A conveyance to a woman for life, and after her death to be equally divided between the heirs of her body, does not create an estate tail, but a life estate in the woman with remainder to her children. The language indicates a division, and an equal division, and when this is made the operation of the deed is exhausted. This is incompatible with an estate tail. n128 If there was no language to indicate a division of the remainder she would take a fee. n129 Where it has been "ascertained from other language of the instrument that such was the intention of the maker, the phrases 'bodily heirs' and 'heirs of the body' have frequently been held [in Kentucky] as synonymous with the word 'children,' and therefore construed as words of purchase, giving to the first grantee a life estate, with remainder to the children, or creating a joint estate in them as the case may be." n130 In stating that it accords "full authority to the line of cases wherein 'heirs of the body' have been read to mean children, so as to let in children living at the time of the grant as tenants in common, or to take in remainder as the case may be," the Supreme Court of Alabama has also said that "such construction must always find support in other terms or provisions of the deed or will. Unskillfulness in the draftsman disclosing a lack of knowledge of the meaning of legal phrases is to be considered in connection with the language of the entire instrument to ascertain the intent... But such rule is not applied where the instrument furnishes no means of interpretation other than the legal meaning of itsterms." n131

The rule in Shelley's Case applied to fee tails as well as fee simples. n132 Statutes changing the effect of fee tails operate in the same manner as the statute of uses. That is, they do not act as though the fee tail never existed. Instead they permit the fee tail to arise and then change its result. Thus, even where there are statutes dispensing with the necessity of using words of limitation, such statutes are themselves to be read in connection with fee-tail acts and the effect is not to make the words of limitation surplusage but to evidence their operative effect. Thus in a deed or devise to "A and his heirs" the words "and his heirs" have no longer legal significance being unnecessary to create a fee simple. But if the language is to "A and the heirs of his body" these words of limitation create a fee tail upon which the fee-tail statute operates to give a changed legal significance.

An even greater problem arises where the language is such as implies a fee tail. Thus a gift to "A and his issue" will create a fee tail if "issue" means indefinite failure of issue, and the fee-tail statute will in turn operate upon this language. If "issue" means definite failure of issue, then a number of possible consequences may follow: (a) to A and his "issue" may mean Wild's Case, (b) a class gift may arise, (c) A and his children may take as joint tenants or tenants in common, or (d) A may take a life estate with remainder to his children.

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: fee or estate! w/1 tail! w/30 word! w/5 limit! or
fee or estate! w/1 tail! w/15 (heirs w/1 body) or seed or children or issue

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 93. Rudkin v. Rand, 91 A. 198 (Conn. 1914); Butler v. Huestis, 68 Ill. 594 (1873);Dick v. Ricker, 78 N.E.

823 (Ill. 1906); Coogan v. Jones, 115 N.E. 877 (Ill. 1917); Stearns v. Curry, 137 N.E. 471 (Ill. 1922); Lamb v. Medsker, 74 N.E. 1012 (Ind. App. 1905); Howe v. Howe, 145 P. 873 (Kan. 1915); Gould v. Leadbetter, 150 A. 375 (Me. 1930); Millard v. Millard, 180 N.W. 429 (Mich. 1920); Tygard v. Hartwell, 102 S.W. 989 (Mo. 1907); Johnson v. Calvert, 169 S.W. 78 (Mo. 1914); Adams v. Ross, 30 N.J.L. 505 (1860); Doty v. Teller, 23 A. 944 (N.J. 1892); Leathers v. Gray, 7 S.E. 657 (N.C. 1888).

See Restatement, Property, § 59, cmt. d on clause (a).

To create an estate tail at common law there were required to be words of procreation indicating the body out of which the heirs were to issue, or by whom they were to be begotten. Bibo v. Bibo, 74 N.E.2d 808 (Ill. 1947).

(n2)Footnote 94. Rudkin v. Rand, 91 A. 198 (Conn. 1914); Adams v. Ross, 30 N.J.L. 505 (1860);Cullens v. Cullens, 77 S.E. 228 (N.C. 1913); Rose v. Rose, 60 S.E.2d 45 (Va. 1950).

(n3)Footnote 95. Stearns v. Curry, 137 N.E. 471 (Ill. 1922); Wise v. Potomac Nat'l Bank, 65 N.E.2d 767 (Ill. 1946); Millard v. Millard, 180 N.W. 429 (Mich. 1920).

In Kentucky, a deed to the grantee and the "offsprings" of her body has been held to create a fee tail. Massingale v. Parker, 236 S.W. 959 (Ky. 1922).

In South Carolina, "the term 'bodily issue' creates a fee conditional estate in the same manner as the words 'bodily heirs.'" Antley v. Antley, 128 S.E. 31 (S.C. 1925).

"To B and her heirs and over on failure of heirs" construed to mean "heirs of the body" so as to create a fee tail with remainder over. Goodell v. Hibbard, 32 Mich. 47 (1875).

(n4)Footnote 96. Stearns v. Curry, 137 N.E. 471 (Ill. 1922); Bibo v. Bibo, 74 N.E.2d 808 (Ill. 1947); Gardner v. Anderson, 227 P. 743 (Kan. 1923);Millard v. Millard, 180 N.W. 429 (Mich. 1920).

"To X and the children of his body begotten, and their heirs and assigns forever" created a fee tail. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976).

(n5)Footnote 97. Bonnycastle v. Lilly, 156 S.W. 874 (Ky. 1913); Combs v. Combs, 171 S.W.2d 13 (Ky. 1943); Miller v. Miller, 83 N.E.2d 254 (Ohio 1948) (created an estate tail in remainder).

"Heirs of the body" in a devise are words of limitation not of purchase. Buchan v. Buchan, 118 N.W.2d 611 (Iowa 1962).

(n6)Footnote 98. Hollingsworth v. McDonald, 2 H. & J. 197 (Md. 1806); Bundy v. Bundy, 38 N.Y. 410 (1868).

"Words of procreation are not indispensable in establishing an estate tail. If the unmistakable implication limits the heirs to particular bodies, that is sufficient." Hall v. Hankey, 174 F. 139 (1909). See Lehndorf v. Cope, 13 N.E. 505 (Ill. 1887); Atherton v. Roche, 61 N.E. 357 (Ill. 1901).

Devise to a named legatee and her descendants created a fee tail which the statute converted into fee simple. Reilly v. Huff, 335 S.W.2d 275 (Tex. Civ. App. 1960).

(n7)Footnote 99. 2 Blackstone, supra note 24, at 115. Smith v. Pendell, 19 Conn. 107 (1848); Butler v. Huestis, 68 Ill. 594 (1873); Scearce v. King, 217 S.W. 366 (Ky. 1920); Doty v. Teller, 23 A. 944 (N.J.L. 1892); Taylor v. Taylor, 63 Pa. 481 (1870);Hill v. Hill, 74 Pa. 173 (1873); Rhode Island Hosp. Trust Co. v. Bridgham, 106 A. 149 (R.I. 1919).

(n8)Footnote 100. 1 Stephen Martin Leake, An Elementary Digest of The Law of Property in Land (2d ed. 1909) 175.

To A for life then to the heirs of his body created a fee tail. Hoppes v. American Nat'l Red Cross, 128 N.E.2d 851 (Ohio 1955).

Deed to daughter "and offspring or heirs" gave daughter a fee tail converted by statute into a fee simple. Armstrong v. Smith, 251 So. 2d 216 (Ala. 1971).

(n9)Footnote 101. Spicer v. Moss, 100 N.E.2d 761 (Ill. 1951); Hall v. Vandegrift, 3 Binn. 374 (Pa. 1811).

(n10)Footnote 102. Cooper v. Cooper, 6 R.I. 261(1859).

(n11)Footnote 103. Toney v. Toney, 236 S.W.2d 716 (Ark. 1951); Carter v. Taylor, 250 S.W.2d 122 (Ark. 1952) ("entale" was not sufficient to create a fee tail).

(n12)Footnote 104. Collis v. Citizens Fid. Bank & Trust Co., 234 S.W.2d 164 (Ky. 1950).

(n13)Footnote 105. Davis v. Brown, 84 S.E.2d 334 (N.C. 1954).

"An estate tail may be created by a will without the formal language usually employed for that purpose, and any expression showing an intention to devise a fee descendible to lineal heirs is sufficient to create a fee tail by the rules of the common law... There is no special efficacy in any particular form of words used. All that is necessary is that in addition to the limitation to heirs it should appear that the heirs were to be the issue of a particular person." Stearns v. Curry, 137 N.E. 471 (Ill. 1922). See Gardner v. Anderson, 227 P. 743 (Kan. 1923).

(n14)Footnote 106. Gardner v. Anderson, 227 P. 743 (Kan. 1923).

A limitation to "A and his heirs" with a limitation over if "A" dies without heirs gives a fee simple to "A." Horton v. McCall, 82 A. 472 (Pa. 1912).

(n15)Footnote 107.

> When it appears from the context that the words 'heirs' or 'heirs of the body' are intended to have a broader or more popular meaning than is accorded to them in technical usage, courts will lay hold of any expressions in the instrument indicative of such intention, and will give to the words the meaning which it appears they were intended to convey. Thus, where the phrases 'heirs of the body' and 'children' are used as synonymous, and it is clear that the technical phrase is not used for the purpose of limitation, but as a description of a class of persons, the ascertained intention of the maker of the instrument will prevail, the two phrases will be heldto mean the same thing, and the words 'heirs of the body' will be given effect as words of purchase.

Slayton v. Blount, 9 So. 241 (Ala. 1891).

See Garth v. Arnold, 115 F. 468 (8th Cir. 1902); Darden v. Burns, 6 Ala. 362 (1844); Williams v. Graves, 17 Ala. 62 (1849); Wikle v. McGraw, 8 So. 341 (Ala. 1890); Le Sieur v. Spikes, 175 S.W. 413 (Ark. 1915); Coogan v. Jones, 115 N.E. 877 (Ill. 1917); Peters v. Gebhardt, 129 N.E.2d 731 (Ill. 1955); Adams v. Merrill, 85 N.E. 114, (Ind. App. 1908); reg'h denied, Wood River Oil & Ref. Co. v. Madden, 220 P.2d 154 (Kan. 1950) (fee tail not presumed unless intent is clear); American Nat'l Bank v. Madison, 137 S.W. 1076 (Ky. 1911); Duncan v. Medley, 170 S.W. 31 (Ky. 1914); Scott v. Scott, 190 S.W. 143 (Ky. 1916); Williams v. Ohio Valley Banking & Trust Co., 266 S.W. 670 (Ky. 1924); Ware v. Richardson, 3 Md. 505 (1853);Elsea v. Smith, 202 S.W. 1071 (Mo. 1918); In re Urich's Appeal, 86 Pa. 386 (1878); Warn v. Brown, 102 Pa. 347 (1883); Rembert v. Evans, 68 S.E. 659 (S.C. 1910); Branyan v. Tribble, 95 S.E. 137

(S.C.1918).

> Whenever the words 'children' and 'heirs of the body' are indiscriminately used to designate remaindermen, they have been regarded as words of purchase designating a class of persons who were to take on the expiration of the particular estate, -- not from the tenant of that estate, but from the donor, -- a different intention not being clearly indicated.

Dunn v. Davis, 12 Ala. 135 (1847); Williams v. McConico, 36 Ala. 22 (1860); Robertson v. Johnston, 36 Ala. 197 (1860); Twelves v. Nevill, 39 Ala. 175 (1863); May v. Ritchie, 65 Ala. 602 (1880), per Bricknell, C. J., citing Shepherd v. Nabors, 6 Ala. 631 (1844); Warn v. Brown, 102 Pa. 347 (1883). See Greer v. Pate, 11 S.E. 869 (Ga. 1890).

Thus, where a father, "in consideration of my affections, and the further consideration of the support and well-being of my daughter and her children," made a deed to her "and to her bodily heirs, to have and to hold to her and her bodily heirs for their use and benefit forever, "it was held that the deed vested the title in common in the daughter and her children. Wikle v. McGraw, 8 So. 341 (Ala. 1890), McClellan, J., delivering the judgment, said:

> The considerations for the present deed are declared to be the grantor's 'affections' for and 'the support and well-being of' his daughter and her children. It is not reasonable to suppose that the grantor, moved solely by his affections for his daughter and her children, and evidencing, in his declaration of the motives which actuated him, his purpose to provide for her and their support and well-being, and no other purpose whatever, should nevertheless in the body of the deed not only have failed to make provision for the present support and well-being of his grandchildren but, instead, undertook to make provision for distant generations of their descendants -- a purpose in no wise foreshadowed in the premises of the instrument.

Citing Fellows Wadsworth & Co. v. Tann, 9 Ala. 999 (1846); Powell v. Glenn, 21 Ala. 458 (1852); Williams v. McConico, 36 Ala. 22 (1860); Robertson v. Johnston, 36 Ala. 197 (1860); May v. Ritchie, 65 Ala. 602 (1880).

Where a deed to the grantor's children "and the heirs of their bodies" contained the further statement, "Meaning and intending by this conveyance to convey to my said children the use and control of said real estate during their natural lives, and at their death to go to their children," it was held that this statement clearly showed that the word "heirs" was not used in its legal sense as a word of limitation, but as meaning children who would take the remainder, after the life estates, in fee. Griswold v. Hicks, 24 N.E. 63 (Ill. 1890).

If words "bodily heirs" in a deed conveying realty to grantee and his "bodily heirs" were to be construed as words of limitation, then at common law an estate was created in the grantee's bodily heirs, which would have continued in direct line so long as his posterity endured, and in regular order and course of descent and until there was an extinction of such issue, but, if the words were words of purchase then the grant as to such a class was a nullity where there were no bodily heirs of the grantee in existence when the conveyances were made. Bibo v. Bibo, 74 N.E.2d 808 (Ill. 1947).

Under a will devising real estate to three daughters of the testator, naming them, during their natural lives and providing that the share of each of the daughters should, upon her death, go to her children and their heirs absolutely, the use of the word "children" following the life estate did not create a fee simple estate or a fee tail estate which would be converted by the statute into a fee simple estate since the word "children" was a word of purchase. Moore v. Baker, 29 S.E.2d 452 (N.C. 1944).

Deed to parents with remainder to children who survived them did not create a fee tail. Strickland v. Jackson, 130 S.E.2d 22 (N.C. 1963).

In Bauer v. Bauer, 360 P.2d 852 (Kan. 1961), a deed to "B and his bodily heirs," B to have it during his lifetime and then to go to his heir, gave B a life estate not a fee tail.

(n16)Footnote 108. Sharpe v. Isley, 14 S.E.2d 814 (N.C. 1941).

(n17)Footnote 109. Bradley Lumber Co. v. Burbridge, 210 S.W.2d 284 (Ark. 1848); Dick v. Ricker, 78 N.E. 823 (Ill. 1906); Brisbin v. Huntington, 103 N.W. 144 (Iowa 1905); Hollingsworth v. McDonald, 2 H. & J. 197 (Md. 1806); Lyles v. Digges, 6 H. & J. 299 (Md. 1823); Pearce v. Rickard, 26 A. 38 (R.I. 1893).

(n18)Footnote 110. Bradley Lumber Co. v. Burbridge, 210 S.W.2d 284 (Ark. 1948); Allen v. Craft, 9 N.E. 919 (Ind. 1887); Brisbin v. Huntington, 103 N.W. 144 (Iowa 1905); Bonnycastle v. Lilly, 156 S.W. 874 (Ky. 1913); Thomas v. Higgins, 47 Md. 439 (1878); Drake v. Drake, 32 N.E. 114 (N.Y. 1892); Taylor v. Taylor, 63 Pa. 481 (1870);Parkhurst v. Harrower, 21 A. 826 (Pa. 1891);Stayman v. Paxson, 70 A. 803 (Pa. 1908).

(n19)Footnote 111. Hertz v. Abrahams, 36 S.E. 409 (Ga. 1900); Conover v. Cade, 112 N.E. 7 (Ind. 1916); Bodine v. Arthur, 14 S.W. 904 (Ky. 1890); Parkhurst v. Harrower, 21 A. 826 (Pa. 1891).

(n20)Footnote 112. King v. Savage, 121 Mass. 303 (1876); Palmer v. Horn, 84 N.Y. 516 (1881);Drake v. Drake, 32 N.E. 114 (N.Y. 1892); Hill v. Hill, 74 Pa. 173 (1873); Carroll v. Burns, 108 Pa. 386 (1885); McCann v. McCann, 47 A. 743 (1901).

(n21)Footnote 113. Nimmo v. Stewart, 21 Ala. 682 (1852); Biggs v. McCarty, 86 Ind. 352 (1882).

(n22)Footnote 114. McIlhinny v. McIlhinny, 37 N.E. 147 (Ind. 1894); Thomas v. Higgins, 47 Md. 439 (1878); Price v. Sisson, 13 N.J. Eq. 168 (1860). See Wilkins v. Wilkins, 206 S.W.2d 26 (Ark. 1947) (using for this purpose "children" in the sense of "issue").

(n23)Footnote 115. Bradford v. Griffin, 19 S.E. 76 (S.C. 1894).

(n24)Footnote 116. Coke on Littleton, § 21a. Smith v. Pendell, 19 Conn. 106 (1848); Outland v. Bowen, 17 N.E. 281 (Ind. 1888); Farmers State Bank v. Howlett, 270 P. 605 (1928); Burnsworth v. Fellerman, 289 P. 433 (Kan. 1930); Scearce v. King, 217 S.W. 366 (Ky. 1920); Hollingsworth v. McDonald, 2 H. & J. (Md.) 197 (1806); Handy v. McKim, 4 A. 125 (Md. 1886); Richardson v. Noyes, 2 Mass. 56 (1806); Hawley v. Northampton, 8 Mass. 3 (1811); Farrar v. Christy, 24 Mo. 453 (1857); Clarkson v. Clarkson, 28 S.W. 446 (Mo. 1894); Havens v. Seashore Land Co., 20 A. 497 (N.J. Eq. 1890); Den ex dem. Harris v. Taylor, 5 N.J.L. 413 (1819); Moore v. Rake, 26 N.J.L. 574 (1858); Price v. Taylor, 28 Pa. 95 (1857); Parkhurst v. Harrower, 21 A. 826 (Pa. 1891); Beilstein v. Beilstein, 45 A. 73 (Pa. 1899); Rhode Island Hosp. Trust Co. v. Bridgham, 106 A. 149 (R.I. 1919); Larew v. Larew, 135 S.E. 819 (Va. 1926); Fisher v. Wigg, 1 P. Wms. 14 (1700).

At common law to A and if he died without issue to B created a fee tail in A and a remainder in B. Chadock v. Cowley, Cro. Jac. 695, 79 Eng. Rep. 604.

(n25)Footnote 117. Shutt v. Rambo, 57 Pa. 149 (1868); Fahrney Holsinger, 65 Pa. 388 (1870).

(n26)Footnote 118. Hertz v. Abrahams, 36 S.E. 409 (Ga. 1900); Conover v. Cade, 112 N.E. 7 (Ind. 1916); Berthoud v. McCune, 287 P. 904 (Ind. 1930).

(n27)Footnote 119. Hertz v. Abrahams, 36 S.E. 409 (Ga. 1900); Outland v. Bowen, 17 N.E. 281 (Ind. 1888); Conover v. Cade, 112 N.E. 7 (Ind. 1916); Ballance v. Garner, 168 P.2d 533 (Kan. 1946);Bodine v. Arthur, 14 S.W. 904 (Ky. 1890); Price v. Taylor, 28 Pa. 95 (1857); Hill v. Hill, 74 Pa. 173 (1891); Parkhurst v. Harrower, 21 A. 826 (Pa.1891).

(n28)Footnote 120. St. John v. Dann, 34 A. 110 (Conn. 1895); Steele v. Pedroja, 289 P.2d 738 (Kan.1955); Sale v. Crutchfield, 71 Ky. (8 Bush) 636 (1871); Hayes v. Hammond, 143 N.E.2d 693 (Mass. 1957); Parish v. Ferris, 6 Ohio St. 563 (1856).

(n29)Footnote 121. Barber v. Pittsburgh, Ft. W. & C.R.R., 166 U.S. 83 (1947); United States v. 0.20 Acre of Land, 71 F. Supp. 576 (1947); Turrill v. Northrop, 51 Conn. 33 (1883); Caccamo v. Banning, 75 A.2d 222 (Del.1950); Goldberger v. Goldberger, 102 A.2d 338 (Del. 1954); Scearce v. King, 217 S.W. 366 (Ky. 1920); Riggs v. Sally, 15 Me. 408 (1839); Allen v. Ashley School Fund, 102 Mass. 262 (1869); Moorehouse v. Cotheal, 21 N.J.L 335 (1848); Ness v. Ramsay, 26 A. 770. (Pa. 1893).

In a deed to A for life and on her death to her "children and heirs of her body" did not include adopted children. Adams v. Merrill, 85 N.E. 114, 87 N.E. 36 (Ind. App. 1909).

(n30)Footnote 122. Mahoney v. Mahoney, 120 A. 342 (Conn. 1923).

(n31)Footnote 123. McCarthy v. Walsh, 122 A. 406 (Me. 1923).

(n32)Footnote 124. Smith v. Pendell, 19 Conn. 107 (1848); In re Reeves, 92 A. 246 (Del. Ch. 1914); Hertz v. Abrahams, 36 S.E. 409 (Ga. 1900); Outland v. Bowen, 17 N.E. 281 (Ind. 1888); Scearce v. King, 217 S.W. 366 (Ky. 1920); Skolfield v. Litchfield, 102 A. 240 (Me. 1917); Davis v. Brown, 84 S.E.2d 334 (N.C. 1954) (took a fee tail converted into a fee simple by statute); Beilstein v. Beilstein, 45 A. 73 (Pa. 1899); Rhode Island Hosp. Trust Co. v. Bridgham, 106 A. 149 (R.I. 1919).

(n33)Footnote 125. Mahoney v. Mahoney, 120 A. 342 (Conn. 1923); Hertz v. Abrahams, 36 S.E. 409 (Ga. 1900); Conover v. Cade, 112 N.E. 7 (Ind. 1916); Steele v. Pedroja, 289 P.2d 738 (Kan. 1955); Bodine v. Arthur, 14 S.W. 904 (Ky. 1890); Doe ex dem. Allender v. Sussan, 33 Md. 11 (1870); Parkhurst v. Harrower, 21 A. 826 (Pa. 1891).

(n34)Footnote 126. Gardner v. Grossman, 57 N.E.2d 440 (Ind. App. 1944); Delp v. George, 150 P.2d 334 (Kan. 1944).

(n35)Footnote 127. This is, however, a rule of construction.Caccamo v. Banning, 75 A.2d 222 (Del. 1950); Adams v. Vidal, 60 So. 2d 545 (Fla. 1952).

(n36)Footnote 128. Herring v. Rogers, 30 Ga. 615(1860); Jonas v. Jones, 109 P.2d 211 (Kan. 1940); Boxley v. Jackson, 2 So. 2d 160 (Miss. 1941).

(n37)Footnote 129. See Denson v. Thompson, 19 Ark. 66 (1857); Waters v. Lyon, 40 N.E. 662 (Ind. 1895); Daniels v. Dingman, 118 N.W. 373 (Iowa 1908).

(n38)Footnote 130. Williams v. Ohio Valley Banking & Trust Co., 266 S.W. 670 (Ky. 1924).

(n39)Footnote 131. Clark v. Cammack, 113 So. 270 (Ala. 1927).

(n40)Footnote 132. Shelley's Case, 1 Co. Rep. 93b, 76 Eng. Rep. 206 (1579) was itself a fee tail.

So a deed to A and B for life only, then to the bodily heirs of B, created a fee tail converted by statute into a fee simple. Edgerton v. Harrison, 52 S.E.2d 357 (N.C. 1949); Hoppes v. American Nat'l Red Cross, 128 N.E.2d 851 (Ohio 1955).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Moon Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing the fee tail.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 18 FEE TAIL *

2-18 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 18.04

AUTHOR: by Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 18.04 The Estate Tail.

[Go To Supp]

The estate tail came into the United States with the English law. n133 In most states de donis became part of the common law. n134 In four states, n135 de donis did not so become part of the common law. In Indiana, while the initial existence of a fee tail was recognized, some kind of a conditional fee could also exist. The fee tail never existed in Louisiana, Texas, Hawaii n136 or South Carolina, n137 and does not today exist in Florida. n138 In early days the common recovery was much resorted to. n139 The existence of the fee tail was recognized inDelaware, n140 Kansas, n141 Maine, n142 Massachusetts, n143 Rhode Island (in deeds), n144 Colorado n145 and Wyoming. n146

Alaska, Idaho, Nevada, Utah and Washington have not considered the fee tail either judicially or by legislative act. Whether it exists in those states is conjectural. In all other states the legal situation which gives rise to the fee tail is recognized, but the fee tail thus created is by statute converted into another type of estate. n147 In some of these states the fee tail becomes a fee simple. n148 In part of this group, limitations over after the fee tail are specifically preserved by statute so that the estate becomes a fee simple subject to a conditional limitation. n149

In Ohio a fee tail is created by the words, "to A and the heirs of his body." It is followed by a reversion in the hands of a grantor. On the death of the tenant in tail, however, the fee tail becomes a fee simple in the issue of the tenant intail. n150

In other states the first taker only takes a life estate with either a remainder estate in fee simple absolute to the next taker n151 or to the first taker's children. n152 In the third group the first taker takes a fee tail for his lifetime only and the second taker takes a fee simple absolute. n153 Doubt exists in the first group where a limitation over is not preserved by statute as to whether the first taker takes a fee simple absolute cutting off the remainder after the fee tail or whether a limitation over is impliedly preserved. n154

A tenancy in tail now exists in Delaware, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island. In Rhode Island it can only be created by deed. The states of Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Louisiana have never considered the question either by statute or judicial decision.

The other states fall into four categories: n155

> (1) A limitation formerly sufficient to create an estate in fee tail now creates either a fee simple absolute in the first taker, or a fee simple in the first taker subject to reverting back to the grantor if the first taker dies unsurvived by descendants. Alabama, Arizona, California, District of Columbia, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin are in this class. n156
>
> (2) A limitation formerly sufficient to create an estate in fee tail now confers a life estate on the first taker the heir of the first taker receiving a fee simple absolute. Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia (limited to certain types of conveyance), Illinois, Missouri, New Mexico and Vermont are in this group.
>
> (3) A limitation formerly sufficient to create an estate in fee tail now creates an estate in fee tail for the lifetime of the first taker, the heir of such first taker receiving an estate in fee simple absolute. This group is composed of three states: Connecticut, Ohio and Rhode Island. n157
>
> (4) Limitations formerly sufficient to create a fee tail now create a fee simple but preserve limitations over to third parties as conditional limitations upon fee simple defeasible rather than contingent remainders after fee tails. Indiana is in thisgroup. n158

The statutes of some states where the fee tail can exist enable the tenant in tail to bar the entail by a conveyance in feesimple. n159 The disentailing deed may be either a conveyance to a purchaser or to a person to hold to the use of the tenant himself and his heirs as tenants in fee simple. Such deed may be either a warranty deed or a quitclaim. The estate may be taken for the debts of the tenant in tail in possession, either upon execution during the tenant's life or sale by license of court after death. n160 In the second group, limitations over to third persons are preserved and in the event the life tenant has no children a reversion remains in the grantor. n161

Constructional problems arise in states which have statutes affecting the legal effect of language which would have at common law created a fee tail and also have statutes dispensing with the necessity of words of limitation to create fees. In such states, where language is used which would have at common law been considered words of limitation creating a fee tail, is such language now considered surplusage, or does it create a fee tail now converted by statute into another type of estate, or are they now words of purchase giving an immediate estate to the grantees? Thus does a grant or devise to A and the heirs of A's body create merely (1) a fee simple absolute in A, (2) a life estate in A and remainder over, or (3) a cotenancy in A and A's children? n162 The problem is even more aggravated in those cases where the fee tail would have arisen inferentially as "to A for life and then to the heirs of his body" or "to A and his issue" or "to A, but if he dies without issue then to B." n163

In those states where by statute estates tail are declared to be estates in fee simple, there is a disposition to construe the words of limitation as meaning children. Although the language appears to create an estate tail, yet, if any other construction can be adopted without distorting the meaning of the words, the grantor will not be deemed to have intended to create such an estate. n164 Thus a deed to a married woman, "and to the heirs of her body by" her husband named, will be held to create either a joint estate in the mother and her children or a life estate in the mother with remainder to her children. A voluntary deed by a husband of substantially all his property to his wife, having children by himself and a former husband, to hold to her "and the heirs of her body by myself as husband," especially excluding rights of inheritance of her heirs by any other person, does not create an estate tail, the children of his body being purchasers. n165

Where the statute has converted a fee tail to a life estate in the first taker with remainder over and the first taker dies without bodily heirs, the estate reverts to the creator n166 and the remainder to the children is contingent upon survival of the life tenant. n167

In those states in which statutes in terms convert estates tail into estates in fee simple, the words of procreation used in deeds, which without the statute would have created estates tail,are held to be wholly disregarded, leaving the limitation simply to the heirs of the grantee and creating in the grantee a feesimple. n168 Thus a statute providing that the word "heirs," or other words of inheritance, shall not be necessary to create an estate in fee simple, and that any conveyance of any real estate passes all the estate of the grantor, unless the intent to pass a lesser estate shall appear by express terms of the grant, impliedly repeals the statute de donis conditionalibus and fee-tail estates areabolished. n169 But where the limitation to heirs of the body is by way of remainder no fee tail arises if the rule in Shelley's Case is not operative. n170

Under these statutes while the testator cannot accomplish a fee tail result the testator can use the fee tail language to achieve statutory significance. n171 The statutes operate upon equitable estate tails as well as legal estate tails. n172 The rule that a grant to A and to the heirs of her body operates to vest the fee-simple title in A has been held not to apply where a lesser estate has been carved out and the term "heirs of her body" is used in connection with the limitation over inremainder. n173 The alienation of an estate tail in expectancy during the lifetime of the first donee in tail has no legal effect. n174 In England, a will is liberally construed to bar an entail as permitted in section 176, Laws of Property Act1925. n175

Such statutes operate, however, only upon a fee tail as when created. So no interest by way of remainder arose in a gift to A and the heirs of her body when A refused to accept thedeed. n176 Where fee tails exist, partition of joint estates tail does not affect the entailment. n177 The barring of an entail by fines or common recovery is not recognized in some states. n178

Where the word "issue" is used as in a gift to "A and his issue," the earlier law, still followed in some states today, presumed an indefinite failure of issue, thus construing the language as reading to "A and the heirs of his body" rather than "to A and his children." Under this presumption to "A and his issue" created a fee tail. n179

This presumption of indefinite failure of issue applies also to limitations over on failure of issue so that to "A but if he die without issue then to B" created a fee tail in A, not a fee simple, with remainder over to B.

Some statutes abolishing the fee tail also abolish the presumption against indefinite failure of issue in limitations over on death sans issue. n180

Under the statute of Ohio, the issue of a donee in tail during the life of such donee has no estate or interest in the landsentailed that the issue can convey prior to the death of the donee in tail. n181

In Oregon, it is held that the conveyance of a fee-tail estate passes an estate in fee simple. n182

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: estate! tail! w/15 statut! or tenancy w/1 tail! w/15 statut!

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 133. In England today under the Law of Property Act 1926, § 130(2), "to A and his issue," which would have created a fee tail before 1925, creates a fee simple in A jointly with his issue, unless the words were intended as words of limitation in which case A takes a fee simple himself. See R.E. Megarry, To A and His Issue, 9 Camb. L.J. 46

(1945).

(n2)Footnote 134. Allin v. Bunce, 1 Root 96 (Conn. 1785).

(n3)Footnote 135. Pierson v. Lane, 14 N.W. 90 (Iowa 1882); Kepler v. Larson, 108 N.W. 1033 (Iowa 1906); Sagers v. Sagers, 138 N.W. 911 (Iowa 1912).

The statute de donis is not recognized as part of the law of Nebraska, and in that state a limitation over to "the heirs begotten of the body" of the grantee creates a conditional fee only, so that the grantee, after issue born, is able to bar both the inheritance and the reversion by a deed. Yates v. Yates, 178 N.W. 262 (Neb. 1920); Myers v. Myers, 190 N.W. 491 (Neb. 1922) (at least to the extent of recognizing the conditional fee).

Lytle v. Hulen, 275 P. 45 (Or. 1929) recognizing the conditional fee. Archer v. Ellison, 5 S.E. 713 (S.C. 1888); Owings v. Hunt, 31 S.E. 237 (S.C. 1898); Clark v. Neves, 57 S.E. 614 (S.C. 1907); Holley v. Still, 74 S.E. 1065 (S.C.1912); Branyan v. Tribble, 95 S.E. 137 (S.C.1918); Strother v. Folk, 115 S.E. 605 (S.C. 1922); Davis v. Strauss, 174 S.E. 908 (S.C. 1934); Purvis v. McElveen, 106 S.E.2d 913 (S.C. 1959).

In the United States the statute de donis was recognized in the colonies and original states as being in force, except in South Carolina, where the fee conditional as at common law existed from the first. There the heirs of the body take per formam doni, but subject to the debts of the first taker. Burnett v. Burnett, 17 S.C. 545 (1882).

In South Carolina, the grantee in a deed to one for life and then to his bodily issue will take a fee conditional and not merely a life estate with remainder over. Antley v. Antley, 128 S.E. 31 (S.C. 1925); Ewing v. Nesbitt, 129 P. 1131 (Kan. 1913); Corbin v. Healy, 37 Mass. (20 Pick.) 514 (1838); Pollock v. Speidel, 17 Ohio St. 439(1867); Hall v. Vandegrift, 3 Binn. 374 (Pa.1811); Giddings v. Smith, 15 Vt. 344 (1843).

The states which, before January 1, 1936, had declared theestates tail an existent estate were Delaware, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island (as to deeds only) and Wyoming. In Delaware this recognition was evidenced by a statute conferring upon the owner of a possessory estate in fee tail the power to convey an estate in fee simple absolute (Del. Rev. Code § 3235) and by a considerable number of decisions, see Schneer v. Greenbaum, 86 A. 107 (Del. 1913); Hazzard v. Hazzard, 94 A. 905 (Del. 1915); In re Reeves, 92 A. 246 (Del. 1914).

Kansas had no statute giving recognition to estates in fee tail but this recognition has been extended unequivocally by a substantial body of judicial authority, see Ewing v. Nesbitt, 129 P. 1131 (Kan. 1913); Gardner v. Anderson, 227 P. 743 (Kan. 1923); Allen v. Pedder, 241 P. 696 (Kan. 1925); Davis v. Davis, 246 P. 982 (Kan. 1926); Wright v. Jenks, 261 P. 840 (Kan. 1927); Lisman v. Marks, 267 P. 963 (Kan. 1928). See now Kan. Stat. Ann. § 58-502.

In Maine this recognition was evidenced by statutes dealing with the power of the owner of an estate in fee tail to convey an estate in fee simple (Me. Rev. Stat. ch. 87, § 10) and with the subjection of this type of estate to the satisfaction of the creditors of its owner (Me. Rev. Stat. ch. 90, § 6, 8) and by a substantial body of judicial authority, see Me. Rev. Stat. Ann. 33, § 156. Webster v. Cooper, 55 U.S. (14 How.) 488 (1852); Riggs v. Sally, 15 Me. 408 (1839); Fisk v. Keene, 35 Me. 349 (1853); Willey v. Haley, 60 Me. 176 (1872); Richardson v. Richardson, 16 A. 250 (Me. 1888); Laughlin v. Page, 80 A. 753 (Me. 1911); Skolfield v. Litchfield, 102 A. 240 (Me. 1917); McCarthy v. Walsh, 122 A. 406 (Me. 1923).

Massachusetts extended recognition by statutes of the same types as those of Maine (Mass. Gen. L. ch. 183, § 45 and ch. 184, § 4) see now Mass. Gen. Laws Ann. ch. 183, § 45-48, and by many decisions, as typical of these, see Brown v. Addison Gilbert Hosp., 29 N.E. 625 (Mass. 1892); Collamore v. Collamore, 32 N.E. 1034 (Mass. 1893); Gilkie v. Marsh, 71 N.E. 703 (Mass. 1904).

In Rhode Island seven distinct statutes, see now R.I. Gen. Laws § 34-4-14 - 34-4-18, dealt with estates tail, see R.I. Gen. Laws § 4247, powers of creditor of owner of estate in fee tail; § 4256-4258, power of owner to convey an estate in fee simple; § 4287, dispensing somewhat with formalism requisite to the creation of an estate in fee tail; § 4298, restricting lapse where one has devised an estate in fee tail, and § 4300, restricting the creation of estates in fee tail by devise. Since 1798 it has been the law of Rhode Island that an estate tail, created by devise, becomes an estate in fee simple at the end of a single lifetime. The statutes of Rhode Island as to estates in fee tail have been frequently construed, see Manchester v. Durfee, 5 R.I. 549 (1858);Jillson v. Wilcox, 7 R.I. 515 (1863); Sutton v. Miles, 10 R.I. 348 (1872); Wilcox v. Heywood, 12 R.I. 196 (1878); Paine v. Sackett, 61 A. 753 (1905);Green v. Edwards, 77 A. 188 (R.I. 1910); Sackett v. Paine, 128 A. 209 (R.I. 1925).

The State of Wyoming had two statutes recognizing the existence of estates in fee tail. (Now abolished, see Wyo. Stat. § 34-1-137.) One of these authorizes the owner of an estate in fee tail to maintain an action to secure a sale of an estate in fee simple absolute and provides that such sale shall be ordered if the court is satisfied that "no substantial injury to the heirs in tail" will be caused thereby (Wyo. Stat. § 89-3922). The other explicitly directs that the proceeds of such sale be substituted for the land sold and be subject to the limitations originally made relative to the land so sold (Wyo. Stat. § 89-3927).

At earlier periods of time estates in fee tail existed in Maryland, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

The effect of Ohio statute of disentailment, Ohio Gen. Code § 11925, and the statute entails, Ohio Gen. Code § 10512-8 has been to recognize that de donis exists in Ohio. See Ohio Rev. Code Ann. § 2131.08. Pollock v. Speidel, 17 Ohio St. 439 (1867). See Louis J., Jr. Schneider, Rights of Surviving Spouse in a Fee Tail Estate in Ohio, 18 U. Cin. L. Rev. 332 (1949), objecting to the decision of Miller v. Miller, 83 N.E.2d 254 (Ohio 1948), which held that there was no dower in a fee tail converted into a life estate with remainder to children by the statute.

See also William F. Fratcher, Fee Tail in Michigan 4 U. Det. L.J. 19 (1940), for a discussion of the question of whether de donis conditionalibus was ever part of the law in Michigan.

A grant of a fee tail leaves in the grantor a reversion which is descendible, devisable and alienable. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976).

(n4)Footnote 136. Rooke v. Queen's Hosp., 12 Haw. 375 (1900) (neither estates tail nor conditional have ever existed); Nahaolelua v. Heen, 20 Haw. 372 (1911) (an instrument to E and the heirs of her body create a life estate in E and remainder to her children); Kinney v. Oahu Sugar Co., 23 Haw. 747 (1919), aff'd, 255 F. 732 (9th Cir. 1919); Rosenblet v. Wodehouse, 25 Haw. 561 (1920).

(n5)Footnote 137. Creswell v. Bank of Greenwood, 41 S.E.2d 393 (S.C. 1947).

Fee simple determinable or conditional in South Carolina, possibility of reverter was not alienable by estoppel under warranty deed. Purvis v. McElveen, 106 S.E.2d 913 (S.C. 1959).

(n6)Footnote 138. Florida Comp. Stat. § 5481. See now Fla. Stat. Ann. § 689.14.

(n7)Footnote 139. *Hawley v. Northampton, 8 Mass. 3 (1811); Den ex dem. Mason v. Smith, 10 N.J.L. 39 (1828); Jackson ex dem. Hicks v. Van Zandt, 12 Johns. 169 (N.Y. 1815);*Lyle v. Richards, 9 Serg. & Rawle 322 (Pa. 1823).

(n8)Footnote 140. Schneer v. Greenbaum, 86 A. 107 (Del. 1913).

(n9)Footnote 141. Ewing v. Nesbitt, 129 P. 1131 (Kan. 1913); Gardner v. Anderson, 227 P. 743 (Kan.1923); Lisman v. Marks, 267 P. 963 (Kan. 1928).

Although Kansas had no statute on the subject, it recognizes true estates tail but permits the tenant in tail to break the entailment by a conveyance. Allen v. Pedder, 241 P. 696 (Kan. 1925) now Kan. Stat. Ann. § 58-502. See also Davis v. Davis, 246 P. 982 (Kan. 1926).

(n10)Footnote 142. Webster v. Cooper, 14 How (55 U.S.) 488 (1852); Riggs v. Sally, 15 Me. 408(1839); McCarthy v. Walsh, 122 A. 406 (1923).

Fee tail may be barred by conveyance in fee simple. Me. Rev. Stat. Ann. tit. 33 § 156; Spencer v. Chick, 76 Me. 347 (1884).

(n11)Footnote 143. Brown v. Addison Gilbert Hosp., 29 N.E. 625 (Mass. 1892); Gilkie v. Marsh, 71 N.E. 703 (Mass. 1904).

(n12)Footnote 144. Manchester v. Durfee, 5 R.I. 549 (1858); Green v. Edwards, 77 A. 188 (R.I. 1910); Sackett v. Paine, 128 A. 209 (R.I. 1925).

(n13)Footnote 145. Sconce v. Neece, 268 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1954).

(n14)Footnote 146. Fee tails become fee simples, limitations over are preserved. Wyo. Stat. § 34-1-137.

(n15)Footnote 147. Coke on Littleton, § 27; Johnson v. Whiton, 34 N.E. 542 (Mass. 1893) (will to "granddaughter and her heirs on her father's side" created fee simple absolute in granddaughter).

No one is heir to the living. The expectation of the heir presumptive to an entailed estate, must therefore be subject to the same legislative control as in other cases. Gilpin v. Williams, 25 Ohio St. 283 (1874).

The grantor and issue of the heirs of the body of grantee have no vested interest in a fee tail which could not be changed by statute. Jensen v. Jensen, 89 P.2d 1085 (Wyo. 1939).

(n16)Footnote 148. Deady, 48 F. Supp. 104 (D. Or. 1939);Martin v. McRee, 30 Ala. 116 (1857); Sullivan v. McLaughlin, 11 So. 447 (Ala. 1892); Carter v. Couch, 47 So. 1006 (Ala. 1908); English v. McCreary, 48 So. 113 (Ala. 1908); Wallace v. Hodges, 49 So. 312 (Ala. 1909); Dallas Compress Co. v. Smith, 67 So. 289 (Ala. 1914); Gamble v. Gamble, 75 So. 924 (Ala. 1917); Gilchrist v. Butler, 107 So. 838 (Ala.1926); Clark v. Cammack, 113 So. 270 (Ala. 1927); Caffee v. Thompson, 81 S.2d 358 (1955), (by statute, common law of primogeniture is abolished; all considerations of tracing descent from blood of first purchaser is excluded so that kindred of half blood inherit in same degree as those of whole blood); Dempsey v. Davis, 136 S.W. 975 (Ark. 1911); Eubanks v. McDonald, 283 S.W.2d 166 (Ark. 1955); Anderson v. Webb, 406 S.W.2d 871 (Ark. 1966) (under Arkansas law a fee tail may be dissolved by the grantor, the life tenant and remaindermen); Barnett v. Barnett, 37 P. 1049 (Cal. 1894); Whately v. Barker, 4 S.E. 387 (Ga. 1887), except where the term "heirs of the body" is used as a limitation over after the death of the first taker; Wilkerson v. Clark, 7 S.E. 319 (Ga. 1888); Ewing v. Shropshire, 7 S.E. 554 (Ga. 1888); Durant v. Muller, 14 S.E. 612 (Ga. 1892); Hertz v. Abrahams, 36 S.E. 409 (Ga. 1900); Stamey v. McGinniss, 88 S.E. 935 (Ga. 1916); Singer v. First Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 24 S.E.2d 47 (Ga. 1943); Lewis v. Fry, 26 S.E.2d 122 (Ga. 1943); Sikes v. Moxley, 38 S.E.2d 671 (Ga. 1946); Allen v. Craft, 9 N.E. 919 (Ind.1887); McIlhinny v. McIlhinny, 37 N.E. 147 (Ind. 1894); Quilliam v. Union Trust Co., 142 N.E. 214 (Ind. 1924); Chamberlain v. Runkle, 63 N.E. 486 (Ind. 1902); Lamb v. Medsker, 74 N.E. 1012 (Ind. App. 1905); Short v. Terry, 22 S.W. 841 (Ky. 1893); McGennis v. McGennis, 29 S.W. 333 (Ky.1895); Davis v. Davis, 65 S.W. 122 (Ky. 1901); Handy v. Harris, 105 S.W. 378 (Ky. 1907); Lawson v. Todd, 110 S.W. 412 (Ky. 1908); Manteuffel v. Grieb, 119 S.W. 739 (Ky. 1909); Eggner v. Hovekamp, 119 S.W. 818 (Ky. 1909); Taggart v. Taggart, 121 S.W. 693 (Ky. 1909); Bonnycastle v. Lilly, 156 S.W. 874 (Ky. 1913); Belcher v. Ramey, 191 S.W. 520 (Ky. 1917); Wilson v. Woodward, 227 S.W. 446 (Ky. 1921); Massingale v. Parker, 236 S.W. 959 (Ky. 1922); Payne v. Fiscal Court, 252 S.W. 127 (Ky. 1923); Cox v. Fink, 254 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1923);Jett v. Cheek, 257 S.W. 1026 (Ky. 1924); Martin

v. Martin, 262 S.W. 1091 (Ky. 1924); Wilson v. Morrill, 265 S.W. 774 (Ky. 1924); Williams v. Ohio Valley Banking & Trust Co., 266 S.W. 670 (Ky. 1924); Barrett v. Ray, 268 S.W. 534 (Ky. 1925); McGinnis v. Hood, 159 S.W.2d 1018 (Ky. 1942); Rhodes v. Bouldrey, 101 N.W. 206 (Mich. 1904); Millard v. Millard, 180 N.W. 429 (Mich. 1920); Jordan v. Roach, 32 Miss. 481 (1856);Stigler v. Shurlds, 95 So. 635 (Miss. 1923); Bolton v. Barnett, 95 So. 721 (Miss. 1923); Magee v. Magee's Estate, 111 So. 2d 394 (Miss. 1959); Fanning v. Doan, 30 S.W. 1032 (Mo. 1895); Summet v. City Realty & Brokerage Co., 106 S.W. 614 (Mo. 1907); Charles v. White, 112 S.W. 545 (Mo. 1908); Leeper v. Leeper, 147 S.W.2d 660 (Mo. 1941); Bullock v. People's Bank of Holcomb, 173 S.W.2d 753 (Mo. 1943);Ellingrod v. Trombla, 95 N.W.2d 635 (Neb. 1959);Jewell v. Warner, 35 N.H. 176 (N.H. 1857); Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N.H. 498, 43 N.H. 499 (1862); Wendell v. Crandall, 1 N.Y. 491 (1848); Nellis v. Nellis, 3 N.E. 59 (N.Y. 1885); Leathers v. Gray, 7 S.E. 657 (N.C. 1888); Marsh v. Griffin, 48 S.E. 735 (N.C. 1904); Jones v. Ragsdale, 53 S.E. 842 (N.C. 1906); Perrett v. Bird, 67 S.E. 507 (N.C. 1906); Revis v. Murphy, 90 S.E. 573 (N.C. 1916); Blake v. Shields, 90 S.E. 764(N.C. 1916); Cole v. Thornton, 104 S.E. 74 (N.C. 1920); Willis v. Mutual Loan & Trust Co., 111 S.E. 163 (N.C. 1922); Vinson v. Gardner, 116 S.E. 412 (N.C. 1923); Harward v. Edwards, 116 S.E. 1 (N.C. 1923); Merchants Nat'l Bank v. Dortch, 120 S.E. 60 (N.C. 1923); Boyd v. Campbell, 135 S.E. 121 (N.C. 1926); Whitley v. Arenson, 12 S.E.2d 906 (N.C. 1941); Bank of Pilot Mtn. v. Snow, 18 S.E.2d 711 (N.C. 1942); Edgerton v. Harrison, 52 S.E.2d 357 (N.C. 1949); Hawkins v. Jerman, 35 P.2d 248 (Or. 1934); Price v. Taylor, 28 Pa. 95 (1857); Nicholson v. Bettle, 57 Pa. 384 (1868); Beilstein v. Beilstein, 45 A. 73 (1899);Schrecongost v. West, 59 A. 269 (Pa. 1904); Wilson v. Heilman, 68 A. 674 (Pa. 1908); Kimmel v. Shaffer, 68 A. 1017 (Pa. 1908); Stayman v. Paxson, 70 A. 803 (Pa. 1908); Sechler v. Eshleman, 70 A. 910 (Pa. 1908); Schwem v. Calloway, 75 A. 22 (Pa. 1909); Breinig v. Smith, 110 A. 285 (Pa. 1920); Green v. Edwards, 77 A. 188 (R.I. 1910); Sackett v. Paine, 128 A. 209 (R.I. 1925); Kirk v. Furgerson, 46 Ten. (6 Cold.) 479 (1869); Speight v. Askins, 102 S.W. 74 (Tenn.1907); Harwell v. Harwell, 271 S.W. 353 (Tenn. 1925); Hill v. Maloney, 108 S.W.2d 791 (Tenn. App. 1937); Calder v. Davidson, 59 S.W. 300 (Tex.1900); Reilly v. Huff, 335 S.W.2d 275 (Tex. Civ. App. 1960); Watts v. Cole, 2 Leigh (Va.) 653 (1830); Turner v. Monteiro, 103 S.E. 572 (Va. 1920); Larew v. Larew, 135 S.E. 819 (Va. 1926); Maddy v. Maddy, 105 S.E. 803 (W. Va. 1921); Bartlett v. Petty, 117 S.E. 551 (W. Va. 1923); Wise v. Hinegardner, 125 S.E. 579 (W. Va. 1924); National Bank of Commerce v. Wehrle, 20 S.E.2d 112 (W. Va. 1942).

Colo. Stat. § 815 (similar to Arkansas). See now Colo. Rev. Stat. § 38-30-106; Mo. Ann. Stat. § 442.470 (similar to Arkansas); N.M. Ann. Stat. § 117-107, see now N.M. Stat. § 47-1-18, (translation into Spanish and back into English have caused deviations in language from the Illinois statute upon which it seems to have been modelled originally). Whenever a conveyance or bequest is made wherein the conveyor or testator shall hold possession of property, be it lands or tenements, in law or equity, as under the English statute of Edward the First, styled the entail statute, and said property is to be perpetuated in the family, each one of said conveyances or bequests shall only invest the conveyors or testators with possession during their lifetime, who shall possess and hold the right and title to said premises, and no others, the same as a tenant for life is recognized by law; and at the death of said conveyor or testator said lands and tenements shall descend to the children of said conveyor or testator, to beequally divided among them as absolute tenants in common; and if there should be but one child, it shall descend absolutely to it; and if any child should die, the part which he or she should have received shall be given to his or her successor, and if there should be no such successor, then it shall descend to his or her legal heirs; Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 27 § 1 (similar to Arkansas).

(n17)Footnote 149. See in general: Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Hoppin, 214 F. 928 (7th Cir. 1914); Dickson v. Neal, 2 F.2d 533 (8th Cir. 1924); Hawkins v. Reeves, 166 S.W. 562 (Ark.1914); Rogers v. Ogburn, 172 S.W. 867 (Ark. 1915); Maynard v. Henderson, 173 S.W. 831 (Ark. 1915); Le Sieur v. Spikes, 175 S.W. 413 (Ark. 1915); Gaines v. Arkansas Nat'l Bank, 280 S.W. 993 (Ark. 1926); Pletner v. Southern Lumber Co., 292 S.W. 370 (Ark. 1927); Bradley Lumber Co. v. Burbridge, 210 S.W.2d 284 (Ark. 1948); Lehndorf v. Cope, 13 N.E. 505 (Ill. 1887); Griswold v. Hicks, 24 N.E. 63 (Ill. 1890); Spencer v. Spruell, 63 N.E. 621 (Ill. 1902); Duffield v. Duffield, 108 N.E. 673 (Ill. 1915); Richardson v. Van Gundy, 111 N.E. 494 (Ill. 1916); Coogan v. Jones, 115 N.E. 877 (Ill. 1917); Stearns v. Curry, 137 N.E. 471 (Ill. 1922); Pearson v. Olson, 141 N.E. 736 (Ill. 1923); Danberg v. Langman, 149 N.E. 245 (Ill. 1925); Roof v. Rule, 180 N.E. 807 (Ill. 1932); Henry v. Metz, 46 N.E.2d 945 (Ill. 1942); Barker v. Walker, 85 N.E.2d 748 (Ill.1949); Beasley v. Beasley, 88 N.E.2d 435 (Ill. 1949); Waite v. Schmidt, 245 P.2d 975 (Kan. 1952) (deed created fee tail, converted into life estate with remainder over, rather than fee simple absolute); Reetz v. Sims, 276 P.2d 368 (Kan. 1954) (construing Kans. Gen. Stat.

§ 58-502); Sims v. Pierce, 31 N.E. 718 (Mass. 1892); Farrar v. Christy, 24 Mo. 453(1857); Phillips v. La Forge, 1 S.W. 220 (Mo.1886); Wood v. Kice, 15 S.W. 623 (Mo. 1891);Emmerson v. Hughes, 19 S.W. 979 (Mo. 1892); Godman v. Simmons, 20 S.W. 972 (Mo. 1892); Bone v. Tyrrell, 20 S.W. 796 (Mo. 1892); Reed v. Lane, 26 S.W. 957 (Mo. 1894); Clarkson v. Clarkson, 28 S.W. 446 (Mo.1894); Hunter v. Patterson, 44 S.W. 250 (Mo.1898); Frame v. Humphreys, 64 S.W. 116 (Mo. 1901); Charles v. White, 112 S.W. 545 (Mo. 1908); Elsea v. Smith, 202 S.W. 1071 (Mo. 1918);Welch v. Wagner, 232 S.W. 146 (Mo. 1921); Schee v. Boone, 243 S.W. 882 (Mo. 1922); Owen v. Trail, 258 S.W. 699 (Mo. 1924); Inlow v. Herren, 267 S.W. 893 (Mo. 1924); Kane v. Roath, 276 S.W. 39 (Mo. 1925); Bank of Brumley v. Windes, 282 S.W. 696 (Mo. 1926);Hyde v. Hopkins, 296 S.W. 382 (Mo. 1927); Davidson v. Davidson, 167 S.W.2d 641 (Mo. 1943); Mattingly v. Washburn, 196 S.W.2d 624 (Mo. 1946) (to effect that such remainders are contingent, conditioned upon survival of the life tenant); Grimes v. Rush, 197 S.W.2d 310 (Mo. 1946);Tapley v. Dill, 217 S.W.2d 369 (Mo. 1949); Tucker v. Holder, 225 S.W.2d 123 (Mo. 1949); Pixlee v. Petty, 274 S.W.2d 257 (Mo. 1955) (fee tail converted into life estate with remainder to issue); Bullock v. Porter, 284 S.W.2d 598 (Mo. 1955) (to A and B and bodily heirs created life estates by the entireties with remainders over); Callison v. Wabash R. Co., 275 S.W. 965 (Mo. App. 1925); Havens v. Seashore Land Co., 20 A. 497 (N.J. 1890); Doty v. Teller, 23 A. 944 (N.J. 1892). In New Jersey the fee tail now becomes a fee simple instead of a life estate. N.J. Stat. Ann. § 46:3-15; Pollock v. Speidel, 17 Ohio St. 439 (1867); Mays v. Mays, 42 N.E.2d 446 (Ohio 1942); Williamson v. Jones, 19 S.E. 436 (W. Va. 1894).

(n18)Footnote 150. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976).

In Ohio a fee tail vests the estate in the grantee for life and with remainder to the issue. Eisenmann v. Eisenmann, 370 N.E.2d 788 (Ohio 1976).

(n19)Footnote 151. Weatherly v. Purcell, 234 S.W.2d 32 (Ark. 1950); Sauls v. Cox, 67 N.E.2d 187 (Ill. 1946); Barker v. Walker, 85 N.E.2d 748 (Ill. 1949);Beasley v. Beasley, 88 N.E.2d 435 (Ill. 1949) (the remainder is vested in children then living, subject to opening up to let in afterborn); Pixlee v. Petty, 274 S.W.2d 257 (Mo. 1955).

The Ohio fee tail statute Ohio Rev. Code Ann. § 2131.08 does not limit the estate to one for life in the first taker but merely restricts the entailment to the immediate issue of the first taker. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976).

(n20)Footnote 152. Conn. Gen. Stat. § 5001. See now Conn. Gen. Stat. § 47.3. Each estate given in fee tail shall be an absolute estate in fee simple to the issue of the first donee in tail. (Connecticut judges have said that this statute is declaratory of the common law of that state.)

Ohio Rev. Code § 2131.08 ... All estates given in tail, by deed or will, in lands or tenements lying within this state, shall be and remain in absolute estate in fee simple to the issue of the first donee in tail...

R.I. Gen. Laws § 33-610 ... shall not vest a fee tail estate in the first devisee but an estate for life only, and the remainder shall on his decease vest in his children or issue generally agreeably to the direction of such will.

To A and her heirs by her present husband created life estate with remainder vested subject to opening up with the children being heirs and the class closing on husband's death under statute converting fee tail into life estate with remainder over. Steele v. Robinson, 251 S.W.2d 1001 (Ark. 1952).

(n21)Footnote 153. In 1936, the states thus determining the consequences of a limitation formerly sufficient to create an estate tail were twenty-four. In twenty-two states this result was the result of statutes, all explicit, but varying extensively in wording and somewhat in operation. In the remaining two states (Maryland and New Hampshire) the result was inferred from statutes not explicitly dealing with this problem. The authorities upon which this classification is made are given below, with details as to the major variations in the significant statutes.

Ala. Code § 35-4-3. Every estate in real or personal property in fee tail, now or hereafter created, becomes an estate in fee simple, and the person in whom such a conditional fee vests has the same power over the estate as in case of pure and absolute fees.

Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 33-224. When any person becomes seized in fee tail of an estate of inheritance, such person, instead of becoming seized thereof in fee tail, shall be deemed seized thereof in fee simple. Where estates of inheritance heretofore have been devised, granted or conveyed by a tenant in tail such devise, grantor conveyance, shall be deemed a devise, grant or conveyance in fee simple.

Cal. Civ. Code § 763 - 764.

§ 763. Estates tail are abolished, and every estate which would be at common law adjudged to be a fee-tail is a fee-simple; and if no valid remainder is limited thereon, is a fee-simple absolute.

§ 764. Where a remainder in fee is limited upon any estate, which would by the common law be adjudged a fee-tail, such remainder is valid as a contingent limitation upon a fee, and vests in possession on the death of the first taker, without issue living at the time of his death.

Ind. Code § 32-1-2-33. Estates tail are abolished; and any estate which, according to the common law, would be adjudged a fee tail, shall hereafter be adjudged a fee simple; and if no valid remainder shall be limited thereon, shall be a fee simple absolute.

Ky. Rev. Stat. § 381.070. All estates heretofore or hereafter created, which, in former times, would have been deemed estates entailed, shall henceforth be held to be estates in fee simple; and every limitation on such an estate shall be held valid, if the same would be valid when limited upon an estate in fee simple.

Md. Real Prop. Code § 2-102 dealing with the power of the owner of an estate in fee tail to convey an estate in fee simple absolute; and Art. 46, § 1 dealing with the law of descent of an estate in fee tail. These two statutes have been construed to make that which before was an estate in fee tail into an estate in fee simple absolute. Newton v. Griffith, 1 H. & G. 77 (Md. 1827).

Mich. Stat. Ann., § 26.3 similar to California.

Minn. Stat. §§ 500.03 - 500.04. similar to Arizona.

Miss. Code § 89-1-15. Estates in fee tail are prohibited; and every estate which, but for this statute, would be an estate in fee tail, shall be an estate in fee simple; but any person may make a conveyance or a devise of lands to a succession of donees then living, and upon the death of the last of said successors to any person or any heir.

N. H. Jewell v. Warner, 35 N.H. 176 (1857);Dennett v. Dennett, 40 N.H. 498 (1860); Merrill v. American Baptist Missionary Union, 62 A. 647 (N.H. 1905).

N.J. Stat. Ann. § 46:3-15. Whenever any conveyance, will or instrument in writing shall hereafter be made, whereby any grantee, devisee or other person shall become seized in law or in equity of such estate in any real estate, as under the Statute of the Thirteenth of Edward I (called the Statute of Entails), would have been held an estate in fee tail of any type or character, such conveyance, will or instrument shall vest an estate in fee simple in such grantee, devisee or other person.

N.Y. Est. Powers & Trusts Laws § 6-1.2, similar to California.

N.C. Gen. Stat. § 41-1. Every person seized of an estate in tail shall be deemed to be seized of the same in fee simple; and all sales and conveyances, made bona fide and for valuable consideration, since the first day of January, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-seven, by any tenant in tail in actual possession of any real estate where such estate has been conveyed in fee simple, shall be good and effectual in law to bar any tenant in tail and in remainder of and from all claim, action, and right of entry whatsoever, of, in, and to such entailed estate, against any purchaser, his heirs, or assigns, now in actual possession of such estate, in the same manner as if such tenant in tail had possessed the same in fee simple.

N.D. Cent. Code, § 47-04-05 (similar to California).

Okla. Stat. tit. 60, § 24 (similar to California).

Pa. Stat. 20, §§ 2516, 6116.

Tit. 20, § 225. Whenever by any devise an estate in fee tail would be created, according to the common law of this State, such devise shall be taken and construed to pass an estate in fee simple, and as such shall be inheritable and freely alienable.

Tit. 68, § 124. Whenever hereafter by any gift, conveyance or devise, an estate in fee tail would be created according to the existing laws of this State, it shall be taken and construed to be an estate in fee simple, and as such shall be inheritable and freely alienable. [The provision of this section as to devises was repealed by P.L. 403, § 27, which enacted, in the place of the part repealed, tit. 20, § 225, given supra.]

Tenn. Code Ann, § 64-102. Any person seized or possessed of an estate in general or special tail, whether by purchase or descent, shall be held and deemed to be seized and possessed of the same in fee simple, fully and absolutely, without any condition or limitation whatsoever, to him, his heirs and assigns, forever, and shall have full power and authority to sell or devise the same as he thinks proper; and such estate shall descend under the same rules as other estates in fee simple.

Va. Code 1950, § 55-12 (similar to Kentucky).

W. Va. Code, § 36-1-12 (similar to Kentucky).

Wis. Stat. § 700.08 (similar to Arizona).

Remainder to A and her bodily heirs or words having the meaning of bodily heirs creates remainder in fee to A as a rule of law.Dempsey v. Davis, 136 S.W. 975 (Ark. 1911); Eubanks v. McDonald, 283 S.W.2d 166 (Ark. 1955).

Under the Ohio statute the creation of a fee tail vests the entire estate in tail in the first taker. But when he dies his immediate heirs of the body take a fee simple absolute. This right of the heirs is a new possibility but the tenant in tail cannot defeat it and if he dies without issue the property reverts to the donor. Pollock v. Speidel, 17 Ohio St. 439 (1867); Dungan v. Kline, 90 N.E. 938 (Ohio 1910); Cook v. Hardin County Bank, 63 N.E.2d 686 (Ohio 1945) (judgment against tenant in tail does not affect issue).

The Ohio fee tail statute, Ohio Rev. Code § 2131.08, does not connect the estate to one for life in the first taker but merely restricts the entailment to the immediate issue of the donee. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976).

Fee tail in Wyoming for a single lifetime was repealed. Wyo. Laws ch. 93, § 1. See now Wyo. Stat. Ann. § 34-1-137.

(n22)Footnote 154. Lytle v. Hulen, 275 P. 45 (Or. 1929).

(n23)Footnote 155. William F. Fratcher, Fee Tail in Michigan, 4 U. Det. L. J. 19 (1940).

(n24)Footnote 156. In Oklahoma fee tails are converted into fee simples but remainders over after fee tails are valid as conditional limitations over after fee simple vesting on death of the first taker without issue living at his death. Okla. Stat. tit. 60, §§ 24 - 25, 41.

In Oregon, effective June 15, 1971, fee simple conditional or fee tail became a fee simple absolute and limitations thereover created a limitation upon fee simple absolute. Ore. Rev. Stat. § 93.250.

Will construed as creating life estate and remainder to heirs of the body. In re Wilson's Will, 133 S.E.2d 189 (N.C.1963).

Virginia converts fee tail into fee simple. Va. Code § 55-12.

(n25)Footnote 157. Conn. Stat. § 46-3; Ohio Rev. Code § 2131.08; R. I. Gen. Laws § 33-6-10 (deeds only).

Holding that a reversion arises after a fee tail and that the reversion is a vested estate capable of alienation, inter vivos, descent, and passing by will. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976).

The Ohio statute which converts an estate tail into a fee simple in the hands of the issue of the first donee in tail does not change the nature of the estate entailed in the donee from an inheritable estate to an estate for life merely but simply restricts entailment to the immediate issue of the donee. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976).

(n26)Footnote 158. Ind. Code § 32-1-2-33.

In Kansas while the fee tail also becomes a life estate with remainder over, Kans. Gen. Stat. § 58-502, the remainder is vested in the children living at the time of the deed. Waite v. Schmidt, 245 P.2d 975 (Kan. 1952).

In Missouri a fee tail is converted into a life estate with remainder over. Mo. Rev. Stat. § 442.470. But the remainder over, though alienable, is contingent. Grimes v. Rush, 197 S.W.2d 310 (Mo. 1946).

Fee tail converted into a life estate with contingent remainder. Moore v. Moore, 329 S.W.2d 742 (Mo. 1959).

In Kentucky fee tails are now fee simples but limitations on fee are preserved. Ky. Rev. Stat., § 381.070.

(n27)Footnote 159. *In re Reeves, 94 A. 511 (Del.1915); Caccamo v. Banning, 75 A.2d 222 (Del.1950); Willey v. Haley, 60 Me. 176 (1872);*Laidler v. Young, 2 H. & J. 59 (Md. 1804);Wheelwright v. Wheelwright, 2 Mass. 447 (1807); Williams v. Hichborn, 4 Mass. 189 (1808); Whittaker v. Whittaker, 99 Mass. 364 (1868); Gilkie v. Marsh, 71 N.E. 703 (Mass. 1904); Cooper v. Cooper, 6 R.I. 261 (1859); Lippitt v. Huston, 8 R.I. 415 (1867); Paine v. Sackett, 61 A. 753 (R.I. 1905).

(n28)Footnote 160. Willey v. Haley, 60 Me. 176(1872); Williams v. Hichborn, 4 Mass. 189 (1808); Cuffee v. Milk, 51 Mass. (10 Met.) 366 (1845);Allen v. Ashley School Fund, 102 Mass. 262 (1869);Coombs v. Anderson, 138 Mass. 376 (1885).

(n29)Footnote 161. Sconce v. Neece, 268 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1954); Wise v. Potomac Nat'l Bank, 65 N.E.2d 767 (Ill. 1946); Spicer v. Moss, 100 N.E.2d 761 (Ill. 1951); Sloan v. Beatty, 116 N.E.2d 375 (Ill. 1953);Mattingly v. Washburn, 196 S.W.2d 624 (Mo. 1946);Welsh v. Weyrich, 123 N.E.2d 661 (Ohio 1952).

(n30)Footnote 162. In a gift to "A and the heirs of his body," "heirs" did not mean children and A took a fee tail converted by statute into a life estate with remainder to heirs of the body.Spicer v. Moss, 100 N.E.2d 761 (Ill. 1951).

See Edgerton v. Harrison, 52 S.E.2d 357 (N.C.1949), to the effect that "heirs of the body" will not be descriptio personarum under the statute unless the creator's intent to do so in the first instance was clear.

(n31)Footnote 163. To A and on her death to her children and their issue did not create a fee tail converted into a fee simple.Thoma v. Coats, 240 P.2d 736 (Okla. 1952).

In Rose v. Rose, 60 S.E.2d 45 (Va. 1950) a deed to A and his children and children's children did not create a fee tail, the language was of purchase, not limitation.

(n32)Footnote 164. The estate will not be construed to be a fee tail unless the intent is clearly intended. Wood River Oil & Ref. Co. v. Madden, 220 P.2d 154 (Kan. 1950).

Tucker v. Tucker, 78 Ky. 503 (1880) (where the deed was to a married woman and "the heirs of" her husband);Brann v. Elzey, 83 Ky. 440 (1885), 7 Ky. L 539;Fletcher v. Tyler, 17 S.W. 282 (Ky. 1891) (where the word "heirs" was declared to be used in the sense of "children");Belcher v. Ramey, 191 S.W. 520 (Ky. 1917); Hodges v. Fleetwood, 9 S.E. 640 (N.C. 1889) (where a deed to a married woman for life, "then to descend to her heirs, the children of" her husband, habendum to the "party of the second part and their heirs," was held to create a life estate only in the woman, with a contingent remainder to the children described).

(n33)Footnote 165.

> The language in the deed, 'heirs of her body by myself as husband,' unrestricted by any other terms of the deed, and in the absence of living children of the wife by the grantor, would create an estate tail special at the common law, upon which our statute would operate. But it being evident that the word 'heirs' is used as the equivalent of 'children,' and there being living children of the grantor by his wife, at the time the deed was executed, the terms employed in the deed and quoted above must be construed, not as words of limitation and inheritance, but as a description of a class of persons to take under the deed as purchasers, and the language is sufficiently definite and certain to be operative for that purpose.

Sullivan v. McLaughlin, 11 So. 447 (Ala. 1892), per Thornton, J. See Darden v. Burns, 6 Ala. 362 (1844); Williams v. Graves, 17 Ala. 62 (1849); Williams v. McConico, 36 Ala. 22 (1860); Robertson v. Johnston, 36 Ala. 197 (1860); May v. Ritchie, 65 Ala. 602(1880); Wikle v. McGraw, 8 So. 341 (Ala. 1890); Slayton v. Blount, 9 So. 241 (Ala. 1891).

In Dungan v. Kline, 90 N.E. 938 (Ohio 1910), land was devised to "Elizabeth Wilson and the heirs of her body." An Ohio statute provided that "all estates given in tail shall be and remain an absolute estate in fee simple to the issue of the first donee in tail." During the lifetime of Elizabeth, two of her seven children, William and George, purported to convey their interests by deed to Dungan. William and George then died during the lifetime of their mother, Elizabeth, each survived by a child, Adolph, and Etta. On the death of Elizabeth a controversy arose, between Dungan on one side and Adolph and Etta on the other, as to the ownership of the two sevenths interest which William and George had purported to convey to Dungan. The court decided in favor of Adolph and Etta, saying in part: "During the life of Elizabeth Wilson, first donee in tail, her children William T. and George H. Wilson had no estate or interest in the premises devised to her which they of right could alien or convey."

(n34)Footnote 166. Bibo v. Bibo, 74 N.E.2d 808 (Ill. 1947).

(n35)Footnote 167. Grimes v. Rush, 197 S.W.2d 310 (Mo. 1946).

(n36)Footnote 168. Tipton v. La Rose, 27 Ind. 484 (1867); Andrews v. Spurlin, 35 Ind. 262 (1871); Nunn v. Wright, 197 S.W.2d 439 (Ky. 1946); Combs v. Slone, 208 S.W.2d 304 (Ky. 1948); Kirk v. Furgerson, 46 Tenn. (6 Cold.) 479 (1869); Singletary v. Hill, 43 Tex. 588 (1875).

(n37)Footnote 169. Lytle v. Hulen, 275 P. 45 (Or. 1929).

Statute prescribing that every person seized of an estate in tail shall be deemed to be seized of the same in fee simple absolute enlarges the fee tail estate into a fee simple absolute. Pittman v. Stanley, 56 S.E.2d 657 (N.C. 1949).

(n38)Footnote 170. Hill v. Lang, 86 S.E.2d 498 (Ga. 1955).

(n39)Footnote 171. Pixlee v. Petty, 274 S.W.2d 257 (Mo. 1955).

(n40)Footnote 172. Tapley v. Dill, 217 S.W.2d 369 (Mo. 1949).

(n41)Footnote 173. Singer v. First Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 24 S.E.2d 47 (Ga. 1943); Lewis v. Fry, 26 S.E.2d 122 (Ga. App. 1943).

(n42)Footnote 174. Cook v. Hardin County Bank Co., 63 N.E.2d 686 (Ohio App. 1945).

(n43)Footnote 175. In re Manor Farm, 2 All E.R. 572.

(n44)Footnote 176. Spencer v. Spruell, 63 N.E. 621 (Ill. 1902).

(n45)Footnote 177. Hayes v. Hammond, 143 N.E.2d 693 (Mass. 1957).

(n46)Footnote 178. Guida v. Thompson, 160 N.E.2d 153 (Ohio 1957) (where statute converted fee tail into a fee tail in the first taker with a remainder in fee simple absolute to the children of the first taker, the grantee could not defeat the children's interest by conveying during his lifetime).

(n47)Footnote 179. Caccamo v. Banning, 75 A.2d 222 (Del. 1950) (in Delaware a limitation over on death without issue after a fee simple absolute creates a fee tail in the first taker).

A gift in general terms not showing what estate is intended, followed by a gift over on indefinite failure of issue creates a fee tail. Monroe v. Leckey, 142 N.E.2d 314 (Ohio 1956).

(n48)Footnote 180. Summers v. Smith, 21 N.E. 191 (Ill. 1889).

Under a statute converting a fee tail into a life estate with remainder to his bodily heirs the testator or grantor retains a reversion vesting in possession if the life tenant dies without issue. Bedford v. Bedford, 274 S.W.2d 528 (Tenn. App. 1954).

(n49)Footnote 181. Mays v. Mays, 42 N.E.2d 446 (Ohio 1942).

(n50)Footnote 182. Howell v. Deady, 48 F. Supp. 104 (D. Or. 1939).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Moon Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing the fee tail.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 18 FEE TAIL *

2-18 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 18.05

AUTHOR: by Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 18.05 The Conditional Fee.

In those jurisdictions n183 where the concept of the fee tail is not recognized, as distinguished from those states where de donis n184 became part of the common law, but where the legal consequences of a fee tail have been changed by statute, the use of language which would have otherwise created a fee tail could have one of four consequences: (a) creating a fee simple, (b) creating a conditional fee, (c) creating a tenancy in common, or (d) creating a life estate with remainder over.

During the period immediately prior to the passage of the statute de donis conditionalibus, in a conveyance to "A and the heirs of his body" the words "heirs of his body" were words of limitation not of purchase. That is, no immediate estate was thereby given to A's issue. Instead what A received was a fee simple conditioned upon his having issue. If there were no issue born then the estate reverted to the donor. But upon the birth of issue A's estate ripened into a fee simple absolute. The conditional fee was, to all effects, destroyed by de donis at a period before the nature of the future interest reserved to the donor was ascertained. Was it a reversion, a possibility of reverter, or was it something in the nature of a mere right of re-entry? n185

The conditional fee died in England with de donis but its existence has been revived in several of the states which do not recognize de donis and in one state n186 it appears to exist contemporaneously with a fee tail.

At common law the fee simple conditional was limited to particular heirs to the exclusion of others and if there was birth of issue the fee became absolute in the grantee with reversion to the grantor if the grantee had never had issue answering the description. n187

Since the fee simple conditional ceased to exist before any serious amount of legal writing appeared in English jurisprudence, we have no classical background of knowledge as to its characteristics and there has been very little case law in this country outside of South Carolina. Hence the qualities of the fee simple conditional must remain largely conjectural. n188

Thus doubt exists as to the nature of the conditional fee. There is authority to the effect that it was in effect a fee simple upon the condition subsequent that if the donee died without heirs it would revert to the donor. n189 Blackstone considered that the estate became absolute on the birth of issue. n190 Coke, n191 however, insisted that it lacked these characteristics of a fee simple absolute: The donor had a "reverter" if the donee died without issue and if his issue died without issue then it still reverted. Coke admits these fee-simple characteristics, however, (1) to alien, (2) to forfeit for treason, greater or lesser, and (3) to charge with rent or common recovery.

The Restatement n192 takes the position that a fee simple conditional has the same characteristics of a fee simple absolute except:

(1) The tenant has no power to devise any interest in the land. n193

(2) On death of the tenant the land passes: (a) to the specified issue or to the person entitled under an executory interest limited as an alternative to the interest of the specified issue; or (b) if there is no such issue and no person having such an executory interest, to the person entitled under the possibility of reverter or to the person entitled under an executory interest limited as an alternative to the possibility of reverter. n194 Such heirs take a fee-simple conditional, but the heirs have during the tenants' lifetime a mere expectancy. Thus the heir takes subject to the reversion.

(3) Dower and curtesy are subject to the reversionary interest in the grantor (called a possibility of reverter or power of termination). n195

(4) After birth of issue the tenant can transfer a fee simple absolute or any other interest in land, n196 and

(5) the tenant's interest is subject to claims of creditors as is any other fee simple absolute. n197

(6) Before birth of issue the tenant can alien subject to the grantor's interest and to limitation over, n198 and the creditor's rights are limited accordingly. n199

(7) The tenant is liable for waste before birth of issue but not after. n200

(8) The estate can be partitioned. n201

The Restatement's position thus conflicts with Blackstone who felt that the fee became absolute on birth of issue, n202 but is supported by Chitty. n203

The common-law conditional fee was not, however, a fee simple since a gift over could be limited upon it just as a remainder could after de donis be limited on a fee tail. n204 A fee simple could not be limited after a fee simple.

The words "conditional fee" are, however, often used by the courts in speaking of what is more properly termed a fee upon a condition subsequent or a fee subject to a conditionallimitation. n205

The Restatement n206 says that in those states where statutes or judicial decisions have abolished the fee tail outright without providing an alternative language which would have created a condition fee at common law or a fee tail under de donis, there is now created a fee simple absolute unless the manifested purposes of the conveyor are more nearly attained by creating an estate for life in favor of the first taker and a remainder in fee simple in favor of the issue of the first taker.

As at early common law, the conditional fee ripens into a fee simple absolute upon birth of issue. n207

Birth of issue merely gives the holder of a conditional fee the power of alienation. It does not convert into a fee simple absolute. n208

The fee simple conditional exists in this country clearly inthe states of Indiana, n209 Iowa, n210 Oregon, n211 and South Carolina. n212 It probably also exists in Nebraska. n213 It may also exist in other states which have not by judicial decision or by statute admitted the existence of de donis and which have no statutes controlling the legal effect of the language which gives rise to a fee tail. n214

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: conditional fee! or fee simple conditional

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 183. The fee tail is not recognized in the states of Iowa, Nebraska, Oregon and South Carolina. Florida, Hawaii and Texas have said that the fee tail is socially undesirable and therefore is abolished. The result here, however, is to create either a fee simple absolute or a fee simple subject to a conditional limitation.

Fee simple conditional. Scarborough v. Scarborough, 142 S.E.2d 706 (S.C. 1965).

(n2)Footnote 184. Colorado does not recognize a fee simple conditional. Sconce v. Neece, 268 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1954).

Fee simple conditional recognized by virtue of a statute construed as repealing de donis. Rowland v. Warren, 10 Or. 129 (1882).

(n3)Footnote 185. Littleton, Tenures, § 19; 1 Coke on Littleton, § 22b. A remainder could not be limited on a conditional fee. 4 Kent's Comm. 11 supra note 50. Possibility of reverter followed a conditional fee before de donis.

(n4)Footnote 186. The estate of fee conditional exists in South Carolina as a result of the refusal to accept the English statute de donis. Creswell v. Bank of Greenwood, 41 S.E.2d 393 (S.C. 1947).

Where a deed dated December 21, 1911, prior to the enactment of a statute abolishing the rule in Shelley's Case, provided "to have and to hold all and singular the said premises before mentioned unto the said 'grantee' until her death and then to her bodily issue and heirs and assigns forever, "grantee subsequently having issue, acquired a fee conditional estate which immediately ripened into a fee simple absolute." Smith v. Hanna, 56 S.E.2d 339 (S.C. 1949).

Britton, treated a limitation to A and B and their heirs lawfully be gotten as a condition precedent.

2 Coke on Littleton, at 333, disputes this and claims it to be a conditional fee.

To A and the heirs of her body creates a fee simple conditional -- A's surviving children took no more than a fee conditional title which could not be passed by the will of the child who died subsequent to A's death. Scarborough v. Scarborough, 142 S.E.2d 706 (S.C. 1965).

South Carolina has now limited its fee simple conditional while holding that where the first taker dies leaving issue this is fulfilled and issue can have fee simple absolute without having bodily heirs. Scarborough v. Scarborough, 154 S.E.2d 110 (S.C. 1967).

(n5)Footnote 187. Purvis v. McElveen, 106 S.E.2d 913 (S.C. 1959).

(n6)Footnote 188. A "conditional fee" may be created though the condition is that the heirs of the grantee shall never take so that the property will revert unless the first taker aliens or devises. Cragin v. Frost Nat'l Bank, 164 S.W.2d 24 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942).

(n7)Footnote 189. Willion v. Berkley, Plowd. 233, 75 Eng. Rep. 339. Thus a writ of formedon in reverter would lie to the donor hut not a writ of formedon in remainder. Ford v. Flint, 40 Vt. 382 (1867).

Britton felt that the condition was precedent so that the grantee in a grant to one and his heirs had but a life estate with the fee in the issue. But 2 Coke on Littleton, at 333 insisted that this was a conditional fee.

(n8)Footnote 190. 2 Blackstone, supra note 24, at 110, 111. Williams, supra note 9 (17th ed.) 103, states that after birth of issue upon alienation both the grantor's reversion and any limitation over were destroyed.

(n9)Footnote 191. Coke on Littleton, at § 19. 2 Coke on Littleton, at 233, 234. 356 Paine's Case, 8 Coke 35; Willion v. Berkley, Plowd. 233, 75 Eng. Rep. 339.

(n10)Footnote 192. Restatement, Property, § 77.

(n11)Footnote 193. Restatement, Property, § 71.

(n12)Footnote 194. Restatement, Property, § 76.

(n13)Footnote 195. Restatement, Property § 75.

11 Bracton, ch. 6, f. 17, recognized two types of conditional fees. "To A and his heirs if he have heirs begotten of his body" which was a life estate with reversion to the grantor if the condition was not met but a fee absolute if issue were born. And "to A to have and to hold to him and his heirs begotten on his lawfully wedded wife" in this case there was a life estate with reversion until heirs were born and as long as there were heirs. But it passed into an estate for life wherever there ceased to be heirs. The donee could, however, enfeoff with warranty binding the issue. Bracton admits, however, that this last was disputed. Hence even at this time the controversy which led to the de donis had arisen and that there was a contention that "heirs of the body" enfeoffed the heirs together with their parents.

(n14)Footnote 196. Restatement, Property, § 69.

A deed to the daughter and the heirs of his body created a conditional fee which became a fee simple absolute on the birth of issue. Prichard v. Department of Revenue, 164 N.W.2d 113 (Iowa 1969).

(n15)Footnote 197. Restatement, Property, § 74.

(n16)Footnote 198. Restatement, Property, § 70.

(n17)Footnote 199. Restatement, Property, § 74.

(n18)Footnote 200. Restatement, Property, § 73.

(n19)Footnote 201. Restatement, Property, § 72.

(n20)Footnote 202. 2 Blackstone, supra note 24 110, 111. King v. Rea, 56 Ind. 1 (1877); Jewell v. Warner, 35 N.H. 176 (1877); Orndoff v. Turman, 2 Leigh 200 (Va. 1857).

(n21)Footnote 203. Joseph Chitty, The Practice of Law in All Its Departments (2d ed. 1830) §§ 242, 245.

(n22)Footnote 204. 2 Bracton, ch. 6, f. 17.

(n23)Footnote 205. Church of God v. Glann, 114 N.E.2d 98 (Ohio App. 1952); Dingess v. Drake, 64 S.E.2d 601 (W. Va. 1951).

(n24)Footnote 206. Church of God v. Glann, supra note 205; Dingess v. Drake, supra note205.

(n25)Footnote 207. Crawford v. Masters, 82 S.E. 793 (S.C. 1914).

(n26)Footnote 208. To A and the heirs of her body created a fee simple conditional. If issue is from J it may alienate but if she does not alienate the property passes in the descending line until one does alienate. Scarborough v. Scarborough, 154 S.E.2d 110 (S.C. 1967).

(n27)Footnote 209. Taylor v. Stephens, 74 N.E. 980 (Ind. 1905). This is true even though Indiana recognized de donis.

(n28)Footnote 210. Pierson v. Lane, 14 N.W. 90 (Iowa 1882); Kepler v. Larson, 108 N.W. 1033 (Iowa 1906); Sagers v. Sagers, 138 N.W. 911 (Iowa 1912); Shope v. Unknown Claimants, 156 N.W. 850 (Iowa 1916).

(n29)Footnote 211. Lytle v. Hulen, 275 P. 45 (Or. 1929).

(n30)Footnote 212. Creswell v. Bank of Greenwood, 41 S.E.2d 393 (S.C. 1947); Smith v. Hanna, 56 S.E.2d 339 (S.C. 1949).

In limitation over to life tenants "issue" meant heirs of the body creating a conditional fee. Woodle v. Tilghman, 107 S.E.2d 4 (S.C. 1959).

(n31)Footnote 213. Yates v. Yates, 178 N.W. 262 (Neb. 1920); Myers v. Myers, 190 N.W. 491 (Neb. 1922).

(n32)Footnote 214. Alaska, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, Utah and Washington. See Introductory Note to Restatement, Property, ch. 5.

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Moon Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing the fee tail.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 18 FEE TAIL

2-18 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 18.01

Supp. to § 18.01 Overview of Fee Simple Conditional and Fee Tail.

[Go To Main]

Add new note 2.1 after "in the United States today": n2.1

Change Scarborough cite to: 142 S.E.2d 706 (S.C. 1965).

Add:

But see Brown v. Johnson, 97 S.W.3d 924, 926-28 (Ark. Ct. App. 2003) (holding that the specific language of the deed was intended to include natural children only, and discussing the exclusion of adopted issue following the Arkansas adoption statute).

Add:

Hess v. Proffer, 87 S.W.3d 432 (Mo. App. 2002) (Missouri abolished fee tails long before 1937. A devise using the language of fee tails creates: 1) a life estate in the named devisee; 2) a remainder in the heirs of the body of the named devisee; and 3) a reversion to the devisor).

Dempsey v. Dempsey, 795 N.E.2d 996 (Ill. App. Ct. 2003) (stating that when "an ownership interest would have been a fee tail at common law, the estate is statutorily converted into a life estate in the grantee, with the remainder in fee to the grantee's children").

add

It is fair to say that the fee tail today has virtually no active role in real estate transactions, but occurs only as incidental language in various state constitutional or statutory provisions. See, e.g., Elkins v. Sears, 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47118 (S.D. Tex. June 17, 2008) ; Investors Group, Inc. v. Annunziata (In re Annunziata), 2008 Bankr. LEXIS 383 (Bankr. D. Mass. Feb. 12, 2008) .

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 2.1. See Max Gibbons, Of Windfalls and Property Rights: Palazzolo and the Regulatory Takings Notice Debate, 50 UCLA L. Rev. 1259, 1275-76 (2003) (discussing the common law trend towards unrestrained real property transfer, and the gradual demise of the fee tail instrument in England and the United States).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 18 FEE TAIL

2-18 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 18.02

Supp. to § 18.02 The Development and Nature of the Fee Tail.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Dempsey v. Dempsey, 795 N.E.2d 996 (Ill. App. Ct. 2003) .

Add:

John G. Shively, 78 Wash. U. L.Q. 371 2000 note, The Death of the Life in Being--the Required Federal Response to State Abolition of the Rule Against Perpetuities, n. 28:

> The fee tail estate would last as long as there were lineal descendants of the original donee and prevented the original donee from conveying the property and thereby eliminating the property interest of the heirs or reversioner. The fee tail progressed to allow very specific descriptions of who would take after the life tenant. A donor could create a fee tail male or female, so that only male or female descendants, respectively, could take. He could make the fee tail special or general so that the descendants to take could only be from a specified wife or from any wife.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 18 FEE TAIL

2-18 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 18.03

Supp. to § 18.03 Language Creating a Fee Tail

[Go To Main]

Add:

Rutherford County v. Wilson, 2002 Tenn. App. LEXIS 145 (Feb. 28, 2002) (Tennessee courts have adopted presumptive meanings of technical terms such as "heirs of the body." Absent language to the contrary, "heirs of the body" means lineal descendents and may include generations after children as well as children).

Add:

Dempsey v. Dempsey, 795 N.E.2d 996, 999 (Ill. App. Ct. 2003) (holding that the words "in fee simple" at the end of the devise precluded the possibility of creating a fee tail).

Add:

Rutherford County v. Wilson, No. M2000-01382-COA-R3-CV, 2002 Tenn. App. LEXIS 145 (Feb. 28, 2002) , affirmed in part and reversed in part by, 2003 Tenn. LEXIS 368 (Tenn., May 6, 2003) (Where a remainder is limited to the heirs of the body of a person, to whom a life estate in the same premises is given, the persons who, on the termination of the life estate, are heirs of body of such tenant, shall take as purchasers, by virtue of the remainder so limited to them).

Add:

Dempsey v. Dempsey, 795 N.E.2d 996 (Ill. App. Ct. 2003) (discussing the inapplicability of the Illinois Conveyances Act in the case, as a result of the failure to create a fee tail by devise).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 18 FEE TAIL

2-18 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 18.04

Supp. to § 18.04 The Estate Tail.

[Go To Main]

after "Texas" in line 3, add new note 138.1: n138.1

Change the text in the footnote to read as follows:

"Kansas adopted a statute in 1937 changing the effect of language that would have created a fee tail. Such language now creates a life estate in the first taker and a fee simple absolute in the next taker."

Add:

Colorado has now by statute changed the effect of language that formerly created a fee tail: instead of creating a fee tail in the first taker, such language creates a fee simple in the first taker. Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 38-30-106.

Add:

Marianne M. Jennings, Real Property Could Use Some Updating, 24 Real Est. L.J. 103, 109:

In the remainder of the states, you're still going to have a joker here and there who will create a fee tail in a will. Then the judges are left with a large group of relatives strategically placed throughout the court room screaming things such as, "I'm a bodily heir and you're not," or "Hey, you're nothing but a collateral heir." The nonlineal heirs, of course, respond maturely with things such as, "He never liked you. He just never understood real property. He thought it was a fee simple subject to a condition subsequent." So, the judges or legislatures, are left to enter the fray and make a decision. The states judges are not consistent.

Some states turn a fee tail into a life estate. [see Alaska Stat. § 34.27.020 (1990); Ark. Code Ann. § 18-12- 301 (Michie 1987); Conn. Gen. Stat. Ann. § 52-500; (West 1986); [Go To Main] (West 1969 & Supp. 1994); Idaho Code § 55-206 (1988); Ill. Ann. Stat. ch. 765 P 5/6 (Smith-Hurd 1993); Kan. Stat. Ann. § 58- 502 (1983 & Supp. 1993); Mo. Ann. Stat. § 474.470 (Vernon 1992); Nev. Rev. Stat. § 111.101 (1991); N.M. Stat. Ann. § 47-1-18 (Michie 1991); N.D. Cent. Code § 47-04.05 (1974); Ohio Rev. Code Ann. § 2107.49 (Baldwin 1987 & Supp. 1993); Wash. Rev. Code Ann. § 11.12.180 (West 1992).]

So, in "To A and his bodily heirs," A gets a life estate and A's heirs (issue) have a remainder.

The majority of states give A a fee simple of some kind. [See Ala. Code § 35-4-3 (1991); Ariz. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 33- 324 (1990); Cal. Civ. Code § 763 (West 1982 & Supp. 1993); Colo. Rev. Stat. § 38-30-106 (1982 & Supp. 1993); Ga. Code Ann. § 44-6-24 (Harrison Co. 1990); Ind. Code Ann. § 30-1-2-33 (Burns 1980 & Supp. 1993); Ky. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 381.060 (Baldwin 1979); Md. Est. & Trusts Code Ann. § 2-102 (1991); Mich. Comp. Laws Ann. § 26-3 (Callaghan 1992); Minn. Stat. Ann. § 500.3 (West 1990); Miss. Code Ann. § 89-1-15 (1972); Mont. Code Ann. § 70-15-204 (1993); Neb. Rev. Stat. § 76-110 (1990); N.J. Stat. Ann. § 46: 3-15 (West 1989); N.Y. Est. Powers & Trusts Law § 6-1.2 (McKinney 1992); N.C. Gen. Stat. § 41-1 (Supp. 1993); Okla. Stat. Ann. tit. 60, § 24 (West 1971); Or. Rev. Stat. § 93.250 (1993); 20 Pa. Cons. Stat. Ann. § 2516 (1975); Tenn. Code Ann. § 66-1-102 (1993); Tex. Prop. Code Ann. § 5.001 (West 1984); Utah Code Ann. § 78-41-1 (1994); Vt. Stat. Ann. tit. 27, § 1 (1989); Va. Code Ann. § 55-12 (Michie 1986); W. Va. Code § 36-1-12 (1985); Wis. Stat. Ann. § 700.08 (West 1981 & Supp. 1993); Wyo. Stat. § 34-1-137 (1989).]

These are the radical, left-wing states that throw caution to the wind and abandon property laws from the eleventh century. However, even these states split on the type of fee simple. One-half give A a fee simple absolute, but the other half will give up the fee tail if it's left to someone else: "To A and the heirs of his body, but if he leaves no issue, to B." B's interest is a goner if A has issue. South Carolina and Iowa give A a fee simple conditional. If a child is not born, A loses all at death--it's back to the grantor. [See Iowa Code Ann. § 557.2 (West 1992); S.C. Code Ann. §§ 27-5- 20,-30 (Law. Co-op. 1976).]

But disentailment is permitted in all states that allow a fee tail. Let's do the world and all first-year law students a favor and make the creation of a fee tail a felony."

First full paragraph:

Delete the first sentence.

Change the first sentence to read:

In most states the legal situation which gives rise to the fee tail is recognized, but the estate thus created is converted into a different type of estate. FN 150

Add:

Idaho Code § 55-206

Nev. Rev. Stat. § 111.101

Utah Code Ann. § 78-41-1

Wash. Rev. Code § 11.12.180

Change the citation to the Caffee case to:

81 So.2d 358 (Ala. 1955) .

Delete the following portion of FN 151:

Dempsey v. David, 98 Ark. 570, 136 S.W. 975 (Ark. 1911) ; Eubanks v. McDonald, 283 S.W.2d 166 (Ark. 1955) ; Anderson v. Webb, 406 S.W.2d 871 (Ark. 1966) (under Arkansas law a fee tail may be dissolved by the grantor, the life tenant or the remainderman).

Delete the following portion of FN 151:

Fanning v. Doan, 30 S.W. 1032 (Mo. 1895) ; Summet v. City Realty and Brokerage Co., 106 S.W. 614 (Mo.1907) ; Charles v. White, 112 S.W. 545 (Mo. 1908) ; Leeper v. Leeper, 147 S.W.2d 660 (Mo. 1941) ; Bullock v. People's Bank of Holcomb, 173 S.W.2d 753 (Mo. 1943) .

Delete the following portion of FN 151:

Colo. Stat. § 815 (similar to Arkansas). See now Col. Rev. Stat. § 38-30-106; Mo. Ann. Stat. § 442, 470 (similar to Arkansas);

Delete the parenthetical following the Vermont statutory citation at the end of FN 151.

Add:

Hess v. Proffer, 87 S.W.3d 432 (Mo. App. 2002) (fee tail converted to life estate with remainder to "bodily heirs" and reversion to devisor).

The content of this note should be in note 155.

Add:

Dempsey v. Dempsey, 795 N.E.2d 996 (Ill. App. Ct. 2003) .

Add:

Alaska St. § 34.27.020

Dempsey v. David, 98 Ark. 570, 136 S.W. 975 (Ark. 1911) ; Eubanks v. McDonald, 283 S.W.2d 166 (Ark. 1955) ; Anderson v. Webb, 406 S.W.2d 871 (Ark. 1966) (under Arkansas law a fee tail may be dissolved by the grantor, the life tenant or the remainderman).

Fanning v. Doan, 30 S.W. 1032 (Mo. 1895) ; Summet v. City Realty and Brokerage Co., 106 S.W. 614 (Mo.1907) ; Charles v. White, 112 S.W. 545 (Mo. 1908) ; Leeper v. Leeper, 147 S.W.2d 660 (Mo. 1941) ; Bullock v. People's Bank of Holcomb, 173 S.W.2d 753 (Mo. 1943)

The first three paragraphs of this note should be removed from this note and inserted in note 156.

The content of note 152 should be inserted at the beginning of note 155.

The statutory citations currently printed in note 156 should be deleted from note 156 and inserted in note 152.

Delete Kansas from the first sentence of the first full paragraph.

The third sentence of the first full paragraph should read: Louisiana has never considered the question either by statute or by judicial decision.

Add to Paragraph (1):

Colorado, Indiana, Nebraska, Oregon, Vermont

Add:

Colo. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 38-30-106; Ind. Code § 32-17-1-3; Neb. Rev. Stat. § 76-110; Or. Rev. Stat. § 93.250; Vt. Stan. Ann. tit. 27, § 1.

Add to Paragraph (2):

Alaska, Florida, Idaho, Kansas, Nevada, Ohio.

Delete:

Vermont.

Add new note 159.1:

Alaska St. § 34.27.020; Fla. Stat. Ann. § 689.14; Idaho Code § 55-206; Kan. Sta. Ann. § 58-502; Nev. Rev. Stat. Ann. § 111.101; Ohio Rev. Code Ann. § 2107.49 (but see also Ohio Rev. Code Ann. § 2131.08).

see

Paragraph (3)

Delete:

Rhode Island

Add:

Washington

Add new note 159.1 at the end of the first subparagraph: n159.1

Add:

Wash. Rev. Code Ann. § 11.12.180.

Delete: R.I. Gen. Laws § 33-6-10.

Change the Connecticut citation to:

§ 47-3.

Change the Indiana citation to:

32-17-1-3.

Add:

William A. Reppy, Jr., 73 Notre Dame L. Rev. 83, 94 November, 1997, Judicial Overkill in Applying the Rule in Shelley's Case:

> "In the third example of a court making an unnatural construction so that Shelley's Rule could apply, the remainder was to the male life tenant's "male heirs, equally ... ; and for want of heirs male, then to go in equal shares to his daughters." [Cooper v. Cooper, 6 R.I. 261 (1859) .]
>
> The Rule in Shelley's Case applies when the remainder is in fee tail as well as in fee simple. Hoping he had a fee tail male due to Shelley's Rule, the person named as life tenant purported to disentail under the Rhode Island procedure for doing so. In order to validate the attempt to disentail, the court, in an 1859 opinion, construed "heirs" as "heirs of the body," words which would enable Shelley's Rule to create a fee tail. [Fraser v. Chene, 2 Mich. 81 (1851) .]
>
> Whatever the preference for fee tail may have been in England 500 years earlier, by the mid-nineteenth century, the word "heirs" certainly was used in this country to include collaterals under "ordinary rules of construction."

FOOTNOTES:
(n2)Footnote 138.1. Victoria Mikesell Mather, 31 S. Tex. L. Rev. 223, 226-227, Feb. 1990 The Magic Circle: Inclusion of Adopted Children in Testamentary Class Gifts:

> Other courts, including those in Texas, appear to draw a distinction between class gifts to children and class gifts to bodily heirs, issue, or lineal descendants [Compare Vaughn v. Gunter, 458 S.W.2d 523,

527 (Tex. Civ. App.--Dallas) (allowing adopted child to share in conveyance to children), aff'd, 461 S.W.2d 599 (Tex. 1970) with Sharp v. Broadway Nat'l Bank, 761 S.W.2d 141, 143-44 (Tex. App.--San Antonio 1988, no writ) (adopted children did not share in gift to lineal descendants) and Diemer v. Diemer, 717 S.W.2d 160, 162 (Tex. App.--Houston [14th Dist.] 1986, writ ref'd n.r.e.) (adopted children not included in gift to issue).] by including adopted persons in a class gift to children, but excluding them when the class is described by a term with blood or biological connotations. [See Rein, Relatives by Blood, Adoption, and Association: Who Should Get What and Why, 37 Vand. L. Rev. 711, 734 (1984); see also Halbach, The Rights of Adopted Children Under Class Gifts, 50 Iowa L. Rev. 971, 980 (1965).]

At common law, the words issue or heirs of the body could operate to create a fee tail, an estate that could only pass to the lineal, bodily descendants of the original grantee. [See J. Cribbet & C. Johnson, Principles of the Law of Property 47-51 (3d ed. 1989).]

... [A]lthough many states are rejecting the stranger to the adoption rule, adopted children are by no means universally accepted as full family members for purposes of class gifts."

(n3)Footnote 159.1. In re Estate of Roller, 880 N.E.2d 549 (Ill. App. 2007) (use of term "heirs of the body" in a trust agreement did not overcome the statutory presumption the adopted children were excluded from benefitting from the trust.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 18 FEE TAIL

2-18 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 18.06

Supp. to § 18.06 Bibliography

[Go To Main]

Add to Articles:

Appel, Peter A. "The Embarrassing Rule Against Perpetuities." J. Legal Educ. Vol. 54 (2004) 264 (noting that the rule against perpetuities never applied to the fee tail).

Gibbons, Max "Of Windfalls and Property Rights: Palazzolo and the Regulatory Takings Notice Debate." UCLA L. Rev. Vol. 50 (2003) 1259.

Hart, John F. "A Less Proportion of Idle Proprietors': Madison, Property Rights, and the Abolition of Fee Tail," 58 Wash. & Lee L. Rev. 167 (Winter, 2001).

John G. Shively, 78 Wash. U. L.Q. 371 2000 note, The Death of the Life in Being--the Required Federal Response to State Abolition of the Rule Against Perpetuities, n. 28.

William A. Reppy, Jr., 73 Notre Dame L. Rev. 83, 94 Nov. 1997, Judicial Overkill in Applying the Rule in Shelley's Case.

Marianne M. Jennings, "Real Property Could Use Some Updating," 24 Real Est. L.J. 103, 109.

Victoria Mikesell Mather, 31 S. Tex. L. Rev. 223, 226-227, Feb. 1990, The Magic Circle: Inclusion of Adopted Children in Testamentary Class Gifts.

Raymond C. O'Brien, 10 Geo. Mason U. L. Rev. 383, 412, n.113, Spring, 1988 Analytical Principle: a Guide for Lapse, Survivorship, Death Without Issue, and the Rule.

Uriel H. Crocker and David H. Fishman, 42 Md. L. Rev. 496, 500-501, 1983 The History of a Maryland Title: a Conveyancer's Romance Renewed.

Stake, Jeffrey Evans. "Evolution of Rules in a Common Law System: Differential Litigation of the Fee Tail and Other Perpetuities," 32 Fla. St. U. L. Rev. 401 (Winter, 2005).

Add to Annotations

Annotation, Construction of Will Provision for Gift Over if First Taker Dies Without Issue and if Some Other Contingency Occurs, Where There is Death Without Issue but the Other Contingency Does Not Occur, 73 A.L.R.2d 466 .

Annotation, Descent and Distribution: Rights of Inheritance as Between Kindred of Whole and Half Blood, 47 A.L.R.4th 561 .

Annotation, Estate Created by Deed to One and His "Blood Heirs" or "Blooded Heirs," 89 A.L.R.2d 1222 .

Annotation, Fee Simple Conditional, 114 A.L.R. 602 .

Annotation, Time To Which Condition of Remainderman's Death Refers, Under Gift or Grant to One for Life or Term of Years and Then to Remainderman, But If Remainderman Dies Without Issue, Then Over to Another, 26 A.L.R.3d 47 .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions 19.syn

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.syn Synopsis to Chapter 19: LIFE ESTATE *

§ 19.01 Overview of Life Estate.

§ 19.02 Life Estates, Their Nature and Classification.

§ 19.03 Creation of Conventional Life Estates.

§ 19.04 The Relationship Between the Life Tenant and the Reversioner or the Remainderman.

§ 19.05 The Life Tenant's Right to Transfer the Life Estate.

§ 19.06 Duration of Life Estates.

§ 19.07 Extent of the Life Tenant's Right of Possession of the Freehold.

§ 19.08 Extent of the Life Tenant's Right to Make Use of the Freehold.

§ 19.09 Life Tenant's Obligation to Repair.

§ 19.10 The Life Tenant's Duties Relating to Discharge of Encumbrances on the Property.

§ 19.11 The Life Tenant's Duty to Insure the Premises.

§ 19.12 The Life Tenant's Duty to Pay Taxes.

Professor David A. Thomas
J. Reuben Clark Law School
Brigham Young University

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.01

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.01 Overview of Life Estate.n1

[Go To Supp]

One of the lesser estates that can be carved out of a fee simple absolute is a life estate. The life estate lasts for the life of a person and then terminates automatically. Thus, a conveyance "to Arthur for life" gives Arthur an estate that will last until his death, barring unusual circumstances. A conveyance "to Arthur for the life of Becky" gives Arthur an estate that will last for the life of Becky. This latter life estate is called a life estate pur autre vie (for the life of another). If Becky dies before Arthur, Arthur's estate ends at that time. If Becky dies after Arthur, Arthur's estate continues beyond his death until the death of Becky. In this latter case Arthur's estate passes to his heirs, if Arthur has not transferred the estate by sale, gift or will.

A life estate is transferred by words that indicate an estate for life, such as "to Arthur for life" or "to Arthur as long as he lives" or "to Arthur until his death" or "to Arthur, and when he dies, to Charlotte." If the donor owns a life estate and transfers "to Arthur for life," Arthur will have a life estate that will end on the death of the donor or the death of Arthur, whichever is sooner.

When property is given to a class of people for their lives, the question arises whether their estates are measured by their joint lives (termination upon the death of the first person in the class), by their individual lives (termination of each estate individually upon the death of each person in the class), by their individual lives with right of survivorship (termination of each estate individually upon the death of each person in the class with right of survivorship by the remaining class members), or by the life of the survivor (termination upon the death of the last person to survive in the class). Although the first consideration is the intent of the donor, the rule of construction where intent is ambiguous appears to be the third definition: estates measured by individual lives of the members of the class with right of survivorship in the remaining class members.

In Hannah v. Clark, n2 the testatrix devised a remainder of the income of the residue of her estate to her grandchildren apparently for their lives, and, in the event her son should have any other child, then that grandchild should participate on the same basis.

On the death of one of the two grandchildren after they were receiving their income shares, the court determined that the other took the class gift by way of survivorship, and the heirs of the deceased grandchild took nothing.

In Dewire v. Haveles n3 the testator devised the income of his estate in trust to his widow for life, then to his son, his son's widow and his son's children. The will also provided for the trust's termination twenty-one years after the death of the last surviving child of his son, when the trust property should be equally divided among the lineal descendants of his grandchildren. (This last gift violated the rule against perpetuities.) The court stated that "[b]ecause there is a gift over at the end of the class gift, the testator intended the class gift to his grandchildren only to be a gift of a life interest in the income of the trust." The court also stated that "[t]he general rule is that, in the absence of a contrary intent expressed in the will or a controlling statute stating otherwise, members of a class are joint tenants with rights of survivorship." However, the court found that the will manifested an intent contrary to a class gift with rights of survivorship and gave the interest of one of the grandchildren, when that grandchild died, to his issue by right of representation.

Life estates are also created by operation of law, such as by dower and by the conversion of a fee tail into a life estate by statute.

The owner of a life estate, also called a life tenant (to be distinguished from the common conception of a leasehold tenant who is holder of a non-freehold estate), has a right to possession of the property. This right includes the right to enjoyment, including the right "to take reasonable estovers from the land, that is, wood for fuel, fences, agricultural erections, and other necessary improvements and repairs." n4 It also includes the right to recover possession from a trespasser or one not rightfully in possession, and the right to recover damages for harm caused to the property. There is, however, a difference of opinion among the jurisdictions as to the measure of damages that can be recovered by the life tenant -- the amount of damage to the life estate or the amount of damage to all the interests in the property.

In Zimmerman v. Shreeve n5 the owner of a life estate brought an action in trespass for injury to her possession by one who had cut and carried away wood from her property. The court stated that the damages must be measured according to the interest of the plaintiff; "otherwise the plaintiff might get extravagant recompense for the injury to the land, when his interest therein was limited, or upon the eve of expiring, and the defendant might be made liable for the same damages to different persons." The court held that the life tenant would only be entitled to recover for injury she may have sustained in respect of the right of estovers.

In Rogers v. Atlantic Gulf & Pac. Co. n6 the court's opinion, concurred in by Justice Cardozo among several others, affirmed a judgment for a life tenant "for all the damages, both to the life estate and to the inheritance, caused by a fire set by the defendant." The court refused to limit the damages to those of the life estate alone, stating, > it should not be open to the [wrongdoer] to escape liability by asserting the rights of a third party under whom he does not claim... A bailee, though not liable to the bailor, may recover for the wrongful act of a third party resulting in the loss of, or injury to, the subject of the bailment. If the bailee recovers, he holds the recovery as trustee for the bailor.

The court concluded that when the life tenant recovers all the damages, "such a recovery will bar an action by the remaindermen" against the wrongdoer and that the court should "make proper provision for the protection of the rights of remaindermen" against the life tenant such as by requiring security from the life tenant for the principal.

Although the Restatement of Property n7 adopts what Moynihan n8 states is the prevailing view that the life tenant can only recover damages sustained as to the life estate and not the full damages to the fee, the better view is to allow full recovery. Since a prior possessor may be entitled to recover the full measure of damages to the property in possession against a trespasser, even though the prior possessor is also a trespasser against another, n9 all the more should a life tenant be entitled to a full recovery.

These rights are subject to those of the other future interest holders of property. Therefore, if damages are collected for harm affecting another's future interest in the property, the life tenant will owe an appropriate share to the future interest holder. Likewise, the life tenant owes a duty to the future interest holders to pay the taxes, exercise care in the use of the property, avoid interference with the rights of future interest holders, such as in the cutting of timber on the property, and prevent waste, such as in the repair of defects that could lead to deterioration of the property. In some jurisdictions severe waste of the property by a life tenant may result in forfeiture of the life estate. There is some difference of opinion, however, on the right of contingent remaindermen to a legal remedy, given the tenuous nature of their interests. n10

In Zauner v. Brewer n11 a life tenant leased her estate to a third party and allowed the property to fall into disrepair. The court stated that the life tenant had an obligation to the future interest holder to keep the land and structures in good repair, not excepting ordinary and natural wear and tear:

> The obligation to make ordinary repairs is twofold. The tenant not only has the duty to make the ordinary repairs required to remedy a presently existing condition of substantial disrepair that may have injured the property substantially or permanently, but also has the duty to make any ordinary repairs necessary to prevent the property from progressively declining to the point where its deterioration, and the resultant injury to the inheritance, is substantial and permanent.

Since the plaintiff owned an indefeasibly vested future interest in the property in fee simple absolute, the defendant life tenant owed the plaintiff a duty to make ordinary repairs. By statute the plaintiff not only had a right to equitable relief (injunction to enjoin threatened acts of waste) but also to damages for either voluntary or permissive waste before the termination of the life tenancy.

In Pedro v. January n12 parents who died in 1936 and 1939 devised to each of their three daughters an undivided one-third interest in a life estate, and then to the children of each daughter as should survive her an undivided one-third interest, the descendants to take by right of representation, but if any of the daughters should die without issue surviving her, then the property devised to such issue should descent to the other grandchildren by right of representation. In 1964 one-third of the property with standing timber on it was partitioned from the rest for Mary, one of the daughters, and her children. In that same year Mary and her children entered into an agreement to sell the timber standing on the property. After a substantial amount of timber was logged, one of Mary's children, Joseph, died. Joseph's widow and his son by a former wife claimed Joseph's rights, and the son also requested restraint of the cutting of the timber. The court found that Joseph's son had a contingent remainder in the property, Joseph's widow had no interest, and the cutting of timber did constitute waste by the life tenant Mary. The court found that, although damages are not ordinarily given to contingent remaindermen, if the contingency is fairly certain, the court may assess the damages and impound the proceeds to await the outcome of the contingencies. The court stated that the net value of the timber removed was sufficient evidence upon which to award damages and remanded the case with directions to enter a decree directing those who had received proceeds from the timber to disgorge those proceeds which represented Joseph's son's one-ninth contingent interest in the same proportion in which they received them. "Such sums are to be invested by the court and paid to [Joseph's son] should he survive his grandmother, Mary January, or, if [he] predeceases Mary, to such of his lineal descendants, if any, by right of representation as should survive her."

When an adverse possessor enters on property held by a life tenant and satisfies the elements and statutory period to establish title by adverse possession, the title is for a life estate for the life of the original owner. When the original owner dies, the title is terminated, and the adverse possessor is no longer entitled to the property. Adverse possession must begin all over again against the reversioner or the remainderman.

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. § 19.01 written by Dean John Makdisi.

(n2)Footnote 2. 529 P.2d 154 (Kan. 1974).

(n3)Footnote 3. 534 N.E.2d 782 (Mass. 1989).

(n4)Footnote 4. Zimmerman v. Shreeve, 59 Md. 357, 363 (1882).

(n5)Footnote 5. 59 Md. 357 (1882).

(n6)Footnote 6. 107 N.E. 661 (N.Y. 1915).

(n7)Footnote 7. Restatement of the Law of Property § 118 (1936).

(n8)Footnote 8. Comrlius Moynihan, Introduction To The Law Of Property at 52 n. 1 (2d ed. 1988).

(n9)Footnote 9. See Illinois & St. Louis R.R. & Coal Co. v. Cobb, 94 Ill. 55 (1879) (Cobb, a trespasser against owners of the Illinois shore, took possession of an island and fenced in a part of it for pasturage. The railroad company broke down the fence, laid a switch and track across the land, and began to remove sand and soil. Rejecting the jus tertii defense by the railroad, the court found that Cobb was entitled to full damages from the railroad for trespass.).

(n10)Footnote 10. Equitable remedies are preferred over monetary relief by some courts. See, e.g., Sermon v. Sullivan, 640 S.W.2d 486-488 (Mo. App. 1982).

(n11)Footnote 11. 596 A.2d 388 (Conn. 1991).

(n12)Footnote 12. 494 P.2d 868 (Or. 1972).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.02

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.02 Life Estates, Their Nature and Classification.

[Go To Supp]

The legal relation of the ownership of land limited to the owner's lifetime is of ancient origin. n13 It was logical for the sovereign to allot land to followers, their tenure to be dependent upon their loyalty and their rendition of military service. These were probably fees determined upon the tenant's death. It seems probable that such a type of tenure was recognized, if not prevalent immediately after the Norman conquest. n14

These were not life estates as they are recognized today, however. Apparently, the tenant was the absolute owner during life and was not beholden to the sovereign as the holder of the reversion nor to remaindermen for waste. A similar legal relationship may have been intended in the original feoffment to "A and the heirs of his body" n15 before the courts converted this phraseology into a conditional fee, and de bonis in turn into a fee tail. Such a property concept would envisage the tenant holding for his lifetime or good behavior all of the rights in the property that could be exercised by one holding in fee simple absolute except the power of inter vivos, or post mortem alienation or of descent to heirs. It is indeed likely that the addition of the words et hereditibus suis were initially intended to convey a series of similar life estates to the heirs of the first grantee, tenure requiring continuing good behavior and loyalty, and possibly a new feoffment to the lord upon the death of the previous terre tenant.

Indeed the long surviving feudal relief of wardship indicates that the original basis of inheritance was the continuing rendition by the heir of the services required of the ancestor. Since the infant heir was not physically and mentally capable of performing these duties, there was a temporary reversion to the lord until the heir became able to carry out the terms of the original feoffment. As the fee simple and the fee tail developed either out of the warranty as Littleton thought, or as a compromise with primogeniture, n16 so did the modern life estate. n17 But the new life estate was not the same as the original feoffment for life.

The history of the development of the life estate as distinguished from what may have early been a fee for the lifetime of the tenant has never been properly traced. Perhaps the life estate as we know it today separated from the former fee for life when the words "et hereditibus suis" became recognized as creating an estate of inheritance, not a mere series of fees determinable on death.

Thus, a conveyance to one without using words of inheritance creates a mere estate in land, not the grant of the land itself. And the feoffor retains an interest in the land, the reversion, rather than a mere right of escheat upon death of the tenant, in the case of the early fee terminable on death or upon the expiration of the family line where the words sibi et hereditibus suis were used.

As the courts came to realize that the reversioner, later the remainderman as well, has an interest in the land which is entitled to protection, the former fee for duration of life sinks with the growth of the doctrine of waste until it reaches the level it was in Littleton's time, a tenancy classed with leases for years. Later, for reasons unknown, the tenancy for a term descends below the freehold level, but this does not elevate the life estate to its one-time status. The liability for waste increases rather than recedes.

The life estate, though a freehold interest, differs from the fee, in addition to its lack of hereditability, in that the tenant has only the right to enjoy the fruits of the property, not the property itself. n18 Thus, he is liable to the reversioner on the remainderman for waste. No such liability exists with respect to a tenant in fee, though the fee be in tail or be defeasible.

Of course, a lessee is also subject to liability for waste virtually to the same degree as is a life tenant. But the life tenant, being a freeholder, stands in a higher degree of relationship with respect to the realty than the lessee. In some states the protective right, and to a considerable extent the protective duty of the life tenant with respect to the realty, is greater than that of the tenant for years. And while the life tenant is not exactly a stranger with respect to the holder of the future interest, n19 yet the life tenant does not owe to the reversioner the fiduciary duty that is owed by the tenant for years to the reversioner, to the extent that the life tenant may not deny the reversioner's title or hold adversely. The life tenant, however, is a fiduciary for the reversioner or remainderman in that the life tenant may not benefit by breach of duty that the life tenant owes with respect to the real estate.

The fiduciary relationship of the life tenant and the remainderman or reversioner runs further to the care and preservation of the property which is in the possession of the life tenant. In this capacity the life tenant has sometimes been ineptly designated a trustee. While it is said that the life tenant has the same interest in the land during the existence of his estate the remainderman has in it after it comes into the latter's possession, n20 this is not accurate. Actually the rights of the life tenant are inferior to those the remainderman or reversioner will possess when they come into possession. n21 Again, rather inaccurately it is stated he has the same interest in the land during the existence of his estate that the remainderman has in it after it comes into the latter's possession, except that the life tenant may not commit waste. n22 This is not correct since the life tenant does not have, in most states, the protective rights with respect to the realty that a fee owner does. Estates per autre vie descend to life tenant's heirs. n23

A life estate is an interest in real property, the duration of which is limited by the life of some person. n24 Such person may be the party creating the estate, the tenant himself, or some other person or persons. It may be for an indefinite period which may last for a life. It is of no consequence how uncertain the duration of the estate may be. If it can or may continue during a life, it is a freehold or life estate. It outranks an estate for hundreds of years, because it is said that no one knows how long a man may live. The principal distinction between a tenancy for life and such tenancies as at will, from year to year, and at sufferance is that a tenancy for life confers a freehold upon the tenant, whereas in the other tenancies mentioned the tenant has a chattel interest only. n25 By its very nature a life estate is not an estate of inheritance. n26 But it is primarily a right of possession during life. n27

A life estate is a freehold estate, n28 irrespective of whether it is for the tenant's own life or for the life of another person, n29 but it is not an estate of inheritance. n30 Its longest possible duration is limited by the life or lives of one or more designated persons. n31 Such an estate may be made to depend upon a contingency, upon the happening of which the estate may be defeated before the death of the grantee. n32

It is held that a life estate in land is "real property," enabling the owner to sell or encumber it, and, if it be non-exempt property, it may be attached for the owner's debts or levied upon by execution and sold. n33 "A 'life estate' is a freehold estate not of inheritance, which is held by a tenant for his own life or the life or lives of one or more other persons, or for an indefinite period, which may endure for the life or lives of persons in being, and not beyond the period of the life." n34 It is a freehold, not a chattel interest, within statutes requiring a construction of the words "real estate," and land in statutes as meaning any interest in land other than a chattel interest and prohibiting a conveyance of a freehold estate in realty except by deed or will. n35

Life estates per autre vie were originally treated as chattels real, n36 but later became freeholds. n37 In England after the death of the grantee it went to the heir as a special occupant if not devised, and not to the personal representatives of the deceased. n38 In some states by statute it is created as a chattel real after death of the donee. n39

At common law there were two classes of life estates: first, conventional life estates or those which were created by contract, and second, those which came into existence by operation of law, termed legal life estates. n40 The first class, or conventional life estates, is subdivided into four groups as: (1) estates for one's own life; (2) estates for the life of another; (3) determinable life estates as estates for an uncertain period which may last for life; and (4) estates tail after possibility of issue extinct. The second class, or legal life estates, is subdivided into four groups as: (1) the husband's estate during coverture; (2) curtesy; (3) dower; and (4) homesteads.

A life estate can be created in personal property as well as in real estate. n41 A devise to X directing him to share the income with Y for her lifetime merely creates a charge in favor of Y and not a lease, a lien or a trust. n42 A life estate is a recognized legal category, and from the fact of its existence, established legal consequences flow. n43 A life estate measured on the life of the life tenant passes nothing to the life tenant's heirs on death. n44

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 13. For an example of such holding, see Godfrey Rolles Driver & John Charles Miles, The Assyrian Laws, 293 (1935).

(n2)Footnote 14. 2 William Searle Holdsworth, History of English Law, 120 (3rd ed. 1938).

(n3)Footnote 15. See S. J. Bailey, Warranties of Land in the Thirteenth Century, 8 Camb. L.J. 274 (1944).

(n4)Footnote 16. Theodore F. T. Plucknett, A. Concise History of the Common Law 528 (5th ed. 1956).

(n5)Footnote 17. Littleton devotes but two short paragraphs to life estates, § 56, 57, indicating that they were then of but little importance.

Littleton, Tenures, § 56:

> Tenant for term of life is, where a man letteth lands or tenements to another for terme of the life of the lessee, or for terme of the life of another man. In this case the lessee is tenant for terme of life. But by common speech he which holdeth for terme of his owne life, is called tenant for terme of his life, and he which holdeth for terme of another's life, is called tenant for terme of another man's life (tenant pur terme d'auter vie).

Coke on Littleton, § 42a:

> If a man grant an estate to a woman dum sola fuit, or durante viduitate, or quamdiu se bene gesserit, or to a man and a woman during the coverture, or as long as the grantee dwell in such a house, or so long as he pay XL, &c. or until the grantee be promoted to a benefice, or for any like incertaine time, which > time, as Bracton saith, is tempus indeterminatum: in all these cases, if it be of lands or tenements, the lessee hath in judgment of law an estate for life determinable.

See 2 Holdsworth, supra note 14 at 120; 3 Holdsworth 120-121; 2 Frederick Pollock & Frederic William Maitland, A History of English Law Before the Time of Ewdard I 307.

(n6)Footnote 18. Medlin v. Medlin, 203 S.W.2d 635 (Tex. Civ. App. 1947).

The existence of a life estate is as effective to insure exclusive control and possession as is title in fee. South Miss. Elec. Power Ass'n v. J. F. Miller Timber Co., Inc., 314 So. 2d 346 (Miss. 1975).

Life estate being a freehold interest is subject to sale or mortgage. Michie v. National Bank of Caruthersville, 558 S.W.2d 270 (Mo. App. 1977).

(n7)Footnote 19. So the life tenant may hold adversely to the reversioner or remainderman, but only after due notice.

(n8)Footnote 20. English v. Carter, 189 S.W.2d 839 (Ky. 1945).

(n9)Footnote 21. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 235 S.W.2d 744 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950), rev'd, 244 S.W.2d 803 (Tex. 1951).

(n10)Footnote 22. English v. Carter, 189 S.W.2d 839 (Ky. 1945).

(n11)Footnote 23. Collins v. Held, 369 N.E.2d 641 (Ind. App. 1977).

(n12)Footnote 24. In re Smythe's Estate, 282 P.2d 141 (Cal. App. 1955).

Life estate in personal property. In re Tognotti's Estate, 262 N.E.2d 803 (Ill. App. 1970).

Devise in fee providing others use of the property for their lifetimes created valid life estates. Babb v. Rand, 345 A.2d 496 (Me. 1975).

(n13)Footnote 25. Thompson v. Baxter, 119 N.W. 797 (Minn. 1909); Disley v. Disley, 75 A. 481 (R.I. 1910).

(n14)Footnote 26. Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. 1955).

(n15)Footnote 27. Kanawha Banking & Trust Co. v. Alderson, 40 S.E.2d 881 (W. Va. 1946).

Such military life estates are found in Ptolemaic times in the deruch holdings. Rafal Taubenschlag, The Law of Greco-Roman Egypt in the Light of the Papyri 236 (1944).

Later, by making their sons as cotenants and naming them successors by will the estates gradually became descendible, and it is possible that the house of David held Jerusalem in such a military fief. If so, the story of David and Saul becomes the revolt of a feudal baron against his king, an event common enough in the Orient as well as in the West. See Gibbon, Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, and Diehl, Byzantium, Greatness and Decline.

(n16)Footnote 28. Randolph v. Wilkinson, 128 N.E. 525 (Ill. 1920); Beeman v. Stilwell, 189 N.W. 969 (Iowa 1922); Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927); Hampton v. Glass, 116 S.W. 243 (Ky. 1909) (a life estate is a freehold and not a chattel interest); Cannon v. Carr, 168 S.W.2d 21 (Ky. 1943); English v. Carter, 189 S.W.2d 839 (Ky. 1945); Reece v. Van Gilder, 272 S.W.2d 177 (Mo. 1954); McFarland v. State, 160 N.Y.S.2d 247 (1957); Harwell v. Harwell, 271 S.W. 353 (Tenn. 1925).

See Restatement, Property, Div. II, intro. note.

Right to make "a home" on the premises created a mere right of occupancy, not a life estate where words "use and occupancy" were not used. Rizzo v. Mataranglo, 135 N.Y.S.2d 92 (1953).

A direction that property be kept as a home for certain children by the devisee created an easement, not an estate in land. Baldesberger v. Baldesberger, 105 A.2d 713 (Pa. 1954).

Grant of permission to remain on land for an indefinite period rent-free was not a life estate. Sands v. Union Camp Corp., 235 S.E.2d 605 (Ga. App. 1977).

Life estate being a freehold interest is subject to sale or mortgage. Michie v. National Bank of Caruthersville, 558 S.W.2d 270 (Mo. App. 1977).

In New York a life estate is assignable and subject to claim to creditors if legal. In re Seidman's Will, 389 N.Y.S.2d 729 (1976).

(n17)Footnote 29. Jeffers v. Easton, Eldridge & Co., 45 P. 680 (Cal. 1952); Stoffels v. Stoffels, 86 A.2d 806 (N.J. Super. 1952); In re Atkinson's Will, 91 N.Y.S.2d 631 (1949).

(n18)Footnote 30. Harwell v. Harwell, 271 S.W. 353 (Tenn. 1925). See Restatement, Property, § 18.

(n19)Footnote 31. Roberts v. Roberts, 29 N.E. 886 (Ill. 1892); Gilmore v. Hamilton, 83 Ind. 196 (1882); Beeman v. Stilwell, 189 N.W. 969 (Iowa 1922); Hurd v. Cushing, 24 Mass. (7 Pick.) 169 (1882); Miller v. Gilbert, 38 N.E. 979 (N.Y. 1894); Warner v. Tanner, 38 Ohio St. 118 (1882); In re Brotzman's Estate, 19 A. 564 (Pa. 1890).

See Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927); In re Cochrane's Estate, 190 N.Y.S. 895 (1921); Harwell v. Harwell, 271 S.W. 353 (Tenn. 1925). See also Restatement, Property, § 18, cmt. b.

Direction in devise that one be given a home on the property created a privilege, not an estate, and privilege was abandoned on departure. Baldesberger v. Baldesberger, 105 A.2d 713 (Pa. 1954).

(n20)Footnote 32. Tallent v. Tallent, 267 Ill. App. 334 (1932). See Restatement, Property, § 18, cmt. b. "As long as she remains my widow" interest terminated on remarriage. Rhodus v. Proctor, 433 S.W.2d 625 (Ky. 1968).

(n21)Footnote 33. Alexander v. Goellert, 109 P.2d 146 (Kan. 1941).

(n22)Footnote 34. Weekley v. Weekley, 27 S.E.2d 591 (W. Va. 1943).

(n23)Footnote 35. Cannon v. Carr, 168 S.W.2d 21 (Ky. 1943); Laflamme v. Hoffman, 95 A.2d 802 (Me. 1953).

See Robert T. Milner, Evaluating Life Estates and other Calculations, 7 Ala. Law 5 (1946); Note. Valuation of a Widow's Life Estate for Election Purposes, 11 Wyo. L.J. 113 (1957).

Under the arbitrary English rule, now abolished, a life estate was one-third the value of the remainder. Keniston v. Gorrell, 64 A. 1101 (N.H. 1906).

(n24)Footnote 36. Bracton, ff. 13b, 27, 263; Fleta, 193, 289.

(n25)Footnote 37. 2 Pollock & Maitland, supra, note 17, 81.

(n26)Footnote 38. Atkinson v. Baker, 4 Term 229, 100 Eng. Rep. 989.

(n27)Footnote 39. New York Real Property Law, § 34. Hence it is subject to the donee's debts.

The Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2, ch. 3 permitted an estate per autre vie to pass to the deceased owner's administrator.

(n28)Footnote 40. Swayne v. Lone Acre Oil Co., 86 S.W. 740 (Tex. 1905). See In re DuPuy's Estate, 29 A.2d 689 (Pa. 1943). See also Breaux v. Breaux, 51 S.2d 73 (La. 1950), as to difference between "substition" and "fider commissira."

Life estates defined. Ackerman v. State, 102 N.Y.S.2d 536 (1951); Briggs v. Briggs, 45 N.W.2d 62 (S.D. 1950).

(n29)Footnote 41. Heintz v. Parsons, 9 N.W.2d 355 (Iowa 1943); In re Thompson's Will, 43 N.Y.S.2d 392 (1943); In re Shailer's Estate, 266 P.2d 613 (Okla. 1954).

(n30)Footnote 42. Ogle v. Durley, 77 So. 2d 688 (Miss. 1955).

(n31)Footnote 43. Hartman v. Drake, 87 N.W.2d 895 (Neb. 1958)(life estate is a freehold).

Tenancy per autre vie was not a freehold estate. 1 Emory Washburn, Real Property (5th ed. 1887), 123.

A life estate is a freehold interest in land and is of a duration which is confined to the life or lives of some particular person or persons or to the happening or not happening of some uncertain event. Long v. Horton, 133 N.E.2d 568 (Ind. App. 1956).

(n32)Footnote 44. Overpeck v. Dowd, 364 N.E.2d 1043 (Ind. App. 1956).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.03

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.03 Creation of Conventional Life Estates.

[Go To Main]

Conventional life estates, those arising through execution of instruments, have four methods of creation: (a) by failure to use words of inheritance; (b) by reservation in an instrument transferring a remainder; (c) by language giving the donee rights which are the equivalent of a life estate; n45 and (d) by expressly limiting the donee's interest to his lifetime. Under the common-law rule, a devise to one generally, without words of inheritance, passed an estate for life only, unless the context showed an intention to create a greater interest. n46

Virtually all of the states have, by statute avoided the common law rule that a conveyance to a named individual or individuals, without the use of words of limitation, created only a life estate. Under the statutes of most states the word "heirs," or its equivalent, is not necessary to create an absolute estate. Every conveyance, properly executed, will be construed to convey the fee, unless a lesser estate is mentioned and limited in it. If a lesser estate is expressly limited, the courts will not, by construction, increase such estate into a fee simple, but, disregarding the technical rules of the common law, will give effect to the intention of the maker of the instrument, if such intent can be gathered from its contents. n47

In a few states, however, these statutes refer only to conveyances, thus leaving the common-law presumption intact in the case of wills. In these states, if there is a devise to A, there is a rebuttable presumption that A took only a life estate. n48

Under the early common law, the same formalities were required in creating a life estate as were required to create a fee. There had to be livery of seisin, and as life estates were for a long time the only estates held by tenants, these feudal rites and ceremonies originated with the creation of such estates. Now that these rites are no longer practiced, a simple conveyance or devise to one for life gives him such estate and the right to possession and enjoyment thereof, if the grantor or devisor had such immediate right. At common law, a grant or devise to A without words of inheritance gave an estate for A's own life. n49 The use of the word "heirs" was necessary to convey a fee simple, and if the word "heirs" was absent the estate created was construed to be a life estate, because that was the largest estate that could be granted without proper words of inheritance. n50

The word "issue" is ambiguous and requires parol explanation as to the testator's intent. n51

As a general principle, estates which are terminable at the will of the grantee alone are life estates, if they may last for a lifetime. n52 If it is terminable at the will of the grantor it is but a tenancy at will. n53 But if it is terminable by mutual agreement the courts are not in accord as to whether it is a tenancy at will or a life estate. n54 One line of authority holds that a grant of the premises as long as the grantee desires to inhabit creates a life estate; n55 other cases treat this as a tenancy at the will of the lessee. n56

Where there is a question as to whether the grantee or devisee took a life estate or a fee, the courts favor the greater estate. n57 But if the issue is between a life estate and a lien, charge, easement or license the life estate finds favor. n58 The cases are divided as to whether a limitation to one during widowhood or "as long as she remains my widow" or similar language creates a determinable life estate or a determinable fee. n59

A life estate may be implied if the will, construed as a whole, discloses such to have been the intention of the testator, though apt operative terms were used. n60 The construction of a will so as to carry out the testator's intention may require recognition of a life estate even though such estate is not created in definite terms. In other words, the provisions of the will may be such as to give rise to a life estate by implication. n61 Thus, a life estate is implied from a devise over after the death of a person named. n62

At common law, a devise to A on the death of B implied no life estate in B unless A was the heir of the testator. n63 Now the rule gives B a life estate only if the remainder is to the whole body of the testator's heirs. n64

Under a statute making the use of words "heirs and assigns" unnecessary to create an estate in fee simple, the use of such words does not defeat a testator's intention to devise an estate for life, where he makes a devise over to another other than the life tenant. n65 An intention to convey a life estate, expressly or clearly implied, will be upheld though words of inheritance be not used. n66

Where the estate devised is not defined in terms, a limitation over on the devisee's death will be construed as indicating that the testator intended to give the devisee a life estate. n67 The rule of the common law operated in favor of the heir, and usually defeated the intention of the testator. This rule has been modified by statutory enactment in many states, n68 so the rule now generally prevailing is to the effect that an unqualified devise without words of inheritance carries a fee or a lesser estate if the testator has such lesser estate only in the property devised. n69 In some states, however, the common law rule seems to obtain. n70

A life estate may be created by a deed, lease or devise, either with or without a stipulation for the payment of rent, n71 and it may arise either by express words of the instrument n72 or by implication. n73 No particular words are essential in the creation of a life estate, as any language which manifests an intention that the estate created shall be of such a character is sufficient for the purpose. n74 The duration of the created estate is not determined by specific words, provided the ending of the lives may be ascertained without unreasonable difficulty. n75 Such an estate may be created subject to a special limitation, a condition subsequent, an executory limitation or a combination of such restrictions. n76 Any language in a conveyance which sufficiently shows the grantor's intention will be sufficient to create such estate. n77 Though a will does not, in terms, devise a life estate to the first taker, if from the entire will a reasonable inference is that the devisee's estate was intended to be restricted to a life estate, it will be so construed, and the limitation over will be given effect. n78 A devise of use and occupancy for life was a life estate. n79

A life estate subject to be determined by the happening of a named event is created by a grant made in general terms without limitation in point of time. n80 Life estates may be implied for federal estate tax purposes in retention of possessory interests by the grantor. n81

Frequently, devises are made to a named beneficiary after the death of another, as a devise "to my children after the death of their mother." If the testator had died intestate, his children or some one of them would have inherited the estate as heirs immediately on testator's death; but the will seems to postpone their rights, at least as to possession and enjoyment, until their mother's death. So the mother is by construction or implication made a tenant for life, and the children are regarded as remaindermen. n82 However, if the devise had been to a stranger after the death of some person named, this stranger has no right to enter on testator's death, no estate is vested by implication, and, until the death of the person named, the heirs have the right of possession and enjoyment. n83

Where a life estate is created in one part of a will in clear and unmistakable language, such estate will not be cut down to a lesser estate by vague and doubtful language in another part of the will. n84 "Where there is a devise to one in general terms only, expressing neither fee nor life estate, and a subsequent limitation over of what remains at the taker's marriage, and if there is also given to the taker an express power of disposition, which is not absolute, but is limited as to its exercise, the devise is construed to pass a life estate only." n85 Gifts of successive life estates have been sustained. n86

A life estate only will be given in the absence of a remainder over where the terms of the will clearly show that a life estate was intended. n87 A devise to his wife of all the testator's property, to have the use and control thereof in her own right, as long as she remained the testator's widow, granted to the widow a life estate only subject to her remarriage. n88 When the life estate is terminated the remainder, not otherwise disposed of by the will, reverts to the testator's estate as intestate property to be distributed to the testator's heirs at law. n89

At common law, words of inheritance were necessary to create a fee, and the omission of such words rendered the conveyance one for life merely. If the grantor in such case was the owner in fee at the time of the conveyance, an estate for the life of the grantee passed. n90 Where words of inheritance are not used in a conveyance by a tenant by curtesy initiate, it will pass an estate for the life of the grantor. n91 The common-law rule has been modified by statute and judicial construction, so that the rule now prevailing is that a grantee takes all the interest of the grantor or testator, unless a different intention is clearly expressed. Where words of inheritance are not used, the entire context of the instrument may be considered, and every word used, wherever found, must, if possible, be given weight in determining the estate granted. n92

Although words of inheritance are not necessary to create a life estate, in the absence of words descriptive of the quantity of an estate given, the testator's intent must be determined by construction. n93 Although words of inheritance may be used in a deed, the circumstances may be such that a life estate only will pass. Thus, where it is clear from the context of the instrument that the grantor used the word "heirs" or "bodily heirs," in the sense of children, it will be so construed. n94 Where the granting clause in deed conveyed lands to the grantee and his heirs, and the habendum clause limited the grant to a life estate, it was held that the grantor intended to convey a life estate only to the grantee, with remainder to the grantee's widow and children. n95 Thus, in a deed from parents to their daughter "and her bodily heirs," the words "bodily heirs" were held synonymous with "children," and it was held that a life estate only passed to the daughter and the remainder to her children. n96 It has been held that a deed which contains no habendum clause and in which the word "heirs" is omitted from the granting clause and used only in the warranty conveyed only a life estate. n97

Under the operation of some modern statutes, a deed which would have conveyed an estate tail at common law will pass a life estate only to the first taker. n98

So the rule generally prevails that a conveyance, with words of inheritance, to a woman and her children will pass a life estate to her, with remainder to her children, if any other construction would defeat the apparent intention of the grantor. n99 A grantee will take a life estate only, even though the deed contains words of inheritance, if it appears from the deed that such was the grantor's intention. n100 A deed granting real estate to a named person and at her death to her four named children, with habendum and warranty clauses running to "grantees," was held to have conveyed to the first-named person a life estate, with remainder to her four named children. n101 Under a deed conveying in terms a life estate to the grantor's daughter and at the latter's death the property was to become "the absolute property of my grandson," it was held that the grandson took a life estate only, as there was no limitation to heirs. n102 In states where the rule in Shelley's Case is a part of the law, if an estate for life is granted by an instrument and the remainder is limited by the same instrument, either mediately or immediately, to the heirs of the life tenant, the life tenant takes the remainder as well as the life estate. n103

A will devising real estate to testator's daughter, and providing that at her death the realty should be sold and the proceeds divided equally between the testator's two sons, the daughter took a life estate with remainder in fee to the sons. n104

Where Shelley's Case is the law, when an estate is devised to one for life with remainder to his heirs, the law, by arbitrary rule, vests the whole estate in the ancestor. n105 By statute in some jurisdictions such a devise will not enlarge the first taker's estate into a fee. n106 Before a court can conclude that a testator who made a devise to his daughter for life and after her death "to her lawful heirs" employed the word heirs in a sense different from that assigned to it by the law, there must be something in the context manifesting a clear intention to have employed the word as one of purchase, and not of limitation. n107

Likewise in states where Wild's Case is not followed, a grant to "A and his children," or to "A and his heirs" where heirs is used in the sense of children, either gives A and one's children a cotenancy or creates a life estate in A with remainder over. So, where a deed conveyed property to one and his children, the grantee takes only a life estate with remainder to the children, unless it appears from the entire deed that the grantor used the word "children" in the technical sense of the word "heirs." n108 Where a deed conveys a fee-simple title a life estate cannot be reserved. n109

Where a will bequeathed certain property to a woman for life, with remainder to her legal heirs, it was held that the rule that where a party would take by descent the same estate that a devise purported to give him, he would take the land by descent, and not by devise, did not apply, since such heirs did not take the same estate under the will as they would take by descent, and, hence, the estate did not vest in the woman and her heirs, so as to convert her life estate into a fee. n110 The word "issue," in a devise to one for life with remainder to his issue will be construed as a word of purchase or of limitation as will best carry out the manifest intention of the testator. n111

Although an Indiana court has said that "in the absence of explanatory words showing that the word 'issue,' when used in a devise, was used in a restrictive sense, it will be construed as a word of limitation" but that "if ... the language of the will in which the word 'issue' is used shows that it is to be applied only to children or descendants of a particular class, it will be construed as a word of purchase, and not of limitation, in order to effectuate the intention of the testator." n112

According to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, "while 'issue,' when used in a devise, has been held time and again to mean the same as 'heirs of the body,' yet such construction was adopted only on the theory that the word was probably so intended by the testator, and not with the idea that the term 'issue,' of and in itself, is the equivalent of the technical phrase, 'heirs of the body.'" n113

In a devise to one for life with remainder to one's "children," the first taker will have a life estate in the absence of anything in the context indicating that the testator intended the word "children" in the sense of "heirs." n114 In Pennsylvania it is consistently held that a devise to A and A's children gives a life estate to A with remainder to A's children. n115 A devise to testator's wife and two daughters for the life of the wife, with remainder to the two daughters and their children, was held to pass a one-half interest for her life to the wife, an undivided one-half interest for life to each daughter, with remainder in each share to the children of that daughter, the daughters taking severally, and that no cross remainders could arise by implication. n116 In its technical sense, the word "children" is presumptively a word of purchase and not of limitation and, generally speaking, such word will not be regarded as a word of limitation unless the will's other language shows it to have been used in the sense of "issue" or as standing for the whole line of direct succession. n117

The reservation of a life estate in land granting the fee is not void as repugnant to the grant. n118 Deeds retaining an interest in the grantor may also be challenged as being intended to be testamentary dispositions. n119 Thus, a reservation of a life estate to the grantor in a deed of realty was held to operate to seize the grantor of a life estate and vest the remainder in the grantee by operation of law. n120 Though the language used by the grantor in the reservation be "all the right, title, and interest in and unto the above-named land and buildings for and during my natural life," no inference can be drawn that anything more than a life estate was intended to be reserved. n121 The reservation may be to the wife of the grantor, n122 to himself and his wife or the survivor, n123 or he may reserve a power to create a life estate for the benefit of another in the land conveyed. n124 As a general rule, the reservation must be in favor of the grantor and not of a stranger, but there are cases holding that the reservation may be in favor of a stranger. n125 Even a declaration that the deed shall not go into effect until the death of the grantor is generally construed as a present conveyance of the fee to the grantee who is subject to a life estate in the grantor. n126 A deed conveying a fee simple subject to a life estate in the grantor, reserving to the grantor the right to mortgage, sell or otherwise dispose of the property, is void. n127

A provision in a deed specifically reserving a life estate, title to vest in the grantee at the grantor's death, was held not to postpone the vesting until the grantor's death, but passed an immediate interest or right, with enjoyment thereof postponed. n128 A deed conveying land to a named person and his children, their heirs and assigns, with a reservation to the grantor of the use and control of the land so long as he lived, was held to create a life estate to the named grantee, with remainder in fee to his three children, though only one of them was in being at the time the deed was executed. n129 The provision in a deed that the grantor reserved unto himself the use of the premises during his lifetime effectively reserved to the grantor a life estate which in itself did not prevent the passing of the fee to the grantee. n130

Where a deed conveyed real estate to the grantor's son and his heirs, but provided that the grantor should have, hold and control the property until his death and that it should revert to the grantor and his heirs in the event the grantee died without issue, it was held that the grantor could not convey a fee simple title to the grantee, but only a life interest to take effect on the grantor's death, with reversion to the grantor's estate if the grantee died without issue. n131 A deed which purported to convey real estate to two named persons during their lives, "then to their heirs and assigns," was held to create a life estate in the persons named and a remainder over to such children as were in being at the time of the vesting of the estate. n132

Under the more modern rule an estate per autre vie descends to a life tenant's heirs. n133 Under the common law a life estate could not descend nor be devised.

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: creat! w/15 life estate!

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 45. Johnston v. Gibson, 334 P.2d 348 (Kan. 1959)(grant of a "home" on the premises requires physical occupation during balance of life); Cook v. Daniels, 306 S.W.2d 573 (Mo. 1957)(grantor can reserve a life estate); Anders v. Anderson, 97 S.E.2d 415 (N.C. 1957)(gift of estate subject to husband having a home as long as he wishes to live there was a life estate with remainder); Cassina v. Jones, 340 P.2d 482 (Okla. 1959)(life estate may arise only by deed, will, lease or written contract).

Gift of income for life was a life estate. Fort v. Fort, 156 S.E.2d 23 (Ga. 1967).

"Reserving ... the use of our home to my husband ... for and during his natural life, or as long as he shall have need of the same" in a devise in a will gave the husband a life estate not a mere privilege. La Rosa v. McVicker, 137 A.2d 861

(Pa. Super. 1958).

(n2)Footnote 46. Lambert v. Paine, 7 U.S. (3 Cranch) 96 (1805); Wright v. Den ex dem. Paige, 23 U.S. (10 Wheat) 204 (1825); King v. Ackerman, 67 U.S. (2 Black) 408 (1863); Meins v. Meins, 123 N.E. 554 (Ill. 1919); Oliphant v. Pumphrey, 141 N.E. 517 (Ind. 1923); In re Oertle's Will, 24 N.W. 924 (Minn. 1885); Lummus v. Mitchell, 34 N.H. 39 (1856); Kleaver v. Jacobs, 152 A. 919 (N.J. 1930); Burr v. Sim, 1 Whart. 252 (Pa. 1836).

See Thompson G. Marsh, When Is a Life Estate Not a Life Estate in Colorado, 43 Denver L.J. 173 (1966).

(n3)Footnote 47. Cooper v. Mitchell Inv. Co., 66 S.E. 1090 (Ga. 1910); Rupert v. Penner, 53 N.W. 598 (Neb. 1892); Loosing v. Loosing, 122 N.W. 707 (Neb. 1909); Smith v. Proctor, 51 S.E. 889 (N.C. 1905); Triplett v. Williams, 63 S.E. 79 (N.C. 1908).

A desire expressed in a will that testator's servants be permitted to live in their quarters as long as they wished did not create a life estate. Lewis v. Atkins, 105 N.E.2d 183 (Ind. App. 1952).

"To be kept as a home" created a privilege not an estate and privilege was abandoned on departure. Baldesberger v. Baldesberger, 105 A.2d 713 (Pa. 1954).

"Continue to live in my home" held a right of occupancy and not a life estate. Cruse v. Reinhard, 208 S.W.2d 598 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948).

(n4)Footnote 48. Limitation over on death of first taker gives only a life estate. Miller v. O'Neal, 361 N.E.2d 1165 (Ill. 1977).

(n5)Footnote 49. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 120, 121. McAleer v. Schneider, 2 App. D.C. 461 (1894); Randolph v. Wilkinson, 128 N.E. 525 (Ill. 1920); Truesdell v. Lehman, 20 A. 391 (N.J. 1890); Jackson ex dem. Ludlow v. Myers, 3 Johns. 388 (N.Y. 1808); Jackson ex dem. Newkirk v. Embler, 14 Johns. 198 (N.Y. 1817); Jordon v. Neese, 15 S.E. 202 (S.C. 1892); Holliday v. Overton, 15 Beav. 480, 21 L.J. Ch. 769, 10 Eng.Rul.Cas. 836.

(n6)Footnote 50. Penienskice v. Short, 194 A. 409 (Del. 1937).

(n7)Footnote 51. Holter v. First Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. of Helena, 336 P.2d 701 (Mont. 1959).

"Issue" means actual physical offspring, not adopted children. In re Kay's Estate, 260 P.2d 391 (Mont. 1953); In re Miller's Trust, 323 P.2d 885 (Mont. 1958).

(n8)Footnote 52. Sweetser v. McKenney, 65 Me. 225 (1875); Ely v. Randall, 70 N.W. 980 (Minn. 1897); Disley v. Disley, 75 A. 481 (R.I. 1910).

Will to widow to hold estate intact and use for benefit of herself and children, and after her death to the children with power to sell or dispose of property and use for benefit of children, gave widow a life estate and remainder to children, wife holding in trust for the children. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 283 S.W.2d 697 (Ark. 1955).

Defeasible life estates may be created. Mid-State Homes, Inc. v. Johnson, 128 S.E.2d 197 (Ga. 1962), and is an estate of freehold. Tobias v. State Tax Comm'n, 378 P.2d 628 (Idaho 1963).

An estate measured by the life of a tenant is a life estate, though subject to earlier defeasance. Tobias v. State Tax Comm'n, 378 P.2d 628 (Idaho 1963).

"To my grandson and at his death to his heirs, and if he die without heirs then to my other grandchildren" gave the grandchild only a life estate, not a fee. Cheuvront v. Haley, 444 S.W.2d 734 (Ky. 1969).

Devise to X, and after she was through with it to Y, gave X only a life estate. In re Knickell's Will, 185 N.E.2d 93 (Ohio 1961).

Reservation of the use of a home during life or as long as needed therefor is a life estate and not merely personal privilege. La Rosa v. McVicker, 137 A.2d 861 (Pa. Super. 1958).

Devise of residence to one for life or as long "as she may desire to reside therein" did not create a life estate. In re Spencer's Estate, 30 D. & C. 2d 68 (Pa. 1962).

(n9)Footnote 53. Conley v. Gaylock, 108 S.E.2d 675 (W. Va. 1959), where a lease was to be terminated only by the tenants' inability to pay the monthly rental, or a decision to move to another location, and the tenant built on the property, court held there was created a freehold estate approximating a tenancy for life, the lease did not violate the rule against remoteness and was not a tenancy at will, since the lessee had a present subsisting interest based on adequate consideration.

To brother to use as he sees fit and at his death the residue to another created only a life estate. Walker v. Clements, 221 S.E.2d 138 (Va. 1976).

(n10)Footnote 54. Lepsch v. Lepsch, 90 N.Y.S.2d 157 (1949)(tenancy at will); Disley v. Disley, 75 A. 481 (R.I. 1910)(life estate); Richardson v. Langridge, 4 Taunt. 128, 128 Eng. Rep. 277 (1811)(tenancy at will).

(n11)Footnote 55. Foster v. Joice, F. Cas. No. 4, 974 (Cir. Ct. D. N.J. 1819)(so long as the waters of the Delaware shall run); Hurd v. Cushing, 24 Mass. (7 Pick.) 169 (1828)(so long as the salt works continue in operation); Ely v. Randall, 70 N.W. 980 (Minn. 1897); Thompson v. Baxter, 119 N.W. 797 (Minn. 1909); Thomas v. Thomas, 17 N.J. Eq. 356 (1866)(may desire to occupy the same as a drug store); People ex rel. Norton v. Gillis, 24 Wend. 201 (N.Y. 1840); Roseboom v. Van Vechton, 5 Denio 414 (N.Y. 1848); Warner v. Tanner, 38 Ohio St. 118 (1882); Bowman v. Brown, 149 A.2d 56 (Pa. 1959)(to wife as long as she sees fit to remain on the premises); Mickie v. Lawrence, 5 Rand 571 (Va. 1827) (so long as tenant should pay the stipulated rent); Robinson v. Caldwell, 105 S.E.2d 852 (Va. 1958) (devise to Y and "at her death" to X gave a life estate in Y with remainder to X and not a fee in Y).

An estate terminable at the will of the grantee is a life estate, Sweetser v. McKenney, 65 Me. 225 (1875), as is an estate terminable by mutual agreement, Disley v. Disley, 75 A. 481 (R.I. 1910). But an estate to continue only so long as both parties mutually agree is a tenancy at will. Lepsch v. Lepsch, 90 N.Y.S.2d 157 (1949).

Bequest to the property "to use as he sees fit" created only a life estate. Walker v. Clements, 221 S.E.2d 138 (Va. 1976).

(n12)Footnote 56. Foley v. Gamester, 170 N.E. 799 (Mass. 1930); Thompson v. Baxter, 119 N.W. 797 (Minn. 1909).

Promise to a will contestant to allow one to live on property as long as she wanted was a license not a life estate. Day v. Tribble, 210 S.E.2d 764 (Ga. 1974).

(n13)Footnote 57. Allen v. McKee, 148 N.E.2d 343 (Ind. App. 1958); Martin v. Eslick, 90 So. 2d 635, (Miss. 1956).

Parol evidence to show testator intended to create a life estate instead of a fee. Barth v. Citizens Fid. Bank & Trust Co., 368 S.W.2d 339 (Ky. 1963).

(n14)Footnote 58. La Rosa v. McVicker, 137 A.2d 861 (Pa. Super. 1958); Spicely v. Jones, 101 S.E.2d 567 (Va.

1958).

A warranty deed to grantee and his wife with full power of alienation but if the grantee survived he was to take the entire estate and if the wife survived she was only to take a life estate, the remainder to the grantee's heirs gave a life estate in the wife despite a power of alienation. Leach v. Dick, 326 S.W.2d 438 (Tenn. 1959).

A lease which provides that the lessee shall continue in possession until the lease is terminated by the lessee created a life estate. Shanahan v. Collins, 539 P.2d 1261 (Colo. 1975).

(n15)Footnote 59. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 121. "Durante viduitate" created a determinable life estate. Determinable life estate.

Dickson v. Alexandria Hosp., 177 F.2d 876 (4th Cir. 1949); McCray v. Caves, 88 S.E.2d 373 (Ga. 1955); Kratz v. Kratz, 59 N.E. 519 (Ill. 1901); Phelps v. Seeley, 119 N.E.2d 923 (Ill. 1954); Quaas v. Quaas, 92 S.W.2d 427 (Iowa 1958); White v. Hogge, 291 S.W.2d 22 (Ky. 1956); Metcalf v. First Parish in Framingham, 128 Mass. 370 (1880); In re Yulee's Will, 99 N.Y.S.2d 14 (1950); Blackwood v. Blackwood, 76 S.E.2d 122 (N.C. 1953); In re Doersch's Estate, 72 N.E.2d 806 (Ohio 1947); Banks v. Banks, 229 S.W.2d 99 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950).

Defeasible fee.

Raulerson v. Saffold, 61 So. 2d 926 (Fla. 1952); McDonald v. Suarez, 93 S.E.2d 16 (Ga. 1956); Points v. Points, 227 S.W.2d 913 (Ky. 1950); Taylor v. Farrow, 239 S.W.2d 73 (Ky. 1951); Ramsey v. Holder, 291 S.W.2d 556 (Ky. 1956); Kautz v. Kautz, 31 W. 319 (Pa. 1949); Rogers v. Nixon, 275 S.W.2d 197 (Tex. Civ. App. 1955).

Testator devised real estate "to my unmarried children to be maintained for and by said unmarried children as long as any should remain so." It was held that the will devised the use and occupancy, not the fee, to the unmarried children. Remainder interest was awarded to all children, including married children, as intestate property. In re Lyter's Estate, 87 D. & C. 14 (Pa. 1954). So to daughter as long as she remains single. Thomas v. Stafford, 204 S.W.2d 940 (Ky. 1947).

Devise of property to wife for life "as long as she remains single" were words of limitation and not of condition, and thus the wife obtained a determinable life estate rather than a determinable fee. Buschmeyer v. Eikermann, 378 S.W.2d 468 (Mo. 1964).

A gift in the deed to be held by the grantee as long as she was married, and when the marriage relationship ceases, to go to the children of the grantor, or if any children died leaving children of their own, such children to take the interest of the deceased children was held to create a contingent remainder. "A deed to the party of the second part" to hold during the relationship of husband and wife between the grantor and the grantee was held to be an estate similar to a life estate. Beatty v. Miley, 233 P.2d 269 (Okla. 1951).

(n16)Footnote 60. Colburn v. Burlingame, 214 P. 226 (Cal. 1923); Holbrook v. Bentley, 32 Conn. 502 (1865); Palmer v. Jones, 132 N.E. 567 (Ill. 1921); Iowa City State Bank v. Pritchard, 202 N.W. 512 (Iowa 1925); In re Vail's Estate, 273 N.W. 107 (Iowa 1937); Garland v. Garland, 73 Me. 97 (1881); Wilmarth v. Bridges, 113 Mass. 407 (1873); Wetzel v. Hecht, 220 S.W. 888 (Mo. 1920); In re Leonard, 113 N.E. 491 (N.Y. 1916); Dodson v. Polk, 214 S.W. 871 (Tenn. 1919); Stewart v. Lane, 181 S.E. 389 Beechley (Va. 1935).

The words "The princapel [sic] reason for this will is to protect my wife Antonia from harm and want when I am gone" created a life estate in the wife. In re Hetland's Estate, 531 P.2d 367 (Mont. 1975).

Remainder "to heirs at law" held under circumstances not to include life tenant. In re Evans' Estate, 334 N.E.2d 850 (Ill. App. 1975).

(n17)Footnote 61. Holbrook v. Bentley, 32 Conn. 502 (1865); Garland v. Garland, 73 Me. 97 (1881); Wilmarth v. Bridges, 113 Mass. 407 (1873); Wetzel v. Hecht, 220 S.W. 888 (Mo. 1920); Blumer v. Gillespie, 93 S.W.2d 939 (Mo. 1936); Bishop v. Bishop, 177 N.E. 302 (N.Y. 1931).

Limitation over after death of husband implied a gift of life estate in husband. Norris v. Methodist Home, 464 S.W.2d 677 (Tex. Civ. App. 1971).

(n18)Footnote 62. Bingham v. Sumner, 89 So. 479 (Ala. 1921).

(n19)Footnote 63. See 2 Thomas Jarman, A Treaties on Wills 532 (5th Am. ed. 1881).

(n20)Footnote 64. Equitable Trust Co. v. Johnson, 36 A.2d 257 (Del. 1944).

(n21)Footnote 65. West Jersey Trust Co. v. Hayday, 199 A. 407 (N.J. Eq. 1938).

(n22)Footnote 66. Wallace v. Wallace, 100 S.W.2d 809 (Ky. 1936); Stuart v. Walker, 72 Me. 145 (1881); Johnson v. Battelle, 125 Mass. 453 (1878); In re Oertle's Will, 24 N.W. 924 (Minn. 1885); Jackson ex dem. Livingston v. Robins, 16 Johns. 537 (N.Y. 1819); In re Keehn's Will, 281 N.Y.S. 591 (1935).

It has been said, however, that an estate, such for instance as one for life "will not be created by implication unless it be absolutely necessary to carry out the intention of the testator as gathered from the entire will." Reynolds v. Dolvin, 114 S.E. 879 (Ga. 1922).

Reservation of right of occupancy to grantor for life did not create a life estate but merely a right of occupancy with such implied incidents as are necessary and proper. Bartholomew v. Horan, 322 N.Y.S.2d 401 (1971).

(n23)Footnote 67. Norris v. Johnson, 235 S.W. 804 (Ark. 1921).

(n24)Footnote 68. King v. Ackerman, 67 U.S. (2 Black) 408 (1862).

(n25)Footnote 69. Anderson v. Messinger, 146 F. 929 (6th Cir. 1906); Mansfield v. Shelton, 35 A. 271 (Conn. 1896); Hill v. Gianelli, 77 N.E. 458 (Ill. 1906); Smith v. Proctor, 51 S.E. 889 (N.C. 1905).

(n26)Footnote 70. Pate v. Bushong, 69 N.E. 291 (Ind. 1903).

(n27)Footnote 71. Pete v. Henderson, 318 P.2d 720 (Cal. App. 1957); Thompson v. Baxter, 119 N.W. 797, (Minn. 1909).

(n28)Footnote 72. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 121; 4 James Kent, Commentaries on American Law 25 (Rev. ed. 1895).

(n29)Footnote 73. Haskins v. Tate, 25 Pa. 249 (1855); Nicholson v. Drennan, 14 S.E. 719 (S.C. 1892); Barry v. Shelby, 5 Tenn. (4 Hayw.) 229 (1817).

A deed subject to an annual charge in favor of grantor created a life estate in grantor. Lambert v. Lambert, 182 F.2d 858 (8th Cir. 1950).

A deed is not invalid by reserving a life estate, though not executed with formalities of a will. In re Bright's Estate, 215 N.W.2d 253 (Iowa 1974).

"Lease" of cooperative living organization created life estate in tenant. Westbrook v. Masonic Manor, 178 N.W.2d 280 (Neb. 1970).

Devise to "only wife" to have and to hold during the full term of her natural life was only a life estate, since the first sentence did not create an absolute estate. Skovron v. Third Nat'l Bank in Nashville, 509 S.W.2d 497 (Tenn. App. 1973).

A lease which provides that the lessee shall continue in possession until the lease is terminated by the lessee created a life estate. Shanahan v. Collins, 539 P.2d 1261 (Colo. 1975).

Devise of farm to use as devisee "sees fit" created only a life estate. Walker v. Clements, 221 S.E.2d 138 (Va. 1976).

(n30)Footnote 74. Trager v. Chapman, 130 S.E. 660 (W. Va. 1925).

As involving generally the question of the creation of life estates, see City Nat'l Bank v. Slocum, 272 F. 11 (6th Cir. 1921); Hughes v. Strickland, 295 S.W. 722 (Ark. 1927); Shelton v. Byrom, 177 S.W.2d 421 (Ark. 1944); In re Shaw's Estate, 246 P. 48 (Cal. 1926); Steeve v. Yaeger, 302 P.2d 704 (Cal. App. 1956); Patellis v. Tanner, 29 S.E.2d 419 (Ga. 1944); Whittaker v. Porter, 151 N.E. 905 (Ill. 1926); Law v. Kane, 52 N.E.2d 212 (Ill. 1943); Bearss v. Corbett, 152 N.E. 866 (Ind. App. 1927), aff'd, 177 N.E. 59 (Ind. 1931); Gardner v. Grossman, 57 N.E.2d 440 (Ind. App. 1944); Hiller v. Herrick, 179 N.W. 113 (Iowa 1920); Thurmond v. Thurmond, 228 S.W. 29 (Ky. 1921); Wright v. Singleton, 228 S.W. 38 (Ky. 1920); Baker v. Baker, 230 S.W. 293 (Ky. 1921); Covington v. Covington, 245 S.W. 275 (Ky. 1922); Young v. Monroe, 251 S.W. 662 (Ky. 1923); Harrington v. Layton, 255 S.W. 271 (Ky. 1923); Shirley v. Graham, 256 S.W. 718 (Ky. 1923); Coleman v. Griffin, 261 S.W. 890 (Ky. 1924); Spragens v. Phillips, 263 S.W. 771 (Ky. 1924); Union Gas & Oil Co. v. Wiedeman Oil Co., 277 S.W. 323 (Ky. 1924); De Charette v. St. Matthews Bank & Trust Co., 283 S.W. 410 (Ky. 1926); Cox v. Glass, 283 S.W. 943 (Ky. 1926); Robertson v. Robertson, 284 S.W. 109 (Ky. 1926); Conn v. Hardin, 284 S.W. 1077 (Ky. 1926); Cannon v. Carr, 168 S.W.2d 21 (Ky. 1943); Head v. Head, 169 S.W.2d 25 (Ky. 1943); New Cathedral Cem. v. Browning, 138 A. 258 (Md. 1927); Hess v. Haas, 203 N.W. 471 (Mich. 1925); Beliveau v. Beliveau, 14 N.W.2d 360 (Minn. 1944); Watson v. Hardwick, 231 S.W. 964 (Mo. 1921); Nations v. Spence, 235 S.W. 1064 (Mo. 1921); Petty v. Griffith, 165 S.W.2d 412 (Mo. 1942); Roberts v. Randleman, 180 S.W.2d 674 (Mo. 1944); F. H. Stoltze Land Co. v. Westburg, 206 P. 407 (Mont. 1922); Battin v. Battin, 120 A. 519, 521 (N.J. 1922); Savings Inv. & Trust Co. v. Little, 39 A.2d 392 (N.J. Eq. 1944); Kavanaugh v. Cohoes Power & Light Corp., 187 N.Y.S. 216 (1921); Krites v. Plott, 24 S.E.2d 531 (N.C. 1943); Connertin v. Concannon, 259 P. 290 (Or. 1927); Bechtel v. Fetter, 111 A. 50 (Pa. 1920); In re Beck's Estate, 122 A. 173 (Pa. 1923); Orphan's Home and Asylum v. Womens Pa. Soc'y, 124 A. 86 (Pa. 1924); In re Deeter's Estate, 124 A. 416 (Pa. 1924); Stanton v. Guest, 132 A. 529 (Pa. 1926); In re Dommell's Estate, 134 A. 379 (Pa. 1926); In re Hay's Estate, 134 A. 402 (Pa. 1926); In re Rumsey's Estate, 135 A. 119 (Pa. 1926); Cheroka v. Tobolski, 30 A.2d 152 (Pa. Super. 1943); In re Kern's Estate, 12 Som. 113 (Pa. 1944); La Rosa v. McVicker, 137 A.2d 861 (Pa. Super. 1958)(deed reserving a home to the husband for and during his natural life, or for so long as he shall have need for same, created a life estate in the husband); McMichael v. McMichael, 29 S.E. 403 (S.C. 1898) (insertion of words of inheritance in the warranty clause will not raise a life estate to a fee); White v. White, 31 S.E.2d 558 (Va. 1944); Robinson v. Caldwell, 105 S.E.2d 852 (Va. 1958)(limitation over "at his death" of first taker gave such first taker only a life estate).

Gift of a comfortable living from the land during lifetime was only a life estate. Lowe v. Adams, 419 P.2d 764 (N.M. 1966).

Lett v. Braham, 116 S.E. 513 (W. Va. 1922).

Holding that conveyance to a "trustee" to be held for the benefit of named beneficiaries subject to a life estate in another was no trust but instead a conveyance of a life estate with remainders over. Clark v. Wisdom, 403 S.W.2d 877 (Tex. Civ. App. 1966).

(n31)Footnote 75. See Restatement, Property, § 108.

(n32)Footnote 76. Dormer v. Walker, 69 P.2d 1049 (Colo. 1937).

(n33)Footnote 77. Weekley v. Weekley, 27 S.E.2d 591 (W. Va. 1943).

Devise providing that the property was not to be sold at the devisee's death but was to go to the bodily heirs of the devisee created a life estate. Brooks v. Williams, 178 S.E.2d 880 (Ga. 1970).

(n34)Footnote 78. Scott v. Smith, 151 S.W.2d 770 (Ky. 1941); In re Wilson's Will, 133 S.E.2d 189 (N.C. 1963).

Devise over after death of first named taker creates only a life estate in the first taker. Miller v. O'Neal, 361 N.E.2d 1165 (Ill. App. 1977).

Codicil limited to a life estate fee simple devise given in a fee.

(n35)Footnote 79. In re Sisk's Will, 96 N.Y.S.2d 237 (1950).

Gift of entire income for life created life estate. In re Jackman's Estate, 122 N.W.2d 910 (Iowa 1963).

Request of the right to use the rents, interest, issues and profits from the property and so much of the principal as the devisee might desire from time to time for her support, maintenance and pleasure gave a life estate. In re Perkins' Estate, 182 N.W.2d 881 (Minn. 1970).

Limitation over a death of first taker gives only a life estate. Miller v. O'Neal, 361 N.E.2d 1165 (Ill. 1977).

(n36)Footnote 80. Giles v. Little, 104 U.S. 291 (1881); Green v. Hewitt, 97 Ill. 113 (1880); Rose v. Hale, 56 N.E. 1073 (Ill. 1900); Thompson v. Baxter, 119 N.W. 797 (Minn. 1909); Long v. Paul, 17 A. 988 (Pa. 1889); Snelling v. Lamar, 10 S.E. 825 (S.C. 1890).

(n37)Footnote 81. Where by oral agreement the grantor in a voluntary conveyance retained the rents until he died, the realty was included in the grantor's estate. McNichol v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 265 F.2d 667 (3d Cir. 1959); Greene v. United States, 237 F.2d 848 (7th Cir. 1956); Harter v. United States, 55-1 U.S.T.C. 55, 397 (1954).

Possibility of reverter devised to the widow "as long as she sees fit to remain on the premises and keep said premises in repair and pay taxes on same, held to be a life estate even though there was no limitation over, not a fee, on the presumption the testator presumed that the result would not disinherit his own flesh and blood in favor of in-laws. Bowman v. Brown, 149 A.2d 56 (Pa. 1959).

A lease providing that it run until terminated by the lessees created life estate in the lessees. Shanahan v. Collins, 539 P.2d 1261 (Colo. 1975).

(n38)Footnote 82. See Salyer v. Johnson, 107 S.W. 210 (Ky. App. 1908); Leavy v. McDermott, 90 A.2d 116 (N.J. Super. 1952); McAllister v. Long, 246 P.2d 352 (Okla. 1952).

(n39)Footnote 83. 1 Jarman supra, note 63 (6th Am. ed.), 466, 467 (1893).

(n40)Footnote 84. Wechsler v. Drey, 197 N.Y.S. 453 (1922); Eager v. McCoy, 228 S.W. 709 (Tenn. 1921).

Holding that a reservation of a "comfortable use of the property" in a deed from father to son was not a reservation of a life estate which would have benefitted second wife. Grieves v. Grieves, 352 N.E.2d 601 (Ohio App. 1973).

(n41)Footnote 85. Graff v. Graff, 286 N.W. 788 (Neb. 1939).

Devise to widow for life or remarriage and then to children and their heirs but realty not to be sold until children were dead, "heirs" was word of purchase meaning descendants so that children took only life estates with remainders in fee to their descendants. Bogie v. Britton, 262 S.W.2d 364 (Ky. 1953).

(n42)Footnote 86. Henderson v. Richardson, 211 S.W.2d 436 (Ark. 1948).

Life estate cannot be limited on terms for years except to a living person. Okla. Stat. Ann., § 60-39.

(n43)Footnote 87. Roberts v. Cleveland, 132 So. 314 (Ala. 1931); In re Stephan's Estate, 194 So. 343 (Fla. 1940); Railsback v. Gordon, 62 N.E. 99 (Ind. App. 1901); Jones v. Clyman, 188 N.W. 954 (Iowa 1922); Pattison v. Farley, 100 A. 634 (Md. 1917); Cavan v. Woodbury, 133 N.E. 95 (Mass. 1921); In re McCullough's Estate, 116 A. 477 (Pa. 1922).

Promise to a will contestant to be allowed to live in a house as long as she wanted was a license not a life estate. Day v. Tribble, 210 S.E.2d 764 (Ga. 1974).

(n44)Footnote 88. Anderson v. Gifft, 294 N.W. 721 (Iowa 1933).

(n45)Footnote 89. Wilder v. Loehr, 101 So. 591 (Ala. 1924); In re Stephan's Estate, 194 So. 343 (Fla. 1940); Horak v. Stanley, 249 N.W. 166 (Iowa 1933); Wright v. Singleton, 228 S.W. 38 (Ky. 1920); Pattison v. Farley, 100 A. 634 (Md. 1917); Bragg v. Litchfield, 98 N.E. 673 (Mass. 1912).

(n46)Footnote 90. Coke on Littleton § 42a. Morrison v. Schorr, 64 N.E. 545 (Ill. 1902); Henderson v. Western Carolina Power Co., 157 S.E. 425 (N.C. 1931); In re Sunderland's Estate, 52 A. 167 (Pa. 1902).

(n47)Footnote 91. Reaume v. Chambers, 22 Mo. 36 (1855).

(n48)Footnote 92. Bear v. Milliken Trust Co., 168 N.E. 349 (Ill. 1929).

Grant of permission to remain on land for an indefinite period rent free was not a life estate. Sands v. Union Camp Corp., 235 S.E.2d 605 (Ga. App. 1977).

(n49)Footnote 93. Rolland v. Hamilton, 49 N.E.2d 436 (Mass. 1943).

(n50)Footnote 94. Deck v. Deck, 20 S.E.2d 1 (Ga. 1942); Griswold v. Hicks, 24 N.E. 63 (Ill. 1890); American Nat'l Bank v. Madison, 137 S.W. 1076 (Ky. 1911). See Kimble v. Newark, 102 A. 637 (N.J.L. 1917).

(n51)Footnote 95. Woods v. Cook, 58 S.W.2d 404 (Ky. 1933).

(n52)Footnote 96. Bishop v. Jones, 149 So. 72 (Ala. 1933); Landers v. Peoples Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 81 S.W.2d 917 (Ark. 1935); American Nat'l Bank v. Madison, 137 S.W. 1076 (Ky. 1911); Thomas v. Combs, 82 S.W.2d 188 (Ky. 1935). See Campbell v. Williams, 172 S.E. 142 (S.C. 1933).

A deed conveying realty to grantor's daughter "and issue of her body" in fee, begotten by her then husband, vested in daughter a life estate with remainder in fee simple being vested in such issue of her body begotten by her then husband as should survive her and did not vest in daughter and her child then living an estate of tenancy in common, with estate opening upon birth of each succeeding child to daughter, so as to permit each child to take an equal estate as tenant in common. Bradley Lumber Co. v. Burbridge, 210 S.W.2d 284 (Ark. 1948).

In Arkansas, "to A and his bodily heirs" becomes under statute a life estate in A and remainder to issue, but to B for life and then to A and his bodily heirs gives A a fee simple in remainder. Eubanks v. McDonald, 283 S.W.2d 166 (Ark. 1955). See Comment, The Effect of Stare Decisis Upon Fee Tail in Arkansas, 10 Ark. L. Rev. 181 (1956).

Where deed runs to grantee "and unto his bodily heirs and assigns forever," during lifetime of grantee and his daughter and her child, the child is only a contingent remainderman. Walker v. Blaney, 286 S.W.2d 479 (Ark. 1956).

Where introductory clause of deed designated named person and his bodily heirs as parties of second part, and granting clause conveyed to parties of second part, their heirs and assigns, certain described property, and habendum clause gave all the estate right and title of first parties with all appurtenances, and stated that first party was seized of an indefeasible estate in fee simple which first party would warrant and defend in quiet and peaceable possession of parties of second part, their heirs and assigns forever, the estate conveyed was a life estate to the named party of the second part, with a vested remainder to the children of named party at the time of execution and delivery of deed. Waite v. Schmidt, 245 P.2d 975 (Kan. 1952).

To "A and her bodily heirs" with a limitation over on death without bodily heirs held to mean indefinite failure of issue so as to create a life estate with remainder over. Steele v. Pedroja, 289 P.2d 738 (Kan. 1955).

Conveyances to one and his or her bodily heirs carve out of grantor's fee-simple estate a life estate in first taker, and contingent remainder in those qualifying as "bodily heirs" on death of first taker, while fee or reversion remains in grantor, his assigns, heirs or devisees pending determination under original grant of its vesting or falling in for want of takers as "bodily heirs" of grantee for life. Mattingly v. Washburn, 196 S.W.2d 624 (Mo. 1946); Tucker v. Holder, 225 S.W.2d 123 (Mo. 1949).

Under deed reciting that grantor conveyed described realty to grantor's son and to lawful children of grantor's son, and declaring intent to provide for grantor's son and his lawful children after him, and reciting that conveyed realty was subject to homestead and dower of wife of grantor's son so long as she remained widow of grantor's son and that realty should revert to legal bodily heirs of grantor's son and that all homestead and dower should cease if she should remarry, grantor's son was given life estate for life and son's children were given a vested remainder interest, and grantor's son was not given a fee simple title. Hutchison v. Board, 250 S.W.2d 82 (Tenn. 1952).

Provision in deed that upon the grantee's death the property is to be divided as share and share alike among the grantor's children created only a life estate. Johnson v. Maddox, 229 S.E.2d 141 (Ga. App. 1976).

(n53)Footnote 97. Holt v. Miller, 14 N.E.2d 409 (Ohio 1938); Austin v. Hunter, 67 S.E. 734 (S.C. 1910).

(n54)Footnote 98. Atherton v. Roche, 61 N.E. 357 (Ill. 1901). See Gehlbach v. Briegel, 194 N.E. 591 (Ill. 1934).

In a deed to two persons, "to them and the survivor of them, and to their heirs and assigns forever," it was held that the use of the word "heirs" did not have the effect to pass a fee to such persons, but made them joint tenants for life with a contingent remainder in fee to the survivor. Finch v. Haynes, 107 N.W. 910 (Mich. 1906). See Erwin Nat'l Bank v. Riddle, 79 S.W.2d 1032 (Tenn. App. 1934).

(n55)Footnote 99. Shelton v. Byrom, 177 S.W.2d 421 (Ark. 1944); Fletcher v. Tyler, 17 S.W. 282 (Ky. 1891); Combs v. Combs, 171 S.W.2d 13 (Ky. 1943); Reeves v. Harris, 227 S.W.2d 198 (Ky. 1950); Hague v. Hague, 29 A. 261 (Pa. 1894).

(n56)Footnote 100. Simpson v. Brown, 134 S.E. 161 (Ga. 1926); Banks v. Morgan, 136 S.E. 434 (Ga. 1927); English v. Davis, 23 S.E.2d 394 (Ga. 1942); Elward v. Biggs, 230 P. 808 (Kan. 1924); Grainger v. Edwards, 227 S.W. 561 (Ky. 1921); Ramey v. Ramey, 243 S.W. 934 (Ky. 1922); Hicks v. Jewett, 258 S.W. 934 (Ky. 1924); Sower v. Lillard, 269 S.W. 330 (Ky. 1925); Mathews v. O'Donnell, 233 S.W. 451 (Mo. 1921); Trager v. Chapman, 130 S.E. 660 (W. Va. 1925).

(n57)Footnote 101. Ward v. Ward, 169 S.E. 120 (Ga. 1935); Wilson v. Humble Oil & Ref. Co., 82 S.W.2d 1095 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935).

(n58)Footnote 102. Gowdy v. Kelley, 194 S.E. 156 (S.C. 1937).

(n59)Footnote 103. Thompson v. Thompson, 46 N.W.2d 437 (Mich. 1951); Fowler v. Lanpher, 75 P.2d 132 (Wash. 1938).

(n60)Footnote 104. Rolland v. Hamilton, 49 N.E.2d 436 (Mass. 1943).

(n61)Footnote 105. Conger v. Lowe, 24 N.E. 889 (Ind. 1890). See Jones v. Rees, 69 A. 785 (Pa. 1908); Lancaster v. Lancaster, 58 N.E. 462 (Ill. 1900); Wescott v. Binford, 74 N.W. 18 (Iowa 1898); Simonton v. White, 53 S.W. 339 (Tex. 1899).

(n62)Footnote 106. Trumbull v. Trumbull, 21 N.E. 366 (Mass. 1889); Defreese v. Lake, 67 N.W. 505 (Mich. 1896); Hall v. Hall, 78 A. 971 (Vt. 1911).

(n63)Footnote 107. Perkins v. McConnell, 36 N.E. 121 (Ind. 1894).

(n64)Footnote 108. Combs v. Combs, 171 S.W.2d 13 (Ky. 1943).

Deed reserved life estate in the grantor. Witherspoon v. Witherspoon, 402 S.W.2d 699 (Ky. 1965).

(n65)Footnote 109. Burns v. Crump, 95 S.E.2d 906 (N.C. 1957).

(n66)Footnote 110. Waller v. Martin, 61 S.W. 73 (Tenn. 1901).

(n67)Footnote 111. Daniel v. Whartenby, 84 U.S. (17 Wall) 639 (1873); Trumbull v. Trumbull, 21 N.E. 366 (Mass. 1889); Mee v. Gordon, 80 N.E. 353 (N.Y. 1907); Parkhurst v. Harrower, 21 A. 826 (Pa. 1891).

(n68)Footnote 112. Edwards v. Bates, 139 N.E. 192 (Ind. App. 1923).

(n69)Footnote 113. In re English's Estate, 112 A. 913 (Pa. 1921).

(n70)Footnote 114. Giles v. Little, 104 U.S. 291 (1881); Glore v. Scroggins, 53 S.E. 690 (Ga. 1906); Cooper v. Mitchell Inv. Co., 66 S.E. 1090 (Ga. 1910); Mefford v. Dougherty, 11 S.W. 716 (Ky. 1889); Sims v. Skinner, 81 S.W. 703 (Ky. 1904); Kuhn v. Kuhn, 68 S.W. 16 (Ky. App. 1902); Salyer v. Johnson, 107 S.W. 210 (Ky. L. 1908); Whittemore v. Russell, 14 A. 197 (Me. 1888); Rogers v. Rogers, 3 Wend. 503 (N.Y. 1829); Cipperly v. Cipperly, 40 How. Pr. 269 (N.Y. 1870); Millsaps v. Estes, 50 S.E. 227 (N.C. 1905); Oyster v. Knull, 20 A. 624 (Pa. 1890); Hall v. Hall, 78 A. 971 (Vt. 1911); Newman v. Newman, 55 S.E. 377 (W. Va. 1906); Knox v. Knox, 18 N.W. 155 (Wis. 1884).

(n71)Footnote 115. Reiff v. Pepo, 139 A. 144 (Pa. 1927).

To daughter for life and then to her heirs on their majorities and if no heirs, to sister and brother and their heirs. "And their heirs" were held to be words of purchase meaning "as their heirs" as a gift in the alternative. In re Yeater's Trust Estate, 295 S.W.2d 581 (Mo. App. 1956).

(n72)Footnote 116. Eskridge v. Deweese, 203 S.W. 197 (Ky. 1918).

(n73)Footnote 117. Reiff v. Pepo, 139 A. 144 (Pa. 1927). See Edwards v. Bates, 139 N.E. 192 (Ind. App. 1923).

(n74)Footnote 118. Keeter v. Bank of Ellijay, 9 S.E.2d 761 (Ga. 1940); Hurd v. Hurd, 20 N.W. 740 (Iowa 1884); Wyman v. Brown, 50 Me. 139 (1863); Drown v. Smith, 52 Me. 141 (1862); Watson v. Cressey, 10 A. 59 (Me. 1887); Achorn v. Jackson, 29 A. 989 (Me. 1894); McDaniel v. Johns, 45 Miss. 632 (1871); In re Warden Trust, 115 A.2d 159 (Pa. 1955); American Nat'l Bank v. Taylor, 70 S.E. 534 (Va. 1911); Koen v. Bartlett, 23 S.E. 664 (W. Va. 1895); McDonald v. Jarvis, 60 S.E. 990 (W. Va. 1908).

(n75)Footnote 119. Deed retaining life estate in the grantor held valid as against contention that language intended the deed to be effective only upon the grantor's dying thereafter without having changed his mind. Stephens v. Stephens, 193 So. 2d 755 (Ala. 1966).

(n76)Footnote 120. Frawley v. Forest, 38 N.E.2d 631 (Mass. 1941).

Life estate was created by typing in the granting clause in a printed deed although in conflict with the habendum clause which would indicate tenancy by the entireties. Bennett v. Langham, 383 S.W.2d 16 (Tenn. 1964).

(n77)Footnote 121. Graves v. Atwood, 52 Conn. 512 (1885); Cates v. Cates, 34 N.E. 957 (Ind. 1893); Webster v. Webster, 33 N.H. 18 (1856); Colby v. Colby, 28 Vt. 10 (1855); Crosby v. Montgomery, 38 Vt. 238 (1865).

(n78)Footnote 122. American Nat'l Bank v. Taylor, 70 S.E. 534 (Va. 1911).

(n79)Footnote 123. Derham v. Hovey, 161 N.W. 883 (Mich. 1917); Glasgow v. Glasgow, 70 S.E.2d 432 (S.C. 1952).

(n80)Footnote 124. Towler v. Towler, 36 N.E. 869 (N.Y. 1894).

(n81)Footnote 125. Roberts v. Dazey, 119 N.E. 910 (Ill. 1918); La Rosa v. McVicker, 137 A.2d 861 (Pa. Super. 1958).

California now permits reservation of an interest in property to a stranger. Willard v. First Church of Christ, Scientist, Pacifica, 498 P.2d 987 (Cal. 1972). See Townsend v. Cable, 378 S.W.2d 806 (1964)(not consistently followed); Garza v. Grayson, 467 P.2d 960 (Or. 1970). See also Note, Real Property Common Law Rule Against Reserving an Interest in Property to a Stranger to Title Overruled, 13 Santa Clara Law 344 (1972).

(n82)Footnote 126. Bunch v. Nicks, 7 S.W. 563 (Ark. 1888); Shackelton v. Sebree, 86 Ill. 616 (1877); Owen v. Williams, 15 N.E. 678 (Ind. 1888); Browne v. Johnson, 255 N.W. 862 (Iowa 1934); Phillips v. Thomas Lumber Co., 22 S.W. 652 (Ky. 1893); Wyman v. Brown, 50 Me. 139 (1863); Wall v. Wall, 30 Miss. 91 (1855); Waugh v. Waugh, 84 Pa. 350 (1877); Merck v. Merck, 65 S.E. 347 (S.C. 1909); Couch v. Hoover, 79 S.W.2d 807 (Tenn. App. 1934).

(n83)Footnote 127. Newell v. McMillan, 30 P.2d 126 (Kan. 1934). Contra, St. Louis County Nat'l Bank v. Fielder, 260 S.W.2d 483 (Mo. 1953), overruling Goins v. Melton, 121 S.W.2d 821 (Mo. 1938).

(n84)Footnote 128. Watts v. Watts, 22 So. 2d 625 (Miss. 1945).

Deed held to be a conveyance of fee with reservation of a life estate. Black v. Poole, 196 S.E.2d 20 (Ga. 1973). Contra, void where no intention that interest presently pass. Gardner v. Thames, 154 S.E.2d 926 (Ga. 1967).

Where a deed conveyed land subject to a life estate in the father of one of the grantors, the person designated as trustee in trust for the benefit of named persons with authority in trustee to lease premises for production of oil and gas and crops, there was no trust created but rather a life estate and a vested remainder in the remainderman. So the property did not revert to the grantors on the death of the life tenant and was not held in trust for them. Clark v. Wisdom, 403 S.W.2d 877 (Tex. Civ. App. 1966).

(n85)Footnote 129. Rummerfield v. Mason, 179 S.W.2d 732 (Mo. 1944).

(n86)Footnote 130. Watson v. Dalton, 18 N.W.2d 658, op. modified, 20 N.W.2d 610 (Neb. 1945).

(n87)Footnote 131. Grim v. Grim, 161 S.W.2d 918 (Ky. 1942).

(n88)Footnote 132. Patellis v. Tanner, 29 S.E.2d 419 (Ga. 1944).

(n89)Footnote 133. Collins v. Held, 369 N.E.2d 641 (Ind. App. 1977).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.04

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.04 The Relationship Between the Life Tenant and the Reversioner or the Remainderman.

[Go To Supp]

The relationship between the life tenant and the holder of the succeeding future interest covers the basic areas of waste and fiduciary responsibilities. There is no tenure between a life tenant and the remainderman or reversioner. The estate of each stems from an independent source, the creator of the two estates. This is true even where the owner of the fee has reserved in himself a life estate or has conveyed a life estate retaining the reversion. This does not, however, mean that the life tenant and the reversioner or remainderman have no relationship between themselves. There is such privity between them that the reversioner or remainderman can tack to the period of possession of the life tenant for the purpose of the running of adverse possession. n134 There is, however, no privity of contract between the life tenant and the reversioner or remainderman. n135

There are two positions on the situation where the life tenant acquires an outstanding interest in or claim against the property:

One is that the life tenant holds the interest so acquired in trust for the remainderman, but has a lien for the cost of acquisition.

The other is that the life tenant acquires title to the outstanding interest or lien, but has a duty to afford the remainderman the right to acquire the interest by contribution. n136

Some courts consider the relationship of the life tenant and the remainderman to be that of debtor-creditor to the extent of the value of the property. n137 But this may become at least a quasi trust where there is a power to consume. n138

A degree of fiduciary relationship exists between the life tenant and the remainderman. The life tenant may hold adversely to the remainderman, but only after notice of such adverse claim is brought home to the remainderman. n139 The extent of the degree of such fiduciary relationship has not, however, been as clearly outlined by the courts as it has been in the case of landlord and tenant or cotenant. So, it has been held that if a life tenant purchases at a foreclosure sale he does so for the protection of the remainderman as well as himself. n140

On the other hand, there is nothing to prevent the holder of the future interest from holding adversely to the life tenant, according to another rule. Some authorities hold that either the life tenant or the holder of the future interest may acquire outstanding interests without being obligated to make such acquired interest available to the other as a cotenant n141 or a tenant for years is required to do.

Where, however, the life tenant is required to perform a duty with respect to the land such as pay taxes or make repairs or pay mortgage interest, he cannot default in such duty and then acquire from a third party the outstanding interest that arises from such default and then assert such interest against the reversioner or remainderman. More properly, however, a life tenant is not a "trustee" for the remainderman except in the broad sense that he cannot injure the property. n142

Even the cases that speak of the life tenant as a trustee or quasi trustee do not seem to go beyond charging the life tenant with permissive waste. n143 Only a few cases extend the relationship to require the life tenant to acquire outstanding interests for the benefit of all. n144 The cases are divided as to whether a life tenant with power to consume is a debtor or a trustee. n145 A life tenant must give notice to the remainderman that the life tenant is claiming adversely before adverse possession starts to run. n146

So a life tenant is a trustee for the remainderman in the broad sense that the life tenant cannot do injury to or dispose of the property, but may use the property only for the life tenant's exclusive benefit and take income on profits therefrom. n147

The cases are divided as to the effect upon the remainderman of a conveyance by the life tenant which purports to carry the entire fee. Under one theory, the transferee becomes an adverse possessor as against the remainderman. n148 Under other decisions, the adverseness of the transferee's holding must be brought home to the remainderman. And some cases say the remainderman obtains constructive notice of this adverse holding if the transferee records the deed. n149

Life tenants hold their estates from their grantors or devisors in such a relation that their mere possession is not deemed adverse to the one who has the reversion. n150 There cannot be a disseisin of the reversioner by a life tenant claiming to hold the estate adversely, only by positive acts of disclaimer of the remainderman's interest brought home to him by the life tenant. n151 They are bound by whatever reservations are contained in the instrument giving them the estate, and in the absence of express reservation, they owe to the party creating the estate what the feudal lord termed "fealty." n152 Where the life tenant's possession is based on a claim of absolute ownership, and the evidence of his title has become a matter of record, his possession is hostile and adverse to all, including the remainderman. n153 The remainderman may recover seisin from the disseisor at any time after the death of the life tenant within the period limited by statute for instituting such action. The statute of limitations begins to run against the remainderman at the death of the life tenant. n154 Even the grant of a fee by the life tenant is not considered a disseisin, so far as it requires the remainderman to institute an action to recover the property during the life of the tenant, even though the grantee has held for a period beyond the usual period which bars action. n155 Nor by the weight of authority will failure of the life tenant to take possession bar the remainderman even if a third party takes possession and holds it during the tenant's life and any time short of the statutory period thereafter. n156 Contingent remaindermen have such an interest in land as a court of equity will protect, and title cannot be acquired against them by adverse possession prior to the termination of the life estate. n157

The weight of authority is that prescription would not ripen into title as against the remaindermen during the life of the life tenant during which time the remaindermen would have no right to sue. n158 Under what are sometimes called "betterment," or "occupying tenants" acts, it is generally held that possession of property under a mistaken claim of title in fee, by virtue of a conveyance from one who had only a life estate, even during the life estate, is under color of title and is adverse to the remainderman. n159 In the sense that one in possession is required to use reasonable precaution to preserve the property without injury or diminution, the life tenant holds the corpus of the estate in trust for the owner of the remainder. n160

A life tenant is a trustee only in the sense that the life tenant cannot injure or dispose of the remainder to the injury of the remainderman. n161

With respect to inheritance taxes, there are two views as to the effect of life estates with absolute power to convey: the property rule n162 and the beneficial interest view. n163

The life tenant has the same interest in the property during the period of his tenancy as has the remainderman after such tenancy's termination. He, in effect, "owns the land during the term of the life estate, but has not the right to remove or destroy any part of the corpus, to the damage of the inheritance." n164 As between the life tenant and the remainderman, the former has the exclusive right to possession of the property during the continuance of the life estate. n165 The remainderman has no right to possession until the death of the life tenant, nor is he bound to enter until then. n166 While the life tenant and the remainderman are not tenants in common, and privity neither of contract nor of estate exists between them, n167 yet, as a general rule, the possession of the life tenant or the possession before the termination of the life estate of one claiming under or in right of the life tenant, is, from a legal standpoint, possession by the remainderman, n168 at least as against third persons. n169 The possession of the life tenant cannot be adverse to the remainderman n170 unless the life tenant has openly repudiated the status as such, n171 and has, in a clear and convincing manner, brought home to the remainderman notice of intent to claim title adversely to the latter. n172

While it has been held that the executing and recording of a deed, made by the life tenant, which reserved the use and control of the property to the grantor for life and conveyed the remainder in fee, would constitute notice to the remainderman that the life tenant was claiming adversely, n173 it has also been held that a mere statement by the life tenant that the property belongs to the life tenant will not be sufficient ground for the bringing of a suit by the remainderman to determine the title. n174 Undoubtedly, the general rule is that the statute of limitations, applicable to actions to recover the possession of real property, will not begin to run against the remainderman prior to the termination of the life estate, n175 least where there is no special equity requiring assertion rights at an earlier date. n176

In some jurisdictions, the life tenant may bring an action against a tort-feasor for injury to the freehold, as well as for the life tenant's possessory interest and recover the entire damage and give a quittance to the tort-feasor. In such an instance, the life tenant becomes a trustee for the reversioner or remainderman to the extent of the recovery for the damage to the freehold. n177 The granting of additional powers to a life tenant does not operate to impose upon him fiduciary responsibilities, equivalent to a trustee having similar powers. n178

Some courts impose on the life tenant the responsibilities of a trustee to take action for the protection of the corpus for the benefit of the remainderman. n179 Others decline even to apply the doctrine of neglect as permissive waste. n180 The courts have been ready to require bond of a life tenant in possession of personal property, for the possession of the remainderman, n181 and the same principle has been applied where the life tenant has the power or right of sale of the realty or of some portion thereof. n182 The life tenant must pay the costs of management of the estate. n183

At common law the relation between a life tenant with power to consume and the remainderman was that of debtor and creditor. The life tenant was liable to the remainderman for the value of the estate at the time it was received less the amount expended under the power. The life tenant thus assumed the burden or benefit of losses or gains. n184

Life tenant or one claiming under the life tenant cannot claim reimbursements for improvements. n185

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: life tenant! w/30 reversioner! or remainderman!

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 134. See A.N. Yiannoupoulos, Obligations of the Usufructuary: Louisiana and Comparative Law, 42 Tulane L. Rev. 1 (1967); Allison Dunham, Valuing Life Estates and Remainders, 107 Trusts and Estates 13 (1968); Leazenby v. Clinton County Bank & Trust Co., 355 N.E.2d 861 (Ind. App. 1976).

(n2)Footnote 135. Holzhauser v. Iowa State Tax Comm'n., 62 N.W.2d 229 (Iowa 1953).

Where one person holds a life estate and also a partial interest in remainder, she is not a tenant in common with the other remaindermen since the element of possession is lacking. Statler v. Watson, 68 N.W.2d 604 (Neb. 1955); Sparks v. Robertson, 203 S.W.2d 622 (Tex. Civ. App. 1947).

(n3)Footnote 136. A life tenant, as a quasi-fiduciary to the remainderman when purchasing at a foreclosure sale, must permit the remainderman to pay his proportionate share of the redemption price, but can take title if the remainderman refuses to contribute. Thompson v. Watkins, 207 S.E.2d 740 (N.C. 1974).

(n4)Footnote 137. In re Reiff's Appeal, 16 A. 636 (Pa. 1889).

Life tenant is a quasi trustee only to the extent that he must not injure the remainderman's rights. Barnes v. Barnes, 148 S.E.2d 789 (Va. 1966).

(n5)Footnote 138. In re Metz' Estate, 185 A. 740 (Pa. 1936). Contra, In re Powell's Estate, 17 A.2d 391 (Pa. 1941).

See Note, A Debtor Who Consumes His Own Debt, 99 U. Pa. L. Rev. 873 (1951).

(n6)Footnote 139. Allen v. Wiseman, 224 S.W.2d 1010 (Mo. 1949). No adverse possession as against remainderman or reversioners. Monte v. Montalbano, 145 So. 2d 197 (Ala. 1962).

A life tenant is, to a limited extent, a fiduciary in relation to the remainderman to preserve the property with ultimate transmission to the remainderman subject to the life tenant's right to invade as conferred by the instrument. Magruder v. Magruder, 525 S.W.2d 400 (Mo. App. 1975).

Life tenant cannot acquire title from remainderman by adverse possession. Duncan v. Johnson, 338 So. 2d 1243 (Ala. 1976).

(n7)Footnote 140. Wheeler v. Kazee, 253 S.W.2d 378 (Ky. 1952).

Life tenant held a "qualified trustee" or fiduciary of the property for the remainderman. Windscheffel v. Wright, 360 P.2d 178 (Kan. 1961).

In Pennsylvania the relationship of a life tenant to the remainder is that of debtor and creditor. In re Kirkpatrick's Estate, 131 A. 361 (Pa. 1925). The heirs of a life tenant are entitled to all accretions if coupled with the power to consume. In re Hays' Estate, 55 A.2d 763 (Pa. 1947).

Life tenant as a quasi trustee for the remainderman does not hold adversely, absent a direct notice of hostile claim of title. Young v. Young, 349 S.W.2d 545 (Tenn. App. 1961).

Mutual wills held to create life estates in the respective testators with remainder over to mutual beneficiary.

(n8)Footnote 141. Fleming v. Brunner, 166 A.2d 901 (Md. 1961).

Life tenant need only pay interest, not principal, of a mortgage, but if he pays the principal, he is entitled to contribution from the remaindermen. King v. Rainbolt, 515 P.2d 228 (Okla. 1973).

Life tenant in trust may purchase at a mortgage foreclosure sale. Flowers v. Oakdale Realty & Water Corp., 183 S.E.2d 513 (S.C. 1971).

(n9)Footnote 142. Linenthal v. Birmingham Trust & Sav. Co., 32 So. 2d 368 (Ala. 1947); Holzhauser v. Iowa State Tax Comm'n, 62 N.W.2d 229 (Iowa 1953); Windscheffel v. Wright, 360 P.2d 178 (Kan. 1961)(life tenant's power of sale did not give right to give away, waste or devise since life tenant becomes trustee for remainderman); In re Pew's Trust Estate, 158 A.2d 552 (Pa. 1960)(the Pennsylvania rule of apportionment of income has been largely abrogated today); in Thomason v. Hellams, 103 S.E.2d 324 (S.C. 1958), the life tenant with power to sell was not subject to an action by the remainderman to enforce a trust on the sale of proceeds.

No confidential relationship between life tenant and remainderman. Barnes v. Barnes, 148 S.E.2d 789 (Va. 1966).

(n10)Footnote 143. Attebery v. Prentice, 65 N.W.2d 138 (Neb. 1954); In re Roth's Estate, 52 A.2d 811 (N.J. Eq. 1947); Reams v. Henney, 97 N.E.2d 37 (Ohio App. 1950); In re Barnes Estate, 108 N.E.2d 88 (Ohio Com. Pl. 1950), aff'd, 108 N.E.2d 101 (Ohio App. 1952).

Life tenant as trustee for remainderman allowed to recover full amount of damage to freehold. Rogers v. Atlantic, Gulf & Pac. Co., 107 N.E. 661 (N.Y. 1915).

The relation of a life tenant to a remainderman is that of a quasi trustee so that the statute of limitation with respect to real estate does not begin to run until the remainderman knows that life tenant has attempted to devise a fee simple estate or should know that someone is in possession. Graff v. Graff, 138 N.W.2d 644 (Neb. 1965).

Contra, a life tenant is a quasi trustee for remainderman. Skovron v. Third Nat'l Bank, 509 S.W.2d 497 (Tenn. App. 1973).

(n11)Footnote 144. Wheeler v. Kazee, 253 S.W.2d 378 (Ky. 1952); Matlock v. Mize, 230 P.2d 246 (N.M. 1950).

(n12)Footnote 145. Trustee. Burlington County Nat'l Bank v. Braddock, 94 A.2d 868 (N.J. Super. 1953).

Debtor. In re Emig's Estate, 60 York 193 (Pa. 1947); Randall v. Estes, 218 S.W.2d 338 (Tex. Civ. App. 1949).

Where a trustee has been given invasionary powers, the general rule that the trustee must diminish the trust by the remainder interest as well as the interest of the life tenant and cannot slight one interest for the benefit of the other is no longer operative. National Bank of Commerce of San Antonio v. United States, 369 F. Supp. 990 (W.D. Tex. 1973), aff'd, 491 F.2d 1271 (5th Cir. 1974).

(n13)Footnote 146. Myers v. Grant, 95 S.E.2d 9 (Ga. 1956); Jones v. Bilderbock, 290 S.W.2d 580 (Tex. Civ. App. 1956).

(n14)Footnote 147. Holding no damages allowed. City San. Dist. v. Averel, 47 P.2d 786 (Cal. App. 1935); Duncan v. Johnson, 338 So. 2d 1243 (Ala. 1976).

(n15)Footnote 148. Life tenant's breach of his duty to return the land for taxation in his name, after the testator's death, does not prejudice remainderman's right to possession at the death of the life tenant. Stamper v. Avant, 104 S.E.2d 565 (S.C. 1958).

Tax sale during the life tenancy does not affect the right of remainderman, even though part of the taxes incurred were assessed during the life of the creator of the two estates. Taylor v. Jennings, 106 S.E.2d 391 (S.C. 1958). Devisees of life tenant held adversely to remainderman from date of life tenant's death. Rutledge v. Rutledge, 132 S.E.2d 469 (Va. 1963).

(n16)Footnote 149. Cotney v. Eason, 113 So. 2d 512 (Ala. 1959)(adverse possession does not run against the future interest by virtue of an unrecorded deed from the life tenant under an unrecorded deed in fee simple where reversioner or remainderman had no notice).

(n17)Footnote 150. Gindrat v. Western R. of Ala., 11 So. 372 (Ala. 1892); Gibbs v. Bates, 222 S.W.2d 805 (Ark. 1949); Pryor v. Winter, 82 P. 202 (Cal. 1905); Bryan v. Atwater, 5 Day 181 (Conn. 1823); Smith v. McWhorter, 51 S.E. 474 (Ga. 1905); Gurr v. Gurr, 32 S.E.2d 507 (Ga. 1944); Biggers v. Gladin, 50 S.E.2d 585 (Ga. 1948); Orthwein v. Thomas, 21 N.E. 430 (Ill. 1889); Haskett v. Maxey, 33 N.E. 358 (Ind. 1893); Beechley v. Beechley, 108 N.W. 762 (Iowa 1906); Creel v. Hammans, 13 N.W.2d 305 (Iowa 1944); Withroder v. Weideroder, 134 P.2d 381 (Kan. 1943); Salyer v. Keeton, 283 S.W. 1015 (Ky. 1926); Howard v. Mitchell, 105 S.W.2d 128 (Ky. 1936); Trimble v. Gordon, 109 S.W.2d 1217 (Ky. 1937); Slack v. Barrett, 160 S.W.2d 595 (Ky. 1942); Kelly v. Kelly, 183 S.W.2d 805 (Ky. 1944); Wheeler v. Kazee, 253 S.W.2d 378 (Ky. 1952); Lumley v. Haggerty, 68 N.W. 243 (Mich. 1896); Lowry v. Lyle, 198 N.W. 245 (Mich. 1924); Hanson v. Ingwaldson, 80 N.W. 702 (Minn. 1899); Charles v. Pickens, 112 S.W. 551 (Mo. 1908); Weller v. Searcy, 123 S.W.2d 73 (Mo. 1938); Maurer v. Reifschneider, 132 N.W. 197 (Neb. 1911); Baker v. Oakwood, 25 N.E. 312 (N.Y. 1890); Smith v. Proctor, 51 S.E. 889 (N.C. 1905); Eason v. Spence, 61 S.E.2d 717 (N.C. 1950); Stein v. White, 143 N.E. 124 (Ohio St. 1924); Beatty v. Miley, 233 P.2d 269 (Okla. 1951); A. D. Graham & Co. v. Pennsylvania Tpk. Comm'n, 33 A.2d 22 (Pa. 1943); Kirton v. Howard, 134 S.E. 859 (S.C. 926); Republic Prod. Co. v. Lee, 121 S.W.2d 973 (Tex. 1938).

Possession by one claiming under the life tenant is not adverse to remainderman until death of life tenant. Meadows v. Hardcastle, 242 S.W.2d 710 (Ark. 1951); Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 76 S.E.2d 204 (Va. 1953).

(n18)Footnote 151. White v. Inman, 54 So. 2d 375 (Miss. 1951).

(n19)Footnote 152. William Cruise, A Digest of the Law of Real Property, tit. III, § 9 (2d ed. 1857). Harrison v. Lee, 45 So. 2d 705 (Ala. 1950).

(n20)Footnote 153. Combs v. Haley Coal Co., 276 F. 342 (6th Cir. 1921); Ray v. Farrow, 100 So. 868 (Ala. 1924); Cessna v. Carroll, 290 P.2d 803 (1955); Commonwealth v. Clark, 83 S.W. 100 (Ky. 1904); Johnson v. Moore, 143 S.W.2d 254 (Mo. 1940).

See also Munro v. Whitlow, 201 P. 964 (Cal. App. 1921); Hunott v. Critehlow, 285 S.W.2d 594 (Mo. 1955).

Cf., as contra, Nussbaum v. Nussbaum, 292 S.W. 189 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927).

Grantee from life tenant does not hold adversely to remainderman though holding under a fee simple deed. Quarles v. Arthur, 231 S.W.2d 589 (Tenn. App. 1950).

(n21)Footnote 154. Kirksey v. Cole, 1 S.W. 778 (Ark. 1886); Meadows v. Hardcastle, 242 S.W.2d 110 (Ark. 1951); Frazier v. Hanes, 249 S.W.2d 842 (Ark. 1952); Biggers v. Gladin, 50 S.E.2d 585 (Ga. 1948); Beasley v. Beasley, 88 N.E.2d 435 (1949); Wheeler v. Kazee, 253 S.W.2d 378 (Ky. 1952); Wells v. Prince, 9 Mass. 508 (1813); Bohrer v. Davis, 143 N.W. 209, 430 (Neb. 1913), aff'd, 148 N.W. 320 (Neb. 1914); Lotspeich v. Dean, 211 P.2d 979 (N.M. 1949); Moore v. Luce, 29 Pa. 260 (1857); Hutchison v. Board, 250 S.W.2d 82 (Tenn. 1952); Bryson v. Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co., 211 S.W.2d 304 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948), rev'd, 219 S.W.2d 799 (Tex. 1949); Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 76 S.E.2d 204 (Va. 1953); Stealey v. Lyons, 37 S.E.2d 569 (W. Va. 1946).

Cutting of timber, execution of oil and mineral leases and other acts of waste are not alone enough to start adverse possession running in favor of the life tenant. Mills v. Pennington, 209 S.W.2d 281 (Ark. 1948).

A remainderman does not have a right to sue for wrongful possession of real estate until death of life tenant. Futch v. Jarrard, 45 S.E.2d 420 (Ga. 1947).

Unless future interest was created by an owner of an interest against whom statute had already commenced or unless future interest was or is barred by entailment or there is a landlord and tenant relationship the statutory period does not commence to run before such estate becomes a present interest. Lotspeich v. Dean, 211 P.2d 979 (N.M. 1949).

Adverse possession does not run against remainderman until after death of life tenant. Heustess v. Oswalt, 488 S.W.2d 707 (Ark. 1973).

Statute of limitations does not run against remainderman until death of life tenant. Zambrano v. Olivas, 490 S.W.2d 218 (Tex. Civ. App. 1973).

(n22)Footnote 155. Buder v. Fiske, 174 F.2d 260 (8th Cir. 1949)(quasi trustee); Pryor v. Winter, 82 P. 202 (Cal. 1905); Smith v. McWhorter, 51 S.E. 474 (Ga. 1905); Folds v. Hartry, 41 S.E.2d 142 (Ga. 1947); Miller v. Trigg County Farmers Bank, 227 S.W.2d 429 (Ky. 1950); Bohrer v. Davis, 143 N.W. 209 (Neb. 1913), aff'd, 148 N.W. 320 (Neb. 1914); Moore v. Luce, 29 Pa. 260 (1857); In re Schulz' Estate, 98 A.2d 176 (Pa. 1953); West v. Moore, 246 S.W.2d 74 (Tenn. 1952)(indicating, however, that grantee of life tenant is holding adversely); Quarles v. Arthur, 231 S.W.2d 589 (Tenn. App. 1950); Strong v. Garrett, 218 S.W.2d 873 (Tex. Civ. App. 1949), rev'd, 224 S.W.2d 471 (Tex. 1949).

Right of deceased's children, as remainders, to sue for possession did not arise until life estate by curtesy terminated, even though life tenant by curtesy attempted to convey and grantee claimed a fee. Allen v. Wiseman, 224 S.W.2d 1010 (Mo. 1949).

(n23)Footnote 156. Wells v. Prince, 9 Mass. 508 (1813).

Open mine doctrine applies to oil and gas lease entered into before the life estate was created though the wells were drilled after the life estate came into being. Youngman v. Shular, 288 S.W.2d 495 (Tex. 1956).

Restricting open mine doctrine to cases where there is actual production or an existing lease at beginning of life estate. Bergendahl v. Blanco Oil Co., 440 S.W.2d 81 (Tex. Civ. App. 1969).

(n24)Footnote 157. Lane v. Travelers Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., 299 N.W. 553 (Iowa 1941).

(n25)Footnote 158. Gurr v. Gurr, 32 S.E.2d 507 (Ga. 1944).

Adverse possession does not start to run where life tenant purports to convey the fee by reason of the deed alone. McDonald v. Burke, 288 S.W.2d 363 (Ky. 1955).

(n26)Footnote 159. Bloom v. Strauss, 69 S.W. 548 (Ark. 1902); Harper v. Durden, 170 S.E. 45 (Ga. 1933); Folsom v. Clark, 72 Me. 44 (1881); Plimpton v. Plimpton, 66 Mass. (12 Cush.) 458 (1853); Stump v. Hornbeck, 15 Mo. App. 367 (1884); Beardsley v. Chapman, 1 Ohio St. 118 (1853); Whitney v. Richardson, 31 Vt. 300 (1851).

Adverse possession as against remainderman during life estate as affected by fact that a conveyance by the life tenant purported to cover the fee, see Content v. Dalton, 194 A. 286 (N.J. Eq. 1937).

(n27)Footnote 160. Linenthal v. Birmingham Trust & Sav. Co., 32 So. 2d 368 (Ala. 1947); Williams v. Morrison, 48 N.W.2d 666 (Iowa 1951); Miracle v. Miracle, 86 S.W.2d 536 (Ky. 1935), 102 A.L.R. 964; Revare v. Lee, 257 S.W.2d 676 (Mo. 1953); Attebery v. Prentice, 65 N.W.2d 138 (Neb. 1954)(quasi trustee); Burlington County Nat'l Bank v.

Braddock, 94 A.2d 868 (N.J. Super. 1953); Morrow v. Person, 259 S.W.2d 665 (Tenn. 1953)(quasi trustee).

Laches run against remainderman to terminate life estate when he waited seven years after his sister made valuable improvements. Hadden v. Thompson, 42 S.E.2d 125 (Ga. 1947).

Life tenant as quasi trustee though power to dispose is attached. Trute v. Skeede, 75 N.W.2d 672 (Neb. 1956), but see Dutch v. Scribner, 118 A.2d 887 (Me. 1955), as denying existence of confidential relationship between life tenant and remainderman.

Owner of land abutting street gets title when dedicated street is abandoned as against reversioner even though owner's title is by adverse possession. Skrmetta v. Moore, 30 So. 2d 53 (Miss. 1947).

A life tenant with or without power of disposal incurs obligations of a trustee for remainderman. Laval v. Osterhout, 65 A.2d 866 (N.J. Super. 1949).

A gift for life with right to consume creates relationship of debtor-creditor (not trustee) and life tenant is responsible to remainderman for value of estate at time of distribution, not for any increase thereafter. In re Hay's Estate, 55 A.2d 763 (Pa. 1947).

In the case of personalty, however, if the life tenant has the power to consume his relationship with the remainderman when the relationship is that of debtor-creditor. In re Layman's Estate, 69 D. & C. 491 (Pa. 1950); In re Emig's Estate, 60 York 193 (Pa. 1947).

Life tenant with full power of disposal is not a trustee for remainderman, but must protect property for remainderman only when remaindermen have clear vested indefeasible interest in property. Randall v. Estes, 218 S.W.2d 338 (Tex. Civ. App. 1949).

Denying to contingent remainderman the right to damages against the owner of the present estate for conduct decreasing the value of the future interest. Sargent Lake Ass'n v. Dane, 351 A.2d 54 (N.H. 1976).

A life tenant may, upon closing of an estate, be required to post reasonable security to protect the remainderman. In re Estate of Rorem, 66 N.W.2d 292 (Iowa 1954).

Income not used by life tenant belongs to remainderman. Skovron v. Third Nat'l Bank, 509 S.W.2d 497 (Tenn. App. 1973).

(n28)Footnote 161. Amator v. Amator, 560 P.2d 410 (Ariz. 1977).

(n29)Footnote 162. Life estate with absolute power of sale, mortgage or disposal did not create a fee for inheritance tax purposes. In re Bishir's Estate, 18 P.2d 576 (Mont. 1957).

Contra, Gibson v. Gibson, 181 N.W. 41 (Mich. 1921); but see Quarton v. Barton, 229 N.W. 465 (Mich. 1930); Vandeventer v. Mullen, 11 S.W.2d 867 (Tenn. 1928); Ogden v. Maxwell, 140 S.E. 554 (W. Va. 1927).

(n30)Footnote 163. Central Union Trust Co. v. State, 202 P. 853 (Kan. 1921); In re Rogers' Estate, 149 N.Y.S. 462 (1914).

(n31)Footnote 164. Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927); English v. Carter, 189 S.W.2d 839 (Ky. 1945).

Life tenant treated as "owner." Croasdale v. Butell, 280 P.2d 593 (Kan. 1955), but a long-term lessee is not. Bloom v.

Wides, 128 N.E.2d 31 (Ohio St. 1955).

(n32)Footnote 165. Mathis v. Melton, 238 S.W. 806 (Mo. 1922).

Income in the hands of the trustee available for distribution at the death of the life tenant goes to the latter's estate. First Nat'l Bank of Colorado Springs v. McGuire, 184 F.2d 620 (7th Cir. 1950); St. Mary's Hosp. v. Long, 17 N.E.2d 833 (Ind. 1938).

(n33)Footnote 166. Daley v. Daley, 14 N.E.2d 113 (Mass. 1938).

A life tenant may also be a remainderman. Hendrick v. Mitchell, 69 N.E.2d 466 (Mass. 1946).

There is a presumption that the holder of the preceding estate is not a member of the class in remainder. White v. Inman, 54 So. 2d 375 (Miss. 1951).

One may be a life tenant and also a co-owner of the remainder. Statler v. Watson, 68 N.W.2d 604 (Neb. 1955).

(n34)Footnote 167. Lazenby v. Ware, 173 S.E. 86 (Ga. 1934); Miracle v. Miracle, 86 S.W.2d 536 (Ky. 1935); McLean v. McLean, 199 N.W. 459 (Wis. 1924).

Fiduciary duty of life tenant to remainderman is not an interest in land but a duty in equity to preserve and protect remainderman. Matlock v. Mize, 230 P.2d 246 (N.M. 1950).

Where a trespass affects both the life and remainder estates, the life tenant and the remainderman may sue separately, but not jointly, for damages. Shaw v. Monongahela Ry., 130 S.E. 461 (W. Va. 1925).

(n35)Footnote 168. Cross v. Janes, 158 N.E. 694 (Ill. 1927); Lowry v. Lyle, 198 N.W. 245 (Mich. 1924).

(n36)Footnote 169. Falvey v. Hicks, 286 S.W. 385 (Mo. 1926).

Life tenant in cutting timber above 12 inches was legally engaged in "tree farming." Reynolds v. Jones, 145 So. 2d 437 (Ala. 1962).

Life tenant may not cut timber except to preserve and protect property. McClure v. Chastain, 128 S.E.2d 721 (Ga. 1962).

(n37)Footnote 170. Wise v. Helms, 40 So. 2d 700 (Ala. 1949)(nor is a defense of laches available to the life tenant).

Contra, and to effect remainderman barred by laches as respects others. Merrill v. Merrill, 71 So. 2d 44 (Ala. 1954).

Gibbs v. Bates, 222 S.W.2d 805 (Ark. 1949); Frazier v. Hanes, 249 S.W.2d 842 (Ark. 1952); McDaniel v. Bagby, 51 S.E.2d 805 (Ga. 1949); O'Kelley v. Jackson, 81 S.E. 454 (Ga. 1954); Russell v. Tipton, 235 S.W. 763 (Ky. 1921); Kelly v. Kelly, 183 S.W.2d 805 (Ky. 1944); Spencer v. Bouchard, 121 A. 164 (Me. 1923); Lowry v. Lyle, 198 N.W. 245 (Mich. 1924); Wells v. Egger, 259 S.W. 437 (Mo. 1924); Braue v. Fleck, 127 A.2d 1 (N.J. 1956); Howell v. Shaw, 112 S.E. 38 (N.C. 1922); Eason v. Spence, 61 S.E.2d 717 (N.C. 1950); Sprinkle v. Reidsville, 69 S.E.2d 179 (N.C. 1952); Lovett v. Stone, 79 S.E.2d 479 (N.C. 1954); Youmans v. Youmans, 105 S.E. 31 (S.C. 1920); Nussbaum v. Nussbaum, 292 S.W. 189 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927).

See also Newport v. Hatton, 231 P. 987 (Cal. 1924).

(n38)Footnote 171. Commercial Bldg. Co. v. Parslow, 112 So. 378 (Fla. 1927).

One claiming under life tenant and adverse to remainderman must prove, unequivocally, ouster to remainder's interest. White v. Inman, 54 So. 2d 375 (Miss. 1951).

Life tenant is not a fiduciary and may acquire an outstanding interest as against the remainderman. Flowers v. Oakdale Realty & Water Corp., 183 S.E.2d 513 (S.C. 1971).

(n39)Footnote 172. Manier v. Hodges, 230 S.W.2d 960 (Ark. 1950)(adverse possession begins at life tenant's death); Smith v. Kappler, 245 S.W.2d 809 (Ark. 1952); Russell v. Tipton, 235 S.W. 763 (Ky. 1921).

(n40)Footnote 173. Webb v. Webb, 255 S.W. 137 (Ky. 1923).

See, however, Ashbaugh v. Wright, 188 N.W. 157 (Minn. 1922), in which it is said that "the rule is well established that a deed by a life tenant conveys merely the life estate, although it purports to be a conveyance of the fee, and the grantee acquires thereunder no interest against the remainderman... Where a life tenant attempts to convey the premises in fee, the possession of the grantee is not adverse to the remainderman until the termination of the life estate, for the reason that the latter has no right of possession until the particular estate is terminated, and he can have no right of action which depends upon the right of possession, until he is entitled to the possession. ... Nor will the statute of limitation commence its operation until that time." See also Willis v. Robinson, 237 S.W. 1030 (Mo. 1922).

See also West v. Moore, 246 S.W.2d 74 (Tenn. 1952)(life tenant devising a fee); Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. Bryson, 219 S.W.2d 799 (Tex. 1949), rev'g, 211 S.W.2d 304 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948).

During continuance of life estate one holding in remainder is not bound to take notice of possession taken and continued by virtue of a conveyance from the life tenant. In re Schulz Estate, 98 A.2d 176 (Pa. 1953).

Life tenants' possession does not become adverse to remainderman by acquisition of a superior title claim. Edwards v. Puckett, 268 S.W.2d 582 (Tenn. 1954). But see Tillotson v. Foster, 141 N.E. 412 (Ill. 1923).

Evidence held insufficient notice of life tenants' adverse claim. Collett v. Collett, 217 S.W.2d 60 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948).

Deed by life tenant purporting to convey a fee simple estate conveys only a life estate. Zambrano v. Olivas, 490 S.W.2d 218 (Tex. Civ. App. 1973).

(n41)Footnote 174. Quarles v. Arthur, 231 S.W.2d 589 (Tenn. App. 1950).

(n42)Footnote 175. Vann v. Carter, 71 So. 2d 811 (Ala. 1954)(mere silence and inactivity on part of remainderman does not bar him); Bryant v. Jones, 71 So. 2d 831 (Ala. 1954); Hamilton v. Farmer, 292 S.W. 683 (Ark. 1927); Cross v. Janes, 158 N.E. 694 (Ill. 1927); Beasley v. Beasley, 88 N.E.2d 435 (Ill. 1949); Manning v. McGinnis, 279 S.W. 668 (Ky. 1926); Spearman v. Hussey, 50 So. 2d 610 (Miss. 1951)(adverse possession ran against life tenant but not remainderman); Wells v. Egger, 259 S.W. 437 (Mo. 1924); Revare v. Lee, 257 S.W.2d 676 (Mo. 1953); Wallhauser v. Rummel, 96 A.2d 289 (N.J. Super. 1953); Sprinkle v. Reidsville, 69 S.E.2d 179 (N.C. 1952); Walston v. W. H. Applewhite & Co., 75 S.E.2d 138 (N.C. 1953)(dictum); Stein v. White, 143 N.E. 124 (Ohio St. 1924); Beatty v. Miley, 233 P.2d 269 (Okla. 1951); Floyd v. Page, 124 S.E. 1 (S.C. 1924); Crotwell v. Whitney, 92 S.E.2d 473 (S.C. 1956); Johnson v. Covington, 251 S.W. 893 (Tenn. 1923); Edwards v. Puckett, 268 S.W.2d 582 (Tenn. 1954); Matthews v. W. T. Freeman & Co., 60 S.E.2d 909 (Va. 1950); Stealey v. Lyons, 37 S.E.2d 569 (W. Va. 1946); In re Larson's Estate, 52 N.W.2d 141 (Wis. 1952).

See also Wilder v. Scott, 89 So. 2d 682 (Ala. 1956); Tennison v. Carroll, 243 S.W.2d 944 (Ark. 1951); McDonald v. Burke, 288 S.W.2d 363 (Ky. 1955).

But see Williams v. Kitchens, 74 So. 2d 457 (Ala. 1954)(denying right to establish an equitable remainder after 20 years); Futch v. Jarrard, 45 S.E.2d 420 (Ga. 1947); Brittenum v. Cunningham, 220 S.W.2d 100 (Ky. 1949)(holding that after adverse possession by a third party has run against the life tenant, it then begins to run against the remainderman).

Where the statute of limitations begins to run before a life estate is carved out, it will continue to run thereafter against the whole estate; but where adverse possession begins after the life estate is created it will run, during the continuance of such estate, only against the life tenant and not against the remainderman. Wells v. Egger, 259 S.W. 437 (Mo. 1924).

(n43)Footnote 176. St. Clair Springs Hotel Co. v. Balcomb, 108 So. 858 (Ala. 1926).

> The general rule is that [neither] laches estoppel, nor the statute of limitations will run against a remainderman prior to the termination of the life tenancy. This rule is, however, predicated on an uninterrupted continuation of the conduct of the life tenant consistent with his duty as such to the remainderman. This rule may not apply where it is shown that the remainderman had actual knowledge of the repudiation or abandonment by the life tenant of his status as such, and of the holding by him of the property under a different and adverse right, or where the life tenant, in good faith and to the knowledge of the remainderman, claims title, not as a life tenant, but through some other source, or where there has been ouster and disseisin by the life tenant or by one claiming by, through or under him, and this under claim of right or color of title followed by adverse possession for the statutory period, or when there is some special independent equity in favor of the purchaser who claims under a conveyance from the life tenant.

Commercial Bldg. Co. v. Parslow, 112 So. 378 (Fla. 1927).

Or unless the adverse possession had already commenced to run against the owner at the time of creation of the remainder. Lotspeich v. Dean, 211 P.2d 979 (N.M. 1949).

(n44)Footnote 177. Warfield v. Bixby, 51 F.2d 210 (8th Cir. 1931); Seymour v. National Biscuit Co., 107 F.2d 58 (3d Cir. 1939); Cooke v. United States, 115 F. Supp. 830 (D. Haw. 1953) aff'd, 228 F.2d 667 (9th Cir. 1955); Wheeler v. Kazee, 253 S.W.2d 379 (Ky. 1952)(fiduciary relationship exists); Dutch v. Scribner, 118 A.2d 887 (Me. 1955)(no confidential relationship arises out of existence of a life tenancy); Attebery v. Prentice, 65 N.W.2d 138 (Neb. 1954); Trute v. Skeede, 75 N.W.2d 672 (Neb. 1956); Laval v. Osterhout, 65 A. 866 (N.J. Super. 1907); Burlington County Trust Co. v. Kingsland, 86 A.2d 815 (N.J. Super. 1952); Burlington County Nat'l Bank v. Braddock, 94 A.2d 868 (N.J. Super. 1953); Peck v. Smith, 125 N.E. 91 (N.Y. 1919); In re Reckford's Will, 120 N.E.2d 696 (N.Y. 1954); In re Erdman's Estate, 42 A.2d 546 (Pa. 1945); Morrow v. Person, 259 S.W.2d 665 (Tenn. 1952); In re Larson's Estate, 52 N.W.2d 141 (Wis. 1952).

Life tenant may not have partition as against remainderman. Dixon v. Dixon, 202 N.W.2d 180 (Neb. 1972).

(n45)Footnote 178. Cooke v. United States, 115 F. Supp. 830 (D. Haw. 1953), aff'd 228 F.2d 667 (9th Cir. 1955).

(n46)Footnote 179. Herbst v. Treinen, 88 N.W.2d 820 (Iowa 1958).

Life tenant must preserve property to the extent an ordinary person would treat his own. Bliss v. Security-First Nat'l Bank, 183 P.2d 312 (Cal. App. 1947). Life tenant has duty to impart to remainderman his knowledge of facts existing which may affect the remainderman. Osborn v. Osborn, 256 P.2d 653 (Cal. App. 1953), op. vacated, 267 P.2d 333 (Cal. 1954). Liable for permissive waste. Reams v. Henney, 97 N.E.2d 37 (Ohio App. 1950).

Koplon v. Koplon, 148 So. 2d 245 (Ala. 1962) (the court required the life tenant with power to sell to turn the proceeds over to a trustee to reinvest); Windscheffel v. Wright, 360 P.2d 178 (Kan. 1961)(life tenant with power to consume is a trustee for remainderman); Robb v. Berryman, 137 A.2d 135 (Md. 1957)(a life tenant with power to consume for own benefit could not accumulate income, support herself from the corpus and bequeath the accumulated income); In re Rarick's Estate, 13 Fiduciary 271 (Pa. 1963)(a gift of "everything left" to remainderman gave life tenant a power of disposition and excused the giving of security); Caine v. Griffin, 103 S.E.2d 37 (S.C. 1958)(permitting virtual representation of unborn remaindermen).

See Osborn v. Morrison, 132 S.E.2d 58 (Ga. 1963).

Life tenant need only pay interest, not principal, of a mortgage, but if he pays the principal, he is entitled to contribution from the remaindermen. King v. Rainholt, 515 P.2d 228 (Okla. 1973).

(n47)Footnote 180. Wright v. Conner, 37 S.E.2d 353 (Ga. 1946). But see Conner v. Bowdoin, 57 S.E.2d 344 (Ga. App. 1950), considering lack of ordinary care as waste.

(n48)Footnote 181. In re Helmer's Will, 77 N.Y.S.2d 5 (1947); In re Hays' Estate, 55 A.2d 763 (Pa. 1947).

See In re Morris' Estate, 29 D. & C. 2d 370, 13 Fiduciary 142 (Pa. 1963).

Life tenant may be required to give security to the remainderman but has no duty to account for use of the property. Holley v. Marks, 535 S.W.2d 861 (Tenn. 1976).

Where there was a life estate with power to dispose or consume, it is improper to require the life tenant to make an annual accounting of transactions involving the remainder interest. Lehner v. Lehner's Estate, 547 P.2d 365 (Kan. 1976).

(n49)Footnote 182. Dillard v. Gill, 47 So. 2d 203 (Ala. 1950); Wigal v. Hensley, 216 S.W.2d 792 (Ark. 1949).

(n50)Footnote 183. See Worden's Appeal, 42 A. 650 (Conn. 1899).

(n51)Footnote 184. In re Hays' Estate, 55 A.2d 763 (Pa. 1947), now changed in Pennsylvania by statute, Estates Act 1947, § 13, whereby the relationship between life tenant and remainderman becomes trustee and beneficiary.

(n52)Footnote 185. Lowe v. Adams, 419 P.2d 764 (N.M. 1966).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.05

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.05 The Life Tenant's Right to Transfer the Life Estate.

[Go To Supp]

Since a life tenancy is an estate in freehold it is normally freely alienable, n186 may be mortgaged, and the life tenant may transfer the possessory right by leasing to another.

Particularly in the case of trusts there is much controversy among the courts as to the division of extraordinary income such as stock dividends or condemnation proceeds as between the life tenant and the remaindermen. n187 The problem becomes even more acute where the trustee has the power to invade corpus for the benefit of the life tenant. n188

At common law, after the right to alienate was established, a conveyance by a life tenant of a greater estate than held had, if made by feoffment, the effect of forfeiting the entire interest, on the theory that such an assertion of ownership broke the feudal connection between the tenant and lord, and the reversioner or remainderman was thereby considered as disseised by the wrongful transfer and might at once enter to regain the original right. Such a transfer was regarded as putting an end to the entire estate. He was or might be in possession without right as against the reversioner or remainderman and could be ousted without such ceremony. n189 If the conveyance was by bargain and sale, lease and release or a form recognized by the statute of uses, it did not have the effect of forfeiting the tenant's estate, but transferred to the grantee such estate as the tenant had, and it was not considered as disrupting the feudal connection, though it purported to convey a fee.

While it was true that an attempted feoffment of a greater interest than the feoffor had terminated the estate prior to the Statute of 7 & 8 Victoria, ch. 100, §§ 7 and 8 & 9 Victoria, ch. 106, § 4, this rule was not applicable to deeds operating under the statute of uses since such deeds passed only the estate of the grantor. n190 In such conveyances there is no transmutation of the possession, livery of seisin, and disturbance of the seisin. n191 Now, a life tenant may alienate his entire interest or he may create any number of smaller estates so long as they do not altogether exceed his estate. n192 Though his conveyance purports to convey a fee, it passes only a life estate to the grantee. n193 Ordinarily, he cannot dispose of nor diminish the corpus of the estate, and in so doing deprive the remaindermen of what may ultimately develop into a valuable interest. n194

Under the modern rule the attempt, deliberate or otherwise, of the grantor to transmit an estate greater than the life estate held n195 will not destroy the estate n196 nor will it in any way affect the immediate rights of the reversioner or remainderman. n197 Such a deed will, however, in some jurisdictions give color of title for the purposes of prescription or adverse possession and in some states constitutes such a repudiation of the rights of the holder of the future interest as to start adverse possession running. There is much contrary authority, however. n198

The life tenant and remaindermen may sell their respective interests or join in conveying their entire interest in the property. n199

A surrender of a life estate to the future interest may be accomplished in writing or by operation of law. n200

For merger to operate, the greater and lesser estate must be in the same person at the same time and in the same right. n201

A conveyance by the life tenant and the remaindermen in esse does not automatically extinguish the remainder interest of unborn children, but such conveyance is subject to the interests of the unborn children. n202 Under the common law, however, if the life tenant and the vested remainderman or the reversioner conveyed their interests to the same person a merger took place destroying the contingent remainders. n203

The power of alienation is not a necessary incident to an equitable life estate, n204 and the weight of authority seems to be that the common law rule against restraints on alienation applied to fee simples and not to life estates. n205 There are contrary cases, however, which prohibit absolute restraints on alienation of life estate. n206 So where the life tenant is a married woman, and there is a provision in the instrument creating the estate in restraint of alienation, she cannot convey her interest. n207

A lease for a term of years by a life tenant is not necessarily terminated by death where the possession of the premises for the full term is guaranteed by covenants made binding upon executors, administrators, and assigns and assented to in writing by the remainderman. n208 An under-tenant remaining in possession of the premises after the death of the life tenant, becomes a tenant at sufferance and is liable to the remainderman for the value of the use and occupation during the time the under-tenant so remains in possession. n209 Whether an instrument called a "lease" was a lease or an assignment of the life tenant's interest was held to depend on the intention of the parties. n210

In the absence of a statute or express agreement to the contrary, a life tenant has the power to make and underlease for any lesser term. The same rights and privileges extend to the under-tenant which belong to the life tenant. n211 If a life tenant has no power to alienate, the lease for years is invalid, because it is an encumbrance. n212 Where the life tenant has power to lease, the terms of such lease in no way bind the remainderman, n213 and the lease terminates with the termination of the life estate, n214 unless by statute the lease is made to continue until the end of the current year, n215 or unless the creator of such estate provided otherwise. n216 A lease given by the life tenant will ordinarily expire coincidently with the life estate, n217 at lease, where neither ratification nor estoppel can be validly urged against the remainderman. n218 The right of the life tenant to "lease" does not apply to mineral leases which are actually sales of a profit and not transfers of a mere right of possession. n219

Every kind of interest in real estate subject to sale and assignment may be mortgaged. This of course includes the interest of a life tenant, but such mortgage will not prejudice the rights of the remainderman. n220 One to whom a life estate in land is conveyed cannot bind the remainderman by a mortgage given for the purchase price, as the remainderman is not a party to the mortgage. n221 A mortgage of the fee given by one who only had a life estate, though one had held the property under a will for thirty years supposing one took a fee simple, is a mortgage of a life interest only, and a foreclosure of it after the death of the mortgagor passes no title to the purchaser. n222 The inheritance is not subject to such encumbrance even though the money borrowed on the mortgage was used in making valuable and permanent improvements on the premises. n223 Where a widow, to whom real estate is devised for her own use and benefit during her natural life, with a gift to another of whatever remained at the time of her death, may execute a binding mortgage on the premises for moneys used in making improvements thereon by means of which she secured her support from the property. n224 The life tenant has the power to mortgage the life estate, n225 at least when the creator of such estate does not provide to the contrary, n226 and also the power of mortgaging the fee itself when the person creating the life estate so provides. n227 The intention to grant this latter power to the life tenant must, however, be clear. n228 The devisee of a life estate cannot mortgage the property when the devise expressly prohibits the devisee from selling it. n229 Where the grantor gives to the grantee of a life estate the power to sell and convey the property but denies the power to mortgage it, a conveyance by the life tenant, made for the sole purpose of having the grantee place a mortgage on the property, will constitute a direct violation of the prohibition contained in the original grantor's deed and will not pass title to the fee nor in any manner affect the remainderman's estate. n230

Whether a power to authorize a sale and conveyance includes the power to authorize the giving of a mortgage or deed of trust to secure funds with which to erect improvements for the benefit of the life tenant and remainderman is a matter for the court to decide. n231 It has been held that a court of equity has inherent power to order a mortgage of realty conveyed to a life tenant with remainder over if the exercise of such power is necessary to the preservation of the property and to prevent loss to both the life tenant and the remainderman. n232 Rents must be devoted to payment of all taxes before mortgagee is entitled to anything. n233

Tenants in common of a life estate may have partition, n234 and one cotenant may have partition regardless of whether the other tenants hold their shares for life or in fee simple. n235 A life tenant who has no vested or other interest in the remainder cannot have the entire estate in the land sold for partition. n236 Some cases hold, however, that where the property cannot be partitioned without prejudice to the owners, it may be sold and the proceeds divided. n237 A suit in equity for partition may be brought by or against a tenant for life and a decree made which will be binding upon the persons in remainder, and contingent remaindermen not in esse may be represented in the litigation by the life tenant. n238 A life tenant is a trustee for remaindermen only in the limited sense that the life tenant cannot injure or destroy the property to the detriment of the remaindermen. n239 It is held that one of several remaindermen in land after a life estate cannot have partition during the continuance of the life estate, even though that one has acquired that life estate, unless such life estate is waived. n240

The life tenant cannot lease beyond the life tenant's own life. n241 At common law if a life tenant died between rent days the remainderman took the entire rent. n242 England adopted a statute of apportionment n243 and some states also have apportionment statutes. In at least one state the English statute became part of the common law. n244

It has been held that the holder of an alienable life estate holding a power to devise the fee, could convey the fee by warranty deed. n245 But under the English rule with American following, the fee is not subject to the claims of the life tenant's creditors though the life tenant has the power to appoint by will. n246

Even at common law an attempted conveyance by a life tenant of a greater estate than that held forfeited the estate only if its acquisition was by livery of seisin amounting to a disseisin. The life estate was not forfeited if the attempted conveyance was by bargain and sale. n247

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: life tenant! w/5 right! w/5 transfer! w/15 life estate!

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 186. Security Sav. Bank v. Williams, 176 N.W. 971 (Iowa 1920); Brittain v. Campbell, 122 S.W.2d 740 (Ky. 1938); Kirton v. Howard, 134 S.E. 859 (S.C. 1926).

Life estate is freehold and alienable. Root v. Mackey, 486 S.W.2d 449 (Mo. 1972).

Life tenant cannot lease beyond life. Wood v. Trenchard, 550 P.2d 490 (Wyo. 1976).

In New York a life estate is assignable and subject to claim of creditors if legal. In re Seidman's Will, 389 N.Y.S.2d 729 (1976).

(n2)Footnote 187. Millikin Trust Co. v. Jarvis, 180 N.E.2d 759 (Ill. App. 1962)(leases were treated as principal during administrations under the Principal and Income Act, § 10); Tait v. Peck, 194 N.E.2d 707 (Mass. 1963)(capital gains distributions go to the principal, not to income); Trute v. Skeede, 75 N.W.2d 672 (Neb. 1956)(an increase in value of realty belongs to the life tenant); In re Catherwood's Trust, 173 A.2d 86 (Pa. 1961); Cothran v. South Carolina Nat'l Bank, 130 S.E.2d 177 (S.C. 1963)(noting the difference between the Massachusetts rule, the Pennsylvania rule and the Kentucky rule as to stock dividends and applying the Pennsylvania rule, that the source of the income, not its form, determines apportionment).

Adoption of Uniform Principal and Income Act applies to existing trusts. In re Catherwood's Trust, 173 A.2d 86 (Pa. 1961), overruling In re Crawford's Estate, 67 A.2d 124 (Pa. 1949).

See In re Allis' Will, 94 N.W.2d 226 (Wis. 1959); George G. Bogert, Revised Uniform Principal and Income Act, 38 Notre Dame Law 50 (1962); George C. Barclay, Pennsylvania Rule of Apportionment Abolished, 100 Trusts & Estates 818 (1961).

(n3)Footnote 188. New York has divided on whether the other resources of the beneficiary must be considered before the trustee invades the principal.

Must be considered. In re Messer's Will, 231 N.Y.S.2d 201 (1962).

Contra, In re Scott's Will, 221 N.Y.S.2d 750 (1955); In re Cranwell's Will, 223 N.Y.S.2d 601 (1961); In re Connors' Will, 225 N.Y.S.2d 949 (1962); In re Stern's Will, 228 N.Y.S.2d 90 (1962).

Power to invade the principal of the trust for "best interests" of beneficiary does not include the power to terminate the trust to avoid a tax burden. Kemp v. Paterson, 159 N.E.2d 661 (N.Y. 1959).

See Halbach, Problems of Discretion in Discretionary Trusts, 61 Colum. L. Rev. 1425.

(n4)Footnote 189. 2 Blackstone, Commentaries 274. Jackson ex dem. McCrea v. Mancius, 2 Wend. 357 (N.Y. 1829); Stump v. Findlay, 2 Rawle 168 (Pa. 1828); Faber v. Police, 10 S.C. 376 (1877).

(n5)Footnote 190. Geoffray Gilbert, A Treatise of Tenures, 119 (2d ed. 1738).

(n6)Footnote 191. Stevens v. Winship, 18 Mass. (1 Pick.) 318 (1823).

A life tenant has no power to convey a fee. Miller v. O'Neal, 361 N.E.2d 1165 (Ill. App. 1977).

(n7)Footnote 192. Smith v. McWhorter, 51 S.E. 474 (Ga. 1905); Alexander v. Goellert, 109 P.2d 146 (Kan. 1941); Stewart v. Clark, 54 Mass. (13 Met.) 79 (1847); Daley v. Daley, 32 N.E.2d 286 (Mass. 1941); Hayward v. Kinney, 48 N.W. 170 (Mich. 1891); Heilwig v. Nybeck, 146 N.W. 141 (Mich. 1914); Acord v. Beaty, 148 S.W. 901 (Mo. 1912); Miles v. Miles, 32 N.H. 147 (1855); Howell v. Howell, 172 N.E. 528 (Ohio St. 1930); Green v. Votaw, 134 P.2d 367 (Okla. 1943); Criswell v. Grumbling, 107 Pa. 408 (1884); Evans v. Graves, 166 S.W.2d 955 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

(n8)Footnote 193. Hall v. Condon, 51 So. 20 (Ala. 1909); Rittenhouse v. Porter, 128 S.W. 288 (Ky. 1910); Franklin v. Jones, 191 S.W.2d 835 (Tenn. App. 1945).

Power of life tenant to sell or lease for support did not justify leasing for oil and gas. Johnson v. Messer, 437 S.W.2d 643 (Tex. Civ. App. 1969).

Conveyances of greater estate than owned do not forfeit. Wyo. Stat. § 34-1-111.

Life tenant cannot lease beyond life. Wood v. Trenchard, 550 P.2d 490 (Wyo. 1976).

(n9)Footnote 194. Alexander v. Goellert, 109 P.2d 146 (Kan. 1941); In re Grubb's Estate, 33 Berks. 53 (Pa. 1891).

(n10)Footnote 195. Ashbaugh v. Wright, 188 N.W. 157 (Minn. 1922); Content v. Dalton, 190 A. 328 (N.J. 1937); Green v. Votaw, 134 P.2d 367 (Okla. 1943); Phillips v. Wells, 133 S.E. 581 (Va. 1926). See Vidmer v. Lloyd, 69 So. 480 (Ala. 1915); Kidd v. Borum, 61 So. 100 (Ala. 1913); Westcott v. Meeker, 122 N.W. 964 (Iowa 1909).

(n11)Footnote 196. Smith v. Maberry, 229 S.W. 718 (Ark. 1921); Farkas v. Farkas, 38 S.E.2d 924 (Ga. 1946)(where the grant of the life estate provides a remainder over on attempted alienation, the attempt terminates the life estate); Conner v. Wright, 41 S.E.2d 158 (Ga. 1947); McDaniel v. Bagby, 51 S.E.2d 805 (Ga. 1949).

(n12)Footnote 197. Ashbaugh v. Wright, 188 N.W. 157 (Minn. 1922).

(n13)Footnote 198. Possession of grantee from life tenant under deed purporting to convey fee is adverse. Rutledge v. Rutledge, 132 S.E.2d 469 (Va. 1963).

(n14)Footnote 199. Williams v. J. M. High Co., 36 S.E.2d 667 (Ga. 1946).

Holding that where a life tenant with power to convey grants by deed containing no reference to the power he is presumed to convey only the life estate. Antel v. Chase, 77 Ind. 74 (1881).

(n15)Footnote 200. Mid-State Homes, Inc. v. Johnson, 128 S.E.2d 197 (Ga. 1962).

(n16)Footnote 201. Jemzura v. Jemzura, 330 N.E.2d 414 (N.Y. 1975).

(n17)Footnote 202. United States v. 122,000 Acres of Land, 57 F. Supp. 421 (N.D Tex. 1944).

(n18)Footnote 203. 2 Blackstone, Commentaries 171.

(n19)Footnote 204. Albergotti v. Summers, 26 S.E.2d 395 (S.C. 1943).

Power of alienation is not a legal incidence of a life estate. Wheeling Dollars Sav. & Trust Co. v. Leedy, 216 S.E.2d 560 (W. Va. 1975).

A life tenant is in a sense a trustee for a remainderman so that he cannot endanger or dispose of the property. This is the difference from the true trustee in that he uses the property for his exclusive benefit and takes income and profits therefrom. Duncan v. Johnson, 338 So. 2d 1243 (Ala. 1976).

(n20)Footnote 205. It has been held in Mississippi to be competent for a testator devising a life estate to his wife to prohibit alienation of the property during her life. Crawford v. Solomon, 95 So. 686 (Mass. 1923); Bennett v. Humphreys, 155 P.2d 431 (Kan. 1945)(upholding forfeiture restraint on life estates).

(n21)Footnote 206. The rule in Virginia is that alienability is an incident of a life estate and that general restraints on the alienation of such an estate will be void. Rowley v. American Trust Co., 132 S.E. 347 (Va. 1926).

(n22)Footnote 207. Simonton v. White, 53 S.W. 339 (Tex. 1899).

Life tenant is quasi trustee for remainderman. Skovron v. Third Nat'l Bank, 509 S.W.2d 497 (Tenn. App. 1973).

(n23)Footnote 208. Haywood v. Briggs, 41 S.E.2d 289 (N.C. 1947)(life tenant cannot agree that his tenant may remove his improvements after death of life tenant); Lake Erie Gas, Coal & Coke Co. v. Patterson, 39 A. 68 (Pa. 1898).

Lessee from life tenant's rights cease on death of life tenant except right to remove implements. In re Luke's Estate, 184 N.W.2d 42 (Iowa 1971).

(n24)Footnote 209. Hoagland v. Crum, 113 Ill. 365 (1885); Watson v. Penn, 8 N.E. 636 (Ind. 1886); Guthmann v. Vallery, 71 N.W. 734 (Neb. 1897); Shufflin v. House, 31 S.E. 974 (W. Va. 1898).

(n25)Footnote 210. Staples v. Pearson, 159 So. 488 (Ala. 1935).

(n26)Footnote 211. 4 Kent's Commentaries supra, note 72, 73. Palman v. Reynolds, 16 N.W.2d 657 (Mich. 1944); Miles v. Miles, 32 N.H. 147 (1855); Wiggin v. Wiggin, 43 N.H. 561 (1862).

(n27)Footnote 212. La Rue v. Parmele, 103 N.W. 304 (Neb. 1905).

(n28)Footnote 213. Ray v. Young, 142 N.W. 393 (Iowa 1913); Cassady v. Cain, 223 S.W.2d 744 (Ky. 1949).

On question of lessee's (of life tenant) removal of building from land after death of life tenant it is immaterial whether lessees understood extent of their lessor's title for they had nothing more than he had. Chabon v. Lazarus, 87 A.2d 435 (N.J. Super. 1952).

(n29)Footnote 214. Williams v. Durham, 50 S.E.2d 373 (Ga. App. 1948); Hoagland v. Crum, 113 Ill. 365 (1885); Waldron v. Wahl, 133 A. 252 (Pa. 1926); First Presbyterian Church v. York Depository, 27 S.E.2d 573 (S.C. 1943); Ray v. Frick Co., 57 S.E.2d 890 (W. Va. 1950).

(n30)Footnote 215. Holden v. Boring, 43 S.E. 86 (W. Va. 1903).

(n31)Footnote 216. Holland v. Bogardus-Hill Drug Co., 284 S.W. 121 (Mo. 1926).

(n32)Footnote 217. Armstrong v. Rodemacher, 203 N.W. 23 (Iowa 1925); In re O'Donnell, 147 N.E. 541 (N.Y. 1925).

(n33)Footnote 218. Ray v. Young, 142 N.W. 393 (Iowa 1913); Armstrong v. Rodemacher, 203 N.W. 23 (Iowa 1925); Guthmann v. Vallery, 71 N.W. 734 (Neb. 1897); In re Hunt's Estate, 197 N.Y.S. 633 (1923); Jones v. Shufflin, 31 S.E. 975 (W. Va. 1898); Shufflin v. House, 31 S.E. 974 (W. Va. 1898).

(n34)Footnote 219. The statutes of Illinois prohibit a life tenant from granting a lease for the removal of oil from the premises, and prohibit the remainderman as against the life tenant from entering the premises and removing oil. Carter Oil Co. v. McQuigg, 27 F. Supp. 182 (E.D. Ill. 1939).

Life tenant may be given power to execute mineral leases. Glass v. Skelly Oil Co., 469 S.W.2d 237 (Tex. Civ. App. 1971).

(n35)Footnote 220. Holloway v. Bank of Atkins, 169 S.W.2d 868 (Ark. 1943); Arighi v. Rule & Sons, 107 P.2d 970 (Cal. App. 1940); New South Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Gann, 29 S.E. 15 (Ga. 1897); Mid-State Homes, Inc. v. Johnson, 128 S.E.2d 197 (Ga. 1962)(mortgage given by life tenant ended when life estate terminated); Hosmer v. Carter, 68 Ill. 98 (1873); Alexander v. Goellert, 109 P.2d 146 (Kan. 1941); Spearman v. Hussey, 50 So. 2d 610 (Miss 1951); Rupert v. Penner, 53 N.W. 598 (Neb. 1892); E. A. Beall Co. v. Weston, 65 S.E. 823 (S.C. 1909); Chickamauga Trust Co. v. Lonas,

201 S.W. 777 (Tenn. 1918).

(n36)Footnote 221. McDonald v. Woodward, 36 S.E. 918 (S.C. 1900)

(n37)Footnote 222. Mixter v. Woodcock, 28 N.E. 907 (Mass. 1891). See New South Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Gann, 29 S.E. 15 (Ga. 1897); Peoples Loan & Exch. Bank v. Garlington, 32 S.E. 513 (S.C. 1899).

(n38)Footnote 223. Missouri Cent. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Eveler, 141 S.W. 877 (Mo. 1911).

(n39)Footnote 224. Swarthout v. Ranier, 38 N.E. 726 (N.Y. 1894); In re Jenks, 43 A. 871 (R.I. 1899).

(n40)Footnote 225. Reeside v. Annex Bldg. Ass'n, 167 A. 72 (Md. 1933).

"A life tenant may mortgage his interest, and his estate may be sold under foreclosure proceedings without affecting the interest of the remainderman, nor will the procedure give the mortgagee any legal or equitable rights against him." Ashbaugh v. Wright, 188 N.W. 157 (Minn. 1922).

See Restatement, Property § 124, cmt. b.

Life estate subject to levy and execution. Shrout v. Seale, 250 So. 2d 592 (Ala. 1971).

(n41)Footnote 226. Security Sav. Bank v. Williams, 176 N.W. 971 (Iowa 1920).

(n42)Footnote 227. Id.

Life tenant having power to consume does not have power to make gifts. Alexander v. Alexander, 561 S.W.2d 59 (Ark. 1978).

(n43)Footnote 228. Security Sav. Bank v. Williams, 176 N.W. 971 (Iowa 1920).

(n44)Footnote 229. Covington v. Covington, 245 S.W. 275 (Ky. 1922).

(n45)Footnote 230. Ashbaugh v. Wright, 188 N.W. 157 (Minn. 1922).

(n46)Footnote 231. Murrell v. Stock Growers Nat'l Bank, 74 F.2d 827 (10th Cir. 1934); Brunton v. Easthampton Sav. Bank, 145 N.E.2d 696 (Mass. 1957)(life tenant's power to sell does not include power to mortgage).

Income not used by life tenant belongs to remainderman. Skovron v. Third Nat'l Bank, 509 S.W.2d 497 (Tenn. App. 1973).

(n47)Footnote 232. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Dower, 271 N.W. 193 (Iowa 1937).

(n48)Footnote 233. Security Inv. Co. v. Golz, 36 N.W.2d 862 (Neb. 1949).

(n49)Footnote 234. Hawkins v. McDougal, 25 N.E. 807 (Ind. 1890); Eversole v. Combs, 112 S.W. 1132 (Ky. 1908); Windham v. Howell, 47 S.E. 715 (S.C. 1904).

See the following cases:

Chapman v. York, 94 So. 90 (Ala. 1922); Cottingham v. Love, 99 So. 907 (Ala. 1924); Chapman v. York, 103 So. 567 (Ala. 1925); Wells v. Dalies, 149 N.E. 279 (Ill. 1925); Whittaker v. Porter, 151 N.E. 905 (Ill. 1926); Traversy v. Bell, 193 N.W. 439 (Iowa 1923); Nitz v. Widman, 184 N.W. 172 (Neb. 1921); Freeland v. Andersen, 211 N.W. 167 (Neb. 1926); Buchis v. Townsend, 136 A. 432 (N.J. Eq. 1927); In re Frutchey, 183 N.Y.S. 786 (1920); Jordan v. Jordan, 239

S.W. 423 (Tenn. 1922).

(n50)Footnote 235. Acord v. Beaty, 148 S.W. 901 (Mo. 1912); Jordan v. Neese, 15 S.E. 202 (S.C. 1892); Piano Mfg. Co. v. Kindschi, 111 N.W. 680 (Wis. 1907).

(n51)Footnote 236. Ganus v. Sullivan, 99 So. 2d 204 (Ga. 1957); Phelps v. Domville, 303 S.W.2d 601 (Mo. 1957); McKnight v. McKnight, 115 S.W. 134 (Tenn. 1908); Piano Mfg. Co. v. Kindschi, 111 N.W. 680 (Wis. 1907).

Nor in the absence of statute even if the life tenant owns an undivided interest in remainder. Mizell v. Walley, 44 So. 2d 764 (Ala. 1915).

Life tenant could, under statute, have partition and sale of entire property. Williams v. Colleran, 195 S.E.2d 413 (Ga. 1973).

(n52)Footnote 237. Acord v. Beaty, 148 S.W. 901 (Mo. 1912); Ridley v. Halliday, 61 S.W. 1025 (Tenn. 1901).

(n53)Footnote 238. Whitten v. Whitten, 219 P.2d 228 (Okla. 1950); Ridley v. Halliday, 61 S.W. 1025 (Tenn. 1901).

Life tenant cannot acquire title from remainderman by adverse possession. Duncan v. Johnson, 338 So. 2d 1243 (Ala. 1976).

(n54)Footnote 239. Amator v. Amator, 560 P.2d 410 (Ariz. 1977).

A life tenant is in a sense a trustee for a remainderman so that he cannot endanger or dispose of the property. This is a difference from the true trustee in that he uses the property for his exclusive benefit and takes all income and profits therefrom. Duncan v. Johnson, 338 So. 2d 1243 (Ala. 1976).

(n55)Footnote 240. Brown v. Brown, 67 S.E. 596 (W. Va. 1910).

(n56)Footnote 241. Williams v. Alt, 123 N.E. 499 (N.Y. 1919).

(n57)Footnote 242. Marshall v. Moseley, 21 N.Y. 280 (1860).

(n58)Footnote 243. 11 Geo. 2, ch. 17, § 15; 4 Wm. 4, ch. 22.

(n59)Footnote 244. Peery v. Fletcher, 182 P. 143 (Or. 1919).

(n60)Footnote 245. Hume v. Randall, 36 N.E. 402 (N.Y. 1894).

(n61)Footnote 246. Cutting v. Cutting, 86 N.Y. 522 (1881).

(n62)Footnote 247. 1 Washburn on Real Property, supra, note 43 ch. 1, § 1 14, 15. Koltenbrock v. Cracraft, 36 Ohio St. 584 (1881). (No forfeiture today.)

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.06

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.06 Duration of Life Estates.

[Go To Supp]

The basic identifying factor of a life estate is that the tenant's interest may not extend beyond the existence of the life of a stated person or persons in existence at the time of the beginning of the estate. Thus, speaking of duration, there may be four types of life estates: (a) those for the life of the tenant; (b) those to continue during the life or lives of another or others than the tenant; (c) an estate which will not endure beyond the life or lives of stated persons but may terminate earlier upon the happening of an uncertain event; n248 and (d) life estates convertible into estates inheritable.

An estate of freehold in lands or tenements, limited to a person for life, is the highest of all interests or estates not of inheritance, and when the language of the instrument creating the estate is equivocal, the construction will favor the grantee, and his life will be the measure of duration of the estate if the estate of the grantor is sufficient to create an estate of such duration. n249 In a grant to "A for life," it is not clear as to whose life is meant as the measure of duration. If the grantor is the owner of the fee, the grantee takes the estate for the grantee's own life, as this is more valuable than an estate for the life of the grantor. n250 If the grantor had a life estate only, and conveyed to another for life without designating whose life, the grantee will take such estate as the grantor had, as no presumption obtains that the grantor intended to convey more than the grantor had. n251

At common law, in a tenancy pur autre vie, if the tenant died before the cestui que vie, the estate did not terminate, but continued until the death of the cestui que vie. During the interval between the two deaths there might be a period of vacancy when there would be no tenant. This condition the law always abhors. The feudal lord, very jealous of the right to the services of the tenants, naturally wanted someone in possession capable of rendering such services. The policy of the common and modern law encourages the possession and fruitful increase from lands. Something must be done with the estate during this period. It could not go to the grantee's heirs, because it was not inheritable. It could not go to his personal representatives, for it is a freehold interest in real property and they have no right to it. It could not go back to the grantor, for the grantor had parted with the grantor right to it so long as the cestui que vie lives. Neither could it escheat, as only inheritable estates escheat. So the common law authorized any person to take possession, and the first to do so became what was known as a general occupant. n252 This general occupant had the right to the possession and enjoyment until the death of the cestui que vie, if the occupant lived so long and was protected in such right as any other owner. This seeming injustice had its beneficial effects, and resulted in the limitation of estates pur autre vie to the grantee and the grantee's heirs.

Such limitation did not make the estate inheritable, though the word "heirs" was used, but it showed the intention of the parties that those standing in the relation of heirs to the tenant should have the estate after the tenant's death so long as the cestui que vie lived. This was termed "naming a special occupant." On the tenant's death their rights were superior to all others, but before the tenant's death they had no rights. They could only claim what remained after the tenant's death. They were not purchasers, but the tenant could not bar them by a devise of the estate. Persons other than the tenant's heirs might be made special occupants by being named in the limitation to the tenant. It is said that a tenant at will of the tenant pur autre vie had a claim superior to one claiming as special occupant and who was also an heir of the occupant. n253 These peculiar rules of the common law have been superseded in England, as well as practically all the American states, by statutes. In some of the states this estate, pur autre vie, at the tenant's death is made to descend to the heirs like inheritable estates proper, while in other states it is treated as personalty and passes to the personal representatives as assets for the payment of debts and distribution.

An estate for the life of another, an estate "pur autre vie," is the lowest freehold estate. n254 Accordingly, in case of doubt as to whether it is an estate for the life of the tenant or an estate pur autre vie, it will be construed as an estate for the life of the tenant. n255 The person whose life is the measure of duration is called the cestui que vie. n256 It matters not how many persons are designated, whose lives are to measure the estate. It resolves itself into the measure of a single life, the survivor of all those named. So long as the number is such that the survivor can easily be ascertained the number is immaterial. By statute in some states, however, if the number of lives exceeds two, the remainder takes effect on the death of the two first named. Where the estate is for the lives of the tenant himself and of another person or persons, the tenant has a freehold to continue until the death of the survivor, but, if such person or persons survive the tenant, the estate becomes one on condition or special limitation in the nature of an estate pur autre vie. n257 The most usual estate pur autre vie is that created by a life tenant transferring the interest to another. The transferee's estate is not measured by the own life but by that of the transferor. n258 While an estate for the life of the transferee's another will pass upon the death of its owner to the heirs, such estate is not an estate of inheritance in the strict sense of that term. n259

The next class of conventional life estates is one that is limited upon an uncertain event or contingency that may not happen during the tenant's life and is thus termed a life estate. This class of life estates resembles an estate in fee upon a special limitation in that there is a collateral limitation annexed to the general limitation for life, which is the unnatural termination of a life estate in the determinable fee and cuts short the estate while the tenant may be living. Thus, an estate to a woman while unmarried, during widowhood, during coverture or as long as she shall live in a certain place, are all illustrations of such estates. n260 It will be observed from the above illustrations that the event or contingency which is to terminate the estate is largely under the control of the tenant, but this fact is not necessary to the creation of such estate. So. a devise to one until he can pay the devisor's debts out of the rents and profits is a life estate, as the rents and profits may not be a sufficient amount to pay the debts during the grantee's life but not so if there is a devise to executors to pay the debts of the testator. n261 If such gift to the executors is by deed, then they will be held to have a life estate. n262

An estate made determinable only on the death of the person to whom it is limited will terminate with the death of such person. If made determinable upon the happening of an event, it terminates with the happening of the event prior to the tenant's death. n263 Where the estate is for the life of another, it is terminated by the death of the cestui que vie. n264 A conveyance of a life estate to the remainderman has the effect to terminate the life estate, which becomes merged in the fee, n265 but such termination will not be sanctioned if the rights or interests of third persons will be prejudiced thereby. n266 However, there is no merger where the life tenant takes the remainder by another title because of the invalidity of the remainder over. n267 A tenant for life may convey the entire interest in such life estate to another, and such conveyance creates in such other a life estate pur autre vie. n268 A sale of the life tenant's interest under a mortgage foreclosure will terminate the estate. n269 Where the life tenant's title is a matter of record, no conveyance which the remainderman may make will lessen or affect the life estate. n270 A life estate reserved by deed may, however, be terminated by a later deed of the grantor to the same grantee which conveys the property in fee without reservation or condition of any kind. n271 Where the principal estate is taken by condemnation the life estate is not destroyed and the life tenant is entitled to compensation. n272 In such case, the life tenant is usually given the interest on the proceeds. n273 But it has also been held that if the property is taken by eminent domain, the compensation is divided between the life tenant and the remainderman. n274

In conformity with the rule that, where greater and lesser estates coincide and meet in one and the same person, without any intermediate estate, the lesser is merged into the greater, if an estate pur autre vie and a subsequent estate for one's own life come together in one person, the former, being the lesser estate, will be merged in the latter. n275 However, where a limitation is made to a tenant for his own life and the life or lives of others, does such tenant have an estate pur autre vie or an estate for the tenant's own life? If there is a merger of the two life estates, then should the tenant die while the others named are living, there is a shortening of the duration intended by the grantor. Notwithstanding the general rule that merges a lesser into a greater estate when both are the property of one person, there will be no merger in the case mentioned, but the tenant will have what is considered a cumulative estate, which does not terminate until all the persons named are dead. If the tenant dies first then there is an estate pur autre vie for a general occupant at common law, for descent to heirs or as assets for personal representatives, according to the law of the jurisdiction in which the property is situated. n276

At common law, a life tenant who attempted to convey a greater estate forfeited the life estate. n277 Today the rule generally, by statute or court decision, is that such a deed merely transfers the life estate so as to create a life estate pur autre vie in the transferee. n278 A life estate may also terminate for causes other than those expressed in the instrument creating it. At common law, such a termination could take place either through forfeiture for waste, n279 through merger or through forfeiture through attempted transfer of a fee. And where the life estate and the reversion or remainder come into the same hands a merger takes place and the life estate is swallowed up on the future interest, a present fee resulting. n280

Whenever the ancestor takes an estate of freehold, whether for the ancestor's own life or the life of another, or whether it be of such a nature that it may determine in the ancestor's lifetime, or not, and there is afterwards, in the same conveyance, a limitation to the ancestor's heirs, such limitation vests immediately, by way of merger, in the ancestor. n281 The life estate may also be subject to determining upon the happening of a certain event, such as remarriage so as to become a determinable life estate or it may be subject to a condition subsequent, or a limitation over or breach of condition such as alienation. n282

A provision in a will that, if the life tenant fails to pay taxes and a sale of the land is had the life tenant shall forfeit the interest to the person next entitled to the land in remainder or reversion, the life estate is terminated by failure to comply with the provision. n283 Where a will, either expressly or by implication from its language, permits a distribution of a life estate prior to the death of the life tenant, a termination may occur. n284 At all events, the tenants interest in the property ceases upon the termination of the life upon which the estate was limited. n285

Some states have established statutory methods of recording transmission of joint tenancy and life estates on death. n286

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: duration w/15 life estate!

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 248. Chamberland v. Goldberg, 152 A.2d 219 (R.I. 1959).

(n2)Footnote 249. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 121.

(n3)Footnote 250. Coke on Littleton, § 42a; English v. Carter, 189 S.W.2d 839 (Ky. 1945); Shaner v. Wilson, 56 A. 1086 (Pa. 1904).

(n4)Footnote 251. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 121; Herbent Broom, A Selection of Legal Maxims, 458 (10th ed. 1939); Rogers v. Moore, 11 Conn. 553 (1836); Bell v. Twilight, 22 N.H. 500 (1851).

(n5)Footnote 252. Coke on Littleton, § 41b; 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 259; 4 Kent's Commentaries supra, note 72, 26.

(n6)Footnote 253. Coke on Littleton, § 41b, n. 232.

Tenant of the owner of a life estate has an absolute right to reenter the land and harvest his crops which matured after the death of the landlord life tenant. Richardson v. Scroggham, 307 N.E.2d 80 (Ind. App. 1974).

(n7)Footnote 254. 4 Kent's Commentaries supra, note 72, 26; Madison v. Larmon, 48 N.E. 556 (Ill. 1897).

(n8)Footnote 255. Coke on Littleton, § 42a; 2 Blackstone, Commentaries 121.

(n9)Footnote 256. 2 Blackstone, Commentaries 258; Coke on Littleton, § 41b.

(n10)Footnote 257. Coke on Littleton, § 42a; 2 Blackstone, Commentaries 121; McArthur v. Scott, 113 U.S. 340 (1885); Hayward v. Kinney, 48 N.W. 170 (Mich. 1891); Mattocks v. Stearns, 9 Vt. 326 (1837); Smith v. Smith, 62 S.E.2d 347 (W. Va. 1950).

(n11)Footnote 258. Ross v. First Presbyterian Church, 197 S.W. 561 (Mo. 1917); Morris v. Eddins, 44 S.W. 203 (Tex. Civ. App. 1898).

(n12)Footnote 259. Folwell v. Folwell, 56 A. 117 (N.J. Eq. 1903), aff'd, 63 A. 1118 (N.J. 1904); Hopewell v. Patterson, 36 S.W. 319 (Tex. Civ. App. 1896).

(n13)Footnote 260. Coke on Littleton, § 42n.

Berry v. Kimbrough, 92 So. 2d 20 (Ala. 1957) ("during her natural life while single" was a life estate); Fields v. Kline, 256 S.W. 355 (Ark. 1923); McCray v. Caves, 88 S.E.2d 373 (1955)(to wife for life or remarriage creates a determinable life estate); McDonald v. Suarez, 93 S.E.2d 16 (Ga. 1956)(but a devise in fee with limitation over on remarriage creates a fee subject to an executory limitation); Roberts v. Roberts, 29 N.E. 886 (Ill. 1892); Wiltfang v. Dirksen, 129 N.E. 159 (Ill. 1920); Lydick v. Tate, 44 N.E.2d 583 (Ill. 1942).

Where testator devised property to his wife "for herself and our three sons so long as she shall remain my widow" and directed that after death or remarriage of wife property should go to their sons and if either of the sons should die before coming into possession, the survivors should take in equal parts, the sons take a vested remainder subject to being divested if they do not survive death or remarriage of life tenant. Phelps v. Seeley, 119 N.E.2d 923 (Ill. 1954).

Taylor v. Farrow, 239 S.W.2d 73 (Ky. 1951)(a devise to widow so long as she remains a widow created a defeasible fee); Ijams v. Schapiro, 113 A. 343 (Md. 1921); Hurd v. Cushing, 24 Mass. (7 Pick.) 169 (1828); In re Lee's Estate, 10 So. 2d 844 (Miss. 1942); Tillerson v. Taylor, 220 S.W. 950 (Mo. 1920); Baldwin v. Baldwin, 2 N.W.2d 23 (Neb. 1942); Jackson ex dem. Ludlow v. Myers, 3 N.Y. (Johns.) 388 (1808); Hatfield v. Sneden, 54 N.Y. 280 (1873); Miller v. Gilbert, 38 N.E. 979 (N.Y. 1894); In re Clickman's Will, 190 N.Y.S. 762 (1921); Vincent v. Rix, 217 N.Y.S. 393 (1926); In re Morton's Estate, 32 N.Y.S.2d 17 (1941); Roberts v. Saunders, 134 S.E. 451 (N.C. 1926); Fletcher v. Rynd, 18 Ohio App. 136 (1920); Gray v. Gray, 286 P.2d 138 (Or. 1955) (a contingency may arise to defeat or terminate a life estate prior to the death of the person by whose life the full term of the tenancy is to be measured, but this contingency does not prevent grant from being construed as a life estate); Appeal of Brotzman, 19 A. 564 (1890); Schaper v. Pittsburgh Coal Co., 109 A. 762 (Pa. 1920); Bowman v. Brown, 149 A.2d 56 (Pa. 1959)("so long as she remains my widow" created determinable life estate); Harrison v. Foote, 30 S.W. 838 (Tex. Civ. App. 1895); Smith v. Smith, 62 S.E.2d 347 (W. Va. 1950); In re Ritchie's Will, 208 N.W. 880 (Wis. 1926).

See Restatement, Property § 112.

(n14)Footnote 261. Coke on Littleton, § 42a; Carter v. Barnardiston, 1 P. Wms. 505.

(n15)Footnote 262. Cordal's Case, Cro. Eliz. 316.

(n16)Footnote 263. Thompson v. Baxter, 119 N.W. 797 (Minn. 1909).

(n17)Footnote 264. Walker v. Fenner, 20 Ala. 192 (1852); Livingston v. Tanner, 14 N.Y. 64 (1856).

(n18)Footnote 265. Field v. Peoples, 54 N.E. 304 (Ill. 1899); Bond v. Moore, 86 N.E. 386 (Ill. 1908); McCreary v. Coggeshall, 53 S.E. 978 (S.C. 1906).

(n19)Footnote 266. Baker v. Oakwood, 25 N.E. 312 (N.Y. 1890); Moore v. Luce, 29 Pa. 260 (1857).

(n20)Footnote 267. In re Warren's Estate, 182 A. 396 (Pa. 1936).

(n21)Footnote 268. Howell v. Howell, 172 N.E. 528 (Oh. St. 1930).

(n22)Footnote 269. Holmes v. Wintler, 47 F. 257 (C.C.D. Wash. 1891); Fidelity Ins., Trust & Safe-Deposit Co. v. Dietz, 18 A. 1090 (Pa. 1890).

(n23)Footnote 270. O'Neill v. Sullivan, 152 N.E. 341 (Mass. 1926).

(n24)Footnote 271. Butler v. Bell, 106 S.E. 217 (N.C. 1921).

(n25)Footnote 272. Foster v. Augusta, 223 P.2d 730 (Kan. 1950).

(n26)Footnote 273. In re New York City, 72 N.Y.S.2d 580 (1947); Ackerman v. State, 102 N.Y.S.2d 536 (1951).

(n27)Footnote 274. Foster v. Augusta, 223 P.2d 730 (Kan. 1950); Bacorn v. State, 88 N.Y.S.2d 628 (1949); Ackerman v. State, 102 N.Y.S.2d 536, 103 N.Y.S.2d 632 (1951)(holder of life estate is entitled to be heard on all appropriation offers, etc., since he is more than a mere encumbrancer).

(n28)Footnote 275. 1 Stephen Martin Leake, An Elementary Digest of the Law of Property 190 (1874); Boykin v. Ancrum, 6 S.E. 305 (S.C. 1888).

For doctrine of merger to be applicable, the greater and lesser estate must be in one and the same person, at one and the same time, and in one and the same right. Jemzura v. Jemzura, 330 N.E.2d 414 (N.Y. 1975).

(n29)Footnote 276. Coke on Littleton, § 41b; Mudd v. Mullican, 12 S.W. 263 (Ky. 1889).

(n30)Footnote 277. 1 Washburn on Real Property supra, note 43 (5th ed.), 125; Lyle v. Richards, 9 Serg. & Rawle 322 (Pa. 1823).

(n31)Footnote 278. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 153; Bradley Lumber Co. v. Burbridge, 210 S.W.2d 284 (Ark. 1948); McDaniel v. Bagby, 51 S.E.2d 805 (Ga. 1949).

(n32)Footnote 279. Bradley Lumber Co. v. Burbridge, 210 S.W.2d 284 (Ark. 1948)(failure to pay taxes).

Annotation, 16 A.L.R.3d 1344 (1967).

(n33)Footnote 280. Merger of estates is not permitted where rights of third parties are impaired. State Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Kauaian Dev. Co., 445 P.2d 109 (Haw. 1968).

(n34)Footnote 281. Lydick v. Tate, 44 N.E.2d 583 (Ill. 1942).

(n35)Footnote 282. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 121; Farkas v. Farkas, 38 S.E.2d 924 (Ga. 1946).

Mere nonuse of premises does not cause a surrender of a life estate. Fabianski v. Boutin, 371 A.2d 1166 (N.H. 1977).

(n36)Footnote 283. Leatherman v. Maytham, 33 N.E.2d 1022 (Ohio App. 1940).

(n37)Footnote 284. Breidenbach v. Breidenbach, 17 A.2d 596 (N.J. Ch. 1941), aff'd, 21 A.2d 805 (N.J. Err. & App. 1941).

(n38)Footnote 285. Kany v. Beeks, 85 So. 2d 843 (Fla. 1956)(confinement in a state hospital is not death); Haywood v. Briggs, 41 S.E.2d 289 (N.C. 1947)(lease by life tenant ended when life tenant died); In re Buss' Estate, 26 N.W.2d 700 (S.D. 1947).

See Allen J. Saunders, Testamentary Disposition and the Usufruct of the Surviving Spouse, 18 Loyola L. Rev. 335 (1972).

(n39)Footnote 286. Kan. Stat Ann. § 59-2286; Utah Code Ann. § 78-41-1; Iowa Code Ann. § 588; Okla. Stat. § 58-191; Wis. Stat. Ann. § 867.045.

Somewhat similar statutes are found in Mich. Comp. Laws § 700.224; S.D. Comp. Laws § 21-44-2; Wis. Stat. Ann. § 867.04.

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.07

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.07 Extent of the Life Tenant's Right of Possession of the Freehold.

[Go To Supp]

The life tenant may be described as being the absolute owner of the income of the property during the life tenant's lifetime. But the life tenant cannot take any of the freehold itself. Where ends the right of use of the land, and where begins the injury to the freehold, is a twilight zone that is a fruitful source of litigation. Basically, a life tenant has the right to all the ordinary uses to which the land is accustomed to be put, the only restriction being that the life tenant shall not commit waste. n287

The leading rule holds that both crops harvested and those being harvested at the time of death of the owner belong to the life tenant, not to the remainderman. n288 The life tenant is also entitled to the profits resulting from such use. n289 The life tenant cannot change the use so as to alter the character of the estate, but there is nothing to prevent such tenant from improving the fertility and productiveness of the land by improved methods of culture and management unless such management results in a permanent injury to the inheritance. The life tenant may do what is required for the proper enjoyment of his estate to the extent that his acts and management are sanctioned by good husbandry in the locality in which the land is situated. n290 The life tenant is entitled to the full use and enjoyment of the property, provided in such use the life tenant exercises the ordinary care of a prudent person for its preservation and protection. n291 The duty in this regard may be likened to that of a quasi-trustee for the remainderman. n292

The life tenant under a will is, unless it appears from the will that the testator intended otherwise, entitled to the possession and control of the property during the continuance of the estate, always subject, however, to the property's legal liability to creditors. n293 The life tenant may use the property for the life tenant's own benefit and may appropriate the proceeds arising from its use, but at the same time holds it in trust for the remainderman in the sense that the life tenant must exercise reasonable precautions to preserve it for transmission to the remainderman intact on the termination of the life tenancy. n294 The life tenant cannot injure or dispose of the property to the injury of the remainderman. n295

Generally speaking, the life tenant has neither title nor claim to any part of the corpus of the estate and is entitled only to the rents, issues, and profits thereof. n296 Where, however, a will, either in express language or by implication, authorizes the subjection of the corpus of the estate to the support of the life tenant, the right thus given cannot be denied, but unless conferred by the will, such right is nonexistent. n297 The only difference between such trustee and a trustee of a pure trust being that the life tenant may use the property for exclusive benefit and take all the income and profits therefrom. n298

Generally, a life tenant can do nothing during the continuance of the estate to impair the estate in remainder and must use reasonable precaution to preserve the property intact without injury or diminution. n299 Some courts have treated the life tenant as a trustee n300 or at least a quasi-trustee n301 for the remainderman with respect to the corpus of the property.

Certainly a life tenant is a fiduciary with respect to the remainderman to the extent that the latter receives all increase in value of the estate. n302 In some jurisdictions, the life tenant with power to consume is treated as a debtor to the remainderman or the trust estate for the principal less the amount consumed so that any enhancement of the value of the principal belongs to the life tenant. n303 A life tenant is entitled to the same protection in possession as a fee owner. n304 Of course the life tenant is entitled to the crops and emblements generally. n305 As a general rule, the life tenant is entitled during the continuance of his estate to the entire income from the property, n306 unless there is a direction to the contrary in the instrument creating such tenancy. n307 However, under the rule that rent follows the reversion, the life tenant is not entitled to rents after the termination of the estate. n308 A bonus paid for the extension of a lease during the continuance of the estate was held to belong to the life tenant, n309 but rent not falling due until after the termination of the estate went to the remainderman even though the lease was made by the life tenant. n310 The death of the life tenant terminates the right in the land and the administrator has no right to appropriate rents accruing after such termination. n311 At common law, rents for a period which began before the life estate was created, but became due and payable during the existence of such estate, belonged to the life tenant. n312 As a general rule, the rents, n313 income, n314 revenues, and benefits n315 of the property, accruing during the continuance of the life estate, belong to the life tenant and not to the remainderman.

A life tenant under a will, though entitled to the income from property from the death of the testator, is entitled only to the income on the residue of the estate after the payment of debts and legacies. n316 The life tenant is entitled to receive payment of the current income and any accumulation, provided such payment does not reduce intact the value of the corpus of the estate. n317 The common law rule against apportionment of annuities does not apply to rents as between the life tenant and the remainderman. n318

In equitable apportionment cases, a distinction must be made between the inception of the right to apportionment and the actual application of apportionment. n319 Where the will creates a trust for life and part of the property is used to pay the testator's debts, there are three rules as to the income on the portion so taken. Under the older Massachusetts rule, all income goes to the life tenant. n320 Under the older New York rule, the total income is applied on principal. n321 Under the English rule the amount of principal and income thereon necessary is used to retire debts and the balance of the income goes to the life tenant.

The question often arises as to whether stock dividends belong to the remainderman or the life tenant. Cash dividends, of course, belong to the life tenant when they represent distribution of current earnings. Liquidating dividends belong to the remainderman or at most they should be distributed between the life tenant and remainderman upon an actuarial basis determined on the life tenant's life or held in trust with the income only returned to the life tenant. n322 But modern day corporate practice favors pretention of substantial segments of annual earnings as surplus. Thus, the earnings of the shares which would have gone to the life tenant had they been distributed as the testator probably thought they would, do not reach the life tenant and his income is correspondingly diminished. When the surplus is transferred to capital and stock issued against the increase in capital, the life tenant will forever lose the retained income if the life tenant does not get at least a share of the stock dividend. In view of the fact that there is little today a stockholder can do to prevent reasonable retention of income by the corporation, the equities of situation would seem to favor the life tenant but the trend of the decisions is against the life tenant. n323

There are three rules as to the application of extraordinary dividends received by trusts: (a) all dividends go to the person presently entitled to receive income; n324 (b) the respective rights of the life tenant and remainderman depend on the substance and intent of the corporation that issued them; (c) the dividends must be apportioned so as to keep the book value of the security as it existed at the time of the trust intent. n325

The provisions of the Uniform Principal and Income Act are applicable to life estates arising after its adoption though the instruments were executed before the adoption. n326 A life tenant or her estate is entitled to all income accumulated by the trustees unless the trust is clearly to the contrary. n327 The reversioner becomes entitled to all rentals falling due after the death of the life tenant.

On the death of a life tenant, the representatives have a right to the growing crops upon which the tenant has bestowed labor. n328 While the life tenant cannot lease beyond the life estate, the life tenant could lease where the renewal term was binding if the renewal rental was to be fixed by future agreement between the landlord and the tenant. n329 To entitle the personal representative to such crop it must appear to have been planted by the life tenant or by someone under the life tenants direction and authority during the tenant's life. The fact that the seed was sown after the termination of the estate defeats the representative's claim to the crop. n330 Those entitled to emblements have a right, after the life estate has terminated, to enter and cultivate the crops and harvest same without incurring any liability for rent during occupancy for this purpose, n331 although some cases hold they must pay rents. n332 The right of such persons is limited to such egress and occupancy as is reasonably necessary to properly care for the crops. n333 It may be stated as a general rule that such products of the soil as are embraced in the term "fructus naturales" are not emblements in the sense that the personal representative of a life tenant may claim them, but they are regarded as a part of the land and pass to the heirs. n334 The right to emblements arises only in case the tenancy is terminated by the death of the tenant or upon the happening of the particular event upon which it is made determinable. If the tenant abandons the estate or does some act which terminates it, the tenant loses the right to the emblements; n335 but this rule does not apply to an under tenant who planted the crop before the commission of the act terminating the life estate. n336 The lessee of a deceased life tenant of agricultural land is entitled to the annual crops sowed prior to the life tenant's death and to go upon and occupy the leased land for the purpose of cultivating, harvesting, and securing such crops. n337 It is held that the doctrine of "emblements" is not limited to situations arising out of a landlord and tenant relationship, but applies to other situations, such as the termination of a life tenancy when there are then growing annual crops which have been planted by a subtenant with rent payable to the life tenant in the form of a share of the crop. n338

In the absence of an express restriction to the contrary, a life tenant is entitled, by virtue of the tenancy and of common right, to cut from off the land such timber as may be necessary for fuel, fences, agriculture, erections, improvements and repairs. n339 The use of timber must not be to the extent of committing waste or making a sale thereof. n340 The life tenant may cut wood to the same extent as the owner of the fee, provided the life tenant does not cut trees planted for ornament or shelter, commit equitable waste, or cut wilfully or maliciously. n341 The Norman French term for such timber is "estovers." Under the old Saxon law, wood necessary for repairs to buildings and for fuel was termed "house-bote," that for the manufacture and repair of implements of husbandry was called "plough-bote," and that used for the construction and repair of fences and sheds was termed "hay-bote." The right to use these was given the tenant as a compensation for keeping the premises in repair, which duty the common law imposed upon the life tenant. n342

The tenant cannot, under the pretense of taking estovers, destroy timber to the extent of injuring the inheritance. n343 In addition to the tenant's right to take estovers, the tenant was permitted to cut timber for purposes required in the reasonable cultivation of the soil. n344 Timber cut by the tenant for fuel or for any other purpose must be used on the land, and cannot be removed by the tenant or any one else to be used off the premises. n345 The real test is whether the timber cut for estovers is a material injury to the value of the reversion, and each case must depend on its particular circumstances. n346 Where it appears from the will which devised a life estate that the testator intended that the life tenant should use the property to whatever extent, not amounting to waste, would be necessary to the reasonable enjoyment of the life estate, the life tenant may cut all timber necessary for firewood and fences and for repairs to the buildings on the land. n347

If a lessor has but a life estate and an undivided estate in remainder, the lessee's tenancy continues in the remainder interest after the lessor's death. n348

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: life tenant! w/5 right! w/2 possess! w/5 freehold

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 287. Cherokee Constr. Co. v. Harris, 122 S.W. 485 (Ark. 1909); Roby v. Newton, 49 S.E. 694 (Ga. 1905); In re Jones' Estate, 64 N.E.2d 609 (Ohio 1943). See Bliss v. Security-First Nat'l Bank, 183 P.2d 312 (Cal. 1947); Holzhauzer v. Iowa State Tax Comm'n, 62 N.W.2d 229 (Iowa 1953).

Life estate forfeited for waste. Offermann v. Dickinson, 175 N.W.2d 423 (Iowa 1970).

Forfeiture for waste being the Statute of Gloucester is not part of the common law. Worthington Motors v. Crouse, 390 P.2d 229 (Nev. 1964).

A life tenant may make the same use of property as when it was created. Durrence v. Durrence, 238 S.E.2d 377 (Ga. 1977).

See A.J. Licensee or Tenant for Life, 30 Convey 256 (1966).

(n2)Footnote 288. Estate of Luke, 184 N.W.2d 42 (Iowa 1971).

(n3)Footnote 289. Hite v. Hite, 20 S.W. 778 (Ky. 1892); Drier v. Gracey, 169 N.W. 835 (Mich. 1918).

A life tenant devisee can lease without consent of the executors. Title vests in devisee immediately subject to divestment to pay creditors. Kerns v. Pickett, 306 P.2d 1112 (Wash. 1957).

(n4)Footnote 290. Marshall v. Hewett, 21 So. 2d 201 (Fla. 1945); Pynchon v. Stearns, 52 Mass. (11 Met.) 304 (1846); Proffitt v. Henderson, 29 Mo. 325 (1860); McGregor v. Brown, 10 N.Y. 114 (1854); King v. Miller, 6 S.E. 660 (N.C. 1888); Thomas v. Thomas, 82 S.E. 1032 (N.C. 1914); Sayers v. Hoskinson, 1 A. 308 (Pa. 1885); Keeler v. Eastman, 11 Vt. 293 (1839).

(n5)Footnote 291. Roby v. Newton, 49 S.E. 694 (Ga. 1905); Ryder v. Ryder, 41 A.2d 278 (N.J. 1945). See Bliss v. Security-First Nat'l Bank, 183 P.2d 312 (Cal. 1947).

(n6)Footnote 292. Fiske v. Buder, 125 F.2d 841 (8th Cir. 1942); Hardy v. Mayhew, 110 P. 113 (Cal. 1910); Farmers' Mut. Fire & Lightning Ins. Co. v. Crowley, 190 S.W.2d 250 (Mo. 1945); Green v. Green, 27 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1897); C.C. Young Mem. Home for Aged Women v. Nelms, 223 S.W.2d 302 (Tex. Civ. App. 1949). A life tenant is a trustee in sense that he cannot injure or dispose of property to injury of rights of remaindermen, but he differs from a pure trustee in that he may use property for his exclusive benefit and take all income and profits. Burlington County Trust Co. v. Kingsland, 86 A.2d 815 (N.J. Super. 1952); In re Larson's Estate, 52 N.W.2d 141 (Wis. 1952).

(n7)Footnote 293. Burwell v. Raleigh Banking & Trust Co., 118 S.E. 881 (N.C. 1923).

(n8)Footnote 294. Warrington v. Hignutt, 31 A.2d 480 (Del. 1943); Kepert v. Kepert, 134 N.E. 297 (Ind. App. 1922).

(n9)Footnote 295. Durden v. Neighbors, 168 So. 887 (Ala. 1936); Sallee v. Daneri, 121 P.2d 781 (Cal. 1942).

(n10)Footnote 296. Lane v. Tarver, 113 S.E. 452 (Ga. 1922); Drier v. Gracey, 169 N.W. 835 (Mich. 1918).

(n11)Footnote 297. Ward v. Wright, 246 S.W. 123 (Ky. 1922).

(n12)Footnote 298. Amos v. Toolen, 168 So. 687 (Ala. 1936).

Life tenant is quasi-trustee of remainderman. Salvation Army of Wichita v. Pryor's Estate, 570 P.2d 1380 (Kan. App. 1977).

(n13)Footnote 299. White v. Blackman, 168 S.W.2d 531 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942).

(n14)Footnote 300. Bliss v. Security-First Nat'l Bank, 183 P.2d 312 (Cal. App. 1947); Williams v. Morrison, 48 N.W.2d 666 (Iowa 1951); Burlington County Trust Co. v. Kingsland, 86 A.2d 815 (N.J. Super. 1952); Burlington County Nat'l Bank v. Braddock, 94 A.2d 868 (N.J. Super. 1953); In re Johnson's Estate, 158 N.Y.S.2d 933 (1956)(personalty).

Under a statute, the probate court was given discretion to require a bond of the life tenant in favor of the remainderman even before any devastavit was shown. In re Kyle's Estate, 155 N.E.2d 498 (Ohio App. 1958).

(n15)Footnote 301. Attebery v. Prentice, 65 N.W.2d 138 (Neb. 1954); Trute v. Skeede, 75 N.W.2d 672 (Neb. 1956); In re Barnes, 108 N.E.2d 88 (Ohio Com. Pl. 1950), aff'd 108 N.E.2d 101 (Ohio App. 1952); Edwards v. Puckett, 268 S.W.2d 582 (Tenn. 1954).

One holding a life tenancy and also an interest in remainder was not a cotenant with the other remainderman. Statler v. Watson, 68 N.W.2d 604 (Neb. 1955).

(n16)Footnote 302. Trute v. Skeede, 75 N.W.2d 672 (Neb. 1956).

(n17)Footnote 303. In re Malone's Trust, 53 Lanc. Rev. 101 (Pa.).

(n18)Footnote 304. Wright v. Sullivan, 42 So. 2d 185 (Miss. 1949); Williams v. Sarnowski, 50 Lack. Jur. 235 (Pa.).

When a life tenant lessor died during the growing season the landlord's share of the crops when harvested belonged to the remainderman, not to the life tenant's estate. In re North's Estate, 320 S.W.2d 597 (Mo. App. 1959).

Contra, In re Mischke's Estate, 287 N.W. 760 (Neb. 1939).

The crops were given to the life tenant's lessee where the lease consideration was a cash rent. Strand v. Boll, 183 N.W. 284 (S.D. 1921).

See Annotation. Rights and Duties of Life Tenant and Remainderman (income & corpus) with Respect to Repairs and Improvements, 128 A.L.R. 199, 280, 286 (1940).

(n19)Footnote 305. 2 Blackstone, Commentaries 123, personal representative of deceased life tenant to the growing crops. See discussion as to emblements generally in Vol. 1 herein.

Free farming is a crop with the proceeds going to the life tenant. First Nat'l Bank v. Wefel, 40 So. 2d 434 (Ala. 1949); Lee & Bradshaw v. Rogers, 108 S.E. 371 (Ga. 1921); Bartlett v. Pickering, 92 A. 1008 (Me. 1915); Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916).

(n20)Footnote 306. BakerBoyer Nat'l Bank v. Henricksen, 46 F. Supp. 831 (W.D. Wash 1942), aff'd, 139 F.2d 877 (9th Cir. 1944); Marshall v. Hewett, 21 So. 2d 201 (Fla. 1945); Letcher v. German Nat'l Bank, 119 S.W. 236 (Ky. 1909); Bramell v. Cole, 37 S.W. 924 (Mo. 1896); In re Depew's Estate, 41 N.Y.S.2d 19 (1943); McDonald v. Jarvis, 60 S.E. 990 (W. Va. 1908).

(n21)Footnote 307. Bramell v. Cole, 37 S.W. 924 (Mo. 1896); In re Depew's Estate, 41 N.Y.S.2d 19 (1943).

(n22)Footnote 308. Pierce v. Fulmer, 51 So. 728 (Ala. 1910); Edwards v. Griffin, 310 S.W.2d 798 (Ark. 1958).

(n23)Footnote 309. In re Archambault's Estate, 81 A. 314 (Pa. 1911).

(n24)Footnote 310. Osborne v. Osborne, 138 S.W. 1062 (Tex. Civ. App. 1911).

(n25)Footnote 311. Pierce v. Fulmer, 51 So. 728 (Ala. 1910). See Magee v. Holmes, 70 So. 2d 60 (Miss. 1954). Winegard v. Levy, 199 N.Y.S. 209 (1923).

The estate of one who holds both a life tenancy and an interest in remainder is entitled to have a right of possession after the life tenant's death as to the portion owned in remainder. Statler v. Watson, 68 N.W.2d 604 (Neb. 1955).

(n26)Footnote 312. Dexter v. Phillips, 121 Mass. 178 (1876).

(n27)Footnote 313. Underwood v. Underwood, 50 So. 305 (Ala. 1909); Drier v. Gracey, 169 N.W. 835 (Mich. 1918); Wiggin v. Wiggin, 43 N.H. 561 (1862); Noble v. Tyler, 56 N.E. 191 (Ohio 1900); In re Archambault's Estate, 81 A. 314 (Pa. 1911).

(n28)Footnote 314. Cushenberry v. Neely, 287 S.W. 975 (Ky. 1926); In re Chipman's Estate, 209 N.W. 67 (Mich. 1926); In re Nirdlinger's Estate, 139 A. 200 (Pa. 1911); Rhode Island Hosp. Trust Co. v. Tucker, 155 A. 661 (R.I. 1931); Richardson v. McCloskey, 276 S.W. 680 (Tex. Comm. App. 1924).

As a general rule, undisbursed income remaining at the life tenant's death belongs to the remaindermen in a trust. Rhode Island Hosp. Trust Co. v. Otis, 75 A.2d 210 (R.I. 1950).

(n29)Footnote 315. Richardson v. McCloskey, 261 S.W. 801 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924).

See Comment. Apportionment of Extraordinary Dividends Between Life Tenant and Remainderman, 12 Ohio St. L.J. 588 (1951); C. Alexander Reserves Against the Depreciation of Real Property Held by a Trustee, 12 Ohio St. L.J. 565 (1951).

California gives all capital gains to the remainderman. Estate of Traung, 185 P.2d 801 (Cal. 1947).

A life tenant is entitled to the entire fruits and income of the life estate, and if the same is consumed in the use intended to be made of it, the rights of remaindermen are defeated, and they are entitled to nothing. Croasdale v. Butell, 280 P.2d 593 (Kan. 1955); Guthrie v. Crews, 229 S.W. 182 (Mo. 1920); Perigo v. Perigo, 64 N.W.2d 789 (Neb. 1954).

(n30)Footnote 316. York v. Maryland Trust Co., 133 A. 128 (Md. 1926).

On the question of allocation to income or principal, a testator is presumed to have known and made the will with reference to law in effect at the time. Where a trustee was empowered by terms of the will "to determine what is income and what is principal." The discretion of the trustee is not uncontrolled, but was subject to a rule of reasonable exercise in accord with sound judgment, the law, and the intent of the testator. In re Heard's Estate, 236 P.2d 810 (Cal. App. 1951).

(n31)Footnote 317. In re Sternberger's Estate, 182 A. 723 (Pa. Super. 1936).

In a will bequeathing the life net income from property, the capital gains and losses belong to the remaindermen. Hirsch v. Hirsch, 116 S.E.2d 611 (Ga. 1960).

(n32)Footnote 318. Frazer v. First Nat'l Bank, 178 So. 441 (Ala. 1938).

(n33)Footnote 319. In re Miller's Estate, 43 Pa. D. & C. 565 (1941).

(n34)Footnote 320. Old Colony Trust Co. v. Smith, 165 N.E. 657 (Mass. 1929).

(n35)Footnote 321. N.Y. Pers. Prop. Law, § 17-b. Any accretion, capital increment or increase in the principal of the legacy for life belongs to the remaindermen. In re Argersinger's Will, 348 N.Y.S.2d 304 (1974).

(n36)Footnote 322. All extraordinary dividends are paid to the remainderman, such as stock dividends, only ordinary dividends go to the life tenant. Bowles v. Stilley's Ex'r., 267 S.W.2d 707 (Ky. 1954), rev'g Hite v. Hite, 20 S.W. 778 (Ky. 1892); Minot v. Paine, 99 Mass. 101 (1868).

Federal capital gains tax is chargeable to the principal even under the Massachusetts rule where cash dividends go to the life tenant as income. Third Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Campbell, 145 N.E.2d 703 (Mass. 1957).

If the gift of income is unconditional any accumulated but unpaid at the donee's death goes to his estate. Langdell v. Dodge, 122 A.2d 529 (N.H. 1956); In re Kenny's Estate, 141 A.2d 839 (Pa. 1958).

Stock dividends belong to remainderman unless optional to accept in cash in which case they are income. Stipe v. First Nat'l Bank, 301 P.2d 175 (Or. 1956).

Pennsylvania gives all dividends, if earned before the life estate, to the remainderman, if earned after opening life estate to the life tenant. In re Earp's Appeal, 28 Pa. 368 (1857).

Stock dividends are corpus not income. Bergin v. Bergin, 315 S.W.2d 943 (Tex. 1958).

(n37)Footnote 323. Stock dividends go to remainderman, not the life tenant. Langdell v. Dodge, 122 A.2d 529 (N.H. 1956), abandoning the rule of Holbrook v. Holbrook, 66 A. 124 (N.H. 1907).

(n38)Footnote 324. Cox v. Gaulbert's Trustee, 147 S.W. 25 (Ky. 1912). Repudiated, Bowles v. Stilley's Ex'r, 267 S.W.2d 707 (Ky. 1954).

(n39)Footnote 325. In re Earp's Appeal, 28 Pa. 368 (1857).

(n40)Footnote 326. Linenthal v. Birmingham Trust & Sav. Co., 32 So. 2d 368 (Ala. 1947). The Uniform Principal and Income Act cannot apply to existing trusts. In re Warden's Trust, 115 A.2d 159 (Pa. 1955).

(n41)Footnote 327. Demorest v. City Bank Farmers Trust Co., 321 U.S. 36 (1944)(under New York statute life tenants are entitled to a fixed yield on trust investments that are subject to salvage operations); Langdell v. Dodge, 122 A.2d 529 (N.H. 1956)(unconditional gift of income accumulated but unpaid at donee's death goes to his estate); In re Strome's Estate, 327 P.2d 414 (Or. 1958); In re Warden's Trust, 115 A.2d 159 (Pa. 1955)(the interest of a life tenant vests when a trust is created); In re Kenny's Estate, 141 A.2d 839 (Pa. 1958)(if the gift of income is unconditional any accumulated but unpaid at the donee's death goes to his estate); Kershaw v. Kershaw, 125 A.2d 126 (R.I. 1956)(where a life tenant is given a fixed annual income any arrearage is a charge upon the principal); Miller v. Miller, 315 S.W.2d 101 (Tenn. 1958).

Where trust property was condemned, the court held the fund intact and refused to apportion between the life tenant and remainderman or allow the life tenant reimbursement for taxes paid out of income, under theory that the trustee was not under the "duty to sell" given by Restatement on Trusts 241 (1935)as the grounds for apportionment. In re Hostetter's Estate, 131 A.2d 360 (Pa. 1957).

(n42)Footnote 328. Story v. Butt, 58 S.E. 388 (Ga. App. 1907); Keays v. Blinn, 137 Ill. App. 474 (1907); Vawter v. Frame, 96 N.E. 35 (Ind. App. 1911); Lilly v. Connely, 266 S.W.2d 102 (Ky. 1954); Hays v. Wrenn, 83 S.E. 356 (N.C. 1914); Noble v. Tyler, 56 N.E. 191 (Ohio 1900); In re Kenny's Estate, 141 A.2d 839 (Pa. 1958); In re Rankin's Appeal, 16 A. 82 (Pa. 1888).

Under statute the personal representative of a life tenant may recover for rent maturing during the life of the life tenant. In re North's Estate, 320 S.W.2d 597 (Mo. App. 1959).

Where a life tenant has leased land on a crop-share basis and dies while the crop is growing, title to the crop reserved and the rent passes to the executor of the estate of tenant for life as assets of his estate. Ruwe's Estate v. Ruwe, 211 N.W.2d 610 (Neb. 1973).

Holding that both crops harvested and those being harvested at time of death of owner belong to the life tenant, not to the remainderman. Estate of Luke, 184 N.W.2d 42 (Iowa 1971).

(n43)Footnote 329. Drees Farming Ass'n v. Thompson, 246 N.W.2d 883 (N.D. 1976).

(n44)Footnote 330. Price v. Pickett, 21 Ala. 741 (1852); Stewart v. Doughty, 9 N.Y. (Johns.) 108 (1812).

(n45)Footnote 331. McClellan v. Krall, 23 P. 100 (Kan. 1890).

(n46)Footnote 332. See Edward Vaughan Williams, A Treatise on the Laws of Executors and Administrators, 605 (9th ed. 1893).

(n47)Footnote 333. Humphries v. Humphries, 25 N.C. (3 Ired.) 362 (1843); Forsythe v. Price, 8 Pa. (Watts) 282 (1839).

(n48)Footnote 334. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 123. See the following cases:

State v. Gemmill, 6 Del. (1 Houst.) 9 (1855); Evans v. Hardy, 76 Ind. 527 (1881); Sparrow v. Pond, 52 N.W. 36 (Minn. 1892); Rogers v. Elliott, 59 N.H. 201 (1879); In re Chamberlain, 35 N.E. 602 (N.Y. 1893); Kimball v. Sattley, 55 Vt. 285 (1883).

(n49)Footnote 335. Rowell v. Klein, 44 Ind. 290 (1873); Chesley v. Welch, 37 Me. 106 (1854); Chandler v. Thurston, 27 Mass. (10 Pick.) 205 (1830); Hawkins v. Skegg, 29 Tenn. (10 Humph.) 31 (1848); McLean v. Bovee, 24 Wis. 295 (1869).

(n50)Footnote 336. Mayo v. Fletcher, 31 Mass. (14 Pick.) 525 (1833); Wallace v. Cherry, 32 Mo. App. 436 (1888); Lane v. King, 8 Wend. 584 (N.Y. 1832).

(n51)Footnote 337. McCraw v. Simpson, 141 F.2d 789 (10th Cir. 1944); Bradley v. Bailey, 15 A. 746 (Conn. 1888), 1 L.R.A. 427; Miller's Ex'x v. Miller, 221 S.W.2d 654 (Ky. 1949); Statler v. Watson, 68 N.W.2d 604 (Neb. 1955); Noble v. Tyler, 56 N.E. 191 (Ohio St. 1900); Strand v. Boll, 183 N.W. 284 (S.D. 1921).

Crop sown by life tenant passes to his personal representative on his death. Reivert v. Whittington, 571 P.2d 58 (Kan. App. 1977).

(n52)Footnote 338. Rosenstein v. Williams County, 15 N.W.2d 378 (N.D. 1944).

Crops planted by life tenant belong to his estate. Sprick v. Beach, 362 P.2d 24 (Kan. 1961).

(n53)Footnote 339. Guest v. Guest, 176 So. 289 (Ala. 1937); Ussery v. Sweet, 208 S.W. 600 (Ark. 1919); Chapman v. W. F. Epperson Circled Heading Co., 101 Ill. App. 161 (1901); Brugh v. Denman, 78 N.E. 349 (Ind. App. 1906); Calvert v. Rice, 16 S.W. 351 (Ky. 1891); Stonebraker v. Zollickoffer, 52 Md. 154 (1879); Clark v. Holden, 73 Mass. (7 Gray) 8 (1856); Learned v. Ogden, 32 So. 278 (Miss. 1902); Miles v. Miles, 32 N.H. 147 (1855); Jackson ex dem. Church v. Brownson, 7 N.Y. (Johns.) 227 (1810); Dodd v. Watson, 57 N.C. 48 (1858); Thomas v. Thomas, 82 S.E. 1032 (N.C. 1914); Fleming v. Sexton, 90 S.E. 247 (N.C. 1916); In re Rankin's Appeal, 16 A. 82 (Pa. 1888); Johnson v. Johnson, 2 Hill Ch. 277 (S.C. 1835); Martin v. Grogan-Cochran Lumber Co., 176 S.W.2d 780 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943); Findlay v. Smith, 6 Munf. 134 (Va. 1818); Hawpe v. Bumgardner, 48 S.E. 554 (Va. 1904).

(n54)Footnote 340. Bell v. Burkhalter, 57 So. 460 (Ala. 1912).

(n55)Footnote 341. In re Paine's Estate, 174 So. 430 (Fla. 1937).

(n56)Footnote 342. Coke on Littleton, § 416; 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 35.

(n57)Footnote 343. Bell v. Burkhalter, 57 So. 460 (Ala. 1912); Calvert v. Rice, 16 S.W. 351 (Ky. 1891); McCoy v. Ferguson, 175 S.W. 23 (Ky. 1915); Clark v. Holden, 73 Mass. (7 Gray) 8 (1856); Miles v. Miles, 32 N.H. 147 (1855); Jackson ex dem. Church v. Brownson, 7 Johns. 227 (N.Y. 1810); Johnson v. Johnson, 2 Hill Ch. 277 (S.C. 1835).

(n58)Footnote 344. Russell v. Pagan, 267 S.W. 573 (Ark. 1925); In re Lynn's Appeal, 31 Pa. 44 (1857).

> By the common law, the life tenant was narrowly restricted in the taking of timber to estovers of fuel and repairs, save where ... the custom of the estate was otherwise. In America, because of the abundance of wooded land and the comparative scarcity of arable land, the common law rules were relaxed, and it has been the general rule to allow the life tenant to cut timber for the purpose of clearing the land, provided the part cleared, with that under cultivation, does not, as compared with the remainder of the tract, exceed the proportion of cleared to wooded land allowed by good husbandry; and provided, further, that the value of the inheritance is not thereby materially lessened. The latter consideration is the great criterion... And the right to the proceeds of sales obviously follows the right to cut the timber.

Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916).

(n59)Footnote 345. Cook v. Cook, 77 Mass. (11 Gray) 123 (1858); Phillips v. Allen, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 115 (1863); Webster v. Webster, 33 N.H. 18 (1856); Gardiner v. Derring, 1 Paige 573 (N.Y. 1837); Dalton v. Dalton, 42 N.C. (7 Ired. Eq.) 197 (1851).

(n60)Footnote 346. Morehouse v. Cotheal, 22 N.J.L. 521 (1850); Jackson ex dem. Church v. Brownson, 7 Johns. 227 (N.Y. 1810); Crockett v. Crockett, 2 Ohio St. 180 (1853); McCullough v. Irvine, 13 Pa. 437 (1850).

(n61)Footnote 347. Fleenor v. Sproles, 139 S.E. 286 (Va. 1927).

(n62)Footnote 348. Statler v. Watson, 68 N.W.2d 604 (Neb. 1955).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.08

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.08 Extent of the Life Tenant's Right to Make Use of the Freehold.

[Go To Supp]

Since the "ownership" concept of the freehold rests in the holder of the reversion or the remainder, and the life tenant merely has the right of possession and use, the life tenant cannot remove and divert to the life tenant's own ends any materials or property that composes part of the freehold. n349 Indeed, as the common law developed, the tenant had no power to alter the freehold in any manner. Any change, even though it benefitted or increased the material value of the freehold, was waste. The modern doctrine of ameliorating waste was unknown at common law.

A life tenant is not permitted to mine, dig, work or sell the minerals, ores, coal, oil, gas or other deposits found on or within the land, n350 unless it has been the custom of previous owners to use the land in these ways. He has no right to open any new mines or wells or lease the lands to others for that purpose. n351 A life tenant may not lease for minerals. n352 It is waste for a life tenant to drill and operate new wells for oil and gas, n353 open and operate quarries on land held as such tenant n354 or dig clay and make brick for sale. n355

The life tenant has no right to develop oil and gas property to the deprivation of the remainderman, where development was not begun or authorized before the commencement of the life estate. n356 This rule is also applicable to an under tenant of the life tenant. n357 Such opening and operation would be a permanent injury to the inheritance. It will constitute waste for a life tenant to open up and renew operation of a mine that had been definitely closed prior to the creation of the life tenancy, but the life tenant may work such mines as have been temporarily closed. Where a mine was opened and worked for a certain purpose before the life estate began, its operation by the life tenant must be confined to the same purpose. n358 Moreover, mining by the life tenant is permissible if the former owner of the fee impressed a mining character on the land by executing an enforceable mining lease before the commencement of the life estate even though, prior thereto, no mine actually was opened under such lease, provided, of course, that the will which devised the life estate contains nothing to the contrary. n359 Even where the land was not impressed with a mining character at the time of the commencement of the life estate, the life tenant and the remainderman may jointly lease the land for mining purposes, n360 although neither the former nor the latter may singly and individually do so. n361

One exception, in the case of the life estate, to the rule of liability for waste is in the "open mine" doctrine. Under this theory, if minerals were being worked at the time the life estate vested in possession, the life tenant could continue working them and keep the proceeds or royalties without being liable for waste. n362 But if the mine had not been opened, the life tenant could not work it. n363 The "open mine" doctrine is applicable to a purchaser in possession. n364 A homestead is a life estate within the "open mine" doctrine. n365 The "open mine" doctrine applies alike to conventional and legal life estates. n366 It applies where the oil lease was given in the lifetime of the testator though development did not take place until after his death. n367 The "open mine" doctrine applies to royalties from leases renewed by trustee where the lease was effective on the testator's death, but not from renewals of leases which had terminated and had not been renewed during testator's lifetime. n368 The "open mine" doctrine is applicable even though work had ceased at the time the life estate arose. n369

A life tenant may open and operate new mines when reasonably necessary for the repair and maintenance of the property or for the specific purpose for which the lease was made or where the right is expressly included in the lease. n370 In Michigan it has been held that the common-law rule that a life tenant cannot open new mines does not prevail. n371 The opening of a new mine on land by a life tenant amounts to waste, n372 and this rule applies to oil wells, as oil is a mineral and part of the realty. n373 A life tenant has no right to lease the land for exploration for gas or oil where it has not previously been so used, nor the right to explore it. n374 Where an oil lease is entered into during the life tenancy, the life tenant is only entitled to the interest on the royalties not to the royalties themselves. n375

Such mines as have previously been opened and worked, though long abandoned before the tenant's estate arose, may be reopened and the tenant may even sink new shafts in pursuit of an old vein of coal, when the mine had been opened before the tenant's estate arose. n376 But where mines were open when the tenancy began, the tenant may continue to work the same, even to exhaustion. n377 If, at the time of the creation of a life estate either by grant or reservation, there is an open mine on the property the life tenant is entitled to the rents and royalties derived therefrom during life. n378

Where the owner of an estate of inheritance prior to death authorizes a mine or well to be opened or drilled on land, and such mine or well is not opened or drilled until after death, the mine or well will be deemed an open mine or well as of the date of such owner's death, and a life tenant is entitled to receive the royalties as issues and profits of the land. n379 It has been held that a life tenant of lands subject to a gas and oil lease, providing for a stipulated acreage rental, is entitled to such rental during the continuance of the estate, and is entitled to royalties accruing during such continuance on account of wells drilled on the land. n380 Also, a reservation of a life estate in land conveyed is held to entitle the grantor to a royalty on an oil and gas lease as an incident of the estate reserved. n381

A remainderman cannot lease for oil and gas without the life tenant's consent. If both join in the lease in the absence of agreement the life tenant is entitled only to the interest on the royalties not to the royalties themselves. n382 Unless a division of the royalties paid under a mining lease, executed by the life tenant and the remainderman jointly, is made a matter of agreement, the life tenant is not entitled to any part of the corpus of such royalties but only to the income therefrom, the corpus thereof belonging to the remainderman. n383 There is a contrary rule in an oil lease, where the life tenant was entitled to regular income therefrom. n384 Where a life tenant recognizes that the production of oil from adjacent lands may diminish reserves which normally would come into the possession of the remainderman, the life tenant may execute a lease in order to conserve the contingent estate. n385

The law involving the life tenant's right to cut standing timber is most interesting in that in this country it has made almost a full circle. In England, by the time of the settlement of America, virtually all the wild land except that held in shooting preserves and privately owned forests was gone. Lumber had become a valuable asset, and standing timber enhanced land. Hence the cutting of standing timber and the taking of any wood except for estovers by anyone other than the owner of the fee was waste. Nearly all of North America, however, east of the Mississippi was heavily forested. Land had to be cleared for cultivation. There was little or no market for timber. Hence the English waste concept was economically not feasible.

In early American history, where land was required to be cleared for cultivation, timber was a nuisance and clearing did not constitute waste. To this extent the rigidity of the English law against ameliorating waste was not applicable. So. we find the weight of authority under the older cases holding that the life tenant can cut timber for the purpose of clearing the land, provided the part cleared, with that already under cultivation, as compared to the remainder of the tract, does not exceed the proportion of cleared to wooded land usually employed in good husbandry, and provided, also, that such cutting does not materially lessen the value of the inheritance. n386 One who has a life estate in wild uncultivated land may cut the timber therefrom preparatory to putting the land in a state of cultivation, n387 and the tenant may sell and appropriate to his own use the proceeds from the timber cut in clearing such land. n388

Here the question of what cutting of timber constitutes waste depends very much upon the purpose of the cutting and its effect upon the value of the inheritance. Thus, if the tenant cuts away timber in order to clear the land for cultivation it is not generally considered waste, as rendering the land less valuable, but as increasing its value instead. n389 If the cutting of timber decreases rather than enhances the value of the land, then such cutting is waste. n390 The tenant may only clear timber land for farming to the extent that the part cleared and that already in cultivation, as compared with the remainder, does not exceed the proportion of cleared to wooded land usual in good husbandry. n391 Such cutting of timber must be made in good faith to clear up the land and not for sale or profit. n392

But even under this rule neither a life tenant nor a grantee has a right to remove commercial timber from the land. n393 For the life tenant, either actively or permissively, to make merchandise of standing timber, except as it is done in the course of the clearing of land for the purpose of cultivation, will constitute waste and be ground for an accounting. n394 Timber such as the life tenant is without authority to cut becomes, on its actually being cut either by the life tenant or by a third person, the property of the remainderman. n395

Almost everywhere today, however, timber has become so valuable that the cutting of standing timber by the life tenant is waste. Under the common law and the great weight today, the cutting of timber other than for estovers by a life tenant is waste, n396 unless there is some specific leave or license to do so; n397 but where the life tenant is required to make repairs to the buildings on the land, he may cut timber for such repairs. n398 Where the only income available from the estate is from the sale of timber, such cutting is not waste. n399 If the cutting of timber would not be in accord with good husbandry, the act would be waste. n400 A life tenant cannot cut timber to sell for profit or authorize another to do so, n401 but is entitled to the timber or the proceeds thereof, which the life tenant, in good faith, cuts for the purpose of clearing the land and fitting it for cultivation. n402

A tenant for life who cuts standing timber for the purpose of sale, and not merely for necessary estovers or for reasonable clearing for cultivation, is guilty of waste. n403 Under this rule, a life tenant who felled timber, lopped it off, or did anything which caused it to decay was guilty of committing waste. n404 Even where the life tenant had a right to cut trees for repairs, if the life tenant cut and sold and with the proceeds purchased other lumber, or even bought back the same lumber and used it in making repairs, this was deemed waste at common law. n405

A court ordering standing timber sold on petition of life tenant and the majority of the remaindermen, required bond to protect the balance of the remaindermen before distributing proceeds. n406 Where an owner of property conveys it by a warranty deed reserving an ordinary life estate, the owner cannot thereafter execute a lease of timber on the land conveyed to other parties. n407

A life tenant cannot give a long-term timber deed merely as a commercial venture. n408 The devisee of a life estate may, however, work pine trees, growing on the land, for turpentine purposes where the testator had worked such trees for the same purposes. n409

Although a will in terms gave the life tenant the right to sell timber for his support and for putting improvements on the land, the remainderman is entitled to the proceeds of a timber sale not used for either of such purposes and found, on the life tenant's death, on deposit in a bank. n410

As the English law of waste is applied to buildings, as it was in America for a long time, it is waste for a tenant for life to tear down a building, although the estate, without the building, is more valuable intrinsically than it was at the beginning of the life estate, because of a general rise in values. n411 A mere intention to erect a better structure will not prevent the tearing down of a building from being waste. n412 A tenant for life cannot pull down buildings or do other acts which tend to the disherison of the remainderman and justify them on the ground of having acted in good faith, without any purpose of permanently injuring the inheritance. Such acts, in law, constitute waste for which the tenant for life is liable, however innocent or honest may have been the purpose with which they were done. n413 It is held that the removal of buildings from property insufficient in value to pay delinquent taxes against the property constitutes waste. n414 Where a life tenant erects a structure but does not annex it to the freehold, the removal thereof does not constitute waste. n415

At common law, any change in the character of the buildings made or suffered to be made by the life tenant, regardless of whether it resulted in a benefit to the inheritance, was considered waste. n416 Thus, the removal of wainscoting or floors or things affixed to the land or to buildings was waste, if done by a life tenant who was not exempt from such liability either as a tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct or as expressly made unimpeachable for waste. If a tenant tore down a building or unroofed it or changed it from one kind to another, as a flour mill to some other manufactory, or changed a dwelling into a store, removed partitions making one room where there were formerly two or more, or put in partitions and increased the number of rooms, many acts beneficial to the estate, nevertheless the common law pronounced it waste. n417 Opening new doors or windows, removing a building from one place to another on the land, converting one kind of a mill into another, converting a dwelling into a warehouse or any other act which changed the appearance of the buildings and rendered them no longer recognizable, was considered as destructive of the evidence of title and constituted waste. n418 The strict rule of the common law with reference to changes and alterations of buildings has been greatly modified, and the foundation of waste at the present time is actual damage to the inheritance. n419 Thus, it was held that a tenant for life was not liable for waste for changing a dwelling house that had become undesirable as such into a business property, useful for business purposes. n420

This doctrine of ameliorating waste is making great strides in the United States where the vast transitional changes that have followed the two World Wars have in many instances reduced the old rigid English rule to ridiculous levels.

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: life tenant! w/5 right! w/2 use! w/5 freehold

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 349. Gift of "use" for life with "remainder" over gave life tenant power to dispose of and consume realty for maintenance. Dennis v. Trustees of Choateville Christian Church, 290 S.W.2d 601 (Ky. 1956).

A lessee, leasing for a term from a life tenant, could not remove fixtures after death of the life tenant, though the lease specifically gave the power to remove fixtures, since the lease ended with the life tenant's death. Haywood v. Briggs, 41 S.E.2d 289 (N.C. 1947); Haflick v. Stober, 11 Ohio St. 482 (1860).

(n2)Footnote 350. Eide v. Tveter, 143 F. Supp. 665 (D.N.D. 1956); Ohio Oil Co. v. Daughetee, 88 N.E. 818 (Ill. 1909); Rupel v. Ohio Oil Co., 95 N.E. 225 (Ind. 1911); Hook v. Garfield Coal Co., 83 N.W. 963 (Iowa 1900); Gerkins v. Kentucky Salt Co., 39 S.W. 444 (Ky. 1897); Barnes v. Keys, 127 P. 261 (Okla 1912); Marshall v. Mellon, 36 A. 201 (Pa. 1897); Swayne v. Lone Acre Oil Co., 86 S.W. 740 (Tex. 1905); Gage v. Curtner, 215 S.W.2d 411 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948); Williamson v. Jones, 19 S.E. 436 (W. Va. 1894); Wilson v. Youst, 28 S.E. 781 (W. Va. 1897); Kremer v. Rule, 244 N.W. 596 (Wis. 1932).

Oklahoma by statute, Okla. Stat. 1971, tit. 60, §§ 71-73, permits oil and gas leasing where there is a life tenant and contingent remainderman. Amarex, Inc. v. Sell, 566 P.2d 456 (Okla. 1977).

(n3)Footnote 351. Eide v. Tveter, 143 F. Supp. 665 (D.N.D. 1956), aff'd, 170 F. 529 (8th Cir. 1909); Ohio Oil Co. v. Daughetee, 88 N.E. 818 (Ill. 1909); Sewell v. Sewell, 1 N.E.2d 492 (Ill. 1936); Rupel v. Ohio Oil Co., 95 N.E. 225 (Ind. 1911); Gerkins v. Kentucky Salt Co., 39 S.W. 444 (Ky. 1897); Steele v. Cross, 366 S.W.2d 434 (Mo. 1963); Barnes v. Keys, 127 P. 261 (Okla. 1912); Marshall v. Mellon, 36 A. 201 (Pa. 1897); Swayne v. Lone Acre Oil Co., 86 S.W. 740 (Tex. 1905), 69 L.R.A. 986; Williamson v. Jones, 19 S.E. 436 (W. Va. 1894); Wilson v. Youst, 28 S.E. 781 (W. Va. 1897).

It was held in Montana that where one held possession of the premises under a life estate with power to use as he might deem fit and receive the income and profits during his lifetime he could open a gravel pit. Danielson v. Danielson, 560 P.2d 893 (Mont. 1977).

(n4)Footnote 352. Lowe v. Adams, 419 P.2d 764 (N.M. 1966).

(n5)Footnote 353. Ohio Oil Co. v. Daughetee, 88 N.E. 818 (Ill. 1909); Rupel v. Ohio Oil Co., 95 N.E. 225 (Ind. 1911); Compton v. Peoples Gas Co., 89 P. 1039 (Kan. 1907); Burden v. Gypsy Oil Co., 40 P.2d 463 (Kan. 1935); Cosgriff v. Dewey, 58 N.E. 1 (N.Y. 1900); Westmoreland & Cambria Nat. Gas Co. v. DeWitt, 18 A. 724 (Pa. 1889); Swayne v. Lone Acre Oil Co., 86 S.W. 740 (Tex. 1905); Gage v. Curtner, 215 S.W.2d 411 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948); Williamson v. Jones, 27 S.E. 411 (W. Va. 1897). See Restatement, Property, § 138, cmt. d.

Life tenant is liable to remaindermen for waste. Moore v. Vines, 474 S.W.2d 437 (Tex. 1971).

(n6)Footnote 354. Kremer v. Rule, 244 N.W. 596 (Wis. 1932). See United States v. Bostwick, 94 U.S. 53 (1876); Cosgriff v. Dewey, 58 N.E. 1 (N.Y. 1900).

(n7)Footnote 355. Waldorf v. Elkhart & W. R. Co., 41 N.E. 396 (Ind. App. 1895); Russell v. Merchants Bank, 50 N.W. 228 (Minn. 1891).

In Danielson v. Danielson, 560 P.2d 893 (Mont. 1977), it was held that where the life tenant was given the right to use the premises as he sees fit and receive the income and profits during his lifetime he could open a gravel pit.

(n8)Footnote 356. Burden v. Gypsy Oil Co., 40 P.2d 463 (Kan. 1935); Barton v. Warner, 142 S.W.2d 303 (Tex. Civ. App. 1940).

(n9)Footnote 357. Marshall v. Mellon, 36 A. 201 (Pa. 1897).

(n10)Footnote 358. Mills v. Taylor, 268 S.W.2d 412 (Ky. 1954); Franklin Coal Co. v. McMillan, 49 Md. 549 (1878); In re Shailer's Estate, 266 P.2d 613 (Okla. 1954)(life tenant is entitled to all income and profits from gas and oil leases existing at testator's death although actual drilling, etc., did not commence until after life estate commenced); Barrera v. Barrera, 294 S.W.2d 865 (Tex. Civ. App. 1956)(but a life tenant is not responsible for damages due to flood).

(n11)Footnote 359. Goosling v. Pinson, 248 S.W. 248 (Ky. 1923).

(n12)Footnote 360. Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927). See also Union Gas & Oil Co. v. Wiedeman Oil Co., 277 S.W. 323 (Ky. 1924).

Where grantor conveyed a fee title to grantee reserving a life estate, and the grantor thereafter joined with the grantee in executing an oil lease covering the conveyed land, the grantee's widow and children, rather than the grantor, were entitled to the proceeds received from the royalty reserved in the lease, but such proceeds were to be invested and the income therefrom paid to the grantor during her life, and the grantor was not entitled to the total royalty paid during her lifetime on the theory that she was a conventional life tenant. Davis v. Bond, 158 S.W.2d 297 (Tex. 1942).

(n13)Footnote 361. Burden v. Gypsy Oil Co., 40 P.2d 463 (Kan. 1935); Meredith v. Meredith, 235 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1921). See also Meredith v. Meredith, 264 S.W. 1109 (Ky. 1924); Union Gas & Oil Co. v. Wiedemann Oil Co., 277 S.W.

323 (Ky. 1924); Whitaker v. Surtees, 248 S.W. 432 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923).

(n14)Footnote 362. Ohio Oil Co. v. Daughetee, 88 N.E. 818 (Ill. 1909); Rupel v. Ohio Oil Co., 95 N.E. 225 (Ind. 1911); Thompson v. Thompson, 236 S.W.2d 779 (Tex. 1951)(doweress entitled to share in royalties of oil lease in which she and deceased husband joined); Astray v. Ballard, 2 Mod. 193 (1676).

Where the owner of a property executed an oil and gas lease but there had been no production prior to his death, and his will gave his wife a life estate in the property with remainder to other children, and oil production was secured during the life of the life tenant, the life tenant took all of the oil payments as income. Kimbark Exploration Co. v. Von Lintel, 391 P.2d 55 (Kan. 1964).

Even under the "open mine" doctrine, any oil royalties must be held as corpus with only the income therefrom accruing to the life tenant. Youngman v. Shular, 288 S.W.2d 495 (Tex. 1956).

Open mine doctrine applied to oil wells. Clyde v. Hamilton, 414 S.W.2d 434 (Tex. 1956).

Life tenant is entitled only to the interest on mineral royalties and bonuses except where the "open mine" doctrine is applicable. Moore v. Vines, 474 S.W.2d 437 (Tex. 1971).

Opening a new pit separate from the old excavation was not an "open mine" and was waste. Spangler v. Carlisle, 245 N.W.2d 720 (Mich. App. 1976).

Where it was necessary to remove ten feet of topsoil, the open mine doctrine was not applicable. Spangler v. Carlisle, 245 N.W.2d 720 (Mich. App. 1976).

See Comment. Open Mine Doctrine in Mississippi, 35 Miss. L.J. 436.

(n15)Footnote 363. Cross v. Hendry, 79 N.E. 531 (Ind. App. 1906); Daniels v. Charles, 189 S.W. 192 (Ky. 1916)(widow opening mine was waste); Davis v. Bond, 158 S.W.2d 297 (Tex. 1942)(only entitled to interest on royalties during lifetime).

See B. Patrick Shaw, The Open Mine Doctrine -- Halt!, 24 Baylor L. Rev. 142 (1972); The Open Mine Doctrine, 8 Houston L. Rev. 753 (1971).

It was held in Montana that where one held possession of the premises under a life estate with power to use as he might deem fit and receive the income and profits during his lifetime he could open a gravel pit. Danielson v. Danielson, 560 P.2d 893 (Mont. 1977).

(n16)Footnote 364. Spangler v. Carlisle, 245 N.W.2d 720 (Mich. App. 1976).

(n17)Footnote 365. Youngman v. Shular, 288 S.W.2d 495 (Tex. 1956).

(n18)Footnote 366. Youngman v. Shular, 288 S.W.2d 495 (Tex. 1956).

(n19)Footnote 367. Kimbark Exploration Co. v. Von Lintel, 391 P.2d 55 (Kan. 1964)(Uniform Principal and Income Act does not change this will).

(n20)Footnote 368. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 303 S.W.2d 352 (Tex. 1957)(the open mine rule application to a devise depends on the testator's intention).

Where it was necessary to remove ten feet of topsoil the open mine doctrine was not applicable. Spangler v. Carlisle,

245 N.W.2d 720 (Mich. App. 1976).

(n21)Footnote 369. Gaines v. Green Pond Iron Min. Co., 33 N.J. Eq. 603 (1881); Neel v. Neel, 19 Pa. (7 Harris) 323 (1852).

If there is an existing lease at the time of the birth of the life estate, the life tenant may drill for oil and gas. But the life tenant cannot execute a new lease when the old one expires. Moore v. Vines, 474 S.W.2d 437 (Tex. 1971), rev'g 461 S.W.2d 642 (Tex. Civ. App. 1971).

(n22)Footnote 370. Kremer v. Rule, 244 N.W. 596 (Wis. 1932).

(n23)Footnote 371. Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916).

(n24)Footnote 372. Hendrix v. McBeth, 61 Ind. 473 (1878); Appeal of Westmoreland Coal Co., 85 Pa. 344 (1877).

(n25)Footnote 373. Ohio Oil Co. v. Daughetee, 88 N.E. 818 (Ill. 1909); Whitaker v. Surtees, 248 S.W. 432 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923).

(n26)Footnote 374. Marshall v. Mellon, 36 A. 201 (Pa. 1897).

(n27)Footnote 375. Martin v. Eslick, 90 So. 2d 635 (Miss. 1956), 92 So. 2d 244 (Miss. 1957).

(n28)Footnote 376. Higgins Oil & Fuel Co. v. Snow, 113 F. 433 (5th Cir. 1902)(in Texas the life tenant gets only interest on one-third of the royalties for life).

> It is ... generally held that where, before a life estate is created, the land has been impressed with the character of mining lands, and there is a mine already opened upon the land, the life tenant may work or lease such mines as were already in existence when his estate was created, and that he is not guilty of waste in so doing... Even where the mine has not been in operation for a number of years when the life estate is created, if in fact there was no final abandonment of it as mining property, with an executed intention to devote the property to a different use, this fact would not prevent the life tenant from resuming operations.

Cypress Creek Coal Co. v. Booneville Min. Co., 142 N.E. 645 (Ind. 1924).

The life tenant of:

> lands upon which there has not been opened wells or mines during the life of the previous holder of the fee simple estate may not open or sink such mines or wells or pits, and if he does so, he commits waste as against the remainder estate, and may be restrained. But if during the life of the previous holder there has been opened by him or under his authority wells or mines or pits, and the same have been operated [and their operation has not been permanently abandoned] during his lifetime and [they] are in operation at the time of the creation of the particular estate, then the holder of the life estate [or his lessee] may continue their operation during such holding even to the exhaustion of the mineral substance found therein, unless there be in the instrument creating the life estate some restraint upon or restriction of such right.

Tomlinson v. Humpich, 248 S.W. 1016 (Ky. 1923); Mills v. Taylor, 268 S.W.2d 412 (Ky. 1954); Thompson v. Thompson, 236 S.W.2d 779 (Tex. 1951). See also Waldron v. Wahl, 133 A. 252 (Pa. 1926).

"It has ... long been the law that where mines were opened or the leases executed before the life estate commenced, the owner of the life estate might, in the absence of restraining words, work the mines, even to the point of exhaustion, and take the profits." Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916).

Where the open mine doctrine prevails the life tenant is entitled to all royalties and may increase production. In re Shailer's Estate, 266 P.2d 613 (1954).

See M.K. Woodward, The Open Mine Doctrine in Oil and Gas Cases, 35 Tex. L. Rev. 538 (1957); M.K. Woodward, Oil Co. Law -- Extension of Open Well Doctrine Is Interesting Trend, 19 Tex. B.J. 528 (1956).

(n29)Footnote 377. Goosling v. Pinson, 248 S.W. 248 (Ky. 1923); Barnes v. Keys, 127 P. 261 (Okla. 1912); Appeal of Lynn, 31 Pa. 44 (1857); In re McFadden's Estate, 73 A. 927 (Pa. 1857); Swayne v. Lone Acre Oil Co., 86 S.W. 740 (Tex. 1905); Youngman v. Shular, 281 S.W.2d 373 (Tex. Civ. App. 1956), aff'd 288 S.W.2d 495 (Tex. 1956); Williamson v. Jones, 19 S.E. 436 (W. Va. 1894); Koen v. Bartlett, 23 S.E. 664 (W. Va. 1895).

(n30)Footnote 378. Weekley v. Weekley, 27 S.E.2d 591 (W. Va. 1943). Amarex, Inc. v. Sell, 566 P.2d 456 (Okla. 1977).

(n31)Footnote 379. Mairs v. Central Trust Co., 34 S.E.2d 742 (W. Va. 1945).

In Danielson v. Danielson, 560 P.2d 893 (Mont. 1977), it was held that where the life tenant was given the right to use the premises as he sees fit and to receive the income and profits during his lifetime, he could open a gravel pit.

(n32)Footnote 380. Fairbanks v. Warrum, 104 N.E. 983 (Ind. App. 1914), modified, 104 N.E. 1141 (Ind. 1914).

(n33)Footnote 381. Eide v. Tveter, 143 F. Supp. 665 (D.N.D. 1956); Koen v. Bartlett, 23 S.E. 664 (W. Va. 1895).

(n34)Footnote 382. Welborn v. Tidewater Associated Oil Co., 217 F.2d 509 (10th Cir. 1954).

(n35)Footnote 383. Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927).

(n36)Footnote 384. Thompson v. Thompson, 236 S.W.2d 779 (Tex. 1951).

(n37)Footnote 385. Love v. McDonald, 148 S.W.2d 170 (Ark. 1941).

(n38)Footnote 386. Alexander v. Fisher, 7 Ala. 514 (1845); Rutherford v. Wilson, 129 S.W. 534 (Ark. 1910); Woodward v. Gates, 38 Ga. 205 (1868); Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916); Hill v. Ground, 89 S.W. 343 (Mo. App. 1905); Disher v. Disher, 63 N.W. 368 (Neb. 1895); Norris v. Laws, 64 S.E. 499 (N.C. 1909); Morris v. Knight, 14 Pa. Super. 324 (1900); Keeler v. Eastman, 11 Vt. 293 (1839); Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 18 N.W. 527 (Wis. 1884).

(n39)Footnote 387. Woodward v. Gates, 38 Ga. 205 (1868); Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916); Morehouse v. Cotheal, 22 N.J.L. 521 (1850); Jackson ex dem. Church v. Brownson, 7 Johns. 227 (N.Y. 1810); Davis v. Gilliam, 40 N.C. (5 Ired. Eq.) 308 (1848); McCullough v. Irvine, 13 Pa. 438 (1850).

(n40)Footnote 388. Sallee v. Daneri, 121 P.2d 781 (Cal. App. 1942); Crockett v. Crockett, 2 Ohio St. 180 (1853).

(n41)Footnote 389. Sutton v. Bennett, 110 S.E.2d 650 (Ga. 1959)(life tenant entitled to cut timber where this was the only possible income from the property); Dawson v. Coffman, 28 Ind. 220 (1867); Pynchon v. Stearns, 52 Mass. (11 Met.) 304 (1846); Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916); Cannon v. Barry, 59 Miss. 289 (1889); King v. Miller, 6 S.E. 660 (N.C. 1888); Sayers v. Hoskinson, 1 A. 308 (Pa. 1885); Owen v. Hyde, 14 Tenn. (6 Yer.) 334 (1834); Life tenant may cut timber from timber land for thinning purposes in accordance with approved forestry practices.

Sutton v. Bennett, 110 S.E.2d 650 (Ga. 1959).

Life tenant may clear land by cutting timber for cultivation or for preserving the property and may keep the timber so cut. Campion v. McLeod, 132 S.E.2d 848 (Ga. App. 1963); Thompson v. Thompson, 332 S.W.2d 221 (Tenn. 1960).

(n42)Footnote 390. Conner v. Bowdoin, 57 S.E.2d 344 (Ga. App. 1950); Adams v. Bates, 231 S.W. 238 (Ky. 1921); Proffitt v. Henderson, 29 Mo. 325 (1860); Disher v. Disher, 63 N.W. 368 (Neb. 1895); Jackson ex dem. Church v. Brownson, 7 Johns. 227 (N.Y. 1810); Fleenor v. Sproles, 139 S.E. 286 (Va. 1927).

(n43)Footnote 391. McLeod v. Dial, 37 S.W. 306 (Ark. 1896); Rutherford v. Wilson, 129 S.W. 534 (Ark. 1910); Roby v. Newton, 49 S.E. 694 (Ga. 1905); Davis v. Clark, 40 Mo. App. 515 (1890); Miles v. Miles, 32 N.H. 147 (1855); Jackson ex dem. Church v. Brownson, 7 Johns. 227 (N.Y. 1810); Ward v. Sheppard, 3 N.C. 283 (1803); Gause v. Perkins, 56 N.C. 177 (1837); Norris v. Laws, 64 S.E. 499 (N.C. 1909); Thomas v. Thomas, 82 S.E. 1032 (N.C. 1914); Appeal of Lynn, 31 Pa. 44 (1857); Owen v. Hyde, 14 Tenn. (6 Yer.) 334 (1834).

See Clark v. Holden, 73 Mass. (7 Gra.) 8 (1856).

(n44)Footnote 392. Kidd v. Dennison, 6 Barb. 9 (N.Y. 1849); Davis v. Gilliam, 40 N.C. (5 Ired. Eq.) 308 (1848).

(n45)Footnote 393. Stepp v. Lowe, 181 S.W. 351 (Ky. 1916); Heliker v. Heliker, 151 N.W. 757 (Mich. 1915).

(n46)Footnote 394. Westmoreland v. Birmingham Trust & Sav. Bank, 108 So. 536 (Ala. 1926). Life tenant may not cut timber for sale. Wilder v. Scott, 89 So. 2d 682 (Ala. 1956); In re Campbell's Estate, 382 P.2d 920 (Haw. 1963).

(n47)Footnote 395. Jones v. Sandlin, 87 So. 850 (Ala. 1920).

Proceeds of sales of improvements and timber go to the remainderman. In re Campbell's Estate, 382 P.2d 920 (Haw. 1963).

(n48)Footnote 396. Bell v. Burkhalter, 57 So. 460 (Ala. 1912); Wilder v. Scott, 89 So. 2d 682 (Ala. 1956); Campion v. McLeod, 132 S.E.2d 848 (Ga. App. 1963); Smith v. Harris, 124 S.W.2d 786 (Ky. 1939); Learned v. Ogden, 32 So. 278 (Miss. 1902); Webster v. Webster, 33 N.H. 18 (1856); McCartney v. Titsworth, 126 N.Y.S. 905 (1911); Clemence v. Steere, 1 R.I. 272 (1850).

(n49)Footnote 397. Anderson v. Anderson, 97 S.W.2d 513 (Tex. Civ. App. 1936).

(n50)Footnote 398. Alexander v. Fisher, 7 Ala. 514 (1845); Calvert v. Rice, 16 S.W. 351 (Ky. 1891); McCoy v. Ferguson, 175 S.W. 23 (Ky. 1915); Thomas v. Thomas, 82 S.E. 1032 (N.C. 1914); Atherton v. Cantner, 3 Lebanon 175 (Pa. 1951); McClure v. Chastain, 128 S.E.2d 721 (Ga. 1962); Adams v. Adams, 371 S.W.2d 637 (Ky. 1963).

Life tenant may take timber for firewood or making repairs. Campion v. McLeod, 132 S.E.2d 848 (Ga. App. 1963); Adams v. Adams, 371 S.W.2d 637 (Ky. 1963).

(n51)Footnote 399. Sutton v. Bennett, 110 S.E.2d 650 (Ga. 1959).

(n52)Footnote 400. Alexander v. Fisher, 7 Ala. 514 (1845); Rutherford v. Wilson, 129 S.W. 534 (Ark. 1910); Higgins v. State, 199 S.E. 160 (Ga. App. 1938); Davis v. Clark, 40 Mo. App. 515 (1890); Chase v. Hazelton, 7 N.H. 171 (1834); Crockett v. Crockett, 2 Ohio St. 180 (1853); Sayers v. Hoskinson, 1 A. 308 (Pa. 1885).

(n53)Footnote 401. Jones v. Sandlin, 87 So. 850 (Ala. 1920); McCarroll v. Falls, 195 S.W. 387 (Ark. 1917); Chapman v. W. F. Epperson Circled Heading Co., 101 Ill. App. 161 (1901); Modlin v. Kennedy, 53 Ind. 267 (1876); Hunt v. Hardin, 189 S.W. 713 (Ky. 1916); Zimmerman v. Shreeve, 59 Md. 357 (1883); Heliker v. Heliker, 151 N.W. 757

(Mich. 1915); Learned v. Ogden, 32 So. 278 (Miss. 1902); Davis v. Clark, 40 Mo. App. 515 (1890); McCartney v. Titsworth, 126 N.Y.S. 905 (1911); Norris v. Laws, 64 S.E. 499 (N.C. 1909); In re Grubb's Estate, 33 Berks 53 (Pa. 1936); Lester v. Young, 14 R.I. 579 (1884); McKee v. Dail, 1 Tenn. Ch. App. 689 (1901); Hawpe v. Bumgardner, 48 S.E. 554 (Va. 1904).

The life tenant as trustee for the remainderman can, however, maintain trespass for cutting of timber against a third party. Beck v. Lynch, 209 S.W.2d 58 (Ky. 1947).

(n54)Footnote 402. Warren v. Gans, 31 So. 539 (Miss. 1901); Disher v. Disher, 63 N.W. 368 (Neb. 1895); Davis v. Gilliam, 40 N.C. 308 (1848); Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 18 N.W. 527 (Wis. 1884).

(n55)Footnote 403. Cherokee Constr. Co. v. Harris, 122 S.W. 485 (Ark. 1909); Rutherford v. Wilson, 129 S.W. 534 (Ark. 1910); Loudon v. Warfield, 28 Ky. (5 J.J. Marsh) 196 (1830); Conner v. Shepherd, 15 Mass. 164 (1818); Learned v. Ogden, 32 So. 278 (Miss. 1902); Proffitt v. Henderson, 29 Mo. 325 (1860); Webster v. Webster, 33 N.H. 18 (1856); Davis v. Gilliam, 40 N.C. (5 Ired. Eq.) 308 (1848); In re Grubb's Estate, 33 Berks 53 (Pa. 1936)(the life tenant may not strip the land by cutting timber for commercial purposes, but will be confined to prudent cutting to avoid overcrowding); Clemence v. Steere, 1 R.I. 272 (1850); Johnson v. Johnson, 2 Hill Eq. 277 (S.C. 1825).

See Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916).

(n56)Footnote 404. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 281.

(n57)Footnote 405. Coke on Littleton, § 53a.

(n58)Footnote 406. Wigal v. Hensley, 216 S.W.2d 792 (Ark. 1949).

(n59)Footnote 407. Smith v. Thomas, 34 S.E.2d 278 (Ga. 1945).

(n60)Footnote 408. Russell v. Pagan, 267 S.W. 573 (Ark. 1925).

(n61)Footnote 409. Lee & Bradshaw v. Rogers, 108 S.E. 371 (Ga. 1945).

> Where, before the commencement of the life estate, the land has been cultivated for the produce of salable timber, the life tenant may continue the cultivation for his own profit. This is so even in England, where the law is strictest in favor of the owner of the inheritance, the right being analogous to the right of the life tenant to work mines that were being operated at the commencement of his estate.

Poole v. Union Trust Co., 157 N.W. 430 (Mich. 1916).

(n62)Footnote 410. Williams v. Floyd, 112 A. 377 (Del. 1920).

(n63)Footnote 411. Stephenson v. National Bank, 109 So. 424 (Fla. 1926); McCullough v. Irvine, 13 Pa. 438 (1850). See Restatement, Property, § 138, cmt. c.

(n64)Footnote 412. Dooley v. Stringham, 7 P. 405 (Utah 1885).

"Where a tenant in possession destroys any of the ... houses, on the land, the remainderman may maintain an action therefor." Fleenor v. Sproles, 139 S.E. 286 (Va. 1927).

Opening a new pit separate from the old excavation was not an "open mine" and was waste. Spangler v. Carlisle, 245 N.W.2d 720 (Mich. App. 1976).

(n65)Footnote 413. Clark v. Holden, 73 Mass. (7 Gray) 8 (1856); Allred v. Biegel, 219 S.W.2d 665 (Mo. App. 1949)(things which are part of the land but are wrongfully removed by life tenant become personal property but belong to remainderman and not life tenant).

(n66)Footnote 414. State ex rel. Tillman v. District Ct. 53 P.2d 107 (Mont. 1936).

(n67)Footnote 415. Clemence v. Steere, 1 R.I. 272 (1850).

Life tenant cannot burden property by adding permanent improvements. Sparks v. Robertson, 203 S.W.2d 622 (Tex. Civ. App. 1947).

(n68)Footnote 416. Crowe v. Wilson, 5 A. 427 (Md. 1886).

See Frank C. Homan, Alterations by a Life Tenant for Years as Waste, 16 Clev.-Mar. L. Rev. 220 (1967).

(n69)Footnote 417. Wall v. Hinds, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 256 (1855).

(n70)Footnote 418. Maddox v. White, 4 Md. 72 (1853).

Life tenant cannot remove improvements made by him. Bradley v. Bradley, 5 So. 2d 655 (Miss. 1966).

(n71)Footnote 419. Crowe v. Wilson, 5 A. 427 (Md. 1886); Delano v. Smith, 92 N.E. 500 (Mass. 1910); Rogers v. Atlantic, Gulf & Pac. Co., 107 N.E. 661 (N.Y. 1915). See In re Edgar's Will, 282 N.Y.S. 795 (1935).

(n72)Footnote 420. Melms v. Pabst Brew. Co., 79 N.W. 738 (Wis. 1899).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.09

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.09 Life Tenant's Obligation to Repair.n421

[Go To Supp]

The life tenant as a part of the fiduciary responsibility to the remainderman or reversioner goes beyond a mere duty not to commit waste. It has four positive responsibilities: (a) to keep the premises in repair, n422 (b) to pay taxes, (c) to pay interest on encumbrances, and (d) to keep the premises insured. n423 Sometimes these obligations are considered in the category of waste. More properly, however, they represent separate duties of the life tenant whose obligation in these respects remains even though the jurisdiction does not charge the life tenant with permissive waste. As concerns repairs, the courts distinguished between temporary repairs and permanent improvements. Where the income from the property is sufficient, the life tenant is required to make ordinary repairs as well as pay taxes. n424

There is much controversy over what is income belonging to the life tenant and what is corpus belonging to the remainderman. Basically, any yield which is not part of the freehold belongs to the life tenant but anything which is an augmentation of or comes from the freehold belongs to the holder of the future interests. Any rent which has accrued during the previous estate but has not been paid belongs to that estate not to the succeeding life tenant. n425

As a general rule, where the creator of the life estate did not provide otherwise, n426 ordinary repairs, incident to the life tenancy and necessary to the property's preservation, n427 must be made by the life tenant and at the life tenant's own expense. n428 The liability of a legal life tenant for waste and for failure to repair did not exist at common law n429 but arose under the Statute of Marlborough. n430

The life tenant is bound to keep the premises in as good repair as they were when the life tenant took them, not excepting ordinary or natural wear and tear. n431 The life tenant has duty to pay carrying charges out of income. n432 Only a few American courts n433 follow the rule of Howe v. Dartmouth, n434 that a trustee is required to build up for the remainderman out of income otherwise payable to the life tenant, a depreciation or depletion reserve of the principal which consists of wasting or consumable assets. n435 Most of the courts limit the liability for repairs to protection against waste. n436

It is the duty of the life tenant if in possession to make "such ordinary repairs as are necessary to preserve the property.

The life tenant receives the rents and profits derived from the use of the property and may not suffer it to go to decay for want of necessary repairs, and may not impair its value by acts of voluntary waste." n437 For the "life tenant, who by the exercise of ordinary care could keep the premises 'from falling into decay and who has the ability to do so' both from the rents and profits of the estate and otherwise, from some motive unfriendly to the remainderman," to wilfully refuse to keep the property in reasonable repair will constitute voluntary and wilful waste. n438 It is the duty of the life tenant to keep buildings and fences in a reasonably good state of repair, and failure to do so constitutes waste. n439 Where a life tenant suffers the property to go to decay or waste for want of repairs, the life tenant is liable therefor, n440 and it is no defense that there was no timber on the premises with which to make repairs. n441 The life tenant must preserve the property so long as the estate subsists and make repairs to prevent waste to the property. n442 It is not waste to refuse or neglect to repair a useless or undesirable building. n443 Neglect to replace broken window panes or to replace a roof blown off by a storm, thereby allowing the building to decay, is waste. n444

As far as the remainderman is concerned, this rule applies also to a purchaser from the life tenant of the latter's interest in the property. n445 Any acts or omissions on the purchaser's part, such as a failure to make needed repairs which are prejudicial to the interest of the remainderman, constitute waste, which may be permissive as well as aggressive. n446 The life tenant cannot make repairs and charge the cost thereof to the remainderman. n447 The receipt of income from the property is the basis of the rule requiring the life tenant to make repairs. n448 A tenant for life is required to keep the building in which is held a life estate from going into decay by using ordinary care, but is not required to expend any extraordinary sums. n449 The life tenant has no duty to repair where realty is unproductive. n450 The life tenant is not required to make repairs beyond the extent of income from the property. n451

A life tenant has no legal claim to compensation for improvements, is not bound to make improvements, and if the life tenant does so voluntarily he has no claim therefor against those who are to take the remainder. n452 The life tenant cannot charge the corpus of the estate with improvements, and is not entitled to compensation for enhancement of the property by reason thereof. n453 The obligations of an equitable tenant for life as to keeping buildings in repair are substantially the same as those of a legal life tenant, n454 but, although they are imposed upon the life tenant, yet the equitable life tenant cannot make improvements at the expense of the remainderman, whether necessary or not. n455 A life tenant is not bound to make extraordinary repairs, such, for instance, as to rebuild in whole or in part old structures in a state of dilapidation when he became tenant. n456 Such buildings and fences as are on the premises at the time the life tenant takes possession are to be kept in repair at the expense of such tenant, but the life tenant is not required to rebuild structures destroyed by the elements, nor can the life tenant take timber from the estate to rebuild structures so destroyed. n457 Where the buildings are slightly damaged by fire, the life tenant may repair the damage, and is entitled to be reimbursed out of any insurance money collected. n458

As between the life tenant and remaindermen, the remaindermen must bear any loss due to depreciation and obsolescence, and the life tenant is bound to repair only to the extent of preventing permissive or actual waste. n459 Improvements by a life tenant are generally deemed to have been made for the life tenant's own benefit and enjoyment, and on the termination of the tenancy by the death such improvements pass to the remainderman without liability to recompense the tenant's estate. n460

Where the party creating the life estate had begun and partly erected a building on the premises, the life tenant may lawfully proceed with its completion at the expense of the estate. n461 In some states there are statutes called "betterment acts" or "occupying claimant's acts," which authorize a recovery for improvements made by occupying claimants, but these acts do not change the rule as above stated with reference to the right of life tenants to claim compensation for improvements. n462 The life tenant has no lien on the property for improvements voluntarily placed thereon by him, even though such improvements are permanent in character, n463 nor, in this respect, is one who acquires the life tenant's interest and thereafter makes improvements on the property in any better position than the life tenant would be. n464 Where the life tenant is an infant, and the income of the property is invested by order of the court in permanent improvements, it is held that the corpus of the estate may be charged with improvements. n465 Likewise it is held that where permanent improvements are for the best interest of the remainderman, as well as the tenant, and do not contravene the terms of the instrument creating the estate, the cost thereof should be paid from the corpus of the estate or apportioned between the life tenant and the remainderman. n466 In Kentucky, at least, it is held that the general rule applies, even though the life tenant or the purchaser of the interest believes in good faith to be actually the owner of the fee. n467 The courts in some of the other states, however, take a contrary position concerning the matter, n468 probably because of the betterment statutes which are in force in such states. In some cases, it has been held that the cost of permanent improvements which enhance the value of the estate of the remainderman as well as that of the life tenant may be apportioned between the owners of the two estates. n469 In any event the amount of the life tenant's claim for improvements is not to be measured by the cost of such improvements, but only by the amount to which the improvements have added to the actual and permanent value of the property. n470 The mere fact that the remainderman has knowledge of the improvements being made is not sufficient to charge him with the costs thereof. n471

A life tenant, making substantial and permanent improvements under circumstances affording a well grounded and reasonable belief that the life tenant owned the fee therein, can recover for betterments thus made under the betterments statute. n472 This the life tenant cannot do, however, unless the life tenant has had in good faith a "color of title" to the fee rather than a clear life estate. n473

New York has modified this permanent improvement rule to the extent that where buildings have become untenantable or improvements are necessary by reason of changed conditions and such improvements will profit both the remainderman and the life tenant the cost of improvements will be assessed to corpus or apportioned between the life tenant and the remainderman. n474 The cost of extraordinary repairs or permanent improvements must be apportioned between the life tenant and the remainderman. n475

The improvements made by a life tenant or lessees are not removable after death; n476 only trade fixtures may be removed. n477

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: life tenant! w/15 obligat! w/5 repair!

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 421. Nevada does not have the Statute of Gloucester as part of the common law. Worthington Motors v. Crouse, 390 P.2d 229 (Nev. 1964).

See Allison Dunham, Valuing Life Estates and Remainders, 107 Trusts & Est. 13 (1968); Frank C. Homan, Alterations by a Life Tenant or Tenant for Years as Waste, 16 Clev.-Mar. L. Rev. 220 (1967).

(n2)Footnote 422. Life tenant is liable for permissive waste. Kory v. Less, 22 S.W.2d 25 (Ark. 1929); Hooker v. Goodwin, 99 A. 1059 (Conn. 1917); Kline v. Dowling, 96 N.E. 579 (Ind. 1911); Prescott v. Grimes, 136 S.W. 206 (Ky. 1911).

Life tenant is required to exercise ordinary care for the preservation and protection of the property. Stevens v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 212 S.E.2d 792 (Ga. 1975).

(n3)Footnote 423. In re Lindhardt's Estate, 320 P.2d 357 (Mont. 1958)(life tenant must pay taxes, make ordinary repairs and pay share of extraordinary assessments); Adams v. Adams, 371 S.W.2d 637 (Ky. 1963).

Life tenant has duty of preservation and protection. Stevens v. Citizens & S. Nat'l Bank, 212 S.E.2d 792 (Ga. 1975).

(n4)Footnote 424. The statement is frequently found that the life tenant must keep the premises in as good repair as they were when the life tenancy began. Without explanation, this language would be somewhat misleading. It refers only to the ordinary repairs which are necessary to be made to preserve the property. It does not mean, for example, that if the roof has an expected durability of twenty years when the life tenant takes possession, and she occupies the premises nineteen years, during which time reroofing is not necessitated, the remainderman is entitled to charge back to her estate nineteen-twentieths of the cost of reroofing, if he has to make such repair soon after the termination of the life tenancy. She is not expected to make repairs until the necessity of doing so arises, and the remainderman may not collect from her estate the cost of repairs made after the termination of her life tenancy which were not, in the usual course of such matters, necessitated during her occupancy. In re Stout's Estate, 50 P.2d 768 (Or. 1935).

(n5)Footnote 425. Remainderman, not life tenant, entitled to increase in value and income from securities accruing subsequent to life tenant's death. Gay v. Kernan Hosp. for Crippled Children, 184 A.2d 707 (Md. 1962).

(n6)Footnote 426. In re Victorian, 219 N.Y.S. 619 (1927); In re Mills' Estate, 266 N.Y.S. 478 (1933).

(n7)Footnote 427. Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950); Kline v. Dowling, 96 N.E. 579 (Ind. 1911); Hamilton v. Hamilton, 115 N.W. 1012 (Iowa 1908); Jones v. Harsha, reh'g denied, 196 N.W. 624 (Mich. 1923); Weller v. Searcy, 123 S.W.2d 73 (Mo. 1938); Burlington County Trust Co. v. Kingsland, 86 A.2d 815 (N.J. Super. 1952); In re Edgar's Estate, 282 N.Y.S. 795 (1935); Middleton v. Rigsbee, 102 S.E. 780 (N.C. 1920); In re Stout's Estate, 50 P.2d 768 (Or. 1935).

(n8)Footnote 428. Callwood v. Virgin Islands Nat'l Bank, 121 F. Supp. 379 (D.V.I. 1954); Staples v. Pearson, 159 So. 488 (Ala. 1935); Love v. McDonald, 148 S.W.2d 170 (Ark. 1941); Frazier v. Hanes, 249 S.W.2d 842 (Ark. 1952); Coppens v. Coppens, 70 N.E.2d 54 (Ill. 1946); Thelen v. Hupe, 72 N.E.2d 735 (Ill. 1947); Sullivan v. Bland, 284 S.W. 410 (Ky. 1926); German v. Frey Planing Mill Co., 77 S.W.2d 414 (Ky. 1934); Cannon v. Carr, 168 S.W.2d 21 (Ky. 1943); Stewart v. Stewart's Estate, 94 A.2d 912 (Me. 1953); Rendahl v. Hall, 200 N.W. 744 (Minn. 1924); Beliveau v. Beliveau, 14 N.W. 2d (Minn. 1944); Browning v. Browning, 76 N.W.2d 100 (Minn. 1956); Brown v. Jones, 50 So. 2d 227 (Miss. 1951); Martin v. Eslick, 90 So. 2d 635 (Miss. 1956), corrected, 92 So. 2d 244 (Miss. 1957); Witcher v. Hanley, 253 S.W. 1002 (Mo. 1923); Tichenor v. Mechanics & Metals Nat'l Bank, 125 A. 323 (N.J. Eq. 1924); Savings Inv. & Trust Co. v. Little, 39 A.2d 392 (N.J. Eq. 1944); Kruse v. Meissner, 40 A.2d 777 (N.J. Eq. 1945); Peerless Candy Co. v. Kessler, 205 N.Y.S. 884 (1924); In re Merritt's Estate, 46 N.Y.S.2d 497 (1944); In re Bowers' Will, 48 N.Y.S.2d 934 (1950); In re Ramsey's Estate, 98 N.Y.S.2d 918 (1947); In re John's Will, 75 N.Y.S.2d 693 (1947); In re Stout's Estate, 50 P.2d 768 (Or. 1935); McDavid v. McDavid, 197 S.E. 204 (S.C. 1938); Richardson v. McCloskey, 276 S.W. 680 (Tex. Comm. App. 1925); Sargeant v. Sargeant, 15 S.W.2d 589 (Tex. 1929); In re Brook's Estate, 265 P.2d 833 (Wash. 1954); Nixon v. Nixon, 199 N.W. 50 (Wis. 1924).

But see Enslein v. Enslein, 82 N.E.2d 555 (Ohio 1948), denying to a remainderman recompense against life tenant for payment of bills incurred by life tenant for repairs, to the extent that the freehold was benefitted by the repairs.

(n9)Footnote 429. Lansdowne v. Lansdowne, 1 Jac. & W. 522, 37 Eng. Rep. 467 (1820).

(n10)Footnote 430. 52 Henry 3, ch. 24.

(n11)Footnote 431. Callwood v. Virgin Islands Nat'l Bank, 221 F.2d 770 (3d Cir. 1955); In re Daily's Estate, 159 P.2d 327 (Mont. 1945).

(n12)Footnote 432. In re Stein's Will, 91 N.Y.S.2d 158 (1949); In re Furry's Will, 92 N.Y.S.2d 349 (1949); Collett v. Collett, 217 S.W.2d 60 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948).

(n13)Footnote 433. Commissioner of Internal Revenue v. Saltonstall, 124 F.2d 110 (1st Cir. 1941); In re Kaplan's Will, 88 N.Y.S.2d 851 (1949).

(n14)Footnote 434. 7 Ves. 137, 32 Eng. Rep. 56 (1802).

(n15)Footnote 435. No depreciation reserve for buildings. Nelligan v. Long, 70 N.E.2d 175 (Mass. 1946); In re Lee's Estate, 9 N.W.2d 245 (Minn. 1943); In re Roth's Estate, 52 A.2d 811 (N.J. Eq. 1947); In re Edgar's Estate, 282 N.Y.S. 795 (1935); In re McCullough's Will, 154 N.Y.S.2d 517 (1956).

(n16)Footnote 436. Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950).

(n17)Footnote 437. Dillard v. Gill, 47 So. 2d 203 (Ala. 1950); Cannon v. Carr, 168 S.W.2d 21 (Ky. 1943); Rendahl v. Hall, 200 N.W. 744 (Minn. 1924); In re Roth's Estate, 52 A.2d 811 (N.J. Eq. 1947); In re Ramsey's Estate, 98 N.Y.S.2d 918 (1950).

(n18)Footnote 438. Grimm v. Grimm, 113 S.E. 91 (Ga. 1922); Reams v. Henney, 97 N.E.2d 37 (Ohio App. 1950).

(n19)Footnote 439. In re Dolch's Estate, 24 N.W.2d 447 (Iowa 1946); Prescott v. Grimes, 136 S.W. 206 (Ky. 1911); Beliveau v. Beliveau, 14 N.W.2d 360 (Minn. 1944); Clemence v. Steere, 1 R.I. 272 (1850); Greene v. Greene, 35 A. 1042 (R.I. 1896).

(n20)Footnote 440. Callwood v. Virgin Islands Nat'l Bank, 121 F. Supp. 379 (D.V.I. 1954); Prescott v. Grimes, 136 S.W. 206 (Ky. 1911); R.C. Bowen Estate v. Continental Trailways, 256 S.W.2d 71 (Tex. 1953).

(n21)Footnote 441. Wall v. Hinds, 70 Mass. (4 Gray) 256 (1855); Miles v. Miles, 32 N.H. 147 (1855); Kearney v. Kearney, 17 N.J. Eq. 504 (1864); Harder v. Harder, 26 Barb. 409 (N.Y. 1858); Harvey v. Harvey, 41 Vt. 373 (1868); Brough v. Higgins, 2 Gratt. 408 (Va. 1846).

(n22)Footnote 442. In re Ringle's Estate, 242 N.W. 908 (Mich. 1932); In re Matthews' Estate, 245 N.W. 122 (Wis. 1933).

(n23)Footnote 443. Sherrill v. Connor, 12 S.E. 588 (N.C. 1890).

(n24)Footnote 444. Pollard v. Shaaffer, 1 U.S. (1 Dall.) 210 (1787).

(n25)Footnote 445. Peerless Candy Co. v. Kessler, 205 N.Y.S. 884 (1924); Rippel v. Rippel, 82 N.E.2d 140 (Ohio 1948).

(n26)Footnote 446. Dillard v. Gill, 47 So. 2d 203 (Ala. 1950); Hanley v. Wadleigh, 186 A. 505 (N.H. 1936).

(n27)Footnote 447. Troy v. Protestant Episcopal Church, 56 So. 982 (Ala. 1911); Wilson v. White, 33 N.E. 361 (Ind. 1893); Kline v. Dowling, 96 N.E. 579 (Ind. 1911); Prescott v. Grimes, 136 S.W. 206 (Ky. 1911); St. Paul Trust Co. v. Mintzer, 67 N.W. 657 (Minn. 1896); Fuller v. Devolld, 128 S.W. 1011 (Mo. App. 1910); Jacobs v. Steinbrink, 149 N.Y.S. 337 (1914); Greene v. Greene, 35 A. 1042 (R.I. 1896); In re Niland's Estate, 143 N.W. 170 (Wis. 1913).

(n28)Footnote 448. Brown v. Jones, 50 So. 2d 227 (Miss. 1951)(life tenant has duty to repair, where there is sufficient income after paying taxes); In re Stout's Estate, 50 P.2d 768 (Or. 1935).

(n29)Footnote 449. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 281; Coke on Littleton, §§ 53a, 53b.

Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950); Hooker v. Goodwin, 99 A. 1059 (Conn. 1917); Miller v. Shields, 55 Ind. 71 (1876); Parish v. Camplin, 37 N.E. 607 (Ind. 1894); Wilson v. Edmonds, 24 N.H. 517 (1852); Carter v. Youngs, 42 N.Y. Sup. Ct. 418; In re Williams' Estate, 266 N.Y.S. 422 (1933); Old Nat'l Bank v. Swearingen, 72 S.W.2d 545 (Tenn. 1934); Nixon v. Nixon, 199 N.W. 50 (Wis. 1924).

(n30)Footnote 450. Enslein v. Enslein, 82 N.E.2d 555 (Ohio 1948).

(n31)Footnote 451. Callwood v. Virgin Islands Nat'l Bank, 221 F.2d 770 (3d Cir. 1955).

(n32)Footnote 452. Van Bibber v. Williamson, 37 F. 756 (C.C. Ohio 1889); Grant v. Rose, 24 F.2d 115 (D.C. Ga. 1928); Sumner v. Bingham, 98 So. 294 (Ala. 1923); Smith & Shoptaw v. Stanton, 60 S.W.2d 183 (Ark. 1933); Dickey v. Stevens, 184 S.W.2d 955 (Ark 1945); Frazier v. Hanes, 249 S.W.2d 842 (Ark. 1952); Ingram v. Seaman, 267 S.W.2d 6 (Ark. 1954); Taylor v. Kemp, 12 S.E. 296 (Ga. 1890); Mid-state Homes, Inc. v. Johnson, 128 S.E.2d 197 (Ga. 1962); Kline v. Dowling, 96 N.E. 579 (Ind. 1911); Merrell v. Garver, 101 N.E. 152 (Ind. App. 1913); Shelangowski v. Schrack, 143 N.W. 1081 (Iowa 1913); Sparks v. Ball, 16 S.W. 272 (Ky. 1891); Henry v. Brown, 34 S.W. 710 (Ky. 1896); Frederick v. Frederick, 102 S.W. 858 (Ky. 1907); Bigstaff v. Bigstaff, 176 S.W. 1003 (Ky. 1915); Porter v. Osmun, 97 N.W. 756, 98 N.W. 859 (1904); Rendahl v. Hall, 200 N.W. 744, 940 (Minn. 1924); McDowell v. Arnold, 75 So. 2d 276 (Miss. 1954); Missouri Central Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Eveler, 141 S.W. 877 (Mo. 1911); Annable v. Ricedorff, 299 N.W. 373 (Neb. 1941); Chabon v. Lazarus, 87 A.2d 435 (N.J. Super. 1952)(an agreement between the life tenant and his lessee that articles affixed to the land shall remain personalty, they not being trade fixtures, is not binding on the remainderman); In re Jackson's Will, 239 N.Y.S. 362 (1929); Sands v. Kissane, 121 N.Y.S.2d 634 (1953); Pritchard v. Williams, 101 S.E. 85 (N.C. 1919); Harriett v. Harriett, 106 S.E. 221 (N.C. 1921); Hall v. Hall, 15 S.E.2d 273 (N.C. 1941); Burns v. Parker, 137 S.W. 705 (Tex. Civ. App. 1911); Richmond v. Sims, 144 S.W. 1142 (Tex. Civ. App. 1912); Richardson v. McCloskey, 261 S.W. 801 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Collett v. Collett, 217 S.W.2d 60 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948); Stahl v. Schwarz, 142 P. 651 (Wash. 1914); In re Brooks' Estate, 265 P.2d 833 (Wash. 1954)(a grantee or devisee who accepts benefits of life estate must assume burden or expense of repairs and cannot recover from remainderman for permanent improvements); Jones v. Shufflin, 31 S.E. 975 (W. Va. 1898).

(n33)Footnote 453. Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950); Gray v. Gray, 139 S.W. 838 (Ky. 1911); Missouri Cent. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Eveler, 141 S.W. 877 (Mo. 1911); Johnson v. Hendrickson, 24 N.W.2d 914 (S.D. 1946); In re Brooks' Estate, 265 P.2d 833 (Wash. 1954).

But it has been held that one determined to have only a life estate per autre vie be allowed compensation for permanent improvements under the betterment act. Hutchison v. Sheppard, 290 S.W.2d 843 (Ark. 1956).

> There are two important reasons for this rule, first, to prevent the life tenant from consuming the interest of the remainderman by making improvements that the remainderman could not pay, or that he did not desire; second, the improvements are made for the immediate benefit of the life tenant and he usually makes them without reference to the wishes of the remainderman.

Caldwell v. Jacob, 22 S.W. 436, modified, 27 S.W. 86 (Ky. 1893); Rippel v. Rippel, 82 N.E.2d 140 (Ohio. 1948). See also Gray v. Clement, 246 S.W. 940 (Mo. 1922).

(n34)Footnote 454. Combes v. Cadmus, 36 N.J. Eq. 382 (1883); Schulting v. Schulting, 3 A. 526 (N.J. 1886); In re Hale's Estate, 18 P.2d 808 (Or. 1933).

(n35)Footnote 455. Parish v. Camplin, 37 N.E. 607 (Ind. 1894).

(n36)Footnote 456. Suydam v. Jackson, 54 N.Y. 450 (1873).

(n37)Footnote 457. Miller v. Shields, 55 Ind. 71 (1876); Kearney v. Kearney, 17 N.J. Eq. 59, 504 (1864); Rogers v. Atlantic, Gulf & Pac. Co., 107 N.E. 661 (N.Y. 1915); Sampson v. Grogan, 42 A. 712 (R.I. 1899).

(n38)Footnote 458. Brough v. Higgins, 2 Gratt. (Va.) 408 (1846).

(n39)Footnote 459. In re Roth's Estate, 52 A.2d 811 (N.J. 1947).

Life tenant's fire insurance covers only his own interest, not that of remainderman. Honeyman v. Heins, 268 N.E.2d 907 (Ill. App. 1971).

(n40)Footnote 460. Belfield v. Findlay, 60 N.E.2d 403 (Ill. 1945); McDowell v. Arnold, 75 So. 2d 276 (Miss. 1954); Burnett v. Quell, 202 S.W.2d 97 (Mo. App. 1947); In re Daily's Estate, 159 P.2d 327 (Mont. 1945).

(n41)Footnote 461. Jacobs v. Steinbrink, 149 N.Y.S. 337 (1914).

(n42)Footnote 462. Hagan v. Varney, 35 N.E. 219 (Ill. 1893); Sparks v. Ball, 16 S.W. 272 (Ky. 1891); Smalley v. Isaacson, 42 N.W. 352 (Minn. 1889); Pritchard v. Williams, 101 S.E. 85 (N.C. 1919); Harriett v. Harriett, 106 S.E. 221 (N.C. 1921); Falck v. Marsh, 61 N.W. 287 (Wis. 1894).

(n43)Footnote 463. Hamilton v. Kinnebrew, 131 S.E. 470 (Ga. 1926); Leininger v. Reichle, 148 N.E. 384 (Ill. 1925); Jones v. Harsha, 196 N.W. 624 (Mich. 1923); Rendahl v. Hall, 200 N.W. 744 (Minn. 1924); O'Donnell v. Mathews, 284 S.W. 204 (Mo. App. 1926); Peerless Candy Co. v. Kessler, 205 N.Y.S. 884 (1924); Enslein v. Enslein, 82 N.E.2d 555 (Ohio App. 1948); Cagle v. Schaefer, 104 S.E. 321 (1920); Ely v. Moore, 297 S.W. 795 (Tex. 1927), modified, 11 S.W.2d 294 (1928).

(n44)Footnote 464. Peerless Candy Co. v. Kessler, 205 N.Y.S. 884 (1924).

(n45)Footnote 465. Gray v. Gray, 139 S.W. 838 (Ky. 1911); Harriett v. Harriett, 106 S.E. 221 (N.C. 1921).

(n46)Footnote 466. Estey v. Commerce Trust Co., 64 S.W.2d 608 (Mo. 1933); In re Whitney, 136 N.Y.S. 633 (1912).

Annotation Duty as between life tenant and remainderman as respects payments of improvement assessments, 10 A.L.R.3d 1309 (1966).

(n47)Footnote 467. Leonard v. Williams, 295 S.W. 408 (Ky. 1927).

A life tenant's false assumption that the remainder interest of his subsequently deceased son was a vested one, whereas in fact it was only a contingent one which eventually failed, cannot avail to create a claim in favor of the life tenant against the reversion for new and original improvements made by the life tenant for the benefit of his son. Sumner v. Bingham, 98 So. 294 (Ala. 1923).

A joint owner of land who improves it believing it all to belong to him, will, where the property is indivisible, and a sale must be made for division, be adjudged out of the price the amount which his improvements added to the price of the property. Ratterman v. Apperson, 133 S.W. 1005 (Ky. 1911).

> It is the rule in this state that a life tenant, even though he may believe in good faith that he is the owner of the fee, is not entitled to a lien as against the remaindermen for the enhancement of the property by reason of his improvements, and even a purchaser from the life tenant, though honestly believing he acquired the fee, is entitled to no greater rights than the life tenant had.

Hager v. Connolly, 263 S.W. 723 (Ky. 1924).

(n48)Footnote 468. Harper v. Durden, 170 S.E. 45 (Ga. 1933); O'Donnell v. Mathews, 284 S.W. 204 (Mo. App. 1926); Harriett v. Harriett, 106 S.E. 221 (1921); Barrett v. Stradl, 41 N.W. 439 (1889).

(n49)Footnote 469. Peerless Candy Co. v. Kessler, 205 N.Y.S. 883 (1924); Middleton v. Rigsbee, 102 S.E. 780 (N.C. 1920).

(n50)Footnote 470. Cagle v. Schaefer, 104 S.E. 321 (S.C. 1920).

(n51)Footnote 471. Smith v. Richey, 215 S.W. 429 (Ky. 1919); Pritchard v. Williams, 96 S.E. 733 (N.C. 1918), reh'g denied, 101 S.E. 85 (N.C. 1919); Harriett v. Harriett, 106 S.E. 221 (N.C. 1921).

(n52)Footnote 472. Frazier v. Hanes, 249 S.W.2d 842 (Ark. 1952); Hall v. Hall, 15 S.E.2d 273 (N.C. 1941).

(n53)Footnote 473. Ingram v. Seaman, 267 S.W.2d 6 (Ark. 1954); Perry v. Rye, 267 S.W.2d 507 (Ark. 1954); Lovett v. Stone, 79 S.E.2d 479 (N.C. 1954).

(n54)Footnote 474. In re Collins' Will, 61 N.Y.S.2d 488 (1946). To the same effect, see In re Oberly's Estate, 39 Berks 207 (Pa.).

(n55)Footnote 475. In re Buckley's Estate, 150 N.Y.S.2d 337 (1956).

(n56)Footnote 476. Haywood v. Briggs, 41 S.E.2d 289 (N.C. 1947).

Contra, Ray v. Young, 142 N.W. 393 (Iowa 1913).

(n57)Footnote 477. Stewart v. Matheny, 5 So. 387 (Miss. 1888); Jones v. Shufflin, 31 S.E. 975 (W. Va. 1898).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.10

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.10 The Life Tenant's Duties Relating to Discharge of Encumbrances on the Property.

The general rule with respect to encumbrances is that the life tenant must pay the interest but not the principal of liens created by others against the real estate. n478 The life tenant must make ordinary repairs which a prudent person would make under the circumstances. n479

The concept of the life tenant as a fiduciary for the reversioner or remainderman in discharging an encumbrance has not crystallized as it has in the case of cotenants. Numerous cases indicate the existence of some sort of such relationship by considering that the discharge of a lien by the life tenant creates a problem of contribution.

A life tenant is under no obligation to pay off encumbrances existing against the property at the time the life estate is created, but is bound to pay the interest on encumbrances during the continuance of his estate, n480 at least so far as the income yielded by the property is sufficient to meet such interest. n481 Generally, a life tenant in possession and enjoying the fruits of the property subject to the encumbrance is, within the limit of produced revenue, obligated to pay the interest. n482 The encumbrancer cannot maintain an action against the life tenant to recover such interest, as it is not a personal debt, but one that the tenant must pay to save the estate for the life tenant's own enjoyment. n483

So the life tenant who discharges the encumbrance against the fee in order to preserve the estate is entitled to reimbursement or contribution from the reversioner or remainderman at least to the extent of the value of the interest of such reversioner or remainderman. n484 The life tenant is entitled to contribution from the remainderman in an amount equal to the mortgage lien less the present worth of the liability to pay interest during life expectancy. n485 The proportionate amount of encumbrance to be paid by the life tenant and the remainderman is ascertained by taking the probable length of life of the tenant as shown by the mortuary table, then the present value of the amount of interest on the encumbrance he would probably have paid during the rest of the life, if the encumbrance had continued so long. The difference between the present value of such interest payment and the amount of the encumbrance would be the share to be paid by the remainderman. n486 Both the life estate and the reversion are proportionately liable for the payment of the encumbrance, and, as between themselves, neither the life tenant nor the reversioner has a right to throw the whole burden upon the other. The tenant for life is to contribute in proportion to the benefit derived from the liquidation of the debt and the consequent cessation of annual payments of interest, taxes, etc., during life, which of course will depend upon age and the computation of the value of life estate. n487 Where the principal is apportioned, the life tenant is bound to pay according to the life tenants interest so long as the estate continues. n488

The question of apportionment of the amount, paid by the life tenant or remainderman to discharge liens arises only when the liens are created by persons other than the life tenant or remainderman. n489 Where the principal of such encumbrance or any part thereof falls due and is paid by the remainderman, the life tenant is liable "to have his estate subjected to a lien for his proportionate part of the sum so paid." n490 Remaindermen who permit a foreclosure of a mortgage discharged by the life tenant without asserting their right to contribute their share of the cost of purchasing the encumbrance waive their right to do so. n491

Where the life tenant's failure to pay the interest on a mortgage debt results in a foreclosure of the mortgage and a sale of the premises and he purchases at such sale, the life tenant occupies to the remainderman the relation that would have been occupied if the interest had been paid, and the same is true where the mortgagee purchased at the sale and then conveyed the property to the life tenant, although there was no agreement between them for such conveyance. n492

If the life tenant pays off the encumbrance, the life tenant is prima facie a creditor of the estate for the amount paid less interest the life tenant would have had to pay during the continuance of the estate. n493 By paying off the encumbrance the life tenant is subrogated to the rights of the encumbrancer or acquires a lien on the reversionary interest. n494 The principal of such an encumbrance, however, is not a debt with payment of which the remainderman can charge the life tenant. n495

Either the life tenant or the remainderman may redeem from a prior encumbrance and, their equities being equal, each is entitled to exoneration from the other in proportion to the value of their respective interests. n496 As far as the mortgage of the entire property is concerned, both the estate for life and the estate in remainder are affected equally by foreclosure.

Any surplus remaining after payment of the mortgage debt is proratable between the life tenant and the remaindermen in proportion to their respective interests in the property and payable, in accordance with their agreement in the matter, either on a principal and interest basis or in lump sums. n497 The life tenant does not acquire a paramount title, adverse to the remainderman, by purchasing at a mortgage foreclosure sale, made as a result of the life tenant's own default in the payment of interest, n498 even though the life tenant may, when acting in good faith, acquire such a title by purchasing at a mortgage foreclosure sale made as a result of the remainderman's default in the payment of principal. n499 The title acquired by the life tenant in consequence of the purchase at a sale made to satisfy an encumbrance inures to the benefit of the life tenant and of the remainderman jointly, provided the latter within a reasonable time makes contribution to the amount of the purchase price paid by the life tenant. n500

Disseisin of the life tenant and the remainderman under lien foreclosure proceedings will go for naught when the life tenant subsequently procures a deed from the purchaser at the foreclosure sale, since the life tenant by so doing will restore both the life estate and the estate in remainder. n501 Where the life tenant has power to sell the remainder, the grantee can convey a life estate to one person and the remainder to another, but cannot be rid of the liens of the judgment creditors on the life estate except by paying the judgment debts. n502

It has been held that a life tenant is liable for interest on a lien debt on the corpus of an estate in remainder. n503 Other cases consider that the life tenant in paying off a lien for which the life tenant alone is not primarily liable is presumed to have done so for the life tenant's own benefit and may preserve and enforce the lien to the extent not liable for the principal payment thereof. n504 The life tenant is chargeable with the proportionate part of any improvements made by the executor. n505

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: life tenant! w/15 dut! w/15 encumberance!

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 478. Garrett v. Snowden, 145 So. 493 (Ala. 1933); Barker v. Barker, 31 So. 2d 357 (Ala. 1947); In re Lee, 213 N.W. 736 (Minn. 1927); Browning v. Browning, 76 N.W.2d 100 (Minn. 1956).

If the mortgage exists at the creation of the life estate and does not fall due until after its termination, the life tenant pays interest only. Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950); Oldham v. Noble, 66 N.E.2d 614 (Ind. App. 1946); In re Myers' Estate, 12 N.W.2d 211 (Iowa 1943).

Life tenant need only pay interest, not principal, on a prior mortgage, but if he pays the principal, he is entitled to proper contribution from the remaindermen. King v. Rainbolt, 515 P.2d 228 (Okla. 1973).

(n2)Footnote 479. Ferguson v. Rochford, 79 A. 177 (Conn. 1911); Hooker v. Goodwin, 99 A. 1059 (Conn. 1917); Holzhauser v. Iowa State Tax Comm'n, 62 N.W.2d 229 (Iowa 1953); Woolston v. Pullen, 102 A. 461 (N.J. Eq. 1917); Asmus v. Asmus, 194 A. 884 (N.J. Eq. 1937); Hancox v. Meeker, 95 N.Y. 528 (1884); In re Stout's Estate, 50 P.2d 768 (Or. 1935).

(n3)Footnote 480. Abney v. Abney, 62 So. 64 (Ala. 1913); Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950); Robinson v. Tubbs, 344 P.2d 1080 (Colo. 1959) (life tenant's interest is subject to liens, taxes and encumbrances); Wilson v. White, 33 N.E. 361 (Ind. 1893); Oldham v. Noble, 66 N.E.2d 614 (Ind. App. 1946); Hager v. Connolly, 263 S.W. 723 (Ky. 1924); Stavros v. Bradley, 232 S.W.2d 1004 (Ky. 1950); Porter v. Porter, 128 N.E. 795 (Mass. 1950); Damm v. Damm, 67 N.W. 984 (Mich. 1896); Bowen v. Brogan, 77 N.W. 942 (Mich. 1899); Stroh v. O'Hearn, 142 N.W. 865 (Mich. 1913); Upton v. Merriman, 133 N.W. 977 (Minn. 1911); In re Lee, 213 N.W. 736 (Minn. 1927); Faulkenburg v. Windorf, 259 N.W. 802 (Minn. 1955); Witcher v. Hanley, 253 S.W. 1002 (Mo. 1923); Fuller v. Devolld, 128 S.W. 1011 (Mo. App. 1910); Tindall v. Peterson, 98 N.W. 688, modified, 99 N.W. 659 (Neb. 1904); Draper v. Clayton, 127 N.W. 369 (Neb. 1910); Reeves v. Huckins, 117 A. 263 (N.H. 1922); Hanley v. Wadleigh, 186 A. 505 (N.H. 1936); Mosely v. Marshall, 27 Barb. 42 (N.Y. 1858); Bonhoff v. Wiehorst, 108 N.Y.S. 437 (1908); Pfaff v. Kehrer, 200 N.Y.S. 113 (1923); In re Britz' Estate, 82 N.Y.S.2d 792 (1948); Smith v. Barham, 17 N.C. 420 (1833); Mendenhall v. Jackson, 110 A. 799 (Pa. 1920); Stroud v. McDowell, 179 A. 772 (Pa. Super. Ct. 1935); Doane v. Doane, 46 Vt. 485 (1874); Livesay v. Boyd, 180 S.E. 158 (Va. 1935).

Cf., Dorn v. Fidelity & Columbia Trust Co., 263 S.W. 681 (Ky. 1924).

But holding that it is the responsibility of the life tenant to pay mortgage falling due during the lifetime. Northern Trust Co. v. Winston, 336 N.E.2d 543 (Ill. App. 1975).

See Restatement, Property, § 129.

(n4)Footnote 481. Coughlin v. Kennedy, 28 A.2d 417 (N.J. Eq. 1942); Miller v. Marriner, 121 S.E. 770 (N.C. 1924). See Penrose v. United States, 18 F. Supp. 413 (E.D. Pa. 1937).

(n5)Footnote 482. In re Myers' Estate, 12 N.W.2d 211 (Iowa 1943); Beliveau v. Beliveau, 14 N.W.2d 360 (Minn. 1944); Johnston v. Dickerson, 127 S.W.2d 64 (Mo. App. 1939); In re Merritt's Estate, 46 N.Y.S.2d 497 (1944).

Life tenant's duty as to mortgage payments limited to profit or rental value of the land. In re Britz' Estate, 82 N.Y.S.2d 792 (1948); Tyler v. Bier, 172 P. 112 (Or. 1918).

(n6)Footnote 483. Plympton v. Boston Dispensary, 106 Mass. 544 (1871).

(n7)Footnote 484. Troy v. Protestant Episcopal Church, 56 So. 982 (Ala. 1911); Rushton v. McLaughlin, 104 So. 824 (Ala. 1925); Huston v. Tribbetts, 49 N.E. 711 (Ill. 1898); Boue v. Kelsey, 53 Ill. App 295 (1894); Coppens v. Coppens, 70 N.E.2d 54 (Ill. 1946); Todd v. First Nat'l Bank, 190 S.W. 468 (Ky. 1917).

Liability for assessment improvements must be apportioned between life tenant and remainderman. Gaugh v. Gatewood, 380 S.W.2d 84 (Ky. 1964); Defreese v. Lake, 67 N.W. 505 (Mich. 1896); Detroit & Northern Mich. Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Oram, 167 N.W. 50 (Mich. 1918); Whitney v. Salter, 30 N.W. 755 (Minn. 1886); In re Lee, 213 N.W. 736 (Minn. 1927); Downing v. Hartshorn, 95 N.W. 801 (Neb. 1903); Tindall v. Peterson, 98 N.W. 688, modified, 99 N.W. 659 (Neb. 1904); Draper v. Clayton, 127 N.W. 369 (Neb. 1910)29 L.R.A. (NS) 153; Krause v. Naiman, 167 N.W. 207 (Neb. 1918); Bartels v. Seefus, 273 N.W. 485 (Neb. 1937); Elmora & West End Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Dancy, 155 A. 796 (N.J. 1931); Brown v. Jennings, 124 S.E. 150 (N.C. 1924); Tyler v. Bier, 172 P. 112 (Or. 1918).

See Boggs v. Boggs, 147 P.2d 116 (Cal. App. 1944); Ryder v. Ryder, 41 A. 2d 278 (N.J. 1945).

Apportionment of the principal of the mortgage that falls due during the life estate. Murphy v. May, 8 So. 2d 442 (Ala. 1942); Engel v. Swenson, 254 N.W. 2 (Minn. 1934).

(n8)Footnote 485. Engel v. Swenson, 254 N.W. 2 (Minn. 1934).

(n9)Footnote 486. Murphy v. May, 8 So. 2d 442 (Ala. 1942); Snyder v. Snyder, 6 Mich. 470 (1859); Bell v. New York, 10 Paige Ch. 49 (N.Y. 1933). See Garrett v. Snowden, 145 So. 493 (Ala. 1933).

Mode of computing proportionate liability, see Dorn v. Fidelity & Columbia Trust Co., 263 S.W. 681 (Ky. 1924); In re Lee, 213 N.W. 736 (Minn. 1924); Reeves v. Huckins, 117 A. 263 (N.H. 1922).

"The payment of the life tenant of the present worth of an annuity equal to the annual interest running during his expectancy of life represents his individual indebtedness, and the balance, after subtracting that sum from the mortgage debt, is the share which the remainderman should contribute." Draper v. Clayton, 127 N.W. 369 (Neb. 1910). See Damm v. Damm, 67 N.W. 984 (Mich. 1896); Tindall v. Peterson, 98 N.W. 688, modified, 99 N.W. 659 (1904).

(n10)Footnote 487. Daviess v. Myers, 52 Ky. (13 B. Mon.) 511 (1852); Barnes v. Boardman, 25 N.E. 623 (Mass. 1890); Phelan v. Boyian, 25 Wis. 679 (1870).

(n11)Footnote 488. Parrish v. Ross, 44 S.W. 134 (Ky. 1898).

(n12)Footnote 489. Souders v. Kitchens, 124 S.W.2d 1137 (Mo. 1939).

(n13)Footnote 490. Morrison v. Launtzhiser, 271 P.2d 301 (Kan. 1954). See Restatement, Property § 132.

(n14)Footnote 491. Abney v. Abney, 62 So. 64 (Ala. 1913).

(n15)Footnote 492. Wheeler v. Kazee, 253 S.W.2d 378 (Ky. 1952); McCall v. McCall, 123 N.W. 550 (Mich. 1909); Edwards v. Puckett, 268 S.W.2d 582 (Tenn. 1954)(so as to spouse of life tenant).

(n16)Footnote 493. Fuller v. Devolld, 128 S.W. 1011 (Mo. App. 1910).

(n17)Footnote 494. Abney v. Abney, 62 So. 64 (Ala. 1913); Murphy v. May, 8 So. 2d 442 (Ala. 1942); McDaniel v. Conlan, 204 S.W. 850 (Ark. 1918); Hawaiian Trust Co. v. Cohen, 35 Haw. 795 (1941); Jones v. Gilbert, 25 N.E. 566 (Ill. 1890); Todd v. First Nat'l Bank, 190 S.W. 468 (Ky. 1917); Stroh v. O'Hearn, 142 N.W. 865 (Mich. 1913); Whitney v. Salter, 30 N.W. 755 (Minn. 1886); Gates v. Rice, 8 S.W.2d 614 (Mo. 1928); Downing v. Hartshorn, 95 N.W. 801 (Neb. 1903); Tindall v. Peterson, 98 N.W. 688, modified, 99 N.W. 659 (Neb. 1904); Elmora & West End Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Dancy, 155 A. 796 (N.J. 1931); Coughlin v. Kennedy, 28 A.2d 417 (N.J. 1942); Bonhoff v. Wiehorst, 108 N.Y.S. 437 (1908); Warner v. York, 1 Ohio C.C. (N.S.) 73 (1918); Tyler v. Bier, 172 P. 112 (Or. 1918); Wilder v. Wilder, 53 A. 1072 (Vt. 1903).

(n18)Footnote 495. Kreuscher v. Roth, 188 N.W. 996 (Minn. 1922); Collins v. McKenna, 189 N.Y.S. 433 (1921); Miller v. Marriner, 121 S.E. 770 (N.C. 1924). See Boggs v. Boggs, 147 P.2d 116 (Cal. App. 1944).

"A tenant for life, paying a charge on an estate, is prima facie a creditor, ... and the burden of proof is on those who assert that in paying off the charge he intended to exonerate the estate." In re Marshall's Estate, 122 A. 289 (Pa. 1923).

(n19)Footnote 496. Draper v. Sewell, 82 So. 2d 303 (Ala. 1955); Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950); Brown v. Jennings, 124 S.E. 150 (N.C. 1924).

A life tenant who discharges an encumbrance on the property for the purpose of preventing the property's sale is entitled to be substituted to the encumbrancer's lien and to enforce the lien by sale of the property. Lindenberger v. Cornell, 229 S.W. 54 (Ky. 1921).

(n20)Footnote 497. First Nat'l Bank v. Holbrook, 217 S.W.2d 787 (Ky. 1949); Masher v. Wright, 111 N.Y.S.2d 669 (1951)(proceeds of sale remaining after paying off mortgage debt invested with life tenant getting only the interest); Brown v. Jennings, 124 S.E. 150 (N.C. 1924)(the surplus may be paid into court, as provided by statute, when its disposition has not been determined by agreement).

(n21)Footnote 498. Kreuscher v. Roth, 188 N.W. 996 (Minn. 1922).

(n22)Footnote 499. Miller v. Marriner, 121 S.E. 770 (N.C. 1924).

(n23)Footnote 500. Ruston v. McLaughlin, 104 So. 824 (Ala. 1935); Hager v. Connolly, 263 S.W. 723 (Ky. 1924); In re Lee, 213 N.W. 736 (Minn. 1927); Witcher v. Hanley, 253 S.W. 1002 (Mo. 1923); Payne v. Foster, 135 N.Y.S.2d 819 (1954)(remainderman tendering the amount of the payment to the life tenant is entitled to an assignment, not a discharge of the mortgage).

(n24)Footnote 501. Lowry v. Lyle, 198 N.W. 245 (Mich. 1924).

(n25)Footnote 502. Roby v. Arterburn, 108 S.W.2d 873 (Ky. 1957).

(n26)Footnote 503. Mairs v. Central Trust Co., 34 S.E.2d 742 (W. Va. 1945).

(n27)Footnote 504. Marmet v. Marmet, 70 N.W.2d 301 (Neb. 1955). See Stavros v. Bradley, 232 S.W.2d 1004 (Ky. 1950), holding that a life tenant paying off mortgage being foreclosed could not collect the interest from the remainderman but the latter could not pay off the lien and force the property to be sold to satisfy the lien.

(n28)Footnote 505. In re Lindhardt's Estate, 320 P.2d 357 (Mont. 1958).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.11

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.11 The Life Tenant's Duty to Insure the Premises.

[Go To Supp]

New York charges the life tenant with the obligation of insuring the buildings. n506 But generally the life tenant is not bound to keep the buildings on the premises insured for the benefit of the remainderman unless the life tenant had agreed to do so, or unless the instrument creating the estate expressly so provides. n507 But as a general rule, the cost of insurance on buildings forming a part of the life estate should be apportioned between the life tenant and the remainderman. n508

Ordinarily, the life tenant would insure the life interest, and the remainderman would insure the remainder interest. n509 As a general rule, the life tenant and the remainderman pay insurance for their respective interests, but under some circumstances the insurance is chargeable to the life tenant. n510

It seems that the neglect of the life tenant to insure is not to be regarded as in the nature of a voluntary waste. n511 Some courts hold that where a fire insurance policy issued to a life tenant covers only the latter's interest in the building insured, the life tenant is entitled to all the proceeds in case of loss, n512 where the life tenant stands in no fiduciary relationship to the remainderman. n513 Other courts hold that if the sum collected for a loss by fire exceeds the value of the life estate, such excess should be used in rebuilding or should be paid to the remainderman. n514

Either the life tenant or the remainderman may insure the property for one's own benefit. n515 Where the property comes to the life tenant encumbered by a mortgage, the life tenant is entitled to the entire income, out of which the life tenant must pay fire insurance premiums. n516

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: life tenant! w/15 dut! w/15 insur!

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 506. In re John's Will, 75 N.Y.S.2d 693 (1947).

(n2)Footnote 507. Corder v. McDougall, 16 P.2d 740 (Cal. 1932); Almeida v. Price, 236 P.2d 823 (Cal. App. 1951); Clark v. Leverett, 126 S.E. 258 (Ga. 1924); Pool v. Pool, 283 S.W. 111 (Ky. 1926); Harrison v. Pepper, 44 N.E. 222 (Mass. 1896); Converse v. Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 53 N.E.2d 841 (Mass. 1944); Appeal of Smith, 122 N.W. 564 (Mich. 1909); Rendahl v. Hall, 200 N.W. 744 (Minn. 1924); Grace v. Reed, 108 So. 799 (Miss. 1926); Farmers' Mut. Fire & Lightning Ins. Co. v. Crowley, 190 S.W.2d 250 (Mo. App. 1945); In re Williams' Estate, 266 N.Y.S. 422 (1933); In re Laemmle's Estate, 50 N.Y.S.2d 899 (1944); Richardson v. McCloskey, 276 S.W. 680 (Tex. Comm. App. 1925); Kincheloe v. Gibson, 78 S.E. 603 (Va. 1913); Thompson v. Gearheart, 119 S.E. 67 (Va. 1923); Lynch v. Johnson, 84 S.E.2d 419 (Va. 1954).

Contra, Commercial Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Erwin, 100 N.Y.S.2d 200 (1950).

(n3)Footnote 508. In re Daily's Estate, 159 P.2d 327 (Mont. 1945); In re Phelps' Estate, 195 N.Y.S. 840 (1937).

If the life tenant insures the entire fee against fire he must rebuild or account to the remainderman since he takes only a life estate in the proceeds. Clark v. Leverett, 126 S.E. 258 (Ga. 1924); Welsh v. London Assur. Corp., 25 A. 142 (Pa. 1892); Sampson v. Grogan, 42 A. 712 (R.I. 1899); Green v. Green, 27 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1897). But the life tenant may insure for himself alone. Miller v. Gold Beach Packing Co., 282 P. 764 (Or. 1929); In re Gorman's Estate, 184 A. 86 (Pa. 1936).

(n4)Footnote 509. Legge v. Canty, 4 A.2d 465 (Md. 1939); Converse v. Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 53 N.E.2d 841 (Mass. 1944).

Where a life tenant is required to insure, failure so to do does not forfeit the life tenancy but does make the tenant liable to the remainderman for the loss. Ramsey v. Cooper, 553 F.2d 237 (1st Cir. 1977).

(n5)Footnote 510. Rogers v. Genung, 76 A. 233 (N.J. 1910); In re Warfel's Estate, 22 Erie 190 (Pa.). See In re Mills' Estate, 266 N.Y.S. 478 (1933); Adams v. Adams, 371 S.W.2d 637 (Ky. 1963).

(n6)Footnote 511. Harrison v. Pepper, 44 N.E. 222 (Mass. 1896).

(n7)Footnote 512. Jackson v. Jackson, 201 S.W.2d 218 (Ark. 1967); Corder v. McDougall, 16 P.2d 740 (Cal. 1932); Spalding v. Miller, 45 S.W. 462 (Ky. 1898); Blanchard v. Kingston, 193 N.W. 241 (Mich. 1923); Sampson v. Grogan, 42 A. 712 (R.I. 1899); Thompson v. Gearheart, 119 S.E. 67 (Va. 1923); Lynch v. Johnson, 84 S.E.2d 419 (Va. 1954).

(n8)Footnote 513. In re Gorman's Estate, 184 A. 86 (Pa. 1936).

(n9)Footnote 514. Crisp County Lumber Co. v. Bridges, 200 S.E. 777 (Ga. 1939); Green v. Green, 27 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1897). See Clark v. Leverett, 126 S.E. 258 (Ga. 1924).

But see In re Gorman's Estate, 184 A. 86 (Pa. 1936)(fact that the life tenant's insurance represents the full value of the property is not generally regarded as sufficient, of itself, to create an interest in the remainderman).

(n10)Footnote 515. Clark v. Leverett, 126 S.E. 258 (Ga. 1924); Citizens Ins. Co. v. Railey, 77 S.W.2d 420 (Ky. 1934); Getchell v. Mercantile & Mfrs. Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 83 A. 801 (Me. 1912); Blanchard v. Kingston, 193 N.W. 241 (Mich. 1923); McLevis v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co., 206 N.W. 940 (Minn. 1926); King v. King, 143 So. 422 (Miss. 1932); Millard v. Beaumont, 185 S.W. 547 (Mo. 1916); Houck v. American Eagle Fire Ins. Co., 151 S.E. 628 (N.C. 1930); Crook v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 178 S.E. 254 (S.C. 1935).

(n11)Footnote 516. Livesay v. Boyd, 180 S.E. 158 (Va. 1935). But see Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950)(holding a remainderman not entitled to reimbursement from life tenant for insurance premiums and taxes paid as part of mortgage payments, being a gift to life tenant).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE *

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 19.12

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 19.12 The Life Tenant's Duty to Pay Taxes.

It is a commonly accepted obligation of the life tenant to pay taxes assessed against the real estate during the duration of the life estate. n517 Even though in most states, for the purpose of the state's right to proceed against the property, the payment of taxes is as much the duty of the remainderman as it is the duty of the life tenant, n518 as between the life tenant and the remainderman, the payment of ordinary annual taxes is, as a general rule which is sometimes given statutory utterance, n519 and obligation which rests on the life tenant, n520 unless the remainderman is entitled to present possession of the property, n521 at least, when the creator of the life estate did not provide otherwise. n522 The duty of the life tenant to preserve the property for the remainderman includes the duty to redeem from a tax sale, even though the taxes were charged against the land prior to the creation of the life tenancy, n523 when there is no contract between the life tenant and the remainderman to the contrary, n524 when the property is productive, n525 and when the taxes can be met by applying income which the property yields. n526 In the light of this rule, a valid tax title to the property cannot be acquired adversely to the remainderman, either by the life tenant, n527 one acting for the life tenant, n528 one claiming under the life tenant n529 or one becoming the purchaser of the life tenant's rights at a forced sale. n530 The holder of a particular estate charged with the duty of paying taxes redeems from a tax sale for the benefit of remaindermen. n531 A life tenant under obligation to pay taxes is precluded from buying in a tax title for the life tenant's own advantage. n532

So in jurisdictions where the statute makes it the duty of the life tenant to pay taxes, a tax deed procured by the life tenant inures to the benefit of the remainderman. n533 A remainderman who pays the taxes upon the life tenant's failure to do so is entitled to a lien on the life estate for reimbursement n534 or to the appointment of a receiver to collect the rents, issues and profits and apply them to taxes in arrears, to taxes to become due and to the debt owing the remainderman by the life tenant as a result of the former's actual payment of taxes. n535 The life tenant's liability for taxes, however, does not extend to taxes which, although assessed prior to death, do not become due and payable until subsequently thereto. n536

The obligation of the life tenant to pay delinquent taxes and all special assessments thereon applies only to taxes accruing during the term of possession. n537 However, this general rule has been held not to apply where the real estate in question was the result of a foreclosure of a mortgage which produced no income and was not a part of the estate of the testator which was left to the life tenant. n538 It would seem that generally the life tenant is liable only for a proportionate share of special assessments for streets, sidewalks or sewers, and other improvements of a permanent character. n539 However, if the improvement for which the estate is taxed will probably not outlast the tenant's life, the life tenant is liable for the whole tax thereof. n540 The life tenant's right to rent income and duty to pay taxes ends on the day of death. n541 In Georgia, the life tenant is not entitled to contribution from the remainderman on account of the payment by the former of assessments for street improvements. n542

Where the land is not productive of any income during the life tenancy, the life tenant is not bound to pay any of the ordinary taxes or any special assessments for betterments, but the remainderman or remaindermen must pay them. n543 Drainage assessments as benefiting both the life tenant and the remainderman are apportioned between them, n544 but a life tenant owes no duty to pay assessments levied before the tenancy arose. n545

In a few states the payment of taxes is the exclusive duty of the life tenant, not the remainderman. n546 In the case of special assessments, the cost must be apportioned between the life tenant, and the remainderman. n547

Under the majority rule, the life tenant has the duty to pay ordinary taxes only to the extent that the property is productive of rents and profits. n548 The minority rule requires the life tenant to pay such taxes on unproductive property. n549

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: life tenant! w/15 dut! w/15 tax!

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 517. Littlepage v. Hart, 250 F.2d 774 (D.C. Cir. 1957); Mills v. Pennington, 209 S.W.2d 281 (Ark. 1948).

Tenant who may remove improvements must pay increase in taxes caused by improvements. Lawrence v. F.W. Woolworth Co., 403 P.2d 396 (Cal. 1965).

Fonda v. Miller, 103 N.E.2d 98 (Ill. 1951); Browning v. Browning, 76 N.W.2d 100 (Minn. 1956); Tillman v. Richton Tie & Timber Co., 80 So. 2d 745 (Miss. 1955); Martin v. Eslick, 90 So. 2d 635 (1956), corrected, 92 So. 2d 244 (Miss. 1957); In re Ramsey's Estate, 98 N.Y.S.2d 918 (1950); In re Frenz' Will, 108 N.Y.S.2d 446 (1951); Cooper v. Cooper, 17 S.E.2d 655 (N.C. 1941); McGee v. Carter, 212 S.W.2d 902 (Tenn. App. 1948); Brattleboro v. Smith, 94 A.2d 407 (Vt. 1953); Richmond v. McKenny, 73 S.E.2d 414 (Va. 1952).

Defeasible life tenant liable for taxes while in possession. Martin v. Heard, 238 S.E.2d 899 (Ga. 1977).

(n2)Footnote 518. Mathis v. Melton, 238 S.W. 806 (Mo. 1922); In re Bommer's Estate, 288 N.Y.S. 419 (1936).

A remainderman must assert his right against life tenant for waste where life tenant fails to pay taxes, otherwise laches may preclude remainderman from asserting his rights against holder of tax deed. Beasley v. Beasley, 88 N.E.2d 435 (Ill. 1949).

Only the life tenant's interest could be sold to satisfy delinquent taxes. Taylor v. Jennings, 106 S.E.2d 391 (S.C. 1958).

(n3)Footnote 519. California statute, see Newport v. Hatton, 231 P. 987 (Cal. 1924). Montana statute, see Anderson v. McClenathan, 205 P. 230 (Mont. 1922). Oklahoma statute, see Riley v. Collier, 238 P. 491 (Okla. 1924).

(n4)Footnote 520. Lone Pine Lawn Corp. v. Helvering, 121 F.2d 935 (2d Cir. 1941); Board of County Comm'rs v. Seber, 130 F.2d 663 (10th Cir. 1942); Troy v. Protestant Episcopal Church, 56 So. 982 (Ala. 1911); Jones v. Fowler, 285 S.W. 363 (Ark. 1926); Higginbotham v. Harper, 174 S.W.2d 668 (Ark. 1943); Dormer v. Walker, 69 P.2d 1049

(Colo. 1937); Hamilton v. Kinnebrew, 131 S.E. 470 (Ga. 1926); Wilson v. Linder, 123 P. 487 (Idaho 1912); Hagan v. Varney, 35 N.E. 219 (Ill. 1893); Nelson v. Davidson, 43 N.E. 361 (Ill. 1895); Huston v. Tribbetts, 49 N.E. 711 (Ill. 1898); Guhl v. Guhl, 33 N.E.2d 185 (Ill. 1941); Wilson v. White, 33 N.E. 361 (Ind. 1893); Schofield v. Green, 56 N.E.2d 506 (Ind. App. 1944); Crawford v. Meis, 99 N.W. 186 (Iowa 1904); Cedar Rapids First Congregational Church v. Terry, 107 N.W. 305 (Iowa 1906); Williams v. Williams, 202 N.W. 434 (Iowa 1925); Hucke v. Dinkel, 275 N.W. 61 (Iowa 1937); Jinkiaway v. Ford, 145 P. 885 (Kan. 1915); Prescott v. Grimes, 136 S.W. 206 (Ky. 1911); Sullivan v. Bland, 284 S.W. 410 (Ky. 1926); Atkin v. McCoy, 120 S.W.2d 1019 (Ky. 1938); Cannon v. Carr, 168 S.W.2d 21 (Ky. 1943); Gaulbaugh v. Rouse, 104 S.W. 959 (Ky. 1907); Roche v. Waters, 19 A. 535 (Md. 1890); Spring v. Hollander, 158 N.E. 791 (Mass. 1927); Jenks v. Horton, 55 N.W. 372 (Mich. 1893); Defreese v. Lake, 67 N.W. 505 (Mich. 1896); Heilwig v. Nybeck, 146 N.W. 141 (Mich. 1914); Myers v. Myers, 152 N.W. 934 (Mich. 1915); St. Paul Trust Co. v. Mintzer, 67 N.W. 657 (Minn. 1896); Kreuscher v. Roth, 188 N.W. 996 (Minn. 1922); Turner v. Edwards, 292 N.W. 257 (Minn. 1940); Beliveau v. Beliveau, 14 N.W.2d 360 (Minn. 1944); Federal Land Bank v. Newsom, 166 So. 346 (Miss. 1936); Reyburn v. Wallace, 3 S.W. 482 (Mo. 1887); Bradley v. Goff, 147 S.W. 1012 (Mo. 1912); Falvey v. Hicks, 286 S.W. 385 (Mo. 1926); Rist v. Toole County, 159 P.2d 340 (Mont. 1945); Criswell v. McKnight, 232 N.W. 586 (Neb. 1930); Annable v. Ricedorff, 299 N.W. 373 (Neb. 1941); Reeves v. Huckins, 117 A. 263 (N.H. 1922); Hanley v. Wadleigh, 186 A. 505 (N.H. 1936); Robbins v. Ducey, 27 A.2d 106 (N.H. 1942); Rogers v. Genung, 74 A. 473 (N.J. Eq. 1909); Tichenor v. Mechanics & Metals Nat'l Bank, 125 A. 323 (N.J. Eq. 1924); Asmus v. Asmus, 194 A. 884 (N.J. Eq. 1937); Rutherford Nat'l Bank v. Black, 32 A.2d 86 (N.J. Eq. 1943), holding rule does not apply where the real estate was acquired by the executors through foreclosure of a nonproductive mortgage and the property so acquired was not a part of the testator's estate at the time of his death; Matlock v. Mize, 230 P.2d 246 (N.M. 1950)(the fiduciary duty of a life tenant to remainderman is not an interest in land, but a duty equity imposes upon life tenant to preserve and protect remainderman and this duty remains an ever present obligation unaltered and undivested by issuance of a tax deed); Wise v. Wedlake, 216 N.Y.S. 699 (1926); In re Lott's Will, 296 N.Y.S. 43 (1937); In re McCarty's Estate, 285 N.Y.S. 641 (1936); In re Wells' Will, 26 N.Y.S.2d 604 (1941); In re Laemmle's Estate, 50 N.Y.S.2d 899 (1944); In re Merritt's Estate, 46 N.Y.S.2d 497 (1944); In re Stein's Will, 91 N.Y.S.2d 158 (1949); In re Kontir's Estate, 101 N.Y.S.2d 879 (1950); Foulks v. Talbott, 58 N.E.2d 790 (Ohio App. 1943); Jones v. Jackson, 246 P.2d 546 (Or. 1952); Abernathy v. Orton, 71 P. 327 (Or. 1903); Greene v. Greene, 35 A. 1042 (R.I. 1896); Industrial Trust Co. v. Wilson, 192 A. 821 (R.I. 1937); Roberts v. Roberts, 150 S.W.2d 236 (Tex. 1941); Richardson v. McCloskey, 276 S.W. 680 (Tex. Comm. App. 1925); Sheppick v. Sheppick, 138 P. 1169 (Utah 1914); Richmond v. McKenny, 73 S.E.2d 414 (Va. 1952); In re Lueft, 109 N.W. 652 (Wis. 1906); Niland v. Niland, 143 N.W. 170 (Wis. 1913); Nixon v. Nixon, 199 N.W. 50 (Wis. 1924).

Failure of life tenant to pay ordinary taxes, the interest on mortgages and on special assessments and to repair for ordinary wear and tear is waste. Holzhauser v. Iowa State Tax Comm., 62 N.W.2d 229 (Iowa 1953).

See Restatement, Property § 129; Note. Duties of Legal Life Tenants to Remaindermen in Iowa, 25 Iowa L. Rev. 113 (1939).

(n5)Footnote 521. Kelley v. Acker, 228 S.W.2d 49 (Ark. 1950); Cloves v. Cloves, 239 S.W. 145 (Mo. 1922).

(n6)Footnote 522. In re Victorian, 219 N.Y.S. 619 (1927).

(n7)Footnote 523. Matlock v. Mize, 230 P.2d 246 (N.M. 1950).

If life tenants fail in their duty to pay taxes only their life estates are sold at tax sale. Taylor v. Jennings, 106 S.E.2d 391 (S.C. 1958).

(n8)Footnote 524. Reddish v. John, 179 N.W. 951 (Iowa 1920); Hucke v. Dinkel, 275 N.W. 61 (Iowa 1937).

(n9)Footnote 525. Pike v. Gilbert, 198 N.W. 923 (Mich. 1924).

In Texas, the nonproductiveness of the property does not relieve the life tenant from the obligation to pay taxes.

Richardson v. McCloskey, 276 S.W. 680 (Tex. Comm. App. 1925).

(n10)Footnote 526. Miller v. Marriner, 121 S.E. 770 (N.C. 1924); Jones v. Jackson, 246 P.2d 546 (Or. 1952).

(n11)Footnote 527. Wilson v. Linder, 123 P. 487 (Idaho 1912); Zaring v. Lomax, 206 P.2d 706 (N.M. 1949); Miller v. Marriner, 121 S.E. 770 (N.C. 1924); Connecticut General Life Ins. Co. v. Bryson, 219 S.W.2d 799 (Tex. 1949); Wheeler v. Harris, 339 S.W.2d 99 (Ark. 1960)(a life tenant under duty to pay taxes and special assessments who purchases a tax title acquires only a right of redemption as against the remainderman).

(n12)Footnote 528. Newport v. Hatton, 231 P. 987 (Cal. 1924).

(n13)Footnote 529. Harris v. Evans, 195 N.W. 178 (Iowa 1923); Spearman v. Hussey, 50 So. 2d 610 (Miss. 1951).

(n14)Footnote 530. Mathews v. O'Donnell, 233 S.W. 451 (Mo. 1921).

(n15)Footnote 531. Hutchison v. Sheppard, 279 S.W.2d 33 (Ark. 1955); Tillman v. Richton Tie & Timber Co., 80 So. 2d 745 (Miss. 1955); Matlock v. Mize, 230 P.2d 246 (N.M. 1950); Morrow v. Person, 259 S.W.2d 665 (Tenn. 1953); Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co. v. Bryson, 219 S.W.2d 799 (Tex. 1949).

(n16)Footnote 532. Brown v. Warner, 107 N.W.2d 1 (S.D. 1961).

(n17)Footnote 533. Myers v. Grant, 95 S.E.2d 9 (Ga. 1956)(tax title no basis for adverse possession by life tenant); In re Lindhardt's Estate, 320 P.2d 357 (Mont. 1958) (remainderman must pay insurance premiums taken out by executor); Waldon v. Baker, 88 P.2d 352 (Okla. 1939).

Life tenant purchasing from purchaser at tax sale holds for remainderman. Matlock v. Mize, 230 P.2d 246 (N.M. 1950).

(n18)Footnote 534. Helm v. Belvin, 232 P. 382 (Okla. 1924).

(n19)Footnote 535. Pruitt v. Holly, 73 Ala. 369 (1882); Keeley v. Clark, 211 N.Y.S. 391 (1925); In re Hedges' Estate, 62 N.E.2d 643 (Ohio App. 1943).

(n20)Footnote 536. O'Donnell v. Mathews, 284 S.W. 204 (Mo. App. 1926); In re Stein's Will, 91 N.Y.S.2d 158 (1949)(similar as to assessments levied before tenant's death).

If life tenant fails to pay real estate taxes only his interest can be sold at tax sale. Taylor v. Jennings, 106 S.E.2d 391 (S.C. 1958).

(n21)Footnote 537. Bullock v. Peoples Bank of Holcomb, 173 S.W.2d 753 (Mo. 1943).

Liability for assessment improvements must be apportioned between life tenant and remainderman. Gough v. Gatewood, 380 S.W.2d 84 (Ky. 1964).

(n22)Footnote 538. Rutherford Nat'l Bank v. Black, 32 A.2d 86 (N.J. 1943).

(n23)Footnote 539. Troy v. Protestant Episcopal Church, 56 So. 982 (Ala. 1911); Crowell v. Seelbinder, 49 S.W.2d 389 (Ark. 1932); Appeal of Wordin, 42 A. 659 (Conn. 1899); Warren v. Lower Salt Creek Drainage Dist, 147 N.E. 248 (Ill. 1925); Kline v. Dowling, 96 N.E. 579 (Ind. 1911); Cooper v. Barton, 226 N.W. 70 (Iowa 1929); Hackworth v. Louisville Artificial Stone Co., 50 S.W. 33 (Ky. 1899); In re Miner's Estate, 166 N.W. 882 (Mich. 1917); William R. Bush Constr. Co. v. Withnell, 175 S.W. 260 (Mo. App. 1915), rev'd on other grounds, 243 U.S. 633 (1917); Outcalt v. Appleby, 36 N.J. Eq. 73 (1882). Brown v. Brown, 65 A. 739 (N.J. 1907); Thomas v. Evans, 12 N.E. 571 (N.Y. 1887); Kirchner v. Kirchner, 127 N.Y.S. 399 (1911); Moore v. Simonson, 39 P. 1105 (Or. 1895); Chambers v. Chambers, 39 A.

243 (R.I. 1898); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916); Stahl v. Schwarz, 142 P. 651 (Wash. 1914).

(n24)Footnote 540. Appeal of Wordin, 42 A. 659 (Conn. 1899); Hitner v. Ege, 23 Pa. 305 (1854).

(n25)Footnote 541. Gates v. Wirth, 163 N.W. 215 (Iowa 1917)(so also as to a tenant per autre vie).

(n26)Footnote 542. Hamilton v. Kinnebrew, 131 S.E. 470 (Ga. 1926).

In Illinois it is held that "an assessment for the betterment of lands is not a tax ... but it is an encumbrance, the discharge of which must be apportioned ratably between the life tenant and the remainderman." Warren v. Lower Salt Creek Drainage Dist., 147 N.E. 248 (Ill. 1925).

(n27)Footnote 543. In re Frenz' Will, 108 N.Y.S.2d 446 (1951); Calcagni v. Cirino, 14 A.2d 803 (R.I. 1940).

(n28)Footnote 544. Morrow v. Person, 259 S.W.2d 665 (Tenn. 1953).

(n29)Footnote 545. In re Stein's Will, 91 N.Y.S.2d 158 (1949).

(n30)Footnote 546. Crotwell v. Whitney, 92 S.E.2d 473 (S.C. 1956)(purchaser at tax sale acquires only a life estate where life tenant had failed to pay taxes); Stamper v. Avant, 104 S.E.2d 565 (S.C. 1958)(so statute of limitations in favor of purchaser at tax sale did not begin to run until death of life tenant).

Robinson v. Tubbs, 344 P.2d 1080 (Colo. 1959)(a life tenant's interest is subject to the burdens of liens, taxes and encumbrances in the absence of anything expressly to the contrary in the context of the will); Moore v. Moore, 329 S.W.2d 742 (Mo. 1959)(collusive failure of life tenant to pay taxes so as to permit another to acquire title created a trust in favor of contingent remainderman).

(n31)Footnote 547. Peck v. Sherwood, 56 N.Y.S. 615 (1914); Cooper v. Barton, 226 N.W. 70 (Iowa 1929); Bobb v. Wolff, 54 Mo. App. 515 (1929).

The rule, it is believed, to be extracted from the authorities, is that contribution must be confined to cases of assessments for improvements, which, in their nature, are permanent, and do not require renewals from time to time. This rule will include benefits for opening and widening streets, and assessments for grading streets, and the construction of permanent sewers. But in the present case, the tax bills were, and will be, issued for improving the surface of the streets, that part of them which is subject to constant wear and tear, and in the nature of things the pavements must require repairs and renewals. Doubtless, the granite pavement is more lasting than the asphalt, but we do not think either comes within the rule before stated. In this particular case it is conceded the plaintiff is only twenty-eight years of age, and according to the tables adopted in the life-insurance law of this state his expectation of life is thirty-six years and over. It can hardly be hoped that these pavements will last that long without renewal. It is true the taxes are large, but we cannot make the amount of them the criterion. Reyburn v. Wallace, 3 S.W.2d 482 (Mo. 1887).

Failure of life tenant to pay ordinary taxes, the interest on special assessments and on mortgages and to keep the place in repair from ordinary wear and tear is waste. Holzhauser v. Iowa State Tax Comm., 62 N.W.2d 229 (Iowa 1953)(dictum).

See Note. Duties of Legal Life Tenants to Remaindermen in Iowa, 45 Iowa L. Rev. 113 (1959).

(n32)Footnote 548. Clark v. Middlesworth, 82 Ind. 240 (1882); Nation v. Green, 123 N.E. 163 (Ind. 1919); Murch v. J.O. Smith Mfg. Co., 20 A. 213 (N.J. 1890).

See James R. Wilson, The Life Tenant and Unproductive Property, 10 Temp. L.Q. 376 (1936).

(n33)Footnote 549. Bryson v. Connecticut Gen. Life Ins. Co., 196 S.W.2d 532 (Tex. Civ. App. 1946).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on The Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law of life estates.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.01

Supp. to § 19.01 Overview of Life Estate.

[Go To Main]

Add:

compare with, Ehrenclou v. MacDonald, 12 Cal.Rptr.3d 411, 415 (Cal.App. 2004) (the law and public policy to be considered when a will provision must be interpreted is that which was in effect when the will was executed, not the law and public policy in effect at the time the construed words will take effect.)

add

In re Hilsen, 2009 Bankr. LEXIS 669 (Bankr. E.D.N.Y. Mar. 17, 2009) (Bkrtcy. E.D. N.Y.) (a conditional right to use property is not a life estate).

Change the dash between 486 and 488 to a comma:

Sermon v. Sullivan, 640 S.W.2d 486, 488 (Mo. App. 1982) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.02

Supp. to § 19.02 Life Estates, Their Nature and Classification.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Compare with, In re Estate of Moore, 714 N.E.2d 675 (Ind. Ct. App. 1999) .

After the citation Gladden v. Jolly add:

see also, Krieg v. Hieber, 802 N.E.2d 938, 945 (Ind.App. 2004) (holding that the phrase "right of residency" for life is equivalent language to express a life estate).

After the citation Michie v. National Bank of Caruthersville add:

but see, Williams v. Kimes, 996 S.W.2d 43 (Mo. 1999) .

After the citation Preseault v. United States add:

Swisher v. United States, 189 F.R.D. 638 (D. Kan. 1999) .

Add

Irvine v. Anderson, 147 P.3d 486 (Utah App. 2006) (one person was permitted simultaneously to hold a life estate and a one-third undivided joint tenancy interest in the same land).

Add:

Estate of Rhea, 257 S.W.3d 787 (Tex. App. 2008) (discussing a life estate in a wedding ring).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.03

Supp. to § 19.03 Creation of Conventional Life Estates.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Barnett v. Estate of Anderson, 2007 Ala. LEXIS 50 (Nos. 1051676 and 1051829, Mar. 16, 2007) (a will was held to devise a life estate rather than fee simple absolute, despite absence of language specifically referring to a life estate); In re Jan Reynolds 1995 Revocable Living Trust, 820 N.Y.S.2d 430 (2006) ("right of occupancy" construed as a life estate).

Braunstein v. Hajjar, 385 B.R. 482 (D. Mass. 2008) (life estate created quit claim conveying the grantor's entire interest); Collier v. Kincheloe, 180 P.3d 1157 (Mont. 2008) (a tax deed to the county for the life tenant's failure to pay taxes extinguished both the life estate and the remainder, resulting in conveyance of a fee simple absolute to the county).

Fadalla v. Fadalla, 929 So. 2d 429 (No. 1030695 and 1030696, Ala., Nov. 18, 2005) (grantees conveyed concurrent life estates with cross-contingent remainders in fee, rather than joint tenancy with right of survivorship).

In re Estate of Hodgkins, 807 A.2d 626 (Me. 2002) (Testator's will, stating that his roommate had the right to live in his house as long as she wished, did not create a determinable life estate but a simple life estate; the statement was not clear and unequivocal language providing that roommate's interest would be subject to forfeiture should she leave the premises).

McCarley v. Smith, 105 S.W.3d 387 (Ark App. 2003) (holding that for the trial court to impose a constructive trust and grant relief in the form of a life estate, there had to be clear and convincing evidence that the land was deeded with the intention that the grantor would be allowed to live on the land for the rest of her life.)

Add:

In re Estate of Craigen, (No. 09-09-00285-CV, Jan. 21, 2010, Tex. App.) (the terms of the will manifested the testator's intent to grant the property in fee simple absolute rather than to create a life estate). Barnett v. Estate of Anderson, 966 So. 2d 915 (Ala. 2007) (will held to devise a life estate, rather than a fee simple, despite containing no specific language referring to a life estate).

After citation Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank add:

Ehrenclou v. MacDonald, 12 Cal.Rptr.3d 411, 415 (Cal.App. 2004) (the law and public policy to be considered when a will provision must be interpreted is that which was in effect when the will was executed, not the law and public policy in effect at the time the construed words will take effect.)

After the citation Barker v. Rosenthal add:

but see Cannon v. Bangs, 502 S.E.2d 224 (Ga. 1998) (An estate was given expressly for life, with an unlimited power of disposal. The addition of the power of disposal did not change the estate from a life estate into a fee estate). See also Parker v. Parker, 971 S.W.2d 878 (Mo. Ct. App. 1998) .

Add:

Cain v. Finnie, 337 Ill. App. 3d 318 ; 785 N.E.2d 1039 ; 2003 Ill. App. LEXIS 248 (Ill. App. Dist. 5 2003) (Held that the phrase "so long as she remains my widow" creates a determinable life estate).

After citation In re Estate of Campbell add:

Bay v. Estate of Bay, 105 P.3d 434, 438 (Wash.App. 2005) (Drawing a distinction between the intent of the "decedent" and the "testator." Since the testator was not married to the plaintiff when he executed the will, making his intent ambiguous, the premise stated in Estate of Campbell is inapplicable in this particular circumstance.)

Add:

Fluke v. Westerman, 609 S.E.2d 744, 748 (Ga.App. 2005) (clear and convincing evidence of a contrary intent must be provided to rebut a statutory presumption.)

Add:

Lusk v. Broyles, 694 So. 2d 4 (Ala. Civ. App. 1997) (recognizing a deed can concurrently create a life estate and remainder interests).

Add:

Brown v. Brown, 2005 Ohio 1838 (Ohio Ct. App. 2005) (No. 04CA000018, Ohio App., Apr. 14, 2005) (life estate was created by verbal agreement and was outside the statute of frauds).

In connection with Fox v. Washburn, insert:

Tidwell v. Bassett, 611 S.E.2d 123 (Ga.App. 2005) (The subsequent conduct of the parties to an agreement may be considered as evidence of a mutual mistake.)

add:

In re Estate of Craigen, (No. 09-09-00285-CV, Jan. 21, 2010, Tex. App.) (the terms of the will manifested the testator's intent to grant the property in fee simple absolute rather than to create a life estate).

Add:

Unsel v. Meier, 972 S.W.2d 466 (Mo. Ct. App. 1998)

After the citation In re Wardens Trust add:

but see Estate of Pew, 655 A.2d 521 (Pa. Super. Ct. 1994) .

After the citation Nelson v. Parker add:

vacated, Nelson v. Parker, 687 N.E.2d 187 (Ind. 1997) .

add:

Allen v. Schultheiss, 981 A.2d 610 (D.C. App. 2009) (a life estate can be held as a tenancy by the entirety.)

Add:

compare with, In re Estate of Moore, 714 N.E.2d 675 (Ind. Ct. App. 1999) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.04

Supp. to § 19.04 The Relationship Between the Life Tenant and the Reversioner or the Remainderman.

[Go To Main]

After the citation Leazenby v. Clinton County Bank & Trust Coy". add:

compare with Walker v. Lawson, 526 N.E.2d 968 (Ind. 1988) .

Add:

Carrol & Assocs. v. Galindo, 864 So.2d 24 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 2003) (holding that where life tenants had the right to purchase the mortgage, they still could not foreclose to the prejudice of the remaindermen, especially when they appeared to have unclean hands).

Add:

Cannon v. Bangs, 502 S.E.2d 224 (Ga. 1998) .

Add:

In re Estate of Moore, 714 N.E.2d 675 (Ind. Ct. App. 1999) (life tenant was still entitled to her share of the proceeds when she and the remaindermen sold the property).

Add:

Adametz v. Adametz, Not reported in A.2d (Conn. Super. 2002).

Add:

Cannon v. Bangs, 502 S.E.2d 224 (Ga. 1998) (An estate was given expressly for life, with an unlimited power of disposal. The addition of the power of disposal did not change the estate from a life estate into a fee estate). See also, Parker v. Parker, 971 S.W.2d 878 (Mo. Ct. App. 1998) .

change the citation O'Kelly v. Jackson to read:

O'Kelly v. Jackson, 81 S.E.2d 454 (Ga. 1954) .

After citation Zambrano v. Olivas add:

Williams v. Walker, 2004 Tex. App. LEXIS 3034 (Tex.App. 2004) .

Add:

Ebersol v. Mishler, 775 N.E.2d 373 (Ind. App. 2002) (the statute of limitations does not run against a remainderman until the termination of the intervening life estate).

add:

York v. Steyaert, 856 N.Y.S.2d 760 (2008) (personal injury action brought against holder of life estate).

Add:

but see, United States v. De Bonchamps, 278 F.2d 127, (9th Cir. 1960) .

Add:

Reniere v. Gerlach, 752 A.2d 480 (R.I. 2000) (life estate holder did not forfeit her life estate even though she allowed permissive waste to occur; such as, failing to pay real estate taxes, failing to make repairs etc.).

In Computer Assisted Research, change LEXIS: life tenant! w/30 reversioner! or remainderman! to:

LEXIS: life tenant! w/30 reversioner! or remainderm!

(this change allows the search to catch "remaindermen")

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.05

Supp. to § 19.05 The Life Tenant's Right to Transfer the Life Estate.

[Go To Main]

Change the citation of Williams v. Kimes as follows:

Williams v. Kimes, 996 S.W.2d 43 (Mo. 1999) (contingent remaindermen are owners and are entitled to receive notice of foreclosure during the life of the life tenant).

Change the citation Procek v. Hudak to read:

Procek v. Hudak, 727 A.2d 841 (Del. 1999) (General presumption that a person buying property but titling the property in another's name intends to retain a beneficial interest. However, the presumption is reversed when considering transactions between a natural object of the purchaser's bounty, such as a child. In the case of a child, it is presumed the purchaser intended to make a gift). See also, Procek v. Hudak, 2000 Del. Ch. LEXIS 62 , C.A. No. 15276 (Del. Ch. Apr. 20, 2000).

But see Quill v. Malizia, 2005 Del. Ch. LEXIS 37 (Del. Ch. Mar. 4, 2005) (Holding that a resulting trust is often used when one party provides the money to purchase property that, for some incidental reason, is held in the name of another.)

Add:

In re Estate of Moore, 714 N.E.2d 675 (Ind. Ct. App. 1999) (life tenant was still entitled to her share of the proceeds when she and the remaindermen sold the property).

Add:

In re Estate of Duncan, 50 P.3d 175 (N.M. App. 2002) rev'd on other grounds, 70 P.3d 1260 (N.M. 2003) .

Add:

Englehart v. Larson, 608 N.W.2d 673 (S.D. 2000) (A life estate holder entered into a farm lease of his life estate. The tenant was entitled to harvest the crops planted before the death of the life estate holder even though the death of the life estate holder marked the end of the farm tenancy. However, the tenant was required to pay rent for the time spent on the land after the death of the life estate holder.).

Add:

but see, In re Felker, 211 B.R. 165 (Bankr. M.D. Pa. 1997) .

After citation Ogle v. Ogle insert:

Hargis v. Fuller, 2005 Tenn. App. LEXIS 81 (Tenn. Ct. App. Feb. 7, 2005) (No. M2003-02691-COA-R3-CV, Feb. 7, 2005) (The following language is sufficient to denote the creation of an unlimited power of disposition: "to my wife ... to have and to hold for and during the full term of her natural life, with right to use and employ, all of said property ... for her use and benefit ... and upon her death, such of said property as may remain, shall go to ... my brother," (quoting Skovron v. Third National Bank in Nashville, 509 S.W.2d 497, 507)) .

Add:

In re Estate of Sauer, 753 N.Y.S.2d 318 (N.Y. Sur. 2002) (the holder of a life estate can force the sale of real property and collect the value of his life estate over the objections of the remaindermen, if he was granted the power to sale).

Add:

Beach v. Beach, 2002 Colo. App. LEXIS 106 (Jan. 31, 2002) (right to partition life estate interest not waived), rev'd 74 P.3d 1 (Colo. 2003) .

Add:

Beach v. Beach, 56 P.3d 1125 (Colo. App. 2002) (a life tenant may demand partition of his/her interest in a life estate from the remainderman in certain circumstances).

Add:

Dwyer v. McCoy, 512 S.E.2d 70 (Ga. Ct. App. 1999) (Lessor gave a 10-year lease of property to lessee. The lessee did not have knowledge that lessor only held a life estate in the property. Lessor died 3 years into the term of the lease and the property passed to the remaindermen. Lessee was allowed to sue lessor's estate for damages, since lessee was not deemed to have constructive knowledge of the life estate based on the recorded deed).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.06

Supp. to § 19.06 Duration of Life Estates.

[Go To Main]

Add:

But see Roach v. Gwinnett County, 545 S.E.2d 912 (Ga. 2001) (according to the terms of the conveyance, the life estate terminated when the county commenced condemnation proceedings).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.07

Supp. to § 19.07 Extent of the Life Tenant's Right of Possession of the Freehold.

[Go To Main]

After citation In re Matter of Thomson insert:

In re Strohe, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2615 (No. 331708, Dec. 13, 2004) (Failure to occupy the premises and failure to pay the expenses of the property, taken together, do not renounce an interest in the property.)

Add:

Forty-One Associates, LLC v. Bluefield Associates, L.P., 809 N.E.2d 422 (Ind. App. 2004) (an owner of an estate for life may commit waste by failing to repair).

Brizendine v. Conrad, 71 S.W.3d 587 (Mo. 2002) .

Add:

Jackson v. Jackson, 669 S.E.2d 496 (Ga. App. 2008) (action by life estate holder to enjoin use of the property by the remainderman).

Add:

McCorkle v. Loumiss Timber Co., 760 So. 2d 845 (Miss. Ct. App. 2000) (A life estate holder does not need to account to the remaindermen for profits and losses on crops. No waste to the estate occurs by growing crops on the land).

Add:

Robinson v. Hunter, 562 S.E.2d 189 (Ga. App. 2002) (Harvesting lumber can be considered good husbandry and the proceeds go to the life tenant).

Add:

Ebersol v. Mishler, 775 N.E.2d 373 (Ind. App. 2002) (life tenant has a duty to preserve and protect the property for future enjoyment of the remaindermen).

Add:

In re Succession of Becker, 739 So. 2d 925 (La. Ct. App. 1999) (proceeds received by a life estate holder from the early cancellation of a tenant's contract deemed to be similar to rents and belong to the life estate, not the remaindermen).

Add:

In re Estate of Van Den Boom, 590 N.W.2d 350 (Minn. Ct. App. 2000) (surviving spouse who inherited a life estate could not sell a portion of the life estate to pay administrative debts of the decedent spouse's estate, since it would hinder the remaindermen's interest). But see, In re Hollander, No. C8- 99-1085, 2000 Minn. App. LEXIS 60 (Minn. Ct. App. 2000) .

After the citation In re Wardens Trust add:

overruled, In re Catherwood's Trust, 173 A.2d 86 (Pa. 1961) , see also, Estate of Pew, 655 A.2d 521(Pa. Super. Ct. 1994) .

After the citation In re Wardens Trust add:

overruled, In re Catherwood's Trust, 173 A.2d 86 (Pa. 1961) , see also, Estate of Pew, 655 A.2d 521(Pa. Super. Ct. 1994) .

Add:

see also, Heinold v. Siecke, 598 N.W.2d 58 (Neb. 1999) .

Add:

Chapman v. Thornhill, 802 So. 2d 149 (Miss. App. 2001) (life tenant's right to estovers did not include the right to harvest timber to meet monthly debts or otherwise increase his standard of living).

After the citation Eide v. Tveter delete the words:

aff'd, 170 F. 529 (8th Cir. 1909) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.08

Supp. to § 19.08 Extent of Life Tenant's Right to Make use of the Freehold

[Go To Main]

Add:

see also Riley v. Riley, 972 S.W.2d 149 (Tex. Ct. App. 1998) .

After citation Moore v. Vines add:

Phillips v. Ivy, 2004 Tex. App. LEXIS 7530 (No. 10-02-00265-CV, Aug. 18, 2004) (As a general rule subject to exceptions, a life tenant may not dispose of the corpus of the estate; oil and gas royalties and bonuses are generally considered corpus.)

Add:

Robinson v. Hunter, 562 S.E.2d 189 (Ga. App. 2002) .

Add:

Englehart v. Larson, 608 N.W.2d 673 (S.D. 2000) (A life estate holder entered into a farm lease of his life estate. The tenant was entitled to harvest the crops planted before the death of the life estate holder even though the death of the life estate holder marked the end of the farm tenancy. However, the tenant was required to pay rent for the time spent on the land after the death of the life estate holder.).

Add:

White v. Watts, 812 So. 2d 328 (Ala. 2001) (life tenant had right to cut timber); Robinson v. Hunter, 562 S.E.2d 189 (Ga. App. 2002) (life tenant entitled to retain proceeds from sale of timber cut from life tenant's land).

Add:

Williams v. Burgett, 2002 Ala. LEXIS 97 (Mar. 22, 2002) (proceeds from life tenant's sale of timber belonged to the remainder beneficiaries).

Add:

McCorkle v. Loumiss Timber Co., 760 So. 2d 845 (Miss. Ct. App. 2000) (a life tenant is allowed to harvest the timber over the remaindermen's object if it is necessary to raise money to pay the taxes due on the property, or to make repairs to fences or other parts of the property.).

Add:

Robinson v. Hunter, 562 S.E.2d 189 (Ga. App. 2002) .

change the citation Bradley v. Bradley to read:

Bradley v. Bradley, 185 So. 2d 655 (Miss. 1966) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.09

Supp. to § 19.09 Life Tenant's Obligation to Repair.

[Go To Main]

After citation In re Matter of Estate of Fisher include:

In re Strohe, 2004 N.Y. Misc. LEXIS 2615 (No. 331708, Dec. 13, 2004).

Add:

McLeod Realty Trust v. Roberts, 2002 Conn. Super. LEXIS 2298 (CV00631335, July 10, 2002).

After the citation Callwood v. Virgin Islands Natl Bank add:

vacated, Callwood v. Virgin Islands National Bank, 221 F.2d 770 (3rd Cir. 1955) .

After the citation Callwood v. Virgin Islands Natl Bank add:

vacated, Callwood v. Virgin Islands National Bank, 221 F.2d 770 (3rd Cir. 1955) .

After the citation Callwood v. Virgin Islands Natl Bank add:

vacated, Callwood v. Virgin Islands National Bank, 221 F.2d 770 (3rd Cir. 1955) .

After citation Ellerbusch v. Myers add:

cf. Krieg v. Hieber, 802 N.E.2d 938 (Ind.App. 2004) (Purchaser was required to insure farmhouse for benefit of vendor, and thus vendor was entitled to receive value of his reserved life estate from fire insurance proceeds received by purchaser.)

Add:

Acord v. Acord, 19 S.W.3d 644 (Ark. Ct. App. 2000) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.11

Supp. to § 19.11 The Life Tenant's Duty to Insure the Premises.

[Go To Main]

After the citation Lynch v. Johnson add:

but see, Network Solutions, Inc. v. Umbro Intern., Inc., 529 S.E.2d 80 (Va. 2000) .

After citation Ellerbusch v. Myers add:

cf. Krieg v. Hieber, 802 N.E.2d 938 (Ind.App. 2004) (Purchaser was required to insure farmhouse for benefit of vendor, and thus vendor was entitled to receive value of his reserved life estate from fire insurance proceeds received by purchaser.)

After the citation Lynch v. Johnson add:

but see, Network Solutions, Inc. v. Umbro Intern., Inc., 529 S.E.2d 80 (Va. 2000) .

After citation Ellerbusch v. Myers add:

cf. Krieg v. Hieber, 802 N.E.2d 938 (Ind.App. 2004) (Purchaser was required to insure farmhouse for benefit of vendor, and thus vendor was entitled to receive value of his reserved life estate from fire insurance proceeds received by purchaser.)

Add:

But see, Collier v. Kincheloe, 180 P.3d 1157 (Mont. 2008) (upon failure of the life tenant to redeem the property, resulting in a tax deed to the county, the deed extinguished the life estate and conveyed a fee simple title.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 19 LIFE ESTATE

2-19 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 19.13

Supp. to § 19.13 Bibliography.

[Go To Main]

Add to Articles:

"Life Estates: Right to Partition," 30 Real Est. L. Rep. 2 (July, 2000).

Baskies, Jeffrey A. The New Homestead Trap: Surviving Spouses Are Trapped by Life Estates They No Longer Want and Can No Longer Afford, 81 Fla. B.J. 69 (June, 2007).

Guttery, Randall S., Stephen L. Poe and C.F. Sirmans, "Life Settlements: Implications for Investment Real Estate," 34 Real Estate Law Journal 60 (Summer, 2005).

Penn, Jonathan. "A Different Kind of Life Estate: The Laws, Rights, and Liabilities Associated with Donated Embryos," 21 Regent U. L. Rev. 207 (2008-2009).

Salzberg, Kenneth. "Zombie Life Estates, Ghost Value Transfers, and Phantom Takings: Confusions of Title and Value in Property Law Legislation," 22 Quinnipiac Prob. L.J. 363 (2009).

Vincent, Scott, E. "Residence Includible in Estate Because of Decedent's Retained Life Estate," 62 J. Mo. B. 91 (March-April, 2006).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions 20.syn

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.syn Synopsis to Chapter 20: DEFEASIBLE FEES *

§ 20.01 The Defeasible Fee.

§ 20.02 Fee Simple Determinable.

§ 20.03 Fees Subject to Executory or Conditional Limitations.

§ 20.04 Fees Subject to Conditions.

§ 20.05 The Fee upon Condition Subsequent.

§ 20.06 Language Giving Rise to Conditions.

§ 20.07 Abhorrence of Conditions.

§ 20.08 Meaning of "Death Without Issue."

§ 20.09 Covenants and Conditions Distinguished.

§ 20.10 Statements of Consideration as Implying Conditions.

§ 20.11 Provisions for Support or Rendition of Service as Creating Conditions.

§ 20.12 Validity of Conditions.

§ 20.13 Conditions That Are Void as Against Public Policy.

§ 20.14 Breach of Condition Not Caused by Grantee or Successors.

§ 20.15 Breach of Condition of Particular Use.

§ 20.16 Alternative Remedies on Breach of Condition.

§ 20.17 Judicial Reluctance to Declare Breach of Condition.

§ 20.18 Waiver of Breach of Condition.

§ 20.19 Breach of Personal Conditions.

§ 20.20 Time for Performance of Condition.

§ 20.21 Substantial Compliance with Conditions.

§ 20.22 Impossibility of Performance of Conditions.

§ 20.23 Equitable Relief Against Forfeiture.

Professor David A. Thomas
J. Reuben Clark Law School
Brigham Young University

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.01

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.01 The Defeasible Fee.n1

[Go To Supp]

A fee simple absolute theoretically endures forever. At early common law a fee was subject to forfeiture for failure to pay the feudal dues or when the holder became guilty of lesser treason, i.e., committed a felony. But after the statute quia emptores terrorum n2 put an end to subinfeudation such terminable fees faded out gradually, finally ending with the statute of wardship and liveries. Under modern theory, today the fee simple absolute never dies unless perchance the entire tract returns to the bosom of mother sovereign through eminent domain.

Some fees, however, are not of unlimited duration but will terminate either through expiration of a limitation set forth at the time of their creation, through the happening of a condition subsequent also specified at the time of creation, n3 or by being cut off by the development of a new fee, the coming into being of which was anticipated at the time of the creation of the fee so cut off. n4

The first type is spoken of as an estate upon limitation or a determinable fee simple, the second as a fee upon condition subsequent and the third as a fee subject to a conditional limitation or a springing use or devise. The use of all of these terms is somewhat arbitrary, and the courts are by no means unanimous in observing them. A devise of real estate is proper, although made conditional. n5

The distinctions therefore are more noticeable in the legal results arising from the three classes than in their nomenclature. Technically these results are legally partible. But often the difficulty of dropping a certain state of facts into one of these distinct categories leads to a confusion of the legal results. n6 All such classes are alike in this, however, that, as distinct from the fee simple absolute the estate ends and a new estate arises, not merely a new owner of the same estate. With the death of the estate, there also terminate all rights of third parties which have arisen out of the acts of the owners of the estate while it was in existence, such as liens and encumbrances (other than those imposed against the land in rem, such as tax liens), equitable interests, easements, mineral severances and profits.

At common law since a fee could not be limited as a fee except a fee tail, when a defeasance arose the fee returned to the creator. After the statute of uses n7 and the statute of wills n8 an interest could be limited over to another at the time of the creation of such a defeasible fee to ripen into a fee when the prior estate terminated. Such limitation over took its life, however, from the original grant not from the fee so defeated. n9 Such estate may be determined whenever the qualification annexed to it is at an end. n10 A deed in fee simple, with a later will by grantor devising the land on condition, creates a defeasible estate. n11

Today an estate in real property may be restricted by or be dependent upon some condition or qualification or it may have a limitation annexed thereto. n12

Where an estate is determined by an event not certain to occur, it is a fee simple defeasible and not a life estate. n13

When an estate in real property is restricted by or dependent upon some condition or qualification, it may properly be termed a "conditional or qualified estate." Such estates have imposed upon them certain conditions or modifications, by force of which they may be determinable upon the happening or not happening of a specified event. Ownership of such estate is not absolute. The estate may be modified or destroyed by the happening of an event which may or may not occur. The quantity of the owner's interest, however, is not affected by the condition, nor is his power to use the land or convey and encumber it curtailed. n14 A deed by the owner of such an estate made subsequent to the termination of the estate passes nothing. n15 Likewise, a termination of the estate by the happening of the contingency on which it depends will defeat any alienation or encumbrance previously made. n16 Estates of fee simple defeasible are simply estates which may last forever, and yet in themselves contain elements by which the estate may be terminated. n17 Qualified estates are those interests which are not absolute and unconditional, including the fee tail, estates on condition, estates on limitation and estates on conditional limitation. n18

A defeasible fee gives a complete right of ownership to the grantee or devisee until the condition under which the fee is broken arises. n19 An estate on a condition precedent may be said to be a contingent estate, since it can not become a present estate except by the fulfillment of such condition other than the determination of the preceding freehold. n20 A residuary devise made defeasible on the death of the devisee without issue has been held to create a defeasible fee. n21

The common law recognized a still further type of defeasible fee that arose out of disseisin. When A disseised B of Blackacre, A acquired the title, B lost it. n22 A's title, however, though in fee simple was defeasible on B's re-entry, at early law by vi et armis n23 later through writs of right or of possession. n24 This concept continued until late in the nineteenth century. n25 A's title was alienable. B had a mere right of re-entry which was inalienable. n26 Today an adverse possessor does not acquire title until after the statutory period has run.

Limitation may be annexed not only to estates in fee simple but in fee tail, conventional life estates, and in leasehold estates. Where the limitation is annexed to a fee-simple estate, there is formed what is sometimes termed "modified fees," variously known as "qualified," "conditional," "base," or "determinable fees." Where an estate tail contained a provision that, in case the donee in tail alienate the land or bar or destroy the entail, the donor should re-enter, a breach of the condition terminated the estate of the donee. n27 According to the Restatement of the Law of Property , the types of estates most commonly made subject to a special limitation are estates in fee simple, estates for life, and estates for years. n28 Where an estate is limited to persons named with a condition that "if they shall continue to reside on the land, but, if either of them shall remove from the land or absent themselves from it for the space of two years, he or she shall forfeit all interest in this request," it was held that this created an estate on limitation, and upon a breach of the condition by removal from the premises, the parties so named forfeited their estate. n29 A contingent limitation of a term of years is valid and enforceable. Whatever the term, it may be subject to a condition which is a qualification annexed to the estate by the grantor n30 or the lessor, n31 whereby the estate or term granted may, among other things, be defeated or terminated. n32

The estate upon limitation is not an absolute estate or an estate upon condition. However, it resembles an estate upon condition subsequent in that it defeats the estate previously limited. In addition to its natural limitation or duration, it has a special limitation. It is a fee-simple estate because all heirs, collateral as well as lineal, may inherit it, and in this respect it is precisely like an absolute fee. It differs, however, from an absolute fee in that it carries a particular event or contingency, the happening of which may determine the estate notwithstanding the taker thereof is living and capable of enjoying it. Estates upon limitation terminate naturally and absolutely as soon as the designated event occurs, no entry being necessary as in case of an estate upon condition, and the next subsequent estate, which depends upon such determination, takes effect in immediate possession. n33 Because the estate thus limited may last forever it is a fee and because it may terminate on the happening of the event specified it is called a determinable or qualified fee. n34 A fee on limitation is terminated by the happening of the event or breach of limitation. Re-entry before title divests may not be necessary. n35 A condition determines an estate after breach, upon entry or claim by the grantor or his heirs, while a limitation marks the period which determines the estate without any act on the part of the person who has the next expectant interest. n36 A limitation determines an estate upon the happening of the event itself, without the necessity of doing any act to regain the estate, such as re-entry. It is in this respect that it differs from an estate upon condition. n37

Various terms have been employed to designate estates upon limitation or defeasible fees. Thus they have been called "special limitations," "determinable limitations," "conditional limitations," "collateral limitations," a limitation with a "proviso for a cesser," or a "clause of cesser." When the words of direct limitation create a fee it is sometimes called a "determinable fee." The qualification annexed has been called "a condition in law." n38 When such an estate is in fee, it has been called "a fee simple, limited and qualified," n39 But the term "estates upon limitation" is used by many authorities as accurately designating the particular class of qualified estates we are now considering. n40

Although an estate in fee simple is devised, it may be limited by a provision that it shall terminate by the happening of a certain contingency, and so long as the contingency does not happen, it remains a fee. n41 Examples of estates upon limitation are: first, an estate to A until she marries; n42 second, an estate to a widow so long as she remains unmarried; n43 and third, an estate to A so long as he continues to reside thereon. n44 When the event which is to terminate the estate or render it terminable has not occurred it is immaterial whether the provision in the deed is in the nature of a condition subsequent so that re-entry or affirmative action of some sort on the part of the grantor or his heirs is necessary to terminate the estate or right granted, or whether it is in the nature of a conditional limitation which ipso facto terminates the estate without affirmative action on the part of the grantor or his heirs. n45 An estate in fee simple which is made subject to a special limitation is known as a determinable or qualified fee. An estate limited to the grantee and his heirs until the happening of some future event which possibly may never happen at all is such an estate. n46 The right of a grantor of an estate subject to a special limitation is, until the event happens which terminates the estate, a mere naked possibility of reverter, and, in the absence of a statute, the right is not assignable, since it is neither an estate nor an interest in land. n47

It is sometimes difficult to determine whether the words used are words of condition, making the estate voidable, or words of limitation, making the estate to cease. If the words inserted are for the benefit of the grantor, giving him the power, on default of performance, to destroy the estate if he will and revest the estate in himself or his heirs the words are words of condition. If the words used are conclusive of the time of continuance and of the extent of the estate granted, the words are words of limitation. Conditions in a grant render the estate granted voidable by entry. Limitations render it void without entry. n48 A condition does not defeat the estate, when broken, until it is avoided by the act of the grantor, but a limitation marks the period which is to determine the estate, without entry or claim. n49 Words of limitation mark the period which is to determine the estate. They specify the utmost time of continuance, while a condition marks some event which, if it takes place, renders the estate subject to be defeated at the election of the grantor or his heirs. n50 The basic difference between estates upon "conditions subsequent" and those upon "conditional limitation" is ascertained by the fact that, in the former case, the entire estate has passed to another, but can be returned to the grantor upon the subsequent happening of the described event, while in the case of a conditional limitation the estate passes to another under a limitation for its return to the grantor without re-entry. n51

In determining whether an estate upon limitation is created, courts will not be governed by the use or absence of particular words, n52 but they are bound to consider the language and terms of the whole instrument to determine what was in the minds of the parties to it. n53 An estate upon limitation is created by the use of such expressions as "until,"

"as long as," "while," "if whilst," "during," and the like. n54 The words "so long as the same shall be used for the purposes hereinbefore mentioned" are sufficient for the creation of a limitation. The added words "and no longer" remove all possibility of doubt touching the quality of the estate granted. n55 The words "so long as," or "during the time that," the property is used for a designated purpose, usually create an estate subject to determination upon the cessation of that use, rather than a fee with condition subsequent. n56

The term "limitation," when used alone, may signify simply the creating of an estate but primarily, it means the marking out of the bounds or limits of the estate created n57 or, as stated in the Restatement of the Law of Property, "the word 'limitation' normally denotes the complete language of a conveyance delimiting the duration and character of a created interest." n58 When used in the habendum clause of a deed, the word "limitation" declares the nature and extent of the estate granted, and the use for which the grant is made. n59 An entry for breach of a condition destroys both the immediate estate and a limitation over. n60

A condition in a deed is a qualification of the estate granted. It does not indicate nor alter the character of the estate to which it may be annexed; that is, it does not determine whether the estate is a freehold or less than a freehold. It may be annexed to any particular estate, a fee, a life estate, or a term of years. n61 Since conditions may be annexed to every species of estate or interest in real property, they are more properly viewed as qualifications of other estates than as being a distinct species of themselves. n62 Estates upon condition are either upon condition implied by law or upon condition expressed. n63 An implied condition is one arising by operation of law and runs with certain estates as an invariable incident. n64 At common law, a tenant for life or for years took his estate with the implied condition not to create a fee. A breach of such condition exposed his estate to be forfeited. A corporation holds a franchise under the implied condition that it will fulfil its duties to the public, and a violation of its duties by non-user or misuse will work a forfeiture of the estate. An estate on condition expressed in the grant or devise itself, is, where the estate granted has a qualification annexed, whereby the estate shall commence, be enlarged, or defeated, upon performance or breach of such qualification or condition. n65 A condition will not be raised by implication from the mere declaration in the deed that the conveyance is made for a special and particular purpose without being coupled with words appropriate to make such a condition. n66 Where an estate is granted in fee simple or otherwise, with an express qualification annexed, whereby the estate shall commence, be enlarged, or defeated upon performance or breach of such qualification or condition, it is an estate upon condition expressed. n67 Estates upon condition expressed are either upon condition precedent or condition subsequent

If the estate is to arise or be enlarged upon the performance of the condition, then the condition is said to be precedent. If it is to terminate or be lost by the non-performance of the condition, then it is called a condition subsequent. In other words, the condition is precedent when it must be performed before the estate can commence, and it is subsequent when it is to be performed after the estate has vested in the grantee. n68 The former fixes the beginning, the latter the ending of the estate. n69 A condition precedent is one which must be performed before the estate can vest. n70 Conditions subsequent are such as, when they happen or are performed or are not performed, as the case may be, divest, curtail, or abridge an estate already vested. n71 An estate in fee simple with a condition subsequent is an estate in fee simple which the creator or his successor in interest has the privilege and power of terminating if and when the event specified in creating the conveyance occurs. n72 Conditions subsequent are those which in terms operate on an estate conveyed and render it liable to be defeated for a breach of the condition. n73 Estates on condition subsequent, when created and until defeated by re-entry, have the same qualities and incidents as though no conditions were annexed thereto. n74 The whole title is vested in the grantee until the revesting of the estate through re-entrance for condition broken. n75 A conveyance upon a condition subsequent passes a qualified fee to the grantee until the happening of the condition subsequent, giving to the grantee the same right and privileges as though the estate were in fee simple. n76 The same technical words of condition are appropriate to create either a condition precedent or a condition subsequent. Whether the condition be one or the other is a question of intention to be gathered from the whole instrument. n77

Where the language of a deed plainly shows an intention to make the grant on a condition subsequent, the use of the word "condition" is unnecessary. n78 As where the thing required to be done does not necessarily precede the vesting of the estate in the grantee, but may accompany it or follow it and may as well be done after as before the vesting of the estate; or if, from the nature of the act to be performed and the time required for its performance, it is evidently the intention of the parties that the estate shall vest, and the grantee perform the act after taking possession, -- the condition is subsequent. n79 Whether a condition is to be construed to be precedent or subsequent is always a question of intent, and it is immaterial where the clause creating the condition is placed in the deed. The question, without regard to locality, always being whether the thing is to happen before or after the estate is to vest. n80 As declared in the Code of Georgia, n81 "The law favors conditions to be subsequent rather than precedent and to be remediable by damages rather than by forfeiture." Courts generally place the same construction on conditions in deeds. n82

Where there is a limitation over after death of the first taker, the problem arises as to whether there is a gift of a defeasible fee in the first taker or merely a life estate. n83 Where there is a failure of a limitation over after a fee upon condition subsequent, the fee becomes absolute, but if after a determinable fee the possibility of reverter remains. n84 Limitation over a will on death without issue created a defeasible fee rather than a life estate. n85 A limitation over in a will on death without issue created a defeasible fee rather than a life estate. n86 Devise to my wife and daughter and their descendants created a defeasible fee rather than a life estate with remainders. n87

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 1. See W.W. Ferrier, Jr. Determinable Fees and Fees Upon Condition Subsequent in California, 24 Cal. L. Rev. 512 (1936); William H. Agnor, Creation of Defeasible Fees, 15 Ga. B.J. 20 (1952); Olin L. Browder, Jr. Defeasible Fee Estates in Oklahoma, 4 Okla. L. Rev. 141 (1951); Howard R. Williams, Restrictions on the Use of Land -- Conditions Subsequent and Determinable Fees, 27 Tex. L. Rev. 157 (1948).

See Chas P. Lippert, Jr. Problems Incident to Conveyance of a Fee Simple Defeasible, 5 U. Det. L. Rev. 48 (1942).

(n2)Footnote 2. 18 Edward I, ch. 1.

McDonald v. Suarez, 93 S.E.2d 16 (Ga. 1956); Moore v. Wells, 93 S.E.2d 731 (Ga. 1956); Ramsey v. Holder, 291 S.W.2d 556 (Ky. 1956); Fannin's Adm'r v. Segraves, 198 S.W.2d 802 (Ky. 1946).

(n3)Footnote 3. Moore v. Wells, 93 S.E.2d 731 (Ga. 1956).

A deed purportedly in fee simple referring to the fact that it was subject to an agreement made contemporaneously which contained a reverter clause, a defeasible fee rather than a fee simple absolute was intended under the rule that where there are two contradictory clauses in contemporaneous instruments the first must prevail. Hardman v. Dahlonega-Lumpkin County Chamber of Commerce, 233 S.E.2d 753 (Ga. 1977).

(n4)Footnote 4. Trumbo v. Sanford, 203 S.W.2d 22 (Ky. 1947)(their heirs but if any die leaving no lineal descendants at their death then over created individual defeasible fees); Wallhauser v. Rummel, 96 A.2d 289 (N.J. Super. 1953)(limitation over, if first taker in fee simple absolute died intestate because of testamentary incapacity, created fee simple defeasible).

PCK Props., Inc. v. Cuyahoga Falls, 176 N.E.2d 441 (Ohio 1960)(distinguishing between fee upon condition subsequent and determinable fee).

Language using fee simple determinable, possibility of reverter, fee upon condition subsequent, and right of re-entry is interchangeable. Polette v. Williams, 456 S.W.2d 328 (Mo. 1970).

(n5)Footnote 5. In re Apsey's Estate, 1 N.E.2d 558 (Ill. App. 1936); Rodenburg v. Rodenburg, 74 N.W.2d 241 (Iowa 1956); In re Donald's Estate, 267 N.Y.S. 505 (1933).

Distinguishing between determinable fee and a fee upon condition subsequent. Prince v. Charles Ilfeld Co., 383 P.2d 827 (N.M. 1963); Dilbeck v. Bill Gaynier, Inc., 368 S.W.2d 804 (Tex. Civ. App. 1963).

(n6)Footnote 6. See Frederick B. McCall, Estates on Condition and on Special Limitation in North Carolina, 19 N.C. L. Rev. 334 (1941).

(n7)Footnote 7. 27 Henry VIII, ch. 10.

(n8)Footnote 8. 32 Henry VIII, ch. 1, explained by 34 Henry VIII, ch. 5.

(n9)Footnote 9. Weinberg v. Werft, 218 S.W.2d 398 (Ky. 1949)(devise to three children but if any die without issue to the survivors created defeasible fees with "remainders" over to the others).

(n10)Footnote 10. Rumble v. Strange, 114 S.E. 881 (Ga. 1922); McIntyre v. Dietrich, 128 N.E. 321 (Ill. 1920); Henderson v. Western Carolina Power Co., 157 S.E. 425 (N.C. 1931); Stubbs v. Abel, 233 P. 852, reg'h denied, 236 P. 505 (Or. 1925).

(n11)Footnote 11. Jenkens v. Shuften, 57 S.E.2d 283 (Ga. 1950).

Haven v. Wallace, 160 S.W.2d 619 (Ky. 1942); Magness v. Kerr, 254 P. 1012 (Or. 1927); In re Gohn's Estate, 188 A. 144 (Pa. 1936); Yarbrough v. Yarbrough, 269 S.W. 36 (Tenn. 1925). See William F. Fratcher, Defeasance As a Restrictive Device In Michigan, 52 Mich. L. Rev. 505 (1954); Boyett v. Mathews, 370 S.W.2d 916 (Tex. Civ. App. 1963).

(n12)Footnote 12. Alexander v. Morris & Co., 270 S.W. 88 (Ark. 1925); Kautz v. Kautz, 76 A.2d 398 (Pa. 1950)(as long as she remains my widow).

Reverter clause is enforceable in creating a defeasible fee, if not an unreasonable restraint on alienation. Falls City v. Missouri Pac. R. Co., 453 F.2d 771 (8th Cir. 1971).

(n13)Footnote 13. Bradford v. Federal Land Bank of New Orleans, 338 So. 2d 388 (Miss. 1976).

(n14)Footnote 14. Hill v. Purdy, 46 App. D.C. 495 (1917); Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); Chapman v. Pingree, 67 Me. 198 (1877); Garrison v. Hill, 28 A. 1062 (Md. 1894); Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Bouse, 29 A.2d 906 (Md. 1943); Shattuck v. Hastings, 99 Mass. 23 (1868); Halvorsen v. Pacific County, 156 P.2d 907 (Wash. 1945).

(n15)Footnote 15. Slegel v. Herbine, 23 A. 996 (Pa. 1892); Bartlett v. Bartlett, 48 P.2d 560 (Wash. 1935).

(n16)Footnote 16. Gray v. Blanchard, 52 Mass. (8 Pick.)284 (1829).

"The holder of such an estate has all the rights in respect to it of a fee simple owner until the condition subsequent has happened. Title is not divested automatically upon the happening of the event or condition, but some affirmative action on the part of the grantor or his successors is necessary to bring about a forfeiture or reversion of the estate, and this is true even though the conveyance expressly provides for a reversion." Halvorsen v. Pacific County, 156 P.2d 907 (Wash. 1945) (citing Thompson on Real Property).

(n17)Footnote 17. Lynch v. Bunting, 29 A.2d 155 (Del. 1942).

(n18)Footnote 18. Carpender v. New Brunswick, 39 A.2d 40 (N.J. 1944).

In Iowa a "defeasible or qualified estate" was defined as "a fee which has a qualification subjoined thereto, and which must be determined whenever the qualification annexed to it is at an end. The estate is a fee, because by a possibility it may endure forever in a man and his heirs; yet, as that duration depends upon the concurrence of collateral circumstances, which qualify and debase the purity of the donation, it is therefore a qualified or base fee. During its continuance such a fee has all the incidents of a fee simple. The owner of such a fee cannot alone convey a perfect title to the property, and if he conveys in fee the determinable quality of the estate follows the transfer." Staack v. Detterding, 161 N.W. 44 (Iowa 1917).

(n19)Footnote 19. Frazier v. Wood, 255 N.W. 647, modified, 257 N.W. 768 (Iowa 1934); Mills v. Tyus, 23 S.E.2d 259 (Ga. 1942).

The common law fee simple conditional was abolished by the statute de donis. Sconce v. Neece, 268 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1954).

If the limitation on alienation is so interwoven with the deed as to be part thereof, the deed is treated as defeasible estate and upon alienation the estate terminates. Floyd v. Hoover, 234 S.E.2d 89 (Ga. App. 1977).

(n20)Footnote 20. Story v. First Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 156 So. 101 (1934).

(n21)Footnote 21. Henderson v. Western Carolina Power Co., 157 S.E. 425 (N.C. 1931).

(n22)Footnote 22. CoLitt, § 58.

So if a disseisor died, his heirs inherited the land and the entry of the disseisee was tolled and he was required to sue a writ of entrie sur disseisin against disseisor's heir to recover the land. Littleton, Tenures, § 385.

(n23)Footnote 23. Digby, History of Real Property, ch. 2, § 9.

Where a deed provided that the grant was subject to an agreement and the habendum required the deed was in fee simple and the agreement contained a reverter clause the deed was held to incorporate the condition of the contract so that a defeasible fee was created. Hardman v. Dahlonega-Lumpkin County Chamber of Commerce, 233 S.E.2d 753 (Ga. 1977).

(n24)Footnote 24. Assize of Mort d'Ancestor and Novel Disseisin, Assizes of Northampton 1176 and Assize of Clarendon 1166. See 1 Pollock and Maitland, History of English Law, 124.

(n25)Footnote 25. William F. Fratcher, Defeasance as a Restrictive Device in Michigan, 32 Mich. L. Rev. 505 (1954).

(n26)Footnote 26. 2 Bl. Comm. 198, maintained, however, that the disseisor obtained a mere naked right of possession, the disseisee retaining both the right of possession and right of property.

(n27)Footnote 27. Portington's Case, 10 Coke 35a. See Murdock v. Deal, 182 S.E. 466 (N.C. 1935).

(n28)Footnote 28. See Restatement, Property, § 23, Comment d.

(n29)Footnote 29. Harrison v. Foote, 30 S.W. 838 (Tex. Civ. App. 1895).

A like result attended the violation of a condition annexed to a life estate where the condition recited "To have and to hold the above rented premises unto the said party of the second part, his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, for the full term of while he shall wish to live in Albert Lea, from and after the 1st day of December, 1904." Thompson v. Baxter, 119 N.W. 797 (Minn. 1909). See Tallent v. Tallent, 267 Ill. App. 334 (1932); Kirchhof v. Ramsey, 271 N.Y.S. 40 (1934).

Devise in fee with limitation over a death without issue created defeasible fee with executory interest. Jernigan v. Lee, 182 S.E.2d 351 (N.C. 1971).

The difference between an estate on a limitation and an estate on condition is that the estate on limitation terminates at once whereas the estate upon condition does not end until the grantor takes advantage of the breach of condition. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Corp, 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

(n30)Footnote 30. Sperry v. Pond, 5 Ohio 387 (1832).

(n31)Footnote 31. Folts v. Huntley, 7 N.Y. (Wend.) 210 (1831).

(n32)Footnote 32. Warner v. Tanner, 38 Ohio St. 118 (1882). See Jenkins v. Clyde Coal Co., 48 N.W. 970 (Iowa 1891); Brown v. Fowler, 63 N.E. 76 (Ohio 1902); Hooks v. Forst, 30 A. 846 (Pa. 1895).

(n33)Footnote 33. Mann v. Jackson, 24 A. 886 (Me. 1892); Thompson v. Thompson, 175 S.W.2d 885 (Mo. 1943); Cumberland v. Buck, 82 A. 418 (N.J. 1912); Findley v. Conneaut, 27 Ohio Op. 46, 12 Ohio Supp. 161 (1943); Franklin v. Margay Oil Corp., 153 P.2d 486 (Okla. 1944).

(n34)Footnote 34. See in general: Phelps v. Bates, 5 A. 301 (Conn. 1886); Loomis v. G. F. Heublein & Bro., 99 A. 483 (Conn. 1916); Coquillard v. Coquillard, 113 N.E. 474 (Ind. App. 1916); Staack v. Detterding, 161 N.W. 44 (Iowa 1917); Murphy v. Murphy, 207 S.W. 491 (Ky. 1919); Zubler v. Porter, 120 A. 194 (N.J. 1923); Henderson v. Western Carolina Power Co., 157 S.E. 425 (N.C. 1931); Stephens County v. Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas Co., 254 S.W. 290 (Tex. 1923).

Reverter clause appearing at end of description in a deed held invalid. Whetsell v. Jernigan, 223 S.E.2d 397 (N.C. 1976).

(n35)Footnote 35. Allen v. Great Neck Free Church, 269 N.Y.S. 341 (1934).

(n36)Footnote 36. Church in Brattle Square v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray)142 (1855).

(n37)Footnote 37. Pure Oil Co. v. Miller-McFarland Drilling Co., 34 N.E.2d 854 (Ill. 1941); Stearns v. Godfrey, 16 Me. 158 (1839); Ashley v. Warner, 77 Mass. (11 Gray)43 (1858); Hoselton v. Hoselton, 65 S.W. 1005 (Mo. 1901); Miller v. Levi, 44 N.Y. 489 (1871); Williams v. Jones, 60 N.E. 240 (N.Y. 1901); Scheetz v. Fitzwater, 5 Pa. 126 (1847); Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. 335 (1869).

See Connecticut Junior Republic Ass'n v. Litchfield, 174 A. 304 (Conn. 1934).

Accord: Restatement, Property, § 23, Comment b.

The distinction between an estate upon condition, and the limitation by which an estate is determined upon the happenings of some event, is, that in the latter case the estate reverts to the grantor, or passes to the person to whom it is granted by limitation over, upon the mere happening of the event upon which it is limited, without any entry or other act, while in the former, the reservation can only be made to the grantor or his heirs and an entry upon breach of the condition is requisite to revest the estate. The provision for re-entry is therefore the distinctive characteristic of an estate upon condition; and when it is found that by any form of expression the grantor has reserved the right upon the happening of any event, to re-enter, and thereby revest in himself his former estate, it may be construed as such. Attorney General v. Merrimack Mfg. Co., 80 Mass. (14 Gray)586 (1860).

Estates on limitation end when the contingency happens. Estates upon condition subsequent continue until those entitled thereto take advantage of the breach. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Corp., 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

(n38)Footnote 38. Littleton, Tenures, § 380.

(n39)Footnote 39. Seymour's Case, 10 Coke 95b.

(n40)Footnote 40. Stuart v. Easton, 170 U.S. 383 (1898); First Universalist Soc'y v. Boland, 29 N.E. 524 (Mass. 1892).

(n41)Footnote 41. Hopson v. Hopson, 138 S.W.2d 365 (Ky. 1940).

(n42)Footnote 42. Mann v. Jackson, 24 A. 886 (Me. 1892).

So long as she remain single but if she remarry then over created a valid determinable fee. Lewis v. Searles, 452 S.W.2d 153 (Mo. 1970).

"So long as she remains single" created a defeasible fee. Lewis v. Searles, 452 S.W.2d 153 (Mo. 1970).

(n43)Footnote 43. Harmon v. Brown, 58 Ind. 207 (1877); Staack v. Detterding, 161 N.W. 44 (Iowa 1917); Maddox v. Yoe, 88 A. 225 (Md. 1913)Leonard v. Burr, 18 N.Y. 96 (1858); Warner v. Tanner, 38 Ohio St. 118 (1882).

(n44)Footnote 44. Stilwell v. Melrose, 15 N.Y. (Hun.) 378 (1878); Dodge v. Stevens, 94 N.Y. 209 (1883). See Loomis v. G. F. Heublein & Bro., 99 A. 483 (Conn. 1916). For further examples of estates upon limitation, see Trosper v. Shoemaker, 227 S.W.2d 176 (Ky. 1949); Hinton v. Bowen, 230 S.W.2d 965 (Tenn. 1950).

(n45)Footnote 45. Steenerson v. Swenson, 199 N.W. 745 (Minn. 1924).

The words "so long as the foregoing land is used for a public school" creates an estate in fee which determines when the grantee ceases to use the land for the designated purpose and, in the absence of words creating a limitation over to a third person, reverts to the grantor. Malone v. Kitchen, 137 N.E. 562 (Ind. App. 1922).

(n46)Footnote 46. Yarbrough v. Yarbrough, 269 S.W. 36 (Tenn. 1925).

Where the language of a deed is sufficient to convey an estate in fee simple, it must be construed to convey such estate unless a less estate is limited by express words or appears to have been granted by construction or operation of law. The estate cannot be cut down by inference from language of an ambiguous character. Hubbard v. Buddemeier, 159 N.E. 229 (Ill. 1927). See Libby v. Winston, 93 So. 631 (Ala. 1922).

Under a limitation over to a brother of the grantee on the grantee dying without issue the heirs of the brother take under the grantor and not under the grantee. Stevens v. Wooten, 130 S.E. 13 (N.C. 1925).

(n47)Footnote 47. Magness v. Kerr, 254 P. 1012 (Or. 1927).

(n48)Footnote 48. Hoselton v. Hoselton, 65 S.W. 1005 (Mo. 1901); Smith v. Smith, 23 Wis. 176 (1868).

(n49)Footnote 49. Stearns v. Godfrey, 16 Me. 158 (1839); Smith v. White, 5 Neb. 405 (1877).

(n50)Footnote 50. See Alexander v. Morris, 270 S.W. 88 (Ark. 1925); Lonas v. Silver, 195 N.Y.S. 214 (N.Y. App. 1922); First Reformed Dutch Church v. Croswell, 206 N.Y.S. 132 (N.Y. App. 1924); Wilder v. Kress, 194 N.Y.S. 204 (1922); Community of Priests v. Byrne, 255 S.W. 601 (Tex. Com. App. 1923).

A condition is to be carefully distinguished from a limitation. It is the character and quality of the estate granted, and not the terms used in their creation, that distinguish them. The latter requires no entry to determine the estate, but terminates it ipso facto by the happening of the event referred to, while the former is determined only by the re-entry of the grantor or his heirs for the condition broken. Bryan v. Spires, 3 Pa. (Brewst) 580 (1869).

(n51)Footnote 51. Storke v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co., 61 N.E.2d 552 (Ill. 1945).

To make a defeasible fee in a grant of a public park, the deed must expressly reserve the right of re-entry in the case of a fee upon a condition subsequent or a provision for automatic termination in the case of a determinable fee. PCK Props., Inc. v. Cuyahoga Falls, 176 N.E.2d 441 (Ohio App. 1960).

(n52)Footnote 52. Wheeler v. Walker, 2 Conn. 196 (1817); Stearns v. Godfrey, 16 Me. 158 (1839), Chapin v. Harris, 90 Mass. (8 Allen) 594 (1864); Owen v. Field, 102 Mass. 90 (1869); Camp v. Cleary, 76 Va. 140 (1882).

Confusing determinable fee and fee upon condition subsequent. Stewart v. Mobley, 500 S.W.2d 246 (Tex. Civ. App. 1973).

(n53)Footnote 53. Loomis v. G.F. Heublein & Bro., 99 A. 483 (Conn. 1916); Portington's Case, 10 Coke 35a.

(n54)Footnote 54. Loomis v. G.F. Heublein & Bro., 99 A. 483. (Conn. 1916); Hutchinson's Estate v. Arnt, 1 N.E.2d 585, reg'h denied, 4 N.E.2d 202 (Ind. 1936); Holekamp Lab. Co. v. State Hwy. Comm'n, 173 S.W.2d 938 (Mo. 1943); Vanatta v. Brewer, 32 N.J. Eq. 268 (1880); Porter v. Porter, 222 P. 971 (Okla. 1923); Bennett v. Robinson, 10 Pa. (Watts) 348 (1840); Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. 335 (1869); In re Machu, L.R. 21 Ch. Div. 838.

(n55)Footnote 55. First Universalist Soc'y v. Boland, 29 N.E. 524 (Mass. 1892); Cumberland v. Buck, 82 A. 418 (N.J. 1912); Slegel v. Herbine, 23 A. 996 (1892).

(n56)Footnote 56. Loomis v. G.F. Heublein & Bro., 99 A. 483 (Conn. 1916); First Universalist Soc'y v. Boland, 29 N.E. 524 (Mass. 1892); Sperry v. Pond, 5 Ohio 387 (1832).

Holding mere surplusage and without effect, a clause at the end of a deed providing that if the land was not occupied for a church of three years it would revert back to the legal grantors. Whetsell v. Jernigan, 229 S.E.2d 183 (N.C. 1976).

(n57)Footnote 57. Starnes v. Hill, 16 S.E. 1011 (N.C. 1893).

(n58)Footnote 58. Restatement, Property, § 23, Comment a.

A limitation marks the period which determines the estate, without any act on the part of him who has the next expectant interest. On the happening of the prescribed contingency, the estate first limited comes at once to an end, and the subsequent estate arises. Church in Brattle Square v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray) 142 (1855). Accord: Restatement, Property, § 23.

(n59)Footnote 59. Mills v. Davison, 35 A. 1072 (N.J. 1896).

(n60)Footnote 60. Knowles v. South County Hosp., 140 A.2d 499 (R.I. 1958).

(n61)Footnote 61. Ludlow v. New York & H.R. Co., 12 N.Y. (Barb.) 440 (1852).

Conditions may be annexed to estates generally, as for years, for life, or in fee. Stewart v. Workman, 102 S.E. 474 (W. Va. 1920).

(n62)Footnote 62. Tallent v. Tallent, 267 Ill. App. 334 (1932).

(n63)Footnote 63. 2 Bl. Comm. 152. Michigan State Bank v. Hastings, 1 Mich. (Doug.) 225 (1844); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887); Saltonstall v. Little, 90 Pa. 422 (1879).

(n64)Footnote 64. Vanhorne v. Dorrance, 2 U.S. (Dall) 304 (1795).

(n65)Footnote 65. Wheeler v. Walker, 2 Conn. 196 (1817).

(n66)Footnote 66. Devine v. Isham, 145 S.W.2d 529 (Ky. 1940); Faith v. Bowles, 37 A. 711 (Md. 1897).

(n67)Footnote 67. Co. Litt., § 201; 2 Bl. Comm. 154; 4 Kent's Comm. 125. Heartsill v. Thompson, 16 So. 2d 507 (Ala. 1944); Wheeler v. Walker, 2 Conn. 196 (1817); Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468 (1863).

(n68)Footnote 68. Wheeler v. Walker, 2 Conn. 196 (1817); Federal Land Bank v. Luckenbill, 13 N.E.2d 531 (Ind. 1938); Nickerson v. Hoover, 115 N.E. 588 (Ind. App. 1917); Michigan State Bank v. Hastings, 1 Mich. (Doug.) 225 (1844); L'Etourneau v. Henquenet, 50 N.W. 1077 (Mich. 1891); Kerens v. St. Louis Union Trust Co., 223 S.W. 645 (Mo. 1920).

(n69)Footnote 69. Bethea v. McCullough, 70 So. 680 (Ala. 1915); Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943); Brown v. State, 5 Colo. 496 (1881); Phillips v. Gannon, 92 N.E. 616 (Ill. 1910); Nowak v. Dombrowski, 107 N.E. 807 (Ill. 1915); Storke v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co., 61 N.E.2d 552 (Ill. 1945); Cunningham v. New York Cent. R. Co., 48 N.E.2d 176 (Ind. App. 1943); Sands v. Church of Ascension and Prince of Peace, 30 A.2d 771 (Md. 1943); Hibbing v. Commissioner of Taxation, 14 N.W.2d 923 (Minn. 1944); Memphis & C.R. Co. v. Neighbors, 51 Miss. 412 (1875); Watson v. Dalton, 18 N.W.2d 658 (Neb. 1945); Carpender v. New Brunswick, 39 A.2d 40 (N.J. 1944); Birdsall v. Grant, 57 N.Y.S. 705 (1899); Helms v. Helms, 49 S.E. 110 (N.C. 1904); Templeton v. Stong, 188 S.W.2d 560 (Tenn. 1945); Miller v. Yorkshire Ins. Co., 297 N.W. 377 (Wis. 1941).

(n70)Footnote 70. Borst v. Simpson, 7 So. 814 (Ala. 1890); First Nat'l Bank v. McIntosh, 79 So. 121 (Ala. 1918); Lucas v. Lucas, 156 S.E. 680 (Ga. 1931); Phillips v. Gannon, 92 N.E. 616 (Ill. 1910); Richards v. Richards, 136 N.E. 417 (Ill. 1922); Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); Department of Public Works v. Porter, 158 N.E. 366 (Ill. 1927); Mercer-Lincoln Pine Knob Oil Co. v. Pruitt, 229 S.W. 374 (Ky. 1921); Frank v. Costigan, 118 A. 114 (Md. 1922); In re Baechler's Will, 202 N.Y.S. 485 (1923); Bullard v. Albion, 217 N.Y.S. 849 (1926); In re Scott's Will, 204 N.Y.S. 478 (1924); Fraley v. Wilkinson, 191 P. 156 (Okla. 1920); Spinks v. First Christian Church, 273 S.W. 815 (Tex. Com. App. 1925). See Dallas v. Etheridge, 253 S.W.2d 640 (Tex. 1952)(to effect construction of condition as subsequent is preferred over condition as precedent).

When a condition precedent embraces several requirements, the estate does not vest until all of them have been fulfilled. Maguire v. Macomb, 127 N.E. 682 (Ill. 1920).

Strict performance is usually required. Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921); Cronin v. Cronin, 145 N.E. 619 (Ill. 1924).

If the condition is never performed title never vests. Pomerleau v. Pomerleau, 124 A. 243 (Me. 1924); Spinks v. First Christian Church, 273 S.W. 815 (Tex. Com. App. 1925).

(n71)Footnote 71. In re Baechler's Will, 202 N.Y.S. 485 (1923)(stating that generally a condition subsequent is created where a condition is annexed requiring continuous action); In re Scott's Will, 204 N.Y.S. 478 (1924).

See the following cases: Sherill v. Sherill, 99 So. 838 (Ala. 1924); Schornick v. Schornick, 220 P. 397 (Ariz. 1923); Goodwin v. Tyson, 268 S.W. 15 (Ark. 1925); Bou v. Willits, 214 P. 519 (Cal. App. 1923); Dean v. Wall, 115 S.E. 78 (Ga. 1922); Richards v. Richards, 136 N.E. 417 (Ill. 1922); Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); Mercer-Lincoln Pineknob Oil Co. v. Pruitt, 229 S.W. 374 (Ky. 1921); Halpin v. Rural Agr. Sch. Dist. No. 9, 194 N.W. 1005 (Mich. 1923); Kent v. Stevenson, 90 So. 241 (Miss. 1922); Hall v. Quinn, 130 S.E. 18 (N.C. 1925); Fraley v. Wilkinson, 191 P. 156 (Okla. 1920); Priddy v. School Dist. No. 78, 219 P. 141 (Okla. 1923); Drace v. Klinedinst, 118 A. 907 (Pa. 1922); Community of Priests v. Byrne, 255 S.W. 601 (Tex. Com. App. 1923).

In construing a clause creating a condition that construction which makes of it a condition subsequent is preferred.

Power v. Power, 130 N.E. 313 (Ill. 1921); Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921); Department of Pub. Works & Bldgs. v. Porter, 158 N.E. 366 (Ill. 1927); Bullard v. Albion, 217 N.Y.S. 849 (1926); In re Scott's Will, 204 N.Y.S. 478 (1924), instead of a condition precedent, but conditions subsequent themselves are not favored. Libby v. Winston, 93 So. 631 (Ala. 1922); Bou v. Willits, 214 P. 519 (Cal. App. 1923); Kent v. Stevenson, 90 So. 241 (Miss. 1921); Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 58 (1927); Hall v. Quinn, 130 S.E. 18 (N.C. 1925); Providence v. Payne, 134 A. 276 (R.I. 1926).

(n72)Footnote 72. Allen v. Trustees of Great Neck Free Church, 269 N.Y.S. 341 (1934); Queen City Park Ass'n v. Gale, 3 A.2d 529 (Vt. 1938).

See Restatement, Property, § 24, defining a condition subsequent" as denoting "that part of the language of a conveyance, by virtue of which upon the occurrence of a stated event the conveyor, or his successor in interest, has the power to terminate the interest which has been created subject to the condition subsequent, but which will continue until this power is exercised."

(n73)Footnote 73. Federal Land Bank v. Luckenbill, 13 N.E.2d 531 (Ind. 1938); Texas Rural Communities v. Avary, 113 S.W.2d 597 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938).

(n74)Footnote 74. Cobban v. Northern Wis. Fair Ass'n, 248 N.W. 463 (Wis. 1933).

(n75)Footnote 75. Blackburn v. White, 147 S.W.2d 7 (Ark. 1941); New York v. Coney Island Fire Dep't, 10 N.Y.S.2d 164 (1939). See Restatement, Property, § 57.

(n76)Footnote 76. Union Colony Co. v. Gallie, 88 P.2d 120 (Colo. 1939).

(n77)Footnote 77. Van Horne v. Dorrance, 2 U.S. (2 Dall.) 304 (1795); Finlay v. King's Lessee, 28 U.S. (3 Pet.) 346 (1830); Rannels v. Rowe, 145 F. 296 (8th Cir. 1906); Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Anniston Mfg. Co., 65 So. 187 (Ala. 1914); First Nat'l Bank v. McIntosh, 79 So. 121 (Ala. 1918); Sheppard v. Thomas, 26 Ark. 617 (1871); Terry v. Taylor, 220 S.W. 42 (Ark. 1920); Mesick v. Sunderland, 6 Cal. 297 (1856); Brannan v. Mesick, 10 Cal. 95 (1858); Gramer v. Sacramento, 41 P.2d 543 (Cal. 1935); Rosecrans v. Pacific Elec. R. Co., 134 P.2d 245 (Cal. 1943); Mayer v. American Security & Trust Co., 33 App. D.C. 391 (1909); Lucas v. Lucas, 156 S.E. 680 (Ga. 1931); Phillips v. Gannon, 92 N.E. 616 (Ill. 1910); Nowak v. Dombrowski, 107 N.E. 807 (Ill. 1915); Hawkins v. Hansen, 139 P. 1022 (Kan. 1914); Robbins v. Gleason, 47 Me. 259 (1859); Osgood v. Abbott, 58 Me. 73 (1870); Chapin v. School Dist. No. 2, 35 N.H. 445 (1857); Shinn v. Roberts, 20 N.J.L. 435 (1845); Martin v. Ballou, 13 N.Y. (Barb.) 119 (1852); Blacksmith v. Fellows, 7 N.Y. 401 (1852); Simms v. Folts Mission Inst., 276 N.Y.S. 145 (1934); Paraffine Oil Co. v. Cruce, 162 P. 716 (Okla. 1916); Stinson v. Oklahoma R. Co., 126 P.2d 260 (Okla. 1942); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887); Jones v. Chesapeake & Ohio R. Co., 14 W. Va. 514 (1878); Rogan v. Walker, 1 Wis. 527 (1853).

(n78)Footnote 78. Jancovech v. Christensen, 195 N.E. 287 (Ind. App. 1935).

(n79)Footnote 79. Finlay v. King's Lessee, 28 U.S. (3 Pet.) 346 (1830); Godding v. Hall, 140 P. 165 (Colo. 1914); Platt v. Platt, 42 Conn. 330 (1875); Phillips v. Gannon, 92 N.E. 616 (Ill. 1910); Tallman v. Snow, 35 Me. 342 (1853); Parker v. Nichols, 24 Mass. (7 Pick.) 111 (1828); Burnett v. Strong, 26 Miss. 116 (1853); Underhill v. Saratoga & W. R. Co., 20 N.Y. (Barb.) 455 (1855), per Allen, J.; New Edgewood Lake Corp. v. Kingston Trust Co., 285 N.Y.S. 130 (1936); Huntley v. McBrayer, 85 S.E. 213 (N.C. 1915); Bell County v. Alexander, 22 Tex. 350 (1858).

(n80)Footnote 80. Hawkins v. Hansen, 139 P. 1022 (Kan. 1914); Earle v. Dawes, 3 Md. Ch. 230 (1849), per Johnson, Ch.; Shinn v. Roberts, 20 N.J.L. 435 (1845).

(n81)Footnote 81. Ga. Code Ann. § 44-6-41 (1991).

(n82)Footnote 82. American Emigrant Co. v. Adams, 100 U.S. 61 (1879); Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Anniston

Mfg. Co., 65 So. 187 (Ala. 1914); Kampman v. Kampman, 135 S.W. 905 (Ark. 1911); Weller v. Brown, 117 P. 517 (Cal. 1911); Lewis v. Lewis, 51 A. 854 (Conn. 1902); Self v. Billings, 77 S.E. 562 (Ga. 1913); Bald v. Nuernberger, 108 N.E. 724 (Ill. 1915); Patterson v. Patterson, 122 S.W. 169 (Ky. 1909); Frenchville v. Gagnon, 91 A. 951 (Me. 1914); Butterhof v. Butterhof, 86 A. 394 (N.J. 1913); Post v. Weil, 22 N.E. 145 (N.Y. 1889).

(n83)Footnote 83. Reaney v. Wall, 60 A.2d 505 (Conn. 1948)(to son but if he died without children "to revert" to sisters created a defeasible fee); Goldberger v. Goldberger, 102 A.2d 338 (Del. 1954)(to A. and her heirs but if she die without heirs created fee simple defeasible); Trimble v. Fairbanks, 76 S.E.2d 16 (Ga. 1953); Kellogg v. Meadows, 215 S.W.2d 951 (Ky. 1948)(devise to two persons and to survivor created a defeasible fee in each); Olson v. Lisco, 30 N.W.2d 910 (Neb. 1948)(devise in trust until 30 "and in case of death" over created a fee defeasible on death before 30 not a life estate).

(n84)Footnote 84. Church in Brattle Square v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray) 142 (1855); First Universalist Soc'y v. Boland, 29 N.E. 524 (Mass. 1892). See Milton I. Goldstein, Possibilities of Reverter as Devises to Restrict the Use of Land, 54 Harv. L. Rev. 248 (1940).

Where a deed provided that the grant was subject to an agreement and the addendum required the deed to be in fee simple and the agreement contained a reverter clause the deed was held to incorporate the condition of the contract so that a defeasible fee was created. Hardman v. Dahlonega-Lumpkin County Chamber of Commerce, 233 S.E.2d 753 (Ga. 1977).

(n85)Footnote 85. Bradford v. Federal Land Bank of New Orleans, 338 So. 2d 388 (1976).

(n86)Footnote 86. Id.

(n87)Footnote 87. Id.

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.02

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.02 Fee Simple Determinable.n88

[Go To Supp]

While the use of the words "et hereditibus suis" in a feoffment created an estate capable of descending and thus a fee, it did not give rise to a perpetual estate. The consideration of the feoffment was in future, the rendition of the feudal dues, not immediate. When the payment of such future consideration ceased the reason for the existence of the estate ended and the estate itself ceased to exist or "determined." Thus the fee was not perpetual. Such an estate was known as a "base fee." n89

Littleton does not seem to have distinguished between estates upon limitations and estates upon condition. n90 Coke, however, noticed that durante, diem donec, quosque, usque ad tambieu and ubicunque were words of limitation rather than of condition. n91 Prior to quia emptores Bracton had recognized a determinable fee. n92

Digby n93 pointed out that Bracton n94 had indicated that prior to quia emptores a tenant could grant away the whole of his estate. Magna Charta, n95 however, prohibited a freeman from selling his land except that the residue bear the feudal service. It would appear, however, that escheats, marriages and wardships, three of the most onerous of the feudal burdens were being avoided by the practice of B the feoffee of A subinfeudating to C. C not being the tenant of A, escheat and wardship were lost to A on the death of C.

To avoid this situation the dominant lords during the reign of Edward I caused the passage of the Statute Quia Emptores Terrarum. n96 This statute had the effect of causing all such subinfeudees to hold immediately of the feoffer not the feoffee. The transferee thus stepped into the transferor's shoes, and every alienation was thenceforth, except at the level of the tenant in capite, a complete alienation. The relation of lord and tenant as to tenancies remaining, gradually weakened and was finally destroyed completely by the statute of Charles II. n97 Sometimes by statute, lapse of time converts fee simple determinables into fee simple absolutes. n98 Quia emptores therefore had the exact opposite effect for which it was intended. It destroyed the feudal system.

Under the concept of the base fee, the terre tenant while he held a fee which was alienable so as to cut off the heirs was still subject to termination at a time uncertain upon such termination the property returned to the grantor. Thus the grantor retained at all times a future interest in the property in the nature of a reversion. Quia emptores prevented the creation of such reversions in the future. Thus it became impossible to create a fee simple in England and at the same time reserve an interest in the grantor. n99 In most of the states in this country, quia emptores terrorum became a part of the common law.

Gray in his landmark work on perpetuities maintained n100 that after quia emptores no fee could be created which would be of indefinite duration terminating of its own weight with the estate reverting to the feoffer. n101

Blackstone, n102 however, mentions an example of a grant to A and his heirs, tenants of the manor of Dale. And Sheppard n103 refers to one and his heirs "so long as J. S. shall have heirs of his body" ("and this is a determinable fee and not a fee tail; but it should seem a devise to A, B and his heirs so long as he shall have heirs of his body is an estate tail").

In this country, however, from early times n104 the determinable fee has been recognized. n105 When one creates a determinable fee he does not transfer all that he has. What he retains is a future interest in land usually referred to as a possibility of reverter. n106

A determinable fee is one in which a person is invested with a fee simple title subject to be divested upon the happening of some contingency in a will as by death before the time fixed for the taking effect of the devise. n107 A "determinable fee" has been defined as a fee-simple estate to a person and his heirs, with a qualification annexed providing that it must terminate whenever the qualification is at an end. n108 On the happening of the contingency the estate is at an end without any further act on the part of the grantor or his heirs. n109 In a determinable estate, the condition is incorporated into, and forms a part of, the limitation or grant. n110 They are sometimes termed modified fees and include what is generally designated "base fees." Such estates are recognized in some states and are descendible. n111 They are fees because they may last forever. n112

The terms "base fee," "qualified fee," and "determinable fee" have been used promiscuously n113 as descriptive of estates, which have a qualification subjoined thereto, and which may be determined whenever the qualifications annexed are at an end. n114 A "base fee" has been defined as an estate or fee which has a qualification subjoined thereto and which must be determined whenever the qualification annexed to it is at an end. n115 It is a type of estate designated in the Restatement of the Law of Property as an "estate in fee simple defeasible." n116 A qualification annexed to a base, qualified or determinable fee may be a qualification attaching itself to the use of the land or concerning the happening of a more strictly collateral event. n117 A determinable or qualified fee has all the attributes of a fee simple, n118 except that it is subject to be defeated by the happening of the condition, n119 the grantor retains at most a mere possibility of reverter. n120 One who is seised of a determinable fee may convey his estate, but his grantee will ordinarily take it subject to the same conditions or imperfections which adhered to it originally. n121 Any limitation in a fee simple which provides that the estate shall terminate automatically upon the happening of a stated event creates a determinable fee. n122

A gift of a fee with a limitation over on death of the first taker before the second creates a determinable fee subject to a conditional limitation. n123 A base or determinable fee arises upon a devise to one and upon the happening of a stated contingency then over to another. n124

An estate which is to continue until the happening of a certain event is not upon a condition subsequent, because upon the happening of that event the estate ceases by its own limitation without a re-entry by the grantor. Such an estate is a fee, because it may last forever. It is determinable, because it may end by the happening of the event named. n125 Under a will directing the division of the testor's estate between his children on the death or remarriage of his widow, and providing that if either or both children die before such event an interest is vested in the testator's grandchild, the children take a base fee subject to termination by death before arrival of the time for distribution. n126

A gift of a fee with a limitation over on death of the first taker before the second creates a determinable fee subject to conveyance of land to a school district, subject to a covenant that the land should be used for school purposes, and that when such use should cease the property should revert to the grantor, vests in the grantee a qualified fee. Until the happening of such event the grantor is not vested with any title or interest in the land or in the reversion, for the contingency upon which the land is to revert may never happen. Under the older law he has nothing to convey, and his deed in expectancy of a reverter vests no interest in the grantee, but is wholly without legal force or effect. n127

Where a deed to a church provided that the title would revert to the grantor whenever the property should cease to be occupied for a church, the estate passing to the church was a determinable or qualified fee, n128 but a deed containing a provision that if the lands conveyed should cease to be used for railroad and station purposes, they should revert to the grantor, followed by the habendum clause which was not only unqualified, but ended with the words "to their use and behoof forever," was held not to convey a determinable fee. n129 A grant to a religious society to hold so long as the society shall support certain specified doctrines, the deed reciting that when the land is devoted to other purposes "then the title of said society or its assigns shall forever cease" created a determinable fee. The grant in such case is not upon a condition subsequent, and no re-entry is necessary because by the terms of the grant the estate is to continue so long as the real estate shall be devoted to the specified uses, and when it shall no longer be so devoted, then the estate will cease and determine by its own limitation. n130

A base or determinable fee may be created to continue so long as the land is devoted to a particular use, n131 such as a conveyance of particularly described real estate "to be used for railroad purposes only," n132 or for church purposes. n133 The estate may be made to terminate upon the accomplishment of a particular purpose, such as the cutting and removal of the timber from the land. n134

Upon the birth of a determinable fee the creator retains an interest generally referred to as a possibility of reverter. n135 Because of the minimal quality of the possibility of a reverter, however, the holder of the determinable fee for some purposes is considered the sole owner of the fee. n136 A remainder cannot be created to follow a determinable fee, but such determinable fee is sometimes followed by an executory limitation shifting the estate to a person other than the immediate devisee or grantee upon the happening of the event terminating the defeasible estate. n137 The holder of the determinable fee is not liable for waste. He may thus mine or lease the profits or create a mineral severance. But all of such interests are subject to the ultimate defeasance where the fee determines.

The determinable fee has all of the rights of a fee simple absolute as long as the event which terminates it does not occur. n138 So the present owner has the right of use and control of the property. n139

The majority rule does not require an express reservation of a possibility of reverter in order to create a determinable fee. n140

While the retention of a reverter clause is sometimes found to be necessary in a fee upon condition subsequent its presence in a fee simple determinable may indicate a limitation over instead of a possibility of reverter. n141

Where a deed provided that the grantee should not sell or dispose of the land conveyed without first obtaining the consent of the grantor, a base or qualified fee was held created. n142 The holder of a determinable or qualified fee has the same rights and privileges respecting the property as the owner in fee simple, except the former has not the same right of alienation as the latter. n143 If the owner of such fee make conveyance in fee, the determinable quantity of the estate follows the transfer. n144 A determinable estate is one of inheritance, but the heirs of a person dying seised of such estate take it burdened with the limitations fixing its character, and this continues until title is divested by the happening of the specific contingency or the estate is released therefrom by such happening becoming impossible. n145 The proper words for the creation of such an estate are "until," "during," "so long as," and the like. n146

Stock in trust for twenty-one years, and then to be divided, and if any death, then to heirs or children, was held a determinable fee, and, on death before twenty-one years passed to children and not under beneficiary's will. n147 Where grant of school lands contained reverter clause, school, on abandonment, could sell buildings and allow land to revert under the 1857 statutes. n148

The major difference between a determinable fee and a fee upon condition subsequent is whether the estate terminates automatically on the occurrence of a stated event which is a fee simple determinable or whether the conveyor has the power to terminate it if he desires to do so in which event it is a fee upon a condition subsequent. n149

Determinable fees may also bear close resemblance to leases, to easements or to life estates. Since at common law all chattels real except tenancies at will were of necessity for a stated period, any gift for an indefinite time created a determinable fee. n150 There is no such legal distinction separating determinable fees and easements. The legal result must depend on the language used and the parties' intent. n151 The consequences of the existence of one or the other are quite different however. n152

In Texas and Mississippi the grantee of a customary "lease" for oil and gas purposes obtains a determinable fee. n153 Where the granting clause refers only to a "right," an easement, not a determinable fee is conveyed, unless the entire instrument shows a contrary intent. If the granting clause conveys "land" the deed transfers a fee. n154 The holder of a determinable fee may drill for oil, n155 but the holder of an easement may not. n156 The transfer of land subject to an easement carries the fee free from the easement when it terminates. n157

The cases are divided as to whether to "A as long as she remains my widow" creates a fee simple determinable or a determinable life estate. n158 A will devising "all my realty after all my just debts are paid" to my wife "so long as she remains my widow" shows an intention on the part of the testator to create a defeasible fee and not a defeasible life estate. n159 The holders of limitations over after a determinable fee cannot charge the tenant with waste during the duration of the fee. n160

A determinable fee terminates upon the happening of an event named in the instrument creating the estate. No forfeiture occurs when the estate terminates and no notice of termination is required. n161 Thus, where land is conveyed for educational, religious or public purposes, and it appears to be the intention of the parties that the estate shall end when it ceases to be used for such purpose, entry by the grantor is not necessary to terminate the estate. n162

In some areas, as will be seen hereafter, the determinable fee is not considered to ripen into a fee simple absolute if a limitation over is void for remoteness. In some states the doctrine of substantial compliance of conditions subsequent has been applied to fee simples determinable as well. n163 The cases are divided as to whether buildings placed on a determinable fee revert with the land. n164

The holder of a determinable fee cannot convey a good title n165 and is not entitled to specific performance of a contract to convey. n166 A defeasible or determinable fee is freely alienable subject to the divesting of the grantee's estate upon the happening of the event. n167 Where a determinable fee is created out of a portion of a tract, a conveyance of the entire tract causes the possibility of reverter even though the deed to the larger tract excepts the earlier deed. n168 But when the fee determines the weight of authority gives the improvements to the holder of the possibility of reverter. n169 A fixture passed to the holder of a possibility of reverter when a determinable fee ended. n170 The courts have taken diverse positions with respect to construction of ambiguous language as creating a determinable fee. Ordinarily the power of forfeitures which operates against construction of fees upon conditions subsequent does not apply to determinable fees. n171 Some courts, however, favor construction of fees upon condition subsequent over determinable fees, n172 and fee simple absolutes are always preferred over either. Some courts have adopted the strict construction rule favoring fee simple absolutes over determinable fees. n173

A few cases are to be found where the substantial compliance doctrine applicable to fees upon condition subsequent n174 is used in the case of determinable fees. n175 Marketable title statutes and limitation of actions statutes have been used to convert determinable fees into fee simple absolutes. n176 Some cases have likened fee simples determinable to fees upon condition subsequent in finding that the absence of an express possibility of reverter indicates a fee simple absolute. n177

Since a fee simple determinable title ends of itself, the holder of the defeated fee does not reacquire title until adverse possession has run, whereas a shorter period of statutory limitation of actions may bar a fee upon condition subsequent. n178 A determinable conditional fee may be conveyed, but the grantee takes title subject to the conditions with which it is impressed. n179

Where by statute the necessity for the use of words of limitation has been obviated, a problem not infrequently arises as to whether language creates a determinable fee or a determinable life estate. This is especially true where an estate is given during widowhood. The cases are divided as to whether a determinable fee or a determinable life estate arises. n180

The termination of a determinable fee automatically happens upon the occurrence of the event, n181 and this cannot be waived or avoided by the acquiescence of the grantor or grantee since it occurs independent of their will. n182 So held that a fixture passed to the holder of a possibility of reverter when a determinable fee ended. n183 In Texas the lessee under an oil and gas lease acquires title to the oil and gas in place, as his interest is a determinable fee. n184

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 88. Ferrier, Determinable Fees and Fees Upon Condition in California, 24 Cal. L. Rev. 512; Powell, Determinable Fees, 23 Colum. L. Rev. 207; Blake, Fees Simple Defeasible, 27 Ky. J. 424; Pope, Construction of Determinable Fees by the North Carolina Court, 8 Duke B.A.J. 100; McCall, Estates on Condition and on Special Limitation in North Carolina, 19 N.C. L. Rev. 334; O'Connell, Estates on Condition Subsequent and Estates on Special Limitation in Oregon, 18 Or. L. Rev. 63; Vance, Rights of Reverter and the Statute Quia Emptores, 36 Yale L.J. 593.

Fee simple determinable or conditional in South Carolina. Purvis v. McElveen, 106 S.E.2d 913 (S.C. 1959).

Kentucky has abolished the fee simple determinable and possibility of reverter and has converted this into a "fee simple subject to a right of entry for condition broken." Ky. Rev. Stat., § 381.218.

The right of entry dies after 30 years from the effective date of the instrument. Ky. Rev. Stat., § 381.219.

Limitations over after defeasible fees are valid for 30 years after breach regardless of the rule against perpetuities. Ky. Rev. Stat., § 381.219.

See Joe O. Sams, Jr., Application of the Doctrine of Shelley v. Kraemer to the Determinable Fee, 33 Miss. L.J. 200 (1962); Comment, Abandonment of School Sites in Fee Simple Determinable Estates, 25 Mo. L. Rev. 446 (1960); Howard R. Williams, Restrictions on the Use of Land: Conditions Subsequent and Determinable Fees, 27 Tex. L. Rev. 158 (1948).

Devise to wife and daughter and their descendants with interest of each to pass to the other if died without issue, created a defeasible fee and not a mere life estate. Bradford v. Federal Land Bank of New Orleans, 338 So. 2d 388 (Miss. 1976).

(n2)Footnote 89. Richard B. Powell, Determinable Fees, 23 Colum. L. Rev. 207 (1923).

(n3)Footnote 90. Littleton, Tenures, § 380.

(n4)Footnote 91. Co. Litt., § 235a. See 2 Bl. Comm. 155 and 1 Coke Inst. 234, 10 Coke 41.

(n5)Footnote 92. 4 Bracton, ch. 28, f. 207, recognized that a freehold could be held for an indefinite period until an event happens or does not happen, i.e., the modern fee simple determinable.

(n6)Footnote 93. Digby, History of Real Property, ch. 3, §§ 11, 14.

(n7)Footnote 94. 2 Bracton, ch. 19, f. 45.

(n8)Footnote 95. (1217), ch. 39.

(n9)Footnote 96. 18 Edward I, ch. I, Statute of Westminster III.

The statute provided in part: "Et sciendum quod estud statutum locom tenet de -- terris venditis tenendis in feodo simpliciter tantum; et quod se extendit ad tempus futurum." Hence applied only to fee simple not fee tail which had come into being five years before under de donis. See Challis, Real Property, 22, also § 1848.

8 Holdsworth 193 ascribed the statute, however, to Bracton's views against restrictions on alienation. It is possible that the abuse of the feudal concept of wardship avoided by the subinfeudation and restored by quia emptores promoted the scheme of the use which developed during the next two centuries.

(n10)Footnote 97. 12 Carl. II, ch. 24.

(n11)Footnote 98. Fee simple determinable became fee simple absolute after 30 years. Mass. 184A-7.

(n12)Footnote 99. 3 Holdsworth 165.

(n13)Footnote 100. See Gray, Perpetuities (4th ed.) §§ 31-40, where the question is discussed and authorities are cited. Mr. Challis, in his Law of Real Property (2d ed.), Appendix iv. p. 398, in answer to "the learned and ingenious arguments" of Professor Gray against the validity of determinable fees, who declares that Sanders was the first author to distinctly state that the statute put an end to qualified fees, among other things, said: "That a cardinal result of the statute quia emptores should be left to be discovered by Sanders, in the nineteenth century, seems to me, I confess, what Chillingworth calls 'extremely improbable, and even cousingerman to impossible.' That Lord Coke, Plowden, Croke, Sir Henry Finch, Lord Nottingham, the author of the Touchstone, Sergeant Maynard, Vaughan, Treby, Powell, Lord Hardwicke, Preston, Fearne, Butler, Watkins (to put together at random the names of a few men who have believed with unquestioning faith in the existence of determinable fees since the statute), should have passed their lives in intimate familiarity with the statute without any one of them lighting or stumbling upon what, if it were true, would be a fairly obvious truth, is not a hypothesis to be accepted, unless no other rational explanation of the language of the statute can be found." For further discussion of this subject, see Lyford v. Laconia, 72 A. 1085 (N.H. 1909).

Fee simple determinable or upon condition subsequent becomes fee simple absolute after 30 years except in case of public or charitable or interests. Maine Rev. Stat. 1964, § 33-103.

(n14)Footnote 101. 1 Saunders, Uses (5th ed.), 208 and Gray, The Rule Against Perpetuities (3rd ed.), §§ 20-42, both feel that quia emptores had done away with the determinable fee. But in Walsingham's case, 2 Plowd 577, "as long as the church of St. Paul shall stand" was good.

(n15)Footnote 102. 2 Bl. Comm. 109, 154, 155.

2 Bl. Comm. 109. "A base, or qualified fee, is such a one as hath a qualification subjoined thereto, and which must be determined whenever the qualification annexed to it is at an end. As, in the case of a grant to A. and his heirs, tenants of the manor of Dale; in this instance, whenever the heirs of A. cease to be tenants of that manor, the grant is entirely defeated. So, when Henry VI granted to John Talbot, lord of the manor of Kingston-Lisle in Berks, that he and his heirs, lords of the said manor, should be peers of the realm, by the title of barons of Lisle; here John Talbot had a base or qualified fee in that dignity, and the instant he or his heirs quitted the seigniory of this manor the dignity was at an end. This estate is a fee, because by possibility it may endure forever in a man and his heirs; yet as that duration depends upon the concurrence of collateral circumstances, which qualify and debase the purity of the donation, it is therefore a qualified or base fee."

4 Bracton, ch. 28, f. 207, recognized a type of freehold for an indefinite period. "Item ut liberum tenementum sicut ad vitam, tantum vel eodim modo ad tempus indeterminatum absque aliqua certa temporis praefinitione scilicit donec quid feat vel non feat ut si dicatur do tali donec ei providero." (Land is also held as freehold when it is held only for life or for an indefinite period without any fixed limit of time as for instance until such a thing happens or does not happen as if it be said, "I give to such a one until I provide for him.")

(n16)Footnote 103. Touchstone of Common Assurances, 477. See also 101. And see Walsingham's Case, 2 Plowd 557, "as long as the Church of St. Paul shall stand."

See the following cases: Roberds v. Markham, 81 F. Supp. 38 (D.D.C. 1948)(determinable fees were recognized both at common law and in the District of Columbia); Carr v. Georgia R. Co., 74 Ga. 73 (1884); Wiggins Ferry Co. v. Ohio & M. R. Co., 94 Ill. 83 (1879); Fifty Associates v. Howland, 52 Mass. (11 Met.) 99 (1846); Brattle Square Church v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray) 142 (1855); Easterbrooks v. Tillinghast, 71 Mass. (5 Gray) 17 (1855); Ashley v. Warner, 77 Mass. (11 Gray) 43 (1858); Attorney General v. Merrimack Mfg. Co., 80 Mass. (13 Gray) 586 (1860); Jamaica Pond Aqueduct v. Chandler, 91 Mass. (9 Allen) 159 (1864); Owen v. Field, 102 Mass. 90 (1869); State v. Brown, 27 N.J.L. (3 Dutch) 13 (1858); Leonard v. Burr, 18 N.Y. 96 (1858); Gillespie v. Broas, 23 N.Y. (Barb.) 370 (1856); Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. 335 (1869).

(n17)Footnote 104. Denver & Santa Fe R. Co. v. School Dist. No. 22, 23 P. 978 (Colo. 1890); North v. Graham, 85 N.E. 267 (Ill. 1908); Mendenhall v. First New Church Soc'y, 98 N.E. 57 (Ind. 1912); Staack v. Detterding, 161 N.W. 44 (Iowa 1917); Institution for Sav. v. Roxbury Home for Aged Women, 139 N.E. 301 (Mass. 1923); School Dist. No. 5 v. Everett, 17 N.W. 926 (Mich. 1883); In re Douglass' Estate, 143 N.W. 299 (Neb. 1913); Lyford v. Laconia, 72 A. 1085 (N.H. 1909); Jordan v. Goldman, 34 P. 371 (Okla. 1891); Congregational Soc'y v. Stark, 34 Vt. 243 (1861).

See Gray on Perpetuities (4th ed.), 15-47; John Maxey Zane Determinable Fees in American Jurisdictions, 17 Harv. L. Rev. 297 (1904); Richard R.B. Powell Determinable Fees, 23 Colum. L. Rev. 207 (1923); William R. Vance The Quest for Tenure, 33 Yale U. 248 (1923); W.R. Vance Rights of Reverter and Statute Quia Emptores, 36 Yale L. J. 593 (1927); Charles A. Graves Estates upon Condition, 5 Va. L. Rev. 373 (1918); W. W. Jr. Determinable Fees and Fees upon Condition, 24 Cal. L. Rev. 512 (1936); 27 Halsbury Laws of England (2d ed.), 665.

(n18)Footnote 105. Scott County Bd. of Educ. v. Pepper, 311 S.W.2d 189 (Ky. 1958); Ohm v. Clear Creek Drainage Dist., 45 N.W.2d 117 (Neb. 1950); Oldfield v. Stoeco Homes, Inc., 139 A.2d 291 (N.J. 1958); Betts v. Snyder, 19 A.2d 82 (Pa. 1941). See F.E. Farrer, Reverter to Donor on a Determinable Fee, 50 L. Q. Rev. 33 (1934).

Duke v. Sun Oil Co., 320 F.2d 853 (5th Cir. 1963); Etheridge v. United States, 218 F. Supp. 809 (E.D.N.C. 1963); Craig v. Unknown Heirs, 358 P.2d 835 (Okla. 1961); Fremont Lab. Co. v. Starrell Petr. Co., 364 P.2d 773 (Or. 1961); Purvis v. McElveen, 106 S.E.2d 913 (S.C. 1959).

Determinable fee. School Dist. No. 6 v. Russell, 396 P.2d 929 (Colo. 1964).

Fee simple determinable recognized. Idaho Springs v. Golden Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 480 P.2d 847 (Colo. App. 1970).

Recognizing determinable fee. Mayor and City Council of Ocean City v. Taber, 367 A.2d 1233 (Md. 1977).

(n19)Footnote 106. McMahon v. Consistory of St. Paul's Reformed Church, 75 A.2d 122 (Md. 1950)(a possibility of reverter follows upon the creation of a determinable fee).

Where there has been a conveyance of a lot to a school with the retention of a reverter when ceased to be used for school purposes and the grantors later conveyed the property to others but excepted the reversionary interest the title vested in the heirs of the original grantors when the school ceased. Shifton v. Shearaton, 531 S.W.2d 291 (Mo. 1975).

(n20)Footnote 107. Gray v. Gray, 188 S.W.2d 440 (Ky. 1945).

Fee simple determinable arising out of deed conveying land for park purposes and providing for a reversion if not so used. Charlotte v. Charlotte Park & Rec. Comm'n, 178 S.E.2d 601 (N.C. 1971).

(n21)Footnote 108. Brown v. Independent Baptist Church, 91 N.E.2d 922 (Mass. 1950); University of Vt. & State Agrl. College v. Ward, 158 A. 773 (Vt. 1932); Queen City Park Ass'n v. Gale, 3 A.2d 529 (Vt. 1938).

(n22)Footnote 109. Henck v. Lake Hemet Water Co., 69 P.2d 849 (Cal. 1937); University of Vt. & State Agrl. College v. Ward, 158 A. 773 (Vt. 1932)(fee simple determinable dies of itself).

A determinable fee terminates ipso facto. People ex rel. Dep't of Pub. Works v. City of Fresno, 26 Cal. Rptr. 853 (1962).

(n23)Footnote 110. Chouteau v. St. Louis, 55 S.W.2d 299 (Mo. 1932); Donehue v. Nilges, 266 S.W.2d 553 (Mo. 1954).

(n24)Footnote 111. Watson v. Tracy, 133 N.E. 411 (Ind. App. 1921); Moulton v. Trafton, 64 Me. 218 (1874); Farnsworth v. Perry, 22 A. 373 (Me. 1891); Pond v. Douglass, 75 A. 320 (Me. 1909); First Universalist Soc'y v. Boland, 29 N.E. 524 (Mass. 1892).

(n25)Footnote 112. Brown v. Independent Baptist Church, 91 N.E.2d 922 (Mass. 1950).

(n26)Footnote 113. Williams v. McKenzie, 262 S.W. 598 (Ky. 1924); Union Missionary Baptist Church v. Fyke, 64 P.2d 1203 (Okla. 1937); Stubbs v. Abel, 233 P. 852 (Or. 1925); Young v. Lewis, 76 S.E.2d 276 (W. Va. 1953)(Devise for life, remainder to devisee's children, if any, and if none to testator's heirs. Testator's heirs as of testator's death took "base fee" subject to divesting on birth of children).

See Allison Dunham, Possibility of Reverter and Powers of Termination--Fraternal or Identical Twins, 20 U. Chi. L. Rev. 215 (1953).

(n27)Footnote 114. Magnolia Petr. Co. v. Suits, 31 F.2d 205 (D.C. Okla. 1928); Rumble v. Strange, 114 S.E. 881 (Ga. 1922); Dean v. Wall, 115 S.E. 78 (Ga. 1922); McIntyre v. Dietrich, 128 N.E. 321 (Ill. 1920); Weppler v. Hoffine, 29 N.E.2d 204 (Ind. 1940), reh'g denied, 30 N.E.2d 549 (Ind. 1942); Scobey v. Beckman, 41 N.E.2d 847 (Ind. App. 1942); Staack v. Detterding, 161 N.W. 44 (Iowa 1917); Reichard v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 1 N.W.2d 721 (Iowa 1942); Williams v. McKenzie, 262 S.W. 598 (Ky. 1924); Kirchen v. Remenga, 288 N.W. 344 (Mich. 1939); Lyford v. Laconia, 72 A. 1085 (N.H. 1909); Carpenter v. New Brunswick, 39 A.2d 40 (N.J. 1944); Henderson v. Western Carolina Power Co., 157 S.E. 425 (N.C. 1931); Stubbs v. Abel, 233 P. 852 (Or. 1925); Fremont Lab. Co. v. Starrell Petr. Co., 364 P.2d 773 (Or. 1961); Cragin v. Frost Nat'l Bank, 164 S.W.2d 24 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); University of Vt. & State Agrl. College v. Ward, 158 A. 773 (Vt. 1932).

Where the estate conveyed is a "base fee" determinable upon the cessation of the use of the property for a purpose specified in the deed, the possibility of reverter is capable of transmission to the grantees of the owner of the reversion and will pass to them under a conveyance of the reversion. Calhoun v. Hays, 39 A.2d 307 (Pa. 1944).

(n28)Footnote 115. Montgomery v. Montgomery, 181 So. 92 (Ala. 1938).

"Grant, bargain, sold, released and conveyed." with no habendum ettenendum and warranty clauses conveyed only a base or conditional fee in absence of statute. Brookbank v. Benedum-Trees Oil Co., 131 A.2d 103 (Pa. 1957).

(n29)Footnote 116. See Restatement, Property, § 16.

(n30)Footnote 117. Union Missionary Baptist Church v. Fyke, 64 P.2d 1203 (Okla. 1937).

(n31)Footnote 118. Fall Creek School Twp. v. Shuman, 103 N.E. 677 (Ind. App. 1913)("as long as" created a determinable fee); University Scholarship Corp. v. Parduhn, 70 P.2d 84 (Okla. 1937); Mountain City Missionary Baptist Church v. Wagner, 249 S.W.2d 875 (Tenn. 1952).

But a fee simple determinable was chargeable with equitable waste in Board v. Nevada Sch. Dist., 251 S.W.2d 20 (Mo. 1952).

(n32)Footnote 119. Boye v. Boye, 133 N.E. 382 (Ill. 1921)(estate may be possessed, encumbered, sold, and conveyed in the same manner as a fee simple, but the executory interest created by the happening of the condition which terminates such estate cannot be defeated); Goodman v. Heinen, 9 N.E.2d 348 (Ill. App. 1937); Stephenson v. Cavendish, 59 S.E.2d 459 (W. Va. 1950).

(n33)Footnote 120. Connecticut Junior Republic Ass'n v. Litchfield, 174 A. 304 (Conn. 1934).

(n34)Footnote 121. Dunkel v. Homindustries, 9 N.E.2d 949 (N.Y. 1937); In re Voorhee's Will, 106 N.Y.S.2d 699 (1951); Stephenson v. Cavendish, 59 S.E.2d 459 (W. Va. 1950). See Hite v. Barber, 145 S.W.2d 1057 (Ky. 1940).

(n35)Footnote 122. Board v. Nevada Sch. Dist., 251 S.W.2d 20 (Mo. 1952); Sebastian Indep. Sch. Dist. v. Ballenger, 297 S.W.2d 238 (Tex. Civ. App. 1956)("As long as shall be used for floodway" created determinable fee).

Railroad grants prior to 1871 probably created determinable fees. Denver & R.G. R. Co. v. Mills, 222 F. 481 (8th Cir. 1915). After 1871 they created only easements. *Great N. R. Co. v. United States, 315 U.S. 262 (1942)*overruling Union Pac. R. Co. v. Snow, 231 U.S. 204 (1913); St. Onge v. Day, 18 P. 278 (Colo. 1888).

Determinable fee arising out of provision that if property should cease to be used for religious purposes it should revert to the grantor. Roberds v. Markham, 81 F. Supp. 38 (D.D.C. 1948).

Conveyance for use as a parsonage with a reverter clause on cessation of use held a determinable fee. Moore v. Second Congregational Church, 175 P.2d 90 (Colo. 1946).

In Ohio a determinable fee does not arise where there is a reverter clause which follows an absolute grant and which does not contain words of inheritance, i.e., to the grantor and his heirs. First New Jerusalem Church v. Singer, 34 N.E.2d 1007 (Ohio App. 1941).

(n36)Footnote 123. Johnson v. Speer, 279 S.W.2d 711 (Tenn. App. 1954); Pure Oil Co. v. Miller-McFarland Drilling Co., 34 N.E.2d 854 (Ill. 1941)(as long as it shall be used as a church and to revert back to the original owner created a "conditional termination" with a "naked possibility of reverter" in the grantor).

Determinable fee is not converted into a fee simple absolute because of failure of void executory interests. Woman's Club of St. Albans v. James, 213 S.E.2d 469 (W. Va. 1975).

Maryland recognizes a fee simple determinable. Mayor & City Council of Ocean City v. Tabor, 367 A.2d 1233 (Md. 1977).

(n37)Footnote 124. Carr v. Herrmann, 158 N.E.2d 770 (Ill. 1959).

A bequest to trustees in "fee simple" in trust for life of wife then to five nieces and nephews or their heirs gave the trustees a determinable fee with an executory devise to the nephews and nieces. Kanawha Valley Bank v. Hornbeck, 151 S.E.2d 694 (W. Va. 1966).

"As long as" or "until" denotes the determinable fee "upon condition that" or "in the event that" denotes a fee upon condition. Bennett v. Charles Corp., 226 S.E.2d 559 (W. Va. 1976).

(n38)Footnote 125. Phelps v. Bates, 5 A. 301 (Conn. 1886); Loomis v. G. F. Heublein & Bros., 99 A. 483 (Conn. 1916); Lynch v. Bunting, 29 A.2d 155 (Del. 1942), a deed which read: "and the parties of the first part have deeded this land to parties of the second part for the purpose of school and no other purpose and shall be good so long as there is a school house kept on it and a school kept there at the customary time of teaching." The habendum of the deed read as follows: "to have and to hold the lands and premises hereby bargained and sold or intended so to be with the appurtenances thereunto to the said parties of the second part, their heirs and assigns and for the only proper use, benefit and behoof of the said parties of the second part, their heirs and assigns forever, "created a determinable fee; Coquillard v. Coquillard, 113 N.E. 474 (Ind. App. 1916); Staack v. Detterding, 161 N.W. 44 (Iowa 1917); Murphy v. Murphy, 207 S.W. 491 (Ky. 1919); Williams v. McKenzie, 262 S.W. 598 (Ky. 1924); Brown v. Independent Baptist Church, 91 N.E.2d 922 (Mass. 1950); Board v. Nevada Sch. Dist., 251 S.W.2d 20 (Mo. 1952); Zubler v. Porter, 120 A. 194 (N.J.L. 1923); Henderson v. Western Carolina Power Co., 157 S.E. 425 (N.C. 1931). See Elmore v. Austin, 59 S.E.2d 205 (N.C. 1950). Peters v. East Penn Twp. Sch. Dist., 126 A.2d 802 (Pa. Super. 1956)(so long as used for school purposes created a determinable fee though there was no express reverter clause, not a mere statement of purpose); Mountain City Missionary Baptist Church v. Wagner, 249 S.W.2d 875 (Tenn. 1952)(whenever property ceased to be used as a church it would revert created a determinable fee); Stephens County v. Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas Co., 254 S.W. 290 (Tex. 1923).

Provision that land would revert to grantor if grantee predeceased grantor created a fee simple upon a limitation and not upon a condition subsequent. Corley v. Parson, 213 S.E.2d 693 (Ga. 1975).

In McGiboney v. Board of Educ., 387 S.W.2d 869 (Ky. 1965), the court held that a provision that if the intended purpose failed the property should revert to the grantor upon payment of a stated sum created a contract of repurchase not a determinable fee.

Determinable fee ceases automatically while a fee upon condition requires re-entry. Department of Transp. v. Knight, 232 S.E.2d 72 (Ga. 1977).

(n39)Footnote 126. Foreman Trust & Sav. Bank v. Seelenfreund, 161 N.E. 88 (Ill. 1928); Charlotte Park & Rec. Comm'n v. Barringer, 88 S.E.2d 114 (N.C. 1955)(fee simple determinable as long as used by white race only is valid).

A limitation to one and his heirs but if he died without heirs then over created a determinable fee. Stephenson v. Kuntz, 49 S.E.2d 235 (W. Va. 1948). Similar where "death without issue." Turpin v. Jarrett, 37 S.E.2d 124 (N.C. 1946).

Where the husband conveyed property to his wife, reserving to himself a life estate in a one-half interest and providing that if wife predeceased him, all the property would revert to and vest in him, the wife received a base fee defeasible on her dying before her husband, and disposition by the wife is subject to this contingency. Moore v. Moore, 201 S.E.2d 133 (Ga. 1973).

A trust to daughter for life and then to her living children, if any, or, if none, to the settlor's successors created a life estate with alternative contingent remainders with a reversion in the settlor which passed under the terms of his will, not a fee simple determinable. In re Bentley's Estate, 303 N.E.2d 166 (Ill. App. 1973).

(n40)Footnote 127. See in general: Dick v. Darden, 85 So. 369 (Ala. 1920); Denver & S.F.R. Co. v. School Dist.

No. 22, 23 P. 978 (Colo. 1890); Lynch v. Bunting, 29 A.2d 155 (Del. 1942); Wiggins Ferry Co. v. Ohio & M. R. Co., 94 Ill. 83 (1879); Jamaica Pond Aqueduct Co. v. Chandler, 91 Mass. (9 Allen) 159 (1864); Gillespie v. Broas, 23 N.Y. (Barb.) 370 (1856); Leonard v. Burr, 18 N.Y. 96 (1858); Henderson v. Hunter, 59 Pa. 335 (1869); Washburn, Real Property (6th ed.), §§ 955, 970, 971, 1640; 4 Kent's Comm. 9, 10, 129. See also English works, in addition to citations above, Sheppard-Touchstone, Common Assurance, 101; 2 Bl. Comm. 109, 154, 155; 1 Greenleaf-Cruise, Real Property, tit. 4, §§ 72-76; 2 Flint, Real Property, §§ 136-138; Preston, Estates, 431, 441; Challis, Real Property, 197-208.

Base, qualified or determinable fees are recognized in Indiana. Watson v. Tracy, 133 N.E. 411 (Ind. App. 1921).

Language "will revert" indicated a determinable fee rather than a fee upon condition subsequent. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Corp., 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

The Statute Quia Emptores is not considered as having done away with qualified or determinable fees in Massachusetts. Institution for Sav. v. Roxbury Home for Aged Women, 139 N.E. 301 (Mass. 1923).

(n41)Footnote 128. North v. Graham, 85 N.E. 267 (Ill. 1908); Brown v. Trustees of Schools of Twp. No. 5, 85 N.E.2d 747 (Ill. 1949).

(n42)Footnote 129. Dyer v. Siano, 11 N.E.2d 451 (Mass. 1937).

(n43)Footnote 130. Sheppard-Touchstone, 121, 125. First Universalist Soc'y v. Boland, 29 N.E. 524 (Mass. 1892). See Fifty Assocs. v. Howland, 52 Mass. (11 Met.) 99 (1846); Church in Brattle Square v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray) 142 (1855); Easterbrooks v. Tillinghast, 71 Mass. (5 Gray) 17 (1855); Ashley v. Warner, 77 Mass. (11 Gray) 43 (1858); Attorney General v. Merrimack Mfg. Co., 80 Mass. (13 Gray) 586 (1860); Owen v. Field, 102 Mass. 90 (1869); Markey v. Smith, 16 N.E.2d 20 (Mass. 1938); Brown v. Independent Baptist Church, 91 N.E.2d 922 (Mass. 1950); Elmore v. Austin, 59 S.E.2d 205 (N.C. 1950).

So long as the same was used for school purposes created a determinate fee. No reservation of a possibility of reverter. Bailey v. Eagle Mountain Tel. Co., 303 S.W.2d 726 (Tenn. 1957).

A fee simple determinable automatically expires upon a failure of grantees to comply with the limitations of the deed. Stolarick v. Stolarick, 363 A.2d 793 (Pa. Super. 1976).

(n44)Footnote 131. McIntyre v. Dietrich, 128 N.E. 321 (Ill. 1920).

See the following cases: Carter v. Couch, 47 So. 1006 (Ala. 1908). Fee simple determinable ended where the city in a grant was required to improve the property for park purposes within five years and had not done so within nine years. Owenby v. City of Quincy, 95 So. 2d 426 (Fla. 1957); Mendenhall v. First New Church Soc'y, 98 N.E. 57 (Ind. 1912); Watson v. Tracy, 133 N.E. 411 (1912); Pond v. Douglass, 75 A. 320 (Me. 1909); Institution for Sav. v. Roxbury Home for Aged Women, 139 N.E. 301 (Mass. 1923)(in a conveyance to a banking institution for its use with a gift over in case the banking institution should cease to exist, the gift over was held void but this did not defeat the possibility of reverter; qualified or determinable fees are recognized in Massachusetts). Even where the statute gave the municipality a fee simple determinable and land was dedicated to streets by the filing of a platted map, the title ended when the city vacated the street. Dell v. Lincoln, 102 N.W.2d 62 (Neb. 1960). Lyford v. Laconia, 72 A. 1085 (N.H. 1909); Paul v. Willoughby, 169 S.E. 226 (N.C. 1933); Stubbs v. Abel, 233 P. 852 (Or. 1925); Citizens Elec. Co. v. Susquehana Boom Co., 113 A. 559 (Pa. 1921).

A bequest for a particular purpose created in the beneficiary a determinable fee which terminated if the stated purpose failed. In re Pruner's Estate, 162 A.2d 626 (Pa. 1960). See Comment, Abandonment of School Sites in Fee Simple Determinable Estates, 25 Mo. L. Rev. 446 (1960).

Stephens County v. Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas Co., 254 S.W. 290 (Tex. 1923)(terminable fee created in oil and gas). See Comment, Abandonment of School Sites in Fee Simple Determinable Estates, 25 Mo. L. Rev. 446 (1960).

Reverter clause on failure of grantee to keep up mortgage payments created a fee simple determinable. Lovlie v. Plum, 250 N.W.2d 56 (Iowa 1977).

(n45)Footnote 132. Epworth Assembly v. Ludington & N.R. Co., 211 N.W. 99 (Mich. 1926).

Provision that land sold for the public park should never be used for industrial purposes did not create a base fee. Conveyance of Land Belonging to City of DuBois, 335 A.2d 352 (Pa. 1975).

(n46)Footnote 133. Roberds v. Markham, 81 F. Supp. 38 (D.D.C. 1948); Yarbrough v. Yarbrough, 269 S.W. 36 (Tenn. 1925).

Language "will revert" indicated a determinable fee rather than a fee upon condition subsequent. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Corp., 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

(n47)Footnote 134. Alexander v. Morris & Co., 270 S.W. 88 (Ark. 1925). See Stephens County v. Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas Co., 254 S.W. 290 (Tex. 1923).

Reverter clause on failure of grantee to keep up mortgage payments created a fee simple determinable. Lovlie v. Plum, 250 N.W.2d 56 (Iowa 1977).

(n48)Footnote 135. A municipality is subject to the possibility of reverter in a conveyance to it in fee simple determinable. Metropolitan Dade County v. Leslie Enters., 257 So. 2d 29 (Fla. 1971).

(n49)Footnote 136. Upon condemnation, entire award of determinable fee or fee upon condition subsequent belongs to holder of the immediate estate. State v. Cooper, 131 A.2d 756 (N.J. 1957), cert. den., 355 U.S. 829 (1957); but see In re Cook's Will, 277 N.Y.S. 26, aff'd, 198 N.E. 404 (1935).

(n50)Footnote 137. Guess v. Morgan, 26 S.E.2d 424 (Ga. 1943).

Deed "upon the express condition and limitation" that on cessation for use for school purposes the property revert to the grantor conveyed a determinable fee. Moore v. Wells, 93 S.E.2d 731 (Ga. 1956).

(n51)Footnote 138. Kellogg v. Meadows, 215 S.W.2d 951 (Ky. 1948); State v. Cheyenne County, 60 N.W.2d 593 (Neb. 1953); In re Platman's Estate, 72 N.Y.S.2d 28 (1947); Hinton v. Bowen, 230 S.W.2d 965 (Tenn. 1950); Mountain City Missionary Baptist Church v. Wagner, 249 S.W.2d 875 (Tenn. 1952); Loose v. Locke, 171 P.2d 849 (Wash. 1946); King County v. Hanson Inv. Co., 208 P.2d 113 (Wash. 1949).

Base or qualified fee is alienable by deed or will. Dingess v. Drake, 64 S.E.2d 601 (W. Va. 1951); Young v. Lewis, 76 S.E.2d 276 (W. Va. 1953).

(n52)Footnote 139. Bunting v. Cobb, 66 S.E.2d 661 (N.C. 1951).

(n53)Footnote 140. Deed, "to have and to hold for school purposes, so long as it is used for that purpose," created a fee simple determinable. Bailey v. Eagle Mtn. Tel. Co., 303 S.W.2d 726 (Tenn. 1957).

(n54)Footnote 141. Deed to a city of land for park purposes, but if not so used to revert to grantor's heirs, did not create a fee simple determinable nor a fee upon condition subsequent but an executory interest in the heirs void for remoteness. Standard Knitting Mills, Inc. v. Allen, 424 S.W.2d 796 (Tenn. 1967).

(n55)Footnote 142. Keller v. Keller, 92 S.W.2d 157 (Mo. 1936).

(n56)Footnote 143. Connecticut Junior Republic Ass'n v. Litchfield, 174 A. 304 (Conn. 1934); Landers v. Landers, 151 S.W. 386 (Ky. 1912); Fox v. Van Fleet, 170 S.W. 185 (Ky. 1914).

(n57)Footnote 144. Staack v. Detterding, 161 N.W. 44 (Iowa 1917).

(n58)Footnote 145. Watson v. Tracy, 133 N.E. 411 (Ind. App. 1921). See Warrington v. Chester, 128 N.E. 549 (Ill. 1920); Brill v. Lynn, 270 S.W. 20 (Ky. 1925).

The interest of an easement may be a base, qualified, or determinable fee. Eastman v. Piper, 229 P. 1002 (Cal. App. 1924).

A perpetual lease upon condition conveys to the lessee a determinable or base fee. Piper v. Meredith, 139 A. 294 (N.H. 1927).

(n59)Footnote 146. Davis v. St. Joe Sch. Dist., 284 S.W.2d 635 (Ark. 1955); Loomis v. G. F. Heublein & Bro., 99 A. 483 (Conn. 1916); Markey v. Smith, 16 N.E.2d 20 (Mass. 1938); Parkhurst v. Jonsberg, 84 N.E.2d 538 (Mass. 1949)(until created a determinable fee); Brown v. Independent Baptist Church, 91 N.E.2d 922 (Mass. 1950)("as long as" created a determinable fee); Consolidated Sch. Dist. No. 102 v. Walter, 66 N.W.2d 881 (Minn. 1954); North Hampton Sch. Dist. v. North Hampton Congregational Soc'y, 84 A.2d 833 (N.H. 1951); Cooper v. Milikovsky, 112 A.2d 616 (Pa. 1955).

"As long as" creates fee simple determinable, not fee upon condition subsequent. Lindsay v. Wigal, 250 N.E.2d 755 (Ind. App. 1969).

Words of duration such as "while," "during," "as long as," standing alone without resort to purpose of instrument are not creative of fee simple determinable. Hagaman v. Board of Educ. of Woodbridge Twp., 285 A.2d 63 (N.J. 1971).

"In case the property herein described is abandoned the same shall revert" created a determinable fee, with an alienable possibility of reverter, not an inalienable right of reentry. Fennell v. Foskey, 225 S.E.2d 231 (Ga. 1976).

"As long as" or "until" denotes the determinable fee; "upon condition that" or "in the event that" denotes a fee upon condition. Bennett v. Charles Corp., 226 S.E.2d 559 (W. Va. 1976).

Determinable fee was designated by the words "until," "while," or "so long as." Matter of Reiger's Estate, 400 N.Y.S.2d 881 (1977).

(n60)Footnote 147. Storkan v. Zisha, 94 N.E.2d 185 (Ill. 1950).

(n61)Footnote 148. Low v. Blakeney, 85 N.E.2d 741 (Ill. 1949).

(n62)Footnote 149. Richardson v. Holman, 33 So. 2d 641 (Fla. 1948); Pure Oil Co. v. Miller-McFarland Drilling Co., 34 N.E.2d 854 (Ill. 1941)(a conditional limitation not a condition subsequent); Burkholder v. Burkholder, 107 N.E.2d 729 (Ill. 1952); Consolidated Sch. Dist. No. 102 v. Walter, 66 N.W.2d 881 (Minn. 1954); Hart v. Lake, 112 N.E. 286 (Ill. 1916)(determinable fee and fee upon condition subsequent used interchangeably).

Wherever a fee simple is created to automatically expire upon the occurrence of stated event it is a fee simple determinable. McDougall v. Palo Alto Unified Sch. Dist., 28 Cal. Rptr. 37 (1963).

Where the fee is subject to a possibility of reverter, the reversion to the grantor is effective automatically upon the occurrence of the stated event without an act of the grantor or his heirs. Lake View Mem. Hosp. v. Vermilion County, 318 N.E.2d 752 (Ill. 1974).

Provision in a deed that the property should revert to the grantor if the grantee should predecease the grantor provided the grantee to hold the property in fee simple only so long as he lived, created a fee simple upon a limitation, not upon a condition subsequent. Corley v. Parson, 213 S.E.2d 693 (Ga. 1975).

Fee simple determines automatically while fee on condition subsequent requires the grantor to terminate the estate. Babb v. Rand, 345 A.2d 496 (Me. 1975).

Determinable fee ends automatically. Fee upon condition subsequent requires reentry. Mayor & City Council of Ocean City v. Thaer, 37 A.2d 1233 (Md. 1977).

(n63)Footnote 150. In Foley v. Gamester, 170 N.E. 799 (Mass. 1930), the plaintiff's assignor leased premises to the defendant "for as many years as desired by the party of the second part" (the defendant), at a yearly rent of $400. The court said: "In this Commonwealth ... we consider it to be settled that where the lessee is not bound for any definite period and is at liberty at any time to terminate the tenancy, the estate is not a term of certain duration, and as a lessee is not bound to remain for any definite period, the landlord is not prevented from ending the relation...

"In the case at bar the defendant could remain according to the language of the instrument 'for as many years as desired' -- the term was not fixed, it could be determined at any time by him -- its duration was at his will, and therefore the essential element of a term for years was lacking. The tenancy had no certain duration as to the defendant and therefore there could be no certain duration as to the plaintiff. It was in fact a tenancy at will."

In First New Jerusalem Church v. Singer, 34 N.E.2d 1007 (Ohio 1941), the defendants in an action to quiet title claimed a reversionary interest as heirs of a grantor under an 1849 deed, which said: "... The above tract is granted to... trustees of aforesaid New Church Society... and their heirs forever, to be held by them in trust forever... Now the conditions of this grant... is that the above named meeting house is to be used for New Church purposes. Provided that should it ever cease to be used for said purposes that then the land is to return to its original owners." The court held that the grant created a fee simple absolute, saying that the reverter clause was not of sufficient force to make the grantee's estate of a determinable fee in the absence of words of inheritance used with the reversionary interests. In re Wyatt's Claim, 141 N.E.2d 308 (1955) (confusing determinable fee and right-of-way).

In St. Louis-San Francisco R. Co. v. White, 132 S.W.2d 807 (Ark. 1939), the words "as long as used for railroad purposes" was held to create an easement, not a determinable fee based on the grantor's intent. But see Williams v. Kirby Sch. Dist. No. 32, 181 S.W.2d 488 (Ark. 1944); Milner v. New Edinburg Sch. Dist., 200 S.W.2d 319 (Ark. 1947), where similar language was held to create determinable fees.

(n64)Footnote 151. Grant of land for railway purposes conveys only an easement even though deed purports to be in fee. Abercrombie v. Simmons, 81 P. 208 (Kan. 538).

Contra and creating a determinable fee. Lipetz v. Papish, 125 N.E.2d 432 (N.Y. 1955); Lacy v. Montgomery, 124 A.2d 492 (Pa. 1956)(base fee under abandoned railroad reverts to owners, their heirs or assigns at time of condemnation).

(n65)Footnote 152. Rutten v. Wood, 57 N.W.2d 112 (N.D. 1953).

Provision for sale of the property and payment of a sum to the grantor upon the happening of an event was a lien instead of a determinable fee. Churches Home For Business Girls, Inc. v. Manget Found., Inc., 139 S.E.2d 138 (Ga. 1964), aff'd, 140 S.E.2d 848 (Ga. 1965).

(n66)Footnote 153. Dougherty v. Greene, 67 So. 2d 297 (Miss. 1953). See Lewis G. Nosburg Jr., Oil and Gas and the Defeasible Fee, 12 Okla. L. Rev. 233 (1959).

(n67)Footnote 154. Hinman v. Barnes, 66 N.E.2d 911 (Ohio 1946).

(n68)Footnote 155. Brightwell v. International-Great N. R. Co., 49 S.W.2d 437 (Tex. 1932).

(n69)Footnote 156. Sherman v. Petroleum Exploration, 132 S.W.2d 768 (Ky. 1939).

(n70)Footnote 157. Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Wachter, 70 N.E. 974 (Ohio 1904)(an easement is the right to use land for a special purpose); In re Wyatt's Claim, 141 N.E.2d 308 (Ohio 1955).

(n71)Footnote 158. Coke on Littleton, § 56. 2 Bl. Comm. 121; Dickson v. Alexandria Hosp., 177 F.2d 876 (4th Cir. 1949)(a defeasible fee only upon remarriage becoming fee simple absolute on death without remarriage); In re Reinhardt, 16 P. 13 (Cal. 1887)(life estate determinable); Raulerson v. Saffold, 61 So. 2d 926 (Fla. 1952)(fee simple determinable); McDonald v. Suarez, 93 S.E.2d 16 (Ga. 1956)(supported by other language gift absolute with limitation over on remarriage); Cowman v. Glos, 99 N.E. 586 (Ill. 1912)(life estate determinable); Brunk v. Brunk, 137 N.W. 1065 (Iowa 1912); Jones v. Clyman, 188 N.W. 954 (Iowa 1922)(determinable life estate); Johnson County Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Bach, 369 P.2d 231 (Kan. 1962); Taylor v. Farrow, 239 S.W.2d 73 (Ky. 1951)(determinable fee); Ramsey v. Holder, 291 S.W.2d 556 (Ky. 1956)(determinable fee); Fannin v. Segraves, 198 S.W.2d 802 (Ky. 1946)(determinable life estate); Cuddy v. McIntyre, 229 S.W.2d 315 (Ky. 1950) (determinable fee); Shaw v. Hussey, 41 Me. 495 (1856) (determinable fee); Pate v. Evans, 97 So. 2d 737 (Miss. 1957)(determinable life estate); Anderson v. Anderson, 229 N.W. 124 (Neb. 1930)(fee simple determinable); Wetzel v. Besecker, 64 N.E.2d 602 (Ohio App. 1945)(determinable life estate); Rohrbach v. Sanders, 62 A. 27 (Pa. 1905)(determinable fee); Kautz v. Kautz, 76 A.2d 398 (Pa. 1950)(defeasible becoming fee simple absolute on death without remarriage); In re Burpee's Estate, 80 A.2d 721 (Pa. 1951)(defeasible fee); Hinton v. Bowen, 230 S.W.2d 965 (Tenn. 1950) (determinable fee); Banks v. Banks, 229 S.W.2d 99 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950)(determinable life estate); Pythian Home for Orphans v. Barrow, 346 S.W.2d 426 (Tex. Civ. App. 1961)(determinable fee); In re Mattison's Estate, 177 A.2d 230 (Vt. 1962); In re Baird's Will, 177 N.W. 23 (Wis. 1920)(fee simple determinable).

(n72)Footnote 159. Hopson v. Hopson, 138 S.W.2d 365 (Ky. 1940).

Devise to wife and daughter and their descendants with interest of each to pass to the other if died without issue, created a defeasible fee and not a mere life estate. Bradford v. Federal Land Bank of New Orleans, 338 So. 2d 388 (Miss. 1976).

(n73)Footnote 160. In re Voorhee's Will, 106 N.Y.S.2d 699 (1951)(devisee subject to limitations over on death without issue could invade principal).

(n74)Footnote 161. Renner v. Huntington-Hawthorne Oil & Gas Co., 244 P.2d 895 (Cal. 1952).

Power of sale given to holder of a fee determinable upon marriage permitted passing a good title. Raulerson v. Saffold, 61 So. 2d 926 (Fla. 1952).

Similar in case of life tenant. Long v. Wood, 253 S.W.2d 731 (Tenn. 1952).

(n75)Footnote 162. Gillespie v. Broas, 23 N.Y. (Barb.) 370 (1856); Board of Educ. v. Van Wert; Betts v. Snyder, 19 A.2d 82 (Pa. 1941); McDougall v. Palo Alto Unified Sch. Dist., 28 Cal. Rptr. 37 (1963).

See Comment, Abandonment of School Sites in Fee Simple Determinable Estates, 25 Mo. L. Rev. 446 (1960).

(n76)Footnote 163. Determinable fee fails though limitation over is too remote. Leonard v. Burr, 18 N.Y. 96 (1858); Yarbrough v. Yarbrough, 269 S.W. 36 (Tenn. 1925).

"As long as" created a "fee upon condition subsequent" which ripened into a fee simple absolute after long use. Bernard v. Bowen, 198 S.E. 584 (N.C. 1938).

Right of reverter is not lost though continued use of the property for the stated purpose becomes legally impossible. Fleming County Bd. of Educ. v. Hall, 380 S.W.2d 273 (Ky. 1964).

(n77)Footnote 164. Buildings revert. Williams v. Kirby Sch. Dist. No. 32, 181 S.W.2d 488 (Ark. 1944); Webster County Bd. of Educ. v. Gentry, 24 S.W.2d 910 (1930); Miller v. Common Sch. Dist. No. 99, 43 N.W.2d 102 (Minn. 1950); New Hebron Consol. Sch. Dist. v. Sutton, 118 So. 303 (Miss. 1928).

Buildings on determinable fee do not revert when the fee determines. Low v. Blakeney, 403 Ill. 156 (1949); Rose v. Board of Dirs., Sch. Dist. No. 94, 179 P.2d 181 (Kan. 1947); Schwing v. McClure, 166 N.E. 230 (Ohio 1929); May v. Board of Educ., 12 Ohio App. 456 (1920)(held trade fixture).

(n78)Footnote 165. McCulloch's Estate v. Conrad, 52 N.W.2d 67 (Iowa 1952); Voss v. Voss, 129 N.E.2d 322 (Ohio 1955).

Determinable fee designated by the words "until," "while," or "so long as." Matter of Reigers Estate, 400 N.Y.S.2d 881 (1977).

(n79)Footnote 166. Kelley v. North Morris Realty Co., 59 A.2d 811 (N.J. 1948), aff'd, 64 A.2d 73 (N.J. 1949).

(n80)Footnote 167. Weinberg v. Werft, 218 S.W.2d 398 (Ky. 1949).

(n81)Footnote 168. Hall v. Turner, 14 S.E. 791 (N.C. 1892), overruling School Committee v. Kesler, 67 N.C. 443 (1872)("as long as" held a "base fee") which could not be created in North Carolina; Lacy v. Montgomery, 124 A.2d 492 (Pa. 1956).

Determinable fee ceases automatically while a fee upon condition requires re-entry. Department of Transp. v. Knight, 232 S.E.2d 72 (Ga. 1977).

(n82)Footnote 169. Raleigh County v. Winding Gulf Collieries, 152 F.2d 382 (4th Cir. 1945), cert. denied, 382 U.S. 844 (1946); Taylor v. School Dist. No. 45, 216 S.W.2d 789 (Ark. 1949); Richey v. Corralitors Union Sch. Dist., 228 P. 348 (1924); Mosca Town Co. v. Wellington, 89 P. 783 (Colo. 1907); Rustin v. Butler, 24 S.E.2d 318 (Ga. 1943); Malone v. Kitchen, 137 N.E. 562 (Ind. App. 1922); Miller v. Common Sch. Dist. No. 99, 43 N.W.2d 102 (Minn. 1950)(1951).

Contra, Rumford Falls Power Co. v. Waishwill, 147 A. 343 (Me. 1929); Schwing v. McClure, 166 N.E. 230 (Ohio 1929); Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Parke, 42 Pa. 31 (1862).

(n83)Footnote 170. Miller v. Common Sch. Dist. No. 99, 43 N.W.2d 102 (Minn. 1950).

Contra, Sewell v. Reinhardt, 219 P.2d 996 (Okla. 1950)(school house on determinable fee).

(n84)Footnote 171. Burdette v. Jones, 72 N.E.2d 152 (Ohio 1947)(so express reservation of reverter is not necessary to create determinable fee).

(n85)Footnote 172. Noyes v. St. Louis, A. & T. H. R. Co., 21 N.E. 487 (Ill. 1889)(courts disfavor determinable fees as tending to defeat vested interests and leave the title in doubt).

Kentucky has, by statute, (K.R.S. 381.218) converted a determinable fee into a fee upon condition subsequent, making the fee simple absolute if the event does not happen within thirty years after the interest is created.

Fees upon condition subsequent are favored over fee simples determinables in order to avoid a forfeiture wherever possible. Hardman v. Dahlonega-Lumpkin Cty. Chamber of Commerce, 233 S.E.2d 753 (Ga. App. 1977).

(n86)Footnote 173. Reverter clause necessary to create a defeasible fee. Gordon v. Whittle, 57 S.E.2d 169 (Ga. 1950); Gray v. Harriet Lane Home for Invalid Children, 64 A.2d 102 (Md. 1949); Gahagan v. Texas & Pac. R. Co., 231 S.W.2d 762 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950).

Contra holding, Gray v. Blanchard, 25 Mass. (8 Pick.) 284 (1829).

Absence of words of inheritance in reverter clause caused deed to be construed as passing a fee simple absolute with a covenant and not a determinable fee. First New Jerusalem Church v. Singer, 34 N.E.2d 1007 (Ohio 1941).

Absence of language of reversion prevented a statement of purpose from being a determinable fee. Cummings v. United States, 409 F. Supp 1064 (M.D.N.C. 1976).

(n87)Footnote 174. See § 1918.

(n88)Footnote 175. Savanna Sch. Dist. v. McLeod, 290 P.2d 593 (Cal. App. 1955).

Change of conditions did not ripen fee simple determinable into a fee simple absolute. Williamson v. Grizzard, 387 S.W.2d 807 (Tenn. 1965).

(n89)Footnote 176. See § 1864.

(n90)Footnote 177. Miller v. Brookville, 89 N.E.2d 85 (Ohio 1949).

Kentucky has abolished the determinable fee and the possibility of a reverter by statute, making such an estate to be fee simple subject to conditions subsequent and right of re-entry. Ky. Acts 1960, ch. 167, §§ 4-7.

(n91)Footnote 178. An agreement to reconvey a royalty interest within 6 months upon failure to drill created a fee upon condition subsequent, not a determinable fee, and a statute of limitations as to actions barred the right of re-entry. Preas v. Phebus, 272 P.2d 159 (Utah 1954)(if the fee had determined adverse possession, would have been required to pass title).

(n92)Footnote 179. Weppler v. Hoffine, 29 N.E.2d 204, reh'g denied, 30 N.E.2d 549 (Ind. 1940).

(n93)Footnote 180. "As long as she remains my widow" is a determinable life estate. Dickson v. Alexandria Hosp., 177 F.2d 876 (4th Cir. 1949); Anderson v. Anderson, 46 P.2d 98 (Or. 1935).

"As long as she remains my widow" creates a determinable fee in Pennsylvania by statute reversing the common law. Kautz v. Kautz, 76 A.2d 398 (Pa. 1950).

(n94)Footnote 181. Miller v. Common Sch. Dist. No. 99, 43 N.W.2d 102 (Minn. 1950); Preas v. Phebus, 272 P.2d 159 (Utah 1954).

So long as used for school purposes created a determinable fee, though there was no express reverter clause, not a mere statement of purpose. Peters v. East Penn. Twp. Sch. Dist., 126 A.2d 802 (Pa. 1956).

After fee determines former fee, owner is not entitled to improvements made by him. Paris v. Clay, 158 S.E.2d 377 (Ga. 1967).

(n95)Footnote 182. Colby v. Sun Oil Co., 288 S.W.2d 221 (Tex. Civ. App. 1956).

(n96)Footnote 183. Miller v. Common Sch. Dist. No. 99, Lyon County, 43 N.W.2d 102 (Minn. 1950).

Contra, under similar circumstances, Sewell v. Reinhardt, 219 P.2d 996 (Okla. 1950)(school house on determinable fee). See Stephens v. Stephens, 287 P.2d 902 (Okla. 1955), to effect that fixtures did not revert to the holder of a possibility of reverter when determinable fee ended.

Where the owner of land donated it to a school district with a provision in the deed that it would revert to the donor in the event that the land ceased to be used for school purposes, it was held that the buildings erected by the school district became part of the realty and belonged to the owner when title to the land reverted. Williams v. Kirby Sch. Dist. No. 32, 181 S.W.2d 488 (Ark. 1944).

Where grant of school lands contained reverter clause, school board on abandonment could sell buildings and allow land to revert under 1857 statute. Brown v. Trustees of Schs. of Twp. No. 5, 85 N.E.2d 747 (Ill. 1949); Low v. Blakeney, 85 N.E.2d 741 (Ill. 1949).

Holding that improvements made by the owner of a fee simple determinable does not lose the improvements when the land reverts because of the determination of the fee. Ball v. Hall, 274 A.2d 516 (Vt. 1971).

(n97)Footnote 184. Big Lake Oil Co. v. Reagan Co., 217 S.W.2d 17 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.03

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.03 Fees Subject to Executory or Conditional Limitations.n185

[Go To Supp]

According to the classic theory, n186 no present consideration passed upon a feoffment. The quid pro quo received by the feoffor was contemplated future benefit, the rendition of feudal dues and reliefs by the feoffee. The estate thus created was at first a life estate, later a base fee determining when the feoffee failed to pay the consideration as it fell due.

It was therefore essential that there be at the beginning, and that there continue at all times, someone whose duty it was to be responsible for the condition of the feudal services. Thus it was not conceivable to the mind of the feudal draftsman that there be any period of time when a fee could exist without the coexistence of one charged with the feudal responsibilities, hence the common law rule that a contingent remainder must at all times depend upon a preceding estate in freehold. If the remainder were so limited that it could not vest until after the termination of the preceding estate in freehold, then it was void ab initio. And if a contingent remainder was created after a life estate or a fee tail, if the contingency had not come to pass upon the termination of the preceding estate the remainder died with the end of the particular estate since at that moment there was no one to render the requisite feudal services. It is presumed that from this situation stemmed the common law concept that had become a rule of law that a contingent remainder could not continue to exist as contingent after the preceding estate in freehold in which it had been limited, terminated either by reason of its natural expiration or for some artificial reason it prematurely expired.

Seisin at common law was a blend of actual possession, title and a mystic tie of loyalties to the lord. In order to create this bond between lord and man a personal relationship was required that sprang into being between feoffor and feoffee through a personal transfer of the land, actual "livery of seisin" requiring the presence of both the feoffor and feoffee to deliver possession. Therefore a fee which thus involved an immediate transfer of possession could not be created in futuro. A could not enfeoff B and his heirs to be effective five years in the future.

This necessity of livery of seisin further prevented a fee from being created upon a fee. A could not enfeoff B and his heirs "until the oak tree falls and then to C and his heirs" because there was no one to make livery of seisin involving delivery of possession to C after the oak tree fell. n187 Nor could A enfeoff "B and his heirs but if C pays A ten pounds then to C and his heirs" for this would require a livery of seisin from B to C something which B might be reluctant to give.

These factors lead to three basic property rules that graced the common law: A contingent remainder could only be limited upon a freehold estate, a fee could not be limited upon a fee and a remainder could not be so limited as to abridge a fee. It was thus impossible to create at common law a fee that could be cut off or destroyed by a limitation over to a third party.

This was changed by the passage of the Statute of Uses. n188 After the statute and later after the Statute of Wills n189 it became possible to create by way of springing use or executory devise that could operate to cut short the preceding estate though in fee. n190 Thus today a fee may be created subject to an executory limitation over to a third party which will operate to transfer title to the third party upon the happening of a contingency. n191 A conditional limitation which cuts down the preceding estate was not valid at common law but now is good in a will as an executory devise. n192 If, however, the contingency is too remote, the limitation over will be void and thus the fee subject to the invalid executory limitation will become a fee simple absolute.

The Statute of Uses n193 then produced the "springing use" which has the effect of itself terminating an existing fee. Such a fee which is ended, not by the completion of an indefinite term or by a condition subsequent, but by the development of a springing use or an executory devise is a fee subject to a conditional limitation. The statute of uses also produced the "shifting use." This like the "springing use" was an interest limited at the time of the creation of a defeasible fee over to a third party to take effect upon the happening of the defeasance. The springing use and the shifting use were substitutes for the possibility of reverter and right of re-entry which remained in the grantor after the creation by him of a determinable fee or a fee upon condition subsequent.

After the Statute of Wills n194 limitations over after defeasible fees could be created in wills. These are called "executory devises" and springing and shifting uses and "executory devises" are all classified together as "conditional limitations." n195

The term "conditional limitation" is not used in the Restatement of the Law of Property, preferring to treat this type of estates under the designation of "Fee Simple Defeasible." n196 If an estate be granted to one on condition that within two years he return from Rome, and on failure thereof then to another and his heirs, this is a limitation and not a condition. So, an estate upon conditional limitation may be defined as a future limitation depending upon a prior special limitation terminating a fee-simple estate by the happening of an event or the performance of some act which constitutes the special limitation. There must first be an estate upon a special limitation, and then another estate to take effect upon the termination of the first, and is thus substituted for or takes the place of the first estate and in derogation thereof.

Under these statutes conditional limitations are recognized and have become well established and are lawful if kept within the limits of the rule against perpetuities. n197 The estate granted may be limited to the time that the grantee shall remain single, notwithstanding the rule that a condition subsequent to the same effect would be void, n198 but the limitation over must be to a stranger and not to the heirs of the grantor. n199 It has been held, however, that a provision in a deed that if the grantee should die after the grantor's demise, without issue and without having disposed of the property conveyed, the property should go to the grantor's children, created a valid conditional limitation binding on the grantee. n200 The effect of a conditional limitation is to cut short an estate previously created and substitute another in its stead. n201 Thus, where a testator devised land to A, for life and on her death to her heirs, upon the condition that A shall continue to reside upon said lands for the period of her natural life and should she remove permanently from said lands during the period of her lifetime then the same shall become the absolute property of T, it was held that the estate was not based upon a condition subsequent, but was subject to a conditional limitation and that upon the removal of A from the land during her lifetime the property vested in T at once without entry or suit to establish title. n202

Thus a deed to land in 1886 for a valuable consideration to the trustees of a named church "as long as used for church purposes," containing a like habendum clause running to such church, but with no stipulation for forfeiture or reversion, was held to pass a fee determinable upon the abandonment of such use with an immediate right of entry to the grantor's heirs, since the clauses were limitations and not conditions subsequent. n203 A devise in fee with provision that if not sold during lifetime over to others was held a defeasible fee, and the limitation was valid. n204

The term "conditional limitation" may be applied both where, upon the happening of a certain event the estate goes to a third person, and where a determinable or base fee is granted to the first taker followed by a possibility of reverter upon the happening of a contingency. n205 Estates upon conditional limitation are included in the term "qualified estates," meaning those interests in real property which are not absolute and unconditional. n206

In case of a conditional limitation, no right of re-entry remains in the grantor. If a condition subsequent be followed by a limitation over, in case the condition is not complied with, it is termed a "conditional limitation," and takes effect without any entry or claim, and no act is necessary to vest the estate in the party to whom it is limited. n207 If an estate be granted to one on condition that within two years he return from Rome, and on failure thereof then to another and his heirs, this is a limitation and not a condition. n208 There are important distinctions between an estate upon condition and an estate on a conditional limitation, the most important of which is that in case of the former, the grantor has remaining a right of reverter and re-entry, while in the case of the latter, he has no such right. n209 A deed will not be construed to create an estate on condition or limitation unless the language imports a condition or limitation or the intent to create a conditional estate is clearly indicated. n210

In the case of limitations over after conditions subsequent and possibly also after determinable fees, if the limitation fails for remoteness the defeasible fee ripens into a fee simple absolute. n211 The fee upon condition subsequent remains after breach as before except that the creator has the right to secure revesting of the former estate. Where there is a limitation over a fee upon conditional limitation not a determinable fee or fee upon condition subsequent is created in some states. n212

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 185. See Kenneth J. O'Connell, Estates on Condition Subsequent and Estates on Special Limitation in Oregon, 18 Or. L. Rev. 63 (1939).

(n2)Footnote 186. There are indications that a present consideration was paid for feoffs even at an early date. But the classic idea was probably the principal consideration for the first grants of William the Conqueror, that is, the rendition of military service by the feoffee. And as long as there was no standing army such services would constitute a major consideration.

(n3)Footnote 187. Yet A could enfeoff B and the heirs of his body and then to C and his heirs so that C had a remainder after fee tail. Just why no livery of seisin was required to C in such a case is not clear.

(n4)Footnote 188. 27 Henry VIII, ch. 10 (1536). For a discussion of the development of a "use," see § 1857.

(n5)Footnote 189. 32 Henry VIII, ch. 1 (1540).

(n6)Footnote 190. Brooks Abridgment, 33b, 50, cites a case in 30 Henry VIII where A covenanted with B that when A was enfeoffed by B of a certain tract then A, his heirs and assigns seised of another tract should be seised of it to the use of B and his heirs then though A enfeoff another of his tract and such feoffee or his subsequent transferees have no notice of the covenant between A and B, when B does so enfeoff A, the owner of the second tract though an innocent purchaser will hold it to the use of B since the covenant between A and B had created a springing use in the second tract in B.

(n7)Footnote 191. See Frederick B. McCall, Estates on Condition and on Special Limitation in North Carolina, 19 N.C. L. Rev. 334 (1941); Note, Fee Simple Cut Down by Executory Devise, 14 Temp. L.Q. 518 (1940).

To widow, she not to dispose of it during her lifetime, and then to be equally divided among testator's brothers created a defeasible fee in the widow subject to an executory limitation. Jenkins v. Shuften, 57 S.E.2d 283 (Ga. 1950).

A defeasible fee subject to an executory limitation over arises upon a devise to one in fee with a later proviso that if an event happens the estate will go over. McDonald v. Suarez, 93 S.E.2d 16 (Ga. 1956).

A fee simple estate may be subject to an executory limitation. Lantz v. Pence, 142 N.E.2d 456 (Ind. App. 1957).

Executory limitation in deed over after fee simple is valid. Selman v. Robertson, 24 S.E. 187 (S.C. 1896); Smith v. Clinkscales, 85 S.E. 1064 (S.C. 1915); Dukes v. Shuler, 194 S.E. 817 (S.C. 1938); McDaniel v. Connor, 33 S.E.2d 75 (S.C. 1945); Knowles v. South County Hosp., 140 A.2d 499, 141 A.2d 263 (R.I. 1958).

(n8)Footnote 192. Knowles v. South County Hosp., 140 A.2d 499, 141 A.2d 263 (R.I. 1958).

(n9)Footnote 193. 2 Bl. Comm. 173. 1 Greenleaf-Cruise, Real Property, 702; Horton v. Sledge, 29 Ala. 478 (1856); Outland v. Bowen, 17 N.E. 281 (Ind. 1888); Smith v. Smith, 23 Wis. 176 (1868).

(n10)Footnote 194. 32 Henry VIII, ch. 1 (1640).

(n11)Footnote 195. Hinsdale v. Chicago City Missionary Soc'y, 30 N.E.2d 657 (Ill. 1940); McWilliams v. Havely, 283 S.W. 103 (Ky. 1926).

A provision in a deed that the land conveyed "shall be used for railroad purposes only, and, ceasing to be used for such purposes, shall revert to" the grantors, their heirs and assigns, was held to create a fee subject to divestment by re-entry for breach of condition, rather than a fee upon a conditional limitation. Dolby v. Dillman, 278 N.W. 694 (Mich. 1938).

A conditional limitation is of a mixed nature, partaking both of a condition and of a limitation; of a condition, because it defeats the estate previously limited; and of a limitation, because, upon the happening of the contingency, the estate passes to the person having the next expectant interest, without entry or claim. Yarbrough v. Yarbrough, 269 S.W. 36 (Tenn. 1925).

A conditional limitation exists where the estate is limited until the happening of a certain event, and when the thing happens the estate is terminated and reverts eo instante. Community of Priests v. Byrne, 255 S.W. 601 (Tex. Com. App. 1923).

See Porter v. Porter, 222 P. 971 (Okla. 1923).

In Standard Knitting Mills, Inc. v. Allen, 424 S.W.2d 796 (Tenn. 1967), a gift of land to be used as a park with the limitation over in the event it ever ceased to be used as a park to the heirs of the grantor, "heirs" were "words of purchase" creating the limitation over rather than a fee simple upon condition subsequent, and the limitation over was void for remoteness, giving the first taker a fee simple absolute.

(n12)Footnote 196. See Restatement, Property, ch. 4, special note to Introductory Note.

(n13)Footnote 197. 4 Kent's Comm. 267; 1 Jarman, Wills (6th Am. ed.), 221; Tabor v. Gilmer County, 53 S.E.2d 915 (Ga. 1949); Nightingale v. Burrell, 32 Mass. (15 Pick.) 104 (1833).

(n14)Footnote 198. Randall v. Marble, 69 Me. 310 (1879); Arthur v. Cole, 56 Md. 100 (1881).

(n15)Footnote 199. Randall v. Marble, 69 Me. 310 (1879).

(n16)Footnote 200. Warlicke v. Davis, 89 S.W.2d 845 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935); Aiken v. Clark, 92 A.2d 620 (Vt. 1952).

(n17)Footnote 201. Andrews v. Sargent, 44 A. 341 (Vt. 1899).

(n18)Footnote 202. Taylor v. McCowen, 99 P. 351 (Cal. 1908).

Limitation over on death of devisee without children created a fee defeasible with an executory limitation. Johnson v. Johnson, 99 S.E.2d 827 (Ga. 1957).

"A condition followed by a limitation over to a third person, in case the condition is not fulfilled, or there be a breach of it, is termed a conditional limitation. A conditional limitation is therefore of a mixed nature, partaking both of a condition and of a limitation; of a condition, because it defeats the estate previously limited; and of a limitation, because, upon the happening of the contingency, the estate passes to the person having the next expectant interest, without entry or claim." Church in Brattle Square v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray) 142 (Mass. 1855).

(n19)Footnote 203. Schurch v. Harraman, 191 N.E. 907 (Ohio App. 1933). See Queen City Park Ass'n v. Gale, 3 A.2d 529 (Vt. 1938).

(n20)Footnote 204. Jenkins v. Shuften, 57 S.E.2d 283 (Ga. 1950).

A devise to wife but if wife predeceased testator or if "any property be remaining at wife's death" then over to H, "but if it dies, then to her heirs" gave H a remainder subject to defeasance on sale by wife or on H's death before wife, with a limitation over to H's heirs. Jones v. Walter, 436 S.W.2d 130 (Tex. 1968).

(n21)Footnote 205. Storke v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co., 61 N.E.2d 552 (Ill. 1945).

To "A but if she die without children then to B" created a defeasible fee subject to a shifting executory interest. Reynolds v. Rackley, 157 S.E.2d 283 (Ga. 1967).

(n22)Footnote 206. Carpender v. New Brunswick, 39 A.2d 40 (N.J. 1944).

(n23)Footnote 207. American Dirigold Corp. v. Dirigold Metals Corp., 125 F.2d 446 (6th Cir. 1942); Pure Oil Co. v. Miller-McFarland Drilling Co., 34 N.E.2d 854 (Ill. 1941); Stearns v. Godfrey, 16 Me. 158 (1839); Church in Brattle Square v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray) 142 (1855); Ashley v. Warner, 77 Mass. (11 Gray) 43 (1858); Attorney-General v. Merrimack Mfg. Co., 80 Mass. (13 Gray) 586 (1860). See Miller v. Levi, 44 N.Y. 489 (1871); Allen v. Trustees of Great Neck Free Church, 269 N.Y.S. 341 (1934).

(n24)Footnote 208. 2 Bl. Comm. 155.

After gift in fee, a limitation over of what remains on the devisee's death is void. Morgan v. Merchants & Planters Nat'l Bank, 147 S.E.2d 702 (S.C. 1966).

(n25)Footnote 209. "Where an estate in fee is created on condition, the entire interest does not pass out of the grantor by the same instrument or conveyance. All that remains, after the gift or grant takes effect, continues in the grantor and goes to his heirs. This is the right of entry, as we have already seen, which, from the nature of the grant, is reserved to the grantor and his heirs only, and which gives them the right to enter, as of their old estate, upon breach of the condition. This possibility of reverter, as it is termed, arises in the grantor or devisor immediately on the creation of the conditional estate. It is otherwise where the estate in fee is limited over to a third person in case of a breach of the condition. Then the entire estate by the same instrument passes out of the grantor or devisor... The right or possibility of reverter, which, on the creation of an estate in fee on condition merely, would remain in him, is given over by the limitation, which is to take effect on the breach of the condition." Church in Brattle Square v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray) 142 (1855), per Bigelow, J. See Outland v. Bowen, 17 N.E. 281 (Ind. 1888); Wagner v. Wallowa County, 148 P. 1140 (Or. 1915). And see note in Annotation Deed in Consideration of Support of Grantor as Creating an Estate Upon Condition or a Conditional Limitation, 76 A.L.R. 742 (1932).

(n26)Footnote 210. Gladewater Cty. Line Indep. Sch. Dist. v. Hughes, 59 S.W.2d 351 (Tex. Civ. App. 1933).

Limitation over after a fee in first taker is void. Collie v. Tucker, 317 S.W.2d 137 (Ark. 1958); Gamester v. Massey, 158 N.E.2d 805 (Ind. App. 1959).

(n27)Footnote 211. In re Stemmler's Will, 129 N.Y.S.2d 395 (1954).

In Everett v. Adams, 444 S.W.2d 789 (Tex. Civ. App. 1969), the court permitted the holder of a fee subject to a conditional limitation over in the minerals to destroy the limitation over by conveying the fee.

(n28)Footnote 212. Bennett v. Packer, 39 A. 739 (Conn. 1898); Snider v. Newsom, 24 Ga. 139 (1858); Eastham v. Eastham, 231 S.W. 221 (Ky. 1921); In re Miller's Will, 74 S.E. 888; (N.C. 1912); Yarbrough v. Yarbrough, 269 S.W. 36 (Tenn. 1925). Contra, limitation over on remarriage creates a determinable fee. Overton v. Lea, 68 S.W. 250 (Tenn. 1902), or a fee upon condition subsequent. Hinton v. Bowen, 230 S.W.2d 965 (Tenn. 1950); Erskine v. Board of Regents, 104 N.W.2d 285 (Neb. 1960)(fee subject to a conditional limitation was also subject to doctrine of substantial compliance).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.04

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.04 Fees Subject to Conditions.

[Go To Supp]

The idea that the existence of a fee could depend upon a condition either precedent to its creation or subsequent ending its life arose early in the English Property Law.

Bracton n213 indicates that what had by the time of Edward I become the "conditional fee" was in his period a condition precedent to converting a life estate into either a fee upon a condition subsequent or a fee simple absolute to the extent that a fee simple absolute could then exist under the feudal system. Littleton devotes 118 sections to what he terms "Estates upon Condition" which embrace a number of different modern property concepts.

A testator may devise his real property so that if specified things are not done or that if certain things occur the devise will revert and such clauses will be enforced if clearly intended, and it is possible to do so. n214 One who claims under a deed must claim under the whole deed. He cannot take one clause and desire the court to shut their eyes as to the rest. n215 Whether a condition is precedent or subsequent depends on the intent of the parties not by technical language. n216 An estate upon condition is not to be construed except where the language is so clear that there is no other construction. n217 If the time for the performance of a condition is expressly fixed or limited by a will, the condition is precedent rather than a condition subsequent. n218

In determining whether the condition is precedent or subsequent if the act does not necessarily precede the vesting of the estate but may accompany or follow it, if it appears to be collected from the whole instrument, and if there have been other considerations performed or paid, and the act in question is not the sole consideration for the grantor or if the grantee is entitled to possession and use of the property a condition subsequent is impacted. A condition subsequent is favored over a condition precedent. n219

An estate upon condition is an interest in real property made to begin, to be enlarged or be defeated upon the happening or not happening of some particular event. n220 "The condition is annexed to the estate; it doth always attend and wait upon the estate; it is knit to it." n221 The grantor retains a vested right or present interest, transmissible to his heirs. In this respect it differs from a conditional limitation, which passes the whole interest of the grantor at once, and creates an estate to arise and vest in a third person on a contingency at a future and uncertain period of time. n222 In an estate on condition, the performance of the condition inures to the benefit of the grantor and his heirs only. They may waive or enforce performance at their election, and, unless there is a re-entry or claim by the grantor or his heirs, the estate continues to exist the same as if the condition had been complied with. n223 Where the estate is expressly limited to the happening of an event which determines it, upon the happening of that event, it is ipso facto terminated by operation of law without the doing of any act by any person whomsoever and in such case re-entry or claim is not essential to its termination. n224 Where words of condition are used, in connection with a devise, and there is another or subsequent devise of the same premises on the failure of the first or preceding devise, the words of condition have not the force and operation of words of condition, and are called "words of limitation." n225

A condition differs from a covenant in that a breach of the covenant gives rise to a cause of action for damages, while the consequence of a non-fulfilment of a condition operates as a forfeiture of the estate. n226 If it is doubtful whether a clause in a deed is a covenant or a condition, the courts will incline against the latter construction. n227 A grantee's agreement to support the grantor, when recited as the consideration for the deed, will be treated as a covenant rather than a condition unless the deed clearly and explicitly makes the agreement a condition. n228 Although covenants and conditions may be created by the use of the same words, forfeitures are not favored, since conditions of defeasance of an estate granted are odious. n229 A fee may be limited on a fee not only in a will by executory devise but by shifting uses in a deed in any form, which may take effect by virtue of the statute of uses. n230 A fee upon condition resembles a determinable fee in that it exhausts the whole estate, but may return to the grantor by breach of a condition subsequent to which it was granted, but it does not return until there has been an entry by the person having that right. n231

Another type of fee defeasible upon a condition subsequent was the common law mortgage n232 which still exists in somewhat modified form in some jurisdictions. This estate was treated by Littleton as one of several kinds of estates upon condition in deed, as distinguished from condition in law which was the payment of the feudal dues. n233 Such conditions were precedent or subsequent. They involved either the payment of the consideration for the feoffment or the payment of annual rental. n234

A grant upon a condition precedent passes the estate only upon the performance of the condition. n235 A condition that the estate shall not vest, until or unless the grantee shall pay a specified sum before a day named, is a condition precedent to the vesting of any estate, and time is an essential part of the contract. n236 No estate vests in the grantee until or unless the condition is performed, and this is true even though performance becomes impossible, n237 and without any blame on the part of the grantee or devisee. n238 Where a will imposes conditions precedent to the beneficiary's right to take, there can be no valid gift until such conditions have been satisfied and strictly performed. n239 If the condition precedent is void, the estate which depends upon the condition is also void and the estate never vests. n240 A deed recited that the grantor was anxious to secure to the grantee his undivided interest in certain land upon condition that, during the life of the grantor, he was to retain and exercise full and complete control over the property; and in consideration of the premises thus recited, and of natural love and affection, the grantor conveyed the property to the grantee, upon condition, nevertheless, that he, the grantor, died before the grantee, and not otherwise, with habendum to the grantee and his heirs, subject to such condition. The grantor survived the grantee. It was held that this was clearly a condition precedent, and, not being fulfilled, nothing passed by the deed. n241

Where one conditionally gave a tract of land to his son by an instrument which reserved to the donor not only the rents, issues, and profits of the land while he lived, but which also reserved to him the right to dispose of the land during his lifetime, it was competent for him thereafter to bequeath to another the use of the land, and the rents and profits of the same, for a period of time extending two years after his death. The transfer to his son was not to be effective till the donor's death, and not then if he made other disposition of the property during his lifetime. n242 A condition which prevents the full beneficiary title from vesting in the grantee until its performance does not necessarily render it a condition precedent. Thus a condition that after the grantor's death the grantee shall pay a third person a certain sum of money is construed to be a condition subsequent and not a condition precedent. n243 Such an estate affects an interest already vested, either diminishing or eradicating such interest. n244

A condition precedent must be literally performed and even in equity an estate will not vest where, by reason of a condition precedent unperformed, it will not vest at law. n245 Where the conditions broken are conditions precedent the law will not relieve the one violating the same, especially where the grantor, by reason thereof, has regained possession of the property. n246 Where the owner of land which had been used for some years for a cemetery conveyed it to a city for a nominal consideration, provided the city should obtain authority from the legislature and remove the dead within a certain time, and use the land for an ornamental square or for the erection of public buildings, it was held that the removal of the bodies and the abandonment of the land for cemetery purposes were conditions precedent to the vesting of the title. n247

Where a day is appointed for the payment of money for a thing to be done, if such day is fixed beyond the time when the act is to be done, the performance of the thing which is the consideration for the payment is a condition precedent to the payment of the money. n248 Stipulations to do certain things within a given time, in consideration of the payment of money, will not be construed as conditions precedent unless the express language of the contract requires such construction. n249 A condition that, if the purchaser failed to pay for the property in instalments as provided, it should be delivered back and disposed of to pay the price, was held not to be a condition precedent, but that the property passed immediately with a trust in the nature of a vendor's lien for the payment of the price. n250 Where a deed containing conditions precedent provides that "when these conditions are fully complied with, then this deed is to be in full force and virtue in law, and otherwise null and void," title does not pass to the grantee until the conditions are performed. n251

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 213. 11 Bracton, Ch 6, f 17.

(n2)Footnote 214. Thompson v. Thompson, 175 S.W.2d 885 (Mo. 1943); Hedick v. Lone Star Steel Co., 277 S.W.2d 925 (Tex. Civ. App. 1955)(condition subsequent is less objectionable than special limitation).

A common disaster clause in a will was applied as a condition precedent. In re Brew's Will, 183 N.Y.S.2d 321 (1959), though the beneficiary survived the testator 41 days.

(n3)Footnote 215. Wilson v. Townshend, 2 Ves. 693, 30 Eng. Rep. 846.

(n4)Footnote 216. Midwest-Radiant Corp. v. Hentze, 171 F.2d 635 (7th Cir. 1948), cert. denied, 336 U.S. 952 (1949); Carpender v. New Brunswick, 39 A.2d 40 (N.J. 1944).

(n5)Footnote 217. Miller v. Miller, 247 N.W.2d 445 (Neb. 1976).

(n6)Footnote 218. Kelly v. Snider, 46 N.E.2d 811 (Ohio 1942).

(n7)Footnote 219. Railroad Comm'n v. American Trading & Prod. Corp., 323 S.W.2d 474 (Tex. Civ. App. 1959).

A devise of a house with the provision that the sons of the testatrix should share in the proceeds in the event of the sale of the house conveyed to the sons an interest which was alienable before the sale was made. Parker v. Blackmon, 553 S.W.2d 623 (Tex. 1977).

A devise in fee simple giving others the right of use during their lifetimes was a valid condition not repugnant to the fee. Babb v. Rand, 345 A.2d 496 (Me. 1975).

(n8)Footnote 220. Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468 (1863); Thornton v. Trammell, 39 Ga. 202 (1869); Heaston v. Randolph, 20 Ind. 398 (1863); Michigan State Bank v. Hastings, 1 Mich. (Doug.) 225 (1844); Langley v. Ross, 20 N.W. 886 (Mich. 1884); Detroit Union R. Depot & Station Co. v. Fort Street Union Depot Co., 87 N.W. 214 (Mich. 1901);

Smith v. White, 5 Neb. 405 (1877); Munro v. Syracuse, L. & N.R. Co., 93 N.E. 516 (N.Y. 1908); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887)3 Am. St. 142; Johnson v. Gurley, 52 Tex. 222 (1879).

See Olin L. Browder, Jr., Defeasible Fee Estates in Oklahoma, 4 Okla. L. Rev. 141 (1951), 6 Okla. L. Rev. 482 (1953).

(n9)Footnote 221. Littleton, Tenures, § 325.

(n10)Footnote 222. Williams v. Kirby Sch. Dist. No. 32, 181 S.W.2d 488 (Ark. 1944); Storke v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co., 61 N.E.2d 552 (Ill. 1945); Church in Brattle Square v. Grant, 69 Mass. (3 Gray) 142 (1855); Clark v. Jones, 144 P.2d 498 (Or. 1944).

(n11)Footnote 223. Magness v. Kerr, 254 P. 1012 (Or. 1927). See Hall v. Quinn, 130 S.E. 18 (N.C. 1925); Yarbrough v. Yarbrough, 269 S.W. 36 (Tenn. 1925); Atkins v. Gillespie, 299 S.W. 776 (Tenn. 1927).

(n12)Footnote 224. McIntyre v. Dietrich, 128 N.E. 321 (Ill. 1920)(defining date of the determinable fee and discussing methods of creation); Malone v. Kitchen, 137 N.E. 562 (Ind. App. 1922); Magness v. Kerr, 254 P. 1012 (Or. 1927); Atkins v. Gillespie, 299 S.W. 776 (Tenn. 1927).

The possibility of reverter is not assignable, even by the grantor. Magness v. Kerr, 254 P. 1012 (Or. 1927); Atkins v. Gillespie, 299 S.W. 776 (Tenn. 1927).

(n13)Footnote 225. A condition requires a re-entry to terminate the estate, a limitation does not. Co. Litt., § 214b. Cogan v. Cogan, Cro. Eliz. 360 (=hr2). So a stranger can take advantage of an estate upon limitation terminating but he cannot take advantage of an estate upon condition. Sheppard-Touchstone (4th ed.) 118.

Thus, where a testator devised land to A for life and on her death to her heirs, upon the condition that A shall continue to reside upon said lands for the period of her natural life and should she remove permanently from said lands during the period of her lifetime then the same shall become the absolute property of T, it was held that the estate was not based upon a condition subsequent, but was subject to a conditional limitation and that upon the removal of A from the land during her lifetime the property vested in T at once without entry or suit to establish title. Taylor v. McCowen, 99 P. 351 (Cal. 1908).

See the following cases: Burlington & C.R. Co. v. Colorado E. R. Co., 88 P. 154 (Colo. 1986); Koch v. Streuter, 83 N.E. 1072 (Ill. 1908); Fall Creek Sch. Twp. v. Shuman, 103 N.E. 677 (Ind. App. 1913); Hess v. Kernen Bros., 149 N.W. 847 (Iowa 1914); Coppage v. Alexander, 41 Ky. (2 B. Mon.) 313 (1842); Stearns v. Godfrey, 16 Me. 158 (1839); Miller v. Levi, 44 N.Y. 489 (1871); Oklahoma City v. Local Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 134 P.2d 565 (Okla. 1943); Daggett v. Ft. Worth, 177 S.W. 222 (Tex. Civ. App. 1915); Smith v. Smith, 23 Wis. 176 (1868).

(n14)Footnote 226. Rosecrans v. Pacific Elec. R. Co., 134 P.2d 245 (Cal. 1943); Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church v. First Lutheran Church, 124 N.E. 793 (Ill. 1919); Langley v. Ross, 20 N.W. 886 (Mich. 1884); Edwards v. Collins, 199 S.W. 580 (Mo. App. 1917); Guthrie v. Hartman, 226 S.W. 593 (Mo. App. 1920); Hooper v. Hooper, 20 N.C. 150 (1838); Lima Oil & Gas Co. v. Pritchard, 218 P. 863 (Okla. 1923); Mickleson v. Gypsy Oil Co., 238 P. 194 (Okla. 1925); Stinson v. Oklahoma R. Co., 126 P.2d 260 (Okla. 1942); Weiss v. Claborn, 219 S.W. 884 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Hickernell v. Gregory, 224 S.W. 691 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Turner v. Biscoe, 164 S.W.2d 70 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Killgore v. Cabell Cty. Ct., 92 S.E. 562 (S.E. 1917).

(n15)Footnote 227. Wichita Falls v. Bruner, 165 S.W.2d 480 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Queen City Park Ass'n v. Gale, 3 A.2d 529 (Vt. 1938). See Commonwealth ex rel. Bard v. Delaware Div. Canal Co., 1 A.2d 672 (Pa. 1938).

(n16)Footnote 228. Hall v. Barrett, 126 S.W.2d 1045 (Tex. Civ. App. 1939).

(n17)Footnote 229. In re Gaffers' Estate, 5 N.Y.S.2d 671 (1938).

(n18)Footnote 230. Harder v. Matthews, 141 N.E. 442 (Ill. 1923).

An estate upon condition subsequent has, until defeated by breach and entry, the same qualities and incidents as an absolute estate. Sherill v. Sherill, 99 So. 838 (Ala. 1924). If it is conveyed or devised it passes subject to the condition.

(n19)Footnote 231. Queen City Park Ass'n v. Gale, 3 A.2d 529 (Vt. 1938).

(n20)Footnote 232. See Vol. 12, § 101.01 et seq.

(n21)Footnote 233. Butler's notes to Co. Litt., § 201a.

(n22)Footnote 234. Apparently quia emptores had not yet been interpreted to prohibit a fee reserving an annual rent. Littleton, Tenures, § 341.

The statute of merchants, 13 Edward I, de mercatoribus and of staple, 27 Edward III, ch. 9. gave use of another type of fee upon condition subsequent. This developed when the creditor levied upon the debtor's lands. The creditor was entitled to hold title thereto until the debt was satisfied.

Likewise where lands were seised by a court of elegit under the statute of Westminster II, 13 Edward I, ch. 32, the creditor held as tenant by elegit a fee upon condition subsequent defeasible when the debt was paid.

(n23)Footnote 235. Borst v. Simpson, 7 So. 814 (Ala. 1890); First Nat'l Bank v. McIntosh, 79 So. 121 (Ala. 1918); Lucas v. Lucas, 156 S.E. 680 (Ga. 1931); Phillips v. Gannon, 92 N.E. 616 (Ill. 1910); Nowak v. Dombrowski, 107 N.E. 807 (Ill. 1915); Bennett v. Culver, 97 N.Y. 250 (1884); Helms v. Helms, 49 S.E. 110 (N.C. 1904); Paraffine Oil Co. v. Cruce, 162 P. 716 (Okla. 1916); Haynie v. Bennett, 115 N.W. 515 (S.D. 1908).

In Idaho, however, it is provided that an instrument purporting to be a grant of real property, to take effect upon condition precedent, does not pass the estate upon the performance of the condition. Such instrument is an executory contract for the conveyance of the property. Upon compliance with the condition, the grantee is entitled to a grant or conveyance from the grantor or his successors for the property duly acknowledged for record. Idaho Code 1932, § 55-609.

Conditions subsequent are preferred to conditions precedent. Railroad Comm'n v. American Trading & Prod. Corp., 323 S.W.2d 474 (Tex. Civ. App. 1959).

A bequest on condition that legatee marry in the Jewish faith was valid. Shapira v. Union Nat'l Bank, 315 N.E.2d 825 (Ohio 1974).

(n24)Footnote 236. Borst v. Simpson, 7 So. 814 (Ala. 1890).

See the following cases: Tennessee & C. R. Co. v. East Ala. R. Co., 73 Ala. 426 (1882); Rutland v. Chesson, 13 So. 606 (Ala. 1893); Talbert v. Hopper, 42 Cal. 399 (1871); Wilson v. Galt, 18 Ill. 431 (1857); Mackey v. Kerwin, 78 N.E. 817 (1906); Winnepiseogee Paper Co. v. Eaton, 18 A. 171 (N.H. 1889); Caldwell v. Fraim, 32 Tex. 310 (1869).

(n25)Footnote 237. Halsey v. Goddard, 86 F. 25 (C.C.R.I. 1898); Carter v. Carter, 39 Ala. 579 (1898); Anderson v. Broadwell, 6 P.2d 260 (Cal. App. 1931); Robbins v. Hoover, 115 P. 526 (Colo. 1911); Hobart v. Kehoe, 126 N.W. 66 (Minn. 1910).

(n26)Footnote 238. Stark v. Conde, 76 N.W. 600 (Wis. 1898).

(n27)Footnote 239. In re Whitman's Estate, 198 A. 161 (Pa. 1938).

(n28)Footnote 240. Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921).

The payment of the consideration is not always a condition precedent to the vesting of title. Myrick v. Lewis, 138 S.E. 198 (S.C. 1927).

(n29)Footnote 241. Earle v. Dawes, 3 Md. Ch. 230 (1849).

(n30)Footnote 242. Pennell v. Felch, 39 P. 1023 (Kan. 1895).

(n31)Footnote 243. Weinreich v. Weinreich, 18 Mo. App. 364 (1885).

(n32)Footnote 244. Carpender v. New Brunswick, 39 A.2d 40 (N.J. 1944).

(n33)Footnote 245. 4 Kent's Comm. 125; Borst v. Simpson, 7 So. 814 (Ala. 1890); Rankin v. Dean, 47 So. 1015 (Ala. 1908); Carloss v. Oxford, 80 S.W. 144 (Ark. 1904); Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921); Cronin v. Cronin, 145 N.E. 619 (Ill. 1924); City Bank of Baltimore v. Smith, 3 Md. (G. & J.) 265 (1831); Earle v. Dawes, 3 Md. Ch. 230 (1849); Emery v. Dana, 84 A. 976 (N.H. 1912); Paraffine Oil Co. v. Cruce, 162 P. 716 (Okla. 1916); Watzman v. Unatin, 131 S.E. 874 (W. Va. 1926).

See Keller v. Keller, 92 S.W.2d 157 (Mo. 1936).

(n34)Footnote 246. Watzman v. Unatin, 131 S.E. 874 (W. Va. 1926).

(n35)Footnote 247. Stockton v. Weber, 33 P. 332 (Cal. 1893).

(n36)Footnote 248. Houston v. Spruance, 4 Del. (Harr.) 117 (1844).

(n37)Footnote 249. Front Street M. & O. R. Co. v. Butler, 50 Cal. 574 (1875); Tipton v. Feitener, 20 N.Y. 423 (1859).

(n38)Footnote 250. Cayton v. Walker, 10 Cal. 450 (1858).

(n39)Footnote 251. Oakman v. Walker, 38 A. 63 (Vt. 1897).

See Walter M. Strine, Jr., Use of Condition in Land-Use Control, 67 Dick. L. Rev. 109 (1963).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.05

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.05 The Fee upon Condition Subsequent.

[Go To Supp]

That a fee may be created that is absolute in nature except that it is subject to termination if the grantee or his successors in title breaches a condition expressed in the instrument creating the fee has long been recognized. n252 The courts have had difficulty in distinguishing between fee simples determinable and fees upon condition subsequent. n253 One of the most important considerations in determining whether a clause is a condition subsequent or something else is the presence or absence of a clause providing for re-entry by the grantor or his heirs or forfeiture of the estate for a breach. n254

While the entailment feature still remained in the occasion of a feoffment to "A and his heirs" the feoffee could not encumber his estate so as to defeat the interest of the heirs of the feoffee or of his own feoffor. When King John admitted the Jews into England they brought with them the Jewish mortgage. This concept approached the modern lien theory. After Edward I expelled the Jews the lawyers for the creditor classes evolved the idea of a fee upon condition subsequent as a security devise. n255

One who grants property to another may impose a condition the non-performance of which will cause a forfeiture of the estate. n256 On failure of condition subsequent the property returns to the grantor. n257 Such a forfeiture is not, however, an automatic termination of the fee as in the case of a fee simple determinable. The fee simple determinable is a candle guttering out. The fee upon condition subsequent must be snuffed out by the action of the holder of the right of re-entry. n258 The fee upon condition subsequent remains after breach as before except that the creator has the right to secure revesting of the former estate. n259

The title under a deed creating a condition subsequent vests in the grantee, and remains in him until it is divested by the entry of the grantor. n260 In a condition precedent the title does not vest until the act which is made the condition is performed. n261 In the one case the title vests before the condition is performed, and in the other it does not vest at all unless the condition is first performed. n262 Conditions precedent intervene and prevent the vesting until the condition is complied with, n263 while a subsequent condition is one which operates upon an estate already created and vested, and renders it liable to be defeated. n264

The breach of a condition subsequent in a deed does not ipso facto operate to revest the grantor with title, but he must take appropriate action to have himself reinvested with title. n265 Where a conveyance is made and accepted upon this express condition, that the grantor reserves the right to live on the land until his death, and provides that his minor children shall be supported out of the proceeds thereof until each shall have received a certain sum, that the grantee shall pay to each of the minor children a certain sum on certain dates, that, when the grantee shall have performed the conditions expressed, the legal title to the land shall vest in him absolutely, a condition subsequent is created. n266 A conveyance of a farm from parents to a daughter, "not to become absolute until the decease" of both grantors, "and then only on this condition," that the grantee "shall deliver to the grantors or either of them annually, during their or either of their natural lives, one-third of the product" of said land, is a conveyance upon a condition subsequent, for the language implies that an estate is to pass by the conveyance. Otherwise it seems inconsistent to say that the conveyance shall not become absolute until the condition shall be performed. n267

The law has long been fixed that an estate upon condition subsequent can arise upon a deed poll as well as by indenture. n268 A purchaser of a deed which imposes a duty upon him by condition assumes the performance of it by his acceptance of the deed. n269 Thus, where a lot of land is sold subject to the condition that the grantee shall permit the proprietor of each adjoining lot who may build to erect one-half of the thickness of the division wall on such lot, and that the grantor, his heirs or assigns shall pay to the said proprietor so erecting such wall a proportionate part of the cost thereof for such part of the wall as the grantee, his heirs or assigns, may use or occupy, the grantee having the same right to place half the thickness of his wall on each adjoining lot, the grantee or any subsequent purchaser from him becomes bound by the acceptance of his deed to pay for such part of a division wall so built as he may use to the owner of the adjoining lot. Such purchaser is not liable as for a breach of covenant, because he did not sign and seal the deed, but the law implies a promise to perform the condition or stipulation from his acceptance of the deed, on which an action may be maintained. n270 The acceptance of a deed containing a condition binds the grantee to the performance of the conditions. n271

There is authority for the proposition that an option to purchase creates a fee upon condition subsequent with a right of re-entry in the grantor. n272

The holder of an estate in fee simple subject to a condition subsequent has all the rights in respect to it of a fee simple owner until the condition subsequent has happened. n273 If, however, the grantor remains in possession after conveying a fee upon condition subsequent the fee automatically returns to him on breach, no re-entry being necessary. n274 A provision to the effect that a deed is given and accepted on the express agreement of the grantee, to do certain things, imports a personal covenant rather than a condition. n275

Some cases prefer a construction of a fee upon condition subsequent over a fee simple determinable upon the theory that since forfeitures are abhorred, an optional determination is preferable to an absolute determination. n276 The holder of the fee, not the holder of the right of re-entry, is entitled to the proceeds of condemnation though the condition was the use of the property for a stated purpose only. n277

Until forfeiture is enforced, the grantee may convey or devise the estate, and upon his death it descends like an estate not subject to condition. The condition may be enforced against the property, whoever may be the owner of it. "The condition doth always attend and wait upon the estate or thing whereunto it is annexed; so that although the same do pass through the hands of an hundred men, yet it is subject to the condition still." n278 The grantor can convey no better title than he has and no condition would be worth anything if the grantee could avoid its operation and effect by the simple expedient of alienation before a breach of the condition. n279 Such a condition, however, defeats the estate to which it is annexed only at the election of him who has a right to enforce it. The grantee may mortgage his interest, and until his estate is defeated by the person entitled to defeat it, the mortgagee has the right to enforce his security to the same extent as if the condition were not contained in the deed. n280

On re-entry of the grantor after breach of condition of a deed conveying land in consideration of support, title to the land revests in the grantor free from liens and encumbrances created by a contract of support in favor of a third person, notwithstanding the grantor's acceptance of a reconveyance by the grantee after the breach. n281 Unless the condition is personal it may he performed by anyone to whom the title may have passed by conveyance, devise, or descent or by anyone who has an interest in it. n282 Conditions are sometimes said to run with the land and bind the heirs and assigns of the grantee although they may be merely personal. n283 The mere sale and conveyance by the grantee of the land, which is subject to a condition that the same shall be used for certain purposes only, is not a breach of the condition, in the absence of a showing that the grantee has diverted the land to other purposes. n284

The courts vary as to the necessity of express language as to the right of re-entry to create a condition subsequent. Some cases indicate such necessity. n285 Others permit a condition to arise in the absence of a right of re-entry. n286 Still others use the absence of an expressed right of re-entry to create an ambiguity which enables the courts to construe the instrument, usually, against the condition. n287

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 252. Littleton, Tenures, ch. 5, L. 3.

See Walter M. Strine, Jr., Use of Condition in Land-Use Control, 67 Dick. L. Rev. 109 (1963); Kenneth J. O'Connell, Estates on Condition Subsequent and Estates on Special Limitation in Oregon, 18 Or. L. Rev. 63 (1939).

Upholding fee upon condition subsequent with the right of re-entry. Olivas v. Zambrano, 543 S.W.2d 180 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976).

(n2)Footnote 253. A deed "upon the express condition and limitation" that on cessation for use for school purposes the property revert to the grantor conveyed a determinable fee. Moore v. Wells, 93 S.E.2d 731 (Ga. 1956).

Distinction between fees simple determinable and fees upon condition subsequent are now abolished in Oklahoma, both being conditional limitations. Kassner v. Alexander Drug Co., 147 P.2d 979 (Okla. 1943).

Contra, Frensly v. White, 254 P.2d 982 (Okla. 1953).

Confusing fee simple determinable and fee upon condition subsequent. Hinton v. Bowen, 230 S.W.2d 965 (Tenn. 1950).

In a fee upon condition subsequent, the fee is voidable on the election of the person in whose favor the condition is imposed. The transferee there from has no right. On a conditional limitation, the present estate is void on occurrence of the event and right of possession vests in the grantor or next succeeding person having a right to possession without re-entry or criminal act. Conger v. Conger, 494 P.2d 1081 (Kan. 1972).

Words of forfeiture create a fee upon condition subsequent. Floyd v. Hoover, 234 S.E.2d 89 (Ga. App. 1977).

(n3)Footnote 254. Newton v. Glen Ellyn, 27 N.E.2d 821 (Ill. 1940).

"Provided" there is language of condition rather than a limitation. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Co., 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

Condition found only in description clause and not in habendum or granting clause did not create a fee upon condition subsequent. Waters v. North Carolina Phosphate Corp., 232 S.E.2d 275 (N.C. App. 1977). (Now under G.S. 39-1.1, a later statute, North Carolina has the four corners rule.)

A devise "in fee simple" with a proviso that he should never deny access or occupation to the several heirs "hereinafter named" during their lifetime created a fee subject to a condition subsequent. Babb v. Rand, 345 A.2d 496 (Me. 1975).

Devise to the city to be used as a park and, if otherwise, to be given to Humane Society was a devise on a condition subsequent. Austin v. Austin Nat'l Bank, 503 S.W.2d 759 (Tex. 1973).

(n4)Footnote 255. 1 Pollock & Maitland 457, felt that the writ of elegit had been borrowed from the Jewish mortgage.

The first application by a common law mortgagor to chancery for relief against forfeiture is shown in 1456. Select Cases in Chancery (SS), 137-139, 3 Holdsworth 130.

The common-law mortgage while in form a fee upon condition subsequent was in part security for money lent, 3 Eyre of Kent (SS) 85.

(n5)Footnote 256. Wampler v. Harrington, 261 S.W.2d 883 (1953).

Devise to the city to be used as a park and, if otherwise, to be given to Humane Society was a devise on a condition subsequent. Austin v. Austin Nat'l Bank, 503 S.W.2d 759 (Tex. 1973).

(n6)Footnote 257. Olabass v. Zambrano, 543 S.W.2d 180 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976).

(n7)Footnote 258. Farmer's High Sch. Consol. Dist. No. 3 v. Parker, 203 S.W.2d 516 (Mo. App. 1947).

In a conditional estate the happening of the event upon which the estate may be defeated does not, in itself, operate to defeat the estate; some act must yet be done (such as, at common law, making an entry) to defeat the estate; the grantor may never elect to defeat the estate; in such an estate there is no reverter arising wholly from the happening of the event upon which the estate may be defeated. In a limitation the estate determines, ipso facto, upon the happening of the event which marks its boundary as to time, and the estate thereupon goes over at once to the grantor by reverter, or to the person to whom it is limited upon the happening of such contingency, if it be limited over. The ordinary technical words by which a limitation is expressed relate to time, the technical words given in 2 Bac. Abr. tit. "Conditions" (H), 117, being "dum, dummodo, quandiu, donec, quosque, ubicunque, usque ad, tamdiu"; the words by which conditions are created are "sub conditione, ita quod, si contingat, proviso." Board of Chosen Freeholders v. Buck, 82 A. 418 (N.J. 1912).

(n8)Footnote 259. Preas v. Phebus, 272 P.2d 159 (Utah 1954).

A fee upon condition subsequent is terminated only by entry by the grantor for breach of the condition. Lake View Mem. Hosp. v. Vermilion County, 318 N.E.2d 752 (Ill. App. 1974).

Fees upon condition subsequent does not terminate until affirmative action is taken. Cummings v. United States, 409 F. Supp. 1064 (M.D.N.C. 1976).

(n9)Footnote 260. American Dirigold Corp. v. Dirigold Metals Corp., 125 F.2d 446 (6th Cir. 1942); Hawkins v. Third, 14 So. 2d 513 (Ala. 1943); Schornick v. Schornick, 220 P. 397 (Ariz. 1923); Front Street M. & O. R. Co. v. Butler, 50 Cal. 574 (1875); Spect v. Gregg, 51 Cal. 198 (1875); Storke v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co., 61 N.E.2d 552 (Ill. 1945); Spofford v. True, 33 Me. 283 (1851); Shattuck v. Hastings, 99 Mass. 23 (1868); Memphis & C.R. Co. v. Neighbors, 51 Miss. 412 (1878); University City v. Chicago, R.I. & P.R. Co., 149 S.W.2d 321 (Mo. 1941); Majerus v. Santo, 10 N.W.2d 608 (Neb. 1943); Ludlow v. New York & H.R. Co., 12 N.Y. (Barb.) 440 (1852); Priddy v. School Dist. No. 78, 219 P. 141 (Okla. 1923); Oklahoma City v. Local Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 134 P.2d 565 (Okla. 1943); Gulf, C.

& S.F.R. Co. v. Dunman, 11 S.W. 1094 (Tex. 1889).

It is not divested by the grantee's breach of the condition, but continues until the grantor or his heirs take advantage of such breach and make an entry or a claim of title in order to avoid the estate. Sherill v. Sherill, 99 So. 838 (Ala. 1924); Texas Co. v. Davis, 254 S.W. 304 (Tex. 1923).

Condition subsequent divests estate. Hart v. Gould, 259 P.2d 49 (Cal. App. 1953); Dallas v. Etheridge, 253 S.W.2d 640 (Tex. 1952).

Grantee of fee upon condition subsequent takes oil, gas and mineral rights. In re Hart's Estate, 311 P.2d 605 (Cal. App. 1957).

Re-entry necessary to terminate fee upon condition subsequent. Preston v. Bosworth, 55 N.E. 224 (Ind. 1899). In the case of conditions subsequent the title vests in the grantee or devisee and remains in him until it is divested or cut down by the happening, performance, or non-performance of the condition and entry by the grantor. Wilder v. Kress, 194 N.Y.S. 204 (1922); Gypsy Oil Co. v. Escoe, 258 P. 906 (Okla. 1927).

(n10)Footnote 261. Stewart v. Colvin, 214 P.2d 229 (Okla. 1949); Allen v. Sharp, 233 S.W.2d 485 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950).

(n11)Footnote 262. Finlay v. King's Lessee, 28 U.S. (3 Pet.) 346 (1830); Rannels v. Rowe, 145 F. 296 (8th Cir. 1906); First Nat'l Bank v. McIntosh, 79 So. 121 (Ala. 1918); Hawkins v. Hansen, 142 P. 280 (Kan. 1914); Chute v. Washburn, 46 N.W. 555 (Minn. 1890); Munro v. Syracuse L. & N. R. Co., 93 N.E. 516 (N.Y. 1910); Jones v. Chesapeake & Ohio R. Co., 14 W. Va. 514 (1878); Miller v. Yorkshire Ins. Co., 297 N.W. 377 (Wis. 1941).

In a condition precedent the title does not vest prior to the performance of the condition. Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921); Gypsy Oil Co. v. Escoe, 258 P. 906 (Okla. 1927).

If the condition precedent never happens the estate never vests. Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921).

A fee simple upon a condition subsequent does not terminate automatically upon the happening of the stated event and the holder of the future interest must take affirmative action to terminate the estate. Cummings v. United States, 409 F. Supp. 1064 (M.D.N.C. 1976).

(n12)Footnote 263. Downen v. Rayburn, 73 N.E. 364 (Ill. 1905); Koch v. Streuter, 83 N.E. 1072 (Ill. 1908); Memphis & C. R. Co. v. Neighbors, 51 Miss. 412 (1875), citing Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468 (1863); Nicoll v. New York & E. R. Co., 12 N.Y. 121 (1854)(It being determined that a condition subsequent was raised by apt and sufficient words, it follows that the estate conveyed remains defeasible until the condition be performed, destroyed, or barred by the statute of limitations, or by estoppel); Kerens v. St. Louis Union Trust Co., 223 S.W. 645 (Mo. 1920); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887); Frank v. Stratford-Handcock, 77 P. 134 (Wyo. 1904).

(n13)Footnote 264. Downen v. Rayburn, 73 N.E. 364 (Ill. 1905); Spofford v. True, 33 Me. 283 (1851); Vail v. Long Island R. Co., 12 N.E. 607 (N.Y. 1887); Munro v. Syracuse, L. & N. R. Co., 93 N.E. 516 (N.Y. 1910); Evenson v. Webster, 53 N.W. 747 (S.D. 1892).

When a subsequent law makes performance of a condition subsequent impossible the condition becomes a nullity. Goldberg v. Callender Bros., 113 A. 170 (Conn. 1921) (premises rented for saloon purposes, use made unlawful by prohibition law).

If the condition subsequent is impossible to be complied with at the time of its creation or afterwards becomes so by the act of God or for any other reason not resulting from the act of the grantee or devisee the condition is nugatory and the estate granted or devised is absolute as though no condition had ever attached. Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921). See Eastham v. Eastham, 231 S.W. 221 (Ky. 1921); Salamanca Trust Co. v. Crouse, 222 N.Y.S. 83 (1927) (act of God excuses performance unless parties covenant otherwise).

(n14)Footnote 265. People ex rel. Dep't of Pub. Works v. City of Fresno, 26 Cal. Rptr. 853 (1962); Scott County Bd. of Educ. v. Pepper, 311 S.W.2d 189 (Ky. 1958); Donehue v. Nilges, 266 S.W.2d 553 (Mo. 1954); Buffalo v. Day, 162 N.Y.S.2d 817 (1957); Nichols v. Haehn, 171 N.Y.S.2d 734 (1957). See Oswego v. Montcalm Dock Co., 283 N.Y.S. 121 (1935). This is in accord with Restatement of the Law of Property, § 24, comment b. Smith v. Glen Alden Coal Co., 32 A.2d 227 (Pa. 1943); In re Condemnation of Land, Borough of Pringle, Pa. Com. Pl., 38 Luz. L. Reg. Rep. 325; East Tenn. & W. N. C. R. Co. v. Gouge, 203 S.W.2d 170 (Tenn. App. 1947); Neal v. State-Planters Bank & Trust Co., 184 S.E. 203 (Va. 1936); Sanford v. Sims, 66 S.E.2d 495 (Va. 1951)(fee does not terminate until right of re-entry is exercised).

Right of re-entry must be asserted within a reasonable time after breach. Zambrano v. Olivas, 490 S.W.2d 218 (Tex. Civ. App. 1973).

(n15)Footnote 266. The California court said: "In this reservation we see nothing to indicate that they intended to retain the title in themselves during their lives. On the contrary, it would seem from the language used that they intended to pass the title at once to the grantee, subject to the conditions named." Bank of Suisun v. Stark, 39 P. 531 (Cal. 1895), citing Hihn v. Peck, 30 Cal. 281 (1866).

(n16)Footnote 267. Drew v. Baldwin, 4 N.W. 576 (Wis. 1880).

A condition subsequent is to be preferred by way of construction over a limitation as being less onerous on the grantee. Lawyers Trust Co. v. Houston, 359 S.W.2d 887 (Tex. 1962).

Conditions subsequent in deed are preferred over conditional limitation. Field v. Shaw, 535 S.W.2d 3 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976).

(n17)Footnote 268. Littleton, Tenures, ch. 5, L. 3. Moore v. Wells, 93 S.E.2d 731 (Ga. 1956).

(n18)Footnote 269. "Where a grantee accepts a deed, and goes into possession of the premises under it, he is bound by the conditions contained in the deed as effectually as if he had signed and sealed the instrument. Although not executing the instrument, he should be deemed to have entered into an express undertaking to do what the deed says he is to do; and such undertaking or obligation imposed upon and assumed by the grantee, if not technically a covenant running with the land, is nevertheless an agreement of the grantee, evidenced by his acceptance of the deed, which might bind him and his personal representatives, and, by express words, his heirs and assigns." Hickey v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 36 N.E. 672 (Ohio 1894); Douglas v. Douglas, 56 P.2d 362 (Okla. 1936).

(n19)Footnote 270. Maine v. Cumston, 98 Mass. 317 (1867).

See the following cases: Druecker v. McLaughlin, 85 N.E. 647 (Ill. 1908); Leach v. Rains, 48 N.E. 858 (Ind. 1897); Agne v. Seitsinger, 52 N.W. 228 (Iowa 1892); Dyer v. Sanford, 50 Mass. (9 Metc.) 395 (1845); Bredell v. Kerr, 147 S.W. 105 (Mo. 1912); Coykendall v. Kellogg, 198 N.W. 472 (N.D. 1924); Barnes v. Crockett, 68 S.E. 983 (1910); Matheny v. Ferguson, 47 S.E. 886 (W. Va. 1904); Gross v. Arians, 141 N.W. 224 (Wis. 1913).

The acceptance of the deed may show an acceptance of the condition attached thereto. Buszozak v. Wolo, 211 N.Y.S. 557 (1925).

(n20)Footnote 271. Durgin v. Allen, 85 N.E.2d 208 (Mass. 1949); Westrick v. Unterbrink, 105 N.E.2d 885 (Ohio App. 1950).

(n21)Footnote 272. Rountree v. Richardson, 108 So. 2d 152 (Ala. 1959).

(n22)Footnote 273. Halvorsen v. Pacific County, 156 P.2d 907 (Wash. 1945).

(n23)Footnote 274. Akasu v. Power, 91 N.E.2d 224 (Mass. 1950).

Right of re-entry after a condition of limitation required to be exercised within the period of statute of limitations for recovery of land. Field v. Shaw, 535 S.W.2d 3 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976).

A devise "in fee simple" with a proviso that he should never deny access or occupation to the several heirs "hereinafter named" during their lifetime created a fee subject to a condition subsequent. Babb v. Rand, 345 A.2d 496 (Me. 1975).

(n24)Footnote 275. Bou v. Willits, 214 P. 519 (Cal. App. 1923).

A mere statement in a deed of the purpose of the conveyance or a clause limiting the use to be made of the premises conveyed creates neither a covenant nor a condition, and the nonfulfilment of the purpose or a violation of the restriction will not of itself defeat the estate granted. Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 50 (1926). See Columbia Bldg. Co. v. Cemetery of Holy Cross, 141 A. 525 (Md. 1928).

(n25)Footnote 276. Oldfield v. Stoeco Homes, Inc., 139 A.2d 291 (N.J. 1958), following the Restatement of the Law of Property, § 45, comment m.

In Markey v. Smith, 16 N.E.2d 20 (Mass. 1938), a provision for re-entry if a lessee failed to operate the premises for thirty days was held to create a fee upon condition subsequent which did not cease until the owner re-entered, not a determinable fee.

Express provisions for reverter actually creates a right of re-entry unless magic words necessary to create a determinable fee are used. Alexander Bldg. Corp. v. Carteret, 155 A.2d 263 (N.J. 1959).

Fee upon condition subsequent preferred over fee simple determinable. Hagaman v. Board of Educ. of Woodbridge Twp., 285 A.2d 63 (N.J. 1970).

Provision that the grantee would reconvey under certain conditions created a fee upon condition subsequent not a fee simple determinable. Kanarado Mining & Dev. Co. v. Sutton, 539 P.2d 1325 (Colo. 1975).

(n26)Footnote 277. Carter v. New York Cent. R. Co., 73 NYS2d 610 (1947).

Fees upon condition subsequent are presumed over fee simple determinables to avoid a forfeiture. Hardman v. Dahlonega-Lumpkin County Chamber of Commerce, 233 S.E.2d 753 (Ga. 1977).

Provision limiting use and providing for reverter if use violated held a condition subsequent not a fee simple determinable. Field v. Shaw, 535 S.W.2d 3 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976). Fee upon condition subsequent is less burdensome to the grantee than a conditional limitation.

(n27)Footnote 278. Sheppard-Touchstone, Common Assurance, 119; Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); O'Brien v. Wetherell, 14 Kan. 616 (1875); Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Covington, 65 Ky. (2 Bush) 526 (1866). Wilson v. Wilson, 38 Me. 18 (1854); Langley v. Chapin, 134 Mass. 82 (1883); Jackson ex dem. Reeves v. Topping, 1 N.Y. (Wend.) 388; Upington v. Corrigan, 45 N.E. 359 (1896).

(n28)Footnote 279. Sherill v. Sherill, 99 So. 838 (Ala. 1924). See Stewart v. Workman, 102 S.E. 474 (W. Va. 1920).

(n29)Footnote 280. Hayward v. Kinney, 48 N.W. 170 (Mich. 1891).

(n30)Footnote 281. Kroening v. Kroening, 269 N.W. 536 (Wis. 1939).

(n31)Footnote 282. Vermont v. Society for Propagation of the Gospel, 28 F. Cas. 545, 2 Paine 545 (C.C.D. Vt. 1827); Louisville & N.R. Co. v. Covington, 65 Ky. (2 Bush) 526 (1866); Wilson v. Wilson, 38 Me. 18 (1854); Joslyn v. Parlin, 54 Vt. 670 (1881); Marks v. Marks, 10 Mod. 419.

(n32)Footnote 283. Barker v. Cobb, 36 N.H. 344 (1858); Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N.H. 475 (1862).

(n33)Footnote 284. Taylor v. Binford, 37 Ohio St. 262 (1881).

(n34)Footnote 285. Libby v. Winston, 93 So. 631 (Ala. 1922); Smith v. School Dist. No. 14, 94 S.W.2d 706 (Ark. 1936); Hawley v. Kafitz, 83 P. 248 (Cal. 1905); Fitzgerald v. County of Modoc, 129 P. 794 (Cal. 1913); Hasman v. Elk Grove Union High Sch., 245 P. 464 (Cal. App. 1926); First Presbyterian Church v. Bailey, 97 A. 583 (Del. 1916); Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church v. First Lutheran Church, 124 N.E. 793 (Ill. 1919); Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); First Lutheran Church of Pontiac v. Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church, 147 N.E. 53 (Ill. 1925); Kilpatrick v. Baltimore, 31 A. 805 (Md. 1895); Cassidy v. Mason, 50 N.E. 1027 (Mass. 1898); Chouteau v. St. Louis, 55 S.W.2d 299 (Mo. 1932); Nichols v. Haehn, 171 N.Y.S.2d 734 (1957); In re Board of Educ., 184 N.Y.S.2d 735 (1959); Braddy v. Elliott, 60 S.E. 507 (N.C. 1908); First Presbyterian Church v. Sinclair Ref. Co., 157 S.E. 438 (N.C. 1931); Washington City Bd. of Educ. v. Edgerton, 94 S.E.2d 661 (N.C. 1956); Ashland v. Greiner, 50 N.E. 99 (Ohio 1898); Ball v. Milliken, 76 A. 789 (R.I. 1910); Gahagan v. Texas & P. R. Co., 231 S.W.2d 762 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950); King v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 39 S.E. 701 (Va. 1901).

The presence of a repurchase clause in a deed by the grantor was evidence of a fee upon condition subsequent. Floyd v. Hoover, 234 S.E.2d 89 (Ga. App. 1977).

(n35)Footnote 286. Ruch v. Rock Island, 97 U.S. 693 (1878); Adams v. Ore Knob Copper Co., 7 F. 634 (C.C.N.C. 1880); Union Pac. R. Co. v. Cook, 98 F. 281 (1899); Hanners v. Hanners, 77 So. 2d 484 (Ala. 1955); Ritchie v. Kansas, N. & D. R. Co., 39 P. 718 (Kan. 1895); Little Falls Water Power Co. v. Belin, 72 N.W. 69 (Minn. 1897); Ellis v. Kyger, 3 S.W. 23 (Mo. 1887); Bouvier v. Baltimore & N. Y. R. Co., 51 A. 781 (N.J. 1902); Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N.Y. 442 (1869); Union College v. New York, 65 N.E. 853 (N.Y. 1903); Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Dunman, 11 S.W. 1094 (Tex. 1889); Hearne v. Bradshaw, 305 S.W.2d 618 (Tex. Civ. App. 1957)(failure to provide for re-entry on breach created covenant not condition with an action for damages not forfeiture).

(n36)Footnote 287. Clark v. Grand Rapids, 55 N.W.2d 137 (Mich. 1952); Frederic v. Merchants & Marine Bank, 28 So. 2d 843 (Miss. 1947).

In the case of Loats Female Orphan Asylum v. Essom, 150 A.2d 742 (Md. 1959), the testator had devised property for the express purpose of use as an orphan asylum. It was held that there being no express reservation of right of reverter or of re-entry the trustees of the asylum could convey a fee simple title to the property, modern philosophy preferring caring for orphans in private homes.

The Ohio rule is that a mere statement of duration or of condition does not create a fee simple determinable or upon condition subsequent unless there is an express reservation of a possibility of reverter or right of re-entry. PCK Props., Inc. v. Cuyahoga Falls, 176 N.E.2d 441 (Ohio 1960).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.06

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.06 Language Giving Rise to Conditions.

[Go To Main]

In view of the widely expressed antipathy of the courts against "forfeitures," it is the position usually taken that the existence of a condition must be clearly expressed and will not be presumed. n288 There is a line of authority to the effect that where the granting of a fee is absolute and the habendum clause does not limit it any additional clause repugnant to the grant which is not incorporated in the body of the deed is mere surplusage. n289 A deed will not be construed to create an estate upon condition, unless the language of the deed, according to the rules of law, or proprio vigore, imports a condition or the intent of the grantor to make a conditional estate is otherwise clearly and unequivocally indicated. n290 After an absolute deed the grantor cannot by subsequent deed impose conditions, for there is then no estate in the grantor upon which the conditions can take effect. n291 As a general rule, a condition cannot be established by implication, as, for instance, by a declaration of the purpose for which the conveyance is made. n292

While the courts are slow to imply a construction of dubious language that will create a condition subsequent, such conditions are legal and will be enforced if it is clear that the parties did intend a condition and not a covenant or other legal result. It is not, however, necessary to use any of the usual words of condition to create an estate upon condition. If it clearly appears from the terms used that the parties intended to create an estate upon condition, such intention will control. n293 The word "provided" may be used in a deed to create a condition subsequent, but its use does not necessarily result in the creation of such condition. n294 Conditions subsequent must be so created as to leave no doubt regarding the grantor's intention. n295

If the intention of the grantor as manifested by the whole deed was merely to create a restriction, effect will be given to the provision in this way, although it be expressed to be upon condition. If, on the other hand, the intention as gathered from the whole instrument was to create a condition, the instrument will be construed as creating a condition, though none of the ordinary words to make a condition are used. n296

When any conditions annexed to a grant or conveyance of lands are merely nominal, and evince no intention of actual or substantial benefit to the party to whom or in whose favor they are to be performed, they may be wholly disregarded, and a failure to perform the same shall in no case operate as a forfeiture of the lands conveyed subject thereto. Such are the statutes in Michigan, n297 and Minnesota. n298 Sometimes conditions are confused with trusts. n299

A limitation to a corporation to be formed within twenty years after the testator's death created an executory devise with an interim reversion to the testator's heirs. n300 The reservation expressly of a right of re-entry is not essential to the creation of a fee upon condition subsequent. But where a re-entry is not reserved in so many words the courts have the task of determining whether a condition or a covenant exists and are inclined to the latter viewpoint. While a condition subsequent may be implied the implication must be clear. n301 It has been held that unless there is an express right of reentry reserved and ambiguity arises which the courts usually resolve against the condition. n302 So a condition subsequent, attached to a testamentary gift, is not effective, in the absence of a provision for reversion or gift over in the event of a failure to perform the condition. n303 A life estate with remainder over can be created subject to a condition subsequent and right of re-entry in the grantor. n304 "The primary purpose of the construction of a deed is to ascertain the intention of the parties, to be gathered from the instrument as a whole, giving effect to every word and rejecting none as meaningless or repugnant, if this can be done without violating a positive rule of law." n305 If the parties intended the estate to vest and the grantee to perform the acts or to refrain from certain acts after taking possession, there is a condition subsequent. n306

If the language used imports a condition only and it is clear that the parties intended that the legal consequences of a breach of a condition should follow a violation of the terms of the provision, this cannot be treated as a covenant, but must be treated as a condition. n307 An intention to impose a condition upon a grant must be plainly and clearly expressed in the instrument. n308 Where the language used is so clear as to leave no doubt that a condition was intended, the estate created is one upon condition. n309 Where the language used is unambiguous, and the words are generally recognized as apt and appropriate for the creation of an estate upon condition, it is not enforceable as a covenant. n310 Where the expression "on condition" is used, with right of re-entry for failure to keep and perform the condition expressed, a condition is clearly created. n311 A condition is not a covenant. The court cannot disregard the distinction between them. "Upon covenants, the legal responsibility of their non-fulfillment is, that the party violating them must respond in damages. The consequence of the non-fulfillment of a condition is a forfeiture of the estate. The grantor may re-enter at his will and possess himself of his former estate." n312

If, however, such a clause is inserted in the form of an express condition or it is declared that a breach of the stipulation shall work a forfeiture, the conveyance will be construed as creating a condition subsequent. n313 A condition that the grantee shall erect upon the land conveyed a cotton factory, within two years from the date of the conveyance, is a condition and not a covenant. It has been held not necessary that the deed contain a provision that upon the non-compliance with the condition specified the title shall revert to the grantor if it is clear from the language used by the parties in the deed as a whole that it was their intention and purpose that the title should revert to the grantor upon a failure to use the land for a particular purpose or upon the failure to perform a specified condition. n314 In determining whether a clause in a deed must be construed as a covenant or a condition, the surrounding circumstances must be considered where part of the deed indicates a covenant and part indicates a condition. n315

Under the common law there were certain words which made an estate conditional. Thus, a deed to certain lands "upon condition" that the grantee do some act, or "provided always" that the grantee do or cause some act to be done, or "so that" the grantee shall do or cause some act to be done, gave the grantee an estate upon condition without any other words being added, because these words in themselves contained a condition that the grantor and his heirs re-enter, if the grantee failed to perform the condition. The words, "if it happen" that a thing reserved is not paid or performed, will make an estate conditional when used in a grant from the state or when used in a will, but, when used in a deed of an individual, these words do not make the title in the lands conditional. n316

The use of the words "conditions precedent" in a deed by the grantor does not necessarily make the conditions precedent. n317 On the other hand, the use of such words as "upon condition," and the like, is not absolutely necessary. Any words conveying the same meaning are sufficient to create a condition. n318

Apt words "of condition" will not create an estate "upon condition" if the intention of the grantor, as manifested by the whole deed, is otherwise.

A mere declaration in a deed that the grant is made for a special and particular purpose creates no implied condition unless coupled with words appropriate to make such a condition. n319 The nature and purpose of the deed and the circumstances of the transaction may control the use and meaning of words of condition so that they will not have the effect of limiting the estate conveyed. Thus, "the word 'proviso' is an appropriate one to constitute a common-law condition in a deed or will, but this is not the fixed and invariable meaning attached to it by the law in these instruments. On the contrary, it gives way to the intent of the parties as gathered from an examination of the whole instrument, and has frequently been thus explained and applied as expressing simply a covenant or limitation in trust. n320

The words "option to repurchase" contained in a deed create a condition subsequent. n321

In a deed to a railroad company, a condition that the company should erect a private crossing under the railroad track may properly be construed as a reservation of a mere easement to the grantor, if there is nothing further in the deed which indicates an intention to make the compliance with such provision a condition subsequent. The provision for the right-of-way was treated as part of the consideration for the conveyance. It was accordingly held that the grantor could maintain an action for damages against the railroad for closing the crossing. n322 A deed "upon this further condition" that the grantee should permit the grantor to have access through the land to the waters of a harbor by a road heretofore used, was held not to constitute a condition subsequent. There was in the deed no clearly expressed intention importing that the estate was to depend upon a contingency provided for. The legal effect of the condition was to annex a right-of-way to the land conveyed. It was a reservation in favor of the grantee. n323 Where a devise was made "upon the express condition" that the devisee should pay all legacies within twelve months, but added, "and I feel confident that he will comply with my wish, it being my particular desire that all the above legacies shall be paid, and I do hereby charge and make chargeable all my said real and personal estate with the payment of the aforesaid legacies," it was held that there was no condition for which an entry could be made, but only a trust. n324

The absence of words showing an intention to create an estate on condition is significant. n325 Some cases require that conditions be created by express words. n326 Others permit conditions to be implied if the implication is clear. n327 The condition cannot be established by parol evidence except upon a proper allegation of fraud, accident or mistake and upon clear and satisfactory evidence. n328 A condition expressed is presumed to be the only condition, n329 unless its terms fairly imply a further condition. n330

The condition must appear in the deed of the lands to which the condition is annexed or in a writing executed by the grantee referring to such deed or in some way made a part of it. n331 If duly executed the condition may be created by a writing on the back of a deed. n332 A court is not warranted in mutilating a deed by rejecting conditions attached to the grant. n333 The circumstances surrounding the parties may be shown, in order to aid the court in the construction of the condition. n334

A condition may be created by a deed which refers to a condition contained in another paper and is made subject to it. The two instruments are read together and are of the same effect as if the condition were incorporated in the deed itself. n335 So if, in pursuance of the contract in virtue of which the deed is made, the parties at the time of executing the deed also execute an agreement expressing the condition upon which the property is conveyed, the conveyance is upon the condition so expressed. Thus where, at the time of receiving a deed, the grantee executed an unsealed instrument, declaring that the deed was made on condition that the grantee should support the grantor during his lifetime, the deed and such instrument should be read together in determining the grantee's title under the deed. In such case, when the grantee at the time of receiving the deed executed and delivered the condition, he thereby agreed with the grantor that he accepted the deed upon the condition written, and that the title to the property described in the deed should not become vested in him until he had furnished the support specified in the condition. n336 A condition contained in a prior agreement between the parties, in pursuance of which the deed is made, but not expressed or refereed to in the deed, does not bind the grantee. n337 A condition when written upon the back of a deed poll is effectual, for, although the grantee did not sign the condition, by accepting the deed with the condition upon it he accepted it as a deed made upon the condition so declared. n338 A condition may be expressed and a re-entry reserved in an instrument collateral to the deed. n339

"Divers words there be, which by virtue of themselves make estates upon condition." n340 To make an estate conditional, the words must clearly show such intent. n341 Conditions are imposed only by the express terms of the instrument, or by necessary implication from the language used. n342 A mere statement of the consideration for or the purpose of the conveyance does not, of itself, render an estate conditional. n343 The question is usually one of construction. n344 No precise or technical words are required to create either a condition precedent or a condition subsequent. n345 A condition is created by the use of appropriate words, such as "on condition," "provided," "so as," "so that," "if it happen," or the like, which import, ex vi termini, that the vesting or continuance of the estate is to depend upon the observance of the provision named. n346 "To every good condition is required an external form"; n347 but apt words, even, do not always create a conditional grant, when the intent of the grantor, as shown by the whole deed, is otherwise. n348 The words of condition should be a part of the habendum or come directly after it, n349 controlling but not contradicting the generality of the words in the premises. The words must not only be such as to themselves import a condition, but they must be so connected with the grant in the deed as to qualify or restrain it. n350

As a general rule the estate granted by the granting clause in a deed cannot, by subsequent recitals in the deed that are not a part of the granting clause, be cut down, amended, modified, restricted, or annulled, n351 but such rule has no application to a deed containing conditions in the granting clause itself. n352 If the words of condition do not introduce a new clause qualifying the grant itself, but are used by way of limitation or qualification of a former clause, they do not import a condition. n353 Where the granting clause of a deed conveyed an absolute fee, a provision in the habendum clause limiting the use to a specified purpose was held not to lessen the effect of the granting clause and the repugnancy must be resolved in favor of the granting clause in the absence of words creating a base fee or fee on condition subsequent. n354 It is not absolutely essential that a strict condition should be a part of the habendum, but if it is found in any other part of the deed, as for instance, in the premises or following the covenants, its unusual place in the deed may influence its construction. n355 Where a deed contained apt words to convey a fee conditional in the granting clause, the language of the habendum clause allegedly indicating an intention to give the grantee a life estate only was held not to be considered, since the estate granted cannot be cut down by a subsequent provision of the same instrument. n356 Where the trustees of a city adopted a resolution providing that certain lands should be granted upon the condition that the lands should be occupied and improved within a specified time from the date of the certificate, and if within a limited time thereafter improvements of a certain amount were not made, the lands should revert to the city. The deed to the defendant's grantor recited a sale made to him that day on the conditions of the resolution, and an agreement on his part to make the improvements. These recitals preceded the granting clause, which together with the habendum, in consideration of the full receipt of the purchase money by the city, purported to vest in the grantee the full title of the city in fee simple, without condition. It was held that the grant was absolute. n357 Where the short form statutory deed is used, in which the habendum is absent, about the only place in the usual printed form for the insertion of a condition is just after the description of the property, and this appears to be the place where the condition is inserted when this form of deed is used. n358

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 288. Lassiter v. Oxford, 234 F.2d 217 (4th Cir. 1956); Stewart v. Weaver, 87 So. 2d 548 (Ala. 1956); Coffill v. Bach, 323 P.2d 873 (Cal. App. 1958); Gordon v. Whittle, 57 S.E.2d 169 (Ga. 1950); Nogaj v. Nogaj, 89 N.W.2d 513 (Mich. 1958); Waring v. Rogers, 286 S.W.2d 374 (Mo. App. 1956); Edward John Noble Hosp. v. Board of Foreign Missions, 176 N.Y.S.2d 157 (1958); Ange v. Ange, 71 S.E.2d 19 (N.C. 1952); Stevens v. Vinita, 315 P.2d 776 (Okla. 1957); Gange v. Hayes, 237 P.2d 196 (Or. 1951); Cooper v. Milikovsky, 112 A.2d 616 (Pa. 1955); Bristol v. Nolan, 53 A.2d 466 (R.I. 1947); Joseph Mann Library Ass'n v. Two Rivers, 76 N.W.2d 388 (Wis. 1956); J. M. Carey & Bro. v. Casper, 213 P.2d 263 (Wyo. 1950).

"Conditions are not favored in law as they tend to destroy estates; but conditions may be created if such an intention appears from an examination of the whole deed. There are certain words which are considered appropriate to create a condition; but when these apt words are used the provision is not always construed as a condition, and without these words conditions have been found to exist when such appears to be the intention of the parties." Ball v. Milliken, 76 A. 789 (R.I. 1910), citing Clapp v. Wilder, 57 N.E. 692 (Mass. 1900).

Intention to create a fee simple subject to condition subsequent must be clearly expressed. Schaefers v. Apel, 328 So. 2d 274 (Ala. 1976).

(n2)Footnote 289. Whetsell v. Jernigan, 223 S.E.2d 397 (N.C. 1976)(reverter clause followed the description).

(n3)Footnote 290. Dozier v. Troy Drive-In-Theaters, 89 So. 2d 537 (Ala. 1956)(reservation of a right to repurchase upon a contingency created an option not a condition subsequent); Augusta Land Co. v. Augusta R. & Elec. Co., 79 S.E. 138 (Ga. 1913), citing Thomson v. Hart, 66 S.E. 270 (Ga. 1909); Gearhart v. West Lumber Co., 90 S.E.2d 10 (Ga. 1955)(option created); Clark v. Grand Rapids, 55 N.W.2d 137 (Mich. 1952)("condition" alone does not create fee upon condition subsequent); Washington City Bd. of Educ. v. Edgerton, 94 S.E.2d 661 (N.C. 1956)(gift "upon condition" that the grantee should hold and possess it "only so long as" used for school purposes was a mere statement of purpose in a fee simple absolute); Bristol v. Nolan, 53 A.2d 466 (R.I. 1947)(condition of reverter must be clearly expressed).

Determinable fee ends automatically. (Fee upon condition subsequent requires re-entry.) Mayor & City Council of Ocean City v. Tabor, 367 A.2d 1233 (Md. 1977).

(n4)Footnote 291. Alemany v. Daly, 36 Cal. 90 (1868).

A condition in a deed in fee that others might use the property during their lifetimes was held valid. Babb v. Rand, 345 A.2d 496 (Me. 1975).

(n5)Footnote 292. Rawson v. School Dist. No. 5, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 125 (1863); In re Board of Educ. of Utica City Sch. Dist., 184 N.Y.S.2d 735 (1959)(power of termination will not be implied).

It is stated in a North Carolina case that "when the condition is relied upon to work a forfeiture, it must appear plainly in the deed or arise by clear implication." Braddy v. Elliott, 60 S.E. 507 (N.C. 1908).

Condition found only in description clause and not in habendum or granting clause did not create a fee upon condition subsequent. Waters v. North Carolina Phosphate Corp., 232 S.E.2d 275 (N.C. App. 1977). (Now under G.S. 39-1.1, a later statute, North Carolina has the four corners rule.)

(n6)Footnote 293. *Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Anniston Mfg. Co., 65 So. 187 (Ala. 1914); Murphy v. Schuster Springs Lab. Co., 111 So. 427 (Ala. 1926); McDougall v. Palo Alto Unified Sch. Dist., 28 Cal. Rptr. 37 (1963); Bacon v. Huntington, 14 Conn. 92 (1840); Southern Colonization Co. v. Derfler, 75 So. 790 (Fla. 1917); Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921); Stilwell v. Knapper, 69 Ind. 558 (1880); Wilson v. Wilson, 86 Ind. 472 (1882); Richter v. Richter, 12 N.E. 698 (Ind. 1887); Sumner v. Darnell, 27 N.E. 162 (Ind. 1891); Kilpatrick v. Baltimore, 31 A. 805 (Md. 1895); Hapgood v. Houghton, 39 Mass. (22 Pick.) 480 (1839); Stilwell v. St. Louis & H. R. Co., 39 Mo. App. 221 (1890); Hamilton v. Kneeland, 1 Nev. 40 (1865); Underhill v. Saratoga & W. Co., 20 N.Y. (Barb.) 455 (1855); Gibert v. Peteler, 38 N.Y. 165 (1868); Walker v. Marcellus & O. L. R. Co., 166 N.Y.S. 354 (N.Y. App. 1917); Worman v. Teagarden, 2 Ohio St. 380 (1853); Paraffine Oil Co. v. Cruce, 162 P. 716 (Okla. 1916)*14 A.L.R. 952; Watters v. Bredin, 70 Pa. 235 (1872); Ball v. Milliken, 76 A. 789 (R.I. 1910); Nolfe v. Bryne, 219 S.W. 1 (Tenn. 1920); Jeffery v. Graham, 61 Tex. 481 (1887); Berryman v. Schumacher, 3 S.W. 46 (Tex. 1887); Glocke v. Glocke, 89 N.W. 118 (Wis. 1902)57 L.R.A. 458.

"If, from the nature of the acts to be performed by the grantee and the time required for their performance, it is evidently the intention of the parties that the estate shall be held and enjoyed on condition that the grantee perform the acts specified, then the estate is upon condition. This is expressly so when the grantor has reserved no other effectual remedy for the enforcement of performance on the part of the grantee. In such a case a condition subsequent arises by clear implication." Richter v. Richter, 12 N.E. 698 (Ind. 1887), per Mitchell, J.

Devise in fee simple with the provision that the devisee should never deny access or occupation to the heirs named in the will during their lifetime, created a fee simple subject to condition subsequent which continued until the death of the last designated heir. Babb v. Rand, 345 A.2d 496 (Me. 1975).

(n7)Footnote 294. Boston Consol. Gas Co. v. Oakes, 181 N.E. 225 (Mass. 1932).

"Provided" is a word of condition, not of limitation. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Corp., 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

(n8)Footnote 295. Mickleson v. Gypsy Oil Co., 238 P. 194 (Okla. 1925).

(n9)Footnote 296. Lassiter v. Oxford, 234 F.2d 217 (4th Cir. 1956); Elyton Land Co. v. South & N. Ala. R. Co., 14 So. 207 (Ala. 1893); Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Anniston Mfg. Co., 65 So. 187 (Ala. 1914); Beran v. Harris, 205 P.2d 107 (Cal. App. 1949)("upon the express condition" creates condition subsequent); Southern Colonization Co. v. Derfler, 75 So. 790 (Fla. 1917); Walker v. Marcellus & O. L. R. Co., 166 N.Y.S. 354 (1917); Karchner v. Hoy, 25 A. 20 (Pa. 1892); Ball v. Milliken, 76 A. 789 (R.I. 1910); Glocke v. Glocke, 89 N.W. 118 (Wis. 1902).

(n10)Footnote 297. Barrie v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. 1881).

(n11)Footnote 298. *See Sioux City & St. Paul R. Co. v. Singer, 51 N.W. 905 (Minn. 1892)*saying: "It may be apparent, from the very nature of the condition, that it was not intended to confer or reserve any real benefit to the grantor or to any other person. Such, for instance, would be a condition, annexed to the granting of a fee, that the grantee should yearly deliver an ear of corn to the grantor, or render any specified but unsubstantial service. To such a case the statute would apply again, a condition may be such that proof beyond the deed itself would be necessary to disclose the fact whether the expressed condition was or was not substantially beneficial. We will suppose that the owner of a lot conveys it with the express condition that no building shall be erected on it for a period of ten years. It cannot be said from its terms that this condition was not reasonably intended to be, or that it was not, actually beneficial to the grantor. To such a case, no more being shown, the statute is not applicable. The court cannot declare the condition to be 'merely nominal,' and to 'evince no intention of actual or substantial benefit.' It requires that the court be further informed as to facts not disclosed by the deed before it can declare the condition, to which the parties have solemnly agreed, to be of no legal effect. If the grantor should be found to own adjoining lands, which were so improved that the erection of a building upon the granted lot would seriously impair their value and usefulness, the condition would, without doubt, be valid. On the other hand, the grantee, to defeat the condition, might show that the grantor had no actual or prospective interests in the adjoining premises, was in no manner concerned in them or in their use, and that they were unimproved. He might thus show himself entitled to the benefit of the statute, if, indeed, the statute confers any benefit beyond what the common law would give." The case holds that a condition that intoxicating liquor shall not be sold on the granted land cannot be declared to be "merely nominal" in the absence of any proof that the plaintiff had no special interest in the observance of the condition. The court dissent from the case of Barrie v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. 1881).

(n12)Footnote 299. A conveyance was made of a parcel of land with a church edifice thereon, for a consideration not extremely inadequate under the circumstances for the interest actually conveyed, "upon the condition that the property shall be forever held for the use of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Old Town." The church after a time abandoned the property and allowed it to fall into decay. It was held that the conveyance was not upon a condition that could be the foundation for a forfeiture to the grantor or his heirs, but merely created a trust for the benefit of the church and enforceable in equity only in its behalf. Neely v. Hoskins, 24 A. 882 (Me. 1892).

"It is perfectly well settled that an estate on condition cannot be created by deed, except when the terms of the grant will admit of no other reasonable interpretation." Ayer v. Emery, 96 Mass. (14 Allen) 67 (1867).

(n13)Footnote 300. Loats Female Orphan Asylum v. Essom, 150 A.2d 742 (Md. 1959).

(n14)Footnote 301. United States v. Certain Land in Cape Girardeau, 79 F. Supp. 558 (D. Mo. 1947), aff'd, Carmack v. United States, 177 F.2d 463 (8th Cir. 1949); Gordon v. Whittle, 57 S.E.2d 169 (Ga. 1950); King County v. Hanson Inv. Co., 208 P.2d 113 (Wash. 1949).

(n15)Footnote 302. No condition subsequent where no right of re-entry was reserved. Standard Knitting Mills, Inc. v. Allen, 424 S.W.2d 796 (Tenn. 1967).

(n16)Footnote 303. In re Allen's Estate, 45 N.Y.S.2d 699 (1943).

(n17)Footnote 304. Knowles v. South County Hosp., 140 A.2d 499 (R.I. 1958).

(n18)Footnote 305. Magnolia Petroleum Co. v. West, 30 N.E.2d 24 (Ill. 1940).

(n19)Footnote 306. Faust v. Little Rock Sch. Dist., 276 S.W.2d 59 (Ark. 1955); Storke v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co., 61 N.E.2d 552 (Ill. 1945).

Words of forfeiture are construed to convey a fee upon condition subsequent. Floyd v. Hoover, 234 S.E.2d 89 (Ga. App. 1977).

(n20)Footnote 307. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 116 N.E. 161 (Ill. 1917); Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church v. First Lutheran Church, 124 N.E. 793 (Ill. 1919); Northwestern Univ. v. Wesley Mem. Hosp., 125 N.E. 13 (Ill. 1919); Gray v. Blanchard, 25 Mass. (8 Pick.) 284 (1829); Langley v. Chapin, 134 Mass. 82 (1833); Hamel v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. R. Co., 107 N.W. 139 (Minn. 1906); Studdard v. Wells, 25 S.W. 201 (Mo. 1894); Woodruff v. Trenton Water Power Co., 10 N.J. Eq. 489 (1856); Cornelius v. Ivins, 26 N.J.L. 376 (1857); Union College v. New York City, 65 N.E. 853 (N.Y. 1903); Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. 341 (1861); Palairet v. Snyder, 106 Pa. 227 (1884); Hammond v. Port Royal & A. R. Co., 15 S.C. 10 (1881); Jeffery v. Graham, 61 Tex. 481 (1884); Hudson v. Caffey, 179 S.W.2d 1017 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944); Pence v. Tidewater Townsite Corp., 103 S.E. 694 (Va. 1920); Killgore v. Cabell County Ct., 92 S.E. 562 (W. Va. 1917).

See William F. Walsh, Conditional Estates and Covenants Running with the Land, 14 N.Y.U.L. Rev. 162 (1936), deploring this result when conditions have changed, or the condition imposed is of no practical benefit to the grantor.

(n21)Footnote 308. Watson v. Dalton, 20 N.W.2d 610 (Neb. 1945); Cowden v. Broderick, 114 S.W.2d 1166 (Tex. 1960).

(n22)Footnote 309. Firth v. Los Angeles Pac. Land Co., 152 P. 935 (Cal. App. 1915); Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); St. Charles College v. Carroll, 88 A. 277 (Md. 1913); Munro v. Syracuse, L. & N. R. Co., 93 N.E. 516 (N.Y. 1910).

Deeds on condition that the grantee shall improve the property conveyed by erection of a specified building thereon, have been held to be on condition subsequent, and enforceable as such. Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359 (1858); Hayden v. Stoughton, 22 Mass. (5 Pick.) 528 (1827); Upington v. Corrigan, 45 N.E. 359 (N.Y. 1896).

Mere words, though they be the strongest of words, do not work a forfeiture of an estate, unless it appears that this was the distinct intention of the grantor, and the necessary understanding of the parties to the instrument. Mickleson v.

Gypsy Oil Co., 238 P. 194 (Okla. 1925). See also Frankfort v. Capital Hotel Co., 224 S.W. 197 (Ky. 1920); New Edgewood Lake Corp. v. Kingston Trust Co., 285 N.Y.S. 130 (1936); Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 50 (1926), aff'd, 220 N.Y.S. 58 (1927).

Condition subsequent enforced. Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943).

"Provided" is a word of condition, not of limitation. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Corp., 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

Condition subsequent enforced. Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943).

(n23)Footnote 310. Hoyt v. Ketcham, 5 A. 606 (Conn. 1866); Munro v. Syracuse, L. & N. R. Co., 93 N.E. 516 (N.Y. 1910); Brown v. Tilley, 57 A. 380 (R.I. 1904).

(n24)Footnote 311. Munro v. Syracuse, L. & N. R. Co., 93 N.E. 516 (N.Y. 1910).

Right of re-entry must be specifically retained. City of Tempe v. Baseball Facs., Inc., 534 P.2d 1056 (Ariz. App. 1975).

(n25)Footnote 312. Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468 (1863); Hoyt v. Ketcham, 5 A. 606 (Conn. 1886); Odell v. Cannon, 4 S.E. 558 (Ga. 1887); Blanchard v. Detroit, L. & L. M. R. Co., 31 Mich. 43 (1875); Woodruff v. Trenton Water Power Co., 10 N.J. Eq. 489 (1856); Underhill v. Saratoga & W. R. Co., 20 N.Y. (Barb.) 455 (1855); Perkins v. Kirby, 85 A. 648 (R.I. 1913); Hammond v. Port Royal & A. R. Co., 15 S.C. 10 (1881); Carpenter v. Graber, 1 S.W. 178 (Tex. 1886); Pepin Co. v. Prindle, 21 N.W. 254 (Wis. 1884).

A clause in a conveyance that it is made "upon the express stipulation that a dwelling house should be moved or erected on the ground within three years, "at a cost not less than a certain sum, does not constitute a condition. Federal Land Bank v. Luckenbill, 13 N.E.2d 531 (1938); Stone v. Houghton, 31 N.E. 719 (Mass. 1885).

For other cases holding certain provisions did not create a condition subsequent, see Star Brewery Co. v. Primas, 45 N.E. 145 (Ill. 1896); Koch v. Streuter, 83 N.E. 1072 (Ill. 1908); O'Neil v. Caples, 101 N.E. 50 (Ill. 1914); Frenchville v. Gagnon, 91 A. 951 (Me. 1914); St. Peters Church v. Bragaw, 56 S.E. 688 (N.C. 1907); Closner v. Chapin, 168 S.W. 370 (Tex. Civ. App. 1914); Burgson v. Jacobson, 102 N.W. 563 (Wis. 1905).

In United States v. Certain Land in Cape Girardeau, 79 F. Supp. 558 (D. Mo. 1947), a provision that the land should always remain public property was held to create a trust, not a condition subsequent.

(n26)Footnote 313. Clarke v. Brookfield, 81 Mo. 503 (1884); O'Brien v. Wagner, 7 S.W. 19 (Mo. 1888). See Schulman v. Ellenville Elec. Co., 273 N.Y.S. 530 (1934).

Langley v. Chapin, 134 Mass. 82 (1832).

(n27)Footnote 314. See Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church v. First Lutheran Church, 124 N.E. 793 (Ill. 1919); Killgore v. Cabell County Ct., 92 S.E. 562 (W. Va. 1917).

(n28)Footnote 315. Carruthers v. Spaulding, 275 N.Y.S. 37 (1934).

(n29)Footnote 316. Stanley v. Colt, 72 U.S. (5 Wall) 119 (1867); Dunlap v. Mobley, 71 Ala. 102 (1881); Walker v. W. T. Smith Lab. Co., 145 So. 572 (Ala. 1933); Williams v. Kirby Sch. Dist. No. 32, 181 S.W.2d 488 (Ark. 1944); Beran v. Harris, 205 P.2d 107 (Cal. App. 1949)("upon the express condition" creates a condition subsequent); Bacon v. Huntington, 14 Conn. 92 (1840); Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church v. First Lutheran Church, 124 N.E. 793

(Ill. 1919); Newton v. Glen Ellyn, 27 N.E.2d 821 (Ill. 1940); Stilwell v. Knapper, 69 Ind. 558 (1880); Wilson v. Wilson, 86 Ind. 472 (1882); Sheets v. Vandalia R. Co., 127 N.E. 609 (Ind. App. 1920); Laberee v. Carleton, 53 Me. 211 (1865); Sohier v. Trinity Church, 109 Mass. 1 (1871); Episcopal City Mission v. Appleton, 117 Mass. 326 (1875); Farnham v. Thompson, 26 N.W. 9 (Minn. 1885); Koehler v. Rowland, 205 S.W. 217 (Mo. 1918); Watson v. Dalton, 18 N.W.2d 658, op. modified, 20 N.W.2d 610 (Neb. 1945); Hunt v. Wright, 47 N.H. 396 (1867); Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1870); Avery v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 12 N.E. 619 (N.Y. 1887); Post v. Weil, 22 N.E. 145 (N.Y. 1889); Graves v. Deterling, 24 N.E. 655 (N.Y. 1890); Worman v. Teagarden, 2 Ohio St. 380 (1853). Paschall v. Passmore, 15 Pa. 295 (1850); Watters v. Bredin, 70 Pa. 235 (1872); Sisk v. Randon, 70 S.W.2d 689 (Tex. 1934); Halvorsen v. Pacific County, 156 P.2d 907 (Wash. 1945); Sturm v. Crowley, 48 S.E.2d 350 (W. Va. 1948)("condition" and "defeasance" have similar effect to destroy the estate).

See Mickleson v. Gypsy Oil Co., 238 P. 194 (Okla. 1925).

While the words "provided nevertheless" and "upon the following conditions" are appropriate words to create a condition, they do not of necessity create such an estate. They, and similar words, will give way when the intention of the grantor, as manifested by the whole deed, is otherwise, and they have frequently been explained and applied as expressing simply a covenant or a limitation in trust. Stanley v. Colt, 72 U.S. (5 Wall.)119 (1866); Hawley v. Kafitz, 83 P. 248 (Cal. 1905); Woodruff v. Woodruff, 16 A. 4 (1888); Episcopal City Mission v. Appleton, 117 Mass. 326 (1875); Sohier v. Trinity Church, 109 Mass. 1 (1871); Queen City Park Ass'n v. Gale, 3 A.2d 529 (Vt. 1938). "The strongest words of condition will not work a forfeiture of the estate, unless they were so intended to operate. The absence of a clause "for re-entry may signify that no condition was intended, when its presence may make such intent plain." Bragdon v. Blaisdell, 39 A. 1036 (Me. 1898); Episcopal City Mission v. Appleton, 117 Mass. 326 (1875); Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1870); Avery v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 12 N.E. 619 (N.Y. 1887); Clement v. Burtis, 24 N.E. 1013 (N.Y. 1890); Post v. Weil, 22 N.E. 145 (N.Y. 1889).

(n30)Footnote 317. Department of Pub. Works & Bldgs. v. Porter, 158 N.E. 366 (Ill. 1927).

Such words as "upon express condition" may not give rise to a condition subsequent when considered in connection with the whole of the provision in which such words are found. Mickleson v. Gypsy Oil Co., 238 P. 194 (Okla. 1925)(authorities reviewed in cases where words importing a condition were used). To same effect, see Providence v. Payne, 134 A. 276 (R.I. 1926).

(n31)Footnote 318. Sheets v. Vandalia R. Co., 127 N.E. 609 (Ind. App. 1920); Jancovech v. Christensen, 195 N.E. 287 (Ind. App. 1935); Frankfort v. Capital Hotel Co., 224 S.W. 197 (Ky. 1920).

As to distinction between "limitation" and "condition," see note to Annotation, Deed in Consideration of Support of Grantor as Creating an Estate Upon Condition or a Conditional Limitation.

(n32)Footnote 319. Downen v. Rayburn, 73 N.E. 364 (Ill. 1905); Sumner v. Darnell, 27 N.E. 162 (Ind. 1891); Williams v. Johnson, 143 S.W.2d 738 (Ky. 1940); Kilpatrick v. Baltimore, 31 A. 805 (Md. 1895); Quinn v. Pere Marquette R. Co., 239 N.W. 376 (Mich. 1931); Farnham v. Thompson, 26 N.W. 9 (Minn. 1885); Holekamp Lab. Co. v. State Hwy. Comm'n, 173 S.W.2d 938 (Mo. 1943); Nashville, C. & St. Louis R. Co. v. Bell, 39 S.W.2d 1026 (Tenn. 1931); Texas & P. R. Co. v. Martin, 71 S.W.2d 867 (Tex. 1934); Killgore v. Cabell County Ct., 92 S.E. 562 (W. Va. 1917); Polebitzke v. John Week Lumber Co., 147 N.W. 703 (Wis. 1914).

Desecration of exclusive use in deed did not create a fee upon condition subsequent. Gearhart v. West Lumber Co., 90 S.E.2d 10 (Ga. 1955).

(n33)Footnote 320. Stanley v. Colt, 72 U.S. (5 Wall.) 119 (1867), per Nelson, J. (testator devised land to a religious society for its use and benefit, "Provided that said real estate be not hereafter sold or disposed of, "and in connection and continuation added numerous minute directions in the nature of regulations for the guidance of trustees whom he appointed to manage it, and with a view to the greatest advantage of the society. It was held that these provisions constituted a limitation in trust, and not a common-law condition).

"Where the grantor reserved the right to use a portion of the premises upon stated conditions the grantee received a fee subject to an interest in the grantor which interest was lost when the grantor breached the conditions. Monawa Tribe No. 352, I.O.R.M. v. Wiley, 142 N.E.2d 488 (Ind. App. 1957).

"Very little if any stress can properly be laid upon the words 'intent and purpose' and 'upon condition' in the will as proof of the testator's intention to create either a trust or a condition. Cases are to be found in which, in gifts of this sort, a condition has been held to be created by the word 'intent,' and it was not unusual formerly in charitable dispositions to impose trusts in the form of condition." Attorney-General v. Wax Chandlers Co., L.R. 6 H.L. 1 (1873).

(n34)Footnote 321. Wilkins v. Ferguson, 310 So. 2d 879 (Ala. 1975).

(n35)Footnote 322. In Stilwell v. St. Louis & H. R. Co., 39 Mo. App. 221 (1890), the court by Biggs, J., said: "It is quite evident that neither party intended or expected to make the title to the easement granted depend upon the maintenance of the private road. Such a contract would have been against the interests of the company; and its enforcement, in case of violation, would by no means have restored to Ford his property in its original condition. The construction contended for by the defendant is unreasonable and clearly against the evident intention of both parties, and as the deed by its terms does not necessarily create a conditional estate, and as it does not so appear by clear implication, we are of the opinion that no such estate was created." Rombauer, P. J., dissented on the ground that the deed in express terms created a condition, and the court could not say there was no condition. He cited Hubbard v. Kansas City, St. J. & C. B. R. Co., 63 Mo. 68 (1876), which is in direct conflict.

(n36)Footnote 323. Baker v. Mott, 28 N.Y.S. 968 (1894); Lyon v. Hersey, 8 N.E. 518 (N.Y. 1886).

(n37)Footnote 324. Kuhn v. Kuhn, 123 N.E.2d 916 (Ind. App. 1955)(word "condition" not essential); In Wright v. Wilkin, Crompton, J., said: "I think that the rule is well laid down by Lord St. Leonards with regard to estates upon condition, 'that what by the old law was deemed a devise upon condition would now perhaps, in almost every case, be construed a devise in fee upon trust.'" See Attorney-General v. Southmolton, 14 Beav 357 (=hr2); Merchant Tailors Co. v. Attorney-General, L.R. 11 Eq. 35 (1870).

(n38)Footnote 325. Ebenezer's Old People's Home of Evangelical Ass'n v. South Bend Old People's Home, 48 N.E.2d 851 (Ind. App. 1943).

(n39)Footnote 326. Calumet Council Bldg. Corp. v. Standard Oil Co. of Ind., 167 F.2d 539 (7th Cir. 1948); Lipton v. Bruce, 136 N.E.2d 900 (N.Y. 1948); In re Board of Educ. of Utica City Sch. Dist., 184 N.Y.S.2d 735 (1959).

(n40)Footnote 327. United States v. Certain Land in Cape Girardeau, 79 F. Supp. 558 (D. Mo. 1947), aff'd, 177 F.2d 463 (8th Cir. 1949).

A grant of land in consideration of agreement on the part of grantee to perform certain services in the absence of a stipulation to the contrary can create in the grantee an estate on condition subsequent. Dowell v. Jolly, 159 N.E.2d 590 (Ind. App. 1959).

(n41)Footnote 328. Rogers v. Sebastian, 21 Ark. 440 (1860); Chapman v. Gordon, 29 Ga. 250 (1859); Marshall County High Sch. Co. v. Iowa Evangelical Synod, 28 Iowa 360 (1869); Moser v. Miller, 7 Pa. (Watts) 156 (1893); Long v. Miller, 28 A. 233 (Pa. 1893); Hammond v. Port Royal & A.R. Co., 15 S.C. 10 (1881); East Line & Red River R. Co. v. Garrett, 52 Tex. 133 (1879).

It is the general rule in New York, with respect to every instrument excepting a deed, and possibly, but not so clearly, with respect to any specialty, that oral testimony may be offered to show a condition precedent but not a condition subsequent. Buszozak v. Wolo, 211 N.Y.S. 557 (1925).

But in a Colorado case the court said: "An oral stipulation may always be shown that the instrument was not to become of binding force unless some condition precedent was previously fulfilled." Bourke v. Van Keuren, 36 P. 882 (Colo. 1894).

Covenant is preferred over condition subsequent unless the words are clear that a conditional estate was meant. Zapata v. Torres, 464 S.W.2d 926 (Tex. Civ. App. 1971).

(n42)Footnote 329. Dunbar v. Stickler, 45 Iowa 384 (1877); Jennings v. O'Brien, 47 Iowa 392 (1877).

A condition in a conveyance to a railroad company that the company shall continue to maintain and operate their railroad, and that the grant shall "cease with the nonuse of the same for such purpose, "is not a condition that the road shall be built over the entire charter route of the company. No such condition is expressed or implied, but only that the property conveyed shall be used for the construction and operation of the railroad thereon. Morrill v. Wabash, St. L. & P. R. Co., 9 S.W. 657 (Mo. 1888). See St. Louis v. Wiggins Ferry Co., 15 Mo. App. 227 (1884).

A condition in a conveyance to a railroad company that the land should be used only for a passenger and freight depot is not violated by the company's extending its road beyond the point of its terminus, which, when the deed was given, was upon the granted land, and thereby making it a place of transit and not merely a depot. There was no such restriction within the terms of the deed or in the contemplation of the parties. Southard v. Central R. Co., 26 N.J.L. 13 (1856).

However, a condition in a deed to a railroad company that the company will erect a station on the land conveyed and forever maintain it as a regular stopping-place for two trains daily in each direction, is not complied with by erecting a station upon other land, distant about a thousand feet from such land, at which many more trains stop. See Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Covington, 65 Ky. (2 Bush) 526 (1866).

Where a conveyance was made to a railroad company in consideration that the land should be used for a depot and other railroad purposes, with a condition that if the company should discontinue to use the same for a depot the grantor might resume possession, it was held that the railroad company could not remove its depot and retain possession of the land for other railroad purposes. Owensboro & N. R. Co. v. Griffith, 17 S.W. 277 (Ky. 1891).

As between a railroad company and third persons the forfeiture by the company of its rights as such does not terminate its title to its right-of-way. Holt v. Pennsylvania Co., 113 A. 745 (1921)(action to condemn portion of right-of-way).

Where a grant to a railroad company upon condition that the land should revert to the grantor upon "the failure or abandonment of the enterprise by the grantee or its successors, "it was held that a deflection of a few feet on some part of the line of road did not operate to work a forfeiture of the grant. Dickson v. St. Louis & K.R. Co., 67 S.W. 642 (Mo. 1902).

A deed to a railroad company containing a condition "for the construction of a double track of railway" is not forfeited by a cessation of use for the purpose specified, as such clause is declaratory of the purpose to which the land is to be applied, and does not create a condition subsequent. Killgore v. Cabell County Court, 92 S.E. 562 (W. Va. 1917).

A condition to erect a freight depot on land conveyed to a railroad company, and to continuously keep in use such depot, was held not breached, so as to effect a reverter, because the great bulk of the freight went through another depot, leaving a small amount passing through the depot in question. Jackson v. Alabama & V. R. Co., 160 So. 602 (Miss.

1935).

(n43)Footnote 330. Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Covington, 65 Ky. (2 Bush) 526 (1866).

"Where a deed has been executed and accepted as performance of an executory contract to convey real estate, the contract is functus officio, and the rights of the parties rest thereafter solely on the deed." Slocum v. Bracy, 56 N.W. 826 (Minn. 1893).

(n44)Footnote 331. Thompson v. Thompson, 9 Ind. 323 (1857); Scantlin v. Garvin, 46 Ind. 262 (1874); Marshall County High Sch. Co. v. Iowa Evangelical Synod, 28 Iowa 360 (1869); Gadberry v. Sheppard, 27 Miss. 203 (1854); Moser v. Miller, 7 Watts 156 (Pa. 1838); Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Pfeuffer & Ireland, 56 Tex. 66 (1881); Schwalbach v. Chicago, M. & St. Paul R. Co., 40 N.W. 579 (Wis. 1888); Miller v. Yorkshire Ins. Co., 297 N.W. 377 (Wis. 1941).

A deed of general warranty in the usual form, conveying lands for the express consideration of the sum of one dollar and other good and valuable considerations, and a written contract executed at the same time, by which the grantee, in consideration of the deed, agrees to do certain acts, and provides that, in case of failure to perform such contract, the deed shall become void, and the lands conveyed revert to the grantor, both instruments being acknowledged and recorded at the same time, are to be treated as one, and construed together. Ritchie v. Kansas, N. & D.R. Co., 39 P. 718 (Kan. 1895).

(n45)Footnote 332. Barker v. Cobb, 36 N.H. 344 (1858).

(n46)Footnote 333. Keller v. Keller, 92 S.W.2d 157 (Mo. 1936).

(n47)Footnote 334. Knoxville, C. G. & L. R. Co. v. Beeler, 18 S.W. 391 (Tenn. 1891).

(n48)Footnote 335. Merritt v. Harris, 102 Mass. 326 (1869); Bear v. Whisler, 7 Watts 144 (Pa. 1838).

Where a husband and wife holding real estate by the entirety were incorrectly advised that the property might be confiscated for the violation of the federal prohibition act and to escape such confiscation executed and recorded a deed to another and then wrote the grantee a letter requesting him to execute a deed of reconveyance, if it can be considered that there was a delivery of the deed and an acceptance by the grantee the latter will be considered as having accepted the condition also and to have promised impliedly to reconvey and on breach of this promise specific performance may be had. Buszozak v. Wolo, 211 N.Y.S. 557 (1925).

(n49)Footnote 336. Norton v. Perkins, 31 A. 148 (Vt. 1894), per Ross, C. J.

(n50)Footnote 337. Moser v. Miller, 7 Watts 156 (Pa. 1838).

(n51)Footnote 338. Whitney v. French, 25 Vt. 663 (1853); Graham v. Stevens, 80 Am. Dec. 675 (Vt. 1858). See Barker v. Cobb, 36 N.H. 344 (1858), where the condition on the back of the deed was signed by the grantee.

(n52)Footnote 339. Biescar v. Czechoslovak-Patronat, 302 P.2d 104 (Cal. App. 1956).

(n53)Footnote 340. Littleton, Tenures, § 328; Co. Litt., § 203a.

Unconditional specific independent covenant in the habendum clause prevailed over provision in the granting clause given in estate in fee simple. Baden v. Castle, 344 A.2d 171 (Md. App. 1975).

(n54)Footnote 341. Rustin v. Butler, 24 S.E.2d 318 (Ga. 1943); Trustees of Lone Oak Graded Sch. Dist. v. Gentry, 295 S.W. 1063 (Ky. 1927); In re Allen's Estate, 45 N.Y.S.2d 699 (1943); Sapper v. Mathers, 133 A. 565 (Pa. 1926);

Commonwealth ex rel. Bard v. Delaware Division Canal Co., 1 A.2d 672 (Pa. 1938).

(n55)Footnote 342. Columbia R. Gas & Elec. Co. v. South Carolina, 261 U.S. 236 (1923); Trustees of Lone Oak Graded Sch. Dist. v. Gentry, 295 S.W. 1063 (Ky. 1927); Carr v. Miller, 181 N.W. 557 (Neb. 1921); Mickleson v. Gypsy Oil Co., 238 P. 194 (Okla. 1925); Waco Dev. Co. v. McNeese, 209 S.W. 464 (Tex. Civ. App. 1919); Hudson v. Caffey, 179 S.W.2d 1017 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944).

(n56)Footnote 343. Rockford Trust Co. v. Moon, 18 N.E.2d 447 (Ill. 1938).

(n57)Footnote 344. Bullard v. Albion, 217 N.Y.S. 849 (1926); Nalley v. First Nat'l Bank, 293 P. 721 (Or. 1930); Wenner v. George, 106 S.E. 365 (Va. 1921).

Use of "on condition that" or "provided that" coupled with right of re-entry creates a fee upon condition subsequent. Hagaman v. Board of Educ. of Woodbridge Twp., 285 A.2d 63 (N.J. Super. 1970).

"Provided" is a word of condition not of limitation. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Corp., 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

"Provided" as used in a deed is a word of condition rather than a special limitation. Pfeffer v. Lebanon Land Dev. Corp., 360 N.E.2d 1115 (Ill. App. 1977).

(n58)Footnote 345. Murphy v. Schuster Springs Lumber Co., 111 So. 427 (Ala. 1926); Lucas v. Lucas, 156 S.E. 680 (Ga. 1943); Rustin v. Butler, 24 S.E.2d 318 (Ga. 1943); Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921); Dyer v. Siano, 11 N.E.2d 451 (Mass. 1937); In re Scott's Will, 204 N.Y.S. 478 (1924); In re Baechler's Will, 202 N.Y.S. 485 (1923); Paraffine Oil Co. v. Cruce, 162 P. 716 (Okla. 1916); Nolfe v. Byrne, 219 S.W. 1 (Tenn. 1920). See Sapper v. Mathers, 133 A. 565 (Pa. 1926).

A recital in a deed that the grantee has agreed to erect, keep upon, maintain, and carry on a schoolhouse on the granted premises does not create a condition when the terms of the grant are free from condition. Board of Pub. Educ. v. St. Patrick Roman Catholic Church, 136 A. 833 (Del. 1927). See Walker v. Shelby County Sch. Bd., 263 S.W. 792 (Tenn. =hr2).

A condition may be construed as subsequent although designated as precedent. Smith v. Kuttawa, 1 S.W.2d 979 (Ky. 1928).

Words may create a condition precedent or subsequent in a will which would not have that effect if used in deed. Nolfe v. Byrne, 219 S.W. 1 (Tenn. 1920).

See Restatement of the Law of Property, § 45.

(n59)Footnote 346. Stanley v. Colt, 72 U.S. (5 Wall.) 119 (1867); Mahoning v. Young, 59 F. 96 (6th Cir. 1893); Elyton Land Co. v. South & N. Ala. R. Co., 14 So. 207 (Ala. 1893); Rosecrans v. Pacific Elec. R. Co., 134 P.2d 245 (Cal. 1943); Girard v. Miller, 29 Cal. Rptr. 359 (1963); Wheeler v. Walker, 2 Conn. 196, (1817); Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468 (1863); Koch v. Streuter, 83 N.E. 1072 (Ill. 1908); Mitchell v. Snyder, 83 N.E.2d 680 (Ill. 1949)(to A and "in case of his death" to B created a condition precedent of surviving testator); Rodenburg v. Rodenburg, 74 N.W.2d 241 (Iowa 1956)(gift "subject to contingency hereafter set forth" created condition subsequent); Williams v. Johnson, 143 S.W.2d 738 (Ky. 1940); Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359 (1858); Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Mass. (Pick.) 284 (1829); Rawson v. Sch. Dist. No. 5, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 125 (1863); Markey v. Smith, 16 N.E.2d 20 (Mass. 1938); Stilwell v. St. Louis & H.R. Co., 39 Mo. App. 221 (1890); Chapin v. Sch. Dist. No. 2, 35 N.H. 445 (1857); Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1870); Gibert v. Peteler, 38 N.Y. 165 (1868); St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church v. Church of Transfiguration, 114 N.Y.S. 623 (A.D. 1908); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887); Paschall v. Passmore, 15

Pa. 295 (1850); Karchner v. Hoy, 25 A. 20 (Pa. 1892); South Memphis Land Co. v. Memphis Interurban Co., 186 S.W. 454 (Tenn. 1916); Harris v. Rather, 134 S.W. 754 (Tex. Civ. App. 1911); Brown v. Caldwell, 23 W. Va. 187 (1883); Deepwater R. Co. v. Honaker, 66 S.E. 104 (W. Va. 1909).

Sheppard-Touchstone, Common Assurance, 121, says:

> Know therefore that, for the most part, conditions have conditional words for their frontispiece and do begin therewith; and that amongst these words there are three words that are most proper, which in and of their own nature and efficacy, without any addition of other words of re-entry in the conclusion of the condition, do make the estate conditional, as, proviso, ita quod, and sub conditione... But there are other words, as si, si contingat, and the like, that will make an estate conditional also; but then they must have other words joined with them, and added to them in the close of the condition; as that the grantor shall re-enter, or that the estate shall be void, or the like.

He further says, p. 125: "If the words in the close or conclusion of a condition be thus, That the land shall return to the feoffor, etc., or that he shall take it again, and turn it to his own profit, or that the land shall revert, or that the feoffor shall recipere the land -- these are either of them good words in a condition to give a re-entry, as good as the word 're-enter;' and by these words the estate will be made conditional." Fitzgerald v. County of Modoc, 129 P. 794 (Cal. 1913).

See The Law of Property, § 45, Comment j.

(n60)Footnote 347. Sheppard-Touchstone of Common Assurance, 126.

(n61)Footnote 348. Union Stockyards Co. v. Nashville Packing Co., 140 F. 701 (6th Cir. 1905); Faust v. Little Rock Sch. Dist., 276 S.W.2d 59 (Ark. 1955); Maguire v. Macomb, 127 N.E. 682 (Ill. 1920); Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); Mercer-Lincoln Pine Knob Oil Co. v. Pruitt, 229 S.W. 374 (Ky. 1921); Bray v. Hussey, 22 A. 220 (Me. 1891); Rawson v. School Dist. No. 5, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 125 (1863); Sohier v. Trinity Church, 109 Mass. 1 (1871); Episcopal City Mission v. Appleton, 117 Mass. 326 (1875); Stilwell v. St. Louis & H.R. Co., 39 Mo. App. 221 (1890); Stoutimore v. Quincy, O. & K.C.R. Co., 256 S.W. 121 (Mo. App. 1923)(easement in under grade crossing); Post v. Weil, 22 N.E. 145 (N.Y. 1889); Gladewater County Line Indep. Sch. Dist v. Hughes, 59 S.W.2d 351 (Tex. Civ. App. 1933).

It is true that the words "on condition that" are apt and appropriate words, both in their technical and popular sense, to create a condition, and it appears to be the generally accepted doctrine that, as the words "on condition" are the precise and technical terms by which an estate or condition is created, such a phrase is sufficient to create a conditional estate, unless there is something else in the deed indicating the contrary. Victoria Hosp. Ass'n v. All Persons, 147 P. 124 (Cal. 1915).

(n62)Footnote 349. Elyton Land Co. v. South & N.A.R. Co., 14 So. 207 (Ala. 1893); Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468 (1863).

(n63)Footnote 350. Laberee v. Carleton, 53 Me. 211 (1865); Packard v. Ames, 16 Mass. (Gray) 327 (1860); Watters v. Bredin, 70 Pa. 235 (1872); First Methodist Episcopal Church v. Old Columbia Pub. Ground Co., 103 Pa. 608 (1883).

(n64)Footnote 351. Department of Pub. Works & Bldgs. v. Porter, 158 N.E. 366 (Ill. 1927). See Board of Pub. Educ. v. St. Patrick Roman Catholic Church, 136 A. 833 (Del. 1927)(holding that where both the granting clause of a deed and its habendum clause give in turn an absolute conveyance, the same is not necessarily changed into an estate on condition by a recital in the commencement of the deed).

(n65)Footnote 352. Henry v. White, 60 So. 2d 149 (Ala. 1952)(or where the granting clause is silent); Shultz v. Peters, 273 N.W. 134 (Iowa 1937).

(n66)Footnote 353. Chapin v. Harris, 90 Mass. (Allen) 594 (1864), per Gray, J.:

> A good illustration of this is thus reported in Leonard: "A made a lease to B for life, and further grants unto him that it shall be lawful for him to take fuel upon the premises; proviso, that he do not cut any great trees. It was holden by the court that, if the lessee cutteth any great trees, that he shall be punished in waste; but in such case the lessor shall not reenter, because that proviso is not a condition, but only a declaration and exposition of the extent of the grant of the lessor in that behalf." 3 Leon 16.

(n67)Footnote 354. Green v. Jones, 60 So. 2d 857 (Ala. 1952); Allen v. Trustees of Great Neck Free Church, 269 N.Y.S. 341 (1934).

(n68)Footnote 355. Graves v. Deterling, 24 N.E. 655 (N.Y. 1890), Vann, J., saying: "While this is by no means controlling, it has a significance not to be overlooked, as the instrument was evidently drawn by a skilful conveyancer, who was well acquainted with both the forms and technical terms in common use by experienced draughtsmen of deeds."

(n69)Footnote 356. Hewitt v. Hewitt, 196 S.E. 541 (S.C. 1938).

(n70)Footnote 357. Cullen v. Sprigg, 23 P. 222 (Cal. 1890).

(n71)Footnote 358. Preston v. Bosworth, 55 N.E. 224 (Ind. 1899).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.07

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.07 Abhorrence of Conditions.

[Go To Supp]

The hardships which arose from the enforcement of feudal dues and reliefs was a part of the common law concept of seizin. Littleton in his extensive discussion of estates upon condition n359 gives no indication of legal limitations upon enforcement of conditions imposed in conveyances or devises. Nor would we expect Coke with his reverence of the common law to do so.

The tendency of tenants to avoid forfeitures has been noticed earlier and lead to much of the development of the law of estates in land. Unless a conditional or qualified fee is created by express language of a deed or will, the grantor or testator will be conclusively presumed to have intended a fee simple absolute. n360

There has been traced also elsewhere the procedure by which equity intervened to prevent forfeitures in the case of the common law mortgage which was a fee upon condition subsequent. Out of this equitable doctrine of preventing forfeitures there sprung a companion doctrine of construction that the law abhors forfeitures and consequently dislikes the creation of conditions the breach of which will lead to forfeitures. n361

The law does not supply a forfeiture clause in a deed or contract where none exists. n362 The courts have made two general exceptances to the general rule of abhorrence of forfeitures in the cases of oil and gas leases n363 and in conveyances on condition of support of the grantor or others. n364 Even if the condition would otherwise be valid it is ineffectual unless clearly expressed. n365 Construction in favor of fee simple estate is also the rule in wills. n366 The use of the word "provided" preceding language limiting the use for which the land is conveyed is generally held to create a condition unless a different intent appears from the instrument. n367

In construing deeds, conditions are not favored by law, and, hence, they must be clearly expressed. n368 A condition, when relied upon to work a forfeiture, is construed with great strictness. n369 The grantor must stand on his legal rights, and any ambiguity in his deed or defect in the evidence offered to show a breach will be taken most strongly against him and in favor of the grantee. n370 These principles apply to conditions subsequent. n371 The rule applies more particularly in ascertaining the purpose and intent of the parties, and whether the language employed by them, construed in connection with the whole instrument, amounts to a condition subsequent or a mere covenant. With the intent of the parties clear and beyond doubt, their rights and liabilities are determined precisely as in other contracts. n372 In construing the language of a stipulation in a deed, the court will, by preference, construe it as creating a covenant, a trust, or an equitable charge, rather than a condition. n373 So clause will not be construed as a condition subsequent unless it expresses in appropriate language the party's intention to that effect, and a mere statement of the purpose is not sufficient to create such condition. n374

Thus conditions subsequent are not favored in law, n375 and are to be strictly construed, n376 because they tend to destroy estates n377 and generally all doubts are resolved against restrictions on the use of property by the grantee or devisee. n378 The fact that a conveyance was a gift and not for a valuable consideration does not render the rule inapplicable, n379 but courts are not warranted in mutilating a deed by rejecting conditions attached to the grant. n380 When the terms of the grant admit of any other reasonable interpretation, they will not be held to create an estate on condition. n381 The intention to create an estate subject to a condition subsequent must be definitely and clearly shown n382 by the use of apt and sufficient words. n383 Such words must not be inconsistent with other terms in the conveyance, and the conditions must not be rendered impossible of performance by inevitable accident or by the subsequent conduct of the grantor. n384 Even the use of apt words, such as the word "condition" or similar language, will not create a condition subsequent where the whole instrument shows a contrary intent. n385 The mere fact that deed contains the word "conditions" or uses language "upon the following terms" does not create a conclusive presumption that a fee simple upon condition subsequent was intended. n386

A mere statement of the purpose for which the property is to be used is not sufficient to create such a condition. n387 The law inclines to construe conditions so as to render a breach remediable by damages rather than by forfeiture. n388 If no words of condition are used, and no words indicating an intention that under any circumstances the estate may be forfeited or may revert to the grantor or his heirs or that he or they may re-enter and hold the land, and there is nothing in the nature of the acts to be done by the grantee indicating that the estate is to be held upon condition, the deed will be held to convey an estate to the grantee and his heirs forever. The deed will not be held to create an estate upon condition, unless the language to that effect is so clear as to leave no room for any other construction. n389 Thus, where parents conveyed land to their son, reserving to themselves a life estate, and stating in the deed that such son "is to pay the taxes on said land, and has to support the grantors during their natural lifetime, and at their death the son shall have possession," the land was not conveyed upon a condition subsequent, because no words of condition were used, and there was no clause of reverter or re-entry, and no intention to create a strict condition can be gathered from the whole instrument. n390 It has been held that a conveyance founded on love and affection or support and maintenance may be annulled for failure to comply with its conditions, since equity looks with favor on the protection of the grantor conveying property to a trusted person in consideration of a promise of support and maintenance during his declining years. n391

Devise upon condition the devisee make payments to other persons within a stated time after the will is admitted to probate created a fee simple subject to a charge rather than a condition. n392 A devise on condition of support is a gift upon condition subsequent the condition being waived on failure of performance not due to fault of devisee. n393

Mere words, though they be the strongest words of condition, will not entail a forfeiture of the estate, unless it appears that this was the distinct intention of the grantor and a necessary understanding of the parties to the instrument. The intention of the parties as gathered from the whole deed and from the surrounding circumstances, rather than technical words of condition, controls the interpretation of the deed. n394 Where an express re-entry is reserved in the Restatement of Property it is said that "such a conveyance more commonly manifests an intent to create an estate in fee simple subject to a condition subsequent. n395 Where there is a clear intent to attach an element of defeasibility and such intent is expressed in unambiguous language such intent will be enforced. n396 Where the words used show an unmistakable intention on the part of the grantor to create a condition subsequent, it will be upheld. n397

In one case, n398 the objections of the law writers n399 to defeasible estates was epitomized in the court's decision that the language should be interpreted to create a fee upon condition subsequent rather than a fee simple determined so that equity could prevent a forfeiture. It has been held that equity will not enforce a forfeiture. n400 But, notwithstanding its abhorrence of forfeitures, a court of equity will take jurisdiction, not to declare a forfeiture, but to quiet a title already forfeited for non-performance of a condition subsequent, when the plain language of the instrument shows that it was the purpose of the parties to declare that a breach should operate as a forfeiture. n401

The courts in their abhorrence of conditions take two approaches, one is to construe the instrument as not creating a condition, the other is to avoid the forfeiture if a condition is found to exist.

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 359. Littleton, Tenures, §§ 325-327.

(n2)Footnote 360. Templeton v. Stong, 188 S.W.2d 560 (Tenn. 1945).

Conditions which restrict fee simple estates are not favored by law and are strictly construed. Cummings v. United States, 409 F. Supp. 1064 (E.D.Wis. 1976).

(n3)Footnote 361. Lassiter v. Oxford, 129 F. Supp. 228 (E.D.N.C. 1955); Beran v. Harris, 205 P.2d 107 (Cal. App. 1949); Savanna Sch. Dist. v. McLeod, 290 P.2d 593 (Cal. App. 1955); Honaker v. Hutchison, 205 S.W.2d 683 (Ky. 1947); Clark v. Grand Rapids, 55 N.W.2d 137 (Mich. 1952); Church of God v. Glann, 114 N.E.2d 98 (Ohio App. 1952).

(n4)Footnote 362. Bagby v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co., 171 S.W.2d 673 (Mo. 1943).

(n5)Footnote 363. See Vol. 10A, § 5333.

(n6)Footnote 364. See § 1874, 1875.

(n7)Footnote 365. Knight v. Chicago Corp., 183 S.W.2d 666 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944).

(n8)Footnote 366. Meredith v. Meredith, 227 S.W.2d 984 (Ky. 1950); Lawrence v. Lawrence, 229 S.W.2d 219 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950).

Forfeiture provisions construed against grantor. Garry v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 378 P.2d 609 (N.M. 1963).

(n9)Footnote 367. Newton v. Glen Ellyn, 27 N.E.2d 821 (Ill. 1940); Sheets v. Vandalia R. Co., 127 N.E. 609 (Ind. App. 1920); Williams v. Johnson, 143 S.W.2d 738 (Ky. 1940); Markey v. Smith, 16 N.E.2d 20 (Mass. 1938); Board of Chosen Freeholders v. Buck, 82 A. 418 (N.J. Eq. 1912); Trustees of Union College v. New York, 73 N.Y.S. 51 (A.D. 1901).

(n10)Footnote 368. Majerus v. Santo, 10 N.W.2d 608 (Neb. 1943); Allen v. Trustees of Great Neck Free Church, 269 N.Y.S. 341 (A.D. 1934).

Conditions subsequent are to be strictly construed so as to prevent forfeiture if possible. Calumet Council Bldg. Corp. v. Standard Oil Co. of Ind., 167 F.2d 539 (7th Cir. 1948); Riverton Country Club v. Thomas, 58 A.2d 89 (N.J. Eq. 1948); Cooper v. Milikovsky, 112 A.2d 616 (Pa. 1955).

Fees upon conditions subsequent are not favored. Cummings v. United States, 409 F. Supp. 1064 (M.D.N.C. 1976).

(n11)Footnote 369. Los Angeles Univ. v. Swarth, 107 F. 798 (9th Cir. 1901); Wilmore Coal Co. v. Brown, 147 F. 931 (1906); C. W. Zimmerman Mfg. Co. v. Daffin, 42 So. 858, (Ala. 1906); Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Anniston Mfg. Co., 65 So. 187 (Ala. 1914); Walker v. W. T. Smith Lab. Co., 145 So. 572 (Ala. 1933); Los Angeles Cemetery Ass'n v. Los Angeles, 30 P. 523 (Cal. 1892); Reclamation Dist. No. 551 v. Van Loben Sels, 78 P. 638 (Cal. 1904); Hawley v.

Kafitz, 83 P. 248 (Cal. 1905); Firth v. Marovich, 116 P. 729 (Cal. 1911); Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943); Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892); First Presbyterian Church v. Bailey, 97 A. 583 (Del. 1916); Jenkins v. Merritt, 17 Fla. 304 (1879); Kolb v. Levy, 110 So. 2d 25 (Fla. 1959); Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); Thomson v. Hart, 66 S.E. 270 (Ga. 1909); Wilson v. Galt, 18 Ill. 431 (1857); Voris v. Renshaw, 49 Ill. 425 (1867); Boone v. Clark, 21 N.E. 850 (Ill. 1889); Thompson v. Thompson, 9 Ind. 323 (1857); Hunt v. Beeson, 18 Ind. 380 (1862); Federal Land Bank v. Luckenbill, 13 N.E.2d 531 (Ind. 1938); Van Horn v. Mercer, 64 N.E. 531 (Ind. App. 1902); Taylor v. Campbell, 98 N.E. 657 (Ind. App. 1912); Cunningham v. New York Cent. R. Co., 48 N.E.2d 176 (Ind. App. 1943); Peden v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 35 N.W. 424 (Iowa 1887); Ritchie v. Kansas, N. & D. R. Co., 39 P. 718 (Kan. 1895); Lone Oak Graded Sch. Dist. v. Gentry, 295 S.W. 1063 (Ky. 1927); Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359 (1858); Laberee v. Carleton, 53 Me. 211 (1865); Osgood v. Abbott 58 Me. 73 (1870); Glenn v. Davis, 6 Am. Rep. 389 (Md. 1872); Kilpatrick v. Baltimore, 31 A. 805 (Md. 1895); Faith v. Bowles, 37 A. 711 (Md. 1897); Columbia Bldg. Co. v. Cemetery of Holy Cross, 141 A. 525 (Md. 1928); Bradstreet v. Clark, 21 Mass. (Pick.) 389 (1838); Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Mass. (Cush.) 178 (1849); Hadley v. Hadley Mfg. Co., 4 Mass. (Gray) 140 (1855); Rawson v. Sch. Dist. No. 5, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 125 (1863); Crane v. Hyde Park, 135 Mass. 147 (1883); Barrie v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. 1881); Waldron v. Toledo, A. A. & G. T. R. Co., 21 N.W. 870 (Mich. 1885); Central Land Co. v. Grand Rapids, 4 N.W.2d 485 (Mich. 1942); Farnham v. Thompson, 26 N.W. 9 (Minn. 1885); Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Hanson, 112 N.W. 217 (Minn. 1907); Gadberry v. Sheppard, 27 Miss. 203 (1854); Koch v. Norton, 261 S.W. 125 (Mo. App. 1924)(condition precedent construed to avoid forfeiture if it can be reasonably done); Commerce Trust Co. v. Weed, Mo., 318 S.W.2d 289 (Mo. 1958)(not subject to strained construction); Chapin v. Sch. Dist. No. 2, 35 N.H. 445 (1857); Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N.H. 475 (1862); Page v. Palmer, 48 N.H. 385 (1869); Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1870); Spaulding v. Woodward, 53 N.H. 573 (1873); Woodruff v. Woodruff, 16 A. 4 (N.J. Eq. 1889); Southard v. New Jersey Cent. R. Co., 26 N.J.L. 13 (1856); McKelway v. Seymour, 29 N.J.L. 321 (1862); Ludlow v. New York & H. R. Co., 12 N.Y. (Barb.) 440 (1852); Lynde v. Hough, 27 N.Y. (Barb.) 415 (1857); Craig v. Wells, 11 N.Y. 315 (1854); Woodworth v. Payne, 74 N.Y. 196 (1878); Rose v. Hawley, 23 N.E. 904, (N.Y. 1890); Rose v. Yonkers, 31 N.E. 236 (N.Y. 1892); Munro v. Syracuse L. & N. R. Co., 93 N.E. 516 (N.Y. 1910); In re Neumann's Estate, 184 N.Y.S.2d 38 (1959); Huntley v. McBrayer, 90 S.E. 754 (N.C. 1969); Priddy v. Sch. Dist. No. 78, 219 P. 141 (Okla. 1923); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887); Clark v. Jones, 144 P.2d 498 (Or. 1944); Newman v. Rutter, 8 Pa. (Watts) 51 (1839); Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. 341 (1861); Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co. v. Early, 29 A. 736 (Pa. 1894); Pennsylvania Horticultural Soc'y v. Craig, 87 A. 678 (Pa. 1913); Sapper v. Mathers, 133 A. 565 (Pa. 1926); Commonwealth ex rel. Bard v. Delaware Division Canal Co., 1 A.2d 672 (Pa. 1938); Greene v. O'Connor, 25 A. 692 (R.I. 1892); Ball v. Milliken, 76 A. 789 (R.I. 1910); Huron v. Wilcox, 98 N.W. 88 (S.D. 1904); Walker v. Shelby County Sch. Bd., 263 S.W. 792 (Tenn. 1924); Davis v. Skipper, 83 S.W.2d 318 (Tex. 1934); W. F. White Land Co. v. Christenson, 14 S.W.2d 369 (Tex. Civ. App. 1928); Knight v. Chicago Corp., 183 S.W.2d 666 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944); Peoples Pleasure Park Co. v. Rohleder, 61 S.E. 794 (Va. 1908), aff'd 63 S.E. 981 (Va. 1909); Brown v. Caldwell, 23 W. Va. 187 (1883); Deepwater R. Co. v. Honaker, 66 S.E. 104 (W. Va. 1909); Sands v. Holbert, 117 S.E. 896 (W. Va. 1923); Mills v. Evansville Seminary, 15 N.W. 133 (Wis. 1883); Burgson v. Jacobson, 102 N.W. 563 (Wis. 1905); Frank v. Stratford-Handcock, 77 P. 134 (Wyo. 1904); Parker v. Meadows, 122 P. 586 (Wyo. 1912); Radford v. Willis, L.R. 7 Ch. 7 (English).

(n12)Footnote 370. See in general: Fitzgerald v. County of Modoc, 129 P. 794 (Cal. 1913); Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943); Ralston v. Hatfield, 143 N.E. 887 (Ind. App. 1924); Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359 (1858); McCue v. Barrett, 109 N.W. 594 (Minn. 1906); Yazoo & M.V.R. Co. v. Lakeview Traction Co., 56 So. 393 (Miss. 1911); Carolina & N.W.R. Co. v. Carpenter, 81 S.E. 682 (N.C. 1914); Hitz v. Flower, 135 N.E. 450 (Ohio 1922); Potomac Power Co. v. Burchell, 64 S.E. 982 (Va. 1909); Central Christian Church v. Lennon, 109 P. 1027 (Wash. 1910); Burrows v. Madison Park & Pleasure Drive Ass'n, 189 N.W. 535 (Wis. 1922).

(n13)Footnote 371. Columbia R. Gas & Elec. Co. v. South Carolina, 261 U.S. 236 (1923); Newport v. J.R. Holden Land & Lumber Co., 231 S.W. 895 (Ark. 1921); Hasman v. Elk Grove Union High Sch., 245 P. 464 (Cal. App. 1926); Price v. Hart, 134 N.E. 672 (Ind. App. 1922); Lone Oak Graded Sch. Dist. v. Gentry, 295 S.W. 1063 (Ky. 1927); Furst v. Lacher, 182 N.W. 720 (Minn. 1921); Kent v. Stevenson, 90 So. 241 (Miss. 1922); In re Young Women's Christian

Ass'n, 126 A. 610 (N.J. Eq. 1924); Berger v. Santa Fe College, 215 P. 825 (N.M. 1923); Calvary Presbyterian Church v. Putnam, 224 N.Y.S. 651 (A.D. 1927); Shields v. Harris, 130 S.E. 189 (N.C. 1925); Cole v. Seamonds, 104 S.E. 747 (W. Va. 1920); Peerless Carbon Black Co. v. Gillespie, 105 S.E. 517 (W. Va. 1920); Sands v. Holbert, 117 S.E. 896 (W. Va. 1923); Hunter v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 128 S.E. 137 (W. Va. 1925).

(n14)Footnote 372. Gramer v. Sacramento, 41 P.2d 543 (Cal. 1935); Hamel v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. S. M. R. Co., 107 N.W. 129 (Minn. 1906); Hoadley v. Hoadley, 39 A.2d 769 (Vt. 1944).

(n15)Footnote 373. Coffill v. Bach. 323 P.2d 873 (Cal. App. 1958); Board of Pub. Educ. v. St. Patrick Roman Catholic Church, 136 A. 833 (Del. Ch. 1927); Thornton v. Trammell, 39 Ga. 202 (1869); Mathis v. Mathis, 83 N.E.2d 270 (Ill. 1948); Peck v. Drennan, 103 N.E.2d 63 (Ill. 1951); Kilpatrick v. Baltimore, 31 A. 805 (Md. 1895); Nogaj v. Nogaj, 89 N.W.2d 513 (Mich. 1958); Minor v. Minor, 62 S.E.2d 60 (N.C. 1950); Wayne Lakes Park v. Warner, 147 N.E.2d 269 (Ohio App. 1957); Bailey v. Mullens, 313 S.W.2d 99 (Tex. Civ. App. 1958); King County v. Hanson Inv. Co., 208 P.2d 113 (Wash. 1949); Asbury v. Burford, 177 S.E. 780 (W. Va. 1934); J. M. Carey & Bro. v. Casper, 213 P.2d 263 (Wyo. 1950).

The acts of the parties may be considered in applying a condition, such as a building line restriction, and when the restriction has not been abandoned altogether and a material and beneficial part remains which has uninformly been observed, it will be protected. Oliver v. Williams, 191 N.W. 34 (Mich. 1922).

While it is the undoubted rule that conditions of this character, which involve the forfeiture of an estate, are stricti juris, and to be construed strictly, they nevertheless must be interpreted in the light of the circumstances surrounding the grant and the clear and reasonable meaning of the language employed by the parties to manifest their intent. Oxford Bd. of Trade v. Oxford Iron & Steel Co., 80 A. 324 (N.J.L. 1911).

Covenant is preferred over condition subsequent unless the words are clear that a conditional estate was meant. Zapata v. Torres, 464 S.W.2d 926 (Tex. Civ. App. 1971).

Provision in the deed that the grantee would care for the grantor for the balance of his life, held to be a covenant rather than a condition subsequent. Dickerson v. Keller, 521 S.W.2d 288 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975).

Gift of property on condition that devisee make payments to other persons one year after the will was admitted to probate was a fee simple and breach of condition did not work forfeitures. Instead the payment was charged upon the land. Miller v. Miller, 247 N.W.2d 445 (Neb. 1976).

(n16)Footnote 374. Oxford Orphanage v. Kittrell, 27 S.E.2d 133 (N.C. 1943).

Absence of re-entry clause indicates there is not a fee upon condition subsequent. Floyd v. Hoover, 234 S.E.2d 89 (Ga. App. 1977).

(n17)Footnote 375. Libby v. Winston, 93 So. 631 (Ala. 1922); Bou v. Willits, 214 P. 519 (Cal. App. 1923); Wedum-Aldahl Co. v. Miller, 64 P.2d 762 (Cal. App. 1937); Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943); Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); Federal Land Bank v. Luckenbill, 13 N.E.2d 531 (Ind. 1938); Cunningham v. New York Cent. R. Co., 48 N.E.2d 176 (Ind. App. 1943); Columbia Bldg. Co. v. Cemetery of Holy Cross, 141 A. 525 (Md. 1928); Sands v. Church of Ascension & Prince of Peace, 30 A.2d 771 (Md. 1943); Kent v. Stevenson, 90 So. 241 (Miss. 1922); University City v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 149 S.W.2d 321 (Mo. 1941); Bagby v. Missouri-Kansas-Texas R. Co., 171 S.W.2d 673 (Mo. 1943); Majerus v. Santo, 10 N.W.2d 608 (Neb. 1943); Watson v. Dalton, 18 N.W.2d 658, op. modified 20 N.W.2d 610 (Neb. 1945);Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 58 (1927); Hinton v. Vinson, 104 S.E. 897 (N.C. 1920); Hall v. Quinn, 130 S.E. 18 (N.C. 1925); Second Church of Christ, Scientist v. LePrevost, 35 N.E.2d 1015 (Ohio App. 1941); Priddy v. School Dist. No. 78, 219 P. 141 (Okla. 1923); Stinson v. Oklahoma R. Co., 126 P.2d 260 (Okla. 1942); Sapper v. Mathers, 133 A. 565 (Pa. 1926); W. F. White

Land Co. v. Christenson, 14 S.W.2d 369 (Tex. Civ. App. 1928).

(n18)Footnote 376. This is in accord with Restatement, Property, § 45, Comment i.

Columbia R., Gas & Elec. Co. v. South Carolina, 261 U.S. 236 (1923); Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943); Berger v. Santa Fe College, 215 P. 825 (N.M. 1923); Clark v. Jones, 144 P.2d 498 (Or. 1944); Skipper v. Davis, 59 S.W.2d 454 (Tex. Com. App. 1932).

No fee upon condition subsequent unless forfeiture clearly and unequivocally provided therefor. Harris v. Georgia Military Academy, 146 S.E.2d 913 (Ga. 1966).

(n19)Footnote 377. Federal Land Bank v. Luckenbill, 13 N.E.2d 531 (Ind. 1938); University City v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 149 S.W.2d 321 (Mo. 1941).

It is an elementary proposition of law that conditions subsequent are not favored by the law, because on the breach of such conditions there is a forfeiture, and the law is adverse to forfeitures. 4 Kent's Comm. 130; Stanley v. Colt, 72 U.S. (5 Wall.) 119 (1867); Kilpatrick v. Baltimore, 31 A. 805 (Md. 1895). Hence a condition will not be raised by implication from a mere declaration in the deed that the grant is made for a special and particular purpose, without being coupled with words appropriate to make such condition. Packard v. Ames, 16 Mass. (Gray) 327 (1860). In re Copps Chapel Methodist Church, 166 N.E. 218 (Ohio St. 1929), rejecting the theory of a fee upon condition subsequent because there was no express reservation of a right of re-entry.

(n20)Footnote 378. Mathis v. Mathis, 83 N.E.2d 270 (Ill. 1948); Peck v. Drennan, 103 N.E.2d 63 (Ill. 1951); Mathews Real Estate Co. v. National Printing & Engraving Co., 48 S.W.2d 911 (Mo. 1932); Gardner v. Maffitt, 74 S.W.2d 604 (Mo. 1934).

Deed upon condition that property should be held by the grantee only so long as used for school purposes conveyed a fee simple absolute since there was no right of re-entry reserved. Washington City Bd. of Educ. v. Edgerton, 94 S.E.2d 661 (N.C. 1956).

(n21)Footnote 379. Gift of property on condition that devisee make payments to other persons one year after the will was admitted to probate was a fee simple, and breach of condition did not work forfeitures. Miller v. Miller, 247 N.W.2d 445 (Neb. 1976). Instead, the payment was charged upon the land.

(n22)Footnote 380. Keller v. Keller, 92 S.W.2d 157 (Mo. 1936).

(n23)Footnote 381. Stanley v. Colt, 72 U.S. (5 Wall.) 119 (1867); Elyton Land Co. v. South & N. Ala. R. Co., 14 So. 207 (Ala. 1893); Lowery v. May, 104 So. 5 (Ala. 1925); Bain v. Parker, 90 S.W. 1000 (Ark. 1905); Terry v. Taylor, 220 S.W. 42 (Ark. 1920); Cullen v. Sprigg, 23 P. 222 (Cal. 1890); Victoria Hosp. Ass'n v. All Persons, 147 P. 124 (Cal. 1915); Bou v. Willits, 214 P. 519 (Cal. App. 1923); Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892); Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); Voris v. Renshaw, 49 Ill. 425 (1867); Gallaher v. Herbert, 7 N.E. 511 (Ill. 1886); Noyes v. St. Louis, A. & T. H. R. Co., 21 N.E. 487 (Ill. 1889); Boone v. Clark, 21 N.E. 850 (Ill. 1889); Nowak v. Dombrowski, 107 N.E. 807 (Ill. 1915); Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); Thompson v. Thompson, 9 Ind. 323 (1857); Sumner v. Darnell, 27 N.E. 162 (Ind. 1891); Peden v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 35 N.W. 424 (Iowa 1887); Curtis v. Board of Educ., 23 P. 98 (Kan. 1890); Ruggles v. Clare, 26 P. 25 (Kan. 1891); Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359 (1858); Laberee v. Carleton, 53 Me. 211 (1865); Bray v. Hussey, 22 A. 220 (Me. 1891); Frenchville v. Gagnon, 91 A. 951 (Me. 1914); Glenn v. Davis, 6 Am. Rep. 389 (Md. 1872); Kilpatrick v. Baltimore, 31 A. 805 (Md. 1895); Columbia Bldg. Co. v. Cemetery of Holy Cross, 141 A. 525 (Md. 1928); Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Mass. (Cush.) 178 (1849); Hadley v. Hadley Mfg. Co., 4 Mass. (Gray) 140 (1855); Packard v. Ames, 16 Mass. (Gray) 327 (1860); Chapin v. Harris, 8 Mass. (Allen) 594 (1864); Ayer v. Emery, 14 Mass. (Allen) 67 (1867); Sohier v. Trinity Church, 109 Mass. 1 (1871); Stone v. Houghton, 31 N.E. 719 (Mass. 1885); Blanchard v. Detroit, L. & L. M. R. Co., 31 Mich. 43 (1875); Farnham v. Thompson, 26 N.W. 9,

(Minn. 1885); Chute v. Washburn, 46 N.W. 555 (Minn. 1890); Gadberry v. Sheppard, 27 Miss. 203 (1854); Morrill v. Wabash, St. Louis & P. R. Co., 9 S.W. 657 (Mo. 1888); Roanoke Inv. Co. v. Kansas City & S. E. R., 17 S.W. 1000 (Mo. 1891); Studdard v. Wells, 25 S.W. 201 (Mo. 1894); Haydon v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co., 121 S.W. 15 (Mo. 1909); Catron v. Scarritt Collegiate Inst., 175 S.W. 571 (1915); Weinreich v. Weinreich, 18 Mo. App. 364 (1885); Stilwell v. St. Louis & H. R. Co., 39 Mo. App. 221 (1890); Stoutimore v. Quincy, O. & K. C. R. Co., 256 S.W. 121 (Mo. App. 1923); Chapin v. Sch. Dist. No. 2, 35 N.H. 445 (1857); Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N.H. 475 (N.H. 1862); Page v. Palmer, 48 N.H. 385 (1869); Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1870); Woodruff v. Trenton Water Power Co., 10 N.J. Eq. 489 (1856); Woodruff v. Woodruff, 16 A. 4 (N.J. Eq. 1888); Southard v. Central R. Co., 26 N.J.L. 13 (1856); Baker v. Mott, 28 N.Y.S. 968 (1894); Craig v Wells, 11 N.Y. 315 (1854); Woodworth v. Payne, 30 Am. Rep. 298 (N.Y. 1878); Duryee v. New York, 96 N.Y. 477 (1884); Lyon v. Hersey, 8 N.E. 518 (N.Y. 1886); Post v. Weil, 22 N.E. 145 (N.Y. 1889); Graves v. Deterling, 24 N.E. 655 (N.Y. 1890); Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 58 (1927); Hinton v. Vinson, 104 S.E. 897 (N.C. 1920); Hall v. Quinn, 130 S.E. 18 (N.C. 1925); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887); Coffin v. Portland, 17 P. 580 (Or. 1888); Portland v. Terwilliger, 19 P. 90 (Or. 1888); Greene v. O'Connor, 25 A. 692 (R.I. 1892); Hammond v. Port Royal & A. R. Co., 15 S.C. 10 (1881); Huron v. Wilcox, 98 N.W. 88 (S.D. 1904); Jeffery v. Graham, 61 Tex. 481 (1884); Norris v. Coffman, 95 S.W. 1088 (Tex. Civ. App. 1906); Hudson v. Caffey, 179 S.W.2d 1017 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944); Waterman v. Clark, 2 A. 578 (Vt. 1886); Palmer v. Ryan, 22 A. 574 (Vt. 1891); Lowman v. Crawford, 40 S.E. 17 (Va. 1901); Lawe v. Hyde, 39 Wis. 345 (1876); Weir v. Simmons, 13 N.W. 873 (Wis. 1882); Mills v. Evansville Seminary, 15 N.W. 133 (Wis. 1883); Burgson v. Jacobson, 102 N.W. 563 (Wis. 1905).

(n24)Footnote 382. Columbia R. Gas & Electric Co. v. South Carolina, 261 U.S. 236 (1923); Libby v. Winston, 93 So. 631 (Ala. 1922); Lowery v. May, 104 So. 5 (Ala. 1925); Cooper v. Selig, 191 P. 983 (Cal. App. 1920); Gramer v. Sacramento, 41 P.2d 543 (Cal. 1935); Johnson v. Tullis, 109 S.E. 659 (Ga. 1921); Gearhart v. West Lab. Co., 90 S.E.2d 10 (Ga. 1955); Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); Citizens Tel. Co. v. Newport, 224 S.W. 187 (Ky. 1920); Columbia Bldg. Co. v. Cemetery of Holy Cross, 141 A. 525 (Md. 1928); Halpin v. Rural Agrl. Sch. Dist. No. 9, 194 N.W. 1005 (Mich. 1923); Central Land Co. v. Grand Rapids, 4 N.W.2d 485, (Mich. 1942); Clark v. Grand Rapids, 55 N.W.2d 137 (Mich. 1952); Kent v. Stevenson, 90 So. 241 (Miss. 1922); Pixlee v. Petty, 274 S.W.2d 257 (Mo. 1955); Carr v. Miller, 181 N.W. 557 (Neb. 1921); Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 50 (1926); Hinton v. Vinson, 104 S.E. 897 (N.C. 1920); Hall v. Quinn, 130 S.E. 18 (N.C. 1925); Priddy v. Sch. Dist. No. 78, 219 P. 141 (Okla. 1923); Sapper v. Mathers, 133 A. 565 (Pa. 1926); Hoadley v. Hoadley, 39 A.2d 769 (Vt. 1944); Peerless Carbon Black Co. v. Gillespie, 105 S.E. 517 (W. Va. 1920). See Restatement, Property, § 45, Comment i.

(n25)Footnote 383. Board of Councilmen v. Capital Hotel Co., 224 S.W. 197 (Ky. 1920); Whitmore v. Church of Holy Cross, 117 A. 469 (Me. 1922); Vaughan v. Compton, 235 S.W.2d 328 (Mo. 1950); Carr v. Miller, 181 N.W. 557 (Neb. 1921); Hinton v. Vinson, 104 S.E. 897 (N.C. 1920); Shields v. Harris, 130 S.E. 189 (N.C. 1925); Stinson v. Oklahoma R. Co., 126 P.2d 260 (Okla. 1942). See Restatement, Property, § 45, Comment j.

Construction against the estate upon condition. Miller v. Miller, 247 N.W.2d 445 (Neb. 1976).

(n26)Footnote 384. Turner v. Turner, 197 S.E. 771 (Ga. 1938).

(n27)Footnote 385. Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 50 (1926).

"Made a condition for the conveyance" held to create a covenant not a condition. Dilbeck v. Bill Gaynier, Inc., 368 S.W.2d 804 (Tex. Civ. App. 1963).

See Note, Deeds: Covenants and Conditions, 16 Baylor L. Rev. 147 (1964).

(n28)Footnote 386. Stillwell v. Morley, 272 N.Y.S.2d 187 (1965).

(n29)Footnote 387. Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 58 (A.D. 1927); Hall v. Quinn, 130 S.E. 18 (N.C. 1925).

This is in conformity with Restatement, Property, § 45, Comment o. See § 1859.

(n30)Footnote 388. Lucas v. Lucas, 156 S.E. 680 (Ga. 1931).

(n31)Footnote 389. Cullen v. Sprigg, 23 P. 222 (Cal. 1890); Townsend v. Allen, 250 P.2d 292 (Cal. App. 1952)(if language creates a condition which is not unlawful or unreasonable it will be enforced on breach); Augusta Land Co. v. Augusta R. & Elec. Co., 79 S.E. 138 (Ga. 1913); Boone v. Clark, 21 N.E. 850 (Ill. 1889); Curtis v. Board of Educ., 23 P. 98 (Kan. 1890); Ruggles v. Clare, 26 P. 25 (Kan. 1891); Young v. Clement, 17 A. 707 (Me. 1889); Glenn v. Davis, 35 Md. 208 (1872); Ayer v. Emery, 14 Mass. (Allen) 67 (1867); Studdard v. Wells, 25 S.W. 201 (Mo. 1894); Baker v. Mott, 28 N.Y.S. 968 (1894); Lyon v. Hersey, 8 N.E. 518 (N.Y. 1886); Flagg v. Eames, 40 Vt. 16 (1867); Blanchard v. Morey, 56 Vt. 170 (1883).

In order for fee simple subject to condition subsequent to be created there must be specific language of reverter. Cummings v. United States, 409 F. Supp. 1064 (M.D.N.C. 1976).

(n32)Footnote 390. "To say the stipulation in the deed to pay the taxes and support the grantors is a condition subsequent, the nonperformance of which will defeat the estate granted, is to make a stipulation for the parties which they did not see fit to make for themselves." Studdard v. Wells, 25 S.W. 201 (Mo. 1894).

(n33)Footnote 391. Lewis v. Owen, 165 So. 229 (Ala. 1935).

Provision in the deed that the grantee would care for the grantor for the balance of his life, held to be a covenant rather than a condition subsequent. Dickerson v. Keller, 521 S.W.2d 288 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975).

(n34)Footnote 392. Miller v. Miller, 247 N.W.2d 445 (Neb. 1976).

(n35)Footnote 393. In re Estate of Wockstettler, 216 A.2d 66 (Pa. 1966).

(n36)Footnote 394. See Union Stockyards Co. v. Nashville Packing Co., 140 F. 701 (6th Cir. 1905); Jancovech v. Christensen, 195 N.E. 287 (Ind. App. 1935); New Edgewood Lake Corp. v. Kingston Trust Co., 285 N.Y.S. 130 (1936); Perkins v. Kirby, 85 A. 648 (R.I. 1913).

> If the only reason for construing a clause is in the technical words which have been used, the court may disregard them in performing the office of interpretation. If we can construe this cause as an obligation to abstain from doing the thing described, which by acceptance of the deed, became binding upon the grantee as an agreement, enforceable in behalf of any interest entitled to invoke its protection, I think we are in conscience bound to give that construction, and thereby place ourselves in accord with that inclination of the law which regards with disfavor conditions involving forfeiture of estates. In this connection it may be noted that there is no clause in the deed giving the right to re-enter for conditions broken. While the presence of such a clause is not essential to the creation of a condition subsequent, by which an estate may be defeated at the exercise of an election by the grantor or his heirs to re-enter, yet its absence, to that extent, frees still more the case from the difficulty of giving a more benignant construction to the proviso clause. The presence of a re-entry clause might make certain that which, in its absence, is left open to construction. The absence of such a clause may have its significance in connection with the circumstances of the case and the intent to be fairly presumed therefrom.

Post v. Weil, 22 N.E. 145 (N.Y. 1889).

In this case the owner of two adjoining estates, occupied by him as farms, contracted to sell one of them "upon special condition that no part of the land or buildings thereon should be used or occupied as a tavern." Some years afterwards the owner, being financially embarrassed, conveyed both estates to trustees subject to this agreement, and the trustees shortly afterwards made a deed in fulfilment of this agreement with the "express condition that the aforesaid premises shall not, nor shall any part thereof, be at any time hereafter used or occupied as a tavern, or public house of any kind." Subsequently, the trustees sold the remaining estate without inserting any such condition. The former owner then had no interest in either estate other than obtaining from them all that they would bring, and the trustees had no other interest. Neither the owner nor the trustees had any interest that the restrictive clause should operate as a condition subsequent. "There was no interest," said the court, "which was not adequately met by the creation of a covenant or limitation in trust that the property should not be used for the one certain purpose mentioned." The two estates were subsequently united in one owner, and when, upon a sale of a portion of the estate which was affected by the provision under consideration, the purchaser objected that it was subject to a common-law forfeiture and declined to complete his purchase, it was held that his objection was untenable; that the provision was simply a covenant running with the land for the benefit of the adjoining estate; and that it was extinguished by the union of both estates in the same owner.

The court cited and relies upon Avery v. New York Cent. & H. R. R. Co., 12 N.E. 619 (N.Y. 1887), where the railroad company held lands under a deed containing an "express condition" that the company should at all times maintain an opening to a hotel adjacent to the premises. A lessee of the hotel sought to enjoin the company from maintaining a fence upon the land, which blocked up a passageway between the railroad property and the hotel. The company contended that the provision created a condition subsequent, which could only be taken advantage of by the grantors and their heirs. The court, however, decided against the contention of the railroad company, saying:

> The fact that the deed uses the language 'upon condition,' when referring to the conveyance by the grantors, is not conclusive that the intention was to create an estate strictly upon condition... Construction may frequently be aided by reference to all the circumstances surrounding the parties at the time of the execution of the deeds, because the court is thus enabled to be placed exactly in their situation, and to view the case in the light of such surroundings.

After referring to the facts, he writes: "All these facts would lead one to the unhesitating conclusion that the language used in those deeds in 1857 was for the benefit of the hotel property, and was not meant to create a condition subsequent."

In confirmation of the views given in the above decisions, see Clement v. Burtis, 24 N.E. 1013 (N.Y. 1890)(where a clause in a deed of land, reciting that the grant is on the "express condition" that the grantee, his heirs or assigns, shall not thereafter maintain a nuisance on the premises, does not create a condition subsequent, but is a covenant running with the land; and a purchaser at a foreclosure sale of the granted premises cannot refuse to complete his purchase on the ground of a defect in the title, as the covenant does not bind him any further than he would be bound by law in the absence of any covenant); See also Stanley v. Colt, 72 U.S. (5 Wall.) 119 (1867); Episcopal City Mission v. Appleton, 117 Mass. 326 (1875); Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1870); Countryman v. Deck, 13 N.Y. (Abb. N. Cas.) 110 (1883).

(n37)Footnote 395. See Restatement, Property, § 45, Comment m.

(n38)Footnote 396. Grove v. Payne, 288 P.2d 242 (Wash. 1955); Birnbaum v. Rollerama, Inc., 232 N.Y.S.2d 188 (Sup. Ct. 1962).

(n39)Footnote 397. Rosecrans v. Pacific Elec. R. Co., 134 P.2d 245 (Cal. 1943).

Construction favors condition subsequent as against limitation. Lawyers Trust Co. v. Houston, 359 S.W.2d 887 (Tex. 1962).

(n40)Footnote 398. Oldfield v. Stoeco Homes, Inc., 139 A.2d 291 (N.J. 1958).

Construction against the estate upon condition. Miller v. Miller, 247 N.W.2d 445 (Neb. 1976).

(n41)Footnote 399. Myres Smith McDougal & David Haber, Property, Wealth, Land (1948); 286 Dunham, Possibility of Reverter and Power of Termination -- Fraternal or Identical Twins, 20 U. Chi. L. Rev. 215 (1953).

(n42)Footnote 400. Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468 (1863); Mickens v. Ebbo, 237 N.W. 377 (Mich. 1931).

(n43)Footnote 401. Shannon v. Long, 60 So. 273 (Ala. 1912); Latham v. Illinois Cent. R. Co., 97 N.E. 254 (Ill. 1911); Hartman v. Wells, 100 N.E. 500 (Ill. 1912); Ross v. Sanderson, 162 P. 709 (Okla. 1917); Lowrey v. Finkleston, 134 N.W. 344 (Wis. 1912); Glocke v. Glocke, 89 N.W. 118 (Wis. 1902).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.08

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.08 Meaning of "Death Without Issue."

[Go To Supp]

The cases are in considerable confusion as to the effect of a grant or devise to one with a limitation over if he "die without issue" or similar phraseology. The early English position was that this meant indefinite failure of issue that is when the last descendant of the first grantee died. n402 The effect of this interpretation was to give the first taker a fee tail with a limitation over on extinction of the line. n403 The rule does not seem to have been one of law, however, or at least there was disagreement among the courts. n404

Some of the American courts today still follow the common law rule. n405 In these states the fee tail is then subject to the applicable fee tail statutes. In these states the limitation over is valid provided it is preserved by statute n406 and is not too remote. In other states, however, the definite failure of issue rule is favored, n407 and in some thirty states this interpretation has become statutory. n408 Under this rule the time of determination is the death of the first taker or earlier, not the expiration of the family line. In some states this is a presumption, the instrument being open to other construction. n409

Where definite failure of issue is favored the first taker gets either a fee upon condition subsequent, n410 a determinable fee n411 or only a life estate, n412 depending upon the position of the particular jurisdiction. The weight of authority is that a gift with a limitation over on death without issue is a defeasible fee, not a life estate. n413 Most cases hold death without issue means issue surviving devisee, not merely issue born who predeceased devisee. n414

There is a line of authority, however, that "death" means, presumptively at least, death in the lifetime of the testator in the case of wills so that the devisee takes absolutely if he survives the testator n415 or the life tenant if the gift is in remainder. n416 This rule is frequently followed where the limitation over is a mere death of the first taker as "to A but if he be dead then to B." n417 Where, however, the limitation over is a death without "heirs," if heirs is used in the general sense and not as children the first devisee takes a fee simple absolute and the limitation over is void. n418

In a few states the language is interpreted to mean death without ever having had issue so as to vest the gift absolutely if children are born and not to require issue living at death. n419 If the limitation the first takes is but a life estate with a remainder over on death sans issue the courts often imply a prior gift in remainder to children if born. n420

Where the gift is to a group but if any die without issue then to the survivors, some courts imply a fee simple absolute in the last survivor. n421 Where the gift to the first taker is a determinable fee or fee upon condition subsequent the limitation over may be void for remoteness. n422

"Death" has been equated to divorce on limitations over on death. n423

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: die! or death! w/2 without issue or children w/15 fee w/2 tail or condition! or determinable

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 402. Hayes v. Hammond, 143 N.E.2d 693 (Mass. 1957)("death without issue" means indefinite failure of issue creating a fee tail); Green v. Rod, Fitz. 68, 94 Eng. Rep. 656; Wyld v. Lewis, 1 Atk. 432, 26 Eng. Rep. 276; Beauclerk v. Dormer, 2 Atk. 308, 26 Eng. Rep. 588. As to personal property definite failure of issue was favored. Forth v. Chapman, 1 P. Wms. 663, 24 Eng. Rep. 604.

(n2)Footnote 403. Hayes v. Hammond, 143 N.E.2d 693 (Mass. 1957).

(n3)Footnote 404. Contrast Pello v. Brown, Cro. Jac. 590, 79 Eng. Rep. 504, where to A and his heirs and if A died without issue leaving B then to B and his heirs created a fee upon a condition subsequent with an indestructible limitation over to B, and Chadock v. Cowley, Cro. Jac. 695, 79 Eng. Rep. 604, where similar language created a fee tail.

See Philip Werner Amram, Pennsylvania Rules for Construction of the Words "Die Without Issue," 79 U. Pa. L. Rev. 15 (1930).

(n4)Footnote 405. McCulloch's Estate v. Conrad, 52 N.W.2d 67 (Iowa 1952)(limitation over on death without heirs created "conditional fee"). Iowa does not recognize a fee tail. See § 1868.

See also Joseph Warren, Gifts Over on Death Without Issue, 39 Yale L.J. 332 (1930).

(n5)Footnote 406. For the rule in various states, see Note, Construction of the Words "Die Without Issue" under Ohio Law, 18 U. Cinn. L. Rev. 311 (1949); Philip Werner Amram, Pennsylvania Rules for Construction of the Words "Die Without Issue," 79 U. Pa. L. Rev. 15 (1930); Comment, Construction of "Die Without Issue" in Devises of Realty, 20 Tex. L. Rev. 212 (1941); Henry A. Shinn, Limitations Over on Death Without Issue and the Abolishing of Estates Tail, 21 Va. L. Rev. 286 (1934).

In New York where there is limitation on death without issue the adoption of a child does not make the adopted child the issue so as to defeat the remainderman. In re Park's Estate, 207 N.E.2d 859 (N.Y. 1965).

(n6)Footnote 407. Steele v. Pedroja, 289 P.2d 738 (Kan. 1955).

(n7)Footnote 408. See Restatement, Property, § 266 (1948 Supp.).

Massachusetts General Laws 1932, ch. 184, § 6. In a limitation of real or personal property by deed, will or other instrument in writing, executed after April thirtieth, eighteen hundred and eighty-eight, the words "die without issue," or "die without leaving issue," or "have no issue," or "die without heirs of the body," or other words importing either a want or failure of issue of any person in his lifetime or at the time of his death, or an indefinite failure of his issue, shall, unless a contrary intention clearly appears by the instrument creating such limitation, mean a want or failure of issue in the lifetime or at the time of the death of such person and not an indefinite failure of his issue.

New York Estates, Powers and Trust Law, § 6-56. Where a remainder shall be limited to take effect on the death of any person without heirs, or heirs of his body, or without issue, the words "heirs" or "issue" shall be construed to mean heirs or issue living at the death of the person named as ancestor.

Limitations on dying without issue are definite failure of issue. Virginia Code 1960, § 55-13.

Kansas by statute in 1976 decided not to recognize indefinite failure of issue.

(n8)Footnote 409. Monroe v. Leckey, 142 N.E.2d 314 (Oh. Com. Pl.), aff'd, 143 N.E.2d 168 (Ohio 1956).

(n9)Footnote 410. Trimble v. Fairbanks, 76 S.E.2d 16 (Ga. 1953); Stagg v. Phenix, 81 N.E.2d 565 (Ill. 1948); Hays v. Cole, 73 So. 2d 258 (Miss. 1954); Kelley v. North Morris Realty Co., 59 A.2d 811 (N.J. Eq. 1948), aff'd, 64 A.2d 73 (N.J. 1949); In re Voorhees, 106 N.Y.S.2d 699 (Sur. Ct. 1951); Conrad v. Goss, 42 S.E.2d 609 (N.C. 1947); Stanley v. Foster, 92 S.E.2d 925 (N.C. 1956); Love v. Roper, 93 S.E.2d 282 (Va. 1956).

Vaughn v. Dickes, 20 Pa. St. 509 (1853):

> The series of cases in the English law have been uniform, from the time of the year-books down to the present day, in the recognition of the rule of law, that a devise in fee with a remainder over, if the devisee dies without issue or heirs of the body, is a fee cut down to an estate tail, and the limitation over is void by way of executory devise, as being too remote, and founded in an indefinite failure of issue.
>
> This may not be according to the actual intent of the testator. Doubtless he did not intend to create an estate tail, but when a testator uses words, without explanation or qualification in the context, which, according to a settled rule of law, import an estate tail, the legal meaning of the will is to prevail over the actual intention of the testator. Artificial rules being founded in considerations of public policy, must often frustrate the intentions of testators, and it is well they should, for the law is wiser than any one man.

Johnson v. Currin, 10 Pa. 498 (1849).

(n10)Footnote 411. Scranton Lockawanna Trust Co. v. Bruen, 59 S.E.2d 397 (Ga. 1950); Carter v. Sunray Mid-Continent Oil Co., 94 So. 2d 624 (Miss. 1957); Elmore v. Austin, 59 S.E.2d 205 (N.C. 1950).

(n11)Footnote 412. Steele v. Pedroja, 289 P.2d 738 (Kan. 1955).

(n12)Footnote 413. Hall v. Spencer, 227 S.W.2d 196 (Ky. 1950).

(n13)Footnote 414. Hays v. Cole, 73 So. 2d 258 (Miss. 1954); Kindred v. Anderson, 209 S.W.2d 912 (Mo. 1948); Simmons v. Rosemond, 223 F. Supp. 61 (D.D.C. 1963).

(n14)Footnote 415. Davant v. Shaw, 59 S.E.2d 500 (Ga. 1950)(referred to testator's death); Kindred v. Anderson, 209 S.W.2d 912 (Mo. 1948)(means predeceasing testator); Rogers v. Baily, 73 A. 243 (N.J. 1909) (distinguishing between death in testator's lifetime and death subsequent to the testator); Elmore v. Austin, 59 S.E.2d 205 (N.C. 1950)(issue living at death); Steinbrenner v. Dreher, 43 N.E.2d 283 (Ohio St. 1942) (repudiating rule of death in testator's lifetime); In re Mickley's Appeal, 92 Pa. 514 (1880)(death in testator's lifetime); contra, Crump v. Phelps, 43 So. 2d 105 (Miss. 1949).

In limitation over on death without heirs meant death in testator's lifetime if personalty involved. Ireland v. Cooper, 277 S.W. 483 (Ky. 1925), but means death at any time if realty is concerned. Harvey v. Bell, 81 S.W. 671 (Ky. 1904).

But these are rules of construction to be defeated by the testator's manifest intent. Howard v. Reynolds, 261 S.W.2d 815 (Ky. 1953).

Devise to widow for life and then to son but if he dies without any heirs then to another son meant death before life tenant. In re Creekmore's Estate, 423 S.W.2d 548 (Ark. 1968).

Death in testator's lifetime. Lones v. Winzer, 486 S.W.2d 758 (Tenn. App. 1971).

To A for life then to A's children but if any be dead then to others meant death in A's lifetime. Harrison v. Brown, 416 S.W.2d 613 (Tex. Civ. App. 1967).

In a limitation in a will, over on death without issue, death means death of the beneficiary before the testator. Martin v. Taylor, 521 S.W.2d 581 (Tenn. 1975).

(n15)Footnote 416. Pence v. Ferris, 196 S.W.2d 970 (Ky. 1946).

As to effect of death without issue on remainders, see § 1994.

(n16)Footnote 417. In re Raworth's Estate, 52 So. 2d 661 (Miss. 1951).

(n17)Footnote 418. Smith v. Nelson, 29 So. 2d 335 (Ala. 1947).

(n18)Footnote 419. Kendall v. Taylor, 92 N.E. 562 (Ill. 1910).

(n19)Footnote 420. Ball v. Phelan, 49 So. 956 (Miss. 1908).

(n20)Footnote 421. Sullivan v. Garesche, 129 S.W. 949 (Mo. 1910); Drummond v. Drummond, 26 N.J. Eq. 234 (1875); Michael v. Minchen, 101 A. 283 (N.J. L. 1917); McGlothlin v. McElvain, 95 N.E.2d 68 (Ill. 1950); Armstrong v. Thomas, 72 So. 1006 (Miss. 1916).

(n21)Footnote 422. See Vaughn v. Dickes, 20 Pa. 509 (1853), to the effect that the limitation over is too remote if after a fee tail. Also see § 2020.

(n22)Footnote 423. In the case of a bequest to a spouse with the limitation over on death if she predeceased him, the limitation over took effect when the spouse divorced the testator. In re Frederick's Estate, 311 So. 2d 376 (Fla. 1975).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.09

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.09 Covenants and Conditions Distinguished.

[Go To Supp]

Very often phraseology is used in an instrument of transfer of title or contract therefor, which could be capable of construction either as a condition subsequent or as a covenant. In such cases the different legal consequences arising from the forfeiture of estate upon breach of the condition or an action for damages for breach of covenant require a careful distinction between the two legal situations.

Since forfeitures are not favored n424 when it is doubtful, whether a provision in a deed should be construed to be a covenant or a condition, the words used not being in form either the one or the other, the courts will construe it to be a covenant, so as to avoid a forfeiture. n425 The construction must not, however, be a strained or unreasonable one or one that was plainly not contemplated by the parties. n426 Language in a deed, "it being expressly understood by the parties that the said tract or parcel of land is not to be put to any other use than that of a depot square," was held that these were words of covenant, and not words of condition, and that the remedy for a breach was an action for damages, and not a forfeiture of the estate for condition broken. n427 Where a right-of-way was conveyed to a railroad company, "provided, however, that any other railroad running into or through the city shall have the right to run a parallel track along upon the same right-of-way," this provision was construed to be a covenant or limitation, rather than a condition subsequent, no right of entry being reserved for a breach of it. The court regarded it as more consonant with equity and the general spirit and purpose of the conveyance to construe the proviso as a covenant or limitation upon the use of the way granted than as a strict condition. n428

In determining whether a provision in a deed is a covenant or a condition subsequent, the parties' intention is a controlling factor. n429 The question whether a clause in a deed is a condition subsequent or a covenant is one of intent to be gathered from the whole instrument by following out the object and the spirit of the deed. n430 It is the province of the court, and not of the jury, to construe the terms of a deed offered in evidence, to determine whether it purports to convey the whole or any lesser estate in the land, n431 or whether a covenant or a condition subsequent is created. n432 Whether the language used constitutes a condition is a question of law for the court, with which the jury has nothing to do. n433 The intent is to be gathered from the whole instrument by following out the object and spirit of the deed or contract. n434

The responsibility for a breach of a covenant ordinarily is the payment of damages, while the consequence of a failure to fulfill the terms of a condition is intended to be a forfeiture of the estate. n435 A proviso in a deed that the grantee shall erect and maintain at his own expense all division fences is not a condition subsequent, but an implied covenant. The proviso does not suggest that the parties intended or understood that a failure to comply with it should work a forfeiture of the land. n436 In a deed of a right-of-way to a railroad company, a condition that it will build, immediately after the road is finished, two bridges across a cut in the grantor's land is not a condition which will authorize a forfeiture of the grant upon a failure to perform it. n437 Where the intention of the parties to a deed clearly shows that the enjoyment of the estate created by the deed was intended to depend upon the performance of an agreement therein, the agreement is a condition and not a covenant, notwithstanding conditions are not favored. n438

A condition cannot be enforced as an agreement where the language used imports a condition only and there are no words importing an agreement, but the only remedy is through a forfeiture. n439 If there are no promissory words or words which can be construed as such, the condition does not create a personal liability. n440 A provision that the property shall not be sold, leased, or rented to colored persons, and that in the event of such transfer shall revert to the grantor, was held a condition. n441 However, the deed may contain a condition upon breach of which the grantor might enforce a forfeiture, and also a covenant on the part of the grantee upon a breach of which the grantor may in equity compel a specific performance or maintain an action for damages, and in such case the grantor has his election of remedies. n442 If the language and intent of the deed clearly fix the legal import of the instrument as creating a condition, it is no consequence that the provision is elsewhere in the deed referred to as being a covenant. n443

If the parties themselves expressly call the provision a covenant instead of a condition, their language is significant of their intention. n444 The mere use of the words "on condition" is not conclusive of the character of the provision. n445 The same provision cannot be both a condition and a covenant. The grantor cannot claim a forfeiture and also damages for a breach of covenant. n446 The use of the word "covenant" will not defeat the plain intention to create a condition subsequent by apt words expressly creating such condition. n447

Where the deed contains no terms of reverter in the event the property is diverted from the uses specified, the deed will not be construed to create an estate on condition but to contain a covenant only. n448 If the technical words of condition are not used, and there is no clause providing that the grantor may re-enter, the deed will generally be construed as creating a covenant rather than a condition. n449 Other words used in connection with technical words of condition may serve to show that no forfeiture for a breach of the provision was intended as in case some other remedy than a forfeiture is provided. n450

A condition will not be raised from a mere declaration in the deed that the grant is made for special and particular purposes, without being coupled with words appropriate to make such condition, but such recitals are usually construed as giving rise, at most, to an implied covenant that the grantee will use the property conveyed only for special purposes. n451 Language will not, however, be construed as covenants where the clear intent of the maker was to create a condition. n452 But where the language creating a condition is clear and specific, it will be enforced. n453 The courts have even resorted to collateral evidence to construe language as a covenant, not a condition. n454

A mortgage executed by grantees is prior to a covenant in the deed to care for the grantor but would be junior to a condition subsequent in the deed. n455

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: consideration w/15 transfer! w/30 fee w/5 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 424. McBride v. Freeman, 215 P. 678 (Cal. 1923); Hinton v. Vinson, 104 S.E. 897 (N.C. 1920).

Demand must be made before forfeiture for breach of implied covenant. Robinson v. Continental Oil Co., 255 F. Supp. 61 (D. Kansas 1966).

Forfeiture on breach not favored. Zapata v. Torres, 464 S.W.2d 926 (Tex. Civ. App. Dallas 1971).

(n2)Footnote 425. American Emigrant Co. v. Adams, 100 U.S. 61 (1879); Columbia R., Gas & Elec. Co. v. South Carolina, 261 U.S. 236 (1923); Los Angeles Univ. v. Swarth, 107 F. 798 (9th Cir. 1901); C. W. Zimmerman Mfg. Co. v. Daffin, 42 So. 858 (Ala. 1906); Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Anniston Mfg. Co., 65 So. 187 (Ala. 1914); Libby v. Winston, 93 So. 631 (Ala. 1922); Lowery v. May, 104 So. 5 (Ala. 1925); Murphy v. Schuster Springs Lbr. Co., 11 So. 427 (Ala. 1926); Hanners v. Hanners, 77 So. 2d 484 (Ala. 1955); Kampman v. Kampman, 135 S.W. 905 (Ark. 1911); Weller v. Brown, 117 P. 517 (Cal. 1911); McBride v. Freeman, 215 P. 678 (Cal. 1923); Rosecrans v. Pacific Elec. R. Co., 134 P.2d 245 (Cal. 1943); Savanna Sch. Dist. v. McLeod, 290 P.2d 593 (Cal. App. 1955); Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892); Thornton v. Trammell, 39 Ga. 202 (1869); Self v. Billings, 77 S.E. 562 (Ga. 1913); Gordon v. Whittle, 57 S.E.2d 169 (Ga. 1950); Board of Educ. v. First Baptist Church, 63 Ill. 204 (1872); Gallaher v. Herbert, 7 N.E. 511 (Ill. 1886); Boone v. Clark, 21 N.E. 850 (Ill. 1889); Downen v. Rayburn, 73 N.E. 364 (Ill. 1905); Bald v. Nuernberger, 108 N.E. 724 (Ill. 1915); Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church v. First Lutheran Church, 124 N.E. 793 (Ill. 1919); Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); Mathis v. Mathis, 83 N.E.2d 270 (Ill. 1949); Glendening v. Federal Land Bank of Louisville, 44 N.E.2d 251 (Ind. App. 1942); Peden v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co., 35 N.W. 424 (Iowa 1887); Boone Biblical College v. Forrest, 275 N.W. 132 (Iowa 1937); Wright v. Board of Educ., 152 S.W. 543 (Ky. 1913); Frankfort v. Capital Hotel Co., 224 S.W. 197 (Ky. 1920); National Fin. Corp. v. Robinson, 237 S.W. 418 (Ky. 1922); Hoskins v. Walker, 255 S.W.2d 480 (Ky. 1953); Kilpatrick v. Baltimore, 31 A. 805 (Md. 1895); Earle v. Dawes, 3 Md. Ch. 230 (1849); Wheeler v. Dascomb, 3 Mass. (Cush.) 285 (1849); Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Mass. (Cush.) 178 (1849); Rawson v. School Dist. No. 5, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 125 (1863); Smith v. Barrie, 22 N.W. 816 (Mich. 1885); Detroit Union R. Depot & Station Co. v. Fort St. Union Depot Co., 87 N.W. 214 (Mich. 1901); Clark v. Grand Rapids, 55 N.W.2d 137 (Mich. 1952); St. Louis v. Wiggins Ferry Co., 88 Mo. 615 (1886); Studdard v. Wells, 25 S.W. 201 (Mo. 1894); Reynolds v. Reynolds, 136 S.W. 411 (Mo. 1911); Koehler v. Rowland, 205 S.W. 217 (1918); Chapin v. School Dist. No. 2, 35 N.H. 445 (1857); Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1870); Spaulding v. Woodward, 53 N.H. 573 (1873); Nichols v. Fernald, 131 A. 836 (N.H. 1926); Woodruff v. Woodruff, 16 A. 4 (N.J. Eq. 1888); Riverton Country Club v. Thomas, 58 A.2d 89 (N.J. Eq. 1948); Butterhof v. Butterhof, 86 A. 394 (N.J. 1913); Oldfield v. Stoeco Homes, Inc., 139 A.2d 291 (N.J. 1958)(to the contrary is in error); Parmelee v. Oswego & S. R. Co., 6 N.Y. 74 (1851); Craig v. Wells, 11 N.Y. 315 (1854); Post v. Weil, 22 N.E. 145 (N.Y. 1889); Graves v. Deterling, 24 N.E. 655 (N.Y. 1890); Munro v. Syracuse, L. & N. R. Co., 93 N.E. 516 (N.Y. 1910); Van De Bogert v. Reformed Dutch Church, 220 N.Y.S. 50 (1926); Hinton v. Vinson, 104 S.E. 897 (N.C. 1920); Second Church of Christ, Scientist v. LePrevost, 35 N.E.2d 1015 (Ohio App. 1941); Wayne Lakes Park v. Warner, 147 N.E.2d 269 (Ohio App. 1957); Fraley v. Wilkinson, 191 P. 156 (Okla. 1920); Priddy v. School Dist. No. 78, 219 P. 141 (Okla. 1923); Gypsy Oil Co. v. Escoe, 258 P. 906 (Okla. 1927); Gange v. Hayes, 237 P.2d 196 (Or. 1951) (option to repurchase preferred to a condition subsequent); Paschall v. Passmore, 15 Pa. 295 (1850); McKnight v. Kreutz, 51 Pa. 232 (1866); Howell v. Sewickley Twp., 43 A.2d 121 (Pa. 1945); Greene v. O'Connor, 25 A. 692 (R.I. 1892); Texas Elec. R. Co. v. Neale, 252 S.W.2d 451 (Tex. 1952); Beckham v. Ward County Irrig. Dist. No. 1, 278 S.W. 316 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925)(agreement to construct and maintain flume held covenant and not condition); Wichita Falls v. Bruner, 165 S.W.2d 480 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Scaling v. Sutton, 167 S.W.2d 275 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Knight v. Chicago Corp., 183 S.W.2d 666 (Tex. Civ. App. 1933); Coleman v. Layman, 252 P.2d 244 (Wash. 1953).

In Rawson v. School Dist. No. 5, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 125 (1863), elaborate and able opinion delivered by Bigelow, C. J., the court said: "If it be doubtful whether a clause in a deed be a covenant or condition, courts of law will always incline against the latter construction. Conditions are not to be raised readily by inference or argument."

In Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892), Hall, J., said: "Courts will always construe clauses in deeds as covenants, rather than conditions, if they can reasonably do so." See also, as illustrating the subject, Stanley v. Colt, 72

U.S. 119 (1867).

Conditions subsequent are abhorred. Port Authority of Allegheny County v. Flaherty, 293 A.2d 152 (Pa. Cmwlth. 1972).

Agreement to care and support the grantor held a covenant and not a condition subsequent. Dickerson v. Keller, 521 S.W.2d 288 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975).

(n3)Footnote 426. Wilson v. Wilson, 86 Ind. 472 (1882); Taylor v. Cedar Rapids & St. Paul R. Co., 25 Iowa 371 (1868); Smith v. Barrie, 22 N.W. 816 (Mich. 1885).

(n4)Footnote 427. Thornton v. Trammell, 39 Ga. 202 (1869). See Restatement, Property, § 45, Comment n.

(n5)Footnote 428. Elyton Land Co. v. South & N. A. R. Co., 14 So. 207 (Ala. 1893).

(n6)Footnote 429. Williams v. Johnson, 143 S.W.2d 738 (Ky. 1940).

(n7)Footnote 430. Holekamp Lab. Co. v. State Hwy. Comm'n, 173 S.W.2d 938 (Mo. 1943).

(n8)Footnote 431. Sudduth v. Sumeral, 39 S.E. 534 (S.C. 1901).

(n9)Footnote 432. Lima Oil & Gas Co. v. Pritchard, 218 P. 863 (Okla. 1923); Hickernell v. Gregory, 224 S.W. 691 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920).

(n10)Footnote 433. Laberee v. Carleton, 53 Me. 211 (1865); Cox v. Freedley, 33 Pa. 124 (1859); Hammond v. Port Royal & A. R. Co., 15 S.C. 10 (1881).

> The character of the fee conveyed must be ascertained by a construction of the words of that deed. If the conveyance is less than an absolute fee simple, it must be because the deed has so limited and qualified the fee conveyed as to make it dependent upon conditions either precedent or subsequent. To determine this, we may look to the whole deed, and search its four corners, to ascertain the intent of the grantor.

Board of Comm'rs v. Young, 59 F. 96 (6th Cir. Ohio 1893), per Lurton, J.

(n11)Footnote 434. Thomson v. Hart, 66 S.E. 270 (Ga. 1909); St. Louis v. Wiggins Ferry Co., 88 Mo. 615 (1886); Studdard v. Wells, 25 S.W. 201 (Mo. 1894).

(n12)Footnote 435. Carpender v. New Brunswick, 39 A.2d 40 (N.J. Eq. 1944).

(n13)Footnote 436. Palmer v. Ryan, 22 A. 574 (Vt. 1891).

(n14)Footnote 437. Roanoke Inv. Co. v. Kansas City & S. E. R., 17 S.W. 1000 (Mo. 1891).

(n15)Footnote 438. Williams v. Johnson, 143 S.W.2d 738 (Ky. 1940); New Edgewood Lake Corp. v. Kingston Trust Co., 285 N.Y.S. 130 (A.D. 1936).

(n16)Footnote 439. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 116 N.E. 161 (Ill. 1917); Williams v. Johnson, 143 S.W.2d 738 (Ky. 1940); Woodruff v. Trenton Water Power Co., 10 N.J. Eq. 489 (1856); Jackson v. Florence, 16 N.Y. (Johns) 47 (1819); Parsons v. Miller, 15 N.Y. (Wend.) 561 (1836); Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. 341 (1862).

In Palmer v. Fort Plain & C. Plank Rd. Co., 11 N.Y. 376 (1854), the court said:

> It by no means follows, because a grantee consents to take an estate subject to a condition, that he also consents to obligate himself personally for the performance of the condition. Many cases might be imagined in which one would be willing to risk the forfeiture of the estate, while he would be altogether unwilling to incur the hazard of a personal responsibility in addition.

(n17)Footnote 440. Blanchard v. Detroit, L. & L. M. R. Co., 31 Mich. 43 (1875); Parsons v. Miller, 15 N.Y. (Wend.) 561 (1836).

(n18)Footnote 441. Koehler v. Rowland, 205 S.W. 217 (Mo. 1918).

(n19)Footnote 442. Stuyvesant v. New York, 11 N.Y. (Paige) 414 (1845). See Boston Consol. Gas Co. v. Oakes, 181 N.E. 225 (Mass. 1932).

(n20)Footnote 443. Blanchard v. Detroit, L. & L. M. R. Co., 31 Mich. 43 (1875), Graves, C. J., said:

> When an instrument or provision is clearly and distinctly so drawn and consummated that the law at once attaches, and determines that it possesses a specific legal nature, and exclusively belongs to a given class of transactions, the parties cannot by arbitrarily assigning a name to it wholly foreign to its true character, succeed in transforming it, and so cause it to stand and operate in a manner wholly alien to it... In such a case the law attaches to the act, and ascribes to it a definite significance, and the parties cannot be heard to say, where there is no imposition, no fraud, no mistake, that, although they deliberately made a condition, and nothing but a condition, they yet meant that it should be exactly as a covenant.

See Hickernell v. Gregory, 224 S.W. 691 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920).

(n21)Footnote 444. This alone, however, would not make it a covenant, as that which is termed a 'covenant' may be a condition, and that which is termed a 'condition' may be a covenant. But it has an important bearing upon the intention of the parties, because technical terms in a conveyance are presumed to have been used with their accustomed meaning, unless the circumstances and context indicate a different intent. Graves v. Deterling, 24 N.E. 655 (N.Y. 1890), per Vann, J.

(n22)Footnote 445. Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church v. First Lutheran Church, 124 N.E. 793 (Ill. 1919); Greene v. White, 153 S.W.2d 575 (Tex. 1941). See Nashville, C. & St. Louis R. v. Bell, 39 S.W.2d 1026 (Tenn. 1931); Engel v. South Penn. Oil Co., 146 S.E. 385 (W. Va. 1928).

(n23)Footnote 446. Underhill v. Saratoga & W. R. Co., 20 N.Y. (Barb.) 455 (1855).

(n24)Footnote 447. Blanchard v. Detroit, L. & L. M. R. Co., 31 Mich. 43 (1875); O'Brien v. Wagner, 7 S.W. 19 (Mo. 1888).

(n25)Footnote 448. Boone Biblical College v. Forrest, 275 N.W. 132 (Iowa 1937); Board of Educ. v. Mill Creek Methodist Church South, 45 S.W.2d 1026 (Ky. 1932); Carruthers v. Spaulding, 275 N.Y.S. 37 (A.D. 1934). See Restatement, Property, § 45, Comment o.

Lacking a limitation over, a devisor takes free of a condition subsequent. Dubrowsky v. Benedict, 324 N.Y.S.2d 208 (1971).

The existence or nonexistence of a re-entry clause is of importance in determining whether there is a fee upon condition subsequent. Floyd v. Hoover, 234 S.E.2d 89 (Ga. App. 1977).

(n26)Footnote 449. Weller v. Brown, 117 P. 517 (Cal. 1911); Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892); Self v. Billings, 77 S.E. 562 (Ga. 1913); Gallaher v. Herbert, 7 N.E. 511 (Ill. 1886); Risley v. McNiece, 71 Ind. 434 (1880); Curtis v. Board of Educ., 23 P. 98 (Kan. 1890); Ruggles v. Clare, 26 P. 25 (Kan. 1891); Packard v. Ames, 16 Mass. (Gray) 327 (1860); Clark v. Grand Rapids, 55 N.W.2d 137 (Mich. 1952); Studdard v. Wells, 25 S.W. 201 (Mo. 1894); Chapin v. School Dist. No. 2, 35 N.H. 445 (1857); Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1879); Butterhof v. Butterhof, 86 A. 394 (N.J. 1913); Graves v. Deterling, 3 N.Y.S. 128 (1854); Craig v. Wells, 11 N.Y. 315 (1854); Gibert v. Peteler, 38 N.Y. 165 (1868); Lyon v. Hersey, 8 N.E. 518 (N.Y. 1886); Graves v. Deterling, 24 N.E. 655 (N.Y. 1890); Harris v. Rather, 134 S.W. 754 (Tex. Civ. App. 1911); Strong v. Doty, 32 Wis. 381 (1873). See Restatement, Property, § 45, Comment n.

(n27)Footnote 450. Thus, where it was provided that in case of breach of the condition the grantors "by their agent, servant, or assigns, may enter and abate the same without being liable to any action of trespass therefor," it was considered that this stipulation, which would be unnecessary if it were intended that there should be a forfeiture by operation of law, and which is also inconsistent with the idea of forfeiture, excluded the remedy by forfeiture. Hoyt v. Kimball, 49 N.H. 322 (1879).

"Words seemingly appropriate to a condition only may introduce a covenant, a condition or a declaration of trust, and the whole of the clause submitted to investigation must, in form and scope, be considered, in order to determine within which clause it should fall." MacKenzie Presbytery, 61 A. 1027 (N.J. Eq. 1905).

(n28)Footnote 451. Williams v. Johnson, 143 S.W.2d 738 (Ky. 1940).

(n29)Footnote 452. Biescar v. Czechoslovak-Patronat, 302 P.2d 104 (Cal. App. 1956).

(n30)Footnote 453. Hudson v. Caffey, 179 S.W.2d 1017 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944).

(n31)Footnote 454. Second Church of Christ, Scientist v. LePrevost, 35 N.E.2d 1015 (Ohio App. 1941).

(n32)Footnote 455. Brunner v. Terman, 275 N.E.2d 553 (Ind. App. 1971).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.10

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.10 Statements of Consideration as Implying Conditions.

[Go To Supp]

Where the deed recites the consideration for which the transfer is made, the consequences may be that such language will either (a) be a mere recital of the terms of the conveyance (b) a reservation of a vendor's lien n456 or (c) create a fee upon condition subsequent. The consideration named for a grant does not ordinarily imply a condition, so that upon a failure of the consideration a forfeiture may be declared. n457 The rule is that recitals which are merely an expression of the consideration for the conveyance can create an estate on condition only by express reservation of the right of the grantor to re-enter upon failure of the grantee to perform the agreement. n458 Any exception there may be to this rule "is confined to cases where the subject matter of the grant is in its nature executory, as of an annuity to be paid for services to be rendered or a privilege to be enjoyed." n459

A warranty deed of an undivided half of a tract of land "in consideration of clearing the whole of all taxes now due, and tax claims of all kinds for which the land has been sold, or is now subject to sale," is an absolute conveyance, and on its delivery vests title in the grantee and is not a deed upon condition precedent or subsequent. n460 Even where a grantee holding an estate upon condition transferred it to another, in consideration that the latter should perform the condition, the second grantee does not hold the estate upon condition, but is merely under a personal obligation to perform the condition. n461

Where land was conveyed upon consideration that a railroad company is to "locate, erect, and maintain" upon the land its depot, and in pursuance of the conveyance the depot was erected and maintained for eleven years and then was removed, the land did not revert. n462

A condition for the payment of money to third persons by the grantee within a fixed time will be construed to be merely a charge upon the land, unless a different intent is apparent or the language of the condition is so clear as to leave no room for construction or doubt. n463 A deed showing a consideration of a nominal sum, and accompanied by a contemporaneous agreement in which the grantee assumes and agrees to pay all the debts connected with or arising out of the property, both instruments construed together, as they must be, show a covenant and not a condition, and a breach thereof does not work a forfeiture. n464

A conveyance on condition that the grantee pay a third person a specified sum of money and the acceptance of such conveyance creates a lien on the property conveyed in favor of the third person. n465 An agreement by the grantee to pay a certain sum at a fixed time with the proviso that the grantor could re-enter and take possession on failure to make such payment was held to be a covenant coupled with a condition subsequent and not a collateral limitation, and, hence, title did not revert to the grantor on the grantee's failure to make the required payment but the grantor had an option to enforce payment or to retake the property. n466 A conveyance "subject to the purchase money," and to an agreement concerning the same, creates an equitable lien upon the land conveyed. n467 A provision in a deed making the conveyance of a part of a tract subject to an agreement obligating the grantee and his heirs and assigns to pay taxes and assessments on the remaining part is neither a legal condition of continuance of the fee in the grantee, nor a legal covenant running with the land. n468

A provision in a deed that the grantee shall assume and pay a mortgage upon the land conveyed does not constitute a condition upon the breach of which the title revests in the grantor, n469 but the payment of a mortgage upon the land may be made an express condition, and when so intended it will be enforced by forfeiture. n470 Such assumption clause is generally considered no part of the grant, but a collateral undertaking, personal in its nature, and not relating to the land. n471 In that case, there is a breach of the condition in case the grantee suffers the mortgage to remain undischarged for several years after its maturity. Such a condition requires the grantee to relieve the property of the encumbrance within a reasonable time. n472 A conveyance "subject to" certain mortgages, "to be assumed and paid by the grantee, his heirs and assigns, the same making part of the consideration," and "on condition" that the grantor and his representatives shall be forever indemnified and saved harmless from the payment of them, is a grant on condition, and forfeited by a breach thereof and is not in the nature of a mortgage from the grantee to the grantor. Such condition is not extinguished by the grantor's taking back a mortgage for a part of the consideration subject to the mortgages assumed with covenants to save the grantor harmless against them, and his entry upon the land for breach of the condition of the deed is not affected by an assignment of the mortgage before or after such entry. n473

A reservation or provision in a deed poll that the grantee shall perform a certain service for the grantor, such as to build and maintain a certain fence, is made binding upon the grantee by his acceptance of the deed. n474 Such a provision is not a reservation out of the estate granted, a condition upon which the estate is to be held, or even a covenant running with the land, or otherwise. It is usually merely a personal agreement of the grantee, made as part of the consideration of the grant, which binds him and his legal representatives and it is not an encumbrance upon the land. n475 If, from the nature of the acts to be performed by the grantee, and the time required for their performance, it is evidently the intention of the parties that the estate shall be held and enjoyed on condition that the grantee perform the acts specified, then the estate is upon condition. This is especially so when the grantor has reserved no other effectual remedy for the enforcement of performance on the part of the grantee. n476 Where the deed clearly shows an intention that the enjoyment of the estate created was to depend upon the performance of the agreement therein, such agreement is a condition and not a covenant. n477

Where a deed of land contained a reservation of pasturage for two cows during the lifetime of the grantor or, in lieu thereof, the grantee's personal obligation to cut her yearly fuel for the stove, a stipulation in aid of the reservation, that the grantee "is not" to encumber or convey the land meantime, does not create an estate on condition. n478

A clause in a deed poll, to the effect that the grantee agrees for himself, and for his heirs and assigns, that he and they will make and forever maintain a fence all around the granted premises, is of the same effect as an express covenant signed and sealed by the grantee. It runs with the land and creates an encumbrance upon the land. By implication it recognizes that a subsequent grantee would be liable to the original grantor, in an action of assumpsit, for non-performance of the stipulation. n479

A provision in the form of an express condition in a deed for land within a city to be used as a cemetery that "the grantee, his successors and assigns, shall at all times maintain a good and sufficient fence around the premises," was construed as a covenant, and not as creating a condition subsequent, where it was evident that the grantor, who owned lands on both sides, sought to impose a duty on the grantee to build all the fence inclosing the cemetery. n480 A deed of land for full consideration to a cemetery corporation, which has power to use the land for burial purposes only, conveys a fee, although the deed limits the use to such purposes, if there is no interest reserved to the grantor and the deed contains no provision for reverter. n481 But statements as to consideration may be considered in determining as to the grantor's intent to create a condition. n482

A condition in a deed that the vendee reconvey to the vendor in event of vendee's marriage is valid if the dominant motive was to provide support until marriage. n483

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: service! or support! w/5 consideration w/30 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 456. See Vol. 10, §§ 5242, 5243.

Litigation over a deed did not toll a time limitation of a condition subsequent that required a payment within a time certain. Smith v. Smith, 168 S.E.2d 878 (Ga. App. 1969).

(n2)Footnote 457. Berkley v. Union Pac. R. Co., 33 F. 794 (C.C.D. Colo. 1888); Avery v. United States, 104 F. 711 (6th Cir. 1900); Hawley v. Kafitz, 83 P. 248 (Cal. 1905); Risley v. McNiece, 71 Ind. 434 (1880); Ruggles v. Clare, 26 P. 25 (Kan. 1891); Fuquay v. Hopkins Academy, 58 S.W. 814 (Ky. 1900); Louisville, H. & St. Louis R. Co. v. Baskett, 104 S.W. 695 (Ky. 1907); Laberee v. Carlton, 53 Me. 211 (1865); Ayer v. Emery, 14 Mass. (Allen) 67 (1867); Martin v. Martin, 131 Mass. 547 (1881); Morrill v. Wabash, St. Louis & P. R. Co., 9 S.W. 657 (Mo. 1888); McAnaw v. Tiffin, 45 S.W. 656 (Mo. 1897); Hand v. St. Louis, 59 S.W. 92 (Mo. 1900); Upington v. Corrigan, 45 N.E. 359 (N.Y. 1896); Portland v. Terwilliger, 19 P. 90 (Or. 1888); Rainey v. Chambers, 56 Tex. 17 (1935); Davis v. Skipper, 83 S.W.2d 318 (Tex. 1935). See Nicholson v. Myres, 154 So. 282 (Miss. 1934).

"Where the condition involves only the payment of money, equity will regard the condition as mere security for the payment of the money and relieve against the forfeiture upon the grantee's payment of the principal sum with interest and damages if any." Tibbetts v. Cate, 22 A. 559 (N.H. 1891), and where the breach is due to the innocent mistake of the grantee. Dodsworth v. Dodsworth, 98 N.E. 279 (Ill. 1912) (innocent failure to pay taxes before delinquent).

(n3)Footnote 458. Braddy v. Elliott, 60 S.E. 507 (N.C. 1908); Waco Dev. Co. v. McNeese, 209 S.W. 464 (Tex. Civ. App. 1919).

There are many authorities to the effect that a recital in a deed of conveyance that it is made upon a money consideration, and a further consideration that the grantee shall do certain things, or that only a certain use shall be made of the property, does not impose a condition and does not create an estate upon a condition subsequent. Davis v. Skipper, 83 S.W.2d 318 (Tex. 1935), citing 8 RCL 1101, 18 CJ 353, 354; Board of Councilmen v. Capital Hotel Co., 224 S.W. 197 (Ky. 1920); Adams v. First Baptist Church, 111 N.W. 757 (Mich. 1907); Fraley v. Wilkinson, 191 P. 156 (Okla. 1920).

(n4)Footnote 459. Rawson v. School Dist. No. 5, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 125 (1863), per Bigelow, C. J. See Wilson v. Wilson, 86 Ind. 472 (1882); Brown v. Caldwell, 23 W. Va. 187 (1883).

Inadequate consideration as evidence of intent not to create fee simple absolute. Coston v. McClelland, 127 So. 176 (Ala. 1929); Fitzgerald v. County of Modoc, 129 P. 794 (Cal. 1913); Faith v. Bowles, 37 A. 711 (Md. 1897).

A grant "made upon the consideration that" the grantee, his heirs, executors, and administrators, "should fulfill certain agreements for the support of the grantor and his wife, was held not to be a grant upon a condition subsequent."

> There are no apt words in the deed to create a condition; there is no clause of re-entry or forfeiture; it is not provided that the deed shall be void in a certain contingency; nor was the conveyance made solely in consideration of certain acts to be done, or for the accomplishment of a specific purpose, on the fulfillment of which the estate granted is made to depend. The grantor has not only omitted to use any words which can be properly held to create an estate on condition according to the technical rules of law, but he has also failed to indicate any clear intent to cause the estate to be defeated by reason of any act or omission of the grantee.

Ayer v. Emery, 14 Allen 67 (Mass. 1867).

(n5)Footnote 460. Ruggles v. Clare, 26 P. 25 (Kan. 1891).

(n6)Footnote 461. Norris v. Laberee, 58 Me. 260 (1870).

(n7)Footnote 462. "The erection and maintenance of the depot is stated to be a consideration, a consideration perhaps in the nature of a condition subsequent; but the conveyance does not purport to be one upon condition that the grantee will perform, but it is a conveyance in consideration of its promise to erect and maintain. That consideration it has partially performed... Under those circumstances, where there is a part performance, -- a part payment, -- the title does not revert. There may be a cause of action for damages, but the title does not revert upon a mere partial failure of the consideration." Berkley v. Union Pac. R. Co., 33 F. 794 (C.C.D. Colo. 1888), per Brewer, J. See Close v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 19 N.W. 886 (Iowa 1884).

A warranty deed to a county of a block of ground, reciting a consideration of one dollar, and conditional on the erection and maintenance of a county courthouse thereon, and containing no express right of reverter, imposed a condition subsequent. Brooks v. Kimball County, 256 N.W. 501 (Neb. 1934).

(n8)Footnote 463. Doyle v. Paul, 86 N.E.2d 98 (Ind. App. 1949), 87 N.E.2d 885 (Ind. App. 1949); Sick v. Rock, 37 N.W.2d 305 (Iowa 1949); Bugbee v. Sargent, 23 Me. 269 (1843); Pendleton v. Meade, 177 S.E. 198 (Va. 1934); Powers v. Powers, 28 Wis. 659 (1871); Weir v. Simmons, 13 N.W. 873 (Wis. 1882).

(n9)Footnote 464. Closner v. Chapin, 168 S.W. 370 (Tex. Civ. App. 1914).

(n10)Footnote 465. Menge v. Radtke, 269 N.W. 13 (Wis. 1936).

(n11)Footnote 466. Neal v. State-Planters Bank & Trust Co., 184 S.E. 203 (Va. 1936).

(n12)Footnote 467. Hiester v. Green, 48 Pa. 96 (1864).

(n13)Footnote 468. Child v. C. H. Winans Co., 183 A. 300 (N.J. Eq. 1936).

(n14)Footnote 469. Dunlap v. Mobley, 71 Ala. 102 (1881); Martin v. Splivalo, 11 P. 484 (Cal. 1886); Pelser Gingold, 8 N.W.2d 36 (Minn. 1943); Cook v. Trimble, 9 Watts 15 (Pa. 1839); In re Moore's Appeal, 88 Pa. 450 (1879); Schnyder v. Orr, 24 A. 306 (Pa. 1892)(that the grantor may bring ejectment on such a clause, as being a condition is clearly bad law).

(n15)Footnote 470. Fisk v. Chandler, 30 Me. 79 (1849); Ross v. Tremain, 2 Mass. (Metc.) 495 (1841).

(n16)Footnote 471. Fishback v. J.C. Forkner Fig Gardens, 30 P.2d 586 (Cal. App. 1934); Union Trust Co. v. Allen, 268 N.Y.S. 437 (A.D. 1934). See Nutter v. Mroczka, 21 N.E.2d 979 (Mass. 1839).

(n17)Footnote 472. Rowell v. Jewett, 69 Me. 293 (1879); Ross v. Tremain, 2 Mass. (Metc.) 495 (1841).

(n18)Footnote 473. Hancock v. Carlton, 6 Mass. (Gray) 39 (1856).

(n19)Footnote 474. Newell v. Hill, 2 Mass. (Metc.) 180 (1840); Rogers v. Eagle Fire Co., 9 N.Y. (Wend.) 611 (1932); Trotter v. Hughes, 12 N.Y. 74 (1854); Atlantic Dock Co. v. Leavitt, 54 N.Y. 35 (1873); Hornback v. Cincinnati & Z. R. Co., 20 Ohio St. 81 (1870); Palmer v. Ryan, 22 A. 574 (Vt. 1891); Roberts v. Coleman, 16 S.E. 482 (W. Va. 1892); Hartung v. Witte, 18 N.W. 175 (Wis. 1884).

(n20)Footnote 475. Plymouth v. Carver, 16 Mass. (Pick.) 183 (1834); Parish v. Whitney, 3 Mass. (Gray) 516 (1855).

(n21)Footnote 476. Downing v. Rademacher, 65 P. 385 (Cal. 1901); Richter v. Richter, 12 N.E. 698 (Ind. 1887).

(n22)Footnote 477. New Edgewood Lake Corp. v. Kingston Trust Co., 285 N.Y.S. 130 (A.D. 1936).

(n23)Footnote 478. Bray v. Hussey, 22 A. 220 (Me. 1891).

(n24)Footnote 479. Burbank v. Pillsbury, 48 N.H. 475 (1869); Kellogg v. Robinson, 6 Vt. 276 (1834).

(n25)Footnote 480. Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892).

(n26)Footnote 481. Sapper v. Mathers, 133 A. 565 (Pa. 1926).

A grantor in a deed to a railroad company, in consideration of a sum of money and of its building its railroad, conveyed to a company, its successors or assigns, forever, in fee simple, the right-of-way through his land, and added in the deed the words: "It is hereby agreed and understood a depot and station is to be located and given to said grantor on the land or strip above conveyed, to be permanently located for the benefit of said grantor and his assigns, and to be used for the general purposes of the railroad company." It was held that the grantee, by accepting such deed, entered into a covenant to comply with its terms, and this covenant ran with the land, and became obligatory upon any second company which became the purchaser, under proper legal direction, of the rights, privileges, franchises, and property of the former. Georgia So. R. Co. v. Reeves, 64 Ga. 492 (1880).

(n27)Footnote 482. In determining whether a condition subsequent with a power of termination in the grantor is created, importance is frequently attached to whether consideration apart from the term under investigation has been given or not. Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church v. First Lutheran Church, 124 N.E. 793 (Ill. 1919); Ashland v. Greiner, 50 N.E. 99 (Ohio 1898); King v. Norfolk & Western Ry., 39 S.E. 701 (Va. 1901).

(n28)Footnote 483. Winters v. Miller, 261 N.E.2d 205 (Ohio 1970).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.11

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.11 Provisions for Support or Rendition of Service as Creating Conditions.

[Go To Supp]

Where the consideration for the conveyance is the support of the grantor or another by the grantee, the courts have evinced a tenderer consideration for the grantor's interests than is usual in statements of consideration generally. n484 A conveyance made in consideration of support, even though absolute in form, has been held to constitute a species of equitable condition subsequent entitling the grantor to cancel the conveyance upon breach of the contract by the grantee. n485

In equity, an absolute conveyance in consideration of a promise to support is sometimes treated as a conveyance on a condition subsequent. n486 A conveyance in consideration of support to be furnished the grantor or another person does not create a condition, unless apt words of condition are used n487 and even then it will not be held to create a condition unless it is apparent from the whole instrument that a strict condition was intended. An agreement by the grantee to care for the grantor during the latter's life has been held a covenant, not a condition, notwithstanding the habendum clause was followed by the phrase "subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter provided." n488 Courts of equity, it is declared, will freely rescind conveyances by parents to sons upon the breach of agreements to support n489 but they will not enforce a forfeiture in such cases on slight grounds when the circumstances are such that it would be grossly inequitable to do so. n490 Conveyances of property by aged persons, in consideration of promised support and maintenance, are peculiar in their character and incident. They are contracts for the performance of personal services and equity will intervene to cancel such a conveyance when the grantee fails or refuses to perform his obligation without fault of the grantor. n491

Where the clause stating a nominal consideration of one dollar is followed by another reciting, "and the further consideration of the support during" the life of the grantor, it was held not a condition, but a matter of consideration or at most a covenant. n492 Where a parent conveys land to his son in consideration of the son's agreement to support the parent during the latter's life, the parent may, for a breach of the agreement in a proper action, have the deed canceled or the amount due under the agreement made a charge or lien against the land. n493 If the deed contains no apt words to create a condition, a breach of which would render the estate defeasible at the grantor's election, there is no forfeiture for a failure to furnish such support, but merely a right of action for breach of covenant or in equity in the grantor to rescind the contract if the grantee is insolvent. n494 If, however, it is apparent that the parties intended to make the furnishing of support a condition, this will be enforced by forfeiture. n495

A deed executed by parents to their son and a contract entered into by the parties in connection therewith requiring the son to make small annual payments in cash to the parents during their lives and the survivor of them and providing for cancelation and repossession by the parents on breach of the agreement by the son, create a condition subsequent, authorizing forfeiture for default in making the annual payment. n496 It is held that a conveyance made in consideration of support, even though the conveyance be absolute in form, constitutes a species of equitable condition subsequent. n497

Where the consideration for the deed is support of the grantor, it is treated as a covenant instead of a condition unless: (1) there is a meeting of minds of the grantor and grantee; (2) the grantor must expect and have belief that the grantee will so care for the grantor; (3) the grantee must take the deed knowing "full well" that he is obligated to furnish the support for a specified time or until a specific occurrence; (4) the language must not be ambiguous; and (5) the deed must be in good faith and without coercion and duress. n498

If the condition be to furnish support or to pay a certain sum secured by mortgage, the grantee may perform either alternative. When he has once made his election he is bound by it, and cannot afterwards choose the other alternative. n499 A condition for support may be performed by another person than the grantee, unless the deed expressly provides that he shall personally furnish it. n500 The support need not be given or received upon the granted premises, unless there is an express provision therefor. It may be demanded or given at any reasonable place. n501

In construing a clause in a deed providing for support and maintenance, the legal effect of such clause must be determined by a construction of the instrument as a whole. n502 Thus, where land was conveyed to the grantee, his heirs and assigns forever, upon condition that the grantee should forever maintain at his own expense a fence on the line conveyed, it was held that the condition bound the grantee alone and not his heirs and assigns, because they were not specially named in the condition. n503 A condition subsequent arises when it appears from the nature of the act to be performed, and the time required for its performance, that the estate is intended to vest and that the grantee is to perform after taking possession. n504 The condition, therefore, cannot be broken after the death of the grantee. His heirs are under no obligation to do anything in consequence of the condition. n505

A service to be performed by the grantee may be imposed as a condition, in which case a forfeiture may follow a breach of it. Whether the grantee alone is bound to perform the service or whether his heirs and assigns are also bound depends upon the terms of the condition. n506

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 484. Impossibility of assessing damages, for breach justifies treating language in deed for support of grantor as a constructive trust which would be imposed, to the extent of the value of the property or other property obtained by the grantees on an exchange for the property originally deeded. Mruk v. Mruk, 41 N.E.2d 490 (Ill. 1942).

(n2)Footnote 485. Villafranca v. Cotitia, 3 So. 2d 397 (Fla. 1941)(subject to grantee's lien for support actually furnished); Kuhn v. Kuhn, 123 N.E.2d 916 (Ind. App. 1957); Tibbetts v. Krall, 145 N.E.2d 577 (Ind. App. 1955)(grantees entitled to recompense for support furnished where contract was later abandoned); Nadler v. Nadler, 8 N.W.2d 306 (Wis. 1943).

Deed conveying property in consideration of support and maintenance was set aside by refusal of grantee to perform, his fraudulent intent in the first instance being implied. Boyle v. Harvill, 276 N.E.2d 799 (Ill. App. 1971); Owens v. Downs, 98 N.E.2d 914 (Ind. App. 1951); Thomas v. Record, 47 Me. 500 (1859); Buckles v. Smith, 156 P.2d 1019 (Okla. 1945); Watters v. Bredin, 70 Pa. 235 (1872); Kroening v. Kroening, 269 N.W. 536 (Wis. 1936).

(n3)Footnote 486. Owens v. Downs, 98 N.E.2d 914 (Ind. App. 1951); Thomas v. Record, 47 Me. 500 (1859); Buckles v. Smith, 156 P.2d 1019 (Okla. 1945); Watters v. Bredin, 70 Pa. 235 (1872); Kroening v. Kroening, 269 N.W. 536 (Wis. 1936).

(n4)Footnote 487. Gallaher v. Herbert, 7 N.E. 511 (Ill. 1886).

See Owens v. Downs, 95 N.E.2d 914 (Ind. 1951); Studdard v. Wells, 25 S.W. 201 (Mo. 1894); Weeks v. Boynton, 37 Vt. 297 (1864); Joslyn v. Parlin, 54 Vt. 667 (1881); Ralphsnyder v. Ralphsnyder, 17 W. Va. 28 (1880).

So, a recital in a deed by a father to his son that the son had promised to remain with the grantor, and after the grantor's death to support his widow, does not constitute a condition. Perry v. Scott, 51 Pa. 119 (Pa. 1865). See Harris v. Shaw, 13 Ill. 457 (Ill. 1851).

(n5)Footnote 488. Sisk v. Randon, 70 S.W. 689 (Tex. 1934).

(n6)Footnote 489. Anders v. Anders, 197 So. 451 (Fla. 1940); Hensan v. Cooksey, 86 N.E. 1107 (Ill. 1908); Gillen v. Gillen, 87 N.E. 388 (Ill. 1909); Bogie v. Bogie, 41 Wis. 209 (1876); Bresnahan v. Bresnahan, 1 N.W. 39 (Wis. 1879); Blake v. Blake, 14 N.W. 173 (Wis. 1882); Delong v. Delong, 14 N.W. 591 (Wis. 1883); Knutson v. Anderson, 255 N.W. 907 (Wis. 1934).

(n7)Footnote 490. Shade v. Oldroyd, 18 P. 198 (Kan. 1888).

(n8)Footnote 491. Mooney v. Mooney, 94 So. 131 (Ala. 1922); Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925)(equity will declare and enforce a forfeiture of an estate conveyed if the condition has been substantially breached and such breach has not been waived); Lewis v. Owen, 165 So. 229 (Ala. 1925); Miller v. Rhea, 292 S.W. 128 (Ark. 1927); Jancovech v. Christensen, 195 N.E. 287 (Ind. App. 1935); Lowman v. Lowman, 12 N.E.2d 961 (Ind. App. 1938); Timberman v. Timberman, 295 N.W. 158 (Iowa 1940). See De Atley v. Streit, 263 P. 967 (Mont. 1928)(breach of the agreement to support may give the grantors ground for relief on the basis of fraud or because of breach of condition subsequent).

The use in a conveyance of such words as "take care of," "support," "clothe," "maintain," or "look after" require the grantee to furnish the grantor such necessities as are required by the latter's condition, degree and circumstances in life. Ballenger v. Ballenger, 94 So. 127 (Ala. 1922).

A grantor may condone a breach of the agreement to support. Thompson v. Lee, 113 So. 313 (Ala. 1927). See Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925).

A conveyance by warranty deed to a named grantee under the express consideration and condition that the grantee should "maintain, feed, clothe, and nurse," the grantor and his wife during sickness "and care for them with all necessary food and rainment that is needed, as well as with fuel, ... during the life" of the grantor and his wife followed by a provision that if "this consideration is not carried out as set forth in this deed, then it is null and void and of no effect" creates a condition subsequent, and where the grantee voluntarily failed or refused to comply with such conditions in the deed, the grantor had a right of re-entry for condition broken. Plemmons v. Sharp, 119 S.E. 532 (Ga. 1923). To same effect, see Kramer v. Mericle, 192 N.W. 257 (Iowa 1923)(in such cases equity takes jurisdiction, not to forfeit a title, but to quiet a title already forfeited for nonperformance of a condition subsequent).

Breaches of the agreement to support which are not substantial in character are insufficient to warrant a cancelation of the deed. Hatfield v. Harris, 247 S.W. 729 (Ky. 1924)(notwithstanding the grantors reserved unto themselves a life estate in the land conveyed, grantees contracting to care for the grantors were entitled to joint possession of the land).

In Maine a deed given on condition that the grantee named shall maintain and support the grantor during his natural life creates a personal obligation on the grantee which can be performed by no one else than the grantee himself, without the grantor's consent. Pomerleau v. Pomerleau, 124 A. 243 (Me. 1924) (death of grantee wife seeking to hold under deed).

A provision for maintenance incorporated in a deed by the grantor constitutes a charge upon the interest described in the deed and is enforceable not only against the immediate grantee but against the subsequent purchasers who acquire title with actual or constructive notice of the charge. Fleming v. Motz, 122 S.E. 369 (N.C. 1924).

(n9)Footnote 492. Helms v. Helms, 47 S.E. 415 (N.C. 1904); Carney v. Carney, 200 S.W. 517 (Tenn. 1918); Turner v. Biscoe, 164 S.W.2d 70 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942).

(n10)Footnote 493. Bruer v. Bruer, 123 N.W. 813 (Minn. 1909); Asbury v. Burford, 177 S.E. 780 (W. Va. 1934).

(n11)Footnote 494. Camperi v. Chiechi, 286 P.2d 399 (Cal. App. 1955); Jones v. Reid, 193 S.E. 235 (Ga. 1937); Minor v. Minor, 62 S.E.2d 60 (N.C. 1950).

(n12)Footnote 495. First Nat'l Bank v. McIntosh, 79 So. 121 (Ala. 1918); Jones v. Williams, 64 S.E. 1081 (Ga. 1909); Leach v. Leach, 4 Ind. 628 (1853); Cree v. Sherfy, 37 N.E. 787 (Ind. 1894); Huffman v. Rickets, 111 N.E. 322 (Ind. App. 1916); Thomas v. Record, 47 Me. 500 (1859); Rowell v. Jewett, 69 Me. 293 (Me. 1879); Hitchcock v. Simpkins, 58 N.W. 47 (Mich. 1894); De Conick v. De Conick, 117 N.W. 570 (Mich. 1908); Reynolds v. Reynolds, 136 S.W. 411 (Mo. 1911); Spaulding v. Hallenbeck, 39 Barb 79 (N.Y. 1862); Jackson ex dem. Reeves v. Topping, 1 N.Y. (Wend.) 38 (1828); Brittain v. Taylor, 84 S.E. 280 (N.C. 1915); Ford v. Ford, 43 N.E.2d 756 (Ohio App. 1942); Watters v. Bredin, 70 Pa. 235 (1872); Stanton v. Allen, 10 S.E. 878 (S.C. 1890); Berryman v. Schumacher, 3 S.W. 46 (Tex. 1887); Alford v. Alford, 21 S.W. 283 (Tex. Civ. App. 1892); Thrall v. Spear, 22 A. 414 (Vt. 1891); Shum v. Claghorn, 37 A. 236 (Vt. 1896); Epperson v. Epperson, 62 S.E. 344 (Va. 1908); Gall v. Gall, 105 N.W. 953 (Wis. 1905).

(n13)Footnote 496. Sovell v. First Nat'l Bank, 209 N.W. 22 (Minn. 1926).

An agreement to support the grantor is a covenant in the absence of language making it a condition, in which case the remedy, in the event of a breach, is the ascertainment of the value of the promised support and enforcement of the judgment therefor as a lien on the land. Rosek v. Kotzur, 267 S.W. 759 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924). See Wyatt v. Nailer, 111 S.E. 419 (Ga. 1922).

(n14)Footnote 497. Nadler v. Nadler, 8 N.W.2d 306 (Wis. 1943).

The mere fact that developer-vendors had sold the property benefited by restrictions which gave right of re-entry did not destroy the right to re-entry. Sandey v. Stimmler, 230 N.W.2d 599 (Minn. 1975).

(n15)Footnote 498. Brunner v. Terman, 275 N.E.2d 553 (Ind. App. 1971).

(n16)Footnote 499. Bryant v. Erskine, 55 Me. 153 (1867).

(n17)Footnote 500. Wilson v. Wilson, 38 Me. 18 (1854); Henry v. Tupper, 29 Vt. 357 (1857); Joslyn v. Parlin, 54 Vt. 667 (1881).

Consideration of support in a deed is personal to the grantee and cannot be assigned. Death of grantee before grantor authorized cancelation of deed for failure of consideration. Whitney v. Combe, 37 N.W.2d 613 (Neb. 1949).

(n18)Footnote 501. Wilder v. Whittemore, 15 Mass. 261 (1818); Thayer v. Richards, 19 Mass. (Pick.) 398 (1837); Pettee v. Case, 2 Mass. (Allen) 546 (1861).

(n19)Footnote 502. Higgins v. Higgins, 27 S.E.2d 128 (N.C. 1943).

(n20)Footnote 503. Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N.H. 475 (1862); Page v. Palmer, 48 N.H. 385 (1862).

(n21)Footnote 504. New Edgewood Lake Corp. v. Kingston Trust Co., 285 N.Y.S. 130 (A.D. 1936). See White v. Hendley, 169 P. 710 (Cal. App. 1917); Rawson v. School Dist. No. 5, 89 Mass. (7 Allen) 125 (1863); Brown v. Caldwell, 23 W. Va. 187 (1883).

(n22)Footnote 505. Hickey v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 36 N.E. 672 (Ohio 1984).

A railway company made a deed poll of land lying along its right-of-way, "subject to the condition that the said grantee, his heirs and assigns, shall make and maintain good and sufficient fences on each side of the right-of-way of the railway as now located, ... which condition and obligation shall be perpetually binding on the owners of the land." It was held that the undertaking to perform the condition ran with the land, and bound subsequent purchasers from the grantor so long as they remained the owners, but that the railroad company would not have any right of action against its grantee for a nonperformance of the condition after he had conveyed the land in fee to others. The court said:

> The meaning of the condition, we think, was to place upon the [grantee] an obligation to make and maintain the fences only during the time he was the owner of the land. At his death, his heirs, upon succeeding to the ownership, would be held to make and maintain the fences while their ownership lasted. If he or his heirs or devisees should sell the land, the assignees would likewise be held while they continued to be owners, the obligation thus running with the land. Manifestly, it was not [the grantee's] intention to assume an obligation in perpetuam, and, after having sold and conveyed the premises in fee, to remain bound for life, and his heirs to be bound after his death, to build and keep up the fences between the right-of-way and the land sold; and in getting at the intention of the railway company the obvious inference would be that the company would naturally provide for a recourse to those who might own the land at the time the fences needed repairing or rebuilding, rather than to its grantee and his heirs, who might, perhaps, at the time be dead, or unable to be found. We cannot but conclude that the company intended, when the land was conveyed, to trust to the land and its owners for a performance of the condition contained in the deed, and not to its grantee after he had ceased to be the owner. The fact that the company imposed the condition that the grantee and "his assigns" should make and maintain the fences, and added thereto that the condition or obligation should be perpetually binding on "the owners of the land," would indicate an intention to make ownership the test as to who should be bound to perform the condition in the deed.

Hickey v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co., 36 N.E. 672 (Ohio 1894).

(n23)Footnote 506. Dowell v. Jolly, 159 N.E.2d 590 (Ind. App. 1959).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.12

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.12 Validity of Conditions.

[Go To Supp]

The parties may impose any condition in a grant or a devise which is not repugnant to the basic terms of the transfer n507 or is not void for reasons of public policy. n508 A condition subsequent which forfeits the title to the grantor in the event of a breach is not of itself repugnant to the granting clause, n509 but where the restriction is destructive of the estate granted it is void. n510

A fee contemplated by the granting clause will not be cut down by a modifying or limiting clause which is of doubtful import. n511 A condition that the land conveyed or so much of it as the grantee has not sold and conveyed, shall upon his decease revert to the grantor, is repugnant to the grant, which was in fee simple and is therefore void. n512 In a conveyance in fee by a husband to a trustee for the use of his wife and children, a condition that if he should survive his wife the whole property should revert to him free from the trust is valid, and may be enforced. n513 A condition that the conveyance shall be void upon the failure of the grantee to pay the purchase money is not void as being repugnant to the grant. n514

The rule that a vested estate will not be forfeited for a breach of a condition subsequent because performance has become impossible by operation of law is not limited in its operation to conditions which, properly speaking, are limitations imposed on the grantee by the grantor, but extend to mutual covenants annexed to a conveyance of title to real estate. n515 A condition to abstain from doing an act which is perfectly proper and legal in itself is not for this reason invalid. n516 The grantor may restrict the use of the land as it may seem to be for his advantage. He may make it a condition that the land shall not be used for a schoolhouse, distillery, blast furnace, livery stable, machine-shop, hospital or cemetery. n517

A condition is valid though its benefit will inure to other property. Thus a condition not to place windows in a wall adjoining lands of a neighbor is valid. n518 Upon the same principle, it has been held that a condition that the grantee will not obstruct the view of a person not a party to the deed by erecting any structure on the granted land that will shut off the view of such person, is a valid condition. n519 The purpose of such restriction may be to benefit a third person occupying adjoining land, as well as the grantor. n520

A condition that the property conveyed shall not be occupied by others than those of the Caucasian race once valid n521 is now unenforceable as against public policy. n522 If a condition is void, the grantee takes free of the condition. n523

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 507. As to restraints on alienation, see § 1882. As to the doctrine of priority of granting clause over the habendum clause, see Vol. 3, ch. 47. As to the rule of a later clause in a will reducing a fee given in earlier language, see Vol. 5A, § 2623.

(n2)Footnote 508. Storke v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co., 61 N.E.2d 552 (Ill. 1945). See § 1882.

(n3)Footnote 509. Firth v. Marovich, 116 P. 729 (Cal. 1911); Childs v. Newfield, 28 P.2d 924 (Cal. App. 1934); Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); Arnold v. Scharff, 210 S.W. 326 (Tex. Civ. App. 1918); Babb v. Miller, 259 S.W. 177 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923).

(n4)Footnote 510. Fender v. Rogers, 46 S.W.2d 804 (Ark. 1932); Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); Pynchon v. Stearns, 11 Mass. (Metc.) 312 (1846); Canal Bridge v. Methodist Religious Soc'y, 13 Mass. (Metc.) 335 (1847); Bassett v. Budlong, 43 N.W. 984 (Mich. 1889); Croucher v. Wooster, 260 N.W. 739 (Mich. 1935); Gadberry v. Sheppard, 27 Miss. 203 (1854); In re Reynolds, 163 N.Y.S. 803 (1916); Littlefield v. Mott, 14 R.I. 288 (1885); Arnold v. Scharff, 210 S.W. 326 (Tex. Civ. App. 1918); Babb v. Miller, 259 S.W. 177 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923); Brandon v. Robinson, 18 Ves. 429, 433, per Lord Ch. Eldon; Bradley v. Peixoto, 3 Ves. Jr. 324.

(n5)Footnote 511. Litten v. Warren, 54 P.2d 39 (Cal. App. 1936).

"A condition annexed to an estate given is a divided clause from the grant, and therefore cannot frustrate the grant preceding, neither in anything expressed nor in anything implied which is of its nature incident and inseparable from the thing granted." Stukeley v. Butler, Hob. 168. See Pawlet v. Clark, 13 U.S. (9 Cranch) 292 (1815).

(n6)Footnote 512. Case v. Dwire, 15 N.W. 265 (Iowa 1883); Ide v. Ide, 5 Mass. 500 (1809); Second Reformed Presbyterian Church v. Disbrow, 52 Pa. 219 (1866).

(n7)Footnote 513. Woods v. Woods, 13 S.E. 692 (Ga. 1891).

(n8)Footnote 514. Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854).

(n9)Footnote 515. Goldberg v. Callender Bros., 113 A. 170 (Conn. 1921).

(n10)Footnote 516. "Indeed, the acts against which conditions are aimed are commonly legal acts, the performance of which could not be restrained otherwise than by some form of contract; and the right to stipulate for the purpose is limited only by considerations of public policy." Smith v. Barrie, 22 N.W. 816 (Mich. 1885), per Cooley, C. J.

See the following cases: Fusha v. Dacono Town Site Co., 153 P. 226 (Colo. 1915); St. Louis, J. & C. R. Co. v. Mathers, 71 Ill. 592 (1874); Owsley v. Owsley, 78 Ky. 257 (1880); Hinton v. Vinson, 104 S.E. 897 (N.C. 1920); Sperry v. Pond, 5 Ohio 387 (1832); Seeck v. Jakel, 141 P. 211 (Or. 1914); White v. White, 150 S.E. 531 (W. Va. 1929); Brown v. Wisconsin-Minnesota Light & Power Co., 174 N.W. 903 (Wis. 1919).

(n11)Footnote 517. Craig v. Wells, 11 N.Y. 315 (1854); Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N.Y. 442 (1869). See Gibert v. Peteler, 38 N.Y. 165 (1868); Sperry v. Pond, 5 Ohio 387 (1832); Duester v. Alvin, 145 P. 660 (Or. 1915).

Condition that property should not be used in competition with the grantor is valid. Calumet Council Bldg. Corp. v. Standard Oil Co., 167 F.2d 539 (7th Cir. 1948).

Condition to revert to grantor if abandoned for use by county is valid. Jeffries v. State for Use of Woodruff County, 205 S.W.2d 194 (Ark. 1947).

"There are many things which may be provided for as conditions in a deed, which, though of small consideration in the view of a stranger, may be thought of great importance by the grantor." Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Mass. (Pick.) 284 (1829).

(n12)Footnote 518. "It is not necessary, in order to make a condition valid, that the party creating it should have any beneficial interest in any other estate which may be usefully affected by the condition. He may have conveyed an adjoining estate for the benefit of which this condition was created. He may have received a greater price for that estate on account of this condition, and justice to others may require that he should exact its performance... It seems to us that there are many things which may be provided for as conditions in a deed, which, though of small consideration in the view of a stranger, may be thought of great importance by the grantor. A man has a vacant lot in front of his dwelling house which somebody is desirous to buy, and he is willing to sell, if thereby his light and air shall not be too much obstructed. May he not sell it under a condition that no building shall be erected beyond a certain height, or within a certain distance from his house, or that the land shall not be used for the purpose of a tavern, or for any particular business which is likely to be noisy or troublesome, at least for a limited number of years? Who is prejudiced by such a condition? The purchaser and all who may claim under him have notice of the restriction, and, if it diminishes the value of the land, they get their compensation in the price." Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Mass. (Pick.) 284 (1829).

(n13)Footnote 519. Gibert v. Peteler, 38 N.Y. 165 (1868).

(n14)Footnote 520. Harris v. Roraback, 100 N.W. 391 (Mich. 1904).

(n15)Footnote 521. Los Angeles Inv. Co. v. Gary, 186 P. 596 (Cal. 1919).

(n16)Footnote 522. Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1 (1948).

This position is taken here since a fee upon a condition subsequent does not, like a determinable fee, terminate of its own accord, but requires the exercise of a right of re-entry, now by court action. Under the doctrine of Shelley v. Kraemer, the court relief could not be obtained.

(n17)Footnote 523. Dills v. Deavors, 266 S.W.2d 788 (Ky. 1953).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.13

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.13 Conditions That Are Void as Against Public Policy.

[Go To Supp]

The right of a grantor to annex a condition to his grant results from the power of alienation incident to the right of property. n524 A grantor may impose any burden upon the enjoyment and use of the granted property provided such burden does not contravene any rule of law or public policy. n525 Where a grant has been made upon a condition subsequent and the public policy of the jurisdiction is adverse to the condition, the grantee takes a fee simple absolute free of the condition. n526 So a condition requiring the grantee to perform an illegal act is void. Conditions in conflict with public policy, or inhibiting the performance of acts which the public has an interest in having performed, are void. n527 Thus a testator has the right to impose any legal conditions or restrictions which he may desire on a devise made by will, n528 so long as no question of public policy or illegality is involved. n529 Where a condition is an unlawful restraint of trade, it is invalid, n530 but where the restraint is partial only, the condition is valid. n531

Conditions in general restraint of marriage are void and inoperative as against public policy, n532 and a subsequent marriage in violation of such condition does not defeat the donee's title to the gift, though most courts hold that such a condition will be upheld when there is a valid gift or limitation over it. n533 A conveyance to a person until marriage is clearly void, for in such case there is nothing to carry the gift beyond the marriage. n534 A condition of reverter in the event of marriage will be disregarded and marriage will have no effect on the title. n535

A limitation over upon the remarriage of a widow who is not the spouse of the testator is valid. n536 A condition in restraint of marriage is invalid when imposed as a condition subsequent, although it is valid if made as a conditional limitation. n537 It is quite generally recognized that a condition against remarriage imposed upon a widow is valid. n538 Thus, in a deed to the wife of the grantor for life, and over for life to the grantor's sister, and after the latter's death to the grantor's daughter, provided the daughter was not married at the time of said sister's death, and in case she was so married, then equally to all the grantor's children, the proviso is valid. n539 Consequently, a gift or devise to a wife with limitation over in case of remarriage is considered as vesting in her a defeasible fee in and to the real estate described subject to be defeated by her remarriage and is considered valid. n540 In some jurisdictions there must be a gift over to render such condition valid, n541 and an intention to impose a penalty in terrorem must be manifest and unequivocal. n542

A clause in special restraint of marriage, such as a prohibition of marriage to a person outside of a particular faith, or a designated person, n543 or that the donee may not marry without the consent of a guardian or trustee, n544 is ordinarily considered valid. A condition that a daughter shall not marry until she arrives at the age of twenty-one is lawful. This is a proper and reasonable provision, and its violation may well work a forfeiture of the estate. n545 A condition that a legatee, if under twenty-one years, shall marry with the consent of her mother is valid. n546 Conditions in partial restraint of marriage which merely impose reasonable restrictions on marriage are not against public policy. n547 In a deed of gift by a father to his daughter, a provision that the gift should stand if she remained single, otherwise the land should be divided among his three children, the grantee to have fifty dollars more than the others, is a condition in restraint of marriage in general and void and the limitation over is void, for the land would go to the heirs in case of a forfeiture, whether there was a limitation or not. n548 A condition in a gift to a daughter that, if she should marry, the estate should go to another is void. n549

A testamentary gift based upon separation of spouses is void as against public policy. n550 Any testamentary provision tending to disturb or destroy an existing marriage is contrary to public policy and void. n551 Provision that the beneficiary of a trust should take absolutely on dissolution of marriage was against public policy and the beneficiary took all outright. n552

A condition that land conveyed shall not be subject to the grantee's debts is in restraint of alienation and void. Notwithstanding such condition, the land is subject to levy on execution, and passes to an assignee in bankruptcy. n553 Liability for debts is an incident of property just as the right to convey it is. n554 However, a testator may accomplish his desire to prevent the sale or disposition of his property after death: first, by the insertion of a provision that the estate is to become void on the bankruptcy of the devisee or any attempt by his creditors to reach the property; n555 and second by making the devise to trustees with power to apply the corpus or income to the use of the devisee according to their discretion. n556

A condition that intoxicating liquors shall not be manufactured or sold upon the granted lands is valid, for it is not subversive of the estate conveyed. n557 It leaves the estate alienable and inheritable, and free to be subjected to other uses. Such a condition may be enforced by forfeiture if advantage be promptly taken of any breach of it. Such a condition is not void as being in restraint of trade, so far as the grantor has in his own business an interest in enforcing it, n558 nor is the condition opposed to public policy as tending to create a monopoly. n559 Where the intention of the grantor in making such condition was to aid the social and moral welfare of the community, the condition is valid. n560

In some states conditions imposed in devises and bequests that to beneficiary shall not contest the will are held to be against public policy and so void. Most states, however, permit such conditions. n561 Conditions against alienating or encumbering realty are discussed elsewhere. n562

A condition in a conveyance to a county, city or town that a public building shall be erected and maintained upon the land is not contrary to public policy. n563 Such a condition is not in the nature of a bribe to the voters. The location of a public building, such as a courthouse, is purely one of convenience and material advantages and does not tend to influence the courts or officers in the discharge of any public duty. Where land is acquired by a town upon the express condition that it shall erect a building upon it within a limited time, a failure to fulfil the condition is not excused for the reason that the town is not possessed of sufficient means with which to build the proposed structure. n564 Where a condition contravenes public policy, but contains no stipulation either malum in se or malum prohibitum, and the advantage to the public by holding the condition valid is uncertain and not substantial, the condition, if made in good faith will not be held against public policy. n565 Where the intention of the grantor in annexing a condition to his conveyance is to lessen his tax burden or to gain an advantage by the transfer of his property, his deed, if otherwise valid, will be upheld. n566 If, however, a municipal corporation be prohibited by statute from taking a conveyance upon condition, such a condition would be illegal and void. n567 In case of changed circumstances, due to the natural growth of a city or of the present use of the whole neighborhood, so that the purpose of a condition in a deed no longer can be accomplished, and it would be oppressive to give it effect, the courts will not enforce it. n568 An estate in fee simple on condition subsequent will not be defeated if the condition be declared void, but the estate in fee will stand free from the condition. n569

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS condition! subsequent or precedent w/15 void! or valid!

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 524. Edwards v. West Woodridge Theater Co., 55 F.2d 524 (App. D.C. 1931); Childs v. Newfield, 28 P.2d 924 (Cal. App. 1934); Fusha v. Dacono Town Site Co., 153 P. 226 (Colo. 1915); Porter v. Porter, 45 N.E.2d 635 (Ill. 1942).

See Joseph I. Swietlik, Law of Restrictions on Land in Wisconsin, 41 Marq. L. Rev. 227 (1957-58); Howard R. Williams, Restrictions on the Use of Land; Conditions Subsequent and Determinable Fees, 27 Tex. L. Rev. 158, 419 (1948).

Devises to terminate if devisee should be subject to confiscatory tax in county of residence was not against public policy. In re Neumann's Estate, 184 N.Y.S.2d 38 (1959).

(n2)Footnote 525. Haven v. Wallace, 160 S.W.2d 619 (Ky. 1942).

(n3)Footnote 526. Letteau v. Ellis, 10 P.2d 496 (Cal. App. 1932); Wedum-Aldahl Co. v. Miller, 64 P.2d 762 (Cal. App. 1937); Capitol Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Smith, 316 P.2d 252 (Colo. 1957); Zdanowich v. Sherwood, 110 A.2d 290 (Conn. Super. 1954); Wills v. Pierce, 67 S.E.2d 239 (Ga. 1951); Thompson v. Thompson, 175 S.W.2d 885 (Mo. 1943).

To B. provided he survive the grantor is testamentary. Chaplin v. Chaplin, 184 P. 984 (Kan. 1919); Young v. O'Donnell, 224 P. 682 (Wash. 1924).

Contra, Abbott v. Holway, 72 Me. 298 (1881); Jones v. Caird, 141 N.W. 228 (Wis. 1913).

No notice to quit necessary before bringing action to recover property on breach of condition subsequent. Udgaard v. Schindler, 31 N.W.2d 776 (N.D. 1948).

(n4)Footnote 527. Patterson v. Donner, 48 Cal. 369 (1874)(where the condition was that the grantee should procure two witnesses to testify to a certain state of facts); Eastham v. Eastham, 231 S.W. 221 (Ky. 1921)(if the condition is void, grantee takes the estate freed of condition); Child v. C. H. Winans Co., 183 A. 300 (N.J. 1936); In re Scott's Will, 204 N.Y.S. 478 (1924)(a court will not enforce conditions considered contrary to public policy or good morals); Creswell v. Bank of Greenwood, 41 S.E.2d 393 (S.C. 1947)(a purported condition against liability of property for debts is void); Wheeler v. Moody, 9 Tex. 372 (1853)(where the condition was for support of a state religion, where such a religion had become illegal through a change in the policy of the law); Montgomery v. Ebony Hills Inv. Co., 229 S.W.2d 830 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950)(a condition removing the subject matter of a conveyance is void).

Also, a condition in a deed that the property conveyed shall not be occupied by a person other than of the Caucasian race has been held valid, since such restriction is not a restraint on alienation but on the use of property, which is permissible when not against public policy. Los Angeles Inv. Co. v. Gary, 186 P. 596 (Cal. 1919). Such a condition is now unenforceable as against public policy. Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1 (1948).

When the conditions in a will, applied to the concrete facts of case, are against public policy, they are void; if, when so applied, they are not against public policy, they are valid. In re Keenan's Will, 205 N.W. 1001 (Wis. 1925). See Dunne v. Minsor, 143 N.E. 842 (Ill. 1924); In re Baughman's Estate, 126 A. 58 (Pa. 1924). See also Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921); Randall v. Marble, 69 Me. 310 (1879); Ruhland v. King, 143 N.W. 681 (Wis. 1913).

(n5)Footnote 528. Budlong v. Los Angeles Bible Institute, 16 N.E.2d 810 (Ill. App. 1938).

(n6)Footnote 529. Clemenson v. Rebsamen, 168 S.W.2d 195 (Ark. 1943); Reynolds v. Nicks, 172 S.W.2d 239 (Ark. 1943); Latorraca v. Latorraca, 31 A.2d 819 (N.J. 1943); In re Beckett's Estate, 8 N.Y.S.2d 24 (1938).

(n7)Footnote 530. Ruhland v. King, 143 N.W. 681 (Wis. 1913).

A condition not to sell or permit the sale of intoxicating liquors on the granted premises is valid though the sale of liquor is tolerated by the state; at least if the grantor has any special and substantial interest in the enforcement of the condition.

Cowell v. Colorado Springs Co., 3 Colo. 82 (1876), aff'd, 100 U.S. 55; Fusha v. Dacono Town Site Co., 153 P. 226 (Colo. 1915); Collins Mfg. Co. v. Marcy, 25 Conn. 242 (1856); Carbon Block Coal Co. v. Murphy, 101 Ind. 115 (1885); O'Brien v. Wetherell, 14 Kan. 616 (1875); Barre v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. 1881); Smith v. Barrie, 22 N.W. 816 (Mich. 1885); Whealkate Mining Co. v. Mulari, 116 N.W. 360 (Mich. 1908); Sioux City & St. Paul R. Co. v. Singer, 51 N.W. 905 (Minn. 1892); St. Joseph Lead Co. v. Fuhrmeister, 182 S.W.2d 273 (Mo. 1944); Jetter v. Lyon, 97 N.W. 596 (Neb. 1903); Riverton Country Club v. Thomas, 58 A.2d 89 (N.J. 1948), aff'd, 64 A.2d 347; Post v. Weil, 22 N.E. 145 (N.Y. 1889); Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N.Y. 442 (1869); Jeffery v. Graham, 61 Tex. 481 (1884).

(n8)Footnote 531. Duester v. Alvin, 145 P. 660 (Or. 1915).

(n9)Footnote 532. Ward v. Torian, 112 So. 815 (Ala. 1927); In re Alexander's Estate, 85 P. 308 (Cal. 1906); Wilmington Trust Co. v. Houlehan, 131 A. 529 (Del. 1925); Jenkins v. Merritt, 17 Fla. 304 (1879); Wakefield v. Van Tassell, 66 N.E. 830 (Ill. 1903); Glass v. Johnson, 130 N.E. 473 (Ill. 1921); Anderson v. Crawford, 207 N.W. 571 (Iowa 1926); Randall v. Marble, 69 Me. 310 (1879); Arthur v. Cole, 56 Md. 100 (1881); Fleishman v. Bregel, 197 A. 593 (Md. 1938); Smith v. Barrie, 22 N.W. 816 (Mich. 1885); Dusbiber v. Melville, 146 N.W. 208 (Mich. 1914); In re Liberman, 18 N.E.2d 658 (N.Y. 1939); In re Weil's Estate, 209 N.Y.S. 779 (1925); In re Kempf's Estate, 289 N.Y.S. 74 (1936); In re Agnew's Estate, 174 N.Y.S.2d 1008 (1957); Munroe v. Hall, 1 S.E. 651 (N.C. 1887); Gard v. Mason, 86 S.E. 302 (1915).

A provision making the separation of a husband and wife a condition precedent to the vesting of a devise or legacy is void. Brizendine v. American Trust & Sav. Bank, 101 So. 618 (Ala. 1924); Williams v. Hund, 258 S.W. 703 (Mo. 1924).

A provision making the separation of a husband and wife a condition precedent to the vesting of a devise or legacy may be valid if intended to take effect in case of a separation or a divorce. Williams v. Hund, 258 S.W. 703 (Mo. 1924).

(n10)Footnote 533. Parsons v. Winslow, 6 Mass. 169 (1810).

Devise to wife defeasible upon remarriage became absolute on wife's death unmarried and passed to her heirs. Saunders v. Saunders, 490 P.2d 1260 (Or. 1971).

(n11)Footnote 534. Randall v. Marble, 69 Me. 310 (1879), per Peters, J., said:

> Judge Story gives, as a reason why the condition is treated as ineffectual in case of not giving the estate over, that the testator is deemed to use the condition in terrorem only, or he would make some other disposition of the bequest provided the condition is not kept. Other reasons are also assigned by other writers. One reason is that courts cannot relieve against the forfeiture in such case without doing an injury to the person to whom the estate is limited over.

Pringle v. Dunkley, 22 Miss. (14 S. & M.) 16 (1850); Morley v. Rennoldson, 2 Hare 570.

(n12)Footnote 535. Gard v. Mason, 86 S.E. 302 (N.C. 1915).

(n13)Footnote 536. Anderson v. Crawford, 207 N.W. 571 (Iowa 1926)(devise to daughter-in-law); Baker v. Hickman, 273 P. 480 (Kan. 1929).

(n14)Footnote 537. Gard v. Mason, 86 S.E. 302 (N.C. 1915).

(n15)Footnote 538. Wilmington Trust Co. v. Houlehan, 131 A. 529 (Del. 1925); Anderson v. Crawford, 207 N.W. 571 (Iowa 1926); Knost v. Knost, 129 S.W. 665 (Mo. 1910); Nations v. Spence, 235 S.W. 1064 (Mo. 1921) (restriction contained in a deed).

Limitation over on remarriage created a fee upon condition subsequent. Hinton v. Bowen, 230 S.W.2d 965 (Tenn. 1950).

(n16)Footnote 539. Graham v. McRae, 92 S.E. 871 (Ga. 1917).

(n17)Footnote 540. Glass v. Johnson, 130 N.E. 473 (Ill. 1921)(in case widow conveys, the estate taken by the grantee is liable to be cut down by the remarriage of the widow); Thornton v. Louch, 130 N.E. 467 (Ill. 1921); Phelps Mtg. Co. v. Thomas, 190 N.W. 399 (Iowa 1922); Mann v. Freze, 263 S.W. 21 (Ky. 1924); Walton v. Jones, 287 S.W. 710 (Ky. 1926); In re Taylor v. Farrow, 239 S.W.2d 73 (Ky. 1954); Ijams v. Schapiro, 113 A. 343 (Md. 1921); In re Dehncke's Will, 116 N.Y.S.2d 871 (1952); Hinton v. Bowen, 230 S.W.2d 965 (Tenn. 1950).

Called a determinable fee, becoming absolute on death without remarriage. Dickson v. Alexandria Hosp., Inc., 177 F.2d 876 (4th Cir. 1949); Cuddy v. McIntyre, 229 S.W.2d 315 (Ky. 1950).

The creation of a fee defeasible by marriage is not necessarily in restraint of marriage because the beneficiary is submitted to an election between the acceptance of the gift and remarriage, should he prefer to remarry. Logan v. Hammond, 117 S.E. 428 (Ga. 1923)(intention to impose a penalty for remarriage must be manifest and exclusive).

Where the will provides for a reduction of income in case of remarriage, the subsequent annulment of the marriage restores the right to the full amount of the income. In re Morten's Estate, 224 N.Y.S. 75 (1927).

(n18)Footnote 541. Chapin v. Cooke, 46 A. 282 (Conn. 1900); Anderson v. Crawford, 207 N.W. 571 (Iowa 1926); Parsons v. Winslow, 6 Mass. 169 (1810); In re Hotz's Estate, 38 Pa. 422 (1861).

(n19)Footnote 542. Logan v. Hammond, 117 S.E. 428 (Ga. 1923).

(n20)Footnote 543. Finlay v. King's Lessee, 28 U.S. (Pet.) 346 (1830); Turner v. Evans, 106 A. 617 (Md. 1919); In re Weil's Estate, 209 N.Y.S. 779 (1925); Phillips v. Ferguson, 8 S.E. 241 (Va. 1888).

A bequest on condition that legatee marry in the Jewish faith was valid. Shapira v. Union Nat'l Bank, 315 N.E.2d 825 (Ohio 1974).

(n21)Footnote 544. United States Trust Co. v. Baes, 207 N.Y.S. 19 (1924).

(n22)Footnote 545. Shackelford v. Hall, 19 Ill. 212 (1857).

(n23)Footnote 546. Scott v. Tyler, 2 Bro. CC 432.

(n24)Footnote 547. In re Liberman, 18 N.E.2d 658 (N.Y. 1939).

(n25)Footnote 548. Randall v. Marble, 69 Me. 310 (1879).

(n26)Footnote 549. Williams v. Cowden, 13 Mo. 211 (1850).

(n27)Footnote 550. Sisson v. Tenafly Trust Co., 33 A.2d 298 (N.J. 1943).

Gifts for support of females are an exception to the rule that bequests conditioned on divorce or separation are void. Alexander v. Hicks, 488 S.W.2d 336 (Ky. 1972).

(n28)Footnote 551. Winterland v. Winterland, 59 N.E.2d 661 (Ill. 1945); Sisson v. Tenafly Trust Co., 33 A.2d 298 (N.J. 1943).

(n29)Footnote 552. In re Agnew's Estate, 174 N.Y.S.2d 1008 (1957).

(n30)Footnote 553. McCleary v. Ellis, 6 N.W. 571 (Iowa 1880); Kessner v. Phillips, 88 S.W. 66 (Mo. 1905); Mebane v. Mebane, 39 N.C. (4 Ired. Eq.) 131 (1845); Ricks v. Pope, 39 S.E. 638 (N.C. 1901); Tillinghast v. Bradford, 5 R.I. 205 (1858), Ames, C. J., said: "Certainly no man should have an estate to live on, but not an estate to pay his debts with. Certainly property available for the purposes of pleasure or profit should be also amenable to the demands of justice."; Van Osdell v. Champion, 62 N.W. 539 (Wis. 1895); Graves v. Dolphin, 1 Sim 66; Snowdon v. Dales, 6 Sim 524.

(n31)Footnote 554. Mebane v. Mebane, 39 N.C. (4 Ired. Eq.) 131 (1845), per Ruffin, C.J. See Guarantee Title & Trust Co. v. Siedhoff, 58 P.2d 66 (Kan. 1936).

(n32)Footnote 555. Nichols v. Eaton, 91 U.S. 716 (1875); Bull v. Kentucky Nat'l Bank, 14 S.W. 425 (Ky. 1890); Weller v. Noffsinger, 77 N.W. 1075 (Neb. 1899); Emery v. Van Syckel, 17 N.J. Eq. 564 (1867); Bramhall v. Ferris, 14 N.Y. 41 (1856); Camp v. Cleary, 76 Va. 140 (1882); In re Luscombe's Will, 85 N.W. 341 (Wis. 1901).

In Kansas it is declared that no rule of law or public policy is violated by a testator's providing that property devised by him shall not be subject to attachment for the compulsory satisfaction of debts of the devisee, nor by providing for a devise over in the event that such inhibition against involuntary alienation should be judicially declared to be invalid. Hinshaw v. Wright, 262 P. 601 (Kan. 1928).

(n33)Footnote 556. Brooks v. Raynolds, 59 F. 923 (6th Cir. 1893); Seymour v. McAvoy, 53 P. 946 (Cal. 1898); Sinnott v. Moore, 39 S.E. 415 (Ga. 1901); Meek v. Briggs, 54 N.W. 456 (Ia. 1893); Guy v. Mayes, 138 S.W. 510 (Mo. 1911).

(n34)Footnote 557. Cowell v. Colorado Springs Co., 100 U.S. 55 (1879); Wedum-Aldahl Co. v. Miller, 64 P.2d 762 (Cal. App. 1937); Judd v. Robinson, 92 P. 724 (Colo. 1907); Fusha v. Dacono Town Site Co., 153 P. 226 (Colo. 1915); Collins Mfg. Co. v. Marcy, 25 Conn. 242 (1856); O'Brien v. Wetherell, 14 Kan. 616 (1875); Smith v. Barrie, 22 N.W. 816 (Mich. 1885); Watrous v. Allen, 24 N.W. 104 (Mich. 1885); Jenks v. Pawloski, 56 N.W. 1105 (Mich. 1893); Sioux City & St. Paul R. Co. v. Davis, 51 N.W. 907 (Minn. 1892); Northwestern Imp. Co. v. Lowry, 66 P.2d 792 (Mont. 1937); Alamogordo Imp. Co. v. Hennessee, 56 P.2d 1127 (N.M. 1936); Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N.Y. 442 (1869); Atlantic Dock Co. v. Leavitt, 54 N.Y. 35 (1873); Jeffery v. Graham, 61 Tex. 481 (1884); Odessa Imp. & Irrig. Co. v. Dawson, 24 S.W. 576 (Tex. Civ. App. 1893).

A condition that "no part of said premises shall ever or at any time be used for the purpose of buying, selling, or handling intoxicating liquors and that for the breach of such condition the premises shall revert to the grantor, his successors and assigns" is not void. In re Bangle, 201 P. 968 (Cal. App. 1921).

(n35)Footnote 558. Watrous v. Allen, 24 N.W. 104 (Mich. 1885).

(n36)Footnote 559. It is not the policy of the state that every one should sell intoxicating drinks who pleases. On the contrary, heavy taxes are levied and onerous conditions imposed by the state for the express purpose of limiting the number of those who shall sell, and the condition in question is directly in the line of that policy, instead of being opposed to it. Watrous v. Allen, 24 N.W. 104 (Mich. 1885), per Cooley, C. J.

See the following cases: Burdell v. Grandi, 92 P. 1022 (Cal. 1907); Fusha v. Dacono Town Site Co., 153 P. 226 (Colo. 1915); Hall v. Solomon, 23 A. 876 (Conn. 1892); Wakefield v. Van Tassell, 66 N.E. 830 (Ill. 1903); Smith v. Barrie, 22 N.W. 816 (Mich. 1885); Chippewa Lab. Co. v. Tremper, 42 N.W. 532 (Mich. 1889).

(n37)Footnote 560. Burdell v. Grandi, 92 P. 1022 (Cal. 1907).

A condition that intoxicating liquors shall not be sold as a beverage upon the land conveyed cannot be regarded as a merely nominal condition. Baxter v. Ogooshevitz, 171 N.W. 385 (Mich. 1919); Sioux City & St. Paul R. Co. v. Singer, 51 N.W. 905 (Minn. 1892).

Whether such a condition would be deemed void, upon grounds of public policy, if it should appear that the grantor had no such interest, we do not decide. Upon the face of the deed nothing appears which could render void the express condition upon which the conveyance is made and accepted. A. grantor may, at least under some circumstances, effectually impose such a condition upon a conveyance of the estate; and it is not necessary, in order to make prima facie valid the condition expressed in the deed, that the deed shall set forth or recite the peculiar facts which may legally justify the grantor in annexing the condition to the grant. On its face the condition is effectual. It attends and qualifies the grant. The estate is conveyed and accepted in terms subject to it. If this condition is to be avoided, because in the particular case the circumstances of the grantor were not such as to authorize him to thus restrict or qualify the conveyance of his estate, it can be only upon affirmative proof of the fact relied upon for that purpose. If not thus avoided, the deed must have effect according to its terms, to which the parties have assented. Sioux City & St. P. R. Co. v. Singer, 51 N.W. 905 (Minn. 1892).

(n38)Footnote 561. Kentucky Trust Co. v. Sweeney, 163 F. Supp. 450 (W.D. Ky. 1958)(construing a will is not a contest forfeiting the devise); Commerce Trust Co. v. Weed, 318 S.W.2d 289 (Mo. 1958)(filing of claim and action for declaratory relief was not a contest of the will); Cox v. Fisher, 322 S.W.2d 910 (Mo. 1958)(no contest provision enforced).

(n39)Footnote 562. See §§ 2015-2017.

(n40)Footnote 563. Adams v. Logan, 11 Ill. 336 (1849); Harris v. Shaw, 13 Ill. 456 (1851); Twiford v. Alamakee Co., 4 Iowa (Greene) 60 (1851); Dishon v. Smith, 10 Iowa 212 (1859); State v. Elting, 29 Kan. 397 (1883); Hall v. Marshall, 80 Ky. 552 (1882); Lucas v. Hunt, 5 Ohio St. 488 (1856); State v. Portage, 24 Wis. 49 (1869); State v. Purdy, 36 Wis. 213 (1874); Pepin Co. v. Prindle, 21 N.W. 254 (Wis. 1884).

(n41)Footnote 564. Clarke v. Brookfield, 81 Mo. 503 (1884), per Martin, C., said:

> The question, as to whether municipal corporations have the right to accept gifts or acquire property burdened with conditions which require them to do reasonable things germane to the objects of their existence, or return the gift or acquisition to the grantor or his heirs, is hardly to be considered an open question in this country, where so much property is constantly being received and held in this manner.

(n42)Footnote 565. Fusha v. Dacono Town Site Co., 153 P. 226 (Colo. 1915); Wakefield v. Van Tassell, 66 N.E. 830 (Ill. 1903).

(n43)Footnote 566. Wolf River v. Wisconsin Mich. Power Co., 259 N.W. 710 (Wis. 1935).

(n44)Footnote 567. Rogers v. Sebastian, 21 Ark. 440 (1860).

(n45)Footnote 568. Hurd v. Albert, 3 P.2d 545 (Cal. 1931); Koehler v. Rowland, 205 S.W. 217 (Mo. 1918).

(n46)Footnote 569. Parmentier v. Pennsylvania Co. for Ins., 192 A. 62 (N.J. 1937).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.14

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.14 Breach of Condition Not Caused by Grantee or Successors.

[Go To Supp]

It is a general rule that if the breach of the condition is caused by act of law or an act of God n570 and not by fault of the grantee or his successors, the breach is excused. n571 The tenant is not to be penalized for something he cannot avoid. n572

A condition that the granted land shall be used for a place of burial and for no other purpose is destroyed when the state, in the proper and reasonable exercise of its police power, prohibits further interments in the land, and the title thereupon vests absolutely in the grantee. n573 Where a city or town holds land under a grant for a burial ground, and to be appropriated for no other use or purpose whatsoever, the title reverts to the grantors when the land can no longer be used for such purpose by reason of an ordinance of the municipality and an act of the legislature prohibiting the use of such land for burial purposes. n574 However, the performance of such a condition is not excused or dispensed with for the reason that the person who is bound for its performance is under a disability, such, for example, as infancy or marriage of the party. n575

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 570. Gillock v. Williams, 250 S.W. 836 (Ky. 1923).

(n2)Footnote 571. Turner v. Turner, 197 S.E. 771 (Ga. 1938); Craig v. Beach, 198 S.W.2d 220 (Ky. 1946); Leach v. Pratt, 205 S.W.2d 970 (Tenn. App. 1947).

(n3)Footnote 572. A devise on condition that devisee remain in testator's employment until death was not defeated where husband of testator discharged employee to prevent condition from taking effect. In re Mollard's Estate, 98 So. 2d 814 (Fla. 1957).

In a leading English case, land was demised to trustees for the benefit of the poor of a parish, the trustees covenanting to build a workhouse thereon, and to use, occupy, possess, and enjoy the premises for the sole use, maintenance, and support of the poor of Rugeley, and not to convert the building or the land, or employ the profits thereof, to any other use, intent, or purpose whatever. There was a provision for re-entry on breach of the covenant. The house was built, and the land was used for many years as required by the deed. Afterwards an act of Parliament was passed, and the parish incorporated with others, and a union poorhouse provided, to which the act required all paupers should be removed. The heirs of the grantor brought suit in ejectment, claiming the right of re-entry for breach of the condition. The court held that, "even if the condition was not performed, it appears to us that the nonperformance would in this case be excused, as being by act of law, and involuntary on the part of the lessees." Doe d. Anglesea v. Rugeley, L.R. 6 Q.B. 107. The court cited Bacon, Abridgment, tit. "Condition"; Comyns, Digest, tit. "Condition"; and the case of Brewster v. Kitchell, 1 Salk 198, 1 Ld. Raym. 317. See Doe d. Lord Grantley v. Butcher, L.R. 6 Q.B. 115, to the same effect. The above case is stated, in the language of Mr. Justice Lurton, in Mahoning v. Young, 59 F. 96 (6th Cir. 1893), which case supports the same principle.

See also the following cases: Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892); Goldberg v. Callender Bros., 113 A. 170 (Conn. 1921); Trustees of Eureka College v. Bondurant, 124 N.E. 652 (Ill. 1919); First Lutheran Church v. Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church, 147 N.E. 53 (Ill. 1925); Dunn v. Heasley, 30 N.E.2d 628 (Ill. 1940); Portland v. Terwilliger, 19 P. 90 (Or. 1888); Seebold v. Shitler, 34 Pa. 133 (1859); Mitchel v. Reynolds, 1 P. Wms. 181.

So, where land had been conveyed for use as burial ground, with apt words creating a condition subsequent that the property should revert to the grantor if the grantee failed to use it for that purpose, and the land was used for such purpose until it became a public nuisance, and the state, by legislative act, forbade further interment therein, the condition of the deed was held to be destroyed, and the title vested absolutely in the grantee. The court said: "It is clear that the performance of the condition of the deed has been prevented by act of law." Raymond v. Fish, 51 Conn. 80 1883; Dunham v. New Britain, 11 A. 354 (Conn. 1887); State v. Wordin, 14 A. 801 (Conn. 1887); Woodruff v. New York & N. E. R. Co., 20 A. 17 (Conn. 1890); Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892).

(n4)Footnote 573. Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892), Hall, J., said:

> If it should be said that the plaintiff's interests in this property had been taken from them by the state or by the city of Waterbury by right of eminent domain, we should reach the same conclusion upon the question of whether the condition of the deed had been broken. If the city of Waterbury, by taking this land for a public park, under the valid act of the legislature, has prevented its use as a burial place, it is clear that the performance of the condition of the deed has been prevented by act of law; and we know of no principle or authority by which the taking of the property under the right of eminent domain would work a forfeiture which would require payment both to the plaintiffs of the value of the land and to the defendant of the value of the estate forfeited.

See Portland v. Terwilliger, 19 P. 90 (Or. 1888).

(n5)Footnote 574. Newark v. Watson, 29 A. 487 (N.J. 1894).

(n6)Footnote 575. Barker v. Cobb, 36 N.H. 344 (1858); Garrett v. Scouten, 3 N.Y. (Denio) 334 (1846).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.15

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.15 Breach of Condition of Particular Use.

[Go To Supp]

A declaration of the purpose for which land is conveyed does not generally limit the estate granted or render it liable to divestiture on a departure from the use specified. n576 Forfeiture is not incurred, under a condition that land shall be used for a particular purpose, by the use of it also for another purpose consistent with the purpose specified, in the absence of any positive restriction against such use. A conveyance to a county for "courthouse purposes," with a condition that the land shall revert if it shall cease to be so used, is not broken by any incidental or collateral use, to which the land may be temporarily devoted, which does not conflict with its continued use for courthouse purposes, as, by failure to inclose it entirely with a fence, and allowing hitching posts for public use to be erected on the uninclosed portion or a temporary structure for posting bills. n577

Where land is conveyed upon condition that it shall be used for a certain purpose, it is no ground for forfeiture if it is used for other purposes, provided it is also used for the purpose for which it was conveyed. n578 In the absence of a declaration of forfeiture in the instrument conveying land for a certain purpose, an additional use of the property, if it should constitute a wrong, cannot be made the basis for an implied forfeiture, because the deed may happen to provide for a forfeiture for some other act. n579

When property is conveyed upon condition that it be continuously used and kept in condition for use for a particular purpose and the condition named in the deed is the only consideration for the conveyance, the grantee must comply strictly with the condition which constitutes the consideration, and, where there is a reverter clause, his failure so to do gives rise to the right of forfeiture. n580

Whether a forfeiture is incurred, by the abandonment of the use specified in a condition, depends upon the terms and general purpose of the condition. If, by a condition that certain buildings or a certain structure shall be permanently located upon the granted land, it is meant simply that this land shall in good faith be selected as the site of such buildings or structure, and that the same shall be erected upon the granted land, the condition is fulfilled by the erection of the buildings or structure upon the land, and the use of it for a time for the purpose intended, though the use of it for this purpose is subsequently abandoned. n581 Where the property is used for a long period of time in accordance with the use specified in the condition and then such use is discontinued, there is no forfeiture. n582 It must be understood, however, that if the deed contains words of forfeiture or re-entry a discontinuance of the use specified in the condition will work a forfeiture. n583

A condition in a conveyance to trustees that they shall build thereon a house of worship when they think fit and permit certain persons to preach in said church, and that they should permit the building to be used "for such other purposes as should be deemed appropriate and necessary to further the cause of Christ," is fulfilled by erecting a church within a reasonable time and using the church as long as it is fit for use. The trustees might then sell the land, and invest the proceeds in a parsonage for the same congregation in connection with a new church on a different lot, there being nothing in the deed in the nature of a covenant to rebuild or words indicating a desire on the part of the grantor that the land should revert upon a failure of the trustees to maintain the church. n584

Where land with buildings was conveyed for a nominal sum, in consideration that the grantee, his heirs and assigns, would for twenty years use the same exclusively for hotel purposes, and it was provided that the destruction of the buildings by fire should not in any wise affect or weaken the force of the condition, it was held that, upon the destruction of the buildings by fire within that time, the grantee was bound to rebuild, and that, the grantee having shown no intention to rebuild for a year afterwards, the grantor was entitled to enter for a breach of condition. n585 However, a condition in a deed requiring the land conveyed to be used for the purpose of maintaining thereon a high school, coupled with a provision for reversion does not require that the school shall be kept up perpetually. n586

It is generally held that a mere temporary cessation of use, there being an intention to resume is not breach of a condition requiring a particular use. n587 Where temporary conditions made compliance with condition subsequent uneconomical, the breach was merely technical. n588

There is no implication, in a deed of land to a church society of a particular denomination for church purposes, that the use of the land is limited to that particular denomination. n589 A deed of land to an individual in trust for the use of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in a certain town, on condition that in no case is the general conference of that church to have any right in the premises or take any control or direction of the same, creates a condition which is violated by a union of this church with an annual conference subordinate to the general conference. n590 A condition that the land conveyed is not to be sold or used for any other purpose than as a church for the benefit of a certain church is violated by a sale to, or use by, a church other than the one specified. n591 A restriction in a deed conveying land to a country church, providing that the title would revert to the grantor if the land was used for a purpose other than a church, was held not substantially breached where the church building was used for strictly devotional purposes except on rare occasions when the programs were not materially different from those of an ordinary country church were given by organizations which divided the proceeds with the church. n592

A condition that the land shall be devoted to the purposes of an academy or public school, and that it shall revert when it ceases for two years together to be used for such purposes, does not mean that there shall be a forfeiture when two years have passed without a school, no other use being made of the property. There having been no abandonment of the property for the use prescribed, the mere non-use of it for such time would not defeat the grant. n593 So, where a conveyance of land was made "for the purpose of building a schoolhouse thereon, and to be improved for the benefit of schools, and for no other purpose, with a provision that, if the grantee shall cease for two years in succession to improve the land for such purpose, the estate shall be forfeited, and it appeared that a schoolhouse was built on the land and maintained for many years, when the school was discontinued, and no school had been kept there for nearly ten years, when the grantor's heirs brought their writ of entry, but the town had not abandoned the property or used it for any other purpose, it was held that there had been no forfeiture of the estate. n594 So, when the condition was that the land should be used as a site for a seminary, and it was so used for several years, and then for several years was not so used, and during this time the acts and declarations of the trustees managing the seminary evinced an intention to abandon the property for seminary purposes, but the school was again reopened, it was held that there had been no breach of the condition which worked a forfeiture. In neither of these cases was there a complete abandonment of the property by the grantee. n595

A conveyance on condition that the grantee was "to have and to hold the same unto the school directors and their successors in office for the purposes and uses aforesaid, viz., building a schoolhouse and church, to be used for that purpose only; and whenever the said lot of ground is abandoned for the purposes of school and church, then the title is to revert back to me, and this shall not be any title to any other person for other purposes whatever," was held not forfeited by a cessation of use for school purposes, its use for church purposes continuing. n596

Under a condition in a deed of a meetinghouse lot that it should revert unless it should be improved for that purpose, no forfeiture is incurred by allowing the house to get out of repair, and by omitting to hold religious services in it for several years, if such services were afterwards resumed. n597 A deed to a church providing that when the grantee ceased as an order of the Christian Church the property should revert to the grantor, the property did not revert to the grantor when the services were discontinued temporarily because of financial difficulties and sickness among the congregation. n598 A deed of land to a church for church purposes contained a condition that if the seats of the church erected on the premises shall be "rented or sold," the land should revert to the grantor. It was held that a sale of the church to an individual under an order of court, for the purpose of paying the debts of the church society, by a deed containing the same condition, was not a breach of the condition. A conveyance of the property was not a renting or sale of the pews within the meaning of the condition, as an interest in a pew was separate from the fee of the land. n599 A deed by way of gift was made to the trustees of a church of a lot of land adjoining the church building, "to be used as a parsonage lot or church purpose and no other, and when not so used to revert back" to the donor. No parsonage was built. The lot remained unenclosed, but was used by persons attending the church services to hitch their horses upon. This was held to be a church purpose, and any church purpose will meet the requirement of the grant. n600 So, a conveyance of land to a religious society, "to hold so long as needed for meeting purposes," and then to revert, is not broken by the removal of the church building from the granted land to an adjacent lot, if the land is still used and needed for any purpose connected with the meetings of the society. n601 Where a grant of land was made on condition that it should be held for the support of any minister who might be settled by a certain religious society to preach in a meetinghouse standing or to be built on the granted land, and the society afterwards took down the meetinghouse and erected a new one on a different site, it was held that after the lot had remained vacant for three and a half years there was a breach of the condition, and that the breach of the condition was not saved by a vote of the society that the meetinghouse lot should be reserved for the erection of a meetinghouse at some future period when they might deem it expedient. n602 A condition that a church building shall be erected upon the land, and thereafter used as a place of worship, is broken by a sale of the property and its conversion to business purposes. n603 A forfeiture of title to property by the breach of a restriction limiting its use must be established by evidence showing an essential diversion of the property to a purpose not authorized, as distinguished from a mere infrequent and temporary use for such purpose at irregular intervals. n604

Non-user for a limited time, not inconsistent with the purpose and spirit of the limitation in the deed, will not terminate the estate. n605 When forfeiture does occur, all the improvements revert with the land. n606

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: breach! w/15 use! or purpose! w/30 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 576. Fayette County Bd. of Educ. v. Bryan, 91 S.W.2d 990 (Ky. 1936). See Low v. Ruhlman, 155 P.2d 671 (Cal. App. 1945).

(n2)Footnote 577. Henry v. Etowah, 77 Ala. 538 (1884); Howe v. Lowell, 51 N.E. 536 (Mass. 1898); Poitevent v. Hancock Bd. of Supvrs., 58 Miss. 810 (1881); Southard v. New Jersey Cent. R. Co., 26 N.J. L. 13 (1856); Rose v. Hawley, 36 N.E. 335 (N.Y. 1894); Clark v. Jones, 144 P.2d 498 (Or. 1944).

Where land is conveyed, for a valuable consideration, "for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a public school for white children only" the condition is not breached by the holding of preaching services in the schoolhouse when not required for public school purposes. The word "only" does not refer to the use of the building as a public school but refers to white children. Harmon v. Driggers, 107 S.E. 923 (S.C. 1921).

(n3)Footnote 578. Regular Predestinarian Baptist Church v. Parker, 27 N.E.2d 522 (Ill. 1940); Bailey v. Wells, 47 N.W. 988 (Iowa 1891); Williams v. McKenzie, 262 S.W. 598 (Ky. 1924); McKissick v. Pickle, 16 Pa. 140 (1851); Davis v. Skipper, 83 S.W.2d 318 (Tex. 1935).

(n4)Footnote 579. Priddy v. School Dist. No. 78, 219 P. 141 (Okla. 1923).

(n5)Footnote 580. Ralston v. Hatfield, 143 N.E. 887 (Ind. App. 1924)(ordinarily, a substantial compliance with the conditions in the deed is all that is required). See Waddell v. Sch. Dist. No. 3, 257 P. 278 (Mont. 1927) (right of re-entry and repossession on breach of conditions subsequent may be transferred); Magness v. Kerr, 254 P. 1012 (Or. 1927)(reversionary right is not assignable).

(n6)Footnote 581. Mead v. Ballard, 7 U.S. (Wall.) (1868); Berkley v. Union Pac. R. Co., 33 F. 794 (C.C.D. Colo. 1888); Hunt v. Beeson, 18 Ind. 380 (1862); Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. Co. v. Barbour, 89 Ind. 375 (1883); Sumner v. Darnell, 27 N.E. 162 (Ind. 1891); Higbee v. Rodeman, 28 N.E. 442 (Ind. 1891); Poitevent v. Hancock, 58 Miss. 810 (1881); Miller v. Tunica County, 7 So. 429 (Miss. 1890); Maddox v. Adair, 66 S.W. 811 (Tex. Civ. App. 1901); Harkey v. Harkey, 60 S.W.2d 834 (Tex. Civ. App. 1933).

(n7)Footnote 582. Higbee v. Rodeman, 28 N.E. 442 (Ind. 1891).

(n8)Footnote 583. Taylor v. Campbell, 98 N.E. 657 (Ind. App. 1912); Murphy v. Metz, 85 S.W. 1097 (Ky. 1905).

(n9)Footnote 584. Hardy v. Wiley, 12 S.E. 233 (Va. 1890).

(n10)Footnote 585. Allen v. Howe, 105 Mass. 241 (1870). See Reed v. Hatch, 55 N.H. 327 (1975).

(n11)Footnote 586. Hasman v. Elk Grove Union High Sch., 245 P. 464 (Cal. App. 1926)(condition of deed was satisfied when high school district, in good faith and without any intention at time of changing location of school, erected buildings on property and conducted a high school therein for 29 years, and until conditions required a change of location). See Calvary Presbyterian Church v. Putnam, 221 N.Y.S. 692 (1927), aff'd, 224 N.Y.S. 651, aff'd, 162 N.E. 601 (N.Y. 1928)(in the case of a grant upon conditions subsequent, nothing remains in the grantor or his heirs, except the right to take advantage of a breach of the condition, a mere possibility of a reverter, which is neither an estate nor an interest in real property, nor assignable nor a devisable chose in action, nor a possibility coupled with an interest, but a bare possibility alone).

(n12)Footnote 587. "Mere lapse of time, mere failure to use the premises, is not, in most cases, conclusive evidence of abandonment or of an intention to abandon. But mere lapse of time, mere failure to use, may be of more significance in one case than in another." Estes v. Muskegon County Agrl. & Driving Park Ass'n, 147 N.W. 553 (Mich. 1914).

(n13)Footnote 588. Koonz v. Joint Sch. Dist. No. 4, Gresham, Shawano County, 41 N.W.2d 616 (Wis. 1950).

(n14)Footnote 589. Woodworth v. Payne, 74 N.Y. 196 (1878).

Where a testator devised real estate to a designated church, and prior to the death of the testator such church and another church consolidated and the consolidated church took another name, the devisee church became extinct and the devise to it lapsed and did not pass to the consolidated church, notwithstanding each of the constituent churches conveyed its real estate and personalty to the consolidated church. Presbyterian Church v. Katsianis, 134 N.E. 684 (Ind. App. 1922).

(n15)Footnote 590. Guild v. Richards, 16 Mass. (Gray) 309 (1860). See Congregational Soc'y v. Stark, 34 Vt. 243 (1861).

(n16)Footnote 591. Grissom v. Hill, 17 Ark. 483 (1856).

(n17)Footnote 592. Williams v. Box Church Baptist Church, 75 S.W.2d 134 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934).

(n18)Footnote 593. Gage v. Sch. Dist. No. 7, 9 A. 387 (N.H. 1887). See Rowe v. Minneapolis, 51 N.W. 907 (Minn. 1892).

(n19)Footnote 594. Crane v. Hyde Park, 135 Mass. 147 (1883).

(n20)Footnote 595. Mills v. Evansville Seminary, 15 N.W. 133 (Wis. 1883). See Rowe v. Minneapolis, 51 N.W. 907 (Minn. 1892).

(n21)Footnote 596. Board of Educ. v. Baker, 134 S.W. 863 (Tenn. 1911).

(n22)Footnote 597. Osgood v. Abbott, 58 Me. 73 (1870).

See the following cases: Evans v. Cropp, 133 S.W. 221 (Ky. 1911); East Greenwich v. Gimmons, 84 A. 1008 (R.I. 1912); White v. Britton, 56 S.E. 232 (S.C. 1906); Daggett v. Ft. Worth, 177 S.W. 222 (Tex. Civ. App. 1915).

(n23)Footnote 598. Sargent v. Christian Church, 66 S.W.2d 5 (Ky. 1933).

(n24)Footnote 599. Woodworth v. Payne, 74 N.Y. 196 (1878).

(n25)Footnote 600. Bailey v. Wells, 47 N.W. 988 (Iowa 1891).

(n26)Footnote 601. Carter v. Branson, 79 Ind. 14 (1881).

(n27)Footnote 602. Austin v. Cambridgeport, 21 Mass. (Pick.) 215 (1838).

(n28)Footnote 603. Scott v. Stipe, 12 Ind. 74 (1859).

(n29)Footnote 604. Williams v. Box Church Baptist Church, 75 S.W.2d 134 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934).

(n30)Footnote 605. Clark v. Jones, 144 P.2d 498 (Or. 1944).

(n31)Footnote 606. Koonz v. Joint Sch. Dist. No. 4, Gresham, Shawano County, 41 N.W.2d 616 (Wis. 1950).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.16

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.16 Alternative Remedies on Breach of Condition.

[Go To Supp]

The exercise of a right of re-entry is not the only remedy available to the grantor on breach of a condition subsequent. The grantor may prefer some other remedy than a forfeiture for a breach of condition. He may prefer, by a proceeding in equity, to enjoin the grantee from doing something in violation of the terms of the condition, n607 or to restrain the grantee from using the property beyond the limitation expressed in the deed. n608

He may maintain a bill for the specific performance of the terms of a condition or he may maintain an action for damages sustained by reason of a breach of the condition, n609 but it has been held that the grantor in a deed to a railroad company containing a condition respecting railroad use is not entitled to specific performance. n610 Since an estate granted on condition subsequent is not terminated until there is a re-entry, an action for cancellation of the deed is not a proper remedy, but a breach of the condition may be enforced by ejectment. n611 It is held, however, that a conveyance made in consideration of support, being treated in equity as a conveyance upon condition subsequent, a court of equity will quiet the title of the grantor and cancel the deed upon his election to avoid the conveyance by making re-entry. n612 Where a deed contains a covenant coupled with a condition subsequent, the grantor has an election to proceed on the covenant or on the condition. n613 No entry or demand for possession is necessary before bringing an action in ejectment for breach of condition. n614

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 607. St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co. v. St. Paul Union Depot Co., 46 N.W. 566 (Minn. 1890).

(n2)Footnote 608. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Anniston Mfg. Co., 65 So. 187 (Ala. 1914); Watrous v. Allen, 24 N.W. 104 (Mich. 1885).

(n3)Footnote 609. New Edgewood Lake Corp. v. Kingston Trust Co., 285 N.Y.S. 130 (A.D. 1936).

(n4)Footnote 610. Close v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co., 19 N.W. 886 (Iowa 1884).

(n5)Footnote 611. Carruthers v. Spaulding, 275 N.Y.S. 37 (A.D. 1934).

(n6)Footnote 612. Knutson v. Anderson, 255 N.W. 907 (Wis. 1934). See Thornton v. Middletown Educ. Corp., 70 P.2d 234 (Cal. App. 1937).

(n7)Footnote 613. Neal v. State-Planters Bank & Trust Co., 184 S.E. 203 (Va. 1936).

(n8)Footnote 614. Cowell v. Colorado Springs Co., 100 U.S. (10 Otto) 55 (1879); Austin v. Cambridgeport Parish, 21 Mass. (Pick.) 215 (1838); Ellis v. Kyger, 3 S.W. 23 (Mo. 1887); Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N.Y. 442 (1869). See Pence v. Tidewater Townsite Corp., 103 S.E. 694 (Va. 1920).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.17

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.17 Judicial Reluctance to Declare Breach of Condition.

[Go To Supp]

The general abhorrence to the condition subsequent with its threat of forfeiture extends to forfeiture itself. Thus the courts are inclined not to construe a state of facts as constituting a breach of a condition subsequent unless such a situation clearly exists. n615

Considerable effort is therefore exerted by the courts to avoid forfeiture even where a breach of a valid condition has occurred. In this direction the courts have relied on waiver of the breach by the grantor, upon the doctrine of substantial compliance with the condition and upon changed conditions as releasing the condition. n616

A condition will not be extended beyond its express terms by construction. The grantor must bring himself within these terms to entitle him to a forfeiture. n617 Thus a condition that the grantee shall not convey the property prior to a day named, which was about ten years after the date of the conveyance, except by a lease for years, was not broken by a lease for ninety-nine years, though the grantee at the same time gave the lessee a bond for a conveyance in fee, to be executed after the period of limitation. Neither the bond nor the lease was a conveyance of the property. Since both instruments together do not constitute a conveyance, they cannot be made the ground for a forfeiture. n618 A court cannot change a contract by reading into a deed a restriction on use while it is operative or a limitation of time on the duration of a condition. n619 The rule is well established that the intention of the parties to a deed must, if possible, be gathered from the language used in the instrument submitted for construction, and that, when it can in this way be ascertained, arbitrary rules are not to be resorted to. n620

It must be shown that the spirit and purpose of the condition have been wilfully disregarded by the grantee to establish a breach of it which will authorize a re-entry by the grantor. He is required to establish something more than a technical breach through the action of a stranger without the grantee's permission. A fee on a condition subsequent is not terminated by a mere breach of a condition in the deed. n621 It is only where defendant has wilfully disregarded the condition that a breach thereof will be declared. n622 Equity will not relieve from forfeiture where the petitioner's own conduct caused the situation which rendered the performance of the condition of use impossible. n623

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 615. Rowell v. Gulf, M. & O. R. R., 28 So. 2d 209 (Ala. 1946); Wakefield v. Attorney General, 138 N.E.2d 197 (Mass. 1956).

Technical breach will not cause forfeiture. Lowe v. Ruhlman, 155 P.2d 671 (Cal. App. 1945); Rose v. Hawley, 23 N.E. 904 (N.Y. 1890); Williams v. Downing, 95 P.2d 612 (Okla. 1939).

O & W Lines, Inc. v. St. John, 231 N.Y.S.2d 72 (1962); Hocker v. Heins, 231 N.Y.S.2d 481 (1962); Dilbeck v. Bill Gaynier, Inc., 368 S.W.2d 804 (Tex. Civ. App. 1963).

Forfeiture on breach not favored. Zapata v. Torres, 464 S.W.2d 926 (Tex. Civ. App. 1971).

(n2)Footnote 616. Letteau v. Ellis, 10 P.2d 496 (Cal. App. 1932); Forman v. Hancock, 39 P.2d 249 (Cal. App. 1934).

(n3)Footnote 617. Reclamation Dist. No. 551 v. Van Loben Sels, 78 P. 638 (Cal. 1904); Firth v. Marovich, 116 P. 729 (Cal. 1911); Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943); Wadley Lab. Co. v. Lott, 60 S.E. 836 (Ga. 1908); Voris v. Renshaw, 49 Ill. 425 (1867); Hutchinson v. Ulrich, 34 N.E. 556 (Ill. 1893); Ewertsen v. Gerstenberg, 57 N.E. 1051 (Ill. 1900); Downen v. Rayburn, 73 N.E. 364 (Ill. 1905); Elkhart Car-Works Co. v. Ellis, 15 N.E. 249 (Ind. 1888); Wier v. St. Louis, Ft. S. & W. R. Co., 19 P. 316 (Kan. 1888); Ritchie v. Kansas, N. & D. R. Co., 39 P. 718 (Kan. 1895); Hadley v. Hadley Mfg. Co., 4 Mass. (Gray) 140 (1855); Dorr v. Harrahan, 101 Mass. 531 (1869); Clapp v. Wilder, 57 N.E. 692 (Mass. 1900); Minneapolis Threshing Mach. Co. v. Hanson, 112 N.W. 217 (Minn. 1907); Gadberry v. Sheppard, 27 Miss. 203 (1854); Lackland v. Hadley, 169 S.W. 275 (Mo. 1914); Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N.H. 475 (1862); Atlantic City v. Young & McShea Amusement Co., 53 A. 168 (N.J. Eq. 1902); Lynde v. Hough, 27 N.Y. (Barb.) 415 (1857); Higgins v. Higgins, 27 S.E.2d 128 (N.C. 1943); Gladewater County Line Indep. Sch. Dist. v. Hughes, 59 S.W.2d 351 (Tex. Civ. App. 1933).

(n4)Footnote 618. Voris v. Renshaw, 49 Ill. 425 (1867).

(n5)Footnote 619. Rhines v. Consumers Power Co., 242 N.W. 898 (Mich. 1932).

Under a conveyance of land to a county for "county purposes," a courthouse and jail were erected upon it, but subsequently the county town was removed to another place. There was nothing in the deed requiring the county to devote the land to any special county purpose, and therefore, it was held that the mere removal of the county town was no evidence of an intention to abandon the property, or to devote it to any other than county purposes. Poitevent v. Hancock Bd. of Supvrs., 58 Miss. 810 (1881); Miller v. Tunica County, 7 So. 429 (Miss. 1890).

(n6)Footnote 620. Dickson v. Van Hoose, 47 So. 718 (Ala. 1908).

A conveyance of real estate to school trustees "for the purpose of maintaining thereon a high school" does not necessarily mean that the school must be kept up perpetually. The deed must be construed so as to avoid a forfeiture if it can be reasonably so interpreted. Hasman v. Elk Grove Union High School, 245 P. 464 (Cal. 1926).

Remedies for violation of restrictive building clauses. Joyce v. Krupp, 57 P. 124 (Cal. App. 1927).

Where misuser of the premises is specified as a ground of forfeiture and reverter, the mere nonuser of the premises furnishes no basis for forfeiture. Berger v. Santa Fe College, 215 P. 825 (N.M. 1923).

Restrictive covenants run with the land and bind subsequent purchasers. McCain Realty Co. v. Aylesworth, 219 N.Y.S. 59 (1926).

A conveyance was made to the town of Yonkers "upon the express condition that the strip of land forming part of the premises above described, and being twelve feet and six inches in width, and extending all along said Academy Street, shall forever hereafter be and remain a part of said Academy Street, and shall never be used for any other purpose whatsoever. And also that all the residue of said land hereby conveyed shall forever hereafter be and remain public and open as a public highway, and that no house, building, or other erection whatsoever, except a public monument, shall ever be built or erected or permitted upon the said land, or upon any part thereof". The owner of adjoining land erected a building which encroached upon the highway at one end sixteen inches, and at the other two inches, and he also excavated an area under the sidewalk which was covered with gratings. The grantor claimed a breach of the condition and a right of re-entry. It was held that the town had not done or knowingly permitted anything which amounted to a breach of the condition within any fair and reasonable construction of it. As to the area under the sidewalk, the court said:

> The purpose of the condition was to preserve the land conveyed for public purposes, and it was not violated by permitting the soil or space under the sidewalk to be used in such a manner as is usual and common in cities and villages, as such use is in no sense inconsistent with that of the public for the purpose of a sidewalk for persons passing along the street.

As to the encroachment of the wall of the building upon the highway, the court said:

> If it be admitted that this small strip of land was included in the plaintiff's grant to the municipality for public purposes, and that it has by an honest mistake been appropriated to a private purpose in the manner disclosed by the record, the breach of the condition, if any, would be purely technical, and of such an unsubstantial character as to warrant the conclusion that it was not within the purpose or intention of the parties to the conveyance.

Rose v. Hawley, 36 N.E. 335 (N.Y. 1894).

(n7)Footnote 621. Allen v. Trustees of Great Neck Free Church, 269 N.Y.S. 341 (A.D. 1934).

(n8)Footnote 622. Bonniwell v. Madison, 77 N.W. 530 (Iowa 1898); Crane v. Hyde Park, 135 Mass. 147 (1883).

(n9)Footnote 623. Biescar v. Czechoslovak-Patronat, 302 P.2d 104 (Cal. App. 1956).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.18

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.18 Waiver of Breach of Condition.

[Go To Supp]

Where a fee upon condition subsequent is not followed by a limitation over to a third party, the grantor can waive his right of re-entry and thus avoid the termination of the fee. The grantor may expressly waive the breach or he may waive the remedy of a right to re-enter. n624 A violation of a condition subsequent may be waived by the grantor, n625 as by acceptance of final payment and the delivery of a deed to the premises with knowledge that the grantee has already breached the condition. n626 The waiver may be either express or implied from the circumstances. n627 A condition subsequent can be enforced only at the instance of one who has not waived his right. n628

A condition which is personal to the grantor or for the benefit of the residue of his estate is waived by a conveyance of such residue to the purchaser of the part to which the condition was attached. Thus, where the owner of a tract of land conveyed a small parcel of it with a condition that the grantee should support a fence around the land conveyed, and subsequently conveyed the residue to one who had become the owner of the small parcel, and this owner removed the fence, it was held that his removal of the fence was an extinguishment or waiver of the condition. The residue or part last conveyed was afterwards reconveyed to the original grantor who entered upon the small parcel, claiming a forfeiture. However, it was held that the condition, once having been waived or extinguished, was not revived by the reconveyance. n629

A grantor waives breach of condition by failure to enforce within a reasonable time. n630 Where the grantee breaches a condition, the grantor may expressly waive the breach or may waive his remedy of a right to re-enter. n631

A waiver or estoppel arises when the grantor does some act inconsistent with his right of forfeiture, which makes it unjust for him thereafter to insist upon a forfeiture. n632 If the grantor permits the property to be used in violation of the condition, and especially if he stands by and allows valuable improvements to be made thereon, he will not be allowed to insist upon a forfeiture and thus acquire the improvements made upon the strength of his acquiescence. n633 Thus, where the condition was that no liquor should be sold on the property, but the grantee made such use of the land for eleven years, with the grantor's knowledge and without objection by him and made improvements adapted to such use, equity will not permit a forfeiture of the estate, but will leave the grantor to his other remedies. n634

Where land was granted to a railroad company upon condition that the road should be completed by a certain time, and, after the company's failure to do this, the grantor suffered the company to go on and incur further expense in constructing the road without making objections, it was held that he had waived the condition and forfeiture. n635 Any acts on the part of the grantor which are inconsistent with a claim of forfeiture are evidence of his waiver of the condition. n636 Mere indulgence, acquiescence or inaction is not ordinarily considered sufficient to constitute a waiver of a forfeiture for breach of condition subsequent. n637

A condition for the payment of money at a certain time is waived by the acceptance of the money after a breach. n638 If the condition is one for the payment of money at stated times, and preceding payments have been made without much regard to the precise time of their maturity, equity will not allow a forfeiture for a payment not made on the precise day it was due, but tendered a few days afterwards, when under the circumstances it would be grossly inequitable to allow a forfeiture. n639 Where the condition was for the payment of an annuity, and the grantor subsequently accepted the rents in lieu of the annuity, the condition for the payment of the annuity was discharged as to each year in which such rent was accepted, n640 but where payment is accepted in ignorance of a violation of the condition there is no waiver. n641 A breach of a condition to furnish support to the grantor is waived by his returning to the grantee after an absence and accepting support from him. n642 Other courts have been more rigorous in their enforcement of covenants to support particularly where the grantee has not acted in an equitable manner.

A mere silent acquiescence, indulgence n643 or inaction after the performance or non-performance of an act which constitutes a breach of a condition does not amount to a waiver by the grantor of such breach. n644 Thus, where the condition was that intoxicating liquor should not be sold on the premises, the mere sale of a glass of liquor to a third person in the presence of the grantor does not necessarily constitute a breach of the condition.

The bodily presence of the grantor might under some circumstances be evidence of his assent to the sale, and under other circumstances it would not. At most, it would be evidence to be submitted to the jury on the question of his assent. n645 While mere silence is not sufficient to waive a forfeiture, silence on one side and conduct in good faith relying thereon on the other, whereby such other is placed in such a situation that he will be greatly damaged if the apparent attitude of his conditional grantor be changed effectively, will bind such grantor as a waiver of the benefit of the condition. n646

An unauthorized sale by a third person, without the knowledge or fault of the grantee, would not work a forfeiture, n647 but open and public sales on the premises by the grantee's tenant, with the assent or with the knowledge of the grantee and without reasonable diligence on his part to prevent it, will work a forfeiture. n648 If the grantee, as soon as he discovers that his tenant is selling spirituous liquors on the premises, procures his removal, he will save a forfeiture. It is not negligence on his part to make a lease without a condition that it should be void in case the lessee should sell intoxicating liquor, especially if the lease contains an agreement on the part of the lessee that he would not sell any article the sale of which would injure the grantee's title. n649 If the grantor stands by and allows the grantee to incur expense and make improvements with a view to conducting a business or doing acts which are a breach of the condition, the grantor's inaction may have the effect of a waiver of the condition. n650 A devise on condition of support is a gift upon condition subsequent being waived on failure of performance not due to fault of devisee. n651

A condition subsequent may be waived or forfeiture saved, not only by express agreement, but also by acts showing an intention to continue the estate in the grantee or to voluntarily forego the benefit of the condition, especially where the grantor's declarations, conduct or failure to act, when he ought to have acted, have been at variance or inconsistent with his right to enforce a forfeiture or have so continued for a long period of time. n652 A waiver of a condition, whether precedent or subsequent, is implied if the grantor prevents its fulfillment or absolutely refuses performance on his part. Such refusal, to amount to a waiver, must be absolute and must be acted upon as such by the grantee. If the grantor, in a conveyance under which the vesting of the title is made to depend upon the grantee's paying a specified sum on or before a day named, notifies the grantee that he considers the deed as conferring an option only, and that he withdraws the option, this does not justify the grantee in failing to make or tender payment as provided, if he wishes to assert any right under the deed. n653 A condition in a deed from a parent to a child stipulating that as a consideration for the conveyance the child should care for the parent during life is impliedly waived where it was through the parent's fault that the child failed to furnish such care. n654

Exacting or acquiescing in the further performance of a condition is a legal waiver of any acts then known to the grantor which otherwise might work a forfeiture. Even treating the condition as still subsisting and obligatory after an alleged breach of it is a sufficient waiver. n655 A breach of a condition to support is waived by continuing to accept it for a time afterwards. n656 A condition relied on for forfeiture is waived by declarations or expressions of satisfaction with the performance, although such performance be not in strict compliance with the condition. n657

The grantor may lose his right to claim forfeiture for breach of a condition subsequent by failing to assert it within a reasonable time, n658 especially if such failure is accompanied by acts or conduct indicating an intention to abandon the right to forfeit. n659 A waiver of a breach of a condition may be presumed after a reasonable lapse of time has occurred without any assertion of right by the grantor under the condition, but it is incumbent upon the grantee to allege and prove such a lapse of time. n660 Waiver is a question of fact for the jury, and any evidence which shows an intention on the part of the grantor to waive his right to claim a forfeiture is admissible upon this question. Whether in any particular case there is a waiver is a matter of intention on the part of the grantor, to be ascertained from his acts and all the attendant circumstances of the case. n661 Where the condition was that the grantee should fence the land and keep the fence in repair, and the land remained unfenced for fifty years, with the grantor's full knowledge of the breach of the condition and without any complaint or entry by him, it was held that he had waived the condition. n662

A condition in an instrument under seal may be waived by parol. n663 Where a condition is altered by a verbal agreement, but the grantee fails to perform the condition, either as originally expressed or as altered, the grantor is not precluded from claiming a forfeiture, as his consent to the change was conditional upon a compliance with the altered condition. The parol agreement for a change in the condition was not obligatory, but the grantor would be estopped to insist upon a forfeiture for a breach of a condition he had agreed to dispense with. His agreement, however, for a change of the condition, is not inconsistent with his right to insist upon a forfeiture when the grantee failed to comply with the condition in either form. Whether there was a waiver is a question of intention, and it was clear that the grantor did not intend to waive the original condition, except in case the grantee should comply with the changed condition. n664 Where a city made a deed to a corporation for a nominal consideration upon condition that the corporation should do two things, one of which is performed but failed to perform the other, the city agreed that the corporation might do something else instead and extended the time for performance. Upon its failure to perform the substituted service, the city brought ejectment. It was held that the city could not recover, because the original condition had been waived and was gone forever as a condition, and as if it had never been made a part of the deed. n665

A vendor who stands by and watches a vendee making a construction violating a condition in the deed is estopped and barred by laches from exercising the condition. n666

After release by the grantor the condition has no existence for any purpose and is not available to anyone else. n667 A third person who is beneficially interested in the condition has no power to waive or release it, if the condition is such that the grantor may be supposed to have an interest in its performance, though such person in whose favor the condition is made is willing to waive its performance. n668 Only the grantor or his heirs having the legal estate can dispense with such a condition. A grantor who has conveyed land on condition that he and his wife should be allowed to reside thereon during their respective lives and receive support from the grantee may waive a breach of the condition both as to himself and as to his wife, and his waiver is sufficient without any waiver by his wife, she having joined in the deed merely to release dower. n669 It has been held that after the death of the grantor his widow may make a valid release to the grantee of such condition. n670 The Restatement of the Law of Property states: "Conduct otherwise sufficient to constitute a breach of the condition fails to constitute such breach when such conduct has been licensed by the owner of the power of termination." n671

The earlier law considered that if a breach of a condition subsequent was once waived, such waiver also waived all subsequent breaches. n672 Under this theory a condition once waived is wholly gone. The estate becomes absolute in the grantee and cannot be divested by any future breach. n673

A release of condition in part may operate as a waiver in whole, n674 but such a release does not have this effect in equity, where a specific performance of the unreleased part of the condition is sought. n675 In a Georgia case it is held that a waiver of a forfeiture resulting from the breach of a condition in favor of a named person and for a stated purpose is limited to the terms of the waiver and does not destroy the condition altogether. n676 So, the waiver of one breach of a continuing condition, such as a condition for the payment of rent or for making repairs, does not destroy the condition, but it may be enforced for a subsequent breach. n677 There is some conflict of opinion as to whether a waiver of past breaches of condition will operate as a waiver of all rights to future performance. In one case it was held that a suit for damages brought by the grantor for past conditions broken did not preclude the grantor from bringing an action to rescind the contract for subsequent breaches. n678 In another case, the court took a view directly to the contrary. n679

In some states a lapse of time alone will create a waiver of right of re-entry, n680 others require the full running of the statute of limitations. n681 Mere indulgence by the grantor is not a waiver. n682 Other cases invoke the equitable doctrine of laches where the grantor with knowledge of the breach has delayed. n683 The statute of limitations begins to run from the time of breach just as it does on a determinable fee. n684 But mere indulgence by the grantor or his silent acquiescence is not a waiver. n685 A condition may be waived by parol. n686

The majority rule is that a mere lapse of time short of the statute of limitation is not a waiver of the right to exercise a right of re-entry. n687 But by silence and by reliance therein by the particular tenant the exercise of the right may be prevented through estoppel. n688 Some of the courts have on the other hand started the statute of limitations to run on breach of the condition. n689 Others have given the creator a reasonable time even beyond the statute of limitations after breach to re-enter n690 and the doctrine of laches has been invoked even short of the statute of limitations. n691 And at least one court has refused forfeiture where money damages would suffice. n692

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: waive! w/15 breach or remedy! w/15 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 624. Buckles v. Smith, 156 P.2d 1019 (Okla. 1945).

Waiver of breach of condition may he presumed after reasonable lapse of time. Lawyers Trust Co. v. Houston, 359 S.W.2d 887 (Tex. 1962).

Any slight acquiesence in a breach in a fee upon condition subsequent was treated as a waiver of forfeiture. Chertkov v. Southland Corp., 371 A.2d 124 (Md. App. 1977).

(n2)Footnote 625. Terry v. Taylor, 220 S.W. 42 (Ark. 1920); Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); Tucker v. Immanuel Baptist Church, 237 P. 654 (Kan. 1925); Buckles v. Smith, 156 P.2d 1019 (Okla. 1945); Stewart v. Workman, 102 S.E. 474 (W. Va. 1920).

(n3)Footnote 626. Los Angeles & Ariz. Land Co. v. Marr, 200 P. 1051 (Cal. 1921).

(n4)Footnote 627. Bernstein v. Minney, 274 P. 614 (Cal. App. 1929)(sale of other lots for business purposes waived restriction against use for business purposes); Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926).

Repeated waiver of conditions requires notice of subsequent forfeiture. Tancredi v. Garrett, 27 Cal. Rptr. 52 (1962); McBride v. Griffith, 185 N.E.2d 22 (Ind. App. 1962).

(n5)Footnote 628. Los Angeles & Ariz. Land Co. v. Marr, 200 P. 1051 (Cal. 1921).

(n6)Footnote 629. Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Mass. (Cush.) 178 (1849); Robinson v. Cannon, 145 S.W.2d 146 (Mo. 1940); Cales v. Ford, 28 S.E.2d 429 (W. Va. 1943).

(n7)Footnote 630. Santa Monica v. Jones, 232 P.2d 55 (Cal. 1951); Sanford v. Sims, 66 S.E.2d 495 (Va. 1951), see Note, Deeds -- Where Deed contains condition subsquent, right of re-entry accures at time of breach thereof and statute of limitations then commence running 38 Va. L. Rev. 266 (1952) (statute of limitations commences to run on date of breach of condition subsequent).

(n8)Footnote 631. Buckles v. Smith, 156 P.2d 1019 (Okla. 1945).

(n9)Footnote 632. Bain v. Parker, 90 S.W. 1000 (Ark. 1905); Brown v. Wrightman, 90 P. 467 (Cal. App. 1907); Jones v. Williams, 64 S.E. 1081 (Ga. 1909); Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); Turner v. Turner, 197 S.E. 771 (Ga. 1938); Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 116 N.E. 161 (Ill. 1917); Carbon Block Coal Co. v. Murphy, 101 Ind. 115 (1884); Halvorsen v. Pacific County, 156 P.2d 907 (Wash. 1945).

See the following cases: Tucker v. Immanuel Baptist Church, 237 P. 654 (Kan. 1925); Francis v. Big Sandy Co., 188 S.W. 345 (Ky. 1916); Guild v. Richards, 16 Mass. (Gray) 309 (1860); Barrie v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. 1881); Chippewa Lab. Co. v. Tremper, 42 N.W. 532 (Mich. 1889); McCue v. Barrett, 109 N.W. 594 (Minn. 1906); O'Connor v. Saratoga Springs, 262 N.Y.S. 809 (1933); Huntley v. McBrayer, 90 S.E. 754 (N.C. 1916); Sanderson v. Dee, 168 P. 1001 (Okla. 1917); Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. 341 (1861); First Presbyterian Church v. Elliott, 43 S.E. 674 (S.C. 1903); Williams v. Box Church Baptist Church, 75 S.W.2d 134 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934).

The waiver may be either express or implied from the circumstances. Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925); Sanderson v. Davis, 215 P. 603 (Okla. 1923).

Possibility of reverter may be released by instrument under seal. Sharpe v. North Carolina R. Co., 129 S.E. 826 (N.C. 1925).

(n10)Footnote 633. Kenner v. American Contract Co., 9 Ky. (Bush) 202 (1872); Barrie v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. 1881); Bredell v. Kerr, 147 S.W. 105 (Mo. 1912); Hammond v. Port Royal & A. R. Co., 15 S.C. 10 (1902); First Presbyterian Church v. Elliott, 43 S.E. 674 (S.C. 1903).

(n11)Footnote 634. Brown v. Wrightman, 90 P. 467 (Cal. App. 1907); Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co. v. Early, 29 A. 736 (Pa. 1894).

(n12)Footnote 635. Ludlow v. New York & H. R. Co., 12 N.Y. (Barb.) 440 (1852). See Jones v. Bramblett, 2 Ill. 276 (1836); Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. 341 (1861).

(n13)Footnote 636. American Dirigold Corp. v. Dirigold Metals Corp., 125 F.2d 446 (6th Cir. 1942); Baskett Lab. & Mfg. Co. v. Gravlee, 73 So. 291 (Ala. App. 1916); Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 116 N.E. 161 (Ill. 1917); Frost v. Butler, 7 Me. 225 (1831); Andrews v. Senter, 32 Me. 394 (1851); Hubbard v. Hubbard, 97 Mass. 188 (1867); Bredell v. Kerr, 147 S.W. 105 (Mo. 1912); Spaulding v. Hallenbeck, 39 N.Y. (Barb.) 79 (1862); Maddox v. Adair, 66 S.W. 811 (Tex. Civ. App. 1901).

(n14)Footnote 637. Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); New York v. Coney Island Fire Dep't, 10 N.Y.S.2d 164 (1939). See also St. Joseph Lead Co. v. Fuhrmeister, 182 S.W.2d 273 (Mo. 1944).

Where a grantor's delay in entering to enforce a forfeiture is not aggravated by any element of estoppel, a delay of less than the period of limitation will not, at law, bar his right of entry. Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925).

A clause declaring that upon a breach of any or either of a number of restrictive provisions in the deed the title of the grantee should cease and revert to the grantor, but that a re-entry by reason of such breach or breaches, should not defeat or render invalid the lien of any mortgage or trust deed made in good faith for value as to the land conveyed and the improvements thereon is valid. In re Bangle, 201 P. 968 (Cal. App. 1921).

(n15)Footnote 638. Chalker v. Chalker, 1 Conn. 79 (1814); Dougal v. Fryer, 3 Mo. 40 (1831); Hurley v. McCallister, 103 N.W. 644 (S.D. 1905).

The acceptance of final payment for the land conveyed and the delivery of a deed to the grantee, with knowledge of a breach of the condition, constitutes a waiver and estops the grantor and those claiming under him from seeking to enforce any forfeiture of title by reason of such breach. Los Angeles & Ariz. Land Co. v. Marr, 200 P. 1051 (Cal. 1921). See Plummer v. Worthington, 152 N.E. 133 (Ill. 1926).

(n16)Footnote 639. National Land Co. v. Perry, 23 Kan. 140 (1879); Shade v. Oldroyd, 18 P. 198 (Kan. 1888).

(n17)Footnote 640. Denham v. Walker, 21 S.E. 102 (Ga. 1893).

(n18)Footnote 641. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. Blaisdell, 164 P. 804 (Ga. App. 1917).

(n19)Footnote 642. "The person to whom such support is due always has the right to elect whether he will waive or insist upon a partial or full failure, for a brief time, to perform such a condition, as putting an end to the contract, and his right to support. The failure to perform, which will defeat the vesting of the title, should be a failure in substance, rather than of the letter of the contract. Otherwise, after years of faithful performance, one might lose or be divested of his estate by a technical or partial failure. Where both parties are living on the estate, and in some sense in possession, so that a re-entry is not required to terminate the conditional estate, it is more imperative that the grantor should by some unmistakable act indicate his intention to put an end to the contract for the vesting of the estate upon a failure to perform the condition. Exacting, or acquiescing thereafter in the performance of the condition is evidence for the jury, from which they would be warranted in inferring and finding that he did not insist upon ending of the contract for such non-performance, but that he still treated it as subsisting." Norton v. Perkins, 31 A. 148 (Vt. 1894)Dunklee v. Hooper, 37 A. 225 (Vt.).

Where the grantor received the support provided for in the deed for a number of years after a breach of condition for such support, it was held this amounted to a recognition of the grantee's title. Robinson v. Ingram, 35 S.E. 612 (N.C.).

(n20)Footnote 643. Ralston v. Hatfield, 143 N.E. 887 (Ind. App. 1924).

(n21)Footnote 644. Lowrey v. Hawaii, 215 U.S. 554 (1910); Adams v. Ore Knob Copper Co., 7 F. 634 (C.C.N.C. 1880); Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926)(parol assent also stated not to constitute waiver of a breach of condition); Sherman v. Jefferson, 113 N.E. 624 (Ill. 1916); Lindsey v. Lindsey, 45 Ind. 552 (1974); Carbon Block Coal Co. v. Murphy, 101 Ind. 115 (1884); Frost v. Butler, 7 Me. 225 (1831); Rowell v. Jewett, 69 Me. 293 (1879); Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Pick. 284 (Mass. 1829); McCue v. Barrett, 109 N.W. 594 (Minn. 1906); Rose v. Hawley, 23 N.E. 904 (N.Y. 1890); Ross v. Sanderson, 162 P. 709 (Okla. 1917); Clark v. Martin, 49 Pa. 289 (1865); Maginnis v. Knickerbocker Ice Co., 88 N.W. 300 (Wis. 1901).

See and compare Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925).

(n22)Footnote 645. Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N.Y. 442 (1869).

(n23)Footnote 646. Maginnis v. Knickerbocker Ice Co., 88 N.W. 300 (Wis. 1901).

(n24)Footnote 647. Collins Mfg. Co. v. Marcy, 25 Conn. 242 (1856).

(n25)Footnote 648. Id.; Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co. v. Early, 29 A. 736 (Pa. 1894).

(n26)Footnote 649. Collins Mfg. Co. v. Marcy, 25 Conn. 242 (1856).

(n27)Footnote 650. Kenner v. American Contr'g Co., 9 Ky. (Bush) 202 (1872); Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359 (1858); Barrie v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. 1881); Ludlow v. New York & H. R. Co., 12 N.Y. (Barb.) 440 (1852); Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co. v. Early, 29 A. 736 (Pa. 1894).

(n28)Footnote 651. In re Estate of Wackstetter, 216 A.2d 66 (Pa. 1966).

(n29)Footnote 652. Brown v. Wrightman, 90 P. 467 (Cal. App. 1907); Wedum-Aldahl Co. v. Miller, 64 P.2d 762 (Cal. 1937); Townsend v. Allen, 250 P.2d 292 (Cal. 1952); Sanderson v. Davis, 215 P. 603 (Okla. 1923).

To same effect, see Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925); Avery v. Consumers Power Co., 253 N.W. 189 (Ala. 1934); O'Connor v. Saratoga Springs, 262 N.Y.S. 809 (1933); Williams v. Box Church Baptist Church, 75 S.W.2d 134 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934).

(n30)Footnote 653. Brooklyn Life Ins. Co. v. Bledsoe, 52 Ala. 538 (1875); Borst v. Simpson, 7 So. 814 (Ala. 1890).

(n31)Footnote 654. Jones v. Williams, 64 S.E. 1081 (Ga. 1909).

(n32)Footnote 655. Hubbard v. Hubbard, 97 Mass. 188 (1867).

(n33)Footnote 656. Id.

(n34)Footnote 657. Spaulding v. Hallenbeck, 39 N.Y. (Barb.) 79 (1862); Gleghorn v. Smith, 62 S.W. 1096 (Tex. Civ. App. 1901).

(n35)Footnote 658. Hale v. Elkhorn Coal Corp., 268 S.W. 304 (Ky. 1925); First Christian Church v. Spinks, 260 S.W. 1073 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924).

(n36)Footnote 659. Stauffer v. Kessler, 130 N.E. 651 (Ind. App. 1921); Hale v. Elkhorn Coal Corp., 268 S.W. 304 (Ky. 1925)(deed which gave rise to right to declare a forfeiture recognized as valid for 16 years); First Christian Church v. Spinks, 260 S.W. 1073 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924). See Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925); Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926).

(n37)Footnote 660. Hurto v. Grant, 57 N.W. 899 (Iowa 1894); Kenner v. American Contract Co., 9 Ky. (Bush) 202 (1872); Andrews v. Senter, 32 Me. 394 (1851); Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359 (1858); Barrie v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. (1881); Willard v. Henry, 2 N.H. 120 (1819); Ludlow v. New York & H. R. Co., 12 N.Y. (Barb.) 440 (N.Y. 1852); Huntington v. Titus, 64 N.Y.S. 58 (A.D. 1900); Duryee v. New York, 96 N.Y. 477 (1884); Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co. v. Early, 29 A. 736 (Pa. 1894); Berryman v. Schumacher, 3 S.W. 46 (Tex. 1887).

(n38)Footnote 661. Kampman v. Kampman, 135 S.W. 905 (Ark. 1911); Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Mass. (Cush.) 178 (1849); Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N.Y. 442 (1869); Sanderson v. Dee, 168 P. 1001 (Okla. 1917); Hammond v. Port Royal & A. R. Co., 15 S.C. 10 (1881).

(n39)Footnote 662. Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892); Hooper v. Cummings, 45 Me. 359 (1858).

(n40)Footnote 663. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 116 N.E. 161 (Ill. 1917). Cf., Butterfield v. Lane, 95 A. 233 (Me. 1915).

(n41)Footnote 664. Ragsdale v. Vicksburg & M. R. Co., 62 Miss. 480 (1885).

(n42)Footnote 665. Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. 341 (1862).

(n43)Footnote 666. Western Motor Rebuilders, Inc. v. Carlson, 335 P.2d 272 (Colo. 1950).

(n44)Footnote 667. Schulman v. Ellenville Elec. Co., 273 N.Y.S. 530 (1934), aff'd, 289 N.Y.S. 816 (1936).

(n45)Footnote 668. Rowell v. Jewett, 69 Me. 293 (1879); Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Mass. (Pick.) 284 (1829). Contra, Jones v. Bramblett, 2 Ill. 276 (1836); Boone v. Tipton, 15 Ind. 270 (1860).

(n46)Footnote 669. Hubbard v. Hubbard, 97 Mass. 188 (1867).

(n47)Footnote 670. Tanner v. Van Bibber, 2 Ky. (Duv.) 550 (1866).

The heirs of the grantor may waive or release a condition subsequent. Calvary Presbyterian Church v. Putnam, 221 N.Y.S. 692, aff'd, 224 N.Y.S. 651 (1927), aff'd, 162 N.E. 601 (N.Y. 1928). See also Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926)(in this case neither the grantor nor his executors were considered as having waived the condition).

(n48)Footnote 671. Restatement, Property, § 57, Comment c.

(n49)Footnote 672. Buckles v. Smith, 156 P.2d 1019 (Okla. 1945).

(n50)Footnote 673. Wilkes v. Groover, 75 S.E. 353 (Ga. 1912); Sanitary Dist. of Chicago v. Chicago Title & Trust Co., 116 N.E. 161 (Ill. 1917); Merrifield v. Cobleigh, 4 Mass. (Cush.) 178 (1849); Guild v. Richards, 16 Mass. (Gray) 309 (1860); Dyer v. Siano, 11 N.E.2d 451 (Mass. 1937); Barrie v. Smith, 10 N.W. 168 (Mich. 1881); McCue v. Barrett, 109 N.W. 594 (Minn. 1906); Ludlow v. New York & H. R. Co., 12 N.Y. (Barb.) 440 (1852); Williams v. Dakin, 22 N.Y. (Wend.) 201 (1839); Hebrew Orphan Asylum v. New York, 270 N.Y.S. 310 (1934); Schulman v. Ellenville Elec. Co., 273 N.Y.S. 530 (1934), aff'd, 288 N.Y.S. 11 (1936); Dickey v. M'Cullough, 2 Pa. (Watts & Serg.) 88 (1841); Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. 341 (1862); Hammond v. Port Royal & A. R. Co., 15 S.C. 10 (1881); Dumpor's Case, 4 Coke 119b, 1 Smiths' Lead Cas. 95.

See Restatement, Property, § 57, Comment c. And See Restatement, Property, § 49, Comment d, on what amounts to waste after breach of condition is waived.

"The right of re-entry is at the election of him who has the right to enforce it, and, if he once dispense with it, he cannot afterwards enter for the subsequent breach of the condition." Board of Educ. v. Baker, 134 S.W. 863 (Tenn. 1911).

(n51)Footnote 674. Dakin v. Williams, 17 N.Y. (Wend.) 447 (1837).

(n52)Footnote 675. Clark v. Martin, 49 Pa. 289 (1865).

(n53)Footnote 676. Moss v. Chappell, 54 S.E. 968 (Ga. 1906).

(n54)Footnote 677. McKildoe v. Darracott, 13 Va. (Gratt.) 278 (1856); 1 Smith's Lead Cas. 95, 98, note.

(n55)Footnote 678. Gall v. Gall, 105 N.W. 953 (Wis. 1905).

(n56)Footnote 679. McWhorter v. Hetzell, 24 N.E. 743 (Ind. 1890).

(n57)Footnote 680. Tough v. Netsch, 142 A. 702 (N.H. 1928).

(n58)Footnote 681. Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); Sherman v. Jefferson, 113 N.E. 624 (Ill. 1916); Carbon Block Coal Co. v. Murphy, 101 Ind. 115 (1885); Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Mass. (Pick.) 284 (1829); Union College v. New York, 73 N.Y.S. 51 (A.D. 1901), aff'd, 65 N.E. 853 (1903); Maginnis v. Knickerbocker Ice Co., 88 N.W. 300 (Wis. 1901).

(n59)Footnote 682. Lowrey v. Hawaii, 215 U.S. 554 (1910).

(n60)Footnote 683. Drace v. Klinedinst, 118 A. 907 (Pa. 1922).

(n61)Footnote 684. Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925); Jeffries v. State for Use of Woodruff County, 226 S.W.2d 810 (Ark. 1950); Sanford v. Sims, 66 S.E.2d 495 (Va. 1951).

(n62)Footnote 685. Lake Bluff v. Dalitsch, 114 N.E.2d 654 (Ill. 1953).

(n63)Footnote 686. Stewart v. Colvin, 214 P.2d 229 (Okla. 1949).

(n64)Footnote 687. Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); Sherman v. Jefferson, 113 N.E. 624 (Ill. 1916); Carbon Block Coal Co. v. Murphy, 101 Ind. 115 (1885); Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Mass. (Pick.) 284 (1829); Union College v. New York, 73 N.Y.S. 51 (A.D. 1901), aff'd, 65 N.E. 653 (1903); Maginnis v. Knickerbocker Ice Co., 88 N.W. 300 (Wis. 1901).

Contra, Tough v. Netsch, 142 A. 702 (N.H. 1928); First Christian Church v. Spinks, 260 S.W. 1073 (Tex. Civ. App.), rev'd, 273 S.W. 815 (1925).

(n65)Footnote 688. Bernstein v. Minney, 274 P. 614 (Cal. App. 1929)(making improvements created estoppel)); Hale v. Elkhorn Coal Corp., 268 S.W. 304 (Ky. 1925); Weber v. Ford Motor Co., 222 N.W. 198 (Mich. 1928); Bredell v. Kerr, 147 S.W. 105 (Mo. 1912); Cook v. St. Paul's Church, 67 N.Y. 594 (1876).

(n66)Footnote 689. Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925); Jeffries v. State for Use of Woodruff County, 226 S.W.2d 810 (Ark. 1950); Sanford v. Sims, 66 S.E.2d 495 (Va. 1951).

(n67)Footnote 690. Terry v. Taylor, 220 S.W. 42 (Ark. 1920); Wedum-Aldahl Co. v. Miller, 64 P.2d 762 (Cal. App. 1937); Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892); Robinson v. Cannon, 145 S.W.2d 146 (Mo. 1940).

(n68)Footnote 691. Hale v. Elkhorn Coal Corp., 268 S.W. 304 (Ky. 1925); McCue v. Barrett, 109 N.W. 594 (Minn. 1906); Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co. v. Early, 29 A. 736 (Pa. 1894); Drace v. Klinedinst, 118 A. 907 (Pa. 1922). But see Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926).

(n69)Footnote 692. Maginnis v. Knickerbocker Ice Co., 88 N.W. 300 (Wis. 1901).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.19

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.19 Breach of Personal Conditions.

[Go To Supp]

A condition affecting the realty survives the maker's death, one that is personal to him does not. A condition that is personal to the grantee, as where it is in terms confined to him without mentioning his heirs or assigns, must be performed in its lifetime. Upon his death the condition is discharged, and the estate becomes absolute in his heirs or devisees. n693 A provision that the grantee is to do the thing, which is the subject of the condition, "forever," does not necessarily make the performance of it binding upon his heirs. n694 On the other hand, a condition is not personal merely because the grantee bears a personal relation to the grantor, as where the condition is for the support of a parent or other near relative, for such a condition may be performed by another, unless the personal service of the grantee is expressly stipulated for. n695 A condition for the support of the grantor has, however, sometimes been considered a personal condition. n696 Where an aged parent deeds property to his child on condition that the child will support him for life, there is a presumption that the child must furnish the support in person, n697 although it has been held that the agreement may be assigned to another. n698 A breach by the grantee of a collateral agreement to support the grantor, made in consideration of the conveyance, has been held not to divest the grantee's title. n699

Where the condition applies to the property itself and not in terms to the grantee, the condition is not personal, though it does not include the heirs and assigns of the grantee. Thus, in a grant of land, an inserted condition that the property shall not be used for the sale of intoxicating liquors, may be enforced by forfeiture for a breach of the condition against a subsequent purchaser of the land, although the condition does not in terms include the heirs and assigns of the grantee. The condition applies to the use of the property, and runs with the land. n700

A deed granting a right-of-way and binding the grantee to construct, on the land conveyed, an undergrade crossing of its railroad for livestock for the use and convenience of the grantor creates a covenant running with the land notwithstanding the failure of the instrument granting the right to the undergrade crossing to refer to the heirs of the grantor. n701 So, where the condition was that the land should be used for the purpose of a street only, the condition was held to apply to the purchaser from the grantee; n702 and where the condition was to build a church within a reasonable time, it was held that the condition was annexed to the estate, and would follow it after the death of the grantee, into the hands of any person to whom it might come. n703

A condition to "erect upon the said premises a cotton factory within two years" is a condition annexed to the estate conveyed, and not a personal covenant of the grantee. n704 When the condition applies to the property, and is not personal to the grantee, it may be performed by a subsequent purchaser from the grantee or by anyone interested in the land or in the performance of the condition. n705 Where the condition is, by a natural interpretation of the words used, attached to the estate, heirs and assigns will be bound by it although not mentioned, n706 but heirs and assigns were held not bound to perform a condition subsequent to build a fence unless they were expressly mentioned. n707

COMPUTED-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: breach! w/15 personal w/5 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 693. Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N.H. 475 (1862); Page v. Palmer, 48 N.H. 385 (1869).

(n2)Footnote 694. Emerson v. Simpson, 43 N.H. 475 (1862).

(n3)Footnote 695. Wilson v. Wilson, 38 Me. 18 (1854); Henry v. Tupper, 29 Vt. 358 (1857); Joslyn v. Parlin, 54 Vt. 670 (1881).

(n4)Footnote 696. Barker v. Cobb, 36 N.H. 344 (1858); Rollins v. Riley, 44 N.H. 9 (1862).

(n5)Footnote 697. Thomas v. Thomas, 33 P. 565 (Or. 1893); Glocke v. Glocke, 89 N.W. 118 (Wis. 1902).

(n6)Footnote 698. Hurley v. McCallister, 103 N.W. 644 (S.D. 1905).

(n7)Footnote 699. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Nash, 67 S.W.2d 452 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934).

(n8)Footnote 700. O'Brien v. Wetherell, 14 Kan. 616 (1875); Jetter v. Lyon, 97 N.W. 596 (Neb. 1900); Odessa Imp. & Irrig. Co. v. Dawson, 24 S.W. 576 (Tex. Civ. App. 1893); Verplanck v. Wright, 23 N.Y. (Wend.) 506 (1840).

(n9)Footnote 701. Stoutimore v. Quincy, O. & K. C. R. Co., 256 S.W. 121 (Mo. App. 1923).

The right to enforce building restrictions by a landowner depends upon the existence of privity of estate or contract between himself and the defaulting owner. Joyce v. Krupp, 257 P. 124 (Cal. App. 1927).

(n10)Footnote 702. Carpenter v. Graber, 1 S.W. 178 (Tex. 1886). See Collins Mfg. Co. v. Marcy, 25 Conn. 242 (1856)(where the condition was enforced against a lessee of the grantee, although the point was not directly raised in the case); Pugh v. Mays, 60 Tex. 191 (1883); Berryman v. Schumacher, 3 S.W. 46 (Tex. 1887); Eddy v. Hinnant, 18 S.E. 562 (Tex. 1891)(as to liability of the purchaser of a railroad under a condition in a deed to the original company to furnish the grantor a free passage over the railroad at all times).

(n11)Footnote 703. Upington v. Corrigan, 23 N.Y.S. 451 (1893). See Ashland v. Greiner, 50 N.E. 99 (Ohio 1898).

(n12)Footnote 704. Langley v. Chapin, 134 Mass. 82 (1883).

(n13)Footnote 705. Vermont v. Society for Propagation of the Gospel, 28 F. Cas. 545, 2 Paine 545 (C.C.D. Vt. 1827); Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Covington, 2 Bush 526 (Ky. 1866).

(n14)Footnote 706. Langley v. Chapin, 134 Mass. 82 (1883).

(n15)Footnote 707. Page v. Palmer, 48 N.H. 385 (1869).

In a deed of a right-of-way to a railroad company, a condition that the grantor and his family shall have free passage over the road "so long as the land and appurtenances herein before described shall be used as a railroad, or for railroad purposes, under the charter of said corporation," was but a limitation of the grant, and did not perpetuate the right to the descendants of the grantor. By the charter of the company the state reserved the right at any time within twenty years to purchase its property and franchises.

> The words 'under the charter of the corporation' were therefore necessary to limit the agreement to carry to the time the corporation might have the power to use the land for railroad purposes. So, too, the words 'used for railroad purposes' were a necessary and proper limitation of the contract to carry. If the location of the road were changed, and the land conveyed by the grantor should revert to him, the parties would naturally provide that the contract to carry should be at an end. Other contingencies might also happen. The charter of the corporation could be repealed at the pleasure of the legislature; its franchise might be forfeited for misuser or nonuser, or it might be surrendered. A court did not extend the word 'family' so as to include the descendants of the grantor to the remotest generation.

Dodge v. Boston & P. R. Co., 28 N.E. 243 (Mass. 1891), per Lathrop, J.

Where a railroad company entered into an agreement with a landowner whereby he conveyed a right-of-way to the company and, in part consideration therefor, the railroad company agreed to issue an annual pass to the landowner and his wife for life, if the railroad was engaged in interstate commerce, the contract for the pass was invalid under the United States statutes and, if the railroad was engaged in intrastate commerce, the issuance of the pass was prohibited by the state law and therefore the agreement was invalid in either event. Payne v. Elliott, 133 N.E. 751 (Ind. App. 1922).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.20

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.20 Time for Performance of Condition.

[Go To Supp]

Where there is no express deadline for the performance of the condition, the rule of reasonableness is applied. A condition must be performed within a reasonable time when no time is specified within which it is to be performed. n708 Thus a condition to pay a mortgage upon the property conveyed must be performed within a reasonable time after the mortgage becomes due. A condition to pay marriage portions to the grantor's daughters must be performed within a reasonable time after receiving notice of their marriages. n709 Where there was a neglect of performance for a period of twenty-five years, and no reasonable excuse was shown for such neglect, the court held that performance was not within a reasonable time. n710 A condition which expressly provides for performance within a reasonable time is construed in the same manner as a condition which implies a performance within a reasonable time. Where the condition was that the grantee should within a reasonable time build a church upon the land, the court took judicial notice of the fact that an unexplained delay of twenty-nine years within which to commence to build a church is unreasonable. n711 A condition to be performed at the convenience of the grantee should be performed within a reasonable time. n712 What constitutes a reasonable time within which to perform acts contemplated by a conveyance depends upon the subject matter, the nature of the act to be performed, and the situation of the parties. n713

If land is granted upon a condition for the performance of which no time is limited, either in express terms or from the nature of the condition itself, it is a general rule that the grantee has his lifetime for performance. n714 In such case the time for performance is held to be a matter for the grantee to determine, n715 but if it appears that a prompt performance was contemplated by the parties or is necessary to give the grantor the benefits he was reasonably entitled to receive from the provision, the grantee has only a reasonable time for its performance. n716 If performance of a condition required by an instrument is by the terms thereof to extend over a period of time, the condition is treated as a condition subsequent. n717 Where no time for the performance of a condition subsequent is mentioned, the grantee is entitled to a reasonable time for the performance of the condition, according to the nature of the condition, and the question of what is a reasonable time is one for the jury to determine. n718 What constitutes a reasonable time within which to perform the acts contemplated by a conveyance depends upon the subject matter, the nature of the act to be performed, and the situation of the parties. n719

Where a specified time is set for performance of a condition precedent or subsequent to when the problem arises, as it does in contracts, n720 as to whether or not time is of the essence. If time is of the essence then if the time for the performance of the condition is strictly limited, forfeiture is incurred by non-performance within that time. In all cases where a time is set for the doing or performance of the matter contained in the condition, be it to pay money, make an estate or the like, it must be done at the time agreed upon and set down in the condition. In cases where it is to be done before a certain time, it must be done before that time or else the condition is broken. n721 If a time within which a condition must be performed is specified, performance may take place at any time within the period mentioned. n722 If the condition be that a building shall be erected on the granted land within five years, for municipal purposes, a failure to erect the building within the time named is a breach of the condition, for which a forfeiture may be enforced. n723 A condition that a courthouse shall be erected upon the granted land, and maintained for a certain number of years, is broken by the removal of the county seat to another village within that time. The condition was not satisfied by keeping and maintaining the building upon the premises after the county seat had been removed. n724

Where a grantor reserved a life estate in his deed which provided that the grantee's failure to pay all taxes, assessments or liens against the property would cause the title to revert immediately to the grantor in fee simple, it was held that time was of the essence of the contract and a failure during the grantor's life to pay municipal taxes on the realty when due constituted such a breach of the condition as to entitle the grantor to reclaim title to the remainder interest conveyed. n725

A condition that a railroad company shall construct its road or use the granted land for certain purposes within a limited time will not be enforced by forfeiture unless there is a clear and absolute breach of the condition. If the condition is indefinite in regard to the use of the land, the court will regard the use and occupation of the land by the railroad company for some of the purposes demanded by the terms of the deed, though slight, as a compliance with the condition. n726

Where performance within the time specified is prevented by circumstances over which the grantee has no control, this may constitute a valid excuse for non-performance. n727 Thus, a railroad company will be relieved from a forfeiture on account of a breach of condition to complete its road within the time specified where it appears that the road was so completed within a few months after the time expired and that the delay was occasioned in procuring materials and not by its negligence. n728 Where no time of performance is mentioned, and the railroad company has taken possession of the land in good faith, the grantor cannot declare a forfeiture and recover the land from the company without previous notice of his intention to claim a forfeiture specifying the particular breach relied upon and giving it time to remedy such breach. n729 Where the period of time within which the company is to construct, equip and operate the road is specified, this condition is held to be for the sole benefit of the grantor, and he may, at his election, declare a forfeiture for a failure to comply with such condition. n730 The grantee has a reasonable time for performance of the condition. n731

A condition to save the grantor harmless from the payment of a certain debt is not broken until the grantor has been damnified by being compelled to pay it. n732 Where the condition is to save the grantor harmless from the payment of a debt, and a forfeiture has accrued by a breach of the condition, equity will relieve from the forfeiture on payment of the debt, interest and costs, unless the complainant has debarred himself by his own conduct. n733 A mortgagor who voluntarily pays the mortgage debt cannot, prior to a foreclosure and determination of deficiency, have judgment for breach of condition against his grantee who assumed and agreed to pay the mortgage debt. n734

In most states mere lapse of time will not waive forfeiture. n735 The holder of the right of re-entry by remaining silent may, however, create an estoppel to re-enter where the fee holder relies on the silence to change his position, n736 and the right to re-enter may be barred by the statute of limitations after breach, n737 or by laches. n738

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: reasonable! w/5 time! w/15 perform! w/15 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 708. Sheppard-Touchstone, Common Assurance, 134; Union Stockyards Co. v. Nashville Packing Co., 140 F. 701 (6th Cir. 1905); McKee v. Club-View Heights, 162 So. 671 (Ala. 1935); Fisk v. Chandler, 30 Me. 79 (1849); Rowell v. Jewett, 69 Me. 293 (1879), 71 Me. 408 (1880); Hayden v. Stoughton, 5 Mass. (Pick.) 528 (1827); Allen v. Howe, 105 Mass. 241 (1870); Soderberg v. Crockett, 30 P. 826 (Nev. 1883); Reed v. Hatch, 55 N.H. 327 (1875); Emery v. Dana, 84 A. 976 (N.H. 1912); Stuyvesant v. New York, 11 N.Y. (Paige) 414 (1845); Norton v. Valentine, 135 N.Y.S. 1084 (A.D. 1912); Lawrey v. Hanna, 115 P. 975 (Or. 1911); Hamilton v. Elliott, 5 Pa. (Serg. & Rawle) 375 (1819); Dickey v. McCullough, 2 Pa. (Watts & Serg.) 88 (1841); Citizens Water Co. v. McGinley, 175 S.W. 457 (Tex. Civ. App. 1915).

And see Klapka v. Shrauger, 281 N.W. 612 (Neb. 1938).

Forfeiture must be exercised within a reasonable time. Field v. Shaw, 535 S.W.2d 3 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976).

(n2)Footnote 709. Rowell v. Jewett, 69 Me. 293 (1879); Ross v. Tremain, 2 Mass. (Metc.) 495 (1841).

(n3)Footnote 710. Union College v. New York, 73 N.Y.S. 51 (A.D. 1901).

(n4)Footnote 711. Upington v. Corrigan, 23 N.Y.S. 451 (1893).

(n5)Footnote 712. Adams v. Ore Knob Copper Co. 7 F. 634 (W.D.N.C. 1880).

(n6)Footnote 713. McKee v. Club-View Heights, 162 So. 671 (Ala. 1935).

(n7)Footnote 714. Finlay v. King's Lessee, 28 U.S. (3 Pet.) 346 (1830), per Marshall, C.J.; Hamilton v. Elliott, 5 Pa. (Serg. & Rawles) 375 (1819).

(n8)Footnote 715. Brown v. State, 5 Colo. 496 (1881).

(n9)Footnote 716. Carpender v. New Brunswick, 39 A.2d 40 (N.J. Eq. 1944); Hamilton v. Elliott, 5 Pa. (Serg. & Rawles) 375 (1819); Salt Lake City v. State, 125 P.2d 790 (Utah 1942).

In Massachusetts it is provided by statute that when the title or use of real estate is affected by conditions or restrictions unlimited as to time, such conditions or restrictions are construed as being limited to the term of 30 years from the date of the deed or other instrument, or the date of the probating of the will creating such conditions or restrictions, except only in cases of gifts or devises for public, charitable, or religious purposes. This act does not apply to existing conditions or restrictions, or to such as may be contained in a deed, gift, or grant of the Commonwealth, nor does it operate in any case to defeat restrictions for a term of years certain. Mass. Gen. Laws 1932, ch. 184, § 23.

(n10)Footnote 717. Lane v. Lane, 120 S.W.2d 993 (Tenn. App. 1938).

(n11)Footnote 718. Bouvier v. Baltimore & N. Y. R. Co., 47 A. 772 (N.J. 1900).

(n12)Footnote 719. McKee v. Club-View Heights, 162 So. 671 (Ala. 1935).

(n13)Footnote 720. See Williston on Contracts.

(n14)Footnote 721. Sheppard-Touchstone, Common Assurance, 134.

(n15)Footnote 722. Nye-Schneider-Fowler Grain Co. v. Hopkins, 155 N.W. 1097 (Neb. 1916); Thompson v. Lyon, 20 S.E. 812 (W. Va. 1894).

(n16)Footnote 723. Clarke v. Brookfield, 81 Mo. 503 (1884).

(n17)Footnote 724. Pepin Co. v. Prindle, 21 N.W. 254 (Wis. 1884).

Where a deed to a city provided in a clause before the granting clause that the city agreed to accept the premises for a park for the exclusive use and benefit of its white citizens, and to put the park in a reasonably good condition for such use, and to keep it so, and that, "when said park is neglected for a longer time than twelve months, or ceases to be used as a park," said land "reverts to the" grantor, "or his estate, or his heirs," and the habendum clause contained a provision that the city is to hold the "premises with the conditions named, "an estate upon a condition subsequent was held created, upon the breach of which the land reverted to the grantor or his heirs. Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926).

(n18)Footnote 725. Evans v. Brown, 27 S.E.2d 300 (Ga. 1943).

(n19)Footnote 726. Chute v. Washburn, 46 N.W. 555 (Minn. 1890).

So, where land was conveyed to a railroad company "for the erection and maintenance thereon of freight-houses, ... sidetracks, turnouts, switches, and buildings, and for such other general railroad purposes as may be necessary and expedient," and it appears that a freight-house was built, which was afterwards sold to the grantor, and the land has been continually used for railroad purposes, there was no breach of the condition. Noyes v. St. Louis, A. & T.H.R. Co., 21 N.E. 487 (Ill. 1889).

Where a conveyance to a railroad company of a right-of-way through the grantor's land was made in consideration that the company should construct its road upon such land, and on condition that if it did not so construct its road the conveyance should be void, though it did not construct the road through this land for more than thirteen years, but during this time it was constructing its road over other parts of its chartered route, it was held that the grantor could not declare a forfeiture after the road was completed. Yancey v. Savannah & W.R. Co., 13 So. 311 (Ala. 1893). See Knight v. Alabama Midland R. Co., 13 So. 260 (Ala. 1893).

A conveyance was made to a railroad corporation of land "to be used by it for railroad purposes, upon condition that, "if work is not commenced on said road in two years, then said property is to revert to" the grantor. The name of the grantee was at the time of the delivery of the deed borne by a railway company formed by the consolidation of three different companies, and also that previously borne by one of the companies entering into such consolidation. The line of the consolidated company extended from a point in North Carolina to Atlanta in the state of Georgia. It was held that the construction and operating of a portion of its line of railway in the state of North Carolina, within the time specified in the deed, was sufficient to prevent a reversion to the grantor. Lester v. Georgia, C. & N.R. Co., 17 S.E. 113 (Ga. 1893).

(n20)Footnote 727. Vicksburg & M. R. Co. v. Ragsdale, 54 Miss. 200 (1876).

(n21)Footnote 728. Springfield & N.E. Trac. Co. v. Warrick, 94 N.E. 933 (Ill. 1911).

(n22)Footnote 729. Treat v. Detroit United R. Co., 122 N.W. 93 (Mich. 1909).

(n23)Footnote 730. Polk v. Givens, 90 N.E. 19 (Ind. App. 1909).

(n24)Footnote 731. Nearing v. Bridgeport, 75 A.2d 505 (Conn. 1950); Board of Supvrs. v. Newell, 56 So. 2d 689 (Miss. 1952).

(n25)Footnote 732. Sanborn v. Woodman, 5 Mass. (Cush.) 36 (1849); Michigan State Bank v. Hastings, 1 Doug. 225 (Mich. 1844); Michigan State Bank v. Hammond, 1 Doug. 527 (Mich. 1845).

(n26)Footnote 733. Dodsworth v. Dodsworth, 98 N.E. 279 (Ill. 1912).

(n27)Footnote 734. Lewis v. Hunt, 24 P.2d 557 (Cal. App. 1933).

(n28)Footnote 735. Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); Sherman v. Jefferson, 113 N.E. 624 (Ill. 1916); Carbon Block Coal Co. v. Murphy, 101 Ind. 115 (1884); Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Mass. (Pick.) 284 (1829); Union College v. New York, 73 N.Y.S. 51 (A.D. 1901); Maginnis v. Knickerbocker Ice Co., 88 N.W. 300 (Wis. 1901).

Contra, lapse of time waives. Tough v. Netsch, 142 A. 702 (N.H. 1928).

Waiver by failure to re-enter. Wedum-Aldahl Co. v. Miller, 64 P.2d 762 (Cal. App. 1937); Scovill v. McMahon, 26 A. 479 (Conn. 1892); Robinson v. Cannon, 145 S.W.2d 146 (Mo. 1940).

(n29)Footnote 736. Hale v. Elkhorn Coal Corp., 268 S.W. 304 (Ky. 1925); Weber v. Ford Motor Co., 222 N.W. 198 (Mich. 1928); Bredell v. Kerr, 147 S.W. 105 (Mo. 1912); Cook v. St. Paul's Church, 67 N.Y. 594 (1876).

(n30)Footnote 737. Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925); Jeffries v. State for Use of Woodruff County, 226 S.W.2d 810 (Ark. 1950); Sanford v. Sims, 66 S.E.2d 495 (Va. 1951).

(n31)Footnote 738. Hale v. Elkhorn Coal Corp., 268 S.W. 304 (Ky. 1925); McCue v. Barrett, 109 N.W. 594 (Minn. 1906); Lehigh Coal & Nav. Co. v. Early, 29 A. 736 (Pa. 1894).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.21

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.21 Substantial Compliance with Conditions.

[Go To Supp]

The courts have further ameliorated the harshness of forfeiture for breach of conditions subsequent through the medium of the doctrine of substantial compliance with conditions subsequent. Under this philosophy, if the grantee has met the conditions imposed in the grant over a sufficient number of years a final breach will not forfeit the estate because the condition has been substantially met, the fee upon condition has ripened into a fee simple absolute and the right of re-entry forever lost. n739

Where the performance of the condition was part of the consideration for the conveyance, a performance for a sufficient period of time will vest a fee simple absolute. n740

A substantial performance of the condition discharges it, and it is for the jury to say whether the condition has been in substance performed. n741 Where there has been a substantial performance of the condition extending over a long period of time there is no breach of condition. n742 Thus, where property was conveyed for purpose of a road, the deed providing for reverter if the land be not so used, it was held that there was no reverter after thirty-two years use as a road. n743 Also, a warranty deed to a county, conditioned on the erection and maintenance of a county courthouse on the land, and containing no express right of reverter, vested a fee-simple title in the county upon the erection of a courthouse on the land and maintenance thereof for thirty-five years, without possibility of reverter upon the subsequent erection of a new courthouse on a different site and a destruction of the old courthouse. n744 It was held that a provision to keep a house "in good repair" does not contemplate making the house like new or modernizing it, but only making it safe and comfortable for ordinary use. n745 In the case of an agreement to support and maintain in consideration of the conveyance a court of equity will take into consideration the relation of the parties and that a self-imposed duty created in this manner is to be performed in a reasonable and acceptable manner. n746 In such case the grantee has the burden to show full performance of the agreement. n747

The courts have further expressed their reluctance to enforce forfeiture in the doctrine of changed conditions as waiving breach. This is commonly to be found in conditions requiring a limited use of property to conform to a then existing neighborhood. Where the character of the area changes over the years the condition loses its force and will not be enforced. n748

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: substantial! w/2 compli! w/15 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 739. Mead v. Ballard, 74 U.S. (7 Wall.) 290 (1868); Board of Comm'rs v. Russell, 174 F.2d 778 (10th Cir. 1949); Little Rock & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Birnie, 26 S.W. 528 (Ark. 1894); Jeffries v. State ex rel. Woodruff County, 226 S.W.2d 810 (Ark. 1950)(holding rights of re-entry subject to waiver and to bar by the statute of limitations); Hasman v. Elk Grove Union High School, 245 P. 464 (Cal. App. 1926); Sconce v. Neece, 268 P.2d 1102 (Colo. 1954)(statute converting fee tail into life estate with remainder held to apply by implication to conditional fee); Jeffersonville, M. & I.R. Co. v. Barbour, 89 Ind. 375 (1883); Rodenburg v. Rodenburg, 74 N.W.2d 241 (Iowa 1956)(conditional fee becomes fee simple absolute on birth of children); Brooks v. Kimball County, 256 N.W. 501 (Neb. 1934); Erskine v. Board of Regents, 104 N.W.2d 285 (Neb. 1960)(a fee subject to a conditional limitation unaffected by the doctrine of substantial compliance); Cox v. Hinshaw, 40 S.E.2d 358 (N.C. 1946); Maddox v. Adair, 66 S.W. 811 (Tex. Civ. App. 1901); St. Clara College v. Madison, 27 N.W.2d 745 (Wis. 1947); Carey v. Casper, 213 P.2d 263 (Wyo. 1950).

Contra, Ralston v. Hatfield, 143 N.E. 887 (Ind. App. 1924).

(n2)Footnote 740. Little Rock & Ft. S.R. Co. v. Birnie, 26 S.W. 528 (Ark. 1894); Stansbery v. First N. E. Church, 154 P. 887 (Or. 1916).

Devise on condition precedent of support held substantially performed when health conditions prevented further support through no fault of devisee. In re Lipiec's Will, 236 N.Y.S.2d 199 (1962).

If the literal performance of a condition subsequent in a will is impossible by reason of circumstances over which the devisee has no control and through no fault on the part of the devisee, the condition is deemed satisfied by performance. In re Gagliano's Will, 349 N.Y.S.2d 619 (1973).

(n3)Footnote 741. Board of Commr's v. Russell, 174 F.2d 778 (10th Cir. 1949); Wilson v. Galt, 18 Ill. 431 (1857); Yazoo & M.V.R. Co. v. Lakeview Traction Co., 56 So. 393 (Miss. 1911); Chapin v. Sch. Dist. No. 2, 35 N.H. 445 (1857); Southard v. New Jersey Cent. R. Co., 26 N.J.L. 13 (1856); Spaulding v. Hallenbeck, 39 N.Y. (Barb.) 79 (1862); Avery v. New York Cent. & H. R. Co., 24 N.E. 20 (N.Y. 1890); Plummer v. Neile, 6 Pa. (Watts & Serg.) 91 (Pa. 1843).

Mere technical deviation is not breach. Lowe v. Ruhlman, 155 P.2d 671 (Cal. App. 1945); Rose v. Hawley, 23 N.E. 904 (N.Y. 1890); Williams v. Downing, 95 P.2d 612 (Okla. 1939).

(n4)Footnote 742. Higbee v. Rodeman, 28 N.E. 442 (Ind. 1891).

(n5)Footnote 743. Support for 12 years was held sufficient compliance with condition, as to make a reconveyance to grantor on failure to support, a conveyance in fraud of creditors of original grantee. Farmer v. Fruehauf Trailer Co., 76 N.W.2d 859 (Mich. 1956).

(n6)Footnote 744. Brooks v. Kimball County, 256 N.W. 501 (Neb. 1934).

(n7)Footnote 745. Simpson v. Simpson, 141 So. 50 (La. 1932).

Where the condition was for the payment of a certain annuity by the grantee to the grantor on a given day in each year during the life of the grantor, the condition was not broken so long as the annuity was not in arrears.

> The annuity, although payable in money, could be discharged by payment otherwise, by mutual stipulation and consent; and if the grantor, after he had parted with the property, agreed to take, in lieu of the annuity stipulated in the deed, the rents and profits of the premises produced by his own management and superintendence of the property, and did in fact take charge of the property and receive the rents and profits in accordance with this agreement, this was a discharge of the annuity as to each year in which payment was received in this manner.

Parol evidence of such agreement is admissible. Denham v. Walker, 21 S.E. 102 (Ga. 1893); Hylton v. Krueger, 294 N.W. 485 (Neb. 1940).

(n8)Footnote 746. Kramer v. Mericle, 192 N.W. 257 (Iowa 1923). See Gillock v. Williams, 250 S.W. 836 (Ky. 1923).

In such cases if the condition has been substantially breached, equity will declare and enforce a forfeiture of the estate conveyed. Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925).

A grantee who has complied with the conditions in the deed for almost 65 years is considered as having a complete fee, and the grantor, his successor, and representatives have no further reversionary rights. Calvary Presbyterian Church v. Putnam, 221 N.Y.S. 692, aff'd, 224 N.Y.S. 651 (1927)(all reason for requiring that the possibility of reverter should be kept longer in existence, or that the property should continue longer to be used for the purpose specified sixty-five years ago by the ancestor's grantor, are less important than that the absolute title should be somewhere).

(n9)Footnote 747. Borys v. Halko, 188 A. 539 (Pa. Super. 1936). A condition, in a deed to a railroad company of a right-of-way, that it shall erect a station for the convenient shipment of freight, the character of which is not specified, was complied with by erection of a board shed, without the placing of an agent there, it being in structure and in the mode of its management like most of the stations on the road. Caldwell v. East Broad Top R. & Coal Co., 32 A. 85 (Pa. 1895).

A grantor conveyed to a railroad company a strip of land between grantor's hotel and the company's depot property, which was south of the hotel. The deed contained a clause that the conveyance was "on condition that the said railroad company... shall at all times maintain an opening into the premises hereby conveyed, opposite the Exchange Hotel, so called, adjacent to the premises hereby conveyed, for the convenient access of passengers and their baggage to and from said premises." At the time of the conveyance, defendant's trains stopped opposite to the hotel, so that passengers would cross the strip conveyed in reaching the hotel. Afterwards defendant erected a depot on the west side of the hotel, closed up the opening in the strip and opened a gateway on the east side of the depot, leading directly into the hotel property, but not across the strip. It was held that, as the purpose of the clause was to secure to the hotel a direct communication with the depot, this was a substantial and sufficient compliance with it. Avery v. New York Cent. & H.R. Co., 24 N.E. 20 (N.Y. 1888).

A condition that a manufacturing company shall "transfer" its "works" to certain land does not require that the identical buildings and machinery be removed. Hanna v. South St. Joseph Land Co., 28 S.W. 652 (Mo. 1894).

Where a life estate was reserved to the grantor, provided he should at all times keep the property insured for the benefit of those owning the insurable interest, and by oversight the policy was written payable to the grantor alone, the life estate was held not to be forfeited, especially as the grantee failed for ten years to call attention to the form of the policy, and did not ask to have a proper one taken out, and as it appeared that the grantor in good faith attempted to comply with the conditions of the deed. Hurto v. Grant, 57 N.W. 899 (Iowa 1894).

(n10)Footnote 748. "Where there has been a change in the uses to which property in the neighborhood is being put, so that such property is no longer residence property, it would be oppressive and inequitable to give effect to restrictions where the changed condition of the locality has resulted from other causes than their breach." Miles v. Hollingsworth, 187 P. 167 (Cal. App. 1919); Downs v. Kroeger, 254 P. 1101 (Cal. 1927); Wilshire Oil Co. v. Star Petroleum Co., 269 P. 722 (Cal. App. 1928).

It has been held that a deed to a railroad company containing a clause "for the construction of a double track of railway" is not subject to be defeated in case the company should cease to use the land for the purpose mentioned. Killgore v. Cabell County Ct., 92 S.E. 562 (W. Va. 1917).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.22

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.22 Impossibility of Performance of Conditions.

[Go To Supp]

The legal consequences of a condition becoming impossible of performance depends upon whether the condition is precedent or subsequent to the vesting of the estate. If a condition precedent becomes impossible, the grant fails because no estate vests in the grantee until the condition is performed. n749

Conditions subsequent impossible of performance are void. n750 "If they be impossible at the time of their creation, or afterwards become impossible by the act of God, or the act of the feoffor himself, or if they be contrary to law, or repugnant to the nature of the estate, they are void." The estate in such case becomes absolute in the grantee immediately upon the execution of the deed. "For he hath by the grant the estate vested in him, which shall not be defeated afterwards by a condition either impossible, illegal, or repugnant." n751 Where the performance of the condition has become impossible without any fault on the part of the devisee, the condition in the eye of the law is not broken, and there is no defeasance. n752 If the condition be not impossible of performance at the time of its creation, but is subsequently rendered impossible of performance by the act of the grantor, n753 or by an unavoidable accident or by act of God, n754 the estate will vest free of the condition. n755 However, a condition for the care and support of the grantor has been held finally and irremedially breached by the death of the grantee prior to the death of the grantor, and the latter may elect to declare a forfeiture by reason thereof. n756

If the performance of the condition, whether precedent or subsequent, is rendered impossible by the grantor's own act, he cannot complain of a breach of it and regain the estate by a re-entry. n757 The condition is no longer binding, and the estate is discharged therefrom. A grantor who enters before a breach of the condition prima facie prevents a performance of the condition. n758 A condition is void if it is stated so indefinitely that it is impossible to determine with certainty the event upon which the estate is to arise or be defeated. n759 There has also developed a doctrine that where the land situations which occasioned the making of the condition have so changed the condition would no longer be imposed, today the condition becomes void. n760

When the condition subsequent becomes impossible of performance a limitation over in breach fails and the fee simple becomes absolute. n761 When the event upon which the fee is to be defeased becomes impossible, the fee becomes a fee simple absolute. n762

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: impossible w/15 perform! w/5 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 749. Stockton v. Weber, 33 P. 332 (Cal. 1893); Jones v. Bramblett, 2 Ill. 276 (1836); Blean v. Messenger, 33 N.J. L. 499 (1869); Martin v. Ballou, 13 N.Y. (Barb.) 119 (1852); In re Bottenwieser's Estate, 54 N.Y.S.2d 422 (1944); Cox v. Hinshaw, 40 S.E.2d 358 (N.C. 1946).

"A right or interest in land which depends upon a condition precedent does not vest until or unless the condition is performed, although it is or becomes, for any reason, impossible of performance." Hobart v. Kehoe, 126 N.W. 66 (Minn. 1910).

In a sale and conveyance by a railroad company of its right-of-way, roadbed, and property in general to another railroad company, conditions that the deed should not become operative until the purchasing corporation should, among other things, complete the road within a given time and issue paid-up stock to the selling company, are conditions precedent, and, if the conditions are not complied with, upon the bankruptcy of the purchasing company, the conditions become impossible of performance, and the title remains, and must remain, in the selling company. Tennessee & C.R. Co. v. East Ala. R. Co., 73 Ala. 426 (1882).

(n2)Footnote 750. Sheppard-Touchstone, Common Assurance, 132; Hughes v. Edwards, 22 U.S. (9 Wheat.) 489 (1824); Finlay v. King's Lessee, 28 U.S. (3 Pet.) 346 (1830); United States v. Arredondo, 31 U.S. (6 Pet.) 691 (1832); Davis v. Gray, 83 U.S. (16 Wall.) 203 (1872); Rogers v. Sebastian, 21 Ark. 440 (1860); Stockton v. Weber, 33 P. 332 (Cal. 1893); Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); Jones v. Walker, 13 Ky. (B. Mon.) 163 (1852); Ricketts v. Louisville, St. Louis & T.R. Co., 15 S.W. 182 (Ky. 1891); Scott v. Ratliff, 200 S.W. 462 (Ky. 1918); Randall v. Marble, 69 Me. 310 (1879); Morse v. Hayden, 19 A. 443 (Me. 1889); Merrill v. Emery, 10 Mass. (Pick.) 507 (1830); Parker v. Parker, 123 Mass. 584 (1878); Hamel v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S.S.M.R. Co., 107 N.W. 139 (Minn. 1906); Barksdale v. Elam, 30 Miss. 694 (1855); Clarke v. Brookfield, 81 Mo. 503 (1884); German Evangelical Protestant Congregation v. Schreiber, 209 S.W. 914 (Mo. 1918); Latorraca v. Latorraca, 26 A.2d 522 (N.J. Eq. 1942), aff'd, 31 A.2d 819 (N.J. Eq. 1943); Martin v. Ballou, 13 N.Y. (Barb.) 119 (1852); Plumb v. Tubbs, 41 N.Y. 442 (1869); In re Gimbel's Estate, 42 N.Y.S.2d 253 (1943); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887); Lamb v. Miller, 18 Pa. 448 (1852); In re Culin's Appeal, 20 Pa. 243 (1853); Wheeler v. Moody, 9 Tex. 372 (1853); Blanchard v. Morey, 56 Vt. 170 (1883); Ordway v. Farrow, 64 A. 6 (Vt. 1906); Jones v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 14 W. Va. 514 (1878); Burnham v. Burnham, 48 N.W. 661 (Wis. 1891); Doe d. Anglesea v. Rugeley, L.R. 6 Q.B. 107.

(n3)Footnote 751. 2 Bl. Comm. 156; Parker v. Parker, 123 Mass. 584 (1878).

(n4)Footnote 752. Hammond v. Hammond, 55 Md. 575 (1880); Woods v. Woods, 44 N.C. 290 (1853); Lynch v. Melton, 64 S.E. 497 (N.C. 1909); Berry v. Cooley, 109 P.2d 1081 (Okla. 1940).

Impossibility of performance creates fee simple absolute. First Lutheran Church v. Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church, 147 N.E. 53 (Ill. 1925); Hoss v. Hoss, 39 N.E. 255 (Ind. 1894).

(n5)Footnote 753. Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); Ricketts v. Louisville, St. L. & T.R. Co., 15 S.W. 182 (Ky. 1891); Michigan State Bank v. Hastings, 1 Mich. (Doug.) 225 (1844); Ordway v. Farrow, 64 A. 1116 (Vt. 1906).

(n6)Footnote 754. Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); Gillock v. Williams, 250 S.W. 836 (Ky. 1923); Michigan State Bank v. Hastings, 1 Mich. (Doug.) 225 (1844); True v. Cook, 60 A.2d 138 (N.H. 1948).

(n7)Footnote 755. Jackson v. Knapp, 130 N.E. 524 (Ill. 1921); First Lutheran Church v. Rooks Creek Evangelical Lutheran Church, 147 N.E. 53 (Ill. 1925)(same is true if performance is prevented by a subsequent law or if the condition is illegal, or if the impossibility of performance occurs because of the acts of the person for whose benefit the performance is to be made); Vicksburg & M. R. Co. v. Ragsdale, 54 Miss. 200 (1876); Adams v. Lipscomb, 120 S.E. 590 (W. Va. 1923). As to the effect of change of conditions on rights of re-entry and possibilities of reverter, see Comment, Future Interests Effect of Changes of Conditions on Rights of Entry and Possibilities of Reverter Created to Control the Use of Land, 53 Mich. L. Rev. 246 (1954).

(n8)Footnote 756. Hannah v. Culpepper, 104 So. 751 (Ala. 1925)(delay in declaring forfeiture held not to defeat rights). See Pomerleau v. Pomerleau, 124 A. 243 (Me. 1924).

A devise to the widow as long as she remains single created a fee simple determinable. Raulerson v. Saffold, 61 So. 2d 926 (Fla. 1952).

(n9)Footnote 757. United States v. Arredondo, 31 U.S. (6 Pet.) 691 (1832); Houghton v. Steele, 58 Cal. 421 (1881); Taylor v. Sutton, 15 Ga. 103 (1854); Jones v. Bramblett, 2 Ill. 276 (1836); Elkhart Car-Works Co. v. Ellis, 15 N.E. 249 (Ind. 1888); Leonard v. Smith, 45 N.W. 762 (Iowa 1890); Jones v. Walker, 52 Ky. 163 (1852); Ricketts v. Louisville, St. Louis & T. R. Co., 15 S.W. 182 (Ky. 1891); Gray v. Blanchard, 8 Mass. (Pick.) 284 (1829); Whitney v. Spencer, 4 N.Y. (Cow.) 39 (1825); Young v. Hunter, 6 N.Y. 203 (1852); Mizell v. Burnett, 49 N.C. (4 Jones) 249 (1857); Jones v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co., 14 W. Va. 514 (1878).

"One who prevents the performance of a condition, or makes it impossible by his own act, will not be permitted to take advantage of the nonperformance." Harwood v. Shoe, 53 S.E. 616 (N.C. 1906).

(n10)Footnote 758. Elkhart Car-Works Co. v. Ellis, 15 N.E. 249 (Ind. 1888).

(n11)Footnote 759. Sheppard-Touchstone Common Assurance, 128. Doe d. Wyndham v. Carew, L.R. 2 Q.B. 317; Fillingham v. Bromley, Turn & Russ 530.

(n12)Footnote 760. Letteau v. Ellis, 10 P.2d 496 (Cal. App. 1932); Tower v. Compton Hill Imp. Co., 91 S.W. 104 (Mo. 1905); Koehler v. Rowland, 205 S.W. 217 (Mo. 1918); Slegel v. Herbine, 23 A. 996 (Pa. 1892); Daggett v. Ft. Worth, 177 S.W. 222 (Tex. Civ. App. 1915); Koonz v. Joint Sch. Dist. No. 4, 41 N.W.2d 616 (Wis. 1950).

Changed conditions justified a court of equity from enforcing a forfeiture of a condition subsequent. Note, Property: Right of Re-entry for condition Broken: Enforciability, 42 Cal. L. Rev. 194 (1954).

(n13)Footnote 761. In re Vail's Estate, 87 So. 2d 68 (Miss. 1956).

(n14)Footnote 762. Id.; Comford v. Cantrell, 151 S.W.2d 1076 (Tenn. 1941).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES *

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 20.23

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 20.23 Equitable Relief Against Forfeiture.

[Go To Supp]

The extent to which the courts of equity went in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries to prevent forfeiture in fees upon conditions subsequent has been elsewhere shown. While this tender regard for the holder of the fee has not been so clearly evidenced in other instances of fees upon condition subsequent, yet the general distaste of equity for a forfeiture is well recognized.

The tendency of the courts is to moderate the rigors of the common law, in respect to the breach of conditions, upon the principle that the court ought to relieve against all forfeitures and penalties, when compensation can be awarded. n763 A court of equity will grant relief against a forfeiture of land for a condition broken when the breach is not gross and wilful, the condition is for the payment of money or for doing something, the failure to do which is susceptible of a definite compensation in damages. n764 Where no real fault has been committed or the breach has been induced or waived by conduct, as well as when by accident or mistake there has been some breach of a collateral covenant, such as to repair or insure, and where the grantor may be placed in the same position as if the breach had not occurred, equity will relieve against forfeiture by an award of damages or otherwise. n765 The jurisdiction in equity to grant relief against forfeiture is confined to cases which admit of compensation in damages. n766

The courts are not in accord as to whether the terra tenant has the right, upon termination of a qualified fee, to remove the improvements made by him. n767

A court of equity will not ordinarily lend its aid to enforce a forfeiture because of the breach of a condition subsequent in a deed or contract conveying property, n768 nor will a court of equity enforce specific performance of that, in a deed, the non-performance of which works a forfeiture of the estate. n769 Thus, while equity has plenary jurisdiction in the administration of trust estates in the hands of trustees, such court has no jurisdiction of an action seeking to terminate the trust by the enforcement of a forfeiture clause in the deed and contract by reason of a breach of a condition subsequent therein. n770 A court of equity will not lend its aid to enforce a forfeiture for the breach of a condition subsequent where the forfeiture attempts to secure the performance of an obligation to pay a definite sum, readily compensable in an action at law. n771

A court of equity, when merely asked to enforce a condition as a covenant or agreement, may lend its aid to compel the party to abide by the covenant, and to this end may restrain a breach of a reasonable and legal condition by injunction. A court of equity will so interfere notwithstanding the fact that forfeiture is presented as the penalty of the breach. Thus, where a conveyance was made upon the express condition that intoxicating liquors should not be sold upon the granted land, with a provision that the property should revert to the grantor upon a breach of the condition, the condition was enforced by issuing a perpetual injunction against the carrying on of the business of dealing in intoxicating drinks on the land conveyed. n772 While, as a general rule, a court of equity will not declare a forfeiture, it will, when by reason of a breach of a condition subsequent the conscience of the situation demands it, declare that a forfeiture has occurred and cancel the instrument, especially if to uphold the instrument as valid after breach thereof would be inequitable and unjust. n773 Thus, a conveyance in consideration of support, although absolute in form, is treated by a court of equity as though expressly made on a condition subsequent, so that, on a breach, the grantor's heirs may make re-entry and bring an action to quiet title and cancel the deed. n774 Slight circumstances will be seized upon to prevent forfeiture. n775

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS: equit! w/2 relief w/5 forfeit! w/30 condition! subsequent or precedent

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 763. Sheets v. Vandalia R. Co., 127 N.E. 609 (Ind. App. 1920).

(n2)Footnote 764. 2 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.), §§ 1313-1323; Pomeroy, Equity Jurisprudence, § 381.

Marwick v. Andrews, 25 Me. 525 (1846); Rowell v. Jewett, 69 Me. 293 (1879); Sanborn v. Woodman, 5 Mass. (Cush.) 36 (1849); Hancock v. Carlton, 6 Mass. (Gray) 39 (1856); Takacs v. Takacs, 26 N.W.2d 712 (Mich. 1947); Bethlehem v. Annis, 40 N.H. 34 (1860); Spaulding v. Hallenbeck, 39 N.Y. (Barb.) 79 (1862); In re Wyatt's Claim, 141 N.E.2d 308 (Ohio App. 1955); Carpenter v. Westcott, 4 R.I. 225 (1856); Harkey v. Harkey, 60 S.W.2d 834 (Tex. Civ. App. 1933); Henry v. Tupper, 29 Vt. 358 (1857); Stevens v. Pillsbury, 57 Vt. 205 (1884); Rogan v. Walker, 1 Wis. 527 (1853).

In Ritchie v. Kansas, N. & D.R. Co., 39 P. 718 (Kan. 1895), Allen, J., said "While the law enforces the lawful contracts of parties, and even gives effect to forfeitures, equity gives relief against the hardships incident to such forfeitures in very many cases."

In some English cases relief in equity has been given only upon the ground of accident, fraud, or surprise. Hill v. Barclay, 18 Ves 56, 16 Ves 402; Reynolds v. Pitt, 19 Ves 134.

See Restatement, Property, § 57, Comment c; Comment, Constitutional Problems Presented by the Retroactive Extinguishment of Forfeiture Restrictions on the Use of Land: Sections 345-349 of the New York Real Property Law, 27 Albany L. Rev. 267 (1963).

(n3)Footnote 765. See Kaplan v. Flynn, 150 N.E. 872 (Mass. 1926).

(n4)Footnote 766. "The true ground of relief against penalties is from the original intent of the case, and the court gives the party all that he expected or desired; it is the recompense that gives the court a handle to grant relief." Peachy v. Somerset, 1 Strange 447.

(n5)Footnote 767. Allowing removal. Low v. Blakeney, 85 N.E.2d 741 (Ill. 1949); Sewell v. Reinhardt, 219 P.2d 996 (Okla. 1950).

Contra, Miller v. Common Sch. Dist. No. 99, 43 N.W.2d 102 (Minn. 1950).

Where a mother conveyed land to her son upon an express condition that he should provide for her maintenance during her natural life, and the son, having maintained his mother many years, died without making any express provision for her by will or otherwise, but leaving ample means for her maintenance, which his representatives offered to apply to that purpose, it was held that if there was any breach of the condition it was a proper case for equitable relief against a forfeiture. Messersmith v. Messersmith, 22 Mo 369 (1856). See Wade v. Major, 162 N.W. 399 (N.D. 1917).

Where land was conveyed to a railway company in consideration that it should erect and forever maintain on such tract a passenger depot and a freight depot, of a size and character suitable and sufficient for the transaction of its business and the accommodation of the public at that point, and to cause all passenger and freight trains to stop at such depots, respectively, so as to transact and perform all business that may be there offered, and it was expressly provided that upon a breach of the condition the land should revert to the grantors, it appeared that there was a substantial breach of the condition, for which a forfeiture was adjudged. It appeared also that the railway company took poosession of the land conveyed, constructed a line of railroads across it, built side-tracks, depot buildings, roundhouse, stockyards, water-tank, and other structures and conveniences for its accommodation thereon. The court, therefore, said that if the railway company elected to retain the land and improvements, they should be permitted to do so on payment of the value of the land, exclusive of improvements placed thereon by the company, measured as of the date of the commencement of this action, with interest from that date. Ritchie v. Kansas, N. & D.R. Co., 39 P. 718 (Kan. 1895).

> The estate granted was the bare land, and that estate, we think, reverts to the heirs of the grantor. The railroad tracks, roundhouse, depot buildings, etc., were not granted by the deed, but have been constructed by the grantee. The values of the various improvements made by the railroad company are not stated in the findings. The defendant, being a railway corporation, has a right to condemn these lands, or so much thereof as is necessary for its use, but, in case of such condemnation, would be required to make full payment therefor. In this case the defendants have not filed any pleading praying relief from the effects of the forfeiture; but as the plaintiffs alleged an equitable estate, and as the rules of pleading in actions of this kind under the Code are extremely liberal, we do not feel at liberty to direct a judgment to be entered on the special findings, which would be inequitable.

See Cohen v. St. Louis, Ft. S. & W. R. Co., 8 P. 138 (Kan. 1885).

(n6)Footnote 768. 2 Story, Eq. Jur. (13th ed.), § 1319.

Horsburg v. Baker, 26 U.S. (1 Pet.) 232 (1828); Kern River Co. v. United States, 257 U.S. 147 (1921); McDonough v. Saunders, 78 So. 160 (Ala. 1917); Montana v. Alabama Fishermens & Hunters Ass'n, 146 So. 805 (Ala. 1933); Kampman v. Kampman, 135 S.W. 905 (Ark. 1911); Warner v. Bennett, 31 Conn. 468 (1863); Barnesville v. Stafford, 131 S.E. 487 (Ga. 1926); Douglas v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co., 20 N.E. 51 (Ill. 1889); Toledo, St. Louis & N. O. R. Co. v. St. Louis & O. R.R. Co., 70 N.E. 715 (Ill. 1904); Patterson v. Vermilion Academy, 144 N.E. 9 (Ill. 1924); Hooper v. Haas, 164 N.E. 23 (Ill. 1928); Strothers v. Woodcox, 121 N.W. 51 (Iowa 1909); Klasener v. Robinson, 100 S.W. 255 (Ky. 1907); Michigan State Bank v. Hastings, 1 Mich. (Doug.) 225 (1844); Michigan State Bank v. Hammond, 1 Mich. (Doug.) 527 (1844); Crane v. Dwyer, 9 Mich. 350 (1861); White v. Port Huron & M. R. Co., 13 Mich. 356 (1865); Wing v. Railey, 14 Mich. 83 (1866); Watrous v. Allen, 24 N.W. 104 (Mich. 1885); Chute v. Washburn, 46 N.W. 555 (Minn. 1890); Memphis & C.R. Co. v. Neighbors, 51 Miss. 412 (1875); Thornton v. Natchez, 41 So. 498 (Miss. 1906); Messersmith v. Messersmith, 22 Mo. 369 (1856); Towne v. Bowers, 81 Mo. 491 (1884); Lackland v. Hadley, 169 S.W. 275 (Mo. 1914); Donoghue v. Tonopah Oriental Min. Co., 198 P. 553 (Nev. 1921); Smith v. Jewett, 40 N.H. 530 (1860); Borchers v. Taylor, 145 A. 666 (N.H. 1929); Spaulding v. Hallenbeck, 39 N.Y. (Barb.) 79 (1862); Livingston v. Thompkins, 4 N.Y. (Johns Ch.) 415 (1820), per Chancellor Kent; Livingston v. Stickles, 8 N.Y. (Paige) 398 (1840); Raley v. Umatilla County, 13 P. 890 (Or. 1887); Coffin v. Portland, 17 P. 580 (Or. 1888); Stevens v. Pillsbury, 57 Vt. 205 (1884); Spies v. Arvondale & C.R. Co., 55 S.E. 464 (W. Va. 1906).

Conditions subsequent are not favored in equity, and in order to invoke a forfeiture some injury must be shown by a party seeking it. In re Young Womens Christian Ass'n, 126 A. 610 (N.J. Eq. 1924); First Christian Church v. Spinks, 260 S.W. 1073 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924).

(n7)Footnote 769. Close v. Burlington, C.R. & N.R. Co., 19 N.W. 886 (Iowa 1884); Woodruff v. Trenton Water Power Co., 10 N.J. Eq. 489 (1856); Woodruff v. Woodruff, 16 A. 4 (N.J. Eq. 1888); Sharon Iron Co. v. Erie, 41 Pa. 341 (1861).

(n8)Footnote 770. Patterson v. Vermilion Academy, 144 N.E. 9 (Ill. 1924).

The general rule is well settled that the equitable relief of rescission of a contract will not be granted for a mere breach thereof. The remedy in such case is ordinarily to be found in an action at law, which will afford an adequate remedy. Nevertheless, where there is a positive provision in the conveyance that noncompliance with its terms shall render it inoperative, a court of equity has jurisdiction to cancel it on such ground. Cheek v. Metzer, 291 S.W. 860 (Tex. 1927).

(n9)Footnote 771. Embleton v. McMechen, 143 N.E. 177 (Ohio 1924).

(n10)Footnote 772. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Anniston Mfg. Co., 65 So. 187 (Ala. 1914); Watrous v. Allen, 24 N.W. 104 (Mich. 1885). See Whitney v. Union R. Co., 11 Mass. (Gray) 359 (1858); Clark v. Martin, 49 Pa. 289 (1865).

(n11)Footnote 773. Shannon v. Long, 60 So. 273 (Ala. 1912).

(n12)Footnote 774. Menge v. Radtke, 269 N.W. 313 (Wis. 1936).

(n13)Footnote 775. Jeffries v. State for Use of Woodruff County, 226 S.W.2d 810 (Ark. 1950).

* This chapter is based in part on Ch. 30, George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes ed. 1979), which made a significant contribution toward preserving the American common law governing defeasible fees.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.01

Supp. to § 20.01 The Defeasible Fee.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Queler v. Skowron, 780 N.E.2d 71 (Mass. 2002) .

Cain et al. v. Finnie, 785 N.E.2d 1039 (Ill. App. Ct. 2003) (fee simple determinable is a fee simple with a condition attached and determined when the condition is at an end).

Add:

Utah Gospel Mission v. Salt Lake City Corp., 316 F. Supp. 2d 1201 (D. Utah 2004) (holding that the owner of a determinable fee is the only party with a present interest in the land, unless and until the violative condition is triggered).

Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America v. Pool, 124 S.W.3d 188 (Tex. 2003) (the habendum clause for a Texas mineral lease conveys a fee simple determinable estate leaving the lessor with a possibility of reverter).

Add:

Piche v. Indep. Sch. Dist. No. 621, 634 N.W.2d 193 (Min. App. 2001) (the term "fee title" is unclear since it can either refer to a fee simple absolute or a defeasible fee).

Add:

Rector v. Halliburton v. Ct. of Appeals of Tenn., at Nashville, 2003 Tenn. App. LEXIS 149 (No. M1999-02802-COA-R3-CV, Feb. 26, 2003) (there are generally two types of easements determinable: one being those that end upon happening of a condition and two being those that end if the grantee fails to comply with some condition).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.02

Supp. to § 20.02 Fee Simple Determinable.

[Go To Main]

Hunt v. South Carolina Forestry Commission, 2004 S.C. App. LEXIS 85 (No. 3767, Mar. 8, 2004) (when a granting clause conveys fee simple absolute the estate may not be limited by subsequent words in the same instrument).

Add:

State v. Hess, 684 N.W.2d 414 (Minn. 2004) (holding that the state's Marketable Title Act extinguished the possibility of reverter for defunct railroad corridors).

Add:

McClure v. England, 2002 Iowa App. LEXIS 1066 (Oct. 16, 2002) (the reversionary language created a fee simple determinable interest in the right-of-way).

Add:

State v. Hess, 684 N.W.2d 414 (Minn. 2004) (a deed conveyed a fee simple determinable rather than an easement, but the state Marketable Title Act extinguished the possibility of reverter).

Add:

Utah Gospel Mission v. Salt Lake City Corp., 316 F. Supp. 2d 1201 (D. Utah 2004) (holding that the owner of a determinable fee has "exclusive right of possession").

Add:

Green Tree Servicing, LLC v. Williams, 659 S.E.2d 193 (S.C. App. 2008) (foreclosure of mortgages given by borrower holding fee simple determinable; mortgagee's interest subordinate to that of grantor to whom the fee simple title reverted).

Add:

Queler v. Skowron, 780 N.E.2d 71 (Mass. 2002) .

Add:

McClure v. England, 2002 Iowa App. LEXIS 1066 (Oct. 16, 2002) (the interest was held to be a fee simple determinable because it would automatically revert to the grantor if the railroad abandoned the right-of-way).

Add to second paragraph in footnote:

Williamson v. Williamson, 2002 Ky. App. LEXIS 1210 (June 14, 2002) (in construing wills the law favors fee simple over life estate).

change the citation "Relekahhodge v. Cavendish Library?" to:

Myrtle Rebekah Lodge v. Cavendish Library, 726 A.2d 86 (Vt. 1999) .

Washington State Grange v. Brandt, 148 P.3d 1069 (Wash. App. 2006) ("reverts back" language in the deed created a fee simple determinable).

Hash v. United States, 454 F. Supp. 2d 1066 (D. Idaho 2006) (deed to railroad construed as fee simple determinable).

Middlebrook Tech, LLC v. Moore, 2004 Md. App. LEXIS 82 (No. 1104, May 7, 2004) (when a limitation on a leasehold is for the benefit of one party alone it is not self-executing).

Ator v. Unknown Heirs, et al, 146 P.3d 821 (Okla. App. 2006) (fee simple determinable conveyed to school for exclusive use for the football program; the condition was violated when the land was used by youth football players in a private program).

Cain v. Finnie, 785 N.E.2d 1039 (Ill. App. 2003) (a fee simple determinable may last forever but may terminate because it is dependent on collateral circumstances that may qualify or debase it).

Add:

Faulkenberry v. Norfolk Southern Railway Co., 2002 S.C. LEXIS 69 (Apr. 29, 2002) (railroad's interest was not a fee simple determinable estate).

Add:

State v. Hess, 684 N.W.2d 414 (Minn. 2004) ("so long as" land used for railroad purposes).

Add:

Bryan v. Big Two Mile Gas Co., 2001 W. Va. LEXIS 190 (Dec. 11, 2001) (a habendum clause in an oil and gas lease, limiting the interest to so long as production in paying quantities continues, conveys a determinable interest).

Add:

Hash v. U.S., 454 F. Supp. 2d 1066 (D. Idaho 2006) (grants to railroad construed as granting fee simple determinable); King Associates, LLP v. Bechtler Development Corp., 632 S.E.2d 243 (N.C. App. 2006) (grants to railroad construed as granting fee simple determinable).

Utah Gospel Mission v. Salt Lake City Corp., 316 F. Supp. 2d 1201 (D. Utah 2004) .

Add:

Green Tree Servicing, LLC v. Williams, 659 S.E.2d 193 (S.C. App. 2008) (grantee's fee simple determinable interest held superior to mortgagee's interest).

Add:

Cellco v. Shelby County, 2005 Tenn. App. LEX IS 9 (Jan. 12, 2005) (No specifically designated words are needed to create a fee simple determinable, only sufficiently clear manifestation of intent to create such).

Add:

see also Commerce Union Bank v. Warren County, 707 S.W.2d 854 (Tenn. 1986) .

Add:

but see Faulkenberry v. Norfolk S. Ry., 563 S.E.2d 644 (S.C. 2002) (despite the language "so long as," the instrument created an easement rather than a fee simple determinable).

Add:

State v. Hess, 684 N.W.2d 414 (Minn. 2004) ("so long as" land used for railroad purposes).

change the citation "Abercrombie v. Simmons?" to read:

Abercrombie v. Simmons, 81 P. 208 (Kan. 1905) .

Add:

Anadarko Petroleum Corp. v. Thompson, 2002 Tex. LEXIS 117 (July 3, 2002) (a mineral lease grants a fee simple determinable in Texas); Guinn Invs. v. Ridge Oil Co., 73 S.W.3d 523 (Tex. App. 2d Dist. 2002) (the oil and gas lease conveyed a fee simple determinable and "cessation of production during the secondary term automatically terminates the lease"); Somont Oil Co. v. A & G Drilling, Inc., 49 P.3d 598 (Mont. 2002) (oil and gases leases transfer a fee simple determinable to the lessee).

Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America v. Pool, 124 S.W.3d 188 (Tex. 2003) (an oil/gas grantee's interest is determinable if upon occurrence of events the lease specifies the estate is terminated).

Add:

Jacobs v. CNG Transmission Corp., 332 F. Supp. 2d 759 (W.D. Pa. 2004) (similar to Texas, but lease for gas and oil only converts to determinable fee in lessee if production occurs); Pace v. Chesapeake Panhandle, LP., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9887 (N.D. Tex. 2004) (In Texas, adverse possession of land after termination of lease, including possession of oil and gas production on the premises grants fee simple determinable interests in those minerals in the adverse possessor).

Add:

see also Snyder v. Monroe, 674 N.E.2d 741 (Ohio App. 1996) .

Add:

Cain v. Finnie, 785 N.E.2d 1039 (Ill. App. 2003) (a fee simple determinable may last forever but may terminate because it is dependent on collateral circumstances that may qualify or debase it).

Add:

Allen v. Hall, 148 P.3d 939 (Utah 2006) (former husband conveyed marital home to former wife on condition that it would revert to him if she moved more than 50 miles away, creating a valid fee simple determinable).

Add:

But see State v. Hess, 684 N.W.2d 414 (Minn. 2004) (holding that the state's Marketable Title Act extinguished the possibility of reverter for defunct railroad corridors).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.03

Supp. to § 20.03 Fees Subject to Executory or Conditional Limitations.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Scott v. Brunson, 569 S.E.2d 385 (S.C. App. 2002) ; See Florence Wagman Roisman, The Impact of the Civil Rights Act of 1866 on Racially Donative Transfers, 53 Ala. L. Rev. 463 (Winter, 2002) (a gift is subject to executory limitation when it is given to a third party upon breach of the restriction).

Add:

Rector v. Halliburton, 2003 Tenn. App. LEXIS 149 (No. M1999-02802-COA-R3-CV, Feb. 26, 2003) (an easement with subject to conditions subsequent continues until the owner of subservient estate exercises his holder's interest).

Add:

Maloof v. Prieskorn, 2004 N.M. App. LEXIS 114 (Aug. 4, 2004) ; Ray v. King County, 86 P.3d 183 (Wash. App., Div. 1 2004) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.04

Supp. to § 20.04 Fees Subject to Conditions.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Webb v. City of Dallas, 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16054 (Tex. Oct. 4, 2001) (holding that the intent to create conditions in a deed must be interpreted using the entire instrument, together with surrounding circumstances). But see Citizens for Squirrel Point v. Squirrel Point Assn., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 458 (D. Me. Jan. 13, 2005) (holding that where language in a deed is unambiguous, only the language of the deed is to be used in determining the parties' intent).

Page 855 insert new note 222.1 after sentence "In an estate on condition, the performance of the condition inures to the benefit of the grantor and his heirs only."

Add: n222.1

Add:

New Covenant Worship Ctr. v. Wright, 601 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (holding that estate continues undisturbed unless and until the right of re-entry is exercised).

change the citation "Burlington & C.R. Co. v. Colorado?" to read:

Burlington Co. v. Colorado E. R. Co., 88

Add:

Cf. 120 Greenwich Dev. Assoc., LLC. v. Reliance Ins. Co., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10514 (S.D.N.Y. Jun. 8, 2004) (in contract dispute court holds that express conditions must be literally performed).

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 222.1. New Covenant Worship Ctr. v. Wright, 601 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (holding that no one but the heirs of grantor may exercise the right of re-entry after breach of condition).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.05

Supp. to § 20.05 The Fee Upon Condition Subsequent

[Go To Main]

Add:

Jacobs v. CNG Transmission Corp., 332 F. Supp. 2d 759 (W.D. Pa. 2004) .

Add:

Swaby v. Northern Hills Regional R.R. Authority, 769 N.W.2d 798 (S.D. 2009) (deed with certain habendum clauses created fee simple estates subject to condition subsequent, and the conditions were breached by abandonment). City of Huntington Woods v. City of Detroit, 761 N.W.2d 127 (Mich. App. 2008) (public golf course held in fee simple subject to condition subsequent).

Additionally, some jurisdictions hold that the inclusion of any language creating a condition subsequent implies a reasonable time to perform the required condition, even in the absence of express designation thereof. Citizens for Squirrel Point v. Squirrel Point Assn., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 458 (D. Me. Jan. 13, 2005) .

Add:

Severns v. Union Pacific R.R. Co., 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 100 (App. 2d Dist. 2002) (If the railroad did not use the property as a right-of-way for six months it could return to the grantor); Emanuel Tractor Sales, Inc. v. Dept. of Transp., 571

S.E.2d 150 (Ga. App. 4th Div. 2002) .

Add:

New Covenant Worship Ctr. v. Wright, 601 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (holding that estate continues undisturbed unless and until the right of re-entry is exercised).

Remove citation below from note 263 and add it to note 264:

Nicoll v. New York & E.R. Co., 12 N.Y. 121 (1854) (It being determined that a condition subsequent was raised by apt and sufficient words, it follows that the estate conveyed remains Defeasible until the condition be performed, destroyed, or barred by the statute of limitations, or by estoppel)

After the citation "Nichols v. Haehn?" add:

rev'd Nichols v. Haehn, 8 A.D.2d 405 (N.Y. App. Div. 1959) .

Rector v. Halliburton, 2003 Tenn. App. LEXIS 149 (No. M1999-02802-COA-R3-CV, Feb. 26, 2003) (an easement subject to conditions subsequent continues until the owner of subservient estate exercises his holder's interest).

Add:

New Covenant Worship Ctr. v. Wright, 601 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (holding that estate continues undisturbed unless and until the right of re-entry is exercised).

Add:

But see Fischer-Marsh v. Fischer, 822 N.E.2d 1055 (Ind. App. 2005) (holding that deeds containing "conditions subsequent" are to be construed strictly because such conditions tend to destroy estates).

Middlebrook Tech, LLC v. Moore, 157 Md. App. 40, 849 A.2d 63, 2004 Md. App. LEXIS 82 (2004) (when a limitation on a leasehold is for the benefit of one party alone it is not self-executing).

Add:

Daughtry v. MPC Sys., Inc., 679 N.W.2d 808 (Wis. App. 2004) .

After the citation "Nichols v. Haehn?" add:

rev'd Nichols v. Haehn, 8 A.D.2d 405 (N.Y. App. Div. 1959) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.06

Supp. to § 20.06 Language Giving Rise to Conditions.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Estate of Hodgkins, 807 A.2d 626 (Me. 2002) .

Ray v. King County, 86 P.3d 183 (Wash. App. 2004) .

Add:

Hunt v. Forestry Commn., 595 S.E.2d 846 (S.C. App. 2004) .

Add:

New Covenant Worship Ctr. v. Wright, 601 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (Court emphasizes that creation of condition subsequent must be made expressly).

Add new note 292.1 after sentence "While the courts are slow to imply a construction of dubious language that will create a condition subsequent, such conditions are legal and will be enforced if it is clear that the parties did intend a condition and not a covenant or other legal result."

Add new note 292.1: n292.1

Add:

But see Hunt v. S.C. Forestry Comm'n, 358 S.C. 564, 595 S.E.2d 846 (S.C. App. 2004) .

Alby v. Banc One Financial, 82 P.3d 675 (Wash. App. 2003) (possibility of reverter may be freely alienated by the grantor without affecting the grantee's interest).

Add:

see also, Commerce Union Bank v. Warren County, 707 S.W.2d 854 (Tenn. 1986) .

Rector v. Halliburton, 2003 Tenn. App. LEXIS 149 (No. M1999-02802-COA-R3-CV, Feb. 26, 2003) (an easement subject to conditions subsequent continues until the owner of subservient estate exercises his holder's interest).

Add:

But see Hunt v. S.C. Forestry Comm'n, 358 S.C. 564, 595 S.E.2d 846 (S.C. App. 2004) .

Add:

New Covenant Worship Ctr. v. Wright, 601 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (Court emphasizes that creation of condition subsequent must be made expressly).

Dep't of Natural Res. v. Carmody-Lahti Real Estate, 2003 Mich. App. LEXIS 1330 (No. 240908, June 3, 2003) (a statement of use is not a reverter clause but is merely a declaration of the purpose of the conveyance).

Add:

Fischer-Marsh v. Fischer, 822 N.E.2d 1055 (Ind. App. 2005) (holding that oral agreements not otherwise memorialized in a deed is insufficient to attach a condition subsequent to the fee).

Add:

New Covenant Worship Ctr. v. Wright, 601 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (Court emphasizes that creation of condition subsequent must be made expressly).

After the citation "Green v. Jones ... " add:

overruled in part, Hardee v. Hardee, 93 So. 2d 127 (Ala. 1956) .

Add:

But see Hunt v. S.C. Forestry Comm'n, 358 S.C. 564, 595 S.E.2d 846 (S.C. App. 2004) .

FOOTNOTES:
(n2)Footnote 292.1. Such is not the case in all jurisdictions, however. In South Carolina, for example, the general rule is that the language found in the granting clause of the deed is what controls what particular estate is conveyed by the instrument. Thus, a granting clause that does not explicitly convey a fee subject to condition subsequent will convey a fee simple absolute, and this true even when the grantor manifests intentions to the contrary elsewhere in the deed. Hunt v. Forestry Commn., 595 S.E.2d 846 (S.C. App. 2004) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.07

Supp. to § 20.07 Abhorrence of Conditions.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Ray v. King County, 86 P.3d 183 (Wash. App. 2004) (deed); McGirt v. Nelson 599 S.E.2d 620 (S.C. App. 2004) (will).

Add:

Fischer-Marsh v. Fischer, 822 N.E.2d 1055 (Ind. App. 2005) (holding that conditions subsequent are disfavored in the law because they destroy estates).

Add:

See Fischer-Marsh v. Fischer, 822 N.E.2d 1055 (Ind. App. 2005) .

Add:

Alby v. Banc One Financial, 82 P.3d 675 (Wash. App. 2003) .

Add:

Karam v. High Hampton Dev., Inc., 2003 Ohio App. LEXIS 2972 (No. 21265, June 25, 2003) (the goal of interpreting a restrictive covenant is to determine the intent of the parties).

Ray v. King County, 86 P.3d 183 (Wash. App. 2004) (grantor must succeed in quiet title action on own strength of claim, and cannot prevail based upon weakness of grantee's title).

Searle v. UDI Fishman, 2003 Cal. App. Unpub. LEXIS 7801 (No. H021719, August 14, 2003) (intent of parties may be shown by the facts and circumstances of the parties at the time of a conveyance).

Country Club Dist. Homes Assoc. v. Country Club Christian Church, 118 S.W.3d 185 (Mo. Ct. of Appeals, 2003) (restrictive covenants are "strictly construed" because the law favors free use of real property); Jones v. Ladriere, 108 S.W.3d 736 (Mo. App. 2003) (restrictions upon a fee will not be extended by implication to include anything not clearly expressed).

Searle v. UDI Fishman, 2003 Cal. App. Unpub. LEXIS 7801 (No. H021719, Aug. 14, 2003) (intent of parties may be shown by the facts and circumstances of the parties at the time of a conveyance).

Add:

rev'd, 26 A.D.2d 740, (N.Y. App. Div. 1966) .

Add:

See Fischer-Marsh v. Fischer, 822 N.E.2d 1055 (Ind. App. 2005) .

Add:

Alby v. Banc One Financial, 82 P.3d 675 (Wash. Ct. of Appeals 2003) (possibility of reverter may be freely alienated by the grantor without affecting the grantee's interest).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.08

Supp. to § 20.08 Meaning of "Death Without Issue."

[Go To Main]

Add:

Peters v. Allison, 814 N.E.2d 568 (Ohio App. 2004) .

After the citation "Hays v. Cole ... " add:

but see Rainey v. Holland, 1999 Ark. App. LEXIS 292 (Ark. Ct. App. 1999) .

After the citation "Hays v. Cole ... " add:

but see Rainey v. Holland, 1999 Ark. App. LEXIS 292 (Ark. Ct. App. 1999) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.09

Supp. to § 20.09 Covenants and Conditions Distinguished.

[Go To Main]

Camenisch v. City of Stanford, 2003 Ky. App. LEXIS 211 (No. 2002-CA-000962-MR, Aug. 29, 2003) (a covenant rather than a condition subsequent occurs when property is granted for particular uses but without words of forfeiture); Snyder v. Chester County Mut. Ins. Co., 264 F. Supp. 2d 332 (D. Md. 2003) .

Add:

Dieckmeyer v. Redevelopment Agency of City of Huntington Beach, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895 (Cal. App. 2005) (holding that a court has a duty to interpret covenant language commensurate with purpose of contract).

Add:

Dieckmeyer v. Redevelopment Agency of City of Huntington Beach, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895 (Cal. App. 2005) (parties intent to be used to discern purpose of contract).

Rector v. Halliburton, 2003 Tenn. App. LEXIS 149 (No. M1999-02802-COA-R3-CV, Feb. 26, 2003) (an easement subject to conditions subsequent continues until the owner of subservient estate exercises his holder's interest).

Add:

O'Brien v. Bocchino, 13 A.D.3d 1055 (N.Y. App. Div. 2004) ; Gilbert v. Beaver Dam Ass'n of Stratford Inc., 858 A.2d 860 (Conn. App. 2004) ; Dent v. Lovejoy, 857 A.2d 952 (Conn. App. 2004) .

Camenisch v. City of Stanford, 2003 Ky. App. LEXIS 211 (No. 2002-CA-000962-MR, Aug. 29, 2003) (a covenant rather than a condition subsequent occurs when property is granted for particular uses but without words of forfeiture).

Add:

In re Ames Dept. Stores, Inc., 316 B.R. 772, 786 n. 55 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 2004) (footnote mentioning importance of language creating right of re-entry to create a condition).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.10

Supp. to § 20.10 Statements of Consideration as Implying Conditions.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Cf Hunt v. S.C. Forestry Comm'n, 358 S.C. 564, 595 S.E.2d 846 (S.C. App. 2004) (holding that breach of condition to maintain fire towers did not cause land to revert to grantor's assignee of the reversionary interest).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.11

Supp. to § 20.11 Provisions for Support or Rendition of Service as Creating Conditions.

[Go To Main]

After the citation "Tibbetts v. Krall ... " add:

but see Drudge v. Brandt, 698 N.E.2d 1245 (Ind. App. Ct. 1998) .

Fischer-Marsh v. Fischer, 822 N.E.2d 1055 (Ind. App. 2005) (recognizing that even though a separate oral agreement in this case was not enough to establish such, the law is well settled that an agreement to provide support as a condition of a land grant vests a type of fee simple subject to condition subsequent in the grantee so long as there is a meeting of the minds that the grantee knowingly takes the land subject to those conditions).

Add:

Dixon v. Dixon, 608 S.E. 2d 849 (S.C. 2005) (holding that mother-grantor failed to show sufficiently egregious breach of agreement to provide support by son-grantee, as to warrant rescission).

change the parenthetical after the first citation of "Hickey v. Lake Shore ... " to read:

(Ohio 1894).

Add:

see also, Drudge v. Brandt, 698 N.E.2d 1245 (Ind. App. Ct. 1998) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.12

Supp. to § 20.12 Validity of Conditions.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Siner v. Am. Gen. Fin., Inc., 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22196 (E.D. Pa. 2004) (holding that illegal loan made entire real estate transaction including transfer and mortgage void ab initio).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.13

Supp. to § 20.13 Conditions that are Void as Against Public Policy.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Sadler v. Creekmur, 821 N.E.2d 340 (Ill. App. 2004) ; One Dupont Centre, LLC v. Dupont Auburn, LLC, 819 N.E.2d 507 (Ind. App. 2004) . Cf. Riverside Park Condo. Unit Owners Assn v. Lucas, 2005 ND 26, 691 N.W.2d 862 (N.D. 2005) (recognizing that restrictive covenants are enforceable if they comply with public policy). But see Hunt v. S.C. Forestry Comm'n 358 S.C. 564, 595 S.E.2d 846 (S.C. App. 2004) (holding that although deed construction requires giving effect as much as possible to intent of grantor, such intent will not be effectuated if it is against law or public policy).

Add:

Hunt v. S.C. Forestry Comm'n, 358 S.C. 564, 595 S.E.2d 846 (No. 3767, Mar. 29, 2004) (the grantor's intention may not be given effect if it contravenes a settled rule of law or public policy).

change the "aff'd" the citation to "Cowell v. Colorado Springs Co. to read:

aff'd., 100 U.S. 55 (1879) .

Add:

Statham v. Kelly, 584 S.E.2d 246 (Georgia 2003) (conditions that are impossible, illegal, or against public policy are void).

After the citation "Winterland v. Winterland ... " add:

overruled, In re Gerbing's Estate, 337 N.E.2d 29, (Ill. 1975) .

Add:

See Maloof v. Prieskorn, 101 P.3d 327 (N.M. App. 2004) (implicitly accepting the validity of restrictive condition that intoxicating liquors not be sold on the property).

After the citation "Commerce Trust Co. v. Weed ... " add:

but see Winningham v. Winningham, 966 S.W.2d 48 (Tenn. 1998) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.14

Supp. to § 20.14 Breach of Condition Not Caused by Grantee or Successors.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Bolz v. Hatfield, 41 S.W.3d 566 (Mo. App. 2001) (holding that a party must make good on performance of a condition unless rendered impossible by an act of God).

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.15

Supp. to § 20.15 Breach of Condition of Particular Use.

[Go To Main]

After the citation "Falula Farms Inc. v. Ludlow ... " add:

but see Nelson v. Provo City, 6 P.3d 567 (Utah Ct. App. 2000) .

Add:

Hunt v. S.C. Forestry Comm'n, 358 S.C. 564, 595 S.E.2d 846 (S.C. App. 2004) (holding that abandonment and subsequent destruction of fire towers, in breach of condition to maintain such, did not cause land to revert to grantor's assignee of the reversionary interest due in part to length of use); Cathedral of Incarnation in Diocese of Long Island, Inc. v. Garden, 697 N.Y.S. 2d 56 (N.Y. App. Div. 1999) (holding that absent any language in the deed itself providing for reversion of a church's estate if the land were no longer used for church purposes, the deed merely creates a right of reentry).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.16

Supp. to § 20.16 Alternative Remedies on Breach of Condition.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Voice of Cornerstone Church Corp. v. Pizza Property Partners, 2005 Tex. App. LEXIS 1804 (No. 03-04-00173-CV, Tex. App., Mar. 10, 2005).

Add:

Perel v. Brannan, 594 S.E.2d 899 (Va. 2004) (manifesting preference for injunctive relief for breach of covenant concerning real property).

Add:

Jacobs v. CNG Transmission Corp., 332 F. Supp. 2d 759 (W.D. Pa. 2004) (holding that right of re-entry created through breach of condition subsequent must be perfected); New Covenant Worship Center v. Wright, 601 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (holding additionally that grantor or grantor's heirs alone may eject under right of re-entry in event of breach).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.17

Supp. to § 20.17 Alternative Remedies on Breach of Condition.

[Go To Main]

Add:

See Fischer-Marsh v. Fischer, 822 N.E.2d 1055 (Ind. App. 2005) (reaffirming doctrine of strictly construing conditions so as to avoid forfeiture); Maloof v. Prieskorn, 101 P.3d 327 (N.M. App. 2004) (same).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.18

Supp. to § 20.18 Waiver of Breach of Condition

[Go To Main]

After the citation "Chertkov v. Southland Corp ... " add:

but see Nicholson Air Services, Inc. v. Allegany County, 706 A.2d 124 (Md. Ct. App. 1998) .

Add:

New Covenant Worship Center v. Wright, 601 S.E. 2d 245 (N.C. App. 2004) (holding that grantor's assigns cannot assert right of re-entry).

Add:

Kappa Sigma Fraternity, Inc. v. Kappa Sigma Fraternity, 587 S.E.2d 701 (Va. 2003) (if a legal demand be asserted in equity which is barred by statute, it is also barred in equity).

Cf. State v. Hess, 684 N.W.2d 414 (Minn. 2004) (concerning determinable fee, the state's Marketable Title Act extinguished the possibility of reverter for defunct railroad corridors).

Add:

Dixon v. Dixon, 608 S.E. 2d 849 (S.C. 2005) (mother-grantor waived any possible further future violation of condition to provide care when she changed locks on house and forbade son-grantee's entry).

Add:

Dixon v. Dixon, 608 S.E. 2d 849 (S.C. 2005) (holding that son-grantee held property in fee simple absolute after waiver of condition to provide care by mother-grantor).

Add:

Citizens for Squirrel Point v. Squirrel Point Assn., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 458 (D. Me. Jan. 13, 2005) (holding that presence of condition subsequent in deed implies a reasonable time in which to perform the condition).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.19

Supp. to § 20.19 Breach of Personal Conditions.

[Go To Main]

Add:

See Fischer-Marsh v. Fischer, 822 N.E.2d 1055 (Ind. App. 2005) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.20

Supp. to § 20.20 Time for Performance of Condition.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Citizens for Squirrel Point v. Squirrel Point Assn., 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 458 (D. Me. Jan. 13, 2005) (holding that presence of condition subsequent in deed implies a reasonable time in which to perform the condition); Birkholz v. Hardy, 2004 Tenn. App. LEXIS 511 (Tenn. App. August 11, 2004) (same).

Rick v. Middle Tenn. Med. Ctr. et al., 2003 Tenn. App. LEXIS 267 (No. M2000-o01662-COA-R3-CV, Apr. 7, 2003) (law favors construing a condition as a condition subsequent rather than a condition precedent).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.21

Supp. to § 20.21 Substantial Compliance with Conditions.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Dixon v. Dixon, 608 S.E. 2d 849 (S.C. 2005) (holding that son-grantee substantially complied with conditions prior to waiver by of further performance mother-grantor).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.22

Supp. to § 20.22 Impossibility of Performance of Conditions.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Super Saver, Inc. v. Eastgate Assocs., 2002 Cal. Unpub. LEXIS 2481 (App. 2d. Dist., Mar. 29, 2002) ("performance of a condition precedent is excused when the other party prevents or makes impossible the performance of the condition precedent").

Add:

Dixon v. Dixon, 608 S.E. 2d 849 (S.C. 2005) (holding that son-grantee held property in fee simple absolute after mother-grantor made further performance of condition of support and care impossible by changing locks).

Add:

Dixon v. Dixon, 608 S.E. 2d 849 (S.C. 2005) .

Add:

Dixon v. Dixon, 608 S.E. 2d 849 (S.C. 2005) .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.23

Supp. to § 20.23 Equitable Relief Against Forfeiture.

[Go To Main]

Add:

Bell et al. v. Nigro, 2003 Mass. Super. LEXIS 42 (No. 97-2590, Jan. 23, 2003) (forfeiture will not be declared because of a lack of repair that is not substantial).

DiBella v. Fiumara, 2004 Mass. App. Div. LEXIS 7 (Jan. 28, 2004) (equity protects against forfeiture where not real fault is committed and an award of damages or otherwise will place the lessor in the same position as if the breach had not occurred).

Add:

Maloof v. Prieskorn, 101 P.3d 327 (N.M. App. 2004) (proceeding in equity grants only partial forfeiture, holding that conditions, the breach of which will work a forfeiture, are strictly construed so as to avoid forfeiture if possible).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 20 DEFEASIBLE FEES

2-20 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 20.24

Supp. to § 20.24 Bibliography.

[Go To Main]

Add to Articles:

John K. Eason, Article: Private Motive and Perpetual Conditions in Charitable Naming Gifts: When Good Names Go Bad, 38 U. Cal. Davis. L. Rev. 375 (2005).

Tanya D. Marsh, Student Author, Survey: Property Law: "We Just Saw it From a Different Point of View": Recent Developments in Indiana Real Property Law, 37 Ind. L. Rev. 1307 (2004).

Yvonne Mattson, Student Author, Comment: Civil Regulatory Jurisdiction over Fee Simple Tribal Lands: Why Congress is Not Acting Trustworthy, 27 Seattle U. L. Rev. 1063 (2004).

Meese, Leigh Ammons, "Court Defines Power of Release for Fee Simple Determinable," 46 S.C. L. Rev. 134 (Autumn, 1994).

Robin M. Wolpert, Recent Developments in Minnesota Law: Preserving and Promoting Minnestoa's Recreational Trails: State v. Hess, 31 Wm. Mitchell L. Rev. 1133 (2005).

Add to Annotations:

Annotation, Application of Rule Against Perpetuities to Limitation Over on Discontinuance of Use For Which Premises are Given or Granted, or the Commencement of a Prohibited Use, 45 A.L.R.2d 1154 .

Annotation, Change in Character of Neighborhood as Affecting Validity or Enforceability of Restrictive Covenant, 76

A.L.R.5th 337 .

Annotation, Conflict Between Granting and Habendum Clauses as to Estate Conveyed, 58 A.L.R.2d 1374 .

Annotation, Deed to Railroad Company as Conveying Fee or Easement, 6 A.L.R.3d 973 .

Annotation, Devisability of Possibility of Reverter, or of Right of Re-Entry For Breach of Condition Subsequent, 16 A.L.R.2d 1246 .

Annotation, Effect of Impossibility of Performance of Condition Precedent to Testamentary Gift, 40 A.L.R.4th 193 .

Annotation, Effect on Validity and Character of Instrument in Form of Deed of Provision Therein Indication an Intention to Postpone or Limit the Rights of Grantee Until After the Death of Grantor, 31 A.L.R.2d 532 .

Annotation, Executory limitation creating life estate or other interest less than a fee, as operating to defeat the entire fee of the precedent defeasible estate or as merely carving the particular estate therefrom, 140 A.L.R. 941 .

Annotation, Gift or Grant in Terms Sufficient to Carry the Whole Property Absolutely as so Operating Where Followed by a Purported Limitation Over of Property Not Disposed of by the First Taker, 17 A.L.R.2d 7 .

Annotation, Gift Over by Implication After Estate During Life or Until Marriage, Where Property is Expressly Given Over at Death and First Taker Marries, or Vice Versa, 73 A.L.R.2d 484 .

Annotation, Nature of Estate Conveyed by Deed for Park or Playground Purposes, 15 A.L.R.2d 975 .

Annotation, Rights in Condemnation Award Where Land Taken was Subject to Possible Rights of Reverter or Re-Entry, 81 A.L.R.2d 568 .

Annotation, Testamentary Devise or Bequest Conditioned Upon Beneficiary's Supporting or Rendering Services to Named Person as Providing for Condition Subsequent or Precedent, 25 A.L.R.3d 762 .

Annotation, Validity and Effect of Transfer of Possibility of Reverter or Right of Re-entry, Following Conveyance of Determinable Fee or Fee Subject to Condition Subsequent, 53 A.L.R. 224 .

Annotation, Use or exploitation of property for a purpose other than, but not exclusive of, use specified by a deed creating a fee simple determinable or a fee simple subject to condition subsequent, 137 A.L.R. 639 .

Annotation, Validity of Restraint, Ending Not Later Than Expiration of a Life or Lives in Being, on Alienation of an Estate in Fee, 42 A.L.R.2d 1243 .

Annotation, Waiver of, or Estoppel to Assert, Condition Subsequent or its Breach, 39 A.L.R.2d 1116 .

Annotation, Wills: Term "Heirs" as Restricted to Meaning "Children", 37 A.L.R.3d 9 . Annotation, Gift or Other Voluntary Transfer by Husband as Fraud on Wife, 49 A.L.R.2d 521 Annotation, Power of either spouse, without consent of other, to make gift of community property or funds to third party, 17 A.L.R.2d 1118 , sec. 6 Annotation, Partner's Breach of Fiduciary Duty to CoPartner on Sale of Partnership Interest to Another Partner, 4 A.L.R.4th 1122 .

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions 21.syn

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based on Ch. 30 of George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), and describes the American common law on several subjects now largely governed by state statutes. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 21.syn Synopsis to Chapter 21: MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

[Go To Main]Introduction to the Chapter

[Go To Main]Dower at Common Law

21.02(a) The Meaning of "Dower"

21.02(b) The Nature of Inchoate Dower

21.02(c) The Necessity of a Valid Marriage

21.02(d) The Necessity of the Death of the Husband

21.02(e) The Necessity of Seisin or Title in the Husband

21.02(f) Assignment of Dower

21.02(g) Protection of Dower from Acts of the Husband

21.02(h) Property of the Husband in Which the Widow Takes Dower

21.02(i) Dower Consummate, Prior to Assignment

21.02(j) Release of Dower

21.02(k) Loss of Dower Without the Wife's Consent

21.02(l) Separation, Abandonment, Divorce and Murder as Barring Dower

21.02(m) Dower as Against the Husband's Creditors

21.02(n) Election to Take Under Husband's Will as Barring Dower

21.02(o) Valuation of Dower

21.02(p) Quarantine

21.02(q) Statutory Modification and Abolition of Dower

21.02(r) Pre-nuptial Agreements and Jointures as Barring Dower

21.02(s) Jointure Defined

21.02(t) Requisites of Jointure

21.02(u) Loss of Jointure

[Go To Main]Curtesy at Common Law

21.03(a) Husband's Rights at Common Law During Coverture in Realty Belonging to the Wife

21.03(b) The Nature of Curtesy

21.03(c) Essentials of Tenancy by Curtesy According to Blackstone Indicated

21.03(d) Property to Which Curtesy Attached

21.03(e) Rights and Duties of Tenant by Curtesy

21.03(f) How Curtesy Is Defeated

21.03(g) Statutory Changes in Common-Law Curtesy

[Go To Main]Homestead at Common Law

21.04(a) What Is a Homestead?

21.04(b) Nature of Homestead

21.04(c) The "Family"

21.04(d) Interpretation of Homestead Laws

21.04(e) Methods of Establishing the Homestead

21.04(f) Homestead in Undivided Interests

21.04(g) Value of Homestead Taken

21.04(h) Duration of the Homestead

21.04(i) Income from the Homestead

21.04(j) Fraud of the Debtor as Defeating the Homestead

21.04(k) Alienation of the Homestead

21.04(l) Interest, Possession and Use Necessary to Create a Homestead

21.04(m) Time Within Which the Homestead Must Be Claimed

21.04(n) Liability of the Homestead for the Debts and Obligations of the Title Holder

21.04(o) Abandonment as Terminating the Homestead

21.04(p) Effect of Dissolution of the Family Unit Upon the Homestead

21.04(q) What Property Makes Up the Homestead

21.04(r) Effect of Death of Head of the Family

[Go To Main]Bibliography

Professor David A. Thomas n*

J. Reuben Clark Law School
Brigham Young University

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *.
This chapter is based on Ch. 30 of George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), and describes the American common law on several subjects now largely governed by state statutes.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 21.01

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based on Ch. 30 of George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), and describes the American common law on several subjects now largely governed by state statutes. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 21.01 Introduction to the Chapter

Dower and curtesy, which occupy the first two sections of this chapter, have almost disappeared from the American legal scene, yet they have a long and honored common-law history. This chapter reviews and preserves that history. Of more current importance is the law governing marital homestead rights, covered in the concluding section of this chapter.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 21.02

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based on Ch. 30 of George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), and describes the American common law on several subjects now largely governed by state statutes. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 21.02 Dower at Common Law

[Go To Main]

21.02(a) The Meaning of "Dower"

The term "dower" is generally applied to the interest a widow takes in the estate of her deceased husband. Dower exists where a man seised of an estate of inheritance dies in the lifetime of his wife, in which case she was, at common law, endowed of a third of his estate for life. n1

> Tenant in dower is, where a man is seised of certain lands or tenements in fee simple, fee tail general, or as heir in special tail and taketh a wife, and dieth; the wife after the death of her husband shall be endowed of the third part of such lands and tenements as were her husband's at any time during the coverture to have and to hold to the same wife in severalty by metes and bounds for term of her life whether she have issue by her husband or not, and what age soever the wife be, so as she be past the age of nine years at the time of the death of her husband, otherwise she shall not be endowed. n2

At first dower was limited to lands held by the husband at the time of the marriage, but by Magna Carta it was extended to all lands of which the husband was seised during coverture. The statutes of many states declare that a widow shall be endowed of the third part of all the lands whereof her husband was seised of an estate of inheritance at any time during the marriage. n3

The word "dower," in its ordinary acceptation, has been used to designate the statutory right or interest of a widow in the lands of her deceased husband even where such interest was different from the common-law right of dower. n4 In some states, the husband's interest in his deceased wife's real estate is termed "dower." n5

One distinction between "dower" and "curtesy" is that the husband's right of curtesy depends on his having had issue that could have inherited the estate, while the wife's dower is not so dependent. n6

Dower is also sometimes applicable in statutes, wills or contracts to the share given the widow in her deceased husband's personalty. n7

Stated briefly, dower is that estate in the real property of the husband which the law ex proprio vigore gives to the wife. n8

The wife takes the right not by virtue of contract, but by mandate of law. n9 It is an estate created by law rather than by descent. n10 The existence and extent of a common-law or statutory interest of a wife in the lands of her deceased husband are determined by the law of the state where the land is situated. n11

The widow was, however, entitled to have set off from each parcel of her husband's land a tract that would yield her one third of the total revenue of each tract. n12 Where the husband had aliened any tract the widow's share was taken by giving her, if possible, a greater parcel of lands owned by the husband at death; n13 but no such consideration was shown a devisee. n14 The widow could, however, make an agreement "against common right" with the heirs or devisees as to her allotted share. n15

The purpose of dower is to provide an assured means of support to the surviving wife. Just as the law imposes upon the husband the obligation to support his wife during their joint lives, so also the law demands that according to his ability and with the consideration of his children and creditors his estate shall continue to provide for her after his death. n16

Dower is merely an emanation from ownership by the husband and subject to all of its qualifications except his alienations or encumbrances during coverture without her consent, and is merely the interest of the wife as such in his lands, and is a portion of the deceased husband's estate set apart to the widow for her support. n17 It is not a mortgage or a lien, and is an encumbrance only in the sense that it encumbers a title. n18

Discrimination between sexes as to dower is not unconstitutional. n19

The right of the widow in the deceased husband's property may have three sources of recognition. First, it may be a partial return of the bride's dowry; second, it may be a recognition of the efforts of the wife in building the family estate during marriage; third, it may emanate from a public policy of charity for the widow, coupled with a desire to keep the poor rates down by requiring the heirs to support the widow instead of leaving her to be a public charge. Only the first and third considerations seem to find recognition in the English theory, n20 and it is the final proposition that forms the basis of the treatment of widows in much of the United States today.

The tracing of the trail of the historical development of the law of dower is indeed tortuous and devious. n21 The story of the changing picture of "dower" is set to the tune of the varying position of women in the social structure throughout the years. n22

In 1217 and 1224, English charters provided for dower and established the wife's portion at one third part of all the lands that the husband held during coverture, unless the wife had, previous to the marriage, accepted a smaller portion. n23 In Glanvill's time, about A.D. 1175, both the civil and ecclesiastical law required the husband, at the time of the marriage, either particularly to name the portion or, if he did not, the wife was entitled to her reasonable dower, one third of the husband's freehold lands and tenements. He could not endow her with more than one third, nor was she entitled to dower in his future acquisitions unless he so engaged before the priest, and these regulations appear to be precisely like those of the 101st chapter of the Grand Coutumier De Normandie. It is fair to presume that the Normans brought their laws and customs respecting dower into England when they established themselves there. n24 At any rate, we find dower a fixed institution in England as early as the 14th century.

The Visigoths, as they took their long journey from Scandinavia to the foothills of the Caucasus, and thence to the foothills of the Pyrenees, carried with them a concept of matriarchy that flowered in Spain and, thence, to Mexico and on to California, Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Washington and, for a brief time, into other states. This is the "double yoke" of Ferdinand and Isabella, the husband and wife pulling together as a team building up the family fortunes.

The Germanic peoples of the North German fens, however, took a much dimmer view of the importance of the wife in the household. "Kitchen and Kinder" was the woman's role, or at least was her place in English law. n25

It is true that there are glimpses of women playing a prominent role in Anglo-Saxon England. Early the man paid a price for his bride which payment came to be considered the property of the bride. n26 There seems also to have been free ownership and disposal of property by women including an early understanding of jointure.

The position of women deteriorated during the feudal period. Military service, the basic consideration for enfeoffment in the early days after the conquest, made the male of primary importance. n27 Females could not inherit if there were male heirs of equal rank. n28 The married woman was little more than a chattel of her husband. A spouse could never be an heir. At one time, the continental principles of legitime prevailed as to personalty, but these seem to have vanished in the 15th century. n29 From that time on, the spouse was not the next of kin and could not inherit personalty. The spouse not being an heir, none of the husband's realty could descend to her. n30

Gradually, however, "dower" developed. At first, it seems to have been only the return of at least a portion of the gift the husband received upon the marriage. Later, the widow was given the right to "sit by the fire," a home on the husband's lands for the rest of her life.

Blackstone ascribes the birth of common-law dower to a later growth of the feudal system. n31 It is clear that dower had been established by Glanvill's time. n32 Dower rights are established both by Magna Carta and its confirmations of 1216 and 1217.

Three facts are necessary to the existence of the right of dower: First, a lawful marriage; second, seisin of the husband, during the marriage, of an estate of inheritance in land; and third, death of the husband leaving the wife surviving. n33 It will thus be seen that the number of requisites for dower is smaller than those of the estate by curtesy. In the latter estate, as we have seen, there must be birth of issue alive capable of inheriting. n34

In states where the husband's interest in the wife's estate is called dower, as in Illinois for instance, his right is of the same nature as the wife's dower, and is in all respects co-extensive with her right, should she survive him. n35

The husband may validly dispose of his own lands without his wife's consent but, if he does, the grantee takes subject to potential dower if the wife outlives the husband. n36

"Common-law dower," as it flowered in the United States prior to statutory erosion, developed definite legal characteristics:

First: It was by nature inchoate, n37 being neither vested nor contingent. Therefore, during the life of the husband, the wife did not have such a property right as was subject to the protection of the United States Constitution, and state legislatures could abolish dower even as to existing marriages. n38

Second: Under the English concept, dower was merely a right to land, not an interest in land. n39 Thus, the widow had no life estate in any particular tract owned by her husband until the heir assigned dower after the husband's death, although she had a right of action to compel such assignment. n40 Dower is an estate of freehold but not of inheritance. n41 So, as to lands that her husband had alienated during her lifetime without her release of dower, the widow could not claim improvements made by the feoffee after the feoffment, but she could claim improvements on the value thereto made by the heir prior to assignment. n42

In the United States, however, dower became an interest in land, rather than a mere right to land, by statute in some states. Thus, the widow's interest became automatically vested upon her husband's death, making her a tenant in common as to a one-third interest with the heirs, and dispensing with the necessity of assignment by the heir. n43

Third: Dower existed only in realty, not personalty or chattels real, n44 and only in realty of which the husband had been seised at any time during the marriage, n45 and of which any issue that the widow could have had of her husband would have been an heir. n46 Thus, there could be dower in property held as tenants in common n47 but not in property held in joint tenancy, because of the survivorship incident. n48 There was no dower in equitable estates but, by statute of 3 & 4 William IV, ch. 105, adopted by some states in the United States, the widow became entitled to dower in all equitable estates of which the husband died the owner.

There was dower in the partner's interest in partnership realty. This, however, was subject to claims of the partnership creditors.

There was no dower in transitory seisin, as where one took title for the purpose of reconveying. n49 But if one became truly seised, though but for a single instant, there was dower. n50

The widow, even though a second childless wife, took dower in a fee tail since her child, if she had had one, would have taken the fee. n51 The cases are divided as to whether there was dower in a fee simple determinable or in a fee upon a condition subsequent when the fee terminated at the husband's death. n52

There was no dower in a right of re-entry, as where the husband had been disseised. n53 The same rule was early applied to lands where someone held in adverse possession against the husband, but, in most states today, the adverse possessor does not acquire title until the entire possessory period has run, so the widow of the husband has dower when the adverse possessor is ousted. n54 The adverse possessor does, however, have sufficient title that his widow has dower as against the true owner. n55

Even under the common-law mortgage executed before marriage, the widow of the mortgagor had dower in the equity of redemption; n56 but her dower was subject to the vendor's mortgage lien even in the case of a purchase money mortgage executed after title passed to the vendee. n57

Fourth: Dower is not such an interest as can be aliened apart from the husband's estate, n58 but it can be released by the wife when the land is aliened by the husband, n59 or the wife may become estopped from asserting dower. n60

Fifth: The husband cannot alien the land during his lifetime n61 nor devise it upon his death n62 so as to cut off dower. Nor can an execution or judicial sale n63 to satisfy the obligation of the husband alone affect the widow's right to dower. Nor can the husband encumber the realty ahead of the dower right without the wife's consent. n64 Nor may the widow's interest be sold to satisfy the husband's debts after his death. n65

Sixth: The widow had dower only if there had been a valid marriage. n66

Divorce a vinculo terminated the dower right because the marriage must exist at the time of the husband's death. n67 Divorce a mensa et thoro did not defeat dower. n68 Adultery did not bar dower originally yet early by statute elopement with another man destroyed the dower right. n69 Attainder for treason or felony prevented dower. n70

Dower is recognized as a positive and definite institution of the state, and the courts are vigilant in guarding and preserving it. n71 Common-law dower is not successional. n72 Dower is highly favored in the law and the courts exercise an astute and vigilant attitude in protecting it when it exists. n73

21.02(b) The Nature of Inchoate Dower

While the marriage endures, the prospective right that the wife has in the real estate of which her husband has been at any time seised during the marriage is inchoate dower. n74

Upon the husband's death the dower becomes consummate. n75 The wife's right remains inchoate until the death of her husband, n76 even though the property has passed to a third person. n77 It is said that the right of dower is not merely a lien, but is an individual interest which vests at the time of the marriage or as to subsequently acquired property at the time of acquisition by the husband. n78

The wife's right, while inchoate, is not a possessory right, but is a present, subsisting right or interest of a legal character, that can only be extinguished by the voluntary release or act of the wife or by operation of law. n79 While it has been said that the inchoate right of dower is neither title, n80 property, n81 an estate in land, n82 nor a legal or equitable interest in real property, n83 that it is not a vested right, n84 and that it is only a contingent expectancy, n85 it has been said also that such right is not merely a bare possibility, n86 but that it is a right or interest of a legal, equitable and moral nature, n87 subsisting, n88 substantial, n89 possessing attributes of property, n90 favored by the law, n91 ranking in its sacredness next to life and liberty, n92 subject to the protection of equity, n93 has a present cash value capable of computation, n94 and constitutes, or at least resembles, a lien, encumbrance or burden on the husband's title. n95 It has some of the characteristics of an expectancy, which upon the death of the husband becomes a vested right to a life estate in the widow, as provided by statute, with the usual title, right and burdens incident to a life estate; n96 but it is superior to an expectancy in that, generally, the wife's inchoate right of dower is regarded as a right in the land created for her benefit, which attaches as soon as her husband is seised of it, although it is at the time and until his death only a contingent or possible one, like that of an heir before the death of the ancestor. n97 According to some authorities, it is not such an interest in land that, when the land is taken by eminent domain, she is entitled to have such interest provided for out of the proceeds, n98 nor is it such an interest as will prevent the legislature from modifying or repealing laws creating it. n99 Until the death of the husband, it is a mere intangible, inchoate, contingent expectancy. It is not an estate in land, and it does not even rise to the dignity of a vested right, n100 but the right is as much entitled to protection as the right when it is absolute. n101 Other states hold that while an inchoate right of dower is not an estate, but only a right of action, still it is in the nature of a lien on real estate and is considered an encumbrance to be protected. n102 Dower being inchoate may be abolished by the legislature. n103

The wife's interest during coverture is in the nature of a property right, and she cannot be divested of it by any act of her husband, whether done in good faith or in fraud. n104 As such, it is divested only if the wife pre-deceases the husband. n105

At common law, dower remained a personal right n106 even after the husband's death until the heir assigned a particular tract. As such, it was legally unassignable to a stranger, n107 though it might be released to an heir, n108 or the widow might join with the heir in a transfer to a stranger. n109 Under some state statutes, however, unassigned consummate dower is assignable. n110 In equity, however, where there has been a valuable consideration, the courts will enforce the widow's assignment as a contract.

Blackstone and Littleton wrote of four species of dower, which gradually evolved from the various customs as to dower prevailing in the different parts of England: First, by custom; second, at the church door; third, with the assent of the bridegroom's father; and fourth, by the common law. These have, from time to time, been dropped or abolished, except what is known as dower by the common law. n111 "Dower by custom" resulted when a widow was entitled to certain portions of her husband's lands in consequence of some local and peculiar custom which prevailed in the place where her husband's lands were situated. In cases of this kind the wife could not waive the provision made for her and claim dower at common law, because all customs are equally ancient with the common law. In the case of "dower at the door of the church," a man of full age, when he came to the door of the church, endowed his wife of his whole land, the half, or other smaller part thereof. It is claimed that this was the most ancient kind of dower, and was practiced in Europe during the 10th and 11th centuries. "Dower by assent of the bridegroom's father" resulted when the father was seised of tenements in fee, and his son and heir apparent upon his marriage endowed his wife at the church door of a parcel of his father's lands and tenements with the assent of his father, and the father assigned the quantity or parcels.

The suggestion sometimes made that dower is vested in the widow by virtue of the contract of marriage and passes by such contract and not by law, cannot be sustained. The authorities are uniform against this position. n112 The right of dower is an interest or estate arising solely by operation of law and not by virtue of any contract, express or implied, between the parties, although a contract of marriage is one of the essentials to its existence. n113 The right accrues solely because of the marriage relation, and it is in addition to the share of her husband's estate to which she is entitled under the statute of descent. n114 The real basis of the existing law of dower is the common law of England as modified by statutes, ancient and modern. n115 The right of a widow to dower is determined by the law of the state in which the land is situated, regardless of the domicile of the parties and the place of marriage. n116 The law in force at the death of the husband governs the right, n117 while the measure of the right is determined by the law in force at the time of the husband's conveyance, where the wife did not relinquish her right. n118

Under the weight of authority, the dower right or the statutory substitution therefore, is taken independently of and adversely to any right of inheritance or succession. n119 The weight of authority, on the other hand, holds that where the widow elects under the will she takes by devise and is therefore subject to inheritance and succession taxes. n120 Inchoate dower is not assignable and can be released only to the heirs or the husband's grantee. n121 In the absence of statute, the heirs of the husband cannot have the property sold at judicial sale free of the widow's dower. n122

The courts have actually unanimously refused, even in equity, to substitute a money award for the widow's right in land. n123 A wife is entitled to enjoin waste by an alienee of the husband during the husband's lifetime. n124 Dower, being a favorite of the law will always be preserved in case of doubt. n125

It is not unconstitutional for standards to be more liberal with respect to surviving widows than surviving widowers. n126

21.02(c) The Necessity of a Valid Marriage

Whatever the historical basis for dower, it is today universally accepted that no dower rights exist unless there has been a marriage recognized by the law, n127 and proof of such marriage must be made by the woman claiming the right. n128 When she has shown the marriage, the law raises a strong presumption of its legality, and she need not prove the authority of the celebrant or capacity to enter the marriage relation. n129 The burden is then on the defendant to establish the defense that the marriage was void. n130

Under some statutes, a common-law wife is entitled to dower, and her husband's conveyance without her joining in the deed does not defeat her right. n131 If the evidence shows a course of conduct on the part of both parties toward each other and toward the world, so that people generally would consider them husband and wife, and they lived and dwelt together as such, it is sufficient evidence to support a marriage and entitle the wife to dower. n132 Where the statute provides that marriages shall be under a license and solemnized in the manner therein provided, it is held that a widow cannot claim dower in the lands of one deceased with whom she claimed a marriage without a license or celebration. n133 Of course, a void marriage will not support a claim for alimony. n134 Thus, where the marriage is entered into in violation of a penal statute, there can be no dower, n135 and the same is true where one of the parties was, at the time of the marriage, the husband or wife of another person. n136 However, a marriage voidable only, if not annulled during the life of the husband, does not deprive the wife of her dower. n137 If the marriage is valid in the state where solemnized, it will be valid in the state where the land is situated. n138 No dower right can arise under a marriage that was void because of the invalidity of the wife's previous divorce from a former husband. n139

A few states have recognized rights in an unmarried consort n140 where there was no common-law marriage.

Some states are now recognizing quasi-marriages, something between a void common-law marriage and a legal ceremony. n141

21.02(d) The Necessity of the Death of the Husband

Although there have been a few statutory changes, n142 the common-law rule that dower never became consummate until after the death of the husband still prevails. n143 The death of the husband is a fundamental requisite to the wife's claim of dower. n144 Until his death, the wife's interest is contingent only, but she becomes vested if he dies before her. n145 Dower is not created by the death of the husband, but is only consummated thereby. The marriage raised the right of dower, and the death of the husband entitled the widow to its enjoyment. n146

In a few states a vested interest equivalent to dower may arise prior to the death of the husband, so it is sometimes said that a woman need not be a widow to be endowed with her husband's lands. n147 The interest may become vested from other causes, among which are absolute divorce of the parties without fault on the part of the wife, n148 upon assignment by the husband for the benefit of creditors, n149 and in some jurisdictions, upon a judicial sale of the husband's lands. n150 Nothing but the natural death of the husband will entitle the wife to dower n151 but, whatever may have been the rule elsewhere, in this country, at least, dower cannot be claimed by a wife while her husband is yet in the flesh, even though he be serving a life sentence in prison, unless such right be given by statute. n152 In some states the husband's absence for a period of 7 years, during all of which time nothing is heard from him, gives rise to a presumption of his death; especially is this true where it is known that he was subject to imminent peril. n153

The right of dower is inchoate n154 or "in expectancy" n155 during the lifetime of the husband, and becomes consummate n156 or absolute n157 only on the husband's death, and it becomes consummate then "by law, and not by succession or descent." n158

21.02(e) The Necessity of Seisin or Title in the Husband

Common-law dower existed only in lands of which the husband was seised at some time during marriage. n159 A seisin in law was, however, as effective as seisin in deed. n160 The widow's dower at common law included an interest in all the property in which her husband had a freehold estate at any time during coverture, regardless of his dying seised of the same, except when she had barred her dower right in some manner recognized by law. n161 It was essential that a husband should have been seised in possession of a freehold estate of inheritance during coverture in order to entitle his widow to dower in his lands, n162 and an outstanding freehold in another before marriage destroyed her claim. n163

Under some decisions the word "seised" means owned, and the owner of property is one in whom title is vested either absolutely or qualifiedly, so that it may be said that the wife of a deceased husband has an estate for life in one third of all the real estate that the husband owned for his use during coverture. n164 Likewise, dower in personalty relates only to such personal property as the husband owned at the time of his death. n165

Seisin of the husband n166 of an estate of inheritance n167 is essential to the wife's right to dower. This seisin must be one beneficial to the husband himself, and not a mere naked seisin for the benefit of another. n168 The word "seisin" as here used means a seisin accompanied by a beneficial interest. n169 Where the husband's holding was merely that of a trustee, he had no such interest as would entitle the wife to dower. n170 Likewise, where a husband purchased lands, giving his notes as security for the purchase price, but afterwards reconveyed the lands in satisfaction of his notes, it was held that the wife's right of dower did not attach. n171 Also, where a donee has possession of land under a bona fide gift before marriage, the wife of the donor cannot claim dower in the land. n172 Mere naked possession by the husband is not seisin in the sense that the wife can claim dower on account of it, n173 but if the husband has seisin in law, that is, a right to the immediate possession of a freehold, the wife may claim dower, though he never was actually in possession of the land. n174

A wife's inchoate right of dower attaches as an incident of her husband's seisin. n175 An estate of inheritance, legal or equitable, is essential to the wife's right of dower; n176 so a mere equitable interest in realty, consisting of a mere right of possession under a writing, has been held not subject to a dower interest of the widow. n177 A widow cannot be endowed in lands of which her husband, at the time of his death, had only a vested remainder expectant on a life estate, since the husband had neither possession nor any present right of possession and, thus, could not have seisin of any sort. n178 It is held that a widow has no dower right in real estate conveyed by her husband before their marriage in fraud of creditors, upon the setting aside of such conveyance at the suit of a creditor, since he had no seisin during coverture. n179 In a New York case, where the husband never had title to the land, it was held that his widow was not entitled to dower therein, even though the husband had title taken in the name of another for the express purpose of defeating the wife's dower right. n180

Where the same act that gives the husband an estate conveys it out of him, the seisin is termed "instantaneous seisin," and the wife has no claim to dower. n181 If the husband sells land before buying it, his wife may not assert an inchoate interest therein. n182 Also, where the husband takes a conveyance in fee and at the same time mortgages the land to secure the purchase money in whole or in part to the grantor or some other person, his widow is not entitled to dower in the land. n183 If there be an interval of time, however, between the purchase and the making of the mortgage to secure the purchase money, the wife is not barred of her dower by reason of any recital made by the husband in the mortgage deed in which the wife does not join. n184 A wife has a right of dower in the equity of redemption in land mortgaged by a purchase money mortgage given by her husband at the time of a conveyance in fee to him of the land. n185 A release of the purchase money mortgage has the effect of carrying the husband's seisin back to the date of the deed conveying the land to him, and the wife has her right of dower therein. n186 At common law, a widow whose husband dies without redeeming a mortgage executed by him before marriage, is not dowable in the equity of redemption. n187 Where the husband is only the mere conduit for the passage of the title, the wife is not entitled to dower. n188 Some authority may be found for the proposition today that there is dower though another be seised to the use of the husband. n189

The cases have varied widely as to whether a widow on the grounds of fraud or as an "illusory" trust has dower in property transferred by the husband during the marriage without the widow's consent. n190

21.02(f) Assignment of Dower

Under the common-law theory, it is the assignment by the heir of particular lands as subject to dower that creates the estate of freehold in the widow. During the period of quarantine, limited as it was at common law, the real thing of value to her was the right to have her dower set off to her so that she might enter into possession and enjoyment of it. Until assignment, she is not yet considered as having an estate, but a right to have one. This right may be satisfied by the heir voluntarily setting off by metes and bounds the proportionate part of the husband's estate to which the right of dower extends, and this setting off and designating such interest is termed "assignment of dower." n191 The widow has no right to select land on which dower should be allotted. n192 She merely has a right to compel admeasurement or assignment, which right is a chose in action. n193 In point of title, her estate does not arise or take effect out of the ownership of the heir or other person making the assignment, but is considered a continuation of that of the husband. Although between the death of the husband and the assignment of dower a seisin of the heir or another person intervenes, yet upon the assignment she is in by relation from the death of the husband. n194 At common law, the parties by mutual agreement may waive a strict assignment of dower by the heirs according to the rules of law. n195 Her right to have assignment accrues immediately upon the death of the husband. n196

At common law, assignment of dower must be made by the tenant of the freehold, that is, by the heir, devisee or grantee of the husband. n197 Originally, it mattered not that such tenant was an infant n198 but, generally in this country, if the tenant be an infant or non compos mentis, the assignment is usually made by the guardian or next friend of the tenant. n199 No judicial proceedings were required at common law for the assignment of dower. n200 In some jurisdictions, a special process of assignment of the widow's dower is provided by application to some court of record for the appointment of commissioners to make the assignment and make report of their doings. The report becomes a binding judgment upon confirmation by the court. n201 As a general rule, however, assignment is made by the probate court, as a part of its jurisdiction in the administration of the estates of deceased persons. n202 In some jurisdictions, statutory provisions for admeasurement of dower are not exclusive. n203

At common law, assignment of dower is either "of common right," or "against common right." By the former, the widow's interest was set off to her by metes and bounds. n204 This is the method that must be employed where the assignment is without the widow's consent, as by the tenant of the freehold or by the sheriff or other officer authorized by court to make it. n205 Statutes in a number of states provide for this method of assignment. n206 In assigning dower under this method where there are several tracts, it need not be assigned in each tract separately, but may be allotted in a body out of one or more of the tracts, when the same can be done without prejudice to the interests of others. n207

If the husband had sold portions of his estate, the wife not releasing her rights, dower must be set off to her in each of the portions sold, and not in one portion alone, n208 unless there is a statutory provision for the setting off of the whole dower in one tract. n209 It has been held that, where the husband conveyed land with warranty, his wife not releasing her dower, and he left sufficient other lands to satisfy the widow's dower, the purchaser may require that the widow's dower be assigned in the lands left by the husband at his death. n210

The person making the assignment according to common right has a large discretion and, if the circumstances and conditions warrant, he may assign dower in a single tract or in one kind of land to the exclusion of others. n211 So, the assignment must be by metes and bounds and without condition, if the property is capable of division, but if it is of such character that it cannot be measured off and particularly designated, then other methods of assignment may be employed. n212

Assignment against common right is where the widow receives some interest or share in lieu of her one third of the land. n213 Thus, where the property is not susceptible of division, dower will be assigned out of the rents and profits, n214 or sometimes by allowing the widow to use and occupy the land alternately with the tenants in freehold. n215 Where the property consists of mines, an oral agreement to divide the profits and give the widow one third thereof, will be a valid assignment of her dower, n216 or the value of this dower interest in mines may be set out in other property of which the widow is dowable, n217 or she may agree to accept a gross sum to be determined by certain mortality tables. n218

The widow and tenants of the freehold may agree upon a sum of money to her as and for her dower, and such authority is sometimes given by statute. n219 However, by the weight of authority, in the absence of agreement or statutory authority, payment of a gross sum will not constitute an assignment or satisfaction of the claim of dower, even though ordered by a court. n220 At common law, a strict assignment of dower by the heirs according to the rules of law is subject to waiver by the parties by mutual agreement. n221 Thus, the rule requiring the allotment of dower out of each of several parcels of land may be waived by agreement of the parties. n222 A widow has no vested interest in dower until assigned. n223

If the tenant of the freehold fails or refuses to assign the widow her dower, she must seek the aid of the courts. At common law, she could bring an action for a writ of dower to compel assignment. In such action she must allege that she is a doweress and, as such, has obtained no interest in her deceased husband's estate n224 or, if she has been endowed in part and now demands the remainder, she must have recourse to the writ of right of dower. n225 These common-law methods of procedure are retained in the laws of some of our states. n226 In the absence of a statute to the contrary, a proceeding to have dower assigned must be brought in the common-law court, and not the probate court. n227 In some states, it is held that the statutory remedy for the allotment of dower does not exclude courts of equity of their common-law jurisdiction to grant such relief. n228 She may bring an adversary proceeding, in which the court will see that she gets her equitable one-third of the real estate to which her right of dower has attached. n229 In code states, no distinction is made in the form of action, so the action for dower does not differ from any other action. In some states, application must be made to a court of record which appoints a commissioner to assign dower, and the court's approval of his report becomes a binding judgment on all the parties concerned. n230 The assignment of dower in this country is usually by summary proceedings in the courts controlling the administration of decedent's estates. These are generally the county or probate courts. n231

A number of statutes require the action to enforce dower to be brought within a certain period after the husband's death, and a failure to comply with the law in this respect will bar the action. n232 In most states, it is held that the general statutes of limitation are applicable to the action to enforce assignment of dower, even though it be not expressly mentioned in such statute, and the statute begins to run immediately upon the husband's death. n233 This rule is denied in England and in some of the states. n234 In case there is a statute of limitations particularly referring to actions for dower, there can be no question that it controls the action. n235 The filing of a petition by the widow within the statutory period will save her dower from being barred although she may delay prosecution of her claim, provided there has been no act done, change of relations, or conditions making its enforcement inequitable. n236

At common law no demand is necessary to maintain an action for the recovery of dower, n237 unless damages are sought to be recovered for the detention of dower. n238 In some states, however, the statute makes a demand a condition precedent to the maintenance of an action to compel assignment. n239 Where by agreement with one of the heirs the widow remains in possession of real estate and collects the rent, no demand for her dower is necessary. n240 If a demand is necessary, it should be made on the person whose duty it is to assign dower, this being either the person seised of the freehold or the tenant in possession. n241 The demand for dower may be made verbally, in person or by agent, and verbal authority in the agent is sufficient. n242 If the demand is required to be made in writing, it should designate the property in which dower is claimed with reasonable certainty and it must show the nature of the claim. n243

21.02(g) Protection of Dower from Acts of the Husband

Even though dower is actually a result of public policy as an act of charity and does not arise out of contract, it cannot be impaired by an act of the husband without his wife's consent. n244 A husband may execute a valid conveyance of his lands without his wife joining in the deed, but the grantee takes subject to the wife's right of dower, and if she survives her husband she can have her dower assigned to her out of the land. n245 It follows that, as a general rule, the husband cannot do anything that will deprive his wife, against her wishes, of her right of dower n246 and he cannot defeat such right, without her consent, either by a fraudulent acquisition of property in the name of a third person n247 or by a disposition of his property by deed. n248 The right of dower and potential right of dower are so sacred to the wife that a prospective husband cannot convey his real estate to others for the purpose of taking such rights from his prospective wife. n249 Where the statute provides that the widow shall be dowable only of lands of which the husband died seised, his conveyance during coverture will effectually bar dower. n250 The husband cannot deed his property in Nebraska so as to defeat dower, unless his wife is a non-resident. n251 Abandonment of the homestead does not operate as a forfeiture of the wife's dower. n252

But the courts will protect a wife's inchoate right of dower from fraudulent destruction. n253 The wife's right of dower is entitled to protection as well before as after it has become vested, and no act of the husband can prejudice it. n254 A husband cannot lawfully devise his wife's statutory right of dower to others without her consent. n255 Where a mortgage existed against property before dower attached, its subsequent payment and satisfaction operated to fix the wife's dower to the entire property, and a mortgage could not be re-issued so as to cut off her dower without her consent. n256

Equity will grant the wife the same measure of protection as if she were a stranger as against a conveyance in fraud of creditors. n257 Where the conveyance is made before marriage, with the knowledge and consent of the intended wife, she cannot, as his widow, claim dower in the land, n258 but his conveyance made on the eve of the marriage, and without her knowledge, is a fraud upon her rights. n259 The intent to deprive her of her marital rights, which she would otherwise have acquired, is presumed from the circumstances. n260 Where the conveyance was made prior to any agreement to marry, and without reference to any anticipated rights of the prospective wife, it is not fraudulent as to her. n261 If the intent was to defraud whomsoever the grantor might marry, his conveyance is void as to the woman who became his wife, even though he did not know her or was not engaged to her at the time of the conveyance. n262 Some courts, however, take a contrary view, especially if the provision for such child or children be reasonable. n263

If the conveyance is to a bona fide purchaser, however, he is protected as against the claim of dower of the intended wife. n264 In some cases, the general doctrine has been extended to include cases where the owner does not even know whom he intends to marry, if he has a general intention of depriving any future wife of dower. n265 Where the husband conveyed property to a nephew to defraud his wife, equity will not assist the husband to recover the property. n266

As a general rule, an antenuptial conveyance made by the husband for the purpose of defrauding his wife will not be permitted to defeat the latter's right of dower. n267 The rule, stated simply, is that a conveyance of land by the husband, executed in contemplation of marriage, without the knowledge of his intended wife, and intended to prevent her rights of dower and homestead from attaching to his lands, is a fraud upon the rights of the wife on marriage, against which a court of equity will grant relief. n268 It has been said, however, that "if a conveyance of property by a husband even in contemplation of marriage is bona fide, and no right is reserved to him, then, though made to defeat the claim of the wife, it will be good against her." n269 And, ordinarily, an antenuptial conveyance of real estate by the owner thereof will defeat the dower of a wife whom the owner thereof subsequently marries. n270

While, as a general rule, there is no dower in personalty in many states today, the wife has become a "forced heir" as to the husband's personalty. Under the "forced heir" concept, the requirements of commerce prohibit the wife from claiming a present charge upon the husband's personalty during the marriage. So, the husband can freely alienate any of his personalty during coverture without the wife's consent. But, when the husband dies, the wife becomes entitled to a statutory share in the personalty belonging to his estate. This is not a definite share in definite things but merely a percentage of the whole. This "forced heir" share is subject to claims of creditors. But, if the husband attempts to defeat it by will, the widow may elect against the will to take her statutory share.

In some states the "forced heir" concept has been extended so as to prevent the husband from giving away his personalty during his lifetime so as to defeat the wife's "forced heir" share on his death. n271 In other states, this has been modified so as to turn upon the "illusory transfer" or "illusory trust" rationale. So, if the husband has actually given away the property inter vivos beyond power to recall, then the wife can take no dower. But, if he has by a fraudulent instrument attempted to keep real control in himself until his death, the transfer or trust is illusory, and the wife may take her interest therein on his death. n272 Under the "illusory trust" theory, for dower purposes, a man's estate is what he controlled in his lifetime. n273 Where the statute stipulates the time within which the widow must elect against the will, she is estopped to claim against the will by delay in electing. n274

As the general rule, a voluntary conveyance by either party to a marriage contract made without the knowledge of the other, and on the eve of, or in contemplation of marriage, is a fraud upon the other's marital rights. n275 The courts require, however, that there be a voluntary conveyance, n276 that the prospective spouse have no knowledge of the transaction, n277 and that it be made in contemplation of marriage. n278 The conveyance is not in fraud of marital rights unless made just prior to marriage with intent to defeat the contemplated spouse. n279

A trust is not illusory though the settlor's intent was to deprive his wife of a share in his estate. n280

Where the common-law dower concept has become statutory and has been extended to make the wife a forced heir in personalty, n281 some cases extend the protection of the wife to inter vivos transfers by the husband of his personalty. n282

21.02(h) Property of the Husband in Which the Widow Takes Dower

The common-law rule was that the widow was entitled to dower in all property of which the husband was seised at any time during marriage. n283 Since seisin was a formalized feudal concept, dower could only exist in those types of property capable of being seised. At the common law, dower existed in favor of the wife in all the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of which her husband was seised of a freehold estate during coverture and in which she has not joined him in disposal. It attached to corporeal as well as to incorporeal real property. n284 A wife is dowable to every estate of inheritance of which her husband may be seised during coverture n285 including, under most cases today, equitable as well as legal estates. n286 A wife is also dowable in rents that are inheritable, n287 to rents and royalties from mining operations, n288 and to fishing privileges n289 or other profits a prendre. n290 Dower also attaches to crops planted by the husband and growing on the land at the time of his death. n291 The right of dower also attaches to growing trees n292 and timber not removed within the time specified for removal in a conveyance thereof. n293

At common law, the right of dower attached to all the lands of which the husband was seised and possessed during coverture, including wild and unimproved lands, n294 and this is the rule generally under the provisions of modern statutes. n295 An exception to this rule was announced in some of the early decisions, giving as a reason for holding that a widow was not dowable of such lands that no rents and profits could accrue therefrom without the doweress running the risk of being guilty of waste. n296 This exception, however, has always been coupled with the express provision that the disallowance of dower in wild or unimproved lands does not apply to such lands if used with a farm or dwelling house. n297 It was held that a husband's interest in a mining claim is not subject to dower; n298 but, where mines are open and operated under a lease from the husband during his lifetime, his wife after his death is entitled to dower in the royalties and profits due from such operation. n299

Oil and gas in place constitute real estate and are subject to dower. n300 This is true also of oil wells and mines which the deceased husband himself opened on his land or which others with whom he had made enforceable contracts for the purpose opened after his death. n301 Where an oil lease of a deceased husband's land is executed jointly by the widow and the remainderman, the widow has a dower interest in the royalty paid thereunder. n302

The question of whether a widow is entitled to take dower in interests arising under an oil and gas lease depends on whether the interests so created are real estate in the particular state, and the extent to which the statute has modified the common-law dower. n303 The widow has a one-third interest in all royalties paid on mineral leases, but only a one-third interest for life in royalties paid on mineral conveyances. n304

Dower can only be had in freehold estates of inheritance, or in equitable estates where the deceased was entitled to enforce or recover it at the time of his death; n305 so there is now dower in realty held as tenants by the entireties. n306 On the other hand, it has been held that there is no dower in an oil and gas lease since it is not a fee simple interest as statute required for dower, and lease did not transfer title to oil and gas. n307

Where the husband has exchanged lands, the widow is forced to an election between the tracts as to dower. n308 The general rule is that, where the husband exchanges lands of which he was seised during coverture for other lands, dower cannot be claimed in both parcels. n309 The widow is entitled to choose which parcel she shall have dower in; but the estates exchanged must be equal in quantity, not value, as fee simple for fee simple, a lease for 20 years for a lease for 20 years, and the like. It is not sufficient that the parties make ordinary deeds, for the deed must be one of exchange, and to that mode of conveyance the word "exchange" is essential. n310

There is a general rule to the effect that a voluntary conveyance by either party to a marriage contract without the knowledge of the other, and on the eve of or in contemplation of marriage, is a fraud upon the other party. n311 But the transfer is upheld if the intended spouse had knowledge. n312

At common law a widow was not entitled to dower in an equity of redemption. n313 She is now generally held dowable therein, the mortgage being a mere lien and the mortgagor the real owner, n314 although she has released such right by the mortgage that she signed, n315 or became the wife of the mortgagor after the execution of the mortgage. n316 This is, of course, clearly true where the mortgagor has legal title. n317 Where a man, prior to marriage, gives a mortgage for purchase money, his widow has dower only in the surplus remaining after the executor has sold the land to pay the mortgage debt. n318 Although a wife joins her husband in a mortgage executed on his lands, she is still entitled to a right of dower in the husband's equity of redemption for, by her joinder, she releases merely her dower right in the estate or interest conveyed to the mortgagee. n319 The wife's inchoate dower interest is subject to a mortgage on land at the time the husband gets title and which he creates whether she joins him in the instrument or not. n320 After the husband's death, she is entitled to have her dower set off to her free from the mortgage, if the remainder of the property is sufficient to satisfy the mortgage debt n321 or, where the mortgage is not foreclosed, equity will permit her to redeem the mortgage and take her dower. n322 As a general rule, the widow is entitled to dower in the whole estate as against everyone but the mortgagee, but to redeem the land from him she must pay the whole amount due on the mortgage. n323

Even where the widow had joined in a mortgage of her husband's lands, she was entitled to her one-third dower in the whole to be taken proportionally out of the remaining lands, such a joining not being a release of dower as against the husband's heirs and devisees. n324 The widow of a mortgagor is entitled to dower in land, the legal title to which is held by another, as security for money advanced to the deceased husband. n325

Dower is taken subject to any outstanding equities to which it was subject in the husband's lifetime. n326 The courts give a widow dower in property fraudulently transferred by the husband to defraud creditors, if she is innocent, n327 but are divided if she is a party to the fraud. n328

If the wife executes a mortgage to secure the husband's debts and the mortgage is foreclosed, there are several views as to the result on dower. Under the majority rule, she takes dower only in the excess of the foreclosure sale after the mortgage is satisfied. n329 Other states give her one-third of the entire sale price payable out of the surplus, if there is one. n330 Under a third theory the wife is a surety and gets her one third in the entire sale out of the surplus, if any, and the balance, if any, as a creditor of the husband's estate. n331

A widow who, as wife, had joined her husband in a mortgage of land of which he was seised, is in equity entitled to dower in surplus money arising from a foreclosure sale of the property, after satisfying the mortgage debt. To the extent of the debt secured by the mortgage in which she released her right, her dower interest is extinguished, and she is dowable only in the surplus. n332 The surplus stands in the place of the equity of redemption and retains all the properties of realty and does not become personalty for the purpose of distribution among the next of kin. While, therefore, a widow may claim dower in the surplus, she cannot claim the surplus as personal property under a statutory exemption. n333 Likewise, the widow of a vendee of land is entitled to dower in the surplus of a sale of the land by the vendor for the unpaid balance of the purchase money. n334 Also, where land is sold under order in a partition suit, the wife has her dower in that part of the proceeds represented by her husband's interest in the land. n335 Where an assignee sells lands assigned by a husband without his wife joining in the deed of assignment, she may have her one-third interest in the land set off to her in partition proceedings, but she cannot claim this right and at the same time retain a share of the proceeds paid her. n336 Where the widow is entitled to both dower and a homestead estate, her dower is limited, on a sale of the land, to one-third of the remainder of the proceeds after deducting the value of the homestead. n337 Dower may be recovered, under the doctrine of equitable conversion, from the proceeds of the sale of real estate in which she had a dower interest. n338

The right of dower of the widow of a vendee is subordinate to the vendor's lien for purchase money, n339 even where the wife did not sign the contract. n340 Where a man dies intestate, leaving both personal property and land which were subject to a vendor's lien, the estate being insolvent, and the vendor satisfied his lien by a sale of the land which brought enough to leave a balance, it was held that the widow was entitled to dower, in such balance and further as against the general creditors was subrogated to the right of the lien creditor to have a percentage on his claim out of the personal property. n341 Where the owner of land entered into a contract of sale thereof prior to his marriage, the wife of such marriage acquired no right of dower in the land contracted to be sold as against the purchaser, even though she had no knowledge of the contract of sale at the time of the marriage. n342

Even at common law the right of dower does not attach to real estate purchased by a partnership with the firm's funds, used as firm property and encumbered beyond its value with the firm's debts. n343 Such right attaches to the deceased partner's share of any real estate of the firm not required by the payment of the firm debts and the adjusting of equitable claims as between the partners themselves. Such right therein is paramount to those of the heirs of the deceased partner. n344 Where, however, the surplus is in the nature of personalty, as where the land was held for speculation, the above rule does not obtain. n345 Where partnership lands are held in the name of the surviving partner, the widow of a deceased partner has no dower therein. n346 Also, where one partner, as trustee authorized by the firm, sells land thereafter acquired, dower will extend at most to the proceeds of the sale, but the grantee's title will be free from any such claim. n347 If a partner who owns land and has a wife living transfers the land to his firm without the participation of the wife, her right of dower having attached is not defeated by the transfer. n348 The proceeds of a sale of a husband's interest in partnership land to his partner is also subject to the wife's dower. n349

The Uniform Partnership Act converts realty into personalty for the purpose of descent and distribution, unless agreement to contrary, thus changing majority common law. n350 Accordingly, dower does not exist in partnership property under the Uniform Partnership Act. n351

Disagreement exists as to the widow's right of dower in fees that become defeasible on the husband's death; n352 so it is held that, where an estate is limited to one and to a certain class of his heirs, it is an estate of inheritance and, therefore, it is subject to dower. n353 This is true even though the estate be at an end, by the failure of heirs, at the time of the husband's death. n354 In jurisdictions where estates tail are changed by statute to life estates with remainder over to the heirs of the body of the first taker, the wife is held not entitled to dower. n355 So, the issue of a donee in tail during the life of such donee has no estate or interest in the lands entailed which the issue can alienate and therefore he has no estate of inheritance subject to dower; n356 but under the common-law rule the widow of a donee in tail took dower. n357

If the husband's title is defeasible, dower is defeasible to the same extent. n358 If the husband's estate is subject to an executory limitation which creates a power of appointment, the exercise of the power in his lifetime, n359 or by will n360 defeats dower even though the husband himself exercises it. n361 If the husband's estate is defeated in his lifetime the dower falls also; but, if not, then dower should be given. n362 If the husband's estate would be defeated at his death, the cases are divided with the weight of authority giving the widow dower. n363 The widow has dower though the property escheats to the state for lack of heirs. n364

If the husband's seisin is dependent upon a condition precedent or subsequent, a failure to perform the condition which operates to consummate his estate operates as well to terminate the contingent and inchoate interest of the wife. n365 In all cases where the husband is seised of such an estate in land as that the issue of the wife may inherit, if any she have, as heir of the husband, the wife is entitled to dower, the estate of the husband being considered extended for that purpose. n366 There are cases, however, which hold to the contrary, giving as a reason for so holding that the estate of the husband expires with him, thus cutting off the inheritable quality thereof, and the title passes to another as purchaser by virtue of the limitation over, leaving nothing to which dower can attach. n367 A statute giving the widow a certain portion in value of the husband's legal or equitable interest in realty has reference only to such interests capable of inheritance, and not to interests which terminate upon his death, such as a life estate. n368

The wife may have a right of dower even though the husband's estate is a defeasible one. n369 Dower does not attach to a reversion in fee unless, by the death of the intermediate freeholder or by a surrender of the freehold to the husband, the inheritance becomes entire in the husband during coverture. n370 So, it has been held that a defeasible fee with executory devise over upon death without issue, although extinguished as to the owner and his heirs by his death, is nevertheless subject to dower, and the jointive statute is inapplicable where the widow is given the entire estate, since her dower is merged in the fee and there is no need for election between dower and the will. n371 An heir, upon the ancestor's death, takes an estate to which dower attaches, though it be defeasible to pay ancestor's debts. n372

In order to entitle the wife to dower at common law, the husband was required to be seised of a legal estate in the land and not a mere equity. n373 This rule rendered it impossible to base dower on the equitable interest of a cestui que trust. n374 The early cases hold that, if the husband's title was sufficient in all other respects, the wife's dower attached, although the legal title rested in a third person. n375 By statute in many states, a wife is given dower in her husband's equitable estate. n376

Even where there is dower in the equitable estate, in some states the husband must own the equitable estate at death, and wife has no dower where he had contracted to convey the equitable estate. n377 So, assignment of the purchaser's interest in a contract of sale defeats dower n378 under one rule. Other courts attach dower to the extent of the purchaser's interest. n379 Where a contract for the sale of real estate is entered into by the owner prior to his marriage, a conveyance subsequent to marriage constitutes an equitable bar to the wife's right of dower. n380

The wife has dower in lands held by her husband in common with others, and a conveyance of the land in which all the co-tenants joined did not affect the dower right of the wife of the co-tenant where she did not join in the deed. n381 The widow of a tenant in common who has made permanent improvements is held not entitled to dower in her husband's interest in permanent improvements, such interest being a mere equity. n382 The rule is different, however, where the land is held in joint tenancy. n383 Where this tenancy is severed, and the husband remains solely seised of a part or all of the land, the wife has dower therein. n384 Where the statute has abolished the right of survivorship in joint estates, the widow of a joint tenant is entitled to dower. n385 Also, where the land is held jointly by husband and wife, her right of survivorship takes the place of dower. n386

Where the widow's election to take dower affects property specifically devised, some courts treat the matter as an ademption, and the devisee loses completely. n387 Others permit compensation to the devisee only out of property renounced by the widow. n388 The third rule allows the defeated devisee contribution from others of a like class, n389 and to defeat legatees of a lower class. n390

Dower could not be released prior to marriage, since a right could not be barred before it accrued. n391 Nor could a married woman have capacity to contract with her husband to release her dower to him. n392 Her interest could only be released to a third person by a fine or common recovery with her husband. n393 Under one theory, the wife's joining in her husband's conveyance terminates the dower finally. n394 But, by the other theory, the relinquishment is effective only by way of an estoppel created in favor of the person to whom the relinquishment was made. n395

Where specific performance is taken against a husband under his contract to sell in which his wife did not join, there are three results possible: (a) the vendee must pay the full price and run the risk of inchoate dower becoming vested; n396 (b) the value of the inchoate dower may be deducted from the purchase price; n397 (c) the vendee may recover the title but must post bond to indemnify the widow if she survives. n398

There are four rules in effect as to conveyance in fraud of dower: (a) Such conveyance is valid; n399 (b) any clandestine transfer is conclusively fraud; n400 (c) a clandestine transfer is prima facie fraudulent; n401 (d) fraud must be proved. n402

Where common-law dower still exists, the courts disagree as to whether the widow's dower in oil and gas royalties is merely the interest from the royalties paid or the royalties from her third of the land assigned under dower. n403 Dower attaches to all hereditaments. n404

At common law, there could be no dower in lands to which the husband had a remainder in fee, but which were held by the life tenant at the death of the remainderman. n405 If the husband had at no time during coverture any other estate than a reversion or remainder in fee, expectant upon the determination of an estate for life, his widow is without dower.

n406 Where the estate preceding that of the husband was not for the life of the holder but one for years only, the husband's interest was not technically a future interest, and his widow was dowable therein. n407 Where the remainderman dies before the life tenant, the remainderman's widow has no right of dower. n408 Where a husband who was one of five remaindermen pre-deceased the life tenant in rightful possession, it was held that his widow was not entitled to dower in the proceeds of the sale of the property. n409

At common law, personal property is not subject to dower. n410 While this common-law rule has been abrogated in Florida by statute, so that in that state the right of dower extends to personal property, n411 such rule has not been changed by the dower statutes of Illinois. n412 Since a tenant is not seised of an estate of inheritance in demised premises, his widow has no dower interest therein. n413 At common law, there could be no dower in a leasehold estate, however long the term. n414 It has been expressly decided that an estate in land for the term of 999 years, subject to the payment of an annual rent, is personal property, and that the widow of the tenant could not claim dower in it. n415 Under Ohio statutes, the right of dower exists in a permanent or perpetual leasehold created by a lease which is to run for 99 years and which is renewable forever. n416 Likewise, no dower attaches to an estate at will. n417

A widow is not dowable in lands of which the husband had only a life estate. n418 This rule applies to those cases in which the husband has a life estate with a power of appointment by will. n419 In Maryland, the widow of a lessee under a ground rent lease is held not to have an inchoate or consummate dower in leasehold estate. n420 But, in some states, the widow is also entitled to dower in the proceeds of the sale of a permanent leasehold estate. n421

In Florida, where dower in personal property is recognized, it was held that if a trust instrument reserved a beneficial title in bonds to the trustor, the bonds were the property of the trustor at his death, and his widow could claim dower therein, notwithstanding the delivery of the bonds to the trustee for purposes of the trust. n422

Under the statutes of Maryland, it has been held that a widow has a dower interest in land held by her husband by equitable or legal title at any time during coverture, whether held by him at the time of his death or not. n423

Real property held in trust by the husband is not an estate of inheritance, and his surviving widow has no right of dower therein, n424 but, if the estate is one of inheritance, the widow is entitled to dower. n425

A deed conveying realty to the sons of the grantor in fee simple, but in trust with power to manage, sell, mortgage, lease, and convey the trust property and reinvest the proceeds as they should deem best, was held to create a valid trust empowering the trustees to convey the lands in fee, without their wives joining in the conveyance, the wives having no right of dower in the trust property. n426

In Michigan, it is held "that the interest of the vendor in a land contract, upon his death, goes to his administrator as personalty, and does not descend as real estate to the heirs of the vendor, and therefore is not a subject of dower." n427 Similarly, a wife of a lessor is not entitled to dower as against a purchaser in a lease option executed before marriage. n428

A widow has no dower in lands owned by a corporation though the husband owned all the common stock. n429 But, where shares of stock were considered real property, a wife whose husband was a tenant in fee of such shares was held entitled to dower out of them on his death. n430

The wife of a trustee has no dower in the trust estate; nor does the wife of a mortgagee, nor the wife of one whose conveyance in fraud of creditors before marriage is set aside after marriage. n431

Pennsylvania has now determined that household goods are the equal property of the husband and wife though the husband is the sole wage earner. n432 Indiana has a similar statute. n433

Dower is subject to any infirmities in the husband's title, including mortgages or sales contracts existing at the time of marriage. n434

The doctrine of equitable conversion has, however, been used to defeat dower. n435

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:widow! w/5 dower w/15 husband! w/5 property or interest! or land!

21.02(i) Dower Consummate, Prior to Assignment

Common-law dower was not a future interest in real estate. It was merely an inchoate charge against the husband's lands. It did not ripen into a present estate in land upon the death of the husband ipso facto, but required the further act of assignment by the heir before it became an estate of freehold. The wife's inchoate right of dower becomes consummate and vested immediately upon the husband's death, although at common law she has as yet no estate in the land, for the law casts the estate on the heir immediately upon the ancestor's death. n436 Until assignment, the interest is a mere chose in action, n437 not an estate, n438 legal title, n439 seisin, right of entry, n440 or real property. n441 The widow is not a cotenant with the heirs, n442 or a tenant in common with them, n443 but she is a tenant in common with them to the extent of her interest. n444 The widow now has a right to the immediate assignment of her dower, n445 after which she then has an estate, a lifetime interest in real property. Before assignment, she does not know the particular portion of the land that she is to have, hence, she cannot enter, as she has not the right to choose the portion. n446 While consummate right of dower is a valuable property right, it confers no title until assignment is made and, before assignment, it is not subject to execution at law. n447

Until dower is assigned, the widow has no estate in the deceased husband's lands, n448 and so there can be no levy by the widow's creditors. n449 Dower consummate does not entitle the owner thereof to interest pending the assignment. n450

The widow is not entitled to rents and profits on the dower property between the time of death and of assignment of dower, unless the heirs have delayed the assignment or the property cannot be partitioned or assigned. n451

A wife's dower interest in the lands of her husband becomes consummate on his death by virtue of the marital relation, and she does not take as an heir. n452 In the absence of an authorizing statute, the widow has no right before assignment to enter and occupy any part of her deceased husband's estate, or to retain possession thereof as against the heirs or those claiming under them. n453 In some states, the widow has the right to possession of the mansion house and curtilage until after assignment n454 but, in other states, it is held that, where she is left in possession of land in which she has a dower right, she may maintain that position without having her dower assigned. n455 At the common law, however, the doweress had no right to remain upon the estate, even to live upon it until her interest was set off to her. The estate belonged to the heirs and, if she remained, she was a tenant at sufferance or at will of the heirs. n456 As against the heirs at law, the widow, before assignment of her dower, is seised of no legal estate in her deceased husband's lands that can by her deed be vested in a stranger, n457 but she may release her right to one in privity with the title under which she claims. n458 As a rule, such a conveyance confers on the grantee no rights capable of assertion in a court of law, but it is held valid and enforceable in equity. n459 In some states, it is held that a consummate right of dower, although still unmeasured, is a vested property interest which may be assigned or conveyed, n460 and the title of the assignee or grantee is unaffected by the fact that the probate court subsequently assigns the dower to the widow as she holds the bare legal title thus conferred in trust for her assignee or grantee. n461

Since she has no right of possession or entry, she is not entitled to bring an action in ejectment, n462 or constitute a defense to such an action brought by heirs. n463 She is not entitled to any particular part of her deceased husband's estate against his devisees or heirs until after the commissioners have set off her dower to her. n464 Until assignment of her dower, the widow has no right to rents and profits. n465 Other courts hold that unassigned dower is not a subject of lease, transfer or sale, and can be released only to the owner of the fee. n466 Until her dower has been assigned to her, her lease of the land for oil and gas is invalid, and her lessee has no right to open new wells. n467 But, under the provisions of some statutes, she may alienate her consummate right of dower n468 and, in others, equity will enforce her transfer of unassigned dower. n469 Equity will, however, recognize a conveyance of unassigned dower as a contract to convey. n470

Under Illinois law, upon the death of the husband, substantial property rights are transferred to the wife, and she becomes entitled to a one-third life estate in the property -- an interest that is no longer an intangible contingent expectancy. n471 Dower assignment must be by metes and bounds. n472 Some statutes, where the property is not divisible, require an assignment of a share of the rents. n473

21.02(j) Release of Dower

A wife cannot alienate her dower during coverture separate from the estate of her husband, and the dower is not subject to the claims of creditors of the wife. A wife has no such interest in the land of her living husband as will entitle her to make a conveyance thereof to a stranger n474 or to her husband direct, n475 but if the wife unites with her husband in conveying his land, releasing her dower therein, her right is extinguished. n476 The wife's inchoate right of dower cannot be released directly to her husband or conveyed by a joint deed of husband and wife wherein the husband retains his interest. n477 Thus, a husband, making payment to his wife to secure her signature to a deed, could not deduct the amount as a sales expense. n478

As a general rule, only by her own voluntary act may a wife relinquish her right of dower. n479 The only thing that a husband or wife has in the other's property rights is an expectant interest. Each has a right in his or her lifetime to give away the property. n480 The release must be to one who has, or by the same instrument acquires, an independent interest in the property. n481 It is held that she cannot be divested of her right of dower except by express language or irresistible implication from the terms of the instrument attempting to accomplish that result. n482

If it is intended to convey the interest of the husband and to bar the wife's right of dower, she must join in the deed with her husband and, in so doing, the statutory mode of releasing dower must be strictly followed. n483 While in some jurisdictions the wife's release must be in the same deed with her husband's grant, n484 there are other cases holding that her release may be accomplished by her subsequent separate act. n485 Under the laws of some states, she must be examined by the officer taking the acknowledgment, separate and apart from her husband, to see that her uniting in the deed is her own free and voluntary act. n486 Where the statute expressly empowers a married woman to execute a power of attorney to convey, she may release her dower through her husband by virtue of a power of attorney authorizing the particular release. n487 Where the husband's authority is limited to the execution of conveyances generally, he cannot release her right of dower. n488 She can be deprived of her right of dower only by her own voluntary consent or act. n489 Her undelivered instrument purporting to waive all claims of dower or participation in her husband's estate is a nullity. n490 As a general rule, no valid release can be made for her by another. n491 Since in a number of jurisdictions the right of a married woman to contract as if she were a feme sole has been given by statute, reason and justice require that contracts releasing her dower should bind her, but the authorities, on this point, have not been in harmony. n492

Where the wife joins in a mortgage on her husband's lands, there are three positions as to her dower upon foreclosure: (a) she takes dower in one-third of the surplus only; n493 (b) one-third of the entire purchase price but payable out of surplus; n494 (c) one-third of the whole to come out of the surplus, if any, and then as a general creditor of the husband's estate. n495

If the husband has aliened the land without the wife's consent, the wife is not entitled to dower in the improvements subsequently made by the transferee or his successor in title, n496 nor can she claim damages for improvements existing at the time of the transfer and removed by the transferee. n497

When the wife joins in a mortgage, she is barred from claiming dower as against the mortgagee, but her dower right is unimpaired as against all others. n498 A distinction has been made, however, where the wife becomes personally liable on the debt, holding the widow's distributive share to bear its proportionate share of the mortgage in the execution of which she joined. n499 Homesteads have been excepted from this latter rule. n500

Where the wife releases her inchoate right of dower in a mortgage executed by the husband, she cannot thereafter claim dower as against the mortgagee or those claiming under him. n501 A widow or a married woman who has joined in a mortgage in release of dower may redeem, for she is entitled to dower as against every person except the mortgagee and those claiming under him. n502 Even a wife having an inchoate right of dower may redeem land from a mortgage in which she has joined with her husband to release dower. n503 When it is not necessary to satisfy a mortgage in which the wife has released her dower, she is not bound to redeem on foreclosure to preserve her dower. If a wife joins in a mortgage with her husband, who then dies, and upon foreclosure a surplus above the mortgage debt is realized, she may have dower in such surplus, though the husband may have released the equity of redemption. n504 In Michigan, a wife's execution of the husband's mortgage does not bar her dower right but subjects the right to the lien, and the wife is a "mortgagor." n505

A mortgagee under a mortgage given by the mortgagor prior to his marriage and renewed after his marriage for an amount in excess of the original indebtedness without the wife's joinder or consent could foreclose the mortgage and bar dower of the wife to the extent of the indebtedness existing at the time of the marriage. n506

It is held that where the wife executed a note secured by a deed of trust as co-maker with her husband, she thereby relinquished her dower in the property, and her dower was extinguished by foreclosure. n507

A wife cannot bar her right of dower by signing and sealing her husband's deed without any words of conveyance or of release of her dower. n508 By usage, however, in some states a wife may, in fact, bar her dower by signing her husband's deed without any words of conveyance or release. n509 The words "in token of her free consent," used at the conclusion of a deed, do not sufficiently express her intention to bar her right of dower, n510 but if the deed contains a statement that she releases her dower, it will have this effect whether she is named as a grantor or not. n511 If a wife having an estate in fee executes a deed of it with her husband, both joining in the granting part of the deed, the fact that the wife also releases dower and homestead in the granted premises does not restrict her conveyance to these interests, but the deed passes the title of the wife in fee. n512 The consideration inuring to the husband is sufficient consideration for the wife's release of dower. n513

Some of the jurisdictions have established a doctrine that prohibits a spouse from so disposing of his property in his lifetime by way of direct gift n514 or by means of an "illusory trust," i.e., a trust over which the settlor retains power of control, n515 so as to defeat the surviving spouse's right of election. In some states the spouse may waive by a post-nuptial agreement her right to elect against the will. n516 The courts have shown great reluctance to so construe post-nuptial property settlements as to bar taking under the will, n517 but there is an increasing tendency to permit a post-nuptial release of dower if equitable. n518 A collateral attack may be made in an action contesting an election upon the validity of a marriage or divorce in another jurisdiction.

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:release! w/5 dower

21.02(k) Loss of Dower Without the Wife's Consent

Even under the common-law rule, however, it was possible for the wife's inchoate dower right to vanish without her approval. Where lands are taken for a public use by condemnation proceedings during the husband's life, the wife's inchoate right of dower is thereby defeated. n519 Under statutes making the wife's inchoate right a mere possibility, she need not be made a party to such proceedings, nor is she entitled to a portion of the compensation paid. n520 Likewise, the husband's dedication of land for public use is generally held to have the effect of excluding the wife's dower, n521 but if the use be put to a purpose other than that of the public, or the public use is only incidental to a private use, the wife's dower is not destroyed. n522 As between the wife and the sovereign or its delegate exercising the power of eminent domain, she is divested of her interest when payment is made to the owner of the fee, though her right will be preserved except as to the sovereign or its delegate. n523 Eminent domain destroys dower. n524

It is sometimes held, however, that while, as between the public and the wife, the husband may dedicate his land for a public use, the wife's inchoate right of dower therein is preserved from destruction until such a time as the dower is either released by the wife, forfeited, or abolished by statutory provision. n525

The leading rule seems to be that lands owned by the husband as a tenant in common may be partitioned without the wife's consent, and the wife is not a necessary party to the partition action, nor can she claim part of the proceeds. n526

The destruction or termination of the husband's estate works a destruction or termination of the wife's right of dower. n527 Where a judgment was obtained on a claim superior to that of the wife's dower, a sale thereunder has the effect of barring any claim of the wife in the land sold. n528 Thus, it is held that a wife's inchoate right of dower in her husband's lands, held by him as tenant in common with others, is divested by a sale in partition proceedings to which she is not made a party. n529

Where the judgment is based on a claim which accrued subsequent to marriage and seisin of the husband, the wife's dower is not affected by a sale under the judgment. n530 Thus, a sale of the husband's real estate under execution, on a judgment against him alone, followed by a judicial confirmation and conveyance, does not extinguish the wife's inchoate dower right in such real estate. Upon the death of the husband, the wife is entitled to have her dower assigned out of such real estate. n531 This rule applies to a sale under attachment. n532 Except where barred by statute, the purchaser of land at a forced sale to satisfy a judgment against a married man acquires the same status, as to the wife's right to dower, that he would acquire if he were the husband's alienee by the latter's voluntary act. n533 A widow's right of dower is not affected by a sale of the real estate to pay the debts of a deceased husband, in the absence of any act on her part that would tend to lead the purchaser to believe that he would acquire a title free from dower. n534

The inchoate right of dower can be vested in the purchaser of realty from the husband by judicial decree, upon the making of stated provisions for the payment to the wife of the value of her dower right in case she survives her husband. n535 The law of estoppel is sometimes invoked to determine whether or not there has been a conveyance or forfeiture of dower on the part of the widow. n536 A married woman cannot estop herself from asserting dower by her act or declarations, except where, to permit her to assert, such claim will operate as a fraud, n537 nor can she be estopped from claiming dower by her contract which is invalid under an existing law, even though she received a benefit therefrom. n538 A widow who, for consideration, executed an instrument during her husband's lifetime that relinquished her dower, was estopped to assert dower right in her deceased husband's lands on the ground that the instrument was partly without consideration where the consideration was not returned. n539 Where a husband threatened to practice a fraud on his wife, and she believed he could and would do it, she was held not estopped from claiming what the law would give her, because, under fear that she might get nothing, she surrendered a large estate that the law would have cast upon her. n540 Where a widow files a pleading in a cause in which she disclaims any right of dower in her husband's land, she is estopped from claiming such right. n541 Property tax sales divest the wife's dower in some states. n542 Other states place dower rights superior to tax liens. n543

Where a divorced wife acquiesced in a decree directing the sale of the husband's property, the conveyance of the property to the purchaser in fee simple, and the division of the proceeds of the sale as provided in the decree, it was held that the wife was estopped from claiming her inchoate right of dower in the property. n544

A married woman may be estopped by a judgment in actions to which she is a proper party in the same manner as a person sui juris. n545 This is especially true where a married woman acquiesces in and accepts the benefits of the decree. n546 To conclude a wife from later claiming dower, it is essential that the question of dower shall have been passed upon in the former suit. n547 The authorities are not agreed on whether or not a wife is estopped from claiming dower by a former void judgment in which the question of her dower was passed upon. In one case, at least, it is held that she is not estopped by such judgment, n548 but in a well-considered New York case a contrary view is taken. n549 A widow who failed to assert any right as a party in the children's action to quiet title was held to have waived her right to recognition of dower. n550

Where a husband and wife contracted orally for the sale of land and consented to the purchaser's entry into possession and the making of improvements, they were estopped from asserting rights under the statute of frauds or homestead and dower rights. n551

A provision in a statute which denies to either husband or wife the power to contract with the other in regard to the dower interest which each has in the other's property does not prevent either of them from becoming estopped as against the grantee of the other to assert such dower interest, by reason of reliance upon joint deeds executed between them in violation of such statute. n552 The fact that a wife accepts a deed from her husband of certain lands does not estop her from claiming dower in other lands which her husband conveyed during coverture without her joining in the conveyance. n553 In most states a transfer of property, however great in extent, by the husband to the wife inter vivos does not bar dower in the remainder of the husband's property in the absence of an agreement to that effect. n554

A wife cannot be decreed to release her inchoate dower on a suit for specific performance of a contract of her husband to which she was not a party. n555 There is some diversity of opinion as to whether adverse possession bars a wife's dower. Some courts hold that dower is not extinguished by adverse possession of land during the life of the husband, n556 while others hold that, where a disseisor held possession adversely against the husband for the prescriptive period, the wife's dower is barred thereby. n557 There is a third position to the effect that the adverse possessor takes title as against the wife, but she is entitled to be compensated for her lost dower out of the remainder of the husband's estate. n558

In a state where a widow is entitled to dower in all the husband's lands of which he was seised during coverture, she is entitled to dower in such of his lands as she has not relinquished her right, regardless of the length of time such land has been held in adverse possession. n559 However, a widow's right of dower may be barred by an adverse possession of the land for the prescriptive period by one who does not claim under her husband. n560 If the period of adverse holding began and continued after the husband's death, the general rule is that the widow's right of dower is lost, n561 but there are some cases taking a contrary view. n562

Where a husband's cotenancy is, by either voluntary or involuntary partition, turned into an estate in severalty in a part only of the land, the wife is remitted to her inchoate right in her portion of the land which the husband takes in severalty by such partition. n563 The decisions disagree as to whether a wife is a necessary party to a partition sale of realty owned by her husband as a cotenant with others. n564 Some states are departing from the concept that dower is a present right in land and are reducing the wife to the status of an heir. n565

In some states a real estate owner's wife is entitled to share in the proceeds resulting from condemnation, by reason of her inchoate right of dower in the property condemned. n566 In those states, however, where the wife has been reduced to the status of a forced heir from that of a purchaser, the husband may pass good title to realty during his lifetime free of the wife's claim, even without her consent. n567

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:wife! w/5 consent! w/15 dower w/5 los* or vanish! or destroy! or release!

21.02(l) Separation, Abandonment, Divorce and Murder as Barring Dower

The common law had several instances of barring dower besides release by the wife. These have received varying treatment under the statutes of the several states. A divorce a vinculo terminates the marriage and so bars dower, n568 but divorce a mensa et thoro (bed and board) or a legal separation does not bar dower. n569 Although there are a few states holding to the contrary, n570 dower cannot survive a final termination of the marriage status. n571 In a majority of states the Statute of Westminster II has become a part of the common law, so that adultery and abandonment bars dower. n572

Some statutes provide that, if the husband be divorced from the wife for her fault or misconduct, she shall not be endowed, n573 while other statutes preserve the right of dower to a wife divorced by her husband's fault. n574 It is held that this extends to and includes the present statutory provisions for the wife, in lieu of dower in the lands of her deceased husband. n575 By still other statutes, a wife who obtains a divorce is not entitled to dower, n576 but the reverse of this is true in other states. n577 Where the decree of divorce particularly stipulates for alimony, this is held to bar dower. n578 In jurisdictions where dower is given only where the marriage subsists at the husband's death, a wife is held not dowable in lands conveyed by the husband while living apart from her and prior to their divorce. n579 The effect of a decree of divorce upon the right of dower is to be determined by the law of the state where the land is situated. n580

In a few states, upon divorce, the wife becomes vested with a one-third interest in the husband's lands. n581 At early common law, adultery had no effect on dower, but the rights of the outraged husband were saved by the Statute of Westminster II, n582 which denied dower to a woman who fled with the adulterer. n583 The courts are divided as to whether the Statute of Westminster II, barring dower for misconduct of the wife, has become part of the American common law. n584 The weight of authority, however, considers abandonment and adultery as barring dower even in the absence of statute. n585

Her adultery does not, however, bar her right to dower where she continues to live with her husband, n586 or where she has abandoned him on account of his having become an habitual drunkard after their marriage. n587 It is held that mere desertion of the husband by the wife, without adultery, will not forfeit her dower. n588 Such a statute does not apply, however, when the wife's separation from her husband is justifiable. n589 Where the wife's desertion or illicit relations with another have been condoned by the husband, her interest in his estate is not lost. n590 Where by statute a wife's adultery bars her right to dower, the husband's adultery prior to her offense does not excuse her acts, so as to entitle her to dower, n591 nor does the fact that the husband is confined in an insane asylum excuse her adulterous acts, so as to entitle her to dower. n592 Under a statute providing that a wife shall be barred of her dower if she willingly leaves her husband, goes away, and continues with her paramour, it was held that this does not bar the right of a wife who has been deserted by her husband to claim dower, where she made unsuccessful efforts to win him back before going to live in adultery. n593 If a wife's conduct indicates her intention not to live with her husband again, or if she marries under the mistaken impression that he is dead, she is not entitled to dower in his estate. n594 In some jurisdictions, however, dower is not waived by the wife's misconduct or abandonment of her husband. n595 The wife's abandonment of the homestead does not operate as a forfeiture of her dower. n596 Permanent, but not temporary, abandonment terminates dower, n597 except where the husband forced the separation. n598

Many states today have statutes which bar a murderess from taking dower in the estate of her victim-husband. These statutes generally follow the pattern of, or are a part of, laws prohibiting the killer from inheriting from the victim. n599 In Florida, however, it has been held that a statute barring a killer-heir from his inheritance did not prevent a wife who murdered her husband from taking dower. n600

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:bar! w/5 dower w/30 separat! or abandon! or divorce! or murder!

21.02(m) Dower as Against the Husband's Creditors

Whenever dower exists in the United States, it follows the common-law concept of protection from the husband's creditors, both during the husband's lifetime and after his death. Common-law dower was subject neither to the debts of the husband nor to the liens and encumbrances placed by him on the property without the wife's consent. The primary fund for the payment of debts is the personal estate, and the widow's claim is superior to that of a general creditor. n601 Her dower is taken free from the husband's debts. n602

As a general rule, the rights of a husband's creditors are subordinate to the widow's claim of dower, except on debts constituting a special charge on the land acquired before marriage or at the time of the acquisition of the land as part of the same transaction. n603 A wife is not entitled to dower in lands conveyed by her husband before marriage in fraud of creditors upon the setting aside of the conveyance at the suit of a creditor, since he had no seisin during coverture. n604

Any debt of the husband which has not become a lien upon the land in the lifetime of the husband is subordinate to the wife's right of dower. n605 The wife's inchoate right of dower is paramount to any claim based on a contract made by the husband and in which she did not release her right. n606

As a general rule, the wife's inchoate right to dower is not affected by the bankruptcy of her husband. n607 Where the wife of a bankrupt husband consents to the sale of land on the condition that she shall receive a gross sum, her dower is not barred, unless such sum is paid to her. n608

It is held that where the husband's land is sold at forced sale during his lifetime to satisfy a judgment against him, the purchaser acquires no greater right as against the wife's right of dower than if the conveyance had been made by the husband's voluntary act. n609 Where a husband's realty was sold on an execution under a judgment against him in an action to which the wife was not a party, her inchoate right of dower became vested on the issuance of the sheriff's deed conveying the husband's interest therein to the judgment creditor. n610

The wife's right of dower is subject to all liens or encumbrances at law or in equity, existing prior to the time it attaches. n611 Thus, dower is subject to a mortgage executed before marriage to secure the purchase money of land, although such right will attach to any surplus remaining after satisfaction of the mortgage debt. n612 She cannot claim the benefit of the appropriation of the personal estate to the removal of such encumbrance. n613

Where the wife has an inchoate interest by way of dower or its statutory equivalent, deeds by the husband alone may be set aside either as a fraud upon the wife, n614 or as "illusory," if the husband purported to retain an interest therein. In other states, such sole conveyances by the husband simply do not affect the wife's interest, which becomes vested if she survives the grantor.

A purchase money mortgage on real estate bars dower of the purchaser's wife even though she does not sign the mortgage. n615 Therefore, where the husband contracted to buy land under deed which was made to the husband and wife and where the wife's name was forged to a purchase money mortgage, the mortgagee had a valid first purchase money mortgage as against the wife. n616 As a general rule, a mere inchoate right of dower cannot be reached by a creditor's bill. n617 On the husband's request, equity will not order a sale of the husband's property free from the wife's dower without her consent. n618

A lien for purchase money created after marriage is paramount to a wife's claim of dower. n619 Also, a judgment entered prior to the marriage has priority over a widow's claim of dower, n620 but when the right of dower attaches to land, it is paramount to the right of any other person claiming under any subsequent act of the husband. This rule is held to include taxes that are assessed after its inception, as well as the right of homestead. n621 It has also been held that the wife's dower cannot be affected by a mechanic's lien, n622 especially if it accrues after the marriage and before the death of the husband. n623 Although a wife joins her husband in a mortgage executed on his lands, she is still entitled to a right of dower in the husband's equity of redemption, for by her joinder she releases merely her dower right in the estate or interest conveyed to the mortgagee. n624 It is held, however, that a widow who joined with her husband in a mortgage on his real estate to secure his debt is not entitled, upon his dying insolvent, to have his personalty applied ratably to the payment of the mortgage debt, thereby increasing the value of the equity of redemption and of her dower right therein, at the expense of the husband's general creditors. n625

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:dower w/30 husband! w/5 creditor!

21.02(n) Election to Take Under Husband's Will as Barring Dower

The concept of common-law dower had become fixed in the English law by Littleton's time, n626 long before the statute of wills, and was therefore not affected by this statute. The courts have, therefore, recognized that the husband cannot, without the wife's consent, bar her dower by will. n627 The acceptance by the widow of the provisions of her husband's will bars her right to claim dower, n628 although where the will does not expressly or by clear intention show that the provision in the will is in lieu of dower, her acceptance thereof does not bar her dower. n629 The wife's dower or statutory interest in her husband's estate must be inconsistent with the provision of the will made in lieu thereof, in order that her acceptance thereof may operate as a bar to dower or statutory interest. n630

The rights of a spouse renouncing against the will are to be determined by the law governing the descent of real property where it is located. n631

At common law, the widow took under the will and also her dower in the absence of a clearly expressed contrary intention in the will, n632 but if the will so stated, the widow was required to elect. n633

The general rule is that where the will expressly declares that the provision made for the wife is in lieu of dower, she must elect which one she will take, n634 and she must so elect where the provision is necessarily inconsistent with dower. n635 If she elects to take under the law, the whole estate is open, so far as she is concerned, and she is let into the enjoyment of all her rights thereto in as ample a manner as if her husband had died intestate. n636 Some cases hold that, where the will does not clearly show that the provision for the wife is in lieu of dower, she may take both, n637 but if the other provisions of the will would be defeated in case she elected to take both, she will be confined to the one or the other, the election of which shall be upon her. n638 A widow is not bound by a choice to take under the will. She may later reject the will, but once having rejected it, she is bound. n639 If the provision made in the will appears from circumstances to be intended in lieu of dower, the widow must make her election, for she cannot take both. n640 Under such circumstances she may elect to take dower or homestead, but she is not entitled to both. n641 The widow's election in this matter is personal to her and cannot be exercised by her representatives after her death. n642 The guardian of an insane widow cannot elect for her without an order of court or by authority conferred by statute. n643

Where the widow is incompetent, the courts are inclined to authorize the guardian or committee of the incompetent to elect against the will, if such election is to the best advantage or welfare of the incompetent person. n644

In some cases, the wife is not permitted to repudiate her election to take under the provisions of her husband's will and will elect to take under the law instead. n645 Other cases hold that she may retract her election to take under the will, provided she returns what she received under her election. n646 The widow's election must be made with full knowledge of the facts. If she is ignorant of her rights at the time of making the election, it is not binding on her, n647 or if she formally makes an election when no necessity therefor exists, the supposed election is ineffectual. n648

Likewise, an election procured by fraud or undue influence may be rescinded by her. n649 The right of a widow to take dower against a will does not survive her death. n650

As to other legatees and devisees under the will, the will should be forced as nearly in accordance with the intention of the testator as it can be, regardless of the widow's election. n651 A widow who has renounced her husband's will by the exercise of her statutory right of election, and has elected to take under the law, cannot appeal from the order of the court probating the will, although her husband left real estate in other states. n652 The widow does not lose her dower by an election to take under a provision made in lieu thereof in her husband's will, where the will is subsequently declared invalid. n653 Where a widow for whom provision has been made in her husband's will in lieu of dower is required to elect between her dower and the provisions of the will, what she must do to make such election is determined by the law of the state where the land is situated. n654

The widow, by her renunciation of the provision made for her in her deceased husband's will, rejects such provision and, in effect, obliterates it from the will. The remaining provisions of the will are left to operate upon the part of the estate not included within her statutory share or interest. n655

By statute in many states, a testamentary provision for the wife is presumed to be in lieu of dower, unless the will shows a different intention. If she fails to elect which she will take, within the time prescribed by statute for such election, she will be presumed to have elected to take by the will, and there will be no relief in equity against this presumption. n656 If the widow should die during the time limited by statute for making the election without having done so, there is a presumption that she would have elected to take the most beneficial of the two provisions. n657 It is held that a widow's election to take under her husband's will is established by her filing a report, as executrix, to the effect that she was entitled to her husband's land under the will and asking that she be discharged as such executrix. n658 The wife's attempt to take under the will and the right inconsistent with the will do not constitute an election. n659 Where the widow takes possession of and occupies as her own the property devised to her by will, she is held to have elected to take the provision so made for her, and she cannot claim dower or a statutory interest. n660

The cases are not in accord as to the right of a widow to elect against a will in instances where the law of the testator's domicile differs from the lex situ of the realty. n661

Sometimes the position is taken that where there is no inconsistency, the widow will take the provision made for her under the will as well as her dower, or it may be considered that the widow is presumed to elect against the will unless she takes a positive act to elect to take by will. A third position is that the widow is presumed to take under the will in absence of election, unless she was completely excluded under the will, and some statutes require her to elect against the will even though no provision is made for her therein. In some states, the widow electing against the will takes her share only out of the net estate after payment of debts. n662

Some courts have undertaken to remake a will upon an election by the spouse, so as to avoid inequities. n663 Where the spouse elects against the life estate given in the will, the limitation over will fail if it is intended as a continuation of the scheme of the life estate. n664

Where the widow has been given a life estate under the will and elects against the will, the problem of acceleration of future interests arises, as does the question of disposition of the interest given the wife. n665

Equitable estoppel prevents a spouse from electing against a will in one jurisdiction and enjoying its benefits in another. n666

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:bar! w/5 dower w/30 elect! or accept! w/5 husband! w/2 will

21.02(o) Valuation of Dower

The value of a wife's dower at common law depends wholly upon the death of her husband, n667 but it is generally held that her inchoate interest is a property right having a substantial and ascertainable value. n668 The inchoate right of dower is a valuable right or interest, n669 and has a money value n670 which is capable of ascertainment, n671 if not with exactness, n672 at least to the extent of approximation. n673

The value of the wife's inchoate interest is ascertained by reference to mortality tables indicating the expectation of life at different ages, together with a consideration of the condition of the health of both husband and wife. n674

Under the majority rule, where the husband has conveyed realty without the wife's consent, dower is figured at the value as of the time of transfer, not at the time of the husband's death. n675

Some courts hold that such interest is not susceptible of computation by any definite rule. n676 The present value of an inchoate right of dower is held to be the difference between the present value of an annuity to the wife during her natural life and the value of a similar annuity depending upon the joint lives of her and her husband. n677

The value of dower consummate depends upon the value of the land involved, as well as upon the age, life expectancy, habits, constitution, and health of the widow, while the value of her inchoate right depends not only upon these as they affect the wife, but as they affect the husband also. n678 The extent of the property to be assigned to the widow as dower is determined from its productive value, and it must be sufficient to produce one-third of the rents and profits that all the husband's freehold estate, in which she is dowable, will produce. n679 In the United States, the productive value of such freehold is ascertained, as between the widow and the heirs, at the time of assignment, n680 unless the delay of assignment was due to her own fault. n681 Some authorities hold that if the property has been aliened during coverture without the wife joining, and the alienee has enhanced its value by improvements, the widow is entitled to the benefit of such increase in value by making the productive value at the time of the husband's death the basis for ascertaining the amount of dower, n682 while others hold that the value at the time of assignment is the proper basis for ascertaining the amount. n683 If, after the husband's death, the land has increased in value from natural causes or has been improved by the heir and thus increased in value, the widow is entitled to her proportion of such enhanced value. n684 Other courts, however, take the value at the time of alienation as the basis for calculating the dower interest, the improvements being excluded from the computation. n685 On the other hand, if the land depreciates in value from natural causes, the widow may claim only dower in the productive value as of the time of assignment. n686

Dower exists only in the equity above a mortgage. n687

The present value of contingent dower can be computed by ascertaining the present value of an annuity equal to an interest in one third of the proceeds of the estate and then by deducting from this the value of a similar annuity depending on the joint lives of the wife and her husband. This difference is the value of a contingent right of dower. n688

Statutory mortality tables are merely evidentiary, and the cash value of inchoate dower depends on the health and habits of the parties and all other circumstances. n689 Dower is measured on the entire value of the mortgaged property but, as against the mortgagee, can be paid only out of the surplus above the mortgage. n690

Rents and profits payable to a widow in land which she held by way of dower, and she held a life estate, passed to her estate upon her death, where the payments had not been made during her lifetime. n691

21.02(p) Quarantine

At one stage in the development of the dower concept, the widow's right was merely to "sit by the fire," i.e., a home on the premises. The subsequent reissues of Magna Carta gave the widow a right to remain in possession of the principal dwelling house of her deceased husband for 40 days following his death, provided she did not remarry within that time. n692 This right was termed "the widow's quarantine," and it is very generally recognized in this country and varies in its duration and extent in the different states. n693

In some jurisdictions, the widow's right of quarantine is regarded as a freehold interest, on the ground that she might die within the period, and is, thus, an interest that might last for life, but the weight of authority is in accord with the rule of the common law to the effect that she has a sort of tenancy at will, for, immediately on assignment, the heir is entitled to the beneficial enjoyment of all the estate except the dower portion. n694 It is held to be a mere personal right, not subject to execution. n695 This fact, however, does not deprive her from occupying the quarantine property as a tenant during the period. n696

Most American courts give the widow "quarantine," the right to occupy the mansion house and adjoining property until dower is assigned. n697 The widow holding under quarantine is not required to pay rent, taxes, n698 or interest on encumbrances. n699 Rights of quarantine are not alienable in law or equity. n700 It is not such a right that the widow may alienate. n701 Being an incident of dower, her death before assignment of dower terminates both rights. n702

In Texas, a homestead occupied by a married couple cannot be mortgaged directly or indirectly except as security for purchase money or improvements. n703 At common law the widow had a right of quarantine for 40 days. n704

21.02(q) Statutory Modification and Abolition of Dower

In virtually all of the states today, the question of the widow's rights has been settled by statute. n705 Florida has abolished dower and curtesy. n706 This is proper since dower is not the result of contract, but is the creature of positive law founded on reasons of public policy and subject, while it remains inchoate, to such modifications and qualifications as legislation, for like reasons of public policy, may see proper to impose. n707

These statutes have two approaches: some specifically abolish common-law dower and substitute a new statutory concept; n708 others preserve in a modified form the common-law dower image. In addition, in nearly all states, the wife has become an heir, n709 often a specified heir with relation to the deceased husband's other realty and personalty.

Two factors have influenced these changes: first, the increasing role of women in modern affairs, as evidenced by the Married Women's Property Acts and second, a desire to release real estate from the fetters on alienation imposed by common-law dower. With the decreasing emphasis on realty as a form of income-producing wealth, emphasis on protection of the widow as a matter of public policy has been shifting towards making her a forced or specific heir of both realty or personalty. n710 Thus, a widow who was not entitled to claim dower because the husband had died before his estate became vested, was still allowed to take as an heir. n711

Statutes ordinarily merely extend and recognize dower rather than repeal it. n712 To the extent that a statute does not cover the subject of dower completely, the common law still controls. n713

Before the death of the husband, and while the right of the dower is inchoate, it is subject to legislative control and it may be enlarged, diminished, altered, or abolished. n714 It is held that a statute abolishing dower and providing that the act shall not affect any such estate or interest which may have become vested exempts from the act all dower rights or interests which existed prior to the taking effect of the act, whether such rights or interests are inchoate or consummate. n715 A statute providing that "any woman residing out of the state shall be entitled to dower of the lands of her deceased husband, lying in this state, of which her husband died seised," does not give her dower in lands which her husband conveyed by separate deed while she was a non-resident, as he did not die seised of the land. n716 It is held that the wife's inchoate right of dower is not a vested right within the constitutional provision against impairing vested rights. n717 This is true even where the statute alters the common-law right of dower. n718 In jurisdictions where the interest of the wife after seisin by the husband is deemed an interest in land which cannot be impaired, the legislature cannot diminish or abolish it after the right has attached. n719

This right or estate of dower exists in all of the states where it has not been modified or abolished by statute. Statutes in abolishing the right usually give the wife a specific part of her husband's estate in fee simple in place of dower, n720 or give the widow a distributive status and a right of election to take against a will. n721 It is held that the legislature may describe the interests of the surviving husband or wife in the estate of the other with respect to both real and personal property, by the use of the term "dower." n722 The wife has, by virtue of the statute, one-third interest in the lands of her husband, n723 but in some states the wife's one-third has been changed to one-third in fee, n724 and in others it has been changed to one-half in fee, n725 and still other states give the widow, in lieu of her common-law dower, a life estate in one-half of the husband's realty. n726

In many states, Married Women's Property Acts have placed the wife on an equality with her husband in property rights; n727 in other states she is still in subordination to him in this respect, except where the incidents of the common-law estate have been altered by statutes. n728 In Illinois, the right of dower is derived from the common law and not the statute, although the statute in relation to dower has recognized the right and extended it to the surviving husband. n729 The burden of proof rests upon those asserting that the statute has abolished dower, since the intention of making innovations in a long-established rule is not imputed to the legislature in the absence of a clear manifestation of such intention. n730 In New York, the wife has been reduced to the status of a statutory heir. n731 In Pennsylvania, a widow is entitled to dower only to what remains of her husband's estate after the payment of his debts, whether of record or not. n732

In Maryland, common-law dower when by purchase still exists, n733 until the husband's death his wife has merely a contingent right or interest in her husband's real estate, and she has no estate prior to his death, legally or equitably, which is liable to levy and execution. n734

Arizona did not adopt §2-113 of the Uniform Probate Code, providing for the abolition of dower and curtesy; nor §2-201, the spouse's elective share; nor §2-202, the spouse's augmented estate; nor §2-203, the spouse's personal election; nor §2-205, the time limit for election; nor §2-206, the effect of election; nor §2-207, charging the spouse with gifts received and for contribution. n735

In Montana, individual property may be conveyed by the spouse so as to cut off dower or curtesy. n736 The same is true in Indiana. n737 New York has made the spouse a mere heir with right of election against the will.

21.02(r) Pre-nuptial Agreements and Jointures as Barring Dower n738

The jointure, as used at common law, n739 could bar dower if it had certain characteristics.

The common-law jointure required the five elements of (a) the estate must commence immediately upon the husband's death, (b) the interest must be at least for the wife's life, n740 (c) the interest must be in the wife's name and not merely in trust for her, (d) the conveyance must be made and expressed to be in satisfaction of her whole dower, n741 and (e) the conveyance must be before marriage. n742 Equity, however, would enforce jointure as a contract even if some of the common-law requirements were lacking. n743

An antenuptial agreement may have the effect of determining conclusively the wife's right in the husband's property, n744 but to have this effect the contract must be clearly understood by her, be just and reasonable, free from concealment n745 and fairly performed. n746 Thus the contract is not enforceable if she is ignorant and without the aid of independent advice, but was induced to sign the instrument through fraudulent representations made by her intended husband. n747 Marriage is a valuable consideration and will support an antenuptial agreement whereby the husband contracts to make provision for the intended wife. n748 Consequently, the settlement of lands, although made by the settlor with the design to defraud his creditors, will not be set aside in the absence of clearest proof of his intended wife's participation in the fraud. n749 In such case, the wife is deemed a purchaser for value of the property settled on her in consideration of the marriage, and she is entitled to hold it against the world. n750 By such agreement, she may waive her right to dower. n751 If such a contract is fairly and equitably made between the parties, it, and not the law, furnishes the measure of their respective rights, nor will a mistake as to the law, of itself, be sufficient ground on which to set aside a contract waiving dower rights. n752 Under a statute authorizing a woman before marriage to enter into a contract for a jointure with her intended husband, it was held that an agreement whereby "neither of said contracting parties shall by reason of such marriage have or claim any right, title or interest in any real estate of the other" did not provide the wife with any property from the husband's estate, and, therefore, it did not bar her right of dower. n753

Unless authorized by statute, a married woman cannot bar her right of dower by any release made to her husband during coverture. n754 Under modern statutes generally, she may, by a written agreement with her husband, based on a valuable consideration, release to him her right of dower, n755 and this, though they are living apart, on the date of the agreement. n756

A property settlement waiving dower in contemplation of divorce is void if the husband dies before the divorce. n757 Before upholding such agreements, courts will insist on knowing that the wife was not under duress in making the agreement, and that no advantage was taken of her by the husband in procuring her consent. n758 The burden is on the husband or his personal representative to show the fairness of the transaction. n759 The validity of the release is not affected where the agreement is one of separation, n760 if it be otherwise valid and binding between the parties. n761

Where the husband and wife freely and voluntarily enter into a contract by which the wife, uninfluenced by fraud or deceit, in consideration of certain property conveyed or devised to her by the husband, agrees to relinquish her dowable and distributable share in his estate under the statute, it will be binding upon the wife. n762 Where the agreement releasing dower for a valuable consideration, with the understanding that she should not contest a divorce suit by the husband, such release is invalid since it is contrary to public policy. n763 A post-nuptial agreement by the wife to release her prospective distributive share in his estate, based on his promise to make a will giving her much less than she would be entitled to in the absence of a will, was held without consideration and not binding on her after his death. n764 In the absence of an express release of dower in a separation agreement, the wife does not bar her right to claim dower. n765 A husband and wife may settle all property rights growing out of the marital relation, including the wife's right of dower, by a valid contract in contemplation of separation and divorce. n766 In some jurisdictions, it is held that a post-nuptial agreement whereby the wife relinquishes her right of dower is valid and binding, n767 provided such agreement is made in recognition of an existing marital separation, n768 or at least is one of a separation nature. n769

A valid separation agreement may be abrogated and annulled by subsequent inconsistent conduct on the part of the husband and wife. n770

A widow is bound by an antenuptial agreement not to claim any part of her husband's estate except the amount given her by will, notwithstanding the husband's failure to execute a will. n771 In a post-nuptial agreement under seal, the consideration can be shown but not for the purpose of defeating the contract. n772 In Virginia, post-nuptial agreements are held valid in equity. n773 An antenuptial agreement, though favored by the law, was void where husband had fraudulently failed to make full disclosure of assets. n774

The courts require that for an antenuptial settlement to be effective to bar dower: (a) it must show an intent clearly expressed to bar the dower n775 and (b) it must be fair and upon a full disclosure of the facts. n776 Under an antenuptial agreement a wife may become a creditor of the estate so as to avoid succession taxes. n777 An antenuptial agreement does not preclude the surviving spouse from claiming additional benefits given under the decedent's will. n778 In the absence of express provisions antenuptial agreements do not create trusts or third-party beneficiary relationships for the children so the parties to the agreement can later abrogate or amend the agreement directly or by will except as the rights of the parties themselves are concerned. n779 The power to enforce antenuptial agreements is in the spouse. Her children have no rights therein. n780

21.02(s) Jointure Defined

Since dower lay only as to legal rights, but not to uses, the widow was unprotected where the husband's realty was held by way of use. In such instances, it became customary at the time of the marriage to provide by special contract that the wife should have a right in her husband's property held by way of use n781 after his death, similar to common-law clauses. This was called a "jointure." It was originally an estate for life jointly with the husband, but it also came to mean a sole life interest.

The effect of the statute of uses, converting uses into legal estates, would have been to give wives holding jointures a double interest in the land had it not been for a provision in the statute that a jointure barred dower. The substance of the English statute of uses respecting jointure has been reenacted in a few states of this country. n782 A majority of the states have made radical changes, some have put the matter on the basis of contract, n783 by giving the wife a right to elect between the provision intended as jointure and her dower right, if she had not consented to the provision before marriage. n784 After electing to take a jointure conveyed to her the widow cannot also receive the interest in her deceased husband's estate given her by law. This is true regardless of the value of the property conveyed n785 to her by the jointure. n786

The statutes generally require the wife's assent to the provision made for her or, in case she does not so assent, she may, upon the husband's death, elect between such provision and dower. n787 Under a statute providing that the widow has one year after the death of her husband in which she may elect whether she will take land conveyed to her as a jointure, or the interest given her by law in the lands of her deceased husband, her election to take such jointure within the time bars her right to receive the interest in her husband's estate which the law gives her. n788

"Jointure" is a competent livelihood of freehold for the wife of lands and tenements, to take effect in profit or possession presently after the death of the husband, for the life of the wife at least, if she herself be not the cause of its termination. n789 Most of the statutes give a similar definition. n790 The English courts determined that a jointure was not a contract between the husband and wife but a gratuity established by the husband for the benefit of the wife and, therefore, the woman need not be a party to the deed which secures her jointure. n791

At common law, immediately upon marriage, the wife acquired a right in her husband's real estate, which was very difficult to get rid of. The husband could not convey his land either in contemplation of marriage, with the intent to prevent the right attaching, nor after marriage, with the intent to destroy the right. Neither could she release such right before marriage, for she did not then possess it, nor yet after marriage for she was by that law not sui juris. So, her release in either case was void. By the same law, no estate limited to her during the marriage could bar her right of dower, because no collateral satisfaction can destroy a right or title to a freehold estate. n792 Every woman, no matter how extensive her own estate might be, thus became entitled immediately upon marriage to one-third of all her husband's real estate. This inequality, and the difficulties attending attempts to detach her right after marriage, were reasons why so much of England's lands were conveyed to uses as, by common law, a wife could not be endowed in a use. n793 The injustice now appeared to be against the wife, and with all her husband's lands conveyed to uses, she might be, and too often was, left at his death without means of support. The relatives or friends of the intended wife began to insist upon provisions being made for her, and it was usual to have the intended husband take back from his feoffees to use a reasonable portion of the lands, and to settle the same on himself and wife during their joint lives, in joint tenancy or jointure. From this the word "jointure" arose.

When the Statute of Uses was enacted, which declared the legal title to be in those who had the use of any lands and tenements, all women who were then married became dowable as at common law in all their husband's real estate. Again the fancied inequality arose that they could then claim both dower and jointure. So in 27 Henry VIII, a clause was inserted in the statute which limited a wife's claim to her estate in jointure, where jointure had been made or was afterward made or if no jointure was made, she might claim dower as at common law. n794 "Jointure" is a vested interest in land, and the wife takes it as a purchaser. n795 This statute also made provision for dower in other lands of the husband if she were lawfully evicted from her jointure or any part thereof, and these two sections of the statute are the basis of modern jointure.

Where the deed contains no statement that the land was conveyed as a jointure, the wife's interest in other lands of her husband is not released thereby. n796 An antenuptial conveyance of land to an intended wife, reciting that she is "to have and to hold the said lot and parcel of land as aforesaid, as jointure, and in lieu and full satisfaction of her whole dower in his estate," precludes her from claiming dower in the lands of her husband, including lands acquired during marriage. n797 An antenuptial jointure, duly accepted in writing, under some statutes bars the wife from any further claims, as widow, against the lands of the husband. n798 An antenuptial contract and an estate in jointure are not the same thing under the statutes of most states.

Jointures are either legal or equitable. For convenience of treatment, legal jointures may be divided into (a) legal jointures before marriage, and (b) legal jointures after marriage; and equitable jointures may likewise be divided into (a) equitable jointures before marriage, and (b) equitable jointures after marriage. Antenuptial agreements are favored by the courts. n799

In states where statutes creating jointure exist, it is generally held that an antenuptial contract, entered into in good faith by competent parties, which is fair and equitable in its terms, will be upheld and enforced by the courts. If the settlement or jointure be made before marriage, and all the other requisites mentioned in the preceding section be complied with, it effectually bars the widow's dower, n800 except in those instances in which the female contemplating marriage is an infant and the agreement is to make a grant in the future. n801

An antenuptial agreement for the husband's payment of money to the wife after his death is not a jointure constituting a bar to her dower. n802 If, on the other hand, the settlement be made during coverture, and she agrees to it, she will not be bound to accept it upon the death of her husband, but may elect to take dower instead. n803

It has been held that a statute providing that, if any conveyance, assurance, agreement or contract for jointure be made after marriage, or be made before marriage and during the infancy of the wife, the widow may at her election renounce her jointure and have dower, does not apply in the case of an antenuptial contract with a woman not an infant. n804 So, a jointure is not always effected by a post-nuptial agreement. n805 The covenant of a married woman to release her dower must be clear, positive, and express. n806 A conveyance to a married woman is not deemed a jointure, unless the intention to make it such is expressed in the deed or may be clearly implied from the contents thereof. n807 If, during coverture, the wife releases her husband's lands from the right of dower for a consideration in money paid her by the husband, she will be estopped from claiming dower in his lands. n808

As a general rule, an engagement to marry creates a confidential relation between the contracting parties, and an antenuptial contract entered into after the engagement and during its pendency must be attended by the utmost good faith. If the provision for the prospective wife is, in the light of the surrounding circumstances, wholly disproportionate to the means of her future husband and to what she would receive under the law, the burden rests on those claiming the validity of the contract to show that there was a full disclosure of the nature, extent and value of the intended husband's property or that she had full knowledge thereof without such disclosure, and that she, with this knowledge, voluntarily entered into the antenuptial settlement. n809 A valid antenuptial agreement operates to extinguish the homestead right of either spouse in the property of the other. n810

It is not absolutely necessary that the property conveyed in jointure shall come from the intended husband or even be his property. If it is expressly stated to be in lieu of dower, it will be a jointure and effectively bar dower, even though made by a stranger. n811 It may come from the father of the intended husband, or from anyone to whom the intended husband stands in the relation as heir apparent or as an intended beneficiary. n812 While in its original meaning it gave the idea of a joint estate in the husband and wife with the idea of survivorship between them, in reality it is a sole interest in the wife generally for her life, but it may be of greater duration, may be made after coverture as well as before, and may be given to the parties jointly. n813 Property conveyed by a deed to a wife by one who acquired title from her husband, by a deed in which she did not join, has been held, in the absence of other evidence showing such intention, not to be a jointure in lieu of dower. n814

The widow has full power of disposal of the jointure if the estate is limited to her in fee, but English statutes prohibited her from alienating it if the estate was in fee tail, and she was also prohibited from discontinuing the entail by feoffment, fines or recovery. n815 Unless prohibited by statute, a jointress has such powers of disposition of her life estate as other life tenants, has the same rights to estovers and emblements and is under the same restrictions as to waste, if there is no deficiency in her jointure. n816 She is not entitled to crops growing on the land at the time of her husband's death, as she is in dower. The reason for this is that jointure is not, like dower, a continuance of the husband's estate. Nor are her personal representatives entitled to emblements as is the representative of a doweress. n817 If the lands settled in jointure be under lease from the husband for a term of years and the term has not expired at his death, the jointress may have a decree in equity setting the lease aside, on the ground that she is a purchaser for value of a fixed interest, beneficial immediately on the death of her husband, of which interest he could not deprive her without her consent.

As jointure is a substitute for dower, it should be as beneficial. The dower right is consummate on the husband's death, and the widow is entitled at once to assignment thereof. To make the jointure as beneficial as dower, it should commence in enjoyment immediately upon the death of the husband. n818 In order that a jointure may bar dower, it must be made to pass to the widow presently after the death of her husband. n819 The interposition of any other interest between the husband's death and the wife's right to enjoyment is fatal to the estate in jointure and the widow may claim dower. Thus, where a life estate be expressly or impliedly interposed between the husband's death and the widow's right to enjoyment, there is no jointure such as will bar her dower. n820

A jointure agreement, entered into while the husband and wife were sojourning in a foreign state, is governed by the laws of their domicil, where the husband's property is situated. n821 The wife's right of dower may be barred by settling upon her an allowance previous to the marriage, to be accepted by her in lieu thereof. This is termed a "jointure." n822 So, a "jointure" may be defined as a competent livelihood of freehold for the wife of lands and tenements, to take effect in profit and possession presently after the death of the husband. n823

21.02(t) Requisites of Jointure

As has been previously noted, legal jointure came into being with the provisions of the Statute of Uses to the effect that jointures could bar dower. Legal jointures had their origin in what is sometimes termed the statute of jointures, which comprises the 4th, 5th, and 7th sections of the Statute of Uses. n824 The 4th section of said statute provided that a wife upon whom a jointure had been properly settled before marriage as required by law, was deprived of dower in the husband's remaining land. Sections 5 and 7 of the statute provided that in case the settlement was made during coverture, she might elect between it and dower. n825 The absolute requisites to a legal jointure are: first, it must be created before marriage; second, it must be made to the wife, and not in trust for her; third, it must be made and stated to be in satisfaction of dower; fourth, it must commence in enjoyment on the death of the husband; and fifth, it must be limited for at least during the life of the wife. n826 Where all these requisites are fulfilled in making a settlement or jointure, it has the effect of barring the widow's dower or of putting her upon her election, according to whether the settlement be made before or after coverture. n827 It may be noted here that only real property can be the subject matter of a legal jointure. n828 The validity of an antenuptial agreement is determined by the law of the place where it is made. n829

Another requisite for jointure is that the estate must be limited to the wife herself and not to any other person in trust for her. n830 This was the rule at common law, but equity has always regarded a trust for the wife, and even an agreement to settle, as a good equitable jointure and holds it a complete substitute for dower. n831 The statutes of a number of states require the intended wife, if of legal age, to assent to such arrangement by her signature indorsed upon the deed or instrument creating the estate, and if she is a minor, her parents or guardian must assent in like manner. This assent must state that it is in lieu of or a substitute for all claims or right in her husband's lands at his death. n832

The first statute in England (27 Henry VIII, ch. 10, §6), which made jointure a satisfaction at law for the claim of dower, did not require that a provision for the wife must be expressed to be for jointure in order to bar her dower. n833 Under subsequent enactments and modern statutes, generally, it is essential in both legal and equitable jointure that it be given and expressly stated to be given in lieu of, or as a substitute for, the whole of the dower right and not a part thereof. n834 A conveyance to a married woman is not deemed a jointure, unless such intention is expressed in the deed or appears by necessary implication from its contents. n835 If the property be transferred to her without any intention or purpose that it shall be in satisfaction of and in lieu of her whole dowry, it does not operate to bar her claim. n836 The reason for such rule is apparent from the uncertainty that would obtain if the jointure was to be in lieu of part dower. The particular part of dower for which the jointure was to be or not to be a substitute would be practically unascertainable, and uncertainty and confusion would result if the rule were otherwise. So, if lands are conveyed to a woman before marriage as part of her jointure, and after marriage more land is conveyed to her for her whole dower, on the death of her husband she may waive the claim to the land conveyed after marriage and have her jointure in that conveyed before marriage, and her dower in all the residue. n837 In one case, it is held that a conveyance made in lieu of dower need not specifically so state, but it will be sufficient if such an intention can be clearly collected from the instrument. n838

The common-law jointure, like dower, is a life estate. The duration is measured by the wife's life and not the life of another. There is nothing to prevent the husband from creating a fee simple or fee tail estate for his intended wife, but the estate must not be less than for the life of the woman. Thus it would not be a jointure, or bar dower, even though it is limited for the life or lives of several persons who in all probability have by mortality tables a much greater expectation of life than the intended wife. The same result would obtain if the estate were limited to her for a thousand years, a term to the end of which no man, so far as human experience has shown, has or can live in the flesh. n839 Statutes in a number of states provide that any pecuniary provision for the intended wife in lieu of dower, will, if assented to by her or by her parents or guardian, if she be a minor, be a complete substitute for dower. n840 Any reasonable provision, or contract therefor, will, in equity, be a good jointure if so assented to. n841

An estate in jointure may be limited to an intended wife, and the intended husband may attach a condition to the estate, the breach of which might terminate her estate, and if she accepts the estate on his death, she will be bound by the condition. n842 Also, an estate in jointure may be limited to a woman in special limitation, and be a complete bar to dower if she accepts same on the death of her husband. n843

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:requir! w/15 jointure w/30 bar! w/5 dower

21.02(u) Loss of Jointure

Since jointure under the more modern theory does not arise by way of contract, but at least creates present interests in the wife, it is not inchoate as dower and, therefore, is not lost in the same fashion as dower. Being a vested and not a mere inchoate right, a divorce, even a vinculo, granted to the husband for the fault of the wife, does not divest the title. n844 By statute in some states, jointure is forfeited for the same causes as dower.

If, by the assertion of a paramount title, the jointress is evicted, she may claim her dower as if no jointure had been made, at least to the extent of the value of the lost jointure. n845 Under some statutes, such deprivation of jointure entitles her to indemnity out of her husband's estate, n846 but she is not entitled to dower in lands conveyed by her husband to a stranger. n847 It is held that a jointure cannot be affected by a post-nuptial agreement. n848

If all the requisites for legal dower are not complied with, but the real essentials are present, and the intended wife assents before marriage to the provision made for her, this is called equitable jointure and is recognized and enforced in equity on the ground that it rests on a contract by the wife to relinquish dower, in this respect differing from legal jointure. n849 Where the wife, not being influenced by fraud or deceit, upon a sufficient consideration, freely and voluntarily agrees to accept a conveyance of property in lieu of her dower and distributable share of her husband's estate, and the husband conveys to her accordingly, she cannot, after his death, voluntarily set aside her contract by merely observing the form of relinquishment provided by the statute. n850 In equitable jointure, if the wife is an infant at the time the estate is created, and the provision is reasonable and certain, it is necessary that either her father, mother, or guardian assent for her. n851 Property other than real estate may be the subject matter of an equitable jointure. Thus any reasonable provision, such as money or personal property, n852 or contract for her provision, n853 is a good jointure, if assented to by the wife. n854 It is held that if the attempted settlement was only an agreement to convey in the future, it was nothing more than an antenuptial agreement and did not bar dower. n855 An equitable jointure made during coverture gives the wife, upon the death of the husband, an election to take either dower or jointure. n856

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. Ind. Code §§29-1-2-3.1, 31-1-9-2.

(n2)Footnote 2. Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. 21 (1841); United States v. Certain Parcels of Land, 46 F. Supp. 441 (D. Md. 1942); Schoellkopf v. DeVry, 7 N.E.2d 757 (Ill. 1937); Wilson v. Hilligoss, 278 Ill. App. 564 (1935); Griswold v. McGee, 112 N.W. 1020, aff'd, 113 N.W. 382 (Minn. 1907); Mathews v. Marsden, 230 P. 775 (Mont. 1924); Pridgen v. Pridgen, 129 S.E. 419 (N.C. 1925); Thompson v. Morrow, 5 Serg. & Rawle 289 (Pa. 1819); Cancilla v. Bondy, 44 A.2d 586 (Pa. 1945); Combs v. Young, 12 Tenn. (4 Yer.) 218 (1833); Shackelford v. Shackelford, 27 S.E.2d 354 (Va. 1943).

Contract -- Annotation, Dower or curtesy in property subject at time of marriage to contract for disposition by sale or will, 8 A.L.R.3d 569 (1966). Miles B. Amend, Jr., The Surviving Spouse and the Estates, Powers and Trusts Law, 33 Brooklyn L. Rev. 530 (1966-1967); George L. Haskins, The Development of Common Law Dower, 62 Harv. L. Rev. 42; Comment, Testamentary Dispositions and the Usufruct of the Surviving Spouse, 18 Loyola L. Rev. 335; State v. Jones, 290 S.W. 244 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926) (defining dower as wife's interest in husband's realty).

(n3)Footnote 3. Littleton, Tenures, §36.

2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 129. "Tenant in dower is where the husband of a woman is seised of an estate of inheritance, and dies; in this case, the wife shall have the third part of all the lands and tenements whereof he was seised at any time during the coverture, to hold to herself for the term of her natural life.

"In treating of this estate, let us, first, consider who may be endowed; secondly, of what she may be endowed; thirdly, the manner how she shall be endowed; and fourthly, how dower may be barred or prevented.

"1.Who may be endowed. She must be the actual wife of the party at the time of his decease. If she be divorced a vinculo matrimonii, she shall not be endowed; for ubi nullum matrimonium, ibi nulla dos. But a divorce a mensa et thoro only, doth not destroy the dower; no, not even for adultery itself by the common law. Yet now by the statute West. 2, if a woman voluntarily leaves (which the law calls eloping from) her husband, and lives with an adulterer, she shall lose her dower, unless her husband be voluntarily reconciled to her.

"2.We are next to enquire, of what a wife may be endowed. And she is now by law entitled to be endowed of all lands and tenements, of which her husband was seised in fee-simple or fee-tail, at any time during the coverture; and of which any issue, which she might have had, might by possibility have been heir. Therefore, if a man seised in fee-simple, hath a son by his first wife, and after marries a second wife, she shall be endowed of his lands; for her issue might by possibility have been heir, on the death of the son by the former wife. But if there be a donee in special tail who holds lands to him and the heirs of his body begotten on Jane his wife; though Jane may be endowed of these lands, yet if Jane dies, and he marries a second wife, that second wife shall never be endowed of the lands entailed; for no issue that she could have, could by any possibility inherit them. A seisin in law of the husband will be as effectual as a seisin in deed, in order to render the wife dowable; for it is not in the wife's power to bring the husband's title to an actual seisin, as it is in the husband's power to do with regard to the wife's lands: which is one reason why he shall not be tenant by the curtesy but of such lands whereof the wife, or he himself in her right, was actually seised in deed. The seisin of the husband, for a transitory instant only, when the same act that gives him the estate conveys it also out of him again (as where, by a fine, land is granted to a man, and he immediately renders it back by the same fine), such a seisin will not entitle the wife to dower: for the land was merely in transitu, and never rested in the husband, the grant and render being one continued act. But, if the land abides in him for the interval of but a single moment, it seems that the wife shall be endowed thereof ... where dower is allowable, it matters not though the husband aliene the lands during the coverture; for he alienes them liable to dower.

"3. Next, as to the manner in which a woman is to be endowed ...

"The particular lands, to be held in dower, must be assigned by the heir of the husband, or his guardian; not only for the sake of notoriety, but also to entitle the lord of the fee to demand his services of the heir, in respect of the lands so holden. For the heir by this entry becomes tenant thereof to the lord, and the widow is immediate tenant to the heir, by a kind of subinfeudation, or under-tenancy completed by this investiture or assignment; which tenure may still be created, notwithstanding the statute of quia emptores, because the heir parts not with the fee-simple, but only with an estate for life. If the heir or his guardian do not assign her dower within the term of quarantine, or do assign it unfairly, she has her remedy at law and the sheriff is appointed to assign it.

"4.How dower may be barred or prevented. A widow may be barred of her dower by elopement, divorce, being an alien, the treason of her husband. A woman also may be barred of her dower, by levying a fine, or suffering a recovery of the lands, during her coverture. But the most usual method of barring dowers is by jointures ..."

(n4)Footnote 4. Underground Elec. Rys. v. Owsley, 196 F. 278 (2d Cir. 1911); Arbaugh v. West, 192 S.W. 171 (Ark. 1917); Bush v. Bush, 5 Del. Ch. 144 (1877); Adams v. Adams, 2 So. 2d 855 (Fla. 1941); Sisk v. Smith, 1 Gilm. (6 Ill.) 503 (1844); Verry v. Robinson, 25 Ind. 14 (1865); Butler v. Cheatham, 71 Ky. (8 Bush) 594 (1871); Johnson v. Goss, 132 Mass. 274 (1882); Grady v. McCorkle, 57 Mo. 172 (1874); Davison v. Davison, 106 S.W. 1 (Mo. 1907); Orchard v. Wright-Dalton-Bell-Anchor Store Co., 125 S.W. 486 (Mo. 1909); Butler v. Fitzgerald, 61 N.W. 640 (Neb. 1895); Woodford v. Woodford, 14 A. 273 (N.J. 1888); Riddle v. Cella, 15 A.2d 59 (N.J. 1940); House v. Jackson, 50 N.Y. 161 (1872); Redding v. Vogt, 53 S.E. 337 (N.C. 1906); Greene v. Greene, 1 Ohio 535 (1824); Gray v. McCune, 23 Pa. 447 (1854); Sprague v. Stevens, 79 A. 972 (R.I. 1911); Combs v. Young, 12 Tenn. (4 Yer.) 218 (1833); Couch v. Eastham, 73 S.E. 314 (W. Va. 1911).

(n5)Footnote 5. McGuire v. Cook, 135 S.W. 840 (Ark. 1911); In re Ginsburg's Estate, 50 So. 2d 539 (Fla. 1951) (as used in a will "dower" may be intended to include personalty); Sturgis v. Ewing, 18 Ill. 176 (1856); Noel v. Ewing, 9 Ind. 37 (1857); Wild v. Toms, 99 N.W. 700 (Iowa 1904); Fowler v. Chadima, 111 N.W. 808 (Iowa 1907); McAllister v. Dexter & P. R. Co., 76 A. 891 (Me. 1910); Griswold v. McGee, 112 N.W. 1020 (Minn. 1907); Application of Manhattan Sav. Bank, 43 N.Y.S.2d 386 (1943); Hoy v. Varner, 42 S.E. 690 (Va. 1902).

By Littleton's time dower had become fixed at one-third of all the estate of inheritance of which the husband was seised. Littleton, Tenures, §37.

(n6)Footnote 6. Heisen v. Heisen, 34 N.E. 597 (Ill. 1893); Dayton v. Corser, 53 N.W. 717 (Minn. 1892).

(n7)Footnote 7. Heisen v. Heisen, 34 N.E. 597 (Ill. 1893); Dayton v. Corser, 53 N.W. 717 (Minn. 1892); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916).

See Cook, American Land Law Reform: Legal Co-ownership, Dower and Curtesy, 1960 Duke L.J. 485.

(n8)Footnote 8. Hatcher v. Buford, 29 S.W. 641 (Ark. 1895); Stull v. Graham, 31 S.W. 46 (Ark. 1895); Woodberry v. Matherson, 19 Fla. 778 (1883); Ditson v. Ditson, 52 N.W. 203 (Iowa 1892); Cameron v. Cameron, 18 Miss. (10 Smedes & M) 394 (1848); Howard v. Strode, 146 S.W. 792 (Mo. 1912); Adamson v. Ayres, 5 N.J. Eq. 349 (1950); Katz v. Farber, 72 A.2d 862 (N.J.); Burdett v. Burdett, 109 P. 922 (Okla. 1910).

(n9)Footnote 9. Harber v. Harber, 108 S.E. 520 (Ga. 1921); Knapp v. Knapp, 135 N.E. 732 (Ill. 1922); Schoellkopf v. DeVry, 7 N.E.2d 757 (Ill. 1937); Wigginton v. Leech, 149 S.W.2d 531 (Ky. 1941); Gluc v. Klein, 197 N.W. 691 (Mich. 1924); Mathews v. Marsden, 230 P. 775 (Mont. 1924); Pridgen v. Pridgen, 129 S.E. 419 (N.C. 1925); Swift v. Reasonover, 77 S.W.2d 809 (Tenn. 1935); State v. Jones, 290 S.W. 244 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Harmon v. Peery, 134 S.E. 701 (Va. 1926).

(n10)Footnote 10. Stone v. Stone, 67 S.W.2d 189 (Ark. 1934); Pawley v. Pawley, 46 So. 2d 464 (Fla. 1950); Opinion of the Justices, 151 N.E.2d 475 (Mass. 1958).

(n11)Footnote 11. Schoellkopf v. DeVry, 7 N.E.2d 757 (Ill. 1937); Classen v. Heath, 58 N.E.2d 889 (Ill. 1945).

(n12)Footnote 12. §248 (1); Internal Revenue Comm'r v. Chase Manhattan Bank, 259 F.2d 231 (5th Cir. 1958), cert. denied, 359 U.S. 913 (1959) (no dower in Texas); Hedden v. Hedden, 312 S.W.2d 891 (Ky. 1958) (Kentucky now has dower in fee instead of a life estate, Ky. Rev. Stat., §392.080).

(n13)Footnote 13. Sanders v. McMillan, 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1892); O'Ferrall v. Simplot, 4 Iowa 381 (1857).

(n14)Footnote 14. Lawson v. Morton, 36 Ky. (6 Dana) 471 (1838); Wood v. Keyes, 6 Paige (N.Y.) 478.

(n15)Footnote 15. Schnebly v. Schnebly, 26 Ill. 116 (1861); O'Ferrall v. Simplot, 4 Iowa 381 (1857).

(n16)Footnote 16. Corriell v. Bronson, 6 Iowa 471 (1858); French v. Pratt, 27 Me. 381 (1847); French v. Peters, 33 Me. 396 (1851).

(n17)Footnote 17. Borders v. Niemoeller 239 S.W.2d 555 (Mo. App. 1951).

The statutory marital right is a mere expectancy, but it cannot be defeated by will or by a gift causa mortis. Tomon v. Svoboda, 349 N.E.2d 668 (Ill. 1976).

(n18)Footnote 18. Application of Manhattan Sav. Bank, 43 N.Y.S.2d 386 (1943).

(n19)Footnote 19. Wides v. Wides' Ex'r, 184 S.W.2d 579 (Ky. 1944); Application of Manhattan Sav. Bank, 43 N.Y.S.2d 386 (1943); Beck v. Merritt, 657 S.W. 2d 549 (Ark. 1983) (holding "a dower statute not gender biased since wife's dower claim is the equivalent to husband's curtesy rights").

(n20)Footnote 20. In re Ricon's Estate, 327 So. 2d 224 (Fla. 1976); In re Estate of Kyiath, 545 P.2d 662 (Mont. 1976).

(n21)Footnote 21. Harris v. Powers, 58 S.E. 1038 (Ga. 1907); Pridgen v. Pridgen, 129 S.E. 419 (N.C. 1925); Griffin v. Griffin, 131 S.E. 585 (N.C. 1926).

(n22)Footnote 22. George L. Hoskins, Development of Common Law Dower, 62 Harv. L. Rev. 42 (1948).

(n23)Footnote 23. Under the Roman law the "dos" was the contribution of the wife's family toward the expenses of the household. Only the revenue belonged to the husband. Henry s. Maine, Lectures on The Early History of Institutions

319 (1888). See Kagan, The Nature of Dowery in Roman Law -- Rights of Husband and Wife, 20 Tul. L. Rev. 557 (1946).

(n24)Footnote 24. William Cruise & Simon Greenleaf, A Digest of The Law of Real Property 130 (2d ed. 1856-57).

(n25)Footnote 25. Martin Wright, Introduction to The Law of Tenures (4th ed. 1792) Wright, Tenures, §192n; 1 Greenleaf-Cruise, Real Property, 127.

(n26)Footnote 26. Jacob J. Rabinawitz, The Origin of the Common Law Warranty of Real Property and of the Inchoate Right of Dower, 30 Cornell L.Q. 77 (1944), ascribes dower to the Hebrew "Kethuba."

(n27)Footnote 27. Noting the similarity of common-law dowery to Anglo-Saxon law. Henze v. Mitchell, 140 N.W. 149 (Neb. 1913); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917); Crenshaw v. Moore, 137 S.W. 924 (Tenn. 1911).

Joshua Williams, Principles of The Law of Real Property, ch. 2, §7, and ch. 3, §1, calls attention to the dual custom of the Germans of the bride's family making a gift to the husband and the latter making a marriage gift or under other circumstances a "morning gift" to the bride.

The Anglo-Saxons had also the "Morgen-gifu-pretium virginitates" or "morning gift" which the husband gave to his bride on the morning following the wedding. Kenelm Edward Digby, An Introduction to The History of The Law of Real Property. ch. 3, §184 (2d ed. 1876).

(n28)Footnote 28. 6 Glanvill, ch. 2. See 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 134.

(n29)Footnote 29. There was early a distinction between "dower" and "free bench." In "free bench" in copyhold estates the widow took an estate in only such lands as the husband died seised of. Godwin v. Winsmore, 2 Atk. 526, 26 Eng. Rep. 716 (1742); Geoffrey Gilbert, The Law of Tenures (5th ed. 1824).

(n30)Footnote 30. At one time distinction was made between dower which was a one-third interest for life in all of the lands of which the husband was at any time seised during marriage, and a similar interest in the lands of which the husband died seised.

It was customary for the early Anglo-Saxon husband to make provision for his wife at the time of marriage, and when the right to alienate lands became established, it was found necessary to limit the husband's power to alienate so as to leave the wife destitute. No doubt the custom alluded to above became a fixed rule of law, and, when the husband's power of alienation became limited in order to preserve the interest of the wife, the right of the wife became a contingent interest during coverture and consummate upon his death.

The quantity of property that the husband was accustomed to allot to his wife varied from one tenth to one fourth of his estate.

(n31)Footnote 31. Blackstone said that "dower was introduced into Denmark by Swein, the father of Canute, out of gratitude to the Danish ladies, who sold all their jewels to ransom him when taken prisoner by the Vandals." 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 129.

In Scotland the wife was entitled to one third of the husband's goods on termination of the marriage. See A. E. Anton, Effect of Marriage Upon Property in Scots Law, 19 Mod. L. Rev. 653 (1956).

(n32)Footnote 32. See 3 William Searle Holdsworth, A History of English Law 189-197.

(n33)Footnote 33. Loughran v. Loughran, 292 U.S. 216 (1933); Whiting v. Nicholl, 46 Ill. 230 (1867); McCraney v. McCraney, 5 Iowa 232 (1857); Dennis v. Harris, 153 N.W. 343 (Iowa 1915); Stevens v. Smith, 27 Ky. (4 J.J. Marsh.) 64 (1830); Cummings v. Schreur, 214 N.W. 199 (Mich. 1927); State v. Probate Court, 163 N.W. 285 (Minn. 1917); Murray v. Scully, 167 S.W. 1017 (Mo. 1914); Moore v. New York, 8 N.Y. 110 (1853); Rumsey v. Sullivan, 150 N.Y.S. 287 (1914); Boggiano v. Boggiano, 38 N.Y.S.2d 355 (1942); In re Brown's Estate, 14 P.2d 1107 (Or. 1932); Appeal of Shea, 15 A. 629 (Pa. 1888); McCulley v. Hardeman, 223 S.W. 146 (Tenn. 1920); Shackelford v. Shackelford, 27 S.E.2d 354 (Va. 1943).

(n34)Footnote 34. Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916).

(n35)Footnote 35. Crum v. O'Rear, 24 N.E. 956 (Ill. 1890).

(n36)Footnote 36. Petta v. Host, 115 N.E.2d 881 (Ill. 1953); Kreamer v. Hitchcock, 115 A.2d 55 (Md. 1955); Borders v. Niemoeller, 239 S.W.2d 555 (Mo. App. 1951); Smigell v. Brod, 79 A.2d 411 (Pa. 1951); In re Madsen's Estate, 259 P.2d 595 (Utah 1953).

(n37)Footnote 37. Tacitus, Germania, ch. 18, speaks of the high place of women among the early Germans. We have no knowledge of the particular tribe to which he had reference. If it was the Suebi of whom Caesar spoke and who later commingled, to some extent, with the Visigoths, perhaps the community property philosophy had its beginning here.

Dower is inchoate until death of husband. Brenkworth v. Lanier, 132 S.E.2d 623 (N.C. 1963).

(n38)Footnote 38. Leib v. Wilson, 51 Ind. 550 (1875).

(n39)Footnote 39. In re Central Park Extension, 16 Abb. Prac. 56 (N.Y. 1863).

(n40)Footnote 40. Coke on Littleton, §§34, 35.

(n41)Footnote 41. Lamar v. Scott, 3 Strob. 562 (S.C. 1849).

(n42)Footnote 42. Coke on Littleton, §32a.

(n43)Footnote 43. Crouse v. Crouse, 259 N.W. 443 (Iowa 1935); Knolls v. Barnhart, 71 N.Y. 474 (1877); In re Johnson's Estate, 185 N.W. 180 (Wis. 1921).

(n44)Footnote 44. West v. Miller, 78 F.2d 479 (7th Cir.), cert. denied, 296 U.S. 633 (1935); Clark v. Hanson, 151 N.E. 369 (Ill. 1926).

(n45)Footnote 45. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 131.

(n46)Footnote 46. Littleton, Tenures, §36.

(n47)Footnote 47. Coke on Littleton, §185a.

(n48)Footnote 48. Littleton, Tenures, §45. Coke on Littleton, §37, "jus accrescendi praefertur oneribus," (the right of survivorship is preferable to all burdens).

(n49)Footnote 49. Coke on Littleton, §31.

(n50)Footnote 50. A father seised of lands and his son were hanged together. The son continued to kick longer than the father. The son's widow took dower as against father's heirs. Broughton v. Randall, 78 Eng. Rep. 752 (n.d.).

(n51)Footnote 51. Littleton, Tenures, §36.

(n52)Footnote 52. Widow entitled to dower. Allen v. Saunders, 119 S.E. 486 (N.C. 1923); Bodkin v. Wright, 100 S.W.2d 824 (Ky. 1937).

Widow not entitled to dower. Smith v. Shepard, 19 N.E.2d 368 (Ill. 1939); Hopper v. Hopper, 190 A. 841 (Md. 1937); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916).

But dower is cut off if the estate determines in the husband's lifetime. Beardslee v. Beardslee, 5 Barb 324 (N.Y. 1849).

(n53)Footnote 53. Thompson v. Thompson, 46 N.C. 430 (1854).

(n54)Footnote 54. See Percy Bordwell, Deseisin and Adverse Possession 31 Yale L.J. 1.

(n55)Footnote 55. Hawkins v. Page, 20 Ky. (4 T.B. Mon.) 136 (1826).

(n56)Footnote 56. Fish v. Fish, 1 Conn. 559 (1816); Stanton v. Boatright, 302 S.W.2d 347 (Tenn. 1957) (dower only in the equity above the mortgage debt).

(n57)Footnote 57. Hamm v. Butler, 112 So. 141 (Ala. 1927); Munro v. McAllister, 203 P. 286 (Idaho 1921); Temple v. Harrington, 176 P. 430 (Or. 1918).

(n58)Footnote 58. Chavers v. Mayo, 202 Ala. 128 (1918); Patterson v. Durand Farmers Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 24 N.E.2d 740 (Ill. 1940); Weidler v. Floran, 13 N.E.2d 330 (Ind. 1938); Roth v. Roth, 125 A. 400 (Md. 1924).

(n59)Footnote 59. Wilson v. Robinson, 83 F.2d 397 (2d Cir. 1936); Weidler v. Floran, 13 N.E.2d 330 (Ind. 1938).

(n60)Footnote 60. LaMar v. Lechlider, 187 So. 913 (Fla. 1939); Krueger v. Groth, 209 N.W. 772 (Wis. 1926).

In Oklahoma a husband and wife have a species of common ownership during marriage so that a transfer from husband to wife on divorce creates no taxable gain when the property has appreciated. Collins v. Commissioner Internal Revenue, 412 F.2d 211 (10th Cir. 1969). But vesting occurs at the time of the divorce, not during marriage. Sanditen v. Sanditen, 496 P.2d 365 (Okla. 1972).

In Colorado a transfer of property between husband and wife on divorce is a recognition of common ownership and not taxable. In re Questions Submitted by U.S. Dist. Court, 517 P.2d 1331 (Colo. 1974).

(n61)Footnote 61. Hamm v. Butler, 112 So. 141 (Ala. 1927); In re Lamonica's Estate, 141 A. 315 (Del. Ch. 1928); Ratzman v. Ratzman, 165 N.E. 172 (Ill. 1929).

(n62)Footnote 62. The widow may be forced to an election, however.

(n63)Footnote 63. Chambers v. Davis, 54 Ky. (15 B. Mon.) 522 (1954).

Wife's inchoate dower not barred by execution sale on judgment against husband. Walters v. Anderson, 361 S.W.2d 31 (Ky. 1962).

(n64)Footnote 64. Hanes v. Marshall, 43 F.2d 703 (2d Cir. 1930); Gerhardt v. Sullivan, 152 A. 663 (N.J. Eq. 1930).

(n65)Footnote 65. Tucker v. Tucker, 13 S.E. 5 (N.C. 1891).

(n66)Footnote 66. Loughran v. Loughran, 292 U.S. 216 (1934); Schoellkopf v. DeVry, 7 N.E.2d 757 (Ill. 1937).

(n67)Footnote 67. Whitsell v. Mills, 6 Ind. 229 (1855); Littlefield v. Paul, 69 Me. 527 (1879); Wait v. Wait, 4 N.Y. 95 (1850).

(n68)Footnote 68. Coke on Littleton, §32.

(n69)Footnote 69. 13 Edw. I, ch. 34.

See Comment, Oregon Marital Property Laws: Can Both Separation and Equality Be Achieved? 57 Or. L. Rev. 152 (1978).

(n70)Footnote 70. Britton, ch. 110. This rule, changed by 1 Edw. VI, ch. 12, was later renewed. 5 & 6 Edw. VI.

(n71)Footnote 71. Harley v. Orvin, 14 S.E.2d 701 (S.C. 1941).

Dower is determined by the lex situ of the realty. In re Johnson's Estate, 240 So. 2d 840 (Fla. 1970).

(n72)Footnote 72. Pope v. Bain, 68 A.2d 569 (N.J. 1949).

(n73)Footnote 73. United States v. Certain Parcels of Land, 46 F. Supp. 441 (D. Md. 1942); Resch v. Rowland, 257 S.W.2d 621 (Mo. 1953); Murawski v. Murawski, 209 S.W.2d 262 (Mo. App. 1948); In re Madsen's Estate, 259 P.2d 595 (Utah 1953).

See Joseph L. Lewis, It's Time to Abolish Dower and Curtesy in Virginia, 3 U. Rich. L. Rev. 299 (1969).

(n74)Footnote 74. Salvemini v. Giblin, 130 A.2d 842 (N.J. 1957); American Blower Co. v. MacKenzie, 147 S.E. 829 (N.C. 1929); In re Booth's Estate, 349 P.2d 840 (Or. 1960).

See George L. Haskins, The Estate by the Marital Right, 97 U. Pa. L. Rev. 345 (1948); Allen D. Altman, Florida Dower -- Does It Qualify for the Marital Deduction?, 22 U. Miami L. Rev. 686 (1968); Margaret H. Amsler, New Married Woman's Statutes: Meaning and Effect, 15 Baylor L. Rev. 145 (1963); Joseph H. Vahlsing & William E. Hudson, Inchoate Dower -- An Idea Whose Time Is Past, 60 Ky. L.J. 671 (1972).

See also Charles P. Sacher, Florida Dower, 43 Fla. B.J. 266 (1969).

(n75)Footnote 75. Underground Elec. Rys. Co. v. Owsley, 196 F. 278 (2d Cir. 1912); Cole v. Cole, 126 N.E. 752 (Ill. 1920); Magee v. Young, 40 Miss. 164 (1866).

See J. T. Stovall, Dower and Distributive Share, 4 Ala. Law 264 (1943); H. Claude Horack, Specific Performance and Dower Rights, 11 Iowa L. Rev. 97 (1926).

The right of dower arises on death subject to debts, so a widow was entitled to dower in realty owned by husband's father who died while the husband's estate was pending. Pfaff v. Heizman, 235 S.W.2d 551 (Ark. 1951).

(n76)Footnote 76. Barfoot v. Barfoot, 18 So. 2d 465 (Ala. 1944); Cieslikowski v. Radecki, 135 N.E.2d 433 (Ohio 1956) (no right of possession under inchoate dower).

The statutory marital right is a mere expectancy but cannot be defeated by will or by a gift causa mortis. Tomon v. Svoboda, 349 N.E.2d 668 (Ill. 1976). Webber v. Webber, 962 S.W.2d 345, 348 (Ark. 1998) (holding that "[a] widow's right of dower, even in real property, remains only an inchoate right until the husband's death," which right applies even to crops growing at time of death).

(n77)Footnote 77. Knox v. Knox, 25 N.W.2d 225 (Minn. 1946).

(n78)Footnote 78. Wigginton v. Leech, 149 S.W.2d 531 (Ky. 1941).

(n79)Footnote 79. United States v. Crosby, 257 F.2d 515 (5th Cir. 1958) (in Alabama inchoate dower is not a property right but only a chose in action and is not alienable); Wigginton v. Leech, 149 S.W.2d 531 (Ky. 1941); Butler v. Fitzgerald, 61 N.W. 640 (Neb. 1895); David Adler & Sons Clothing Co. v. Hellman, 75 N.W. 877 (Neb. 1893) See Tuller v. Detroit Trust Co., 244 N.W. 197 (Mich. 1932).

In Kansas a wife has no vested co-ownership in the husband's property during marriage but is entitled to a one-half interest in property of her deceased husband which he sold during marriage and in which sale she did not join. There is no such co-ownership during marriage. Wiles v. Commissioner, 499 F.2d 255 (10th Cir. 1974). An easement on land may be conveyed without losing dower rights. In fact, a release of dower rights implies a fee simple conveyance, rather than an easement. Meadows v. Belknap, 483 S.E.2d 826 (W. Va. 1997) (holding that a wife can obtain the full use of, and a life estate in, all of her husband's real property when she relinquishes her inchoate dower right by joining him in conveying the property subject to the life estates); Elton Schmidt & Sons Farm Co. v. Kneib, 507 N.W.2d 305 (Neb. App. 1993) (holding that an easement does not invalidate dower rights and that an instrument releasing dower rights implies a fee simple conveyance, rather than an easement). Matter of Lorenzo's Estate, 602 P.2d 521 (Hawaii 1979) (holding that desertion must "be a physical separation, without consent and against will of the other spouse, and without justification" in order to defeat a wife's dower interest).

(n80)Footnote 80. Thomas v. Blair, 93 So. 704 (Ala. 1922); Western States Fin. Co. v. Ruff, 215 P. 501 (Or. 1923).

(n81)Footnote 81. Good v. Crist, 156 N.E. 146 (Ohio 1926).

(n82)Footnote 82. Mayer v. Reinecke, 130 F.2d 350 (7th Cir. 1942); Bateman v. Donovan, 131 F.2d 759 (9th Cir. 1942); Gore v. General Props. Corp., 6 So. 2d 837 (Fla. 1942); Bennett v. Bennett, 149 N.E. 292 (Ill. 1925); Weidler v. Floran, 13 N.E.2d 330 (Ind. 1938); In re Cropsey Ave., 197 N.E. 189 (N.Y. 1935); Auerbach v. Chase Nat'l Bank, 296 N.Y.S. 487 (1937); Western States Fin. Co. v. Ruff, 215 P. 501 (Or. 1923); Najarian v. Boyajian, 136 A. 767 (R.I. 1927) See Hay v. Meyers, 173 A. 775 (Pa. 1934).

Contra Simar v. Canaday, 53 N.Y. 298 (1873) (inchoate dower is an estate in land).

In Kansas a wife has no vested co-ownership in the husband's property during marriage but is entitled to a one-half interest in property of her deceased husband which he sold during marriage and in which sale she did not join. There is no such co-ownership during marriage. Wiles v. Commissioner Int. Rev., 499 F.2d 255 (10th Cir. 1974).

(n83)Footnote 83. Good v. Crist, 156 N.E. 146 (Ohio App. 1926).

A consideration paid for a subsequent release of dower by the wife to the husband's vendee was income taxable to the husband, even though the husband and wife had a contract whereby she was to receive one-third of the proceeds for releasing dower. Le Croy v. Cook, 204 S.W.2d 173 (Ark. 1947).

(n84)Footnote 84. Bennett v. Bennett, 149 N.E. 292 (Ill. 1925); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917).

(n85)Footnote 85. Thomas v. Blair, 93 So. 704 (Ala. 1922); Bennett v. Bennett, 149 N.E. 292 (Ill. 1925); Classen v. Heath, 58 N.E.2d 889 (Ill. 1945); Cummings v. Schreur, 214 N.W. 199 (Mich. 1927).

Wife was not entitled to compensation for ordinary household duties but was entitled to compensation for the management of a citrus grove. Estate of Nelson v. Commissioner, 232 F.2d 720 (5th Cir. 1956).

(n86)Footnote 86. Firebaugh v. Wittenberg, 141 N.E. 379 (Ill. 1923).

(n87)Footnote 87. Stokes v. Stokes, 222 S.W.2d 108 (Mo. 1949); In re Barnes, 181 N.Y.S. 73 (1920). Kentucky Bank & Trust Co. v. Ashland Oil & Transp. Co., 310 S.W.2d 287 (Ky. 1958) (holding that inchoate dower is a substantial right that arises at marriage or subsequent acquisition of realty by husband).

(n88)Footnote 88. Dure v. Sharpe, 114 A. 207 (Del. Ch. 1910); Stokes v. Stokes, 196 N.Y.S. 184 (1922).

(n89)Footnote 89. Dure v. Sharpe, 114 A. 207 (Del. Ch. 1910); Ladshaw v. Drake, 191 S.E. 713 (S.C. 1937).

(n90)Footnote 90. Dure v. Sharpe, 114 A. 207 (Del. Ch. 1910); American Blower Co. v. MacKenzie, 147 S.E. 829 (N.C. 1929).

Inchoate dower is a substantial property right. Clifford v. Kampfe, 42 N.E. 1 (N.Y. 1895); McCreery v. Davis, 22 S.E. 178 (S.C. 1895). So where the state requires words of grant to convey a real interest, wife's mere signature on a deed without words of grant does not bar her dower. Cox v. Wells, 7 Blackf. 410 (Ind. 1845); Lothrop v. Foster, 51 Me. 367 (1863); Catlin v. Ware, 9 Mass. 218 (1812); Agar v. Streeter, 150 N.W. 160 (Mich. 1914).

(n91)Footnote 91. Tatum v. Tatum, 295 S.W. 720 (Ark. 1927) 53 A.L.R. 306; In re Cropsey Ave., 197 N.E. 189 (N.Y. 1935); In re Barnes, 181 N.Y.S. 73 (1920); Rook v. Horton, 129 S.E. 450 (N.C. 1925); Turner v. Washington Realty Co., 126 S.E. 137 (S.C. 1925); Shelton v. Shelton, 83 S.E.2d 176 (S.C. 1954); Share v. Trickle, 197 N.W. 329 (Wis. 1924).

(n92)Footnote 92. Stanton v. Boatright, 302 S.W.2d 347 (Tenn. 1957).

The law favors three things, life, liberty and dower. Bacon, Uses, 37. See Moore v. Price, 123 So. 768 (Fla. 1929). From the earliest times, the right of dower has always been highly esteemed in the law. See in general: Tatum v. Tatum, 295 S.W. 720 (Ark. 1927); Swartz v. Smole, 5 P.2d 566 (Mont. 1931); In re Barnes, 181 N.Y.S. 73 (1920); Pridgen v. Pridgen, 129 S.E. 419 (N.C. 1925); Tuten v. Almeda Farms, 192 S.E. 153 (S.C. 1937); Williamson v. Williamson First Nat'l Bank, 164 S.E. 777 (W. Va. 1931); Share v. Trickle, 197 N.W. 329 (Wis. 1924).

See Ralph E. Thomas, Should Marital Rights Be Protected by Statute?, 19 Wyo. L.J. 14 (1964).

(n93)Footnote 93. Hamm v. Butler, 112 So. 141 (Ala. 1927); Tatum v. Tatum, 295 S.W. 720 (Ark. 1927); Stokes v. Stokes, 196 N.Y.S. 184 (1922). Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. 1955) (holding that inchoate dower is a property interest under protection of equity).

(n94)Footnote 94. American Blower Co. v. MacKenzie, 147 S.E. 829 (N.C. 1929) 64 A.L.R. 1047. See Reiff v. Horst, 55 Md. 42 (1880).

(n95)Footnote 95. Louisa County v. Grimm, 212 N.W. 324 (Iowa 1927); Rosenow v. Miller, 207 P. 618 (Mont. 1922); Western States Fin. Co. v. Ruff, 215 P. 501 (Or. 1923); Najarian v. Boyajian, 136 A. 767 (R.I. 1927).

Contra, Nelson v. Dunn, 284 S.W. 1084 (Ky. 1926); Hay v. Meyers, 173 A. 775 (Pa. 1934).

(n96)Footnote 96. Citizens Bank & Trust Co. v. Watkins, 1 S.E.2d 853 (N.C. 1939).

(n97)Footnote 97. Randall v. Krieger, 90 U.S. (23 Wall.) 137 (1874); Hopkins v. Magruder, 34 F. Supp. 381 (D. Md. 1940); Hatcher v. Buford, 29 S.W. 641 (Ark. 1895); Hawkes v. Mobley, 163 S.E. 494 (Ga. 1932); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Thompson v. McCorkle, 34 N.E. 813 (Ind. 1893); Williams v. Williams, 12 S.W. 760 (Ky. 1889); Stitt v. Smith, 113 N.W. 632 (Minn. 1907); Magee v. Young, 40 Miss. 164, (1866); Moore v. New York, 8 N.Y. 110, (1853); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917); Weaver v. Gregg, 6 Ohio St. 547 (1856); Briegel v. Briegel, 160 A. 581 (Pa. 1931).

(n98)Footnote 98. United States v. Certain Parcels of Land, 46 F. Supp. 441 (D. Md. 1942); Flynn v. Flynn, 50 N.E. 650 (Mass. 1898); In re Cropsey Ave., 197 N.E. 189 (N.Y. 1935) (need not be a party to condemnation action); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919); Shelton v. Shelton, 83 S.E.2d 176 (S.C. 1954).

Contra, Wheeler v. Kirtland, 27 N.J. Eq. 534 (1875); In re New York & Brooklyn Bridge, 27 N.Y.S. 597 (1894). Liberty Folder Co. v. Anderson, 90 N.E.2d 409 (Ohio App. 1949) (interpreting code section dealing with abolishment of dower).

(n99)Footnote 99. Ferry v. Spokane, P. & S. R. Co., 258 U.S. 314 (1922); Fletcher v. Felker, 97 F. Supp. 755 (W.D. Ark. 1951); Chapman v. Chapman, 29 P. 1071 (Kan. 1892); Hamblin v. Marchant, 175 P. 678 (Kan. 1918); Opinion of the Justices, 151 N.E.2d 475 (Mass. 1958), citing Thompson on Real property; Moore v. New York, 8 N.Y. 110, (1853); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919); Goodman v. Gerstle, 109 N.E.2d 489 (Ohio St. 1952); Wilson v. Wilson, 81 S.E.2d 605 (Va. 1954).

"In questions relating to dower, the widow is not to be considered a creditor or purchaser for value." Rook v. Horton, 129 S.E. 450 (N.C. 1925).

(n100)Footnote 100. Goodkind v. Bartlett, 26 N.E. 387 (Ill. 1891); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917).

Although dower and curtesy, though inchoate, have been referred to as "vested remainders," Doremus v. Patterson, 57 A. 548 (N.J. 1904) such a statement is incorrect. They are not transferable separate from the fee. Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95 (N.J. Eq. 1921).

(n101)Footnote 101. Tatum v. Tatum, 295 S.W. 720 (Ark. 1927); Bowles v. Hoard, 39 N.W. 24 (Mich. 1888); Vreeland v. Jacobus, 19 N.J. Eq. 231 (1868); Denton v. Nanny, 8 Barb. (N.Y.) 618 (1850).

(n102)Footnote 102. Pawley v. Pawley, 46 So. 2d 464, 28 A.L.R.2d 1358 cert. denied, 340 U.S. 866 (Fla. 1950); Vaughan v. Dowden, 26 N.E. 74 (Ind. 1891); Peddicord v. Peddicord, 47 N.W.2d 264 (Iowa 1951); Frisbee v. Frisbee, 29 A. 1115 (Me. 1894); Fitcher v. Griffiths, 103 N.E. 471 (Mass. 1913); Smith v. Hall, 30 A. 409 (N.H. 1892); Campbell v. Ellwanger, 30 N.Y.S. 792 (1943); Application of Manhattan Sav. Bank, 43 N.Y.S.2d 386 (1943); Atwood v. Arnold, 51 A. 216 (R.I. 1902); Gatewood v. Gatewood, 75 Va. 407 (1881).

(n103)Footnote 103. Reinheimer v. Rhedans, 327 S.W.2d 823 (Mo. 1959).

(n104)Footnote 104. O'steen v. O'steen, 85 So. 547 (Ala. 1920); Wagar v. Marshburn, 1 So. 2d 303 (Ala. 1941); Warner v. Norwegian Cemetery Ass'n, 117 N.W. 39 (Iowa 1908); McKelvey v. McKelvey, 89 P. 663 (Kan. 1907); Hamblin v. Marchant, 175 P. 678 (Kan. 1918) 6 A.L.R. 1403; Truitt v. Truitt, 162 S.W.2d 31 (Ky. 1942) 140 A.L.R. 1127 (holding the inchoate right of dower a "vested right" defeasible only by prior death); Hart v. Parrish, 244 S.W.2d 105 (Mo. 1951) (fraudulent sheriff's deed did not affect dower); Grundstein v. Suburban Motor Freight, 107 N.E.2d 366 (Ohio App. 1951).

See Harry H. Schneider & Bertram M. Landesman, "Life, Liberty and Dower" Disherison of the Spouse in New York, 19 N.Y.U. L.Q. 343 (1942).

(n105)Footnote 105. Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. 1955).

(n106)Footnote 106. Mullan v. Bank of Pasco County, 133 So. 323 (Fla. 1931); Grubbs v. Leyendecker, 53 N.E. 940 (Ind. 1899); Burk v. Moore, 272 S.W. 38 (Ky. 1925).

Widow's death before dower was perfected did not affect right to dower. In re Hiley's Estate, 262 So. 2d 476 (Fla.

App. 1972).

Prior to assignment a widow does not become vested in the estate in dower of the land. Her interest is a mere chose in action to have the assignment made. In re Booth's Estate, 349 P.2d 840 (Or. 1960), repudiating Leonard v. Grant, 8 Or. 276 (1880).

(n107)Footnote 107. Pacific Bank v. Hannah, 90 F. 72 (9th Cir. 1898); Landers v. Hayes, 72 So. 106 (Ala. 1916) (grantee acquires no legal interest); Bowen v. Black, 279 S.W. 782 (Ark. 1926) (no legal interest acquired by grantee); Lewis v. King, 54 N.E. 330 (Ill. 1899); Wilson v. Hilligoss, 278 Ill. App. 564 (1935); Hurt's Guardian v. Crawford Coal Co., 1 S.W.2d 995 (Ky. 1927); Fuchs v. Christie, 74 A. 129 (N.J. 1909); Byrne v. Kernals, 155 P. 587 (Okla. 1916); Ritt v. Dodge, 37 A. 810 (R.I. 1897).

(n108)Footnote 108. Preston v. Second Nat'l Bank of Paintsville, 63 S.W.2d 774 (Ky. 1933); Bruce v. McCormick, 72 N.E.2d 333 (Ill. 1947); Jones v. Jones, 72 N.E. 695 (Ill. 1904) (holding that there is no fraud where the father conveyed property to child, leaving enough to satisfy wife's inchoate dower).

(n109)Footnote 109. Beauchamp v. Bertig, 119 S.W. 75 (Ark. 1909); Campbell v. Wilson, 63 N.E. 103 (Ill. 1902); Consolidation Coal Co. v. Grayson, 216 S.W. 848 (Ky. 1919); Dailey v. Benn, 198 P. 323 (Okla. 1921); Callan v. Western Inv. & Holding Co., 72 P.2d 48 (Or. 1937).

(n110)Footnote 110. Dobberstein v. Murphy, 66 N.W. 204 (Minn. 1896); Serry v. Curry, 42 N.W. 97 (Neb. 1889); Tucker v. Tucker, 45 S.W. 344 (Tenn. 1898).

(n111)Footnote 111. Wilson v. Roebuck, 60 So. 870 (Ala. 1913); Flowers v. Flowers, 106 S.W. 949 (Ark. 1907); Tandy v. Smith, 293 S.W. 735 (Ark. 1927); Morris v. Glaser, 151 A. 766 (N.J. 1930).

(n112)Footnote 112. 1 William Cruise, Real Property, 132. See Randall v. Kreiger, 90 U.S. (23 Wall.) 137 (1874); Ferry v. Spokane, P. & S. R. Co., 268 F. 117 (9th Cir.), aff'd, 258 U.S. 314 (1920); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917).

(n113)Footnote 113. Gluc v. Klein, 197 N.W. 691 (Mich. 1924); Bonert v. Bonert, 184 N.Y.S. 274 (1920); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917); Rook v. Horton, 129 S.E. 450 (N.C. 1925); Watson v. Cox, 108 S.E. 168 (S.C. 1921).

See Max Rheinstein, The Need for Research in Family Law, 16 U. Chi. L. Rev. 691 (1949).

"Dower is not the result of the marriage contract, but is a provision which the law makes, founded on public policy, for the benefit of the wife as an incident to the marriage relation, and contingent on the seisin and death of the husband before the right of dower becomes fixed and consummate by death." Morrison v. Rice, 29 N.W. 168 (Minn. 1886).

See Gluc v. Klein, 197 N.W. 691 (Mich. 1924); Bonert v. Bonert, 184 N.Y.S. 274 (1920); Pridgen v. Pridgen, 129 S.E. 419 (N.C. 1925).

(n114)Footnote 114. Randall v. Kreiger, 90 U.S. (23 Wall.) 137 (1874); Martin v. Martin, 22 Ala. 86 (1853); Stitt v. Smith, 113 N.W. 632 (Minn. 1907); Butler v. Fitzgerald, 61 N.W. 640 (Neb. 1895); Kursheedt v. Union Dime Sav. Inst., 23 N.E. 473 (N.Y. 1890); Weaver v. Gregg, 6 Ohio St. 547 (1856); Appeal of Melizet, 17 Pa. 449 (1851).

It has been held that a wife's inchoate right of dower is not such a legal title or right which disqualifies her to act as a witness in the execution of a deed by a third person to her husband. Green v. Henderson, 59 N.E.2d 765 (Ohio) rev'g 52 N.E.2d 532 (1942).

(n115)Footnote 115. Schoellkopf v. DeVry, 7 N.E.2d 757 (Ill. 1937); Singer v. Singer, 49 D. & C. 392, 54 Dauph.

353 (Pa. 1943).

(n116)Footnote 116. Bryon v. Bryon, 119 N.Y.S. 41 (1909); Bonert v. Bonert, 184 N.Y.S. 274 (1920); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917); Rook v. Horton, 129 S.E. 450 (N.C. 1925); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1924); Good v. Crist, 156 N.E. 146 (Ohio App. 1926).

(n117)Footnote 117. Thorpe v. Lyones, 142 N.W. 82 (Iowa 1913); Ehler v. Ehler, 243 N.W. 591 (Iowa 1932); Whitman v. Huefner, 108 N.E. 1054 (Mass. 1915); Block v. P. & G. Realty Co., 124 A. 372 (N.J. 1924); Van Blaricum v. Larson, 130 N.Y.S. 925 (1911); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919).

(n118)Footnote 118. Ware v. Owens, 42 Ala. 212, (1868); Hatcher v. Buford, 29 S.W. 641 (Ark. 1895); Sanders v. Taylor, 104 S.W.2d 797 (Ark. 1937); Schoellkopf v. DeVry, 7 N.E.2d 757 (Ill. 1937); Classen v. Heath, 58 N.E.2d 889 (Ill. 1945); McAllister v. Dexter & P. R. Co., 76 A. 891 (Me. 1910); Griswold v. McGee, 112 N.W. 1020 (Minn. 1907); Magee v. Young, 40 Miss. 164 (1866); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917); In re Parks, 87 P. 900 (Utah 1906).

The legislature cannot increase dower right as to existing marriages. Gerhardt v. Sullivan, 152 A. 663 (N.J. 1930); Jenkins v. Jenkins, 82 N.C. 208 (1880).

(n119)Footnote 119. Hilton v. Thatcher, 88 P. 20 (Utah 1906).

(n120)Footnote 120. McDaniel v. Byrkett, 175 S.W. 491 (Ark. 1915) 692; Smith v. Hines, 10 Fla. 258 (1863); Crenshaw v. Moore, 137 S.W. 924 (Tenn. 1911); In re Bullen's Estate, 151 P. 533 (Utah 1915).

Contra, and to effect that dower is taken under inheritance laws. Billings v. People, 59 N.E. 798 (Ill. 1901) aff'd, 188 U.S. 97; State ex rel. Pettit v. Probate Court, 163 N.W. 285 (Minn. 1917); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917).

(n121)Footnote 121. Title Guarantee & Trust Co. v. Edwards, 290 F. 617 (S.D.N.Y. 1922); Schuette v. Bowers, 40 F.2d 208 (2d Cir. 1930); Carter v. United States, 3 F. Supp. 782 (E.D. Mo. 1932); State v. Lane, 203 S.W. 17 (Ark. 1918); Matter of Riemann, 87 N.Y.S. 648 (1904); In re Osgood's Estate, 173 P. 152 (Utah 1918).

Contra, Mayer v. Reinecke, 28 F. Supp. 334 (N.D. Ill. 1939); In re Sanford's Estate, 137 N.W. 864 (Neb. 1912). An easement on land may be conveyed without losing dower rights. In fact, a release of dower rights implies a fee simple conveyance, rather than an easement. Meadows v. Belknap, 483 S.E.2d 826 (W. Va. 1997) (holding that a wife can obtain the full use of, and a life estate in, all of her husband's real property when she relinquishes her inchoate dower right by joining him in conveying the property subject to the life estates); Elton Schmidt & Sons Farm Co. v. Kneib, 507 N.W.2d 305 (Neb. App. 1993) (holding that an easement does not invalidate dower rights and that an instrument releasing dower rights implies a fee simple conveyance, rather than an easement). LeCroy v. Cook, 204 S.W.2d 173 (Ark. 1947) (wife's right of dower is contingent on husband's death and can't be deprived her except to his grantee).

(n122)Footnote 122. Brown v. Brown, 93 N.Y.S.2d 63 (1948).

(n123)Footnote 123. Gradler v. Johnson, 22 N.E.2d 946 (Ill. 1939).

(n124)Footnote 124. Moore v. Price, 123 So. 768 (Fla. 1929); Ellguth v. Ellguth, 95 N.E. 169 (Ill. 1911); Lavery v. Hutchinson, 139 Ill. App. 61 (1908).

(n125)Footnote 125. Brown v. Brown, 78 S.E. 447 (S.C. 1913) (waste permitted up to value of loan).

Contra, Rumsey v. Sullivan, 150 N.Y.S. 287 (1914) (wife could not enjoin ameliorating waste).

(n126)Footnote 126. Tuten v. Almeda Farms, 192 S.E. 153 (S.C. 1937). See Dower and Curtesy: Arkansas Statutes Allowing a Widow but not a Widower to Elect against a Will and Receive Dower Interests, Statutory Allowances and Homestead Rights Violate Equal Protection, 35 Ark. L. Rev. at 185, 187 (Fall 1981).

(n127)Footnote 127. Porter v. Mosley, 517 S.W.2d 524 (Tenn. 1974); Rhodes v. McAfee, 45 S.W.2d 522 (Tenn. 1998) (holding that wife was not entitled to dower rights because her marriage to her stepfather was contrary to the law as being both invalid and criminal).

(n128)Footnote 128. Coke on Littleton, §33a; Loughran v. Loughran, 292 U.S. 216 (1934); Jones v. Jones, 28 Ark. 19 (1872); State v. Probate Court, 163 N.W. 285 (Minn. 1917); Higgins v. Breen, 9 Mo. 497 (1845); Staehle v. Mercantile Trust Co., 327 S.W.2d 220 (Mo. 1959) (allowing a mistress compensation for her services in maintaining the household). Holding that a religious ceremony without a marriage license was not a marriage entitling the woman to dower. In re Litzky's Estate, 296 So. 2d 638 (Fla. App. 1974).

See Joseph W. Diehl, Domestic Relations: Rights and Remedies of the Putative Spouse, 37 Cal. L. Rev. 671 (1949); Effect of Invalid Marriages on Property Rights, 20 Wash. & Lee L. Rev. 91 (1963).

(n129)Footnote 129. Schneider v. Schneider, 191 P. 533 (Cal. 1920); State v. Probate Court, 163 N.W. 285 (Minn. 1917); Hilton v. Snyder, 108 P. 698 (Utah 1910); Williams v. Williams, 1 N.W. 98 (Wis. 1879).

(n130)Footnote 130. McGaugh v. Mathis, 198 S.W. 1147 (Ark. 1917); Murchison v. Green, 57 S.E. 709 (Ga. 1907); Schmisseur v. Beatrie, 35 N.E. 525 (Ill. 1893); Potter v. Clapp, 68 N.E. 81 (Ill. 1903); Franklin v. Lee, 62 N.E. 78 (Ind. 1901); Smith v. Fuller, 115 N.W. 912 (Iowa 1908).

(n131)Footnote 131. Goset v. Goset, 164 S.W. 759 (Ark. 1914); Sellman v. Bowen, 8 G. & J. (Md.) 50 (1836); People v. Schoonmaker, 75 N.W. 439 (Mich. 1898); Williams v. Williams, 23 N.W. 110 (Wis. 1885).

California now recognizes a putative spouse, one who has duly solemnized a matrimonial union innocent that the other spouse is married, has equal rights with the legal spouse. Cal. Civ. Code, §4452; Estate of Vargas, 36 Cal. App. 3d 714, (1974); In re Estate of Atherley, 44 Cal. App. 3d 758, (1975); Hafner v. Miller, 252 S.W. 722 (Mo. 1923) (holding that "a wife by reason of common law marriage has her right of inchoate dower rest upon establishment of marriage").

(n132)Footnote 132. Budd v. J. Y. Gooch Co., 27 So. 2d 72 (Fla. 1946); Lavery v. Hutchinson, 94 N.E. 6, (Ill. 1911); DeMilio v. New York State Thruway Auth., 235 N.Y.S.2d 642 (1912); In re Horton's Estate, 52 A.2d 895 (Pa. 1947).

Recognizing a common-law marriage entered into in a state where valid. Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Christian, 389 F. Supp. 335 (E.D. Tenn. 1975).

Common-law marriage held valid. Beck v. Beck, 246 So. 2d 420 (Ala. 1971).

The public policy of New York is against common-law marriages. People v. Allen, 261 N.E.2d 637 (N.Y. 1970).

Common-law marriage is recognized. In re Hammonds' Estate, 315 N.E.2d 843 (Ohio 1973).

Omer v. Omer, 523 P.2d 957 (Wash. App. 1974), awarding half interest to a woman in a man's property when acquired while living in meretricious relationship; Estate of Thornton, 541 P.2d 1243 (Wash. 1975) 15 J. Fam. L. 350, but holding that unless the parties held themselves out as husband and wife there was not a sufficient, long, stable meretricious relationship to give rise to a constructive trust in the man's property. Humphries v. Riveland, 407 P.2d 967 (Wash. 1965).

(n133)Footnote 133. Smith v. Fuller, 115 N.W. 912 (Iowa 1908); Sellman v. Bowen, 8 G. & J. (Md.) 50 (1836); O'Malley v. O'Malley, 129 P. 501 (Mont. 1913).

(n134)Footnote 134. Offield v. Davis, 40 S.E. 910 (Va. 1902).

(n135)Footnote 135. Fornshill v. Murray, 1 Bland. Ch. 479 (Md. 1828); Gathings v. Williams, 27 N.C. 487 (1845); Rhodes v. McAfee, 45 S.W.2d 522 (Tenn. 1998) (holding that wife was not entitled to dower rights because her marriage to her stepfather was contrary to the law as being both invalid and criminal).

No dower in void marriage. Rhodes v. McAfee, 457 S.W.2d 522 (Tenn. 1970).

(n136)Footnote 136. Mcllvain v. Scheibley, 59 S.W. 498 (Ky. 1900).

First cousin's marriage void ad initio. Ex parte Bowen, 247 S.W.2d 379 (Ky. 1952).

(n137)Footnote 137. Connecticut. Tyler v. Aspinwall, 47 A. 755 (Conn. 1901); Potter v. Clapp, 68 N.E. 81 (Ill. 1903); Johnson v. Johnson, 30 Mo. 72, 77 Am. Dec. 598 (1860); Gathings v. Williams, 27 N.C. 487 (1845); Raleigh v. Wells, 81 P. 908 (Utah 1905); Williams v. Williams, 23 N.W. 110 (Wis. 1885).

(n138)Footnote 138. Coke on Littleton, §33a; Bonham v. Badgley, 7 Ill. (2 Gilm.) 622 (1845); Tomppert v. Tomppert, 76 Ky. (13 Bush) 326, (1877); Jenkins v. Jenkins, 32 Ky. (2 Dana) 102 (1834); Fornshill v. Murray, 1 Bland. Ch. 479 (Md. 1828).

(n139)Footnote 139. Putnam v. Putnam, 25 Mass. (8 Pick.) 433 (1829); Smith v. Smith, 19 A. 255 (N.J.L. 1890); Dickson v. Dickson, 9 Tenn. (1 Yer.) 110, (1922).

(n140)Footnote 140. Bell v. Little, 789 N.Y.S. 935, modified on other grounds, 197 N.Y.S. 674, aff'd, 143 N.E. 726 (N.Y. 1922).

(n141)Footnote 141. Recognizing a "de facto" spouse. Lopez v. Santiago, 294 A.2d 272 (N.J. 1972).

Community property exists in putative marriages. Dean v. Goldwire, 480 S.W.2d 494 (Tex. Civ. App. 1972).

See Florence J. & Charles W. Luther, Support and Property Rights of the Putative Spouse, 24 Hastings L.J. 311 (1972); Russell L. Schetroma, Pennsylvania Paramours: Seisin and the Other Woman, 76 Dick. L. Rev. 304 (1971).

(n142)Footnote 142. Texas Family Code of 1971, tit. 1, §1.91, permits among other things in subchapter "E" proof of certain informal marriages.

(n143)Footnote 143. Young v. Tarbell, 37 Me. 509 (1854); State v. Probate Court, 163 N.W. 285 (Minn. 1917); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919).

(n144)Footnote 144. Loughran v. Loughran, 292 U.S. 216 (1947); Le Croy v. Cook, 204 S.W.2d 173 (Ark. 1947); Bowler v. Bowler, 31 So. 2d 751 (Fla. 1947); State v. Probate Ct., 163 N.W. 285 (Minn. 1917); Higdon v. Higdon, 173 S.E. 273 (N.C. 1934); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919); Bonfey v. Bayne, 58 N.W. 620 (Mich. 1894) (holding that dower is contingent estate that vests at the death of the husband).

(n145)Footnote 145. Truett v. Funderburk, 20 S.E. 260 (Ga. 1894); Oades v. Standard Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 241 N.W. 262 (Mich. 1932); Sutliff v. Forgey, 1 Cow. 89 (N.Y.).

(n146)Footnote 146. Bundy v. Solon, 51 N.E.2d 183 (Ill. 1943).

(n147)Footnote 147. Boggiano v. Boggiano, 38 N.Y.S.2d 462 (1942).

(n148)Footnote 148. Harding v. Alden, 9 Me. 140, (1832); Davol v. Howland, 14 Mass. 219 (1817); Percival v. Percival, 22 N.W. 807 (Mich. 1885); Tatro v. Tatro, 25 N.W. 571 (Neb. 1885).

In the absence of a statutory provision requiring the wife's dower to be assigned to her upon the decree of divorce, her interest does not become vested until her husband's death. Dennis v. Harris, 153 N.W. 343 (Iowa 1915); Hunt v. Thompson, 61 Mo. 148 (1875).

(n149)Footnote 149. Wright v. Gelvin, 85 Ind. 128 (1882).

(n150)Footnote 150. Lawson v. De Bolt, 78 Ind. 563 (1881).

(n151)Footnote 151. 1 Minor, Inst. 53 (b). See the following cases: Shoot v. Galbreath, 21 N.E. 217 (Ill. 1889); Strong v. Bragg, 7 Ind. (Blackf.) 62 (1843); Wooldridge v. Lucas, 46 Ky. (7 B. Mon.) 49 (1846); Pollitt v. Kerr, 22 A. 800 (N.J. 1891); Witthaus v. Schack, 11 N.E. 649 (N.Y. 1887).

(n152)Footnote 152. Avery v. Everett, 18 N.E. 148 (N.Y. 1888); Davis v. Laning, 19 S.W. 846 (Tex. 1892).

(n153)Footnote 153. 1 Minor, Inst. 133a; Davie v. Briggs, 97 U.S. 628 (1878); Sherod v. Ewell, 73 N.W. 493 (Iowa 1897).

(n154)Footnote 154. Kilgore v. Kilgore, 149 N.E. 754 (Ill. 1925); Gluc v. Klein, 197 N.W. 691 (Mich. 1924).

(n155)Footnote 155. Gluc v. Klein, 197 N.W. 691 (Mich. 1924); Wilson v. Wilson, 81 S.E.2d 605 (Va. 1954) (before but not after it becomes consummate, the right of dower can be taken away by statute).

(n156)Footnote 156. Mathews v. Marsden, 230 P. 775 (Mont. 1924); Minner v. Minner, 100 S.E. 509 (W. Va. 1919) (stating that a widow's dower is inchoate until death of husband and consummate upon the death of a husband).

(n157)Footnote 157. In re Lakner, 211 N.Y.S. 174 (1925).

(n158)Footnote 158. Cummings v. Schreur, 214 N.W. 199 (Mich. 1927).

In Oklahoma, however, "the wife's interest in her husband's property, both personal and real, is by inheritance." York v. Trigg, 209 P. 417 (Okla. 1922), quoted in In re Whitson, 212 P. 752 (Okla. 1923).

Legislature can alter dower and curtesy, but it cannot transfer a property right existing before marriage to other spouse without violating due process. Willcox v. Penn Mut. Life Ins. Co., 55 A.2d 521 (Pa. 1947).

(n159)Footnote 159. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 131; Maloney v. McCullough, 221 S.W.2d 770 (Ark. 1949).

(n160)Footnote 160. Day v. Solomon, 40 Ga. 32 (1869); 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 131 (this contrasted with curtesy); Coke on Littleton, §31.

(n161)Footnote 161. Downey v. King, 87 N.E. 468 (Mass. 1909).

See Perry V. Whitmore Requirement of Seisin as Basis for Dower, 4 Ark. L.J. 246 (1950).

(n162)Footnote 162. McGuire v. Cook, 135 S.W. 840 (Ark. 1911); Maloney v. McCullough, 221 S.W.2d 770 (Ark. 1949); Cobb v. Oldfield, 38 N.E. 142 (Ill. 1894); Haller v. Hawkins, 92 N.E. 299 (Ill. 1910); Smith v. Shepard, 19 N.E.2d 368 (Ill. 1939); Waters v. Gooch, 29 Ky. (6 J.J. Marsh.) 586 (1831); Stitt v. Smith, 113 N.W. 632 (Minn. 1907); Phelps v. Phelps, 38 N.E. 280 (N.Y. 1894); Redding v. Vogt, 53 S.E. 337 (N.C. 1906); Pledger v. Ellerbe, 6 S.C. (Rich.) 266, (1853).

So the widow of a deceased son could not take dower in lands held at the time of the son's death by the son's widowed mother as her own dower since the son was not seised. Carr v. Hart, 22 S.W.2d 432 (Ky. 1929). Cummings v. Schreur, 214 N.W. 199 (Mich. 1926) (holding that "wife's inchoate right of dower fastens at marriage on property of which husband then seized").

(n163)Footnote 163. McGuire v. Cook, 135 S.W. 840 (Ark. 1911); Shriver v. Shriver, 96 A. 615 (Md. 1906); Bartkowiak v. Bartkowiak, 283 N.W. 49 (Mich. 1938); Ballard v. Ballard, 55 S.E.2d 316 (N.C. 1949).

Contra result, Greene v. Huntington, 46 A. 883 (Conn. 1900).

(n164)Footnote 164. Chalk v. Chalk, 165 S.W.2d 534 (Ky. 1942).

(n165)Footnote 165. Farrington v. Richardson, 16 So. 2d 158 (Fla. 1944).

(n166)Footnote 166. Loughran v. Loughran, 292 U.S. 216, (1934); Cook v. First Nat'l Bank, 122 S.E. 686 (Ga. 1924); Cole v. Cole, 126 N.E. 752 (Ill. 1920); Resch v. Rowland, 252 S.W.2d 621 (Mo. 1952); Sampson v. Sampson, 124 A. 708 (N.J. 1924); Jaffe v. Zilinski, 97 A.2d 518 (N.J. 1953).

(n167)Footnote 167. Cummings v. Schreur, 214 N.W. 199 (Mich. 1927); Gabler v. Gabler, 193 N.Y.S. 500 (1922); Pridgen v. Pridgen, 129 S.E. 419 (N.C. 1925); Good v. Crist, 156 N.E. 146 (Ohio App. 1926).

(n168)Footnote 168. Chalk v. Chalk, 165 S.W.2d 534 (Ky. 1942) (holding that under the statute of Kentucky the use therein of the word "seised" means "owned," and the owner of property is one in whom title is vested either absolute or qualified); Pridgen v. Pridgen, 129 S.E. 419 (N.C. 1925).

(n169)Footnote 169. McMahan v. Kimball, 3 Ind. (Blackf.) 1 (1832); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916).

(n170)Footnote 170. Sullivan v. Sullivan, 117 N.W. 1086 (Iowa 1908); Stevens v. Smith, 27 Ky. (4 J.J. Marsh.) 64 (1830); Hendren v. Hendren, 69 S.E. 506 (N.C. 1910); Greene v. Greene, 1 Ohio 535 (1824); Thompson v. Perry, 2 S.C. (Hill Eq.) 204 (1835).

Wife of resulting trustee has no dower. In re Clemens, 472 F.2d 939 (6th Cir. 1972).

Where the husband had transferred title to property in an inter vivos trust, his surviving spouse had no interest in the assets so as to satisfy her distributive share. Leazenby v. Clinton County Bank & Trust Co., 355 N.E.2d 861 (Ind. App. 1976).

(n171)Footnote 171. Illinois. Hugunin v. Cochrane, 51 Ill. 302 (1869); Britt v. Gordon, 108 N.W. 319 (Iowa 1906); Sagendorph v. Lutz, 281 N.W. 553 (Mich. 1938); Melton v. Lane, 118 P. 141 (Okla. 1911); Gigliotto v. Albergo, 115 P.2d 791 (Utah 1941) (where a husband transfers or abandons a contract for the sale of realty to him, before he is able to compel the vendor to make conveyance to himself by virtue of full performance of the contract on his part, the widow is not entitled to dower); Chapman v. Chapman, 24 S.E. 225 (Va. 1896); Burdine v. Burdine, 36 S.E. 992 (Va. 1900).

(n172)Footnote 172. Gaines v. Gaines, 48 Ky. (9 B. Mon.) 295 (1848).

(n173)Footnote 173. Redding v. Vogt, 53 S.E. 337 (N.C. 1906).

(n174)Footnote 174. Putney v. Vinton, 108 N.W. 655 (Mich. 1906).

(n175)Footnote 175. Weidler v. Floran, 13 N.E.2d 330 (Ind. App. 1938).

(n176)Footnote 176. Bodkin v. Wright, 100 S.W.2d 824 (Ky. 1937).

Where the husband had transferred title to property in an inter vivos trust, his surviving spouse had no interest in the assets so as to satisfy her distributive share. Leazenby v. Clinton County Bank & Trust Co., 355 N.E.2d 861 (Ind. App. 1976).

(n177)Footnote 177. In re Oberwalder, 291 N.Y.S. 1004 (1936).

(n178)Footnote 178. Heldhauser v. Schulz, 116 A. 791 (N.J. 1922) 21 A.L.R. 1070.

(n179)Footnote 179. McLawhorn v. Smith, 191 S.E. 35 (N.C. 1937) 110 A.L.R. 980.

(n180)Footnote 180. In re Fox's Will, 293 N.Y.S. 468 (1937).

(n181)Footnote 181. Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. (15 Pet.) 21 (1841); McCauley v. Grimes, 2 G. & J. (Md.) 318 (1830); Holbrook v. Finney, 4 Mass. 566 (1808). Hamm v. Butler, 112 So. 141 (Ala. 1927) (holding that "no general rule, in strictness, states that wife shall or shall not be entitled to dower in cases of instantaneous seisin").

(n182)Footnote 182. Mishawaka St. Joseph Loan & Trust Co. v. Neu, 196 N.E. 85 (Ind. 1935) 105 A.L.R. 881.

(n183)Footnote 183. Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. (15 Pet.) 21 (1841); Underground Elec. Rys. v. Owsley, 196 F. 278 (2d Cir. 1912); Jones v. Davis, 25 So. 789 (Ala. 1899); Birnie v. Main, 29 Ark. 591 (1874); Brack v. Coburn, 196 S.W.2d 230 (Ark. 1946) (possession through a tenant was "seisin"); Frederick v. Emig, 57 N.E. 883 (Ill. 1900); Harrow v. Grogan, 76 N.E. 350 (Ill. 1905); Walters v. Walters, 73 Ind. 425 (1881); Thomas v. Hanson, 44 Iowa 651 (1876); Hinds v. Ballou, 44 N.H. 619 (1863); Griggs v. Smith, 12 N.J.L. 22 (1830); Mills v. VanVoorhies, 20 N.Y. 412 (1859); Roush v. Miller, 20 S.E. 663 (W. Va. 1894); Commercial Banking & Trust Co. v. Dudley, 86 S.E. 307 (W. Va. 1915) 12 A.L.R. 1334; Thompson v. Lyman, 28 Wis. 266 (1871).

See however, Rawlings v. Lowndes, 34 Md. 639 (1871), where the wife was given dower, 16 days having elapsed between delivery of the deed and the execution of the purchase money mortgage and the husband had during this period a beneficial and not merely an instantaneous seisin.

(n184)Footnote 184. Tibbetts v. Langley Mfg. Co., 12 S.C. 465 (1879).

(n185)Footnote 185. Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. (15 Pet.) 21 (1841); Cf., Lohmeyer v. Durbin, 69 N.E. 523 (Ill. 1903).

(n186)Footnote 186. Smith v. Stanley, 37 Me. 11 (1854).

(n187)Footnote 187. Stelle v. Carroll, 37 U.S. (12 Pet.) 201 (1838).

(n188)Footnote 188. Hamm v. Butler, 112 So. 141 (Ala. 1927); Hicks v. Fletcher, 226 S.W. 524 (Ark. 1921).

(n189)Footnote 189. Hamm v. Butler, 215 Ala. 572, 112 So. 141 (1927).

Seisin is necessary under Arkansas law, so where a child died leaving a widow, while the child's mother was in possession under her dower right, child's widow took no dower. Maloney v. McCullough, 221 S.W.2d 770 (Ark. 1949).

> "There is no general rule in strictness that, in cases of instantaneous seisin, the wife shall or shall not be entitled to dower; this must depend as well upon the character of the seisin as its duration. When the husband has the seisin of the estate, though for an instant beneficially for his own use, the wife's inchoate right of dower attaches. If the effect of the transaction is merely to make the husband a conduit for passing the title, such as a conveyance to him and a concurrent conveyance back to a vendor by mortgage for the purchase price, the right of dower does not attach as against the rights of such mortgagee... The reason of this rule is found in the necessity and equity of protecting the vendor -- the original owner of the fee -- in securing full payment for the property, as against the right of dower, and relates to the estate conveyed by the mortgage executed to secure the purchase money, not the equity of redemption which vests in the mortgagor under the deed... The satisfaction of the purchase money mortgage has the effect to carry the husband's seisin back to the date of the deed conveying the lands to him, and the wife's right of dower attaches to the estate thus vested." Weaver v. Patterson, 111 A. 506 (N.J. 1920).

(n190)Footnote 190. An inter vivos trust is not illusory as against widow's dower merely because settlor retains broad powers to amend or revoke. In re Herron's Estate, 237 So. 2d 563 (Fla. App. 1970).

(n191)Footnote 191. Boyers v. Newbanks, 2 Ind. 388 (1850); Shattuck v. Gragg, 40 Mass. (23 Pick.) 88 (1839); Meserve v. Meserve, 19 N.H. 240 (1848); In re Gorham, 98 S.E. 717 (N.C. 1919); Austin v. Austin, 50 Me. 74 (Me. 1862) (holding that where wife's dower was assigned by metes and bounds by commissioners who made no "return of their doings," dower is ineffectual; but, holding that dower effectual where widow entered into possession on premises without objection of heirs for more than 20 years).

Assigned dower is an estate in land. Brenkworth v. Lanier, 132 S.E.2d 623 (N.C. 1963).

(n192)Footnote 192. Vannoy v. Green, 173 S.E. 277 (N.C. 1934).

(n193)Footnote 193. Magruder v. Magruder, 141 F.2d 537 (D.C. 1944); Morris v. Glaser, 160 A. 578 (N.J. 1935).

(n194)Footnote 194. In re Gorham, 98 S.E. 717 (N.C. 1919).

(n195)Footnote 195. Connole v. Connole, 113 A. 467 (R.I. 1921).

(n196)Footnote 196. Austell v. Swann, 74 Ga. 278 (1885); Potter v. Worley, 7 N.W. 685, 10 N.W. 298 (Iowa 1880); Tenbrook v. Jessup, 46 A. 516 (N.J. 1900).

(n197)Footnote 197. Hill v. Mitchell, 5 Ark. 608 (1844); Wallace v. King, 170 S.W.2d 377 (Ark. 1943); Pearce v. Pearce, 56 N.E. 311 (Ill. 1900); McCormick v. Taylor, 2 Ind. 336 (1850); Swartz v. Smole, 5 P.2d 566 (Mont. 1931); Drost v. Hall, 28 A. 81 (N.J. 1893); Hopper v. Hopper, 22 N.J.L. 715 (1850); In re Gorham, 98 S.E. 717 (N.C. 1919).

(n198)Footnote 198. Curtis v. Hobart, 41 Me. 230 (1856); Jones v. Brewer, 18 Mass. (1 Pick.) 314 (1823).

(n199)Footnote 199. Boyers v. Newbanks, 2 Ind. 388 (1850); Robinson v. Miller, 40 Ky. (1 B. Mon.) 88 (1854); Young v. Tarbell, 37 Me. 509 (1854); Jones v. Brewer, 18 Mass. (1 Pick.) 314 (1823); Curtis v. Hobart, 41 Me. 230 (Me. 1856) (holding that a parol assignment of dower by guardian acceptable).

(n200)Footnote 200. Lenfers v. Henke, 73 Ill. 405 (1874); Boyers v. Newbanks, 2 Ind. 388 (1850); Shattuck v. Gragg, 40 Mass. (23 Pick.) 88 (1839); Den ex dem. Miller v. Miller, 4 N.J.L. 321 (1816); Aikman v. Harsell, 98 N.Y. 186 (1885).

(n201)Footnote 201. Loyd v. Malone, 23 Ill. 41 (1859); First Nat'l Bank v. Cook, 74 S.W.2d 846 (Mo. App. 1934); Brickhouse v. Sutton, 5 S.E. 380 (N.C. 1888); Poindexter v. Call, 179 S.E. 335 (N.C. 1935).

(n202)Footnote 202. Hamby v. Hamby, 51 So. 732 (Ala. 1910); Falls v. Wright, 18 S.W. 1044 (Ark. 1892); In re Andrews' Estate, 34 A.2d 700 (Del. 1943); Fosdick v. Gooding, 1 Greenl. 30 (Me. 1820).

(n203)Footnote 203. Ehler v. Ehler, 243 N.W. 591 (Iowa 1932).

(n204)Footnote 204. Sanders v. McMillian, 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1892); Schnebly v. Schnebly, 26 Ill. 116 (1861); Stevens v. Stevens, 33 Ky. (3 Dana) 371 (1835); French v. Pratt, 27 Me. 381 (1847).

(n205)Footnote 205. Jackson v. Rowell, 6 So. 95 (Ala. 1888); Pierce v. Williams, 3 N.J.L. 709 (1810); Johnson v. Nyce, 17 Ohio 66 (1848); James v. Fields, 52 Tenn. (5 Heisk.) 394 (1871).

(n206)Footnote 206. Sanders v. McMillian, 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1892); Moore v. Dick, 24 N.E. 768 (Ill. 1890); Gourley v. Kinley, 66 Pa. 270 (1870).

(n207)Footnote 207. Lavery v. Hutchinson, 94 N.E. 6 (Ill. 1911).

(n208)Footnote 208. Coulter v. Holland, 2 Harr. (Del.) 330 (1838); Fosdick v. Gooding, 1 Greenl. 30 (Me. 1820); Cook v. Fisk, 1 Miss. (1 Walker) 423 (1831). An easement on land may be conveyed without losing dower rights. In fact, a release of dower rights implies a fee simple conveyance, rather than an easement. Elton Schmidt & Sons Farm Co. v. Kneib, 507 N.W.2d 305 (Neb. App. 1993) (holding that an easement does not invalidate dower rights and that an instrument releasing dower rights implies a fee simple conveyance, rather than an easement).

(n209)Footnote 209. See Lavery v. Hutchinson, 94 N.E. 6 (Ill. 1911); Rice v. Rice, 125 N.W. 826 (Iowa 1910); Harrington v. Harrington, 55 S.E. 409 (N.C. 1906); Le Fevre v. Le Fevre, 153 S.E. 918 (W. Va. 1930).

(n210)Footnote 210. Lavery v. Hutchinson, 94 N.E. 6 (Ill. 1911); Rice v. Rice, 125 N.W. 826 (Iowa 1910); Harmon v. Peery, 134 S.E. 701 (Va. 1926).

(n211)Footnote 211. Magruder v. Magruder, 141 F.2d 537 (1944); Hardin v. Lawrence, 40 N.J. Eq. 154 (1885); White v. Story, 2 Hill 543 (N.Y. 1845).

(n212)Footnote 212. Pierce v. Williams, 3 N.J.L. 709 (1810).

(n213)Footnote 213. First Nat'l Bank v. Andrews, 28 A.2d 676 (Del. 1942); Moore v. Price, 123 So. 768 (Fla. 1929); French v. Pratt, 27 Me. 381 (1847); French v. Peters, 33 Me. 396 (1851); Marshall v. McPherson, 8 G. & J. 333 (Md. 1836); Welch v. Anderson, 28 Mo. 293 (1859); Hale v. James, 6 Johns. Ch. 258 (N.Y. 1822).

Texas has no dower rights. Internal Revenue Comm'r v. Chase Manhattan Bank, 259 F.2d 231 (5th Cir. 1958).

In Kentucky the widow takes one third in fee if the husband dies intestate, but only one third for life if she elects against the will. Hedden v. Hedden, 312 S.W.2d 891 (Ky. 1958).

(n214)Footnote 214. Kepcha v. Lowman, 94 N.E. 102 (Ill. 1911); Burton v. Mellis, 72 A. 13 (N.J. 1909); Aldridge v. Houston Oil Co., 244 P. 782 (Okla. 1926); Shupe v. Rainey, 100 A. 138 (Pa. 1917); Webber v. Webber, 962 S.W.2d 345 (Ark. 1998) (upholding lower court's order that land was not divisible in kind, and therefore, the court's ordering the sale of land was appropriate).

(n215)Footnote 215. Sanders v. McMillian, 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1892); Stevens v. Stevens, 33 Ky. (3 Dana) 371 (1835); Rockwell v. Morgan, 13 N.J. Eq. 384 (1861).

(n216)Footnote 216. Lenfers v. Henke, 73 Ill. 405 (1874); Billings v. Taylor, 27 Mass. (10 Pick.) 460 (1830).

(n217)Footnote 217. Coates v. Cheever, 1 Cow. (N.Y.) 460 (1823).

(n218)Footnote 218. Sims v. Yerkes, 87 A. 56 (Pa. 1913).

(n219)Footnote 219. Beavers v. Smith, 11 Ala. 20 (1847); Atkin v. Merrell, 39 Ill. 62 (1865); Harrison v. Payne, 32 Gratt. 387 (Va. 1879).

(n220)Footnote 220. Herbert v. Wren, 11 U.S. (7 Cranch) 370 (1813); Shupe v. Rainey, 100 A. 138 (Pa. 1917).

(n221)Footnote 221. Swartz v. Smole, 5 P.2d 566 (Mont. 1931); Connole v. Connole, 113 A. 467 (R.I. 1921).

(n222)Footnote 222. Floyd v. Page, 124 S.E. 1 (S.C. 1924).

(n223)Footnote 223. Springfield v. Stamper, 214 S.W.2d 345 (Tenn. App. 1948).

Widow's death before dower was perfected did not affect right to dower. In re Hiley's Estate, 262 So. 2d 476 (Fla. App. 1972).

Quarantine may not be assigned. Love v. Ward, 5 S.E.2d 411 (W. Va. 1939).

(n224)Footnote 224. Waters v. Gooch, 29 Ky. (6 J.J. Marsh.) 586 (1831); In re Gorham, 98 S.E. 717 (N.C. 1919).

(n225)Footnote 225. Williams v. Thomas, L.R. 1 Ch. 713, 78 L.J. Ch. 473, 100 L.T.N.S. 630 (n. d.).

(n226)Footnote 226. Carnall v. Wilson, 21 Ark. 62 (1860); Loyd v. Malone, 23 Ill. 43, 76 (1859); Waters v. Gooch, 29 Ky. (6 J.J. Marsh.) 586 (1831).

(n227)Footnote 227. Swobe v. Marsh, 102 N.W. 619 (Neb. 1905).

(n228)Footnote 228. Johnson v. Johnson, 105 S.W. 869 (Ark. 1907); Moore v. Price, 123 So. 768 (Fla. 1929).

(n229)Footnote 229. Owen v. Slatter, 26 Ala. 547 (1855); Bank of Hartselle v. Brindley, 104 So. 803 (Ala. 1925); Maxwell v. Awtrey, 235 S.W. 384 (Ark. 1921); Strong v. Clem, 12 Ind. 37 (1859); Town v. Town, 212 N.W. 471 (Iowa 1926); Waters v. Gooch, 29 Ky. (6 J.J. Marsh.) 586 (1831); Cummings v. Schreur, 211 N.W. 25, aff'd, 214 N.W. 199 (Mich. 1927); Palmer v. Casperson, 17 N.J. Eq. 204 (1864); Swaine v. Perine, 5 Johns. Ch. 482 (N.Y. Ch. 1821).

(n230)Footnote 230. Loyd v. Malone, 23 Ill. 43 (1859); Brickhouse v. Sutton, 5 S.E. 380 (N.C. 1888).

(n231)Footnote 231. Farmer v. Ray, 42 Ala. 125 (1868); Hamby v. Hamby, 51 So. 732 (Ala. 1910); Carnall v. Wilson, 21 Ark. 62 (1860); Falls v. Wright, 18 S.W. 1044 (Ark. 1892); Fosdick v. Gooding, 1 Greenl. 30 (Me. 1820); In re Brock's Will, 50 S.E.2d 555 (N.C. 1948).

(n232)Footnote 232. Elyton Land Co. v. Denny, 11 So. 218 (Ala. 1892); Hastings v. Mace, 32 N.E. 668 (Mass. 1892).

The renouncing widow is not entitled to claim all of the property as her husband's sole heir. Salvation Army, Inc. v. Hart, 154 N.E.2d 487 (Ind. 1958).

Consent to will waives widow's right to statutory allowance. In re Snyder's Estate, 357 P.2d 778 (Kan. 1960).

Where the widow as residuary legatee elects against the will no intestacy arises and the widow takes only her statutory share. In re Robert's Estate, 338 P.2d 719 (Mont. 1959).

Widow of common-law marriage could elect against the will. In re Wagner's Estate, 159 A.2d 495 (Pa. 1960).

(n233)Footnote 233. Choteau v. Harvey, 36 F. 541 (C.C.D. Mo. 1888); Livingston v. Cochran, 33 Ark. 294 (1878); Pingree v. De Haven, 105 So. 147 (Fla. 1925); Owen v. Peacock, 38 Ill. 33 (1865); Britt v. Gordon, 108 N.W. 319 (Iowa 1906); Poole v. French, 111 P. 488 (Kan. 1910); Kinsolving v. Pierce, 57 Ky. (18 B. Mon.) 782 (1858); Durham v. Angier, 20 Me. 242 (1841); Rickwood v. Smith, 126 A. 79 (Md. 1924); Proctor v. Bigelow, 38 Mich. 282 (1878);

Long v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co., 17 S.W. 656 (Mo. 1891); Joplin Brewing Co. v. Payne, 94 S.W. 896 (Mo. 1906); Falvey v. Hicks, 286 S.W. 385 (Mo. 1926); Beall v. McMenemy, 88 N.W. 134 (Neb. 1901); Conover v. Wright, 6 N.J. Eq. 613 (1848); Stephens v. George M. Craigen Co., 192 N.Y.S. 555 (1921); Ater v. Simpkins, 16 Ohio App. 461 (1922); Winters v. De Turk, 19 A. 354 (Pa. 1890).

(n234)Footnote 234. Barksdale v. Garrett, 64 Ala. 277 (1879); Miller v. Pence, 23 N.E. 1030 (Ill. 1890); Parker v. Obear, 48 Mass. (7 Metc.) 24 (1843); Littleton v. Patterson, 32 Mo. 357 (1862); Barnard v. Edwards, 4 N.H. 107 (1827); Simonton v. Houston, 78 N.C. 408 (1878).

(n235)Footnote 235. Farmer v. Ray, 42 Ala. 125 (1868); Moore v. Hoffman, 39 S.W.2d 339 (Mo. 1931).

(n236)Footnote 236. Gridley v. Wood, 176 N.E. 356 (Ill. 1931).

A spouse may maintain a separate action to protect dower. Domby v. Domby, 97 N.E.2d 104 (Ohio 1951).

(n237)Footnote 237. Chiswell v. Morris, 14 N.J. Eq. 101 (1861); Hopper v. Hopper, 22 N.J.L. 715 (1850); Jackson v. Churchill, 7 Cow. 287 (N.Y. 1827); Ellicott v. Mosier, 7 N.Y. 201 (1852); Cowan v. Lindsay, 30 Wis. 586 (1872).

(n238)Footnote 238. Hopper v. Hopper, 22 N.J.L. 715 (1850); Sprague v. Stevens, 79 A. 972 (R.I. 1911); Cowan v. Lindsay, 30 Wis. 586 (1872).

(n239)Footnote 239. Warner v. Warner, 85 N.E. 630 (Ill. 1908); Merrill v. Shattuck, 55 Me. 370 (1868); McAllister v. Dexter & P. R. Co., 76 A. 891 (Me. 1910); Page v. Page, 60 Mass. (6 Cush.) 196 (1850); Davis v. Walker, 42 N.H. 482 (1861).

(n240)Footnote 240. Potter v. Clapp, 68 N.E. 81 (Ill. 1903).

(n241)Footnote 241. Hunt v. Hotchkiss, 64 Me. 241 (1874); Parker v. Murphy, 12 Mass. 485 (1815); Ellis v. Ellis, 4 R.I. 110 (1856).

(n242)Footnote 242. Lothrop v. Foster, 51 Me. 367 (1863); Page v. Page, 60 Mass. (6 Cush.) 196 (1850).

(n243)Footnote 243. McAllister v. Dexter & P. R. Co., 76 A. 891 (Me. 1910).

(n244)Footnote 244. Sykes v. Chadwick, 85 U.S. (18 Wall.) 141 (1874); Peoples Bank v. Barrow, 94 So. 600 (Ala. 1922); Thomas v. Thomas, 18 So. 2d 544 (Ala. 1944); Renn v. Renn, 179 S.W.2d 657 (Ark. 1944); Grattan v. Grattan, 18 Ill. 167 (1856); Nicoll v. Ogden, 29 Ill. 323 (1862); Blankenship v. Hall, 84 N.E. 192 (Ill. 1908); Dunshee v. Dunshee, 104 N.E. 1100 (Ill. 1914); McCann v. Daly, 168 Ill. App. 287 (1912); Verry v. Robinson, 25 Ind. 14 (1865); Sutton v. Jervis, 31 Ind. 265 (1869); Johnson v. Miller, 47 Ind. 376 (1874); Grissom v. Moore, 6 N.E. 629 (Ind. 1886); Wachstetter v. Johnson, 108 N.E. 624 (Ind. App. 1915); Hays v. Cretin, 62 A. 1028 (Md. 1906); Chase v. Angell, 108 N.W. 1105 (Mich. 1906); Blevins v. Smith, 16 S.W. 213 (Mo. 1891); Chrisman v. Linderman, 100 S.W. 1090 (Mo. 1907); Egger v. Egger, 123 S.W. 928 (Mo. 1909); Meixel v. Meixel, 146 N.Y.S. 587 (1914); Bray v. Lamb, 17 N.C. 372 (1833); In re Estate of Freeman, 31 Ohio Op. 232, 16 Ohio Supp. 6 (1944); Cancilla v. Bondy, 44 A.2d 586 (Pa. 1945); Whitmire v. Wright, 22 S.C. 446, 53 Am. Rep. 725 (1885); Evans v. Pegues, 86 S.E. 480 (S.C. 1915); Bomar v. Wilkins, 151 S.E. 110 (S.C. 1930); Crenshaw v. Moore, 137 S.W. 924 (Tenn. 1911); Higginbotham v. Cornwell, 8 Gratt. 83 (Va. 1851); Clinchfield Coal Co. v. Sutherland, 75 S.E. 765 (Va. 1912).

In Indiana a married man may encumber or contract or deed realty that he owns without his wife joining. And such a conveyance bars the wife's marital interest. Ind. Code §29-1-2-3.1.

The spouse's action in disposing of property during marriage is presumed to be consistent with the best interests of the marital unit. Anuszkiewicz v. Anuszkiewicz, 360 N.E.2d 230 (Ind. 1977).

See Lewis M. Simes, Protecting the Surviving Spouse by Restraints on the Dead Hand, 26 U. Cin. L. Rev. 1 (1957); Henry T. Lowe, Transfers in Fraud of Marital Rights, 26 Mo. L. Rev. 1 (1961); Peter H. Stroh, Preventing Spousal Disinheritance in Georgia, 19 Ga. L. Rev. 427 (1985); Sheldon J. Plager, The Spouse's Nonbarrable Share: a Problem in Search of a Solution, 33 U. Chi. L. Rev. 681 (1966).

(n245)Footnote 245. Petta v. Host, 115 N.E.2d 881 (Ill. 1953) See cases cited in the preceding note.

Kansas has held that an attempted inter vivos trust which gave the settlor the income and benefits, including the right to revoke, was invalid as a fraud in the spouse's rights, and that the spouse took her statutory rights in the corpus on the settlor's death. Ackers v. First Nat'l Bank, 387 P.2d 840, reh'g denied, 389 P.2d 1 (Kan. 1963) 13 Kan. L. Rev. 145, clarified 1964 in 389 P.2d 1 and 192 Kan. 471, modified.

(n246)Footnote 246. Weyer v. Barwell, 158 N.E. 475 (Ill. 1927); McClean v. Denwood Realty Co., 207 N.Y.S. 226 (1924); Turner v. Washington Realty Co., 126 S.E. 137 (S.C. 1924).

Testamentary spendthrift trust ineffective as against wife's rights. Wife, J.B.G. v. Husband, P.J.G., 286 A.2d 256 (Del. 1971). Whiting v. Whiting 96 A. 500 (Me. 1916) (holding that "a bill for injunction will lie to restrain a husband from transferring property in fraud of the legal rights of his wife").

(n247)Footnote 247. Nash v. Kirschoff, 208 N.W. 193 (Minn. 1926); La Rue v. La Rue, 294 S.W. 723 (Mo. 1927) Cf., McClean v. Denwood Realty Co., 207 N.Y.S. 226 (1924).

(n248)Footnote 248. Peoples Bank v. Barrow, 94 So. 600 (Ala. 1922); Wagner v. Wagner, 211 N.W. 738 (Mich. 1927); In re Bernay's Estate, 126 S.W.2d 209 (Mo. 1939); Miller v. Miller, 198 N.Y.S. 454 (1922) .Cf., Sorrells v. Sorrells, 134 S.E. 767 (Ga. 1926); York v. Trigg, 209 P. 417 (Okla. 1922).

See Melvin J. Sykes, Inter Vivos Transfers in Violation of the Rights of Surviving Spouses, 10 Md. L. Rev. 1 (1949).

(n249)Footnote 249. Dorrough v. Grove, 60 So. 2d 342 (Ala. 1952); Buxton v. Hooker, 268 Ky. 217 (1958).

In West Virginia, the husband may convey property or an interest therein subject only to his wife's inchoate dower interest. Parrish v. Pancake, 215 S.E.2d 659 (W. Va. 1975).

(n250)Footnote 250. Flowers v. Flowers, 15 S.E. 834 (Ga. 1892); Putney v. Vinton, 108 N.W. 655 (Mich. 1906); Davidson v. Frew, 14 N.C. 3 (1831); Thayer v. Thayer, 14 Vt. 107 (1842).

(n251)Footnote 251. O'Malley v. Yost, 186 F.2d 603, (8th Cir. reh'g denied 189 F.2d 331 (1951).

(n252)Footnote 252. Thomas v. Thomas, 18 So. 2d 544 (Ala. 1944).

(n253)Footnote 253. Franceschi v. Franceschi, 62 N.E.2d 1 (Ill. App. 1945); In re Cropsey Ave., 278 N.Y.S. 815 (1935), rev'd 268 N.Y. Ct. App. 183.

Proper acknowledgment is a necessary ingredient and "express assent" by a spouse sufficient to rebut the statutory presumption that all conveyances by married person are in fraud of marital right. McCoy v. Northwest Elec. Power Coop., 297 S.W.2d 390 (Mo. 1957). Kober v. Kober, 23 S.W.2d 149 (Mo. 1929) (holding that "wife may maintain an action for protection of inchoate dower, though right is contingent and uncertain").

(n254)Footnote 254. Johnson v. Stephens, 199 So. 828 (Ala. 1941); Wagar v. Marshburn, 1 So. 2d 303 (Ala. 1941); Chalk v. Chalk, 165 S.W.2d 534 (Ky. 1942); Trotter v. Lewis, 45 A.2d 329 (Md. 1946); Oades v. Standard Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 241 N.W. 262 (Mich. 1932); Bartkowiak v. Bartkowiak, 283 N.W. 49 (Mich. 1938).

(n255)Footnote 255. In re O'Rourke's Estate, 175 A. 24 (Vt. 1934).

The widow's claim to dower in lands conveyed by the decedent during his lifetime is defeated unless perfected during the decedent's lifetime. Ill. Rev. Stat. ch. 3 §171. See Weyer v. Barwell, 158 N.E. 475 (Ill. 1927).

In Illinois a bona fide purchaser from the heirs takes over the claim of the widow for her statutory interest unless the real estate records give notice of the widow's existence. Petta v. Host, 115 N.E.2d 881 (Ill. 1953). See Krile v. Swiney, 109 N.E.2d 189 (Ill. 1952) (widow takes fee interest).

(n256)Footnote 256. Thorburn v. Wende, 257 N.Y.S. 186 (1932). Campbell v. Babcock, 27 Wis. 512 (Wis. 1871) (holding that in "a mortgage made by husband and wife to secure the husband's note, the acts of the husband estop him from setting usury but do not estop wife with respect to her vested dower interest").

(n257)Footnote 257. United States v. Certain Parcels of Land, 46 F. Supp. 441 (D. Md. 1942); Nelson v. Brown, 51 So. 360 (Ala. 1910); Thomas v. Thomas, 18 So. 2d 544 (Ala. 1944); Roberts v. Roberts, 198 S.W. 697 (Ark. 1917); Renn v. Renn, 179 S.W.2d 657 (Ark. 1944); Dunbar v. Dunbar, 98 N.E. 563 (Ill. 1912); Deke v. Huenkemeier, 102 N.E. 1059 (Ill. 1913); Mohr v. Sibthorp, 69 N.E.2d 487 (Ill. 1946); Bookout v. Bookout, 49 N.E. 824 (Ind. 1898); Buzick v. Buzick, 44 Iowa 259 (1876); Bell v. Dufur, 142 Iowa 701 (1909); Murray v. Murray, 13 S.W. 244 (Ky. 1890); Collins v. Collins, 57 A. 597 (Md. 1904); Cranson v. Cranson, 4 Mich. 230 (1856);Hach v. Rollins, 59 S.W. 232 (Mo. 1900); McGehee v. Garringer, 224 S.W. 828 (Mo. 1920); Loe v. Downing, 325 S.W.2d 479 (Mo. 1959) (a deed with intent to defraud creditors is not made in fraud of the marital rights of the surviving spouse unless made just before marriage with intent to defraud the intended spouse); Arnegaard v. Arnegaard, 75 N.W. 797 (N.D. 1898); Dick v. Bauman, 55 N.E.2d 137 (Ohio App. 1943). Blevins v. Smith, 165 S.W. 213 (Mo. 1889) (ruling that "a sale under judgement for delinquent taxes does not bar a widow's right of dower where was not a party to the tax suit").

(n258)Footnote 258. Givens v. Marbut, 168 S.W. 614 (Mo. 1914).

(n259)Footnote 259. Dorrough v. Grove, 60 So. 2d 342 (Ala. 1952); Barnett v. Barnett, 193 S.W.2d 319 (Ark. 1946); Dunbar v. Dunbar, 98 N.E. 563 (Ill. 1912); Granger v. Granger, 296 N.W. 288 (Mich. 1941); Breshears v. Breshears, 232 S.W.2d 460 (Mo. 1950); Wilson v. Wilson, 89 P. 643 (Utah 1907).

But in Pennsylvania, Overbeck v. McHale, 47 A.2d 142 (Pa. 1946), and North Carolina, Ballard v. Ballard, 55 S.E.2d 316 (N.C. 1949), the conveyance is valid unless the wife can prove intended fraud.

An inter vivos transfer with the express purpose of defeating the spouse's right to take on his decease was a fraud upon the surviving spouse. In re O'Connor's Estate, 23 P.2d 1031 (Cal. 1933), applying the law of Indiana prior to 1954. Littleton v. Littleton, 18 N.C. 327 (N.C. 1835) (holding that "a conveyance by a man in contemplation of marriage with view of defeating dower is void").

(n260)Footnote 260. Wallace v. Wallace, 114 N.W. 913 (Iowa 1908); Wanstrath v. Kappel, 201 S.W.2d 327 (Mo. 1947) (Missouri will set aside gifts made by the husband to defeat the wife's share).

(n261)Footnote 261. Nelson v. Brown, 51 So. 360 (Ala. 1910).

(n262)Footnote 262. Higgins v. Higgins, 76 N.E. 86 (Ill. 1905); Beechley v. Beechley, 108 N.W. 762 (Iowa 1906).

(n263)Footnote 263. Hamilton v. Smith, 10 N.W. 276 (Iowa 1881); Beechley v. Beechley, 108 N.W. 762 (Iowa 1907); Butler v. Butler, 21 Kan. 521 (1879); Fennessey v. Fennessey, 2 S.W. 158 (Ky. 1888); Dudley v. Dudley, 45 N.W. 602 (Wis. 1890).

(n264)Footnote 264. Borrough v. Grove, 60 So. 2d 342 (Ala. 1952).

(n265)Footnote 265. Higgins v. Higgins, 76 N.E. 86 (Ill. 1905); Beechley v. Beechley, 108 N.W. 762 (Iowa 1906).

(n266)Footnote 266. Bascombe v. Sargent, 90 N.Y.S.2d 113 (1949), aff'd, 1950, 99 N.Y.S.2d 857.

(n267)Footnote 267. Dorrough v. Grove, 60 So. 2d 342 (Ala. 1952); Roberts v. Roberts, 198 S.W. 697 (Ark. 1917); Barnett v. Barnett, 193 S.W.2d 319 (Ark. 1946); Knights v. Knights, 133 N.E. 377 (Ill. 1921); In re Mann's Estate, 208 N.W. 310 (Iowa 1925); Anderson v. Anderson, 240 S.W. 1061 (Ky. 1922); Griffin v. Griffin, 196 N.W. 384 (Mich. 1923); Loe v. Downing, 325 S.W.2d 479 (Mo. 1959) (a deed made to defeat creditors is not in fraud of marital rights); Wildeman v. Wildeman, 130 A. 717 (N.J. 1925); Watson v. Cox, 108 S.E. 168 (S.C. 1921); Sederlund v. Sederlund, 187 N.W. 750 (Wis. 1922).

(n268)Footnote 268. Dorrough v. Grove, 60 So. 2d 342 (Ala. 1952); Kelly v. McGrath, 70 Ala. 75 (1881) See Harrison v. Harrison, 127 S.W.2d 270 (Ark. 1939).

(n269)Footnote 269. Stokes v. Stokes, 196 N.Y.S. 184 (1922). Byrnes v Owen, 153 N.E. 51 (N.Y. 1926) (holding that "a conveyance where the husband conveyed to his sister property for money he gave her and without consideration of her own was void and merely an effort to defeat wife's dower").

(n270)Footnote 270. Bartkowiak v. Bartkowiak, 283 N.W. 49 (Mich. 1938).

(n271)Footnote 271. Crawfordsville Trust Co. v. Ramsey, 100 N.E. 1049, 102 N.E. 282 (Ind. App. 1913), reh'g denied.

See Melvin J. Sykes, Inter Vivos Transfer in Violation of the Rights of Surviving Spouses, 10 Md. L. Rev. 1 (1949); Edward N. Cahn, Restraints on Disinheritance, 85 U. Pa. L. Rev. 139 (1936).

(n272)Footnote 272. See John Cornelius Hayes, Illinois Dower and the Illusory Trust: The New York Influence, 2 Depaul L. Rev. 1 (1952); Edward A. Smith, The Present Status of Illusory Trusts -- The Doctrine of Newman v. Dore Brought Down to Date, 44 Mich. L. Rev. 151 (1945). Griffith v. Griffith, 145 P. 270 (Or. 1915) (holding that "where a husband purchased land to take title in the name of another, the wife may on his death before judgement in divorce suit by her, set aside the conveyance as fraudulent").

(n273)Footnote 273. Smith v. Northern Trust Co., 322 Ill. App. 168, 54 N.E.2d 75 (1944); Leonard v. Leonard, 63 N.E. 1068 (Mass. 1902).

So a mere reservation of a life estate or a shorter interest is effective against the wife. But see Grover v. Grover, 169 P. 578 (Colo. 1917), where the transfer was held illusory against the wife though a life estate was reserved.

Inter vivos trusts are not improper as against wives merely because settlor has retained substantial powers over the trust res. In re Herron's Estate, 237 So. 2d 563 (Fla. 1970). See Fla. Stat. 1971, §689.075.

Refusal to set aside trust as in fraud of wife's interests where motive was to provide for continuation of business after death. Potter v. Winter, 280 S.W.2d 27 (Mo. 1955).

Following Restatement (Second) of Trusts, and holding that reservation of right to amend or revoke does not make a trust testamentary.

(n274)Footnote 274. Williams v. Williams, 474 S.W.2d 189 (Fla. 1934).

Qualifying as executrix and receiving maintenance estopped widow from electing against the will. Adams v. Adams, 120 S.E. 590 (W. Va. 1923).

(n275)Footnote 275. Davis v. Davis, 98 So. 2d 777 (Fla. 1957) (recordation gave notice to the prospective bride); Collins v. Collins, 57 A. 597 (Md. 1904).

See note on Prenuptial Transfers in Fraud of Dower, 11 U. Fla. L. Rev. 321 (1958).

(n276)Footnote 276. So the urgent need of children by a former marriage, Kinne v. Webb, 54 F. 34 (8th Cir. 1893), or substantial contribution by a former wife, Payne v. Tatem, 33 S.W.2d 2 (Ky. 1930), or satisfaction of an obligation, Dudley v. Dudley, 45 N.W. 602 (Wis. 1890), keeps the transaction from being a "voluntary" conveyance.

(n277)Footnote 277. Daniher v. Daniher, 66 N.E. 239 (Ill. 1903); Smiley v. Smiley, 16 N.E. 585 (Ind. 1888).

(n278)Footnote 278. Harrison v. Harrison, 127 S.W.2d 270 (Ark. 1939) (eve of marriage).

(n279)Footnote 279. Loe v. Downing, 325 S.W.2d 479 (Mo. 1959)

See Henry T. Lowe, Transfers in Fraud of Marital Rights, 26 Mo. L. Rev. 1 (1961).

(n280)Footnote 280. Freed v. Judith Realty & Farm Prods. Corp., 113 S.E.2d 850 (Va. 1960).

In Pennsylvania by statute, Pa. Stat., tit. 20, §6112, a wife has the same elective rights against a revocable inter vivos trust as she has against a will. In re Behan's Estate, 160 A.2d 209 (Pa. 1960).

(n281)Footnote 281. Ackers v. First Nat'l Bank, 387 P.2d 840 (Kan. 1963) (transfer to a revocable inter vivos trust held a fraud on wife as to her dower).

But in Colorado the husband can transfer his property even though it has the effect of disinheriting the wife if the transaction is bona fide, not merely colorable. Estate of Barnhart, 563 P.2d 972 (Colo. App. 1977).

This is also true in Indiana. Ind. Code §29-1-2-2.

(n282)Footnote 282. The early dower was given at the church door, i.e., it consisted only of the lands the bridegroom then owned. But by Edward I it attached to lands he after acquired and in Britton it is pointed out that dower was given by law "although her husband say nothing."

"To entitle a wife to dower the husband must have been seised, either in fact or in law, of an estate of inheritance in the land at some time during the coverture. This rule is inflexible. If the husband have only a reversion or remainder after a freehold estate in another, the seisin is, properly speaking, in that other, and not in him, since he has never had either possession or any present right of possession, and he cannot be said to have had a seisin of any sort, either actual or legal, and consequently the wife is not entitled to dower, unless by the death of the intermediate free holder, or a surrender of his estate to the husband, the inheritance becomes entire in the husband during coverture. And if the husband conveys away his reversion or remainder, either personally or by operation of law, during the continuance of the particular estate for life, his wife thereby loses all claim to dower therein." Geldhauser v. Schulz, 116 A. 791 (N.J. 1922).

See Burns v. Turnbull, 62 N.E.2d 785 (N.Y. 1945) (or in fraud of the spouse).

Where one dies intestate, title to his realty vests immediately in his heirs and dower of the heirs' spouses attaches at the moment of the ancestor's death subject to being divested to pay the ancestor's debts. Pfaff v. Heizman, 235 S.W.2d 551 (Ark. 1951).

Holding a statute giving benefits to widows only was not unconstitutional. Kahn v. Shevin, 416 U.S. 351 (1974).

(n283)Footnote 283. Childers v. Pollock, 13 S.W.2d 8 (Ark. 1929); Lenfers v. Henke, 73 Ill. 405 (1874); Hendrix v. McBeth, 61 Ind. 473 (1878); Downey v. King, 87 N.E. 468 (Mass. 1909); Whitehead v. Brownsville Bank, 61 S.W.2d 975 (Tenn. 1933).

See James C. Blair, Interest in Land Subject to Dower, Ky. L.J. (1950); John MacPhail, Situations in Which Pennsylvania Courts Have Been Reluctant to Enforce Wife's Statutory Dower Rights, 55 Dick. L. Rev. 67 (1950).

Upon marriage the widow's marital property rights are taken subject to a previously existing contract to make a will. Komarek's Estate v. Komarek, 282 P.2d 446 (Kan. 1955).

Mere concealment or noncommunication of a premarital conveyance does not constitute a fraud upon the wife so as to give her dower in the realty so conveyed. Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. 1955). Bee Branch Cattle Co. v. Koon, 44 So. 2d 684 (Fla. 1949) (holding that a widow has a dower interest in all the property owned by her husband at the time of his death).

(n284)Footnote 284. Deepwater Black Creek Coal Co. v. Long, 139 So. 236 (Ala. 1932); Henderson v. Usher, 170 So. 846 (Fla. 1936).

No dower in an estate in remainder or reversion at common law. Compton v. Cook, 66 So. 2d 176 (Ala. 1953), but there is when preceding estate terminates. Davis v. Davis, 243 S.W.2d 739 (Ark. 1951).

A spouse cannot claim an interest in property of the other spouse transferred to another before marriage unless there was fraud in the transfer. Kirk v. Kirk, 16 A.2d 47 (Pa. 1940).

When the ancestor dies the heir immediately takes an interest in land that is subject to dower, though administration is not yet complete. Pfaff v. Heizman, 235 S.W.2d 551 (Ark. 1951).

Under present Florida law the widow has the dower on all property owned by the deceased husband, which dower interest is not subject to claims of husband's creditors. In re Payne's Estate, 83 So. 2d 109 (Fla. 1955).

In North Carolina there is no dower in a vested remainder in fee as long as a life estate is in existence. In re Smith's Will, 107 S.E.2d 89 (N.C. 1959).

In Florida there is dower in a remainder interest. Creary v. Estate of Creary, 338 So. 2d 26 (Fla. App. 1976).

(n285)Footnote 285. Rowe v. Ratliff, 104 S.W.2d 437 (Ky. 1937); Ford v. Yost, 190 S.W.2d 21 (Ky. 1945).

(n286)Footnote 286. 4 Kent's Comm. 401; In re Chase's Case, 1 Bland 206 (Md. 1827); Campbell v. Lynch, 94 S.E. 739 (W. Va. 1917); Chaplin v. Chaplin, 3 P. Wms. 229, 24 Eng. Rep. 1040, 1047, 1103 (1733, 1734, 1735).

(n287)Footnote 287. Priddy v. Griffith, 37 N.E. 999 (Ill. 1892); Crain v. West, 229 S.W. 51 (Ky. 1921); Pursifull's Adm'x v. Pursifull, 184 S.W.2d 967 (Ky. 1944); Clark v. Clark, 242 P.2d 992 (Mont. 1952) (dower in unpatented mining claim); Campbell v. Lynch, 94 S.E. 739 (W. Va. 1917).

Contra, Van Camp v. Evans, 206 S.W.2d 38 (Ky. 1947) (no dower in lessee's interest in oil and gas lease); Redman v. Shaw, 1 N.W.2d 555 (Mich. 1942) (no dower in mineral lease).

(n288)Footnote 288. Wyman v. Oliver, 75 Me. 421 (1884).

Dowery in limestone quarry. Moore v. Rollins, 45 Me. 493 (1858), and in iron ore beds.

(n289)Footnote 289. Coke on Littletin, §32a.

(n290)Footnote 290. Ralston v. Ralston, 3 Greene 533 (Iowa 1852); In re Mulholland, 26 A. 612 (Pa. 1893).

(n291)Footnote 291. Compton v. Cook, 66 So. 2d 176 (Ala. 1953); Delaney v. Manshum, 109 N.W. 1051 (Mich. 1906). Webber v. Webber, 962 S.W.2d 345, 348 (Ark. 1998) (stating that "land is everything that lies below the surface or is attached thereto by the processes of nature or of artificial," and therefore, the court held that wife was entitled to one third share of net proceeds of the 1996 crop).

(n292)Footnote 292. Midyette v. Grubbs, 58 S.E. 795 (N.C. 1907).

(n293)Footnote 293. Leavitt v. Tasker, 76 A. 953 (Me. 1910); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916).

(n294)Footnote 294. Harris v. Powers, 58 S.E. 1038 (Ga. 1907); Trimble v. Kentucky River Coal Corp., 31 S.W.2d 367 (Ky. 1930); Goodspeed v. Lawrence, 94 N.E. 395 (Mass. 1911); Byars v. Mixon, 299 So. 2d 262 (Ala. 1974) (holding that under Alabama law and common law, a widow has a dower interest in each individual tract of land her husband owned).

(n295)Footnote 295. Conner v. Shepherd, 15 Mass. 164 (1818); Webb v. Townsend, 18 Mass. (1 Pick.) 21, 11 (1822); Johnson v. Perley, 2 N.H. 56 (1819).

(n296)Footnote 296. Stevens v. Owen, 25 Me. 94 (1845); Brackett v. Persons Unknown, 53 Me. 238, (1861); Leavitt v. Tasker, 76 A. 953 (Me. 1910); White v. Willis, 24 Mass. (7 Pick.) 143 (1828).

(n297)Footnote 297. Black v. Elkhorn Mining Co., 163 U.S. 445, (1896); Bechtol v. Bechtol, 2 Alaska 397 (1905).

Contra, Clark v. Clark, 242 P.2d 992 (Mont. 1952) (widow had dower in an unpatented mining claim).

(n298)Footnote 298. Alabama Vermiculite Corp. v. Patterson, 149 F. Supp. 534 (W.D.S.C. 1955); Lenfers v. Henke, 73 Ill. 405 (1874); Priddy v. Griffith, 37 N.E. 999 (Ill. 1892); Hendrix v. McBeth, 61 Ind. 473 (1878); Whittaker v. Lindley, 3 S.W. 9 (Ky. 1887); Caudil v. Wagoner, 212 S.W. 422 (Ky. 1919); Williamson v. Williamson, 4 S.W.2d 392 (Ky. 1928); Pursifull's Adm'x v. Pursifull, 184 S.W.2d 967 (Ky. 1944); Billings v. Taylor, 27 Mass. (10 Pick.) 460 (1830); Crouch v. Puryear, 1 Rand 258 (Va. 1822).

(n299)Footnote 299. Osborn v. Arkansas Territorial Oil & Gas Co., 146 S.W. 122 (Ark. 1912); Terry v. Humphreys, 203 P. 539 (N.M. 1922) (husband alone cannot lease for oil and gas in New Mexico); Northwestern Ohio Nat'l Gas Co. v. Ullery, 67 N.E. 494 (Ohio 1903); Pierce Oil Corp. v. Schacht, 181 P. 731 (Okla. 1919); Manufacturers Light & Heat Co. v. Knapp, 135 S.E. 1 (W. Va. 1926).

See W. Lewis Roberts, Dower Rights Under Oil and Gas Leases, 13 Wash. & Lee L. Rev. 15 (1956).

(n300)Footnote 300. Crain v. West, 229 S.W. 51 (Ky. 1921); Bartlett v. Buckner, 54 S.W.2d 25 (Ky. 1932); Cook v. Cook's Adm'r, 88 S.W.2d 27 (Ky. 1935).

See John Cornelius Hayes, Illinois Dower and the "Illusory Trust": The New York Influence, 2 Depaul L. Rev. 1 (1952).

(n301)Footnote 301. Lemaster v. Hudson, 283 S.W. 439 (Ky. 1926); Van Camp v. Evans, 206 S.W.2d 38 (Ky. 1947) (no dower in lessee's interest in oil and gas lease).

(n302)Footnote 302. See W. Lewis Roberts, Dower Rights Under Oil and Gas Leases, 13 Wash. & Lee L. Rev. 15 (1956).

(n303)Footnote 303. Standard Oil Co. v. J.P. Mills Org., 43 P.2d 797 (Cal. 1935); Crain v. West, 229 S.W. 51 (Ky. 1921); Cook v. Cook's Adm'r, 88 S.W.2d 27 (Ky. 1935); Manufacturers Light & Heat Co. v. Knapp, 135 S.E. 1 (W. Va. 1926).

(n304)Footnote 304. Kathman v. Sheehan, 163 N.E. 692 (Ill. 1928).

(n305)Footnote 305. Murawski v. Murawski, 209 S.W.2d 262 (Mo. App. 1948).

(n306)Footnote 306. Van Camp v. Evans, 206 S.W.2d 38 (Ky. 1947).

(n307)Footnote 307. Stevenson v. Brasher, 13 S.W. 242 (Ky. 1890). Buehrer v. Gates, 411 S.W.2d 676 (Ky. 1967) (holding that since an oil and gas leasehold was less than fee simple estate, it was not subject to dower).

(n308)Footnote 308. Hartwell v. De Vault, 42 N.E. 789 (Ill. 1896); Stevens v. Smith, 27 Ky. (4 J.J. Marsh.) 64 (1830); Cass v. Thompson, 1 N.H. 65 (1817).

(n309)Footnote 309. Hartwell v. De Vault, 42 N.E. 789 (Ill. 1896); Mosher v. Mosher, 32 Me. 412 (1851); Cass v. Thompson, 1 N.H. 65 (1817).

(n310)Footnote 310. Davis v. Davis, 98 So. 2d 777 (Fla. 1957); Jarvis v. Jarvis, 122 N.E. 121 (Ill. 1919); Martin v. Martin, 138 S.W.2d 509 (Ky. 1940); Collins v. Collins, 57 A. 597 (Md. 1904).

(n311)Footnote 311. Davis v. Davis, 98 So. 2d 777 (Fla. 1957).

(n312)Footnote 312. Stelle v. Carroll, 37 U.S. (12 Pet.) 201 (1838); Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. (15 Pet.) 21 (1841); Harris v. Powers, 58 S.E. 1038 (Ga. 1907).

(n313)Footnote 313. Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. (15 Pet.) 21 (1841); Harris v. Powers, 58 S.E. 1038 (Ga. 1907); McCabe v. Bellows, 73 Mass. (7 Gray) 148 (1856); Davis v. Wetherell, 95 Mass. (13 Allen) 60 (1866); Collins v. Torry, 7 Johns (N.Y.) 278 (1811); Wheatley v. Calhoun, 12 Leigh (Va.) 264 (1841).

(n314)Footnote 314. King v. Chandler, 105 So. 184 (Ala. 1925); Hewitt v. Cox, 15 S.W. 1026 (Ark. 1891); Less v. Less, 227 S.W. 763 (Ark. 1921); Harris v. Powers, 58 S.E. 1038 (Ga. 1907); Cook v. First Nat'l Bank, 122 S.E. 686 (Ga. 1924); Munro v. McAllister, 203 P. 286 (Idaho 1921); Leary v. Shaffer, 79 Ind. 567 (1881); Louisa County v. Grimm, 212 N.W. 324 (Iowa 1927); Ross v. McGrath's Adm'r, 86 S.W. 555 (Ky. 1905) (the wife of a mortgagee has no dower in the mortgaged premises); Chalk v. Chalk, 165 S.W.2d 534 (Ky. 1942); Ellis v. Sullivan, 134 N.E. 695 (Mass. 1922); Filley v. Dickinson, 193 N.W. 914 (Neb. 1923); Wood v. Price, 81 A. 664 (N.J. 1910); Campbell v. Campbell, 53 A.2d 630 (N.J. 1947); Pyle v. Danczewski, 130 A. 452 (N.J. 1925); Byrnes v. Owen, 153 N.E. 51 (N.Y. 1926); Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co. v. Walston, 123 S.E. 196 (N.C. 1924); Riley v. Remington, 70 A. 552 (Pa. 1908); Turner v. Washington Realty Co., 126 S.E. 137 (S.C. 1925); Hunt v. Curry, 282 S.W. 201 (Tenn. 1926). See Whitehead v. Brownsville Bank, 61 S.W.2d 975 (Tenn. 1933).

If dower is subject to a mortgage and the mortgage is foreclosed in the husband's lifetime the wife has dower in the surplus from the sale unless disposed of in the husband's lifetime. Nelson v. Dunn, 284 S.W. 1084 (Ky. 1926).

(n315)Footnote 315. Snyder v. Richey, 130 N.W. 922 (Iowa 1911); Wait v. Savage, 15 A. 225 (N.J. 1888); Nichols v. French, 93 N.E. 897 (Ohio 1910).

Contra, Detwiler v. Capone, 55 A.2d 380 (Pa. 1947).

In North Carolina the wife has dower in the equity of redemption of lands mortgaged by the husband prior to the marriage. Gay v. J. Exum & Co., 67 S.E.2d 290 (N.C. 1951), 39 N.C. L. Rev. 310.

(n316)Footnote 316. Ward v. Tuttle, 102 N.E. 405 (Ind. 1913).

(n317)Footnote 317. Campbell v. Campbell, 53 A.2d 630 (N.J. 1947); Nichols v. French, 93 N.E. 897 (Ohio 1910).

(n318)Footnote 318. Bell v. Bell, 56 So. 926 (Ala. 1911).

(n319)Footnote 319. Jaffe v. Zilinski, 100 A.2d 887 (N.J. 1953); In re Chase Nat'l Bank's Petition, 25 N.Y.S.2d 592 (1941); Bridgeford v. Groh, 160 A. 451 (Pa. 1932).

(n320)Footnote 320. Haynes v. Rolstin, 145 N.W. 336 (Iowa 1914); Alt v. Kwiatek, 17 A.2d 161 (N.J. 1941); Stanton v. Boatright, 302 S.W.2d 347 (Tenn. 1957).

(n321)Footnote 321. Eaton v. Simonds, 31 Mass. (14 Pick.) 98 (1833).

(n322)Footnote 322. McMahon v. Russell, 17 Fla. 698 (1880); Graves v. Braden, 62 Ind. 93 (1878); McCabe v. Bellows, 73 Mass. (7 Gray) 148 (1856); Campbell v. Campbell, 30 N.J. Eq. 415 (1879); Mandel v. McClave, 22 N.E. 290 (Ohio 1889).

(n323)Footnote 323. French v. Peters, 33 Me. 396 (1851).

(n324)Footnote 324. Chalk v. Chalk, 165 S.W.2d 534 (Ky. 1942).

(n325)Footnote 325. No dower where land is held by the husband in a resulting trust. In re Clemens, 472 F.2d 939 (6th Cir. 1972).

(n326)Footnote 326. Bowers v. Lillis, 115 N.E. 930 (Ind. 1917); Buzick v. Buzick, 44 Iowa 259 (1876); Bonfoey v. Bonfoey, 58 N.W. 620 (Mich. 1894); Kober v. Kober, 23 S.W.2d 149 (Mo. 1929); Pope v. Bain, 78 A.2d 820 (N.J. 1951).

(n327)Footnote 327. Frederick v. Emig, 57 N.E. 883 (Ill. 1900); Matthews v. Thompson, 71 N.E. 93 (Mass. 1904); Swift & Co. v. First Nat'l Bank of Hightstown, 168 A. 827 (N.J. 1933); Malloney v. Horan, 49 N.Y. 111, (1872).

(n328)Footnote 328. In re Gish, 32 F.2d 322 (W.D. Ky. 1928); Trowbridge v. Sypher, 7 N.W. 567 (Iowa 1880); Bank of Commerce v. Owens, 31 Md. 320 (1869); Burrall v. Bender, 28 N.W. 731 (Mich. 1886); Hawley v. Bradford, 9 Paige (N.Y.) 200 (1841); Hoy v. Varner, 42 S.E. 690 (Va. 1902); Poteet v. International Harvester Co., 149 S.E. 512 (Va. 1929).

(n329)Footnote 329. Oades v. Standard Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 241 N.W. 262 (Mich. 1932); Turner v. Washington Realty Co., 126 S.E. 137 (S.C. 1925); Zion's Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. State Tax Comm'n, 62 P.2d 270 (Utah 1936); Commercial Banking & Trust Co. v. Dudley, 86 S.E. 307 (W. Va. 1915).

(n330)Footnote 330. Creecy v. Pearce, 69 N.C. 67 (1873); Realty Purchase Corp. v. Hall, 4 S.E.2d 514 (N.C. 1939); Mandel v. McClave, 22 N.E. 290 (Ohio 1889).

(n331)Footnote 331. Hewitt v. Cox, 15 S.W. 1026 (Ark. 1891); Dillman v. Will County Nat'l Bank, 27 N.E. 1090 (Ill. 1891); Holden v. Dunn, 33 N.E. 413 (Ill. 1893); Leary v. Shaffer, 79 Ind. 567 (1881); Green v. Estabrook, 79 N.E. 373 (Ind. 1906); Bank of Commerce v. Owens, 31 Md. 320 (1869); Pickett v. Buckner, 45 Miss. 226 (1871); Hinchman v. Stiles, 9 N.J. Eq. 454 (1853); Hawley v. Bradford, 9 Paige (N.Y.) 200 (1841); Gore v. Townsend, 11 S.E. 160 (N.C. 1890); Mandel v. McClave, 22 N.E. 290 (Ohio 1889); Bridgeford v. Groh, 160 A. 451 (Pa. 1932); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916); Miller v. Farmers' Bank, 27 S.E. 514 (S.C. 1897); Ex parte Clark, 118 S.E. 27 (S.C. 1923); Wheatley v. Calhoun, 12 Leigh (Va.) 264 (1841); Bassell v. Caywood, 46 S.E. 159 (W. Va. 1903); John S. Naylor Co. v. Post, 20 S.E.2d 458 (W. Va. 1942).

Wife may redeem from foreclosure sale of husband's land, Dewberry v. Bank of Standing Rock, 150 So. 463 (Ala.

1933), or may pay off the mortgage to avoid foreclosure, Taylor v. Taylor, 92 So. 109 (Ala. 1922).

No dower in the overplus remaining after mortgage foreclosure sale during husband's life. Newhall v. Lynn Five Cents Sav. Bank, 101 Mass. 428 (1869).

(n332)Footnote 332. Beard v. Smith, 71 Ala. 568 (1882).

(n333)Footnote 333. Thompson v. Cochran, 26 Tenn. (7 Hum.) 72 (1846).

(n334)Footnote 334. Weaver v. Gregg, 6 Ohio St. 547 (1856); Turner v. Turner, 39 S.E.2d 299 (Va. 1946). Contra, Haggerty v. Wagner, 48 N.E. 366 (Ind. 1897).

No dower in joint tenancy. Jezo v. Jezo, 127 N.W.2d 246 (Wis. 1964).

(n335)Footnote 335. Evansville Imp. Co. v. Gardner, 128 N.E. 471 (Ind. 1920).

(n336)Footnote 336. Perkins v. Perkins, 122 Ill. App. 370 (1905).

(n337)Footnote 337. Citizens Bank & Trust Co. v. Watkins, 1 S.E.2d 853 (N.C. 1939); Shelton v. Shelton, 83 S.E.2d 176 (S.C. 1954) (not however in property taken by eminent domain).

(n338)Footnote 338. Frederick v. Emig, 57 N.E. 883 (Ill. 1900); Lohmeyer v. Durbin, 69 N.E. 523 (Ill. 1903); Whetstone v. Baker, 39 N.E. 868 (Ind. 1895); Helm v. Board, 70 S.W. 679 (Ky. 1902); Matney v. Williams, 89 S.W. 678 (Ky. 1905); Chalk v. Chalk, 165 S.W.2d 534 (Ky. 1942); Nortnass v. Pioneer Townsite Co., 117 N.W. 951 (Neb. 1908); Zieschang v. Helmke, 84 S.W. 436 (Tex. Civ. App. 1904); Building, Light & Water Co. v. Fray, 32 S.E. 58 (Va. 1899); Roush v. Miller, 20 S.E. 663 (W. Va. 1894).

Only a tax lien, Johnson v. Stephens, 199 So. 828 (Ala. 1941), or a purchase money mortgage or vendor's lien, King v. Chandler, 105 So. 184 (Ala. 1925), takes precedence over dower.

(n339)Footnote 339. Coon v. Henderson, 199 So. 704 (Ala. 1940).

(n340)Footnote 340. Whitmore v. Rascoe, 85 S.W. 860 (Tenn. 1905). See Sleeth v. Taylor, 95 S.E. 597 (W. Va. 1918).

(n341)Footnote 341. J.J. Newberry Co. v. Shannon, 167 N.E. 292 (Mass. 1929).

(n342)Footnote 342. In re Perlhefter, 177 F. 299 (D.N.Y. 1910); Andrews v. Brown, 21 Ala. 437 (1852); Lipscomb v. Aulenbacher, 272 S.W. 363 (Ark. 1925); Robinson Bank v. Miller, 38 N.E. 1078 (Ill. 1894); Grissom v. Moore, 6 N.E. 629 (Ind. 1886); Paige v. Paige, 32 N.W. 360 (Iowa 1887); Barton v. Wamsley, 190 N.W. 18 (Iowa 1922); Pearre v. Grossnickle, 114 A. 725 (Md. 1921); Willett v. Brown, 65 Mo. 138 (1877); In re Dumarest's Estate, 262 N.Y.S. 450 (1933); Sumner v. Hampson, 8 Ohio 328 (1838); Strickler v. Byrd, 198 S.E. 918 (Va. 1938); Sleeth v. Taylor, 95 S.E. 597 (W. Va. 1918).

(n343)Footnote 343. Holton v. Guinn, 65 F. 450 (C.C. Mo. 1895); Galbraith v. Tracy, 38 N.E. 937 (Ill. 1894); Bennett v. Bennett, 121 S.W. 495 (Ky. 1909); Davidson v. Richmond, 69 S.W. 794 (Ky. 1902); Shearer v. Shearer, 98 Mass. 107 (1867); Woodward-Holmes Co. v. Nudd, 59 N.W. 1010 (Minn. 1894); Uhler v. Semple, 20 N.J. Eq. 288 (1869); Campbell v. Campbell, 30 N.J. Eq. 415 (1879); Buchan v. Sumner, 2 Barb. Ch. 165 (N.Y. 1847); Darrow v. Calkins, 49 N.E. 61 (N.Y. 1897); Patton v. Patton, 60 N.C. 572 (1864); Summey v. Patton, 60 N.C. 601 (1864); Appeal of Foster, 74 Pa. 391 (1873).

(n344)Footnote 344. Nicoll v. Ogden, 29 Ill. 323 (1862); Mallory v. Russell, 32 N.W. 102 (Iowa 1887).

(n345)Footnote 345. Hadley v. Hadley, 144 P. 80 (Or. 1914).

(n346)Footnote 346. Woodward-Holmes Co. v. Nudd, 59 N.W. 1010 (Minn. 1894).

(n347)Footnote 347. Nicoll v. Ogden, 29 Ill. 323 (1862); Grissom v. Moore, 6 N.E. 629 (Ind. 1886); Chase v. Angell, 108 N.W. 1105 (Mich. 1906).

(n348)Footnote 348. Appeal of Foster, 74 Pa. 391 (1873).

(n349)Footnote 349. Cultra v. Cultra, 221 S.W.2d 533 (Tenn. 1949).

(n350)Footnote 350. State v. Elsbury, 175 P.2d 430 (Nev. 1946).

(n351)Footnote 351. The widow's right being inchoate in nature terminates where the husband had merely a defeasible estate which terminated at his death (minority view). Edwards v. Bibb, 54 Ala. 475 (1875); Daniel v. Daniel, 28 S.E. 167 (Ga. 1897); Smith v. Hankins, 27 Ohio St. 371 (1875).

Contra, Snidow v. Snidow, S.E.2d 620 (Va. 1951); Buckworth v. Thirkell, 4 Doug. 323, 99 Eng. Rep. 903 (1785); Moody v. King, 2 Bing. 447, 130 Eng. Rep. 378 (1825) (relying upon Coke on Littleton, §53).

Dower is lost if the fee upon condition subsequent or determinable fee ends. Beardslee v. Beardslee, 5 Barb. 324 (N.Y. 1849). But though the estate be defeasible it attaches until defeasance. House v. Jackson, 50 N.Y. 161 (1872).

There was no common-law dower in property of which the husband did not die seised, i.e., where the husband predeceased his ancestor. Maloney v. McCullough, 221 S.W.2d 770 (Ark. 1949).

Dower in Florida is not subject to decedent's debts. In re Payne's Estate, 83 So. 2d 109 (Fla. 1955).

Revocable trust subject to dower. Harris v. Harris, 72 N.E.2d 378 (Ohio St. 1947).

See Kohn, Limitations on Testamentary Power in Missouri -- Protection of the Spouse and Children of the Testator, 1954 Wash. U.L.Q. 364.

(n352)Footnote 352. In re Jones' Estate, 64 N.E.2d 609 (Ohio 1943); Appeal of Smith, 23 Pa. 9 (1853).

See Rights of a Surviving Spouse in A Fee Tail Estate in Ohio, 18 U. Cinn. L. Rev. 332.

(n353)Footnote 353. Northcut v. Whipp, 51 Ky. (12 B. Mon.) 65 (1851); Appeal of Smith, 23 Pa. 9 (1853); Moody v. King, 2 Bing. 447, 130 Eng. Rep. 378 (1825).

Dower and curtesy in a fee tail, even though limited to the heirs of the grantee's body. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 116, 120; 4 Kent's Comm. 11, 13.

(n354)Footnote 354. Trumbull v. Trumbull, 21 N.E. 366 (Mass. 1889).

(n355)Footnote 355. Miller v. Miller, 83 N.E.2d 254 (Ohio 1948); Mays v. Mays, 42 N.E.2d 446 (Ohio 1942).

(n356)Footnote 356. Holden v. Wells, 31 A. 265 (R.I. 1895).

(n357)Footnote 357. Kusch v. Kusch, 32 N.E. 267 (Ill. 1892); Snidow v. Snidow, 63 S.E.2d 620 (Va. 1951). See Buckworth v. Thirkell, 4 Doug. 323, 99 Eng. Rep. 903 (1785).

(n358)Footnote 358. Chinnubbee v. Nicks, 3 Port. (Ala.) 362 (1836); Ray v. Pung, 5 B. & Ald. 861, 106 Eng. Rep. 1296 (1822).

(n359)Footnote 359. Thompson v. Vance, 58 Ky. (1 Met.) 669 (1858).

(n360)Footnote 360. Ray v. Pung, 5 B. & Ald. 861, 106 Eng. Rep. 1296 (1822).

(n361)Footnote 361. Jackson v. Kip, 8 N.J.L. 241 (1826); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916).

(n362)Footnote 362. Barter v. Couch, 47 So. 1006 (Ala. 1908); Beaty v. Calliss, 128 N.E. 547 (Ill. 1920); Buschemeyer v. Klein, 129 S.W. 541 (Ky. 1910); Allen v. Saunders, 119 S.E. 486 (N.C. 1923).

Contra Smith v. Hankins, 27 Ohio St. 371 (1875).

(n363)Footnote 363. Bracton De Legibus, fol. 297b; Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden 177, 28 Eng. Rep. 652 (n.d.). See Pacific Bank v. Hannah, 90 F. 72 (9th Cir. 1898).

(n364)Footnote 364. Kusch v. Kusch, 32 N.E. 267 (Ill. 1892); Gannon v. Peterson, 62 N.E. 210 (Ill. 1901); Sullivan v. Sullivan, 117 N.W. 1086 (Iowa 1908); Northcut v. Whipp, 51 Ky. (12 B. Mon.) 65 (1851); Landers v. Landers, 151 S.W. 386 (Ky. 1912); Couch v. Eastham, 73 S.E. 314 (W. Va. 1911).

Dower in a defeasible fee, Daniel v. McNamana, 64 Ky. (1 Bush) 544 (1866), if not determined in husband's life; Northcut v. Whipp, 51 Ky. (12 B. Mon.) 65 (1851), even though determined by death of son's issue. Murphy v. Murphy, 207 S.W. 491 (Ky. 1919).

A widow has dower in a fee simple estate of the husband though such estate be defeated by an executory limitation on his death. Snidow v. Snidow, 63 S.E.2d 620 (Va. 1951).

So Buckworth v. Thirkell, 4 Doug. 323, 99 Eng. Rep. 903 (1785). The rule was the same in estates in fee tail and fee simple conditional but there was no dower in estates subject to conditions or powers of appointment. Ray v. Pung, 5 B. & Ald. 861, 106 Eng. Rep. 1296 (1822).

(n365)Footnote 365. Northcut v. Whipp, 51 Ky. (12 B. Mon.) 65 (1851); Rice v. Rice, 118 S.W. 270 (Ky. 1909); Fry v. Scott, 11 S.W. 426 (Ky. 1889); Chew v. Chew, 1 Md. 163 (1851); Kennedy v. Kennedy, 29 N.J.L. 185 (1861); Pollard v. Slaughter, 92 N.C. 72 (1885); Evans v. Evans, 9 Pa. 190 (1848); Medley v. Medley, 27 Gratt. 568 (Va. 1876); Tomlinson v. Nickell, 24 W. Va. 148 (1884).

(n366)Footnote 366. Edwards v. Bibb, 54 Ala. 475 (1875); Myers v. Moore, 12 Ohio S. & C. P. Dec. 812 (1884).

(n367)Footnote 367. Osborn v. Osborn, 172 P. 23 (Kan. 1918).

(n368)Footnote 368. Kuhn v. Kuhn, 123 N.E.2d 916 (Ind. App. 1955) (no dower in fee upon condition subsequent breached in husband's lifetime); Landers v. Landers, 151 S.W. 386 (Ky. 1912); American Yarn & Processing Co. v. Dewstoe, 133 S.E. 407 (N.C. 1926); Snidow v. Snidow, 63 S.E.2d 620 (Va. 1951).

(n369)Footnote 369. Heldhauser v. Schulz, 116 A. 791 (N.J. 1922).

(n370)Footnote 370. Snidow v. Snidow, 63 S.E.2d 620 (Va. 1951).

(n371)Footnote 371. Pfaff v. Heizman, 235 S.W.2d 551 (Ark. 1951).

(n372)Footnote 372. Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. (15 Pet.) 21 (1841); Bowen v. Collins, 15 Ga. 100 (1854); Thomas v. Thomas, 32 N.C. (10 Ired.) 123 (1849); In re Brown's Estate, 14 P.2d 1107 (Or. 1932); Tipton v. Davis, 6

Tenn. (5 Hayw.) 278 (1818); In re Steck's Estate, 77 N.W.2d 715 (Wis. 1956) (no dower in an inter vivos trust).

(n373)Footnote 373. United Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Garrett, 64 F. Supp. 460 (W.D. Ark. 1946); Harris v. Powers, 58 S.E. 1038 (Ga. 1907); Whisler v. Hicks, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 100 (1839); Stevens v. Smith, 27 Ky. (4 J.J. Marsh.) 64 (1830); Walter v. Horwitz, 60 N.Y.S.2d 327 (1946), aff'd, 65 N.Y.S. 2d 672 (N.Y. A.D. 1946); Phifer v. Phifer, 72 S.E. 1006 (N.C. 1911). See McNeil v. McNeil, 211 P. 988 (Utah 1922).

(n374)Footnote 374. Porter v. Robinson, 10 Ky. (3 A.K. Marsh.) 253 (1821); Pugh v. Bell, 18 Ky. (2 T.B. Mon.) 125 (1825); Bird v. Gardner, 10 Mass. 364 (1813).

(n375)Footnote 375. Fletcher v. Felker, 97 F. Supp. 755 (W.D. Ark. 1951); Spaulding v. Haley, 142 S.W. 172 (Ark. 1911); Spence v. Mathis, 73 S.E. 739 (Ga. 1912); Atkin v. Merrell, 39 Ill. 62 (1865); Bundy v. Solon, 51 N.E.2d 183 (Ill. 1943); Stroup v. Stroup, 39 N.E. 864 (Ind. 1895); Ford v. Yost, 190 S.W.2d 21 (Ky. 1945); Davis v. Green, 14 S.W. 876 (Mo. 1890); Telis v. Telis, 26 A.2d 249 (N.J. 1942); Pope v. Bain, 78 A.2d 820 (N.J. 1951); Jaffe v. Zilinski, 100 A.2d 887 (N.J. 1953); Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. 1955); Clark v. Clark, 42 N.E. 275 (N.Y. 1895); Phifer v. Phifer, 72 S.E. 1006 (N.C. 1911).

See Perry v. Ritze, 193 N.W. 758 (Neb. 1923); Burhans v. Burhans, 121 A. 749 (N.J. 1923); Oram v. Oram, 132 A. 485 (N.J. 1926); McNeil v. McNeil, 211 P. 988 (Utah 1922).

Allowing wife dower in property in which husband was held to be a resulting trustee for another. McMurray v. McMurray, 410 S.W.2d 139 (Ky. 1966) (some courts refuse to give dower where the estate being voided does not come directly from the husband).

(n376)Footnote 376. Fletcher v. Felker, 97 F. Supp. 755 (W.D. Ark. 1951).

(n377)Footnote 377. Smallridge v. Hazlett, 66 S.W. 1043 (Ky. 1902); McNeil v. McNeil, 211 P. 988 (Utah 1922) (unless the entire purchase price has been paid).

(n378)Footnote 378. Harrington v. Feddersen, 226 N.W. 110 (Iowa 1929); James v. Upton, 31 S.E. 255 (Va. 1898).

(n379)Footnote 379. Detwiler v. Capone, 55 A.2d 380 (Pa. 1947); Burdine v. Burdine, 36 S.E. 992 (Va. 1900); Harris v. Harris, 43 S.E.2d 225 (W. Va. 1947).

(n380)Footnote 380. United States v. Certain Parcels of Land, 46 F. Supp. 441 (D. Md. 1942); O'steen v. O'steen, 85 So. 547 (Ala. 1920); Harvill v. Holloway, 24 Ark. 19 (1862); Tennison v. Carroll, 243 S.W.2d 944 (Ark. 1951); Ross v. Wilson, 58 Ga. 249 (1877); Napper v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 53 S.W. 28 (Ky. 1899); Cook v. Walker, 70 Me. 232 (1879); Rockwell v. Rockwell, 46 N.W. 8 (Mich. 1890); Lee v. Lindell, 22 Mo. 202 (1855); Whitney v. Whitney, 45 N.H. 311 (1864); Dudley v. Tyson, 82 S.E. 1025 (N.C. 1914); Smith v. Rymkus, 55 N.E.2d 676 (Ohio App. 1942), appeal dismissed by 52 N.E.2d 864 (Ohio 1943); Enyard v. Enyard, 42 A. 526 (Pa. 1899); Turner v. Turner, 39 S.E.2d 299 (Va. 1946); Feamster v. Feamster, 15 S.E.2d 159 (W. Va. 1941).

(n381)Footnote 381. Helmken v. Meyer, 75 S.E. 586 (Ga. 1912). No dower in joint tenancy. Laterza v. Murray, 117 N.E.2d 779 (Ill. 1954); Poulson v. Poulson, 70 A.2d 868 (Me. 1950); Turner v. Turner, 39 S.E.2d 299 (Va. 1946).

Abandonment, desertion, or refusal to support on part of surviving spouse as affecting marital rights in deceased spouse's estate.

(n382)Footnote 382. Roulston v. Hall, 50 S.W. 690 (Ark. 1899); Johnson v. Muntz, 4 N.E.2d 826 (Ill. 1936); Herzog v. Ross, 213 S.W.2d 921 (Mo. 1948); O'Grady v. Deery, 45 A.2d 295 (N.H. 1946); Love v. Roper, 93 S.E.2d 282 (Va. 1956).

No dower in joint tenancy. Laterza v. Murray, 117 N.E.2d 779 (Ill. 1954); Poulson v. Poulson, 70 A.2d 868 (Me. 1950); Turner v. Turner, 39 S.E.2d 299 (Va. 1946).

In Florida there is dower in a remainder interest. Creary v. Estate of Creary, 338 So. 2d 26 (Fla. App. 1976).

(n383)Footnote 383. Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. (15 Pet.) 21 (1841); Cockrill v. Armstrong, 31 Ark. 580 (1876); Murawski v. Murawski, 209 S.W.2d 262 (Mo. App. 1948) (no dower in land held as tenants by entirety, where husband and wife were later divorced, since the estate was not inheritable); Babbitt v. Day, 5 A. 275 (N.J. 1886).

(n384)Footnote 384. Davis v. Logan, 39 Ky. (9 Dana) 185 (1839); Holbrook v. Finney, 4 Mass. 566 (1808); Turner v. Turner, 39 S.E.2d 299 (Va. 1946) (dower when survivorship has been abolished in joint tenancy).

(n385)Footnote 385. Roulston v. Hall, 50 S.W. 690 (Ark. 1899); Hoeffner v. Hoeffner, 59 N.E.2d 684 (Ill. 1945).

(n386)Footnote 386. Gainer v. Gates, 34 N.W. 798 (Iowa 1887); Witherspoon v. Watts, 18 S.C. 396 (1882).

(n387)Footnote 387. Dunshee v. Dunshee, 104 N.E. 1100 (Ill. 1914).

(n388)Footnote 388. Henderson v. Green, 34 Iowa 437 (1872); In re Wishart, 267 N.Y.S. 391 (1933); Sandal's Appeal, 65 Pa. 314 (1870).

(n389)Footnote 389. Mercantile Trust Co. of Baltimore v. Schloss, 166 A. 599 (Md. 1933); Tehan v. Tehan, 31 N.Y.S. 961 (1894).

(n390)Footnote 390. Blackmon v. Blackmon, 16 Ala. 633 (1849); Contra, Culberson v. Culberson, 37 Ga. 296 (1867).

(n391)Footnote 391. In re Kreiser's Appeal, 69 Pa. 194 (1871).

(n392)Footnote 392. Flanagan v. Flanagan, 73 N.Y.S.2d 267 (1947), aff'd, 83 N.E.2d 473 (N.Y. 1948).

(n393)Footnote 393. Boorum v. Tucker, 26 A. 456, aff'd, 33 A. 50 (N.J. Sup. 1894); Elmendorf v. Lockwood, 57 N.Y. 322 (1874).

(n394)Footnote 394. McMahon v. Russell, 17 Fla. 698 (1880); French v. Lord, 69 Me. 537 (1879).

(n395)Footnote 395. Indiana. Whisler v. Hicks, 5 Blackf. (Ind.) 100 (1839); Trotter v. Lewis, 45 A.2d 329 (Md. 1946); Bahl v. Menger, 129 A. 459 (Pa. 1925); Ford v. Street, 106 S.E. 379 (Va. 1921).

(n396)Footnote 396. Brookings v. Cooper, 152 N.E. 243 (Mass. 1926); Feldman v. Lisansky, 145 N.E. 746 (N.Y. 1924).

(n397)Footnote 397. Reed v. Phillips, 83 S.W.2d 554 (Ark. 1935); Newman v. Dore, 9 N.E.2d 966 (N.Y. 1937); Holly Hill Lumber Co. v. McCoy, 26 S.E.2d 175 (S.C. 1943).

Dower of heir's widow is junior to debts of deceased ancestor of heir. Pfaff v. Heizman, 235 S.W.2d 551 (Ark. 1951).

Dower in cotenancy is subject to the paramount right of the cotenants to have partition. Lee v. Lindell, 22 Mo. 202 (1855); Weaver v. Gregg, 6 Ohio St. 547 (1856); Holley v. Glover, 15 S.E. 605 (S.C. 1892).

(n398)Footnote 398. See Chandler v. Hollingsworth, 3 Del. Ch. 99 (1867) (English rule).

(n399)Footnote 399. Arnegaard v. Arnegaard, 75 N.W. 797 (N.D. 1898); Ward v. Ward, 57 N.E. 1095 (Ohio 1900).

(n400)Footnote 400. Dunbar v. Dunbar, 9 N.E. 563 (Ill. 1887); Bookout v. Bookout, 49 N.E. 824 (Ind. 1898); Wallace v. Wallace, 114 N.W. 913 (Iowa 1908).

Wife may avoid transfers made by husband in contemplation of death, in fraud of her marital rights. But the wife cannot set aside completed gifts otherwise. Wahl v. Wahl, 206 S.W.2d 334 (Mo. 1947).

(n401)Footnote 401. Noah v. Noah, 224 N.W. 611 (Mich. 1929); Dudley v. Dudley, 45 N.W. 602 (Wis. 1890).

(n402)Footnote 402. See W. Lewis Roberts, Dower Rights Under Oil and Gas Leases, 13 Miss. L. J. 342 (1941).

Where the husband seven days before his marriage conveyed all of his property to his nephew, the conveyance was set aside in fraud of dower since (1) the conveyance was made without the wife's knowledge, (2) the consideration was inadequate, (3) the husband became penniless, (4) the wife believed she was marrying a man of means, (5) the husband reserved a life estate. Granger v. Granger, 296 N.W. 288 (Mich. 1941).

(n403)Footnote 403. 4 Kent's Comm. 401; Johnston v. Vandyke, 6 McLean 422, F. Cas. No. 7426 (1855) (courts have despaired of an attempt to properly define dower); Blackmon v. Blackmon, 16 Ala. 633 (1849) (dower could not be released prior to marriage); Culberson v. Culberson, 37 Ga. 296 (1867) (dower could be released prior to marriage); Wyman v. Oliver, 75 Me. 421 (1883) (dower in fishing privilege); Billings v. Taylor, 27 Mass. (10 Pick.) 460 (1830) (dower in limestone quarry); Coates v. Cheever, 1 Cow. (N.Y.) 460 (1823) (dower in iron ore beds).

Married woman could not contract with husband to release dower, In re Kreiser's Appeal, 69 Pa. 194 (1871), but can by estoppel, Hill v. Boland, 93 A. 395 (Md. 1915), or where wife accepted consideration in lieu of dower. Dakin v. Dakin, 56 N.W. 562 (Mich. 1893); In re Leggett's Estate, 32 N.Y.S.2d 921 (1941).

(n404)Footnote 404. Ward v. Ward, 145 F. 1023 (2d Cir. 1906), cert. denied, 206 U.S. 564 (1907); McGuire v. Cook, 135 S.W. 840 (Ark. 1911); Talty v. Talty, 40 App. D.C. 587 (1913); Potter v. Clapp, 68 N.E. 81 (Ill. 1903); Dixon v. Harris, 105 S.W. 451 (Ky. 1907); Williams v. Williams, 12 S.W. 760 (Ky. 1889) (widow has dower in land though husband has lost title by adverse possession where possession began after marriage); Goodrum's Guardian v. Kelsey, 50 S.W.2d 932 (Ky. 1932) (no dower in a future interest); McLeery v. McLeery, 65 Me. 172 (1876); Leavitt v. Lamprey, 30 Mass. (13 Pick.) 382 (1832); Orchard v. Wright-Dalton-Bell-Anchor Store Co., 125 S.W. 486 (Mo. 1909); Weaver v. Patterson, 111 A. 506 (N.J. 1920); Safford v. Safford, 7 Paige (N.Y.) 259 (1838); Redding v. Vogt, 53 S.E. 337 (N.C. 1906); Thomas v. Bunch, 73 S.E. 899 (N.C. 1912); Mays v. Mays, 42 N.E.2d 446 (Ohio 1942).

(n405)Footnote 405. Bell v. Killian, 53 So. 2d 604 (Ala. 1951); Compton v. Cook, 66 So. 2d 176 (Ala. 1953); Davis v. Davis, 243 S.W.2d 739 (Ark. 1951); Sammis v. Sammis, 51 A. 105 (R.I. 1902).

(n406)Footnote 406. Boyd v. Hunter, 44 Ala. 705 (1870); Sykes v. Sykes, 49 Miss. 190 (1873); Weir v. Tate, 39 N.C. 264 (1846).

(n407)Footnote 407. Field v. Tyner, 261 S.W. 35 (Ark. 1924); Sampson v. Sampson, 124 A. 708 (N.J. 1924).

So under a statute providing that if a deed were made in sole consideration of love and affection and the grantee died without issue the property should "revert" to the grantor, the wife of the grantee was entitled to her statutory one third in fee in lieu of dower. Mitchell v. Parkhurst, 17 Ind. 146 (1861).

(n408)Footnote 408. Goodrum v. Kelsey, 50 S.W.2d 932 (Ky. 1932).

(n409)Footnote 409. United Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Garrett, 64 F. Supp. 460 (W.D. Ark. 1946); McKinney v.

Caldwell, 250 S.W.2d 117 (Ark. 1952); Clark v. Hanson, 151 N.E. 369 (Ill. 1926).

Where during lifetime of husband, sovereign exercised right of eminent domain, wife was not entitled because of her inchoate dower, to have a portion of the land money paid to her directly or set aside for benefit until she survived her husband. Shelton v. Shelton, 83 S.E.2d 176 (S.C. 1954).

(n410)Footnote 410. Serkissian v. Newman, 96 So. 378 (Fla. 1923).

See William T. Swigert, Some Problems of Dower in Florida, 17 U. Fla. L. Rev. 368 (1969).

(n411)Footnote 411. Clark v. Hanson, 151 N.E. 369 (Ill. 1926).

(n412)Footnote 412. Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 162 S.W.2d 897 (Ark. 1942).

(n413)Footnote 413. Alabama Vermiculite Corp. v. Patterson, 149 F. Supp. 534 (W.D.S.C. 1955); Gray v. Whittemore, 78 N.E. 422 (Mass. 1906); Ware v. Washington, 14 Miss. (6 S. & M.) 737 (1846); Whitmire v. Wright, 22 S.C. 446 (1884).

(n414)Footnote 414. Goodwin v. Goodwin, 33 Conn. 314 (1866).

(n415)Footnote 415. Ralston Steel Car Co. v. Ralston, 147 N.E. 513 (Ohio St. 1925).

(n416)Footnote 416. Duncan v. Navassa Phosphate Co., 137 U.S. 647 (1891); Olsen v. Ortell, 59 N.W.2d 473 (Wis. 1953) (no dower in a tenancy by sufferance).

(n417)Footnote 417. Prall v. Prall, 166 S.W.2d 1028 (Ark. 1942); Baker v. Syfritt, 125 N.W. 998 (Iowa 1910); Thompson v. Vance, 58 Ky. (1 Met.) 669 (1858); Brady v. Brady, 165 S.W. 655 (Ky. 1914); Reeves v. Tomlin, 281 S.W. 522 (Ky. 1926); Bodkin v. Wright, 100 S.W.2d 824 (Ky. 1937); Harriot v. Harriot, 49 N.Y.S. 447 (1898); Gilmore v. Sellars, 59 S.E. 73 (N.C. 1907).

But dower may be expressly given to grantee's wife though instrument only gives grantee a life estate. Hutchison v. Board, 250 S.W.2d 82 (Tenn. 1952).

(n418)Footnote 418. Pope v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 161 A. 404 (Md. 1932).

(n419)Footnote 419. Jones v. Magruder, 42 F. Supp. 193 (D. Md. 1941).

(n420)Footnote 420. Brack v. Coburn, 196 S.W.2d 230 (Ark. 1946); Ralston Steel Car Co. v. Ralston, 147 N.E. 513 (Ohio 1825).

No dower in addition to homestead in the same realty. Shull v. Shull, 40 So. 2d 708 (Ala. 1949); Wilson v. Florida Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 64 So. 2d 309 (Fla. 1953).

(n421)Footnote 421. Williams v. Collier, 158 So. 815 (Fla. 1935).

(n422)Footnote 422. United States v. Certain Parcels of Land, 46 F. Supp. 441 (D. Md. 1942).

(n423)Footnote 423. Fletcher v. Felker, 97 F. Supp. 755 (W.D. Ark. 1951) (property acquired under a duty to immediately convey to another did not give rise to dower); Spears v. James, 29 N.W.2d 829 (Mich. 1947) (wife of a resulting trustee has no dower).

(n424)Footnote 424. Dreckshage v. Dreckshage, 176 S.W.2d 7 (Mo. 1943); Yeo v. Mercereau, 18 N.J.L. 387 (1842) (New Jersey gives dower in passive trusts only); In re Halpern's Estate, 100 N.E.2d 120 (N.Y. 1951) (in New York the transfer is not subject to dower if a real revocable and controlling trust); North v. North, 638 S.W.2d 711 (Ky. App. 1982) (holding that a widow was not entitled to husband's property where he and his ex-wife contracted to convey property to their children and that property was subject to a constructive trust).

(n425)Footnote 425. Lewis v. Belknap, 96 So. 2d 212 (Fla. 1957); Blades v. Norfolk Southern R. Co., 29 S.E.2d 148 (N.C. 1944).

(n426)Footnote 426. Detroit Trust Co. v. Baker, 203 N.W. 154 (Mich. 1925). See Gigliotto v. Albergo, 115 P.2d 791 (Utah 1941).

(n427)Footnote 427. Matlack v. Arend, 63 A.2d 812 (N.J. 1949).

(n428)Footnote 428. Frank v. Frank's, Inc., 87 A.2d 724 (N.J. 1952).

Holding that the widow was entitled to full dower in real estate acquired by husband prior to marriage and any mortgage thereon should be paid out of general assets of his estate. Bruns v. Lotz, 496 S.W.2d 376 (Ark. 1973).

(n429)Footnote 429. Buckeridge v. Ingram, 2 Ves. Jr. 652 (1952). But see Frank v. Frank's, Inc., 87 A.2d 724 (N.J. 1973) (refusing to allow dower in stock of corporation wholly owned by deceased husband and to which he had transferred realty to prevent satisfaction of judgment debt).

(n430)Footnote 430. Goddard v. Prentice, 17 Conn. 546 (1846); Pursifull's Adm'x. v. Pursifull, 184 S.W.2d 967 (Ky. 1944) (holding that wife was assigned dower in husband's interest in oil and gas corporation).

(n431)Footnote 431. Haynes v. Gwin, 209 S.W. 67 (Ark. 1919) (he being a mere trustee for creditors).

Contra, in a transfer to defraud creditors the widow who was not involved could claim her dower but the heirs could take nothing since their rights are derivative and successional. Pope v. Bain, 78 A.2d 820 (N.J. 1951). Stoxen v. Stoxen, 285 N.E.2d 198 (Ill. App. 1972) (holding that a widow can not claim dower in land trust created by the dead husband).

(n432)Footnote 432. DiFlorido v. DiFlorido, 331 A.2d 174 (Pa. 1975).

(n433)Footnote 433. Ind. Code, §324-1.15.

(n434)Footnote 434. Forte v. Caruso, 146 N.E.2d 501 (Mass. 1957).

(n435)Footnote 435. No dower where husband and wife have contracted to convey before the husband's death. In re Fischer's Estate, 126 N.W.2d 296 (Wis. 1964).

(n436)Footnote 436. Heisen v. Heisen, 34 N.E. 597 (Ill. 1893); Union Brew. Co. v. Meier, 45 N.E. 264 (Ill. 1896); Sears v. Sears, 121 Mass. 267 (1876); Rayner v. Lee, 20 Mich. 384 (1870); Aikman v. Harsell, 98 N.Y. 186 (1885); Sheppard v. Sykes, 44 S.E.2d 54 (N.C. 1947); Dahlhammer v. Schneider, 252 P.2d 807 (Or. 1953); Jones v. Hollopeter, 10 Pa. (Serg. & Rawle) 326 (1823); Lee v. Harris, 219 S.W.2d 892 (Tenn. 1949); Feder v. Flattau, 325 S.W.2d 555 (Tenn. 1959) (widow has no dower until there is an assignment); Lajoie v. Bellomy, 41 S.E.2d 349 (W. Va. 1947).

(n437)Footnote 437. Underground Elec. Rys. v. Owsley, 196 F. 278 (N.Y. 1912); Magruder v. Magruder, 141 F.2d 537 (D.C. Cir. 1944), cert. denied, 323 U.S. 711 (1944); Martin v. Evans, 50 So. 997 (Ala. 1909); Upshaw v. Upshaw, 60 So. 804 (Ala. 1912); Cone v. Barganier, 118 So. 342 (Ala. 1928); Burk v. Moore, 272 S.W. 38 (Ky. 1925); Munsey v. Hanly, 67 A. 217 (Me. 1907); Willoughby v. Brandes, 297 S.W. 54 (Mo. 1927); Mathews v. Marsden, 230 P. 775 (Mont. 1924); McLear v. Balmat, 186 N.Y.S. 180 (1921) aff'd, 132 N.E. 883 (N.Y. 1921); In re Stimpson's Will, 103 S.E.2d 352 (N.C. 1958); Smith v. Rymkus, 55 N.E.2d 676 (Ohio App. 1943), appeal dismissed, 52 N.E.2d 864 (Ohio 1943); Dailey v. Benn, 198 P. 323 (Okla. 1921); Najarian v. Boyajian, 136 A. 767 (R.I. 1927); Edwards v. Hawks, 222 S.W.2d 28

(Tenn. 1949).

Unassigned dower is a personal right similar to a chose in action. Burk v. Moore, 272 S.W. 38 (Ky. 1925); Mullan v. Bank of Pasco County, 133 So. 323 (Fla. 1931), and cannot be assigned. Pacific Bank v. Hannah, 90 F. 72 (9th Cir. 1898); Lewis v. King, 54 N.E. 330 (Ill. 1899); Hunt's Guardian v. Crawford Coal Co., 1 S.W.2d 955 (Ky. 1927); Love v. Ward, 5 S.E.2d 411 (W. Va. 1939).

Contra, per statute. Dobberstein v. Murphy, 66 N.W. 204 (Minn. 1896); Serry v. Curry, 42 N.W. 97 (Neb. 1889); Tucker v. Tucker, 45 S.W. 344 (Tenn. 1898).

(n438)Footnote 438. Martin v. Evans, 50 So. 997 (Ala. 1909); Dailey v. Benn, 198 P. 323 (Okla. 1921); Sunderland v. Girard, 109 A. 424 (R.I. 1920); First Nat'l Exch. Bank v. United States, 217 F. Supp. 604 (1963), aff'd, 335 F.2d 91 (4th Cir. 1964); Wilson v. Wilson, 356 S.E.2d 422 (S.C. Ct. App. 1987) (holding that dower is not an estate in land or interest).

(n439)Footnote 439. Upshaw v. Upshaw, 60 So. 804 (Ala. 1912); Sunderland v. Girard, 109 A. 424 (R.I. 1920).

(n440)Footnote 440. Johnson v. Johnson, 152 S.W. 1017 (Ark. 1912); Roe v. Doe ex dem. Moore, 93 A. 373 (Del. 1914).

(n441)Footnote 441. In re Maddux, 94 F. Supp. 134 (E.D. Tenn. 1949), aff'd, 185 F.2d 480 (6th Cir. 1950); Clelland v. Clelland, 235 S.W. 816 (Mo. 1921).

(n442)Footnote 442. Hamby v. Hamby, 51 So. 732 (Ala. 1910); Sheppard v. Sykes, 44 S.E.2d 54 (N.C. 1947).

(n443)Footnote 443. Grubbs v. Leyendecker, 53 N.E. 940 (Ind. 1899), and cases cited.

(n444)Footnote 444. Humphrey v. Gerard, 83 A. 210 (Conn. 1912); In re Johnson's Estate, 185 N.W. 180 (Wis. 1921).

(n445)Footnote 445. Barksdale v. Garrett, 64 Ala. 277 (1879); Moore v. Price, 123 So. 768 (Fla. 1929); Mullan v. Pasco County Bank, 133 So. 323 (Fla. 1931); Heisen v. Heisen, 34 N.E. 597 (Ill. 1893); Munsey v. Hanly, 67 A. 217 (Me. 1907); Harper v. Clayton, 35 A. 1083 (Md. 1896); Latta v. Brown, 34 S.W. 417 (Tenn. 1896).

Alabama permits dower to be assigned to certain tracts rather than to the entire real estate. Byars v. Mixon, 299 So. 2d 262 (Ala. 1974).

Upon assignment, dower becomes an estate for life and subject to alienation. Yarbro v. Easley, 525 S.W.2d 495 (Tenn. App. 1974).

(n446)Footnote 446. Evans v. Webb, 1 Yeates (Pa.) 424 (1795).

(n447)Footnote 447. North v. Puckett, 46 S.W.2d 73 (Tenn. 1932).

Dower may be alienated after the death of husband even prior to assignment. Love v. Ward, 5 S.E.2d 411 (W. Va. 1939).

(n448)Footnote 448. Smith v. Shaw, 22 N.E. 924 (Mass. 1889); State v. Wincroft, 76 N.C. 38 (1877).

In Alabama dower is not a property interest until assignment. United States v. Hiles, 318 F.2d 56 (5th Cir. 1963).

In Virginia unassigned dower is merely a right to sue to compel dower to be set aside. It is not a right in land. First Nat'l Exch. Bank v. United States, 217 F. Supp. 604 (W.D. Va. 1963), aff'd, 335 F.2d 91 (4th Cir. 1964); National Bank of Orange v. United States, 218 F. Supp. 907 (E.D. Va. 1963).

(n449)Footnote 449. McMahon v. Gray, 22 N.E. 923 (Mass. 1889).

(n450)Footnote 450. Huffman v. Huffman, 11 N.E.2d 271 (Ohio 1937).

(n451)Footnote 451. Feder v. Flattau, 325 S.W.2d 555 (Tenn. 1959).

(n452)Footnote 452. Weidler v. Floran, 13 N.E.2d 330 (Ind. App. 1938).

(n453)Footnote 453. Hays v. Lemoine, 47 So. 97 (Ala. 1908); Brinkley v. Taylor, 163 S.W. 521 (Ark. 1914); Roe v. Doe ex dem. Moore, 93 A. 373 (Del. 1914); Raulerson v. Peeples, 84 So. 370 (Fla. 1920); Lewis v. King, 54 N.E. 330 (Ill. 1899); Tillotson v. Foster, 141 N.E. 412 (Ill. 1923); Hunter v. Sanitary Dist. of Chicago, 179 Ill. App. 172 (1912); Munsey v. Hanly, 67 A. 217 (Me. 1907); Sell v. McAnaw, 39 S.W. 779 (Mo. 1897); Carey v. West, 40 S.W. 661 (Mo. 1897); Bell v. Golding, 136 N.Y.S. 278 (1912), aff'd, 105 N.E. 1081 (N.Y. 1914); Lincoln Trust Co. v. Hutchinson, 120 N.Y.S. 811 (1910); Fishel v. Browning, 58 S.E. 759 (N.C. 1907); North v. Puckett, 46 S.W.2d 73 (Tenn. 1932); Lee v. Harris, 219 S.W.2d 892 (Tenn. 1949); Russell v. Tennant, 60 S.E. 609 (W. Va. 1908).

(n454)Footnote 454. Wallace v. King, 170 S.W.2d 377 (Ark. 1943); Raulerson v. Peeples, 84 So. 370 (Fla. 1920); Oster v. Ohlman, 219 S.W. 187 (Ky. 1920); Russell v. Tennant, 60 S.E. 609 (W. Va. 1908); Bruten v. Miller, 101 A.2d 24 (N.J. Super. 1953) (holding that even though no dower assigned, widow was entitled to enjoy her husband's house until assignment made).

(n455)Footnote 455. Harley v. Harley, 122 N.W. 761 (Wis. 1909).

(n456)Footnote 456. Jordan v. Sheridan, 149 S.W. 1028 (Ky. 1912).

(n457)Footnote 457. Hart v. Burch, 22 N.E. 831 (Ill. 1889); Walker v. Rand, 22 N.E. 1006 (Ill. 1889); Hill v. Boland, 93 A. 395 (Md. 1915); Fuchs v. Christie, 74 A. 129 (N.J. 1909).

(n458)Footnote 458. Carnall v. Wilson, 21 Ark. 62 (1860); Hart v. Burch, 22 N.E. 831 (Ill. 1889); Fletcher v. Shepherd, 51 N.E. 212 (Ill. 1898); Preston v. Second Nat'l Bank, 63 S.W.2d 774 (Ky. 1933); Cox v. Jagger, 2 Cow. 638 (N.Y. 1824).

(n459)Footnote 459. Barnett v. Meacham, 35 S.W. 533 (Ark. 1896); Flowers v. Flowers, 106 S.W. 949 (Ark. 1907); Herr v. Herr, 58 N.W. 897 (Iowa 1894); McMahon v. Gray, 22 N.E. 923 (Mass. 1889).

(n460)Footnote 460. Unassigned dower may be alienated. Tucker v. Tucker, 45 S.W. 344 (Tenn. 1898) (by statute); Love v. Ward, 5 S.E.2d 411 (W. Va. 1939).

Contra, as to a stranger to the title. Pacific Bank v. Hannah, 90 F.72 (9th Cir. 1898); Lewis v. King, 54 N.E. 330 (Ill. 1899); Ritt v. Dodge, 37 A. 810 (R.I. 1897).

Treated as a valid contract to assign in equity. Wilson v. Roebuck, 60 So. 870 (Ala. 1913); Flowers v. Flowers, 106 S.W. 949 (Ark. 1907); Potter v. Everitt, 42 N.C. 152 (1850).

(n461)Footnote 461. Prichard v. Anderson, 278 N.W. 348 (Iowa 1938); Dobberstein v. Murphy, 66 N.W. 204 (Minn. 1896); Tucker v. Tucker, 45 S.W. 344 (Tenn. 1898). See Prichard v. Anderson, 278 N.W. 348 (Iowa 1938).

(n462)Footnote 462. Stephens v. Bowen, 96 So. 331 (Ala. 1923). But may be reached by the creditor through a bill in equity. Edwards v. Hawks, 222 S.W.2d 28 (Tenn. 1949).

(n463)Footnote 463. Stephens v. Bowen, 96 So. 331 (Ala. 1923); Raulerson v. Peeples, 84 So. 370 (Fla. 1920).

(n464)Footnote 464. Roe v. Doe ex dem. Moore, 93 A. 373 (Del. 1914).

(n465)Footnote 465. Decker v. Decker, 44 So. 2d 435 (Ala.1950) (may be released to heirs or terre tenant); North v. Puckett, 46 S.W.2d 73 (Tenn. 1932).

(n466)Footnote 466. Wilson v. Hilligoss, 278 Ill. App. 564 (1935).

(n467)Footnote 467. Lee v. Straughan, 226 S.W. 171 (Ark. 1920).

(n468)Footnote 468. Cassity v. Pound, 67 S.W. 283 (Mo. 1902); Phillips v. Presson, 72 S.W. 501 (Mo. 1903).

Conveyance of consummate but unassigned dower, see: Tandy v. Smith, 293 S.W. 735 (Ark. 1927); Raulerson v. Peeples, 84 So. 370 (Fla. 1920); Burk v. Moore, 272 S.W. 38 (Ky. 1925); Dennis v. Gorman, 233 S.W. 50 (Mo. 1921); C. M. Smith Bros. Land & Inv. Co. v. Phillips, 233 S.W. 413 (Mo. 1921); Clelland v. Clelland, 235 S.W. 816 (Mo. 1921); Thoms v. Bissinger Candy Co., 67 N.E.2d 734 (Ohio App. 1946); Dailey v. Benn, 198 P. 323 (Okla. 1921); Tuten v. Almeda Farms, 192 S.E. 153 (S.C. 1937); Love v. Ward, 5 S.E.2d 411 (W. Va. 1939).

(n469)Footnote 469. Penney v. Long, 197 S.W.2d 470 (Ark. 1946); Walker v. Ellis, 207 S.W.2d 39 (Ark. 1947).

(n470)Footnote 470. This, however, requires that the conveyance be just. Wilson v. Roebuck, 60 So. 870 (Ala. 1913); Flowers v. Flowers, 106 S.W. 949 (Ark. 1907); Potter v. Everitt, 42 N.C. 152 (1850).

(n471)Footnote 471. Mayer v. Reinecke, 130 F.2d 350 (7th Cir. 1942), cert. denied, 317 U.S. 684 (1942).

(n472)Footnote 472. Sanders v. McMillian, 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1892); Shupe v. Rainey, 100 A. 138 (Pa. 1917).

(n473)Footnote 473. Moore v. Price, 123 So. 768 (Fla. 1929). See Bonner v. Peterson, 44 Ill. 253 (1867), where the court questioned the power to give dower in bonds which were the proceeds of a condemnation action.

(n474)Footnote 474. In re Lingafelter, 181 F. 24 (6th Cir. 1910); Morton v. Noble, 31 N.E. 790 (Ill. 1892); Davenport v. Gwilliams, 31 N.E. 790 (Ind. 1892); Hill v. Boland, 93 A. 395 (Md. 1915); Flynn v. Flynn, 50 N.E. 650 (Mass. 1898); Jackson ex dem. Clowes v. Vanderheyden, 17 Johns 167 (N.Y. 1819); Malloney v. Horan, 49 N.Y. 111 (1872).

Wife may convey her inchoate dower to a party who has no interest in the land. Bush v. Piersol, 81 S.W. 1224 (Mo. 1904). Sunderland v. Girava, 109 A. 424 (R.I. 1920) (holding that widow has no right in husband's land with unassigned dower and can not convey the land since she has neither a title nor an estate).

(n475)Footnote 475. Lively v. Paschal, 35 Ga. 218 (1866); Pinkham v. Pinkham, 49 A. 48 (Me. 1901); Hill. v. Boland, 93 A. 395 (Md. 1915); In re Smith's Estate, 276 N.Y.S. 646 (1935).

(n476)Footnote 476. Bruce v. McCormick, 72 N.E.2d 333 (Ill. 1947) (dower consummate before perfected can be released but not assigned); White v. Graves (Mass. 1847); Stephenson v. Osborne, 41 Miss. 119 (1866); H. T. & C. Co. v. Whitehouse, 154 P. 950 (Utah 1916).

In New York dower is lost when the wife joins in a conveyance and does not reattach if the grantor later reacquires the property. Gilson v. Lambert, 132 N.Y.S.2d 524 (1954).

Wife may release dower to husband's vendee. Mass. Ann. Laws 1933, Ch. 189, §5.

Dower may be released without consideration. Legge v. Albert A. Legge Land Co., 276 So. 2d 208 (Fla. App. 1973). An easement on land may be conveyed without losing dower rights. In fact, a release of dower rights implies a fee simple conveyance, rather than an easement. Meadows v. Belknap, 483 S.E.2d 826 (W. Va. 1997) (holding that a wife can obtain the full use of, and a life estate in, all of her husband's real property when she relinquishes her inchoate dower right by joining him in conveying the property subject to the life estates); Elton Schmidt & Sons Farm Co. v. Kneib, 507 N.W.2d 305 (Neb. App. 1993) (holding that an easement does not invalidate dower rights and that an instrument which releases dower rights implies a fee simple conveyance, rather than an easement).

(n477)Footnote 477. Weidler v. Floran, 13 N.E.2d 330 (Ind. App. 1938).

Where the wife joined with her husband in a contract for sale of the husband's property, her relinquishment of dower was consideration for an agreement that the deferred purchase payments should be paid to the survivor. Leibee v. Leibee, 349 P.2d 486 (Or. 1960).

(n478)Footnote 478. O'Malley v. Yost, 186 F.2d 603 (8th Cir. 1951).

(n479)Footnote 479. Mirza v. Mirza, 64 N.E.2d 201 (Ill. App. 1945); Jagla v. Krysiewicz, 186 N.Y.S.2d 819 (1959) (annulment of the marriage for postnuptial insanity of the wife did not destroy dower).

See Henry T. Lowe, Transfers in Fraud of Marital Rights, 26 Mo. L. Rev. 1 (1961).

(n480)Footnote 480. Moyer v. Dunseith, 46 N.Y.S.2d 360 (1943).

(n481)Footnote 481. In re Leggett's Estate, 32 N.Y.S.2d 921 (1941).

(n482)Footnote 482. Seaton v. Seaton, 34 S.E.2d 236 (Va. 1945).

(n483)Footnote 483. Hopkins v. Magruder, 34 F. Supp. 381 (D. Md. 1940); Du Pont v. Wilmington Trust Co., 45 A.2d 510 (Del. 1946); Gove v. Cather, 23 Ill. 634 (1860); Wilkinson v. Getty, 13 Iowa 157 (1862); Grove v. Todd, 41 Md. 633 (1875); Thomas v. Hesse, 34 Mo. 13 (1863); Barnet v. Barnet, 15 Serg. & Rawle 72 (Pa. 1826); Witman v. Webner, 41 A.2d 686 (Pa. 1945); Gainey v. Anderson, 68 S.E. 888 (S.C. 1910); Lewis v. Apperson, 49 S.E. 978 (Va. 1905); Phillips v. Smith, 107 So. 841 (Ala. 1926); Commercial Bldg. Co. v. Parslow, 112 So. 378 (Fla. 1927); Mishawaka St. Joseph Loan & Trust Co. v. Neu, 196 N.E. 85 (Ind. 1935); Louisa County v. Grimm, 212 N.W. 324 (Iowa 1927); Moore v. Hudson, 240 S.W. 383 (Ky. 1922); Roth v. Roth, 125 A. 400 (Md. 1924); Watkins v. Minor, 183 N.W. 186 (Mich. 1921); Gluc v. Klein, 197 N.W. 691 (Mich. 1924); Jefferson Land Co v. Kannowski, 206 N.W. 351 (Mich. 1925); Schefrin v. Wilensky, 111 A. 660 (N.J. Ch. 1920), aff'd, 114 A. 927 (N.J. 1921); Stokes v. Stokes, 196 N.Y.S. 184 (1922) aff'd, 200 N.Y.S. 951 (1923); Western Carolina Power Co. v. Moses, 133 S.E. 5 (N.C. 1926); Goodman v. Goodman, 152 N.E. 200 (Ohio App. 1926); Western States Fin. Co. v. Ruff, 215 P. 501, 216 P. 1020 (Or. 1923); Guaranty & Loan Co. v. Ruff, 253 P. 536 (Or. 1927); Ex parte Clark, 118 S.E. 27 (S.C. 1923); Turner v. Washington Realty Co., 126 S.E. 137 (S.C. 1925); Gee v. Baum, 199 P. 680 (Utah 1921).

The former Florida requirement that contracts for sale of separate property of married woman or relinquishment of her dower required two witnesses, Stat., §708.07, was repealed by Laws 1970, ch. 70-4, §4.

(n484)Footnote 484. Slocomb v. Ray, 31 S.E. 829 (N.C. 1898).

(n485)Footnote 485. Fowler v. Chadima, 111 N.W. 808 (Iowa 1907); Harley v. Orvin, 14 S.E.2d 701 (S.C. 1941).

This separate examination of the wife dates back to the days of the fine. For a fine to be valid it was necessary that the wife be examined separately from the husband. Joshua Williams, Principles of The Law of Real Property 284. Kenelm, Edward Digby, An Introduction to The History of Real Property (5th Ed.), 404.

By an ordinance of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, a wife could consent to release of dower by separate instrument even after the husband's deed or mortgage had been executed without her joining, the consideration being the sale by the husband. Fowler v. Shearer, 7 Mass. 14 (1810).

In In re Hiley's Estate, 262 So. 2d 476 (Fla. App. 1972), where the spouses conveyed entireties property to the husband and the wife purported to waive her dower, the attempted waiver was void.

(n486)Footnote 486. Eslava v. Lepretre, 21 Ala. 504 (1852).

If the wife has not conveyed in accordance with the statute for waiver of dower, she takes dower in the property deeded by her husband and herself. Mills Adm'x v. Mills, 5 S.W.2d 458 (Mo. App. 1954).

Renunciation of dower held invalid where not made before a qualified notary public. Tuten v. Almeda Farms, 192 S.E. 153 (S.C. 1937).

Instruments affecting realty need not have the private examination of a married woman. N.C. Gen. Stat., §39-13.1.

(n487)Footnote 487. Whitener v. Whitener, 304 S.W.2d 260 (Ark. 1957) (wife could release only by valid deed). Continental Nat'l Bank v. Gustin, 297 N.W. 214 (Mich. 1941); Wronkow v. Oakley, 31 N.E. 521 (N.Y. 1892).

(n488)Footnote 488. Security Sav. Bank v. Smith, 62 P. 794 (Or. 1900).

(n489)Footnote 489. Huxley v. Security Trust Co., 33 A.2d 679 (Del. 1943); Bomar v. Wilkins, 151 S.E. 110 (S.C. 1930).

(n490)Footnote 490. In re McGlone's Will, 2 N.Y.S.2d 888 (1938).

(n491)Footnote 491. Eslava v. Lepretre, 21 Ala. 504 (1852).

(n492)Footnote 492. Edwards v. Edwards, 107 N.E. 847 (Ill. 1915). See Watson v. Watson, 174 S.E. 33 (S.C. 1934).

(n493)Footnote 493. In re Gish, 32 F.2d 322 (D. Ky. 1928); Trowbridge v. Sypher, 7 N.W. 567 (Iowa 1880); McClain v. McClain, 151 S.W. 926 (Ky. 1912); Burrall v. Hurd, 28 N.W. 731 (Mich. 1886); Hoy v. Varner, 42 S.E. 690 (Va. 1902); Poteet v. International Harvester Co., 149 S.E. 512 (Va. 1929).

Where the real estate is foreclosed by a mortgage which the widow had joined, the widow is a surety and becomes subrogated on death of the husband to the unsecured position of the mortgagee in the husband's remaining assets on his death. Brown v. McLean, 8 S.E.2d 807 (N.C. 1940).

(n494)Footnote 494. Oades v. Standard Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 241 N.W. 262 (Mich. 1932); Turner v. Washington Realty Co., 126 S.E. 137 (S.C. 1925); In re Reynold's Estate, 62 P.2d 270 (Utah 1936); Commercial Banking & Trust Co. v. Dudley, 86 S.E. 307 (W. Va. 1915).

(n495)Footnote 495. Creecy v. Pearce, 69 N.C. 67 (1873); Barnes v. Crawford, 160 S.E. 464 (N.C. 1931); Mandel v. McClave, 22 N.E. 290 (Ohio 1889).

(n496)Footnote 496. Coke on Littleton, §§32a, 36. Thompson v. Morrow, 5 Serg. & Rawle 289 (Pa. 1819); Bridgeford v. Groh, 160 A. 451 (Pa. 1819).

(n497)Footnote 497. Sanders v. McMillian, 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1932); McClanahan v. Porter, 10 Mo. 746 (1892); Butler v. Fitzgerald, 61 N.W. 640 (Neb. 1895).

(n498)Footnote 498. Green v. Estabrook, 79 N.E. 373, 120 Am. St. 349 (Ind. 1906); Haynes v. Rolstin, 145 N.W. 336 (Iowa 1914) (in Iowa the wife is entitled to set off her one-third dower interest free from purchase money indebtedness provided the rest of the estate is sufficient to pay the mortgage debt); Mandel v. McClave, 22 N.E. 290 (Ohio 1889); In re Reynold's Estate, 62 P.2d 270 (Utah 1936).

(n499)Footnote 499. In Caylor's Estate, 227 N.W. 103 (Iowa 1929); VanVeen v. VanVeen, 236 N.W. 1, 238 N.W. 718 (Iowa 1931).

(n500)Footnote 500. Bissell v. Bissell, 94 N.W. 465 (Iowa 1903).

(n501)Footnote 501. Green v. Estabrook, 79 N.E. 373 (Ind. 1906); Mishawaka St. Joseph Loan & Trust Co. v. Neu, 196 N.E. 85 (Ind. 1935); John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Stowe, 245 N.W. 295 (Iowa 1932); Popkin v. Bumstead, 8 Mass. 491 (1812); Jones v. Bragg, 33 Mo. 337 (1863); Hawley v. Bradford, 9 Paige (N.Y.) 200 (1841); Mandel v. McClave, 22 N.E. 290 (Ohio 1889); Miller v. Farmers Bank, 27 S.E. 514 (S.C. 1897); Commercial Banking & Trust Co. v. Dudley, 86 S.E. 307 (W. Va. 1915); Gantt v. Jones, 272 F. 117 (4th Cir. 1832); Louisa County v. Grimm, 212 N.W. 324 (Iowa 1927); Nelson v. Dunn, 284 S.W. 1084 (Ky. 1926); Rosen v. Booth, 194 N.W. 976 (Mich. 1923); Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. v. Walston, 123 S.E. 196 (N.C. 1924); Brown v. Jennings, 124 S.E. 150 (N.C. 1924); Ex parte Clark, 118 S.E. 27 (S.C. 1923); Turner v. Washington Realty Co., 126 S.E. 137 (S.C. 1925); Stanton v. Boatright, 302 S.W.2d 347 (Tenn. 1957).

(n502)Footnote 502. Johnson v. Smith, 67 So. 401 (Ala. 1914); Union Nat'l Bank v. McConaha, 42 N.E. 495 (Ind. App. 1895); Kerse v. Miller, 147 N.E. 504 (Mass. 1897); Fitcher v. Griffiths, 103 N.E. 471 (Mass.); Roberts v. Meighen, 77 N.W. 139 (Minn. 1898); Smith v. Hall, 30 A. 409 (N.H. 1892); Merselis v. Van Riper, 38 A. 196 (N.J. 1897); Mackenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 90 N.Y.S. 493 (1904), aff'd as modified, 77 N.E. 721 (N.Y. 1906); McArthur v. Franklin, 16 Ohio St. 193 (1865); Commercial Banking & Trust Co. v. Dudley, 86 S.E. 307 (W. Va. 1915); Phelan v. Fitzpatrick, 54 N.W. 614 (Wis. 1893); Trenholm v. Wilson, 13 S.C. 174 (1880).

But see Gantt v. Jones, 272 F. 117 (4th Cir. S.C. 1932), holding that under the laws of South Carolina, a wife, renouncing dower on a mortgage executed by the husband, has no right of dower, either in the land or in the surplus proceeds of a sale to satisfy the mortgage.

(n503)Footnote 503. Barr v. Vanalstine, 22 N.E. 965 (Ind. 1889); Mills v. Van Voorhies, 20 N.Y. 412, 10 Abb. Pr. 152 (1859); McKenna v. Fidelity Trust Co., 77 N.E. 721 (N.Y. 1906).

(n504)Footnote 504. Hewitt v. Cox, 15 S.W. 1026, modified on rehearing, 17 S.W. 873 (Ark. 1891); Holden v. Dunn, 33 N.E. 413 (Ill. 1893); Leary v. Shaffer, 79 Ind. 567 (1881); Pickett v. Buckner, Newman & Co., 45 Miss. 226 (1871); Bitzenburg v. Bitzenburg, 226 S.W.2d 1017 (Mo. 1950) (where husband fraudulently induced his wife to sign a note and mortgage to his sister, the wife could set them aside); Hinchman v. Stiles, 9 N.J. Eq. 454 (1853); Matthews v. Duryee, 45 Barb. 69, 17 Abb. Pr. 256 (N.Y. 1865); Unger v. Leiter, 32 Ohio St. 210 (1877); Tibbetts v. Langley Mfg. Co., 12 S.C. 465 (1879); Poteet v. International Harvester Co., 149 S.E. 512 (Va. 1929).

(n505)Footnote 505. Oades v. Standard Sav. & Loan Ass'n, 241 N.W. 262 (Mich. 1932).

(n506)Footnote 506. Harris v. Mosley, 111 S.W.2d 563 (Ark. 1937).

(n507)Footnote 507. Owens v. Owens, 146 S.W.2d 569 (Mo. 1940).

(n508)Footnote 508. Cox v. Wells, 7 Blackf. 410, 43 Am. Dec. 98 (Ind. 1845); Beverly v. Waller, 74 S.W. 264 (Ky. 1903); Hackney v. Smith, 273 S.W. 476 (Ky. 1925); Stevens v. Owen, 25 Me. 94 (1845); Lothrop v. Foster, 51 Me. 367 (1863); Catlin v. Ware, 9 Mass. 218 (1812); Lufkin v. Curtis, 13 Mass. 223 (1816); Leavitt v. Lamprey, 30 Mass. (13 Pick.) 382 (1832); Learned v. Cutler, 35 Mass. (18 Pick.) 9 (1836); McFarland v. Febiger, 7 Ohio 194 (1835).

(n509)Footnote 509. Clark v. Chapman, 239 N.W. 797 (Iowa 1931); Davis v. Jenkins, 20 S.W. 283 (Ky. 1892); Burge v. Smith, 27 N.H. 332 (1853).

(n510)Footnote 510. Stevens v. Owen, 25 Me. 94 (1845).

(n511)Footnote 511. Davis v. Jenkins, 20 S.W. 283 (Ky. 1892).

(n512)Footnote 512. Smith v. Carmody, 137 Mass. 126 (1884); Stone v. Montgomery, 35 Miss. 83 (1854).

(n513)Footnote 513. In re Madsen's Estate, 259 P.2d 595 (Utah 1953).

(n514)Footnote 514. Crawfordsville Trust Co. v. Ramsey, 100 N.E. 1049, 102 N.E. 282 (Ind. App. 1913).

(n515)Footnote 515. In re Halpern's Estate, 100 N.E.2d 120 (N.Y. 1951); Gillette v. Madden, 112 N.Y.S.2d 543 (1952); see MacGregor v. Fox, N.Y.S.2d 286, aff'd, 111 N.E.2d 445 (N.Y. 1953); In re Pengelly's Estate, 97 A.2d 844 (Pa. 1953).

(n516)Footnote 516. Ind. Stat. Ann., §6-306; New York Decedent Estate Law, §18. Dill v. Widman, 109 N.E.2d 765 (Ill. 1952); In re Gustsson's Estate, 250 P.2d 837 (Kan. 1952); In re Sturmer's Estate, 100 N.E.2d 155 (N.Y. 1951).

Contra, Corgey v. McConnell, 260 S.W.2d 99, aff'd, 262 S.W.2d 944 (Tex. Civ. App. 1953).

(n517)Footnote 517. In re Hadsell's Estate, 260 P.2d 1021 (Cal. App. 1953); In re Deffner's Estate, 119 N.Y.S.2d 443, aff'd, 113 N.E.2d 300 (N.Y. 1953).

(n518)Footnote 518. Ind. Stat. Ann., §6-213; New Jersey Laws, ch. 352.

(n519)Footnote 519. In re Giacomelos' Estate, 13 Cal. Rptr. 245 (1961) (widow received income from award for life, not pro rata share of the award); Haggerty v. Wagner, 48 N.E. 366 (Ind. 1897); Weidler v. Floran, 18 N.E.2d 330 (Ind. App. 1938); Caldwell v. Ottumwa, 200 N.W. 336 (Iowa 1924); French v. Lord, 69 Me. 537 (1879); Venable v. Wabash Western R.R., 20 S.W. 493 (Mo. 1892); Moore v. New York, 8 N.Y. 110 (1853); In re Cropsey Ave., 197 N.E. 189 (N.Y. 1935); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919); Shelton v. Shelton, 83 S.E.2d 176 (S.C. 1954).

Share of condemnation proceedings to the wife. Vreeland v. Jacobus, 19 N.J. Eq. 231 (1868); New York & Brooklyn Bridge, 27 N.Y.S. 597, aff'd, 37 N.E. 823 (N.Y. 1894).

(n520)Footnote 520. Flynn v. Flynn, 50 N.E. 650 (Mass. 1898); Moore v. New York, 8 N.Y. 110, 59 Am. Dec. 473 (1853); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919); Shelton v. Shelton, 83 S.E.2d 176 (S.C. 1954). Dal Brun v. West Palm Beach, 227 So. 2d 347 (Fla. App. 1969) (holding that wife had no interest or right to any part of compensations paid to husband after land condemned under eminent domain).

(n521)Footnote 521. Duncan v. Terre Haute, 85 Ind. 104 (1909); Benton v. St. Louis, 118 S.W. 418 (Mo. 1909); Gwynne v. Cincinnati, 30 Ohio 24.

A dedication for a quasi public purpose barred the wife's dower. Venable v. Wabash W. R. Co., 20 S.W. 493 (Mo. 1892); Baker v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., 30 S.W. 301 (Mo. 1894). But a different view is taken in Nye v. Taunton Branch R. Co., 113 Mass. 277 (1873).

(n522)Footnote 522. McAllister v. Dexter & P.R. Co., 76 A. 891 (Me. 1910).

(n523)Footnote 523. In re Cropsey Ave., 197 N.E. 189 (N.Y. 1935).

"The doctrine is firmly established ... that the inchoate right of dower is suspended, or extinguished, > in lands appropriated, according to the forms of law, to the uses of the public... And it makes no difference whether the public use arises by prescription, by dedication through a deed or acts in pais coupled with acceptance, by condemnation, or by a simple conveyance followed by an actual appropriation to such use... Where a fee in land is authorized to be taken, and is taken, under the power of eminent domain, the inchoate right of dower, therein, if a N.Y., is extinguished. Where merely an easement is taken, it ought to be held, on principle, that such right of dower is not abrogated but merely suspended during the period ob the servitude. And where a municipal or public service corporation secures a fee by deed, when under its charter it could acquire by condemnation only an easement, a right of inchoate dower in the land should not be a N.Y. more adversely affected thereby than had the use only been taken under the power of eminent domain. This, because the right of dower yields only to the extent necessary for the full exercise of the paramount public right; and the extent to which a given public use requires the extinguishment of an owner's title, and private rights incident thereto, is solely for the legislature to determine and its intention in that respect is to be deduced from the act authorizing condemnation."

Harris v. Kansas City, 239 S.W. 1077 (Mo. 1922).

(n524)Footnote 524. Duncan v. Terre Haute, 85 Ind. 104 (1882); French v. Lord, 69 Me. 537 (1879); Flynn v. Flynn, 50 N.E. 650 (Mass. 1898); Venable v. Wabash W. R. Co., 20 S.W. 493 (Mo. 1892); Baker v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co., 30 S.W. 301 (Mo. 1894); Summers v. Sullivan, 101 P. 166 (Mont. 1909); Gwynne v. Cincinnati, 30 Ohio 24; Justis v. Georgia Indus. Realty Co., 63 S.E. 1084 (Va. 1909).

Dower was destroyed by eminent domain. Dal Brun v. City of West Palm Beach, 227 So. 2d 347 (Fla. App. 1969).

(n525)Footnote 525. Haggerty v. Wagner, 48 N.E. 366 (Ind. 1897).

(n526)Footnote 526. In re Cropsey Ave., 197 N.E. 189 (N.Y. 1935). In Illinois a widow's share in real property may be assigned in one or more tracts rather than in all tracts. Westergard v. Klepper, 229 N.W.2d 286 (Iowa 1975).

In Tennessee, property cannot be partitioned so as to require the widow to accept real estate in lieu of dower. Cripps v. Cripps, 302 S.W.2d 340 (Tenn. 1957).

(n527)Footnote 527. Hopper v. Hopper, 190 A. 841 (Md. 1937).

(n528)Footnote 528. Humphreys v. McKnight, 152 S.W.2d 567 (Ark. 1941); Haggerty v. Wagner, 48 N.E. 366 (Ind. 1897); Shell v. Duncan, 10 S.E. 330 (S.C. 1889); Miller v. Farmers Bank, 27 S.E. 514 (S.C. 1889) See the following cases: Pingree v. De Haven, 105 So. 147 (Fla. 1925); Sullivan State Bank v. First Nat'l Bank, 146 N.E. 403 (Ind. App. 1925); Fulton v. Studabaker Bank, 151 N.E. 106 (Ind. App. 1926); Lientz v. Schotte, 243 S.W. 890 (Mo. 1922); Briegel v. Briegel, 160 A. 581 (Pa. 1931); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916); Harmon v. Peery, 119 S.E. 126, 134 S.E. 701 (Va. 1923).

A widow is entitled to have the proceeds of other assets of the estate applied against mortgage and tax liens on the homestead. In re Tucker's Estate, 85 P.2d 1025 (Or. 1938).

(n529)Footnote 529. Davis v. Lang, 38 N.E. 635 (Ill. 1894); Haggerty v. Wagner, 48 N.E. 366 (Ind. 1897); Coombs v. Coombs, 113 A. 20 (Me. 1921); Mitchell v. Farrish, 14 A. 712 (Md. 1888); Hinds v. Stevens, 45 Mo. 209 (1870); Weaver v. Gregg, 6 Ohio St. 547 (1856); Holley v. Glover, 15 S.E. 605 (S.C. 1892).

Partition sales, see Devlin v. Esher, 280 F. 1004 (D.C. 1922); Dure v. Sharpe, 114 A. 207 (Del. 1910); Cole v. Cole, 126 N.E. 752 (Ill. 1920); Youngs v. Goodman, 150 N.E. 533 (N.Y. 1925); Priest v. Williamson County Banking & Trust

Co., 251 S.W. 904 (Tenn. 1923). Youngelson v. Youngelson's Estate, 114 So. 2d 642 (Fla. App. 1959) (holding that a widow was not entitled to dower where she entered into agreement with creditors to release her right of dower in exchange for cash).

(n530)Footnote 530. Owen v. Slatter, 26 Ala. 547 (1855); Deepwater Black Creek Coal Co. v. Long, 139 So. 236 (Ala. 1932); Sutton v. Ford, 87 S.E. 799 (Ga. 1916); Verry v. Robinson, 25 Ind. 14 (1864); Moomey v. Maas, 22 Iowa 380, 92 Am. Dec. 395 (1867); Lucas v. Whitacre, 96 N.W. 776 (Iowa 1903); Trotter v. Lewis, 45 A.2d 329 (Md. 1946); Dayton v. Corser, 53 N.W. 717 (Minn. 1892); Butler v. Fitzgerald, 61 N.W. 640 (Neb. 1895); Rook v. Horton, 129 S.E. 450 (N.C. 1925) (wife not being entitled to possession or even to defend her inchoate dower during husband's lifetime); Winters v. DeTurk, 19 A. 354 (Pa. 1890); Cales v. Ford, 28 S.E.2d 429 (W. Va. 1943).

(n531)Footnote 531. Robinson v. Allison, 27 So. 461 (Ala. 1900); Callahan v. Nelson, 29 So. 555 (Ala. 1900); Mohr v. Sibthorp, 69 N.E.2d 487 (Ill. 1946); Walters v. Anderson, 361 S.W.2d 31 (Ky. 1962); Brune v. Rathbun, 204 S.W.2d 705 (Mo. 1947); Lynde v. Wakefield, 47 P. 5 (Mont. 1896); Butler v. Fitzgerald, 61 N.W. 640 (Neb. 1895).

Contra, execution sale extinguishes dower. In re Hester's Estate, 28 So. 2d 164 (Fla. 1946).

(n532)Footnote 532. Little v. Mundell, 109 N.E. 227 (Ind. App. 1915).

(n533)Footnote 533. Roan v. Holmes, 13 So. 339 (Fla. 1893).

(n534)Footnote 534. Whiteaker v. Belt, 36 P. 534 (Or. 1894).

In Tennessee the widow's interest may be sold without her consent at the request of the remainderman. Cripps v. Cripps, 302 S.W.2d 340 (Tenn. 1957).

(n535)Footnote 535. Holly Hill Lbr. Co. v. McCoy, 26 S.E.2d 175 (S.C. 1943).

(n536)Footnote 536. Dundas v. Hitchcock, 53 U.S. (12 How.) 256 (1851); Walls v. Phillips, 162 S.W.2d 59 (Ark. 1942); Dillard v. Kelley, 171 S.W.2d 53 (Ark. 1943); Adams v. Storey, 26 N.E. 582 (Ill. 1890); Heisen v. Heisen, 34 N.E. 597 (Ill. 1893); Moore v. Hudson, 240 S.W. 383 (Ky. 1922); Wilson v. Wills, 101 A. 694 (Md. 1917); Rosen v. Tackett, 193 N.W. 192 (Mich. 1923); Stephens v. George M. Craigen Co., 192 N.Y.S. 555 (1921); Waggoner v. Waggoner, 97 S.E.2d 887 (N.C. 1957); Krueger v. Groth, 209 N.W. 772 (Wis. 1926); Hainz v. Kurth, 278 N.W. 413 (Wis. 1938).

(n537)Footnote 537. Huxley v. Security Trust Co., 33 A.2d 679 (Del. 1943); Syck v. Hellier, 131 S.W. 30 (Ky. 1910); Morgan v. Sparks, 108 S.W. 233 (Ky. 1908); H.W. Wright Lbr. Co. v. McCord, 128 N.W. 873 (Wis. 1910).

(n538)Footnote 538. Redwine v. Redwine, 169 S.W. 864 (Ky. 1914); Gainey v. Anderson, 68 S.E. 888 (S.C. 1910); Lewis v. Apperson, 49 S.E. 978 (Va. 1905).

(n539)Footnote 539. Pippin v. Sams, 177 S.E. 659 (S.C. 1934).

(n540)Footnote 540. Redwine v. Redwine, 169 S.W. 864 (Ky. 1914).

(n541)Footnote 541. Myrick v. Hembree, 123 S.W. 668 (Ky. 1909).

(n542)Footnote 542. United States v. Ettelson, 67 F. Supp. 257 (E.D. Wis. 1946), rev'd, 159 F.2d 193 (7th Cir. 1947); People ex rel. McColgan v. Palmer, 41 N.Y.S. 760 (1896).

(n543)Footnote 543. Hart v. Parrish, 244 S.W.2d 105 (Mo. 1951); New Hanover County v. Holmes, 73 S.E.2d 480 (N.C. 1952).

(n544)Footnote 544. Franceschi v. Franceschi, 62 N.E.2d 1 (Ill. App. 1945).

(n545)Footnote 545. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 281 S.W. 391 (Ark. 1926); Fisher v. Leach, 258 P. 295 cert. denied, 276 U.S. 618 (Kan. 1928); Grantham v. Kennedy, 91 N.C. 148 (1884); Julier v. Julier, 56 N.E. 661 (Ohio 1900).

(n546)Footnote 546. Appeal of Bigham, 16 A. 613 (Pa. 1889).

(n547)Footnote 547. Cromwell v. Sac, 94 U.S. 351 (1876); Beverly v. Waller, 74 S.W. 264 (Ky. 1903); Motley v. Motley, 73 N.W. 738 (Neb. 1898); Walker v. Hall, 15 Ohio St. 355 (1864); Huntzicker v. Crocker, 115 N.W. 340 (Wis. 1908).

(n548)Footnote 548. McCreery v. Davis, 22 S.E. 178 (S.C. 1895).

(n549)Footnote 549. Starbuck v. Starbuck, 66 N.E. 193 (N.Y. 1903).

(n550)Footnote 550. Wanta v. Perszyk, 240 N.W. 183, 241 N.W. 377 (Wis. 1932).

In Colorado the husband can transfer his property even though it has the effect of disinheriting the wife if the transaction is bona fide not merely colorable. Estate of Barnhart, 563 P.2d 972 (Colo. App. 1977), aff'd, 574 P.2d 560 (Colo. 1978).

(n551)Footnote 551. Dillard v. Kelley, 171 S.W.2d 53 (Ark. 1943).

(n552)Footnote 552. Manatt v. Griffith, 124 N.W. 753 (Iowa 1910).

(n553)Footnote 553. Dowling v. DeWitt, 81 S.E. 173 (S.C. 1914).

(n554)Footnote 554. Inman v. Coburn, 249 S.W.2d 816 (Ky. 1952).

In Louisiana the widow is entitled to the usufruct over the property inherited by the children of the marriage whenever the testator has not disposed of the property adversely to the marriage. Winsberg v. Winsberg, 96 So. 2d 44 (La. 1957).

(n555)Footnote 555. Reilly v. Cullinane, 287 F. 994 (D.C. Cir. 1923); Williams v. Owens, 143 So. 2d 633 (Ala. 1962); Stein v. McKinney, 144 N.E. 795 (Ill. 1924); Venator v. Swenson, 69 N.W. 522 (Iowa 1896); Butler v. Butler, 132 N.W. 63 (Iowa 1911); Henderson v. Perkins, 21 S.W. 1035 (Ky. 1893); Solomon v. Shewitz, 152 N.W. 196 (Mich. 1915); 3 A.L.R. 557; Stromme v. Rieck, 119 N.W. 948 (Minn. 1909); McCormick v. Stephany, 41 A. 840 (N.J. 1898); Maas v. Morgenthaler, 120 N.Y.S. 1004 (1910); Woolsey v. Draper, 201 P. 730, 203 P. 582 (Or. 1922); Schwoerdfeger v. Kelly, 72 A. 1056 (Pa. 1909); Stenson v. Elfmann, 135 N.W. 694 (S.D. 1912); Kelsey v. Crowther, 27 P. 695 (Utah 1891), aff'd, 162 U.S. 404 (1896); Haden v. Falls, 80 S.E. 576 (Va. 1914). See Gerald W. Pierce, The Protection of the Surviving Spouse Against Disinheritance -- A Search for Georgia Reform, 9 Ga. L. Rev. 946 (1975).

(n556)Footnote 556. Lucas v. Whitacre, 96 N.W. 776 (Iowa 1903); Williams v. Williams, 12 S.W. 760 (Ky. 1889). Boling v. Clark, 50 N.W. 57 (Iowa 1891) (holding that adverse possession does not bar a widow's right of dower).

(n557)Footnote 557. In re Hester's Estate, 28 So. 2d 164 (Fla. 1946), overruling in effect Pingree v. De Haven, 105 So. 147 (Fla. 1925); Putney v. Vinton, 108 N.W. 655 (Mich. 1906); Cummings v. Schreur, 214 N.W. 199 (Mich. 1927); Rook v. Horton, 129 S.E. 450 (N.C. 1925); Culler v. Motzer, 13 Serg. & Rawle 356, 15 Am. Dec. 604 (Pa. 1925); Winters v. DeTurk, 19 A. 354 (Pa. 1890).

(n558)Footnote 558. Gay v. J. Exum & Co., 67 S.E.2d 290 (N.C. 1951).

(n559)Footnote 559. Taylor v. Lawrence, 36 N.E. 74 (Ill. 1894); Williams v. Williams, 12 S.W. 760 (Ky. 1889); 11 Ky. L.J. 608, 6 L.R.A. 637.

(n560)Footnote 560. Brown v. Morisey, 32 S.E. 687 (N.C. 1899).

(n561)Footnote 561. Thompson v. McCorkle, 34 N.E. 813 (Ind. 1893); Wilson v. Wills, 101 A. 694 (Md. 1917); Joplin Brewing Co. v. Payne, 94 S.W. 896 (Mo. 1986).

(n562)Footnote 562. Barksdale v. Garrett, 64 Ala. 277 (1879); Barnard v. Edwards, 4 N.H. 107 (1827).

(n563)Footnote 563. Brady v. Paine, 63 N.E.2d 721 (Ill. 1945).

(n564)Footnote 564. Contra, wife must be made party in partition. Greiner v. Klein, 28 Mich. 12 (1873).

(n565)Footnote 565. Under the New York law one who purchases from the husband by deed or at execution or judicial sale may by court action have the dower right valued and on payment of the value to the wife have it extinguished. New York Real Property Law, §190a, and see §1927.

(n566)Footnote 566. United States ex rel. Tennessee Valley Auth. v. Spiceland, 52 F. Supp. 40 (D. Ky. 1943); Wheeler v. Kirtland, 27 N.J. Eq. 534 (1875) (equity will protect this interest as against the husband); In re Cropsey Ave., 197 N.E. 189 (N.Y. 1935) (wife has dower in proceeds of condemnation action).

No dower in proceeds of condemnation. Flynn v. Flynn, 50 N.E. 650 (Mass. 1898); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919); 5 A.L.R. 1343, noted in 19 Colum. L. Rev. 492; Briegel v. Briegel, 160 A. 581, noted in 80 U. Pa. L. Rev. 799 (Pa. 1931); Salvatore v. Fuscellaro, 166 A. 26 (R.I. 1933) Cf. French v. Lord, 69 Me. 537 (1879); Borough of York v. Welsh, 11 A. 390 (Pa. 1887). See Benton v. St. Louis, 118 S.W. 418 (Mo. 1909); Harris v. Kansas City, 239 S.W. 1077 (Mo. 1922); Griswold v. McGee, 112 N.W. 1020, 113 N.W. 382 (Minn. 1907).

In Duncan v. Terre Haute, 85 Ind. 104 (1882), a donation of land by a husband to a municipal corporation for use as a street was held to have barred the wife's inchoate dower.

(n567)Footnote 567. "Since the law gives the wife only an expectant interest in the property of her husband which becomes part of his estate, and since the law does not restrict transfers of property by the husband during his life, it would seem that the only sound test of the validity of a challenged transfer is whether it is real or illusory... The test has been formulated in different ways, but in most jurisdictions the test applied is essentially the test of whether the husband has in good faith divested himself of ownership of his property or has made an illusory transfer." Newman v. Dore, 9 N.E.2d 966 (N.Y. 1937).

In Indiana a married man may encumber or contract or deed realty which he owns without his wife joining. And such a conveyance bars the wife's marital interest. Ind. Code 29-1-2-3.1.

In Illinois either spouse may dispose of his property, both real or personal, so as to deprive the other spouse of possible inheritance unless the transaction is sham, illusory or can amount to a fraud. Mertes v. Lincoln Park Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass'n of Chicago, 340 N.E.2d 25 (Ill. App. 1974).

In Colorado a husband can convey good title without the wife's consent. Estate of Barnhart, 563 P.2d 972 (Colo. App. 1977), aff'd, 574 P.2d 500 (Colo. 1978).

Individual property may be conveyed by the spouse so as to cut off dower or curtesy. Mont. Rev. Code 1947, §36-111.

(n568)Footnote 568. See in general: Carpenter v. Carpenter 93 F. Supp. 225 (S.D. Fla. 1950); Dawson v. Mays, 252 S.W. 33 (Ark. 1923); Biddle v. Biddle, 177 S.W.2d 32 (Ark. 1944); Busch v. Busch, 68 So. 2d 350 (Fla. 1953); Knapp v. Knapp, 135 N.E. 732 (Ill. 1922); Hayes v. Miniter, 139 N.E. 74 (Ill. 1923); Seuss v. Schukat, 192 N.E. 668 (Ill.

1934); Franceschi v. Franceschi, 62 N.E.2d 1 (Ill. App. 1945); Nissen v. Nissen Trampoline Co., 39 N.W.2d 92 (Iowa 1949); Fischer v. Leach, 258 P. 295 (Kan. 1927), cert. denied, 276 U.S. 618 (1928); Sapp v. Sapp, 193 S.W.2d 443 (Ky. 1946); Rollins v. Gould, 138 N.E. 815 (Mass. 1923); Larsen v. Erickson, 222 Minn. 363 (1946); Arnold v. Arnold, 222 S.W. 996 (Mo. 1920); Block v. P. & G. Realty Co., 124 A. 372 (N.J. 1924); Peff v. Peff, 67 A.2d 161 (N.J. 1949); Ruckert v. Lasher, 205 N.Y.S. 552 (1924); Monroe County Sav. Bank v. Yeoman, 195 N.Y.S. 531 (1922); Brown v. O'Barn. 199 N.Y.S. 824 (1923); Western States Fin. Co. v. Ruff, 215 P. 501, 216 P. 1020 (Or. 1923); Guaranty & Loan Co. v. Ruff, 253 P. 536 (Or. 1927); Brown v. Brown, 138 A. 179 (R.I. 1927); Dawson v. Della Tore, 108 S.E. 101 (S.C. 1921); Shirley v. Parris, 113 S.E. 788 (S.C. 1922).

(n569)Footnote 569. Adair v. Adair, 62 So. 2d 437 (Ala. 1952); Drake v. Drake, 80 So. 2d 268 (Ala. 1955); Rollins v. Gould, 138 N.E. 815 (Mass. 1923); Killackey v. Killackey, 120 N.W. 680 (Mich. 1909); In re Kehl's Estate, 254 N.W. 639 (Wis. 1934).

Contra, Lavino v. Lavino, 125 A.2d 746 (N.J. Super. 1956). Gomes v. Gomes, 27 Haw. 230 (Haw. Terr. 1923) (holding that wife retains right of dower after divorce). In re Clark's Estate, 213 S.W. 2d 645 (Mo. App. 1948) (holding that a "mere showing" that husband and wife were separated for one year before death of either would not be sufficient to bar right of dower).

(n570)Footnote 570. McAllister v. Dexter & P.R. Co., 76 A. 891 (Me. 1910) (statute giving dower on divorce as though husband died on date of decree); Ellis v. Williams, 312 S.W.2d 97 (Mo. 1958) (if fault of the husband dower will be assigned if divorced wife survives the husband).

(n571)Footnote 571. North v. Ringling, 7 So. 2d 476 (Fla. 1940); Collins v. Ako, 35 Haw. 440 (1940); Hamilton v. McNeill, 129 N.W. 480 (Iowa 1911); Nissen v. Nissen Trampoline Co., 39 N.W.2d 92 (Iowa 1949); O'Malley v. O'Malley, 129 P. 501 (Mont. 1913); Pullen v. Pullen, 28 A. 719 (N.J. 1894); Peff v. Peff, 67 A.2d 161 (N.J. 1949); Bryon v. Bryon, 119 N.Y.S. 41 (1909); Ball v. Ball, 192 N.E. 364 (Ohio App. 1933); Allen v. Austin, 43 A. 69 (R.I. 1899).

(n572)Footnote 572. Gaylor v. McHenry, 15 Ind. 383 (1860); Owen v. Owen, 57 Ind. 291 (1877); McQuinn v. McQuinn, 61 S.W. 358 (Ky. 1901); Sergent v. North Cumberland Mfg. Co., 66 S.W. 1036 (Ky. 1902); Schmeizl v. Schmeizl, 46 A.2d 619 (Md. 1949); Lyons v. Lyons, 74 S.W. 467 (Mo. App. 1903); Phillip v. Wiseman, 42 S.E. 861 (N.C. 1902); Keicher v. Mysinger, 198 S.W.2d 330 (Tenn. 1946); Davis v. Davis Exr., 167 N.W. 819 (Wis. 1918). However, such statutes may be preempted when they delay the administration of ERISA benefits. Moore v. Phillip Morris Co., Inc., 8 F.3d 335 (6th Cir. 1993) (holding that ERISA preempts a Kentucky statute that eliminates spousal property rights for adultery, because the litigation over the state statute would delay the administration of ERISA benefits).

Desertion and adultery bars dower. Henderson v. Chaires, 6 So. 164 (Fla. 1889); Walters v. Jordan, 35 N.C. 361 (1852); LeCompte v. Wash, 9 Mo. 551 (1845). Unless the husband has first abandoned the wife. Rawlins v. Buttel, 6 Del. (1 Houst.) 224 (1856); Shaffer v. Richardson's Adm'r, 27 Ind. 122 (1866); In re Appeal of Nye, 17 A. 618 (Pa. 1889).

Contra, adultery does not bar dower. Wax v. Wilson, 101 So. 2d 54 (Fla. 1958); Gordon v. Dickison, 23 N.E. 439 (Ill. 1890); Lakin v. Lakin, 84 Mass. (2 Allen) 45 (1861); LeCompte v. Wash, 9 Mo. 551 (1845); Cogswell v. Tibbetts, 3 N.H. 41 (1824); Davis v. Davis, 167 N.W. 819 (Wis. 1918).

(n573)Footnote 573. Busch v. Busch, 68 So. 2d 350 (Fla. 1953); Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 90 N.E. 192 (Ill. 1909); Doyle v. Doyle, 108 N.E. 796 (Ill. 1915); Hatch v. Small, 59 P. 262 (Kan. 1899).

(n574)Footnote 574. Gordon v. Dickison, 23 N.E. 439 (Ill. 1890); Classen v. Heath, 58 N.E.2d 889 (Ill. 1945); McAllister v. Dexter & P. R. Co., 76 A. 891 (Me. 1910); North v. North, 100 S.W.2d 582 (Mo. 1936); Boggiano v. Boggiano, 38 N.Y.S.2d 355 (1942); Julier v. Julier, 56 N.E. 661 (Ohio 1900).

(n575)Footnote 575. Holmes v. Holmes, 56 N.W. 46 (Minn. 1893).

(n576)Footnote 576. Kendall v. Crenshaw, 173 S.W. 393 (Ark. 1915). McLaughlin v. McLaughlin, 79 So. 354 (Ala. 1918) (holding that a wife has no dower interest when she obtained a foreign divorce decree).

(n577)Footnote 577. Schnepfe v. Schnepfe, 92 A. 891 (Md. 1914); Murawski v. Murawski, 209 S.W.2d 262 (Mo. App. 1948).

(n578)Footnote 578. Adams v. Storey, 26 N.E. 582 (Ill. 1890); McKelvey v. McKelvey, 70 N.W. 582 (Mich. 1897).

(n579)Footnote 579. Kessinger v. Schrader, 98 P. 236 (Kan. 1908).

(n580)Footnote 580. Van Cleaf v. Burns, 30 N.E. 661 (N.Y. 1892), 15 L.R.A. 542; Van Blaricum v. Larson, 98 N.E. 488 (N.Y. 1912). See Restatement, Conflict of Laws, §248(2); Fowler v. Harper, Effect of Foreign Divorce Upon Dower, 26 Ill. L. Rev. 397 (1931).

(n581)Footnote 581. See Barrett v. Failing, 111 U.S. 523 (1884), holding that such an Oregon law was not applicable to a foreign divorce.

(n582)Footnote 582. 13 Edw. ch. 34.

(n583)Footnote 583. II Blackstone 136.

(n584)Footnote 584. No bar since the husband could have divorced the wife. LeCompte v. Wash, 9 Mo. 551 (1845); Bryan v. Batcheller, 6 R.I. 543 (1860); Davis v. Davis, 167 N.W. 819 (Wis. 1918).

Statute held part of common law. Jarnigan v. Jarnigan, 80 Tenn. 292 (1883); Keicher v. Mysinger, 198 S.W.2d 330 (Tenn. 1946), 20 Tenn. L. Rev. 273; Johnson v. Morgan, 198 S.W.2d 549 (Tenn. 1947).

In West Virginia abandonment bars dower. Thornburg v. Thornburg, 18 W. Va. 522 (1881).

(n585)Footnote 585. Loughran v. Loughran, 292 U.S. 216 (1934); Daniels v. Taylor, 145 F. 169 (8th Cir. 1906); Wood v. Wood, 27 S.W. 641 (Ark. 1894); Goss v. Froman, 12 S.W. 387 (Ky. 1889); Schmeizl v. Schmeizl, 42 A.2d 106 (Md. 1945); Payne v. Dotson, 81 Mo. 145 (1883); Chrisman v. Linderman, 100 S.W. 1090 (Mo. 1907); Walters v. Jordan, 35 N.C. 361 (1852); Reel v. Elder, 62 Pa. 308 (1869); Moore v. Robinson, 137 S.E. 697 (S.C. 1927); Keicher v. Mysinger, 198 S.W.2d 330 (Tenn. 1946); Harman v. Harman, 124 S.E. 273 (Va. 1924); Davis v. Davis, 167 N.W. 819 (Wis. 1918).

(n586)Footnote 586. Sergent v. North Cumberland Mfg. Co., 66 S.W. 1036 (Ky. 1902).

(n587)Footnote 587. Stuart v. Neely, 40 S.E. 441 (W. Va. 1901).

(n588)Footnote 588. Wiseman v. Wiseman, 73 Ind. 112 (1889); Appeal of Nye, 17 A. 618 (Pa. 1889); Thayer v. Thayer, 14 Vt. 107 (1842) See In re Archer's Estate, 70 A.2d 857 (Pa. 1950) (contra under statute); 98 U. Pa. L. Rev. 927; 24 Tul. L. Rev. 151.

(n589)Footnote 589. Harman v. Harman, 124 S.E. 273 (Va. 1924). See Shriver v. Johnson, 132 S.E. 656 (W. Va. 1926).

(n590)Footnote 590. In re Drinkhouse's Estate, 24 A. 1086 (Pa. 1892).

(n591)Footnote 591. Morello v. Cantalupo, 111 A. 255 (N.J. 1920).

(n592)Footnote 592. McQuinn v. McQuinn, 61 S.W. 358 (Ky. 1901).

(n593)Footnote 593. Rawlins v. Buttel, 6 Del. (1 Houst.) 224 (1856); Shaffer v. Richardson, 27 Ind. 122 (1866); Reel v. Elder, 62 Pa. 308 (1869); Appeal of Nye, 17 A. 618 (Pa. 1889); Beaty v. Richardson, 34 S.E. 73 (S.C. 1899).

(n594)Footnote 594. Wilson v. Craig, 75 S.W. 419 (Mo. 1903).

(n595)Footnote 595. Swift v. Reasonover, 77 S.W.2d 809 (Tenn. 1935).

Pennsylvania denies any rights in a deceased spouse's estate of a widower or widow who shall have deserted the deceased spouse for more than a year. In re Watt's Estate, 185 A.2d 781 (Pa. 1962); In re Rudolph's Estate, 194 A. 311 (Pa. Super. 1937).

(n596)Footnote 596. Thomas v. Thomas, 18 So. 2d 544 (Ala. 1944).

(n597)Footnote 597. In re Clark's Estate, 213 S.W.2d 645 (Mo. App. 1948).

(n598)Footnote 598. Lambert v. Clark, 275 S.W.2d 240 (Mo. 1955).

(n599)Footnote 599. McMichael v. Proctor, 91 S.E.2d 231 (N.C. 1956). Contra, Owens v. Owens, 6 S.E. 794 (N.C. 1888) (holding that a wife imprisoned as an accessory to her husband's murder was not barred from her right of dower).

(n600)Footnote 600. Hill v. Morris, 85 So. 2d 847 (Fla. 1956).

(n601)Footnote 601. Whitmore v. Rascoe, 85 S.W. 860 (Tenn. 1905). Blanchard v. Blanchard's Estate, 199 A. 233 (Vt. 1938) (holding that a wife's dower was superior to the claims of her husband's creditors).

(n602)Footnote 602. Sutton v. Ford, 87 S.E. 799 (Ga. 1916); Brown v. Tucker, 117 S.W. 96 (Mo. App. 1909).

See the following cases: Marine Nat'l Bank v. Swigart, 262 F. 854 (6th Cir. 1920); Hopkins v. Magruder, 34 F. Supp. 381 (D. Md. 1940); United States v. Certain Parcels of Land, 46 F. Supp. 441 (D. Md. 1920); Evansville Imp. Co. v. Gardner, 128 N.E. 471 (Ind. App. 1926); Nelson v. Dunn, 284 S.W. 1054 (Ky. 1926); Wade v. Citizens' State Bank, 197 N.W. 277 (Minn. 1924); Essey v. Bushakra, 252 S.W. 459 (Mo. 1923); Eschmann v. Lord, 112 A. 488 (N.J. 1920); Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co. v. Walston, 123 S.E. 196 (N.C. 1924); Stokes v. Stokes, 173 S.E. 18 (N.C. 1934); Second Nat'l Bank v. Renick, 19 Ohio App. 278 (1924); Turner v. Washington Realty Co., 126 S.E. 137 (S.C. 1925); Share v. Trickle, 197 N.W. 329 (Wis. 1924).

Dower is free of mortgage indebtedness as against the heirs. Stanton v. Boatright, 302 S.W.2d 347 (Tenn. 1957).

(n603)Footnote 603. Swartz v. Smole, 5 P.2d 566 (Mont. 1931); Clark v. Clark, 242 P.2d 992 (Mont. 1952).

(n604)Footnote 604. McLawhorn v. Smith, 191 S.E. 35 (N.C. 1937).

(n605)Footnote 605. Combs v. Young, 12 Tenn. (4 Yer.) 2185 (1833).

(n606)Footnote 606. Pfaff v. Heizman, 235 S.W.2d 551 (Ark. 1951) (dower attaches to property taken by heirs even though liable to be divested to pay ancestor's debts); Gove v. Cather, 23 Ill. 634 (1860); Sloan v. Williams, 27 N.E. 531 (Ill. 1891); Solomon v. Shewitz, 152 N.W. 196 (Mich. 1915); Grady v. McCorkle, 57 Mo. 172 (1874); Butler v. Fitzgerald, 61 N.W. 640 (Neb. 1895); Lewis v. Smith, 9 N.Y. 502 (1854); Rodman v. Robinson, 47 S.E. 19 (N.C. 1904); Iowaege v. Bossieux, 15 Gratt. 83 (Va. 1859); Ficklin v. Rixey, 17 S.E. 325 (Va. 1893); Lewis v. Apperson, 49 S.E. 978 (Va. 1905). Mattingly v. Gentry, 419 S.W. 2d 745 (Ky. 1967) (holding that a wife was entitled to one third of her husband's land where she never forfeited her right of dower and could not be deprived of her right by her husband's acts or those of his creditors).

(n607)Footnote 607. Porter v. Lazear, 109 U.S. 84 (1883); Savage v. Savage, 141 F. 346 (4th Cir. 1905); In re Acretelli, 173 F. 121 (D. N.Y. 1909); Lazear v. Porter, 87 Pa. 513 (1878). But see Lucas v. White, 95 N.W. 209 (Iowa 1903); Williams v. Williams, 12 S.W. 760 (Ky. 1889).

(n608)Footnote 608. Carver v. Ward, 95 S.E. 528 (W. Va. 1918).

Under the New York law today one who purchases from the husband by deed or at execution or judicial sale may by court action have the dower right valued and on payment of the right valued and on payment of the value to the wife have it extinguished. New York Real Property Law, §190a.

(n609)Footnote 609. Roan v. Holmes, 13 So. 339 (Fla. 1893).

(n610)Footnote 610. Kozanjieff v. Petroff, 19 N.E.2d 563 (Ind. 1939).

(n611)Footnote 611. Dunbar v. Dunbar, 98 N.E. 563 (Ill. 1912); Sheffield v. Cooke, 98 A. 161 (R.I. 1916); Wilson v. Wilson, 89 P. 643 (Utah 1907); Harper v. Harper, 165 S.E. 490 (Va. 1932).

(n612)Footnote 612. Nichols v. French, 93 N.E. 897 (Ohio 1910).

(n613)Footnote 613. Salinger v. Black, 60 S.W. 229 (Ark. 1900).

(n614)Footnote 614. Setting aside deed in fraud of surviving spouse. Windsor v. Leonard, 475 F.2d 932 (D.C. Cir. 1973).

Deed from husband to wife in fraud of creditors could be set aside except to extent of wife's interest. Willingham v. Lee, 185 S.E.2d 553 (Ga. App. 1971).

(n615)Footnote 615. State ex rel. Place v. Bland, 183 S.W.2d 878 (Mo. 1944).

(n616)Footnote 616. Lipps v. Lipps, 87 N.E.2d 823 (Ohio 1949).

(n617)Footnote 617. Geiselman v. Wise, 28 N.E.2d 199 (Ohio 1940).

Execution sale of husband's realty divests dower. In re Hester's Estate, 28 So. 2d 164 (Fla. 1946); 1 U. Miami L. Rev. 46, rev'g, in effect, Pingree v. De Haven, 105 So. 147 (Fla. 1925).

(n618)Footnote 618. Trotter v. Lewis, 45 A.2d 329 (Md. 1940).

(n619)Footnote 619. Mayburry v. Brien, 40 U.S. (15 Pet.) 21 (1841); Bell v. Bell, 56 So. 926 (Ala. 1911); Chalk v. Chalk, 165 S.W.2d 534 (Ky. 1942).

(n620)Footnote 620. Robbins v. Robbins, 8 Blackf. 174 (Ind. 1846).

(n621)Footnote 621. Chalk v. Chalk, 165 S.W.2d 534 (Ky. 1942); Elder v. McIntosh, 70 S.E. 807 (S.C. 1911).

(n622)Footnote 622. Shaeffer v. Weed, 8 Ill. (3 Gilm.) 511 (1846); Gove v. Cather, 23 Ill. 634 (1860); Bishop v. Boyle, 9 Ind. 169 (1854); Van Vronker v. Eastman, 48 Mass. (7 Met.) 157 (1843); Iowaege v. Bossieux, 15 Gratt. 83 (Va. 1859).

(n623)Footnote 623. Pifer v. Ward, 8 Blackf. 252 (Ind. 1846).

(n624)Footnote 624. Bell v. Bell, 56 So. 926 (Ala. 1911).

(n625)Footnote 625. Poteet v. International Harvester Co., 149 S.E. 512 (Va. 1929).

(n626)Footnote 626. Littleton, Tenures, L1, ch. 5.

(n627)Footnote 627. Bomar v. Wilkins, 151 S.E. 110 (S.C. 1930).

But a widow was entitled to elect only if she did not receive the minimum statutory share by contract, will or deed. In re Connor's Estate, 168 S.E.2d 245 (N.C. App. 1969).

(n628)Footnote 628. Herbert v. Wren, 11 U.S. (7 Cranch) 370 (1813); Hilliard v. Binford's Heirs, 10 Ala. 977 (1847); Herzog v. Easton Trust Co., 64 So. 426 (Fla. 1914); Raines v. Corbin, 24 Ga. 185 (1858); Mettler v. Warner, 90 N.E. 1099 (Ill. 1910); Ostrander v. Spickard, 8 Blackf. 227 (Ind. 1846); Howard v. Watson, 41 N.W. 45 (Iowa 1888); In re Culbertson's Estate, 215 N.W. 761 (Iowa 1927); Compton v. Akers, 150 P. 219 (Kan. 1915); Bunker v. Bunker, 154 A. 73 (Me. 1931); In re Hall's Case, 1 Bland Ch. 203 (Md. 1827); Matthews v. Thompson, 71 N.E. 93 (Mass. 1904); Fairchild v. Marshall, 43 N.W. 563 (Minn. 1889); Van Orden v. Van Orden, 10 Johns. 30 (N.Y. 1813); Jackson v. Churchill, 7 Cow. 287 (N.Y. 1827); Lee v. Tower, 26 N.E. 943 (N.Y. 1891); In re Hill's Will, 191 N.E. 12 (N.Y. 1934).

And see Opp v. Frye, 161 P.2d 235 (Cal. App. 1945); Prichard v. Anderson, 278 N.W. 348 (Iowa 1938); Foster v. Allen, 152 P.2d 818 (Kan. 1944); Wrenne v. American Nat'l Bank, 191 S.W.2d 547 (Tenn. 1946).

In Georgia a devise is in lieu of dower but a bequest is not. Ga. Code Ann., §31-103.

In Utah the widow takes her statutory share unless she elects under the will Utah Code Ann. 1953, §74-4-4.

In Vermont the widow takes both under the will and also dower unless the will indicates a contrary intent. Phillips v. Northfield Trust Co., 179 A. 154 (Vt. 1935).

See Ralph Gane Miller, Jr. & Philip P. Martin, Jr., Voluntary Widow's Election: Nation-Wide Planning for the Million Dollar Estate, 1 Cal. W. L. Rev. 63 (1965).

(n629)Footnote 629. Herbert v. Wren, 11 U.S. (7 Cranch) 370 (1813); Hillard v. Binford's Heirs, 10 Ala. 977 (1847); Alling v. Chatfield, 42 Conn. 276 (1875); Voss v. Stortz, 197 S.W. 964 (Ky. 1917); White v. White, 16 N.J.L. 202 (1837); Adsit v. Adsit, 2 Johns. Ch. 448 (N.Y. 1817); Wood v. Wood, 5 Paige Ch. 596 (N.Y. 1836); Sumerel v. Sumerel, 12 S.E. 932 (S.C. 1891); Bomar v. Wilkins, 151 S.E. 110 (S.C. 1930); Higginbotham v. Cornwell, 8 Gratt. 83 (Va. 1851).

(n630)Footnote 630. Howe Lumber Co. v. Parker, 117 N.W. 518 (Minn. 1908).

> To compel the widow to elect between the dower and a provision made for her in the will, where the testator had not in terms declared his intention on the subject, it was not sufficient that the will rendered it doubtful whether he intended that she should have her dower in addition to that provision; but that to deprive her of dower, the terms and provisions of the will must be totally inconsistent with her claim of dower in the property in which such dower was claimed; so that the intention of the testator in relation to some part of the property devised to others would be defeated, if such claim was allowed.

Church v. Bull, 2 Denio 430 (N.Y. 1845).

The surviving spouse in Pennsylvania has an absolute right of election as against testamentary assets or assets transferred inter vivos over which transferor retained a testamentary power of appointment, a power of consumption or a power of revocation. In re Huested's Estate, 69 A.2d 57 (Pa. 1961).

Laws treating widows differently than widowers in election are not unconstitutional. In re Estate of Rincon, 327 So. 2d 224 (Fla. 1976); Matter of Estate of Kujath, 545 P.2d 662 (Mont. 1976); Estate of Parson, 344 N.E.2d 317 (Ind. App. 1976). A widow may not exercise statutory elective shares against individual pieces of property, but rather must release her dower and homestead rights to take the statutory share. Riverwood Commercial Properties, Inc. v. Cole, 639 A.2d 714 (N.H. 1994) (holding that statutory elective shares taken in place of dower and homestead rights cannot be exercised against individual pieces of property, but rather the taker must release her dower and homestead rights in the individual pieces to take the statutory share).

(n631)Footnote 631. Banks v. Junk, 264 So. 2d 387 (Miss. 1972).

Election must be in conformance with the law where the land lies. Estate of Miller, 541 P.2d 28 (Wyo. 1975).

(n632)Footnote 632. Brown v. Parry, 2 Dick. 685, 21 Eng. Rep. 438; Hitchin v. Hitchin, Pre. Ch. 133, 24 Eng. Rep. 64.

A spouse's right of election is governed by the law of the domicile. In re Clark's Estate, 36 N.E.2d 152 (N.Y. 1968).

See Elbridge D. Phelps, The Widow's Right of Election in the Estate of Her Husband, 37 Mich. L. Rev. 236, 401 (1938).

(n633)Footnote 633. Dillon v. Parker, 1 Cl. & Fin. 303, 36 Eng. Rep. 422.

See Richard M. Waugh, Wills -- Election by a Surviving Joint Tenant or Tenant by the Entirety, 38 Mo. L. Rev. 533 (1973).

(n634)Footnote 634. Garrett v. Snowden, 145 So. 493 (Ala. 1933); Warren v. Warren, 36 N.E. 611 (Ill. 1893); Pellizzarro v. Reppert, 50 N.W. 19 (Iowa 1891); In re Hill's Will, 191 N.E. 12 (N.Y. 1934); Bomar v. Wilkins, 151 S.E. 110 (S.C. 1930).

See Boiling v. Boiling, 14 S.E. 67 (Va. 1891).

Under Va. Acts 1968 amending §113-903, Georgia now gives the widow of an intestate husband the child's part unless the shares exceed five in which case she gets one-fifth.

The widow is no longer required to elect against the will if she within 12 months after the death of the husband elects to take a dower. If she takes dower, she has no interest in the realty beyond dower rights but the election does not affect the rights with respect to personalty.

See Arnold D. Kahn & Jon J. Gallo, The Widow's Election: A Return to Fundamentals, 24 Stan. L. Rev. 531.

(n635)Footnote 635. Tooke v. Hardeman, 7 Ga. 20 (1849); Cain v. Cain, 23 Iowa 31 (1867); Helme v. Strater, 30 A. 333 (N.J. 1894); Nelson v. Brown, 39 N.E. 355 (N.Y. 1895); McCullough v. Allen, 3 Yates 10 (Pa. 1800); Turner v. Oberhen, 61 N.W. 280 (Wis. 1894).

In Illinois the widow may elect to take dower free of husband's creditors or one-third in fee of the remaining estate after the husband's debts are paid and dower is barred unless the election is made within 10 months after administration is opened and within the surviving spouse's lifetime. Bruce v. McCormick, 72 N.E.2d 333 (Ill. 1947); 25 Chi-Kent L. Rev. 324.

Once a spouse has elected against the Will, only the spouse can vacate the election. Baker v. Hutyera, 267 N.E.2d 604

(Ohio 1971).

Holding that time period for election is mandatory unless there has been actual fraud with a clear case of misrepresentation. In re Di Marco's Estate, 257 A.2d 849 (Pa. 1939).

See William Shakespeare Herrmann Jr., Fiduciaries' Collateral Powers and Spouses' Right of Election, 30 Brooklyn L. Rev. 53.

(n636)Footnote 636. Cochran v. Garth, 40 S.W.2d 1023 (Tenn. 1931).

In New York the right of the widow to elect against a will is limited, New York Decedents Estate Law, §18d. In re Shupack's Will, 149 N.Y.S.2d 20, rev'd, 136 N.E.2d 513 (N.Y. 1956).

Where a widow elects to take under the law she does not create an intestacy but merely elects to obtain her share of the intestate property. In re Roberts' Estate, 338 P.2d 719 (Mont. 1959), cert. denied, 361 U.S. 825 (1959); 9 Kan. L. Rev. 356.

(n637)Footnote 637. Lord v. Lord, 23 Conn. 327 (1853); Nelson v. Pomeroy, 29 A. 534 (Conn. 1894); Tooke v. Hardeman, 7 Ga. 20 (1849); Carper v. Crowl, 36 N.E. 1040 (Ill. 1894); Richards v. Richards, 58 N.W. 926 (Iowa 1894); McGowen v. Baldwin, 49 N.W. 251 (Minn. 1891); Hall v. Smith, 15 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1891); Schorr v. Etling, 27 S.W. 395 (Mo. 1894); Tobias v. Ketchum, 32 N.Y. 319 (1865); Sumerel v. Sumerel, 12 S.E. 932 (S.C. 1891).

Widow must elect to take dower within nine months after first publication of notice to creditors and must, within three years after husband's death, file a notice with the clerk of the circuit court where the realty is located. Fla. Stat. 1971, §731.35(4).

(n638)Footnote 638. In re Gotzian, 24 N.W. 920 (Minn. 1885); In re Gorden, 64 N.E. 753 (N.Y. 1902); Callaham v. Robinson, 9 S.E. 120 (S.C. 1889); 3 L.R.A. 497.

(n639)Footnote 639. Exchange Nat'l Bank of Winter Haven v. Smith, 4 So. 2d 675 (Fla. 1941); Williams v. Williams, 170 S.W. 490 (Ky. 1914) (decided under statute); Young v. Young, 27 A. 627 (N.J. 1893).

In Florida dower rights and realty are barred unless the widow's written election is filed within nine months after the first publication of notice to creditors or three years after the date of the husband's death, whichever occurs first. Fla. Stat. Ann., §731.35(3). However, when division of property is inappropriate, a probate court does not have authority to value the property to establish the value of the dower right, rather, the court must either rent or sell the property. In re Estate of Jones, 879 S.W.2d 433 (Ark. 1994) (holding that a probate court has no authority to value property and order that dower be paid according to that value, but the court may order the property to be rented and divide the rents or order it sold and divide the proceeds).

(n640)Footnote 640. Herbert v. Wren, 11 U.S. (7 Cranch) 370 (1813).

See William E. Noding, Dower Estoppel By Widow's Election Under the Will, 3 U. Fla. L. Rev. 214 (1950).

(n641)Footnote 641. Mastin v. Mastin, 50 S.W.2d 77 (Ky. 1932).

Widow's consent to will waives statutory allowances. In re Snyder's Estate, 357 P.2d 778 (Kan. 1960).

(n642)Footnote 642. Stone v. Vandermark, 34 N.E. 150 (Ill. 1893); Sherman v. Newton, 6 Gray (72 Mass.) 307 (1856); Flynn v. McDermott, 75 N.E. 931 (N.Y. 1905); Millkin v. Welliver, 37 Ohio St. 460 (1882); Appeal of Crozier, 90 Pa. 384 (1879); In re Woodburn's Estate, 21 A. 16 (Pa. 1891).

Discretion of court as to whether incompetent widow can dissent from will. Copeland v. Turner, 143 So. 2d 625 (Ala. 1962); 15 Ala. L. Rev. 338.

Right to renounce will does not survive spouse's death. Rock Island Bank & Trust Co. v. First Nat'l Bank, 185 N.E.2d 890 (Ill. 1962).

(n643)Footnote 643. Heavenridge v. Nelson, 56 Ind. 90 (1877); Clark v. Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 102 A. 289 (Me. 1917); Kennedy v. Johnston, 65 Pa. 451 (1870); Dougherty v. Federal Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 377 P.2d 963 (Okla. 1962).

Probate court may not exercise election of widow who was incompetent. In re Strauch's Estate, 229 N.E.2d 95 (Ohio App. 1967).

See Joe W. Blankenship, Election by Court for Incompetent Surviving Spouse, 17 Okla. L. Rev. 238 (1964).

In New York the right of election of the spouse is personal except that it could be exercised by a guardian. Estate of Charkowsky, 392 N.Y.S.2d 368 (1977).

(n644)Footnote 644. Kinnett v. Hood, 185 N.E.2d 888 (Ill. 1962).

(n645)Footnote 645. State v. Probate Ct., 152 N.W. 845 (Minn. 1915).

(n646)Footnote 646. Steele v. Steele, 64 Ala. 438 (1879); Dabney v. Bailey, 42 Ga. 521 (1871); Macknet v. Macknet, 29 N.J. Eq. 54 (1878).

(n647)Footnote 647. In re Woodburn's Estate, 21 A. 16 (Pa. 1891).

(n648)Footnote 648. La Tourette v. La Tourette, 137 P. 426 (Ariz. 1914).

(n649)Footnote 649. Whitesell v. Strickler, 78 N.E. 845 (Ind. 1906).

(n650)Footnote 650. In re Pearson's Estate, 192 So. 2d 89 (Fla. 1966).

(n651)Footnote 651. Pittman v. Pittman, 107 P. 235 (Kan. 1910).

(n652)Footnote 652. Thompson v. Thompson, 121 S.W. 641 (Ky. 1909).

(n653)Footnote 653. Truett v. Funderburk, 20 S.E. 260 (Ga. 1894).

(n654)Footnote 654. See Restatement, Conflict of Laws, §253. Colvin v. Hutchinson, 92 S.W.2d 667 (Mo. 1936).

(n655)Footnote 655. Schofield v. Sueske, 28 N.E.2d 138 (Ill. App. 1940).

Chapter 168, Acts 1968, of New York, provides that the right of election by surviving spouse does not include a N.Y. realty of the decedent situated outside of New York.

(n656)Footnote 656. Crenshaw v. Carpenter, 69 Ala. 572 (1881); In re Rogers' Estate, 171 So. 2d 428 (Fla. 1965) (time of election of dower is of the essence); Whitesell v. Strickler, 78 N.E. 845 (Ind. 1906); Mercer v. Smith, 107 S.W. 1196 (Ky. 1908); Bish v. Bish, 31 A.2d 348 (Md. 1943); In re Andrews' Estate, 52 N.W. 743 (Mich. 1892); White v. White, 16 N.J.L. 202 (1837); Flynn v. McDermott, 75 N.E. 931 (N.Y. 1905); Geiger v. Bitzer, 88 N.E. 134 (Ohio 1909); Borland v. Nichols, 12 Pa. 38 (1849); Appeal of Melizet, 17 Pa. 449 (1851); Kennedy v. Johnston, 65 Pa. 451 (1870).

Court may elect for incompetent surviving spouse even after statutory time has elapsed. Goldstein's Estate v. Commissioner Int. Rev., 479 F.2d 813 (10th Cir. 1973).

Widow's election after statutory time had passed was a nullity. Mainini v. Tilton, 308 N.E.2d 571 (Mass. 1974).

A wife electing against a will takes an intestate share rather than inchoate dower and is subject to inheritance tax. Stovall v. Department of Revenue, 527 P.2d 62 (Mont. 1974).

See Eugene F. Scoles, Conflict of Laws and Elections in Administration of Decedents' Estates, 30 Ind. L.J. 293 (1955).

(n657)Footnote 657. Merrill v. Emery, 27 Mass. (10 Pick.) 507 (1830).

(n658)Footnote 658. Mohn v. Mohn, 126 N.W. 1127 (Iowa 1910).

(n659)Footnote 659. Cobb v. MacFarland, 127 N.W. 377 (Neb. 1910).

(n660)Footnote 660. In re Smith's Estate, 40 P. 1037 (Cal. 1895); Wilson v. Wilson, 44 N.E. 665 (Ind. 1896); Hovey v. Hovey, 61 N.H. 599 (1882); Baxter v. Bowyer, 19 Ohio St. 490 (1869); Chace v. Gregg, 32 S.W. 520 (Tex. 1895).

Widow was required to elect against a will, which purported to devise to another property held in joint tenancy. In re Waters' Estate, 100 Cal. Rptr. 775 (1972). See 38 Mo. L. Rev. 533.

Contra, Colclazier v. Colclazier, 89 So. 2d 261 (Fla. 1956); In re Grieco's Estate, 244 A.2d 27 (Pa. 1968).

(n661)Footnote 661. Pfau v. Moseley, 222 N.E.2d 639 (Ohio 1966), permitting widow's election under the lex situ.

Contrary in dictum denying right of election. In re Clark's Will, 281 N.Y.S.2d 180 (1967).

Denying decedent's right to transfer property by an inter vivos trust as being a fraud of the widow under the Fraudulent Conveyance Act. Sherrill v. Mallicote, 417 S.W.2d 798 (Tenn. App. 1967). Contra result. Klosiewski v. Slovan Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 230 A.2d 285 (Md. 1967).

(n662)Footnote 662. In such cases the husband can defeat the wife's interest by executing notes and placing them in escrow. See Potter Title & Trust Co. v. Braum, 140 A. 401 (Pa. 1928). But see Cancilla v. Bondy, 44 A.2d 586 (Pa. 1945).

Widow's right of election is determined by the lex situ of the realty. Succession of Martin, 147 So. 2d 53 (La. App. 1962).

Holding that election against will did not defeat the widow's statutory allowance. Sklor v. Estate of Sklor, 357 A.2d 900 (Conn. 1975).

(n663)Footnote 663. In re Dluhos' Estate, 70 N.W.2d 549 (Iowa 1955).

Specific devisees were not entitled to restitution from residuary estate where widow renounced will and took dower in devised realty. Gowling v. Gowling, 90 N.E.2d 188 (Ill. 1950).

Where the widow elects against the will and there is also a pretermitted child the widow's share comes first and the shares of the pretermitted child and the other beneficiaries are reduced pro tanto. In re Vicedomini's Estate, 91 N.Y.S.2d 472 (1949).

Under the statutes of some states the widow in making the election takes by way of inheritance from the testator and not as a purchaser which would have happened had he died intestate. Barlow v. Winters Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 61 N.E.2d 603 (Ohio 1945) (1945).

Contra, widow takes only statutory share and does not take as heir, property undisposed of by will. In re Uihlein's Will, 59 N.W.2d 641 (Wis. 1953).

Husband abandoning wife held not entitled to elect against the will under statute. In re Estate of Banks, 189 A. 154 (Pa. 1963).

(n664)Footnote 664. Barksdale v. Morris, 235 S.W.2d 288 (Mo. 1950).

(n665)Footnote 665. Widow's election against will is equivalent to her death. Maine Nat'l Bank v. Petrlik, 283 A.2d 660 (Me. 1971).

(n666)Footnote 666. In re Plazza's Estate, 526 P.2d 155 (Colo. App. 1974).

Spouse's right of election is governed by the law of the state where decedent was domiciled at the time of his death. In re Duval's Estate, 332 A.2d 802 (Vt. 1975).

(n667)Footnote 667. Teckenbrock v. McLaughlin, 152 S.W. 38 (Mo. 1912).

(n668)Footnote 668. Gore v. Townsend, 11 S.E. 160 (N.C. 1890); Mandel v. McClave, 22 N.E. 290 (Ohio 1889), 5 L.R.A. 519; Briegel v. Briegel, 160 A. 581 (Pa. 1931).

(n669)Footnote 669. Hamm v. Butler, 112 So. 141 (Ala. 1927); Tatum v. Tatum, 295 S.W. 720 (Ark. 1927); 53 A.L.R. 306; Firebaugh v. Wittenberg, 141 N.E. 379 (Ill. 1923); Rosenow v. Miller, 207 P. 618 (Mont. 1922); Stokes v. Stokes, 196 N.Y.S. 184 (1922); Good v. Crist, 156 N.E. 146 (Ohio App. 1926); Share v. Trickle, 197 N.W. 329 (Wis. 1924); 34 A.L.R. 1016.

(n670)Footnote 670. Hamm v. Butler, 112 So. 141 (Ala. 1927).

A voluntary conveyance by prospective bridegroom 22 months before marriage was held in fraud of future wife's marital rights. Jarvis v. Jarvis, 122 N.E. 121 (Ill. 1919); Moore v. Moore, 154 N.E.2d 256 (Ill. 1958) (10 months before marriage, recordation not being constructive notice to the prospective bride).

(n671)Footnote 671. Dure v. Sharpe, 114 A. 207 (Del. 1910); Good v. Crist, 156 N.E. 146 (Ohio App. 1926).

Dower and curtesy cannot be evaluated by a court in absence of statute. In re Flasch, 143 A.2d 208 (N.J. Super. 1958), cert. denied, 144 A.2d 736 (N.J. 1958).

(n672)Footnote 672. Najarian v. Boyajian, 136 A. 767 (R.I. 1927).

(n673)Footnote 673. The proper rule for computing the present value of the wife's contingent right of dower, during the life of the husband, is to ascertain the present value of an annuity for her life equal to the interest in the third of the proceeds of the estate to which her contingent right of dower attaches, and then to deduct from the present value of the annuity for her life, the value of a similar annuity depending upon the joint lives of herself and her husband; and the difference between these two sums will be the present value of her contingent right of dower.

Share v. Trickle, 197 N.W. 329 (Wis. 1924); 34 A.L.R. 1016, quoting Jackson v. Edwards, 7 Paige 386 (N.Y. 1839).

See Gordon, Rankin & Co. v. Tweedy, 74 Ala. 232 (1883); Shell v. Duncan, 10 S.E. 330 (S.C. 1889).

Where the wife's dower could not be compensated for with the husband's fee, no value could be placed on the wife's inchoate interest. United States v. Certain Parcels of Land, 46 F. Supp. 441 (D. Md. 1942).

In New York the value of dower is determined as the difference between the present value of an annuity equal to a one-third interest in the proceeds of the property payable during the expectancy of the wife and the present value of such an annuity payable during the joint lives of both husband and wife. Jackson v. Edwards, 7 Paige 386 (N.Y. 1839).

(n674)Footnote 674. Gordon, Rankin & Co. v. Tweedy 74 Ala. 232 (1883); Johnson v. Moon, 10 S.E. 193 (Ga. 1888); Buzick v. Buzick, 44 Iowa 259 (1876); Alexander v. Bradley, 66 Ky. (3 Bush) 667 (1868); Simonton v. Gray, 34 Me. 50 (1852); Abercrombie v. Riddle, 3 Md. Ch. 320 (1850); Estabrook v. Hapgood, 10 Mass. 313 (1873); Nye v. Patterson, 35 Mich. 413 (1877); Henze v. Mitchell, 140 N.W. 149 (Neb. 1913); American Blower Co. v. MacKenzie, 147 S.E. 829 (N.C. 1929); Smith v. Smith, 27 S.E.2d 137 (N.C. 1843); Mandel v. McClave, 22 N.E. 290 (Ohio 1889).

(n675)Footnote 675. Coleman v. Davis, 120 So. 2d 56 (Fla. 1960).

(n676)Footnote 676. Blevins v. Smith, 16 S.W. 213 (Mo. 1891).

(n677)Footnote 677. Brown v. Brown, 78 S.E. 447 (S.C. 1913).

(n678)Footnote 678. Ladshaw v. Drake, 191 S.E. 713 (S.C. 1937).

The present value of a contingent dower right (husband living) is computed by determining the present value of an annuity equal to the annual interest on one-third of the value of the realty and by subtracting therefrom the value of an annuity based on the joint lives of the wife and husband. United States v. State, 87 S.E.2d 577 (S.C. 1955).

See Francis X. Conway, Surviving Spouse's Right of Election in New York Where Trust Income May be Diverted: The Need for Further Change, 34 Fordham L. Rev. 593 (1965).

(n679)Footnote 679. Boyd v. Carlton, 69 Me. 200 (1879); Conner v. Shepherd, 15 Mass. 164 (1818); Macknet v. Macknet, 24 N.J. Eq. 449 (1873); McDaniel v. McDaniel, 25 N.C. 61 (1842); Appeal of Heller, 8 A. 790 (Pa. 1887); Fuller v. Conrad, 26 S.E. 575 (Va. 1897); Feamster v. Feamster, 15 S.E.2d 159 (W. Va. 1941).

(n680)Footnote 680. Ware v. Owens, 42 Ala. 212 (1868); Sanders v. McMillian, 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1892); Butler v. Fitzgerald, 61 N.W. 640 (Neb. 1895).

(n681)Footnote 681. Price v. Hobbs, 47 Md. 359 (1877); McGehee v. McGehee, 42 Miss. 747 (1869); Larrowe v. Beam, 10 Ohio 498 (1841).

(n682)Footnote 682. Humphrey v. Phinney, 2 Johns 454 (N.Y. 1807); Shaw v. White, 13 Johns. 179 (N.Y. 1816); Campbell v. Murphy, 55 N.C. 357 (1856); Whitehead v. Brownsville Bank, 61 S.W.2d 975 (Tenn. 1933).

(n683)Footnote 683. Thornburn v. Doscher, 32 F. 810 (C.C.D. Or. 1887); Summers v. Babb, 13 Ill. 483 (1851); Throp v. Johnson, 3 Ind. 343 (1852); Fritz v. Tudor, 64 Ky. (1 Bush) 28 (1866); McClanahan v. Porter, 10 Mo. 746 (1847); Dunseth v. Bank of United States, 6 Ohio 76 (1833); Bridgeford v. Groh, 160 A. 451 (Pa. 1932).

(n684)Footnote 684. Sanders v. McMillian, 144 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1832); Ralston v. Ralston, 3 Greene 535 (Iowa 1852); Parker v. Parker, 34 Mass. (17 Pick.) 236 (1835); Hale v. James, 6 Johns. Ch. 258 (N.Y. 1822).

(n685)Footnote 685. Herson v. Mills, 221 F. Supp. 714 (D.D.C. 1963) (widow takes statutory share after deduction for federal estate tax purposes); Coleman v. Davis, 120 So. 2d 56 (Fla. 1960); Onstott v. Edel, 83 N.E. 506 (Ill. 1908);

Mahoney v. Young, 33 Ky. (3 Dana) 588 (1835); Boyd v. Carlton, 69 Me. 200 (1879); Chase's Case, 1 Bland 206 (Md. 1828); Gore v. Brazier, 3 Mass. 523 (1807); Webb v. Townsend, 18 Mass. (1 Pick.) 21 (1822); Van Doren v. Van Doren, 3 N.J.L. 697 (1810).

(n686)Footnote 686. Sanders v. McMillian, 11 So. 750 (Ala. 1832); Westcott v. Campbell, 11 R.I. 378 (1876); Hale v. James, 6 Johns. Ch. 258 (N.Y. 1822).

(n687)Footnote 687. Central Trust Co. v. Gilarili, 186 N.E.2d 771 (Ohio 1962).

(n688)Footnote 688. Ladshaw v. Drake, 191 S.E. 713 (S.C. 1937); United States v. State, 87 S.E.2d 577 (S.C. 1955).

(n689)Footnote 689. Waggoner v. Waggoner, 97 S.E.2d 887 (N.C. 1957).

(n690)Footnote 690. Grayson v. Grayson, 190 S.W. 930 (Mo. App. 1916); Gore v. Townsend, 11 S.E. 160 (N.C. 1890), 8 L.R.A. 443; Waggoner v. Waggoner, 97 S.E.2d 887 (N.C. 1957); Strayer v. Long, 10 S.E. 574 (Va. 1890); Share v. Trickle, 197 N.W. 329 (Wis. 1924).

(n691)Footnote 691. Floyd v. Barrineau, 216 S.E.2d 753 (S.C. 1975).

(n692)Footnote 692. Oakley v. Oakley, 30 Ala. 131 (1857); Harrison v. Boyd, 36 Ala. 203 (1860); Taylor v. McCrackin, 2 Blackf. 260 (Ind. 1929).

(n693)Footnote 693. Weaver v. Crenshaw, 6 Ala. 573 (1844); Grimes v. Wilson, 4 Blackf. 331 (Ind. 1837); Stewart v. Stewart, 26 Ky. (3 J.J. Marsh.) 48 (1829); McKaig v. McKaig, 25 A. 181 (N.J. 1892). See Moore v. Hoffman, 39 S.W.2d 339 (Mo. 1931); 75 A.L.R. 135.

(n694)Footnote 694. 4 Kent's Commentaries. 62 Weaver v. Crenshaw, 6 Ala. 873 (1844); Ackerman v. Shelp, 8 N.J.L. 125 (1825).

Quarantine is a personal inalienable right, Griffin v. Dunn, 96 S.W. 190 (Ark. 1906); Love v. Ward, 5 S.E.2d 411 (W. Va. 1939), 126 A.L.R. 791, either at law, Barber v. Willams, 74 Ala. 331 (1883), or in equity, Flowers v. Flowers, 106 S.W. 949 (Ark. 1907), and alienable by statute. Ind. Stat. §6-401.

(n695)Footnote 695. Cook v. Webb, 18 Ala. 810 (1851).

(n696)Footnote 696. Oakley v. Oakley, 30 Ala. 131 (1857); White v. Clarke, 23 Ky. (7 T.B. Mon.) 640 (1828); Craige v. Morris, 25 N.J. Eq. 467 (1941); Alt v. Kwiatek, 17 A.2d 161 (N.J. Eq. 1941); Love v. Ward, 5 S.E.2d 411 (W. Va. 1939).

Quarantine is lost when dower is assigned. Hunott v. Critchlow, 285 S.W.2d 594 (Mo. 1955).

(n697)Footnote 697. Boyte v. Perkins, 99 So. 652 (Ala. 1924); Mullan v. Bank of Pasco County, 133 So. 323 (Fla. 1931); Wyly v. Kallenbach, 76 S.W.2d 34 (Ky. 1934); Moore v. Hoffman, 39 S.W.2d 339 (Mo. 1931).

(n698)Footnote 698. Mullan v. Bank of Pasco County, 133 So. 323 (Fla. 1931); Wyly v. Kallenbach, 76 S.W.2d 34 (Ky. 1934).

(n699)Footnote 699. Rains v. Moulder, 90 S.W.2d 81 (Mo. 1936); Krug v. Bremer 11 S.W.2d 1096 (Mo. App. 1928).

(n700)Footnote 700. Barber v. Williams, 74 Ala. 331 (1883); Griffin v. Dunn, 96 S.W. 190 (Ark. 1906); Phillips v. Williams, 113 S.W. 908 (Ky. 1908).

Contra, Graham v. Stafford, 72 S.W. 507 (Mo. 1903).

Attempted alienation forfeits quarantine, Griffin v. Dunn, 96 S.W. 190 (Ark. 1906) (but not dower), but the widow may release quarantine. Barber v. Williams, 74 Ala. 331 (1883).

(n701)Footnote 701. Griffin v. Dunn, 96 S.W. 190 (Ark. 1906); Phillips v. Williams, 113 S.W. 908 (Ky. 1908); Love v. Ward, 5 S.E.2d 411 (Ky. 1939).

(n702)Footnote 702. Hale v. Cox, 200 So. 772 (Ala. 1941).

(n703)Footnote 703. Burkhardt v. Lieberman, 159 S.W.2d 847 (Tex. 1942).

(n704)Footnote 704. In re Flasch, 143 A.2d 208 (N.J. Super. 1958)

William James McKim, Rights of the Surviving Spouse Under the Pennsylvania Wills and Estates Statutes, 9 Duquesne L. Rev. 230.

(n705)Footnote 705. Joseph D. Sullivan, The Passing of Dower and Curtesy, 19 Georgetown. L.J. 306 (1931).

Florida has abolished inchoate dower and substituted an election by the surviving spouse of one-third realty and personalty. Fla. Stat. 1971, §732.01 et seq. as amended by Fla. Laws 1974, ch. 74-106.

Georgia repealed the right of dower in 1969.

In Indiana a married man may encumber or contract or deed realty which he owns without his wife joining. And such a conveyance bars the wife's marital interest. Ind. Code §29-1-2-3.1.

New Hampshire establishes statutory rights in lieu of dower and curtesy. N.H. Rev. Stat. 1955, §560:3.

Reinheimer v. Rhedans, 327 S.W.2d 823 (Mo. 1959) (dower abolished in Missouri as of Jan. 1, 1956).

South Dakota did not adopt §2-113 of the U.P.C. providing for the abolition of dower and curtesy.

Tenn. Code Ann. §31-202, abolished dower and curtesy and gives a distributive share if spouse not provided for.

(n706)Footnote 706. Fla. Stat. 1971, §732.111.

(n707)Footnote 707. Ferry v. Spokane, P. & S.R. Co., 258 U.S. 314 (1922); Barfoot v. Barfoot, 18 So. 2d 465 (Ala. 1944); Wootton v. Keaton, 272 S.W. 569 (Ark. 1925); Henderson v. Usher, 170 So. 846 (Fla. 1936); Adams v. Adams, 2 So. 2d 855 (Fla. 1941); Weyer v. Barwell, 158 N.E. 475 (Ill. 1927); Schoellkopf v. DeVry, 7 N.E.2d 757 (Ill. 1937); Classen v. Heath, 58 N.E.2d 889 (Ill. 1945); Chamberlain v. Anderson, 190 N.W. 501 (Iowa 1922); Hamblin v. Marchant, 175 P. 678 (Kan. 1918); Moore v. New York, 8 N.Y. 110 (1853); Vannoy v. Green, 173 S.E. 277 (N.C. 1934); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919); Goodman v. Gerstle, 109 N.E.2d 489 (Ohio 1952); Disher v. Disher, 35 N.E.2d 582 (Ohio 1936); In re Whitson, 212 P. 752 (Okla. 1923); Rieger v. Harrington, 203 P. 576 (Or. 1922); McCulley v. Hardeman, 223 S.W. 146 (Tenn. 1920).

See M. P. Rapazy, Progress of Property Law Relating to Married Women, 11 U. K.C. L. Rev. 173 (1943).

See however, Arnett v. Reade, 220 U.S. 311 (1911), where Mr. Justice Holmes questioned the power of the legislation to abolish an inchoate right of dower or wife's interest in community property without compensation.

(n708)Footnote 708. The New York law though it has abolished dower still leaves the wife such an inchoate interest in the husband's realty that he cannot defeat her interest by an inter vivos conveyance to another. Bodner v. Feit, 286 N.Y.S. 814 (1936), similar in Indiana. Fletcher v. Holmes, 32 Ind. 497 (1870).

Dower was abolished in Missouri, Mo. Rev. Stat. 1959, §474.110, as of Jan. 1, 1956, excepting dower then vested. Sando v. Phillips, 319 S.W.2d 648 (Mo. 1959).

See Charles P. Dribb, Dower, Homestead, Homestead Allowance and Release of Marital Rights Under the New Missouri Probate Code, 21 Mo. L. Rev. 151 (1956).

See also G. Rodney Johnson, The Abolition of Dower in Virginia: The Uniform Probate Code as an Alternative to Proposed Legislation, 7 U. Rich. L. Rev. 99 (1972); Ann Ellen Acker, The Abolition of Dower: An Occasion for Re-examining the Surviving Spouse's Rights in Illinois, 3 Loyola U. L.J. 94 (1972).

(n709)Footnote 709. Ness v. Lunde, 68 N.E.2d 458 (Ill. 1946) (in Illinois dower is taken in addition to widow's statutory heir's rights).

(n710)Footnote 710. See William J. O'Shea, Jr., Surviving Spouses in New York, 8 St. Johns L. Rev. 245.

(n711)Footnote 711. Barker v. Walker, 85 N.E.2d 748 (Ill. 1949).

(n712)Footnote 712. Clark v. Hanson, 151 N.E. 369 (Ill. 1926).

A statute giving a surviving spouse the right of occupancy of the dwelling house until assignment of dower or curtesy gave no vested interest, merely a permissive possession. Colbert v. Priester, 203 S.E.2d 134 (Va. 1974). See Louis H. Hamel Jr., Is Dower Back? A Consideration of Sullivan v. Burken, 28 Boston Bar Journal 17, 24 (July-Aug. 1984).

(n713)Footnote 713. Magruder v. Magruder, 141 F.2d 537 (D.C. Cir. 1944).

(n714)Footnote 714. Ferry v. Spokane, P. & S. R. Co., 258 U.S. 314 (1922); Barfoot v. Barfoot, 18 So. 2d 465 (Ala. 1944); Leffler v. Leffler, 10 So. 2d 799 (Fla. 1942); Schoellkopf v. DeVry, 7 N.E.2d 757 (Ill. 1937); Classen v. Heath, 58 N.E.2d 889 (Ill. 1945); Hatch v. Small, 59 P. 262 (Kan. 1899); Helm v. Board, 70 S.W. 679 (Ky. 1902); Rumsey v. Sullivan, 150 N.Y.S. 287 (1914); Corporation Comm'n v. Dunn, 94 S.E. 481 (N.C. 1917); Hilton v. Thatcher, 88 P. 20 (Utah 1906); Ruby v. Ruby, 163 S.E. 717 (W. Va. 1932).

See Thomas v. Blair, 93 So. 704 (Ala. 1922); Chamberlain v. Anderson, 190 N.W. 501 (Iowa 1922); 26 A.L.R. 957.

See also Jonas P. Hill, Reducing Estate Taxes By Taking Dower, 23 Fla. L.J. 316.

Marriage is such a contract as is not protected by U.S. Const. art. 1, §10. Maynard v. Hill, 125 U.S. 190 (1888).

The right to dower is determined by law at husband's death and is not protected by due process. Fletcher v. Felker, 97 F. Supp. 755 (D. Ark. 1951).

Vito v. Vito, 272 F.2d 555 (D.C. Cir. 1959) (a statute abolishing dower or curtesy and substituting an intestate share in the other spouse's realty did not have a retrospective effect).

New York has in effect established a separate expanded probate estate for the surviving spouse. This includes gifts causa mortis, Totten Trusts, joint bank accounts, joint tenancies and inter vivos trusts subject to a power to revoke, consume or invade, but does not include United States bonds, life insurance proceeds, and pension and retirement funds. N.Y. Decedent Estate Law, §§18a, 18b.

(n715)Footnote 715. Class v. Strack, 96 A. 405 (N.J. 1915).

New York statute affects property acquired prior to Sept. 1, 1930. In re Sealey's Will, 113 N.Y.S.2d 42 (1952); In re Fidler's Estate, 113 N.Y.S.2d 634 (1951).

(n716)Footnote 716. Ferry v. Spokane, P. & S.R. Co., 268 F. 117 (9th Cir. 1920), aff'd, 258 U.S. 314 (1922), 1326; Buffington v. Grosvenor, 27 P. 137 (Kan. 1891); Miner v. Morgan, 119 N.W. 781 (Neb. 1909); Bennett v. Harris, 8 N.W. 222 (Wis. 1881).

(n717)Footnote 717. Randall v. Krieger, 90 U.S. (23 Wall) 137 (1874); Bateman v. Donovan, 131 F.2d 759 (9th Cir. 1942); Boyd v. Harrison, 36 Ala. 533 (1860); State v. Boney, 245 S.W. 315 (Ark. 1922); McNeer v. McNeer, 142 Ill. 388, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Billings v. People, 59 N.E. 798 (Ill. 1901); Noel v. Ewing, 9 Ind. 37 (1857); Moore v. Kent, 37 Iowa 20 (1873); Chamberlain v. Anderson, 190 N.W. 501 (Iowa 1922); Hamblin v. Marchant, 175 P. 678 (Kan. 1918), aff'd, 180 P. 811 (Kan. 1918); Helm v. Board, 70 S.W. 679 (Ky. 1902); Barbour v. Barbour, 46 Me. 9 (1858); Griswold v. McGee, 112 N.W. 1020, 113 N.W. 382 (Minn. 1907); Magee v. Young, 40 Miss. 164 (1866); Gerhardt v. Sullivan, 152 A. 663 (N.J. 1930); Moore v. New York, 8 N.Y. 110 (1853); Weaver v. Gregg, 6 Ohio St. 547 (1856); Long v. Long, 124 N.E. 161 (Ohio 1919); Appeal of Melizet, 17 Pa. 449 (1851); Shell v. Duncan, 10 S.E. 330 (S.C. 1889); 5 L.R.A. 821.

Statute providing for shares of spouses dissenting from the will is subject to amendment by the General Assembly. Porter v. Mosely, 517 S.W.2d 524 (Tenn. 1974).

(n718)Footnote 718. Griswold v. McGee, 112 N.W. 1020, 113 N.W. 382 (Minn. 1907).

(n719)Footnote 719. In re Alexander, 30 A. 817 (N.J. 1894); Class v. Strack, 96 A. 405 (N.J. 1915).

(n720)Footnote 720. Pierce v. O'Brien, 29 F. 402 (C.C.N.D. Iowa 1886); Vito v. Vito, 272 F.2d 555 (D.C. Cir. 1959) (in District of Columbia dower has been abolished and an intestate share in other spouse's realty has been substituted, but neither spouse can convey the realty free and clear of the other spouse's share). Wadsworth v. Miller, 15 So. 520 (Ala. 1894).

Arizona did not adopt §2-113 of the U.P.C. providing for the abolition of dower and curtesy: nor §2-201, the spouse's elective share; nor §2-202, the spouse's augmented estate; nor §2-203, the spouse's personal election; nor §2-205, take time limit for election; nor §2-206, the effect of election; nor §2-207, charging the spouse with gifts received and for contribution. Graves v. Fligor, 38 N.E. 853 (Ind. 1894); Hatch v. Small, 59 P. 262 (Kan. 1899); Ellenstein v. Rider, 327 S.W.2d 945 (Ky. 1959) (in Ky. Rev. Stat., §§392.020-392.080, the widow takes one-half of the realty in fee unless she elects against the will, in which case she takes one-third for life); Leavitt v. Tasker, 76 A. 953 (Me. 1910); Cheney v. Cheney, 85 A. 387 (Me. 1912); Morrison v. Rice, 29 N.W. 168 (Minn. 1886).

Individual property may be conveyed by the spouse so as to cut off dower or curtesy. Mont. Rev. Code 1947, §36-111 did not adopt §2-113 of the U.P.C. providing for the abolition of dower and curtesy.

See Paul L. Sayre, Husband and Wife as Statutory Heirs, 42 Harv. L. Rev. 330 (1928).

> "It seems clear, therefore, that the right of the widow, under the statute, to a third of the lands of her deceased husband, is not as dowress, but it rests in her, at his death as an heir by descent. The estate thus given is much larger than that of dower. It is a fee simple, and not merely an estate for life. It differs in many other respects from dower; it entitles the wife, without assignment, to immediate possession, as a tenant in common with the other heirs, and she may convey it at pleasure. On the other hand, it has some of the incidents of dower. The widow is made a favored heir, and the interest which descends to her is exempt from liability for the payment of the debts of the estate. And so, by §27, she is not only entitled to a third of all the lands of which her husband may die seised in fee simple, and of all in which he has an equitable interest at the time of his death, but also of all of which he may have been seised in fee simple at any time during the coverture, in the conveyance of which she did not join in due form of law," etc. Fletcher v. Holmes, 32 Ind. 497 (1870).

(n721)Footnote 721. In re Cote's Will, 87 N.Y.S.2d 555 (1949).

Statutory right of husband to dissent from wife's will held unconstitutional under married woman's property provision in North Carolina. Dudley v. Staton, 126 S.E.2d 590 (N.C. 1962); 1963 Duke L.J. 161. A widow may not exercise statutory elective shares against individual pieces of property, but rather must release her dower and homestead rights to take the statutory share. Riverwood Commercial Properties, Inc. v. Cole, 639 A.2d 714 (N.H. 1994) (holding that statutory elective shares taken in place of dower and homestead rights cannot be exercised against individual pieces of property, but rather the taker must release her dower and homestead rights in the individual pieces to take the statutory share).

(n722)Footnote 722. Geiger v. Merle, 196 N.E. 497 (Ill. 1935).

In Ohio neither a husband nor a wife has a right in the other's real property, but neither can be excluded from the other's dwelling. Ohio Rev. Code, §3103.04. See Slansky v. Slansky, 293 N.E.2d 302 (Ohio 1973).

(n723)Footnote 723. Consolidated Rendering Co. v. Martin, 145 A. 896 (Me. 1929).

(n724)Footnote 724. Grissom v. Moore, 6 N.E. 629 (Ind. 1886); Fowler v. Chadima, 111 N.W. 808 (Iowa 1907); In re Noble's Estate, 190 N.W. 511 (Iowa 1922); Consolidated Rendering Co. v. Martin, 145 A. 896 (Me. 1929); Keith v. Mellenthin, 100 N.W. 366 (Minn. 1904); In re Parks, 87 P. 900 (Utah 1906).

(n725)Footnote 725. Smith v. Smith, 46 P. 128 (Colo. 1896); Small v. Small, 42 P. 323 (Kan. 1895), 30 L.R.A. 243; Wash v. Wash, 87 S.W. 993 (Mo. 1905).

(n726)Footnote 726. Henderson v. United States, 18 F. Supp. 404 (Ct. Cl. 1937); McGuire v. Cook, 135 S.W. 840 (Ark. 1911); Blankenship v. Hall, 84 N.E. 192 (Ill. 1908); Magee v. Young, 40 Miss. 164 (1866); Davidson v. Richardson, 89 P. 742, 91 P. 1080 (Or. 1907).

(n727)Footnote 727. Mathewson v. Mathewson, 63 A. 285 (Conn. 1906); Harrington v. Lowe, 84 P. 570 (Kan. 1906); Flandermeyer v. Cooper, 98 N.E. 102 (Ohio 1912).

Florida has extended statutory rights in lieu of dower to widowers, but permits either spouse to sell realty during lifetime. This is effective as of October 1, 1973. Fla. Stat. 1973, §§731.34 - 731.66.

Either spouse may make transfers of his or her property without the other spouse's consent as long as not a mere sham or only intangible because lacking essential donative intent. Dzralaray's Estate v. Dzralaray, 368 N.E.2d 780 (Ill. App. 1977).

(n728)Footnote 728. Perkins v. Blethen, 78 A. 574 (Me. 1911); Frankel v. Frankel, 53 N.E. 398 (Mass. 1899); Schilling v. Darmody, 52 S.W. 291 (Tenn. 1899).

(n729)Footnote 729. Wilson v. Hilligoss, 278 Ill. App. 564 (1935); In re Judd's Estate, 11 N.E.2d 989 (Ill. App. 1937) (Illinois law applies to both realty and personalty).

(n730)Footnote 730. In re Bachmann's Estate, 272 N.Y.S. 467 (1934).

(n731)Footnote 731. Under §18 of the New York Decedent's Estates Act a testator not survived by issue must leave 50% of his estate to his widow or set up a trust for her for life for that amount. In re Niedelman's Estate, 175 N.Y.S.2d 694 (1958).

In New York the statutory right of the wife is a sufficiently strong legal interest to permit her to set aside an illusory transfer in fraud of her statutory right. See Harry H. Schneider & Bertram M. Landesman, Life, Liberty and Dower, 19 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 343 (1942).

In Florida the surviving spouse inherits all if there are no lineal descendants. Fla. Stat. 1971, §781.23(2).

New Hampshire now has statutory rights in lieu of dower and curtesy. N.H. Rev. Stat. 1955, §560:3.

(n732)Footnote 732. In re Sadowski's Estate 26 Erie 287 (Pa.).

(n733)Footnote 733. Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Tait, 3 F. Supp. 51 (D. Md. 1933).

(n734)Footnote 734. Florida chapter 71-25 bars widow's dower unless she files an instrument within three years after her husband's death claiming dower. Fla. Stat. 1969, §733.11.

(n735)Footnote 735. Nebraska did not adopt §2-113 of the U.P.C. providing for the abolition of dower and curtesy.

(n736)Footnote 736. Mont. Code §36-111.

(n737)Footnote 737. Ind. Code §29-1-2-1-2; Ind. Code §29-1-2-3.1.

(n738)Footnote 738. See Lavere C. Sertt, Antenuptial Agreements in Pennsylvania, 55 Dick. L. Rev. 382 (1951).

(n739)Footnote 739. William Blackstone, Commentries 137.

(n740)Footnote 740. Fuller v. Virginia Trust Co., 33 S.E.2d 201 (Va. 1955).

In Indiana a married man may encumber or contract or deed realty which he owns without his wife joining. And such a conveyance bars the wife's marital interest. Ind. Code §29-1-2-3.1.

(n741)Footnote 741. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 139.

(n742)Footnote 742. Coke on Littleton, §36b. 2 Bl. Comm. 137.

A conveyance by the husband to the wife for life with remainder over to himself or another is a jointure and bars dower. Ramsey v. Yount, 120 N.E. 618 (Ind. App. 1918).

(n743)Footnote 743. O'Brien v. Elliott, 15 Me. 125 (1838); Stilley v. Folger, 14 Ohio 610 (1846); Caruthers v. Caruthers, 4 Bro. Ch. 500, 29 Eng. Rep. 1010 (1794).

Parties to an antenuptial contract stand in a confidential relationship to each other. Kline v. Kline, 57 Pa. 120 (1868).

Althouse v. Althouse, 50 Del. Co. 182 (Pa.).

See Antenuptial Agreements: the Contractual Incapacity of Minors, 22 Loyola L. Rev. 1061 (1976).

(n744)Footnote 744. Fahs v. Merrill, 142 F.2d 651 (5th Cir. 1944); Simpson v. Weatherman, 227 S.W.2d 148 (Ark. 1950); North v. Ringling, 7 So. 2d 476 (Fla. 1940); Parker v. Gray, 148 N.E. 323 (Ill. 1925); Lagow v. Snapp, 81

N.E.2d 144 (Ill. 1948); Lefebure v. Lefebure, 121 N.W. 1025 (Iowa 1909); Veeder v. Veeder, 192 N.W. 409 (Iowa 1923); 29 A.L.R. 191;Fischer v. Leach, 258 P. 295 (Kan. 1927); In re Garden's Estate, 148 P.2d 745 (Kan. 1944); Wellington v. Rugg, 136 N.E. 831 (Mass. 1922); French v. McAnarney, 195 N.E. 714 (Mass. 1935); 98 A.L.R. 530; Chapman v. Corbin, 316 S.W.2d 880 (Mo. App. 1958); Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. 1955); Hurwitz v. Hurwitz, 215 N.Y.S. 184 (1926); In re Saffer's Estate, 241 N.Y.S.2d 681 (1963); Speckman v. Speckman, 128 N.E.2d 761 (Ohio App. 1954); In re Fennell's Estate, 56 A. 875 (Pa. 1904); McCulley v. Hardeman, 223 S.W. 146 (Tenn. 1920).

Premarital agreements are of a personal nature and do not descend to the heirs of a spouse. Frey v. Estate of Sargent, 533 S.W.2d 142 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976).

(n745)Footnote 745. Jones v. McGonigle, 37 S.W.2d 892 (Mo. 1931); In re Gillen's Estate, 380 P.2d 357 (Kan. 1963).

(n746)Footnote 746. Whistler v. Allward, 12 N.E.2d 299 (Ohio App. 1936).

(n747)Footnote 747. Wlodarek v. Wlodarek, 175 A. 455 (Md. 1934)

> The general rule deducible from the great weight of authority is that a marriage settlement, which was valid in its formation and which was not fraudulently induced in contemplation of the subsequent marital misconduct, is not abrogated by the divorce of the parties for marital misconduct arising after the marriage, unless the language of the instrument or contract contains an express provision against the conduct in question.

Crise v. Smith, 133 A. 110 (Md. 1920).

Failure of a husband to disclose an existing life interest in a trust giving him a substantial tax-free income made invalid antenuptial agreements with the wife, since the trust was not property over which the husband had a right of testamentary disposition and to which the wife could assert dower. In re Perelman's Estate, 263 A.2d 375 (Pa. 1970).

(n748)Footnote 748. Lawrence v. Bartlett, 84 Mass. (2 Allen) 36 (1861); In re Appleby's Estate, 111 N.W. 305 (Minn. 1907).

(n749)Footnote 749. Prewit v. Wilson, 103 U.S. 22 (1880); Dova v. Hancock, 102 So. 646 (Fla. 1924); Braecklein v. McNamara, 127 A. 497 (Md. 1925).

An antenuptial contract which purports to restrict the husband's property liability is void as against public policy, Fricke v. Fricke, 42 N.W.2d 500 (Wis. 1950); even where antenuptial contracts contemplating death are valid. In re Appleby's Estate, 111 N.W. 305 (Minn. 1907).

(n750)Footnote 750. Barrow v. Barrow, 2 Dickens 504, 21 Eng. Rep. 365 (1774).

(n751)Footnote 751. Appeal of Staub, 33 A. 615 (Conn. 1895); In re Cowles' Appeal, 49 A. 195 (Conn. 1901); McMahill v. McMahill, 113 Ill. 461 (1885); Dickason v. English, 112 N.E. 65 (Ill. 1916); Shaffer v. Matthews, 77 Ind. 83 (1881); McNutt v. McNutt, 19 N.E. 115 (Ind. 1888), 2 L.R.A. 372; Roush v. Hullinger, 86 N.E.2d 714 (Ind. App. 1949); Paine v. Hollister, 29 N.E. 541 (Mass. 1885); Desnoyer v. Jordan, 7 N.W. 140 (Minn. 1880); Tiernan v. Binns, 92 Pa. 248 (1879); In re Deller's Estate, 124 N.W. 278 (Wis. 1910).

(n752)Footnote 752. Robbins v. Robbins, 80 N.E. 326 (Ill. 1907); McFadden v. McFadden, 139 A.2d 774 (N.J. Super. 1958). See Hudnall v. Ham, 56 N.E. 172 (Ill. 1899).

Transfer is merely prima facie fraudulent. Dunbar v. Dunbar, 98 N.E. 563 (Ill. 1912); Bookout v. Bookout, 49 N.E. 824 (Ind. 1898).

No presumption as to fraud. Noah v. Noah, 224 N.W. 611 (Mich. 1929); Dudley v. Dudley, 45 N.W. 602 (Wis. 1890).

Transfer on eve of marriage is fraudulent if clandestine as a matter of law. Arnegaard v. Arnegaard, 75 N.W. 797 (N.D. 1898); Ward v. Ward, 57 N.E. 1095 (Ohio 1900).

Dower can be barred by an antenuptial agreement only by a fair and reasonable provision for the wife or in absence thereof a full disclosure of the husband's wealth and independent advice with full knowledge of the woman's marital property rights. Batleman v. Rubin, 98 S.E.2d 519 (Va. 1957).

(n753)Footnote 753. King v. King, 82 S.W. 101 (Mo. 1904); Luther v. Luther, 67 S.E.2d 345 (N.C. 1951) (statute authorizing releasing of dower required written instrument).

(n754)Footnote 754. Martin v. Martin, 22 Ala. 86 (1853); Robertson v. Robertson, 25 Iowa 350 (1868); McKee v. Reynolds, 26 Iowa 578 (1869); Paup v. Shelby County State Bank, 193 N.W. 529 (Iowa 1923) (statutory provision); Rowe v. Hamilton, 3 Greenl. 63 (Me. 1824); Johnson v. Marsh, 19 N.W.2d 366 (Neb. 1945); Focht v. Wakefield, 17 N.W.2d 627 (Neb. 1945); Carson v. Murray, 3 Paige 483 (N.Y. 1832); Martin v. Dwelly, 6 Wend. 9 (N.Y. 1830); McFarland v. Febiger, 7 Ohio 194 (1835); House v. Fowle, 25 P. 376 (Or. 1890); in Oregon neither husband nor wife can contract with the other regarding any estate growing out of the marriage relation, and conveyances between married persons intended to cut off or relinquish such estates as curtesy or dower are entirely void. Chance v. Weston, 190 P. 155 (Or. 1920); McMorris v. Webb, 17 S.C. 558 (1882); Land v. Shipp, 36 S.E. 391 (Va. 1900); Lewis v. Apperson, 49 S.E. 978 (Va. 1905); Powell v. Tilson, 170 S.E. 750 (Va. 1933).

(n755)Footnote 755. Mather v. Mather, 154 P.2d 684 (Cal. 1984); Stokes v. Stokes, 88 N.E. 829 (Ill. 1909); Edwards v. Edwards, 107 N.E. 847 (Ill. 1915); Bechtel v. Barton, 110 N.W. 935 (Mich. 1907); Hogg v. Lindridge, 135 N.Y.S. 928 (1912); In re Fennell's Estate, 56 A. 875 (Pa. 1904); In re Nickolay's Estate, 25 N.W.2d 451 (Wis. 1946) (postnuptial contract will bar dower).

If spouses have previously executed a deed of separation authorizing the other to individually convey an interest in realty, a subsequent conveyance by the authorized spouse is valid. N. C. Gen. Stat., §39-13.4.

(n756)Footnote 756. Pfifer v. First Nat'l Bank, 385 P.2d 1007 (Or. 1863).

Property settlement entered into, contemplating divorce, did not prevent wife from electing against the will where testator died before divorce. Crist v. Nesbit, 352 S.W.2d 53 (Mo. 1961).

(n757)Footnote 757. Stokes v. Stokes, 88 N.E. 829 (Ill. 1909).

(n758)Footnote 758. Williamson v. First Nat'l Bank, 164 S.E. 777 (W. Va. 1931).

An antenuptial agreement can fix alimony in the event of ultimate separation or divorce of the parties but may be increased or decreased under changed conditions under the divorce statutes. Such agreement is not void as against public policy. Posner v. Posner, 237 So. 2d 186 (Fla. App. 1970).

In Virginia for an antenuptial contract to be valid there must be: (a) a full and fair disclosure of financial worth, (b) a fair and reasonable provision for the wife or adequate evidence that with full knowledge she had waived, and (c) if the wife's provision is not fair and reasonable the burden is on the husband to uphold the contract. Batleman v. Rubin, 98 S.E.2d 519 (Va. 1957).

(n759)Footnote 759. Merchants Nat'l Bank v. Hubbard, 133 So. 723 (Ala. 1931).

(n760)Footnote 760. Bechtel v. Barton, 110 N.W. 935 (Mich. 1907).

(n761)Footnote 761. Hill v. Boland, 93 A. 395 (Md. 1915).

(n762)Footnote 762. Redwine v. Redwine, 169 S.W. 864 (Ky. 1914); Harley v. Orvin, 14 S.E.2d 701 (S.C. 1941); In re Cortte's Estate, 283 N.W. 336 (Wis. 1939). See Collier v. Tatum, 160 So. 530 (Ala. 1935) (agreement held unenforceable because of coercion of husband).

(n763)Footnote 763. In re Bell, 50 P. 615 (Utah 1905).

(n764)Footnote 764. Egger v. Egger, 123 S.W. 928 (Mo. 1909).

(n765)Footnote 765. In re McVay's Estate, 103 A. 505 (Pa. 1918).

(n766)Footnote 766. North v. North, 100 S.W.2d 582 (Mo. 1936); Davis v. Davis, 196 S.W.2d 447 (Mo. App. 1946); Meyer v. Meyer, 91 N.E.2d 892 (Ohio 1950). See Harris v. Internal Rev. Comm'r, 340 U.S. 106 (1950) (postnuptial settlement in contemplation of divorce was not a taxable gift).

(n767)Footnote 767. Simpson v. Weatherman, 227 S.W.2d 148 (Ark. 1950); Van Koten v. Van Koten, 154 N.E. 146 (Ill. 1926); Keller v. Keller, 247 P. 433 (Kan. 1926); Pearre v. Grossnickle, 114 A. 725 (Md. 1921); Smith v. Johnson, 14 N.W.2d 424 (Neb. 1944); Eschner v. Eschner, 131 S.E. 800 (Va. 1926); Welsh v. Welsh, 69 S.E.2d 34 (W. Va. 1952) (intent to release dower must be clearly manifested); In re Nickolay's Estate, 25 N.W.2d 451 (Wis. 1946).

(n768)Footnote 768. In re Berner, 187 N.W. 377 (Mich. 1922).

(n769)Footnote 769. Merchants Nat'l Bank v. Hubbard, 133 So. 723 (Ala. 1931); Rash v. Bogart, 146 So. 814 (Ala. 1933); Sherman v. Sherman, 252 S.W. 27 (Ark. 1923); Fischer v. Leach, 258 P. 295 (Kan. 1927); In re Schweizer, 199 N.Y.S. 948 (1923); Hoagland v. Hoagland, 148 N.E. 585 (Ohio 1925).

Such an agreement will not be sustained when it is part of a collusive agreement to obtain a divorce. Gurley v. Gorman, 102 So. 65 (Miss. 1924).

If spouses have previously executed a deed of separation authorizing the other to individually convey an interest in realty, a subsequent conveyance by the authorized spouse is valid. N.C. Gen. Stat., §39-13.4.

(n770)Footnote 770. Sherman v. Sherman, 252 S.W. 27 (Ark. 1923).

(n771)Footnote 771. In re Friese's Estate, 9 A.2d 401 (Pa. 1939).

(n772)Footnote 772. In re Cortte's Estate, 283 N.W. 336 (Wis. 1939).

(n773)Footnote 773. Harlan v. Weatherly, 31 S.E.2d 263 (Va. 1944).

(n774)Footnote 774. In re McClellan's Estate, 75 A.2d 595 (Pa. 1950).

Dower can be barred by an antenuptial agreement only by a fair and reasonable provision for the wife or in absence thereof a full disclosure of the husband's wealth and independent advice with full knowledge of the woman's marital property rights. Batleman v. Rubin, 98 S.E.2d 519 (Va. 1957).

(n775)Footnote 775. In re Welch's Estate, 223 P.2d 978 (Kan. 1950); In re Johnson's Estate, 224 P.2d 1032 (Kan. 1950); In re Sturmer's Estate, 100 N.E.2d 155 (N.Y. 1951).

(n776)Footnote 776. Ind. Stat., §6-306. In re McClellan's Estate, 75 A.2d 595 (Pa. 1950).

(n777)Footnote 777. In re Patterson's Will, 73 N.Y.S.2d 433 (1947).

(n778)Footnote 778. First Nat'l Bank v. Miley, 65 A.2d 553 (N.J. Super. 1949); In re Paulson's Will, 36 N.W.2d 95 (Wis. 1949).

(n779)Footnote 779. Bartle v. Bartle, 216 P.2d 649 (Colo. 1950).

(n780)Footnote 780. Id.

(n781)Footnote 781. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries, 137. A jointure was given the wife in lieu of dower where the husband had only a use, since there was no dower where the husband was not seised.

(n782)Footnote 782. McGee v. McGee, 91 Ill. 548 (1879); Grider v. Eubanks, 75 Ky. (12 Bush) 510 (1877); Vance v. Vance, 21 Me. 364 (1842); Hastings v. Dickinson, 7 Mass. 153 (1810); Martien v. Norris, 3 S.W. 849 (Mo. 1887); Graham v. Graham, 22 N.Y.S. 299 (1893); Grogan v. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 50 (1875).

(n783)Footnote 783. Vance v. Vance, 21 Me. 364 (1842).

(n784)Footnote 784. Culberson v. Culberson, 37 Ga. 296 (1867); Worrell v. Forsyth, 30 N.E. 673 (Ill. 1892); Jenkins v. Holt, 109 Mass. 261 (1872); Graham v. Graham, 22 N.Y.S. 299 (1893); Pierce v. Pierce, 71 N.Y. 154 (1877); Cauley v. Lawson, 58 N.C. 132 (1859); Stilley v. Folger, 14 Ohio 610 (1846); Hinkle v. Hinkle, 11 S.E. 993 (W. Va. 1890).

Although void at law, postnuptial agreements between husband and wife for release of dower have been enforceable in equity if fair and equitable, and sustained by adequate consideration, and wife's consent has been given understandingly uninfluenced by fraud, deceit, oppression or duress. Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 106 A.2d 20, aff'd, 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. Super. 1955).

Even if corporation which held land subject to life estate in one of corporate owners was holding land "to the use of" husband, widow upon husband's decease was not entitled to dower interest in such property where she had had adequate compensation for release of her dower interest in property, upon signing of separation agreement. Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 106 A.2d 20 (N.J. Super. 1954), aff'd, 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. Super. 1955).

Where wife willingly, knowingly and understandingly executed a release of dower in certain realty, receiving therefor consideration which was not grossly inadequate, such release effectively conveyed wife's interest in such property and precluded her from subsequently recovering dower. Hampton v. Hampton Holding Co., 106 A.2d 20 (N.J. Super. 1954), aff'd, 111 A.2d 761 (N.J. Super. 1955).

(n785)Footnote 785. A conveyance by the husband to the wife for life, with remainder over to himself and another, is a jointure and bars dower. Ramsey v. Yount, 120 N.E. 618 (Ind. App. 1918).

(n786)Footnote 786. Mannan v. Mannan, 55 N.E. 855 (Ind. 1900).

(n787)Footnote 787. Huff v. Wheeler, 59 N.Y.S. 716 (1899).

(n788)Footnote 788. Mannan v. Mannan, 55 N.E. 855 (Ind. 1900).

(n789)Footnote 789. 1 Coke, Inst. 37(a). See Bryan v. Bryan, 34 S.W. 260 (Ark. 1896); Comstock v. Comstock, 225 S.W. 621 (Ark. 1920); Grider v. Eubanks, 75 Ky. (12 Bush) 510 (1877); Vance v. Vance, 21 Me. 364 (1842); Saunders v. Saunders, 46 S.W. 428 (Mo. 1898).

See Lavere C. Scott, Antenuptial Contracts in Pennsylvania, 55 Dick. L. Rev. 382.

(n790)Footnote 790. Hannon v. Hannon, 127 P. 466 (Mont. 1912); Rowell v. Barber, 125 N.W. 937 (Wis. 1910).

(n791)Footnote 791. Earl of Bucks v. Drury, 3 Bro. Parl. Ca. 492 See Jordan v. Savage, Bac. Ab. Vol. 3, 717.

(n792)Footnote 792. Hastings v. Dickinson, 7 Mass. 153 (1810); Gibson v. Gibson, 15 Mass. 106 (1818); Sullings v. Richmond, 87 Mass. (5 Allen) 187 (1862); Hannon v. Hannon, 127 P. 466 (Mont. 1912); Gelzer v. Gelzer, 1 S.C. Eq. (Bail. Eq.) 387 (1831).

(n793)Footnote 793. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 137.

(n794)Footnote 794. Statute 27 Hen. 8, ch. 10, §6.

(n795)Footnote 795. Saunders v. Saunders, 46 S.W. 428 (Mo. 1898); Verplank v. Sterry, 12 Johns. 536 (N.Y. 1815); Appeal of Jones, 62 Pa. 324 (1869); Herring v. Wickham, 70 Va. (29 Gratt.) 628 (1878).

(n796)Footnote 796. Crump v. Crump, 107 S.W. 778 (Ky. 1908); Maynard v. Maynard, 146 S.W.2d 343 (Ky. 1940).

(n797)Footnote 797. Bryan v. Bryan, 34 S.W. 260 (Ark. 1896).

(n798)Footnote 798. Glase v. Davis, 21 N.E. 319 (Ind. 1889).

(n799)Footnote 799. Roush v. Hullinger, 86 N.E.2d 714 (Ind. App. 1949).

(n800)Footnote 800. Coke on Littleton, §36b; 2 Blackstone, Commentaries 137; Andrews v. Andrews, 8 Conn. 79 (1830); Culberson v. Culberson, 37 Ga. 296 (1867); Grider v. Eubanks, 75 Ky. (12 Bush) 510 (1870); Vance v. Vance, 21 Me. 364 (1842); Wentworth v. Wentworth, 69 Me. 247 (1879); Miller v. Goodwin, 74 Mass. (8 Gray) 542 (1857); Perry v. Perryman, 19 Mo. 469 (1854); McCartee v. Teller, 8 Wend 267 (N.Y. 1831); Graham v. Graham, 22 N.Y.S. 299 (1893); In re Phillips, 58 N.E.2d 504 (N.Y. 1944); Grogan v. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 50 (1875); In re McCready's Estate, 175 A. 554 (Pa. 1934); Land v. Shipp, 36 S.E. 391 (Va. 1900); Vernon's Case, 4 Coke 1; Drury v. Drury, 2 Eden 39.

(n801)Footnote 801. Shaw v. Boyd, 5 Serg. & Rawle 309 (Pa. 1819).

(n802)Footnote 802. Broyles v. Magee, 71 S.W.2d 149 (Mo. App. 1934).

(n803)Footnote 803. Coke on Littleton, §36b; Butts v. Trice, 69 Ga. 74 (1882); Shane v. McNeill, 41 N.W. 166 (Iowa 1889); Newby v. Cox, 4 Ky. L. 744 (1883); Swaine v. Perine, 5 Johns. Ch. 482 (N.Y. Ch. 1821); Appeal of Hitner, 54 Pa. 110 (1867); Land v. Shipp, 36 S.E. 391 (Va. 1900); Vernon's Case, 4 Coke 1.

Contra, Garbut v. Bowling, 81 Mo. 214 (1883).

(n804)Footnote 804. Jones v. McGonigle, 37 S.W.2d 892 (Mo. 1931).

(n805)Footnote 805. McCaulley v. McCaulley, 30 A. 735 (Del. 1884).

(n806)Footnote 806. Pippin v. Sams, 177 S.E. 659 (S.C. 1934).

(n807)Footnote 807. Chase v. Alley, 19 A. 397 (Me. 1890).

A conveyance to the wife during lifetime is not a jointure in lieu of dower, since a jointure takes effect on the husband's death not in praesenti. Fuller v. Virginia Trust Co., 33 S.E.2d 201 (Va. 1945).

(n808)Footnote 808. Watson v. Watson, 174 S.E. 33 (S.C. 1934).

(n809)Footnote 809. Juhasz v. Juhasz, 16 N.E.2d 328 (Ohio St. 1938).

(n810)Footnote 810. Finn v. Grant, 278 N.W. 225 (Iowa 1938).

(n811)Footnote 811. 1 William Cruise & Simon Greenleaf, A Digest of the Law of Real Property (2d ed. 1856-57) 195.

(n812)Footnote 812. Ashton's Case, 2 Dyer 228a; 43 Eng. Rep. 504 (N.D.).

(n813)Footnote 813. See 1 R. S. Donnison Roper, A Treatise on the Law of Property Arising from the Relation Between Husband and Wife 465 (1824).

(n814)Footnote 814. Huff v. Wheeler, 59 N.Y.S. 716 (1889).

(n815)Footnote 815. 2 Hen. 7, ch. 20.

(n816)Footnote 816. Bassett v. Bassett, Finch. 189, 23 Eng. Rep. 104 (1674); Cook v. Winford, 1 Ab. Eq. 221.

(n817)Footnote 817. Fisher v. Forbes, 9 Vin. Ab. 373, 22 Eng. Rep. 334 (1734).

(n818)Footnote 818. 1 Coke Inst. 36(b); Vance v. Vance, 21 Me. 364 (1842); Hastings v. Dickinson, 7 Mass. 153 (1810); Crain v. Cavana, 36 Barb. (N.Y.) 410; McCartee v. Teller 8 Wend. 267 (N.Y. 1831); Grogan v. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 50 (1875); Fuller v. Virginia Trust Co., 33 S.E.2d 201 (Va. 1945).

(n819)Footnote 819. Chaffee v. Chaffee, 40 A. 247 (Vt. 1897); Land v. Shipp, 36 S.E. 391 (Va. 1900).

(n820)Footnote 820. Wood v. Shirley, Cro. Jac. 486; Caruthers v. Caruthers, 4 Bro. Ch. 500.

(n821)Footnote 821. Redwine v. Redwine, 169 S.W. 864 (Ky. 1914).

(n822)Footnote 822. Vance v. Vance, 21 Me. 364 (1842); Schnepfe v. Schnepfe, 92 A. 891 (Md. 1914); Cunningham v. Cunningham, 148 A. 444 (Md. 1930); Jones v. McGonigle, 37 S.W.2d 892 (Mo. 1931); Grogan v. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 50 (1875); Shackelford v. Shackelford, 27 S.E.2d 354 (Va. 1943).

(n823)Footnote 823. Comstock v. Comstock, 225 S.W. 621 (Ark. 1920); Maynard v. Maynard, 146 S.W.2d 343 (Ky. 1940) But see Eaton v. Eaton, 124 N.E. 37 (Mass. 1919).

(n824)Footnote 824. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 137; Kenelm Edward Digby, An Introduction to The History of The Law of Real Property (2d ed. 1876); Digby, Hist. Law Real Prop. (5th ed.), 351.

(n825)Footnote 825. 27 Hen. 8, ch. 10.

(n826)Footnote 826. Coke on Littleton, §36b; Kennedy v. Kennedy, 50 N.E. 756 (Ind. 1898); Vance v. Vance, 21 Me. 364 (1842); Schnibbe v. Schnibbe, 179 N.Y.S. 54, aff'd, 182 N.Y.S. 949 (App. Div. 1920); Grogan v. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 50 (1875).

"But then these four requisites must be punctually observed:

> 1. The jointure must take effect immediately on the death of the husband. 2. It must be for her own life at least, and not pur autre vie, or for any term of years, or other smaller estate. 3. It must be made to herself, and no other in trust for her. 4. It must be made, and so in the deed particularly expressed to be, in satisfaction of her whole dower, and not of any particular part of it. If the jointure be made to her after marriage, she has her election after husband's death, as in dower ad ostium ecclesiae, and may either accept it, or refuse it and betake herself to her dower at common law; for she was not capable of consenting to it during coverture. And if, by any fraud or accident, a jointure made before marriage proves to be on a bad title, and the jointress is evicted, or turned out of possession, she shall then (by the provisions of the same statute) have her dower pro tanto at the common law." 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 138.

(n827)Footnote 827. See Cowdrey v. Cowdrey, 67 A. 111 (N.J. Eq. 1907).

(n828)Footnote 828. Gelzer v. Gelzer, 1 S.C. 387 (1831).

(n829)Footnote 829. See Restatement, Conflict of Laws, §332.

(n830)Footnote 830. If the estate be made to others in fee simple, or for her life, in trust, so that the estate remain in them, although it be for her benefit, and by her assent, yet it is no bar to dower. 1 Coke Inst. 36(b). See Fraser v. Stokes, 71 S.E. 545 (Va. 1911).

(n831)Footnote 831. Craig v. Craig, 90 Ind. 215 (1883); Swaine v. Perine, 5 Johns. Ch. 482 (N.Y. Ch. 1821); Barnet v. Barnet, 15 Serg. & Rawle 72 (Pa. 1826).

(n832)Footnote 832. Rev. Stat., §392.120; Gen. Laws 1955, ch. 189, §§7, 9; Comp. Laws 1948, §§558.14, 558.15, 558.20; Mckinney's Consol. Laws, Real Prop. Law, §§197, 199.

(n833)Footnote 833. Perry v. Perryman, 19 Mo. 469 (1854); King v. King, 82 S.W. 101 (Mo. 1904).

(n834)Footnote 834. Perry v. Perryman, 19 Mo. 469 (1854); Rice v. Waddill, 67 S.W. 605 (Mo. 1902); King v. King, 82 S.W. 101 (Mo. 1904); Lowe v. Lowe, 146 S.W. 100 (Mo. App. 1912); Grogan v. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 50 (1875); Fuller v. Virginia Trust Co., 33 S.E.2d 201 (Va. 1945).

(n835)Footnote 835. Chase v. Alley, 19 A. 397 (Me. 1890).

(n836)Footnote 836. Pepper v. Thomas, 4 S.W. 297 (Ky. 1887) See Pearre v. Grossnickle, 114 A. 725 (Md. 1921).

(n837)Footnote 837. Vernon's Case, 4 Coke 1(a).

(n838)Footnote 838. Morgan v. Sparks, 108 S.W. 233 (Ky. L. 1908).

(n839)Footnote 839. Case v. Collins, 76 N.E. 781 (Ind. App. 1906); Vance v. Vance, 21 Me. 364 (1842); Hastings v. Dickinson, 7 Mass. 153 (1810); In re Pulling's Estate, 52 N.W. 1116 (Mich. 1892); Gelzer v. Gelzer, 1 S.C. Eq. 387 (1831); Vernon's Case, 4 Coke 1(a).

(n840)Footnote 840. Dickason v. English, 112 N.E. 65 (Ill. 1916); Land v. Shipp, 36 S.E. 391 (Va. 1900).

(n841)Footnote 841. Connecticut. Andrews v. Andrews, 8 Conn. 79 (1830); Worrell v. Forsyth, 30 N.E. 673 (Ill. 1892); Logan v. Phillipps, 18 Mo. 22 (1853); Tisdale v. Jones, 38 Barb. 523 (N.Y. 1860); Grogan v. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 50 (1875).

(n842)Footnote 842. Vernon's Case, 4 Coke 1.

(n843)Footnote 843. Id..

(n844)Footnote 844. Richardson v. Richardson, 75 Me. 570 (1884); Saunders v. Saunders, 46 S.W. 428 (Mo. 1898). Contra Jordan v. Clark, 81 Ill. 465 (1876).

(n845)Footnote 845. Hastings v. Dickinson, 7 Mass. 153 (1810); Ambler v. Norton, 4 Hen. & M. 23 (Va. 1809).

(n846)Footnote 846. Tevis v. McCreary, 60 Ky. (3 Met.) 151 (1860); Grider v. Eubanks, 75 Ky. (12 Bush) 510 (1876).

(n847)Footnote 847. Grider v. Eubanks, 75 Ky. (12 Bush) 510 (1877).

(n848)Footnote 848. McCaulley v. McCaulley, 30 A. 735 (Del. 1884).

(n849)Footnote 849. Andrews v. Andrews, 8 Conn. 79 (1830); Logan v. Phillipps, 18 Mo. 22 (1853); Stilley v. Folger, 14 Ohio 610 (1846); Caruthers v. Caruthers, 4 Bro. Ch. 500, 29 Eng. Rep. 1010 (1794); Drury v. Drury, 2 Eden 39, 28 Eng. Rep. 810 (1760).

> "An antenuptial contract, by which it is attempted to regulate and control the interest which each of the parties to the marriage shall take in the property of the other, during coventure or after death, such as dower and the like, are favored by the courts, and will be enforced in equity according to the intention of the parties, whenever the contingency provided by the contract arises."

Kroell v. Kroell, 76 N.E. 63 (Ill. 1905). See Schnepfe v. Schnepfe, 92 A. 891 (Md. 1914).

(n850)Footnote 850. Redwine v. Redwine, 169 S.W. 864 (Ky. 1914).

(n851)Footnote 851. 4 Kent's Comm. 55; Levering v. Heighe, 3 Md. Ch. 365 (1850), 29 Eng. Rep. 1010 (1794).

(n852)Footnote 852. Andrews v. Andrews, 8 Conn. 79 (1830); Hannon v. Hannon, 127 P. 466 (Mont. 1912); Grogan v. Garrison, 27 Ohio St. 50 (1875), Shaw v. Boyd, 5 Serg. & Rawle 309 (Pa. 1819).

(n853)Footnote 853. Vincent v. Spooner, 56 Mass. (2 Cush.) 467 (1848).

(n854)Footnote 854. Worrell v. Forsyth, 30 N.E. 673 (Ill. 1892); Logan v. Phillipps, 18 Mo. 22 (1853); Tisdale v. Jones, 38 Barb. 523 (N.Y. 1860).

(n855)Footnote 855. Shaw v. Boyd, 5 Serg. & Rawle 309 (Pa. 1819).

(n856)Footnote 856. Garrard v. Garrard, 70 Ky. (7 Bush) 436 (1870).

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 21.03

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based on Ch. 30 of George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), and describes the American common law on several subjects now largely governed by state statutes. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 21.03 Curtesy at Common Law

[Go To Main]

21.03(a) Husband's Rights at Common Law During Coverture in Realty Belonging to the Wife n857

At common law the husband and wife were but one person. n858 The wife was merged in the husband. n859 Therefore, the husband during coverture was entitled to the possession and control of the real estate owned by his wife, and he was the absolute owner of the rents and profits of such real estate during the joint lives of himself and wife. n860 The husband's estate in his wife's lands was one of freehold. n861 The husband and the wife were jointly seised in fee of the lands of the wife. n862

Under the common-law rule, the property belonging to the wife could be sold for the duration of the marriage to satisfy the husband's debts. n863 The rule applied as well to estates where the wife was only a joint owner and not the sole owner of the property, n864 to life estates held by her, n865 to estates owned by the husband and wife by the entirety n866 and to real estate which came to her after marriage. n867 If she was the owner of chattels real, he had the same rights to them as to personalty proper, except that, if they were not disposed of in his lifetime, they belonged to her upon his death. n868 Inasmuch as the husband's interest in the wife's real estate continued during coverture, and this might last for life, such interest was a freehold. n869 So also was the right and title to the proceeds of a sale of the wife's real property, made with the husband's assent, vested in the husband unless it was otherwise provided by contract. n870

During coverture the husband could alienate n871 or lease n872 the wife's real estate, and the wife's real estate was subject to sale on execution for his debts, n873 although he could not make such disposition of it as would bind her after the coverture ceased whether by divorce or death. n874 At common law, even as modified by usage in this country, both the husband and wife were seised of her real estate, he of the freehold and she of the fee therein. A conveyance could only be made by both joining in the grant. n875 The husband's conveyance, without the wife joining in the deed, passed only his marital interest, although he attempted to convey a fee. n876 Under the common law a married woman could not own property. n877 The husband had a freehold estate in his wife's real property, n878 and such estate was transferable by deed. n879 The possessory right to the wife's real property, n880 and full title to the rents and profits thereof, were in the husband. n881

Owing to the evident hardship of the common-law rule permitting the husband, during coverture, to hold a freehold interest in the wife's real estate, as well as to the rents and profits thereof, courts of equity, at an early date, adopted the doctrine of a married woman's equitable separate estate, whereby her property was secured to her sole and separate use during coverture, free from the husband's control and exempt from his debts. n882 This equitable separate estate is to be distinguished from the separate estate of a married woman created by legislation. This is an estate which without legislation would not have been separate, but subject to the common-law marital rights of the husband. It was not an estate which, by the instrument creating it, is freed from those rights and is separate in contemplation of a court of equity. n883 Real estate purchased by a married woman with her own money is equitably her property, and it cannot be subjected to a judgment against her husband. n884

This "separate property," used with reference to land owned by a wife, means property that a wife owns in her individual right, as distinguished from lands in which she has some right or title growing out of the marital relation. n885 This separate interest of the wife originally required a trustee in whom was vested the legal title so the husband would have no control, but in recent years, if property is granted or devised for the wife's separate and exclusive use, a court of equity will enforce the gift against the husband and his creditors, and even declare him to be the trustee. n886 The wife may hold this separate estate without the intervention of a trustee. n887

In creating this equitable separate estate for the wife, no particular form of conveyance is required, but the intention that it shall be enjoyed by her free from his control must be clearly expressed. It is a safe practice to insert in the habendum clause the words "to her sole and separate use" or words of similar import. n888 However, the use of technical words is not necessary. n889 All that is necessary to create an equitable separate estate is the expression, in the conveyance, of a clear intention to vest in the wife the entire property and interest conveyed. n890 A conveyance directly by the husband to the wife creates in the wife a separate estate vesting in her the entire interest, without the use of the technical words necessary to create a separate estate in conveyance to her from persons other than the husband. n891 The husband's conveyance of land to his wife, or his payment of the consideration and procurement of the conveyance to her, creates a separate estate in the wife. n892 When a conveyance is from a third person to a married woman to hold to her sole and separate use, the common law gives to the husband a life interest in the land. n893

A conveyance by a married woman of her separate property in consideration of the satisfaction of her husband's debt has been held void. n894 Statutes in some states put a limitation on the right of a married woman to convey her realty without the written assent of her husband, and such statutes have been held constitutional. n895 As a further protection to the wife in her enjoyment of an equitable separate estate, some courts hold that she has no power to dispose of or convey the same during coverture unless such power is expressly conferred by the instrument creating the estate. n896 Unless restricted by statute, she generally has the right to sell or encumber such estate in like manner as if she were a feme sole, n897 especially where the instrument creating the estate expressly confers this power. n898 The more modern cases are at variance on the question of whether a restraint on the alienation by a married woman of her separate estate is to be considered valid under statutes removing her disabilities. n899

Such statutes are in derogation of the common law, inasmuch as they confer capacity to contract and convey upon persons who formerly had no capacity at all. Therefore, all requirements of the enabling statutes, whether in regard to execution or acknowledgment of the deed, must be strictly complied with. n900 The constitutional and statutory provisions respecting the rights of married women to hold property to their sole and separate use have the effect of abrogating the husband's common-law right in such property. n901 Apart from curtesy in the real estate of the wife, marriage does not give the husband any right in the wife's separate real estate. n902 Applying the rule of strict construction, it is held that the common-law right of the husband to an estate in the wife's land during coverture will not be disturbed, unless the statute in clear language so states. n903 Some courts, however, hold that such statutes, being obviously remedial, should not be construed strictly, but that they should be construed in the light of the intention of the legislature. n904 Such statutes are intended to create a statutory separate estate in a married woman and to define her rights and those of her husband, and not prejudicially to alter the general equitable principles regarding subsisting equitable sole and separate estate in a married woman. n905

The course of modern legislation has constantly tended toward giving to married women full control over their property without the consent or concurrence of their husbands. n906 So, in all the states the husband's common-law rights in the property of his wife have been modified or abolished by statute or constitutional provisions, any property owned by her at the time of marriage or which she may thereafter acquire is not subject to her husband's disposal or liable for his debts, but it is her sole and separate property as if she were a feme sole. These statutes put the husband and wife on a basis of complete equality before the law in every respect. n907 The cumulative effect of such provisions is to declare her a legal individual, with the right to own and control her own property, including property held with her husband in common or as joint tenants. n908

The respective rights of husband and wife, or their privies, in the real property of each other, in the absence of an antenuptial agreement to the contrary, are determined by the law of the place where the property is situated, and neither the place where the marriage was celebrated nor the domicile of the parties has the effect to prevent the operation of this rule. n909 A married woman who owned land in North Carolina but was domiciled in South Carolina executed in the latter state a deed of the land. By the constitution and laws of South Carolina in force at the time the instrument was executed, a married woman could purchase and convey real property as if she were unmarried. It was held that the effect of the conveyance was governed by the laws of North Carolina, and, as by that law a married woman could not convey title to land, the deed was void and it did not create an estoppel. The fact that the grantor later allowed the grantee to take possession and make valuable improvements was held not to work an estoppel. n910 The husband's creditors could levy upon his right in his living wife's lands as well as his curtesy initiate. n911

21.03(b) The Nature of Curtesy

At common law, three types of life estates arose by operation of law; curtesy, dower, and tenancy in special tail after possibility of issue extinct. Blackstone traces curtesy to an ancient German origin. n912 He questions the statement in the Mirror of Justices that it was introduced by Henry I. n913

> Tenant by the curtesy of England is where a man marries a woman seised of an estate of inheritance, that is, of lands and tenements in fee simple or fee tail, and has by her issue born alive, which was capable of inheriting her estate. In this case, he shall, on the death of his wife, hold the lands for his life, as tejant by the curtesy of England. n914

So where a man marries a woman who is seised during marriage of an estate of inheritance, and has by her issue born alive capable of inheriting the estate, and the wife dies before the husband, he takes an estate for life, which estate is called an estate by the curtesy. n915 Curtesy at common law is the life estate which, by the birth alive of lawful issue capable of inheriting, the husband acquires in the lands and tenements of which his wife is, at any time during coverture, seised either in fee simple or fee tail. n916

Curtesy is a distinct estate, n917 and entitles the husband to a life interest, n918 absolute as to the remainderman, n919 in all lands of which the wife was seised during coverture. n920 To entitle a husband to curtesy initiate there must be marriage, seisin in the wife, and birth of issue alive. To render the tenancy consummate, the wife must pre-decease him. n921 This estate is not confined to the interest a husband acquires on the death of his wife, as it is sometimes said to be, n922 but certain rights accrue to the husband as tenant by the curtesy initiate. n923 Such rights, however, do not constitute an estate. n924 It is a creature of favor and not of right. n925 Upon the birth of a living child capable of inheriting, the husband becomes seised of a freehold estate in his own right which continues during his life whether his death occurs before or after the death of the wife. n926 If the husband having an estate by the curtesy initiate dies before the wife, she takes the estate again, but if no such estate existed in the husband, and she pre-deceased him, the estate would go to her heirs. Thus we see that the husband might become successively possessed of an estate during coverture by virtue of the marriage, an estate by the curtesy initiate, and an estate by the curtesy consummate. n927 By vesting during the lifetime of the wife, an estate by the curtesy is not one acquired by descent. n928

The husband's right of curtesy is not acquired by him by reason of the intestate laws, but is a common-law right which during the lifetime of the wife was initiate, but which after her death became consummate, and his right to the same could not be questioned from the time that his wife was seised of the property and their child or children were born alive, unless, under the Married Women's Acts, she disposed of the same by deed or will. n929 The husband has the burden of showing the existence of facts giving him the right to curtesy. n930

It is said that the curtesy by the laws of England was given the husband, in part, for the purpose of aiding him in supporting and educating the issue of the marriage. That this was a minor consideration, however, is shown by the fact that continued existence of the issue after birth was not necessary to raise or to support the estate. The early writers on the common law disclose that a deeper reason lay in the feudal system which obtained in England in early times and which affected real property in so many ways. The husband, having been dignified by having an interest in lands, was bound to do homage to his superior lord. The estate being once vested in him, it was the policy of the feudal system not to suffer it to determine during the life of the husband, as otherwise the lord might lose the homage that was due from the land. n931

"The term 'curtesy' is derived from 'courtesie,' Latin 'curialitas,' to signify suavity or urbanity, to denote that the custom sprung from favor to the husband, rather than from any right." By thus becoming the vassal or tenant of his superior lord, he was permitted, "by the curtesy of England," to attend his lord's court, and to do him homage, by reason of having become the husband of a wife who had died possessed of an estate in lands after issue born. Such seem to have been the reasons for the introduction of such a title to land into the laws of England. n932 The estate by the curtesy, possibly introduced into England from Normandy, failing to find a basis in natural or moral right for the reasons mentioned above, could not long stand in full virtue as a thing that harmonized with the principles of American democracy, so that, after a few generations of reverence for the ancient rule, the legislatures of this country began to abolish curtesy initiate entirely or to deprive that particular tenancy of some of its more rigorous features, until now it stands greatly and essentially modified, and has been abolished absolutely in many states. Curtesy does not arise out of contract but is a right given by the law for the purpose of encouraging marriage. n933

21.03(c) Essentials of Tenancy by Curtesy According to Blackstone Indicated

Four things are requisite to an estate of tenancy by the curtesy: (a) marriage; (b) seisin by wife; (c) birth of a child alive, capable of inheriting from the mother, though it may afterwards die; and (d) the death of the wife in the lifetime of the husband. n934 A valid marriage is a prerequisite to this estate, n935 and the marriage must be strictly legal, that is, between parties legally capable of contracting matrimony, n936 and if the marriage is absolutely void, as where one of the parties is an idiot, no such estate will arise. n937 If the marriage is voidable only and is not set aside during the life of the wife, and the other requisites are present, the husband will have the estate. n938 The law usually contemplates that the parties must first obtain a license to marry and that the marriage must be solemnized by some judicial officer or minister of the gospel, but, for the purpose of fixing the legal status of the parties, a marriage is valid if the parties, in the presence of witnesses, declare that they then and there take each other as husband and wife. A common-law marriage will, in Missouri, sustain a claim to statutory curtesy. n939 Under the common law, a legal marriage is essential to the husband's right to curtesy. n940 Actual seisin of the wife is essential to the husband's right to curtesy. n941

Seisin by the wife during coverture of a freehold estate in property is another indispensable requisite to the husband's right of curtesy. n942 Where a wife died seised in fee to certain real estate, her husband was held entitled to an estate by the curtesy during his life in such real estate. n943 At common law it was said to be absolutely necessary that the wife be seised in fact if the property was corporeal and she acquired it by descent, as entry was necessary to seisin in an acquisition by descent. n944

> If a man dieth seised in fee simple or fee tail general, and those lands descend to the daughter and before entry she taketh husband and hath issue and dieth, the husband hath no estate by curtesy, yet the wife was seised in law; but if she or her husband had entered in her lifetime, the husband would then have been tenant by curtesy. n945

In the case put by Lord Coke, the wife had seisin in law, and an immediate right of entry, but this did not satisfy the strict requirement of the common law. n946 Under the Statutes of Uses and Wills, actual seisin was not necessary, as these statutes did away with the necessity for an actual livery of seisin, and the constructive seisin given by the statutes was sufficient, making her title complete if there was no adverse possession, so that the husband would have an estate by curtesy. n947 This is the rule in many jurisdictions, n948 even where there is no adverse holding. n949 This is true in this country with respect to the husband's curtesy in the wife's wild lands, n950 but the contrary is held in one state owing to the uncertain character of the title to public lands in that state, the law making it the duty of the owner to promptly take possession. n951 Physical possession, however, is not invariably necessary to actual seisin. n952 However, if she is in receipt of the rents and profits of wild lands, this is sufficient actual seisin where that is required to give the husband curtesy in such lands. n953

A husband will be entitled to curtesy where a court of competent jurisdiction has made a decree settling the rights of the parties to the wife's lands, as this is held equivalent to actual possession. n954 Where the wife is a tenant in common, and one of her co-owners has possession, seisin or possession will be held for all and the husband will be entitled to curtesy. He will not be entitled to curtesy where the wife's interest is held jointly with others, as survivorship will exclude him from claiming curtesy, n955 and the same is true where the party in possession is a tenant for years or at sufferance under a lease from the wife. n956 This latter rule is denied by some courts which hold that possession by a tenant or agent of the wife will entitle the husband to curtesy. n957 If the wife's estate is a reversion, preceded by a freehold estate in another person, this person is the one actually seised, and the wife will have a constructive seisin which, at common law, is not sufficient to entitle the husband to curtesy, unless the freehold tenant dies in the lifetime of the wife. n958 It is immaterial at what period during coverture the wife became seised, whether before issue or after nor is it material whether the issue be living at the time of the seisin. n959 Seisin by the wife must exist at the time of her death. n960

The birth of issue alive is another essential to the creation of a husband's right to an estate by curtesy, n961 but it is immaterial whether such issue be living or dead at the time of the wife's seisin of the land or at the time of her death. n962 Prior to the birth of issue the husband has no vested curtesy interest in the wife's lands, but under the common law he had control over it and it was subject to his debts. It was an estate in him for the life of the wife only, unless before her death issue was born alive, whereupon he became tenant by the curtesy initiate and as such took an estate in the wife's lands in his own right. n963 The husband's right to curtesy at the common law was contingent upon there being issue of the marriage born alive capable of inheriting the mother's estate and, as he has no estate by curtesy at the wife's death unless such issue had been born, he could have had no interest prior to the birth of such issue. The husband's interest or estate by curtesy in the lands of his wife did not, like the wife's inchoate right of dower, attach upon marriage. n964

> "Alive," as used in defining an element of an estate by curtesy requiring that a child should be born alive, means that it should be alive and have an independent life of its own for some period after delivery. There is no legal presumption in such a case in favor of the separate life of a newly born child, and, while respiration or breath is evidence of such life and existence, proof of respiration from actual observation is not necessary to establish the fact. Other indications of life, such as the beating of the heart and the pulsation of the arteries after the separation of the child from the body of the mother, may be satisfactory evidence of it, because they show the fact that circulation has been established and is maintained and carried on in the body of the child independently of the mother, and proof of such facts sufficiently establish independent life of the child for the purposes of curtesy. n965

Delivery of a living child by a Caesarean operation, after the mother's death, is insufficient for this purpose. n966 Statutes in some states have removed the requirement of birth of issue. n967 Some courts hold that the legitimation of a bastard by subsequent marriage is sufficient to satisfy the requirement of issue, though there were no other children born during the marriage. n968 The husband has no curtesy because of the adoption of a child, there being no issue born alive to the marriage. n969 Under the common law, the husband had, prior to the birth of issue, a freehold estate in his wife's lands only during their joint lives but, after the birth of issue alive, such estate continued for the period of the husband's life. n970 A child may be born alive and be capable of inheriting, when it breathes and its heart beats, even though it does not cry. n971

As a further requirement of curtesy, the common law required the wife's estate to be such that the issue of the marriage might inherit as heirs of the wife. Thus, the wife's estate may be an estate tail female and she has only male children born to her, so the husband cannot claim an estate by the curtesy because the wife's estate was not inheritable by the issue of the marriage. n972 Again, the instrument giving the estate to the wife may be so worded as to make the issue of the wife purchasers instead of heirs, so far as the particular estate is concerned. If so, the husband will not have an estate by curtesy. n973 Thus, an estate is devised to A and her heirs, but if A dies leaving children, then to her children and their heirs. Here at first impression A has a fee simple estate because limited to her and her heirs, and of course her children, if she had any at the time of her death, would be her heirs. But the will expressly designated them to take the estate at their mother's death, so they take as purchasers from the devisor and not as heirs of A. So A's husband could not claim curtesy. n974 The same thing is true though the estate to the wife is a fee, and the estate is expressly given to the children "if she dies before her husband." n975 The intention of a grantor, in conveying property to a wife, to deprive the husband of curtesy will govern, regardless of subsequent statutes to the contrary, n976 but such a conveyance must be supported by a sufficient consideration. n977

For the period between the birth of issue alive and the death of the wife, the husband has an estate by the curtesy initiate. n978 Upon the death of the wife in such case, if he survive her, he has curtesy consummate. The curtesy consummate is not a new estate, but a prolongation of curtesy initiate. They both constitute one estate for the life of the husband. The death of the wife simply changes the estate from a mere status to a vested right in the husband. The cases generally hold that the death of the wife renders the estate consummate. n979 It is then said to be, in many respects, but a continuance of the estate of the wife, though regarded more in the nature of an estate by descent than by purchase. n980 Upon the death of the wife, the law adjudges the freehold to be in the husband immediately, as tenant by curtesy. n981 Under the common law, the husband, to be entitled to curtesy, must outlive his wife. n982

21.03(d) Property to Which Curtesy Attached

In order to enjoy curtesy it was necessary that the interest of the wife in land be of such a nature that it would descend to the wife's heirs. n983 The husband's marital rights attach only to property forming part of his wife's estate at the time of her death. n984

It must be an immediate estate of inheritance and not after an interposed freehold estate. n985 Accordingly, the husband has no curtesy in land in which the wife had only a life estate n986 or a mere possessory right therein. n987 Accordingly, where the wife took under a deed creating in her an estate tail at common law, which was converted into a life estate in the wife with remainder over in fee to her children by a statute abolishing fee tail estates, the husband was held not entitled to curtesy. n988

At common law there could be no curtesy in a leasehold estate, however long the term. n989 It has been expressly decided that an estate in land for the term of 999 years, subject to the payment of an annual rent, is personal property, and the widower of the tenant could not claim curtesy in it. n990

Curtesy cannot be claimed in a remainder or reversion where the wife dies before the termination of the particular estate. n991 Likewise a husband cannot claim an estate by curtesy in land held by his wife in trust for her children by a former marriage. n992

While the husband's curtesy is conceded to him because of his duty to support the children of the marriage, yet it is not subject to diminution by the fact that the wife left children by a former marriage, and hence it will not be limited to a share of her estate proportionate to the ratio between the children of the two marriages. n993 A husband cannot claim curtesy in lands in which his deceased wife was not seised with the present right of possession. n994 Where property was purchased by a wife but conveyed to a trustee, and the trustee conveyed the land during the life of the wife, she had no beneficial interest at her death such as would entitle the husband to curtesy. n995 It is the character of the wife's title, and not the source thereof or the estate descending to the wife's heirs, which determines the husband's right to curtesy. n996

The husband is held entitled to an estate by curtesy in lands devised to the wife, though the devise was of a base or qualified fee subject to be defeated upon the happening of the contingency that she leave no issue surviving her, with an executory devise over, in that event, to the persons happening to be her heirs at law. n997 Curtesy existed in equitable estates belonging to the wife, n998 but only if she died possessed of the estate or intestate. n999 She could defeat the curtesy by disposing of the equitable estate by deed or will; n1000 and, today, curtesy attaches to the wife's equitable as well as to her legal estate of inheritance. n1001 Particularly is this true under the statutes prevailing in some of the states; n1002 but the husband is not deprived of such estate by the Married Women's Acts. n1003 Curtesy exists in a wife's equity of redemption. n1004 Thus, in case the wife has given a mortgagee in fee, and her equity of redemption has been barred by lapse of time, the husband's curtesy attaches to the estate. n1005 On the other hand, where the wife holds land as vendee under a contract of purchase, the husband is not entitled to curtesy in such land. n1006

The husband's estate by curtesy applies in the inheritable equitable separate estate of the wife unless the instrument creating her estate clearly shows a contrary intention or the circumstances are such that its inference is equally clear. n1007

To cut off the husband's marital rights beyond the death of his wife, the intention to do so must be clearly expressed in the instrument creating her estate. n1008 If the wife's equitable separate estate is created by the husband, with himself or another as trustee, he will not be entitled to curtesy, unless he has reserved the right to such estate. n1009 At common law a grant to a woman of an estate of inheritance could not preclude her husband of his right of curtesy, but in equity an estate may be so limited as to give the wife the inheritance, and by words clearly denoting that intention to exclude and deprive the husband of curtesy. n1010 Thus, where land is conveyed to a wife for her sole and separate use, "free and clear of any and all marital rights of her present or any husband she may have hereafter," it is held that the husband cannot claim an estate by curtesy in such land. n1011 The words of exclusion must clearly indicate an intention to so deprive the husband of this right. n1012

It is immaterial from whence or by what means the wife acquired her title in order for curtesy to attach. The husband has curtesy in lands which he has conveyed to her in fee simple. n1013 Lands acquired by a wife as a result of gifts or donations from third persons, intended for the benefit of the family, are subject to the husband's curtesy. n1014 A husband has an estate by the curtesy, after his wife's death, in land which he voluntarily settled on her, provided he did not relinquish his right thereto, either in express terms or by plain implication, in the deed of settlement. n1015 He has curtesy in lands to which she has gained title by adverse possession. n1016 Curtesy exists in lands acquired by the wife through inheritance. n1017 Thus a husband after the death of his wife who owned a part interest in land by virtue of being a child of the intestate owner, is entitled to curtesy in such land, n1018 but he has no curtesy in land sold by the wife before marriage by an executory contract, although conveyance was not made until after marriage. n1019

Where a will directed the sale of lands and distribution of the proceeds, the husband has no curtesy in such proceeds, they being personalty. n1020 An estate of inheritance vesting in the wife, but to pass on her death to another by executory devise, is subject to the husband's curtesy. n1021 The surviving husband has curtesy in lands held by his deceased wife in fee simple defeasible, n1022 in fee tail, n1023 but not in lands in which the wife had a life estate only.

n1024

Curtesy exists in things incorporeal as well as corporeal. So the husband has curtesy in the wife's rents. n1025 The proceeds of a sale made in antenuptial infancy proceedings may be subject to curtesy. n1026 Where money is bequeathed to a wife to be invested in lands, and she dies before the investment is made, her husband is entitled to curtesy in the fund so bequeathed. n1027 So also, the husband may have an estate by the curtesy in the proceeds of a partition sale. n1028 Where the wife is a joint tenant with another, the husband has no curtesy. n1029 A husband has curtesy in an estate devised to the wife by her father. n1030

The husband has curtesy in the proceeds of a sale of lands which came to the wife by devise, the sale being made by the executor of the will under authority given thereby. n1031 It is generally held that curtesy exists in a contingent use, n1032 a qualified or conditional estate, n1033 and a base or qualified fee, if the same be limited either by way of a springing use or executory devise which takes effect at the wife's death. n1034 Curtesy ceases when such estate is determined. n1035 If the wife's estate is one upon condition, and a forfeiture takes place for breach of condition during coverture, the husband will not have an estate by curtesy, since the effect of entry for breach of condition relates back to and destroys the estate from the beginning. n1036

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:curtesy w/30 property or estate! or land! w/5 attach!

21.03(e) Rights and Duties of Tenant by Curtesy

Curtesy consists of three stages: (1) the prospect of curtesy which arises upon marriage, (2) curtesy initiate which developed on birth of issue, and (3) curtesy consummate on death of the wife with the husband surviving. Immediately upon the birth of issue the husband's right to claim curtesy is initiated, the nature of his interest in his wife's real property is changed, and he is then called "tenant by curtesy initiate." After birth of issue the husband takes an estate in the lands of his wife in his own right. n1037 Such issue need not survive and need not be of sound mind, but a monster was not such "issue" at common law. n1038

Curtesy was held to be an estate distinct from that of the wife, alienable by the husband and subject to execution for his debts, and giving him control of the profits of his wife's lands. n1039 The husband's denial of a claim to curtesy initiate did not defeat the right of creditors to have it applied to the payment of the husband's debts, even though he purported to make the denial in the interest of his wife and children. n1040

Curtesy is initiate from the time of seisin and birth of issue alive until the death of the wife. n1041 During such time it is merely a status, and not a vested right. n1042 Thus the interest of the husband of the owner of realty which has been sold on foreclosure of a trust deed was held to be merely an inchoate dower right which, prior to consummation by the death of the owner, was a mere intangible, contingent expectancy which did not constitute an estate in land or rise to the dignity of a vested right. n1043 His interest in her separate estate is prospective only and attaches to no real estate except that of which she dies seised of an estate of inheritance. n1044 When the husband became tenant by the curtesy initiate, he had such an interest in the wife's lands as required that he be made a party in an action concerning it. n1045 The husband has full power to sell and dispose of his estate by the curtesy initiate in any manner he may see fit. n1046

The common-law right of tenancy by the "curtesy consummate" was an estate for the life of the surviving husband in all of the wife's lands and arose upon the wife's death if there had been a child of the marriage born alive. n1047 Upon the death of a wife, having during coverture become seised of inheritable real property and having issue born alive to the marriage during such coverture, the husband's curtesy initiate becomes curtesy consummate, and he thereupon acquires a vested life estate in the property. The law gives him the estate. No conveyance, assignment or act of any person is necessary, nor can he disclaim it or otherwise prevent it from vesting in him. He becomes subject to all the duties and liabilities of a freeholder with respect to the property. n1048 He takes the estate somewhat in the nature of acquisition by descent, and for this reason he cannot disclaim it. n1049

When, upon the death of the wife, curtesy becomes consummate, the husband's estate is similar in all respects to a life estate, and he may convey or mortgage the same without question. n1050 He has the exclusive right to possession, use, rents and profits of the land during his life; n1051 but such right does not obtain until dower has been set off or otherwise ascertained in a proper action. n1052 He has a right to assign or transfer his interest, and the assignee or transferee has a right to the use and possession thereof. n1053 The husband cannot be ousted of his right of possession of his interest, without his consent, by partition or sale for division. n1054

Possession by a tenant by curtesy is insufficient to enable him to acquire the fee by adverse possession, the possession of a life tenant not being adverse to the remainderman. n1055 A tenant by curtesy initiate is not entitled to rents and profits during coverture. n1056 Upon his death the growing crops go to his personal representatives. n1057 The tenant by curtesy is entitled to royalties due from the operation of mines opened prior to the death of his wife. n1058 The proceeds of a sale of an estate by curtesy belong to the owner of such estate and not to the owner of the fee, n1059 and he is entitled to the interest on the proceeds of such sale during his life. n1060 He may agree, however, to take a gross sum in the proceeds of the sale in lieu of his estate. n1061

A husband in possession of land as tenant by the curtesy consummate is entitled to the rents and profits of the land but has no right to make improvements thereon and charge their cost to the remainderman nor any "right to cut growing timber except to be used in maintaining the improvements on the place and for other necessary purposes in connection therewith." n1062 At common law the husband could, while holding by curtesy initiate, sue alone for the possession of the land, but under the doctrine that the husband controls the wife's property only by virtue of their joint seisin, and that if disseised they must sue jointly for possession. It has been held that without some showing or equity which would take the case out of this rule the husband cannot sue alone in ejectment, in his own name, to recover his wife's property or to recover damages for timber cut from the land or for rents and profits. n1063

Like other tenants for life, the tenant by curtesy is bound to keep the premises in repair n1064 and to pay taxes. n1065 A tenant by the curtesy, as an incident to his estate, may take reasonable estovers (right of one in possession to take wood or timber necessary for fuel or repairs) of all kinds, and he may cut timber to pay taxes or to improve the land, and when so cut it belongs to the tenant, and not to the reversioner. n1066 In one case, it was held that a tenant by curtesy cannot purchase a tax certificate and tax title in derogation of the rights of his deceased wife's children as remaindermen, and his acquisition of such tax title would operate merely to discharge a lien for taxes which it was his duty to pay. n1067 Like any other life tenant, he cannot sell and pass title to standing timber, n1068 or open and operate mines. n1069 The doctrine of stale demands may defeat the remainderman's right to an accounting for the value of growing timber wrongfully cut by the husband while in possession of the land as tenant by the curtesy consummate. n1070

Curtesy is now liable for the husband's debts in all jurisdictions, unless exempt by statute, n1071 and the husband has the unquestioned right to convey or encumber curtesy. n1072 The estate by the curtesy consummate begins on the death of the wife. n1073 Since curtesy initiate is abolished by Married Women's Property Acts, it would seem that during coverture the husband, under such acts, has no estate which may be seized and sold on execution for his debts. A sale by a husband of his curtesy interest, which becomes consummate after an attempted attachment, takes priority over a subsequent execution sale of the interest levied on in the attachment proceedings. n1074

It is generally held that a tenant by the curtesy at common law takes his estate free from the debts of his wife. n1075 This rule prevails in states where Married Women's Acts abolish curtesy initiate and not curtesy consummate. n1076 Where the statute expressly makes the estate of a decedent subject to the payment of the decedent's debts, the courts have held that the estate which the husband takes in the lands of the wife at the time of her death is subject to the wife's debts. n1077 The rule in some states is that the tenant by curtesy takes his estate subject to the payment of his wife's debts. n1078 Where he takes the fee of one third in value of the realty, he takes it subject to the payment of the wife's debts. n1079 Of course the tenant by curtesy takes his estate subject to existing encumbrances; n1080 but his estate is superior to the claims of the wife's creditors which were not prior encumbrances. n1081

At common law a husband, after issue born, was seised in his own right of an estate for life in his wife's inheritable lands, and it was subject to sale for his debts, n1082 even during the wife's lifetime. n1083 His curtesy consummate, like all other life estates, is subject to seizure and sale on execution for his debts. n1084 Where a Married Women's Property Act has abolished curtesy initiate, the husband has no estate prior to his wife's death that can be sold for the payment of his debts. n1085 If the husband sells his curtesy consummate prior to an attachment levy, the sale takes priority over a subsequent sale on execution for the same debt. n1086 A judgment pending against a tenant by curtesy at the time his estate becomes consummate attaches as a lien against the same at the time his estate vests in him. n1087 Even though the inchoate right to curtesy consummate, which inchoate right is all that exists prior to the wife's death when there has been a statutory abolition of curtesy initiate, cannot be reached by the husband's creditors, n1088 his estate by the curtesy consummate is liable for his debts. n1089

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:tenan! w/5 curtesy w/30 right! or dut! curtesy consummate

21.03(f) How Curtesy Is Defeated

The husband's rights of curtesy could be destroyed at common law by divorce, by waiver either before or after marriage n1090 and by disseisin. Today, in many states, adultery, murder and condemnation will also bar curtesy. n1091

As a general rule, a decree of divorce from bed and board, with perpetual separation, does not bar the curtesy of the husband against whom such decree is pronounced in lands belonging to the wife at the time of the decree n1092 but, upon lands thereafter acquired by her, it operates to bar his claim to curtesy therein. n1093

On the other hand, a valid divorce a vinculo will, regardless of which spouse was at fault, have the effect of cutting off the husband's tenancy by the curtesy, n1094 unless the right thereto is preserved, either expressly or impliedly, by the statutes of the state in which the property is situated. n1095 In a few jurisdictions the rule stated above has been held to apply only to cases where the divorce was granted the wife on account of the misconduct of the husband. n1096 A divorce granted to a husband for a cause which does not render the marriage void from the beginning does not terminate his estate by the curtesy initiate. n1097 Where a statute declares in effect that, in case of divorce, the guilty party shall forfeit all rights and claims under and by virtue of the marriage, a divorce obtained by the wife for the husband's fault operates to bar curtesy. n1098 It would seem from such statutes that the rights of the innocent are to be preserved, but that does not follow. A divorce necessarily destroys rights which the innocent party had during marriage, and those rights are surrendered or voluntarily sacrificed to obtain the divorce. So, even where such a statute exists, a husband defeats his right to curtesy by obtaining a divorce from his wife for her fault. n1099 In some states, curtesy or its statutory equivalent is also lost if the husband abandons the wife, n1100 but a mere living apart is not abandonment. n1101

In the absence of a statute authorizing a married woman to convey her property without the husband joining in the deed, she cannot defeat her husband's right of curtesy by her separate conveyance of her land; n1102 but title would pass to the grantee under such conveyance upon the death of the husband prior to his wife's death. n1103 A void deed by the wife and possession by the grantee thereunder, although signed by the husband, does not bar the husband's curtesy. n1104 A wife's deed to her lands, in which the husband was not made a party, was held not to convey the husband's right to curtesy, although the husband subscribed his name thereto. n1105 Where the wife has conveyed her land by a deed void because her husband does not join in it, and before her death the grantee has acquired title by adverse possession, she does not die seised of an estate of inheritance in such land so as to entitle her husband to curtesy therein. n1106 Where the land held by the wife is held by her subject to a power of sale, the husband's curtesy is defeated by the execution of the power. n1107 In some states the right of curtesy can be destroyed by a conveyance of the property by the wife during her lifetime or by a devise of the land to take effect after her death. n1108 This is true only where the statute gives the husband curtesy only in lands of which the wife dies seised, and she has authority under the statute to convey without her husband joining her in the deed. n1109

Under other statutes a married woman may devise her real estate with the consent of her husband and thereby preclude him from claiming curtesy therein. n1110 The husband's consent to such devise is not required in some jurisdictions in order to bar the right of curtesy. n1111 A conveyance of land by husband and wife in trust for the wife does not operate to defeat the husband's curtesy where the wife died intestate as to such land. n1112

Under some statutes a testamentary disposition by a married woman of her separate property is not to be so construed as to defeat the husband's tenancy by the curtesy in such property. n1113 Children born after a will made by their mother, in which she devised her real estate to her husband, take the property by descent subject to the husband's curtesy. n1114 Some cases hold that the husband may be compelled to elect whether he will take under his wife's will or accept in lieu thereof his curtesy, while others hold that the provision made for him in the will does not preclude him from claiming curtesy. n1115 Any attempt to evade a spouse's marital rights in the other spouse's estate by conveyance thereof in advance, while preserving to the other spouse rights of complete ownership until death, may be defeated by the wronged spouse as fraud. n1116 In the case of equitable interests in land held by the wife, however, curtesy could be defeated if the wife assigned during her lifetime or devised by will. n1117

Transfer by the wife with intent to defeat the husband's marital rights as a forced heir were fraudulent. n1118 The Married Woman's Act, providing that the wife's real estate shall be her sole and separate property as though she were a single woman, does not defeat the husband's curtesy at the wife's death if she has not previously aliened her estate, but only protects her estate during her life and does not affect the law of succession at her death. n1119 Where real estate is held by husband and wife by the entireties, and they convey the property to themselves as tenants in common, relinquishing dower and curtesy, such relinquishment is held to be a binding contract only as to dower and curtesy. n1120

A husband may bar his right to claim curtesy in the lands of his wife by joining her in a deed or mortgage of her property, n1121 even though the instrument is inoperative to pass the wife's estate therein. n1122 The husband's oral release of curtesy has been held not to bar him from claiming curtesy after the death of his wife, n1123 and even an attempt to convey a fee has been held insufficient to bar his claim to curtesy in her lands, n1124 although there are cases taking a contrary view. n1125 Where a tenant by curtesy accepts a portion of the proceeds of a sale awarded to him in a partition proceeding to which he was not a party, he is estopped to claim curtesy thereafter. n1126 Where a wife executed a mortgage on her land in which her husband did not join, his execution of a mortgage on the same property after the wife's death operated to pass his life estate, but did not pass the remainder owned by the wife's son. n1127

A husband may waive his right to claim curtesy in his wife's land by an antenuptial agreement. n1128 This, in some of the states, is true also of a post-nuptial contract, n1129 at least, when such contract is a result of a marital separation, existing or contemplated. n1130 Marriage is a valuable consideration for such contract, and if fairly and equitably made between the parties, the antenuptial agreement, and not the law, furnishes the measure of their respective rights. A mistake as to the law will not of itself be sufficient ground on which to set aside a contract waiving either curtesy or dower rights. n1131

At common law a husband could not by a post-nuptial contract with his wife waive his claim to curtesy in her lands. n1132 A court of equity, however, will give effect to such a contract when it has been fully performed, and where it would be inequitable to permit the assertion of the right given by the common law. n1133 Such agreement must be established by clear and satisfactory evidence. n1134

A conveyance between husband and wife through a third person to settle a dispute between them, and wherein the husband's right of curtesy is expressly waived, has been upheld. n1135 There are cases, however, denying the right of husband and wife to mutually agree to a release of curtesy and dower in each other's estate. n1136 A post-nuptial agreement reciting that the wife releases her rights in her husband's property because the husband would have no interest in her estate should he survive her, and because the wife had ample means in her own right, was held not to imply an agreement by the husband to release his rights in the wife's property. n1137

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:defeat! w/15 curtesy w/30 divorce! or waive! or adultery! or murder! or condemn!

21.03(g) Statutory Changes in Common-Law Curtesy

Modern statutes have completely revised common-law concepts of the rights of husbands in and to their wives' property, including the right of curtesy. In nearly all of the states statutes have been passed enlarging the rights and powers of married women with respect to their real property. In many instances, this is done by prohibiting the sale by the husband of his wife's realty without her joining in the conveyance and by protecting the property from levy and sale under judgment or decree against the husband. The decisions are not entirely uniform in the several jurisdictions as to the effect of such a statute upon the common-law estate by the curtesy initiate. n1138

Prior to the birth of issue, tenancy by the curtesy being purely inchoate, the cases are uniform to the effect that it may at this stage be destroyed by a statute which applies to existing marriages. n1139 So at least until the husband's estate is enlarged into a tenancy by the curtesy initiate by the birth of a child capable of inheriting, he has no such vested right, but his right or interest is merely inchoate and subject to legislative control. n1140 There is, however, a sharp division of authority as to whether such statutes may constitutionally operate upon tenancy by the curtesy initiate.

Under one line of cases, the common-law estate by the curtesy initiate, being a vested estate, cannot be destroyed by any subsequent statutory enactment intended to abolish such estates. n1141 Some courts hold that while estates by the curtesy initiate are not abolished or wholly destroyed by such statutes they are so essentially modified and changed thereby that they have lost their vested nature and have become mere contingent rights or interests. n1142 Thus a statute expressly or impliedly abolishing curtesy initiate, and enacted prior to the birth of issue, has the effect of rendering the interest of the husband before his wife's death a mere expectancy, and any statute enacted prior to her death, the effect of which is to abolish the estate by curtesy, will defeat the husband's claim to curtesy. n1143

The majority of the cases hold that such statutes have the effect of destroying the husband's curtesy initiate, but that the curtesy consummate is not abolished by such legislation. n1144 Under this theory, where a marriage takes place before the date of the ratification of a constitution providing that the property of a female shall remain her separate estate and may be conveyed and devised by her as if sole, the husband acquired no vested right in lands acquired by the wife after such ratification. The husband's estate by the curtesy, unlike that which existed prior to the ratification of the constitution, only became consummate upon the death of the wife intestate. Until the wife's death intestate, the husband's interest is a mere expectancy, subject to be destroyed by legislation before it becomes consummate. n1145

Numerous courts have held that the saving clause in a Married Women's Act, as to the husband's right by the curtesy, refers to the tenancy by the curtesy consummate and not to tenancy by the curtesy initiate. n1146 A statute abolishing curtesy, enacted prior to the time the wife becomes seised of inheritable property, effectually destroys the husband's claim to curtesy in property acquired subsequent to the enactment of such statute. n1147 A statute abolishing curtesy impliedly repeals a statutory provision entitling the surviving husband to one half of the estate of the wife who dies without a child or other descendant capable of inheriting, so that the rights of both spouses are governed by sections governing the rights of a widow of a husband who dies without a child or other descendants capable of inheriting. n1148

Where the statutes give married women full control of their property during coverture, this in itself does not abolish the husband's estate by curtesy, but restricts it to such inheritable estates as she may have at her death. n1149 In some jurisdictions such statutes have the effect of abolishing curtesy initiate but not curtesy consummate. n1150 In the absence of Married Women's Acts or statutes abolishing curtesy in express terms, the common-law right of curtesy obtains. n1151 In many of the states, the surviving husband's estate in the real estate of a deceased wife is an estate by the curtesy as at common law. In some of the states, the tenancy differs in essential respects from the like tenancy at common law, such as where the estate is not dependent on the birth of an heir, or where the husband has no estate whatever until the death of the wife. A statute abolishing curtesy applies to lands owned by persons who were married before the enactment thereof. n1152

Many states have abolished dower and curtesy.

In Indiana, the deed of the wife alone, without the husband joining in, is still void. n1153 The husband cannot subject his wife's land to a mineral servitude without her authority. n1154 The husband may act as the agent for his wife with respect to the management of her property; n1155 but the mere existence of the marital relationship, n1156 nor mere knowledge that the husband is making improvements in the property, n1157 is sufficient to make him such her agent. Nor is there any presumption that he is her agent to sell her property, n1158 and creditors of the husband cannot establish liens on separate property of the wife. n1159 The wife can become liable, however, in quantum meruit for work and labor furnished at her husband's request and with her acquiescence. n1160

It has been held, however, that curtesy attaches when the wife becomes seised, and is not affected by subsequent statutes changing the law. n1161

A tenant by the curtesy is entitled to the royalties from an oil lease executed during the wife's lifetime. n1162 A tenant by curtesy is required to pay current taxes if the estate is sufficient and if curtesy has been assigned where assignment is required. n1163 A tenant by the curtesy is in such a fiduciary relationship with the remainderman that he cannot acquire a tax title adversely to their interests; n1164 but the tenant by curtesy is not a cotenant with the remainderman and can sue the remainderman in ejectment. n1165

The devisee n1166 or transferee n1167 of the wife (where such transfer is valid) takes subject to curtesy. Dower and curtesy both lie in coverture coupled with seisin, not coverture alone, and therefore are not merely contractual rights but also property rights. n1168 There can be no partition by or against a tenant by the curtesy, since he possesses the entire interest for his lifetime. Where the wife, having but a remainder interest, died before the life tenant, the husband had no curtesy when the life tenant died. n1169 Curtesy is an estate for the life of the husband and, as such, subject to levy of execution for his debts. n1170 The annulment of a marriage as void or voidable terminates dower and curtesy. n1171

In Indiana, both a husband and a wife can convey their own real estate without the consent of the other spouse; n1172 but if the realty is owned by the entireties, the signature of both spouses is required.

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:married women! act! w/30 curtesy

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 857. See James W. Day, Rights Accruing to a Husband upon Marriage with Respect to the Property of His Wife, 51 Mich. L. Rev. 863; (1953) Joseph F. (1961) English, Married Women and Their Property Rights: A Comparative View, 10 Cath. U. L. Rev. 75 (1961).

(n2)Footnote 858. Littleton, Tenures, §168. See Wife "Owned" Property Held by Estate of Husband, 20 Taxation for Lawyers at 172 (Nov.-Dec. 1991).

(n3)Footnote 859. Joshua Williams, Principles of The Law of Real Property, 352 (17th ed. 1894).

(n4)Footnote 860. 1 Frederick Pollock & Frederic William Maitland, The History of English Law Before The Time of Edward I 403 (2d ed. 1898); 3 William Searle Holdsworth, A History of English Law 525 (4th ed. (1926-27)).

Bank of America v. Banks, 101 U.S. 240 (1879); Stull v. Harris, 11 S.W. 104 (Ark. 1889); Blood v. Hunt, 121 So. 886 (Fla. 1929); Merrill v. Adkins, 180 So. 41 (Fla. 1938); Haddock for Use of Wiggins v. Florida Motor Lines Corp., 9 So. 2d 98 (Fla. 1942); Flash Bonded Storage Co., Inc. v. Ades, 12 So. 2d 164 (Fla. 1943); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Sharpe v. Baker, 96 N.E. 627 (Ind. App. 1911), 99 N.E. (1912); Rose v. Rose, 46 S.W. 524 (Ky. 1898); Mutual Fire Ins. Co. v. Deale, 18 Md. 26 (1861); Franz v. Franz, 82 N.E.2d 205 (Mass. 1941); Flesh v. Lindsay, 21 S.W. 907 (Mo. 1893); Hubbard v. Keen, 247 S.W. 1000 (Mo. 1923); Jenkins v. Jenkins, 260 S.W. 111 (Mo. 1924); Schowe v. Kallmeyer, 20 S.W.2d 26 (Mo. 1929); Burleigh v. Coffin, 22 N.H. 118 (1850); In re Riva, 90 A. 669 (N.J. Eq. 1914); Hopper v. Gurtman, 18 A.2d 245 (N.J.L. 1941); Hoak v. Unger, 18 A.2d 105 (Pa. Super. 1941); Bishop v. Readsboro Chair Mfg. Co., 81 A. 454 (Vt. 1911); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883); Central Land Co. v. Laidley, 9 S.E. 61 (W. Va. 1889).

By act of marriage the husband and wife became in law one person, and so continue during the coverture or marriage. The wife is as if merged in her husband. Accordingly the husband is entitled to the whole of the rents and profits which may arise from wife's lands and acquires a freehold estate therein during the continuance of the coverture; and in a like manner all the goods and personal chattels of the wife, the property, which passes by mere delivery of possession, belongs solely to her husband. Joshua Williams, Principles of The Law of Real Property, 205;
Littleton, Tenures, §168; 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries 442.

The Oregon Donation Act of 1850gave the husband an estate for the life of himself, and his wife in the wife's half of the donation claim. Wytle v. Palmer, 3 Sawy. 412, F. Cas. No. 18,120 (D. Or. 1875).

See Note, Marital Property and Migratory Divorce, 3 Stan. L. Rev. 622; Comment, Property Rights of Meretricious Spouses: The Effect of the New No Punishment Policy Indicated by the Consenting Adults Bill, 16 Santa Clara L. Rev. 783.

(n5)Footnote 861. Robertson v. Norris, 11 Q.B. 917.

(n6)Footnote 862. Polyblank v. Hawkins, 1 Doug. 329.

(n7)Footnote 863. Montgomery v. Tate, 12 Ind. 615 (1859); Canby v. Porter, 12 Ohio 79 (1843); Hubbard v. Hubbard, 58 A. 969 (Vt. 1904).

(n8)Footnote 864. Johnson v. Leavitt, 125 S.E. 490 (N.C. 1924).

(n9)Footnote 865. Schowe v. Kallmeyer, 20 S.W.2d 26 (Mo. 1929).

(n10)Footnote 866. Sharpe v. Baker, 96 N.E. 627 (Ind. App. 1911).

(n11)Footnote 867. McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Burleigh v. Coffin, 22 N.H. 118 (1850).

(n12)Footnote 868. Cheek v. Waldrum, 25 Ala. 152 (1854); Boykin v. Rain, 28 Ala. 332 (1856); Butterfield v. Beall, 3 Ind. 203 (1851).

(n13)Footnote 869. Coke on Littleton, §351a.

McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Babb v. Perley, 1 Greenl. 6 (Me. 1820); Melvin v. Locks & Canals, 33 Mass. (16 Pick.) 161 (1834); Nickerson v. Nickerson, 126 N.E. 834 (Mass. 1920); Mathis v. Melton, 238 S.W. 806 (Mo.

1922); Burleigh v. Coffin, 22 N.H. 118 (1850).

(n14)Footnote 870. Fields v. Dale, 90 So. 798 (Ala. 1921).

(n15)Footnote 871. Gregg v. Sayre, 33 U.S. (8 Pet.) 244 (1834); Boykin v. Rain, 28 Ala. 332 (1856); Junction R. Co. v. Harris, 9 Ind. 184 (1857); Edrington v. Harper, 26 Ky. (3 J.J. Marsh) 353 (1830); Rose v. Rose, 46 S.W. 524 (Ky. 1898); Payne v. Parker, 10 Me. 178 (1833); Nickerson v. Nickerson, 126 N.E. 834 (Mass. 1920); Evans v. Kingsberry, 2 Rand. (Va.) 120 (1823).

(n16)Footnote 872. Eaton v. Whitaker, 18 Conn. 222 (1846).

(n17)Footnote 873. McGuire v. Cook, 135 S.W. 840 (Ark. 1911); Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909).

(n18)Footnote 874. Coke on Littleton, §351a.

Butterfield v. Beall, 3 Ind. 203 (1851); Parsons v. Parsons, 9 N.H. 309 (1838); Schuyler v. Hoyle, 5 Johns Ch. (N.Y.) 196 (1821); Coleman v. Satterfield, 39 Tenn. (2 Head) 259 (1858); Burt v. Hurlburt, 16 Vt. 292 (1844).

(n19)Footnote 875. Lithgow v. Kavenagh, 9 Mass. 161 (1812); Clark v. Clark, 18 P. 1 (Or. 1888); Glidden v. Strupler, 52 Pa. 400 (1866).

(n20)Footnote 876. Junction R. Co. v. Harris, 9 Ind. 184 (1857); Payne v. Parker, 10 Me. 178 (1833).

(n21)Footnote 877. Plotkin v. Plotkin, 125 A. 455 (Del. 1924).

The presumption of law is that the husband owns all of the property, real as well as personal, of which the wife is in possession during coverture, particularly if the husband and wife are living together as such; but this presumption is not affected by the Married Woman's Act. Harris v. Carver, 124 S.E. 206 (Va. 1924).

(n22)Footnote 878. Nickerson v. Nickerson, 126 N.E. 834 (Mass. 1920); Mathis v. Melton, 238 S.W. 806 (Mo. 1922).

(n23)Footnote 879. Nickerson v. Nickerson, 126 N.E. 834 (Mass. 1920).

(n24)Footnote 880. Mathis v. Melton, 238 S.W. 806 (Mo. 1922); Hubbard v. Keen, 247 S.W. 1000 (Mo. 1923).

(n25)Footnote 881. Nickerson v. Nickerson, 126 N.E. 834 (Mass. 1920); Wehoffer v. Wehoffer, 156 P.2d 830 (Or. 1945).

(n26)Footnote 882. Blood v. Hunt, 121 So. 886 (Fla. 1929); Salter v. Salter, 4 S.E. 391 (Ga. 1887); Townes v. Durbin, 60 Ky. (3 Met.) 352 (1861); Carroll v. Lee, 3 Gill. & J. (Md.) 504 (1832); Spencer v. St. Paul & S.C.R. Co., 22 Minn. 29 (1875); Hassfeldt v. Dill, 10 N.W. 781 (Minn. 1881) (wife takes the rents, issues and products); Sudbo v. Rusten, 68 N.W. 513 (Minn. 1896); Botts v. Gooch, 11 S.W. 42 (Mo. 1889); Kranjcec v. Belinak, 132 P.2d 150 (Mont. 1942); Perkins v. Elliott 23 N.J. Eq. 526 (1872); Hollander v. Abrams, 132 A. 224 (N.J. Eq. 1926), aff'd, 134 A. 742 (N.J. Eq. 1926); Peoples Sav. Bank v. Denig, 18 A. 1083 (Pa. 1890); Goldberg v. Goldberg, 51 Dauph. 16 (Pa. 1941); In re Wolfgang's Estate, 15 Northumb. L.J. 367 (Pa. 1942); Magnolia Petr. Co. v. Still, 163 S.W.2d 268 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Price v. Planters Nat'l Bank, 23 S.E. 887 (Va. 1896); Rowley v. American Trust Co., 132 S.E. 347 (Va. 1926). A married woman may evict her husband from her own home. Owens v. Owens, 149 A.2d 320 (Del. Ch. 1959).

(n27)Footnote 883. McMillan v. Peacock, 57 Ala. 127 (1876).

(n28)Footnote 884. Hartsfield Loan & Sav. Co. v. Garner, 191 S.E. 119 (Ga. 1937); Kranjcec v. Belinak, 132 P.2d

150 (Mont. 1942).

(n29)Footnote 885. Bride v. Walker, 176 S.W.2d 148 (Ark. 1943).

(n30)Footnote 886. Jones v. Clifton, 101 U.S. 225 (1879); Harkins v. Coalter, 2 Port. 463 (Ala. 1835); Meacham v. Bunting, 41 N.E. 175 (Ill. 1895); Armstrong v. Ross, 20 N.J. Eq. 109 (1869); Hamilton v. Bishop, 16 Tenn. (8 Yer.) 33 (1835).

(n31)Footnote 887. Robinson v. Randolph, 21 Fla. 629 (1885); Bressler v. Kent, 61 Ill. 426 (1871); Ware v. Richardson, 3 Md. 505 (1853); Richardson v. De Giverville, 17 S.W. 974 (Mo. 1891); Fox v. Jones, 1 W. Va. 205 (1866).

The interest of one spouse in the property of another is recognized by Kansas law only in favor of Kansas residents. McGill v. Kuhn, 348 P.2d 811 (Kan. 1960).

See Joseph M. Snee, The Canon Law of Marriage, an Outline, 35 U. Det. L. Rev. 309 (1957).

(n32)Footnote 888. Welch v. Welch, 14 Ala. 76 (1848); Fears v. Brooks, 12 Ga. 195 (1852); Tritt v. Colwell, 31 Pa. 228 (1858).

(n33)Footnote 889. Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916).

(n34)Footnote 890. McMillan v. Peacock, 57 Ala. 127 (1876).

(n35)Footnote 891. Id.; Deming v. Williams, 26 Conn. 226 (1857); Small v. Field, 14 S.W. 815 (Mo. 1890); Pitts v. Sheriff, 18 S.W. 1071 (Mo. 1892).

(n36)Footnote 892. Robertson v. Wade, 68 S.W.2d 487 (Tenn. App. 1933).

(n37)Footnote 893. "At the same time equity steps in and charges whatever legal ownership is vested in the husband with the trust to hold for the separate use of the wife." Joel Prentiss Bishop, Commentaries on The Law of Married Women (1871).

(n38)Footnote 894. Turner v. Warren, 18 S.E.2d 865 (Ga. 1942).

(n39)Footnote 895. Buford v. Mochy, 29 S.E.2d 729 (N.C. 1944).

Where a single woman contracts to sell real estate and subsequently marries before executing the deed, the husband and wife must join in the conveyance and the court will compel them so to do. Lapida v. Goodman, 61 D. & C. (Pa.) 323 (1948).

Deed from a wife to a straw man for reconveyance to the husband and wife is void, unless there is a finding that the conveyance is not unreasonable or injurious to the wife. Brinson v. Kirby, 110 S.E.2d 482 (N.C. 1959).

(n40)Footnote 896. Cochran v. O'Hern, 4 Watts & S. (Pa.) 95 (1842); Thomas v. Folwell, 2 Whart. (Pa.) 11 (1836); Ewing v. Smith, 3 Desaus. (S.C.) 417 (1811); Calhoun v. Calhoun, 2 Strobh. Eq. (S.C.) 231 (1848); Marshall v. Stephens, 27 Tenn. (8 Humph.) 159 (1847); Williamson v. Beckham, 8 Leigh (Va.) 20 (1837).

(n41)Footnote 897. See in general: Van Sandt v. Weir, 19 So. 424 (Ala. 1896); Rypka v. Field, 115 P.2d 521 (Cal. App. 1941); Butler v. Buchingham, 5 Day (Conn.) 492 (1813); Williamson v. Yager, 15 S.W. 660 (Ky. 1891); Johnson v. Johnson, 166 S.W.2d 285 (Ky. 1942); Helms v. Franciscus, 2 Bland Ch. (Md.) 544 (1830); Burdeno v. Amperse, 14 Mich. 91 (1866); Turner v. Shaw, 8 S.W. 897 (Mo. 1888); Harris v. Harris, 42 N.C. 111 (1850); Kirk v. Kirk, 16 A.2d

47 (Pa. 1940); In re Rynier's Estate, 32 A.2d 736 (Pa. 1943); Barnum v. Lemaster, 75 S.W. 1045 (Tenn. 1903); Magnolia Petr. Co. v. Still, 163 S.W.2d 268 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Christiansen v. Department of Social Sec., 131 P.2d 189 (Wash. 1942).

(n42)Footnote 898. Bressler v. Kent, 61 Ill. 426 (1871); Essick v. Caple, 30 N.E. 900 (Ind. 1892) ("die without having heirs born to her"); Williamson v. Yager, 15 S.W. 660 (Ky. 1891); Clough v. Clough, 15 A. 127 (N.H. 1888) ("if she should have living issue"); Yale v. Dederer, 18 N.Y. 265 (1858); Walker v. Trollinger, 135 S.E. 871 (N.C. 1926) ("without having children"); Roberson v. Queen, 11 S.W. 38 (Tenn. 1889); Contra, Busby v. Rhodes, 58 Miss. 237 (1880).

(n43)Footnote 899. See Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916).

(n44)Footnote 900. Elliott v. Peirsol, 26 U.S. (1 Pet.) 328 (1828); Good v. Zercher, 12 Ohio 364 (1843); Glidden v. Strupler, 52 Pa. 400 (1866).

(n45)Footnote 901. Goode v. Longmire, 35 Ala. 668 (1860); Smyley v. Reese, 53 Ala. 89 (1875); American Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Powell, 178 So. 21 (Ala. 1937); Neely v. Lancaster, 1 S.W. 66 (Ark. 1886); Hampton v. Cook, 42 S.W. 535 (Ark. 1897); George v. Ransom, 15 Cal. 322 (1860); Lewis v. Johns, 24 Cal. 98 (1864); Evans v. Lobdale, 11 Del. (6 Houst.) 212 (1881); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Thompson v. Thompson, 35 S.E.2d 262 (Ga. 1945); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Johnson v. Johnson, 90 S.W. 964 (Ky. 1906); Webster v. Webster, 58 Me. 139 (1870); Lynde v. McGregor, 13 Allen (95 Mass.) 182 (1866); Johnson v. Cummins, 16 N.J. Eq. 97; Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

(n46)Footnote 902. Cary v. Cary, 80 P.2d 886 (Or. 1938) Mitchell v. Campbell, 13 So. 147 (Ala. 1893) (holding that husband can not compel the sale of a jointly owned homestead).

(n47)Footnote 903. Junction R. Co. v. Harris, 9 Ind. 184 (1833); Lawler v. Merritt, 48 N.Y.S.2d 843 (1944).

(n48)Footnote 904. Staples v. Barret, 108 So. 742 (Ala. 1926); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Chicago, B. & Q. R.R. v. Dunn, 52 Ill. 260 (1869); Appeal of Bergey, 60 Pa. 408 (1869); Alexander v. Alexander, 7 S.E. 335 (Va. 1888); Dayton v. Walsh, 2 N.W. 65 (Wis. 1879).

(n49)Footnote 905. Bishop v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co., 185 A. 335 (Md. 1936).

See the following cases:

Wolkau v. Wolkau, 132 N.E. 507 (Ill. 1921); Hubbard v. Keen, 247 S.W. 1000 (Mo. 1923); Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95 (N.J. Eq. 1921), aff'd, 116 A. 923 (N.J. Eq. 1922); Jefferson County Bank v. Hale, 280 S.W. 408 (Tenn. 1926); Humphreys v. Strong, 126 S.E. 194 (Va. 1925); Mattinson v. Mattinson, 222 P. 620 (Wash. 1924).

(n50)Footnote 906. Bloomfield v. Brown, 25 A.2d 354 (R.I. 1942); see Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

See also Arthur E. Ryman, A Comment on Family Property Rights and the Proposed 27th Amendment, 22 Drake L. Rev. 505 (1973).

(n51)Footnote 907. Hansen v. Cramer, 245 P.2d 1059 (Cal. 1952); Matthews v. Matthews, 148 S.W.2d 3 (Tenn. App. 1940); In re Cortte's Estate, 283 N.W. 336 (Wis. 1939); Jaeger v. Jaeger, 53 N.W.2d 740 (Wis. 1952); Pettis v. Johnston, 190 P. 681 (Okla. 1920) (holding that the homestead interest is jointly vested in husband and wife and the joint right is paramount to the individual right).

In Tennessee, married woman may convey her realty without her husband joining. Union Planters Nat'l Bank v. United States, 361 F.2d 662 (6th Cir. 1966) So also in Smith v. Martin, 186 So. 2d 16 (Fla. 1966).

(n52)Footnote 908. Scotvold v. Scotvold, 298 N.W. 266 (S.D. 1941).

(n53)Footnote 909. Black v. Internal Revenue Comm'r, 114 F.2d 355 (9th Cir. 1940); Helvering v. Campbell, 139 F.2d 865 (4th Cir. 1944); Nelson v. Goree, 34 Ala. 565 (1859); Ward v. Stallworth, 11 So. 2d 374 (Ala. 1942); Townes v. Durbin, 60 Ky. (3 Metc.) 352 (1861); Packwoods Succession, 12 Rob. (La.) 334 (1845); Bryan v. Moore, 11 Mart. (O.S.) (La.) 26 (1822); Cole v. His Executors, 7 Mart. (N.S.) (La.) 41 (1828); Dixon v. Dixon, 4 La. 188 (1832); Rush v. Landers, 32 So. 95 (La. 1902); Newcomer v. Orem, 2 Md. 297 (1852); Depas v. Mayo, 11 Mo. 314 (1848); In re Majot, 92 N.E. 402 (N.Y. 1910); McCollum v. Smith, 19 Tenn. (1 Meigs) 342 (1838); Kneeland v. Ensley, 19 Tenn. (Megis) 620 (1838); Morgan v. Bell, 28 P. 925 (Wash. 1892); La Selle v. Woolery, 44 P. 115 (Wash. 1896); Hitchcock Clinic, Inc. v. Mackie, 648 A.2d 817 (Vt. 1993) (holding that Vermont law, rather than New Hampshire law, applied in an action between a hospital and a former patient's wife to recover debts incurred by the patient in New Hampshire, because the hospital wished to attach property located in Vermont, the matrimonial domicile was Vermont, and the wife resided in Vermont).

See Restatement of Conflict of Laws, §237.

(n54)Footnote 910. Smith v. Ingram, 44 S.E. 643 (N.C. 1903).

(n55)Footnote 911. Nicholls v. O'Neill, 10 N.J. Eq. 88 (1854).

(n56)Footnote 912. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 127.

(n57)Footnote 913. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 126.

See George L. Hoskins, Curtesy at Common Law: Historical Development, 29 B.U. L. Rev. 228 (1949) for the theory that tenancy by the curtesy arose from the husband's status as guardian for his children who were the deceased wife's heirs since by his curtesy he kept out the lord's wardship and escheat.

(n58)Footnote 914. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 126. See George L. Hoskins, Curtesy at Common Law: Historical Development, 29 B.U. L. Rev. 228. See C.M.A. McCauliff, The Medieval Origin of the Doctrine of Estates in Land: Substantive Property Law, Family Considerations and the Interests of Women, 66 Tul.L. Rev. at 919, 1013 (Mar. 1992).

(n59)Footnote 915. Whiteman v. Taber, 83 So. 595 (Ala. 1919); Sadler v. Campbell, 236 S.W. 588 (Ark. 1921); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Decker v. Decker, 265 S.W. 483 (Ky. 1924); Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Shackleton v. Annabel, 206 N.Y.S. 446 (1924); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918). Under the statutes of Oregon, a nonresident husband has no right of curtesy in lands of which his wife was not seized at the time of her death. Rieger v. Harrington, 203 P. 576 (Or. 1922); Redus v. Hayden, 43 Miss. 614 (Miss. 1870) (defining tenant by the curtesy).

(n60)Footnote 916. Sadler v. Campbell, 236 S.W. 588 (Ark. 1921); Decker v. Decker, 265 S.W. 483 (Ky. 1924); Shackleton v. Annabel, 206 N.Y.S. 446 (1924).

The husband upon marriage acquired an estate in his wife's land, which gave him possession, control, title to all rents and profits and the right to sell for his lifetime. Perry v. Stancil, 75 S.E.2d 512 (N.C. 1953).

(n61)Footnote 917. Hope v. Shevill, 122 N.Y.S. 127 (1910), aff'd, 97 N.E. 1106 (N.Y. 1912).

See Spies, Property Rights of the Surviving Spouse, 46 Va. L. Rev. 157; Connolly v. Mahoney, 15 So. 903 (Ala. 1893) (holding that a husband has a life estate in wife's property; wife dies intestate).

(n62)Footnote 918. Hanneman v. Richter, 177 F. 563 (E.D.N.Y. Cir. 1910).

A husband's tenancy by "curtesy consummate," which Married Woman's Act saved from impairment by wife's deed, contract or other act or by judgment or decree against her, is "vested life estate in remainder," for characteristic of "vested remainder" is present capacity to take effect in possession or enjoyment on certain determination of precedent particular estate, rather than certainty of enjoyment by remainderman. Hopper v. Gurtman, 18 A.2d 245 (N.J.L. 1941).

(n63)Footnote 919. Deffenbaugh v. Hess, 74 A. 608 (Pa. 1909).

(n64)Footnote 920. In re Starbuck's Estate, 122 N.Y.S. 584 (1910), aff'd, 94 N.E. 1098 (N.Y. 1911).

(n65)Footnote 921. O'Brien v. Sedalia Trust Co., 5 S.W.2d 74 (Mo. 1928).

"The husband, by the birth of the child, becomes tenant by the curtesy initiate, and may do many acts to charge the lands but his estate is not consummate till the death of the wife." 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 128.

(n66)Footnote 922. Jackson v. Jackson, 33 N.E. 51 (Ill. 1893); Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Collins v. Russell, 76 N.E. 731 (N.Y. 1906).

(n67)Footnote 923. Wells v. Thompson, 13 Ala. 793 (1848); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918) (defining curtesy initiate).

(n68)Footnote 924. See Restatement of Property §153.

(n69)Footnote 925. Havranek v. Dragoun, 65 A.2d 105 (N.J. Super. 1948); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918).

(n70)Footnote 926. Sill v. White, 26 A. 396 (Conn. 1892); Miller v. Proctor, 49 S.W.2d 84 (Mo. 1932); Anastasia v. Anastasia, 47 A.2d 879 (N.J. Eq. 1946).

(n71)Footnote 927. Evans v. Lobdale, 6 Houst. (Del.) 212 (1889); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892).

Curtesy was held superior to a lien of judgment against the deceased and husband for purpose of calculating the husband's right in proceeds of sale. Quick v. Davidson, 545 S.W.2d 917 (Ark. 1977).

(n72)Footnote 928. Hampton v. Cook, 42 S.W. 535 (Ark. 1897); Waddle v. Frazier, 151 S.W. 87 (Mo. 1912); Reese v. Stires, 103 A. 679 (N.J. Eq. 1917).

(n73)Footnote 929. In re Starbuck's Estate, 122 N.Y.S. 584 (1910), aff'd, 94 N.E. 1098 (N.Y. 1911).

(n74)Footnote 930. Rieger v. Harrington, 203 P. 576 (Or. 1922).

(n75)Footnote 931. "This estate has no moral foundation to support it." William Cruise & Simon Greenleaf, A Digest of The Law of Real Property (2d ed. 1856-57). Greenleaf-Cruise, Real Property, tit. 5, §3.

(n76)Footnote 932. Billings v. Baker, 15 How. Prac. (N.Y.) 525 (1858).

(n77)Footnote 933. Pridgen v. Pridgen, 129 S.E. 419 (N.C. 1925).

(n78)Footnote 934. Faulkner v. Terrell, 287 S.W.2d 409 (Ky. 1956) (birth of issue not required for curtesy). In re Redmond's Will, 60 N.Y.S.2d 316 (1946) (birth of issue required); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Littell v. Jones, 19 S.W. 497 (Ark. 1892) (holding that husband acquired no vested estate of curtesy in his wife's land until birth of issue); Sewell v. Sewell, 1 N.E.2d 492 (Ill. 1936) (holding that a husband had a right of curtesy to homestead of his wife subject only to wife's children during their minority).

(n79)Footnote 935. Sadler v. Campbell, 236 S.W. 588 (Ark. 1921); Todd v. Oviatt, 20 A. 440 (Conn. 1889); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Carr v. Givens, 72 Ky. (9 Bush) 679 (1873); Doyle v. Rolwing, 65 S.W. 315 (Mo. 1901); Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Register v. Elder, 132 S.W. 699 (Mo. 1910); Brook v. Barker, 228 S.W. 805 (Mo. 1921); Jackson v. Johnson, 5 Cow. (N.Y.) 74 (1825); Sanford v. Getman, 210 N.Y.S. 682 (1925) Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Burgess v. Muldoon, 29 A. 298 (R.I. 1894); Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883); Peal v. Luther, 97 S.E.2d 668 (Va. 1957).

(n80)Footnote 936. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 127.

(n81)Footnote 937. Turner v. Meyers, 1 Hagg. Consist. 414.

(n82)Footnote 938. In re Murray Canal, 6 Ont. 685.

(n83)Footnote 939. Hafner v. Miller, 252 S.W. 722 (Mo. 1923).

(n84)Footnote 940. Sanford v. Getman, 210 N.Y.S. 682 (1925).

(n85)Footnote 941. Decker v. Decker, 265 S.W. 483 (Ky. 1924); Weaver v. Patterson, 111 A. 506 (N.J. Eq. 1920); Sanford v. Getman, 210 N.Y.S. 682 (1925).

(n86)Footnote 942. Mercer v. Selden, 42 U.S. (1 How.) 37 (1843); Jenkins v. Woodward Iron Co., 69 So. 646 (Ala. 1915); Bogy v. Roberts, 2 S.W. 186 (Ark. 1886); Todd v. Oviatt, 20 A. 440 (Conn. 1889); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Jackson v. Jackson, 33 N.E. 51 (Ill. 1893); Carr v. Givens, 72 Ky. (9 Bush) 679 (1873); Hunt v. Phillips, 105 S.W. 445 (Ky. L. 1907); Malone v. McLaurin, 40 Miss. 161 (1866); Cox v. Boyce, 54 S.W. 467 (Mo. 1899); Doyle v. Rolwing, 65 S.W. 315 (Mo. 1901); Dozier v. Toalson, 79 S.W. 420 (Mo. 1904); Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Weaver v. Patterson, 111 A. 506 (N.J. Eq. 1920); Brandmeier v. Pond Creek Coal Co., 67 A. 951 (Pa. 1907); Burgess v. Muldoon, 29 A. 298 (R.I. 1894); Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

(n87)Footnote 943. Stockton v. Maney, 193 S.E. 137 (N.C. 1937).

(n88)Footnote 944. Wells v. Thompson, 13 Ala. 793 (1848); Carr v. Givens, 72 Ky. (9 Bush) 679 (1873); Malone v. McLaurin, 40 Miss. 161 (1866); Grandjean v. Beyl, 110 N.W. 1108 (Neb. 1907); Collins v. Russell, 76 N.E. 731 (N.Y. 1906).

(n89)Footnote 945. Coke on Littleton, §559.

(n90)Footnote 946. Carpenter v. Garrett, 75 Va. 129 (1880).

(n91)Footnote 947. Malone v. McLaurin, 40 Miss. 161 (1866); Hicks v. Estes, 214 S.W. 159 (Mo. 1919); McCoy v. King's Heirs, 3 Humph. (22 Tenn.) 267 (1842).

(n92)Footnote 948. Todd v. Oviatt, 20 A. 440 (Conn. 1889); Cox v. Boyce, 54 S.W. 467 (Mo. 1899); Majors v. Cryts, 144 S.W. 769 (Mo. 1912); Adair v. Lott, 3 Hill (N.Y.) 182 (1842); Jackson v. Johnson, 5 Cow. (N.Y.) 74 (1825); Merritt v. Horne, 5 Ohio 307 (1855); Appeal of Rankin, 16 A. 82 (Pa. 1888).

(n93)Footnote 949. Todd v. Oviatt, 20 A. 440 (Conn. 1889).

(n94)Footnote 950. Davis v. Mason, 26 U.S. 503 (1828); Wells v. Thompson, 13 Ala. 793 (1848); Guion v. Anderson, 8 Humph. (27 Tenn.) 298 (1847).

(n95)Footnote 951. Conner v. Downer, 4 Bush (67 Ky.) 631 (1868); Decker v. Decker, 265 S.W. 483 (Ky. 1924);

See Weaver v. Patterson, 111 A. 506 (N.J. Eq. 1920); Sanford v. Getman, 210 N.Y.S. 682 (1925).

(n96)Footnote 952. Shackleton v. Annabel, 206 N.Y.S. 446 (1924). See Tyndall v. Tyndall, 119 S.E. 354 (N.C. 1923), wherein it is said that "at common law ... the wife's seizin must have been not a mere right or seizin in law, but actual possession or a seizin in deed." Hess v. Hess, 91 P.2d 850 (Or.1939) (holding that "seisin" as applied to land is a technical term and implies the actual possession of a freehold estate and is in fact the actual possession of the land).

(n97)Footnote 953. Powell v. Gossom, 18 B. Mon. (57 Ky.) 179 (1857).

(n98)Footnote 954. Ellsworth v. Cook, 8 Paige (N.Y.) 643 (1841).

(n99)Footnote 955. De Grey v. Richardson, 3 Atk. 469; Rossiter v. Soper, 50 N.E.2d 701 (Ill. 1943); Carr v. Givens, 9 Bush (72 Ky.) 679 (1873).

(n100)Footnote 956. Green v. Liter, 12 U.S. 229 (1814); Powell v. Gossom, 18 B. Mon. (57 Ky.) 179 (1857); Jackson v. Johnson, 5 Cow. (N.Y.) 74 (1825).

(n101)Footnote 957. Carr v. Givens, 9 Bush (72 Ky.) 679 (1873); Dunscomb v. Dunscomb, 1 John. Ch. (N.Y.) 508 (1815).

(n102)Footnote 958. Planters Bank v. Davis, 31 Ala. 626 (1858); Planters Shores v. Carley, 8 Allen (90 Mass.) 425 (1864); Hitner v. Ege, 23 Pa. 305 (1854); Brandmeier v. Pond Creek Coal Co., 67 A. 951 (Pa. 1907).

(n103)Footnote 959. Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Jackson v. Johnson, 5 Cow. (N.Y.) 74 (1825).

(n104)Footnote 960. Whitehill v. Thiess, 158 A. 347 (Md. 1932).

(n105)Footnote 961. Todd v. Oviatt, 20 A. 440 (Conn. 1889); New York, N. H. & H. R.R. v. Russell, 78 A. 324 (Conn. 1910); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Jackson v. Jackson, 33 N.E. 51 (Ill. 1893); Carr v. Givens, 72 Ky. (9 Bush) 679 (1873); Shepard v. Browning, 160 S.W. 950 (Ky. 1913); Doyle v. Rolwing, 65 S.W. 315 (Mo. 1901); Dozier v. Toalson, 79 S.W. 420 (Mo. 1904); Brook v. Barker, 228 S.W. 805 (Mo. 1921); Lynch v. Jones, 247 S.W. 123 (Mo. 1922); Murdock v. Murdock, 65 A. 392 (N.H. 1906); Craig v. Smith, 95 A. 194 (N.J. Eq. 1915); Jackson v. Johnson, 5 Cow. (N.Y.) 74 (1825); Yung v. Blake, 148 N.Y.S. 557 (1914); Sanford v. Getman, 210 N.Y.S. 682 (1925) Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Norwood v. Totten, 82 S.E. 951 (N.C. 1914); Burgess v. Muldoon, 29 A. 298 (R.I. 1894); Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883); Duggins v. Woodson, 84 S.E. 652 (Va. 1915).

(n106)Footnote 962. Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Jackson v. Johnson, 5 Cow. (N.Y.) 74 (1825).

(n107)Footnote 963. Evans v. Lobdale, 11 Del. (6 Houst.) 212 (1881); Doyle v. Rolwing, 65 S.W. 315 (Mo. 1901); Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

(n108)Footnote 964. Turner v. Heinberg, 65 N.E. 294 (Ind. App. 1902); Garner v. Wills, 17 S.W. 1023 (Ky. 1891); Hopper v. Gurtman, 18 A.2d 245 (N.J.L. 1941).

(n109)Footnote 965. Cannon v. Killen, 5 Houst. (Del.) 14 (1875); Goff v. Anderson, 15 S.W. 866 (Ky. 1891); Fleming v. Sexton, 90 S.E. 247 (N.C. 1916).

(n110)Footnote 966. Marsellis v. Thalhimer, 2 Paige (N.Y.) 35 (1830).

(n111)Footnote 967. See Forbes v. Sweesy, 1 N.W. 571 (Neb. 1879); Grandjean v. Beyl, 110 N.W. 1108 (Neb. 1907); Bruner v. Briggs, 39 Ohio St. 478 (1883); Dubs v. Dubs, 31 Pa. 149 (1858); Rouse v. Directors of Poor, 32 A.

541 (Pa. 1895).

(n112)Footnote 968. Hunter v. Whitworth, 9 Ala. 965 (1846); In re Gossett's Estate, 129 P.2d 56 (N.M. 1942) (holding that an nonmarital child acquires interest in mother's land equal to marital child).

(n113)Footnote 969. Murdock v. Murdock, 65 A. 392 (N.H. 1906).

(n114)Footnote 970. Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95 (N.J. Eq. 1921), aff'd, 116 A. 923 (N.J. 1922).

Although a husband, whose wife has not borne him a child alive, has neither an estate by the curtesy initiate nor an inchoate right of curtesy, he does have a contingent estate in remainder, because, on issue's being born alive, he would have an inchoate right of curtesy, and on his surviving his wife, he would be entitled to an estate by the curtesy consummate; that is, a freehold estate in possession for the remainder of his life. Riley v. Riley, 113 A. 777 (N.J. 1921).

(n115)Footnote 971. Sanford v. Getman, 206 N.Y.S. 865 (1924); Fleming v. Sexton, 90 S.E. 247 (N.C. 1916) (defining birth).

(n116)Footnote 972. Heath v. White, 5 Conn. 228 (1824); Grandjean v. Beyl, 110 N.W. 1108 (Neb. 1907); Mullany v. Mullany, 4 N.J. Eq. 16 (1837). See Sanford v. Getman, 210 N.Y.S. 682 (1925).

(n117)Footnote 973. Adams v. Beekman, 1 Paige (N.Y.) 631 (1829); Barker v. Barker, 2 Sim. 249.

(n118)Footnote 974. Adams v. Beekman, 1 Paige (N.Y.) 631 (1829); Sumner v. Partridge, 2 Atk. 37, 26 Eng. Rep. 425 (1740).

(n119)Footnote 975. Sumner v. Partridge, 2 Atk 37, 26 Eng. Rep. 425 (1740).

(n120)Footnote 976. Jamison v. Zausch, 126 S.W. 1023 (Mo. 1910).

(n121)Footnote 977. Manatt v. Griffith, 124 N.W. 753 (Iowa 1910).

(n122)Footnote 978. Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95 (N.J. Eq. 1922).

(n123)Footnote 979. See generally: Wells v. Thompson, 13 Ala. 793 (1848); Sadler v. Campbell, 236 S.W. 588 (Ark. 1921); Todd v. Oviatt, 20 A. 440 (Conn. 1889); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Beach v. Miller, 51 Ill. 206 (1869); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Carr v. Givens, 72 Ky. (9 Bush) 679 (1873); Nickerson v. Nickerson, 126 N.E. 834 (Mass. 1920); Doyle v. Rolwing, 65 S.W. 315 (Mo. 1901); Dozier v. Toalson, 79 S.W. 420 (Mo. 1904); Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Brook v. Barker, 228 S.W. 805 (Mo. 1921); Healey v. Tillberry, 183 S.W. 666 (Mo. App. 1916); Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95 (N.J. Eq. 1921); Jackson v. Johnson, 5 Cow. (N.Y.) 74 (1825); Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Burgess v. Muldoon, 29 A. 298 (R.I. 1894); Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

(n124)Footnote 980. Hampton v. Cook, 42 S.W. 535 (Ark. 1897); Watson v. Watson, 13 Conn. 83 (1839).

(n125)Footnote 981. In re Starbuck's Estate, 122 N.Y.S. 584 (1910).

(n126)Footnote 982. Howze v. Hutchens, 209 S.W.2d 286 (Ark. 1948) (remainderman dying before life tenant); Sanford v. Getman, 210 N.Y.S. 682 (1925).

(n127)Footnote 983. In re Grandjean's Estate, 110 N.W. 1108 (Neb. 1907); Mullany v. Mullany, 4 N.J. Eq. 16 (1837); Graves v. Trueblood, 1 S.E. 918 (N.C. 1887); Waller v. Martin, 61 S.W. 73 (Tenn. 1901); Muse v. Friedenwald, 77 Va. 57 (1883).

(n128)Footnote 984. Whitehill v. Thiess, 158 A. 347 (Md. 1932).

(n129)Footnote 985. "It is well settled in respect to estates tail that though issue in tail fail by the death of the child or children in the lifetime of the wife, whereby her estate at her death is at an end, yet the husband takes curtesy, the same being a right incident to such an estate." Hay v. Mayer, 8 Watts (Pa.) 203 (1839); Holden v. Wells, 31 A. 265 (R.I. 1895).

Dower or curtesy in defeasible fees. Snidow v. Snidow, 63 S.E.2d 620 (Va. 1951).

(n130)Footnote 986. Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889).

Curtesy allowed in defeasible fee defeated at wife's death.

See George L. Haskins, The Defeasibility of Dower, 98 U. Pa. L. Rev. 826 (1950).

(n131)Footnote 987. Smith v. Bachus, 70 So. 261 (Ala. 1915); Whitehill v. Thiess, 158 A. 347 (Md. 1932); Gray v. Clement, 246 S.W. 940 (Mo. 1922); Winterbaum v. Deusel, 111 A. 9 (N.J. 1920); Bigley v. Watson, 39 S.W. 525 (Tenn. 1897); Waller v. Martin, 61 S.W. 73 (Tenn. 1901).

(n132)Footnote 988. Brown v. Watkins, 40 S.W. 480 (Tenn. 1897).

(n133)Footnote 989. Maynard v. Henderson, 173 S.W. 831 (Ark. 1915).

(n134)Footnote 990. Flannery v. Rohrmayer, 49 Conn. 27 (1881).

(n135)Footnote 991. Noreen v. Sparks, 103 F. Supp. 588 (D.D.C. 1952); Howze v. Hutchens, 209 S.W.2d 286 (Ark. 1948); Todd v. Oviatt, 20 A. 440 (Conn. 1889); In re Ward's Appeal, 54 A. 730 (Conn. 1903); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Hunt v. Phillips, 105 S.W. 445 (Ky. L. 1907); Maupin v. Maupin, 110 S.W. 840 (Ky. L. 1908); Faulkner v. Terrell, 287 S.W.2d 409 (Ky. 1956) (but curtesy attaches if life tenant predeceases the remainderman); Malone v. McLaurin, 40 Miss. 161 (1866); Martin v. Trail, 43 S.W. 655 (Mo. 1897); Cox v. Boyce, 54 S.W. 467 (Mo. 1899); Dozier v. Toalson, 79 S.W. 420 (Mo. 1904); Hicks v. Estes, 214 S.W. 159 (Mo. 1919); Collins v. Russell, 76 N.E. 731 (N.Y. 1906); Kohl v. Kepler, 110 A. 239 (Pa. 1920); Reed v. Reed, 3 Head. (40 Tenn.) 491 (1859).

(n136)Footnote 992. Norton v. McDevit, 30 S.E. 24 (N.C. 1898).

(n137)Footnote 993. Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916).

(n138)Footnote 994. Verhine v. Ragsdale, 35 S.W. 556 (Tenn. 1896).

(n139)Footnote 995. Winterbaum v. Duesel, 106 A. 821 (N.J.L. 1919).

(n140)Footnote 996. Chance v. Weston, 190 P. 155 (Or. 1920).

(n141)Footnote 997. Carter v. Couch, 47 So. 1006 (Ala. 1908); Webb v. First Colored Baptist Church, 13 S.W. 362 (Ky. 1890).

Contra, no dower in contingent remainders which failed on wife's death. Noreen v. Sparks, 104 F. Supp. 675 (D.D.C. 1952).

Under the Kentucky statute, the husband has a right of curtesy in a fee even though the latter is defeasible on, and is actually defeated by, a failure of issue. Cooper's Adm'r v. Clarke, 240 S.W. 361 (Ky. 1921).

(n142)Footnote 998. Joshua Williams, Principles of The Law of Real Property, 358, 359, 362 (17th ed.).

(n143)Footnote 999. Appleton v. Rowley, L.R. 8 Eq. 139; Eager v. Furnivall, 17 Ch. Div. 115.

(n144)Footnote 1000. Cooper v. McDonald, 7 Ch. Div. 288.

(n145)Footnote 1001. Armstrong v. Wood, 195 F. 137 (C.C.D. Okla. 1911); Ogden v. Ogden, 28 S.W. 796 (Ark. 1894); Jackson v. Becktold Printing & Book Mfg. Co., 112 S.W. 161 (Ark. 1908); Dugan v. Gittings, 3 Gill. (Md) 138 (Md. 1845); Chance v. Weston, 190 P. 155 (Or. 1920).

(n146)Footnote 1002. Baker v. Combs, 284 S.W. 101 (Ky. 1926); Tyndall v. Tyndall, 119 S.E. 354 (N.C. 1923).

(n147)Footnote 1003. Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908).

(n148)Footnote 1004. Davis v. Mason, 26 U.S., 503 (1908); Jackson v. Becktold Printing & Book Mfg. Co., 112 S.W. 161 (Ark. 1908).

(n149)Footnote 1005. Chaplin v. Chaplin, 3 P. Wms. 234.

(n150)Footnote 1006. In re Grandjean's Estate, 110 N.W. 1108 (Neb. 1907).

(n151)Footnote 1007. Ogden v. Ogden, 28 S.W. 796 (Ark. 1894); Luntz v. Greve, 26 N.E. 128 (Ind. 1885); McTigue v. McTigue, 22 S.W. 501 (Mo. 1893); Jamison v. Zausch, 126 S.W. 1023 (Mo. 1910); Cushing v. Blake, 29 N.J. Eq. 399 (1878); Ege v. Medlar, 82 Pa. 86 (1876); Carter v. Dale Ross & Co., 71 Tenn. (Lea.) 710 (1879); Watts v. Ball, 1 P. Wms. 108, 24 Eng. Rep. 315 (1708); Casborne v. Scarfe, 1 Atk. 603, 26 Eng. Rep. 377 (1737).

(n152)Footnote 1008. Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916).

(n153)Footnote 1009. Rigler v. Cloud, 14 Pa. 361 (1850); Jones v. Jones, 32 S.E. 463 (Va. 1899).

(n154)Footnote 1010. Grimball v. Patton, 70 Ala. 626 (1881); Pool v. Blakie, 53 Ill. 495 (1870); McTigue v. McTigue, 22 S.W. 501 (Mo. 1893); McBreen v. McBreen, 55 S.W. 463 (Mo. 1910); Chance v. Weston, 190 P. 155 (Or. 1920); Rigler v. Cloud, 14 Pa. 361 (1850); Haight v. Hall, 42 N.W. 109 (Wis. 1889).

(n155)Footnote 1011. McBreen v. McBreen, 55 S.W. 463 (Mo. 1900).

(n156)Footnote 1012. Mullany v. Mullany, 4 N.J. Eq. 16 (1937); Dubs v. Dubs, 31 Pa. 149 (1858); Steadman v. Palling, 3 Atk. 423, 56 Eng. Rep. 951 (1820); Morgan v. Morgan, 5 Madd. 408, 26 Eng. Rep. 1044 (1820).

(n157)Footnote 1013. Hughes v. Saffell, 119 S.W. 804 (Ky. 1909).

(n158)Footnote 1014. Coleman v. Coleman, 55 A.2d 471 (N.H. 1947); Chance v. Weston, 190 P. 155 (Or. 1920); Hess v. Hess, 91 P.2d 850 (Or. 1939).

(n159)Footnote 1015. First Nat'l Bank v. Godfrey, 117 S.E. 680 (W. Va. 1923), quoting and expressly reaffirming Depue v. Miller, 64 S.E. 740 (W. Va. 1909).

(n160)Footnote 1016. Vidmer v. Lloyd, 63 So. 943 (Ala. 1913); Smith v. Cross, 140 S.W. 1060 (Tenn. 1911).

(n161)Footnote 1017. Dakev Sewell, 39 So. 819 (Ala. 1905); Trice v. Miller, 229 S.W.2d 233 (Ark. 1950); Moore v. Newsom, 50 S.W.2d 945 (Ky. 1932); Nickerson v. Nickerson, 126 N.E. 834 (Mass. 1920).

(n162)Footnote 1018. Perkins v. Anderson, 198 N.E. 606 (Mass. 1935).

(n163)Footnote 1019. Lockhart v. Kentland Coal & Coke Co., 207 S.W. 18 (Ky. 1918).

(n164)Footnote 1020. In re Brogden, 104 S.E. 177 (N.C. 1920).

(n165)Footnote 1021. Beaty v. Calliss, 128 N.E. 547 (Ill. 1920).

(n166)Footnote 1022. Restatement of Property, §54.

(n167)Footnote 1023. Restatement of Property, §84.

(n168)Footnote 1024. Restatement of Property, §128.

(n169)Footnote 1025. Coke on Littleton, §29; Davis v. Mason, 26 U.S. 503 (1828); Chew v. Southwark, 5 Rawle (Pa.) 160 (1835).

(n170)Footnote 1026. In re Charbonneau, 221 N.Y.S. 449 (1927).

(n171)Footnote 1027. Id.

(n172)Footnote 1028. Herzog v. Ross, 213 S.W.2d 921 (Mo. 1948); In re Clark's Estate, 213 S.W.2d 645 (Mo. App. 1948); Riley v. Riley, 113 A. 777 (N.J. 1921); Mullen v. Mullen, 129 A. 749 (N.J. 1925); In re Charbonneau, 221 N.Y.S. 449 (1927).

(n173)Footnote 1029. Littleton, Tenures, §35; Harlan Nat'l Bank v. Brown, 317 S.W.2d 903 (Ky. 1958); Herzog v. Ross, 213 S.W.2d 921 (Mo. 1948); State v. Elsbury, 175 P.2d 430 (Nev. 1946).

(n174)Footnote 1030. Trice v. Miller, 229 S.W.2d 233 (Ark. 1950).

(n175)Footnote 1031. Dunscomb v. Dunscomb, 1 Johns Ch. (N.Y.) 508 (1815); In re Camp, 27 N.E. 799 (N.Y. 1891); Clepper v. Livergood, 5 Watts (Pa.) 113 (1836).

(n176)Footnote 1032. Davis v. Mason, 26 U.S. 503 (1828).

(n177)Footnote 1033. Wells v. Thompson, 13 Ala. 793 (1848); Carter v. Couch, 47 So. 1006 (Ala. 1908).

(n178)Footnote 1034. Carter v. Couch, 47 So. 1006 (Ala. 1908).

(n179)Footnote 1035. Northcut v. Whipp, 12 B. Mon. (51 Ky.) 65 (1851); Webb v. First Colored Baptist Church, 13 S.W. 362 (Ky. 1890); Hatfield v. Sneden, 54 N.Y. 280 (1873); Hay v. Mayer, 8 Watts (Pa.) 203 (1839); Thornton v. Krepps, 37 Pa. 391 (1860); Holden v. Wells, 31 A. 265 (R.I. 1895); Withers v. Jenkins, 14 S.C. 597 (1880); Odom v. Beverly, 10 S.E. 835 (S.C. 1893).

(n180)Footnote 1036. McMasters v. Negley, 25 A. 641 (Pa. 1893).

(n181)Footnote 1037. Evans v. Lobdale, 6 Houst. (Del.) 212 (1889); Doyle v. Rolwing, 65 S.W. 315 (Mo. 1901); Stabel v. Gertel, 165 A. 876 (N.J. 1933); Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Parham v. Henley, 30 S.E.2d 372 (N.C. 1944); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

(n182)Footnote 1038. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 246.

(n183)Footnote 1039. Gebbeken v. Growney, 205 S.W. 721 (Mo. 1918); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918).

(n184)Footnote 1040. McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Roberts v. Whiting, 16 Mass. 186 (1819); Van Duzer v. Van Duzer, 6 Paige 366 (N.Y. 1837); Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Hyde v. Barney, 17 Vt. 280 (1845); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

(n185)Footnote 1041. Sadler v. Campbell, 236 S.W. 588 (Ark. 1921); Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95, aff'd, 116 A. 923 (N.J. Eq. 1921); In re Starbuck's Estate, 122 N.Y.S. 584, aff'd, 94 N.E. 1098 (N.Y. 1922); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1910).

(n186)Footnote 1042. O'Brien v. Sedalia Trust Co., 5 S.W.2d 74 (Mo. 1928); Hope v. Seaman, 119 N.Y.S. 713 (1909), modified on other grounds, 122 N.Y.S. 127 (1910).

(n187)Footnote 1043. Klein v. Mangan, 17 N.E.2d 958 (Ill. 1938).

(n188)Footnote 1044. Spangler v. Vermillion, 92 S.E. 449 (W. Va. 1917).

(n189)Footnote 1045. McGlennery v. Miller, 90 N.C. 215 (1884).

(n190)Footnote 1046. Coke on Littleton, §30a.

Hitz v. National Metro. Bank, 111 U.S. 722 (1884); Boykin v. Rain, 28 Ala. 332 (1856); Watson v. Watson, 13 Conn. 83 (1839); Shortall v. Hinckley, 31 Ill. 219 (1863); Gay v. Gay, 13 N.E. 813 (Ill. 1887); Jackson v. Jackson, 33 N.E. 51 (Ill. 1893); Perkins v. Anderson, 198 N.E. 606 (Mass. 1935); Stewart v. Ross, 50 Miss. 776 (1874); Moyer v. Dunseith, 46 N.Y.S.2d 360 (1943); Parham v. Henley, 30 S.E.2d 372 (N.C. 1944); Branstetter v. Poynter, 222 S.W.2d 214 (Tenn. App. 1949); Wyatt v. Smith, 25 W. Va. 813 (1885); Mills v. Woods, 57 S.E.2d 713 (W. Va. 1950) (purported conveyance of fee conveyed only tenancy by curtesy).

"A husband's right to curtesy initiate consists simply of a status, which is never a vested right, and is not separately alienable during the coverture. While merely initiate, it is not an estate, but simply a possibility or expectancy like that of an heir apparent. Either may be destroyed at will by the owner of the fee. As it is not coupled with any interest in the property, it cannot be made the subject of a mortgage or transfer." Albany County Sav. Bank v. McCarty, 43 N.E. 427 (N.Y. 1896) See Evans v. Lobdale, 6 Houst. 212 (Del. 1889); Hope v. Seaman, 119 N.Y.S. 713 (1909); Bruce v. Nicholson, 13 S.E. 790 (N.C. 1891).

(n191)Footnote 1047. Wilmington Trust Co. v. Boden, 38 A.2d 168 (Del. Ch. 1944).

In Alabama the husband may occupy the wife's realty for his lifetime after her death. Beason v. Bowlin, 149 So. 2d 283 (Ala. 1962).

(n192)Footnote 1048. Wells v. Thompson, 13 Ala. 793 (1848).

Watson v. Watson, 13 Conn. 83 (1839); Todd v. Oviatt, 20 A. 440 (Conn. 1889); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Beach v. Miller, 51 Ill. 206 (1869); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Jackson v. Jackson, 33 N.E. 51 (Ill. 1893); Carr v. Givens, 72 Ky. 679 (1873); Childers v. Kennedy, 224 S.W. 651 (Ky. 1920); Whitehill v. Thiess, 158 A. 347 (Md. 1932); Nickerson v. Nickerson, 126 N.E. 834 (Mass. 1920); Doyle v. Rolwing, 65 S.W. 315 (Mo. 1901); Dozier v. Toalson, 79 S.W. 420 (Mo. 1904); Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Burgess v. Muldoon, 29 A. 298 (R.I. 1894); Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1916); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

(n193)Footnote 1049. Watson v. Watson, 13 Conn. 83 (1839).

(n194)Footnote 1050. Bozarth v. Largent, 21 N.E. 218 (Ill. 1889); Deming v. Miles, 53 N.W. 665 (Neb. 1892); Canby v. Porter, 12 Ohio 79 (1843); Branstetter v. Poynter, 222 S.W.2d 214 (Tenn. App. 1949).

(n195)Footnote 1051. Hart v. Chase, 46 Conn. 207 (1878); Orthwein v. Thomas, 21 N.E. 430 (Ill. 1889); Voss v. Stortz, 197 S.W. 964 (Ky. 1917); Matthews v. Copeland, 79 N.C. 493 (1878); Bubb v. Bubb, 50 A. 759 (Pa. 1902).

(n196)Footnote 1052. Huffman v. Huffman, 11 N.E.2d 271 (Ohio App. 1937).

(n197)Footnote 1053. Miles v. Miles, 175 P. 222 (Okla. 1918).

(n198)Footnote 1054. Helmick v. Wells, 102 S.W.2d 58 (Tenn. 1937).

(n199)Footnote 1055. Fish v. Fish, 212 S.W. 586 (Ky. 1919).

(n200)Footnote 1056. Woodward v. Woodward, 49 S.W. 1001 (Mo. 1899).

(n201)Footnote 1057. Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889).

(n202)Footnote 1058. Caudil v. Wagoner, 212 S.W. 422 (Ky. 1919).

(n203)Footnote 1059. Wear-Boogher Dry Goods Co. v. Smith, 49 S.W. 493 (Ark. 1898).

Curtesy held superior to lien of judgment against deceased and husband for purpose of calculating husband's right in proceeds of sale. Quick v. Davidson, 545 S.W.2d 917 (Ark. 1977).

(n204)Footnote 1060. In re Camp, 27 N.E. 799 (N.Y. 1891).

(n205)Footnote 1061. Bond v. Godsey, 39 S.E. 216 (Va. 1901); Coleman v. Coleman, 99 S.W. 459 (Mo. App. 1907) (holding that a tenant by curtesy is entitled to use of any estate and may accept gross sum of money in lieu thereof).

(n206)Footnote 1062. Decker v. Decker, 265 S.W. 483 (Ky. 1924).

(n207)Footnote 1063. Bryant v. Freeman, 173 S.W. 863 (Tenn. 1915).

(n208)Footnote 1064. In re Steele, 19 N.J. Eq. 120 (1868); Dinges v. Dinges, 65 A.2d 107 (N.J. Super. 1948).

(n209)Footnote 1065. White v. Portland, 34 A. 1022 (Conn. 1896); Dinges v. Dinges, 65 A.2d 107 (N.J. Super. 1948); Jones v. Jackson, 246 P.2d 546 (Or. 1952); Perszyk v. Milwaukee Elec. R. & Light Co., 254 N.W. 753 (Wis. 1934); White v. Portland, 34 A. 1022 (Conn.1896) (holding that a tenant by the curtesy must pay taxes upon the real estate owned by him).

(n210)Footnote 1066. Learned v. Ogden, 32 So. 278 (Miss. 1902).

(n211)Footnote 1067. Perszyk v. Milwaukee Elec. R. & Light Co., 254 N.W. 753 (Wis. 1934).

(n212)Footnote 1068. Kentucky Stave Co. v. Page, 125 S.W. 170 (Ky. 1910).

(n213)Footnote 1069. Deffenbaugh v. Hess, 74 A. 608 (Pa. 1909).

(n214)Footnote 1070. Decker v. Decker, 265 S.W. 483 (Ky. 1924).

(n215)Footnote 1071. Stanley v. Bonham, 12 S.W. 706 (Ark. 1889); Bozarth v. Largent, 21 N.E. 218 (Ill. 1889); Gebbeken v. Growney, 205 S.W. 721 (Mo. 1918); Deming v. Miles, 53 N.W. 665 (Neb. 1892); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918).

Curtesy held superior to lien of judgment against deceased and husband for purpose of calculating husband's right in proceeds of sale. Quick v. Davidson, 545 S.W.2d 917 (Ark. 1977).

(n216)Footnote 1072. Adair v. Lott, 3 Hill 182 (N.Y. 1842); Hardemann v. Judge, 931 S.W.2d 716 (Tex. App. 1996) (husband may elect to sell property to pay debts); White Sewing Mach. Co. v. Wooster, 50 S.W. 1000 (Ark. 1899)

(holding a surviving husband with right of homestead by curtesy can convey estate to children without interference from creditors).

(n217)Footnote 1073. Sadler v. Campbell, 236 S.W. 588 (Ark. 1921); Brook v. Barker, 228 S.W. 805 (Mo. 1921); Wells v. Egger, 259 S.W. 437 (Mo. 1924); Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95 (N.J. Eq. 1921); Travis v. Sitz, 185 S.W. 1075 (Tenn. 1922); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1916).

(n218)Footnote 1074. Carroll v. Sanford, 83 A. 855 (R.I. 1912).

(n219)Footnote 1075. Hampton v. Cook, 42 S.W. 535 (Ark. 1897).

(n220)Footnote 1076. Id.

(n221)Footnote 1077. Johnson v. Minnesota L. & T. Co., 77 N.W. 421 (Minn. 1898); Miller v. Hanna, 131 N.W. 226 (Neb. 1911); Arrowsmith v. Arrowsmith, 8 Hun. 606 (N.Y. 1876); Bennett v. Camp, 54 Vt. 36 (1882); Gilkison v. Gore, 91 S.E. 395 (W. Va. 1917); Schmidt v. Raymond, 134 N.W. 362 (Wis. 1912).

(n222)Footnote 1078. Gilkison v. Gore, 91 S.E. 395 (W. Va. 1917).

(n223)Footnote 1079. Campbell v. Martin, 95 A. 494 (Vt. 1915).

(n224)Footnote 1080. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Mallory, 141 N.W. 190 (Neb. 1913).

(n225)Footnote 1081. Wilmington Trust Co. v. Boden, 38 A.2d 168 (Del. Ch. 1944).

(n226)Footnote 1082. McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Turner v. Heinberg, 65 N.E. 294 (Ind. App. 1902); Roberts v. Whiting, 16 Mass. 186 (1819); Gebbeken v. Growney, 205 S.W. 721 (Mo. 1918); Wells v. Egger, 259 S.W. 437 (Mo. 1924); Hopper v. Gurtman, 18 A.2d 245 (N.J.L. 1941); Van Duzer v. Van Duzer, 6 Paige 366 (N.Y. 1837); Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Burd v. Dansdale, 2 Binn. 80 (Pa. 1809); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Mattocks v. Stearns, 9 Vt. 326 (1837); Hyde v. Barney, 17 Vt. 280 (1845); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883).

(n227)Footnote 1083. Teckenbrock v. McLaughlin, 152 S.W. 38 (Mo. 1912).

(n228)Footnote 1084. Deming v. Miles, 53 N.W. 665 (Neb. 1892).

(n229)Footnote 1085. Hitz v. National Metro. Bank, 111 U.S. 722 (1884); Sill v. White, 26 A. 396 (Conn. 1892); Carroll v. Sanford, 83 A. 855 (R.I. 1912); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883); Bankers Loan & Inv. Co. v. Blair, 39 S.E. 231 (Va. 1901).

(n230)Footnote 1086. Carroll v. Sanford, 83 A. 855 (R.I. 1912).

(n231)Footnote 1087. Shannon v. Ogletree, 76 So. 865 (Ala. 1917); Anderson v. Tydings, 8 Md. 427 (1855).

(n232)Footnote 1088. Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95 (N.J. Eq. 1921).

(n233)Footnote 1089. First Nat'l Bank v. Godfrey, 117 S.E. 680 (W. Va. 1923).Schmidt v. Raymond, 134 N.W. 362 (Wis. 1912) (holding that a husband's estate by the curtesy is subject to deceased wife's creditors' right to have their debts settled).

(n234)Footnote 1090. Havranek v. Dragoun, 65 A.2d 105 (N.J. Super. 1948); Rochon v. Lecatt, 2 Stew. 429 (Ala. 1830) (holding that a decree of divorce pronounced against a husband does not bar husband's right of curtesy); Blankenship v. Blankenship, 66 S.E.2d 680 (N.C. 1951); In re Prudenzano's Will, 68 A.2d 704 (Vt. 1949); In re

Nickolay's Estate, 25 N.W.2d 451 (Wis. 1946).

(n235)Footnote 1091. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 66 S.E.2d 680 (N.C. 1951). However, such statutes may be preempted when they delay the administration of ERISA benefits. Moore v. Phillip Morris Co., Inc., 8 F.3d 335 (6th Cir. 1993) (holding that ERISA preempts a Kentucky statute that eliminates spousal property rights for adultery, because the litigation over the state statute would delay the administration of ERISA benefits).

(n236)Footnote 1092. Smoot v. Lecatt, 1 Stew. (Ala.) 590 (1828); Ellison v. Mobile, 53 Ala. 558 (1875); Clarke v. Lott, 11 Ill. 105 (1849); In re Prudenzano's Will, 68 A.2d 704 (Vt. 1949); Hartigan v. Hartigan, 64 S.E. 726 (W. Va. 1909).

(n237)Footnote 1093. Hartigan v. Hartigan, 64 S.E. 726 (W. Va. 1909).

(n238)Footnote 1094. Biddle v. Biddle, 177 S.W.2d 32 (Ark. 1944); Block v. P. & G. Realty Co., 124 A. 372 (N.J. Eq. 1924); Meade v. Mueller, 52 A.2d 157 (N.J. Eq. 1947); Eberle v. Somonek, 94 A.2d 535 (N.J. Super. 1953)

"The possibility of the husband's acquiring any interest in his wife's property is as effectually extinguished by divorce as by death." Hollander v. Abrams, 132 A. 224 (N.J. Eq. 1926).

(n239)Footnote 1095. Boykin v. Rain, 28 Ala. 332 (1856); Townsend v. Griffin, 4 Harr. 440 (Del. 1846); Seuss v. Schukat, 192 N.E. 668 (Ill. 1934); Durland v. Durland, 74 P. 274 (Kan. 1903); Hawkins v. Ragsdale, 80 Ky. 353 (1882); Wright v. Wright, 2 Md. 429 (1852); Barber v. Root, 10 Mass. 260 (1813); Clark v. Slaughter, 38 Miss. 64 (1859); Block v. P. & G. Realty Co., 124 A. 372 (N.J. Eq. 1924); Renwick v. Renwick, 10 Paige 420 (N.Y. 1843); Davis v. Davis, 68 N.C. 180 (1873); Burgess v. Muldoon, 29 A. 298 (R.I. 1894); Burt v. Hurlburt, 16 Vt. 292 (1844); Cralle v. Cralle, 79 Va. 182 (1884); Campbell v. Switzer, 82 S.E. 319 (W. Va. 1914).

(n240)Footnote 1096. See Starr v. Pease, 8 Conn. 541 (1831); Howey v. Goings, 13 Ill. 95 (1851).

(n241)Footnote 1097. Meacham v. Bunting, 41 N.E. 175 (Ill. 1895).

(n242)Footnote 1098. Schuster v. Schuster, 6 S.W. 259 (Mo. 1887).

(n243)Footnote 1099. Doyle v. Rolwing, 65 S.W. 315 (Mo. 1901); Porter v. Porter, 27 Gratt. 599 (Va. 1876); Bruce v. Bruce, 285 P.30 (Okla.1930) (holding that a husband that divorces his wife for her fault defeats his right of curtesy in her property).

(n244)Footnote 1100. See Ind. Code, §29-1-2-15 Edwards v. Cuthbert, 36 S.E.2d 1 (Va. 1945) (holding that though constructive desertion would defeat a husband's estate by the curtesy, the husband had not deserted his wife).

(n245)Footnote 1101. In re Clark's Estate, 213 S.W.2d 645 (Mo. App. 1948).

(n246)Footnote 1102. Pool v. Blakie, 53 Ill. 495 (1870); Clay v. Mayer, 46 S.W. 157 (Mo. 1898); Brook v. Barker, 228 S.W. 805 (Mo. 1921); Hollander v. Abrams, 132 A. 224 (N.J. Eq. 1926); Johnson v. Fritz, 44 Pa. 449 (1863).

(n247)Footnote 1103. Moseley v. Bogy, 198 S.W. 847 (Mo. 1917).

(n248)Footnote 1104. Powell v. Bowen, 214 S.W. 142 (Mo. 1919). See Farley v. Stacey, 197 S.W. 636 (Ky. 1917).

(n249)Footnote 1105. Wright v. Pell, 105 A. 20 (N.J. Eq. 1918).

(n250)Footnote 1106. Mercer v. Selden, 42 U.S. 37 (1843); Calvert v. Murphy, 81 S.E. 403 (W. Va. 1843).

(n251)Footnote 1107. Garner v. Wills, 17 S.W. 1023 (Ky. 1891); Harvey v. Brisbin, 38 N.E. 108 (N.Y. 1894).

(n252)Footnote 1108. Yung v. Blake, 148 N.Y.S. 557 (1914); Deese v. Deese, 97 S.E. 475 (N.C. 1918).

(n253)Footnote 1109. Neely v. Lancaster, 1 S.W. 66 (Ark. 1886); Tyler v. Wheeler, 35 N.E. 666 (Mass. 1893); Brook v. Barker, 228 S.W. 805 (Mo. 1921); Thurber v. Townsend, 22 N.Y. 517 (1860); Bertles v. Nunan, 92 N.Y. 152 (1883); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883); Alexander v. Alexander, 7 S.E. 335 (Va. 1888); Oatman v. Goodrich, 15 Wis. 589 (1862).

(n254)Footnote 1110. Garner v. Wills, 17 S.W. 1023 (Ky. 1891); Silsby v. Bullock, 92 Mass. (10 Allen) 94 (1865); In re McBride's Estate, 81 Pa. 303 (1876); Hutchings v. Commercial Bank, 20 S.E. 950 (Va. 1895).

(n255)Footnote 1111. Stewart v. Ross, 50 Miss. 776 (1874); Ex parte Watts, 41 S.E. 289 (N.C. 1902); Chapman v. Price, 11 S.E. 879 (Va. 1886).

Contra, Middleton v. Steward, 20 A. 846 (N.J. Eq. 1890).

(n256)Footnote 1112. Chance v. Weston, 190 P. 155 (Or. 1920).

(n257)Footnote 1113. Shoup v. Shoup, 149 N.E. 746 (Ill. 1925); Larkin v. Lightburne, 177 S.W. 1154 (Tenn. 1915); Schaffler v. Handwerker, 278 S.W. 967 (Tenn. 1926).

(n258)Footnote 1114. Cunningham v. Dunn, 100 S.E. 410 (W. Va. 1919).

(n259)Footnote 1115. Sill v. White, 26 A. 396 (Conn. 1892).

Scheible v. Rinck, 63 N.E. 497 (Ill. 1902); Pearce v. Pearce, 118 N.E. 84 (Ill. 1917); Brightman v. Morgan, 82 N.W. 954 (Iowa 1900); George v. Bussing, 54 Ky. (15 B. Mon.) 558 (1855); Kerrigan v. Conelly, 46 A. 227 (N.J. Eq. 1900); In re Clarke's Appeal, 79 Pa. 376 (1875); Beirne v. Beirne, 11 S.E. 46 (W. Va. 1890).

(n260)Footnote 1116. Whitehill v. Thiess, 158 A. 347 (Md. 1932).

(n261)Footnote 1117. Cooper v. McDonald, 7 Ch. Div. 288 (n.d.).

(n262)Footnote 1118. Hastings v. Hudson, 224 S.W.2d 945 (Mo. 1949); Headington v. Woodward, 214 S.W. 963 (Mo. 1919) (husband setting aside wife's conveyance, after marriage, of property as in fraud of his marital rights).

(n263)Footnote 1119. Hopper v. Gurtman, 18 A.2d 245 (N.J. 1941).

(n264)Footnote 1120. In re Colaci's Estate, 42 N.E.2d 466 (N.Y. 1942).

(n265)Footnote 1121. Chambers v. Ringstaff, 69 Ala. 140 (1881); Evans v. Lobdale, 11 Del. (6 Houst.) 212 (1889); Clark v. Thompson, 47 Ill. 25 (1868); Wood v. Reamer, 82 S.W. 572 (Ky. 1904); Ketterer v. Nelson, 141 S.W. 409 (Ky. 1911); Decker v. Decker, 265 S.W. 483 (Ky. 1924); Hayden v. Peirce, 43 N.E. 119 (Mass. 1896); Baker v. Baker, 46 N.E. 391 (Mass. 1897); Stewart v. Ross, 50 Miss. 776 (1874); Haines v. Ellis, 24 Pa. 253 (1855); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Bankers Loan & Inv. Co. v. Blair, 39 S.E. 231 (Va. 1901); Boykin v. Boykin, 28 Ala. 332 (Ala. 1856) (deciding that where a husband, during coverture and after issue born to wife, executes a mortgage of wife's land, the deed conveys his interest as tenancy by the curtesy initiate).

(n266)Footnote 1122. Boykin v. Rain, 28 Ala. 332 (1856); Harrod v. Myers, 21 Ark. 592 (1860); Evans v. Lobdale, 11 Del. (6 Houst.) 212 (1889); Mettler v. Miller, 22 N.E. 529 (Ill. 1889); Central Bank v. Copeland, 18 Md. 305 (1862); Wells v. Egger, 259 S.W. 437 (Mo. 1924).

(n267)Footnote 1123. McCrary v. Biggers, 81 P. 356 (Or. 1905).

(n268)Footnote 1124. Wells v. Thompson, 13 Ala. 793 (1848); Evans v. Lobdale, 11 Del. (6 Houst.) 212 (1889); Meraman v. Caldwell, 47 Ky. (8 B. Mon.) 32 (1847).

(n269)Footnote 1125. French v. Rollins, 21 Me. 372 (1842); Reaume v. Chambers, 22 Mo. 36 (1855); Flagg v. Bean, 25 N.H. 49 (1852); Holtenbrock v. Cracraft, 36 Ohio St. 584 (1881).

(n270)Footnote 1126. Carson v. Hecke, 222 S.W. 850 (Mo. 1920).

(n271)Footnote 1127. Dirago v. Taylor, 150 So. 150 (Ala. 1933).

(n272)Footnote 1128. North v. Ringling, 7 So. 2d 476 (Fla. 1940); Kroell v. Kroell, 76 N.E. 63 (Ill. 1905); Slater v. Slater, 142 N.E. 177 (Ill. 1923); Henderson v. Henderson, 8 N.E.2d 545 (Ill. App. 1937); Finn v. Grant, 278 N.W. 225 (Iowa 1938); In re Appleby's Estate, 111 N.W. 305 (Minn. 1907); Munsell v. Munsell, 113 A. 521 (Vt. 1921); Charles v. Charles, 8 Gratt. 486 (Va. 1852); Bramer v. Bramer, 99 S.E. 329 (W. Va. 1919).

(n273)Footnote 1129. Keller v. Keller, 247 P. 433 (Kan. 1926).

(n274)Footnote 1130. Van Koten v. Van Koten, 154 N.E. 146 (Ill. 1926); Hoagland v. Hoagland, 148 N.E. 585 (Ohio 1925).

(n275)Footnote 1131. Robbins v. Robbins, 80 N.E. 326 (Ill. 1907); Megginson v. Megginson, 10 N.E.2d 815 (Ill. 1937); Juhasz v. Juhasz, 16 N.E.2d 328 (Ohio 1938).

(n276)Footnote 1132. McBreen v. McBreen, 55 S.W. 463 (Mo. 1900); Chance v. Weston, 190 P. 155 (Or. 1920).

(n277)Footnote 1133. McBreen v. McBreen, 55 S.W. 463 (Mo. 1900). See Luttrell v. Boggs, 48 N.E. 171 (Ill. 1897); Dooley v. Baynes, 10 S.E. 974 (Va. 1890).

(n278)Footnote 1134. In re Arnold's Estate, 94 A. 1076 (Pa. 1915).

(n279)Footnote 1135. Vanderveer v. Vanderveer, 1 N.Y.S. 898 (1888).

(n280)Footnote 1136. Pinkham v. Pinkham, 49 A. 48 (Me. 1901); McCrary v. Biggers, 81 P. 356 (Or. 1905); Chance v. Weston, 190 P. 155 (Or. 1920).

(n281)Footnote 1137. Powell v. Tilson, 170 S.E. 750 (Va. 1933).

(n282)Footnote 1138. Howze v. Hutchens, 209 S.W.2d 286 (Ark. 1948) (the Arkansas statute merely changed but did not abolish common-law curtesy); Wilmington Trust Co. v. Boden, 38 A.2d 168 (Del. Ch. 1944); Childers v. Kennedy, 224 S.W. 651 (Ky. 1920); Marsee v. Richmond, 241 S.W. 331 (Ky. 1922); Wells v. Egger, 259 S.W. 437 (Mo. 1924); Bucci v. Popovich, 115 A. 95 (N.J. Eq. 1921); Murphy v. Skelly, 135 A. 351 (N.J. Eq. 1926); In re Whitson, 212 P. 752 (Okla. 1923) aff'd, 116A. 923; Rieger v. Harrington, 203 P. 576 (Or. 1922); In re Bremer, 123 A. 857 (Pa. 1924); Jones v. Kirby, 135 S.E. 676 (Va. 1926). See John H. Langbein & Lawrence W. Waggoner, Redesigning the Spouse's Forced Share, 22 Real Property, Probate and Trust Journal at 302, 328 (Summer 1987). See Lawrence W. Waggoner, Marital Property Rights in Transition, 18 Probate Lawyer 66 (1992).

Widower has no right of occupancy, as an individual of wife's separate property after her death. In re Boston's Estate, 491 P.2d 1033 (Wash. 1971).

Florida gives widowers the right of dower but limits dower to realty owned at death. Thus the owner can convey without the spouse joining. Fla. Stat. 1973, §731.34.

Illinois Public Acts 77-1676 abolishes the estates in dower and curtesy. Ill. Rev. Stat. 1971, ch. 3, §18.

Oregon has abolished dower and curtesy. Or. Laws 1969, ch. 591.

(n283)Footnote 1139. Anderson v. Parker, 317 S.W.2d 721 (Ark. 1958) (unnecessary that child be born to create curtesy); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Phillips v. Farley, 66 S.W. 1006 (Ky. 1902); In re Smith's Will, 107 N.Y.S.2d 993 (1951) (New York has abolished common-law curtesy); Hallyburton v. Slagle, 44 S.E. 655 (N.C. 1903); Richardson v. Richardson, 64 S.E. 510 (N.C. 1909); Alexander v. Alexander, 7 S.E. 335 (Va. 1888).

(n284)Footnote 1140. Phillips v. Farley, 66 S.W. 1006 (Ky. 1902); Hallyburton v. Slagle, 44 S.E. 655 (N.C. 1903).

(n285)Footnote 1141. Shryock v. Cannon, 39 Ark. 434 (1882); Erwin v. Puryear, 7 S.W. 449 (Ark. 1888); Plumb v. Sawyer, 21 Conn. 351 (1851); Rose v. Sanderson, 38 Ill. 247 (1865); Noble v. McFarland, 51 Ill. 226 (1869); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Jackson v. Jackson, 33 N.E. 51 (Ill. 1893); Strong v. Clem, 12 Ind. 37 (1859); Logan v. Walton, 12 Ind. 639 (1859); Frantz v. Harrow, 13 Ind. 507 (1859); Mitchell v. Violett, 47 S.W. 195 (Ky. 1898); Childers v. Kennedy, 224 S.W. 651 (Ky. 1920); Clay v. Mayer, 46 S.W. 157 (Mo. 1898); Withnell v. Withnell, 96 N.W. 221 (Neb. 1903); Appeal of Burson, 22 Pa. 164 (1853); Bachman v. Chrisman, 23 Pa. 162 (1854); Hull v. Hull, 202 S.W. 914 (Tenn. 1918); Hubbard v. Hubbard, 58 A. 969 (Vt. 1904); Wyatt v. Smith, 25 W. Va. 813 (1885).

(n286)Footnote 1142. McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Stewart v. Ross, 50 Miss. 776 (1874); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1818). See O'Brien v. Sedalia Trust Co., 5 S.W.2d 74 (Mo. 1928).

A husband's tenancy by "curtesy consummate" which Married Woman's Act saved from impairment by wife's deed, contract or other act or by judgment or decree against her, is "vested life estate in remainder," for a characteristic of "vested remainder" is present capacity to take effect in possession or enjoyment upon the certain determination of the precedent particular estate, rather than certainty of enjoyment by remainderman. Hopper v. Gurtman, 15 A.2d 245 (N.J.L. 1941).

(n287)Footnote 1143. Hill v. Chambers, 30 Mich. 422 (1874); Brown v. Clark, 6 N.W. 679 (Mich. 1880); Brook v. Barker, 228 S.W. 805 (Mo. 1921); Thurber v. Townsend, 22 N.Y. 517 (1860); Hallyburton v. Slagle, 44 S.E. 655 (N.C. 1903); Alexander v. Alexander, 7 S.E. 335 (Va. 1888). Loyd v. Planters' Mut. Ins. Co. 97 S.W. 658 (Ark. 1906) (stating that curtesy initiate does not exist since adoption of the Married Women's Act).

(n288)Footnote 1144. Neely v. Lancaster, 1 S.W. 66 (Ark. 1886); Hampton v. Cook, 42 S.W. 535 (Ark. 1897); Evans v. Lobdale, 6 Houst. 212 (Del. 1889); Freeman v. Hartman, 45 Ill. 57 (1867); McNeer v. McNeer, 32 N.E. 681 (Ill. 1892); Johnson v. Cummins, 16 N.J. Eq. 97 (1863); Hopper v. Gurtman, 18 A.2d 245 (N.J. 1941); Carroll v. Sanford, 83 A. 855 (R.I. 1912); Day v. Burgess, 202 S.W. 911 (Tenn. 1918); Alexander v. Alexander, 7 S.E. 335 (Va. 1888).

(n289)Footnote 1145. Hill v. Chambers, 30 Mich. 422 (1874); Dolin v. Wachter, 288 P. 616 (Mont. 1930); Thurber v. Townsend, 22 N.Y. 517 (1860); Hallyburton v. Slagle, 44 S.E. 655 (N.C. 1903); Taylor v. Riggins, 263 P. 146 (Okla. 1928); Alexander v. Alexander, 7 S.E. 335 (Va. 1888).

(n290)Footnote 1146. Pattison v. Baker, 255 S.W. 710 (Tenn. 1923).

(n291)Footnote 1147. Allen v. Hanks, 136 U.S. 300 (1890); Hathon v. Lyon, 2 Mich. 93 (1851); Tong v. Marvin, 15 Mich. 60 (1866); Thurber v. Townsend, 22 N.Y. 517 (1860).

(n292)Footnote 1148. Garrett v. Damron, 110 S.W.2d 1112 (Mo. 1937).

(n293)Footnote 1149. Hanneman v. Richter, 177 F. 563 (C.C.D.N.Y. 1910).

See the following cases: Neely v. Lancaster, 1 S.W. 66 (Ark. 1886); Lloyd v. Planters Mut. Ins. Co., 97 S.W. 658 (Ark.

1906); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Cole v. Van Riper, 44 Ill. 58 (1867); Dillon v. Dillon, 69 S.W. 1099 (Ky. 1902); Jones v. Magill, 1 Md. 177; Comer v. Chamberlain, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 166 (1863); Stewart v. Ross, 50 Miss. 776 (1874); Donovan v. Griffith, 114 S.W. 621 (Mo. 1908); Allen v. Roush, 39 P. 459 (Mont. 1895); Shannon v. Watt, 101 A. 251 (N.J. Eq. 1917); Ex parte Watts, 41 S.E. 289 (N.C. 1902); Hershizer v. Florence, 39 Oh. St. 516 (1883); Rouse v. Directors of Poor, 32 A. 541 (Pa. 1895); Lewis v. Glass, 20 S.W. 571 (Tenn. 1892); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883); Alderson v. Alderson, 33 S.E. 228 (W. Va. 1889).

(n294)Footnote 1150. Hampton v. Cook, 42 S.W. 535 (Ark. 1897); Moore v. Darby, 18 A. 768 (Del. Ch. 1889); Riggs v. Price, 210 S.W. 420 (Mo. 1919); Rabb v. Griffin, 26 Miss. 579 (1853); Hill v. Nash, 19 So. 707 (Miss. 1896); Porch v. Fries, 18 N.J. Eq. 204 (1867); Breeding v. Davis, 77 Va. 639 (1883); Guernsey v. Lazear, 41 S.E. 405 (W. Va. 1902); Oatman v. Goodrich, 15 Wis. 589 (1862).

(n295)Footnote 1151. Thompson v. Thompson, 18 So. 247 (Ala. 1895); Appeal of Ward, 54 A. 730 (Conn. 1903).

(n296)Footnote 1152. Ferguson v. Board of Drainage Comm'rs for Mayfield Creek Drainage Dist. No. 2, 186 S.W.2d 16 (Ky. 1945).

(n297)Footnote 1153. In Florida dower and curtesy have been abolished. Fla. Stat. §732.111.

Tennessee has now abolished dower and curtesy; the surviving spouse may dissent from the decedent's will. Acts 1976, ch. 529.

Individual property may be conveyed by the spouse so as to cut off dower or curtesy. Mont. Code Ann. 1947, §36-111.

(n298)Footnote 1154. Brown v. Brown, 135 N.E.2d 614 (Ind. 1956).

A married woman may now convey realty owned by her without her husband's approval. Ind. Code §31-1-9-2.

(n299)Footnote 1155. Ohio Oil Co. v. Ferguson, 34 So. 2d 746 (La. 1946).

(n300)Footnote 1156. Jackson v. Faver, 77 S.E.2d 728 (Ga. 1953); Alford v. Rodgers, 262 S.W.2d 676 (Ky. 1953); Moore v. Kirgan, 250 S.W.2d 759 (Tex. Civ. App. 1952).

(n301)Footnote 1157. Gordon v. O'Brien, 71 N.E.2d 221 (Mass. 1947).

(n302)Footnote 1158. Mead Co. v. Doerfler, 26 N.W.2d 393 (Neb. 1947).

(n303)Footnote 1159. Goldstein v. Siegel, 80 N.Y.S.2d 598 (1948); Hammond v. Herbert Hood Co., 221 S.W.2d 98 (Tenn. App. 1948).

(n304)Footnote 1160. Hansen v. Cramer, 245 P.2d 1059 (Cal. 1952); Van Wagner v. Kruse, 221 S.W.2d 787 (Tex. Civ. App. 1949).

(n305)Footnote 1161. Mead Co. v. Doerfler, 26 N.W.2d 393 (Neb. 1947).

(n306)Footnote 1162. Alt v. Kwiatek, 17 A.2d 161 (N.J. Eq. 1941); Dinges v. Dinges, 65 A.2d 107 (N.J. Super. 1948); Anastasia v. Anastasia, 47 A.2d 879 (N.J. Eq. 1946); Taylor v. Borgfeld, 50 A.2d 654 (N.J. Eq. 1947).

But where survivorship has been abolished by statute there is dower and curtesy in a joint tenancy. Grundstein v. Suburban Motor Freight, 107 N.E.2d 366 (Oh. App. 1951).

(n307)Footnote 1163. Warfield Nat'l Gas Co. v. Marcum, 193 S.W.2d 461 (Ky. 1946).

(n308)Footnote 1164. Dinges v. Dinges, 65 A.2d 107 (N.J. Super. 1948); Jones v. Jackson, 246 P.2d 546 (Or. 1952).

(n309)Footnote 1165. Dedmon v. Hawkins, 203 S.W.2d 183 (Ark. 1947).

(n310)Footnote 1166. Reynolds v. McGuire, 253 S.W.2d 386 (Ky. 1952).

(n311)Footnote 1167. Matthews v. W. T. Freeman Co., 60 S.E.2d 909 (Va. 1950).

(n312)Footnote 1168. Kreamer v. Hitchcock, 115 A.2d 255 (Md. 1955).

(n313)Footnote 1169. Skovborg v. Smith, 74 A.2d 910 (N.J. Super. 1950).

(n314)Footnote 1170. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 128.

(n315)Footnote 1171. Mattocks v. Stearns, 9 Vt. 326 (1837).

(n316)Footnote 1172. DeFrance v. Johnson, 26 F. 891 (C.C.D. Minn. 1886); Chase v. Chase, 55 Me. 21 (1867); Price v. Price, 27 N.E. 383 (N.Y. 1891); Dicke v. Wagner, 70 N.W. 159 (Wis. 1897).

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 21.04

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based on Ch. 30 of George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), and describes the American common law on several subjects now largely governed by state statutes. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 21.04 Homestead at Common Law

[Go To Main]

21.04(a) What Is a Homestead?

The purpose of a homestead exemption is protection against the third-party creditors. It is not an interest to be recognized between joint tenants or tenants in common. The term "homestead" has three general uses in the law: first, to describe the method of distribution of federal lands; second, to refer to certain rights given to widows by statutes in lieu of dower; and third, to rights given to families in realty to preserve the family as against its creditors. It is in the latter sense that homestead is herein treated. n1173

"Homestead" laws are an outgrowth of the great debtor revolution in American history that found its demigod in Andrew Jackson and "Jacksonian Democracy." The homestead had no place in early English law since only personalty was subject to debts. As the needs of commerce grew in England, so did the statutory right to subject a debtor's real estate to the payment of his debts. At the time of the settlement of America, England had such a prominent place in the commercial world that public policy protected primarily the creditor. Commerce and credit were the fountains of public policy. n1174

The opening up of a new land and the increase of free suffrage in the United States placed a different emphasis on credit. Suddenly man became more important than money, or at least it was not admitted that money was all. To be in debt ceased to be a crime, and a number of states showed their resentment of the eastern bankers by protecting the home and family against the rapacity of their creditors. n1175 This philosophy born in the new lands was nurtured as the tide of settlement and its attendant problems rolled westward. What the homestead laws actually do is to preserve the debtor's homeplace for himself and his family against the creditors. n1176 Homestead rights are therefore entirely statutory and had no role in the common law. n1177

Care must be taken to distinguish homesteads, which constitute estates in land, and debtors statutory exemptions, which are merely a relief from levy of executions. There are actually two types of exemption statutes; those which give a homestead, and those which give exemption from levy of execution in certain types of realty. The true homestead statutes, in turn, either provide for a mere possessory right in the debtor and the debtor's family or something in the nature of a new interest in land.

The Federal Homestead Law exempts from debts lands homesteaded from the public domains until the issue of a patent therefor, while state homestead laws authorize the head of a family to designate property, owned or to be acquired as a homestead, to be exempt under the law from his future debts. Thus, we have two materially different forms of homestead legislation in this country.

In one sense, the word "homestead" means a home place: the place where home is; the house and adjoining lands; the place where the head of the family dwells; the home farm; n1178 the owner's residence or place where he lives. n1179 Under the constitution of some states, the word "homestead" means the family residence. n1180 This is the popular sense in which the term is used, and in this sense it includes the dwelling house in which the family resides, together with the outbuildings and lands used for the purposes of the homestead. n1181

The word "homestead" has acquired a legal or technical meaning in modern jurisprudence, and in this sense it consists not only of the property occupied as a home or place of residence, but also the right to have the same exempted from execution and sale to pay debts. n1182 In this sense, it means that tract of land which, being within the statutory limitations both as to quantity and value, is held, occupied, and claimed as a homestead, n1183 and includes as an indispensable part thereof the dwelling house or family residence. n1184 It is more than a mere right of occupancy exempt from levy and sale for debts. n1185 Except as modified by limitations of value and questions of intent, the legal use of the term may be said to be the same as the popular use thereof. n1186 A "homestead estate" is an estate which the law gives a right to live upon and enjoy certain real estate so long as the claimant is head of a family, which of course may be all his life, and at his death to pass to his widow for her life or to the children during their minority, whichever may last terminate. n1187 Homesteads are a family shield and cannot be employed by either husband or wife to the detriment of the other. n1188

The homestead right is a creature of the constitution and statutes and, although not an estate, is a special and peculiar interest in land belonging to the husband and wife jointly and individually. n1189 Under the laws of Nebraska, all definitions of "homestead" involve occupancy of the premises by the claimant at any critical date, and his status as the head of the family, and the continuity of the land protected. n1190 The tests of a homestead are the same whether raised by a creditor or an heir. n1191

Occupancy, and not title, is the essential consideration in determining the homestead. n1192

21.04(b) Nature of Homestead

As indicated in the preceding section, the "homestead" is purely a creature of statute. n1193 It is not to be found in the common law, unless it can be said to be a revival of the Celtic and, to some extent, early English, concept that the basic ownership of land was in the "twath," or in the family, rather than in the individual. The homestead right exists only by virtue of statutory or constitutional provisions, n1194 and the beneficiaries can take no more than what the statute or constitution expressly gives them, and upon the terms and conditions mentioned therein. n1195 The homestead right is a right which is unknown to the common law, and which exists only by virtue of a constitutional or statutory provision. n1196 Being a right, humane in character and policy, it is held as applying to all such cases as are within the equity and spirit of the law or the constitution establishing it. n1197 The legislature may increase or diminish the amount of homestead exemption within reasonable bounds. n1198 The broad purpose of homestead laws is to promote the security of the home, in the placing of homestead property beyond the use and consequences of a home owner's economic misfortune.

The homestead exemption, as declared in statutes and constitutions, is not for the benefit of the husband or wife alone, but for the family as a whole, of which they are but a part. n1199 So, a wife cannot allow another to share occupancy of the homestead to the detriment of children. n1200 A married woman who was not the head of a family has been held entitled to claim a homestead exemption in her own property where her husband had not claimed any exemption or homestead rights for the protection of his own property. n1201

Homestead exemptions are granted in the interest of the general welfare. In such welfare, the state has an interest. Public policy is opposed to pauperized widows and children. n1202 Pursuant to such public policy, the state withdraws from creditors certain portions of the debtor's property. This is upon the theory that such laws better promote the welfare of all. The whole tenor and spirit of free government indorse such laws. While it is claimed that the state by such laws is conferring merely a favor or privilege on the debtor, it is to be considered that the state is benefitted thereby. These laws are sanctioned and supported by a citizenship interested in the state and tied to her soil, of independent home owners, and not of transient and uncertain tenants. n1203 The chief object of these laws is to shelter the family, n1204 and to maintain the stability and welfare of the state. n1205 They are based on a public policy n1206 which regards the debtor's duty to provide for his dependents as paramount to the duty to pay his debts. n1207 The purpose of constitutional and statutory provisions exempting the homestead from a forced sale for the payment of debts is to protect the homestead interest. n1208 Since the very purpose of the homestead law is to protect property from existing debts, the doctrine of fraudulent conveyances has no application to its creation. n1209 It has often been said that the protection of the family from dependence and want is the object of homestead laws, and that apart from the family the debtor is entitled to no consideration. The debtor, however, is to be considered only so far as he is entitled to have a home where his family may be sheltered, and live in security from the claims of creditors. n1210 The design of the statutes is to secure to the head of the family a home for himself and those dependent upon him, regardless of his financial condition, whether solvent or insolvent, n1211 and without regard to whether the property be owned by husband or wife, a part by one and a part by the other or by both jointly. n1212 The homestead, under our public policy and law, is the one sacred place where the strong arm of the law is stayed, and over which only by consent of both husband and wife can its power be exercised. The beneficent idea, undoubtedly, is to make and preserve for every family the shelter of a home; to be free, as long as husband and wife or a minor child shall live and occupy it, from the common vicissitudes of life. n1213

A homestead exemption, or an exemption in lieu of homestead, is not a personal privilege of the debtor, but is for the benefit of the debtor's family and the public at large. n1214 Homestead statutes are not enacted for the purpose of exonerating debtors from the payment of their just debts, but to protect their families, and the courts have consistently held that the statutes should be given a liberal construction. n1215

The purpose of a homestead exemption is the result of social attitude indicating a solicitude for a home for debtors and is not intended to create a shield for criminal activity. n1216

The purpose of a homestead right is to provide shelter and protection for a widow and minor children. Thus, the administrator of the estate of the deceased widow cannot make a claim for homestead against the estate of the deceased husband. n1217

The chief object of the homestead is to shelter a family. n1218

The statutes range widely as to the extent to which the homestead is merely a personal privilege or an absolute estate in land. In a number of states a "homestead right" is not a mere exemption, n1219 but an interest, n1220 title, n1221 or estate n1222 in the land itself. Other jurisdictions hold that it is not, in the strict sense, an estate in land, but a privilege of exemption from execution of such estate as the holder has, n1223 and, that while the homestead is usually accompanied by an estate or interest, there is no limitation to any particular estate either as to duration, quality or extent. n1224 The right is absolute and unqualified and can be defeated only by waiver, relinquishment, or conveyance. n1225

In Kentucky, at least, it is not even an interest in land, n1226 but merely a right to the use and occupancy thereof. n1227 This is also the Alabama rule. n1228 In Florida, it "is not limited to a mere holding of the legal title to the exempt property "from forced sale"; it contemplates and includes the beneficial, peaceful, and uninterrupted use and enjoyment of such property." n1229 In Florida "homestead" is a matter of status, not of title to property. n1230 In Minnesota, "the homestead exemption ... is not only a privilege but an absolute right." n1231 In Alabama, the wife has no title to nor estate in the husband's homestead. n1232 In Texas, however, "a wife's right in the homestead is a vested right in the land itself, of which she cannot be deprived except as pointed out by the constitution and statutes." n1233 Where the right is supported by an estate in fee simple, it is said, in Oregon, to be a fee simple estate and, where supported by a life estate only, it is a life estate. n1234

The fee is left where it was before the right was created, the only change being that the right of occupancy shall not be disturbed while the homestead exists. n1235 The status of the homestead does not change the nature of the estate in the property owned by the head of the family, but merely exempts such property from such liability as he may have and limits his inherent powers of alienation. n1236 The homestead exemption is temporary, existing only so long as the conditions under which it is allowed prevail. n1237 The right is inchoate and conditional until set out in the specific property to which it may attach, and it is similar in its attributes to the wife's dowry in her husband's estate. n1238 When it is a purely statutory right, there is no greater estate therein than the one the statute creates. n1239 While it is held the right of homestead, as distinguished from the property, and the attendant exemption, is purely personal to the debtor and the beneficiaries of the right, n1240 but it may be lost by abandonment. n1241 Other states say it is not a mere privilege, but an absolute right, and the owner may do what he pleases with it, irrespective of claims of creditors. n1242

In Illinois an estate of homestead has no separate existence from the title which supports it n1243 and cannot be separated from this title n1244 nor be more extensive than such title. n1245 It has been enlarged into an estate by statute, and it can have no separate existence apart from the title on which it depends. n1246 In California, the homestead estate is in the nature of a joint tenancy, with the right of survivorship as between husband and wife. n1247 It is a mere personal privilege n1248 which cannot be conveyed to another, and is lost by neglect or refusal to claim or by abandoning it. n1249 Georgia has treated a homestead as a trust estate with the members of the family being the beneficiaries and the husband or wife, as the trustee. n1250

Homestead is a constitutional, and not a contract, right. n1251 The legal status of dower and homestead is somewhat similar, and what is said with respect to dower and its incidents is alike applicable to the homestead. n1252

21.04(c) The "Family"

The justification ordinarily advanced for the existence of the homestead is the protection of the family unit. Hence, usually, to give rise to a homestead, there must be a family, n1253 and this denotes a collective and communal body, not a single individual. n1254

To constitute a family there must be; (1) a social status, and (2) a head, who has the right, at least in a limited way, to direct and control those gathered into the household. n1255 The general rule is, "no family no homestead." The family embraces a collective body of persons, composed of parents and children, or other relatives, domestics, or servants, living together in one house or within the curtilage. n1256

No specific number of persons is required to constitute a family, just so that there are more than one. n1257 A husband and wife living together constitute a family under laws relating to homesteads. n1258 A debtor claiming exemption under the homestead laws must show that he is under a legal or moral obligation to support the other members of his household, and there must be a corresponding state of at least partial dependence of the other members for this support. n1259 Such status or relationship may be that of parent and minor child, husband and wife, guardian and ward or other similar relation. n1260 The absence of either a legal or moral obligation to support those living with the debtor will defeat his claim to exemption n1261 but, where a natural or moral obligation to support exists, this is sufficient without any legal duty. n1262

When taken in its ordinary sense, as it must be taken where the law does not define it, it is not essential that the term family should include husband and wife or parent and child; n1263 but in some jurisdictions it is held that in order to constitute a family within the meaning of the homestead exemption laws it is necessary that the relation of husband and wife or parent and child should exist, n1264 and persons living together without being so related or connected cannot be deemed a family. n1265 Where the family consists of the husband and wife only, the fact that their marriage was void may defeat the husband's claim of a homestead right. n1266 While usually importing a household including parents, children, and servants, it does not import that all the members thereof reside together in one house, n1267 but where such persons are permanently separated, they do not constitute a family. n1268

A man who controls, supervises, and manages affairs about the house is the head of the family, and such man need not necessarily be a husband or a father. Thus, a man living with his widowed sister and her children, and supporting them, while his sister keeps house for him, has been held to be the head of a family. n1269 It is in accordance with the spirit of the law, as well as public policy, that nonmarital children should be treated as members of their putative parent's family, and the fact that such parent lives in adultery with another does not debar such parent from claiming a homestead exemption. n1270 In Louisiana, however, minor children will entitle the father to the homestead exemption, even though such children are not merely nonmarital but are adulterous as well. n1271 The adoption of a minor child may create a family within the meaning of the homestead laws. n1272 A family may consist of unmarried daughters and their aged and infirm father whom they are caring for and furnishing with the necessities of life. n1273 So, also, a woman and her helpless invalid adult sister, whom the former supports from her earnings, may constitute a family. n1274 A widow or widower with children may acquire a homestead. n1275 And one living in adultery could not claim homestead on property occupied with a mistress and their children. n1276 In Illinois, the husband is the householder while living and residing with his wife on premises owned by them as joint tenants or tenants in common in which case the homestead estate is listed in the husband alone. n1277

The following general rules determine when the relation of family, as contemplated by law, exists: first, it is one of social status, not of mere contract; second, a legal or moral obligation on the head to support the other members; and third, a corresponding state of dependence on the part of the other members for this support. But, where a homestead once attaches it may continue to benefit the sole survivor of the family. n1278 Who is the "head of the family" must be determined from the facts of each case, since there is no rule or invariable test based solely upon dependence. n1279 A husband living apart from and not supporting his wife was entitled to homestead. n1280

In order to entitle one to a homestead exemption he must be the head of a family, n1281 and this person primarily is the husband or father n1282 who, as such head, is entitled to choose and establish the homestead. n1283 To constitute the "head of a family" within the constitution exempting the homestead from a sale under execution, there must be at least two persons who live together in the relation of one family, but one of them must be the head of that family, n1284 without being the husband or father. Thus a mother may become the head of a family upon the death of the husband, n1285 a minor child upon the death of both of its parents, n1286 or where the husband has absconded, deserting his wife and leaving her residing with children depending upon her, so as to permit her to avail herself of the beneficent provisions of the homestead laws. n1287 Contrary to this general rule it has been held that, under the provisions of some statutes, the wife cannot be the head of the family, n1288 while the statutes of some states, however, expressly provide that the head of the family may be either the husband or the wife. n1289

To entitle a person of either sex to claim a homestead exemption, such person is the head of a family whether married or single, the requirement being that there is dependence upon such person on the part of some one or more of those constituting the family. n1290 For the purpose of holding property exempt, a father whose widowed daughter and her minor children live with him is held to be the head of a family, n1291 also where he has living with him a part of the time his infant child, he being the sole support of such child, paying its board while not living with him. n1292 It follows that a widower with dependents is generally held to be the head of a family for the purpose of holding property exempt under homestead laws. n1293 Likewise, a widow with dependents living with her may rightfully claim to be the head of a family for such purpose. n1294 A grandparent and grandchildren living together, the latter being dependent upon the former for support, entitles the grandparent to claim exemption as being the head of a family. n1295 A guardian of a minor child, having such child living with him, is entitled to a homestead exemption under some statutes. n1296 The fact that a person is unmarried does not affect his homestead right, if he has been married and has dependents living with him, n1297 but a bachelor, who is not the head of a family, cannot claim the benefit of the homestead laws. n1298 An adoptive parent may be the head of a family, and it is not essential that the adopted child be dependent upon such parent for its support and maintenance. n1299 It is held that one who has brought up and supported foster children was not entitled to a homestead exemption as the "head of a family." n1300 Where a divorce leaves one without a family of which he remains the head, he is not entitled to a homestead exemption. n1301 A man whose family relationship has been broken up by the death of his wife and the emancipation of his children is not entitled to a continuance of his homestead exemption from claims of creditors accorded by law to the head of a family, although an unmarried daughter of full age, but not dependent upon him for support, resides with him. n1302 But, the one with whom minor children remains is the head of the family. n1303 An un-divorced wife who was living with another man as the latter's common-law wife cannot claim a homestead property right in the property of the man with whom she was living at the time in such illegal relationship. n1304

Under liberal construction of the homestead laws, the head of a family is one in authority where the relationship of the family exists. n1305 One claiming the benefit of the homestead exemption law must not only be the head of a family, but must be a resident of the state under the laws of which he claims such right. n1306 However, an unmarried claimant does not need to be the head of family at the time the homestead exemption is claimed. n1307 Under some homestead theories the children acquire a remainder interest in the property which cannot be affected by the parents. n1308

Since there is no hard and fast rule for determining who is the head of the family in a particular case, the facts of the case will be the determining factor. n1309 When the relation of husband and wife or parent and child does not exist, the "head of a family" will not be recognized except where established and continuous personal authority and responsibility is shown to exist as between the parties. n1310 A surviving spouse not the head of a family cannot dedicate a homestead. n1311

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:relation! or person! w/5 family w/15 homestead!

21.04(d) Interpretation of Homestead Laws

Homestead legislation, being remedial, is usually given a liberal interpretation by the courts to the extent necessary to carry out their beneficent purpose. n1312 Since the homestead exemption bespeaks public policy, it will be enforced, though it enables a dishonest debtor to defraud his creditors. n1313 A homestead is determined by the law in effect at the time of determination, not by a subsequent increase in amount. n1314 Further, it has been held that homestead laws do not violate the due process right or the equal protection right, and do not impair the obligations of contract protected by state and federal constitutions. n1315

When the right is favored by law, and there is a serious doubt as to whether property is a homestead, the right will be resolved in favor of the exemptionist. n1316 Evasive contracts should not be permitted to thwart the purpose of the organic law. n1317 Construction should not be so liberal as to depart from the plain and obvious meaning of the words used in the organic law or to dispense with the necessity of parties bringing themselves within the spirit of its provisions. n1318 Effect must also be given to other laws creating valid liens and to rights acquired thereunder. n1319 Such liberal construction cannot be made the means of defeating positive rules fully established by former judicial practice. n1320 While constitutional and statutory provisions relating to homestead exemptions will be liberally construed in the interest of the family home, they will not be applied so to make them an instrument of fraud. n1321 Some courts seem to hold that homestead laws are in derogation of the common law and should be strictly construed. n1322 Further, federal law may preempt state homestead provisions. n1323

A homestead law applies to and affects property acquired prior to its passage, n1324 but a homestead right is not affected by the provisions of a law enacted subsequent thereto. n1325 Homestead laws are sometimes conditioned against retroactive effect. n1326 Where the essential elements of a homestead right exist, the persons entitled to it cannot be divested by acts or influences beyond their volition. Thus the legislature has no power, by subsequent enactments, to destroy or diminish, as against debts then in existence, a right which has been conferred by a homestead law and acquired by residence and occupation in compliance therewith. n1327 Where the homestead right is guaranteed by the constitution, the legislature may enact laws for the purpose of carrying the constitution into effect, and may even extend the homestead right beyond that guaranteed by the constitution, so long as the extent of the homestead shall be in accordance with sound policy and humanity, but it cannot restrict the homestead right guaranteed by the constitution. n1328 A constitutional or statutory provision, granting or increasing a homestead exemption, is not operative as to debts and liabilities existing before its adoption. n1329 There are cases, however, which hold to the contrary. n1330 The homestead law in force when the debt is created governs proceedings to enforce a judgment rendered thereon. n1331 Probate homesteads are governed by the law in effect at the death of the owner. n1332

The chief object of a homestead is to shelter the family. n1333 The homestead right is governed by the law of the state where the property is located. n1334

21.04(e) Methods of Establishing the Homestead

As has been elsewhere noticed, the mode of acquiring a homestead in lands is generally prescribed by statute, and the mode thus prescribed must be observed. n1335 Thus where the statute requires that the debtor take affirmative action to claim homestead before levy of execution, failure to do so waives the homestead. n1336 The head of the family, who is usually the husband or father, has the right to choose the homestead. n1337 To entitle one to select a homestead he must have title in fee or for life and intend to claim the property as a homestead. n1338 After the title has passed from him by proper legal procedure, he cannot claim a homestead therein. n1339

In the absence of statutory provisions prescribing the mode of selecting the homestead, occupation n1340 of land with a bona fide intent to use it as a home, n1341 is sufficient to impress it with that character. n1342 In such cases there is no formula by which to decide the right of a claimant to his homestead, but each case must be determined according to the facts presented. n1343 A bona fide intention to acquire land for a homestead must be coupled with some overt act indicating a present intention to set aside a particular property as and for a homestead. n1344

But, in some states, a written declaration, describing the land and stating the value thereof, is required. n1345 These declarations must be made by the proper party and in the particular mode, if any, appropriate to the party claiming, and must state all facts required by the statute to entitle such claimant as distinguished from others. n1346 Defects in the execution of a declaration, which clearly manifest an intent to claim as a homestead lands which are thereafter occupied and used as such, will not defeat the homestead rights. n1347 The fact that the homestead declaration embraces land which the declarant does not own does not affect its validity as to land which he does own. n1348

Some authorities hold that the benefit of the homestead law is lost if the claim of exemption is not brought to the notice of the proper officer or person before execution or judicial sale, and that it is no excuse that the owner did not know of the levy upon his property. n1349 On the other hand, it is held that, where the area and value of a homestead do not exceed the limit allowed by law as exempt and are not a part or parcel of a larger portion of land, a selection is unnecessary, and that the law intervenes and attaches the right of exemption, without any act on the part of the exemptioner, as if the particular property were especially claimed and designated as exempt. n1350 In some states formal declaration of homestead is required. n1351 The party claiming the homestead exemption has the burden of proving the homestead character. n1352

A homestead is determined by the law in effect at the time of determination, not by a subsequent increase in amount.

n1353

21.04(f) Homestead in Undivided Interests

Considerable division of authority appears as to whether a homestead can be claimed in property where the head of the family holds only an undivided interest. The weight of older authority, at least, holds with the proposition that there can be no homestead in a cotenancy and that a homestead cannot be carved out of an undivided interest in real estate. n1354 While a cotenant may acquire homestead rights in the common property, his rights so acquired are not superior to the rights and remedies of his cotenants, and he can acquire no such rights as will prejudice or in any manner interfere with the rights of the other tenants in common. n1355

There are, however, numerous instances in which the courts have given exemptions on "homesteads" where the head of the house held only an undivided interest. n1356 Many of these are explainable upon the theory that the applicable statute does not create a homestead in the true sense, but merely gives the head of the family an exemption in his undivided interest from levy by creditors. n1357 But, some courts hold that, the primary object of homestead provisions being the protection of the family, the nature of the claimant's title becomes only a secondary consideration, and the fact that the title is in the husband and wife jointly or as tenants by the entireties, does not prevent either from claiming a homestead therein. n1358

An undivided interest in realty, accompanied by exclusive occupancy thereof by the owner and his family as a home, is thus held to support a homestead exemption. n1359 In these states, homestead may be had where the joint or common tenancy is that of husband and wife. n1360 Under a statute authorizing the selection of a homestead, though the land is held in joint tenancy, land held in joint tenancy by husband and wife may, at her instance, be impressed with a homestead without segregation or partition or delimitation of boundaries, for she may do so as to her own interest which is her separate property, and may do so as to her husband's interest. n1361 Where a wife consented to the taking of title to land purchased with community funds as joint tenants with the right of survivorship, the husband's estate in the land was coupled with the right of immediate possession and was his separate property, from which he could select a homestead without the wife's consent. n1362

The authorities are not in agreement on the question as to whether a homestead may be claimed out of partnership property at common law. In some states, a homestead cannot be carved out of partnership property, n1363 especially when the firm property is insufficient to meet the partnership debts. n1364 In some states, however, one member of a partnership is entitled as against the creditors of the firm to have a homestead in the partnership property. n1365 In others, the firm must be solvent in order to entitle one partner to designate his interest in the partnership realty as a part of his homestead. n1366 Payment of the firm's debts is generally held a prerequisite to a partner's claim of a homestead exemption in firm real estate, n1367 but one member of a firm cannot assert a homestead right in firm property to the detriment of the other members of the firm. n1368 So, it would seem that one partner cannot have a homestead in the real estate of the firm, especially as against a copartnership debt, without the consent of the other members of the firm. n1369 Where the uniform partnership act is in existence, however, there can be no homestead in partnership property, since the partner's interest in the partnership realty becomes a tenancy in copartnership. n1370

Where husband and wife own separate property as well as community property, the homestead may be claimed out of either. A husband may have a homestead in his wife's lands as against his creditors n1371 but, under some statutes, a homestead so set apart is invalid as against a judgment creditor of the wife. n1372 To impress the wife's separate land with the character of a homestead, it is held she must so impress it herself or give her consent thereto. n1373 In some jurisdictions, the wife may select the homestead from community property, n1374 and the husband will be bound by her selection. n1375 A homestead may be claimed partly from community property and partly from the separate property of the wife, provided she makes the claim. n1376 Under the statutes of some states, a homestead in either spouse may ordinarily attach to an estate in land in which both n1377 or either have an interest, n1378 though the other may have previously owned and disposed of the same land under a prior homestead therein. n1379 One spouse may not have a homestead in lands to which neither have ever had legal or equitable title. n1380 Further in some states, the homestead interests of spouses cannot be split, so if one's interest cannot be executed, neither can the interests of the other. n1381

In some jurisdictions the widow can claim homestead in community property as against a mortgage given to secure community debt, even though she has no dependents. n1382 Where prior to a conveyance by a husband to his wife they were joint tenants of the realty, and the property was occupied by them as a residence, an estate of homestead was vested in the husband. n1383 Where a tract of land was owned by husband and wife as tenants in common, it was held that the husband had a right to claim the same as his homestead and to annex thereto another tract which he owned in severalty, if such tract was impressed with the character of a homestead by its use and occupation as such in connection with the tract on which the residence was located. n1384

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:homestead! w/30 undivided w/2 interest!

21.04(g) Value of Homestead Taken

The statutes further vary as to the imposition of limitations on the extent of homestead. Where "homestead" is actually an exemption from execution, or is akin thereto, there is ordinarily a limit, usually unrealistic in light of modern conditions on the value of the homestead which can be taken. n1385

The amount, extent, and value of property that may be claimed for a homestead are limited by statutes and constitutions, which vary greatly. Generally a limitation is confined to the use and value alone, without regard to the quantity n1386 but, by some statutes, the extent of the homestead is measured by the area or quantity of land, and not its value, such quantity varying as between urban and city property. n1387 In some jurisdictions, the quantity and value of the property are treated as mere incidents and not as tests. n1388

By statute, in many states, a limitation as to value is placed upon the homestead exemption, n1389 and a correct interpretation of the language of such statutes would be to make the homestead the primary and sole object of the exemption, with a limitation as to value. n1390 Where the statute exempts a homestead to the extent in value of a designated amount in land and buildings thereon, and the whole tract be worth more than such amount, only the portion equal to such amount in value can be claimed, n1391 and the excess may be sold in satisfaction of debts. n1392 It has been held that a debtor's property including his homestead will not be ordered sold and the homestead right transferred to the proceeds, where it is not clear that there would be a substantial excess of value over the homestead exemption if a sale were made. n1393 Further, when a lien is secured by both exempt and nonexempt property, the debtor is entitled to have the nonexempt property foreclosed first. n1394

One cannot claim a homestead in lands where value exceeds a certain sum, without deducting encumbrances. The fact that an encumbrance on the land cuts down the net value of the same does not authorize the claim of a greater quantity of land than could otherwise be claimed if there were no encumbrance. n1395 The value of the homestead is to be determined as of the time of the original designation thereof, n1396 and the homestead is not affected by liens where the value of the property without the liens is less than that specified as an exempt homestead. n1397 In determining the value of the homestead, the value of the interest of other persons in the property must be excluded. n1398 The furniture of the claimant is not a part of the homestead. n1399

So, homestead is different from dower, since in dower value is unimportant. n1400 Under some statutes, the homestead rights must be measured both by value and by area. n1401 In Florida, a homestead within a city is limited to half of 1 acre of land with the buildings thereon. n1402 In determining whether the value of a claimed homestead exceeds that limited by the statute, any mortgage or encumbrance thereon must be deducted. n1403 Where the value of the property claimed as a homestead, exclusive of a mortgage against it, did not exceed the statutory limitation, no valid forced sale could be made after the recording of the homestead claim. n1404

Generally, a homestead cannot be revalued and a new one set off, even to an execution debtor in his lifetime, in the absence of a plain statutory provision permitting the same. n1405 Where a statute provides for a homestead exemption not exceeding in value a certain amount, the owner cannot, after the laying off of the homestead, erect buildings thereon, increasing the value much beyond the limit, and claim the whole as exempt. Equity will decree that the amount above the specified limits shall be applied to the payment of his debts. n1406

The increase in value by improvements as mentioned above does not vitiate the homestead, but renders the excess above the value fixed by statute liable to the payment of debts. n1407 A homestead of less value than the maximum allowed by statute may be increased in value by the addition of other land, if the whole does not exceed the value allowed. n1408 When the boundaries of a homestead have once been fixed, they can neither be cut down on account of subsequent enhancement in value or be added to in case of depreciation. n1409 In some states where the homestead has been established, its subsequent appreciation in value resulting from the ordinary increase in realty values does not entitle a creditor to subject the excess over the statutory exemption to the payment of debts. n1410 In other states, the homestead right ceases as to so much of the homestead as is afterward enhanced in value over the statutory amount. n1411

21.04(h) Duration of the Homestead

In some states the homestead is an estate in fee, if the householder has such an estate in the lands claimed, but is limited to the extent of such an estate, and ceases when the estate, if one for life or for years, expires. n1412 The fact that a homestead has been taken in lands cannot enlarge the debtor's interest therein, beyond that which he held prior to taking homestead. n1413 But, once having acquired homestead status, realty continues to have this characteristic until abandoned or sold. n1414 A homestead may be abandoned n1415 or may be lost by sale. n1416 It may also be waived or relinquished. n1417

The separate property of one who is not the head of the family does not have homestead status and may be levied upon by creditors. n1418 The right can never rise any higher than the rights, title or interest that the claimant owns in the property attempted to be impressed with a homestead. n1419

Upon divorce, the husband ceases to be the head of the family for homestead purposes, though he may still be obligated to support the children. n1420 In some states a formal declaration of homestead is required. The holder of a household may substitute another without forfeiting his right. n1421

Removal from a probate homestead or renting of the premises is not abandonment. n1422 Probate homesteads are governed by the law in effect at the death of the owner. The validity of a waiver of homestead is governed by the law of the place where the homestead is held, not where the agreement of waiver is made. n1423 Widow's homestead need not be specifically set aside. n1424 Adultery does not bar homestead. n1425 Land becoming homestead is subject to contracts of sale and deeds of trust which become effective prior to the attacking of the homestead. The courts disagree whether constitutional homestead provisions set a maximum or minimum on homestead. n1426

If one spouse abandons the other, the homestead remains in the spouse who stays on the property. n1427

21.04(i) Income from the Homestead

In those states where the homestead is not a mere monetary exemption from execution, but is a home or at least a possessory right, the debtor is entitled to a living therefrom as well as a roof over his head. n1428 So long as the homestead character is maintained, the homestead, as well as the use thereof, is exempt. n1429 The owner of a homestead has a right to hold as exempt not only the homestead and its use but any money which he may derive from its use. n1430

Some statutes provide that all rents, produce, or profits arising from the homestead shall be exempt. n1431 Rents accruing during a temporary absence of the head of the family from the homestead are exempt from execution; n1432 but where the head of the family voluntarily absents himself from the homestead, rents accruing during his absence are not exempt. n1433 Where a portion of a building occupied as a homestead is leased to other persons, the rent received therefor cannot be taken for the homesteader's debts. n1434 Generally, crops from a homestead are exempt from levy and sale under an execution, n1435 but such crops must be growing on the homestead and necessary to its beneficial use and enjoyment. n1436 This rule applies to crops matured but not yet severed from the soil. n1437 Grain harvested from the homestead lands is not, as such, exempt from execution. n1438 The products of a homestead are, however, sometimes subject to attachment to enforce payment of obligations contracted in the production of the same. n1439

A homestead right as the equivalent of a life estate gives the homestead occupant the benefit of full proceeds of minerals for life, even where the land is only under lease when the surviving spouse's occupancy begins. n1440 According to some authorities, the law confers a homestead right only in land, and not in the proceeds of the sale of land. n1441 There are other cases holding to the contrary. n1442

So, the proceeds of the homestead are sometimes entitled to the same exemption as the homestead itself, n1443 unless such exemption thereto is waived. n1444 To be so exempt, the property must have retained its homestead character until the time of sale. n1445 Thus, a person who owns a homestead may sell the same and reinvest the proceeds in another, which will be exempt to the same extent as was the homestead sold, n1446 but the debtor, to preserve the right to homestead in the new tract, must purchase and occupy the same as a homestead within a reasonable time, n1447 claiming an exemption on the ground that lands were purchased with the proceeds of a homestead has the burden of proving such purchase. n1448 One homestead may be exchanged for another, and the homestead privileges and rights attach to the new as they did to the old homestead. n1449 There are cases, however, which hold that the income, rents, and royalties from a homestead are not exempt from liability for the owner's debts. n1450

21.04(j) Fraud of the Debtor as Defeating the Homestead

As a general proposition, the courts will not permit a fraud to be perpetrated through the acquisition of a homestead. n1451 If money obtained by fraud is used to acquire a homestead, such homestead is subject to claims of creditors. n1452 But, this does not prevent an insolvent debtor from purchasing property then claimed as a homestead. n1453 In thus deciding between the public policy of perpetuating the family and the distaste for encouraging fraud, the courts are faced with the dilemma, "In avoiding the Scylla of oppression we must guard against the Charybdis of dishonesty." n1454 Exemption laws are grants of personal privileges to debtors that may be waived or forfeited. n1455 Homestead laws are enforced, though in so doing a dishonest debtor may wrongfully defraud his creditors. n1456

So the fact that a conveyance of homestead property is fraudulent as to creditors does not alone and of itself inevitably defeat the homestead right. n1457 A large majority of the cases hold that a homestead is not abandoned by a fraudulent conveyance thereof by the debtor. n1458 Thus, where a conveyance to the wife is made by the husband for the purpose of placing the home beyond the reach of creditors, the wife is not precluded thereby from claiming the homestead. n1459 This is true whether the wife participated in the fraud or not. n1460 An insolvent debtor purchased property and paid for it with funds that his creditors might otherwise have had applied in satisfaction of their claims, declaring the property so purchased as his homestead. In an action to have it applied in payment of debts, the court held the property homestead. n1461 It is held that a man's marrying in order to enable him to claim a homestead exemption, and thus defeat his creditors, whose money and property had been used to prepare the property as a homestead, does not lose the right to claim it as exempt. n1462 A conveyance of homestead realty cannot be set aside at the suit of a creditor. n1463 An owner of homestead property exempt from execution may convey it to anyone, including his wife, without having the conveyance overthrown as defrauding his creditors, if he makes a proper defense of exemption when the transaction is assailed. n1464

It is generally held that a wife's joining in a conveyance of her husband's real estate with the intent to assist him in defrauding his creditors does not bar her right to claim homestead or exemption. One reason for the rule is that the exemption privilege is given for the benefit not only of the husband and father but also for the wife and children, and it is held unjust that the latter should be prejudiced by the wrongful acts of the former. n1465 When the conveyance is void as to creditors, it stands as to them as though there had never been such a conveyance. If, then, the conveyance has not been made, the wife and children can assert the right against the creditors, the latter not being in a position to say after the conveyance has been set aside that it is not binding as against them, but is binding against the grantor so as to preclude him from asserting any claim to or in the property. n1466 Fraudulent conveyances do not enlarge the rights of creditors, but leave them just as if no conveyance had been made so far as enforcement is concerned. n1467 A creditor, under his execution, cannot sell a debtor's title and at the same time deny the debtor homestead on the ground that he has no title. n1468

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:defeat! w/5 homestead! w/15 debtor! w/5 fraud!

21.04(k) Alienation of the Homestead

The right and power of the title holder to alienate land once set apart as a homestead depends largely on the extent to which the applicable state statute has gone towards making the homestead a separate estate in land, as distinguished from a mere exemption from levy by creditors. Even where it is a mere occupancy, and not a new type of interest in land, the right of alienation by the record owner, so as to defeat the possessory interests of the other members of the family, may be limited. n1469

In Illinois a homestead is alienable, but a lien of a judgment lies dormant while the homestead exists. n1470

Likewise, homestead may be mortgaged. n1471 A homestead is alienable. n1472 A lien of a judgment lies dormant while the homestead exists.

Where the statute imposes no restrictions on the power to alienate a homestead, the conveyance thereof passes the title as if no homestead existed. n1473

A homestead in the sole name of the head of the family cannot be alienated without consideration, n1474 but entireties property may be, if both spouses join, even though held in homestead. n1475

The homestead ceases upon conveyance. However, the statutes of many states seek to protect the widow and children against the improvidence of the husband, by providing for certain restrictions on the right to alienate the homestead, among which are that the instrument of conveyance shall expressly release the homestead right and be specially acknowledged by the wife. n1476 Thus, a contract lien on a homestead for street improvement is not created by an instrument not acknowledged by the owner. n1477 Hence, the homestead property cannot be conveyed by the husband without the wife's consent given in the manner provided by statute or constitutional provision. n1478 Title to a married woman's right in the homestead can pass only through a conveyance executed in the manner required by law. n1479 A provision in the statute exempting the homestead from forced sale does not necessarily prevent a private sale thereof. n1480

As the benefits of the exemption from debts are intended for the family, the statutes usually provide that the wife must join in a conveyance of the interest, and such conveyance passes a good title to the grantee free from the general debts of the grantor, if the mode prescribed by statute, if any, is followed. These statutes are as varying as the jurisdictions, and no attempt will be made here to give more than the salient features common to a number of them. Thus, in most states, a conveyance executed by one spouse alone is void. n1481 The deed is not void, however, if it is to the wife alone, and she signs. n1482 An attempted conveyance by the husband of the homestead is void unless the wife joins. n1483

Such a provision, however, does not prevent the husband from conveying the homestead to secure a privileged debt, even when the wife does not join in such a conveyance. n1484 This is true also where the husband's conveyance is to secure an enforceable debt. n1485 As a general rule, both husband and wife must join in or at least consent to a conveyance of the homestead to a third person, n1486 unless the conveyance is made pursuant to a contract entered into prior to the marriage. n1487 The cases are divided as to whether one spouse can convey the homestead under power of attorney from the other spouse. n1488

Where a wife, having been abandoned by her husband, had acquired title to her husband's property by adverse possession, the wife was held to have a right to convey the property to her daughter. n1489 Likewise, where the husband sold the homestead on fraudulent representations that he was unmarried. n1490

A husband may convey without his wife joining, where the homestead has not been selected, n1491 or where it has been abandoned. n1492 Moreover, even though one of the spouses does not join in or consent to a conveyance of the homestead, the conveyance thereof actually made by the other spouse may become effective on the homestead's being subsequently abandoned. n1493

Whatever mode of alienation of the homestead is attempted, a strict compliance with the statutory requirements must be observed. n1494 Thus, where the statute so provides, the conveyance of the homestead by the husband must be signed and properly acknowledged by the wife, n1495 and supported by a sufficient consideration as to her release. n1496 Though the wife's name does not appear in the granting clause, her intent to convey may appear in the subsequent portions of the deed. n1497 The methods by which a homestead or an interest therein may be alienated are usually exclusive and, being also restrictions designed for the protection of all the beneficiaries of the exemption, they are as essential when the homestead is alienated to members of the family as to others. n1498 In Illinois, a specific release or waiver of the homestead is necessary to the validity of a conveyance of homestead property. n1499 A conveyance invalid as to a homestead, because it contains no release thereof, may nevertheless be valid as to the excess of value over the value allowed by law to be reserved as a homestead. n1500

Generally, an executory contract to convey a homestead not joined in by both husband and wife comes within statutes inhibiting the sale or alienation of a homestead by the husband alone, n1501 though it is sometimes held that such a contract may be valid without the wife's joinder therein. n1502 A contract to convey entered into by a single man prior to his marriage is binding upon his wife irrespective of whether or not she had notice of the contract previous to the marriage. n1503 It has been held that the husband is himself liable in an action for damages on a contract entered into by himself alone to convey the homestead without having obtained his wife's signature to such contract. n1504 A contrary view is held in some jurisdictions. n1505

Ordinarily, joinder by the wife in a contract to sell the homestead, or at least her consent to such contract, is essential to the contract's enforceability. n1506 In some states, a contract invalid as to the homestead is invalid in toto. n1507 In others such a contract may be valid as to the excess of value of the property over the value of the homestead allowed by law. n1508 Where the contract to convey and the deed of conveyance were parts of one and the same transaction, the conveyance is valid if the wife signs the deed only. n1509

Where the rule obtains that an absolute conveyance by the husband without the consent of the wife is void, it is generally held that he cannot mortgage the homestead without her joining in the manner prescribed by law. n1510 Both the husband and wife must ordinarily join in, or at least consent to, the execution of a mortgage on, or a deed of trust to, the homestead. n1511 Likewise, where a conveyance of the homestead by the husband alone operates to convey the right to the land after the homestead terminates, it is generally held that a mortgage of the premises without the wife joining is a valid lien upon the land, subject to the homestead right while it lasts. n1512 If the statute provides that the wife shall acknowledge her deed releasing her homestead rights, a mortgage without her acknowledgment creates no lien upon the homestead. n1513 Under a statute which provides that the homestead release shall be by joint consent of husband and wife, if the husband executes a mortgage and signs his wife's name to it and procures a fraudulent acknowledgment of it in her name, the wife cannot subsequently ratify the mortgage by executing a separate release. n1514 The mere signature of a married woman to a mortgage by her husband is no evidence of a release or waiver by either him or her of the homestead exemption, unless it is affirmatively and substantially stated in the body of the instrument that she is a party to and unites in the conveyance. n1515 A mortgage given to secure the purchase price of a homestead need be signed only by the person taking title to the homestead. n1516 It is held that neither the wife nor her husband is estopped to assert the invalidity of a trust deed as to the husband's antecedent debt secured thereby. n1517

The power to make a testamentary disposition of a homestead depends on the statute creating the homestead, and such statutes usually exclude such power on the part of the owner, n1518 especially where the attempted devise is to persons not entitled to a homestead in the property. n1519 He has no right as against his creditors, to devise the homestead to persons other than those entitled to homestead rights therein. n1520 In some states, the owner may devise the homestead subject to the right of the surviving spouse to occupy the land for life. n1521 In most jurisdictions, a devise to a surviving spouse in lieu of the homestead, which is devised to another, puts such spouse to an election between the homestead and the provisions of the will, and such survivor cannot have both. n1522 In other jurisdictions such surviving spouse is not required to elect between the devise and the homestead, but may take both. n1523

In the absence of a statutory or constitutional prohibition, the owner is generally held to have power to dispose of the homestead by will, n1524 and in the absence of a clear intention expressed in the will to the contrary, a testator, leaving no widow, child, or issue of a deceased child, may dispose of his homestead to a devisee who takes same free from the testator's debts. n1525 Neither the fact that the homestead property is devised to the testator's descendants, nor the fact that it is directed to be converted into money for the purpose of division, affects its exemption from the testator's debts, where his descendants are given the same shares as they would have taken by descent. n1526 In Florida, the homestead may be devised by the owner's spouse if there is no minor child. n1527

An alienation of the homestead does not necessarily render the property liable for debts of the former homestead owner. n1528 In the absence of a statutory or constitutional prohibition, the parties have a right to voluntary sale or mortgage of the homestead lands, n1529 and the grantee or mortgagee holds them against the creditors of the grantor. n1530 This rule prevails in jurisdictions where judgments against the debtor are not liens upon his homestead, but in other jurisdictions such judgments are liens which remain in abeyance while the homestead right exists, in which case a sale of the homestead cannot be made, except subject to such judgment liens. n1531 The proceeds of a voluntary sale of a homestead were held exempt from execution for debt. n1532

The cases are divided as to whether a homestead is such an interest in land as to fall within the statute of frauds. n1533 The cases are divided as to whether the husband can transfer the interest to his wife without her executing the deed. n1534 Remarriage of a widow does not of itself terminate the homestead. n1535 In Nebraska, when the title holder dies his widow takes a life estate in the homestead and his children the remainder, even though they no longer occupy the property. n1536

The sale of the homestead and reinvestment of the proceeds in another home does not make the new property subject to debts. n1537 Homesteads may descend and can be devised. n1538

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:right! or power! w/5 alienat! w/15 homestead!

21.04(l) Interest, Possession and Use Necessary to Create a Homestead

"Homestead" as distinguished from a mere exemption may be taken only in realty, not personalty, though some states, for this purpose, treat a chattel real as real property. n1539 Ordinarily, to support a homestead right there must be ownership, either legal or equitable. n1540 A homestead may be allotted in mortgaged real estate. n1541

The character of the estate necessary to support a homestead is usually defined by statute. In some states, nothing short of a fee in the claimant will suffice. n1542 So, one having a base or determinable fee in realty is held not to have a homestead interest therein. n1543 But, generally, a fee is not necessary to support a homestead, n1544 as any possessory interest in land, n1545 coupled with the requisite occupancy by the debtor and his family, n1546 such as one's right under a contract of purchase, is sufficient. n1547 Under the latter rule, any interest, sufficient that the creditors covet it, is enough to support homestead. n1548

Except as against the right of the vendor, one in possession of land under a contract of purchase may claim a homestead right. n1549 So, mere naked possession has been held sufficient. n1550 All that is necessary is that the exemptionist have an assignable interest in the land. n1551 Property in which the husband has only an equitable interest may be protected as a homestead, though the legal title is in his wife. n1552 Accordingly, the homestead right for an owner, wife, and family attaches as well to a life estate as to an estate in fee. n1553 An estate in remainder, whether vested or contingent, will not support a claim of homestead exemption until the termination of the prior estate. n1554 Future estates, whether vested or contingent, will not support a claim of homestead, until the particular estate is determined and the remainderman is entitled to immediate possession, at which time he may claim his homestead in the premises if the contingent interest has not been sold in the meantime by his creditors. n1555 The interest of a tenant by the curtesy is sufficient to support a homestead. n1556

Likewise, the right may be supported by a leasehold interest, where the lease gives him an estate in the premises, n1557 and some cases hold that a tenancy at will or at sufferance is sufficient to support a homestead. n1558 It is held that an obligation under an oil and gas lease to pay deferred rentals in the future, like a lessor's reversionary interest in the minerals, is subject to a wife's homestead rights. n1559 Homestead rights may attach where, subject to a life estate, there is a present vested fee title subject to the life tenant's right to collect rent. n1560 Also, there may be a homestead in property in which a husband and wife have an estate by entireties. n1561 A homestead may be acquired in property of tenants in common and joint tenants. n1562 To impress land with a homestead character, some real interest or ownership must exist, and a mere gratuitous grantee of one conveying to defraud his creditors does not acquire such interest or ownership. n1563 One entering into possession of land in subordination to and in recognition of another's title cannot acquire homestead rights superior to such owner's title. n1564

Occupancy of the property, actual or constructive or at the very least a bona fide intent manifested by overt acts presently to occupy the property is, as a general rule, essential to the acquisition of a homestead right. n1565 One may actually occupy a home through the agency of others, so long as it is maintained as a home and the control is not changed in character. n1566

Daily residence is not essential, nor is it disrupted by temporary absence with the intent to return. n1567 It is often said that occupancy is of the very essence of a homestead. n1568 The idea of a homestead always contemplates a place for the residence of a family, and its character, as exempt property, is derived only from the fact of such occupancy. n1569 A homestead may not be acquired by intention to use premises as a home in the future accompanied with preparations to make it suitable as a home. n1570 In most states, mere occupancy of the land is not sufficient to establish the homestead, n1571 unless such occupancy obtains at the time the question of exemption arises. n1572

A homestead character may be impressed upon premises without actual occupancy, where the claimant has a fixed intention to make a home thereon, manifested by overt acts of preparation of the premises for a home. Actual occupancy, or an attempt in good faith to occupy the premises, must follow the overt acts of preparation without unreasonable delay. n1573 Where the statute defines the head of a family as including, among others, every person residing on the premises with him or her and under his or her care and maintenance, a child or certain other relatives, such statute does not operate to make a residence upon the land a requisite to its exemption as a homestead. n1574

The question of selection sufficient to impress a homestead character on property, without actual occupancy thereof as a home, depends on the circumstances of each particular case. n1575 In some states, the mere fact that the premises are occupied as a home is sufficient to constitute a selection of the homestead. n1576 When occupancy is coupled with residence, citizenship, and the status of being the head of a family, the right is perfect. n1577 In some states, actual residence upon the premises is not required to constitute a homestead. n1578 A mere intent to occupy the premises, n1579 unaccompanied by acts of preparation of the land for a home without unreasonable delay, is not sufficient to impress the land with a homestead character, n1580 but the intention to occupy property as a homestead, after proceeding with reasonable diligence to render the premises habitable, followed by actual occupancy within a reasonable time thereafter, is generally sufficient to establish a homestead. n1581 According to some cases, actual occupancy is not required, but constructive occupancy will answer, n1582 as where the property is temporarily in the possession of a tenant. n1583

A rural homestead is initiated by dedication and occupancy thereof by the head of the family as a place of residence and use for the support of the family, n1584 so a lessor of oil and gas did not have sufficient possession of the oil and gas to claim homestead therein. n1585 A homestead claimant may have a residence, and hence a homestead, even though he eats elsewhere and has many of his personal effects elsewhere. n1586 In most states, equitable interests will support a homestead. n1587 Oil and gas interest is an estate in land and was held to be subject to homestead. n1588 But the statutes vary as to whether there can be homestead in leased property. n1589

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:homestead! w/15 interest! or use! or possess!

21.04(m) Time Within Which the Homestead Must Be Claimed

The statutes are not in harmony as to whether a homestead is a positive right which must be recognized under all circumstances or whether it arises only if the debtor takes an affirmative step to claim it. Upon the question of the necessity of the debtor to claim his exemption or bring notice thereof to the officer levying an execution before the sale of the property, the decisions vary. In a number of jurisdictions, the right to homestead is not lost to the debtor by his failure to claim his exemption. n1590 In these jurisdictions, if the debtor's lands are sold on execution, and the purchaser sues for possession, the debtor has a complete defense in his claim of homestead even though he may have taken a lease from the purchaser. n1591 He may have partition if the homestead is sold together with excess which cannot be claimed as homestead. n1592

In some jurisdictions, the homestead is not lost by a refusal to claim it. The statutes impose upon the officer levying the execution the duty to set off the exemption or have it set off by his appointees. n1593 In some states, the debtor must claim the exemption either at the time of the service of the writ of execution or before the sale of the property. Failure to assert this claim at this time loses to him the right to do so, though this failure to claim is spoken of in some jurisdictions as a waiver of his rights. n1594 In other states the debtor loses all right and title to the land once the redemption period has expired. n1595 The officer serving the writ cannot know just what property is exempt, nor can he know if it will be claimed by the debtor, even though the law gives him the privilege. There is apparently no person more interested than the debtor himself in asserting his rights, and his failure to do so is held to be a waiver of the right to claim the property exempt. n1596 In a few states, it is held to be the duty of the officer to inform the debtor of his right to claim the exemption. n1597

Whether the debtor may agree to waive his right to homestead exemption is another question on which there is a diversity of opinion. Some statutes permit such waiver as regards particular debts, if the waiver is in writing and his wife joins therein. n1598 In other states, however, the right to agree not to assert the claim is denied. n1599 The making of a will or a contract to make a will in consideration of care is held not to imply a surrender or waiver of the right to claim property exempt from execution and sale under a homestead law. n1600

21.04(n) Liability of the Homestead for the Debts and Obligations of the Title Holder

The basic purpose of the exemption right of possession or estate, whichever it may be, of "homestead," is the immunity of the property during the continuance of the homestead from levy of execution to satisfy debts of the holder of the legal title. The extent to which this immunity is carried depends on the particular statute. n1601

It may be stated as a general proposition that the homestead exemption relieves the owner thereof from the necessity of paying his debts to the extent of the value of such exemption, but it is not exempt as against all the owner's debts. As a rule, the claim to exemption can be made only against the contract debts of the claimant, and not those arising from tort, n1602 but in some jurisdictions a contrary rule prevails. n1603 The claim to exemption is ineffectual only against debts arising after the law is enacted under which the right is asserted. n1604 This claim to exemption is superior to debts contracted before the marriage of the claimant, especially if the debts so contracted did not constitute liens on the property at the time and before the marriage. n1605 So, the homestead claim is held to have precedence over a debt contracted by borrowing money with which to purchase the homestead, n1606 but this is denied elsewhere. n1607 Except as against the right of the vendor, one in possession of land under a contract of purchase may assert a homestead right. n1608 The establishment of a homestead interest cannot affect liens created prior thereto. n1609

In most states the grantee from a homestead debtor takes the realty free from judgment and execution liens. n1610

It is held that a homestead exemption may be asserted to property purchased with the proceeds of the husband's non-exempt property, the title being taken in the wife's name, where there are no peculiar equities in favor of existing creditors. n1611 In Michigan, the exemption may be claimed against any debt, but the debtor may waive this right if unmarried, or the husband and wife may waive it jointly. n1612 A lien, under a homestead exemption, securing original notes, is also invalid as to renewal notes. n1613

A homestead exemption does not guarantee absolute freedom from all debts. n1614 A homestead exemption cannot be claimed against debts and liens in existence prior to or at the time the exemption law takes effect. The allowance of the claim against such debts is in conflict with the provisions in the Constitution of the United States, and it is held to impair the obligation of contract, and is therefore void. n1615 When a homestead right is created it attaches to and protects the estate which the claimant then has or may acquire in the property, but it does not enlarge the claimant's interest, although it is subject to existing liens which may be enforced by levy and sale under execution. n1616 A homestead cannot be claimed against debts contracted prior to the acquisition of the homestead; n1617 but, in some jurisdictions, it may be claimed as well against debts existing prior to the time the homestead was acquired, as against those created subsequent thereto. n1618

As a general rule, a homestead exemption may not be claimed against a debt for the purchase price of the homestead. n1619 A different view is taken in some jurisdictions, if it is understood between the purchaser and lender that the money is to be used in purchasing the property, n1620 and the same rule obtains if the loan and purchase are considered as a single transaction. n1621

The right cannot be claimed against debts incurred for the improvement of property, n1622 liens existing prior to the time that the property became impressed with the character of homestead, n1623 a prior attachment lien previously levied, n1624 or a contract to convey land, made by a married man whose wife had not joined in the contract where the claimant subsequently set apart the land as a homestead and refused to convey on the ground that his wife refused to join in the conveyance. n1625 The validity of a mortgage lien depends on its creation prior to the time the homestead estate attached. n1626 The claim to exemption is not valid as against mechanic's, laborer's, or materialman's liens, on the ground that such liens are on an equality with the lien for purchase money and are governed by the same principles. n1627 This is especially true where the claim was for materials furnished prior to the declaration of homestead. n1628 Also, funds spent for labor and improvement on the house occupied and claimed by one as his home may be satisfied by a sale of the property. n1629 In some jurisdictions, it is declared by constitutional provision that a homestead is not subject to a mechanic's lien. n1630

In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary, it is generally held that a homestead is not exempt from sale for taxes or assessments levied against it, n1631 but there are cases to the contrary. n1632 In jurisdictions where there is a constitutional or statutory provision making the homestead liable for all liabilities incurred by public officers and fiduciaries, the homestead of a tax collector is subject to the lien of his official bond. n1633 In a Minnesota case, it was held that the Old Age Pension Act, which imposes a lien in favor of the state on all realty owned by a recipient of old age pension benefits, does not violate the homestead exemption provision of the constitution. n1634

The authorities are in conflict upon the question as to whether the lien of a judgment does or does not attach to the homestead of the debtor. The majority opinion seems to be that a judgment is not a lien against premises impressed with the homestead character and subject to the homestead use and that an attachment or execution attempted to be levied thereon is absolutely void. n1635 Other cases hold that the lien attaches, but it is dormant or in abeyance as long as the homestead continues. n1636 The reason for the rule that a judgment is not a lien against land claimed as a homestead, is based upon the theory that a judgment is not a lien upon that which cannot be sold on execution.

While both judgment liens and homestead exemptions are creatures of statute, the exemption, being the later expression of legislative intent and power, displaces the judgment lien, as both cannot stand together in their full extent. The reason given for the rule that the judgment attaches but remains dormant while the homestead exists, is based upon the theory that the homestead exemption is not an assignable estate, but it is a mere possessory right, which is personal to the claimant and does not run with the land. n1637 It can be readily seen that different consequences flow from these two lines of decisions. In the first class, the judgment debtor may sell the homestead and the purchaser will obtain a good title, free from encumbrance, so far as existing judgments for debt against the claimant of the homestead are concerned, unless homestead rights have been waived. n1638 On the other hand, while the property, so long as it is occupied as a homestead, is neither subject to a lien, levy, or sale when it ceases to be protected by the statute, it becomes liable to levy and sale under the first execution issued and levied, irrespective of whether the writ is issued on a senior or junior judgment. n1639 Where the second class of cases prevails, the debtor has no power to convey the homestead so long as judgments remain unsatisfied, except that he may convey subject to such judgments. n1640 In these jurisdictions, if the debtor removes to another place with a view of transferring his homestead from the old to the new place, the lien becomes active, and the premises may be sold in satisfaction thereof. n1641 A declaration of homestead may be filed effectively at any time before a judgment has become a lien upon the property. n1642

Homestead property is exempt from a deficiency judgment on a mortgage foreclosure. n1643 The foregoing rules would manifestly apply to those instances in which homestead rights existed in particular property at the time the judgment or lien was obtained. There is a conflict of authority as to the effect on an existing judgment lien of the creation of homestead rights in real estate affected by the lien. Some jurisdictions adhere to the rule that the subsequent creation of a homestead right does not affect an existing judgment lien. n1644 Others hold that the subsequent creation of a homestead right extinguishes or suspends the enforcement of an existing judgment lien. n1645

If the debtor owns the fee and claims a homestead for life, the creditor's liens attach to the reversion, even though the debtor conveys the entire fee to another. n1646 Land becoming homestead is subject to contracts of sale n1647 and deeds of trust n1648 which became effective prior to the attaching of the homestead.

Where property is purchased with both community and separate funds there is disagreement as to whether the community has a charge upon the property to the extent it contributed to the purchase price. n1649 It has been held that an attorney in a matrimonial matter cannot recover fees from the sale of a homestead since attorneys are general creditors. n1650 A state homestead exemption does not preclude federal civil forfeiture of property used in criminal activity. n1651

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:homestead! w/30 liab! w/15 debt! or obligat! w/5 title

21.04(o) Abandonment as Terminating the Homestead

It is a general rule of law that title to real estate cannot be lost by abandonment as title to personalty can be. n1652 However, even in those states which treat a "homestead" as an estate in land, the cases are in accord that a homestead can be lost by abandonment. n1653 As occupancy is one of the essentials in establishing the homestead, ceasing to occupy, especially when clearly evident of an intention to no longer claim the property as one's place of residence, is universally considered as an abandonment thereof, and it is thus lost to the debtor. n1654

As in the case of easements and other rights in land, however, abandonment of a homestead requires a wedding of an intent to abandon plus acts constituting a giving up of the legal right of possession. n1655 Here, as in most other phases of the homestead exemptions, the authorities are again in conflict as to what is sufficient evidence of such abandonment. Once the fact of abandonment is established, all the cases agree that the exemption right is lost as against all claims against the property arising after the cessation of occupancy as a home. n1656

The homestead, once established, is not abandoned until there is a combination of an intent to abandon and actual abandonment. n1657 Intention is an important factor in determining whether a removal from, and a failure to continue to occupy, an established homestead, constitute an abandonment thereof. n1658 A move from a homestead to another home presumes abandonment of the homestead. n1659

As a general rule, the residence of the husband or father determines the place of residence of the wife and children, and a homestead is frequently lost by the husband and father moving elsewhere and compelling the family to go with him. n1660 In some states the husband, as the head of the family, has the right to abandon the homestead without the consent of the wife, n1661 provided he acts in good faith. n1662 Temporary absence will not deprive a homestead claimant of his right unless the intent of permanent abandonment is apparent. n1663

Where the husband has, in effect, deserted his family, the exemption is not lost to the family by his abandonment, at least until he acquires a home elsewhere, as the law presumes that his former home continues, though he may be a wanderer. n1664 Some authorities hold, however, that where the husband's abandonment is not concurred in by the wife, she does not lose her homestead right by her removal from the premises with her husband. This view is based on the ground that the statute prevents a conveyance of the homestead except by deed, in the execution of which both husband and wife have freely and voluntarily joined. n1665 It is also held that the husband's attempted abandonment of the homestead while his wife is residing on the premises, claiming them as her homestead, does not deprive the wife of her homestead right. n1666 As a general principle of law, there is a presumption that a homestead continues to be such, and the burden of proof is on the one seeking to prove abandonment. n1667

Where a wife is forced to leave her husband because of his cruelty to her, she does not abandon her homestead rights, and she can still claim a homestead exemption in her husband's property. n1668 In jurisdictions where married women's disabilities have been removed by statute, it is held that, by living apart from her husband with his acquiescence, the wife may acquire a domicil of her own. n1669 The rental of the homestead to another, on a month-to-month basis, was an abandonment for tax exemption purposes. n1670

The homestead character of land continues until the owner disposes of the land, or leaves it with the intention of not returning, or forms such intention after leaving. n1671 The actual removal from the premises, with no intent to return, is a forfeiture of the right as against purchasers or creditors, even though a new homestead has not been gained. n1672 However, no general rule for determining the intent with which a claimant leaves the homestead can be laid down. Each case must depend on its own particular circumstances, and the question is one of fact rather than of law. n1673 A mere intention to abandon will not, without more, effect a legal abandonment; n1674 but it is otherwise when there is a concurrence of intention to abandon and actual voluntary non-occupancy, n1675 even though such intention was not formed until after the removal from the property. n1676 The acquisition of a permanent new home has been said to be both the best evidence n1677 and conclusive proof n1678 of the abandonment of the former homestead. Both the preliminary question of intention n1679 and the ultimate question of abandonment n1680 are ordinarily questions of fact to be determined according to the peculiar circumstances of the particular case. In some of the states, it is expressly provided by statute that a homestead can be abandoned only by a declaration of abandonment or by a grant or conveyance of the property, and under such statutes non-occupancy of the property will not constitute an abandonment of the homestead right. n1681

Where there exists a bona fide, definite, and persistent intention to reoccupy the property, a temporary absence therefrom will not defeat the homestead right. n1682 The right will not be lost when the absence is involuntary n1683 as, for example, by reason of imprisonment in the penitentiary, n1684 of an order made in the course of judicial proceedings, n1685 of the destruction of the residence by fire, n1686 of physical infirmities, n1687 or of financial reverses and the duties of public office, n1688 or for purposes of health, n1689 business n1690 or education. n1691 Absence may be temporary even though prolonged, "temporary" going more to the question of a consistent intention to return than to the matter of the length of the absence. So it is that, while the extended duration of the absence is a factor to be considered, it is not conclusive that the homestead has actually been abandoned, n1692 but a temporary absence with a design of permanent abandonment amounts to an abandonment of the homestead. n1693

The cases are more and more treating leases of homes as a sale of space, and thus subject to the equitable doctrines of contract, such as mutuality. n1694

Once the homestead is established, the rule of personal occupancy relaxes, and the premises may be occupied by a tenant, paying rent, during temporary absence of the claimant, and this will not constitute an abandonment of the claim to exemption. n1695 The possession of a tenant will not sustain the homestead claim, if the owners have removed with the intent not again to occupy it as their home. n1696 Even the renting or leasing of a part of the property will not, of itself, in every instance at least, forfeit the homestead right as a matter of law. n1697 The execution of an oil and gas lease was not abandonment of the homestead. n1698 It is the acquiring of a new homestead, and not of a new home that operates as an abandonment of the homestead rights. n1699

It would seem that there can be no such thing as an abandonment of a homestead exemption where, under an express provision of the statute or state constitution, an owner of land may claim such exemption in respect of an infinite number of parcels anywhere within the state up to the value specified in the statute. n1700 A continuous actual occupation of a homestead is not necessary, and a temporary absence therefrom, without any intent or design to abandon same, will not operate as a forfeiture of the homestead. n1701 If one spouse abandons the other the homestead remains in the spouse who stays on the property. n1702 Duration of the absence of an owner may sometimes be evidence of an intent to abandon a homestead, but it is generally true that time alone is rather untrustworthy evidence. How long an absence is sufficient to forfeit the right to claim exemption depends upon circumstances. n1703

One may abandon a part of the property as a homestead if he does so in good faith, even though the part claimed to be abandoned is contiguous to the part retained as a homestead. n1704 In Kansas, the widow's probate homestead cannot be affected by any purported antenuptial contract of waiver. n1705 And, in Oklahoma, minor children cannot waive or abandon their homestead right. n1706 But, in most states, the widow may abandon her homestead. n1707

A temporary non-use of a homestead, where caused by military service, n1708 business reasons, n1709 family causes, n1710 illness, n1711 or other reasons, n1712 will not defeat the homestead right. An owner forced from the homestead by casualty may nevertheless be required to file notice of claim of homestead, as required by state law, to avoid a finding that the homestead was abandoned. n1713

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:abandon! w/15 terminat! w/15 homestead!

21.04(p) Effect of Dissolution of the Family Unit Upon the Homestead

Where the statutes merely give an exemption right to the head of a household, the loss of such a status terminates the right to such exemption. The rule is different, however, in the case of the true homestead. Some cases hold that, while it is essential to the creation of a homestead that the debtor have a family, such requirement is not essential to the continuance of the right. n1714 If the family consists of the husband and wife only, their death simultaneously will of necessity destroy the homestead right, as there is no one to claim it. n1715 "Although a homestead estate cannot be acquired except by a householder having a family, yet, when once acquired and still occupied by him, it is not defeated or lost by the death or absence of his wife and children. Any other construction would render a husband who has been deprived of his family by accident or disease, or by their desertion without any fault of his, liable to be turned out of his homestead by his creditors." n1716 It is not always, at least, that the dissolution of the family will terminate an established homestead right. n1717 Especially is it true that, when death is the cause of the family's disruption, the previously established homestead right frequently continues, in at least a qualified and limited form, for the benefit of one or more of the survivors or for the benefit of the sole survivor as the case may be. n1718

When the debtor dies leaving no family surviving him, and owning the property that was the subject of the homestead, it becomes subject to the claims of his creditors as against his collateral heirs. n1719 The homestead right is a derivative one, and the widow and minor children have the homestead which the husband could have claimed. n1720

Some statutes expressly save the right of homestead to the wife and children on the death of the husband and father. n1721 Others provide that the homestead, being a species of estate in joint tenancy between husband and wife, vests absolutely in the surviving spouse. n1722 In some states, a widow or widower, though without children, shall be deemed the head of the family while continuing to occupy the house used as such at the time of the death of the husband or wife. n1723 The character of the homestead is not altered by the death of one of the spouses, n1724 but continues in the surviving spouse, even where there is no surviving child and no family or dependents. n1725

As a general rule, the complete breaking up of the family for any cause does not operate to forfeit the homestead right of one who has acquired it and continues to use the property as a home. n1726 A husband does not forfeit his right to a homestead by abandoning his wife, unless the abandonment is wrongful. n1727 Where two persons reside together so as to constitute a legal family, a homestead is acquired, and if the family afterwards is broken up for any cause, it has been held that the homestead right is thereby extinguished and terminated, the right of a survivor to the homestead under the statute being extended only in the case of a family based on the relation of marriage. n1728 A number of cases hold that the wife's withdrawal, and even living in adultery with another, does not lose her the right to homestead on the husband's death. This rule is denied in a number of cases. n1729 Where the wife has left her husband because of his ill treatment toward her, and is living apart from him at the time of his death, she does not forfeit her homestead right. n1730 On the other hand, if she leaves him without just cause and without any intention of returning to him, she forfeits her right of homestead. n1731 Under a statute providing that the homestead on the death of the husband shall vest in the widow and children, and that the husband has no authority to alienate the same, the husband's abandonment of his wife without cause entitles the wife to remain on the homestead as against the husband's grantee. n1732

The mere fact that the spouses are separated does not terminate the homestead. n1733 But, separation of the spouses may prevent one claiming homestead rights in the other's property before n1734 or after death. n1735

In divorce proceedings, it is competent for the court to assign the homestead to the innocent party, either absolutely or for a limited period. Where the decree in the divorce proceedings is silent upon the question, the homestead will, upon the dissolution of the marriage, remain in possession of the party holding the legal title thereto, discharged of all homestead rights or claims of the other party. n1736 A divorce decree destroys the homestead rights where, after the divorce, the party claiming the homestead is not the head of a family. n1737 Where real estate sought to be partitioned was originally a homestead of a family consisting only of husband and wife, the homestead ceased to exist after divorce was decreed, n1738 and the property was subject to partition as community property. n1739

Where there is no statutory provision to the contrary, a wife has no homestead rights in the husband's property after divorce, unless rights are reserved to her by the decree, and it is immaterial which spouse was granted the divorce. n1740

An absolute divorce obtained by the wife has the effect of terminating the husband's homestead right in the wife's real estate which has become a homestead by their residence thereon. n1741 It is held that a husband who is liable for the support of his children does not lose his homestead right in his lands, even where the custody of the children is given to the wife. n1742 However, it has been held that a divorce court may place a lien on homestead property for spouse or child support. n1743 Of course, the court may set aside the homestead to either party in its decree of divorce, n1744 either for a limited period or absolutely, as in the exercise of its equitable power may seem just. n1745

In this connection, it may be stated that there is a conflict among the authorities as to whether a court has authority, in the absence of statutory authority, to vest in the wife, instead of the usual allowance in money, title to specific property of the husband by a decree for alimony, or in lieu of, or in addition to, alimony. Many courts hold such decree may be rendered n1746 while, in other jurisdictions, it is held that a court has power in a proper case to assign to the wife, as alimony, specific property of the husband. n1747

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:dissol! or death w/5 family w/30 homestead!

21.04(q) What Property Makes Up the Homestead

The prime purpose of the homestead statutes being to preserve the American home, it follows that the property selected for the purpose of "homestead" must be for use as a dwelling, n1748 except where the statute expressly permits "business homesteads." The homestead nature of property at the time of the owner's decease depends upon its use and his position as family head. Such use can be determined only from physical appearance, as distinguished from the title shown on records. A homestead, in the popular sense, signifies the family dwelling house and appurtenant land used in connection therewith, but, in a statutory sense, it means the land on which the owner's dwelling house is located. n1749

Besides the house or dwelling, the homestead may include whatever land or appurtenances are connected with the home and add to the convenience and enjoyment thereof. n1750 Thus, an interest in an irrigation system held in common with others is considered such an appurtenance as to be a part of the homestead. n1751 A homestead may include both a residence and a place of business, n1752 but to preserve a place of business which is separate from the home as part of the homestead, the head of the family must have a calling to which the property is adapted and reasonably necessary as such. n1753 Under a constitutional provision that a homestead exemption shall not extend to more improvements or buildings than the residence and business house of the owner, an apartment house for renting purposes is held not a business house of the owner. n1754 To constitute a tract of land detached from a block in an unincorporated town and occupied as the residence of the owner a part of the residence homestead, it must be used in connection with the block for the comfort and convenience of the home. n1755 Where property is occupied in good faith as a home, the fact that it is also used for a business to provide a livelihood for the owners will not prevent its being subject to homestead exemption. n1756 Where the statute limits the homestead to one dwelling house and appurtenances thereto, it cannot be extended to a second dwelling house erected on the land embraced in the homestead. n1757 It has been held that the family homestead of an Indian includes both the tribal homestead allotment and the tribal surplus allotment. n1758

Where lands are used for the purposes of a home, or a place where the head of a family exercises his calling, and the value or area does not exceed that permitted by the statute, it is generally deemed a homestead, even though the land is composed of contiguous lots or tracts. n1759 In the case of urban homesteads, property of two classes may be included, to wit: that used for the purposes of a home, often called the "residential homestead," and that used as a place to exercise the calling or business of the head of the family, called the "business homestead." In the former class may be claimed disconnected properties, if they are used for the purposes of a home, but in the latter class only one place of business is to be claimed, even though several disconnected lots may have been so used. n1760 The idea of a "homestead" carries with it a place of residence, a domicil, and all property used in connection with the residence, such as a place of business, garden, garage, office or shop, and must be located at the place of residence. n1761

There can be but one homestead, which is a unit, but it may consist of a business homestead and a residential homestead, n1762 and contrariwise there cannot be two separate homestead estates in the same premises at the same time. n1763 A homestead may be in one or more parcels which are entirely disconnected from the tract upon which the dwelling house is located, n1764 but, speaking generally, a person can have only one homestead at a given time. n1765

Under the provisions of some statutes, the homestead may consist of more than one tract of land and may be owned either by the husband, the wife or by both jointly, or one tract may be owned by one and another tract owned by the other, so long as the aggregate number of acres occupied as the home shall not exceed in value or area that permitted by the statute. n1766 It has been held that two parcels of land, touching only at the corners, between which is a regular roadway, may constitute a homestead, though the residence and appurtenances are all located on one tract. n1767 A tract of land never cultivated or used, and not contiguous to the homestead land where the husband and wife lived, which had been rented out to tenants prior to marriage, was not part of the homestead. n1768

On the other hand, there are cases holding that two tracts of land touching only at a common corner are not contiguous. n1769 Some authorities hold that a tract of land detached from or not contiguous to the land claimed as a homestead is not a part of the homestead exemption, n1770 even though both tracts contribute to the enjoyment and support of the home. n1771 According to this rule, if the lot on which the person claiming an exemption lives is separated from a second tract by other land, the homestead exemption will not be allowed on the second tract. n1772 Another line of authorities hold that where a parcel of land is detached from the homestead proper, and the returns therefrom are directly appropriated to the support of the family, and the two tracts do not together exceed the acreage allowed the claimant, the detached tract is impressed with the character of a homestead, and is a part thereof. n1773 That a portion of land did not adjoin another portion, all of which did not exceed the amount allowed by law, was held not to destroy the homestead character of the property. n1774

A tract of land in the country forms no part of a homestead consisting of a block in an unincorporated town, but one residing in an unincorporated town may have a business homestead in a separate urban tract used for farming purposes, and unless other avocations operate to destroy such business, it is immaterial that the claimant engage therein. n1775 A rural homestead may be changed into an urban and, after the change has been accomplished, that portion of the rural homestead which is not situated within the town or which is not actually used for homestead purposes, loses its homestead character. n1776

As a general rule, the extension of the limits of a city so as to include a homestead does not diminish the rights of the owner thereof, where the homestead is continued to be used for agricultural purposes, is not platted and is surrounded by lands which, though platted, are rural in character. n1777 Where a rural homestead is brought within the corporate limits of a city by extending the city limits, and the owner subsequently dedicates streets, and plats his land into lots, he is entitled to claim only an urban homestead, n1778 consisting of one lot of the average size as platted. n1779 The extension of the corporate limits of a city, without the consent of the owner of a homestead, so as to include part of several tracts embraced in the homestead, little or nothing being done to change the rural character of the property, will not affect the homestead. n1780

A person cannot have two homesteads at one and the same time. n1781 Nor can he have two places, either of which at his election he may claim as his homestead. n1782 When a man occupies one piece of land with his family and owns a distinct and separate tract, not adjoining, but uses it in connection with the one so occupied, he cannot hold both as a homestead. n1783 Where he has a residence on each tract, and both are levied upon, he may elect which tract he will claim as his homestead. n1784 The same family is not entitled to both a rural and an urban homestead exemption. n1785 He cannot, however, shift from one tract to another so as to defraud creditors. n1786 Having one homestead, he cannot acquire a second until the first has been abandoned or conveyed or contracted to be conveyed by an instrument legal and valid for the purpose. n1787

The abandonment of an existing homestead in actual use and occupancy is a condition precedent to the acquisition of another separate homestead, n1788 which can be accomplished only by removal from, and cessation of, the use of the existing homestead. n1789 In some states, a homestead may be claimed in only one piece of property n1790 which may, however, usually consist of several contiguous tracts, n1791 while in others it may be claimed in separate, disconnected properties. n1792

The homestead may be taken in property of either the husband or wife but, if living together, then each cannot claim a homestead at the same time, n1793 and if their home is owned by them as tenants in common, and is of the value of the homestead exemption, neither can claim other real estate as exempt from execution. n1794 Where a debtor is living with his family on land owned by his wife, it is held that this does not debar him from the right to claim a homestead exemption in lands of his own. n1795 Where land adjoining the homestead is purchased by the husband and used in connection with the realty on which the spouses live, a homestead right attaches to the purchased realty, except against the vendor. n1796 But, in some states, one who has several places of business may claim only one as a "business homestead." n1797

The use made of land may determine its character as to whether it is a homestead or not. n1798 It has been held, however, in Ohio, that the intention of owner, and not use or occupancy, is the criterion as to whether there is a homestead or not. n1799 And, where the principal use of the property is for a home or residence, the fact that it is incidentally used for other purposes does not affect its character as a homestead. n1800 Thus, a homestead may be claimed in premises used as a hotel or boardinghouse, if it is also used as the home or residence of the family. n1801 By the weight of authority, it is held that if an owner occupies as the family residence a part of a multiple dwelling house, such as a double or apartment house, the entire premises may properly be claimed as the homestead, even though a part of the building is leased to tenants for residential purposes. n1802 It has been held that a thirty-four foot motor boat on which the family resided could not be claimed under the homestead right provided by the Florida Constitution. n1803 It has also been held that motorhomes, travel trailers, and semitruck cabs may be claimed as homesteads under certain statutes. n1804

Hence, the general rule is that where property is bona fide occupied as a residence or home for the family, it will be protected against claims of creditors. n1805 The homestead is granted not only for residence purposes, but for purposes of general utility, and the object of the exemption is to secure to the debtor, not only a house to live in, but everything that goes to make the home more comfortable and enjoyable. n1806 If the homestead should also be used as a place of business, it will not for that reason alone cease to be a homestead, if the part so used would be necessary or convenient for the use of the family, independent of the business. n1807 One not in actual occupation of land, or in occupation of any other property as a homestead, cannot acquire a homestead in land which one cultivates. n1808

A rural homestead exemption comprehends a residence and business homestead exemption and, therefore, dedication of a "rural homestead" consists of the use of a part of a tract for a residence and the use of the balance for the support of the family. n1809 After the homestead has been established, the owner may convert part of it to trade purposes. n1810

There cannot be a homestead in an equitable interest. n1811 And the cases are not agreed as to the homestead interests in arising under land sales contract. n1812

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:property w/15 dwelling w/15 homestead! business homestead!

21.04(r) Effect of Death of Head of the Family

The statutes differ widely as to the effect of the death of a debtor, either before or after selecting homestead and leaving a widow or minor children. In those states where the homestead is a fee, it will descend to the debtor's heirs n1813 or to the surviving spouse. n1814 Other states merely continue the right of occupancy in the surviving spouse that had existed in the head of the household. n1815 A distinction has been made between solvent and insolvent estates, giving the widow a fee in the first instance, n1816 but only a life estate if the deceased was insolvent. n1817 In Florida, the homestead may be devised by the owner's spouse if there is no minor child. n1818

Generally, the husband and father, the debtor, may exercise the claim to a homestead exemption in order to preserve a home for his family. If the exemption should cease at the death of the common family head, then the real object of the statutes would be defeated. The chief feature of such laws is the protection they throw around a widow, and perhaps helpless children, in furnishing them a home place, a shelter, a place of refuge and comfort against the claims of those to whom the often improvident or unfortunate husband or parent had become obligated. Accordingly, practically all the homestead and exemption statutes, after creating and defining this reservation, make it transmissible on the death of the head of the family to the surviving members thereof, usually to the widow and children, in varying estates of quality or duration.

Some statutes expressly give the widow and children the absolute interest by descent. n1819 In some jurisdictions, the widow takes the homestead for life, and the child or children take during minority or the minority of the youngest child. n1820 In some jurisdictions, the widow's homestead for life is on the condition that she continue to occupy it, n1821 and permit the minor children, if any, to occupy it with her. n1822 In other jurisdictions, the widow holds the homestead until her death or remarriage, n1823 or so long as she continues to occupy such homestead. n1824 The widow's right was called a life estate. n1825

The widow's homestead generally continues during the minority of the children, n1826 though, in a few states, they are given a fee in the homestead, thus taking it away absolutely from the reach of creditors. n1827 In Arkansas, it was held that, where the husband on the day of his marriage secretly conveyed his land to a stranger but continued to live with his wife on the premises for ten years, the grantee took no title which would exclude the widow of her dower and homestead, or the children born of the marriage of their inheritance. n1828 The homestead right of the owner's son and wife attached to the property which they occupied with the owner until the latter's death, whereupon by inheritance the son acquired an interest in the property. n1829 By statute in Oklahoma, upon the death of either husband or wife, the survivor may continue to possess and occupy the homestead until it is otherwise disposed of according to law, whether title is in the deceased or the surviving spouse. n1830

Unless the statute expressly so provides, the widow and children have no general right to select a homestead on the death of the head of the family who had not established the homestead during his life. Instead, a number of states allow her what is termed a "homestead interest" in her deceased husband's property, and this is allotted by order of a court, usually with probate or equity jurisdiction and is generally designated a "probate homestead." n1831 There is much similarity in the allotment of the probate homestead and the assignment of dower by order of court. As the interest must be allotted out of land in which the husband had a beneficial interest at the time of his death which did not then expire. n1832 The surviving spouse may hold the family home for life. n1833 It may be allowed in his equitable estate or interest, n1834 whether he was the owner in severalty or in common. n1835 The property must be of such a character that it could have been selected by the husband as a homestead during his lifetime. n1836

Some jurisdictions require the probate homestead to be allotted out of the residence property of the deceased husband, if he has such property. n1837 In a few states, the widow has no right to a probate homestead in lands in which the husband did not claim it. n1838 The rights of the widow and children in a probate homestead are usually joint and not several and, in most of the states, the widow can do no act, as by sale, abandonment, or otherwise, that will prejudice the minor children's rights, which continue until majority. n1839 A probate homestead is exempt from the debts of the deceased husband and the wife contracted prior to his death. n1840 It has been held that the wife's conveyance of all her interest in her husband's estate, even for a valuable consideration, does not bar her right to a probate homestead, as such right is not then considered an interest in land. n1841 The statute does not limit the value of the homestead to be set apart to her, as this is left to the discretion of the court, n1842 and this homestead cannot be partitioned until the youngest child reaches majority, unless the minor's interests so demand. n1843

The general rule that a probate homestead is not subject to sale for the payment of the decedent's debts is not applicable where the homestead right has been relinquished. n1844 The right to have set aside a probate homestead is purely statutory, and the law makes no provision for a homestead for the benefit of the surviving spouse to the exclusion of minor children, for the benefit of minor children to the exclusion of the surviving spouse, or for the benefit of some minor children to the exclusion of others. n1845

A homestead, like dower, is highly favored in law, n1846 and in respect to vesting at the husband's death, they both stand alike, n1847 although there is a marked distinction between dower and homestead. n1848 Dower may be, but homestead cannot be, defeated by the husband's sole deed. Dower, at the decease of the husband, vests in the widow; homestead, in her or the minor children or both. n1849 Under a statute authorizing a widow to hold the mansion house without charge until dower is assigned, a wife not joining in her husband's deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors may, after his death, claim her homestead and take dower in other lands. n1850

A widow accepted dower in the land of which her husband died seised and possessed. An application for homestead was made and granted to her and her minor children. It was held that she could not have partition as against her children of the homestead so set apart to her and them, as she was not an heir at law of the homestead lands. n1851 The widow cannot claim both dower and homestead. n1852

The probate homestead is not limited in value as are general homesteads. n1853

COMPUTER-ASSISTED RESEARCH

LEXIS:death w/5 head w/2 family w/30 homestead!

FOOTNOTES:

(n1)Footnote 1173. Finerty v. First Nat'l Bank, 218 P. 859 (Okla. 1923); Northwestern Secs. Co. v. Nelson, 211 N.W. 798 (Wis. 1927). See Stokes v. Smith, 100 S.E.2d 85 (N.C. 1957), for a review of the history of North Carolina homestead laws.

See Carl D. Friebolen, Peculiar Nature of Homestead Exemptions, Their Disposition in Bankruptcy, 18 U. Cinn. L. Rev. 146 (1949); Homestead Exemption in North Carolina, 29 N.C. L. Rev. 143 (1948).

Homesteads are determined by the law in force when claimed. Cochran v. Cutler, 350 N.E.2d 59 (Ill. App. 1976).

(n2)Footnote 1174. Texas never adopted an extensive homestead law, much of its available land was sold for school purposes. See McKitrick, Public Land System of Texas, 1823-1910, Bulletin No. 905, U. of Wis.

(n3)Footnote 1175. Clark v. Davis, 226 P.2d 904 (Wash. 1951).

(n4)Footnote 1176. Walker v. Hayes, 28 So. 2d 413 (Ala. 1947); McFarland v. Pruitt, 210 P.2d 963 (Ariz. 1949); Johnson v. Brauner, 281 P.2d 50 (Cal. App. 1955); In re Wallace's Estate, 246 P.2d 894 (Colo. 1952); In re Noble's Estate, 73 So. 2d 873 (Fla. 1954).

(n5)Footnote 1177. In re Blodgett, 115 F. Supp. 33 (D. Wis. 1953).

(n6)Footnote 1178. J. H. Melville Lumber Co. v. Maroney, 16 N.W.2d 527 (Neb. 1944); Hoitt v. Webb, 36 N.H. 158 (1858).

Homestead can only exist in realty. Sterling Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Schultz, 218 N.E.2d 53 (Ill. App. 1966).

(n7)Footnote 1179. Philleo v. Smalley, 23 Tex. 498 (1859) And see In re McKenzie's Estate, 287 N.W. 695 (Wis. 1939).

California exempts from execution the dwelling house the same as a homestead. Deering's Codes, Civ. Code, §1237, as amended by Stat. 1973, ch. 281, §1 (1872).

(n8)Footnote 1180. In re Wineland, 3 F. Supp. 796 (D. Okla. 1933); Kelly v. Kelly's Ex'r, 186 S.W.2d 902 (Ky. 1945).

(n9)Footnote 1181. Turner v. Turner, 18 So. 210 (Ala. 1895); Tumlinson v. Swinney, 22 Ark. 400 (1860); Gregg v. Bostwick, 33 Cal. 220 (1867); Ashton v. Ingle, 20 Kan. 670 (1878); Linn County Bank v. Hopkins, 28 P. 606 (Kan. 1892); Gallagher v. Smiley, 44 N.W. 187 (Neb. 1889); Anderson v. Sessions, 51 S.W. 874, 55 S.W. 1133 (Tex. 1900); Phelps v. Rooney, 9 Wis. 70 (1859); Knadle v. Estate of Knadle, 686 So. 2d 631 (Fla. App. 1996) (a home lost its homestead character when the decedent's will directed the sale of the property and placement of the sale proceeds into the testator's estate).

(n10)Footnote 1182. J. H. Melville Lumber Co. v. Maroney, 16 N.W.2d 527 (Neb. 1944); Roberts v. Greer, 40 P. 6 (Nev. 1895).

(n11)Footnote 1183. Johnson v. Muntz, 4 N.E.2d 826 (Ill. 1936); White v. Spencer, 117 S.W. 20 (Mo. 1909); Finerty v. First Nat'l Bank, 218 P. 859 (Okla. 1923).

(n12)Footnote 1184. Tillotson v. Millard, 7 Minn. 513 (1862); Phelps v. Rooney, 9 Wis. 70 (1860).

(n13)Footnote 1185. Fritts v. Fritts, 131 N.E. 584 (Ill. 1921); Ferguson v. Board of Drainage Comm'rs of Graves County for Mayfield Creek Drainage Dist. No. 2, 186 S.W.2d 16 (Ky. 1945).

(n14)Footnote 1186. McKeough v. McKeough, 37 A. 275 (Vt. 1895).

(n15)Footnote 1187. People's Bank of Red Level v. Barrow & Wiggins, 94 So. 600 (Ala. 1922); In re Gilmore, 22 P. 655 (Cal. 1889); Brooks v. Marquess, 139 P.2d 395 (Kan. 1943); Hargadene v. Whitfield, 9 S.W. 475 (Tex. 1888).

See William W. Wilson, The Widow's Homestead Exemption in Texas: Two Homesteads in One Family, 25 Baylor L. Rev. 346 (1973).

(n16)Footnote 1188. Felder v. Felder's Estate, 13 So. 2d 823 (Miss. 1943).

(n17)Footnote 1189. Jones v. Kemp, 144 F.2d 478 (10th Cir. 1944); Van Meter v. Field, 159 P.2d 546 (Okla. 1945).

(n18)Footnote 1190. United States v. Thurston County, 54 F. Supp. 201 (D. Neb. 1944).

(n19)Footnote 1191. Rich v. Ervin, 194 P.2d 809 (Cal. App. 1948); United States v. Lampien, 89 F.3d 1316 (7th Cir. 1996) (a Wisconsin homestead exemption was void under the supremacy clause to the extent it prevented the federal government from enforcing a valid criminal restitution order).

(n20)Footnote 1192. Wambeke v. Hopkin, 372 P.2d 470 (Wyo. 1962).

Homesteads are determined by the law in force when claimed. Cockran v. Cutler, 350 N.E.2d 59 (Ill. App. 1976); In re Streeper, 158 B.R. 783 (Bankr. N.D. Iowa 1993) (holding that homestead right attaches by actual use and occupancy of land, not by acquiring title); In re Donaldson, 156 B.R. 51 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1993) (holding that homestead was available even though title was in dispute). Contra SSG Corp. v. Cunningham, 875 P.2d 16 (Wash. App. 1994) (holding that debtor was not owner of structures and so could not claim them as homestead even though he occupied them).

(n21)Footnote 1193. Karbs v. Bouse, 154 P.2d 968 (Okla. 1945); In re Doody's Estate, 313 P.2d 444 (Or. 1957).

See Tom R. Mason, Probate Homestead in Oklahoma, 15 Okla. L. Rev. 130 (1962); Angus S. McSwain, Texas Business Homestead, 15 Baylor L. Rev. 39 (1963).

See also Jack H. Garrett, The Wife's Illusory Homestead Rights, 22 Baylor L. Rev. 178 (1970).

See Chuck Adams, California's New Homestead Law, 64 Cal. L. Rev. 180 (1976). See David Cummins, Texas Homestead Law: Past, Present, and Future, 25 Real Estate Law Journal 172, 183 (Fall 1996).

(n22)Footnote 1194. Jones v. Kemp, 144 F.2d 478 (10th Cir. 1944); United States v. Thurston County, 54 F. Supp. 201 (D. Neb. 1944); In re Blodgett, 115 F. Supp. 33 (D. Wis 1953); Cherokee Constr. Co. v. Harris, 122 S.W. 485 (Ark. 1909); Jernigan v. Harris, 62 S.W.2d 5 (Ark. 1933); Palen v. Palen, 83 P.2d 36 (Cal. App. 1938); Lehman v. Cottrell, 19 N.E.2d 111 (Ill. App. 1939); Breen v. Breen, 173 P. 2 (Kan. 1918); First Nat'l Bank v. Oliver, 150 S.W.2d 894 (Ky. 1941); Kennedy v. Duncan, 137 S.W. 299 (Mo. App. 1911); Oregon Mtg. Co. v. Dunbar, 289 P. 559 (Mont. 1930); In re Cook's Estate, 117 P. 27 (Nev. 1911); First State Bank v. Fischer, 272 N.W. 752 (N.D. 1937); Maloy v. Wm. Cameron & Co., 119 P. 587 (Okla. 1911); Karbs v. Bouse, 154 P.2d 968 (Okla. 1945); Hansen v. Jones, 109 P. 868 (Or. 1910); Standard Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Davis, 85 S.W.2d 333 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935); Roberson v. Home Owners' Loan Corp., 147 S.W.2d 949 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Evans v. Jensen, 168 P. 762 (Utah 1917); Zuniga v. Evans, 48 P.2d 513 (Utah 1935); McElroy v. Bixby, 36 Vt. 254 (1863).

See George L. Hoskins, Homestead Exemptions, 63 Harv. L. Rev. 1289 (1949).

(n23)Footnote 1195. Witherington v. Mason, 5 So. 679 (Ala. 1889); Bishop v. Johnson, 7 So. 2d 281 (Ala. 1942); Thorn v. Thorn, 14 Iowa 49 (1862); Morgan v. Rountree, 55 N.W. 65 (Iowa 1893); Beatty v. Wardell, 105 N.W. 357 (Iowa 1905); Curtis v. Helton, 59 S.W. 745 (Ky. 1900); Jones v. Crawford, 84 S.W. 568 (Ky. 1905); Riggs v. Sterling, 27 N.W. 705 (Mich. 1886); State Bank of Eagle Grove v. Dougherty, 66 S.W. 932 (Mo. 1902); Bonner v. Minnier, 34 P. 30 (Mont. 1893); Holmes v. Holmes, 111 P. 220 (Okla. 1910); In re Doody's Estate, 313 P.2d 444 (Or. 1957) (a homestead is personal, not an estate, and must be claimed to be effective); Beaty v. Richardson, 34 S.E. 73 (S.C. 1899).

(n24)Footnote 1196. In re Falcone's Estate, 27 Cal. Rptr. 38 (Cal. App. 1962) (homestead is a type of joint tenancy which cannot be destroyed except by concurrence of both spouses).

See Jack H. Garrett, The Wife's Illusory Homestead Rights, 22 Baylor L. Rev. 178 (1970); First Nat'l Bank v. Phillips, 212 N.W. 678 (Iowa 1927); Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927); Dennis v. Gorman, 233 S.W. 50 (Mo. 1921); In re Trepp's Estate, 227 P. 1005 (Mont. 1924); Barnett v. Sanders, 247 P. 55 (Okla. 1926); Gann v. Montgomery, 210 S.W.2d 255 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948); Zuniga v. Evans, 48 P.2d 513 (Utah 1935).

(n25)Footnote 1197. Watson v. Hurlburt, 170 P. 541 (Or. 1918); McElroy v. Bixby, 36 Vt. 254, 84 (1863) (widow and minor children of a decedent were entitled to full homestead rights in lands held by decedent as a tenant in common).

(n26)Footnote 1198. In re Swift, 96 F. Supp. 44 (W.D. Va. 1950); In re Wickesberg's Estate, 244 N.W. 561 (Wis. 1932).

(n27)Footnote 1199. Witherington v. Mason, 5 So. 679 (Ala. 1889); Kennedy v. First Nat'l Bank, 18 So. 396 (Ala. 1895); Montgomery v. Dane, 98 S.W. 715 (Ark. 1906); 11 Ann. Cas. 421; Hart v. Church, 58 P. 910 (Cal. 1900); Pritchett v. Davis, 28 S.E. 666 (Ga. 1897); Lockhart v. Sasser, 22 So. 2d 763 (Fla. 1945); Zachmann v. Zachmann, 66 N.E. 256 (Ill. 1903); Swisher v. Swisher, 137 N.W. 1076 (Iowa 1912); Davis v. Davis, 67 N.W.2d 566 (Iowa 1954); Withers v. Love, 83 P. 204 (Kan. 1905); In re Koehler's Estate, 172 P. 25 (Kan. 1918); Protection State Bank v. Baker, 53 P.2d 469 (Kan. 1936); Stults v. Sale, 17 S.W. 148 (Ky. 1891); Hammond State Bank & Trust Co. v. Broderick, 154 So. 739 (La. 1934); Lafayette Bldg. Ass'n v. Spofford, 59 So. 2d 880 (La. 1952); Allen v. Crane, 116 N.W. 392 (Mich. 1908); Keith v. Albrecht, 94 N.W. 677 (Minn. 1903); Murphy v. Renner, 109 N.W. 593 (Minn. 1906); Tomlinson v. Kandiyohi County Bank, 202 N.W. 494 (Minn. 1925); McDonald v. Sanford, 41 So. 369 (Miss. 1906); Van Doren v. Wiedeman, 94 N.W. 124 (Neb. 1903); Chitty v. Chitty, 24 S.E. 517 (N.C. 1896); Bremseth v. Olson, 112 N.W. 1056 (N.D. 1907); Dieter v. Fraine, 128 N.W. 684 (N.D. 1910); Mandan Merc. Co. v. Sexton, 151 N.W. 780 (N.D. 1915); Conlon v. Dickinson, 5 N.W.2d 411 (N.D. 1942); Mutual Bldg. & Inv. Co. v. Efros, 75 N.E.2d 75 (Ohio App. 1947); Gooch v. Gooch, 133 P. 242 (Okla. 1913); Pettis v. Johnston, 190 P. 681 (Okla. 1920); Williams v. Watkins, 219 P. 643 (Okla. 1923); State Nat'l Bank v. Lokey, 240 P. 101 (Okla. 1925); Van Meter v. Field, 159 P.2d 546 (Okla. 1945); Allison v. Shilling, 27 Tex. 450 (1864); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932); Crowder v. Union Nat'l Bank, 261 S.W. 375 (Tex. 1924); Bunker v. Coons, 60 P. 549 (Utah 1900); Calhoun v. Williams, 32 Gratt 18 (Va. 1879); Minnesota Stoneware Co. v. McCrossen, 85 N.W. 1019 (Wis. 1901).

In Louisiana it is the dependent members of the family who are the object of the homestead purpose. Lafayette Bldg. Ass'n v. Spofford, 59 So. 2d 880 (La. 1952).

"Indeed, the whole theory and policy of the homestead is founded upon the principle that there is a natural and moral obligation on the head of a family to provide for the support of his wife and children and other persons dependent on him, toward whom he stands almost in loco parentis, which is, if not paramount, equal to his obligation to pay his debts." Calhoun v. Williams, 32 Gratt 18 (Va. 1879); State v. Ten Acres of Land, 877 P.2d 597 (Okla. 1994) (holding that homestead provisions were created to protect the entire family and cannot be attached for the tort of one member); Matthews v. Matthews, 961 P.2d 831, 835 (Okla. 1998) (stating that homestead status in one's land is an interest attached by law for purpose of protecting entire family of its holder).

(n28)Footnote 1200. Drennan v. McCarthy, 210 S.W.2d 791 (Ark. 1948).

(n29)Footnote 1201. Hallauer v. Lackey, 188 S.W.2d 30 (Mo. 1945).

(n30)Footnote 1202. Clark v. Davis, 226 P.2d 904 (Wash. 1951).

See Jack H. Garrett, The Wife's Illusory Homestead Rights, 22 Baylor L. Rev. 178 (1970).

(n31)Footnote 1203. In re Buie, 287 F. 896 (D. Tex. 1923); Union Oil Co. v. Norton Morgan Commercial Co., 202 P. 1077 (Ariz 1922); Hannon v. Southern Pac. R. Co., 107 P. 335 (Cal. App. 1909); Sherwood v. Cornfield, 31 Cal. Rptr. 264 (Cal. App. 1963); Hill v. First Nat'l Bank, 84 So. 190 (Fla. 1920); Collins v. Collins, 7 So. 2d 443 (Fla. 1942); Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927); Riggs v. Sterling, 27 N.W. 705 (Mich. 1886); Bartold v. Lewandowska, 8 N.W.2d 133 (Mich. 1943); Bushnell v. Loomis, 137 S.W. 257 (Mo. 1911); 36 L.R.S. (N.S.) 1029; Japp v. Sapulpa State Bank, 215 P. 1059 (Okla. 1923); In re Banfield's Estate, 296 P. 1066, 298 P. 905 (Or. 1931); Ex parte Cothran, 121 S.E. 556 (S.C. 1924); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932);

Volker-Scowcroft Lumber Co. v. Vance, 88 P. 896 (Utah 1907).

(n32)Footnote 1204. Lehman v. Cottrell, 19 N.E.2d 111 (Ill. App. 1939); Ramsey v. Lake County, 14 N.W.2d 125 (S.D. 1944); In re Glaze, 169 B.R. 956 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 1994) (holding that the purpose of the Arizona homestead law is to protect families and guarantee them shelter); In re Bartlett, 168 B.R. 488 (Bankr. D. N.H. 1994) (holding that the homestead exemption ensures that families have shelter and that they are kept off welfare); In re Peters, 168 B.R. 710 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1994) (holding that the purpose of the homestead exemption is to ensure that the debtor can protect from creditors a place to live). In re McKinney-Jones, 219 B.R. 619, 621 (Bankr. W.D. Okla. 1998) (stating that purpose of Oklahoma's homestead exemption is to provide the family with a place to live); In re Mueller, 215 B.R. 1018, 1023 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 1998).

(n33)Footnote 1205. Troutman v. Eichar, 28 N.E.2d 953 (Ohio App. 1940); In re Banfield's Estate, 296 P. 1066, 298 P. 905 (Or. 1931); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932). In re Bartlett, 168 B.R. 488 (Bankr. D. N.H. 1994) (holding that the homestead exemption ensures that families have shelter and that they are kept off welfare); In re McAtee, 154 B.R. 346 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the Florida homestead exemption promotes the stability and welfare of the state, encourages property ownership and independence, and preserves the home beyond the reach of economic misfortune); Colwell v. Royal Interstate Trading Co., 226 B.R. 714, 718 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1998) (Florida homestead exemption serves compelling public purpose of promoting stability and welfare of the state by securing to the householder a home, so that householder may live beyond reach of financial misfortune).

(n34)Footnote 1206. Hill v. First Nat'l Bank, 84 So. 190 (Fla. 1920); Smith v. Richey, 215 S.W. 429 (Ky. 1919); Bartold v. Lewandowska, 8 N.W.2d 133 (Mich. 1943); Mandan Merc. Co. v. Sexton, 151 N.W. 780 (N.D. 1915); Union Trust Co. v. Cox, 155 P. 206 (Okla. 1916); Field v. Goat, 173 P. 364 (Okla. 1918); Evans v. Jensen, 168 P. 762 (Utah 1917).

(n35)Footnote 1207. Reymond v. Louisiana Trust & Sav. Bank, 148 So. 663 (La. 1933).

(n36)Footnote 1208. Brooks v. Butler, 87 P.2d 1092 (Okla. 1939).

(n37)Footnote 1209. Yager v. Yager, 60 P.2d 422 (Cal. 1936). Tassone v. Tovar, 28 Cal. App. 4th 765 (1994) (holding that the law of fraudulent conveyances does not prohibit the debtor's homestead right, because the homestead is protected from creditors up to the value of the right); In re Miller, 174 B.R. 279 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding that fraudulent conveyance of remainder interest did not preclude life estate interest from qualifying as homestead); In re Lazin, 221 B.R. 982 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1998) (holding that there is no homestead exemption if the homestead was acquired with fraudulently obtained funds).

(n38)Footnote 1210. Hines v. Duncan, 79 Ala. 112 (1885); Cofer v. Scroggins, 13 So. 115 (Ala. 1893); Tumlinson v. Swinney, 22 Ark. 400 (1860); Merrill v. Harris, 46 S.W. 538 (Ark. 1898); Grimes v. Luster, 84 S.W. 223 (Ark. 1904); Montgomery v. Dane, 98 S.W. 715 (Ark. 1906); Keyes v. Cyrus, 34 P. 722 (Cal. 1893); Hoskins v. Litchfield, 31 Ill. 137 (1863); Ogden Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Mensch, 63 N.E. 1049 (Ill. 1902); Charless v. Lamberson, 1 Iowa 435 (1855); Parsons v. Livingston, 11 Iowa 104 (1855); Cross v. Benson, 75 P. 558 (Kan. 1904); Commonwealth v. Lay, 75 Ky. (12 Bush) 283 (1876); Jones v. Crawford, 84 S.W. 568 (Ky. 1905); Lyons v. Andry, 31 So. 38 (La. 1901); Bushnell v. Loomis, 137 S.W. 257 (Mo. 1911); Fogg v. Fogg, 40 N.H. 282 (1860); Weymouth v. Sanborn, 43 N.H. 171 (1861); Ness v. Jones, 88 N.W. 706 (N.D. 1901); Mandan Merc. Co. v. Sexton, 151 N.W. 780 (N.D. 1915); Thompson v. Marlin, 243 P. 950 (Okla. 1926); Linkenhoker v. Detrick, 81 Va. 44 (1885); Platto v. Cady, 12 Wis. 461 (1860); Warsco v. Oshkosh Sav. & Trust Co., 208 N.W. 886 (Wis. 1926); Schwitzke v. American Nat'l Bank, 8 N.W.2d 303 (Wis. 1943).

(n39)Footnote 1211. Woodward v. Peoples Nat'l Bank, 31 P. 184 (Colo. App. 1892); In re Wallace's Estate, 246 P.2d 894 (Colo. 1952); Hammond State Bank & Trust Co. v. Broderick, 154 So. 739 (La. 1934); Swift v. Reasonover, 77 S.W.2d 809 (Tenn. 1935); Clark v. Davis, 226 P.2d 904 (Wash. 1951).

A wife is an indispensable party defendant by reason of her homestead rights in her husband's land in an action affecting title in Texas. Wilson v. Mitchell, 299 S.W.2d 406 (Tex. Civ. App. 1957); People v. One Residence Located at 1403 East Parham Street, 621 N.E.2d 1026 (Ill. App. 1993) (holding that the purpose of the homestead exemption is to provide a shelter beyond the reach of improvidence or financial misfortune); In re Martin, 875 P.2d 417 (Okla. 1994) (holding that the purpose of the homestead exemption is to protect the family from improvidence and the urgent demands of creditors); Jackman v. Nance, 857 P.2d 7 (Nev. 1993) (holding that the purpose of the homestead exemption is to protect the family home regardless of financial distress, insolvency, or calamitous circumstances and to strengthen the family and the state); In re Meola, 158 B.R. 881 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the purpose of homestead provisions is to secure for the debtor a home for himself and his family, regardless of financial condition).

(n40)Footnote 1212. Deere v. Chapman, 25 Ill. 610 (1861); Sears v. Hanks, 14 Ohio St. 298 (1863); Gooch v. Gooch, 133 P. 242 (Okla. 1913).

(n41)Footnote 1213. McPhee v. O'Rourke, 15 P. 420 (Colo. 1887); Grace v. Grace, 104 N.W. 969 (Minn. 1905); Felder v. Felder, 13 So. 2d 823 (Miss. 1943); Paxton v. Sutton, 73 N.W. 221 (Neb. 1897); Sams v. Sampson, 255 S.W.2d 626 (Ky. 1953) (in Kentucky the husband is entitled to either curtesy or homestead but not both and is presumed to have taken homestead unless he elects to take curtesy).

(n42)Footnote 1214. Troutman v. Eichar, 28 N.E.2d 953 (Ohio App. 1940).

Texas has not determined whether the homestead exemption is an estate or a privilege. See Survivor's Options When Homestead Tract Exceeds Constitutional Limits, 26 Baylor L. Rev. 671 (1974); State v. Ten Acres of Land, 877 P.2d 597 (Okla. 1994) (holding that homestead provisions were created to protect the entire family and cannot be attached for the tort of one member).

(n43)Footnote 1215. Cowen v. Wassman, 28 N.E.2d 201 (Ohio App. 1939).

A homestead's value is determined by the equitable interests of the homesteader's premises, that is, a fair market value less outstanding encumbrances. Dallas Ceramic Co. v. Morgan, 560 P.2d 197 (Okla. 1977); In re McKinney-Jones, 219 B.R. 619, 621 (Bankr. W.D. Okla. 1998) (stating that purpose of Oklahoma's homestead exemption is to provide shelter from elements, not shelter from creditors).

(n44)Footnote 1216. 1018 3rd Street v. State, 331 S.W.2d 450 (Tex. Civ. App. 1959).

(n45)Footnote 1217. Schubel v. Bonacker, 331 S.W.2d 552 (Mo. 1960).

(n46)Footnote 1218. Dixon v. Moore, 356 N.E.2d 599 (Ill. 1976).

(n47)Footnote 1219. Evans v. Mills, 67 F.2d 840 (5th Cir. 1933); Closson v. Closson, 215 P. 485 (Wyo. 1923).

(n48)Footnote 1220. Jones v. Kemp, 144 F.2d 478 (8th Cir. 1944); Barbo v. Jeru, 119 N.W. 580 (Mich. 1909); Williams v. Williams, 184 N.W. 114 (Neb. 1921); In re Poli's Estate, 179 P.2d 704 (Wash. 1947).

(n49)Footnote 1221. Evans v. Mills, 67 F.2d 840 (5th Cir. 1933) (applying Texas law); Cullers v. James, 1 S.W. 314 (Tex. 1886).

In Massachusetts a homestead is a freehold estate defeasible only by deed with the wife joining or by acquiring a new homestead. Abbott v. Abbott, 97 Mass. 136 (1902); Paul v. Paul, 136 Mass. 286 (1884); also Browning v. Harris, 99 Ill. 456 (1881), but see Black v. Curran, 81 U.S. (14 Wall.) 463 (1871), construing the Illinois statute to create a mere right of occupancy and not a special type of estate in land. See also Flatt v. Mack Stadler Co., 84 Tenn. (16 Lea) 371 (1886).

(n50)Footnote 1222. Cherokee Constr. Co. v. Harris, 122 S.W. 485 (Ark. 1909); Taylor v. Hargous, 4 Cal. 268

(1854); Lubbock v. McMann, 22 P. 1145 (Cal. 1889); In re Wallace's Estate, 246 P.2d 894 (Colo. 1952) (in Colorado the surviving spouse may assert the homestead interest against the heirs as well as creditors and, thus, it is a special estate in land); Browning v. Harris, 99 Ill. 456 (1881); Gillespie v. Fulton Oil & Gas Co., 86 N.E. 219 (Ill. 1908); Wiegand v. Wiegand, 103 N.E.2d 137 (Ill. 1951); Pratt v. Pratt, 37 N.E. 435 (Mass. 1894); Riggs v. Sterling, 27 N.W. 705 (Mich. 1886); Wyatt v. Bauer, 332 S.W.2d 301 (Mo. App. 1960) (in Missouri the homestead allowance in real property is an estate in fee simple and may be partitioned); Dorrington v. Meyers, 9 N.W. 555 (Neb. 1881); Williams v. Williams, 184 N.W. 114 (Neb. 1921); Poe v. Hardie, 65 N.C. 447 (1871); Abbott v. Cromartie, 72 N.C. 292 (1875); Woods v. Alvarado State Bank, 19 S.W.2d 35 (Tex. 1929); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932); W. T. Rawleigh Co. v. Blackwell, 48 S.W.2d 754 (Tex. Civ. App. 1932); White v. Blackman, 168 S.W.2d 531 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942) (holding the right a life estate created by operation of law); Travelers Ins. Co. v. Nauert, 200 S.W.2d 661 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Closson v. Closson, 215 P. 485 (Wyo. 1923).

The widows' homestead rights apply to royalties from mineral leases under the open mine doctrine. Thompson v. Thompson, 236 S.W.2d 779 (Tex. 1951).

See Woodward, The Homestead Exemption: A Continuing Need for Constitutional Revision, 35 Tex. L. Rev. 1047. In re Miller, 174 B.R. 279 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding that the Illinois homestead right is an estate in the lot of ground and the buildings to which the right attaches).

(n51)Footnote 1223. In re Gibson, 33 F. Supp. 838 (D. Ky. 1940); Holmes v. Grange Fraternal Fire Ins. Ass'n, 228 P.2d 889 (Cal. App. 1951); In re Noble's Estate, 73 So. 2d 873 (Fla. 1954) (homestead is a matter of status not title to realty); Postlethwaite v. Edson, 171 P. 769 (Kan. 1917); Turner v. Browning, 107 S.W. 318 (Ky. 1908); Demarest v. Allen, 224 S.W. 458 (Ky. 1920); Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927); First Nat'l Bank v. Oliver, 150 S.W.2d 894 (Ky. 1941); Speyrer v. Miller, 32 So. 524 (La. 1902); Curriery v. Sutherland, 54 N.H. 475 (1874); Thompson v. Marlin, 243 P. 950 (Okla. 1926); Mercer v. McKeel, 108 P.2d 138 (Okla. 1940); In re Doody's Estate, 313 P.2d 444 (Or. 1957) (in Oregon a homestead is a personal privilege, not an estate, and must be claimed to be effective). Carey v. Carey, 43 S.W.2d 498 (Tenn. 1931); Roberson v. Home Owners' Loan Corp., 147 S.W.2d 949 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Radtke v. Radtke, 19 N.W.2d 169 (Wis. 1945).

Homestead is a matter of status not title to realty. Wakeman v. Noble, 73 So. 2d 873 (Fla. 1954).

Homestead is not an estate but a mere privilege or exemption attached to such estate as the debtor has. Bush v. Shepherd, 205 P.2d 842 (Or. 1949).

In California a homestead right is not a fundamental vested constitutional right but one which exists only when the property owner files the required declaration; until he does so he has no vested right. Taylor v. Madigan, 126 Cal. Rptr. 376 (1975).

In Illinois a homestead holder is a possessor of freehold estate up to the statutory amount and he is not merely a holder of a mere personal right of occupancy. Dickson v. Moller, 356 N.E.2d 599 (Ill. App. 1976).

(n52)Footnote 1224. Nolen v. East, 61 So. 261 (Ala. 1913). Estate of Kruegel, 545 N.W.2d 684 (Minn. App. 1996) (noncontiguous woodlots were not part of the homestead).

(n53)Footnote 1225. Rash v. Bogart, 146 So. 814 (Ala. 1933); Majors v. Killian, 162 So. 289 (Ala. 1935).

(n54)Footnote 1226. Demarest v. Allen, 224 S.W. 458 (Ky. 1920).

(n55)Footnote 1227. Demarest v. Allen, 224 S.W. 458 (Ky. 1920); Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927). See also Tennessee, Hamilton Nat'l Bank v. Woods, 217 S.W.2d 14 (Tenn. App. 1948).

(n56)Footnote 1228. Bishop v. Johnson, 7 So. 2d 281 (Ala. 1942).

(n57)Footnote 1229. Hill v. First Nat'l Bank, 84 So. 190 (Fla. 1920); 20 A.L.R. 270.

See J. Allen Maines and Donn Litman Maines, Our Legal Champion Revisited: Florida's Homestead Exemption, 30 U. Fla. L. Rev. 227 (1978).

(n58)Footnote 1230. In re Noble's Estate, 73 So. 2d 873 (Fla. 1954).

(n59)Footnote 1231. Tomlinson v. Kandiyohi County Bank, 202 N.W. 494 (Minn. 1925).

(n60)Footnote 1232. Thomas v. Blair, 93 So. 704 (Ala. 1922).

(n61)Footnote 1233. Hibbs v. City Nat'l Bank, 293 S.W. 350 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Mikulenka v. Mikulenka, 168 S.W.2d 517 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

A wife's homestead is a property and not a personal right and carries an interest in the minerals but may be abandoned by her. Crews v. General Crude Oil Co., 287 S.W.2d 243 (Tex. Civ. App. 1955); Sparks v. Robertson, 203 S.W.2d 622 (Tex. Civ. App. 1947) (life estate).

(n62)Footnote 1234. In re Banfield's Estate, 296 P. 1066, 298 P. 905 (Or. 1931).

Homesteads are not descendible, see Stephens v. Campbell, 70 So. 2d 579 (Fla. 1954); DeJonge v. Wayne, 76 So. 2d 273 (Fla. 1954).

(n63)Footnote 1235. Black v. Curran, 81 U.S. (14 Wall.) 463 (1871); Bushnell v. Loomis, 137 S.W. 257 (Mo. 1911); Abbott v. Cromartie, 72 N.C. 292 (1875); Stern v. Lee, 20 S.E. 736 (N.C. 1894); Ex parte Ray, 20 S.C. 246 (1883).

(n64)Footnote 1236. Johns v. Bowden, 66 So. 155 (Fla. 1914).

(n65)Footnote 1237. Pizzolato v. Fontenot, 147 La. 601 (1920).

(n66)Footnote 1238. Perley v. Woodbury, 78 A. 1073 (N.H. 1911); Thompson v. Marlin, 243 P. 950 (Okla. 1926).

Surviving spouse is entitled to a probate homestead if all children are adults. Luria v. Zucker, 488 P.2d 1159 (Nev. 1971).

A homestead's value is determined by the equitable interests of the homesteader's premises, that is, a fair market value less outstanding encumbrances. Dallas Ceramic Co. v. Morgan, 560 P.2d 197 (Okla. 1977).

(n67)Footnote 1239. Mansfield v. Hill, 107 P. 471, 108 P. 1007 (Or. 1910).

(n68)Footnote 1240. Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932).

(n69)Footnote 1241. Postlethwaite v. Edson, 171 P. 769 (Kan. 1917).

(n70)Footnote 1242. Kleinert v. Lefkowitz, 259 N.W. 871 (Mich. 1935); Ryan v. Colburn, 241 N.W. 388 (Minn. 1932).

(n71)Footnote 1243. Kleinschmidt Laboratories v. Kleinschmidt, 100 N.E.2d 796 (Ill. App. 1951).

Holding that noncontiguous lots may be exempt as a business homestead. Ford v. Aetna Ins. Co., 424 S.W.2d 612

(Tex. 1968).

(n72)Footnote 1244. Morris Inv. Co. v. Sheldon, 78 N.E.2d 504 (Ill. 1948).

(n73)Footnote 1245. Watt v. Watt, 78 N.E.2d 224 (Ill. 1948).

(n74)Footnote 1246. De Martini v. De Martini, 52 N.E.2d 138 (Ill. 1943).

(n75)Footnote 1247. Tooley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 121 F.2d 350 (9th Cir. 1941).

(n76)Footnote 1248. Holmes v. Grange Fraternal Fire Ins. Ass'n, 228 P.2d 889 (Cal. App. 1951).

(n77)Footnote 1249. Gledhill v. Walker, 55 N.E.2d 647 (Ohio St. 1944).

(n78)Footnote 1250. Wilson v. Rogers, 68 Ga. 549 (1882). See also Dewhurst v. Wright, 10 So. 682 (Fla. 1892).

(n79)Footnote 1251. Rich v. Ervin, 194 P.2d 809 (Cal. App. 1948).

(n80)Footnote 1252. Seaton v. Seaton, 34 S.E.2d 236 (Va. 1945).

The homestead statute in effect on the decedent's death controls the estate of the survivors. Mordecai v. Scott, 320 So. 2d 642 (Ala. 1975).

(n81)Footnote 1253. Floyd v. Wolfe, 117 N.W. 32 (Iowa 1908); Melton v. Beasley, 121 S.W. 574 (Tex. Civ App. 1909); Middleton v. Johnston, 110 S.W. 789 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908).

(n82)Footnote 1254. Rock v. Haas, 110 Ill. 528 (1884); De Martini v. De Martini, 52 N.E.2d 138 (Ill. 1943); Arnold v. Waltz, 6 N.W. 40 (Iowa 1880); Sheeby v. Scott, 104 N.W. 1139 (Iowa 1905); Weaver v. First Nat'l Bank, 94 P. 273 (Kan. 1907); Union Trust Co. v. Cox, 155 P. 206 (Okla. 1916); Greenshaw v. Brown, 219 P. 934 (Okla. 1923); Oklahoma State Bank v. Van Hassel, 114 P.2d 912 (Okla. 1941); Moyer v. Drummond, 10 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1890); Somers v. Somers, 131 N.W. 1091 (S.D. 1911).

(n83)Footnote 1255. Lobban v. Vander Vries Realty & Mtg. Co., 60 P.2d 933 (Ariz. 1936).

In Florida the test: (a) a legal duty to maintain arising out of family relationship or (b) a continuing communal living by at least two individuals under such circumstances that one is regarded as the person in charge or both. Brown v. Hutch, 156 So. 2d 683 (Fla. 1963).

(n84)Footnote 1256. Where wife's dependent mother was living with her, a "new" family for homestead purposes arose on divorce. Henry S. Miller Co. v. Shoaf, 434 S.W.2d 243 (Tex. Civ. App. 1968). In re Cate, 170 B.R. 582 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that under Texas homestead law the debtors and one of their elderly fathers who lived across the street from them qualified as a "family"). Border v. McDaniel, 70 F.3d 841 (5th Cir. 1995) (a widower with no dependent children was a "family" under Texas homestead law).

(n85)Footnote 1257. Moyer v. Drummond, 10 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1890).

(n86)Footnote 1258. Miller v. Finegan, 7 So. 140 (Fla. 1890); Bigelow v. Dunphe, 198 So. 13 (Fla. 1940); In re Roberts, 215 B.R. 197 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1997) (holding that a homestead exemption is granted to a married person solely on the basis of the marital status without regard to having non-spouse dependents and that the intent to sell the homestead property does not constitute abandonment of the homestead); In re Roberts, 219 B.R. 235 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 1998) (holding that marital status was sufficient despite fact that while they were married, they were also separated on petition date, had no children or other dependents living with them and neither qualified as "head of household," to claim Nebraska homestead exemption).

(n87)Footnote 1259. Lobban v. Vander Vries Realty & Mtg. Co., 60 P.2d 933 (Ariz. 1936); Rock Island Bank & Trust Co. v. Lamont, 198 N.E. 430 (Ill. 1935); McGookey v. Winter, 46 N.E.2d 84 (Ill. 1943); Sheeby v. Scott, 104 N.W. 1139 (Iowa 1905); Bosquett v. Hall, 13 S.W. 244 (Ky. 1890); Drought & Co. v. Stallworth, 100 S.W. 188 (Tex. Civ. App. 1907); NCNB Tex. Nat'l Bank v. Carpenter, 849 S.W.2d 875 (Tex. App. 1993) (holding that to establish a "family" for homestead purposes, the head of the family must have a legal or moral responsibility for the other members of the family and there must be a corresponding dependence of the others on the head of the family); In re Finkel, 151 B.R. 779 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that "family" under the homestead exemption laws requires the head of the family be morally or legally obligated to support one other member of the family and that there be a corresponding dependence in the supported member).

(n88)Footnote 1260. Hinds v. Buck, 150 S.W.2d 1071 (Tenn. 1941); Calhoun v. Williams, 32 Gratt 18 (Va. 1879).

(n89)Footnote 1261. Bosquett v. Hall, 13 S.W. 244 (Ky. 1890); Galligar v. Payne, 34 La. Ann. 1057 (1882); Hill v. Franklin, 54 Miss. 632 (1877); Mullins v. Looke, 27 S.W. 926 (Tex. Civ. App. 1894).

(n90)Footnote 1262. Holloway v. Holloway, 12 S.E. 943 (Ga. 1891); Cross v. Benson, 75 P. 558 (Kan. 1904); Ross v. Sweeney, 15 S.W. 357 (Ky. 1891); Broyles v. Cox, 54 S.W. 488 (Mo. 1899); Moyer v. Drummond, 10 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1890).

(n91)Footnote 1263. Revalk v. Kraemer, 8 Cal. 66 (1857); Gee v. Moore, 14 Cal. 472 (1859); Linton v. Crosby, 9 N.W. 311 (Iowa 1881); Cross v. Benson, 75 P. 558 (Kan. 1904); Hallauer v. Lackey, 188 S.W.2d 30 (Mo. 1945); Moyer v. Drummond, 10 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1890).

(n92)Footnote 1264. Sallee v. Waters, 17 Ala. 482 (1850); Lockhart v. Sasser, 22 So. 2d 763 (Fla. 1945); Howard v. Marshall, 48 Tex. 471 (1878).

(n93)Footnote 1265. Howard v. Marshall, 48 Tex. 471 (1878); Whitehead v. Nickelson, 48 Tex. 517 (1878).

(n94)Footnote 1266. Clendenning v. Parker, 231 P. 765 (Cal. App. 1924); Dicke v. Wagner, 70 N.W. 159 (Wis. 1897) (no homestead rights arise under putative marriage).

(n95)Footnote 1267. State v. Finn, 8 Mo. App. 261 (1880); Putman v. Southern Pac. Co., 27 P. 1033 (Or. 1891); In re Cate, 170 B.R. 582 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that under Texas homestead law the debtors and one of their elderly fathers who lived across the street from them qualified as a "family"); In re Miller, 157 B.R. 621 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 1993) (holding under Ohio homestead law, a debtor can claim homestead in the residence where his dependents live, even though he does not live there himself).

(n96)Footnote 1268. Rock v. Haas, 110 Ill. 528 (1884).

(n97)Footnote 1269. See Dendy v. Gamble, 64 Ga. 528 (1880).

(n98)Footnote 1270. Blue v. Blue, 38 Ill. 9 (1865); Bell v. Keach, 80 Ky. 42 (1882); Whitehead v. Tapp, 69 Mo. 415 (1879); Lane v. Phillips, 6 S.W. 610 (Tex. 1887).

(n99)Footnote 1271. Farmers Merc. Co. v. Guillory, 90 So. 222 (La. 1921).

(n100)Footnote 1272. Chesnut v. Specht, 272 S.W. 830 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925).

(n101)Footnote 1273. Hutchenrider v. Smith, 242 S.W. 204 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922). In re Finkel, 151 B.R. 779 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that "family" under Texas homestead law includes relationships between adult children and their parents).

(n102)Footnote 1274. Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Teich, 287 S.W. 666 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926).

(n103)Footnote 1275. Yadon v. Yadon, 151 S.W.2d 969 (Ark. 1941); In re McClain's Estate, 262 N.W. 666 (Iowa 1935).

(n104)Footnote 1276. Senegar v. La Vaughan, 230 S.W.2d 311 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950).

(n105)Footnote 1277. Dixon v. Moore, 356 N.E.2d 599 (Ill. 1976).

(n106)Footnote 1278. Filtsch v. Curtis, 234 P.2d 377 (Okla. 1950).

(n107)Footnote 1279. Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943).

(n108)Footnote 1280. Balcomb v. Vasquez, 241 S.W.2d 650 (Tex. Civ. App. 1951). Colwell v. Royal Interstate Trading Co., 226 B.R. 714 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1998) (holding that estranged husband and wife could still claim homestead rights in their properties despite residing in separate homes).

(n109)Footnote 1281. In re Beals, 1 F. Supp. 27 (D. Idaho 1932); McGookey v. Winter, 46 N.E.2d 84 (Ill. 1943); Hardin v. Howze, 18 S.C. 73 (1882).

Unmarried persons entitled to homestead. Monroe v. Monroe, 465 S.W.2d 347 (Ark. 1971).

(n110)Footnote 1282. In re Bordelon, 2 F.2d 164 (D. La. 1924), aff'd, 4 F.2d 285 (D. La. 1985) (father of minor); Gates v. Steele, 4 S.W. 53 (Ark. 1887); Fehd v. Oskaloosa, 117 N.W. 989 (Iowa 1908); Reymond v. Louisiana Trust & Sav. Bank, 148 So. 663 (La. 1933); Whitehead v. Tapp, 69 Mo. 415 (1879); Ness v. Jones, 88 N.W. 706 (N.D. 1901); Linander v. Longstaff, 63 N.W. 775 (S.D. 1895).

(n111)Footnote 1283. Pitman v. Moore, 43 Ill. 169 (1867); Holliman v. Smith, 39 Tex. 357 (1873).

(n112)Footnote 1284. Whidden v. Abbott, 168 So. 253 (Fla. 1936); Morehead v. Yongue, 183 So. 804 (Fla. 1938).

(n113)Footnote 1285. Whalen v. Cadman, 11 Iowa 226 (1860); Dorn v. Stidham, 137 S.E. 331 (S.C. 1927) (female); Collier v. Latimer, 67 Tenn. (8 Baxt.) 420 (1874); Oppenheim v. Myers, 39 S.E. 218 (Va. 1901); See Morley v. Morley, 230 P. 645 (Wash. 1924) (widower without dependents); Weitzner v. United States, 309 F.2d 45 (5th Cir. 1962) (wife's rights in the homestead are marital rather than property); Lambert v. Childs, 362 S.W.2d 10 (Ark. 1962) (wife's right in the homestead is that of occupancy and of veto against alienation); Anderson v. Anderson, 44 So. 2d 652 (Fla. 1950) (for homestead purposes).

(n114)Footnote 1286. Whitfield v. Peoples Union Bank & Trust Co., 73 S.W.2d 690 (Tenn 1934).

(n115)Footnote 1287. Jetton Lumber Co. v. Hall, 64 So. 440 (Fla. 1914); Green v. Simon, 46 N.E. 693 (Ind. App. 1897); Ginsberg v. Groner, 41 So. 569 Mennell v. Wells, 149 P. 954 (Mont. 1915); Frazier v. Syas, 4 N.W. 934 (Neb. 1880); Hamilton v. Fleming, 41 N.W. 1002 (Neb. 1889); First Nat'l Bank v. McClanahan, 120 N.W. 185 (Neb. 1909); Bonnel v. Dunn, 29 N.J.L. 435 (1860); Thompson v. Reynolds, 204 P. 516 (Utah 1922) (deserted wife).

(n116)Footnote 1288. Cordray v. Morgan, 95 P. 761 (Okla. 1908); Turner v. Argo, 14 S.W. 930 (Tenn. 1890).

(n117)Footnote 1289. Bigelow v. Dunphe, 198 So. 13 (Fla. 1940); Volker-Scowcroft Lumber Co. v. Vance, 88 P. 896 (Utah 1907).

(n118)Footnote 1290. Revalk v. Kraemer, 8 Cal. 66 (1857); Wike v. Garner, 53 N.E. 613 (Ill. 1899); Arnold v. Waltz, 6 N.W. 40 (Iowa 1880); Washington Bank & Trust Co. v. Carrier, 152 So. 560 (La. 1934) (widower with adult son and daughter who had left his home and were self-supporting); Broyles v. Cox, 54 S.W. 488 (Mo. 1899); Moyer v. Drummond, 10 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1890); Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Teich, 287 S.W. 666 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926) (woman supporting helpless invalid adult sister); Bunker v. Coons, 60 P. 549 (Utah 1900). In re Finkel, 151 B.R. 779 (Bankr.

W.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that "head of family" under Texas homestead law must be obligated to furnish moral or financial support, rather than receive it); In re Bartlett, 153 B.R. 881 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1993) (holding that under the Nebraska homestead exemption the "head of family" must have residing with him a family member who is under his care and maintenance).

(n119)Footnote 1291. Blackwell v. Broughton, 56 Ga. 390 (1876).

(n120)Footnote 1292. McClelland v. Schmidt, 110 P. 901 (Okla. 1910).

(n121)Footnote 1293. In re Mussey, 179 F. 1007 (D. Tex. 1910); Roberts v. Thomas, 48 So. 408 (Miss. 1909); See Gammon v. McDowell, 298 S.W. 34 (Mo. 1927) (widower without children or other dependents).

(n122)Footnote 1294. McNichols v. McNichols, 132 N.E. 448 (Ill. 1921) (widowed mother); American Nat'l Bank v. Wetherell, 200 N.W. 221 (Iowa 1924) (widowed mother); Carle v. Bamberger, 158 P. 599 (Okla. 1916).

(n123)Footnote 1295. First Nat'l Bank v. Sokolski, 150 S.W. 312 (Tex. Civ. App. 1913).

(n124)Footnote 1296. Rountree v. Dennard, 59 Ga. 629 (1877).

(n125)Footnote 1297. In re Mussey, 179 F. 1007 (D. Tex. 1910).

(n126)Footnote 1298. Talamantes v. Flores, 290 S.W. 791 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926) (bachelor). In re Richard, 165 B.R. 641 (Bankr. W.D. Ark. 1994) (holding that under Arkansas homestead law a debtor who was not married and had no dependents, could not claim a homestead); In re Bartlett, 153 B.R. 881 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1993) (holding that the Nebraska homestead exemption may only be claimed by a married individual or a head of family).

(n127)Footnote 1299. Wagener v. Parrott, 29 S.E. 240 (S.C. 1898).

(n128)Footnote 1300. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Guillory, 145 So. 6 (La. 1932)

Texas has extended the homestead exemption to single adults. See Lynda Beck Fenwick, Effects of Extending the Homestead Exemption to Single Adults, 26 Baylor L. Rev. 658 (1974).

(n129)Footnote 1301. Tanton v. State Nat'l Bank, 43 S.W.2d 957 (Tex. Civ. App. 1931).

(n130)Footnote 1302. Zuniga v. Evans, 48 P.2d 513 (Utah 1935).

A surviving husband is entitled to a homestead allowance from separate estate of the deceased wife even though he had sufficient property to prevent dependency on his part. In re Boston's Estate, 491 P.2d 1033 (Wash. 1971).

(n131)Footnote 1303. In re Hawthorne, 45 F. Supp. 374 (D. Tex. 1942).

(n132)Footnote 1304. Jones v. Kemp, 144 F.2d 478 (10th Cir. 1944).

The fact that widow was not living with homesteader at time of his death did not affect her possessory right. Hammond v. Shipp, 289 So. 2d 802 (Ala. 1974).

(n133)Footnote 1305. Yadon v. Yadon, 151 S.W.2d 969 (Ark. 1941).

(n134)Footnote 1306. Lyons v. Adams, 99 S.W. 900 (Ky. 1907); Meyer Bros. Drug Co. v. Fly, 68 So. 227 (Miss. 1913); Prater v. Prater, 9 S.W. 361 (Tenn. 1888). In re Brink, 162 B.R. 355 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that residents of North Carolina were entitled to North Carolina exemptions, not Florida exemptions); In re Fromal, 151 B.R. 730 (Bankr. E.D. Va. 1993) (holding that the Virginia homestead exemption is available to any resident of Virginia, regardless of whether he is a wage earner). Contra In re Coplan, 156 B.R. 88 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that Florida residents could only claim Wisconsin homestead exemption when their residency in Florida was only an effort to maximize the Florida exemption).

(n135)Footnote 1307. In re Bartlett, 153 B.R. 881 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1993) (holding that although an unmarried debtor must be a head of family to claim a homestead exemption, he does not need to be a head of family at the time he claims the exemption).

(n136)Footnote 1308. Florida Nat'l Bank v. Winn, 30 So. 2d 298 (Fla. 1947).

(n137)Footnote 1309. Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943).

(n138)Footnote 1310. Shambow's Estate, 15 So. 2d 837 (Fla. 1943).

(n139)Footnote 1311. Ratliff v. Smith, 178 S.W.2d 138 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

(n140)Footnote 1312. In re Crum, 221 F. 729 (D. Ohio 1913); In re Hawthorne, 45 F. Supp. 374 (D. Tex. 1942); In re Tognetti, 57 F. Supp. 286 (N.D. Cal. 1944); In re Shelton, 102 F. Supp. 629 (W.D. Wash. 1952); In re Mapes, 120 F. Supp. 316 (S.D. Cal. 1954); Bank of Sun Prairie v. Hovig, 218 F. Supp. 769 (W.D. Ark. 1963); Boyte v. Perkins, 99 So. 652 (Ala. 1924); First Nat'l Bank v. Reeves, 234 P. 556 (Ariz. 1925); Yadon v. Yadon, 151 S.W.2d 969 (Ark. 1941); Thorsby v. Babcock, 222 P.2d 863 (Cal. 1950); Harlan v. Schulze, 94 P. 379 (Cal. App. 1908); Vincenzini v. Fiorentini, 38 P.2d 876 (Cal. App. 1934); Arighi v. Rule & Sons, 107 P.2d 970 (Cal. App. 1940); Parker v. Riddell, 108 P.2d 88 (Cal. App. 1940); Feintech v. Weaver, 122 P.2d 606 (Cal. App. 1942); Oktanski v. Burn, 291 P.2d 954 (Cal. App. 1956); Edson-Keith & Co. v. Bedwell, 122 P. 392 (Colo. 1912); Brooks v. Black, 123 P. 131 (Colo. App. 1912); Jones v. Carpenter, 106 So. 127 (Fla. 1925), 43 A.L.R. 1409. Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943); Richards v. Byrnes, 15 So. 2d 610 (Fla. 1943); Marsh v. Hartley, 109 So. 2d 34 (Fla. 1959); Fardal v. Satre, 206 N.W. 22 (Iowa 1925); Hunt, Hill & Betts v. Moore, 258 N.W. 114 (Iowa 1934); Elliott v. Till, 259 N.W. 460 (Iowa 1935); In re McClain's Estate, 262 N.W. 666 (Iowa 1935); Millsap v. Faulkes, 20 N.W.2d 40 (Iowa 1945); Howell v. McCrie, 14 P. 257 (Kan. 1887); Anderson v. Shannon, 73 P.2d 5 (Kan. 1937); Hawkins v. State Social Welfare Board, 84 P.2d 930 (Kan. 1938); In re Dittemore's Estate, 106 P.2d 1056 (Kan. 1940); State ex rel. Apt v. Mitchell, 399 P.2d 556 (Kan. 1965) (padlocking property under a common nuisance statute cannot be invoked against a homestead); Richardson v. Richardson, 67 S.W.2d 7 (Ky. 1934); Reske v. Reske, 16 N.W. 895 (Mich. 1883); Bartold v. Lewandowska, 8 N.W.2d 133 (Mich. 1943); Jaenicke v. Fountain City Drill Co., 119 N.W. 60 (Minn. 1909); Mulroy v. Sioux Falls Trust & Sav. Bank, 206 N.W. 461 (Minn. 1925); Jensen v. Christensen, 11 N.W.2d 798 (Minn. 1943); Application of Hickman, 23 N.W.2d 593 (Minn. 1946); Gardner v. Cook, 158 So. 150 (Miss. 1934); Dogan v. Cooley, 185 So. 783 (Miss. 1939); Keeline v. Sealy, 165 S.W. 1088 (Mo. 1914); Dennis v. Gorman, 233 S.W. 50 (Mo. 1921); Hallauer v. Lackey, 188 S.W.2d 30 (Mo. 1945); In re Clute's Estate, 161 S.W.2d 705 (Mo. App. 1942); Oregon Mtg. Co. v. Dunbar, 289 P. 559 (Mont. 1930); First Nat'l Bank v. McClanahan, 120 N.W. 185 (Neb. 1909); J.H. Melville Lumber Co. v. Maroney, 16 N.W.2d 527 (Neb. 1944); Sanne v. Sanne, 94 N.W.2d 367 (Neb. 1959); McGill v. Lewis, 116 P.2d 581 (Nev. 1941); Kelly v. McLeod, 81 S.E. 455 (N.C. 1914); Conlon v. Dickinson, 5 N.W.2d 411 (N.D. 1942); Larson v. Cole, 33 N.W.2d 325 (N.D. 1948); Troutman v. Eichar, 28 N.E.2d 953 (Ohio App. 1940); New Martinsville Groc. Co. v. Hannibal Store Co., 29 N.E.2d 226 (Ohio App. 1940); First Nat'l Bank v. Burnett, 254 P. 95 (Okla. 1927); De Haven & Son Hdwe. Co. v. Schultz, 259 P. 778 (Or. 1927); In re Banfield's Estate, 296 P. 1066 (Or. 1931); In re Laughlin's Estate, 134 P.2d 961 (Or. 1943); Baker v. De Witt, 138 S.E. 626 (S.C. 1927); Jackson v. Shelton, 16 S.W. 142 (Tenn. 1890); Whiteman v. Burkey, 282 S.W. 788 (Tex. 1926); Woods v. Alvarado State Bank, 19 S.W.2d 35 (Tex. 1929); Cocke v. Conquest, 35 S.W.2d 673 (Tex. 1931); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932); Goldburg Co. v. Slayer, 50 S.E.2d 272 (Va. 1948); Security Nat'l Bank v. Mason, 200 P. 1097 (Wash. 1921); Kelley v. Butler, 47 P.2d 664 (Wash. 1935); State ex rel. White v. Douglas, 107 P.2d 593 (Wash 1940); Northwestern Secs. Co. v. Nelson, 211 N.W. 798 (Wis. 1927); Sheldon v. Johnston, 8 N.W.2d 269 (Wis. 1943).

Homestead statutes to be liberally construed in favor of the exemption. In re Marriage of Turney, 263 N.W.2d 533 (Iowa 1978).

See Chuck Adams, California's New Homestead Law, 64 Cal. L. Rev. 180 (1976); Leslie J. Gross & Melvin E. Weinstein, Probate Code Impact on Homestead Real Property, 49 Fl. B. J. 432 (1975). In re Lloyd, 37 F.3d 271 (7th Cir. 1994) (holding that the Wisconsin homestead statute is liberally construed in favor of debtors); In re Jackson, 169 B.R. 742 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that the Florida homestead exemption is liberally construed to protect the family home); In re Hughes, 166 B.R. 957 (Bankr. E.D. Okla. 1994) (holding that the Oklahoma homestead laws are liberally construed in harmony with the beneficent spirit by which they were enacted); In re Martin, 875 P.2d 417 (Okla. 1994) (holding that exemption laws, including the homestead exemption are liberally construed in harmony with the beneficent spirit of protecting the family home); In re Major, 166 B.R. 457 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that the Florida Constitution's homestead provision should be liberally construed to protect the family home); In re Snape, 166 B.R. 184 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that the Florida homestead exemption should be liberally construed in favor of those it benefits); In re Peters, 168 B.R. 710 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1994) (holding that the Idaho homestead exemption is liberally construed in favor of the debtor); In re Garcia, 168 B.R. 403 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 1994) (holding that the Arizona homestead exemption is liberally construed in favor of debtors); In re Mirulla, 163 B.R. 910 (Bankr. D. N.H. 1994) (holding that the New Hampshire homestead exemption is liberally construed); In re Brink, 162 B.R. 355 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the homestead provision of the Florida Constitution is liberally construed in favor debtor and its purpose is to protect the family home); In re Jefferson, 163 B.R. 204 (Bankr. D. N.M. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption is construed liberally in favor of the debtor); In re Curry, 160 B.R. 813 (Bankr. D. Minn. 1993) (holding that the Minnesota homestead exemption is construed liberally in favor of the debtor); In re Dudeney, 159 B.R. 1003 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the Florida homestead exemption is broadly interpreted); People v. One Residence Located at 1403 East Parham Street, 621 N.E.2d 1026 (Ill. App. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption is liberally construed to fulfill its remedial purpose); Moore v. Krueger, 507 N.W.2d 155 (Wis. App. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption is interpreted liberally to protect debtors from judgment liens levied on their homes); In re Mangano, 158 B.R. 532 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that Florida homestead exemption is liberally construed in favor of the debtor); In re Galvin, 158 B.R. 806 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 1993) (holding that the Missouri homestead exemption is construed with great liberality); In re Donaldson, 156 B.R. 51 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1993) (holding that the California homestead law should be interpreted in the broadest manner to accomplish its benevolent purpose); In re Betancourt, 154 B.R. 90 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the Florida homestead exemption is liberally construed to protect the debtor); In re Henderson, 168 B.R. 151 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that the Texas homestead exemption is liberally interpreted); In re Laube, 152 B.R. 260 (Bankr. W.D. Wis. 1993) (holding that the Wisconsin homestead exemption enjoys liberal construction); In re Koopal, 226 B.R. 888 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1998) (homestead exemption statutes are to be liberally construed in favor of debtor); In re Beebe, 224 B.R. 817 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1998). See also In re Trigonis, 224 B.R. 152 (Bankr. D. Nev. 1998); In re Lewis, 216 B.R. 644 (Bankr. N.D. Okla. 1998); In re Hankell, 223 B.R. 728 (Bankr. D. N.D. 1998); In re Lee, 223 B.R. 594 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1998).

(n141)Footnote 1313. Long Bell Lumber Co. v. Miller, 240 S.W.2d 405 (Tex. Civ. App. 1951).

An executory agreement to waive a homestead exemption, in consideration of an indemnity agreement, is contrary to public policy. Iowa Mut. Ins. Co. v. Parr, 370 P.2d 400 (Kan. 1962).

(n142)Footnote 1314. Cockran v. Cutler, 350 N.E.2d 59 (Ill. 1976).

(n143)Footnote 1315. In re Snape, 172 B.R. 361 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that Florida homestead provision was not preempted by the federal Bankruptcy Code and that the provision did not deprive creditors of property without due process); Cerny v. Salter, 429 S.E.2d 809 (S.C. 1993) (holding that South Carolina homestead law did not violate creditors' due process or equal protection rights under the state or federal constitutions); In re Hughes, 172 B.R. 205 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that the retroactive application of the Texas business homestead exemption does not violate the due process right or impair the obligation of contract protected under the United States Constitution).

(n144)Footnote 1316. Ramsey v. Lake County, 14 N.W.2d 125 (S.D. 1944). Miami Country Day Sch. v. Bakst, 641 So. 2d 467 (Fla. App. 1994) (holding that homestead exemption are liberally construed in favor of the debtor); In re Bartlett, 168 B.R. 488 (Bankr. D. N.H. 1994) (holding that remedial laws, including increases in homestead exemption, should be construed in favor of the intended beneficiaries); Jackman v. Nance, 857 P.2d 7 (Nev. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption is construed liberally in favor of those who were intended to benefit by its enactment).

(n145)Footnote 1317. Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932). Jackman v. Nance, 857 P.2d 7 (Nev. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption is limited or extended by the provisions creating it).

(n146)Footnote 1318. Horn v. Gates, 53 N.W.2d 84 (Neb. 1952); In re Banfield's Estate, 296 P. 1066, 298 P. 905 (Or. 1931). In re Nerios, 171 B.R. 224 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that the Texas homestead exemption should be liberally construed, but could only protect property that was homestead); In re Galvin, 158 B.R. 806 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 1993) (holding that the Missouri homestead exemption is construed with great liberality, but that the liberality cannot go beyond the spirit and purpose of the law and that parties must bring themselves under the exemption's protection); In re Martin, 875 P.2d 417 (Okla. 1994) (holding that forcible sale of homestead is prohibited except in specifically enumerated exceptions found in statute and constitution).

(n147)Footnote 1319. First State Bank v. Fischer, 272 N.W. 752 (N.D. 1937). Contra People v. One Residence Located at 1403 East Parham Street, 621 N.E.2d 1026 (Ill. App. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption applies to forfeiture under the state's controlled substances act and to other involuntary takings); State ex rel. Means v. Ten Acres of Land, 877 P.2d 597 (Okla. 1994) (holding that homestead could not be forfeited under state's controlled substances act).

(n148)Footnote 1320. Enosburg Falls Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. McKinney, 44 P.2d 987 (Okla. 1935); In re Glaze, 169 B.R. 956 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 1994) (holding that the Arizona homestead provision is not limitless and equitable principles may be considered in its application); In re Wierschem, 152 B.R. 345 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the Florida homestead exemption is subject to equitable considerations).

(n149)Footnote 1321. In re Rippa, 180 F. 603 (D. Fla. 1909); King v. Sweatt, 115 F. Supp. 215 (W.D. Ark. 1953); Milton v. Milton, 58 So. 718 (Fla. 1912); Jones v. Carpenter, 106 So. 127 (Fla. 1925); Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943); Floyd County v. Wolfe, 117 N.W. 32 (Iowa 1908); Mounger v. Gandy, 69 So. 817 (Miss. 1915); Engholm v. Ekrem, 119 N.W. 35 (N.D. 1908); Baker v. De Witt, 138 S.E. 626 (S.C. 1927).

See Truelsch v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 202 N.W. 352 (Wis. 1925). In re Brown, 165 B.R. 512 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that the Florida homestead exemption should be liberally construed, but should not become an instrument of fraud); In re Meola, 158 B.R. 881 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that homestead provisions should be liberally construed but should not become instruments of fraud, impositions on creditors, or the means to escape honest debts); Palm Beach Savings & Loan Ass'n v. Fishbein, 619 So. 2d 267 (Fla. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption should be used as a shield, not a sword); In re Thomas, 172 B.R. 673 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that conversion of assets with the intent to defraud creditors is adequate ground to disallow homestead); Bransom v. Standard Hardware, Inc., 874 S.W.2d 919 (Tex. App. 1994) (holding that constitutional homestead exemption was never meant to protect stolen funds). However, the law of fraudulent conveyances does not generally prohibit a debtor's homestead right. Tassone v. Tovar, 28 Cal. App. 4th 765 (1994) (holding that the law of fraudulent conveyances does not prohibit the debtor's homestead right, because the homestead is protected from creditors up to the value of the right); In re Beebe, 224 B.R. 817 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1998) (stating that liberal application of homestead exemption statute is limited to prevent it from becoming an instrument of fraud).

(n150)Footnote 1322. Davis v. Davis, 23 So. 2d 651 (La. App. 1945); see Beatty v. Wardell, 105 N.W. 357 (Iowa 1905).

(n151)Footnote 1323. United States v. Lot Five, Fox Grove, Alachua County, Fla., 23 F.3d 359 (11th Cir. 1994)

(holding that federal civil forfeiture law preempted the Florida homestead provision); In re Bedell, 173 B.R. 463 (Bankr. W.D.N.Y. 1994) (holding that the federal Bankruptcy Code requires that the debtor receive the homestead exemption from the proceeds of a voluntary sale, even though New York law has no such provisions for voluntary sales); United States v. One Single Family Residence, 13 F.3d 1493 (11th Cir. 1994) (holding that federal gambling statute preempted Florida homestead exemption); In re Mershman, 158 B.R. 698 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 1993) (holding that debtor under federal Bankruptcy Code could claim joint homestead exemption unauthorized by state statute). Contra First Gibraltar Bank v. Morales, No. 93-8170, 1995 WL 2232 (5th Cir. 1995) (holding that federal Home Owners' Loan Act, as amended, did not preempt the Texas homestead provision, making it effective within federal banking regulation); In re Snape, 172 B.R. 361 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that the Florida homestead provision was not preempted by the federal Bankruptcy Code); Auclair v. Sher, 866 F. Supp. 322 (W.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that even though federal criminal restitution statute attached to all property, even that exempted by states, crime victims could not enforce their judgment against defendant's homestead property).

(n152)Footnote 1324. Cook v. McChristian, 4 Cal. 23 (1854); Moss v. Warner, 10 Cal. 296 (1858).

(n153)Footnote 1325. Gerson & Son v. Gayle, 34 La. Ann. 337 (1882). See Dyson Descendant Corp. v. Sonat Exploration Co., 861 S.W.2d 942 (Tex. App. 1993) (holding that wife's failure to sign homestead deed did not invalidate it because in 1837 the law did not require the wife to sign).)

(n154)Footnote 1326. See Brown v. Harding, 86 S.E. 1010, 89 S.E. 222 (N.C. 1915); In re Morzella, 171 B.R. 485 (Bankr. D. Conn. 1994) (holding that Connecticut's homestead exemption applies to claims or obligations arising on or after the exemption's effective date); Cerny v. Salter, 429 S.E.2d 809 (S.C. 1993) (holding that South Carolina homestead law did not violate creditors' due process right under the state or federal constitutions, because it was not retroactive, since the legislature had only renumbered and made slight grammatical changes to the previous statute); In re Toronto, 165 B.R. 746 (Bankr. D. Conn. 1994) (holding that the plain language of the Connecticut homestead exemption supports prospective application only); Boudreaux Civic Ass'n v. Cox, 882 S.W.2d 543 (Tex. App. 1994) (holding that homestead exemption will not defeat rights existing before homestead declaration). Contra In re Hughes, 172 B.R. 205 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that the retroactive application of the Texas business homestead exemption does not violate the due process right protected under the United States Constitution).

(n155)Footnote 1327. Gallagher v. Smiley, 44 N.W. 187 (Neb. 1889); Batcheder v. Fottler, 62 N.H. 445 (1883).

(n156)Footnote 1328. Towle v. Towle, 107 P. 228 (Kan. 1910).

(n157)Footnote 1329. Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U.S. 595 (1877); Preiss v. Campbell, 59 Ala. 635 (1877); Long v. Brown, 89 So. 614 (Ala. 1921); Lindsay v. Norrill, 36 Ark. 545 (1880); In re Rauer's Collection Co., 196 P.2d 803 (Cal. App. 1948); Shipp v. Smith, 76 Ga. 1 (1885); Herrington v. Godbee, 121 S.E. 312 (Ga. 1924); Foster v. Byrne, 35 N.W. 513, 41 N.W. 22 (Iowa 1887); Root v. McGrew, 3 Kan. 215 (1865); Kibbey v. Jones, 70 Ky. (7 Bush) 243 (1870); Poole v. Cook, 34 La. Ann. 331 (1882); Wildes v. Van Voorhis, 81 Mass. (15 Gray) 139 (1860); Dunn v. Stevens, 64 N.W. 924, 65 N.W. 348 (Minn. 1895); Lessley v. Phipps, 49 Miss. 790 (1874); McCreight v. W. W. Scales & Co., 99 So. 257 (Miss. 1924); Shipman v. Fitzpatrick, 164 S.W.2d 912 (Mo. 1942); Leak v. Gay, 12 S.E. 312 (N.C. 1890); Kerr v. Garrison, 223 P. 609 (Okla. 1924); Norton v. Bradham, 21 S.C. 375 (1884); Leonard v. Mason, 69 Tenn. 1 Lea 384 (1878); Wright v. Straub, 64 Tex. 64 (1885); In re Homestead Cases, 22 Gratt. 266 (Va. 1872); Morley v. Morley, 230 P. 645 (Wash. 1924).In re Morzella, 171 B.R. 485 (Bankr. D. Conn. 1994) (holding that Connecticut's homestead exemption applies to claims or obligations arising on or after the exemption's effective date).

(n158)Footnote 1330. Sneider v. Heidelberger, 45 Ala. 126 (1871); Hardeman v. Downer, 39 Ga. 425 (1869); Doughty v. Sheriff, 27 La. Ann. 355 (1875); Barrett v. Richardson, 76 N.C. 429 (1877); In re Kennedy, 2 S.C. 216 (1870); In re Bartlett, 168 B.R. 488 (Bankr. D. N.H. 1994) (holding that the amended New Hampshire homestead statute, which increased the exemption amount, had retroactive effect, applying to cases filed after the enactment of the amendment, rather than only to debts incurred after the enactment); In re Morgan, 157 B.R. 467 (Bankr. C.D. Cal.

1993) (holding that amendment increasing the homestead exemption did not apply to liens obtained before the amendment's operative date).

(n159)Footnote 1331. Horbach v. Smiley, 74 N.W. 623 (Neb. 1898); Trimmier v. Winsmith, 19 S.E. 283 (S.C. 1894); Stewart v. Blalock, 22 S.E. 774 (S.C. 1895); McClenaghan v. McEachern, 25 S.E. 296 (S.C. 1896); Moore v. Krueger, 507 N.W.2d 155 (Wis. App. 1993) (holding that the availability of the homestead exemption from a judgment lien is determined at the time the judgment is docketed).

(n160)Footnote 1332. Wilder v. Scott, 89 So. 2d 682 (Ala. 1956).

(n161)Footnote 1333. Dickson v. Moller, 356 N.E.2d 599 (Ill. App. 1976); In re Glaze, 169 B.R. 956 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 1994) (holding that the purpose of the Arizona homestead law is to protect family and guarantee them shelter). See Jordan B. Cherrick, The Homestead Act: An Independent Law to Protect the Family but a Law in Need of Reform, 65 Mass. L. Rev. 175, 182 (July-Oct. 1980).

(n162)Footnote 1334. Rider v. Rider, 887 S.W.2d 255 (Tex. App. 1994) (holding that property located in Mississippi could not be protected by the homestead provision of the Texas Constitution).

(n163)Footnote 1335. See in general: In re Walicek, 4 F.2d 265 (D. Tex. 1925); McCrae v. Felder, 12 F.2d 554 (4th Cir. 1926); Motley v. Jones, 13 So. 782 (Ala. 1893); Claborne v. Nichols, 85 So. 415 (Ala. 1920); Davis v. Harris, 101 So. 458 (Ala. 1924); First Nat'l Bank v. Reeves, 234 P. 556 (Ariz. 1925); Keesee v. Bushart, 158 S.W.2d 915 (Ark. 1942); Security Loan & Trust Co. v. Kauffman, 41 P. 467 (Cal. 1895); Rosenthal v. Merced Bank, 42 P. 640 (Cal. 1895); Santa Barbara Lumber Co. v. Ross, 192 P. 436 (Cal. 1920); Michels v. Burkhard, 190 P. 370 (Cal. App. 1920); Olds v. Thorington, 190 P. 496 (Cal. App. 1920); Carey v. Douthitt, 35 P.2d 632 (Cal. App. 1934); Snyder v. Pine Grove Lumber Co., 105 P.2d 369 (Cal. App. 1940); Coca Cola Bottling Co. v. Feliciano, 114 P.2d 604 (1941); Crawford v. Felkey, 216 P. 520 (Colo. 1923); Smith v. St. Petersburg Novelty Works, 113 So. 769 (Fla. 1927); Byrd v. Olmstead, 105 S.E. 480 (Ga. 1921); Caraker v. Brown, 111 S.E. 51 (Ga. 1922); Powell v. Powell, 127 S.E. 117 (Ga. 1925); Rogers v. Kimsey, 135 S.E. 497 (Ga. 1926); Smith v. Exchange Bank, 103 S.E. 99 (Ga. App. 1920); Burbank v. Kirby, 55 P. 295 (Idaho 1898); Oylear v. Oylear, 208 P. 857 (Idaho 1922); Logue v. Von Almen, 40 N.E.2d 73 (Ill. 1941); Evans v. Evans, 210 N.W. 564 (Iowa 1926); Commercial Sav. Bank v. McLaughlin, 214 N.W. 542 (Iowa 1927); Sheehan v. First Nat'l Bank, 204 N.W. 38 (Minn. 1925); Chrismand v. Mauldin, 94 So. 1 (Miss. 1922); Bank of Cruger v. Hodge, 198 So. 26 (Miss. 1940); Crary v. Standard Inv. Co., 285 S.W. 459 (Mo. 1926); Palmer v. Omer, 295 S.W. 123 (Mo. 1927); McCarthy v. Kelley, 206 P. 782 (Mont. 1922); Wall v. Duggan, 245 P. 953 (Mont. 1926); Isom v. Larson, 255 P. 1049 (Mont. 1927); Avery v. Davis, 128 A. 332 (N.H. 1925); Johnson v. Johnston, 200 P. 204 (Okla. 1921); Williams v. Watkins, 219 P. 643 (Okla. 1923); Green v. West Texas Coal Mining & Dev. Co., 225 S.W. 548 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Connelly v. Johnson, 259 S.W. 634 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Cocke v. Espinoza, 265 S.W. 1103 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Merchants & Planters State Bank v. Nichols, 275 S.W. 84 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925); Reed v. Mahone, 281 S.W. 277 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Wootton v. Jones, 286 S.W. 680 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Hanes v. Hanes, 239 S.W. 190 (Tex. Com. App. 1922); Security Nat'l Bank v. Mason, 200 P. 1097 (Wash. 1921); First Nat'l Bank v. Galloway, 232 P. 270 (Wash. 1925); Canadian Bank v. Kellough, 253 P. 124 (Wash. 1927); Krueger v. Groth, 209 N.W. 772 (Wis. 1926); Sheldon v. Johnston, 8 N.W.2d 269 (Wis. 1943).

In California either spouse may select a homestead. Cal. Civ. Code §1261 (Deering).

(n164)Footnote 1336. Karsznia v. Kelsey, 262 S.W.2d 844 (Mo. 1953) (possession is notice of claim of homestead).

Property set aside for widow and minor children for a year continues to be so used until widow dies and children become 21. Tribble v. Knight, 231 S.E.2d 68 (Ga. 1976).

(n165)Footnote 1337. Ward v. Baker, 135 S.W. 620 (Tex. Civ. App. 1911); White v. Cowles, 155 S.W. 982 (Tex.

Civ. App. 1913).

(n166)Footnote 1338. Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943); Kennedy v. Duncan, 137 S.W. 299 (Mo. App. 1911); Ray v. Metzger, 165 S.W.2d 207 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942).

(n167)Footnote 1339. Burbank v. Kirby, 55 P. 295 (Idaho 1898).

(n168)Footnote 1340. United States v. Thurston County, 54 F. Supp. 201 (D. Neb. 1944); Shell v. Young, 95 S.W. 798 (Ark. 1906); Standard Paving Co. v. Tolson, 86 S.W.2d 789 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935); Ratliff v. Smith, 178 S.W.2d 138 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

(n169)Footnote 1341. Gibbs v. Adams, 89 S.W. 1008 (Ark. 1905); Swift v. Kleckner, 109 N.W. 34 (Mich. 1906); Hensley v. Maxwell, 44 P.2d 60 (Okla. 1935); See In re Neilsen's Estate, 280 N.W. 246 (Neb. 1938); Barton v. Wood, 175 S.W.2d 437 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

(n170)Footnote 1342. Bank of Hoxie v. Graham, 44 S.W.2d 1099 (Ark. 1932); Ex parte Miley, 53 S.E. 535 (S.C. 1906). In re Austin, 172 B.R. 262 (Bankr. E.D. Ark. 1994) (holding that the debtors' intention to treat certain property as homestead was manifested by residing on the property, treating it as their home, and concealing the ownership of other property during the litigation); In re Bruton, 167 B.R. 923 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1994) (holding that under California homestead law the factors to be considered in determining residency are physical occupancy and the intention to occupy); In re Mayer, 167 B.R. 186 (Bankr. 9th Cir. 1994) (holding that debtor fulfilled homestead requirement by living on the property on the date he filed bankruptcy). Colwell v. Royal Interstate Trading Co., 226 B.R. 714 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1998) (stating that a homestead is established when there is actual intent to live permanently in place, coupled with actual use and occupancy). See also In re Hankell, 223 B.R. 728 (Bankr. D. N.D. 1998); In re Lee, 223 B.R. 594 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1998).

(n171)Footnote 1343. Phelps v. Loop, 148 P.2d 674 (Cal. App. 1944).

(n172)Footnote 1344. Stewart v. Adams, 171 S.W.2d 180 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943); Sheldon v. Johnston, 8 N.W.2d 269 (Wis. 1943); Schwitzke v. American Nat'l Bank, 8 N.W.2d 303 (Wis. 1943).

(n173)Footnote 1345. Jones v. Gunn, 87 P. 577 (Cal. 1906); White v. Rosenthal, 35 P.2d 154 (Cal. App. 1934); Feintech v. Weaver, 122 P.2d 606 (Cal. App. 1942); Brace & Hergert Mill Co. v. Burbank, 151 P. 803 (Wash 1915).

(n174)Footnote 1346. Hansen v. Union Sav. Bank, 82 P. 768 (Cal. 1905).

(n175)Footnote 1347. Rich v. Ervin, 194 P.2d 809 (Cal. App. 1948) (if required acts are substantially performed); McCaughey v. American Nat'l Bank, 92 S.W. 1003 (Tex. Civ. App. 1905).

(n176)Footnote 1348. Oregon Mtg. Co. v. Dunbar, 289 P. 559 (Mont. 1930).

The homestead realty is first determined before rules of descent are applied on the husband's death. Wilson v. Florida Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 64 So. 2d 309 (Fla. 1953).

(n177)Footnote 1349. Gresham v. Walker, 10 Ala. 370 (1846); Simpson v. Simpson, 30 Ala. 225 (1857); Bell v. Davis, 42 Ala. 460 (1868).

(n178)Footnote 1350. Nance v. Nance, 4 So. 699, (Ala. 1888); Stephen Putney Shoe Co. v. White, 55 So. 503 (Ala. 1911); Riggs v. Sterling, 27 N.W. 705, (Mich. 1886); Larson v. Cole, 33 N.W.2d 325 (N.D. 1948); Schwitzke v. American Nat'l Bank, 8 N.W.2d 303 (Wis. 1942); Meeks Leasing Co. v. Young, 881 S.W.2d 232 (Mo. App. 1994) (holding that the homestead exemption automatically attached to qualifying property).

(n179)Footnote 1351. Goodwin v. Colorado Mtg. & Inv. Co., 110 U.S. 1 (1884); Finesty v. First Nat'l Bank, 218 P.

859 (Okla. 1923); Coates v. Caldwell, 8 S.W. 922 (Tex. 1888); People v. Morse, 21 Cal. App. 4th 259 (1993) (defining the difference between a "homestead exemption" and a "declared homestead" under California homestead law); In re Mayer, 156 B.R. 54 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1993) (explaining the difference between "automatic homestead" and "declared homestead" under California law); In re Wilson, 167 B.R. 599 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1994) (holding that debtor is protected by automatic homestead exemption in forced sale, but must declare homestead in voluntary sale).

(n180)Footnote 1352. In re Nerios, 171 B.R. 224 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that claimant has burden to establish the homestead character of property); In re Cate, 170 B.R. 582 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that claimant has burden to establish the homestead character of property); First Gibraltar Bank v. Morales, 19 F.3d 1032 (5th Cir. 1994) (holding that the claimant has the burden of proving occupancy and intent of homestead); NCNB Tex. Nat'l Bank v. Carpenter, 849 S.W.2d 875 (Tex. App. 1993) (holding that the claimant has the burden of proving the homestead character of property). Contra In re Finkel, 151 B.R. 779 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that the burden is on the objecting creditor to disprove a business homestead).

(n181)Footnote 1353. Valley Bank of Nevada v. Skeen, 401 F. Supp. 139 (N.D. Tex. 1975).

(n182)Footnote 1354. Rufus Waples, A Treatise on Homestead and Exemption, 131 (1893); Wolf v. Fleischacker, 5 Cal. 244 (1855); Bishop v. Hubbard, 23 Cal. 514 (1863); Payne v. Cummings, 80 P. 620 (Cal. 1905); United States Oil & Land Co. v. Bell, 96 P. 901 (Cal. 1908); Swam v. Walden, 103 P. 931 (Cal. 1909); Northern Assur. Co. v. Stout, 117 P. 617 (Cal. App. 1911); Cooley v. Shepherd, 225 P.2d 75 (Kan. 1950); J. I. Case Threshing-Mach. Co. v. Joyce, 16 S.W. 147 (Tenn. 1890) (holding that a husband could mortgage his interest as a joint tenant without his wife's consent); Mitchell v. Denny, 164 S.W. 1140 (Tenn. 1914); Scoggins v. Taylor, 248 S.W.2d 549 (Tex. Civ. App. 1952); 5 Baylor L. Rev. 189 (homestead cannot be claimed in partnership property unless the other partner consents).

In Illinois homestead exemption is not applicable as between joint tenants and tenants in common and cannot be asserted on partition. Ball v. Ball, 326 N.E.2d 782 (Ill. App. 1975).

After divorce neither spouse can claim homestead in a joint tenancy. Berg v. Berg, 359 N.E.2d 892 (Ill. App. 1977). In re Brocato, 30 F.3d 641 (5th Cir. 1994) (holding that under Louisiana law the debtor could not claim a homestead in property that she owned in division with another person who was not her spouse).

(n183)Footnote 1355. Cole v. Coons, 167 P.2d 295 (Kan. 1946); Cooley v. Shepherd, 225 P.2d 75 (Kan. 1950); Sayers v. Pyland, 161 S.W.2d 769 (Tex. 1942).

(n184)Footnote 1356. Sieg v. Greene, 225 F. 955, 1006, aff'd, 227 F. 41 (1915); In re Sterling, 20 F. Supp. 924 (1937); Greer v. Altoona Warehouse Co., 20 So. 2d 513 (Ala. 1945); Elms v. Hall, 215 S.W.2d 1021 (Ark. 1948); Lucci v. United Credit & Collection Co., 31 P.2d 369 (Cal. 1934); In re Kachigian's Estate, 128 P.2d 865 (Cal. 1942); Walton v. Walton, 138 P.2d 54 (Cal. App. 1943); Hill v. First Nat'l Bank, 75 So. 614 (Fla. 1917); Wike v. Garner, 53 N.E. 306 (Ill. 1899); Lininger v. Helpenstell, 82 N.E. 306 (Ill. 1907); De Martini v. De Martini, 52 N.E.2d 138 (Ill. 1943); Thorn v. Thorn, 14 Iowa 49 (1862); Nelson v. Stocking, 121 P.2d 215 (Kan. 1942); Skinner v. Shannon, 6 N.W. 108 (Mich. 1880); King v. Welburn, 47 N.W. 106 (Mich. 1890); Grace v. Grace, 104 N.W. 969 (Minn. 1905); Lewis v. White, 13 So. 349 (Miss. 1891); Wood v. Bowles, 46 So. 414 (Miss. 1908); Kleiman v. Geiselman, 21 S.W. 796 (Mo. 1893); Wall v. Duggan, 245 P. 953 (Mont. 1926) (undivided interest); Giles v. Miller, 54 N.W. 551 (Neb. 1893); Valparaiso State Bank v. Schwartz, 138 N.W. 757 (Neb. 1912); Doman v. Fenton, 147 N.W. 209 (Neb. 1914); McLaughlin v. Collins, 78 A. 623 (N.H. 1910); Ohio Sav. & Trust Co. v. Schumacher, 172 N.E. 682 (Ohio App. 1929); New Martinsville Groc. Co. v. Hannibal Store Co., 29 N.E.2d 226 (Ohio App. 1940); Gooch v. Gooch, 133 P. 242 (Okla. 1913); Atlas Supply Co. v. Blake, 152 P. 601 (Okla. 1915); W. R. Thompson & Sons Lbr. Co. v. Clifton, 124 S.W.2d 106 (Tex. 1939); Griffin v. Harris, 88 S.W. 493 (Tex. Civ. App. 1905); Dillard v. Duke, 107 S.W.2d 414 (Tex. Civ. App. 1937); Powell v. Ott, 146 S.W. 1019 (Tex. Civ. App. 1912); J. R. Watkins Co. v. Dawson, 145 S.W.2d 901 (Tex. Civ. App. 1940); Hughes v. Groshart, 150 S.W.2d 827 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Travelers Ins. Co. v. Nauert, 200 S.W.2d 661 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Cheswick v. Freeman, 282 S.W.2d 315 (Tex. Civ. App. 1955), rev'd, 287 S.W.2d 171

(Tex. 1966); McClary v. Bixby, 36 Vt. 254 (1863) Bartle v. Bartle, 112 N.W. 471 (Wis. 1907).

See the following cases: Alabama Power Co. v. Cornelius, 100 So. 207 (Ala. 1925); Chambliss v. Derrick, 112 So. 330 (Ala. 1927); Johnson v. Johnson, 46 P. 296 (Cal. App. 1920); Arispe Bank v. Werner, 207 N.W. 578 (Iowa 1926); Banner v. Welch, 225 P. 98 (Kan. 1924); Blitz v. Metzger, 241 P. 259 (Kan. 1925); Eberhart v. National Citizens Bank of Mankato, 214 N.W. 793 (Minn. 1927); Baker v. Grayson, 207 P. 301 (Okla. 1922); Cooper v. Long, 220 P. 610 (Okla. 1923); Peets v. Wright, 109 S.E. 649 (S.C. 1921); Barron v. English, 121 S.E. 782 (S.C. 1924); Kellar v. Kellar, 221 S.W. 189 (Tenn. 1920); Leach v. Leach, 223 S.W. 287 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Tucker v. Dodson, 245 S.W. 728 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922); Gordon-Sewall & Co. v. Walker, 258 S.W. 233 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Medearis v. Buratti, 275 S.W. 617 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925); Nance v. Rucker, 294 S.W. 294 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Barrow, 231 S.W. 368 (Tex. Comp. App. 1921). In re McCain, 160 B.R. 933 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that undivided ownership does not hinder homestead claim).

(n185)Footnote 1357. Rufus Waples, A Treatment on Homestead and Exemption, 131 (1893).

(n186)Footnote 1358. Cannon v. Moore, 104 S.W. 139 (Ark. 1907); Elms v. Hall, 215 S.W.2d 1021 (Ark. 1948); Vieth v. Klett, 198 P.2d 314 (Cal. App. 1948); Lininger v. Helpenstell, 82 N.E. 306 (Ill. 1907); Ahmann v. Kemper, 119 S.W.2d 256 (Mo. 1938); Jackson v. Shelton, 16 S.W. 142 (Tenn. 1890); Bennett v. Child, 19 Wis. 362 (1865). In re Conroy, 224 B.R. 282 (Bankr. D. Mass. 1998) (holding that Chapter 7 debtor-husband was entitled to claim full Massachusetts homestead exemption in amount of $100,000, in property which he owns as tenant by entireties with his non-debtor wife); See also In re Bryant, 221 B.R. 262 (Bankr. D. Colo. 1998).

(n187)Footnote 1359. J. H. Melville Lbr. Co. v. Maroney, 16 N.W.2d 527 (Neb. 1944).

(n188)Footnote 1360. Payne v. Cummings, 180 P. 620 (Cal. 1905); Sewell v. Price, 128 P. 407 (Cal. 1912); Parker v. Riddell, 108 P.2d 88 (Cal. App. 1940); In re Rauer's Collection Co., Inc., 196 P.2d 803 (Cal. App. 1948); Strangman v. Duke, 295 P.2d 12 (Cal. App. 1956) (permitting either spouse to declare homestead in his undivided part without the other's consent); La Placa v. La Placa, 126 N.E.2d 239 (Ill. 1955) (permitting homestead to continue in each spouse's share after division of tenancy in common). In re Cempellin, 175 B.R. 1 (Bankr. D. Mass. 1994) (holding that homestead was available in property held by husband and wife in tenancy in common).

(n189)Footnote 1361. Swan v. Walden, 103 P. 931 (Cal. 1909). But cf. Boissonnault v. Savage, 625 A.2d 454 (N.H. 1993) (holding that wife's homestead right held in joint tenancy could be accommodated by partition). In re Miller, 174 B.R. 279 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding debtor who had transferred his entire interest in the home to his wife could claim a homestead exemption on her life estate which under a trust agreement transferred the remainder to the children).

(n190)Footnote 1362. Watson v. Peyton, 73 P.2d 906 (Cal. 1937).

(n191)Footnote 1363. Commercial & Sav. Banks v. Corbett, F. Cas. No. 3058, 5 Sawy. 543 (C.C. Nev. 1879); In re Pagel Elec. & Ice Co., 14 F. 2d 974 (1926); Short v. McGruder, 22 F. 46 (D.C. Tex. 1926) (no homestead in partnership property as against creditors); Bishop v. Hubbard, 23 Cal. 514 (1863); Michigan Trust Co. v. Chapin, 64 N.W. 334 (Mich. 1895); Eberhart v. National Citizens Bank, 214 N.W. 793 (Minn. 1927); Terry v. Berry, 13 Nev. 514 (1878); State v. Elsbury, 175 P.2d 430 (Nev. 1946); Gaylord, Son & Co. v. Imhoff & Co., 26 Ohio St. 317 (1875); Inman v. Inman, 80 S.W.2d 1103 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935).

(n192)Footnote 1364. Aultman v. Wilson, 44 N.E. 1092 (Ohio 1896); Regenstein v. Pearlstein, 11 S.E. 298 (S.C. 1890).

(n193)Footnote 1365. Ferguson v. Speith, 34 P. 1020 (Mont. 1893); Moyer v. Drummond, 10 S.E. 952 (S.C. 1890); Egan v. American State Bank, 67 S.W.2d 1081 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934); Cooper Co., Inc. v. Werner, 111 S.W.2d 823 (Tex. Civ. App. 1937); Scoggins v. Taylor, 248 S.W.2d 549 (Tex. Civ. App. 1952) (with consent of other partners).

(n194)Footnote 1366. Swearingen v. Bassett, 65 Tex. 267 (1886).

(n195)Footnote 1367. In re McCrary, 169 F. 485 (D.C. Ala. 1909); In re Deadwiler, 293 F. 762 (D.C. Ga. 1923); Kingsley v. Kingsley, 39 Cal. 665 (1870); Trowbridge v. Cross, 7 N.E. 347 (Ill. 1886); Drake v. Moore, 23 N.W. 263 (Iowa 1885); Hoyt v. Hoyt, 28 N.W. 500 (Iowa 1886); Michigan Trust Co. v. Chapin, 64 N.W. 334 (Mich. 1895); Eberhart v. National Citizens Bank, 214 N.W. 793 (Minn. 1927); Rhodes v. Williams, 12 Nev. 20 (1877); Chalfant, Cox & Co. v. Grant, 71 Tenn. (3 Lea) 118 (1879).

Contra, Hewitt v. Rankin, 41 Iowa 35 (1875); McMillan v. Parker, 13 S.E. 764 (N.C. 19 1891); West v. Ward, 26 Wis. 579 (1870).

(n196)Footnote 1368. Banner v. Welch, 225 P.98 (Kan. 1924); Ferguson v. Speith, 34 P. 1020 (Mont. 1893); Smith v. Chenault, 48 Tex 455 (1878).

(n197)Footnote 1369. Trowbridge v. Cross, 7 N.E. 347 (Ill. 1886); McMillan v. Parker, 13 S.E. 764 (N.C. 1891); Scoggins v. Taylor, 248 S.W.2d 549 (Tex. Civ. App. 1952).

(n198)Footnote 1370. Uniform Partnership Act, §25; Revalk v. Kraemer, 8 Cal. 66 (1857); Smith v. Smith, 12 Cal. 216 (1859); Arendt v. Mace, 18 P. 376 (Cal. 1888); Harrelson v. Webb, 50 So. 833 (La. 1909); Oklahoma. State Bank v. Van Hassel, 114 P.2d 912 (Okla. 1941); Gillespie v. Gillespie, 110 S.W.2d 89 (Tex. Civ. App. 1937); Logan v. Aiken, 123 S.W.2d 401 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938); Person v. Levenson, 143 S.W.2d 419 (Tex. Civ. App. 1940).

See Crowder v. Union Nat'l Bank, 261 S.W. 375 (Tex. 1924); Luke v. Cook, 116 S.E. 37 (Ga. App. 1923); Rossing v. Larson, 162 Minn. 176, 202 N.W. 711 (Minn. 1925); First State Bank v. Zelesky, 262 S.W. 190 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Medearis v. Buratti, 275 S.W. 617 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925).

(n199)Footnote 1371. Glover v. Bass, 50 So. 125 (Ala. 1909); Kendall v. Powers, 8 S.W. 793 (Mo. 1888); Rouse v. Caton, 67 S.W. 578 (Mo. 1902); Williams v. Williams, 184 N.W. 114 (Neb. 1921); 21 A.L.R. 741; Bremseth v. Olson, 112 N.W. 1056 (N.D. 1907).

(n200)Footnote 1372. Revalk v. Kraemer, 8 Cal. 66 (1857); Swan v. Walden, 103 P. 931 (Cal. 1909); Jackson v. Williams, 59 S.E. 776 (Ga. 1907).

(n201)Footnote 1373. Arendt v. Mace, 18 P. 376 (Cal. 1888); Bremseth v. Olson, 112 N.W. 1056 (N.D. 1907). See Luke v. Cook, 116 S.E. 37 (Ga. App. 1923). See In re Nielsen's Estate, 280 N.W. 246 (Neb. 1938).

(n202)Footnote 1374. Adams v. Baker, 51 P. 252 (Nev. 1897).

(n203)Footnote 1375. Alexander v. Jackson, 28 P. 593 (Cal. 1891).

(n204)Footnote 1376. In re Tognetti, 57 F. Supp. 286 (M.D. Cal. 1944); Arendt v. Mace, 18 P. 376 (Cal. 1888).

(n205)Footnote 1377. Swan v. Walden, 103 P. 931 (Cal. 1909); Kimberlin v. Gordon, 122 S.W. 1144 (Mo. App. 1909); First Nat'l Bank v. McClanahan, 120 N.W. 185 (Neb. 1909).

(n206)Footnote 1378. Glover v. Bass, 50 So. 125 (Ala. 1909) (husband may have homestead interest in lands of his wife as against his creditors); Walton v. Walton, 138 P.2d 54 (Cal. App. 1943); J. H. Melville Lbr. Co. v. Maroney, 16 N.W.2d 527 (Neb. 1944).

(n207)Footnote 1379. Powell v. Powell, 88 N.E. 993 (Ill. 1909).

(n208)Footnote 1380. Elam v. Carter, 119 S.W. 914 (Tex. Civ. App. 1909).

Under the Utah homestead exemption statute the owner of a vested remainder subject to another life estate can claim the remainder in fee as exempt property. Rich Coop. Ass'n v. Dustin, 385 P.2d 155 (Utah 1963).

Other states have held that the homestead applies only to possessory estates. In re Sale, 143 F. 310 (6th Cir. 1906); Brooks v. Goodwin, 186 S.W. 67 (Ark. 1916); Cross v. Fruehauf Trailer Co., 93 N.W.2d 233 (Mich. 1958).

(n209)Footnote 1381. In re Streeper, 158 B.R. 783 (Bankr. N.D. Iowa 1993) (holding that the homestead interests of husband and wife cannot be split, so when the interests of one cannot be executed, neither can the interests of the other).

(n210)Footnote 1382. Harrell v. Crow. 38 So. 2d 226 (La. 1948).

(n211)Footnote 1383. De Martini v. De Martini, 52 N.E.2d 138 (Ill. 1943).

(n212)Footnote 1384. Greer v. Altoona Warehouse Co., 20 So. 2d 513 (Ala. 1945).

(n213)Footnote 1385. Tassone v. Tovar, 28 Cal. App. 4th 765 (1994) (holding the homestead exemption protects property up to the level of the exemption).

(n214)Footnote 1386. Gregg v. Bostwick, 33 Cal. 220, (1867); Payne v. Cummings, 80 P. 620 (Cal. 1905); Ruddell v. Warne, 157 P.2d 428 (Cal. App. 1945); Oregon Mtg. Co. v. Dunbar, 289 P. 559 (Mont. 1930).

Vermont homestead is $2500 in dwelling house, outbuildings and land. Vt. Stat. 1967, 27-101. In re Bradshaw, 156 B.R. 239 (Bankr. S.D. Ind. 1993) (holding that under Indiana law a debtor may exempt up to $7,500 worth of personal or real property used as a residence); In re Hughes, 166 B.R. 957 (Bankr. E.D. Okla. 1994) (holding that Oklahoma homestead law is limited by value, not by quantity); Addison v. Reavis, 158 B.R. 53 (Bankr. E.D. Va. 1993) (holding that debtor may not exempt upward if doing so would exceed the statutory limit).

(n215)Footnote 1387. Oliver v. Snowden, 18 Fla. 823 (1882); Gowdy v. Johnson, 47 S.W. 624 (Ky. 1898); Gooch v. Gooch, 133 P. 242 (Okla. 1913); Finerty v. First Nat'l Bank, 218 P. 859 (Okla. 1923).

See the following cases; Brock Candy Co. v. Elson, 100 So. 94 (Ala. 1924); Starr v. City Nat'l Bank, 252 S.W. 356 (Ark. 1923); Succession of Harrington, 94 So. 447 (La. 1922); Kimbrough v. Powell, 108 So. 498 (Miss. 1926); Martin v. Martin, 285 S.W. 92 (Mo. 1926); Daniels v. Peck, 288 S.W. 84 (Mo. App. 1926); McCarthy v. Kelley, 206 P. 782 (Mont. 1922); Farmers State Bank v. Weisenhaus, 198 N.W. 673 (N.D. 1924); Finerty v. First Nat'l Bank, 218 P. 859 (Okla. 1923); Cooper v. Long, 220 P. 610 (Okla. 1923); In re Lucas Bank, 119 S.E. 18 (S.C. 1923); Harrison v. Caudle, 139 S.E. 842 (S.C. 1927); Simunek v. Millay, 195 N.W. 507 (S.D. 1923); Peck v. Peck, 212 N.W. 872 (S.D. 1927); Clement v. First Nat'l Bank, 282 S.W. 558 (Tex. 1926); Whiteman v. Burkey, 282 S.W. 788 (1926); Connelly v. Johnson, 259 S.W. 634 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Whiteman v. Burkey, 286 S.W. 350 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Northwestern Securities Co. v. Nelson, 211 N.W. 798 (Wis. 1927). In re Lloyd, 37 F.3d 271 (7th Cir. 1994) (holding that limitation of homestead to three of 113 acres was not clearly erroneous); In re Becker, 215 B.R. 585 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 1998); Matter of Crowell, 138 F.3d 1031 (5th Cir. 1998).

(n216)Footnote 1388. Watson v. Hurlburt, 170 P. 541 (Or. 1918).In re Trigonis, 224 B.R. 152 (Bankr. D. Nev. 1998) (Nevada homestead exemption extends to any quantity of land, regardless of use, as long as debtors actually reside on the premises and use it as their residence, including a homestead exemption in the entire four-unit apartment building, which they owned, but in which they occupied only one unit while leasing other three units).

(n217)Footnote 1389. Gregg v. Bostwick, 33 Cal. 220 (1867); De Martini v. De Martini, 52 N.E.2d 138 (Ill. 1943); Gowdy v. Johnson, 47 S.W. 624 (Ky. 1898).

The homestead exemption is now $6,000. Statutes, §1-498. Tassone v. Tovar, 28 Cal. App. 4th 765 (1994) (holding that the law of fraudulent conveyances does not prohibit the debtor's homestead right, because the homestead is protected from creditors up to the value of the right); In re Nguyen, 226 B.R. 547 (Bankr. E.D. Va. 1998) (holding that Virginia homestead exemption permits debtor to exempt $5,000 of real or personal property by filing homestead deed in appropriate circuit clerk's office); In re Sturgill, 217 B.R. 291 (Bankr. D. Or. 1998) (holding that Oregon homestead exemption is limited to money value of exemption fixed by statute; it is the value which is exempt, not property in and of itself); see also In re Holland, 151 F.3d 547 (6th Cir. 1998).

(n218)Footnote 1390. Gregg v. Bostwick, 33 Cal. 220 (1867).

(n219)Footnote 1391. Watson v. Doyle, 22 N.E. 613 (Ill. 1889).

(n220)Footnote 1392. Kerens Nat'l Bank v. Stockton, 40 S.W.2d 7 (Tex. 1931); In re Glaze, 169 B.R. 956 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 1994) (holding that debtor is assured of receiving statutory amount protected by exemption and the excess is distributed to creditors).

(n221)Footnote 1393. Brennecke v. Riemann, 102 S.W.2d 874 (Mo. 1937).

See In re Kahan, 28 F.3d 79 (9th Cir. 1994) (holding that California law permits forced sale only when the value of the homestead exceeds the exemption limits plus encumbrances and the value of the homestead is determined by the actual sale, not by a schedule); In re Jones, 166 B.R. 657 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding that creditor cannot force sale unless more than $7,500 is bid on the property); Lincoln Lumber Co. v. Elston, 511 N.W.2d 162 (Neb. App. 1993) (holding that the district court can prohibit the sale of a homestead if its value after deducting all the valid liens is less than the exemption); In re Reda, 596 N.Y.S.2d 147 (N.Y. App. 1993) (holding that creditor was entitled to a hearing on sale of homestead when prior liens and encumbrances exceeded value of homestead). Contra In re Bernard, 40 F.3d 1028 (9th Cir. 1994) (holding that creditor can force sale even if the debtor's valuation of the home suggests there is no equity, as long as there are bids above the minimum threshold); Abbett Electric Corp. v. Storek, 22 Cal. App. 4th 1460 (1994) (holding that trial court must order sale of homestead even when value is less than exemption plus encumbrances).

(n222)Footnote 1394. In re Julian, 163 B.R. 478 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that debtor was entitled to have the property unprotected by homestead foreclosed before the homestead property).

(n223)Footnote 1395. Bennett v. Dempsey, 48 So. 901 (Miss. 1909).

(n224)Footnote 1396. Bente v. Sullivan, 454, 115 S.W. 350 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908); In re Hughes, 159 B.R. 197 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that the date the homestead was acquired and occupied is the proper time frame for determining compliance with the statutory limitations).

(n225)Footnote 1397. Bartold v. Lewandowska, 8 N.W.2d 133 (Mich. 1943); Pocoke v. Peterson, 165 S.W. 1017 (Mo. 1914); Hyde v. Copeland, 173 S.W.2d 684 (Mo. 1943).

(n226)Footnote 1398. First Nat'l Bank v. McClanahan, 120 N.W. 185 (Neb. 1909).

(n227)Footnote 1399. Thompson Ritchie & Co. v. Graves, 120 So. 634 (La. 1929).

(n228)Footnote 1400. In re Moore's Estate, 234 S.W.2d 847 (Tenn. App. 1949).

(n229)Footnote 1401. Boozer v. Boozer, 16 So. 2d 863 (Ala. 1944).

Urban homestead valuation raised to $10,000. Tex. Const. Art. XVI, §51. See In re Ozey, 171 B.R. 116 (Bankr. N.D. Okla. 1994) (holding that homestead for residence purposes is measured by quantity and for business purposes is measured by value).

(n230)Footnote 1402. Richards v. Byrnes, 15 So. 2d 610 (Fla. 1943).

(n231)Footnote 1403. Bartold v. Lewandowska, 8 N.W.2d 133 (Mich. 1943).

(n232)Footnote 1404. Seaney v. Molling, 153 P.2d 532 (Ariz. 1944).

(n233)Footnote 1405. Brewington v. Brewington, 109 S.W. 723 (Mo. 1908); Schwitzke v. American Nat'l Bank, 8 N.W.2d 303 (Wis. 1943). See Croker v. Croker, 7 F.2d 218 (D.C. Fla. 1925); Williams v. Watkins, 219 P. 643 (Okla. 1923).

(n234)Footnote 1406. Thomason v. Shaw, 67 F.2d 641 (5th Cir. 1933); Vanstory v. Thornton, 14 S.E. 637 (N.C. 1892).

(n235)Footnote 1407. Lubbock v. McMann, 22 P. 1145 (Cal. 1889); Lockhart v. Sasser, 22 So. 2d 763 (Fla. 1945). In re Nerios, 171 B.R. 224 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that a separate house on an adjacent lot could not regarded as a mere improvement); In re Cate, 170 B.R. 582 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that house across the street from homestead where debtor's elderly father resided was not merely an improvement).

(n236)Footnote 1408. Greer v. Altoona Warehouse Co., 20 So. 2d 513 (Ala. 1945); Campbell v. McManus, 32 Tex. 442 (1870).

(n237)Footnote 1409. Garwood v. Garwood, 91 N.E. 672 (Ill. 1910).

(n238)Footnote 1410. Morton v. Jones, 125 S.W. 247 (Ky. 1910); Graham v. Humm, 229 S.W. 80 (Ky. 1921); Schwitzke v. American Nat'l Bank, 8 N.W.2d 303 (Wis. 1943).

(n239)Footnote 1411. Chadbourn Sash, Door & Lbr. Co. v. Parker, 69 S.E. 1 (N.C. 1910).

(n240)Footnote 1412. Watt v. Watt, 78 N.E.2d 224 (Ill. 1948); Williams v. Johnson, 53 S.E.2d 277 (N.C. 1949); Long Bell Lbr. Co. v. Miller, 240 S.W.2d 405 (Tex. Civ. App. 1951).

Death of widow terminates homestead. Morris v. Wells, 381 P.2d 882 (Okla. 1963).

(n241)Footnote 1413. Kleinschmidt Laboratories v. Kleinschmidt, 100 N.E.2d 796 (Ill. App. 1951).

(n242)Footnote 1414. Coleman v. Williams, 200 So. 207 (Fla. 1941); Wilson v. Florida Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 64 So. 2d 309 (Fla. 1953).

Widow's petition to sell the homestead and appoint a receiver to invest the proceeds in revenue-producing property granted where the homestead had become uneconomical by reason of taxes. Williamson v. Kelley, 444 S.W.2d 311 (Tex. Civ. App. 1969); 22 Baylor L. Rev. 409. In re Bartlett, 153 B.R. 881 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1993) (holding that once a homestead interest has been established it continues until it is voluntarily sold or abandoned); In re Miller, 157 B.R. 621 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 1993) (holding that once a homestead is established it continues until it is abandoned).

(n243)Footnote 1415. Sims v. McFadden, 233 S.W.2d 375 (Ark. 1950).

(n244)Footnote 1416. In re Johnson, 97 F. Supp. 779 (S.D. Cal. 1951), rev'd, Gardner v. Johnson, 195 F.2d 717 (9th Cir. 1952). In re Roberts, 215 B.R. 197 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1997) (holding that a homestead exemption is granted to a married person solely on the basis of the marital status without regard to having non-spouse dependents and that the intent to sell the homestead property does not constitute abandonment of the homestead).

(n245)Footnote 1417. In re Brown's Estate, 183 P.2d 768 (Wash. 1947).

(n246)Footnote 1418. See Stephens v. Campbell, 70 So. 2d 579 (Fla. 1954); DeJonge v. Wayne, 76 So. 2d 273 (Fla. 1954).

(n247)Footnote 1419. Sayers v. Pyland, 161 S.W.2d 769 (Tex. 1942).

(n248)Footnote 1420. Anderson v. Anderson, 44 So. 2d 652 (Fla. 1950).

(n249)Footnote 1421. Thorsby v. Babcock, 222 P.2d 863 (Cal. 1950).

Cannot convey whether power is general or special. Gagliardo v. Dumont, 54 Cal. 496 (1880); Keeline v. Clark, 106 N.W. 257 (Iowa 1906); Wallace v. Travelers' Ins. Co., 38 P. 489 (Kan. 1894).

Can convey. Oregon Mtg. Co. v. Hersner, 45 P. 40 (Wash. 1896), under special but not general power. Menendez v. Rodriguez, 143 So. 223 (Fla. 1932).

(n250)Footnote 1422. Wilder v. Scott, 89 So. 2d 682 (Ala. 1956); Bengston v. Setterberg, 227 Minn. 337, 35 N.W.2d 623 (Minn. 1949) (homestead is a part of the decedent's estate).

(n251)Footnote 1423. Sherbill v. Miller Mfg. Co., 89 So. 2d 28 (Fla. 1956).

(n252)Footnote 1424. Wilder v. Scott, 89 So. 2d 682 (Ala. 1956) (remarriage does not terminate homestead).

Surviving spouse may hold the family home for life. La. Acts 1976, No. 227.

(n253)Footnote 1425. Lyons v. Lyons, 74 S.W. 467 (Mo. App. 1903).

(n254)Footnote 1426. Sherbill v. Miller Mfg. Co., 89 So. 2d 28 (Fla. 1956).

Minimum so may be constitutionally increased. Miller v. Marx, 55 Ala. 322 (1876); 5 Ala. L. Rev. 183.

Maximum. Beecher v. Baldy, 7 Mich. 488 (1859).

(n255)Footnote 1427. Anderson v. Anderson, 356 N.E.2d 788 (Ill. App. 1976).

(n256)Footnote 1428. The homestead is granted not only for residence purposes, but for all purposes of general utility. The object of the exemption is to secure the debtor, not only a house to live in, but the means of making a livelihood.

Wilkins v. Fremaux, 36 So. 805 (La. 1904). See McGhee v. Wilson, 20 So. 619 (Ala. 1896); Morgan v. Rountree, 55 N.W. 65 (Iowa 1893); Green v. Richardson, 47 So. 682, (La. 1908); Tillotson v. Millard, 7 Minn 513 (1862).

> The exemption should not be construed as reserving merely a residence where a family may eat, drink, and sleep, but also a place where the head or members may pursue such business or avocation as may be necessary for the support and comfort of the family.

Pryor v. Stone, 19 Tex. 371, 70 Am. Dec. 341 (1857).

(n257)Footnote 1429. Morgan v. Rountree, 55 N.W. 65 (Iowa 1918); Neblett v. Shackleton, 69 S.E. 946 (Va. 1911).

(n258)Footnote 1430. Hill v. First Nat'l Bank, 84 So. 190 (Fla. 1920); (damages for unlawful invasion of homestead rights); Olsen v. Lohman, 13 N.W.2d 332 (Iowa 1944); Booker v. First Nat'l Bank, 245 P. 881 (Okla. 1926) (money due under insurance policy covering homestead improvements).

(n259)Footnote 1431. Lairey v. Baker, 11 S.E. 800 (Ga. 1890); Bartold v. Lewandowska, 8 N.W.2d 133 (Mich. 1943).

(n260)Footnote 1432. Morgan v. Rountree, 55 N.W. 65 (Iowa 1893).

(n261)Footnote 1433. Wing v. Hayden, 73 Ky. (10 Bush) 276 (1874).

(N262)Footnote 1434. Winland v. Holcomb, 3 N.W. 341 (1879); Moore v. Mansfield, 286 S.W. 353 (Mo. 1926) (rents and profits).

(n263)Footnote 1435. C. C. Isely Lbr. Co. v. Kitch, 256 P. 133 (Kan. 1927) (immature annual crops); McCullough Hdw. Co. v. Call, 155 S.W. 718 (Tex. Civ. App. 1913); Neblett v. Shackleton, 69 S.E. 946 (Va. 1911).

(n264)Footnote 1436. Cox, Marshall & Co. v. Cook, 46 Ga. 301 (1872); Alexander v. Holt, 59 Tex. 205 (1883).

(n265)Footnote 1437. Jones v. First Nat'l Bank, 228 P. 992 (Okla. 1924) (matured and severed crops); Coates v. Caldwell, 8 S.W. 922 (Tex. 1888).

(n266)Footnote 1438. Horgan v. Amick, 62 Cal. 401 (1882).

(n267)Footnote 1439. Holladay v. Hodge, 65 S.E. 1019 (S.C. 1909).

(n268)Footnote 1440. Youngman v. Shular, 288 S.W.2d 495 (Tex. 1956), 3 U.C.L.A. L. Rev 601.

(n269)Footnote 1441. Giddens v. Williamson, 65 Ala. 439 (1880); Rose v. Crane Heating Co., 31 S.E.2d 717 (Ga. 1944); Casebolt v. Donaldson, 67 Mo. 308 (1878); Mann v. Kelsey, 12 S.W. 43 (Tex. 1888); Womack v. Stokes, 35 S.W. 82 (Tex. Civ. App. 1896).

(n270)Footnote 1442. Skinner v. Chadwell, 1 S.W. 437 (Ky. 1886); Utley v. Jones, 92 N.C. 261 (1885); Farmers State Bank v. Hess, 251 P. 73 (Okla. 1926) (proceeds of sale of homestead); Smith v. Hart, 207 N.W. 657 (S.D. 1926), followed in 207 N.W. 659 (S.D. 1926) (proceeds of sale of homestead); Doane v. Doane, 46 Vt. 485 (1874).

(n271)Footnote 1443. In re Luby, 155 F. 659 (D.C. Ohio 1907); In re Eash, 157 F. 996 (D.C Iowa 1907); Mack v. Boots, 239 P. 794 (Ariz. 1925) (automobile received in exchange for equity in homestead); Tucker v. Stell, 272 S.W. 864 (Ark. 1925) (proceeds of sale of homestead); White v. Horton, 97 P. 70 (Cal. 1908); Fardal v. Satre, 206 N.W. 22 (Iowa 1925) (proceeds of sale of homestead); Brandenburg v. Petroleum Exploration, 291 S.W. 757 (Ky. 1927) (oil produced by homestead land).

See Thompson-Ritchie & Co. v. Graves, 120 S. 634 (La. 1927) (holding that the proceeds of a fire insurance policy on homestead were exempt); Kimberlin v. Gordon, 122 S.W. 1144 (Mo. 1909); Kershaw v. Willey, 98 P. 908 (Okla. 1908). But see In re Pladson, 154 B.R. 305 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1993) (holding that bankruptcy liquidation sale did not entitle debtor to homestead exemption in proceeds).

(n272)Footnote 1444. In re Eash, 157 F. 996 (D.C. Iowa 1907). In re Mueller, 215 B.R. 1018 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. Minn. 1998) (holding that homestead exemption ceases to apply when homestead has been abandoned by its owner).

(n273)Footnote 1445. Charles City v. Security Trust & Sav. Bank, 120 N.W. 114 (Iowa 1909).

(n274)Footnote 1446. Faison v. Lanier, 139 S.E. 540 (Ga. 1927) (land bought with proceeds of sale of homestead); Turner v. Browning, 107 S.W. 318 (Ky. 1908); Clolinger v. Callahan, 263 S.W. 700 (Ky. 1924) (new homestead purchased with proceeds of sale of old homestead) (19); Baker v. Kash, 113 S.W. 820 (Ky. 1908); Brandenburgh v. Rose, 110 S.W. 376 (Ky. 1908); Schumann v. Davis, 183 N.W. 740 (Mich. 1921) (new homestead purchased with proceeds of sale of old homestead); Kopf v. Engelke, 1 N.W.2d 760, 2 N.W.2d 846 (Wis. 1942); Moore v. Krueger, 507

N.W.2d 155 (Wis. App. 1993) (holding that even though the owners could not show that their absence from the home, before it was sold, was temporary, the proceeds of the sale were protected by the homestead exemption allowing the proceeds to be used to buy a new home).

(n275)Footnote 1447. Baker v. Kash, 113 S.W. 820 (Ky. 1908); Filtsch v. Curtis, 234 P.2d 377 (Okla. 1950). In re Lewis, 216 B.R. 644 (Bankr. N.D. Okla. 1998) (sale proceeds of homestead retain protection from creditors as long as there is good faith intent to reinvest proceeds in another homestead and reinvestment is made within reasonable time). See Demura v. County of Volusia, 618 So. 2d 754 (Fla. App. 1993) (holding that creditors could reach proceeds of homestead sale if the proceeds were not reinvested within a reasonable time).

(n276)Footnote 1448. McGovern v. Taliaferro, 112 S.W. 814 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908).

(n277)Footnote 1449. See Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932). In re Streeper, 158 B.R. 783 (Bankr. N.D. Iowa 1993) (holding that a second homestead is exempt to the same extent as the first homestead).

(n278)Footnote 1450. Citizens Nat'l Bank v. Green, 78 N.C. 247 (1878); F.F. Collins Mfg. Co. v. Carr, 32 S.W. 366 (Tex. Civ. App. 1895); Hinzie v. Moody, 35 S.W. 832 (Tex. Civ. App. 1896); W. E. Thomas Lbr. Co. v. McClain, 294 S.W. 250 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927) (rents); West v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 298 S.W. 652 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927) (proceeds of sale of crops).

(n279)Footnote 1451. Defendant purchased goods and immediately resold them to purchase land which he then claimed as homestead. Pratt v. Burr, F. Cas. 11372, 5 Biss. 36 (C.C. Wis. 1857); Lee v. Welborne, 9 S.W. 471 (Tex. 1888). See Greenberg v. Fontaine, 618 So. 2d 299 (Fla. App. 1993) (holding that when debtor has acted fraudulently, the court may place equitable liens on the homestead). Marcucci v. Hardy, 65 F.3d 986 (1st Cir. 1995) (constructive trust imposed on homestead proceeds which a daughter unsuccessfully attempted to apply to the mortgage on her own residence); In re Beebe, 224 B.R. 817 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1998) (stating that liberal application of homestead exemption statute is limited to prevent it from becoming an instrument of fraud).

(n280)Footnote 1452. Pierce v. Holzer, 32 N.W. 431 (Mich. 1887). LaBelle v. LaBelle, 624 So. 2d 741 (Fla. App. 1993) (holding that constructive trust on homestead was proper when it was purchased with fraudulently obtained, traceable funds); In re Lazin, 221 B.R. 982 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1998) (holding that there is no homestead exemption if the homestead was acquired with fraudulently obtained funds).

(n281)Footnote 1453. Meigs v. Dibble, 40 N.W. 935 (Mich. 1888).

(n282)Footnote 1454. Walker v. Darst, 31 Tex. 681 (1869).

(n283)Footnote 1455. Pratt v. Burr, F. Cas. 11372, 5 Biss. 36 (C.C. Wis. 1857); Nichols v. Overacker, 16 Kan. 54 (1876); Hewes v. Parkman, 37 Mass. (20 Pick.) 90 (1838); Brackett v. Watkins, 21 Wend. 68 (N.Y. 1836); McKinney v. Reader, 6 Watts 34 (Pa. 1837).

(n284)Footnote 1456. Garrard v. Henderson, 209 S.W.2d 225 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948).

(n285)Footnote 1457. Wood v. Emig, 137 P.2d 875 (Cal. App. 1943); Union Bank & Trust Co. v. Ponder, 295 S.W. 140 (Ky. 1927); Pizzolato v. Fontenot, 85 So. 605 (La. 1920); Farmers' State Bank v. Weisenhaus, 198 N.W. 673 (N.D. 1924); Payson Exch. Sav. Bank v. Tietjen, 225 P. 598 (Utah 1924).

(n286)Footnote 1458. Fellows v. Lewis, 65 Ala. 343 (1880); Kennedy v. Tuscaloosa First Nat'l Bank, 107 Ala 170, 18 So. 396 (Ala. 1895); Cox v. Birmingham Dry Goods Co., 28 So. 456 (Ala. 1900); First Nat'l Bank v. Browne, 29 So. 552 (Ala. 1901); Bogan v. Cleveland, 12 S.W. 159 (Ark. 1889); Campbell v. Jones, 52 Ark 493, 12 S.W. 1016 (Ark. 1890); Davis v. Collums, 168 S.W.2d 1103 (Ark. 1943); Parker v. Riddell, 108 P.2d 88 (Cal. App. 1940); Wells v. Anderson, 66 N.W. 102 (Iowa 1896); Freeman v. Funk, 117 P. 1024 (Kan. 1911); Morrow v. Bailey, 59 S.W. 2 (Ky.

1900); Nicholson v. Nicholson, 101 S.W. 985 (Ky. 1907); 31 Ky. L.J. 217; Rothwell v. Rothwell, 104 S.W. 276 (Ky. 1907); Daniels v. Coleman, 165 S.W.2d 804 (Ky. 1942); Pizzolato v. Fontenot, 85 So. 605 (La. 1920); Eagle v. Smylie, 85 N.W. 1111 (Mich. 1901); Allen v. Crane, 116 N.W. 392 (Mich. 1908); Keith v. Albrecht, 94 N.W. 677 (Minn. 1903); Dulion v. Harkness, 31 So. 416 (Miss. 1902); Bank of Versailles v. Guthrey, 29 S.W. 1004 (Mo. 1895); Seilert v. McAnally, 122 S.W. 1064 (Mo. 1909); Edwards v. Reid, 58 N.W. 202 (Neb. 1894); Roberts v. Robinson, 68 N.W. 1035 (Neb. 1896); Dortch v. Benton, 3 S.E. 638 (N.C. 1887); Olson v. O'Conner, 84 N.W. 359 (N.D. 1900); Sears v. Hanks, 14 Ohio St. 298 (1863); Kettleschlager v. Ferrick, 81 N.W. 889 (S.D. 1900); Hamby v. Lane, 64 S.W. 1067 (Tenn. 1901); McDannell v. Ragsdale, 8 S.W. 625 (Tex. 1888); Hughes v. Parmer, 164 S.W.2d 576 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Fiedler v. Howard, 75 N.W. 163 (Wis. 1898); Kopf v. Engelke, 1 N.W.2d 760, 2 N.W.2d 846 (Wis. 1942). Tassone v. Tovar, 28 Cal. App. 4th 765 (1994) (holding that the law of fraudulent conveyances does not prohibit the debtor's homestead right, because the homestead is protected from creditors up to the value of the right).

(n287)Footnote 1459. Davis v. Collums, 168 S.W.2d 1103 (Ark. 1943); Tibbetts v. Terrill, 96 P. 978, 104 P. 605 (Colo. 1908); Wells v. Anderson, 66 N.W. 102 (Iowa 1896); Riggs v. Sterling, 27 N.W. 705 (Mich. 1886); Dortch v. Benton, 3 S.E. 638 (N.C. 1887); Olson v. O'Conner, 84 N.W. 359 (N.D. 1900).

(n288)Footnote 1460. Hamby v. Lane, 64 S.W. 1067 (Tenn. 1901).

(n289)Footnote 1461. Randall v. Buffington, 10 Cal. 491 (1858). To same effect, see Culver v. Rogers, 28 Cal. 520 (1865); Cipperly v. Rhodes, 53 Ill. 346 (1870); North v. Shearn, 15 Tex. 174 (1855). Contra, Riddell v. Shirley, 5 Cal. 488 (1855). Contra In re Thomas, 172 B.R. 673 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that homestead is disallowed to the extent that proceeds from an automobile sale are used to pay down its mortgage); In re Curry, 160 B.R. 813 (Bankr. D. Minn. 1993) (holding that a debtor may be denied a homestead exemption because of fraud in attempting to conceal his ownership of property from the Internal Revenue Service).

(n290)Footnote 1462. North v. Shearn, 15 Tex. 174 (1855).

(n291)Footnote 1463. Doerschuk v. Wiseman, 181 S.W.2d 789 (Mo. 1944).

(n292)Footnote 1464. Cardon v. Harper, 151 P.2d 99 (Utah 1944).

(n293)Footnote 1465. McFarland v. Goodman, F. Cas. 8789, 6 Biss. 111 (C.C. Wis. 1874); Phifer v. Miller, 45 N.W.2d 907 (Neb. 1951).

(n294)Footnote 1466. Fellows v. Lewis, 65 Ala 343 (Ala. 1880); Kennedy v. Tuscaloosa First Nat'l Bank, 18 So. 396 (Ala. 1895); Yates v. Adams, 24 So. 547 (Ala. 1898); Elliott v. Locklar, 46 S.W.2d 1105 (Ark. 1932); Wardlow v. McGhee, 63 S.W.2d 332 (Ark. 1933); Muller v. Inderreiden, 79 Ill. 382 (1875); Hugunin v. Dewey, 20 Iowa 368 (1866); Davis v. H. Feltman Co., 65 S.W. 615 (Ky. 1901); 23 Ky. L.J. 1510; Helton v. Vanderpool, 64 S.W.2d 883 (Ky. 1933); Fussell v. Burris Bros., 139 So. 767 (La. 1932); Castle v. Palmer, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 401 (1863); Smith v. Rumsey, 33 Mich. 183 (1876); Vogler v. Montgomery, 54 Mo. 577 (1874); Crummen v. Bennet, 68 N.C. 494 (1873); Sears v. Hanks, 14 Ohio St. 298 (1863); Appeal of Huey, 29 Pa. 219 (1857); Wood v. Chambers, 20 Tex. 247 (1857); Pike v. Miles, 23 Wis. 164 (1868); Chambers v. Sallie, 29 Ark. 407 (1874); Getzler v. Saroni, 18 Ill. 511 (1857); Piper v. Johnston, 12 Minn. 60 (1866); Edmonson & Winn v. Meacham, 50 Miss. 34 (1874); Currier v. Sutherland, 54 N.H. 475 (1874).

(n295)Footnote 1467. Kuevan v. Specker, 74 Ky. (11 Bush) 1 (1874); Crummen v. Bennet, 68 N.C. 494 (1873).

(n296)Footnote 1468. Sears v. Hanks, 14 Ohio St. 298 (1863).

(n297)Footnote 1469. "It will be noticed that exemption from liability for indebtedness, and inalienability without joint consent, go hand in hand in the matter of a homestead. That which secures the one guarantees the other. They coexist, or they do not exist at all." Hogan v. Manners, 23 Kan. 551 (1880).

Marsh v. Hartley, 109 So. 2d 34 (Fla. 1959) (homestead cannot be conveyed so as to defeat rights of children).

The wife who had transferred her homestead rights into a tenancy by the entireties could not claim a second homestead. Campbell v. Geheb, 523 S.W.2d 185 (Ark. 1975).

In Florida for specific performance to lie, agreements to convey entireties property, homestead, the wife's separate property, or dower, must be signed by both the husband and wife. Zimmerman v. Diedrich, 97 So. 2d 120 (Fla. 1957); Petersen v. Brotman, Fla, 100 So. 2d 821 (Fla. 1958).

Contracts of sale of homestead must have two witnesses as do deeds. Radabaugh v. Ware, 241 So. 2d 738 (Fla. App. 1970) (now doubtful authority because of repeal of Fla. Stat., §708.07 by Laws 1970, ch. 70-4, §4). But witnesses are not necessary in contracts for nonhomestead property. Koplon v. Smith, 271 So. 2d 762 (Fla. 1972).

Since January 1, 1968, a husband and wife may contract to convey a homestead. Allen v. Monk, 505 S.W.2d 523 (Tex. 1974).

In Wyoming homesteads, even where arising out of a decedent's estate, may be conveyed. Goodson v. Smith, 243 P.2d 163, 244 P.2d 805 (Wyo. 1952).

Specific performance of contract to sell homestead valid where both parties join. Dobbs v. Huffstutler, 349 So. 2d 1124 (Ala. 1977); overruling Lyon v. Hardin, 29 So. 777 (Ala. 1901).

See Marshall S. Shapo, Restraints on Alienation and Devise of Homestead: Monsters Unfettered from Florida's Past, 19 U. Miami L. Rev. 72 (1964).

See also Frederick M. Dahlmeier Our Legal Chameleon Is a Sacred Cow: Alienation of Homestead Under the 1968 Constitution, 24 U. Fla. L. Rev. 701 (1972).

(n298)Footnote 1470. Dixon v. Moller, 356 N.E.2d 599 (Ill. App. 1976).

(n299)Footnote 1471. Martin v. Lewis, 244 S.W.2d 87 (Mo. 1951); Sidle v. Cheney, 56 N.W.2d 86 (S.D. 1954); First Nat'l Bank v. Tiffany, 242 P.2d 169 (Wash. 1952).

Conveyance of homestead property held by the entireties to a third party and a subsequent reconveyance to the head of the family was shown to be a mortgage and release. Kinney v. Mosher, 100 So. 2d 644 (Fla. 1958).

In Texas a homestead right is not subject to a mortgage by the owner.

(n300)Footnote 1472. Dixon v. Moller, 356 N.E.2d 599 (Ill. App. 1976). In re Cole, 205 B.R. 382 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1997) (holding that a homestead was abandoned when the owners transferred title to a family partnership).

(n301)Footnote 1473. Regero v. Daugherty, 69 So. 2d 178 (Fla. 1953); First Nat'l Bank v. Wilson, 47 N.W.2d 764 (Minn. 1951); Leyva v. Rodriquez, 195 S.W.2d 704 (Tex. Civ. App. 1946).

Homestead may be alienated for a valuable consideration. Reed v. Fain, 145 So. 2d 858 (Fla. 1961).

Homestead owner may transfer title to an estate by the entirety. Fla. Const., art. X, §4(c), as amended. Prior to the amendment, an attempted conveyance by the husband to himself and his wife was void as to homestead property. Moore v. Moore, 237 So. 2d 217 (Fla. App. 1970).

(n302)Footnote 1474. Bess v. Anderson, 136 So. 898 (Fla. 1931).

(n303)Footnote 1475. Denham v. Sexton, 48 So. 2d 416 (Fla. 1950).

(n304)Footnote 1476. Hayes v. Southern Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 26 So. 527, (Ala. 1899); Jahn v. Purvis, 199 So. 340 (Fla. 1940); Wallace v. Traveler's Ins. Co., 38 P. 489 (Kan. 1894).

In Florida once a homestead is established it cannot be alienated or devised until the family relationship is terminated. Beck v. Wylie, 60 So. 2d 190 (Fla. 1952).

A waiver of a homestead exemption to be acquired in the future is valid. Miller v. Southeastern Finance Service, Inc., 122 So. 2d 877 (La. App. 1960).

Both spouses required to alienate homestead. Keel v. Jones, 413 P.2d 549 (Okla. 1966). But husband can convey if wife adjudged insane. Schmidt v. Schmidt, 403 S.W.2d 531 (Tex. Civ. App. 1966).

Conveyance by sane husband of insane wife transferred homestead. Fort Worth v. Brandt, 444 S.W.2d 210 (Tex. Civ. App. 1969).

To the effect that the court may not sell the homestead and invest the proceeds in revenue-producing property and deliver the income to the widow if there are children even though the homestead should become an economic burden. Williamson v. Kelley, 444 S.W.2d 311 (Tex. Civ. App. 1969).

(n305)Footnote 1477. Uvalde Rock Asphalt Co. v. Warren, 91 S.W.2d 321 (Tex. 1936).

(n306)Footnote 1478. Kaupe v. Kaupe, 280 P.2d 856 (Cal. App. 1955); Florida Nat'l Bank, 30 So. 2d 298 (Fla. 1947); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932).

(n307)Footnote 1479. Thompson v. Crim, 126 S.W.2d 18 (Tex. 19 1939); Tide Water Oil Co. v. Ross, 123 S.W.2d 479 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938).

Widow could give an oil and gas lease. Heyser v. Frankfort Oil Co., 316 F.2d 441 (10th Cir. 1963).

(n308)Footnote 1480. Dawson v. Hayden, 67 Ill. 52 (1873); Dye v. Mann, 10 Mich. 291 (1862); Sampson v. Williamson, 6 Tex. 102, 55 Am. Dec. 762 (1851).

(n309)Footnote 1481. Myers v. Matley, 130 F.2d 775 (9th Cir. Nev. 1942); Jones v. Kemp, 144 F.2d 478 (10th Cir. Okla. 1944); Clark v. Bird, 48 So. 359 (Ala. 1908); Coon v. Henderson, 199 So. 704 (Ala. 1940); Freed v. Sallade, 17 So. 2d 868 (Ala. 1944); Pipkin v. Williams, 21 S.W. 433 (Ark. 1893); Ferrell v. Wood, 232 S.W. 577 (Ark. 1921); Swan v. Walden, 103 P. 931 (Cal. 1909); Wise v. Thomas, 188 P.2d 444 (Colo. 1947); Thomas v. Craft, 46 So. 594 (Fla. 1908); Estep v. Herring, 18 So. 2d 683 (Fla. 1944); Pritchett v. Davis, 28 S.E. 666 (Ga. 1897); Shields v. Bush, 59 N.E. 962 (Ill. 1901); Brod v. Brod, 61 N.E.2d 675 (Ill. 1945); Lessell v. Goodman, 66 N.W. 917 (Iowa 1896); Withers v. Love, 83 P. 204 (Kan. 1905); Postlethwaite v. Edson, 171 P. 769 (Kan. 1917); Woodbury v. Luddy, 96 Mass. (14 Allen) 1, 1 (1867); Hayes v. McAra, 131 N.W. 535 (Mich. 1911); Lucy v. Lucy, 120 N.W. 754 (Minn. 1909); Schroeder v. Gohde, 144 N.W. 152 (1913); McDonald v. Sanford, 41 So. 369 (Miss. 1906); Hughes v. Hahn, 46 So. 2d 587 (Miss. 1950); Bushnell v. Loomis, 137 S.W. 257 (Mo. 1911); Hall v. Hall, 145 S.W.2d 752 (Mo. 1940); Weatherington v. Smith, 109 N.W. 381 (Neb. 1906); Evans v. First Nat'l Bank, 297 N.W. 154 (Neb. 1940); Trowbridge v. Bisson, 44 N.W.2d 810 (Neb. 1950); Phifer v. Miller, 45 N.W.2d 907 (Neb. 1951); Martin v. Norris Public Power Dist., 124 N.W.2d 221 (Neb. 1963); Bremseth v. Olson, 112 N.W. 1056 (N.D. 1907); Mandan Merc. Co. v. Sexton, 151 N.W. 780 (N.D. 1915); Larson v. Cole, 83 N.W.2d 325 (N.D. 1948); St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Dreyfus, 141 P. 773 (Okla. 1914), Billy v. LeFlore County Gas & Elec. Co., 120 P.2d 774 (Okla. 1941); Davis v. Milady, 92 S.C. 135, 75 S.E. 363 (S.C. 1912); Somers v. Somers, 131 N.W. 1091 (S.D. 1911); Hamby v. Lane, 64 S.W. 1067 (Tenn. 1901); Roach v. Francisco, 197 S.W. 1099 (Tenn. 1917); Brewer v. Wall, 23 Tex. 585 (1859); Cleveland v. Milner, 170 S.W.2d 472 (Tex. 1943);

Behrens v. Behrens, 186 S.W.2d 697 (Tex. Civ. App. 1945); In re Cooke's Estate, 91 A.2d 683 (Vt. 1952); Jerdee v. Furbush, 91 N.W. 661 (Wis. 1902); Tupitza v. Tupitza, 29 N.W.2d 54 (Wis. 1947); Sheridan First Nat'l Bank v. Citizens State Bank, 70 P. 726 (Wyo. 1902); Closson v. Closson, 215 P. 485 (Wyo. 1923).

But see Watson v. Bethany, 26 So. 2d 12 (La. 1946).

In Alabama if the husband does convey without the wife joining, she may clear the title if the husband has on demand failed to do so or has abandoned the family. Lee v. Lee, 90 So. 2d 775 (Ala. 1956).

Husband alone may not convey a homestead. Hammond v. Shipp, 289 So. 2d 802 (Ala. 1974).

Homestead held by entireties statute permitting one spouse to convey to the other was unconstitutional as applied to homesteads.

(n310)Footnote 1482. Ruffin v. Crowell, 46 So. 2d 218 (Ala. 1950).

(n311)Footnote 1483. In re Carother's Estate, 167 P.2d 899 (Okla. 1946).

A deed by the husband to the wife is valid without her signature. Williams v. Green, 91 So. 39 (1922). But if the deed is to the wife and another it is void as to the third party without the wife's signature. Smith v. Stanley, 132 So. 452 (Miss. 1931).

In Hughes v. Hahn, 209 Miss. 293, 46 So. 2d 587 (Miss. 1950), where the husband deeded the homestead and then died without the wife's joining, the homestead passed to the deceased's heirs though the wife attempted to convey to the grantee after the husband's death.

In Texas the husband cannot dispose of the homestead, Tex. Const, art. 16, §50, nor encumber even by an improvement lien. Uvalde Rock Asphalt Co. v. Hightower, 166 S.W.2d 681 (Tex. 1942), nor waive homestead rights; Cotton v. Morrison, 140 S.W. 114 (Tex. Civ. App. 1911), without the wife's consent. But the husband has the power to renew, extend or adjust liens and encumbrances which are superior to the homestead if he acts in good faith and not in fraud of his wife's rights. Dyess v. Hansen, 151 S.W.2d 904 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941), even to the extent of agreeing to a foreclosure. Uptmor v. Janes, 210 S.W.2d 235 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948).

A divorced spouse cannot mortgage his half interest in former entireties property as long as it remains a homestead. Daniels v. Katz, 237 So. 2d 58 (Fla. App. 1970).

Executory contract to convey homestead is unenforceable against a surviving widow. Cox v. Messer, 469 S.W.2d 611 (Tex. Civ. App. 1971).

(n312)Footnote 1484. Peterson v. Hornblower, 33 Cal. 266 (1867); Barnes v. Gay, 7 Iowa 26 (1858); Nichols v. Overacker, 16 Kan. 54 (1876); Amphlett v. Hibbard, 29 Mich. 298 (1874); Hopper v. Parkinson, 5 Nev. 233 (1869); Burgin v. Godwin, 167 S.W.2d 614 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

(n313)Footnote 1485. Van Sandt v. Alvis, 41 P. 1014 (Cal. 1895); Burnside v. Terry, 51 Ga. 186 (1874); Kimble v. Esworthy, 6 Ill. App. 517 (1880); Sheldon v. Pruessner, 35 P. 201 (Kan. 1894); Thacker v. Booth, 6 S.W. 460 (Ky. 1888); Clements v. Lacey, 51 Tex. 150 (1879); Mikulenka v. Mikulenka, 168 S.W.2d 517 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

(n314)Footnote 1486. Deramus v. Deramus, 85 So. 397 (Ala. 1920); Peoples Bank v. Barrow, 94 So. 600 (Ala. 1922); Phillips v. Smith, 107 So. 841 (Ala. 1926); Lee v. Lee, 90 So. 2d 775 (Ala. 1956); Ferrell v. Wood, 232 S.W. 577 (Ark. 1921); Williams v. Courton, 287 S.W. 745 (Ark. 1926); Hutchinson v. Stone, 84 So. 151 (Fla. 1920); Lightsey v. Butts, 104 So. 852 (Fla. 1925); Brunsdon v. Brunsdon, 200 N.W. 823 (Iowa 1924); Eakin v. Wykoff, 234 P. 63 (Kan.

1925); La Londe v. Bloom, 188 N.W. 291 (Mich. 1922); Bacon v. Mirau, 181 N.W. 579 (Minn. 1921); St. Denis v. Mullen, 196 N.W. 258 (Minn. 1923); Kimbrough v. Powell, 108 So. 498 (Miss. 1926); Tyrrell v. Kelley, 178 N.W. 206 (Neb. 1920); Kelley v. Judson, 178 N.W. 208 (Neb. 1920); Alston v. Alston, 184 N.W. 82 (Neb. 1921); Shanks v. Norton, 191 P. 170 (Okla. 1920); Hawkins v. Corbit, 201 P. 649 (Okla. 1921); Thomas v. James, 202 P. 499 (Okla. 1921); Baker v. Grayson, 207 P. 301 (Okla. 1922); Fetterman v. Franklin, 211 P. 403 (Okla. 1922); Thomason v. Martin, 222 P. 511 (Okla. 1924); Barnett v. Sanders, 247 P. 55 (Okla. 1926); Ex parte Sams, 119 S.E. 798 (S.C. 1922); O'Neill v. Bennett, 207 N.W. 543 (S.D. 1926); Stephenson v. Mallett, 240 S.W. 633 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922); Hibbs v. City Nat'l Bank, 293 S.W. 350 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Russ v. King, 127 S.E. 100 (Va. 1925).

Cf., Pugh v. Hunter, 90 So. 646 (La. 1922); Clarke v. Oden, 99 So. 605 (La. 1924).

> The right of the husband to ... dispose of a homestead in the adjustment of valid liens against it has never been questioned by our [Texas] courts, where such adjustment is not made in fraud of the wife's rights.

Driscoll v. Morris, 275 S.W. 196 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925).

Husband may partition homestead land with another tenant in common as long as this is not in fraud of the wife. Ellis v. Patrick, 93 S.W.2d 1201 (Tex. Civ. App. 1936).

(n315)Footnote 1487. Minor v. Interstate Gravel Co., 94 So. 3 (Miss. 1922).

(n316)Footnote 1488. Billingsley v. Niblett, 56 Miss. 537 (1879) (purchase money mortgage of homestead by husband only is valid).

(n317)Footnote 1489. Nichols v. York, 13 S.E.2d 565 (N.C. 1940).

(n318)Footnote 1490. Balcomb v. Vasquez, 241 S.W.2d 650 (Tex. Civ. App. 1951).

(n319)Footnote 1491. People v. Plumsted, 2 Mich. 465 (1853); Homestead Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Enslow, 7 S.C. 1 (1876).

(n320)Footnote 1492. Woodstock Iron Co. v. Richardson, 10 So. 144 (Ala. 1891); McKenzie v. Rumph, 286 S.W. 1022 (Ark. 1926); Guiod v. Guiod, 14 Cal. 506, (Cal. 1860); Brown v. Coon, 86 Ill. 243, 85 Am. Dec. 402 (1864); McDonald v. Crandall, 43 Ill. 231, 92 Am. Dec. 112 (1867); Vasey v. Township One, 59 Ill. 188 (1871); Fletcher v. Popejoy, 209 P. 746 (Okla. 1922); Wilson v. Clark, 223 P. 668 (Okla. 1924); Jordan v. Godman, 19 Tex. 273 (1857); Means v. Beauchamp, 241 S.W. 307 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922); Beranek v. Beranek, 89 N.W. 146 (Wis. 1902).

(n321)Footnote 1493. Southwestern Lbr. Co. v. Evans, 275 S.W. 1078 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925); McDonald v. Simons, 280 S.W. 571 (Tex. Comm. App. 1926).

Cf., Shannon v. Potter, 200 P. 860 (Okla. 1921).

Since the husband's consent is necessary for a wife to convey the homestead, the husband's conveyance to the wife does not defeat his homestead right. Williams v. Green, 91 So. 39 (Miss. 1922). Estate of Girard v. Laird, 621 A.2d 1265 (Vt. 1993) (holding that conveyance of homestead failed when wife did not join it, but that she could not set the conveyance aside because she voluntarily relinquished her right in divorce).

(n322)Footnote 1494. Jones v. Roper, 5 So. 459 (Ala. 1889); Thompson v. New England Mtg. Secur. Co., 18 So. 315 (Ala. 1895); Carey v. Hart, 94 So. 298 (Ala. 1922); Lubbock v. McMann, 22 P. 1145 (Cal. 1889); Perry v. Ross, 37 P. 757 (Cal. 1894); Thomas v. Craft, 46 So. 594 (Fla. 1908); Hutchinson v. Stone, 84 So. 151 (Fla. 1920); Nelson v.

Hainlin, 104 So. 589 (Fla. 1925); Jones v. Carpenter, 106 So. 127 (Fla. 1925); 43 A.L.R. 1409; Hoskins v. Litchfield, 31 Ill. 137, (1863); Pardee v. Lindley, 31 Ill. 174, 83 Am. Dec. 219 (1863); Ogden Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Mensch, 63 N.E. 1049 (Ill. 1902); Bruner v. Hicks, 82 N.E. 888, (Ill. 1907); Colbert v. Rings, 83 N.E. 274 (Ill. 1907); Sharp v. Bailey, 14 Iowa 387, (1862); Pagel v. Tietje, 186 N.W. 938 (Iowa 1922); Wallace v. Traveler's Ins. Co., 38 P. 489 (Kan. 1894); 26 L.R.A. 806; Karsznia v. Kelsey, 262 S.W.2d 844 (Mo. 1953); Weatherington v. Smith, 109 N.W. 381 (Neb. 1906); Anderson v. Cusack, 214 N.W. 73 (Neb. 1927); Shannon v. Potter, 200 P. 860 (Okla. 1921); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1930); Harborth v. Petermann, 291 S.W. 641 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Moran v. Clark, 4 S.E. 303 (W. Va. 1887); Minnesota Stoneware Co. v. McCrossen, 85 N.W. 1019 (Wis. 1901); Sheridan First Nat'l Bank v. Citizens State Bank, 70 P. 726 (Wyo. 1902).

Homestead property may be alienated by a bona fide transaction based on a valuable consideration. Morgan v. Riley, 239 So. 2d 524 (Fla. App. 1970).

(n323)Footnote 1495. Clark v. Bird, 48 So. 359 (Ala. 1908). Weber v. Weber, 501 N.W.2d 413 (Wis. 1993) (holding that wife is presumed to reject alienation of homestead until she signs the conveyance).

(n324)Footnote 1496. First Nat'l Bank v. Davis, 146 Ill. App. 462 (1909).

(n325)Footnote 1497. Gantt v. Hildreth, 118 S.W. 255 (Ark. 1909); Ward v. Stark Bros., 121 S.W. 382 (Ark. 1909).

(n326)Footnote 1498. Thomas v. Craft, 46 So. 594 (Fla. 1908).

(n327)Footnote 1499. Poe v. Ulrey, 84 N.E. 46 (Ill. 1908).

(n328)Footnote 1500. Gillespie v. Fulton Oil & Gas Co., 86 N.E. 219 (Ill. 1908).

(n329)Footnote 1501. Moses v. McClain, 2 So. 741 (Ala. 1887); Mellen v. McMannis, 75 P. 98 (Idaho 1904); Hostetler v. Eddy, 104 N.W. 485 (Iowa 1905); Thimes v. Stumpff, 5 P. 431 (Kan. 1885); Hall v. Loomis, 30 N.W. 374 (Mich. 1886); Weitzner v. Thingstad, 56 N.W. 817 (Minn. 1893); Watkins v. Youll, 96 N.W. 1042 (Neb. 1903); Larson v. Cole, 33 N.W.2d 325 (N.D. 1948); Cross v. Everts, 28 Tex. 523 (1866); Smith v. Prater, 161 S.W.2d 361 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942).

Homestead owner may transfer title to an estate by the entirety. Fla. Const., art. X, §4(c), as amended. Prior to the amendment, an attempted conveyance by the husband to himself and his wife was void as to homestead property. Moore v. Moore, 237 So. 2d 217 (Fla. 1970).

In Texas specific performance may be had though the wife has not joined in the husband's contract to sell the homestead. Allen v. Monk, 505 S.W.2d 523 (Tex. 1973).

(n330)Footnote 1502. White v. Bates, 84 N.E. 906 (Ill. 1908).

(n331)Footnote 1503. Parriss v. Hughes, 109 S.W. 1140 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908).

(n332)Footnote 1504. Ben Cheeseman Realty Co. v. Thompson, 112 So. 151 (Ala. 1927); Droppers v. Marshall, 168 N.W. 1001 (Mich. 1918).

(n333)Footnote 1505. Silander v. Gronna, 108 N.W. 544 (N.D. 1906).

(n334)Footnote 1506. Ferrell v. Wood, 232 S.W. 577 (Ark. 1921), 16 A.L.R. 1033; Tucker v. Finch, 188 P. 235 (Kan. 1920); Delisha v. Minneapolis, St. P. R. & D. Elec. Trac. Co., 126 N.W. 276 (Minn. 1910), 27 L.R.A. (NS) 963; Lussnig v. Investors Secur. Ass'n, 186 N.W. 574 (Minn. 1921); Glitzke v. Ginsberg, 258 S.W. 1004 (Mo. 1924); Storrs v. Bollinger, 196 N.W. 512 (Neb. 1923); Abbott v. Independent Torpedo Co., 224 P. 708 (Okla. 1924); Kyger v. Caudill, 241 P. 814 (Okla. 1925); Rosenthal v. Pleck, 166 N.W. 445 (Wis. 1918); Helander v. Wogensen, 191 N.W. 964 (Wis. 1923); Papenthien v. Coerper, 198 N.W. 391 (Wis. 1924).

Cf., Pugh v. Hunter, 90 So. 646 (La. 1922); Clarke v. Oden, 99 So. 605 (La. 1924).

Mental incompetent's sale of his homestead is subject to rescission. Hartnett v. Lotauro, 82 So. 2d 362 (Fla. 1955).

(n335)Footnote 1507. Mundy v. Shellaberger, 161 F. 503 (8th Cir. 1908).

(n336)Footnote 1508. White v. Bates, 84 N.E. 906 (Ill. 1908).

(n337)Footnote 1509. Smith v. Kibbe, 178 P. 427 (Kan. 1919).

(n338)Footnote 1510. Myers v. Matley, 130 F.2d 775 (9th Cir. 1942); Shook v. Southern Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 37 So. 409 (Ala. 1904); Edwards v. Simms, 71 P. 902 (Ariz. 1903); Bluff City Lbr. Co. v. Bloom, 43 S.W. 503 (Ark. 1897); Powell v. Patison, 34 P. 677 (Cal. 1893); Wise v. Thomas, 188 P.2d 444 (Colo. 1947); Ogden Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Mensch, 63 N.E. (Ill. 1902); Way v. Scott, 91 N.W. 1034 (Iowa 1902); Warden v. Reser, 16 P. 60 (Kan. 1887); Rogers v. Day, 74 N.W. 190 (Mich. 1953); Irvine v. Irvine, 60 N.W.2d 298 (Mich. 1953); Weitzner v. Thingstad, 56 N.W. 817 (Minn. 1893); Hubbard v. Sage Land & Imp. Co., 33 So. 413 (Miss. 1903); Oatis v. Mingo, 26 So. 2d 453 (Miss. 1946) (common-law marriage); Watterson v. E. L. Bonner Co., 48 P. 1108, (Mont. 1897); Norbury v. Harper, 97 N.W. 438 (Neb. 1903); Karis v. Nichols, 28 N.W.2d 595 (Neb. 1947); Clark v. Shannon, 1 Nev. 568 (1865); Mandan Merc. Co. v. Sexton, 151 N.W. 780 (N.D. 1915); Hall v. Powell, 57 P. 168 (Okla. 1899); Billy v. LeFlore County Gas & Elec. Co., 120 P.2d 774 (Okla. 1941); Dever v. Selz, 87 S.W. 891 (Tex. Civ. App. 1905); Anderson v. Pioneer Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 163 S.W.2d 421 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Home Improvement Loan Co. v. Johnson, 294 S.W.2d 418 (Tex. Civ. App. 1956); Proulx v. Parrow, 56 A.2d 623 (Vt. 1948); Anderson v. Stadlmann, 49 P. 1070 (Wash. 1897); Siegel v. Clemons, 63 N.W.2d 725 (Wis. 1954); Sheridan First Nat'l Bank v. Citizens State Bank, 70 P. 726 (11 Wyo. 1902).

Contra, where wife was nonresident alien. Duda v. Beben, 31 N.W.2d 603 (Wis. 1948).

If the land is impressed in the name of the husband, the homestead cannot be mortgaged or alienated without the wife's consent. Norman v. First Bank & Trust Co. of Bryan, 557 S.W.2d 797 (Tex. Civ. App. 1977).

(n339)Footnote 1511. Burgin v. Hodge, 93 So. 27 (Ala. 1922); Carey v. Hart, 94 So. 298 (Ala. 1922); Ferrell v. Wood, 232 S.W. 577 (Ark. 1921), Addington v. McKee, 170 S.W. 678 (Ark. 1926); Corey v. Matot, 190 P. 378 (Cal. 1920); Hutchinson v. Stone, 84 So. 151 (Fla. 1920); Harlow v. Larson, 213 N.W. 417 (Iowa 1927); Pugh v. Hunter, 90 So. 646 (La. 1922); Clarke v. Oden, 99 So. 605 (La. 1924); Bozich v. First State Bank, 184 N.W. 1021 (Minn. 1921); Fetterman v. Franklin, 211 P. 403 (Okla. 1922); First Nat'l Bank v. Good, 260 P. 473 (Okla. 1927); Ex parte Sams, 119 S.E. 798 (S.C. 1922); Thompson v. Reynolds, 204 P. 516 (Utah 1922); Stolldorf v. Stolldorf, 384 P.2d 969 (Wyo. 1963) (husband could only sell homestead subject to wife's right to demand reimbursement of her interest from the purchaser).

Contracts of sale of homestead must have two witnesses as do deeds. Radabaugh v. Ware, 241 So. 2d 738 (Fla. App. 1970) (now doubtful authority because of repeal of Fla. Stat., §708.07 by Laws 1970, ch. 70-4, §4). But witnesses are not necessary in contracts for nonhomestead property. Koplon v. Smith, 271 So. 2d 762 (Fla. 1972).

(n340)Footnote 1512. Johnson v. Fay, 82 Mass. (16 Gray) 144 (1860); Wilson v. Mills, 22 A. 455 (N.H. 1860); Bank of Cookville v. Brier, 43 S.W. 140 (Tenn. 1897).

(n341)Footnote 1513. Park v. Park, 72 S.W. 993 (Ark. 1903); Montana Nat'l Bank v. Schmidt, 13 P. 382 (Mont. 1887); American Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Burghardt, 48 P. 391 (Mont. 1897); Phillips v. Bishop, 48 N.W. 1106 (Neb. 1891); Norwood v. Childress, 250 S.W.2d 927 (Tex. Civ. App. 1952).

(n342)Footnote 1514. Howell v. McCrie, 14 P. 257 (Kan. 1887).

If the land is impressed in the name of the husband, the homestead cannot be mortgaged or alienated without the wife's consent Norman v. First Bank & Trust Co. of Bryan, 557 S.W.2d 797 (Tex. Civ. App. 1887).

(n343)Footnote 1515. Hawkins v. Pugh, 16 S.W. 277 (Ky. 1891); But see Sledge & Norfleet Co. v. Craig, 112 S.W. 892 (Ark. 1908); Ward v. Stark Bros., 121 S.W. 382 (Ark. 1909); Long v. Branham, 99 S.W. 271 (Ky. 1907).

(n344)Footnote 1516. King v. Chandler, 105 So. 184 (Ala. 1925); Ratliff v. Anderson, 242 S.W. 35 (Ky. 1922); Jarvis v. Armstrong, 48 So. 1 (Miss. 1909); Stuart v. Kennedy & Co., 110 So. 847 (Miss. 1927); Hughes v. Hahn, 46 So. 2d 587 (Miss. 1950); Irwin v. Gay, 91 N.W. 197 (Neb. 1902); Prout v. Burke, 70 N.W. 512 (Neb. 1897); First Nat'l Bank v. Zook, 196 N.W. 507 (N.D. 1923).

> The right of the husband to reencumber ... a homestead in the adjustment of valid liens against it has never been questioned by our [Texas] courts, where such adjustment is not made in fraud of the wife's rights.

Driscoll v. Morris, 275 S.W. 196 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925). See Wright v. Walker, 225 P. 75 (Wyo. 1924) (husband's mortgage to procure release of judgment on mechanic's lien).

(n345)Footnote 1517. Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932).

(n346)Footnote 1518. Riley v. Doing, 77 F. Supp. 415 (S.D. Fla. 1948); Chamboredon v. Fayet, 57 So. 845 (Ala. 1912); Richter v. Richter, 60 So. 880 (Ala. 1913); Edmonds v. Cogsdill, 62 So. 691 (Ala. 1913); Williams v. Massie, 102 So. 611 (Ala. 1924); Sulzberger v. Sulzberger, 50 Cal. 385 (1875); Patchett v. Webber, 245 P. 422 (Cal. 1926); Griffith v. Griffith, 52 So. 609 (Fla. 1910); Johns v. Bowden, 66 So. 155 (Fla. 1914); Moseley v. Taylor, 67 So. 95 (Fla. 1914); Morgan v. Bailey, 105 So. 143 (Fla. 1925); Hamilton v. Morgan, 112 So. 80 (Fla. 1927); Nelson v. Franklin, 12 So. 2d 771 (Fla. 1943); Beck v. Wylie, 60 So. 2d 190 (Fla. 1952); Henson v. Moore, 104 Ill. 403 (1882); Stewart v. Brand, 23 Iowa 477 (1867); Jarboe v. Hayden, 117 S.W. 961 (Ky. 1909); Kiesewetter v. Kress, 70 S.W. 1065 (Ky. 1902); 24 Ky. L.J. 1239; Hunter's Succession, 13 La. Ann. 257 (1858); Pratt v. Pratt, 37 N.E. 435 (Mass. 1894); Eaton v. Robbins, 13 N.W. 143 (Minn. 1882); Kleiman v. Geiselman, 27 S.W. 796 (Mo. 1893); Bushnell v. Loomis, 137 S.W. 257 (Mo. 1893); Brichacek v. Brichacek, 106 N.W. 473 (Neb. 1906); Morgridge v. Converse, 81 N.E.2d 112 (Ohio 1948). (In Ohio, a homestead is neither devisable nor inheritable.); Bacus v. Burns, 149 P. 1115 (Okla. 1915); In re Cole's Estate, 205 P. 172 (Okla. 1922); Leet v. Barr, 202 P. 414, 206 P. 548 (Or. 1921); Ex parte Cothran, 121 S.E. 556 (S.C. 1924); McCrae v. McCrae, 54 S.W. 979 (Tenn. 1900); Reed v. Talley, 35 S.W. 805 (Tex. 1896); Kerens Nat'l Bank v. Stockton, 281 S.W. 580 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); In re Little, 61 P. 899 (Utah 1900); In re O'Rourke's Estate, 175 A. 24 (Vt. 1934).

On a forced sale of an urban homestead the claimant's value is determined by applying to the current value of the lot the ratio the exemption allowance at the time of designation bears to the value of the lot at the time of designation. Hoffman v. Love, 494 S.W.2d 591 (Tex. Civ. App. 1973). See 5 Tex. Tech. L. Rev. 865.

In Florida homestead property cannot be devised where it passes on death to the lineal descendants, subject to the life estate of the widow. In re Endre's Estate, 345 So. 2d 793 (Fla. App. 1977); E. S. A. 731.27.

(n347)Footnote 1519. McLean v. Trabue, 135 S.W. 309 (Ky. 1911); Davis v. Milady, 75 S.E. 363 (S.C. 1912). See In re Bain's Estate, 31 P.2d 211 (Cal. App. 1934).

(n348)Footnote 1520. McLean v. Trabue, 135 S.W. 309 (Ky. 1911); Howard v. Marshall, 48 Tex. 471 (1878); Roots v. Robertson, 55 S.W. 308 (Tex. 1900). See O'Day v. O'Day, 292 N.W. 516 (Iowa 1940).

(n349)Footnote 1521. Gassin v. McJunkin, 48 P.2d 320 (Okla. 1935). Hubert v. Hubert, 622 So. 2d 1049 (Fla.

App. 1993) (holding that homestead passed to heir for life with remainder to devisee who received interest exempt from creditor's claims).

(n350)Footnote 1522. Cowdrey v. Hitchcock, 103 Ill. 262 (1882); Warren v. Warren, 36 N.E. 611 (Ill. 1893); Meyer v. Meyer, 23 Iowa 359; Hazelett v. Farthing, 22 S.W. 646 (Ky. 1893); Schnabel v. Schnabel, 56 S.W. 983, 22 (Ky. 1900); Ky. L.J. 234.

(n351)Footnote 1523. Kaes v. Gross, 3 S.W. 840 (Mo. 1887); Teske v. Dittberner, 98 N.W. 57 (Neb. 1903); Mason v. Jackson, 57 S.W. 217 (Tenn. 1900).

(n352)Footnote 1524. Martindale v. Smith, 1 P. 569 (Kan. 1884); Vining v. Willis, 20 P. 232 (Kan. 1889); Bostick v. Chovin, 33 S.E. 508 (S.C. 1889); Beaty v. Richardson, 34 S.E. 73 (S.C. 1889); 46 L.R.A. 517; In re Eyres' Estate, 34 P. 831 (Wash. 1893); In re Pugh's Estate, 139 P.2d 698 (Wash. 1943).

Homestead may be devised to the spouse if there is no minor child. In re McCartney's Estate, 299 So. 2d 5 (Fla. 1974).

(n353)Footnote 1525. In re Norseth's Estate, 140 N.W. 337 (Minn. 1913); Anderson v. Anderson, 16 N.W.2d 43 (S.D. 1944); Ft. Worth ex rel. West Texas Constr. Co. v. Wisehart, 33 S.W.2d 556 (Tex. Civ. App. 1930); Wicker v. Rowntree, 185 S.W.2d 150 (Tex. Civ. App. 1945). See In re Anderson's Estate, 279 N.W. 266 (Minn. 1913); 116 A.L.R. 82. Snyder v. Davis, 699 So. 2d 999 (Fla. 1997) (holding that a deceased property owner's homestead exemption transfers to a family devisee in a will even though the devisee would not have inherited anything under intestate succession laws); Jacobs v. Jacobs, 633 So. 2d 30 (Fla. App. 1994) (holding that decedent may devise homestead when survived by no minor children and surviving spouse has waived the right).

(n354)Footnote 1526. Luckenbill v. Bates, 263 N.W. 811 (Iowa 1935).

(n355)Footnote 1527. Estate of Murphy, 340 So. 2d 107 (Fla. 1976); F.S.A. Const., art. 10 §4(c).

(n356)Footnote 1528. In re Deadwiler, 293 F. 762 (D.C. Ga. 1923); Hart v. Gulf Fertilizer Co., 108 So. 886 (Fla. 1926); Sage v. Ijames, 233 P. 1013 (Kan. 1925); First Nat'l Bank v. Oliver, 150 S.W.2d 894 (Ky. 1941); Hess v. Eselin, 194 N.W. 469 (Neb. 1923); Japp v. Sapulpa State Bank, 215 P. 1059 (Okla. 1923); Hughes v. Groshart, 150 S.W.2d 827 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941).

Act of platting a portion of the property exempted to the homestead does not destroy the homestead. Falconer v. Farmers Union Oil Co., 260 N.W.2d 1 (N.D. 1977).

See Leon L. Porter, Jr., Conveyancing and the Necessity of the Other Spouse's Joinder Under Homestead Exemption Statutes, 22 Miss. L.J. 65 (1950).

See George E. Bunnell, Exempt Status of Proceeds from Conversions of the Homestead, 15 U. Fla. L. Rev. 410 (1963). United States v. Johnson, 160 F.3d 1061 (5th Cir. 1998) (holding that a judgment lien, which creditor possessed prior to judgment debtor's conveyance of one-half interest in homestead property, did not attach to interest that grantee acquired, despite gap between grantee's purchase of property and recording of its deed).

(n357)Footnote 1529. Poole v. Gerrard, 6 Cal. 71 (1856); Parrish v. Robbirds, 200 So. 925 (Fla. 1941); In re Younkin's Estate, 147 P.2d 726 (Kan. 1944); Kessler v. Tapp, 180 S.W.2d 552 (Ky. 1944); Gladney v. Sydnor, 72 S.W. 554 (Mo. 1903); Brunson v. Yount-Lee Oil Co., 56 S.W.2d 1073 (Tex. 1933); Bagwell v. Hunt, 65 S.W.2d 369 (Tex. Civ. App. 1933); Straus v. Brooks, 126 S.W.2d 542 (Tex. Civ. App. 1939); Moran v. Clark, 4 S.E. 303 (W. Va. 1887).

(n358)Footnote 1530. Hannon v. Sommer, 10 F. 601, 3 McCrary 126 (C.C. Kan. 1881); Weatherwax v. Heflin, 12 So. 2d 554 (Ala. 1943); Gee v. Moore, 14 Cal. 472 (1859); Green v. Marks, 25 Ill. 204 (1861); Fishback v. Lane, 36 Ill.

437 (1865); Dawson v. Hayden, 67 Ill. 52 (1873); Lamb v. Shays, 14 Iowa 567 (1863); Soper v. Galloway, 105 N.W. 399 (Iowa 1905); Morris v. Ward, 5 Kan. 239 (1869); Drake v. Bissenger, 293 N.W. 729 (Mich. 1940); Sisco v. Paulson, 45 N.W.2d 385 (Minn. 1950); Billy v. LeFlore County Gas & Elec. Co., 120 P.2d 774 (Okla. 1941); C. Aultman & Co. v. Salinas, 22 S.E. 465 (S.C. 1895); Melton v. Beasley, 121 S.W. 574 (Tex. Civ. App. 1909).

(n359)Footnote 1531. In re Johnson, 97 F. Supp. 779 (S.D. Cal. 1951), rev'd, Gardner v. Johnson, 195 F.2d 717 (9th Cir. 1952) (a conveyance of homestead property to defeat creditors is not an abandonment of homestead); Jackson v. Allen, 30 Ark. 110 (1875); Folsom v. Carli, 5 Minn. 333 (1861); Tillotson v. Millard, 7 Minn. 513 (1862); Hoyt v. Howe, 3 Wis. 752 (1854). United States v. Johnson, 160 F.3d 1061 (5th Cir. 1998) (holding that a judgment lien, which creditor possessed prior to judgment debtor's conveyance of one-half interest in homestead property, did not attach to interest that grantee acquired, despite gap between grantee's purchase of property and recording of its deed).

(n360)Footnote 1532. Thorsby v. Babcock, 222 P.2d 863 (Cal. 1950). Moore v. Krueger, 507 N.W.2d 155 (Wis. App. 1993) (holding that even though the owners could not show that their absence from the home, before it was sold, was temporary, the proceeds of the sale were protected by the homestead exemption allowing the proceeds to be used to buy a new home); In re Graziadei, 32 F.3d 1408 (9th Cir. 1994) (holding that even though home was sold, debtor was entitled to homestead exemption from proceeds of sale).

(n361)Footnote 1533. Oral contract for sale of homestead enforceable. Riley v. Riley, 33 N.W.2d 525 (Neb. 1948). Weber v. Weber, 501 N.W.2d 413 (Wis. 1993) (holding that statute of frauds applies to homestead and must be affirmatively waived).

Parol contract to convey homestead is void. Norwood v. Childress, 250 S.W.2d 927 (Tex. Civ. App. 1952).

(n362)Footnote 1534. Such a conveyance is valid. Ruffin v. Crowell, 46 So. 2d 218 (Ala. 1950); Lathrop v. Sandlin, 268 S.W.2d 606 (Ark. 1954).

Invalid if third person also takes an interest. Anderson v. Blixt, 72 N.W.2d 799 (N.D. 1955); Whitaker v. Whitaker, 167 P.2d 895 (Okla. 1946).

(n363)Footnote 1535. Tennison v. Carroll, 243 S.W.2d 944 (Ark. 1951).

(n364)Footnote 1536. Mainelli v. Neuhaus, 59 N.W.2d 607 (Neb. 1953).

(n365)Footnote 1537. Burns v. Ford, 283 S.W.2d 866 (Ark. 1955) (but no homestead where household broken up); Filtsch v. Curtis, 234 P.2d 377 (Okla. 1950).

(n366)Footnote 1538. In re Snyder's Estate, 48 N.W.2d 238 (S.D. 1951).

Homestead descends and vests in the heirs of the first deceased spouse immediately on death free of any claims against the deceased spouse and is not chargeable with any of the debts with which community property is chargeable. Vanni v. Cloutier, 124 A.2d 204 (N.H. 1956).

(n367)Footnote 1539. In re Ross, 210 B.R. 320 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1997) (holding (1) that the Illinois homestead statute permits a boat used as a primary residence to be claimed as a homestead exemption and (2) that the homestead was not abandoned when the owner temporarily resided on land during the winter season, but had the intent to return).

(n368)Footnote 1540. Kleinsorge v. Clark, 4 N.W.2d 433 (Iowa 1942).

In Illinois to create a homestead (1) the claimant must be a householder, (2) he must have a family, (3) the premises must be occupied as a residence. Rock Island Bank & Trust Co. v. Lamone, 198 N.E. 430 (Ill. 1935); Klebba v. Klebba, 246 N.E.2d 681 (Ill. App. 1969).

(n369)Footnote 1541. Cleve v. Adams, 22 S.E.2d 567 (N.C. 1942).

(n370)Footnote 1542. Brown v. Keller, 32 Ill. 151 (1863); Wright v. Flatterich, 281 N.W. 221 (Iowa 1938); Anderson v. Finley, 84 So. 2d 845 (La. App. 1956) See Thomas v. Craft, 46 So. 594 (Fla. 1908); Jackson v. Williams, 59 S.E. 776 (Ga. 1907) And see Brantley v. Pruitt, 144 So. 604 (La. 1932) (one entitled to a homestead exemption must be a bona fide owner of the land).

The will devising real estate to two persons "to have the full use, possession, management, enjoyment and control of said land, rent and tax free, as long as they, or either of them, continue to occupy the same as their home" did not make the devisees "owners" entitled to homestead. Johnston v. Gibson, 334 P.2d 348 (Kan. 1959).

(n371)Footnote 1543. Stombaugh v. Morey, 58 N.E.2d 545 (Ill. 1944).

(n372)Footnote 1544. Glover v. Bass, 50 So. 125 (Ala. 1909); Arighi v. Rule & Sons, 107 P.2d 970 (Cal. App. 1940); Wood v. Emig, 137 P.2d 875 (Cal. App. 1943); Wike v. Garner, 53 N.E. 613 (Ill. 1899); Howard v. Mitchell, 105 S.W.2d 128 (Ky. 1936); Giles v. Miller, 54 N.W. 551 (Neb. 1893); Hoy v. Anderson, 58 N.W. 125 (Neb. 1894); Fisher v. Kellogg, 258 N.W. 404 (Neb. 1935); Conlrav v. Morgan, 95 P. 761 (Okla. 1908); Mencer v. McKeel, 108 P.2d 138 (Okla. 1940); Moncur v. Jones, 31 N.W.2d 759 (S.D. 1948); Lewis v. Lindsley, 68 S.W.2d 548 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934); Resolution Trust Corp. v. Olivarez, 29 F.3d 201 (5th Cir. 1994) (holding that under Texas law a homestead may be claimed even if the owner does not hold fee simple title).

(n373)Footnote 1545. Glover v. Bass, 50 So. 125 (Ala. 1909); Morgan v. Bailey, 105 So. 143 (Fla. 1925) (beneficial interest); First Nat'l Bank v. Dismukes, 241 S.W. 199 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922) (possessory interest); Johnson v. Prosper State Bank, 125 S.W.2d 707 (Tex. Civ. App. 1939).

In Texas a business and residence, even on separate lots, if taken together, may constitute only one homestead. O'Neal v. Mack Trucks, Inc., 551 S.W.2d 32 (Tex. 1977).

(n374)Footnote 1546. Spencer v. Geissman, 37 Cal. 96 (1869); Alexander v. Jackson, 28 P. 593 (Cal. 1891); Pendleton v. Hooper, 13 S.E. 313 (Ga. 1891); Deere v. Chapman, 25 Ill. 610 (1880); Hogan v. Manners, 23 Kan. 551 (1880); Pilcher v. Atchison, T. & S.F.R. Co., 16 P. 945 (Kan. 1888); Giles v. Miller, 54 N.W. 551 (Neb. 1893); Hoy v. Anderson, 58 N.W. 125 (Neb. 1894).

See In re Kachigian's Estate, 128 P.2d 865 (Cal. 1942) (showing 1929 amendment to the homestead statute of California).

(n375)Footnote 1547. In re Maxson, 170 F. 356 (D. Iowa 1909); Northern Assur. Co. v. Stout, 117 P. 617 (Cal. App. 1911); Belieu v. Power, 201 P. 620 (Cal. App. 1921) (equitable title under contract of purchase); Brooks v. Black, 123 P. 131 (Colo. App. 1912); Utley v. Boone, 299 N.W. 437 (Iowa 1941); Southern v. Linville, 33 P.2d 123 (Kan. 1934); Kleinert v. Lefkowitz, 259 N.W. 871 (Mich. 1935); Lamb Lumber Co. v. Roberts, 121 N.W. 93 (S.D. 1909); Hughes v. Groshart, 150 S.W.2d 827 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Johnson v. Miller, 173 S.W.2d 280 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943); Desmond v. Shotwell, 252 P. 692 (Wash. 1927) (possession under executory contract of sale); In re Galvin, 158 B.R. 806 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 1993) (holding that the Missouri homestead exemption may be claimed on property held as a contract for deed); In re Freytag, 155 B.R. 150 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that property became homestead when debtor contracted for financing and construction of home).

(n376)Footnote 1548. In re Foley, 97 F. Supp. 843 (D. Neb. 1951); Ferguson v. Roberts, 170 P.2d 855 (Ariz. 1946); Bessemer Props. v. Gamble, 27 So. 2d 832 (Fla. 1946).

But must be of freehold. Strongman v. Duke, 295 P.2d 12 (Cal. App. 1956).

Georgia requires legal title. McCoy v. Howard's Furn. Co., 222 F. Supp. 974 (N.D. Ga. 1963).

(n377)Footnote 1549. Walker v. Woods, 13 N.W.2d 193 (Mich. 1944); Stucki v. Ellis, 201 P.2d 486 (Utah 1949); In re Galvin, 158 B.R. 806 (Bankr. W.D. Mo. 1993) (holding that a debtor could claim a homestead in property under a contract for deed).

(n378)Footnote 1550. Application of Rauer's Collection Co., Inc., 196 P.2d 803 (Cal. App. 1948).

(n379)Footnote 1551. See Cates v. Greene, 114 S.W.2d 592 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938).

(n380)Footnote 1552. Riley v. Doing, 77 F. Supp. 415 (S.D. Fla. 1948); Trice v. Miller, 229 S.W.2d 233 (Ark. 1950) (husband has no homestead in wife's ancestral property); Solomon v. Davis, 100 So. 2d 177 (Fla. 1958) (realty of the wife cannot be the subject of the homestead since she is not head of the household); Kleinert v. Lefkowitz, 259 N.W. 871 (Mich. 1935); Hoyt v. First Nat'l Bank, 77 P.2d 538 (Okla. 1938).

(n381)Footnote 1553. Arighi v. Rule & Sons, 107 P.2d 970 (Cal. App. 1940); Myers v. Myers, 152 N.W. 934 (Mich. 1915); Downing v. Hartshorn, 95 N.W. 801 (Neb. 1903); In re Banfield's Estate, 296 P. 1066, 298 P. 905 (Or. 1931); Powell v. Ott, 146 S.W. 1019 (Tex. Civ. App. 1912); In re Miller, 174 B.R. 279 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding debtor could claim homestead right on her life estate in the home which under a trust agreement transferred the remainder to the children).

(n382)Footnote 1554. Shambaugh v. Scofield, 132 F.2d 345 (5th Cir. 1942); Stombaugh v. Morey, 58 N.E.2d 545 (Ill. 1944); Fisher v. Kellogg, 258 N.W. 404 (Neb. 1935); Turner v. Miller, 255 S.W. 237 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923) (vested remainder); Greenawalt v. Cunningham, 107 S.W.2d 1099 (Tex. Civ. App. 1937).

(n383)Footnote 1555. Keesee v. Bushart, 158 S.W.2d 915 (Ark. 1942); Butler v. Parker, 293 S.W.2d 174 (Tenn. 1956); Greenawalt v. Cunningham, 107 S.W.2d 1099 (1937); Johnson v. Prosper State Bank, 125 S.W.2d 707 (1939).

(n384)Footnote 1556. White Sewing-Mach. Co. v. Wooster, 50 S.W. 1000 (Ark. 1899).

(n385)Footnote 1557. In re Irving, 220 F. 969 (D. Ariz. 1915); Ellis v. Bingham, 150 S.W. 602 (Tex. Civ. App. 1912); Sterling Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Ellis, 75 S.W.2d 716 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934); Beckner v. Barrett, 81 S.W.2d 719 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935); Downey v. Wilber, 202 P. 256 (Wash. 1921) (leasehold); In re McAtee, 154 B.R. 346 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that a debtor could claim a homestead exemption in a long term lease on public land).

(n386)Footnote 1558. Application of Rauer's Collection Co., Inc., 196 P.2d 803 (Cal. App. 1948); Pendleton v. Hooper, 13 S.E. 313 (Ga. 1891); Grimes v. McCrary, 211 S.W.2d 1005 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948); Resolution Trust Corp. v. Olivarez, 29 F.3d 201 (5th Cir. 1994) (holding that homestead exemption protected the vendors' right to remain on land at will of titleholder, but that the exemption did not protect beyond their at will interest).

(n387)Footnote 1559. Cates v. Greene, 114 S.W.2d 592 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938).

(n388)Footnote 1560. Panagopulos v. Manning, 69 P.2d 614 (Utah 1937), petition for reh'g denied, 72 P.2d 456 (Utah 1937).

(n389)Footnote 1561. Oates v. New York Life Ins. Co., 152 So. 671 (Fla. 1934); Coleman v. Williams, 200 So. 207 (Fla. 1941); Waddy v. Waddy, 291 S.W.2d 581 (Tenn. 1956).

(n390)Footnote 1562. New Martinsville Groc. Co. v. Hannibal Store Co., 29 N.E.2d 226 (Ohio 1940); Hughes v. Groshart, 150 S.W.2d 827 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941).

In Florida property held by the entireties may also qualify as a homestead for purposes of forced sale to pay debts. Menendez v. Rodriguez, 143 So. 223 (Fla. 1932) But such property so held may be conveyed by the tenants. Denham v.

Sexton, 48 So. 2d 416 (Fla. 1950); In re Cempellin, 175 B.R. 1 (Bankr. D. Mass. 1994) (holding that homestead was available in property held by husband and wife in tenancy in common).

(n391)Footnote 1563. Kline v. Cowan, 115 P. 587 (Kan. 1911).

Sale and resale with a homestead association resulted in an inter vivos donation of a one-half interest to the wife. Succession of Daste, 223 So. 2d 848 (La. 1969), 16 Loyola L. Rev. 158.

(n392)Footnote 1564. Federal Land Bank v. King, 122 S.W.2d 1061 (Tex. 1939).

(n393)Footnote 1565. See in general:

In re Barklow, 282 F. 892 (D. Or. 1922); Bryson v. Provident Nat'l Bank, 2 F.2d 831 (5th Cir. 1924); Bank of Sun Prairie v. Hovig, 218 F. Supp. 769 (W.D. Ark. 1963) (actual occupancy is required in Arkansas); Beaty v. Washam, 87 So. 337 (Ala. 1920); Wildman v. Means, 94 So. 823 (Ala. 1922).

In Alabama to be a homestead the land must be occupied by the decedent prior to his death. Mordecai v. Scott, 320 So. 2d 642 (Ala. 1975).

Chastain v. Arkansas Bank & Trust Co., 249 S.W. 1 (Ark. 1923); Freer v. Less, 252 S.W. 354 (Ark. 1923); Starr v. City Nat'l Bank, 267 S.W. 581 (Ark. 1925); Keesee v. Bushart, 158 S.W.2d 915 (Ark. 1942).

Santa Barbara Lumber Co. v. Ross, 192 P. 436 (Cal. 1920); Coca Cola Bottling Co. v. Feliciano, 114 P.2d 604 (Cal. App. 1941).

Semple v. Semple, 89 So. 638 (Fla. 1921); Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943).

Logue v. Von Almen, 40 N.E.2d 73 (Ill. 1941).

Schaffer v. Campbell, 199 N.W. 334 (Iowa 1924); Dolan v. Newberry, 202 N.W. 545, 205 N.W. 205 (Iowa 1925); Fardal v. Satre, 206 N.W. 22 (Iowa 1925); Harris v. Carlson, 205 N.W. 202 (Iowa 1925).

Blitz v. Metzger, 241 P. 259 (Kan. 1925).

Evansville Coffin Co. v. Sumner, 226 S.W. 363 (Ky. 1920); Conway v. Reed, 235 S.W. 747 (Ky. 1921); Neel v. Compton, 255 S.W. 840 (Ky. 1923).

Succession of Veronie, 84 So. 439 (La. 1920); Bank of Erath v. Broussard, 109 So. 347 (La. 1926).

Chrismand v. Mauldin, 94 So. 1 (Miss. 1922).

Dent v. Dent, 166 S.W.2d 582 (Mo. 1942).

Tyrrell v. Kelley, 178 N.W. 206 (Neb. 1920); Kelley v. Judson, 178 N.W. 208 (Neb. 1920); Filley v. Dickinson, 193 N.W. 914 (Neb. 1923).

Avery v. Davis, 128 A. 332 (N.H. 1925).

Harris v. Cherokee State Bank, 198 P. 878 (Okla. 1921); Johnson v. Johnston, 200 P. 204 (Okla. 1921); Sharpe v. Wright, 211 P. 70 (Okla. 1922); Kerns v. Warden, 213 P. 70 (Okla. 1923); State ex rel. Freeling v. Brown, 218 P. 816

(Okla. 1923); Osmon v. Payton, 223 P. 382 (Okla. 1923); Storm v. Garnett, 227 P. 417 (Okla. 1924); Harris v. Watts, 226 P. 40 (Okla. 1924); City Nat'l Bank v. Bounds, 235 P. 168 (Okla. 1925); Foster v. Vickery, 239 P. 141 (Okla. 1925); Standard v. Eckert, 249 P. 278 (Okla. 1926); Barnett v. Sanders, 247 P. 55 (Okla. 1926); Interstate Mtg. Trust Co. v. Weber, 249 P. 150 (Okla. 1926); Greenwood v. Wilkinson, 256 P. 46 (Okla. 1927).

Eagle Feather v. McHenry, 190 N.W. 328 (S.D. 1922).

Ewing v. Riley, 246 S.W. 94 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923); Lilly v. Lewis, 249 S.W. 1095 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923); Vaden v. Collier, 253 S.W. 889 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923); Atkinson v. Jackson Bros., 259 S.W. 280 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923) modified 270 S.W.2d 848 (Tex. 1925); Cocke v. Espinoza, 265 S.W. 1103 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Third Nat'l Bank v. McClung, 281 S.W. 281 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Teller v. Fitch, 281 S.W. 893 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Hark-Rider-Keith-Cooke Co. v. Smith, 284 S.W. 612 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Alexander v. Waggoman, 287 S.W. 144 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Walker v. Dailey, 290 S.W. 813 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Gillette v. Davis, 296 S.W. 658 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Jolesch & Chaska Co. v. Hampton, 297 S.W. 271 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Vaughan v. Sterling Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 124 S.W.2d 440 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938); Espinoza v. Cocke, 276 S.W. 1095 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925); Roberson v. Home Owners' Loan Corp., 147 S.W.2d 949 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Stewart v. Adams, 171 S.W.2d 180 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943) Canadian Bank v. Kellough, 253 P. 124 (Wash. 1927); Schwitzke v. American Nat'l Bank, 8 N.W.2d 303 (Wis. 1943); In re Bruton, 167 B.R. 923 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1994) (holding that under California homestead law the factors to be considered in determining residency are physical occupancy and the intention to occupy).

(n394)Footnote 1566. Turner v. Board of County Tax Assessors, 31 S.E.2d 61 (Ga. App. 1944); In re Miller, 157 B.R. 621 (Bankr. N.D. Ohio 1993) (holding that under Ohio homestead law, a debtor can claim homestead in the residence where his dependents live, even though he does not live there himself).

(n395)Footnote 1567. Collins v. Collins, 7 So. 2d 443 (Fla. 1942).

In Florida a homestead does not exist in a co-operative apartment. In re Wartels' Estate, 338 So. 2d 48 (Fla. App. 1976); In re Ross, 210 B.R. 320 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1997) (holding (1) that the Illinois homestead statute permits a boat used as a primary residence to be claimed as a homestead exemption and (2) that the homestead was not abandoned when the owner temporarily resided on land during the winter season, but had the intent to return); In re Leonard, 194 B.R. 807 (Bankr. N. D. Tex. 1996) (holding that property owners did not abandon their homestead when they moved to another home for three years, because they intended to return to the homestead); In re Bruton, 167 B.R. 923 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1994) (holding that debtor's temporary absence from condominium did not invalidate his homestead exemption under California law); In re Brown, 165 B.R. 512 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that debtor's involuntary absence from home to defend criminal and civil suits did not invalidate homestead right).

(n396)Footnote 1568. Turner v. Turner, 18 So. 210 (Ala. 1895); Neel v. Compton, 255 S.W. 840 (Ky. 1923); Closson v. Closson, 215 P. 485 (Wyo. 1923).

(n397)Footnote 1569. Postlethwaite v. Edson, 171 P. 769 (Kan. 1917); Hall v. Casebolt, 188 S.W. 470 (Ky. 1916); Bartold v. Lewandowska, 8 N.W.2d 133 (Mich. 1943). In re Wierschem, 152 B.R. 345 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the Florida homestead exemption applies only to place of actual residence by either the debtor or his family).

(n398)Footnote 1570. Tide Water Oil Co. v. Ross, 123 S.W.2d 479 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938).

(n399)Footnote 1571. Roberts v. Thomas, 48 So. 408 (Miss. 1946), see cases in note; Davis v. Davidor, 27 So. 2d 371 (Miss. 1946), citing Thompson on Real Property (a gratuitous licensee or lodger cannot claim homestead interest).

(n400)Footnote 1572. In re Buelow, 98 F. 86 (D. Wash. 1899); Villa v. Pico, 41 Cal. 469 (1871); Aucker v. McCoy, 56 Cal. 524 (1880); McCormick v. Wilcox, 25 Ill. 274 (1861); Reinbach v. Walter, 27 Ill. 393 (1862); Titman v. Moore, 43 Ill. 169 (1867); Fisher v. Cornell, 70 Ill. 216 (1873); Floyd County v. Wolfe, 117 N.W. 32 (Iowa 1908);

Ingels v. Ingels, 32 P. 387 (Kan. 1893); Wisner v. Farnham, 2 Mich. 472 (1853); Kennedy's Adm'r v. Duncan, 137 S.W. 299 (Mo. 1911); Cook v. Newman, 8 How. Prac. (N.Y.) 523; In re Mayer, 167 B.R. 186 (Bankr. 9th Cir. 1994) (holding that debtor fulfilled homestead requirement by living on the property on the date he filed bankruptcy); In re Marriage of Salchenberg, 868 P.2d 772 (Or. App. 1994) (holding that debtor could not claim homestead in mobile home when daughter did not live in the home when the exemption was claimed); In re Jefferson, 163 B.R. 204 (Bankr. D. N.M. 1993) (holding that debtor could only claim homestead if land was occupied by him at the time of petition); In re Morgan, 149 B.R. 147 (Bankr. 9th Cir. 1993) (holding that the claimant or his spouse must reside in the dwelling at the time the creditor's lien attaches); In re Mayer, 156 B.R. 54 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1993) (holding that debtor or spouse must reside in home on the date the lien was recorded for homestead to attach); In re Austin, 172 B.R. 262 (Bankr. E.D. Ark. 1994) (holding that debtor could not claim homestead on property where he did not reside at the time the judgment lien attached).

(n401)Footnote 1573. Lane v. Flowers, 48 P.2d 1076 (Okla. 1935); Chennault v. Glenn, 109 P.2d 811 (Okla. 1941); In re Brown, 165 B.R. 512 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that moving into homestead with one small suitcase was sufficient to manifest intention of permanent residence when claimant lost his former home in a hurricane).

(n402)Footnote 1574. Zuniga v. Evans, 48 P.2d 513 (Utah 1935).

(n403)Footnote 1575. Enosburg Falls Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. McKinney, 44 P.2d 987 (Okla. 1935).

In Florida a homestead does not exist in a co-operative apartment. In re Wartels' Estate, 338 So. 2d 48 (Fla. App. 1976); Fla. Const., Art. X, §4.

(n404)Footnote 1576. Pollock v. McNeil, 13 So. 937 (Ala. 1893); Moss v. Warner, 10 Cal. 296 (1858); Evans v. Grand Rapids, L. & D. R. Co., 36 N.W. 687 (Mich. 1888); In re Wilson, 8 N.W. 830 (Minn. 1881); Coates v. Caldwell, 8 S.W. 922 (Tex. 1888).

(n405)Footnote 1577. Roberts v. Thomas, 48 So. 408 (Miss. 1909); Lamb Lumber Co. v. Roberts, 121 N.W. 93 (S.D. 1909); Melcher v. Super, 120 S.W. 569 (Tex. 1909); NCNB Tex. Nat'l Bank v. Carpenter, 849 S.W.2d 875 (Tex. App. 1993) (holding that possession and use of land, ownership, and residency qualify land as homestead in law and fact).

(n406)Footnote 1578. Philan v. Turner, 13 So. 2d 819 (Miss. 1943); Hinds v. Buck, 150 S.W.2d 1071 (Tenn. 1941); Switzerland Gen. Ins. Co., Ltd. v. Gulf Ins. Co., 213 S.W.2d 161 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948); Zuniga v. Evans, 48 P.2d 513 (Utah 1935).

(n407)Footnote 1579. Gregg v. Bostwick, 33 Cal. 220 (1867); Kitchel v. Burgwin, 21 Ill. 40 (1858); McMonagle v. Wilson, 61 N.W. 495 (Mich. 1894); Yates v. Home Bldg. & Loan Co., 103 S.W.2d 1081 (Tex. Civ. App. 1937); True v. Morrill, 28 Vt. 672 (1856).

(n408)Footnote 1580. Enosburg Falls Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. McKinney, 44 P.2d 987 (Okla. 1935); Cobb v. Collins, 111 S.W. 760 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908), citing Thompson on Real Property (a gratuitous licensee or lodger cannot claim homestead interest).

(n409)Footnote 1581. Stephen Putney Shoe Co. v. White, 55 So. 503 (Ala. 1911); Tumlinson v. Swinney, 22 Ark. 400 (1860); Upton v. Coxen, 55 P. 284 (Kan. 1898); Delisha v. Minneapolis St. P. R. & D. Elec. Trac. Co., 126 N.W. 276 (Minn. 1910); Laurie v. Crouch, 139 P. 304 (Okla. 1914); Sharpe v. Wright, 211 P. 70 (Okla. 1922); Ketchin v. McCarley, 11 S.E. 1099 (S.C. 1886); Coates v. Caldwell, 8 S.W. 922 (Tex. 1888); Dinwiddie v. Tirns, 114 S.W. 400 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908); Colwell v. Royal Interstate Trading Co., 226 B.R. 714 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1998) (stating that a homestead is established when there is actual intent to live permanently in place, coupled with actual use and occupancy); see also, In re Hankell, 223 B.R. 728 (Bankr. D. N.D. 1998); In re Lee, 223 B.R. 594 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1998); Matter of Burns, 218 B.R. 897 (Bankr. N.D. Ind., 1998).

(n410)Footnote 1582. Ashton v. Ingle, 20 Kan. 670 (1878).

(n411)Footnote 1583. Upton v. Coxen, 55 P. 284 (Kan. 1898).

Cf., Yates v. Home Bldg. & Loan Co., 103 S.W.2d 1081 (Tex. Civ. App. 1937).

(n412)Footnote 1584. Ratliff v. Smith, 178 S.W.2d 138 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943); In re Kretzinger, 103 F.3d 943 (10th Cir. 1996) (holding that leasing part of a selected rural homestead to tenants for agricultural purposes is consistent with the required homestead use and thereby does not forfeit the leased property from the homestead exemption); In re Wierschem, 152 B.R. 345 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the residency requirement applies to rural as well as urban homesteads). Contra In re McCain, 160 B.R. 933 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that use of rural property for shelter was sufficient to establish a homestead and that economic support from the property was not required); Riley v. Riley, 972 S.W.2d 149 (Tex. App. 1998) (holding that homestead claim in rural property is valid as long as the claimant resides on part of the property and the other parcels are used for the support of the family).

(n413)Footnote 1585. Thompson v. Thompson, 230 S.W.2d 376 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950), modified 236 S.W.2d (Tex. 1951).

(n414)Footnote 1586. Turnbeaugh v. Santos, 146 F.2d 168 (9th Cir. 1944).

(n415)Footnote 1587. Cole v. Coons, 178 P.2d 997 (Kan. 1947). Contra In re de Kleinman, 172 B.R. 764 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. 1994) (holding that debtor could not claim a homestead in a condominium where she enjoyed a mere beneficial interest).

(n416)Footnote 1588. First Nat'l Bank v. Anderson, 240 P.2d 1066 (Okla. 1952); Gilpatrick v. Hatter, 258 P.2d 1200 (Okla. 1953).

(n417)Footnote 1589. Permitted in leasehold estates. In re Foley, 97 F. Supp. 843 (D. Neb. 1951) (but not in a tenancy at will); Cole v. Coons, 178 P.2d 997 (Kan. 1947); Grimes v. McCrary, 211 S.W.2d 1005 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948), but not in a tenancy at sufferance. Kleinschmidt Labs. v. Kleinschmidt, 100 N.E.2d 796 (Ill. App. 1951); In re Julian, 163 B.R. 478 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that debtor could not claim business homestead in lot that he leased to a third party commercially); In re McAtee, 154 B.R. 346 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that debtor could claim homestead in residence on public land subject to a ground lease).

(n418)Footnote 1590. In re Grisanti, 58 F. Supp. 646 (W.D. Ky. 1945); Hensley v. Morgan, 237 S.W. 370 (Ky. 1922) (failure to claim exemption at execution sale does not work estoppel); Pinson v. Murphy, 295 S.W. 442 (Ky. 1927) (claim of exemption before confirmation of execution sale or satisfaction of execution is timely); First Nat'l Bank v. Oliver, 150 S.W.2d 894 (Ky. 1941); Castle v. Palmer, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 401 (1863); Griffin v. Nichols, 17 N.W. 63 (Mich. 1883); Ferguson v. Kumler, 25 Minn. 183 (1878); Vogler v. Montgomery, 54 Mo. 577 (1874); Fletcher v. State Capital Bank, 37 N.H. 369 (1858); Barney v. Leeds, 51 N.H. 253 (1871); Philbrick v. Andrews, 35 P. 358 (Wash. 1894); Hoppe v. Goldberg, 53 N.W. 17 (Wis. 1892).

See State Nat'l Bank v. Lokey, 240 P. 101 (Okla. 1925) (exemption may be claimed on motion to quash execution); Morey v. James, 248 P. 594 (Okla. 1926) (selection of homestead may be made at any time before levy); Crim v. Thompson, 229 P. 916 (Or. 1924) (exemption may be claimed at any time before execution sale); Weitzman v. Lee, 262 S.W. 859 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924) (exemption waived by nonassertion in pleading); Payson Exch. Sav. Bank v. Tietjen, 225 P. 598 (Utah 1924) (notice to officer holding execution or order of sale is sufficient); In re Shells, 171 B.R. 816 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio 1994) (holding that debtor did not waive right to claim homestead in bankruptcy action by failing to assert that right in the state foreclosure proceeding).

(n419)Footnote 1591. Hughes v. Watt, 26 Ark. 228 (1870); Bank of Salem v. White, 171 S.W.2d 55 (Ark. 1943); Williams v. Young, 17 Cal. 403 (1861); Pardee v. Lindley, 31 Ill. 174 (1863); Abbott v. Cromartie, 72 N.C. 292 (1875).

(n420)Footnote 1592. Barney v. Leeds, 51 N.H. 253 (1871).

(n421)Footnote 1593. Miller v. Sherry, 69 U.S. (2 Wall.) 237 (1864); Rogers v. Lackland, 23 So. 489 (Ala. 1898); Jones v. Olson, 67 P. 349 (Colo. App. 1902); Ard v. Pratt, 60 P. 1048 (Kan. 1900); Livermore v. Boutelle, 77 Mass. (11 Gray) 27 (1858); Herschfeldt v. George, 6 Mich. 456 (1859); Vogler v. Montgomery, 54 Mo. 577 (1874); Sears v. Hanks, 14 Ohio St. 298 (1863); Meeks Leasing Co. v. Young, 881 S.W.2d 232 (Mo. App. 1994) (holding that sheriff's failure to appraise homestead and determine its equity, before execution sale, voided the sale); In re Jones, 166 B.R. 657 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding that a forced sale is void, if the homestead is not set off).

(n422)Footnote 1594. Simpson v. Simpson, 30 Ala. 225 (1857); Cross v. Bank of Insley, 87 So. 843 (Ala. 1921) (exemption may be claimed at any time before foreclosure sale); Coleman v. Birmingham Fertilizer Co., 93 So. 904 (Ala. 1922) (exemption waived by failure to claim it before sale); First Nat'l Bank v. Reeves, 234 P. 556 (Ariz. 1925) (exemption may be claimed at any time before execution sale); Spurlock v. Gaikens, 225 S.W. 17 (Ark. 1920) (exemption not required to be claimed until eviction is attempted); McKee v. Waters, 265 S.W. 947 (Ark. 1924) (failure to object to execution sale does not work estoppel); Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943); Hendrix v. Webb, 39 S.E. 461 (Ga. 1901); Rogers v. Kimsey, 135 S.E. 497 (Ga. 1926) (notice at execution sale is sufficient); Perkins v. Bragg, 29 Ind. 507 (1868); Moss v. Jenkins, 45 N.E. 789 (Ind. 1897); Andrews v. McCreary Lumber Co., 99 So. 579 (La. 1924) (exemption is lost by failure to claim it before sale); Orr v. Box, 22 Minn. 485 (1876); Curtis v. D.M. Osborne Co., 89 N.W. 420 (Neb. 1902); Baker v. Brintnall, 52 Barb. 188 (N.Y. 1868); Foogman v. Patterson, 83 N.W. 15 (N.D. 1900); Butt v. Green, 29 Ohio St. 667 (1876); Gedhill v. Walker, 55 N.E.2d 647 (Ohio 1944); Hansen v. Jones, 109 P. 868 (Or. 1910); Bair v. Steinman, 52 Pa. 423 (1866); Blair v. Guaranty Sav. Loan & Inv. Co., 118 S.W. 608 (Tex. Civ. App. 1909); Bryant v. Smith, 165 B.R. 176 (Bankr. W.D. Va. 1994) (holding that debtors waived homestead right by failing to claim it). See In re Braverman, 150 B.R. 681 (Bankr. S.D. Ohio 1993) (holding that under Ohio law homestead is not available until there is a forced judicial sale of the property).

(n423)Footnote 1595. Lake Region Credit Union v. Crystal Pure Water, Inc., 502 N.W.2d 524 (N.D. 1993) (holding that the sheriff's sale of land did not violate the homestead rights of the debtor, because she lost all rights to the land once the redemption period had expired).

(n424)Footnote 1596. Dains v. Prosser, 32 Barb. 290 (N.Y. 1860); United States v. Rode Corp., 996 F.2d 174 (7th Cir. 1993) (holding that homestead was unavailable for corporate farmer who failed to apply before the deadline).

(n425)Footnote 1597. McCluskey v. McNeeley, 8 Ill. (3 Gilm.) 578 (1846); State v. Barada, 57 Mo. 562 (1874); Pyett v. Rhea, 53 Tenn. (6 Heisk) 136 (1871).

(n426)Footnote 1598. Crum v. O'Rear, 24 N.E. 956 (Ill. 1890); Foley v. Cooper, 43 Iowa 376 (1876); First Nat'l Bank v. Phillips, 212 N.W. 678 (Iowa 1927) (exemption waived by stipulation in note); Schloss v. Unsell, 216 P. 1091 (Kan. 1923) (exemption may be waived in order for goods); Crout v. Sauter, 13 Bush (76 Ky.) 442 (1877); Dye v. Mann, 10 Mich. 291 (1862); Littlejohn v. Egerton, 76 N.C. 468 (1877); Schaf v. Corey, 196 N.W. 502 (N.D. 1923) (wife's homestead rights cannot be waived or forfeited by husband); In re Estate of Arbeitman, 886 S.W.2d 644 (Mo. App. 1994) (holding that prenuptial agreement acted to waive the surviving wife's right to homestead exemption); United States v. Warren Brown & Sons Farms, 868 F. Supp. 1129 (E.D. Ark. 1994) (holding that debtor waived all state homestead rights when she executed a written waiver); NCNB Tex. Nat'l Bank v. Carpenter, 849 S.W.2d 875 (Tex. App. 1993) (holding that debtor is estopped from claiming homestead when his actions suggest that property is not homestead).

(n427)Footnote 1599. Terrell v. Hurst, 76 Ala. 588 (1884); Tanner v. Mutual Benefit Bldg. Ass'n, 20 S.E. 499 (Ga. 1894); Maloney v. Newton, 85 Ind. 565 (1882); Doherty v. Ramsey, 27 N.E. 879 (Ind. App. 1891); In re Julian, 163 B.R. 478 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that debtor was not estopped by prior designation or disclaimer deed of trust from asserting homestead right); In re Hughes, 172 B.R. 205 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that disclaiming homestead in affidavits and acknowledging liens in deed did not estop debtor from claiming business homestead).

(n428)Footnote 1600. In re Dunlap's Estate, 87 P.2d 225 (Or. 1939).

Surviving spouse may waive and abandon his or her homestead right and that upon such abandonment the homestead becomes subject to administration and the administrator may take possession of other property. Meyer v. Security Nat'l Bank, 294 P.2d 572 (Okla. 1955).

(n429)Footnote 1601. Where the homestead is a mere right of occupancy a bankruptcy court can sell the fee subject only to such right which does not descend to the bankrupt's heirs. Morgridge v. Converse, 81 N.E.2d 112 (Ohio 1948).

Washington homestead laws were intended to protect the family from loss of its homestead in case of economic stress and were not intended to protect single debtors without dependents. In re Statham, 483 F.2d 436 (9th Cir. 1973).

Regardless of claims of creditors. Bank of Sun Prairie v. Hovig, 218 F. Supp. 769 (W.D. Ark. 1963).

Judgment lien is junior to a prior homestead declaration. Curtis v. Kern County, 37 113 Cal. Rptr. 41 (1974).

Mortgages on homesteads are void under public policy unless for improvements or those subordinated thereto. Hufstedler v. Glenn, 82 S.W.2d 733 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935). See Craig Lewis, Intentions, Mortgages and the Homestead Exemption: A Matter of Estoppel, 24 Baylor L. Rev. 187 (1972).

Homestead not liable for deceased owner's debts. In re Boston's Estate, 491 P.2d 1033 (Wash. 1971).

Homestead of a family not more than 200 acres, if not in a municipality, for a single adult, in rural area, not more than 100 acres, for both in a city, not in excess of $10,000 in value, is exempt from attachment or execution in Texas. Vernon's Stat., Arts. 3833, 3835.

See Ronald W. Tweedel The Effect of A Declaration of Homestead On A Pre-Existing Ordinary Debt, 28 La. L. Rev. 275 (1968).

See also Fred Winkler Creditors and the South Dakota Homestead Exemption, 17 S.D.L. Rev. 483 (1972); Craig Lewis Intentions, Mortgages and the Homestead Exemption: A Matter of Estoppel, 24 Baylor L. Rev. 187 (1972).

Rental income from the leased portion of an exempt homestead is also exempt if not from a business homestead. Schwarz v. Teper, 223 N.W.2d 896 (Wis. 1974).

In Kell v. Bella Vista Village Prop. Owners Ass'n, 528 S.W.2d 651 (Ark. 1975), it was held that a homeowners association lien created by the association agreement was valid as against a claim of homestead.

In Florida, where the homestead is not charged with the decedent's debts or costs of administration, it may be devised to the owner's spouse if there are no minor children. But upon death of a husband intestate the widow takes a life estate with remainder to his children. In re Estate of Murphy, 340 So. 2d 107 (Fla. 1976).

Statutory paving lien is not binding on homestead property. Amaya v. Texas Sec. Corp., 527 S.W.2d 218 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975); Boudreaux Civic Ass'n v. Cox, 882 S.W.2d 543 (Tex. App. 1994) (holding that the foreclosure of a homestead is allowed only when specifically permitted by the Constitution). Ergo v. State of Florida, 670 So. 2d 1079 (constitutional homestead guarantee preventing a lien from attaching to the homestead property).

(n430)Footnote 1602. Meredith v. Holmes, 68 Ala. 190 (1880); Randolph v. Brown, 22 So. 524 (Ala. 1897); Gunn v. Hardy, 31 So. 443 (Ala. 1901); Davis v. Henson, 29 Ga. 345 (1859); Moody v. Barker, 222 S.W. 89 (Ky. 1920);

Cassady v. Morris, 91 P. 888 (Okla. 1907); Hawkins v. Corbit, 201 P. 649 (Okla. 1921).

Statutory paving lien is not binding on homestead property. Amaya v. Texas Sec. Corp., 527 S.W.2d 218 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975). State v. Ten Acres of Land, 877 P.2d 597 (Okla. 1994) (holding that homestead provisions were created to protect the entire family and cannot be attached for the tort of one member).

(n431)Footnote 1603. Mertz v. Berry, 59 N.W. 445 (Mich. 1894); Dellinger v. Tweed, 66 N.C. 206 (1872); Gill v. Edwards, 87 N.C. 76 (1882); Smith v. Omans, 17 Wis. 395 (1863); Davis v. Lammons, 151 So. 2d 907 (Miss. 1963).

(n432)Footnote 1604. McLaren v. Anderson, 8 So. 188 (Ala. 1886); Cohn v. Hoffman, 45 Ark. 376 (1885); Davis v. Henson, 29 Ga. 345 (1859); Nowling v. McIntosh, 89 Ind. 593 (1883); Dent v. Dent, 166 S.W.2d 582 (Mo. 1942); Long v. Walker, 10 S.E. 858 (N.C. 1890); Ramsey v. Lake County, 14 N.W.2d 125 (S.D. 1944); Wright v. Straub, 64 Tex. 64 (1885); Whiteman v. Burkey, 282 S.W. 788 (Tex. 1926); Colwick v. Wright, 275 S.W. 152 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925); Harris v. Cordella, 285 S.W. 268 (Tex. Com. App. 1926); McMurdie v. Chugg, 107 P.2d 163 (Utah 1940); Burton v. Mill, 78 Va. 468 (1884).

Homestead of a family not more than 200 acres, if not in a municipality, for a single adult, in rural area, not more than 100 acres, for both in a city, not in excess of $10,000 in value, is exempt from attachment or execution in Tex. Stat., arts. 3833, 3835.

(n433)Footnote 1605. King v. Goetz, 11 P. 656 (Cal. 1886); Gray v. Bybee, 141 P.2d 32 (Cal. App. 1943); Dye v. Cooke, 12 S.W. 631 (Tenn. 1889).

(n434)Footnote 1606. Perry v. Ross, 37 P. 757 (Cal. 1894); Eyster v. Hatheway, 50 Ill. 521 (1864); Dreese v. Myers, 34 P. 349 (Kan. 1893); Loftis v. Loftis, 28 S.W. 1091 (Tenn. 1895).

(n435)Footnote 1607. See McWilliams v. Bones, 10 S.E. 724 (Ga. 1890); Roy v. Clark, 12 S.W. 845 (Tex. 1889); Machicek v. Barcak, 170 S.W.2d 715 (Tex. 1943).

(n436)Footnote 1608. Walker v. Woods, 13 N.W.2d 193 (Mich. 1944).

Grantee of a homestead takes property free and clear of creditor's judgment against grantor. Smith v. Popham, 513 P.2d 1172 (Ore. 1973).

(n437)Footnote 1609. Shepler v. Kubina, 563 S.W.2d 382 (Tex. Civ. App. 1978).

(n438)Footnote 1610. Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. McClure, 241 P. 515 (Ariz. 1925); Martin v. Hildebrand, 212 P. 618 (Cal. 1923); Hutchinson Shoe Co. v. Turner, 130 So. 623 (Fla. 1930); Kilmer v. Garlick, 56 N.E. 1103 (Ill. 1900); Wernik v. Kolodziejczak, 215 N.W. 360 (Mich. 1927); Dreyfus v. Dickason, 56 P.2d 881 (Okla. 1936); Howard v. Mayher, 88 S.W. 409 (Tex. Civ. App. 1905).

Contra, Hansen v. Jones, 109 P. 868 (Ore. 1910).

See Frank R. Lacy, Homestead Exemption -- Oregon Law, a Postscript, 34 Or. L. Rev. 1 (1954).

A judgment lien cannot attach to property which is subject to a prior homestead declaration. Swearingen v. Byrne, 136 Cal. Rptr. 736 (1977).

(n439)Footnote 1611. Metz v. Williams, 88 P.2d 1093 (Kan. 1939).

Homestead is free from owner's debts incurred after acquisition of the homestead. In re Williams' Estate, 216 N.W.2d 568 (Iowa 1974); In re Thomas, 172 B.R. 673 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that homestead is disallowed to the extent that proceeds from an automobile sale are used to pay down its mortgage).

(n440)Footnote 1612. Beecher v. Baldy, 7 Mich. 488 (1859).

In Oregon homesteads are exempt from execution sale but not from liens. See Donald Ross Marshall, Homestead Exemption, Oregon Law, 20 Or. L. Rev. 328 (1941).

Waiver of homestead property is against public policy, even where waiver is executed in a foreign state and judgment is rendered in a foreign state. Sherbill v. Miller Mfg. Co., 89 So. 2d 28 (Fla. 1956).

(n441)Footnote 1613. Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932).

(n442)Footnote 1614. See in general: Posey v. Dodson, 100 So. 488 (Ala. 1924); King v. Chandler, 105 So. 184 (Ala. 1925); Starr v. City Nat'l Bank, 252 S.W. 356 (Ark. 1923); Hinkel v. Crowson, 206 P. 58 (Cal. 1922); Priddel v. Shankie, 159 P.2d 438 (Cal. App. 1945); Jones v. Carpenter, 106 So. 127 (Fla. 1925); Rose v. Crane Heating Co., 31 S.E.2d 717 (Ga. 1944); Rewerts v. Johnson, 143 N.E. 437 (Ill. 1924); Szymanski v. Szymanski, 176 N.W. 806 (Iowa 1920); Brunsdon v. Brunsdon, 200 N.W. 823 (Iowa 1924); Sheakley v. Mechler, 203 N.W. 929 (Iowa 1925); Westerman v. Raid, 212 N.W. 134 (Iowa 1927); Farmers State Bank v. Pickering, 205 P. 1110 (Kan. 1922); Moody v. Barker, 222 S.W. 89 (Ky. 1920); Baker v. Davis, 262 S.W. 3 (Ky. 1924); Louisiana Red Cypress Co. v. Rabalais, 112 So. 647 (La. 1927); Lindell v. Lindell, 185 N.W. 929 (Minn. 1921); H. E. Westerman Lumber Co. v. Raschke, 208 N.W. 960 (Minn. 1926); Gibson v. Randsdell, 188 S.W.2d 35 (Mo. 1945); Seagle v. Pagni, 250 P. 991 (Nev. 1926); Anderson v. Anderson, 110 S.E. 863 (N.C. 1922); Holton v. Holton, 119 S.E. 751 (N.C. 1923); Virginia-Carolina Chem. Co. v. Walston, 123 S.E. 196 (N.C. 1924); In re Gardner's Estate, 250 P. 490 (Okla. 1926); Van Meter v. Field, 159 P.2d 546 (Okla. 1945); Tucker v. Peoples Bank, 137 S.E. 601 (S.C. 1927); Olson v. Colton Sav. Bank, 213 N.W. 364 (S.D. 1927); Harrison v. First Nat'l Bank, 224 S.W. 269 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920), modified 238 S.W. 209 (Tex. Com. App. 1922); Benavides v. Houston Ice & Brewing Ass'n, 224 S.W. 385 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Turbeville v. Book, 226 S.W. 814 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Glenn v. Shamburger, 240 S.W. 701 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922); Hammond v. Floyd, 255 S.W. 777 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923); Stephens v. Cox, 256 S.W. 643 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923); Smith v. Clark, 266 S.W. 518 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Gregory v. Ward, 285 S.W. 935 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Jones v. Moore, 289 S.W. 709 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Skinner v. Home Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 292 S.W. 913 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Maxwell v. Schott, 295 S.W. 266 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Clem Lumber Co. v. Elliott Lumber Co., 254 S.W. 935 (Tex. Com. App. (1923); Warsco v. Oshkosh Sav. & Trust Co., 208 N.W. 886 (Wis. 1926).

To the effect that if there is a provision for future advances in a deed of trust one spouse may make the homestead liable. Newton County Bank v. Jones, 299 So. 2d 215 (Miss. 1974).

See David W. Knapp, Homestead v. Mechanics' Lien, 40 Denver L.C.J. 2 (1963). In re Bernard, 40 F.3d 1028 (9th Cir. 1994) (holding that the California homestead statute does not give the debtor an absolute right to retain the homestead itself).

(n443)Footnote 1615. Gunn v. Barry, 82 U.S. (15 Wall.) 610 (1872); Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U.S. 595 (1877); Tillotson v. Millard, 7 Minn. 513 (1862); Dye v. Cooke, 12 S.W. 631 (Tenn. 1889).

Holding that one spouse alone may incur a debt on homestead property under a deed of trust securing future advance. Newton County v. Jones, 299 So. 2d 215 (Miss. 1974). Contra In re Hughes, 172 B.R. 205 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that the retroactive application of the Texas business homestead exemption does not violate the due process right or impair the obligation of contract protected under the United States Constitution). Lowe v. Sandoval, 103 F.3d 20 (5th Cir. 1997) (a debtor's right to homestead exemption was determined as of the date the Ch. 13 case was commenced, rather than as of the date the Ch. 13 case was converted to a Ch. 7 case); Gruet v. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp., 879 F. Supp. 153 (D. Mass. 1995) (a shareholder's obligation on a guaranty of a revolving line of credit became a "debt contracted" before the guarantor's filing of a declaration of homestead); Gibson Group, Ltd. of Pinellas County v.

Cooper, 197 B.R. 698 (M.D. Fla. 1996) (a debtor who already owned title to the property could avoid a judgment lien, even though the lien attached to the property before the homestead exemption was established); Gernat v. Belford, 192 B.R. 601 (D. Conn. 1996) (homestead exemption applied prospectively only); Herndon v. Grilz, 920 P.2d 998 (Nev. 1996) (when the right to claim a homestead and a judgment lien attach simultaneously to a piece of property, the homestead right prevails).

(n444)Footnote 1616. First State Bank v. Fischer, 272 N.W. 752 (N.D. 1937) See In re Hogan's Estate, 282 N.W. 5 (Wis. 1938).

(n445)Footnote 1617. Bracey v. Gray, 121 P.2d 770 (Cal. App. 1942); Christy v. Dyer, 14 Iowa 438 (1862); Whinery v. McLeod, 102 N.W. 132 (Iowa 1905); Tuttle v. Howe, 14 Minn. 145 (1869); Shipman v. Fitzpatrick, 164 S.W.2d 912 (Mo. 1942); Vincent v. Vineyard, 61 P. 131 (Mont. 1900); Robinson v. Leach, 31 A. 32 (Vt. 1895).

See Chastain v. Arkansas Bank & Trust Co., 249 S.W. 1 (Ark. 1923).

A pre-marital contract allegedly waiving the wife's right as surviving spouse to occupy the homestead and use of its property was unenforceable since homestead right in the survivor does not exist until the death of one of the spouses. In re Streeper, 158 B.R. 783 (Bankr. N.D. Iowa 1993) (holding that exemption does not apply to debts contracted prior to acquiring homestead).

(n446)Footnote 1618. Paxton v. Sutton, 73 N.W. 221 (Neb. 1897); Dye v. Cooke, 12 S.W. 631 (Tenn. 1889).

(n447)Footnote 1619. Coon v. Henderson, 199 So. 704 (Ala. 1940); Brown v. Ennis, 61 S.W. 379 (Ark. 1901); Wilhelm v. Locklar, 35 So. 6 (Fla. 1903); Strohecker v. Irvine, 76 Ga. 639 (1886); Christy v. Dyer, 14 Iowa 438 (1862); Burnap v. Cook, 16 Iowa 149 (1864); Stevens v. Stevens, 92 Mass. (10 Allen) 146 (1865); Keith v. Albrecht, 94 N.W. 677 (Minn. 1903); Dortch v. Benton, 3 S.E. 638 (N.C. 1887); Mercer v. McKeel, 108 P.2d 138 (Okla. 1940); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932); Machicek v. Barcak, 170 S.W.2d 715 (Tex. 1943); De Busk v. Jacksonville Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 147 S.W.2d 537 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Federal Land Bank of Saint Paul v. Ziebarth, 520 N.W.2d 51 (N.D. 1994) (holding that sale of homestead to satisfy mortgage is constitutional); In re Onyan, 163 B.R. 21 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1993) (holding that homestead exemption does not defeat mortgages or mechanics' liens on the homestead and does not apply to judgments recovering the purchase price of the homestead); In re Freytag, 155 B.R. 150 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that homestead was not exempt from liens securing original construction notes). See Ketcham v. First Nat'l Bank of New Boston, 875 S.W.2d 753 (Tex. App. 1994) (holding that debtor may sell homestead to pay bank).

(n448)Footnote 1620. Acruman v. Barnes, 51 S.W. 319 (Ark. 1899); White v. Wheelan, 71 Ga. 533 (1883); Nichols v. Overacker, 16 Kan. 54 (1876); Warhmund v. Merritt, 60 Tex. 24 (1883).

(n449)Footnote 1621. Austin v. Underwood, 37 Ill. 439 (1865); Dreese v. Myers, 34 P. 349 (Kan. 1893).

Alimony of former wife is not a lien on homestead. Bendl v. Bendl, 246 So. 2d 574 (Fla. App. 1971).

(n450)Footnote 1622. Richards v. Shear, 11 P. 607 (Cal. 1886); McWilliams v. Bones, 10 S.E. 724 (Ga. 1890); DePriest v. Ransom, 193 P.2d 191 (Kan. 1948); Butler v. Davis, 23 S.W. 220 (Ky. 1893); Brown v. Ingram's Ex'x., 168 S.W.2d 31 (Ky. 1943); Nickerson v. Crawford, 77 N.W. 292 (Minn. 1898); Miller v. Brown, 79 Tenn. (11 Lea) 155 (1883).

A statutory paving lien is not binding on homestead property. Amaya v. Texas Sec. Corp., 527 S.W.2d 218 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975); In re Streeper, 158 B.R. 783 (Bankr. N.D. Iowa 1993) (holding that debts incurred for improvements for homestead were not subject to homestead exemption); Colwell v. Royal Interstate Trading Co., 226 B.R. 714 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1998) (holding that under the Florida homestead law a homestead exemption may not be used to shield property from (1) payment of taxes and assessments thereon; (2) obligations contracted for the purchase, improvement, or repair thereof; or (3) obligations contracted for house, field, or other labor performed on realty); Munn v. Thornton, 956 P.2d 1213 (Ala. 1998) (holding that contractor's lien for pending labor and materials to construct home was paramount to owners' homestead exemption).

(n451)Footnote 1623. Moore v. Granger, 30 Ark. 574 (1875); In re McCauley, 50 Cal. 544 (1875); Brooks v. State, 54 Ga. 36 (1875); Zander v. Scott, 46 N.E. 2 (Ill. 1897); Ryan v. Wessels, 15 Iowa 145 (1863); Meador v. Meador, 10 S.W. 651 (Ky. 1889); Brown v. Ingram's Ex'x, 168 S.W.2d 31 (Ky. 1943); Clements v. Lacey, 51 Tex. 150 (1879).

See Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932) (effect of execution to lender of notes for an antecedent debt).

A homestead, when declared, takes priority over an earlier judgment as to property purchased after the judgment was rendered. Northern State Bank v. Toal, 230 N.W.2d 153 (Wis. 1975).

(n452)Footnote 1624. Robinson v. Wilson, 15 Kan. 595 (1875); Kelly v. Dill, 23 Minn. 435 (1877) Contra, Letchford v. Cary, 52 Miss. 791 (1876).

(n453)Footnote 1625. Yost v. Devault, 3 Iowa 345 (1856); McMurdie v. Chugg, 107 P.2d 163 (Utah 1940).

(n454)Footnote 1626. Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932); In re Sheaffer, 159 B.R. 758 (Bankr. E.D. Va. 1993) (holding that homestead is subject to consensual mortgage liens).

(n455)Footnote 1627. Skinner v. Beatty, 16 Cal. 156 (1860); Burnap v. Cook, 16 Iowa 149 (1864); Lumber Prods., Inc. v. Crochet, 156 So. 2d 438 (La. 1963); Kansas City Granite & Monument Co. v. Jordan, 29 S.W. 763 (Mo. 1927); Merrigan v. English, 22 P. 454 (Mont. 1889); Bonner v. Minnier, 34 P. 30 (Mont. 1893); John L. Roper Lumber Co. v. Lawson, 143 S.E. 847 (N.C. 1928); Ralls v. Caylor Lumber Co., 171 P. 24 1053 (Okla. 1918); Stone v. Darnell, 20 Tex. 11 (1857); Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932); Farinholt v. Luckhard, 21 S.E. 817 (Va. 1886).In re Onyan, 163 B.R. 21 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1993) (holding that homestead exemption does not defeat mortgages or mechanics' liens on the homestead and does not apply to judgments recovering the purchase price of the homestead).

(n456)Footnote 1628. Evans v. Jensen, 168 P. 762 (Utah 1917); Brace & Hergert Mill Co. v. Burbank, 151 P. 803 (Wash. 1915).

Rental income from the leased portion of an exempt homestead is also exempt if not from a business homestead. Schwanz v. Teper, 223 N.W.2d 896 (Wis. 1974).

(n457)Footnote 1629. Jones v. Carpenter, 106 So. 127 (Fla. 1925); Colwell v. Royal Interstate Trading Co., 226 B.R. 714 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1998) (holding that under the Florida homestead law a homestead exemption may not be used to shield property from (1) payment of taxes and assessments thereon; (2) obligations contracted for the purchase, improvement, or repair thereof; or (3) obligations contracted for house, field, or other labor performed on realty).

(n458)Footnote 1630. John Spry Lumber Co. v. Sault Sav. Bank, Loan & Trust Co., 43 N.W. 778 (Mich. 1889); Morgan v. Benthein, 75 N.W. 204 (S.D. 1898); Volker-Scowcroft Lumber Co. v. Vance, 88 P. 896 (Utah 1907) See Home Lumber Co. v. Heckel, 293 N.W. 549 (S.D. 1940).

(n459)Footnote 1631. Andrews v. Security Nat'l Bank, 50 S.W.2d 253 (Tex. 1932); Bank of Kansas v. Davison, 861 P.2d 806 (Kan. 1993) (holding that government could sell homestead to satisfy tax liens); Arred v. United States, 830 F. Supp. 212 (S.D.N.Y. 1993) (holding that homestead exemption does not apply to taxation). United States v. Pottorf, 898 F. Supp. 792 (D. Kans. 1995) (a state homestead interest could not prevent forcing the sale of homestead property); Benchmark Bank v. Crowder, 919 S.W.2d 657 (Tex. 1996) (liens enforceable against a debtor's homestead were not also valid against the debtor's nondelinquent spouse's interest in the homestead).

(n460)Footnote 1632. Wichita Falls ex rel. L. E. Whitham & Co. v. Williams, 26 S.W.2d 910 (Tex. 1930).

A statutory paving lien is not binding on homestead property. Amaya v. Texas Sec. Corp., 527 S.W.2d 218 (Tex. Civ. App. 1975); In re Cunningham, 163 B.R. 593 (Bankr. W.D. Wash. 1994) (holding that homestead is exempt from lien for real property taxes until state legislature creates exception); Cornerstone Bank v. Randel, 869 S.W.2d. 580 (Tex. App. 1993) (holding that inheritance tax could not be obtained from surviving spouse by foreclosing on homestead).

(n461)Footnote 1633. See Arnold v. Stephens, 296 S.W. 24 (Ark. 1927).

(n462)Footnote 1634. Dimke v. Finke, 295 N.W. 75 (Minn. 1940).

(n463)Footnote 1635. Erlenbach v. Cox, 89 So. 465 (Ala. 1921); Peoples Bank v. Barrow, 94 So. 600 (Ala. 1922); Union Oil Co. v. Norton Morgan Commercial Co., 202 P. 1077 (Ariz. 1922); Security Trust & Sav. Bank v. McClure, 241 P. 515 (Ariz. 1925); Gray v. Patterson, 46 S.W. 730 (Ark. 1898); Ackley v. Chamberlain, 16 Cal. 181 (1860); McDonald v. Badger, 23 Cal. 393 (1863); Lubbock v. McMann, 22 P. 1145 (Cal. 1889); Sanders v. Russell, 24 P. 852 (Cal. 1890); Boggs v. Dunn, 116 P. 743 (Cal. 1911); Martin v. Hildebrand, 212 P. 618 (Cal. 1923); Kemp v. Enemark, 230 P. 441 (Cal. 1924); Stockton Sav. & Loan Bank v. Mello, 256 P. 202 (Cal. 1927); Hohn v. Pauly, 106 P. 266 (Cal. App. 1909); Coca Cola Bottling Co. v. Feliciano, 114 P.2d 604 (Cal. App. 1941); Schuler-Knox Co. v. Smith, 144 P.2d 47 (Cal. App. 1943); Clausseneus v. Anderson, 30 Cal. Rptr. 772 (1963); Whitlock v. Alliance Coal Co., 214 P. 546 (Colo. 1923); Sterling Nat'l Bank v. Francis, 240 P. 945 (Colo. 1925); Wilhelm v. Locklar, 35 So. 6 (Fla. 1903); Milton v. Milton, 58 So. 718 (Fla. 1912); Choquette v. Dodge, 86 So. 271 (Fla. 1920); Jones v. Carpenter, 106 So. 127 (Fla. 1925); Hart v. Gulf Fertilizer Co., 108 So. 886 (Fla. 1926); Coleman v. Williams, 200 So. 207 (Fla. 1941); Gober v. Richards, 128 S.E. 668 (Ga. 1925); Kirkpatrick Hardware Co. v. Rogers, 134 S.E. 806 (Ga. App. 1926); Campbell v. Largilliere Co., 256 P. 371 (Idaho 1927); Bliss v. Clark, 39 Ill. 590 (1864); McDonald v. Crandall, 43 Ill. 231 (1867); Mayne v. Drury, 129 N.E. 77 (Ill. 1920); Diets v. Hagler, 141 N.E. 194 (Ill. 1923); Lehman v. Cottrell, 19 N.E.2d 111 (Ill. App. 1939); Barnard v. Brown, 13 N.E. 401 (Ind. 1887); Marmon v. White, 51 N.E. 930 (Ind. 1898); Green v. Forney, 111 N.W. 976 (Iowa 1907); James v. Weisman, 143 N.W. 428 (Iowa 1913); Wadle v. Boston Market Co., 191 N.W. 528 (Iowa 1923); Hallam v. Finch, 195 N.W. 352 (Iowa 1923); Brunsdon v. Brunsdon, 200 N.W. 823 (Iowa 1924); McConnell v. Wolcott, 78 P. 848 (Kan. 1904); Randolph v. Wilhite, 96 P. 492 (Kan. 1908); Dean v. Evans, 188 P. 436 (Kan. 1920); Owens v. Wagers, 235 P. 589 (Kan. 1925); Anderson v. Anderson, 123 P.2d 315 (Kan. 1942); Nunn v. Page, 121 S.W. 442 (Ky. 1909); Evansville Coffin Co. v. Sumner, 226 S.W. 363 (Ky. 1920); Graham v. Humm, 229 S.W. 80 (Ky. 1921); Kinser v. Norvelle-Chambers Shoe Co., 235 S.W. 740 (Ky. 1921); Wells v. Dixon, 283 S.W. 434 (Ky. 1926); Schexnailder v. Fontenot, 85 So. 207 (La. 1920); Clarke v. Oden, 99 So. 605 (La. 1924); Rigdon v. Bogan, 107 So. 403 (La. 1926); Allen v. Crane, 116 N.W. 392 (Mich. 1908); Goswitz v. Jefferson, 143 N.W. 720 (Minn. 1913); H. E. Westerman Lumber Co. v. Raschke, 208 N.W. 960 (Minn. 1926); Gordon v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co., 210 N.W. 87 (Minn. 1926); Renville State Bank v. Lentz, 214 N.W. 467 (Minn. 1927); Willis v. Allen, 95 So. 435 (Miss. 1923); Macke v. Byrd, 33 S.W. 448 (Mo. 1895); White v. Spencer, 117 S.W. 20 (Mo. 1909); Ehlers v. Potter, 219 S.W. 915 (Mo. 1920); Kelley v. Parman, 282 S.W. 755 (Mo. App.); Vincent v. Vineyard, 61 P. 131 (Mont. 1900); Giles v. Miller, 54 N.W. 551 (Neb. 1893); Hoy v. Anderson, 58 N.W. 125 (Neb. 1894); Roberts v. Robinson, 68 N.W. 1035 (Neb. 1896); Farmers Loan & Trust Co. v. Schwenk, 74 N.W. 1063 (Neb. 1898); Goble v. Brenneman, 106 N.W. 440 (Neb. 1905); Radbruck v. First Nat'l Bank, 145 N.W. 715 (Neb. 1914); Corn v. Hyde, 188 P. 1102 (N.M. 1920); Meyers Co. v. Mirabal, 202 P. 693 (N.M. 1921); Martin v. Meredith, 71 N.C. 214 (1874); Sugg v. Pollard, 115 S.E. 153 (N.C. 1922); Johnson v. Leavitt, 125 S.E. 490 (N.C. 1924) Gerlach Bank v. Allen, 152 P. 399 (Okla. 1915); Harris v. Cherokee State Bank, 198 P. 878 (Okla. 1921); Japp v. Sapulpa State Bank, 215 P. 1059 (Okla. 1923); Finerty v. First Nat'l Bank, 218 P. 859 (Okla. 1923); Holland v. Robbins, 219 P. 387 (Okla. 1923); Farmers Exch. Bank v. Cutler, 229 P. 186 (Okla. 1924); Kleindorfer v. Dascom-Daniels Lumber Co., 226 P. 354 (Okla. 1924); Booker v. First Nat'l Bank, 245 P. 881 (Okla. 1926); Kelough v. Neff, 382 P.2d 135 (Okla. 1963) Hansen v. Jones, 109 P. 868 (Or. 1910); De Haven & Son Hardware Co. v. Schultz, 259 P. 778 (Or. 1927); Ketchin v. McCarley, 11 S.E. 1099 (S.C. 1886); Harding v. Harding, 92 N.W. 1080 (S.D. 1902); Aisenbrey v. Hensley, 17 N.W.2d 267 (S.D. 1945); Freiberg v. Walzem, 20 S.W.

60 (Tex. 1892); Higgins v. Bordages, 31 S.W. 52 (Tex. 1895); Savage v. Cowan, 113 S.W. 319 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908); Harrison v. First Nat'l Bank, 224 S.W. 269 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Advance-Rumely Thresher Co. v. Blevins, 248 S.W. 1086 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923); Gates v. Pitts, 291 S.W. 948 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Harrison v. First Nat'l Bank, 238 S.W. 209 (Tex. Comp. App. 1922); Hughes v. Groshart, 150 S.W.2d 827 (Tex. Civ. App. 1941); Harms v. Ehlers, 179 S.W.2d 582 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944); Banks v. Gumm, 360 S.W.2d 836 (Tex. Civ. App. 1962); Payson Exch. Sav. Bank v. Tietjen, 225 P. 598 (Utah 1924); Traders Nat'l Bank v. Schorr, 54 P. 543 (Wash. 1898); Meikle v. Cloquet, 87 P. 841 (Wash. 1906); Security Nat'l Bank v. Mason, 200 P. 1097 (Wash. 1921); Insley v. Webb, 209 P. 1093 (Wash. 1922); Lyon v. Herboth, 233 P. 24 (Wash. 1925); Brown v. Manos, 250 P. 36 (Wash. 1926); Stafford v. Stafford, 140 P.2d 545 (Wash. 1943); Lien v. Hoffman, 306 P.2d 240 (Wash. 1957) (where judgment has been taken against land which is later declared a homestead, the owner may sell the land to a third party free and clear of the judgment).

Seamans v. Carter, 15 Wis. 548 (1862); Stanley v. Sullivan, 37 N.W. 801 (Wis. 1888); Reburg v. Lang, 1 N.W.2d 759 (Wis. 1942) Altman v. District Ct. of Second Judicial Dist., 254 P. 691 (Wyo. 1927).

Homestead had priority over lien for personal property taxes not situated on the property. Curtis v. Kern County, 113 Cal. Rptr. 41 (1974).

A judgment lien cannot attach to property which is subject to a prior homestead declaration. Swearingen v. Byrne, 136 Cal. Rptr. 736 (1977); Weber v. Weber, 501 N.W.2d 413 (Wis. 1993) (holding that homestead is exempt from judgment lien, but not from mortgage foreclosure); United States v. Johnson, 160 F.3d 1061 (5th Cir. 1998) (holding that under Texas law, judgment liens normally are not valid on homestead property); Prieto v. Eastern Nat'l Bank, 719 So. 2d 1264 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1998).

(n464)Footnote 1636. Moore v. Granger, 30 Ark. 574 (1875); McKee v. Waters, 265 S.W. 947 (Ark. 1924); Arnold v. Stephens, 296 S.W. 24 (Ark. 1927).

State Bank v. Carson, 4 Neb. 498 (1876); Kaley v. Eselin, 188 N.W. 254 (Neb. 1922); Smith v. Brackett, 36 Barb. (N.Y.) 571 (1862); Sample v. Jackson, 35 S.E.2d 236 (N.C. 1945); Appeal of Eberhart, 39 Pa. 509 (1861); Gray v. Stevens, 302 P.2d 273 (Utah 1956).

Homestead subject to execution for judgment rendered prior to time homestead was established. Aetna Ins. Co. v. La Gasse, 223 So. 2d 727 (Fla. 1969).

Judgment lien attaches to homestead property to extent its value exceeds the statute. Shepard & Morse Lumber Co. v. Clawson, 486 P.2d 542 (Or. 1971); Tassone v. Tovar, 28 Cal. App. 4th 765 (1994) (holding that judgment lien attaches to homestead in surplus over total of all liens and encumbrances); In re Henderson, 18 F.3d 1305 (5th Cir. 1994) (holding that judicial lien attaches to homestead, but property is exempt from its enforcement); In re Marriage of Johnson, 872 P.2d 308 (Kan. App. 1994) (holding that homestead exemption protects against forced sales for judgment liens for past due child support); In re Harrison, 164 B.R. 611 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding that judgment lien attaches to homestead which exceeds the exemption limit); In re Zupan, 172 B.R. 250 (Bankr. S.D. Ind. 1993) (holding that judgment lien attaches to homestead which exceeds the exemption limit); In re Ward, 157 B.R. 643 (Bankr. C.D. Ill. 1993) (holding that judgment lien attaches to homestead which exceeds the exemption limit); In re Chabot, 992 F.2d 891 (9th Cir. 1993) (holding that judgment lien attaches to equity in property after subtracting prior liens and exemption); In re Moler, 152 B.R. 561 (Bankr. S.D. Ill. 1993) (holding that judgment lien attaches to appreciation of homestead value accumulating above exemption); In re Richardson, 224 B.R. 804 (Bankr. N.D. Okla. 1998) (holding that judgment liens attach to homestead property when the property no longer qualifies as debtor's homestead, judgment lien creditor may immediately execute and satisfy its judgment and, as another possible effect of amendment may establish priority over later consensual creditors); see also In re McKinney-Jones, 219 B.R. 619, 621 (Bankr. W.D. Okla. 1998) (stating that purpose of Oklahoma's homestead exemption is to provide shelter from elements, not shelter from creditors).

(n465)Footnote 1637. See Green v. Marks, 25 Ill. 221 (1861); Alley v. Bay, 9 Iowa 509 (1859); Lamb v. Shays, 14 Iowa 567 (1863); Rector v. Rotton, 3 Neb. 171 (1874); Allen v. Cook, 26 Barb. (N.Y.) 374 (1858).

(n466)Footnote 1638. Lehman v. Cottrell, 19 N.E.2d 111 (Ill. App. 1939); Wilson v. Hayes-Lucas Lumber Co., 207 N.W. 155 (S.D. 1926) modified, 226 N.W.2d 343 (S.D. 1929).

(n467)Footnote 1639. Bliss v. Clark, 39 Ill. 590 (1864); Summers Hardware Co. v. Jones, 23 S.E.2d 883 (N.C. 1943); First State Bank v. Fischer, 272 N.W. 752 (N.D. 1937); In re Jones, 166 B.R. 657 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding that judicial liens are destroyed the day the homestead is sold and the proceeds are not sufficient to cover the exemption and all prior liens).

(n468)Footnote 1640. Moore v. Granger, 30 Ark. 574 (1875); Hoyt v. Howe, 3 Wis. 752 (1854).

(n469)Footnote 1641. Tillotson v. Millard, 7 Minn. 513 (1862).

(n470)Footnote 1642. Yager v. Yager, 60 P.2d 422 (Cal. 1936).

(n471)Footnote 1643. Insley v. Webb, 209 P. 1093 (Wash. 1922).

(n472)Footnote 1644. Emrich v. Gilbert Mfg. Co., 35 So. 322 (Ala. 1903); White v. Rosenthal, 35 P.2d 154 (Cal. App. 1934); First Nat'l Bank v. Peel, 145 So. 177 (Fla. 1932); Smith v. Richards, 21 P. 419 (Idaho 1889); First Nat'l Bank v. Vest, 58 N.E. 229 (Ill. 1900); Elston v. Robinson, 21 Iowa 531 (1866); Reusch v. Shafer, 41 N.W.2d 651 (Iowa 1950); Marshall v. Mahorney, 63 S.W. 471 (Ky. 1901); Ellis v. J. Freyhan & Co., 49 So. 975 (La. 1909); Rusch v. Lagerman, 261 N.W. 186 (Minn. 1935); Bunn v. Lindsay, 7 S.W. 473 (Mo. 1888); Wall v. Duggan, 245 P. 953 (Mont. 1926); Paxton v. Sutton, 73 N.W. 221 (Neb. 1897) And see Welch v. Falk, 291 N.W. 488 (Neb. 1940); First State Bank v. Fischer, 272 N.W. 752 (N.D. 1937); Northwest Thresher Co. v. McCarroll, 118 P. 352 (Okla. 1911); Hansen v. Jones, 109 P. 868 (Ore. 1910); Gage v. Neblett, 57 Tex. 374 (1882); Freiberg v. Walzem, 20 S.W. 60 (Tex. 1892); Johnson v. Prosper State Bank, 125 S.W.2d 707 (Tex. Civ. App. 1939); Cabell v. Given, 5 S.E. 442 (W. Va. 1888); Bridge v. Ward, 35 Wis. 687 (1874); In re Hogan's Estate, 282 N.W. 5 (Wis. 1938).

(n473)Footnote 1645. Wheeler Perry Co. v. Mortgage Bond Co., 17 P.2d 331 (Ariz. 1932); Bean v. Eves, 20 P.2d 544 (Colo. 1933); White v. Hartman, 145 P. 716 (26 Colo. App. 1915); Kirkpatrick Hardware Co. v. Rogers, 134 S.E. 806 (Ga. App. 1926); Richie v. Duke, 12 So. 208 (Miss. 1892); Wood v. Bowles, 46 So. 414 (Miss. 1908); Barnes & Co. v. Buchanan, 67 So. 462 (Miss. 1915), suggestion of error denied, 68 So. 81; Wright v. Bond, 37 S.E. 65 (N.C. 1900); Wildermuth v. Koenig, 41 Oh. St. 180 (1884); Chafee & Co., v. Rainey, 21 S.C. 11 (1883) Compare Ex parte Morrow, 190 S.E. 506 (S.C. 1937); Blose v. Bear, 12 S.E. 294 (Va. 1890); Kenyon v. Erskine, 124 P. 392 (Wash. 1912); Brown v. Manos, 250 P. 36 (Wash. 1926) Compare, Pratt v. McInroe, 283 P. 1089 (Wash. 1930). See Christian G. Steinmetz, Judgment Lien Claimant's Rights against Homestead Exemption Interests: An Equitable Distribution of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale Proceeds, 1981 Wis. L. Rev. 697, 732 (July-Aug. 1981).

(n474)Footnote 1646. Schaeffer v. Beldsmeier, 17 S.W. 797 (Mo. 1891).

Rental income from the leased portion of an exempt homestead is also exempt if not from a business homestead. Schwanz v. Teper, 223 N.W.2d 896 (Wis. 1974).

(n475)Footnote 1647. Minor v. Interstate Gravel Co., 94 So. 3 (Miss. 1922).

If the sale by the owner of the homestead is voluntary, the proceeds are subject to claims of creditors but are not subject if the sale was forced and the proceeds are intended to be used to purchase another homestead. Obenshain v. Obenshain, 480 S.W.2d 567 (Ark. 1972). In re Glaze, 169 B.R. 956 (Bankr. D. Ariz. 1994) (holding that when the purchaser had a specific performance judgment enforcing a contract to sell land, the seller could not claim homestead in the proceeds of the sale without paying damages for the breach of contract).

(n476)Footnote 1648. Meyers v. American Oil Co., 5 So. 2d 218 (Miss. 1941).

(n477)Footnote 1649. Homestead was subject to homeowner's association contract liens. Kell v. Bella Vista Village Prop. Owners Ass'n, 528 S.W.2d 651 (Ark. 1975).

(n478)Footnote 1650. In re Marriage of Banks, 887 S.W.2d 160 (Tex. App. 1994). See In re Graziadei, 32 F.3d 1408 (9th Cir. 1994) (holding that homestead was exempt from debt to attorney because obligation was not for support of former spouse, but for attorney fees and costs).

(n479)Footnote 1651. United States v. One Parcel of Property Located at Lot 85, Country Ridge, A Subdivision in the City of Lenexa, Johnson County, Kansas, 894 F. Supp. 397 (D. Kan. 1995).

(n480)Footnote 1652. Temporary abandonment of income-producing portion of the homestead does not remove its homestead character so as to make the property liable to execution in satisfaction of judgment lien. Olesky v. Nicholas, 82 So. 2d 510 (Fla. 1955).

(n481)Footnote 1653. Brown v. Turner, 207 P.2d 927 (Okla. 1949); In re Brown's Estate, 183 P.2d 768 (Wash. 1947); Moore v. Hunter, 13 So. 2d 909 (Fla. 1943) (deed of homestead by husband to wife on separation); In re Cole, 205 B.R. 382 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1997) (holding that a homestead was abandoned when the owners transferred title to a family partnership); In re Reitnauer, 223 B.R. 913 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1998); Colwell v. Royal Interstate Trading Co., 226 B.R. 714 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1998); In re Beebe, 224 B.R. 817 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1998).

(n482)Footnote 1654. In re Hawthorne, 45 F. Supp. 374 (D. Tex. 1942); Thomas v. Thomas, 18 So. 2d 544 (Ala. 1944); Jones v. Thompson, 166 S.W.2d 1036 (Ark. 1942); Edson-Keith & Co. v. Bedwell, 122 P. 392 (Colo. 1912); Rasmussen v. Rasmussen, 13 N.E.2d 166 (Ill. 1938); Postlethwaite v. Edson, 171 P. 768 (Kan. 1917); Klotz v. Rhodes, 144 S.W. 791 (Mo. 1912); Austin v. Stanley, 46 N.H. 51 (1865); Davis v. Low, 135 P. 314 (Or. 1913); Warner v. Hopkins, 176 N.W. 746 (S.D. 1920); Bell v. Schwarz, 37 Tex. 572 (1872-73); Radtke v. Radtke, 19 N.W.2d 169 (Wis. 1945); In re Mackey, 158 B.R. 509 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that under Florida homestead law, once property has homestead status, it maintains that status until it is abandoned).

(n483)Footnote 1655. Phifer v. Miller, 45 N.W.2d 907 (Neb. 1951); In re Lewis, 216 B.R. 644 (Bankr. N.D. Okla. 1998) (holding that "abandonment" is a term of art and its meaning goes beyond mere vacation of premises, and circumstances, among others, that indicate abandonment of homestead include purchase of new homestead, relinquishment of title to property, and declarations and actions of parties claiming homestead tending to indicate intent to return).

(n484)Footnote 1656. Phillips v. Springfield, 39 Ill. 83 (1866).

(n485)Footnote 1657. McIntosh v. Borchers, 241 N.W.2d 534 (Neb. 1976) appeal after remand, 266 N.W.2d 200 (Neb. 1978); In re Walicek, 4 F.2d 265 (1925); In re Beebe, 224 B.R. 817 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1998); In re Roberts, 215 B.R. 197 (Bankr. D. Neb. 1997) (holding that a homestead exemption is granted to a married person solely on the basis of the marital status without regard to having non-spouse dependents and that the intent to sell the homestead property does not constitute abandonment of the homestead); In re Raymond, 987 F.2d 675 (10th Cir. 1993) (holding that debtor had not abandoned her homestead when she intended to move in the immediate future).

(n486)Footnote 1658. Mower v. Sharit, 85 So. 23 (Ala. 1920); Lucky v. Roberts, 100 So. 878 (Ala. 1924); Thomas v. Thomas, 18 So. 2d 544 (Ala. 1944); Long v. Hoffman, 148 S.W. 245 (Ark. 1912); Wooten v. Farmers & Merchants Bank, 249 S.W. 569 (Ark. 1912); Caldcleugh v. Caldcleugh, 250 S.W. 324 (Ark. 1923); Rasmussen v. Rasmussen, 13 N.E.2d 166 (Ill. 1938); Kawszewicz v. Kawszewicz, 53 N.E.2d 386 (Ill. 1944); Schaffer v. Campbell, 199 N.W. 334 (Iowa 1924); Butler v. Cleland, 202 N.W. 557 (Iowa 1925); Charter v. Thomas, 292 N.W. 842 (Iowa 1940); Conway v. Reed, 235 S.W. 747 (Ky. 1921); Smith v. Moss, 277 S.W. 245 (Ky. 1925); St. Mary Bank & Trust Co. v. Daigle, 55 So. 345 (La. 1911); First Nat'l Bank v. Brooks, 113 So. 853 (La. 1927); Corn v. Hyde, 188 P. 1102 (N.M. 1920); Japp v.

Sapulpa State Bank, 215 P. 1059 (Ore. 1923); First Nat'l Bank v. Burnett, 254 P. 95 (Okla. 1927); De Haven & Son Hardware Co. v. Schultz, 259 P. 778 (Or. 1927); Yellow-Hair v. Pratt, 182 N.W. 702 (S.D. 1921); Randleman v. Cargile, 163 S.W. 350 (Tex. Civ. App. 1914); Hibbs v. City Nat'l Bank, 293 S.W. 350 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); R.B. Spencer & Co. v. Green, 203 S.W.2d 957 (Tex. Civ. App. 1947); Funderburk v. Dofflemyer, 234 S.W.2d 889 (Tex. Civ. App. 1950); Chalk v. Daggett, 257 S.W. 228 (Tex. Com. App. 1924).

Homestead is abandoned only if left with no intention to return; continuous possession is not required. Monroe v. Monroe, 465 S.W.2d 347 (Ark. 1971).

If the homestead has once been acquired a mere temporary lease of the premises to another does not destroy the homestead. Gonzales v. Guajardo de Gonzales, 541 S.W.2d 865 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976); In re Ross, 210 B.R. 320 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1997) (holding (1) that the Illinois homestead statute permits a boat used as a primary residence to be claimed as a homestead exemption and (2) that the homestead was not abandoned when the owner temporarily resided on land during the winter season, but had the intent to return); In re Sullivan, 200 B.R. 682 (Bankr. D. Nev. 1996) (holding that property owners abandon their homestead when they move to a new residence and lease the old residence to a tenant, and they lacked sufficient intent to return; and that a declaration of abandonment was not required, even though a Nevada statute required declaration of abandonment); In re Leonard, 194 B.R. 807 (Bankr. N. D. Tex. 1996) (holding that property owners did not abandon their homestead when they moved to another home for three years, because they intended to return to the homestead); Hardeman v. Judge, 931 S.W.2d 716 (Tex. App. 1996) (a guardian may abandon ward's homestead when it is in the ward's best interest to do so).

(n487)Footnote 1659. Musser v. Zurcher, 146 N.W.2d 559 (Neb. 1966); In re Brink, 162 B.R. 355 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that Florida residents who moved to North Carolina effectively abandoned Florida homestead); Moore v. Krueger, 507 N.W.2d 155 (Wis. App. 1993) (holding that homestead was disqualified when debtors moved out of it with vague intention to reoccupy, if they could not sell it); In re Mackey, 158 B.R. 509 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that debtor abandoned homestead when she accepted a job and moved, listing the property for sale, even though her son lived in homestead and the debtor promised to return if the property did not sell or the job failed).

(n488)Footnote 1660. Farmers Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Jones, 56 S.W. 1062 (Ark. 1900); Stewart v. Pritchard, 141 S.W. 505 (Ark. 1911); Guiod v. Guiod, 14 Cal. 506 (1860); Barson v. Fowler, 65 Ill. 146 (1872); Hand v. Winn, 52 Miss. 784 (1876); Foss v. Strachn, 42 N.H. 40 (1860); Jordan v. Godman, 19 Tex. 273 (1857); Contra, Dunn v. Tozer, 10 Cal. 167 (1858); Stolldorf v. Stolldorf, 384 P.2d 969 (Wyo. 1963) (nonresident widow entitled to homestead as against purchaser who had bought homestead from husband).

(n489)Footnote 1661. Croker v. Croker, 7 F.2d 218 (D.C. Fla. 1925); McKenzie v. Rumph, 286 S.W. 1022 (Ark. 1926); Nicholas v. Ward, 168 S.W.2d 1095 (Ark. 1943); Sims v. McFadden, 233 S.W.2d 375 (Ark. 1950); McArthur v. Bridges, 103 S.E. 795 (Ga. 1920); Krueger v. Groth, 209 N.W. 772 (Wis. 1926).

Contra, Crawford v. Carter, 37 N.W.2d 241 (S.D. 1949).

(n490)Footnote 1662. Pierce v. Gibson, 184 S.W. 502 (Tex. 1916); Bishop v. Williams, 223 S.W. 512 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Ritz v. First Nat'l Bank, 234 S.W. 425 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921).

(n491)Footnote 1663. L'Engle v. Forbes, 81 So. 2d 214 (Fla. 1955).

Removal of one to a nursing home where he died a year later did not constitute abandonment of the homestead. In re Gotthart's Estate, 202 N.W.2d 397 (Wis. 1972); Moore v. Krueger, 507 N.W.2d 155 (Wis. App. 1993) (holding that even though the owners could not show that their absence from the home, before it was sold, was temporary, the proceeds of the sale were protected by the homestead exemption allowing them to be used to buy a new home).

(n492)Footnote 1664. Gambette v. Brock, 41 Cal. 78 (1871); Dearing v. Thomas, 25 Ga. 223 (1858); White v.

Clark, 36 Ill. 285 (1865).

In Illinois where one spouse separates from the other and abandons the premises, the homestead rights accrue to the other spouse. Anderson v. Anderson, 356 N.E.2d 788 (Ill. App. 1976), appeal after remand, 378 N.E.2d 1079 (Ill. App. 1978).

"Where the husband abandons his home and family, his act would not, of course, operate to estop his wife from insisting upon her homestead right, but where he still maintains the family relation and by deed or lease or by other act assumes to abandon the homestead, and the wife leaves the homestead to accompany her husband when he abandons it, she waives her right to object, and, if after so yielding her right she finds the change to have been unwise or unfortunate, she cannot withdraw her waiver to the prejudice of third parties," and this is so even though the statute invalidates "conveyances of a homestead where the husband and wife do not unite in executing the same joint instrument." Shaffer v. Miller, 192 N.W. 868 (Iowa 1923).

See Farmers Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Jones, 56 S.W. 1062 (Ark. 1900); Stewart v. Pritchard, 141 S.W. 505 (Ark. 1911).

(n493)Footnote 1665. Cohn v. Litwin, 35 N.E.2d 410 (Ill. App. 1941); Williams v. Williams, 184 N.W. 114 (Neb. 1921).

(n494)Footnote 1666. Novotny v. Horecka, 206 N.W. 110 (Iowa 1925).

(n495)Footnote 1667. Kinney v. Patterson, 282 S.W.2d 809 (Ark. 1955) (presumption of abandonment on establishing new home); Smith v. Marino, 28 So. 2d 780 (La. App. 1947); Karls v. Nichols, 28 N.W.2d 595 (Neb. 1947); Williams v. Johnson, 53 S.E.2d 277 (N.C. 1949); Long Bell Lumber Co. v. Miller, 240 S.W.2d 405 (Tex. Civ. App. 1951).

(n496)Footnote 1668. O'Neal v. Miller, 196 So. 478 (Fla. 1940); Korn v. Korn, 15 S.W.2d 1017 (Tex. Com. App. 1929).

(n497)Footnote 1669. Younger v. Gianotti, 138 S.W.2d 448 (Tenn. 1940).

(n498)Footnote 1670. McCullough v. Forbes, 47 So. 2d 780 (Fla. 1950).

Renting on crop shares was not abandonment. In re Sueppel's Estate, 124 N.W.2d 154 (Iowa 1963).

(n499)Footnote 1671. Marathon Oil Co. v. Western Oil & Drilling Co., 89 P.2d 939 (Okla. 1939).

Removal from a homestead and living in another place abandons the first and creates a new homestead. Norman v. First Bank & Trust Co. of Bryan, 557 S.W.2d 797 (Tex. Civ. App. 1977); In re Leonard, 194 B.R. 807 (Bankr. N. D. Tex. 1996) (holding that property owners did not abandon their homestead when they moved to another home for three years, because they intended to return to the homestead); Coury v. Prot, 85 F.2d 244 (5th Cir. 1996) (abandoned homestead exemption).

(n500)Footnote 1672. Fyffe v. Beers, 18 Iowa 4, 85 Am. Dec. 577 (1864); Baker v. Estridge, 157 S.W. 1080 (Ky. 1913); Millett v. Pearson, 173 N.W. 411 (Minn. 1919); Smith v. Spafford, 112 N.W. 965 (N.D. 1907); Blatchley v. Dakota Land & Cattle Co., 145 N.W. 95 (N.D. 1914); Carter v. Pickett, 134 P. 440 (Okla. 1913).

(n501)Footnote 1673. Stewart v. Pritchard, 141 S.W. 505 (Ark. 1911); Brennan v. Wallace, 25 Cal. 108 (1864); Olesky v. Nicholas, 82 So. 2d 510 (Fla. 1955); Potts v. Davenport, 79 Ill. 455 (1875); Fyffe v. Beers, 18 Iowa 4 (1864); Shepherd v. Cassiday, 20 Tex. 24 (1857), aff'd, Weiner v. Zweib, 141 S.W. 771 (Tex. 1911); Wiener v. Zweib, 128 S.W. 699 (Tex. Civ. App. 1910); In re Gerrald, 151 B.R. 217 (Bankr. W.D. Ark. 1993) (holding that abandonment of homestead is a question of fact and that the debtor is not entitled to homestead when the debtor clearly testifies about intent to abandon it); In re Beebe, 224 B.R. 817 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1998).

(n502)Footnote 1674. Millett v. Pearson, 173 N.W. 411 (Minn. 1919); Staten v. Harris, 239 S.W. 334 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922); Bayless v. Guthrie, 235 S.W. 843 (Tex. Com. App. 1921); Clem Lab. Co. v. Elliott Lab. Co., 254 S.W. 935 (Tex. Com. App. 1923).

(n503)Footnote 1675. In re Johnson, 294 F. 258 (5th Cir.); Bratton v. Union Sawmill Co., 271 S.W. 32 (Ark. 1925); Shaffer v. Miller, 192 N.W. 868 (Iowa 1923); Gordon v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co., 210 N.W. 87 (Minn. 1926); Maupin v. Longacre, 288 S.W. 54 (Mo. 1926); Grotberg v. First Nat'l Bank, 210 N.W. 21 (N.D. 1926); Brattain v. Hite, 224 P. 501 (Okla. 1924); Greenwood v. Wilkinson, 256 P. 46 (Okla. 1927); Yellow-Hair v. Pratt, 182 N.W. 702 (S.D. 1921); Llewellyn v. First Nat'l Bank, 265 S.W. 222 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Bueno v. Bueno De Khawly, 643 So. 2d 1174 (Fla. App. 1994) (holding that homestead status was lost when the owner voluntary abandoned the property without the intent to return).

(n504)Footnote 1676. American State Bank v. Leforce, 218 P. 1073 (Okla. 1923); First Nat'l Bank v. Burnett, 254 P. 95 (Okla. 1927); Warner v. Hopkins, 176 N.W. 746 (S.D. 1920).

(n505)Footnote 1677. Walker v. Dailey, 290 S.W. 813 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927) See Corn v. Hyde, 188 P. 1102 (N.M. 1920).

(n506)Footnote 1678. Warner v. Hopkins, 176 N.W. 746 (S.D. 1920) See Krueger v. Groth, 209 N.W. 772 (Wis. 1926) Cf., In re Walicek, 4 F.2d 265 (1925); Brattain v. Hite, 224 P. 501 (Okla. 1924).

(n507)Footnote 1679. Mower v. Sharit, 85 So. 23 (Ala. 1920); Davis v. Neihardt, 181 N.W. 177 (Mich. 1921); Brattain v. Hite, 224 P. 501 (Okla. 1924); Hibbs v. City Nat'l Bank, 293 S.W. 350 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927).

(n508)Footnote 1680. Citizens State Bank v. Bird, 249 P. 593 (Kan. 1926); First Nat'l Bank v. Burnett, 254 P. 95 (Okla. 1927); Orr v. Wallace, 285 S.W. 650 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926), aff'd, Harrison v. Orr, 296 S.W. 871 (Tex. Com. App. 1927), modified, Harrison v. Orr, 10 S.W.2d 381 (Tex. Com. App. 1928); Cf., Nelson v. Hainlin, 104 So. 589 (Fla. 1925).

(n509)Footnote 1681. In re Teel's Estate, 210 P.2d 1 (Cal. 1949). But both spouses must execute the agreement. Johnson v. Brauner, 281 P.2d 50 (Cal. 1955); Campbell v. Largilliere Co., 256 P. 371 (Idaho 1927); Brown v. Manos, 250 P. 36 (Wash. 1926); In re Sullivan, 200 B.R. 682 (Bankr. D. Nev. 1996) (holding that property owners abandon their homestead when they move to a new residence and lease the old residence to a tenant, and they lacked sufficient intent to return; and that a declaration of abandonment was not required, even though a Nevada statute required declaration of abandonment); In re Thiesse, 170 B.R. 147 (Bankr. D. Minn. 1994) (holding that Minnesota statute provides debtor with absolute right to leave homestead for six months even though when leaving there is no intention to return).

(n510)Footnote 1682. In re Johnson, 294 F. 258 (5th Cir. 1923); In re Reagor, 294 F. 875 (5th Cir. 1923); Mower v. Sharit, 85 So. 23 (Ala. 1920); Caldcleugh v. Caldcleugh, 250 S.W. 324 (Ark. 1923); Gillis v. Gillis, 262 S.W. 307 (Ark. 1924); Read v. Leitner, 86 So. 425 (Fla. 1920); Illinois Oldsmobile Co. v. Miller, 202 N.W. 751 (Iowa 1925); Fardal v. Satre, 206 N.W. 22 (Iowa 1925); Koehler v. Gray, 172 P. 25 (Kan. 1918); Evansville Coffin Co. v. Sumner, 226 S.W. 363 (Ky. 1920); Conway v. Reed, 235 S.W. 747 (Ky. 1921); Smith v. Moss, 277 S.W. 245 (Ky. 1925); Rigdon v. Bogan, 107 So. 403 (La. 1926); Davis v. Neihardt, 181 N.W. 177 (Mich. 1921); Schaf v. Corey, 196 N.W. 502 (N.D. 1923); Grotberg v. First Nat'l Bank, 210 N.W. 21 (N.D. 1926); De Haven & Son Hardware Co. v. Schultz, 259 P. 778 (Or. 1927); Ritz v. First Nat'l Bank, 234 S.W. 425 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921); Good v. Good, 293 S.W. 621 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); W.E. Thomas Lab. Co. v. McClain, 294 S.W. 250 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927).

"While a party leaving a homestead must, in good faith, intend to return to it at some future date, such date need not be "fixed or definite as to time; neither need such intent be an intent to return regardless of all possible contingencies; but, if there is an honest belief that at some time in the future the party will reoccupy the property as a home, and such party does no act inconsistent with such belief and intent, the homestead right is not forfeited." Yellow-Hair v. Pratt, 182 N.W. 702 (S.D. 1921).

Abandonment by the husband of his wife does not terminate the homestead. Julian v. Andrews, 491 S.W.2d 721 (Tex. Civ. App. 1973).

In Texas a homestead may be temporarily rented, if no new homestead has been acquired. Gonzales v. Guajardo de Gonzales, 541 S.W.2d 865 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976); In re Ross, 210 B.R. 320 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1997) (holding (1) that the Illinois homestead statute permits a boat used as a primary residence to be claimed as a homestead exemption and (2) that the homestead was not abandoned when the owner temporarily resided on land during the winter season, but had the intent to return); In re Leonard, 194 B.R. 807 (Bankr. N. D. Tex. 1996) (holding that property owners did not abandon their homestead when they moved to another home for three years, because they intended to return to the homestead); In re Garcia, 168 B.R. 403 (D. Ariz. 1994) (holding that temporary absence does not defeat homestead when debtor intends premises to be residence).

(n511)Footnote 1683. Schaffer v. Campbell, 199 N.W. 334 (Iowa 1924); Novotny v. Horecka, 206 N.W. 110 (Iowa 1924); Rigdon v. Bogan, 107 So. 403 (La. 1926).

(n512)Footnote 1684. Clolinger v. Callahan, 263 S.W. 700 (Ky. 1924); Garner v. Freeman, 42 So. 767 (La. 1907); Millett v. Pearson, 173 N.W. 411 (Minn. 1919); Huffman v. Smyth, 84 P. 80 (Or. 1906); Bryant v. Freeman, 183 S.W. 731 (Tenn. 1916).

(n513)Footnote 1685. Novotny v. Horecka, 206 N.W. 110 (Iowa 1925).

(n514)Footnote 1686. Lyons v. Andry, 31 So. 38 (La. 1901); Rigdon v. Bogan, 107 So. 403 (La. 1926).

(n515)Footnote 1687. Weatherington v. Smith, 109 N.W. 381 (Neb. 1906); Dougherty v. White, 200 N.W. 884 (Neb. 1924); Meidinger v. Security State Bank, 213 N.W. 850 (N.D. 1927); Minnesota Stoneware Co. v. McCrossen, 85 N.W. 1019 (Wis. 1901).

(n516)Footnote 1688. First Nat'l Bank v. Brooks, 113 So. 853 (La. 1927).

(n517)Footnote 1689. McElwee v. McElwee, 219 S.W. 30 (Ark. 1920); Lanier v. Lanier, 116 So. 867 (Fla. 1928); Grotberg v. First Nat'l Bank, 210 N.W. 21 (N.D. 1926); Warner v. Hopkins, 176 N.W. 746 (S.D. 1920); Weitzman v. Lee, 262 S.W. 859 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924).

(n518)Footnote 1690. Read v. Leitner, 86 So. 425 (Fla. 1920); Dougherty v. White, 200 N.W. 884 (Neb. 1924); Corn v. Hyde, 188 P. 1102 (N.M. 1920); Japp v. Sapulpa State Bank, 215 P. 1059 (Okla. 1923); Tarleton v. Thompson, 118 S.E. 421 (S.C. 1923); Warner v. Hopkins, 176 N.W. 746 (S.D. 1920); In re Bruton, 167 B.R. 923 (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1994) (holding that automatic homestead exemption applied to condominium which debtor left temporarily empty for out-of-town employment).

(n519)Footnote 1691. Read v. Leitner, 86 So. 425 (Fla. 1920); Schaffer v. Campbell, 199 N.W. 334 (Iowa 1924); Grotberg v. First Nat'l Bank, 210 N.W. 21 (N.D. 1921).

(n520)Footnote 1692. Mower v. Sharit, 85 So. 23 (Ala. 1920); Rigdon v. Bogan, 107 So. 403 (La. 1926); Larson v. Cole, 33 N.W.2d 325 (N.D. 1948); De Haven & Son Hardware Co. v. Schultz, 259 P. 778 (Or. 1927); Warner v. Hopkins, 176 N.W. 746 (S.D. 1920); Yellow-Hair v. Pratt, 182 N.W. 702 (S.D. 1921); Gerhart v. Quirk, 209 N.W. 544 (S.D. 1926); Knittel v. G. Sommers & Co., 28 N.W.2d 878 (S.D. 1947); In re Leonard, 194 B.R. 807 (Bankr. N. D. Tex. 1996) (holding that property owners did not abandon their homestead when they moved to another home for three years, because they intended to return to the homestead).

(n521)Footnote 1693. Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943); Warner v. Hopkins, 176 N.W. 746 (S.D. 1920).

(n522)Footnote 1694. Implied warranty of habitability in all leases of multiple-unit dwellings. Jack Spring, Inc. v. Little, 280 N.E.2d 208 (Ill. 1972).

(n523)Footnote 1695. Dunn v. Tozer, 10 Cal. 167 (1858); Campbell v. Adair, 45 Miss. 170 (1871); Austin v. Stanley, 46 N.H. 51 (1865); Wetz v. Beard, 12 Oh. St. 431 (1861); Herrick v. Graves, 16 Wis. 157 (1862); In re Betancourt, 154 B.R. 90 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that a debtor did not abandon his homestead merely because he rented the property to a third party in anticipation of an extended visit to relatives).

(n524)Footnote 1696. Fisher v. Cornell, 70 Ill. 216 (1873); In re Phelan's Estate, 16 Wis. 76 (1862).

If the homestead has once been acquired, a mere temporary lease of the premises to another does not destroy the homestead. Gonzales v. Guajardo de Gonzales, 541 S.W.2d 865 (Tex. Civ. App. 1976); In re Sullivan, 200 B.R. 682 (Bankr. D. Nev. 1996) (holding that property owners abandon their homestead when they move to a new residence and lease the old residence to a tenant, and they lacked sufficient intent to return; and that a declaration of abandonment was not required, even though a Nevada statute required declaration of abandonment).

(n525)Footnote 1697. In re Walicek, 4 F.2d 265 (D. Tex. 1925); Taylor v. Gallaha, 103 So. 450 (Ala. 1925); McElwee v. McElwee, 219 S.W. 30 (Ark. 1920); Succession of Veronie, 84 So. 439 (La. 1920); Grotberg v. First Nat'l Bank, 210 N.W. 21 (N.D. 1926); Long v. Talley, 201 P. 990 (Okla. 1921); Bowman v. Bowman, 206 P.2d 582 (Okla. 1949); De Haven & Son Hardware Co. v. Schultz, 259 P. 778 (Or. 1927); Yellow-Hair v. Pratt, 182 N.W. 702 (S.D. 1921); Dunlap v. English, 230 S.W. 829 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921); Lewis v. Pitts, 275 S.W. 473 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925); Hibbs v. City Nat'l Bank, 293 S.W. 350 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927).

Cf., Miles v. Miles, 99 So. 187 (Ala. 1924); Hollis v. American Wholesale Corp., 112 So. 204 (Ala. 1927); Harston v. Langston, 292 S.W. 648 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); In re Kretzinger, 103 F.3d 943 (10th Cir. 1996) (holding that leasing part of a selected rural homestead to tenants for agricultural purposes is consistent with the required homestead use and thereby does not forfeit the leased property from the homestead exemption).

(n526)Footnote 1698. Thompson v. Thompson, 236 S.W.2d 779 (Tex. 1951).

(n527)Footnote 1699. Rancho Oil Co. v. Powell, 175 S.W.2d 960 (Tex. 1943).

(n528)Footnote 1700. Zuniga v. Evans, 48 P.2d 513 (Utah 1935).

As long as the spouse's homestead exists there can be no partition of the realty. Biggs v. Roberts, 115 So. 2d 151 (Miss. 1959).

(n529)Footnote 1701. In re Hawthorne, 45 F. Supp. 374 (D. Tex. 1942); Gray v. Patterson, 46 S.W. 730, 1119 (Ark. 1898); Montgomery v. Dane, 98 S.W. 715 (Ark. 1906); Stewart v. Pritchard, 141 S.W. 505 (Ark. 1911); McDaniel v. Conlan, 204 S.W. 850 (Ark. 1918); Bradley v. Humphreys, 83 S.W.2d 828 (Ark. 1935); Keesee v. Bushart, 158 S.W.2d 915 (Ark. 1942); Guiod v. Guiod, 14 Cal. 506 (1860); Hillsborough Inv. Co. v. Wilcox, 13 So. 2d 448 (Fla. 1943); Wright v. Dunning, 46 Ill. 271 (1867); Lynn v. Sentel, 55 N.E. 838 (Ill. 1899); Fyffe v. Beers, 18 Iowa 4; Boot v. Brewster, 36 N.W. 649 (Iowa 1864); Boyer v. Dague, 134 N.W. 542 (Iowa 1912); Central Ky. Lunatic Asylum v. Craven, 32 S.W. 291 (Ky. 1895); Mount v. Fourth St. Bank, 161 S.W. 220 (Ky. 1913); First Nat'l Bank v. Oliver, 150 S.W.2d 894 (Ky. 1941); Lyons v. Andry, 31 So. 38 (La. 1901); Hardesty v. Warner, 58 So. 527 (La. 1912); Burkhardt v. Walker, 92 N.W. 778 (Mich. 1902); Jensen v. Christensen, 11 N.W.2d 798 (Minn. 1943); Bank of Cruger v. Hodge, 198 So. 26 (Miss. 1940); Edwards v. Reid, 58 N.W. 202 (Neb. 1894); De Haven & Son Hardware Co. v. Schultz, 259 P. 778 (Or. 1927); Warner v. Hopkins, 176 N.W. 746 (S.D. 1920); Gerhart v. Quirk, 209 N.W. 544 (S.D. 1926); Taylor v.

Boulware, 17 Tex. 74 (1856); Franklin v. Coffee, 18 Tex. 413 (1857); Parker v. Schrimsher, 172 S.W. 165 (Tex. Civ. App. 1914); Hughes v. Palmer, 164 S.W.2d 576 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Bunker v. Coons, 60 P. 549 (Utah 1900); McDermott v. Kernan, 39 N.W. 537 (Wis. 1888).

(n530)Footnote 1702. Anderson v. Anderson, 356 N.E.2d 788 (Ill. 1976).

(n531)Footnote 1703. "If a man were to lock up his residence or rent it and go to Europe on a pleasure trip or for any other temporary purpose clearly intending to return and resume possession of the homestead, it seems clear that even five years' absence would not -- certainly as respects general creditors -- work a forfeiture of his homestead right by abandonment. Prolonged absence would ordinarily justify the conclusion of abandonment, but this may be rebutted and explained, especially where third persons have not been actually misled." Fyffe v. Beers, 18 Iowa 4 (1864) See Dunton v. Woodbury, 24 Iowa 74 (1867).

(n532)Footnote 1704. Ray v. Metzger, 165 S.W.2d 207 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942) aff'd, 172 S.W.2d 480 (Tex. 1943).

Act of platting a portion of the property exempted to the homestead does not destroy the homestead. Falconer v. Farmers Union Oil Co., 260 N.W.2d 1 (N.D. 1977).

(n533)Footnote 1705. In re Place's Estate, 203 P.2d 132 (Kan. 1949); In re Neis' Estate, 225 P.2d 110 (Kan. 1950).

(n534)Footnote 1706. Yost v. Cassel, 255 P.2d 914 (Okla. 1953).

(n535)Footnote 1707. Smith v. Vanover, 264 S.W.2d 884 (Ky. 1954); Meyer v. Security Nat'l Bank, 294 P.2d 572 (Okla. 1955); In re Moore's Estate, 234 S.W.2d 847 (Tenn. App. 1949); Cook v. Young, 269 S.W.2d 457 (Tex. Civ. App. 1954); In re Brown's Estate, 183 P.2d 768 (Wash. 1947).

(n536)Footnote 1708. L'Engle v. Forbes, 81 So. 2d 214 (Fla. 1955).

(n537)Footnote 1709. Lanier v. Lanier, 116 So. 867 (Fla. 1928) (dictum).

(n538)Footnote 1710. Jacksonville v. Bailey, 30 So. 2d 529 (Fla. 1947) (dictum).

(n539)Footnote 1711. Nelson v. Hainlin, 104 So. 589 (Fla. 1925).

(n540)Footnote 1712. Collins v. Collins, 7 So. 2d 443 (Fla. 1942).

(n541)Footnote 1713. Steiner and Saffer v. Kasden, 186 B.R. 667 (D. Minn. 1995).

(n542)Footnote 1714. Eastern Ky. Asylum for Insane v. Cottle, 137 S.W. 235 (Ky. 1911); Rothwell v. Rothwell, 104 S.W. 276 (Ky. 1907).

Contra, Dobson v. Butler, 17 Mo. 87 (1852); Cooper v. Cooper, 24 Oh. St. 488 (1874); Newland v. Holland, 45 Tex. 588 (1876).

(n543)Footnote 1715. In re Ragan's Estate, 23 N.W.2d 521 (Iowa 1945) (homestead terminates when survivor dies leaving no children); Petty v. Barrett, 37 Tex. 84 (1872).

In Missouri if the widow dies without receiving her homestead allowance, this is paid to unmarried minor children but if there are no such children, the homestead allowance is destroyed. Schubel v. Bonacker, 331 S.W.2d 552 (Mo. 1960).

(n544)Footnote 1716. Doyle v. Coburn, 88 Mass. (6 Allen) 71 (1863).

(n545)Footnote 1717. Baccus v. Eads, 96 So. 757 (Ala. 1923) (marital separation); Jackson v. Blankenship, 105 So. 684 (Ala. 1925) (wife abandoned by husband); Jones v. Thompson, 166 S.W.2d 1036 (Ark. 1942); In re Henningsen's Estate, 247 P. 1082 (Cal. 1926) (marital separation); Maher v. Goff, 147 N.E. 427 (Ill. 1925) (desertion of wife by husband); Evansville Coffin Co. v. Sumner, 226 S.W. 363 (Ky. 1920) (death of children and desertion of husband by wife); Gillette v. McLaughlin, 180 N.W. 952 (S.D. 1921) (marital separation); Good v. Good, 293 S.W. 621 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927) (marital separation).

Cf., Monte Vista Bank & Trust Co. v. Savage, 225 P. 219 (Colo. 1924).

In Illinois, when one spouse abandons the other and leaves the premises, the homestead right accrues to the remaining spouse. Anderson v. Anderson, 356 N.E.2d 788 (Ill. App. 1976).

(n546)Footnote 1718. See in general: Mathews v. Goodenough, 89 So. 708 (Ala. 1921); Kyser v. McGlinn, 92 So. 13 (Ala. 1921); Peoples Bank v. Barrow & Wiggins, 94 So. 600 (Ala. 1922); Lucky v. Roberts, 100 So. 878 (Ala. 1924); Keenum v. Dodson, 102 So. 230 (Ala. 1924); Williams v. Massie, 102 So. 611 (Ala. 1925); Chambliss v. Derrick, 112 So. 330 (Ala. 1927); Brownfield v. Bookout, 228 S.W. 51 (Ark. 1921); Warren v. Martin, 272 S.W. 367 (Ark. 1925) In re Muntz's Estate, 231 P. 371 (Cal. App. 1924); Hutchinson v. Stone, 84 So. 151 (Fla. 1920); Rawlins v. Dade Lab. Co., 86 So. 334 (Fla. 1920); Oylear v. Oylear, 208 P. 857 (Idaho 1922); Wadle v. Boston Mkt. Co., 191 N.W. 528 (Iowa 1923); Fraizer v. Fraizer, 207 N.W. 772 (Iowa 1926); Myrick v. Bloomfield, 210 N.W. 428 (Iowa 1926); Solomon Nat'l Bank v. Birch, 246 P. 1007 (Kan. 1926); Demarest v. Allen, 224 S.W. 458 (Ky. 1920); Eastern State Hosp. v. Cottle, 256 S.W. 1101 (Ky. 1924); First Nat'l Bank v. Oliver, 150 S.W.2d 894 (Ky. 1941); H. G. Smith & Sons v. Jenkins, 85 So. 68 (La. 1917); Tomlinson v. Kandiyohi County Bank, 202 N.W. 494 (Minn. 1925); In re Lee, 213 N.W. 736 (Minn. 1927); Kohrt v. Mercer, 282 N.W. 129 (Minn. 1938); In re Boward's Estate, 231 S.W. 600 (Mo. 1921); Jennings v. Cherry, 257 S.W. 438 (Mo. 1923); Martin v. Martin, 285 S.W. 92 (Mo. 1926); Falvey v. Hicks, 286 S.W. 385 (Mo. 1926); Maupin v. Longacre, 288 S.W. 54 (Mo. 1926); Willoughby v. Brandes, 297 S.W. 54 (Mo. 1927); Wicoff v. Moore, 257 S.W. 474 (Mo. 1923); Moore v. Mansfield, 286 S.W. 353 (Mo. 1926); In re Costello's Estate, 178 N.W. 192 (Neb. 1920); Barnes v. Cherry, 130 S.E. 611 (N.C. 1925); O'Hare v. Bismarck Bank, 178 N.W. 1017 (N.D. 1920); Meidinger v. Security State Bank, 213 N.W. 850 (N.D. 1927); In re Cole's Estate, 205 P. 172 (Okla. 1922); Greenshaw v. Brown, 219 P. 934 (Okla. 1923); Lawley v. Richardson, 223 P. 156 (Okla. 1924); McGaffey v. Mulky, 241 P. 480 (Okla. 1925); In re Gardner's Estate, 250 P. 490 (Okla. 1926); Kimberlin v. Anthony, 254 P. 1 (Okla. 1926); In re Snider's Estate, 226 P.2d 429 (Okla. 1950) (the homestead survives the wife's death); In re Iltz, 202 P. 409, 206 P. 550 (Ariz. 1921); Ex parte Cothran, 121 S.E. 556 (S.C. 1924); Dorn v. Stidham, 137 S.E. 331 (S.C. 1927); Rettig v. West End Realty Co., 241 S.W. 614 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921), aff'd, 254 S.W. 765 (Tex. Com. App. 1921); Ruble v. Ruble, 264 S.W. 1018 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); Good v. Good, 293 S.W. 621 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Lone Star Gas Co. v. Meyer, 296 S.W. 1110 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927).

Cf., Monte Vista Bank & Trust Co. v. Savage, 225 P. 219 (Colo. 1929).

(n547)Footnote 1719. In re Ragan's Estate, 23 N.W.2d 521 (Iowa 1945); Chisholm v. Mills, 250 S.W.2d 268 (Tex. Civ. App. 1952); Chandler v. Welborn, 282 S.W.2d 940 (Tex. Civ. App. 1956), aff'd, 294 S.W.2d 801 (Tex. 1956); In re Estate of Franzke, 634 So. 2d 117 (Miss. 1994) (holding that when debtor died leaving no spouse, child, or grandchild the homestead exemption expired even though she devised it to her ex-spouse).

(n548)Footnote 1720. Cole v. Sparks, 172 S.W.2d 20 (Ark. 1943).

In Florida, upon death of the husband the life estate in his homestead vests in the widow with the remainder to the children. Creary v. Creary's Estate, 338 So. 2d 26 (Fla. App. 1976).

(n549)Footnote 1721. Beall v. Pinckney, 150 F.2d 467 (5th Cir. 1945); Van Winkle v. Weston, 276 Ill. App. 66 (1934); Silloway v. Brown, 94 Mass. (12 Allen) 30 (1866); Hendrix v. Seaborn, 25 S.C. 481 (1886); French v. French, 188 S.W.2d 586 (Tex. Civ. App. 1945); Closson v. Closson, 215 P. 485 (Wyo. 1923).

(n550)Footnote 1722. Bull v. Coe, 18 P. 808 (Cal. 1888); Dickey v. Gibson, 45 P. 15 (Cal. 1896); Loomis v. Loomis, 82 P. 679 (Cal. 1905); Cordano v. Wright, 115 P. 227 (Cal. 1911); Breen v. Breen, 173 P. 2 (Kan. 1918).

(n551)Footnote 1723. Bradley v. Humphreys, 83 S.W.2d 828 (Ark. 1935); Dickey v. Gibson, 45 P. 15 (Cal. 1896); Stewart v. Brand, 23 Iowa 477 (1867); Biggs v. Roberts, 115 So. 2d 151 (Miss. 1959) (husband entitled to hold wife's share of tenancy in common with husband as a probate homestead for his life after wife's death); Ailey v. Burnett, 33 S.W. 1122, 35 S.W. 1137 (Mo. 1896); Spratt v. Early, 69 S.W. 13 (Mo. 1902); Melms v. Pabst Brewing Co., 66 N.W. 244 (Wis. 1896).

Homestead descends and vests in the heirs of the first deceased spouse immediately on death free of any claims against the deceased spouse and is not chargeable with any of the debts with which community property is chargeable. Vanni v. Cloutier, 124 A.2d 204 (N.H. 1956).

(n552)Footnote 1724. In re Ackerman, 22 P. 141 (Cal. 1889); Gillam v. Wright, 92 N.E. 906 (Ill. 1910); Nicholas v. Purczell, 21 Iowa 265 (1866); In re McClain's Estate, 262 N.W. 666 (Iowa 1935); Cross v. Benson, 75 P. 558 (Kan. 1904); Lyons v. Andry, 31 So. 38 (La. 1901); Roberts v. Greer, 40 P. 6 (1895); Pryor v. Stone, 19 Tex. 371, 70 Am. Dec. 341 (1857).

(n553)Footnote 1725. Cross v. Benson, 75 P. 558 (Kan. 1904); Weaver v. First Nat'l Bank, 94 P. 273 (Kan. 1907); Stults v. Sale, 17 S.W. 148 (Ky. 1891); Holmes v. Holmes, 111 P. 220 (Okla. 1910).

(n554)Footnote 1726. Cohn v. Litwin, 35 N.E.2d 410 (Ill. App. 1941); Cross v. Benson, 75 P. 558 (Kan. 1904); Weaver v. Chicago First Nat'l Bank, 94 P. 273 (Kan. 1907); Sawin v. Osborn, 126 P. 1074 (Kan. 1912); Stults v. Sale, 17 S.W. 148 (Ky. 1891); Davis v. H. Feltman Co., 65 S.W. 615 (Ky. 1901); Yager v. Bank of Kentucky, 100 S.W. 848 (Ky. 1907); Lyons v. Andry, 31 So. 38 (La. 1901); Palmer v. Sawyer, 103 N.W. 1088 (Neb. 1905); Meidinger v. Security State Bank, 213 N.W. 850 (N.D. 1927); Holmes v. Holmes, 111 P. 220 (Okla. 1910); Hinds v. Buck, 150 S.W.2d 1071 (Tenn. 1941); Hoffman v. Newhaus, 30 Tex. 633 (1868); Kessler v. Draub, 52 Tex. 575, 36 Am. Rep. 727 (1880); Woods v. Alvarado State Bank, 19 S.W.2d 35 (Tex. 1929); First State Bank of Hubbard v. Zeanon, 169 S.W.2d 735 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943); Wilkinson v. Merrill, 12 S.E. 1015 (Va. 1891).

(n555)Footnote 1727. Kawszewicz v. Kawszewicz, 53 N.E.2d 386 (Ill. 1944).

(n556)Footnote 1728. Union Trust Co. v. Cox, 155 P. 206 (Okla. 1916).

(n557)Footnote 1729. See Duffy v. Harris, 45 S.W. 545 (Ark. 1898); Swift v. Reasonover, 77 S.W.2d 809 (Tenn. 1935) (holding a wife's wrongful abandonment and neglect of her husband until his death four years later forfeited her right to a homestead).

(n558)Footnote 1730. Atkinson v. Atkinson, 37 N.H. 434 (1859); Meader v. Place, 43 N.H. 307 (1861); Herman v. Smith, 141 S.W. 1087 (Tex. Civ. App. 1911); In re Murphy, 90 P. 916 (Wash. 1907).

(n559)Footnote 1731. Newland v. Holland, 45 Tex. 588 (1876); Mabry v. Kennedy, 108 S.W. 176 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908).

(n560)Footnote 1732. Metz v. Schneider, 97 S.W. 187 (Mo. App. 1906).

(n561)Footnote 1733. Kaupe v. Kaupe, 280 P.2d 856 (Cal. 1955).

Married spouse living apart from the other spouse because other spouse is guilty of act which constituted cause for divorce may by petition to the probate court convey real estate so as to bar rights of homestead therein. N. H. Rev. Stat. 1955, §46:8.

(n562)Footnote 1734. Schmidt v. Humble Oil & Ref. Co., 219 F.2d 551 (5th Cir. Miss. 1955) (wife's signature not necessary to oil lease where couple had been separated nine years); Bydalek v. Bydalek, 71 N.E.2d 19 (Ill. 1947); Etheridge v. Webb, 50 So. 2d 603 (Miss. 1951); Siegel v. Clemons, 63 N.W.2d 725 (Wis. 1954).

(n563)Footnote 1735. In re Prudenzano's Will, 68 A.2d 704 (Vt. 1949).

(n564)Footnote 1736. Burkett v. Burkett, 20 P. 715 (Cal. 1889); Rosholt v. Mehus, 57 N.W. 783 (N.D. 1894); Goldsborough v. Hewitt, 99 P. 907 (Okla. 1909).

See in general: In re Hawthorne, 45 F. Supp. 374 (D. Tex. 1942); Hale v. Kinnaird, 87 So. 789 (Ala. 1921); Moore v. Warren, 255 S.W. 306 (Ark. 1923); Oliver v. Howie, 281 S.W. 17 (Ark. 1926); Jones v. Thompson, 166 S.W.2d 1036 (Ark. 1942); Lang v. Lang, 190 P. 181 (Cal. 1920); Remley v. Remley, 193 P. 604 (Cal. App. 1920); Maher v. Goff, 147 N.E. 427 (Ill. 1925); Luedecke v. Luedecke, 192 N.W. 515 (Iowa 1923); Gummison v. Johnson, 183 N.W. 515 (Minn. 1921); Dougherty v. White, 200 N.W. 884 (Neb. 1924); Trower v. Wetmore, 252 P. 48 (Okla. 1926); Guaranty State Bank v. Price, 258 P. 748 (Okla. 1927); Scripture v. Scripture, 231 S.W. 826 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921); Jeter v. Jeter, 281 S.W. 598 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Jackson v. Jackson, 283 S.W. 923 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926); Sakowitz Bros. v. McCord, 162 S.W.2d 437 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942).

In divorce, a mensa et thoro, the wife retained her homestead rights. Drake v. Drake, 80 So. 2d 268 (Ala. 1955).

Lien of judgment for alimony, see Luedecke v. Luedecke, 92 N.W. 515 (Iowa 1923); Haven v. Trammell, 193 P. 631 (Okla. 1920); Ashby v. Ashby, 183 N.W. 965 (Wis. 1921).

That homestead cannot be subjected to payment of costs and attorney's fee, see Jeter v. Jeter, 281 S.W. 598 (Tex. Civ. App. 1926).

(n565)Footnote 1737. Master Lubricants Co. v. Cook, 159 F.2d 679 (1947); Walton v. Walton, 138 P.2d 54 (Cal. App. 1943); Steitz v. Steitz, 262 S.W.2d 262 (Tex. Civ. App. 1953) (in Texas only if the marriage was childless); Cassas v. Cassas, 276 P.2d 456 (Wyo. 1954).

See Homestead Rights Continue on Property Granted to a Husband in a Divorce Proceeding and Occupied by Him After the Divorce, 8 Kan. L. Rev. 498 (1960).

In Illinois homestead real property after divorce is subject to partition. Tucker v. Tucker, 330 N.E.2d 274 (Ill. App. 1975).

(n566)Footnote 1738. Smith v. Smith, 187 S.W.2d 116 (Tex. Civ. App. 1945); Clack v. Williams, 189 S.W.2d 503 (Tex. Civ. App. 1945).

(n567)Footnote 1739. Mangum v. Mangum, 184 S.W.2d 338 (Tex. Civ. App. 1944).

Under a statute providing that "in case of a divorce, the court granting the divorce may dispose of the homestead estate according to the equities of the case," the court awarded a gross sum as alimony to the wife and made the same a lien upon her husband's real estate, knowing that the real estate was the husband's homestead. It was held that the decree operated to divest the real estate of its homestead character and the lien could be enforced against it as other real estate. Bobowski v. Bobowski, 90 N.E. 361 (Ill. 1909). See Lang v. Lang, 190 P. 181 (Cal. 1920).

(n568)Footnote 1740. Biddle v. Biddle, 177 S.W.2d 32 (Ark. 1944).

(n569)Footnote 1741. Kern v. Field, 71 N.W. 393 (Minn. 1897); Williams v. Williams, 184 N.W. 114 (Neb. 1921).

(n570)Footnote 1742. Dougherty v. White, 200 N.W. 884 (Neb. 1924); Speer & Goodnight v. Sykes, 119 S.W. 86 (Tex. 1909).

(n571)Footnote 1743. Gunn v. Gunn, 505 N.W.2d 772 (S.D. 1993) (holding that a divorce court has power to levy a lien on homestead property for spouse or child support).

(n572)Footnote 1744. Goldsborough v. Hewitt, 99 P. 907 (Okla. 1909).

(n573)Footnote 1745. Rosholt v. Mehus, 57 N.W. 783 (N.D. 1894); Kirkwood v. Domnan, 16 S.W. 428 (Tex. 1891); Cole v. Cole, 880 S.W.2d 477 (Tex. App. 1994) (holding that in a divorce action, an equitable lien placed on the husband's homestead to secure the wife's note violated the homestead provisions, unless the amount secured was limited to the amount of homestead interest awarded to the wife); Wiles v. Wiles, 871 P.2d 1026 (Utah App. 1994) (holding that equitable distribution of property at divorce superseded homestead exemption).

(n574)Footnote 1746. Donaldson v. Donaldson, 112 So. 836 (Ala. 1927); Tremper v. Tremper, 177 P. 868 (Cal. App. 1918); Radermacher v. Radermacher, 87 P.2d 461 (Idaho 1938); Landau v. Landau, 71 S.W.2d 49 (Mo. App. 1934); Davis v. Davis, 263 P. 914 (Or. 1934); Warne v. Warne, 156 N.W. 60 (S.D. 1916); Watson v. Mose, 183 S.E. 428 (Va. 1935); Games v. Games, 161 S.E. 560 (W. Va. 1931).

(n575)Footnote 1747. Bissett v. Bissett, 31 N.E.2d 955 (Ill. 1941); Caskey v. Caskey, 4 Ky. L. 811 (1883); Reeves v. Reeves, 76 N.W. 4 (Mich. 1898); Oberg v. Oberg, 4 P.2d 918 (N.M. 1931); Webster v. Webster, 25 N.W. 434 (Wis. 1885).

(n576)Footnote 1748. "A homestead necessarily includes the idea of a house for residence, or mansion house. The dwelling may be a splendid mansion, a cabin, or tent. If there be either it is under the protection of the law; but there must be a home residence before it and the land on which it is situated can be claimed as a homestead." Williams v. Dorris, 31 Ark. 466 (1876), quoted with approval in Tillar v. Bass, 21 S.W. 34 (Ark. 1876); Shell v. Young, 95 S.W. 798 (Ark. 1906); Flowers v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co., 117 S.W. 547 (Ark. 1909); Adams v. Evans, 72 N.W.2d 131 (Mich. 1955) (homestead in vendee's rights in land sales contract). See Iola Wholesale Groc. Co. v. Johnson, 216 P. 828 (Kan. 1923); First Nat'l Bank v. Labit, 109 So. 400 (La. 1926); Kerns v. Warden, 213 P. 70 (Okla. 1923); Morey v. James, 248 P. 594 (Okla. 1926); In re Sueppel's Estate, 124 N.W.2d 154 (Iowa 1963); In re Hughes, 166 B.R. 957 (Bankr. E.D. Okla. 1994) (holding that the reception and payment of bills from the home was not a business purpose that would preclude the home from qualifying as a homestead).

(n577)Footnote 1749. Kelly v. Kelly's Ex'r., 186 S.W.2d 902 (Ky. 1945).

Homestead in community property. Bradley v. Scully, 62 Cal. Rptr. 834 (1967).

Tenancy in common supports homestead interest. Barnes v. Detroit, 150 N.W.2d 740 (Mich. 1967).

Mobile home held homestead. Capitol Aggregates, Inc. v. Walker, 448 S.W.2d 830 (Tex. Civ. App. 1969); In re Ruggles, 210 B.R. 57 (Bankr. D. Vt. 1997) (holding that a homestead exemption in a duplex does not appear to be forbidden by law when the owner lives in one unit and where under state law the property is indivisible).

(n578)Footnote 1750. In re Stanger's Estate, 257 P.2d 593 (Ariz. 1953); Union Trust Co. v. Glunt, 85 So. 2d 877 (Fla. 1956); Daily v. Gulfport, 54 So. 2d 485 (Miss. 1951); Gann v. Montgomery, 210 S.W.2d 255 (Tex. Civ. App. 1948).

Noncontiguous lots exempt as a business homestead where both were essential to the business. Ford v. Aetna Ins. Co., 424 S.W.2d 612 (Tex. 1968).

A statute denying a homestead where land is not marked off, platted and recorded or is not actually occupied by the owner was held unconstitutional. Brodsky v. Maloney, 105 N.W.2d 911 (S.D. 1960).

The homestead exemption applies to any interest or right the head of the family may hold in land. Tullis v. Tullis, 342 So. 2d 88 (Fla. App. 1977); In re Miller, 174 B.R. 279 (Bankr. N.D. Ill. 1994) (holding that the Illinois homestead right is an estate in the lot of ground and the buildings to which the right attaches); In re Flatt, 160 B.R. 497 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1993) (holding that a homestead exemption is available for a lot containing garden, parking space, and storage area).

(n579)Footnote 1751. Payne v. Cummings, 80 P. 620 (Cal. 1905). Contra In re Jackson, 169 B.R. 742 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that improvements to homestead protected by exemption are limited to physical additions and not intangibles like the peanut allotment quota assigned to the land).

(n580)Footnote 1752. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Alten, 116 S.W. 1144 (Tex. 1909).

Union Trust Co. v. Glunt, 85 So. 2d 877 (Fla. 1956) (two-story garage apartment used for rental income where it appeared that the rooms concerned were being used as a means of making the owner's livelihood).

(n581)Footnote 1753. Schmick v. Simmons, 107 S.W. 568 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908); McGovern v. Talliaferro, 112 S.W. 814 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908); First State Bank of Memphis v. Seago, 120 S.W.2d 951 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938); In re Finkel, 151 B.R. 779 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that a business homestead requires the claimant to exercise the calling or business on the property).

(n582)Footnote 1754. McEwen v. Larson, 185 So. 866 (Fla. App. 1939).

(n583)Footnote 1755. Dignowity v. Lindheim, 109 S.W. 966 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908); Vaughn v. Vaughn, 279 S.W.2d 427 (Tex. Civ. App. 1955).

(n584)Footnote 1756. McKay v. Gesford, 124 P. 1016 (Cal. 1912); Person v. Levenson, 143 S.W.2d 419 (Tex. Civ. App. 1940).

(n585)Footnote 1757. Jensen v. Griffin, 144 N.W. 119 (S.D. 1913).

(n586)Footnote 1758. Sperry Oil & Gas Co. v. Chisholm, 264 U.S. 488, 44 S. Ct. 372 (1924).

(n587)Footnote 1759. McDonald v. Badger, 23 Cal. 393 (1863); Payne v. Cummings, 80 P. 620 (Cal. 1905); Ashton v. Ingle, 20 Kan. 670 (1878); Meech v. Grigsby, 113 P.2d 1091 (Kan. 1941); King v. Welburn, 47 N.W. 106 (Mich. 1890); Oregon, Mtg. Co. v. Dunbar, 289 P. 559 (1930); Tindall v. Peterson, 98 N.W. 688, 99 N.W. 659 (1904); Gooch v. Gooch, 133 P. 242 (Okla. 1913); Watson v. Hurlburt, 170 P. 541 (Or. 1918); Edelman v. Scandrett, 293 N.W. 817 (S.D. 1940); Anderson v. Sessions, 51 S.W. 874, 55 S.W. 1133 (Tex. 1899); Harrington v. Mayo, 130 S.W. 650 (Tex. Civ. App. 1910).

See in general: In re Buie, 287 F. 896 (D.C. Tex. 1923), aff'd, 293 F. 1021; Croker v. Croker, 7 F.2d 218 (D.C. Fla. 1925); Hooker v. Head, 236 P. 714 (Ariz. 1925); Clark v. Cox, 85 So. 173 (Fla. 1920); Graham v. Humm, 229 S.W. 80 (Ky. 1921); Farmers Merc. Co. v. Guillory, 90 So. 222 (La. 1921); Haggard v. Haggard, 233 S.W. 18 (Mo. 1921); Davis v. Davis, 199 N.W. 113 (Neb. 1924); Cooper v. Long, 220 P. 610 (Okla. 1923); Morey v. James, 248 P. 594 (Okla. 1926); Cabler v. Alexander, 224 P. 1076 (Or. 1924); Johnson v. Russell, 220 S.W. 352 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Ewing v. Riley, 246 S.W. 94 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922); Vaden v. Collier, 253 S.W. 889 (Tex. Civ. App. 1923); Connelly v. Johnson, 259 S.W. 634 (Tex. Civ. App. 1924); White v. Blackman, 168 S.W.2d 531 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942).

(n588)Footnote 1760. Gulbransen Co. v. Couch, 61 F.2d 932 (5th Cir. Tex. 1932) (construing Texas law); In re Hughes, 172 B.R. 205 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that only the principal business may be claimed as a business homestead, even though the business may consist of more than one lot).

(n589)Footnote 1761. Rockett v. Williams, 78 S.W.2d 1077 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935); In re Wierschem, 152 B.R. 345 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption is limited to the portion of the property actually used as a residence); In re Flatt, 160 B.R. 497 (Bankr. N.D.N.Y. 1993) (holding that the homestead exemption only applies to property owned and actually occupied as the principal residence); In re Nofsinger, 221 B.R. 1018 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1998) (holding that under Florida law, homestead extends only to that portion of property which debtor uses as residence and cannot include any portion which is rented to and occupied by third party in his own business).

(n590)Footnote 1762. Scarborough v. Home Owners' Loan Corp., 161 S.W.2d 886 (Tex. Civ. App. (1942); In re Julian, 163 B.R. 478 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that debtor established that the property where he lived was both a business and a residence homestead, because he added a second floor to his car business and lived there); In re Filby, 225 B.R. 532 (Bankr. D. N.H. 1998) (holding that chapter 7 debtor was entitled to homestead exemption only in that portion of duplex in which he resided, and not entitled to exemption in that portion which he rented to a third party and did not occupy himself).

(n591)Footnote 1763. Morris Inv. Co. v. Skeldon, 78 N.E.2d 504 (Ill. 1948).

(n592)Footnote 1764. Rancho Oil Co. v. Powell, 175 S.W.2d 960 (Tex. 1943), aff'g, Powell v. Johnson, 170 S.W.2d 273 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

(n593)Footnote 1765. Horn v. Gates, 53 N.W.2d 84 (Neb. 1952); Davis v. Hawn Lab. Co., 193 S.W.2d 263 (Tex. Civ. App. 1946); In re Nerios, 171 B.R. 224 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that the homestead exemption does not apply to two houses on adjoining lots); In re Cate, 170 B.R. 582 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that under Texas homestead law, debtors may have only one homestead at a time, which does not include two residences located on different lots).

(n594)Footnote 1766. Boozer v. Boozer, 16 So. 2d 863 (Ala. 1944); Gooch v. Gooch, 133 P. 242 (Okla. 1913).

Thus where two lots owned by a judgment debtor and his wife jointly were occupied as one parcel and a dwelling was on one lot, while the other was used in connection with the house, the exemption was extended to both lots, where their aggregate value was less than the statutory exemption. Stocker v. Curtis, 106 N.E. 441 (Ill. 1914); In re Dudeney, 159 B.R. 1003 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that two parcels, acquired separately and assessed distinctly for property tax purposes, qualified for the homestead exemption); Riley v. Riley, 972 S.W.2d 149 (Tex. App. 1998) (holding that homestead claim in rural property is valid as long as the claimant resides on part of the property and the other parcels are used for the support of the family).

(n595)Footnote 1767. Clements v. Crawford County Bank, 40 S.W. 132 (Ark. 1897); Brixius v. Reimringer, 112 N.W. 273 (Minn. 1907); Oregon Mtg. Co. v. Dunbar, 289 P. 559 Mont. 1930); Hainz v. Kurth, 278 N.W. 413 (Wis. 1938); In re Jackson, 169 B.R. 742 (Bankr. N.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that a road dividing a farm did not prevent its use as a homestead or destroy its contiguous character).

(n596)Footnote 1768. Vaughn v. Vaughn, 279 S.W.2d 427 (Tex. Civ. App. 1955).

(n597)Footnote 1769. Linn County Bank v. Hopkins, 28 P. 606 (Kan. 1892); Commercial Nat'l Bank v. Carnahan, 276 P. 57 (Kan. 1929); Kresin v. Mau, 15 Minn. 116 (1870).

(n598)Footnote 1770. Milton v. Milton, 58 So. 718 (Fla. 1912).

(n599)Footnote 1771. Brandies v. Perry, 22 So. 268 (Fla. 1897); Walters v. People, 18 Ill. 194, 65 Am. Dec. 730 (1856).

(n600)Footnote 1772. Tinney v. Vittur, 64 So. 407 (La. 1914); Lieber v. Lieber, 143 S.W. 458 (Mo. 1911).

(n601)Footnote 1773. Shubert v. Winston, 11 So. 200 (Ala. 1892); Pryor v. Stone, 19 Tex. 371 (1857); Autry v. Reasor, 108 S.W. 1162, 113 S.W. 748 (Tex. 1908); Panhandle Constr. Co. v. Flesher, 87 S.W.2d 273 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935); NCNB Tex. Nat'l Bank v. Carpenter, 849 S.W.2d 875 (Tex. App. 1993) (holding that claimant must reside on property to claim it as homestead, but he is not required to reside on all parcels of the property, as long as all are used to support the family).

(n602)Footnote 1774. Farmer v. Hampton, 156 S.W. 1041 (Ky. 1913); Anderson v. Sessions, 51 S.W. 874, 55 S.W. 1133 (Tex. 1899).

Homestead may extend to two noncontiguous lots where used as a place of operation of a business for head of a family. Ford v. Aetna Ins. Co., 424 S.W.2d 612 (Tex. 1967).

(n603)Footnote 1775. Pennington v. Bigbie, 260 P. 481 (Okla. 1927); Dignowity v. Lindheim, 109 S.W. 966 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908); Ewing v. Riley, 246 S.W. 94 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922); Rockett v. Williams, 78 S.W.2d 1077 (Tex. Civ. App. 1922). See In re Buie, 287 F. 896 (D.C. Tex. 1923), aff'd, 293 F. 1021 (5th Cir.); Croker v. Croker, 7 F.2d 218 (D.C. Fla. 1925); Morgan v. Bailey, 105 So. 143 (Fla. 1925); Tittle v. Garrett, 232 P. 437 (Okla. 1925); O'Fiel v. Janes, 220 S.W. 371 (1920); Connelly v. Johnson, 259 S.W. 634 (Tex. Civ. App. 1920); Commerce Farm Credit Co. v. Sales, 288 S.W. 802 (Tex. Com. App. 1926).

(n604)Footnote 1776. Ayres v. Patton, 111 S.W. 1079 (Tex. Civ. App. 1908).

(n605)Footnote 1777. Finley v. Dietrick, 12 Iowa 516 (1861); Kiewert v. Anderson, 67 N.W. 1031 (Minn. 1896); Gallagher v. Smiley, 44 N.W. 187 (Neb. 1889); Taylor v. Boulware, 17 Tex. 74 (1856); Bassett v. Messner, 30 Tex. 604 (1868); Arnold v. Adams, 38 Tex. 425 (1873); In re Becker, 215 B.R. 585 (B.A.P. 8th Cir. 1998) (holding that when homestead property is not conclusively rural or urban, the character or use of the homestead determines whether it receives a rural or an urban exemption).

(n606)Footnote 1778. Waggener v. Haskell, 35 S.W. 711 (Tex. Civ. App. 1896); In re McCain, 160 B.R. 933 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that the considerations in determining whether a residential subdivision may be claimed as a rural homestead are (1) the number of lots sold, (2) the acreage of each lot, (3) the proximity to the urban environment, and (4) the building restrictions on each lot); Matter of Crowell, 138 F.3d 1031 (5th Cir. 1998) (holding that forty-two acre tract that chapter 13 debtor claimed was exempt as rural homestead was urban homestead under Texas law; property was within city limits, city sewer and water services were available to property, city provided police and fire protection, surrounding property was developed residential area, and tract was zoned for residential use).

(n607)Footnote 1779. Heidel v. Benedict, 63 N.W. 490 (Minn. 1895).

(n608)Footnote 1780. Neeley v. Case, 32 S.W. 785 (1895).

(n609)Footnote 1781. Grimes v. Luster, 84 S.W. 223 (Ark. 1904); Waggle v. Worthy, 15 P. 831 (Cal. 1887); Wright v. Dunning, 46 Ill. 271 (1867); Kloss v. Wylezalek, 69 N.E. 863 (Ill. 1904); Clay's Comm. v. Washington, 210 S.W. 484 (Ky. 1919); Crawford-Jenkins & Booth v. Rogers, 56 So. 904 (La. 1911); Davis v. Neihardt, 181 N.W. 177 (Mich. 1921); Kleinert v. Lefkowitz, 259 N.W. 871 (Mich. 1935); Bennett v. Dempsey, 48 So. 901 (Miss. 1909); Kaes v. Gross, 3 S.W. 840 (Mo. 1887); Rouse v. Caton, 67 S.W. 578 (Mo. 1902); Scheerer v. Scheerer, 229 S.W. 192 (Mo. 1921); Palmer v. Omer, 295 S.W. 123 (Mo. 1927); Irondale Bank v. Terrill, 116 S.W. 481 (Mo. App. 1909); Ness v. Jones, 88 N.W. 706 (N.D. 1901); Cooper v. Long, 220 P. 610 (Okla. 1923); Bell v. Franklin, 230 S.W. 181 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921); Spence v. State Nat'l Bank, 294 S.W. 618 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927) (business homestead); Ran v. City Nat'l Bank, 272 S.W. 510 (Tex. Civ. App. 1925); Evans v. Galbraith-Foxworth Lab. Co., 51 S.W.2d 831 (Tex. Civ. App 1932); Rockett v. Williams, 78 S.W.2d 1077 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935); Wallingford v. Bowen, 104 S.W.2d 188 (Tex. Civ. App. 1935); Scarborough v. Home Owners' Loan Corp., 161 S.W.2d 886 (Tex. Civ. App. 1942); Krueger v. Groth, 209 N.W. 772 (Wis. 1926).

(n610)Footnote 1782. Wright v. Dunning, 46 Ill. 271 (1867); Hair v. Davenport, 103 N.W. 1042 (Neb. 1905); Tide Water Oil Co. v. Ross, 123 S.W.2d 479 (Tex. Civ. App. 1938).

(n611)Footnote 1783. Meech v. Grigsby, 113 P.2d 1091 (Kan. 1941); Holder v. Holder, 87 S.W. 1100 (Ky. 1905).

(n612)Footnote 1784. Tumlinson v. Swinney, 22 Ark. 400 (1860).

(n613)Footnote 1785. Realty Trust Co. v. Koger, 70 S.W.2d 448 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934); In re Julian, 163 B.R. 478 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1994) (holding that under Texas homestead law, a person may not claim both an urban and a rural homestead).

(n614)Footnote 1786. Brantley v. Batson, 36 So. 524 (Miss. 1904); Berggren v. Bliss, 241 N.W. 544 (Neb. 1932).

(n615)Footnote 1787. Hair v. Davenport, 103 N.W. 1042 (Neb. 1905); Moore v. Krueger, 507 N.W.2d 155 (Wis. App. 1993) (holding that establishing a new homestead while the original one is for sale causes abandonment of the original homestead and the proceeds from the sale of the original are not protected from creditors).

(n616)Footnote 1788. Neece v. King, 73 S.W.2d 550 (Tex. Civ. App. 1934); Coyel v. Mortgage Bond Co., 124 S.W.2d 204 (Tex. Civ. App. 1939).

(n617)Footnote 1789. Yates v. Home Bldg. & Loan Co., 103 S.W.2d 1081 (Tex. Civ. App. 1937).

(n618)Footnote 1790. Bennett v. Dempsey, 48 So. 901 (Miss. 1909).

Husband has no homestead on wife's realty. Sterling Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Schultz, 218 N.E.2d 53 (Ill. App. 1966).

(n619)Footnote 1791. Owens v. Jabine, 115 S.W. 383 (Ark. 1908); Watkins Land Co. v. Temple, 119 S.W. 728 (Tex. Civ. App. 1909).

(n620)Footnote 1792. Rock Island Plow Co. v. Alten, 116 S.W. 1144 (Tex. 1909).

(n621)Footnote 1793. Rouse v. Caton, 67 S.W. 578 (Mo. 1902).

(n622)Footnote 1794. Valparaiso State Bank v. Schwartz, 138 N.W. 757 (Neb. 1912).

(n623)Footnote 1795. In re Baker, 182 F. 392 (6th Cir. 1910).

(n624)Footnote 1796. Johnson v. Miller, 173 S.W.2d 280 (Tex. Civ. App. 1943).

(n625)Footnote 1797. Gulbransen Co. v. Couch, 61 F.2d 932 (C.C.A.5 Tex. 1932).

(n626)Footnote 1798. Harris v. Matthews, 81 S.W. 1198 (Tex. Civ. App. 1904).

(n627)Footnote 1799. Vekoske v. Cleveland Trust Co., 79 N.E.2d 356 (Ohio App. 1948).

(n628)Footnote 1800. Klenk v. Knoble, 37 Ark. 298 (1881); Chastain v. Arkansas Bank & Trust Co., 249 S.W. 1 (Ark. 1923); Starr v. City Nat'l Bank, 252 S.W. 356 (Ark. 1923); Ackley v. Chamberlain, 16 Cal. 181 (1860); Bebb v. Crowe, 18 P. 223 (Kan. 1888); Kelly v. Baker, 10 Minn. 154 (1865); Orwig v. Cloud, 233 P. 1085 (Okla. 1925); Flannegan v. Stifel, 3 Tenn. 464 (1877); Blair v. Park Bank & Trust Co., 130 S.W. 718 (Tex. Civ. App. 1910); Walker v. Dailey, 290 S.W. 813 (Tex. Civ. App. 1927); Lasseter v. Blackwell, 227 S.W. 944 (Tex. Com. App. 1921); Massillon Engine & Thresher Co. v. Barrow, 231 S.W. 368 (Tex. Com. App. 1921); Phelps v. Rooney, 9 Wis. 70 (1859); In re Hughes, 166 B.R. 957 (Bankr. E.D. Okla. 1994) (holding that the reception and payment of bills from the home was not a business purpose that would preclude the home from qualifying as a homestead); In re Ozey, 171 B.R. 116 (Bankr.

N.D. Okla. 1994) (holding that using one room of home as office to windup former business and look for new employment was not sufficient to disqualify the home as a homestead); Jackman v. Nance, 857 P.2d 7 (Nev. 1993) (holding that homestead may be claimed partly for business and partly for a residence, if it is truly the residence of the family).

(n629)Footnote 1801. Gainus v. Cannon, 42 Ark. 503 (1884); Laughlin v. Wright, 63 Cal. 113 (1883); McKay v. Gesford, 124 P. 1016 (Cal. 1912); Hohn v. Pauly, 106 P. 266 (Cal. App. 1909); Kiesel v. Clemens, 56 P. 84 (Idaho 1899); Cass County Bank v. Weber, 48 N.W. 1067 (Iowa 1891); Lazell v. Lazell, 90 Mass. (8 Allen) 575 (1864); King v. Welburn, 47 N.W. 106 (Mich. 1890); Lamont v. La Fevre, 55 N.W. 687 (Mich. 1893); Fox v. Brannan, 290 N.W. 353 (1940); Hawley v. Arnold, 288 N.W. 823 (Neb. 1939); Harriman v. Queen Ins. Co., 5 N.W. 12 (Wis. 1880); Binzel v. Grogan, 29 N.W. 895 (Wis. 1886).

Contra, Turner v. Turner, 18 So. 210 (Ala. 1895).In re Mirulla, 163 B.R. 910 (Bankr. D. N.H. 1994) (holding that the homestead exemption was only available in the five rooms of the hotel where the debtor actually resided).

(n630)Footnote 1802. Fox v. Brannan, 290 N.W. 353 (Mich. 1940); Hawley v. Arnold, 288 N.W. 823 (Neb. 1939); Smith v. Kay, 54 P.2d 1160, 55 P.2d 794 (Or. 1936); Budde v. Drawhorn, 110 S.W.2d 929 (Tex. Civ. App. 1937); In re Ruggles, 210 B.R. 57 (Bankr. D. Vt. 1997) (holding that a homestead exemption in a duplex does not appear to be forbidden by law when the owner lives in one unit and where under state law the property is indivisible); In re Trigonis, 224 B.R. 152 (Bankr. D. Nev. 1998) (Nevada homestead exemption extends to any quantity of land, regardless of use, as long as debtors actually reside on premises and use it as their residence, including a homestead exemption in the entire four-unit apartment building, which they owned, but only lived in one unit and leased other three units).

(n631)Footnote 1803. In re Major, 166 B.R. 457 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1994) (holding that a thirty-four foot motor boat on which the family resided could not be claimed under the homestead right provided by the Florida Constitution). Contra Miami Country Day Sch. v. Bakst, 641 So. 2d 467 (Fla. App. 1994) (holding that a houseboat qualifies as a dwelling house for the homestead exemption).

(n632)Footnote 1804. In re Peters, 168 B.R. 710 (Bankr. D. Idaho 1994) (holding that a thirty-three foot motor home qualified as a homestead under the Idaho homestead statute); In re Mangano, 158 B.R. 532 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that Florida homestead exemption applied to the debtor's motorhome because it was used as a residence); In re Meola, 158 B.R. 881 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 1993) (holding that a travel trailer qualified for a homestead exemption under Florida law); In re Laube, 152 B.R. 260 (Bankr. W.D. Wis. 1993) (holding that a semitruck cab qualified for a homestead exemption under Wisconsin law); In re Jefferson, 163 B.R. 204 (Bankr. D. N.M. 1993) (holding that debtor could claim homestead in four of six lots on which he had placed multiple trailers). See Miami Country Day Sch. v. Bakst, 641 So. 2d 467 (Fla. App. 1994) (finding that the language of the statutory homestead in Florida includes mobile homes and modular homes); In re Goad, 161 B.R. 161 (Bankr. W.D. Va. 1993) (holding that a mobile home qualified as a homestead); In re Kirby, 223 B.R. 825 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 1998) (holding that in order for a motor home to be eligible for homestead exemption it must be attached to fixed and permanent property interests in Florida); In re Thompson, 217 B.R. 375 (B.A.P. 2d Cir. 1998) (holding that homestead exemption in a mobile home does not reclassify the mobile home as real property).

(n633)Footnote 1805. Turner v. Turner, 18 So. 210 (Ala. 1895); Buckels v. Tomer, 78 So. 2d 861 (Fla. 1955); Walters v. People, 18 Ill. 194 (1856); Logue v. Von Almen, 40 N.E.2d 73 (Ill. 1941); Ashton v. Ingle, 20 Kan. 670 (1878); Tromsdahl v. Nass, 146 N.W. 719 (N.D. 1914); Wilson v. Cochran, 31 Tex. 677 (1869).

Property may become homestead prior to occupancy by the family. Brodsky v. Maloney, 105 N.W.2d 911 (S.D. 1960).

(n634)Footnote 1806. Ashton v. Ingle, 27 Am. Rep. 197 (Kan. 1878).

(n635)Footnote 1807. Bank of Sun Prairie v. Hovig, 218 F. Supp. 769 (W.D. Ark. 1963) (tourist court occupied in part by family was held a homestead); Jordan v. Jordan, 228 S.W.2d 636 (Ark. 1950); Gregg v. Bostwich, 33 Cal. 220 (1867); Phelps v. Loop, 148 P.2d 674 (Cal. App. 1944); Olsen v. Lohman, 13 N.W.2d 332 (Iowa 1944); Hogan v. Manners, 23 Kan. 551 (1880); Bebb v. Crowe, 18 P. 223 (Kan. 1888); King v. Welburn, 47 N.W. 106 (Mich. 1890); Phelps v. Rooney, 9 Wis. 70 (1859).

(n636)Footnote 1808. Hall v. Casebolt, 188 S.W. 470 (Ky. 1916).

(n637)Footnote 1809. J. R. Watkins Co. v. Dawson, 145 S.W.2d 901 (Tex. Civ. App. 1940). Contra In re McCain, 160 B.R. 933 (Bankr. E.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that use of rural property for shelter was sufficient to establish a homestead and that economic support from the property was not required); In re Kretzinger, 103 F.3d 943 (10th Cir. 1996) (holding that leasing part of a selected rural homestead to tenants for agricultural purposes is consistent with the required homestead use and thereby does not forfeit the leased property from the homestead exemption)

(n638)Footnote 1810. King v. Sweatt, 115 F. Supp. 215 (W.D. Ark. 1953).

(n639)Footnote 1811. Beneficiary of land trust does not have property right supporting a homestead. Sterling Sav. & Loan Ass'n v. Schultz, 218 N.E.2d 53 (Ill. App. 1966).

(n640)Footnote 1812. Vendee's interest supports homestead. Arko Enterprises, Inc. v. Wood, 185 So. 2d 734 (Fla. App. 1966).

Vendee in sales contract if not presently entitled to possession does not have an interest supporting homestead. Corn Belt Prods. Co. v. Mullins, 110 N.W.2d 845 (Neb. 1961). In re Freytag, 155 B.R. 150 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 1993) (holding that property became homestead when debtor contracted for financing and construction of home).

(n641)Footnote 1813. Johnson v. Gaylord, 41 Iowa 362 (1875); Peeler v. Peeler, 8 So. 392 (Miss. 1890).

Heir's interest in homestead does not vest until death of head of family. Weitzner v. United States, 309 F.2d 45 (5th Cir. 1962).

If a testator is a homestead owner, he may devise the homestead to his issue free from the debts to which it would have been exempt had he been alive. In re Williams' Estate, 216 N.W.2d 568 (Iowa 1974).

In Florida homestead property cannot be devised since it passes on death to the lineal descendants subject to the life estate in the widow. In re Endre's Estate, 345 So. 2d 793 (Fla. App. 1977).

(n642)Footnote 1814. Estate of Croghan, 28 P. 570 (Cal. 1891); Gay v. Hanks, 81 Ky. 552 (1884) (widower); Eubank & Co. v. Landram, 59 Tex. 247 (1883).

Homestead vests in surviving spouse if other spouse has not transferred prior to death. In re Falcone's Estate, 27 Cal. Rptr. 38 (1962).

In Washington (Wash. Rev. Code, §§6.12.080, 11.52.020), homestead goes to the surviving spouse. In re Lyons' Estate, 515 P.2d 1293 (Wash. 1973).

In Nebraska where a homestead is held in joint tenancy the survivor takes the entire interest. David v. Tucker, 244 N.W.2d 197 (Neb. 1976).

(n643)Footnote 1815. Mahaffy v. Mahaffy, 63 Iowa 55 (1884); Chapman v. Tipton, 292 S.W.2d 25 (Tenn. 1956) (homestead for one year to keep family together).

Under Public Acts, 227, Louisiana, 1976, Article 916.1 of the Civil Code, it is provided that where the predeceased spouse has not disposed of by will the share in the family home, the survivor holds the deceased's share of the family home in usufruct during the natural life.

In Texas, a homestead upon death of one spouse becomes a life estate in the other. Norman v. First Bank & Trust Co. of Bryan, 557 S.W.2d 797 (Tex. Civ. App. 1977). In re Combs, 166 B.R. 417 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 1994) (holding that debtor's death did not effect his right to declare homestead, which was fixed when he filed bankruptcy petition).

(n644)Footnote 1816. Singletary v. Hill, 43 Tex. 588 (1875).

(n645)Footnote 1817. Hoffman v. Neuhaus, 30 Tex. 633 (1868).

(n646)Footnote 1818. In re Estate of Murphy, 340 So. 2d 107 (Fla. 1976).

(n647)Footnote 1819. Miller v. Finegan, 7 So. 140 (Fla. 1890); Howe v. Adams, 28 Vt. 541 (1856); Jewett, Tibbett & Co. v. Brock, 32 Vt. 65 (1859); In re Cooke's Estate, 91 A.2d 683 (Vt. 1952).

A pre-marital contract allegedly waiving the wife's right as surviving spouse to occupy the homestead and use of its property was unenforceable since homestead right in the survivor does not exist until the death of one of the spouses. Williams v. Estate of Williams, 548 S.W.2d 492 (Tex. Civ. App. 1977).

(n648)Footnote 1820. O'Daniel v. Gaynor, 43 So. 205 (Ala. 1907); Hollis v. Watkins, 66 So. 29 (Ala. 1914); Roberson v. Tippie, 70 N.E. 584 (Ill. 1904); Schuyler v. Hanna, 47 N.W. 932 (Neb. 1891). Sigmund v. Elder, 631 So. 2d 329 (Fla. App. 1994) (holding that wife received life estate in homestead, remainder to adult children, when deed executed by deceased husband was void); King v. Ellison, 622 So. 2d 598 (Fla. App. 1993) (holding that statute gave life estate in homestead to surviving spouse and remainder to lineal descendants which excluded stepchildren against testator's wishes).

(n649)Footnote 1821. Miles v. Miles, 46 N.H. 261 (1865).

(n650)Footnote 1822. Cherokee Constr. Co. v. Harris, 122 S.W. 485 (Ark. 1909); Jones v. Crawford, 84 S.W. 568 (Ky. 1905); Harrelson v. Webb, 50 So. (La. 1909).

(n651)Footnote 1823. Sutton v. Rosser, 34 S.E. 346 (Ga. 1899); Ohio similar: Morgridge v. Converse, 81 N.E.2d 112 (Ohio 1948).

After a judgment has been recorded the spouses may not purchase new land and add it to their homestead. Quigley v. Kennedy & Ely Ins., Inc., 207 So. 2d 431 (Fla. 1968).

(n652)Footnote 1824. McBride v. Hawthorne, 109 N.E. 262 (1915).

(n653)Footnote 1825. In re Neis' Estate, 225 P.2d 110 (Kan. 1950); Thompson v. Thompson, 236 S.W.2d 779 (Tex. 1951).

Miss. Code, §478 as amended 1950 Legislature, S.B. 73 gives widowers the same right as widows to enjoy exempt property of deceased spouse.

(n654)Footnote 1826. Cherokee Constr. Co. v. Harris, 122 S.W. 485 (Ark. 1909); Jones v. Crawford, 84 S.W. 568 (Ky. 1905); Harrelson v. Webb, 50 So. 833 (La. 1909).

(n655)Footnote 1827. Miller v. Finegan, 7 So. 140 (Fla. 1890); Gresham v. Clark, 95 So. 2d 234 (Miss. 1957) (widow has life estate and children the remainder).

In re Sueppel's Estate, 124 N.W.2d 154 (Iowa 1963).

(n656)Footnote 1828. Harrison v. Harrison, 127 S.W.2d 270 (Ark. 1939).

(n657)Footnote 1829. Van Meter v. Field, 159 P.2d 546 (Okla. 1945).

(n658)Footnote 1830. Karbs v. Bouse, 154 P.2d 968 (Okla. 1945).

(n659)Footnote 1831. Keel v. Larkin, 72 Ala. 493 (1882); Sams v. Sams, 5 So. 2d 774 (Ala. 1942); Bishop v. Johnson, 7 So. 2d 281 (Ala. 1942); Saltsman v. Saltsman, 10 So. 2d 752 (Ala. 1942); In re Claussenius' Estate, 216 P.2d 485 (Cal. App. 1950); Barco v. Fennell, 5 So. 9 (Fla. 1888); Coughanour v. Hoffman, 13 P. 231 (Idaho 1887); Mercier v. Chace, 9 Allen (91 Mass.) 242 (1864); Ring v. Burt, 17 Mich. 465, 97 Am. Dec. 200 (1869); Atkinson v. Atkinson, 40 N.H. 249, 77 Am. Dec. 712 (1860); Iltz v. Krieger, 202 P. 409, 206 P. 550 (Or. 1921); In re Banfield's Estate, 296 P. 1066 (Or. 1931); Christopher v. Christopher, 21 S.W. 890 (Tenn. 1893).

See in general: McDonald v. McAlily, 89 So. 198 (Ala. 1921); Mathews v. Goodenough, 89 So. 708 (Ala. 1922); Jones v. Hubbard, 94 So. 167 (1922); Coker v. Coker, 94 So. 566 (Ala. 1922); Beck v. Karr, 95 So. 881 (Ala. 1923); Miller v. Thompson, 96 So. 481 (Ala. 1923); Berry v. Manning, 96 So. 762 (Ala. 1923); Glover v. Mitchell, 99 So. 905 (Ala. 1924); Frazier v. Frazier, 100 So. 118 (1924); Lucky v. Roberts, 100 So. 878 (Ala. 1924); Keenum v. Dodson, 102 So. 230 (Ala. 1924); Lester v. Stroud, 103 So. 692 (Ala. 1925); Cogburn v. Callier, 104 So. 330 (Ala. 1925); Evans v. Evans, 104 So. 515 (Ala. 1925); Bryant v. Perryman, 105 So. 561 (Ala. 1925); Hames v. Irwin, 108 So. 253 (Ala. 1926); Quick v. McDonald, 108 So. 529 (Ala. 1926); Pauley v. Hadlock, 188 P. 263 (Ariz. 1920); McElwee v. McElwee, 219 S.W. 30 (Ark. 1920); Hildebrand v. Graves, 275 S.W. 524 (Ark. 1925); In re Henningsen's Estate, 247 P. 1082 (Cal. 1926); In re Mason's Estate, 244 P. 629 (1926); In re Knight's Estate, 245 P. 454 (Cal. App. 1926); Dudley v. Griggs, 103 S.E. 89 (Ga. 1920); Griffin v. Griffin, 113 S.E. 161 (Ga. 1922); C. M. Smith Bros. Land & Inv. Co. v. Phillips, 233 S.W. 413 (Mo. 1921); Jennings v. Cherry, 257 S.W. 438 (Mo. 1923); In re Trepp's Estate, 227 P. 1005 (Mont. 1924); Farmers State Bank v. Bartley, 206 N.W. 414 (N.D. 1925); Iltz v. Krieger, 202 P. 409, 206 P. 550 (Or. 1921); Ferguson v. Holborn, 211 P. 953 (Or. 1923). Hunter v. NCNB Tex. Nat'l Bank, 857 S.W.2d 722 (Tex. App. 1993) (holding that there are two types of homestead protections: the probate homestead and the protection of homestead from creditors; that under the probate homestead there is no protection until the owner of the homestead dies; and that placing the homestead in a revocable trust does not infringe on the probate homestead interest).

(n660)Footnote 1832. Weber v. Short, 55 Ala. 311 (1876); Ogden v. Ogden, 28 S.W. 796 (Ark. 1894); Osborn v. Strachen, 3 P. 767 (Kan. 1884); Howell v. Jones, 19 S.W. 757 (Tenn. 1892).

(n661)Footnote 1833. La. Public Acts 227 (1976).

(n662)Footnote 1834. Norris v. Morrison, 45 N.H. 490 (1864); Munro v. Jeter, 24 S.C. 29 (1885).

(n663)Footnote 1835. Ward v. Mayfield, 41 Ark. 94 (1883); Capek v. Kropik, 21 N.E. 836 (Ill. 1889).

(n664)Footnote 1836. In re Noah, 15 P. 290 (Cal. 1887); In re Ackerman, 22 P. 141 (Cal. 1889); In re Levy, 75 P. 301 (Cal. 1904).

(n665)Footnote 1837. Gregory v. Ellis, 86 N.C. 579 (1882); Rogers v. Ragland, 42 Tex. 422 (1875).

(n666)Footnote 1838. Turner v. Turner, 18 So. 210 (Ala. 1895); King v. McCarthy, 55 N.W. 960 (Minn. 1893); Christopher v. Christopher, 21 S.W. 890 (Tenn. 1893).

(n667)Footnote 1839. Hunter v. Law, 68 Ala. 365 (1880); B. F. Goodrich Silvertown Stores v. Brown, 46 So. 2d 204 (Ala. 1950); Booth v. Goodwin, 29 Ark. 633 (1874); Hoppe v. Hoppe, 37 P. 894 (Cal. 1894); Neal v. Brockhan, 13

S.E. 283 (Ga. 1891); Wolf v. Ogden, 66 Ill. 224 (1872); Quinn v. Kinyon, 13 S.W. 873 (Mo. 1890); Hinsdale v. Williams, 75 N.C. 430 (1876); In re Estate of Arbeitman, 886 S.W.2d 648 (Mo. App. 1994) (holding that surviving spouse's waiver of homestead exemption through prenuptial agreement did not infringe on minor child's exemption right).

(n668)Footnote 1840. Keyes v. Cyrus, 34 P. 722 (Cal. 1893); Moore v. Hoffman, 57 P. 769 (Cal. 1899).

(n669)Footnote 1841. In re Vance, 34 P. 1087 (Cal. 1893).

(n670)Footnote 1842. Smith v. Smith, 34 P. 77 (Cal. 1893).

(n671)Footnote 1843. Hoppe v. Hoppe, 37 P. 894 (Cal. 1893).

(n672)Footnote 1844. In re Irwin's Estate, 136 P.2d 940 (Okla. 1943).

Rental on crop share is not abandonment of homestead. In re Sueppel's Estate, 124 N.W.2d 154 (Iowa 1963).

(n673)Footnote 1845. In re Branam's Estate, 152 P.2d 354 (Cal. App. 1944).

In Florida, upon death of the husband the life estate in his homestead vests in the widow with the remainder to the children. Creary v. Creary's Estate, 338 So. 2d 26 (Fla. App. 1976).

(n674)Footnote 1846. In re Hatch, 18 A. 814 (Vt. 1889).

(n675)Footnote 1847. Bushnell v. Loomis, 137 S.W. 257 (Mo. 1911). See Iltz v. Krieger, 202 P. 409, 206 P. 550 (Or. 1921).

Testator's homestead devised under general residuary clause of will. In re Estate of Murphy, 340 So. 2d 107 (Fla. 1976).

(n676)Footnote 1848. Peoples Bank v. Barrow & Wiggins, 94 So. 600 (Ala. 1922); Caldcleugh v. Caldcleugh, 250 S.W. 324 (Ark. 1923); Amish v. Amish, 195 N.W. 359 (Iowa 1923); Settle v. Simpson, 264 S.W. 1092 (Ky. 1924).

See John Rouiller, Homestead Interest of Widow in Proceeds of Homestead When Sold in Course of Administration, 32 Marq. L. Rev. 154 (1948).

(n677)Footnote 1849. In re Hatch, 18 A. 814 (Vt. 1889).

(n678)Footnote 1850. Potter v. Potter, 101 S.W. 905 (Ky. 1907).

(n679)Footnote 1851. Kennedy v. Kennedy, 54 S.E. 773 (S.C. 1906).

(n680)Footnote 1852. Shull v. Shull, 40 So. 2d 708 (Ala. 1949).

(n681)Footnote 1853. In re Moore's Estate, 190 P.2d 914 (Ariz. 1948); In re Kennedy's Estate, 211 P.2d 410 (Idaho 1949).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 21.05

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based on Ch. 30 of George W. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern Law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), and describes the American common law on several subjects now largely governed by state statutes. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 21.05 Bibliography

Books

Foster, Lemuel H. The Legal Rights of Women: Adapted For Use in Every State by Means of a Brief Synopsis of the Laws Relating to Property Rights, Dower, Divorce, The Rights of a Widow in the Estate of Her Husband, Etc.: Containing Also Much Other Helpful Information, Advice, and Direction for Women in Every Walk of Life. Littleton, CO: F. B. Rothman, 1986, ca. 1913 (outlining the law in each state on property, divorce, child custody, wills, and insurance as they pertain to women).

Articles

Atherton, Rosalind F. "Expectation Without Right: Testamentary Freedom and the Position of Women in 19th Century New South Wales." Univ. New S. Wales L.J. Vol. 11 (1988) 133 (discussing the testamentary freedom of married women in nineteenth century New South Wales by studying the rules of testamentary capacity and the move to abolish dower).

Biancalana, Joseph. "The Writs of Dower and Chapter 49 of Westminster I." Cambridge L.J. Vol. 49 (1990) 91 (tracing the development of the writs of dower from their creation until Chapter 49 of the Statute of Westminster I in 1275, which changed the use of the writs).

Buck, A. R. "A Blot on the Certificate: Dower and Women's Property Rights in Colonial New South Wales." Australian J. L. & Soc'y Vol 4 (1987) 87 (charting the debate over reform of dower law in colonial New South Wales and the opposing perceptions of dower during that time).

Colan, Jonathan D. "You Can't Take That Away From Me: The Sanctity of the Homestead Property Right and Its Effect on Civil Forfeiture of the Home." U. Miami L. Rev. Vol. 49 (Fall 1994) 159.

Curnutte, Scott A. "Preventing Spousal Disinheritance: An Equitable Solution." W. Va. L. Rev. Vol. 92 (1989) 441 (comparing two methods of preventing a spouse from using will substitutes to eliminate the other spouse's statutory forced share: 1) judicial inquiry into the use of will substitutes, and 2) statutes that mechanically account for the substitutes).

DeVany, Joseph A. "The Constitutional Homestead Protection: Can You Waive It?" Tex. Tech L. Rev. Vol. 17 (1986) 1471 (analyzing whether courts can place liens on homesteads effectively waiving the debtor's right if not appealed).

Eustace, Joseph A., Jr. "The Purist View Prevails: Butterworth v. Caggianoy Prohibits Homestead Forfeiture." Stetson L. Rev. Vol. 22 (1993) 1111 (analyzing a state supreme court decision which resolved the conflict between the state homestead provisions and the state RICO statute).

Juel, Edward J. "Non-Traditional Family Values: Providing Quasi-Marital Rights to Same-Sex Couples." B.C. Third World L.J. Vol. 13 (Summer 1993) 317.

Lacy, Frank R. "Homestead Exemption--Oregon Law: Once More Into the Breach." Or. L. Rev. Vol. 65 (1986) 481 (analyzing the policy behind allowing debtors to sell their homestead to purchase another).

McCauliff, C. M. A. "The Medieval Origin of the Doctrine of Estates in Land: Substantive Property Law, Family Considerations, and the Interests of Women." Tul. L. Rev. Vol. 66 (1992) 919 (discussing the problems of heritability, alienability, and reversion of marriage portions in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries and the effect of tenancy by the curtesy on those portions).

McKnight, Joseph W. "Texas Family Exemption Law." Tex. Tech L. Rev. Vol. 21 (1990) 1121 (commenting on various Texas constitutional provisions and statutes dealing with family property exemptions).

McKnight, Joseph W. "Texas Homestead Law." Tex. Tech L. Rev. Vol. 17 (1986) 1307 (commenting on various Texas homestead provisions).

McSwain, Angus S. "The Texas Business Homestead in 1990." Baylor L. Rev. Vol. 42 (1990) 657 (outlining Texas business homestead law and revealing areas of uncertainty).

Morris, Sandra L. "New Jersey's Elective Share Statute, A Step Closer to Equity." Rutgers L J. Vol. 21 (1990) 469 (discussing the waiver provision of the New Jersey elective share statute and more equitable alternatives to that provision).

Pronske, Gerrit M. & Keith A. Langley. "Bankruptcy." Tex. Tech L. Rev. Vol. 20 (1989) 319 (discussing a federal circuit court case which held that waiver of homestead right does not estop claimant from asserting the right when occupancy is clear).

Sanders, Scott C. "Protecting ERISA Plans in Bankruptcy: Is There Still Hope for Texas Debtor?" Baylor L. Rev. Vol. 42 (1990) 757 (outlining the conflict between the Bankruptcy Code, ERISA, and the Texas property exemption laws).

Seiden, Donna Litman. "An Update on the Legal Chameleon: Florida's Homestead Exemption and Restrictions." U. Fla. L. Rev. Vol. 40 (1988) 919 (considering the concept of family under homestead law and discussing the various forms of homestead ownership).

Seiden, Donna Litman. "There's No Place Like Home(stead)." Nova L. Rev. Vol. 18 (1994) 801 (outlining Florida homestead law and suggesting reforms to restrictions on alienation and devises).

Williamson, Michael G. & Benjamin P. Butterfield. "Florida Exemption Laws--Haven for Debtors or Protection From Destitution?" Stetson L. Rev. Vol. 15 (1986) 437 (analyzing whether homestead exemptions fulfill their purpose or are abused).

Zeitler, Jeanne M. "Florida Homestead Exemption: Effect of 1985 Amendment of Availability After Divorce." U. Fla. L. Rev. Vol. 38 (1986) 451 (analyzing the characterization of property as homestead, the descent and devise of homestead property, and the claims of creditors).

Zick, Willis J. "Divorce Law: Exclusions and Disproportionate Divisions of Marital Estate," Marq. L. Rev. Vol. 76 (Spring 1993) 519.

Annotations

Annotation, Abandonment, Desertion, or Refusal to Support on Part of Surviving Spouse as Affecting Marital Rights in Deceased Spouse's Estate, 13 A.L.R. 3D 446.

Annotation, Adultery on Part of Surviving Spouse as Affecting Marital Rights in Deceased Spouse's Estate, 13 A.L.R. 3D 486.

Annotation, Conflict of Laws Regarding Election for or Against Will, and Effect in One Jurisdiction of Election in Another, 69 A.L.R. 3D 1081.

Annotation, Criminal Conspiracy Between Spouses, 74 A.L.R. 3D 838.

Annotation, Divorce and Separation: Award of Interest on Deferred Installment Payments of Marital Asset Distribution, 10 A.L.R. 5TH 191.

Annotation, Divorce and Separation: Consideration of Tax Consequences in Distribution of Marital Property, 9 A.L.R. 5TH 568.

Annotation, Dower or Curtesy in Property Subject at Time of Marriage to Contract for Disposition by Sale or Will, 8 A.L.R. 3D 569.

Annotation, Enforcement of Claim for Alimony or Support, or for Attorneys' Fees and Costs Incurred in Connection Therewith, Against Exemptions, 52 A.L.R. 5TH 221.

Annotation, Estate Created by Deed to Persons Described as Husband and Wife But Not Legally Married, 9 A.L.R. 4TH 1189.

Annotation, Extension of Time Within Which Spouse May Elect to Accept or Renounce Will, 59 A.L.R. 3D 767.

Annotation, Factors Considered in Making Election for Incompetent to Take Under or Against Will, 3 A.L.R. 3D 6.

Annotation, Forfeiture of Homestead Based on Criminal Activity Conducted on Premises, 16 A.L.R. 5TH 855.

Annotation, Lien of Judgment on Excess Value of Homestead, 41 A.L.R. 4TH 292.

Annotation, Real Estate Broker's Right to Compensation as Affected by Failure or Refusal of Principal's Spouse to Join in Contract of Sale, 10 A.L.R. 3D 665.

Annotation, Recovery of Damages for Breach of Contract to Convey Homestead Where Only One Spouse Signed Contract, 5 A.L.R. 4TH 1310.

Annotation, Rights of Surviving Spouse Taking Under or Against Will as Affected by Provision in Will Directing Conversion, 33 A.L.R. 3D 1280.

Annotation, Spouse's Acceptance or Retention of Benefits of Other Spouse's Fraudulent Acts as Ratification of Transaction, 82 A.L.R. 3D 625.

Annotation, Statutory or Constitutional Provision Allowing Widow But Not Widower to Take Against Will and Receive Dower Interests, Allowances, Homestead Rights, or the Like as Denial of Equal Protection of Law, 18 A.L.R. 4TH 910.

Annotation, Surviving Spouse's Right to Marital Share as Affected by Valid Contract to Convey by Will, 85 A.L.R. 4TH 418.

Annotation, Surviving Spouse Taking Elective Share as Chargeable With Estate or Inheritance Tax, 67 A.L.R. 3D 199.

Annotation, Time Within Which Election Must be Made for Incompetent to Take Under or Against Will, 3 A.L.R. 3D 119.

Annotation, Validity and Effect of One Spouse's Conveyance to Other Spouse of Interest in Property Held as Estate by the Entireties, 18 A.L.R. 5TH 230.

Annotation, Who May Make Election For Incompetent to Take Under or Against Will, 21 A.L.R. 3D 320.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 21.02

Supp. to § 21.02 Dower at Common Law.

[Go To Main]

§ 21.02(a) The Meaning of "Dower". [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Greenfield, 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2526 at *6 (E.D. Mich. 2002) .

At the end of the last sentence of the first paragraph, add new footnote:

Reynolds v. Reynolds, 837 So. 2d 847, 850-851 (Ala. Civ. App. 2002) .

Add:

United States v. Patej, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2252 at *6 (E.D. Mich. 2003) .

§ 21.02(b) The Nature of Inchoate Dower. [Go To Main]

Add:

United States v. Patej, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2252 at *6 (E.D. Mich. 2003) .

§ 21.02(c) The Necessity of a Valid Marriage. [Go To Main]

Add:

United States v. Patej, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2252 at *6 (E.D. Mich. 2003) .

§ 21.02(d) The Necessity of the Death of the Husband. [Go To Main]

Add:

United States v. Patej, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2252 at *6 (E.D. Mich. 2003) .

Add:

Pezza v. Pezza, 690 A.2d 345 (R.I. 1997) (holding a statute granting to the surviving spouse a life estate in property held in fee simple by deceased spouse created only an expectancy interest in surviving spouse).

§ 21.02(e) The Necessity of Seisin or Title in the Husband. [Go To Main]

Add:

United States v. Patej, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 2252 at *6 (E.D. Mich. 2003) .

§ 21.02(f) Assignment of Dower. [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Wheaton, 775 A.2d 166, 169-170 (N.J. Super. 2001) (widow's dower could be assigned by metes and bounds, apportionment of rents, or assignment of her interest through sale of property).

Add:

Weithman v. Weithman, 2002 Ohio App. LEXIS 3381 at *7 (June 28, 2002) .

§ 21.02(g) Protection of Dower from Acts of the Husband. [Go To Main]

Rice v. Rice, 2005 Mich. App. LEXIS 75 (Mich. Ct. App., 2005) (Holding that a wife had a dower interest in property that was originally deeded only to her husband during their marriage, and that the wife's dower interest was maintained even when the husband deeded the property away, because the wife did not convey her dower interest.)

Add:

Mathias v. Martin, 87 S.W.3d 859, 862 (Ky. 2002) .

Add:

See, Mathias v. Martin, 87 S.W.3d 859 (Ky. 2002) (where the wife had knowledge of the antenuptial conveyance, her dower rights were effectively defeated).

§ 21.02(h) Property of the Husband in Which the Widow Takes Dower. [Go To Main]

Add:

But see Pezza v. Pezza, 690 A.2d 345 (R.I. 1997) (discussing Rhode Island statute § 33-25-2, which gives to the widow a life estate in property owned by her husband in fee simple).

§ 21.02(j) Release of Dower. [Go To Main]

Add:

Lim v. Greenfield, 65 Fed. Appx. 549 (6th Cir. 2003) (holding that a wife cannot relinquish her dower right through a transfer of property, to her, of the same property in which she had a dower right).

Add:

State v. Hess, 684 N.W.2d 414 (Minn., 2004) (holding that a provision to release dower rights is evidence that the deed conveyed a fee interest and not an easement).

Add:

Mosley v. Mosley, 2004 Tenn. App. LEXIS 712 (Tenn. Ct. App., 2004) (a post-nuptial, marriage dissolution agreement can convert marital property into separate property, thereby eliminating any dower interest).

§ 21.02(k) Loss of Dower Without the Wife's consent. [Go To Main]

Add:

But see Sugar v. Blum, 2004 Ohio 1384 (Ohio Ct. App., 2004) (Specific performance to convey property could be ordered against a husband when the husband's contract to deliver a good and sufficient warranty deed for the property included a release of dower, even though the wife was not party to the contract; in this case the husband might be liable to the wife if she refuses to consent to the release of dower, but the specific performance can still be ordered).

§ 21.02(o) Valuation of Dower. [Go To Main]

Add:

Menninger v. Mortgage Elec. Registration Sys. (In re Bowling), 314 B.R. 127 (Bankr. D. Ohio, 2004) (dower interest is subject to valuation in bankruptcy proceedings).

§ 21.02(q) Statutory Modification and Abolition of Dower. [Go To Main]

Add:

See In re Est. of Gervais, 770 A.2d 877 (R.I. 2001) (statute leaving life estate to widow includes all of decedent spouse's real estate, both residential and nonresidential); Pezza v. Pezza, 690 A.2d 345 (R.I. 1997) (discussing Rhode Island statute which leaves widow with a life estate in any real property owned in fee simple by her deceased spouse).

Add:

In re Estate of Gervais, 770 A.2d 877 (R.I. 2001) .

§ 21.02(r) Pre-nuptial Agreements and Jointures as Barring Dower. [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Estate of Taris, 2005 Ohio 1516 (Ohio Ct. App., 2005) (an "all-inclusive" ante-nuptial agreement bars not only the wife's dower interest, but also her election to take).

Add:

Boetsma v. Boetsma, 768 N.E.2d 1016 (Ind. App. 2002) . See also, In re Marriage of Van Horn, 2002 Iowa App. LEXIS 705 (July 3, 2002) (full disclosure standard does not require precise valuations of assets)

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 21.03

Supp. to § 21.03 Curtesy at Common Law.

[Go To Main]

§ 21.03(a) Husband's Rights at Common Law During Coverture in Realty Belonging to the Wife. [Go To Main]

Add:

First Union Home Equity Bank, N.A. v. Bedford Loan and Deposit Bank, 111 S.W.3d 892 (Ky. App., 2003) (holding that where one statute [KRS 392.040(1)] provides an exception to curtesy rights in property that is sold to satisfy a mortgage, and where another statute [KRS 404.030(1)] provides that curtesy rights are not barred by the wife's encumbrance of her property, and that the husband has no curtesy interest in the property, then first statute supersedes the second).

§ 21.03(f) How Curtesy Is Defeated. [Go To Main]

Add:

Cantrell v. Cantrell, 2004 Tenn. App. LEXIS 888 (Tenn. Ct. App., 2004) (holding that an estranged husband had an interest in the property that his wife conveyed without his consent).

Add:

Mosley v. Mosley, 2004 Tenn. App. LEXIS 712 (Tenn. Ct. App., 2004) (a post-nuptial, marriage dissolution agreement can convert marital property into separate property, thereby eliminating any curtesy interest).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 21.04

Supp. to § 21.04 Homestead at Common Law.

[Go To Main]

§ 21.04(a) What Is a Homestead? [Go To Main]

Change "debtors" to "debtors' "

Add:

In re Ballato, 318 B.R. 205 (Bankr. D. Fla., 2004) (Purpose of Florida homestead exemption is to protect and preserve the family home).

Add:

Farstveet v. Rudolph ex rel. Eileen Rudolph Est., 630 N.W.2d 24 (N.D. 2001) (holding that homestead rights are a creature of statute).

Add:

Kipp v. Sweno, 629 N.W.2d 468 (Minn. App. 2001) (construing homestead to be that place where the debtor and his family live);

In re Drenttel, 302 B.R. 26 (D. Minn. 2003) (holding that property located outside of the state of Minnesota could not be included in the homestead exemption of Minnesota).

Add:

In re Nelms, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 138 (Bankr. D. Mich., 2005) (holding that property outside of Michigan [Louisiana] could not be exempt under Michigan law).

Add:

Besnilian v. Wilkinson, 25 P.3d 187 (Nev. 2001) (discussing Nevada constitution).

Add:

Blankenau v. Landess, 626 N.W.2d 588 (Neb. 2001) (the purpose of the homestead exemption is to protect the debtor and family in the family home from forced sale on execution or attachment).

Redmond v. Kester, 159 P.3d 1004 (Kan. 2007) (a Chapter 7 bankruptcy debtor can claim the Kansas homestead exemption for real property placed in a self-settled living revocable trust before bankruptcy); Patel v. Amresco SBA Holdings, 867 N.E.2d 337 (Mass. App. 2007) (the debtor's debt was contracted before homestead protection was recorded).

Add:

Duncan v. Zubrod, 294 B.R. 339 (10th Cir. 2003) (holding that debtor's spouse could not claim a homestead interest because she did not have ownership interest and because she was not a debtor).

Tolz v. Prestwood (In re Prestwood), 322 B.R. 463 (Bankr. D. Fla., 2005) (For homestead exemption, Florida Law requires not only the right to occupy, but actual occupation with intent to make the property a permanent home).

Add:

Rooms With a View, Inc. v. Private Natl. Mort. Assn., Inc., 7 S.W.3d 840 (Tex. App. Austin 1999) (homestead rights vest in both spouses regardless of whether property is owned by both spouses, by one spouse separately, or even by third party).

Add:

Perry v. Dearing, 345 F.3d 303 (5th Cir. 2003) (holding that a 59-acre parcel of land adjoining the 1.3 acre residence of a debtor does not fall under the homestead exemption, but the 1.3-acre parcel does fall under the exemption).

§ 21.04(b) Nature of Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

Farstveet v. Rudolph ex rel. Eileen Rudolph Est., 630 N.W.2d 24 (N.D. 2001) (holding that homestead rights are a creature of statute).

Add:

Beck v. Lapsley, 593 N.W.2d 410 (S.D. 1999) (homestead right depends entirely upon the constitutional and statutory provisions that created it).

Add:

Havoco of Am., Ltd. v. Hill, 790 So. 2d 1018 (Fla. 2001) (liberally construing homestead exemption in the interest of protecting the family home).

Add:

In re Zibman, 268 F.3d 298, 300-301 (5th Cir. 2001) .

Add:

In re Clarke, 2002 U.S. App. LEXIS 4828 (4th Cir. 2002) ; In re Brizida, 276 B.R. 316, 322 (Bankr. Mass. 2002) .

Barry A. Nelson & Kevin E. Packman, "Real Property, Probate and Trust Law: Florida's Unlimited Homestead Exemption Does Have Some Limits: Part II," 77 Fla. Bar J. 38 (2003).

See generally Middleton v. Lockhart, 43 S.W.3d 113 (Ark. 2001) ; Besnilian v. Wilkinson, 25 P.3d 187 (Nev. 2001) ; Tri-St. Delta Chemicals, Inc. v. Wilkison, 55 S.W.3d 304 (Ark. App. 2001) ; Partridge v. Partridge, 790 So. 2d 1280 (Fla. App. 4th Dist. 2001) ; Homeside Lending, Inc. v. Miller, 31 P.3d 607 (Utah App. 2001) ; Est. of Paulman v. Pemberton, 633 N.W.2d 715 (Wis. App. 2001) .

Add:

Sanchez v. Telles, 960 S.W.2d 762 (Tex. App. El Paso 1997)

Add:

Peterson v. Lenz, 2004 Minn. App. LEXIS 1352 (Minn. Ct. App., 2004) (holding that when homestead exemption waiver was not signed by both spouses, liens on the homestead were not enforceable).

§ 21.04(c) The "Family." [Go To Main]

Add:

Middleton v. Lockhart, 43 S.W.3d 113 (Ark. 2001) (family necessary for existence of homestead).

Add:

In re Warnock, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 576 (Bankr. D. Ark., 2005) (debtor could claim a homestead exemption as a head of house because she undertook the care of her mother who lived with her); In re Myers, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 660 (Bankr. D.N.H., 2005) (debtors were able to claim a duplex under the homestead exemption even though they resided on one side of the duplex because debtor's mother occupied the other half of the duplex and was under the debtors' care).

Add:

In re Wiezorek, 2003 Bankr. LEXIS 1601 (D. Neb. 2003) (holding the purpose of the homestead exemption is to preserve the family, and that marriage and parental status trigger the exemption, and that marriage and parental status are easily ascertained; therefore an unmarried man who had relatives live with him temporarily cannot claim homestead exemption).

Add:

In re Ghanei, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 566 (Bankr. D. Va., 2005) (debtor was able to claim homestead exemption, even though his children also lived with their mother and she claimed them as dependents for tax purposes, because he had shared custody of his children and he provided financial support for them); In re Green, 319 B.R. 913 (Bankr. D. Ga., 2004) (debtor could claim a full homestead exemption in his property even though he and his wife had been separated for many years and she had never lived at the property with him).

Add:

But see In re Coldwell, 196 F.3d 1225 (11th Cir. 1999) (under Florida law, homestead exemption can be established for each of two people who, while married, are legitimately living apart in separate residences, if they otherwise meet requirements of exemption).

Add:

Tri-St. Delta Chemicals, Inc. v. Wilkison, 55 S.W.3d 304 (Ark. App. 2001) (no one can acquire a homestead unless the person is at the time married or the head of a family).

Add:

Tri-St. Delta Chemicals, Inc. v. Wilkison, 55 S.W.3d 304 (Ark. App. 2001) (if a married man or head of a family acquires a homestead, he does not lose his right to claim it as exempt because his wife dies or because he is divorced, even though he may have no family living with him).

Add:

In re Gray, 2003 Bankr. LEXIS 1522 (D. Neb. 2003) (holding that debtor could not claim homestead exemption for property in Kansas because she was a Nebraska resident); In re Goodale, 298 B.R. 886 (W.D. Wash. 2003) (holding that partners in a same-sex relationship do not qualify as spouses for the homestead exemption).

Add:

Tri-St. Delta Chemicals, Inc. v. Wilkison, 55 S.W.3d 304 (Ark. App. 2001) (holding that questions of homestead surround intention and must be determined by the facts in each case).

§ 21.04(d) Interpretation of Homestead Laws. [Go To Main]

Add:

See generally, Middleton v. Lockhart, 43 S.W.3d 113 (Ark. 2001) ; Besnilian v. Wilkinson, 25 P.3d 187 (Nev. 2001) ; Tri-St. Delta Chemicals, Inc. v. Wilkison, 55 S.W.3d 304 (Ark. App. 2001) ; Partridge v. Partridge, 790 So. 2d 1280 (Fla. App. 4th Dist. 2001) ; Homeside Lending, Inc. v. Miller, 31 P.3d 607 (Utah App. 2001) ; Est. of Paulman v. Pemberton, 633 N.W.2d 715 (Wis. App. 2001) .

Add:

In re Cassity, 281 B.R. 365 (Bankr. Ala. 2001) ; In re Brizida, 276 B.R. 316, 322 (Bankr. Mass. 2002) .

Add:

Taylor v. Maness, 941 So.2d 559 (Fla. App. 2006) (wife's successful declaration of marital homestead interest in the property meant that the husband's contract for the sale of the property could not be enforced).

In re John Richards Homes Bldg. Co., L.L.C., 298 B.R. 591, 603 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (holding that one who acts in bad faith by buying a house in another state and trying to gain the homestead exemption is not entitled to the protection offered by the homestead exemption); Zubrod v. Duncan (In re Duncan), 329 F.3d 1195 (10th Cir. 2003) (holding that debtor was not entitled to the homestead exemption because he acted fraudulently).

Add

Martin v. Martin, 720 N.W.2d 732 (Iowa, 2006) (deed invalidated under the terms of the homestead statute).

§ 21.04(e) Methods of Establishing the Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

Farstveet v. Rudolph ex rel. Eileen Rudolph Est., 630 N.W.2d 24 (N.D. 2001) (holding that homestead rights are a creature of statute).

Add:

In re Cumberbatch, 302 B.R. 675 (C.D. Calif. 2003) (homestead interests can arise automatically or the property owner can declare an exemption).

Add:

In re Estate of Mainolfi, 878 A.2d 287 (Vt. 2005) (a husband's conveyance to his wife, by quitclaim deed, of all right and title in the marital home did not convey the homestead interest held by the husband).

Snoddy v. Snoddy, 791 So. 2d 333 (Miss. App. 2001) (to constitute a homestead there must be actual occupation and use of the premises as a home for the family).

Add:

State, Dept. of Revenue ex rel. Vickers v. Pelsey, 779 So. 2d 629 (Fla. App. 1st Dist. 2001) (requiring actual occupancy of home with intention to remain there and make it home of family, the place of their actual use and occupancy).

Add:

LPP Mortg., Ltd. v. Meurer, 2004 Iowa App. LEXIS 11 (Iowa Ct. App., 2004) (intent is sufficient to maintain a homestead, but something more is required to establish one).

§ 21.04(f) Homestead in Undivided Interests. [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Baker, 2003 Bankr. LEXIS 1176 (N.D. Tex. 2003) (holding that a woman could include her undivided one-third interest in a 161.5-acre tract in the homestead exemption).

Kipp v. Sweno, 683 N.W.2d 259 (Minn., 2004) (holding that a debtor was allowed to exercise a homestead exemption in his undivided one-half interest in the property owned in joint tenancy with his wife).

Add:

In re Brizida, 276 B.R. 316 (Bankr. Mass. 2002)

Add:

In re Dawson, 266 B.R. 355 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2001) (holding that under Texas law, a family's homestead may be the separate property of either the husband or the wife, or it may be community property, but the wife cannot have one homestead and the husband another).

§ 21.04(g) Value of Homestead Taken. [Go To Main]

Add:

Kipp v. Sweno, 683 N.W.2d 259 (Minn., 2004) (Minnesota law limits the value of a homestead exemption that can be taken).

Add:

Braswell v. Braswell, 890 So. 2d 379 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App., 2004) (homestead exemption in Florida is limited to one-half acre).

Add:

Wright v. Taylor (In re Taylor), 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 269 (Bankr. D. Ga., 2005) (debtor owned property in joint tenancy with her non-debtor husband and could, therefore, only qualify for half of the total allowable exemption); In re Neary, 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 617 (Bankr. D. Ga., 2004) (debtor wife was limited to half of the full amount of homestead exemption because her husband, who was separated from her, was not exercising any exemption claim on the residence).

Add:

Cox v. Fokkena (In re Cox), 315 B.R. 850 (Bankr. Fed. App., 2004) (holding that a homestead exemption can not exceed the value of the equity in the property).

§ 21.04(h) Duration of the Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Perry, 267 B.R. 759 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2001) (homestead terminated through death, abandonment or alienation).

Add:

In re Heretakis, 293 B.R. 82 (D.Mass. 2003) (holding that a wife can release her homestead rights in the same manner that she can release dower rights, by executing an instrument of conveyance).

§ 21.04(i) Income from the Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Ruggles, 210 B.R. 57 (Bankr. D. Vt. 1997) (Vermont statute exempts all rents, issues, profits, and products arising from the homestead).

Add:

In re Simms, 243 B.R. 156 (Bankr. S.D. Fla. 2000) (under Florida law, homestead proceeds retain their exempt status only if the proceeds are rolled over into another homestead). See also, McMillan v. Aru, 773 So. 2d 355 (Miss. App. 2000) (exemption of proceeds from disposal of homestead property is not dependent on vendor's continuing to be a housekeeper, or on his intention to acquire another homestead, or on the intent with which he keeps the proceeds).

Add:

Homeside Lending, Inc. v. Miller, 31 P.3d 607 (Utah App. 2001) (one year)

§ 21.04(j) Fraud of the Debtor as Defeating the Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Holmes, 403 B.R. 634 (D. Minn. 2009) (mortgage refinancing transaction by spouses, but with husband's signature forged, did not effectively convey any interest in the homestead property).

In re John Richards Homes Bldg. Co., L.L.C., 298 B.R. 591, 603 (E.D. Mich. 2003) (holding that one who acts in bad faith by buying a house in another state and trying to gain homestead exemption is not entitled to the protection offered by the homestead exemption); Maki v. Chong, 75 P.3d 376 (Nev., 2003) (property purchased with money that was to be given to creditors cannot come under the homestead exemption); Zubrod v. Duncan, 329 F.3d 1195 (10th Cir. 2003) (holding that debtor was not entitled to the homestead exemption because he acted fraudulently).

First Nat'l Bank v. Thiede (In re Thiede), 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 1404 (Bankr. D. Kan., 2004) (debtors could not exempt property that was fraudulently transferred to them).

Add:

In re Hecker, 316 B.R. 375 (Bankr. D. Fla., 2004) (homestead exemption was denied because the property was purchased with money fraudulently obtained).

§ 21.04(k) Alienation of the Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

Smith v. James A. Merrill, Inc., 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108 (Cal. App. 4th Dist. 1998) (owner of declared homestead has right to encumber homestead).

add:

National City Bank v. Engler, 777 N.W.2d 762 (Minn. App. 2010) (spouse waived protection of homestead statute by waiving her homestead rights); Gores v. Schultz, 777 N.W.2d 522 (Minn. App. 2009) (mortgage on homestead property was void because the wife's signature on the documents was forged); Szawicki v. Szawicki, 772 N.W.2d 110 (Neb. App. 2009) (conveyance of homestead property by joint tenants to joint tenants and spouse as joint tenants with right of survivorship was valid even though the spouse did not sign or acknowledge the deed).

Add:

Besnilian v. Wilkinson, 25 P.3d 187 (Nev. 2001) (holding that husband could not, without wife's knowledge and consent, alienate his interest in homestead).

Add:

James v. Thaggard, 795 So. 2d 738 (Ala. Civ. App. 2001) (statute provides that conveyances of homestead executed by married persons are invalid without signature of other spouse).

Add:

In re Estate of Mainolfi, 878 A.2d 287 (Vt. 2005) (a husband's conveyance to his wife, by quitclaim deed, of all right and title in the marital home did not convey the homestead interest held by the husband).

Snoddy v. Snoddy, 791 So. 2d 333 (Miss. App. 2001) (invalid conveyance by husband because wife failed to sign).

Add:

Moss v. Est. of Moss, 777 So. 2d 1110 (Fla. App. 4th Dist. 2001) (holding the protections against creditors found in the homestead provision may be devised by will, as opposed to merely following the laws of intestacy).

§ 21.04(l) Interest, Possession and Use Necessary to Create a Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

Gillmor v. Blue Ledge Corporation, 217 P.3d 723 (Utah App. 2009) (previously granted mining patent rendered void a subsequent homestead patent). Casey v. Casey, 2005 OK 13 (Okla., 2005) (where the decedent spouse held the property in joint tenancy, the property passed to the other tenants upon decedent's death, and decedent's widow had no homestead right, even though the widow had made the property her permanent home with the decedent for 14 years); In re Takes, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 339 (Bankr. D. Iowa, 20 05) (holding that when the nature of debtor's title changed upon receipt of a warranty deed, the homestead interest was unchanged); Hoggarth Bros. v. Sec. State Bank of N.D. (In re Hoggarth Bros.), 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7198 (D.N.D., 2004) (wives did not have homestead interest in property that was originally owned by their husbands in partnership).

Add:

Painewebber, Inc. v. Murray, 260 B.R. 815 (E.D. Tex. 2001) (finding a Texas homestead claimant must show the intention to claim the land as a homestead).

Add:

In re Simmons, 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 507 (M.D. Ala. 2004) (holding that a man who divorced his wife cannot claim a homestead exemption in his former occupancy, even if his intent is to reconcile with his estranged spouse and re-occupy the house; his intent to re-occupy did not amount to occupancy in fact); In re Marrama, 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 421 (D. Mass. 2004) (holding that intent to return to occupancy of premises was enough to satisfy the requirements for a homestead exemption); In re Carver, 2003 Bankr. LEXIS 70 (S.D. Ill. 2003) (holding that a spouse whose name does not appear on the title to the property cannot also claim a homestead exemption because the spouse does not have ownership); Snoddy v. Snoddy, 791 So. 2d 333 (Miss. App. 2001) (to constitute a homestead there must be actual occupation and use of the premises as a home for the family).

Add:

But see, In re Mead, 255 B.R. 80 (S.D. Fla. 2000) (the court held that a boat could qualify as a homestead because it was the debtor's residence); In re Christie, 2003 Bankr. LEXIS 26 (M.D. Fla. 2003) (a boat could not qualify as a homestead even if it was the debtor's actual residence); In re Irwin, 293 B.R. 28 (D. Ariz. 2003) (holding that a motor home can qualify as a "homestead" because the debtors were bona fide residents of the state, the debtors lived in their motor home, it was the debtor's only place of residence, and there was no fraud in the debtors' claim to use the homestead exemption).

Add:

Painewebber, Inc. v. Murray, 260 B.R. 815 (E.D. Tex. 2001) (Texas homestead claimant must show both (1) overt acts of homestead usage and (2) the intention on his part to claim the land as a homestead); In re Hughes, 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 335 (M.D. Ala. 2004) (holding that the leased land upon which a debtor's mobile home sat could be included in the homestead exemption because the use of the land was consistent with the character of a "homestead").

In re Simmons, 308 B.R. 559 (Bankr. D. Ala., 2004) (debtor could not get a homestead exemption in a house that he had previously lived in with his family, but which he no longer occupied after separating from his family, because occupancy was necessary to gain an exemption).

Add:

Middleton v. Lockhart, 43 S.W.3d 113 (Ark. 2001) (finding that once the homestead exemption is acquired, continuous occupancy is not required); In re Brown, 299 B.R. 425 (N.D. Tex. 2003) (holding that a timeshare cannot come under the homestead exemption).

Add:

Snoddy v. Snoddy, 791 So. 2d 333 (Miss. App. 2001) (to constitute a homestead there must be actual occupation and use of the premises as a home for the family).

Add:

In re Schissler, 250 B.R. 697 (W.D. Mo. 2000) (debtor may establish a valid homestead exemption claim if there is a bona fide intention of making the premises a homestead).

Add:

State, Dept. of Revenue ex rel. Vickers v. Pelsey, 779 So. 2d 629 (Fla. App. 1st Dist. 2001) (requiring actual occupancy of home with intention to remain there and make it home of family, the place of their actual use and occupancy).

§ 21.04(m) Time Within Which the Homestead Must Be Claimed. [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Gaudreault, 315 B.R. 1 (Bankr. D. Mass., 2004) (debtor's right to claim a homestead exemption was not lost, even after an involuntary petition was filed against him, as long as the exemption was claimed before an order for relief was entered).

§ 21.04(n) Liability of the Homestead for the Debts and Obligations of the Title Holder. [Go To Main]

Add:

Torgelson v. Real Property Known As 17138 880th Ave., Renville County, Minnesota, 749 N.W.2d 24 (Minn. 2008) (homestead property not subject to forfeiture under a drug-asset forfeiture statute).

Chambers v. Potter (In re Potter), 320 B.R. 753 (Bankr. D. Fla., 2005) (In Florida, a homestead is exempt from all creditor claims with three exceptions: (1) unpaid property tax on the homestead, (2) mortgages against the homestead, and (3) mechanic's liens for work done on the homestead property); In re Tendal, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 489 (Bankr. D. Iowa, 2005) (credit card debt is not an obligation for which the homestead can be liable).

add:

Fairfield Financial Group, Inc. v. Synnott, 300 S.W.3d 316 (Tex. App. 2009) (judgment liens cannot attach to a homestead while the property remains a homestead).

Add:

Deutsche Bank National Trust Company v. Rooney, 186 P.3d 820 (Kan. App. 2008) (judgment liens do not attach to homestead property); In re Rand, 400 B.R. 749 (D. Ariz. 2008) (judgment lien did not attach to homestead property).

Wilcox v. Marriott, 103 S.W.3d 469 (Tex. App., 2003) (holding that a third party buyer can claim that the seller's property was a "homestead" when the buyer bought the property; therefore the property is protected from the seller's creditors).

Add:

Chase Manhattan Mortg. Corp. v. Cook, 141 S.W.3d 709 (Tex. App., 2004) (holding that a deed of trust, which was a renewal note, could not create a lien against a homestead).

add:

Denmon v. Atlas Leasing, L.L.C., 285 S.W.3d 591 (Tex. App. 2009) (lack of homestead owner's signature on loan documents rendered mechanic's lien invalid).

Add:

Nichols v. Williams, 2005 La. App. LEXIS 892 (La. Ct. App., 2005) (Louisiana statute allows homestead property an exemption from taxes).

Add:

Cadle Co. v. Harvey, 46 S.W.3d 282 (Tex. App. Fort Worth 2001) (general creditors who have reduced their debts to judgment do not obtain a judgment lien against property claimed, occupied, and used by the debtor as a homestead); Homeside Lending, Inc. v. Miller, 31 P.3d 607 (Utah App. 2001) (judgment lienholder was entitled to receive from sheriff's sale only those proceeds that did not impair the debtors' homestead exemption).

In re Heeren, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 604 (Bankr. D. Iowa, 2005) (debtor's homestead was exempt from a judicial lien); In re Adell, 321 B.R. 573 (Bankr. D. Fla., 2005) (debtor was able to avoid judicial lien against his property because the lien impaired the enjoyment of his full constitutional property exemption); In re Durban, 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 2032 (Bankr. D. Tex., 2004) (creditor's lien was avoided because the debtor's property qualified as exempt).

Add:

Equitable Bank, S.S.B. v. Chabron, 618 N.W.2d 262 (Wis. App. 2000) (homesteads are statutorily exempt from judgment liens, but not from mortgage foreclosures).

§ 21.04(o) Abandonment as Terminating the Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

Farstveet v. Rudolph ex rel. Eileen Rudolph Est., 630 N.W.2d 24 (N.D. 2001) (abandonment terminates the homestead); Tri-St. Delta Chemicals, Inc. v. Wilkison, 55 S.W.3d 304 (Ark. App. 2001) (holding that the only way the homestead exemption may be removed is by waiver or abandonment).

In re Hunter, 295 B.R. 882 (Bankr., 2003) (abandoned property cannot be claimed under homestead exemption).

Add:

In re MacFarlane, 325 B.R. 908 (M.D. Fla. 2005) (a husband required by court order to not live in the marital residence is not considered to have abandoned his homestead right).

In re Marrama, 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 421 (D. Mass. 2004) (holding that the owner's intent to return, and his continuing exercise of dominion and control, allowed him to exempt his property as under the homestead exemption); In re Murphy, 292 B.R. 403 (D. N.D. 2003) (declaration of intent to return to occupancy is sufficient to warrant an exemption under homestead statute).

Add:

In re Kelley, 285 B.R. 1, 2 (Bankr. Cal. 2002) (homestead can only be abandoned by recording a declaration of abandonment, recording a declaration of homestead on a different property, conveyance of homestead, or implicitly by establishing another residence as the principal dwelling).

Farstveet v. Rudolph ex rel. Eileen Rudolph Est., 630 N.W.2d 24 (N.D. 2001) (abandonment requires a ceasing of occupancy without the intention to return).

Add:

Farstveet v. Rudolph ex rel. Eileen Rudolph Est., 630 N.W.2d 24 (N.D. 2001) (abandonment requires a ceasing of occupancy without the intention to return).

Add:

Farstveet v. Rudolph ex rel. Eileen Rudolph Est., 630 N.W.2d 24 (N.D. 2001) (abandonment requires a ceasing of occupancy without the intention to return).

Add:

In re Dawson, 266 B.R. 355 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2001) (under Texas law, the owner or claimant of the property claimed as homestead, if married, may not abandon the homestead without the consent of the other spouse).

Add:

Farstveet v. Rudolph ex rel. Eileen Rudolph Est., 630 N.W.2d 24 (N.D. 2001) (abandonment requires a ceasing of occupancy without the intention to return).

Add:

In re Klaiber, 265 B.R. 290 (Bankr. M.D. Fla. 2001) (under Florida law, whether there has been an abandonment of property as homestead should be determined by considering all relevant facts and circumstances).

In re Simmons, 308 B.R. 559 (Bankr. D. Ala., 2004) (an undefined, floating intention to return to a homestead at some future period is not enough to preserve an exemption).

Add:

In re Maloney, 311 B.R. 525 (Bankr. D. Mo., 2004) (holding that removal from property for 17 years constituted abandonment, despite the fact that the owner's son resided on the property).

§ 21.04(p) Effect of Dissolution of the Family Unit Upon the Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

Middleton v. Lockhart, 43 S.W.3d 113 (Ark. 2001) (holding that spouses retain their homestead by marriage, even if, through no fault their own, they are deserted or their children leave).

Add:

Middleton v. Lockhart, 43 S.W.3d 113 (Ark. 2001) (holding that a homestead right is not terminated by death of a spouse or departure of children by reaching the age of majority).

Add:

But see, In re Est. of Casida, 13 S.W.3d 519 (Tex. App. 2000) (the mere existence of an unmarried adult child remaining with the family is sufficient to cause the homestead to descend free from the claims of creditors).

Add:

In re Est. of Martelle, 32 P.3d 758 (Mont. 2001) (under Montana statute, surviving spouse and minor children take the homestead with no qualification except that they survive the decedent by 120 hours).

Add:

Painewebber, Inc. v. Murray, 260 B.R. 815 (E.D. Tex. 2001) (when head of household dies, surviving spouse maintains the same homestead rights as both spouses had prior to the death of the other).

Coyle v. Kujaczynski, 759 N.W.2d 637 (Iowa App.) (a tenant's homestead interest in the property did not preclude partition by sale).

At the end of § 21.04(p), add the following text and new footnote 1741.1:

Where a person murders his or her spouse, any homestead rights that person enjoys personally by reason of the marriage to the murdered spouse are extinguished by the murder; the murder does not, however, affect any homestead rights arising from the murderer's status as head of household where such rights are necessary to provide the homestead protections to children or other dependents of the murderer.[1741.1]

§ 21.04(q) What Property Makes Up the Homestead. [Go To Main]

Add:

In re Kyllonen, 264 B.R. 17 (Bankr. D. Minn. 2001) (homestead property is "rural" or "urban" in character).

In re Moore, 269 B.R. 864, 868-69 (Bankr. Idaho 2001) (property must be intended or used as the principal home for the owner).

Perry v. Dearing, 345 F.3d 303 (5th Cir. 2003) (holding that a 59-acre parcel of land adjoining the 1.3-acre residence of a debtor does not fall under the homestead exemption, but the 1.3-acre parcel does fall under the exemption); Rush Truck Ctrs. of Tex. L.P. v. Bouchie, 324 F.3d 780, 783 (5th Cir. 2003) (homestead is rural or urban in character).

Add:

Jenkins v. Hodes (In re Hodes), 402 F.3d 1005 (10th Cir., 2005) (holding that a money deposit paid to a contractor for improvements to the property can be included in the homestead exemption); Rubino, 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 1015 (Bankr. D. Iowa, 2004) (money owed by debtors for the installation of a pool on their property could not be exempt because a pool did not qualify for exemption under Iowa law); In re Olsen, 322 B.R. 400 (Bankr. D. Wis., 2005) (homestead exemption did not extend to all parcels of a subdivided property that once made up a contiguous parcel of land because not all the parcels were reasonable and necessary for the use of the dwelling as a home).

Add:

In re Estate of Riggle, 654 N.W.2d 710 (Minn. App. 2002) (Minnesota law is clear that a homestead extends to farmland and business-use property).

Add:

But see Iowa State Bank & Trust Co. v. Michel, 683 N.W.2d 95 (Iowa, 2004) (In Iowa, even though agricultural land was not being used for agricultural purposes, the land qualified as agricultural land under Iowa statute).

Add:

In re Webb, 263 B.R. 788 (Bankr. W.D. Tex. 2001) (to be included in a Texas rural homestead, property separated from the tract where the residence is located must be used for home purposes).

Add:

In re Shell, 295 B.R. 129 (D. Alaska 2003) (holding that a property owner could include his tools in the homestead exemption, because the tools were necessary to the management and maintenance of the property owner's apartment complex, which was already included in the homestead exemption).

Add:

In re Estate of Riggle, 654 N.W.2d 710 (Minn. App. 2002) .

Add:

In re Arwood, 289 B.R. 889, 894 (E.D. Tenn. 2003) (holding that a debtor could not claim homestead exemption because the property was owned in tenancy by the entirety with his wife and she did not file to have the property exempted as a homestead).

In re Mead, 255 B.R. 80 (S.D. Fla. 2000) (the court held that a boat could qualify as a homestead because it was the debtor's residence); In re Christie, 2003 Bankr. LEXIS 26 (M.D. Fla. 2003) (a boat could not qualify as a homestead even if it was the debtor's actual residence); In re Irwin, 293 B.R. 28 (D. Ariz. 2003) (holding that a motor home can qualify as a "homestead" because the debtors were bona fide residents of the state, the debtors lived in their motor home, it was the debtor's only place of residence, and there was no fraud in the debtors' claim to use the homestead exemption).

Add:

In re Myers, 2005 Bankr. LEXIS 660 (Bankr. D.N.H., 2005) (debtors were able to claim a duplex under the homestead exemption even though they resided on one side of the duplex because debtor's mother occupied the other half of the duplex and was under the debtors' care).

Add:

Norris v. Thomas (In re Norris), 316 B.R. 246 (D. Tex., 2004) (a 68-foot houseboat, complete with bedrooms, bathrooms, and a galley, which the owner testified was his full-time residence, did not qualify for a homestead exemption under Texas law; the court stated that the boat's mobility made it movable chattel and not permanent residence).

Add:

In re MacLeod, 295 B.R. 1 (D. Maine 2003) (mobile home did not qualify for homestead exception); In re Irwin, 293 B.R. 28 (D. Ariz. 2003) (holding that a motor home can qualify as a "homestead" because the debtors were bona fide residents of the state, the debtors lived in their motor home, it was the debtor's only place of residence, and there was no fraud in the debtors' claim to use the homestead exception); In re Hughes, 2004 Bankr. LEXIS 335 (M.D. Ala. 2004) (holding that the leased land upon which a debtor's mobile home sat could be included in the homestead exemption because the use of the land was consistent with the character of a "homestead"); In re Brown, 299 B.R. 425 (N.D. Tex. 2003) (holding that a timeshare cannot come under the homestead exception). In re Yettaw, 316 B.R. 560 (Bankr. D. Fla., 2004) (holding that a motor home qualified as a homestead).

Add:

In re Emerald Outdoor Adver., L.L.C., 300 B.R. 775, 786 (E.D. Wash. 2003) (holding that lien holder's interests are inferior to homestead interests).

In re Upton, 6 P.3d 1231 (Wash. App. 1st Div. 2000) (homestead claimant's interest in property takes priority over the interests of creditors).

Add:

In re Rutland, 318 B.R. 588 (Bankr. D. Ala., 2004) (holding that pre-paid rent is eligible for a homestead exemption); Sticka v. Casserino (In re Casserino), 379 F.3d 1069 (9th Cir., 2004) (both pre-paid rent and security deposit qualified for a homestead exemption).

§ 21.04(r) Effect of Death of Head of the Family. [Go To Main]

Add:

Traeger v. Credit First Nat'l Ass'n, 864 So. 2d 1188 (Fla. App., 2004) (holding that a stepson's share in the homestead of the decedent is preserved, even though the stepson is not the nearest heir in relation to the decedent); Hardon v. Estate of Patek, 2003 Minn. App. LEXIS 467 (No. CX-02-1567, Apr. 22, 2003) (holding that an heir is entitled to homestead protection in her share of her mother's estate, even though her sister entered into a purchase agreement).

Add:

In re Est. of Martelle, 32 P.3d 758 (Mont. 2001) (under Montana statute, surviving spouse takes the homestead with no qualification except that he or she survives the decedent by 120 hours).

Add:

In re Estate of Ablan, 591 N.W.2d 725 (Minn. App. 1999) (title to homestead property rests in the heirs absolutely upon the death of the decedent and is not an estate asset for the purpose of administration).

Add:

Casey v. Casey, 2005 OK 13 (Okla., 2005) (where the decedent spouse held the property in joint tenancy, the widow had no homestead right because the property passed to the other tenants upon decedent's death).

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Supp. To CHAPTER 21 MARITAL AND HOMESTEAD INTERESTS

3-21 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions Supp. to § 2l.05

Supp. to § 2l.05 Bibliography.

[Go To Main]

Books

Christiansen, Keith A., et al. Marital Property Law in Wisconsin (3d ed. 2004).

Articles

Baskies, Jeffrey A. and John H. Pelzer. "Higgs v. Warwick: Lessees of 99-Year Leases Qualify for Homestead and Save Our Homes Tax Exemption Purposes," 83 Fla. B.J. 38 (November, 2009).

Crosswhite, Anastasia B. "Women and Land: Aristocratic Ownership of Property in Early Modern England." N.Y.U.L. Rev. Vol. 77 (2002) 1119 (historical analysis of women and property rights).

Hipler, Harry M. "Florida's Homestead Realty: Is It Exempt From Imposition of an Equitable Lien for Nonpayment of Alimony and Child Support?" 82 Fla. B.J. 34 (August, 2008).

Jois, Goutam U. "Marital Status as Property: Toward a New Jurisprudence for Gay Rights," 41 Harv. C.R.-C.L. L. Rev. 509 (Summer, 2006).

Musselman, James L. "Once Upon a Time in Bankruptcy Court: Sorting Out Liability of Marital Property for Marital Debt is No Fairy Tale," 41 Fam. L.Q. 249 (Summer, 2007).

Oldham, J. Thomas. "Divorce, Homestead and Bankruptcy After the 2005 Amendments: Can a Divorce Property Settlement Constitute an "Acquisition" of a Homestead?" 13 J. Consumer & Com. L. 2 (Fall, 2009).

Pagel, Briane F. "After the Split: The Marital Property Act's Effects on Debt After Marrigage," 80 Wis. Law. 8 (November, 2007).

Pfautz, Krista. "Constitutional Law-Equal Protection-The Michigan Supreme Court Has Refused to Disturb Michigan's

Dower Statutes from Their Unique Status, In re Miltenberger, 753 N.W.2d 219 (Mich. 2008) , 87 U. Det. Mercy L. Rev. 35 (Fall 2009).

Rothenberg, Mark A. and Kara L. Cannizzaro. "The Loss of Homestead Through Rental," 84 Fla. B.J. 34 (January, 2010).

Tawney, James. "Call All Criminals, Our State Will Protect Your Crack House: Homestead Protection's Application to Forfeiture Resulting from Criminal Conduct," 2 Est. Plan. & Community Prop. L.J. 227 (Fall, 2009).

Turner, Brett R. "Unlikely Partners: The Marital Home and the Concept of Separate Property," 20 J. Am. Acad. Matrim. Law 69 (2006).

Annotations

Annotation, Dower or marital rights of husband or wife in respect of improvements made by spouse's alienee or his successor after death of spouse, 74 A.L.R. 1168 .

Annotation, Priority of surviving spouse who accepts provision of will in lieu of dower or other marital rights over other legatees and devisees and creditors, 2 A.L.R.2d 607 .

Annotation. Priority of surviving spouse who accepts provisions of will in lieu of dower or other marital rights over other legatees and devisees and creditors, 2 A.L.R.2d 607 .

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 22 REVERSIONS

3-22 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions 22.syn

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based in part on ch. 30, George R. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), which made an important contribution to preserving the American common law on reversions. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 22.syn Synopsis to Chapter 22: REVERSIONS

§ 22.01 Introduction

§ 22.02 Definitions of Reversions

§ 22.02(a) Several Definitions of Reversions

§ 22.02(b) Defined as a Present, Vested Right

§ 22.02(c) Types of Reversionary Interests

§ 22.02(d) Types of Reversions

§ 22.02(e) Reversions and Remainders Distinguished

§ 22.03 Incidents of Reversions

§ 22.04 How Reversions Arise

§ 22.04(a) Grant

§ 22.04(b) Lapse

§ 22.04(c) Reservation

§ 22.04(d) Implication

§ 22.04(e) Upon Corporate Dissolution

§ 22.05 Reversions Under the Doctrine of Worthier Title

§ 22.06 Rights of Reversioners

§ 22.06(a) Rights Regarding Waste

§ 22.06(b) Rights Regarding Possession

§ 22.06(c) Rights Regarding Transfer

§ 22.06(d) Rights Affected by Statutes of Limitation and Laches

§ 22.07 Miscellaneous Rules Regarding Reversions

§ 22.08 Bibliography

Professor David A. Thomas n*
J. Reuben Clark Law School
Brigham Young University

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote *.
This chapter is based in part on ch. 30, George R. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), which made an important contribution to preserving the American common law on reversions.

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 22 REVERSIONS

3-22 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 22.01

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based in part on ch. 30, George R. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), which made an important contribution to preserving the American common law on reversions. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 22.01 Introduction

This chapter reviews the American common law of reversions, including an overview of statutory changes to that common law. Definitions and incidents of reversions are explained, as are various ways for reversions to be created or to come into being. The chapter discusses extensively the impact of the doctrine of worthier title on reversions. Rights of reversioners with respect to waste, possession (including adverse possession), and transferability are reviewed.

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 22 REVERSIONS

3-22 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 22.02

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based in part on ch. 30, George R. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), which made an important contribution to preserving the American common law on reversions. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 22.02 Definitions of Reversions

[Go To Supp]

§ 22.02(a) Several Definitions of Reversions

Whenever one owning an estate in lands grants a lesser estate to another, there remains in the grantor an interest which is in legal parlance "reversionary." n1 Blackstone defines the word "reversion" as "the residue of an estate left in the grantor, to commence in possession after the determination of some particular estate granted out by him." n2 "It is also described as the returning of land to the grantor, or his heirs, after the grant is over." n3 In the Restatement of the Law of Property, it is defined as "any reversionary interest which is not subject to a condition precedent." n4

§ 22.02(b) Defined as a Present, Vested Right

A reversion grows out of the legal maxim that whatever one does not dispose of remains to one and one's heirs. It has two significations: first, the one is an estate left which continues during a particular estate in being; and second, the other is the returning of the land after the particular estate is ended. n5 It is an actual estate in praesenti and is vested in the sense of a present fixed right of enjoyment in the future. n6 It is therefore freely alienable, devisable and descends to the grantor's heirs. n7

§ 22.02(c) Types of Reversionary Interests

The following types of reversionary interests are recognized: escheats, rights of re-entry (sometimes called "powers of termination"), possibilities of reverter and reversions. Where the owner in fee of land creates out of the fee a lesser estate of freehold, after the expiration of the lesser estate, such owner in fee has a fee which the owner has not wholly parted with, the lesser estate being called the "particular estate," and that left in the owner in fee during the continuance of the particular estate the "reversion." n8

§ 22.02(d) Types of Reversions

The term "reversion" is applied to four different residual interests remaining in the grantor: n9

(a) where the grantor grants a leasehold interest,

(b) where the grantor creates a life estate,

(c) upon the creation of a fee tail, n10 and

(d) upon a grant to a body corporate.

The legal rights of the reversioner in each of these situations are considerably different. n11

At one time a reversion after a lease was considered to be coupled with a right of re-entry upon breach of conditions set forth in the lease, and while the reversion could be assigned, the right of re-entry could not be taken advantage of by the assignee. The grantees of expropriated monastery lands were given the same rights as the lessor of such lands had, in effect merging the right of re-entry into the reversion so as to give the assignee of leased property the same rights as the assignor. The statute of covenants n12 is generally considered to have become part of the common law.

§ 22.02(e) Reversions and Remainders Distinguished

The words "reversion" and "remainder" mean different things as regards the manner of derivation of title. In certain instances, the omission to distinguish between them accurately might be material. n13 The reversion differs from a remainder in that the latter is created by deed or devise, while the former is created by operation of law. n14 It is the residue of an estate left by operation of law in the grantor or devisor or his successors, commencing in possession on the determination of a particular estate granted or devised. n15

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 1. "That by way of use, or by devise the inheritance in the meantime, if not otherwise disposed of, remains in the grantor and his heirs, or in the heirs of the testator, until the contingency happens to take it out of them." Charles Fearne, An Essay on the Learning of Contingent Remainders and Executory Devices (10th ed. 1844), ch. 6, p. 357.

Reversion to land out of which life estate was created held valid. Mid-State Homes, Inc. v. Johnson, 128 S.E.2d 197 (Ga. 1962). See also Fennell v. Foskey, 225 S.E.2d 231 (Ga. 1976).

See Verner F. Chaffin, Reverters, Rights of Entry, and Executory Interests: Semantic Confusion and the Tying Up of Land, 31 Fordham L. Rev. 303 (1962-1963); Olin L. Browder, Jr., Future Interest Reform, 35 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 1255 (1960).

See also David M. Becker, Future Interests and the Myth of the Simple Will: An Approach to Estate Planning, 1972 Wash. U.L.Q. 607; 1973 Wash. U.L.Q. 1.

(n2)Footnote 2. William Blackstone, Commentaries 175; Miller v. Internal Revenue Comm'r, 147 F.2d 189 (6th Cir. 1945); Wilson v. Pharris, 158 S.W.2d 274 (Ark. 1942); Keogh v. Peck, 147 N.E. 266 (Ill. 1925). See also Nelson v. Department of Corrections, 816 P.2d 768, 769 n.1 (Wash. App. 1991) (noting the state of Washington has defined reversion by statute).

An estate in reversion is the residue of an estate left in the grantor, to commence in possession after the determination of some particular estate granted out by him. Sir Edward Coke describes a reversion to be the returning of land to the grantor or his heirs after the grant is over. As, if there be a gift in tail, the reversion of the fee is, without any special reservation, vested in the donor by act of law: and so also the reversion, after an estate for life, years, or at will, continues in the lessor. For the fee-simple of all lands must abide somewhere; and if he, who was before possessed of the whole, carves out of it any smaller estate, and grants it away, whatever is not so granted remains in him. A reversion is never therefore created by deed, or writing, but arises from construction of law; a remainder can never be limited, unless by either deed or devise. But both are equally transferable, when actually vested, being both estates in praesenti, though taking effect in futuro.

The doctrine of reversions is plainly derived from the feudal constitution. For when a feud was granted to a man for life, or to him and his issue male, rendering either rent or other services; then, on his death or the failure of issue male, the feud was determined, and resulted back to the lord or proprietor, to be again disposed of at his pleasure. And hence the usual incidents to reversions are said to be fealty and rent. When no rent is reserved on the particular estate, fealty however results of course, as an incident quite inseparable, and may be demanded as a badge of tenure, or acknowledgement of superiority; being frequently the only evidence that the lands are holden at all. Where rent is reserved, it is also incident, though not inseparably so, to the reversion. The rent may be granted away, reserving the reversion; and the reversion may be granted away, reserving the rent; by special words: but by a general grant of the reversion, the rent will pass with it, as incident thereunto; though by the grant of the rent generally, the reversion will not pass. The incident passes by the grant of the principal, but not if converse. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 175.

Reversion is the residue left in an estate after determination of a particular estate granted out. In re Leasing Consultants, Inc., 351 F. Supp. 1390 (E.D.N.Y. 1972).

(n3)Footnote 3. Sorrells v. McNally, 105 So. 106 (Fla. 1925). See the following cases: Keogh v. Peck, 147 N.E. 266 (Ill. 1925); Reichard v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co., 1 N.W.2d 721 (Iowa 1942); Guess v. Morgan, 26 S.E.2d 424 (Ga. 1943); Duff v. Rodenkirchen, 182 N.Y.S. 35 (1920), aff'd, Duff v. Fox, 183 N.Y.S. 947 (1920); Brown v. Guthery, 130 S.E. 836 (N.C. 1925); Corley v. Hoyt, 107 S.E. 34 (S.C. 1921).

(n4)Footnote 4. Restatement, Property, § 154, (2). Miller v. Dierken, 33 A.2d 804 (Pa. Super. 1943). Vested remainderman may devise. Oliver v. Irvin, 125 S.E.2d 695 (Ga. App. 1962). This same definition is retained in the Restatement (Second) of the Law of Property, Donative Transfers, § 1.4.

(n5)Footnote 5. 2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 175.

(n6)Footnote 6. Todd v. Jackson, 26 N.J.L. 525 (1857); Barber v. Brundage, 63 N.Y.S. 347 (1900); Powell v. Dayton, S. & G. R.R., 16 P. 863 (Or. 1888), Staley-Wynne Oil Corp. v. International Shoe Co., 91 S.W.2d 877 (Tex. Civ. App. 1936). See also Long v. Crum, 267 N.W.2d 407, 410 (Iowa 1978).

The grant of a partial or particular estate only, as an estate for life or an estate tail, created a relation of tenure between the tenant of the particular estate and the reversioner, to which fealty and services were incident according to law or the express reservation of the grant. The statute quia emptores, which abolished sub-infeudation, was expressly confined to alienations of the fee simple and did not affect this tenure of particular estates to the reversion, which may still be created. It has been called an imperfect tenure, as distinguished from the perfect tenure incident to the seignory of the fee, in which the rent and services are incident to the seignory; in the imperfect tenure they are incident to the reversion. A grant of a particular estate and at the same time a grant of the remainder in retaining no reversion is within the statute quia emptores; no new tenure is created and both the grantee of the particular estate and of the ultimate remainder hold immediately of the lord of whom the grantor held.

If tenant in fee simple convey the land to a person for a particular estate only as for an estate tail or for a term of life as of years there remains in him and his heirs an estate expectant as to the possession upon the determination of the particular estate. This estate is called the reversion, because the land then reverts or returns in possession to him or to his heirs... .

In like manner, if the tenant of a particular estate convey the land for a less estate, he has a reversion left in himself; -- thus tenant in tail, by a disentailing assurance, may dispose of the lands entailed in fee simple or for any less estate; and if he make a disposition for a less estate, the reversion remains in him and is subject to the entail, unless it be wholly barred by the same assurance. If tenant in tail lease for life or for years at common law, without a disentailing assurance or any other special or statutory power in that behalf, he has a reversion; but such lease is valid only during his life and is voidable at his death by the heir in tail.

So, tenant for life may make a lease for years, and, however long the term of years may be, as it is not coextensive with the freehold, there is a reversion in the lessor. But such lease, unless made under a special or statutory power, is valid only during the continuance of the lessor's estate, and is avoided by his death.

If tenant for term of years makes an underlease for a shorter term, by however small an interval of time, he has the reversion for that interval left in him. An underlease for a shorter term, "if the underlessee shall so long live," leaves a reversion expectant on the determination of the sub-term either by lapse of time or by the death of the underlessee. An underlease for the whole term, or for a greater estate, operates as an assignment and leaves no reversion; it carries with it all the rights and liabilities incident to the term and leaves none of the incidents of a reversion.

Upon attainder for treason of a tenant in tail the king took subject to the reversion. Hargreaves notes to Coke on Littletons, § 18a. Bluffs Div. II Park Protection Ass'n v. Radich, No. 21693-1-II, 1998 Wash. App. LEXIS 983 (Wash. App. Div. 2 1998) (words "subject to" or "but if").

(n7)Footnote 7. United States v. Bransen, 142 F.2d 232 (9th Cir. 1944); Gilpin v. Williams, 25 Ohio St. 283 (1874); City of Carthage v. United Missouri Bank, 873 S.W.2d 610 (Mo. App. 1994) (possibility of reverter is an interest in land which is alienable and devisable).

(n8)Footnote 8. Carter v. Lewis, 4 N.E.2d 853 (Ill. 1936); Spicer v. Moss, 100 N.E.2d 761 (Ill. 1951).

(n9)Footnote 9. This distinction between reversions was recognized by Coke, Co. Litt., § 239b, to the effect that if a disseisor who had leased for years died the disseisee lost the right of entry but if the disseisor had leased for life, the disseisee's right of entry was not lost. Preseault v. United States, 100 F.3d 1525 (Fed. Cir. 1996) (Property owner's retained interest following the creation of an easement as a "reversion" in fee.)

(n10)Footnote 10. Where a testator devised real estate to a son and the heirs of his own body, and the son neither had nor left "heirs of his own body," it was held that there was a reverter, at the death of the life tenant, to the heirs of the testator. The court denied the application of the rule in Shelley's Case, and held that the son took only a conditional fee. Sagers v. Sagers, 138 N.W. 911 (Iowa 1912). See also In re Estate of Hendrickson, 736 A.2d 540 (N.J. Sup. Ct. Chanc. Div. 1999) (reaching an identical conclusion under New Jersey statute).

See Baker v. Baker, 251 S.W.2d 31 (Mo. 1952) (the same result ensues whether the immediate estate is held to be a fee tail or a conditional estate unless by statute a fee tail is converted into a fee simple absolute in which case the reversion is barred).

In Nebraska, where the will bequeaths the owner a life estate, the testator dies intestate as to the fee. Lowry v. Murren, 236 N.W.2d 627 (Neb. 1975).

A grantor in a fee tail retains a reversion which is an estate, not a mere possibility of reverter or a right of re-entry which is not an estate or alienable. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976).

(n11)Footnote 11. Gilpin v. Williams, 25 Ohio St. 283 (1874); Pollock v. Speidel, 27 Ohio St. 86 (1875).

(n12)Footnote 12. 32 Henry viii, c. 34 (1540).

(n13)Footnote 13. For distinction between remainder and reversion, see Copenhaver v. Pendleton, 155 S.E. 802 (Va. 1930). See also Ludwig v. William K. Warren Foundation, 809 P.2d 660 (Okla. 1990).

(n14)Footnote 14. Wilson v. Pharris, 158 S.W.2d 274 (Ark. 1942); Glenn v. Holt, 229 S.W. 684 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921). See Kavanaugh v. Cohoes Power & Light Corp., 187 N.Y.S. 216 (1921).

(n15)Footnote 15. Davidson v. Davidson, 167 S.W.2d 641 (Mo. 1943); Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Co. v. Harloff, 30 A.2d 57 (N.J. Eq. 1943); Nicoll v. New York & E. R. Co., 12 N.Y. 121 (1854); Staley-Wynne Oil Corp. v. International Shoe Co., 91 S.W.2d 877 (Tex. Civ. App. 1936).

Where the grantor conveyed to X for life with remainder to Y and X forfeited her life estate for waste, there was a reversion in the grantor for the life of X. Folden v. Folden, 188 N.E.2d 193 (Ohio 1962).

A reversion is not subject to any restrictions or encumbrances created by the previous possessor. Bobhic Assoc. Ltd. P'ship v. Carrabba OB-GYN Assoc., 692 A.2d 826, 829 (Conn. App. 1997) ("the transfer of a reversion carries with it the rent due and accruing thereafter by the lease creating the term," quoting Sagal v. Mann, 89 Conn. 576, 581-82; 95 A. 6 (1915)).

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 22 REVERSIONS

3-22 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 22.03

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based in part on ch. 30, George R. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), which made an important contribution to preserving the American common law on reversions. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 22.03 Incidents of Reversions

[Go To Supp]

Fealty is said to be inseparable from the reversion, and rent is an incident to and accompanies the reversion unless separated by an express reservation. n16 An interest in reversion is, by its nature, intangible and impossible of actual possession. n17 A reversioner has neither actual nor constructive possession, nor the right to either, but the estate is simply an estate in expectancy, the particular estate intervening. n18 The estate amounts to a vested interest. n19 It is a present interest, but can only take effect in the future, and may be aliened and charged as an estate in possession. n20 Under most statutes, reversions are made descendible, devisable and alienable in the same manner as estates in possession. n21 At common law, a reversion could be conveyed by feoffment only where the particular estate was less than a freehold, n22 but a reversion, not being an estate in possession, would lie in grant and the ordinary mode of transfer would now be by deed, signed, sealed, and delivered. n23

Of all of these the grantor retains the highest interest when the leasehold is given, the slightest where there is a grant in fee simple to a corporate body. The exact nature of the reversion following a fee tail remains in considerable doubt.

All reversions are estates in land and all estates present or future are vested in interest. A reversion is always treated as vested n24 even though it may be defeated by the vesting of a contingent remainder, by a life estate with a power of disposal n25 or by a defeasible fee coupled with a power. n26

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 16. Johnston v. Smith, 3 Pa. 496 (Pen. & W. 1832).

(n2)Footnote 17. Williams v. Swango, 7 N.E.2d 306 (Ill. 1937).

(n3)Footnote 18. Metcalfe v. Miller, 56 N.W. 16 (Mich. 1893); Copenhaver v. Pendleton, 155 S.E. 802 (Va. 1930). See also Beiger Heritage Corp. v. Kilbey, 676 N.E.2d 784 (Ind. Ct. App. 1997).

Definition of reversions. In re Leasing Consultants, Inc., 351 F. Supp. 1390 (E.D.N.Y. 1972).

(n4)Footnote 19. Fisher v. Easton, 132 N.E. 442 (Ill. 1921).

(n5)Footnote 20. Wingate v. James, 22 N.E. 735 (Ind. 1889). See Copenhaver v. Pendleton, 155 S.E. 802 (Va. 1930) (remainder and reversion distinguished).

Reversion after fee tail descends. Davis v. Davis, 243 S.W.2d 739 (Ark. 1951).

(n6)Footnote 21. Barber v. Brundage, 63 N.Y.S. 347 (1900), aff'd, 62 N.E. 417 (N.Y. 1902).

(n7)Footnote 22. Co. Litt., § 48b. See Copenhaver v. Pendleton, 155 S.E. 802 (Va. 1930).

(n8)Footnote 23. Patterson v. Patterson, 122 S.W. 169 (Ky. 1909).

(n9)Footnote 24. Brown v. Brown, 93 N.E. 357 (Ill. 1910).

This is true even though it is destructible as a reversion after a fee tail where the tenant in tail may convey a fee simple absolute. Gibson v. Neeley, 11 Ohio St. 131 (1860).

It is also true where there is a contingent remainder in fee. The reversion exists in nubibus until the contingent remainder vests or fails. 2 Preston on Abstracts 100. Charles Fearne, An Essay on the Learning of Contingent Remainders and Executory Devices (10th ed. 1844), ch. 6, p. 361, however, considered the reversion as vested and active.

Held contingent in Frazer v. Board of Supvrs. of Peoria County, 74 Ill. 282 (1874); King v. Wurts, 13 S.W.2d 1043 (Ky. 1929).

A reversionary interest descends to grantor's heirs. Nowlin v. Columbia Sch. Dist., 401 S.W.2d 394 (Mo. 1966).

A reversion is a vested interest freely alienable. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976). Dennis v. Bird, 941 S.W.2d 486, 489 (Ky App. 1997). (since reversions are vested at the time of creation, the rule against perpetuities does not apply).

(n10)Footnote 25. McCready v. Lyon, 187 S.E. 442 (Va. 1936).

(n11)Footnote 26. Guess v. Morgon, 26 S.E.2d 424 (Ga. 1943).

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 22 REVERSIONS

3-22 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 22.04

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based in part on ch. 30, George R. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), which made an important contribution to preserving the American common law on reversions. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 22.04 How Reversions Arise

[Go To Supp]

A reversion may come into existence (a) through a failure to grant or devise all of the creator's estate, (b) through an express reservation of the reversion, n27 (c) through the doctrine of the "worthier title," or (d) by operation of law. Whenever a deed, trust instrument or will creates a life estate, a fee subject to defeasance by a conditional limitation or a life estate followed by a remainder which is not vested absolutely, a reversion is retained by the creator. n28 A reversion is not usually created by deed, but it arises only by implication of law, n29 and remains vested in the sense of a present fixed right of enjoyment in the future. n30

> "A remainder chiefly differs from a reversion in this -- that between the owner of the particular estate and the owner of the remainder (called the remainderman) no tenure exists. They both derive their estates from the same source, the grant of the owner in fee simple; and each of them has no more right to be lord than the other... . The other point of difference between a reversion and a remainder ... namely, that a reversion arises necessarily from the grant of the particular estate being simply that part of the estate of the grantor which remains undisposed of, but a remainder is always itself created by an express grant." n31

Coke and Challis n32 both felt that there could be no reversion after a conditional fee. Plucknett n33 has disproved this. Prior to the time of quia emptores, A owning in fee simple upon conveying to B in fee simple retained in himself a right of escheat which was reversionary in nature. n34

§ 22.04(a) Grant

The most common method of creating a reversion is by merely granting a lesser estate. "A reversion merely arises incidentally in consequence of the grant of the particular estate. It is created simply by the law whilst a remainder springs from the act of the parties." n35 Where a grant is of a life estate with contingent remainder or remainders, the reversion is in the grantor and descends to the grantor's heirs at law. n36

§ 22.04(b) Lapse

Where (1) there is a lapse n37 or in the event of a void devise n38 there is a reversion, where there is a renunciation of a devise n39 or (2) there is a grant or devise in a trust where the beneficiary is given less than absolute ownership of the equitable estate, the trustee takes only so much of the legal title as is necessary to carry out the trust and there is a reversion of the balance. n40

§ 22.04(c) Reservation

A reversion may also arise out of specific words of reservation in the instrument creating the immediate estate. n41 Language providing that the immediate estate shall terminate or that the property shall return to the creator of the immediate estate under certain circumstances may have the varying effects of (a) making the creator a mere forced heir of the holder of the immediate estate, n42 (b) giving the grantor, settlor or testator a reversion after a determinable life estate, n43 (c) giving the creator a possibility of reverter after a determinable fee, n44 (d) giving the creator a right of re-entry following a fee upon condition subsequent, or (e) imposing a trust upon the holder of the immediate estate.

Lawful restrictions in a deed with respect to the use of land and providing for a reversion may be enforced in accordance with the express language of the deed. n45 Whether a settlor in a trust deed intended to reserve a reversion or make a gift in remainder to distributees must be determined from the terms of the instrument. n46

§ 22.04(d) Implication

Most authorities consider that if the remainder over after a life estate, a fee tail or an executory limitation after a fee tail is contingent or even vested subject to divesting, there must be a reversion. n47 Thus, the reversioner is a necessary party to all actions affecting the realty. n48 Reversions also exist where there are succeeding contingent remainders as, to A "for life and then to A's children but if no children to B." n49 In such a case, since B will take only if A dies childless, a possibility exists that neither remainder would take if A's life estate should terminate prematurely and the remainder were destructible. Whether a reversion would exist where the doctrine of destructibility of remainders no longer prevails is questionable.

Where the remainders are alternative instead of successive, that is, to A for life and then to B if B be then alive but if for any reason B cannot take then to C, the remainder to C being in the alternative would not need a reversion to follow it. n50 If, however, the jurisdiction held to the doctrine of destructibility of contingent remainders and there was a premature termination of the life estate, conceivably a reversion would still exist at all times until one of the two remainders vested.

It seems that at one time the courts had so limited a concept of the right of reversion that, upon the death of the holder of the reversion, it passed like a possibility of reverter n51 by descent cast. But now reversions clearly descend to the testator's heirs.

So, where a will gave the residuary legatee only a life estate, the testator died intestate as to the reversion. n52 Reversions are devisable and alienable. n53 Under the older rule, however, a reversion, being an estate in land, did not pass under the residuary clause of the will but passed by intestacy unless specifically devised.

It has been held that upon the creation of a life estate the reversion may run to the land instead of the grantor. n54

§ 22.04(e) Upon Corporate Dissolution

The rule of the common law was that land belonging to a corporation, upon the dissolution thereof, reverted to the grantor. n55 This doctrine has been applied to eleemosynary associations incorporated for charitable purposes and having no capital stock. n56 Contrary to the common-law doctrine that real estate conveyed to an eleemosynary corporation reverts to the grantor upon a dissolution of such corporation, it is now generally held that real estate conveyed for a valuable consideration to a corporation organized for social and benevolent purposes does not revert to the grantor upon the dissolution of such corporation. n57

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 27. Kenelm Edward Digby, An Introduction to the History of the Law of Real Property 22 (5th ed. 1897), felt that no reversion arose in a grant of an estate tail unless expressly reserved.

In re Lawrence Sav. & Trust Co., 46 A.2d 494 (Pa. 1946) (the words "revert back" showed intent to reserve a reversion). Washington City Bd. of Educ. v. Edgerton, 94 S.E.2d 661, 664 (N.C. 1956) (refusing to recognize reversionary interests in deeds that do not contain express and unambiguous language of reversion or termination upon condition broken).

(n2)Footnote 28. Where trust for public park for white persons only became unenforceable, the property reverted to the heirs of the grantor. Evans v. Abney, 396 U.S. 435 (1970).

Where the grantor reserved the oil and gas for as long as there should be production in paying quantities, such an instrument created a reversion in the grantor, there being no limitation over, which reversion passed to the grantee under other language of the deed. Brown v. Terra Bella Irrig. Dist., 330 P.2d 775 (Cal. 1958).

See Stanley M. Johanson, Reversions, Remainders, and the Doctrine of Worthier Title, 45 Tex. L. Rev. 1.

In Ohio there is a reversion after a fee tail estate which is descendable, devisable and alienable, but if not disposed of, it passes to the heirs of the grantor by descent. Long v. Long, 343 N.E.2d 100 (Ohio 1976). Beechler v. Beechler, 641 N.E.2d 1189 (Ohio App. 1994) (court enforced ex-wife's reversionary interest in divorce decree where interest arose if ex-husband allowed particular person to occupy former marital residence overnight).

(n3)Footnote 29. 4 Kent's Comm. 354; Alexander v. De Kerm, 81 Ky. 345 (1883).

(n4)Footnote 30. Norman v. Horton, 126 S.W.2d 187 (Mo. 1939).

(n5)Footnote 31. Joshua Williams, Principles of the Law of Real Property, 231 (24th ed. 1933).

Where there was a devise to the testator's brothers and sisters for their lives and then to their children, the court held that where the remainderman would join in a conveyance and would predecease the life tenant and the life tenant then would die without issue, the heir of the remainderman would take directly from the testator and not as heir as the remainderman; therefore, such heir of the remainderman was not bound by the ancestor's deed. Barnes v. Dortch, 95 S.E.2d 872 (N.C. 1957).

(n6)Footnote 32. Henry William Challis, The Law of Real Property, 83 (3d ed. 1911).

(n7)Footnote 33. Theodore F.T. Plucknett, A Concise History of the Common Law (2d Ed.), 559 (2d ed. 1936).

(n8)Footnote 34. Digby, supra, note n.39 § 3, considered that an escheat followed the conditional fee and was a mere possibility of obtaining a right in land, not an alienable right itself. The statute de donis, however, converted this "escheat" into a reversion, an alienable interest in land.

(n9)Footnote 35. Where there is a valid limitation in a will to the wife "as long as she remains my widow" or "until she remarries," one line of cases gives the widow only a life estate determinable on remarriage with a reversion to the grantor's estate. Lydick v. Tate, 44 N.E.2d 583 (Ill. 1942); the other creates a determinable fee. Raulerson v. Saffold, 61 So. 2d 926 (Fla. 1952).

(n10)Footnote 36. Gehlbach v. Briegel, 194 N.E. 591 (Ill. 1934); Beatty v. Miley, 233 P.2d 269 (Okla. 1951).

A reversion arises where the testator failed to create a future estate in the remainderman. Matter of Newton's Estate, 389 N.Y.S.2d 420 (1976).

(n11)Footnote 37. Thomas v. Thomas, 9 N.E. 457 (Ind. 1886) (even where testator attempted to disinherit his heirs); Reikofski v. Bodwell, 529 N.W.2d 531 (Neb. 1995) (when railroad ceased using right of way for railroad purposes, the land reverted to the grantor's successors); Huff v. Langman, 646 N.E.2d 730 (Ind. App. 1995) (reversion resulting from abandonment of railroad right of way).

(n12)Footnote 38. Quinlan v. Wickman, 84 N.E. 38 (Ill. 1908).

(n13)Footnote 39. Trustees of Cumberland Univ. v. Caldwell, 84 So. 846 (Ala. 1919).

(n14)Footnote 40. Bourbon Agric. Bank & Trust Co. v. Miller, 265 S.W. 790 (Ky. 1924). See Garvey v. Union Trust Co., 52 N.Y.S. 260 (1898); In re Kenyon, 20 A. 294 (R.I. 1890).

(n15)Footnote 41. Shelton v. Lewis, 158 N.E.2d 919 (Ohio Com. Pl. 1959) ("revert" creates a reversion in a will). Sedlak v. City of Solon, 661 N.E.2d 265 (Ohio App. 1995) (reversion language in instrument of conveyance was clear and unambiguous); Washington City Bd. of Educ. v. Edgerton, 94 S.E.2d 661, 664 (N.C. 1956) (refusing to recognize reversionary interests in deeds that do not contain express and unambiguous language of reversion or termination upon condition broken).

(n16)Footnote 42. So under a statute providing that if a deed were made in sole consideration of love and affection and the grantee died without issue the property should "revert" to the grantor, the wife of the grantee was entitled to her statutory one-third in fee in lieu of dower. Mitchell v. Parkhurst, 17 Ind. 146 (1861).

(n17)Footnote 43. Joshua Williams, Principles of the Law of Real Property, 386 (24th ed. 1933).

(n18)Footnote 44. Where the testator limits the gift to the widow "as long as she remains my widow" or "until she remarries" or deeds or devises are given "as long as the grantee remains unmarried," one line of cases gives a determinable fee in the donee with possibility of reverter in the grantor or testator, the fee ripening into a fee simple absolute if donee dies unmarried.

(n19)Footnote 45. Mitchell v. Cheney Slough Irrig. Co., 134 P.2d 34 (Cal. App. 1943).

(n20)Footnote 46. City Bank Farmers Trust Co. v. Miller, 15 N.E.2d 553 (N.Y. 1938).

The reservation of a reversion is not inconsistent with the creation of a trust to continue until the death of the reversioner (Doane v. Mercantile Trust Co., 55 N.E. 296 (N.Y. 1899); Matter of Asch, 78 N.Y.S. 561 (1902)). We do not say that the ancient rule survives as an absolute prohibition limiting the power of a grantor. At the outset, probably, like the rule in Shelley's Case (Webb v. Sweet, 79 N.E. 1024 (N.Y. 1907)), it was a rule, not of construction, but of property. But it was never applied in all its rigor to executory trusts (Sackville-West v. Holmesdale, L.R. 4, H.L. 543; Cushing v. Blake, 30 N.J. Eq. 689 (1879); Locke v. Southwood, 1 My. & Cr. 411; Trevor v. Trevor, 1 P. Wms. 622, 631; S. C., 1 Eq. Cas. Abr. 387, 391, aff'd, 5 Bro. P.C. 122; 29 L.R.A. (NS) 1136; Charles Watkins, An Essay Towards the Further Elucidation of the Law of Descents 145 (1794). Charles Fearne, An Essay on the Learning of Contingent Remainders and Executory Devices (10th ed. 1844), ch. 6, p. 145; which were "moulded by the court as best to answer the intent of the person creating them" (Watkins, supra). We may assume that this is the principle that would control the courts today. Doctor v. Hughes, 122 N.E. 221 (N.Y. 1919).

(n21)Footnote 47. Armstrong Junior College Comm. v. Livesey, 7 S.E.2d 678 (Ga. 1940). Graham v. Patton, 202 S.E.2d 58, (Ga. 1973); Brown v. Kamerer, 114 N.E. 544 (Ill. 1916); Bender v. Bender, 127 N.E. 22 (Ill. 1920) (reversion subject to contingent remainder must be paid for in eminent domain); Carter v. Lewis, 4 N.E. 853 (Ill. 1936); Alsman v. Walters, 111 N.E. 921 (Ind. 1916); Baxter v. Bryan, 94 S.W. 633 (Ky. 1906); French v. Pierce, 208 S.W.2d 327 (Ky. 1948); Gilpin v. Williams, 25 Ohio St. 283 (1874); Osgood v. Thomas, 121 A. 122 (R.I. 1923); Tyson v. Weatherley, 52 S.E.2d 410 (S.C. 1949); Bigley v. Watson, 39 S.W. 525 (Tenn. 1897).

(n22)Footnote 48. Bender v. Bender, 127 N.E. 22 (Ill. 1920). But see Golick v. Lukus, 215 A.2d 551 (N.J. Sup. Ct. App. Div. 1965) (noting that the reversioner is not a necessary party in an action to partition a life estate).

(n23)Footnote 49. Loddington v. Kime, 1 Salk. 224, 91 Eng. Rep. 198 (1795).

(n24)Footnote 50. First Nat'l Bank v. Pointer, 126 S.W.2d 335 (Tenn. 1939).

(n25)Footnote 51. Heirs of holder of a reversion take per stirpes and per capita. House v. White, 240 S.E.2d 489 (N.C. App. 1978), N.C. Gen. Stat. § 29-1.

(n26)Footnote 52. Brown v. Kamerer, 114 N.E. 544 (Ill. 1916); Spicely v. Jones, 101 S.E.2d 567 (Va. 1958).

(n27)Footnote 53. William D. Sheppard's Touchstone of Common Assurances, 238 (1841).

Statute canceling reverter provision more than 21 years old was held unconstitutional as applying to existing interests. Biltmore Village, Inc. v. Royal, 71 So. 2d 727 (Fla. 1954).

(n28)Footnote 54. Mid-State Homes, Inc. v. Johnson, 128 S.E.2d 197 (Ga. 1962).

(n29)Footnote 55. Coke on Littleton, § 13b; 1 William Blackstone, Commentaries 484.

A gift in remainder to a corporation vests at the testator's death and is not lost if the corporation dissolves before the life tenant's death. Tretbar v. Aged Ministers' Home, 299 P.2d 58 (Kan. 1956).

(n30)Footnote 56. Late Corp. of Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints v. United States, 136 U.S. 1 (1890); Mott v. Danville Seminary, 21 N.E. 927 (Ill. 1889).

(n31)Footnote 57. McAlhany v. Murray, 71 S.E. 1025 (S.C. 1911), citing Diamond State Iron Co. v. Husbands, 68 A. 240 (Del. Ch. 1898); Hopkins v. Crossley, 101 N.W. 822 (Mich. 1904); Richards v. Northwestern Coal & Mining Co., 119 S.W. 953 (Mo. 1909); Shayne v. Evening Post Pub. Co., 61 N.E. 115 (N.Y. 1901); Wilson v. Leary, 26 S.E. 630 (N.C. 1897), L.R.A. 240, 58 Am. St. 778; Huber v. Martin, 105 N.W. 1031 (Wis. 1906).

When a canal in Ohio was abandoned by the state, the interest did not revert to the grantor's successors, but remained in the state. Circle Inv. Co. v. City of Toledo, 345 N.E.2d 442 (Ohio App. 1975).

LexisNexis®

Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

CHAPTER 22 REVERSIONS

3-22 Thompson on Real Property, Thomas Editions § 22.05

AUTHOR: Professor David A. Thomas This chapter is based in part on ch. 30, George R. Thompson, Commentaries on the Modern law of Real Property (John S. Grimes, ed. 1979), which made an important contribution to preserving the American common law on reversions. J. Reuben Clark Law School Brigham Young University

§ 22.05 Reversions Under the Doctrine of Worthier Title

[Go To Supp]

Under the reasoning of the common law, if one enfeoffed another for life or in tail, remainder to the right heirs of the feoffor, the remainder was void "for the ancestor during his life beareth in his body (in judgment of law) all his heirs and therefore it is truly said that haeres est pars antecessoris." n58 The use returned to the feoffor who could devise it, there being want of consideration to raise the use to the heirs. n59 Where the remainder was to the next heir in the singular, however, the rule did not apply and the heir took by way of remainder. n60

A similar rule developed at a later date as to devises in wills to the heirs of the testator. Here, where the devisees took the same quantity and quality of estate by the devise as they would take by descent, they were said to take under the worthier, i.e., older title of descent rather than by devise. Thus, the heirs had an inherited reversion rather than a devised remainder. n61

This, being a common-law concept, has found considerable following in America. A grant or devise to one for life with "remainder" to the heirs of the grantor or devisor does not create an estate in remainder, for the grantor or devisor could have no heirs until after death. If the life estate should terminate before the grantor's or devisor's death the estate would revert to such grantor or devisor, or if the life estate should terminate after the death of the grantor or devisor, the reversion would pass by descent to the grantor's or devisor's heirs. n62

Under this doctrine of worthier title, if the grantees or legatees took the same estate in quantity and quality by way of grant or devise as they would have taken by way of inheritance they took by the "worthier title," i.e., a reversion rather than a remainder was created. n63

Worthier title is now largely in disrepute. n64 The grantor or devisor, having the reversion under this doctrine, might dispose of it by subsequent inter vivos conveyance to the exclusion of his heirs apparent, n65 and he may dispose of such interest by will. n66 The grantor has the power to alienate the reversion during his lifetime. n67

There is a corollary to the doctrine of worthier title, found in some jurisdictions, to the effect that if any devisee is given in a will the same quality and quantity of estate that he would have taken had the testator died intestate, the taking is by descent. So a devise of the same rights the devisee would take under the law has no effect. n68 In the absence of a clearly expressed intent to the contrary, a grant to the grantor's next of kin creates a reversion in the grantor and gives the next of kin nothing in remainder. n69

The worthier title doctrine is important where problems of abatement of the testator's estate for payment of debts arise. Under some statutes property passing by intestacy or under the residuary clause abates before even general devises or bequests, n70 and if the residuary beneficiaries are other than the testator's legal heirs then in those jurisdictions where a reversion passes under the residuary clause the heirs will lose out entirely by reason of the worthier title doctrine. n71

In a trust settlement, the settlor where the doctrine is in effect may join with a present beneficiary to terminate the trust even though there is a remainder to the settlor's heirs. n72 In the case of a deed, if there is a remainder to the grantor's heirs, the remainder will become part of the grantor's estate upon his death. A similar result may ensue in the case of insurance policies and person's or employee's trusts or profit-sharing plans if the employee makes his heirs generally the alternate payees upon his death, and the presence or absence of the doctrine is important where the rule against remoteness of vesting is raised. n73 If worthier title is not in effect, a limitation to the testator's heirs refers to those living at the testator's death. n74

In some cases the doctrine has been treated as a rule of law like Shelley's Case. n75 But if the testator intended by the word heirs to mean a limited group as "children" the rule does not apply. n76

One practical difference between the worthier title doctrine and the remainder theory arises in cases where the limitation to the grantor or testator's heirs follows a life estate. In some states "heirs" would be determined as of the time of the life tenant's death. n77

The reservation of a testamentary power of appointment indicates that the doctrine of "worthier title" is not applicable and that instead a remainder is created in the heirs. n78 New York leans to the use of the doctrine as a rule of construction not of law. n79

California has preserved the doctrine n80 though by statute it has abolished Shelley's Case.

Under the worthier title doctrine, a subsequent devisee or grantee of the grantor will take to the exclusion of the grantor's heirs. n81 One who takes by worthier title takes by "descent" under a statute differentiating between descent and purchase. n82 The worthier title rule does not apply if the devise is in trust. n83

In some states, however, particularly as to the wills branch of the doctrine, it has become a rule of intention of the testator, not a rule of law. n84 The doctrine has been abolished by statute in England, n85 and it has been repudiated either by statute n86 or by judicial decision in numerous states. n87 Statutes abolishing Shelley's Case do not apply to worthier title problems. n88 But California has held that such a statute causes "heirs" to become a word of purchase, giving a remainder to the heir. n89

In those states where the escheat concept is understood as causing the state to take a superior title, and not as an ultimate heir, the effect is as though with respect to the sovereign and the statute quia emptores. n90 Thus, the state has at all times a reversionary interest in a fee simple dependent upon the death of the holder of a fee simple absolute without heirs and intestate.

In wills, worthier title applies whenever the heir takes the same estate in quality as he would take by descent. n91 In deeds, the rule is applicable only where the limitation is to the grantor's heirs. n92 In wills, the doctrine is used whether the gift is immediate or by way of future interest. n93 Where the doctrine of worthier title is not effective and there is a limitation inter vivos to the heirs of the settlor in remainder, those who are the heirs of the settlor are determined as of the effective date of the instrument, not at the death of the life tenant. n94

A reversion exists whenever the remainders are successive and not alternative, n95 and remainders that are vested in fee subject to divesting are followed by reversions. n96 Where a trust is created, any part of the fee not disposed of reverts to the creator. n97

FOOTNOTES:
(n1)Footnote 58. 27 Henry viii, c. 10 (1536). Co. Litt., § 22b, citing Fenwicke & Mitford, Tr. 31 Eliz., 1 Leon 183, 74 Eng. Rep. 168.

See Joseph W. Morris, Wills Branch of the Worthier Title Doctrine, 54 Mich. L. Rev. 451 (1956).

"Whensoever the ancestor takes any estate of freehold, whether for his own life or the life of another, or whether it be of such a nature that it may determine in his lifetime or not, and there is afterwards, in the same conveyance, a limitation to his right heirs or heirs in tail, (either immediately, without the intervention of any mean estate of freehold between his freehold and the subsequent limitation to his heirs, or mediately, that is, with the interposition of some such mean estate), there such subsequent limitation to the heirs or heirs in tail vests immediately in the ancestor and does not remain in contingency or abeyance, with this distinction: that where such subsequent limitation is immediate it then executes in the ancestor and becomes united to his particular freehold, forming therewith one estate of inheritance in possession; but where such limitation is mediate it is then a remainder vested in the ancestor who takes the freehold, not to be executed in possession till the determination of the preceding mean estate." Charles Fearne, An Essay on the Learning of Contingent Remainders and Executory Devices (10th ed. 1844), p. 25.

In re Bingham's Case, 2 Coke 91a, 76 Eng. Rep. 611.

(n2)Footnote 59. Charles Butler & Francis Hargrave, Notes to Coke Littleton, § 22b (1832).

See Joseph W. Morris, Inter Vivos Branch of the Worthier Title Doctrine, 2 Okla. L. Rev. 133 (1949).

In re Bingham's Case, 2 Coke 91a, 76 Eng. Rep. 611.

(n3)Footnote 60. Archer's Case, 1 Coke 66b; Bingham's Case, 2 Coke 91a; Pibus v. Milford, 1 Vent. 372; Read v. Erington, Cro. Eliz. 322; Cholmondesly v. Maxey, 12 E. Easte. 583.

Otherwise if the ancestor took only an estate for years, remainder to the heirs of his body, the remainder was valid. Butler, Notes to Co. Litt., § 22b.

(n4)Footnote 61. Allen v. Heber, 1 W. Bl. 22, 96 Eng. Rep. 12 (1828); Chaplin v. Leroux, 5 Maule. & S. 14; 105 Eng. Rep. 957 (1816); Godolphin v. Abingdon, 2 Atk. 57, 26 Eng. Rep. 432 (1740). See Fowler Vincent Harper & Frederick E. Heckel, Doctrine of Worthier Title, 24 N.W. U.L. Rev. 627 (1930).

Devise to N in fee simple and if she died without issue to the testator's heirs. Testator's heirs took since devisee took a defeasible fee (worthier title not discussed). Scott v. Jackson, 127 S.E.2d 234 (N.C. 1962).

Worthier title is a rule of law. In re Brolasky's Estate, 153 A. 739 (Pa. 1931); Robinson v. Blankenship, 92 S.W. 854 (Tenn. 1906). Contra, rule of construction, In re Burchell's Estate, 87 N.E.2d 293 (N.Y. 1949); Braswell v. Braswell, 81 S.E.2d 560 (Va. 1954).

Doctrine of worthier title was abolished in Illinois. 765 Ill. Comp. Stat. 350/1, 350/2. And in Indiana as to trusts only. Ind. Code § 30-4-2-7.

The doctrine of worthier title is abolished in North Carolina. N.C. Gen. Stat., § 28A-1-2.

(n5)Footnote 62. William Blackstone, Commentaries 176.

Bixby v. California Trust Co., 202 P.2d 1018 (Cal. 1949); Akers v. Clark, 56 N.E. 296 (Ill. 1900); Bails v. Davis, 89 N.E. 706 (Ill. 1909); Moore v. Stanfill, 313 S.W.2d 486 (Tenn. App. 1957); Braswell v. Braswell, 81 S.E.2d 560 (Va. 1954);

See the following cases: West Tenn. Co. v. Townes, 52 F.2d 764 (D. Miss. 1931); Morsman v. Internal Revenue Comm'r, 90 F.2d 18 (8th Cir. 1937); Wilcoxen v. Owen, 185 So. 897 (Ala. 1938); Fletcher v. Ferrill, 227 S.W.2d 448 (Ark. 1950); Lathrop v. Sandlin, 268 S.W.2d 606 (Ark. 1954); Burton v. Boren, 139 N.E. 868 (Ill. 1923); Sutliff v. Aydelott, 27 N.E.2d 529 (Ill. 1940); Mills v. Mills, 87 S.W.2d 389 (Ky. 1935); Fidelity & Columbia Trust Co. v. Williams, 105 S.W.2d 814 (Ky. 1937); Powell v. Childers, 234 S.W.2d 158 (Ky. 1950); Perkins v. Iglehart, 39 A.2d 672 (Md. 1944); Norman v. Horton, 126 S.W.2d 187 (Mo. 1939); City Bank Farmers Trust Co. v. Miller, 15 N.E.2d 553 (N.Y. 1938); Davies v. City Bank Farmers Trust Co., 288 N.Y.S. 398 (1936); Richardson v. Richardson, 81 N.E.2d 54 (N.Y. 1948); Therrell v. Clanton, 186 S.E. 483 (N.C. 1936); Dunnett v. First Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 85 P.2d 281 (Okla. 1938); In re Brolasky's Estate, 153 A. 739 (Pa. 1931); Wilson v. Poston, 123 S.E. 849 (S.C. 1924); Robinson v. Blankenship, 92 S.W. 854 (Tenn. 1906); Seguin State Bank & Trust Co. v. Locke, 102 S.W.2d 1050 (Tex. 1937); Glenn v. Holt, 229 S.W. 684 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921); Bottimore v. First & Merchants Nat'l Bank, 196 S.E. 593 (Va. 1938); McKenna v. Seattle-First Nat'l Bank, 214 P.2d 664 (Wash. 1950).

"If a man make a gift in tail or a lease for life the remainder to his own right heirs, this remainder is void and he hath the reversion in him." Coke on Littleton, § 2b.

In the case of Fletcher v. Ferrill, 227 S.W.2d 448 (Ark. 1950), the grantor in his deed reserved a life estate in himself then to an orphanage so long as it should be so used and then to revert to the grantor's heirs. The court held that this created a possibility of reverter in the grantor and not an executory limitation to the heirs. Wilson v. Pharris, 158 S.W.2d 274 (Ark. 1942).

Where there is a limitation to several for their lives with a remainder in fee to the heirs of one of them, the estate in remainder vests at once in the ancestor to whose heirs it purports to be given. Bullard v. Goffe, 37 Mass. (20 Pick.) 252 (1838).

A limitation over to the settlor's heirs in default of testamentary appointment by the settlor was held not to be worthier title since the settlor had no power to deed away a reversion. Sands v. Old Colony Trust Co., 81 N.E. 300 (Mass. 1907).

See Fowler Vincent Harper & Frederick E. Heckel, The Doctrine of Worthier Title, 24 N.W. U.L. L. Rev. 627 (1930); Comment Limitation to Heirs of a Settlor, 34 N.W. U.L. Rev. 835 (1939-1940); Joseph W. Morris, The Inter-Vivos Branch of the Worthier Title Doctrine, 2 Okla. L. Rev. 133; Edward H. Warren, A Remainder to the Grantor's Heirs, 22 Tex. L. Rev. 22 (1943); 1 Lewis F. Simes, Future Interests c. 8 (1936); Note, The Rule Favoring Title By Descent Over Title By Devise, 76 Harv. L. Rev. 993 (1933); Note, Trust -- Termination -- Effect Limitation in Form of Remainder, Cuako in Favor of This Entitled in Case of Intestacy, 17 Minn L. Rev. 346 (1933); Note, Deeds -- Reversions -- Conveyances to Heirs General of Grantor, 15 N.C.L. Rev 51 (1936); Note, Construction of Indent on Limitations to Grantor's Heirs, 17 U. Chi. L. Rev. 87 (1949).

Doctrine of worthier title repudiated. Hatch v. Riggs Nat'l Bank, 361 F.2d 559 (D.D.C. 1966).

New York has now made worthier title a rule of property. In re Dodge's Trust, 250 N.E.2d 849 (N.Y. 1969).

New York has abolished the doctrine of worthier title for all purposes except that the settlor of an inter vivos trust could terminate the trust with the consent of adult living beneficiaries. New York Estates, Powers and Trusts Law, § 7-1.9. Jamin v. Williamson, 381 S.E.2d 345 (N.C. App. 1989); Bean v. Boudreau, 504 N.E.2d 939 (Ill. App. 1987).

(n6)Footnote 63. In re Miller's Estate, 54 N.W.2d 433 (Iowa 1952); Beamer v. Ashby, 231 P.2d 668 (Okla. 1951) (for worthier title estate must be identical with that which would have passed by descent); Cochran v. Frierson, 258 S.W.2d 748 (Tenn. 1953).

See Joseph W. Morris, The Wills Branch of the Worthier Title Doctrine, 54 Mich. L. Rev. 451 (1956).

In re Burchell's Estate, 87 N.E.2d 293 (N.Y. 1949) (rule of construction); In re Brolasky's Estate, 153 A. 739 (Pa. 1931) (rule of property); McKenna v. Seattle-First Nat'l Bank, 214 P.2d 664 (Wash. 1950).

In the case of Morris v. Hardin, 295 So. 2d 755 (Miss. 1974), under a provision that if the beneficiary in remainder should die prior to the life tenant the property should become that of the heirs at law of said beneficiary, no interest was given to the heirs.

"Next of kin" leads to worthier title. Fidelity Union Trust Co. v. Egenolf Day Nursery Ass'n, 166 A.2d 402 (N.J. Super. 1960).

Worthier title not followed; "heirs" being treated as a word of purchase, not of limitation. Standard Knitting Mills, Inc. v. Allen, 424 S.W.2d 796 (Tenn. 1967).

See Comment, The Doctrine of Worthier Title in Arkansas, 21 Ark. L. Rev. 394 (1967).

Gift to testator's issue created a contingent remainder in the issue and not worthier title. In re Estate of Brown, 306 N.E.2d 781 (N.Y. 1973).

North Carolina has abolished common-law worthier title. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 2844-1-2. In re Estate of Grulke, 546 N.W.2d 626 (Iowa App. 1996) (court applied the doctrine of worthier title); Dennis v. Bird, 941 S.W.2d 486 (Ky. Ct. App. 1997) (restricting application of the doctrine of worthier title to remainders, not reversions); All Persons v. Buie, 386 So. 2d 1109 (Miss. 1980) (recognizing the doctrine of worthier title as the law in Mississippi).

(n7)Footnote 64. Treating wills branch of worthier title as an inapplicable anachronism. City Nat'l Bank of Birmingham v. Andrews, 355 So. 2d 341 (Ala. 1978). Devise created a remainder which could be renounced, not a reversion.

Worthier title ignored. Hanley v. Craven, 263 N.W.2d 79 (Neb. 1978).

(n8)Footnote 65. West Tenn. Co. v. Townes, 52 F.2d 764 (D. Miss. 1931); Wilcoxen v. Owen, 185 So. 897 (Ala. 1938); Whayne v. Davis, 66 S.W. 827 (Ky. App. 1902); Dooley v. Goodwin, 93 S.W. 47 (Ky. L. 1906); Wells v. Kuhn, 221 S.W. 19 (Mo. 1920); Therrell v. Clanton, 186 S.E. 483 (N.C. 1936); Conrad v. Funnell, 232 P. 950 (Okla. 1925); Robinson v. Blankenship, 92 S.W. 854 (Tenn. 1906); Glenn v. Holt, 229 S.W. 684 (Tex. Civ. App. 1921).

(n9)Footnote 66. Wilcoxen v. Owen, 185 So. 897 (Ala. 1938); Akers v. Clark, 56 N.E. 296 (Ill. 1900); City Bank Farmers Trust Co. v. Miller, 15 N.E.2d 553 (N.Y. 1938); Hammond v. Chemung Canal Trust Co., 252 N.Y.S. 259 (1931); In re Brolasky's Estate, 153 A. 739 (Pa. 1931).

"The creator of a trust can do as he pleases with his property and the courts look at his words to guide them in decisions. The directions come from the owner of the property and not from the law, unless there be some specific statute to be enforced. To determine, therefore, whether the settlor of the trust in this case simply created a life interest and nothing more, reserving to himself the balance of the interest in the property, we looked to his intention, as expressed in the instrument. If the trust deed had said that upon the death of the life beneficiary the net principal of the trust estate was to be paid over and delivered to the settlor or his next of kin in equal shares, the addition in this place of the words "next of kin," would not have been sufficient in all probability to create a remainder. Rather it would indicate that the settlor intended all above a life interest to remain with him as a reversion to be disposed of in any way he pleased. The words would indicate a limitation, not a gift." Whittemore v. Equitable Trust Co., 165 N.E. 454 (N.Y. 1929).

(n10)Footnote 67. Wilson v. Pharris, 158 S.W.2d 274 (Ark. 1942). All Persons v. Buie, 386 So. 2d 1109 (Miss. 1980) (allowing conveyance by grantor of the reversion).

(n11)Footnote 68. In the case of Tennant v. Smith, 155 N.W. 267 (Iowa 1915), where the wife devised to my husband such share of my estate as he is entitled to receive under the laws of the state of Iowa the worthier title doctrine was invoked when the husband predeceased the wife so that the husband took by descent not by will and the antilapse statute did not apply.

Devise to my wife such property as she will take by the laws of the state of Iowa, wife took as heir under the worthier title doctrine. Comment, Wills -- Construction -- Use of the Doctrine of Worthier Title, 39 Iowa L. Rev. 199 (1953).

"When a will is made the presumption is, that the testator intended that the estate should pass by devise and not by descent. This design, however, is sometimes frustrated by rules of law, which is sought to be done in the present case, by one for which there are not the same reasons under our laws as in England. This rule is as technical as the other. However, it exists, and we have no disposition to disregard it, but we think it does not apply in the present case, as the will does not pass the same estate in quality and quantity that the devisees would have taken as heirs at law." Gilpin v. Hollingsworth, 3 Md. 190 (1852).

"Where the same quantity and quality of estate is devised, that the devisee would have acquired by descent, the title passes by the worthier title -- by descent, and not by purchase." 7 Gill & Johns 70. 2 Francis Hilliard, The American Law of Real Property, 528 (4th ed. 1869). Matter of Estate of Grulke, 546 N.W.2d 626 (Iowa App. 1996).

(n12)Footnote 69. Akers v. Clark, 56 N.E. 296 (Ill. 1900), 75 Am. St. 152; Berlenbach v. Chemical Bank & Trust Co., 256 N.Y.S. 563 (1932).

Worthier title is quite distinct from Shelley's Case. Alexander v. Kermel, 81 Ky. 345 (1883). The one applies only to the acts of an ancestor as between him and his own heirs. The other is confined to the limitation of an estate of inheritance to heirs of a person who has taken under the same instrument a prior estate of freehold. Campbell v. Rawdon, 18 N.Y. 412 (1858).

Where trust created a life estate with contingent remainder to the daughter's living children or the testator's representatives, the remainder interest paid to the representatives was an asset of the testator's estate and passed under the residuary clause of his will. In re Bentley's Estate, 303 N.E.2d 166 (Ill. App. 1973).

(n13)Footnote 70. Charles Butler & Francis Hargrave, Notes to Coke Littleton, § 12b (1832). Mitchell v. Mitchell, 21 Md. 244 (1864); Ellis v. Page, 61 Mass. (7 Cush.) 161 (1857).

Contra result, requiring the devisees to contribute to the disappointed heir. Biederman v. Seymour, 3 Beav. 368, 48 Eng. Rep. 1071 (1839).

(n14)Footnote 71. Where a devise was to the testator's only child for life, and, should he die without children, to testator's next of kin, it was held that such child took a life estate, and that he was also entitled, by descent, to a legal reversion of the fee pending the event of his dying without children and the taking effect in possession, so that the life estate became merged in the fee and cut off contingent remainders limited upon the life estate. Bond v. Moore, 86 N.E. 386 (Ill. 1908).

Where there was a devise of a life estate, with the remainder to the children or more remote issue of the devisee or in the alternative to the brothers and their issue, it was held that where there were no such issue the life tenant could devise the property because the reversion had been created under the will to the life tenant as the heir of the testator, and the heir as of the date of the testator's death could inherit the reversion. State v. Rogers, 344 P.2d 1073 (Colo. 1959).

Indiana has abolished the doctrine of worthier title in trusts. Ind. Code § 30-4-2-7.

Massachusetts has abolished the doctrine of worthier title in wills and inter vivos trusts. Mass. Ann. Laws ch. 184, §§ 33A, 33B.

See Harold E. Verrall, The Doctrine of Worthier Title: A Questionable Rule of Construction, 6 UCLA L. Rev. 371 (1959).

(n15)Footnote 72. Doctor v. Hughes, 122 N.E. 221 (N.Y. 1919).

Parties to a marriage settlement, which provided that the property should go to the survivor for life and then to their heirs, could, under the worthier title doctrine terminate the settlement, since there was no remainder in the heirs. King v. Dunham, 31 Ga. 743 (1861). In re Eble's Trust, 76 N.Y.S.2d 506 (N.Y. Sup. Ct. 1947).

(n16)Footnote 73. McMahon v. Consistory of St. Paul's Reformed Church, 75 A.2d 122 (Md. 1950) (gift to testator's heirs after a fee upon condition subsequent was not a possibility of reverter but a limitation over and void for remoteness).

(n17)Footnote 74. Young v. Lewis, 76 S.E.2d 276 (W. Va. 1953).

(n18)Footnote 75. Francis Hargrave, A Collection of Tracts Relative to the Law of England, 571 (1787). Miller v. Fleming, 18 D.C. (7 Mackey) 139 (1889); Stephens v. Moore, 249 S.W. 601 (Mo. 1923). See In re Brolasky's Estate, 153 A. 739 (Pa. 1931); Robinson v. Blankenship, 92 S.W. 854 (Tenn. 1906).

2 William Blackstone, Commentaries 107. Richard Preston, An Essay in a Course of Lectures on Abstracts of Title. Bohon v. Bohon, 78 Ky. 408 (1880), however, treats the fee after a contingent remainder as being in abeyance, in nubibus, as long as the remainder is contingent.

Worthier title is a rule of property not of construction in Illinois. May v. Marx, 20 N.E.2d 821 (Ill. App. 1939), but see Lawrence v. Lawrence, 54 N.E. 918 (Ill. 1899). Belton v. United States, 581 A.2d 1205 (D.C. Ct. App. 1990).

(n19)Footnote 76. Loring v. Eliot, 82 Mass. (16 Gray) 568 (1860); Boone v. Baird, 44 So. 929 (Miss. 1907); Thompson v. Batts, 84 S.E. 347 (N.C. 1915). See Stoller v. Doyle, 100 N.E. 959 (Ill. 1913).

(n20)Footnote 77. Dean v. Lancaster, 105 S.E.2d 675 (S.C. 1958) Comment, A Revision and a Remainder Distinguished, 16 Wash. & Lee L. Rev. 275 (1959), 61 W. Va. L. Rev. 328 (1958-1959).

(n21)Footnote 78. Hendrick v. Mitchell, 69 N.E.2d 466 (Mass. 1946); Bagley v. Kuhn, 77 N.E.2d 312 (Mass. 1948); Engel v. Guaranty Trust Co., 19 N.E.2d 673 (N.Y. 1939).

(n22)Footnote 79. Scholtz v. Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 68 N.E.2d 503 (N.Y. 1946); Richardson v.

Richardson, 81 N.E.2d 54 (N.Y. 1948); In re Burchell's Estate, 87 N.E.2d 293 (N.Y. 1949).

Worthier title doctrine not applied. Worm v. United States Trust Co., 86 N.Y.S.2d 632 (1949).

Doctrine undetermined. See Note, Future Interests -- Interstate Distributes Held to Create Remainder Despite Doctrine of Worthier Title, 62 Harv. L. Rev. 313 (1948).

(n23)Footnote 80. Bixby v. California Trust Co., 202 P.2d 1018 (Cal. 1949); Nelson v. California Trust Co., 202 P.2d 1021 (Cal. 1949).

See Cal. Civ. Code § 779.

(n24)Footnote 81. Bartlett v. United States, 146 F. Supp. 719 (Ct. Cl. 1956); Thurman v. Hudson, 280 S.W.2d 507 (Ky. 1955); Cochran v. Frierson, 258 S.W.2d 748 (Tenn. 1953); Braswell v. Braswell, 81 S.E.2d 560 (Va. 1954); McKenna v. Seattle-First Nat'l Bank, 214 P.2d 664 (Wash. 1950).

California has abolished the worthier title doctrine. Cal. Civ. Code § 1073, and Cal. Prob. Code § 109.

See Note, Statutory Abolition of the Doctrine of Worthier Title, 47 Cal. L. Rev. 740 (1959).

See also Stanley M. Johanson, Reversions, Remainders, and the Doctrine of Worthier Title, 45 Tex. L. Rev. 1 (1966).

(n25)Footnote 82. In re Meyer's Estate, 238 P.2d 597 (Cal. App. 1951).

Cordon v. Gregg, 97 P.2d 732, reh'g, 101 P.2d 414 (Or. 1940); Hoover's Lessee v. Gregory, 18 Tenn. (10 Yer.) 444 (1837); Dictum McQuiddy Printing Co. v. Hirsig, 134 S.W.2d 197 (Tenn. App. 1939) (heir may not renounce).

Devise to A for life, remainder to his heirs created a reversion in the testator and did not create a remainder in A's collateral heirs, only in A's children when and if born. Call v. Call, 367 S.W.2d 274 (Ky. 1963).

(n26)Footnote 83. Swaine v. Burton, 15 Ves. 365, 33 Eng. Rep. 792 (1808); Davis v. Kirk, 2 Kay & J. 391, 69 Eng. Rep. 834 (1856), but see Doe v. Timins, 1 B. & Ald. 530, 106 Eng. Rep. 195 (1818).

See Stanley M. Johanson, Reversions, Remainders, and the Doctrine of Worthier Title, 45 Tex. L. Rev 1 (1966).

