not enough to merely state the legal conclusion of adequacy. Facts supporting the conclusion must be pleaded. Such facts are sufficiently alleged when there is a specific averment to the effect that the agreed sale price is, and at all times since the execution of the agreement has been, a fair and reasonable value of the property (162 Cal. 740, 745) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.45

§ 214.45 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Remedy at Law Inadequate

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384]--Remedy at Law Inadequate

[Caption, See § 214.40[1].]

A COMPLAINT ALLEGES A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF AN AGREEMENT WHERE IT STATES FACTS SHOWING THE REMEDY AT LAW TO BE INADEQUATE.

A. Inadequate Remedy at Law. Specific performance is proper when the remedy at law is inadequate because pecuniary compensation will not afford adequate relief (Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 25, 141 P. 623).

[Optional] B. Remedy at Law Inadequate for Untraded Stock. The remedy at law is inadequate when the contract is one to sell or convey stock that is not traded in the market and that has no established market value (Capaldi v. Levy (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 274, 281, 81 Cal. Rptr. 629).

[Optional] C. Remedy at Law Inadequate for Unavailable Stock. The remedy at law is inadequate when the contract is one for the sale of stock that cannot be purchased on the open market (Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App 2d 217, 233-234, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792).

[Optional] D. Unique Goods or Other Circumstances Under Commercial Code. Specific performance of a contract for the sale of goods subject to Division 2 of the Commercial Code may be decreed if the goods are unique or other circumstances make specific performance of the contract proper (Com. Code § 2716(1)).

[Optional] E. Goods Defined. Goods are all things that are movable at the time of indentification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities, and things in action (Com. Code § 2015(1)).

[Optional] F. Goods That Cannot Be Covered or Replaced. The remedy at law is inadequate when the contract is for the sale of goods that cannot be economically obtained elsewhere or replaced (Kaiser Trading Co. v. Associated Metals & Minerals Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1970) 321 F. Supp. 923, 932-933) .

[Optional] G. Contractual Stipulation for Equitable Relief Should Be Honored. When the parties have stipulated in the contract that the remedy at law would be inadequate and that specific performance is the appropriate relief in the event of a breach of the contract, it is proper for the trial court to honor the parties' agreement unless the court finds that to do so would be contrary to a rule of law or public policy (DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Kaleidescape, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 697, 725726, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 856).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for specific performance when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts showing that the remedy at law is inadequate. Paragraphs D and E, if appropriate, should be used together. Paragraph F, if appropriate, should accompany Paragraphs D and E.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 141 P. 623 , was an action for specific performance of a contract to sell 50,000 shares of an oil company stock. A judgment was entered for the defendant after the sustaining of a demurrer to the amended complaint and was reversed on appeal. The complaint alleged that at the time of the contract's execution (1) the company's only property was unproven oil land with speculative and uncertain value; (2) defendant owned 100,000 of the company's 300,00 shares of stock; (3) the stock had no actual or market value; and (4) plaintiff could not obtain all or a considerable portion of 500,000 shares from the few persons owning and controlling the company's stock or elsewhere. Holding that the complaint was sufficient to justify specific performance, the Supreme Court stated that when facts are alleged showing that pecuniary compensation will not afford adequate relief, the objection that an adequate remedy at law exists is removed and specific performance will be enforced in proper cases (168 Cal. 23, 25) .

[b] Remedy at Law Inadequate for Untraded Stock

Capaldi v. Levy (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 274, 81 Cal. Rptr. 629 , was a seller's action for specific performance in which the buyer failed to complete the escrow for delivery of all the stock of a corporation. The sellers were awarded a judgment for the entire contract price. On appeal, the buyer contended that the selllers' remedy at law for damages was adequate. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal explained that the propriety of specific enforcement of contracts to sell or convey unique items of personal property, such as shares of stock in closely held corporation that are not traded in the market and that have no established market value, has long been recognized (1 Cal. App. 3d 274, 281) .

[c] Remedy at Law Inadequate for Unavailable Stock

Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792 , was an action for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of corporate stock. The shares of stock could not be purchased on the open market and could be acquired only from the individual defendants. They were acquired by the plaintiff as a part of his business program. In affirming a judgment for plaintiff, the court of appeal held that specific performance was proper since the defendant's failure to deliver could not have been compensated by a money judgment (195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 233-234) .

[d] Goods Which Cannot Be Covered or Replaced

Kaiser Trading Co. v. Associated Metals & Minerals Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1970) 321 F. Supp. 923 , was an action for a preliminary injunction, specific performance, and money damages sought by the vendees for breach of a contract to sell cryolite. A preliminary injunction was granted to restrain the defendant from failing to perform under the contract. In applying the provision of Com. Code § 2716(1) authorizing specific performance when the goods are unique or in other proper circumstances, the court noted a general trend toward a more liberalized availability of specific performance as well as decisions in other jurisdictions that the remedy should be available when goods cannot be covered or replaced (321 F. Supp. 923, 932-933) .

[e] Contractual Stipulation for Equitable Relief Should Be Honored

In DVD Copy Control Assn., Inc. v. Kaleidescape, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 697, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 856 , the plaintiff sought equitable relief for the defendant's breach of a contract. The contract included a provision stating that in the event of a breach, "damages alone will not adequately compensate an injured party ... [and,] upon showing to the relevant court's satisfaction that applicable factors other than the fact that harm will be irreparable and that monetary damages are not sufficient to remedy the injury have been fulfilled, [the injured party] will be entitled to specific performance or other temporary, preliminary, or permanent injunctive relief." The trial court concluded that this stipulation was not binding and the court declined, for stated reasons, to give the equitable relief that the plaintiff demanded.

The court of appeal observed that "there is no published California case holding that such stipulations are enforceable" and that "we should treat the stipulation as we would a liquidated damages clause or a consent decree." The court briefly discussed pertinent case law then concluded, "It follows that, as a general matter, where the parties have stipulated to the nature or amount of a remedy, it is proper for the trial court to honor the parties' agreement unless it finds that to do so would be contrary to a rule of law or public policy. The instant stipulation is no exception. In determining the lawfulness of a stipulation that contemplates an equitable remedy, the court should take into account the special nature of equitable remedies. Given their extraordinary nature, equitable remedies are usually unavailable where the remedy at law is adequate, as where damages are quantifiable. That means that a court must reject a stipulation contemplating an equitable remedy that is contrary to law or public policy, such as where the evidence shows that an aggrieved party actually has an adequate remedy at law. Otherwise, the court should honor the parties' agreement and enforce the stipulation" (176 Cal. App. 4th 697, 725-726) (citations omitted).

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

In Tamarind Lithography Workshop, Inc. v. Sanders (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 571, 193 Cal. Rptr. 409 , an action by a film owner against the film producer, the producer cross complained for damages and specific performance of the owner's obligation to feature the producer in the screen credits. The trial court denied the complaint for specific performance, but the court of appeal reversed the decision. The court held that the basic requirements for granting the remedy of specific performance had been met, and most importantly, that it was impossible to accurately ascertain monetary damages for harm resulting from the omission of the producer's name from the credits, thus making the legal remedy of such damages inadequate (143 Cal. App. 3d 571, 575) .

Price v. McConnell (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 660, 7 Cal. Rptr. 695 , involved a buyer's cross complaint for specific performance in the seller's action for the price of 25 purebred Hereford heifers. The buyer deposited with the court clerk a sum of money for the price and the fee for furnishing registration papers and breeding records. He alleged that the papers and records for the heifers could be obtained only from the seller. There was also evidence that the 25 heifers with their particular background fitted into the buyer's breeding program and could not be bought on the open market. Judgment was entered for specific performance of the agreement to deliver the registration papers and records and for payment of the deposit to the seller on delivery. In affirming the judgment, the court of appeal held that the breach of the contract could not with any degree of certainty be duplicated or adequately compensated in damages, and hence the general rule that equity will not enforce specific performance of a sale of personal property where the breach can be adequately compensated did not apply.

Hercules Glue Co. v. Littooy (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 182, 76 P.2d 700 , was an action for specific performance of an investor's agreement to execute any transfer or instrument necessary to perfect the plaintiff's title to all patents, processes, or formulas relating to chemical compounds for insecticide spreaders. A judgment specifically requiring the assignment of the patent for a certain formula was entered and affirmed. The court of appeal held that equity will specifically enforce the performance of a contract to convey patent rights.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.46

§ 214.46 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Consideration for Agreement Was Peculiar Personal Services

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Consideration for Agreement Was Peculiar Personal Services

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

A COMPLAINT ALLEGES A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR QUASI-SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF AN AGREEMENT TO LEAVE PROPERTY BY WILL WHERE IT STATES FACTS SHOWING THAT THE CONSIDERATION FOR THE DECEDENTS PROMISE WAS THE RENDITION OF PECULIAR PERSONAL SERVICES.

A. Inadequate Remedy at Law for Peculiar Personal Services. When the consideration for a decedent's promise to leave property by will was the rendition of peculiar personal services, the value of which cannot be estimated by any pecuniary standard, the remedy at law is inadequate (Fowler v. Hansen (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 518, 522-523, 120 P.2d 161).

B. Services Involving Close Relationship. Personal services rendered as consideration for a promise to leave property by will are peculiar when they involve the assumption or continuation of a family or other close relationship between the contracting parties (Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 626, 220 P.2d 737).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition of a general demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to leave property by will when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts showing that the remedy at law is inadequate and when the complaint alleges facts showing that plaintiff's services rendered in consideration of the agreement were peculiar.

If appropriate, counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law for Peculiar Personal Services

Fowler v. Hansen (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 518, 120 P.2d 161 , was an action for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to leave property to plaintiff by will. In reversing a judgment on the pleadings for defendant, the court of appeal noted that when the consideration for such a contract is that the promisee will assume a peculiar and domestic relation to the promisor and render to him or her services of such a peculiar character that it is practically impossible to estimate their value by any pecuniary standard, specific performance will be decreed.

[b] Services Involving Close Relationship

In Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 220 P.2d 737 , the defendant cross complained for quasi-specific performance of a contract to leave property by will. Decedents had agreed to leave property to the defendant, their son and stepson, if he remained at home and worked on the family farm. In affirming the judgment for defendant on the cross complaint, the Supreme Court held that neither the remedy of an action at law for breach of contract nor the quasi-contractual remedy for the value of services rendered is adequate for the breach of a contract to leave property by will in exchange for services of a peculiar nature involving the assumption or continuation of a close family relationship.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law for Peculiar Personal Services

In Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 , the tenants of a deceased landlord sought quasi-specific performance on a constructive trust theory of the decedent's oral promise to them in 1981 that she would will them the house they were renting if they would agree to take care of her and her cats. The tenants claimed that over the course of their tenancy beginning in 1964, they took care of decedent for more than 26 years. They performed many duties for her, prepared her taxes, made her special meals, gave her daily walks after she entered a board and care facility, and cared for her pets even after her death. They claimed that they approached decedent on many occasions regarding the purchase of the property, and she told them that if they would stick it out, the house would be theirs. The tenants alleged that decedent made her oral promise to will them the house in 1981. The trial court granted the estate administrator's motion for summary judgment and the tenants appealed. The court of appeals reversed, noting that there was sufficient evidence of appellants' contention that they were willed the property to create an issue as to whether the property was impressed with a constructive trust (49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1468) . The court noted that when a promisee devotes work, energy, and effort on behalf of a promisor and in reliance on the promises made forgoes other opportunities elsewhere, equity will grant relief equivalent to specific performance by imposing a constructive trust on the property that decedent promised to leave to the promisee (49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1467) .

[b] Services Involving Close Relationship

Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210 , was an action for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to leave property by will. As consideration for the decedent's promise plaintiff had moved to California to raise her son, decedent's grandson, in decedent's home. A judgment of dismissal, entered after a general demurrer to the complaint had been sustained, was reversed on appeal. In holding the plaintiff's remedy at law was inadequate, the court of appeal stated that the services were peculiar because only the promisee could perform them, as is typically the case when a family or other close relationship between the contracting parties plays a part in the agreement.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.47

§ 214.47 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Agreement to Leave Particular Real Property by Will

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Agreement to Leave Particular Real Property by Will

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

THE COMPLAINT ALLEGES A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR QUASI-SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF THE AGREEMENT TO LEAVE PROPERTY BY WILL BECAUSE IT STATES FACTS SHOWING THAT THE CONTRACT WAS TO LEAVE A PARTICULAR PIECE OF REAL PROPERTY BY WILL.

A. Pecuniary Compensation Inadequate for Real Property. It is presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately relieved by pecuniary compensation (Civ. Code § 3387).

B. Inadequate Remedy at Law. The remedy at law is inadequate when the contract is one to leave a particular piece of real property by will (Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 677, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210).

[Optional] C. Promise Enforceable During Promisor's Lifetime. If specific or identifiable property is the subject of the promise to leave property by will, the promisor's right to consume that property for maintenance and support or otherwise dispose of it during his or her lifetime is limited, and the promisor engages in [constructive] fraud so as to frustrate the promise, an action for imposition of a contructive trust on that property, or so much of it as the promisor does not require for reasonable support and maintenance, will lie while the promisor is still alive (Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 592, 595-596, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 ; Osborn v. Hoyt (1919) 181 Cal. 336, 340-341).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to leave property by will when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts showing that the remedy at law is inadequate and when the agreement involved a particular piece of real property. Optional Paragraph C is for use in opposing a demurrer based on the contention that no action will lie during the promisor's lifetime.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210 , was an action for quasi-specific performance of an alleged oral agreement to devise a parcel of real property. A judgment of dismissal was entered after sustaining a demurrer to the complaint. The court of appeal reversed and held that the complaint sufficiently alleged that the plaintiff was without an adequate remedy at law since the alleged agreement was in effect a contract for the transfer of real property. As such, the party seeking enforcement need not establish inadequacy of the legal remedy, and may rely on the presumption that damages would not adequately compensate for the breach.

[b] Promise Enforceable During Promisor's Lifetime

Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 , was an action by third-party beneficiaries for imposition of a constructive trust on property that was the subject of an agreement by husband and wife regarding mutual wills. The agreement provided in part that after the death of the first to die, the other could not change his or her will or in any way deprive the beneficiaries of the benefits of the agreement, subject to the survivor's right, during his or her lifetime, to reasonable use and enjoyment of the combined estates. Husband died first. Wife remarried, lost or hid her will, and in derogation of the agreement with her deceased husband, deeded all her property to herself and her new husband as joint tenants. Judgment was entered for plaintiffs, imposing a constructive trust on the properties, subject to defendants' right to use, sell, and otherwise deal with the property to serve their needs and general well-being in any reasonable manner.

There were cross-appeals. The judgment was affirmed. In affirming, the Supreme Court said it was not necessary that plaintiffs wait until wife's death to bring their action. Her acts amounted to sufficient repudiation of the agreement to give rise to a cause of action (53 Cal. 2d 567, 593) . Further, the Court disagreed with defendants' contention that the constructive trust was too restrictive, saying that in view of wife's long-standing attempts to make performance of the agreement with her first husband impossible, the restrictions were as limited as they could be and still insure substantial justice (53 Cal. 2d 567, 595-596) .

Osborn v. Hoyt (1919) 181 Cal. 336 , was an action for imposition of a constructive trust on certain real property that was the subject of a written agreement to leave the property by will. The action was commenced while the promisor was still alive, but he died during trial. Plaintiff/promisees used to hunt in the area of the land in question and discovered the promisor old, infirm, and living in squalid conditions on the 160 acres in question. They fed him, showed him how to homestead the property, piped water to his cabin and garden, installed a 3-mile road from the mouth of the canyon to the property, sent for his daughters in the east, from whom he had been alienated for years, furnished feed and stable to his horses, financed a survey, and built and stocked a clubhouse from which he could take provisions without charge. In derogation of the agreement, the promisor deeded the property to his daughters. The trial court gave judgment imposing a constructive trust on the property in the hands of the daughters and commanding them to execute a proper deed to plaintiffs. Defendant/daughters appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. In affirming, the Court disposed of the contention that the action was premature, saying the situation was to be distinguished from those in which the promisee has no interest during the promisor's lifetime. Since the agreement promised this specific property, and since the daughters knew of their father's promise and gave no consideration for the land, the judgment was proper (181 Cal. 336, 340-341) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Promise Enforceable During Promisor's Lifetime

Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 , discussed in § 214.46[4][a], also involved a contract to leave a particular piece of real property by will. The court of appeals, in reversing a motion for summary judgement, held that there was sufficient evidence of appellants' contention that they were willed the property to create an issue as to whether the property was impressed with a constructive trust (49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1468) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.48

§ 214.48 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Consideration for Agreement Was Conveyance of Real Property to Decedent

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Remedy at Law Inadequate--Consideration for Agreement Was Conveyance of Real Property to Decedent

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

THE COMPLAINT ALLEGES A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR QUASI-SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF THE AGREEMENT TO LEAVE PROPERTY BY WILL BECAUSE IT STATES FACTS SHOWING THAT THE CONSIDERATION FOR THE DECEDENT'S PROMISE WAS THE CONVEYANCE OF REAL PROPERTY TO THE DECEDENT.

Inadequate Remedy at Law. When the consideration for a decedent's promise to leave property by will was the conveyance of real property to the decedent, the remedy at law is inadequate (Trower v. Young (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 539, 542-547, 105 P.2d 160).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum of points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to leave property by will when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts showing that the remedy at law is inadequate and when the complaint alleges facts showing that the consideration for the agreement was the conveyance of real property to the decedent.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Inadequate Remedy at Law

Trower v. Young (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 539, 105 P.2d 160 , involved a decedent's agreement to bequeath and devise half her estate to the plaintiffs where the plaintiffs had relinquished to the decedent their shares of her predeceased husband's estate and had in particular conveyed to the decedent their respective interests in various parcels of real property in the husband's estate. A judgment for defendant, entered after sustaining a demurrer to the complaint, was reversed on appeal. The court of appeal held that the transfer to the decedent of the interest in a number of parcels of real estate made quasi-specific performance a proper remedy.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.49

§ 214.49 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Rendering Peculiar Services Lifts Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Agreement to Leave Property by Will--Rendering Peculiar Services Lifts Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

A CAUSE OF ACTION FOR QUASI-SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF AN ORAL AGREEMENT TO LEAVE PROPERTY BY WILL WILL NOT BE BARRED BY THE ABSENCE OF WRITTEN EVIDENCE OF THE CONTRACT WHEN THE COMPLAINT ALLEGES THAT PLAINTIFF RENDERED SERVICES OF SUCH A PECULIAR CHARACTER IN CONSIDERATION OF THE AGREEMENT THAT THEIR VALUE CANNOT BE MEASURED BY ANY PECUNIARY STANDARD, AND PLAINTIFF CANNOT BE RESTORED TO HIS OR HER SITUATION PRIOR TO RENDERING THE SERVICES.

Rendition of Services of Peculiar Character. If the services that are rendered in consideration of an oral agreement to leave property by will are of such a peculiar character that it is impossible to estimate their value by any pecuniary standard, and it is evident that the parties did not intend to measure them by a pecuniary standard, and if the plaintiff cannot be restored to the situation he or she was in prior to rendition of the services, the rendition of the services constitutes such a part performance of the oral agreement as to lift the requirement that the contract be evidenced by a writing. In such a case, equity, when other objections are not present, will decree specific performance (see Walker v. Calloway (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 675, 678, 222 P.2d 455).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts sufficient to lift the requirement that the contract be evidenced by a writing.

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case; for example, the fact that no recovery may be obtained in quantum meruit because no timely claim for the value of the plaintiff's services was filed with the decedent's estate does not appear to be sufficient to satisfy the requirement that the services not be compensable in money [see Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 299, 266 P.2d 850] .

Counsel should consider whether or not to combine this form with the points and authorities set forth in § 214.46 or 214.47, or both, so as to argue that, once the requirement of a writing has been avoided, quasi-specific performance is otherwise appropriate.

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 214.38.

The validity of a contract to make a will or devise is governed by one of three statutes of frauds, depending on when the contract was made. Before 1985, the applicable statute of frauds was former Civ. Code § 1624(6). It was superseded January 1, 1985, by former Prob. Code § 150, which in turn was repealed January 1, 2001, and supplanted by Prob. Code § 21700. Cases decided under the first statute apparently remain relevant under the current statute and probably could be applied in a case governed by former Prob. Code § 150. For discussion, see § 214.38[3][a].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Rendition of Services of Peculiar Character

Plaintiff in Walker v. Calloway (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 675, 222 P.2d 455 , brought suit for specific performance of the decedent's agreement to leave his entire estate to plaintiff if she would come to California and provide him with companionship, affection, and solace in his remaining days. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the amended complaint, and entered judgment dismissing the action. The court of appeal reversed, applying the rule set out in the foregoing form, relying on earlier California Supreme Court decisions. The court found that the services alleged were of such unusual and exceptional character that they could not and were not intended to be measured by any pecuniary measure. Plaintiff was the decedent's former wife, and the decedent, who had cancer and only a few months to live, desired her companionship and affection. He had a nurse and did not need household services. Plaintiff, on her part, gave up her residence, occupation, home ties, and associations in Michigan to come 2,000 miles to strange surroundings at an advanced age (99 Cal. App. 2d 675, 677-680) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Rendition of Services of Peculiar Character

Riganti v. McElhinney (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 116, 56 Cal. Rptr. 195 , involved an action for quasi-specific performance of the decedent's agreement to leave plaintiffs part of his real property in consideration of plaintiff's services in looking after his real property, collecting and accounting for the rents, caring for the decedent as long as he lived, and showing him the respect and obedience that children show a father. Judgment was entered in plaintiff's favor, and the court of appeal affirmed, applying the rule set out in the foregoing form. The court held that the services and devotion, consisting of care and attention provided for six years as though plaintiffs were members of the decedent's family, were of such a peculiar nature that their value could not be estimated by any pecuniary standard, and that there was no intent that they be measured by any pecuniary standard, since a fixed fee could have been established by the parties who had set a fee for plaintiffs' looking after the decedent's real property, in return for which they received free rent. Plaintiff husband had special skills and could have improved his station in life by not fulfilling his obligations under the agreement, but having honored the agreement, could not be restored to the situation prior to rendering the services (248 Cal. App. 2d 116, 122-123) .

De Hermosillo v. Morales (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 819 , involved an action for quasi-specific performance of the decedent's oral agreement to leave plaintiff a house by will if plaintiff, who lived in Mexico, would stay in California to act as housekeeper and practical nurse, and to look after the decedent's comfort and general welfare. The court of appeal affirmed a judgment in plaintiff's favor, applying the rule set out in the foregoing form and noting that plaintiff and the decedent loved one another as though they were mother and daughter, and that the decedent needed and wanted the services, companionship, love, and affection of plaintiff only (146 Cal. App. 2d 819, 827-828) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.50

§ 214.50 Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Contract to Make Will Complaint Alleges Facts Sufficient to Support Application of Equitable Doctrine of Promissory Estoppel [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[1] FORM Opposing Demurrer to Complaint for Quasi-Specific Performance of Contract to Make Will Complaint Alleges Facts Sufficient to Support Application of Equitable Doctrine of Promissory Estoppel [Prob. Code § 21700; former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985)]

[Caption. See § 214.40[1].]

PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT FOR QUASI-SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF AN ORAL AGREEMENT TO LEAVE PROPERTY BY WILL STATES AN ENFORCEABLE CLAIM UNDER THE EQUITABLE DOCTRINE OF PROMISSORY ESTOPPEL BECAUSE IT ALLEGES FACTS SHOWING THAT UNCONSCIONABLE INJURY OR UNJUST ENRICHMENT WILL RESULT IF THE AGREEMENT IS NOT ENFORCED.

[For contracts entered into prior to 2001:]

A. Estoppel to Assert Requirement that Contract Be Evidenced by Writing. Although the applicable statute of frauds, _____ [for pre-1985 contracts: former Civil Code Section 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985) or, for contracts entered into in 1985-2000: former Probate Code Section 150 (repealed January 1, 2001)], requires that an agreement to make a provision by will be in writing, a party will be estopped from relying on the statute when fraud would result from refusal to enforce an oral contract. The doctrine of estoppel has been applied (1) when an unconscionable injury would result from denying enforcement after one party has been induced to make a serious change of position in reliance on the contract, or (2) when unjust enrichment would result if a party who has received the benefits of the other's performance were allowed to invoke the statute (Day v. Greene (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 404, 409-410, 29 Cal. Rptr. 785, 380 P.2d 385 ; Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 351, 353-354, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 ; see Monarco v. LoGreco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 623-624, 220 P.2d 737).

[Or, for contracts entered into in or after 2001:]

A. Estoppel to Assert Requirement that Contract Be Evidenced by Writing. Although the applicable statute of frauds, Probate Code Section 21700, generally requires that an agreement to make a provision by will be in writing, it also permits such an agreement to be established by (1) clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and the claimant or a promise by the decedent to the claimant that is enforceable in equity, or (2) clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and another person for the benefit of the claimant or a promise by the decedent to another person for the benefit of the claimant that is enforceable in equity (Prob. Code § 21700(a)(4), (5)). Under settled case law, an oral promise to make a provision by will is enforceable in equity under the doctrine of estoppel to assert the statute of frauds when fraud would result from refusal to enforce an oral contract. The doctrine of estoppel has been applied (1) when an unconscionable injury would result from denying enforcement after one party has been induced to make a serious change of position in reliance on the contract, or (2) when unjust enrichment would result if a party who has received the benefits of the other's performance were allowed to invoke the statute (Day v. Greene (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 404, 409-410, 29 Cal. Rptr. 785, 380 P.2d 385 ; Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 351, 353-354, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 ; see Monarco v. LoGreco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 623-624, 220 P.2d 737).

[CONTINUE]

[Optional] B. Receiving Benefit Under Agreement to Make Irrevocable Joint or Reciprocal Wills. When two persons make joint or reciprocal wills under an oral agreement to leave each one's entire property to the survivor and on the death of the survivor to name beneficiaries, and one person performs the agreement by not revoking the will prior to his or her death, equity will grant quasi-specific performance of the oral agreement and impose a constructive trust on the property in favor of the original beneficiaries if the survivor, having received the benefit of the agreement, executes a new will in disregard of the agreed-on disposition. In such a case, the newly designated beneficiaries of the survivor are estopped to rely on the rule that such a contract be evidenced by a writing (see Notten v. Mensing (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 469, 474, 45 P.2d 198 ; Stahmer v. Schley (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 200, 203, 157 Cal. Rptr. 756).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will, when the demurrer asserts that the complaint fails to allege facts sufficient to overcome the requirement that the contract be evidenced by a writing [see Prob. Code § 21700 (applicable to agreements made in or after 2001); former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed January 1, 2001) (applicable to agreements made in 1985-200); former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985) (applicable to pre-1985 agreements); for discussion, see § 214.38[3][a]].

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case; for example, allegations sufficient to support a finding of unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment that would support the enforceability in equity of a contract to make a will. If the agreement is adequately alleged, it will have to be proved by full, clear, and convincing evidence in order to prevail at trial [see Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 747, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187,

505 P.2d 1027] .

In an appropriate case, this form may be submitted in opposition to a demurrer supported by the points and authorities set out in § 214.38.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Estoppel to Assert Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing

The validity of a contract to make a will or devise is governed by one of three statutes of frauds, depending on when the contract was made. Before 1985, the applicable statute of frauds was former Civ. Code § 1624(6). It was superseded January 1, 1985, by former Prob. Code § 150, which in turn was repealed January 1, 2001, and supplanted by Prob. Code § 21700. Cases decided under the first statute apparently remain relevant under the current statute and probably could be applied in a case governed by former Prob. Code § 150. For discussion, see § 214.38[3][a].

In Day v. Greene (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 404, 29 Cal. Rptr. 785, 380 P.2d 385 , the plaintiff brought an action to impress a constructive trust on one-seventh of the residuary estate of her stepmother, claiming that the stepmother had entered into an oral agreement with plaintiff's father (the stepmother's husband) by which the father had agreed to leave all his property to the stepmother in return for which the stepmother, on her death, would leave her estate in equal shares to plaintiff and each of the six children of the father and stepmother. Thereafter, the stepmother did not name plaintiff as one of the residuary beneficiaries of her estate. Judgment was entered in favor of plaintiff, and all but one of the defendants appealed (59 Cal. 2d 404, 406, 408-409) .

The California Supreme Court held that the trial court had been correct in ruling that the statute of frauds did not render the agreement unenforceable. The Court held that although the then-applicable statute of frauds (former Civ. Code § 1624(6), repealed Jan. 1, 1985) required that an agreement to make a provision by will be in writing, a party will be estopped from relying on the statute when fraud would result from refusal to enforce an oral contract (citing Monarco v. Lo Greco, 35 Cal.2d 621, 623, 220 P.2d 737 , discussed below). The Court further noted that the doctrine of estoppel has been applied when an unconscionable injury would result from denying enforcement after one party has been induced to make a serious change of position in reliance on the contract, or when unjust enrichment would result if a party who has received the benefits of the other's performance were allowed to invoke the statute (again citing Monarco v. Lo Greco, discussed below) (59 Cal. 2d 404, 409-410) .

The Court found that both of these grounds of estoppel were present in this case. There was ample evidence to demonstrate that plaintiff's father, in reliance on the agreement with the stepmother, had "seriously and unalterably" changed his position by abstaining from making inter vivos gifts or testamentary disposition to plaintiff and leaving his entire estate to the stepmother. The stepmother's children, in turn, would be unjustly enriched if, by invoking the statute of frauds, they would succeed in retaining all the stepmother's residuary estate, part of which would have gone to plaintiff but for the stepmother's breach of the agreement (59 Cal. 2d 404, 410-411) .

In Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 , a son claimed that his deceased father had breached an oral agreement to leave all of the father's property at death to the son if the son cared for the father during the father's lifetime. The trial court found that equitable estoppel did not preclude the defendant, the successor executrix of the father's will and successor trustee of the father's trust, from asserting the applicable statutes of fraud. The date of the alleged agreement was not ascertainable and the trial court did not determine whether former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed January 1, 2001), or its predecessor, former Civ. Code § 1624(6) (repealed January 1, 1985), was the applicable statute. The trial court found, however, that both statutes of fraud would preclude plaintiff from pursuing his action to enforce the alleged oral agreement. Plaintiff appealed summary judgment in favor of defendant.

On appeal, plaintiff contended that his papers opposing the summary judgment motion presented sufficient evidence to create triable issues of material fact on that question and that the court erred by granting the motion. The court of appeal agreed and reversed the judgment. It held that equitable estoppel principles were available under either former Prob. Code § 150 or former Civ. Code § 1624(6) to enforce the testator's alleged oral agreement to leave all of his property to his son if the son cared for him during the testator's lifetime (56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 358) . The court followed Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 , discussed in § 214.50[4][a], despite the factual distinction that in Juran the husband was alive and available to testify regarding the alleged oral agreement. The court of appeal found that nothing in the express language of former Prob. Code § 150 distinguishes between cases in which the promisor is alive and cases in which the promisor is dead, and it declined to create such an intention within the words of former Prob. Code § 150 to abolish the anti-fraud doctrine of equitable estoppel (56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 354-355) .

The court cited Day v. Greene, discussed above, for the proposition that the doctrine of equitable estoppel will be applied to defeat application of the statute in the context of a contract to make a will when fraud would result from refusal to invoke an oral contract. The court noted that the doctrine had been applied (1) when an unconscionable injury would result from denying enforcement after one party has been induced to make a serious change of position in reliance on the contract, or (2) when unjust enrichment would result if a party who has received the benefits of the other's performance were allowed to invoke the statute. Thus, the court noted, there are two alternative circumstances in which equitable principles may be applied by a court to estop a promisor from relying on the statute of frauds to avoid an oral agreement to make a will or devise. First, equitable estoppel may apply when the promisor had induced the promisee to make a serious change of position in reliance on the oral agreement, commonly known as "detrimental reliance," and a failure to enforce the oral agreement would have caused an unconscionable injury to the promisee. Alternatively, equitable estoppel may apply when the promisor would be unjustly enriched by receiving the benefit of the promisee's performance if the promisor were allowed to invoke the statute of frauds (56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 351) .

Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 220 P.2d 737 , involved a cross complaint in an action to partition agricultural property. The cross complaint sought the imposition of a constructive trust on the property. Cross complainant, the decedent's widow, had agreed with the decedent and one of her sons by a prior marriage that if the son would stay home and work on the property, the decedent and cross complainant would hold the property to the son. The decedent, however, secretly terminated the joint tenancy and executed a will leaving the property to plaintiff, who brought the suit for partition. Judgment was for defendants and cross complainant. The Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the doctrine of estoppel is applied to prevent fraud that would result from refusal to enforce oral contracts in certain circumstances. The Court held that such fraud may inhere in the unconscionable injury that would result from denying enforcement of the contract after one party has been induced by the other seriously to change position in reliance on the contract or in the unjust enrichment that would result if a party who has received the benefits of the other's performance were allowed to rely on the statute of frauds (35 Cal. 2d 621, 623-624) . The Court found that both of the grounds for estoppel were presented by the case. Unconscionable injury was present because the son had given up the opportunity to accumulate property of his own and devoted his life to making the family venture a success. Unjust enrichment of the decedent and his devisees was also present because the son's 20 years of labor contributed to the enormous increase in the value of the family venture, the benefits of which the decedent had reaped (35 Cal. 2d 621, 624) .

[b] Receiving Benefit Under Agreement to Make Irrevocable Joint or Reciprocal Wills

The leading case of Notten v. Mensing (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 469, 45 P.2d 198 , in which plaintiffs sought to impose a constructive trust on certain property, involved an oral agreement between a married couple that they would each leave all their property to the survivor and on the survivor's death all the property would go to specified relatives, including plaintiffs. The complaint alleged that the couple executed such wills, and before they were revoked, the husband died. The wife accepted the benefits of her husband's will, but she then revoked her will and executed a new one leaving all of the property to defendants. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint and entered judgment against plaintiffs. The Supreme Court reversed, recognizing the availability of the remedy of quasi-specific performance. The Court also noted that the mere execution of the wills did not constitute a sufficient memorandum of the agreement or part performance of it to remove the bar of the statute of frauds (3 Cal. 2d 469, 473-474) . The Court held, however, that when two parties execute reciprocal wills pursuant to an oral agreement, and one of the parties dies before either will is revoked, and the other party accepts the benefit of the decedent's will and then revokes his or her own will, a constructive fraud sufficient to raise an estoppel to plead the statute of frauds has been practiced on the first decedent and on the beneficiaries of the oral agreement (3 Cal. 2d 469, 474) . The Court noted that these facts show a change of position and reliance on the agreement (3 Cal. 2d 469, 477) .

Stahmer v. Schley (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 200, 157 Cal. Rptr. 756 , also involved an action for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by joint will and to impose a constructive trust. A demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend and judgment was entered dismissing the action. The court of appeal reversed, relying on Notten v. Mensing (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 469, 473-476, 45 P.2d 198 (discussed, above), to hold that when two persons make a joint will pursuant to an oral agreement to leave each one's entire property to the survivor and on the survivor's death to named beneficiaries, and one person performs the agreement by failing to revoke the will prior to his or her death, equity will grant quasi-specific performance of the oral agreement and impose a constructive trust on the property in favor of the original beneficiaries, if the survivor, having received the benefit of the agreement, then executes a new will in disregard of the agreed-on disposition. In that situation, there is a presumption that a constructive fraud has been practiced on the first decedent by the second decedent to the detriment of the original beneficiaries, and that the new beneficiaries will be unjustly enriched if the oral agreement between the decedents is not enforced. Thus, the newly designated beneficiaries are derivatively estopped to plead the statute of frauds (96 Cal. App. 3d 200, 203) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Estoppel to Assert Requirement That Contract Be Evidenced by Writing

Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187, 505 P.2d 1027 , involved an action to enforce an oral agreement between plaintiffs' parents pursuant to which each of the parents agreed to leave his or her estate to the other on the condition that the survivor would leave their combined estate to their children in equal shares. After the mother's death, the husband breached the agreement, leaving only one fourteenth of the estate to plaintiffs. The Supreme Court affirmed judgment for plaintiffs, holding that the defendant estate and legatees were estopped to rely on the statute of frauds because the mother had seriously changed her position in reliance on the agreement by committing suicide so that her husband would be bound by the agreement and so that he could not pressure her into changing her will. The Court also noted that the husband and defendants, who stood in his shoes, would be unjustly enriched if defendants were permitted to invoke the statute of frauds since the husband had received the benefits of his wife's performance of the agreement (8 Cal. 3d 744, 751-752) .

In Redke v. Silvertrust (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 94, 98 Cal. Rptr. 293, 490 P.2d 805 , plaintiff brought suit to enforce an oral agreement pursuant to which her mother had agreed to leave half of her property to her husband, plaintiff's stepfather, provided that he would leave all the property he received from her to plaintiff and her brother. When plaintiff's brother subsequently died suddenly, plaintiff's mother expressed a desire to change her will to leave all her property to plaintiff, but the stepfather convinced her that no change was necessary and that plaintiff would get all the property left to him by her mother. After the mother's death, the stepfather cut plaintiff out of his will. The Supreme Court affirmed the judgment in plaintiff's favor, holding that the mother had so changed her position in reliance on the agreement by not executing a new will to make plaintiff her sole beneficiary, despite her concern over the plaintiff's welfare, that defendants were estopped to rely on the statute of frauds (6 Cal. 3d 94, 101) .

Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 , discussed in § 214.46[4][a], involved decedent landlord's oral promise to appellant tenants in 1981 that she would will them the house they were renting if they would agree to take care of her and her cats. The appellate court, in reversing a motion for summary judgment, held that there was sufficient evidence of appellants' contention that they were willed the property to create an issue as to whether the property was impressed with a constructive trust (49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1468) . The court stated that when quasi-specific performance by declaration of a constructive trust on real property is sought on the basis of an oral agreement to leave the property by will, the two-year period of limitation generally applicable to contracts in writing is not applicable (49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1468) . The court found that under those circumstances in which the property is impressed with the qualities of a resulting trust, the action may be brought within four years, stating, "The theory is that the statute of frauds does not apply where the plaintiff is entitled to the imposition of a constructive trust, for such a trust arises by operation of law." The court then cited Juran v. Epstein, discussed below, for the proposition that the statute of frauds will not be made the instrument of shielding, protecting, or aiding the party who relies on it in the perpetration of a fraud (49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1469) .

In Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 , a will beneficiary alleged that her stepfather breached an oral agreement by revoking a 1985 will that he executed while the plaintiff's mother was alive. The couple's wills left everything to each other, with the survivor's estate to be divided between their children. After the plaintiff's mother died, the stepfather revoked his will and executed a new one, which excluded the plaintiff. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant breached his oral contract with the plaintiff's mother to leave their entire estate to the surviving spouse on the condition that the survivor would bequeath the entire estate equally to the plaintiff and another child. The trial court granted the defendant's motion for summary judgment pursuant to former Prob. Code § 150. The appellate court concluded that the plaintiff failed to produce written evidence, under former Prob. Code § 150, of an agreement that the mutual wills would not be revoked (23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 891) . However, the court held that because there were triable issues of fact as to whether the parties entered into an oral agreement and whether that agreement was enforceable under the equitable estoppel doctrine, the trial court erred in granting summary judgment (23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897) . The appellate court rejected the defendant's argument that former Prob. Code § 150 abolished the doctrine of equitable estoppel in appropriate cases. It found nothing in the history or language of that section showing that the Legislature intended to abrogate long-standing rules that the courts have the power to apply equitable principles to prevent a party from using the statute of frauds when that use would constitute fraud (23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 894-895) .

In Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210 , an action for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will, the court of appeal reversed a judgment of dismissal entered after a demurrer to the amended complaint was sustained. The court held that the complaint sufficiently alleged estoppel. The complaint alleged that plaintiff, the widow of the decedent's son, came to San Francisco from Omaha and refrained from resuming her former home in Nebraska so that the decedent could have the companionship of his grandson after the death of his son. Plaintiff alleged that she left family and friends and available employment in Nebraska, where she was staying at the time of her husband's death, in reliance on the decedent's promise to leave her a house. The court held that this was a significant change of position, even though she had formerly lived in San Francisco with her husband. The court also noted that plaintiff would suffer unconscionable injury if the contract were not enforced, since she had given 20 years of her life and her son's childhood years in keeping the bargain (261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 678-679) .

The court of appeal in Horstmann v. Sheldon (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 184, 20 Cal. Rptr. 735 , affirmed a judgment imposing a constructive trust on property promised to plaintiff by the decedent, plaintiff's mother, in consideration of plaintiff's residing with and caring for the decedent and refraining from taking regular employment outside the home. The court held that defendants were estopped to rely on the bar of the statute of frauds. The court found both unconscionable injury and unjust enrichment in that plaintiff had devoted many years to performing her part of the bargain and was approaching the later years of life by the time of trial (202 Cal. App. 2d 184, 188-189) .

In Ward v. Wrixon (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 642, 336 P.2d 640 , the court of appeal, in affirming a judgment for plaintiff in her action seeking a decree that she was entitled to a life estate in certain real property promised to her by the decedent, held that the defendant was estopped to rely on the statute of frauds. The court held that the services rendered by plaintiff to the decedent in consideration of the promise involved her providing of companionship, entertaining the decedent's friends, and personal services far beyond those normally performed by a servant, including care for the decedent's person, constant attention to his physical needs, and comfort and solace. Plaintiff also performed heavy construction work while assisting in building a home for the decedent. Plaintiff had received no compensation for her services. The court held that the services were of an extraordinary nature, that they enriched the decedent's estate, and that they were not compensable in money, so that unconscionable injury and unjust enrichment would result from refusal to enforce the agreement (168 Cal. App. 2d 642) .

[b] Estoppel to Assert Statute of Limitations as Defense

In Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 , one court followed the reasoning of Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 , discussed under § 214.50[4][a], in holding that a party may be estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense to an untimely action to enforce an oral promise to make a will. A son brought an action to enforce his father's oral promise to make a will leaving him the family vineyard. His mother demurred on the grounds that the one-year statute of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 applied because the promisor had made an inter vivos transfer of property covered by the contract. The trial court sustained the demurrer without leave to amend and the son appealed. The court of appeal stated that while Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b) (then designated as Section 366.2(a)(2)), clearly shows that the Legislature intended that the one-year statute of limitations could not be "tolled" or "extended," the statute says nothing about equitable estoppel. The court concluded that in the absence of any such language or legislative history suggesting that was what the Legislature intended, the doctrine of equitable estoppel still applies. In reaching that conclusion, it held that appellant had alleged sufficient facts to support a claim of equitable estoppel to application of the statute of limitations (64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848) .

[c] Receiving Benefit Under Agreement to Make Irrevocable Joint or Reciprocal Wills

Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187, 505 P.2d 1027 , Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 , and Redke v. Silvertrust (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 94, 98 Cal. Rptr. 293, 490 P.2d 805 , in which the doctrine of estoppel was applied to agreements to make wills, are discussed under § 214.50[4][a].

In Mintz v. Rowitz (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 216, 91 Cal. Rptr. 435 , a husband and wife orally agreed that after the death of one of them the other was to have a life estate in their joint and community property, and that on the survivor's death, the property was to be left in designated proportions to specified children and stepchildren. Although their wills were woefully inadequate to carry out the agreement, when the wife died, her will did leave all her property to the husband. The husband, however, made numerous inter vivos transfers of property, and his will did not completely fulfill the agreement. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment, which set aside the inter vivos transfers and granted quasi-specific performance of the oral agreement, relying on Notten v. Mensing (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 469, 474, 45 P.2d 198 (discussed under § 214.50[3][b]), to hold that there was an estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds (13 Cal. App. 3d 216, 223-224) . The court rejected the contention that, since the wife's estate had not been distributed at the time of the husband's death, he had not accepted any benefits under her will. The court noted that full title to the wife's estate vested in the husband at the time of her death, subject only to administration, that much of her estate was not subject to administration, and that the husband had disposed of it rather freely (13 Cal. App. 3d 216, 224) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.51

§ 214.51 Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Defaulting Purchaser Denied Specific Performance as Entitled to Restitution of Only Reasonable Value of Services That Benefited Seller

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Defaulting Purchaser Denied Specific Performance as Entitled to Restitution of Only Reasonable Value of Services That Benefited Seller

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____ _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
	)	MEMORANDUM IN SUPPORT OF MOTION TO vs.	)	SET ASIDE AND VACATE JUDGMENT AND
	)	ENTER ANOTHER AND DIFFERENT JUDG-
_____ [name],	)	MENT
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____

_____

THE JUDGMENT SHOULD BE SET ASIDE AND VACATED AND ANOTHER AND DIFFERENT JUDGMENT ENTERED BECAUSE THERE ARE INCORRECT OR ERRONEOUS LEGAL BASES FOR THE DECISION THAT MATERIALLY AFFECT THE SUBSTANTIAL RIGHTS OF DEFENDANT, THUS ENTITLING HIM/HER/IT TO A DIFFERENT JUDGMENT.

A. Motion to Set Aside and Vacate and Enter Another and Different Judgment. On motion of the party aggrieved, a judgment based on a decision by the court may be set aside and vacated by the same court and another and different judgment entered when there is an incorrect or erroneous legal basis for the decision, not consistent with or not supported by the facts, if substantial rights of the party are materially affected thereby, thus entitling the party to a different judgment, and in such a case when the judgment is set aside, the statement of decision must be amended and corrected (Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)).

B. Restitution to Defaulting Purchaser Denied Specific Performance Is to Be Only Reasonable Value of Services. A defaulting purchaser who is denied specific performance of an escrow for the sale of real property is entitled to restitution of the reasonable value of services rendered by it that benefited the seller, but not to the enhancement in value of the property attributable to those services because that would amount to a windfall (Lesny Development Co. v. Kendall (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1022-1025, 210 Cal. Rptr. 890).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a motion by a successful seller to set aside and vacate a judgment and enter another and different verdict when a defaulting purchaser has been denied specific performance of a contract for the sale and purchase of real property and the court has applied a legally erroneous measure of damages in awarding the would-be purchaser restitution for services that enhanced the value of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 663, 663a].

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

The points and authorities in this form may be modified for use in another procedural context, as in a memorandum of points and authorities in support of or in opposition to a motion for summary judgment, or in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a form of notice of intention to move to set aside and vacate a judgment and to enter another and different judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in California Forms of Pleading and Practice. For a discussion of the statement of decision generally, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision in that set. For discussion and forms relating to land sale contracts generally, see Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser in that set.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For additional authorities and forms supporting a motion to set aside and vacate a judgment and to enter another and different judgment, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Restitution to Defaulting Purchaser Denied Specific Performance Is to Be Only Reasonable Value of Services

Lesny Development Co. v. Kendall (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 210 Cal. Rptr. 890 , involved a suit by a purchaser under escrow instructions for the sale and purchase of approximately 19 acres of property for $210,000. Buyer had filed the tentative tract map for the parcel before the instructions were executed. The escrow provided that buyer would continue to seek approval of the map, and the obligation to purchase was conditioned on the county's approval of buyer's tentative tract map. Within five days of approval of the tentative map, buyer was to deposit unconditionally $25,000 which was to be released immediately to seller. Five days after map approval, the buyer delivered a $25,000 check to the escrow holder with instructions that it was not to be released to seller until a grant deed had been placed in escrow. Seller cancelled the escrow instructions unilaterally and buyer sued for specific performance. The original judgment was for buyer for specific performance with respect to 46 of the 69 lots in the tract, the others having been built on by defendant by the time the matter was tried. That judgment was reversed in an unpublished opinion and remanded with instructions to the trial court to determine and award to plaintiff the dollar amount of the enhancement and/or contribution by plaintiff to the subject property (164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1019) . On remittitur, the trial court awarded the plaintiff $78,750: $18,750 representing 250 hours of effort expended in obtaining the tract map valued at $75 per hour, plus $60,000 representing $7,500 per lot for 8 lots that were not originally anticipated (164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1014) . Defendant again appealed. Judgment was modified, conditioned on defendant's consent thereto, to reduce plaintiff's recovery to $4690 representing 50 hours of service at $75 per hour, plus $940 paid by plaintiff for the application for approval of the map.

In modifying, the court noted an earlier opinion by it rejecting the contention that a party's voluntary devotion of effort to enhance the value of a contract it later breaches justifies equitable relief from forfeiture (164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1018 , citing Simons v. Young (l979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 170, 155 Cal. Rptr. 460). It also noted that both its earlier opinion and existing law established that plaintiff was entitled only to such compensation as would make it whole to avoid injustice, not to award it, in whole or in part, the benefit of the bargain with respect to which it was the breaching party (164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1020 , citing Bird v. Kenworthy (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 656, 660 277 P.2d 1). It reviewed Section 42 of the Restatement of Restitution to the effect that the amount of restitution should be the amount that the land had been increased in value by the improvement or the value of the labor and materials employed in making the improvements, whichever is least, but noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 871.5 did not adopt the Restatement. The court reasoned that to allow plaintiff recovery based on enhanced value would give it the benefit of the bargain it had breached and leave defendants without compensation for having their property tied up off the market for the nine years of the litigation. It opined that allowing recovery for both the time spent and the value of the additional lots amounted to duplicate damages (164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1022) . The court deleted from the total of hours expended time spent by plaintiff before the execution of the contract on general meetings with county personnel not related to the map, travel, market research, and feasibility studies (164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1022-1025) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.52

§ 214.52 Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Basis for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Impossibility Must Be Reconsidered at Time of Entry of Judgment

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Basis for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Impossibility Must Be Reconsidered at Time of Entry of Judgment

[Caption. See § 214.51[1].]

THE JUDGMENT SHOULD BE SET ASIDE AND VACATED BECAUSE THE TRIAL COURT ERRED IN FAILING TO RECONSIDER THE DEFENSE OF IMPOSSIBILITY AT THE TIME IT ENTERED JUDGMENT.

A. Motion to Set Aside and Vacate and enter Another and Different Judgment. [See § 214.51[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Impossibility at Time of Entry of Judgment Controls. If a defendant did not have the power to perform when the contract was breached and the action was commenced, but performance is possible at the time of trial or entry of judgment, the defense of impossibility is not applicable, and the trial court is required to consider the equities of awarding specific performance as of the time of entry of judgment (Stevens Group Fund IV v. Sobrato Development Co. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 894-897, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that the issue of impossibility of defendant's performance and the other equities of awarding specific performance must be evaluated as of the time of trial or entry of judgment. The authorities may be combined with authority pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wished to raise the substantive issue, or they may be used in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the particular case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should insert facts, or refer to findings, establishing that the impossibility no longer exists and that the equities still favor awarding specific performance.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Impossibility at Time of Entry of Judgment Controls

Stevens Group Fund IV v. Sobrato Development Co. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460 , arose from an agreement for the sale of a commercial building. When the parties entered into the contract in 1986, the property was subject to a deed of trust that did not require the lender to accept prepayment. Both parties knew that, but the contract still called for defendant to convey title "free and clear." After the contract was formed, defendant asked the lender to accept prepayment, but it refused. Plaintiff relied on the "free and clear" condition and refused to take title subject to the deed of trust, but sued for alternative remedies of damages and specific performance. A jury decided the issue of damages in plaintiff's favor, but the trial court denied plaintiff's request for specific performance even though the loan had matured in 1989, and was payable at that time. The trial court considered itself bound by previous summary judgment orders holding that the lender would have been detrimentally affected by an order for specific performance. Plaintiff appealed, contending that it was entitled to a decree of specific performance because the impediment to defendant's performance had been removed.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded, although it did not go so far as to hold that specific performance was required. The court said that when the impediment to defendant's performance is removed, its performance may be compelled (1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 894) . The issue is defendant's ability to perform when plaintiff elects its remedy, not at the time performance is due under the contract (1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 897) . All along, plaintiff would have been entitled to specific performance if it was willing to accept the property with the encumbrance. The court of appeal also rejected defendant's contention that Civ. Code § 3390(4) (barring specific performance of agreement to procure act or consent of third party) barred specific performance because the lender's consent was not involved at the time a decree for specific performance would have issued (1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 897) . The court said that permitting the trial court to consider the seller's ability to perform at the time of the decree provides the court with greater latitude in exercising its equitable power and would also provide greater assurance that a contract would be performed. However, the court made clear that it did not hold that the trial court should order specific performance. That decision was still for the trial court after considering all applicable criteria, so the court remanded for the trial court to consider all relevant factors and determined whether specific performance should be granted (1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 897) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.53

§ 214.53 Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Order to Debtor to Convey Collateral to Secured Party as Reversible Error

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Order to Debtor to Convey Collateral to Secured Party as Reversible Error

[Caption. See § 214.51[1].]

THE JUDGMENT SHOULD BE SET ASIDE AND VACATED BECAUSE THE TRIAL COURT ERRED IN ORDERING THE DEFENDANT TO CONVEY THE COLLATERAL TO THE PLAINTIFF UNDER A SECURITY AGREEMENT NOT CONTAINING ANY PROMISE BY THE DEBTOR TO CONVEY THE COLLATERAL.

A. Motion to Set Aside and Vacate and Enter Another and Different Judgment. [See § 214.51[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Order to Debtor to Convey Collateral Is Error. When a debtor is in default under a security agreement that does not contain any promise by the debtor to convey the collateral but contains only an assignment of the collateral for the purpose of creating a security interest, a trial court's order to the debtor to convey the collateral to the secured party is reversible error (Resolution Trust Corp. v. Winslow (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1799, 1813-1814, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that an order to convey collateral to the secured party is error when the security agreement does not contain any promise by the debtor to convey. The authorities may be used also in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the particular case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Order to Debtor to Convey Collateral Is Error

In Resolution Trust Corp. v. Winslow (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1799, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510 , a savings and loan association agreed to furnish start-up capital for a corporation and took, as security for the return of its investment, an assignment of shares of stock in two other corporations controlled by the other party. The agreement did not contain any promise by the other party to convey the stock to the association. Subsequently the association sued for dissolution of the start-up corporation, appointment of a receiver, specific performance of the agreement, damages for breach of contract, and an accounting. The trial court entered judgment for the association and ordered the other party to convey the collateral stock to the association.

The court of appeal reversed the so-called specific performance decree (the order to convey the collateral) on the ground that it was error to order a conveyance when the agreement contained no promise to convey but contained only an assignment for the purpose of creating a security interest (9 Cal. App. 4th 1799, 1813) . The court also noted that specific performance is not one of the remedies specified for a secured party under Division 9 of the Commercial Code (9 Cal. App. 4th 1799, 1814) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 214 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. FORMS

21-214 California Points & Authorities § 214.54

§ 214.54 Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Award of Damages in Lieu of Specific Performance Although Defendant Did Not Rebut Presumption Against Adequacy of Damages as Remedy [Civ. Code § 3387]

[1] FORM Supporting Motion to Set Aside and Vacate Judgment and Enter Another and Different Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a]--Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Bases for Court Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 663(1)]--Award of Damages in Lieu of Specific Performance Although Defendant Did Not Rebut Presumption Against Adequacy of Damages as Remedy [Civ. Code § 3387]

[Caption. See § 214.51[1].]

THE JUDGMENT SHOULD BE SET ASIDE AND VACATED BECAUSE THE TRIAL COURT ERRED IN AWARDING DAMAGES IN LIEU OF SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE, AS THE DEFENDANT DID NOT REBUT THE STATUTORY PRESUMPTION AGAINST THE ADEQUACY OF DAMAGES AS A REMEDY FOR BREACH OF A CONTRACT TO TRANSFER REAL PROPERTY.

A. Motion to Set Aside and Vacate and Enter Another and Different Judgment. [See § 214.51[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Pecuniary Compensation Inadequate for Real Property. It is presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately relieved by pecuniary compensation. In the case of a single-family dwelling which the party seeking performance intends to occupy, this presumption is conclusive. In all other cases, this presumption is a presumption affecting the burden of proof (Civ. Code § 3387).

C. Breaching Party Must Prove That Damages Will Be Adequate Remedy. A nonbreaching real estate buyer in a commercial or investment context is entitled to specific performance unless the seller rebuts the presumption with evidence showing that damages will be adequate to compensate the buyer (Real Estate Analytics, LLC v. Vallas (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 463, 480, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835).
Dated: _____

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of the contention that an award of damages in lieu of specific performance of a contract to transfer real property is error because the defendant did not rebut the statutory presumption against the adequacy of damages as a remedy [see Civ. Code § 3387]. The authorities may be used also in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the particular case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Breaching Party Must Prove That Damages Will Be Adequate Remedy

In Real Estate Analytics, LLC v. Vallas (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 463, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835 , when the owner of a parcel of commercial real property canceled a contract to sell it, the would-be buyer promptly sued for specific performance. The trial court concluded that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment but also found that an award of damages would adequately compensate the plaintiff because the plaintiff's intent in acquiring property was to earn profits from developing or reselling it. The court entered judgment for an amount computed as the difference between the purchase price under the contract and the fair market value of the property on the date the owner breached the contract, plus interest on the deposit that the plaintiff had paid. The plaintiff appealed, seeking a judgment granting specific performance.

The court of appeal reversed and directed entry of a new judgment granting specific performance. By imposing, in Civ. Code § 3387, a conclusive presumption for certain residential transactions, the Legislature decided that damages can never be satisfactory compensation for a buyer who intends to live at a single-family home, regardless of the circumstances. But by establishing a rebuttable presumption with respect to other property, the Legislature left open the possibility that damages can be an adequate remedy for breach of real estate contract pertaining to any other kind of property. The rebuttable presumption shifts the burden of proof to the breaching party to prove the adequacy of the damages. Thus, the Legislature intended that a damages remedy for a nonbreaching party to a commercial real estate contract is the exception rather than the rule (160 Cal. App. 4th 463, 474) .

The trial court had concluded that the defendant satisfied the burden of proof to overcome the presumption, based on its finding that the plaintiff's sole purpose and entire intent in buying the property was to earn money for the plaintiff's investors and to turn a profit as quickly as possible by reselling the property. The court of appeal described this reasoning as flawed. Standing alone, the fact that the plaintiff was motivated solely to make a profit from the purchase of the property did not overcome the strong statutory presumption that all land is unique and therefore damages were inadequate to make the plaintiff whole for the breach. The property was unique not merely because of its physical attributes and location, but also because of its investment potential and the reasonableness of the agreed-on contract price. These factors fully supported the uniqueness of the property and the inadequacy of a monetary remedy. Thus, although the plaintiff did not necessarily intend to benefit from its personal or commercial use of the land, the land did have a particular unique value because of the manner in which it could be used to earn profits upon a resale. The trial court's reasoning essentially reflected its disagreement with the premise underlying the Civ. Code § 3387 presumption that all land is unique unless proved otherwise. It was not within the trial court's discretion to do so. Missing from the trial court's analysis was the recognition that to rebut the presumption that damages are an inadequate remedy, the defendant must come forward with evidence showing that damages will fully compensate the plaintiff for the breach (160 Cal. App. 4th 463, 476) . The court of appeal concluded that "a nonbreaching real estate buyer in a commercial or investment context is entitled to specific performance, unless the seller rebuts the presumption with evidence showing that monetary damages are adequate to compensate the buyer" (160 Cal. App. 4th 463, 480 (original emphasis)).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION

21-215 California Points & Authorities 215.syn

§ 215.syn Synopsis to Chapter 215: STATEMENT OF DECISION

§ 215.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 215.02 Governing Statutes

§ 215.03 Request for and Content of Statement of Decision

§ 215.04 Preparation, Filing, and Objections to Statement of Decision

§ 215.05 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 215.06 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

§ 215.07 Related Memoranda

§§ 215.08-215.19 [Reserved]

§ 215.20 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590]--In General

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[d] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue

[b] Issuance of Statement of Decision After Timely Request Is Mandatory

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Announcement of Tentative Decision

[b] Issuance of Statement of Decision After Timely Request Is Mandatory

§ 215.21 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590]--Request Not Untimely--Trial on Petition for Writ of Administrative Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] Lasted More Than One Day

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trial Time Includes Judge's Consideration of Evidence

[b] Statement of Decision Required on Request When Court Excercises Independent Judgment on Evidence

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Trial Time Includes Judge's Consideration of Evidence

§ 215.22 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590]--Determination of Motion Was in Effect Trial of Question of Fact

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Determination of Motion Was in Effect Trial of Question of Fact

§ 215.23 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Waived [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h)]--Protesting Party Failed to Request Statement of Decision on Controverted Issues

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Request Statement of Decision

[b] Findings Necessary to Support Judgment Will Be Implied

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Request Statement of Decision

[b] Findings Necessary to Support Judgment Will Be Implied

§ 215.24 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Request for Statement of Decision Untimely--Trial Lasted Less Than One Day and Request Not Made Prior to Submission of Matter for Decision

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Request Must Be Made Before Submission if Trial Is Concluded Within One Calendar Day or in Less Than Eight Hours Over More Than One Day

§ 215.25 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Request for Determination of Issue of Law Rather Than Fact

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Determination of Factual Issue

[b] Decision to Defer Determination

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Determination of Factual Issue

§ 215.26 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Decision Not a Trial

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statement of Decision Is Required Only After Trial

[b] Statement of Decision Not Available on Hearing on Preliminary Injunction

[c] Statement of Decision Not Available on Decision of Motion

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statement of Decision Not Available on Hearing on Preliminary Injunction

§ 215.27 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Special Proceedings

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statement of Decision Not Required in Special Proceedings

§ 215.28 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Does Not Explain Factual and Legal Basis Regarding Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--In General

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Inference That Trial Court Decided in Favor of Prevailing Party

[b] Lack of Finding on Material Issues Amounts to Reversible Error

[c] Request for Statement of Decision Must Include Resolution

§ 215.29 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Does Not Explain Factual and Legal Basis Regarding Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--Minute Order Does Not Constitute Statement of Decision [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1590]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Minute Order Does Not Constitute Statement of Decision

§ 215.30 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Sufficiently Explains Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--Only Ultimate Rather Than Evidentiary Facts Required

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ultimate Rather Than Evidentiary Facts Required

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ultimate Rather Than Evidentiary Facts Required

§ 215.31 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Sufficiently Explains Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--Missing Findings Implied in Other Findings

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Missing Finding Implied in Other Findings

[b] Actual Findings Impliedly Negate Proposed Findings

[c] Missing Finding Adverse to Complaining Party

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Missing Finding Implied in Other Findings

§ 215.32 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Sufficiently Explains Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--One Clear, Sustained, and Sufficient Finding Supports Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] One Clear, Sustained, and Sufficient Finding Supports Judgment

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] One Clear, Sustained, and Sufficient Finding Supports Judgment

§ 215.33 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Sufficiently Explains Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--Requested Finding Concerns Immaterial Issues

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Find on Immaterial Issue

[b] Judgment Otherwise Supported

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Find on Immaterial Issue

§ 215.34 Supporting Contention That Presiding Judge May Sign Formal Judgment or Order Conforming to Minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 635]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[d] Opposing Memoranda

§ 215.35 Opposing Contention That Presiding Judge May Sign Formal Judgment or Order Conforming to Minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 635]--Judge Who Heard Evidence Did Not Sign Statement of Decision or Final Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Agreed Findings Filed or Waiver of Findings

[b] Signature of Judge Who Heard Evidence Required

§ 215.36 Opposing Contention That Presiding Judge May Sign Formal Judgment or Order Conforming to Minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 635]--Tentative Decision Not Binding on Court [Cal Rules of Court, Rule 3.1590(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[c] Related Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Legal Judgment Based on Tentative Decision

§ 215.37 Supporting Contention That Reviewing Court May Make Factual Determinations Contrary to or in Addition to Those Made by Trial Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 909; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.252, 8.54]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

§ 215.38 Opposing Contention That Reviewing Court May Make Factual Determinations Contrary to or in Addition to Those Made by Trial Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 909; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.252, 8.54]--Proposed Findings Would Not Constitute Basis for Affirmance or Reversal of Judgment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Purpose of Findings to Affirm or Reverse Judgment With Directions on Remand

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Purpose of Findings to Affirm or Reverse Judgment With Directions on Remand

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.01

§ 215.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda relating to the use of statements of decision on the trial of a question of fact by the court. Specifically, the forms relate to requesting and objecting to a statement of decision, and obtaining and objecting to a reviewing court's factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court. The chapter includes memoranda supporting [see §§ 215.20, 215.21] and opposing [see §§ 215.23 -215.27] contentions that a statement decision is required, supporting [see §§ 215.28, 215.29] and opposing [see §§ 215.30 -215.33] contentions that a statement of decision is insufficient, supporting [see § 215.34] and opposing [see §§ 215.35, 215.36] contentions that a presiding judge may sign a statement of decision and judgment, and supporting [see § 215.37] and opposing [see § 215.38] contentions that a reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAppealsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.02

§ 215.02 Governing Statutes

Requirements for requesting and filing a statement of decision in a trial by the court of a question of fact are generally governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632-635 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1590 and 3.1591 (trial court actions). Statements of decision with regard to matters heard by a reference are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638 and 643. Modifications of or additions to a statement of decision in conjunction with rulings on a motion for new trial or a motion to vacate a judgment are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 662 and 663. The inclusion of a statement of decision in a judgment roll is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 670. Factual determinations by a reviewing court contrary to or in addition to those made by a trial court are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 909 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsCourt Records

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.03

§ 215.03 Request for and Content of Statement of Decision

Written findings of fact and conclusions of law are not required. However, a statement of decision is required on request of any party appearing at the trial if made within 10 days after announcement of a tentative decision or, when the trial is concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over a period of more than one day, if made prior to submission of the matter for decision. The request must specify those controverted issues on which the party is requesting a statement of decision. After the request, any party may make proposals as to the content of the statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. Any proposal as to the content of the statement of decision must be made within 10 days of the date of the request [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(e)].

The statement of decision must explain the factual and legal basis for the court's decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at trial. It must be in writing, unless the parties appearing at trial agree otherwise, or the trial lasted less than one day, in which case it may be made orally on the record in the presence of the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeContent & FormCivil ProcedureTrialsBench TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.04

§ 215.04 Preparation, Filing, and Objections to Statement of Decision

If a party requests a statement of decision, the court must, within 30 days of announcement or service of the tentative decision, prepare and serve a proposed statement of decision and a proposed judgment on all parties that appeared at the trial, unless the court has ordered a party to prepare the statement. A party that has been ordered to prepare the statement must within 30 days after the announcement or service of the tentative decision, serve and submit to the court a proposed statement of decision and a proposed judgment. If the proposed statement of decision and judgment are not served and submitted within that time, any other party that appeared at the trial may within 10 days thereafter (1) prepare, serve, and submit to the court a proposed statement of decision and judgment, or (2) serve on all other parties and file a notice of motion for an order that a statement of decision be deemed waived [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(f)]. Any party may, within 15 days after the proposed statement and judgment have been served, serve and file objections to the proposed statement and judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(g)]. The court may, by written order, extend any of the times prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590. The court may also, at any time prior to the entry of judgment, excuse noncompliance with any of these time limits for good cause shown and on such terms as may be just [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(m)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.05

§ 215.05 How to Use Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Memoranda

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda filed in discovery motion proceedings may not exceed 15 pages. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, the table of contents, the table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in further detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

Depending on the procedural context in which an issue relating to a statement of decision arises, counsel should combine contentions in this chapter with contentions relating to the procedural context in order to create the structure for a memorandum or brief. For example, the contentions regarding whether a statement is required [see §§ 215.20 -215.29], or whether a filed statement is sufficient [see §§ 215.30 -215.36], may arise in the context of a motion for new trial or a motion to vacate judgment, whereas the contentions regarding whether a reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court [see §§ 215.37, 215.38] may be included in an appellate brief or in a memorandum supporting or opposing a separate appellate motion seeking factual determinations.

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind are page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda of points and authorities must not exceed 15 pages, or 20 pages in summary judgment or summary adjudication proceeding. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages. Exhibits, declarations, attachments, a table of contents, a table of authorities, and the proof of service are excluded from these page limits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. Any party must obtain leave of court to file a longer memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. For discussion of these and other drafting requirements, and discussion of how to prepare a complete memorandum or brief, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeOpposing MemorandaCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeSupporting MemorandaCivil ProceduresJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.06

§ 215.06 Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For a discussion and forms relating to statements of decision, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For a discussion and forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication. For a discussion and forms relating to a request to an appellate court to make factual determinations and written opposition to the request, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs in that publication.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

127 of 147 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.07

§ 215.07 Related Memoranda

For memoranda relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgment, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions for New Trials

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-215 California Points & Authorities §§ 215.08-215.19

[Reserved]

§§ 215.08[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.20

§ 215.20 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590]--In General

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

A STATEMENT OF DECISION IS REQUIRED BECAUSE _____ [name of requesting party], _____ [specify party status, e.g., PLAINTIFF AND CROSS DEFENDANT] IN THIS ACTION, MADE A TIMELY AND APPROPRIATE REQUEST FOR A STATEMENT OF DECISION.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. On the request of any party appearing at the trial, made within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision, or, if the trial is concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, made prior to submission of the matter for decision, the court must issue a statement of decision explaining the factual and legal basis for its decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at trial (Code Civ. Proc. § 632; In re Marriage of Hargrave (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 346, 353-354, 209 Cal. Rptr. 764).

B. Announcement of Tentative Decision. On the trial of a question of fact by the court, the court must announce its tentative decision by an oral statement, entered in the minutes, or by a written statement filed with the clerk [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a)]. The tentative decision does not constitute a judgment and is not binding on the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(b)]. The court in its tentative decision may state whether a statement of decision, if requested, will be prepared by the court or by a designated party, and direct that the tentative decision will be the statement of decision unless within 10 days either party specifies controverted issues or makes proposals not covered in the tentative decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(c)].

C. Service of Statement of Decision. If a party requests a statement of decision, the court must, within 30 days of announcement or service of the tentative decision, prepare and serve a proposed statement of decision and a proposed judgment on all parties that appeared at the trial, unless the court has ordered a party to prepare the statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(e)].

[Optional] D. Issuance of Statement of Decision After Timely Request Is Mandatory. Issuance of a statement of decision after a timely request for one has been made is mandatory; failure to issue a statement of decision after such a timely request requires reversal (In re Marriage of S. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 738, 746-750, 217 Cal. Rptr. 561 ; Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1129, 210 Cal. Rptr. 114).

[This form may be combined, when appropriate, with §§ 215.21 and 215.31.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a contention that a statement of decision is required in a superior court action if a timely request has been made [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a), (e)]. Optional Paragraph D is for use if counsel wishes to contend that the trial court's failure to issue a statement of decision after a timely request is reversible error [see In re Marriage of S. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 738, 746-750, 217 Cal. Rptr. 561] .

The points in this form may be combined with the points in § 215.21 when counsel wishes to contend that a trial on a petition for a writ of administrative mandate was not concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, and in § 215.31 when counsel wishes to contend that a minute order does not constitute a statement of decision.

This form should be combined with memoranda pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a statement of decision is required after a timely request has been made. These points may combined, for example, with those relating to a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 634, 657 (motion for new trial), 663 (motion for judgment)]. They may also be adapted for use in an appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that a timely request for a statement of decision was made within 10 days after the announcement of the tentative decision, or prior to submission of the matter for decision for a trial that was concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgment, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[d] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 215.23 -215.27 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue

In re Marriage of Hargrave (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 346, 209 Cal. Rptr. 764 , was a proceeding for dissolution of marriage heard by a retired superior court judge sitting as referee. In determining the value of the goodwill of the husband's business, the referee rejected all the testimony on that subject and merely issued a statement of the valuation, with no discernible basis for the calculation. The wife appealed, assigning as error, inter alia, the trial court's failure to explain the basis for the valuation of the husband's goodwill.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 632 imposes a duty on the trial court to explain the factual and legal basis for its decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at trial (163 Cal. App. 3d 346, 353-354) . The goodwill value of the husband's business was undeniably a principal controverted issue in the case. The court noted that despite the wife's objection to the referee's terse statement of value, she was provided no explanation of the factual or legal basis of the referee's determination (163 Cal. App. 3d 346, 354) . Although family law courts are generally vested with wide discretion, the discretion intended is not a capricious or arbitrary discretion, but an impartial one, guided and controlled by fixed legal principles (163 Cal. App. 3d 346, 354-355) . The referee's rejection of all the testimony on the subject of goodwill valuation left a record with no supporting evidence on that issue. At that point, he should have required the parties to furnish additional evidence or appointed his own expert to testify on that issue (163 Cal. App. 3d 346, 355) . (Although the trial commenced after the effective date of the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, each party submitted proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law. No one objected to the form of the proposals, and the court of appeal treated them as statements of decision (163 Cal. App. 3d 346, 350-351) .)

[b] Issuance of Statement of Decision After Timely Request Is Mandatory

In re Marriage of S. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 738, 217 Cal. Rptr. 561 , was an appeal from an order modifying child custody and visitation provisions of a marital dissolution judgment. In the original judgment, custody of the parties' son was awarded to the wife, and custody of the parties' daughter to the husband. Each parent had visitation rights with the other child. After the husband withheld visitation with the daughter due to alleged abuse by the wife's cohabitant, the wife filed an order to show cause seeking sole custody of the daughter and prevention of any visitation by the husband. The husband responded by seeking sole custody of the son, whom he also claimed had been abused, and safeguards concerning the daughter's visitation. After imposing interim visitation restrictions, the trial court conducted a four-day hearing. After the court made its intended decision changing custody of the son to the husband, the wife timely filed a request for a statement of decision. The trial court subsequently stayed its order and the wife timely filed a request for a statement of decision on the controverted issues. After the trial court vacated the stay order and awarded custody of the son to the husband, the wife again requested a statement of decision. The trial court ordered the husband's counsel to prepare and submit a statement of decision along with a proposed order. The order, but no statement of decision, was filed. The wife appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the custody modification, holding that the trial court's failure to render a statement of decision after the wife's request rendered the modification void. Code Civ. Proc. § 632 expressly mandates a statement of decision if a request is timely made. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1590] specifies the preparation procedure and is applied to family law matters by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.21. Citing Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1129, 210 Cal. Rptr. 114 (discussed infra), the court held that the trial court's failure to prepare a statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632 after a timely request is made by a party constitutes reversible error. The court remanded the matter with directions that the trial court prepare a statement of decision (171 Cal. App. 3d 738, 746-751) .

In Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 210 Cal. Rptr. 114 , after a two-day trial on a cross complaint, the trial court took the matter under submission and subsequently issued a minute order entitled "Memorandum of Decision and Statement of Decision (Code Civ. Proc. § 632)." The memorandum listed findings that cross complainant did not justifiably rely on any representation or misrepresentation by cross defendant or its agents, that no implied or express contract was created, and that the cross complainant was not entitled to recover attorney's fees. Cross complainant filed a request for a formal statement of decision pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 as to certain principal controverted issues and various evidentiary factual issues. The trial court entered judgment without issuing any formal statement of decision. Cross complainants appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, noting that the Legislature, by its enactment of former Code Civ. Proc. § 632, and the Judicial Council, by its adoption offormerCal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590], created a comprehensive method for informing the parties and ultimately the appellate courts of the factual and legal basis for the trial court's decision (163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1128) . A properly prepared statement of decision may be vitally important to the litigants in framing the issues, if any, that need to be considered or reviewed on appeal. Although entitled "Statement of Decision," the minute order did not constitute a statement of decision within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 632 because it failed to explain the factual and legal basis of the court's decision as to the principal controverted issues at trial, an essential element of a statement of decision. By labeling the minute order a statement of decision and ignoring cross complainants' request for the issuance of a statement, the trial court deprived cross complainants of an opportunity to make proposals and objections concerning the court's statement of decision, a vital aspect of the process. The requirements of former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590], impose no substantial burden on the courts, because the trial court is specifically authorized to designate a party to prepare the statement of decision. The trial court is therefore required only to review the statement and any objections to it, and to make or order to be made any corrections, additions, or deletions it deems necessary or appropriate. The issuance of a statement of decision after timely request is clearly mandatory pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, and the trial court's failure to do so required reversal (163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1129) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Announcement of Tentative Decision

The court of appeal in Neptune Society Corp. v. Longanencker (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1233, 240 Cal. Rptr. 117 , affirmed the trial court's judgment of rescission of a partnership and franchise agreement based on fraud and violations of franchise law. Defendant contended that the fraud ground could not be a basis for the judgment because it was not articulated by the court in its oral announcement of the tentative decision. The court of appeal disagreed, citing former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(a) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a)], and said both the judgment and the finding relating to fraud as a ground for rescission were proper (194 Cal. App. 3d 1233, 1245) .

[b] Issuance of Statement of Decision After Timely Request Is Mandatory

In In re Marriage of Reilley (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 242 Cal. Rptr. 302 , the court of appeal held that a trial court improperly failed to render a statement of decision on the issues of child and spousal support after a timely request for the statement was made. Code Civ. Proc. § 632 requires a trial court to issue the statement on the request of a party when the request is made prior to the submission of a case tried in less than one day. Although neither party was directed by the court to prepare the statement, the court should have prepared one itself. It is reversible error when a statement of decision is not rendered after a timely request therefor has been made (196 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1125-1126) .

In In re Marriage of McDole (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 214, 221 Cal. Rptr. 734 , a dissolution proceeding, the trial court determined the family residence to be community property, and the wife requested a statement of decision, which was successfully opposed by the husband on the ground that it was untimely. The wife appealed from the trial court's entry of judgment. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the request for a statement of decision was timely pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632 (within 10 days after court announces tentative decision) and 1013(a) (additional five days if address is within California); and that it is reversible error for a court to fail to render a statement of decision pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 when one is duly and timely requested by a party (176 Cal. App. 3d 214, 218-219) .

In McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104 , an action concerning the purchase and sale of real property, the trial court entered judgment against plaintiff, and plaintiff requested a finding on the issue of constructive fraud, which the trial court denied. Plaintiff appealed, and the court of appeal reversed, holding that the trial court committed reversible error by not making a finding of fact on a material issue despite plaintiff's request (173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 590-591) .

The facts and procedural background of Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 , are discussed in § 215.21[3][a]. In Bevli, the court of appeal held that, in a proceeding for writ of administrative mandate, if time is expended by the trial court in absorbing the evidentiary information for trial, it must be considered as trial time for the purposes of findings under Code Civ. Proc. § 632. The court, citing Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 210 Cal. Rptr. 114 (discussed in § 146.20[3][b]), also held that Code Civ. Proc. § 632 clearly specifies that the issuance of a statement of decision on timely request for one is mandatory. The trial court's failure to issue the statement despite a timely request for it required reversal (165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.21

§ 215.21 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590]--Request Not Untimely--Trial on Petition for Writ of Administrative Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] Lasted More Than One Day

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellatebrief, and may be combined with a general contention that a timely request for a statement of decision has been made (see, e.g., § 215.20).]

THE REQUEST BY _____ [name] FOR A STATEMENT OF DECISION WAS TIMELY BECAUSE, INCLUDING THE TIME SPENT BY THE TRIAL JUDGE IN CONSIDERING THE EVIDENCE, THE TRIAL WAS NOT CONCLUDED WITHIN ONE CALENDAR DAY OR IN LESS THAN EIGHT HOURS OVER MORE THAN ONE DAY.

A. Trial Time Includes Judge's Consideration of Evidence. If time is expended by the trial court in absorbing the evidentiary information for trial, it must be considered as trial time for the purposes of findings under Section 632 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 ; but see Milligan v. Hearing Aid Dispensers Examining Com. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1004 fn. 3, 191 Cal. Rptr. 490).

[Optional] B. Statement of Decision Required on Request When Court Exercises Independent Judgment on Evidence. When the applicable scope of review is that of independent judgment, findings must be made if requested (Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 ; Roccaforte v. City of San Diego (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 877, 886-887, 152 Cal. Rptr. 558).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a contention that a request for statement of decision was timely, because the trial, including the time spent by the trial court in considering the evidence, was not concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over a period of more than one day. A statement of decision must be made within 10 days after the court announces its tentative decision, unless the trial is concluded within these periods, in which event the request must be made prior to the submission of the matter for decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; see § 215.24]. Optional Paragraph B is for use when the applicable scope of review is that of independent judgment, and counsel wishes to contend that a statement of decision must be made if requested.

Note that the decision cited for the main point concerns a trial on a petition for administrative mandate, and is distinguished on that ground, because trial court proceedings on petition for writ of administrative mandate uniquely include a reading and consideration of all or portions of the administrative record [see Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 819-822, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36] . Whether the rule of law in these points and authorities applies to proceedings other than those for a petition for administrative mandate is unclear. Moreover, the holding in Bevli is directly opposed by the court of appeal decision in Milligan v. Hearing Aid Dispensers Examining Com. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1004 fn. 3, 191 Cal. Rptr. 490 [see § 146.21[3][a]]. Finally, note that both cases were decided before the 1987 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, which clarified the "one day" limit on trial time and now provide that counsel must request the statement of decision prior to submission of the matter for decision whenever the trial is concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day [see § 215.24].

These points and authorities should be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the trial was not concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over a period of more than one day. For example, they may be combined with those relating to a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing when the judge first began considering the evidence, the time spent in court, and the time spent by the judge after court was adjourned to consider all the evidence presented. Counsel should aggregate the court time and the time spent by the judge outside of court, and show that the total time was neither within one calendar day nor less than eight hours over a period of more than one day [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; see Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36] .

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 215.24 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Trial Time Includes Judge's Consideration of Evidence

Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 , was an action to challenge the discharge of plaintiff and reinstate her with backpay. The college district employing plaintiff as an instructor dismissed her, citing factual allegations to support charges of incompetence, unfitness for service, and refusal to obeyrules and regulations. Plaintiff requested a hearing on the dismissal. The arbitrator determined that the district did not comply with relevant statutory requirements regarding the charges of incompetence, but nevertheless ruled, based on the remaining charges, that the district did have cause to suspend and dismiss her. Plaintiff brought a petition for administrative mandate. The trial court ordered the issuance of a writ of mandate directing the district and its board of trustees to set aside plaintiff's discharge and reinstate her with backpay. During trial, the court noted that it had read and considered the transcript and exhibits of the administrative hearing from 10:00 a.m. to 11:00 p.m. on the day preceding the trial, and for two hours on the morning of the trial. In its minute order, the trial court stated that counsel for plaintiff shall prepare, serve on opposing counsel, and submit to the court a proposed form of judgment, writ of mandate, and, if requested, a statement of decision. The district filed a request for a statement of decision 10 days later. The court denied the request, stating that although the court had made reference to a possible statement of decision, it omitted to state that the case was tried in less than one day. The court therefore denied the request for a statement of decision on the ground that it was untimely, that is, that it had not been made before the matter was submitted for decision, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632. The district and its board of trustees, as the real parties in interest, appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, ruling against plaintiff on the issue of whether the district is entitled to plead multiple causes for dismissal that are all or in part supported by common factual allegations under the relevant statutes. The court then considered whether the trial lasted more than one day and, consequently, whether the trial court improperly rejected a timely request for a statement of decision (165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 819) . The court noted that, in analyzing how long a trial lasts, it must first determine when it commences and when it concludes. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a), a nonjury trial commences at the beginning of the opening statement of the plaintiff or counsel, and if there is no opening statement, then at the time of the administering of the oath or affirmation to the first witness, or the introduction of any evidence. However, trial court proceedings on petitions for writ of administrative mandate are unique because the trial ordinarily consists of introducing all or portions of the administrative record into evidence, reading and considering the evidence, listening to the arguments of counsel, and then either ruling directly from the bench at the conclusion of argument or submitting the matter for further consideration, and ultimate issuance of a statement of intended decision. The trial did not commence by an opening statement of plaintiff or her counsel or by oath or affirmation to the first witness, because there was none administered. The trial was commenced by the introduction of evidence (165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 820) . When the court commenced the process of reading the administrative transcript and exhibits, it was considering the evidence, notwithstanding the fact that the parties did not formally stipulate to the introduction of the exhibits into the proceeding until moments before they began their arguments the following day. The judge's informal process of reading the administrative record ordinarily constitutes the trial of the action from an evidentiary standpoint, with the express or tacit understanding with counsel that when they later begin to argue the case that they will formally introduce into evidence the administrative transcript and exhibits. For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 632, the trial was concluded when the court announced its tentative decision (165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 821) . To state that the trial was completed in less than one day would be to ignore the fact that the court closely and thoroughly perused the administrative record on the preceding day. The time expended by the trial court in absorbing the evidentiary information for trial must be considered as trial time for the purposes of findings under Code Civ. Proc. § 632 (165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822) .

It should be noted that a conflict apparently exists between the Court of Appeal, Second Appellate District, Division Five, which decided Bevli, and the Court of Appeal, Second Appellate District, Division Two, which decided Milligan v. Hearing Aid Dispensers Examining Com. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 191 Cal. Rptr. 490 , also a proceeding for a petition for administrative mandate. In Milligan, petitioner contended that he need not make a timely request before the conclusion of the hearing because the trial court's preparation for trial must have taken more than one day. The court rejected petitioner's contention as not supported by the record or by law, and held that the trial court was under no duty to prepare findings in the absence of a timely request before submission of the matter for decision, pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 (142 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1004 fn. 3). Counsel might note that in Bevli, the court's total time in considering the evidence was documented in the court transcript, whereas in Milligan, petitioner appears to have merely speculated that the trial court's preparation for trial must have taken more than one day, and it does not appear that the court's total time in considering the evidence was documented for the record. This distinction was, in fact, the crucial factor in determining the timeliness of a request for statement of decision in Kearl v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 236 Cal. Rptr. 526 , decided by the Court of Appeal, Second Appellate District, Division One (discussed in § 215.21[4][a]). The court in Kearl noted that in Bevli, the record reflected the amount of time expended by the trial court in reviewing the evidence prior to trial, and, distinguishing the instant case on that ground, found that the request was untimely (189 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1051) .

[b] Statement of Decision Required on Request When Court Excercises Independent Judgment on Evidence

The facts and procedural background of Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 , are discussed in § 215.21[3][a]. In Bevli, the court held that, in an action for writ of administrative mandate, time spent by the trial courtin absorbing the evidentiary information for trial must be considered as trial time for the purposes of findings under Code Civ. Proc. § 632. The court also noted that proceedings brought on petition for administrative mandate require the trial court to exercise its judgment in an independent review of the record. When the applicable scope of review is that of independent judgment, findings must be made if requested. Further, findings would enable the reviewing party to determine what test the trial court employed in reviewing the administrative decision and the ground on which it found that test to be applicable (165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822) .

Roccaforte v. City of San Diego (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 877, 152 Cal. Rptr. 558 , was an action brought by a police officer challenging several agencies' findings regarding the termination of his injury leave pay, denial of his industrial disability retirement, and his reinstatement to active duty. Petitioner was injured while making an arrest, and the city for which he worked provided medical treatment and paid compensation in the form of injury leave pay until he returned to active duty. Petitioner returned to work, and then took injury leave again due to injury-related medical problems. The city terminated petitioner's injury benefits shortly thereafter on the ground that medical evidence indicated his position was permanent and stationary. A second agency denied him disability retirement benefits on the ground that he was not currently incapacitated, and a third agency refused him reemployment as a police officer on the ground that he failed to meet the necessary physical qualifications. Petitioner filed a petition for writ of administrative mandate, which the trial court denied. The record showed that the trial court applied the substantial evidence test as to the issue regarding termination of petitioner's injury leave pay. However, the record was unclear with respect to the standard of review used as to the issue of retirement. Petitioner appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that the uncertainty as to the standard of review used by the trial court could be resolved by appropriate findings of fact. However, it appears that findings of fact or conclusions of law were neither made nor requested (89 Cal. App. 3d 877, 886) . When the applicable scope of review is that of independent judgment, findings must be made if requested. Further, findings would enable the reviewing party to determine what test the trial court employed in reviewing the administrative decision and the ground on which it found that test to be applicable (89 Cal. App. 3d 877, 886-887) . The court further held that the city is bound by its contractual agreements with petitioner, and it was the trial court's duty, after examination of the evidence, contract requirements and applicable law, to exercise its independent judgment, and to eliminate conflicting administrative decisions to the end that petitioner be awarded the benefits of his employment contract in accordance with the medical facts (89 Cal. App. 3d 877, 888) .

Although Roccaforte was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(e) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(g)], the case has been cited for the point discussed in a later opinion interpreting the code section and rule as amended [see Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Trial Time Includes Judge's Consideration of Evidence

In Kearl v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 236 Cal. Rptr. 526 , a proceeding for writ of mandate after administrative hearing, the trial court rejected as untimely petitioner's request for a statement of decision five days after a trial that was begun and completed on the same day (189 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1049) . Some months later, subsequent to the publication of Bevli v. Brisco (1986) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 (discussed in § 215.21[3][a]), petitioner requested that the court document the time spent preliminarily reviewing the evidence, but the court refused on the ground that it could not recall the information. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that if the record does not reflect the amount of time expended by the trial court, the reviewing court cannot speculate on it (189 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1051) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.22

§ 215.22 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590]--Determination of Motion Was in Effect Trial of Question of Fact

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellate brief, and may be combined with a general contention that a timely request for a statement of decision has been made (see, e.g., § 215.20).]

A STATEMENT OF DECISION IS REQUIRED ON THE COURT'S DETERMINATION OF _____ [identify motion, e.g., PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO AMEND JUDGMENT], BECAUSE THE COURT IN EFFECT TRIED ISSUES OF FACT IN RENDERING ITS DECISION.

Determination of Motion Was in Effect Trial of Question of Fact. The trial of a question of fact may be involved in decisions based on a motion and justify the conclusion that the trial court should have issued a statement of decision (see Gruendl v. Oewel Partnership, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 654, 660-661, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 217).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a contention that a statement of decision is required in a superior court action when a trial court's determination of a motion was in effect a trial of questions of fact, and a timely request fora statement of decision has been made [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a), (e)].

This form may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a statement of decision is required after a timely request has been made.

This form may also be used in support of a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 634, 657, 663 (motions for judgment and new trial, respectively)]. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

[b] Argument

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should identify the specific facts determined by the trial court's decision of the motion in question. For example, when a trial court granted a judgment creditor's motion to amend the original judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1871 to add a person as a judgment debtor on an alter-ego theory, the court's determination of whether that person was the alter ego of the corporation, and whether the judgment debtor was estopped from asserting an alter-ego theory of liability, were determinations of questions of fact requiring that a statement of decision be issued [see Gruendl v. Oewel Partnership, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 654, 660-661, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 217 , discussed in § 146.22[3][a]].

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Determination of Motion Was in Effect Trial of Question of Fact

In Gruendl v. Oewel Partnership, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 654, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 217 , a judgment creditor moved to amend the original judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1871 to add an individual as a judgment debtor on an alter-ego theory. The trial court granted the motion. The judgment debtor appealed, contending that the court's determination of the alter ego issue involved determinations of fact and, on the judgment debtor's timely request, the trial court was required to prepare a statement of decision.

The court of appeal reversed the trial court's judgment and remanded with directions to issue a statement of decision regarding the liability of appellant as the alter ego of the limited liability defendants. The court cited the general rule that Code Civ. Proc. § 632 does not require a statement of decision after a ruling on a motion, even when the motion involves extensive evidentiary hearings and the resulting order is appealable. The court observed, however, that the general rule is not absolute. For example, California courts have created exceptions to the analogous rule that Code Civ. Proc. § 632 is inapplicable in "special proceedings." In the court's view, the case presented circumstances that justify the conclusion that the trial court should have issued a statement of decision. Both the question of whether the individual judgment debtor is the alter ego of the limited liability defendants, and the question of whether the judgment debtor is estopped from asserting an alter-ego theory of liability against appellant are questions of fact. Thus, in resolving the judgment debtor's motion, the trial court necessarily "tried" those issues of fact and erred by failing to issue a statement of decision (55 Cal. App. 4th 654, 660) .

In addition, the court cited other factors to justify its determination that the trial court erred by failing to issue a statement of decision. The court balanced the importance of the issues at stake in the proceeding, including the significance of the rights affected and the magnitude of the potential adverse effect on those rights; and the question of whether appellate review can be effectively accomplished even in the absence of express findings [citing In re Marriage of Wood (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 671, 679-680, 190 Cal. Rptr. 469] . In so doing, however, the court stated that its conclusion was not intended to have application beyond the facts of the case before it, and cautioned that it may be the better practice for trial courts to issue statements of decision or findings of fact when ruling on motions turn primarily on factual determinations (55 Cal. App. 4th 654, 661) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.23

§ 215.23 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Waived [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h)]--Protesting Party Failed to Request Statement of Decision on Controverted Issues

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [Name], THE PROTESTING PARTY, HAS WAIVED ENTITLEMENT TO A STATEMENT OF DECISION ON THE CONTROVERTED ISSUES BY FAILING TO REQUEST A STATEMENT OF DECISION AS TO THOSE ISSUES.

A. Preparation of Judgment When Statement of Decision Not Requested. If a statement of decision is not requested or has been waived and a written judgment is required, the court must prepare and mail a proposed judgment to all parties who appeared at the trial within 10 days after expiration of the time for requesting a statement of decision or time of waiver (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h)).

B. Failure to Request Statement of Decision. Failure to request findings on specific controverted issues results in a waiver as to those issues (Agri-Systems, Inc. v. Foster Poultry Farms (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1134-1135, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917 ; Atari Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 665, 675, 216 Cal. Rptr. 267 ; Small v. Smith (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455, 94 Cal. Rptr. 136).

C. Findings Necessary to Support Judgment Will Be Implied. When findings are not requested of the trial court and therefore waived, findings necessary to support the judgment will be implied, and if there is any substantial evidence to support the judgment, it must be affirmed (Lee v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 275, 284, 191 Cal. Rptr. 23 ; Atari Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 665, 675, 216 Cal. Rptr. 267] Small v. Smith (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455, 94 Cal. Rptr. 136).

[This form may be combined, when appropriate, with § 215.24.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is required. The opposition is based on the ground that the party protesting the trial court's failure to make certain findings waived entitlement to them by failing to request a statement of decision on the controverted issues [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h); Atari Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 665, 675, 216 Cal. Rptr. 267] .

This form may be combined with the points in § 215.24 when counsel wishes to contend that the protesting party's request for a statement of decision was untimely in a trial that lasted less than one day.

This form may be combined with points pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that failure to request a statement of decision as to controverted issues constitutes a waiver on those issues. For example, they may be used to support a noticed motion for an order that the statement of decision has been waived [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(f)]. These points may also be used in opposition to a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. Finally, they may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the protesting party failed to request a statement of decision as to the controverted issues. If the protesting party requested a statement of decision, counsel should show that the request failed to include the controverted issues.

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 215.20 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of motion for an order that a statement of decision be deemed waived, and for forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgment generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Request Statement of Decision

In Agri-Systems, Inc. v. Foster Poultry Farms (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1134-1135, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917 , the plaintiff was a contractor licensed in California. The parties entered into a contract to build a grain rolling facility. The contract provided that all disputes arising out of the contract document or work performed would be decided by binding arbitration in accordance with the then current Construction Industry Arbitration Rules of the American Arbitration Association. When the project was finished the plaintiff contractor sued the defendant for full payment. The defendant claimed the project was defective and withheld part of the payment. After an arbitration, the arbitrator found in the defendant's favor. The defendant filed a petition for confirmation of the arbitration award in the superior court. The plaintiff filed an opposition to the petition, asserting that the arbitrator breached his obligation to disclose his law firm's prior representation of an adversary of the plaintiff. The superior court adopted its tentative ruling to grant the petition to confirm the arbitration award (168 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1134) .

The plaintiff appealed, arguing that the superior court's tentative ruling incorrectly stated the status of the case. The court of appeal held that the plaintiff failed to follow the two-step process set forth in In re Marriage of Arceneaux (1990) 51 Cal.3d 1130, 275 Cal. Rptr. 797, 800 P.2d 1227 , for asserting that a trial court's tentative decision is deficient. The first step, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, requires the party to request a statement of decision as to specific issues to obtain an explanation of the trial court's tentative decision. The second step, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 634, requires the party to bring the purported deficiencies in the statement of decision to the trial court's attention. As a result of the plaintiff's failure to follow these steps, the court of appeal held that the superior court did not commit reversible error by failing to provide a more detailed statement of decision and the appellate court would imply findings to support the judgment [168 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1135] .

Atari Inc. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 665, 216 Cal. Rptr. 267 , was an action brought by a manufacturer against a state agency to recover sales and use taxes. Plaintiff designed, manufactured, and sold video computer systems for home use. The system used game cartridges, which the computer owner purchased separately. Plaintiff purchased, under resale certificates, several million catalogs from various printers, and included a catalog in the package with each system and cartridge. The catalog contained a description of a cartridge and the games that can be played with it. The descriptions were written to attract the consumer to a certain activity offered. The catalog did not include prices, serial numbers, or purchasing information. Plaintiff also distributed a large number of catalogs free of charge to distributors and company representatives, and at the company store. Plaintiff claimed entitlement to a refund for taxes paid on the catalogs because the catalogs were marketing aids, exempt pursuant to a certain regulation. The trial court found, under the primary purpose test regarding taxability, that plaintiff was the consumer of the catalogs and therefore subject to the use tax on them. Plaintiff did not request a statement of decision, but filed a document specifying the taxability of the catalogs as a controverted issue, and raised the issue of the primary purpose test but not the exemption test under the relevant regulation. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, noting that Code Civ. Proc. § 632 requires a party requesting a statement of decision to specify those controverted issues on which it is requesting a finding (170 Cal. App. 3d 665, 674-675) . Failure to request findings on specific issues results in a waiver as to those issues. In its document filed with the trial court, plaintiff raised only the issue of the primary purpose test. In its appeal, however, plaintiff raised the issue of taxability pursuant to the relevant regulation. Plaintiff's failure to request a finding with respect to the regulation constituted a waiver of its right to raise that issue on appeal (170 Cal. App. 3d 665, 675) .

Small v. Smith (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 94 Cal. Rptr. 136 , was an action to reinstate plaintiff's revoked license as an inactive real estate broker. Plaintiff entered into an installment contract to buy certain real property. Plaintiff subsequently entered into an installment contract to resell the property to a third party. Subsequent to the receipt of notice of forfeiture for plaintiff's default in payments, plaintiff collected and retained installment payments from the third party. Plaintiff neither refunded the money nor transferred title to the third party. After an administrative hearing, the commissioner found that plaintiff's receipt and acceptance of payments made by the third party subsequent to the receipt of the notice of forfeiture constituted dishonest acts, and revoked plaintiff's license. Plaintiff was not present at the administrative hearing, and did not offer any evidence at the hearing or subsequently in the trial court. Plaintiff brought a writ of mandamus to seek reinstatement of his license. The trial court approved the administrative findings, and denied plaintiff's writ of mandate. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding, inter alia, that in reviewing the decision of the commissioner in administrative proceedings, the trial court exercises its independent judgment to determine whether the commissioner's findings are supported by the weight of the evidence (16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 454) . The determinations made by the trial court must be accepted by the court of appeal if they are supported by substantial evidence. The court of appeal is obligated to consider the evidence in the light most favorable to the commissioner, giving to the judgment the benefit of every reasonable inference and resolving all conflicts in its favor. In this case, the court held that findings of fact and conclusions of law were not requested of the trial court and were therefore waived (16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455) .

Although Small was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590], the case has been cited for the point discussed by later case law interpreting the amended code section and rule [see Milligan v. Hearing Aid Dispensers Examining Com. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1004 n.3, 191 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

[b] Findings Necessary to Support Judgment Will Be Implied

Lee v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 275, 191 Cal. Rptr. 23 , was an action to challenge a decision by a state agency to suspend petitioner's driver's license. Petitioner was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol, and agreed with the arresting officer to take a blood test pursuant to Veh. Code § 13353. After a second officer took petitioner to jail, petitioner refused to take a chemical test, even though the officer reminded petitioner that he would lose his license if he refused. After an administrative hearing, the state agency issued a decision suspending petitioner's driver's license for failure to comply with Veh. Code § 13353. Petitioner filed a petition for writ of prohibition or mandate in the superior court, seeking to set aside the agency's decision. The trial court denied the petition. Petitioner appealed, contending, inter alia, that the statute requires the arresting officer, rather than a delegate, to administer the chemical test.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that Veh. Code § 13353 does not militate against a delegate officer's administration of chemical testing (142 Cal. App. 3d 275, 282) . After rejecting other contentions by petitioner, the court noted that findings of fact were not requested from nor expressly issued by the trial court. In such a case, findings necessary to support the judgment will be implied, and if there is any substantial evidence to support the judgment, it must be affirmed (142 Cal. App. 3d 275, 284) .

Although Lee was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590], the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

The facts and procedural background of Small v. Smith (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 94 Cal. Rptr. 136 , are discussed in § 215.23[3][a]. In Small, the court of appeal held that failure to request findings of fact and conclusions of law constitutes a waiver of them. Moreover, findings necessary to support the judgment will be implied, and if there is any substantial evidence to support the judgment, it must be affirmed. The court found that the judgment of the superior court must necessarily have been based on implied findings that included the dishonesty of plaintiff and a lack of a good-faith claim of right (16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455) .

Although Small was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590], the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Request Statement of Decision

In Hall v. Bureau of Employment Agencies (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 482, 138Cal. Rptr. 725 , cert. denied, 431 U.S. 920, 97 S. Ct. 2187, 53 L. Ed. 2d 231 (1977) , reh. denied 433 U.S. 916, 97 S. Ct. 2991, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1102 (1977) , petitioner brought an unsuccessful petition for writ of mandate challenging a state bureau's suspension of his license on grounds that he had violated specific statutory provisions. Petitioner did not request findings of fact. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that, inter alia, because findings of fact were not requested in the trial court pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(b) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590], the factual findings and legal conclusions were waived. Therefore, findings necessary to support the judgment were implied and if there was any substantial evidence to support the judgment, it had to be affirmed (64 Cal. App. 3d 482, 496) .

Although Hall was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590], the case cites Small v. Smith (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455, 94 Cal. Rptr. 136 , for the point discussed. Small was cited for that holding by later case law interpreting the amended code section and rule [see Milligan v. Hearing Aid Dispensers Examining Com. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1004 n.3, 191 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

In McLaughlin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 111 Cal. Rptr. 353 , petitioner brought an unsuccessful writ of mandate challenging a state professional board of examiners' revocation of his license (stayed pursuant to probation conditions). Petitioner neither requested nor prepared findings of fact at trial. The court of appeal affirmed, holding, inter alia, that findings of fact and conclusions of law were waived. Therefore, findings necessary to support the judgment were implied, and if there was substantial evidence to support the judgment, it must be affirmed (35 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1013) .

Although McLaughlin was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590], the case cites Small v. Smith (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455, 94 Cal. Rptr. 136 , for the point discussed. Small was cited for that holding by later case law interpreting the amended code section and rule [see Milligan v. Hearing Aid Dispensers Examining Com. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1004 n.3, 191 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

[b] Findings Necessary to Support Judgment Will Be Implied

Hall v. Bureau of Employment Agencies (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 482, 138 Cal. Rptr. 725 , cert. denied 431 U.S. 920, 97 S. Ct. 2187, 53 L. Ed. 2d 231 (1977) , reh. denied 433 U.S. 916, 97 S. Ct. 2991, 53 L. Ed. 2d 1102 (1977) , and McLaughlin v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 111 Cal. Rptr. 353 , are discussed in § 215.23[4][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.24

§ 215.24 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Request for Statement of Decision Untimely--Trial Lasted Less Than One Day and Request Not Made Prior to Submission of Matter for Decision

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellate brief, and may be combined with a contention that the statement of decision was waived (see, e.g., § 215.23).]

THE REQUEST FOR A STATEMENT OF DECISION BY _____ [name] WAS UNTIMELY BECAUSE THE TRIAL WAS CONCLUDED WITHIN ONE CALENDAR DAY OR IN LESS THAN EIGHT HOURS OVER A PERIOD OF MORE THAN ONE DAY, AND THE REQUEST WAS NOT MADE PRIOR TO SUBMISSION OF THE MATTER FOR DECISION.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Request Must Be Made Prior to Submission if Trial Is Concluded Within One Calendar Day or in Less Than Eight Hours Over More Than One Day. In the event that the trial is concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, the request for a statement of decision must be made prior to the submission of the matter for decision (Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Gorman v. Tassajara Development Corporation (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 44, 61-63, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is required. The ground for opposition is that the protesting party failed to file a timely request for a statement of decision by not making the request before submission of the matter for decision in a trial that was concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day [Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

This form may be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.23 when counsel wishes to contend that the protesting party's failure to request a statement of decision as to controverted issues constitutes a waiver on those issues.

These points may be combined with points pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the protesting party failed to request a statement of decision prior tosubmission of the matter for decision in a trial lasting less than the periods specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 632. For example, if the opposing party failed to request a statement of decision before submission of the matter in such a trial, but requested a statement after submission of the matter, the points and authorities may be used to oppose a motion to excuse noncompliance with the time limits for preparing a statement of decision [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(m); see, e.g., Architects & Contractors Estimating Service, Inc., v. Smith (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 211 Cal. Rptr. 45 , decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the trial lasted less than the periods specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 632, and the protesting party failed to request a statement of decision prior to submission of the matter for decision. Counsel should set forth the dates and times that the trial commenced and ended.

In an appropriate case, the points set out in §§ 215.20 and 215.21 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms of motion for an order excusing noncompliance with the time limit prescribed for preparing a statement of decision, and for forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgment generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial § 371.60 et seq., in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For memoranda for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial, §§ 155.50 et seq. and 155.320 et seq.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Request Must Be Made Before Submission if Trial Is Concluded Within One Calendar Day or in Less Than Eight Hours Over More Than One Day

In Gorman v. Tassajara Development Corporation (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 44, 61-63, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152 , plaintiff homeowners sued the defendant contractor for defective construction. Several years after the action was filed, after much discovery and settlement conferences, the parties settled, agreeing that the plaintiffs were the prevailing parties for purposes of recovering attorney's fees. The plaintiffs filed a motion for attorney's fees and costs. The hearing on the motion was continued several times, and eventually lasted less than an hour. The court issued its order the next day. Ten days later, the plaintiffs filed a request for a statement of decision regarding the attorney's fees motion. The trial court denied the request.

On appeal, the court first discussed whether a statement of decision was even required for a motion for attorney's fees. Assuming it was required, the court held that the plaintiffs' request was untimely under Code Civ. Proc. § 632 because the trial was concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, and therefore the request for a statement of decision must be made prior to the submission of the matter for decision (178 Cal. App. 4th 44, 61) . The court rejected the plaintiffs' argument that the "trial" lasted three months, including all judicial consideration of their motion, i.e., 520 pages of briefs and evidence, from the time the motion was filed, through its continuances, to the ruling, whether that consideration took place on or off the bench, or during or after regular working hours (178 Cal. App. 4th 44, 61-63) . The court looked at the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 632, holding that it does not include the time judges spend reading briefs, researching the law, and preparing for trial. Otherwise, the court held, judges would be required to submit timesheets to the parties, which they clearly are not required to do (178 Cal. App. 4th 44, 63) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.25

§ 215.25 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Request for Determination of Issue of Law Rather Than Fact

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

A STATEMENT OF DECISION IS NOT REQUIRED BECAUSE _____ [name], THE REQUESTING PARTY, DESIRES A DETERMINATION OF AN ISSUE OF LAW RATHER THAN FACT.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Determination of Factual Issue. The request for a statement of decision is appropriate only after the determination of a factual issue (In re Marriage of Stich (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 64, 76, 214 Cal. Rptr. 919 ; Northern Cal. Police Practices Project v. Craig (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 116, 122, 153 Cal. Rptr. 173).

[Optional] C. Decision to Defer Determination. A decision to defer a determination on an issue pending an evidentiary hearing cannot be considered to constitute a trial on the issue so as to justify a request for a statement of decision (In re Marriage of Stich (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 64, 76, 214 Cal. Rptr. 919).

[This form may be combined, when appropriate, with §§ 215.26 and 215.27.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is required if the requesting party desires a determination of an issue of law rather than fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; In re Marriage of Stich (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 64, 76, 214 Cal. Rptr. 919] .

These points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.26 when counsel wishes to contend that the requesting party desires a statement of decision on a motion. The points and authorities in this form may be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.27 when counsel wishes to contend that the requesting party desires a statement of decision in a special proceeding.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a statement of decision is not required because the requesting party desires a determination of an issue of law rather than fact. For example, they may be used to oppose a motion to vacate the judgment or for a new trial. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the issue that is the subject of the requested statement of decision is one of law rather than fact. For example, if appropriate, counsel should show that a trial court's decision to defer a determination on an issue pending an evidentiary hearing cannot be considered to constitute a trial on the issue so as to justify a request for a statement of decision [see In re Marriage of Stich (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 64, 76, 214 Cal. Rptr. 919] .

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 215.20 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities in the form.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 371, Motions After Trial § 371.60 et seq. (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial, §§ 155.50 et seq. and 155.320 et seq.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Determination of Factual Issue

In re Marriage of Stich (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 64, 214 Cal. Rptr. 919 , was an action for dissolution of marriage filed by the wife, requesting spousal support and a determination of property rights. The couple married in a foreign state, and moved to California, where they acquired a substantial amount of property. The couple separated, and respondent went to Mexico, purporting to establish a permanent residence there, and filed for divorce. He returned to his residence in a foreign state immediately after the Mexican court issued a divorce decree. The divorce judgment stated there was no community property, and made no provision for spousal or child support. Respondent subsequently moved back to California. Respondent sent petitioner a certain sum of money each month from the year of the Mexican decree until 16 years later, when petitioner instituted dissolution proceedings. Respondent threatened to stop the payments unless she cancelled the action. Petitioner set a hearing to obtain temporary spousal support and attorney's fees. A few days prior to the hearing, respondent filed, inter alia, a motion to quash service on the ground that a valid Mexican divorce decree had previously been entered, and therefore no marriage existed. The court heard petitioner's request for temporary support and fees, and took respondent's motion to quash under submission. After argument, the court deferred action on the motion to quash until a trial court determined the validity of the Mexican divorce. The court noted that petitioner's challenge was based on lack of jurisdiction of the Mexican court on the ground of lack of domicile. The court found a reasonable probability of petitioner's success at trial, and therefore granted her motion, awarding temporary support and fees. Respondent appealed, and filed, inter alia, a motion for new trial and a request for a statement of decision, which the court denied.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court was within its jurisdiction to award temporary spousal support and attorney's fees pending determination of the validity of the foreign divorce decree (169 Cal. App. 3d 64, 71-74) . The court further held that both requests for a statement of decision and motions for a new trial are appropriate only after the determination of a factual issue. Respondent's attacks were based solely on an issue of law, that is, whether the trial court lacked jurisdiction to make any order in light of the effect, if any, of the foreign divorce order. The trial court's decision to defer a determination on an issue pending an evidentiary hearing cannot be considered to constitute a trial on the issue so as to justify a request for a statement of decision or the filing of a motion for a new trial (169 Cal. App. 3d 64, 76) .

Northern Cal. Police Practices Project v. Craig (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 116, 153 Cal. Rptr. 173 , was an action brought by a taxpayer and two associations to compel the disclosure of various documents used by a law enforcement agency to train its officers. Plaintiffs, pursuant to the Public Records Act (Gov. Code§§ 6250-6265), sought to discover the agency's enforcement procedures, including a description of weapons used, arrest techniques, and speed law enforcement guidelines. The agency rejected plaintiffs' request for access to the material on the ground that it concerned officers' safety and internal security, and was therefore exempt from disclosure pursuant to the controlling statutes. Following an in camera hearing, the trial court ordered disclosure of certain materials, and found all remaining materials to be exempt from disclosure. Plaintiffs requested findings of fact listing the court's reasons for refusing to order disclosure of all requested material. The trial court refused the request, and plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the fundamental question presented at trial was the propriety of the claim of exemption. Resolution of the question was dependent on the content of the material, viewed in the light of statutory provisions. The question was therefore one of law, not fact, and, as such, findings are not required (90 Cal. App. 3d 116, 122) .

Although Northern Cal. was decided prior to the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the section as amended.

[b] Decision to Defer Determination

In re Marriage of Stich (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 64, 214 Cal. Rptr. 919 , is discussed in § 215.25[3][a].

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Determination of Factual Issue

In Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. City of Vernon (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 209, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661 , a gas company petitioned superior court for a writ of mandate to direct a city to issue an encroachment permit to lay a proposed gas line. The trial court granted the petition, and denied a subsequent request by the city for a statement of decision, ruling that its minute order was sufficient. The city appealed, contending, among other things, that the trial court's statement was insufficient. The court of appeal stated that it is axiomatic that a statement of decision is required only as to issues of fact decided by the trial court (41 Cal. App. 4th 209, 220) . In ruling on the gas company's petition, the trial court was not adjudicating questions of fact, but was sitting as a reviewing court, scrutinizing the administrative decision of the city. The court held that when the only issue is whether an administrative decision is supported by substantial evidence or whether there has been an abuse of discretion, the issue is essentially one of law and findings are not required (41 Cal. App. 4th 209, 221) . The judgment was thus affirmed.

In Enterprise Insurance Co. v. Mulleague (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 528, 241 Cal. Rptr. 846 , a declaratory-relief action brought by an insurer to determine the extent of uninsured-motorist coverage under Ins. Code § 11580.2, the parties submitted the matter on briefs. The court of appeal affirmed judgment as modified in favor of the insurer, holding, inter alia, that inasmuch as the only issue tendered to the trial court was one of law, a statement of decision was not necessary, because if there is no factual issue, there is nothing to inform the appellate court about except the law, which it interprets for itself (196 Cal. App. 3d 528, 539-540) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.26

§ 215.26 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Decision Not a Trial

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

A STATEMENT OF DECISION IS NOT REQUIRED BECAUSE THE PROCEEDING WAS NOT A TRIAL WITHIN THE MEANING OF SECTION 632 OF THE CODE OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Statement of Decision Is Required Only After Trial. A statement of decision is required only after a trial within the meaning of Section 632 of the Code of Civil Procedure (People v. Landlords Professional Services, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 68, 72, 223 Cal. Rptr. 483).

[Optional] C. Statement of Decision Not Available on Hearing on Preliminary Injunction. A hearing on a preliminary injunction is not a trial within the meaning of Section 632 of the Code of Civil Procedure (People v. Landlords Professional Services, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 68, 72, 223 Cal. Rptr. 483 ; see Lavine v. Hospital of the Good Samaritan (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1026, 215 Cal. Rptr. 708).

[Optional] D. Statement of Decision Not Available on Decision of Motion. A statement of decision is neither required nor available on the decision of a motion (Taliaferro v. Hoogs (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 530, 46 Cal. Rptr. 147).

[This form may be combined, when appropriate, with §§ 215.25 and 215.27.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is required if the requesting party desires a statement ofdecision on a proceeding that is not a trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; see also People v. Landlords Professional Services, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 68, 72, 223 Cal. Rptr. 483] .

The points and authorities in this form may be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.25 when counsel wishes to contend that the requesting party desires a determination of an issue of law rather than fact. These points and authorities may also be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.27 when counsel wishes to contend that the requesting party desires a statement of decision in a special proceeding.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a statement of decision is not required on the decision of a motion. These points and authorities may also be used to oppose a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. If appropriate, for example, counsel should discuss facts showing that a statement of decision was requested on a motion, or on a hearing on a preliminary injunction.

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 215.20 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statement of Decision Is Required Only After Trial

In People v. Landlords Professional Services, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 68, 223 Cal. Rptr. 483 , the People sought injunctive relief and civil penalties against several tenant eviction firms on the ground that they were practicing law without a license. The trial court granted preliminary injunctions following several days of testimony on an evidentiary hearing. It refused to issue a statement of decision because the proceeding was not a trial within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 632. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court properly determined that the evidentiary hearing was not a "trial" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 632. The only available authority on the issue is found in dicta in People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749 , and Lavine v. Hospital of the Good Samaritan (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 215 Cal. Rptr. 708 , stating that findings are not required before entry of a preliminary injunction [for discussion of Mobile Magic, see § 215.26[4][a], infra; for discussion of Lavine, see infra]. The court noted a preference for requiring a statement of decision, if timely requested, whenever a trial court grants or denies an application for a preliminary injunction, particularly when, as in the instant case, the hearing includes the presentation of oral testimony and is virtually a trial. Nevertheless, Code Civ. Proc. § 632 only refers to a trial, and no case defines a hearing on a preliminary injunction, with or without live testimony, as a trial. The court noted that the absence of a statement of decision precludes effective review of the major issue raised in the instant appeal and expressed a desire for legislative remedy of the problem in light of the practical finality that accompanies many preliminary injunctions. However, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, the court was not required to issue a statement of decision (178 Cal. App. 3d 68, 70-72) .

[b] Statement of Decision Not Available on Hearing on Preliminary Injunction

People v. Landlords Professional Services, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 68, 223 Cal. Rptr. 483 , is discussed in § 215.26[3][a].

Lavine v. Hospital of the Good Samaritan (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 215 Cal. Rptr. 708 , was an action brought by an attorney on behalf of her relative, a hospital patient, for declaratory, injunctive, and statutory relief, to require defendant to provide plaintiff with the patient's hospital records for her inspection and copying. At the hearing on plaintiff's application for temporary restraining order, counsel stipulated that defendant would prepare copies of the records for plaintiff and allow her reasonable access to the originals. The court denied plaintiff's applications for provisional injunctive relief on the ground that an adequate remedy at law was available. Plaintiff subsequently filed a motion for judgment on the pleadings, which incorporated her prior moving papers and sought issuance of preliminary and permanent injunctive relief on grounds that defendant had not yet complied with its stipulation to produce the records. The motion was taken off calendar. Following the patient's death, the court granted plaintiff's motion to substitute herself as plaintiff, and she filed a renewed motion for production of medical records and a motion to disqualify defendant's counsel and certain judges. The court denied all plaintiff's motions, and granted defendant's motion for sanctions, after which time plaintiff filed a motion for reconsideration. The court denied plaintiff's motion for reconsideration, and plaintiff filed a request for a statement of decision. The motion judge referred thematter of his disqualification to the master calendar department for appointment of another judge, who denied the application. Plaintiff filed a renewed request for a statement of decision, which the court denied as untimely. Plaintiff appealed from the order, which, inter alia, denied her request for a statement of decision.

The court of appeal affirmed, noting that plaintiff's request for a statement of decision, if she was entitled to one, should have been made before the matter was submitted for decision, because the trial lasted less than one day, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632. Therefore, if her motions had qualified for a statement of decision, the request would have been untimely. However, a statement of decision, as with findings of fact under former Code Civ. Proc. § 632, is neither required nor available on decision of a motion, including one for a preliminary injunction (169 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1026) .

[c] Statement of Decision Not Available on Decision of Motion

Taliaferro v. Hoogs (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 46 Cal. Rptr. 147 , was an action regarding an attempt to recover money due under the provisions of a property settlement agreement. Cross complainant failed to provide security as required pursuant to the vexatious litigant statute, and the court dismissed the cross complaint accordingly. Cross complainant appealed, contending that the vexatious litigant statute is unconstitutional, and that there was no evidence that he was a vexatious litigant as defined by statute.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the vexatious litigant statute (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 391-391.6) is constitutional and survives attacks on grounds of denial of equal protection, vagueness, and deprivation of right to jury trial (236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 525-529) . As to the contention that the court erred in not making findings, the court of appeal held that findings are not required on order made after granting a motion (236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 530) .

Although Taliaferro was decided prior to the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, the case is discussed in People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12 fn. 4, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749 , which was cited for the point discussed in a later opinion interpreting the code section as amended [see Lavine v. Hospital of the Good Samaritan (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1026, 215 Cal. Rptr. 708] . Note, however, that both Mobile Magic and Lavine concerned a hearing on a preliminary injunction, while Taliaferro concerned an order on a motion.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statement of Decision Not Available on Hearing on Preliminary Injunction

In People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749 , the People sought civil penalties and injunctive relief against mobile home dealers on grounds of unfair competition and restraint of trade. The trial court granted a preliminary injunction prohibiting certain practices, and defendants appealed. In holding that the evidence, viewed in a light most favorable to the order, warrants an inference that an illegal restraint of commerce was ongoing, the court of appeal noted that although no findings of fact were made by the trial court until after it had lost jurisdiction, findings were not required before entry of the preliminary injunction (96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12 fn. 4).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.27

§ 215.27 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Required [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Special Proceedings

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

A STATEMENT OF DECISION IS NOT REQUIRED BECAUSE _____ [specify statute governing the special proceeding], THE CONTROLLING STATUTE FOR THIS PROCEEDING, DOES NOT PROVIDE FOR ONE.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Statement of Decision Not Required in Special Proceedings. Findings are not required in special proceedings unless the particular statute governing the proceeding so provides (Northern Cal. Police Practices Project v. Craig (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 116, 122, 153 Cal. Rptr. 173 ; see Taliaferro v. Hoogs (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 530, 46 Cal. Rptr. 147).

[This form may be combined, when appropriate, with §§ 215.25 and 215.26.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is required if the requesting party desires a statement of decision in a special proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Northern Cal. Police Practices Project v. Craig (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 116, 122, 153 Cal. Rptr. 173] .

The points and authorities in this form may be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.25 when counsel wishes to contend that the requesting party desires a determination of an issue of law rather than fact. This points and authorities may also be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.26 when counsel wishes to contend that the requesting party desires a statement of decision on a motion.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a statement of decision is not required in a special proceeding. For example, they may be used to oppose a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the action in which the statement of decision was requested is in the nature of a special proceeding, and that the controlling statute does not provide for a statement of decision [see, e.g., Northern Cal. Police Practices Project v. Craig (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 116, 153 Cal. Rptr. 173 (proceeding to disclose public record under Gov. Code § 6258)].

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 215.20 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statement of Decision Not Required in Special Proceedings

The facts and procedural background of Northern Cal. Police Practices Project v. Craig (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 116, 153 Cal. Rptr. 173 , are discussed in § 215.25[3][a]. The court in Northern Cal. held that findings are not required on a question of law, rather than fact. The court also held that findings are not required in a special proceeding authorized by a specific statute, unless the authorizing statute so provides (90 Cal. App. 3d 116, 122) .

Although Northern Cal. was decided prior to the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the section as amended.

The facts and procedural background of Taliaferro v. Hoogs (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 46 Cal. Rptr. 147 , are discussed in § 215.26[3][c]. In Taliaferro, the court held that findings are not required on order made after granting a motion. The court also noted in dictum that findings are not required in special proceedings unless the particular statute so provides (236 Cal. App. 2d 521, 530) .

Although Taliaferro was decided prior to the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, the case is discussed in People v. Mobile Magic Sales, Inc. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12 fn. 4, 157 Cal. Rptr. 749 , which was cited for the point discussed in a later opinion interpreting the code section as amended [see Lavine v. Hospital of the Good Samaritan (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1019, 1026, 215 Cal. Rptr. 708] . Note, however, that both Mobile Magic and Lavine concerned a hearing on a preliminary injunction, while Taliaferro concerned an order on a motion. For discussion of Lavine and Mobile Magic, see § 215.26[3][b] and 215.26[4][a] respectively.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.28

§ 215.28 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Does Not Explain Factual and Legal Basis Regarding Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--In General

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE JUDGMENT CANNOT STAND [AND THE MOTION _____(FOR NEW TRIAL or TO SET ASIDE AND VACATE THE JUDGMENT AND ENTER A DIFFERENT JUDGMENT) SHOULD BE GRANTED] BECAUSE THE _____ [TRIAL COURT or REFEREE] DID NOT EXPLAIN THE FACTUAL AND LEGAL BASIS FOR HIS/HER/ITS DECISION AS TO EACH OF THE PRINCIPAL CONTROVERTED ISSUES AT TRIAL.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. No Inference That Trial Court Decided in Favor of Prevailing Party. When a statement of decision does not resolve a controverted issue, or if the statement is ambiguous and the record shows that the omission of ambiguity was brought to the attention of the trial court either prior to entry of judgment or in conjunction with a motion under Section 657 (new trial) or 663 (vacate judgment and enter different judgment) of the Code of Civil Procedure, it shall not be inferred on appeal or on a motion under Section 657 or 663 of the Code of Civil Procedure that the trial court decided in favor of the prevailing party as to those facts or on that issue (Code Civ. Proc. § 634; In re Marriage of Weinstein (1991) 4 Cal. App. 4th 555, 571, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558).

C. Lack of Finding on Material Issues Amounts to Reversible Error. If the trial court fails to make findings on material issues that would fairly disclose a determination of the basis for the trial court's judgment, the failure amounts to reversible error (Employers Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Group (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 462, 474, 167 Cal. Rptr. 296 ; Vale v. Union Bank (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 330, 340, 151 Cal. Rptr. 784).

[Optional] D. Statement of Decision Required on Reference. A reference may be ordered to try any or all of the issues in an action or proceeding, whether of fact or of law, and to report a statement of decision on the trial of the issues (see Code Civ. Proc. § 638).

[Optional] E. Request for Statement of Decision Must Include Resolution. The submission of a request for a statement of decision without a resolution is improper because it unfairly requires the trial judge not only to speculate which questions embrace ultimate rather than evidentiary facts, but also to recall the record without assistance from counsel (see People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 525, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 ; McAdams v. McElroy (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 996, 133 Cal. Rptr. 637).

[This form may be combined, when appropriate, with § 215.29.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a contention that a statement of decision is insufficient because it does not contain the factual and legal basis as to each of the principal controverted issues [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 634]. Optional Paragraph D may be used when the issue or issues was decided by a reference [see Code Civ. Proc. § 638]. Optional Paragraph E may be used when a request for a statement of decision was in effect an interrogatory that did not include a proposal for the court to adopt or reject.

The points and authorities in this form may be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.29 when counsel wishes to contend that a minute order does not constitute a statement of decision.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the trial court, after receiving an appropriate request for a statement of decision, did not explain the factual and legal basis for its decision as to each of the principal controverted issues. For example, these points and authorities may be used in support of a motion to vacate the judgment and grant a new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 634, 657] or a motion to set aside and vacate a judgment and enter a different judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 634, 663]. In either of these cases, use the optional language in brackets in the main point in capital letters to indicate which motion is being supported by the points and authorities. These points and authorities may also be used in support of objections to a proposed statement of decision or judgment. Finally, they may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that a request for a statement of decision was made, that the disputed matter constituted a principal controverted issue, and that the trial court failed to explain the factual and legal basis for its decision regarding that issue or that the statement as issued was ambiguous [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 634].

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 215.30 -215.33 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Inference That Trial Court Decided in Favor of Prevailing Party

In re Marriage of Weinstein (1991) 4 Cal. App. 4th 555, 571, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558 , involved a proceeding for dissolution of marriage in which the trial court awarded the wife a specified amount of spousal support. The husband appealed.

The court of appeal remanded for further proceedings in accordance with the views expressed in its opinion. After summarizing the trial court's findings, the court concluded that the calculation which the trial court claimed it had specifically considered in setting the amount of support was irreconcilable with the amount actually ordered (4 Cal. App. 4th 555, 571) . This may have been due to a computational error, noted the court (4 Cal. App. 4th 555, 571 n.10). Under Code Civ. Proc. § 634, when an omission from or ambiguity in a statement of decision is brought to the trial court's attention prior to entry of judgment, it shallnot be inferred on appeal that the trial court decided in favor of the prevailing party as to those facts or on that issue. Because the husband brought the discrepancy in numbers to the trial court's attention, the court remanded for the trial court to clarify its statement of decision. The court stated that it had no choice but to take that action, despite its view that the award of spousal support was well within the trial court's discretion (4 Cal. App. 4th 555, 571) .

[b] Lack of Finding on Material Issues Amounts to Reversible Error

Employers Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Group (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 462, 167 Cal. Rptr. 296 , was an action for declaratory relief regarding the possible defense and indemnification of two insurance carriers under insurance policies in connection with an accident, based on the alleged negligence of defendant insured. Defendant and cross complainant insurance carrier issued a policy to defendant insured that was effective through a certain date. Plaintiff insurance carrier issued a subsequent policy to defendant insured that became effective after the expiration of the former policy, and was in effect during the traffic accident. The facts showed that the alleged negligence of defendant insured may have occurred during the term of plaintiff's policy. The findings of fact of the trial court did not reveal the basis for its conclusion, but rather merely stated that plaintiff's policy provided coverage for the accident. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed in part and reversed in part. The court affirmed that portion of the judgment that found no liability under defendant and cross complainant insurance carrier's policy, holding that the date of the accident itself and not the causative negligence controlled under the terms of the policy. The court reversed the judgment as to plaintiff. The trial court's findings in terms of the bare ultimate fact made it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the reviewing court to ascertain the basis for the trial court's conclusion that coverage existed (109 Cal. App. 3d 462, 473) . The reviewing court must rely on the findings of fact and conclusions of law from which to glean the basis for the trial court's judgment, pursuant to the former versions of Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(e). If the trial court fails to make findings of fact on material issues that would fairly disclose the determination by the trial court, the failure amounts to reversible error (109 Cal. App. 3d 462, 473-474) .

Although Employers was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(e) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h)], the case has been cited for the point discussed in a later opinion interpreting the code sections as amended [see People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164] .

Vale v. Union Bank (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 330, 151 Cal. Rptr. 784 , was an action brought by a law firm against a bank as trustee to recover damages for breach of contract regarding a trust agreement. The trial court entered judgment in favor of plaintiffs but failed to award exemplary damages. The court failed to find on issues regarding whether defendant bank had violated its fiduciary obligations and, in the event of the violation, whether exemplary damages were appropriate. Defendant appealed from the money judgment, and plaintiffs cross appealed from that portion of the judgment that failed to award them exemplary damages.

The court of appeal affirmed as to defendant's appeal, and reversed and remanded as to plaintiff's cross appeal. The court held that the trial court's failure to find on the two protested issues requires reversal because, unless waived, express findings are required on all material issues raised by the pleadings and the evidence, and failure to find on a material issue will ordinarily constitute reversible error (88 Cal. App. 3d 330, 340) .

Although Vale was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(e) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h)], the case is discussed in Employers Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Group (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 462, 167 Cal. Rptr. 296 , which in turn was cited for the point discussed in a later opinion interpreting the code sections as amended [see People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164] .

[c] Request for Statement of Decision Must Include Resolution

The facts and procedural background of People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 , are discussed in § 215.30[3][a]. In Casa Blanca, the court of appeal held that only ultimate, rather than evidentiary, facts are required in a statement of decision. The court also held that the submission of a request without resolution is improper because it unfairly requires the trial judge not only to speculate which questions embrace ultimate rather than evidentiary facts, but also to recollect the record without assistance from counsel. The court should have guidance from the requesting party, particularly if there is evidence that would give a multiple choice in answering the interrogatory. Therefore, defendant's request of the trial court to answer interrogatories constituted an inappropriate challenge to the findings or the statement of decision. By describing the violations against defendant and aggregating them into categories, the court performed its statutory duty (159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 526) .

The facts and procedural background of McAdams v. McElroy (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 133 Cal. Rptr. 637 , are discussed in § 215.31[3][c]. In McAdams, the court held that the failure to make a finding is harmless if, under the facts of the case, the finding necessarily would have been adverse to the complaining party. The court also held that the practice of requesting the court to make findings on several subjects, without indicating what ultimate facts were established by the evidence, unfairly requires the trial judge to speculate which questions embraceultimate rather than evidentiary facts, and to search the record without counsel's assistance. The court should have guidance from the requesting party (62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 993) . The request for further or specific findings under Cal Rules of Court, Rule 232 should be phrased in terms of a finding; a question does not suffice (62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 994) .

Although McAdams was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590] , the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

Counsel should note that the holding in McAdams, decided by the First Appellate District of the Court of Appeal, is contrary to that of Morris v. Thogmartin (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 922, 105 Cal. Rptr. 919 , decided by the Fifth Appellate District of the Court of Appeal. The court in Morris held that the duty of complying with the requirement for special findings rests on the trial court, not the losing party. The opposing positions of the trial judge who has decided a cause against a party and the losing party is obvious. Interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 634, the court held that to require a losing party to guess and speculate as to the factual and legal basis of the court's position by preparing the form and content of findings is inconsistent with the purpose and history of the statute. Further, it is incongruous to require the losing party to prepare findings that the party may subsequently desire to attack in the trial court or on appeal (29 Cal. App. 3d 922, 930) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.29

§ 215.29 Supporting Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Does Not Explain Factual and Legal Basis Regarding Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--Minute Order Does Not Constitute Statement of Decision [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1590]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellate brief, and may be combined with a general contention that a statement of decision is required (see, e.g., § 215.20), or that an existing statement of decision is insufficient (see, e.g., § 215.28).]

THE MINUTE ORDER DOES NOT CONSTITUTE A STATEMENT OF DECISION BECAUSE IT FAILS TO EXPLAIN THE FACTUAL AND LEGAL BASIS FOR THE COURT'S DECISION AS TO THE PRINCIPAL CONTROVERTED ISSUES AT TRIAL.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Minute Order Does Not Constitute Statement of Decision. A minute order does not constitute a statement of decision within the meaning of Section 632 of the Code of Civil Procedure because it fails to explain the factual and legal basis for the court's decision as to the principal controverted issues at trial (Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1129, 210 Cal. Rptr. 114).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a contention that a minute order does not constitute a statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590; Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1129, 210 Cal. Rptr. 114] . Generally, a minute order is an order entered in the permanent daily minutes of the court by the court clerk, as opposed to a formal written order filed with the clerk [see Gov. Code § 69844; see, e.g., Desherow v. Rhodes (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 733, 738-739, 82 Cal. Rptr. 138] .

These points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.20 when counsel wishes to contend that a statement of decision is required after a request has been made. These points and authorities may also be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.28 when counsel wishes to contend that a statement of decision is insufficient because it does not contain the factual and legal basis as to each of the principal controverted issues.

These points and authorities may also be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a minute order does not constitute a statement of decision. For example, these points and authorities may be used to support a motion for new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 657] or a motion to vacate judgment and enter a different judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 663]. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that a request for a statement of decision was made, the trial court issued a minute order in lieu of a statement of decision, and the minute order fails to explain the factual and legal basis for the court's decision as to the principal controverted issues at trial.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions tovacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Minute Order Does Not Constitute Statement of Decision

The facts and procedural background of Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 210 Cal. Rptr. 114 , are discussed in § 215.20[3][b]. In Miramar, the court held that the trial court's failure to issue a statement of decision despite a timely request for one pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 required reversal. The court also held that a minute order does not constitute a statement of decision within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 632 (163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1129) .

139 of 147 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.30

§ 215.30 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Sufficiently Explains Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--Only Ultimate Rather Than Evidentiary Facts Required

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE STATEMENT OF DECISION SUFFICIENTLY EXPLAINS THE FACTUAL AND LEGAL BASIS AS TO EACH PRINCIPAL CONTROVERTED ISSUE BECAUSE THE TRIAL COURT IS REQUIRED ONLY TO STATE ULTIMATE, RATHER THAN EVIDENTIARY, FACTS.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Ultimate Rather Than Evidentiary Facts Required. A trial court, in rendering a statement of decision under Section 632 of the Code of Civil Procedure, is required only to state ultimate rather than evidentiary facts (Muzquiz v. City of Emeryville (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579 ; Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is insufficient because it did not contain the factual and legal basis as to each of the principal controverted issues. The ground for opposition is that the court is only required to state ultimate, not evidentiary, facts in the statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Muzquiz v. City of Emeryville (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579 ; Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural con text in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the trial court is required only to state ultimate rather than evidentiary facts. For example, the points and authorities may be used to oppose objections to a proposed statement of decision or judgment. They may also be used to oppose a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. Finally, they may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the protested findings regarded evidentiary rather than ultimate facts. Ultimate facts are the logical conclusions deduced from certain primary facts evidentiary in character. If from evidentiary facts the allegations can be reached by that process of natural reasoning adopted in the investigation of truth, they are ultimate facts [see Rhode v. Bartholomew (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 272, 279, 210 P.2d 768 ; see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints (Matthew Bender)].

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in § 215.28.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice , Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ultimate Rather Than Evidentiary Facts Required

In Muzquiz v. City of Emeryville (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579 , an employee sued her former employee for age discrimination based on elimination of her position, resulting in her termination. The trial court entered judgment for defendant following a court trial, and entered a lengthy and detailed statement of decision, finding that the employee failed to establish a prima facie case of age discrimination because she failed to demonstrate either that she was performing her job at a level that met her employer's legitimate expectations or that she was qualified for a newly created position; that assuming she had established a prima facie case, the employer articulated legitimate, nondiscriminatory, budgetary and economic reasons for its decision to terminate her position; and that she failed to carry her burden of establishing that the employer's explanation was a pretext and the real determining influence or motivating factor was age discrimination (79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1115) .

The court of appeal affirmed, finding that the trial court did not adopt an erroneous burden of proof in its statement of decision or otherwise err by addressing the ample evidence of the employee's poor job performance in the context of its discussion of the central issue of whether the employer had discriminated against the employee because of her age (79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1125) . The court found further that the statement of decision clearly addressed whether the employee had borne her burden of proving that the employer's stated reasons for eliminating her position were pretextual and actually motivated by age discrimination by setting out its express determination that she failed to prove pretext, the ultimate facts supporting that determination, and the legal basis for its decision (79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1125-1126) . The court found that the trial court was not required to address how it resolved intermediate evidentiary conflicts, or respond point by point to the various issues posed in the employee's request for a statement of decision (79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1126) .

Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801 , was an action to quiet title and for damages brought by purchasers of real property against a purported purchaser at a trustee's sale and other parties. A married couple recorded a declaration of homestead on their residence, the property in issue. The wife encumbered the property in her own name under a third deed of trust. The couple obtained an interlocutory judgment of dissolution of marriage, which awarded the property to the wife. Before the judgment became final, the beneficial ownership of the trust deed was assigned, and the trustee substituted. The new trustee began default proceedings on the property. The wife then conveyed the title by grant deed to plaintiffs. The husband moved to vacate and set aside the interlocutory judgment and final judgment in the dissolution action, which motion was granted. The new trustee conducted a trustee's sale at which he purportedly sold the property to defendant. Plaintiffs initiated the action to quiet title. The trial court issued a memorandum of intended decision that listed, among others, the following findings: that the third trust deed was void, that the foreclosure sale was improperly postponed, that the foreclosure sale was not held at the time noticed, and that the wife could transfer only her interest in the property to plaintiff. The trial court vacated the foreclosure sale and quieted title in plaintiff as to a one-half interest in the property subject to encumbrances. Defendant requested a statement of decision. The trial court adopted its memorandum of intended decision as its statement of decision, and held for plaintiff accordingly. Defendant appealed, contending, inter alia, that the trial court failed to provide a sufficient statement of decision that explained the factual and legal basis of its decision as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 632.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court's memorandum of intended decision fairly and completely set forth the factual and legal basis for the court's decision as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 632 (163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643) . The memorandum listed all the ultimate facts necessary to decide the issues placed in controversy by the pleadings and evidence, except for the status of defendant as a bona fide purchaser, which could be inferred from the court's detailed finding that the presumption of validity of the sale was overcome by the facts (163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643-644) . Citing People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 (discussed infra), the court held that a trial court, in rendering a statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632, is required to state only ultimate rather than evidentiary facts (163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643) .

People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 , was an action brought by the People to impose penalties and injunctive relief against defendant for various violations of nursing home regulations. The trial court issued a memorandum of intended ruling that found that defendant had repeatedly failed to comply with certain regulations, and enjoined defendants from committing a number of specified acts within its institutions. The memorandum enumerated categories of violations and listed the exact number of acts within each category described. Defendant filed a request for a statement of decision containing demands that the trial court answer over 75 questions and make a list of findings on evidentiary facts on issues not controverted by the pleadings. Instead of addressing defendant's questions, the trial court's statement of decision adopted in exact detail its memorandum of intended ruling. After defendant filed objections to the statement of decision, the court entered judgment for plaintiff. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that a trial court, in rendering a statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632, is required to state ultimate rather than evidentiary facts. The trial court, in listing exactly how many acts it found to haveoccurred within each category described, fairly and completely set forth the factual and legal basis for the court decision as required. It listed all the ultimate facts necessary to decide the issues placed in controversy by the pleadings. Although defendant sought to compel the trial court to make findings with regard to detailed evidentiary facts, and to make minute findings as to individual items of evidence, the court held that this type of detailed evidentiary analysis is not required by law (159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ultimate Rather Than Evidentiary Facts Required

In People v. Dollar Rent-a-Car Systems, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191 , defendants appealed a judgment and permanent injunction against them for engaging in unfair competition and making false and misleading statements. Defendants contended, among other things, that the statement of decision was deficient because it did not state with particularity the specific facts relied on by the court in making its findings. In its statement of decision, the trial court detailed the misrepresentations made by defendants' employees, expressly disapproved contractual language creating a misperception that a customer was insured, found that several hundred thousand misleading contracts were used during the period being litigated, and expressly determined that the individual defendant controlled the terms and conditions for vehicle rental and sale of the misleading provision. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the statement of decision fairly discloses the trial court's determination of all material issues of fact. The court stated that the trial court is required only to state ultimate rather than evidentiary facts and that the defendants are not entitled to detailed findings of evidentiary facts as to each individual piece of evidence relied on by the trial court (211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 128) .

In In re Cheryl E. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 587, 207 Cal. Rptr. 728 , the trial court rescinded a minor's relinquishment for adoption on grounds of fraud and undue influence, and a public agency appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that there was sufficient evidence to support the trial court's finding based on its statement of decision because the court is required to state only ultimate rather than evidentiary facts. Findings of ultimate facts necessarily include findings on all intermediate evidentiary facts necessary to sustain them (161 Cal. App. 3d 587, 599) .

The facts and procedural background of Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25 , are discussed in § 215.31[3][b]. In Kanner, the court of appeal held that when proper findings have been made on the various issues of the case, it is not necessary to negate issues contradictory to them. The court also held that findings on merely evidentiary matters are unnecessary (273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 567-568) . Although Kanner was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632 and 634, the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.31

§ 215.31 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Sufficiently Explains Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--Missing Findings Implied in Other Findings

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE STATEMENT OF DECISION SUFFICIENTLY EXPLAINS THE FACTUAL AND LEGAL BASIS AS TO EACH PRINCIPAL CONTROVERTED ISSUE BECAUSE THE MISSING FINDING(S) _____ [IS or ARE] IMPLICIT IN OTHER FINDINGS [AND _____(NEGATE ISSUES CONTRADICTORY TO THE ACTUAL FINDINGS and/or WOULD BE ADVERSE TO _____(name), THE COMPLAINING PARTY].

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Missing Finding Implied in Other Findings. The failure to make a finding on an issue raised in the pleadings is harmless error when the missing finding reasonably may be found to be implicit in other findings (Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643-644, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 527, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164).

[Optional] C. Actual Findings Impliedly Negate Proposed Findings. When proper findings have been made on the various issues of the case, it is not necessary to negate issues contradictory to them (Beaupre v. Nave (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 402, 408, 91 Cal. Rptr. 473 ; Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 566, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25).

[Optional] D. Missing Finding Adverse to Complaining Party. The failure to make a finding on an issue raised in the pleadings and supported by substantial evidence is harmless when the finding necessarily would have been adverse to the party complaining of the missing finding (Paine v. State Bd. of Equalization (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 438, 446, 187 Cal. Rptr. 47 ; McAdams v. McElroy (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 996, 133 Cal. Rptr. 637).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is insufficient because the trial court did not make a requested finding. The ground for opposition is that the missing finding may reasonably be inferred from other findings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643-644, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801] . Optional Paragraph C may be used when the missing finding contradicts one or more of the actual findings, and thus has already been negated by implication. Optional Paragraph D may be used when the missing finding necessarily would have been adverse to the protesting party.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a specific finding is not required if it is reasonably inferred from other findings. For example, these points and authorities may be used to oppose a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. These points and authorities may also be used to oppose objections to a proposed statement of decision or judgment. Finally, they may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the missing finding is reasonably implied in other findings, is negated by existing findings, or would necessarily be adverse to the complaining party.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in § 215.28.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Missing Finding Implied in Other Findings

The facts and procedural background of Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801 , are discussed in § 215.30[3][a]. In Wolfe, the court held that the trial court, in rendering a statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632, is required to state only ultimate rather than evidentiary facts. The court also held that a statement of decision need not include findings that may be inferred by the other findings (163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643-644) .

The facts and procedural background of People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 , are discussed in § 215.30[3][a]. In Casa Blanca, the court held that only ultimate, rather than evidentiary facts are required in a statement of decision. The court also held that the failure to make a finding on an issue raised in the pleadings is harmless error when the missing finding reasonably may be found to be implicit in other findings (159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 527) .

[b] Actual Findings Impliedly Negate Proposed Findings

Beaupre v. Nave (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 402, 91 Cal. Rptr. 473 , was an action brought by several unrelated plaintiffs against restaurant proprietors for damages for contraction by plaintiffs of infectious hepatitis. Defendants' son, who worked in the restaurant as a food handler, cleanup man, and dishwasher, contracted infectious hepatitis. Plaintiffs, who were frequent patrons at the restaurant, all contracted the disease within a few days of each other and, with one exception, shortly after defendants' son fell ill. Expert witnesses testified as to the probability that plaintiffs contracted the disease from defendants' son. The trial court found in favor of defendants. Plaintiffs appealed, contending that certain findings were inadequate. One of the protested findings stated that no hepatitis condition to any plaintiff, in any way or in any manner, was proximately caused by or proximately resulted from any action or inaction of defendants or defendants' agents, or any condition for which defendant was liable.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the findings adequately stated the ultimate facts, and probative or evidentiary facts supporting them were neither required nor proper (13 Cal. App. 3d 402, 407) . Moreover, when proper findings have been made on the various issues of a case, it is not necessary to negate issues contradictory to them. The finding on a particular issue is an implied negation of all contradictory propositions (13 Cal. App. 3d 402, 408) .

Although Beaupre was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632 and 634, the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25 , was an action brought by a lessor against a lessee for failure to deliver the premises, damages for waste and loss of rental, and for attorney's fees. Plaintiff leased to defendant certain commercial premises. The lease provided that the lessee had inspected the premises and acknowledged that they were in goodcondition at the time the agreement was made. The parties disagreed as to the extent of the damage, whether the damage preexisted the agreement, and whether the condition of the premises was attributable to ordinary use and wear. Evidence at trial showed that vandalism had occurred after the expiration of the lease, that deterioration of the premises was caused by factors not involving defendant, and that many repairs made by plaintiff after the expiration of the lease were unnecessary. The trial court found that defendant, with certain exceptions, maintained the premises in good order and repair, and surrendered them appropriately. Plaintiff appealed, contending, inter alia, that the judgment was not supported by proper findings; and that the trial court erred in failing to hold a hearing on objections to the court's findings and in refusing to make special findings (no findings were made with respect to many particular items of repair).

The court of appeal affirmed, noting that the trial court found that defendant breached the lease in certain enumerated instances only, and in no others. The court also found that plaintiff suffered no other damage to the premises attributable to defendant's occupancy during the term of the lease. The court held that it was obvious that the enumeration of certain particulars to the exclusion of all others obviated the necessity of specifically negating every other item of repair claimed by plaintiff. A specific finding is not required on an issue when it follows by necessary implication from a general finding. Moreover, when proper findings have been made on the various issues of the case, it is not necessary to negate issues contradictory to them. The finding on a particular issue is an implied negation of all contradictory propositions (273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 566) .

Although Kanner was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632 and 634, the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

[c] Missing Finding Adverse to Complaining Party

Paine v. State Bd. of Equalization (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 438, 187 Cal. Rptr. 47 , was an action brought by plaintiff-taxpayers against a state board to obtain a refund of sales tax paid under protest. Plaintiffs contended, among other things, that the sales at issue were made pursuant to exemption certificates, which shifted any liability for taxation to the purchasers. Plaintiffs requested findings on two allegedly material issues regarding the shifting of tax liability to purchasers who had falsely claimed an exemption. The trial court failed to make the requested findings, and held against plaintiffs, concluding that plaintiffs failed to carry the burden of proving their entitlement to the claimed exemption. Plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the requested findings were not relevant because the trial court concluded that plaintiffs failed to carry the burden of proving their entitlement to the claimed exemptions, and that the presumption of taxable sales and the responsibility for paying that tax remained on the plaintiffs as taxpayer-sellers. A finding regarding the shifting of liability to purchasers who falsely claim an exemption was therefore unnecessary, and would have been adverse to plaintiffs in any event. The failure to make an express finding is not prejudicial error if the findings actually made are sufficient to support the judgment, and the findings would necessarily have been adverse to the protesting party (137 Cal. App. 3d 438, 446) .

Although Paine was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 634, the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

McAdams v. McElroy (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 133 Cal. Rptr. 637 , was an action brought by former partners to quiet title to certain timber property that was subject of the partnership dissolution, and for declaratory relief. Two groups of partners dissolved the partnership and distributed its assets between them, taking into account that a third party purportedly owned an interest in some of the property's timber. Subsequently, one group of partners filed the quiet title action and obtained from the third party a relinquishment of all its claims to the property. The remaining group of partners filed an answer and cross complaint in the action, referring to the dissolution agreement and the deeds executed in connection with it. Cross complainants alleged mutual mistake of law and fact with respect to the third party's interest, and asserted that the deeds conveyed to plaintiffs a greater interest in the partnership assets than both groups of partners intended. After trial, the court rendered its memorandum of opinion, finding, among other things, that (1) cross complainants at the time of dissolution did not believe that the third party owned the interest in issue; (2) cross complainants agreed to give plaintiffs the property in dispute in order to effect the division of assets; and (3) there was no mutual mistake of fact or law in the execution of the agreement. Cross complainants filed objections to plaintiffs' proposed findings, and requested numerous specific findings, without suggesting the substance of those findings. The trial court held for plaintiffs. Cross complainants appealed, contending that the findings were inadequate because the court failed to find on specific requested issues, e.g., whether plaintiffs treated the timber on the disputed property as an asset of the partnership subject to distribution.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the trial court's findings (e.g., that the timber in issue was not an undivided asset of the partnership) addressed complainants' requests, and were supported by substantial evidence. Moreover, the findings were adverse to cross complainant, and a refusal to make any further finding can in no way be an error (62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 1000) . The failure to make a finding is harmless if, under the facts of the case, the finding necessarily would have been adverse to the complaining party (62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 996) .

Although McAdams was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632 and 634 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rulesof Ct., Rule 3.1590] , the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Missing Finding Implied in Other Findings

The facts and procedural background of McAdams v. McElroy (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 133 Cal. Rptr. 637 , are discussed in § 215.31[3][c]. In McAdams, the court held that the failure to make a finding is harmless if, under the facts of the case, the finding necessarily would have been adverse to the complaining party. The court also held that the failure to make a finding on an issue raised in the pleadings and supported by substantial evidence is harmless if the missing finding reasonably may be found to be implicit in other findings (62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 996) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.32

§ 215.32 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Sufficiently Explains Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--One Clear, Sustained, and Sufficient Finding Supports Judgment

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE STATEMENT OF DECISION SUFFICIENTLY EXPLAINS THE FACTUAL AND LEGAL BASIS AS TO EACH PRINCIPAL CONTROVERTED ISSUE BECAUSE THERE IS AT LEAST ONE CLEAR, SUSTAINED, AND SUFFICIENT FINDING ON WHICH THE JUDGMENT RESTS.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20, Paragraph A.]

B. One Clear, Sustained, and Sufficient Finding Supports Judgment. However inconclusive any number of the findings may be, if in any case there is at least one clear, sustained, and sufficient finding on which the judgment may rest, every presumption being in favor of the judgment, it will be concluded that the court rested its judgment on that finding or findings, and the others will be disregarded (Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 584, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 ; Republic Indemnity Co. v. Empire Builders Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 1167, 213 Cal. Rptr. 787).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is insufficient because certain findings are inconclusive. The ground for opposition is that there is at least one clear, sustained, and sufficient finding on which the judgment rests [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 584, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that there is at least one sufficient finding on which the judgment rests. For example, these points and authorities may be used to oppose a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. These points and authorities may also be used to oppose objections to a proposed statement of decision or judgment. Finally, they may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss one or more findings and show that it is clear, sustained, and sufficient, and supports the judgment.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in § 215.28.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] One Clear, Sustained, and Sufficient Finding Supports Judgment

Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 , was an action brought by beneficiaries of mutual wills against the surviving testator for specific performance, to declare a trust, and for an accounting. Testators, husband and wife, executed mutual wills under which all property of the first to die should go to the survivor, and all property of the survivor should go one half to the named relatives of each of them. The husband died, leaving all his property to his wife. She married, and transferred all her property to herself and her husband in joint tenancy. Plaintiffs, named beneficiaries under the mutual wills, brought an action against the surviving testator and her husband. The trial court found, inter alia,that there was an enforceable oral agreement between the wife and decedent to make mutual wills and that neither of them could, after the death of the other, change the named beneficiaries or in any way deprive them of the benefits of the agreement. The trial court entered a judgment impressing a trust for plaintiffs' benefit on all property owned by the wife, and on all property owned by both defendants in joint tenancy. Plaintiffs appealed from certain portions of the judgment that did not afford them all the relief requested. Defendants appealed, protesting findings concerning the relative value of the testators' property when they married, the character of property acquired during the marriage, and, consequently, the fairness of the mutual wills to the wife.

The Supreme Court affirmed, holding that the record as a whole supported a finding that all property acquired by testators during their marriage was community in character. Although the finding that decedent's property was of greater value than the wife's was overturned, that finding was not necessary to support the further finding of fairness of the agreement to the wife (53 Cal. 2d 567, 584-585) . The Court held that however lame or inconclusive any number of the findings may be, if in any case there is one clear, sustained, and sufficient finding on which the judgment may rest, every presumption being in favor of the judgment, it will be concluded that the court did rest its judgment on that finding, or those findings, and that the others may and will be disregarded (53 Cal. 2d 567, 584) .

Although Brewer was decided prior to the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, the case has been cited for the point discussed in a later opinion interpreting the code sections as amended [see Republic Indemnity Co. v. Empire Builders Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 1167, 213 Cal. Rptr. 787] .

Republic Indemnity Co. v. Empire Builders Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 213 Cal. Rptr. 787 , was an action brought by a worker's compensation insurer against an insured to recover damages for insured's default in premium payments on its policy. Plaintiff issued a worker's compensation insurance policy to defendant, and thereafter issued renewals of the same policy. The policy provided that the insured could participate in the earnings of the insurer represented by surplus accumulated from premiums, subject to certain terms and conditions. Pursuant to one condition, no dividend was payable if any part of the premium for the policy, or immediate renewal of it, remained unpaid. Defendant became in substantial default in premium payments, and plaintiff ultimately cancelled the policy. At trial, defendant asserted in its answer and cross complaint an offset against delinquent premium payments for dividends claimed under the policy provision. The trial court held for plaintiff, finding, among other things, that pertinent policy provisions were reasonable and proper and in accordance with California law, and did not constitute a forfeiture or an unjust enrichment of plaintiff. Further, defendant's breach of the policy provisions abrogated defendant's right to dividends. Defendant appealed, contending that the trial court's statement of decision did not explain the factual and legal basis for its decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at the trial.

The court of appeal affirmed, holding that under Code Civ. Proc. § 632 the trial court's statement of decision need do no more than give reasons that state the grounds on which the judgment rests. The trial court's finding regarding the reasonableness of the pertinent policy provisions and lack of forfeiture or unjust enrichment sufficiently stated grounds supporting the judgment. A statement of ultimate, not evidentiary, facts is all that has ever been required. Citing Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 (discussed above), the court held that however lame or inconclusive any findings may be, if there is one clear, sustained, and sufficient finding on which the judgment may rest, it will be concluded that the court did rest its judgment on that finding, and the others may be disregarded (167 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 1167) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] One Clear, Sustained, and Sufficient Finding Supports Judgment

In Bauer v. Bauer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377 , at the conclusion of a trial for corporate dissolution, the trial court issued a tentative decision concluding that plaintiffs had not proven that they were entitled to dissolution. Plaintiffs then requested a formal statement of decision with specific findings on 21 subjects. The trial court's statement of decision essentially restated the tentative decision. On appeal plaintiffs contended that the trial court erred in not making the requested findings. The court of appeal found no merit in this contention, stating that the statement of decision addressed the substance of all the matters raised by plaintiffs. The trial court is not required to make an express finding of fact on every factual matter controverted at trial, as long as the statement of decision sufficiently disposes of all the basic issues in the case (46 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1118) . The trial court judgment was thus affirmed.

In Day v. Rosenthal (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 217 Cal. Rptr. 89 , an action for damages for legal malpractice, breach of duty, fraud, and abuse of process, the trial court made findings that set out with precision each material fact in issue. Defendant appealed, contending that the findings did not disclose the basis for the court's determination and that they raised more questions than they answered. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that however unsupported or inconclusive some findings may be, a judgment must be affirmed if there is at least one clear finding sustained by the evidence (170 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1161) . Although Day was tried prior to the 1981 amendments to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590] , the case appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended.

In Kreisa v. Stoddard (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 627, 274 P.2d 164 , an action to recover the balance owing on a conditional sales contract, the trial court held forplaintiff, and made a finding, over defendant's objection, concerning proof of defendant's oral promise to pay the deficiency. Defendant appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that however unsupported or inconclusive any number of findings may be, if there is at least one clear, sustained, and sufficient finding on which the judgment may rest, every presumption being in favor of the judgment, it will be concluded on appeal that the court rested its judgment on that finding, and the others will be disregarded (127 Cal. App. 2d 627, 633) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.33

§ 215.33 Opposing Contention That Statement of Decision Is Insufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]--Statement of Decision Sufficiently Explains Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634]--Requested Finding Concerns Immaterial Issues

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE TRIAL COURT NEED NOT MAKE THE REQUESTED FINDING BECAUSE IT REGARDS AN IMMATERIAL ISSUE, AND THE JUDGMENT IS OTHERWISE SUPPORTED WITHOUT THE REQUESTED FINDING.

A. Failure to Find on Immaterial Issue. In rendering a statement of decision, a trial court's failure to find on an immaterial issue is not error (People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 ; Lynch v. Cook (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1080, 196 Cal. Rptr. 544).

B. Judgment Otherwise Supported. A court's failure to make a particular finding is harmless error if the judgment is otherwise supported and the evidence is not sufficient to sustain a finding in favor of the complaining party that would countervail or destroy other findings (People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 ; McAdams v. McElroy (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 996, 133 Cal. Rptr. 637).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a statement of decision is insufficient. The ground for opposition is that the requested finding regards immaterial issues, and that the judgment is otherwise supported [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632; People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that the trial court is not required to make findings regarding immaterial issues, and that a judgment is otherwise supported. For example, these points and authorities may be used to oppose objections to a proposed statement of decision or judgment. They may also be used to oppose a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. Finally, they may be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the requested finding regards an immaterial issue. Counsel should also specify evidence that supports the judgment.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in § 215.28.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Find on Immaterial Issue

The facts and procedural background of People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 , are discussed in § 215.30[3][a]. In Casa Blanca, the court of appeal held that only ultimate, rather than evidentiary, facts are required in a statement of decision. The court also held that failure to find on an immaterial issue is not error (159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524) . Defendant's request constituted an inquisition and a rehearing of the evidence, and the trial court was not required to provide specific answers so long as the findings in the statement of decision fairly disclosed the court's determination of all material issues (159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 525) .

Lynch v. Cook (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 196 Cal. Rptr. 544 , was an action brought by a former minority shareholder and director of a corporation against the majority shareholder, another minority shareholder, and their financial advisor for damages and rescission of a tender offer and stock sale on grounds of fraud,negligent misrepresentation, breach of duty, conspiracy, and violations of other state and federal laws. The minority shareholder defendant made a tender offer to buy all outstanding shares tendered on or before a certain date at a certain price; and eventually purchased all plaintiff's shares at the quoted price. Subsequently, the corporation's board of directors authorized the purchase of all the tender offer shares, and plaintiff was removed from the board. The corporation then deregistered with the Securities and Exchange Commission. The trial court made, among others, the following findings: there was no concealment of a material fact; plaintiff did not enter into any agreement concerning the effect of the stock sale; plaintiff did not rely on the minority shareholder's omission to disclose that he was in effect acting on behalf of the majority shareholder; and no breach of fiduciary duty resulted. The trial court granted defendant's motion for judgment. Plaintiff appealed, contending that the trial court committed reversible error by failing to rule on certain material issues.

The court of appeal affirmed, noting that a material issue is one that is relevant and essential to the judgment, and closely and directly related to the trial court's determination of the ultimate issues in the case (148 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1080) . The court held that the trial court's findings clearly addressed all plaintiff's requested findings except for the issue of the standard of materiality, which was unnecessary to the court's decision (148 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1080-1081)

. A trial court does not commit reversible error for failure to address a requested finding that is surplus to the court's decision and related to mere evidentiary matters (148 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1080) .

Although Lynch was tried in 1982, the case cites Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632 and 634 as they existed prior to the amendments enacted by 1981 legislation. However, Lynch appears to be in line with case law interpreting the sections as amended by 1981 legislation.

[b] Judgment Otherwise Supported

The facts and procedural background of People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 , are discussed in § 215.30[3][a]. In Casa Blanca, the court of appeal held that only ultimate, rather than evidentiary, facts are required in a statement of decision. Moreover, a court's failure to make a finding on a particular matter is harmless error if the judgment is otherwise supported, unless the evidence is sufficient to sustain a finding in favor of the complaining party and would countervail or destroy other findings (159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524) .

The facts and procedural background of McAdams v. McElroy (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 133 Cal. Rptr. 637 , are discussed in § 215.31[3][c]. In McAdams, the court held that the failure to make a finding is harmless if, under the facts of the case, the finding necessarily would have been adverse to the complaining party. The court also held that omission to make a finding, if the judgment is otherwise supported, is harmless error unless the evidence is sufficient to sustain a finding in favor of the complaining party that would have the effect of countervailing or destroying other findings (62 Cal. App. 3d 985, 996) .

Although McAdams was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632 and 634 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590] , the case has been cited for the point discussed in a later opinion interpreting the code sections as amended [see People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164] .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Find on Immaterial Issue

In Midwest Television, Inc. v. Scott, Lancaster, Mills & Atha, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 442, 252 Cal. Rptr. 573 , the issue was whether the defendant advertising agency was liable on a contract for television advertising time that it had entered into on behalf of a client who later went bankrupt. The trial court found the defendant liable, accepting that the industry custom was that an agency was liable on such contracts unless it gave notice of its nonliability. Among the grounds alleged on appeal, the defendant challenged the sufficiency of the statement of decision because it failed to find whether defendant had acted as an agent for a disclosed principal. The appellate court affirmed, holding that the finding was neither relevant nor essential to the judgment. Liability was established by the custom and by the failure of the agency to give notice of its nonliability. That the agency was acting on behalf of a disclosed principal advertiser was obvious, but of no material significance with regard to its own liability (205 Cal. App. 3d 442, 457-458) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.34

§ 215.34 Supporting Contention That Presiding Judge May Sign Formal Judgment or Order Conforming to Minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 635]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE JUDGMENT IS VALID BECAUSE THE PRESIDING JUDGE PROPERLY SIGNED THE _____ [FORMAL JUDGMENT or ORDER] CONFORMING TO THE DECISION OF THE COURT AS ENTERED IN ITS MINUTES, AND THE JUDGE WHO HEARD OR TRIED THE CASE IS UNAVAILABLE.

Formal Judgment or Order Signed by Presiding Judge. In all cases whenthe decision of the court has been entered in its minutes, and when the judge who heard or tried the case is unavailable, the formal judgment or order conforming to the minutes may be signed by the presiding judge of the court or by a judge designated by the presiding judge (Code Civ. Proc. § 635).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a contention that a final judgment is valid if the presiding judge signed the formal judgment or order conforming to the decision as previously entered in the minutes and the judge who heard or tried the case is unavailable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 635]. Counsel should be aware of Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552 (discussed in § 215.35[3][b]), which states that Code Civ. Proc. § 635 authorizes the signing of a formal judgment by the presiding judge only if (1) no statement of decision has been requested or (2) the judge who has heard the evidence has already provided the parties with a statement of decision on their request.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a final judgment conforming to the minutes entered by the trial court and signed by the presiding judge is a valid final judgment. For example, these points and authorities may be used to oppose a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. They may also be adapted for use in an appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the judge who heard the evidence entered its decision in the minutes, that the judge who heard the evidence is now unavailable, and that the formal judgment or order signed by the presiding judge conformed to the minutes entered by the trial court.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 371, Motions After Trial (Matthew Bender).

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[d] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 215.35 and 215.36 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.35

§ 215.35 Opposing Contention That Presiding Judge May Sign Formal Judgment or Order Conforming to Minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 635]--Judge Who Heard Evidence Did Not Sign Statement of Decision or Final Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE JUDGMENT SHOULD BE SET ASIDE BECAUSE THE JUDGE WHO HEARD THE EVIDENCE DID NOT SIGN THE STATEMENT OF DECISION OR FINAL JUDGMENT, AND THE PARTIES DID NOT FILE AN AGREED STATEMENT OF DECISION NOR WAIVE THE FILING OF A STATEMENT OF DECISION.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. No Agreed Findings Filed or Waiver of Findings. No proper judgment can be entered when the judge who heard the evidence is unavailable, unless the parties file agreed findings or waive the filing of findings (Mace v. O'Reilley (1886) 70 Cal. 231, 234, 11 P 721 ; Swift v. Daniels (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 263, 265-266, 162 Cal. Rptr. 863).

C. Signature of Judge Who Heard Evidence Required. The presiding judge does not have the authority to sign his or her own findings on the basis of a partial transcript of the trial, the minutes, and the parties' respective proposed findings because to do so would deprive the parties of their right to a statement of decision from the judge who heard the evidence (Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a final judgment is valid when the presiding judge signed the formal judgment or order conforming to minutes. The ground for opposition is that the parties did not file agreed findings nor waive the filing of findings, and the judge who heard the evidence has not submitted his or her statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 635; Mace v. O'Reilley (1886) 70 Cal. 231, 234, 11 P 721] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authoritiespertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that no valid judgment can be entered when the judge who heard the evidence is unavailable, unless the parties file agreed findings or waive the filing of findings. For example, these points and authorities may be used in support of a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the judge who heard the evidence did not sign a statement of decision or the final judgment, the parties neither filed an agreed statement of decision nor waived the filing of a statement of decision, and the presiding judge's signing of the statement of decision was not based on evidence heard by him or her.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in § 215.34.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Agreed Findings Filed or Waiver of Findings

Mace v. O'Reilley (1886) 70 Cal. 231, 11 P 721 , was an action to recover damages for malicious prosecution. After the court trial, the judge entered an order for judgment for damages in a lesser amount than prayed. No findings were filed or waived, and no final judgment entered. The term of the judge who heard the case expired, and a different judge entered the judgment on the former judge's order. Plaintiffs filed a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. The trial court granted the motion on the ground that findings had not been filed nor waived. Defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed, holding that no valid judgment was entered by the trial judge because an order for judgment is not a final judgment. When the judge who heard the evidence went out of office, the trial was incomplete, and no proper judgment could be entered. A new trial therefore was inevitable, unless agreed findings were filed or waived by both sides to the controversy (70 Cal. 231, 234) .

Although Mace was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632-635, the case has been specifically cited as still controlling law for the point discussed [see Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552] .

Swift v. Daniels (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 263, 162 Cal. Rptr. 863 , was an action to quiet title to real property. After trial, the trial court made its intended decision to enter judgment in defendant and cross complainant's favor. The trial judge became incapacitated, and the presiding judge signed formal findings of fact and conclusions of law (purportedly in conformity with the trial judge's statement of intended decision) under the authority of Code Civ. Proc. § 635 (signing of judgment or order by presiding judge when trial judge unavailable). Counsel for defendant contended that both parties' counsel agreed on the findings signed by the presiding judge. Counsel for plaintiff contended that he disagreed with some of the findings, and did not agree with any of the conclusions. Plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 635 is inapplicable because findings were not waived, and the court's notice of intended decision was, by definition, not binding on the court, pursuant to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(a) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a)-(c)]. Citing Mace v. O'Reilley (1886) 70 Cal. 231, 11 P. 721 (discussed above), the court held that a new trial is inevitable, unless agreed findings were filed or waived by both sides to the controversy (103 Cal. App. 3d 263, 265) .

Although Swift was decided prior to the 1981 amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 635 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(a) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a)-(c)] , the case has been specifically cited as still controlling law for the point discussed [see Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552] .

[b] Signature of Judge Who Heard Evidence Required

Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552 , was an action for a partnership accounting. Plaintiff and defendant entered into an oral partnership agreement whereby plaintiff was to provide money to purchase real estate, defendant was to build a house thereon, and both parties were to split the profits on its sale. The parties failed to sell the house after completion, and plaintiff occupied the premises and made improvements to it. Plaintiff filed an action to dissolve the partnership and have an accounting. The trial court dissolved the partnership, provided a formula for an accounting, ordered defendant to pay plaintiff a certain sum of money, and determined the nature of certain expenditures. The court orally announced tentative findings that were entered in the minutes. Defendant requested findings of fact and conclusions of law(although the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 regarding a statement of decision was effective prior to the trial date). The court subsequently directed plaintiff to prepare findings. The trial judge retired, and the parties filed findings and counterfindings with the presiding judge. The presiding judge signed settled findings of fact and conclusions of law (presumably based on the trial judge's tentative findings), signed the judgment in favor of plaintiff, and denied defendant's motion for a new trial. Defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed, holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 635, as amended, authorizes the signing of a formal judgment by the presiding judge only if (1) no statement of decision has been requested or (2) the judge who has heard the evidence has already provided the parties with a statement of decision on their request. Therefore, Code Civ. Proc. § 635 does not authorize the presiding judge to sign his or her own findings on the basis of a partial transcript of the trial, the minutes, and the parties' respective proposed findings, because to do so would deprive the parties of their right to a statement of decision from the judge who had heard their evidence (157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.36

§ 215.36 Opposing Contention That Presiding Judge May Sign Formal Judgment or Order Conforming to Minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 635]--Tentative Decision Not Binding on Court [Cal Rules of Court, Rule 3.1590(b)]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE JUDGMENT SHOULD BE SET ASIDE BECAUSE IT WAS ENTERED BY THE PRESIDING JUDGE AND IS BASED SOLELY ON THE TENTATIVE RULING OF THE TRIAL JUDGE, WHO IS NO LONGER AVAILABLE.

A. When Statement of Decision Is Required Explaining Factual and Legal Basis as to Each Principal Controverted Issue. [See § 215.20[1], Paragraph A.]

B. Tentative Decision Not Binding. A tentative decision does not constitute a judgment and is not binding on the court (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(b)).

C. No Legal Judgment Based on Tentative Decision. No legal judgment can be entered by a presiding judge who signs findings and a final judgment on the basis of the trial judge's tentative ruling (Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that the presiding judge entered a valid judgment if the presiding judge signed findings and a final judgment based on the trial judge's tentative ruling [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 635; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(b); Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552] .

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that no legal judgment can be entered by a presiding judge who signs findings and a final judgment on the basis of the trial court's tentative ruling. For example, these points and authorities may be used in support of a motion to vacate the judgment and for a new trial. They may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the trial court's decision was tentative, and that the presiding judge who signed the findings and final judgment did not hear the evidence.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to the contentions supported by the points and authorities set out in § 215.34.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial in that publication.

[c] Related Memoranda

For points and authorities for use in motions for new trial and motions to vacate judgments, see Ch. 155, Motions After Trial .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Legal Judgment Based on Tentative Decision

The facts and procedural background of Armstrong v. Picquelle (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 203 Cal. Rptr. 552 , are discussed in § 215.35[3][b]. In Armstrong, the court of appeal held that Code Civ. Proc. § 635 does not authorize the presiding judge to sign his or her own findings on the basis of a partial transcript of the trial, the minutes, and the parties' respective proposed findings because to do so would deprive the parties of their right to a statement of decision from the judge who had heard their evidence. The statute does not authorize the presiding judge to enter a formal judgment whenever the judge who has heard the evidence has orally entered a tentative decision or tentative findings in theminutes. To interpret Code Civ. Proc. § 635 to allow a presiding judge to enter judgment on the basis of a tentative decision entered in the minutes would strip the parties of their right, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, to a statement of decision after the trial judge's tentative ruling (157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 127) . Further, to allow entry of judgment by a presiding judge on the basis of a tentative ruling by a nonavailable trial judge would wrest from the parties the right to have the judge who hears the evidence decide the case (157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 127-128) . Pursuant to former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(a) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(b)] , the trial court's tentative decision, made by oral statement entered in the minutes, was not binding on the court. No legal judgment could be entered by the presiding judge on the basis of the trial judge's tentative ruling. The court concluded that the judgment could not stand, and a new trial was required (157 Cal. App. 3d 122, 128) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.37

§ 215.37 Supporting Contention That Reviewing Court May Make Factual Determinations Contrary to or in Addition to Those Made by Trial Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 909; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.252, 8.54]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE REVIEWING COURT MAY MAKE FACTUAL DETERMINATIONS CONTRARY TO OR IN ADDITION TO THOSE MADE BY THE TRIAL COURT BECAUSE _____ [THERE WAS NO RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL OR TRIAL BY JURY WAS WAIVED].

A. Additional or Contrary Factual Determination by Reviewing Court. In all cases when trial by jury is not a matter of right or when trial by jury has been waived, the reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court. The factual determinations may be based on the evidence adduced before the trial court either with or without the taking of evidence by the reviewing court. The reviewing court may, for the purpose of making the factual determinations or for any other purpose in the interests of justice, take additional evidence of or concerning facts occurring at any time prior to the decision of the appeal, and may give or direct the entry of any judgment or order and may make any further or other order as the case may require (Code Civ. Proc. § 909).

B. Request for Findings by Reviewing Court. A request that the reviewing court make findings of fact must include proposed findings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252(b)].

[Optional] C. Application for Production of Additional Evidence on Appeal. A party may move that the reviewing court take evidence [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252(c)(1)]. An order granting the motion must state the issues on which evidence will be taken, specify whether the court, a justice, or a special master or referee will take the evidence, and give notice of the time and place for taking the evidence [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252(c)(2)]. For documentary evidence, a party may offer the original, a certified copy, or a photocopy. The court may admit the document in evidence without a hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252(c)(3); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54 (procedure for motions in appellate court)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a contention that a reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court after a trial in which trial by jury was either precluded or waived [see Code Civ. Proc. § 909; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252]. Optional Paragraph C is for use when counsel wishes to introduce additional evidence on appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252(c)]. The application to produce additional evidence must be accompanied by a memorandum , and by a declaration or other supporting evidence if the motion is based on matters not appearing of record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54(a)].

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court after a trial in which trial by jury was either precluded or waived. These points and authorities may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that the proposed factual determinations are contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court, and that trial by jury was either precluded or waived.

[b] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 215.38 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to requests for factual determinations andmotions for the production of evidence in a reviewing court, and written opposition to such requests and motions, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision in that publication.

147 of 147 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 215 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. FORMS

21-215 California Points & Authorities § 215.38

§ 215.38 Opposing Contention That Reviewing Court May Make Factual Determinations Contrary to or in Addition to Those Made by Trial Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 909; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.252, 8.54]--Proposed Findings Would Not Constitute Basis for Affirmance or Reversal of Judgment

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum or in a trial or appellate brief, and may be combined, when appropriate, with the points and authorities in § 215.38.]

THE REVIEWING COURT SHOULD NOT MAKE FACTUAL DETERMINATIONS CONTRARY TO OR IN ADDITION TO THOSE MADE BY THE TRIAL COURT BECAUSE THE PROPOSED FINDINGS WOULD NOT CONSTITUTE A BASIS FOR AFFIRMANCE OR REVERSAL OF THE JUDGMENT.

Purpose of Findings to Affirm or Reverse Judgment With Directions on Remand. The power granted by Section 909 of the Code of Civil Procedure and Rule 8.252 of the California Rules of Court to make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court is to be exercised sparingly. As a general rule, it should be exercised only when the purpose of the new findings would constitute a basis for an affirmance of the judgment or a basis for reversal of the judgment with directions to the trial court to enter judgment for appellants (Tupman v. Haberkern (1929) 208 Cal. 256, 269, 280 P 970 ; De Angeles v. Roos Bros., Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 434, 443, 52 Cal. Rptr. 783).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a contention that a reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court. The ground for opposition is that the proposed findings would not constitute a basis for affirmance of the judgment or reversal of the judgment with directions to the trial court to enter judgment for appellant [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 909; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252; Tupman v. Haberkern (1929) 208 Cal. 256, 269, 280 P 970] .

The points and authorities in this form may be combined with the points and authorities in § 215.38 when counsel wishes to contend that a reviewing court may not make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court, on the ground that the trial court did not make findings and the evidence is in conflict.

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities pertaining to the specific procedural context in which counsel wishes to raise the issue that a reviewing court may not exercise an independent review of the record and reweigh the evidence absent exceptional circumstances.

Counsel should insert argument in this form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Therefore, counsel should discuss facts showing that there are no exceptional circumstances justifying fact finding by the reviewing court. Counsel should show that the purpose of the new findings would not constitute a basis for either an affirmance or reversal of the judgment.

In an appropriate case, these points and authorities may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities set out in § 215.37.

[b] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For forms relating to procedures for obtaining a statement of decision generally, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 529, Statement of Decision (Matthew Bender). For forms relating to requests for factual determinations and motions for the production of evidence in a reviewing court, and written opposition to such requests and motions, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision in that publication.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Purpose of Findings to Affirm or Reverse Judgment With Directions on Remand

Tupman v. Haberkern (1929) 208 Cal. 256, 280 P 970 , was an action to compel accounting of profits received by defendants in a transaction involving royalties from the lease of oil lands. Plaintiffs and defendants entered into an agreement to acquire an interest in certain mining claims, and agreed to leave record title to the land in the owner until all patent applications to the federal government were concluded. The record owner executed a grant deed conveying interest in the property to plaintiffs and defendants. Defendants ultimately obtained an abandonment by the owner of record of a pending application for patents, and executed a conveyance of the land to the federal government. The federal government leased a portion of the property to an oil company, in consideration for which the company paid royalties on oil production to the record owner and defendants. Plaintiffs contended that defendants conspired to defraud plaintiffs, and that the lease was obtained pursuant to an initial joint venture between plaintiffs and defendants. Defendants contended, inter alia, that plaintiffshad abandoned their interest in the lands and in the enterprise, and therefore had no interest in the lease proceeds. After trial, the trial judge resigned from office before rendering his decision. On stipulation of the parties, the presiding judge decided the matter and found for defendants. Plaintiffs appealed, contending that the evidence was insufficient to support the findings. Plaintiffs argued that when a record is presented for decision to a trial judge who has not seen the witnesses nor heard their testimony, the reviewing court must also determine whether the trial court was justified in giving weight and credibility to the evidence.

The Supreme Court affirmed. Interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 956a (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 909), the Court noted that prior to the enactment of the statute, it was firmly established that an appellate tribunal possessed none of the functions of a jury, and that the sole province of the court on appeal was to review the action of the trial court, correct its errors, and therefore pass on questions of law only (208 Cal. 256, 262) . It was not the intention of the statute that the reviewing courts should develop generally into trial courts. Rather, it was contemplated that the appellate courts would exercise the new power sparingly and, as a general rule, would exercise it only when the purpose of the new findings was to constitute a basis for an affirmance of the judgment, or a basis for a reversal of the judgment with directions to the trial court to enter a judgment for the appellant (208 Cal. 256, 269) . The primary and principal purpose of the exception is to enable the reviewing courts to make contrary or additional findings on the record presented or on new evidence taken, and thereby affirm or modify the judgment and terminate the litigation. When the judgment appealed from must be reversed and a new trial is ordered (either pursuant to a general order or reversal or a specific remanding of the cause for a new trial), findings of fact by the reviewing court become inappropriate and unauthorized. When the judgment appealed from is reversed and the trial court directed to enter a judgment for the appellant, the reviewing court may make findings in support of the judgment to be entered, but the power should be exercised with caution, and only when it may be declared, as a matter of law, that the respondent could not make a substantial showing in support of his or her cause if a new trial were held, or that the respondent could not, or should not in the interests of justice, make a further showing on retrial (208 Cal. 256, 269-270) . The Court found, accordingly, that the judgment was supported by the record, and that whatever joint enterprise existed initially had been abandoned long before the lease was executed. Moreover, the evidence was insufficient to support the finding that the defendants were not guilty of any fraud (208 Cal. 256, 278) .

Although Tupman was decided prior to the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 909, the case is discussed in De Angeles v. Roos Bros., Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 434, 443, 52 Cal. Rptr. 783 , which was cited for the point discussed in Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 13, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65 . Tyrone is discussed in People v. Coyer (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 839, 845, 191 Cal. Rptr. 376 , which interpreted the code section as amended for the point discussed.

De Angeles v. Roos Bros., Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 434, 52 Cal. Rptr. 783 , was an action to recover damages for breach of an employment contract. The parties entered into a written agreement to employ plaintiff as executive vice president of defendant clothing corporation for a period of 10 years at a certain salary. Four years later, plaintiff became ill, and was unable to participate in an important buying trip. A couple months thereafter, according to plaintiff, the chairman of the board expressed concern for plaintiff's health, and suggested that plaintiff need not participate in the current buying trip. Plaintiff contended that the chairman of the board did not order him not to go on the trip. Evidence indicated that relations between plaintiff and the chairman of the board were deteriorating. Plaintiff made the trip. Shortly thereafter, the chairman of the board discharged plaintiff for failure to follow his instructions not to make the trip. The trial court found that plaintiff's discharge was wrongful and without just or adequate cause, and that plaintiff had unsuccessfully sought employment comparable to that with defendant. Defendant appealed.

Although De Angeles was decided prior to the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 909, the case is discussed in Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 13, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65 , which was cited for the point discussed in Jacobs v. State Bd. of Optometry (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1034 , 147 Cal. Rtpr. 225. Jacobs is discussed in People v. Coyer (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 839, 845, 191 Cal. Rptr. 376 , which interpreted the code section as amended for the point discussed.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Purpose of Findings to Affirm or Reverse Judgment With Directions on Remand

In Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65 , an action to recover a finder's fee regarding a lender for defendants' construction project, the trial court found for plaintiff, and defendant appealed. The court of appeal affirmed the judgment and rejected defendant's request for certain findings of fact pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 23. The court held that, although appellate courts are authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 909 and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 23 [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.252], to make findings of fact on appeal, the authority should be exercised sparingly, and absent exceptional circumstances, no findings should be made (9 Cal. 3d 1, 13) . Although Tyrone was decided prior to the 1981 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 909, the case is discussed in Jacobs v. State Bd. of Optometry (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1034 , 147 Cal. Rtpr. 225, which was cited for the point discussed in a later opinion interpreting the code section as amended [see People v. Coyer (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 839, 845, 191 Cal.

Rptr. 376] .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS

21-216 California Points & Authorities 216.syn

§ 216.syn Synopsis to Chapter 216: STATUTE OF FRAUDS

§ 216.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 216.02 Governing Statutes

§ 216.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

§ 216.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[a] In General

[b] Particular Actions

[2] Related Points and Authorities Chapters

§§ 216.05-216.09 [Reserved]

§ 216.10 Oral Contract That Cannot Be Performed Within One Year From Its Making Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Is Required

[b] Contract Is for Indefinite Period Contemplated by Parties to Be Longer Than One Year

[c] Agreement Is Implied by Law to Last for Over One Year

[d] How One-Year Period Is Computed

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writing Is Required

[b] Contract Is for Indefinite Period Contemplated by Parties to Be Longer Than One Year

[c] Agreement Is Implied by Law to Last for Over One Year

§ 216.11 Contract May Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Performance Within One Year Is Possible

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Performance Within One Year Is Possible

[b] Performance Within One Year May Be Unlikely

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Performance Within One Year Is Possible

[b] Performance Within One Year May Be Unlikely

§ 216.12 Contract May Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Contract Is for Permanent Employment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract Is for Permanent Employment

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract Is for Permanent Employment

§ 216.13 Contract may Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Contract Is to Continue as Long as Performance Is Satisfactory

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract Is to Continue as Long as Performance Satisfactory

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract to Continue as Long as Performance Satisfactory

§ 216.14 Contract may Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Contingency Extending Performance Beyond One Year Must Be Disregarded

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contingency Extending Performance Beyond One Year Must Be Disregarded

§ 216.15 Contract may Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Contract Is for Qualified Financial Contract

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

§§ 216.16-216.29 [Reserved]

§ 216.30 Oral Contract to Answer for Debt, Default, or Miscarriage of Another Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

§ 216.31 Oral Contract to Answer for Debt, Default, or Miscarriage of Another May Be Enforced--Promisor Has Become Principal Debtor

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Promise to Pay for Consideration Passing to Third Party Is Enforceable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Promise to Pay for Consideration Passing to Third Party Is Enforceable

§ 216.32 Oral Contract to Answer for Debt, Default, or Miscarriage of Another May Be Enforced--Consideration Is Beneficial to Promisor

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Leading and Main Object of Promisor Is to Serve Own Interest

[b] Consideration Need Not Be Pecuniary

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Leading and Main Object of Promisor Is to Serve Own Interest

§§ 216.33-216.39 [Reserved]

§ 216.40 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced--Agreement to Share in Net Profits Under Oil and Gas Lease May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute Covers Restrictions on Right to Alienate Real Property

[b] Statute Covers Option to Purchase Real Property

[c] Statute Covers Oil and Gas Rights

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Covers Option to Purchase Real Property

[b] Statute Covers Oil and Gas Rights

§ 216.41 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property Interest Is Not Enforceable--Transfer of Estate in Real Property Must Be Made in Writing

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Oral Lien Is Invalid

§ 216.42 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property Interest Is Not Enforceable--Agreement to Grant Lien on Real Property Must Be in Writing

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Promise to Grant Lien on Real Property Must Be Written

[b] Promise to Pay Mortgage Must Be Written

§ 216.43 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property Interest Is Not Enforceable--Oral Contract to Lease Real Property for More Than One Year Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Signed by Party to be Charged Is Required

§ 216.44 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced--Agreement to Contribute Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture Involving Real Property

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture Involving Real Property

§ 216.45 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced--Agreement to Engage in Joint Venture to Buy or Sell Real Property May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture to Buy or Sell Real Property

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture to Buy or Sell Real Property

§ 216.46 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced--Agreement to Share in Net Profits Under Oil and Gas Lease May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Share in Profits

§§ 216.47-216.59 [Reserved]

§ 216.60 Oral Commitment for Loan Exceeding $100,000 Is Not Enforceable--Commercial Loan Commitment Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

§ 216.61 Oral Commitment for Loan Exceeding $100,000 May Be Enforced--Commitment for Loan Secured by Residential Real Property May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Borrower's Promise to Grant Lien Is Severable

§§ 216.62-216.69 [Reserved]

§ 216.70 Written Contract Made by Agent Without Written Authority Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Authority to Fill in Blanks on Executed Document Must Be Written

[b] Authority to Enter Contract for Spouse Must Be Written

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Authority to Enter Contract for Spouse Must Be Written

§ 216.71 Written Contract May Be Enforced Even Though Made by Agent Without Written Authority--Executive Officer May Make Contract on Corporation's Behalf

[1] Executive Officer May Make Contract on Corporation's Behalf

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Written Authority Is Not Required

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Written Authority Is Not Required

§ 216.72 Written Contract May Be Enforced Even Though Made by Agent Without Written Authority--Contract May Be Enforced When Agent Merely Signed Contract at Principal's Direction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Written Authority Is Not Required to Perform Mechanical Act of Signing Name (Amanuensis Rule)

[b] Agent Is Not Required to Sign Contract in Principal's Immediate Presence

[c] Agent Is Not Required to Be Disinterested Party

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Written Authority Is Not Required to Perform Mechanical Act of Signing Name (Amanuensis Rule)

§ 216.73 Written Contract May Be Enforced Even Though Made by Agent Without Written Authority--Written Authority Is Not Required When Contract Is Between Principal and Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Writing Is Required Between Principal and Agent

§ 216.74 Written Contract May Be Enforced Even Though Made by Agent Without Written Authority--Contract May Be Enforced When Principal Ratified Agent's Unauthorized Act of Signing of Contract for Principal

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Principal Can Implicitly Ratify Agent's Unauthorized Act on Principal's Behalf

[b] Agent's Unauthorized Signing of Contract Can Be Ratified by Principal's Act of Signing Related Documents That Imply Existence of Contract

§§ 216.75-216.89 [Reserved]

§ 216.90 Memorandum of Agreement Does Not Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Memorandum Does Not Contain All Essential Terms of Agreement

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Essential Terms Must Be Stated With Reasonable Certainty

§ 216.91 Memorandum of Agreement Does Not Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Name on Memorandum Was Not Adopted as Signature by Party to be Charged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party to Be Charged Must Intend to Adopt Signature

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Party to Be Charged Must Intend to Adopt Signature

§ 216.92 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Essential Terms of Agreement Are Set Forth With Reasonable Certainty

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Essential Terms Must Be Stated With Reasonable Certainty

[b] Memorandum Must Be Interpreted in Context of Parties' Knowledge at Time of Its Execution

[c] Formal Contract Containing Every Term of Agreement Is Not Required

[d] Extrinsic Evidence Is Admissible to Resolve Uncertainty

[e] Memorandum Evidencing Requirements Contract Is Sufficiently Precise

§ 216.93 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Signature of Party to Be Charged Need Not Be Manually Written

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Typed, Lithographed, Rubber-Stamped, or Printed Signature Is Sufficient

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Typed, Lithographed, Rubber-Stamped, or Printed Signature Is Sufficient

§ 216.94 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Initials Are Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Initials May Be Sufficient Subscription

§ 216.95 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Signature on One of Series of Related Papers Is Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[d] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Signature on One of Series of Related Documents Is Sufficient Subscription

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Signature on One of Series of Related Documents Is Sufficient Subscription

§ 216.96 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Name in Email Is Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Name in Email Is Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged

§§ 216.97-216.109 [Reserved]

§ 216.110 Performance Renders Statute of Frauds Inapplicable--Statute of Frauds Is Inapplicable to Fully Executed Contract

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Cover Fully Executed Contract

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Cover Fully Executed Contract

§ 216.111 Performance Renders Statute of Frauds Inapplicable--Statute of Frauds Is Inapplicable When One Party Has Fully Performed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Cover Contract Fully Performed by One Party

[b] Payment of Money Is Only Remaining Obligation

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Cover Contract Fully Performed by One Party

§ 216.112 Performance Renders Statute of Frauds Inapplicable--Statute of Frauds Is Inapplicable to Past Transactions Performed Under Contract Not to Be Performed Within One Year

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Partial Performance of Contract Not to Be Performed Within One Year Is Binding as to Past Transactions

§ 216.113 Performance Renders Statute of Frauds Inapplicable--Statute of Frauds Is Inapplicable to Real Property Sale Agreement That Is Partially Performed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Partially Performed Oral Agreement to Sell Real Property May Be Enforced

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Partially Performed Oral Agreement to Sell Real Property May Be Enforced

§ 216.114 Statute of Frauds Applies in Spite of Partial Performance--Payment of Money Is Insufficient in Itself to Constitute Partial Performance

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Payment of Money Is Insufficient as Partial Performance

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Payment of Money Is Insufficient as Partial Performance

§§ 216.115-216.129 [Reserved]

§ 216.130 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Estopped to Rely on It--Party Is Guilty of Unconscionable Injury or Would Receive Unjust Enrichment

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party May Be Estopped to Assert Statute of Frauds

[b] Partial Performance Removes Agreement From Statute of Frauds

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Party May Be Estopped to Assert Statute of Frauds

[b] Partial Performance Removes Agreement From Statute of Frauds

§ 216.131 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Estopped to Rely on It--Principal Is Estopped to Rely on Requirement That Agent's Authority Must Be in Writing

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Principal Is Estopped by Own Acts to Rely on Requirement That Agent's Authority Be Written

§ 216.132 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Not Estopped to Rely on It--Unconscionable Injury or Unjust Enrichment Is Not Established

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unconscionable Injury or Unjust Enrichment Is Essential to Estoppel

[b] Rendition of Services Compensable in Quantum Meruit Is Insufficient Basis for Estoppel

[c] Loss of Bargain Is Insufficient Basis for Estoppel

[d] Increase in Value of Property From Market Conditions Is Insufficient as Unjust Enrichment

[e] Fiduciary Asserting Estoppel Is Required to Prove That Agreement Is Fair and Reasonable

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Unconscionable Injury or Unjust Enrichment Is Essential to Estoppel

[b] Loss of Bargain Insufficient Basis for Estoppel

§ 216.133 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Not Estopped to Rely on It--Principal Is Not Estopped From Relying on Requirement That Agent's Authority Must Be in Writing

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement of Written Authority to Make Contract Within Statute of Frauds Is Not Excused by Estoppel to Rely on Statute in Regard to Contract

§ 216.134 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Not Estopped to Rely on It--Doctrine of Judicial Admissions Does Not Apply to Testimony

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Argument

[c] Related Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Testimony Does Not Bar Assertion of Statute of Frauds

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Testimony Does Not Bar Assertion of Statute of Frauds

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.01

§ 216.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains points and authorities for use in supporting contentions in memoranda and briefs that are based on the statute of frauds. The forms in Part II are organized as follows:

- Subpart A, relating to whether a contract is within the statute of frauds, includes contentions regarding the enforceability of an oral contract not performable within one year, an oral contract to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, an oral contract for conveyance of a real property interest, and an oral commitment to make a loan exceeding $100,000 [§ 216.10 et seq.].

- Subpart B, relating to contracts made by or through agents, includes contentions regarding the enforceability of a written contract made by or through an agent without written authority [§ 216.70 et seq.].

- Subpart C, relating to the sufficiency of a written memorandum, includes contentions regarding whether a particular memorandum does or does not satisfy the statute of frauds [§ 216.90 et seq.].

- Subpart D, relating to the effect of performance or estoppel on a plea of the statute of frauds, includes contentions regarding whether performance or partial performance of a contract renders the statute inapplicable and whether the party asserting the statute is estopped to rely on it [§ 216.110 et seq.].

For points and authorities based on statute of frauds provisions and relating to contracts to pay real estate brokers' commissions, see Ch. 31, Brokers and Salespersons , or relating to contracts for the sale of goods, see Ch. 206, Sales . Premarital agreements executed on or after January 1, 1986, are governed by Fam. Code § 1600 et seq., discussed in Ch. 114, Husband and Wife .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Contracts LawStatutes of FraudsGeneral OverviewContracts LawStatutes of FraudsExceptionsGeneral OverviewContracts LawStatutes of FraudsRequirementsPerformanceReal Property LawPurchase & SaleContracts of SaleEnforceabilityStatutes of Frauds

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.02

§ 216.02 Governing Statutes

The general statute of frauds, requiring various types of contracts to be in writing, is Civ. Code § 1624. Older cases may cite former Code Civ. Proc. § 1973, repealed in 1965, which contained provisions identical to then-existing provisions of Civ. Code § 1624 (along with an additional sentence in the introductory paragraph, precluding evidence of a covered agreement other than the written memorandum or secondary evidence of its contents).

For a list of additional statutes requiring certain contracts to be in writing, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawStatutes of FraudsGeneral OverviewContracts LawTypes of ContractsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.03

§ 216.03 How to Use the Forms in This Chapter

[1] Page Limits on Points and Authorities

One of the more significant drafting requirements to keep in mind is page limits: supporting and opposing memoranda must not exceed 15 pages (or 20 pages for a summary judgment motion or summary adjudication motion). Exhibits, declarations, attachments, a table of contents, a table of authorities, and the proof of service are not included in the page limitation. A reply or closing memorandum may not exceed 10 pages [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(d)]. A party desiring to file a longer memorandum must obtain leave of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(e)]. These and other drafting requirements are discussed in detail in Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[2] Using the Forms to Build a Draft Memorandum

The points and authorities in this chapter are designed to be combined with other points and authorities to form a complete memorandum. For a detailed discussion of how to select and use the forms in this publication to build a draft memorandum and complete the draft, with detailed discussion of all drafting requirements and strategic and stylistic considerations, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

The points and authorities in this chapter may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSummary JudgmentSupporting MaterialsMemoranda of Law

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.04

§ 216.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

[a] In General

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

For discussion of the requirement that an agent must have written authority to enter into a contract required to be in writing, see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent , in that publication.

[b] Particular Actions

For discussions and forms related to actions in which the issue of the statute of frauds is commonly raised, see the following chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender):

- Ch. 140, Contracts.
- Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief.
- Ch. 240, Easements.
- Ch. 278, Gifts.
- Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution.
- Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership.
- Ch. 528, Specific Performance.

- Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings.

For discussion and forms related to particular statute of frauds provisions and the effect of the statute of frauds in other areas of law, see the following chapters in that publication:

- Ch. 77, Auctions and Auctioneers.
- Ch. 103, Brokers.
- Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit.

For forms related to actions for quasi-specific performance, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance , in that publication.

[2] Related Points and Authorities Chapters

Typically the substantive points and authorities on the issue of the statute of frauds included in this chapter are submitted is support or in opposition to a demurrer or motion for summary judgment. For procedural points and authorities relating to these proceedings, see Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , and Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For related points and authorities involving contentions based on the statute of frauds, see the following chapters:

- Ch. 31, Brokers and Salespersons.
- Ch. 43, Common Counts and Bills of Particulars.
- Ch. 50, Contracts.
- Ch. 206, Sales.

For points and authorities related to quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will, see Ch. 214, Specific Performance .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActStatutes of FraudsContracts LawStatutes of FraudsGeneral Overview

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-216 California Points & Authorities §§ 216.05-216.09

[Reserved]

§§ 216.05[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.10

§ 216.10 Oral Contract That Cannot Be Performed Within One Year From Its Making Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT ON WHICH THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS RELYING IS NOT BY ITS TERMS TO BE PERFORMED WITHIN ONE YEAR AND, THEREFORE, IS UNENFORCEABLE BECAUSE IT IS NOT IN WRITING SUBSCRIBED BY THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT].

A. Writing Is Required. An agreement that by its terms is not to be performed within one year from being made is unenforceable unless it, or a note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or his or her agent (Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1); Friedman v. Bergin (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 535, 537, 140 P.2d 1).

[Optional] B. Contract Is for Indefinite Period Contemplated by Parties to Be Longer Than One Year. When the subject matter of a contract for an indefinite period shows that the parties contemplated a period longer than one year for its performance, the contract is unenforceable under the statute of frauds (Tostevin v. Douglas (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 321, 327-328, 325 P.2d 130).

[Optional] C. Agreement Is Implied by Law to Last for Over One Year. If an agreement is implied by law to last for a reasonable period, and the trier of fact finds that the reasonable period is more than one year, the agreement is unenforceable unless it is in writing (San Francisco Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 607, 619, 343 P.2d 1).

[Optional] D. How One-Year Period Is Computed. In computing the one-year period, the day the agreement was made is excluded; the year begins the following day and ends at the close of the anniversary of the day the agreement was made (Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 759, 161 P.2d 217).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an alleged agreement is unenforceable under the statute of frauds because, by its terms, it cannot be fully performed within one year from its making, and it is not contained or referenced in a writing subscribed by the party to be charged.

These points and authorities may also be used if the agreement in question does not specify a time or duration of performance but the subject matter indicates that the parties contemplated that the performance would last more than one year (Optional Paragraph B) or if the contract is implied by law to last for a reasonable time and that time is found to be more than one year (Optional Paragraph C).

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandum submitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to support a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking the points in this form with the facts of the case. For example, in supporting a motion for summary judgment, counsel should include discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing, on undisputed facts, the terms of the agreement that extend its performance beyond one year from its making, or, if no duration is stated in the agreement, the subject matter of the contract indicating that a period of more than one year was necessarily contemplated by the parties. Similarly, if the agreement is one implied by law to endure for a reasonable time [see, e.g., Consol. Theatres, Inc. v. Theatrical Stage Employees Union (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 713, 727-728, 73 Cal. Rptr. 213, 447 P.2d 325] , counsel should include a discussion of undisputed facts showing that the reasonable time for the agreement to endure is more than one year, based on the parties' course of dealing, their reasonable expectations, and other relevant circumstances. For example, if one party has made a capital contribution to an enterprise, such as a distributorship, pursuant to the contract, counsel should show that a period exceeding one year is necessary in order to recover the capital expenditure and to earn a reasonable profit.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum supporting a motion for summary judgment, they may becombined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in §§ 216.11 et seq., 216.92 et seq., 216.110 et seq., and 216.130 et seq. may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Is Required

In Friedman v. Bergin (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 535, 140 P.2d 1 , the parties executed an instrument setting forth some terms of an agreement under which the plaintiffs received a five-year concession on cigarettes, cigars, candy, and other items at a race track. The instrument stated that a formal contract was to follow, but the formal contract was never executed. For three years the parties performed, and the defendant, who granted the concession, cooperated by selling the plaintiffs items through his stands, accounting to the plaintiffs, and taking care of retail licenses, social security and unemployment insurance payments, industrial accident insurance, and sales tax. After the defendant assigned the contract, the assignees did not cooperate in these matters, and the plaintiffs discontinued operations and sued for breach of contract. The defendants appealed from a judgment for the plaintiffs.

The Supreme Court reversed. The contract was within the statute of frauds because it was to be performed over a five-year period and it was unenforceable unless the executed instrument contained the contract's material terms (22 Cal. 2d 535, 537) . The operational matters complained of by the plaintiffs involved the practical construction of material terms not expressed in the instrument. Moreover, if the terms were deemed part of a modification of the contract, the statute of frauds still applied because the modifications were not in writing and were to be performed over a five-year period (22 Cal. 2d 535, 537-538) .

[b] Contract Is for Indefinite Period Contemplated by Parties to Be Longer Than One Year

In Tostevin v. Douglas (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 321, 325 P.2d 130 , the plaintiff alleged, in several inconsistent complaints, that the defendants repudiated an oral agreement under which they had employed the plaintiff to procure personnel and material for a series of television shows. The contract was allegedly for an indefinite period continuing as long as the series was shown on television. The trial court granted a motion to strike the third amended complaint and dismissed the action. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The alleged agreement by its terms was not to be performed within one year from its making, and it was invalid under the statute of frauds. When it is evident from a contract's subject matter that the parties had in contemplation a longer period than one year as the time for its performance, the contract is invalid under the statute of frauds. Under the alleged agreement, payments to the plaintiff were to continue as long as the program was broadcast throughout the world, and the parties must have contemplated that continued performance of the contract was to last more than one year from the date the contract was made. At the time of suit, the show had been on television for more than one year (160 Cal. App. 2d 321, 327-328) .

The authority on which this paragraph is based may be compromised, however, in view of the fact that Newfield v. Insurance Co. of the West (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 440, 446-447, 203 Cal. Rptr. 9 , which held that when an employee takes the position that an oral contract expressly or implicitly guaranties employment for longer than one year, the statute of frauds bars action on that contract, was disapproved in Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 675 n.19, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 (discussed in § 216.11[3][a]), to the extent it is inconsistent.

[c] Agreement Is Implied by Law to Last for Over One Year

In San Francisco Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 607, 343 P.2d 1 , the defendant was the exclusive distributor of the brewing company's products in most of Butte County from 1935 until 1954, when the company terminated the relationship. The company sued on an open account for beer sold and delivered to the defendant, and the defendant cross complained for breach of contract. The company appealed from a judgment on a jury verdict for the defendant.

The Supreme Court reversed. The trial court erred in failing to instruct the jury on the statute of frauds. The jury was properly instructed in regard to determining what a reasonable time would be for the duration of the contract (52 Cal.

2d 607, 613-614, 615) . However, the trial court erred in failing to instruct the jury that if they found the reasonable period to be greater than one year, the agreement would not be binding unless it was in writing (52 Cal. 2d 607, 615, 619) .

[d] How One-Year Period Is Computed

In Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 , the defendant orally agreed to work as a motion picture director for Columbia for a term of one year "immediately next ensuing," with options for Columbia to renew or extend the contract for six additional one-year terms. Each option for a succeeding year was exercisable before the expiration of the current year. On thefollowing day, the defendant sought to defer commencement of the period of employment, representing that he had business commitments and that if Columbia would agree to this modification of the agreement and give him temporary work in the meantime, he would enter into a written contract to evidence the extension of time for commencement of his services under the oral contract. Subsequently, the defendant refused to render services to or enter into any written agreement with Columbia and proceeded to render services to other producers. Columbia sued for a declaration of the parties' rights and duties under the contract, but the trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend. Columbia appealed from the ensuing judgment of dismissal.

The Supreme Court reversed. An oral contract of employment for a period of one year "immediately next ensuing" with rendition of service to commence the day after the agreement is entered into is not within the statute of frauds. In applying Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1), the words "from the making thereof" are uniformly construed to exclude the day the agreement is made, so that the year is considered to begin the following day and end at the close of the anniversary of the day the agreement was made (26 Cal. 2d 753, 758-759) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writing Is Required

The plaintiff in Tomlins v. American Ins. Co. (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 525, 66 Cal. Rptr. 92 , sued for breach of an oral agreement to employ the plaintiff for three years. The court of appeal held that the agreement obviously could not be performed in one year and that it was within the statute of frauds since no written memorandum was asserted (258 Cal. App. 2d 525, 527) . The court also held that the jury had been erroneously instructed on the issue of estoppel to assert the statute of frauds and reversed the judgment for the plaintiff (258 Cal. App. 2d 525, 528-529) .

The court of appeal in Winburn v. All American Sportswear Co. (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 380, 30 Cal. Rptr. 321 , held that an oral agreement made in July for the plaintiff to be the defendant's factory representative in the calendar year commencing the following January came within the statute of frauds because it could not be performed within one year (215 Cal. App. 2d 380, 381-382) .

Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 , involved two oral contracts for the employment of the plaintiff by the defendant. The contracts covered different periods. The court of appeal held that the first contract was manifestly invalid and unenforceable as it was made in March 1957 and was to continue until December 1958, a period of more than one year (193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 640) . The court held, however, that the second contract, entered into by the parties when they rescinded the first one, was not within the statute of frauds. That contract was for permanent employment and specified the terms of compensation for the one-year period immediately following its making (193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 641-642) .

In Brockman v. Lane (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 802, 230 P.2d 369 , the court of appeal rejected the plaintiff's contention that the contract on which the suit was based created a partnership. The court held that the contract was one for the employment of the plaintiff and that since it was for a five-year term, it was invalid under the statute of frauds, whether it was governed by California or Arizona law (103 Cal. App. 2d 802, 805) .

In Sessions v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616-617, 118 P.2d 935 , the court of appeal held that whether the contract was found to be an agreement to put the plaintiff on inactive employment status until he became 60 or to pay him a certain sum until he reached the age of pension eligibility (in either case, a period of six years) and then to pay him a pension for life, the contract was within the statute of frauds (47 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616-617) .

In Summerhays v. Scheu (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 574, 52 P.2d 512 , the court of appeal held that the plaintiff could not rely on the defendant's agreement never again to enter into the orchard-heater business, made in connection with the defendant's sale of patent applications to the plaintiff, because the agreement was obviously not to be performed within one year and was barred by the statute of frauds (10 Cal. App. 2d 574, 576-577) .

[b] Contract Is for Indefinite Period Contemplated by Parties to Be Longer Than One Year

Long v. Cramer Meat & Packing Co. (1909) 155 Cal. 402, 101 P. 297 , involved an agreement between tenants in common that their land would always be used for grazing the horses and cattle of the respective parties and their successors and that no sheep would ever be allowed to graze on the land. The Supreme Court held that the agreement, from its nature, was not to be performed within one year and was in violation of the statute of frauds (155 Cal. 402, 406) .

[c] Agreement Is Implied by Law to Last for Over One Year

In Connelly v. Venus Foods, Inc. (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 582, 345 P.2d 117 , involving an oral distributorship contract, the court of appeal held that the trial court erred by taking the question of the statute of frauds away from the jury. There was sufficient evidence to support a finding that the contract was of indefinite duration and was thus for a reasonable period terminable on reasonable notice. The evidence could have supported findings that the reasonable period was sufficiently brief to allow termination within one year or that a reasonable period under the circumstances exceeded one year. The evidence would have also been sufficient to support a finding that the parties contracted for performance over a period longer than one year (174 Cal. App. 2d 582, 586) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.11

§ 216.11 Contract May Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Performance Within One Year Is Possible

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

EVEN THOUGH PERFORMANCE OF THE AGREEMENT WITHIN ONE YEAR IS UNLIKELY, THE AGREEMENT IS NOT WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE IT IS POSSIBLE TO PERFORM THE AGREEMENT WITHIN ONE YEAR.

A. Performance Within One Year Is Possible. Civil Code Section 1624(a)(1) applies only to contracts that, by their terms, cannot possibly be performed within one year (Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 674-675, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 ; White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 343, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345).

B. Performance Within One Year May Be Unlikely. A promise unlikely to be performed within one year is not within the statute of frauds if, when the contract was made, full performance was possible in law and in fact before the expiration of a year. This rule applies even if the promise in fact is not performed within one year (Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 673, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 ; Burgermeister Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 274, 281, 38 Cal. Rptr. 597).

[Optional] C. How One-Year Period Is Computed. [See § 216.10[1] Paragraph D.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)] does not apply to oral contracts that are possible to perform within one year, even though performance within one year is not probable. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on a contract whenever the adverse party urges that such a contract is invalid under the statute of frauds because it cannot be performed within one year. The argument would most likely be raised against a defense to an action for breach of contract.

These points and authorities may be used when the contract is a lease. Even though paragraph (a)(3) of the statute of frauds relates specifically to leases for a period longer than one year [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)], paragraphs (a)(1) and (a)(3) may be applied in appropriate cases to leases as though they were equivalents [see Fisher v. Parsons (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 29 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandum submitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to oppose a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, in opposing a motion for summary judgment, counsel should include discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing that there is, at least, a triable issue of fact on whether performance within one year is possible, in that the terms of the agreement create a potential for performance to be completed within one year from the time the contract was made. If the contract requires performance until the occurrence of a particular contingency, counsel would show that the contingency could occur within one year. Similarly, if the contract was for a specific period longer than one year, counsel would show that it was subject to termination by its own terms within one year.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined in an appropriate case with those set out in §§ 216.12 -216.15.

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum supporting a motion for summary judgment, they may be combined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.10 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Performance Within One Year Is Possible

Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 , involved three causes of action for wrongful discharge. Demurrers were sustained to all three causes of action, and the judgment entered was affirmed by the court of appeal. The trial court and court of appeal applied Newfield v. Insurance Co. of the West (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 440, 446-447, 203 Cal. Rptr. 9 , to conclude that any action for breach of the implied contract would be barred by the statute of frauds.

The Supreme Court reversed the portion of the judgment relating to the cause of action for breach of an implied agreement that the plaintiff would be discharged only for cause. White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 343-344, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 (discussed below) expressed the correct law (47 Cal. 3d 654, 671-672) . Even if an oral agreement promised the plaintiff "permanent" employment that would be terminable only on the condition of subsequent poor performance by the plaintiff or for other good cause, that agreement could possibly be completed within one year as long as it was for no special term (47 Cal. 3d 654, 672-673) . Because the employee can quit or the employer can discharge for cause, even an agreement that strictly defines appropriate grounds for discharge can be completely performed within one year, or within one day for that matter, and not be within the statute of frauds. The weight of authority supports the general rule that if a condition terminating a contract may occur within one year from its making, then the contract is performable within a year and does not fall within the scope of the statute of frauds. This is true even though performance of the contract may extend longer than one year if the condition does not occur (47 Cal. 3d 654, 673) . To bring a contract within the statute relating to oral agreements not to be performed within one year, it must appear to be necessarily incapable of performance within that time (47 Cal. 3d 654, 674-675) . The contract in this case could have been performed within one year from its making: the plaintiff could have terminated his employment within that period, or the defendant could have discharged the plaintiff for cause. Thus, this contract does not fall within the statute of frauds and the fact that it was an implied or oral agreement is not fatal to its enforcement (47 Cal. 3d 654, 675) . The Court concluded by disapproving Newfield v. Insurance Co. of the West (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 440, 203 Cal. Rptr. 9 , to the extent it is inconsistent with the opinion (47 Cal. 3d 654, 675 n.19).

In White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438, P.2d 345 , the defendant appealed from a judgment of dismissal entered after a demurrer was sustained to his cross complaint, alleging breach of an oral contract for employment on a permanent basis.

The Supreme Court reversed. Although the employment was to be permanent, it was not to continue for any specified time. The one-year statute of frauds provision [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)] applies only to contracts that, by their terms, cannot possibly be performed within one year. Since the employment contract was terminable at will, it could be performed within one year under its terms. The inclusion of a provision in the contract that the defendant would receive 1 percent of the employer's gross sales in excess of $1 million a year did not bring the contract within the statute of frauds, even though that amount could not be determined within one year (68 Cal. 2d 336, 343-344) .

[b] Performance Within One Year May Be Unlikely

Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 , is discussed in [a], above.

In Burgermeister Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 274, 38 Cal. Rptr. 597 , the defendant, by cross complaint, sued for breach of an oral beer distributorship contract. A verdict for the defendant was returned, and the plaintiff appealed from the ensuing judgment.

The court of appeal affirmed. Substantial evidence supported the jury's finding that there was an oral contract between the parties creating a beer distributorship and expressly providing that the distributorship would continue as long as the defendant used his best efforts to promote and solicit the sale of the plaintiff's products and took care of the territory (227 Cal. App. 2d 274, 277) . A promise that is not likely to be performed within one year, and that in fact is not performed within one year, is not within the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)] if there is a possibility in law and in fact that full performance may be completed within one year. Although the defendant had been performing under the contract for 19 years, the contract was not within the statute of frauds because if the defendant had failed to devote his bests efforts or to take care of the territory, the contract would have terminated, and this could have happened within one year (227 Cal. App. 2d 274, 281) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Performance Within One Year Is Possible

In Hollywood M.P. Equip. Co. v. Furer (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 184, 105 P.2d 299 , the Supreme Court recognized as settled that the one-year statute of frauds only invalidates oral contracts that "cannot be performed within that period" (16 Cal. 2d 184, 187) . The Court held that the statute of frauds did not apply to the oral agreement of the defendant machine shop operator not to make any castings from the plaintiff's patterns other than those ordered by the plaintiff, because the plaintiff might have ordered and received all the castings it desired within one year, thereby terminating the relations between the parties (16 Cal. 2d 184, 186-187) .

In Steward v. Mercy Hospital (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1290, 1296, 233 Cal. Rptr. 881 , the court of appeal reversed the trial court's dismissal of an action for wrongful termination. The trial court based its dismissal on the belief that the action was barred by the statute of frauds. The court of appeal said that the oral employment contract, which allegedly precluded termination without good cause, was capable of being performed within one year because good cause for termination could exist within one year of the formation of the contract. Therefore, the action for wrongful termination was not barred by the statute of frauds (188 Cal. App. 3d 1290, 1295-1296).

Fisher v. Parsons (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 829, 29 Cal. Rptr. 210 , involved an oral agreement that the plaintiff would provide all office space required by the defendant as long as the defendant was in business and required office space and usable space was available in the plaintiff's building. The court of appeal held that the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)] did not bar enforcement of the agreement because the terms of the agreement did not require performance to extend for more than one year (213 Cal. App. 2d 829, 836-837) .

In Lacy v. Bennett (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 796, 24 Cal. Rptr. 806 , the court of appeal held that a loan with no definite repayment date was not within the statute of frauds because performance was possible within one year, even though the parties understood it to be a long-term loan (207 Cal. App. 2d 796, 800-801) .

In Mangini v. Wolfschmidt, Ltd. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 64, 13 Cal. Rptr. 503 , the court of appeal, holding that the statute of frauds did not apply to a contract for the exclusive distributorship of the defendant's products, stated that a contract is invalid under the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)] only when by its very terms it cannot be performed within one year of its making (192 Cal. App. 2d 64, 76) .

See discussion of Robards v. Gaylord Bros., Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 854 F.2d 1152 , in § 216.12[4][a].

[b] Performance Within One Year May Be Unlikely

Plumlee v. Poag (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 541, 198 Cal. Rptr. 66 , was a wrongful termination action against the employer's estate for breach of an oral contract granting employment for at least 10 years beyond the employer's death. In reversing the dismissal, which was based in part on the defense of the statute of frauds, the court of appeal held that the statute did not apply. The court stated that if by its terms performance of a contract is possible within one year, the contract does not fall within the statute of frauds even though it is probable that it will extend beyond one year (150 Cal. App. 3d 541, 549) . Here, the contract contained a clause that the plaintiff's continued employment was conditioned on his reducing "annual shrinkage" of supplies, so it was possible that the contract could be ended by the employer within a one-year period, and therefore it was taken out of the operation of the statute (150 Cal. App. 3d 541, 549-550)

.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.12

§ 216.12 Contract May Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Contract Is for Permanent Employment

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT IS A CONTRACT FOR PERMANENT EMPLOYMENT, AND SUCH A CONTRACT IS NOT WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS [EVEN IF COMPENSATION UNDER IT IS MEASURED ON AN ANNUAL BASIS].

Contract Is for Permanent Employment. A contract for employment on a "permanent" basis not stating that the employment would continue for any specified period is not within the statute of frauds [even though part of the compensation is measured on an annual basis, such as a percentage of the employer's annual receipts] (Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 672-675, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 ; White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 343-344, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an oral contract for permanent employment is enforceable notwithstanding the statute of frauds because a contract for permanent employment may be performed within one year. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on an oral contract for permanent employment whenever the adverse party argues that the contract is invalid under the statute of frauds because it cannot be performed within one year. The argument would most likely be raised against an employer's defense to an employee's action for breach of contract.

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandum submitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to oppose a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, in opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the contract is not enforceable, counsel for plaintiff wouldinclude discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing that there is at least a triable issue whether the oral contract, for "permanent" employment, does not specify that employment is to continue more than one year.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined in an appropriate case with those set out in §§ 216.11 and 216.13 -216.15.

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum supporting a motion for summary judgment, they may be combined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.10 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract Is for Permanent Employment

Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 , is discussed in § 216.11[3][a].

White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 , is discussed in § 216.11[3][a]. The Supreme Court held that a contract for employment on a permanent basis, not specifying continued employment for any specified period, is one for an indefinite period that could possibly be performed within one year, and the provision in the agreement for a yearly bonus that could not be computed within one year did not bring the agreement within the statute of frauds (68 Cal. 2d 336, 343-344) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract Is for Permanent Employment

In Robards v. Gaylord Bros., Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 854 F.2d 1152 , the court affirmed a judgment for the plaintiff for breach of an implied contract of employment and negligent infliction of emotional distress. One ground of appeal was that the oral contract of employment was within the statute of frauds. The oral agreement was for an indefinite period and permitted termination only for cause. The plaintiff had in fact worked for the defendant for 35 years. The court agreed that the statute of frauds was no bar to the action [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)]. The contract could have been completed in one year because the plaintiff could have been terminated at any time for cause (854 F.2d 1152, 1155) .

In Eisenberg v. Insurance Co. of North America (9th Cir. 1987) 815 F.2d 1285 , the court reversed a grant of summary judgment in favor of an employer in a wrongful termination case. The court applied California law in this diversity case and held that an oral contract for permanent employment was not within Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1) if it is possible for the contract to be performed in one year (815 F.2d 1285, 1291) . The court relied on White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 343-344, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 , and declined to apply Newfield v. Insurance Co. of the West (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 440, 447, 203 Cal. Rptr. 9 , disapproved, Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 675 n.19, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 (discussed in § 216.11[3][a]) (815 F.2d 1285, 1290-1291) .

The court of appeal in Jenkins v. Family Health Program (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 440, 262 Cal. Rptr. 798 , reversed the trial court's judgment, holding it was error to have sustained demurrers to the plaintiff's causes of action for breach of contract and for contract damages for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing on the ground that those were actions on an oral contract and thus barred by the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)]. The contract was alleged as an oral contract for employment on a career basis until retirement age that could not be terminated by the defendant except for good, just, and legitimate cause or reason. The court stated that an action on an oral contract is not barred unless the contract cannot possibly be performed within one year (214 Cal. App. 3d 440, 445-446) . An oral agreement for permanent employment, not for any specific term, terminable only for poor performance or other good cause, could possibly be performed within one year because the employee can quit or the employer can discharge the employee for cause (214 Cal. App. 3d 440, 446) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.13

§ 216.13 Contract may Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Contract Is to Continue as Long as Performance Is Satisfactory

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT IS NOT WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE BY ITS TERMS IT IS TO CONTINUE ONLY AS LONG AS A PARTY'S PERFORMANCE IS SATISFACTORY.

Contract Is to Continue as Long as Performance Satisfactory. A contract that provides that it is to continue as long as a party's performance is satisfactory is a contract of indeterminate duration, which may be completely performed within one year and is not within the statute of frauds (Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 672-673, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 ; Burgermeister Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 274, 281-282, 38 Cal. Rptr. 597).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an oral contract providing for a party's performance to continue as long as it is satisfactory is a contract of indefinite duration, which may be completely performed within one year and is therefore not within the statute of frauds. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on such an oral contract whenever the adverse party argues that the contract is invalid under the statute of frauds because it cannot be performed within one year. The argument would most likely be raised against a statute of frauds defense to an action for breach of contract.

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandum submitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to oppose a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, in opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the contract is not enforceable, counsel for plaintiff would include discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing that there is at least a triable issue whether the oral employment contract is one of indeterminate duration in that it calls for a party's performance to continue so long as it is satisfactory.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined in an appropriate case with those set out in §§ 216.11, 216.12, 216.14, and 216.15.

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum supporting a motion for summary judgment, they may be combined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.10 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contract Is to Continue as Long as Performance Satisfactory

Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 , is discussed in § 216.11[3][a].

Burgermeister Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 274, 38 Cal. Rptr. 597 , is discussed in § 216.11[3][b]. The court of appeal held that since the contract would have terminated if the defendant had not devoted his best efforts or taken care of the territory, an event that could have occurred within one year, the contract was not one that by its terms could not be performed within one year. The court relied on the reasoning of Mangini v. Wolfschmidt, Ltd. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 64, 75, 13 Cal. Rptr. 503 , that a contract to perform personal services for an indefinite period, providing for the employment to continue as long as the person performing the services is able to perform or performs satisfactorily, is not within the statute of frauds because it includes a contingency that mayterminate performance within one year (227 Cal. App. 2d 274, 281-282) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Contract to Continue as Long as Performance Satisfactory

In Bondi v. Jewels by Edwar, Ltd. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 73 Cal. Rptr. 494 , the court of appeal held that a contract providing for the plaintiff to close his business and go to work for the defendants for as long as he should satisfactorily perform his duties was not subject to the defense of the statute of frauds (267 Cal. App. 2d 672, 676) .

See Jenkins v. Family Health Program (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 440, 445-446, 262 Cal. Rptr. 798 , discussed in § 216.12[4][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.14

§ 216.14 Contract may Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Contingency Extending Performance Beyond One Year Must Be Disregarded

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT IS NOT WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS MERELY BECAUSE IT INCLUDES A CONTINGENCY [SUCH AS AN OPTION] THAT MAY EXTEND ITS PERFORMANCE BEYOND ONE YEAR.

Contingency Extending Performance Beyond One Year Must Be Disregarded. A contingency that may extend the performance of a contract for more than one year, such as an option that must be exercised within one year from the date the contract was made, in order to extend the contract, does not bring the contract within the statute of frauds (Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 757, 759, 161 P.2d 217).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an oral contract is not unenforceable under the statute of frauds merely because it contains a contingency, such as an option, that may extend its performance beyond one year. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on such an oral contract whenever the adverse party argues that the contract is invalid because it cannot be performed within one year. The argument would most likely be raised against a statute of frauds defense to an action for breach of contract.

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandum submitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to oppose a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, in opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the contract is not enforceable, counsel for plaintiff would include discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing that there is at least a triable issue whether the oral employment contract is for a definite term ending within one year from the time the contract was made and thus capable of complete performance within one year, even though the occurrence of a contingency might extend the performance of the contract beyond one year. If the contingency is the exercise of an option created by the contract, counsel should show that the option must be exercised within the one-year period.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined in an appropriate case with those set out in §§ 216.11 -216.13 and 216.15.

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum supporting a motion for summary judgment, they may be combined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.10 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Contingency Extending Performance Beyond One Year Must Be Disregarded

The facts and procedural background of Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 161 P.2d 217 , are discussed in § 216.10[3][d]. The Supreme Court held that a contingency that might have extended the period of employment under the contract for more than one year, such as an option to renew or extend the contract exercisable for succeeding years before the expiration of the current year, does not bring the contract within the operation of the statute (26 Cal. 2d 753, 759) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.15

§ 216.15 Contract may Be Enforced in Spite of One-Year Performance Rule--Contract Is for Qualified Financial Contract

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT IS NOT WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE IT IS AN AGREEMENT OR CONTRACT THAT IS VALID IN OTHER RESPECTS AND IS OTHERWISE ENFORCEABLE, IT IS A QUALIFIED FINANCIAL CONTRACT, AND _____ [THERE IS SUFFICIENT EVIDENCE TO INDICATE THAT A CONTRACT HAS BEEN MADE or THE PARTIES, BY MEANS OF A PRIOR OR SUBSEQUENT WRITTEN CONTRACT, HAVE AGREED TO BE BOUND BY THE TERMS OF THE QUALIFIED FINANCIAL CONTRACT FROM THE TIME THEY REACHED AGREEMENT ON THOSE TERMS].

Oral Qualified Financial Contract May Be Enforced. Notwithstanding Civil Code Section 1624(a)(1), an agreement or contract that is valid in other respects and is otherwise enforceable is not invalid for lack of a note, memorandum, or other writing and is enforceable by way of an action or defense if the agreement or contract is a qualified financial contract, and either there is sufficient evidence to indicate that a contract has been made or the parties, by means of a prior or subsequent written contract, have agreed to be bound by the terms of the qualified financial contract from the time they reached agreement (by telephone, exchange of electronic messages, or otherwise) on those terms (Civ. Code § 1624(b)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the statute of frauds does not apply to an oral qualified financial contract meeting specified criteria [see Civ. Code § 1624(b)]. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on a contract whenever the adverse party urges that the contract is invalid under the statute of frauds because it cannot be performed within one year. The argument would most likely be raised against a defense to an action for breach of contract.

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandum submitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to oppose a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, in opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the contract is not enforceable, counsel for plaintiff would include discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing that there is at least a triable issue whether the contract is for the purchase and sale of foreign exchange or foreign currency and thus is within the statutory definition of "qualified financial contract" [see Civ. Code § 1624(b)(2)(A)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined in an appropriate case with those set out in §§ 216.11 -216.14.

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum supporting a motion for summary judgment, they may be combined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.10 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities §§ 216.16-216.29

[Reserved]

§§ 216.16[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.30

§ 216.30 Oral Contract to Answer for Debt, Default, or Miscarriage of Another Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT ON WHICH THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS RELYING IS A SPECIAL PROMISE TO ANSWER FOR THE DEBT, DEFAULT, OR MISCARRIAGE OF ANOTHER AND, THEREFORE, IS UNENFORCEABLE BECAUSE IT IS NOT IN WRITING SUBSCRIBED BY THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT].

Writing Is Required. A special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another is invalid unless it, or a note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or his or her agent (Civ. Code §§ 1624(a)(2), 2793).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an alleged agreement is unenforceable under the statute of frauds because it is a special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another, and it is not contained in a writing subscribed by the party to be charged. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever the adverse party relies on such a contract. The argument would most likely be raised in defense of an action for breach of such a contract.

Civ. Code § 1624(a)(2) requires a special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another to be in writing, except in the cases provided for in Civ. Code § 2794, concerning suretyship. Several types of sureties' promises to answer for the obligation of another are deemed to be original obligations of the surety and need not be in writing [see Civ. Code § 2794; see also § 216.31[3][a]]. Suretyship obligations generally are required to be in writing by Civ. Code § 2793, however. Since the terms "suretyship" and "guaranty" are both defined, in part, as promises to answer for the debt, promise, or miscarriage of another [see Civ. Code § 2787], there would not appear to be any meaningful distinction between the two sections, in the present context.

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandum submitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to support a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, in supporting a defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the contract is not enforceable, counsel would include discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing that, on undisputed facts, the contract falls within the type covered under Civ. Code § 1624(a)(2).

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum supporting a motion for summary judgment, they may be combined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in §§ 216.31 et seq., 216.92 et seq., 216.110 et seq., and 216.130 et seq. may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.31

§ 216.31 Oral Contract to Answer for Debt, Default, or Miscarriage of Another May Be Enforced--Promisor Has Become Principal Debtor

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT ON WHICH THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS RELYING IS NOT WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF], AS CREDITOR, _____ [PARTED WITH VALUE or ENTERED INTO AN OBLIGATION] IN CONSIDERATION OF THE OBLIGATION IN RESPECT TO WHICH THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT'S] PROMISE TO ANSWER FOR THE OBLIGATION OF _____ [name] WAS MADE, IN TERMS OR UNDER CIRCUMSTANCES THAT RENDER THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] THE PRINCIPAL DEBTOR.

A. Original Obligation Is Not Required to Be in Writing. A promise to answer for the obligation of another is deemed an original obligation of the promisor, and need not be in writing, when the creditor parts with value or enters into an obligation in consideration of the obligation in respect to which the promise is made, in terms or under circumstances such as to render the person making the promise the principal debtor, and the person in whose behalf it is made, the surety (Civ. Code § 2794(2)).

[Optional] B. Promise to Pay for Consideration Passing to Third Party Is Enforceable. A person who promises to pay another for goods delivered to a third party is the principal debtor, and not a surety or guarantor, and the promise is not within the statute of frauds, if the seller relies only on the promisor's credit (Merz v. Poole (1927) 82 Cal. App. 12, 14-15, 254 P. 914 ; Jan Wai v. Smith-Riddell Co. (1921) 55 Cal. App. 59, 65, 202 P. 952).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the statute of frauds [Civ. Code §§ 1624(a)(2), 2793] does not apply to an oral promise to pay the obligation of another if the creditor parted with value or entered into an obligation in consideration of the obligation in respect to which the promise was made in terms or under circumstances that render the promisor the principal debtor. The issue would most likely be raised in opposing a statute of frauds defense in an action for breach of contract.

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandum submitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to oppose a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, in opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the contract is not enforceable, counsel would include discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing that there is, at least, a triable issue whether the terms of the agreement or the circumstances under which the agreement was made indicate that the person who promised to pay is the one to whom the creditor would primarily look for payment. This may involve showing that when the promise to pay was made, the promisor directed that the consideration for the promise be directed to a third party (Optional Paragraph B) or other circumstances showing the promisor to be the principal party. A promisor has been deemed the principal debtor when, in connection with the purchase of a hotel, he assumed a chattel mortgage on its furnishings in consideration of the payments on the chattel mortgage being reduced [Parrish v. Greco (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 556, 560-561, 258 P.2d 566] . A promisor has also been deemed the principal debtor when he agreed to indemnify a sheriff for any liability incurred by the sheriff for damages to property attached by the sheriff in relation to a suit brought by the promisor against a third party, the promisor's promise having been given in consideration of the sheriff's placing the property in the custody of an employee of the promisor [Burr v. Cross (1906) 3 Cal. App. 414, 415-416, 86 P 824] .

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum opposing a motion for summary judgment, they may be combined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.30 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Promise to Pay for Consideration Passing to Third Party Is Enforceable

Merz v. Poole (1927) 82 Cal. App. 12, 254 P 914 , involved the sale of trucktires. After the plaintiff refused to sell tires to the truck owner on credit, the truck owner returned to the plaintiff's place of business with the defendant, a jeweler, who apparently owed the truck owner some money. The defendant requested the plaintiff to furnish the truck owner with tires and promised to pay for them. The trial court gave judgment for the plaintiff, and the defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The evidence was sufficient to establish that the defendant's promise was an original obligation on his part to pay for the tires, so that he was the principal debtor and not merely a surety or guarantor [see Civ. Code § 2794(2)] (82 Cal. App. 12, 15) .

In Jan Wai v. Smith-Riddell Co. (1921) 55 Cal. App. 59, 202 P 952 , the plaintiff sold meat to a tenant of the defendant. When the plaintiff told the tenant that no more meat would be supplied until the tenant's bill for meat already delivered was paid, the tenant requested the defendant to make the payment. The defendant paid the bill, but the plaintiff refused to give credit to the tenant in regard to future deliveries. The defendant told the plaintiff to send meat to the tenant and that the defendant would pay the bill every three months. The plaintiff proceeded to make deliveries to the tenant, but the defendant never paid for the meat. The plaintiff sued and was given judgment for the price of the meat delivered to the tenant. The defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The oral agreement to pay for the meat was not within the statute of frauds, in accordance with the rule that if a seller delivers goods to one person on the promise of another to pay for them and solely on the promisor's credit, the promise is an original one and is not within the statute of frauds (55 Cal. App. 59, 65) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Promise to Pay for Consideration Passing to Third Party Is Enforceable

In Sanders v. Riviera Realty Co. (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 70, 230 P.2d 856 , involving a loan by the plaintiff to the defendants, but with the checks representing the loan made payable to a third party at the borrower's request, the court of appeal stated that the mere fact that the consideration passed to a third party did not prevent the defendants from being the principal debtors (104 Cal. App. 2d 70, 75) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.32

§ 216.32 Oral Contract to Answer for Debt, Default, or Miscarriage of Another May Be Enforced--Consideration Is Beneficial to Promisor

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT ON WHICH THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS RELYING IS NOT WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT'S] PROMISE TO ANSWER FOR THE DEBT OF _____ [name] WAS GIVEN ON A CONSIDERATION BENEFICIAL TO THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT].

A. Original Obligation Is Not Required to Be in Writing. A promise to answer for the obligation of another is deemed an original obligation of the promisor, and need not be in writing, when the promise is given on a consideration beneficial to the promisor, whether moving from either of the parties to the antecedent obligation or from another person (Civ. Code § 2794(4)).

B. Leading and Main Object of Promisor Is to Serve Own Interest. When the promisor's leading and main object is not to become surety or guarantor of another but to subserve some purpose or interest of his or her own, the promise is not within the statute of frauds even though performance of the promise may pay the debt or discharge the obligation of another (Schumm v. Berg (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 174, 187, 231 P.2d 39 ; Farr & Stone Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Lopez (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622, 132 Cal. Rptr. 641).

[Optional] C. Consideration Need Not Be Pecuniary. The consideration required by Civil Code Section 2794(4) to remove a promise from the statute of frauds need not be pecuniary (Farr & Stone Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Lopez (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622, 132 Cal. Rptr. 641).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the statute of frauds [Civ. Code §§ 1624(a)(2), 2793] does not apply to an oral agreement to pay the obligation of another if the promise was given on a consideration beneficial to the promisor [Civ. Code § 2794(4)]. The issue would most likely be raised in opposing a statute of frauds defense in an action for breach of contract.

This form may be used in a trial or appellate brief, or in a memorandumsubmitted in any other procedural context in which a party seeks to raise this contention. For example, it may be used to oppose a defendant's motion for summary judgment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, in opposing a defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the contract is not enforceable, counsel would include discussion of the moving and opposing affidavits showing that there is, at least, a triable issue concerning the consideration moving to the person whose promise is answer for the debt of another. In this regard, counsel should establish that the promisor's leading and main object is to serve his or her own purpose. An indirect or secondary benefit to the promisor is insufficient [see Seneca Communications, Inc. v. International Bank of California (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 541, 550-551, 163 Cal. Rptr. 176 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 1974, which requires representations as to third party's credit to be in writing; bank's desire to retain patronage of customer regarding whose account representation was made was held to be insufficient benefit)].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities should be combined with others, as necessary, relating to the procedural context in which they are used. For example, if used in a memorandum opposing a motion for summary judgment, they may be combined with appropriate points and authorities set out in Ch. 221, Summary Judgments .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.30 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Leading and Main Object of Promisor Is to Serve Own Interest

In Schumm v. Berg (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 174, 231 P.2d 39 , the plaintiff was the child of unmarried parents who entered into an oral contract providing for the father to support the plaintiff in consideration of the mother's refraining from bringing a paternity suit before the plaintiff's birth. The mother also agreed that the plaintiff would have his father's given name. The plaintiff was to bear the surname of another man, whose marriage to the mother before the plaintiff's birth was contemplated by the contract. The mother fulfilled her obligations under the contract, but the father did not provide the agreed support. After the father's death, the plaintiff, by guardian ad litem, sued his father's estate as the third-party beneficiary of the contract. The trial court entered a judgment of dismissal after sustaining the defendants' demurrer to the complaint. The defendants challenged the contract as invalid under the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(2)], characterizing it as a promise to answer for the obligation of the mother's husband to support the plaintiff. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. Assuming that the mother's husband would be liable for support, the promise was not one to the plaintiff to answer for the husband's debt but was an original promise to the mother. Moreover, under Civ. Code § 2794(4), a promise to answer for the debt of another is deemed an original obligation and not within the statute of frauds when it is given on consideration beneficial to the promisor (37 Cal. 2d 174, 187) . Whenever the leading and main object of the promisor is not to become surety or guarantor of another but is to subserve some purpose or interest of his or her own, the promise is not within the statute of frauds, even though the effect of the promise may be to pay the debt or discharge the obligation of another [Greenfield v. Sudden Lumber Co. (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 709, 64 P.2d 1007] . The mother's promise to name the child after the father and to refrain from instituting an action was beneficial to the father (37 Cal. 2d 174, 187) . The important question was whether the promises made were in fact assumptions of another's liability or the primary obligation of the promisor, and the precise language used was important in determining whether the promise was conditional and collateral or an independent and original undertaking (37 Cal. 2d 174, 187-188) .

In Farr & Stone Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Lopez (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 132 Cal. Rptr. 641 , the plaintiff, an insurance agent, advanced premium payments to insurance carriers on behalf of an automobile products company, which was behind in its payments. The defendant was chairman of the board of the automobile products company, and his children assumed its management on a promise that they would share in its ownership. When an agreement regarding payment of the past-due premiums and future premiums was reached between the company and the plaintiff, the defendant promised that if the company did not pay the premiums he would pay them out of his own checkbook. As a result, the plaintiff refrained from canceling the insurance policies on which the plaintiff could have recovered substantial rebates for prepaid premiums it had advanced. The company did not make the payments it had agreed on, and after the defendantsent a letter to the plaintiff disavowing any association of the defendant or his children with the company, the plaintiff sued for the premiums. The defendant appealed from an adverse judgment entered after trial, contending that the statute of frauds barred enforcement of the agreement. The plaintiff argued that the agreement was excepted from the statute of frauds by Civ. Code § 2794(4), which provides that promises to answer for the debt of another made on consideration beneficial to the promisor are deemed original obligations and need not be in writing.

The court of appeal affirmed. Whenever the leading and main object of the promisor is not to become surety or guarantor of another but to subserve some purpose or interest of his or her own, the promise is not within the statute of frauds even though performance of the promise may pay the debt or discharge the obligation of another [Merritt v. J.A. Stafford Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 619, 628, 68 Cal. Rptr. 447, 440 P.2d 927] . The plaintiff's forbearance to cancel the insurance policies was a detriment to the plaintiff and a benefit to the defendant's children, who had a promised ownership interest in the company. Reasoning that the defendant had a direct and personal interest in the welfare of his children and their economic venture, and that the defendant's own business reputation was at stake since he had assumed the title of chairman of the board and undertaken to save the failing company, the court held that the statute of frauds did not apply (61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 621-622) . The important question is whether the promise is only an assumption of another's liability or a new and primary obligation of the promisor. The evidence supported the trial court's finding that the defendant undertook a new and primary obligation in return for the plaintiff's continued support (61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622) .

[b] Consideration Need Not Be Pecuniary

The facts and procedural background of Farr & Stone Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Lopez (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 132 Cal. Rptr. 641 , are discussed in [a], above. The court of appeal held that the consideration beneficial to the promisor required for a promise to answer for the debt of another to be deemed an original obligation under Civ. Code § 2794(4) need not be pecuniary, although it usually is [see Schumm v. Berg (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 174, 187-188, 231 P.2d 39 (discussed in [a], above; part of consideration was agreement to name child after promisor)]. The statute of frauds did not apply when the consideration beneficial to the promisor related to his business reputation and his interest in the welfare of his children and their economic venture (61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Leading and Main Object of Promisor Is to Serve Own Interest

Michael Distributing Co. v. Tobin (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 655, 37 Cal. Rptr. 518 , was an action on the defendant's oral promise to supply funds to a corporation that was engaged in construction of a housing project, so that the corporation could pay the plaintiff for lumber supplied to the corporation for the project. Applying the leading-and-main-purpose rule, the court of appeal found that the defendant, as the owner of 51 percent of the stock of the corporation, personally benefitted from the consideration for his promise, which was the continuing delivery of building supplies, and that the evidence supported the conclusion that his prospective pecuniary benefit from the success of the project was the main purpose of his promise. The court held that an inference of suretyship was not required merely because the defendant's promise was to pay the amount through the corporation rather than to the plaintiff directly (225 Cal. App. 2d 655, 666) .

Regus v. Schartkoff (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 382, 319 P.2d 721 , was an action for personal damages. The plaintiff had been bitten by a dog owned by persons insured by the defendant insurance company. The plaintiff alleged that an agent of the insurance company had orally promised to pay all of the plaintiff's damages if the plaintiff would not retain legal counsel and would refrain from filing suit against the insureds. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint, but the court of appeal reversed, applying the leading-and-main-purpose rule to find that the promise came within the scope of Civ. Code § 2794(4) (156 Cal. App. 2d 382, 390-391) .

The plaintiff in Raboff v. Albertson (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 555, 265 P.2d 139 , lent money to the defendant's husband for the purchase of a house and a car, but an "IOU" given to the plaintiff, which was intended to create a lien on the house, was insufficient to do so. When the defendant's husband died, the defendant succeeded to his interest in the house as a joint tenant and promised the plaintiff that she would pay the balance due on the loan if the plaintiff would not take action against her personally, would purchase her late husband's stock in a corporation, and would put her on the payroll of the corporation for one year. The court of appeal, in affirming a judgment for the plaintiff, applied the leading-and-main-object rule and found that the promise was the original obligation of the defendant made on consideration beneficial to her within the meaning of Civ. Code § 2794(4) (122 Cal. App. 2d 555, 558-561) .

17 of 176 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities §§ 216.33-216.39

[Reserved]

§§ 216.33[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.40

§ 216.40 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced--Agreement to Share in Net Profits Under Oil and Gas Lease May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT ON WHICH THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS RELYING IS A CONTRACT FOR THE SALE OF [AN INTEREST IN] REAL PROPERTY AND, THEREFORE, IS UNENFORCEABLE BECAUSE IT IS NOT IN WRITING SUBSCRIBED BY THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT].

A. Writing Is Required. An agreement for the sale of real property or of an interest therein is invalid unless it, or a note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or his or her agent (Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)).

[Optional] B. Statute Covers Restrictions on Right to Alienate Real Property. Agreements restricting the right to alienate real property are within the statute of frauds (Estate of Baglione (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 192, 197, 53 Cal. Rptr. 139, 417 P.2d 683).

[Optional] C. Statute Covers Option to Purchase Real Property. An option to purchase real property falls within the statute of frauds (Woods v. Bradford (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 501, 505, 62 Cal. Rptr. 391).

[Optional] D. Statute Covers Oil and Gas Rights. An agreement to assign or transfer an interest in oil and gas rights is within the statute of frauds (Anderson v. Stansbury (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 707, 715, 242 P.2d 305).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an alleged agreement is unenforceable under the statute of frauds because it is an agreement for the sale of real property or an interest in real property, and it is not contained in a writing subscribed by the party to be charged. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever the adverse party relies on such a contract. The argument would most likely be raised in defense of actions for breach of contract or specific performance. The issue might also arise in an action for declaratory relief or to quiet title.

An agreement to share in the net profits realized under an oil and gas lease, as opposed to an agreement to receive an interest in the oil and gas produced under the lease, is not required to be in writing under the statute of frauds [Dutton v. Interstate Inv. Corp. (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 65, 69-70, 119 P.2d 138] .

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Chapters

For discussion of the statute of frauds generally and avoiding the statute of frauds, as well as discussion and forms related to pleading the statute of frauds, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[e] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in §§ 216.44 et seq., 216.92 et seq., 216.110 et seq., and 216.130 et seq. may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute Covers Restrictions on Right to Alienate Real Property

In Estate of Baglione (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 192, 53 Cal. Rptr. 139, 417 P.2d 683 , a widow sued her late husband's executor to enforce an alleged contract between her and her husband providing that the survivor would succeed to all property acquired by the parties during the marriage. After a stipulation that the contract was oral, the trial court sustained a demurrer without leave to amend and entered judgment dismissing the action. The plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. Agreements restricting the right to alienate real property or to make provisions for any person by will are within the statute of frauds [Civ. Code §§ 1091, 1624(a)(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971] and the plaintiff failed to allege sufficient facts to estop the defendant executor from asserting the statute of frauds (65 Cal. 2d 192, 197-198) .

[b] Statute Covers Option to Purchase Real Property

Woods v. Bradford (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 501, 62 Cal. Rptr. 391 , was an action for partition of a ranch owned by the parties as tenants in common. The plaintiff had purchased his interest from the defendant's former husband. The defendant alleged that she and her husband, before trial of their divorce action and in contemplation of equal division of the ranch, had orally agreed that the husband would convey his interest in the ranch to the defendant so that she could have the ranch as her own. The value of the husband's interest in the ranch was to be credited to him in connection with another ranch owned by the defendant and her husband. The court in the divorce action did order that the ranch be sold and its proceeds be divided equally but did not make provision for the time or manner of carrying out the sale, and the husband subsequently sold his interest to theplaintiff, who started the partition action. When the trial court in the partition action rejected the defendant's attempt to litigate her claim to the property based on the agreement because of her failure to assert the claim in the earlier divorce action, she claimed that the effect of the agreement was to give her a first right to buy her husband's interest from him. The trial court refused to allow proof of the alleged oral agreement. The defendant appealed from an adverse interlocutory judgment of partition.

The court of appeal affirmed. The defendant's claim that the agreement gave her a first right to buy was no improvement to her position because options to purchase real property are within the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)] and must be in writing (254 Cal. App. 2d 501, 505) .

[c] Statute Covers Oil and Gas Rights

In Anderson v. Stansbury (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 707, 242 P.2d 305 , the plaintiffs held a one-fourth interest in an oil and gas prospecting permit on a tract of land from the federal government, and the defendants held the remaining interests in the permit. The defendants and the plaintiffs' predecessors in interest entered into an operating agreement with an oil company for development of the land, and the oil company received a 20-year lease from the government with a preferential right of renewal for successive 10-year periods. Operations proved unprofitable. The oil company offered to reassign the lease to the plaintiffs and the defendants at the end of the 20-year term, if they would pay for the company's pumping equipment on the property. One of the defendants, Stansbury, urged the plaintiffs to contribute to the expenses of buying the pumping equipment and getting a surety bond required for renewal of the lease. The plaintiffs declined to contribute and informed Stansbury that they did not want to continue to hold the interest. Stansbury found another party to take over the plaintiffs' interest, and the plaintiffs executed a written disclaimer of any and all interest and rights, including reserved royalties under the operating agreement, and providing that anyone other than themselves might apply for renewal of the lease. Stansbury proceeded to manage the property and obtained another oil company to take over its operation. The oil company was not satisfied with the sufficiency of the plaintiffs' previous disclaimer, so the plaintiffs, at Stansbury's request, executed another disclaimer and assignment. Operations under the renewal lease were potentially profitable, and the plaintiffs sued the defendants, alleging that the second disclaimer and the assignment were obtained by fraud and seeking a declaration of their rights in the renewal lease, an accounting, and a declaration of a trust. At trial, the court excluded the plaintiffs' offered proof that Stansbury had orally agreed that the plaintiffs should retain their one-fourth interest, even though they signed the disclaimer and assignment to satisfy the oil company. Under this agreement, the plaintiffs were to return an $800 check given to them by Stansbury for the nuisance of executing the disclaimer and assignment. The plaintiffs also offered to prove that Stansbury thereafter sent them a letter stating that it was not "strictly true" that the plaintiffs had "no further interest in the lease, legal or equitable" under "the proposed agreement." The plaintiffs appealed from a judgment for the defendants.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The objections to testimony relating to the agreement between the plaintiffs and Stansbury were properly sustained. The agreement, if it existed, related to incorporeal interests in real property and was thus barred by the statute of frauds because there was no memorandum of it in writing subscribed by the party to be charged, as required by Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3). Stansbury's letter was not a memorandum of the alleged agreement but was merely a proposal that the plaintiffs rejoin the enterprise on terms to be decided in the future (38 Cal. 2d 707, 715) . The plaintiffs contended that their partial performance of the agreement avoided the statute of frauds; however, the Court held that neither the payment of money (return of the check) nor the disclaimer of a nonexistent interest was sufficient to constitute partial performance (38 Cal. 2d 707, 715-716) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Covers Option to Purchase Real Property

In Bovo v. Abrahamson (1929) 100 Cal. App. 373, 280 P. 191 , the court of appeal affirmed the trial court's judgment denying the plaintiff the right to redeem certain real property from the defendant and quieting title in the defendant. The defendant was a creditor of the plaintiff and had bought the plaintiff's property when it was sold under another creditor's deed of trust. The defendant's subsequent agreement to reconvey the property to the plaintiff on her payment to the defendant of certain amounts of money within 18 months constituted an option to purchase; since the agreement was neither in writing nor to be performed within one year [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1), (4)], the action was barred (100 Cal. App. 373, 383) .

[b] Statute Covers Oil and Gas Rights

In Ventura v. Colgrove (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 136, 75 Cal. Rptr. 495 , the court of appeal affirmed a judgment for the defendants in an action to impress a trust on part of an oil and gas sublease or to compel assignment of it, or for damages for breach of an oral agreement to assign it. One of the grounds relied on by both the trial and appellate courts was that the action was barred by the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3); Prob. Code § 15206] because the alleged agreements were not in writing (270 Cal. App. 2d 136, 142, 163) .

In Denio v. Brennecke (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 678, 45 P.2d 229 , the plaintiffs alleged that the defendants had orally agreed to give the plaintiffs 1 percent of all the oil, gas, and other hydrocarbons produced and saved from a particular parcelin return for the plaintiffs' rendition of legal services. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint without leave to amend and entered judgment for the defendants, which was affirmed by the court of appeal on the ground that the agreement was within the statute of frauds as an assignment of an interest in real property (6 Cal. App. 2d 678, 680) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.41

§ 216.41 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property Interest Is Not Enforceable--Transfer of Estate in Real Property Must Be Made in Writing

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [specify party claiming interest in property] DOES NOT _____ [OWN THE REAL PROPERTY INVOLVED or HAVE _____ (specify interest claimed in property, e.g., A ONE-HALF UNDIVIDED INTEREST IN THE PROPERTY] BECAUSE THERE IS NO WRITING TRANSFERRING THE _____ [PROPERTY or specify interest involved] TO HIM/HER.

A. Writing Is Required. No estate or interest in real property, other than for leases for a term not exceeding one year, nor any power over or concerning it, or in any manner relating thereto, can be created, granted, assigned, surrendered, or declared, otherwise than by operation of law, or a conveyance or other instrument in writing, subscribed by the party creating, granting, assigning, surrendering, or declaring the same, or by the party's lawful agent authorized by writing (Code Civ. Proc. § 1971).

[Optional] B. Oral Lien Is Invalid. A lien on real property cannot be created by an oral agreement (Remainders, Inc. v. Bartlett (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 295, 298-299, 30 Cal. Rptr. 191).

[Optional] C. Statute Covers Restrictions on Right to Alienate of Real Property. [See § 216.40[1], Paragraph B, above.]

[Optional] D. Statute Covers Oil and Gas Rights. [See § 216.40[1], Paragraph D, above.]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an alleged transfer of an estate or interest in real property, other than a lease for a term not exceeding one year, is unenforceable because it is not contained in a writing subscribed by the transferor of the estate or interest. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever the adverse party relies on such a transfer. The argument would most likely be raised in actions to quiet title, for ejectment, or for foreclosure of an invalid oral lien.

In addition to Code Civ. Proc. § 1971, which is stated in Paragraph A in [1], above, Civ. Code § 1091 provides that an estate in real property, other than an estate at will or for a term not exceeding one year, can be transferred only by operation of law or by a written instrument subscribed by the party disposing of the estate, or by his or her agent with written authority. In addition, a trust in relation to real property is not valid unless evidenced by a written instrument signed by the trustee or the trustee's agent if authorized in writing to do so, or by a written instrument conveying the trust property signed by the settlor or the settlor's agent if authorized in writing to do so, or by operation of law [Prob. Code § 15206].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For authority that a promise to grant a lien on real property is within the statute of frauds, see § 216.42 and Landes Constr. Co. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365 (discussed in § 216.61[3][a]).

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.44 et seq. may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Oral Lien Is Invalid

Remainders, Inc. v. Bartlett (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 295, 30 Cal. Rptr. 191 , was, in part, an action to foreclose a lien on real property allegedly given as security for payment of legal fees. A default judgment was entered granting the plaintiff some of the relief requested but denying foreclosure. On the plaintiff's appeal, the court of appeal affirmed. The court held that a lien on real property cannot be created by an oral agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 1971] (215 Cal. App. 2d 295, 298-299) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.42

§ 216.42 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property Interest Is Not Enforceable--Agreement to Grant Lien on Real Property Must Be in Writing

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PROMISE ON WHICH THE _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] RELIES IS ONE _____ [TO GRANT A LIEN ON REAL PROPERTY and/or BY A PURCHASER OF REAL PROPERTY TO PAY OR ASSUME AN INDEBTEDNESS SECURED BY THAT PROPERTY] AND, THEREFORE, IS UNENFORCEABLE BECAUSE IT IS NOT IN WRITING SUBSCRIBED BY THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT] OR HIS/HER/ITS AGENT [AND WAS NOT SPECIFICALLY PROVIDED FOR IN THE CONVEYANCE OF THE PROPERTY].

A. Promise to Grant Lien on Real Property Must Be Written. A promise to grant a lien on real property as security for a debt is invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party who will be granting the lien or by that party's lawful agent authorized in writing (Landes Constr. Co. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365, 1370 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1971).

B. Promise to Pay Mortgage Must Be Written. An agreement by a purchaser of real property to pay an indebtedness secured by a mortgage or deed of trust on the property purchased is invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged, or by that party's agent, or unless assumption of the indebtedness by the purchaser is specifically provided for in the conveyance of the property (Landes Constr. Co. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365, 1370 ; see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(6)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a prospective borrower's alleged promise to grant a lien on real property or a purchaser's promise to pay or assume an indebtedness secured by the property purchased is unenforceable under the statute of frauds because it is neither contained in a writing subscribed by the purchaser nor specifically provided for in the conveyance [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(6)]. See § 216.90 et seq. for points and authorities regarding the sufficiency of the written memorandum.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities in §§ 216.40[1], 216.41[1], and 216.43[1], which also address real property transactions and the statute of frauds.

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Promise to Grant Lien on Real Property Must Be Written

Landes Constr. Co. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365 , is discussed in § 216.61[3][a].

[b] Promise to Pay Mortgage Must Be Written

Landes Constr. Co. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365 , is discussed in § 216.61[3][a].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.43

§ 216.43 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property Interest Is Not Enforceable--Oral Contract to Lease Real Property for More Than One Year Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT ON WHICH THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS RELYING IS A CONTRACT FOR THE LEASE OF [AN INTEREST IN] REAL PROPERTY AND, THEREFORE, IS INVALID AND UNENFORCEABLE BECAUSE IT IS NOT IN WRITING AND SIGNED BY THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT].

Writing Signed by Party to be Charged Is Required. When read together, Civil Code Sections 1091 and 1624 and Code of Civil Procedure Section 1971 provide that an agreement to lease real property for a term longer then one year cannot be enforced by a lessee unless the agreement is in writing and signed by the lessor (Bed, Bath & Beyond v. La Jolla Village Square (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 867, 875-877, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an alleged agreement is unenforceable under the statute of frauds because it is an agreement for the lease of real property or of an interest in real property and is not contained in a writing signed by the party to be charged. The argument supported by the above memorandum may be raised whenever the adverse party relies on such a contract. It would most likely be raised in actions for breach of contract or specific performance. The argument might also arise in an action for declaratory relief or to quiet title.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Signed by Party to be Charged Is Required

In Bed, Bath & Beyond v. La Jolla Village Square (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 867, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830 , the plaintiff negotiated for a lease of retail space in a shopping center owned by the defendant. The negotiated terms of the lease were reduced to a written agreement, which the plaintiff, but not the defendant, signed. The defendant then leased the premises for higher rent to a competitor of the plaintiff. The plaintiff sued for specific performance and damages for breach of contract, fraud, and interference with contractual relations and prospective economic advantage. The trial court granted summary adjudication against the plaintiff, concluding that the alleged lease agreement was within the statute of frauds. The plaintiff appealed, contending among other things that the lease agreement was not rendered unenforceable by the statute of frauds. The plaintiff argued that the lease agreement was not subject to the statute of frauds because it possibly could have been performed within one year from the date of its making. One provision of the lease provided that the tenant could terminate the lease before the rental term commenced if the landlord failed to begin preparatory work on the leased premises, or substantially complete it, by a certain date. Another provision gave the landlord the right to terminate the lease before commencement of the rental term if the landlord was unable to obtain the various governmental permits and approvals required for construction of the premises despite exercising diligence and good faith in attempting to do so.

The court of appeals affirmed. The trial court correctly ruled that the statute of frauds rendered the alleged lease agreement unenforceable (52 Cal. App. 4th 867, 873) . Three statutes of fraud applied to bar enforcement of the alleged lease in this case: Civ. Code §§ 1091 and 1624 and Code Civ. Proc. § 1971 (52 Cal. App. 4th 867, 874-875) . When all three sections were read together, it was clear that the Legislature intended that an agreement to lease real property for a term longer than one year cannot be enforced by a lessee unless the agreement is in writing and signed by the lessor. The court distinguished paragraphs (a)(1) and (a)(4) of Civ. Code § 1624, finding that paragraph (a)(4) applied as the more specific provision. An agreement to lease real property for a term longer than one year is within Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4) regardless of whether the agreement provides that it may be canceled or terminated within one year from the date of its making and before commencement of the lease term. Accordingly, the alleged lease agreement was unenforceable under the statute of frauds, as it was an agreement to lease real property for a term longer than one year and was not signed by the lessor (52 Cal. App. 4th 867, 877) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.44

§ 216.44 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced--Agreement to Contribute Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE AGREEMENT FORMING THE JOINT VENTURE WAS NOT REQUIRED TO BE IN WRITING EVEN THOUGH THE CONTRIBUTION OF ONE OF THE PARTIES TO THE JOINT VENTURE CONSISTS OF REAL PROPERTY.

Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture Involving Real Property. An agreement to form a joint venture concerning real property is not within the statute of frauds, even though the agreement provides for one of the parties to contribute or to sell real property to the venture (Gross v. Raeburn (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 792, 796-799, 33 Cal. Rptr. 432).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)] does not apply to anoral agreement to form a joint venture, even though the agreement provides for one of the parties to sell real property to the venture as his or her contribution. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party whenever the adverse party urges that such an agreement is invalid under Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3). The argument would most likely be raised in an action for breach of contract or to dissolve the joint venture and request an accounting.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that the agreement is in the nature of a joint venture [see, e.g., James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 748, 309 P.2d 91] .

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture Involving Real Property

Gross v. Raeburn (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 792, 33 Cal. Rptr. 432 , was an action for declaratory relief concerning, in part, a joint venture involving two contiguous parcels of real property, dissolution and winding up of the joint venture, and damages for breach of contract and fraud. The trial court found that the defendants had been the owners of one of the parcels when the parties agreed that they would purchase the adjoining parcel and develop the two parcels together. The agreement provided for the defendants to convey to the plaintiffs an undivided half interest in the that parcel the defendants already owned. The plaintiffs were to compensate the defendants for the interest conveyed. The parties bought the adjacent parcel together, but the defendants refused to convey the agreed interest in their parcel to the plaintiffs, and the plaintiffs sued. The trial court entered judgment for the plaintiffs and denied the defendants' motion for a new trial. On appeal, the defendants contended that an oral agreement of joint venture concerning real property violates the statute of frauds when the real property was owned by one of the joint venturers before formation of the joint venture.

The court of appeal affirmed. An agreement to form a joint venture pursuant to which one of the parties is to sell real property to the venture as part of his or her contribution is not within the statute of frauds [James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 748-749, 309 P.2d 91 (discussed in [4][a], below)] (219 Cal. App. 2d 792, 796-799) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture Involving Real Property

The plaintiff in Epstein v. Stahl (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 53, 1 Cal. Rptr. 143 , alleged that he and the defendant had entered into an oral joint venture pursuant to which the plaintiff was to provide services, labor, material, and tools to renovate four buildings on property owned by the defendant, and the defendant was to provide money for the renovation and convey to the plaintiff a half interest in the buildings and the real property on which they stood. After the plaintiff performed all of his obligations under the agreement and bought two additional parcels to use for parking in connection with the renovated property, the defendant refused to perform, and the plaintiff sued to dissolve the joint venture and for an accounting. The court of appeal, reversing a judgment of dismissal entered after a demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, held that the action was not barred by any statute of frauds [see Civ. Code §§ 1091, 1624(a)(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971] (176 Cal. App. 2d 53, 63-64) .

In James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 309 P.2d 91 , the plaintiff sued two coventurers for damages, alleging a conspiracy to exclude her from further participation in their oral joint venture and to deprive her of her share in the net profits. The plaintiff alleged that the parties had agreed that one defendant was to contribute three parcels of realty for which he would be compensated by the venture, the other defendant was to arrange financing and supervise construction of improvements on the property, and the plaintiff was to contribute services in managing the venture; and profits were to be divided equally. The court of appeal reversed a judgment dismissing the plaintiff's action after a demurrer to the complaint was sustained. The sale of real property to the venture as one party's contribution to it did not bring the agreement within the statute of frauds (149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 748-749) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.45

§ 216.45 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced--Agreement to Engage in Joint Venture to Buy or Sell Real Property May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE AGREEMENT IS NOT WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE IT IS AN AGREEMENT TO ENGAGE IN A JOINT VENTURE TO _____ [BUY or SELL or BUY AND SELL] REAL PROPERTY.

Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture to Buy or Sell Real Property. A joint venture agreement to buy or sell real property need not be in writing because it is not within the statute of frauds (Jaffe v. Heffner (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 512, 516, 343 P.2d 374).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the statute of frauds does not apply to an oral agreement to form a joint venture even though the agreement provides for the parties to buy or sell real property together. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever the adverse party urges that such an agreement is invalid under Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3). The argument would most likely be raised in actions for breach of contract, to quiet title, and to declare that one of the coventurers holds the property involved in trust for the other.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that the agreement is in the nature of a joint venture [see, e.g., James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal.

App. 2d 741, 748, 309 P.2d 91 (discussed in § 216.44[4][a]); but see Mazzera v. Wolf (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 531, 535-537, 183 P.2d 649 (mere agreement to join in purchase of land with no evidence of agreement to go into business or joint venture sharing profits and losses was unenforceable under statute of frauds in absence of actual or constructive fraud)].

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture to Buy or Sell Real Property

The plaintiff in Jaffe v. Heffner (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 512, 343 P.2d 374 , as administratrix of her late husband's estate, sued the defendants to quiet title to an undivided half interest in a tract of land. The husband and one of the defendants had bought and resold 30 tax-title properties together over a period of about 10 years before the husband's death. Shortly before the husband's death, they had looked at the tract involved and agreed to jointly purchase it at $800, each to put up half of the price if the bid did not exceed that amount, and they paid $15 from a joint partnership account to the county tax collector to have the property advertised for public auction. The sale was advertised, but the husband died before the date set for the auction. The defendant told the plaintiff that he would take care of the purchase as if the husband had not died. However, the defendant subsequently refused the plaintiff's tender of half of the purchase price; and the defendant bid in the property, took title in his own name along with some of his family members, and returned half of the advanced cost of advertising to the plaintiff. The trial court concluded that the plaintiff owned an undivided half interest in the property and that the defendants held that interest in trust for the plaintiff.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court rejected the defendants' contention that the agreement to purchase the property was invalid because it was oral and within the statute of frauds. Such an undertaking by joint venturers is not within the statute of frauds [Lasry v. Lederman (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 480, 305 P.2d 663 (discussed in [4][a], below)] (173 Cal. App. 2d 512, 516) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Form Joint Venture to Buy or Sell Real Property

In Sadugor v. Holstein (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 477, 18 Cal. Rptr. 859 , the plaintiff sued to establish a trust in a half interest in real property that the plaintiff and one of the defendants had agreed to purchase together, each putting up half of the price. After their offer had been accepted by the seller, and on the day escrow was to close, the defendant insisted on a change in the terms of the oral joint venture agreement and demanded that the plaintiff put up half of the price in cash and sign a note and deed of trust on the property relating to a loan to the defendant in excess of half of the value of the property. When the plaintiff refused, the defendant purchased the property alone. The court of appeal, in affirming a judgment for the plaintiff, stated that a partnership for the purpose of buying land may be formed by oral agreement (199 Cal. App. 2d 477, 480) . In holding that the defendant violated a confidential relationship between the parties, the court distinguished Mazzera v. Wolf (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 531, 537, 183 P.2d 649 , which held that an oral agreement to join in the purchase of land ordinarily does not give rise to a constructive trust when one of the parties purchases the property for himself or herself, in the absence of fraud in procuring the title or abuse of a confidential relationship. The court of appeal noted that the parties in the case before it had made a joint offer, that they had both advanced funds for a deposit accompanying the offer pursuant to an oral joint venture agreement, that jointventurers are reciprocal fiduciaries (199 Cal. App. 2d 477, 482-483) .

In Lasry v. Lederman (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 480, 305 P.2d 663 , the plaintiff and the defendants had orally agreed to enter into a joint venture to purchase and renovate a vacant building for eventual resale. The defendants had instead bought the building for themselves, and the plaintiff sued for declaratory relief and an accounting. The trial court granted the defendants' motion for nonsuit at the close of the plaintiff's case, holding that no joint venture was proved. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the plaintiff's testimony was sufficient to establish creation of a joint venture agreement. The court stated that such an undertaking by joint venturers is not within the statute of frauds. The court also noted, however, that if there had been no joint venture between the parties, the agreement would have been invalid because it was not in writing [Mazzera v. Wolf (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 531, 183 P.2d 649] (147 Cal. App. 2d 480, 487-488) .

In Fitzgerald v. Provines (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 529, 227 P.2d 860 , the court of appeal, affirming a judgment declaring the plaintiff and the defendant to each own an undivided half interest in an apartment house, ordering the defendant to make an accounting to the plaintiff, and appointing a receiver to sell the property, held that a joint venture in the purchase and sale of real property may be formed by oral agreement and is not within the statute of frauds (102 Cal. App. 2d 529, 538).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.46

§ 216.46 Oral Contract for Conveyance of Real Property to Joint Venture May Be Enforced--Agreement to Share in Net Profits Under Oil and Gas Lease May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

AN AGREEMENT TO SHARE IN THE NET PROFITS REALIZED UNDER AN OIL AND GAS LEASE IS NOT REQUIRED TO BE IN WRITING.

Writing Is Not Required to Share in Profits. An agreement that a party will receive a share in the net profits realized by another under an oil and gas lease, as opposed to an agreement that a party receive an interest in the oil and gas produced under the lease, is not required to be in writing (Dutton v. Interstate Inv. Corp. (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 65, 69-70, 119 P.2d 138).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)] does not apply to an oral agreement to share in the profits realized under an oil and gas lease. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party whenever the adverse party urges that such an agreement is invalid under Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3). The argument would most likely be raised in an action for breach of contract and for an accounting.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that the agreement is for the division of the profits realized, rather than for the division of the oil and gas produced.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Writing Is Not Required to Share in Profits

In Dutton v. Interstate Inv. Corp. (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 65, 119 P.2d 138 , the plaintiff had ascertained that certain property owned by the City of Los Angeles was probably oil-bearing. He went to an acquaintance who was an oil scout, and they discussed leasing the property, but neither man met the financial requirements of the city for lessees for oil development. The plaintiff and the oil scout then interested the defendant in the transaction, and an agreement was made that the three parties would share the profits from the transaction equally. The defendant applied for the lease, as the defendant was believed to meet the city's financial prerequisites for a lessee. After the defendant obtained a 20-year lease (or permit), the defendant made a settlement with the oil scout but refused to recognize that the plaintiff had any right to compensation or any interest in the profits from the transaction. The plaintiff sued to determine his interest in the profits and for an accounting. The defendant appealed from an interlocutory judgment determining that the plaintiff had a one-third interest in the net profits and ordering an accounting, and from the final judgment entered after the accounting.

The Supreme Court affirmed. An agreement assigning a fractional interest in oil and hydrocarbons produced under an oil and gas lease constitutes a transfer of an interest in real property, which must be in writing under the statute of frauds, Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3) (19 Cal. 2d 65, 69) . However, the plaintiff's agreement in this case was not to receive one-third of the oil and gas produced under the lease butto receive one-third of the net profits realized by the defendant. An agreement to share the profits from a transaction involving real estate is not required to be in writing (19 Cal. 2d 65, 69-70) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities §§ 216.47-216.59

[Reserved]

§§ 216.47[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.60

§ 216.60 Oral Commitment for Loan Exceeding $100,000 Is Not Enforceable--Commercial Loan Commitment Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE PROMISE ON WHICH THE _____ [specify party, e.g., PLAINTIFF] RELIES IS ONE FOR _____ [A LOAN OF MONEY and/or AN EXTENSION OF CREDIT] IN EXCESS OF $100,000 FOR USE IN A COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISE AND, THEREFORE, IS UNENFORCEABLE BECAUSE IT IS NOT IN WRITING SUBSCRIBED BY THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT] OR HIS/HER/ITS AGENT.

Oral Commercial Loan Commitment in Excess of $100,000 Is Not Enforceable. A contract, promise, undertaking, or commitment to lend money or to grant or extend credit, in an amount greater than $100,000, not primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, made by a person engaged in the business of lending or arranging for the lending of money or extending of credit, is invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged, or by that party's agent (Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7)).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an alleged agreement is unenforceable under the statute of frauds because it is an agreement to make a loan or extend credit of more than $100,000 for other than a personal, family, or household purpose and it is not in a sufficient writing signed by the party to be charged or by its agent [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7)]. See § 216.90 et seq. for points and authorities regarding the sufficiency of the written memorandum. The argument is most likely to be raised by the defendant alleged to have made the oral loan commitment.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should set forth facts showing that his or her client is in the business of lending money or arranging for the lending of money or extending of credit. Counsel may also wish to include any statutory authority under which his or her client is licensed to lend money or arrange for the extension of credit [see, e.g., Fin. Code § 18000 et seq. (industrial loan companies)].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.61

§ 216.61 Oral Commitment for Loan Exceeding $100,000 May Be Enforced--Commitment for Loan Secured by Residential Real Property May Be Enforced

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE AGREEMENT FOR THE _____ [LOAN OF MONEY and/or EXTENSION OF CREDIT] IS NOT REQUIRED TO BE IN WRITING BECAUSE IT CONTEMPLATES A LOAN SECURED BY RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY CONSISTING OF ONE TO FOUR DWELLING UNITS.

A. Primary Purpose May Be Presumed. For purposes of the statute of frauds, a contract, promise, undertaking, or commitment to lend money secured solely by residential property consisting of one to four dwelling units must be deemed to be for personal, family, or household use (Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7)).

[Optional] B. Borrower's Promise to Grant Lien Is Severable. A borrower-buyer's oral promise to grant a lien on real property in return for the loan of money with which to purchase that property is severable from promises to repay principal and to pay interest and fees on the loan. [A borrower to whom a loan was made in that situation would still be required to grant the lien on the basis of estoppel and partial performance] (Landes Constr. Co. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365, 1370) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the statute of frauds does not apply to an oral agreement to make a loan or extend credit of more than $100,000 primarily for family, personal, or household purposes. The contention is based on the presumption that a loan secured solely by residential real property must be deemed to be primarily for family, personal, or household purposes [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7)]. See § 216.90 et seq. for points and authorities regarding the sufficiency of the written memorandum.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the factsof the case. For example, counsel should set forth facts describing the property and the terms of the agreement regarding the security.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Borrower's Promise to Grant Lien Is Severable

In Landes Constr. Co. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365 , the plaintiff entered into an agreement to purchase real property on Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles for $50 million. The plaintiff was to make a $10 million down payment in three installments of $1 million, $2 million, and $7 million; and the sellers were to take a $40 million note and deed of trust for the remainder of the purchase price. An officer of the defendant orally promised to lend $10 million on the project. The first $3 million was paid from advances under a line of credit that a company controlled by one of the plaintiff's principal shareholders had with the defendant. The defendant and the plaintiff's principals had financed other ventures this way; the advances were made under the other company's line of credit until the paperwork on the project's own loan was completed. The project's own loan in this case was an application for $22.5 million, $7 million of which would be used to pay the last installment of the down payment and the rest of which would be used to finance development of the property. Five days before the $7 million installment was due, the defendant rejected the loan application. The plaintiff forfeited the $3 million already paid. The plaintiff sued for damages for breach of contract and was awarded $18.5 million. The defendant appealed and argued that Code Civ. Proc. § 1971 brings within the bar of the statute of frauds any oral agreement in which one of the promises is to convey an interest in real estate.

The court of appeals affirmed. An oral agreement to lend money with which to purchase real property clearly falls outside California's statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(6); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971]. However, an oral agreement to grant a lien against real property is within the California statute of frauds (citing Remainders, Inc. v. Bartlett (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 295, 298-299, 30 Cal. Rptr. 191 , discussed in § 216.41[3][b]). When promises not within the statute of frauds are coupled with a promise that is within the statute, the former are enforceable if they are divisible or separable (citing White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 345-346, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 ; Pollyanna Homes, Inc. v. Berney (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 676, 678-679, 16 Cal. Rptr. 345, 365 P.2d 401 ; Magee v. McManus (1886) 70 Cal. 553, 557, 12 P. 451). This conforms with California's policy to restrict the application of the statute of frauds to those situations precisely covered by its language. The court had to assume that the jury concluded that the plaintiff promised to pay interest and loan fees and to repay principal in addition to its promise to grant the security interest (833 F.2d 1365, 1370) . Furthermore, the court said, its holding that the promise to grant the lien was divisible from the other promises would not permit the plaintiff to use the statute of frauds to avoid granting the lien. Under California law, the doctrines of estoppel and partial performance would prevent the plaintiff from asserting the statute of frauds after it had obtained the loan (833 F.2d 1365, 1370 n.1).

Landes was decided before the enactment of Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7). However, Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7) is expressly intended to be subject to judicially and legislatively recognized defenses and exceptions to Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)-(6) [see Stats. 1988, ch. 1096, § 3].

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
A. Contract Within Scope of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities §§ 216.62-216.69

[Reserved]

§§ 216.62[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
B. Agent Making Contract Within Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.70

§ 216.70 Written Contract Made by Agent Without Written Authority Is Not Enforceable

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT ON WHICH THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] IS RELYING IS INVALID AND UNENFORCEABLE BECAUSE IT IS WITHIN THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS AND WAS ENTERED INTO ON THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT'S] BEHALF BY AN AGENT WITHOUT WRITTEN AUTHORITY.

A. Contract Is Within Statute of Frauds. [Insert appropriate authorities to show that contract in question is within statute of frauds; see, e.g., § 216.10[1] if contract cannot be performed within one year or § 216.30[1] if contract is to answer for debt of another].

B. Written Authority to Contract Is Required. Authority to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing can be given only by an instrument in writing (Civ. Code § 2309).

[Optional] C. Authority to Fill in Blanks on Executed Document Must Be Written. An agent's authority to fill in blanks on a document already executed by his or her principal must be in writing if the document itself is required to be in writing by the statute of frauds (Monte Carlo Motors, Inc. v. Volkswagenwerk (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 107, 111, 1 Cal. Rptr. 920).

[Optional] D. Authority to Enter Contract for Spouse Must Be Written. There is no husband-wife exception to the statute of frauds requirement that authority to enter into a contract that is required to be in writing can be given only in writing (O'Banion v. Paradiso (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 559, 563-564, 39 Cal. Rptr. 370, 393 P.2d 682).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a contract, although written, is unenforceable under the statute of frauds because the contract is required to be in writing by law (namely, the statute of frauds), and it was entered into by an agent without written authority. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever the adverse party relies on such a contract.

These points and authorities are not appropriate for use when an agent who lacks written authority enters into an agreement for his or her principal that is required to be in writing by the agreement of the principal and the other contracting party, because an agent's authority to contract is required to be in writing only when the contract is required to be in writing by law, that is, by statute or judicial decision [see Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 610, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272] .

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should include discussion demonstrating that the contract is within a statute of frauds provision [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1624], that it was entered into by an agent of the person to be charged, and that the agent had no written authority to enter into the contract.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities supporting the contention that the contract entered into by the agent on behalf of his or her principal was within the statute of frauds [see, e.g., §§ 216.10[1], 216.30[1], 216.40[1]].

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.71 et seq. and § 216.131 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Authority to Fill in Blanks on Executed Document Must Be Written

In Monte Carlo Motors, Inc. v. Volkswagenwerk (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 107, 1 Cal. Rptr. 920 , the plaintiff was a retail distributor of the defendant's automobiles. An agent of the defendant approached the plaintiff with a proposal that the plaintiff become a wholesaler for the defendant's automobiles. The agent showed the plaintiff a contract signed by the defendant's general manager in Germany with blank spaces, which included the spaces for the other party's name and signature. The agent told the plaintiff that he would fill in the blanks and deliver the contract to the plaintiff when he returned from a trip. Shortly after hisreturn, however, the agent told the plaintiff that he had decided to retain the current wholesaler. In the meantime, the plaintiff had made expenditures and otherwise acted to its disadvantage in anticipation of the contract. The plaintiff sued for breach of contract, but after trial, the court found that the defendant was not estopped to assert the defenses that the contract violated the statute of frauds because it was not to be performed within one year [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)] and because the agent had no written authority to enter into it [Civ. Code § 2309]. The court entered judgment for the defendant, and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The authority of an agent to fill in blanks on a contract previously executed by the principal must be in writing if the contract itself is required to be in writing by the statute of frauds. The court distinguished the situation in which the unauthorized agent fills in blanks without the knowledge of a third person who subsequently relies on the contract to his or her detriment, in which case the principal is bound (177 Cal. App. 2d 107, 111) . The court then applied a consistent rule to the argument of estoppel, holding that a principal is not estopped to rely on Civ. Code § 2309 by the agent's mere possession of such an incomplete document but is estopped only when the agent fills in the blanks and delivers the completed instrument to the third person without the third person knowing that the blanks were not filled in when the principal executed the contract (177 Cal. App. 2d 107, 111-112) .

[b] Authority to Enter Contract for Spouse Must Be Written

In O'Banion v. Paradiso (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 559, 39 Cal. Rptr. 370, 393 P.2d 682 , the plaintiff accepted the written offer of a husband to sell a parcel of real property. The plaintiff deposited the purchase price in escrow at the husband's request. When the plaintiff informed the husband that all he had to do to get the money was go to the title company where the funds were in escrow and sign the deed, the husband informed the plaintiff that he was selling to third parties. The husband and wife proceeded to sell the property to the third parties, and the plaintiff sued the husband and wife and their buyers for specific performance and to quiet title. The trial court found that the husband had intended to include all of his wife's interest in the property in his offer, and that the wife had agreed to the conveyance in accordance with the terms of the written offer. Judgment was entered for the plaintiff, and the buyers appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The buyers had standing to raise the issue of the statute of frauds because they were in privity with the husband and wife who were parties to the alleged contract (61 Cal. 2d 559, 562-563) . Any contract made by a husband that is within the statute of frauds, such as a contract to sell real property, is unenforceable against the wife in the absence of a written authorization signed by the wife [Civ. Code § 2309] because there is no husband-wife exception to the statute of frauds (61 Cal. 2d 559, 563) . Thus, the wife could not be forced to perform the agreement because she had not given her husband written authority to execute the agreement on her behalf, even though she knew that her husband was selling the entire property to the plaintiff and intended for him to do so (61 Cal. 2d 559, 563-564) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Authority to Enter Contract for Spouse Must Be Written

In Tamimi v. Bettencourt (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 377, 52 Cal. Rptr. 273 , spouses sold a tract of real property after the wife had signed an exclusive listing authorizing the plaintiff, a real estate broker, to make the sale. The plaintiff sued to recover his commission, but the trial court rendered judgment for the defendants. The court of appeal reversed as to the wife but affirmed as to the husband because he had not signed the listing agreement, which was required to be in writing by Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4), and had not given written authorization to his wife to sign the listing agreement on his behalf, as required by Civ. Code § 2309. The court refused to recognize any implied authority for the wife to sign on her husband's behalf simply because the listing related to community property (243 Cal. App. 2d 377, 378) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
B. Agent Making Contract Within Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.71

§ 216.71 Written Contract May Be Enforced Even Though Made by Agent Without Written Authority--Executive Officer May Make Contract on Corporation's Behalf

[1] Executive Officer May Make Contract on Corporation's Behalf

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE WRITTEN CONTRACT ENTERED INTO ON BEHALF OF THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT] BY _____ [name of person signing contract for party to be charged] IS ENFORCEABLE AGAINST THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT] BECAUSE AN EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF A CORPORATION DOES NOT NEED WRITTEN AUTHORITY TO ENTER INTO A CONTRACT ON THE CORPORATION'S BEHALF EVEN THOUGH THE CONTRACT IS REQUIRED TO BE IN WRITING.

Written Authority Is Not Required. An executive officer of a corporation may, on behalf of the corporation, enter into a contract that is required to be in writing even though he or she does not have written authority to enter into the contract for the corporation (Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 17-18, 206 P.2d 847).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a written contract is not unenforceable even though it was entered into on behalf of the party to be charged by an agent without written authority. The ground for the contention is that the equal-dignity rule of Civ. Code § 2309, requiring an agent to have written authority to enter into a contract that is required to be in writing, is not applicable to contracts entered into on a corporation's behalf by one the executive officers. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on a contract within the statute of frauds executed by an executive officer of a corporation whenever the adverse party urges that the contract is invalid because the agent executing the contract lacked written authority to enter into it.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should include discussion of the agent's executive position with the corporation, such as president or general manager.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Written Authority Is Not Required

Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 206 P.2d 847 , was an action for damages for breach of a contract for the sale of real property. The president of the corporation negotiated the contract and signed the escrow instructions. The corporation refused to forward deeds to the escrow holder, however, stating that it had received a better offer. The trial court granted the defendants' motion for nonsuit on the ground that there was no evidence of a contract by any authorized officer of the corporation.

The Supreme Court reversed. The evidence supported an inference that the president of the corporation had actual oral authority to enter into the contract (34 Cal. 2d 11, 15) . The authority of an executive officer of a corporation to enter into contracts required to be in writing does not have to be in writing. This is an exception to the equal-dignity rule of the Civ. Code § 2309. An executive officer of a corporation should be excepted from the requirement of written authority because he or she is more than an agent; he or she is the representative of the corporation itself [E.K. Wood Lumber Co. v. Moore Mill & Lumber Co. (9th Cir. 1938) 97 F.2d 402, 408] . The Court disapproved language to the contrary in Corporation of America v. Harris (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 452, 459, 43 P.2d 307 .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Written Authority Is Not Required

Monteleone v. Southern California Vending Corp. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 798, 70 Cal. Rptr. 703 , was an action by a lessor for declaratory relief and damages based on breach of a lease of real property by the lessee, a corporation. The lease had been entered into on behalf of the corporation by a person who was neither an agent nor an employee of the corporation but who subsequently became its general manager and vice-president, and in that capacity, he ratified the lease. The court of appeal held that the ratification made the lease enforceable against the corporation even though the ratification was not in writing, as required by Civ. Code § 2310 when the original authority is required to be in writing under Civ. Code § 2309, because Civ. Code §§ 2309 and 2310 have no application to the acts of an executive officer of a corporation (264 Cal. App. 2d 798, 806) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
B. Agent Making Contract Within Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.72

§ 216.72 Written Contract May Be Enforced Even Though Made by Agent Without Written Authority--Contract May Be Enforced When Agent Merely Signed Contract at Principal's Direction

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE WRITTEN CONTRACT ENTERED INTO ON BEHALF OF THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT] BY _____ [name of person signing contract for party to be charged] IS ENFORCEABLE AGAINST THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT] BECAUSE _____ [name of person signing contract for party to be charged] MERELY PERFORMED THE MECHANICAL ACT OF SIGNING THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT'S] NAME TO THE CONTRACT AT THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT'S] DIRECTION.

A. Written Authority Is Not Required to Perform Mechanical Act of Signing Name. (Amanuensis Rule) An agent does not need written authority in order to perform the purely mechanical act, not involving any discretion, of signing the principal's name to a contract at the direction of the principal, even though the contract is required to be in writing (Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 674-675, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093 ; Murphy v. Munson (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 306, 311-313, 212 P.2d 603).

[Optional] B. Agent Is Not Required to Sign Contract in Principal's Immediate Presence. The amanuensis rule may apply when an agent, acting with merely mechanical and no discretionary authority, signs the principal's name outside the principal's presence (Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 675, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093).

[Optional] C. Agent Is Not Required to Be Disinterested Party. Although the signing of a grantor's name by an interested amanuensis is presumed to be invalid, the amanuensis may show that his or her signing of the grantor's name was a mechanical act in that the grantor intended to sign the document using the instrumentality of the amanuensis (Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 677-678, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a written agreement is not unenforceable even though it was executed on behalf of the party to be charged by an agent without written authority. The ground for the contention is that the equal dignity rule of Civ. Code § 2309, requiring an agent to have written authority to enter into a contract that is required to be in writing, does not apply to an agent's purely ministerial act, not involving the exercise of any discretion, of signing the principal's name to a contract at the direction of the principal. A person is acting as an "amanuensis" when he or she performs a mere mechanical function in signing a principal's name to a document. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on a contract within the statute of frauds that was signed by an agent at the direction of the principal whenever the adverse party urges that the contract is invalid because the agent lacked written authority to enter into the contract.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should include discussion of the transaction demonstrating that the agent who signed the contract had no discretion in relation to deciding whether or not to enter into the contract or what its terms would be but merely performed the mechanical act of signing the principal's name to the contract at the principal's direction.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Written Authority Is Not Required to Perform Mechanical Act of Signing Name (Amanuensis Rule)

In Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093 , a widower in declining health decided to make a gift of his home to his daughter. His son had moved to another state, whereas his daughter was involved in the daily activity of caring for her father. The father was losing his eyesight and had executed a durable power of attorney naming the daughter his attorney in fact. The father orally instructed his daughter to sign his name to a grant deed conveying his home to himself and to his daughter as joint tenants. His daughter executed the deed and had it notarized. Her father was not present at the time she signed the deed, but later orally ratified the conveyance. After the father's death, his son filed a petition for probate of the will and a petition to determine title and require transfer of the property to the estate pursuant to Prob. Code § 9860. The trial court declared the daughter to be the sole owner under the "amanuensis" rule, which provides that when the signing of a grantor's name is done with the grantor's express authority, the person signing the grantor's name is not deemed an agent but is instead regarded as a mere instrument or amanuensis of the grantor, and that signature is deemed to be that of the grantor. The court found that the daughter's signature of her father's name was a purely ministerial, mechanical act and was not an exercise of any authority under the power of attorney or otherwise as a fiduciary. By virtue of her father's instruction and his subsequent ratification, the signature on the deed was deemed to be the father's as a matter of law, meeting the requirement of Civ. Code § 1091 that a deed be executed by the grantor. Upon appeal, the court of appeal reversed. It held that under Civ. Code § 2309, the daughter's authority to execute the deed as her father's agent had to be in writing. It rejected the amanuensis theory because the deed was not signed in the grantor's presence (28 Cal. 4th 665, 669-671) .

The California Supreme Court reversed. It first noted that the daughter was not authorized to sign the deed as her father's agent, pursuant to Civ. Code §§ 1091, 2309, or Prob. Code § 4264. The respondents argued that the deed transaction should be valid as a deed signed by the father, because his daughter had acted as his amanuensis in that she performed a mere mechanical function in signing his name to the deed. The court noted that the amanuensis rule has successfully been invoked as an exception to Civ. Code § 2309. As discussed in [b] and [c], below, despite the fact that the daughter did not sign the deed in her father's presence, and the fact that she was an interested amanuensis, the Court held that the conveyancemust be deemed valid as a deed executed by father under Civ. Code § 1091 (28 Cal. 4th 665, 674, 678) .

Murphy v. Munson (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 306, 212 P.2d 603 , was an action for breach of a sales contract that came within the statute of frauds. In response to an inquiry from the defendant, the plaintiff had sent an offer to sell sawmill machinery to the defendant. The defendant told his clerk that he wanted to order the machinery. In the defendant's presence, the clerk made a written memorandum of the machinery the defendant told him to order. The clerk had no discretion as to what machinery to order or the terms of the contract but merely took the terms by dictation from his principal, transcribed the letter, and signed the defendant's name to it as he had been generally directed to do with such communications. After the defendant refused to accept the machinery, the plaintiff seller sued for breach of contract. The trial court rendered judgment for the defendant, and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Civ. Code § 2309 did not apply because it only requires an agent to have written authority to "enter into a contract" for the principal. The clerk in this case had not entered into the contract in the sense of exercising any discretion in making the agreement to purchase the machinery but had simply acted as a scrivener. An oral request to perform the purely mechanical act of signing the principal's name at the principal's request is valid whether the signing is done in or out of the principal's presence (95 Cal. App. 2d 306, 311-313) .

[b] Agent Is Not Required to Sign Contract in Principal's Immediate Presence

The facts and procedural background of Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093 , are discussed in [a], above. The California Supreme Court stated that application of the amanuensis rule was not confined to the situation in which an agent signs a contract in the principal's immediate presence. It may also apply when an agent, acting with merely mechanical and no discretionary authority, signs the principal's name outside the principal's presence. The Court rejected the formalistic notion that an amanuensis must sign the document in the presence of the principal. Whether the principal directs the amanuensis by telephone, or as in this case, tells the amanuensis to sign the document and the actual signing is done outside the principal's presence, courts are required to determine whether the signing is a mechanical act (28 Cal. 4th 665, 675-676).

[c] Agent Is Not Required to Be Disinterested Party

The facts and procedural background of Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093 , are discussed in [a], above. The California Supreme Court noted that the daughter who had signed her father's name to a grant deed conveying his home to himself and to his daughter as joint tenants claimed to be an amanuensis despite the fact that she was also the sole beneficiary of the transfer. No prior California decision addressed the issue of an "interested amanuensis." In such a case, the obvious concern is whether the transfer is a product of fraud, duress, or undue influence. The court stated that the amanuensis rule is an exception to Civ. Code §§ 2309 and 2310, and Prob. Code § 4264(c). Because unscrupulous parties could attempt to use the amanuensis rule to sidestep the protections contained in those code sections, the Court held that the signing of a grantor's name by an interested amanuensis must be presumed invalid. In such a case, the interested amanuensis bears the burden to show that his or her signing of the grantor's name was a mechanical act in that the grantor intended to sign the document using the instrumentality of the amanuensis. Here, given that the daughter was an interested party to the deed, it was presumed that her signing of her father's name was invalid. However, this presumption was successfully rebutted. The trial court had found, based on overwhelming evidence, that she signed the deed at her father's direct request. Because her signature was a mere mechanical act, and not an exercise of judgment or discretion, his oral instruction was sufficient. The court stated further that it was perfectly natural for a parent to be more bountiful to the child who has assumed the greatest burden of care and lavished the highest degree of solicitude on him. The court therefore held that the conveyance must be deemed valid as a deed executed by the grantor pursuant to Civ. Code § 1091 (28 Cal. 4th 665, 676-678) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Written Authority Is Not Required to Perform Mechanical Act of Signing Name (Amanuensis Rule)

Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 , involved a contract to sell a ranch. When the plaintiff's agent notified the plaintiff that the seller had signed the contract, the plaintiff told his agent to sign the plaintiff's name to the contract. The plaintiff's agent did so, signing "Herbert E. Ellis, Jr. By Antone L. Ratto Jr." After the seller refused to go through with the deal, the plaintiff sued for specific performance and damages. The defendant appealed from a judgment for the plaintiff. The Supreme Court reversed and rejected, on several grounds, the defendant's contention that the plaintiff could not rely on the contract because the plaintiff's agent did not have written authority to enter into the contract, as required by Civ. Code §§ 1624(a)(3) and 2309. The agent's signing of the plaintiff's name was purely a mechanical act that did not involve the exercise of discretion. Written authorization from the principal is not necessary, and the signature is to be treated as that of the principal whether or not the principal was present at the execution of the contract (60 Cal. 2d 206, 214) .

In Kadota Fig Ass'n v. Case-Swayne Co. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 796, 167 P.2d523 , the court of appeal rejected an argument that a surety stay bond required in relation to an attachment of personal property was void for failure to have been properly executed. The proper agent of the surety company, who did have written authority from the company, personally approved the terms and conditions, including the amount, of the bond, but he was not available to sign it and orally directed a judge of the court in which the underlying action was pending to sign the agent's name to the bond. The judge did so, and the court of appeal held that the signature was proper, as no discretion was involved in signing the agent's name, which was a purely mechanical act. The court held that Civ. Code § 2309 did not apply because the judge was not given the authority to "enter into a contract" but only to sign the properly authorized agent's name (73 Cal. App. 2d 796) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
B. Agent Making Contract Within Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.73

§ 216.73 Written Contract May Be Enforced Even Though Made by Agent Without Written Authority--Written Authority Is Not Required When Contract Is Between Principal and Agent

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

_____ [specify contention, e.g., THE PLAINTIFF IS ENTITLED TO INDEMNITY FROM THE DEFENDANT FOR DAMAGES THAT THE PLAINTIFF WAS REQUIRED TO PAY TO _____ (name) BECAUSE OF THE DEFENDANT'S BREACH OF THE CONTRACT THAT THE PLAINTIFF MADE WITH _____ (name) ON THE DEFENDANT'S BEHALF], EVEN THOUGH THE CONTRACT WAS UNENFORCEABLE BY _____ [name] AGAINST THE DEFENDANT UNDER CIVIL CODE SECTION 2309 BECAUSE THE PLAINTIFF'S AUTHORITY TO CONTRACT FOR THE DEFENDANT WAS NOT IN WRITING, SINCE SECTION 2309 DOES NOT APPLY AS BETWEEN THE PRINCIPAL AND AN AGENT.

No Writing Is Required Between Principal and Agent. Civil Code Section 2309, which requires that written authority be given to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing, does not prohibit enforcement of an agreement between the principal and agent (Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 842, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that Civ. Code § 2309, which requires an agency agreement to be in writing if the agent is authorized to enter contracts required to be in writing, does not prohibit enforcement of an agency agreement between the principal and agent. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by an agent relying on such an agency agreement--for example, to recover his or her commission or to recover indemnification for damages the agent was required to pay to the third party, with whom he or she contracted on the principal's behalf, after the principal breached the contract with the third party.

These points and authorities cannot be used, however, if the agency is for the sale or purchase of real property or an interest in real property or for the lease of real property for a term longer than one year, because an agreement to pay compensation or a commission to an agent, broker, or any other person in relation to such a sale, purchase, or lease is expressly required to be in writing [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4); see Ch. 31, Brokers and Salespersons].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Writing Is Required Between Principal and Agent

In Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 , the plaintiff entered into an oral agreement to obtain a buyer for the defendant's apricot kernels. The plaintiff was to deal in its own well-known name, and did so, entering into a contract with a third party for the sale of apricot kernels in its own name. When the price of apricot kernels suddenly soared, the defendant refused to deliver, and the third party successfully sued the plaintiff for damages, which the plaintiff paid. The plaintiff then sued the defendant for indemnity and obtained a judgment. The defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. Civ. Code § 2309, which provides that authority to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing can only be given in writing, precludes only liability of the principal to the third party on the contract entered into by the agent, and does not affect the agency agreement between the agent and the principal (60 Cal. 2d 834, 837-843) . The word "authority" is a technical term used in the law of agency to refer to the power of the agent to obligate the principal to a third party, and not referring to obligations between the principal and agent. Code commissioners' notes to the chapter that includes Civ.Code § 2309 limit the chapter to dealing with the representation of one person by another and cross-refer to provisions relating to the mutual relation of principal and agent (60 Cal. 2d 834, 839). California case law allows agents to recover commissions or damages from principals based on oral agency agreements (60 Cal. 2d 834, 839-841). Allowing the agent indemnification by the principal would not abrogate Civ. Code § 2309, because that section would still restrict the rights of the third party against the principal, and since the agent's right to indemnification arises only on payment of damages to the third party, the rule would insulate the principal from liability when the agent was insolvent (60 Cal. 2d 834, 841-842) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
B. Agent Making Contract Within Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.74

§ 216.74 Written Contract May Be Enforced Even Though Made by Agent Without Written Authority--Contract May Be Enforced When Principal Ratified Agent's Unauthorized Act of Signing of Contract for Principal

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE WRITTEN CONTRACT SIGNED ON BEHALF OF THE _____ [party to be charged, e.g., DEFENDANT] BY _____ [agent signing contract for party to be charged] IS ENFORCEABLE AGAINST THE _____ [e.g., DEFENDANT] BECAUSE _____ [agent]'S ACT OF SIGNING FOR THE _____ [e.g., DEFENDANT] WAS RATIFIED BY THE _____ [e.g., DEFENDANT].

A. Principal Can Implicitly Ratify Agent's Unauthorized Act on Principal's Behalf. An agent's unauthorized act may be adopted by implication based on conduct of the principal from which an intention to consent to or adopt the act may be fairly inferred, including conduct that is inconsistent with any reasonable intention on the principal's part, other than that the principal intended approving and adopting it (Rakestraw v. Rodrigues (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 67, 73, 104 Cal. Rptr. 57, 500 P.2d 1401).

B. Agent's Unauthorized Signing of Contract Can Be Ratified by Principal Act of Signing Related Documents That Imply Existence of Contract. When an agent has signed the principal's name on a contract without having authority to execute the contract on the principal's behalf, the principal will be held to have ratified the agent's act if the principal subsequently, and with knowledge that the other party made an offer, signs related documents that imply the existence of the contract in question (Behniwal v. Mix (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1039-1042, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a written agreement is not unenforceable even though it was executed on behalf of the party to be charged by an agent without written authority. The ground for the contention is that the absence of written authority, which normally is required [see Civ. Code § 2309], is not relevant when the unauthorized execution was subsequently ratified by the principal. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on a contract within the statute of frauds that was signed by an agent, whose act was subsequently ratified by the principal, when the adverse party urges that the contract is invalid because the agent lacked written authority to enter into the contract.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should include discussion of the facts showing that the principal not only knew that an offer had been made but also, with that knowledge, signed related documents, in which references necessarily implied the existence of the contract in question.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Principal Can Implicitly Ratify Agent's Unauthorized Act on Principal's Behalf

Rakestraw v. Rodrigues (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 67, 104 Cal. Rptr. 57, 500 P.2d 1401 , was an action to enforce a promissory note on which the agent had forged the principal's signature. After the note was thus executed, the principal discovered the forgery and demanded a role in the business that the faithless agent was financing with the borrowed money. Only when the note became delinquent three years later did the principal complain of the forgery, seeking reimbursement from the agent. The trial court entered judgment for the principal, and the agent appealed.

The California Supreme Court reversed, holding that the principal had ratified the forgery (8 Cal. 3d 67, 72). The principal's election not to rescind thetransaction as soon as the principal could have done so, knowing the nature of the forgery, constituted a ratification of the transaction (8 Cal. 3d 67, 75). The court noted that ratification may occur expressly or by implication, and ratification by implication is conduct of the principal from which an intention to consent to or adopt the act may be fairly inferred, including conduct that is inconsistent with any reasonable intention on his or her part, other than his or her intention to approve and adopt the act (8 Cal. 3d 67, 73) .

[b] Agent's Unauthorized Signing of Contract Can Be Ratified by Principal's Act of Signing Related Documents That Imply Existence of Contract

In Behniwal v. Mix (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320 , the plaintiff sought specific performance of a contract to sell real property. The defendant knew of the plaintiff's offer to buy the property but never signed the contract so as to accept the offer. The defendant's agent signed the defendant's name, without being authorized to execute the contract; and the plaintiff believed that the defendant had signed. Soon thereafter, with knowledge that an escrow was open for concluding the sale, the defendant signed several statutory disclosure forms, in which various references clearly implied the existence of the contract. The trial court concluded, however, that because there was no writing signed by the defendant, in which the essential terms of the contract were shown, the court could not decree specific performance. Judgment was entered for the defendant.

The court of appeal reversed and noted that there is a difference between (1) a writing sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds and (2) conduct, including the signing of a document, that is sufficient to ratify an agent's authority to have entered into a written contract which, apart from the question of the agent's authority, would otherwise satisfy the statute of frauds. The question before the court was whether the defendant's signatures on the disclosure forms were sufficient to effect a ratification of what the agent had done on the defendant's behalf. "That is, ratification does not entail a requirement that the writing sufficiently set forth the terms of the agreement. The idea is that the terms are already identifiable; we only need to ascertain whether the principal accepted them. We must therefore conclude that the answer to our question is yes" (133 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1039) . In this case, without a doubt, the disclosure statements were signed by the seller in contemplation of concluding a sale to the plaintiff, with knowledge that an escrow was open for that purpose.

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
B. Agent Making Contract Within Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities §§ 216.75-216.89

[Reserved]

§§ 216.75[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
C. Sufficiency of Written Memorandum

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.90

§ 216.90 Memorandum of Agreement Does Not Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Memorandum Does Not Contain All Essential Terms of Agreement

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MEMORANDUM OF THE PARTIES' AGREEMENT DOES NOT SATISFY THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE IT DOES NOT CONTAIN ALL OF THE ESSENTIAL TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT WITH REASONABLE CERTAINTY.

Essential Terms Must Be Stated With Reasonable Certainty. A memorandum satisfies the statute of frauds, Civil Code Section 1624(a), if it identifies the subject of the parties' agreement, shows that they made a contract, and states the essential contract terms with reasonable certainty. What is essential depends on the agreement and its context, and also on the subsequent conduct of the parties (Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 766, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an oral agreement within the statute of frauds is not evidenced by a sufficient memorandum because the memorandum in question does not contain all of the essential terms of the agreement. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on the statute of frauds whenever the adverse party relies on a memorandum of an agreement in order to avoid the statute of frauds, but the memorandum fails to contain all the essential terms of the agreement.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. Specifically, counsel should identify those terms of the agreement that the counsel's client contends are essential, explain why they are essential in the context of the particular agreement, and show that they are absent from the written memorandum of the agreement.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authoritiessupporting the contention that the contract at issue is within the statute of frauds [see, e.g., §§ 216.10[1], 216.30[1], 216.40[1]].

For points and authorities supporting a demurrer to a complaint to recover a real estate broker's commission on the ground that the memorandum of the agreement to pay a commission was insufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds, see Ch. 31, Brokers and Salespersons .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Essential Terms Must Be Stated With Reasonable Certainty

Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420 , is discussed in § 216.92[3][d]. In discussing the use of extrinsic evidence to establish the terms of a contact subject to the statute of frauds, the court began its analysis by noting the statute does not require a written contract; a note or memorandum subscribed by the party to be charged is adequate. A written memorandum is not identical with a written contract; it is merely evidence of the contract and usually does not contain all of the terms (40 Cal. 4th 757, 765-766) . In most instances it is not even necessary that the parties intended the memorandum to serve a contractual purpose. Citing the Restatement 2d of Contracts and other authorities, the court held that "[a] memorandum satisfies the statute of frauds if it identifies the subject of the parties' agreement, shows that they made a contract, and states the essential contract terms with reasonable certainty." Only the essential terms must be stated. What is essential depends on the agreement and its context and also on the subsequent conduct of the parties. The writing requirement of the statute of frauds serves only to prevent the contract from being unenforceable; it does not necessarily establish the terms of the parties' contract (40 Cal. 4th 757, 766) .

The court further held that because the memorandum itself must include the essential contractual terms, extrinsic evidence cannot supply those required terms, but can be used to explain essential terms that were understood by the parties but would otherwise be unintelligible to others (40 Cal. 4th 757, 767) [see discussion in § 216.92[3][d]].

The court explained that it was addressing an issue specifically arising under Civ. Code § 1624(a), and that its discussion "does not apply to any other 'statute of frauds' imposing a stricter writing requirement ...#x2026; [or to] the more liberal statute of frauds provided in the Uniform Commercial Code" (40 Cal. 4th 757, 765 n.5).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
C. Sufficiency of Written Memorandum

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.91

§ 216.91 Memorandum of Agreement Does Not Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Name on Memorandum Was Not Adopted as Signature by Party to be Charged

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MEMORANDUM IS INSUFFICIENT TO SATISFY THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE IT DOES NOT APPEAR ON THE FACE OF THE MEMORANDUM THAT THE NAME RELIED ON AS A SIGNATURE WAS PLACED ON THE DOCUMENT OR ADOPTED BY THE PARTY TO BE CHARGED WITH INTENT TO AUTHENTICATE THE WRITING.

Party to Be Charged Must Intend to Adopt Signature. Even though a signature may be printed, stamped, or typed, and need not be placed at the end of the writing, the statute of frauds is not satisfied unless it is proved that the name relied on as a signature was placed on the document or adopted by the party to be charged with the intention of authenticating the writing. The intent must appear on the face of the document itself and cannot be established by parol evidence (Marks v. Walter G. McCarty Corp. (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 814, 820-821, 205 P.2d 1025).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an oral agreement within the statute of frauds is not evidenced by a sufficient memorandum because it does not appear from the memorandum in question that the name relied on as a signature was placed on the memorandum, or was adopted by the party to be charged, with the intent of authenticating the memorandum. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on the statute of frauds whenever the adverse party relies on a memorandum of an agreement in order to avoid the statute of frauds, but the memorandum does not contain a name that appears to have been placed on the memorandum or adopted by the party to be charged as his or her signature with intent to authenticate the memorandum.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel might argue that the name of a party included at the beginning of the writing was set forth for identification rather than with intent to authenticate the writing [see McNear v. Petroleum Export Corp. (1929) 208 Cal. 162, 168, 280 P 684] .

[c] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities supporting the contention that the contract at issue is within the statute of frauds [see, e.g., §§ 216.10[1], 216.30[1], 216.40[1]].

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party to Be Charged Must Intend to Adopt Signature

In Marks v. Walter G. McCarty Corp. (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 814, 205 P.2d 1025 , the plaintiff sued to recover a real estate broker's commission in regard to the sale of a hotel and its furnishings. The defendant had given the broker an unsigned typewritten document setting forth the terms for the sale and stating that a broker's commission in a certain amount would be paid. The broker was given a carbon copy of the document, which was made on a letterhead consisting of a picture of the hotel under which was printed "The Beverly-Wilshire Hotel, Walter G. McCarty Corporation." The broker obtained a buyer, but when the defendant and the buyer concluded the sale, no commission was paid, and the broker sued. The defendant appealed from a judgment for the broker.

The Supreme Court affirmed but modified the judgment so that the amount of the commission recovered related only to the sale of the hotel furnishings, since an agreement to pay a commission on the sale of personal property need not be in writing. The plaintiff could not recover unless there was a sufficient memorandum of the agreement to pay a commission to satisfy the statute of frauds. The signature of the party to be charged need not be placed at the end of the memorandum and need not be manually affixed but may be printed, stamped, or typed. However, the statute of frauds is not satisfied unless it is proved that the name relied on as a signature was placed on the document or adopted by the party to be charged with the intention of authenticating the writing. In other words, the party to be charged must intend to appropriate the name as a signature (33 Cal. 2d 814, 820) . There was nothing on the face of the document in this case that would indicate that the defendant intended to adopt the letterhead as the corporation's signature. The intent that a name appearing on a document constitute a signature must appear on the face of the document itself and cannot be proved by parol evidence (33 Cal. 2d 814, 821) . The delivery of the document on letterhead stationery indicated, at most, intent to contract rather than intent to adopt the letterhead as a signature, and the testimony of the defendant's president indicated that the letterhead was used to identify the hotel rather than to authenticate the writing (33 Cal. 2d 814, 821-822) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Party to Be Charged Must Intend to Adopt Signature

The court of appeal in Berdan v. Berdan (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 478, 103 P.2d 622 , affirmed a judgment for the defendant in an action by his sibling for imposition of a constructive trust on half of their mother's estate. The plaintiff contended that the mother's note on the reverse of a letter from their father to the defendant constituted her promise in consideration of mutual wills to leave her estate to the plaintiff and the defendant in equal shares. The father's letter to the defendant said that he had made a new will leaving everything to their mother on the understanding that if he died before their mother, she would leave all her estate to the plaintiff and the defendant. Mother wrote on the reverse of that letter, "Dad signed this with his signature and also 'Dad' below. The signature in case you might want to use it. Lawfully, Mother." The judgment was based in part on a finding that the signature "Mother" after a note on the reverse of the letter was not intended by their mother as her signature and therefore did not satisfy the statute of frauds. It was clear from the note that Mother did not believe the word "Dad" was a legal signature. That was sufficient evidence to show that she did not intend "Mother" as her signature (39 Cal. App. 2d 478, 483). The sufficiency of a signature as a subscription under the statute of frauds involves both the act of writing the party's name and the intention of finally authenticating the instrument (39 Cal. App. 2d 478, 484-485).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
C. Sufficiency of Written Memorandum

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.92

§ 216.92 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Essential Terms of Agreement Are Set Forth With Reasonable Certainty

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MEMORANDUM OF THE PARTIES' AGREEMENT IS SUFFICIENT TO SATISFY THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE IT SETS FORTH ALL OF THE ESSENTIAL TERMS OF THE AGREEMENT WITH REASONABLE CERTAINTY.

A. Essential Terms Must Be Stated With Reasonable Certainty. A memorandum satisfies the statute of frauds, Civil Code Section 1624(a), if it identifies the subject of the parties' agreement, shows that they made a contract, and states the essential contract terms with reasonable certainty. What is essential depends on the agreement and its context and also on the subsequent conduct of the parties (Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 766, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420).

B. Memorandum Must Be Interpreted in Context of Parties' Knowledge atTime of Its Execution. The court must interpret the memorandum in light of all the circumstances in which it was made, and if the court, after acquiring knowledge of all the facts concerning the transaction that the parties possessed at the time the agreement was made, can plainly determine from the memorandum the identity of the parties to the contract, the nature of its subject matter, and its essential terms, the memorandum will be adequate (Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 766-767, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420 ; Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 230, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792 ; Gibson v. De La Salle Inst. (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 609, 620, 152 P.2d 774).

C. Formal Contract Containing Every Term of Agreement Is Not Required. The writing need not be a formal contract drawn with technical exactness or even one intended to create an obligation (Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 230, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792). The memorandum functions only as evidence of the contract and need not contain every term (Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839 ; Kaneko v.

Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 230, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792).

[Optional] D. Extrinsic Evidence Is Admissible to Resolve Uncertainty. If a memorandum includes the essential terms of the parties' agreement, but the meaning of those terms is unclear, the memorandum is sufficient under the statute of frauds, Civil Code Section 1624(a), if extrinsic evidence clarifies the terms with reasonable certainty, and the evidence as a whole demonstrates that the parties intended to be bound (Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 771, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420).

[Optional] E. Memorandum Evidencing Requirements Contract Is Sufficiently Precise. An agreement will not be held deficient under the statute of frauds for the failure to express what is clearly implied when the writing is interpreted in accordance with the intentions of the parties. Requirements contracts have been enforced when the surrounding circumstances indicate the approximate scope of the promise. Since a requirements contract is sufficiently precise to be enforceable, a memorandum containing its essential terms is sufficiently precise to satisfy the statute of frauds (Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 762-763, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an alleged contract is referenced by a certain memorandum of agreement that is sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever a party is relying on an agreement within the statute of frauds that is evidenced by a memorandum, and the adverse party contends that the agreement is invalid because the memorandum is deficient.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that some writing signed by the person to be charged contains the essential elements of a specific agreement. The writing will be insufficient if it discloses no agreement. If the writing imparts the essentials of a contractual obligation but fails to do so in an explicit, definite, or complete manner, it is always permissible to show the circumstances that attended its making. In this regard, extrinsic evidence is admissible to explain trade terms or code words, to resolve ambiguities on the face of the writing, or to ascertain a term of the agreement by resort to another document referred to by the writing. What counsel must show is that the memorandum itself demonstrates the existence of a contractual intent on the part of the party to be charged; in that case, the memorandum will satisfy the statute of frauds, even though extrinsic evidence is necessary to define the limits of the contract [see Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 770, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420 ; Franklin v. Hansen (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 570, 574, 30 Cal. Rptr. 530, 381 P.2d 386 , disapproved on other grounds, Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 769, 770, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420] .

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities opposing a demurrer to a complaint to recover a real estate broker's commission on the ground that there is a sufficient memorandum of the agreement to pay a commission, see Ch. 31, Brokers and Salespersons .

For points and authorities opposing a demurrer to a complaint for breach of a contract for the sale of goods on the ground that there is a sufficient memorandum of the sales contract, see Ch. 206, Sales .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.90 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose an argument supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Essential Terms Must Be Stated With Reasonable Certainty

Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420 ,is discussed in § 216.92[3][d]. In discussing the use of extrinsic evidence to establish the terms of a contract subject to the statute of frauds, the court began its analysis by holding that a memorandum satisfies the statute of frauds if it identifies the subject of the parties' agreement, shows that they made a contract, and states the essential contract terms with reasonable certainty. The court also explained that it was addressing an issue specifically arising under Civ. Code § 1624(a) and that its discussion "does not apply to any other 'statute of frauds' imposing a stricter writing requirement ...#x2026; [or to] the more liberal statute of frauds provided in the Uniform Commercial Code" (40 Cal. 4th 757, 766) .

[b] Memorandum Must Be Interpreted in Context of Parties' Knowledge at Time of Its Execution

The facts of Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420 , are discussed in § 216.90[3][a]. Sterling concluded that extrinsic evidence can be used to explain essential terms in a memorandum that were understood by the parties but would otherwise be unintelligible to others (40 Cal. 4th 757, 767) . The California Supreme Court held that if a memorandum includes the essential terms of the parties' agreement, but the meaning of those terms is unclear, the memorandum is sufficient under the statute of frauds if (1) extrinsic evidence clarifies the terms with reasonable certainty, and (2) the evidence as a whole demonstrates that the parties intended to be bound (40 Cal. 4th 757, 771) . In so holding, the Court disapproved of statements in California cases barring consideration of extrinsic evidence to determine the sufficiency of a memorandum under the statute of frauds, including Burge v. Krug (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 201, 207 325 P.2d 119 , and Ellis v. Klaff (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 471, 216 P.2d 15 (40 Cal. 4th 757, 770) .

In Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792 , the four defendants each owned 125 shares of stock in a corporation. All defendants signed an application to the Commissioner of Corporations for the transfer of 100 shares (25 from each of the defendants) to the plaintiff for $100 a share. On the same day, all parties except for one of the defendants signed an agreement for the sale of 300 shares, at $100 a share. The agreement provided for the plaintiff to buy 100 shares on execution of the agreement and to receive an option to purchase 200 more. The plaintiff delivered a check to the defendants for $10,000 to cover the first 100 shares, but they returned it and refused to proceed on the ground that the contract did not express the parties' full agreement. The plaintiff's subsequent checks for $7,500 to each of the defendants, covering the price for all 300 shares, were also returned, and the plaintiff sued for specific performance. The trial court ordered specific performance by the three defendants who signed the agreement, to the extent of 75 shares each, and by the nonsigning defendant, to the extent of 25 shares. The plaintiff and the defendants appealed. On appeal, the defendants argued that the application to the commissioner to transfer the stock was not a sufficient memorandum to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds as to the defendant who had not signed the agreement between the parties.

The court of appeal affirmed. A writing was necessary to remove an agreement for the sale of $500 or more in stock in a corporation from the statute of frauds. If the trial court, after acquiring knowledge of all the facts concerning the transaction that the parties themselves possessed at the time the agreement was made, could plainly determine from the memorandum the identity of the parties to the contract, the nature of its subject matter, and its essential terms, the memorandum must be held to be adequate [Brewer v. Horst & Lachmund Co. (1900) 127 Cal. 643, 646, 60 P 418] (195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 230) . The application to the commissioner, signed by the defendant, revealed that the defendant owned 125 shares of stock in a specified corporation and that he wanted to transfer 25 of the shares to the plaintiff for $100 a share; and the application further stated the purpose of the transfer. The application contained all of the essentials of the agreement and was a sufficient memorandum to avoid the statute of frauds (195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 230-231) .

Gibson v. De La Salle Inst. (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 609, 152 P.2d 774 , was an action for the specific performance of a sales contract based on two telegrams. The first telegram, from the seller to the buyers, stated, "Find it necessary to ask for following prices 275,000 gallons sherry.85 Stop 80,000 gallons muscatel.90 Stop 45,000 gallons port.85 Stop 50,000 gallons dry red.50 Stop 50,000 gallons dry white.70 Stop or an average price of.80 per gallon on the above 500,000 gallons terms cash but can supply warehouse receipts on 250,000 gallons Stop Please wire today if interested and samples and sales contract will go forward." The second telegram, from the buyers to the seller, read, "Retelegram take all wine at prices specified except dry red and dry white prepare sales contract and ship samples at once wire today confirmation sale sweet wine to us so we may commence accumulating funds for cash payments." On the seller's motion for summary judgment, one of the buyers stated in his affidavit that an agreement for the sale of wine at approximate prices had been made in Chicago but that the seller's representative had declined to fix exact prices for each variety until he had returned to California. The affiant received the seller's telegram shortly thereafter and wired his acceptance within two hours of receiving the telegram. The reference to a sales contract in the buyer's telegram was explained as something the buyer had suggested in the Chicago meeting that he wanted to show to his bankers and was intended only as a substitute for the contract made by the telegrams. The request for a telegram in confirmation was not a condition to the contract but was requested in order to have something to show the bankers until the contract arrived. The samples, which were later waived, were also not a condition of acceptance. The buyers also alleged subsequent telephone conversations with the seller's representative involving the sale of an additional 100,000 gallons of wine, waiver of the request for samples, and the seller's request that oneof the buyers come to California from Ohio to accept delivery of the wine and make payment for it. When the buyer came to California, the seller's representative failed to meet him and refused to sell the wine. The trial court granted summary judgment for the seller, and the buyers appealed. On appeal, the seller's position was that any contract could only be established by writings, and the telegrams were insufficient to establish a contract. The seller contended that its telegram was not an offer, but merely a quotation; that if it were an offer, it was not accepted by the buyers' telegram; and that the seller's telegram was an insufficient memorandum under the statute of frauds for failure to specify the quality of wine to be sold.

The court of appeal reversed. It was well established that when the meaning of language used in a memorandum under the statute of frauds is ambiguous, parol evidence is admissible to show the circumstances surrounding the transaction to determine the meaning intended and understood by the parties (66 Cal. App. 2d 609, 619) . If the court were restricted to looking at the telegrams, it might be difficult, if not impossible, to determine the nature of the contract, or that any contract was entered into between the parties; therefore, the court may interpret the memorandum (that is, the telegrams) in the light of all the circumstances under which it was made. Thus, when the court is put into possession of all of the knowledge that the parties to the transaction had at the time, if it can be plainly seen from the memorandum who the parties to the contract were, what the subject matter of the contract was, and what were its terms, then the court should not hesitate to hold the memorandum sufficient [Brewer v. Horst & Lachmund Co. (1900) 127 Cal. 643, 646-647, 60 P 418] (66 Cal. App. 2d 609, 620) . The meaning of the telegrams, whether the seller's telegram was a mere quotation or an offer and whether the buyers' telegram constituted an acceptance, presented issues of fact for trial in light of the surrounding circumstances (66 Cal. App. 2d 609, 624-626) .

[c] Formal Contract Containing Every Term of Agreement Is Not Required

Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839 , was an action for breach of a contract pursuant to which the plaintiff was to produce a Broadway show at the defendant's Las Vegas showroom. After oral negotiations, the defendant's agent wrote in a letter to the plaintiff that the agent would "play 'My Fair Lady' around February or March of 1969 at the Frontier Hotel for a minimum guaranteed run of one year at Seventy-five Thousand ($75,000) Dollars weekly for show and orchestra." The letter also stated that it was "further agreed and understood that if you are unable to bring 'My Fair Lady' in for a price of $75,000 that you will notify me immediately and in no event later than August 27, 1968." The letter concluded that "[t]his agreement will serve as a firm commitment." Before August 27, 1968, the plaintiff wrote to the defendant that "the agreed upon price of $75,000 per week for show and orchestra is okay." The defendant's agent subsequently wrote to the plaintiff that the play would not be available at the time referred to in his previous letter and would not be available until "after September, 1969." The letter also noted that because of the change in availability, the defendant had to reduce the guaranteed run to six months with three-month options, and concluded by requesting to "hear from you in the near future regarding an open date convenient to all parties." Subsequently, after the plaintiff refused to agree to a proposal that the defendant be given the right to cancel the show on two weeks' notice, the defendant backed out of the deal altogether on the ground that there was no commitment. The plaintiff was awarded a judgment for lost profits, and the defendant appealed. The defendant contended that the contract was invalid because the only memoranda of the contract failed to specify the essential elements of the starting date, identity of performers, responsibility for stagehands, and allocation of preproduction costs.

The court of appeal affirmed. A letter may be a sufficient memorandum to take a case out of the statute of frauds. The use of the word "memorandum" in the statute of frauds implies something less than a complete contract, and a memorandum functions only as evidence of the contract and need not contain every term [Crowley v. Modern Faucet Mfg. Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 321, 323, 282 P.2d 33] . The statute of frauds does not require more written terms than are required to make the contract itself. The memoranda in this case satisfied the statute of frauds since they contained a statement of the salient terms of the bargain: the plaintiff would supply a show and orchestra, and the defendant would pay $75,000 per week. The modification of the starting date to "after September, 1969" did not make the contract fatally uncertain because time was not of the essence, and a reasonable time within which to perform would be allowed (56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934) .

The facts and procedural background of Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792 , are discussed in [b], above. In affirming, the court of appeal, relying on Guerrieri v. Severini (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 269, 274, 281 P.2d 879 , held that the writing relied on to bring a contract out of the statute of frauds need not be a formal contract drawn with technical exactness or even one intended to create an obligation. Moreover, the court, citing Gibson v. De La Salle Inst. (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 609, 627, 152 P.2d 774 , stated that the memorandum need not contain all of the details of an agreement (195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 230).

[d] Extrinsic Evidence Is Admissible to Resolve Uncertainty

In Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420 , the plaintiff sought enforcement of a contract to sell real property. The evidence and the defendant's admissions established that the parties had made an agreement to sell the property in question, but the defendant (seller) contended that the price was near $17 million, while the plaintiff (buyer) contended that theprice was a little over $14 million. The only evidence of the price was a memorandum handwritten by the plaintiff, which was ambiguous as to the price on which the parties had agreed. This memorandum was referenced by a letter that the defendant had signed, which met the signature requirement in the statute of frauds. The trial court granted the defendant's motion for summary judgment on the ground that the price term was too uncertain to be enforced, and therefore the writings did not comply with the statute of frauds. The court of appeal, reversing, held that the price terms in the memorandum, while ambiguous, could be clarified by examining extrinsic evidence. It concluded that the defendant's evidence raised a triable issue as to whether the parties had agreed on a formula for determining the purchase price.

In the Supreme Court the defendant contended that the court improperly considered extrinsic evidence to resolve the uncertainty about the price. The court stated, "We reverse, but not because the court consulted extrinsic evidence. Extrinsic evidence has long been held admissible to clarify the terms of a memorandum for purposes of the statute of frauds. Statements to the contrary appear in some cases, but we disapprove them. A memorandum serves only an evidentiary function under the statute. If the writing includes the essential terms of the parties' agreement, there is no bar to the admission of relevant extrinsic evidence to explain or clarify those terms. The memorandum, viewed in light of the evidence, must be sufficient to demonstrate with reasonable certainty the terms to which the parties agreed to be bound. Here, plaintiff[s] attempt[s] to enforce a price term that lacks the certainty required by the statute of frauds" (40 Cal. 4th 757, 762) . On the issue of whether extrinsic evidence could be admitted, the court held that if a memorandum includes the essential terms of the parties' agreement, but the meaning of those terms is unclear, the memorandum is sufficient under the statute of frauds if extrinsic evidence clarifies the terms with reasonable certainty and the evidence as a whole demonstrates that the parties intended to be bound. Conflicts in the extrinsic evidence are for the trier of fact to resolve, but whether the evidence meets the standard of reasonable certainty is a question of law for the court (40 Cal. 4th 757, 771) .

The court noted that its discussion applied only to Civ. Code § 1624(a), the general statute of frauds, and did not apply to any other statute of frauds imposing a stricter writing requirement [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1803.1 et seq. (retail installment contracts); Fam. Code §§ 852, 1611 (transmutation agreements; premarital agreements)] or to the more liberal statute of frauds provided in the Uniform Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 2201] (40 Cal. 4th 757, 766 n.5).

[e] Memorandum Evidencing Requirements Contract Is Sufficiently Precise

In Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 , the plaintiff managed a small marine fueling station. The city where the plaintiff operated decided to condemn the waterfront area and develop it into a modern marina. The plaintiff and the city signed an initial lease for a small area of the marina, with the understanding that the lease could be renegotiated to include a larger area for the plaintiff to sublet to others, conditioned on the plaintiff's providing evidence of financial responsibility. The key to approval of the larger lease was the plaintiff's operation of a marine fuel dealership with modernized fueling equipment. To obtain that dealership, the plaintiff opened negotiations with Standard Oil. On reaching an agreement on all major points, the plaintiff repeatedly requested an instrument evidencing a binding commitment, to show to the city. Standard Oil set forth the terms of the agreement in a letter, in which it stated that the offer was subject to mutual agreement on the specific wording of contracts to be drawn, approval by governmental offices involved, and continued approval of the plaintiff's credit status. The letter said that if its terms met with the plaintiff's approval, the plaintiff should sign and return copies of the letter to Standard Oil. The plaintiff did so, presented the letter to the city, and signed a long-term lease for a large area in the marina. Shortly thereafter conditions in the oil industry changed. The agreement contemplated in the letter was never signed. Standard Oil, in response to new federal guidelines, notified the plaintiff that it would not be able to go forth with their agreement, claiming that the regulations were the only reason for its change of position. After the plaintiff obtained a supply order from the controlling federal agency, Standard Oil contended that no binding agreement had ever been reached, and successfully appealed the supply order. The plaintiff appealed and the decision was overturned. The new decision provided that an order directing Standard Oil to fulfill supply obligations to the plaintiff would be issued on the filing of a court decree that a valid contract existed between the parties under state law. The plaintiff asked Standard Oil to stipulate to the existence of a contract. Standard Oil refused, and the plaintiff discontinued operations and sued Standard Oil on several causes of action. The jury verdict was for the plaintiff. The trial court conditionally granted Standard Oil's motion for a new trial unless the plaintiff consented to a reduction of the punitive damages awarded. The plaintiff consented and the judgment was entered. Standard Oil appealed and the plaintiff cross appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed the breach of contract judgment and reversed and remanded on other causes. The issue in the breach of contract action was whether the letter signed by both parties was sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds. To meet requirements, the writing must contain the essential elements of a specific, consummated agreement. Only the essential terms must be stated; details or particulars need not be stated. What is essential depends on the agreement and its context and the subsequent conduct of the parties. The letter in this case evidenced an agreement that the plaintiff would become a dealer for Standard Oil, and it set forth the payment price, thereby specifying two essential elements with sufficientspecificity. No express quantity term was necessary. An agreement will not be held deficient under the statute of frauds for the failure to express what is clearly implied when the writing is interpreted in accordance with the intentions of the parties. The implication of a dealership arrangement is that the wholesaler will supply as much fuel as the dealer requires. The plaintiff and Standard Oil entered into a "requirements contract." Requirements contracts have been enforced when the surrounding circumstances indicate the approximate scope of the promise. Since requirements contracts are sufficiently precise to be enforceable, they are sufficiently precise to satisfy the statute of frauds. The letter contained all of the essential terms of the contract, and was enforceable under Civ. Code § 1624 (36 Cal. 3d 752, 762-763) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
C. Sufficiency of Written Memorandum

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.93

§ 216.93 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Signature of Party to Be Charged Need Not Be Manually Written

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MEMORANDUM IS SUFFICIENT TO SATISFY THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE AN INSTRUMENT IS DEEMED SIGNED EVEN THOUGH THE SIGNATURE IS _____ [TYPED or LITHOGRAPHED or RUBBER-STAMPED or PRINTED].

Typed, Lithographed, Rubber-Stamped, or Printed Signature Is Sufficient. A memorandum is deemed signed even though the signature is typed, lithographed, rubber-stamped, or printed (Weiner v. Mullaney (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 620, 634, 140 P.2d 704).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an alleged contract is referenced by a certain memorandum of agreement that is sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds even though it bears an unconventional signature. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever a party is relying on an agreement within the statute of frauds that is evidenced by a memorandum containing a typed, lithographed, rubber-stamped, or printed signature, and the adverse party contends that the memorandum is deficient.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.91 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose an argument supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Typed, Lithographed, Rubber-Stamped, or Printed Signature Is Sufficient

Weiner v. Mullaney (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 620, 140 P.2d 704 , was an action for an accounting. The plaintiff's claim was based on a series of letters from the defendant, her brother. The plaintiff claimed that the letters established a trust, of which the plaintiff was beneficiary, in one-third of the property left by the parties' mother. Some of the letters had not been signed at all, but others had the defendant's initials typewritten at the end. The court entered a judgment for the plaintiff, and the defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The typewritten initials were a sufficient signature under the statute of frauds. An instrument is deemed signed even though the signature is typed, lithographed, rubber-stamped, or printed (59 Cal. App. 2d 620, 634-635) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Typed, Lithographed, Rubber-Stamped, or Printed Signature Is Sufficient

In Skirball v. RKO Radio Pictures, Inc. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 843, 286 P.2d 954 , an action for breach of contract, the court of appeal held that a memorandum from the defendant's vice-president in charge of commitments and of the legal department to an attorney to prepare a written contract was a sufficient memorandum of the contract. The memorandum contained the vice-president's typewritten name, and the court found that he had initialed the memorandum and adopted his typewritten name on it as his signature (134 Cal. App. 2d 843, 863) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
C. Sufficiency of Written Memorandum

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.94

§ 216.94 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Initials Are Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MEMORANDUM IS SUFFICIENT TO SATISFY THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE INITIALS ARE SUFFICIENT AS A SUBSCRIPTION WHEN THE PARTY TO BE CHARGED INTENDED THAT THEY CONSTITUTE HIS OR HER SIGNATURE.

Initials May Be Sufficient Subscription. The essential element of a subscription sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds is an intent, by the party to be charged, to appropriate the name or mark as a signature; it need not be a full handwritten signature to qualify, and even initials may qualify (Poag v. Winston (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1179, 241 Cal. Rptr. 330).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of party's contention that initials constitute a sufficient signature on a memorandum of agreement to satisfy the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624] when the party to be charged intended those initials to be his or her signature.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should show that the party to be charged intended and understood that the initials constituted his or her signature.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 216.91 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Initials May Be Sufficient Subscription

Poag v. Winston (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 241 Cal. Rptr. 330 , involved construction of a will, a trust, and related writings, in particular one labeled as the "Fifth Codicil." The primary issue was whether claims by a trust beneficiary under various related documents constituted contests within the meaning of a no-contest clause. The probate court held that claims under a written and signed agreement by the trustor granting benefits to that beneficiary were not contests prohibited by the clause. One such agreement was the "Fifth Codicil," which was typewritten with the words, "These are gifts do not take away BW," in the trustor-testator's handwriting at the end. The probate court concluded that the initials were sufficient as a subscription to satisfy the statute of frauds. The trustees appealed the order determining the rights of the beneficiary.

The court of appeal affirmed. Regarding the sufficiency of initials, the essential element of a subscription sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds is an intent by the party to be charged to appropriate the name as a signature; it need not be a full handwritten signature to qualify. Hence, even initials qualify (195 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1179) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
C. Sufficiency of Written Memorandum

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.95

§ 216.95 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Signature on One of Series of Related Papers Is Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MEMORANDUM IS SUFFICIENT TO SATISFY THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE THE SIGNATURE ON THE _____ [specify document], WHICH IS ONE OF A SERIES OF RELATED DOCUMENTS, IS SUFFICIENT AS A SUBSCRIPTION.

Signature on One of Series of Related Documents Is Sufficient Subscription. If one of a series of papers that appear to have some relation to the same matter is signed by the party to be charged, this is enough to satisfy the statute of frauds, because all of the papers are to be considered together as forming one contract or memorandum (Rader Co. v. Stone (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 23, 223 Cal. Rptr. 806).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of party's contentionthat a signature on one of a series of related documents constitutes a sufficient signature to satisfy the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should present facts to establish that the document setting forth the terms of the obligation and the one on which the signature appears are related [see Civ. Code § 1642].

[c] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For discussion of the principles of contract interpretation under which several documents are construed as one contract, see California Forms of Pleading and Practice, Ch. 140, Contracts (Matthew Bender).

[d] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Signature on One of Series of Related Documents Is Sufficient Subscription

Rader Co. v. Stone (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 223 Cal. Rptr. 806 , was an action by a real estate broker to recover a commission allegedly due for obtaining a tenant for the defendant's real property. The defendant opened the property for inspection by brokers for the purpose of soliciting brokers to obtain tenants for the property. The plaintiff attended. At the open house, the defendant distributed an offering brochure and a commission schedule. The brochure said that "realtors will be registered with client at first showing and protected." An updated information sheet regarding the property also mentioned the commissions. The plaintiff took a prospective tenant to view the property and filled out the defendant's "client-realtor" registration form, which was signed by an agent of the defendant. The defendant and the plaintiff's client eventually signed a lease. The trial court entered judgment of dismissal after sustaining demurrers without leave to amend. The plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. Regarding the sufficiency the defendant's signature on the memoranda authorizing the plaintiff to obtain a tenant for the defendant and entitling the plaintiff to a commission in accordance with the schedule for doing so, if one of a series of papers that appear to have some relation to the same matter is signed by the party to be charged, this is enough to satisfy the statute of frauds because all of the papers are construed together as forming one contract or memorandum. In this case, the brochure, update, and registration form all related to each other, so the signature requirement of the statute of frauds was satisfied (178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 23) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Signature on One of Series of Related Documents Is Sufficient Subscription

The court of appeal in Thompson v. Walsh (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 188, 172 P.2d 745 , affirmed a judgment for the plaintiffs for specific performance of an agreement to sell real and personal property. The writings were a listing agreement signed by the defendants employing the broker to sell the house unfurnished, a later listing to sell the property furnished for a higher price (reserving certain furniture for the defendants), an offer signed by the plaintiffs including a receipt signed by the broker, various escrow instructions, and letters signed only by the plaintiffs. The court of appeal said that the writings taken together satisfied the statute of frauds and stated the rule to be that if one of a series of papers that appear to have some relation to the same matter is signed by the party to be charged, this is enough to satisfy the statute of frauds because all of the papers are to be considered together as forming one contract or memorandum (76 Cal. App. 2d 188, 194).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
C. Sufficiency of Written Memorandum

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.96

§ 216.96 Memorandum of Agreement is Sufficient to Satisfy Statute of Frauds--Name in Email Is Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE MEMORANDUM IS SUFFICIENT TO SATISFY THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE A NAME IN AN EMAIL IS SUFFICIENT AS A SUBSCRIPTION.

Name in Email Is Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged. A name in an email is sufficient to satisfy the signature requirement of the statute of frauds (Civ. Code § 1633.7; Lamle v. Mattel, Inc. (Fed. Cir. 2005) 394 F.3d 1355, 1362-1363) .

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party'scontention that a name in an email constitutes a sufficient signature to satisfy the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that the email originated from the other party's email address, that the person whose name appeared on the email was one of the people who negotiated the terms in question, and that this person was authorized to contract on behalf of the party to be charged.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Name in Email Is Sufficient for Subscription by Party to Be Charged

In Lamle v. Mattel, Inc. (Fed. Cir. 2005) 394 F.3d 1355 , a board game inventor brought an action in federal court for breach of contract, patent infringement, and intentional interference with economic relations against a toy manufacturer. The district court granted summary judgment in favor of defendant on all the claims. The Federal Circuit Court of Appeals vacated the grant of summary judgment on the contract claim, finding that there were genuine issues of material fact. With respect to the contract claim, plaintiff argued that an email from defendant's employee repeating the terms of the contract agreed upon at a prior meeting and concluding with "Best Regards" and his name satisfied the statute of frauds requirement that the writing be signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought. The Federal Circuit Court of Appeals stated that had the email been sent after January 1, 2000, there would be no question of its sufficiency under the statute of frauds because the Uniform Electronic Transactions Act [Civ. Code § 1633.7] provides that a "record or signature may not be denied legal effect or enforceability solely because it is in electronic form." However, because the email was sent in 1997, the court had to evaluate its validity under California common law. It noted that the Supreme Court of California has never definitively decided whether email and electronic signatures made prior to 2000 satisfy the statue of frauds. The court found, however, that under California law typed names appearing at the end of telegrams are sufficient, as are typewritten names. It found no meaningful difference between a typewritten signature on a telegram and an email. Therefore, it concluded that under California law the email satisfied the statute of frauds, assuming that there was a binding oral agreement and that the email included all the material terms of that agreement 394 F.3d 1355, 1362-1363).

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
C. Sufficiency of Written Memorandum

21-216 California Points & Authorities §§ 216.97-216.109

[Reserved]

§§ 216.97[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.110

§ 216.110 Performance Renders Statute of Frauds Inapplicable--Statute of Frauds Is Inapplicable to Fully Executed Contract

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS DOES NOT APPLY TO THE CONTRACT BECAUSE IT HAS BEEN FULLY EXECUTED.

Statute Does Not Cover Fully Executed Contract. The statute of frauds does not apply to fully executed contracts (Bonaccorso v. Kaplan (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 63, 69, 32 Cal. Rptr. 69 ; McComsey v. Leaf (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 132, 141-142, 97 P.2d 242).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that even if an oral contract is within the statute of frauds, the statute is not applicable to the contract because it has been fully executed. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever a party is relying on a fully executed oral agreement as the basis of some right, and the adverse party contends that the agreement is invalid because it is within the statute of frauds. The argument would most likely be raised in a quiet title action or in defense of an action for rescission of the contract.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that, under the terms of the oral agreement, nothing remains to be done by either party to the contract.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Cover Fully Executed Contract

Bonaccorso v. Kaplan (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 63, 32 Cal. Rptr. 69 , was anaction by the purchasers of real property against the sellers and the real estate agent who had negotiated the sale. The plaintiffs sought reformation of a deed of trust they had executed, which covered the entire tract that they had purchased, and an injunction against foreclosure on one parcel of the tract. They also sought damages, a declaration that they owned the parcel in question free of the trust deed, and rescission of the entire deal. The trial court found for the defendants, and the plaintiffs appealed from the judgment. The plaintiffs contended that the transaction was invalid because the documents antecedent to it did not satisfy the requirements of the statute of frauds.

The court of appeal affirmed. The plaintiffs' argument overlooked the purpose of the statute and its application to executory contracts. The contract before the court had been executed by the transfer of title and the documents of security. It has been long established that the statute of frauds has no application to an executed agreement (218 Cal. App. 2d 63, 69) .

In McComsey v. Leaf (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 132, 97 P.2d 242 , the plaintiff sued to recover money allegedly lent to the defendant. In his affidavit opposing a motion for summary judgment, the defendant claimed that the plaintiff promised to give the money to the defendant in consideration of his marrying the plaintiff's daughter. The defendant stated that he did subsequently marry the daughter, that the money was given to him, and that only after the daughter sued for divorce did the plaintiff claim that the money was a loan and demand repayment. The trial court gave summary judgment for the plaintiff, and the defendant appealed. On appeal, the plaintiff urged that the defendant would not be competent to testify to an oral contract in consideration of marriage, in view of the statute of frauds.

The court of appeal reversed. The statute of frauds merely seeks to exclude testimony in an action arising out of an executory contract. In this case, all controversies arising out of the agreement were disposed of by the marriage and payment of the money. Even though the oral contract was undoubtedly invalid under Civ. Code § 1624, it could not be objected to after it was mutually executed and consummated [Freitas v. Freitas (1916) 31 Cal. App. 16, 18-19, 159 P. 611] (36 Cal. App. 2d 132, 141-142) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Cover Fully Executed Contract

In Lee v. Lee (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1553, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516 , the defendant was engaged in a dispute over the nature and effect of an undocumented transaction with his mother and brother. The defendant had received $50,000 from his mother and brother, and although the defendant asserted that the money was a loan, the mother and brother asserted that it was payment for the defendant's interest in a parcel of real property. Four years later, the defendant executed and delivered a quitclaim deed transferring that interest to his brother's daughter. Subsequently the defendant persuaded his niece to reconvey the property, but thereafter the niece sued the defendant on alleged causes of action for quiet title, slander of title, fraud, cancellation of instrument, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and constructive trust. At trial the defendant, contending against his niece's position that his quitclaim deed to her had resulted from the supposed contract of sale with his mother and brother, argued that (1) the supposed contract to convey to his mother and brother had been invalid for failure to comply with the statute of frauds and (2) his quitclaim deed to his niece did not satisfy the statute as a memorandum of the oral agreement because it did not accurately reflect the terms of the supposed sale. Following judgment for the niece, the court of appeal affirmed, saying, "However, the statute of frauds does not apply to an executed contract. A valid deed, i.e., one that is executed by the grantor and delivered to the grantee, is an executed contract. [P] Here, it is undisputed that [the defendant] executed the 2002 quitclaim deed and delivered it to [his niece] with the intent to transfer [his interest to her]. Thus, the 2002 deed was an executed contract. Accordingly, the statute of frauds does not apply to this transfer" (175 Cal. App. 4th 1553, 1557) (citations omitted).

The parties in McGlasson v. Blythe (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 152, 299 P.2d 325 , orally agreed to exchange parcels of real property, each to pay the encumbrance on the property received and to obtain a deed. The defendants did all that was required of them under the agreements and received a deed for the property that they received from the plaintiff in the exchange, even though the plaintiff had refused to sign an assignment of the sales contract between herself and the former owner. About four years after the exchange and after the plaintiff's property (received from the defendants in the exchange) was sold in a trustee's sale, the plaintiff sued to quiet title to the property that the defendants had received in the exchange, and the defendants cross complained to quiet title to the property in themselves. In affirming judgment for the defendants, the court of appeal held that the oral exchange agreement was fully executed and that the statute of frauds does not apply to fully executed contracts relating to lands, such as contracts to convey, exchange, or lease land (143 Cal. App. 2d 152, 156) .

Freitas v. Freitas (1916) 31 Cal. App. 16, 159 P. 611 , involved a dispute between a widow and her late husband's children by a previous marriage, over the right to the proceeds of an insurance policy. The widow relied on an oral agreement with the husband that he would name her as beneficiary on his insurance policy in consideration of her marrying him. After they were married, the husband did cause the plaintiff to be named as beneficiary on the policy and delivered it to her, but he later obtained the policy without her knowledge and substituted the children as beneficiaries. In affirming a judgment for the widow, the court of appeal found that the agreement had been fully executed and held that it is settled that the statute of frauds does not apply to an executed oral agreement (31 Cal. App. 16, 19) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.111

§ 216.111 Performance Renders Statute of Frauds Inapplicable--Statute of Frauds Is Inapplicable When One Party Has Fully Performed

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS DOES NOT APPLY TO THE CONTRACT BECAUSE THE _____ [party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] HAS FULLY PERFORMED.

A. Statute Does Not Cover Contract Fully Performed by One Party. When one party to an oral contract has fully performed his or her part of the agreement, the statute of frauds has no application to the contract (Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 588, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873).

[Optional] B. Payment of Money Is Only Remaining Obligation. The statute of frauds is inapplicable when a contract has been fully performed by one party, and nothing remains to be done except the payment of money by the other party (Blaustein v. Burton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 185, 88 Cal. Rptr. 319 ; Dean v. Davis (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 166, 169, 166 P.2d 15).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This memorandum may be submitted in support of a party'scontention that even if an oral contract is within the statute of frauds, the statute is not applicable because the contract has been fully performed by one party. (This rule is sometimes justified on the ground of estoppel [Dutton v. Interstate Inv. Corp. (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 65, 70, 119 P.2d 138 ; Robison v. Hanley (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 820, 825, 289 P.2d 560] . For points and authorities based on estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds, see § 216.130 et seq.) The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever a party is relying on an oral contract that he or she has fully performed, and the adverse party contends that the agreement is invalid or void because it was within the statute of frauds. The argument would most likely be raised in actions for breach of contract, for specific performance, or to quiet title.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should show that the party seeking to enforce the contract has performed all of his or her obligations under the agreement.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 216.114 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Cover Contract Fully Performed by One Party

In Dallman Co. v. Southern Heater Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 68 Cal. Rptr. 873 , the defendant, pursuant to an oral agreement with the plaintiff, supplied heaters to the plaintiff under the plaintiff's private label and promised to guarantee and service the heaters for 15 months after their installation in a consumer's home. After the agreement had been performed for about four years, the defendant declared that it would no longer provide service or comply with the provisions of the agreement, and the plaintiff sued for breach of contract. The defendant appealed from a judgment for the plaintiff.

The court of appeal affirmed. The plaintiff had fully performed the agreement, and such a fully executed parol contract is not affected by the statute of frauds. When a party to a contract has fully performed all things to be performed by him or her, that is sufficient to take the contract out of the statute of frauds [James v. Hall (1928) 88 Cal. App. 528, 534, 264 P 516] . The statute of frauds has no application to an executed oral agreement (262 Cal. App. 2d 582, 588) .

[b] Payment of Money Is Only Remaining Obligation

In Blaustein v. Burton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 88 Cal. Rptr. 319 , the plaintiff, a motion picture producer, revealed to the defendants, a prominent acting couple, his idea for a motion picture version of a Shakespearean play. The defendants were to star in the film, which was to be directed by a particular director. The plaintiff had other specific ideas in relation to the project, which he revealed to the defendants. The defendants used the plaintiff's ideas but did not compensate the plaintiff. The plaintiff then sued for breach of contract, among other causes of action. Summary judgment for the defendants was entered, and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The plaintiff's declaration in opposition to the motion for summary judgment was sufficient to raise triable issues of fact as to whether the plaintiff's disclosure was made in confidence and was accepted by the defendants on the understanding that they would not use it without the plaintiff's consent. The agreement was not barred by Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1). If the defendants were found to have made an implied promise to pay, conditioned on subsequent use, in return for the plaintiff's act of disclosing the idea, as opposed to his promise to disclose the idea, it would constitute a unilateral contract, which is not within the provision of the statute of frauds pertaining to contracts not to be performed within one year (9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 184-185) . On the other hand, it might be found that the plaintiff disclosed his idea on the condition that the defendants would not use it unless they compensated him, and that the defendants accepted disclosure on that condition, with the plaintiff's compensation to be either his engagement as the producer of the film or payment of the monetary equivalent. In that case, since the film had already been produced without the plaintiff, all that remained to be done was payment by the defendants, and the statute of frauds is inapplicable when a contract has been fully performed by one party, and nothing remains but the payment of money by the other party (9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 185) .

Dean v. Davis (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 166, 166 P.2d 15 , involved an oral agreement that the plaintiff would obtain employment for the defendant in consideration of receiving a percentage of the defendant's annual earnings above a threshold amount. The plaintiff obtained employment for the defendant on eight occasions over a two-year period, and the defendant reported the income he received from these jobs and paid the plaintiff his percentage of that amount. The plaintiff sued, alleging that the defendant had under-reported his income and that there was a balance due to the plaintiff. A demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend, and the plaintiff appealed from the ensuing judgment of dismissal.

The court of appeal reversed. The statute of frauds provision pertaining to contracts not to be performed within one year was not applicable to the case. The plaintiff had performed his agreement to obtain employment for the defendant, and the defendant had rendered the services required by the employment he had accepted. When a contract has been so far performed that nothing remains to be done but the payment of the consideration for the performance, the fact that the contract does not require payment within a year furnishes no defense to an action for the price [Hellings v. Wright (1916) 29 Cal. App. 649, 656, 156 P 365] . The statute of frauds does not bar enforcement of a contract by an employee who has fully performed his part of the contract when nothing remains to be done by the other party but to pay the agreed compensation. Additionally, when parties to a contract not to be performed within one year have partly performed it, neither party may avoid its obligations as to past transactions on the ground of the statute of frauds (73 Cal. App. 2d 166, 168) . The agreement was performed by the plaintiff, and the defendant had recognized the agreement and the duty to account to the plaintiff by making partial payments under the pretense of making full payment (73 Cal. App. 2d 166, 168-169) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Cover Contract Fully Performed by One Party

The plaintiff in Nesson v. Moes (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 655, 30 Cal. Rptr. 428 , had been employed by the defendant for a four-year period pursuant to an oral contract. The plaintiff sued to recover underpayments in the agreed compensation for the last two years of the term. Affirming a judgment for the plaintiff, the court held that the statute of frauds pertaining to contracts not to be performed within one year does not apply to oral contracts that have been completely performed by one party (215 Cal. App. 2d 655, 656, 657-659) . The court distinguished cases holding that the mere rendition of services is usually not such partial performance as to avoid the statute of frauds, on the basis that those cases involved only partial performance of the services required rather than complete performance of those services (215 Cal. App. 2d 655, 657) .

In Prince v. Varona (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 673, 301 P.2d 512 , an action to quiet title, the court of appeal held that the statute of frauds did not apply to an oral property settlement agreement entered into by the parties after their divorce, when the plaintiff had fully performed his obligations under the contract and had gone into possession of the real property in question and held it for about nine years. All that remained to be done under the agreement was for the defendant to execute a deed to the plaintiff, and the court held that it would be inequitable to allow the defendant, who had been fully compensated under a fair agreement, to rely on the statute of frauds (144 Cal. App. 2d 673, 675-676) .

The court of appeal in Profit v. Profit (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 126, 255 P.2d 25 , an action for annulment of marriage and settlement of property rights, held that an oral agreement between the parties that certain real property would be shared equally was enforceable against the husband when the wife had conveyed her property to the husband. The court held that when one party to an oral agreement to exchange land has conveyed the property to the other, there is such partial performance as will in equity remove the case from the operation of the statute of frauds (117 Cal. App. 2d 126, 131) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.112

§ 216.112 Performance Renders Statute of Frauds Inapplicable--Statute of Frauds Is Inapplicable to Past Transactions Performed Under Contract Not to Be Performed Within One Year

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

EVEN THOUGH THE CONTRACT CANNOT BE PERFORMED WITHIN ONE YEAR FROM ITS MAKING, THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS DOES NOT APPLY TO RELIEVE THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] OF HIS/HER/ITS OBLIGATIONS AS TO PAST TRANSACTIONS UNDER THE CONTRACT.

Partial Performance of Contract Not to Be Performed Within One Year Is Binding as to Past Transactions. When the parties to an oral contract that is not to be performed within one year have partly performed it, neither party can avoid the obligation of the contract as to past transactions on the ground that the contract was within the statute of frauds (Pio Pico v. Cuyas (1873) 47 Cal. 174, 179 ; Roberts v. Wachter (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 271, 281, 231 P.2d 534).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that even if an oral contract is prospectively unenforceable because it cannot be performed within one year from its making, neither party may avoid obligations under the contract as to past transactions under it. (However, partial performance of a contract not to be performed within one year does not remove the contract from the statute of frauds so as to make the contract prospectively enforceable [see Kraft v. Rooke (1930) 103 Cal. App. 552, 555-557, 284 P. 935] .) The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever a party is relying on such a contract, and the adverse party contends that the agreement is within the statute of frauds. The argument would most likely be raised in an action for breach of the contract.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that even though the contract was not to be performed within one year from its making, the party relying on the agreement had performed it for some period, so as to become entitled to receive consideration from the other party for that performance.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Partial Performance of Contract Not to Be Performed Within One Year Is Binding as to Past Transactions

Pio Pico v. Cuyas (1873) 47 Cal. 174 , was an action for rent brought against the lessee of a hotel. The plaintiff also sought to recover money paid for furnishings at the defendant's request. The defendant claimed that after the time of the lease, but before he took possession of the hotel, the parties had orally agreed to enter into a five-year partnership in keeping the hotel, the plaintiff to own the hotel and its furnishings, the defendant to manage the business, and the profits and losses to be divided between the parties. Judgment was rendered for the defendant, and the plaintiff appealed. The plaintiff argued that the oral partnership agreement should not have been allowed in evidence because by its terms it was not to be performed within one year from its making.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The plaintiff's argument was answered by the partial performance of the agreement. The partnership had been entered into and the business had been conducted in the firm name. Under the well-settled construction of the one-year clause of the statute of frauds, neither party could avoid the obligation of the contract as to past transactions under it (47 Cal. 174, 179) .

In Roberts v. Wachter (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 271, 231 P.2d 534 , the plaintiff had rendered legal services in organizing a business and had been involved in its management. Initially, the business was a proprietorship, and the plaintiff was to receive 50 percent of the net profit after the proprietor received a 5-percent return on the invested capital. Later, the business was organized into a partnership. The plaintiff was not a partner but was to receive one sixth of the former proprietor's share of the partnership profits. This agreement was reduced to a written memorandum, authorizing direct payment of that amount to the plaintiff by the partnership. The plaintiff received his share under this agreement from June 1942 through 1944. Early in 1945, the former proprietor agreed to return to the original arrangement, and the plaintiff agreed to perform additional services. For 1945, the plaintiff was paid more than half of the 50-percent share that was owed to him, and the remainder of his share he consented not to withdraw but allowed the partnership the use of the money for a while. The balance due for 1945 was never paid, and the plaintiff sued on an account stated and for money had and received. The defendants appealed from a judgment for the plaintiff. On appeal, the defendants contended, among other things, that the agreement was not to be performed within one year from its making and was therefore required to be in writing.

The court of appeal affirmed. When the parties to a contract that is not to be performed within one year have partly performed it, neither party can avoid the contract's obligations as to past transactions by objecting that the contract was oral and within the statute of frauds (104 Cal. App. 2d 271, 281) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.113

§ 216.113 Performance Renders Statute of Frauds Inapplicable--Statute of Frauds Is Inapplicable to Real Property Sale Agreement That Is Partially Performed

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT IS ENFORCEABLE BECAUSE PARTIAL PERFORMANCE REMOVED THE BAR OF THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Partially Performed Oral Agreement to Sell Real Property May Be Enforced. Partial performance will take an agreement for the sale of real property out of the statute of frauds so that the agreement may be enforced in equity. Mere payment of money is not enough, but taking possession in reliance on the oral agreement, if the possession is actual, visible, notorious, and exclusive so that it furnishes evidence of the agreement between the parties as good as a writing, is sufficient to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds (Sutton v. Warner (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 415, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632 ; Francis v. Colendich (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 128, 131, 14 Cal. Rptr. 56).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that even though an oral contract to sell real property is normally within the statute of frauds, the contract has been removed from the operation of the statute by partial performance. The argument supported by these points andauthorities may be raised whenever a party is relying on a partly performed oral agreement to sell real property as the basis of some right, and the adverse party contends that the agreement is invalid because it was within the statute of frauds. The argument would most likely be raised in an action for breach of the contract, specific performance, or to quiet title.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that the party relying on partial performance of the contract has, in addition to paying money, taken possession in reliance on the oral agreement, made valuable improvements, or done other acts unequivocally referable to the oral agreement. The possession should be actual, and so visible, notorious, and exclusive that it furnishes evidence of the agreement between the parties that is as good as a writing [Harrison v. Hanson (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 370, 376, 331 P.2d 1084 (partial performance was not established by trivial outlays or employment of real estate consultants to plan development of property, which at most is mere technical possession); see Davis v. Judson (1910) 159 Cal. 121, 132, 113 P. 147 (partial performance was not established by occasional visits to lots)]. To establish partial performance, the purchaser of real property must show that the taking of possession and making of improvements was done with the vendor's knowledge [Stark v. Byington (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 642, 648, 69 P.2d 995] . The mere payment of money is not sufficient to establish partial performance [see § 216.114].

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities in § 216.114 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Partially Performed Oral Agreement to Sell Real Property May Be Enforced

In Sutton v. Warner (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 415, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632 , the plaintiff moved into the defendant's premises as a tenant. Thereafter, the parties made an oral agreement under which the plaintiff made a down payment of $15,000 and had an option to purchase the house from the defendant within five years. In the meantime, the plaintiff made the mortgage payments and made a number of improvements in the house. The plaintiff sued for specific performance of the contract of sale. The trial court granted specific performance. The defendant appealed.

The Court of Appeal affirmed. Under the doctrine of partial performance, an oral agreement to sell real property is enforced when the purchaser has taken possession of the property and either makes a full or partial payment of the purchase price or makes substantial improvements in the property in reliance on the oral agreement. The possession must be actual, visible, notorious, and exclusive so that it manifests clearly that the purchaser is claiming ownership of the property (12 Cal. App. 4th 415, 422) . Continuance in possession by a purchaser who is already in possession may, in the proper case, be sufficiently referable to an oral contract of sale to constitute partial performance. Continuing possession by a tenant is sufficient for partial performance when coupled with a down payment, mortgage payments, reimbursement of property taxes, and improvements to the property (12 Cal. App. 4th 415, 422-424) .

Francis v. Colendich (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 128, 14 Cal. Rptr. 56 , involved a dispute over a parcel of land originally owned by the Cliftons. The defendant's son had entered into an oral agreement with the Cliftons to purchase the parcel, which adjoined property he already owned. The parcel was paid for, surveyed, and fenced in. Thereafter, it was occupied and used by the defendant and her son until the son's death, after which the defendant, who was his heir, continued to occupy and use the parcel. Nearly eight years after the oral agreement, the plaintiff acquired a deed that included the parcel from successors in interest of the Cliftons. Three years after that, the plaintiff cut the fence and entered the parcel. He left on request but sued to quiet title. The defendant cross complained for specific performance of the oral agreement and for a declaration that the plaintiff held the property in trust for the defendant. The trial court gave judgment for the defendant, and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The trial court had not erred in failing to make specific findings on the issues of the statute of limitations, the statute of frauds, and laches. In regard to the statute of frauds, the evidence would not have sustained a finding that the defendant's claim was barred. Partial performance will take a contract out of the statute of frauds, and the contract then will be enforced by equity. The mere payment of money is insufficient, but taking possession in reliance on the oral agreement, if the possession is actual, visible, notorious, and exclusive so that it furnishes evidence of the agreement between the parties as good as a writing, is sufficient to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds. The possession of the defendant and her son under the oral contract in this case constituted sufficient partial performance to take the contract out of the statute of frauds (193 Cal. App. 2d 128, 131-132) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Partially Performed Oral Agreement to Sell Real Property May Be Enforced

In Baggesi v. Baggesi (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 828, 224 P.2d 894 , in which the plaintiff sought a declaration that he owned a half interest in the defendant's farm, the court of appeal stated that the evidence established that the plaintiff had performed his promise to remain on and to care for and develop the land in reliance on the oral agreement that he would receive a half interest in it, and that he irrevocably changed his position as a result of such reliance so as to come within the partial performance exception to the statute of frauds (100 Cal. App. 2d 828, 835) .

Engasser v. Jones (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 171, 198 P.2d 546 , was an action for specific performance or for damages for breach of contract in relation to an oral agreement for the sale of real estate. The court of appeal held that the evidence sufficiently supported the finding that the plaintiffs were put into possession of the property under the oral agreement of sale, expended money in moving into the property, furnished the house, arranged for water rights, and had exclusive control of the property, all with the knowledge and consent of the defendants, who accepted the down payment and two monthly payments under the oral agreement. Accordingly, the court held that there was sufficient support for the finding that there was partial performance of the agreement and that the agreement was thus taken out of the operation of the statute of frauds (88 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175-176) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.114

§ 216.114 Statute of Frauds Applies in Spite of Partial Performance--Payment of Money Is Insufficient in Itself to Constitute Partial Performance

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief].

THE CONTRACT IS NOT ENFORCEABLE BECAUSE THE PAYMENT OF MONEY IS INSUFFICIENT TO CONSTITUTE PARTIAL PERFORMANCE REMOVING THE CONTRACT FROM THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Payment of Money Is Insufficient as Partial Performance. The payment of money is not sufficient partial performance to take an oral agreement out of the statute of frauds because the party paying money under an invalid contract has an adequate remedy at law (Anderson v. Stansbury (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 707, 716, 242 P.2d 305 ; Oren Realty & Dev. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 229, 235, 154 Cal. Rptr. 97).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an oral agreement has not been removed from the operation of the statute of frauds by partial performance because the mere payment of money does not constitute sufficient partial performance of an oral agreement so as to remove it from the statute of frauds. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on the statute of frauds to bar enforcement of an oral agreement whenever the adverse party urges that such an agreement has been removed from the operation of the statute by partial performance that consists solely of the payment of money pursuant to the agreement. The argument would most likely be raised in defending an action for breach of contract, for specific performance, or to quiet title on the ground that the contract on which the adverse party bases his or her claim is barred by the statute of frauds.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that the only acts in partial performance of the agreement relied on by the adverse party are payments of money.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities supporting the contention that the contract at issue is within the statute of frauds [see, e.g., §§ 216.10[1], 216.30[1], 216.40[1]].

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Payment of Money Is Insufficient as Partial Performance

The facts and procedural background of Anderson v. Stansbury (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 707, 242 P.2d 305 , are discussed in § 216.40[3][c]. The Supreme Court, citing Shive v. Barrow (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 838, 848, 199 P.2d 693 , held that the payment of money is not sufficient partial performance to take an oral agreement out of the statute of frauds because the party who pays money under an invalid contract has an adequate remedy at law. The Court also found that the other act relied on to show partial performance did not, as a matter of fact, constitute anychange of position or unconscionable loss (38 Cal. 2d 707, 716) .

In Oren Realty & Dev. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 229, 154 Cal. Rptr. 97 , the petitioners, as vendors, and the real parties in interest, as purchasers, had reached an oral agreement for the sale of two homes. The purchasers sent two checks for $5,000 to the escrow agent, but the checks were returned because the purchasers had not signed the escrow instructions. The following day, the purchasers delivered new checks to the escrow agent, who retained the checks on their instructions and their information that they intended to sue for specific performance. In the action for specific performance, the petitioners moved for summary judgment based on the statute of frauds, and the trial court denied the motion, finding a triable issue of fact that might raise an equitable estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds. The petitioners then sought a writ of mandate from the court of appeal to compel the trial court to grant the motion.

The court of appeal ordered the writ to issue. None of the grounds relied on by the purchasers was sufficient to estop the petitioners from asserting the statute of frauds. With respect to transmitting the down payment to the escrow agent: before a party can be estopped to assert the statute of frauds based on the other's partial performance, there must have been a sufficient change of position so that the application of the statutory bar would result in an unjust and unconscionable loss, amounting in effect to a fraud. The payment of money is not sufficient partial performance to take an oral agreement out of the statute of frauds because the party paying money under an invalid contract has an adequate remedy at law (91 Cal. App. 3d 229, 235) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Payment of Money Is Insufficient as Partial Performance

In Davis v. Judson (1910) 159 Cal. 121, 113 P 147 , an action to quiet title, the Supreme Court held that payment of the purchase price did not itself constitute the partial performance necessary to take out of the statute of frauds an oral agreement to convey two lots to the plaintiff in return for the plaintiff's supplying $500 worth of construction material to the defendant (159 Cal. 121, 131) .

In Contreras v. Loya (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 176, 13 Cal. Rptr. 233 , an action for specific performance, the court of appeal held that a cash payment made as part of the consideration for an oral agreement to convey an interest in real property was not such a performance as to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds because the injury was compensable in damages (192 Cal. App. 2d 176, 178) .

In Loper v. Flynn (1946) 72 Cal. App. 2d 619, 165 P.2d 256 , the plaintiff sued for specific performance of an agreement with the defendant's testatrix, pursuant to which the testatrix was to devise to him interest in real property that they held as tenants in common, in consideration of his granting to the testatrix all the rents, issues, and profits of the property during the testatrix's life. The plaintiff alleged that he had fully performed his part of the contract, but the court of appeal, in holding that the complaint failed to state a cause of action, stated that the payment of money was insufficient to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds because the money paid could be recovered, with interest, in an action at law (72 Cal. App. 2d 619, 622) .

48 of 176 DOCUMENTS

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities §§ 216.115-216.129

[Reserved]

§§ 216.115[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.130

§ 216.130 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Estopped to Rely on It--Party Is Guilty of Unconscionable Injury or Would Receive Unjust Enrichment

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] IS ESTOPPED TO RELY ON THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE _____ [HE/SHE/IT WILL BE UNJUSTLY ENRICHED IF ALLOWED TO RELY ON THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS and/or THE _____ (party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF) WILL BE UNCONSCIONABLY INJURED IF ENFORCEMENT OF THE CONTRACT IS DENIED BECAUSE HE/SHE/IT HAS SERIOUSLY CHANGED POSITION IN RELIANCE ON THE CONTRACT].

A. Party May Be Estopped to Assert Statute of Frauds. The doctrine of estoppel to assert the statute of frauds has been consistently applied by the California courts to prevent fraud that would result from refusal to enforce oral contracts in certain circumstances. Such fraud may inhere in the unconscionable injury that would result from denying enforcement of the contract after one party has been induced by the other seriously to change his or her position in reliance on the contract, or in the unjust enrichment that would result if a party who has received the benefit of the other's performance were allowed to rely on the statute (Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 623-624, 220 P.2d 737).

[Optional] B. Partial Performance Removes Agreement From Statute of Frauds. A party may be estopped to assert the statute of frauds by the other party's partial performance if such a change of position has occurred that the application of the bar of the statute of frauds would result in an unjust and unconscionable loss, amounting in effect to a fraud (Anderson v. Stansbury (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 707,715, 242 P.2d 305 ; Maddox v. Rainoldi (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 384, 389-390, 329 P.2d 599).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the adverse party is estopped from relying on the statute of frauds as a defense to an oral agreement. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised whenever the adverse party raises the issue of the statute of frauds, and denial of enforcement would cause irreparable injury or unjust enrichment. However, the general rule pertaining to estoppel to assert the statute of frauds is of limited application respecting oral agreements to pay a real estate broker's commission [see Owens v. Foundation for Ocean Research (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 179, 183, 165 Cal. Rptr. 571 ; Keely v. Price (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 209, 212-214, 103 Cal. Rptr. 531 ; see also Ch. 31, Brokers and Salespersons].

These points and authorities also may be used in opposing a demurrer to a complaint when facts showing an estoppel have been pleaded. If the party relying on an oral agreement within the statute of frauds pleads the oral contract in the complaint, facts showing estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds as a defense to the agreement must be pleaded [Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294-295, 266 P.2d 850] .

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should set forth any serious changes in position that his or her client or the party to the contract through whom his or her client is making a claim has made in reliance on the contract, to demonstrate unconscionable injury; alternatively, counsel should set forth the benefits of the contract that have been received by the party relying on the statute of frauds, to demonstrate the unjust enrichment that would result if the contract were not enforced. If the facts show both unconscionable injury and unjust enrichment, both should be demonstrated.

The change in position relied on to show unconscionable injury need not be unequivocally referable to the oral agreement [Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 208, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769 (purchase of property on which to live while building on nearby property that was subject of oral sales contract)].

In demonstrating unconscionable injury, counsel representing a third-party beneficiary of the oral contract must demonstrate that a party to the contract seriously changed his or her position in reliance on the contract, rather than relying on a change in position by the third-party beneficiary [see DiSalvo v. Bank of America (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 351, 355, 78 Cal. Rptr. 838 (grandmother's giving up of community property interests and testamentary right to leave property to plaintiff in consideration of father's leaving half of his estate to plaintiff was sufficient to estop parties claiming under father's will from denying oral agreement as against plaintiff)].

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For points and authorities opposing a demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will on the ground that the complaint alleges the rendition of peculiar services or estoppel so as to remove the agreement from the operation of the statute of frauds, see Ch. 214, Specific Performance .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.132 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Party May Be Estopped to Assert Statute of Frauds

In Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 220 P.2d 737 , a woman and her husband bought a half interest in agricultural property for $4,000. When the wife's son by a previous marriage decided to leave home and seek an independent living, the wife and her husband made an oral proposal that her son should stay home and work in the family venture. In return, the wife and her husband would keep their property in joint tenancy so that it would pass to the survivor who would leave it to the wife's son except for some small bequests. The wife's son performed his part of the agreement. The value of the half-interest in the property increased to $100,000, and the husband caused the joint tenancy to be terminated and executed a will leaving all of his property to his own grandson without the knowledge of the wife or her son. After the husband's death, the grandson sued to partition the property, and the wife/widow cross complained for a declaration that the grandson held the property in constructive trust. The trial court gave judgment for the wife/widow in both the main action and the cross action, and the grandson appealed.

The Supreme Court affirmed. The controlling question was whether the plaintiff was estopped from asserting the statute of frauds. The doctrine of estoppel to assert the statute of frauds has been consistently applied by California courts to prevent fraud that would result from refusal to enforce oral contracts in certaincircumstances. Such fraud may inhere in the unconscionable injury that would result from denying enforcement of the contract after one party has been induced by the other seriously to change his or her position in reliance on the contract or in the unjust enrichment that would result if a party who has received the benefits of the other's performance were allowed to rely on the statute (35 Cal. 2d 621, 623-624) . Often both factors are present, and that was true in the present case. Unconscionable injury was presented because the son, in reliance on repeated assurances that he would receive the property, had given up any opportunity to accumulate his own property and had devoted 20 years of labor to make the family venture successful, without receiving any present interest in the venture. Unjust enrichment was presented because the husband had reaped the benefits of the contract so that he and his devisees would be unjustly enriched if he was relieved of the performance of his own obligations under the agreement by the statute of frauds (35 Cal. 2d 621, 624-625) . When a party changes position, he or she is relying on the promise that the contract will be performed, not on the representation that the contract will be put in writing or that the statute of frauds will not be invoked. Also, a party who accepts the benefit of an oral contract will be unjustly enriched if the contract is not enforced, whether the representations related to the statutory requirements or were limited to affirmations that the contract would be performed (35 Cal. 2d 621, 625-626) .

[b] Partial Performance Removes Agreement From Statute of Frauds

The facts and procedural background of Anderson v. Stansbury (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 707, 242 P.2d 305 , are discussed in § 216.40[3][c]. In affirming, the Supreme Court held that the plaintiffs could not rely on the doctrine of partial performance. Before a party can be estopped to assert the statute of frauds based on the other's partial performance, it must appear that a sufficient change of position has occurred so that the application of the statutory bar would result in an unjust and unconscionable loss, amounting in effect to a fraud [Mason v. Home Ins. Co. (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 696, 698)]. The Court noted that the plaintiffs' only change in position was the payment of money (by returning the $800 check), which is not sufficient partial performance to remove an agreement from the statute of frauds, and the execution and delivery of the second disclaimer, which did not constitute a change in position or unconscionable injury in light of the previous disclaimer by which the plaintiffs had already completely divested themselves of all interest in the oil and gas permit (38 Cal. 2d 707, 716) .

In Maddox v. Rainoldi (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 384, 329 P.2d 599 , the plaintiffs sought a declaration that the defendant, who was the mother of one of the plaintiffs, held certain real property in trust for the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs alleged that the defendant had orally promised that if the plaintiffs would make necessary improvements and repairs to the property, the defendant would hold legal title to the property in her lifetime, that she would share the use of the property with the plaintiffs, and that she would not sell the property unless she became destitute and the plaintiffs were unable to care for her. The plaintiffs went into possession of the property and made extensive and substantial improvements to it, making expenditures amounting to several times the original value of the property. The defendant then announced her intention to sell the property unless the plaintiffs purchased it for a specified sum. The trial court granted the defendant's motion for nonsuit on the ground that the action was barred by the statute of frauds because the oral agreement involved an interest in real property and because it was not to be fully performed during the defendant's lifetime. The plaintiffs appealed from the judgment of nonsuit.

The court of appeal reversed. The plaintiffs' making of valuable improvements took the oral declaration of trust out of the statute of frauds (163 Cal. App. 2d 384, 389) . It has always been the law that making substantial improvements on real property in reliance on an oral promise such as the promise in this case is sufficient to take the contract out of the statute of frauds. The question is whether there has been such partial performance by the plaintiff as to put the plaintiff in a situation that would be a fraud on the plaintiff unless the oral agreement were enforced and that there is a manifest fraud in permitting a vendor to escape from performance of the contract when the vendee, on an oral agreement for the sale of the land, proceeds to build a house on the land [Tohler v. Folsom (1850) 1 Cal. 207, 212] (163 Cal. App. 2d 384, 389-390) . In addition, the estoppel, on which is based the rule that partial performance of a contract may take an oral promise out of the statute of frauds, may apply to an oral contract not to be performed within the lifetime of the promisor (163 Cal. App. 2d 384, 390) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Party May Be Estopped to Assert Statute of Frauds

Redke v. Silvertrust (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 94, 98 Cal. Rptr. 293, 490 P.2d 805 , involved the defendant's promise to the plaintiff's mother that if she would leave him half of her property, he would leave his share of that property to the plaintiff. The Supreme Court held that the trial court properly concluded that the defendant was estopped to rely on the statute of frauds, since the wife had changed her position to her detriment by not changing her will and trust instrument to make the plaintiff her sole beneficiary; that is, she changed her position by maintaining the status quo despite her concern over the plaintiff's welfare (6 Cal. 3d 94, 101) .

In Byrne v. Laura (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1054, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908 , the plaintiff sued the administrator and heirs of a decedent's estate to enforce a Marvin agreement, and the estate cross-complained for unpaid rent. The estate's motion for summary adjudication was granted as to all of the plaintiff's causes of action other than her quantum meruit claim. The trial court found that there was noagreement between her and the decedent to compensate for her services. Even if there had been such an agreement, she would have been adequately compensated for any services she provided. Judgment was entered for the cross complainants for unpaid rent and for the estate on all of the plaintiff's causes of action. On appeal from the judgment, she contended that the trial court erred in granting the summary adjudication motion and that she was entitled to a trial on her causes of action other than the one for quantum meruit. The court of appeal concluded that all of the promises and conduct in evidence could not be characterized solely as an agreement for a joint tenancy. To the extent that the agreements at issue were subject to a statute of frauds, there was a triable issue of fact as to whether the estate was equitably estopped to assert the statute as a defense. Finding the plaintiff's reliance on the decedent's representations to be a classic case for applying the equitable estoppel doctrine [see Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 220 P.2d 737 (discussed in [3][a], above)], the court of appeal reversed the judgment on the claims that were summarily adjudicated and on the estate's claim for unpaid rent. Since equitable estoppel was a triable issue of fact, it was error to summarily adjudicate her claim for damages for breach of the property agreement (52 Cal. App. 4th 1054, 1068-1069) .

In Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 , a son claimed that his deceased father had breached an oral agreement to leave all of the father's property at death to the son if the son cared for the father during the father's lifetime. The trial court concluded that equitable estoppel did not preclude the defendant, as executrix of the father's will and trustee of the father's trust, from asserting the applicable statutes of fraud. The date of the alleged agreement was not ascertainable, and the trial court did not determine which was the applicable statute:

former Prob. Code § 150 or the predecessor provision removed from former paragraph 6 of Civ. Code § 1624 in 1983. It concluded, however, that both statutes of fraud would preclude the plaintiff from pursuing his action to enforce the alleged oral agreement. The plaintiff appealed from a summary judgment for the defendant and contended that his papers opposing the summary judgment motion presented sufficient evidence to create triable issues of material fact on that question and that the court erred by granting the motion. The court of appeal agreed and reversed the judgment. It held that equitable estoppel principles were available under former Prob. Code § 150 or former Civ. Code § 1624(b) to enforce the father's alleged oral agreement to leave all of his property to his son if the son cared for him during the testator's lifetime (56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 358) .

In Juran v. Epstein (1996) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 , an estate beneficiary alleged that her stepfather breached an oral agreement by revoking a 1985 will that he executed while the plaintiff's mother was alive. The couple's wills left everything to each other, with the survivor's estate to be divided between their children. After the plaintiff's mother died, the stepfather revoked his will and executed a new one, which excluded the plaintiff. The plaintiff claimed that the defendant breached his oral contract with the plaintiff's mother to leave their entire estate to the surviving spouse on the condition that the survivor would bequeath the entire estate equally to the plaintiff and another child. The trial court granted the defendant's motion for summary judgment pursuant to former Prob. Code § 150. The appellate court concluded that the plaintiff failed to produce written evidence, under former Prob. Code § 150, of an agreement that the mutual wills would not be revoked (23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 891) . However, the court held that because there were triable issues of fact as to whether the parties entered into an oral agreement and whether that agreement was enforceable under the equitable estoppel doctrine, the trial court erred in granting summary judgment (23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897) . The appellate court rejected the defendant's argument that former Prob. Code § 150 abolished the doctrine of equitable estoppel in appropriate cases. It found nothing in the history or language of that section showing that the Legislature intended to abrogate long-standing rules that the courts have the power to apply equitable principles to prevent a party from using the statute of frauds when that use would constitute fraud (23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 894-895) .

In DiSalvo v. Bank of America (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 351, 78 Cal. Rptr. 838 , the court of appeal held that a complaint for quasi-specific performance sufficiently alleged estoppel to assert the statute of frauds. The complaint alleged that the plaintiff's father and paternal grandparents had made an agreement regarding disposition of the grandfather's property on his death. Under the agreement, the grandfather was to dispose of all of his community property by will, a substantial part of which was to go to the plaintiff's father, who was to leave half of all his property to the plaintiff. The grandmother performed her part of the agreement and did not protest the grandfather's will, but the plaintiff's father left the plaintiff only a contingent interest in less than one quarter of his estate. The court held that the complaint sufficiently alleged that the grandmother, who had surrendered her community property interests in return for a promise that she would be taken care of for her lifetime and that her son would leave the plaintiff half of his estate, was unconscionably injured and that the beneficiaries under the plaintiff's father's will were unjustly enriched (274 Cal. App. 2d 351, 355-356) .

[b] Partial Performance Removes Agreement From Statute of Frauds

In Estate of Rivolo (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 773, 15 Cal. Rptr. 268 , a proceeding to determine heirship, the court of appeal rejected a contention that the respondent's claim to the entire estate was barred by the statute of frauds because it was based on an oral agreement to adopt respondent. The court held that partial performance will take a contract to adopt or a contract of inheritance out of thestatute of frauds (194 Cal. App. 2d 773, 777) . The agreement was partly performed by the respondent, who had fully performed the duties of a daughter to the decedent. The fact that the respondent suffered no detriment was deemed irrelevant since such an agreement is primarily for the child's benefit, and partial performance removing the contract from the statute of frauds was found on the basis that the services she performed as a daughter were of such a peculiar nature that their value could not be estimated by any pecuniary measure, and the respondent could not be restored to the situation in which she was before rendition of those services (194 Cal. App. 2d 773, 777-778) .

In Grant v. Long (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 725, 92 P.2d 940 , an action for declaratory relief to determine the plaintiff's right to free room and board in a hotel for the rest of her life based on an oral agreement that the parties had been performing for 14 years, the court of appeal held that the defendants were estopped to rely on the statute of frauds and stated that a partially performed contract is usually taken out of the operation of the statute of frauds (33 Cal. App. 2d 725, 742) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.131

§ 216.131 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Estopped to Rely on It--Principal Is Estopped to Rely on Requirement That Agent's Authority Must Be in Writing

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] IS ESTOPPED FROM RELYING ON CIVIL CODE SECTION 2309 BECAUSE HE/SHE BY HIS/HER OWN CONDUCT _____ [specify, e.g., LULLED THE _____ (party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF) INTO BELIEVING THAT HIS/HER AGENT HAD WRITTEN AUTHORITY TO ENTER INTO THE CONTRACT OR HAD NO NEED FOR WRITTEN AUTHORITY or ACCEPTED THE BENEFITS OF THE ORAL AUTHORIZATION OF HIS/HER AGENT WITH COMPLETE KNOWLEDGE OF THE CIRCUMSTANCES].

Principal Is Estopped by Own Acts to Rely on Requirement That Agent's Authority Be Written. A principal is estopped to raise the equal-dignities rule of Civil Code Section 2309, requiring an agent to have written authority to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing, against a contracting third party if the principal's conduct has the effect of lulling the third party into believing that the agent has written authority to enter into the contract or has no need of written authority (Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839). A principal also may be estopped to rely on Civil Code Section 2309 if, having complete knowledge of the circumstances, the principal received the benefits resulting from a contract made by the agent without written authority (Higson v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 333, 342, 69 Cal. Rptr. 497).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the adverse party is estopped to rely on an agent's lack of written authority to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing. The argument supported by this memorandum may be raised whenever the adverse party contends that the agreement being relied on was entered into by an agent who did not have written authority to enter into it, if the adverse party, as principal, is estopped by his or her own actions from relying on the lack of written authority.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should demonstrate that the acts relied on to create an estoppel based on Civ. Code § 2309 were acts of the principal rather than of the agent and that the principal had complete knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the transaction and accepted the benefits of the contract.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[d] Opposing Points and Authorities

The points and authorities set out in § 216.133 may be used in an appropriate case to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Principal Is Estopped by Own Acts to Rely on Requirement That Agent's Authority Be Written

The facts and procedural background of Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839 , are discussed in § 216.92[3][c]. The defendant argued on appeal that it was not bound by the contract, under the equal-dignities rule of Civ. Code § 2309 requiring written authority for an agent to enter into an agreement required by law to be in writing, because the defendant's agent was employed under an oral agreement and had no writtenauthority to enter into the contract with the plaintiff. The court of appeal agreed with the trial court that the defendant was estopped to rely on the equal-dignities rule. The court held that a principal is estopped to raise the equal-dignities rule against a contracting third party if the principal's conduct has the effect of lulling the third party into believing that the agent has written authority to enter into the contract or has no need of written authority [McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 258, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902 (discussed in § 216.133 [3][a]); Higson v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 333, 341-342, 69 Cal. Rptr. 497 (discussed below)] (56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934) . The defendant had given the agent the title of "entertainment director" and placed his name on the hotel's marquee as the presenter of entertainment; the agent had routinely booked the entertainment for the hotel as he had done for Las Vegas hotels for 20 years; the agent had signed the contract on behalf of the defendant for a previous production by the plaintiff at the defendant's hotel; and when the plaintiff had tried to speak to the managing director of the hotel about producing My Fair Lady, the managing director had told him to consult the agent. The plaintiff could reasonably believe from the defendant's conduct that either the agent had written authority to enter into all contracts for entertainment, including those required to be in writing, or the defendant would not object to the absence of written authority (56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934-935) . The defendant also argued that in order to establish estoppel, the plaintiff had to show that he had suffered unconscionable injury in reliance on the agent's apparent authority. The court pointed out that the evidence showed such an injury in that the plaintiff had expended time and effort in arranging the production after the agreement had been made with the agent (56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 935) .

In Higson v. Montgomery Ward & Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 333, 69 Cal. Rptr. 497 , the defendant wanted to purchase an entire city block consisting of 17 separately owned parcels. The defendant orally employed a real estate broker, who was given general authority to take care of the details of the various transactions. The defendant knew that the agent was entering into contracts on its behalf for the purchase of real estate and for the payment of real estate broker's commissions. The plaintiff had been employed by the defendant's agent as a real estate broker in relation to two of the parcels and had been paid commissions for his services. The agent subsequently asked the plaintiff to assist in finding an income property to trade for the last of the 17 parcels, whose owner would not sell but would trade for income property with a suitable lessee. The plaintiff, who was unaware of the lease requirement, found an appropriate property and entered into an agreement with the broker who had an exclusive listing on that property to split the commission. The defendant's agent submitted an offer for the property and gave the plaintiff a written agreement to pay a $15,000 commission. The offer was not accepted, but a second offer, to which the agreement to pay a commission also applied, was accepted. Escrow was opened, but the defendant did not close that deal because a lease of the property had not been concluded. Later, the defendant did purchase the property and paid a commission to the broker who had the exclusive listing on the property. The defendant then traded the property for the last of the 17 parcels of the block. The defendant's agent refused to pay the plaintiff any commission on the purchase of the property, and the plaintiff sued to collect his commission. The judgment was for the plaintiff, but the trial court granted the defendant's motion for a new trial. Both parties appealed.

The court of appeal reversed the order granting a new trial and affirmed the judgment. The evidence was clearly sufficient to support a finding that the defendant had given its agent oral authority to pay real estate commissions (263 Cal. App. 2d 333, 341) . Under former Civ. Code § 2309, authority to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing must be written, and under former Civ. Code § 1624 an agreement to pay a real estate broker's commission must be in writing [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4)] (263 Cal. App. 2d 333, 341-342) . However, the plaintiff's commission agreement with the defendant's agent had been fully performed by the plaintiff, and the defendant, with complete knowledge of the circumstances, received the benefits resulting from its oral authorization to its agent to buy the city block in question. The defendant had additionally received the immediate benefit of the commission agreement, which had enabled the defendant to tie up that property in escrow for 90 days while trying to negotiate a lease for the property. Under those circumstances, it would be inequitable to allow the defendant to repudiate its agent's agreement. It is settled law that a principal in such a situation is estopped to deny liability under the agent's agreement (263 Cal. App. 2d 333, 342) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.132

§ 216.132 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Not Estopped to Rely on It--Unconscionable Injury or Unjust Enrichment Is Not Established

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE _____ [specify party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] IS NOT ESTOPPED FROM RELYING ON THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS BECAUSE THE _____ [specify party relying on contract, e.g., PLAINTIFF] WILL NOT SUFFER UNCONSCIONABLE INJURY AND THE _____ [specify party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] WILL NOT BE UNJUSTLY ENRICHED BY NONENFORCEMENT OF THE ALLEGED AGREEMENT.

A. Unconscionable Injury or Unjust Enrichment Is Essential to Estoppel. There can be no estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds unless the application ofthe statute of frauds will cause unconscionable injury to the party relying on the alleged agreement or will unjustly enrich the party relying on the statute of frauds (Ruinello v. Murray (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 687, 689, 227 P.2d 251 ; Tomlins v. American Ins. Co. (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 525, 528-529, 66 Cal. Rptr. 92).

[Optional] B. Rendition of Services Compensable in Quantum Meruit Is Insufficient Basis for Estoppel. Neither unconscionable injury nor unjust enrichment is established by the rendition of services under a contract that is invalid under the statute of frauds if the reasonable value of the services might be recovered in an action in quantum meruit (Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 299, 266 P.2d 850 .

[Optional] C. Loss of Bargain Is Insufficient Basis for Estoppel. Loss of the alleged bargain and damages resulting therefrom do not in themselves establish estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds (Oren Realty & Dev. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 229, 235, 154 Cal. Rptr. 97).

[Optional] D. Increase in Value of Property From Market Conditions Is Insufficient as Unjust Enrichment. An increase in the value of the property to be sold does not establish that the seller will be unjustly enriched if an alleged sale contract is not enforced, when the increase resulted from market conditions rather than from any act or forbearance to act on the part of the purchaser (Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 208, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769).

[Optional] E. Fiduciary Asserting Estoppel Is Required to Prove That Agreement Is Fair and Reasonable. When estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds is claimed by a person having a fiduciary relationship with the party against whom the claim is asserted, in addition to showing that unconscionable injury would result from failure to enforce the alleged agreement, it must appear that the underlying agreement is fair and reasonable (Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 30-33, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the party is not estopped to rely on the statute of frauds because there is no estoppel unless the adverse party (relying on the oral agreement) will be unconscionably injured or the party relying on the statute of frauds will be unjustly enriched if the agreement is not enforced. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on the statute of frauds whenever the adverse party urges that there is an estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds, if neither unconscionable injury nor unjust enrichment is shown. For example, the argument may be asserted in support of a demurrer to a complaint that alleges an oral agreement but alleges insufficient facts to establish unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment so as to preclude reliance on the statute of frauds [see Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 294-295, 266 P.2d 850] .

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined with points and authorities supporting the contention that the contract at issue is within the statute of frauds [see, e.g., §§ 216.10[1], 216.30[1], 216.40[1]].

For points and authorities supporting a demurrer to a complaint for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property by will on the ground that the complaint fails to allege facts showing estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds, see Ch. 214, Specific Performance .

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Unconscionable Injury or Unjust Enrichment Is Essential to Estoppel

In Ruinello v. Murray (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 687, 227 P.2d 251 , the plaintiff alleged that in consideration of his giving up a "permanent life-time position" with another employer, the defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff a monthly salary plus a yearly bonus for a five-year term. However, after nearly two years and two months, the defendant summarily discharged the plaintiff to avoid payment of a bonus. The plaintiff sought recovery of the salary that he would have received over the remaining term of the agreement, an accounting to determine the amount of the bonus, and a judgment for the bonus amount. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the third amended complaint without leave to amend, and the plaintiff appealed from the ensuing judgment of dismissal.

The Supreme Court affirmed. There can be no estoppel unless the plaintiff will suffer unconscionable injury or the defendant will be unjustly enriched if the alleged contract is not enforced. The plaintiff failed to allege facts meeting either of those conditions (36 Cal. 2d 687, 689) . In order to show unconscionable injury based on giving up existing employment, there must be a showing that the rights given up under the employment contract were so valuable that unconscionableinjury would result from refusing to enforce the alleged employment agreement. The allegation of leaving "permanent life-time" employment was insufficient because such a contract is ordinarily terminable at the will of either party, and leaving such employment for employment with the defendant, which is also terminable at will because of the statute of frauds, does not constitute unconscionable injury (36 Cal. 2d 687, 689-690) . In addition, no unjust enrichment was alleged because although the plaintiff had alleged that his efforts substantially increased the gross income of the defendant's property, he did not allege that the reasonable value of his services was greater than the monthly salary he had received. No unjust enrichment results when the promisee has received the reasonable value of his or her services; or if the salary received were not the reasonable value of the services, an action in quantum meruit for that value would prevent unjust enrichment of the defendant (36 Cal. 2d 687, 690) .

In Tomlins v. American Ins. Co. (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 525, 66 Cal. Rptr. 92 , the plaintiff quit his job and went to work for the defendant on an oral agreement that he would be employed for three years. The defendant was informed by the defendant's agent that he could not be given a contract regarding the employment, but that a letter of intent would be obtained. Three weeks after the plaintiff went to work for the defendant, he was discharged. In the plaintiff's suit for breach of contract, the trial court instructed the jury that the statute of frauds does not apply when there have been written representations that a writing will be executed in the future or when an unconscionable injury would result from the refusal to enforce the contract. Judgment was entered on a verdict for the plaintiff, and the defendant appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The disjunctive "or" in the instruction erroneously allowed the jury to find an estoppel based on a mere promise to reduce the agreement to writing, without any element of unconscionable injury to the plaintiff (258 Cal. App. 2d 525, 528) . In Seymour v. Oelrichs (1909) 156 Cal. 782, 794-795, 106 P. 88 , disapproved on other grounds, Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 770 , the Supreme Court had stressed the "unjust and unconscientious injury" to the party against whom the statute of frauds was asserted but also referred to a promise to reduce the oral agreement to writing. In the later case of Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 625, 220 P.2d 737 , the Supreme Court had noted that even though cases after Seymour had listed representation that a writing will be executed as a requirement of estoppel, those cases all involved either unconscionable injury to the party against whom the statute was asserted or unjust enrichment of the party relying on the statute of frauds. The Supreme Court concluded in Monarco that estoppel applies in cases of unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment, whether or not the plaintiff relied on representations going to the requirements of the statute itself. Therefore, implicitly, a promise to reduce the agreement to writing, alone and without either unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment, will not suffice to establish an estoppel (258 Cal. App. 2d 525, 527-528) .

[b] Rendition of Services Compensable in Quantum Meruit Is Insufficient Basis for Estoppel

Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 266 P.2d 850 , was an action for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement that, in consideration of services rendered by the plaintiffs to a woman and her husband for the remainder of their lives, the woman would leave all of her property to the plaintiffs. The complaint alleged that the plaintiffs took care of business matters for the woman and her husband, did yard work, made repairs on their rental property and residence, paid taxes and insurance premiums, advised them on personal matters, gave them transportation, assisted in shopping, nursed and prepared meals for the woman in times of illness and did her laundry, furnished continual companionship, ran errands, and took the woman on automobile trips. The plaintiffs also alleged that they changed their own life-style, forgoing outside pleasures, in order to concern themselves continually with the welfare of the woman and her husband. The woman and her husband both died intestate, so that the plaintiffs were not entitled to any of their property. The plaintiffs sued for quasi-specific performance against the heirs, who defaulted. The trial court found, however, that the complaint did not state a cause of action and entered a judgment of dismissal. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The plaintiffs had failed to adequately allege estoppel to remove the bar of the statute of frauds. There can be no estoppel unless the plaintiff will suffer unconscionable injury or the defendant will be unjustly enriched if the oral contract is not enforced [Ruinello v. Murray (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 687, 689, 227 P.2d 251 (discussed in § 216.132[3][a])]. The mere rendition of personal services is not sufficient to relieve a contract from the operation of the statute of frauds in an action for quasi-specific performance unless the services are of such peculiar, extraordinary, or exceptional character that it is impossible to estimate their value by any pecuniary standard or to compensate adequately for them in money [Fowler v. Hansen (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 518, 522, 120 P.2d 161] (123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 295) . It did not appear that the plaintiffs had made such a change of position or that the services rendered were so peculiar that they could not be compensated in terms of money, and denial of enforcement of the contract would neither unconscionably injure the plaintiffs nor unjustly enrich the decedent or her heirs if the plaintiff were left to pursue the legal remedy of recovering from the estate the reasonable value of the services rendered [see Chahon v. Schneider (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 334, 339, 256 P.2d 54] . Unfortunately for the plaintiffs, their complaint was also insufficient to state a cause of action for quantum meruit because there was no allegation that they had presented a claim to the estate for the value of the services they had rendered to the woman and her husband (123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 299) .

[c] Loss of Bargain Is Insufficient Basis for Estoppel

In Oren Realty & Dev. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 229, 154 Cal. Rptr. 97 , the plaintiffs, who desired to purchase two houses from the defendants, had represented to the defendants that a third person might purchase a house near the two in question, so that the defendant would be able to sell three houses. The defendants offered a reduced price contingent on the third sale, but the plaintiffs declined to enter into the deal on a contingent basis. The defendants agreed that the price would not be contingent on the third sale, repudiated that agreement, and then again agreed that the sale would not be contingent on the third sale. The plaintiffs then signed offers and tendered money to the escrow holder. The defendants never signed anything and reversed their decision as to the contingency basis of the sales. The plaintiffs sued for specific performance, and the trial court denied the defendants' motion for summary judgment. The defendants petitioned for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to grant their motion for summary judgment.

The court of appeal ordered a writ to issue to direct the trial court to grant the motion for summary judgment. The plaintiffs' allegation that they lost opportunities to purchase other land did not amount to a change of position on their part but only showed the manner in which injury may have flowed from loss of the alleged bargain [see Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 208, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769] . Loss of bargain, and damages resulting, do not of themselves estop a vendor from relying on the statute of frauds (91 Cal. App. 3d 229, 235) .

[d] Increase in Value of Property From Market Conditions Is Insufficient as Unjust Enrichment

Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769 , was an action for specific performance of an oral agreement for the sale of real property. The trial court sustained a demurrer to the complaint, and the plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal reversed. The description of the property in the complaint was sufficient to specifically enforce the agreement, and the complaint sufficiently alleged facts to estop the defendant from relying on the statute of frauds. However, the allegation that the property had increased in value did not of itself establish that the defendant would be unjustly enriched if the oral contract were not enforced, because the increase apparently resulted from market conditions rather than from any act or forbearance on the plaintiffs' part (267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 208) .

[e] Fiduciary Asserting Estoppel Is Required to Prove That Agreement Is Fair and Reasonable

Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212 , involved a corporate director who had extensive personal and business contacts among investors in the real estate field, but who was not licensed as a broker or salesman. The director sued the corporation for a finder's fee on the sale of the corporate headquarters. The fee had been orally agreed to by the chairman and the plaintiff before the plaintiff introduced the buyer to the corporation. The plaintiff refrained from introducing the buyer to other potential sellers on the basis of the oral agreement with the chairman. At the board meeting at which the sale of the headquarters was approved, the plaintiff disclosed the fee agreement to the rest of the board, but he did not mention the amount of the fee. Discussion was had at that meeting about the payment of the fee, but final decision was deferred until the next meeting. At that meeting the proposal was defeated. The plaintiff's interpretation of the discussion and vote at the second meeting was that it concerned payment of finder's fees to directors in future transactions and that his fee had been approved when the sale was approved. The plaintiff stated causes of action based on breach of contract and unjust enrichment, estoppel, and fraud. The defendant's motion for summary judgment was granted, and the plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court reversed. The finder's fee agreement was required to be in writing [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4)] (39 Cal. 3d 18, 25-27) , and a question of fact existed as to whether the plaintiff's activities had gone beyond mere introductions and included matters for which a license would be required (39 Cal. 3d 18, 31) . Turning to the implications of the fiduciary relationship, the Court rejected the defendant's contention that any reliance by the plaintiff on the oral agreement was unreasonable as a matter of law. The bargain to be enforced by a director cannot be harsh or unfair. The burden is on the director to prove not only the good faith of the transaction but also its inherent fairness from the point of view of the corporation. The test is whether the transaction carries the earmarks of an arm's length bargain. A transaction unfair to the corporation may be avoided by it, and a director is charged with the knowledge that an unfair agreement may be avoided (39 Cal. 3d 18, 31-34) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Unconscionable Injury or Unjust Enrichment Is Essential to Estoppel

In Estate of Baglione (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 192, 53 Cal. Rptr. 139, 417 P.2d 683 , the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment of dismissal entered after a demurrer to the complaint was sustained without leave to amend. The plaintiff sought to enforce an oral agreement against her late husband's executor pursuant to which the spouses had allegedly promised that on the death of either of them, the other would receive a particular tract of real property. She failed to adequately allege facts constituting estoppel to assert the statute of frauds. She did not allege anyserious change in position or that she made any contributions to the community property different from those she would have made in any event as the decedent's wife. Her only loss was the benefit of a bargain within the statute. There was also no unjust enrichment alleged since the decedent died first and thus received no benefits under the contract (65 Cal. 2d 192, 198).

Winburn v. All American Sportswear Co. (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 380, 30 Cal. Rptr. 321 , was an action for breach of an oral contract pursuant to which the plaintiff was to be the defendant's factory representative for a calendar year beginning six months from the time the contract was made. The court of appeal held that the plaintiff's claim that he did not seek other product lines to represent, without any claim that other lines were available, failed to establish a serious change of position causing unconscionable injury. Furthermore, unjust enrichment was not established by the plaintiff's claim that he sent a "list of 20 of his biggest customers" to the defendant, since there was no showing that any of them dealt with the defendant (215 Cal. App. 2d 380, 382) .

In Fallon v. American Trust Co. (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 386 , an action for quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to leave property to the plaintiff by will, the court of appeal held that a demurrer to the complaint had been properly sustained and that the plaintiff had failed to allege unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment that would estop the defendant, the executor of the estate of the plaintiff's late husband, from relying on the statute of frauds. The plaintiff alleged that she had performed her part of the agreement by not commencing an action for divorce, thereby forfeiting a determination of her property and support rights against her husband. The court found these allegations insufficient since there was no allegation that there was any community property to be divided in any divorce proceeding, any separate property of the decedent would not have been subject to division in a divorce proceeding, and forfeiting a determination of support rights was too speculative to be relied on as the basis of estoppel, since the right to support depends on many factors, which were not alleged (176 Cal. App. 2d 381, 384-385) .

[b] Loss of Bargain Insufficient Basis for Estoppel

Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104 , discussed in § 216.81[c][i], also considered plaintiffs' contention that their $30,000 downpayment was sufficient basis on which to estop defendant from asserting the defense of the statute of frauds. The court found there was no potential for unconscionable injury or unjust enrichment. Loss of plaintiffs' bargain was not enough to invoke the doctrine of estoppel (201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 313) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.133

§ 216.133 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Not Estopped to Rely on It--Principal Is Not Estopped From Relying on Requirement That Agent's Authority Must Be in Writing

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

EVEN THOUGH THE FACTS MIGHT SUPPORT AN ESTOPPEL TO RELY ON THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS, THE CONTRACT MAY NOT BE ENFORCED AGAINST THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] BECAUSE _____ [name of agent] DID NOT HAVE WRITTEN AUTHORITY FROM THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] TO ENTER INTO THE CONTRACT ON HIS/HER BEHALF AS REQUIRED BY CIVIL CODE SECTION 2309, AND THE _____ [party relying on statute of frauds, e.g., DEFENDANT] IS NOT ESTOPPED BY HIS/HER OWN ACTS FROM RELYING ON SECTION 2309.

Requirement of Written Authority to Make Contract Within Statute of Frauds Is Not Excused by Estoppel to Rely on Statute in Regard to Contract. Even though an agent's acts are such as to render his or her contract enforceable notwithstanding the statute of frauds, the contract is unenforceable against the principal unless the agent had written authority to enter into the contract or the principal is estopped by his or her own acts from relying on the requirement that the agent's authority be in writing (McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 254-256, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that the party is not estopped to rely on the statute of frauds, or is not estopped to rely on the requirement that an agent's authority be in writing, or both. The ground for this contention is that the alleged acts giving rise to the estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds were committed by an agent, and the principal is not estopped to rely on the statute of frauds unless the agent had written authority to enter into the agreement or the principal's own acts or representations estop the principal from denying the agency. The argument supported by these points and authorities may be raised by a party relying on the statute of frauds when the adverse party urges that there is an estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds but the acts relied on to establish estoppel are the acts of an agent of the party sought to be charged, and the agent did not have written authority to enter into the agreement. The argument may also be used when the adverse party contends thatthere is an estoppel to rely on Civ. Code § 2309 but the facts do not clearly support that contention.

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. Thus, counsel should demonstrate that the agent had no written authority to enter into the contract and that the principal did not engage in acts leading the third party to believe that the agent had authority to enter into the contract and did not accept the benefits of the contract with full knowledge of the circumstances [see Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934-935, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839 (discussed in § 216.131 [3][a])].

[c] Related Points and Authorities

These points and authorities may be combined with the points and authorities set forth in § 216.70 and may also be combined with points and authorities supporting the contention that the contract at issue is within the statute of frauds [see, e.g., §§ 216.10[1], 216.30[1], 216.40[1]].

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Requirement of Written Authority to Make Contract Within Statute of Frauds Is Not Excused by Estoppel to Rely on Statute in Regard to Contract

In McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902 , the plaintiff was operating a service station for one oil company when he responded to Gulf Oil's advertisement for dealers. An agent of Gulf Oil then contacted the plaintiff. The agent told the plaintiff that he could get a five-year lease on a very profitable service station in about 90 days but declined to put the terms in writing because he did not have to, being the "kingpin in [his] territory." The agent then informed the plaintiff that there was a "dog" station that he had to lease before the profitable station could be leased, and he and the plaintiff agreed that the plaintiff would lease the unprofitable station and would be guarantied a lease on the profitable one. The plaintiff terminated his existing lease, moved some property to the new "dog" station, bought stock and inventory from Gulf Oil for $3,000, and paid a gasoline deposit of $750. The plaintiff signed a standard preprinted one-year lease on the unprofitable station several weeks after taking possession of it. The agent was transferred within a few months, and Gulf Oil took the position that there was no agreement in regard to the profitable station. The plaintiff sued for breach of contract, and the jury returned a verdict awarding damages to the plaintiff. The trial court, however, granted the defendants' motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, and the plaintiff appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. There was no evidence that the agent had actual authority to lease service stations for Gulf Oil. Without taking Civ. Code § 2309 into account, the agent did have ostensible authority to make binding leases on behalf of the oil company (41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 252) . With respect to the contract to lease the profitable station, the plaintiff would suffer the unconscionable injury necessary to estop Gulf Oil from relying on the statute of frauds, which requires leases for a period of more that one year to be in writing [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)] (41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 252-254) . With respect to the equal-dignities rule embodied in Civ. Code § 2309, which requires an agent to have written authority to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing, when the agent has conducted himself or herself in such a manner that his or her oral contract will be enforced even though it is of a nature that ordinarily it must be in writing, the principal nevertheless cannot be held liable in the absence of written authority or estoppel by the principal's own acts or representations (41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 254-255) . California cases have held a principal estopped to rely on the equal-dignities rule when the principal caused the third person to believe that written authority exists or is unnecessary or when the principal accepted the benefits resulting from the oral authorization of the agent with complete knowledge of the circumstances. In either case, the estoppel is based on conduct of the principal in lulling the third person into a belief that the agent had written authority or did not need it or in retaining the benefit of the contract with knowledge of the circumstances (41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 257-258) . The most that Gulf Oil had done in this case was to permit its agent to appear to be an agent who could enter into lease agreements with prospective operators, but in no way did Gulf Oil indicate that the agent had authority to enter into leases for more than one year or that his authority was in writing. Moreover, there was no indication that Gulf Oil accepted any benefits resulting from having the plaintiff lease the unprofitable station with knowledge that the plaintiff intended it as part of a contract including a lease of the profitable station. If the plaintiff had dealt with an agent who had written authority, Gulf Oil would be estopped to rely on the statute of frauds because of the plaintiff's unconscionable injury. However, because the plaintiff did not deal with an agent with written authority, and Gulf Oil had neither done anything to mislead the plaintiff into believing that Civ. Code § 2309 had been satisfied or would not be relied on, nor accepted any benefit of the oral five-year lease relied on by the plaintiff, Gulf Oil was not estopped to rely on Civ. Code § 2309 (41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 258) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 216 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. FORMS
D. Effect of Performance or Estoppel on Plea of Statute of Frauds

21-216 California Points & Authorities § 216.134

§ 216.134 Party Asserting Statute of Frauds Is Not Estopped to Rely on It--Doctrine of Judicial Admissions Does Not Apply to Testimony

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE CONTRACT IS NOT ENFORCEABLE BECAUSE, THE CONTRACT BEING ONE OTHER THAN FOR THE SALE OF GOODS, ADMISSION OF THE EXISTENCE OF THE CONTRACT IN TESTIMONY DOES NOT REMOVE THE CONTRACT FROM THE STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Testimony Does Not Bar Assertion of Statute of Frauds. The doctrine of judicial admissions in California has never been applied to testimony. Testimony that admits the existence of an oral agreement is not sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds or to prevent reliance on it (Hasshagen v. Hasshagen (1889) 80 Cal. 514, 517-518, 22 P. 294 ; Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 311-312, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104).

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an oral agreement, other than one for the sale of goods, has not been removed from the statute of frauds by testimony. The doctrine of judicial admissions in California relates only to pleading, not to testimony of the party against whom the oral contract is sought to be enforced.

A contrary rule governs contracts for the sale of goods [see Com. Code § 2201(3)(b)].

[b] Argument

Counsel should add argument linking these points and authorities with the facts of the case. For example, counsel should set forth facts describing the proceeding in which the testimony was given.

[c] Related Points and Authorities

For discussion of requirements and considerations for drafting memoranda, discussion on how to combine the forms of this publication in drafting, and discussion and general forms for completing a draft memorandum, see Ch. 1, Writing Legal Memoranda and Briefs .

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Testimony Does Not Bar Assertion of Statute of Frauds

Hasshagen v. Hasshagen (1889) 80 Cal. 514, 22 P. 294 , was an action to declare an express trust in land. Judgment for the plaintiff was reversed by the Supreme Court on the ground that there was no evidence to sustain the trial court's findings (80 Cal. 514, 518-519) . Part of the evidence relied on by the trial court was testimony given by the defendant at proceedings relating to the settlement of a decedent's estate. That testimony denied the establishment of an express trust according to the terms alleged by the plaintiff, but the testimony tended to show an oral agreement that the property should be held in trust pending payment of sums owed by the decedent to the defendant. Even if the defendant's testimony had admitted a trust as alleged by the plaintiff, it did not constitute a written declaration of trust (80 Cal. 514, 517) . The testimony was given long after the deed was made and could not take the case out of the statute of frauds (80 Cal. 514, 518) .

In Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104 , the cross complainants, hereinafter referred to as the plaintiffs, sued for breach of an oral contract for sale of real property and for bad-faith denial of the existence of that contract. The oral agreement was alleged to have been made on July 13, 1985. On July 22, the plaintiffs made a $30,000 down payment on the property. On July 24, a third party commenced an action against all parties to this action seeking to set aside the trustee's sale by which the defendant had acquired title to the property. In that action the defendant's attorney submitted declarations in support of motions to expunge the lis pendens and for an order shortening time for that motion. The declaration supporting the motion to shorten time included the statement that the defendant "currently has a prospective buyer for the property. In the absence of an order shortening time, this motion to expunge lis pendens may not be heard in time for A & B Loan to consummate the sale to the prospective buyer." The declaration supporting the motion to expunge included the statement, "On July 19, 1985, A & B Loan entered into an agreement for the sale of the property, with escrow to close on July 26, 1985. As a result of the filing of the lis pendens by the plaintiff, escrow did not close as scheduled. Although the prospective buyer is still interested in purchasing the property, he has stated that he is unwilling to purchase it unless the title difficulties caused by the lis pendens are cleared." In October, 1985, the defendant sold the property to someone else. The day after that deed was recorded, the defendant returned the plaintiffs' down payment with interest. The plaintiffs argued that the statements in the declarations constituted judicial admissions of the existence of the contract and precluded the defendants from asserting the statute of frauds. After sustaining demurrers without leave to amend, the trial court entered judgment for the cross defendant. The plaintiffs appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The plaintiffs' argument was without merit because the doctrine of judicial admissions in California has never been applied to testimony. If the defendant admits the contract in the answer without asserting at the same time the statute as a defense, the defendant will be held to have waived the protection of the statute. On the other hand, testimony that admits the existence of an oral agreement is not sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds [Hasshagen v. Hasshagen (1889) 80 Cal. 514, 517, 22 P. 294 (discussed above); Keans, Springmann & Stipek, Inc. v. Alphonzo E. Bell Corp (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 311, 326-327, 272 P.2d 35 (discussed in [4][a], below); Ragghianti v. Harris (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 17, 18, 268 P.2d 45 (discussed in [4][a], below)]. The statements in the declarations were made in an action by a third party, at a time when it was unnecessary for the defendant to consider whether to waive or assert the statute of frauds. Those statements cannot be treated the same as a solemn judicial admission in an answer to a complaint alleging a contract within the statute of frauds (201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 311) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Testimony Does Not Bar Assertion of Statute of Frauds

Keans, Springmann & Stipek, Inc. v. Alphonzo E. Bell Corp. (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 311, 272 P.2d 35 , was an action for specific performance of an oral agreement under which the plaintiff was to act as the defendant's broker to negotiate an oil and gas lease in return for an overriding royalty on all oil and gas produced from that lease, to enforce a trust, and for accounting. Judgment for the defendant was affirmed. First, the court of appeal noted that an oil and gas lease for longer than a year, such as this one, was within the statute of frauds, as was the agency agreement alleged by the plaintiff (126 Cal. App. 2d 311, 326-327) . The defendant's president admitted the oral agreement in his deposition testimony. The plaintiff contended that the deposition testimony was a sufficient memorandum to satisfy the statute of frauds. The court of appeal disagreed, and distinguished cases in which the defendants had made the admission in an answer without also claiming the protection of the statute of frauds. That, the court agreed, does amount to waiver of the protection of the statute (126 Cal. App. 2d 311, 327) . Here, however, the deposition was not sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds or to estop the defendant from relying on the statute of frauds (126 Cal. App. 2d 311, 327-328) .

Ragghianti v. Harris (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 17, 268 P.2d 45 , was an action on an oral contract under which the plaintiff was to buy an interest in the defendant's business. The defendant admitted in his testimony in an unrelated action that he had made the contract with the plaintiff. Judgment for the defendant was affirmed. However, testimony of the defendant in a prior proceeding is not sufficient to take the contract out of the statute of frauds [Hasshagen v. Hasshagen (1889) 80 Cal. 514, 517, 22 P. 294 (discussed in [3][a], above)] (124 Cal. App. 2d 17, 18) . Such testimony is as ineffective as the defendant's admission to a person on the street. Oral repetition of what is required to be in writing does not take the place of the writing. Neither does it estop the defendant from relying on the statute of frauds (124 Cal. App. 2d 17, 18) . The plaintiff argued, as the basis for the application of estoppel, that by admission of the contract in the prior divorce action, the defendant gained an advantage over his former spouse. But that admission did not result in any advantage over or injury to the plaintiff, and the elements of estoppel were not established (124 Cal. App. 2d 17, 19) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION

21-217 California Points & Authorities 217.syn

§ 217.syn Synopsis to Chapter 217: STATUTORY INTERPRETATION

§ 217.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 217.02 Governing Law

§ 217.03 Application of Rules of Interpretation to Ordinances, Regulations, and Constitutional and Charter Provisions

§ 217.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

[2] Related Memoranda

§§ 217.05-217.19 [Reserved]

§ 217.20 Supporting Contention That Statute Be Construed to Ascertain and Effectuate Legislative Intent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1859]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Fundamental Rule of Construction

[b] All Provisions to Be Given Effect

[c] Sensible Construction Consistent With Purpose

[d] Canons of Construction Subordinate to Intent

[e] Court Not to Substitute Its Views for Those of Legislature

[f] Secondary Rules of Construction May Be Applied When Legislative Intent Cannot Be Determined Directly From Statute in Context

[g] Rules of Construction Apply to Statutes Enacted Through Initiative Process

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Fundamental Rule of Construction

[b] Sensible Construction Consistent With Purpose

[c] Canons of Construction Subordinate to Intent

[d] Secondary Rules of Construction May Be Applied When Legislative Intent Cannot Be Determined Directly From Statute in Context

§ 217.21 Supporting Contention That Statute Should Be Construed to Give Effect to Purpose When Literal Interpretation Would Defeat Apparent Purpose or Lead to Absurdity

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Give Effect to Purpose Rather Than Strict Letter of Statute

[b] Disregard Literal Meaning to Avoid Absurd Results Not Intended by Legislature

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Give Effect to Purpose Rather Than Strict Letter of Statute

[b] Disregard Literal Meaning to Avoid Absurd Results Not Intended by Legislature

§ 217.22 Supporting Contention That Rules of Statutory Interpretation Apply to Constitutional Provisions, Charter Provisions, Ordinances, and Administrative Regulations

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Constitutional Provisions

[b] Charter Provisions

[c] Ordinances

[d] Administrative Regulations

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Constitutional Provisions

[b] Ordinances

§ 217.23 Supporting Contention That Constitutional Construction of Statute Preferred

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Constitutional Construction Preferred to Avoid Constitutional Issue in Contrary Construction

[b] Construction to Preserve Statute's Constitutionality

[c] Construe to Give Specificity to Vague Terms

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Constitutional Construction Preferred to Avoid Constitutional Issue in Contrary Construction

[b] Construction to Preserve Statute's Constitutionality

§ 217.24 Supporting Contention That Court Not to Insert Omitted Terms Into or to Omit Terms From Statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1858]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Words Not to Be Altered to Accomplish Purpose Not Apparent on Statute's Face or From Its History

[b] Courts May Not Assert Qualifying Provisions

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Courts Not to Insert Omitted Terms or to Omit Inserted Terms

[b] Words Not to Be Altered to Accomplish Purpose Not Apparent on Statute's Face or From Its History

§ 217.25 Opposing Contention That Statute Should Be Construed to Ascertain and Effectuate Legislative Intent--Clear Statute Not to Be Construed

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Construction of Clear Statute

[b] Give Statute Effect According to Usual Meaning of Its Language

[c] Plain Language of Statute Adhered to When Legislative History Creates Conflicting Inferences

[d] Burden to Show That Statute Should Not Be Applied According to Natural Import of Language

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Construction of Clear Statute

[b] Give Statute Effect According to Usual Meaning of Its Language

[c] Plain Language of Statute Adhered to When Legislative History Creates Conflicting Inferences

§ 217.26 Opposing Contention That Court Should Construe Statute To Preserve Its Constitutionality--Avoid Wholesale Rewriting of Statute

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Wholesale Rewriting to Preserve Constitutionality

§§ 217.27-217.39 [Reserved]

§ 217.40 Supporting Contention That Words of Statute Be Accorded Usual Meaning

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Turn First to Words to Determine Intent

[b] Words to Be Given Usual Meaning

[c] Word With More Than One Meaning to Be Construed to Attain Purposes of Statute

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Turn First to Words to Determine Intent

[b] Words to Be Given Usual Meaning

[c] Word With More Than One Meaning to Be Construed to Attain Purposes of Statute

§ 217.41 Supporting Contention That Statutory Definition of Word Binding on Court

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Definition Binding on Court

§ 217.42 Supporting Contention That Previously Construed Words of Statute on Same or Analogous Subject Presumed to Have Been Used in Same Sense in New Statute

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Previously Construed Words Presumed to Be Used in Same Sense

[b] Adoption of Previous Construction of Federal Legislation on Which State Statute Patterned

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Previously Construed Words Presumed to Be Used in Same Sense

§ 217.43 Supporting Contention That Words of Statute Be Construed in Context

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statutory Language to Be Construed in Context

[b] Noscitur a Sociis

[c] Last Antecedent Rule

[d] Words Grouped in List

[e] General Words Used in Conjunction With Specific Words

[f] Adverb Modifying Transitive Verb Usually Also Applies to Verb's Object

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statutory Language to Be Construed in Context

[b] Noscitur a Sociis

[c] Last Antecedent Rule

§ 217.44 Supporting Contention That General Words Following Enumeration of Particular Classes of Persons or Things Should Be Construed as Applicable Only to Persons or Things of Same General Nature

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Ejusdem Generis

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Ejusdem Generis

§ 217.45 Supporting Contention That Legislature's Inclusion of One Thing in Statute Excludes Any Other

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Expressio Unius Est Exclusio Alterius

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Expressio Unius Est Exclusio Alterius

§ 217.46 Supporting Contention That Statute Be Construed to Produce Internal Harmony and Avoid Surplusage [Code Civ. Proc. § 1858]

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] All Provisions to Be Given Effect

[b] Preference for Interpretation Producing Internal Harmony and Avoiding Surplusage

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Preference for Interpretation Producing Internal Harmony and Avoiding Surplusage

§§ 217.47-217.59 [Reserved]

§ 217.60 Supporting Contention That Statute Be Construed in Harmony With Whole System of Law of Which It Is Part So That All May Have Effect

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Construe Statutes on Same Subject Together

[b] Construe in Harmony With Whole System of Law

[c] Statutes Enacted in Same Legislative Session Especially to Be Construed Together

[d] Repeal by Implication Not Favored

[e] No Implied Repeal of Statutes Enacted by Same Bill

[f] Different Codes and Legislative Acts To Be Construed Together

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Construe Statutes on Same Subject Together

[b] Construe in Harmony With Whole System of Law

[c] Repeal by Implication Not Favored

§ 217.61 Supporting Contention That Specific Provision Governs General Provision Broad Enough to Cover Same Subject

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Specific Provision Governs General

[b] Specific Provision as Exception to General Provision Regardless of Which Enacted First

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Specific Provision Governs General

[b] Specific Provision as Exception to General Provision Regardless of Which Enacted First

§ 217.62 Supporting Contention That When Statutes Irreconcilable Later-Enacted One Governs

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Repeal by Implication

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Repeal by Implication

§ 217.63 Supporting Contention That Inclusion of Provision in One Statute or Part of Statute, but Not in Other Part of Statute or in Other Related Statute, Shows Different Intent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Omission of Provision Included in Statute on Related Subject or in Other Part of Same Statute

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Omission of Provision Included in Statute on Related Subject

§ 217.64 Supporting Contentions That Statute Should Be Construed as Cross Referring to Another Statute as It

Existed When Originally Enacted or as It Presently Exists

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Effect of Cross-Reference to Other Statutes

§ 217.65 Opposing Contention That Specific Provision Governs General Provision--Neither Provision Is More Specific

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Principle That Specific Provision Governs General Provision Is Inapplicable if Neither Provision Is More Specific

§§ 217.66-217.79 [Reserved]

§ 217.80 Supporting Contention That Legislative Committee Report May Be Considered in Interpreting Statute

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Consideration of Legislative Committee Report

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Consideration of Legislative Committee Reports

§ 217.81 Supporting Contention That Report of Commissioners Who Drafted Statute May Be Considered in Interpreting Statute

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Consideration of Reports of Commissions That Propose Statutes

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Consideration of Reports of Commissions That Propose Statutes

§ 217.82 Supporting Contention That Legislator's Statement of Legislature's Intent Should Be Considered in Interpreting Statute

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Consideration of Legislator's Statement Reflecting Legislature's Intent

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Consideration of Legislator's Statement Reflecting Legislature's Intent

§ 217.83 Supporting Contention That Legislator's Statement of Intent of Statute Should Not Be Considered in Interpreting Statute

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Legislator's Statement of Intent Not to Be Considered

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Legislator's Statement of Intent Not to Be Considered

§ 217.84 Supporting Contention That Statute Should Not Be Construed to Include Provision Rejected by

Legislature

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Failure to Enact Specific Provision

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Failure to Enact Specific Provision

§ 217.85 Supporting Contention That Amendment Substantially Changing Previously Construed Statute Shows Legislative Intent to Change Law

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memorandum

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Intent to Alter Law Inferred From Substantial Changes in Statutory Language

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Intent to Alter Law Inferred From Substantial Changes in Statutory Language

§ 217.86 Supporting Contention That Legislature Adopted Judicial Interpretation of Statute by Reenacting Previously Construed Portions Without Change

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Adoption of Judicial Interpretation by Reenactment Without Change

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Adoption of Judicial Interpretation by Reenactment Without Change

§ 217.87 Supporting Contention That Voters' Pamphlet May Be Considered in Interpreting Statute or Constitutional Amendment Enacted by Voters

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Consideration of Arguments Contained in Voters' Pamphlets

§ 217.88 Opposing Contention That Amendment Substantially Changing Previously Construed Statute Shows Legislative Intent to Change Law--Mere Change in Phraseology

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Mere Change in Phraseology

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Mere Change in Phraseology

§ 217.89 Opposing Contention That Legislature Adopted Judicial Interpretation of Statute by Reenacting Previously Construed Portions Without Change

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Exceptions to Rule That Reenactment of Statute Without Changing Portions Previously Interpreted by Judiciary Adopts Judicial Interpretation

[b] Prior Judicial Construction of Statute Not Mandated When Subsequent Reenactment Not Concerned With Topic of Judicial Construction

§ 217.90 Opposing Contention That Legislative Silence After Court Has Construed Statute Gives Rise to Presumption of Legislative Awareness of and Acquiescence in Construction

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Legislative Silence After Court Has Construed Statute as Not Indicative of Approval

[b] Legislative Silence After Court Has Construed Statute as Giving Rise to Arguable Inference of Approval, at Most

[c] Legislative Silence After Judicial Construction as Not Indicative of Approval Despite Subsequent Legislative Action on Other Parts of Same Act

§ 217.91 Opposing Contention That Report of Commissioners Who Drafted Statute Establishes Legislative Intent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Commission Report Does Not Necessarily Reflect Legislative Intent

§§ 217.92-217.109 [Reserved]

§ 217.110 Supporting Contention That Administrative Agency's Interpretation of Statute Entitled to Great Weight

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memoranda

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Great Weight of Administrative Interpretation

[b] Reenactment of Statute After Administrative Construction

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Great Weight of Administrative Interpretation

§ 217.111 Opposing Contention That Administrative Agency's Interpretation of Statute Entitled to Great Weight

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Overthrowing Administrative Interpretation

[b] Internal Agency Memorandum Not Controlling

[c] Agency May Not Enlarge Legislative Enactment

[d] No Deference Owed to Agency Interpretation Embodied in Void Regulations

§§ 217.112-217.129 [Reserved]

§ 217.130 Supporting Contention That Statute Should Be Applied Retroactively--Retroactive Application Necessary to Effectuate Legislative Intent

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute Given Retroactive Effect If Necessary to Effectuate Legislative Intent

[b] Constitutional Infirmity of Former Law as Indication of Legislative Intent

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Statute Given Retroactive Effect If Necessary to Effectuate Legislative Intent

§ 217.131 Supporting Contention That Statute Should Be Applied Retroactively--Retroactive Application of Provision Clarifying Law

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Retroactive Application of Provision Clarifying Law

[b] Clarifying Amendment Applies to Existing Cause of Action

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Retroactive Application of Provision Clarifying Law

§ 217.132 Supporting Contention That Statute Should Be Applied Retroactively--Amended Statute Consists Only of Procedural Rule

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Change in Procedural Law Applicable Retroactively

[b] Procedural Statute Does Not Create New Action or Destroy Defense

[c] Statute Regulating Costs May Be Applied to Pending Actions

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Change in Procedural Law Applicable Retroactively

§ 217.133 Opposing Contention That Statute Be Given Retroactive Application

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Retroactive Operation Absent Clear Intent

[b] Destruction of Previously Acquired Interest Disfavored

[c] Statute Modifying Civil Liability Not to Be Construed Retroactively

[d] Statute Shortening Period of Limitations Not to Be Construed Retroactively

[e] Erroneous Characterization of Statute as "Declaratory of Existing Law" Not Sufficient Evidence of Retroactive Intent

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] No Retroactive Operation Absent Clear Intent

[b] Statute Modifying Civil Liability Not to Be Construed Retroactively

§ 217.134 Supporting Contention That Application of Statute Does Not Constitute Retroactive Effect

[1] FORM

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

[b] Opposing Memorandum

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Statute Does Not Have Retroactive Effect Unless It Substantially Changes Legal Consequences of Past Events

[b] Application of Statute Is Not Retroactive If It Is Triggered by Event Occurring After Statute's Effective Date

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.01

§ 217.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter contains memoranda relating to the interpretation of statutes. It includes memoranda setting out general rules of interpretation [see §§ 217.20 -217.26], rules pertaining to the interpretation of the words of a statute [see §§ 217.40 -217.46], rules pertaining to the interpretation of statutes in relation to other statutes [see §§ 217.60 -217.65], rules pertaining to the consideration of legislative history in interpreting statutes [see §§ 217.80 -217.91], and rules pertaining to the weight to be given to administrative interpretation of a statute [see §§ 217.110, 217.111]. The chapter also includes memoranda supporting [see §§ 217.130 -217.132] and opposing [see § 217.133] the retroactive application of a statute, and supporting a contention that application of a statute does not constitute a retroactive application [see § 217.134].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsLegislationGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationEffect & OperationGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationInterpretation

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.02

§ 217.02 Governing Law

The interpretation of statutes is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1858, 1859, and 1866. In addition, particular codes have provisions governing the interpretation of statutes included within them [see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 2-23.6, 3509-3548; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2-32; Evid. Code §§ 1-12]. Some codes also contain provisions defining terms used in the code, which apply unless a specific provision or context requires otherwise [see, e.g., Evid. Code § 100 et seq.; Veh. Code § 100 et seq.].

Particular acts within a code also may provide definitions of terms used within those acts [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 4802 (defining terms as used in Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act); Civ. Code § 2981 (defining terms as used in Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act)]. Particular acts may also include provisions setting out their purpose or legislative intent [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 82 (purposes of California Fair Dealership Law); Welf. & Inst. Code § 5001 (legislative intent of Lanterman-Petris-Short Act)]. Provisions directing construction of an act may also be included [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1722 (in construing Uniform Foreign-Country Money Judgments Recognition Act, consideration must be given to need to promote uniformity of law with respect to Act's subject matter among states that enact it); Pub. Res. Code §§ 30007.5, 30009 (conflicts between policies of California Coastal Act of 1976 to be resolved in manner most protective of significant coastal resources, and act to be liberally construed to accomplish purposes of act)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsLegislationInterpretation

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.03

§ 217.03 Application of Rules of Interpretation to Ordinances, Regulations, and Constitutional and Charter Provisions

The rules of statutory interpretation also apply to ordinances, administrative regulations, and constitutional and charter provisions [Castaneda v. Holcomb (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 939, 942, 170 Cal. Rptr. 875 (city charter); County of Fresno v. Malmstrom (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 974, 979, 156 Cal. Rptr. 777 (constitution); Andreadis v. Board of Trustees (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 344, 351, 130 Cal. Rptr. 652 (administrative regulations); County of Madera v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App.3d 665, 668, 114 Cal. Rptr. 283 (ordinance)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsLegislationInterpretationGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsChartersGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsOrdinances & Regulations

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.04

§ 217.04 Related Discussion and Forms

[1] Related Pleading and Practice Forms

For a discussion of statutes generally, including pleading of statutes, interpretation of statutes, and use of declaratory and injunctive relief to obtain a construction or a determination of the validity of a statute, see Ch. 126A, Constitutional Law , and Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances , in California Forms of Pleading and Practice (Matthew Bender). For forms and additional discussions relating to challenging the validity of statutes, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief in that set. For forms and discussion relating to challenging the validity of particular types of statutes or ordinances, see, in that set, Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking, and Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning.

[2] Related Memoranda

Related memoranda that may be useful in particular cases in which a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction against enforcement of a statute or ordinance is sought may be found in Ch. 116, Injunctions .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsGovernmentsLegislationEffect & OperationGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationInterpretation

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART I. INTRODUCTION

21-217 California Points & Authorities §§ 217.05-217.19

[Reserved]

§§ 217.05[Reserved]

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART II. FORMS
A. GENERAL RULES

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.20

§ 217.20 Supporting Contention That Statute Be Construed to Ascertain and Effectuate Legislative Intent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1859]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum supporting or opposing a motion, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE FUNDAMENTAL GOAL OF STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION IS TO ASCERTAIN LEGISLATIVE INTENT SO THAT THE PURPOSE OF THE LAW MAY BE EFFECTUATED.

A. Pursuit of Legislative Intent. In the construction of a statute, the intention of the Legislature is to be pursued, if possible (Code Civ. Proc. § 1859).

B. Fundamental Rule of Construction. The fundamental task of statutory construction is to ascertain legislative intent so as to effectuate the purpose of the law (People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 774-775, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731 ; Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 268, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P.2d 704 ; Palos Verdes Faculty Assn. v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 650, 658, 147 Cal. Rptr. 359, 580 P.2d 1155).

[Optional] C. All Provisions to Be Given Effect. Courts must adopt constructions which give effect to all statutory provisions whenever possible (Parris v. Zolin (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 839, 845, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 911 P.2d 9).

[Optional] D. Sensible Construction Consistent With Purpose. Courts should act in a reasonable fashion to give statutes a sensible construction in accordance with the purpose of the lawmakers in an attempt to promote rather than defeat the policy underlying the legislation (Jackson v. City of San Diego (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 587, 175 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; see, e.g., Graham County Soil & Water Conservation Dist. v. United States ex rel. Wilson (2005) 545 U.S. 409, 125 S. Ct. 2444, 2450-2452, 162 L. Ed. 2d 390, 400-402) .

[Optional] E. Canons of Construction Subordinate to Intent. Canons of construction are not immutable rules, and are always subordinate to the primary rule that the intent shall prevail over the letter (Estate of Banerjee (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 527, 539, 147 Cal. Rptr. 157, 580 P.2d 657).

[Optional] F. Court Not to Substitute Its Views for Those of Legislature. The court may not substitute its views for those of the Legislature when the legislative decision has been made after weighing policy matters as seen by the legislators (Jackson v. San Diego (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 587, 175 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; see Drennan v. Security Pac. Nat. Bank (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 764, 779, 170 Cal. Rptr. 904, 621 P.2d 1318 , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 833, 102 S. Ct. 132, 70 L. Ed. 2d 112).

[Optional] G. Secondary Rules of Construction May Be Applied When Legislative Intent Cannot Be Determined Directly From Statute in Context. When the intention of the Legislature cannot be determined directly from the words of a statute and from related statutes, a court may apply secondary rules of construction. In so doing, the court must refer to extrinsic sources, including the ostensible objects to be achieved, the evils to be remedied, the legislative history, public policy, contemporaneous administrative construction, and the statutory scheme of which the statute is a part. If the statute is part of a uniform act adopted by the Legislature, the history surrounding the creation and adoption of the uniform act is also relevant (Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 519, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 22 P.3d 324 ; see Mejia v. Reed (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 657, 663, 668-669, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390, 74 P.3d 166). The court may also consider legal treatises and usages in the affected social or economic group (Texas Commerce Bank v. Garamendi (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 460, 469-481, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 854).

[Optional] H. Rules of Construction Apply to Statutes Enacted Through Initiative Process. The rules of statutory construction apply equally to construction of statutes enacted through the initiative process and construction of statutes enacted by the Legislature (Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 272, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196).

[Set forth additional points and authorities stating more specific rules of statutory interpretation that aid in ascertaining legislative intent behind statute at issue and support interpretation desired (see §§ 217.21 -217.24, 217.40 -217.46, 217.60 -217.63, 217.80 -217.81, 217.88)].

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a statute should be interpreted in a particular manner. This form sets forth general rules of statutory interpretation, which relate to the fundamental rule that the court must ascertain and effectuate the Legislature's intent. This form should be combined with other forms setting out more specific rules of statutory construction that may aid in ascertaining the legislative intent behind the statute at issue and that support the interpretation desired by counsel [see §§ 217.21 -217.24, 217.40 -217.46, 217.60 -217.63, 217.80 -217.86, 217.88]. Such an argument might be made in any type of action in which a question arises concerning how a statute should be construed.

This form may be combined with a form or memorandum relating to the specific procedural context in which the issue of statutory interpretation arises. This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should also insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include a discussion of how evidence of legislative intent supports the interpretation of the statute that he or she is advocating.

[b] Opposing Memoranda

In an appropriate case, the form set out in § 217.25 may be used to oppose the contention supported by this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Fundamental Rule of Construction

In People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731 , the defendant was convicted of second-degree robbery and possession of a firearm by an ex-felon, in addition to several other lesser charges. Prior to that, defendant had been convicted of first-degree burglary, under Penal Code § 460. Defendant's sentence was enhanced by five years under amended Penal Code § 1192.7 on the basis of the earlier conviction. The statute permitted sentencing enhancement for serious felonies including, "burglary of an inhabited dwelling house." Defendant appealed his sentencing on the grounds that his prior conviction for first degree burglary did not qualify as a "serious felony," within the meaning of amended Penal Code § 1192.7, to justify the enhancement. The court of appeal agreed and vacated the five-year enhancement. The court of appeal reasoned that defendant's prior guilty plea to first-degree burglary under Penal Code § 460 did not fit the definition of burglary under amended Penal Code § 1192.7. It held the evidence that the previous burglary was "residential" did not adequately narrow the offense to fit the definition of "burglary of an inhabited dwelling house," as required by Penal Code § 1192.7 for sentencing enhancement. (A subsequent amendment to the statute now provides that any burglary of the first degree qualifies as a serious felony [Penal Code § 1192.7(c)(18)].)

The prosecution appealed and the California Supreme Court reversed, finding that the enhancement provisions were properly pleaded and proved. In seeking to interpret the meaning of the phrase "inhabited dwelling house," the Supreme Court examined the legislative history of the amendment to Penal Code § 1192.7. The court reiterated that the fundamental task of statutory construction is to ascertain legislative intent so as to effectuate the purpose of the law. The court added that words of a statute are to be interpreted in the sense in which they would have been understood at the time of the enactment. Although the Legislature declared that the amendment to Penal Code § 1192.7 was intended to "clarify" the meaning of the earlier version of the statute, the court stated that it is not bound by such pronouncements and must still ascertain the scope and meaning of the earlier version from all the pertinent circumstances and considerations. Nor may courts rely on evidence of the individual views of proponents of the legislation (People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 780 n.9, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731). Accordingly, the court held that rather than narrow the definition of "burglary of a residence" (appearing in the earlier version of § 1192.7) by substituting the language "burglary of an inhabited dwelling house," the Legislature intended to conform the language of that section to the definition of first-degree burglary provided in Penal Code § 460, thus making it a "serious felony," justifying the enhancement (People v. Cruz (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 764, 783-785, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117, 919 P.2d 731).

In Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P.2d 704 , the state Fair Employment and HousingCommission awarded plaintiff compensatory and punitive damages against defendant in a case involving a complaint for housing discrimination on the basis of race and marital status. The punitive damage award was in the amount of $40,635 representing the statutory limit ($1,000), plus adjustments and interest, for each of 35 instances when apartment rentals were made to applicants below plaintiff on the waiting list. On a petition for writ of administrative mandate, the trial court remanded the case to the Commission with directions, among other things, to limit punitive damages to $1,000 pursuant to a limitation in Gov. Code § 12987. All parties appealed. With respect to the punitive damages award, the court of appeal reversed the trial court's ruling that Gov. Code § 12987 limited the award to $1,000. All parties then petitioned for review.

The Supreme Court reversed the court of appeal as to the punitive damages award. The Court stated that it was guided by the established principle that its first task in construing a statute is to ascertain the intent of the Legislature so as to effectuate the purpose of the law. The Court noted that to ascertain the Legislature's intent, it must first look to the words of the statute, giving them their usual, ordinary import, that the words must be construed in context, keeping in mind the statutory purpose, and that provisions relating to the same subject matter must be harmonized to the extent possible. If uncertainty exists, the consequences flowing from a particular interpretation should be considered and legislative history and wider historical circumstances of the enactment may also be considered in determining intent ( Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 268, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P.2d 704). Also applying the principle that a statute should be construed whenever possible so as to preserve its constitutionality, the Court concluded that a course of conduct is one "unlawful practice" within the plain meaning of the statute, so that the commission's damage award was improper (Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 268-273, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P.2d 704).

Plaintiff teacher in Palos Verdes Faculty Assn. v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 650, 147 Cal. Rptr. 359, 580 P.2d 1155 , obtained a writ of mandate from superior court directing defendant to place plaintiff on a particular step of defendant's salary schedule and to pay back compensation. When plaintiff was hired by defendant, defendant gave him credit for only one year of experience and gave him no credit for five years of experience in private school. The next year defendant changed its rule so that experience in private schools was credited, and plaintiff brought suit after his request to be classified under the new rule was denied. The Supreme Court affirmed the issuance of the writ, construing former Educ. Code § 13506 (now see Educ. Code § 45028) as requiring that plaintiff be placed on the salary schedule as he requested. Quoting Moyer v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 222, 230, 110 Cal. Rptr. 144, 514 P.2d 1224 , the Court set forth a number of rules of statutory construction, including the fundamental rule that a court should ascertain the intent of the Legislature so as to effectuate the purpose of the law (Palos Verdes Faculty Assn. v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified School Dist. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 650, 658, 147 Cal. Rptr. 359, 580 P.2d 1155).

[b] All Provisions to Be Given Effect

In Parris v. Zolin (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 839, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 911 P.2d 9 , the plaintiff was arrested for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence. A blood test was taken and plaintiff's driver's license was suspended. Plaintiff then sought a hearing regarding his license suspension before the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) pursuant to Vehicle Code § 13558a and subpoenaed the criminalist who had performed the analysis of his blood. The criminalist did not respond to the subpoena and did not appear at the hearing. The hearing officer upheld the suspension of the plaintiff's license notwithstanding the fact that the criminalist had failed to appear. Plaintiff then sought to have the DMV initiate contempt proceedings against the criminalist under Vehicle Code § 11525, which it declined to do. The plaintiff filed petition for a writ of mandate seeking review of the hearing and enforcement of the subpoena. The superior court ordered the matter remanded to the hearing officer for enforcement of the subpoena and reconsideration. The DMV appealed and the court of appeal reversed the judgment of the superior court. The plaintiff then appealed to the California Supreme Court, which reversed the appellate court decision.

Vehicle Code § 11525 provides that where a witness subpoenaed to attend a hearing before an administrative agency refuses to respond, the agency shall certify the facts to the superior court, which shall issue an order directing the witness to appear and show cause why he or she should not be punished for contempt. The issue before the court was what action the agency was required to take to fulfill its obligation under Vehicle Code § 11525. The plaintiff contended that it was the obligation of the hearing officer to initiate contempt proceedings, whereas the DMV took the position that the party who sought issuance of the subpoena must file an action to enforce the subpoena in superior court. While the hearing officer offered to prepare a transcript and any supporting documentation to assist the plaintiff in enforcing the contempt proceeding, the DMV failed to transmit that documentation to the superior court. The California Supreme Court, citing the rule that in construing a statute courts must give effect to all statutory provisions whenever possible, held that the language of the statute "shall certify" imposed the duty of transmitting the facts on the administrative agency and the DMV's failure to so transmit the certification of facts to the superior court was a breach of that obligation (Parris v. Zolin (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 839, 844-845, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 911 P.2d 9).

[c] Sensible Construction Consistent With Purpose

Jackson v. City of San Diego (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 175 Cal. Rptr. 395 , involved an action for false imprisonment based on defendant's incarceration of plaintiff for crimes he did not commit. Plaintiff was arrested without a warrant, and indicted by the grand jury 13 days later. He was convicted of robbery and murder, but released on a writ of habeas corpus after about 10 months of incarceration when the actual perpetrator was convicted. Defendant city appealed from a judgment awarding plaintiff damages.

The court of appeal, in determining that the damages had to be restricted to the period between the unlawful arrest and the indictment, noted that while the California Government Claims Act provides for liability for false imprisonment [Gov. Code § 820.4], it also provides for immunity from suit for malicious prosecution [Gov. Code § 821.6] (Jackson v. City of San Diego (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 586, 175Cal. Rptr. 395). Citing prior California case law, the court stated that it had to begin with the fundamental rule that a court should ascertain the intent of the Legislature so as to effectuate the purpose of the law, acting in a reasonable fashion to give statutes a sensible construction in accordance with the purpose of the lawmakers in an attempt to promote rather than defeat the policy underlying the legislation (121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 587) . The court held that because the damages involved were apportionable to a period of incarceration constituting false imprisonment and to a separate period constituting malicious prosecution, damages had to be restricted to the former period in accordance with legislative policy (121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 587-588) .

Note that the California Supreme Court disapproved Jackson to the extent that it held that the recovery of damages for postarraignment confinement is permitted [Asgari v. City of L.A. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 744, 758 n.10, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842, 937 P.2d 273] .

In Graham County Soil & Water Conservation Dist. v. United States ex rel. Wilson (2005) 545 U.S. 409, 125 S. Ct. 2444, 162 L. Ed. 2d 390 , the United States Supreme Court held that the 6-year statute of limitations in the False Claims Act (FCA) does not govern FCA civil actions for retaliation; rather, the most closely analogous state limitations period applies. The False Claims Act (FCA) prohibits any person from making false or fraudulent claims for payment to the United States (31 U.S.C. § 3729(a)). Persons who do so are liable for civil penalties and damages (31 U.S.C. § 3729(a)). The FCA sets forth two principal enforcement mechanisms: the Attorney General may sue to remedy violations of Section 3729 (31 U.S.C. § 3730(a)), and private individuals may bring qui tam actions in the government's name for Section 3729 violations (31 U.S.C. § 3730(b)(1)).

In 1986 the FCA was amended to create a private cause of action for an individual retaliated against by his or her employer for assisting an FCA investigation or proceeding (31 U.S.C. § 3730(h)). The 1986 amendments also revised the language of the 6-year statute of limitations applicable to FCA actions. The 1986 amendments revised 31 U.S.C. § 3731(b)(1) to read as follows: "A civil action under section 3730 may not be brought ... more than 6 years after the date on which the violation of section 3729 is committed. ... "

The Supreme Court found that Section 3731(b)(1) is ambiguous, rather than clear, about whether a Section 3730(h) retaliation action is "a civil action under section 3730." One reasonable reading is that it applies only to actions arising under Sections 3730(a) and (b), not to Section 3730(h) retaliation actions. That reading is suggested by the language in Section 3731(b)(1) tying the start of the time limit to "the date on which the violation of section 3729 is committed." In other words, the time limit begins to run on the date the defendant submitted a false claim for payment. This language casts doubt on whether Section 3731(b)(1) specifies a limitations period for retaliation actions, because the existence of a Section 3729 violation is not an element of a retaliation claim: a retaliation plaintiff need prove only that the defendant retaliated against him or her for engaging in "lawful acts done ... in furtherance of" an FCA "action filed or to be filed" (31 U.S.C. § 3730(h)). In other words, a retaliation action may arise even if the target of an investigation or Section 3729 action turns out to have been innocent. The Supreme Court found that this textual anomaly, at a minimum, shows that Section 3731(b)(1) is ambiguous about whether "action under section 3730" means all actions under Section 3730, or only actions under Section 3730(a) and (b) (545 U.S. 409, 415-418) .

Faced with the ambiguity of Section 3731(b)(1)'s literal text, the Supreme Court decided that the most reasonable reading of the provision is to interpret the 6-year period to govern only Section 3730(a) and (b) actions, and not Section 3730(h) retaliation actions. In support of this reading, the Court noted that the very next subsection of the statute,

Section 3731(c), also uses the similarly unqualified phrase "action brought under section 3730" to refer only to Section 3730(a) and (b) actions. Section 3731(c) provides that "[i]n any action brought under section 3730, the United States shall be required to prove all essential elements of the cause of action, including damages, by a preponderance of the evidence." This provision clearly was not intended to encompass private retaliation actions, because the United States would never be a party to a retaliation claim. This implicit limitation of the phrase "action under section 3730" shows that Congress used the term "action under section 3730" imprecisely in Section 3731 and, in particular, that Congress sometimes used the term to refer only to a subset of Section 3730 actions. Therefore, the Court concluded, it is reasonable to read the same language in Section 3731(b)(1) to be likewise limited (545 U.S. 409, 417-418) .

The Supreme Court further explained that reading Section 3731(b)(1) to apply only to Section 3730(a) and (b) actions is in keeping with the default rule that Congress generally drafts statutes of limitations to begin when the cause of action accrues. Therefore, when there are two plausible constructions of a statute of limitations, the Court will adopt the construction that starts the time limit running when the cause of action (in this case, retaliation) accrues. Construing Section 3731(b)(1) to exclude retaliation actions will mean that an analogous state statute of limitations will apply, and the likely analogous state statutes of limitations virtually all start to run when the cause of action accrues (545 U.S. 409, 417-419) .

On the other hand, under a reading of Section 3731(b)(1) as encompassing retaliation actions the statute of limitations for an FCA retaliation action would begin to run on the date the actual or suspected FCA violation occurred. Because that date will precede the retaliatory conduct, this reading would start the time limit running before the retaliation action accrues. Moreover, this reading would create the possibility that a retaliation action could be time-barred before it ever accrues (for example, if the employer discovers more than 6 years after a suspected violation of Section 3729 that an employee aided in investigating the suspected violation, and then retaliates against the employee) (545 U.S. 409, 421-422) .

Accordingly, the Supreme Court concluded that the FCA's 6-year limitation period does not apply to Section 3730(h) retaliation actions. Instead, the most closely analogous state statute of limitations applies. The Court left it for the court of appeals on remand to decide which state statute of limitations is the appropriate one to borrow in this case (545 U.S. 409, 422) .

[d] Canons of Construction Subordinate to Intent

Estate of Banerjee (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 527, 147 Cal. Rptr. 157, 580 P.2d 657 , involved a dispute over whether or not certain intangible property was subject to California inheritance tax. The State Controller appealed from a superior court order sustaining the estate's objection to the inheritance tax appraiser's report, which had included the intangibles as taxable items. On appeal, the estate relied on the canon of construction, expressio unius est exclusio alterius (the expression of one thing is the exclusion of the other), as a basis for arguing that Rev. & Tax. Code § 13303, defining "estate" or "property," should not be construed to include the intangible property in question. The Supreme Court rejected this argument, however, holding that the maxim is not a magical incantation, and that it does not refer to any immutable rule. The Court held that like all such guidelines, that canon of construction has many exceptions, and that such rules must always be subordinated to the primary rule that the intent shall prevail over the letter (21 Cal. 3d 527, 539) .

[e] Court Not to Substitute Its Views for Those of Legislature

The facts and procedural background of Jackson v. City of San Diego (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 175 Cal. Rptr. 395 , are discussed under § 217.20[3][c]. In Jackson, the court of appeal, citing Drennan v. Security Pac. Nat. Bank (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 764, 779, 170 Cal. Rptr. 904, 621 P.2d 1318 , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 833, 102 S. Ct. 132, 70 L. Ed. 2d 112 , below, held that it cannot substitute its own views for those of the Legislature when the legislative decision has been made after weighing policy matters as seen by the legislators (121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 587) . Accordingly, the court held that, as tempting as it might be to focus on a legalism to compensate plaintiff for all the damage he suffered by his incarceration for crimes he did not commit by relating all damages to his initial false imprisonment, which was actionable under Gov. Code § 820.4, damages could not be allowed for the period that he was incarcerated after the grand jury indicted him, because that period constituted malicious prosecution which is the subject of immunity under Gov. Code § 821.6 (121 Cal. App. 3d 579, 587-589) . Note that the California Supreme Court disapproved Jackson to the extent that it held that the recovery of damages for postarraignment confinement is permitted [Asgari v. City of L.A. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 744, 758 n.10, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842, 937 P.2d 273] .

Drennan v. Security Pac. Nat. Bank (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 764, 170 Cal. Rptr. 904, 621 P.2d 1318 , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 833, 102 S. Ct. 132, 70 L. Ed. 2d 112 , involved a dispute over the proper disclosure statements relating to a loan that used the "Rule of 78's" to compute the refund of the unearned portion of the finance charge. After determining that the federal Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.) precluded any explanation of that term beyond the mere reference to it in a credit disclosure statement, the Supreme Court, in dicta, addressed the question of whether or not use of the "Rule of 78's" should be allowed at all. The Court concluded that the rule is a hidden charge that is not understood by borrowers, is burdensome on consumers, and is unjustified by lenders' economic needs. The Court went on, however, to recognize that permitting its use in California was a legislative decision involving the weighing of policy matters as seen by legislators. The Court would not be free to substitute its own views for those of the Legislature regarding the desirability of the rule even if plaintiff had sought a determination that it was invalid (28 Cal. 3d 764, 779) . Noting legislative activity that revealed that the Legislature was aware of the issue and had taken the action it deemed appropriate, the Court stated that to embellish the legislative requirements it would be an abuse of judicial authority (28 Cal. 3d 764, 779-780) .

[f] Secondary Rules of Construction May Be Applied When Legislative Intent Cannot Be Determined Directly From Statute in Context

Hoechst Celanese Corp. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 508, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548, 22 P.3d 324 , involved the interpretation of the definition of "business income" and "nonbusiness income" under California's version of the Uniform Division of Income for Tax Purposes Act (UDITPA) (see Rev. & Tax. Code § 25120 et seq.). The Supreme Court reaffirmed the well-established rules of statutory construction; in seeking to ascertain the legislative intent, the Court begins with the statutory words and gives those words their ordinary meaning. If the statutory language is clear and unambiguous, the Court need go no further. If, however, the language is susceptible to more than one reasonable interpretation, the Court will look to extrinsic aids, including the ostensible objects to be achieved, the evils to be remedied, the legislative history, public policy, contemporaneous administrative construction, and the statutory scheme of which the statute is a part. If the statute is part of a uniform act adopted by the Legislature,the history surrounding the creation and adoption of the uniform act is also relevant. In this case, the Court found the statutory language of UDITPA was ambiguous (see Rev. & Tax. Code § 25120), based both on the Court's analysis of the words of the statute, and on the conflicting opinions of other states' courts interpreting the UDITPA. The Court noted that the existence of such conflicting opinions demonstrates that reasonable minds may disagree over the meaning of the statutory words. Accordingly, the Court resorted to extrinsic sources--the legislative history, and pre-UDITPA administrative decisions that applied language similar to that adopted in the UDITPA--to guide the Court's interpretation of the statutory language (25 Cal. 4th 508, 519-526) .

In Mejia v. Reed (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 657, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390, 74 P.3d 166 , the plaintiff was the mother of a child whose father was married to another woman. In a later divorce proceeding, the father and his wife entered into a marital settlement agreement under which the father transferred all his interest in jointly held real property to his wife. The plaintiff brought the present action, claiming that the purpose of this transfer was to prevent her from collecting child support. The plaintiff sought to impose a lien on the transferred real property pursuant to the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act (UFTA) (Civ. Code § 3439.07; see Civ. Code § 3439 et seq.). The trial court assumed that the UFTA applied to the marital settlement agreement, but it granted the father's summary judgment motion on the grounds that no evidence was presented of actual intent to defraud and that constructive fraud under the UFTA was not established because the transfer had not rendered the father insolvent (see Civ. Code § 3439.05). The court of appeal reversed, holding that although the UFTA applies to marital settlement agreements, triable issues of fact precluded summary judgment.

The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal. The Supreme Court held that the UFTA does apply to marital settlement agreements (31 Cal. 4th 657, 668-669) . The Court also found that there was no triable issue of constructive fraud under the UFTA, because the transfer had not rendered the father insolvent (31 Cal. 4th 657, 669-672) . However, further proceedings were necessary to determine the existence of actual intent to defraud (31 Cal. 4th 657, 672) . Accordingly, the Supreme Court remanded the case for further proceedings (31 Cal. 4th 657, 672) .

Whether the UFTA applies to transfers made under marital settlement agreements was a question of first impression in this case. The Supreme Court was faced with an apparent conflict between the provisions of the UFTA and the Family Code. The UFTA provides remedies for present and future creditors in the case of a debtor's transfer that is actually or constructively fraudulent (see Civ. Code §§ 3439.04(a), 3439.05). On its face, the UFTA applies to all transfers. It defines "transfer" as "every mode, direct or indirect, absolute or conditional, voluntary or involuntary, of disposing of or parting with an asset or an interest in an asset ... ." (Civ. Code § 3439.01 (i)). The UFTA excepts only certain transfers resulting from lease terminations or lien enforcement (Civ. Code § 3439.08(e)). Thus, the UFTA on its face encompasses transfers made under a marital settlement agreement.

On the other hand, the Family Code provides that property received by a married person in a division of property under a marital settlement agreement "is not liable for a debt incurred by the person's spouse before or during marriage, and the person is not personally liable for the debt, unless the debt was assigned for payment by the person in the division of the property" (Fam. Code § 916(a)(2)). The only statutory exception to this grant of immunity from liability is a provision that preserves the liability of property subject to a preexisting lien (Fam. Code § 916(a)(2)); the statute does not mention fraudulent transfers. Thus, on its face, the Family Code provision would appear to protect transfers of marital property incident to dissolution from being set aside under the UFTA.

Faced with this apparent conflict, the Supreme Court found that neither the statutory language nor the legislative history was sufficient to resolve the conflict (31 Cal. 4th 657, 666-668) . Under the circumstances, the Court turned to a consideration of the relevant policy considerations bearing on the question of legislative intent. The Court found that the Legislature has a general policy of protecting creditors from fraudulent transfers, including transfers between spouses. For example, a transfer before dissolution can be set aside as a fraudulent conveyance (see Fam. Code § 851), and a transfer after dissolution can be set aside under the UFTA. Moreover, when the court divides marital property in the absence of an agreement by the parties, it must divide the property equally (see Fam. Code § 2550), which provides some protection for a creditor of one spouse only. In view of this overall policy of protecting creditors, the Supreme Court found it unlikely that the Legislature intended to grant married couples a one-time-only opportunity to defraud creditors by including the fraudulent transfer in a marital settlement agreement. Accordingly, based on the policy considerations underlying the UFTA and the Family Code provisions governing dissolution judgments and settlements, the Court concluded that the UFTA applies to transfers made under marital settlement agreements (31 Cal. 4th 657, 668-669) .

In Texas Commerce Bank v. Garamendi (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 460, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 854 , the court of appeal undertook to decide what the Legislature intended by the reference to annuities in Ins. Code § 101, which provides: "Life insurance includes insurance upon the lives of persons or appertaining thereto, and the granting, purchasing, or disposing of annuities." The appellant contended that the Legislature intended to restrict the word to life annuities (having a term measured by an individual's life), or at least to annuities payable only to individuals. Therespondent contended that the Legislature intended to include annuities-certain (having a fixed term unrelated to any individual's life) and did not intend to restrict the meaning according to the nature of the payee. The court observed that no other provision of the Insurance Code, nor any other statute or controlling decision, provided a definition of the word annuity in this context. Reading the words of the statute and related statutes, the court was able to conclude only that (1) whatever "annuities" means, annuities in this context are different from policies of life insurance, and (2) the statutory phrase "upon the lives of persons or appertaining thereto" relates back to the word "insurance" and does not relate to the word "annuities" (11 Cal. App. 4th 460, 469-472) .

The court turned to secondary rules of construction, in the following order. First, contextual aids urged by the appellant were considered--the rule of noscitur a sociis ("it is known by its associates"--in other words, a word's meaning may be broadened or constrained by reference to the rest of the clause in which it appears) and the rule of ejusdem generis (general words following a list refer are construed to refer back to the enumerated items only)--but these were held inapplicable because the premises on which they rest did not exist in the present case (11 Cal. App. 4th 460, 471-474) . Next, legislative history was reviewed but was found to be unhelpful (11 Cal. App. 4th 460, 474) . The contemporaneous meaning of "annuities" showed that annuities-certain were included by commercial and legal usage at the time the statute was enacted; contemporaneous law treatises supported that conclusion (11 Cal. App. 4th 460, 475-478) . Current sources supporting the inclusion of annuities-certain also were cited: recent treatises, recent insurance industry texts and communications, and more-specific statutes in other states (11 Cal. App. 4th 460, 479-481) . By this same sort of analysis the court concluded that the Legislature did not intend any restriction according to the nature of the payee (11 Cal. App. 4th 460, 482-483) .

[g] Rules of Construction Apply to Statutes Enacted Through Initiative Process

In Day v. City of Fontana (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 268, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457, 19 P.3d 1196 , the Supreme Court construed Civil Code Section 3333.4, which limits the ability of uninsured motorists and convicted drunk drivers to recover noneconomic losses suffered in certain accidents. The statute was enacted through the passage of Proposition 21 in the November 1996 general election. In this case, the Court found that the statute precludes an uninsured motorist from recovering an award of noneconomic damages against a public entity in an action for nuisance and dangerous condition of public property. The Court began its analysis of the statute by stating that the rules of statutory construction apply equally in construing statutes enacted through the initiative process. The Court next examined the language of the statute itself, finding no ambiguity or uncertainty as to the statute's application (25 Cal. 4th 268, 272-274) . To reinforce its conclusion, the Court then reviewed the relevant legislative history materials to ensure that the Court's construction of the statute did not undermine the initiative's intent or otherwise lead to absurd results. Because the statute was enacted through the initiative process, those legislative history materials consisted of the Proposition 213 ballot pamphlet materials, including the proposition's "Findings and Declaration of Purpose," the analysis of the initiative by the Legislative Analyst, and arguments printed in the ballot pamphlet (25 Cal. 4th 268, 274-282) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Fundamental Rule of Construction

In Home Depot U.S.A. v. Contractors' State License Board (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1592, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302 , Home Depot, a licensed general contractor sued the Contractor's State Licensing Board to invalidate state regulations, 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 834(b), preventing it from accepting certain contracts unless they involved three unrelated building trades or crafts, or the contractor holds the required specialty licenses. The court declared the rule invalid and void, holding that it was promulgated under the authority of Bus. & Prof. Code § 7057, but that the rule was inconsistent with and beyond the scope of section 7057. The court also found that the rule was unnecessary to reasonably effectuate the legislative purpose, as applied to the circumstances of the case, and reiterated that the overriding purpose in construing statutes is to ascertain legislative intent and give reasonable construction conforming to that intent. In interpreting legislative intent, court first looks to usual and ordinary meaning of words of statute, with due regard to the language used and the purpose sought to be accomplished (41 Cal. App. 4th 1592, 1600-1601) .

People v. Jones (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1142, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753, 857 P.2d 1163 , was a criminal case concerning the effect of Proposition 8 on sentencing requirements. The issue in the case was whether the electorate intended, when it enacted Proposition 8, for a prison sentence to be enhanced both for a prior conviction and for a prison term imposed for that conviction. The Supreme Court focused on the means by which the intent of the Legislature is ascertained when it construed the statutory and constitutional scheme enacted by the voters as part of Proposition 8. The Court determined that the first step was to turn to the words themselves for the answer. If the language is clear and unambiguous, then there is no need to resort to construction, or to other indicia in determining the intent of either the Legislature or the voters (5 Cal. 4th 1142, 1146) .

Marina Green Homeowners Assn. v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 200, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364 , was an action by a condominium homeowners association against an insurer. The trial courtgranted summary judgment, and determined that the insurer had no duty under Ins. Code § 10081 to provide earthquake insurance to cover the common interest in the condominiums project's structure, as distinguished from the units owned by each individual condominium owner. The court of appeal affirmed, finding that the relevant rules of statutory interpretation are well-settled. First, in interpreting statutory meaning, the appellate court makes an independent review. In conducting that review, the court must begin with the cardinal rule applicable to that task: the court must ascertain the legislative intent so as to effectuate the purpose of the law. If the statutory language is unambiguous, legislative intent is determined from the plain meaning of the language itself. Further, in attempting to ascertain legislative intent, effect should be given, whenever possible, to the statute as a whole and to every word and clause thereof, leaving no part of the provision useless or deprived of meaning (25 Cal. App. 4th 200, 204) .

City of Sacramento v. Public Employees' Retirement System (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 786, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545 , concerned an action by a city against the Public Employees' Retirement System. The trial court determined that an amendment to the relevant statute, former Gov. Code § 20021 (now see Gov. Code § 20433), was binding on the city without its election. The court of appeal held that the trial court properly construed the statute. The court stated that the quest for legislative intent in statutory construction is not unbounded. There can be no intent in a statute not expressed in its words, and there could be no intent on the part of the framers of such a statute that does not find expression in their words. The meaning of a statute is to be sought in the language used by the Legislature. Words may not be inserted in a statute in the guise of interpretation (22 Cal. App. 4th 786, 793) .

Altaville Drug Store, Inc. v. Employment Development Department (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 231, 242 Cal. Rptr. 732, 746 P.2d 871 , involved the meaning of the word "spouse" as used in Unemp. Ins. Code § 1032, which sets forth circumstances in which unemployment insurance benefits awarded to a claimant are not charged to the employer's reserve account. The Supreme Court said that the fundamental rule of statutory construction is to ascertain the intent of the Legislature so as to effectuate the purpose of the law (44 Cal. 3d 231, 238) .

In Landrum v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 1, 177 Cal. Rptr. 325, 634 P.2d 352 , which is also discussed in § 217.60[3][b], the Supreme Court confronted the question of whether the time in which a criminal defendant's preliminary examination must be held under Penal Code § 859b (prior to its 1980 amendment) had to be calculated from the time of defendant's first arraignment or could be measured from the time of his arraignment on a second complaint following dismissal of the first complaint. The Court stated that in construing statutes, the Court is required to interpret them in a manner calculated to give effect to the intent of the Legislature (30 Cal. 3d 1, 12) . Noting that Penal Code § 859b reflected a clear legislative intent to prevent prolonged incarceration prior to a preliminary hearing, the Court rejected the prosecution's contention that Penal Code § 859b should be construed to allow the measurement of time from the second arraignment, although it decided on other grounds that the time could be calculated from the second arraignment (30 Cal. 3d 1, 12-15) .

In Los Angeles County Safety Police Assn. v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1378, 237 Cal. Rptr. 920 , the court of appeal held that former Penal Code § 830.4, relating to peace officers, was intended by the Legislature to apply to a charter county. In reaching this holding, the court said that a court must ascertain the Legislature's intent to effectuate the purpose of a statute (192 Cal. App. 3d 1378, 1387) , that when statutory language can be interpreted as having more than one meaning it is the duty of the courts to accept the meaning intended by the framers of the legislation, so far as its intention can be ascertained, and that to discern legislative intent the court had to examine the legislative history and statutory context of the act under scrutiny (192 Cal. App. 3d 1378, 1388) .

In Robertson v. Wentz (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1281, 232 Cal. Rptr. 634 , the appellate court was faced with the construction of Civ. Code § 1714.1(a), prior to its 1983 amendment, which imposed liability on the parent or guardian having "custody or control" (now custody and control) of a minor for any act of willful misconduct of the minor that results in injury or death to another person or injury to another's property. In construing the quoted phrase, the court said the following: (1) the paramount goal of statutory interpretation is ascertainment of the legislative intent in order to effectuate the objectives of the law; (2) the provision must be given a reasonable and common sense construction in accordance with the apparent purpose and intention of the lawmakers, practical rather than technical in nature, and which, when applied, will result in wise policy rather than mischief or absurdity; and (3) the court should take into account matters such as context, the object in view, the evils to be remedied, the history of the time and of legislation on the same subject, public policy, and contemporaneous construction (187 Cal. App. 3d 1281, 1292) .

In Flood v. Wyeth Laboratories, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1272, 228 Cal. Rptr. 700 , the appellate court was faced with the question of whether Health & Safety Code § 429.36 (repealed in 1995; now see Health & Safety Code § 120455), providing that no person shall be liable for any injury caused by an act or omission in the administration of a vaccine or other immunizing agent to a minor, including the residual effects of the vaccine or immunizing agent, applied to vaccine manufacturers so as to immunize them from products liability, including strict liability in tort. In holding that it did not so apply, the court said that it was bound by the principles oflegislative interpretation, the most fundamental rule of which is that the court should ascertain the intent of the Legislature so as to effectuate the purpose of the law (183 Cal. App. 3d 1272, 1277) .

Additional cases holding that the fundamental rule, or well-settled principles, of statutory construction require a court to ascertain the intent of the Legislature in order to effectuate the purpose of the law include Moore v. Panish (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 535, 548, 186 Cal. Rptr. 475, 652 P.2d 32 ; Burnsed v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 213, 217, 234 Cal. Rptr. 316 ; Demirgian v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 372, 374-376, 231 Cal. Rptr. 698 ; Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 350, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690 ; Referendum Committee v. City of Hermosa Beach (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 152, 159, 229 Cal. Rptr. 51 ; Coastal Care Centers, Inc. v. Meeks (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 85, 95, 228 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; and State of California ex rel. Public Works Bd. v. Bragg (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1018, 1025, 228 Cal. Rptr. 576 .

[b] Sensible Construction Consistent With Purpose

Jutzi v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 637, 242 Cal. Rptr. 74 , was an action against a county hospital for malpractice in rendering emergency medical services, in which the court of appeal, in affirming judgment for defendant, construed Health & Safety Code § 1799.110(c). The court stated that a statute must be given a reasonable and commonsense interpretation consistent with the apparent purpose and intention of the lawmakers, practical rather than technical in nature, and which, when applied, will result in wise policy rather than mischief or absurdity; any interpretation should also take into account matters such as context, the object in view, the evils to be remedied, the history of the times and of legislation on the same subject, public policy, and contemporaneous construction (196 Cal. App. 3d 637, 650) .

See discussion of Robertson v. Wentz (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1281, 232 Cal. Rptr. 634 , under § 217.20[4][a].

In Cerra v. Blackstone (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 218 Cal. Rptr. 15 , an action for conversion, the language of Civ. Code § 2983.3 was in issue. The trial court entered summary judgment for defendant, ruling that even if the facts asserted by plaintiff were true, plaintiff had no claim for conversion because the remedy provided by § 2983.3 (depriving a seller who fails to give proper notice of a deficiency judgment) precludes the buyer from exercising any other remedy against the seller. The court of appeal reversed, holding that depriving a seller of a deficiency judgment is not the buyer's only remedy against the seller for the seller's refusal to reinstate the contract. In construing the statute, the court stated the general rule of statutory construction that the purpose sought to be achieved and the evils to be eliminated by legislation have an important place in ascertaining the legislative intent. Statutes should be interpreted to promote rather than defeat the legislative purpose and policy, and when two constructions appear possible, the court should favor that which leads to the more reasonable result. A construction that affords an opportunity to evade the legislation should be avoided, whereas a construction that would prevent the mischief sought to be remedied by the statute, or the avoidance of its terms or any attempt to accomplish by indirection what the statute forbids, should be favored (172 Cal. App. 3d 604, 608) .

[c] Canons of Construction Subordinate to Intent

In People v. Caudillo (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 562, 146 Cal. Rptr. 859, 580 P.2d 274 , the Supreme Court, construing the provisions of a Penal Code section relating to enhanced punishment for rape in case of great bodily injury, noted that although the decisional law has established many rules of statutory construction, they are all basically guidelines in the judicial quest to determine the Legislature's intent so that the purpose of the legislation may be effectuated (21 Cal. 3d 562, 576) .

[d] Secondary Rules of Construction May Be Applied When Legislative Intent Cannot Be Determined Directly From Statute in Context

In Samantar v. Yousuf (2010) ___ U.S. ___, 130 S. Ct. 2278, 176 L. Ed. 2d 1047 , the Supreme Court held that the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, which immunizes foreign states from the jurisdiction of United States courts (see 28 U.S.C. § 1604), does not immunize individual officials of foreign states. In so holding, the Court construed the Act's definition of "foreign state" as not including individual foreign officials (see 28 U.S.C. § 1603(a)) (176 L. Ed. 2d 1047, 1060-1062) . The Court also looked to the legislative history to confirm its reading of the statutory text. The Court acknowledged that consulting the legislative history might not have been strictly necessary, but the Court said: "As for the propriety of using legislative history at all, common sense suggests that inquiry benefits from reviewing additional information rather than ignoring it ... . Legislative history materials are not generally so misleading that jurists should never employ them in a good-faith effort to discern legislative intent. Our precedents demonstrate that the Court's practice of utilizing legislative history reaches well into its past. We suspect that the practice will likewise reach well into the future" (176 L. Ed. 2d 1047, 1061 n.9 (citation omitted)).

In Brock v. First South Savings Ass'n (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 661, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700 , a seller of real property sued to establish priority for a vendor's lien, pursuant to Civ. Code § 3046, over a purchase-money deed of trust that a savings and loan association asserted had priority pursuant to Civ. Code § 2898. Both security interests arose from a single transaction and therefore were considered as arising simultaneously. Each statute apparently gave priority to the lien that it governed. Both statutes were enacted in the 1872 Civil Code. No California case had decided which lien would have priority in this situation. Each party cited general rules of construction in contending for predominance of the statute under which the party claimed priority. The court of appeal concluded that the general rules of construction were not helpful. The court resolved the issue of priority by citing the history of the two statutes. The court said, "Since the parties' proposed constructions of sections 2898(a) and 3048 fail to answer the question [of] which statute controls here, and no case law on point exists, we turn to the history of the provisions" (8 Cal. App. 4th 661, 672) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART II. FORMS
A. GENERAL RULES

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.21

§ 217.21 Supporting Contention That Statute Should Be Construed to Give Effect to Purpose When Literal Interpretation Would Defeat Apparent Purpose or Lead to Absurdity

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief. It should be combined with the general points and authorities set out in § 217.20.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT CONSTRUE _____ [specify statute] LITERALLY, BECAUSE A LITERAL INTERPRETATION WOULD BE CONTRARY TO THE APPARENT PURPOSE OF THE STATUTE [AND WOULD LEAD TO AN ABSURD RESULT].

A. Give Effect to Purpose Rather Than Strict Letter of Statute. Once a particular legislative intent has been ascertained, it must be given effect even though it may not be consistent with the strict letter of the statute. The mere literal construction of a section in a statute ought not to prevail if that construction is opposed to the Legislature's intention apparent by the statute; and if the words are sufficiently flexible to admit of some other construction, that construction is to be adopted to effectuate that intention. The intent prevails over the letter, and the letter will, if possible, be so read as to conform to the spirit of the act (Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 247, 259, 104 Cal. Rptr. 761, 502 P.2d 1049).

[Optional] B. Disregard Literal Meaning to Avoid Absurd Results Not Intended by Legislature. The language of a statute should not be given a literal meaning if doing so would result in absurd consequences that the Legislature did not intend (California School Employees Assn. v. Governing Board (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 333, 340, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 878 P.2d 1321 ; Hall v. Regents of the University of California (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1580, 1586, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387 ; Looney v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 521, 532, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 ; Cooperrider v. Civil Service Com. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 495, 502, 158 Cal. Rptr. 801).

[Optional] D. No Deference Owed to Agency Interpretation Embodied in Void Regulations. The general rule of deference to an agency interpretation of a statute does not apply if the interpretation was not adopted in accordance with applicable legal requirements (Church v. Jamison (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1568, 1577-1583, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 166).

[Set forth additional points and authorities relating to other rules of statutory interpretation that aid in ascertaining legislative intent behind statute and support interpretation desired (see §§ 217.22 -217.24, 217.40 -217.46, 217.60 -217.63, 217.81 -217.86, 217.88).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a statute should be construed in a particular manner. The form sets out the rule of statutory interpretation that a statute should not be interpreted literally if such an interpretation would be contrary to the apparent purpose of the statute. Such an argument might be made in any type of action or proceeding in which a question arises concerning how a statute should be construed. Although it has been suggested that the rule is only applied as part of the interpretive process when the language being considered is unclear [Cadiz v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376-377, 155 Cal. Rptr. 213] , it has also been held that ambiguity is not necessarily a prerequisite to judicial interpretation in accordance with the rule [Henreid v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 552, 558, 130 Cal. Rptr. 892 ; see California School Employees Assn. v. Governing Board (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 333, 340, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 878 P.2d 1321 (literal meaning may be disregarded if contrary to apparent legislative purpose, even though statutory language is not ambiguous)]. The appropriate paragraphs of this form should be combined with the general form set forth in § 217.20, which relate to the construction of statutes to ascertain and effectuate the legislative intent.

Counsel should also insert argument in this form showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should include discussion showing the purpose of the statute and demonstrate that a literal interpretation of the statutory language would defeat, or at least not further, that purpose or that it would lead to an absurd result.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 217.25 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the points and authorities in this form.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Give Effect to Purpose Rather Than Strict Letter of Statute

In Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 247, 104 Cal. Rptr. 761, 502 P.2d 1049 , the superior court denied a petitionfor a writ of administrative mandamus to review the issuance of a conditional use permit by defendant, and plaintiffs appealed. The issue before the Supreme Court was whether or not Pub. Res. Code § 21151, which, in part, requires one category of counties, including defendant, to make an environmental impact report on "any project they intend to carry out which may have a significant effect on the environment," requires a municipality to submit an environmental impact report before issuing a use or building permit. In determining that "project" is not restricted to public works, but includes private activities subject to governmental regulation, the Court looked to the broad intent of the California Environmental Quality Act (Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.) to protect the environment. Citing Dickey v. Raisin Proration Zone No. 1 (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 796, 802, 151 P.2d 505 , the Court stated that once a particular legislative intent has been ascertained, it must be given effect even though it may not be consistent with the strict letter of the statute. Quoting In re Haines (1925) 195 Cal. 605, 613, 234 P. 883 , the Court further stated that the mere literal construction of a section in a statute ought not to prevail if it is opposed to the Legislature's intention apparent by the statute, and if the words are sufficiently flexible to admit of some other construction that construction is to be adopted to effectuate that intention. The intent prevails over the letter, and the letter will, if possible, be so read as to conform to the spirit of the act (8 Cal. 3d 247, 259) . The Court proceeded to determine that the word "project" was sufficiently flexible that private activities could be brought within the ambit of the act (8 Cal. 3d 247, 259-266) .

[b] Disregard Literal Meaning to Avoid Absurd Results Not Intended by Legislature

California School Employees Assn. v. Governing Board (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 333, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 878 P.2d 1321 , was a mandate proceeding brought by a public employee union against a community college district. The union sought to compel the district to recognize the "Days of Thanksgiving" proclaimed by President Bush at the end of the Gulf War (April 5-7, 1991) as paid district holidays and to compensate classified employees accordingly. The trial court granted the writ, and the court of appeal affirmed, but the California Supreme Court reversed.

The Court noted that Educ. Code § 88203 entitles classified employees of the community colleges to holiday pay on nine specified recurring holidays, plus any day "appointed by the President ... for a public fast, thanksgiving or holiday." The Court observed that under the plain language of the statute, a presidential decree designating a certain day as a "day of thanksgiving" would trigger an entitlement to a paid holiday for community college employees, but a literal interpretation of the statute would give no entitlement to holiday pay if the days were designated as something other than a day of thanksgiving, such as a "day of prayer" (8 Cal. 4th 333, 339) . The Court observed that focusing solely on the President's choice of words might be appropriate if the Legislature believed that the President knew and intended that the precise words he chose would have particular legal consequences in California (i.e., the creation of a paid holiday for community college employees). Because, however, there was no reason to believe that the President is aware of the consequences that attach to his use of particular words, there appeared to be no correlation between the particular words the President uses and his intention to designate a day of nationwide significance. Consequently, the Court concluded, a literal interpretation of the statute produces the absurd result that a paid holiday is recognized not because of the President's designation of a day of nationwise significance, but rather through a "semantic lottery" in which the determinative factor is that the "winning" words appear in the President's proclamation. The Court noted that, ordinarily, if the statutory language is clear, there is no need for judicial construction, but that a court may nonetheless determine whether the literal meaning of a statute comports with its purpose. The Court observed that it need not follow the plain meaning of a statute if to do so would frustrate the mainfest purposes of the legislation or lead to absurd results (8 Cal. 4th 333, 340) . Applying this rule, the Court went beyond the literal words of the statute to ascertain the Legislature's purpose and held that the statute should be construed as authorizing a paid holiday for community college employees only when the President has declared a corresponding holiday for federal employees. Under this test, the "Days of Thanksgiving" proclaimed by President Bush did not result in an entitlement to a paid holiday under Educ. Code § 88203 because the President did not declare a holiday for federal employees on those dates (8 Cal. 4th 333, 342-347) .

Hall v. Regents of the University of California (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1580, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387 , involved a patient who had been tested for human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) and received a false positive result. She sued various defendants, including the regents of the university hospital at which a subsequent test was performed, alleging that the defendants had been negligent in failing to timely inform her of the false positive. The regents sought a voluntary dismissal from plaintiff and agreed to waive costs. She declined, citing the tactical necessity of maintaining the regents in the action. The regents then filed a motion for summary judgment, which was granted by the trial court. The regents subsequently moved to recover defense costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038, which provides that a party may avoid paying defense costs only if he or she has pursued an action with "reasonable cause and in the good faith belief" that there was a justifiable controversy under the facts. The trial court construed the statute and declined to award costs to the regents, agreeing with plaintiff that as a tactical matter, she had cause to not dismiss the regents because it would have compromised her position, vis-a-vis other defendants in the action.

The court of appeal reversed and remanded to the trial court for a determination of costs. The appellate court stated that the trial court had misconstrued the statute by permitting the plaintiff's tactical concerns to satisfy the definition of reasonable cause under the statute. The court stated that the recognized legislative purpose behind Section 1038 was to provide an economic disincentive to the filing of frivolous lawsuits. The court explained that statutes must be construed in a way that renders them reasonable, fair and harmonious with their manifest legislative purpose, and the literal meaning of the words must give way to avoid harsh results and mischievous or absurd consequences. The appellate court stated that the trial court's construction of the statute created a potential loophole that would effectively undermine the statutory purpose by allowing plaintiffs to maintain meritless actions for purely tactical reasons (43 Cal. App. 4th 1580, 1585-1587) .

Looney v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 521, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 , was an action against a medical center and two doctors. Plaintiffs sought punitive damages. Defendants moved to strike the punitive damages allegations, arguing that under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13 plaintiffs were required to seek leave of court to amend their pleadings to assert the punitive damages claims. Basing its decision on the then-accepted interpretation of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13, the trial court denied the motion to strike. Plaintiffs sought, and were granted, preferential trial dates because of doubt that they would live more than six months. Subsequently, the California Supreme Court overruled prior case law interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13. Defendants again moved to strike the punitive damages allegations. This time, after a petition for writ of mandate to the court of appeal, defendants succeeded. Plaintiffs sought leave to amend under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13, but the trial court denied the motion on the basis that plaintiffs did not meet the requirement of that statute that the motion be brought at least nine months before the date first set for trial. Plaintiff petitioned for a writ of mandate.

The court of appeal acknowledged that the nine-month time limit in Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13 was in conflict with Code Civ. Proc. § 36, which provides the statutory right of an aged or terminally ill plaintiff to a preferential trial date. The court sought to give effect to the fundamental purpose of both statutes, and stated that "courts resist blind obedience to the putative 'plain meaning' of a statutory phrase where literal interpretation would defeat the Legislature's central objective" (16 Cal. App. 4th 521, 532) . The court also stated that "the language of a statute should not be given a literal meaning if doing so would result in absurd consequences which the Legislature did not intend" (16 Cal. App. 4th 521, 532) . The court held that there is an implied exception to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13 that permits the granting of a motion brought less than nine months prior to the first assigned trial date when it is necessary to protect a plaintiff's right to a preferential trial date and the defendant receives or has had a reasonable opportunity to conduct discovery regarding the punitive damage claim (16 Cal. App. 4th 521, 536) .

Plaintiff in Cooperrider v. Civil Service Com. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 495, 158 Cal. Rptr. 801 , obtained a writ of mandate from the superior court compelling defendant to consider her application for employment by the City and County of San Francisco, which defendant had refused to do because plaintiff had not resided in San Francisco for one year prior to the date of her application, as required by ordinance. Defendant appealed. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the one-year residency requirement violated former Cal. Const., art. XI, § 10.5 (now see Cal. Const., art. XI, § 10(b)), which prohibits chartered cities from requiring employees to be residents of the city in which they work. In holding that the word "employees" included applicants, the court stated that the literal language of enactments may be disregarded to avoid absurd results and to fulfill the apparent intent of the framers. If the word "employee" were interpreted to exclude applicants, an absurd situation would result: individuals could be required to be residents of a city in order to apply for a position, but they would be permitted to move out of the city the day after being employed (97 Cal. App. 3d 495, 502) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Give Effect to Purpose Rather Than Strict Letter of Statute

In Southland Mechanical Constructors Corp. v. Nixen (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 417, 173 Cal. Rptr. 917 , the court of appeal affirmed a judgment dismissing plaintiff's complaint against defendant attorneys for legal malpractice on the ground, in part, that the action was barred by the statute of limitations, Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6(a), which relates to actions against attorneys "for a wrongful act or omission ... arising in the performance of professional services." In determining that the phrase "wrongful act or omission" encompassed both the tort and breach of contract aspects of malpractice, the court stated the proposition set forth in Paragraph A of the foregoing form, and found that the court's task was to determine whether or not the words "wrongful act or omission" were sufficiently flexible to effectuate the legislative intent that breach-of-contract actions be included within the scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6 (119 Cal. App. 3d 417, 430) .

[b] Disregard Literal Meaning to Avoid Absurd Results Not Intended by Legislature

The Supreme Court in County of San Diego v. Muniz (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 29, 148 Cal. Rptr. 584, 583 P.2d 109 , reversed judgment for plaintiff under Welf. & Inst. Code § 17403, which provides that a county may recover public moneys expended for a person's support if the person acquires property. The issue on appeal was whether or not "property" included wages. The Court noted several anomalous consequences inconsistent with the legislative purpose of encouraging welfare recipients to be self-supporting that would result from construing "property" to include everything which is subject to ownership and stated that the literal meaning of a statute's words must give way to avoid harsh results and mischievous or absurd results (22 Cal. 3d 29, 36) . Thus, the Court held that "property" only included wages retained by the former welfare recipient after meeting the support needs of himself or herself and his or her family (22 Cal. 3d 29, 37) .

Los Angeles Taxpayers Alliance v. Fair Political Practices Com. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 472 , involved construction of the statutory definition of "slate mailers" in Gov. Code § 82048.3, a provision of the Political Reform Act of 1974 (Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.). The court of appeal rejected a construction of Gov. Code § 82048.3 urged by appellant, explaining that a court "may look beyond the literal words of a statute when plain meaning leads to unreasonable results inconsistent with the purposes of the legislation" (14 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1219) .

In Coastal Care Centers, Inc. v. Meeks (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 85, 228 Cal. Rptr. 883 , the court of appeal affirmed the denial of a petition for writ of mandate to compel the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development to hold a hearing on a competing health facility's application for a certificate of need. The court stated that to determine the Legislature's intent in enacting a statute, courts should look first to the words of the statute, but that the statutory language should not be given a literal meaning if doing so would result in absurd consequences that the Legislature did not intend (184 Cal. App. 3d 85, 95) .

Additional cases stating that the court will decline to follow the plain meaning of a statute when it would frustrate the intent of the legislation or lead to absurd results include Atlantic Richfield Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 715, 726, 182 Cal. Rptr. 778, 644 P.2d 1257 ; Referendum Committee v. City of Hermosa Beach (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 152, 159, 229 Cal. Rptr. 51 ; and Barnes v. Chamberlain (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 762, 766, 195 Cal. Rptr. 417 .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART II. FORMS
A. GENERAL RULES

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.22

§ 217.22 Supporting Contention That Rules of Statutory Interpretation Apply to Constitutional Provisions, Charter Provisions, Ordinances, and Administrative Regulations

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum supporting or opposing a motion, or in a trial or appellate brief. It should be combined with the general form set out in § 217.20.]

THE RULES OF STATUTORY INTERPRETATION APPLY TO _____ [CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS or CHARTER PROVISIONS or ORDINANCES or ADMINISTRATIVE REGULATIONS].

[EITHER]

Constitutional Provisions. The rules of statutory construction apply to constitutional provisions (Greene v. Marin County Flood Control & Water Conservation Dist. (2010) 49 Cal. 4th 277, 290-291, 109 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620, 231 P.3d 350 ; County of Fresno v. Malmstrom (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 974, 979, 156 Cal. Rptr. 777).

[OR]

Charter Provisions. The rules of statutory construction apply to city charters (Castaneda v. Holcomb (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 939, 942, 170 Cal. Rptr. 875).

[OR]

Ordinances. The rules of statutory construction apply to ordinances (County of Madera v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 665, 668, 114 Cal. Rptr. 283).

[OR]

Administrative Regulations. The rules of statutory construction apply to rules and regulations of administrative agencies (In re Richards (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 93, 97-98, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797).

[Set forth additional points and cite authorities relating to other rules of statutory interpretation that aid in ascertaining intent of the provision and support interpretation desired (see §§ 217.21, 217.23, 217.24, 217.40 -217.46, 217.60 -217.63, 217.80 -217.86, 217.88).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing form may be submitted in support of a party's contention that an ordinance, an administrative regulation, or aprovision of a constitution or a city charter should be construed in a particular manner. The form sets out the rule that the same rules of interpretation apply in such cases as in the case of the interpretation of statutes. Such an argument might be made in any type of action or proceeding in which a question arises concerning how an ordinance, administrative regulation, constitutional provision, or city charter provision should be construed. These points and authorities should be combined with the general points and authorities set forth in § 217.20, which relate to the construction of statutes to ascertain and effectuate the legislative intent.

The foregoing form may be combined with a memorandum relating to the procedural context in which the issue of interpretation arises. This form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should also insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Constitutional Provisions

In Greene v. Marin County Flood Control & Water Conservation Dist. (2010) 49 Cal. 4th 277, 109 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620, 231 P.3d 350 , the California Supreme Court held that Cal. Const., art. XIII D, § 6, which requires voter approval for new or increased property-related fees, does not incorporate the secret-ballot requirements applicable to elections under Cal. Const., art. II, § 7. In construing the constitutional provisions, the Court said that the principles of constitutional interpretation are similar to those governing statutory construction, and the Court provided some examples of the tenets of constitutional construction. Thus, in interpreting a constitution's provision, the paramount task is to ascertain the intent of those who enacted it. To determine that intent, the Court looks first to the language of the constitutional text, giving the words their ordinary meaning. If the language is clear, there is no need for construction. If the language is ambiguous, the Court considers extrinsic evidence of the enacting body's intent (49 Cal. 4th 277, 289-290) .

When constitutional provisions can reasonably be construed so as to avoid conflict, such a construction should be adopted; as a means of avoiding conflict, a recent, specific provision is deemed to carve out an exception to and thereby limit an older, general provision (49 Cal. 4th 277, 290) .

In a case of ambiguous constitutional language, the Court may also consult any contemporaneous constructions of the constitutional provision made by the Legislature or by administrative agencies. For example, there is a presumption of constitutionality accorded to legislative acts, particularly when the Legislature has enacted a statute with the relevant constitutional prescriptions clearly in mind. In such a case, the statute represents a considered legislative judgment as to the appropriate reach of the constitutional provision. Although the ultimate constitutional interpretation rests with the judiciary, a focused legislative judgment on the question enjoys significant weight and deference by the courts (49 Cal. 4th 277, 290-291) .

In County of Fresno v. Malmstrom (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 974, 156 Cal. Rptr. 777 , the court of appeal exercised its original jurisdiction to issue a writ of mandate in a dispute over the effect of Cal. Const., art. XIIIA, which imposes a limitation on property tax. In holding that Article XIIIA did not apply to special assessments and bonds levied pursuant to certain statutes, the court cited Winchester v. Mabury (1898) 122 Cal. 522, 527, 55 P. 393 , for the proposition that rules of construction and interpretation that are applicable when considering statutes are equally applicable in interpreting constitutional provisions (94 Cal. App. 3d 974, 979) .

[b] Charter Provisions

Castaneda v. Holcomb (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 939, 170 Cal. Rptr. 875 , involved an action for a declaratory judgment to construe a provision of the charter of the City of San Bernardino. In affirming the trial court's judgment, the court of appeal held that the rules of statutory interpretation are to be applied to charters and the court proceeded to apply such rules in reaching its decision (114 Cal. App. 3d 939, 942, 945-946) .

[c] Ordinances

In County of Madera County v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 665, 114 Cal. Rptr. 283 , the court of appeal refused to issue a writ of mandate to compel the superior court to declare that an ordinance enacted by petitioner was valid. The court began its reasoning by stating several rules of statutory construction and citing Welshans v. City of Santa Barbara (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 304, 308, 23 Cal. Rptr. 108 , to note that the rules applying to the construction of statutes apply equally to ordinances (8 Cal. App. 4th 661, 668) .

[d] Administrative Regulations

In re Richards (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 93, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797 , was an appeal from a trial court's granting of a writ of habeas corpus, ordering new calculations regarding a prisoner's sentence. At issue on appeal was the construction of 15 Cal. Code Reg. § 3375.3, which relates to certain adjustments made to the classification of a prisoner based on the prisoner's behavior during prior periods of incarceration. The court quoted from California Drive-in Restaurant Ass'n v. Clark (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 287, 292, 140 P.2d 657 , stating that "[g]enerally, the same rules of construction and interpretation which apply to statutes govern the construction and interpretation of rules and regulations of administrative agencies" (16 Cal. App. 4th 93, 97-98) . The court went on to apply rules of statutory construction in interpreting the administrative regulation.

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Constitutional Provisions

In In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 873, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744 , the Supreme Court determined whether Cal. Const., art. I, § 28(d) (Truth-in-Evidence provision), in ensuring that all relevant evidence be admitted, abrogates the court's power to adopt exclusionary rules that are not authorized by statute or mandated by the constitution, if those rules afford greater protection to a criminal defendant than the U.S. Const., amend. IV affords (37 Cal. 3d 873, 881-888) . The Court stated that, in construing constitutional and statutory provisions, whether enacted by the Legislature or by initiative, the intent of the enacting body is the paramount consideration (37 Cal. 3d 873, 889) . The Court proceeded to hold that the vicarious exclusionary rule is not compelled by U.S. Const., amend. IV, and further, that the intent of Cal. Const., art. I, § 28(d) was to disallow the rule (37 Cal. 3d 873, 890) .

In ABS Institute v. City of Lancaster (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 285, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224 , the court of appeal affirmed a trial court's ruling that, in reviewing a city's adopted findings in support of an ordinance that deviated from the state's building code, the trial court was not required to exercise its independent judgment in reviewing the evidence. The fact that the Health and Safety Code required findings to support such an ordinance does not transform a legislative act into an adjudicatory process. A legislative act generally predetermines what the rules shall be for regulation of future cases falling under its provisions, while an adjudicatory act applieslaw to determine specific rights based on specific facts ascertained from evidence produced at a hearing. The court concluded that the adoption of an ordinance is a legislative act (24 Cal. App. 4th 285, 295) .

In State Bd. of Equalization v. Board of Supervisors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 813, 164 Cal. Rptr. 739 , the court of appeal, in determining whether or not a constitutional amendment enacted by referendum applied retroactively, stated that the rules of statutory construction apply to the interpretation of such constitutional amendments (105 Cal. App. 3d 813, 823) . The court proceeded to apply such rules in holding that the amendment did apply retroactively (105 Cal. App. 3d 813, 823-825) .

[b] Ordinances

In City of Berkeley v. Cukierman (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 18 Cal. Rptr. 478 the court of appeal applied several general rules of statutory construction in construing an ordinance enacted by the City of Berkeley (14 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1338-1341) .

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART II. FORMS
A. GENERAL RULES

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.23

§ 217.23 Supporting Contention That Constitutional Construction of Statute Preferred

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief. It should be combined with the general points and authorities set out in § 217.20.]

THE COURT SHOULD CONSTRUE _____ [specify statute] SO AS TO PRESERVE ITS CONSTITUTIONALITY AND RESOLVE ALL DOUBTS IN FAVOR OF ITS VALIDITY.

A. Constitutional Construction Preferred to Avoid Constitutional Issue in Contrary Construction. Legislation should be construed, if reasonably possible, to preserve its constitutionality and thus avoid the constitutional issue inherent in a contrary construction (Department of Corrections v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 197, 207, 152 Cal. Rptr. 345, 589 P.2d 853).

[Optional] B. Construction to Preserve Statute's Constitutionality. If feasible within bounds set by their words and purpose, statutes should be construed to preserve their constitutionality (Conservatorship of Hofferber (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 161, 175, 167 Cal. Rptr. 854, 616 P.2d 836 ; Rowe v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1711, 1722, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625). Legislation is presumptively constitutional, and all doubts are to be resolved in favor of its validity. It is axiomatic that legislation must be sustained whenever it is susceptible of a reasonable interpretation consistent with controlling constitutional provisions (Kizziah v. Department of Transportation (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 11, 18, 175 Cal. Rptr. 112).

[Optional] C. Construe to Give Specificity to Vague Terms. The judiciary bears an obligation to construe enactments to give specific content to terms that might otherwise be unconstitutionally vague. Thus, a statute will not be held void for uncertainty if any reasonable and practical construction can be given its language. If by fair and reasonable interpretation the court can construe a statute to sustain its validity, it must adopt that interpretation, even if departure from prior precedent that fastened an unconstitutionally broad interpretation on the statute would result (Pryor v. Municipal Court (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 238, 253-254, 158 Cal. Rptr. 330, 599 P.2d 636).

[Set forth additional points and authorities relating to other rules of statutory interpretation that aid in ascertaining legislative intent behind statute and support interpretation desired (see §§ 217.21, 217.22, 217.24, 217.40 -217.46, 217.60 -217.63, 217.80 -217.86, 217.88).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

These points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a statute should be construed in a particular manner. They may also be combined with points and authorities in support of a party's contention that a statute is constitutional. The form sets out the rule of statutory interpretation that statutes should be construed to preserve their constitutionality if feasible within the bounds set by their words and purpose. Such an argument might be made in any type of action or proceeding in which a question arises concerning how a statute should be construed, and in which the constitutionality of a statute is at issue. These points and authorities should be combined with the general points and authorities set forth in § 217.20, which relate to the construction of statutes to ascertain and effectuate the legislative intent.

These points and authorities may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities relating to the procedural context in which the issue of statutory interpretation arises. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Thus, counsel should set forth an argument, applying rules of statutory construction,that demonstrates that the statute can be construed in a constitutional manner, and counsel should present an argument that a contrary interpretation would render the statute unconstitutional.

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 217.26 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Constitutional Construction Preferred to Avoid Constitutional Issue in Contrary Construction

Petitioner department in Department of Corrections v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 197, 152 Cal. Rptr. 345, 589 P.2d 853 , sought review of respondent board's decision awarding death benefits to respondent daughter of decedent, who had been employed by petitioner. Decedent's widow had elected to receive a special death benefit under Gov. Code §§ 21363 and 21364 (repealed in 1995; now see Gov. Code §§ 21537, 21541), part of the Public Employees' Retirement System. Respondent board had awarded a death benefit to decedent's daughter of a prior marriage pursuant to Lab. Code § 4701, despite the provisions of Lab. Code § 4707, which, prior to its amendment in 1989, precluded an award of workers' compensation benefits when a special death benefit was to be paid to the decedent's widow or children under age 18. Respondent board interpreted Lab. Code § 4707 as allowing an award to the daughter because she had not received any benefit from the Public Employees' Retirement System. Petitioner petitioned for review on the ground that Lab. Code § 4707 precluded respondent board from awarding any benefit to the daughter.

The Supreme Court held that respondent had interpreted Lab. Code § 4707 incorrectly, and that that section did preclude an award to the child of a former marriage when the surviving spouse received a special death benefit under Gov. Code §§ 21363 and 21364. The Court held, however, that an award might be authorized under Lab. Code § 4704, which allows for the award of death benefits to dependents not otherwise entitled to them on a showing of good cause (

23 Cal. 3d 197, 204-205) . Interpretation of Lab. Code §§ 4707 and 4704 to deny death benefits to the daughter because her parent was a Public Employees' Retirement System safety employee when such benefits were available to all other surviving dependent children would raise a serious constitutional question of denial of equal protection of the law. Citing Kash Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 294, 305, 138 Cal. Rptr. 53, 562 P.2d 1302 , and Palmero v. Stockton Theatres, Inc. (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 53, 60, 195 P.2d 1 , the Court concluded that by interpreting Lab. Code § 4704 to authorize an award to the daughter, it adhered to the maxim that legislation should be construed, if reasonably possible, to preserve its constitutionality and thus avoid the constitutional issue inherent in a contrary construction (23 Cal. 3d 197, 207) .

[b] Construction to Preserve Statute's Constitutionality

Conservatee in Conservatorship of Hofferber (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 161, 167 Cal. Rptr. 854, 616 P.2d 836 , was charged with murder after a preliminary hearing. He was found incompetent to stand trial and was committed to a state hospital. In periodic reviews he was repeatedly found to be incompetent. Civil conservatorship proceedings were initiated in which conservatee was found to be "gravely disabled," and a conservator was appointed and authorized to place conservatee in a state hospital or other mental health facility. Conservatee appealed from the judgment and order establishing the conservatorship.

On appeal, conservatee argued in part that he could not be committed for reasons and under procedures different from those applicable to other mentally disordered persons on the basis of his being charged with a violent felony and being found mentally incompetent to stand trial. Although reversing, the Supreme Court held that the state could confine incompetent criminal defendants, when a magistrate or grand jury has found probable cause to believe that they have committed a violent felony, on the ground that they remain violently dangerous (28 Cal. 3d 161, 174) . Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(2), however, appeared to permit indefinite maintenance of a conservatorship solely because the incompetence is continuing and the violent felony charges have not been dismissed. Citing Pryor v. Municipal Court (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 238, 253-254, 158 Cal. Rptr. 330, 599 P.2d 636 , and In re M. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 727, 736-737, 122 Cal. Rptr. 574, 537 P.2d 406 , for the statement that, if feasible within bounds set by their words and purpose, statutes should be construed to preserve their constitutionality, the Court proceeded to construe Welf. & Inst. Code § 5008(h)(2) as including a "dangerousness" requirement so that every judgment creating or renewing a conservatorship for an incompetent criminal defendant would have to reflect written findings that, by reason of mental disease, defect, or disorder, the person represents a substantial danger of physical harm to others. The Court upheld the statute as so construed (28 Cal. 3d 161, 175-177) .

Rowe v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1711, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 625 , was an action against a religious organization. The trial court denied plaintiffs leave to amend their complaint to allege claims for punitive damages, basing its denial on Code Civ. Proc. § 425.14. That statute requires leave of court before the pleading of a claim for punitive damages against a religious organization, and provides that a court may grant suchleave on a finding "that the plaintiff has established evidence which substantiates that plaintiff will meet the clear and convincing standard of proof." One of the plaintiffs' arguments on their petition for writ of mandate to the court of appeal was that Code Civ. Proc. § 425.14 was unconstitutional because it deprived them of their constitutionally protected right to trial by jury. The court of appeal, in construing the statute, followed the rule that "if feasible within bounds set by their words and purposes, statutes should be construed to preserve their constitutionality" (15 Cal. App. 4th 1711, 1722) . The court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 425.14 requires "only that a plaintiff demonstrate the existence of sufficient evidence to establish a prima facie case for punitive damages, having in mind the higher clear and convincing standard of proof" (15 Cal. App. 4th 1711, 1723) .

Kizziah v. Department of Transportation (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 11, 175 Cal. Rptr. 112 , involved an action for declaratory and injunctive relief challenging the constitutionality of the allocation of funds derived from the lease of land acquired for future highway purposes by the Department of Transportation to local government agencies under Sts. & Hy. Code §§ 104.10 and 104.13. Defendants appealed from a judgment invalidating the sections and enjoining their further implementation.

In reversing, the court of appeal prefaced its discussion of the case by stating that a constitutional attack on the validity of legislative enactments invokes the basic principles of constitutional construction that legislation is presumptively constitutional and that all doubts are to be resolved in favor of its validity, citing United States Supreme Court and California precedents. The court also stated that it is axiomatic that the challenged legislation must be sustained whenever it is susceptible of a reasonable interpretation consistent with controlling constitutional provisions (121 Cal. App. 3d 11, 18) . The court found that Sts. & Hy. Code § 104.10 was completely consistent with Cal. Const., art. XIX, § 3, which restricts the use of revenues from state taxes on motor vehicle fuels and from state taxes and fees on vehicles or their use (121 Cal. App. 3d 11, 19-21) . Sts. & Hy. Code § 104.13, which allows a lessee of land acquired for future highway use to apply for a credit against rental payments of the amount of the possessory interest tax, was also challenged as constituting an unconstitutional gift of public funds under Cal. Const., art. XVI, § 6. The court stated that whether or not there was consideration adequate to satisfy the Constitution either in the form of a valid public purpose served or through the rental agreement would ordinarily present a question of fact for the trial court. Since the challenged statute was clothed with a presumption of constitutional validity, the court could not say that the legislation on its face failed to serve a valid public purpose. Thus, the court held that, because there was not an adequate record of those pivotal factual findings, they were unable to determine whether or not in fact the requisite consideration was lacking, so the presumption of facial validity was not rebutted and had to stand (121 Cal. App. 3d 11, 23-24) .

[c] Construe to Give Specificity to Vague Terms

Pryor v. Municipal Court (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 238, 158 Cal. Rptr. 330, 599 P.2d 636 , involved a petition for a writ of prohibition to bar respondent court from retrying petitioner on a charge of violating Penal Code § 647(a), which provides that a person "[w]ho solicits anyone to engage in or who engages in lewd or dissolute conduct in any public place ..." is guilty of disorderly conduct. Petitioner argued that the statute was unconstitutionally vague. The Supreme Court determined that neither the facial language of the statute nor the statute as construed by prior California decisions was sufficiently certain to satisfy constitutional due process requirements, but stated that the case was not disposed of by that conclusion. The judiciary bears an obligation to construe enactments to give specific content to terms that might otherwise be unconstitutionally vague. A statute will not be held void for uncertainty if any reasonable and practical construction can be given its language. Thus, the Court stated that if by fair and reasonable interpretation they could construe Penal Code § 647(a) to sustain its validity, they had to adopt that interpretation, even if that course required them to depart from prior precedent that fastened an unconstitutionally broad interpretation on the statute (25 Cal. 3d 238, 253-254) . The Court proceeded to construe the statute very narrowly, holding that "lewd" and "dissolute" were synonymous, and referred to conduct involving the touching of the genitals, buttocks, or female breasts for the purpose of sexual arousal, gratification, annoyance, or offense when the actor knows or should know of the presence of persons who might be offended by his or her conduct. Further, the solicitation prohibited by the statute was restricted to solicitation of conduct to be performed in a public place (25 Cal. 3d 238, 254-257) . Since Penal Code § 647(a) was constitutional as construed, the Court denied relief to petitioner (25 Cal. 3d 238, 258) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Constitutional Construction Preferred to Avoid Constitutional Issue in Contrary Construction

People v. Scott (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 5 , 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 179 concerned the reasonableness of a municipal ordinance prohibiting camping in city parks. The court of appeal discussed the constitutional requirements of due process. It explained that in order to withstand a facial vagueness challenge under the due process clause, a statute must satisfy two basic requirements: (1) a statute must be sufficiently definite to provide adequate notice of the conduct proscribed, and (2) a statute must provide sufficiently definite guidelines for the police in order to prevent arbitraryand discriminatory enforcement. Reasonable certainty is all that is required. A statute will not be held void for vagueness if any reasonable and practical construction can be given its language or if its terms may be made reasonably certain by reference to other definable sources. All that is required is that the language conveys sufficiently definite warning as to the proscribed conduct when measured by common understanding and practices.

The court further explained that many, probably most, statutes are ambiguous in some respect, and instances invariably arise under which the application of statutory language may be unclear. So long as a statute does not threaten to infringe on the exercise of the United States Constitution, First Amendment, or other constitutional rights, ambiguities, even if numerous, do not justify the invalidation of a statute on its face. In order to succeed on a facial vagueness challenge to a legislative measure that does not threaten constitutionally protected conduct, a party must do more than identify some instances in which the application of the statute may be uncertain or ambiguous; the party must demonstrate that the law is impermissibly vague in all of its applications (20 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 5, 11) .

The court of appeal in Conservatorship of Davis (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 313, 177 Cal. Rptr. 369 , affirmed a judgment dismissing a petition to establish a conservatorship under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act (Welf. & Inst. Code § 5000 et seq.) on the ground that respondent was gravely disabled. The issue on appeal related to the elements that had to be proved to the trier of fact under Welf. & Inst. Code § 5350(d) (providing that a proposed conservatee has the right to a court or jury trial on the issue of whether or not he or she is "gravely disabled"). The court noted that to accept petitioner's contention that the sole issue to be tried by the jury was whether or not a person was "gravely disabled" in the narrow sense of being able to provide food, shelter, or clothing unaided by others, would seriously infringe on her due process rights. In construing the section to provide for a right to a jury trial on all essential questions involved in a trial on the question of imposing a conservatorship, and not merely on the narrow issue of whether or not he or she is "gravely disabled," the court relied on the cornerstone of statutory construction that requires courts to interpret statutes so as to preserve their constitutionality whenever possible (124 Cal. App. 3d 313, 324) .

In Hooper v. Deukmejian (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 987, 176 Cal. Rptr. 569 , the court of appeal reversed a judgment dismissing plaintiffs' complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief relating to the destruction of records of certain marijuana-related offenses under Health & Safety Code § 11361.5, and to the prohibition on public agencies and employers from inquiring about or considering such convictions under Health & Safety Code § 11361.7 and Lab. Code § 432.8. In sustaining plaintiffs' contention that the statutes extended relief to persons who had been charged with possession of marijuana, but who had entered a plea of guilty to a violation of former Health & Safety Code § 11557 (now Health & Safety Code § 11366; maintaining a place for the sale, giving away, or use of narcotics) when that violation was stipulated to be a lesser included offense to the charge of possession of marijuana, the court found that plaintiffs' interpretation of the statute was supported by the rule that legislation should be construed to preserve its constitutionality if reasonably possible and thus avoid the constitutional issue inherent in a contrary construction (122 Cal. App. 3d 987, 1003, 1006) . Thus, even though the court also found that the principal rule of statutory construction, admonishing against judicial construction of clear and unambiguous statutes, supported defendants' position that convictions of offenses of former Health & Safety Code § 11557 were not subject to the remedial provisions at issue, it sustained plaintiffs' interpretation because it found that defendants' interpretation would be unconstitutional (122 Cal. App. 3d 987, 1006-1015) .

[b] Construction to Preserve Statute's Constitutionality

Jutzi v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 637, 242 Cal. Rptr. 74 , was an action against a county hospital for malpractice in rendering emergency medical services, in which the court of appeal, in affirming judgment for defendant, construed Health & Safety Code § 1799.110(c). The court stated that, whenever possible, a statute will be construed in harmony with the constitution (196 Cal. App. 3d 637, 650) .

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART II. FORMS
A. GENERAL RULES

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.24

§ 217.24 Supporting Contention That Court Not to Insert Omitted Terms Into or to Omit Terms From Statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1858]

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief. It may be combined with the general points and authorities set out in §§ 217.20 or 217.25.].

IN CONSTRUING _____ [specify statute], THE COURT SHOULD NOT INSERT TERMS OMITTED BY THE LEGISLATURE, NOR OMIT TERMS INSERTED BY THE LEGISLATURE.

A. Courts Not to Insert Omitted Terms or to Omit Inserted Terms. In the construction of a statute, the office of the judge is simply to ascertain and declare what is in terms or in substance contained therein, not to insert what has been omitted, or to omit what has been inserted (Code Civ. Proc. § 1858).

[Optional] B. Words Not to Be Altered to Accomplish Purpose Not Apparent on Statute's Face or From Its History. If the words of a statute are clear, the court should not add to or alter them to accomplish a purpose that does not appear on the face of the statute or from its legislative history (California Teachers Assn. v. Los Angeles Community College Dist. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 947, 954, 177 Cal. Rptr. 168).

[Optional] C. Courts May Not Insert Qualifying Provisions. In construing a statute, courts may not insert qualifying provisions not already included and may not rewrite the statute to conform to or accomplish a purpose or assumed intention that does not appear on the statute's face, or from its language or legislative history (In re Hoddinott (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 992, 1002, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706, 911 P.2d 1381).

[Set forth additional points and authorities relating to other rules of statutory interpretation that support interpretation desired (see §§ 217.21 -217.23, 217.40 -217.46, 217.60 -217.63, 217.80 -217.86, 217.88).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

This form of points and authorities may be submitted in support of a party's contention that a statute should be construed in a particular manner. The form sets out the rule of statutory interpretation that courts should not insert terms omitted or omit terms inserted by the Legislature. Such an argument might be made in any type of action or proceeding in which a question arises concerning how a statute should be construed. These points and authorities may be combined with the general points and authorities set forth in § 217.25, which relate to the impropriety of construing statutes that are not ambiguous.

These points and authorities may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities relating to the procedural context in which the issue of statutory interpretation arises. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should also insert argument in the form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. For example, counsel might show that the statute to be construed did not envision a situation such as that presented by the facts of the case, and therefore made no provision for it, so that the court should leave the situation for the Legislature to address rather than try to fill in the gaps in the law by attempting to make the statute conform to a presumed intent not expressed in the statutory language [see Cemetery Bd. v. Telophase Society of America (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 847, 858, 151 Cal. Rptr. 248] .

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in § 217.21 may be used to oppose the contention supported by these points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] Words Not to Be Altered to Accomplish Purpose Not Apparent on Statute's Face or From Its History

In California Teachers Assn. v. Los Angeles Community College Dist. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 947, 177 Cal. Rptr. 168 , the superior court granted a writ of mandate to compel defendant to reclassify certain substitute teachers, and defendant appealed.

The court of appeal affirmed. The court recognized that, if possible, it was obligated to reconcile the two statutes that related to reclassification of substitute teachers. Although the court could properly rely on extrinsic aids to construe the statutes, it should first turn to the words of the statute to determine the intent of the Legislature. Noting that one of the statutes began with the words "Except as provided [in the other statute]" and that no legislative history pointed to an intent contrary to that explicit statutory language, the court found that the Legislature could not have used clearer language to denote its intent. The court applied the rule that if the words of the statute are clear, the court should not add to or alter them to accomplish a purpose that does not appear on the face of the statute or from its legislative history. The court also applied the rule that courts cannot disregard the provisions of statutes that may be reconciled (123 Cal. App. 3d 947, 954) .

[b] Courts May Not Assert Qualifying Provisions

In re Hoddinott (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 992, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706, 911 P.2d 1381 , involved an interpretation of Penal Code § 1203.2a, setting forth sentencing procedures for people who, while on probation for one offense, are committed to prison for a second offense. Petitioner Robert Hoddinott was on probation for one offense in Marin County, when he was sentenced to prison for another offense committed in San Francisco. Subsequently, pursuant to Penal Code § 1203.2a, Hoddinott notified his Marin County probation officer in writing of his commitment to prison for the San Francisco offense. However, she failed to notify the superior court within 30 days of receipt of the written notice of his incarceration. Subsequently,the Marin County Superior Court revoked Hoddinott's probation and imposed a two-year prison sentence. Hoddinott filed a writ of habeas corpus, asserting that under the plain language of Penal Code § 1203.2a, the Marin County Superior Court was deprived of jurisdiction to impose the two-year prison sentence because of the probation officer's failure to notify the court of the San Francisco incarceration. The superior court denied the petition, relying on People v. Willett (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603 . However, the court of appeal agreed with Hoddinott and vacated his sentence. The California Supreme Court granted review to resolve conflicting appellate court interpretations of Penal Code § 1203.2a and its language.

The language of the statute provided that a probation officer, after receiving written notice of a probationer's incarceration in another matter, must notify the court which granted probation of the incarceration within 30 days or the court loses jurisdiction in the matter. However, in People v. Willett (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603 , the court held that the 30-day period cannot begin to run unless and until the defendant has formally requested revocation of his probation and that sentencing be imposed instead. The Willett court held that it was contrary to legislative intent for the court to lose jurisdiction when notice of incarceration has been provided to a probation officer, but the defendant has not requested sentencing. However, the California Supreme Court held that in seeking to effectuate its interpretation of legislative intent, the Willett court had rendered portions of the statutory language without effect. The California Supreme Court found that there was no requirement that a defendant formally request imposition of sentencing, in addition to notifying the probation officer of incarceration, before the 30-day period commenced. Accordingly, the court stated that by its interpretation, the Willett court had rewritten the express language of the statute, citing the rule that in construing a statute, courts may not insert qualifying provisions not already included and may not rewrite the statute to conform to or accomplish a purpose or assumed intention that does not appear on the statute's face, or from its language or legislative history (12 Cal. 4th 992, 1002) .

[4] Additional Authorities

[a] Courts Not to Insert Omitted Terms or to Omit Inserted Terms

Suman v. BMW of North America, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133 , concerned an action by a purchaser against a car manufacturer and dealer for failure to replace the car or refund the purchase price after numerous attempts to repair it. The court of appeal found that the trial court committed reversible error concerning its instructions regarding plaintiff's entitlement to penalties under Civil Code § 1790 et seq. The court stated that it was a well-recognized principle of statutory construction that when the Legislature has carefully employed a term in one place and excluded it in another, it should not be implied where it is excluded (23 Cal. App. 4th 1, 11) .

In Burnsed v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 213, 234 Cal. Rptr. 316 , which involved construction of the term "any other source" as used in former Gov. Code § 13960(d), part of the Victims of Violent Crime Act (now see Gov. Code § 13950 et seq.), the court of appeal said that a court may not insert into a statute qualifying provisions not intended by the Legislature and may not rewrite a statute to conform to an assumed legislative intent not apparent in the statute (Burnsed v. State Bd. of Control (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 213, 217, 234 Cal. Rptr. 316).

[b] Words Not to Be Altered to Accomplish Purpose Not Apparent on Statute's Face or From Its History

City of Sacramento v. Public Employees' Retirement System (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 786, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545 , concerned an action by a city against the Public Employees' Retirement System. The trial court determined that an amendment to the relevant statute, former Gov. Code § 20021 (now see Gov. Code § 20433), was binding on the city without its election. The court of appeal modified the judgment and affirmed it as so modified. The court explained that, in construing the terms of a statute, courts resort to the legislative history of the measure only if its terms are ambiguous. An ambiguity arises only if there is more than one construction in issue that is semantically permissible, that is, more than one usage that makes sense of the statutory language given the context and applicable rules of usage (City of Sacramento v. Public Employees' Retirement System (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 786, 795, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545).

In Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690 , a worker sought state disability insurance benefits. At the time of her disability she was employed by a private employer, whereas during her base disability period she was employed by the University of California. In reversing the trial court's grant of a petition for writ of mandate ordering the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board to award state disability insurance benefits to the worker, the court of appeal, although noting that while employed by the university the worker was covered under the university's nonindustrial disability insurance plan under which no benefits could be paid for any day after separation from service, held that to qualify for state disability insurance the base period wages for employment (Lab. Code § 2652) had to be wages that were subject to the state disability insurance tax, and, because they were not, the worker was not entitled to benefits (Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 350-354, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690). The court recognized that the result was contrary to the legislativepurpose of disability insurance law set forth in Lab. Code § 2601, which is to mitigate the evils and burdens that fall on the unemployed and disabled, but that this was a situation to be remedied by the Legislature (Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 354-355, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690). The court said that, although the result in the case may appear to be inequitable, it could not, under the guise of liberal construction, enlarge the clear provisions of the statute (Lab. Code § 2652) and that liberality of interpretation cannot accomplish an end outside the terms of the statute, however desirable such a result might be (Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 351, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690). The court concluded that it could not, under the guise of statutory construction, rewrite the law to provide benefits for the worker where none was authorized (Simpson v. Unemployment Ins. Comp. Appeals Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 342, 354, 231 Cal. Rptr. 690).

Public Utilities Com. v. Energy Resources Conservation & Dev. Com. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 437, 197 Cal. Rptr. 866 , involved a jurisdictional dispute involving a private utility company, the Public Utilities Commission, and the Energy Resources Conservation and Development Commission. The dispute centered on interpretation of former Pub. Res. Code § 25107, governing jurisdiction over electric transmission lines. The Energy Commission appealed the issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate ordering it to cease its jurisdiction over certain proposed transmission lines. Affirming the judgment, the court of appeal discussed statutory construction rules. It stated that in ascertaining the intent of the Legislature, the court must first look to the words of the statute. A court should not add to or alter the words of the statute to accomplish a purpose that does not appear on the face of the statute or from its legislative history if the words of the statute are clear, nor should a court seek hidden meanings not suggested by the statute or by available extrinsic aids used in interpretation (Public Utilities Com. v. Energy Resources Conservation & Dev. Com. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 437, 444, 197 Cal. Rptr. 866).

LexisNexis®

California Points & Authorities

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 21 Chapters 210-219 SCHOOLS---to---SUBPOENA
CHAPTER 217 STATUTORY INTERPRETATION
PART II. FORMS
A. GENERAL RULES

21-217 California Points & Authorities § 217.25

§ 217.25 Opposing Contention That Statute Should Be Construed to Ascertain and Effectuate Legislative Intent--Clear Statute Not to Be Construed

[1] FORM

[The following may be included in a memorandum of points and authorities, or in a trial or appellate brief.]

THE COURT SHOULD NOT CONSTRUE _____ [specify statute], BUT SHOULD GIVE EFFECT TO IT ACCORDING TO THE USUAL MEANING OF THE LANGUAGE USED IN FRAMING IT BECAUSE ITS LANGUAGE IS CLEAR AND UNAMBIGUOUS.

A. No Construction of Clear Statute. When statutory language is clear and unambiguous, there is no need for construction, and courts should not indulge in it (DaFonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 601, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P.2d 140). The meaning of clear and unambiguous language in a statute should generally be followed (Rhiner v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1213, 1226, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 129, 848 P.2d 244). When clear and unambiguous statutory language conflicts with a clear, specific constitutional provision, the court has no alternative but to find the statute unconstitutional (County of Riverside v. Superior Court (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 278, 285-295, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713, 66 P.3d 718).

B. Give Statute Effect According to Usual Meaning of Its Language. Courts are bound to give effect to statutes according to the usual, ordinary import of the language employed in framing them (Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 268, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P.2d 704 ; People v. Belleci (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 879, 884, 157 Cal. Rptr. 503, 598 P.2d 473).

[Optional] C. Plain Language of Statute Adhered to When Legislative History Creates Conflicting Inferences. When the legislative history gives rise to conflicting inferences, it does not justify departing from the plain language of the statute (People v. Boyd (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 285, 295, 155 Cal. Rptr. 367, 594 P.2d 484).

[Optional] D. Burden to Show That Statute Should Not Be Applied According to Natural Import of Language.

The party contending that a provision of an act must not be applied according to the natural or customary purport of its language must show either that some other section of the act expands or restricts its meaning, that the provision itself is repugnant to the general purview of the act, or that the act considered in pari materia with other acts, or with the legislative history of the subject matter, imports a different meaning (Great Lakes Properties, Inc. v. City of El Segundo (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 152, 155-156, 137 Cal. Rptr. 154, 561 P.2d 244).

[Set forth additional points and authorities relating to other rules of statutory interpretation which support contention that the statute is clear and that its language should be given usual meaning (see §§ 217.24, 217.26, 217.40, and 217.41).]

[2] Comments

[a] Use of Form

The foregoing points and authorities may be submitted in opposition to a party's contention that a statute should be construed in a particular manner. The form sets out the rule of statutory interpretation that the language of the statute is clear and should not be construed. Such an argument might be made in any type of action or proceeding in which a question arises concerning how a statute should be construed.

The foregoing points and authorities may be combined with a memorandum of points and authorities relating to the procedural context in which the issue of statutory interpretation arises. The points and authorities set forth in this form may also be adapted for use in a trial or appellate brief.

Counsel should also insert argument in the foregoing form, showing the relationship between the facts of the case and the points of law stated. Counsel may wish to include discussion demonstrating that application of the statutory language according to its plain meaning will produce a reasonable result consistent with the purposes of the statute because courts may refuse to follow the plain meaning of a statute if it would frustrate the manifest purposes of the legislation as a whole or lead to absurd results [see People v. Belleci (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 879, 884, 157 Cal. Rptr. 503, 598 P.2d 473 ; see also § 217.21]. Although it has been suggested that this rule is only applied as part of the interpretive process when the language being considered is unclear [Cadiz v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376-377, 155 Cal. Rptr. 213] , it has also been held that ambiguity is not a prerequisite to judicial interpretation in accordance with the rule of following a manifest purpose or avoiding an absurd result [Henreid v. Superior Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 552, 558, 130 Cal. Rptr. 892] .

[b] Opposing Points and Authorities

In an appropriate case, the points and authorities set out in §§ 217.20 and 217.21 may be used to oppose the contention supported by the foregoing points and authorities.

[3] Discussion of Authorities

[a] No Construction of Clear Statute

In DaFonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P.2d 140 , the plaintiff was injured while working on a mechanical grape harvester. After receiving workers' compensation benefits, he brought suit against the manufacturer of the harvester for negligence and product defect. In a special verdict, the jury allocated fault among the parties: 15 percent to the plaintiff, 45 percent to the employer, and 40 percent to the manufacturer. Among the adjustments the trial court made in determining the judgment, it reduced the plaintiff's noneconomic damages by $135,000, representing the employer's 45 percent comparative fault. This reduction was based on Civ. Code § 1431.2, which provides that a plaintiff's noneconomic damages are several only, not joint, and that each defendant is responsible only for the percentage of noneconomic damages that corresponds to that defendant's proportionate share of fault. Both the plaintiff and the manufacturer appealed (2 Cal. 4th 593, 596-597) . The court of appeal, in modifying the judgment, held that Civ. Code § 1431.2 did not apply to the case (2 Cal. 4th 593, 597) . The defendant petitioned for review.

The Supreme Court reversed the court of appeal, reasoning that Civ. Code § 1431.2 contains no ambiguity that would permit resort to the extrinsic constructional aids that the court of appeal had relied on (2 Cal. 4th 593, 602) . The section plainly and clearly limited the joint liability of every defendant to economic damages and it shielded every defendant from any share of noneconomic damages beyond that attributable to his or her own comparative fault (2 Cal. 4th 593, 601-602) .

Rhiner v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1213, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 129, 848 P.2d 244 , was a workers' compensation case in which the issue involved the construction of Lab. Code § 5814. That statute provides for penalties to be assessed against employers who unreasonably delay or refuse to pay workers' compensation benefits. The question was whether the amount of the penalty to be assessed should be calculated based on the entire amount awarded to the employee, or on the amount awarded to the employee with a credit for the amount of timely payments made by the employer before the formal award. The Workers' Compensation Appeals Board had computed the penalty after crediting the employer for amounts paid before the formal award. The court of appeal reversed the Workers Compensation Appeals Board, and the Supreme Court affirmed the court of appeal, basing its holding primarily on the language of Lab. Code § 5814, which it found to be clear and unambiguous. The Supreme Court stated that when "the language of a statute is clear and unambiguous, its meaning should generally be followed" (4 Cal. 4th 1213, 1226) . Operative June 1, 2004, Lab. Code § 5814 was revised to provide that the penalty is calculated on "the amount of the payment unreasonably delayed or refused" (Lab. Code § 5814(a), (i), as added by Stats. 2004, ch. 34, § 43).

In County of Riverside v. Superior Court (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 278, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713, 66 P.3d 718 , the Supreme Court considered the constitutionality of statutes requiring counties and other local agencies to submit, under certain circumstances, to binding arbitration of economic issues arising during negotiations with unions representing firefighters orlaw enforcement officers. The statutes authorized a union representing public safety employees (firefighters or law enforcement officers) to declare an impasse in labor negotiations and require a local agency to submit unresolved economic issues to binding arbitration. Each party chooses an arbitrator, and those two arbitrators choose a third arbitrator. The panel then chooses, without alteration, between each side's last best offer, based on a designated list of factors (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1299 et seq.).

In this case, the Supreme Court considered whether the statutes violated Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 1(b) and 11 . Section 1(b) states that a county's "governing body shall provide for the ... compensation ... of employees." Section 11 forbids the Legislature to "delegate to a private person or body power to ... interfere with county or municipal corporation ... money ... or perform municipal functions."

The Supreme Court concluded that the statutes violated both constitutional provisions by depriving counties of the authority to provide for the compensation of their employees and by delegating to a private body the power to interfere with county financial affairs and thus perform a municipal function (30 Cal. 4th 278, 285-295) . The Court found no room to construe the statutes in a way that would eliminate the conflict with the constitutional provisions. For example, the Court rejected an argument that would have construed the statutes as making the arbitrators a public body so as to avoid a violation of Section 11's prohibition against delegating municipal powers to private persons. The statutes contained no requirement that the arbitrators be public officials; on the contrary, the statutory language appeared to contemplate that the arbitrators would be private persons. Thus, there was no basis to conclude that by empowering the arbitration panel to render a binding arbitration decision, the statutes made such a panel a public body (30 Cal. 4th 278, 293-295) .

[b] Give Statute Effect According to Usual Meaning of Its Language

The facts and procedural background of Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal.

3d 245, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P.2d 704 , are discussed in § 217.20[3][a]. In Walnut Creek, the Supreme Court cited Webster's New International Dictionary and Black's Law Dictionary in construing the term "unlawful practice" as it appears in the California Fair Employment and Housing Act. The Court concluded that the plain meaning of the term "practice" meant a course of conduct or repeated acts, so that defendants were liable for only one punitive damage award when guilty of multiple acts of discrimination against one plaintiff (54 Cal. 3d 245, 268-270) .

Defendant in People v. Belleci (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 879, 157 Cal. Rptr. 503, 598 P.2d 473 , was charged with two counts of possessing restricted drugs for sale. Defendant's motion to suppress the evidence relating to one count was successful, and the prosecution did not seek review of that ruling. The evidence was considered, however, in the presentence report relating to the other count, to which defendant pleaded guilty. The trial court denied defendant's motion to strike the evidence from the presentence report and committed defendant to the Youth Authority rather than granting him probation, and defendant appealed.

The Supreme Court held that the issue was resolved by Penal Code § 1538.5(d), which provides in part that "If a search or seizure motion [to suppress] is granted ... the property or evidence shall not be admissible against the movant at any trial or other hearing. ..." The Court had no serious doubt that the sentencing phase of a prosecution constitutes a hearing (24 Cal. 3d 879, 883) . Thus, the Court reversed, citing Palos Verdes Faculty Assn. v. Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified Sch. Dist. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 650, 658, 147 Cal. Rptr. 359, 580 P.2d 1155 , for the settled rule that it was required to give effect to statutes according to the usual, ordinary import of the language employed in framing them. The Court noted that it had declined to follow the plain meaning of a statute only when it would inevitably have frustrated the manifest purposes of the legislation as a whole or led to absurd results, and found that neither of those consequences was threatened in the case before it (24 Cal. 3d 879, 884) .

[c] Plain Language of Statute Adhered to When Legislative History Creates Conflicting Inferences

In People v. Boyd (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 285, 155 Cal. Rptr. 367, 594 P.2d 484 , the People appealed from an order setting aside the criminal information that charged defendant with being an ex-felon in possession of a firearm. The information had been dismissed on the ground that it was based solely on incompetent evidence. It had been based on a prior conviction for possession of marijuana which, pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 11361.7(b), could not be used by any public agency to deny, revoke, or condition any license, privilege, or right of the convicted person. The Supreme Court affirmed, finding that the meaning of Health & Safety Code § 11361.7 was plainly written on its face, and stating that when statutory language is thus clear and unambiguous there is no need for construction, and the courts should not indulge in it. The People contended that the plain meaning of the statute should be disregarded because the legislative history demonstrated a contrary intent (24 Cal. 3d 285, 294) . The Court, however, found the legislative history to be subject to two equally rational interpretations as to legislative intent, and rejected the People's contention, holding that when the legislative history gives rise to two conflicting inferences, it does not justify departing from the plain language of the statute (24 Cal. 3d 285, 295) .

[d] Burden to Show That Statute Should Not Be Applied According to Natural Import of Language

